In first information report, date and time of occurrence has been shown as 12.04.1994 at 7.15 a.m., whereas the F.I.R. has been lodged on same day at 9.30 a.m. The distance of police station from the place of occurrence has been shown as 19 kms. The complainant is Ram Gopal Sharma (PW-1) and scriber of tahrir is Ashok Kumar Sharma. Deceased was son of complainant. In his oral statement, complainant mentioned at Page- 7 that after the occurrence he stayed their for 45 minutes. Further at Page- 6 he has mentioned that for lodging the F.I.R. he had gone by his own tractor. The way by which went for police station, takes one hour to reach police station. Witness Pw- 1 has further stated in his evidence at Page- 5 that he got written the application for F.I.R. at Sikandrarau by Ashok Kumar. He met him at bus-stand- Sikandrarau. The paper was given by Ashok Kumar as he was ever in law practice and due to the reason he preferred to get tahrir written by him. At present, Ashok Kumar is not doing practice. Accordingly, conclusion arrives that after occurrence which took place at 7.15 a.m., complainant moved from the place of occurrence by 8.00 a.m. for lodging F.I.R. It took one hour reach at police station- Sikandrarau and in the meantime, few 12 to 20 minutes would have been consumed in draftig of application (tahrir). As it has been stated by witness Pw- 1 in his evidence. Hence, if the F.I.R. of the occurrence has been lodged at 9.30 a.m. then in that case, it cannot be said that F.I.R. has been lodged with any inordinate delay.

Whether F.I.R. was Anti-timed

14. It has been argued by learned counsel for the appellants that the aforesaid F.I.R. has been lodged anti-time. In the meantime complainant planned to implicate appellants falsely as accused, due to enmity of children quarrel which had taken place in village. In fact, the deceased had gone in forest for defecation where he was killed by some unknown persons and complainant carried his dead body in the goddess temple and falsely implicated appellants. Learned counsel has pointed out that the inquest report does not contain Crime Number, Sections of I.P.C., weapons used in occurrence and name of accused persons, whereas the above entries are necessary to be mentioned in inquest report to check any manipulation like registration of F.I.R. anti-timed and to avoid any false implication of accused persons. In support of his argument learned counsel for appellants has quoted Para- 11 of case law Meharaj Singh Vs. State of U.P. 1994 SCC (Cri.) 1391, which is reproduced as under:-

"11. According to PW 3 Kamlesh, the deceased had left the house at 7.00 a.m. He would, therefore, have taken his food before leaving the house because it is not the prosecution case. that food was served to him while he was in the fields. Death, according to the medical witness, could have occurred within about 2 or 2 1/2 hours from the time the deceased had taken food on account of the presence of 150 gms of semi-digested food in the stomach of the deceased. According to PW 3, however the occurrence took place at about 11.30 a.m. which would imply that the deceased took his food later and did not leave his house at 7.00 a.m. but at about 9.30 a.m. That is nobody's case. The effort on the part of Kamlesh PW 3 to show that the occurrence took place at 11.30 a.m. appears to have been made because she wanted to back up the prosecution story by stating that the FIR had been lodged promptly at 12.45 p.m. by Makhar Singh and that she had seen the occurrence. According to the prosecution case PW 8, the investigating officer, left for the place of occurrence after the case had been registered at the police station but we find that in the inquest report which was prepared by PW 8 Sultan Singh, the investigating officer at the spot, the number of the FIR or the crime No. has not been given. Even the heading of the case, does not find mention in the inquest report. No explanation has been furnished for the omission of these vital matters from the inquest report. Was it because no FIR had actually been registered at the time as alleged by the prosecution and PW 8 had reached the spot and, after, some consultations and deliberations it came into existence? In this connection it is also relevant to note that copy of the FIR was not even sent to the medical officer along with the inquest report and the dead body for postmortem. The explanation of PW 8 for not sending the copy of the FIR or mentioning the name of the case or the crime No. in the inquest report is wholly unacceptable and the High Court erred in accepting the ipse dixit of Sultan Singh PW 8. It deserves to be noticed that in the inquest report even the name of the accused has not been mentioned. It also does not contain the names of the eyewitnesses or the gist of the statement of the eyewitnesses. It does not reveal as to how many shots had been fired or how many weapons had been used. The inquest report is not signed by any of the eyewitnesses, although the investigating officer has categorically asserted that Kamlesh and Shiv Charan were present at the place of occurrence when he visited and he recorded their statements. If he had actually recorded their statements, there is no reason why the details which we have found missing from the Inquest report should not have been there. There is yet another factor which is very relevant. The prosecution led no evidence to show as to when did the copy of the FIR, special report, which was required to be despatched under the statutory provisions of Section 154 CrPC read with Section 157 CrPC promptly, to the Magistrate was actually despatched. There is no evidence either to show as to when the copy of the FIR was received by the Magistrate. PW 8 has remained singularly silent on this aspect of the case. According to PW 3, the Police Inspector had taken her thumb impression at the site, but the prosecution has withheld that document from scrutiny of the courts, for reasons best known to it. The argument of Mr Tewatia, the learned Senior Counsel that since no FIR had been registered till the investigating officer arrived at the spot and conducted the inquest proceedings, the thumb impression of PW 3 was taken by the police on a document which was required to be used as an FIR, cannot be said to be without any merit. It was the duty of PW 8 to explain as to on which document he had obtained the thumb impression of the widow of the deceased at the spot and produce that document for scrutiny of the courts. He did not do so."

15. According to law it is not necessary to mention Crime No., Sections, name of accused persons and weapons used in offence in the inquest report. The language used by legislation in Section

174 of Cr.P.C. clearly indicates the scope of inquest report. There is printed proforma for preparation of inquest report which contains no column for the said entries. The provisions of 174 Cr.P.C., is reproduced as under:-

"174 (1) When the officer in charge of a police station or some other police officer specially empowered by the State Government in that behalf receives information that a person has committed suicide, or has been killed by another or by an animal or by machinery or by an accident, or has died under circumstances raising a reasonable suspicion that some other person has committed an offence, he shall immediately give intimation thereof to the nearest Executive Magistrate empowered to hold inquests, and, unless otherwise directed by any rule prescribed by the State Government, or by any general or special order of the District or Sub-divisional Magistrate, shall proceed to the place where the body of such deceased person is, and there, in the presence of two or more, respectable inhabitants of the neighbourhood, shall make an investigation, and draw up a report of the apparent cause of death, describing such wounds, fractures, bruises, and other marks of injury as may be found on the body, and stating in what manner, or by what weapon or instrument (if any), such marks appear to have been inflicted.

(2) The report shall be signed by such police officer and other persons, or by so many of them as concur therein, and shall be forthwith forwarded to the District Magistrate or the Sub-divisional Magistrate.

(3) When--

(i) the case involves suicide by a woman within seven years of her marriage; or

(ii) the case relates to the death of a woman within seven years of her marriage in any circumstances raising a reasonable suspicion that some other person committed an offence in relation to such woman; or

(iii) the case relates to the death of a woman within seven years of her marriage and any relative of the woman has made a request in this behalf; or

(iv) there is any doubt regarding the cause of death; or

(v) the police officer for any other reason considers it expedient so to do, he shall, subject to such rules as the State Government may prescribe in this behalf, forward the body, with a view to its being examined, to the nearest Civil Surgeon, or other qualified medical man appointed in this behalf by the State Government, if the state of the weather and the distance admit of its being so forwarded without risk of such putrefaction on the road as would render such examination useless.

(4) The following Magistrates are empowered to hold inquests, namely, any District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate and any other Executive Magistrate specially empowered in this behalf by the State Government or the District Magistrate."

16. On the above point of argument Hon'ble Apex Court has held in the case of Radha Mohan Singh alias Lal Saheb and others Vs. State of U.P. 2006 CRI. L. J. 1121 that there is no requirement in law of mentioning the details of the F.I.R., names of accused or names of eye-witness, the relevant Para of dictum is reproduced as under:-

"13.In Podda Narayana v. State of A.P. AIR 1975 SC 1252, it was held that the proceedings under Section 174 have a very limited scope. The object of the proceedings is merely to ascertain whether a person has died under suspicious circumstances or an unnatural death and if so what is the apparent cause of the death. The question regarding the details as to how the deceased was assaulted or who assaulted him or under what circumstances he was assaulted is foreign to the ambit and scope of the proceedings under S.174. Neither in practice nor in law was it necessary for the police to mention those details in the inquest report. It is, therefore, not necessary to enter all the details of the overt acts in the inquest report. Their omission is not sufficient to put the prosecution out of Court. In Shakila Khader v. Nausher Gama, AIR 1975 SC 1324, the contention raised that non-mention of a person's name in the inquest report would show that he was not a eye- witness of the incident was repelled on the ground that an inquest under Section 174, Cr.P.C. is concerned with establishing the cause of death and only evidence necessary to establish it need be brought out. The same view was taken in Eqbal Baig v. State of Andhra Pradesh, AIR 1987 SC 923, that the non-mention of name of an eye-witness in the inquest report could not be a ground to reject his testimony. Similarly, the absence of the name of the accused in the inquest report cannot lead to an inference that he was not present at the time of commission of the offence as the inquest report is not the statement of a person wherein all the names (accused and also the eye-witnesses) ought to have been mentioned. The view taken in Podda Narayana v. State of A.P. (supra) was approved by a three-Judge Bench in Khujji @ Surendra Tiwari v. State of Madhya Pradesh, AIR 1991 SC 1853, and it was held that the testimony of an eye-witness could not be discarded on the ground that their names did not figure in the inquest report prepared at the earliest point of time. The nature and purpose of inquest held under Section 174, Cr.P.C. was also explained in Amar Singh v. Balwinder Singh, 2003 (2) SCC 518. In the said case the High Court had observed that the fact that the details about the occurrence were not mentioned in the inquest report showed that the investigating officer was not sure of the facts when the inquest report was prepared and the said feature of the case carried weight in favour of the accused. After noticing the language used in Section 174, Cr.P.C. and earlier decisions of this Court it was ruled that the High Court was clearly in error in observing as aforesaid or drawing any inference against the prosecution. Thus, it is well settled by a catena of decisions of this Court that the purpose of holding an inquest is very limited, viz. to ascertain as to whether a person has committed suicide or has been killed by another or by an animal or by machinery or by an accident or has died under circumstances raising a reasonable suspicion that some other person has committed an offence. There is absolutely no requirement in lawof mentioning the details of the FIR, names of the accused or the names of the eye-witnesses or the gist of their statement nor it is required to be signed by any eye-witness. In Meharaj Singh v. State of U.P. (supra) the language used by the legislature in Section 174, Cr.P.C. was not taken note of nor the earlier decisions of this Court were referred to and some sweeping observations have been made which are not supported by the statutory provision. We are, therefore, of the opinion that the observations made in paras 11 and 12 of the reports do not represent the correct statement of law and they are hereby over-ruled. The challenge laid to the prosecution case by Shri Jain on the basis of the alleged infirmity or omission in the inquest report has, therefore, no substance and cannot be accepted."

17. On the same point the Hon'ble Apex Court in case of Jai Shree Yadav Vs. State of U.P. 2004 SAR (Criminal) 748 has held in Para- 17 which is reproduced as under:-

"17. The next contention in this regard is that the requisition sent by PW-8 to PW-4, the doctor, to conduct post mortem did not accompany all the particulars found in the inquest report and the complaint like the particulars of the case, the weapon used and the names of the accused persons etc. which according to the learned counsel for the accused indicates that when the dead body was sent for post mortem the investigating agency did not know the full particulars of the case. We do not think that these omissions, if any, would lead to the conclusion that the FIR is anti-timed. It is a settled principle in law that though it is necessary to give the gist of the information collected during the course of inquest proceedings and from the material available in the FIR to the doctor conducting the post mortem, it is not necessary to give all the particulars as contained in either of the above said documents. This is clear from the judgment of this Court in the case of Mahendra Rai vs. Mithilesh Rai & Ors. (1997 10 SCC 605)."

18. In the case of Amar Singh Vs. Balwinder Singh and others 2003 (46) ACC 619 (SC) Hon'ble Apex Court has held in Para- 11 that

"11. The High Court has also held that the details about the occurrence were not mentioned in the inquest report which showed that the investigating officer was not sure of the facts when the inquest report was prepared and this feature of the case carried weight in favour of the accused. We are unable to accept this reasoning of the High Court. The provision for holding of an inquest and preparing an inquest report is contained in Section 174 Cr.P.C. The heading of the Section is "Police to enquire and report on suicide, etc." Sub-section (1) of this Section provides that when the officer in charge of a police station or some other police officer specially empowered by the State Government in that behalf receives information that a person has committed suicide, or has been killed by another or by an animal or by machinery or by an accident, or has died under circumstances raising a reasonable suspicion that some other person has committed an offence, he shall immediately give information to the nearest Executive Magistrate and shall proceed to the place where the body of such deceased person is, and there, in the presence of two or more respectable inhabitants of the neighbourhood, shall make an investigation, and draw up a report of the apparent cause of death describing such wounds, fractures, bruises, and other marks of injury as may be found on the body and stating in what manner, or by what weapon or instrument (if any), such marks appear to have been inflicted. The requirement of the section is that the police officer shall record the apparent cause of death describing the wounds as may be found on the body and also the weapon or instrument by which they appear to have been inflicted and this has to be done in the presence of two or more respectable inhabitants of the neighbourhood. The Section does not contemplate that the manner in which the incident took place or the names of the accused should be mentioned in the inquest report. The basic purpose of holding an inquest is to report regarding the apparent cause of death, namely whether it is suicidal, homicidal, accidental or by some machinery, etc. The scope and purpose of Section 174 Cr.P.C. was explained by this Court in Podda Narayana & Ors. v. State of Andhra Pradesh, AIR 1975 SC 1252 and it will be useful to reproduce the same.

"The proceedings under Section 174 have a very limited scope. The object of the proceedings is merely to ascertain whether a person has died under suspicious circumstances or an unnatural death and if so what is the apparent cause of the death. The question regarding the details as to how the deceased was assaulted or who assaulted him or under what circumstances he was assaulted is foreign to the ambit and scope of the proceedings under Section 174. Neither in practice nor in law was it necessary for the police to mention those details in the inquest report.

It is therefore not necessary to enter all the details of the overt acts in the inquest report. Their omission is not sufficient to put the prosecution out of Court."

19. The co-ordinate Bench of this Court has held in the case of Narendra and others Vs. State of U.P. 2006 (3) JIC 681 (All) that:-

"28. It is also contended by the learned counsel for the appellant that the crime number and sections in the inquest report was mentioned in different ink and the title of the case was not mentioned in other police papers which were dispatched along with the inquest report. We do not find any substance in this submission because on this ground it cannot be said that the First Information Report was not in existence at the time of preparation of inquest report. The First Information Report was one of the enclosures mentioned in the inquest report, name of complainant was mentioned in the inquest report and it was also that death was due to fire-arm injury. There is no provision for mentioning the title of the case in all police papers. The crime numbers and sections are already mentioned in all relevant papers."

20. Learned counsel for the appellants has further placed reliance on case Meharaj Singh Vs. State of U.P. *(Supra) and argued that the copy of F.I.R. was not sent to medical officer along with dead body for post-mortem. Therefore, the case of prosecution becomes doubtful. It appears that learned counsel for appellants could not inspect the inquest report Ex. Ka- 4, properly, as Page No.- 3 of inquest report contains the entry that copy of F.I.R. has also been sent to mortuary along with dead body of deceased. Police Form No.- 13 (Ex. Ka- 5) also shows the entry of Doctor, wherein it has been mentioned that post-mortem papers has been received at 8.00 a.m. Witness PW- 4 has deposed that the concerning papers have been delivered in police line by constable- S.P. Dubey and he had carried the papers from police line to mortuary, further he has denied the suggestion that all the papers were not available at the time of post-mortem, hence, the argument has no substance that the copy of F.I.R. was not annexed with inquest report. The recovery memo of blood-stained soil was prepared when I.O. reached on place of occurrence for the first time on 12.04.1994 i.e. at the time of investigation. The said recovery memo (Ex. Ka- 10) contains the Crime No. 105 of 1994 and Section 396 I.P.C. It has not been disputed by the appellant that the said recovery memo (Ex. Ka- 10) was prepared by I.O. at that time.

21. Learned counsel for the appellant has further submitted that there is overwriting in timing as mentioned in inquest report for starting and concluding the inquest report. Learned counsel for the complainant has replied that there is no overwriting in timing for lodging F.I.R. as mentioned in inquest report. There may be difference of timing in wrist watch or slip of pen. The overwriting in figure (of timing) regarding starting and concluding the inquest report does not co-relates with any doubtful fact. Although, S.I. S.N. Rakesh has not been produced in evidence by prosecution and the inquest report has been proved by witness PW- 6 S.I. Narendra Pal Singh as he was present at the time of preparation of inquest report and the entries in the report has been made by S.I. S.N. Rakesh on dictation of PW-6. The witness Pw- 6 (I.O.) in his evidence, in cross-examination by counsel for accused Sunil, has denied the suggestion in clear words that "it is wrong to say that inquest report has not prepared at the time shown in the report." He further stated that it is wrong to say that "at the time of preparation of inquest report, the copy of F.I.R. was not available with him." In reply of the question the witness Pw- 6 stated in his cross-examination that nowhere in inquest report (Ex. Ka- 4) Crime No. and Sections has been written. He has also accepted that he has not mentioned name of accused persons and weapon used in offence. According to Section 145 of Evidence Act it has not been asked by the aforesaid witness that why the above entries have not been made in the aforesaid report. He has not been asked to explain the reason about such non-enty. Witness PW- 6 also denied that the timing mentioned in Ex. Ka- 4 for concluding the inquest report there is no overwriting. He has also denied that at the time of preparing inquest report he was not having the copy of F.I.R. It has been held by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Kuria & Another Vs. State of Rajasthan AIR 2013 SC 1085 that-

"21. For instance PW15, in his cross-examination, had stated before the Court that Laleng had twisted the neck of the deceased. According to the accused, it was not so recorded in his statement under Section 161, Exhibit D/2 upon which he explained that he had stated before the police the same thing, but he does not know why the police did not take note of the same. Similarly, he also said that he had informed the police that the four named accused had dragged the body of the deceased and thrown it near the hand pump outside their house, but he does not know why it was not so noted in Exhibit D/2. There are some variations or insignificant improvements in the statements of PW3 and PW7. According to the learned counsel appearing for the appellants, these improvements are of such nature that they make the statement of these witnesses unbelievable and unreliable. We are again not impressed with this contention. The witnesses have stated that they had informed the police of what they stated under oath before the court, but why it was not so recorded in their statements under Section 161 recorded by the Investigating Officer would be a reason best known to the Investigating Officer. Strangely, when the Investigating Officer, PW16, was being cross-examined, no such question was put to him as to why he did not completely record the statements of the witnesses or whether these witnesses had made such afore-mentioned statements. Improvements or variations of the statements of the witnesses should be of such nature that it would create a definite doubt in the mind of the court that the witnesses are trying to state something which is not true and which is not duly corroborated by the statements of the other witnesses. That is not the situation here. These improvements do not create any legal impediment in accepting the statements of PW3, PW4, PW7 and PW15 made under oath. This Court has repeatedly taken the view that the discrepancies or improvements which do not materially affect the case of the prosecution and are insignificant cannot be made the basis for doubting the case of the prosecution. The courts may not concentrate too much on such discrepancies or improvements. The purpose is to primarily and clearly sift the chaff from the grain and find out the truth from the testimony of the witnesses. Where it does not affect the core of the prosecution case, such discrepancy should not be attached undue significance. The normal course of human conduct would be that while narrating a particular incident, there may occur minor discrepancies. Such discrepancies may even in law render credential to the depositions. The improvements or variations must essentially relate to the material particulars of the prosecution case. The alleged improvements and variations must be shown with respect to material particulars of the case and the occurrence. Every such improvement, not directly related to the occurrence, is not a ground to doubt the testimony of a witness. The credibility of a definite circumstance of the prosecution case cannot be weakened with reference to such minor or insignificant improvements. Reference in this regard can be made to the judgments of this Court in Kathi Bharat Vajsur and Another v. State of Gujarat [(2012) 5 SCC 724], Narayan Chetanram Chaudhary and Another v. State of Maharashtra [(2000) 8 SCC 457], D.P. Chadha v. Triyugi Narain Mishra and Others [(2001) 2 SCC 205], Sukhchain Singh v. State of Haryana and Others [(2002) 5 SCC 100]."

Therefore, the argument advanced by learned counsel for appellants has no force.

22. Learned counsel for appellants further pointed out that witness PW- 4 constable 1459 Kailash Singh, who had gone with the I.O. at the time of investigation, has mentioned in his evidence that he had gone at the place of occurrence at about quarter to 00.09 with S.I. S.N. Rakesh and N.P. Singh, whereas F.I.R. has been shown to be lodged at 9.30 a.m. Therefore, it can be said that F.I.R. has not been lodged at the time which has been shown in chick report. Learned counsel for the complainant has submitted that there might have been differences of watches and timing. The said part of statement of witness Pw- 4 is not supported with any evidence or circumstances. The evidence of witnesses should be scrutinized as a whole. Neither witness PW- 4 has been asked to explain the discrepancy in timing nor witness PW- 5 (who had written chick F.I.R. and made G.D. entry on 12.04.1994 at 9.30 a.m.) has been confronted with the above part of statement of witness PW- 4. Apart from that neither any question was asked to Ram Gopal (Pw-1) in his cross-examination regarding anti-timed F.I.R. nor any doubtful circumstance come into light which may indicate towards any such doubt. Therefore, it cannot be inferred that F.I.R. of occurrence has been lodged anti-timed. The argument advanced by learned counsel for the appellants on above point finds no place.

Place of occurrence-

23. Learned counsel for the appellants has submitted that the temple where it has been said that occurrence took place is false. Accused persons were 7 in number whereas the gate of temple, as mentioned by witness PW- 1 is only 3 or 4 feet wide. Its inner surface area has been shown only 5x5 square feet. Therefore, it is not possible for 7 accused persons to enter in temple and fire on deceased simultaneously. It might would be possible that deceased- Satish was killed by some unknown persons early in the morning while he had gone forest for defecation and complainant carried his dead body from forest to temple and implicated appellants falsely due to trifle enmity. This is also possible that in night some unknown dacoits came to the house of complainant and during the said occurrence, when deceased tried to fire on dacoits, they killed him and robbed the money, gun, jewellery etc., as alleged by complainant in F.I.R, and only due to local enmity appellants have been implicated by complainant by planting dead body of his son in temple.

24. Witness PW- 1 has stated at Page No. 1 and at Page No. 2 in his cross-examination that accused started firing from the chabutra of temple. Accordingly, witness PW- 2 has deposed at Page No.- 1 of his evidence that all the accused fired on deceased from chabutra of temple nowhere the aforesaid witnesses PW- 1 and PW- 2 have admitted that accused had fired on deceased by entering inside the temple room. Post-mortem report of deceased is on record as (Ex. Ka- 15), which has been proved by witness PW- 7 Doctor S.M. Gupta. The fact has been mentioned in evidence of witness PW- 1 that infront of the gate, the Idol of Goddess is situated and at the time of occurrence his son Satish was engaged in worship of the Goddess Durga. Naturally, his back would have been infront of the gate. Injuries Nos. 3, 4 and 5 have been shown as fire-arm injury on back (scapula) of deceased which indicates that as accused persons reached infront of the gate, immediately they started firing on deceased Satish who received aforesaid injuries on his back. Satish would have been worshipping by folding his leg in sitting position. As he received the injury of fire-arm on his back. He fell down on floor from his back side. The situation also indicates that as he received fire-arm injury on his back. Immediately, he might have turned towards back to see offenders but due to damage of internal organs by projectiles of fire-arm, he immediately fell down. His head was found towards east side. As he fell down the assailants fired on his abdomen by close range. Consequently, he received injuries nos. 1 and 2, therefore, the nature of injury also supports the statements of witnesses PW- 1 and PW- 2 and the conclusion finds place that deceased was attacked by fire-arms from outside the temple's gate i.e., from chabutra of temple.

25. So far as the point of argument of learned counsel for appellants, regarding death of deceased during his defecation in forest, is concerned, the temple of Goddess has been shown in the abadi area of village. Appellants could not produce a single witness which may indicate that deceased- Satish was murdered in forest and his body was carried by complainant in temple. Blood-stained soil has also been recovered from place of occurrence i.e. from temple only. Naturally the above five fire-arm injuries on the body of Satish, will produce profuse bleeding but nowhere in surrounding area, any blood-stain was found by I.O., except from the floor of temple. The point of argument that in night dacoity might have been taken place in the house of complainant wherein Satish was murdered by some unknown dacoits is not forcerull as the witness PW- 7 has stated in his statement that at the time of post-mortem there were some fecal matters in large intestine of deceased. If deceased would have been murdered in night his large intestine would have been filled with fecal matters. Witness Pw- 7 has also opined that the death of Satish is probable at 7.00 a.m. on 12.04.1994. Although the witness has stated in his cross-examination that difference of three hours in time of death is probable but as per medical jurisprudence the said probability is general that depends on so many factors which requires specific proof. Normally in village life people wake up early in the morning particularly, in the season of summer but no one has seen to complainant carrying body of deceased from his residence to temple. Therefore, the aforesaid argument advanced by learned counsel for the appellants finds no place.

Credibility of witness-

26. Learned counsel for the appellants further argued that witness PW-1 Ram Gopal is father of deceased, in his statement witness PW- 1 has mentioned the fact that after witnessing the occurrence of firing by accused persons on his son, he ran towards his house. He did not try to save his son rather he ran towards his house to save his own life. Normally said behaviour of witness Pw-1 is contrary to behaviour of a father. A father will always try to save life of his son even at the cost of his own life. Apart form that Witness PW- 2 is close relative of first wife of deceased. He also resides in another village named Mau. He has not seen the occurrence and due to close relation with deceased he has given false evidence in collusion with witness PW- 1.

27. Undoubtedly witness PW- 1 is father of deceased. Considering evidence of witness Pw- 1 as a whole, the facts and circumstances indicates that when he was returning from defecation he saw that 7 persons with Kattas (country-made pistol) in their hands reached at temple and started firing on his son immediately. In his cross-examination at Page- 5 the witness PW- 1 has stated that all the accused opened fire on his son within 2-3 seconds. Witness Pw- 1 was not carrying any weapon at that time. On the other hand, there were 7 persons with deadly weapons in their hands. Therefore, the apprehension might had been developed in his mind that accused persons may kill him also as he was father of deceased. Therefore, he ran towards his house by shouting voice for help, just to save his own life. It was natural behaviour of witness PW- 1. The occurrence of firing took place within few seconds, he had seen accused persons from the distance 10 to 12 steps away from chabutra of temple, immediately accused persons opened the firing on his son as they reached on chabutra. Therefore, there was no occasion for witness PW- 1 to save his son. Having regard to manner in which an occurrence took place, the reaction of witnesses differs from person to person. It has been held by Hon'ble Apex Court in Para- 17 of case Shivappa and others Vs. State of Karnataka 2008 CRI. L. J. 2992, that:-

"17. We may notice the salient features of the prosecution case. The learned Sessions Judge did not arrive at any specific finding as to why the conduct of the witnesses was such which would lead to a total distrust to the prosecution witnesses. All the members of the family were at one place. Two married daughters, namely, PW-11 Nimbevva, and PW-12, Shantavva came to the village, as there was a Jatra festival of the village Diety, Lakkavva.

Accused persons who were 11 in number came variously armed. They not only killed the deceased but also threatened the two family members with death as a result whereof they fled to the jungle.

PW-9, Shivappa fled to his firm land. They did not dare come back in the night. If having regard to the manner in which the occurrence took place, the witnesses became dumbfounded and could not shout, the same by itself, in our opinion, would not lead to the conclusion that they were wholly untrustworthy. In fact, their conduct, having regard to the nature of the offence, appears to be more probable."

28. Further argument of learned counsel for appellants is that, PW-1 Ram Gopal is interested and relative witness. The testimony of witness Pw- 1 cannot be discarded solely on this ground, what is required is that, statement of such witness should be scrutinised more cautiously and carefully with totality of his evidence. It has been held by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case Munshi Prasad and others Vs. State of Bihar 2002 SCC (Cri) 175 in Para- 10 (ii), which is reproduced as under:-

"10 (ii). A complaint focussed that except the interested witnesses none else from the nearby residential areas has been examined - this is so : it is the quality of the evidence and not the quantity, which is required. The crux of the issue being has the prosecution been able to bring home the charges with the evidence available on record - if the evidence on record is otherwise satisfactory in nature and can be ascribed to be trustworthy, an increase in number of witnesses cannot be termed to be a requirement for the case. The two independent witnesses have also been grouped in the group of interested witnesses, which is neither acceptable nor worthy of acceptance and in any event the same does not have the support from the available records. Apart there from PWs. 1, 2 and 3, they may be related to each other but that does not mean and imply total rejection of the evidence : interested they may be but in the event they are so - it is the predominant duty of Court to be more careful in the matter of scrutiny of the evidence of these interested witnesses and it on such a scrutiny it is found that the evidence on record is otherwise trustworthy, question of rejection of the same on the ground of being interested witnesses would not arise. As noticed above, it is the totality of the evidence, which matters and if the same creates a confidence of acceptably of such an evidence, question of rejection on being ascribed as 'interested witness' would not be justifiable. In the wake of the aforesaid, thus the second plea of rejection of evidence of prosecution witnesses cannot be sustained."

29. Considering the entire evidence of witness PW- 1, there seems consistency regarding the occurrence and circumstances. Witness Pw- 1 has been cross-examined in length but no fact came in the light otherwise.

30. Learned counsel for appellants has also put the argument that as per prosecution case, all the accused persons were carrying weapons in their hands and they pursued and chased complainant upto his house even they entered in his house with weapons but neither they fired on witness Pw- 1 nor they fired on any other member of his family. Learned counsel for the informant replied that there may be two reasons, firstly, all the accused were carrying Kattas (country-made pistols) in their hand which could fire only single shot. There was no occasion for accused persons to reload their Kattas (country-made pistols), as they were in running position and they immediately just after firing on deceased started pursuing to witness PW- 1, secondly, accused persons were having enmity with deceased Satish only, as he was one of the witness in the case of prior occurrence of murder of one Ram Singh, in which they were named as accused. Accused persons were residing in neighbourhood of complainant with his family. Therefore, they have not fired either on PW-1 or on any other family members of witness PW- 1. In fact, they pursued PW- 1 just to keep away the other village persons just to save their own lives from any attack in retaliation and to manage their escape. Argument advanced by learned counsel for the complainant on above point seems forceful.

31. So far as evidence witness PW- 2 Ghanshyam is concerned, counsel for appellants has submitted that first wife of deceased was cousin sister of daughter-in-law of witness PW- 2. In his cross-examination witness PW- 2 has denied about above relationship as suggested by counsel for defence. There is nothing on record which could show that witness PW-2 was in any relation with deceased. His evidence reveals that he was a resident of adjacent village Mau. At the time of occurrence he was going Manikpur by his tractor for ploughing the field of Rohan Singh. The witness has stated in his evidence that his village Mau is on western side of village- Akhtiarpur and village- Manikpur situates at the distance of 2 k.m. towards north from his village. In between Mau and Manikpur village Akhtiarpur is situated. He has further stated in his evidence that he was going Manikpur through village Akhtiarpur. There was only one bridge earlier but at present there are two bridges. One smaller and one larger. At present the tractors cannot go by smaller bridge. He has specifically mentioned in his evidence at Page- 5 that "at present" the tractors cannot pass from small bridge. He has denied the suggestion that the present ways were existed at the time of occurrence also. There is nothing on record which could indicate that at the time of occurrence, a tractor was unable to pass on smaller bridge. No evidence is on record regarding the fact or circumstances that the movement of witness PW- 2 with his tractor was not possible from Mau to Manikpur via Akhtiarpur at that time. Witness PW- 2 was going from south to north through the passage shown adjacent to place of occurrence that is Goddess temple. Witness Pw- 2 has stated in his evidence that he had seen accused person when they were firing on deceased Satish, at the distance of 25 steps from south. As he seen the occurrence of firing, his tractor which was driven by his son Amit was stopped. He has further stated that all the accused persons opened fire simultaneously.

32. Learned counsel for the appellants further argued that the witness PW- 2 has been planted by complainant. He was never eye-witness of occurrence. It reveals from perusal of F.I.R. that the informant has mentioned his name as eye-witness. He has mentioned the name of another eye-witnesses Rameshwer with his parentage and Ghanshyam Sharma but he has not mentioned the parentage of Ghanshyam Sharma. If witness PW- 2 would have been the witness of complainant's pocket his father's name would have also been mentioned in F.I.R. There is nothing on record which could show that witness PW- 2 was having any enmity with accused persons. He was also not a resident of village Akhtiarpur. Therefore, no reason comes in the light for witness Pw- 2 to give false evidence against accused persons.

33. Learned counsel for the appellants has submitted that statement of witness Pw- 2 has been recorded by investigating officer under Section 161 Cr.P.C. with inordinate delay i.e. after 13 days of occurrence. Therefore, it can be said that he was planted by complainant as eye-witness, and only on the sole ground his evidence is liable to be discarded. In support of his argument learned counsel has submitted the case law Bijoy Singh and another Vs. State of Bihar 2002 CRI. L. J. 2623, which is reproduced as under:-

"9 (ii) Statement of Sanuj Singh (PW5) was not recorded till 4th September, 1991. No reasonable explanation has been assigned for not recording the vital and important statement of PW5 who was concededly injured in the occurrence. The delay has been tried to be explained on the ground of his being unconscious when brought to the Hospital at Sarmera. Assuming that PW5 was unconscious or under shock at the time when brought in the Hospital, there is nothing on the record to show that he continued to be unconscious thereafter or the investigating officer tried to find out about his health or his mental condition to make the statement. Dr.Anjani Kumar (PW9) who examined PW5 at Primary Health Centre, Sarmera has stated that he examined the patient and sent the DO slip to the police station. He noted the injuries on the person of PW5 but states that "I have also not mentioned in the report regarding the condition of the patient". In his cross examination he has stated that in the injury report it is not mentioned as to whether the injured was conscious or not. Dr.Shanker Kumar Jha, (PW11), who was Medical Officer in Sadar Hospital, Biharsharif where Sanuj Singh (PW5) was taken from Primary Health Centre, Sarmera for treatment has stated that in the bed-head ticket of Sanuj Singh it is stated that he was conscious. In reply to a question as to whether doctor at Primary Health Centre, Sarmera had sent him a report as to whether the patient was unconscious, the witness had replied, "such reports are not sent normally. No report of such type was received by me". The nature of the injuries on the person of Sanuj Singh (PW5), as noticed by Dr.Anjani Kumar (PW9) would also indicate that the injured could not have remained unconscious for such a long period. The injuries found are lacerated injury on the forehead, left side of the scalp, bruise on the forehead, bruise on the left hand above wrist joint etc., and also multiple small irregular wounds on lateral aspect of left side of buttock and also small irregular wounds on left side of back and left forearm. The delay in recording the statement of Sanuj Singh (PW5), the most material witness has cast a cloud of suspicion on its credibility in so far as involvement of persons other than Jawahar Singh (A-2) and Upender Singh (A-3) are concerned. In cases of party factions and group rivalries there is a tendency on the part of the prosecution witnesses to implicate some innocent persons also along with the guilty ones. Generally in such cases the witnesses of the prosecution cases are prone to exaggerating the culpability of the actual assailants and to extend the participation in the occurrence of some possible innocent members of the opposite party as well. In such cases, as noticed earlier, a duty is cast upon the court to sift the evidence and after a close scrutiny with proper care and caution to come to a judicial conclusion as to who out of the accused persons can be considered to have actually committed the offence. This Court in Deep Chand v. State of Haryana [1996 (3) SCC 890 pointed out that the maxim "falsus in uno falsus in omnibus" is not a sound rule to apply in the conditions in this country and, therefore, it is the duty of the court in cases where a witness has been found to have given unreliable evidence in regard to certain particulars, to scrutinise the rest of his evidence with care and caution. If the remaining evidence is trustworthy and the substratum of the prosecution case remains intact, then the court should uphold the prosecution case to that extent. To the same effect is the judgment of this Court in Ranbir & Ors. v. State of Punjab [AIR 1973 SC 1409]. We are, therefore, of the opinion that non recording of the statement of Sanuj Singh (PW5) for about 9 days left the said witness with no option but to make statement according to the already tailored FIR. Though his testimony is trustworthy and cannot be totally brushed aside, yet after sifting the grain out of the chaff we find the exaggerated version regarding the involvement of accused persons except A-2 and A-3."

33. He has further cited case laws on the same point Jagjit Singh Alias Jagga Vs. State of Punjab (2005) 3 SCC 689 in Para- 30 which is reproduced as under:-

"30. This has to be viewed in the light of the fact that her statement was recorded by the Investigating Officer for the first time three days after the occurrence, and her statement was recorded by the Judicial Magistrate six days after the occurrence. The courts below have taken the view that delay in examining her has caused no prejudice to the defence. Counsel for the appellant, submitted that this period was utilized by the prosecution for tutoring the witness, and therefore the delay of three days in her examination under Section 161 Cr. P.C. is significant No explanation is forthcoming as to why she was not examined for three days when the Investigating Office knew that a statement of her's had been recorded by the doctor on 30th August, 1996. The Trial Court took the view that since she was under a shock she was not in a position to make a statement and, therefore, her statement was recorded later. This is clearly erroneous because the case of the prosecution is that she regained consciousness on 30th August, 1996 and, thereafter, she was fully conscious. The evidence of Dr. Bhupinder Singh, PW-7 who gave a certificate of her fitness to make a statement is also to the same effect. The reasoning of the Trial Court that the victim, PW-6, was under a great shock and was not in a position to make the statement, cannot be sustained. Neither the Trial Court nor the High Court cared to closely examine the evidence on record to find out whether there was any evidence on record to prove that the appellant was known to PW-6 or that PW-6 had any reason to know his name so as to be able to identify him by name. The explanation furnished by PW-6 five years after the occurrence, that she knew the appellant because he happened to be the son of Amar Singh at whose tune well her grandparents resided, is unacceptable particularly, in view of the fact that there is no evidence to establish that she had ever earlier seen the appellant and in none of the three statements made by her earlier the name of Amar Singh is mentioned. The delay in examining her in the course of investigation also creates a serious doubt in the absence of any explanation for her late examination after three days, when admittedly she was the sole eye witness who was also injured in the course of the occurrence. We are, therefore, of the view that though she may have witnessed the occurrence, she did not know the appellant by name as she had no opportunity of knowing or seeing him earlier, and that she has involved the appellant at the instance of her father, who was the person who suggested the involvement of the appellant when her statement Ex.PW-6/A was being recorded."

He also cited the case law Harbeer Singh Vs. Sheespal and others (2016) 16 SCC 418, Para- 15, 16 & 17 which is reproduced as under:-

"15. We have given careful consideration to the submissions made by the parties and we are inclined to agree with the observations of the High Court that PW3 and PW9 were not witnesses to the alleged conspiracy between the accused persons since not only the details of the conversation given by these two prosecution witnesses were different but also their presence at the alleged spot at the relevant time seems unnatural in view of the physical condition of PW9 and the distance of Sheeshpal's Dhani from Sikar road. Besides, it appears that there have been improvements in the statements of PW3. The Explanation to Section 162 Cr.P.C. provides that an omission to state a fact or circumstance in the statement recorded by a police officer under Section 161 Cr.P.C., may amount to contradiction if the same appears to be significant and otherwise relevant having regard to the context in which such omission occurs and whether any omission amounts to a contradiction in the particular context shall be a question of fact. Thus, while it is true that every improvement is not fatal to the prosecution case, in cases where an improvement creates a serious doubt about the truthfulness or credibility of a witness, the defence may take advantage of the same. [See Ashok Vishnu Davare Vs. State Of Maharashtra,(2004) 9 SCC 431; Radha Kumar Vs. State of Bihar (now Jharkhand), (2005) 10 SCC 216; Sunil Kumar Sambhudayal Gupta (Dr.) & Ors. Vs. State of Maharashtra, (2010) 13 SCC 657 and Baldev Singh Vs. State of Punjab, (2014) 12 SCC 473]. In our view, the High Court had rightly considered these omissions as material omissions amounting to contradictions covered by the Explanation to Section 162 Cr.P.C. Moreover, it has also come in evidence that there was a delay of 15-16 days from the date of the incident in recording the statements of PW3 and PW9 and the same was sought to be unconvincingly explained by reference to the fact that the family had to sit for shock meetings for 12 to 13 days. Needless to say, we are not impressed by this explanation and feel that the High Court was right in entertaining doubt in this regard.

16. As regards the incident of murder of the deceased, the prosecution has produced six eye-witnesses to the same. The argument raised against the reliance upon the testimony of these witnesses pertains to the delay in the recording of their statements by the police under Section 161 of Cr.P.C. In the present case, the date of occurrence was 21.12.1993 but the statements of PW1 and PW5 were recorded after two days of incident, i.e., on 23.12.1993. The evidence of PW6 was recorded on 26.12.1993 while the evidence of PW11 was recorded after 10 days of incident, i.e., on 31.12.1993. Further, it is well-settled law that delay in recording the statement of the witnesses does not necessarily discredit their testimony. The Court may rely on such testimony if they are cogent and credible and the delay is explained to the satisfaction of the Court. [See Ganeshlal Vs. State of Mahrashtra, (1992) 3 SCC 106; Mohd. Khalid Vs. State of W.B., (2002) 7 SCC 334; Prithvi (Minor) Vs. Mam Raj & Ors., (2004) 13 SCC 279 and Sidhartha Vashisht @ Manu Sharma vs. State (NCT of Delhi), (2010) 6 SCC 1].

17. However, Ganesh Bhavan Patel Vs. State Of Maharashtra, (1978) 4 SCC 371, is an authority for the proposition that delay in recording of statements of the prosecution witnesses under Section 161Cr.P.C., although those witnesses were or could be available for examination when the Investigating Officer visited the scene of occurrence or soon thereafter, would cast a doubt upon the prosecution case. [See also Balakrushna Swain Vs. State Of Orissa, (1971) 3 SCC 192; Maruti Rama Naik Vs. State of Mahrashtra, (2003) 10 SCC 670 and Jagjit Singh Vs. State of Punjab, (2005) 3 SCC 68]. Thus, we see no reason to interfere with the observations of the High Court on the point of delay and its corresponding impact on the prosecution case."

witness PW- 2 is named witness in F.I.R. He also has put his signature in Panchnama (inquest report) as Punch. F.I.R. has been lodged promptly and his signature on Punchnama indicated that he was very well present at the spot when the I.O. visited for the first time at place of occurrence for investigation. There is no any other persons of his name in the village. Witness PW- 2 has stated in his evidence that he has seen the occurrence of firing while he was going towards Manikpur. Witness Pw- 6 N.P. Singh (the I.O.) has stated in his cross-examination at Page- 13 that the fact had come in his knowledge on 12.04.1994 that Ghanshyam was eye-witness of occurrence. He has further stated that he has recorded his statement on 25.04.1994. He has explained the reason for such delay that at that time i.e. on 12.04.1994 other work regarding investigation was more important, therefore, neither he asked nor recorded the statement of witness Ghanshyam. He further stated that at that time preparation of inquest report, and arrange to send dead body of deceased for mortuary, spot inspections, search of accused person etc. were more important. On the other hand, witness PW- 2 has also explained the reason of delay in recording his statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. (at Page- 9 of his evidence) that in morning after witnessing the occurrence he had gone back to his village and again, after 15 minutes, with pradhan and up-pradhan of his village he came back to Akhtiyarpur. After some time when he reached again, Ram Gopal went police station to lodge F.I.R. At Page- 14 of his evidence witness PW- 6 has stated that the reason for recording statement of Ghanshyam (PW-2) on 25.04.1994 is that witness (Ghanshyam) could not be found, as he has mentioned in case diary also. Admittedly, witness PW- 2 was not a resident of village rather he was a resident of village- Mau. Perusal of case diary indicates that in meantime I.O. was engaged in other works of investigation like recording the statements of Malti w/o Satish, eye-witness Rameshwer (named in F.I.R.), search of accused person, recording statement of accused persons Kanhai and Ram Das (who had surrendered in court), applying for order under Section 82-83 of Cr.P.C. against accused persons, proceeding of attachment, search of accused persons thereafter on 25.04.1994 he recorded the statement of Raj Rani, Pawan Kumar and Ghanshyam (Pw-2). There is no evidence on record which may indicate the reason that witness Pw- 2 was falsely planted by complainant as eye-witness, particularly when he has been named in F.I.R. and as his presence has been shown at the time of preparation of inquest report. Therefore, it appears that witness PW- 6 has explained properly the reason for non-recording the statement of PW- 2 on the date of occurrence. The reason so given by I.O. is supported by the evidence of witness PW-2 itself.

34. On the point of recording statement of witness under Section 161 Cr.P.C. at later stages it has been held by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Sidhartha Vashisht Alias Manu Sharma Vs. State (N.C.T. of Delhi) 2010 (69) ACC 833, Para- 61, which is reproduced as under:-

"61. The defence seeks to discredit the statement of PW-1 Deepak Bhojwani on two counts, firstly that statement is recorded after 14 days and secondly, there are various improvements, in his statement. It is next contended by the defence to believe this man is to disbelieve Beena Ramani. According to him, the prosecution did not know even on 14.05.1999 the details of their story and thus resulting in various improvements in the testimony of this witness, in the witness box. This contention of the defence looses sight of the fact that much prior to 14.05.1999 Manu Sharma had surrendered on 06.05.1999 and had made his disclosures and thus there could be no question of not knowing the facts on 14.05.1999. Had the witnesses been planted, the witnesses would have rendered a parrot like testimony. PW-1 has explicitly stated that on 30.04.1999 he had told the police at the Apollo Hospital all that he knew. This being the case, it cannot be said that the testimony of the witness should be thrown out for the delay in recording the statement by the Police. Clearly, PW-1 was not an eye witness, this fact must have been realized by PWs-100 and 101, therefore, they felt no urgency in addressing this aspect of the investigation i.e., recording of the statement of PW-1. It is stated by the State that as there were number of witnesses to be examined the said examination continued for days. Witnesses Parikshit Sagar and Andleep Sehgal were also examined on 14.05.1999. Further the presence of Deepak Bhojwani can also not be belied in view of the testimony of Sahana Mukherjee PW- 29 and Sabrina Lal PW-73. In any case, any defect by delay in examination of witnesses in the manner of investigation cannot be a ground to condemn the witness. Further Section 162, Cr.P.C. is very clear that it is not mandatory for the police to record every statement. In other words, law contemplates a situation where there might be witnesses who depose in Court but whose previous statements have not been recorded."

35. Learned counsel for the appellants has further argued that witness PW- 2 was a chance witness and evidence of chance in such heinous offence like murder should be discarded. In support of his argument learned counsel for appellants has relied on case law Harbeer Singh Vs. Sheespal and others (Supra). Record indicates that learned counsel for defence has not disputed that the way from where Ghanshyam was going towards Manikpur with his tractor was a shorter way as it has been shown in spot map. Counsel for defence has not disputed the fact also that witness PW- 2 was not doing the work of ploughing on rent by his tractor. To negate the fact, as stated by witness Pw- 2 the defence has not produced Rohan Singh, the resident of Village- Manikpur where witness PW- 2 was going to plough his field by his tractor. Therefore, in absence of any evidence contrary, the presence of witness Pw- 2 at the time of occurrence seems probable. His statement should not be thrown out merely on the ground that he was a chance witness, particularly when his statement is supported by evidence of witnesses Pw-1, Pw- 6, and medical evidence.

36. It has also been argued by the learned counsel for the appellants that there was another witness, named Rameshwer who has been shown in F.I.R., he was a public witness but prosecution withheld him to produce him in evidence, therefore, an adverse inference must be drawn against the prosecution version. In support of his contention learned counsel has submitted case law Mehraj Singh Vs. State of U.P. (Supra), which is reproduced as under:-

"14. It is interesting in this connection also to note that Satkari PW 5 named Resham also as an eyewitness. The High Court rightly held Satkari to be a chance witness also but the prosecution has not explained as to why Resham who was alleged to be an eyewitness has not been examined. According to Balbir PW 2, Jog Raj was also an eyewitness. He too has not been examined. Shiv Charan PW 4, also named Resham and Jog Raj as eyewitnesses. Thus, it appears to us that a concerted effort was made by the prosecution witnesses to introduce Resham and Jog Raj as false eyewitnesses in the case but since they have not been examined, it would be fair to draw a presumption, that they perhaps were not prepared to support the false case. The High Court while setting aside the order of acquittal did not deal with these various infirmities."

37. It has to be noticed that witness Rameshwer whose name has been mentioned in F.I.R. as one of the eye-witness, is the resident of same village. Accused persons also belong to same village. They have committed the offence of murder in day light in present case. They had also caused murder of one Ram Singh earlier in which, deceased was named as witness. Therefore, by any threat or fear of accused persons, if aforesaid named witness Rameshwer did not prefer to give his evidence then in that case, it cannot be said that prosecution has wilfully withhold such witness to be examined. According to law, number of witness is not material rather quality of evidence matters. Even a single witness is sufficient to establish the case if he is trustworthy and according to legal norms, proves the case. It has been held by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Amar Singh Vs. Balwinder Singh and others 2003 (46) ACC 619, in Para- 15, which is reproduced as under:-

"15. Another reason given by the High Court for acquitting the accused-respondents is that two other injured witnesses, namely, Kashmira Singh and Pritam Singh and one Ramesh, whose name was mentioned in the FIR, were not examined. Shri Ashwani Kumar, learned senior counsel appearing for the accused-respondents has vehemently urged that the purpose of a criminal trial is not to support the prosecution theory but to investigate the offence and to determine the guilt or innocence of the accused and the duty of the public prosecutor is to represent the administration of justice and therefore the testimony of all the available eye witnesses should be before the Court and in support of this contention he has placed reliance on State of U.P. & Anr. v. Jaggo alias Jagdish & Ors. AIR 1971 SC 1586. It is true that the witnesses essential to the unfolding of the narrative on which the prosecution is based must be called by the prosecution, whether effect of their testimony is for or against the case of the prosecution. However, that does not mean that everyone who has witnessed the occurrence, whatever their number be, must be examined as a witness. The prosecution in the present case had examined three eye-witnesses who were all injured witnesses. The mere fact that Kashmira Singh and Pritam Singh were not examined cannot lead to an inference that the prosecution case was not correct. The aforesaid two witnesses had been given up by the prosecution on the ground that they had been won over by the accused. These two persons are not family members of the first informant Amar Singh and it is quite likely that they did not want to get involved in any dispute between the first informant and his sons on the one hand and the accused on the other hand as they had no interest in the land belonging to Jangir Dass Sadh which was being earlier cultivated by Gurdial Singh, father of A-1 and A-2 but had been taken an year earlier by the first informant Amar Singh. The contention raised by learned counsel fails to take notice of Section 134 of the Evidence Act which provides that no particular number of witnesses shall in any case be required for the proof of any fact. A similar contention has been repelled by this Court in a very illustrating judgment in Vadivelu Thevar v. State of Madras AIR 1957 SC 614 and it will be useful to take note of para 11 of the report, which reads as under :

".The contention that in a murder case, the court should insist upon plurality of witnesses, is much too broadly stated. The Indian Legislature has not insisted on laying down any such exceptions to the general rule recognised in S.134, which by laying down that "no particular number of witnesses shall, in any case, be required for the proof of any fact" has enshrined the well recognised maxim that "Evidence has to be weighed and not counted." It is not seldom that a crime has been committed in the presence of only one witness, leaving aside those cases which are not of uncommon occurrence, where determination of guilt depends entirely on circumstantial evidence. If the Legislature were to insist upon plurality of witnesses, cases where the testimony of a single witness only could be available in proof of the crime, would go unpunished. ."

38. In the case law Ashok Kumar Chaudhary and others Vs. State of Bihar (2008) 12 SCC 173, it has been held by Hon'ble Apex Court that-

"7. We are not impressed with the argument. Though it is true that the incident having taken place near the market around 6 p.m. on 17th July, 1988, the prosecution should have attempted to secure public witnesses who had witnessed the incident, but at the same time one cannot lose sight of the ground realities that the members of the public are generally insensitive and reluctant to come forward to report and depose about the crime even though it is committed in their presence. In our opinion, even otherwise it will be erroneous to lay down as a rule of universal application that non examination of a public witness by itself gives rise to an adverse inference against the prosecution or that the testimony of a relative of the victim, which is otherwise credit-worthy, cannot be relied upon unless corroborated by public witnesses."

39. Learned counsel for the appellants has further stated that there are discrepancies in the statement of witnesses of fact, hence their testimonies are not reliable. Considering the evidence of PW-1 and PW- 2 in totality, no substantial variation or discrepancy is found regarding happening of occurrence or place of occurrence. Both the witnesses have named accused persons in their evidence for firing on deceased. Witness Pw- 2 has stated in his cross-examination that the distance of his village from Akhtiyarpur is 1 km. and as village relation he recognizes to complainant and his son as well as accused persons. The statements of witnesses Pw- 1 & Pw- 2 are supported and corroborated by post-mortem report and other prosecution papers. Their statements are also corroborated by the evidence of PW- 7 Doctor S.M. Gupta. There is no contradiction in their testimonies on the core of prosecution case. If some inconsistency is found, that do not affects the prosecution case substantially. Those contradictions are natural and probable. In the case of Munshi Prasad and others Vs. State of Bihar (Supra) it has been held in Para- 10 (I), that:-

"10. (i)..... Incidentally, be it noted that while appreciating the evidence of a witness, minor discrepancies on trivial matters without affecting the core of the prosecution case, ought not to prompt the court to reject evidence in its entirety. If the general tenor of the evidence given by the witness and the trial court upon appreciation of evidence forms opinion about the credibility thereof, in the normal circumstances the Appellate Court would not be justified to review it once again without justifiable reasons. It is the totality of the situation, which has to be taken note of, and we do not see any justification to pass a contra note, as well, on perusal of the evidence on record. In this context reference may be made to two decisions of this Court. The first being the State of U.P. v. M.K. Anthony, [1985] 1 SCC 505 as also a later one in the case of Leela Ram v. State of Haryana, (1999) 9 SCC 525. Needless to record that difference in some minor detail, which does not otherwise affect the core of the prosecution case, may be there but that by itself would not prompt the Court to reject the evidence on minor variations and discrepancies. In Leela Ram (supra), this Court observed in paragraph 10 of the report."

40. In case law Shivappa and others Vs. State of Karnataka (Supra), Hon'ble Apex Court has held in Para- 26, that:-

"26. No villager even informed the Police. At least some of them could have done so. PW-11, Nimbewwa, in her evidence categorically stated that immediately after the occurrence, the electricity went off. The telephones were also not working. She also stated that no transport was available. It would, therefore, be too much to expect that those young ladies would walk 11 kilometers on foot in the dead of night to lodge the First Information Report. PW-21, Gurubai, made a statement that the Police came at about 8 am in the morning on the next day. Evidently, it was an inadvertent statement as in her examination in chief, she categorically stated that PW-11, Nimbewwa and PW-12, Shantavva left the village for lodging a First Information Report at 8.00 am in the morning. This cannot be a ground for disbelieving them. Minor discrepancies or some improvements also, in our opinion, would not justify rejection of the testimonies of the eye-witnesses, if they are otherwise reliable. Some discrepancies are bound to occur because of the sociological background of the witnesses as also the time gap between the date of occurrence and the date on which they give their depositions in court."

41. The witnesses of fact, have undergone a lengthy cross-examination by counsel for defence, who were the legal experts. Therefore, some contradictions are bound to occur. It has been held by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Jai Shree Yadav Vs. State of U.P. (Supra), in Para- 21, that:-

"21. It is also true that PW1 was not available to the Police for nearly 10 days after the incident but the explanation given by this witness is quite plausible that his family was afraid for his safety hence he went to his in-laws' place and remained there and it is only when things settled down he decided to come out and give a statement to the Police. The possibility of his fear of retaliation is supported by the evidence of PW-8 I.O. who stated that there was tension in the village and at the time of funeral of the deceased he had to make Police bandobust which indicates the possibility of PW-1's apprehension and his consequent non-availability to the investigating agency. There is one other aspect of this case which will have to be borne in mind while considering the evidence of PW-1. His name has been mentioned in the FIR as a person who was present at the time the incident took place. It is also stated in the FIR that in the said incident PW-1 was injured. We have already noticed that the prosecution has established that this complaint was filed in the Salempur Police Station at 5.30 p.m. If really this witness was not present at the time of incident in question we do not think PW-3 would have included his name without even knowing the whereabouts of this witness on that day and by attributing an imaginary injury to him. In his examination in chief this witness has clearly narrated the incident involving the named accused persons as also the overt acts attributed to them. Of course in the cross examination the defence has brought out that this person is closely connected with deceased Abid Ali therefore a suggestion was made that he was deposing falsely. This suggestion has been denied by the appellant. In the cross examination defence has brought about certain omissions, contradictions and improvements in the evidence of this witness. These shortcomings in the evidence of this witness will have to be considered in the background of the fact that this witness was subjected to nearly 217 questions over a period of 14 months i.e. his cross examination starting on 14.8.1994 and ending on 28.11.1995. Both the courts below have taken judicial notice of this fact, not only in regard to this witness but in regard to other witnesses also and have come to the concurrent conclusion that when a witness is subjected to such lengthy arduous cross examination over a lengthy period of time there is always a possibility of the witnesses committing mistakes which can be termed as omissions, improvements and contradictions therefore those infirmities will have to be appreciated in the back ground of ground realities which makes the witness confused because of the filibustering tactics of the cross examining Counsel."

42. It is to be noted that evidence of PW- 1 was recorded on 10.01.1995 and his cross-examination was completed on 01.02.1995. Accordingly, witness PW- 2 has been examined on 01.02.1995/02.02.1995 i.e. almost 9 months after the occurrence. Therefore, some contradictions, variations and improvement are not improbable, if they are not tuitored witnesses. Hence, it can be concluded after close scrutiny that the evidence of witnesses PW- 1 and PW- 2 are reliable and trustworthy.

43. It has been contended by learned counsel for appellants that witness Pw- 1 is father of deceased, he is an interested person therefore, the sessions judge has erred to place his reliance on his testimony. Witnesses PW- 1 was eye-witnesses and his evidence regarding commission of offence is supported with medical evidence and other evidences of prosecution. In this regard, it has been held by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Kuria and another Vs. State of Rajasthan (2012) 10 SCC 433, that:-

"25. The testimony of an eye-witness, if found truthful, cannot be discarded merely because the eye-witness was a relative of the deceased. Where the witness is wholly unreliable, the court may discard the statement of such witness, but where the witness is wholly reliable or neither wholly reliable nor wholly unreliable (if his statement is fully corroborated and supported by other ocular and documentary evidence), the court may base its judgment on the statement of such witness. Of course, in the latter category of witnesses, the court has to be more cautious and see if the statement of the witness is corroborated. Reference in this regard can be made to the case of Sunil Kumar (supra), Brathi alias Sukhdev Singh Vs. State of Punjab [(1991) 1 SCC 519] and Alagupandi @ Alagupandian v. State of Tamil Nadu 2012 (5) SCALE 595]."

44. The co-ordinate Bench of this Court has also held in the case of Uma Shankar Vs. State of U.P. 2015 (89) ACC 421, in Para- 47, which is reproduced as under:-

"47. We have also noticed that the Investigating Officer has not sent the said Gupti to the Forensic Laboratory for chemical examination to ascertain that the blood found on the weapon was the same blood of the deceased. Investigating Officer has also not demonstrated the way of arrival of the witnesses at the place of occurrence in the site plan, but only on this point in our opinion the testimony of the ocular witnesses whose presence on the spot at the time of occurrence is found established, and is supported by medical evidence, cannot be disbelieved until and unless appellant accused is able to establish that due to this fact his right of defence has been prejudiced. The appellant had opportunity to cross examine the witnesses. The said Gupti had been recovered from the possession of the accused on the spot, Doctor has clearly opined that the injury found on the body of the deceased was the result of the blow caused by the said Gupti, no cross examination has been made by the defence on this point, and thus a clerical mistake in the statement of PW-5 S.I. Phool Singh on the part of taking over the investigation on 27.3.1986, which is not materially affecting the prosecution case, we are of the view that no prejudice has been caused to the accused on this score and the prosecution case cannot be doubted."

45. Learned counsel for the appellants further submitted that the motive of offence is not proved, in fact, there was a quarrel in between children in village and due to said enmity accused persons have been named in the case falesly. On the above point, witness PW- 1 has mentioned in his evidence that his son deceased Satish was doing Pairvi of the murder case of Ram Singh in which present accused persons were accused. It has been submitted by learned counsel for the complainant that said Ram Singh was not the resident of same village, whereas deceased was resident of same village and were just neighbour of accused persons that is why they were having the enmity with deceased, particularly for the reason that their co-villager is not supporting them. He further submitted that the accused persons Ram Das, Ram Datt, Avdhesh, Sunil, Kanhai Lal and Nagendra have been convicted in the said case by the court of First Additional Sessions Judge, Aligarh on 14.10.1996 (Sessions Trial No. 859 of 1993), under Sections 147, 148, 302 and 149 I.P.C. Learned counsel for complainant has also pointed that, copy of aforesaid judgement is available on record. The motive suggested by learned counsel for complainant seems probable for committing the offence of murder of Satish. In present case there is direct evidence of eye-witnesses which are found reliable. Hon'ble Apex Court Hon'ble Apex Court has held in the cases of Gulam Sarbar Vs. State of Bihar (Now Jharkhand) (2014) 3 SCC 401, of Rohtash Kumar Vs. State of Haryana, Criminal Appeal No. 896 of 2011, Bipin Kumar Mondal Vs. State of West Bengal (2010) 12 SCC 91, Balram Singh Vs. State of Punjab 2003 AIR (SC) 2213 and in Baboolal Vs. State of U.P. 2001 SCC (Cri) 1484 that where there is direct evidence, prosecution is not needed to prove motive of offence. How the mind of an assailant reacts is not to be fathomed from a detached reflection. Criminal conspiracy, in general, hatched in secrecy, thus direct evidence is difficult to obtain or access.

46. Learned counsel for the appellants further submitted that police has shown false recovery of two weapons (tamanche) of 315 and 12 bore on the pointing out of accused appellants Ballu and Sunil. Police has failed to recover other tamanche as witnesses PW- 1 and PW- 2 have stated in their evidence that all the accused persons were carrying fire-arms in their hand. Investigating officer has failed to send the aforesaid recovered tamanche to F.S.L also. Therefore, the case of prosecution is not reliable. On the point of above argument it will not be out of context to mention that, if I.O. was failed to recover all the fire arms from all the accused persons prosecution case does not collapse, as it was in the special knowledge of accused persons that where they have kept hidden the used fire arms they have not disclosed. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of State of Punjab Vs. Hakam Singh Appeal (Crl.) No. 130 of 2000 has held that:-

"It was also pointed out by learned counsel for the respondent that no fire arms were recovered and no seizure has been made of empties. It would have been better if this was done and it would have corroborated the prosecution story. Seizure of the fire arms and recovering the empties and sending them for examination by the Ballistic expert would have only corroborated the prosecution case but by not sending them to the Ballistic expert in the present case is not fatal in view of the categorical testimony of PW- 3 about the whole incident."

47. In the case of Gopal Singh Vs. State of Uttarakhand (2013) 7 SCC 545 it has been held by Hon'ble Supreme Court that:-

"12. In this context, we may refer with profit to the decision in Anwarul Haq v. State of U.P. wherein it was held that solely because the knife that was used in committing the offence had not been recovered during the investigation could not be a factor to disregard the evidence of the prosecution witnesses who had deposed absolutely convincingly about the use of the weapon. That apart, the Court also referred to the evidence of the doctor which mentioned about the use of weapon. It is worth noting that this Court observed that though the doctor's opinion about the weapon was theoretical, yet it cannot be totally wiped out. Regard being had to the aforesaid, this Court maintained the sentence of one year rigorous imprisonment under Section 324 of IPC as imposed by the trial Court and concurred with by the High Court."

48. In the case of Ram Bali Vs. State of U.P. 2004 (2) JIC 168 (SC) it has been held by Hon'ble Supreme Court that:-

"12. The investigation was also stated to be defective since the gun was not sent for forensic test. In the case of a defective investigation the Court has to be circumspect in evaluating the evidence. But it would not be right in acquitting an accused person solely on account of the defect; to do so would tantamount to playing into the hands of the investigating officer if the investigation is designedly defective. (See Karnel Singh v. State of M.P. (1995 (5) SCC 518)."

49. On the same point it has been held by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Amar Singh Vs. Balwinder Singh and others (Supra), that:-

"14. Coming to the last point regarding certain omissions in the DDR, it has come in evidence that on the basis of the statement of PW4 Amar Singh, which was recorded by PW14 Sardara Singh, S.I. in the hospital a formal FIR was recorded at the Police Station at 9.20 p.m. In accordance with Section 155Cr.P.C. the contents of the FIR were also entered in the DDR, which contained the names of the witnesses, weapons of offence and place of occurrence and it was not very necessary to mention them separately all over again. It is not the case of the defence that the names of the accused were not mentioned in the DDR. We fail to understand as to how it was necessary for the investigation officer to take in his possession the wire gauze of the window from where A-1 is alleged to have fired. The wire gauze had absolutely no bearing on the prosecution case and the investigating officer was not supposed to cut and take out the same from the window where it was fixed. It would have been certainly better if the investigating agency had sent the fire arms and the empties to the Forensic Science Laboratory for comparison. However, the report of the Ballistic Expert would in any case be in the nature of an expert opinion and the same is not conclusive. The failure of the investigating officer in sending the fire arms and the empties for comparison cannot completely throw out the prosecution case when the same is fully established from the testimony of eye-witnesses whose presence on the spot cannot be doubted as they all received gun shot injuries in the incident. In Karnel Singh v. State of M.P. (1995) 5 SCC 518 it was held that in cases of defective investigation the court has to be circumspect in evaluating the evidence but it would not be right in acquitting an accused person solely on account of the defect and to do so would tantamount to playing into the hands of the investigating officer if the investigation is designedly defective. In Paras Yadav & Ors. v. State of Bihar (1999) 2 SCC 126while commenting upon certain omissions of the investigating agency, it was held that it may be that such lapse is committed designedly or because of negligence and hence the prosecution evidence is required to be examined de hors such omissions to find out whether the said evidence is reliable or not. Similar view was taken in Ram Bihari Yadav v. State of Bihar (1998) 4 SCC 517 when this Court observed that in such cases the story of the prosecution will have to be examined de hors such omissions and contaminated conduct of the officials, otherwise, the mischief which the complainant party and this would obviously shake the confidence of the people not merely in the law enforcing agency but also in the administration of justice. In our opinion the circumstances relied upon by the High Court in holding that the investigation was tainted are not of any substance on which such an inference could be drawn and in a case like the present one where the prosecution case is fully established by the direct testimony of the eye-witnesses, which is corroborated by the medical evidence, any failure or omission of the investigating officer cannot render the prosecution case doubtful or unworthy of belief."

50. The same view has been taken by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Baleshwar Mandal and another Vs. State of Bihar 1997 JIC 1030 (SC) in Para- 5, which is reproduced as under:-

"5. Under Section 172 Cr. P.C. read with Rule 164 of Bihar Police Manual dealing with the investigation, an Investigating Officer investigating a crime is under obligation to record all the day to day proceedings and information in his case diary, and also record the time at which the information was received and the place visited by him, besides the preparation of site plan and other documents. The investigating Officer is also required to send blood stained clothes and earth seized from the place of occurrence for chemical examination. Failure on the part of the investigating Officer to comply with the provisions of Section 172 Cr.P.C. is a serious lapse on his part resulting in diminishing the value and credibility of his investigation. In this case the Investigating Officer neither entered the time of recording of the statements of the witnesses in the Diary nor did he send the blood stained clothes and earth seized from the place of occurrence for examination by a serologist. The High Court also adversely commented upon the lapses on the part of the Investigating Officer in not complying with the provisions of Code of Criminal Procedure. We, therefore, take it that, in fact, there was serious lapse on the part of the Investigation Officer in not observing the mandate of Section 172 Cr.P.C. while investigating the case which has given rise to this appeal. But the question that arises for consideration is, has any prejudice been caused to the accused in the trial by non-observance of rule by the Investigating Officer? The evidence on record before the Sessions Court and the appellate Court does not show that due to the lapses on the part of the Investigating Officer in not sending the blood stained clothes and earth seized from the place of occurrence for chemical examination and further not noting down the time of recording the statement of the witnesses in he Diary has resulted in any prejudice to the defence of the accused. In the present case, the place of occurrence and the identity of the deceased are not disputed. Further, the testimony of the eye witnesses which is consistent and does not suffer from infirmity, was believed by both the courts below. Once the eye witnesses are believed and the courts come to the conclusion that the testimony of the eye witnesses is trustworthy, the lapse on the part of the Investigating Officer in not observing the provisions of Section 172 Cr.P.C. unless some prejudice is shown to have been caused to the accused, will not affect the finding of guilt recorded by the Court. Neither before the High Court nor before this Court, it was pointed out in what manner the accused was prejudiced by non-observance of the provision of Section 172 Cr.P.C. and the rules framed in this regard. We are, therefore, of opinion that judgments of Court below do not suffer on account of omission on the part of Investigating Officer in not sending the earth seized from the place of occurrence for Chemical examination or in not entering the time of recording the statements of witnesses in the Diary."

Therefore, considering the evidence and circumstances of present case, and in the light of above dictums of Hon'ble Apex Court, it can be inferred that, if I.O. has committed some laches during investigation and in collecting evidence against accused appellants, then in that case the evidences of witnesses of prosecution cannot be brushed aside, particularly when their testimonies are reliable and trustworthy.

51. Learned counsel for the appellants further submitted that in spot map, location of accused persons from where they have opened fire on Satish and place of witnesses from where they have seen the occurrence, has not been shown by I.O. On the above point, learned counsel for the complainant has argued that the spot map which has been prepared by I.O., is inadmissible under Section 162 of Cr.P.C. as that map was not prepared by measurement rather witness Pw- 7 (I.O.) had prepared it roughly. Learned cousnel has placed reliance on case of Tori Singh and another Vs. State of U.P. AIR 1962 Supreme Court 399.

"7. We are of opinion that neither of these arguments has any force. Let us first take the contention that it was most unlikely that the deceased would be hit on that part of the body where the injury was actually received by him, if he was at the spot marked in Ex. Ka-9. The validity of this argument depends mainly on the spot which has been marked on the sketch-map Ex. Ka-9 as the place where the deceased received his injuries. In the first place, the map itself is not to scale but is merely a rough sketch and therefore one cannot postulate that the spot marked on the map is in exact relation to the platform. In the second place, the mark on the sketch-map was put by the Sub-inspector who was obviously not an eyewitness to the incident. He could only have put it there after taking the statements of the eye witnesses. The marking of the spot on the sketch-map is really bringing on record the conclusion of the Sub-inspector on the basis of the statements made by the witnesses to him. This in our opinion would not be admissible in view of the provisions of s. 162 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, for it is in effect nothing more than the statement of the Sub-inspector that the eye-witnesses told him that the deceased was at such and such place at the time when he was hit. The sketch-map would be admissible so far as it indicates all that the Sub-inspector saw himself at the spot; but any mark put on the sketch map based on the statements made by the witnesses to the Sub-inspector would be inadmissible in view of the clear provisions of s. 162 of the Code of Criminal Procedure as it will be no more than a statement made to the police during investigation. We may in this connection refer to Bhagirathi Chowdhury v. King Emperor,AIR 1926 Cal 550, where it was ob-served that placing of maps before the jury containing statements of witnesses or of information received by the investigating officer preparing the map from other persons was improper, and that the investigating officer who made a map in a criminal case ought not to pat anything more than what he had seen himself. The same view was expressed by the Calcutta High Court again in Ibra A kanda v. Emperor AIR 1944 Cal 339, where if was held that any information derived from witnesses during police investigation, and recorded in the index to a map, must be proved by the witnesses concerned and not by the investigating officer, and that if such information is sought to be proved by the evidence of the investigating officer, it would manifestly offend against s. 162 of the Code of Criminal Procedure."

52. It is to be considered that spot map was prepared by I.O. on the pointing of complainant, as witness Pw- 1 has mentioned in cross examination. This fact has also been mentioned by I.O. in case diary which is available on record (back page of Paper No. 33 Kha/3 dated 12.04.1994) and the witness Pw- 1 has not been cross examined by counsels of accused persons on the above shortcomings of spot map. In the light of above dictum of Hon'ble Apex Court, I.O. cannot be asked about not showing the place of accused persons and eye witnesses.

53. If I.O. has not prepared spot map on scale or there was any fault of investigation in sketching the spot map it can be treated as latches of I.O., which does not affects the case of prosecution adversely, where direct, ocular and reliable evidence is available on record. On the above point Hon'ble Apex Court has held in the case of Allarakha K. Mansuri Vs. State of Gujarat 2002 Supreme Court Cases (Cri) 519 that defective investigation by itself cannot be made a ground for acquitting the accused.

It has been held by co-ordinate Bench of this Court in the case of Ved Ram & Ors. Vs. State of U.P. 2004 (2) JIC 17 that Para- 25.

"25. Another argument of the learned counsel for the appellants is that Bhikam. P.W 2 -- the witness of murder of Raghunath was also an interested witness being Bataidar of Jhamman Lal. In our view, this factum alone does not justify jumping to the conclusion that he deposed falsely in favour of the prosecution. It has to be placed on record that he had no animus with the accused appellants. Yet another submission of the learned counsel for the appellants is that he did not show to the investigating officer the place wherefrom he saw the incident of murderous assault on Raghunath. True, the investigating officer did not show in the site plan the place from where this witness witnessed the incident but because of this lapse or mischief on the part of the investigating officer, his presence there cannot be doubted. His emphatic statement is that at the relevant time he was ploughing the field of Jhamman which he had taken on Batai. It was adjacent to the field which was being dug by Raghunath. Jhamman Lal P.W 1 also spoke about his field being adjacent to that of Raghunath. Existence of the plot of Jhamman Lal adjacent to that of Raghunath was not even challenged either in the cross-examination of Jhamman Lal P.W 1 or Bhikam P.W 2."

54. If eye-witnesses of occurrence are reliable and trustworthy then in that case no corroborative evidence is needed and conviction can be based on the evidence of even sole reliable eye-witness, as it has been held by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Namdeo Vs. State of Maharashtra Criminal Appeal No. 914 of 2006, Seeman Alias Veeranam Vs. State by Inspector of Police 2005 CRI. L. J. 2618, Kuria and another Vs. State of Rajasthan (Supra).

55. Learned counsel for the appellants further argued that there is no cogent evidence that every appellant was involved in the occurrence. Police has not recovered the number of weapons in proportionate to number of accused persons. On the above point, it reveals from record that witnesses PW- 1 and PW-2 have stated in their evidences that all the accused persons opened fire on Satish by their fire-arms (tamanche) (country-made pistols). Normally, country-made pistol (tamanche) can fire single shot. As according to post-mortem report and evidence of PW-7, deceased sustained 5 injuries of gunshot entry wounds on the different part of his body, which shows the complicity of more than one assailants. There is nothing on record which may bifurcate the role of particular accused person. The number of injuries indicate the common object of assailants Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Shivappa and others Vs. State of Karnataka (Supra) has held in Para- 30, that:-

"30. The submission of Mr. Javali that overt acts have been attributed only to five of the accused and all of them could not have been convicted invoking the provisions of Sections 148 and 149 of the Indian Penal Code may now be considered. The First Information Report, as also the evidences of as many as six eye-witnesses, clearly reveals that all the eleven accused came in a group. All of them were armed with deadly weapons although actual overt acts had been attributed to Accused No.1, Ningondeppa, Accused No.2, Shivashankar, Accused No.3, Shivappa, Accused No.5, Shekappa and Accused No.11 Malakji only. In their depositions, the prosecution witnesses have categorically stated that all of them took part therein. Even if we do not put entire reliance on the said statements, the very fact that the deceased received as many as 20 injuries is itself sufficient to show that all the accused persons not only came to the place of occurrence upon forming an unlawful assembly but also had the requisite common object to kill the deceased. Formation of common object must be inferred upon taking into consideration the entire situation."

In the case of Jai Shree Yadav Vs. State of U.P. 2004 SAR (Cri.) 748, the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that:-

"29. In view of the above principle in law, since the trial court has found these respondent-accused guilty of being members of an unlawful assembly with the common object of causing the murder of the deceased, and the High Court having not differed from the said finding, it erred in acquitting these respondent-accused solely on the ground that there is no evidence to show that they had taken part in the actual assault. In our opinion, assuming that the High Court was correct in coming to the conclusion that these respondent-accused have not taken part in the attack even then they having come together with the other accused armed, and having been members of the unlawful assembly and having shared the common object, they will be guilty of an offence punishable under section 302 read withsection 149 IPC."

In the case of Krishna Mochi and Others Vs. State of Bihar etc. 2002 (2) J.Cr.C 123, regarding liability of accused persons in the case of common object Hon'ble Apex Court held that:-

"83. Learned counsel further pointed out that according to the prosecution case and evidence, none of the appellants are alleged to have assaulted either any of the 35 deceased or the injured persons and that from mere presence at the place of occurrence their participation in the crime cannot be inferred inasmuch as they may be even sight seers. In my view, there is absolutely no foundation for the submissions that the accused persons may be sight seers as no suggestion was given to any of the witnesses on this score. According to the prosecution case and the evidence, the accused persons arrived at the village of occurrence, pursuant to a conspiracy hatched up by them, they divided themselves into several groups, different groups went to the houses of different persons in the village, entered the houses by breaking open the door, forcibly took away inmates of the house after tying their hands, taken them first to the temple and thereafter near the canal where their legs were also tied and there some of them were done to death at the point of firearm, but a vast majority of them were massacred by slitting their throats with pasuli. One thing is clear that all these acts were done by the accused persons pursuant to a conspiracy hatched up by them to completely eliminate members of a particular community in the village and to achieve that object, they formed unlawful assembly and different members of that unlawful assembly had played different role. In view of these facts, merely because the appellants are not said to have assaulted either any of the deceased or injured persons, it cannot be inferred that they had no complicity with the crime, more so according to the evidence they were also armed with deadly weapons, like firearms, bombs, etc., but did not use the same. Reference in this connection may be made to a decision of this Court in the case of Masalti (supra) where it was laid down that where a crowd of assailants, who were members of an unlawful assembly, proceeds to commit the crime in pursuance of the common object of that assembly, it is often not possible for witnesses to describe actual part played by each one of them and a large crowd of persons armed with weapons assaults the intended victims, it may not be necessary that all of them have to take part in the actual assault as in that case several weapons were carried by different members of unlawful assembly and an accused who was member of such an unlawful assembly and was carrying firearm cannot take any advantage from the fact that he did not use the firearms, though other members of the unlawful assembly used their respective arms.

Therefore, only on the ground that I.O. could not recover the fire-arms of each accused persons, case of prosecution does not collapse particularly where the eye-witnesses PW-1 and PW-2 have been found reliable witnesses.

56. Learned counsel for the appellants further argued that it has also been mentioned in F.I.R. that after committing murder of Satish accused persons entered in the house of complainant by pursuing and chasing him, where they robbed the licencee double barrel gun of complainant, cash and jewellery. The occurrence of robbery has not been proved by the evidence available on record. Considering the aforesaid argument, record shows that witness PW-3 who is mother of deceased, was present in her residential home, where it has been alleged that robbery of gun, cash and jewellery took place. Witness PW- 3 has mentioned in her evidence that when her husband was running towards his home with shouting the voice for help, all the accused persons were chasing him with fire-arms, and all the persons entered in her house, they robbed Rs. 1,30,000/-, cash, licencee gun and belt of cartridges, pandel and chain. During the course, Ram Das and Kanhai stood before her and asked her to keep silent. She has further stated in her evidence that cash and jewellery which were kept in open box were robbed. As according to evidence of witness Pw- 1, his servant was also residing with his family members in his house, therefore, it is not probable that the box, wherein case and jewellery were lying would not be in locked condition. Witness PW- 3 has further stated in her evidence that all the articles were robbed from the room of Satish. She has further stated that aforesaid cash amount was consideration money of sale of laha (mustered), but no receipt of sale has been submitted by prosecution. Witness PW- 1 has stated in his evidence that her wife told about the robbed articles. Admittedly the F.I.R. was lodged by complainant after that conversation with his wife but there is no detail of robbed articles in F.I.R. He has also mentioned in his evidence that accused persons had given threat to his wife and servant, on the other hand, witness PW- 3 has stated that accused Kanhai and Ram Das stopped her from shouting the voice for help. She has not taken the name of any servant. Witness PW- 3 further stated that immediately, after robbery, she told her husband about the robbery but witness PW- 1 has stated in his evidence that he don't know that from where the jewellery was robbed, it is well known to the ladies of home. This statement of Pw- 1, in the light of statement of Pw- 3 is not reliable. Witness PW- 1 has also stated that the licencee gun was in his name and the gun was lying in the room of deceased Satish. Inquest report indicates that, right hand of deceased was already amputated therefore, in such a physical condition it is not possible for Satish to use gun, by a single hand. On the other hand, complainant was a fit person, therefore, the statement of PW- 1 that gun was lying in the room of Satish is not reliable. Normally guns are kept in house, in such a places where it can be used easily in eminent danger conditions. The complainant has not produced his gun's licence also which could prove that he was possessing a gun.

57. It has further argued by learned counsel for appellants that evidence of witness Pw- 2 on the point of robbery is not reliable, as in general, a stranger person who watches the occurrence of violence and running of accused persons with weapons, takes shelter behind some structure as shield, witness PW- 2 and his son Amit at that time would have been in shed of his tractor, therefore, it was not possible for him to recognize the robbed gun of complainant in the hand of Ram Datt witness Pw- 3 has not stated the name of Ram Datt who was well known by her as neighbour. The argument advanced by counsel for appellants at this point seems forceful, and above part of the statement of PW-2 appears as exaggeration, which can be ignored.

58. Considering the evidence on record, surrounding circumstances and keeping in mind that no looted articles were recovered from the pointing out of accused persons or from their residence at the time of proceeding of attachment which took place under the Provisions of Section 83 of Cr.P.C, the occurrence of robbery is not established. Prosecution has failed to prove the occurrence of robbery beyond reasonable doubt against accused persons. Therefore, accused persons are liable to be acquitted from the charge of Section 395 I.P.C.

59. In view of the above facts, circumstances and discussions, we are of the confirmed view that prosecution has proved the charges of Section 302 I.P.C. and 148 I.P.C. beyond reasonable doubt against accused persons. So far as the charges of offence under Section 302/148 I.P.C. is concerned, no error of law as well as in appreciation of fact and evidence is found in impugned judgement. Therefore, conviction and sentence of appellants under Section 302/148 I.P.C. is affirmed. It is further concluded that since the prosecution could not prove the charge of Section 395 I.P.C. against appellants, hence appellants are acquitted from the charge of Section 395 I.P.C.

60. Accordingly, conviction and sentencing order of sessions judge, so far as Section 395 of I.P.C. in concern is set aside. Appeal is allowed partly.

61. Let the copy of this order be sent to court concern for compliance. All the accused persons, namely, Sunil, Ballu, Dhannu, Avadesh and Kanhai are on bail they will surrender immediately before C.J.M. concerned, failing which the C.J.M. concerned shall issue NBW against all the accused appellants. If accused appellants appears or brought before C.J.M. they shall be sent to jail for execution of their sentences.

A. Criminal Law-Indian Penal Code - Section 302- Appeal against conviction.

Law is well settled that even if acquittal is recorded in respect of the co-accused on the ground that there were exaggerations and embellishments yet conviction can be recorded in respect of the other accused if the evidence is found cogent and reliable against him. (Para 28)

If prosecution case is based on direct evidence of eyewitnesses and the law is settled that in such cases presence or absence of motive is not relevant. Motive is not a sine qua non for the commission of a crime. Moreover, it takes a back seat in a case of direct ocular account of the commission of the offence by a particular person. In a case of direct evidence the element of motive does not play such an important role so as to cast any doubt on the credibility of the prosecution witnesses even if there be any doubt raised in this regard. (Para 40)

If the eye-witnesses are trustworthy, the motive attributed for the commission of crime may not be of much relevance. Failure to prove motive or absence of evidence on the point of motive would not be fatal to the prosecution case when the other reliable evidence available on record establishes the guilt of the accused. (Para 42)

FIR has been lodged promptly without any delay. Three eye-witnesses including informant have proved the prosecution case. There is no contradiction, improvement or discrepancy in their statement with regards to time, date, place and manner of commission of offence by accused. The injury report and postmortem report fully corroborate the time, date and manner of incident and it has been found that both died by gunshot injuries. The prosecution has succeeded in proving the charge under Section 302 IPC beyond shadow of any doubt. (Para 46)

Criminal Appeal rejected. (Para 47)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pradeep Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Jitendra Singh, learned counsel for the appellant, Sri L.D. Rajbhar and Mrs. Alpana Singh, learned A.G.A for the State and perused the record.

2. This criminal appeal has been filed against the judgment and order dated 10.12.1999, passed by the Sessions Judge, Mahoba, in Sessions Trial No. 38 of 1996 (State vs. Baba Deen And others), arising out of Case Crime No. 193 of 1995, under Section 302 IPC, Police Station Shrinagar, District Mahoba, whereby the accused-appellant Baba Deen has been convicted and sentenced for life imprisonment. By the same judgment, two other co-accused persons Chhote Lal and Kali Charan have been acquitted.

3. Brief facts of the case is that the incident took place on 02.12.1995 at about 06:00 PM in the village Pawa, PS Shrinagar, Mahoba. At the time of incident, the informant Prem Narain had gone to the shop of Gaya babu for purchasing Bidi and behind him his niece Raj Kumari aged about 13 years and nephew Arjun aged about 12 years had also come to the shop. Accused Baba Deen came from the side of his house along with co-accused Kali Charan and Chhote Lal. Seeing the informant on the shop, Kali Charan and Chhote Lal exhorted Baba Deen, whereupon he fired by his country made gun of 12 bore on the informant, but he escaped. Unfortunately, the pellets of the fire hit his niece and nephew who sustained injuries. After that, all the three accused persons ran away towards their house. The nearby people Lakhan Lal Lodhi and Ashok Kumar Lodhi saw the whole incident. The informant and his family members took the injured persons to the police station by tractor, where he submitted his written report on the basis of which the offence was registered under Section 307 IPC. The informant's niece namely Raj Kumari was dead by the time the doctor examined her, about which the informant also informed to the police. Inquest report of the dead body was prepared along with the relevant papers and the postmortem of Raj Kumari was conducted on 03.12.1995. On the basis thereof, the case was converted into Section 302 IPC. The injured Arjun was serious and he was referred to the Medical College, Gwaliar, where he was provided treatment and when he was discharged on 14.12.1995 from the hospital and was being brought to the village, at about 05:30 PM, he also died near the railway station and the same was also reported to the police. Inquest report was prepared along with the relevant papers and the postmortem of Arjun was conducted on 15.12.1995.

4. The police investigated into the matter, recorded the statements of the witnesses and prepared the site map. The accused-appellant Baba Deen was taken into custody and on his instance a country made gun of 12 bore was recovered from the hedges of sugarcane field, which the accused Baba Deen gave to the police and stated that by that gun, he fired on Prem Narain and by mistake the fire hit the nephew Arjun and niece Raj Kumari. When asked, he could not show the license. Offence under Section 25 Arms Act was registered against him. The police sent the gun which was recovered from the accused Baba Deen for forensic report and finding sufficient evidence against the accused persons submitted charge sheet for the offence under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC and under Section 25 Arms Act against the accused Babadeen.

5. The learned trial court framed the charges against accused Baba Deen for the offence under Section 302 IPC and Section 25 Arms Act and against Kali Charan and Chhote Lal for the offence under Section 302/34 IPC.

6. Prosecution examined as many as nine witnesses. PW-1 Prem Narain (informant0 has proved the written report Ext. Ka-1 and the information dated 15.12.1995 regarding the death of Arjun Ext. Ka-2 and has stated about the incident. PW-2 Lakhan Lal and PW-3 Ashok Kumar are the eye witnesses. PW-4 Dr. D. K. Tripathi of District Hospital, Mahoba has proved the postmortem report of Arjun as Ext. Ka-3. PW-5 SI Bhagwant Singh Tomer has proved the GD regarding the death of Raj Kumari as Ext. Ka-4, inquest report as Ext. Ka-5, photo Nash Ext. Ka-6, challan Nash Ext. Ka-7 and letter to CMO Ext. Ka-8. PW-6 Dr. M.S. Rajpoot has proved the injury report of Arjun as Ext. Ka-9 and postmortem report of Raj Kumari as Ext. Ka-10. PW-7 SO R.K. Gautam has proved the chik FIR Ext. Ka-11 and GD report Ext. Ka-12. He has also proved the statement of injured Arjun, recorded in the case diary and filed at the time of giving statement as Ext. Ka-13, site map Ext. Ka-14, Memo of pellets, empty cartridges, blood stained and plain earth Ext. Ka-15, GD report of converting the offence under Section 302 IPC as Ext. Ka-16 and GD report Ext. Ka-17 about the information of death of Arjun, Memo of recovery of gun ext. Ka-18, site map of the place of recovery Ext. Ka-19 and charge sheet Ext. Ka-20. He has also proved the recovered gun as material Ext.-1, empty cartridge as material Ext. 2 and pellets as material Ext. 3. He also proved the sealed blood stained clothes of the deceased which were sent for chemical examination and blood stained and plain earth sealed in a packet. PW-8 SI Nasruddin Siddiqui (IO) has proved the charge sheet as Ext. Ka-20. PW-9 SI Umapati Rai has proved the inquest report as Ext. Ka-21, letter to CMO Ext. Ka-22, photo Nash Ext. Ka-23, challan Nash Ext. Ka-24. He has also proved the gun recovered on the instance of accused Baba Deen as material Ext. 9. FSL report, Agra regarding the gun is Ext. Ka-31.

7. The statements of the accused persons were recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. They have put forward the case of denial and have stated the case and evidence of witnesses to be false and based on enmity. They have not produced any evidence in their defence.

8. On the basis of evidence on record, the learned trial court has convicted the accused-appellant for the offence under Section 302 IPC. He has, however, been acquitted from the offence under Section 25 Arms Act. The co-accused persons Kali Charan and Chhote Lal have been acquitted from the charge under section 302/34 IPC.

9. Feeling aggrieved by the conviction and sentence, the present criminal appeal has been filed contending that the impugned judgment is against the weight of evidence on record and unsustainable in the eyes of law. The sentence awarded is too severe.

10. During the course of argument, learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that the learned trial court has committed error in convicting the accused-appellant as on the basis of same evidence, the co-accused persons have been acquitted. It has further been submitted that the recovered gun which was characterized to be a weapon used in commission of the offence and for which, the accused was tried for the offence under Section 25 Arms Act, he has been acquitted. There are discrepancies and contradictions in the evidence of the fact witnesses. The death of Arjun did not take place instantly as he died while coming back after being discharged from the hospital because of infection.The prosecution has failed to establish the guilt beyond the shadow of doubt and, therefore, the impugned order is liable to be set aside and the accused-appellant is entitled for acquittal.

11. On the contrary, the learned AGA has submitted that the eye witnesses have supported the prosecution version and the case of prosecution was proved by medical and other evidences also. The learned trial court taking into consideration the evidence on record has rightly convicted and sentenced the accused appeallant. Therefore, the appeal is liable to be dismissed.

12. In view of the rival contentions of both the sides, it is necessary to examine and scrutinize the evidence adduced from the side of prosecution to prove the charge.

13. PW-1 Prem Narain is the informant. He has stated that he knows the accused persons. They are the residents of his village. The accused Kali Charan and Chhote Lal are the real brothers and accused Baba Deen is son of Kali Charan. In the village there is a shop of Gaya Babu and from his shop, the house of accused Baba Deen is situated about 30 meters in the north. The incident took place on 02.12.1995 at about 06:00 PM when the informant had gone to purchase Beedi from the shop of Gaya Babu along with his nephew Arjun aged about 12 years and niece Raj Kumari aged about 13 years. Accused Baba Deen who was already present there, on the exhortation of other co-accused Kali Charan and Chhote Lal, fired on the informant. Fortunately, he escaped, but the pellets of the fire hit his nephew and niece and they sustained injuries. The witnesses Lakhan Lal and Ashok Kumar saw the whole incident. The accused persons thereafter fled away from the place. Some pellets also hit the wall of the house of Thakur Das. The empty cartridges also fell on the ground. He went to the Police Station Shrinagar along with both the injured children and got the report scribed by Laxman and gave the same to the police station. Both the children were taken to the Hospital at Mahoba where Rajkumari was declared dead. Arjun was referred to Gwaliar. Arjun died on 14.12.1995 while coming back from there on the railway station after being discharged from the Gwaliar Hospital. The dead body was taken to the Police Station Shrinagar and the written information for the same was given on 15.12.1995. The witness has further stated that two days before the date of incident, the accused Baba Deen had passed in front of his door using abusive language and when he was prevented, the accused threatened him.

14. PW-2 Lakhan Lal is an eye witness. He has stated that he knows all the three accused persons. The accused persons belong to his village. He has stated that about 15 months before at 06:00 PM in the evening, he was taking groundnut from the shop of Gaya Babu. Prem Narain, Arjun and Raj Kumari were also there. The three accused persons came and on the exhortation of Chhote Lal and Kali Charan, accused Baba Deen fired on Prem Narain who escaped but the fire hit Arjun and Raj Kumari. The accused persons ran away from there. The injured children were taken by Prem Narain to Srinagar. Both the children died because of fire arm injuries. The girl died in the police station, whereas, the boy died in Gwaliar.

15. PW-3 eye witness Ashok Kumar has also stated that he knows all the three accused persons. He has stated that about 13 months ago, at about 06:00 PM in the evening, when he had gone to the shop of Gaya Babu for purchasing Beedi, Lakhan Lal, Prem Narain, Arjun and Raj Kumari were also present there. The three accused persons came. Accused Baba Deen was having a gun and on the exhortation of the co-accused persons namely Chhote Lal and Kali Charan, the accused Baba Deen fired on Prem Narain who escaped but the pellets of the fire hit Arjun and Raj Kumari who died. Prem Narain took the children to Shrinagar. The accused persons ran away from there. Raj Kumari died in the police station, whereas Arjun died in Gwaliar.

16. PW-4 is Dr. D.K. Tripathi who conducted the postmortem of Arjun on 15.12.1995 at District Hospital, Mahoba on 03:30 PM. The dead body was sent in sealed condition and was brought by Constable Pramod Kumar and Constable Jagdish on Police Station, Shrinagar. The witness has stated that he found the following injuries on the body of the deceased :-

(i) Old healed scar mark, three in number on the left side of the forehead, 0.5 cm. in oval shape. All the three injuries were at the distance of 1 cm. from each other and 1cm. above the upper margin of orbit.

(ii) Old healed scar mark, over vertex, five in number, 0.8 cm. above the root of the nose in size of 0.5 X 0.6 cm. in oval shape and at the distance of 0.3 cm. to 4.5 cm. from each other.

17. In the internal examination, injury was found on the skull and front bone, 0.5 cm. X. 0.5 cm. size oval shape at the distance of 1 cm from each other and in the middle of the orbit. Two oval hole was found present with puss. Two pellets were also found on the left posterior on the 1/3 of the western part and puss was present. The deceased was 12 years old. Rigor mortis was not present in the upper limb and it was only present on the lower part of the foot.

18. The cause of death was injuries caused by fire arm because of invocation and coma. The deceased should have died one day before from the time of postmortem. The doctor has stated that the deceased must have died on 14.12.1995 at about 05:30 PM.

19. PW-5 SI Bhagwant Singh Tomar has stated that on 02.12.1995, when he was posted in Kotwali as Sub-Inspector, the ward boy Ram Asraey of District Hospital, Mahoba gave a written report about the death of Raj Kumari, which was entered on the same day in the GD Report No. 49 at 10:00 PM. He has also stated that he prepared the inquest report of Raj Kumari and all the necessary papers for postmortem. The dead body was sealed and was sent for postmortem under the custody of Constable Maan singh and Home Guard Mohan Lal.

20. PW-6 Dr. M.S. Rajpoot has stated that on 02.12.1995, he was posted in the District Hospital, Mohaba and the injured Arjun was brought at 08:15 P.M. in the night who was aged about 12 years and he was examined by him. Arjun was brought by Home Guard Jai Prakash and Home Guard Mahendra Kumar of Police Station Shrinagar. In the examination, the following injuries were found on the body of Arjun -

(i) Multiple fire arm injuries, total three in number in the area of 4 cm. X 2 cm. on the left side of the forehead, just above the left eyebrow. The size of injury was 0.5 cm. X 0.5 cm. in oval shape and the margin were internally bend. X-ray was advised.

(ii) Multiple fire arm entry wound, five in number in the area of 10 cm. X 10 cm. on the head, the size of the injury was 0.5 cm. X 0.5 cm., oval shape and the margin were internally bend. X-ray was advised.

21. According to doctor, the injuries were caused by fire arm and it was possible that the injuries must have been caused by gun on the same day at about 06:00 PM.

22. PW-6 has further stated that on 03.12.1995 at about 01:00 PM, he conducted the postmortem of the dead body of Raj Kumari, who was brought by Constable Maan Singh and Home Guard Mohan Lal of Police Station Shrinagar, in sealed condition. On examination, following ante-mortem injuries were found :-

(i) Multiple fire arm injuries in the area of 33 cm x 8 cm on the left hand on the front side in the outer area. The size of injury was 0.5 cm x 0.5 cm, oval shape and the margin were internally bend.

(ii) Multiple fire arm injuries in the area of 45 cm x 16 cm on the left side of chest and on the front abdomen in 0.5 cm x 0.5 cm in size, oval shape and the margin were internally bend.

23. In internal examination, the entry wound was present on the fourth and fifth ribs and on ninth and tenth ribs also. Pellets were recovered. Heart was vacant and black blood was present in the cavity. In the stomach, 250 grams pasty food was present.

24. From the small intestine, one pellet was also found. One pellet was found from membrane and one was recovered from Tilli which was torn. The deceased was aged about 13 years and was of average height. The doctor has stated that the cause of death was injuries caused by fire arm and the death must have been caused 3/4 day before on 02.12.1995 and after 08:00 PM in the night. The fire arm injury was possible by gun.

25. PW-7 R.K. Gautam, SO (Investigating Officer) has stated that the injured persons were brought on tractor lying on a cot. The condition of Raj Kumari was very poor and she was not able to talk. Arjun was conscious and his statement was taken. Next day in the morning, he recorded the statement of Prem Narain and on his identification, site map of the place of occurrence was prepared. Some pellets were found near the wall of the house of Thakur Das which were taken into possession. Empty cartridges, blood stained and plain earth were also taken into possession from there and sealed and memo was prepared. Statements of the witnesses were recorded. The postmortem and the injury report was obtained. The statement of Lakhan Lal and Ashok Kumar was also recorded. The accused Baba Deen surrendered in the court on 09.12.1995 and the other two accused also surrendered in the court. Their statements were recorded. Accused Baba Deen confessed and stated that after firing, he had concealed the gun and he can get the same recovered. On 15.12.1995, the informant Prem Narain gave a written report regarding the death of Arjun. Baba Deen, accused was taken on police remand. He took the police and witnesses voluntarily and got the gun recovered from the garden of Lalu Baba @ Lala Das from the field of sugarcane. The gun was taken into possession and sealed and memo was prepared. The site map of the place of recovery was also prepared. The witness has further stated that on 18.12.1995, he was transferred, whereupon the investigation was undertaken by SO Nasiruddin and after taking the statement about the recovery of gun and the statement of the witnesses of inquest report, the recovered gun and other items were sent for chemical examination at Agra. Thereafter, charge sheet was submitted. This witness has proved the charge sheet as secondary witness and has also proved the gun, empty cartridges, pellets, blood stained clothes of deceased and blood stained and plain earth.

26. PW-8 SI Nasiruddin Siddiqui has also stated that he examined the witnesses of memo of recovery of gun and the witnesses of inquest report and sent for chemical examination the recovered gun and other items to Agra and submitted charge sheet in the case.

27. PW-9 SI Umapati Rai has stated that he prepared inquest report and sealed the dead body of Arjun and prepared relevant letter and papers for the purpose of postmortem and handed over the dead body to Constable Pramod Kumar and Constable Jagdish Prasad. He has also stated that SI R.K. Gautam lodged the first information report against the accused Baba Deen in Crime No. 201 of 1995 under Section 25 Arms Act. He has further stated that he investigated the offence and after taking the statement of the recovery witness and chik writer and preparing the site map of the place of recovery and obtaining the necessary sanction, submitted charge sheet under section 25 of the Arms Act.

28. The first submission of the learned counsel for the accused-appellant is that on the basis of same evidence, the two co-accused persons Kali Charan and Chhotey Lal were acquitted by the learned trial court and as such, the accused appellant was also entitled for acquittal. We are of the firm view that on this ground alone, the accused-appellant is not entitled for acquittal. It has been consistent view of the Supreme Court that where acquittal of co-accused was recorded, the same cannot become a basis for acquittal and the case of individual accused shall be considered on the basis of evidence available on record against him. In Balraje Vs. State of Maharashtra, 2010 (70) ACC 12 (SC), Kallu Vs. State of M.P., 2007 (57) ACC 959 (SC) and Amzad Ali Vs. State of Assam, (2003) 6 SCC 270, it has been held that where some of the accused persons were acquitted, on the basis of benefit of doubt, as no positive role or any overt acts was attributed to them, it has been held that same treatment could not have been meted out to all the other accused whose complicity and specific role in the commission of the offence was firmly established by evidence. Law is well settled that even if acquittal is recorded in respect of the co-accused on the ground that there were exaggerations and embellishments yet conviction can be recorded in respect of the other accused if the evidence is found cogent and reliable against him. In the case in hand, the accused appellant has been assigned role of causing firearm injuries resulting in death of two deceased children. The co-accused persons were assigned the role of exhortation only. The learned trial court finding discrepancy in evidence with regards to the involvement of the co-accused persons in the commission of the offence, acquitted them. The learned trial court also found established that the accused-appellant was the main accused who fired and caused death of the two children. In view of the above discussion, we find no force in this argument.

29. The learned trial court has on evidence found that within one and half hours of the incident, FIR has been lodged by giving a written report in the Police Station. The informant went there on a tractor carrying the two injured and the distance was 11 km. PW-1 informant has stated that after the incident he got the report scribed by Laxman in the village itself and gave it to the police after signing the same. Therefore, the FIR was lodged promptly in the facts and circumstances of the case. On this basis, the learned trial court has very rightly concluded that the promptness of FIR rules out any possibility of legal assistance and false implication. The report regarding death of Rajkumari has been also promptly given on the basis of which the offence has been converted into that of section 302 IPC. Thereafter, when Arjun died, it was also reported without any delay. The three fact witnesses examined by prosecution have stated that the incident took place on 6 PM in the evening. PW-1 Premnarain has stated that the incident took place on 2.12.1995 and PW-2 has stated that the incident took place 15 months ago and PW-3 has stated that it took place 13 months ago. They both have been examined 14-15 months ago from the date of incident and as such, the date and time of the commission of offence has been proved. It finds further support from the medical report of Arjun who was examined on the date of incident at 8.15 PM and PW-6 Dr. M. S. Rajpoot has stated that the injury to him should have been caused on same day at 6 PM. Similarly, he conducted postmortem of Rajkumari on 3.12.1995 at 1 PM and she must have died after 8 PM, a day before. Therefore, the time and date of commission of the offence has been proved.

30. So far as place of occurrence is concerned, there is consistency in the version of FIR, site map prepared by the IO and the witnesses examined by the prosecution. Ext. Ka 14 is the site map in which the shop of Gaya Babu has been shown on the corner where one pathway coming from north which connects with the path way from east to west and opposite to it, there is house of Thakur Das. The house of Gaya Babu opens in the west towards the way coming from north and the shop opens towards south on the pathway going towards west from east and in the east after two houses, house of informant exists, whereas, house of accused Babadeen is situated in the north opening on the path which comes from north to south. This shows that all the concerned including witnesses live in the same vicinity. It has been stated by PW-1 that the house of PW-2 Lakhan Lal is in the east of his house whereas, house of PW-3 Ashok is 20-30 step ahead in the east from his house. Meaning thereby, the houses and shop are situated around and close to the place of occurrence shown by alphabet A which is in front of the shop of Gaya Babu. As such, their presence on and close to shop is natural and the witnesses including informant were there to purchase beedi or some domestic item. All the three witnesses of fact have stated that the offence was committed by accused in front of the shop of Gaya Babu. The IO has stated that he found certain pellets near the wall of the house of Thakur Das. From the place of occurrence, cartridge and blood stained and plain earth were taken in possession and memo was prepared. PW-1 informant has stated that some of the pellets hit the wall of the house of Thakur Das. Therefore, the place of occurrence has been fully established.

31. All the three eyewitnesses have categorically stated that accused Babadeen shot fire on the informant, but he fortunately escaped and the fire hit both the deceased children. Rajkumari died same day by the time she reached hospital. Deceased Arjun died on 14.12.1995 because of firearm injuries. All the three witnesses have been cross-examined by defence, but, there appears to be no contradiction or discrepancy or improvement on any material aspect. They are witnesses of same locality and their presence on spot cannot be doubted as they all had come to the shop for purchasing something. They have stated that that they saw that accused Babadeen shot fire by his gun and the fire struck the two children instead of Prem Narain. This finds further corroboration from the statement of deceased Arjun whose statement was recorded by the IO under section 161 of the Criminal Procedure Code when he was in the hospital and his statement has been proved by PW-7 IO R.K. Goutam as Ext. Ka-13 in which deceased Arjun has stated that accused Babadeen fired and he and his sister Rajkumari sustained injury and fell down. He has also stated that at the time of incident that he and his sister had gone to take biscuit with their uncle. We find that, even though, the statement of the deceased was recorded by the IO, the same has been rightly used by the learned trial court as dying declaration in support of ocular testimonies of the three eye-witnesses.

32. The postmortem report of deceased Rajkumari shows that multiple firearm wounds (34 in number) were found in the area of 33 cm x 8 cm on the left hand and firearm wounds 25 in number in the area of 45 cm x 16 cm on the left side of chest and abdomen. She died due to shock and hemorrhage resulted by ante-mortem firearm injuries. It is pertinent to mention that she died just two hours after the incident and her injuries, particularly injury no 2 is on vital part, with 25 entry wounds of pellets out of which 3 pellets recovered and several internal organs were torn or damaged. In the cross-examination, Dr. Rajpoot has denied the suggestion of the defence that injuries were not caused by firearm.

33. Similarly, the other injured Arjun, though died after 12 days from the date of incident, his condition was very serious and he was referred to Gwaliar for treatment. Prior to that, he was examined by PW-6 Dr. Rajpoot in the District Hospital, Mahoba and his injuries were on vital part and head in the form of multiple firearm injuries which were eight in numbers. His postmortem report shows that on the middle part of upper orbital margin, two oval hole was found filled with puss and two pellets found in left posterior 1/3 part of parietal cortex and puss present in the frontal part of left cortex. PW-4 has stated that the cause of death was Coma resulted by ante-mortem firearm injuries causing infection in brain. During cross-examination, he has stated that it is not possible to say that, if pellets were removed from brain by operation and proper treatment provided, the deceased could have been saved. He has stated that the brain does not regenerate and the injuries were healed from out side but not from inside. It is pertinent to mention that the pellet injuries were on most sensitive part brain and despite treatment it was not cured. It also deserves mention that the deceased was only 12 years in age. As such we do not find any force in the submission of the learned counsel to the appellant that Arjun died because of infection as the infection was also the result of the firearm injuries by which substantial damage was caused to brain. Therefore, we are of the firm opinion that both the deceased persons died because of the firearm injuries caused by the accused which was on the vital and sensitive part of the body and death was the most probable result.

34. It has been further argued that one fire will not result in multiple pellet injuries nor will hit two persons at a time. We, on a thoughtful consideration of this point, are unable to agree with this argument. It all depends upon the nature of gun used in committing the crime. In this case, a country made gun of 12 bore was used by the accused. It has been held in Om Pal Singh Vs. State of UP, AIR 2011 SC 1562, that a single shot fired from double barreled gun can cause multiple injuries. A gun the fire of which spreads pellets can always result in multiple injuries and it can hit more than one.

35. It has been submitted by the learned counsel for the appellant that the incident took place at 6 PM and in the month of December it becomes dark and it was not possible to identify the assailant and the accused was falsely implicated. In support of this submission, the statement of PW-2 and PW-3 has been referred who have admitted in their cross-examination that it was sun set when the incident took place. He has also pointed out the discrepancy in the statement of these two witnesses as PW-3 has stated that it was sun set but visibility was there, whereas, PW-2 has stated that he gave statement to IO that it was dark but moonlit night. He has however stated during cross-examination that at the time of fire by accused there was enough visibility, but he is not sure whether it was visibility of day or moonlit.

36. The Supreme Court has clarified the law on this point in various judgments and has laid down that a witness, who is accustomed to live in darkness, poor light or no light, and acquainted with the accused, can identify the accused even in darkness. In Kalika Tewari v State of Bihar, JT 1997(4) SC 405, the Supreme Court held,

"The visible capacity of urban people who are acclimatized to fluorescent light is not the standard to be applied to villagers whose optical potency is attuned to country made lamps. Visibility of villagers is conditioned to such lights and hence it would be quite possible for them to identify men and matters in such lights."

37. In Ram Gulam Chowdhary v State of Bihar, 2001(2) JIC 986 (SC), it was argued that it was not possible for the eye witnesses to have identified the accused persons in poor light of lantern in the night. The Supreme Court rejected the argument and remarked that "as the incident took place in village and the visibility of villagers are conditioned to such lights and it would be quite possible for the eye witnesses to identify men and matters in such light."

38. In Sheoraj Bapuray Jadhav v State of Karnataka, (2003) 6 SCC 392, in a trial u/s 302/34 IPC, accused persons were known to prosecution witnesses. Occurrence had taken place at about 11.00 PM, two days prior to the new moon day. Parties were used to live in the midst of nature and accustomed to live without light. Further, they were close relatives and living in the neighboring huts. Similarly, in State of UP v Sheo Lal, AIR 2009 SC 1912 , the murder had taken place at night and the source of light was not indicated in the FIR and the accused and the eye witnesses were closely related. It has been held by the Supreme Court in both the cases that the evidence of eye witnesses cannot be discarded on the basis of non-disclosure of source of light or insufficiency of light as well-acquainted persons can be well identified in darkness. In Durbal v State of UP, 2011 CrLJ 1106 (SC) and Hari Singh v State of UP, AIR 2011 SC 360, Where the parties belonged to the same village and were well known to each other, it has been held that merely because torch not taken into possession by the IO would not mean that witnesses were not credible and conviction under Section 302 IPC was held proper.

39. In view of above discussion and also for two reasons, we are not inclined to add any significance to this alleged discrepancy. Firstly, all the three eyewitnesses have clearly stated in their examination-in-chief that they saw accused Babadeen firing by his gun causing injuries to the two children. Secondly, the witnesses lived in same vicinity and accused was well known to them as he resides in the same locality close to their house and close to the shop of Gaya Babu. In such situation, though at 6 PM in December it is not completely dark, but even if it was dark, it was possible for these witnesses to identify the accused as he was well known to them and they lived in village and were in the habit of living in dark or in low light condition. The submission of learned counsel that the prosecution has not alleged the source of light at the time of incident is also of no significance in view of above discussion.

40. It has been further argued by the learned counsel to the appellant that there was no motive with the accused prompting him to cause such offence. In the FIR it has been alleged, and PW-1 has stated during trial that two days before the date of incident, the accused Babadeen passed from his door abusing the informant and on being prevented, he threatened the informant to see him later on. Moreover, the prosecution case is based on direct evidence of eyewitnesses and the law is settled that in such cases presence or absence of motive is not relevant. In a number of decisions, like Abu Thakir v

State AIR 2010 SC 2119, State of UP v Nawab Singh AIR 2010 SC 3638, Bipin Kumar Mondal v State of West Bengal 2005 SCC (Criminal) 33, Shivraj Bapuray Jadhav v State of Karnataka (2003) 6 SCC 392, Thaman Kumar v State of Union Territory of Chandigarh (2003) 6 SCC 380, State of HP v Jeet Singh; (1999) 4 SCC 370, it has been repeatedly held by the Supreme Court that motive is not a sine qua non for the commission of a crime. Moreover, it takes a back seat in a case of direct ocular account of the commission of the offence by a particular person. In a case of direct evidence the element of motive does not play such an important role so as to cast any doubt on the credibility of the prosecution witnesses even if there be any doubt raised in this regard. If the eye-witnesses are trustworthy, the motive attributed for the commission of crime may not be of much relevance. Failure to prove motive or absence of evidence on the point of motive would not be fatal to the prosecution case when the other reliable evidence available on record unerringly establishes the guilt of the accused.

41. We find that the Supreme Court has clearly opined in various decisions, such as Gopi Ram v St. Of UP, 2006 (55) ACC 673 SC, R.R. Reddy v State of AP, AIR 2006 SC 1656, Sucha Singh v State of Punjab; AIR 2003 SC 1471, State of Rajasthan v Arjun Singh AIR 2011 SC 3380, Varun Chaudhry v State of Rajasthan AIR 2011 SC 72 and in the recent judgment of Saddik Vs. State of Gujarat, (2016) 10 SCC 663, it has been held that the prosecution case could not be denied on the ground of alleged absence or insufficiency of motive. Motive is insignificant in cases of direct evidence of eyewitnesses. Failure to prove motive or absence of evidence on the point of motive would not be fatal to the prosecution case when the other reliable, truthful and acceptable evidence is available on record sufficient to establish the guilty of accused persons.

42. We are of the view that when there is sufficient direct evidence regarding the commission of offence, the question of motive should go away from the mind of the Court. Motive is a double edged weapon and the key question for consideration in cases based on direct evidence remains whether the prosecution had convincingly and satisfactorily established the guilt of all or any of the accused beyond reasonable doubt by adducing reliable and cogent evidence. As such, the proof of the existence of a motive is not necessary for a conviction for any offence. If the eye-witnesses are trustworthy, the motive attributed for the commission of crime may not be of much relevance. Failure to prove motive or absence of evidence on the point of motive would not be fatal to the prosecution case when the other reliable evidence available on record establishes the guilt of the accused. In the case in hand, evidence shows that motive in terms of threatening two days before has been alleged. As such and in view of the case law discussed above, we find no force in the submission with regards to absence of adequate motive.

43. It has been further submitted by the learned counsel for the appellant that the prosecution failed to connect the allegedly recovered gun at the pointing of the accused with the commission of the offence and the learned trial court acquitted him from the charge under section 25 of the Arms Act. It appears that the learned trial court has acquitted the accused from the said charge as the public witnesses of recovery were not examined to prove recovery, only IO was examined to prove recovery and by Forensic Report, the said gun was not found to have been used in the commission of offence. It is pertinent to mention that the offence under section 25, Arms Act is a separate offence and is required to be proved in view of the technical requirements necessary for the constitution of offence. His acquittal for the offence under section 25 of the Arms Act will not have effect on the charge under section 302 IPC. Therefore, we are of the view that the acquittal of the accused under section 25 of the Arms Act will not render any advantage to the accused-appellant.

44. The further submission from the side of the appellant is that there was no reason to commit the offence and the accused never intended to cause death of two children. Even, there was no hot talk or quarrel between the accused and informant at the time of incident nor there appears to be any planning. In Awdhesh Kumar v State of UP, 2019 (4) CRIMES 219 (SC), the trial court convicted the appellant for the offence of murder under section 302 IPC as he was attributed the role of causing death by firing. The other co-accused persons were, however, acquitted. The sentence was modified by the High Court to that of an offence under section 304 Part I, IPC holding that it was not a planned crime and there was no prior intention. It took place in the heat of passion on the spur of moment. The incident had taken place when the mother of the informant went to accused side in order to complain about the behaviour of the nephew of the accused on which the accused persons started quarreling and the convicted accused shot fire causing death of the mother. The Supreme Court, referring to an earlier judgment in State of MP v Shivshanker, (2014) 10 SCC 366, quashed the judgment of the High Court and maintained the judgment of the trial court. The Court observed:

".... intention is a matter of inference and when death is a result of intentional firing, intention to cause death is patent unless the case falls under any of the exception..... By the accused firing from a close range, the accused was supposed to know that it is so imminently dangerous that it must, in all probability, cause death or such bodily injury as is likely to cause death."

45. In the case in hand also, the accused fired on informant by a SBBL gun of 12 bore and the fire struck the two children and they died because of injury sustained by the fire. No benefit can be given to the accused-appellant of the fact that he never intended to cause death of two children as he fired on informant and accidentally, the children got injured. Accused fired on the informant. His intention to cause death shall be gathered from the act of firing and eventually, if the fire hit children resulting in their death, it will not make any difference and the intention to kill will be attributed to the accused. Moreover, he fired in front of a shop where other persons including deceased children were present. Therefore, the accused-appellant will be supposed to have knowledge that his act of firing shall result in the death of anybody including deceased children, if it did not hit the informant.

46. In view of above discussion, we find that in this case, FIR has been lodged promptly without any delay. Three eye-witnesses including informant have proved the prosecution case who are of the same locality where the accused lives and where the place of the commission of offence is situated. PW-1 is informant with whom the deceased children were present on the shop. PW-2 and PW-3 are independent witnesses of same locality and the presence of all the three fact witness is quite natural at the time and place of occurrence. There is no contradiction, improvement or discrepancy in their statement with regards to time, date, place and manner of commission of offence by accused. All the three witnesses have stated that in their presence, accused Babadeen fired on informant which hit the deceased children and Rajkumari died instantly within 2 hours by the time she was taken to hospital, whereas, Arjun died after 12 days on the railway station while coming from Gwaliar. The ocular version further finds corroboration from the dying declaration of deceased Arjun. The injury report and postmortem report fully corroborate the time, date and manner of incident and it has been found that both died by gunshot injuries. Motive, alleged has been also proved and absence or inadequacy of motive is of no avail as the prosecution case is based on direct evidence. Thus, the prosecution has succeeded in proving the charge under Section 302 IPC beyond shadow of any doubt. There is no perversity or illegality in the impugned judgment and the sentence awarded is the minimum prescribed under law for the offence of murder. Therefore, this criminal appeal has got no force and is liable to be dismissed.

47. The Criminal Appeal is dismissed.

48. Accused-appellant Babadeen is on bail during appeal, his bail bonds are canceled and sureties are discharged. The accused Babadeen is directed to surrender before the court concerned forthwith from where he shall be sent to jail to undergo the sentence.

49. The office is directed to transmit back the lower court record along with a certified copy of this judgment for information and necessary compliance.

A. Criminal Law-Indian Penal Code-Section 307 - Appeal against conviction.

The testimony of doctor PW-4 becomes relevant. He has testified in his testimony that he medically examined the injured and found signs of injury. There was no blackening, tattooing or scorching present. It means that the weapon of assault was used at some distance from the injured. (Para 21)

As per his testimony, the incident took place, all of a sudden, on account of hot conversation between both the sides, therefore, it cannot be branded to be a well designed crime committed by the accused-appellant. (Para 23)

Nature of injury caused cannot be properly adjudged to the magnitude to cause death nor any suggestion has been made by the doctor witness that injury caused to the injured / informant would, in normal parlance, might have caused death. (Para 24)

Considering the nature of the offence committed and proved, hereby direct that the appellant be sentenced to three years rigorous imprisonment under Section 324 I.P.C. Accordingly, sentence awarded by the trial court is modified to that extent as aforesaid. (Para 28)

Criminal Appeal partly allowed. (E-2)

List of cases cited:-

1.Ved Prakash Vs. St. of Hary. 1996 SCC (Crl.) 1182

(Delivered by Hon'ble Arvind Kumar Mishra-I, J. & Hon'ble Gautam Chowdhary, J.)

1. By way of the instant criminal appeal, challenge has been made to the validity and sustainability of the judgment and order of conviction dated 28.01.1992 passed by the VI-Additional Sessions Judge, Fatehpur, in Sessions Trial No.278 of 1990 State of U.P. Vs. Kalika Singh and another, arising out of Case Crime No.153 of 1989, under Section 307 I.P.C., Police Station-Husainganj, District- Fatehpur whereby the appellant has been sentenced to undergo life imprisonment.

2. Heard Sri Harish Chand Tiwari, learned amicus curiae for the the appellant, Shri Krishna Pahal, learned Additional Advocate General assisted by Sri Bhanu Pratap Singh, Sri Ajay Kumar Singh, Sri Jitendra Kumar and Sri Nafis Ahmed, learned brief holders for the State and perused the record of this appeal.

3. Facts germane as reflected from perusal of the record and particularly from the first information report reveal that the informant Ramanuj son of Ram Singh, resident of village Jamrawan, Police Station Husainganj, District Fatehpur, lodged the written report at Police Station Husainganj, on 16.09.1989 at 9:35 pm to the effect that the informant was sitting at his doors when his grand-father Kalika and his son Anant Maan Singh @ Pappu arrived on the spot and asked him whether he went on the roof whereupon the informant said that he never went on the roof. At this, the assailants were agitated and at the exhortation of Kalika, Pappu opened fire on the informant with intent to kill him which hit him on his skull, thus causing injury. The incident was witnessed by Rajkali, sister-in-law of the the informant, Gomti Devi wife of Ram Singh, mother of the informant and other villagers. The time of the incident was described as 8:00 pm. It was requested that report be lodged and appropriate action be taken. This written report was scribed by Hardev Singh and the same is Ext. Ka-1.

4. Contents of the aforesaid information were taken down in the concerned Check FIR at Case Crime No.153 of 1989 under Section 307 I.P.C., at Police Station Husainpur, District Fatehpur, on 16.09.1989 at 9:35 pm. Check FIR is Ext. Ka-4. On the basis of entries so made in the check F.I.R., a case was registered against the accused-appellant in the relevant G.D. at aforesaid case crime number at Police Station Husainganj under aforesaid section of I.P.C. against accused-appellant.

5. Record reflects that the informant / injured Ramanuj was medically examined at District Hospital Fatehpur by Dr. Harish

Chandra Sachan, PW-4 on 16.09.1989 at 11:20 pm who found the following injury:-

"Multiple lacerated wound with abraded collar size variable from 0.2 to 0.4 cm x 0.2 to 0.3 cm, margins inverted. Blood oozing present on right side of head, neck front of right side of shoulder and right side of upper part of chest in an area of 30 cm x 18 cm. No blackening, tattooing or scorching was present. X-ray was advised.

6. In the opinion of the doctor, injury might have been caused by some firearm. Injury report is Ext. Ka-6.

7. The investigation ensued and the same was entrusted to Israr Ahmad Khan, Investigating Officer PW-3 who after lodging of the first information report took note of the contents of the first information report and the relevant general diary entry and proceeded to the spot and prepared site plan and after recording statement of the witnesses filed charge sheet against the accused-appellant under Section 307 I.P.C. which is Ext. Ka-3.

8. Pursuant thereto, proceedings were committed to the court of Sessions from where it was transferred for conduction of trial and disposal of the case to the aforesaid trial court of VII-Additional Sessions Judge, Fatehpur who in turn heard both the sides on point of charge and was prima-facie satisfied with case against the accused-appellant, accordingly, framed charge under Section 307/34 I.P.C. Charge was read over and explained to the accused-appellant who abjured charge and opted for trial.

9. In furtherance of the proceedings the prosecution produced in all 4 witnesses. A brief sketch of witnesses is ut-infra:-

10. Ramanuj PW-1 is the injured / informant who lodged the first information report. Gomti Devi PW-2 is eyewitness of the occurrence. Israr Ahmad Khan PW-3, the Investigating Officer, has detailed the various steps, he took in completing the investigation and has stated to have submitted charge sheet against the accused-appellant. Dr. Harish Chandra Sachan PW-4 has examined the injured informant. Except as above, no other evidence was adduced by the prosecution.

11. Therefore, evidence for the prosecution was closed. The statement of the accused-appellant was recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. wherein he has claimed his innocence and stated that he has been falsely implicated in this case on account of enmity and the fact that two years prior to the incident, there was no interaction between the informant side and the accused appellant, therefore, false case has been thrusted upon the accused-appellant.

12. No evidence, whatsoever, was adduced by the defence.

13. The case was heard on merit by the learned trial Judge who after appraisal of facts and evaluation of the evidence and circumstances of the case, returned finding of conviction against appellant under Section 307 I.P.C. and sentenced the accused-appellant to undergo life imprisonment vide judgment impugned in the instant appeal.

14. Consequently, this appeal.

15. Learned amicus curiae for the appellant has succinctly submitted that in this case, the very allegations levelled against the accused-appellant are vague and on account of enmity, false case has been cooked up against him. Assuming it to be that any such incident took place even then origin of the incident has been concealed by the informant himself. It so happened that the informant himself was preparing some gun powder which in process got exploded, thus causing injury to him. The cause shown for firing is not sufficient and it is trivial and petty one.

16. It has been further contended that admittedly, there was no prior motive for committing the offence. If any incident like the present one suggested by the informant took place, if assumed to be correct even then the case does not fall within periphery of Section 307 I.P.C., for the reason that 'intent to kill' was missing. In case intent to kill is missing then it being a vital ingredient of Section 307 I.P.C., no conviction can be recorded under Section 307 I.P.C., may be that considering the nature of injury caused to the injured, that too is dubious whether it was caused by use of any gun, pistol etc. or any other means then simplicitor, it is a case of voluntary causing hurt by some weapon. That way, the case of the accused-appellant shall be covered under Section 324 I.P.C. instead of Section 307 I.P.C. The trial court wrongly recorded finding of conviction under Section 307 I.P.C. and imposed harsh punishment on the accused-appellant which is not justified under facts and circumstances of the case.

17. It has been lastly added that the accused-appellant does not bear any criminal antecedent and he promises that he will not repeat the same offence in future. Therefore, his case may be considered leniently.

18. While retorting to the aforesaid submissions, learned A.A.G. has contended that testimony of the injured / informant Ramajun PW-1 is flawless on the point of causing injury on the vital part of his body namely skull, head and chest etc. and injury was found to be scattered in an area of 30 cm x 18 cm. which very much reflects intent to cause injury to the injured, may be weapon and pellets faulted because of its own demerit but intent cannot be minimized as it was one to cause death. Had the pellets not faulted and not scattered, it would have aimed perfectly with precise execution, the result is obvious death. Merely because injury caused to the injured was not found to be grave putting the injured in minimum dangerous position but that alone would not minimize by any stretch of imagination the degree of intent which is as obvious as to cause death. The trial Judge not only took note of testimony of the injured / informant PW-1 but also took note of surrounding facts and prevailing circumstances of the case and rightly convicted the accused-appellant under Section 307 I.P.C. and imposed just sentence upon him.

19. We have also considered the above rival submissions and taken into consideration rival claims. In view of above, the point for determination of this appeal specifically relates to fact whether the prosecution has been able to prove charge under Section 307 I.P.C. beyond reasonable doubt and has sentenced condignly?

20. In this case, as per description contained in the first information report, the incident was allegedly caused around 8:00 pm when the injured / informant was sitting in front of his doors. It was stated that two accused arrived on the spot and started conversation on the spot. It so happened that the accused-appellant opened fire upon the injured / informant which as per injury report Ext. Ka-6 was in the shape of abraded collar size variable from 0.2 to 0.4 cm x 0.2 to 0.3 cm, margins inverted. Blood oozing present on right side of head, neck front of right side of shoulder and right side of upper part of chest in an area of 30 cm x 18 cm. No blackening, tattooing or scorching was seen.

21. In view of the aforesaid injury, testimony of Dr. Harish Chandra Sachan PW-4 becomes relevant. He has testified in his testimony that he medically examined the injured / informant Ramanuj on 16.09.1989 at 11:20 pm and found aforesaid signs of injury. There was no blackening, tattooing or scorching present. It means that the weapon of assault was used at some distance from the injured / informant. However, the doctor has opined that injury might have been caused by use of firearm. He has proved injury report Ext. Ka-6. He was cross-examined wherein he has confirmed to fact that firearm was used from 5-6 paces away from the injured / informant. A suggestion was made that injury might have been caused by fall, however, that was refused by the doctor.

22. In this view of the matter, obviously injury caused to the injured / informant by use of firearm cannot be doubted at this juncture. Now, point relevant for consideration is what was the intent to commit crime in question whether to cause death or not to cause death.

23. We have perused testimony of the injured / informant PW-1 who has categorically stated that there was no previous enmity and no interaction between both the sides. As per his testimony, the incident took place, all of a sudden, on account of hot conversation between both the sides, therefore, it cannot be branded to be a well designed crime committed by the accused-appellant. Consequently, very much possibility to cause injury to the injured-informant by the accused-appellant with intention to commit murder stands ruled out under prevailing facts and circumstances of the case.

24. We have no hesitation in observing that though Dr. Harish Chandra Sachan PW-4 had advised x-ray examination of the injury sustained by the injured / informant, however, no supplementary report in the shape of any x-ray examination has been brought before us. It appears that the same was not produced before the trial court as well. Therefore, nature of injury caused cannot be properly adjudged to the magnitude to cause death nor any suggestion has been made by the doctor witness that injury caused to the injured / informant would, in normal parlance, might have caused death.

25. That way, intention to commit murder is found to be missing which finding recorded by the trial court is on its face not based on any material on record. That way, we after careful consideration of the entirety of the case and primarily considering the nature of the injury caused and the statement of the injured / informant Ramanuj PW-1 and the attendant facts and circumstances of the case, are of the considered opinion that the conviction recorded by the trial Court under Section 307 I.P.C. is not justified and cannot be sustained as such. However, the factum of injury being caused by use of firearm and the nature of injury as described in the medical examination report of the injured / informant, Ext. Ka-6, indicates that the case squarely falls within ambit of Section 324 I.P.C. instead of under Section 307 I.P.C. Consequently, the conviction recorded by the trial court under Section 307 I.P.C. is liable to be altered under Section 324 I.P.C. Accordingly, the conviction recorded under Section 307 I.P.C. is altered and modified to one under Section 324 I.P.C.

26. Insofar as the point of sentencing the accused-appellant under Section 324 I.P.C. is concerned, learned amicus curiae for the appellant has urged that the accused-appellant being a young man and he does not bear criminal history, therefore, his case may be considered leniently and he should be punished with the minimum sentence prescribed under Section 324 I.P.C. and fine alone may be imposed as sentence as that would better serve the ends of justice under facts and circumstances of the case.

27. While opposing the aforesaid plea of leniency on sentencing the accused-appellant, learned A.A.G. has brought to the notice of the Court a decision of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Ved Prakash Vs. State of Haryana 1996 Supreme Court Cases (Crl.) 1182 whereby he has claimed that on the point of sentencing under similar circumstances when the case was found to have been proved under Section 324 I.P.C., Hon'ble Apex Court was of the view that sentence of three years would serve the ends of justice.

28. We upon careful consideration of the entirety of the case and considering the nature of the offence committed and proved, hereby direct that the accused-appellant be sentenced to three years rigorous imprisonment under Section 324 I.P.C. Accordingly, sentence awarded by the trial court is modified to that extent as aforesaid.

29. Consequently, the instant appeal succeeds, partly in aforesaid terms and we order accordingly.

30. In this case, appellant Anant Singh @ Pappu is on bail. His bail bonds and sureties are cancelled. He shall be taken into custody forthwith for serving out his remaining sentence imposed upon him.

31. Let a copy of this order/judgment be certified to the court below for necessary information and follow up action.

A. Criminal Law-Indian Penal Code-Section 302 .— Appeal against conviction.

The prosecution witnesses have very much proved the factum of incident and all the relevant aspects and circumstances have been consistently established within the four corners of the provisions of Section – 300 I.P.C. thus proving the charge for punishment under Section - 302 I.P.C. In the postmortem examination report, two injuries have been found on the skull and combined effect of both these injuries along with others proved fatal to the deceased. (Para 13)

It is specific that these injuries on the body of the deceased have not been challenged specifically by the defense to the ambit and magnitude that the same have not been caused in any such incident as the present one. (Para 14)

The testimony on the point of occurrence of both the aforesaid eye-witnesses P.W.1 and P.W.2 is consistent, truthful and unambiguous. In view of the evidence on record to claim that no one saw the occurrence, is an absolutely misconceived claim and it cannot be sustained on its face. The trial Judge while considering the case on its merit, has recorded just and consistent finding. The same is based on material on record. (Para 15)

Criminal Appeal rejected. (E-2)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Arvind Kumar Mishra-I, J.)

1. Heard Sri Sukhvir Singh, learned Amicus Curiae on behalf of the appellant, Sri Krishna Pahal, learned A.A.G. assisted by Sri Bhanu Prakash Singh, learned Brief Holder for the State.

2. By way of instant criminal appeal, challenge has been made to the authenticity, veracity and sustainability of the judgment and order of conviction dated 30.01.1993 passed by the Sessions Judge, Sonbhadra in Sessions Trial No. 84 of 1990 (State vs. Ram Lakhan alias Kallu Pal) s/o Khedu, r/o Bakahi, Police Station - Robertsganj, District - Sonbhadra, whereby the accused-appellant has been convicted under Section - 302 I.P.C. and sentenced to imprisonment for life.

3. Factual chronology of this case, culminating into lodging of the First Information Report, as discernible from perusal of record, is that a written report (Ex.Ka.1) was lodged at Police Station - Robertsganj on 02.10.1988, at 11.30 a.m. by the informant (P.W.1) Rameshwar Nath Dubey s/o Akshaywar Ram Dubey, r/o Village - Bakahi, Police Station - Roberstsganj, Mirzapur, to the effect that the accused - Ram Lakhan alias Kallu Pal was abusing his (informant's) nephew, Shobhnath alias Nageshmani s/o Satya Narayan at 05.30 a.m. in the morning. The nephew of the informant (Shobhnath) asked him not to hurl abuses. An altercation took place on the spot. It has been described in the F.I.R. that Ram Lakhan alias Kallu Pal was watering his field through pumping set in the night and someone manipulated the flow of water and mis-directed it towards some ditch. Ram Lakhan alias Kallu Pal, the accused, was apprehensive that this mischief has been done by Shobhnath (the deceased). Therefore, on account of aforesaid altercation, the dispute increased to some extent, whereupon accused Ram Lakhan alias Kallu Pal took 'khanti' (a tool for digging mud) from his house and tried to assault Shobhnath (deceased), whereupon co-villagers Babu Lal, Banshdhari, Hari Nath, Yadunath, Badrinath and the informant arrived on the spot. They snatched away the 'khanti' from the hand of the accused and the matter was patched up for the time being. After some time, when Shobhnath alias Nageshmani was going to the field for grazing his buffaloes, at around 6.15 a.m. in the morning, the accused - Ram Lakhan alias Kallu Pal possessing 'lathi' (wooden stick) in his hand, appeared outside the village all of a sudden and caused 'lathi' blows on him, thus causing grievous injuries. The aforesaid persons rushed to his rescue, but by that time, the accused had made his escape good. The saviours tried to apprehend the accused, but they did not succeed. It has been further described that the incident was witnessed by a number of villagers. The injured was taken to the District Hospital, Kakrahi, where the doctor, after giving first aid treatment and considering the condition of the injured Shobhnath serious, referred the matter to B.H.U., Varanasi. The injured was taken to the Government Hospital, Robertsganj, where Shobhnath alias Nageshmani succumbed to his injuries. The dead body of Shobhnath alias Nageshmani was lying in the hospital when the informant Rameshwar Nath Dubey went to lodge the report at the police station. This report was taken down in the Check F.I.R. concerned (Ex.Ka.4) and relevant entries were made in the relevant G.D. of the aforesaid date and time on 02.10.1988 at 11.30 a.m. at Police Station - Robertsganj and a case was registered against the accused at Case Crime No. 537 of 1988, under Section - 304 I.P.C. The investigation of the case ensued and it was entrusted to Hridayanand Mishra (P.W.5), who proceeded to the spot after noting the contents of the F.I.R. and the relevant G.D.; recorded statement of various persons and prepared Inquest Report (panchayatnama) at Government Hospital, Robertsganj and which is marked as Ex.Ka.2. He also prepared relevant documents, while preparing the inquest report and has proved the same as Ex.Ka.6, Ex.Ka.7, Ex.Ka.8, Ex.Ka.9, Ex.Ka.10 and Ex.Ka.11. Besides, he also recorded statement of informant - Rameshwar Nath Dubey at the hospital itself and the statement of the inquest witnesses. Thereafter, he arrived on the spot and prepared the site-plan of the occurrence (Ex.Ka.12). He also collected simple earth and blood stained earth from the spot and kept it in two separate containers and prepared a memo of the same (Ex.Ka-13). Subsequently, the weapon of assault 'lathi' was also recovered at the pointing out of the accused Ram Lakhan alias Kallu Pal. A recovery memo (Ex.Ka.14) was also prepared.

4. After completing the investigation, charge-sheet (Ex.Ka.15) was filed under Section 304 of I.P.C.

5. Pursuant thereto, the committal proceeding took place and the case was committed to the Court of Sessions, where it was registered as Sessions Trial No. 84 of 1990 (State vs. Ram Lakhan alias Kallu Pal). From there, it was made over for trial and disposal to the court of Sessions Judge, Sonbhadra. Accused was heard on point of charge and the trial court was prima facie satisfied with the case against the accused, therefore, it framed charge against the accused - Ram Lakhan alias Kallu Pal, under Section 302 of IPC. Charge was read over and explained to the accused in hindi, who pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried.

6. The prosecution, in order to prove guilt of the accused and substantiate charge against him, produced in all seven witnesses, brief sketch of the same is ut infra :-

Rameshwar Nath Dubey (P.W.1), the informant and Hari Nath Dubey (P.W.2) both claim themselves to be the eye-witnesses of the fact of occurrence. Dr. J.S. Gogia (P.W.3) has conducted postmortem examination on the dead body of the deceased on 2.10.1988 at 4.30 p.m. and he has noted seven ante-mortem injuries at the time of the postmortem examination, which injuries are detailed as herein below :-

(1) Lacerated wound 5 cm x 1 cm x bone deep on right side of scalp 10 cm from right ear.

(2) Contusion 5 cm x 3 cm on the left side of scalp 8 cm from left ear.

(3) Contusion 9 cm x 1½ cm on left thigh 10 cm below hip joint.

(4) Contusion 8 cm x 1 cm on left thigh 2 cm below injury no.3.

(6) Contusion 10 cm x 2 cm on left thigh 2 cm below injury no.5.

Opinion :- In the opinion of the doctor, the cause of death was due to shock and haemorrhage as a result of the ante mortem injuries.

7. Head Moharrir - Shitla Prasad (P.W.4) has proved entry being made in the Check F.I.R. concerned (Ex. Ka-4) on the basis of the written report (Ex.Ka.1) and relevant G.D. entry (Ex.Ka.5), whereby the case was registered against the accused at Case Crime No. 537 of 1988, under Section - 304 I.P.C. Hridaya Nand Mishra (P.W.5) is the Investigating Officer. He conducted investigation and filed the charge-sheet (Ex.Ka.15). Dr. S.C. Rai (P.W.6) is the person before whom the deceased was brought in injured position, while he was alive and he has proved fact that considering the condition of the injured to be serious, he referred him immediately to the District Hospital or B.H.U. for treatment. He also proved fact that he informed the S.H.O. concerned in writing regarding the condition of the injured, which fact has been proved as Ex.Ka.17. Constable 228 Shiv Nath Yadav is P.W.7.

8. Except as above, no other testimony was adduced, therefore, evidence for the prosecution was closed and statement of the accused was recorded under Section - 313 Cr.P.C., wherein the charge was denied and it was claimed that the informant has acted in collusion with the Investigating Officer and the case has been registered on account of enmity.

9. The defence did not lead any evidence, whatsoever.

10. The learned trial judge after hearing both the sides and considering the evidence on record found the charge proved, thus convicting the accused-appellant under Section - 302 I.P.C. and sentenced him to imprisonment for life.

11. Resultantly, this appeal.

12. It has been vigorously claimed by Sri Sukhvir Singh, learned Amicus Curiae on behalf of accused-appellant that the incident in question cannot be said to have been the outcome of any pre-meditation. The fact is that the first information report is ante-timed. In fact, no one saw the occurrence. As per testimony, the prosecution witnesses arrived on the spot only after hearing the noise. That very much shows and establishes fact that they did not witness the occurrence.

13. Sri Krishna Pahal, learned A.A.G. assisted by Sri Bhanu Prakash Singh, learned Brief Holder for the State, have retorted to the aforesaid argument and have submitted that the prosecution witnesses have very much proved the factum of incident and all the relevant aspects and circumstances have been consistently established within the four corners of the provisions of Section - 300 I.P.C. thus proving the charge for punishment under Section - 302 I.P.C. In the postmortem examination report, two injuries have been found on the skull and combined effect of both these injuries along with others proved fatal to the deceased.

14. We have considered the rival submissions and also considered the facts and evidence on record. Obviously, as per the first information report, the incident took place around 06.15 a.m. on 02.10.1988 and prior to this, some altercation/dispute had occurred at 05.30 a.m., the same morning, when the dispute was initially reconciled by the interference of the informant and co-villagers, but the crime was committed by the accused after that at a time when the matter was pacified and the deceased Shobhnath alias Nageshmani was proceeding along with his buffaloes for grazing them on the field, when the accused possessing 'lathi' suddenly appeared on the scene and dealt several 'lathi' blows on him, which blows resulted in seven injuries being caused to him (the deceased). It is specific that these injuries on the body of the deceased have not been challenged specifically by the defense to the ambit and magnitude that the same have not been caused in any such incident as the present one. Obviously, the incident took place around 6.15 a.m. and the injured was taken to the hospital, where he was examined by Dr. S.C. Rai (P.W.6), who without making a note of the injuries and considering the condition of the victim to be serious, immediately referred the injured to District Hospital or the B.H.U. for treatment. Besides, he also informed the S.H.O. concerned about the condition of the victim. It so happened that the victim, while being taken to the hospital, succumbed to his injuries, whereupon a report was written and lodged at the Police Station – Robertsganj.

15. Contention is that the incident was result of provocation on the spot, but nothing of the sort finds the support from the prevailing facts and circumstances of the case, in the light of the development of the incident which took place at 5.30 a.m. and subsequently, at 6.15 a.m. on 02.10.1988. The testimony of the informant regarding the occurrence is straight and unambiguous. Rameshwar Nath Dubey (P.W.1) has been examined as an eye-witness. He has detailed the various aspects of entire incident that took place on 02.10.1988. He has specifically stated that some altercation took place with the deceased and the accused, prior to the incident (at 5.30 a.m.) and the matter was pacified by the interference of others and himself and the accused left the scene. But the incident occurred at a time when the nephew of the informant - the victim- proceeded with his buffaloes for grazing them on the field, when on way the accused appeared on the scene all of a sudden possessing 'lathi' in his hand and dealt a number of lathi blows on the victim, due to which, he fell down. The incident was witnessed, apart from P.W.1, by others including the another eye-witness - Harinath Dubey (P.W.2). They retrieved the situation and took the victim to the hospital before the doctor (P.W.6), who referred the matter for further treatment to District Hospital/B.H.U. The testimony on the point of occurrence of both the aforesaid eye-witnesses P.W.1 and P.W.2 is consistent, truthful and unambiguous. No suggestion, whatsoever, has come forth, which may cast any shadow of doubt on the veracity of these two eye-witnesses. These two eye-witnesses have given a detailed account of the occurrence and they are worthy of credit. Their position on the spot is found to be natural. The postmortem examination report also tallies with the ocular version that several 'lathi' blows were given by the accused to the victim. Upon careful perusal, we found seven ante-mortem injuries to have been noted by Dr. J.S. Gogia (P.W.3) in the postmortem examination and has proved these ante-mortem injuries, due to which the accused died on account of shock and haemorrhage. In view of the evidence on record to claim that no one saw the occurrence, is an absolutely misconceived claim and it cannot be sustained on its face. The trial Judge while considering the case on its merit, has recorded just and consistent finding. The same is based on material on record.

16. Consequently, the conviction recorded under Section - 302 I.P.C. and the sentence imposed on the accused is justified. We hereby affirm the conviction and sentence imposed upon the accused as no good ground is made out for interference.

17. Consequently, this appeal sans merit and the same is hereby dismissed.

18. The appellant is on bail. He be taken into custody forthwith to serve out the remaining part of the sentence imposed on him by the trial court. His personal bonds and bail bonds are cancelled and sureties stand discharged.

19. Let a copy of this judgment/order be certified to the court concerned for necessary information and follow up action. The lower court record be remitted to the lower court concerned.

Counsel for the Opposite Party:

A. Criminal Law-Indian Penal Code-Section 302 I.P.C. read with Section 34 - Appeal against conviction.

In cross-examination nothing has been extracted by the defence from this witness also so that his testimony can be doubted regarding firing of shots by accused persons at the deceased. In view of the above discussion, contention of the appellant has no force that presence of P.W.1 and P.W.2 is doubtful. (Para 34)

Informant has specifically stated that a day before the incident in the evening the accused persons had dismantled his medh regarding which an altercation took place with his son. No question regarding dismantling of informant's medh by accused persons has been put by defence as such the statement of P.W.1 is uncontroverted, therefore we have no reason to disbelieve his testimony regarding dismantling of his medh. (Para 48)

If the Investigating Officer did not inspect the dismantled medh it is a fault on the part of the Investigating Officer which is trivial in nature which will not affect the prosecution case. (Para 48)

Therefore, on a conspectus of the facts and circumstances of the case and close scrutiny of evidences available on record as discussed above we find that prompt FIR naming the appellants has been lodged, informant are witnesses of the incident and their testimony is trustworthy and reliable. Ocular version is supported by medical evidence. (Para 51)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ali Zamin, J.)

1. Heard Sri Kamal Krishna, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Ghan Shyam Das and Sri Sanjeev Kumar Yadav, learned counsel for the appellants and Sri Ajeet Ray, learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. This appeal has been preferred against the judgement and order dated 31.01.2001 passed in Session Trial No.481/90, arising out of Case Crime No.242 of 1990 by which learned Additional Sessions Judge, IVth (Room No.4), Allahabad, convicting the appellants, under Section 302 I.P.C. read with Section 34 I.P.C. has sentenced them to life imprisonment.

3. According to prosecution version Ram Harsh had dismantled the Medh of the informant Jagannath in the evening a day before the incident on 08.10.1990 and his son Santosh Kumar had stayed on the filed to mend the Medh when Ram Harsh his son Jagannath and Nanka @ Ram Swaroop had an altercation with his son. On that day his son came to his house and on 08.10.1990 at 6:00 a.m. in the morning when his son Santosh Kumar had gone towards west side of the village to respond the call of nature, Jagannath having licensee gun of his father, Nanka @ Ram Swaroop and Jagatpal son of Ram Padarath Patel having country-made pistol of 315 bore went to his son and surrounding him, fired shot at him due to the incident of the previous day on account of which he died on the spot. The incident has been witnessed by Babu Lal son of Ram Bharosh Patel, Ram Jatan son of Ram Garib Patel, Ram Newaj son of Mahajan Patel, resident of Kashimpur Juda @ Moosepur, Police Station Nawabganj, District Allahabad.

4. Informant Jagannath got scribed the report (Ext.Ka-1) of the incident from Durga Prasad and lodged report to the police station Nawabganj. On the basis of written report Ext.Ka-1. Chik F.I.R. Ext.Ka-12 under Section 302 I.P.C. was registered on 08.10.1990 at 7:45 and investigation of the case was entrusted to S.H.O., A.S. Yadav, who reached the spot and prepared inquest memo (Ext.Ka-2) as well as challan lash (Ext.Ka-3), letter to R.I. (Ext.Ka-4), letter to C.M.O. (Ext.Ka-5), specimen seal (Ext.Ka-6), photo lash (Ext.Ka-7) and dispatched the dead body for post-mortem.

5. Dr. N.P. Singh (P.W.4) conducted autopsy on the dead body and prepared report (Ext.Ka-11). According to the post-mortem following injuries were found on the dead body :-

1. Fire arm wound of entry middle of the nose 1 x 1 c.m.

2. Fire arm wound of entry left side of neck 1 x 1 c.m., 2 c.m. below the middle of mandible.

3. Fire arm wound of entry 1 x 1 c.m. left side of scapula clavicle.

4. Fire arm wound of entry 1 x 1 c.m. left arm 2 c.m. below the left acromion process size 1 c.m. x 1 c.m.

5. Fire arm wound of entry 1 x 1 c.m. on left side chest wall, 2 c.m. medial to the left nipple blackening present.

6. Fire arm injury 1 x 1 c.m. on the right side chest wall, 5 c.m. below right nipple 1 x 1 c.m.

7. Fire arm wound of exit 2 c.m. x 2 c.m. over left scapular region 1 c.m. medial to the medial both of scapula.

8. Fire arm wound of exit 2 c.m. x 2 c.m. in middle of biter scapular region of the upper part.

Four medium size pellets recovered from thoracic cavity.

Cause of death was found shock due to excess bleeding and death occurred 12 hours earlier due to the ante-mortem injuries caused.

6. Investigating Officer also prepared spot map Ext.Ka-9, taking into possession two empty cartridges 12 bore from the spot, plain earth as well as blood stained earth from the field of Pandit Budh Narayan prepared recovery memo Ext.Ka-8. After completing the investigation, he submitted charge sheet (Ext.Ka-10), under Sections 302 I.P.C. against the accused-appellants before the court of C.J.M.

7. Learned C.J.M., Allahabad committed accused to the court of session for trial where Case Crime No.342 of 1990, under Section 302 I.P.C. was registered as Session Trial No.481 of 1990, wherefrom the case was transferred to the court of Second Additional Session Judge, Allahabad, who framed charge under Section 302 I.P.C. read with Section 34 I.P.C. against the accused persons, who denied the charge and claimed trial.

8. Prosecution to prove charge against the accused persons produced five witnesses. P.W.1 Jagannath is informant, P.W.2 Babu Lal is a witness of fact, P.W.3 Anwar Singh Yadav Investigating Officer of the case, P.W.4 Dr. N.P. Singh conducted post-mortem and P.W.5 Indra Bahadur Singh scribed the F.I.R. (Ext.Ka-13) and G.D. (Ext.Ka14), are the formal witnesses. After examination of prosecution witnesses, statement of the accused persons were recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. in which accused Jagdish Pal has stated that due to enmity the case proceeded against him and accused Jagannath and Nanka have stated that the family of the informant had forcefully taken possession of Gram Sabha land; their father Ram Harsh was pradhan, who had filed case against him. The deceased was a man of criminal antecedent. The incident occurred at another place and they have been falsely implicated in the present case. The accused persons led no evidence in their defence.

9. After hearing the parties and perusal of the record, learned Additional Sessions Judge, IVth (Room No.4), Allahabad passed the impugned judgement and order, hence this appeal.

10. Learned counsel for the appellants submits that salient features; like, informant Jagannath has seen the incident, deceased he had gone to answer call of nature; the incident took place in the field of Budh Narayan; 5-6 shots were fired upon the deceased, who told him about the incident, are absent. Per contra learned AGA submits that FIR is not an encyclopaedia and every detail is not necessary to be mentioned in the FIR.

11. In Arumugam Solathirayar vs. Ponnalagu Pandarar and others, 1957 SCC online Madras 172, Hon'ble High Court has held that the fact that in the F.I.R, the name of one accused is not mentioned or the names of some witnesses are not mentioned is no ground for disbelieving the prosecution story and acquitting the accused whose names are mentioned in the F.I.R. and disbelieving the witnesses whose names are mentioned in the F.I.R. The F.I.R is not an encyclopedia. It is not the beginning and end of every case, it is only a complaint to set the law into motion. It is only at the investigation stage that all the details can be gathered and filled up.

12. In Ramji Singh and others vs. State of U.P. 2019 SCC online SC Hon'ble Supreme Court 1597, Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that an F.I.R is not supposed to be an encyclopedia detailing all facts in extenso.

13. On consideration of the law laid down by the Madras High Court and Hon'ble Supreme Court, we are of the view that the contention of the learned counsel for the appellants that salient features like, informant Jagannath has seen the incident, deceased had gone to answer call of nature, incident took place in the field of Budh Narayan, 5-6 shots were fired upon the deceased and the question as to who told him about the incident are absent in the F.I.R. is without force.

14. Learned counsel further submits that there is sharp contradiction in the statement of P.W.1 Jagannath informant and P.W.2 Babu Lal. P.W.1 Jagannath states that the incident has taken place in the field of Budh Narayan whereas Babu Lal states that the incident has taken place in the field of Radhey Shyam. It is not the case of prosecution that the deceased Santosh after receiving injuries in the field of Budh Narayan ran towards the field of Radhey Shyam. Evidence of P.W.1, on page 22 in the third paragraph of paper-book is that after receiving the injuries he fell down in the field of Budh Narayan. He also submits that in order to establish the place of occurrence bloodstained and plain earth is always taken into possession by the Investigating Officer and are then sent to the serologist but in the present case the Investigating Officer PW-3 Anwar Singh Yadav admitted on page 32 of the paper-book that he has not sent the bloodstained and plain earth to the serologist. A perusal of the site plan would show that it does not contain recital to the effect that any blood was found at the place of occurrence and on this ground, he submits that the place of occurrence is not proved. In support of his contention he has relied on the judgements of Syed Ibrahim vs. State of A.P., (2006) 10 SCC 601 and Gautam Chaturvedi vs. State of U.P., 2019 SCC Online All 4307.

15. Per contra learned AGA submits that from the prosecution evidence it is proved that the place of incident is the field of Budh Narayan. Investigating Officer took bloodstained and plain earth from the field of Budh Narayan which is established from its recovery memo Ext.Ka-8 proved by him. Although Investigating Officer has committed a lapse in not sending the bloodstained and plain earth to the serologist and he also did not mention in the site plan wherefrom the bloodstained and plain earth were taken but on the basis of these lapses on the part of Investigating Officer the prosecution case cannot be thrown out as held by Hob'ble Supreme Court in State of Karnatka v. Suvarnamma and another, (2015) 1 SCC 323.

16. P.W.1 Jagannath has stated that his son was going to answer the call of nature and when he reached the field of Budh Narayan, the accused Jagannath having licensee gun of his father, Jagatpal and Nanka @ Ram Swaroop having country-made pistol came and surrounding his son killed by firing 5-6 shots at him. From his cross-examination by defence nothing has been extracted, so that, any adverse inference may be drawn that the incident did not occur in the field of Budh Narayan. P.W.2 Babu Lal has also stated that Santosh Kumar son of Jagannath was murdered on 08.10.1990. It was 6:00 a.m. of the morning, he was returning after answering the call of nature, when he saw that the accused persons killed Santosh Kumar in the field of Budh Narayan. In the hand of Jagannath there was a gun and in the hand of Nanka and Jagannath country-made pistol and all the three accused fired shots from their arms. At page 28 of the paper book, in cross-examination this witness has stated that towards south west is that field of Radhey Shyam where murder took place. On the basis of this very statement learned counsel for the appellants has emphasized that the statements of P.W.1 Jagannath and P.W.2 Babu Lal are contradictory to each other but in our opinion the above statement of P.W.2 Babu Lal does not connote that the incident took place in the field of Radhey Shyam. It appears that the question was tactfully put to the witness in such a manner, so that, such inference can be drawn from the reply of the witness. The question might have been put to the witness whether there is field of Radhey Shyam in the south west of the village where murder took place and witness then replied as mentioned above. P.W.1 Anwar Singh Yadav, Investigating Officer has proved the spot map as Ext.Ka-9 in which it is mentioned that "A' is the place where murder took place and this is shown as field of Budh Narayan. In cross-examination the Investigating Officer has firmly stated that the murder took place in the field of Budh Narayan and this field will be towards west of the village. Thus we find that there is consistency in the prosecution evidence of P.W.1 Jagnnath, P.W.2 Babu Lal and Investigating Officer P.W.3 Anwar Singh Yadav regarding the place of incident to be field of Budh Narayan.

17. It is true that in spot map Ext.Ka-9, the Investigating Officer has not mentioned the place from where he took bloodstained and plain earth but in view of the consistent prosecution evidence as discussed above regarding place of incident to be field of Budh Narayan and recovery memo Ext.Ka-2 of bloodstained and plain earth as well as two empty cartridges proved by him, in which it is clearly mentioned that the bloodstained and plain earth were taken into possession from the place of incident (field of Pandit Budh Narayan).

18. In State of Karnataka vs. Suvarnamma and another supra referred by learned AGA, Hon'ble Supreme Court has considered its own opinion in para 12.5 of the judgement held in State of UP vs. M.K. Anthony (1985) 1 SCC 505 that minor discrepancies on trivial matters not touching the core of the case, hyper technical approach by taking sentences torn out of context here or there from the evidence, attaching importance to some technical error committed by the Investigating Officer not going to the root of matter would not ordinarily permit rejection of the evidence.

19. The Investigating Officer has admitted in cross examination that he did not send bloodstained and plain earth to the expert. He also did not mention in the site plan the place from where he took the bloodstained and plain earth which are lapses on the part of the Investigating Officer. However, since in aforesaid discussion we have found that regarding place of incident (field of Budh Narayan) prosecution evidence is consistent, therefore the above lapses committed by the Investigating Officer are in the category of minor discrepancies, which do not go to the root of the matter. In view of consistency in prosecution evidence in the instant case and keeping in mind the opinion of Hon'ble Supreme Court in State of UP vs. M.K. Anthony considered in State of Karnataka vs. Suvarnamma and another supra, the above lapses committed by investigating officer will not affect the prosecution case.

20. In the case of Syed Ibrahim vs. State of A.P. (supra), referred by learned counsel for the appellants, P.W.1 had indicated four different places to be the place of occurrence. The Hon'ble Supreme Court held that when the place of occurrence itself has not been established, it would not be proper to accept the prosecution version.

21. In Gautam Chaturvedi vs. State of U.P. (supra), as per F.I.R. the incident occurred when P.W.1, his nephew P.W.4 Amit Gupta and the deceased were talking amongst themselves standing in the lane outside their house, and the deceased parted company to leave for some place where he had to go. He had reached a point in front of the house of Rajendra, bearing premises no.2/32, where the appellant arrived in an inebriated condition and after a sharp exchange of words between appellant and the deceased, the appellant stabbed him in the witnesses' presence but in his dock evidence, he stated that the appellant arrived at the entrance to the deceased's home, premises no.2/123, where after some exchange of words, the appellant stabbed the deceased. Therefore, it was held that prosecution has not been able to formally establish the place of occurrence.

22. In the instant case, prosecution evidence is consistent with regard to place of incident, the field of Budh Narayan, while in the referred cases, place of incident was not consistent. Therefore, on the basis of the referred cases, no benefit can be given to the appellants.

23. In view of the above discussion, from the evidences on record as discussed above place of incident is proved to be the field of Budh Narayan, accordingly, there is no substance in the contention of the learned counsel for the appellants that statement of P.W.1 Jagannath and P.W.2 Babu Lal are contradictory to each other that there is no mention of taking bloodstained and plain earth in the site plan and that Investigating Officer did not send the bloodstained and plain earth to serologist, therefore place of incident is not proved.

24. As per P.W.4 Dr. N.P. Singh and post-mortem report Ext.Ka-11 proved by him blackening in injury nos.1, 2 and 5 have been found and according to P.W.3 Anwar Singh Yadav as well as spot map Ext.ka-9 proved by him the deceased had received injuries on point A and the accused had fired from point B. Distance between A and B is 10 feet therefore learned counsel for the appellants submits that if the injuries were caused from a distance of 10 feet then blackening in the injuries would not occur.

25. In Ramji Singh and others vs. State of U.P. 2019 SCC Online SC 1597, Hon'ble Supreme Court has held in para 17 of the judgment that a site plan only gives a general idea and is not a true scale map. In para 17 of the judgment it has been also held that it would not be possible for any witness to exactly state who was at which place.

26. In the instant case the witnesses have not stated from which place the accused persons fired shots upon the deceased. In view of the statement of witnesses in the instant case that all the accused persons fired upon the deceased by their fire arms, as well as opinion of Hon'ble Supreme Court held in Ramji Singh and others vs. State of U.P. (supra) on the basis of distance mentioned of the deceased and accused in the site plan and blackening found in the injuries no. 1, 2 and 5 to the deceased the prosecution case cannot be doubted. Accordingly we find no substance in the contention of the learned counsel of appellants.

27. Learned counsel for the appellants also submits that according to post mortem report injuries of same dimension 1 cm x 1 cm have been found, therefore, it cannot be conceived that all the three assailants had a weapon of the same bore. Per contra learned AGA submits that according to prosecution a gun and two countrymade pistols were used in the incident and as per recovery memo Ext.Ka-8 two empty cartridges of 12 bore were taken into possession and cartridge of 12 bore can be used in country made pistol as well as gun both.

28. According to the written report Ext.Ka-1 Jagnnath having licensee gun of his father, Nanka alias Ramswaroop and Jagatpal other accused having country made pistol of 315 bore went to the deceased and shot him. P.W.1 Jagnnath as well as P.W.2 Babu Lal has stated that Jagnnath had a gun, Nanka and Jagat Pal had Tammancha in their hand and they fired bullets from their arm. In cross-examination no question has been put by defence on this point, therefore, statement of both witnesses in this regard is uncontroverted, hence we have no reason to disbelieve the prosecution version regarding use of aforesaid arms in the incident by the accused persons. As per recovery memo Ext.Ka-8 two empty cartridges of 12 bores were recovered from the place of incident. As per 24th Edition Reprint 2012 page 535 of Modi Medical Jurisprudence and Toxicology improvised or country made firearms made out of steel tubes are crude, mostly smooth, 12 bored unlicensed weapons which are often made by criminals in India. In guns as well as country made pistols, 12 bore cartridges are used. Although in the written report it has been mentioned that Jagatpal had country made pistol of 315 bore which may be a wrong identikit on the basis of assumption only which cannot affect the prosecution case, since it is the consistent prosecution case that a gun and two countrymade pistols were used in the incident, 12 bore empty cartridges were also recovered from the spot and 12 bore cartridges can be used by countrymade pistol and gun both, therefore, injury of same dimension is possible. In view of the above, contention of the learned counsel for the appellant is misconceived that injuries of same dimensions have been found therefore it cannot be conceived that all the assailants had a weapon of same bore.

29. Next submission of learned counsel for the appellants is that as per evidence adduced during trial the deceased was surrounded by assailants and shots were fired upon him. Post-mortem report shows that most of the injuries are on the left of the deceased which are not possible if the incident was caused surrounding the deceased, therefore presence of P.W.1 Jagnnath and P.W.2 Babu Lal at the place of occurrence is doubtful. Per contra learned AGA submits that surrounding doesn't mean that deceased was encircled and shots were fired from all sides.

30. In Ext.Ka-1 it is mentioned that accused persons shot the deceased surrounded the deceased and shot him. P.W.1 Jagnnath has also deposed that the accused had surrounded the deceased and shot him. As per post mortem report Ext.Ka-11 on the person of the deceased eight injuries in total were found among which injury no. 7 and 8 are exit injuries. Injury no. 1 is on the middle of nose; injuries no. 2, 3, 4, 5 are towards left side of neck, scapula, acromion process and chest wall respectively. It appears that injury no. 7 is the corresponding injury of injury no. 5 as injury no. 5 is on the left side chest wall 2 cm medial to left nipple which have been caused from the front side that is why injury no. 7 is the exit wound over left scapular region. In the spot map Ext.Ka-9 the location of accused persons at the time of incident has not been disclosed. In cross-examination also in this regard no question has been put to P.W.1 Jagnnath and P.W.2 Babu Lal by the defence. As per prosecution version the incident was caused at the time of the deceased going to answer the call of nature. In such a situation it is possible that while the deceased was going, the accused persons coming in front of the deceased fired upon him. In the circumstance and evidence available on record it cannot be gathered that the incident was caused by the accused persons encircling the deceased. In view of the above, in the present case surrounding does not connote that incident was caused by the accused persons encircling the deceased and thereafter fired shots upon him. Accordingly we find no force in the contention of the learned counsel of the appellant that presence of P.W.1 Jagnnath and P.W.2 Babu Lal at the place of occurrence is doubtful.

31. Learned counsel for the appellant on the basis of statement of P.W.1 Jagnnath at page 18 of the paper book that he is not able to remember whether the police personnel prepared the inquest memo at the mortuary or not and obtained signature of panches or not, submits that presence of the witness at the time of occurrence is doubtful. Per contra learned AGA submits that the contention of the learned counsel for the appellant is based on picking sentences made by the witness in his favour. Subsequent to the statement he has firmly stated that inquest was conducted where incident took place, therefore, presence of the witness at the time of occurrence is established.

32. P.W.1 Jagnnath at page 18 of the paper book has stated that he is not able to remember whether police personnel prepared the inquest memo at the mortuary or not, but in his further cross examination, he has stated firmly on the same page that the inquest memo was prepared at 11:00 AM on the spot by the Daroga. He has also stated that he had reached the Police Station at quarter to 8:00 AM. The Daroga arrived at 10:00 AM on the spot. He saw the dead body, took into possession the empty cartridges found on the spot. He also took blood stained shirt in his possession, thereafter prepared inquest memo and directed the police for taking the dead body to the medical college, thereafter the Investigating Officer went away. In view of aforesaid vivid statement of witness Jagnnath on the basis of his statement that he is not remembering whether police personnel prepared inquest at mostuary or not and obtained signature of panches or not which too has been recorded after a lapse of near about eight years from the date of incident, presence of witness cannot be doubled. Accordingly, we find no substance in the contentions of learned counsel for the appellant, that P.W.1 Jagnnath is unable to tell as to where the Panchayatnama of the deceased was conducted, therefore presence of the witness at the time of occurrence is doubtful.

33. P.W.1 Jagnnath has stated that 5-6 shots were fired and as per recovery memo Ext.Ka-8 two empty cartridges were taken into possession by the police, therefore submission of learned counsel for the appellants is that the presence of P.W.1 Jagnnath and P.W.2 Babulal is doubtful. Per contra learned AGA submits that P.W.1 Jagnnath and P.W.2 Babu Lal are the eye-witnesses of the incident and their credibility is could not be shaken from the cross-examination, therefore, on the basis of recovery of two empty cartridges their presence cannot be doubted.

34. In the written report Ext.Ka-1 it is not mentioned as to how many shots were fired but as discussed above FIR is not an encyclopaedia, therefore, not mentioning fire shots in the written report will not affect the prosecution case. P.W.1 Jagannath has stated that accused persons killed his son by firing 5-6 shots and defence has not put any question to his witness regarding firing of shots as such the evidence of P.W.1 Jagnnath is uncontroverted, therefore, we have no reason to disbelieve the witness. As such the presence of witness Jagnnath on the basis of his statement that 5-6 shots were fired and only two cartridges were recovered from the spot cannot be doubted, particularly when according to post-mortem report Ext.Ka-11 proved by Dr. N.P. Singh injuries were found to be caused by firearm and cause of death was found shock due to excessive bleeding on account of ante-mortem injuries. P.W.2 Babulal has also stated that while returning agter answering the call of nature he saw in the field of Budh Narayan accused Jagnnath having gun in his hand, Nanka and Jagatpal country-made pistol in their hand. All the accused persons fired from their arms. In cross-examination nothing has been extracted by the defence from this witness also so that his testimony can be doubted regarding firing of shots by accused persons at the deceased. In view of the above discussion, contention of the appellant has no force that presence of P.W.1 Jagnnath and P.W.2 Babu Lal is doubtful.

35. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that P.W.2 Babu Lal has stated on page 26 in his deposition that P.W.1 Jagnnath was working in the city of Allahabad as a gardener and the P.W.1 Jagnnath used to leave the village at about 6:00 AM and reach Allahabad at about 8:00 AM, distance between the city of Allahabad and village of the P.W.1 Jagnnath is about 12 miles. P.W.1 Jagnnath has stated on page 18 in his deposition that he saw the body of the deceased on 08.10.1990 at about 1:00 PM in the Medical College, Allahabad. In the backdrop of evidence of P.W.2 Babu Lal, the evidence of P.W.1 Jagnnath assume simportance and makes the presence of P.W.1 Jagnnath doubtful at the time of occurrence. Per contra learned AGA submits that prompt FIR had been lodged. He has supported the prosecution case and from cross-examination his presence is not impeached.

36. P.W.2 Babu Lal at page 26 of the paper-book has stated that at the time of incident his brother Jagannath was working in Allahabad as a gardener. He used to go and come by cycle from his village. He used to go at about 6:00 a.m. from the house and reach Allahabad at about 8:00 a.m. Distance of Allahabad from his village is 12 miles. P.W.1 Jagnnath on page 18 of the paper-book has stated that he saw the dead body of Santosh in the medical college on the day of murder i.e. on 08.10.1990 at 1.00 PM in the day. He has also stated that apart from him, the incident was witnessed by Babulal, Ram Jatan and others. He has stated that scribing the report from Durga Prasad he gave it at the police station which has been proved by him as Ext.Ka-1. In cross-examination he has also stated that he reached the police station at quarter to 8 a.m. and the Daroga reached the place of incident at 10:00 a.m. and at page 20 in cross-examination he has stated that near about after two hours of the murder he reached the police station. From a lengthy cross-examination nothing has been extracted by the defence so that an adverse inference can be drawn that P.W.1 Jagannath did not get scribe the report Ext.Ka-1 from Durga Prasad and did not go to police station on 08.10.1990 along with written report at 7:45 a.m. P.W.5 Indra Bahadur Singh scribe of the F.I.R and G.D. has also stated that on 08.10.1990 he was posted as Moharrir at police station Nawabganj and on the basis of Ext.Ka-1, he had prepared chick F.I.R of Crime No.342 of 1990 in his writing and signature which has been proved by him as Ext.Ka-12 and its reference was made in the G.D. No.9 dated 08.10.1990 at about 07:45 a.m. in his writing and signature, which has been proved by him as Ext.Ka-13. In cross-examination he has also stated that by giving copy of the chick F.I.R informant was sent back, entry of which is made in the G.D.

37. In Ext.Ka-12 chick F.I.R the date and time of the report has been mentioned as 08.10.1990 at 07:45 a.m. P.W.3 Investigating Officer Anwar Singh Yadav also has stated that the case crime no.342 of 1990 under Section 302 IPC was registered in his presence and in cross-examination he has stated that he moved from the police station for the spot at 07:45 a.m.

38. Thus, evidence of P.W.1 Jagannath, P.W.5 Indra Bahadur Singh and P.W.3 Investigating Officer Anwar Singh Yadav is consistent with regard to lodging the report by informant P.W.1 Jagannath at 07:45 a.m. on 08.10.1990. If informant P.W.1 Jagannath was not present at the time of incident then prompt FIR could not have been lodged which otherwise also supports the presence of the informant Jagnnath at the time of occurrence.

39. It appears that the learned counsel for the appellant taking torn out sentences out of context has advanced the submission which has no force, as held by Hon'ble Supreme Court in State of MP vs. M.K. Anthony 1985 SCC (CRI 105), (Supra), and observed in para 18 of the judgement.

40. In view of the above discussion, on the basis of statement of P.W.2 Babu Lal that at the time of incident Jagnnath was working in Allahabad as a gardener, he used to go at about 6:00 AM and reach Allahabad at 8:00 AM, distance of Allahabad from his village is 12 miles and statement of P.W.1 Jagnnath in cross-examination that he saw the dead body of his son Santosh in the hospital of medical college at 1:00 a.m., it cannot be held that presence of P.W.1 Jagnnath at the time of occurrence is doubtful. Accordingly we find no substance in this contention also.

41. Learned Counsel for the appellants also submits that P.W.2 Babu Lal has admitted that he had filed a complaint case against Ram Harsh father of appellant no.1 Jagnnath and appellant no.2 Nanka which shows that P.W.2 Babulal is inimical towards the accused. Per contra learned AGA submits that a day before the incident the medh was dismantled and an altercation had taken place with the deceased and Ram Harsh also but Ram Harsh has not been named in the FIR which shows that only those who caused the incident have been named in the FIR and there is no false implication.

42. P.W.2 Babulal on page 26 of the paper-book has stated that the Pradhan of his village was Ram Harsh. He is village-head since last 30 years. The lekhpal had instituted 11 cases against him on behalf of the Gaon-sabha. He has further stated that village pradhan or vice-pradhan of the village never came for prosecuting the case and he had filed a complaint case against Ram Harsh. He has denied that the case was proceeding at the behest of Ram Harsh. Since Babu Lal had filed a complaint case against Ram Harsh, therefore, it may be inferred that the witness Babu Lal and Ram Harsh had inimical terms. Inimical terms is a double edge weapon which cuts both ways. On the basis of inimical terms one can be falsely implicated as well as one can author the incident, therefore, on the sole ground of inimical terms no conclusive inference can be drawn and the whole evidence is to be evaluated for the purpose.

43. P.W.1 Jagnnath on page 22 of the paper-book has stated that he was going towards south from the road west side of the village and his son was going towards north side, therefore learned counsel for appellants submits that Jagannath was not in a position to see the incident. Per contra learned AGA submits that the incident has taken place in the fields outside the village where even on going in opposite directions incident can easily be seen. Jagnnath has promptly lodged the FIR and if he was not present at the time of occurrence then prompt FIR could not have been lodged.

44. In spot map Ext.Ka-9 the location of Jagnnath has not been mentioned from where he saw the incident but from the spot-map it is clear that the incident has occurred in the vacant field of Budh Narayan. The witness on the same page has stated that when first time he heard the sound of fire his son was going taking a Lota. Since the place of incident is visible from the road on either side, i.e. North and South, in such a situation on hearing the sound of fire the deceased and accused persons can be seen easily. In view of the above we also find no substance in the contention of the learned counsel for the appellant that the deceased was going towards north side and the witness Jagnnath was going towards south side on the road west side of the village in such circumstance he was not in position to see the incident.

45. Learned counsel for the appellant also submits that it was the duty of the trial judge to bring the evidence of the witnesses in the notice of the accused persons by putting a clear question but he has not put the evidence in clear manner in these circumstances the evidence of the witnesses stand vitiated. Per contra learned AGA submits that the learned counsel of the appellant has not specifically attracted attention towards the evidence which were not put to the accused persons in clear manner.

46. On going through the statement under section 313 Cr.P.C. it appears that question number third has been put regarding inquest memo and spot map in which exhibit number of inquest memo is missing in the question and exhibit number of spot map has been disclosed as Ext.Ka-9. Since in the question the inquest memo has been mentioned clearly, therefore, mere non on the basis of mentioning exhibit number of inquest memo, no prejudice will be caused, accordingly, this contention of the learned counsel for the appellants is without substance.

47. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that the Investigating Officer has not stated in his deposition that he inspected the field where the medh was broken, therefore motive of the incident is not established. Per contra learned AGA submits that the incident has occurred at 6:00 AM and there are witnesses of the incident. If the dismantled medh was not inspected by the Investigating Officer, it is a trivial fault on the part of the Investigating Officer which will not affect the prosecution case.

48. As per written report Ext.Ka-1 a day before the incident Ram Harsh had dismantled the medh of the informant. The deceased had asked to mend the medh then an altercation took place between deceased, Ram Harsh and his son Jagnnath and Nanka alias Ram Swaroop. This fact has been supported by P.W.1 Jagnnath. P.W.3 Anwar Singh Yadav Investigating Officer in his deposition has not stated that he had inspected the dismantled medh of the informant. The incident took place at 6:00 AM. In written report Ext.Ka-1, it is mentioned that the incident was witnessed by Babu Lal, Ram Niwas and Ramjatan. Informant Jagnnath and named witness in FIR, P.W.2 Babu Lal have supported the prosecution version. Informant Jagnnath has specifically stated that a day before the incident in the evening the accused persons had dismantled his medh regarding which an altercation took place with his son. No question regarding dismantling of informant's medh by accused persons has been put by defence as such the statement of P.W.1 Jagnnath is uncontroverted, therefore we have no reason to disbelieve his testimony regarding dismantling of his medh. If the Investigating Officer did not inspect the dismantled medh it is a fault on the part of the Investigating Officer which is trivial in nature which will not affect the prosecution case. Apart from it in a case of direct evidence motive is not at all relevant as held by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Rajesh Govind Jagesha vs. State of Maharashtra, (1999) 8 SCC 428, that "motive" in a criminal case based on ocular testimony of witnesses is not at all relevant.

In view of the above discussion we also find no substance in the contention advanced by learned counsel for the appellant.

49. Lastly learned counsel for the appellant submits that P.W.2 Babu Lal has admitted on page 26 of the paper book that Ram Harsh father of the appellant 1 and 2 was village pradhan for last 30 years and lekhpal of the village had instituated as many as 11 cases against him. The accused persons have clearly stated in their statement under section 313 Cr.P.C. that Ram Harsh had filed cases against P.W.2 Babu Lal and for this reason they have been falsely implicated. Per contra learned AGA submits that medh was dismantled by Ram Harsh and an altercation also took place between deceased and Ram Harsh and his sons but Ram Harsh has not been implicated in the case which shows that there is no false implication in the case.

50. P.W.2 Babu Lal has stated that lekhpal had filed 11 cases against him on behalf of gaon-sabha but he has further stated that Gram Pradhan or Up-Pradhan never came for prosecuting the cases. He has also stated that he had filed a complaint case against Ram Harsh. If Babu Lal had filed complaint case against Ram Harsh and on behalf of the Gram-Sabha 11 cases against P.W.2 Babu Lal were filed, in such condition if any enmity accrues, it will be against Pradhan Ram Harsh and lekhpal but even after altercation of the deceased with Ram Harsh Pradhan took place one day before the incident, Ram Harsh has not been implicated in the case which indicates that there is no false implication in the case. We therefore, find no substance in the contention of the learned counsel for the appellants that the appellants have been falsely implicated in the present case.

51. Therefore, on a conspectus of the facts and circumstances of the case and close scrutiny of evidences available on record as discussed above we find that prompt FIR naming the appellants has been lodged, informant Jagnnath and Babu Lal are witnesses of the incident and their testimony is trustworthy and reliable.

Ocular version is supported by medical evidence. Learned Additional Session Judge 4th Allahabad has rightly convicted and sentenced the appellants. There is no merit in the appeal, hence appeal fails and is liable to be rejected. Accordingly appeal is rejected.

52. The appellants Jagannath, Nanka @ Ram Swarup and Jagatpal respectively are on bail. The C.J.M., Allahabad is directed to take the appellants in the above case into custody forthwith and send them to jail to serve out the sentence, as awarded by the trial court and affirmed by us.

Office is directed to send a copy of this order to the court concerned within a week for compliance.

Ajay Kumar ...Appellant (In Jail)
Versus
State of U.P. ...Opposite Party

Counsel for the Appellant:
Sri Tripurari Pal, Sri Noor Mohammad, Sri Ronak Chaturvedi

Counsel for the Opposite Party:
A.G.A.

A. Criminal Law-Indian Penal Code - Section 304-B & 4 of D.P. Act,— Appeal against conviction.

Larynx and trachea are congested. Lungs are also congested. Clotted blood was present in the mouth and nose tray. These are the signs which is clearly shows that in the present case, death of the deceased was homicidal. (Para 34)

In the present case, at the time of incident when the parent and relative were arrived at the matrimonial house of the deceased then they saw that all of the family members of in-law had run away from the scene of occurrence. Neither of any family member was present at the time of preparation of the inquest report. These are the circumstances are clearly shows the indulgence of the appellant. (Para 38)

The deceased was beaten just before her death, she was strangulated. This fact is admitted that the deceased is died inside the house and in place of occurrence broken bangles, rings, ear rings, hair clips, plastic rope (fastened with wood) were recovered at the place of occurrence which shows that the deceased was murdered by committing strangulation and by pressing neck of the deceased. (Para 39)

Autopsy of dead body was conducted by PW-5 Dr. S.K. Varshney noted several ante mortem injuries besides ligature mark measuring 28 cm X 2 cm around the neck and bones underneath were found fractured cause of death was strangulation. (Para 42)

In these circumstances, this Court is not inclined to interfere the judgement and order of the trial court. (Para 43)

It is not a case of suicidal death but a case of homicidal death. There is no mitigating circumstance against the applicant. It shall not be justified to interfere or reduce the sentence awarded to appellant. Accordingly, the appeal is liable to be dismissed. (Para 44)

2. Sher Singh @ Pratapa v. St. of Har. 2015 (89) ACC 288 (SC).

(Delivered by Hon'ble Suresh Kumar Gupta, J).)

1. This appeal has been preferred against the judgement and order dated 13.1.2017 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court No. 1 Aligarh in S.T. No. 529 of 2013 (State Vs. Ajay Kumar and others) arising out of case crime No. 120 of 2013, under Sections 304-B IPC & 4 of D.P. Act, Police Station-Jawan, District Aligarh and convicted and sentencing the appellant u/s 304-B IPC 10 years rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs. 5,000/- in default of payment of fine three months further imprisonment and sentencing the appellant u/s 4 D.P. Act and two years simple imprisonment and fine of Rs. 5,000/- in default of payment of fine two months further imprisonment.

2. Brief facts of the case are that the FIR Exhibit Ka-6 lodged by PW 1 on the basis of written report Exh Ka-1 on 11.4.2013 with allegation that the marriage of daughter of PW 1, namely, Maya Devi was solemnized with appellant on 17.5.2011 with Hindu Reties and Customs, in this marriage informant given sufficient dowry according to his status and spent about 3-4 lacs Rupees, but the appellant and his family members were not happy and they started harassment to his daughter about further demand of dowry as Rs. One Lakh cash and they committed murder to his daughter. It is further alleged that on 9.4.2013 i.e. before two days of unfortunate death of the deceased the appellant had brought the deceased at her matrimonial home on that fateful day i.e. 11.4.013. The first informant had received a telephonic information that his daughter has been done to death, on this information, the informant as well as his family members reached to the matrimonial house of deceased, they saw that the dead body was lying at her matrimonial house inside the floor of room with wounds and contusions on her body. This incident had happened about 8:00 o'clock in the morning and on the basis of above allegations, FIR lodged by PW-1 in P.S., Java, District Aligarh on 11.4.2013 at about 15:40 pm. against the appellant/accused Ajay Kumar (husband of the deceased) and also against Bhagwan Singh (Father in law), Meena Devi (Mother in law), Nirmala Devi (Jethani), Km. Neetu (Nanad).

3. Investigation of this case handed over to the C.O. Sansar Singh Investigating Officer, recorded the statement of informant and other witnesses and also prepared the site plan Exhibit Ka-3 and he also collected the post mortem report and inquest report after conducting the formality of investigation. Investigating Officer submitted the charge sheet (Exhibit-Ka-4) against the appellant Ajay Kumar as well as Bhagwan Singh and Meena Devi under Sections 498A / 304B IPC and section 3/4 D.P. Act exonerated other named accused, namely, Smt. Nirmala Devi and Km. Neetu.

4. Charge sheet submitted before the CJM concerned on 25.6.2013 and trial committed before the court of sessions Judge where it is registered as sessions trial No. 529 of 2013 from where this case was transferred for trial to the Additional Distirct Judge, Fast Track Court-1, Aligarh.

5. On 6.9.2013 appellant as well as other accused charged under Sections 498A/149, 304/149 and under section 4 of the D.P. Act in alternative the appellant was charged under Sections 302/149 IPC. After framing of the charges, they denied all the charges against them and claimed trial.

6. To bring home to the accused prosecution has examined 7 witnesses PW-1 Ramakishan, (complainant) father of the deceased; PW-2 Lokman, uncle of the deceased; PW-3 Saroj, Baua of the deceased; PW-4 Sansar Singh, Circle Officer, Aligarh; PW-5 Dr. S.K. Varshney, C.M.O. Mahoba; PW-6 Rajbahadur Singh, Constable and PW-7 O.P. Rana, Investigating Officer.

7. After conclusion of the evidence of prosecution, statement of the accused recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. in which all the accused stated that at the time of incident they were not present on spot and they are falsely implicated in this case.

8. In defence, DW 1 Rajpal Singh examined, he deposed that at the time of incident all the accused were present in their field and busy in doing agricultural work in their field. Nobody was present inside the house at the time of alleged incident.

9. After conclusion of the trial, learned trial court exonerated the co-accused Bhagwan Singh and Smt. Meera Devi against charge levelled upon them and after appreciating the evidence on record the prosecution has been able to prove his case against the appellant beyond reasonable doubt and, therefore, the appellant convicted under Sections 304-B IPC and 4 D.P. Act.

10. Being aggrieved by the judgement and order of conviction dated 13.1.2017, this appeal has been filed by the appellant.

11. I have heard learned counsel for the appellant-Sri Noor Mohammad, learned AGA and perused the material available on record.

12. The Exhibit Ka-2-inquest report of the dead body of the deceased-Smt. Maya Devi was done by Virendra Singh, Tehsildar, Tehsil-Kol, District Aligarh in the presence of Sub Inspector-O.P. Rana and police papers were also prepared by Sub Inspector-O.P. Rana. Recovery memo of broken bengles, rings, ear rings, hair clips, khadia, plastic rope was prepared which is Exhibit Ka-8 and a recovery memo of plain soil & vomit mixed soil was also prepared which is Exhibit Ka-9.

13. The post mortem of the death body of Smt. Maya Devi was performed by Dr. S.K. Varshney (P.W. 5) on 12th April, 2013 at about 1:00 pm at District Hospital, Aligarh which is Exhibit Ka-5, in which, doctor found the age of the deceased as about 20 years and the deceased was found to be of average built. Her eyes and bones were protruded. Rigormorties was passed over from the upper part of the body which was present in the lower part of the body. Face and eyes were congested. Clotted blood was present in the left ear and nose.

14. Following ante mortem injuries were found on the body of the deceased:-

1. Contusion at left upper eye lid, measuring 2 cm X 1 cm.

2. Abrasion at left ankle lateral side measuring 1 cm X 1 cm.

3. Abrasion/contusion right side of forehead 2 cm above right eyebrow measuring 1.5 cm X 1 cm.

4. Ligature Marks of 28 cm X 2 cm of around neck upper part present.

5. The mark was hard groomed, leathery on dissection subcutaneous membrane tissue found congested and hemorrhage present.

6. Hyoid bone found fractured.

7. On internal examination, membrane of brain larynx hard; lever, pancreas spleen and other parts of the body were congested.

15. This post mortem report Exhibit Ka-5 was done on the concurrence of Dr. S.K. Verma who has also put his signature on the post mortem report.

16. Dr. S.K. Varshney (PW-5) opined that the cause of death is strangulation asphyxia due to strangulation and death was done one day before.

17. According to Modi's Medical Jurisprudence and Toxicology, 23rd Edition, followings are the symptoms of death caused of strangulation:-

"If the windpipe is compressed so suddenly as to occlude the passage of air altogether, the individual is rendered powerless to call for assistance, becomes insensible, and may die instantly. If the windpipe is not completely closed, the face becomes cyanosed, bleeding occurs from the mouth, nostrils and ears, the hands are clenched and convulsions precede delayed death. As in hanging, insensibility is very rapid, and death is quite painless."

a. The death is usually due to asphyxia, but it may be due to other causes, namely, cerebral ischemia or venous congestion, asphyxia and venous congestion combined, or shock due to reflex cardiac arrest.

b. In the case, where the death is caused due to asphyxia, eyes are prominent and open. The pupils are dilated. The tongue is often swollen, bruised, protruding and dark in colour.

c. According to postmortem report, the membranes were congested, brain was congested, spinal cord was congested, larynx and trachea were crushed. Both the lungs were congested, pericardium was congested.

d. According to Modi's Medical Jurisprudence and Toxicology, 23rd Edition, the larynx and trachea are congested in the case of strangulation. The lungs are usually markedly congested, showing haemorrhagic patches and petechiae and exuding dark fluid blood on section. Brain is also congested and abdominal organs are darkly congested.

18. Prosecution, in order to prove its case before the trial court, has produced seven witnesses complainant PW-1 (father of the deceased-Maya Devi) Ram Kishan has stated that her daughter was married to the appellant-Ajay Kumar and during marriage he spent about Rs. Three-Four Lakhs but the family members of in-laws were not happy and started demanding Rs. One Lakh in cash as additional dowry but he could not fulfill the demand of the appellant and his family members. They started treating her with physical cruelty. He console her daughter that by passage of time everything shall be sort out. On 9.4.2013 all the members of in-laws family came to his house for the purpose of 'vidai' and assured that in future they will not harass his daughter. On that fateful day, he received telephonic call from the police then he alongwith his wife, brother-Lokman and Ram Kishore rushed to the village-Pala, Aligarh when they reached there, all the family members of in-law's had run away from the place of occurrence and dead body was lying inside the room near the bed, he lodged the first information report, Exhibit Ka 1 at P.S. Java, Aligarh.

19. PW-2 Lokman is the witness who is the brother of the PW-1, he also supported the evidence of PW-1 Ram Kishan.

20. PW-3 Saroj who is the wife of PW-2 (Real Aunty of the deceased) also deposed that the appellant as well as in law of the victim were harassed and victimized the deceased on demand of additional dowry of Rs. One Lakh. This fact came into light when Maya Devi came in her maternal home then she told her mother that her inlaws are harassing her on demand of dowry. PW-3 Saroj clearly stated in her statement that all the family members of inlaws committed murder of Maya Devi.

21. PW-4 Sansar Singh who was Circle Officer-III, Aligarh on 11.4.2013 and investigated the case, in that capacity, he collected the copy of application, Chik FIR, general case diary and recorded the statement of FIR Writer Rajbahadur Singh, statement of informant Ram Krishan and prepared the site plan in his handwriting and signature and proved the same as Exhibit Ka-3 and after recording the evidence of witness under Section 161 Cr.P.C. submitted the chargesheet-Exhibit Ka-4 against the accused persons under his signature and in his handwriting.

22. PW-5 is Dr. S.K. Varshney whose statement has already discussed in aforesaid paragraph.

23. PW-6 is constable-clerk Rajbahadur Singh of police station, Java, Aligarh who registered the FIR and prepared the Chik FIR on the basis of the Tehriri-Exhibit Ka-1 and proved the same as Exhibit Ka-6 and he also prepared the G.D. Srl. No. 35, 1540 dated 11.4.2013 in his handwriting and proved as Exhibit Ka-7.

24. PW-7 Inspector O.P. Rana who assisted the Investigating Officer PW-4 Sansar Singh and on the instruction of PW-4 Sansar Singh he prepared the recovery memo of Bangles, Hairclips, ear rings and plastic rope measuring about three hands in which wood is tied in both ends, which are proved as Exhibit Ka-8 and a recovery memo of plain soil as well as vomiting mixed soil Exhibit Ka-9.

25. The appellant also produced one defence witness DW-1-Rajpal Singh who deposed his statement that he know the appellant and he resided in the same village and the appellant's house is too close to this house. At the time of incident, crop was cutting and appellant as well as other family members were present in wheat field. Information of the death of Maya Devi was given by the children of the village then the appellant as well as he was rushed to the house of the appellant at that time except deceased nobody was present there.

26. Learned counsel for the appellant submitted that the trial court has convicted the appellant purely on the basis of surmises and conjectures and has failed to appreciate the evidence available on record. He further submitted that the trial court has ignored the major contradictions present in the testimony of the prosecution witnesses and it is next submitted that informant has failed to produce any independent witness either of the village of the appellant or village of informant to support the prosecution case.

27. Learned counsel for the appellant contended that the death of the deceased-Maya Devi was suicidal and is not homicidal and it is further argued that the appellant in his statement recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. has stated that due to his disability his wife herself committed suicide due to stress and has also submitted that at the time of incident, he was not present in his house but he was present in the field with all the family members. It is also submitted that no grievous injury is seen in the inquest report and also submitted that from the prosecution evidence, demand of dowry is not made. The prosecution has utterly failed to prove that just before her death deceased-Maya Devi was subjected to cruelty and harassment by her husband or any relative of the husband, in connection with, demand of dowry. Learned trial court has passed the impugned order without properly appreciating the evidence. The prosecution has failed to prove guilty of the appellant beyond reasonable doubt. Lastly, learned counsel for the appellant has mainly argued to consider the appeal on the quantum of sentence. He submits that the appellant is languishing in jail since 17.4.2013 which is near about 7 years. The appellant who is a very poor person, is a daily wage worker and disabled person. He has to face a lot of difficulty to do the daily tasks of the life. The period of 10 years imprisonment is too excessive, hence, he prays for leniency and submitted that since the appellant's sentence prescribed under Section 304 B IPC that is to say 7 years, should be reduced.

28. Per contra, learned AGA contended that victim was died inside the house in her matrimonial home by means of strangulation. PW-5 Dr. Varsaney opined that the cause of death is asphyxia as a result of ante mortem strangulation and further submitted that this is the clear cut case of murder and also submitted that there is no any document submitted by the appellant with regard to his physical disability. It is proved by clinching evidence that deceased died within seven years of marriage due to physical and mental torture and is also proved that soon before her death the victim was harassed and tortured by making demand of additional dowry. Hence, learned AGA lastly contended that there is no infirmity or illegality in the impugned order passed by the trial court and as such the appeals are liable to be dismissed.

29. To appreciate the arguments of the parties and also the evidence, it is necessary to look into the statutory provisions of Section 304 B IPC and Section 113 B of the Evidence Act (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act'). Provisions of Section 304 B IPC reads as follows:

[304B. Dowry death.--(1) Where the death of a woman is caused by any burns or bodily injury or occurs otherwise than under normal circumstances within seven years of her marriage and it is shown that soon before her death she was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry, such death shall be called "dowry death", and such husband or relative shall be deemed to have caused her death.

Explanation.--For the purpose of this sub-section, "dowry" shall have the same meaning as in section 2 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 (28 of 1961).

(2) Whoever commits dowry death shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than seven years but which may extend to imprisonment for life.]

30. Section 113 B of the Act reads as follows:

[113B. Presumption as to dowry death.--When the question is whether a person has committed the dowry death of a woman and it is shown that soon before her death such woman has been subjected by such person to cruelty or harassment for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry, the Court shall presume that such person had caused the dowry death. Explanation.--For the purposes of this section, "dowry death" shall have the same meaning as in 304 B of the Indian Penal Code, (45 of 1860).]

31. As per definition of dowry death under Section 304 B IPC and the wording in the presumptive Section 113 B of the Act, if it is proved that death of woman is caused by any burn or bodily injury or occurs otherwise than under normal circumstances within seven years of her marriage and it is shown that soon before her death (i) She was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or his relatives, or (ii) Such cruelty or harassment was for, or in connection with, demand of dowry, or (iii) Such cruelty or harassment was soon before her death; then it becomes obligatory on the court to raise a presumption that accused caused dowry death.

32. As per post mortem report Exhibit Ka-9 and statement of Dr. Varsaney PW-5 is that cause of death of deceased-Maya Devi asphyxia as result of strangulation, this shows that the death of the deceased was homicidal and not suicidal. The contention of the learned counsel for the appellant that the deceased committed suicide by hanging herself is not acceptable. PW-5 Dr. S.K. Varsaney in his statement clearly stated that the death of the deceased was caused by strangulation. In the present case, dead body of the deceased was lying on bed, inside, bedroom of appellant. It was for him to explain under Section 106 of Evidence Act that under what circumstances his wife died.

33. In [2016 (4) SCC Page 604], in the case of Gajanan Dashrath Kharate v. State of Maharashtra, their Lordships of Hon. Supreme Court have held that the initial burden to establish the case would undoubtedly be upon the prosecution. In view of Section 106 of the Evidence Act, there will be a corresponding burden on the inmates of the house to give cogent explanation as to how the crime was committed. The inmates of the house cannot get away by simply keeping quiet and offering no explanation on the supposed premise that the burden to establish its case lies entirely upon the prosecution and there is no duty at all on the accused to offer explanation. In paragraph no.13, their Lordships have held as under: -

"13. As seen from the evidence, appellant Gajanan and his father Dashrath and mother Mankarnabai were living together. On 7-4-2002, mother of the appellant-accused had gone to another Village Dahigaon. The prosecution has proved presence of the appellant at his home on the night of 7-4- 2002. Therefore, the appellant is duty-bound to explain as to how the death of his father was caused. When an offence like murder is committed in secrecy inside a house, the initial burden to establish the case would undoubtedly be upon the prosecution. In view of Section 106 of the Evidence Act, there will be a corresponding burden on the inmates of the house to give cogent explanation as to how the crime was committed. The inmates of the house cannot get away by simply keeping quiet and offering no explanation on the supposed premise that the burden to establish its case lies entirely upon the prosecution and there is no duty at all on the accused to offer. On the date of the occurrence, when the accused and his father Dashrath were in the house and when the father of the accused was found dead, it was for the accused to offer an explanation as to how his father sustained injuries. When the accused could not offer any explanation as to the homicidal death of his father, it is a strong circumstance against the accused that he is responsible for the commission of the crime."

34. As per post mortem report, Exhibit ka-5, 8 injuries was found on the person of the deceased were contusions and contused swelling. In this case, larynx and trachea are congested. Lungs are also congested. Clotted blood was present in the mouth and nose tray. These are the signs which is clearly shows that in the present case, death of the deceased was homicidal.

35. Prosecution witness PW-1 Ramkishan, PW-2 Lokman, PW-3 Saroj proved this fact that the marriage of Smt. Maya Devi was solemnized with the accused-appellant on 17.5.2011. This fact was also been admitted by accused in their statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. The deceased died on 11.4.2013 about 8:00 hours in the morning, therefore, it is proved beyond doubt that the death of deceased-Maya Devi was done within 7 years of her marriage and her death was caused otherwise than in normal circumstances.

36. Now, it has to be seen that just before her death, deceased Smt. Maya Devi was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband and any relative of husband in connection with demand of dowry. This element and burden of prove in case of dowry deaths have been dealt with in detail by Hon'ble The Apex Court in Sher Singh @ Pratapa v. State of Haryana 2015 (89) ACC 288 (SC). The Apex Court held as under:

12. In our opinion, it is beyond cavil that where the same word is used in a section and/or in sundry segments of a statute, it should be attributed the same meaning, unless there are compelling reasons to do otherwise. The obverse is where different words are employed in close proximity, or in the same section, or in the same enactment, the assumption must be that the legislature intended them to depict disparate situations, and delineate dissimilar and diverse ramifications. Ergo, ordinarily Parliament could not have proposed to ordain that the prosecution should "prove" the existence of a vital sequence of facts, despite having employed the word "shown" in Section 304 B. The question is whether these two words can be construed as synonymous. It seems to us that if the prosecution is required to prove, which always means beyond reasonable doubt, that a dowry death has been committed, there is a risk that the purpose postulated in the provision may be reduced to a cipher. This method of statutory interpretation has consistently been disapproved and deprecated except in exceptional instances where the syntax permits reading down or reading up of some words of the subject provisions.

13. In Section 113A of the Evidence Act Parliament has, in the case of a wife's suicide, "presumed" the guilt of the husband and the members of his family. Significantly, in section 113 B which pointedly refers to dowry deaths, Parliament has again employed the word "presume". However, in substantially similar circumstances, in the event of a wife's unnatural death, Parliament has in Section 304 B "deemed" the guilt of the husband and the members of his family. The Concise Oxford Dictionary defines the word "presume" as: supposed to be true, take for granted; whereas "deem" as: regard, consider; and whereas "show" as: point out and prove. The Black's Law Dictionary (5th Edition) defines the word "show" as- to make apparent or clear by the evidence, to prove; "deemed" as- to hold, consider, adjudge, believe, condemn, determine, construed as if true; "presume" as- to believe or accept on probable evidence; and "Presumption", in Black's, "is a rule of law, statutory or judicial, by which finding of a basic fact gives rise to existence of presumed fact, until presumption is rebutted." The Concise Dictionary of Law, Oxford Paperbacks has this comprehensive yet succinct definition of burden of proof which is worthy of reproduction:

"Burden of Proof: The duty of a party to litigation to prove a fact or facts in issue. Generally the burden of proof falls upon the party who substantially asserts the truth of a particular fact (the prosecution or the plaintiff). A distinction is drawn between the persuasive (or legal) burden, which is carried by the party who as a matter of law will lose the case if he fails to prove the fact in issue; and the evidential burden (burden of adducing evidence or burden of going forward), which is the duty of showing that there is sufficient evidence to raise an issue fit for the consideration of the trier of fact as to the existence or non-existence of a fact in issue.

The normal rule is that a defendant is presumed to be innocent until he is proved guilty; it is therefore the duty of the prosecution to prove its case by establishing both the actus reus of the crime and the mens rea. It must first satisfy the evidential burden to show that its allegations have something to support them. If it cannot satisfy this burden, the defence may submit or the judge may direct that there is no case to answer, and the judge must direct the jury to acquit. The prosecution may sometimes rely on presumptions of fact to satisfy the evidential burden of proof (e.g. the fact that a woman was subjected to violence during sexual intercourse will normally raise a presumption to support a charge of rape and prove that she did not consent). If, however, the prosecution has established a basis for its case, it must then continue to satisfy the persuasive burden by proving its case beyond reasonable doubt (see proof beyond reasonable doubt). It is the duty of the judge to tell the jury clearly that the prosecution must prove its case and that it must prove it beyond reasonable doubt; if he does not give this clear direction, the defendant is entitled to be acquitted.

There are some exceptions to the normal rule that the burden of proof is upon the prosecution. The main exceptions are as follows. (1) When the defendant admits the elements of the crime (the actus reus and mens rea) but pleads a special defence, the evidential burden is upon him to prove his defence. This may occur, the example, in a prosecution for murder in which the defendant raises a defence of self-defence. (2) When the defendant pleads automatism, the evidential burden is upon him. (3) When the defendant pleads insanity, both the evidential and persuasive burden rest upon him. In this case, however, it is sufficient if he proves his case on a balance of probabilities (i.e. he must persuade the jury that it is more likely that he is telling the truth than not). (4) In some cases statute expressly places a persuasive burden on the defendant; for example, a person who carries an offensive weapon in public is guilty of an offence unless he proves that he had lawful authority or a reasonable excuse for carrying it".

14. As is already noted above, Section 113 B of the Evidence Act and Section 304B of the IPC were introduced into their respective statutes simultaneously and, therefore, it must ordinarily be assumed that Parliament intentionally used the word 'deemed' in Section 304B to distinguish this provision from the others. In actuality, however, it is well nigh impossible to give a sensible and legally acceptable meaning to these provisions, unless the word 'shown' is used as synonymous to 'prove' and the word 'presume' as freely interchangeable with the word 'deemed'. In the realm of civil and fiscal law, it is not difficult to import the ordinary meaning of the word 'deem' to denote a set of circumstances which call to be construed contrary to what they actually are. In criminal legislation, however, it is unpalatable to adopt this approach by rote. We have the high authority of the Constitution Bench of this Court both in State of Travancore-Cochin v. Shanmugha Vilas Cashewnut Factory, AIR 1953 SC 333 and State of Tamil Nadu v. Arooran Sugars Limited (1997) 1 SCC 326, requiring the Court to ascertain the purpose behind the statutory fiction brought about by the use of the word 'deemed' so as to give full effect to the legislation and carry it to its logical conclusion. We may add that it is generally posited that there are rebuttable as well as irrebuttable presumptions, the latter oftentimes assuming an artificiality as actuality by means of a deeming provision. It is abhorrent to criminal jurisprudence to adjudicate a person guilty of an offence even though he had neither intention to commit it nor active participation in its commission. It is after deep cogitation that we consider it imperative to construe the word 'shown' in Section 304B of the IPC as to, in fact, connote 'prove'. In other words, it is for the prosecution to prove that a 'dowry death' has occurred, namely, (i) that the death of a woman has been caused in abnormal circumstances by her having been burned or having been bodily injured, (ii) within seven years of a marriage, (iii) and that she was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband, (iv) in connection with any demand for dowry and (v) that the cruelty or harassment meted out to her continued to have a causal connection or a live link with the demand of dowry. We are aware that the word 'soon' finds place in Section 304B; but we would prefer to interpret its use not in terms of days or months or years, but as necessarily indicating that the demand for dowry should not be stale or an aberration of the past, but should be the continuing cause for the death under Section 304B or the suicide under Section 304B of the IPC. Once the presence of these concomitants are established or shown or proved by the prosecution, even by preponderance of possibility, the initial presumption of innocence is replaced by an assumption of guilt of the accused, thereupon transferring the heavy burden of proof upon him and requiring him to produce evidence dislodging his guilt, beyond reasonable doubt. It seems to us that what Parliament intended by using the word 'deemed' was that only preponderance of evidence would be insufficient to discharge the husband or his family members of their guilt. This interpretation provides the accused a chance of proving their innocence. This is also the postulation of Section 101 of the Evidence Act. The purpose of Section 113B of the Evidence Act and Section 304B of the IPC, in our opinion, is to counter what is commonly encountered - the lack or the absence of evidence in the case of suicide or death of a woman within seven years of marriage. If the word "shown" has to be given its ordinary meaning then it would only require the prosecution to merely present its evidence in Court, not necessarily through oral deposition, and thereupon make the accused lead detailed evidence to be followed by that of the prosecution. This procedure is unknown to Common Law systems, and beyond the contemplation of the Cr.P.C.

37. It is well settled principle of law that once prosecution proved that where the death of the woman which was occurred otherwise under normal circumstances within 7 years of her marriage and she was subjected to cruelty and harassment by her husband and relatives of her husband soon before her death in connection with the demand of dowry, then heavy burden of proof lies upon accused to adduce evidence dislodging his guilt, beyond reasonable doubt. In the present case accused appellant-Ajay Kumar had failed to prove reason of doubt that his wife Smt. Maya Devi committed suicide due to depression.

38. In the present case, at the time of incident when the parent and relative were arrived at the matrimonial house of the deceased then they saw that all of the family members of in-law had run away from the scene of occurrence. Neither of any family member was present at the time of preparation of the inquest report. These are the circumstances are clearly shows the indulgence of the appellant.

39. From the post mortem report and statement of the doctor, it is evident that the deceased was beaten just before her death, she was strangulated. This fact is admitted that the deceased is died inside the house and in place of occurrence broken bangles, rings, ear rings, hair clips, plastic rope (fastened with wood) were recovered at the place of occurrence which shows that the deceased was murdered by committing strangulation and by pressing neck of the deceased.

40. Contention of the learned counsel for the appellant is that the prosecution has failed to prove that soon before death of deceased-Maya Devi there was demand of dowry by the accused. To convict the accused under Section 304 B IPC, it is not necessary for prosecution to prove that soon before her death there was no demand of dowry. It will be sufficient for prosecution to prove that soon before the death of the deceased, she was subjected to cruelty or harassment for any demand of dowry or in connection with any demand of dowry.

41. Last argument of learned counsel for the appellant is that the appellant is languishing jail since 17.4.2013 about 7 years. Appellant is disable and very poor person and daily wager so considering the peculiar facts and circumstances, prayer for reduction of sentence from 10 years to 7 years.

42. In this particular case, deceased was beaten and she resisted before her death. On place of occurrence, broken bangles, one plastic rope tied with both ends with wood measuring three hands and autopsy of dead body was conducted by PW-5 Dr. S.K. Varshney noted several ante mortem injuries besides ligature mark measuring 28 cm X 2 cm around the neck and bones underneath were found fractured cause of death was strangulation.

43. The appellant was charged for offence under Section 498A, 304 B and Section ¾ D.P. Act with alternative charge of under section 302 IPC although learned sessions court after appreciating the evidence arrived at a finding that the deceased died about two years of her marriage and held that offence under Section 304 B and Section 4 D.P. Act is proved beyond shadow of doubt but learned trial court acquitted the appellant on alternative charge under Section 302 IPC while holding that since the offence under section 304 B had been fully established by prosecution therefore, the appellant could not be convicted under Section 302 IPC. Thus, finding of the court below is totally whimsical and against the evidence on record acquittal of the appellant under Section 302 IPC is against the evidence on record but as no appeal on behalf of the State for enhancement of sentence. In these circumstances, this Court is not inclined to interfere the judgement and order of the trial court.

44. So far as contention of learned counsel for leniency and reduction of sentence of accused-appellant-Ajay Kumar is concerned, it is not a case of suicidal death but a case of homicidal death. There is no mitigating circumstance against the applicant. It shall not be justified to interfere or reduce the sentence awarded to appellant. Accordingly, the appeal is liable to be dismissed.

45. The conviction and sentence of appellant-Ajay Kumar passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court No. 1 Aligarh, under Sections 304B and 4 D.P. Act are hereby upheld. The appellant-Ajay Kumar is in jail and he shall serve out the sentence awarded to him.

46. In view of the above, the appeal is dismissed.

47. Office is directed to transmit the certified copy of this order to the court below alongwith the lower court record, for necessary compliance.

A. Criminal Law-Indian Penal Code-Sections 302/34 - Appeal against conviction.

So far as the applicability of ingredients of Section 34 I.P.C. is concerned, the totality of the circumstances when taken as a whole establishes the prevalence of common intention amongst all the three accused, who con-jointly committed the offence.

No doubt, one caused the firearm injury and the other two assailants, who were empty handed, were present on the spot, but they shared the common intention and had only one motive to kill the deceased. (Para 29)

The Investigating Officer committed minor lapses at the time of the investigation, but these lapses on the part of the Investigating Officer cannot be considered to be material one carrying weight to throw the entire prosecution version. Once the incident stands proved, participation of the accused in the incident is cogently proved by the evidence of the prosecution witnesses at the time and place of occurrence and nothing adverse emerges in the cross examination of the eye witnesses, then only conclusion drawn from the evidence, facts and circumstances of the case is the guilt of the accused. (Para 27)

In view of above discussion, the prosecution has been able to establish reasonably guilt of the accused under charges brought against him and the prosecution has proved its case beyond reasonable doubt. (Para 28)

Criminal Appeal rejected. (E-2)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Arvind Kumar Mishra-I, J. & Hon'ble Gautam Chowdhary, J.)

1. Heard Sri S.P. Giri, learned counsel for the appellant no.1 Giriraj Singh, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the material brought on record.

2. In this case that appellant nos. 2 and 3 namely Jalim Singh and Fatte Singh have since expired during pendency of this appeal, therefore, the instant appeal against them stood abated on 20.08.2018. The instant appeal pertains to the surviving appellant no.1 Girraj Singh.

3. By way of instant appeal, challenge has been made to the authenticity and veracity of the judgment and order of conviction dated 15.2.1986 passed by the IInd Additional Sessions Judge, Mathura in Session Trial No. 174 of 1985 State Versus Giriraj Singh and others, arising out of Case Crime No. 113 of 1984 under section 302 I.P.C., P.S. Baldev, District Mathura whereby the trial judge has recorded judgment of conviction against the surviving appellant Girraj Singh and sentenced him under sections 302/34 I.P.C. to imprisonment for life.

4. Brief facts of the case as discernible/relevant for the adjudication of this appeal appear to be that a written report was lodged by the informant, P.W. 4 Basant Kumar, at Police Station Baldev District Mathura on 25.6.1984 at 7.10 a.m. with the allegations that Munga Ram, his maternal grand father had been owning 25 bighas of land, which was given to the informant's mother by executing a will two years ago. Jalim Singh and Girraj Singh sons of Dani Ram are the nephews of Munga Ram, they prepared a fake agreement to sell dated 28th March, 1984, for 25 bighas of land regarding which a suit was instituted by the maternal grand father of the informant, due to which there was enmity between them. On account of that enmity, it so happened that the informant was sleeping on the cot with his maternal grand father on 24.6.1984 and at the same time Hoti Lal and two other persons were also sleeping on their respective cots at short distance. It was around 10.00 p.m. when Girraj Singh, Jalim Singh and Fatte Singh appeared on the spot and asked that since the land was not given to them, therefore, he (the informant's maternal grand father) will not be spared. After saying so, Jalim Singh opened fire on the deceased Munga Ram, due to which he died on the spot. The incident was also witnessed by Hoti Lal and Lakhan Singh. It was stated that the dead body was lying in the village. Report be lodged and action be taken. This written report is Exhibit- Ka- 4.

5. On the basis of the check F.I.R. (Ext. Ka-5), its corresponding G.D. entry was prepared, which is Ext. Ka.-6, and the case was registered under section 302 I.P.C. and the investigation ensued and it was entrusted to Ajay Kumar Yadav PW-5, who pursuant to the lodging of the FIR, took note of the relevant contents of the FIR, made entry in the G.D. and proceeded to the spot around 9.00 a.m. for preparing inquest report.

6. A perusal of the record reflects that after the report was lodged by the informant, the inquest was prepared, which commenced at 9.00 a.m. and completed at 10.15 a.m. on 25.6.1984. Thereafter, on the basis of the relevant papers and the statement of the inquest witnesses, it was thought proper for sending the dead body for post mortem examination in order to ascertain cause of death. In the process, certain papers were prepared by the Investigation Officer for sending the dead body for conduction of post mortem examination to the mortuary. These papers have been proved as Ext. Ka-7, Ext. Ka-8, Ext. Ka-9, Ext. Ka-10 and Ext. Ka-11. Consequently, the post mortem examination was conducted by Dr. R.C. Chauhan P.W. 3, at 3.00 p.m. on 26.6.1984 who noted the following ante morterm injuries:-

1. Firearm wound of entry 1.5 cm x 1.5 cm x cavity deep on front of right chest, 5 superior and medial to right nipple. Lung is protruded out. Margin lacerated and inverted. Blackening present around the wound.

2. Firearm wound of exit 3 cm x 3 cm x cavity deep on back of the left side abdomen in middle part,6 cm superior and medial to left posterior iliac crest, Margin everted. Loops of intestine coming out, communicated to injury no. 1.

7. In the opinion of the doctor, the cause of death was shock and haemorrhage due to ante mortem injuries. The testimony of the doctor PW-3 shows that death might have occurred in the intervening night of 24/25.6.1984 at 10:00 p.m. He has proved the post mortem examination report which is Exhibit Ka-1.

8. Record further reflects that the Investigating Officer PW-3, also prepared the site plan Exhibit Ka-12 and also collected head/cap of the cartridge (Tikli) and prepared the memo of the same which is Exhibit Ka-13. Besides, he prepared memo of the simple and blood stained clay which is Ext. Ka-14. He also prepared memo of the lantern Exhibit Ka-15 and recorded the statement of Hoti Lal, Lakhan Singh and the informant's mother. He has proved the memo of vest Ext.- Ka 16 prepared by Head Constable Shri Kishan. After completing the investigation, he filed the charge sheet Ext. Ka-17 against the accused.

9. As a sequel to that, the case was committed to the court of Sessions from where it was transferred for conduction and disposal of trial to the aforesaid trial court ? i.e. - II-Additional Sessions Judge, Mathura who after hearing the accused-appellant and the prosecution on point of charge and perusing the record was satisfied with prima facie case against the accused-appellant and, accordingly, framed charge under Section 302/34 IPC. Charge was read over and explained to the accused-appellant who abjured the charge and opted for trial.

10. Thereafter, the prosecution was required to adduce its testimony in support of the charge in order to establish guilt of the accused-appellant beyond reasonable doubt. In turn, the prosecution produced in all seven witnesses, reference of whom is given here in below:

11. Hoti Lal PW-1 and Lakhan Singh P.W. 2. are eyewitnesses and they have admitted the occurrence but have turned hostile on the point of identification of the culprits/assailants as to who caused the incident, they have been declared hostile and cross examined by the prosecution as well. Dr. R.C. Chauhan P.W. 3 who conducted the post mortem examination has proved the same. Basant Kumar PW-4, the informant is also the eye witness of the occurrence. He has supported the prosecution version and has proved the written report Exhibit- Ka-4. S.I. Ajay Kumar Yadav P.W. 5 is the Investigating Officer. He has detailed various steps taken in completing the investigation and has filed charge sheet Ext. Ka-1. However, he also proved the entry made in the check FIR and the relevant entries made in the concerned G.D. whereby the case was registered against the accused. Shiv Lal PW-6 is the Constable who took the dead body of Munga Ram to the mortuary and has proved the fact before the trial court. Virpal Singh P.W. 7 is the constable, he brought the chemical report and various material from the laboratory at Agra.

12. Except as above, no other testimony was adduced by the prosecution. Consequently, evidence for the prosecution was closed and statement of the accused-appellant was recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. wherein the incident has been specifically denied by the accused-appellant and it has been claimed that he has been falsely implicated in the present case on account of enmity. He has further submitted that some miscreants had committed the incident and Basant Kumar has wrongly and falsely roped in him in this case.

13. The defence got examined Man Singh D.W. 1 who scribed the written report and has tried to persuade the court that he, in fact, was called around 8.00 to 9.00 p.m. the next day after the occurrence took place and then the written report was scribed by him. No other evidence was adduced. Thereafter, evidence for the defence was closed and the case was posted for arguments.

14. Learned trial Judge after hearing the parties on merit recorded aforesaid finding of conviction against the accused-appellant and sentenced him to imprisonment for life under Section 302/34 IPC vide impugned judgment and order dated 15.02.1986.

15. Consequently, this appeal.

16. It has been vehemently contended on behalf of the accused-appellant that there is no specific motive for the accused- appellant to indulge in any such act as alleged against him. More so, had he participated in the incident at the time and on the date of the occurrence then he must not have appeared on the scene empty handed without any weapon. At the most, the case is made out against the co-accused Jalim Singh who is stated to have opened fire on the deceased Munga Ram. There is only one firearm wound in the shape of entry wound as well as exit wound. Peculiarity of this case is that there are witnesses who are said to have witnessed the incident. However, two of the eye witnesses namely PW-1 and PW-2 have not supported the case of the prosecution. The case does not attract the provisions of Section 34 I.P.C. and no culpability can be fastened upon the accused-appellant on the ground of applicability of common intention.

17. It has been further contended that apart from various other aspects of the case, FIR is ante timed and was not lodged at the time when it is stated to have been lodged at 7.00 a.m. on 25.6.1984. The testimony of Maan Singh D.W. 1 in that regard cannot be overlooked that gives credence to the case of the accused-appellant that his involvement is afterthought and it is due to deliberation between the police and the informant.

18. While replying to the aforesaid argument, learned A.A.G. assisted by the learned A.G.As. has claimed that in this case, the quality of the evidence regarding the occurrence alleged to have been caused at 10.00 p.m. on 24.6.1984 in the intervening night of 24/25.6.1984 cannot be denied in view of the innocuous testimony of the eye witness Basant Kumar P.W. 4, No doubt, the other two independent witnesses were also present and their names have been mentioned in the FIR, but they have been wonover by the defence as they resiled from their statement recorded earlier under section 161 Cr.P.C. and are not stating the correct fact. However, their testimony after all confirms and establishes the time of the occurrence as 10.00 p.m. To say, that the unknown assailants committed the incident is nothing but an argument without any basis not supported by the attendant circumstances of the case and not a single suggestion has been made to Basant Kumar P.W. 4, eye witness in regard to the commission of the offence by any other person. That being the case, the incident stands proved beyond all reasonable doubt against the appellant.

19. So far as the applicability of ingredients of Section 34 I.P.C. is concerned, the totality of the circumstances when taken as a whole establishes the prevalence of common intention amongst all the three accused, who con-jointly committed the offence. No doubt, Jalim Singh caused the firearm injury and the other two assailants, who were empty handed, were present on the spot, but they shared the common intention and had only one motive to kill the deceased Munga Ram. That way, the case of the prosecution under sections 302/34 I.P.C. stands proved against the appellant beyond reasonable doubt. Evidence on record profusely indicates involvement of the accused-appellant in the occurrence. The trial court has taken correct view of law and facts and has justifiably recorded conviction against the accused-appellant.

20. We have considered the respective submissions and also perused the entire record.

21. As far as the incident is concerned, a bare perusal of the first information report is indicative of the that the incident occurred at 10.00 p.m. in the intervening night of 24/25.6.1984 regarding which description has come forth that it was around 10.00 p.m. Giriraj Singh, Jalim Singh and Fatte Singh arrived on the spot and asked the deceased that they will not spare him because he has not given his land to them. Upon saying so, Jalim Singh opened fire on the deceased Munga Ram by a single shot which caused his death. In that regard, ocular testimony of the prosecution witnesses of fact becomes relevant for its evaluation and appreciation.

22. The testimony of the two eye witnesses say - Hoti Lal P.W.1 and Lakhan Singh P.W. 2 on the point of the occurrence is indicative of fact that some incident occurred at 10.00 p.m. in the intervening night of 24/25.6.1984. However, these two witnesses could not identify the assailants as to who committed the crime. At this stage, these two prosecution witnesses were confronted with cross examination recorded by the Investigating Officer in which they had clearly indicated/stated that they saw Jalim Singh, Giriraj Singh and Fatte Singh committing the offence in the illuminated light of the lantern. These two witnesses have been challenged specifically that they have been wonover by the defence due to which they are not siding with the prosecution. These suggestions have been denied by these two witnesses.

23. Now, the story does not complete here and proceeds on to the appreciation and analogy of the testimony of Basant Kumar P.W. 4, the informant who is also an eyewitness. He has detailed the entire incident and has proved the version recorded in the first information report. He has stated that it was 10.00 p.m. in the intervening night of 24/25.06.1984 when the incident occurred and the incident was witnessed in the light of the lantern, which was illuminating light over there at five to six paces. Jalim Singh was possessing the gun in his hand and two other accused present were empty handed, they asked the maternal grand father of the informant PW-4 that since he did not give them the land, therefore, they are firing on him and after firing, they secured their escape. The incident was witnessed by him, blood oozed out from the deceased and it clotted his waist. The deceased died on the spot.

24. The point is that insofar as the time and place of the occurrence is concerned, it is virtually proved by testimony of all the three witnesses but insofar as identifiabilty and the involvement of the accused in the commission of the offence is concerned, testimony of Basant Kumar PW-4, on its face, is innocuous, consistent to the point and nothing concrete or adverse has emerged even in the strenuous cross examination which may create any doubt about the involvement of the accused in the offence that the incident was not committed by the present accused but by some unknown or unidentified person. That way, testimony of P.W. 2 and P.W. 4 when taken in wholesome then a cumulative study and reading would indicate fact of participation with same intent stands proved against the present accused along with others in the incident.

25. Now, insofar as the point of prevalence of common intention on the spot against the accused is concerned, the same is found to be based on the analogy of the facts and circumstances of the case and scrutiny of the evidence on record, while insofar as the occurrence is concerned, it is stated that three persons including the appellant-accused arrived on the spot and asked the deceased for a while thereafter one single shot was fired by Jalim Singh, the another co-accused and thereafter all the three co-accused secured their escape then natural and reasonable analogy would be that all the three have one motive and the same mens rea to commit the offence because as per section 34 I.P.C. a criminal act when committed by several persons in furtherance of common intention of all each one of such person shall be responsible for the act of another, as if, it was done by him alone. That way, the liability is imputed on the appellant that he had the same intention as was there for the other co-accused say - Jalim Singh and another present on the spot, their presence on the spot has not been challenged by the defence.

26. We also take note of testimony of doctor witness Dr. R.C. Chauhan, PW- 3 who noted two ante mortem injuries in the shape of entry wound and exit wound and has proved the post mortem examination report Exhibit Ka-1, even not a single suggestion has been made to the doctor that the incident did not occur at 10.00 p.m. in the intervening night of 24/25.06.1984.

27. May be that the Investigating Officer committed minor lapses at the time of the investigation, but these lapses on the part of the Investigating Officer cannot be considered to be material one carrying weight to throw the entire prosecution version. Once the incident stands proved, participation of the accused in the incident is cogently proved by the evidence of the prosecution witnesses at the time and place of occurrence and nothing adverse emerges in the cross examination of the eye witnesses Basant Kumar P.W. 4, then only conclusion drawn from the evidence, facts and circumstances of the case is the guilt of the accused.

28. In view of above discussion, the prosecution has been able to establish reasonably guilt of the accused under charges brought against him and the prosecution has proved its case beyond reasonable doubt.

29. Learned trial court while appraising the evidence on record and marshaling facts considered every aspect of the case and has recorded just finding of conviction against the appellant and has imposed proper sentence under section 302/34 against him which warrants no interference by us in instant appeal. We uphold the judgment and order of conviction dated 15.2.1986 passed by the IInd Additional Sessions Judge, Mathura in Session Trial No. 174 of 1985 State Versus Giriraj Singh and others, arising out of Case Crime No. 113 of 1984 under section 302 I.P.C., P.S. Baldev, District Mathura.

30. In the result, the instant appeal being devoid of merit is dismissed. In this case, appellant Girraj Singh is on bail. His bail bonds are cancelled and sureties are discharged. He shall be taken into custody forthwith for serving out his remaining sentence imposed upon him by the trial court.

31. Let a copy of this judgment/order be certified to the court concerned for necessary information and follow up action.

A. Criminal Law-Indian Penal Code-Section 452, 323/34 - Appeal against conviction.

Considering the facts and circumstance of the case, the alleged incident which took place in the year 1987 about 32 years ago and now appellants are more than 60 years of age and considering that the accused/appellants had suffered the agony of conviction for more than 32 years and no criminal antecedents have been shown to their credit after passing of so much long period out of jail, at this stage it does not appear appropriate to send the accused-appellant to jail. (Para 17)

The accused-appellants are sentenced to the period already undergone by them in jail during trial. (Para 19)

2. Sattan Sahani Vs. St. of Bihar and others, (2002) 7 SCC, 604,

3. Uthem Rqajanna Vs. St. of A.P., 2005 (11) SCC, 531,

4. Neelam Bahal and another Vs. St. of Uttarakhand, (2010) 2 SCC, 229;

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajit Singh, J.)

1. Heard learned Counsel for the appellants and learned AGA for the State.

2. This criminal appeal has been filed against the judgment and order dated 27.02.1989 passed by IVth Additional Sessions Judge, Bijnor passed in Session Trial No.311 of 1987, by which the appellants have been convicted to undergo one year R.I. under Section 452 I.P.C. And Rs.1,000/- fine each under Section 323/34 I.P.C. and in default of payment of fine shall undergo R.I. for six months and it was further ordered to pay this amount of fine to complainant as compensation.

3. The present appeal, as per report of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bijnor the appellant no.3, namely, Lokendra has expired. The present appeal with regard to appellant no.3, Lokendra is concerned was abated vide order dated 19.11.2018 passed by coordinate Bench of this Court. The present appeal is confined to appellant nos.1 Sundu and appellant no.2 Jagga only. The appellant no.2, Jagga is presently lodged in jail. Since the non-bailable warrants were also issued against the appellant no.1 but it could not be served upon the appellant no.1 so the appellant no.1 was not arrested but now the learned counsel for the appellants is arguing the appeal on behalf of the appellant nos.1 and 2.

4. Brief facts of the case are that on 22.07.1987 at about 4.00 p.m. the appellant no.3, Lokendra, appellant no.2 Jagga and appellant no.1 Sundu armed with dandas and the other accused armed with stones entered into the house of the complainant. The husband of the complainant was lying down inside the house and beaten the husband of the complainant by dandas and stones. The husband of the complainant raised alarm, which attracted the attention of the witnesses Jasrath and Pappu, who saved the husband of the complainant from the accused persons. The husband of the complainant received injuries and he was medically examined on the same day at about 8.45 p.m. by Dr. S.K.Rastogi, Medical Office Incharge, Meerut. It was further mentioned in the complaint that the first information report could not be lodged at the police station because the police has not noted down the report of the complainant. The husband of the complainant sent a telegram to the Superintendent of Police, Bijnor and copy of the same has been exhibited as Ka-1 was filed by the prosecution. The house of the complainant later-on succumbed to the injuries in Delhi where an inquest was prepared and post mortem was conducted by Dr. D.N.Bhardwaj on 14.03.1986. After the death of her husband, the complainant moved an application to Superintendent of Police, Bijnor alleging the entire incident and on the basis of that application, a case was ordered to be registered and investigated.

5. The first information report Ext. Ka-3 and G.D.Report Ext.Ka-4 were prepared on the basis of the application of the complainant to Superintendent of Police, Bijnor Ext.Ka-2. The first information report and the G.D. Report were duly proved by the PW-2, Investigating Officer of the case.

6. PW-5, Dr.S.K. Rastogi, who has medically examined the injured, Gyun Singh at about 8.45 p.m. has found seven injures, contusion, two abraded contusion, Linear abrasion, contusion and complaint of pain on back of lower part of neck and back of chest on both sides.

7. PW-6, Dr. D.N.Bhardwaj, Medical Officer, Lady Harding Medical College, Delhi, who conducted the post-mortem was also examined, who proved the post-mortem report Ext.Ka-9.

8. The prosecution in order to prove its case has examined PW-1, Smt. Kishan Dai, wife of the deceased, eye-witnesses of the case, PW-2, Pappu and PW-3, Jasrath, PW-4, K.M.Mishra, the Investigating Officer of the case, PW-5, Dr.S.K.Rastogi, Medical Officer, District Hospital, Bijnor, PW-6, Dr.D.N.Bhardwaj, Medical Officer, Lady Harding Medical College, Delhi. The accused persons did not produce any witness in their defence.

9. PW-2 Pappu and PW-3 Jasrath are the eye witnesses of the occurrence. They narrated the entire prosecution version in their statements on oath. Thus, the statement of the complainant is fully corroborated by the evidence of PW-2 and PW-3. PW-2, is the real brother of the deceased as per his own admission in the cross-examination but the PW-3 is an independent eye witness of the incident. Both the witnesses are residing in the same locality as is clear by their unrebutted statement on this point and, therefore, they are natural witnesses. No enmity of any kind of the accused with theses witnesses is established or proved by any evidence on record.

10. After taking the prosecution evidence, the statement of the accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. was recorded and the accused had not led any evidence in their defence. The accused in their statements recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. alleged that they have been falsely implicated in the present case due to village partybandi.

11. Learned counsel for the appellant submitted that the appellant no.2 was earlier in jail got for some time and now the appellant no.2 is in jail for the last about eight months and the appellant no.1 has was also in jail for some time. He next submitted that it was the first offence of the accused/apellants and after conviction the accused had not indulged in any other criminal activity. He further submitted that on the question of legality of sentence he is not pressing this appeal and only pressing on the quantum of sentence and he has prayed for taking lenient view considering the age of the accused and their age related ailments.

12. Learned A.G.A. on the other hand has opposed the argument of learned counsel for the appellant and has submitted that the conviction of the appellant nos.1 and 2 are fully justified and no interference is required in their conviction, hence the appeal against the appellant nos.1 and 2 be dismissed and accused be directed to suffer the sentence.

13. In the case of Bankat and another Vs. State of Maharashtra, reported in (2005) 1 SCC, 343; accused were convicted under Section 326 I.p.C. and sentenced for one year imprisonment with fine. Hon'ble Apex Court reduced the sentence to the period already undergone on the ground that the parties have settled the dispute outside the Court and 10 years have elapsed from the date of incident.

14. In the case of Sattan Sahani Vs. State of Bihar and others, reported in (2002) 7 SCC, 604; accused were sentenced to three years' rigorous imprisonment under Section 326 I.P.C. In appeal, Hon'ble Supreme Court reduced the sentence to the period already undergone on the ground that the incident took place two decades back and parties have also compromised.

15. In the case of Uthem Rqajanna Vs. State of A.P., reported in 2005 (11) SCC, 531, accused was convicted and sentenced for six months under Section 304-A I.P.C. along with fine and for three months under Section 338 I.P.C. In appeal Hon'ble Supreme Court has reduced the sentence to the period already undergone.

16. In the case of Neelam Bahal and another Vs. State of Uttarakhand, reported in (2010) 2 SCC, 229; accused was convicted under Section 307 I.P.C. and was sentenced to undergo seven years' rigorous imprisonment. Hon'ble Supreme Court has convicted accused under Section 326 I.P.C. and reduced the sentence to period already undergone, i.e. almost one year, on the ground that the incident happened in the year 1987 when the accused was of young age of 25 years.

17. After considering the rival submissions made by learned counsel for the appellant, considering the facts and circumstance of the case, considering that the alleged incident which took place in the year 1987 about 32 years ago and now appellant nos.1 and 2 are more than 60 years of age and considering that the accused/appellant nos.1 and 2 had suffered the agony of conviction for more than 32 years and no criminal antecedents have been shown to their credit after passing of so much long period out of jail, at this stage it does not appear appropriate to send the accused-appellant to jail. It has been pointed out by learned counsel for the accused-appellant that the accused-appellant had remained in jail for sometime during trial.

18. Considering all these facts, it would be appropriate and proper that the accused be sentenced with the period already undergone and the amount of fine be enhanced.

19. Considering all the facts and circumstances of the case, the accused-appellant nos.1 and 2 are sentenced to the period already undergone by them in jail during trial and an amount of fine of Rs.5,000/- be imposed instead of sending them to jail.

20. Accused-appellant nos.1 Sundu and appellant no.2, Jagga are both being directed to deposit the fine of Rs. 5,000/- before learned lower court within two month from the date of issuance of certified copy of this order, out of which Rs.2,500/- shall be paid to the complainant, if she is alive and in case she is dead then it would be paid to her legal heirs and in default of payment of fine as directed above, accused shall undergo simple imprisonment for a period of fifteen days. If the said amount is deposited by the appellant no.2, Jagga he shall be released forthwith, if not wanted in any other case and the appellant no.1, Sundu who was not arrested in compliance of the order of this Court need not to surrender. The appellant no.1, Sundu will also deposit the fine of Rs.5,000/- within two months from the date of issue of certified copy of this order.

21. Appeal is partly allowed against the appellant nos. Sundu and appellant no.2, Jagga in the above terms.

22. Copy of this order be transmitted to the concerned lower court forthwith for compliance.

A. Criminal Law-Indian Penal Code-Sections 302, 323, 324 & 307 - Appeal against conviction.

The statement of witness regarding injuries of deceased and injuries on injured persons are corroborated by medical evidence. The presence of injured eye-witness is not doubtful, therefore, their statement are liable to be believed.(Para 18)

Identification of accused in court is a substantial piece of evidence in present case. Accused/appellants failed to mention any motive for causing voluntarily delay in test identification parade. There is consistency in evidence on the point of occurrence and on the point of roll played by each accused/appellants in evidence of witnesses Pw- 1 to Pw- 3, which is also corroborated by medical evidence. The injuries which have been found on the body of deceased and on the body of eye-witnesses indicates that weapons, as has been mentioned in F.I.R. and in evidence of witnesses. (Para 32)

It has to be kept in mind that counsel for defence neither asked any explanation nor confronted on above point as according to provisions to Section 145 of Evidence Act in cross-examination of Pw- 7 (investigating officer), therefore appellants cannot raise such defence as grounds for their acquittal at appellate stage. (Para 34)

In view of the facts, circumstances and evidence as discussed above, we are of the confirmed view that prosecution has succeed to prove the charges and no illegality or infirmity is found in the judgement and conviction order of sessions court. (Para 37)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Narendra Kumar Johari, J.)

1. The instant appeals have been preferred against the judgement and conviction order dated 27.04.1998 passed by Sessions Judge, Hamirpur in Sessions Trial No. 34 of 1989 (State Vs. Bal Kishan), and Sessions Trial No. 103 of 1989 (State Vs. Munna) under Sections 302, 323, 324 & 307 I.P.C., P.S.- Rath, District- Hamirpur.

2. Both the Sessions Trial have been decided by the common judgement as both the accused persons were involved in same occurrence and Crime No. 443 of 1988. Hence, both the appeals are being decided by the common judgement.

3. By order dated 27.04.1998 learned sessions judge has convicted appellants Bal Kishan and Munna with life imprisonment under Sections 302/34, four years rigorous imprisonment under Section 307/34, one year rigorous imprisonment under Section 324 I.P.C. and imprisonment for six months under Section 323 of I.P.C. concurrently.

4. The facts of the case in brief are that complainant Indra Bahadur Misra moved a Tahrir in Police Station- Rath, District- Hamirpur that Suresh Mishra @ Lalla, Chaini and his son Sarman Chamar all the resident of his village had gone to Shaktideen Lodhi at village- Badanpura for some of their work. Shaktideen was not available at his residence, therefore, all the three persons were returning back. The complainant and Ram Kumar Lodhi a resident of his village were going towards Rath from his Village, as they reached near culvert (puliya) of Badanpura, Bal Kishan @ Ballu Gaderiya carrying country-made pistol in his hand, Lakshmi Prashad Gaderiya carrying axe in his hand and one unknown person who was carrying Ballam, came out of the bushes Renaujha; Lakshmi Prashad exhorted to kill them. On his exhortation, one unknown person pushed Ballam in the wheel of cycle of Suresh, resultantly Suresh fell down and all the three miscreants started beating Suresh; Lakshmi attacked on the head of Suresh by his axe, Bal Kishan fired on Suresh by country-made pistol on the temple (kanpati) of Suresh, resultantly he fell down on the spot and died. When other persons tried to rescue Suresh, one of the miscreants attacked on the thigh of Chaini by his Ballam, resultantly he also fell down. Bal Kishan fired on Sarman by his country-made pistol but the fire was missed then the miscreant who was carrying Ballam in his hand beaten Sarman by his Ballam using as lathi Sarman ran away by shouting voice. The complainant and Ram Kumar exhorted and ran towards spot then that miscreant who was carrying Ballam in his hand and Lakshmi both started beating Ram Kumar Lodhi, resultantly all the persons ran away from the spot and started shouting. The miscreants ran away towards north side. The occurrence was seen by so many peoples including above persons. Informant has further stated that at the time of game of Diwali, a fighting and quarrel took place among deceased, Bal Kishan and Lakshmi Prashad. The villagers extricated the quarrel. He has further stated that the miscreant who was carrying Ballam, was a young person, if he will come again before him he will recognize him.

5. On the basis of above application (tahrir) the F.I.R. of occurrence was registered at Crime No. 443 of 1988, under Section 302 and 307 at Police Station- Rath, District- Hamirpur. The time of occurrence was shown on 11.11.1988 at 12.00 noon and the F.I.R. was lodged on the same day at 3.00 p.m. Inquiry officer Deena Nath Dubey (Pw- 7) reached on spot and prepared inquest report of deceased and sent the dead body for post mortem in sealed condition through constable Chote Lal and Hargobind. I.O. also prepared letter for medical inspections of injured persons. He prepared the recovery memo of blood-stained and plain soil from the spot. He recovered one cycle near the dead body of Suresh Chandra Misra and a wrist watch and prepared its memo. He sketched spot map also. The post-mortem of Suresh Chandra was conducted by Doctor N.K. Joshi (Pw- 6) on 12.11.1988 and injured persons Sarman, Chaini and Ram Kumar was medically examined in hospital on 12.11.1988. After completion of investigation, I.O. submitted charge-sheet against accused persons Bal Kishan, Munna and Lakshmi.

6. The charges of Section 302/34, 307, 324 and 323 were framed against accused persons namely, Bal Kishan, Lakshmi Prashad and Munna who denied the charges and chosen to be tried.

7. As documentary evidence, prosecution filed following papers which were proved by respective witnesses:-

Tahrir F.I.R. as (Ex. Ka- 1), identification memo as (Ex. Ka- 2), charge-sheet against Bal Kishan and Lakshmi Prashad as (Ex. Ka- 3), charge-sheet against Munna as (Ex. Ka- 4), injury report of Chaini as (Ex. Ka- 5), injury report of Sarman as (Ex. Ka- 6), injury report of Ram Kumar as (Ex. Ka- 7), the post-mortem report of Suresh Chandra as (Ex. Ka- 8), Chick F.I.R. (Ex. Ka- 9), inquest report as (Ex. Ka- 10), police paper form no. 13 as (Ex. Ka- 11), photo nash (Ex. Ka- 12), letter for P.M.R. (Ex. Ka- 13), spot map (Ex. Ka- 14), letter for medical examination of Chaini (Ex. Ka- 15), letter for medical examination of Sarman as (Ex. Ka- 16), letter for medical examination of Ram Kumar as (Ex. Ka- 17), recovery memo of blood-stained and plain soil (Ex. Ka- 18), recovery memo of cycle and wrist watch as (Ex. Ka- 19), attachment memo (Ex. Ka- 20), carbon copy of G.D. entry (Ex. Ka- 21).

8. As oral evidence prosecution produced Indra Bahadur as Pw- 1, Chaini Pw- 2, Ram Kumar as Pw- 3, M.P. Awasthi Pw- 4 and Ram Swaroop Singh as Pw- 5, Doctor N.K. Joshi as Pw- 6, Deena Nath Dubey as Pw- 7.

9. The statement of witness Pw- 1 Indra Bahadur was recorded on 31.08.1992 who in his examination in chief has repeated the same prosecution version regarding the occurrence as mentioned in F.I.R. The cross-examination was concluded on 03.11.1992. The statement of witness Pw- 2 was recorded on 03.11.1992 who corroborated the statement of Pw- 1 on the point of occurrence his cross-examination was concluded on 03.11.1992. Witness Pw- 3 Ram Kumar deposed on 27.11.1992 who also stated the same story as Pw- 1 and Pw- 2 in his cross-examination, was concluded on same day. Witness Pw- 4 M.P. Awasthi- the Identification Magistrate, Hamirpur has deposed that in his presence the identification pared took place. Witness Pw- 6 Doctor N.K. Joshi has proved the injury reports of Chaini, Sarman and Ram Kumar. He also proved the post-mortem of deceased Suresh Chandra Mishra. Witness Deena Nath Dubey- Pw- 7 the I.O. has proved the proceedings of investigation.

10. Regarding the facts, evidence and incriminating circumstances, questions were asked by accused appellants Bal Kishan and Munna under Section 313 of Cr.P.C. in which both the accused persons shown their ignorance in reply of the questions. The reason for prosecution they have replied "due to enmity." In reply of the questions of identification in jail, accused appellant Munna has stated that witnesses were acquainted with him prior to occurrence as he is brother-in-law of Chatrapal who is younger brother of Bal Kishan. During trial accused Lakshmi Prashad had died and the trial was abated against him on 08.08.1990. Before recording his statement under Section 313 of Cr.P.C. On behalf of the accused appellants, Jai Kunwar has been examined as Dw.- 1.

11. We have heard learned counsel for the appellants, learned counsel for the complainant as well as learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

12. Learned counsel for the appellants has submitted that the appellants have falsely been implicated in the case. The place of occurrence has not shown in F.I.R. The presence of witnesses as Pw- 1, Pw- 2 and Pw- 3 are doubtful. No recovery of weapons or cartridges has been made. Witnesses are interested. Identification of appellant- Munna is doubtful. Motive of offence has not been proved. The appellants have falsely been implicated only due to enmity. Prosecution has failed to prove his case against appellants. Appellants liable to be acquitted, accordingly appeals be allowed.

13. Learned A.G.A. as well as counsel for complainant submitted that F.I.R. of occurrence is prompt. There is no discrepancy in evidence regarding place of occurrence. Injured witnesses have deposed and proved the case successfully. There is no discrepancy on the factum of occurrence. Appellant Munna has been identified in jail as well as in court by the witnesses. Motive of occurrence has been proved, which is supported by ocular evidence and by the evidence of injured witnesses who had received injuries in same occurrence. The aforesaid evidence is corroborated by medical evidence. Prosecution has succeeded to prove his case against appellants beyond reasonable doubt. They have rightly been convicted by the Sessions Judge. Appeals are liable to be rejected.

14. In F.I.R. the date and time of occurrence has been shown on 11.11.1988 at 12.00 noon. The F.I.R. has been lodged on the same date at 3.00 pm whereas the distance of police station has been shown as 14 k.m. The fact regarding lodging of F.I.R. has been supported by G.D. entry (Ex. Ka- 21). In first information report and in statement of witnesses Pw- 1 to Pw- 3 it has been shown that witness Pw- 1 Indra Bahadur Mishra was eye-witness of the occurrence and after committing the occurrence when the accused persons fled away from the spot, the informant rushed to Police Station- Rath, District- Hamirpur by keeping the dead body of deceased Suresh Chandra in supervision of injured witnesses- Chaini, Sarman and Ram Kumar. Witness Pw- 1 Indra Bahadur has stated in his evidence that he had reached at Dharamsala in approximately 01.15 hours where he wrote the application (tahrir) for F.I.R. The distance of police station is approximately 15 to 20 steps away from the said Dharamsala. In cross-examination he has denied that the application (tahrir) was written by him on the dictation of Daroga Ji. The witness has been cross-examined by defence side at length but nothing could be brought on record which could indicate the fact that the F.I.R. of the occurrence was lodged by complainant with any prior consultation or with any inordinate delay. Keeping in mind, the distance of place of occurrence from police station and in abscene of any contrary evidence, it appears that the F.I.R. of occurrence has been lodged by complainant promptly and without any inordinate delay.

15. Witness Pw- 1 has deposed in his evidence that on 11.11.1988 at about 12.00 noon Suresh Chandra Mishra and Chaini Chamar and his son Sarman who were resident of the same village, they had gone Badanpura to the house of Shaktideen Lodhi for some of his work. They went there by cycles. Suresh Chandra was riding alone at his cycle and Chaini and his son Sarman were on another cycle. Chaini was sitting at the cycle as pillion rider. As Shaktideen Lodhi was not available at his residence of Badanpura therefore, all those persons coming back from Badanpura to their village. At that time witness Pw- 1 Indra Bahadur along with Ram Kumar a resident of his village were going to Rath from their village, as they reached near the culvert (puliya) of Badanpura, they saw that all of sudden Bal Kishan Gaderia, Lakshmi Prashad and one unknown person came out from the bushes of Reunjha. Bal Kishan was carrying tamancha, Lakshmi Prashad was carrying axe and unknown person was carrying Ballam in their hands. On the exhortation of Lakshmi Prashad to kill Suresh Chandra, all the three persons ran towards him. The unknown person who was carrying Ballam in his hand pushed the Ballam in the wheel of cycle of Suresh Chandra, resultantly, Suresh Chandra fell down. At once all the three persons started beating Suresh Chandra. Lakshmi attacked with his axe on his head, Bal Kishan fired by his country-made pistol (tamancha) on his temple (kanpati). Suresh Chandra fell down and died on spot. At that time, as the Chaini and Sarman tried to save him, the person who was carrying ballam pushed his ballam in thigh of Chaini resultantly Chaini fell down due to its injury. Bal Kishan fired on Sarman which fortunately got missed. Simultaneously, the person who was carrying Ballam ran towards Sarman and beaten him by lathi part of his Ballam. Consequently, Sarman shouted and ran away. Seeing the occurrence the complainant as well as Ram Kumar also ran towards the place of occurrence to save them. Complainant was behind Ram Kumar. When Ram Kumar tried to save, Lakshmi and the unknown persons who was carrying Ballam, beaten him. Seeing the occurrence all the persons shouted loudly for help resultantly the assailants ran towards northern side. The occurrence was seen by the aforesaid persons as well as other persons who were present in their fields. The witness PW-1 has further stated in his evidence that just after the occurrence the fact was told him by Chaini that the deceased Suresh and the witnesses Chaini and Sarman had gone to Badanpura for some of their work.

16. So far as the role of accused persons are concerned, witness Pw- 1 has stated in his evidence, that as the deceased Suresh Chandra fell down from his cycle, all the three assailants started beating him. Lakshmi Prasad attacked on deceased by his axe thereafter Bal Kishan fired on Suresh by his country-made pistol. He has further stated that at the time of firing he along with Ram Kumar was 25 to 30 steps away from deceased. He has also stated that the deceased has received only one injury of fire arm. The country-made pistol (tamancha) was single barrel. Witness Pw-1 has also said that Chaini had fell down by the injury of Ballam just 8 to 10 steps away from deceased towards East. At that time Chaini was wearing Kurta and Dhoti, with knot like langot. Ram Kumar had received the injury of axe at his palm. He further stated that the unknown assailant was attacking on Sarman from the wooden side (lathi part) of his Ballam.

17. Witness Pw- 2 Chaini has narrated and reiterated the happening of occurrence same as it has been stated by witness Pw- 1 so far as the injury on his body as well as on the body of his son Sarman, he has stated in his evidence that they have gone to Badanpura to hire tractor of Sattidin for ploughing the field. He was not available at his residence, therefore they were coming back. He has further submitted that he had received the injury of Ballam. He has also stated that Bal Kishan has fired on his son Sarman which was missed. On firing upon him, his son Sarman turned back, at that time the unknown persons beaten him by lathi part of his Ballam then after that Sarman ran towards village, when Ram Kumar moved to save Suresh Chandra, Lakshmi attacked by his axe and unknown persons attacked on him also by lathi part of his Ballam. He has further stated that he (witness Pw- 2), Sarman, Ram Kumar and Indra Bahadur had gone to police station and thereafter they have gone for medical examination, where he, Sarman and Ram Kumar was examined by Doctor. He has further stated that he had gone to village- Badanpura for hire tractor to plough his field which he had taken on Balkat. The deceased also went to hire the tractor of Sattidin to plough his own field. He has also stated that today I have dressed kurta and dhoti which is lying upto his knee. Learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that witness Pw- 2 wear dhoti upto knee long, hence his statement that at the time of occurrence he was wearing his dhoti knot like langot is false, as normally one can wear the dhoti as langot. Since no pierced and blood-stained dhoti has been recovered by I.O., therefore, the presence of Chaini on spot is highly doubtful. In reply counsel for complainant has submitted that at the time of occurrence witness Pw- 2 Chaini was sitting at the carrier of cycle as pillion rider. In such a situation it is probable that he may knot his dhoti as langot type just to prevent sticking of his dhoti in the back wheel of cycle. If the I.O. has not recovered any such dhoti of witness Pw- 2 then in that case it may be the fault of I.O. Learned counsel for the appellants has also submitted that the witness Pw- 1 has mentioned that when Chaini tried to save Suresh, the unknown assistant stabbed his Ballam in the thigh of Chaini (Pw- 2) whereas the medical report of his injury indicates that there was a incised wound with clean cut. He has further stated that if a sharped weapons like Ballam will be stabbed on the body, the edges of wound will be with everted margin, which is not found in this case. Learned counsel for the complainant has replied that witness Pw- 2 has not stated that the assailants had stabbed Ballam in his thigh rather he has mentioned that the assailants attacked him by his Ballam. The word stab was used by the eye-witnesses Pw- 1 and Pw- 3 who have seen the occurrence from some distance. The attack was so quick that it is highly probable that the witnesses would not have been able to see the occurrence attack like slow motion. At that time the attention of witnesses was also diverted towards the attack on Suresh Chandra. Witness Pw- 6 Dr. N.K. Joshi has openid that the injury of Chaini is probable by the Ballam, therefore, the presence of witness Pw- 2 cannot be doubted on place of occurrence.

18. Witness Pw- 3 Ram Kumar has also described the manner of occurrence of attack on deceased in his evidence as it has been stated by witnesses Pw- 1 and Pw- 2 in their evidence. Witness Pw-3 has further stated that when the assailants attacked on Suresh Chandra he along with Indra Bahadur moved forward to save him. At that time Indra Bahadur was behind him. As witness Pw- 3 Ram Kumar moved forward, Lakshmi Prashad attacked on him by his axe, his aim was head of Ram Kumar but he has pushed his hand just to prevent and save the attack on his vital part resultantly he received the injury of axe at his palm. The unknown persons who was carrying Ballam also attacked on him from the lathi sides of Ballam. As they shouted voice for help assailants ran towards north. Witness Pw- 3 on the part of his evidence regarding mode of occurrence as well as role of assailants has been cross-examined thoroughly by the defence side but no contradiction comes out. Witnesses Pw- 1 and Pw- 3 has narrated the F.I.R. version properly. No otherwise fact could come on record which may indicate any fact otherwise. The injury of injured persons is supported by their medical examination reports as Ex. Ka-5, 6 & 7. The injury sustained by deceased has also been mentioned in F.I.R. which has been proved by his post-mortem report as well as by evidence of witness Pw- 6 Dr. N.K. Joshi. Injury nos. 1, 2, 9 and 10 shows the injury of sharp, edged weapon like axe. Injury nos. 3, 4, 8, 12 and 13 can be caused by lathi. Eye-witnesses Pw- 1, Pw- 2 and Pw- 3 have stated that the unknown assailant has used his Ballam like lathi also. Therefore, the aforesaid injuries are probable when the Ballam has been used like lathi. Injury nos. 14 and 15 can be caused by the sharp pointed weapon like Ballam and injury nos. 3 and 5 can be caused by fire-arm as has been narrated by witnesses that the appellant Bal Kishan fired on deceased by tamancha. It has not been disputed that a close range fire which has been caused almost in contact with the surface of body may cause through and through injury over the surface and in that case entry wound may be larger in size than exit wound, which is possible due to movement of projectile of fire-arm. It has also been found that blackening was present at the edges of wound of enjury no. 5 which was entry wound. The mode of fire-arm injury has been corroborated by the statement of Pw- 1 where he has stated Bal Kishan has fired on temple ((kanpati)) of deceased in close range. Keeping the tamancha in contact with temple (kanpati) region of deceased. The statement of witness regarding injuries of deceased and injuries on injured persons Sarman, Chaini and Ram Kumar are corroborated by medical evidence. The presence of injured eye-witness is not doubtful, therefore, their statement are liable to be believed. If there is no contradiction in the statement of witness and with medical evidence it has been held by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case

Surjit Singh @ Gurnit Singh Vs. State of Punjab 1993 SCC (Cri) 161, that:-

"9. To be fair to the learned counsel for the appellant, we may mention that he ventured to argue that the evidence regarding the matching of the crime bullet shells with the pistol recovered was not convincing, more so when the .303 pistol, the alleged crime weapon, was recovered from Gurmit Singh, co-accused. It is noteworthy that Gurmit Singh, co-accused, stands convicted under the Arms Act for being in possession of that pistol. This aspect of the case cannot be a substitute to the eye-witness account or the plea taken by the appellant. Had the presence of the two witnesses, that is, Jaswinder kaur PW-5 and Taljit Singh PW-2 at the scene of the occurrence been doubted, the recovery of the weapon of offence and its connection with the empty shells recovered at the spot would have assumed some significance. When the two eye-witness are natural witnesses of the crime, one being the young wife who would normally be in the company of the husband at 10.30 p.m. on a summer night and the other the nephew of the deceased who had suffered grevious injuries in the occurrence and was thus a stamped witness, not much importance is to be attached to this aspect of the case. The venture is futile."

The evidence of injured witnesses Pw- 2 and Pw- 3 are reliable and trustworthy.

19. Learned counsel for the appellants further argued that as according to prosecution case if the assailants were having deadly weapons in their hands and they were able to give fatal injuries to witness and were able to eliminate the evidence against them why they have not caused grievous/fatal injuries to Chaini, Sarman, Ram Kumar and Indra Bahadur, on the other hand the said injuries of Chaini, Sarman and Ram Kumar is simple in nature, therefore, the evidence of aforesaid persons are not liable to be believed. Considering the facts and evidence on record it reveals that there was enmity of deceased with appellants namely, Bal Kishan and Lakshmi Prashad. It has been shown in F.I.R. as well as in evidence of witness Pw- 1 that prior to incident, during the game of Diwali, a quarrel and fighting took place in between appellants Bal Kishan, Lakshmi Prashad with deceased Suresh, which was extricated and settled by interference of village persons. In his cross-examination witness Pw- 1 has stated that he himself was witness of that altercation, both the parties were abusing each other. He was also one of the mediator. Reason of murder of deceased Suresh has been shown aforesaid quarrel and due to the enmity, the appellants and Lakshmi Prashad attacked on deceased- Suresh Chandra Mishra. They were not having any enmity with complainant or other eye-witness and just to provide scare and horrify them as well as manage to escape they have given the simple injuries to eye-witnesses. Therefore, accused persons have not caused any fatal injuries to witnesses rather they attacked only on deceased Suresh Chandra, hence it cannot be said that presence of eye-witnesses of the place of occurrence was not probable.

20. Learned counsel for the appellants has further argued that the motive as shown in F.I.R. is rather weak in nature and upon simple quarrel in village it was not probable to cause death of deceased Suresh Chandra. The argument advanced by learned counsel for the appellants is not forceful as what was the situation at the time of quarrel and fighting one day prior to occurrence, it has not been described. The enmity of trifle matter may grow up. It varies from persons to persons that how, a person tackles his emotions. Hon'ble Apex Court Hon'ble Apex Court has held in the case of Gulam Sarbar Vs. State of Bihar (Now Jharkhand) (2014) 3 SCC 401, in case law Rohtash Kumar Vs. State of Haryana, Criminal Appeal No. 896 of 2011, Bipin Kumar Mondal Vs. State of West Bengal (2010) 12 SCC 91, Balram Singh Vs. State of Punjab 2003 AIR (SC) 2213 and in Baboolal Vs. State of U.P. 2001 SCC (Cri) 1484 that where there is direct evidence, prosecution is not needed to prove motive of offence. How the mind of an assailant reacts is not to be fathomed from a detached reflection. Criminal conspiracy in general hatched in secrecy, thus direct evidence is difficult to obtain or access. However, where there is direct evidence of witnesses, who are reliable on appreciation of evidence according to legal norms, it is not necessary to establish motive of accused persons.

21. Learned counsel for the appellants further argued that witness Pw- 1 Indra Bahadur belongs to caste of deceased and he is in relation with deceased also. Therefore, his evidence is not reliable. Witness Pw- 2 Chaini has taken the lease of land by the grace of father of deceased and witness Pw- 3 Ram Kumar is in relation with witness Pw- 1, therefore, their evidence are not trustworthy. Although, the fact reveals from the evidence of Pw- 1 that he is in relation with deceased person but there is a consistency in statement of witnesses, which establishes that they were eye-witnesses of occurrence. Witness Pw- 2 has denied in his evidence that he was not allotted any land on lease by the father of deceased, when he (father of deceased) was village pradhan rather the earlier pradhan Sudhar Singh allotted him three acres of land on lease. In rebuttal of above statement, appellants failed to produce any documentary or oral evidence. Therefore, it cannot be said that witness Pw- 2 was ever obliged by Ram Swaroop the father of deceased Suresh Chandra Mishra. There is nothing on record which may indicate that witness Pw- 3 was ever friendly with deceased or complainant. Perusal of entire evidence of Pw- 3 reveals that he was just a resident of his village who was going Rath to purchase the edible items for his daily use. After careful and proper scrutiny of evidence of witnesses Pw- 1 to Pw- 3, no contradiction is found on the substantial point of prosecution case.

22. It is also to be kept in mind that date of occurrence has been shown on 11.11.1988. The evidence of Pw- 1 was recorded on 31.08.1992. The evidence Pw- 2 was recorded on 03.11.1992 and evidence of Pw- 3 was recorded on 27.11.1992. All the witnesses Pw- 1 to Pw- 3 are living in village. Out of which age of witness Pw- 2 was 65 years at the time of recording of his evidence and he was an illiterate person also. In above situation there might be some inconsistency in their evidence. It has been held by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Rizan and Anothers Vs. State of Chattisgarh 2003 CRI. L.J. 1226 SC in Para- 6, that:-

"6.- We shall first deal with the contention regarding interestedness of the witnesses for furthering prosecution version. Relationship is not a factor to affect credibility of a witness. It is more often than not that a relation would not conceal actual culprit and make allegations against an innocent person. Foundation has to be laid if plea of false implication is made. In such cases, the court has to adopt a careful approach and analyse evidence to find out whether it is cogent and credible."

23. The same verdict has been given by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Dharampal and others Vs. State of U.P. 2008 Cr.L.J. 1016. The relevant part of the judgment is reproduced as under:-

"12. This takes us to the next question viz. whether the other lacunae pointed out by the learned counsel for the appellants are fatal to the prosecution case . We agree that the High Court erred in relying on the evidence of PW4, who admittedly was declared a hostile witness. Nevertheless, we fell that in the fact of the other evidence of PW2 Dannu, PW3 Om Prakash who were corroborated in all material respects by PW7 Dr. R.P. Goyal and by PW9, Dr. U. Kanchan, the evidence of PW4, even if discharged, is inconsequential. The evidentiary value of a dying declaration and the principles underlying the imprtance of a dying declaration have already been discussed herein earlier. Simply because PW2 and PW3, in their cross-examination, have been shown to be related to the deceased does not mean that their testimony has to be rejected. It is well settled that evidence of a witness is not to be rejected merely because he happens to be a relative of the deceased. In State of Himanchal Pradesh V. Mast Ram [(2004) 8 SCC 660], this Court observed as under :-

".....The law on the point is well settled that the testimony of the relative witnesses cannot be disbelieved on the ground of relationship. The only main requirement is to examine their testimony with caution. Their testimony was thrown out at the threshold on the ground of animosity and relationship. This is not a requirement of law....."

In this view of the matter and this being the well-settled law, it is difficult for us to discard the evidence of the witnesses, as discussed hereinabove, only on the ground that they were related to the deceased, in the absence of any infirmity in the said evidence."

Considering the evidence of aforesaid eye-witnesses as a whole there seems no contradiction on the point of occurrence as well as role of appellants in occurrence. It has been held by Hon'ble Apex Court in case of State of U.P. Vs. Shane Haidar and others 2015 (1) J.Cr.C 775 in Para- 34, that:-

"34. After an overall assessment of all the witnesses, produced by prosecution, we are of thhe firm view that all the witnesses are throughout cogent and consistent while deposing in court. All the factual witnesses are rustic villagers, who are bound to get confused during their cross-examination. PW-2 is an injured witnesses, which fact is evident from his injury report, duly proved by the Doctor. Apart from some minor contradictions nothing has been elicited in their statements to cause a shadow of doubt on their credibility."

24. On the same point, another Bench of this Court in case of Tufail Ansari vs. State of U.P. 2015 (2) J.Cr.C 1086 has held that:-

"28. The contention that PW-3 Smt. Babli Jaiswal has admitted in her cross examination that the police had come to their house at about 8.00 p.m., and that she was unsure when she had left for the police station and that PW-1 Ramesh Kumar Jaiswal, informant had stated that he had reached the police station at about 7.00 p.m. or that the appellant Tufail was arrested at about 9.00 p.m. Even if there were some conflicts in the timings, it only suggests that the rural witnesses were a little confused about the timings of the incident or the time when the police had taken the appellant Tufail at about 2.00 a.m. to get the body recovered. Even if there are certain minor discrepancies in the timings and conduct of the investigation, as the basic structure of the prosecution evidence is intact in this case, on the basis of the factum of discovery of the dead body in the middle of the night on the pointing out of the appellant, which was admissible under section 27 of the Evidence Act and the last seen evidence against the appellant by PW-2 Suresh is also intact, little reason exist for not relying on these crucial circumstances which are sufficient to establish the complicity of the appellant in this offence."

25. In para 9 of the case Leela Ram vs. State of Haryana and Others, 2000 SCC (Cri) 222:- Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that:-

"9.- Be it noted that the High Court is within its jurisdiction being the first appellate court to reappraise the evidence, but the discrepancies found in the ocular account of two witnesses unless they are so vital, cannot affect the credibility of the evidence of the witnesses. There are bound to be some discrepancies between the narrations of different witnesses when they speak on details, and unless the contradictions are of a material dimension, the same should not be used to jettison the evidence in its entirety. Incidentally, corroboration of evidence with mathematical niceties cannot be expected in criminal cases. Minor embellishment, there may be, but variations by reason therefor should not render the evidence of eyewitnesses unbelievable. Trivial discrepancies ought not to obliterate an otherwise acceptable evidence. In this context, reference may be made to the decision of this Court in State of U.P. v. M.K. Anthony ; AIR 1985 SC 48. In para 10 of the Report, this Court observed: (SCC pp. 514-15)

"10. While appreciating the evidence of a witness, the approach must be whether the evidence of the witness read as a whole appears to have a ring of truth. Once that impression is formed, it is undoubtedly necessary for the court to scrutinise the evidence more particularly keeping in view the deficiencies, drawbacks and infirmities pointed out in the evidence as a whole and evaluate them to find out whether it is against the general tenor of the evidence given by the witness and whether the earlier evaluation of the evidence is shaken as to render it unworthy of belief. Minor discrepancies on trivial matters not touching the core of the case, hypertechnical approach by taking sentences torn out of context here or there from the evidence, attaching importance to some technical error committed by the investigating officer not going to the root of the matter would not ordinarily permit rejection of the evidence as a whole. If the court before whom the witness gives evidence had the opportunity to form the opinion about the general tenor of evidence given by the witness, the appellate court which had not this benefit will have to attach due weight to the appreciation of evidence by the trial court and unless there are reasons weighty and formidable it would not be proper to reject the evidence on the ground of minor variations or infirmities in the matter of trivial details. Even honest and truthful witnesses may differ in some details unrelated to the main incident because power of observation, retention and reproduction differ with individuals."

26. In case Shivappa and Others vs. State of Karnataka, 2008 CrLJ 2992, Hon'ble Supreme Court has held in para 26 that:-

".....Minor discrepancies or some improvements also in our opinion, would not justify rejection of the statements of eyewitnesses if they are otherwise reliable. Some discrepancies are bound to occur because of the sociological background of the witnesses as also the time gap between the date of occurrence ad the date on which they give their depositions in Court."

27. Perusal of evidence as a whole, indicates that there is no such discrepancy in the evidence of prosecution witnesses which touches the core of prosecution version. There may be discrepancy minor/trifle in nature, but in our considered view, they are not able to destroy prosecution case.

28. It has also been argued by learned counsel for the appellants that the letter for medical examination of Chaini, Sarman and Ram Kumar Lodhi was prepared by investigating officer on 11.11.1988 but they have undergone medical examination on 12.11.1988 which also creates doubt, upon veracity of witnesses Pw- 1 to Pw- 3. No cogent reason has been shown for the said delay in medical examination. On the above point of argument records shows that the time of lodging of F.I.R. has been shown as 3.00 p.m. on 11.11.1988. Witness Pw- 1 has stated in his evidence that his statement was recorded on the place of occurrence at 5.00-5.30 p.m. Inquest report Ex. Ka- 10 indicates that the inquest was completed at 17.30 on 11.11.1988. Witness Pw- 7 the I.O. has narrated the proceedings of investigation and mentioned that he has completed the proceedings of investigation till 23.45. It was beginning of winter season. As a common observation the availability of all the facility in village area are not found. Accused persons had fled away and they were not under arrested by I.O. on 11.11.1988. In such a situation, if the above injured persons who were brought hospital by police persons on 12.11.1988 at about 7.00 a.m., it cannot be said that the medical of injured persons has been taken place with an inordinate delay. Witness Pw- 6 Dr. N.K. Joshi has stated that the injuries of injured persons are probable 1-1/2 day prior. The injuries shown in injury reports of Sarman, Chaini and Ram Kumar is not such a nature which can be fabricated. Although, witness Pw- 6 has further replied in cross-examination that if anybody will have courage, then some of the aforesaid injury may be created but this probability is not supported with facts and circumstances of the case as the deceased was not closely related with aforesaid injured persons. There is nothing on record which could show any indication towards aforesaid probabilities, therefore, the argument advanced by learned counsel for the appellants is not forceful.

29. Learned counsel for the appellants has further stated that the appellant Munna has been shown as unknown person who was carrying Ballam at the time of occurrence in fact, he is the brother-in-law (sala) of younger brother of appellant Bal Kishan. He used to visit at the house of his sister Jai Kunwar frequently. Jai Kunwar has deposed as Dw- 1, on the above point, therefore, he has falsely been implicated in the case only due to the reason that he is relative of appellant Bal Kishan. The identity of that unknown person has not been mentioned in F.I.R., his test identification parade took place on 24.01.1989. He further argued that his identification was managed after two months of occurrence and there were all the probabilities that the persons who identified him in T.I.P. were able to identify him earlier. They were having ample chance to recognize him. It reveals from record that witness Pw- 7 has mentioned in his cross-examination that on 24.12.1988 accused appellant Munna surrendered in court and after his surrender on 27.12.1988, investigating officer (witness Pw- 7) moved application for his identification, wherein 11.01.1989 and 16.01.1989 the dates were fixed for identification proceeding. Since on the schedule date, the witnesses could not reach in jail, therefore, the test identification parade of accused appellant Munna took place on 24.01.1989. Witness Pw- 4 has narrated about the proceeding which was conducted for test identification parade, but no substantial question has been asked in his cross-examination on above point. Witnesses Pw- 1 and Pw- 3 have identified to accused appellant Munna (who was mentioned as unknown assailant in F.I.R.) in the aforesaid test identification parade. Witness Chaini wrongly identified due to the reason that he was an old rustic man who had received the injury of Ballam on thigh and fell down on spot immediately, even he could not move anywhere unless and until accused persons fled away from the place of occurrence as it reveals from his evidence. Although, in F.I.R. it has been mentioned by informant that the unknown person was a young man and he will recognize him it he comes again before him. Learned counsel for the complainant also submitted that if it would have been intention of complainant to indulge appellant Munna in the occurrence and if he was known by complainant earlier then there was no reason for not to mention his name, parentage and address in F.I.R. Witness Pw- 1 has stated in cross-examination that this is wrong to say that accused Munna was known by him earlier. Witness Pw- 3 has also stated that he was not acquinted with Munna prior to occurrence. The witnesses Pw- 1 to Pw- 3 has identified to accused Munna in court properly. On the above point, learned counsel for the appellants has submitted that their test identification parade should be conducted soon after the occurrence. If such parade is taken place with inordinate delay of more than 15 days and his identity has not been described earlier, then in that case, the reliance could not be placed on such test identification parade. In support of his argument he has submitted the case Satrughana Alias Satrughana Parida and others Vs. State of Orissa 1995 Supp (4) SCC 448.

30. On the point of test identification parade it has been held in the case of Pramod Mandal Vs. State of Bihar (2004) 13 SCC 150 in Para- 16,17,18 & 19 is produced as under:-

"16. Learned counsel for the appellant also relied upon the decision of this Court in (1987) 3 SCC 331 : Subhash and Shiv Shankar vs. State of Uttar Pradesh, wherein this Court held that a long interval of nearly 4 months before the Test Identification Parade was held, made it doubtful whether inspite of this interval of time the witnesses were able to have a clear image of the accused in their minds and identify him correctly at the Test Identification Parade. In the instant case the Test Identification Parade was held only a month after the occurrence and not after four months as in the case of Subhash and Shiv Shankar (supra). The delay in the instant case is not such as would cast a doubt on the ability of the witnesses to identify the accused.

17. Learned counsel for the appellant also relied upon the decision of this Court in (1982) 3 SCC 368 : Soni vs. State of Uttar Pradesh. The said judgment is a brief judgment where on the facts of the case the court doubted the identification by the witnesses in view of the delay in holding of the Test Identification Parade. However, this judgment does not lay down any principle of law which may be applied to the facts of the present case. It is a decision on the facts of the case and cannot be treated as a binding precedent. In fact the said judgment was noticed by this Court in (2003) 3 SCC 569 : Anil Kumar vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and this Court after extracting the relevant part of the judgment observed :-

"It is to be seen that apart from stating that delay throws a doubt on the genuineness of the identification parade and observing that after lapse of such a long time it would be difficult for the witnesses to remember the facial expressions, no other reasoning is given why such a small delay would be fatal."

18. Learned counsel for the State submitted that in the instant case there was no inordinate delay in holding the Test Identification Parade so as to create a doubt on the genuineness of the Test Identification Parade. In any event he submitted that even if it is assumed that there was some delay in holding the Test Identification Parade, it was the duty of the accused to question the investigating officer and the Magistrate if any advantage was sought to be taken on account of the delay in holding the Test Identification Parade. Reliance was placed on the judgment of this Court in (1973) 3 SCC 896 : Bharat Singh vs. State of Uttar Pradesh. In the aforesaid judgment this Court observed thus :-

"6. In Hasib v. State of Bihar AIR 1972 SC 283; it was observed by the Court that identification parades belong to the investigation stage and therefore it is desirable to hold them at the earliest opportunity. An early opportunity to identify tends to minimize the chances of the memory of the identifying witnesses fading away due to long lapse of time.

Relying on this decision, counsel for the appellant contends that no support can be derived from what transpired at the parade as it was held long after the arrest of the appellant. Now it is true that in the instant case there was a delay of about three months in holding the identification parade but here again, no questions were asked of the investigating officer as to why and how the delay occurred. It is true that the burden of establishing the guilt is on the prosecution but that theory cannot be carried so far as to hold that the prosecution must lead evidence to rebut all possible defences. If the contention was that the identification parade was held in an irregular manner or that there was an undue delay in holding it, the Magistrate who held the parade and the Police Officer who conducted the investigation should have been cross-examined in that behalf".

In the instant case we find that the defence has not imputed any motive to the prosecution for the delay in holding the Test Identification Parade, nor has the defence alleged that there was any irregularity in the holding of the Test Identification Parade. The evidence of the Magistrates conducting the Test Identification Parade as well as the Investigating Officer have gone unchallenged. Learned counsel for the State is, therefore, justified in contending that in the facts and circumstances of this case the holding of the Test Identification Parade, about one month after the occurrence, is not fatal to the case of the prosecution as there is nothing to suggest that there was any motive for the prosecution to delay the holding of the Test Identification Parade or that any irregularity was committed in holding the Test Identification Parade.

19. Learned counsel for the State has also relied upon the decision of this Court in (2003) 3 SCC 569 : Anil Kumar vs. State of Uttar Pradesh wherein the Test Identification Parade was held 47 days after the arrest of the appellants. This Court after considering several decisions of this Court including the decisions in (1994) 1 SCC 413 : Brij Mohan vs. State of Rajasthan ; (2001) 3 SCC 468 : Daya Singh vs. State of Haryana and (2000) 1 SCC 471 : State of Maharashtra vs. Suresh concluded that since the identifying witness was attacked by the assailants including the appellant and another, he had a clear look at the assailants. When his younger brother came to save him he was killed by the assailants while the witness also received serious injuries. These were circumstances which would have imprinted in the memory of the witness the facial expressions of the assailants and this impression would not diminish or disappear within a period of 47 days. Similar was the case of the father and the mother of the identifying witness who had seen the assailants attacking their sons and one of their sons getting killed. In their memory also the facial expressions of the assailants will get embossed. A mere lapse of 47 days would not erase the facial expressions from their memory."

31. It has also been held by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Sheo Shankar Singh Vs. State of Jharkhand and another (2011) 3 SCC 654 in Para- 46, which is reproduced as under:-

"46. It is fairly well-settled that identification of the accused in the Court by the witness constitutes the substantive evidence in a case although any such identification for the first time at the trial may more often than not appear to be evidence of a weak character. That being so a test identification parade is conducted with a view to strengthening the trustworthiness of the evidence. Such a TIP then provides corroboration to the witness in the Court who claims to identify the accused persons otherwise unknown to him. Test Identification parades, therefore, remain in the realm of investigation."

32. Identification of accused in court is a substantial piece of evidence in present case. Accused/appellants failed to mention any motive for causing voluntarily delay in test identification parade. Apart from that the accused Munna has been identified by all the eye-witnesses in court. There is consistency in evidence on the point of occurrence and on the point of roll played by each accused/appellants in evidence of witnesses Pw- 1 to Pw- 3, which is also corroborated by medical evidence. Therefore, there is no ground to accept that accused appellant Munna was not involved in the crime. The injuries which have been found on the body of deceased Suresh Chandra and on the body of eye-witnesses indicates that weapons, as has been mentioned in F.I.R. and in evidence of witnesses, that one sharp edged weapon, one fire arm, one hard and blunt object including one sharp pointed weapon were used in occurrence. The evidence on record has proved that appellant Bal Kishan was carrying fire-arm (tamancha) in his hand, Lakshmi Prashad was carrying axe and appellant Munna was carrying ballam in his hand, which was used as causing the pointed injury on Chaini as well as pierced injury on deceased and injury of blunt object while using the ballam as lathi.

33. Learned counsel for the appellants has further submitted that the fact came into the F.I.R. and evidence of witnesses of fact that unknown assailants (appellant Munna) pushed his ballam in the wheel of cycle of deceased but there is no description of breaking of spokes (tilies) of cycle wheel. Although, I.O. has not made any description of cycle of deceased Suresh Chandra yet it may be taken as latches in investigation, which is not fatal for prosecution case. The shortcomings in investigation will not affect the credibility of eye-witnesses. It has been held by Hon'ble Apex Court in Sukhchain Singh Vs. State of Haryana & Ors 2002 SCC (Cri.) 961, Allarakha K. Mansuri Vs. State of Gujarat 2002 SCC (Cri.) 519, Kashi Nath Mandal vs The State of West Bengal & Ors 2013 (1) SCC 364 (SC), State Of Karnataka vs K. Yarappa Reddy AIR 2000 SC 185 and by the Co-ordinate Bench of this Court in Umashankar Tivari vs State Of U.P. And Another 2015 (89) SCC 421.

34. It has to be kept in mind that counsel for defence neither asked any explanation nor confronted on above point as according to provisions to Section 145 of Evidence Act in cross-examination of Pw- 7 (investigating officer), therefore appellants cannot raise such defence as grounds for their acquittal at appellate stage.

35. It has also been argued by learned counsel for the appellants that there is no recovery of weapons used in occurrence and there is no F.S.L. report of blood-stained soil, therefore, the prosecution version is not proved. If the investigating officer could not recover the weapons used in occurrence and failed to submit F.S.L. report of blood it may be the laches of investigating proceeding. It has been held by Hon'ble Apex Court has held in Ram Bali Vs. State of U.P. 2004 (2) JIC 168 (SC) that Para- 12.

"12. The investigation was also stated to be defective since the gun was not sent for forensic test. In the case of a defective investigation the Court has to be circumspect in evaluating the evidence. But it would not be right in acquitting an accused person solely on account of the defect; to do so would tantamount to playing into the hands of the investigating officer if the investigation is designedly defective. (See Karnel Singh v. State of M.P. (1995 (5) SCC 518)."

State Of Punjab vs Hakam Singh Appeal (Cri.) 130 of 2000 decided on 31.08.2005 that:-

"The High Court has disbelieved her testimony on the grounds i.e. on the manner of firing and recovery of the guns, non seizure of blood stained clothes but these short-comings hardly impeach her testimony. In order to impeach her testimony technical questions were asked to her which was not the correct approach for discarding her testimony. Therefore, we are of the opinion that the High Court has committed an error in discarding the testimony of this witness on technical grounds de hors the factual statement given by her.

Learned counsel for the respondent has also tried to make out that the defence version is more probable. The defence version was that in fact Bhola Singh who was coming for bus stop was first attacked by the prosecution party and in retaliation the accused persons went there and that the prosecution could not explain the second injury to the deceased Bhola Singh. We do not think that the defence version improbablises the prosecution story. It is just an afterthought theory put up by the defence to improbablise the prosecution story. But the facts as mentioned above particularly the testimony of P.Ws. 3 & 4 sufficiently lend support to the prosecution story.

It was also pointed out by learned counsel for the respondent that no fire arms were recovered and no seizure has been made of empties. It would have been better if this was done and it would have corroborated the prosecution story. Seizure of the fire arms and recovering the empties and sending them for examination by the Ballistic expert would have only corroborated the prosecution case but by not sending them to the Ballistic expert in the present case is not fatal in view of the categorical testimony of P.W. 3 about the whole incident."

The same view has been taken by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Krishna Mochi And Others vs State Of Bihar 2002 (2) J.Cr.C 123 that Para- 81.

"81. It has been then submitted on behalf of the appellants that nothing incriminating could be recovered from them which goes to show that they had no complicity with the crime. In my view, recovery of no incriminating material from the accused cannot alone be taken as a ground to exonerate them from the charges, more so when their participation in the crime is unfolded in ocular account of the occurrence given by the witnesses, whose evidence has been found by me to be unimpeachable"

In the case of Gajoo vs State Of Uttarakhand 2012 (9) SCC 532 and by Co-ordinate Bench of this Court in the case Virendra Singh @ Virendra Pratap Singh Vs. State of U.P. 2015 (2) ACR 1461, Hon'ble Apex Court has laid down the same law.

36. Learned counsel for the appellants has failed to show any cogent reason for false implication of accused appellants.

37. In view of the facts, circumstances and evidence as discussed above, we are of the confirmed view that prosecution has succeed to prove the charges of offence under Section 307 read with Section 34, 302 read with Section 34 and 324 and 323 I.P.C. and no illegality or infirmity is found in the judgement and conviction order of sessions court. Appeals have no force. The appellants who are on bail, will surrender before the C.J.M. concerned immediately, failing which

C.J.M. concerned will issue NBW against accused appellants.

38. If accused appellants appears or brought before C.J.M. concerned they shall be sent to jail for execution of their sentence.

39. Accordingly, both the appeals are dismissed.

THE HON'BLE GAUTAM CHOWDHARY, J.

Criminal Appeal No. 917 of 1992

Chet Ram & Ors. ...Appellants (In Jail)
Versus
State of U.P. ...Opposite Party

Counsel for the Appellants:
Sri Subash Kumar, Sri Amit Kumar Srivastava A/C, Sri Gyanendra Prakash Srivastava, Sri Pankaj Srivastava

Counsel for the Opposite Party:
A.G.A.

A. Criminal Law-Indian Penal Code-Sections 302/34-Appeal against conviction.

Under these circumstances, the very conduct of the informant- the sole eye-witness- becomes improbable and unnatural and his testimony requires independent corroboration, which independent corroboration is woefully lacking in this case. (Para 25)

There was ample occasion for the informant to have ascertained proper condition of the deceased in the day light, but that too was not done. We may observe that these aspects create doubt on the veracity and truthful version of testimony of P.W.1. (Para 26)

We unhesitatingly hold that the eye-witness P.W.1 is not trustworthy and his testimony is inconsistent with his natural conduct after the occurrence had taken place. Here we can safely observe that P.W.1 appears to be an interested witness and under these circumstances, we are of the considered opinion that the argument extended by the learned counsel for the appellant carries substance and the same is worth its credence. (Para 27)

On aforesaid vital aspects and particularly the withholding of the independent witness and more so in the event of non-corroboration of the testimony of P.W.1 in the prevailing facts and circumstances of the case, the trial court misjudged the situation and wrongly appraised the facts, vis-a-vis, circumstances of the case and arrived at wrong conclusion by convicting the accused for charge under Section 302/34 IPC, which finding of conviction and sentence cannot be sustained for the specific reasons aforesaid and the same is liable to be set aside. (Para 28)

Criminal Appeal allowed. (E-2)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Arvind Kumar Mishra-I, J. & Hon'ble Gautam Chowdhary, J.)

(1) Heard Sri Amit Kumar Srivastava, learned amicus curiae for appellant no.1- Chet Ram and Sri Gyanendra Prakash Srivastava, learned counsel for the appellant no.3 Nar Singh, learned A.A.G. assisted by learned A.G.As. for the State and perused the record of this appeal.

(2) By way of instant criminal appeal, challenge has been made to the validity and sustainability of the judgment and order of conviction dated 13.05.1992 passed by IV Additional Sessions Judge, Bareilly, in Sessions Trial No.276 of 1991 (State Vs. Chet Ram and others), arising out of case crime no.258/1990, under Sections 302/34 IPC, Police Station- Subhash Nagar, District- Bareilly, whereby appellants have been sentenced to imprisonment for life.

(3) Appropriate to mention that during the course of appeal appellant no.2- Ghanshyam- and appellant no.4- Mahipal- expired, therefore, their appeal stood abated against them vide order of this Court dated 06.09.2019.

(4) Now, this appeal qua the surviving appellant no.1 Chet Ram and appellant no.3 Nar Singh is for adjudication.

(5) Facts relevant for adjudication of this appeal as reflected from record appear to be that first information report was lodged at Police Station- Subhash Nagar, District- Bareilly by informant- Heera Lal with allegations that yesternight on 18.09.1990 at around 9.00 P.M. he (informant) went to see off his father at the tubewell for sleeping. He was accompanied by Natthu Lal s/o Ram Lal of the village. The electric light was illuminated at the tubewell. The informant along with others arrived at the tubewell and started conversing with each other, in the meanwhile, real cousin brothers of the informant- Chet Ram, Ghanshyam s/o Durga Prasad along with co- villagers, Nar Singh s/o Natthu Lal, Mahipal s/o Durga Prasad- with whom old enmity on account of landed property is going on, possessing countrymade pistol in their hands, appeared on the spot and threatened them that he (the informant) and his father (deceased) will not be spared today, whereupon, the informant and Natthu started running away, when he saw that his father trying to run away and go up- stairs on a bamboo ladder placed at short distance, when all the aforesaid assailants with intention to commit murder, fired upon the father of the informant, whereupon, his (father of the informant) father fell down. The accused also fired on the informant and Natthu. The informant- Heera Lal along with Natthu hid themselves in the field being frightened with the incident. The dead body was stated to have been lying on the spot. It was requested that report be lodged against the accused and action be taken. This report is Exhibit Ka-1.

(6) Relevant entries were made in the concerned check F.I.R. at Case Crime No.258/90, under Sections 302/307 I.P.C. at Police Station- Subhash Nagar, District- Bareilly, which is on record as Ex. Ka.2A.

(7) Pursuant to the entries so made in the check F.I.R., a case was registered against the accused at Rapat No.9 dated 18.09.1990 at 06.10 hours in the concerned General Diary at aforesaid case crime number under aforesaid section of Indian Penal Code, copy whereof is on record as Ex.Ka.3.

(8) The investigation was entrusted to S.I. Sri Anil Kumar Malik. The Investigating Officer- Anil Kumar Malik proceeded to the spot and prepared the inquest report of deceased- Bheem Sen on 18.09.1990, which inquest report has been proved by P.W.3- Harsh Vardhan Gaud. The relevant papers were also prepared at the same time- say- photo of dead body (photo nash)- Exhibit Ka-5, Challan dead body Exhibit Ka-6, letter to R.I. Exhibit Ka-7, letter to C.M.O. Exhibit Ka-8, Specimen Seal Exhibit Ka-9 and these have also been proved by the aforesaid prosecution witness- P.W.3 Harsh Vardhan Gaud. The cadaver of deceased was sent for postmortem examination and site plan of the place of occurrence was prepared by the Investigating Officer- Anil Kumar Malik. The site plan has been proved by the aforesaid prosecution witness- P.W.3 Harsh Vardhan Gaud as Exhibit Ka-10.

(9) Postmortem examination on the cadaver of deceased was conducted on 18.09.1990 at 04.00 P.M. by Dr. A.K. Jain P.W.2, wherein the following ante-mortem injury was noted at the time of examination:

Ante mortem injuries

1. Gun shot wound of entry 4 cm x 2½ cm x chest cavity deep on the right side of chest. 4 cm away from mid-line and 11 cm below of the right scapula. Margins inverted and lacerated blackening present around the wound.

2. A gun shot wound of entry 3 cm x 2 cm x bone deep over the medial side of right below wrist joint. Blackening present around the wound. Margins inverted and lacerated.

3. Exit lacerated wound 10 cm x 6 cm x bone deep through and through over dorsum of right hand, corresponding to injury no.2. Underneath metacarpal bones fractured with pieces.

4. A gun shot wound of entry 3 cm x 2.5 cm x bone deep over back of left hand in the middle margins inverted and lacerated. Blackening, tattooing and scorching present around the wound and over the wrist joint and partly over lower part of left forearm. Underneath metacarpal bones fractured into pieces and one yellow metallic bullet recovered.

5. A gun shot lacerated wound through and through 3 cm x 1 cm on the angle of upper and lower lips.

In the opinion of doctor, cause of death was stated to be haemorrhage and shock as a result of ante-mortem injuries. The postmortem report is Exhibit Ka-2.

(10) Record also reflects that during course of investigation empty cartridges .315 bore and one bullet .315 bore etc. were taken into possession by the police and wrapped in a polythene pack and was sealed in a cloth and after preparing the memo of the same, which is Exhibit Ka-11. The memo of bamboo ladder from the place of occurrence is Exhibit Ka-12. The investigating officer also collected simple soil as well as blood stained soil from the spot and kept it in two separate containers and memo was prepared on 18.09.1990, which is Exhibit Ka-13.

(11) Statement of the prosecution witnesses was recorded and after completing the formalities charge- sheet- Exhibit Ka-14- was filed against the accused. Consequently, the trial commenced and trial Judge charged the accused under Section 302/34 IPC for committing murder of Bheemsen on 17.09.1990 around 9 P.M. within police station- Subhash Nagar. The Charge was read over and explained to the accused, who denied the charge and opted for trial.

(12) In turn, prosecution was asked to adduce its testimony in order to prove the guilt. The prosecution produced in all three witnesses out of whom, one is witness of fact and the rest two are formal witnesses. Brief reference of the prosecution witnesses is ut-infra:-

Heera Lal P.W.1 is the first informant and he claimed himself to be an eye-witness of the occurrence. He has proved written report Ext. Ka.-1.

Dr. A.K. Jain P.W. 2 has conducted post-mortem and has proved post-mortem examination report as Exhibit Ka-2.

In this case, the Anil Kumar Malik, the Investigating Officer has not been examined, however, in order to prove the investigation and the prosecution papers Harsh Vardhan Gaud, P.W.3 has been examined and he has proved the relevant papers on behalf of the Investigating Officer.

(13) Except as above, no other evidence was produced and the statement of the accused was recorded u/s 313 Cr.P.C., wherein they claimed to have been falsely implicated on account of enmity and collusion of the informant with the police.

(14) However, no evidence was led by the defence.

(15) Consequently, the case was posted for hearing of arguments. After considering the case on its merits and appraisal of facts and circumstances and evaluation of evidence on record, the learned trial judge returned aforesaid finding of conviction against the accused and sentenced them to imprisonment for life, which paved way to this appeal.

(16) Consequently, this appeal.

(17) The moot point that arises for adjudication of this appeal relates to the fact whether the incident of murder in question was caused by the appellants and the prosecution has proved the same beyond all reasonable doubt?

(18) Crux contention of the learned counsel for the appellants rest on the anvil that the incident narrated, if assumed to be true, then it is obvious that no one saw the occurrence and it is not supported by the available independent witness- say- Natthu with whom the informant- Heera Lal (son of the deceased) was stated to have been conversing at the tubewell, when the incident occurred. The conduct of the informant is unbecoming of a reasonable prudent man and the same is not proper and it is most unnatural for the reason that assuming it to be that the father of the informant was killed by the four assailants and the informant- the son of the deceased- ran towards the field at a shot distance from the place of occurrence and hid himself in the field and remained there for the whole night, then as per his testimony emerging in his examination-in-chief, he did not care to go to the spot to take stock of the situation about the actual condition of his father after the assailants had secured their escape, instead from the field in the next morning he went straight to his village and from village went to the police station, this is highly improbable conduct. Can it be imagined under circumstance that a person who left the victim running away after being frightened by the fire caused by the assailants would not revisit the spot in the following morning (after the occurrence) and would not see the overall situation of the victim and how can he say with certainty that the victim died on the spot without revisiting on the spot after the occurrence. The examination-in-chief of P.W.1 also supplies the clue that the informant had strong motive to implicate the accused in order to grab the property of his uncle

(taau) Dharam Dass. Next contended, under what circumstances the best testimony of the independent witness-Natthu was withheld by the prosecution, this by itself is indicative of fact that Natthu was not there on the spot at the time of the occurrence and had he been so present and witnessed the incident then he must have been examined by the prosecution in corroboration of the testimony of P.W.1. In this case, the corroboration from the independent witness must have comeforth in the shape of Natthu but he has been withheld for no worthy reason. Had the occurrence taken place at 9 P.M. in the night? The assailants would not have spared the other two witnesses claimed to have been present on the spot. They (accused) being four in number must have chased the informant P.W.1 or at least a gesture chasing him must have been made in order to eliminate them so as not leave any sign of the offence intact regarding the occurrence, but no such whisper in shape of any chase or pursuation by the accused is gathered either from the first information report or from the testimony of P.W.1 Heera Lal-the eye witness informant of the occurrence. The learned trial Judge out of whim and imagination basing his finding on conjuncture and surmises erroneously recorded finding of conviction thus sentenced the accused of charge under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC and sentenced them to imprisonment for life.

(19) Learned A.G.A. while retorting to above contention has vehemently claimed that in this case, the learned trial Judge has rightly acted on the evidence on record and it is trite law that number of the witnesses is not to determine the guilt of accused but the quality evidence and creditworthyness of witness is to be judged in its entirety and this is the crux of Section 134 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872. In this case, the eye account testimony of P.W.1 Heera Lal cannot be brushed aside merely on account of certain behavioral aberrations because the mind set of a person cannot be said to be working systematically and under various prevailing circumstances and the attendant facts of a case it is not possible to behave soberly as a reasonable man but it is the bent of the mind compelled by existing circumstances guides a person, merely because P.W.1 Heera Lal did not revisited the place of occurrence after the occurrence and went straight to the village and from there moved to the police station and lodged the report that would not by itself create any situation for exonerating the appellants. The four appellants arrived on the spot and opened fire by their respective country-made guns. The post-mortem report is indicative of fact that gunshot entry wound and gunshot exit would apart from other gunshots were found as the ante-mortem injuries at the time of the post-mortem examination by the doctor, and this by itself will clinchingly establish harmony between the ocular version of the incident and the post-mortem examination report. These consistence circumstances cannot be by-passed and the trial Judge considered all these aspects-factual and legal in right perspective emerging in the testimony of the prosecution witnesses, vis-a-vis, the attendant facts and circumstances of the case and has justifiably recorded conviction under Section 302/34 IPC and sentenced condingly.

(20) Also considered the rival submissions.

(21) We have before us only one prosecution witness of fact P.W.1 Heera Lal. He has stated in his examination-in-chief that he is in possession of the land of his uncle (taau) Dharam Dass on the basis of will and is ploughing his field on account of which, the accused are on inimical terms with him. Regarding the incident, he has stated that the incident occurred at 9 P.M. at the tubewell, when he went to see off (in the night) his father- Bheem Sen- at the tubewell along with one Natthu Lal s/o Ram Lal of the village. They arrived at the tubewell and all the three were conversing with each other at the door of the tubewell, when Chet Ram, Ghanshyam, Nar Singh and Mahipal possessing country-made gun in their hands appeared on the scene from the western side. There was electricity light on the spot. The accused exhorted that the son and the father will not be spared today, whereupon, all the three started running away and the father of the informant tried to go up- stairs on a bamboo ladder placed at a short distance. At the same time, the accused fired on him due to which informant's father fell down. Besides, the accused also fired towards this witness and Natthu, but they were saved. After firing the accused managed their escape towards western side. However, the informant and Natthu Lal hid themselves inside the chari field the whole night being frighted with the incident. In the morning, they went back to home in village from where they proceeded towards the police station, on way to police station, the informant met with Hemraj and Harvendra with whom the informant was acquainted, therefore, they also accompanied the informant.

The report was scribed by Hemraj outside the police station thereafter it was lodged at the police station. This witness has proved the written report- Exhibit Ka-1. Thereafter the informant and Natthu accompanied the police and arrived on the spot where the cadaver of the informant's father was lying on the place of occurrence. Thereafter necessary formalities were done by he police. It has been stated that Natthu Lal being under fear of the accused is not willing to give evidence. This witness was cross-examined. He has stated in his cross-examination that Sher Singh, who was also present at his tubewell, as he used to remain there during night, did not arrive on the spot and after hearing the sound of the fire, Sher Singh met the informant near the dead body of the informant's father when the informant arrived on the spot with the police.

(22) Further stated in his cross-examination about fact that some altercation has taken place previously between the accused and the informant, whereupon, proceedings under Section 107/116 was drawn between the parties. However, he has stated that this proceeding commenced after the incident of murder. He has also stated that not a single person among the assailants chased them. He has stated that the miscreants had opened fire 4-5 times on the spot. He could not see the direction of the faces of the assailants at the time firing was done. However, he has stated in his cross-examination on page 25 of the paper book that after two and a half hours of the incident, he again arrived on the spot and saw his father; and after seeing his father, informant again went to the 'chari' field and did not weep and cry.

(23) Apart from above factual aspects, no other testimony has come forth. Now, so far as the testimony of P.W.1 Heera Lal in his examination-in-chief and the lodging of the FIR is concerned then there is no whisper about the fact that the informant ever tried to revisit the spot- the place where his father was lying after the occurrence. However, it has emerged only on page no.25 of the paper book in cross-examination that he revisited the place of occurrence two and a half hours after the occurrence. But no details of his reaction afterwards have been furnished.

(24) Now, the conduct of the informant- being son of the deceased- is highly improbable and unnatural to the magnitude that he was not far away from the dead body after the occurrence where he hid himself in a 'chari' field and the next morning after the incident (occurred), he did not think it proper to revisit the spot where his father was lying dead. Instead he went straight back to village and from there proceeded towards the police station. Here also, after reaching his village he did not strive to revisit the spot of occurrence along with the villagers and there prevails abysmal silence on this particular conduct of the informant as to how revisit to the spot under these circumstances was deferred till the arrival of the police on the spot after the report was lodged at the police station. Thus, the conduct of the informant is in itself highly improbable and does not sound and falls inline with that of a ordinary, reasonable and prudent man and cannot be accepted to be natural conduct as such.

(25) Next, under these circumstances, the very conduct of the informant- the sole eye-witness- becomes improbable and unnatural and his testimony requires independent corroboration, which independent corroboration is woefully lacking in this case. The only other eye-witness is stated to be another person- Natthu- who was admittedly there, but he was not examined by the prosecution but withheld as a prosecution witness. The reason assigned for his non- examination is suggested to be fear of the accused. But his non-examination erodes the reality of the prosecution story substantially. This witness (P.W.1) appears to be highly motivated in ensuring false conviction of each of the accused.

(26) Had the incident taken place in the manner and style suggested by the informant himself, then the natural and the proper conduct/reaction would have been that as soon as after the incident had occurred and when all the four assailants had fled away from the scene towards the western side the informant along with Natthu had also secured their escape from the scene of occurrence and hid themselves in a 'chari' field then they had every occasion and reason to have arrived on the spot soon after (the incident) in order to ascertain the condition well being of the deceased- Bheemsen, who was lying on the spot but no such gesture was shown by the informant. Not only this, in the next morning, there was ample occasion for the informant to have ascertained proper condition of the deceased in the day light, but that too was not done. We may observe that these aspects create doubt on the veracity and truthful version of testimony of P.W.1.

(27) Lastly, when the informant reached at his village, he did not strive to come back to the spot and to take stock of the situation. This disinterestedness of the informant in not revisiting the spot after the occurrence generates doubt about the manner and the style of the occurrence that it so occurred and does not inspire confidence and the withholding of the independent witness- Natthu- works fatally to the genuineness and veracity of the prosecution case. Consequently, we unhesitatingly hold that the eye-witness

Heera Lal P.W.1 is not trustworthy and his testimony is inconsistent with his natural conduct after the occurrence had taken place. Here we can safely observe that Heera Lal P.W.1 appears to be an interested witness and under these circumstances, we are of the considered opinion that the argument extended by the learned counsel for the appellant carries substance and the same is worth its credence.

(28) On aforesaid vital aspects and particularly the withholding of the independent witness and more so in the event of non-corroboration of the testimony of P.W.1 Heera Lal in the prevailing facts and circumstances of the case, the trial court misjudged the situation and wrongly appraised the facts, vis-a-vis, circumstances of the case and arrived at wrong conclusion by convicting the accused for charge under Section 302/34 IPC, which finding of conviction and sentence cannot be sustained for the specific reasons aforesaid and the same is liable to be set aside.

(29) Consequently, the judgment and order of conviction dated dated 13.05.1992 passed by IV Additional Sessions Judge, Bareilly, in Sessions Trial No.276 of 1991 (State Vs. Chet Ram and others), arising out of case crime no.258/1990, under Sections 302/34 IPC, Police Station- Subhash Nagar, District- Bareilly is hereby set aside and the appeal is allowed. Accused-appellants are acquitted of all charges as above.

(30) In this case, the accused-appellants are on bail. They need not surrender in this case. Their bail bonds are cancelled and sureties are discharged. However, they shall furnish surety bonds in compliance with Section 437-A Cr.P.C.

(31) Let a copy of this order be certified to the concerned trial court for its intimation and follow up action.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION
CRIMINAL SIDE

BEFORE
THE HON'BLE DINESH KUMAR SINGH-I, J.

Criminal Appeal No. 939 of 1985

Peeru & Ors. ...Appellants

Versus

State of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellants:
Sri S.A. Gulani, Sri Abhishek Ahuja, Sri M.J. Akhtar

Counsel for the Respondent:
C.S.C.

A. Criminal Law-Indian Penal Code-Sections 147, 148, 149 and 326 - Appeal against conviction.

The statements of these two witnesses were found to be in corroboration with the statement of doctors PW2 and PW4. The genuineness of the medical examination report of the two injured have been admitted from the side of the accused and therefore no detailed examination-in-chief has been recorded of this witness. (Para 19)

The injury memos which have been proved by doctor, show that injured person had suffered as many as 14 injuries on his person which were caused to him by acid. Another injured person was also injured in this case, has suffered as many as nine acid injuries. The other doctor which has been examined from the side of the prosecution is Dr. T.P. Agarwal, who has stated in examination-in- chief as PW6 that he had examined the injured and had found that the skin over and below the right eye was burnt. Vision of the right eye had absolutely gone as he was not able to count fingers and has proved medical examination report prepared by him. This witness has proved that vision of right eye had been totally destroyed by this assault. (Para 20)

His testimony does not cast any doubt on the truthfulness of his statement. His evidence is absolutely believable with regard to three accused. (Para 22)

After having scanned entire fact of the case as well as evidence on record, the prosecution has been able to prove the case against the accused who were directly responsible for causing acid burn injuries but so far as the appellant, co-accused are concerned, it appears that they have been falsely implicated because of enmity as there is no role assigned to them except that of instigating the main accused. (Para 24)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dinesh Kumar Singh-I, J.)

1. Heard Sri M.J. Akhtar, learned counsel for the appellant no.4, Sri G.P. Singh, learned A.G.A. and perused the record

2. This appeal has been preferred against the judgment and order dated 04.04.1985 passed by 5th Additional and Sessions Judge, Ghaziabad in S.T. No. 413 of 1983 (State vs. Jabbar and others) whereby the accused Peeru, Jabbar, Shabban have been found guilty under section 148 and 326 IPC and they have been convicted. The accused Gaffar and Nanva have been found guilty under section 147 and 326 IPC read with section 149 IPC and they have been convicted. The accused Peeru, Jabbar and Shabban have been sentenced under section 148 IPC with one year R.I. each; under section 326 IPC five years R.I. each, Accused Gaffar, Nanva have been sentenced one year R.I. each under section 147 IPC and three years R.I. each under section 326 read with 149 IPC. All the sentences are directed to run concurrently.

3. Out of the above accused-appellants, accused-appellant no.1, Peeru, accused-appellant no.2 Jabbar, accused-appellant no.3 Shabban and accused appellant no. 5 Nanva have died and their appeals have been abated vide order dated 11.07.2019. Therefore, the appeal of accused-appellant no.4 Gaffar remains for consideration of this Court.

4. The prosecution case as per FIR is that on 20.9.1983 at about 2.30 P.M. when informant Abdul Waheed had gone to see cinema in Jaina Talkies Hapur with Shahabuddin @ Sabu (PW1) and was sitting in the class chargeable with Rs.4.00, beside them other persons were also sitting. The news reel was going on. Light was also on. All of a sudden, the accused-appellants, who belonged to the Mohalla of Shahabuddin @ Sabu, out of whom appellants, Peeru, Jabbar and Shabban were having container in their hands, rest of them were empty handed. Nanva and Gaffar instructed "Tejab Dalo Sabu aur Waheed Par". Throw acid on Sabu and Waheed. They should not be left alive. On this instigation, all the three co-accused Peeru, Jabbar and Shabban had thrown acid from the container upon the informant and Shahabuddin @ Sabu with an intention to kill them. The said acid also fell upon Mohd. Yunus, Munshi of an Advocate Devendra Kumar Tyagi, who was sitting by the side of Shahabuddin @

Sabu. By this episode, stampede followed and one of the containers fell on the spot. Jabbar and others fled from hall. The said occurrence was seen by informant, Abdul Waheed (PW3), Shahabuddin @ Sabu (PW1) (injured), Mohd. Yunus, Pavva son of Ishaq Haneef and many other persons, who were sitting in the hall. By falling of the said acid, Shahabuddin @ Sabu and Mohd. Yunus became seriously injured and the condition of Shahabuddin @ Sabu became critical. The accused Jabbar wanted to marry forcibly with the sister of Shahabuddin @ Sabu regarding which a complaint was also given by him (Sabu) at the police station. About 4-5 months prior to this occurrence, the informant and Shahabuddin @ Sabu were also beaten by accused Jabbar, Gaffar and Peeru regarding which report was lodged by the informant at police station Hapur. Thereafter about 2 ½ months ago, Shahabuddin @ Sabu was also beaten by Shabban, Nanva, Jabbar and Gaffar in Ghaziabad also. Regarding which, Shahabuddin @ Sabu had lodged report at police station Sihani Gate. Because of this enmity, Jabbar and others had given effect to the present occurrence. From the place of incident, empty container was collected and after taking it, Shahabuddin @ Sabu, Mohd. Yunus and informant went to the police station to lodge FIR.

5. On the written report (Exhibit Ka-3), chik FIR (Exhibit Ka-9) was prepared at police station, Hapur on 20.9.1983 at 3.35 P.M. After registering, the case crime no.515 of 1983 under sections 147, 148, 307 and 326 IPC against the accused-applicants, entry of which was made in G.D. on the same date, which is Exhibit Ka-10, the investigation was handed over to S.I. Mulayam Singh (PW5), who conducted investigation in this case and prepared site plan at the instance of the informant, which is Exhibit Ka-6 and submitted charge-sheet (Exhibit Ka-7) against the accused applicants.

6. On the basis of evidence on record, charge was framed against the accused-appellants Gaffar and Nanva on 15.2.1984 under sections 147, 307 read with 149, 326 read with 149 IPC and on the same day charge under sections 148, 307 read with 149 and 326 read with 149 IPC were framed against the accused Peeru, Jabbar and Shabban to which all the accused pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried.

7. Thereafter from the side of the prosecution injured Shahabuddin @ Sabu as PW-1, Dr. R.D. Gupta as PW-2, Abdul Waheed as PW-3, Dr. N.K. Sharma, as PW-4, S.I. Mulayam Singh as PW-5, Dr. D.P. Agarwal as PW-6, Constable Mahipal as PW-7 and Mohd. Yunus as CW-1 have been examined. Thereafter, the evidence of prosecution was closed and the statements of accused were recorded under section 313 Cr.P.C. in which plea of false implication has been taken and in defence Jai Bhagwan Sharma as DW1 has been examined.

8. The court below after having considered the entire evidence on record has convicted the accused-appellants and awarded punishment as mentioned above.

9. Learned counsel for the appellant no. 4 has argued that the appellant no. 4 had no direct role in giving effect to the occurrence because he has been assigned the role of only instigation, actually main role has been assigned to co-accused namely, Jabbar, Peeru and Shabban, who were carrying container full of acid which is said to have been thrown at the instigation of co-accused Jabbar and co-accused Nanva. The said allegation of even instigation is false as no such instigation was ever given nor there is any evidence on record and yet Gaffar has been convicted under the abovementioned sections, therefore, he should be acquitted.

10. In order to appreciate the argument of both the parties, the evidence of witnesses, which have been adduced from the side of prosecution need to be scrutinized.

11. Shahabuddin @ Sabu who is injured in this case has stated in examination in chief that about 11 months ago, he had gone to Jaina Talkies, Hapur with Abdul Waheed (PW3) at about 2.30 p.m. and was sitting in the hall. Amar Akbar Anthony film was going on. At about 2.30 to 3.00 p.m. accused Jabbar, Peeru, Shabban were having containers full with acid while Nanva and Gaffar (appellant no.4) were empty handed. Gaffar and Nanva instructed the accused Jabbar, Peeru and Shabban that they should throw acid upon Abdul Waheed and Shahabuddin @ Sabu. They should not be left alive and then Jabbar, Peeru, Shabban had thrown acid upon PW1 and Abdul Waheed (PW3). Thereafter, the informant after making him sit on a Rikshaw, had taken him to police station and there Abdul Waheed had lodged report and thereafter PW1 was referred to Hapur Medical College and from there doctor had referred him to Meerut Medical College. He was not given any treatment at Hapur. He very well recognized all the accused-appellants from before. This offence was committed because accused Jabbar wanted to marry his sister for which PW1 had declined. This led to the annoyance of the accused. He had lost his eye sight absolutely.

12. In cross examination this witness has stated that Nanva and Shabban are real brothers. He does know whether accused Peeru had lodged any report prior to this occurrence against PW1 in respect of an occurrence given effect to by knife. But further he has stated that at his complaint, he had got himself bailed out and Shabban and Nanva were witness in that report. Jabbar, Gaffar (appellant) and Peeru are three real brothers, who lived in his Mohalla. On the date of occurrence, first show started at 11.30 p.m. and it used to finish at about 2.00 to 2.30 p.m. They had entered the hall before 4-5 minutes of this occurrence. Abdul Waheed (PW3) was sitting to the left of him. He had heard after reaching the hospital that acid was also thrown upon a Munshi of an advocate. His name was Yunus and he came to know about his name subsequently. About 2-3 minutes after the acid was thrown upon him, he went to the police station. The whole body was burning although he had not fainted. He stayed at police station for about 10 minutes. He did not go inside the police station after alighting from Rikshaw rather remained stayed on the gate of the police station. Abdul Waheed has lodged the report from outside the gate of the police station in his presence. He came to know at the police station that the constable had come out because he was not in a position to see them and due to this reason, he could not tell as to who had written the report. No one had interrogated him. After lodging the report, he was taken to Hapur hospital where he was not given treatment and had stayed there hardly 2-4 minutes. His father had taken him to Merrut and with him some police personnel were also there and had reached there at about 4.00 p.m. When he reached inside the cinema hall, advertisements were going on and when the accused came very close, then he saw them. The accused had come to the seats, which was ahead of the seat of PW1 and after coming there, Jabbar and Nanva had thrown the acid upon him. His statement was recorded by the Investigating Officer about 8-10 days after the occurrence, to whom he had stated that accused were sitting in the next row and when he saw them, immediately the accused had stood up. He had not seen them coming but he had not told the Investigating Officer that right then all of a sudden Peeru, Nanva, Jabbar, Gaffar, appellant and Shabban of his Mohalla came to cinema hall and entered in the same class, in the next row of which the PW1 was sitting. He had not told him that they were having containers in their hands. Further he has stated that all the accused had come in the row of seats which was in front and all of them had stood in a line. Gaffar, Appellant and Nanva were sitting to the left of him and rest of the three were to the right of him in standing position. When he had seen all the accused sitting in front row, he did not feel that he was having any fear but when they stood up, then he felt that there was some danger. He could not defend himself before the acid was thrown upon him. When acid fell upon him, he was sitting on the seat but cannot tell whether the acid had fallen on the seat or not. The constable remains on duty in picture hall, he does not know. There was also one gate keeper on the gate in the hall. It is wrong to say that picture was going on and somebody else had thrown acid upon him and he could not recognize them and was making false statement. His clothes were also taken at the police station. There were people sitting behind his row also. He did not pay attention to the people coming inside the hall. As soon as he sat inside the hall advertisement and news reel had started. First of all Jabbar had thrown acid upon his face and the said acid also fell in front row as well as upon him and soon thereafter he stood up. Thereafter, who had thrown acid, he could not know but the acid was thrown by the rest of the two accused but he could not see because his vision has gone. When the people in the hall started raising alarm "Pakro Pakro" all people stood up and stampede followed, this commotion started by the persons sitting about 5-7 feet away from him.

13. The statement of this witness have very emphatically come on record to the effect that it was Jabbar, who was the main culprit who had thrown acid upon him and rest of the two accused Peeru and Shabban are also stated to have thrown acid upon him and Abdul Waheed but he has rightly stated that he could not see the other two accused by then his vision has gone due to acid falling upon him, therefore, the statement of this witness is truthful in regard to throwing acid by Jabbar. The statement of this witness that the said occurrence was given effect to at the instance of Nanva and Gaffar, appellant is found to be correct since all the accused were close to each other. Nanva and Jabbar are said to be brother while Gaffar and Peeru are also said to be brother of each other, it could be possible that the name of Gaffar, appellant and Peeru would have been taken in order to implicate all of them but the occurrence was committed only by Jabbar as per this witness.

14. The other injured witness of this case is Abdul Waheed who has been examined as PW3. The said witness has stated in examination-in-chief that he had accompanied Shahabuddin @ Sabu to cinema hall where news reel was going on, soon after five persons came to the place where they were sitting to the front first row namely, Gaffar, appellant, Peeru, Jabbar and Shabban, who are present in Court. Nanva and Gaffar, appellant were empty hands while Jabbar, Peeru and Shabban were having containers in their hands. Gaffar, appellant and Nanva told the other three accused, pointing towards Waheed and Sabu that they were sitting and that acid be thrown upon them. They should not be allowed to escape. Thereafter, Peeru, Jabbar and Shabban had thrown acid from their containers which fell upon Shahabuddin @ Sabu and PW3. Beside PW3, one Munshi of an Advocate namely, Yunus was sitting and acid also fell on him. At that time, lights were on of the hall but there were curtains on the gate. Accused person who had thrown acid upon them had fled from there. Thereafter, PW3 and his companion Shahabuddin @ Sabu also came out and went to police station. When they reached outside the gate of Tehsil, there was huge crowd assembled. He asked one gentleman to scribe report who had written the report and the same was thereafter signed by him, which is Exhibit Ka-3. He has gone to police station to lodge the report. Tehsil and police station are located in the same boundary, thereafter police personnel had taken them to hospital where he was medically examined while Shahabuddin @ Sabu was referred to Hapur forthwith and from there to Meerut.

15. In cross-examination, this witness has stated that Peeru had lodged a report against him regarding assaulting upon him with knife, which occurrence took place about 4-5 months ago. He does not know whether Nanva was a witness against him and whether hearing in this case had begun in the Court. This occurrence had taken place after 5-6 minutes of their entering the hall. They had sat on the opposite side from where they had entered the hall and were sitting on the second row. They were sitting almost in the middle of the hall. The door of the side from where people were entering after purchasing the ticket was open while the door on the other side was closed. Till the time this occurrence took place, people were still coming inside the hall. In the hall, one gate keeper was there. First of all, when he saw the accused, then they had said to throw acid. When they said to throw acid then they were standing in the next row ahead in bent condition. He was sitting after leaving two seats from gallery. Shahabuddin @ Sabu was sitting to the right side of him and Mian Munad was sitting on the left side but he does not recollect whether Mian Munad was sitting there from before or had sat there after his coming in the hall. In the front row ahead of the row in which he was sitting, the accused Jabbar, thereafter Shabban, thereafter Peeru were sitting. They were sitting to his left side and Peeru, thereafter Nanva and thereafter Gaffar and appellants were sitting and all of them had thrown together acid upon them.

16. In front of PW3 was Shabban. Acid fell upon his face, legs and neck, thereafter accused fled towards the curtain but he could not see from which gate, they fled. The accused had aluminum container in which amul milk for children is kept. Soon after having thrown the acid, he and Shahabuddin @ Sabu came to the rear gate of the hall together holding hands of each other and from there they went to police station on a rickshaw. After throwing acid upon him till reaching the police station, he did not tell about this occurrence to anyone. After purchasing ticket till entering the hall, he had not seen any of the accused and after having sat there for 6-7 minutes, he saw the accused person. All the three accused had thrown acid simultaneously. Acid certainly must have fallen on the seat but he could not see it. Soon after throwing of acid, he had raised alarm which led to stampede, since the PW3 was not in full control of his sense.

17. It is right to say that Peeru had lodged a case against him under section 107/16 Cr.P.C. in which action was taken.

18. The said statement of the witness clearly indicates that main emphasis is that there were three accused who had together thrown acid upon him and Shahabuddin @ Sabu by which they had suffered injuries though this witness has tried to communicate that the other two accused Nanva and Gaffar also were accompanied by the other three accused namely, Jabbar, Peeru and Shabban who are said to have thrown acid together from the container taken in their hands but I find that his testimony is not very confidence inspiring with respect to Nanva and Gaffar, appellant. He has admitted about enmity between two sides and including enmity of his own with one of the accused Peeru as one case was lodged by Peeru against him for assaulting him by knife, therefore, it could be possible that due to said enmity the name of Gaffar and other appellants would also have been taken by this witness so that all the accused were implicated in this case. The evidence appears to be on record only against three accused namely, Jabbar, Peeru and Shabban who had actually thrown acid upon him and co-injured Shahab Uddin.

19. The statements of these two witnesses were found to be in corroboration with the statement of Dr. R.D. Gupta, PW2 and Dr. N.K. Gupta, PW4. The genuineness of the medical examination report of the two injured namely, Shahabuddin @ Sabu and Abdul Waheed have been admitted from the side of the accused which are Exhibit Ka-1 and Exhibit Ka-2 and therefore no detailed examination-in-chief has been recorded of this witness. This witness has stated that the injuries which have been received by them could be caused on 20.09.1983 at 2.30 p.m.

20. In cross-examination, this witness has stated that the acid was of the kind which could cause burn injury. The burns suffered by the injured were deep burn. This witness has been cross examined at length by the defence but nothing such has been said by this witness which would make it possible to disbelieve his statement given in examination-in -chief. The injury memos which have been proved by this doctor, show that Abdul Waheed had suffered as many as 14 injuries on his person which were caused to him by acid (Exhibit Ka-2). Mohd. Yunus who also was injured in this case, has suffered as many as nine acid injuries (Exhibit Ka-1). The other doctor which has been examined from the side of the prosecution is Dr. T.P. Agarwal, who has stated in examination-in- chief as PW6 that he had examined the injured Shahabuddin @ Sabu on 27.9.1983 and had found that the skin over and below the right eye was burnt. Vision of the right eye had absolutely gone as he was not able to count fingers and has proved medical examination report Exhibit Ka-8 prepared by him. This witness has proved that vision of right eye had been totally destroyed by this assault.

21. In view of the statement of these two witnesses i.e. PW-2 and PW-6 have proved beyond doubt that it was the injuries caused by Jabbar, Peeru and Shabban but these injuries were caused by throwing acid upon them, which has resulted in serious injuries so-much-so that vision of Shahabuddin @ Sabu has absolutely gone, therefore, prosecution has succeeded in proving the case against the main accused Jabbar and Shabban.

22. Investigating Officer, S.I. Mulayam Singh PW-4 has proved the site plan as well as charge sheet, clothes and other things of the injured which were taken in possession in pursuance to the occurrence. His testimony does not cast any doubt on the truthfulness of his statement. His evidence is absolutely believable with regard to three accused namely, Jabbar, Peeru and Shabban.

23. PW-7 Constable Mahipal is formal witness who has simply prepared chik and G.D. and has proved them, therefore, no detailed analysis is required of his statement.

24. After having scanned entire fact of the case as well as evidence on record, I am of the opinion that the prosecution has been able to prove the case against the accused Jabbar, Peeru and Shabban only who were directly responsible for causing acid burn injuries to Shahabuddin @ Sabu PW-1, Abdul Waheed, PW3 and one Munshi of an Advocate Yunus but so far as the appellant Gaffar, co-accused Nanva are concerned, it appears that they have been falsely implicated because of enmity as there is no role assigned to them except that of instigating the main accused named-above to throw acid upon the injured.

25. In view of analysis, I find that the co-accused Gaffar, appellant, whose case is being considered by this Court as he is the only accused alive, whereas all of them have already died, is not found guilty of charges under sections 147 and 326 IPC read with section 149 IPC, P.S. Hapur, District Hapur, accordingly, he stands acquitted of the said charges.

26. Appeal stands allowed.

27. Let a copy of this judgment be transmitted to the trial court along with lower court record promptly for immediate compliance.

Criminal Appeal No. 1445 of 2015

Noor Mohammad ...Appellant (In Jail)
Versus
State of U.P. ...Opposite Party

Counsel for the Appellant:
Sri Santosh Tripathi, Sri Ajay Kr. Srivastava, Sri Rajiv Lochan Shukla, Sri Sanjay Kumar Srivastava, Sri Syed Shahnawaz Shah

Counsel for the Opposite Party:

Sri Ashwani Prakash Tripathi, A.G.A.

A. Criminal Law-Indian Penal Code-Sections 304B, 498A, 302/34 and 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act- Appeal against conviction.

In view of evidence on record, it cannot be held that deceased suffered death due to strangulation or that the death of the deceased was homicidal in nature. If medical evidence suggests that death of deceased took place due to suicide, the accused cannot be held guilty for murder punishable under section 302 IPC. Learned trial Court has not made any discussion as to on what basis death of deceased has been found homicidal in nature and without making any such discussion and without rendering any such conclusion. (Para 27)

It is not possible to convert conviction of accused-appellant from section 302 IPC to section 304-B , 498-A IPC and section 3/4 DP Act, particularly when no appeal has been filed against acquittal of accused-appellant under section 304-B , 498-A IPC and section 3/4 DP Act. (Para 28)

The substance of evidence conclusively establishes that accused-appellant was persistently harassing and ill-treating the deceased as he was dissatisfied with the dowry. (Para 29)

In view of aforesaid, conviction and sentence of accused-appellant under section 302 IPC is set aside and the accused-appellant is convicted under Section 306 IPC. (Para 34)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Raj Beer Singh, J.)

1. This appeal has been preferred against judgment and order dated 03.03.2015 passed by the learned Additional Sessions Judgment, Court No.5, Ghaziabad in Session Trial No. 675 of 2013 (State vs. Noor Mohammad and three others) under Sections 304B, 498A, 302/34 IPC and 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act, Case Crime No. 318 of 2013, Police Station Loni, District Ghaziabad, whereby the accused-appellant Noor Mohammad has been convicted under Section 302 of IPC and sentenced to imprisonment for life along with fine of Rs. 20,000/-. In default of payment of fine he has to undergo one year simple imprisonment. However, he was acquitted of charge under Sections 304B, 498A IPC and 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act. Co-accused Akbar Ali, Sarvari and Imran were acquitted of charge under Sections 304B, 498-A, 302/ 34 IPC and 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act.

2. As per prosecution version, marriage of complainant's sister Abida (deceased) was solemnized with accused-appellant Noor Mohammad, two years prior to incident but after marriage accused-appellant and his family members including father Akbar Ali, mother Sarvari and brother Imran used to demand motorcycle, golden chain and cash of Rs. 1 lakh as additional dowry and on that account they used to beat and harass the deceased. On 11.02.2013, complainant Mausam Ali (PW-1) got information that his sister has died and when he reached there he found that dead body of his sister was lying on bed and her husband and in-laws have already fled away from there.

3. Complainant Mausam Ali (PW-1) reported the matter to police by submitting written complaint Ex. Ka-1 and on that basis FIR was registered on 11.02.2013 at 19:20 hours vide FIR Ex. Ka-5, under Sections 498A, 304B IPC and 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act against accused-appellant Noor Mohammad and other accused persons, namely, Akbar Ali, Sarvari and Imran.

4. Police reached at the spot and inquest proceedings were conducted by PW-6 Yaduvir Singh (Naib Tehsildar) vide inquest report Ex. Ka- 2 and dead body of the deceased was sent for postmortem.

5. Postmortem on the dead body of deceased was conducted on 12.02.2013 by PW-8 Dr. Sunil Katiyar vide postmortem report Ex. Ka-6 and following injuries were found on the person of deceased:

(i) ligature mark 6 cm x 1 cm on anterior aspect of neck above thyroid cartilage and 3 cm below chin. On dissection white glistening membrane parchment like present under the ligature mark.

As per Autopsy Surgeon, cause of death of the deceased was due to asphyxia as a result of ante-mortem hanging.

6. Investigation of the case was conducted by PW-9 Circle Officer Arvind Kumar Yadav. One scarf (dupatta) of the deceased was seized from the spot vide seizure memo Ex. Ka- 3. Statements of witnesses were recorded and after investigation all the four accused persons were charge-sheeted for the offences under Sections 304B, 498A IPC and 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act.

7. Learned trial Court framed charges 304B, 498A IPC and 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act against all the four accused persons and alternative charge under Sections 302/34 IPC was also framed against all the four accused persons, namely, Noor Mohammad, Sarvari, Akbar Ali and Imran. Accused persons pleaded not guilty and claimed trial.

8. In order to bring home the guilt of accused-appellants, prosecution has examined nine witnesses. After prosecution evidence, accused persons were examined under Section 313 of Cr.P.C., wherein, they have denied the prosecution evidence and claimed false implication.

9. In defence one Islam was examined as DW-1.

10. After hearing and analyzing the evidence on record, trial Court acquitted accused persons, namely, Akbar Ali, Sarvari, Imran of charges under Sections 304B, 498A, 302/34 IPC and 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act whereas accused-appellant Noor Mohammad was convicted under Section 302 IPC and was sentenced as stated in paragraph no.1 of this judgment.

11. Being aggrieved by the impugned judgment, accused-appellant has preferred the present appeal.

12. Heard Sri Syed Shahnawaz Shah, learned counsel for the appellant and Sri Ashwani Prakash Tripathi, learned A.G.A for the State and perused the record.

13. Learned counsel for the appellant has submitted:

(i) that there is no evidence that accused-appellant has committed murder of his own wife. It was submitted that there is consistent evidence that deceased has committed suicide. As per postmortem report, cause of death was shown asphyxia as a result of anti-mortem hanging and in view of statement of PW-8 Dr. Sunil Katyal, who has conducted postmortem of the deceased, it is clear that deceased has committed suicide and thus, no case under Section 302 IPC is made out. It was stated that for conviction under Section 302 IPC some positive evidence is required against accused whereas in instant case there was no such evidence and in matrimonial home of accused-appellant, other inmates of house were also residing

(ii) that there is no evidence that deceased was harassed by accused-appellant on account of dowry or that she was subjected to cruelty soon before her death. It was pointed out that as per prosecution version, deceased has come at her matrimonial home only one week before the incident and before that she has resided at her parental home for about seven months and thus, during that period of seven months, there is no question of any harassment or dowry demand by the accused-appellant. It was stated that only within period of one week it is not possible that accused persons might have harassed the deceased to this extent that she would commit suicide.

(iii) that as there is no evidence of dowry demand and cruelty soon before death and thus, no offence under Section 304-B IPC is made out.

(iv) that as the deceased has resided for seven months at her parental home and she has come at her matrimonial home only one week before the incident and thus, it cannot be believed that during such period of one week deceased was abated to commit suicide. It was further submitted that at the most offence under Section 306 IPC may be made out against appellant, whereas accused-appellant has already undergone sentence of about seven years.

14. Per contra, it has been submitted by learned State counsel that there is clear and cogent evidence that the deceased was harassed for dowry as demand of motorcycle, golden chain and cash of Rs.1 lakhs was made from her as well as from the complainant. It was due to harassment meted out by accused-appellant that deceased has to resided at her parental home for seven months and after intervention of some persons she was brought back to her matrimonial home by accused-appellant by promising that he would not harass her. Deceased has suffered unnatural death within two years of her marriage at her matrimonial home.

It was further submitted that as alleged incident took place inside the matrimonial home, burden shifts to accused-appellant to explain under what circumstances deceased has suffered death, but the accused-appellant has not offered any such explanation and even in his statement recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. he has simply denied prosecution evidence. It was further pointed out that conduct of accused-appellant is highly inculpatory as after incident, he neither informed the police nor the family members of deceased were informed, rather he as well as his other family members have fled away from their home leaving dead body of the deceased there. It was argued that all the facts and circumstances of case and evidence on record clearly indicate that it was accused-appellant who has caused death of deceased.

15. We have considered the rival submissions and perused the record.

16. In evidence, PW-1 Mausam Ali, who is complainant and brother of deceased, stated that marriage of his younger sister Abida was solemnized with accused-appellant on 17.04.2011. At that time accused and his family members were residing at Shiv Vihar in Delhi but later on they have shifted to Loni, Ghaziabad and all family members were residing jointly. Accused persons were not satisfied with the dowry given in marriage and they used to demand golden chain, motorcycle and cash of Rs. 1 lakh and on that account, they used to beat and harass the deceased. Whenever deceased used to visit at her parental home, she used to tell about these things. PW-1 and his other family members have tried to make the appellant and his family members understand and requested them not to harass the deceased but they still persisted for demand of Rs. one lakh cash, motorcycle and golden chain and as complainant could not fulfill their demand, deceased remained at her parental home for about seven months. After that on intervention of some persons of society, accused-appellant and his family members have promised that they would not harass the deceased and would not make any demand and they have taken deceased to her matrimonial home only nine days before incident. But they again harassed her there. PW-1 further stated that on 11.02.2013 his cousin, who was residing at Loni, informed him that husband and in-laws of Abida have killed her by hanging. PW-1 and his family members went there and found that deceased was lying dead on bed and thereafter complainant has reported the matter to police by submitting written complaint Ex. Ka-1. He has also stated that during investigation one stole was seized by police vide memo Ex. Ka- 2.

17. PW-2 Rozudeen, who is father of the deceased, deposed that marriage of his daughter Abida was solemnized with accused-appellant Noor Mohammad on 17.4.2011 but the accused persons were not satisfied with dowry given at the time of marriage and they used to demand golden chain, motorcycle and cash of Rs. one lakh. Abida has told these things to him and due to this reason, deceased has resided at his home for about 8-10 months. Keeping in view the future of deceased, they have not made any complaint. However, thereafter accused persons have admitted their fault and promised that they would not give rise any occasion of making complaint and deceased was again sent with accused-appellant Noor Mohammad. After one week, on 11.02.2013 at around 6:00 p.m., his nephew Nawab Ali has informed that in-laws of Abida have killed her by hanging. PW-2 stated that he and his family members went there and found that dead body of deceased was lying on bed and all the accused-persons have fled away from there.

18. PW-3 Mohammad Yunus stated that marriage of daughter of Rozudeen, namely Abida was solemnized with Noor Mohammad on 17.11.2014 but after 5-6 months of marriage, Abida stayed at her parental home for many days as her in-laws used to demand motorcycle, golden chain and cash of Rs. 5 lakh. However, after sometime Noor Mohammad and his father were called and by intervention of some public person, accused persons have sought pardon and thereafter deceased was sent with accused-appellant but on 11.02.2013 they received information that accused have killed deceased by hanging on account of non-fulfillment of demand of dowry.

19. PW-4 Nawab Ali is cousin of deceased and he was residing at Loni and he has stated that marriage of Abida was solemnized with Noor Mohammad on 17.11.2014. After some days of marriage she was harassed by her husband and his family members for dowry and they used to demand motorcycle, cash of Rs. one lakh and golden chain. Abida has told him about these things. PW-4 further stated that after 2-3 months of marriage, when he has gone to meet Abida at her matrimonial home, she was quite sad and she has told that her husband and her in-laws were demanding motorcycle, golden chain and cash of Rs. one lakhs and on that account, they used to harass her. Efforts were made to make them understand but they did not agree. Abida came back to her father's home and after sometime due to intervention of some persons of society, on promise of accused-appellant and his family members that they would not make any demand and would not harass her, deceased was sent with accused-appellant Noor Mohammad to her matrimonial home. After one week, when he was passing through near house of Noor Mohammad, he came to know that deceased has died and all family members of Noor Mohammad have fled away from there and thereafter he has informed family members of deceased.

20. PW-5 Qaiyum is also brother of deceased and he stated that marriage of Abida was solemnized with Noor Mohammad on 17.04.2011 but her husband and his family members were not satisfied with given dowry and they used to demand motorcycle, golden chain and cash of Rs. one lakh in dowry and on that account they used to beat her. Abida has told about these things to him and his father and brother. They have tried to make her husband and his family members understand about their inability to fulfill demand, but in vain and resultantly for about seven months, deceased has resided at her parental house. Later on due to intervention of some relatives, accused-appellant Noor Mohammad and his father have admitted their mistake and assured that now they would not harass the deceased and on such assurance, deceased was sent with Noor Mohammad. But after about one week of the same, on 11.02.2013 his cousin Nawab Ali informed that accused persons have killed Abida by hanging, due to non fulfillment of demand of dowry.

21. PW-6 Yaduvir Singh Naib Tehsildar has conducted inquest proceedings marked as Ex. Ka.2.

22. PW-7 constable Manoj Kumar has recorded FIR who proved the chick FIR exhibited as Ex. Ka.4.

23. PW-8 Dr. Sunil Katyal has conducted postmortem on dead body of deceased and proved the postmortem report exhibited as Ex. Ka.6.

24. PW-9 Circle Officer, Arvind Kumar Yadav has investigated the case. He has prepared site plan of spot vide Ex. Ka-7 and after completion of investigation charge-sheet was filed.

25. DW-1 Islam has stated that accused persons were known to him since 15-20 years. Akabar was residing at Shiv Vihar in Delhi and Akbar and Noor Mohammad used to run a shop from 6:00 AM to 9:00 PM. wife of Noor Mohammad has died in February 2013 and on the day of incident Noor Mohammad and Akbar were at their shop. He stated that Noor Mohammad and Akbar were residing with him since last 3-4 months prior to incident as Akbar has sold his house and he has purchased a house at Loni, Mustafabad but Akbar has not shifted there.

26. In this case, it is not in dispute that deceased has suffered unnatural death at her matrimonial home within two years of her marriage and accused-appellant has been convicted under Section 302 IPC. The first question that arises for consideration is that whether the death of deceased was homicidal or suicidal in nature. As per postmortem report, deceased has died due to asphyxia as a result of anti-mortem hanging. In the case of Javed Abdul Rajjaq Shaikh vs. State of Maharashtra, Criminal Appeal No.1181 of 2011, Hon'ble Apex Court has dealt with the issue of determination whether death is caused by hanging or strangulation and held as under:

"The differences between hanging and strangulation have been highlighted by Modi on Medical Jurisprudence and Toxicology, 25th Edition, as follows:

As to what is the distinction between strangulation and throttling is also dealt within the self-same work:

"Definition-Strangulation is defined as the compression of the neck by a force other than hanging. Weight of the body has nothing to do with strangulation.

Ligature strangulation is a violent form of death, which results from constricting the neck by means of a ligature or by any other means without suspending the body.

When constriction is produced by the pressure of the fingers and palms upon the throat, it is called as throttling. When strangulation is brought about by compressing the throat with a foot, knee, bend of elbow, or some other solid substances, it is known as mugging (strangle hold).

A form of strangulation, known as Bansdola, is sometimes practised in northern India. In the form, a strong bamboo or lathi (wooden club) is placed across the throat and another across the back of the neck. These are strongly fastened t one end. A rope is passed round the other end, which is bound together, and the unfortunate victim is squeezed to death. The throat is also pressed by placing a lathi or bamboo across the front of the neck and standing with a foot on each of lathi or bamboo.

Garrotting is another method that was used by thugs around 1862 in India. A rope or a loincloth is suddenly thrown over the head and quickly tightened around neck. Due to sudden loss of consciousness, there is no struggle. The assailant is then able to tie the ligature."

27. In the instant case perusal of postmortem report of deceased Abida shows that there was ligature mark 6 cm x 1 cm on anterior aspect of neck above thyroid cartilage and 3 cm below chin. In view of treatise of Modi as stated above, ligature mark-oblique Non-continuous placed high up in the neck between the Chin and the larynx is a characteristic of hanging. There is nothing to indicate that there was any fracture of larynx or trachea and hyoid bone and thus, it also supports the view that death of deceased was due to hanging. Further, as per postmortem report, on dissection at ligature mark, white glistening membrane parchment like were present, which is also a characteristic of hanging. Further postmortem report of deceased does not show any other characteristic of strangulation like congestion of face non dribbling of saliva, abrasions or ecchymoses round about the edges of the ligature mark subcutaneous tissues under the mark- Ecchymosed or ruptured carotid arteries, internal coats or scratches, abrasions fingernail marks and bruises on the face neck or another part of body. Absence of these traits further support the view that death of deceased was suicidal in nature. Here it would be pertinent to mention that PW-8 Dr. Sunil Katyal, who has conducted postmortem on the dead body of deceased, categorically stated that deceased has died due to asphyxia as a result of ante-mortem hanging and that postmortem of deceased was conducted by a panel of doctors. He has also stated that weight of body might have lied on neck, which resulted into death of deceased but there was no fracture in backbone or any bone of neck. He has also ruled out the possibility that deceased might have hanged after causing her death. Considering medical evidence in its entirety, it is apparent that it was a case of hanging and thus the possibility that deceased committed suicide can not be ruled out. Here it may also be mentioned that complainant as well as other witnesses have also deposed that death of deceased has taken place due to hanging. In view of evidence on record, it can not be held that deceased suffered death due to strangulation or that the death of the deceased was homicidal in nature. It is one of the fundamental principle that to hold a person guilty under Section 302 of IPC, the death of such deceased person has to be homicidal in nature. If medical evidence suggests that death of deceased took place due to suicide, the accused can not be held guilty for murder punishable under section 302 IPC. Learned trial Court has not made any discussion as to on what basis death of deceased has been found homicidal in nature and without making any such discussion and without rendering any such conclusion, learned trial Court committed error by convicting the accused-appellant under Section 302 IPC. Thus, conviction of accused-appellant under Section 302 IPC is not in accordance with law, hence unsustainable.

28. Evidence on record reveals that deceased has committed suicide by hanging at her matrimonial home within a period of two years of her marriage. It is well as settled that death due to suicide also falls within the category of death "otherwise than under normal circumstances" as mentioned in Section 304-B IPC. All the witnesses of fact have categorically deposed that deceased was continuously harassed for dowry and she was brought to he matrimonial only one week before of incident. There is also cogent and categorical evidence that accused and his family members used to demand golden chain, motorcycle and cash of Rs. one lakh from deceased and on that account she was harassed by the accused persons but learned trial Court has acquitted accused-appellant as well as co-accused persons of charge under Sections 498A, 304B IPC and 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act. As no appeal has been preferred against acquittal of accused-appellant under Sections 498A, 304B IPC and 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act and thus, this Court can not alter conviction from under section 302 IPC to under Section 304-B, 498A and 3/4 of D.P. Act. Here it would be relevant to mention that in case reported as (2001)2 SCC 577 Shamnsaheb M. Multtani Vs. State of Karnataka, a three judge bench noted that where main ingredients of two cognate offences are common, the one punishable with lesser sentence can be said to be minor offence. Noting that the ingredients of Section 304-B IPC were different from those of section 302 IPC, the former could not be regarded as minor offence of the latter and it was held as under:

"In such a situation, if the trial court finds that the prosecution has failed to make out the case under Section 302 IPC, but the offence under Section 304-B IPC has been made out, the court has to call upon the accused to enter on his defence in respect of the said offence. Without affording such an opportunity to the accused, a conviction under Section 304-B IPC would lead to real and serious miscarriage of justice. Even if no such count was included in the charge, when the court affords him an opportunity to discharge his burden by putting him to notice regarding the prima facie view of the court that he is liable to be convicted under Section 304-B IPC, unless he succeeds in disproving the presumption, it is possible for the court to enter upon a conviction of the said offence in the event of his failure to disprove the presumption".

In view of above discussed position of law, it is not possible to convert conviction of accused-appellant from section 302 IPC to section 304-B , 498-A IPC and section 3/4 DP Act, particularly when no appeal has been filed against acquittal of accused-appellant under section 304-B , 498-A IPC and section 3/4 DP Act. The case of Girish Singh V State of Uttrakhand 2019 AIR (SC) 4529 and Hira Lal V State AIR 2003 Supreme Court 2865, referred by learned counsel for appellant pertains about applicability of section 304-B IPC, however, in the instant case as it has been found that due acquittal of accused-appellant under section 304-B IPC by trial court, it is not permissible to convert conviction of accused-appellant from section 302 to 304-B IPC, and thus no detail examination of said case laws is required.

29. However, close scrutiny of evidence reveals that deceased was being harassed for dowry continuously since after her marriage till date of incident. PW-1 Mausam Ali, who is complainant of the case has consistently deposed that accused-appellant and his family members used to demand golden chain, motorcycle and cash of Rs. 1 lakh in dowry and when this demand could not be fulfilled, deceased has to remain for about seven months at her parental home. After intervention of some persons, deceased was taken to her matrimonial home by accused-appellant only about 8-9 days prior to incident by promising that they would not make any such demand and would not harass the deceased, but due to non-fulfillment of demand of dowry, accused-appellant and his family members caused her death by way of hanging. PW-1 has been subjected to cross-examination but no such fact could emerge so as to affect his testimony adversely. Version of PW-1 has been amply corroborated by PW-2 Rozudeen, PW-3 Mohd. Yunus, PW-4 Nawab Ali and PW-5 Qaiyum. All these witnesses have consistently and cogently stated that deceased committed suicide due to persistent demand of dowry and harassment by accused-appellant. In this regard no major contradiction or inconsistency could be shown. The fact that due to demand of dowry and harassment meted out by accused-appellant and his family members, deceased to stay for about seven months at her parental home, further supports prosecution case. The cumulative effect of entire evidence clearly indicate that deceased was continuously harassed and ill-treated on account of non-fulfillment of demand of dowry and due to intervention of some persons, she was brought back to her matrimonial home by accused-appellant by promising that he would not make any demand and would not harass the deceased but it appears that demand of dowry and harassment of deceased remained continued and due to which deceased committed suicide. The substance of evidence conclusively establishes that accused-appellant was persistently harassing and ill-treating the deceased as he was dissatisfied with the dowry given and the demand of golden chain, motorcycle and cash of Rs. one lakh was not fulfilled.

30. At this stage, question which requires consideration is whether in view of such facts and evidence, is it possible to convict accused-appellant under Section 306 of IPC in the absence of any charge under Section 306 IPC. Dealing with similar issue in the case of Dalbir Singh vs State Of U.P 2004 (5) SCC 334, Hon'ble Apex Court has held as under:

"Here the Court proceeded to examine the question that if the accused has been charged under Section 302 IPC and the said charge is not established by evidence, would it be possible to convict him under Section 306 IPC having regard to Section 222 Cr.P.C. Sub-section(1) of Section 222 lays down that when a person is charged with an offence consisting of several particulars, a combination of some only of which constitutes a complete minor offence, and such combination is proved, but the remaining particulars are not proved, he may be convicted of the minor offence, though he was not charged with it. Sub-section (2) of the same Section lays down that when a person is charged with an offence and facts are proved which reduce it to a minor offence, he may be convicted of the minor offence, although he is not charged with it. Section 222 Cr.P.C. is in the nature of a general provision which empowers the Court to convict for a minor offence even though charge has been framed for a major offence. Illustrations (a) and (b) to the said Section also make the position clear. However, there is a separate chapter in the Code of Criminal Procedure, namely Chapter XXXV which deals with Irregular Proceedings and their effect. This chapter enumerates various kinds of irregularities which have the effect of either vitiating or not vitiating the proceedings. Section 464 of the Code deals with the effect of omission to frame, or absence of, or error in, charge. Sub- section (1) of this Section provides that no finding, sentence or order by a Court of competent jurisdiction shall be deemed invalid merely on the ground that no charge was framed or on the ground of any error, omission or irregularity in the charge including any misjoinder of charges, unless, in the opinion of the Court of appeal, confirmation or revision, a failure of justice has in fact been occasioned thereby. This clearly shows that any error, omission or irregularity in the charge including any misjoinder of charges shall not result in invalidating the conviction or order of a competent Court unless the appellate or revisional Court comes to the conclusion that a failure of justice has in fact been occasioned thereby. In Lakhjit Singh (supra) though Section 464 Cr.P.C. has not been specifically referred to but the Court altered the conviction from 302 to 306 IPC having regard to the principles underlying in the said Section. In Sangaraboina Sreenu (supra) the Court completely ignored to consider the provisions of Section 464 Cr.P.C. and keeping in view Section 222 Cr.P.C. alone, the conviction of the appellant therein under Section 306 IPC was set aside.

After examining several provisions and earlier decisions, it was further held as under:.

"There are a catena of decisions of this Court on the same lines and it is not necessary to burden this judgment by making reference to each one of them. Therefore, in view of Section 464 Cr.P.C., it is possible for the appellate or revisional Court to convict an accused for an offence for which no charge was framed unless the Court is of the opinion that a failure of justice would in fact occasion. In order to judge whether a failure of justice has been occasioned, it will be relevant to examine whether the accused was aware of the basic ingredients of the offence for which he is being convicted and whether the main facts sought to be established against him were explained to him clearly and whether he got a fair chance to defend himself. We are, therefore, of the opinion that Sangarabonia Sreenu (supra) was not correctly decided as it purports to lay down as a principle of law that where the accused is charged under Section 302 IPC, he cannot be convicted for the offence under Section 306 IPC".

In K. Prema S. Rao and another vs. Yadla Srinivasa Rao and others reported in (2003)1 SCC 217, it has been held:-

"Mere omission or defect in framing charge does not disable the Criminal Court from convicting the accused for the offence which is found to have been proved on the evidence on record. The Code of Criminal procedure has ample provisions to meet a situation like the one before us. From the Statement of Charge framed under Section 304B and in the alternative Section 498A, IPC (as quoted above) it is clear that all facts and ingredients for framing charge for offence under Section 306, IPC existed in the case. The mere omission on the part of the trial Judge to mention of Section 306, IPC with 498A, IPC does not preclude the Court from convicting the accused for the said offence when found proved. In the alternate charge framed under Section 498A of IPC, it has been clearly mentioned that the accused subjected the deceased to such cruelty and harassment as to drive her to commit suicide. The provisions of Section 221 of Cr.P.C. take care of such a situation and safeguard the powers of the criminal court to convict an accused for an offence with which he is not charged although on facts found in evidence, he could have been charged for such offence.

Discussing provisions of section 221 CrPC, it was further held as under;

"As provided in Section 215 of Cr.P.C. ommission to frame charge under Section 306 IPC has not resulted in any failure of justice. We find no necessity to remit the matter to the trial court for framing charge under Section 306 IPC and direct a retrial for that charge. The accused cannot legitimately complain of any want of opportunity to defend the charge under Section 306, IPC and a consequent failure of justice. The same facts found in evidence, which justify conviction of the appellant under Section 498A for cruel treatment of his wife, make out a case against him under Section 306 IPC of having abetted commission of suicide by the wife. The appellant was charged for an offence of higher degree causing "dowry death" under Section 304B which is punishable with minimum sentence of seven years rigorous imprisonment and maximum for life. Presumption under Section 113A of the Evidence Act could also be raised against him on same facts constituting offence of cruelty under Section 498A, IPC. No further opportunity of defence is required to be granted to the appellant when he had ample opportunity to meet the charge under Section 498A, IPC."

In Lakhjit Singh vs. State of Punjab [1994 Supp. (1) SCC 173], the accused were charged and convicted of offence under Section 302 IPC. The High Court upheld their conviction. The Apex Court held that charge under Section 302 IPC is not established but convicted the appellants under Section 306 IPC. While rejecting the argument that in the absence of a specific charge under Section 306 IPC, the appellants cannot be convicted under that section, the Court observed:-

"9. The learned counsel, however, submits that since the charge was for the offence punishable under Section 302 Indian Penal Code, the accused were not put to notice to meet a charge also made against them under Section 306 IPC and, therefore, they are prejudiced by not framing a charge under Section 306 Indian Penal Code and; therefore, presumption under Section 113-A of Indian Evidence Act cannot be drawn and consequently a conviction under Section 306 cannot be awarded. We are unable to agree. The facts and circumstances of the case have been put forward against the accused under Section 313 CrPC and when there was a demand for dowry it cannot be said that the accused are prejudiced because the cross-examination of the witnesses, as well as the answers given under Section 313 CrPC would show that they had enough of notice of the allegations which attract Section 306 Indian Penal Code also."

In Ramesh Vithal Patil vs. State of Karnataka and others reported in 2014 (11) SCC 516, it has been held:-

"18. It is true that the appellant was not charged under Section 306 of the IPC. The charge was under Section 304-B of the IPC. It was, however, perfectly legal for the High Court to convict him for offence punishable under Section 306 of the IPC. In this connection, we may usefully refer to Narwinder Singh (2011) 2 SCC 47. In that case the accused was charged under Section 304-B of the IPC. The death had occurred within seven years of the marriage. The trial court convicted the accused for an offence punishable under Section 304-B of the IPC. Upon reconsideration of the entire evidence, the High Court came to the conclusion that the deceased had not committed suicide on account of demand for dowry, but, due to harassment caused by the husband in particular. The High Court acquitted the parents of the accused and converted the conviction of the accused from one under Section 304-B of the IPC to Section 306 of the IPC. This Court dismissed the appeal filed by the accused. It was observed that it is a settled proposition of law that mere omission or defect in framing charge would not disable the court from convicting the accused for the offence which has been found to be proved on the basis of the evidence on record. In such circumstances, the matter would fall within the purview of Sections 221(1) and (2) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973."

31. In view of aforesaid legal position, it is clear that if an accused is tried by competent Court and he clearly understands nature of offence and case is clearly explained to him and he has been afforded fair opportunity of defending himself, ensuring substantial compliance of provisions of law, in such facts and circumstances in view of Section 464 Cr.P.C. it is possible for appellate Court to convict the accused for offence for which no charge was framed unless the Court is of the opinion that failure of justice would in fact occasion. In order to judge whether failure of justice has been occasioned, it will be relevant to examine whether the accused was aware of the basic ingredients of the offence for which he is being convicted and whether main facts sought to be established against him were explained to him clearly and he has got a fair change to defend himself. When from statement of charge framed under Section 304B IPC and Section 498A, IPC it is clear that all facts and ingredients for framing charge for offence under Section 306, IPC existed in the case, the mere omission on the part of the trial Judge to mention of Section 306 IPC does not preclude the Court from convicting the accused for the said offence when found proved.

32. In the instant case, the accused was charged under Section 498A IPC with allegation that he has physically and mentally harassed the deceased on account of dowry and he was also charged under Section 304B IPC alleging that he caused death of deceased by hanging and he was further charged under Section 3/4 Dowry Prohibition Act with the allegation that he has made demand of Rs. one lakh cash from deceased in dowry. Alternatively, he was charged under Section 302/34 IPC that he along with co-accused persons committed murder of deceased by hanging. It is apparent from record that cause of death as per postmortem report, was asphyxia as a result of ante-mortem hanging and copy of postmortem report along with other documents was supplied by committal Court to the accused. All these facts clearly indicate that accused-appellant was told and he has clearly understood the nature of offence for which he was tried and he was afforded full and fair opportunity of defending himself. There is nothing to indicate that substantial compliance of any provisions of law was not made. It is also clear that his conviction under section 302 IPC is being set aside mainly on the ground that death of deceased was not found homicidal in nature. Considering the nature of allegations and charge framed against accused-appellant, it cannot be said that conviction of accused-appellant under Section 306 IPC would occasion any failure of justice as accused was fully aware of basic ingredients of offence of Section 306 IPC. As indicated above, evidence on record clearly reveals that deceased was continuously and persistently harassed and ill-treated for dowry and for that reason even she has to stay at her parental home for about seven months, but due to intervention of some public persons, she was brought back by accused-appellant to her matrimonial home and after one week of the same, deceased suffered death due to ante-mortem hanging. As stated above, all the witnesses have consistently deposed that deceased suffered death by hanging due to continuous harassment meted out to her on account of demand of dowry. The evidence on record clearly indicate that by making continuous demand of dowry and causing harassment to deceased, accused-appellant driven the deceased to commit suicide. It appears that her life was made so miserable that she was driven to commit suicide. At this stage we also take notice of section 113-A of Evidence Act. A bare reading of Section 113-A shows that to attract applicability of Section 113-A, it must be shown that (i) the woman has committed suicide within a period of seven years from the date of her marriage and (ii) the husband or his relatives, who are charged had subjected her to cruelty. On existence and availability of the above said circumstances, the court may presume that such suicide had been abetted by her husband or by such relatives of her husband. Though presumption is not mandatory as the employment of expression "may presume" suggests. Secondly, the existence and availability of the above said circumstances shall not, like a formula, enable the presumption being drawn; before the presumption may be drawn the court shall have to have regard to "all the other circumstances of the case". A consideration of all the other circumstances of the case may strengthen the presumption or may dictate the conscience of the court to abstain from drawing the presumption. The expression "the other circumstances of the case" used in Section 113-A Evidence Act suggests the need to reach a cause-and-effect relationship between the cruelty and the suicide for the purpose of raising a presumption. In spite of a presumption having been raised the evidence adduced in defence or the facts and circumstances otherwise available on record may destroy the presumption. The phrase "may presume" used in Section 113-A is defined in Section 4 of the Evidence Act, which says "Whenever it is provided by this Act that the court may presume a fact, it may either regard such fact as proved, unless and until it is disproved, or may call for proof of it. The proof of cruel treatment or harassment of wife by husband or his relative to force her to fulfill demand of dowry is a necessary condition to invoke the presumption under section 113-A of the Evidence Act. In State of Punjab Vs. Gurmit Singh, (2014) 9 SCC 632, it has been held in the context of section 304- B of IPC that meaning of the words "any relative of her husband" occurring in Section 304-B IPC & meaning of the words "relative of the husband" occurring in Section 498-A IPC are identical and mean such person related by blood, marriage or adoption. Presumption under Sec. 113-A and 113B is not similar in nature and burden to prove innocence is more on accused under sec. 113-B than under S. 113-A which placed a far lighter burden on the accused. In Pinakin Mahipatray Rawal Vs State of Gujarat, 2014 (84) ACC 348 (SC), it has been held that a presumption u/s 113-A Evidence Act as to offence of abetment of suicide u/s 306 IPC can be drawn when it is established that the person has committed suicide and the suicide was abetted by the accused. Where woman committed suicide within 7 years of her marriage and her husband or his near relative subjected her to cruelty in term of Section 498-A of IPC, the Court may presume that such suicide was abetted by the husband or such person.

In Ghulam Mustafa vs State of Uttarakhand, AIR 2015 SC 3101, the Court held that a casual remark or something said in a routine way or in usual conversation should not be construed or misunderstood to mean 'abetment.' A conviction on mere allegation of harassment without any positive action in proximity to the time of occurrence on the part of accused that led a person to commit suicide is not sustainable under section 306 IPC. Again, in Gurucharan vs State of Punjab, AIR 2017 SC 74, it has been held that to constitute the offence under section 306 IPC, there should be a live link between abetment and suicide and the intention and involvement of the accused to aid or instigate the commission of suicide.

33. In the instant case it is not disputed that deceased committed suicide within 7 years of her marriage and there is consistent and cogent evidence that she was continuously harassed for dowry. In this regard evidence of PW 1, PW 2, PW 3, PW 4 and PW 5 is quite consistent. No such fact could emerge in their cross-examination, so as to affect credibility of these witnesses. As stated above, due to dowry demand and harassment by accused-appellant, deceased had to stay for about seven months at her parental home and she was brought back by the appellant only one week prior of incident, all the above stated witnesses have stated that deceased died as the accused-appellant continued his demand of dowry. The evidence on record clearly reveals that cruelty meted out to deceased was of such a nature so as to drive her to commit suicide. Learned counsel has referred case of Gurjit Singh V State of Punjab 2019 Supreme (SC) 1298. In that case, it was found by the Apex Court that cruelty was not of such nature, which left no choice to deceased than commit suicide and there was no material to show that a cause and effect relationship between the cruelty and the suicide for purpose of raising presumption. In the instant case, as discussed above, deceased has suffered continuous cruelty on account of dowry demand and due to that reason she has to stay for about seven months at her parent's house and that she was brought back by accused-appellant to matrimonial home only one week before the incident by assuring that he would not harass her but despite that he continued to make dowry demand of chain, motorcycle and cash of Rs 1 lakh and subjected her to cruelty. Thus, the only logical conclusion is that due to continuous cruelty suffered by deceased, she was left with no choice but to commit suicide. There appears direct nexus between the cruelty and the suicide of deceased. The conduct of accused-appellant is quite inculpatory as after incident he neither informed the police nor family members of deceased, rather he has fled from his house leaving dead body of deceased there. In view of specific facts and evidence on record, the presumption under section 113-A Evidence Act can be raised against appellant. The accused-appellant has failed to rebut the same. In view of evidence on record and raising presumption under section 113-A Evidence Act, a case under section 306 IPC is made out against the accused-appellant. Mere wrongful acquittal by trial court under section 498A IPC or Section 304-B IPC would not come in way of convicting the accused-appellant under section 306 IPC. Taking cumulative effect of entire evidence on record, the above discussed position of law, the accused-appellant Noor Mohammed can safely be convicted under Section 306 IPC.

34. In view of aforesaid, conviction and sentence of accused-appellant under section 302 IPC is set aside and the accused-appellant is convicted under Section 306 IPC. So far as question of sentence is concerned, it is apparent that deceased has committed suicide within short span of two years of her marriage, due to persistent demand of dowry and harassment meted out by accused-appellant. Of late such offences and crime against women are on rise. It is well settled that sentence has to commensurate with gravity of offence and all attending facts and circumstances of the case. Considering all aspects of the matter, it would be appropriate that accused-appellant be sentenced to maximum punishment ie 10 years rigorous imprisonment along with fine of Rs. 10,000/ under 306 IPC.

35. In view of aforesaid, conviction and sentence of accused-appellant Noor Mohammed under Section 302 IPC is set aside and he is convicted under Section 306 IPC and sentenced to 10 (ten) years rigorous imprisonment along with fine of Rs 10,000/. In default of payment of fine, accused-appellant has to undergo three months additional imprisonment. Accused-appellant Noor Mohammed is stated in jail, he shall serve out remaining sentence.

36. Appeal is partly allowed in above terms.

37. Copy of this judgment be transmitted to the court concerned for information and necessary compliance.

A. Criminal Law-Indian Penal Code- Section 452, 323/34, 325/34 and 308/34 - Appeal against conviction.

After considering the rival submissions made by learned counsel for the appellants, considering the facts and circumstance of the case, considering the age of the accused-appellants, this Court feels it would not be proper to sent the accused appellants to jail as the accused were on bail during trial and no criminal antecedents have been shown to their credit and the accused were convicted in the year 1982 and they have suffered mental agony of conviction for a long time. Considering all these facts it would be appropriate and proper that the accused be sentenced with the period already undergone and the amount of fine be enhanced. (Para 10)C

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajit Singh, J).)

1. This Criminal appeal has been filed by the appellants against the judgement and order dated 1.6.1982 passed by Vth Addl. Sessions Judge, Aligarh in S.T. No. 440 of 1980 (State vs. Jaiveer and another), whereby sentencing the appellants to undergo R.I. for a period of two years under Section 452 I.P.C. for a period of one year under Section 323/34 I.P.C. for a period of two years under Section 325/34 I.P.C. under Section 308/34 I.P.C. for a period of three years.

2. All the sentences shall run concurrently.

3. The brief facts of this case are that in the intervening night between 17/18.5.1980 at about 12:00 or 1:00 a.m. in the night the accused-appellants entered into the house of the informant Lajja Ram and belabored him and his wife Smt. Diropa, as a result of which both were injured and Lajja Ram sustained grievous injuries. The offenders were identified in the light of burning lamp kept in the varanda of the house. The alarm was raised by the inmates of the house. The daughter of the informant Km. Jaiwanti was also sleeping by the side of her parents and upon hearing the alarm some witnesses were attracted then the accused escaped from the spot. The matter was reported to the police by the informant at Police Station-Dadon and the case was registered and investigated by the police. The informant Lajja Ram and his wife Smt. Diropa were medically examined and the X-ray of the informant was also done.

4. After completion of investigation the Investigating Officer has submitted charge sheet against the accused and the cognizance was taken by the Magistrate and considering that the case was triable by the Sessions Judge and it was committed to the court of session and the session court charged the accused under Sections 452, 325 and 308 I.P.C. read with section 34 I.P.C.

5. The prosecution laid the evidence against the accused and the court after prosecution evidence examined the accused under section 313 Cr.P.C. and the accused submitted that they have been falsely implicated in the present case due to enmity but no evidence was laid by the accused in this regard in their defence.

6. After considering the evidence available on record the trial court convicted the accused as aforesaid. Being aggrieved by the conviction judgement and order this appeal had been filed.

7. I have heard the learned counsel for the appellants and learned A.G.A. for the State.

8. Learned counsel for the appellants submitted that at present both the accused are more than 75 years of age and they are suffering from age related ailments. He next submitted that it was the first offence of the accused and after conviction the accused had not indulged in any other criminal activity. He further submitted that on the question of legality of sentence he is not pressing this appeal and only pressing on the quantum of sentence and he has prayed for taking lenient view considering the age of the accused and their age related ailments.

9. Learned A.G.A. has submitted that the impugned order is valid and no interference is required in the impugned order, hence the appeal be dismissed and accused be directed to suffer the sentence.

10. After considering the rival submissions made by learned counsel for the appellants, considering the facts and circumstance of the case, considering the age of the accused-appellants, this Court feels it would not be proper to sent the accused appellants to jail as the accused were on bail during trial and no criminal antecedents have been shown to their credit and the accused were convicted in the year 1982 and they have suffered mental agony of conviction for a long time. Considering all these facts it would be appropriate and proper that the accused be sentenced with the period already undergone and the amount of fine be enhanced.

11. The accused-appellants are sentenced to the period already undergone by them in jail and an amount of fine of Rs. 5000/- be imposed.

12. Accused-appellants are directed to deposit the fine of Rs. 5000/- before learned lower court within three months from the date of passing of the judgement out of which Rs. 4000/- shall be paid to the injured, if he is alive and in case he is dead, then it would be paid to his legal heirs and in default of payment of fine accused-appellants shall further undergo 15 days imprisonment.

13. Appeal is partly allowed in the above terms.

14. Copy of this order be transmitted to the concerned lower court forthwith for compliance.

A. Criminal Law-Indian Penal Code - Sections 302, 506 - read with Section 7 of Criminal Law Amendment Act and Section 25/27 & 30 of Arms Act— Appeal against conviction.

The analyzation of evidence available on record, the impugned judgment and order by trial court cannot be said to be perverse or against the evidence available on record. It is liable to be upheld and it is upheld accordingly. (Para 56)

The Applicant has been released on 07.12.2019 from Central Jail Naini, Prayagraj after remission of his sentence on the basis of Government Order. (Para 57)

We have perused the aforesaid government order. The sentence of appellant has been remitted by Hon'ble Governor of Uttar Pradesh under Article 161 of the Constitution of India. His remaining period of imprisonment/ sentence has been remitted. (Para 58)

Since, none is responding on behalf of appellant, therefore, the present appeal has been disposed of accordingly in absence of the appellant's counsel. (Para 59)

Criminal Appeal disposed of. (E-2)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ritu Raj Awasthi, J. & Hon'ble Virendra Kumar-II, J.)

1. The appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo, has preferred the present criminal appeal, assailing the impugned judgment and order dated 23.09.2003 delivered by the Court of learned Additional Sessions Judge/ F.T.C.-

5, District Pratapgarh in Session Trial No. 238 of 2002, State Vs. Krishna Kumar Pandey & another, arising out of Crime No. 124 of 2001, Police Station Jethwara, under Sections 302, 506 I.P.C. read with Section 7 of Criminal Law Amendment Act and Section 25/27 & 30 of Arms Act.

2. The learned trial court has convicted the appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo for the offence punishable under Section 302 I.P.C. to serve out the imprisonment for life. Fine of an amount of Rs.20,000/- has also been imposed. He has also been convicted for the offence punishable under Section 25/27 of Arms Act and convicted with rigorous imprisonment for four years. He has been acquitted for the offence punishable under Section 506 I.P.C. and Section 7 of Criminal Law Amendment Act. All the sentence were directed to run concurrently.

3. The co-accused Ramesh Chandra Pandey, who is the father of appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey, has been acquitted for the offence punishable under Section 30 of Arms Act.

4. It is mentioned in the grounds of appeal that the investigation of this case is biased and tainted. The F.I.R. is ante timed. No independent witness has supported the prosecution version. The witnesses produced by the prosecution are related, interested and partisan witnesses. The prosecution has failed to establish its case beyond reasonable doubt. There is no motive for commission of crime. The medical evidence has not supported the prosecution case. There are major inconsistencies and contradictions in oral evidence adduced by the witnesses. The trial court has committed illegality in disbelieving the defence version. There is no proper compliance of Section 313 Cr.P.C. The findings recorded by the trial court are perverse and consequently the impugned judgment and order delivered by it is illegal, unjust and improper.

5. We have heard the learned A.G.A.

6. None is responding on behalf of appellant.

7. We have also perused the oral as well as documentary evidence available on record of the trial court.

8. As per the prosecution version narrated in the F.I.R. (Ex.Ka.-1), the complainant, Umesh Chandra Pandey lodged the F.I.R. on 07.09.2001. He went on 07.09.2001 at the residence of his uncle (Phupha), Shri Ram Kishore Tiwari, S/o Shri Paras Nath Tiwari. His uncle was having conversation with him and his aunt*(Bua)*. The deceased was sitting at his shop of beetle. In the meanwhile, the accused-appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo, S/o Ramesh Chandra Pandey brought his scooter from inside of his house and parked it outside his house. He brought licensed gun of his father and shot fire at 2:00 p.m. on 07.09.2001 in the stomach of Ram Kishore Tiwari, the deceased, who succumbed to gun shot injuries sustained by him. The deceased, Ram Kishore Tiwari was issue less and accused-appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo wanted to obtain his property. The accused-appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo threatened the deceased by asking the deceased that transfer his property in his favour otherwise he will eliminate both his Phupha and Bua. He lodged the F.I.R. after leaving the dead body of his Phupha on the spot. The witness, Tribhuwan Nath Pandey, Girja Shankar Pandey and Ram Narayan Pandey as well as other residents of village saw the accused, while he was fleeing away from the place of occurrence.

9. On the basis of written report of complainant, Crime No. 124 of 2001 was registered at 2:10 p.m. for the offence punishable under Sections 302, 506 I.PC. read with section 7 Criminal Law Amendment Act. On the basis of written report submitted by the complainant, G.D. of registration of crime was prepared for the aforesaid offences.

10. The Investigating Officer inspected the place of occurrence and took in possession the dead body of the deceased. He prepared inquest report (Ex.Ka.-2) on the same day at 14:30 hours until 15:40 p.m. He collected plain and blood stained soil from the place of occurrence and prepared recovery memo (Ex.Ka.-3) and some part of Baan of cot. He sealed dead body of the deceased and sent it to Sadar Hospital, Pratapgarh for autopsy.

11. The Investigating officer recorded statements of witnesses. He recovered license gun and three live cartridges and one empty cartridge from the possession of accused-appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo. The concerned police personnel prepared G.D.(Ex.Ka.-8) at 23:50 hours on 09.09.2002 regarding recovery of aforesaid articles. He sent these articles to the Forensic Science Laboratory, Mahanagar, Lucknow after obtaining permission from District Magistrate. He submitted charge sheet against the appellant as well as against the co-accused, his father. Postmortem report was prepared (Ex.Ka.-5) by the concerned doctor after autopsy of the deceased. G.D. (Ex.Ka.-8A) No. 16 at 8:50 hours dated 10.01.2001 and G.D. (Ex.Ka.-9) were prepared regarding submission of gun and cartridges and plain and blood stained soil and Baan of cot in forensic laboratory.

12. G.D. (Ex.Ka.-10) was prepared regarding receipt of aforesaid articles by Constable Shaktidhar Dubey. The aforesaid articles were sent to Forensic Science Laboratory through letter (Ex.Ka.-11) written by Circle Officer, Sadar, Pratapgarh to Forensic Science Laboratory. Letter (Ex.Ka.-12) was written by Circle officer to the District Magistrate, District Pratapgarh for obtaining permission for comparison/ chemical analysis of aforesaid articles. The District Magistrate, Pratapgarh granted prosecution sanction (Ex.Ka.-13) against the accused-appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo and the co-accused Ramesh Chandra Pandey.

13. Ex.Ka.-17 is the letter sent to C.M.O. for autopsy was written by R.I. The Investigating Officer prepared site plan (Ex.Ka.-20). The Joint Director, Forensic Science Laboratory, Mahanagar, Lucknow forwarded his report (Ex.Ka.-21) after chemical analysis and comparison of gun and cartridges. A separate report (Ex.Ka.-22) was forwarded by the Joint Director, Forensic Science Laboratory, Mahanagar, Lucknow to Circle Officer, Sadar, Pratapgarh regarding chemical analysis of clothes of the deceased, plain and blood stained soil and Baan of cot. Recovery memo (Ex.Ka.-4) was prepared regarding arrest and recovery of aforesaid gun and cartridges from the possession of accused persons.

14. The concerned Judicial Magistrate committed this case to the court of Sessions. The learned trial court of Additional Sessions Judge/ F.T.C.-5, Pratapgarh framed charges against the accused-appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo on 05.12.2002 for the offence punishable under Sections 302, 506 I.P.C. and Section 7 of Criminal Law Amendment Act. A separate charge under Section 25/27 of Arms Act was also framed against the appellant.

15. The learned trial court has also framed charge against co-accused Ramesh Chandra Pandey on the same day for the offence punishable under Section 30 of Arms Act.

16. Both the accused persons pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried.

17. The prosecution has examined P.W.1-Umesh Chandra Pandey (complainant), P.W.2-Rajendra Prasad Pandey; P.W.3-Tribhuwan Nath Pandey; P.W.4-Smt. Shayama Devi, who is the wife of the deceased Ram Kishore Tiwari regarding facts and circumstances of the occurrence. P.W.5-Arjun Prasad Pandey has proved recovery memo (Ex.Ka.-2) of plain and blood stained soil. P.W.6, Constable Vijay Narayan Chaudhary has proved arrest and recovery of gun and cartridges from the possession of accused-appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo. P.W.7, Dr. R. P. Chaubey has proved postmortem report. P.W.8, Head Constable Tarak Nath Jha Pandey has proved Check F.I.R. (Ex.Ka.-6) and G.D. (Ex.Ka.-7) of registration of crime. He also prepared G.D. (Ex.Ka.-8) on the basis of recovery memo (Ex.Ka.-4) regarding arrest of the accused and recovery of gun and cartridges. P.W.9-Constable Roshan Nath Ojha proved this fact that he submitted plain and blood stained soil and pellets recovered from the dead body of the deceased at Forensic Science Laboratory. P.W.10, D. K. Upahdyay is the Investigating Officer.

18. The learned trial court has recorded detailed statements of both the accused persons under Section 313 Cr.P.C. in the form of question and answer.

19. The accused-appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo has stated that he has falsely been implicated in this crime. He has denied that he shot fire on 07.09.2001 on the deceased, Ram Kishore Tiwari in presence of P.W.1. He has further stated that the complainant lodged F.I.R. on the basis of concocted and false facts. He was arrested by the police party from Kanpur and not from the place shown by the police party. The Investigating Officer prepared forged documents which are ante timed and ante dated and submitted charge sheet against him. The witnesses have adduced false evidence against him. The report submitted by the Forensic Science Laboratory is also forged.

20. The appellant has stated in additional statement and answered to question No. 19 & 20 that he has been implicated in this case by hatching conspiracy due to enmity. The witnesses are interested and family members of the deceased. He has also stated that the deceased Ram Kishore Tiwari was a criminal and he was expelled from his earlier native place/ residence. He was having old enmity with his in-laws and family. The deceased was an informer of police personnel of Police Station Jaithwara. The deceased was used to sold Ganja, Bhang at his shop and he was having his so many enemies and he was murdered by unknown persons. He was arrested on 08.09.2001 from Kanpur when he was getting treatment at the house of his uncle.

21. The co-accused, Ramesh Chandra Pandey has stated that on the date of occurrence, i.e., 07.09.2001 at 2:00 p.m. he was present in the court of Civil Judge, Kunda on the post of Reader and he was present and working in that court. He has further stated that his gun, license and cartridges were kept at his residence at Kunda, which is at a distance of 40 kilometers from his native place. His son, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo had not fired from his gun.

22. The co-accused has answered question No.6 and stated that police personnel contacted him on 07.09.2001 at 5:30 p.m. in Kunda and asked him regarding gun and license. They received gun, cartridges and license from him and brought it at police station Jethwara. He has further stated that his son was getting treatment at the house of his uncle at Kanpur. The police personnel on the next day brought him by a jeep at Kanpur and arrested his son. His arrest was falsely shown on another place on 10.09.2001. Ramesh Chandra Pandey has also stated that he was residing in a rented accommodation at Kunda.

23. The accused persons produced D.W.1-Moorat Singh, S/o Uttam Singh and D.W.2-Yogesh Kumar Upadhyay, Advocate, S/o Heera Lal Upadhyay as defence witnesses.

24. The learned trial court has appreciated and analyzed the evidence of prosecution and accused persons and delivered the impugned judgment and order.

25. We have perused the impugned judgment and order and record of trial court.

26. We have perused the evidence of P.W.1 and P.W.4, who are witnesses of fact. All these witnesses have witnessed the incident committed the appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo. P.W.2 and P.W.3 have proved inquest report of the deceased.

27. The learned trial court has found that place of occurrence is situated at a distance of one kilometer from police station Jethwara. The complainant-P.W.1 has lodged the F.I.R. at 2:10 p.m. immediately after the incident occurred on 07.09.2001 at 2:00 p.m. P.W.1 has proved this fact that he went to meet his Phupha, the deceased. He was having conversation with the deceased at his beetle shop in presence of his Bua. The appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo brought his scooter and started it twice and then parked it in front of his house. Then he brought licensed gun of his father and shot fire on the stomach of the deceased. The deceased succumbed to firearm injury sustained by him. He has corroborated the facts narrated by him in Check F.I.R.

28. P.W.1 has further stated that the deceased purchased land and constructed his house at the place of his in-laws and he was selling beetle in a small Gomti at the point of time of occurrence. The house of Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo was situated near the house of deceased and another house was situated inside of the village. He has proved topography of the place of occurrence also.

29. A detailed cross-examination was conducted on behalf of the accused persons, but no material contradiction was elicited from him. The learned trial court has found that in this case prompt F.I.R. was lodged by the complainant, P.W.1. He has discarded the argument of learned defence counsel that F.I.R. was lodged on the dictation of Sub Inspector. No material contradiction was elicited regarding presence of P.W.1 at the place of occurrence on date and time of incident committed by the appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo. The learned trial court has considered the statement of P.W.1 that the deceased was issue less and the accused was interested to obtain property of the deceased and he threatened him also.

30. The learned trial court has also analyzed the evidence of P.W.4-Smt. Shyama Devi, who is the wife of the deceased, Ram Kishore Tiwari. P.W.4 has disclosed this fact that the appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo sent a letter before the incident and he also threatened the deceased one year ago that both P.W.4 and the deceased should transfer their house in his favour, otherwise he will eliminate them.

31. P.W.4 has further stated that she brought the letter sent by the appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo at the police station. He was scolded by the police personnel and released at this point of time. The deceased, Ram Kishore Tiwari made complaint against the appellant at the police station. P.W.3-Tribhuwan Nath Pandey also corroborated these facts stated by P.W.4.

32. Therefore, the learned trial court has recorded finding that the appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo was having old enmity with the deceased and transfer of property of the deceased and P.W.4 was the motive for committing incident of this case. The prosecution was able to prove presence of P.W.1 and P.W.4 at the point of time of incident of this crime.

33. The learned trial court has also considered the argument of learned defence counsel that no independent witness was produced by the prosecution to prove the facts of the incident. The learned trial court has quoted expositions of law propounded by Hon'ble Apex court regarding non production of independent witness and regarding production of related and interested witness.

34. The learned trial court has found that the accused-appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo was known to witness, P.W.1(complainant), P.W.3-Tribhuwan Nath Pandey and P.W.4-Smt. Shyama Devi from prior to the incident. The accused was residing near the house of the deceased, therefore, there was no case of mistaken identity. The learned trial court has also evaluated the evidence of P.W.1-Umesh Chandra Pandey and P.W.3-Tribhuwan Nath Pandey regarding facts and circumstances, in which, the appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo fled away from the place of occurrence.

35. The learned trial court has analyzed and evaluated the evidence of P.W.10-Investigating Officer, Shri Dhirendra Kumar Upadhyay and omissions made by him, but no material contradictions were elicited during his cross-examination regarding the fact that investigation conducted by him was biased and tainted as argued by the learned defence counsel.

36. P.W.10-Shri Dhirendra Kumar Upadhyay has proved recovery memo of plain and blood stained soil and arrest of accused-appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo and recovery of gun and cartridges from his possession. He has also proved this fact that these articles were compared and chemically analyzed at Forensic Science Laboratory.

37. The learned trial court has also considered the defence version stated by the appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo and co-accused, Ramesh Chandra Pandey that he was getting treatment at the house of his uncle, Suresh Chandra Pandey at Kanpur and he was arrested in the facts and circumstances as stated by the co-accused Ramesh Chandra Pandey. But Suresh Chandra Pandey was not produced as defence witness regarding the fact that accused-appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo was arrested from his house. The learned trial court has considered this fact that no telegram was sent by Suresh Chandra Pandey when the appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo was allegedly arrested from his house by the police party of P.W.10 in presence of co-accused Ramesh Chandra Pandey.

38. The learned trial court has also considered this argument of learned defence counsel that gun and cartridges were recovered on 09.09.2001, but they were kept until 23.10.2001 by P.W.10 in his possession. The learned trial court has found that these articles, plain and blood stained soil and pellets recovered from the dead body of the deceased Ram Kishore Tiwari and his clothes were sent on 23.10.2001 by the Circle Officer, Sadar to Forensic Science Laboratory through his letter (Ex.Ka.-11). The omissions made by the Circle Officer was a mere irregularity and no tampering was made at his hands.

39. The learned trial court has also discarded the arguments of learned defence counsel regarding the fact that P.W.10 had not prepared site plan of the place, from where, the appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo was arrested and gun and cartridges were recovered from his possession. Likewise, this fact was also considered that P.W.4, widow of the deceased covered the body of the deceased during incident, but her clothes were not soaked with the blood. The learned trial court has also considered this fact that P.W.1 has stated that the accused-appellant fired shot from gun from blank point range, but the postmortem report(Ex.Ka.-5) has not disclosed ante mortem injury of such nature.

40. The learned trial court has perused the post mortem report (Ex.Ka.-5) and observed that lacerated wound of size 3.0 c.m. x 2.5 c.m. was found by Dr. R. P. Chaubey (P.W.7). P.W.7 has proved this fact that margins of firearm injury were inverted and blackening was present all around the wound. Small intestine was lacerated, liquid was coming out from small intestine. P.W.7 has opined that death of the deceased was caused by hemorrhage due to ante mortem firearm injury. No material contradiction was elicited during cross-examination of the doctor (P.W.7).

41. The learned trial court has found evidence of P.W.1-complainant and P.W.4, the widow of the deceased, trustworthy, cogent, reliable and acceptable. P.W.7 has recovered wading and rubber material from the dead body of the deceased, which might have decreased force of fired shot, therefore, there was no occasion of presence of exit wound, as P.W.7 has found wading and rubber material from the abdominal cavity. The cavity was filled with two liters of blood.

42. The Joint Director, Forensic Science Laboratory has sent report (Ex.Ka.-21) and opined that gun powder and lead was present in the barrel of 12 bore gun No. 2307 and empty cartridge sent for chemical examination was fired from this gun, which was recovered from the possession of the accused-appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo. T.C.1 and T.C.2 cartridges were fired at Forensic Science Laboratory and mark of firing pin was found same, both on empty cartridge sent by police station Jethwara and T.C.1 and T.C.2.

43. The sealed wading and rubber material was sent to Forensic Science Laboratory, which is mentioned in report (Ex.Ka.-22), where plain and blood stained soil as well as blood stained Baan of cot and clothes of the deceased were chemically examined. Human blood was found on Baan of cot, dhoti, and wading and rubber material found in abdominal cavity of the deceased. Blood was found disintegrated on the blood stained soil, underwear of the deceased and watch.

44. These circumstances, as stated by P.W.7 that he had not found any exit wound or pellets in the abdominal cavity are not material. The learned trial court has recorded finding that the deceased, Ram Kishore Tiwari, sustained ante mortem firearm injury and he succumbed to this injury sustained by him.

45. As far as, this fact is mentioned in G.D.(Ex.Ka.-8A) that pellets were sealed in an envelop, it may be possible that the concerned police personnel mentioned wading and rubber material as pellets, which is the omission of the concerned police personnel. P.W.9, Roshan Nath Ojha has stated accordingly on the basis of fact mentioned in G.D.(Ex.Ka.-8A). The accused-appellant is not benefited with this fact stated by P.W.9 or by his omission to mention wading and rubber material in G.D.(Ex.Ka.-8A).

46. The witnesses, P.W.6-Constable Vijay Narayan Chaudhary and P.W.10, the Investigating officer, Dhirendra Kumar Upadhyay, have proved arrest of accused-appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo and recovery of gun, live cartridges and empty cartridge from his possession, which were sent to Forensic Science Laboratory.

47. The learned trial court has also evaluated evidence of P.W.7-Dr. R. P. Chaubey and P.W.4-Smt. Shyama Devi regarding meal taken by the deceased and semi digested liquid food found in stomach. The learned trial court has observed that P.W.4 is an uneducated lady and she has disclosed time of taking food by the deceased on the basis of her memory and assumptions. Dr. R. P. Chaubey (P.W.7) has stated that the deceased took his food two hours prior to the incident as opined by him. The learned trial court has discarded the argument of the learned defence counsel in this regard that there is any contradiction in medical and ocular evidence.

48. The learned trial court has specifically mentioned in the impugned judgment that P.W.2-Rajendra Prasad Pandey, P.W.3-Tribhuwan Nath Pandey and P.W.5-Arjun Prasad Pandey are not the eye witness of the incident committed by the accused-appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo. They might have stated to have seen the incident corroborating version of the prosecution, if they were so interested being Khandani of the deceased.

49. The learned trial court has cautiously appreciated and analyzed the evidence of eye witnesses, P.W.1-complainant and P.W.4-widow of the deceased, and also found that no material contradiction was elicited during their cross-examination. P.W.2-Rajendra Prasad Pandey is the witness of inquest report. Likewise, P.W.3-Tribhuwan Nath Pandey reached, when the appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo was leaving the place of occurrence, while gun was hanging over on his shoulder and he was sitting on his scooter. He only heard noise of fire and reached at the place of occurrence and saw that Ram Kishore Tiwari sustained firearm injury. He has stated regarding threat given by the accused-appellant to the deceased one year ago. P.W.5-Arjun Prasad Pandey is the witness of recovery of blood stained and plain soil from the place of occurrence, of which, recovery memo (Ex.Ka.-2) was prepared by the Investigating Officer.

50. The learned trial court has discarded the defence evidence adduced by D.W.2-Yogesh Kumar Upadhyay, Advocate, by recording the finding that there was no occasion for the co-accused, Ramesh Chandra Pandey to bring gun with him at the court of Civil Judge (Junior Division), Kunda, where, co-accused, Ramesh Chandra Pandey was employed as Reader of that court. The learned trial court has discarded the evidence of D.W.2 in correct perspectives, because he has stated that he is a legal practitioner at Kunda and returned back home daily at 5:30 to 6:00 p.m. He has accepted that no other employee or advocate was present while police personnel arrested the co-accused, Ramesh Chandra Pandey in the facts and circumstances stated by him.

51. On the other hand, the learned trial court has considered the recovery memo of gun, license, three live cartridges and one empty cartridge and evaluated the evidence of P.W.1, P.W.4, P.W.6 and P.W.7. The learned trial court has specifically recorded the finding that the co-accused, Ramesh Chandra Pandey was not arrested on 07.09.2001 at Kunda and gun, license and cartridges were not recovered from him, but these articles were recovered at the bridge of Bakulahi river in vicinity of Gulab Katra, where accused-appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo was in possession of these articles and he was arrested from that place.

52. The learned trial court has acquitted the co-accused, Ramesh Chandra Pandey on the basis of deficit evidence available against him being licensee of gun recovered from possession of his son, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo.

53. As far as evidence of D.W.1 is concerned, the co-accused, Ramesh Chandra Pandey, who is father of the appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo, has stated in his statement recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. that his son, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo was arrested from the house of his uncle, where he was getting treatment, whereas, D.W.1-Moorat Singh, S/o Uttam Singh, has stated that Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo was arrested by the police party while he was seeing cricket match in the ground of his school at 5:30 evening on 08.09.2001.

54. D.W.1 has accepted in his cross-examination that he never saw the house of Suresh Chandra Pandey, who is brother of co-accused, Ramesh Chandra Pandey and uncle of the appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo. The facts and circumstances of arrest and recovery of gun and cartridges has been proved by the prosecution by means of evidence of P.W.6 and P.W.10 beyond reasonable doubt. Therefore, the evidence adduced by D.W.1 is not acceptable and rightly discarded by the learned trial court in correct perspectives. The recovery of gun and cartridges was made on 09.09.2001 from the possession of the appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo by the police party of P.W.6 and P.W.10.

55. The learned trial court has also recorded finding that there was no old enmity of the complainant, deceased or P.W.4, his widow with Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo, the appellant, and the co-accused, Ramesh Chandra Pandey or with the witnesses, Tribhuwan Nath Pandey and Rajendra Prasad Pandey, on the basis of which, appellant was allegedly implicated in this crime.

56. On the basis of above mentioned discussions, appreciation and analyzation of evidence available on record, the impugned judgment and order dated 23.09.2003 cannot be said to be perverse or against the evidence available on record. It is liable to be upheld and it is upheld accordingly.

57. Learned A.G.A. has pointed out that Senior Jail Superintendent, Central Jail Naini, Prayagraj vide its letter dated 29.01.2020 has informed him that the appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo was detained in Central Jail Naini, Prayagraj, after transfer from District Jail, Pratapgarh on 25.12.2003. He has been released on 07.12.2019 from Central Jail Naini, Prayagraj after remission of his sentence on the basis of Government Order of Jail Administration & Reforms, Anubhag-2, Uttar Pradesh Government vide order No. 159/22-2-2019-17(202)/2019 dated 05.02.2019.

58. We have perused the aforesaid government order. The sentence of appellant, Krishna Kumar Pandey @ Babloo has been remitted by Hon'ble Governor of Uttar Pradesh under Article 161 of the Constitution of India. The appellant has served out sentence of 21 years, 11 months and 11 days with remission and 17 years, 04 months and 17 days without remission. His remaining period of imprisonment/ sentence has been remitted. The appellant has been released on 07.02.2019 on furnishing P.B. of Rs.50,000/- to maintain lawful conduct, peace and law and order.

59. Since, none is responding on behalf of appellant, therefore, the present appeal has been disposed of accordingly in absence of the appellant's counsel.

60. It is pertinent to mention here that the Government of U.P. has not preferred any appeal assailing the acquittal of co-accused, Ramesh Chandra Pandey.

61. Copy of judgment be sent to the concerned trial court and the Senior Superintendent, Central Jail Naini, Prayagraj for information and further necessary action.

62. The record of trial court be sent back for compliance.

17. Smt. Rama Devi Vs. State of U.P.2017 0 Supreme (All) 2554, (Delivered by Hon'ble Pritinker Diwaker, J.)

1. This appeal arises out of the impugned judgment and order dated 25.05.2017 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge/Special Judge, (E.C. Act), Fatehpur in Sessions Trial No. 174 of 2010 (State of U.P. Vs. Shah Mohammad and others) convicting accused-appellants Shah Mohammad and Noor Mohammad under Section 304-B, 326, 498-A of IPC and under Section 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act and sentencing them to undergo imprisonment for life; 10 years rigorous imprisonment, with fine of Rs.10,000/- each, in default thereof, one year additional rigorous imprisonment; three years rigorous imprisonment with fine of Rs.5,000/- each, in default six months additional simple imprisonment and two years rigorous imprisonment with fine of Rs.5000/- each, in default thereof one year additional rigorous imprisonment respectively.

2. In the present case, name of the deceased is Tahira Bano, wife of accused-appellant No.1 Shah Mohammad. Appellant No.2 Noor Mohammad is nephew of appellant No.1. Marriage of the deceased Tahira Bano was solemnized with appellant No.1 about 3-5 years prior to the date of incident i.e. 16.09.2009. It is said that deceased was subjected to cruelty for demand of dowry by appellant No.1 and his other family members and on 16.09.2009, father-in-law of the deceased namely Bafati alias Fakeere, accused-appellant No.2 Noor Mohammad and his sister-in-law caught hold the deceased, whereas other nephew of appellant No.1, namely, Nazeer Mohammad after pouring kerosene oil on the deceased set herself ablaze. It is further alleged that at the relevant time, accused appellant No.1 who was standing there, did not make any effort to save the deceased and it is at his instance the entire act has been done by other accused persons. Immediately after coming to know the burn incident, the family members of the deceased rushed to the spot and found no one to help the deceased. Smt. Quresha Bano (PW-1), mother of the deceased and other family members hired a vehicle and took the deceased to the hospital at 10.40 P.M. where her dying declaration was recorded on the next day i.e. on 17.09.2009 by Arun Kumar Srivastava (PW-9), Executive Magistrate. Before recording dying declaration, Executive Magistrate, had duly obtained certificate of Dr. Anupam Jaiswal (PW-3) who has stated that the deceased was in a fit state of mind to make the dying declaration. In the dying declaration, deceased has categorically stated as to the manner in which she was burnt by the appellants and their other family members.

3. On the basis of written report (Ex.Ka.1) lodged by Smt. Quresha Bano (PW-1), on 19.09.2009 FIR (Ex.Ka.3) was registered against appellant No.1 Shah Mohammad (husband of the deceased), deceased accused Bafati alias Fakeere (father-in-law), sister in law of the deceased and two nephews including appellant No.2 Noor Mohammad under Sections 498A, 326 of IPC read with Section 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act.

During treatment, deceased expired on 29.09.2009.

4. Inquest on her dead body was conducted on 29.09.2009, vide Ex.Ka.8, and the body was sent for postmortem, which was conducted by Dr. Prabhunath (PW-8), vide Ex.Ka.13, on 29.09.2009. As per medical report, deceased suffered about 81% burn injury and she died bcause of septicemia.

5. After investigation, charge-sheet was filed against appellant No.1 Shah Mohammad and his father Bafati alias Fakire. However, during trial, an application was filed by the prosecution under Section 319 Cr.P.C., which was allowed and then other accused persons, namely, appellant No.2 Noor Mohammad (nephew of appellant No.1), Saida Begum (sister-in-law/Jethani of the deceased) and Nazeer Mohammad (another nephew of appellant No.1) were also made as an accused. It has been informed that the trial of co-accused Saida Begum and Nazeer Mohammad has been separated on 30.03.2013 and the same is pending.

6. As per Autopsy Surgeon, the cause of death was due to septicemia as a result of ante mortem wound.

7. The trial Judge has framed charge on 22.05.2010 initially against the appellants under Sections 498-A, 326, 306 of IPC and 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act and thereafter, on 16.10.2010, alternative charge under Section 304-B of IPC was also framed against them.

8. So as to hold the accused appellants guilty, prosecution has examined nine witnesses, whereas two defence witnesses have also been examined. Statements of the accused appellants were recorded under Section 313 of Cr.P.C., in which they pleaded their innocence and false implication.

9. By the impugned judgment, the trial Judge has convicted both the appellants under Sections 304-B, 326, 498-A of IPC and under Section 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act and sentenced them as mentioned in paragraph No.1 of the judgment.

10. Counsel for the appellants submits:

(i) that there is material contradiction in the statements of Smt. Quresha Bano (PW-1) and Jamal Ahmad (PW-2). In fact, Jamal Ahmad (PW-2) has not fully supported the statement of Smt. Quresha Bano (PW-1) and thus both these witnesses are not reliable.

(ii) that oral dying declaration made before Smt. Quresha Bano (PW-1) is doubtful and it appears that the deceased was not in a position to make any such statement.

(iii) that dying declaration (Ex.Ka.2) allegedly made before the Executive Magistrate appears to be doubtful because, at the relevant time, deceased was not in a fit state of mind to make such statement. In the dying declaration, it has not been recorded that even till completion of the same, deceased was in a fit state of mind to make the said dying declaration. Learned counsel submits that before recording the dying declaration, even if the Doctor has given a certificate, the Executive Magistrate was under an obligation to record as to whether the deceased was in a fit state of mind to make the dying declaration.

(iv) the only role assigned to appellant no.1 is that when the deceased was being burnt by other accused persons, he was simply standing there. Learned counsel submits that even if the prosecution case is taken as it is, no offence whatsoever has been made out against appellant No.1.

(v) that appellant No.1 is in jail since 19.09.2009 whereas appellant No.2 is in jail since 11.04.2011. Both these appellants have served more than seven years of sentence and life sentence is not mandatory under Section 304B of IPC. Therefore, their sentence be at least reduced to the period already under gone by them.

11. On the other hand, supporting the impugned judgment, it has been argued by the State counsel:-

(i) that the impugned judgment is in accordance with law and there is no infirmity in the same.

(ii) that the act of the appellants shows brutality of the offence where the appellants and other co-accused persons caught hold the deceased, poured kerosene oil on her and then she was set on fire.

(iii) In respect of appellant No.1, it has been argued that when the other accused persons were executing the act, he was simply standing there. He did not made any effort to save the deceased and the entire act has been done at his instance/under his guidance and supervision.

(iv) that even if life sentence is not mandatory, considering the heinous act of the appellants, the court below was fully justified in awarding the life sentence. He submits that there is absolutely no reason for this Court to reduce the sentence and in fact, the appellants ought to have been convicted under Section 302 of IPC.

(v) that Quresha Bano (PW-1) and Jamal Ahmad (PW-2) are firm in their statement and Quresha Bano (PW-1) has categorically stated that the deceased made oral dying declaration before her and narrated as to the manner in which she was burnt by the accused-persons. State counsel submits that minor contradiction in the statement of these two witnesses are required to be ignored, considering the fact that they are rustic villagers.

12. We have heard the parties and perused the record.

13. Smt. Quresha Bano (PW-1), is a sister of the deceased and the informant. She has stated that marriage of the deceased was solemnized with accused No.1 Shah Mohammad about 5 years back and out of the wedlock, the couple has a baby girl aged about 4 years. Accused appellant No.1 and his other family members used to demand Rupees One Lakh from the deceased and for which she was subjected to cruelty and harassment by them. On the date of occurrence, her sister was burnt by the appellants and she died in the hospital after about 13 days. She states that when she met the deceased, she informed her that by pouring kerosene oil on her, she was burnt by the accused persons. This witness was subjected to lengthy cross-examination including some unnecessary questions, however she remained firm and has reiterated as to the manner in which the deceased was burnt by the accused persons. She has made it very clear that while the deceased was being taken to hospital, on the way, she informed her that she (deceased) was burnt by the accused persons.

14. Jamal Ahmad (PW-2), a resident of the same vicinity where Quresha Bano (PW-1) was residing along with accused persons, has stated that the deceased was sister of Quresha Bano (PW-1) and on the date of occurrence, he had gone with Quresha Bano (PW-1) to her sister's house and they have brought the deceased in a Marshal vehicle to Allahabad in a hospital. He states that he did not had any talk with the deceased, but the deceased was talking to her sister and mother and she informed them that she was burnt by the accused persons. In the cross examination, he has however stated that though the deceased was talking to her sister and mother, in a serious condition, but was only saying them to save her.

15. Dr. Anupam Jaiswal (PW-3), Director of the hospital where the deceased was treated, has stated that dying declaration of the deceased was recorded by the Executive Magistrate on 17.09.2009 between 2.30 PM to 2.35 PM and that before recording the same, he gave his certificate that the deceased was in a fit state of mind to make her dying declaration. He states that the deceased had suffered 70-80 per cent burn injury.

16. Rajendra Prasad Rai (PW-4) is a Head Constable, who recorded the chik FIR. B.N. Tiwari (PW-5) is the Investigating Officer who has duly supported the prosecution case. Rajesh Kumar (PW-6) is a second Investigating Officer. Sunil Kumar (PW-7) conducted the inquest. Dr. Prabhunath (PW-8) conducted postmortem on the body of the deceased.

17. Arun Kumar Srivastava (PW-9), is the Executive Magistrate, who recorded the dying declaration of the deceased. He has stated that after receiving notice to come in the hospital and record dying declaration, at 2.20 PM, he reached to the hospital, met Dr. Anupam Jaiswal (PW-3) and after obtaining his certificate, recorded the dying declaration of the deceased in between 2.30 to 2.35 PM. He states that at the time of recording the dying declaration, no other person was present and all the relatives of the deceased were asked to leave the said room.

18. Riyazuddin (DW-1) has stated that Noor Mohammad (accused appellant No.2) and Shah Mohammad (accused appellant No.1) were residing separately and that the deceased burnt herself in her room.

19. Om Prakash (DW-2) has also stated that Noor Mohammad and Shah Mohammad were living separately and that out of anger she set herself ablaze. He has further stated that Shah Mohammad (accused-appellant No.1) has made effort to save the deceased.

20. Close scrutiny of the evidence makes it clear, that the deceased was subjected to cruelty for demand of dowry and to fulfill the said desire, with the help of other accused persons, the appellants on 16.09.2019 burnt her after pouring kerosene oil on her. While she was taken to hospital by Quresha Bano (PW-1), she made oral dying declaration before this witness and has stated that she was burnt by the accused persons including the appellants. On the next day, her dying declaration was recorded in the hospital, vide Ex.Ka.2, wherein she has categorically assigned the role of all the accused persons including the appellants. She has stated that she was caught hold by her father-in-law Bafati alias Fakeere, her nephew Noor Mohammad and sister-in-law Saida Begum, whereas another nephew Nazeer Mohammad set herself ablaze. She has further stated that, at the relevant time, her husband Shah Mohammad (accused appellant No.1) was standing there and he did not make any effort to save her. According to the dying declaration, it is the accused appellant No.1 at whose instance the entire offence has been committed by the accused persons. Before recording the dying declaration of the deceased, the Executive Magistrate has obtained the certificate from Dr. Anupam Jaiswal (PW-3) who has categorically stated that the deceased was in a fit state of mind to make the dying declaration. Dying declaration of the deceased reads as under:-

"ब्यान श्रीमती ताहिरो बानो पत्नी शाहमुहम्मद उम्र 40 वर्ष लगभग निवासिनी सलेमपुर गोली जिला फतेहपुर बहलफ बयान किया कि मेरी शादी करीब 6 वर्ष पूर्व हुई थी। एक लड़की 4 साल की है। आदमी मानपुर में रहता है। कारखाना प्लास्टिक का है सउदिया जाने के लिए एक लाख रूपया मांग रहा था न देने पर लड़ाई हुई। मुझे मेरे श्वसुर पकड़े थे, जेठानी के लड़के नूर मोहम्मद, जेठानी पकड़ी थी, आग जेठानी के लड़के नजीर मोहम्मद ने लगायी। मेरा आदमी वही खड़ा था। मेरा आदमी नही बचाया वह खुद ही लगवाया है।

21. Before we consider the dying declaration made by the deceased, it would be apposite to consider the legal position in respect of dying declaration.

22. In State of Gujarat v. Jayrajbhai Punjabhai Varu1, the Supreme Court held as under:

"15. The courts below have to be extremely careful when they deal with a dying declaration as the maker thereof is not available for the cross- examination which poses a great difficulty to the accused person. A mechanical approach in relying upon a dying declaration just because it is there is extremely dangerous. The court has to examine a dying declaration scrupulously with a microscopic eye to find out whether the dying declaration is voluntary, truthful, made in a conscious state of mind and without being influenced by the relatives present or by the investigating agency who may be interested in the success of investigation or which may be negligent while recording the dying declaration.

16. In the case on hand, there are two sets of evidence, one is the statement/declaration made before the police officer and the Executive Magistrate and the other is the oral dying declaration made by the deceased before her father who was examined as PW-1. On a careful scrutiny of the materials on record, it cannot be said that there were contradictions in the statements made before the police officer and the Executive Magistrate as to the role of the respondent herein in the commission of the offence and in such circumstances, one set of evidence which is more consistent and reliable, which in the present case being one in favour of the respondent herein, requires to be accepted and conviction could not be placed on the sole testimony of PW-1.

17. A number of times the relatives influence the investigating agency and bring about a dying declaration. The dying declarations recorded by the investigating agencies have to be very scrupulously examined and the court must remain alive to all the attendant circumstances at the time when the dying declaration comes into being. In case of more than one dying declaration, the intrinsic contradictions in those dying declarations are extremely important. It cannot be that a dying declaration which supports the prosecution alone can be accepted while the other innocent dying declarations have to be rejected. Such a trend will be extremely dangerous. However, the courts below are fully entitled to act on the dying declarations and make them the basis of conviction, where the dying declarations pass all the above tests.

18. The court has to weigh all the attendant circumstances and come to the independent finding whether the dying declaration was properly recorded and whether it was voluntary and truthful. Once the court is convinced that the dying declaration is so recorded, it may be acted upon and can be made a basis of conviction. The courts must bear in mind that each criminal trial is an individual aspect. It may differ from the other trials in some or the other respect and, therefore, a mechanical approach to the law of dying declaration has to be shunned.

19. On appreciation of evidence on record, we are of the considered view that the dying declarations of the deceased recorded by the police officer as well as the Executive Magistrate are fully corroborated and there is no inconsistency as regards the role of the respondent herein in the commission of offence. From a perusal of the statement recorded by Bhiku Karsanbhai, P.S.O., the thumb impression of Rekhaben (since deceased) which had been identified by her father-Sri Vala Jaskubhai Suragbhai as also his cross-examination in which he admitted that police had already come there and he had identified her thumb impression and Mamlatdar had gone inside to record statement, there is no reason as to why Rekhaben would give names of her husband and her in- laws in the alleged statement given to her father. A dying declaration is entitled to great weight. The conviction basing reliance upon the oral dying declaration made to the father of the deceased is not reliable and such a declaration can be a result of afterthought. This is the reason the Court also insists that the dying declaration should be of such a nature as to inspire full confidence of the Court in its correctness. The Court has to be on guard that the statement of deceased was not as a result of tutoring, prompting or a product of imagination. The Court must be further satisfied that the deceased was in a fit state of mind after a clear opportunity to observe and identify the assailants. Once the Court is satisfied that the declaration was true and voluntary, undoubtedly, it can base its conviction without any further corroboration. It cannot be laid down as an absolute rule of law that the dying declaration cannot form the sole basis of conviction unless it is corroborated. The rule requiring corroboration is merely a rule of prudence.

20. The burden of proof in criminal law is beyond all reasonable doubt. The prosecution has to prove the guilt of the accused beyond all reasonable doubt and it is also the rule of justice in criminal law that if two views are possible on the evidence adduced in the case, one pointing to the guilt of the accused and the other towards his innocence, the view which is favourable to the accused should be adopted."

23. In Gaffar Badshaha Pathan v. State of Maharashtra2,it was held as under:

"5. Dr. A.U. Masurkar was the Chief Medical Officer of the hospital at the relevant time. The High Court has held that the recording of the dying declaration and story stated therein apparently appears to be false and concocted for the various reasons noticed in the impugned judgment. It has to be borne in mind that the fact whether the dying declaration is false and concocted has to be established by the prosecution. It is not for the accused to prove conclusively that the dying declaration was correct and the story therein was not concocted. The fact that the statement of the deceased was recorded at about 9.00 p.m. by the Head Constable cannot be doubted though an attempt to the contrary seems to have been made by the prosecution. The statements of the prosecution witnesses (PW 5 and PW 11) also show that the statement was recorded by the Head Constable. According to PW 5, it was only a show made by the Head Constable of recording statement, since according to the said witness, the deceased was not in a position to speak at that time. Even PW 11, a doctor in the hospital, has deposed about the recording of the statement by the Head Constable though he has not formally proved the dying declaration but has certified the correctness of the endorsement of Dr. A.U. Masurkar on the dying declaration. PW 11 was shown the dying declaration. He has deposed that the certificate recorded on the dying declaration is in the handwriting of Dr. Masurkar, Chief Medical Officer of the hospital. He has further deposed that Dr. Masurkar is in the hospital since the last 12 to 15 years and that he had degree in MS and was estimated to be an honest and expert surgeon of the area. One of the reasons which had strongly weighed with the High Court in rejecting the dying declaration is that the endorsement of the doctor is only about the deceased lady being conscious and not that she was in a fit condition to make the statement. The High Court went into distinction between consciousness and fitness to make statement. On the facts of the present case, we are unable to sustain the approach adopted by the High Court. It is one thing for an accused to attack a dying declaration in a case where the prosecution seeks to rely on a dying declaration against an accused but it is altogether different where an accused relies upon a dying declaration in support of the defence of accidental death. The burden on the accused is much lighter. He has only to prove reasonable probability. Under these circumstances, the dying declaration could not have been rejected on the ground that it does not contain the endorsement of the doctor of the fitness of the lady to make the statement as the certificate of the doctor only shows that she was in a conscious state. The endorsement of the doctor aforequoted is not only about the conscious state of the lady but is that she made the statement in a conscious state."

24. In P. Mani v State of Tamilnadu3, while considering the suspicious dying declaration, it has been held by the Apex Court that the conviction can be based solely on the basis of dying declaration alone, but the same must be wholly reliable and trustworthy. Para 14 of the said judgment reads thus:

"14. Indisputably conviction can be recorded on the basis of dying declaration alone but therefore the same must be wholly reliable. In a case where suspicion can be raised as regard the correctness of the dying declaration, the court before convicting an accused on the basis thereof would look for some corroborative evidence. Suspicion, it is trite, is no substitute for proof. If evidence brought on records suggests that such dying declaration does not reveal the entire truth, it may be considered only as a piece of evidence in which event conviction may not be rested only on the basis thereof. The question as to whether a dying declaration is of impeccable character would depend upon several factors; physical and mental condition of the deceased is one of them. In this case the circumstances which have been brought on records clearly point out that what might have been stated in the dying declaration may not be correct. If the deceased had been nurturing a grudge against her husband for a long time, she while committing suicide herself may try to implicate him so as to make his life miserable. In the present case where the Appellant has been charged under Section 302 of the Indian Penal Code, the presumption in terms of Section 113A of the Evidence Act is not available. In absence of such a presumption, the conviction and sentence of the accused must be based on cogent and reliable evidence brought on record by the prosecution. In this case, we find that the evidences are not such which point out only to the guilt of the accused."

25. In Lakhan v. State of MP4, the Supreme Court after discussing number of judgments on the point of dying declarations summarized the law in this regard, as under:

"20. In view of the above, the law on the issue of dying declaration can be summarized to the effect that in case, the Court comes to the conclusion that the dying declaration is true and reliable, has been recorded by a person at a time when the deceased was fit physically and mentally to make the declaration and it has not been made under any tutoring/duress/prompting; it can be the sole basis for recording conviction. In such an eventuality no corroboration is required. In case, there are multiple dying declarations and there are inconsistencies between them, generally, the dying declaration recorded by the higher officer like a Magistrate can be relied upon, provided that there is no circumstance giving rise to any suspicion about its truthfulness. In case, there are circumstances wherein the declaration had been made, not voluntarily and even otherwise, it is not supported by the other evidence, the Court has to scrutinize the facts of an individual case very carefully and take a decision as to which of the declarations is worth reliance."

26. In Shudhakar v. State of MP5, the Supreme Court held as under:

"18. In the case of Laxman (supra), the Court while dealing with the argument that the dying declaration must be recorded by a Magistrate and the certificate of fitness was an essential feature, made the following observations. The court answered both these questions as follows:

"3. The juristic theory regarding acceptability of a dying declaration is that such declaration is made in extremity, when the party is at the point of death and when every hope of this world is gone, when every motive to falsehood is silenced, and the man is induced by the most powerful consideration to speak only the truth. Notwithstanding the same, great caution must be exercised in considering the weight to be given to this species of evidence on account of the existence of many circumstances which may affect their truth. The situation in which a man is on the deathbed is so solemn and serene, is the reason in law to accept the veracity of his statement. It is for this reason the requirements of oath and cross-examination are dispensed with. Since the accused has no power of cross-examination, the courts insist that the dying declaration should be of such a nature as to inspire full confidence of the court in its truthfulness and correctness. The court, however, has always to be on guard to see that the statement of the deceased was not as a result of either tutoring or prompting or a product of imagination. The court also must further decide that the deceased was in a fit state of mind and had the opportunity to observe and identify the assailant. Normally, therefore, the court in order to satisfy whether the deceased was in a fit mental condition to make the dying declaration looks up to the medical opinion. But where the eyewitnesses state that the deceased was in a fit and conscious state to make the declaration, the medical opinion will not prevail, nor can it be said that since there is no certification of the doctor as to the fitness of the mind of the declarant, the dying declaration is not acceptable. A dying declaration can be oral or in writing and any adequate method of communication whether by words or by signs or otherwise will suffice provided the indication is positive and definite. In most cases, however, such statements are made orally before death ensues and is reduced to writing by someone like a Magistrate or a doctor or a police officer. When it is recorded, no oath is necessary nor is the presence of a Magistrate absolutely necessary, although to assure authenticity it is usual to call a Magistrate, if available for recording the statement of a man about to die. There is no requirement of law that a dying declaration must necessarily be made to a Magistrate and when such statement is recorded by a Magistrate there is no specified statutory form for such recording. Consequently, what evidential value or weight has to be attached to such statement necessarily depends on the facts and circumstances of each particular case. What is essentially required is that the person who records a dying declaration must be satisfied that the deceased was in a fit state of mind. Where it is proved by the testimony of the Magistrate that the declarant was fit to make the statement even without examination by the doctor the declaration can be acted upon provided the court ultimately holds the same to be voluntary and truthful. A certification by the doctor is essentially a rule of caution and therefore the voluntary and truthful nature of the declaration can be established otherwise."

27. In Ramakant Mishra v. State of UP6, the Supreme Court observed as under:

"9. Definition of this legal concept found in Black's Law Dictionary (5th Edition) justifies reproduction:

"Dying Declarations - Statements made by a person who is lying at the point of death, and is conscious of his approaching death, in reference to the manner in which he received the injuries of which he is dying, or other immediate cause of his death, and in reference to the person who inflicted such injuries or the connection with such injuries of a person who is charged or suspected of having committed them; which statements are admissible in evidence in a trial for homicide (and occasionally, at least in some jurisdictions, in other cases) where the killing of the declarant is the crime charged to the defendant. Shepard v. U.S., Kan., 290 U.S. 96, 54 S.Ct. 22, 78 L.Ed. 196.

Generally, the admissibility of such declarations is limited to use in prosecutions for homicide; but is admissible on behalf of accused as well as for prosecution. In a prosecution for homicide or in a civil action or proceeding, a statement made by a declarant while believing that his death was imminent, concerning the cause or circumstances of what he believed to be his impending death is not excluded by the hearsay rule. Fed. Evid.R. 804 (b) (2).

10. When a person makes a statement while being aware of the prospect that his death is imminent and proximate, such a statement assumes a probative value which is almost unassailable, unlike other statements which he may have made earlier, when death was not lurking around, indicating the cause of his death. That is to say that a person might be quite willing to implicate an innocent person but would not do so when death is knocking at his door. That is why a Dying Declaration, to conform to this unique specie, should have been made when death was in the contemplation of the person making the statement/declaration."

28. Applying the above principles of law with the facts of the case and on appreciation of evidence on record, we have no hesitation to hold that the dying declaration was recorded in accordance with law and there is no infirmity in the same. Further there is no inconsistency in the dying declaration and the same inspire confidence of this Court.

29. Dying declaration makes it very clear as to the manner in which the deceased was burnt by the appellants. The mere fact that the appellant No.1 was standing there and had not taken any active participation in the actual act will not give him any benefit to him. It has come in the dying declaration that the entire act has been done at his instance and at his dictates, and he did not make any effort to save his wife. Had the appellant No.1 was so innocent, he would have definitely made some effort to save his wife, but instead of doing so, he kept quite. As already stated that apart from the dying declaration recorded by the Executive Magistrate, oral dying declaration was also made by the deceased before Quresha Bano (PW-1) and, therefore, role assigned to the appellants has been duly proved by the prosecution. We find no force in the argument of the defence that evidence on record is not sufficient to convict the appellant.

30. Considering all the above aspects of the case, we are of the view that the trial court was justified in holding the appellant guilty for committing the murder of the deceased.

31. The next question, which arises for consideration of this Court, is whether the sentence awarded to the appellants can be reduced or not.

32. Section 304-B of IPC reads as under:-

"304-B. Dowry death.-- (1) Where the death of a woman is caused by any burns or bodily injury or occurs otherwise than under normal circumstances within seven years of her marriage and it is shown that soon before her death she was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry, such death shall be called "dowry death", and such husband or relative shall be deemed to have caused her death.

Explanation.--For the purpose of this sub-section, "dowry" shall have the same meaning as in section 2 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 (28 of 1961).

(2) Whoever commits dowry death shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than seven years but which may extend to imprisonment for life."

33. A bare reading of aboresaid Section makes it clear that imposition of life imprisonment is not mandatory under Section 304-B of IPC and the minimum sentence, which has been provided in the said Section, is 7 years.

34. If we apply the above principles of law in the present case, what emerges is that the deceased was brutally burnt by the accused persons and specific role has been assigned to each one of them.

35. Learned counsel for the appellants has placed reliance on the following judgments to contend that the Apex Court has awarded fixed term sentence to the accused persons instead awarding life sentence:-

(i) Hari Om Vs. State of Haryana & Another7; (ii) Hem Chand Vs. State of Haryana8; (iii) Amar Singh Vs. State of Rajasthan9; (iv) Shanti Vs. State of Haryana10 (v) Sanjay Kumar Singh Vs. State of Delhi11; (vi) Donthula Ravindranath alias Ravinder Rao Vs. State of Andhra Pradesh12; (vii) Ranjit Singh Vs. State of Punjab13; (viii) Sunil Dutt Sharma Vs. State (Govt of NCT of Delhi)14; (ix) Pradeep Kumar Vs. State of Haryana15 (x) Banarsi Dass & others Vs. State of Haryana16 and (xi) Smt. Rama Devi Vs. State of U.P.17

36. The principles laid down by the Supreme Court in the cases relied on by the counsel for the appellants do not apply to the facts of the present case. Present is not a case of suicide or unnatural death by some other means, but if the facts of the present case are seen, the case may come within the ambit of Section 302 of IPC, where the minimum sentence which has been provided is a life sentence. The manner, in which the deceased was burnt, shows brutality of the offence and we are of the considered view that sentence of life imprisonment imposed by the Court below is fully justified. In the facts and circumstances of the case, we find it difficult to reduce the sentence.

37. The appeal has no substance. It is accordingly dismissed.

CRIMINAL SIDE

BEFORE
THE HON'BLE SURESH KUMAR GUPTA, J.

Jail Appeal No. 3490 of 2016

Ashok @ Gore Lal ...Appellant
Versus
State of U.P. ...Opposite Party

Counsel for the Appellant:

From Jail, Sri Radhey Shyam Yadav

Counsel for the Opposite Party:
A.G.A.

A. Criminal Law-Indian Penal Code - Sections 363, 366, 376, 328, 506- Appeal against conviction.

In a case of rape, when an adult commits rape on a girl of tender age, deterrent punishment is called for, taking a lenient view is out of question. Once a person is convicted for the offence of rape, he should be treated with heavy hands and undeserved indulgence or liberal attitude in not awarding adequate sentence is improper. (Para 21)

On present scenario, the appellant is in jail since 5.1.2013 and during trial he remained in jail. Presently he is incarceration for more than 7 years. That appellant is very poor and not represented by counsel of his choice during trial so the contention of learned counsel to adopt a lenient view and award the custodial sentence to the appellant is fully acceptable. (Para 22)

Considering the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case, the appellant is acquitted. So on the point of conviction, appeal is dismissed. On quantum of sentence this court thinks that end of justice would be met if the appellant is sentenced to imprisonment under section 376 I.P.C. which he has already undergone. On the point of sentence appeal is partly allowed. (Para 23)

Criminal Appeal disposed off. (E-2)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Suresh Kumar Gupta, J.)

1. Being aggrieved with the judgment and order dated 21.5.2016 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court No. 1, Kannauj, this jail appeal has been preferred by appellant in S.T. No. 139 of 2013, Case Crime No. 538 of 2012, under sections 363, 366, 376, 328, 506 I.P.C. Appellant has been convicted under section 363 I.P.C. for 7 years rigorous imprisonment alongwith fine of Rs. 5,000/-, under section 366 I.P.C. for 7 years rigorous imprisonment alongwith fine of Rs. 5,000/-, under section 376 I.P.C. for 10 years rigorous imprisonment alongwith fine of Rs. 10,000/-, under section 328 I.P.C. for 7 years rigorous imprisonment alongwith fine of Rs. 5,000/- and under section 506 I.P.C. for 3 years rigorous imprisonment alongwith fine of Rs. 5,000/-. In default of payment of fine, three moths further imprisonment in each. After depositing the fine, imposed upon the applicant, Rs. 25,000/- shall be given to the victim as a compensation. All the sentences shall run concurrently.

2. Brief facts of this case are as follows-:

The complainant (father of the victim) / PW-1 lodged an F.I.R. on 9.8.2012 against the appellant by way of filing an application under section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. alleging that his daughter (victim) was a student of Class VIII and on 23.7.2011 at 7.30 A.M., victim (aged about 13 years) went to school at Mochipur for studying. That after some time complainant received a call on his mobile phone by Kamlesh and Hariram. They told the complainant that his daughter was seen accompanying with appellant / Ashok @ Gore Lal and two other persons in Chhebramau Civil Court, Kannauj. That after receiving this information, complainant searched his daughter in several places but he could not succeed in locating her. The daughter of the complainant came back at her home at 4.00 P.M. on the same day told that when she was on the way of her school and reached at a deserted place, accused - appellant / Ashok @ Gore Lal alongwith one unknown person were came on a moter-cycle and abducted her and thrown her books into drain and fed her some poisonous substance and raped her one by one on the point of gun. After that they have forcefully abducted his daughter and executed written marriage agreement by obtaining the thumb impression of her daughter against her will. That due to shame of society he did not make any complaint anywhere. But when the appellant constantly started threatening to complainant by saying that I will forcefully kidnapped your daughter and get married with her and now victim is his wife. Then he went to Kannauj Police Station and made a written complaint by registered post to the S.S.P. Kannauj and other higher authorities but when no action was taken by the higher authorities, then he approached to C.J.M. Kannauj and lodged an F.I.R. Ex. Ka-2 by way of application under section 156(3) Cr.P.C. as Case Crime No. 538 of 2012 was lodged on 29.8.2012 against the appellant and one unknown person under sections 363, 366, 376, 328, 506 I.P.C. at Police Station Kannauj, District Kannauj by way of G.D. Entry (Ex.Ka-3) Serial No. 32 at 15.15 P.M. Initially the investigation was conducted by S.I. Hamid Ali (who is PW-7). S.I. Hamid Ali recorded the statement of the witnesses and prepared the site plan as Ex.Ka-8. Thereafter further investigation was conducted by subsequent Investigating Officer, Tushar Dutt Tyagi as PW-8, who after conducting the formalities of investigation, filed the chargesheet Ex. Ka-9 against the appellant before the competent court and the case was committed to the Sessions Court by Chief Judicial Magistrate, Kannauj. Thereafter learned trial court framed charge against the accused under sections 376, 363, 506, 328, 366 I.P.C. The charge is read over to the appellant and appellant denied the charge and claimed to be tried.

3. In support of the prosecution case, prosecution has examined 8 witnesses i.e. PW-1 / daughter (victim) of the complainant, PW-2 Mahesh (father of the victim), who proved the written report as Ex.Ka-2, PW-3 / Smt. Urmila (Bua of the victim), PW-4-H.C. / Ram Shankar, who is chek writer and proved chek F.I.R. as Ex. Ka-2, PW-5 / Dr. Neelima Thaigal, who proved medical examination of the victim (Ex. Ka-4 & Ka-5), PW-6 / Kamlesh Katiyar, proved the date of birth certificate of the victim as well as attested photocopy of her educational qualification (Ex.Ka-6 & Ka-7), PW-7 / S.I. Hamid Ali, first IO, prepared the site plan (Ex. Ka-6) and PW-8 / S.I. Tushar Dutt Tyagi, second IO, proved the charge-sheet (Ex.Ka-9).

4. After examination of these witnesses, statement of the accused - appellant was recorded under section 313

Cr.P.C. Accused/ appellant denied all the charges levelled against him and stated that due to enmity, all the witnesses had given false statements against him. No defence witness was produced by the appellant in his defence. After hearing the argument of both the parties, learned trial court has convicted the accused-appellant as aforesaid. Aggrieved with the same, accused-appellant has preferred this appeal.

5. Learned counsel for the appellant submits that impugned judgment dated 21.5.2016 is illegal, perverse and passed only on surmises and conjectures. It is submitted by the learned counsel for the appellants that F.I.R. is lodged against the applicant after approx two months of the incident after due deliberation and consultation and there were no plausible explanation regarding the delay. It is next contended that medical examination of the victim was conducted by Dr. Neelima Thaigal but as per medical examination report there is no mark of injury on the body of the victim. It is next contended that as per opinion of Dr. Neelima Thaigal, she was not sure whether any rape was committed or not so there is no definite opinion that victim was raped. It is next contended that there was no motive for appellant to commit such offence and there are several contradictions and infirmities in the statements of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3. Further submitted that there was love affair between the victim and appellant so the victim has voluntarily entered into relationship with the appellant. It is next contended that as no definite opinion regarding rape can be given so learned trial court wrongly convicted the appellant in this case without applying its judicial mind. Learned counsel further submitted that in this scenario appellant is liable to be acquitted from all the charges levelled upon him. It is lastly contended that there is no definite opinion regarding administering of poison as there is no medical report nor any visible sign which suggest that the poison was administered by the appellant. Learned counsel for the appellant vehemently argued above sentence being highly excessive and not in commensurate with degree of offence.

6. Per contra, rebutting the above argument, the learned A.G.A. supports the judgment of conviction and order of sentence and submitted that the prosecutrix was a minor girl and appellant abducted her forcefully and committed rape. He further argued that alleged offences against the applicant are serious in nature and due to shame of society, there is delay in lodging the F.I.R., which is clearly explained by the complainant (PW-2) in his statement. He further submits that victim has clearly stated in her statement recorded under section 164 Cr.P.C. that accused-applicant had committed rape upon her on the point of gun. It is next submitted that as per her educational certificate, victim was studying in class 8th at the time of alleged incident and as per educational record, at the time of alleged offence, she was about 13 years old. It is next submitted that as per X-ray report and supplementary report, age of victim is less than 17 years. So it is clear that at the time of alleged incident, victim was minor. He further submits that impugned judgment of conviction and order of sentence is well reasoned and there is no illegality or perversity in the impugned judgment of trial court. He further submits that keeping in view the facts and circumstances and evidences tendered before the trial court alongwith the documentary evidence no interference warranted in this case.

7. In this case, prosecution has examined the prosecutrix as PW-1 and she clearly states in her statement that she was subjected to rape by accused on the point of gun against her wishes. On perusal of the statement of the witnesses it reveals that appellant was extending threats to victim and forcefully taken her to Chhibramau Court where a false document of marriage prepared by the appellant. She clearly denied that she was fall in love with appellant and also denied that she never solemnized marriage with appellant.

8. PW-2 is the father of the PW-1(victim). PW-2 has clearly stated in his statement that immediately after the occurrence he did not lodge a report for a fear of slander in the society and when he received threatening call from the appellant then he compel to lodge an F.I.R. against the appellant.

9. PW-3 is the Bua of the victim, who also supported the prosecution version and she clearly stated that on the date of alleged incident, she was also present in the house of his brother to celebrate Rakshabandhan festival.

10. One of the argument of the appellant is that there is delay in lodging the F.I.R.

11. Submission of learned counsel for the appellant is that the F.I.R. was lodged near about 2 month after the alleged incident so no reliance can be placed but on perusal of the statement of PW-2, it transpires that delay is clearly explained.

12. Hon'ble Apex Court held in State of Punjab Vs. Ramdev Singh 2004 (48) ACC 300 as under:-

"Delay in lodging the FIR cannot be used as a ritualistic formula for doubting the prosecution case and discarding the same solely on the ground of delay in lodging the first information report. Delay has the effect of putting the Court in its guard to search if any explanation has been offered for the delay, and if offered, whether it is satisfactory or not. If the prosecution fails to satisfactorily explain the delay and there is possibility of embellishment in prosecution version on account of such delay, the same would be fatal to the prosecution. However, if the delay is explained to the satisfaction of the Court, same cannot by itself be a ground for disbelieving and discarding the entire prosecution version, as done by the High Court in the present case."

13. So the contention of appellant have no force that due to delay in lodging the F.I.R., no reliance can be placed against the prosecution case.

14. Learned counsel for the appellant vehemently argued that as per medical report Ex.Ka-4 & Ex.Ka-5 and as per the statement of PW-5/Dr. Neelima Thaigal as there is no mark of injury found on the body of victim and medical evidence does not support the prosecution case as no definite opinion has been recorded by the doctor with regard to the injuries inflicted on the body of prosecutrix and no definite opinion of rape has been mentioned. Before examining this aspect, it would be relevant to mention that in State of Rajasthan Vs. Om Prakash, 2002 (2) JIC Page 870 (Crime), Hon'ble Apex Court held that "there is no force in the contention that if there was any forcible sexual intercourse, it would have resulted in some injuries upon the prosecutrix. Presence of injuries are not always sine qua non to prove the charge of rape."

Further there are catena of decisions of Hon'ble Apex Court that it is necessary for the court to have a sensitive approach when dealing with the cases of rape. It is also trite that in the case of State of Himachal Pradesh Vs. Dharmapal, (2004) 9 SCC Page 681, Hon'ble Apex Court held that "rape is a serious offence, as it leads to an assault on the most valuable possession of a woman i.e. character, reputation, dignity and honour."

15. In State of Punjab Vs. Ramdev Singh 2004 (48) ACC 300 Hon'ble Apex Court held as under:-

"Sexual violence apart from being a dehumanizing act is an unlawful intrusion on the right of privacy and sanctity of a female. It is a serious blow to her supreme honour and offends her self-esteem and dignity. It degrades and humiliates the victim and where the victim is a helpless innocent child or a minor. It leaves behind a traumatic experience. A rapist not only causes physical injuries but more indelibly leaves a scar on the most cherished possession of a woman i.e. her dignity, honour, reputation and not the least her chastity. Rape is not only a crime against the person of a woman, it is a crime against the entire society. It destroys, as noted by Apex Court in Shri Bodhisattwa Gautam v. Miss Subhra Chakraborty, AIR 1996 SC 922 the entire psychology of a woman and pushes her into deep emotional crisis. It is a crime against basic human rights, and is also violative of the victim's most cherished of the Fundamental Rights, namely, the Right to Life contained inArticle 21of the Constitution of India, 1950 (in short the 'Constitution'). The Courts are, therefore, expected to deal with cases of sexual crime against women with utmost sensitivity. Such cases need to be dealt with sternly and severely. A socially sensitized judge, in our opinion, is a better statutory armour in cases of crime against women than long clauses of penal provisions, containing complex exceptions and provisos."

16. In this case, it is not only the evidence of PW-1 but immediately after commission of rape the prosecutrix narrated the whole incident to her father and her Bua, who were produced by the prosecution as PW-2 & PW-3. It is pertinent to mention here that on the sole testimony of the prosecutrix, conviction is sustainable in the eye of law without any corroboration of medical evidence. Prosecution by cogent and credible evidence is able to prove the charge under section 376 I.P.C. against the appellant.

17. So far as regard section 363 I.P.C. is concerned, it is clearly established beyond reasonable doubt that at the time of alleged incident, victim was below the age of 17 years, regarding this charge u/s 363 I.P.C. framed against the appellant. Section 363 I.P.C. provides that "Punishment for kidnapping.--Whoever kidnaps any person from 1[India] or from lawful guardianship, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to seven years, and shall also be liable to fine." Kidnapping from lawful guardianship defined in section 361 I.P.C. Kidnapping from lawful guardianship.--Whoever takes or entices any minor under 1[sixteen] years of age if a male, or under 2[eighteen] years of age if a female, or any person of unsound mind, out of the keeping of the lawful guardian of such minor or person of unsound mind, without the consent of such guardian, is said to kidnap such minor or person from lawful guardianship. Explanation.--The words "lawful guardian" in this section include any person lawfully entrusted with the care or custody of such minor or other person."

On a plain reading of this Section, the consent of the minor, who is taken or enticed, is wholly immaterial, it is only the guardian's consent which takes the case within its purview. Nor is it necessary that the taking or enticing must be shown to have been by means of force or fraud. Persuasion by the accused person, which creates willingness on the part of minor to be taken out of the keeping of the lawful guardianship would be sufficient to attract this Section 361 I.P.C., as has been held by Apex Court in State of Haryana Vs. Raja Ram AIR 1973 SC 819.

18. So far as regard section 366 I.P.C. is concerned requires three principles ingredients:- "Offence punishable under Section 366 I.P.C. requires three principal ingredients (I) kidnapping or abduction to any women (II) such kidnapping or abduction must be (i) with intent that she may be compelled or knowing it to be likely that she will be compelled to marry any person against her will; or (ii) in order that she may be forced or seduced to illicit intercourse or knowing it to be likely that she will be forced or seduced to illegal intercourse, or (iii) by means of criminal intimidation or otherwise by enticing any women to any place with intent that she may be or knowing that she will be forced or seduced to illicit intercourse. It is immaterial whether the women kidnapped is married women or not."

In this appeal prosecution by means of credible and cogent evidence clearly established that victim was forcefully kidnapped by the appellant in order to solemnize marriage and by deceitful means appellant force the victim to sign on the marriage certificate. So prosecution is able to prove the charge under section 366 I.P.C. against the appellant.

19. So far as regard section 328 I.P.C. is concerned "Causing hurt by means of poison, etc., with intent to commit an offence.--Whoever administers to or causes to be taken by any person any poison or any stupefying, intoxicating or unwholesome drug, or other thing with intent to cause hurt to such person, or with intent to commit or to facilitate the commission of an offence or knowing it to be likely that he will thereby cause hurt, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to ten years, and shall also be liable to fine." After perusing the statement of PW-1/victim, wherein she has stated that appellant fed her some poisonous substance but no sign or any visible injury inflicted to victim of having any poisonous substance and it is also not the case of prosecution that due to administering of poisonous substance victim become unconscious. So offence under section 328 I.P.C. is not proved against the appellant.

20. Appellant was also charged under section 376 I.P.C. which provides as "Whoever, except in the cases provided for by sub-section (2), commits rape shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which shall not be less than seven years but which may be for life or for a term which may extend to ten years and shall also be liable to fine unless the women raped is his own wife and is not under twelve years of age, in which cases, he shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to two years or with fine or with both: Provided that the court may, for adequate and special reasons to be mentioned in the judgment, impose a sentence of imprisonment for a term of less than seven years." Regarding section 376 I.P.C. the maximum sentence provided for offence of rape is 7 years. Apex Court in Gopal Singh vs State Of Uttarakhand (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 608 has propounded:-

"Just punishment is the collective cry of the society. While the collective cry has to be kept uppermost in the mind, simultaneously the principle of proportionality between the crime and punishment cannot be totally brushed aside. The principle of just punishment is the bedrock of sentencing in respect of a criminal offence. A punishment should not be disproportionately excessive. The concept of proportionality allows a significant discretion to the Judge but the same has to be guided by certain principles. In certain cases, the nature of culpability, the antecedents of the accused, the factum of age, the potentiality of the convict to become a criminal in future, capability of his reformation and to lead an acceptable life in the prevalent milieu, the effect - propensity to become a social threat or nuisance, and sometimes lapse of time in the commission of the crime and his conduct in the interregnum bearing in mind the nature of the offence, etc. etc."

21. Though in a case of rape, when an adult commits rape on a girl of tender age, deterrent punishment is called for, taking a lenient view is out of question. Once a person is convicted for the offence of rape, he should be treated with heavy hands and undeserved indulgence or liberal attitude in not awarding adequate sentence is improper.

22. On present scenario, the appellant is in jail since 5.1.2013 and during trial he remained in jail. Presently he is incarceration for more than 7 years. That appellant is very poor and not represented by counsel of his choice during trial so the contention of learned counsel to adopt a lenient view and award the custodial sentence to the appellant is fully acceptable.

23. Considering the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case, the appellant is acquitted against the charge under section 328 I.P.C. levelled against him. Conviction of the appellant is confirmed under sections 363, 376, 506 & 366 I.P.C. So on the point of conviction, appeal is dismissed. On quantum of sentence this court thinks that end of justice would be met if the appellant is sentenced to imprisonment under section 376 I.P.C. which he has already undergone. It is hereby clear that fine clause shall be unaltered. After depositing fine of Rs. 20,000/-, the victim shall entitle of Rs. 15,000/- under section 357 (2) Cr.P.C. On the point of sentence appeal is partly allowed.

24. On above terms, appeal is finally disposed off.

25. Let a copy of the judgment alongwith lower court record be transmitted to the trial court for necessary compliance.

A. Criminal Law-Indian Penal Code-Sections 302, 504 . and Section 4/25 of the Arms Act r/w 34 I.P.C.— Appeal against conviction.

The point of number of persons sitting on the slab at the time of the incident, evidence of P.W.2 and P.W.4, the alleged eye witnesses is contradictory. On points of sitting place of witnesses, place of incident and seat of injury to the deceased, statement of P.W.1, P.W.2 and P.W.4 are contradictory to each other. All contradictions indicate that this witness is also not an eye witness of the incident that is why the above contradictory statements have been made. (Para 17)

The spot map has been prepared by the I.O. on the pointing out of the P.W.1, , the informant. Therefore, from the evidence led by the prosecution the place of incident is not proved. (para 18)

The knife used in the incident has also not been produced before the trial court. Forensic report is not available on record, so that it can be said that the knife was used in the incident and it is linked with the incident. (Para 22)

In view of the above discussion, prosecution has failed to prove its case against the accused-appellant for commission of offence. (Para 23)

3. Raghubir and others vs. St. of U.P., 1996 ALL.L.J. 551

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ali Zamin, J).)

1. Heard Sri Gaurav Sharma, learned counsel for the appellant and learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. This is an appeal against the judgment and order dated 30.06.2004 passed in S.T. No.373 of 2003 (State vs. Laeeque @ Dharmanga & others) arising out of Case Crime No.140 of 2003, under Sections 302, 504 I.P.C. and S.T. No. 374 of 2003 arising out of Case Crime No.268 of 2003, under Section 4/25 of the Arms Act registered at P.S. Puranpur, District Pilibhit whereby the Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.1, Pilibhit has convicted the accused appellant Laeeque @ Dharmanga under Sections 302, 504 I.P.C. and Section 4/25 of the Arms Act and sentenced to undergo life imprisonment under Section 302 I.P.C., one year rigorous imprisonment under Section 504 I.P.C. and one year rigorous imprisonment under Section 4/25 of the Arms Act and acquitted Jalaluddin and Mashroof under Section 302 I.P.C read with Section 34 and 504 I.P.C.

3. Prosecution case, in brief, is that on 28.03.2003 at about 7:00 P.M. Akram son of the informant Shamshuddin had gone to Babboo Pradhan to take money. On the slab, in front of the house of Babboo Pradhan, Raffique, Aslam his son and several persons of the Mohalla were sitting. At that time, Laeeque @ Dharmanga, Jalaluddin and Mashroof came there. Laeeque @ Dharmanga abusing his son Akram by saying that he had pushed him at the time of filling water, all of a sudden he took out a knife and stabbed him on his chest. On the shrieks of his son, the persons sitting on the slab rushed there immediately and all the three accused persons fled away. Hearing shriek, informant also reached the spot and he took his son to the hospital in an injured condition where he succumbed to his injuries. The incident has been witnessed by the persons present on the spot.

4. On the basis of the written report (Ext.Ka-1) same day at 20.10 P.M., Chik FIR (Ext.Ka-3) under Section 304, 504 read with 34 I.P.C. was registered and G.D. Entry (Ext.Ka-4) was prepared. Investigation of the case was entrusted to S.I., Rampal Singh (P.W.9), who proceeded to the spot along with S.I., S.D. Mahesh Prasad. He recorded the statements of informant Shamshuddin, scribe of written report and prepared spot map (Ext.Ka-10) on the pointing out of the informant. On his instruction S.I. Mahesh Prasad prepared the inquest memo (Ext.Ka-14). He also prepared challan lash, photo lash, letter to the Chief Medical Officer, letter to R.I. and Specimen Seal (Ext.Ka-15 to 19) and dispatched the dead body for post mortem.

5. Dr. Vimal Kumar (P.W.3), conducted autopsy on the body of the deceased and prepared the post mortem report (Ext.Ka-2). According to post-mortem report following injuries were found on the body of the deceased:

"1. Stab wound 2.8 cm x 1.2 cm x chest cavity deep just below and lateral to left nipple. Margin of wound are sharp."

In opinion of the doctor death of the deceased is possible on 28.03.2003 at 7.00 P.M. due to haemorrhage and shock caused by aforesaid injury with a sharp edged weapon like knife.

The death of the deceased is likely to have occurred around 24 hours before the conducting of the post mortem on 29.03.2003 at 3.30 P.M..

6. During investigation, on the pointing out of the accused Laeeque @ Dharmanga, Investigating Officer recovered the knife on 28.05.2003 and prepared recovery memo (Ext.Ka-5). On the basis of the recovery memo, first information report under Section 4/25 Arms Act, Case Crime No. 268 of 2003 was registered at 21:10 P.M. on 28.05.2003. Investigation of the case was entrusted to S.I., Vivek Malik (P.W.8). After completing investigation, on 30.05.2003 the investigating officer (P.W.9) of the Case Crime No. 140 of 2003 submitted charge-sheet (Ext.Ka-12) under Sections 304, 504 and 34 I.P.C. against the accused Laeeque @ Dharmanga, Jalaluddin and Mashroof. Investigating Officer of Case Crime No. 268 of 2003 also completing the investigation submitted charge-sheet under Section 4/25 of the Arms Act (Ex.Ka-9) against the accused Laeeque @ Dharmanga on the same day.

7. Since the offence under Section 304 I.P.C. was exclusively triable by the court of sessions, the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Pilibhit committed the accused for trial to the court of sessions where the Case Crime No.140 of 2003, under Section 304, 504 and 34 I.P.C. was registered as S.T. No.373 of 2003 and Case Crime No.268 under Section 4/25 of the Arms Act was registered as S.T. No. 374 of 2003. The Sessions Judge made over the above cases for trial to the Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.1, Pilibhit. Learned Additional Sessions Judge framed charge under Section 302 and 504 I.P.C. and 4/25 Arms Act against appellant.

8. Prosecution, to prove its case, produced 9 (nine) witnesses namely, P.W.1 Shamshuddin, informant of the case, P.W.2 Aslam and P.W.4 Mohd. Rafique are the witnesses of the fact. P.W.3 Dr. Vimal Kumar conducted the autopsy of the deceased, P.W.5 Constable Narpat Singh, scribe of the F.I.R., Case No.140 of 2003, under Sections 304, 504 I.P.C. and P.W.6 Constable Raghunath Singh, witness of the recovery of knife, P.W.7 Constable Har Prasad, scribe of F.I.R. Case Crime No. 268 of 2003, under Section 4/25 of the Arms Act and G.D., P.W.8 S.I. Vivek Kumar Malik, Investigating Officer of Case Crime No. 263 of 2003, under Section 4/25 of the Arms Act and P.W.9 S.I. Rampal Singh, Investigating Officer of Case Crime No.140 of 2003, under Sections 304, 504, 34 I.P.C. are the formal witnesses of the case.

9. Statements of the accused persons were recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C.. Appellant-accused Laeeque @ Dharmanga in his statement has stated that on account of groupism the case proceeded against him. Mashroof has stated that he does not know why the case proceeded against him and accused Jalaluddin has stated that case proceeded against him due to enmity. Accused persons led no evidence in their defence.

10. Learned Additional Sessions Judge after hearing the argument of the parties and perusal of the record has passed the impugned judgment and order as disclosed in para 2 of the judgment. Hence, the present appeal.

11. Learned counsel for the appellant submits that according to prosecution version incident took place in front of the house of Babboo Pradhan but P.W.9 Rampal Singh, Investigating Officer has stated that near the place of incident there is no house of Babboo Pradhan and the place of incident is not the house of Babboo Pradhan. Therefore, place of incident is not proved. He further submits that no independent witness has been examined although according to prosecution, four-five independent witnesses were present at the time of incident. From the prosecution evidence recovery of knife is also doubtful. Prosecution has miserably failed to prove its case. Learned Trial Judge without proper appreciation of evidence has convicted the appellant, which is not sustainable and it is liable to set aside.

12. Per contra learned A.G.A. submits that P.W.2 Aslam and P.W.4 Mohd. Rafique are the eye witnesses of the incident and they have supported the prosecution version. Learned Trial Judge properly appreciating the evidence adduced by the prosecution has convicted and sentenced the appellant. No interference is required by this Court.

13. From the evidence, it is evident that Akram died of homicidal violence. It is evident from the medical evidence adduced in the evidence in the case. P.W.3 Dr. Vimal Kumar has prepared post mortem report, Ext.Ka-2, according to which an stab wound injury of 2.8 c.m. x 1.2 c.m. chest cavity deep below of lateral left nipple and margin of wound was found sharp. In internal examination 5th rib was found cut and left lung was found punctured. Cause of death was excess bleeding and shock due to the ante mortem injury. From the above, it is clear that Akram died due to injury sustained by him.

14. According to Ext.Ka-1, incident occurred at about 7:00 P.M. on 28.03.2003. Akram son of informant Shamsuddin had gone to Babboo Pradhan. In front of house of Babboo Pradahn on the slab Mohd. Rafique, Aslam, the son of informant and several persons were sitting, at that time Laeeque @ Dharmanga, Jalaluddin, Mashroof came there. Laeeque @ Dharmanga abusing Akram, all of sudden took out a knife and stabbed him on his chest. On his shriek the persons sitting on the slab rushed there to save him but all the three accused persons fled away. Hearing the shriek informant also rushed to the place of incidence and took him away to the hospital in injured condition where he died.

15. P.W.1 Shamshuddin has supported the first information report version through his testimony and stated that knife injury was caused to the left side of the chest. In cross-examination on asking that Jalaluddin and Mashroof were involved in the assault, he has replied that he could not see them causing the incident and has admitted that on the telling of the people he mentioned the wrong name in the first information report. He has further stated that he had seen the dead body at the place of incidence. From the content of Ext.Ka-1 and his deposition, it transpires that he is not an eye witness of the incident and has lodged the report on the telling by others.

16. P.W.2 Aslam has stated that he along with Mohd. Rafique and other persons of the village was sitting on a slab in front of the house of Babboo Pradhan. His brother Akram had come to Babboo Pradhan. Laeeque @ Dharmanga, Jalaluddin and Mashroof also came there. Laeeque @ Dharmanga abusing him, all of sudden took out a knife and stabbed him on the left side of his chest. On his shrieks the witness and other persons sitting on the slab rushed to him, but the accused persons fled away towards north side. In cross-examination he has stated that when he heard shrieks he rushed to the place of incidence. At the time of shrieks he was on the road. He was at a distance of near about 200 yards from the place where the deceased was stabbed. When he reached the spot, the crowd had not assembled, only about four-five persons were present. On hullabaloo his mother and father came there. From his statement in cross-examination, it transpires that at the time of the incident this witness was not sitting on the said slab. Thus, the testimony of P.W.2 Aslam is not supported by Ext.Ka-1, regarding his sitting on the slab at the time of incident. P.W.1 in his cross-examination has also stated that at the time of incident there was less darkness. In that situation being at a place situated at a distance of 200 yards, it would not be possible to see the incident. As such P.W.2 Aslam is also not an eye witness of the incident.

17. P.W.4 Mohd. Rafique has been produced by the prosecution as eye witness of the incident, who has stated that he was sitting on the slab on the side of the Pradhan, whose name he does not know; at that time Aslam, he and one more person were sitting, whose name he is not able to remember. Akram had come to take his wage from the Pradhan, Laeeque @ Dharmanga, Jalaluddin and Mashroof also came there. Laeeque @ Dharmanga started abusing and catching the deceased Akram stabbed him in his right side of the chest. They rushed to rescue him but the accused persons fled away. As per his statement, he was sitting on a slab in front of house of a person situated on the side of the house of Pradhan and the place of incident is not in front of house of Pradhan. He has also stated that the accused stabbed the deceased with a knife on the right side of the chest, whereas according to statement of P.W.1 Shamshuddin and P.W.2 Aslam as well as post mortem report, Ex.Ka-2, the injury to the deceased was caused on the left side of the chest. As per statement of P.W.2 Aslam, apart from him P.W.4 Mohd. Rafique and several persons were sitting on the slab whereas as per P.W.4 Mohd. Rafique, alongwith him only P.W.2 Aslam and one other person were sitting on the slab. Thus, on the point of number of persons sitting on the slab at the time of the incident, evidence of P.W.2 Aslam and P.W.4 Mohd. Rafique, the alleged eye witnesses is contradictory. On points of sitting place of witnesses, place of incident and seat of injury to the deceased, statement of P.W.1 Shamshuddin, P.W.2 Aslam and P.W.4 Mohd. Rafique are contradictory to each other. All contradictions indicate that this witness is also not an eye witness of the incident that is why the above contradictory statements have been made.

18. As per statement of P.W.1 Shamshuddin and P.W.2 Aslam incident occurred in front of the house of Babboo Pradhan. P.W.9 S.I. Rampal Singh, I.O., in his cross-examination has stated that at the place of incident there is no house of Babboo Pradhan. In Ext.Ka-10, place of incidence has been shown by mark 'X'. Place of falling of deceased Akram is shown by mark 'B'. Around mark 'X' and mark 'B', no house of Babboo Pradhan has been shown while the spot map has been prepared by the I.O. on the pointing out of the P.W.1, Shamshuddin, the informant. Therefore, from the evidence led by the prosecution the place of incident is not proved.

19. In the case of Syed Ibrahim vs. State of A.P., (2006) 10 SCC 601, P.W.1 therein had indicated four different places to be the place of occurrence. The Hon'ble Supreme Court held that when the place of occurrence itself has not been established, it would not be proper to accept the prosecution version.

20. In Gautam Chaturvedi vs. State of U.P., 2019 SCC Online All 4307, as per F.I.R. the incident occurred when P.W.1 therein, his nephew P.W.4 Amit Gupta and the deceased were talking amongst themselves standing in the lane outside their house, and the deceased parted company to leave for some place where he had to go. He had reached a point in front of the house of Rajendra, bearing premises no.2/32, when the appellant arrived in an inebriated condition and after a sharp exchange of words between appellant and the deceased, the appellant stabbed him in the presence of witnesses but in his dock evidence, he stated that the appellant arrived at the entrance to the deceased's home, premises no.2/123, where after some exchange of words, the appellant stabbed the deceased. Therefore, it was held that the prosecution has not been able to formally establish the place of occurrence.

21. In the instant case as discussed above, testimony of P.W.1, Shamshuddin, P.W.2 Aslam and P.W.4 Mohd. Rafique are not consistent with regard to sitting on the slab situated in front of house of the Babboo Pradhan, place of incident, seat of injury to the deceased, sitting of persons on the slab. According to the prosecution, apart from appellant two more persons also participated in the offence but prosecution failed to prove their participation.

22. According to P.W.9 S.I. Rampal Singh, I.O., he recovered the knife used in the incidence on pointing out of the accused-appellant and prepared recovery memo Ext.Ka-5. He has also proved spot of recovery of knife as Ex.Ka-13. In cross examination he has stated that the house from which the recovery was made has three doors. One is in the North side, one is in the East side and one is in the West side. He has also stated that towards door of East there is a court-yard. P.W.8 S.I. Vivek Malik, I.O. of the Case Crime No. 268 of 2003, under Section 4/25 Arms Act has proved the spot of recovery as Ext.Ka-8. According to Ex.Ka-8 as well Ex.Ka-13, spot map prepared by P.W. 9 Rampal himself, there is no door and courtyard towards East side of the house. Thus, testimony of P.W.9 S.I. Rampal Singh, I.O. is contradictory to spot map Ex.Ka-8 and Ex.Ka-13. P.W. 8 S.I. Vivek Malik also has recorded the statement of Zahoor Ahmad and Irfan, who have not supported the recovery of the knife. P.W.9 S.I. Rampal Singh has also stated in the cross-examination that he prepared the spot map on 15.06.2003 and proved it as Ext.Ka-13. While knife was recovered on 28.05.2003 and investigation was entrusted to P.W.8 S.I. Vivek Malik. After entrustment of investigation to P.W.8 S.I. Vivek Malik preparing of the spot map by him on 15.06.2003 indicates that the investigation is not fair. S.I. Vivek Malik (P.W.8) in his cross-examination has admitted that S.I. Rampal Singh is senior to him, who recovered the knife. Investigation by a junior officer in a case registered by a senior officer also can not be said to be fair as held by this Court in Raghubir and others vs. State of U.P., 1996 ALL.L.J. 551. The knife used in the incident has also not been produced before the trial court. Forensic report is not available on record, so that it can be said that the knife was used in the incident and it is linked with the incident.

23. In view of the above discussion, we find that investigation of the case relating to recovery is vitiated. There is no evidence to prove that recovered knife was used in the alleged incident. The evidence adduced on the point of alleged recovery also does not inspire confidence. Consequently, recovery is not proved beyond reasonable doubt.

In view of the above discussion, prosecution has failed to prove its case against the accused-appellant for commission of offence under Section 302, 504, I.P.C. and 4/25 Arms Act.

24. Therefore, on conspectus of facts and circumstances of the case we find that prosecution evidence of P.W. 1 Shamshuddin and P.W.2 Aslam is inconsistent with P.W.4 Mohd. Rafique regarding place of sitting of the witnesses, place of the incident, seat of injury to the deceased and persons sitting on the slab. P.W.1 Shamshuddin, P.W.2 Aslam and P.W.4 Mohd. Rafique are not eye witnesses of the incident. Recovery of knife on the pointing out of the appellant is also not proved. The prosecution has miserably failed to prove its case against the appellant. The judgment and order passed by the learned Trial Judge is, therefore, not sustainable and is liable to set aside.

The appeal is, therefore, allowed. The impugned judgment and order mentioned above convicting and sentencing the appellant Laeeque @ Dharmanga is set aside. He is acquitted of the charges under Sections 302, 504 I.P.C. and 4/25 Arms Act. The appellant is in jail. If he is not wanted in any other case, he shall be released forthwith provided he files his personal bond and two sureties in accordance with Section 437 (A) Cr.P.C. to the satisfaction of the Court concerned.

Office is directed to communicate this decision to the Court concerned forthwith and send back the record.

Before concluding, this Court must put on record its appreciation of the efforts put in by Mr. Gaurav Sharma, learned Amicus Curiae in providing valuable assistance to the Court. It is, therefore, directed that a sum of Rs. 15,000/- be paid to Mr.Gaurav Sharma, learned Amicus Curiae towards fees.

The above amount shall be paid to Mr. Gaurav Sharma, learned Amicus Curiae by the Registry of this Court within 15 days.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Naheed Ara Moonis, J.)

1. This Criminal Appeal has been filed against the judgement and order dated 17.07.2009 passed by the learned Additional Sessions Judge (Fast Track) Court No. 3, Maharajganj in Session Trial No. 158 of 2004 arising out of Case Crime No. 115 of 2004, under Section 302 IPC and Session Trial No.

159 of 2004 arising out of Case Crime No. 121 of 2004, under Sections 25/27 of Arms Act, police station Ghughli, district Maharajganj whereby the learned Judge convicted and sentenced the appellant to life imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 5,000/- under Section 302 IPC and five years rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 1000/- under Sections 25/27 of the Arms Act. In case of default, the appellant was further directed to undergo rigorous imprisonment for six months in both the session trials. However, both the sentences were directed to run concurrently.

2. The emanation of facts giving rise to the case of the prosecution are that a written report was handed over by the first informant Hari Narayan, son of Maniraj Chaudhary, village Harkhi Tola police station Ghughli, district Maharajganj to the effect that the complainant is the permanent resident of village Harkhi Tola Nipaniya, police station Ghughli, district Maharajganj. On the fateful day, i.e. (01.9.2004) at about 6.00 AM, when his Samdhi Lalman Chaudhary, son of Ram Kishun (daughter's father-in-law), who resided in the same village, was coming back to his village from Harkhi Miner situated in south-east after attending the call of nature, Jawahar alias Baburam (appellant) who is the son of the first wife of Lalman Chaudhary shot at him at the canal as he was inimical with his father due to litigation in respect of family property. After Lalman Chaudhary fell down, his son (the appellant) hacked him to death with a sharp edged weapon. On hearing the sound of firing Mahendra Gaud, Rakesh, Pauhari and several other persons who were present at the spot rushed towards and tried to chase the accused to nab Jawahar alias Baburam, but he managed to escape towards southern side by taking shelter of paddy and sugar-cane crops. It was further mentioned in the report that dead body is lying at the spot.

3. On the basis of the aforesaid report, which was scribed by Ram Suresh, son of Ugai, village Sonevarsa, the FIR was registered at 8.15 AM on the same day as Case Crime No. 115 of 2004, under Section 302 IPC, police station Ghughli, district Maharajganj.

4. After the registration of the case, the criminal law set into motion and investigation of the case was entrusted to PW-17, SI Kushal Pal Singh, who copied the FIR in the case diary and thereafter left for the place of occurrence along with PW-12, SI B.L. Chaudhary, Constable Sushil Singh, Constable Brij Bhushan Tiwari and Constable Kishun Dev Prasad where Constable Adha Singh, Constable Jagat Pati Mishra, Constable Uma Shanker Yadav and Constable Vishwanath Chaurasia were already present. Complainant and other villagers also reached at the spot where the cadaver of deceased Lalman Chaudhary was lying. The investigating officer after nominating Kapil Dev Shukla, Pauhari, Kanhai, Harakhman and Hari Shanker as witnesses of inquest, conducted the inquest on the cadaver of the deceased Lalman Chaudhary between 9.30 AM to 11.15 AM on 01.9.2004 in accordance with the procedure prescribed and also prepared papers in respect of inquest, photonash, police paper, report of RI, letter to the Chief Medical Officer and sample. He got the dead body of the deceased sealed and handed over to Constable Jagpat Mishra and Constable Brij Bhushan Tiwari for the post mortem examination. The investigating officer recorded the statement of the first informant Hari

Narayan and witnesses Mahendra Gaud and Rakesh Gaud and inspected the spot and prepared site plan on the pointing out of the witnesses (Ext. Ka-14). He also collected bloodstained and simple earth, one pair sleeper and one steel pot (Lota) and prepared memos thereof. The investigating officer kept the bloodstained and simple earth in two separate containers and got it sealed. On 01.9.2004, the investigating officer recovered the sleeper of left foot of the accused from the paddy field of Mahesh Chaudhary, which was left while he was running away and prepared its memo (Ext. Ka-15). Thereafter, the investigating officer left for village Harkhi Tola Nipania where he recorded the statement of Ram Suresh, scribe of the FIR. Thereafter, the investigating officer ensued the investigation and raided the house of the accused, but he could not be arrested. On 03.9.2004, he again left for the arrest of the accused, but his whereabouts could not be known. On 04.9.2004, 06.9.2004, 07.9.2004 and 10.9.2004 he raided several places, but accused could not be apprehended. On 11.9.2004, on the information of the informer, accused was arrested from Kaptanganj. On interrogation he confessed that due to property dispute, he has committed the murder of his father and narrated the manner in which he committed the murder. The accused got one country made pistol 315 bore, one empty cartridge 315 bore, one live cartridge 315 bore and one household knife with sharp edge, which contained bloodstained, recovered, in the presence of police personnel, which were kept in white polythene and concealed under the ground after removing shrubs and soil near an old well. The accused also got his own sleeper of right foot recovered. The recovered items were sealed vide Exhibit Ka-17. A copy of the memo was also handed over to the accused duly signed by the witnesses. The aforesaid items were sent to the Forensic Science Laboratory, Lucknow on the order of the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Maharanganj.

5. After the recovery of country made pistol, cartridges and knife, a case was also registered against the accused-appellant as Case Crime No. 121 of 2004, under Section 25/27 of the Arms Act, police station Ghughli, district Maharajganj.

6. The investigating officer prepared the site plan of the place from where weapons of assault and other incriminating articles were recovered on the pointing out of the accused-appellant (Ext. Ka-18.) He also recorded the statement of the accused under Section 161 Cr.P.C. and also got the statement of the accused under Section 164 Cr.P.C. recorded.

7. In the interregnum period, the post-mortem of the deceased Lalman Chaudhary was conducted on 02.9.2004 at 3.00 PM in the District Hospital by Dr. H.S. Lal Sonkar, PW-14. The investigating officer collected clinching and credible evidence and after completion of investigation, the investigating officer submitted charge sheet against the accused-appellant on 18.10.2004 under Section 302 IPC (Ext. Ka-20).

8. The investigation of Case Crime No. 121 of 2004, under Sections 25/27 of the Arms Act was carried out by PW-16, SI Jai Prakash Singh. On 17.9.2004, he recorded the statement of SO Shri Kushal Pal Singh Yadav, PW-17 and on his pointing out he prepared site plan, which he proved as Ext. Ka-7. Thereafter, he recorded the statement of Nar Singh, Deena, Harendra Shukla and Ram Adhar Pandey. On 20.9.2004, he sought permission from the District Magistrate for prosecution of the accused-appellant and thereafter submitted charge sheet, which he proved as Ext. Ka-8.

9. As the case was exclusively triable by the Court of Sessions, learned Magistrate committed the case to the Court of Sessions, where case was registered as ST Nos. 158 of 2004 and 159 of 2004 and the learned Sessions Judge, Maharajganj vide order dated 22.11.2005 framed the charges against the accused under Section 302 IPC in ST No. 158 of 2004 and under Sections 25/27 of the Arms Act in ST No. 159 of 2004, which were read over and explained to the accused. The accused-appellant abjured the charges by pleading not guilty and claimed to be tried, hence the prosecution was called upon to lead the evidence.

10. To bring home the guilt of the accused-appellant beyond the hilt, the prosecution has examined as many as 18 witnesses, out of whom PW-1, Hari Narayan is the first informant of the case, PW-2, Rakesh, PW-3, Pauhari and PW 6 Mahendra are the witnesses of facts, PW-4, Ram Raksha Singh and PW-7 Kapil Dev Shukla are the witnesses of inquest and recovery of bloodstained earth, PW-5, Ram Suresh is the scribe of the FIR, PW-8, Kanhaiya Singh and PW-10, Hari Shanker are the witnesses of inquest, PW-9, Ram Adhar Pandey, PW- 12, SSI B.L. Chaudhary and PW-13, Surendra Shukla and PW-18, Adya Singh are the witnesses of recovery of weapon of assault, PW-11, Constable-Muharrir R.S. Prasad prepared chik FIR at case crime No. 115 of 2004, under Section 302 IPC, PW-14, Dr. H.S. Lal Sonkar conducted the post-mortem examination on the cadaver of the deceased, PW-15, Constable Chandra Bhushan prepared chik FIR of case crime No. 121 of 2004, under Sections 25/27 of the Arms Act, PW-16, SI Jai Prakash is the investigating officer of case crime No. 121 of 2004, under Section 25/27 of the Arms Act, PW-17, SI Kushal Pal Singh, the investigating officer of case crime No. 115 of 2004, under Section 302 IPC, PS Ghughli, district Maharajganj.

11. PW-1, Hari Narayan is the first informant of the case. He has deposed that his daughter was married to another son of the deceased. Accused Jawahar alias Babu Ram is also the son of the deceased and resides in his village. Deceased was killed at 6.00 AM while he had gone to attend the call of nature at Harkhi Miner. When he was coming back, accused Jawahar alias Babu Ram Chaudhary fired at him and as soon as he fell down, accused Jawahar Slashed his throat with the knife. On hearing the fire of country made pistol, several persons hailing to the same village rushed to the spot. He (P.W-1) also rushed to the spot while he was going to attend nature's call and saw that accused slit the neck of the deceased and ran away. He tried to chase the accused, but in vain. He further deposed that he Knew Jawahar alias Baburam, who is standing in the court. The report of the incident scribed by PW-5, Ram Suresh, resident of Sonvarsa and signed by him was handed over at the police station, which he proved as Ext. Ka-1. Ram Suresh had come to the village on the date of incident. Deceased-Lalman had purchased 3 acres and 70 decimal of land in the name of his son Babu Ram alias Jawahar and Janardan. Lalman had two wives. Accused Jawahar and Janardan were the son of Israrwati, the first wife of the deceased. The name of his second wife was Vimla, with whom were three children namely Mahavir, Durgawati and Kumari Sati. Deceased Lalman had given one acre and 87 decimal of land in favour of Mahavir whereas the rest of land was sole in favour of Medhai alias Arjun. He had also given some land to his daughter Durgawati and Kumari Sati but accused-Jawahar was demanding his share from the ancestral land also, due to which accused-appellant Jawahar was angry with the deceased-Lalman. He also deposed that three years ago, Janardan, his wife Rambha, Jawahar alias Babu Ram and his wife, all the four persons had assaulted Lalman and his second wife Vimla. Later on, Vimla succumbed to the injury on the way to hospital. In the murder case of Vimla, deceased-Lalman was doing Pairvi, due to which Jawahar was nurturing animus and grudge, hence eliminated him.

12. In the lengthy cross-examination, nothing has been come out contrary to the examination-in-chief.

13. PW-2, Rakesh has deposed in his examination-in-chief on oath that accused-Jawahar and deceased-Lalman were son and father. Lalman was murdered less than 2 years ago at about 6.00 AM in the morning. Both of them resided in his village. Deceased-Lalman was murdered at the canal of Harkhi Tola. On hearing the sound of fire, when he rushed to the spot, several persons of the village were already gathered at the spot. He saw that the deceased fell down on receiving firearm injuries. He did not see that Jawahar fired at the deceased or hacked the deceased to death. He further deposed that he did not see the occurrence nor he chased the accused Jawahar along with other person. When he reached at the spot, he had seen the dead body of the deceased Lalman. He was already dead. At this stage, PW-2, Rakesh was declared hostile and the prosecution was permitted to cross-examine him. He denied that his statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. was never recorded. He has not seen Jawahar murdered Lalman with firearm weapon. He reached at the spot firstly. Later on, Hari Narayan (PW-1) reached at the spot after half an hour. It was dark when Lalman was decimated .

14. PW-3, Pauhari, in his evidence has deposed that he knew the deceased. Accused-Jawahar was the son of the deceased. Lalman has been killed. On the date of incident at about 6.00 AM, Lalman was coming towards the village after attending the call of nature from west to east, whereas accused Jawahar was going to west towards the canal Harkhi Miner. When they crossed each other, at that juncture accused Jawahar fired at the deceased-Lalman. He saw the accused firing at the deceased. He also heard the sound of fire. On receiving the shot, deceased fell down at the northern side track of the canal. Thereafter accused Jawahar had slit his throat. He rushed to the spot and asked the accused as to what is he doing. Thereupon accused Jawahar ran away through paddy and sugar cane field towards south of the canal. Effort was made to apprehend the accused, but due to fear and trepidation, they did not enter in the field of sugar cane. Deceased succumbed to the injuries at the spot and blood was found scattered. He further deposed that two years prior to the incident, there was dispute between accused-Jawahar and deceased-Lalman in respect of farming and litigation was going on in the Court. In the fued, Lalman and wife of deceased Vimla had sustained injuries. Vimla had lost her life for which a case is pending against the accused-Jawahar. He also deposed that police arrived at 9.00 AM at the place of incident. He had divulged to the police that the deceased died as Jawahar had fired at him and slit his throat with sharp edged weapon. Inquest of the deceased was conducted in the presence of witnesses and he also put his thumb impression on the inquest and signed by other witnesses. Thereafter the dead body of the accused Lalman was sealed in his presence and was sent to the mortuary for the autopsy. He was interrogated by the police. PW-3 was put to lengthy cross-examination by the defence to create doubt about his presence at the time of incident.

15. PW-4, Ram Raksha Singh, in his evidence, had deposed that on 01.9.2004 in his presence, the investigating officer has collected bloodstained earth, simple earth and recovered sleeper and one steel water pot (Lota) from the place of occurrence where deceased was killed, memos whereof duly signed by him, which he proved as Ext. Ka-2. In the cross-examination, he showed his acquaintance with the complainant and the family of the deceased.

16. PW-5, Ram Suresh has deposed that he is the Gram Pradhan of village Sonvarsa, district Maharajganj. A day before the occurrence, he had come to his in-laws house at village Harkhi tola Nipaniya. He reached at the place where the cadaver of Lalman was lying. On the request of Hari Narayan, he has written the report in respect of the incident on the dictation of Hari Narayan, which was signed by him. He had identified and proved paper No. 4-Ka-2 as Ext. Ka.1. In this cross-examination, he denied that report was written after he was called upon by the police and after inquest of the dead body.

17. PW-6, Mahendra has deposed that both accused Jawahar and deceased-Lalman are known to him. Deceased was killed prior to two years ago. On the date of occurrence, at about 6.00 AM, while he was going to attend the call of nature at canal Harkhi Miner, he saw that accused Jawahar was standing at the roadside beside the machine of Ramagya and deceased-Lalman was coming back after attending the call of nature. Several persons of the village were attending the call of nature at the canal and some persons were commuting. This witness has further deposed that on hearing the sound of fire, when he turned back and had seen that deceased Lalman after being struck by the bullet, fell down on the pavement of canal and his son accused-Jawahar was hacking his throat with a sharp edged weapon. When this witness along with Rakesh, Pauhari and several other persons rushed to the spot, accused ran away. He has also deposed that when he reached near deceased-Lalman, he was dead. Deceased has been killed due to the enmity between the deceased and the accused over the partition of 1/3rd of the land. Prior to the present occurrence, the accused-Jawahar along with his brother has killed Vimla, wife of deceased-Lalman.

18. PW-7, Kapil Dev Shukla is the witness of inquest of the deceased Lalman and recovery of bloodstained earth. He has deposed that after the occurrence, police reached at the spot. He has further deposed that he along with Ram Raksha Singh and several persons of the village have also reached at the spot. Inquest was conducted by the police in his presence. Ram Raksha Singh and other persons were also present there. During the inquest proceeding, on being questioned by the investigating officer as to how deceased died, he divulged that he was killed by fire made by country made pistol and thereafter by hacking his neck. He proved his signature at paper Nos. 6-Ka/1, 6-Ka/2 and 6-Ka/3.

19. He has further deposed that the investigating officer collected bloodstained and simple earth from the place of occurrence and kept in separate containers. The investigating officer also recovered one pair sleeper and one steel pot and sealed them after keeping in separate clothes and got his signature thereon. The investigating officer also recovered sleeper of left foot of the accused and sealed it and got the same signed by this witness. He proved his signature at paper No. 13-Ka/1 and 13-Ka/2.

20. PW-8- Kanhaiya Singh is the witness of inquest. He has deposed that on hearing about the killing of the deceased, Lalman when he reached the place of occurrence, police and several persons were present there. Inquest on the body of the deceased was conducted in his presence. First informant Har Narayan and Pauhari were also present at the time of inquest. He has further deposed that he put his signature on the inquest report.

21. PW-9 is the witness of recovery of weapon of assault. He has deposed that country made pistol and knife were recovered by the police in his presence. Accused-Jawahar got one country made pistol, two cartridges, and a knife recovered by digging the ground and confessed his crime. The investigating officer sealed country made pistol and cartridges separately and prepared their memos, on which his signature was obtained. This witness proved Paper Nos. 4-Ka/3 and 4-Ka/4 of Case Crime No. 121 of 2004.

22. PW-10, Hari Shanker is the witness of inquest. He has deposed that on the date of incident, he had gone to see the dead body of deceased, Lalman where police and villagers were present. On being questioned by the investigating officer about the death, he told him that deceased was killed and has not died a natural death. The investigating officer got the inquest report prepared and obtained the signature of this witness.

23. PW-11, Constable-Muharrir Ram Suranjan Prasad has deposed that on 01.9.2004, he was posted as Constable-Muharrir at the police station Ghughli, district Maharajganj. On that date, on the basis of the written report of Har Narayan, he prepared chik FIR at case crime No. 115 of 2004, under Section 302 IPC, police Station Ghughli, district Maharajganj, which he proved at Ext. Ka-3.

24. PW-12, S.S.I. Bachchu Lal Chaudhary was the witness of arrest of the appellant and recovery of weapon of assault. He has deposed that on 11.9.2004, on the information of the informer that accused will go via Khuta Maidan, he along with Station House Officer Shri Kushal Pal Singh and his companion rushed to the spot and after keeping the official jeep behind the bushes, they made a siege and waited for the accused to come. At about 12.30 noon, a person was seen coming from the village Kudana and was going towards Kaptanganj. On the indication of the informer that he is the accused Jawahar, he was apprehended. On being interrogated, he disclosed his name as Jawahar alias Babu Ram. The investigating officer SO Kushal Pal Singh arrested him and told him the reasons for his arrest and recorded the statement of the accused. The accused confessed his crime and agreed to get the weapon of the assault recovered, which he has concealed in his village Siwan. Thereafter the accused got recovered one country made pistol 315 bore, one empty cartridge and one live cartridge, one household sharp edged knife, which contained bloodstains. He further deposed that the investigating officer got the aforesaid articles sealed and prepared their memos which was duly signed by him.

25. PW-13, Surendra Shukla is the witness of recovery of weapon of assault. In his evidence, he has deposed that on the date of occurrence, at about 2.30 PM, police of police station Ghughli brought the accused-Lalman to the village. This witness was told by the investigating officer that accused Jawahar wants to get the weapon with which he killed his father, recovered and asked him to accompany him. This witness has further deposed that he along with police personnel, accused and several persons of the village reached at old well situated across the canal Harkhi Miner. Near the well there were bushes and trees. Near the well, some portion of the land was dig from before on which some grasses were lying. Accused took out one plastic bag from there. The bag contained one country made pistol, one empty cartridge, one live cartridge, one household knife having bloodstains on it. The accused admitted that he had fired at his father from the recovered country made pistol and thereafter hacked his father to death by the knife. The investigating officer kept country made pistol and cartridge in one cloth and knife in another and sealed them and prepared memos thereof, which was signed by this witness.

26. PW-14, Dr. H.S. Lal has conducted post-mortem on the body of the deceased-Lalman. He has deposed that on 02.9.2004, he was posted as Senior Dermatologist at District Hospital, Gorakhpur. On 02.9.2004 at about 3.00 PM, he conducted the post-mortem examination on the body of the deceased, who was brought by Constable CP 568 Jagat Pal and Constable 062 Brij Bhushan of police station Ghughli in a sealed condition. Doctor H.S. Lal, found the following ante-mortem injuries on the body of the deceased:

"1. Incised wound 10 cm x 3 cm bone deep on right side neck underline muscle, vessels, trachea, oesophagus cut.

2. Gun shot wound of entry 1 cm x 1 cm bone deep on the left side back upper part. Metallic shaped shot recovered from surface of lower end of scapula left side . Direction- back to forward, margins inverted, blackening around the wound."

27. In the opinion of the doctor, the cause of death was due to shock and haemorrhage as a result of ante-mortem injuries.

28. Doctor further opined that death was caused about one and a half day ago. The death might have been caused at about 6.00 AM on 01.9.2004. He proved the post-mortem report as Ext. Ka 4.

29. In his cross-examination, PW-14, Dr. H.S. Lal, has further deposed that the large intestine contained faecal matter and gases and stomach contained 3 oz. of fluids. Bladder was empty. It was possible that he had urinated before his death. Looking to the large intestine, it transpired that he did not attend the call of nature. In September generally lower limb rigor mortis passes off between 36 and 48 hours. Doctor further opined that rigor mortis had passed off. Looking to the condition of the body, doctor further stated that the death might have been caused between 12.00 night of 31.8.2004 and 3.00 AM of 01.9.2004.

30. In respect of gun shot wound, Dr. Lal has deposed that he found gun shot wound on the back side of upper part, which had only entry wound and no exit was there. He also recovered one metallic shaped bullet. He further deposed that only expert can ascertain whether it was bullet or not. It was of 'D' shaped. Blackening was present near the wound, which suggested that injury was caused from 1-½ to 6 feet. Charring and Tattooing were not present around the wound.

31. PW-15, Constable Chandra Bhushan has deposed that on 11.9.2004, he was posted as Constable at the police station Ghughli, district Maharajgnj. On that date on the basis of recovery of weapon of assault, he prepared chik FIR against accused Jawahar alias Baburam at case crime No. 121 of 2004, under Sections 25/27 of the Arms Act, which he proved as Ext. Ka-5. Three sealed bundle of country made pistol, cartridge and knife were kept in Malkhana and accused-Jawahar was kept in lock up. The papers were prepared by him exhibited as Ka-6.

32. PW-16, SI Jai Prakash Singh was the investigating officer of Case Crime No. 121 of 2004, under Sections 25/27 of the Arms Act, PS Ghughli, district Maharajganj and PW-17 SI Kushal Pal Singh Yadav was the investigating officer of Case Crime No. 115 of 2004, under Section 302 IPC, police station Ghughli, district Maharajganj, and their evidences have already been discussed above.

33. PW-18, Constable C.P. 78 Ram Adya Singh was the witness of recovery of weapon of assault. He has deposed that on 11.9.2004 he was posted as Constable at Police Station Ghughli and was the companion (Hamrah) of the Station House Officer. When accused was arrested, he confessed his guilt and agreed to get the weapon of assault recovered. This witness further deposed that he along with the SHO and other police personnel reached at village Harkhi, from where through the pavement, he reached to an old well situated at Harkhi Tota Nipaniya. At about 2.30 PM, accused took out one plastic bag, which was hid under the earth. The bag contained one country made pistol 315 bore, cartridges and one knife having bloodstains on it. Accused also got recovered his one sleeper of right hand. The investigating officer after keeping country made pistol and cartridges in one cloth and knife and the sleeper in separate cloth, got them sealed and prepared memos thereof, which this witness has proved as Ext. Ka-17.

34. After the closure of the prosecution evidence, the statement of the accused was recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C., in which he denied the charges levelled against him. He further stated that investigating officer has not conducted the investigation in right perspective and false charge sheet has been submitted against him. He also stated that he has been roped in the present case due to enmity and that nothing has been recovered at his instance. To a specific question by the Court that country made pistol, one live cartridge and a knife were recovered on his pointing out, which were used by him in the commission of crime, the accused has only stated that nothing has been recovered at his instance.

35. Learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 3, Maharajganj after hearing thelearned counsel for the parties and assessing, evaluating and scrutinizing the evidence on record, convicted and sentenced the accused-appellant as indicated herein above.

36. Hence, this appeal.

37. Heard Shri Tarkeshwar Prasad Tripahi and Shri B.K. Tripathi, learned counsel for the appellant and Shri Ajit Ray, learned Additional Government Advocate for the State and perused the record of the case.

38. Learned counsel for the appellant has made the following submissions:

1. The first information report has been lodged ante timed.

2. The incident took place in the night as suggested by Dr. H.S. Lal Sonker in his cross-examination and no one has seen the incident and the appellant has been falsely implicated in this case due to enmity.

3. The statement of the first informant under Section 161 Cr.P.C. was recorded belatedly.

4. All the witnesses are interested and partisan and no independent witness has been examined.

5. Conduct of Mahavir, who is also the son of the deceased in not coming to the place of occurrence and fleeing away, who returned after 16 days of the occurrence, which belies the prosecution story.

6. The weapons of assault were not placed before the doctor to derive his opinion as to whether the injuries were caused by the said weapons.

7. The recovery memo of weapons does not contain the signature/thump impression of the appellant.

8. At the time of obtaining sanction of the District Magistrate, weapons were not produced before him.

9. There was no mention in the GD as to when first information report was sent to the Court concerned.

10. In the FIR sharp edged weapon has been mentioned, whereas only domestic knife was allegedly recovered at the instance of the appellant.

11. The witnesses of recovery of weapons, i.e. country made pistol, live cartridge and knife are not reliable as they are police official.

12. While recording the statement of the accused, all the incriminating circumstances were not put to the accused.

39. On the other hand, learned Additional Government Advocate contended that prosecution was successful in bringing home the guilt of the appellant to the hilt. The statements of PWs 1, 3 and 6 are consistent throughout the trial. Learned Additional Government Advocate further submits that presence of faecal matter in the intestines was only a probability stated by the doctor and its quantity cannot be measured, which cannot negate the ocular testimony. Learned Additional Government Advocate also contended that the appellant was depressed with the act of his father and had earlier committed the murder of his step mother about which a case was also pending before the court below and after being released on bail, he committed the murder of his father.

40. The first contention of learned counsel for the appellant is that the first information report is ante-timed. In support of his contention, learned counsel for the appellant has relied upon the decision of this Court in Jai Ram and others Vs. State of U.P., 2015(1) JIC 589 (All). To buttress his submission, learned counsel for the appellant has contended that the first information report has been lodged after the inquest proceedings and with due deliberation.

41. As per prosecution case, the occurrence in question took place at 6.00 AM and the first information report has been promptly lodged at 8.15 AM. The distance of the police station is 16 kms. PW-1, Hari Narayan, the first informant of the case has stated that after the incident, he got the report scribed by PW-5, Ram Suresh and handed over the same at the police station. In his cross-examination, PW-1, Ram Narayan has deposed that he reached the police station at about 7.15 AM and handed over the written report at the police station and left for the place of occurrence. When he reached the place of occurrence at about 8.15 AM, the investigating officer was present. The inquest on the cadaver was completed at about 9.15 AM. PW-11, who prepared the chik FIR, in his cross examination has stated that he wrote the FIR at 8.15 AM on 01.9.2004 on the basis of written report submitted by the first informant Hari Narayan.

42. In Jai Ram and others Vs. State of U.P (Supra) relied upon by the learned counsel for the appellant, the incident in question took place at about 1.00 AM (in the night intervening 29/30.10.1979 and the FIR of the incident was lodged at 2.55 AM on 30.10.1979. The contents of the FIR was that aaj beeti raat mein, which goes to suggest that this word was usually used if the FIR was lodged in the morning rather than if it was lodged in the night of the incident itself. Moreover, the post-mortem on the body of the deceased was conducted after 48 hours on 31.10.1979 at 1.00 PM. In the aforesaid fact, the Court held that the FIR was ante-timed. In the present case the incident in question took place at 6.00 AM and the FIR was promptly lodged at 8.15 AM, the distance of police station was 16 kms. Therefore, contention of the learned counsel for the appellant that the FIR was ante-timed or doctored one is contrary to the documents on record. We are of the view that it was lodged at the time and date as disclosed by the prosecution.

43. Hon'ble Supreme Court in Mehraj Singh Vs. State of U.P., 1994 SCC (5) 188 held thus:

"FIR in a criminal case and particularly in a murder case is a vital and valuable piece of evidence for the purpose of appreciating the evidence led at the trial. The object of insisting upon prompt lodging of the FIR is to obtain the earliest information regarding the circumstance in which the crime was committed, including the names of the actual culprits and the parts played by them, the weapons, if any used, as also the names of the eyewitnesses, if any. Delay in lodging the FIR often results in embellishment, which is a creature of an afterthought. On account of delay, the FIR not only gets bereft of the advantage of spontaneity, danger also creeps in of the introduction of a coloured version or exaggerated story. With a view to determine whether the FlR was lodged at the time it is alleged to have been recorded, the courts generally look for certain external checks. One of the checks is the receipt of the copy of the FIR, called a special report in a murder case, by the local Magistrate. If this report is received by the Magistrate late it can give rise to an inference that the FIR was not lodged at the time it is alleged to have been recorded, unless, of course the prosecution can offer a satisfactory explanation for the delay in dispatching or receipt of the copy of the FIR by the local Magistrate. The second external check equally important is the sending of the copy of the FIR along with the dead body and its reference inquest report. Even though the one with in the, inquest report, prepared under Section 174 Cr.P.C., is aimed at serving a statutory function, to lend credence to the prosecution case, the details of the FIR and the gist of statements recorded during inquest proceedings get reflected in the report. The absence of those details is indicative of the fact that the prosecution story was still in an embryo state and had not been given any shape and that the FIR came to be recorded later on after due deliberations and consultations and was then ante- timed to give it the colour of a promptly lodged FIR."

44. The second contention of the learned counsel for the appellant is that the incident took place in the night and no one has seen the incident and the appellant has been falsely implicated in this case due to enmity. In support of this contention, learned counsel for the appellant has placed reliance upon the opinion of the doctor that large intestine contained faecal matter and gases. In his cross-examination, doctor further opined that in the month of September generally rigor mortis from the lower limb passes off between 36 to 48 hours. Looking to the condition of the body, doctor further opined that death might have been caused between 12.00 in the night of 31.8.2004 and 3.00 AM of 01.9.2004. In support of his contention, learned counsel for the appellant has placed reliance upon the decision of this Court in State of U.P. Vs. Naim Uddin and others, 2015(3) JIC 929 (All).

45. The medical evidence is only an advisory in character given on the basis of symptoms found on examination. The expert witness is expected to put before the Court all materials inclusive of the data which induced him to come to the conclusion and enlighten the Court on the technical aspect of the case by explaining the terms of science so that the court although, not an expert, may form its opinion on those materials after giving due regard to the expert's opinion because once the expert's opinion is accepted, it is not the opinion of the medical officer, but of the Court.

46. So far as presence of faecal matter in the intestines is concerned, it is to be noted that digestive process differs from man to man. It depends upon several factors. Process of digestion being not uniform and varies from individual to individual. Merely because faecal matter was found in the intestines, it cannot be held that murder was committed in the night.

47. So far rigor mortis is concerned, doctor opined that rigor mortis of the deceased has completely passed off. Doctor further opined that in September process of passing of rigor mortis begins after 18 hours and completely passed off in 36 hours.

48. Passing off rigor mortis depends upon several factor and it cannot be said that in the month of September rigor mortis completely passed off in 36 hours. So far as the opinion of the doctor that death might have been caused between 12.00 in the night of 31.8.2004 and 3.00 AM of 01.9.2004, that does not mean that doctor has fixed the time of death.

49. it is to be noted that this case is based on ocular evidence. It is settled legal proposition that the ocular evidence would have primacy unless it is established that oral evidence is totally irreconcilable with the medical evidence. Further, the ocular testimony of a witness has a greater evidentiary value than medical evidence.

50. A similar issue has cropped up before Hon'ble Supreme Court in Mangu Khan and others Vs. State of Rajasthan, AIR 2005 SC 1912 wherein the post-mortem report indicated that the death had occurred within 24 hours prior to the post-mortem. In that case, the opinion of the doctor did not match with the prosecution case. Hon'ble Apex Court examined the issue elaborately and held that physical condition of the body after death would depend on a large number of circumstances/factors and nothing can be said with certainty. In determining the issue, various factors such as age and health condition of the deceased, climatic and atmospheric conditions of the place of occurrence and the conditions under which the body is preserved, are required to be considered. There has been no cross-examination of the doctor on the issue as to elicit any of the material fact on which a possible argument could be based in this regard. The acceptable ocular evidence cannot be dislodged on such hypothetical basis for which no proper grounds were made.

51. In Baso Prasad and others Vs. State of Bihar, AIR 2007 SC 1019, Hon'ble Supreme Court while considering a similar issue held that exact time of death cannot be established scientifically and precisely.

52. In Patti Pati Venkatah Vs. State of Andhra Pradesh, 1985(4) SCC 80, Hon'ble Apex Court held that medical science is not yet so perfect as to determine the exact time of death nor can the same be determined in a computerised or mathematical fashion so as to accurate to the last second.

53. In State of U.P. Vs. Hari Chand (2009) 13 SCC 542, Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:

"14. It is trite that where the eye-witnesses' account is found credible and trustworthy, medical opinion pointing to alternative possibilities is not accepted as conclusive. Witnesses, as Bentham said, are the eyes and ears of justice. Hence the importance and primacy of the quality of the trial process. Eye witnesses' account would require a careful independent assessment and evaluation for their credibility which should not be adversely prejudged making any other evidence, including medical evidence, as the sole touchstone for the test of such credibility. The evidence must be tested for its inherent consistency and the inherent probability of the story; consistency with the account of other witnesses held to be credit-worthy; consistency with the undisputed facts; the `credit' of the witnesses; their performance in the witness-box; their power of observation etc. Then the probative value of such evidence becomes eligible to be put into the scales for a cumulative evaluation.

54. The enmity between the accused-appellant and the deceased is admitted as is evident from the FIR as well as from the statement of the accused-appellant recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C, in which the accused has stated that he has been roped in the present case due to enmity. No specific enmity of the accused with the informant has been alleged. However, to a suggestion put to the informant in the cross-examination, he denied that he used to put pressure upon the deceased not to give any property to accused-Jawahar and his brother Janardan, which cannot be a ground for false implication of the accused-appellant leaving the real culprit to go scot free. On the other hand, enmity may be a motive for the appellant to commit the murder of deceased who was doing Pairvi in the murder case of Vimla, wife of the deceased, who was also done to death by the accused-appellant There is eyewitness account coupled with injury report. Evidence of PW-1, Hari Narayan, the informant of the case, PW-3, Pauhari and PW-6, Mahendra is consistent that accused-appellant assaulted the deceased. Although PW-2, Rakesh did not support the prosecution case in toto, but in his evidence he admitted the place of occurrence, time and assault, but he stated that did not see the accused firing a shot from country made pistol and slitting the neck of the deceased.

55. We are not convinced with the contention of learned counsel for the appellant that either on account of enmity or relationship, the witnesses are not deposing the correct facts and framed a false case against the appellant leaving the real culprits to go scot free. Moreover, the witnesses were put to lengthy cross-examination, but nothing adverse could be elicited from their evidence to discard the prosecution case.

56. In Arjun and others Vs. State of Rajasthan, 1994 Suppl (1) SCR 616, it was argued before the Hon'ble Supreme Court that as the parties were on inimical terms and some criminal proceedings were pending between them even at that time when the occurrence took place. Further PW-1 in that case was the brother of the deceased and informant in that case was son of the deceased.

57. The Hon'ble Supreme Court brushed aside the argument of the learned counsel for the appellants therein and has held as under:

"We are not convinced by the aforesaid argument that either on account of animosity or on account of relationship, the witnesses did not divulge the truth but fabricated a false case against the appellants. It is needless to say that enmity is a double edged sword which can cut both ways. However, the fact remains that whether the prosecution witnesses are close relatives of the deceased victim or on inimical terms with the deceased involved in the crime of murder, the witnesses are always interested to see that the real offenders of the crime are booked and they are not, in any case, expected to leave out the real culprits and rope in the innocent persons simply because of the enmity. It is, therefore, not a safe rule to reject their testimony merely on the ground that the complainant and the accused persons were on inimical terms. Similarly the evidence could not be rejected merely on the basis of relationship of the witnesses with the deceased."

58. In Hari Obula Reddy and others Vs. State of Andhra Pradesh, (1981) 3 SCC 675, a three Judge Bench of the Supreme court has observed thus:

" It is well settled that interested evidence is not necessarily unreliable evidence. Even partisanship by itself is not a valid ground for discrediting or rejecting sworn testimony, nor can it be laid down as an invariable rule that interested evidence can never form the basis of conviction unless corroborated to a material extent in material particulars by independent evidence."

59. The Supreme Court in Ramashish Rai Vs. Jagdish Singh, (2005) 10 SCC 498, has held that the requirement of law is that the testimony of inimical witnesses has to be considered with caution. If otherwise the witnesses are true and reliable their testimony cannot be thrown out on the threshold by branding them as inimical witnesses. By now, it is well-settled principle of law that enmity is a double- edged sword. It can be a ground for false implication. It also can be a ground for assault. Therefore, a duty is cast upon the court to examine the testimony of inimical witnesses with due caution and diligence.

60. The next contention of learned counsel for the appellant is in respect of delayed recording of the statement of the first informant and the witnesses under Section 161 Cr.P.C. Learned counsel for the appellant has relied upon the decision of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Shahid Khan Vs. State of Rajasthan, 2016(2) JIC 1(SC).

61. The object and purpose of Section 161 Cr.P.C. is to collect evidence regarding commission of an offence by examining and recording the statements of the witnesses in respect of commission of the offence. In the case in hand, PW-17, SI K.P. Singh Yadav, the investigating officer of the case has deposed that after receipt of the information, he immediately rushed to the spot and after completing necessary formalities, he recorded the statement of the first informant Hari Narayan and witnesses Mahendra Gaud and Rakesh Gaud on the same day and on their pointing out, he sketched the site plan.

62. Shahid Khan Vs. State of Rajasthan (Supra), relied upon by the learned counsel for the appellant was a case in which the witnesses PW-25 Mirza Majid Beg and PW-24 his driver Mohammad Shakir, who came from Kota to Jhalawar to meet the deceased, allegedly saw the occurrence in which accused inflicted injuries with weapons on the deceased. However, due to fear they hid themselves in the factory and did not inform about the incident to the family or relatives of the deceased. Their statements were recorded after three days of the occurrence for which no explanation was tendered by the prosecution. In the aforesaid background, Hon'ble Supreme Court held that delay in recording the statements of PW-25, Mirza Majid Beg and PW-24, Mohammad Shakir and their unexplained silence and delayed statement to the police, does not appear to us to be wholly reliable witnesses.

63. In the present case the statements of the first informant and other witnesses present at the spot were recorded on the same day. Therefore, the contention of the learned counsel for the appellant that there was inordinate delay in recording the statement has no leg to stand.

64. The next limb of argument of learned counsel for the appellant is that the prosecution had examined only highly interested witnesses and it has not produced any independent witness in support of its case. In support of his contention learned counsel for the appellant has placed reliance upon the decision of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Mahavir Singh Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh (2017) 1 SCC (Cri) 45.

65. Interested witnesses are those who want to derive certain benefit out of the result of the case. In case the circumstances reveal that a witness was present on the scene of the occurrence and had witnessed the crime, his deposition cannot be discarded merely on the ground of being closely related to the victim. Generally close relations of the victim are unlikely to falsely implicate anyone. Relationship is not sufficient to discard a witness unless there is motive to give false evidence to spare the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent person is proved.

66. In Brahm Swaroop and another Vs. State of U.P. (2011) 6 SCC 288, Hon'ble Apex Court has observed as under:

" Merely because the witnesses were closely related to the deceased persons, their testimonies cannot be discarded. Their relationship to one of the parties is not a factor that effects the credibility of a witness, more so, a relation would not conceal the actual culprit and make allegations against an innocent person. A party has to lay down a factual foundation and prove by leading impeccable evidence in respect of its false implication. However, in such cases, the court has to adopt a careful approach and analyse the evidence to find out whether it is cogent and credible evidence."

67. In State of Punjab Vs. Hardam Singh, 2005 SCC (Cr) 834, it has been held by the Hon'ble Apex Court that ordinarily the mere relations of the deceased would not depose falsely against innocent persons so as to allow the real culprit to escape unpunished, rather the witness would always try to secure conviction of real culprit.

68. Mahavir Singh (Supra) relied upon by the learned counsel for the appellant was a case in which the trial court acquitted the accused. However, on appeal by the State, the High Court partly allowed the appeal and while setting aside the conviction of the appellant under Section 148 IPC, convicted the appellant therein for the offence under Section 302 IPC and sentenced him to life imprisonment on the ground that the trial court did not appreciate the prosecution evidence in the right perspective and ignored the evidence of the eyewitnesses. Hon'ble Supreme Court set aside the order of the High Court on the ground that the High Court has attached a lot of weight to the evidence of PW-9 as he was an independent witness. However, records depicts that PW-9 had already deposed for the victim family on a number of previous occasions, that too against the same accused for the deceased and, therefore, he was termed as a pocket witness by the Hon'ble Supreme Court.

69. In the present case, the incident took place in village at 6.00 AM. PW-1, Hari Narayan, who is the first informant of the case is the resident of Harkhi Tola Nipaniya. The deceased was also resident of the same village. At the time of occurrence, his presence at the scene of offence appears natural. The first information has been lodged by PW-1 without any delay. No such fact could emerge in his cross examination so as to create any doubt about his presence at the spot. The evidence of PW-1, Hari Narayan is consistent with the FIR as well as with his statement recorded during investigation. In view of these facts and circumstances, merely because PW-1, Hari Narayan is related to the deceased, it cannot be a ground to discard his testimony. As indicated above, it is well settled that evidence of interested witnesses cannot be discarded on the sole ground that they are interested, but their evidence should be subjected to a close scrutiny. Interested witness are not necessarily false witnesses. Evidence of interested witness cannot be equated with that of a tainted witness. There is no absolute rule that the evidence of an interested witness cannot be accepted without corroboration. There is no proposition in law that relatives are to be treated as untruthful witnesses. On the contrary reason has to be shown when a plea of partiality is raised to show that the witnesses had reason to shield the actual culprit and falsely implicate the accused. In view of the evidence on record, the evidence of PW-1, Hari Narayan cannot be disbelieved on the ground that he is Samdhi of the deceased.

70. PW-3, Pauhari and PW-6, Mahendra are also resident of Harkhi Tola Nipaniya. Their presence at the spot was also natural. Both the witnesses have consistently deposed against the appellant. The witnesses were subjected to lengthy cross examination, but no major contradiction or infirmity could be elicited from their evidence.

71. Therefore, contention of the learned counsel that the prosecution has only produced interested witnesses has no leg to stand.

72. Learned counsel for the appellant has also attacked the conduct of Mahavir, who is the son of deceased, who went away after the incident and returned after 16 days of the occurrence, which makes the entire prosecution story doubtful that a son after hearing the demise of his father did not come to the place of occurrence and left the home and returned after the 16 days of the occurrence. Learned Trial Court has specifically mentioned that from the evidence of witnesses it is clear that deceased had two wives. Jawahar and Janardan were born out of the wedlock of first wife, whereas from the other, one son namely Mahavir and two daughters were born. In connection with property dispute, the accused-appellant, his wife and brother Jarandan and his wife had beaten to death second wife of the deceased namely Vimla, for which a case of murder was pending against them in the lower court. At the time of incident, Mahavir was aged about 15 years and hence, he was very much apprehensive and therefore, he did not come to the place of occurrence. Therefore, the contention of the learned counsel that the Mahavir being the son of the deceased should have lodged the FIR, has no leg to stand.

73. Next submissions raised by the learned counsel for the appellant is that Doctor who conducted the post-mortem examination on the cadaver was not shown the weapon of assault to elicit his opinion as to whether injuries on the deceased could have been caused with such weapon or not. Learned counsel for the appellant has relied upon the judgements of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Ishwar Singh Vs. State of U.P., 1976 CAR 381 (SC), Pritam Nath and other Vs. State of Punjab, 2002 AAR 147 (SC) and Machindra Vs. Sajjan Galfa Rankhamb and others, (2018)1 SCC (Cri) 381.

74. The ratio laid down in the aforesaid cases is that it is the duty of the prosecution, and no less of the Court, to see that the alleged weapon of the offence, if available, should be shown to the doctor, who has conducted autopsy on the cadaver and his opinion be invited as to whether all or any of the injuries on the victim could be caused with that weapon. Failure to do so may sometimes, cause aberration in the course of justice.

75. In the instant case PW-14, Dr. H.S. Lal, Senior Dermatologist, who conducted the autopsy on the cadaver of the deceased appeared before the trial court as medical witness. He has stated that while conducting the autopsy, he found the following injuries:

"1. Incised wound 10 cm x 3 cm bone deep on right side neck underline muscle, vessels, trachea, oesophagus cut.

2. Gun shot wound of entry 1 cm x 1 cm bone deep on the left side back upper part. Metallic shaped shot recovered from surface of lower and of scapula left side . Direction- back to forward, margins inverted, blackening around the wound."

76. Injury No. 1 noted in the post-mortem examination of the deceased was caused by sharp cutting weapon, such as knife, whereas injury No. 2 was caused by country made pistol. Eyewitnesses in their deposition stated that first of all the accused-appellant fired at the deceased and when the latter fell down, he was hacked with knife. Thus, there was no inconsistency with the medical evidence and the ocular evidence. The death of the deceased was homicidal in nature. The fact that weapon was not shown to the doctor nor in the cross-examination attention of the doctor was invited towards the weapon is not of much consequence in the fact of the present case where there was clear medical evidence that injury Nos. 1 and 2 could be caused by knife and country made pistol respectively. Moreover, both knife and country made pistol were recovered at the instance of the accused-appellant. As per the report of the Forensic Science Laboratory knife contained disintegrated blood whereas the fire was made by the country made pistol as per report of the Forensic Science Laboratory.

77. Next submission of learned counsel for the appellant is that memo of recovery of weapon does not contain the signature/thumb impression of the appellant. Learned counsel for the appellant has placed reliance upon the decisions of Supreme Court in Jaskaran Singh Vs. State of Punjab, 1997 SCC (Cri) 651.

78. In Jaskaran Singh (Supra), Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that the absence of the signature or the thumb impression of the accused on the disclosure statement recorded under Section 27 of the Evidence Act detracts materially from the authenticity and the reliability of the disclosure statement.

79. In Jaskaran Singh (Supra), there was dispute regarding the ownership of a revolver and the cartridge recovered therein. The prosecution in that case was unable to lead evidence to show that the crime weapon belonged to the said appellant and, therefore, the observation was made by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in that context. In the instant case, both knife and country made pistol belonged to the appellant and therefore, the ratio laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Jaskaran Singh (Supra) is not applicable to the facts of the present case.

80. However, in State of Rajasthan Vs. Teja Ram, AIR 1999 SC 1776,

Hon'ble Supreme Court examined the said issue at length and considered the provisions of Section 162(1) Cr.P.C, which reads that a statement made by any person to a police officer in the course of an investigation done, if reduced to writing, be not signed by the person making it. Therefore, it is evident from the aforesaid provision that there is a prohibition in peremptory terms and law requires that a statement made before the Investigating Officer should not be signed by the witness. The same was found to be necessary for the reasons that a witness will then be free to testify in court, unhampered by anything which the police may claim to have elicited from him. In the event that a police officer ignorant of the statutory requirement asks a witness to sign his statement, the same could not stand vitiated. At the most the Court will inform the witness, that he is not bound by the statement made before the police. However, the prohibition contained in Section 162(1) Cr.P.C. is not applicable to any statement made under Section 27 of the Indian Evidence Act as explained by the provision under Section 162(1) Cr.P.C. The Court further held as under:

"The resultant position is that the investigating officer is not obliged to obtain the signature of an accused in any statement attributed to him while preparing seizure memo for the recovery of any article covered by Section 27 of the Evidence Act. But if any signature has been obtained by an investigating officer, there is nothing wrong or illegal about it.

81. In Galakonda Venkateshwara Rao Vs. State of Andhra Pradesh, AIR 2003, SC 2846, Hon'ble Supreme Court has again considered the entire issue and held that merely because the recovery memo was not signed by the accused, will not vitiate the recovery itself as every case has to be decided on its own facts. In the event that the recoveries are made pursuant to the disclosure statement of the accused, then despite the fact that statement has not been signed by him, there is certainly some truth in what he said, for the reason that the recovery of the material objects was made on the basis of his disclosure statement.

82. The Court further held thus:

"The facts that the recovery is in consequence of the information given is fortified and confirmed by the discovery of wearing apparel and skeletal remains of the deceased which leads to believe that the information and the statement cannot be false."

83. In view of the aforesaid legal position and the fact that weapon of assault, i.e. country made pistol and knife were recovered on the pointing out of the accused-appellant, merely because the recovery memo does not bear the signature or thumb impression of the accused-appellant shall not vitiate the recovery. All the articles were sent to Forensic Science Labortory, Lucknow. As per report of the Forensic Science Laboratory dated 4.2.2005, the recovered knife contained disintegrated blood. Moreover, the Forensic Science Laboratory, Lucknow vide its report dated 13.4.2005 has also confirmed that recovered empty cartridge was fired from the country made pistol recovered at the instance of accused-appellant.

84. Now, so far as the contention of learned counsel for the appellant that at the time of obtaining sanction of the District

Magistrate, weapons of assault were not produced before him also does not have any substance. The country made pistol, cartridges and knife were recovered at the instance of the accused and the memos thereof were prepared, which was signed by the accused and the witnesses of recovery. Further, PW-16, SI Jai Prakash Singh, the investigating officer of Case Crime No. 121 of 2004, under Section 25 of the Arms Act has deposed in his cross examination that when he took up the investigation, the recovered country made pistol, cartridges and knife were kept in the Maalkhana. He further deposed that on 20.9.2004 when he produced the aforesaid weapons before the District Magistrate, the same were in sealed condition. He also stated that he kept the sealed bundle containing country made pistol, cartridges and knife in the office of the District Magistrate and he could not say as to whether the District Magistrate has seen them or not as the sealed bundle was produced before the District Magistrate by his office clerk. He received the aforesaid bundle with the seal of the District Magistrate. He also deposed that the office clerk of the District Magistrate has handed over him the prosecution sanction along with the sealed bundle.

85. In view of the aforesaid fact, it cannot be said that the recovered country made pistol, cartridges and knife were not produced before the District Magistrate for obtaining the sanction.

86. So far as the other contention of learned counsel for the appellant in respect of non-mentioning of the date and time in the GD for sending the report to the court is concerned, it is to be noted that PW-11, Constable Ram Suranjan Prasad, who has prepared the chik FIR of case crime No. 115 of 2004, under Section 302 IPC against the accused appellant has deposed in his examination-in-chief that he prepared chik FIR at 8.15 AM 01.9.2004 on the basis of written information handed over by the first informant Hari Narayan, which he proved as Ext. Ka-3. He further stated that as to on what date, the Circle Officer has put his signature on the FIR, he did not know as he did not write the general diary. In the general diary, it was mentioned that special report shall be sent to the officer concerned at the earliest and information whereof is being given to the superior officer concerned on R.T. set. This case rests on the eyewitness account coupled with medical evidence and merely because of non-mention of time in the general diary, the whole prosecution story cannot be thrown out as it might have been an oversight. Moreover, pursuant to the first information report, the investigation of the case started immediately and inquest proceedings have been concluded within an hour of lodging of the first information report.

87. Hon'ble Supreme Court in Pala Singh Vs. State of Punjab, 1972 (2) SCC 640 has held that delay in forwarding the first information report to the court is not fatal in a case in which investigation has commenced promptly on its basis.

88. In Rabindra Mahto and another Vs. State of Jharkhand, 2006 (10) SCC 432, Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that in every case mere delay in sending the first information report to the Magistrate, the Court would not conclude that the FIR has been recorded much later in time than shown. It is only extraordinary and unexplained delay, which may raise doubts regarding the authenticity of the FIR.

89. The next point urged by the learned counsel for the appellant is that in the FIR sharp edged weapon was mentioned, but only a domestic knife was allegedly recovered at the instance of the appellant.

90. It may be noted that the place where the deceased was done to death and the place from where the informant had witnessed the occurrence is about 150 steps. The word described in the first information report is only sharp edged weapon. PW-14, Dr. H.S. Lal, who has conducted autopsy on the cadaver of the deceased has noted the following injuries:

"1. Incised wound 10 cm x 3 cm bone deep on right side neck underline muscle, vessels, trachea, oesophagus cut.

91. Perusal of injury No. 1 suggest that it was caused by sharp edged weapon. Even if, the knife, which was used in the commission of the crime, was of domestic use, but it was very much sharp edged and merely because it was mentioned in the FIR that accused-appellant slit the neck of the deceased by sharp edged weapon and the recovered knife was for domestic use, does not make any difference.

92. The next submission of learned counsel for the appellant is that witnesses of recovery of weapons of assault are not reliable as they are police personnel. PW-9 Ram Adhar Pandey is an independent witness, who resides in village Harkha Pyas, police station Ghughli, district Maharajganj. He has deposed that country made pistol and knife were recovered by the police in his presence. Accused-Jawahar got one country made pistol, two cartridges, and a knife recovered by digging the ground and confessed his crime. The investigating officer sealed country made pistol and cartridges separately and prepared their memos, on which his signature was obtained. PW-13, Surendra Shukla is also an independent witness, who resides at Harkhi Tola Nipaniya, police station Ghughli. In his evidence, he has deposed that on the date of occurrence, at about 2.30 PM, police of police station Ghughli brought the accused to the village. This witness was told by the investigating officer that accused Jawahar wants to get the weapons from which he killed his father, recovered and asked him to accompany him. This witness has further deposed that he along with police personnel, accused and several persons of the village reached old well situated across the canal Harkhi Miner. Near the well there were bushes and trees. Near the well, some portion of the land was dig from before on which some grasses were lying. Accused took out one plastic bag from there. The bag contained one country made pistol, one empty cartridge, one live cartridge, one household knife having bloodstained on it. The accused admitted that he has fired at his father from the recovered country made pistol and thereafter hacked his father to death by the knife. The investigating officer kept country made pistol and cartridge in one cloth and knife in another and sealed it and prepared memos thereof, which was signed by this witness. In Addition to the aforesaid two independent witnesses, PW-12, SSI B.L. Chaudhary and PW-18, Adya Singh, who were also the witnesses of recovery, have fully supported the prosecution case and have stated that accused got the weapons from which he killed his father recovered in their presence.

93. It is fallacious impression that when recovery is effected pursuant to any statement made by the accused and the document is prepared by the investigating officer on the basis of recovery must necessarily be attested by the independent witnesses. Of course, if any such statement leads to recovery of any article, it is for the investigating officer to take the signature of any persons present at that time, on the document prepared for such recovery. But if no witness was present or if no person had agreed to affix his signature on the document, it is difficult to lay down as a proposition of law that the document so prepared by the police officer must be treated as tainted and the recovery evidence unreliable. In the instant case, the document of recovery prepared by the investigating officer was attested by two independent witnesses, i.e. PW-9, Ram Adhar Pandey and PW-13, Surendra Shukla and, therefore, the submission of the learned counsel that there is no independent witness of the recovery has no substance. Moreover, the evidence of the police personnel cannot be discarded merely on the ground that they are police official.

94. In Tahir Vs. State of (Delhi) (1996) 3 SCC 338, Hon'ble Supreme Court held thus:

"In our opinion no infirmity attaches to the testimony of the police officials, merely because they belong to the police force and there is no rule of law or evidence which lays down that conviction cannot be recorded on the evidence of the police officials, if found reliable, unless corroborated by some independent evidence. The Rule of Prudence, however, only requires a more careful scrutiny of their evidence, since they can be said to be interested in the result of the case projected by them. Where the evidence of the police officials, after careful scrutiny, inspires confidence and is found to be trustworthy and reliable, it can form basis of conviction and the absence of some independent witness of the locality to lend corroboration to their evidence, does not in any way affect the creditworthiness of the prosecution case."

95. In State Government of NCT of Delhi Vs. Sunil and another, (2001) SCC 652, Hon'ble Supreme Court held that it is an archaic notion that actions of the police officer should be approached with initial distrust. We are aware that such a notion was lavishly entertained during British period and policemen also knew about it. Its hang over persisted during post-independent years but it is time now to start placing at least initial trust on the actions and the documents made by the police. At any rate, the court cannot start with the presumption that the police records are untrustworthy. As a proposition of law the presumption should be the other way around. That official acts of the police have been regularly performed is a wise principle of presumption and recognized even by the legislature. Hence when a police officer gives evidence in court that a certain article was recovered by him on the strength of the statement made by the accused it is open to the court to believe the version to be correct if it is not otherwise shown to be unreliable. It is for the accused, through cross-examination of witnesses or through any other materials, to show that the evidence of the police officer is either unreliable or at least unsafe to be acted upon in a particular case. If the court has any good reason to suspect the truthfulness of such records of the police the court could certainly take into account the fact that no other independent person was present at the time of recovery. But it is not a legally approvable procedure to presume the police action as unreliable to start with, nor to jettison such action merely for the reason that police did not collect signatures of independent persons in the documents made contemporaneous with such actions.

96. The last contention voiced by the learned counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant is that while recording the statements of the accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C., all the incriminating circumstances were not put to the accused. In support of his contention, learned counsel for the appellant has relied upon the decision of Hon'ble Supreme Court Sukhjit Singh Vs. State of Punjab, (2015) 1 SCC (Cri) 76, Ranvir Yadav Vs. State of Bihar, (2009)3 SCC (Cri) 92 and Reena Hazarika Vs. State of Assam, 2018(3) JIC 752.

97. In Sukhjit Singh Vs. State of Punjab (Supra) Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that on a studied scrutiny of the questions put to the accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. in entirety, we find that no incriminating material has been brought to the notice of the accused while putting questions.

98. The ratio laid down in Ranvir Yadav Vs. State of Bihar (Supra) was that when the incriminating materials have not been put to the accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C., it tantamounts to serious lapse on the part of the trial court convicting the accused, which is vitiated in law.

99. In Reena Hazarika Vs. State of Assam (Supra) the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that if the accused takes a defence after the prosecution evidence is closed, the Court is duty bound to consider the same and if the same is not considered, the conviction may stand vitiated.

100. The provisions of Section 313 Cr.P.C. clearly states that it is obligatory for the Court to question the accused on the evidence adduced by the prosecution and circumstances against him so as to enable him to explain it. However, it would not be enough for the accused to contend that he has not been questioned or examined on a particular fact or circumstances, instead he must show that such non-examination has actually and materially prejudiced him and has resulted in failure of justice. In other words, in the event of an inadvertant omission on the part of the trial court to question the accused on any incriminating circumstance cannot ipso facto vitiate the trial unless it is shown that some material prejudice was caused to the accused by the omission of the Court.

101. A three-Judge Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Wasim Khan Vs. State of U.P., AIR 1956 SC 400, and Bhoor Singh and another Vs. State of Punjab, AIR 1974 SC 1256, Hon'ble Supreme Court held that every error or omission in compliance of the provisions of Section 342 of the old Cr.P.C. does not necessarily vitiate the trial. The accused must show that some prejudice has been caused or was likely to have been caused to him.

102. In State (Delhi) Administration Vs. Dharampal (2001) 10 SCC 372, Hon'ble Supreme Court held thus:

"Thus it is to be seen that where an omission, to bring the attention of the accused to an inculpatory material has occurred that does not ipso facto vitiate the proceedings. The accused must show that failure of justice was occasioned by such omission. Further, in the event of an inculpatory material not having been put to the accused, the appellant court can always make good that lapse by calling upon the accused to show that explanation the accused has as regards the circumstances established against the accused but not put to him.

This being the law, in our view, both the Sessions Judge and the High Court were wrong in concluding that the omission to put the contents of the certificate of the Director, Central Food Laboratory, could only result in the accused being acquitted. The accused had to show that some prejudice was caused to him by the report not being put to him. Even otherwise, it was the duty of the Sessions Judge and/or the High Court, if they found that some vital circumstance had not been put to the accused, to put those questions to the counsel for the accused and get the answer of the accused. If the accused could not give any plausible or explanation, it would have to be assumed that there was no explanation. Both the Sessions Judge and the High Court have overlooked this position of law and failed to perform their duties and thereby wrongly acquitted the accused."

103. In Santosh Kumar Singh Vs. State through CBI, (2010)9 SCC 747, Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:

" The provisions in Section 313 Cr.P.C., therefore, make it obligatory on the court to question the accused on the evidence and circumstance appearing against him so as to apprise him the exact case which he is required to meet. But it would not be enough for the accused to show that he has not been questioned or examined on a particular circumstance but he must also show that such non-examination has actually and materially prejudiced him and has resulted in failure of justice. In other words in the event of any inadvertent omission on the part of the court to question the accused on any incriminating circumstance appearing against him, the same cannot ipso facto vitiate the trial unless it is shown that some prejudice was caused to him."

104. In the case in hand, it may be noted that no such point was raised and no such objection seems to have been advanced before the trial court and it is being raised for the first time before this Court, which appears to be an afterthought. Secondly, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant was unable to place before us as to what in fact was the circumstances, which was not put to the accused while recording his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C.

105. In view of the above, the submission of learned counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant that while recording the statement of the accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C., all incriminating materials were not put to the accused, has no leg to stand.

106. Criminal law is designed as a mechanism for achieving social control and its purpose is to regulate and control the activities within the society. Criminal justice system has a larger objective to achieve, i.e. safety and protection of the people at large and it would be a lesson not only to the offender, but to the individual at large so that such crime would not be committed by anyone. Taking a lenient view of a serious offence will leave a wrong impression about the criminal justice system and will encourage further criminal acts, which will endanger the peaceful co-existence and welfare of the society. In the instant case, the accused appellant has brutally assassinated his father initially by firing a shot and thereafter hacking him to death. The accused-appellant is also involved in the commission of murder of his step mother Vimla for which trial is pending in the court below. This is a case of patricide where the accused-appellant has not only committed the murder of an innocent old and feeble person, but also slurred the relation of father and son.

107. In view of what has been indicated herein above, we are of the view that the impugned judgement and order dated 17.07.2009 passed by the learned Additional Sessions Judge (Fast Track) Court No. 3, Maharajganj does not call for any interference by this Court.

108. Accordingly, the appeal is dismissed.

109. The appellant Jawahar alias Babu Ram is in jail. He shall remain in jail to serve out the sentence as awarded to him by the learned Trial Court and affirmed by us.

110. Office is directed to transmit a copy of this order to the Court below for information and compliance.

(Para 13)

Criminal Revision dismissed. (E-6)

List of Cases Cited:

1. K. Chinnaswamy Reddy Vs. St.of A.P.,AIR (1962) SC 1788

2. Mahendra Pratap Singh Vs. Sarju Singh, AIR (1968) SC 707

3. Jagannath Chaudhary & Ors. Vs. Ramayan Singh & Anr.,(2002) 5 SCC 659

4. Ram Briksh Singh & Ors Vs. Ambika Yadav & Anr. (2004) 7 SCC 665

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manish Kumar, J.)

1. Case has been called in the revised list. No one is present on behalf of any of the parties. Learned A.G.A. is present.

2. Office has reported some defect but not exactly what is the defect in the revision.

3. From the perusal of records, there is delay of few days in filing of the revision.

4. The dealy in filing of present criminal revision is condoned.

5. The present criminal revision has been preferred against the judgment and order dated 6.10.1999 passed by Chief Judicial Magistrate, Mahoba in Case No.2456 of 1997 acquitting the opposite party nos.1, 2 & 3 of the offence under Sections 323, 325 and 504 I.P.C. The prosecution case is that at 5:00 p.m. in the evening of 22.1.1993, the complainant Munuwa was in his field alongwith his wife, sons and daughters, the accused Parasuram, Juguva and Kishori armed with lathis started quarrelling with him and started beating with lathis. Against the said incident, an F.I.R. was lodged and Crime Case No.2456 of 1997, under Section 323, 325 and 504 of I.P.C. was registered.

6. In the said case, the judgment and order has been passed by the Chief Judicial Magistrate on 6.10.1999 acquitting all the accused persons against which the present criminal revision has been preferred.

7. Learned A.G.A. has argued that the judgment has been passed after appreciation of evidence available on the record and that no such incident has occurred as alleged by the complainant.

8. Heard the arguments of the learned A.G.A. and perused the judgment passed by Chief Judicial Magistrate which is impugned in the present criminal revision as well as examined the grounds taken in the present criminal revision.

9. The judicial review in exercise of revisional jurisdiction is not like an appeal. It is a supervisory jurisdiction which is exercised by the Court to correct the manifest error in the orders of subordinate courts but should not be exercised in a manner so as to turn the Revisional court in a Court of Appeal. The legislature has made different provisions for appeal and revision and the distinction of two jurisdiction has to be maintained.

10. It could be exercised only in exceptional cases where the interests of justice require interference for the correction of a manifest illegality, or the prevention of a gross miscarriage of justice. In other words, the revisional jurisdiction of the High Court cannot be invoked merely because the lower Court has taken a wrong view of law or mis-appreciated the evidence on record.

11. The law has been settled in catena of decisions wherein it has been held that there is a distinction between the appellate jurisdiction and the revisional jurisdiction. In the revisional jurisdiction the evidence cannot be re-appreciated for looking the the mere invalidity of the order passed by the Court below.

12. In K.Chinnaswamy Reddy Vs. State of Andhra Pradesh, AIR 1962 SC 1788 it was held that revisional jurisdiction should be exercised by the High Court in exceptional cases only when there is some glaring defect in the procedure or a manifest error on a point of law resulting flagrant miscarriage of justice.

13. Again in the case of Mahendra Pratap Singh Vs. Sarju Singh, AIR 1968 SC 707, Jagannath Chaudhary and others Vs. Ramayan Singh and another, 2002(5) SCC 659. In Ram Briksh Singh and others Vs. Ambika Yadav and another 2004(7) SCC 665 wherein it has been held that under Sections 397 to 401 of the Court are group of sections conferring higher and superior courts a sort of supervisory jurisdiction. These powers are required to be exercised sparingly though the jurisdiction under Section 401 cannot be invoked to only correct wrong appreciation of evidence and the High Court is not required to act as a Court of appeal, but at the same time it is duty of the Court to correct manifest illegality resulting in gross miscarriage of justice.

14. After hearing learned A.G.A. and considering the grounds taken in the criminal revision and the judgment, I do not find any infirmity or illegality in the impugned judgment.

15. In view of above, the revision lacks merit.

16. Hence, the present criminal revision is dismissed.

8. Hari Singh Vs. St. Of U.P. (2006) Crl. Law Journal 3283

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Priyanshu Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for the revisionist and Mr. Amit Singh, Chauhan, learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. The present criminal revision under Section 397/401 Cr.P.C. has been filed to quash the impugned order dated 27th November, 2019 passed by the Special Judge (S.C./.S.T. Act), Bareilly in Misc. Case No. 1117 of 2019 (Hari Shanker Vs. Shishupal), whereby the application made by the revisionist under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. has been rejected.

3. Learned counsel for the revisionist submits that the marriage of the revisionist was solemnized with Geeta Devi, daughter of Teeka Ram Diwakar on 23rd April, 2019. On 6th August, 2019 at 07:30 a.m., the opposite party no.2 entered into the house of the revisionist and took away his wife forcefully. When revisionist objected, opposite party no.2 also abused and assaulted the revisionist. Opposite party no.2 has also taken away ornaments and Rs. 1000/- cash. Opposite party no.2 immediately went to Police Station for lodging of the first information report but his report has not been registered. Thereafter he made applications to the Senior Superintendent of Police, Bareilly 8th August, 2019, 23rd August, 2019, 17th September, 2019 and 8th October, 2019, but all went in vain. Thereafter the revisionist made an application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. before the concerned Court but the same has also been rejected by the court below vide the impugned order dated 27th November, 2019. It is further submitted that from perusal of the contents made in the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C., cognizable offence is made out but the court below has illegally rejected the same while passing the impugned order. Since the opposite party no.2 had illegally taken away the wife of revisionist and ornament and cash, as per Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. the Magistrate is empowered under section 190 Cr.P.C. to direct investigation of any cognizable case. It is vehemently contended by the learned counsel that a Magistrate, was bound to pass an order for registration of the FIR and its investigation by the police on the application under section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. as a cognizable offence of serious nature requiring investigation is made out on the basis of averments made in that application.

4. Per contra, Mr. Amit Singh Chauhan, learned A.G.A. for the State submits that if the application under section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. contains the allegations of commission of a cognizable offence, then the Magistrate is under obligation to direct investigation after registration of the FIR in each and every case. However, in the application made by the revisionist under Section 156 (3), court below has not found any substance and he has rightly rejected the application of the revisionist. The court below has not committed any error while passing the impugned order. The court below has recorded pure finding of fact. He, therefore, submits that the impugned order passed by the court below is legal and just and the same does not warrant any interference by this Court.

5. I have considered the submissions made by the learned counsel for the parties and have gone through the record of the present criminal revision.

6. Before coming to the merits of the case, it would be worthwhile to peruse certain Sections of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Information under section 154 of Cr.P.C is generally known as F.I.R. It is pertinent to see that the word " first" is not used in Cr.P.C in section 154 of Cr.P.C. Yet, it is popularly known as FIRST INFORMATION REPORT. Nevertheless a person,who is a grievance that police officer is not registering FIR under section 154 of Cr.P.C, such a person can approach Superintendent of Police (SP), with written application, under sub-section 3 of section 154 of Cr.P.C. In case of SP also does not still register FIR, or despite FIR is registered, no proper investigation is done, in such a case, the aggrieved person can approach Magistrate concerned under section 156 (3) of Cr.P.C. If that be so, it is very essential and interest to know the powers conferred on Magistrate under section 156 (3) of Cr.P.C. Therefore, I deem that it is very useful if it is discussed with relevant case law as to the powers of Magistrate under section of 156 (3) of Cr.P.C. Section 156(3) is very briefly worded. The powers of Magistrate are not expressly mentioned in section 156 (3) of Cr.P.C. If that be so, a paucity will be crept mind that whether there is an implied power in the Magistrate under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. to order registration of a criminal offence and /or to direct the officer in charge of the concerned police station to hold a proper investigation and take all such necessary steps that may be necessary for ensuring a proper investigation including monitoring the same or not.

7. The issue whether the Magistrate is bound to pass an order for registration of the FIR and its investigation by the police on each and every application under section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. containing allegation of commission of a cognizance offence is not 'res-integra' now, as this controversy has been settled by the Division Bench of the Court in the case of Sukhwasi vs. State of U.P. reported in 2007 (59) ACC 739. In the case of Smt. Masuman vs. State of U.P. & others reported in 2007 (1) ALJ 221 and some other cases, the single judges of the Court had taken a view that if the application under section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. discloses the commission of a prima-facie cognizable offence, then it is obligatory for the magistrate to direct investigation after registration of the FIR on the basis of that application. Disagreeing with this view, the following question was referred to the larger Bench for decision in the case of Sukhwasi (Supra):-

"Whether the Magistrate is bound to pass an order on each and every application under section 156(3) Cr.P.C. containing allegations of commission of a cognizable offence for registration of the FIR and its investigation by the police even if those allegations, prima-facie, do not appear to be genuine and do not appeal to reason, or he can exercise judicial discretion in the matter and can pass order for treating it as 'complaint' or to reject it in suitable cases"?

8. After having considered the full Bench decision of the Court in the case of Ram Babu Gupta & others vs. State of U.P. reported in 2001 (43) ACC 50 and many other cases, the Division Bench in the case of Sukhwasi vs. State of U.P. has answered the question in paragraph 23 of the report as under:-

"The reference is, therefore, answered in the manner that it is not incumbent upon a Magistrate to allow an application under section 156(3) Cr. P . C. and there is no such legal mandate. He may or may not allow the application in his discretion. The second leg of the reference is also answered in the manner that the Magistrate has a discretion to treat an application under section 156(3) Cr.P.C. as a complaint."

9. Therefore, in view of the law laid down by the Division Bench in the aforesaid case, the above mentioned contention of the learned counsel for the revisionist has got no force. In the case of Rajendra Singh Katoch vs. Chandigarh Administration & others reported in 2008 (60) ACC 347, the Apex Court has made the following observation in para 8 of the report at page 348:-

"Although the officer-in-charge of a police station is legally bound to register a first information report in terms of section 154 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, if the allegations made by them gives rise to an offence which can be investigated without obtaining any permission from the Magistrate concerned; the same by itself, however, does not take away the right of the competent officer to make a preliminary enquiry, in a given case, in order to find out as to whether the first information sought to be lodged had any substance or not."

10. From the aforesaid observations made by the Hon'ble Apex Court, this fact is borne out that before lodging the FIR, the competent police officer can make a preliminary enquiry in order to find out as to whether the first information sought to be lodged had any substance or not. If the police officer is competent to make a preliminary enquiry in a given case in order to find out as to whether the first information sought to be lodged had any substance or not, then how the Magistrate can be bound to direct registration of FIR and its investigation on each and every application under section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. containing allegations of commission of a cognizable offence without applying its mind to find out whether the allegations made on the application have any substance or not. In my considered opinion, the Magistrate is required to apply its mind to find out whether the first information sought to be lodged by the applicant had any substance or not. If the allegations made in the application under section 156(3) Cr.P.C. prima-facie appear to be without any substance, then in such case the Magistrate can refuse to direct registration of the FIR and its investigation by the police, even if the application contains the allegations of commission of a cognizable offence. In such case, the Magistrate is fully competent to reject the application. Even in the cases, where prima facie cognizable offence is disclosed from the averments made in the application under section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. in appropriate case according to facts and nature of the offences alleged to have been committed, the Magistrate can decline to direct investigation and in such cases the application under section 156(3) Cr.P.C. can be treated as complaint, as held by the Division Bench in the case of Sukhwasi vs. State of U.P. (supra).

11. The Magistrates should not shirk their legal responsibility to pass an order for registration of the FIR and its investigation by the police on the applications under section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. in the cases where on the basis of the averments made therein and the material, if any, brought on record in support thereof, prima facie cognizable offence of serious nature requiring police investigation is made out and in such cases the aggrieved person should not be compelled to collect and produce the evidence at his cost to bring home the charges to the accused by passing an order to treat the application under section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. as complaint thereby forcing the aggrieved person to proceed in the manner provided by chapter XV Cr.P.C.

12. In the case of Father Thomas Vs. State of U.P and Anr. reported in 2011 Crl. Law Journal 2278 though the matter was that an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. was allowed and when revision came before court for decision, the court was of the view that the accused has no locus standi to challenge an order passed, and an order directing investigation is purely interlocutory in nature in view of statutory bar contain under section 397(2) of the Code.

13. In the case of Aleque Padamsee and Ors. Vs. Union of India (U0I) and Ors. 2007 reported in Criminal Law Journal 3729; the Apex Court has held that Whenever any information is received by the police about the alleged commission of offence which is a cognizable one there is a duty to register the FIR. There can be no dispute on that score. The only question is whether an order can be issued to the police authorities to register the same. The basic question is as to what course is to be adopted if the police does not do it. The correct position in law, therefore, is that the police officials ought to register the FIR whenever facts brought to its notice show that cognizable offence has been made out. In case the police officials fail to do so, the modalities to be adopted are as set out in Section 190 read with Section 200 of the Code.

14. In the case of All Institute of Medical Sciences Employees Union Vs. Union of India reported in 1996 (4) Crimes 189 (Supreme Court), the Apex Court has held Para 4:

"4. When the information is laid with the police but no action in that behalf was taken, the complainant is given power under Section 190 read with Section 200 of the Code to lay the complaint before the Magistrate having jurisdiction to take cognizance of the offence and the Magistrate is required to inquire into the complaint as provided in Chapter XV of the Code. In case the Magistrate after recording evidence finds a prima facie case, instead of issuing process to the accused, he is empowered to direct the concerned police to investigate into the offence under Chapter XII of the Code and to submit a report. If he finds that the complaint does not disclose any offence to take further action, he is empowered to dismiss the complaint under Section 203 of the Code. In case he finds that the complaint/ evidence recorded prima facie discloses offence, he is empowered to take cognisance of the offence and would issue process to the accused."

15. Similarly, the Apex Court has again in the Case of Hari Singh Vs. State of U.P reported in 2006 Criminal Law Journal 3283 held that para 4:

"4. When the information is laid with the police, but no action in that behalf is taken, the complainant can under Section 190 read with Section 200 of the Code lay the complaint before the Magistrate having jurisdiction to take cognizance of the offence and the Magistrate is required to enquire into the complaint as provided in Chapter XV of the Code. In case the Magistrate after recording evidence finds a prima facie case, instead of issuing process to the accused, he is empowered to direct the police concerned to investigate into offence under Chapter XII of the Code and to submit a report. If he finds that the complaint does not disclose any offence to take further action, he is empowered to dismiss the complaint under Section 203 of the Code. In case he finds that the complaint/evidence recorded prima facie discloses an offence, he is empowered to take cognizance of the offence and would issue process to the accused. These aspects have been highlighted by this Court in All India Institute of Medical Sciences Employees' Union (Reg) through its President v. Union of India and Ors. MANU/SC/1769/1996 : (1996)115CC582 . It was specifically observed that a writ petition in such cases is not to be entertained. The above position was again highlighted recently in Gangadhar Janardan Mhatre v. State of Maharashtra MANU/SC/0830/2004 : 2004CriLJ4623 and in Minu Kumari and Ant v. State of Bihar and Ors. MANU/SC/8098/2006: 2006CriLJ2468."

16. Perusal of the certain provisions of Code of Criminal Procedure and the law laid down herein above, this Court is of the firm opinion that it is for the satisfaction of the Magistrate concerned and if after calling the report or collecting the material evidence from the police station concerned, he is of the satisfaction that no prima facie case is made out against the opposite parties, Magistrate is not bound to order for registration of the case. The court below after appreciating the contents of the application made under Section 156 (3) as well as other evidence on record has also found any substance in the contents of the revisionist that he has made several applications before the Station House Officer concerned and Senior Superintendent of Police, Bareilly, as the revisionist has failed to produce any receipt or other documents in support thereof.

17. In light of the above facts and above proposition of law, this Court is of the view that there is no illegality or irregularity in the order impugned and after collecting the report from the police station concerned or the report otherwise the Magistrate was of the view that no prima facie case was made out. Thus, the application has rightly been rejected by the court below under the order impugned.

18. In light of above facts, this Court is of the view that no interference is required in the order impugned. The present criminal revision lacks merit and deserves to be dismissed. It is accordingly dismissed.

A. Criminal Law- Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973-Sections 397/401 & Indian Penal Code, 1860- Section 316-rejection-causing miscarriage to victim-meticulous analysis or requirement of medical evidence is not required at the time of framing of charges-framing of charges for offence punishable under various section of IPC, for which cognizance is taken, only ingredients are required-no illegality in the order passed by revisional court-Hence, dismissed.(Para 6)

Criminal Revision dismissed. (E-6)

List of Cases Cited:

1. Palwinder Singh Vs. Balwinder Singh & Ors. (2008) 14 SCC 504

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Krishna Gautam, J.)

1. Present Revision, under Sections 397/401 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (In short 'Cr.P.C.'), has been filed by the revisionist, Lalit, assailing order, dated 14.11.2019, passed by the Sessions Judge, Baghpat, with this contention that the Revisional court failed to appreciate facts and law placed before it and passed impugned order, under failure of exercise of appropriate jurisdiction and the order, being apparently erroneous on the face of record, deserves to be set aside.

2. Learned counsel for revisionist argued that there is no evidence for offence, punishable, under Section 316 of Indian Penal Code, 1860, (In short 'IPC'), whereas, occurrence was said to have occurred at the parental house of the informant and mother of the victim and it was said to be the month of November, whereas, medical report of hospital reveals that it was a case of June, 2017, i.e., not corroborating with the accusation levelled by the informant and her daughter-victim. Hence, it was asked specifically that is there any medical document or reference regarding miscarriage and it was answered that no such medical document is there. Hence, above conclusion of trial court was apparently against fact on record. Hence, this revision with above prayer.

3. From very perusal of the impugned order, dated 14.11.2019, it is apparent that an Application, bearing no. 5B, was moved by the accused/revisionist, Lalit, on 31.10.2019, with this contention that chargesheet contained Section 316 of IPC, but, there is no evidence regarding above offence, hence, charge for above offence, be not levelled against accused-applicant. This was objected by learned Public Prosecutor and revisional court, vide impugned order, dismissed above Application 5B and this Criminal Revision is against above order.

4. First information report was got lodged by Smt. Bhagwani on 22.1.2018 with this contention that her daughter, Manisha, was married with accused-revisionist, Lalit, on 1.2.2017, wherein, dowry was given as per capacity, but, after marriage, in-laws demanded cash of Rs. One Lakh, with a Motorcycle in dowry, and with regard to this demand she was subjected to cruelty. Manisha, victim, received conception, but, owing to assault made by the accused-applicant, Lalit, she faced miscarriage. Accused persons took entire belongings of Manisha, victim, and they ousted her from her nuptial house on 12.12.2017. In the absence of informant, at the victim's parental house, accused persons gave assault to victim and attempted to throttle her, extended threat and abused her. In this case crime number, during investigation, statements of informant and victim were recorded, under Section 161 of Cr.P.C. Victim was examined, under Section 164 of Cr.P.C. also. In her statement, recorded, as above, she had reiterated contention of accused, though alleged assault was said to have been made by her husband. Hence, other in-laws were not charge-sheeted and revisionist, Lalit, was chargesheeted, wherein, a proceeding, under Section 482 of Cr.P.C. was filed and this Court stayed proceeding against other accused persons, but, for revisionist, Lalit, no relief was granted, hence, trial proceeded against revisionist, Lalit, wherein, this application was moved, with above prayer, but, the Revisional court rejected said application on the ground that offence, punishable, under Section 316 of IPC was in existence, hence, charge was to be framed.

5. As per law laid down by the Apex Court, as well as by this Court, preferable, in the case of Palwinder Singh vs. Balwinder Singh and others, reported in (2008) 14 SCC 504, it has been held by the Apex Court that pre trial acquittal may not be given and for framing of charge, a meticulous analysis of evidence is not required. At this stage, even on the strong suspicion, charges can be framed.

6. In present case, this Court had given no relief to accused, revisionist-Lalit, and at this stage, charge for offence, punishable, under Section 316 is there. Once relief was rejected, thenafter, trial proceeded and Sessions Judge, on the basis of statements, recorded, under Sections 161 and 164 of Cr.P.C., concluded that framing of charge for offence, punishable, under various Sections of IPC, for which cognizance was taken, alongwith Section 316 of IPC, ingredients required are there. It was an order on the basis of evidences on record. Meticulous analysis or requirement of medical evidence or support by medical evidence is not to be analysed at that juncture of framing of charges. These all are to be seen at the time of judicial decision making.

7. Hence, in view of what has been discussed, hereinabove, admittedly, there is no illegality or irregularity in the impugned order, passed by the Revisional Court. Thus, this Criminal Revision, being devoid of merits, deserves dismissal and it stands dismissed as such.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vikas Kunvar Srivastav, J.)

1. The present revision is moved to seek interference of court in the impugned order dated 31.7.2019 on the ground of illegality, irregularity and arbitrariness committed by the Trial Judge in S.T No.467/2016, Crime Case No. 299/2016 registered under Sections 147, 148, 149, 504, 506, 307 and 302 I.P.C. in Police Station-Jamo, District Amethi (State of U.P. Vs. Shivendra Pratap Singh & Anr.) allowing the application of informant of the case under Section 319 Cr.P.C. By the said order the revisionist, proposed accused is summoned for trial along with the other named accused in the First Information Report of the incidence and charge-sheeted by the police after investigation.

2. Heard learned counsel Sri S.P. Singh, Advocate appearing on behalf of the revisionist (the proposed accused), learned counsel Sri S.K. Singh, Advocate appearing on behalf of the complainant and for prosecution, learned A.G.A Sri Abhay Kumar, Advocate.

3. The crux of the argument delivered by learned counsel Sri S.P. Singh are thati. The presence of accused at the spot of the crime is not established satisfactorily by cogent and material evidence before the court.

ii. Though, the name of accused was given in FIR but so far as the materials and evidence collected by the Investigating Officer during the investigation, there is no evidence on record against the revisionist to show him committing any offence.

iii. The Investigating Officer dropped the name of revisionist and submitted the charge sheet to the Magistrate for cognizance of offence against remaining accused persons named in the FIR.

iv. That even the evidence recorded by the court is also not satisfactory and sufficient to establish the presence of the accused on the spot of the crime when it was committed.

4. In support of above arguments, learned counsel took reliance on the case laws propounded in Sunil Kumar Gupta & Ors. Vs. State of U.P. & Ors. with Khusbu Gupta Vs. State of U.P. & Ors. reported in 2019 (2) JIC 64 SC, Labhuji Amratji Thakor & Ors. Vs. The State of Gujarat & Anr. arising out of SLP (Crl.) No. 6392 of 2018, Hardeep Singh Vs. State of U.P. & Anr. reported in 2010 (2) JIC 920 (All), Brijendra Singh Vs. State of Rajasthan reported in AIR 2017 SC 2839 and Sugreev Kumar Vs. State of Punjab. He argued that though a person may be called upon by trial judge in the course of trial and the court concerned is empowered by the statute itself to do so but this power is not arbitrary, it is to be governed by the provisions of Section 319 of Cr.P.C. strictly and under the guidelines laid down by the superior courts. He submitted that in the present case the learned trial judge resiled from the principle and norms laid down by the superior courts while exercising it's power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. to call upon the revisionist for participation in trial along with other accused.

5. Learned counsel prays that the impugned order under revision should be examined in the light of the above decisions and be set aside.

6. On the other hand, learned counsel for the complainant - Sri S.K. Singh, Advocate, drew the attention towards the averment made into first information report which clearly indicates not only the presence but the role assigned by the complainant to the proposed accused/revisionist. Secondly, so far as the evidence to be taken into consideration by the Court while exercising it's power under Section 319 Cr.P.C., it is well defined not only under Section 319 Cr.P.C. but also by the decisions even cited by the revisionist, that even the examination-in-chief is sufficient if it satisfactorily proves the presence and role of accused in the crime. Complainant himself got examined on oath as PW-1 and his statement recorded by the court itself in support of contents of the first information report along with the materials brought by the Investigating Officer is available on record. The said evidence and material are satisfactory and sufficient to show that the revisionist actively participated in the commission of crime by firing gun shot upon the deceased persons Pawan Kumar and Anirudha Singh.

7. Learned A.G.A. argued that in the facts, circumstances and evidences available before the Court commission of any irregularity, error or arbitrariness in exercise of power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. is not obvious as the evidence taken into consideration by the Court is much more than necessary for framing of charge and prima facie satisfactory for the court that a conviction would lead in case the said evidence remains un-rebutted.

Position of Law:-

8. Before discussing the arguments of the parties for and against the impugned order in revision it would be pertinent to go through the case laws cited by learned counsel for the revisionist in context of the facts involved in respective case before the Hon'ble Supreme Court. In the case of Sunil Kumar Gupta Vs. State of U.P. & Ors. along with Khusboo Gupta Vs. State of U.P. & Ors. (Supra). The case was of bride burning where the victim in her dying declaration specifically mentioned the name of only one accused and even the prosecution witnesses could not deposed about the role of proposed accused summoned by the trial court in exercise of power given to it under Section 319 Cr.P.C. in para 10 and 11 of the said judgment the Hon'ble Court held as under:-

"10. Observing that for exercising jurisdiction and its discretion in terms of Section 319 Cr.P.C., the courts are required to apply stringent tests, in Sarabjit Singh and Another vs. State of Punjab and Another (2009) 16 SCC 46, it was held as under:-

"21. An order under Section 319 of the Code, therefore, should not be passed only because the first informant or one of the witnesses seeks to implicate other persons(s). Sufficient and cogent reasons are required to be assigned by the court so as to satisfy the ingredients of the provisions. Mere ipse dixit would not serve the purpose. Such an evidence must be convincing one at least for the purpose of exercise of the extraordinary jurisdiction. For the aforementioned purpose, the courts are required to apply stringent tests; one of the tests being whether evidence on record is such which would reasonably lead to conviction of the person sought to be summoned.

22. ..... Whereas the test of prima facie case may be sufficient for taking cognizance of an offence at the stage of framing of charge, the court must be satisfied that there exists a strong suspicion. While framing charge in terms of Section 227 of the Code, the court must consider the entire materials on record to form an opinion that the evidence if unrebutted would lead to a judgment of conviction.

23. Whether a higher standard be set up for the purpose of invoking the jurisdiction under Section 319 of the Code is the question. The answer to these questions should be rendered in the affirmative. Unless a higher standard for the purpose of forming an opinion to summon a person as an additional accused is laid down, the ingredients thereof viz. (i) an extraordinary case, and (ii) a case for sparingly (sic sparing) exercise of jurisdiction, would not be satisfied."

"11. Applying the above principles to the case in hand, in our considered view, no prima facie case is made out for summoning the appellants and to proceed against the appellants for the offence punishable under Section 302 IPC. As pointed out earlier, in the dying declaration, deceased Shilpa has only mentioned the name of Chanchal @ Babita; but she has not mentioned the names of others. In his complaint lodged before the police on the next day i.e. 20.08.2012, Sudhir Kumar Gupta-PW-1 has stated that his daughter Shilpa told him that Chanchal @ Babita and all other people set her on fire after pouring kerosene. PW-1 has neither stated the names of the appellants nor attributed any overt act. Likewise, in their evidence before the court, PWs 1 and 3 have only stated that Shilpa told them that Chanchal @ Babita and all others have set fire on deceased Shilpa. Neither the complaint nor the evidence of witnesses indicates as to the role played by the appellants in the commission of the offence and which accused has committed what offence. Under such circumstances, it cannot be said that the prosecution has shown prima facie material for summoning the accused for the offence punishable under Section 302 IPC."

9. Learned counsel further relied on the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Brijendra Singh Vs. State of Rajasthan reported in AIR 2017 SC 2839. Hon'ble Supreme Court in this judgment has elaborately discussed the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C., its object and when can such power be invoked by trial court. Hon'ble Supreme Court has further discussed about the degree of satisfaction i.e., required for invoking it. The situation under which power should be exercised in respect of persons named. in the FIR but not charge-sheeted. Hon'ble Supreme Court in para 13 of the judgment observed as under:-

"In order to answer the question, some of the principles enunciated in Hardeep Singh's case may be recapitulated:

Power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. can be exercised by the trial court at any stage during the trial, i.e., before the conclusion of trial, to summon any person as an accused and face the trial in the ongoing case, once the trial court finds that there is some ''evidence' against such a person on the basis of which evidence it can be gathered that he appears to be guilty of offence. The ''evidence' herein means the material that is brought before the Court during trial. Insofar as the material/evidence collected by the IO at the stage of inquiry is concerned, it can be utilised for corroboration and to support the evidence recorded by the Court to invoke the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. No doubt, such evidence that has surfaced in examination-in-chief, without cross- examination of witnesses, can also be taken into consideration. However, since it is a discretionary power given to the Court under Section 319 Cr.P.C. and is also an extraordinary one, same has to be exercised sparingly and only in those cases where the circumstances of the case so warrants. The degree of satisfaction is more than the degree which is warranted at the time of framing of the charges against others in respect of whom chargesheet was filed. Only where strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person from the evidence led before the Court that such power should be exercised. It is not to be exercised in a casual or a cavalier manner. The prima facie opinion which is to be formed requires stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity."

10. Learned counsel for the revisionist cited the case law in Labhuji Amratji Thakor & Ors. Vs. State of Gujarat & Anr., arising out of SLP (Crl.) No.6392 of 2018, the facts before the court was that the complainant of the case lodged an F.I.R. on 27.5.2015 under Sections 363 and 366 of the I.P.C. read with Section 3/4 POCSO Act, 2012 that her daughter aged about 14 years has been abducted by one Natuji Bachaji Thakor some time in the last night on 26.5.2015 in morning hours of 27.5.2015. It was however alleged that the aforesaid accused used to visit the victim, the aforesaid 14 years old girl and has given a mobile phone to her, when the complainant knew about this fact he had warned Natuji. After receiving F.I.R., the police investigated into the matter and submitted a charge-sheet under Sections 363, 366 of the I.P.C. and Section 3/4 of the POCSO Act, 2012 against Natuji Bachchuji Thakor, the accused. The statement of the victim was recorded by the investigating officer, she had taken the name of Natuji alone, trial proceeded against the accused in special court under POCSO Act. The statement of mother of victim was recorded, she also did not named any other person than Natuji, the accused. It is only when the statements were recorded by the Special Court of POCSO Judge of the victim who in her statement taken name of Labuji Amratji Thakor, Shashikant and Jituji also, who had taken the victim into 'morvi' in Jeep.

In the light of the said statement the prayer was made to proceed against the appellant Labuji Amratji Thakor etc., also by initiating appropriate legal proceedings.

11. Learned POCSO Judge after considering the statements rejected the application holding, prima facie it appears that with malafide intention, the names of the appellants have been disclosed. The complainant filed a criminal revision against the order dated 1.12.2016 aforesaid rejecting the application which has been allowed by the High Court. The order of POCSO Judge rejecting the application under Section 319 Cr.P.C. was reversed.

12. Before Hon'ble The Supreme Court, the said order passed in revision was challenged and it was submitted that there was no evidence on record on the basis of which it can even to be prima facie found that appellants had also committed the offence. Before Hon'ble Supreme Court the appellant took reliance on the judgment delivered by it earlier in

Hardeep Singh Vs. State of Punjab & Ors. reported in 2014 (1) JIC 539 (SC)

13. Hon'ble The Supreme Court in para-6,7,8,9,10,11 of the aforesaid judgment of constitution bench in Hardeep Singh (Supra) observed as under:-

"6. Section 319 Cr.P.C. provides that where, in the course of any inquiry into, or trial of, an offence, it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence for which such person could be tried together with the accused, the Court may proceed against such person for the offence which he appears to have committed. The Court, thus, during the trial on the basis of any evidence is fully empowered to proceed against any person, whose name was not even included in the F.I.R. or the Charge Sheet. The parameters of exercise of power under Section 319 Cr.P.C has been explained by this Court time and again. It is sufficient to refer to Constitution Bench judgment in Hardeep Singh (supra), where this Court had considered the following issue amongst others:-

"6.4. (iv) What is the nature of the satisfaction required to invoke the power under Section 319 CrPC to arraign an accused? Whether the power under Section 319(1) CrPC can be exercised only if the court is satisfied that the accused summoned will in all likelihood be convicted?"

7. The Constitution Bench judgment in the above judgment has held that under Section 319 Cr.P.C. Court can proceed against any person, who is not an accused in a case before it. The Constitution Bench, however, has held that the person against whom the Court decides to proceed, "has to be a person whose complicity may be indicated and connected with the commission of the offence".

8. Answering the Issue No.(iv) as noticed above, in Paragraph Nos. 105 and 106 of the judgment, following was laid down by the Constitution Bench:-

"105. Power under Section 319 CrPC is a discretionary and an extraordinary power. It is to be exercised sparingly and only in those cases where the circumstances of the case so warrant. It is not to be exercised because the Magistrate or the Sessions Judge is of the opinion that some other person may also be guilty of committing that offence. Only where strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person from the evidence led before the court that such power should be exercised and not in a casual and cavalier manner.

106. Thus, we hold that though only a prima facie case is to be established from the evidence led before the court, not necessarily tested on the anvil of cross-examination, it requires much stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity. The test that has to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge, but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes unrebutted, would lead to conviction. In the absence of such satisfaction, the court should refrain from exercising power under Section 319 CrPC. In Section 319 CrPC the purpose of providing if "it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence" is clear from the words "for which such person could be tried together with the accused". The words used are not "for which such person could be convicted". There is, therefore, no scope for the court acting under Section 319

CrPC to form any opinion as to the guilt of the accused."

9. The Constitution Bench has given a caution that power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. is a discretionary and extraordinary power, which should be exercised sparingly and only in those cases where the circumstances of the case so warrant. The crucial test, which has been laid down as noted above is "the test that has to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge, but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes unrebutted, would lead to conviction." The present is a case, where the trial court had rejected the application filed by the prosecution under Section 319 Cr.P.C. Further, in the present case, the complainant in the F.I.R. has not taken the names of the appellants and after investigation in which the statement of victim was also recorded, the names of the appellants did not figure.

After carrying investigation, the Charge Sheet was submitted in which the appellants names were also not mentioned as accused. In the statement recorded before the Police, the victim has named only Natuji with whom she admitted having physical relations and who took her and with whom she went out of the house in the night and lived with him on several places. The mother of victim in her statement before the Court herself has stated that victim girl returned to the house after one and a half months. In the statement, before the Court, victim has narrated the entire sequence of events. She has stated in her statement that accused Natuji used to visit her Uncle's house Vishnuji, where she met Natuji. She, however, stated that it was Natuji, who had given her mobile phone. Her parents came to know about she having been given mobile phone by Natuji, then they went to the house of Natuji and threatened Natuji.

After one month, Natuji gave another mobile phone to the victim, who had taken it. She stated that in the night at 12 'o' clock, Natuji alongwith his three friends had taken her to Morbi in a jeep. She further stated that she and Natuji stayed for three days at the said place and Natuji had intercourse with her at the said place. When Natuji came to know about lodging of complaint, he took her to Modasa in the jeep. The jeep was given by Labhuji and other two appellants were also in the jeep. She further stated that Labhuji, Shashikant and Jituji came in the jeep and took her and Natuji to the Police Station, where the police interrogated her and she recorded her statement. Natuji was charged with Sections 363 and 366 I.P.C. and Sections 3 and 4 of the POCSO Act.

10. In the present case, there are not even suggestion of any act done by appellants amounting to an offence referred to in Sections 3 and 4 of the POCSO Act. Thus, there was no occasion to proceed against the appellants under POCSO Act.

11. Now, we come back to the reasons given by the High Court in allowing the Criminal Revision and setting aside the order of the POCSO Judge. The judgment of the High Court runs into four paragraphs and the only reason given by the High Court for allowing the revision is contained in paragraph No.3, which is to the following effect:-

"3. On going through the depositions of the victim as well as her mother, some overtact and participation on the part of the respondent nos. 3 to 5 are clearly revealing. But, this Court is not inclined to opine either way as the said fact was not stated before the police at the time of recording of their statements. But, taking into consideration the provision of Section 319 of the Criminal Procedure Code, this Court deems it appropriate to summon them and put them to trial.....…"

14. On the basis of above discussion, the three Judges Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court in aforesaid case of Labhuji (Supra) held that the mere fact that court has power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. to proceed against any person who is not named in the FIR or the charge sheet does not mean that whenever in a statement recorded before the court, name of any person is taken, the court has to consider substances of the evidence which has come before it and as laid down by the Constitution Bench in Hardeep Singh's case, it should be more than prima facie case which is needed at the time of framing of charges, but short of satisfaction to an extent that evidence, if goes unrebutted would lead to conviction. Since, the High Court has not adverted to test laid down by the Constitution Bench nor has given any cogent reason in exercise of power under Section 319 Cr.P.C., then also Hon'ble Supreme Court for its own satisfaction examined evidence came before the trial court and held that the victim in her statement before POCSO Judge has only stated that Natuji, the accused had come along with his three friends i.e., the appellants and she was taken in the Jeep to 'morvi' she does not even alleged complicity of the appellants in the offence. Her further statement was that she was taken to morvi in the Jeep driven by Labuji and specifically was taken to the Modasa from 'morvi' in the Jeep. The mere facts of being in the Jeep wherein the victim was taken into modasa cannot be treated as to be any allegation of complicity of the appellants in the offence. For want of sufficient reason in the order of High Court reversing the order of POCSO Judge whereby application under Section 319 Cr.P.C. was rejected. The Hon'ble Supreme Court set aside the order of the High Court holding the same unsustainable and allowed the appeal.

15. Learned counsel for the revisionist has relied on the case of Raja Ram @ Raj Kumar & Ors. Vs. State of U.P. & Anr. reported in 2019 (2) JIC 139 (All). The case before Hon'ble The Supreme Court the case of bride burning registered under Sections 498-A, 304-B IPC and Section 3/4 D.P. Act against the named accused persons. The additional accused persons were summoned by the court exercising the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. whereas the investigating officer concluded all materials with regard to the facts of the case, had dropped the name of revisionist holding that their names were purposely dragged into the offence without any credible evidence. According to him it was established that the revisionist were not present on the date and time of the incident as alleged in the F.I.R. and thus there is no question of their participation in the commission of offence. The High Court observed that during investigation it was unearthed by the investigating officer that on the date and time of the incident the revisionist who is uncle-in-law of the deceased were at Aligarh in connection with the treatment of their own daughter-in-law and this fact is supported by the various CCTV footage, relevant affidavits, relevant attendance registered of revisionist no.3, the CCTV footage coverage of the Librarian where the revisionist no.3 is attend, statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. of Arvind Kumar all these facts if taken together at least prima facie indicates that there possibility for participating in the offence are very sketchy and remote. The court further held that order of Sessions Judge impugned in the revision was virtually a mini trial instead of recording of his prima facie satisfaction while exercising extraordinary powers under Section 319 Cr.P.C. he has ventured into that arena which could be easily stated that he has tried and held the Hon'ble accused persons (the revisionist) guilty at the stage of 319 Cr.P.C., while discarding the defence of the revisionist which is not permissible in the ratio laid down in the Hardeep Singh's Case.

16. The underlying concept of Section 319 Cr.P.C. is there must be more than a prima facie case that is required at the time of framing of charge but short of satisfaction to an extent that evidence which if remains un-rebutted would lead to conviction.

17. In the light of the principle underlying the provision of Section 319 of the Cr.P.C. which confers power to a court in criminal jurisdiction, while in the course of any enquiry into, or trial of, an offence, when it appears to it from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence for which such person could be tried together with the accused, may proceed against such person for the offences which he appears to be committed, it could be relevant to examine the proceeding of investigation, trial and impugned order of the court below and impugned order involved in this revision.

18. As emerging out from the First Information Report made Annexure-1 to the revision petition, the incidence reported and registered in P.S. Jamo, District Amethi on 28 July 2018 Case Crime No.0299 of 2018 under Sections 147, 148, 149, 504, 506, 307 and 302 I.P.C., the accused persons are named therein namely Shivendra Pratap Singh @ Guddu, Dipendra Kumar Singh @ Bittu, Alok Pratap Singh @ Golu, Narsingh, Hari Bhan Singh and Ramnath Singh total six in number. The fact in brief is that on 28 July 2018 at about 8 a.m. in morning the complainant/informant, Rajkumar Yadav along with his brother Anirudh Kumar Yadav @ Daddan and a friend Pawan Kumar Singh @ Pappu were standing by the road, the accused persons Shivendra Pratap Singh, Dipendra Kumar Singh @ Bittu, Alok Pratap Singh, Narsingh, Hari Bhan Singh Fauji and Ramnath Singh, respondents of the same village appeared on the spot armed with fire arms began to abuse and threatened them either to ran away from the spot otherwise they will be killed. When the complainant and his companions refused to do so all the accused persons ran them, complainant and his companions ran away from the spot but when they reached in a field, Shivendra Pratap, Dipendra Kumar Singh @ Bittu, Alok Pratap Singh @ Golu fired from the rifle and Narsingh from a gun, the friend of the complainant namely Pawan Kumar Singh and brother Aniruddh Yadav got injured therein, thereafter accused persons fled away. When the victims were carried on to the hospital, Pawan Kumar Singh @ Pappu was declared dead. The brother of the complainant was referred to Trauma Center, Lucknow, when he reached to Trauma Center, he too died. The said incidence was seen by the Pradhan of the village Ravindra Pratap Singh @ Baby, Abhay Pratap Singh and Rajat Singh. This would be pertinent here to mention that the revisionist, Dipendra Kumar Singh @

Bittu had also been named in the aforesaid F.I.R. The investigation was done. While recording the statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C., Ravindra Pratap Singh one of the eyewitness though he named Dipendra Kumar Singh @ Bittu to be on spot but added he came after the commission of offence on the spot. Even the second eyewitness named by the informant Abhay Pratap Singh in his statement under section 161 Cr.P.C. did not state Dipendra Kumar Singh @ Bittu, the revisionist participating in the commission of offence. He named all the co-accused. When specific question was asked by investigating officer as to whether anyone else except 5 named by him was there, he answered after the incident Dipendra Kumar Singh @ Bittu was seen on the spot however he did nothing. One Rajat Singh whose statement was recorded under section 161 of the Cr.P.C. by the investigating officer had also named five out of six named accused committing the offence but stated that during his presence on the spot Dipendra Kumar Singh @ Bittu was not seen by him in the course of commission of offence, but he appeared on the spot thereafter. The charge sheet was prepared after completing the investigation which is made Annexure-2 to the petition. On perusal whereof it appears that the name of one of six named accused in the FIR, Dipendra Kumar Singh @ Bittu was omitted and same was submitted in the Court against the other five accused named in the FIR. A police report was submitted separately under Section 169 Cr.P.C. with regard to accused Dipendra Kumar Singh @ Bittu that he was wrongly named in the FIR as no evidence of his involvement was found.

19. During trial the complainant, Rajkumar when was examined on oath, during examination-in-chief he narrated the incidence happened on 28 July 2018 in between 7 to 8 a.m. morning. He named in his statement along with the charge sheeted five accused, Dipendra Kumar Singh @ Bittu also. The statement by trial court was recorded on 4.9.2018, he disclosed in his statement that the reason of dispute is with regard to land purchased by his grandfather and father in the year 1984, and the complainant continued in possession of the said land. The coparcener of the vendor was litigating with the complainant's family, wherein the decree was passed in his favour starting from C.O., S.O.C. and D.D.C. Litigation went up to the High Court and complainants' party was succeeded. Still civil suit and revenue suit are pending, since opponents in the said case wanted to dispossess them forcibly and accused persons are from their family, therefore, they had enmity and bitterness with the complainant's family which led them to commit the offence reported.

20. On 27 September 2019 an application under Section 319 Cr.P.C., was moved before the court with the prayer to summon the accused (not charge sheeted by the police) Dipendra Kumar Singh @ Bittu, the present revisionist for trial along with the other accused persons. The revisionist preferred objection against the said application on 10th September, 2018 alleging that there is no evidence on record with regard to his participation in the crime and even a plea that that while the police submitted a final report to this effect, no protest petition was filed, therefore, at the stage of trial or reason of police report under section 169 Cr.P.C. submitted before the court with regard to no evidences of participation in crime by Dipendra Kumar Singh @ Bittu.

Application under section 319 CrPC is not maintainable. The court heard the parties in detail.

21. On perusal of impugned order dated 31.7.2019 the matter is found discussed quoting various decisions of the Honourable Supreme Court with regard to the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. of the Court for the summoning of accused during trial under the circumstances given in the Section. The trial judge has observed that in the F.I.R. in unambiguous words the information has reported that "while the accused persons were abusing and threatening the complainant and his companions to run away from the spot otherwise they will be killed and when the complainant refused to do so, Shivendra Singh @ Guddu, Dipendra Kumar @ Bittu and Alok @ Golu from their rifle and Narsingh from his gun began firing wherein Pawan Kumar Singh, friend of the complainant had died on the spot and brother of the complainant to Trauma on reference from the local hospital and too died there".

22. The trial judge observed that the name of Dipendra Kumar Singh @ Bittu was given in the FIR assigning specific role of firing on the deceased and even stated in examination-in-chief before the court as PW-1. As such in the totality and circumstances, the proposed accused, Dipendra Kumar Singh @ Bittu whose presence at the time of incident is even established from the other material and statement taken prior to trial, should be summoned for trial.

23. So far as the observation made by the learned trial judge with regard to the motive is concerned. It is established by law that the FIR is not an encyclopedia mere information as to the incident the accused and the mode of committing offence is sufficient to start the machinery of investigation by the police after registering the report. So far as the police report under Section 169 of the Cr.P.C. by the investigating officer is concerned. It does not bar the court during trial to exercise power under Section 319 Cr.P.C., when it appears to it by evidences coming before it someone else not charge sheeted or not made accused has also role in commission of the offence and should be tried along with the accused persons. Section 319 Cr.P.C. reads as under:-

"319. Power to proceed against other persons appearing to be guilty of offence.

(1) Where, in the course of any inquiry into, or trial of, an offence, it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence for which such person could be tried together with the accused, the Court may proceed against such person for the offence which he appears to have committed.

(2) Where such person is not attending the Court, he may be arrested or summoned, as the circumstances of the case may require, for the purpose aforesaid.

(3) Any person attending the Court, although not under arrest or upon a summons, may be detained by such Court for the purpose of the inquiry into, or trial of, the offence which he appears to have committed.

(4) Where the Court proceeds against any person under sub- section (1), then-

(a) the proceedings in respect of such person shall be commenced a fresh, and the witnesses re- heard;

(b) subject to the provisions of clause (a), the case may proceed as if such person had been an accused person when the Court took cognizance of the offence upon which the inquiry or trial was commenced."

24. The name of the revisionist, Dipendra Kumar Singh @ Bittu is reported in the F.I.R., even then disbelieving the FIR contents without trial and believing on the statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. which is untestified the investigating officer submitted the report of no evidences under Section 169 Cr.P.C. However, the PW-1 when supported the F.I.R. lodged by him instantly after the incidence and named again the revisionist accused Dipendra Kumar Singh @ Bittu. The question is whether the trial judge was bound by the police report or had to satisfy itself from the evidences before it.

25. From the discussions made hereinabove with regard to fact in the FIR and materials collected by the investigating officer, it is undoubted that the complainant named categorically 6 accused persons namely Shivendra Pratap Singh @ Guddu, Dipendra Kumar Singh @ Bittu, Alok Pratap Singh @ Golu, Narsingh, Hari Bhan Singh and Ramnath Singh.

26. The trial judge recorded its satisfaction on the basis of evidence during the trial of PW-1 to summon the revisionist for trial along with the other accused, therefore, question arises whether the nature of his satisfaction was that as required to invoke the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. to arraign the accused and whether it is necessary for exercise of power under Section 319 (1) Cr.P.C. when the court is satisfied that the proposed accused in all likelihood be convicted. In this context, it would be relevant here to quote para 82-86 of the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court Hardeep Singh (Supra):-

"82. Though the facts so received by the magistrate or the court may not be evidence, yet it is some material that makes things clear and unfolds concealed or deliberately suppressed material that may facilitate the trial. In the context of Section 319 Cr.P.C. it is an information of complicity. Such material therefore, can be used even though not an evidence in stricto sensuo, but an information on record collected by the court during inquiry itself, as a prima facie satisfaction for exercising the powers as presently involved.

83. This pre-trial stage is a stage where no adjudication on the evidence of the offences involved takes place and therefore, after the material alongwith the charge-sheet has been brought before the court, the same can be inquired into in order to effectively proceed with framing of charges. After the charges are framed, the prosecution is asked to lead evidence and till that is done, there is no evidence available in the strict legal sense of Section 3 of the Evidence Act. The actual trial of the offence by bringing the accused before the court has still not begun. What is available is the material that has been submitted before the court along with the charge-sheet. In such situation, the court only has the preparatory material that has been placed before the court for its consideration in order to proceed with the trial by framing of charges.

84. It is, therefore, not any material that can be utilised, rather it is that material after cognizance is taken by a court, that is available to it while making an inquiry into or trying an offence, that the court can utilize or take into consideration for supporting reasons to summon any person on the basis of evidence adduced before the Court, who may be on the basis of such material, treated to be an accomplice in the commission of the offence. The inference that can be drawn is that material which is not exactly evidence recorded before the court, but is a material collected by the court, can be utilised to corroborate evidence already recorded for the purpose of summoning any other person, other than the accused.

85. This would harmonise such material with the word "evidence' as material that would be supportive in nature to facilitate the exposition of any other accomplice whose complicity in the offence may have either been suppressed or escaped the notice of the court.

86. The word "evidence" therefore has to be understood in its wider sense both at the stage of trial and, as discussed earlier, even at the stage of inquiry, as used under Section 319 Cr.P.C. The court, therefore, should be understood to have the power to proceed against any person after summoning him on the basis of any such material as brought forth before it. The duty and obligation of the court becomes more onerous to invoke such powers cautiously on such material after evidence has been led during trial."

27. Para 96 of the Judgment of Hardeep Singh (Supra) is also material in this regard which reads as under:-

"96. At the time of taking cognizance, the court has to see whether a prima facie case is made out to proceed against the accused. Under Section 319 Cr.P.C., though the test of prima facie case is the same, the degree of satisfaction that is required is much stricter. A two-Judge Bench of this Court in Vikas v. State of Rajasthan, 2013 (11) SCALE 23, held that on the objective satisfaction of the court a person may be 'arrested' or 'summoned', as the circumstances of the case may require, if it appears from the evidence that any such person not being the accused has committed an offence for which such person could be tried together with the already arraigned accused persons."

28. In the context of fact and materials available before the trial court it would be relevant to give the reference of finding given by Hon'ble Supreme Court in similar circumstances in the judgment in Municipal Corporation of Delhi Vs. Ram Kishan Rohatgi & Ors. reported in AIR 1983 SC 67 that if the prosecution can at any stage produce evidence which satisfies the court that those who have not been arraigned as accused or against whom proceedings quashed have also committed the offence, the court can take cognizance against them under Section 319 Cr.P.C. and try them along with the other accused.

29. Lastly, para-118-119 of the judgment in the case of Hardeep Singh's case which answered all the question arisen in the present revision learned, revisionist is being quoted:-

118. Thus, it is evident that power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. can be exercised against a person not subjected to investigation, or a person placed in the Column 2 of the Charge-Sheet and against whom cognizance had not been taken, or a person who has been discharged. However, concerning a person who has been discharged, no proceedings can be commenced against him directly under Section 319 Cr.P.C. without taking recourse to provisions of Section 300(5) read with Section 398 Cr.P.C.

119. We accordingly sum up our conclusions as follows:

Question Nos.1 & III

Q.1 What is the stage at which power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. can be exercised?

AND Q.III Whether the word "evidence" used in Section 319(1) Cr.P.C. has been used in a comprehensive sense and includes the evidence collected during investigation or the word "evidence" is limited to the evidence recorded during trial?

A. In Dharam Pal's case, the Constitution Bench has already held that after committal, cognizance of an offence can be taken against a person not named as an accused but against whom materials are available from the papers filed by the police after completion of investigation. Such cognizance can be taken under Section 193 Cr.P.C. and the Sessions Judge need not wait till 'evidence' under Section 319 Cr.P.C. becomes available for summoning an additional accused.

Section 319 Cr.P.C., significantly, uses two expressions that have to be taken note of i.e. (1) Inquiry (2) Trial. As a trial commences after framing of charge, an inquiry can only be understood to be a pre-trial inquiry. Inquiries under Sections 200, 201, 202 Cr.P.C.; and under Section 398 Cr.P.C. are species of the inquiry contemplated by Section 319 Cr.P.C. Materials coming before the Court in course of such enquiries can be used for corroboration of the evidence recorded in the court after the trial commences, for the exercise of power under Section 319 Cr.P.C., and also to add an accused whose name has been shown in Column 2 of the chargesheet.

In view of the above position the word 'evidence' in Section 319 Cr.P.C. has to be broadly understood and not literally i.e. as evidence brought during a trial.

Question No. II Q.II Whether the word "evidence" used in Section 319(1) Cr.P.C. could only mean evidence tested by cross-examination or the court can exercise the power under the said provision even on the basis of the statement made in the examination-in-chief of the witness concerned?

?A. Considering the fact that under Section 319 Cr.P.C. a person against whom material is disclosed is only summoned to face the trial and in such an event under Section 319(4) Cr.P.C. the proceeding against such person is to commence from the stage of taking of cognizance, the Court need not wait for the evidence against the accused proposed to be summoned to be tested by cross-examination.

Question No. IV Q.IV What is the nature of the satisfaction required to invoke the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. to arraign an accused? Whether the power under Section 319 (1) Cr.P.C. can be exercised only if the court is satisfied that the accused summoned will in all likelihood be convicted?

A. Though under Section 319(4)(b) Cr.P.C. the accused subsequently impleaded is to be treated as if he had been an accused when the Court initially took cognizance of the offence, the degree of satisfaction that will be required for summoning a person under Section 319 Cr.P.C. would be the same as for ?framing a charge. The difference in the degree of satisfaction for summoning the original accused and a subsequent accused is on account of the fact that the trial may have already commenced against the original accused and it is in the course of such trial that materials are disclosed against the newly summoned accused. Fresh summoning of an accused will result in delay of the trial - therefore the degree of satisfaction for summoning the accused (original and subsequent) has to be different.

Question No.V Q.V Does the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. extend to persons not named in the FIR or named in the FIR but not chargesheeted or who have been discharged?

A. A person not named in the FIR or a person though named in the FIR but has not been chargesheeted or a person who has been discharged can be summoned under Section 319 Cr.P.C. provided from the evidence it appears that such person can be tried along with the accused already facing trial. However, in so far as an accused who has been discharged is concerned the requirement of ?Sections 300 and 398 Cr.P.C. has to be complied with before he can be summoned afresh.

30. On the basis of above discussions, it is sufficiently clear that there was evidence of PW-1 as statement recorded in his examination-in-chief supporting the allegation against the revisionist accused, a named accused therein along with other accused persons. The said evidence in terms of Section 319 Cr.P.C. could very well be taken as evidence to satisfy the trial judge so as to summon the revisionist for trial along with other co-accused. The learned trial judge has committed no error of law, nor any irregularity while passing the order impugned in this revision.

31. The revision therefore has no force and there is no reason to interfere with the order of Trial Judge dated 31.7.2019 in S.T No.467/2016, Crime Case No. 299/2016 registered under Sections 147, 148, 149, 504, 506, 307 and 302 I.P.C. in Police Station-Jamo, District-Amethi (State of U.P. Vs. Shivendra Pratap Singh & Anr.) exercised its power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. to summon the revisionist, Dipendra Kumar Singh @ Bittu for trial along with the other accused.

32. With the aforesaid, the present criminal revision is dismissed.

A. Criminal Law-Indian Penal Code,1860-sections 302/34, 120B and Arms Act,1959-section 3/25 & Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children)Act, 2000-section 7A-rejection-claim of juvenility-conduct of inquiry is mandatory-trial court failed to conduct inquiry regarding determination of age as laid out in section 7A of the 2000 Act and Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules-trial court committed manifest error-hence, the revision is allowed-the matter is remanded back to trial court to decide afresh.(Para 5 to 9)

The age determination inquiry contemplated under J.J. Act and Rules has nothing to do with an inquiry under any other legislation. There may be a situation where matriculation certificate, date of birth certificate from school first attended and even birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority, or panchayat may not be correct, but the Court or the Juvenile Justice Board or the committee under J.J. Act is not expected to conduct such a roving inquiry and to go behind those certificates t examine correctness of those documents,kept during normal course of business. (Para 7)

Criminal Revision allowed.(E-6)

List of cases cited:-

1. Raju Vs. St. Of Haryana,{2019(2) JIC 11 (SC)}

2. Mohd. Yunus Vs. St. Of U.P. & Anr.{2018(3) JIC 74 (All)}

(Delivered by Hon'ble Anant Kumar, J.)

(1) Counter affidavit filed on behalf of complainant is taken on record.

(2) Heard learned counsel for the revisionist, learned A.G.A. for the State, the learned counsel for private opposite parties and perused the record.

(3) This revision has been filed with the prayer that this Hon'ble Court may kindly be pleased to set aside the judgment and order dated 13.09.2018 passed by Fourth Additional Session Judge, Sultanpur passed in Session Trial No.433 of 2014 (State Versus Kamruddin and others) by which application for declaration of juvenile has been rejected by him arising from Case Crime No.255 of 2014, under Sections 302/34, 120B of I.P.C. and Section 3/25 Arms Act relating to Police Station - Dostpur, District – Sultanpur.

(4) Brief facts relevant for disposal of this revision are that an application was moved for declaring the revisionist juvenile on the ground that on the date of occurrence i.e. 14th July, 2014 he was juvenile as the date of birth of the revisionist is 20.09.1998, as such on the date of occurrence, he was 15 years 10 months and 24 days old. In support of the application, a birth certificate purportedly issued from Nagar Panchayat, Dostpur, Sultanpur, has been filed. The trial court after hearing the counsel for the applicant/ revisionist as well as learned counsel for the State came to the conclusion that date of birth of the appellant was got registered in Nagar Panchayat on 26.04.2017 i.e. after three years of occurrence, hence the certificate issued by Nagar Panchayat, Dostpur is not trustworthy and on this very ground the said application has been rejected, hence this revision.

(5) The sole arguments of learned counsel for the appellant is that as per Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 (hereinafter referred to as 'Act, 2000'), Section 7A of the Act, 2000, the inquiry has not been conducted by the court concerned. Section 7A of the Act, 2000 provids as under :

"Section 7A in The Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015

(1) Whenever a claim of juvenility is raised before any court or a court is of the opinion that an accused person was a juvenile on the date of commission of the offence, the court shall make an inquiry, take such evidence as may be necessary (but not an affidavit) so as to determine the age of such person, and shall record a finding whether the person is a juvenile or a child or not, stating his age as nearly as may be: Provided that a claim of juvenility may be raised before any court and it shall be recognised at any stage, even after final disposal of the case, and such claim shall be determined in terms of the provisions contained in this Act and the rules made thereunder, even if the juvenile has ceased to be so on or before the date of commencement of this Act.

(2) If the court finds a person to be a juvenile on the date of commission of the offence under sub-section (1), it shall forward the juvenile to the Board for passing appropriate orders and the sentence, if any, passed by a court shall be deemed to have no effect.]"

(6) It is further stated that instead of following to the said provision, the trial Court has simply held that birth certificate produced by the applicant/ revisionist is not trustworthy but the trial court should have conducted inquiry for the same and by not conducting such inquiry the trial Court has committed manifest error, which required interference by this Court.

(7) In this regard, a case law reported in [2019 (2) JIC 11 (SC)]; Raju vs. State of Haryana, has been cited, wherein the Hon'ble Apex Court has held as under:

"2. The brief facts leading to the instant appeal are that an FIR was lodged against the Appellant Raju s/o Rajendar Singh, and two other persons, viz. Raju s/o Bhim and Raja @ Raj Kumar s/o Makhsi, alleging that the three persons had intercepted the prosecutrix when she was passing by some fields along with her one year old brother and had taken her to a field nearby, whereupon Raju s/o Bhim and Raja @ Raj Kumar s/o Makhsi engaged in the gang rape of the prosecutrix, while the Appellant stood outside the field. The prosecutrix was aged fifteen years at the time of the incident, which occurred on 14.09.2000. The three accused were convicted for the offence punishable under Section 376(2)(g) of the IPC, and sentenced to 10 years' rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 500/, and further two months' rigorous imprisonment in default of payment of fine. Aggrieved by the same, the three accused appealed to the High Court.

3. The Appellant, inter alia, raised the defence before the High Court that he was aged less than 18 years at the time of commission of the offence, i.e. 14.09.2000, and hence was entitled to the benefit of the provisions of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 (in short, "the 2000 Act"). The High Court, however, rejected such contention and affirmed the conviction of the three accused, including the Appellant.

4. Aggrieved by the above judgment, the Appellant filed the instant appeal, inter alia raising the plea of juvenility again. The Appellant relied upon a transfer certificate issued in his favour by the Dayanand Middle School, Sohna, Gurgaon which showed his date of birth to be 12.07.1984. He also relied upon a certificate issued by the Government Senior Secondary School (Boys), Sohna which showed his date of birth to be the same. It was submitted by the Appellant before this Court that the certificates in question prima facie entitled him to claim the conduct of an inquiry in terms of Section 7A of the 2000 Act. The Appellant referred to the decisions of this Court in Murari Thakur v. State of Bihar, (2009) 16 SCC 256, Dharambir v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2010) 5 SCC 344, and Jitendra Singh @ Babboo Singh v. State of U.P., (2010) 13 SCC 523.

5. Keeping in mind such circumstances and the certificates relied upon, this Court vide order dated 09.08.2012 directed the Registrar (Judicial) of this Court to conduct an inquiry in respect of the age of the Appellant in terms of Section 7A of the 2000 Act read with the rules framed thereunder, and to submit a report to this Court within four months from the order.

6. This Court received such report on 07.01.2013, which determined that the age of the Appellant was 16 years, 2 months and 2 days at the time of commission of the offence and that he was thus a juvenile at that time. Thereafter, arguments were heard and judgement reserved. However, subsequently, the State raised the argument that the Court had not looked into the question of whether the plea of juvenility as decided by the Registry of this Court should be given precedence over the view of the High Court. By an order dated 25.04.2014, this Court directed that the appeal be heard further. Shri Siddhartha Dave was subsequently appointed as amicus curiae to assist the Court.

7. It was submitted by the learned amicus curiae that the learned Registrar (Judicial) of this Court had, after duly calling for records and appreciating the material adduced, reached the conclusion that the Appellant was a juvenile at the time of commission of the offence, and there was no reason to deny the Appellant the benefit of such finding. Moreover, he submitted that seeing that it was upon the direction of this Court that the learned Registrar had conducted the inquiry under Section 7A of the 2000 Act and the rules framed thereunder, and had submitted his report to this Court after conducting such inquiry in accordance with law, the report may be treated as having been made by this Court itself.

8. Heard the learned amicus curiae and advocate for the State, and perused the material on record.

9. It is by now well-settled, as was held in Hari Ram v. State of Rajasthan, (2009) 13 SCC 211, that in light of Sections 2(k), 2(l), 7A read with Section 20 of the 2000 Act as amended in 2006, a juvenile who had not completed eighteen years on the date of commission of the offence is entitled to the benefit of the 2000 Act (also see Mohan Mali v. State of Madhya Pradesh, (2010) 6 SCC 669; Daya Nand v. State of Haryana, (2011) 2 SCC 224; Dharambir v. State (NCT) of Delhi (supra); Jitendra Singh @ Babboo Singh v. State of Uttar Pradesh, (2013) 11 SCC 193). It is equally wellsettled that the claim of juvenility can be raised at any stage before any Court by an accused, including this Court, even after the final disposal of a case, in terms of Section 7A of the 2000 Act (see Dharambir v. State (NCT) of Delhi, (supra), Abuzar Hossain v. State of West Bengal, (2012) 10 SCC 489; Jitendra Singh @ Babboo Singh v. State of UP, (supra); Abdul Razzaq v. State of Uttar Pradesh, (2015) 15 SCC 637).

10. In light of the above legal position, it is evident that the Appellant would be entitled to the benefit of the 2000 Act if his age is determined to be below 18 years on the date of commission of the offence. Moreover, it would be irrelevant that the plea of juvenility was not raised before the Trial Court, in light of Section

7A. As per the report of the inquiry conducted by the Registrar (Judicial) of this Court, in this case, the Appellant was below 18 years of age on the date of commission of the offence. The only question before us that needs to be determined is whether such report may be given precedence over the contrary view taken by the High Court, so that the benefit of the 2000 Act may be given to the Appellant.

11. Before proceeding further, it would be useful to refer to Section 7A of the 2000 Act and Rule 12 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Rules, 2007 (in short, "the 2007 Rules"), which deal with the making of an inquiry by the Court in case of a claim of juvenility. Section 7A of the 2000 Act is as follows:

"7A. Procedure to be followed when claim of juvenility is raised before any court-- (1) Whenever a claim of juvenility is raised before any court or a court is of the opinion that an accused person was a juvenile on the date of commission of the offence, the court shall make an inquiry, take such evidence as may be necessary (but not an affidavit) so as to determine the age of such person, and shall record a finding whether the person is a juvenile or a child or not, stating his age as nearly as may be:

Provided that a claim of juvenility may be raised before any court and it shall be recognised at any stage, even after final disposal of the case, and such claim shall be determined in terms of the provisions contained in this Act and the rules made thereunder, even if the juvenile has ceased to be so on or before the date of commencement of this Act.

(2) If the court finds a person to be a juvenile on the date of commission of the offence under subsection (1), it shall forward the juvenile to the Board for passing appropriate orders and the sentence, if any, passed by a court shall be deemed to have no effect." (emphasis supplied)

12. Sub-rule (3) of Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules states the following regarding the procedure to be followed for age determination:

"In every case concerning a child or juvenile in conflict with law, the age determination inquiry shall be conducted by the court or the Board or, as the case may be, the Committee by seeking evidence by obtaining -

(a) (i) the matriculation or equivalent certificates, if available; and in the absence whereof;

(ii) the date of birth certificate from the school (other than a play school) first attended; and in the absence whereof;

(iii) the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat;

(b) and only in the absence of either (i), (ii) or (iii) of clause (a) above, the medical opinion will be sought from a duly constituted Medical Board, which will declare the age of the juvenile or child. In case exact assessment of the age cannot be done, the Court or the Board or, as the case may be, the Committee, for the reasons to be recorded by them, may, if considered necessary, give benefit to the child or juvenile by considering his/her age on lower side within the margin of one year, and while passing orders in such case shall, after taking into consideration such evidence as may be available, or the medical opinion, as the case may be, record a finding in respect of his age and either of the evidence specified in any of the clauses (a)(i), (ii), (iii) or in the absence whereof, clause (b) shall be the conclusive proof of the age as regards such child or the juvenile in conflict with law." (emphasis supplied)

13. It is evident from a perusal of the above that if any Court, including this Court, is of the opinion that an accused person was a juvenile on the date of commission of the offence, or if a claim of juvenility is raised before it, the Court must conduct an inquiry regarding the determination of the age of the accused. The evidence collected by way of such inquiry, as is specified in clauses (a)(i), (ii), and (iii) of Rule 12(3), or in the absence whereof, clause (b) of the same, is treated as conclusive proof of the age of the accused. In such a situation, it would be clear that such an inquiry conducted by this Court would be given precedence over a view of the age of the accused taken by the High Court. It is relevant to note here itself that in this case, the High Court decided the issue merely upon an assessment of the material on record without resorting to the procedure governing inquiries for the determination of age as laid out in Section 7A of the 2000 Act and Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules.

14. At this point, it is necessary to briefly discuss the findings of the High Court in the impugned judgment regarding the age of the accused to underscore that it has not conducted the inquiry stipulated as per Section 7A and Rule 12. Before the High Court, the Appellant submitted a report of the Assistant Commissioner of Police, Bhondsi, Gurgaon to the effect that his date of birth was 12.07.1984, thereby claiming the benefit of the 2000 Act. This plea was rejected on the grounds of failure to raise the plea of juvenility before the Trial court; nonproduction of birth certificate in spite of an opportunity being granted to do so; absence of the Appellant's name in the birth register dated 12.07.1984 and for the years 198384 and 1984-85; non-corroboration of the date of birth certificates issued by schools attended by the Appellant through other documentary evidence; non-matching of the name on such certificates (Raj Kumar) with the name of the Appellant as brought on record (Raju); and non-corroboration of the address of the Appellant through such certificates, which simply stated that the date of birth of the student named Raj Kumar was 12.07.1984.

15. The High Court evidently did not even frame its discussion in terms of whether the evidence brought on record was sufficient to conduct an inquiry under the 2000 Act and the 2007 Rules, let alone order and conduct such an inquiry. On the contrary, it simply recorded that the evidence did not go to show that the Appellant was a juvenile at the time of the commission of the offence, and proceeded to affirm the conviction of the Appellant on merits.

16. Therefore, it is evident that the only inquiry as stipulated under the 2000 Act and the 2007 Rules was conducted by the Registrar (Judicial) upon the directions of this Court, after the Court was satisfied upon going through the school certificates adduced by the Appellant that the certificates in question prima facie entitled him to claim the conduct of such an inquiry. In such a situation, the question regarding whether precedence may be given to the inquiry of a Registrar (Judicial) of this Court over the opinion of the High Court regarding the age of an accused can be restated as whether such inquiry conducted by the Registrar (Judicial) upon the direction of this Court, if thereafter affirmed by this Court, would amount to an inquiry conducted by this Court itself. If this be the case, the findings of such inquiry would prevail over the view taken by the High Court, as is evident from the preceding discussion.

17. We are of the opinion that the above question must be answered in the affirmative. This Court, on previous occasions as well, has adopted the practice of directing the Registrar (Judicial) to conduct the inquiry in terms of Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules on behalf of this Court, and accepted the findings made therein (see Dharambir v. State (NCT) of Delhi, (supra). Seeing that the Registrar (Judicial) is a District Judge serving on deputation at the Supreme Court, recourse to his or her assistance in the form of collecting evidence and arriving at a finding regarding the claim of juvenility of the person concerned may be undertaken by this Court in order to save its judicial time. However, it must be stressed that the findings in an inquiry conducted by the Registrar (Judicial) would not per se prevail upon a contrary view taken by the High Court. Only after this Court applies its judicial mind to such report with due regard to the confines of the procedure stipulated in Section 7A of the 2000 Act and Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules, and only if it thereafter confirms the findings in such report would the same prevail upon a contrary view taken by the High Court which is not based upon any such inquiry."

In view of the said circumstances, the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that while disposing of the application of the accused claiming juvenality, an inquiry under Section 7A of the 2000 Act is mandatory and the application cannot be disposed of any slip short manner."

(8) Another case law of this Court cited on behalf of appellant reported in [2018 (3) JIC 74 (All)] Mohd. Yunus v. State of U.P. & Anr., wherein this Court has held as under:

"8. The above provisions shows that the procedure to be followed under J.J. Act in conducting an inquiry is the procedure laid down in the statute itself. We cannot import other procedure laid down in the Code of Criminal Procedure or any other enactment while making inquiry with regard to the juvenility of a person. The age determination inquiry contemplated under J.J. Act and Rules has nothing to do with an inquiry under any other legislation. There may be situation where the entry made in the Matriculation or equivalent certificates, date of birth certificate from school first attended and even birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority, or a panchayat may not be correct, but the Court or the Juvenile Justice Board or the Committee functioning under J.J. Act is not expected to conduct such a roving inquiry and to go behind those certificates to examine correctness of those documents, kept during normal course of business. In Ashwani Kumar Saxena (supra), it has been observed by the Apex Court that in this situation, only in cases where those documents/certificates are found to be fabricated or manipulated, the Court, Juvenile Justice Board or the Committee need to go for medical report for age determination. In the present case, the Transfer Certificate of NAS Inter College, Meerut from where High School was done by the accused- Asif Saifi is also available on record which shows that Neetu Bal Academy, Junior High School was the earlier school of accused. The T.C. of Neetu Bal Academy aforesaid is also on record which shows that accused Asif Saifi passed out 6th,7th and 8th classes from the School and in that T.C. also the date of birth is mentioned as 01.06.2000. In the case of Parag Bharti (Juvenile) Vs. State of U.P. Passed in Criminal Appeal no. 486 of 2016 arising out of SLP No. 5893 of 2013, the Apex Court has considered so many decisions including the decision given in the case of Om Prakash Vs. State of Rajsthan (Supra) relied upon by the revisionist and it has been observed that it is a settled proposition of law that if the Matriculation or equivalent certificates are available and there is no other material to prove the correctness, the date of birth mentioned in the Matriculation Certificate has to be treated as a conclusive proof of the date of birth of the accused.

9. This Court is of the view that in the situation of present case, there was no necessity for medical examination of the accused as the inquiry was confined to the provisions of J.J. Act and Rules. In Ashwani Kumar Saxena (supra) the inquiry was conducted even there was High School Certificate on record. The Apex Court has deprecated the procedure adopted as in the present case by the Court below . In the facts and circumstances of the present case, the law cited by learned Counsel for the revisionist do not help him.

10. In view of discussions made above, this Court comes to the conclusion that the learned Appellate Court has dealt with the question of juvenility as per the procedure laid down in the J.J. Act and Rules and has rightly relied upon the date of birth mentioned in the High School Certificate, according to which the accused Asif Saifi is minor. I find no justifiable ground for making any interference in the impugned order.

11. Hence, this revision fails and is hereby dismissed. "

(9) In view of above, the trial court has committed manifest error in disposing of the application of the revisionist without holding an inquiry as stated above, so the revision is liable to be allowed.

(10) Accordingly, the revision is allowed. Order impugned dated 13.09.2018 passed by Fourth Additional Session Judge, Sultanpur passed in Session Trial No.433 of 2014 (State Versus Kamruddin and others) by which application for declaration of juvenile has been rejected by him arising from Case Crime No.255 of 2014, under Sections 302/34, 120B of I.P.C. and 3/25 Arms Act relating to Police Station - Dostpur, District - Sultanpur is set aside and the matter is remanded back to the trial court to decide the matter afresh in the lite of observation made above and conduct an inquiry under Section 7A of the Act, 2000 after giving opportunity of hearing to the revisionist.

(11) Since the matter is old one, it is expected that the inquiry shall be conducted without granting unnecessary adjournment to either of the parties.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Narendra Kumar Johari, J).)

1. The instant Revision has been filed on behalf of Revisionist-Kuldeep (minor) S/o Gautam through his uncle Subhash Chandra S/o Jiv Rakkhan, against the order dated 16.03.2017 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.1, Jaunpur in Criminal Appeal No.37 of 2017 (Kuldeep Vs. State), arising out of Case Crime No.664 of 2016, under Section 302, 411, 394, 34, 120-B I.P.C., Police Station-Kheta Sarai, District-Jaunpur.

2. Heard learned counsel for the revisionist, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

3. Opposite party no.2 has been served personally, but he did not turn up before this Court.

4. The fact of the case in brief is that complainant-Ram Teerath has lodged the F.I.R. on 19.09.2016 at about 11.30 a.m. stating that his maternal brother-Lalji is a teacher in Delhi. At present, Lalji along with his mother-Bhagirathi and son-Rinku is residing at Delhi. His wife-Sudama Devi is alone residing in her house at Lakhmapur. Lalji telephonically called complainant and said that he could not talk to his wife, as mobile-phone of his wife-Sudama Devi is switched off for last 2-3 days. He further directed him to go his residence and arrange talks with his wife. On the request of Lalji, complainant along with Gautam, son of Jiv Rakkhan went at the residence of Sudama Devi, he found that room was locked. He watched through window, then he saw that Sudama Devi was lying on the bed in dead condition. There was cut mark on her neck. There was dispute of Sudama Devi regarding the agricultural land and pathway with Vishram, Sochan, Mahendra, Surendra, Revindra and Virendra Kumar, all residents of the same village. Resultantly, they all have murdered Sudama Devi. He created doubt on Ravindra and Virendra Kumar, residents of Lakhmapur also.

5. On the aforesaid F.I.R., investigation was started. During investigation, the name of Gautam Kumar, his wife-Chandrama Devi and son-

Kuldeep came into light for committal of murder and Police recovered mobile-phone, ornaments of deceased from them. The weapon-knife has also been recovered. Accordingly, they have been arrested by the police.

6. Revisionist approached Juvenile Justice Board stating that at the time of incident he was minor. Principal Magistrate Juvenile Justice Board vide order dated 05.01.2017 declared him minor as on 19.09.2016 i.e. on date of occurrence, his age was 16 years 2 months 9 days. Revisionist further moved application for granting bail which was rejected by Principal Magistrate, Juvenile Justice Board, Jaunpur on 09.02.2017. Against the said rejection order, revisionist approached Session Court by way of Criminal Appeal No.37 of 2017. Lower appellate court heard the appeal on merits and rejected the same vide order dated 16.03.2017. Against the said rejection order, the instant revision has been filed.

7. Learned counsel for the revisionist has submitted that the mother of revisionist-Smt. Chandrama Devi was released on bail on 08.02.2017 and his father Gautam was also released on bail on 28.02.2017 in Case Crime No.664 of 2016. The present revision has been filed through uncle of minor revisionist on 24.04.2017.

8. Learned counsel for the revisionist has further submitted that revisionist has falsely been implicated in the present case. He has no other previous criminal history. He has not been named in F.I.R. also. There was no motive to commit offence. The mobile-phone as shown recovered from the possession of revisionist has been planted falsely with connivance with real culprit. During the course of the proceedings, Gautam Kumar, father of revisionist has given affidavit on 22.04.2019 stating that if his son be released on bail, he will supervise him and will provide better atmosphere and education him and he will assure that his son will not misuse the liberty on bail and he will not be involved in any criminal activities. Revisionist has been kept in observation home since 04.10.2016. The case of revisionist is still pending in Juvenile Justice Board.

9. Learned counsel for the revisionist has also submitted that Principal Magistrate, Family Court considered the nature of offence and mentioned that there exists reasonable grounds to believe that there is likelihood of minor coming into association with criminals. The observation of learned Principal Judge, Family Court is baseless. There is nothing on record which may indicate any reasonable grounds for so belief. Learned appellate court has rejected the appeal on the ground that the parents of revisionist are accused in the case, if revisionist be released on bail he will fall in their association. The observation of learned appellate court is also erroneous and against the principles of law. The orders of both the courts are based upon the surmises and conjectures.

10. Per contra, learned A.G.A. has contended that considering the nature of the offence, the revision is liable to be dismissed. It has also been argued that the parent of revisionist have committed a heinous offence in which juvenile was also involved. If juvenile will be released on bail he will remain with his parent, then in that case their son (revisionist) will inclined towards criminal mentality. The order passed by the Juvenile Justice Board in declining the bail and also the order passed by appellate court upholding the order of Principal Magistrate, Juvenile Justice Board are based on materials on record.

11. Before dealing with the matter, it would be appropriate to take into account Section 12 of Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 which is reproduced as under:-

"12. Bail to a person who is apparently a child alleged to be in conflict with law. 1.When any person, who is apparently a child and is alleged to have committed a bailable or non-bailable offence, is apprehended or detained by the police or appears or brought before a Board, such person shall, notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 or in any other law for the time being in force, be released on bail with or without surety or placed under the supervision of a probation officer or under the care of any fit person:

Provided that such person shall not be so released if there appears reasonable grounds for believing that the release is likely to bring that person into association with any known criminal or expose the said person to moral, physical or psychological danger or the person's release would defeat the ends of justice, and the Board shall record the reasons for denying the bail and circumstances that led to such a decision.

2. When such person having been apprehended is not released on bail under subsection (1) by the officer-in-charge of the police station, such officer shall cause the person to be kept only in an observation home in such manner as may be prescribed until the person can be brought before a Board.

3. When such person is not released on bail under sub-section (1) by the Board, it shall make an order sending him to an observation home or a place of safety, as the case may be, for such period during the pendency of the inquiry regarding the person, as may be specified in the order.

4. When a child in conflict with law is unable to fulfill the conditions of bail order within seven days of the bail order, such child shall be produced before the Board for modification of the conditions of bail."

12. According to the provisions of Section 12 (1), the wording used "notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure or in any other law for the time being in force" is non-obstante clause which has been used by legislation, therefore, the delinquent juvenile may be released on bail irrespective of the provisions of Code of Criminal Procedure. The exception of such release has been mentioned in proviso of Section 12 (1) i.e. if there appears reasonable grounds for believing that release is likely to bring the juvenile into association of known criminals or expose the said juvenile to moral, physical or psychological danger or the person's release would defeat ends of justice.

13. The Act, namely, Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 being beneficiary and social reforms oriented legislation, should be given full effect by all concerned whenever matters relating to juvenile comes for consideration before them. There must be any material or evidence reflecting reasonable ground to believe that delinquent juvenile, if released on bail is likely to fall into association with known criminal persons or such liberty may expose him to moral, physical or psychological danger, or his release would defeat the ends of justice. In absence of such reasonable grounds the bail of juvenile should not be refused. In Sanjay Chaurasia Vs. State of U.P. 2006 Cr.L.J. 2957 it has been observed that:-

"10. In case of the refusal of the bail, some reasonable grounds for believing above-mentioned exceptions must be brought before the Courts concerned by the prosecution but in the present case, no such ground for believing any of the above-mentioned exceptions has been brought by the prosecution before the Juvenile Justice Board and Appellate Court. The Appellate Court dismissed the appeal only on the presumption that due to commission of this offence, the father and other relatives of other kidnapped boy had developed enmity with the revisionist, that is why in case of his release, the physical and mental life of the revisionist will be in danger and his release will defeat the ends of justice but substantial to this presumption no material has been brought before the Appellate Court and the same has not been discussed and only on the basis of the presumption, Juvenile Justice Board has refused the Bail of the revisionist which is in the present case is unjustified and against the spirit of the Act. It appears that the impugned order dated 27.06.2005 passed by the learned Sessions Judge, Meerut and order dated 28.05.2005 passed by the Juvenile Justice Board are illegal and set aside."

14. Learned Magistrate by its order dated 09.02.2017 has rejected the bail of revisionist mentioning that the offence committed by juvenile is heinous and non-bailable in nature.

15. In the case of A. Juvenile Vs. State of Orissa, 2009 Cr.L.J., 2002, it has been held that:

"(6) A close reading of the aforementioned provision shows that it has been mandated upon the Court to release a person who is apparently a juvenile on bail with or without surety, howsoever heinous the crime may be and whatever the legal or other restrictions containing in the Cr.P.C. or any other law may be. The only restriction is that if there appears reasonable grounds for believing that his release is likely to bring him into association with any moral, physical or psychological danger or his release would defeat the ends of justice, he shall not be so released."

16. During enquiry before Juvenile Justice Board, District Probation Officer, Jaunpur has submitted his report indicating that " the social status of juvenile's family is general." Juvenile has good relation with their neighbours. There is no criminal history of juvenile. Elder brother of juvenile is studying at Delhi. The family of juvenile is simple. Involvement of juvenile in offence is doubtful.

17. So far as the reason as indicated by learned Sessions Judge while rejecting the appeal that the parent of delinquent juvenile is also involved in offence as accused, if the juvenile will be released under the supervision of his parents, he will fall in their company which is not good. So far as the observation of appellate court is concern. It is also be kept in mind that although father is involved as accused in the Crime No.664 of 16, yet the trial has not been concluded. This fact has not been disputed by learned A.G.A. It is the cardinal principle of criminal jurisprudence that unless and until the offence is proved, every accused shall be kept in the rank of innocence.

18. In the case of Sunil Kumar Sambhudayal Gupta Vs. State of Maharastra 2011 (72) ACC 699 Hon'ble Apex Court has held that:-

"Every accused is presumed to be innocent unless his guilt is proved. The presumption of innocence is a human right. Subject to the statutory exceptions, the said principle forms the basis of criminal jurisprudence in India. The nature of the offence, its seriousness and gravity has to be taken into consideration.

The Appellate Court should bear in mind the presumption of innocence of the accused, and further, that the Trial Court's acquittal bolsters the presumption of his innocence. Interference with the decision of the Trail Court in a casual or cavalier manner where the other view is possible should be avoided, unless there are good reasons for such interference."

19. No criminal history of his parent has been shown, therefore, in my opinion, the parent of accused will not be treated as "known criminal." The father is natural guardian of delinquent juvenile. The report of District Probation Officer indicates that the delinquent was also a student of class 11th at the time of occurrence. Their another son is already taking education in Delhi. The above fact indicates that the parent of delinquent intends to provide education to their children which is for betterment in their life.

20. A perusal of District Probation Officer's report goes to show that nothing has been written against revisionist in enquiry regarding him as it has been provided in Section 12 (1) of the Act. The bail of the delinquent juvenile could be rejected only on the exigencies or of the grounds mentioned in above exception. Similar view has been expressed in Amit Kumar Vs. State of U.P. reported in 2010 (3) J.I.C. 768 (All) and Naurang Vs. State of U.P. 2010 (71) A.C.C. 255 (All).

21. Keeping in view the fact of the case, arguments advanced by learned counsel for the parties and legal provisions, I find that in present revision no ground is available on the record on the basis of which application of juvenile could be dismissed. Hence, the revision deserves to be allowed. The order dated 09.02.2017 passed by Principal Magistrate, Juvenile Justice Board, Jaunpur and order dated 16.03.2017 passed by Appellate Court are not sustainable in law. Both the courts below could not appreciate the legal position while rejecting bail application of delinquent juvenile.

22. Consequently, the revision is allowed. The aforesaid impugned orders of Principal Magistrate, Juvenile Justice Board and Appellate Court are set aside.

23. It is directed that the revisionist shall be released on bail executing personal bond by his natural guardian/father with two solvent sureties each in the like amount to the satisfaction of Principal Magistrate, Juvenile Justice Board, Jaunpur with the stipulation that on subsequent dates of hearing, he shall produce the delinquent juvenile before the Board during the pendency of the matter. His guardian/father shall also submit an undertaking before the Board that he shall keep proper control and look after the juvenile. He will keep away him from the company of known criminals and will try to improve his future. In case of default, the Board would be competent to cancel the bail of revisionist after giving opportunity of hearing to him.

3. Dharam Pal & Ors. Vs. St. Of Haryana & Anr. (2004) 13 SCC 9

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajendra Kumar-IV, J).)

1. Heard Sri A.K. Singh Solanki, learned counsel for revisionists and Sri Pradeep Kumar, learned counsel Opposite Party No.2 and learned AGA for State and perused the material available on record.

2. Revision is directed against the impugned order dated 11.05.2017, passed by Additional District and Sessions Judge, Court No.3, Etah, in Sessions Trial No. 9 of 2016 (Crime No. 630 of 2014) State v. Sher Bahadur, whereby Trial Court invoking jurisdiction under Section 319 Cr.P.C. allowed the application paper No. 20(A) and summoned the accused-revisionist for facing trial in Crime No. 630 of 2014 under Sections 307, 326 and 504 IPC, Police Station Aliganj, District Etah.

3. Brief facts giving rise to present revision are that Informant-Pravendra Singh submitted a written Tehrir before the Police Station Aliganj, District Etah stating that on 22.10.2014 accused-Kamla Devi provoked other co-accused to open fire with intention to kill when Shakti Singh, Bhakti Singh and Sher Bahadur came there. Accused-Shakti Singh and Bhakti Singh opened fire on victim Shailendra Singh and Informant. Accused Sher Bahadur, Shakti Singh and Bhakti Singh chased them. Victim Shailendra Singh received serious gun shot injuries whereas informant got injured.

4. On the basis of written Tehrir, case was registered as Case Crime No. 630 of 2014, under Sections 307 and 504 IPC against four persons including the accused revisionists. Medical of injured persons were done on 22.10.2019. After investigation, Investigating Officer submitted charge-sheet against one Sher Bahadur Singh only exonerating accused-revisionists. During trial PW-1 (Pravendra Singh), PW-1 (Shailendra) were recorded and on the application of Informant, Trial Court passed impugned order.

5. Feeling aggrieved and dissatisfied with the impugned order, present revision is filed.

6. Learned Counsel for revisionist submits that revisionists have been falsely implicated on account of enmity; all the four persons are of one family; revisionist Nos. 2 and 3 are serving outside and on this count only, they have been implicated in the FIR. Investigating Officer did not find any evidence against the revisionist, therefore, exonerating them he filed charge-sheet only against one accused i.e. Sher Singh. It is further contended by him that accused persons are innocent, Trial Court did not appreciate evidence in the right perspective and there is no evidence to connect him with the present case. He pointed out on some documents in support of his contention.

7. On the other hand, learned counsel for respondents supported the impugned order and submitted that accused is named in the FIR. On the application of Informant, under Section 319 Cr.P.C. Trial Court rightly summoned the accused-revisionist for facing trial with other co-accused. During trial, PW-1 and PW-2 supported the prosecution case in the Court. Statement of PW-1 and 2 are not annexed by the revisionist but as per impugned order it clearly shows the involvement of accused-revisionist in the incident and they have active participation in the crime.

8. Section 319 of The Code Of Criminal Procedure, 1973 reads as under :-

319. Power to proceed against other persons appearing to be guilty of offence.

(1) Where, in the course of any inquiry into, or trial of, an offence, it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence for which such person could be tried together with the accused, the Court may proceed against such person for the offence which he appears to have committed.

(2)Where such person is not attending the Court, he may be arrested or summoned, as the circumstances of the case may require, for the purpose aforesaid.

(3) Any person attending the Court, although not under arrest or upon a summons, may be detained by such Court for the purpose of the inquiry into, or trial of, the offence which he appears to have committed.

(4) Where the Court proceeds against any person under sub- section (1), then-

(a) the proceedings in respect of such person shall be commenced a fresh, and the witnesses re- heard;

(b) subject to the provisions of clause (a), the case may proceed as if such person had been an accused person when the Court took cognizance of the offence upon which the inquiry or trial was commenced."

9. In Anil Arya v. State of U.P. and Others, Criminal Revision No. 1216 of 2005, decided on 09.09.2016, this Court held as under :-

"Whether evidence is correct or not or credible enough or not to sustain conviction and punishment is a matter which would be seen after revisionist put in appearance, lead evidence and thereafter Trial Court examine the entire evidence and record its finding thereon, but at the stage of summoning of revisionist on the basis of aforesaid statement in Trial under Section 319 Cr.P.C., the probable defence of accused summoned under Section 319 Cr.P.C. cannot be examined for the first time in a revisional jurisdiction by this Court."

10. In Hardeep Singh Vs. State of Punjab and others 2014 (3) SCC 92, Court examined following five questions:

"(i) What is the stage at which power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. can be exercised?

(ii) Whether the word "evidence" used in Section 319 (1) Cr.P.C. could only mean evidence tested by cross-examination or the court can exercise the power under the said provision even on the basis of the statement made in the examination-in-chief of the witness concerned?

(iii) Whether the word "evidence" used in Section 319(1) Cr.P.C. has been used in a comprehensive sense and includes the evidence collected during investigation or the word "evidence" is limited to the evidence recorded during trial?

(iv) What is the nature of the satisfaction required to invoke the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. to arraign an accused? Whether the power under Section 319(1) Cr.P.C. can be exercised only if the court is satisfied that the accused summoned will in all likelihood be convicted?

(v) Does the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. extend to persons not named in the FIR or named in the FIR but not charged or who have been discharged?"

11. The aforesaid questions have been answered in para 117 of judgment as under :-

Question Nos. (i) and (iii)

A. In Dharam Pal and Ors. v. State of Haryana and Anr. 2004 (13) SCC 9, the Constitution Bench has already held that after committal, cognizance of an offence can be taken against a person not named as an accused but against whom materials are available from the papers filed by the police after completion of investigation. Such cognizance can be taken under Section 193 Cr.P.C. and the Sessions Judge need not wait till 'evidence' under Section 319 Cr.P.C. becomes available for summoning an additional accused.

Section 319 Cr.P.C., significantly, uses two expressions that have to be taken note of i.e. (1) Inquiry (2) Trial. As a trial commences after framing of charge, an inquiry can only be understood to be a pre-trial inquiry. Inquiries under Sections 200, 201, 202 Cr.P.C.; and under Section 398 Cr.P.C. are species of the inquiry contemplated by Section 319 Cr.P.C. Materials coming before the Court in course of such enquiries can be used for corroboration of the evidence recorded in the court after the trial commences, for the exercise of power under Section 319 Cr.P.C., and also to add an accused whose name has been shown in Column 2 of the charge-sheet.

Question No. (ii)

A. Considering the fact that under Section 319 Cr.P.C. a person against whom material is disclosed is only summoned to face the trial and in such an event under Section 319(4) Cr.P.C. the proceeding against such person is to commence from the stage of taking of cognizance, the Court need not wait for the evidence against the accused proposed to be summoned to be tested by cross-examination.

Question No. (iv)

A. Though under Section 319(4)(b) Cr.P.C. the accused subsequently impleaded is to be treated as if he had been an accused when the Court initially took cognizance of the offence, the degree of satisfaction that will be required for summoning a person under Section 319 Cr.P.C. would be the same as for framing a charge. The difference in the degree of satisfaction for summoning the original accused and a subsequent accused is on account of the fact that the trial may have already commenced against the original accused and it is in the course of such trial that materials are disclosed against the newly summoned accused. Fresh summoning of an accused will result in delay of the trial therefore the degree of satisfaction for summoning the accused (original and subsequent) has to be different.

Question No. (v)

A. A person not named in the FIR or a person though named in the FIR but has not been charge-sheeted or a person who has been discharged can be summoned under Section 319 Cr.P.C. provided from the evidence it appears that such person can be tried along with the accused already facing trial. However, insofar as an accused who has been discharged is concerned the requirement of Sections 300 and 398 Cr.P.C. has to be complied with before he can be summoned afresh.

12. The aforesaid judgment in fact lay down very clearly that power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. can be exercised by Court against a person not named in First Information Report or no charge-sheet is filed by Police against him and the accused can be summoned only on the basis of examination-in-chief of witness and need not wait for cross-examination etc. With regard to degree of satisfaction of Court for summoning the accused under Section 319 Cr.P.C, Court has said that test are same as applicable for framing charge.

13. From the above discussion, it is clear that order of summoning has been passed by Court below in view of evidence placed before it in the form of statement of informant-PW-1 and PW-2 along with other material. I, therefore, do not find any legal or otherwise error in the impugned summoning order warranting interference in this criminal revision.

14. Dismissed.

15. Interim order, if any, stands vacated.

16. Certify this judgment to the lower Court immediately.

4. Aleque Padamsee & Ors Vs. UOI & Ors, (2007) 6 SC 171

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Krishna Gautam, J).)

1. As per office report, opposite parties were served with notice, but no counter affidavit got filed.

2. Heard learned counsel for revisionist as well as learned A.G.A. for State.

3. This criminal revision under Section 397/401 Cr.P.C. has been filed by Madan Singh with a prayer for setting aside impugned order dated 11.03.2019, passed by learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 8, Farrukhabad, in Complaint Case No. 1756 of 2019 (Madan Singh Versus Jagdish and others), under Section 203 Cr.P.C. and thereby direction to court concerned for reconsidering at the point of summoning.

4. Learned counsel for revisionist argued that in application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. was moved for registration and investigation of case. It was treated as complaint, wherein statements under Section 200 and 202 Cr.P.C. were got recorded. Thereafter, complaint was dismissed under Section 203 Cr.P.C., whereas statements were fully intact and cognizable offence was made out. The complainant Madan Singh came in interaction with Jagdish, father-in-law of his nephew Rohit, who was there to attend his first marriage anniversary ceremony, on 22.11.2016, along with his relative Raja Ram and his daughter-in-law Kiran. They pursued for marriage of Mohit with Sheetal. Under their persuasion, complainant along with his family members visited home of accused persons at village Kankapur on 13.12.2016, but they were pressurized for seeing Km. Sheetal in that very night and after it proposal was refused. But a threat of coercion was exercised, whereupon a golden chain worth Rs.15,000/- with Sarees and other articles along with sweets worth Rs.5,000/- was given. Thereafter complainant could return back at 12 O' Clock in the night. On 05.04.2017, complainant along with Jagdish went to house of accused persons no. 5 to 6, at about 2 P.M. and asked for return of above articles, but he was badly abused. He tried to get the case lodged at police station and after its denial, this complaint was filed. Complainant was examined under Section 200 Cr.P.C. wherein there was complete reiteration of contention of complaint. It was corroborated by testimony recorded under Section 202 Cr.P.C., but even after sufficient evidence, constituting offence punishable, the impugned order of dismissal of complaint was passed. This was failure to appreciate facts and law placed on record, thereby mis-exercise of jurisdiction vested in the court of Magistrate as well as apparent error on the face of record. Hence, this revision.

5. Learned A.G.A. has vehemently opposed the application with this contention that it was highly improbable. Neither boy, for whom bride was selected, was examined nor there is any mark of specification regarding articles given, whereas a case has already been registered against complainant, wherein demand of dowry and refusal of marriage was complained. The order was well within jurisdiction of Magistrate. Hence, this revision be dismissed.

6. From the very perusal of impugned order, it is apparent that Magistrate has rejected the claim regarding registration of case crime number in an application moved under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. Division Bench of this Court in Ram Babu Gupta vs. State of U.P. and Ors.; 2001 (43) A.C.C. 50, and Sukhwasi Versus State of Uttar Pradesh; 2007 (59) A.C.C. 739 and apex court in Suresh Chandra Jain Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh and another; 2001 (42) A.C.C. 459 and Aleque Padamsee and others Vs. Union of India and others; (2007) 6 Supreme Court Cases 171, has propounded that Magistrate is not bound to direct for registration and investigation of each and every case, wherein application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. has been moved. Rather, it may take cognizance by itself and proceed as a complaint case. Hence, this registration of complaint case and thereby proceeding by Magistrate itself over an application moved under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. was well within jurisdiction of Magistrate.

7. Passing order for summoning under Section 204 Cr.P.C. or dismissing complaint under Section 203 Cr.P.C., on the basis of evidence collected in the inquiry, made by Magistrate, by way of application of judicial mind, is jurisdiction vested in Magistrate. He may either summon under Section 204 Cr.P.C., in cases where prima facie offence are made out, or may dismiss complaint under Section 203 Cr.P.C., wherein situation is otherwise. Hence, Magistrate is empowered either for dismissal of the complaint or summoning of accused persons. Hence, impugned order of dismissal of complaint is well within jurisdiction of the Magistrate.

8. Regarding appreciation of fact, this Court, under exercise of revision jurisdiction is not to analyze the fact. But apparently what is clear, that this complainant made entire sequence of fact, narrated by him, but neither marriage was ever solemnized nor he was father of the groom nor the groom had been examined nor the specific mark of identification is there on the articles, which was ought to be given nor single iota was said either in the complaint or in the statement recorded under Section 200 Cr.P.C. regarding criminal case, which was lodged against complainant and his family members, for this proposed marriage. It itself shows that it was an attempt to counter the previously instituted case against complainant.

9. A bride is not a physical commodity. It could never be said that one is having option to see her and then select or reject her for marriage. Rather, bride itself is with fundamental rights, guaranteed under Part III of the Constitution of India, and she herself is having all rights of life and liberty. It can never be permitted to male chauvinism to see photograph and then select or reject for marriage, as has been said by complainant. What may be a criteria for selecting a girl for marriage or for rejecting a girl for marriage? that too not by a person with whom marriage is going to be performed, rather his father or uncle, is nothing more than a case of male chauvinism. Hence, on the evidence collected by Magistrate, this impugned order was well within jurisdiction of Magistrate having no illegality or irregularity.

10. Accordingly, the revision merits its dismissal. The revision is dismissed as such.

(Para 6 to 8)

Criminal Revision dismissed.(E-6)

The revision is dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Krishna Gautam, J).)

1. This criminal revision under Section 397/401 of Cr.P.C. has been filed by Aftab Alam against State of U.P. and Another, with a prayer for setting aside impugned order of an appellate Court Additional District Judge F.T.C., Court No. 20, Allahabad, passed in Criminal Appeal No. 184/2017, Aftab Alam vs. State of U.P. and another, dated 13.7.2018, whereby appeal was dismissed and order of Magistrate dated 3.6.2014, passed over an application moved under Section 23 of Protection of Woman from Domestic Violence Act, 2005, was confirmed.

2. learned counsel for the applicant argued that appellate failed to appreciate facts and law placed before it. Order dated 3.6.2014 was against fact on record. Applicant had deserted her husband and husband who was a workman at petrol pump was not in a position to maintain as above but Magistrate failed to take notice of this fact and this was challenged before Appellate Court. Wherein, Appellate court has not decided matter in issue. Rather, it dismissed appeal on the basis of finding given by this Court in a proceeding under Section 482 of Cr.P.C. Hence, it was apparently erroneous on the face of record and jurisdiction exercised by Appellate Court was not proper in its exercise. Hence, this criminal revision with above prayer.

3. Learned counsel for the respondent vehemently opposed that this Court in a proceeding under Section 482 of Cr.P.C., wherein, order dated 3.6.2014, was challenged, had decided by way of dismissing above proceeding and confirming impugned order. Hence, once this order was confirmed, then, Appellate Court was well within jurisdiction to pass impugned order. Hence, this revision be dismissed.

4. Learned has AGA also opposed the above prayer.

5. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and gone through the material placed on record, it is apparent that in a proceeding under Section 23 of Protection of Woman from Domestic Violence Act, 2005, in a complaint Case No. 540 of 2014, pending before Court of Chief Judicial Magistrate-Ist, Allahabad, (Smt. Asma Bano Vs. Aftab Alam), it was requested that some interim maintenance be awarded and learned Magistrate, vide order dated 3.6.2014, directed opposite party husband of applicant for providing Rs. 3,000/-, per month as maintenance to Smt. Asma Bano. This order was challenged in a proceeding under Section 482 of Cr.P.C. and the same was dismissed by High Court, wherein, above order was got confirmed. Though, this order was challenged in a proceeding before Hon'ble Court, side by side, it was challenged in an appeal before Appellate Court of Session Judge, Allahabad, wherein, Appellate Court dismissed appeal by impugned order, mentioning the order of this Court, passed in a proceeding under Section 482 of Cr.P.C.

6. From the very perusal of revision, it is apparent that it is an admitted fact that Smt. Asma Bano, is married wife of revisionist. She is having separate living. It was said to be a desertion by husband, whereas, husband has said desertion by wife. But, it is a question of trial court and it is admitted fact that both of them are living in desertion. The maintenance awarded is Rs. 3,000/-, per month, a very meagre amount at the rupees of 100 per day. Nobody can survive in 100 rupees per day and even husband is working at petrol pump, is always expected to maintain his wife. A direction for paying Rs. 3,000/-, per month, is well withing jurisdiction of Magistrate. This order was challenged in a proceeding under section 482 of Cr.P.C., which too, was dismissed and order was confirmed. Upon the request of learned counsel for the revisionist, matter was referred for mediation wherein, assurance was made for making deposit of interim maintenance by above order of Magistrate's Court. This mediation appears to have been failed and this further appeal and criminal revision against same maintenance order, has been filed. It shows litigating attitude of husband, who had filed all these proceeding, but not ready to make payment to his wife. High Court, in its general superintendence of power under Article 227 of Constitution of India, is also to look all such type of affairs, which are to be cured for enabling Constitution and its system to get the goal of welfare state enshrined in Chapter IV of the Constitution of India.

7. Under all above facts and circumstances, learned trial Court as well as learned Appellate Court was well within jurisdiction. There is no illegality or irregularity apparent on record or failure of jurisdiction by any above court. Though, this petition deserves to be dismissed with special cost but the cost is not being imposed. But a direction is being made for making payment of maintenance as ordered by lower Courts.

8. The Criminal Revision is dismissed, accordingly.

9. With the aforesaid directions, this application is finally disposed of.

1. This criminal revision has been preferred against the impugned judgment and order dated 14.07.2014 passed by Principle Judge, Family Court, Kaushambi in Case No. 150 of 2014 (Smt. Ishrat Bano Vs. Jubair Ahmad) under section 125 Cr.P.C. by which opposite party no. 2 Ishrat Bano (divorced wife) has been awarded Rs. 3000/- per month from the date of judgment as maintenance.

2. Before the learned court below, the wife gave an application under section 125 Cr.P.C. stating that she was married with revisionist according to Muslim Personnel Law on 22.10.1998. After marriage she went to her husband's house and performed her matrimonial obligation. A daughter Km. Saniya was born from their wedlock. In the year 1999 her husband and his family members demanded Motorcycle, Refrigerator and Rs. 25000/- in dowry and on account of non-fulfillment of dowry, she along with her daughter was expelled from matrimonial house after being beaten and since then, she and her daughter are living with her parents. The husband divorced her on 27.09.2001 and till the presentation of this application she has not remarried. Earlier one application was given by her, bearing case no. 34 of 2002, under section 125 Cr.P.C. which was decided and Rs 800/- per month applicant (wife) and Rs. 500/- per month to her daughter was awarded from date of application till the date of divorce. After divorce she did not remarry. The Supreme Court has now laid down a law that a divorced Muslim lady is entitled for maintenance under section 125 Cr.P.C. When she came to know this law she immediately filed this petition. She is a domestic women and totally dependent on her father. In April 2010 her father died and since then she is in a serious financial trouble and is not able to maintain herself. The husband is a teacher in a Government school and is earning Rs. 25,000/- in a month and therefore, she claim Rs. 10,000/- as maintenance.

3. The opposite party filed a written statement and admitted the marriage and birth of daughter. He has also stated that on 27.09.2001 after he divorced her wife, by the order of the court he gave maintenance of 13 months and expenses till the period of iddat. The amount of dower Rs. 11,786/- was paid by him on the very first night of their marriage. Thereafter, nothing remained payable by him to her nor she is entitled to any further maintenance. She is an independent mind women and she always insisted him to live with her parents which he could not do because of his responsibility towards his family and brothers. The wife is arrogant enough and told him to either live with her parents or give her divorce. She is not there to cook food for his family members and she was married with him because of his job. She regularly mentally harassed him and forced by this situation, he divorced her. He also filed a suit for restitution of conjugal rights numbered as 305 /2005 (Jubair Ahmad Vs. Ishrat Bano) in Allahabad and due to which she got angry and lodged false Criminal Case in Case Crime No. 134 of 2000, under section 498A, 323 IPC and section ¾ Dowry Prohibition Act. But the same was found to be false during investigation and final report was submitted. He thereafter, solemnized second marriage in 2003 and with the second wife, he has two children. He is bearing the expenses of his daughter from the opposite party. She is also educated enough to earn and she gives tuition and earn Rs. 5000/- to Rs. 7000/- and she also works as beautician and earns Rs. 3 to 4 thousand in a month and as such she is earning Rs. 10 to 11 thousand in a month. Just to further harass him this application has been filed which is not maintainable and is liable to be dismissed.

4. From the side of wife, the judgment dated 09.07.2002 in Case No. 34/2002 (Ishrat Bano vs. Jubair Ahmad), under section 125 Cr.P.C. passed by Civil Judge (JD), Kaushambi has been filed. She has also examined herself as PW-1. The husband has filed question answer dated 02.08.2000 and resignation letter of Ishrat Bano from her school. He has examined himself as DW-1 and DW-2 Akbar Ali has also been examined in support.

5. On the basis of the pleadings of the parties the learned court below found following points for consideration in this case:

(1) Whether the application under section 125 Cr.P.C. of the applicant Ishrat Bano, a divorcee, is maintainable?

(2) Whether the applicant is living separately with the respondent for reasonable cause and the opposite party has neglected the applicant in providing maintenance?

(3) Whether the applicant is not able to maintain herself?

(4) Whether the opposite party is capable of maintaining the applicant?

6. After considering the evidence of the parties, the learned court below passed the impugned judgment.

7. Aggrieved by the impugned judgment this revision has been filed challenging the impugned judgment on the ground that earlier a case under section 125 Cr.P.C. for maintenance was filed by the wife bearing Case No. 34 of 2002 which was decided on 09.07.2002 and by that order, the maintenance claim of the wife was rejected on the ground that being Muslim she is not entitled for maintenance after divorce beyond period of Iddat and by this impugned Judgment, the said judgment has been reviewed, which is contrary to law. Successive petition for maintenance is not maintainable. When an application has been filed and heard and decided on merit, a second application for the same relief is not permissible under law. The judgment is totally perverse and it is not correct that the revisionist did not pay maintenance after the date of divorce, as applicant was directed to make payment of maintenance since the date of presentation of application till the date of divorce at the rate of Rs. 800/- per month and that order was fully complied with. Moreover, his old mother, his two younger unemployed brothers and two daughters of second wife and second wife of the revisionist are dependent upon him and being only earning person of family he cannot afford to pay the maintenance to the divorced wife, more so, she is not entitled under law for such maintenance. After the disposal of the first maintenance application on 09.07.2002, in year 2012 almost after the lapse of 10 years this present application was filed by the wife. In view of the provisions of the Muslim Women (Protection of Rights on Divorce) Act 1986, the revisionist is not liable to maintain the wife after the divorce beyond the period of Iddat, but the learned court below did not consider this statutory provision and passed the impugned judgment which is liable to be set aside.

8. The point for consideration no. 2 appears to have been unnecessarily framed as admittedly the applicant is a divorced wife and therefore, she is living separately from the ex-husband after divorce with her parents. The husband has himself admitted that a demand for maintenance was made in the earlier application and the same was paid and beyond the period of Iddat, he has not provided any maintenance to the applicant. Therefore, on point number 2, the facts being admitted, there is no need for giving a finding.

9. So far as point no. 4 is concerned, the husband is a teacher in a Government School and it has been admitted by the husband that his basic pay is Rs. 14,000/-, therefore, his ablity to maintain and provide maintenance is very much established. There is no cogent evidence with regards to any income of the applicant. The fact that she is giving tuition or she is running a beauty parlor is not established by any cogent evidence. Therefore, the finding on issue number 2, 3 and 4 did not require reconsideration.

10. The legal issue as argued by the counsel to the revisionist is when an earlier application for maintenance has been decided between the parties after full contest and the maintenance awarded in that case has been fully paid by the husband, a second application in view of a subsequent Supreme Court judgment is not maintainable and no maintenance can be awarded on the basis of the second application. The further argument is that the divorced Muslim wife is not entitled to maintenance under the law applicable to parties and the subsequent application is barred by the principle of res-judicata. In support of this submission, the learned counsel to the revisionist has taken reference of the judgment in Pradeep Kumar Maskara vs State of WB, (2015) 2 SCC 653 and Kalinga Mining Corpn vs Union of India, (2013) 5 SCC 252.

Scope of the Right of Muslim Divorced Wife to Claim Maintenance

11. In Mohd. Ahmed Khan v. Shah Bano Begum , AIR 1985 SC 945, the issue before the court was that where a Muslim woman had been divorced by her husband and paid her mahr, would it indemnify the husband from his obligation to pay maintenance under the provisions of Section 125 Cr.P.C.. A Five-judge Bench of the Supreme Court held that the Code of Criminal Procedure controls the proceedings in such matters and overrides the personal law of the parties and in case of conflict between the terms of the Code and the rights and obligations of the individuals under personal law, the Code would prevail.

12. In this case the husband appealed against the judgment of the High Court directing him to pay to his divorced wife Rs. 179/- per month as maintainence under section 125 of CrPC, enhancing the sum of Rs. 25 per month originally granted by the Magistrate. The parties had been married for 43 years before the ill and elderly wife had been thrown out of her husband's residence. For about two years the husband paid maintenance to his wife at the rate of Rs. 200/- per month. When these payments ceased she petitioned under Section 125 Cr.PC. The husband immediately dissolved the marriage by pronouncing triple talaq. He paid Rs.3000/- as deferred mahr and a further sum to cover arrears of maintenance and maintenance for the iddat period and he sought thereafter to have the petition dismissed on the ground that she had received the amount due to her on divorce under the Muslim law applicable to the parties. The important feature of the case was that the wife had managed the matrimonial home for more than 40 years and had borne and reared five children and was incapable of taking up any career or independently supporting herself at that late stage of her life - remarriage was an impossibility in that case. The husband, a successful Advocate, with an approximate income of Rs. 5,000/- per month provided Rs. 200/- per month to the divorced wife, who had shared his life for half a century and mothered his five children and was in desperate need of money to survive.

13. The Supreme Court, reiterating the view expressed earlier in Bai Tahira v. Ali Hussain Fidaalli Chothia, (1979) 2 SCC 316 and Fuzlunbi v. K. Khader Vali (1980) 4 SCC 125, held:

"The true position is that, if the divorced wife is able to maintain herself, the husband's liability to provide maintenance for her ceases with the expiration of the period of iddat but if she is unable to maintain herself after the period of iddat, she is entitled to take recourse to Section 125 of the Code. The outcome of this discussion is that there is no conflict between the provisions of Section 125 and those of the Muslim Personal Law on the question of the Muslim husband's obligation to provide maintenance for a divorced wife, who is unable to maintain herself."

14. After the decision in Shah Bano, the Parliament enacted the Muslim Women (Protection of Rights on Divorce) Act,1986 (hereinafter referred as Act) to protect the rights of Muslim women who have been divorced by, or have obtained divorce from, their husbands and to provide for matters connected therewith or identical thereto. A "divorced woman" is defined under Section 2(a) of the Act to mean a divorced woman who was married according to Muslim Law, and has been divorced by, or has obtained divorce from her husband in accordance with Muslim Law; " Iddat period" is defined under Section 2(b) of the Act to mean, in the case of a divorced woman,- (i) three menstrual courses after the date of divorce, if she is subject to menstruation; (ii) three lunar months after her divorce, if she is not subject to menstruation; and (iii) if she is enceinte at the time of her divorce, the period between the divorce and the delivery of her child or the termination of her pregnancy whichever is earlier.

15. Section 3 of the Act overrides all other laws and provides that a divorced woman shall be entitled to - (a) a reasonable and fair provision and maintenance to be made and paid to her within the period of iddat by her former husband; (b) where she maintains the children born to her before or after her divorce, a reasonable provision and maintenance to be made and paid by her former husband for a period of two years from the respective dates of birth of such children; (c) an amount equal to the sum of mahr or dower agreed to be paid to her at the time of her marriage or at any time thereafter according to Muslim Law; and (d) all the properties given to her before or at the time of marriage or after the marriage by her relatives, friends, husband and any relatives of the husband or his friends.

16. The constitutional validity of the Muslim Women (Protection of Rights on Divorce) Act, 1986 was upheld in Danial Latifi vs Union of India, AIR 2001 SC 3958. The Supreme Court laid emphasis that in interpreting the provisions where matrimonial relationship is involved, the social conditions prevalent in our society should be taken into consideration. In society, apparently there exists a great disparity in the matter of economic resourcefulness between a man and a woman. The Court observed:

"Our society is male dominated both economically and socially and women are assigned, invariably, a dependent role, irrespective of the class of society to which she belongs. A woman on her marriage very often, though highly educated, gives up her all other avocations and entirely devotes herself to the welfare of the family, in particular she shares with her husband, her emotions, sentiments, mind and body, and her investment in the marriage is her entire life - a sacramental sacrifice of her individual self and is far too enormous to be measured in terms of money. When a relationship of this nature breaks up, in what manner we could compensate her so far as emotional fracture or loss of investment is concerned, there can be no answer. It is a small solace to say that such a woman should be compensated in terms of money towards her livelihood and such a relief which partakes basic human rights to secure gender and social justice is universally recognised by persons belonging to all religions and it is difficult to perceive that Muslim law intends to provide a different kind of responsibility by passing on the same to those unconnected with the matrimonial life such as the heirs who were likely to inherit the property from her or the wakf boards. Such an approach appears to us to be a kind of distortion of the social facts. Solutions to such societal problems of universal magnitude pertaining to horizons of basic human rights, culture, dignity and decency of life and dictates of necessity in the pursuit of social justice should be invariably left to be decided on considerations other than religion or religious faith or beliefs or national, sectarian, racial or communal constraints. Bearing this aspect in mind, we have to interpret the provisions of the Act in question."

17. Referring to various religious texts of Islam and opinions of eminent authors of Muslim Personal Law on the concept of mata or provision, the Supreme Court pointed out that a careful reading of the provisions of the Act would indicate that a divorced woman is entitled to a reasonable and fair provision for maintenance. Parliament seems to intend that the divorced woman gets sufficient means of livelihood, after the divorce and, therefore, the word 'provision' indicates that something is provided in advance for meeting some needs. In other words, at the time of divorce the Muslim husband is required to contemplate the future needs and make preparatory arrangements in advance for meeting those needs. Reasonable and fair provision may include provision for her residence, her food, her clothes, and other articles. The Court said that the wordings of Section 3 of the Act appear to indicate that the husband has two separate and distinct obligations : (1) to make a 'reasonable and fair provision' for his divorced wife; and (2) to provide 'maintenance' for her. The emphasis of this section is not on the nature or duration of any such 'provision' or 'maintenance', but on the time by which an arrangement for payment of provision and maintenance should be concluded, namely, 'within the iddat period'. If the provisions are so read, the Act would exclude from liability for post-iddat period maintenance to a man who has already discharged his obligations of both 'reasonable and fair provision' and 'maintenance' by paying these amounts in a lump sum to his wife, in addition to having paid his wife's mahr and restored her dowry as per Section 3(1)(c) and 3(1)(d) of the Act. The words 'a reasonable and fair provision and maintenance to be made and paid' as provided under Section 3(1)(a) of the Act cover different things. The use of two different verbs - "to be made and paid to her within the iddat period", clearly indicates that a fair and reasonable provision is to be made while maintenance is to be paid. It is why no such expression has been used in section 4 of the Act, which empowers the magistrate to issue an order for payment of maintenance to the divorced woman against various of her relatives.

18. Therefore, the Supreme Court held:

"While upholding the validity of the Act, we may sum up our conclusions: Court holds that - 1) A Muslim husband is liable to make a reasonable and fair provision for the future of the divorced wife which obviously includes her maintenance as well. Such a reasonable and fair provision extending beyond the iddat period must be made by the husband within the iddat period in terms of Section 3(1)(a) of the Act. 2) Liability of Muslim husband to his divorced wife arising under Section 3(1)(a) of the Act to pay maintenance is not confined to iddat period."

19. In Shabana Bano v. Imran Khan (2010) 1 SCC 666, in a petition for maintenance under section 125, one of the objections raised by the husband was that he has already divorced the wife prior to filing of petition in accordance with Muslim Law and under the provisions of Muslim Women (Protection of Rights on Divorce) Act, 1986 she is not entitled to any maintenance after the divorce and after the expiry of the iddat period. The learned Family Court partly allowed the wife's application directing the husband to pay Rs.2000/- per month as maintenance allowance from the date of institution of petition to the date of divorce, and thereafter to the period of iddat but amount of maintenance thereafter was denied. The order was upheld by the High Court. The question that arose for consideration before the Supreme Court was whether a Muslim divorced wife would be entitled for maintenance from her divorced husband under Section 125 of the Cr.P.C. and, if yes, then through which forum?

20. The Supreme Court mentioned that the purpose the Family Court Act was essentially to set up family courts for the early settlement of family disputes, emphasizing on conciliation and achieving socially desirable results without adherence to rigid rules of procedure and evidence. The Act seeks to exclusively provide within jurisdiction of the family courts the matters relating to maintenance, including proceedings under Chapter IX of the Cr.P.C. Section 7 of the Family Act deals with Jurisdiction and Section 20 of the Family Court Act makes it crystal clear that the provisions of this Act shall have overriding effect on all other enactments in force dealing with this issue. Therefore, a Family Court established under the Family Act shall exclusively have jurisdiction to adjudicate upon the applications filed under Section 125 of Cr.P.C. Thereafter, the Court referred to the various provisions of the Muslim Women (Protection of Rights on Divorce) Act and quoted with approval the following observation made in Danial Latifi (supra):

"A comparison of these provisions with Section 125, CrPC will make it clear that requirements provided in Section 125 and the purpose, object and scope thereof being to prevent vagrancy by compelling those who can do so to support those who are unable to support themselves and who have a normal and legitimate claim to support are satisfied. If that is so, the argument of the petitioners that a different scheme being provided under the Act which is equally or more beneficial on the interpretation placed by us from the one provided under the Code of Criminal Procedure deprive them of their right, loses its significance. The object and scope of Section 125, CrPC is to prevent vagrancy by compelling those who are under an obligation to support those who are unable to support themselves and that object being fulfilled,..... ."

21. The Supreme Court referred Iqbal Bano v. State of UP (2007) 6 SCC 785 which followed Vijay Kumar Prasad v. State of Bihar, (2004) 5 SCC 196 to hold that proceedings under Section 125, Cr.P.C. are civil in nature and laid down that a petition under Section 125 of the Cr.P.C. filed by a divorced woman would be maintainable before the Family Court as long as appellant does not remarry and the amount of maintenance to be awarded under Section 125 of the Cr.P.C. cannot be restricted for the iddat period only. It was held:

"Cumulative reading of the relevant portions of judgments of this Court in Danial Latifi, (2001 AIR SCW 3932) (supra) and Iqbal Bano, (2007 AIR SCW 3880) (supra) would make it crystal clear that even a divorced Muslim woman would be entitled to claim maintenance from her divorced husband, as long as she does not remarry. This being a beneficial piece of legislation, the benefit thereof must accrue to the divorced Muslim women.

In the light of the aforesaid discussion, the impugned orders are hereby set aside and quashed. It is held that even if a Muslim woman has been divorced, she would be entitled to claim maintenance from her husband under Section 125 of the Cr.P.C. after the expiry of period of iddat also, as long as she does not remarry."

22. In Shamim Bano v. Asraf Khan (2014) 12 SCC 636, again the issue was whether the appellant's application for grant of maintenance under Section 125 of the Code is to be restricted to the date of divorce and because of filing of an application under Section 3 of the Act after the divorce for grant of mahr and return of gifts would disentitle the wife to sustain the application under Section 125 of the Code.

23. Referring to Shabana Bano (supra) in which, following Danial Latifi (supra), it has been ruled that 'The appellant's petition under Section 125, CrPC would be maintainable before the Family Court as long as the appellant does not remarry. The amount of maintenance to be awarded under Section 125, CrPC cannot be restricted for the iddat period only,' the Supreme Court held:

"The aforesaid principle clearly lays down that even an application has been filed under the provisions of the Act, the Magistrate under the Act has the power to grant maintenance in favour of a divorced Muslim woman and the parameters and the considerations are the same as stipulated in Section 125 of the Code."

24. Regarding the plea that the wife had already taken recourse to Section 3 of the Act after divorce took place and obtained relief, the application for grant of maintenance under Section 125 of the Code would only be maintainable till she was divorced, the Court pointed out that during the pendency of her application under Section 125 of the Code the divorce took place and on the application of wife under Section 3 of the Act, the learned Magistrate directed for return of the articles, payment of quantum of mahr and also thought it appropriate to grant maintenance for the iddat period. Thus no maintenance had been granted to the wife beyond the iddat period by the learned Magistrate as the petition was different. That apart, the authoritative interpretation in Danial Latifi (supra) was not available. Saying that it would be travesty of justice if the wife is made remediless and therefore, if an application under Section 3 of the Act for grant of maintenance is filed, the parameters of Section 125 of the Code would have been made applicable. The Court observed:

"Another aspect which has to be kept uppermost in mind is that when the marriage breaks up, a woman suffers from emotional fractures, fragmentation of sentiments, loss of economic and social security and, in certain cases, inadequate requisites for survival. A marriage is fundamentally a unique bond between two parties. When it perishes like a mushroom, the dignity of the female fame gets corroded. It is the law's duty to recompense, and the primary obligation is that of the husband."

25. In Shamima Farooqui v. Shahid Khan AIR 2015 SC 2025, the application of wife for grant of maintenance was resisted by the husband alleging that he had already given divorce to her and has also paid the Mehar to her. The Supreme Court referred with approval the view expressed in Shamim Bano v. Asraf Khan (supra), Shabana Bano v. Imran Khan (supra), Danial Latifi (supra) and Khatoon Nisa v. State of UP (2002) 6 SCALE 165 and laid down that there can be no shadow of doubt that the divorced Muslim woman is entitled to claim maintenance under Section 125, CrPC.

27. Thus from the above discussion, it is clear that after the passing of the Act, from the judgment in Danial Latifi (supra) to Shamima Farooqui (supra), it is clear that the Supreme Court has interpreted the provisions of the Act and section 125 of the Code in such a way so as to give recognition to the right of divorced Muslim wife to claim maintenance under section 125 even for the period beyond iddat period and for the whole life unless she is disqualified for the reasons such as entering into marriage with someone else. Therefore, I find no force in the argument that the divorced Muslim wife is not entitled to maintenance beyond iddat period.

Inability to Pay and Quantum of Maintenance

28. In every petition, generally, a plea is advanced by the husband that he does not have the means to pay, for he does not have a job or his business is not doing well. In this case it has been submitted on behalf of the revisionist that after more than 10 years from the date of decision of the first case, this application has been filed. The revisionist has already married after divorce from the respondent wife and he has children by her second wife and moreover he has to support his ailing parents and other members of the family. Therefore, for him it will not be possible to spare money for his divorced wife against her maintenance. Regarding such pleas, the judicial response has been always very clear that it is the personal liability of the husband to pay maintenance to his wife which includes the divorced wife. The husband is not discharged from his this liability on such grounds. Thus, in Chander Prakash Bodhraj v. Shila Rani Chander Prakash AIR 1968 Delhi 174, it was laid down:

"An able-bodied young man has to be presumed to be capable of earning sufficient money so as to be able reasonably to maintain his wife and child and he cannot be heard to say that he is not in a position to earn enough to be able to maintain them according to the family standard. It is for such able-bodies person to show to the Court cogent grounds for holding that he is unable to reasons beyond his control, to earn enough to discharge his legal obligation of maintaining his wife and child. When the husband does not disclose to the Court the exact amount of his income, the presumption will be easily permissible against him."

29. Further in Jabsir Kaur Sehgal v. District Judge Dehradun (1997) 7 SCC 7, the Supreme Court laid down the following yardstick for determining the liability as well as the amount of maintenance:

"The court has to consider the status of the parties, their respective needs, the capacity of the husband to pay having regard to his reasonable expenses for his own maintenance and of those he is obliged under the law and statutory but involuntary payments or deductions. The amount of maintenance fixed for the wife should be such as she can live in reasonable comfort considering her status and the mode of life she was used to when she lived with her husband and also that she does not feel handicapped in the prosecution of her case. At the same time, the amount so fixed cannot be excessive or extortionate."

30. In Shamima Farooqui (supra), the Supreme Court referred to the aforesaid observation on the point and held the reduction of 50% in the amount of maintenance made by the High Court is based on no reasoning and is illegal and not sustainable under law. Upholding and restoring the order passed by the learned Family Court, it was observed by the Supreme Court:

"Be it clarified that sustenance does not mean and can never allow to mean a mere survival. A woman, who is constrained to leave the marital home, should not be allowed to feel that she has fallen from grace and move hither and thither arranging for sustenance. As per law, she is entitled to lead a life in the similar manner as she would have lived in the house of her husband. And that is where the status and strata of the husband comes into play and that is where the legal obligation of the husband becomes a prominent one. As long as the wife is held entitled to grant of maintenance within the parameters of Section 125, CrPC, it has to be adequate so that she can live with dignity as she would have lived in her matrimonial home. She cannot be compelled to become a destitute or a beggar."

31. Saying such pleas to be 'only bald excuses' and have 'no acceptability in law', the Court said:

"If the husband is healthy, able bodied and is in a position to support himself, he is under the legal obligation to support his wife, for wife's right to receive maintenance under Section 125, CrPC, unless disqualified, is an absolute right."

32. In the present case, the admitted fact on behalf of the husband is that he is a teacher in a government school and his monthly basic pay is 14000/- and naturally, if DA is added, the monthly income would reach to 25 to 30 thousands. It is pertinent to mention that the wife, alleging the income of the husband to be 25 thousands monthly, has claimed 10 thousands monthly maintenance. The learned Family Court has awarded 3000/- monthly as maintenance to wife which is not at all in the higher side. It is held that the amount of maintenance must be according to status of parties and to satisfy the minimum and basic needs of the wife. Being a teacher, the plea of the husband regarding his financial constraint cannot be given any weight.

Applicability of the Principles of Res-judicata and Maintainability of Second Application

33. The other limb of argument is regarding maintainability of second application and applicability of principle of res-judicata. It is admitted case that a case was filed by the wife under section 125 Cr.P.C. claiming maintenance for herself and her daughter as case no. 34 of 2002 which has been decided by the judgment dated 09.07.2002 by Civil Judge (Junior Division), Kaushambi and copy of the judgment has been filed by the wife. The husband divorced the respondent wife on 27.09.2001 and thereafter the said case was decided keeping in view the provisions of the Act, and the husband was directed to give maintenance till the date of divorce. The application for the maintenance of the daughter, however, was allowed, granting a maintenance of Rs. 500/- monthly to her. Therefore, it has been argued that when the claim of maintenance has been rejected after contest by the court below, a further application demanding maintenance under section 125 Cr.P.C. is not permissible and the same is barred by the principle of resjudicata. Therefore, the question for consideration before the court is that the decision in the earlier case will preclude the husband and prevent the wife from claiming maintenance under section 125 Cr.P.C. From the perusal of the said judgment, it appears that the learned court below took the view that Muslim divorced wife in a case pending under section 125 Cr.P.C. can be awarded maintenance till the period of Iddat and not beyond it. Clearly the said judgment is based on the provisions of the Act.

34. Section 125 of the Code of Criminal Procedure has been enacted to achieve a social object and the object is to prevent vagrancy and destitution and to provide speedy remedy to deserted or divorced wife, minor children and infirm parents in terms of food, clothing and shelter and minimum needs of one's life. The Supreme Court has been always of the view that maintenance to the wife is an issue of gender justice and the obligation of the husband is on a higher pedestal. In Capt. Ramesh Chander Kaushal v. Veena Kaushal, AIR 1978 SC 1807, the Supreme Court remarked:

"The brooding presence of the Constitutional empathy for the weaker sections like women and children must inform interpretation if it has to have social relevance."

35. In Chaturbhuj vs Sita Bai (2008) 2 SCC 316, the Supreme Court expressed the view that section 125 is a measure of social justice and is specially enacted to protect women and children and it gives effect to fundamental rights and natural duties of a man to maintain his wife, children and parents when they are unable to maintain themselves. The Supreme Court observed:

"Section 125, CrPC is a measure of social justice and is specially enacted to protect women and children and as noted by this Court in Captain Ramesh Chander Kaushal v. Veena Kaushal (1978) 4 SCC 70 falls within constitutional sweep of Article 15(3) reinforced by Article 39 of the Constitution of India. It is meant to achieve a social purpose. The object is to prevent vagrancy and destitution. It provides a speedy remedy for the supply of food, clothing and shelter to the deserted wife. It gives effect to fundamental rights and natural duties of a man to maintain his wife, children and parents when they are unable to maintain themselves. The aforesaid position was highlighted in Savitaben Somabhai Bhatiya v. State of Gujarat (2005) 3 SCC 636."

36. In Shabana Bano v. Imran Khan (supra) in a petition for maintenance under section 125, one of the objections raised by the husband was that he has already divorced the wife prior to filing of petition in accordance with Muslim Law and under the provisions of Muslim Women (Protection of Rights on Divorce) Act, 1986 she is not entitled to any maintenance after the divorce and after the expiry of the iddat period. The Supreme Court however held that even after the disposal of application under section 3 of the Act, the divorced wife is entitled to claim maintenance under section 125 beyond the iddat period and till she remarries. The same view has been followed in Shamim Bano v. Asraf Khan (supra). Reiterating the same view, in Shamima Farooqui (supra), the Supreme Court made very following observation:

"When the woman leaves the matrimonial home, the situation is quite different. She is deprived of many a comfort. Sometimes the faith in life reduces. Sometimes, she feels she has lost the tenderest friend. There may be a feeling that her fearless courage has brought her the misfortune. At this stage, the only comfort that the law can impose is that the husband is bound to give monetary comfort. That is the only soothing legal balm, for she cannot be allowed to resign to destiny."

37. In Nagendrappa Natikar vs Neelamma, AIR 2013 SC 1541, the question was whether a compromise entered into by husband and wife under Order XXIII, Rule 3 of the Code of Civil Procedure (CPC) agreeing for a consolidated amount towards permanent alimony and thereby giving up any future claim for maintenance, accepted by the Court in a proceeding under Section 125 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (CrPC), would preclude the wife from claiming maintenance in a suit filed under Section 18 of the Hindu Adoptions and Maintenance Act, 1956 ? In this case, after the petition was disposed on the basis of compromise, the respondent wife filed a Misc. Application under Section 127, Cr.P.C. before the Family Court for cancellation of the earlier order and also for awarding future maintenance. While the application under Section 127, Cr.P.C. was pending, respondent wife also filed a suit before the Family Court under Section 18 of the Hindu Adoption and Maintenance Act claiming maintenance at the rate of Rs.2,000/- per month. Both the petitions were resisted by the husband stating that the parties had already reached a compromise with regard to the claim for maintenance. The question of maintainability was raised as a preliminary issue. The Family Court held by its order dated 15.9.2009 that the compromise entered into between the parties in a proceeding under Section 125, Cr.P.C. would not be bar in entertaining a suit under Section 18 of the Act. The suit was then finally heard on 30.9.2010 and the Family Court decreed the suit holding that the respondent is entitled to monthly maintenance of Rs.2,000/- per month from the defendant husband from the date of the filing of the suit. The High Court also confirmed the same.

38. Upholding the judgment, the supreme court pointed out that section 25 of the Contract Act provides that any agreement which is opposed to public policy is not enforceable in a Court of Law and such an agreement is void, since the object is unlawful. The Court held that 'Proceeding under Section 125, Cr.P.C. is summary in nature and intended to provide a speedy remedy to the wife and any order passed under Section 125, Cr.P.C. by compromise or otherwise cannot foreclose the remedy available to a wife under Section 18(2) of the 1956 Act' and observed:

"Section 125, Cr.P.C. is a piece of social legislation which provides for a summary and speedy relief by way of maintenance to a wife who is unable to maintain herself and her children. Section 125 is not intended to provide for a full and final determination of the status and personal rights of parties, which is in the nature of a civil proceeding, though are governed by the provisions of the Cr.P.C. and the order made under Section 125, Cr.P.C. is tentative and is subject to final determination of the rights in a civil court."

39. Badshah v. Sou. Urmila Badshah Godse, AIR 2014 SC 869, though related to standard of proof of legal marriage in a case under section 125 of the Code, the Supreme Court made a very emphatic observation regarding the ambit and object of the law provided by section 125 of the Code.

"Thirdly, in such cases, purposive interpretation needs to be given to the provisions of Section 125,Cr.P.C. While dealing with the application of destitute wife or helpless children or parents under this provision, the Court is dealing with the marginalized sections of the society. The purpose is to achieve "social justice" which is the Constitutional vision, enshrined in the Preamble of the Constitution of India. Preamble to the Constitution of India clearly signals that we have chosen the democratic path under rule of law to achieve the goal of securing for all its citizens, justice, liberty, equality and fraternity. It specifically highlights achieving their social justice. Therefore, it becomes the bounden duty of the Courts to advance the cause of the social justice. While giving interpretation to a particular provision, the Court is supposed to bridge the gap between the law and society."

40. The Supreme Court further observed:

"Of late, in this very direction, it is emphasized that the Courts have to adopt different approaches in "social justice adjudication", which is also known as "social context adjudication" as mere "adversarial approach" may not be very appropriate. There are number of social justice legislations giving special protection and benefits to vulnerable groups in the society. Prof. Madhava Menon describes it eloquently: "It is, therefore, respectfully submitted that "social context judging" is essentially the application of equality jurisprudence as evolved by Parliament and the Supreme Court in myriad situations presented before courts where unequal parties are pitted in adversarial proceedings and where courts are called upon to dispense equal justice. Apart from the social-economic inequalities accentuating the disabilities of the poor in an unequal fight, the adversarial process itself operates to the disadvantage of the weaker party. In such a situation, the Judge has to be not only sensitive to the inequalities of parties involved but also positively inclined to the weaker party if the imbalance were not to result in miscarriage of justice. This result is achieved by what we call social context judging or social justice adjudication."

41. It further observed:

"The law regulates relationships between people. It prescribes patterns of behavior. It reflects the values of society. The role of the Court is to understand the purpose of law in society and to help the law achieve its purpose. But the law of a society is a living organism. It is based on a given factual and social reality that is constantly changing. Sometimes change in law precedes societal change and is even intended to stimulate it. In most cases, however, a change in law is the result of a change in social reality. Indeed, when social reality changes, the law must change too. Just as change in social reality is the law of life, responsiveness to change in social reality is the life of the law. It can be said that the history of law is the history of adapting the law to society's changing needs. In both Constitutional and statutory interpretation, the Court is supposed to exercise direction in determining the proper relationship between the subjective and objective purpose of the law."

42. Therefore, the Court held:

"Provision of maintenance would definitely fall in this category which aims at empowering the destitute and achieving social justice or equality and dignity of the individual. While dealing with cases under this provision, drift in the approach from "adversarial" litigation to social context adjudication is the need of the hour."

43. In the case in hand, admittedly the first case was filed by the wife on 18.8.2000 and the husband gave divorce during the proceeding on 27.9.2001. Therefore, the learned court below disposed the application of the wife treating the same to be under the provision of section 3 of the Muslim Women (Protection of Rights on Divorce) Act, 1986. As such, the claim of the wife under section 125 was not decided nor any maintenance beyond the period of iddat was granted nor fair and reasonable provision was made towards the maintenance of wife. It is to be noted that that in both Shamim Bano v. Asraf Khan (supra) and Shabana Bano v. Imran Khan (supra), the application under section 3 of the Act was disposed and it was held that an application of the wife under section 125 is maintainable and not barred and maintenance to divorced wife was awarded. There are other decisions also to the effect that even a compromise decree in which the wife has accepted lump sum alimony will not bar such application. As such and in view of the above discussion and referred decisions of the Supreme Court, I find that the second application of the wife is maintainable and not barred. When the Supreme Court has interpreted and clarified the law and has laid down that the Muslim divorced wife can still claim maintenance under section 125 of the Code despite the provisions of the Muslim Women (Protection of Rights on Divorce) Act, 1986, her claim cannot be defeated on the basis of earlier decision of the court below and the earlier judgment cannot operate as res-judicata.

44. It is to be noticed that the right of maintenance available to wife from husband is absolute right and even divorce cannot effect this right unless the wife is disqualified on account of remarriage or her sufficient earning. Section 125 of the Criminal Procedure Code has been enacted with a specific purpose to protect women and children and to prevent vagrancy and destitution among them. This law is not community centric or religion centric and perhaps, one of the most secular enactment ever made in the country. It is an instrument of social justice and aims to render justice on the basis of equality to wife in particular, may be divorced including a divorced Muslim wife. Gender justice is a constitutional promise and the provision of maintenance provided under section 125 of the Code is one of the tools to translate the constitutional promise into social reality. Moreover, Article 21 of the Constitution guarantees every person a right to live with dignity and a dignified life is not possible unless a fair and reasonable provision is made by the husband towards the maintenance of his divorced wife. Therefore, while interpreting and applying this beneficial legislation, the Constitutional vision of equality, liberty and justice, more particularly social justice to the women and marginalized sections of society, must be present when the courts are dealing with an application of destitute wife or helpless children and aged and infirm parents. Social justice adjudication or social context adjudication requires application of equality jurisprudence where the parties to a litigation are unequally situated in terms of socio-economic structure and dilution of the technical procedure often followed in adversarial system.

45. In view of the above discussion, I find that the view and approach of the learned Family Court is completely justified and legal and there is no material irregularity or illegality or jurisdictional error in the impugned judgment and order. Hence, the revision has got no force and is liable to be dismissed.

46. The revision is dismissed. Stay, if any shall stand vacated.

47. The office is directed to send a copy of this judgment to the learned Family Court for information and necessary compliance.

Criminal Revision dismissed. (E-6)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Krishna Gautam, J.)

1. This Criminal Revision under Section 397/401 of Code of Criminal Procedure, has been filed by Atul Singh Sengar, agaisnt order dated 3.7.2019, passed by Sessions Judge, Auraiya, in Criminal Appeal No. 13/2019 (State Vs. Atul Singh Sengar), arising out of Case Crime No. 132/2017, under Sections 498A, 304-B I.P.C. and 3/4 of D.P. Act, P.S. Auraiya, District Auraiya, with a prayer for setting aside impugned order, whereby, order of Juvenile Justice Board, Auraiya, dated 16.4.2019, has been set aside.

2. Learned counsel, for the revisionist, argued that Juvenile Justice Board, Auraiya, vide order dated 16.4.2019, determined revisionist accused-Atul Singh Sengar, juvenile under conflict with law and it was on the basis of date of birth entered in matriculation Mark-sheet-cum-Certificate, wherein date of birth was 10.8.1999. This occurrence was of 27.1.2017, hence, on the date of occurrence, revisionist was of age 17 years, 5 months and 17 days, i.e. below 18 years. Hence, was juvenile in conflict with law. Against this order, an appeal before Sessions Judge, Auraiya No. 13 of 2019 (State Vs. Atul Singh Sengar) was filed, wherein, impugned order of Juvenile Justice Board, Auraiya, was set aside. Accordingly, appeal was allowed. The date of birth entered in Basic School, was taken by learned Appellate Court and on the basis of it, impugned order was passed. Whereas, it was a conclusive proof of age, which was entered in High School Certificate and it was very well there on record. Once, the same was there, then no further school document was to be taken in consideration. But erroneously another school record was taken in consideration and on the basis of it, impugned order was passed. It was apparently error, on the face of record, under erroneous exercise of jurisdiction by Appellate Court. Hence, this revision with above prayer.

3. Learned AGA as well as learned counsel for the informant vehemently opposed. It was argued that school first attended was Basic School, wherein, revisionist himself had entered his date of birth and it was there in its admission form. This could not be tampered and it was 10.8.1997. But there was manipulation, overwriting and tampering in subsequent transfer certificate, wherein, date of birth was written as 10.8.1999. The same was there in alleged Mark-sheet-cum-Certificate of High School, wherein, date of birth was writtten as 10.8.1999, but the Board itself during inquiry had obtained report of Basic Shiksha Adhikari as well as Block Organiser, wherein, this fact was cogently pressed that there is tampering with manipulation in subsequent papers including scholar register regarding date of birth of accused Atul Singh Sengar, but a tampering could not be there in the admission form, which was filled by applicant-revisionist himself and therein date of birth was 10.8.1997. The same was further been substantiated and fortified by the date of birth entered for younger brother, which is of 1998. Meaning thereby, elder brother may not be of 1999, when younger brother is of 1998. This itself shows the manipulation and false averment by accused. Beside this, marriage was performed and a marriage by juvenile is not permissible under law. At that time, marriage was solemnized by mentioning Atul Singh Sengar as major. Subsequently, it is being said that he was juvenile. Revisionist may not blow cold and hot together at one place, he said himself to be major and then after gets married. Subsequently, he claimed himself to be juvenile. Appellate Court has rightly appreciated facts and law and impugned order has been passed in accordance with material placed on record. There is neither any illegality or apparent error on face of record or mis-exercise of jurisdiction.

Hence, this revision merits dismissal. Be dismissed, accordingly.

4. Having heard learned counsels for both sides and gone through order of Juvenile Justice Board, Auraiya as well as of Appellate Court of Sessions Judge, Auraiya, it is apparent that Sessions Judge, has not added something from his side, rather, whatever is there on record, had been taken by him in his judicial decision making. The material on record is the oral testimony of Mahendra Singh, under who signature, school leaving certificate was issued and he had categorically said before Court that it was with no signature of him. Rather, it was a manipulated, fabricated and tampered documents. The entry of date of birth of 10.8.1999 in scholar register is also fabricated with overwriting, as was filed as Exhibit Kha, before Board. The admission form of revisionist is there and it is of no manipulation or overwriting, therein, date of birth is 10.8.1997. This date of birth has been duly verified by public servant, examined by Board that while getting admission in school first attended, date of birth was said and accepted to be of 10.8.1997 and this is the date of birth in school first attended and was duly verified by Basic Shiksha Adhikari, on record. Hence, prior to this Act of Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015, the situation of determination of age was otherwise. Therein, the provision was that firstly High School Certificate is to be taken and the date of birth entered, therein is to be taken for consideration. In case of failure, the second option was of school first attended, if the same is not available, then date of birth entered in local bodies' register or gram sabha register was to be taken and if all these three categories were not available, then the option was of medical age determination by Medical Board. But in the new Act of 2015 and Rules made therein, Section 94 of Act provides that presumption and determination of age, wherein, sub-Section 2 provides :

(2) In case, the Committee or the Board has reasonable grounds for doubt regarding whether the person brought before it is a child or not, the Committee or the Board, as the case may be, shall undertake the process of age determination, by seeking evidence by obtaining -

(i) the date of birth certificate from the school, or the matriculation or equivalent certificate from the concerned examination Board, if available; and in the absence thereof;

(ii) the birth certificate given by a corporation or a muncipal authority or a panchayat;

(iii) and only in the absence of (i) and (ii) above, age shall be determined by an ossification test or any other latest medical age determination test conducted on the orders of the Committee or the Board:

Provided such age determination test conducted on the order of the Committee or the Board shall be completed within fifteen days from the date of such order.

5. Meaning thereby, date of birth certificate from the school or matriculation or equivalent certificate from the concerned examination Board, if available; and in the absence thereof---- Meaning thereby, school first attended has been kept prior to matriculation certificate. Meaning thereby, now there is no preference of High School Certificate and date of birth entered in it, rather, all education certificates have been kept at par and school first attended comes first. Hence, in the present case, which was of year 2017 i.e. after enforcement of above Rules, the school first attended was with priority. The citations discussed by Juvenile Justice Justice Board, Auraiya, relates with prior situations, whereas, the present case is to be governed by new Act and Rules made therein, as above. The school first attended is with date of birth 10.8.1997 and that is to be taken as a date of birth, for consideration of juvenility of accused Atul Singh Sengar. On the basis of it, learned Appellate Court of Sessions Judge, Auraiya, has passed impugned order that on the date of occurrence, present revisionist was not juvenile in conflict with law. Rather, he was major. This determination of learned Appellate Court is on the basis of material placed on record and in other attending circumstances, like younger brother may not be elder to elder brother and juvenile may not get married against the age of marriage under majority Act. Under all above facts and circumstances, this revision merits its dismissal.

6. Dismissed, as such.

4. Soney Lal Pasi Vs. St. Of U.P., Cr.Rev. No. 2820 of 2003

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pradeep Kumar Srivastava, J).)

1. Heard Shri S.K. Tiwari, learned counsel for the revisionists, learned AGA for the State and perused the record.

2. Learned counsel for the revisionists without entering into the merits of the case, has confined his argument to the effect that the revisionist have been convicted for the offence under sections 147, 323/149 and 325/149 IPC and the maximum sentence which has been awarded to the revisionist is one year.

3. This revision pertains to the judgement passed by Additional Sessions Judge/Fast Track Court No. 1, Gorakhpur in Criminal Appeal No. 26 of 2005 by which the appeal of the revisionist has been dismissed which was filed against the conviction and sentence dated 23.02.2005 passed by Judicial Magistrate Ist, Gorakhpur in Criminal Case No. 49/02/88 (State Vs. Sahdev and others), under sections 147, 323/149, 325/149 IPC, P.S. Nautanwa, District Gorakhpur by which revisionists were convicted and sentenced for the offence under section 147 for 3 months simple imprisonment, for the offence under section 323/149 IPC for six months simple imprisonment and for the offence under section 325/149 for one year simple imprisonment. It is pertinent to mention that the conviction and sentence was maintained by the judgement in appeal and the appeal was dismissed.

4 The submission of the learned counsel is that the said criminal case in respect of a criminal incident dated 28.10.1988 and it was in between related parties through their ancestral and a marpeet took place between the two and a NCR was also lodged from the side of the revisionists in which charge-sheet was submitted. But prior to decision of this Court, the same resulted in acquittal. Further submission is that a reference of that cross case finds mention in the judgement of the lower court. It has been further submitted by the learned counsel that the case which was lodged from the side of the revisionists resulted in acquittal and the learned trial court failed to determine who was aggressor on technical ground. That the police papers which were filed in this case from the side of the revisionist were photostat and they were not proved by the adducing evidence. He has submitted that what ever was the result, it was specifically requested from the side of the revisionist all the accused persons before the learned Magistrate for giving benefit of probation in view of the sentence passed by them, but the same was not legally considered. Further submission is that in the criminal incident the accused persons were not assigned with any deadly weapon and all the injuries were caused by lathi and danda. It has been further submitted that only two injured persons sustained fracture and the fracture was not on vital parts but on finger and elbow. The further submission is that it is a case pertaining to a criminal offence of the year 1998.

5. So far as conviction under Sections 147, 323/149, 325/149 IPC are concerned, learned counsel to the revisionists requested that looking to the fact that revision is pending since 2005 and awarded sentence is not more than one year simple imprisonment, revisionists may be released on probation for maintaining peace and good behavior for specified period. Learned counsel for the revisionist has further argued that the effect of Sections 3 and 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act, 1958, in the background of what is stated in Section 360 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, has not been kept in view. Learned counsel for the revisionists has also relied upon the judgment in the case of Subhash Chand & others Vs State of UP (2015 Law Suit (All) 1343) and the judgment in Criminal Revision No. 1319 of 1999 (Hargovind & Others vs. State of U.P.) passed by this Court on 11.01.2019.

Section 3 of the Probation of Offenders Act reads as follows:

"3. Power of court to release certain offenders after admonition.- When any person is found guilty of having committed an offence punishable under section 379 or section 380 or section 381 or section 404 or section 420 of the Indian Penal Code, (45 of 1860) or any offence punishable with imprisonment for not more than two years, or with fine, or with both, under the Indian Penal Code, or any other law, and no previous conviction is proved against him and the court by which the person is found guilty is of opinion that, having regard to the circumstances of the case including the nature of the offence, and the character of the offender, it is expedient so to do, then, notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, the court may instead of sentencing him to any punishment or releasing him on probation of good conduct under section 4 release him after due admonition.

Explanation.- For the purposes of this section, previous conviction against a person shall include any previous order made against him under this section or section 4."

6. Thus, this was the bounden duty of the learned trial court and also the appellate court to consider why they did not proceed to grant the benefit of Probation of Offenders Act. Section 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act reads as follows:

"4. Power of court to release certain offenders on probation of good conduct.-(1) When any person is found guilty of having committed an offence not punishable with death or imprisonment for life and the court by which the person is found guilty is of opinion that, having regard to the circumstances of the case including the nature of the offence and the character of the offender, it is expedient to release him on probation of good conduct, then, notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, the court may, instead of sentencing him at once to any punishment direct that he be released on his entering into a bond, with or without sureties, to appear and receive sentence when called upon during such period, not exceeding three years, as the court may direct, and in the meantime to keep the peace and be of good behaviour:

Provided that the court shall not direct such release of an offender unless it is satisfied that the offender or his surety, if any, has a fixed place of abode or regular occupation in the place over which the court exercises jurisdiction or in which the offender is likely to live during the period for which he enters into the bond.

(2)Before making any order under sub-section (1), the court shall take into consideration the report, if any, of the probation officer concerned in relation to the case.

(3) When an order under sub-section (1) is made, the court may, if it is of opinion that in the interests of the offender and of the public it is expedient so to do, in addition pass a supervision order directing that the offender shall remain under the supervision of a probation officer named in the order during such period, not being less than one year, as may be specified therein, and may in such supervision order, impose such conditions as it deems necessary for the due supervision of the offender.

(4) The court making a supervision order under sub-section (3) shall require the offender, before he is released, to enter into a bond, with or without sureties, to observe the conditions specified in such order and such additional conditions with respect to residence, abstention from intoxicants or any other matter as the court may, having regard to the particular circumstances, consider fit to impose for preventing a repetition of the same offence or a commission of other offences by the offender.

(5) The court making a supervision order under sub-section (3) shall explain to the offender the terms and conditions of the order and shall forthwith furnish one copy of the supervision order to each of the offenders, the sureties, if any, and the probation officer concerned.

7. A similar provision finds place in the Code of Criminal Procedure. There, Section 360 provides:

360. Order to release on probation of good conduct or after admonition.

(1) When any person not under twenty- one years of age is convicted of an offence punishable with fine only or with imprisonment for a term of seven years or less, or when any person under twenty-one years of age or any woman is-convicted of an offence not punishable with death or imprisonment for life, and no previous conviction is proved against the offender, if it appears to the Court before which he is convicted, regard being had to the age, character or antecedents of the offender, and to the circumstances in which the offence was committed, that it is expedient that the offender should be released on probation of good conduct, the Court may, instead of sentencing him at once to any punishment, direct that he be released on his entering into a bond with or without sureties, to appear and receive sentence when called upon during such period (not exceeding three years) as the Court may direct and in the meantime to keep the peace and be of good behaviour:

Provided that where any first offender is convicted by a Magistrate of the second class not specially empowered by the High Court, and the Magistrate is of opinion that the powers conferred by this section should be exercised, he shall record his opinion to that effect, and submit the proceedings to a Magistrate of the first class, forwarding the accused to, or taking bail for his appearance before, such Magistrate, who shall dispose of the case in the manner provided by sub-section (2).

(2) Where proceedings are submitted to a Magistrate of the first class as provided by sub- section (1), such Magistrate may thereupon pass such sentence or make such order as he might have passed or made if the case had originally been heard by him, and, if he thinks further inquiry or additional evidence on any point to be necessary, he may make such inquiry or take such evidence himself or direct such inquiry or evidence to be made or taken.

(3) In any case in which a person is convicted of theft, theft in a building, dishonest misappropriation cheating or any offence under the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860), punishable with not more than two years' imprisonment or any offence punishable with fine only and no previous conviction is proved against him, the Court before which he is so convicted may, if it thinks fit, having regard to the age, character, antecedents or physical or mental condition of the offender and to the trivial nature of the offence or any extenuating circumstances under which the offence was committed, instead of sentencing him to any punishment, release him after due admonition.

(4) An order under this section may be made by any Appellate Court or by the High Court or Court of Session when exercising its powers of revision.

(5) When an order has been made under this section in respect of any offender, the High Court or Court of Session may, on appeal when there is a right of appeal to such Court, or when exercising its powers of revision, set aside such order, and in lieu thereof pass sentence on such offender according to law: Provided that the High Court or Court of Session shall not under this sub- section inflict a greater punishment than might have been inflicted by the Court by which the offender was convicted.

(6) The provisions of sections 121, 124 and 373 shall, so far as may be, apply in the case of sureties offered in pursuance of the provisions of this section.

(7) The Court, before directing the release of an offender under sub- section (1), shall be satisfied that an offender or his surety (if any) has a fixed place of abode or regular occupation in the place for which the Court acts or in which the offender is likely to live during the period named for the observance of the conditions.

(8) If the Court which convicted the offender, or a Court which could have dealt with the offender in respect of his original offence, is satisfied that the offender has failed to observe any of the conditions of his recognizance, it may issue a warrant for his apprehension.

(9) An offender, when apprehended on any such warrant, shall be brought forthwith before the Court issuing the warrant, and such Court may either remand him in custody until the case is heard or admit him to bail with sufficient surety conditioned on his appearing for sentence and such Court may, after hearing the case, pass sentence.

(10) Nothing in this section shall affect the provisions of the Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 (20 of 1958), or the Children Act, 1960 (60 of 1960), or any other law for the time being in force for the treatment, training or rehabilitation of youthful offenders.

8. Again, Section 361 reads as below:

"361. Special reasons to be recorded in certain cases.- Where in any case the Court could have dealt with-

(a) an accused persons under section 360 or under the provisions of the Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 (20 of 1958), or

(b) a youthful offender under the Children Act, 1960 (60 of 1960), or any other law for the time being in force for the treatment, training or rehabilitation of youthful offenders, but has not done so, it shall record in its judgment the special reasons for not having done so."

9. These statutory provisions very emphatically lay down the reformatory and correctional object of sentencing and obligates the trial court as well as appellate courts to give benefit of probation in fit cases as provided under law. Unfortunately, this branch of law has not been much utilized by the trial courts. It becomes more relevant and important in our system of administration of justice where trial is often concluded after a long time and by the time decision assumes finality, the very purpose of sentencing looses its efficacy as with the passage of time the penological and social priorities change and there remains no need to inflict punishment of imprisonment, particularly when the offence involved is not serious and there is no criminal antecedent of the accused person.The facts and given circumstances in each case, the nature of the crime, the manner in which it was planned and committed, the motive for commission of the crime, the conduct of the accused, the nature of weapons used and all other attending circumstances are relevant facts which would enter into the area of consideration. It is, therefore, the duty of every court to award proper sentence having regard to the nature of the offence and the manner in which it was executed or committed.

10. In this instant case, the court below has not considered the probation law, although, the revisionists were only convicted for the offence under Sections 147, 323/149, 325/149 IPC for the maximum period of one year. Therefore, the benefit of probation could have been given in view of the law referred above. But, while awarding sentence this aspect was not considered. The learned court below did not even write a single word as to why the benefit of this beneficial legislation was not given to the accused whereas it was mandatory to do so under the provisions of Section 361 Cr.P.C. Moreover, the occurrence relates to the year 1988 and this revision is pending since 2005 and therefore, no purpose of justice will be served if the revisionists are sent to jail to undergo the terms of sentence after lapse of such long time.

11. In Subhash Chand Case (supra), this court has emphatically laid down the need to apply the law of probation and give benefit of the beneficial legislation to accused persons in appropriate cases. This court issued following directions to all trial courts and appellate courts:

30. "It appears that the aforesaid beneficial legislation has been lost sight of and even the Judges have practically forgotten this provision of law. Thus, before parting with the case, this Court feels that I will be failing in discharge of my duties, if a word of caution is not written for the trial courts and the appellate courts. The Registrar General of this Court is directed to circulate copy of this Judgement to all the District Judges of U.P., who shall in turn ensure circulation of the copy of this order amongst all the judicial officers working under him and shall ensure strict compliance of this Judgement. The District Judges in the State are also directed to call for reports every months from all the courts, i.e. trial courts and appellate courts dealing with such matters and to state as to in how many cases the benefit of the aforesaid provisions have been granted to the accused. The District Judges are also directed to monitor such cases personally in each monthly meeting. The District Judges concerned shall send monthly statement to the Registrar General as to in how many cases the trial court/appellate court has granted the benefit of the aforesaid beneficial legislation to the accused. A copy of this order be placed before the Registrar General for immediate compliance."

12. In addition to the above judgment of this Court, I perused the judgment of Hon'ble the Apex Court in State of Maharashtra Vs. Jagmohan Singh Kuldip Singh Anand & others (2004) 7 SCC 659 in which, giving the benefit of Probation of Offenders Act, 1958, the Court has observed as below:

"The learned counsel appearing for the accused submitted that the accident is of the year 1990. The parties are educated and neighbors. The learned counsel, therefore, prayed that benefit of the Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 may be granted to the accused. The prayer made on behalf of the accused seems to be reasonable. The accident is more than ten years old. The dispute was between the neighbors over a trivial issue of claiming of drainage. The accident took place in a fit of anger. All the parties educated and also distantly related. The accident is not such as to direct the accused to undergo sentence of imprisonment. In our opinion, it is a fit case in which the accused should be released on probation by directing them to execute a bond of one year for good behaviour."

13. Similarly, in Jagat Pal Singh & others Vs. State of Haryana, AIR 2000 SC 3622, the Hon'ble Apex Court has given the benefit of probation while upholding the conviction of accused persons under Sections 323, 452, 506 IPC and has released the accused persons on executing a bond before the Magistrate for maintaining good behaviour and peace for the period of six months.

14. This Court vide order dated 28.11.2019 in case of Soney Lal Pasi Vs. State of U.P. passed in Criminal Revision No. 2820 of 2003 has also released the accused persons convicted under sections 323, 324, 354 IPC on probation after giving benefit of section 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act.

15. In the light of above discussion, I find no illegality, irregularity or impropriety nor there is any jurisdictional error in the impugned Judgment and I am of the considered view that the conviction recorded by the court below under Sections 147, 323/149, 325/149 IPC and upheld by the learned appellate court below is not required to be disturbed. Consequently, the impugned judgment of conviction and sentence is upheld.

16. However, instead of sending the revisionists namely Daya Ram, Sri Ram and Bali Ram to jail, they shall get the benefit of Section 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act. Consequently, the revisionists shall file two sureties to the tune of Rs.25,000/- coupled with personal bonds to the effect that they shall not commit any offence and shall observe good behaviour and shall maintain peace during the period of one year. If there is breach of any of the conditions, they will subject themselves to undergo sentence before the Magistrate. The bonds and sureties aforesaid be filed by the accused persons within two months from the date of the Judgment as per law and Rules.

17. Accordingly, the revision is disposed of finally.

18. Let a certified copy of this order be sent alongwith lower court record to the court concerned for compliance.

16. Anil Kumar Vs. M.K. Aiyappa, (2013) 10 SCC 705

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Sunita Agarwal, J).)

1. The present criminal revision has been filed challenging the order dated 06.09.2019 passed in Criminal Misc. No. 203 of 2019 (Vishwanath vs. Santosh & others) by the Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.1, Kushinagar on an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. filed by the revisionist.

2. The Court below while disposing of the application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. has treated the same as complaint and directed it to be registered as complaint case fixing date for recording statement of the complainant under Section 200 Cr.P.C.

3. Challenging this order, learned counsel for the revisionist vehemently submits that from the reading of the application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. itself, a cognizable offence was made out and as such it was required for the Court concerned to direct the police to investigate. The appropriate course of action for the Court was to issue direction to the police to lodge a first information report and submit the report under Section 173(2) Cr.P.C.

4. The allegations are of gang rape by the accused persons (opposite party nos. 2 to 5) falling under Section 376 I.P.C., the application seeking for lodging of the first information report could not have been treated as a complaint case.

5. Reliance is placed on the judgment and order dated 07.12.2019 of this Court passed in an application under Section 482 No. 44699 of 2019 (Maneeta vs. State of U.P. & Ors.) wherein following the law laid down in Lalita Kumari vs. Government of U.P. & ors1, it was observed that once a cognizable offence is made out, an FIR should be registered and the summoning order under challenge was quashed as it did not provide any reason for not doing so. The matter had been relegated for fresh decision under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C.

6. Learned counsel for the revisionist vehemently submits that in Lalita Kumari1, the Supreme Court has laid down guidelines holding that an obligation is cast on a police officer to register a first information report under Section 154 of the Code of Criminal Procedure upon receiving any information relating to commission of a cognizable offence. It is contended that the Supreme Court has categorically held that the registration of FIR is mandatory under Section 154 of the Code, if the information discloses commission of a cognizable offence and no preliminary inquiry is permissible in such a situation. Only in a case where the information received does not disclose a cognizable offence, the necessity for a preliminary inquiry may arise which may be conducted only to ascertain whether cognizable offence is disclosed or not. In that case also, once the preliminary inquiry discloses the commission of a cognizable offence, the FIR must be registered.

7. Submission is that the application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. was filed by the revisionist/applicant for the direction to lodge a first information report as police did not do so. The Court below instead of issuing necessary direction to the police to lodge the first information report and investigate, had illegally treated it as a complaint and proceeded to record the statement of the complainant.

8. Submission is that this act of the Court/Magistrate was beyond the powers conferred on it, as the principle laid down in Lalita Kumari1 would be attracted even in the matter of filing of an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. before the Magistrate. The result would be that once the application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. filed before the Magistrate or Court discloses commission of a cognizable offence, it had no option but to issue direction to the police to register a case and investigate the matter for submission of the police report under Section 173(2) Cr.P.C.

9. Learned AGA, on the other hand, submits that the power of a Magistrate under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. can be equated to the power conferred on it under Section 190 Cr.P.C. as it flows from the said provision. Thus, on the presentation of an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. before the Magistrate, it has two options either to direct the police to investigate by registration of a first information report or proceed to treat it as a complaint case to make an inquiry for recording statement of the complainant under Section 200 Cr.P.C. and his witnesses under Section 202 Cr.P.C.

10. The decision in Lalita Kumari1 is on a reference regarding the power of a police officer to conduct a preliminary inquiry in order to test the veracity of the information received by him relating to commission of a cognizable offence, before registering the same under Section 154 Cr.P.C.

11. Submission is that the said decision has no reflection on the powers of the Magistrate or curtail his discretion to make a preliminary inquiry to ascertain truth or veracity of the information of commission of a criminal offence by treating it as a complaint instead of sending the matter to the police for investigation.

12. To deal with these submissions of the learned counsel for the parties, it would be appropriate to go through the provisions relating to registration of a criminal case and "investigation" thereof by the police under Chapter XII and as also the power and jurisdiction of the criminal courts/Magistrates in inquiries and trials as contained in Chapter XIII; and Chapter XIV of the Code pertaining to the requisite conditions for initiation of judicial proceedings.

13. The definition of "inquiry", "investigation" and "judicial proceedings" are also to be taken note of. "Inquiry" as defined under Section 2(g) means every inquiry other than a trial, conducted under the Code by a Magistrate or Court. Section 2(h) defines "investigation" to include all the proceedings under the Code for the collection of evidence conducted by a police officer or any person authorised by a Magistrate in this behalf, but other than a Magistrate. The "judicial proceedings" defined in Section 2(i) includes any proceeding in the course of which evidence is or may be legally taken on oath.

14. Thus, from the careful reading of the definitions as above, it is evident that the "inquiry", "investigation" and "judicial proceedings" are three different stages of a criminal matter reported to the police or the Magistrate/Court, and connotes different meaning under the Code. The "investigation" is done by the police officer or any other officer authorised by the Magistrate (but not a Magistrate), whereas "inquiry" means a preliminary inquiry conducted by the Magistrate or a Court on receipt of information of commission of an offence which shall not include a trial where evidence is to be taken in a legal manner on oath being the "judicial proceedings". The "information" and "investigation" by the police is contained in Chapter XII and is distinguished from the jurisdiction of the Magistrate in taking cognizance of criminal offence under Chapter XIV of the Code.

15. In the case of Lalita Kumari1, the question which arose for consideration on a reference was "whether a police officer is bound to register a first information report (FIR) upon receiving an information relating to commission of a cognizable offence under Section 154 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (in short "Code") or the police officer has the power to conduct a preliminary inquiry in order to test the veracity of such information before registering the same in the context of the question before it"

16. The five judges Bench in Lalita Kumari1 taking note of the provisions contained in Section 154, 156 & 157 in Chapter XII of the Code of Criminal Procedure has held in para '120' to '120.8' as under:-

"120. In viwe of the aforesaid discussion, we hold:

120.1 The registration of FIR is mandatory under Section 154 of the Code, if the information discloses commission of a cognizable offence and no preliminary inquiry is permissible in such a situation.

120.2 If the information received does not disclose commission of a cognizable offence but indicates that the necessity for an inquiry, a preliminary inquiry may be conducted only to ascertain whether cognizable offence is disclosed or not.

120.3 If the inquiry discloses the commission of a cognizable offence, the FIR must be registered. In cases where preliminary inquiry ends in closing the complaint, a copy of the entry of such closure must be supplied to the first informant forthwith (not later than one week) disclosing reasons in brief for closing the complaint and not proceeding further.

120.4 The police officer cannot avoid his duty of registering an offence if cognizable is disclosed. Action must be taken against an erring officer who do not register the FIR if information received by him discloses a cognizable offence.

120.5 The scope of preliminary inquiry is not to verify the veracity or otherwise by the information received but only to ascertain whether the information reveals any cognizable offence.

120.6 As to what type and in which cases the preliminary inquiry is to be conducted, will depend on the facts and circumstances of each case.The category of cases in which preliminary inquiry may be made are identified as under:-

(a) Matrimonial disputes/family disputes

(b) Commercial offences

(c) Medical negligence cases

(d) Corruption cases

(e) Cases where there is abnormal delay/laches in initiating criminal prosecution, for example, over 3 months' delay in reporting the matter without satisfactorily explaining the reasons for delay.

The aforesaid are only illustrations and not exhaustive of all conditions which may warrant preliminary inquiry.

120.7 While ensuring and protecting the rights of the accused and the complainant, a preliminary inquiry should be made time-bound and in any case it should not exceed 7 days. The fact of such delay and the causes of it must be reflected in the General Diary entry.

120.8 Since the General Diary/Station Diary/Daily Diary is the record of all information received in a police station, we direct that all information relating to cognizable offences, whether resulting in registration of FIR or leading to an inquiry, must be mandatorily and meticulously reflected in the said diary and the decision to conduct a preliminary inquiry must also be reflected, as mentioned above."

17. Noticing the above directions issued by the Apex Court in the case of Lalita Kumari1 in the context of the question referred before it, it is evident that all the directions issued therein apply in the matter of receipt of information of commission of a cognizable offence by the police and the stage of "investigation" as defined in Section 2(h) of the Code to be made by the police in exercise of power conferred upon it under Chapter XII of the Code.

18. From a careful reading of the observations and directions issued by the Apex Court in Lalita Kumari1, it cannot be said that they relate in any manner or curtail the power of the Magistrate to make an "inquiry" as defined in Section 2(g) of the Code.

19. This view is further fortified from the observations of the Apex Court in paragraph '87' & '88' in Lalita Kumari1 itself, which reads as under:-

"87. The term "inquiry" as per Section 2(g) of the Code reads as under:

"2.(g) "inquiry" means every inquiry, other than a trial, conducted under this Code by a Magistrate or Court."

Hence, it is clear that inquiry under the Code is relatable to a judicial act and not to the steps taken by the Police which are either investigation after the stage of Section 154 of the Code or termed as "preliminary inquiry" and which are prior to the registration of FIR, even though, no entry in the General Diary/Station Diary/Daily Diary has been made.

88. Though there is reference to the term "preliminary inquiry" and "inquiry" under Sections 159 and Sections 202 and 340 of the Code, that is a judicial exercise undertaken by the Court and not by the Police and is not relevant for the purpose of the present reference."

20. Further, this Court may also deal with the relevant Section 156(3) contained in the same Chapter XII of the Code which empowers the Magistrate to order investigation on receipt of information of commission of criminal offence. Section 156(3) states that :-

"(3) Any Magistrate empowered under Section 190 may order such an investigation as above-mentioned."

21. The words "investigation as above mentioned", as contained in Section 156(3) contemplate investigation by the officer in charge of a police station.

22. The question of power of Magistrate to order investigation under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. came up for consideration before the Apex Court in Mohammad Yousuf Vs. Smt. Afaq Jahan & another2. In the said matter, on an application filed by the appellant therein alleging commission of offences by the named accused persons, the Magistrate directed the police to register and investigate. The said order of the learned Magistrate was challenged by means of an application under Section 482 of the Code after the police had completed the investigation and submitted the charge sheet. The High Court proceeded to quash the charge sheet on the ground that the Magistrate had no power to order registration of the case.

23. It is observed therein that the "investigation" under the directions of the Magistrate under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. falling within Chapter XII contemplates "investigation" by the police authorities. Whether the investigation is started by the police by the registration of FIR on the information received by it or under the order of the Magistrate under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C., it would be same kind of investigation which would end up only with the report contemplated under Section 173 of the Code. But when a Magistrate orders "investigation" under Chapter XII, he does so before he takes cognizance of the offence under Chapter XV of the Code.

24. It is observed that Chapter XV of the Code which confers power on the Magistrate to order "investigation" under Section 202 of the Code deals with the provisions relating to the steps which a Magistrate may adopt after taking cognizance of an offence on a complaint. Thus, the investigation under Section 202, which falls under Chapter XV, though refers to the power of a Magistrate " to direct an investigation by a police officer", but is different from the "investigation" contemplated in Section 156(3) falling within Chapter XII of the Code.

25. Further, it was observed in paragraph nos. '9' & '11' of the report {Mohd. Yousuf2} that it is not necessary for the Magistrate to order investigation under Chapter XII if he proposes to take cognizance of the offence, and once he takes cognizance he has to follow the procedure envisaged in Chapter XV of the Code. The position as clarified therein is that any judicial Magistrate, before taking cognizance of the offence, can order investigation under Section 156(3) of the Code. If he does so, he need not to examine the complainant on oath because he was not taking cognizance of any offence therein.

26. Relevant paragraphs '9', '10' & '11' of the report are to be quoted herein:-

"9. But a Magistrate need not order any such investigation if he proposes to take cognizance of the offence. Once he takes cognizance of the offence he has to follow the procedure envisaged in Chapter XV of the Code. A reading of Section 202(1) of the Code makes the position clear that the investigation referred to therein is of a limited nature. The Magistrate can direct such an investigation to be made either by a police officer or by any other person. Such investigation is only for helping the Magistrate to decide whether or not there is sufficient ground for him to proceed further. This can be discerned from the culminating words in Section 202(1) i.e. "or direct an investigation to be made by a police officer or by such other person as he thinks fit, for the purpose of deciding whether or not there is sufficient ground for proceeding".

10. This is because he has already taken cognizance of the offence disclosed in the complaint, and the domain of the case would thereafter vest with him.

11. The clear position therefore is that any Judicial Magistrate, before taking cognizance of the offence, can order investigation under Section 156(3) of the Code. If he does so, he is not to examine the complainant on oath because he was not taking cognizance of any offence therein. For the purpose of enabling the police to start investigation it is open to the Magistrate to direct the police to register an FIR. There is nothing illegal in doing so. After all registration of an FIR involves only the process of entering the substance of the information relating to the commission of the cognizable offence in a book kept by the officer in charge of the police station as indicated in Section 154 of the Code. Even if a Magistrate does not say in so many words while directing investigation under Section 156(3) of the Code that an FIR should be registered, it is the duty of the officer in charge of the police station to register the FIR regarding the cognizable offence disclosed by the complaint because that police officer could take further steps contemplated in Chapter XII of the Code only thereafter."

27. Further the position of law as clarified by the Apex Court in R.R. Chari vs The State Of Uttar Pradesh3; Narayandas Bhagwandas Madhavdas vs State Of West Bengal4 and Gopal Das Sindhi & others Vs. State of Assam & another5 as also the decision of the Calcutta High Court in Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, West Bengal v. Abani Kumar Banerjee6, approved in R.R. Chari3, has been cited with approval in paragraph Nos.'13', '14' of the report in Mohd. Yousuf2 to fortify the above view.

28. In Suresh Chand Jain Vs. State of M.P. & another7, the question before the Apex Court was whether the Magistrate was empowered to direct the police to register a case under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. on a complaint of commission of offences under Section 3 of the Prized Chits and Money Circulation Scheme (Prohibition) Act and under Section 420 of the IPC.

29. The order of the Magistrate under Section 156(3) to register and investigate was upheld in the revision before the Sessions court and application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. before the High Court. The Apex Court while dismissing the appeal before it held in paragraphs Nos. '7', '8', '9' & '10' as under:-

"7. In our opinion, the aforesaid direction given by the learned Single Judge of the Punjab and Haryana High Court in Suresh Kumar vs. State of Haryana (supra) is contrary to law and cannot be approved. Chapter XII of the Code contains provisions relating to information to the police and their powers to investigate, whereas Chapter XV, which contains Section 202, deals with provisions relating to the steps which a magistrate has to adopt while and after taking cognizance of any offence on a complaint. Provisions of the above two chapters deal with two different facets altogether though there could be a common factor i.e. complaint filed by a person. Section 156, falling within Chapter XII, deals with powers of the police officers to investigate cognizable offences. True, Section 202 which falls under Chapter XV, also refers to the power of a Magistrate to direct an investigation by a police officer. But the investigation envisaged in Section 202 is different from the investigation contemplated in Section 156 of the Code. Section 156 of the Code reads thus:

"156. Police officers power to investigate cognizable cases.- (1) Any officer in charge of a police station may, without the order of a Magistrate, investigate any cognizable case which a court having jurisdiction over the local area within the limits of such station would have power to inquire into or try under the provisions of Chapter XIII.

(2) No proceeding of a police officer in any such case shall at any stage be called in question on the ground that the case was one which such officer was not empowered under this section to investigate.

(3) Any Magistrate empowered under section 190 may order such an investigation as above-mentioned.

8. The investigation referred to therein is the same investigation the various steps to be adopted for it have been elaborated in Chapter XII of the Code. Such investigation would start with making the entry in a book to be kept by the officer-in-charge of a police station, of the substance of the information relating to the commission of a cognizable offence. The investigation started thereafter can end up only with the report filed by the police as indicated in Section 173 of the Code. The investigation contemplated in that Chapter can be commenced by the police even without the order of a magistrate. But that does not mean that when a magistrate orders an investigation under Section 156(3) it would be a different kind of investigation. Such investigation must also end up only with the report contemplated in Section 173 of the Code. But the significant point to be noticed is, when a magistrate orders investigation under Chapter XII he does so before he takes cognizance of the offence.

9.But a magistrate need not order any such investigation if he proposes to take cognizance of the offence. Once he takes cognizance of the offence he has to follow the procedure envisaged in Chapter XV of the Code. A reading of Section 202(1) of the Code would convince that the investigation referred to therein is of a limited nature. The magistrate can direct such an investigation to be made either by a police officer or by any other person. Such investigation is only for helping the magistrate to decide whether or not there is sufficient ground for him to proceed further. This can be discerned from the culminating words in Section 202(1) i.e.

"or direct an investigation to be made by a police officer or by such other persons as he thinks fit, for the purpose of deciding whether or not there is sufficient ground for proceeding."

This is because he has already taken cognizance of the offence disclosed in the complaint, and the domain of the case would thereafter vest with him.

10.The position is thus clear. Any judicial magistrate, before taking cognizance of the offence, can order investigation under Section 156(3) of the Code. If he does so, he is not to examine the complainant on oath because he was not taking cognizance of any offence therein. For the purpose of enabling the police to start investigation it is open to the magistrate to direct the police to register an FIR. There is nothing illegal in doing so. After all registration of an FIR involves only the process of entering the substance of the information relating to the commission of the cognizable offence in a book kept by the officer-in- charge of the police station as indicated in Section 154 of the Code. Even if a magistrate does not say in so many words while directing investigation under Section 156(3) of the Code that an FIR should be registered, it is the duty of the officer-in-charge of the police station to register the FIR regarding the cognizable offence disclosed by the complaint because that police officer could take further steps contemplated in Chapter XII of the Code only thereafter."

30. The decision of the Apex Court in Tula Ram Vs. Kishore Singh8 has also been cited with approval to state in Mohd. Yousuf2 that the Apex Court had reiterated the same legal position after referring to its earlier decisions.

31. The abovenoted observations of the Apex Court in Suresh Chand Jain7 were made after taking note of the observations of the Apex Court in its earlier decision in Gopal Das Sindhi5. Relevant extract of para '7' in Gopal Das Sindhi5 is quoted herein as under:-

7.....Section 156(3) states "Any Magistrate empowered under Section 190 may order such investigation as above-mentioned." Mr. Thomas was certainly a Magistrate empowered to take cognizance under Section 190 and he was empowered to take cognizance of an offence upon receiving a complaint He, however, decided not to take cognizance but to send the complaint to the police for investigation as Sections 147, 342 and 448 were cognizable offences. It was,. however, urged that once a complaint was filed the Magistrate was bound to take cognizance and proceed under Chapter XVI of the Code. It is clear, however, that Chapter XVI would come into play only if the Magistrate had taken cognizance of an offence on the complaint filed before him, because Section 200 states that a Magistrate taking cognizance of an offence on complaint shall at once examine the complainant and the witnesses present, if any, upon oath and the substance of the examination shall be reduced to writing and shall be signed by the complainant and the witnesses and also by the Magistrate. If the Magistrate had not taken cognizance of the offence on the com-plaint filed before him, he was not obliged 'to examine the complainant on oath and the witnesses present at the time of the filing of the complaint. We cannot read the provisions of Section 190 to mean that once a complaint is filed, a Magistrate is bound to take cognizance if the facts stated in the complaint disclose the commission of any offence. We are unable to construe the word 'may' in Section 190 to mean 'must.' The reason is obvious. A complaint disclosing cognizable offences may well justify a Magistrate in sending the complaint, under Section 156(3) to the police for investigation. There is no reason why the time of the Magistrate should be wasted when primarily the duty to investigate in cases involving cognizable offences is with the police. On the other hand, there may be occasions when the Magistrate may exercise his discretion and take cognizance of a cognizable offence. If he does so then he would have to proceed in the manner [provided by Chapter XVI of the Code.....…"

32. As to what would mean "by taking cognizance" has been clarified by the Apex Court in R.R. Chari3. While approving the decision of the Calcutta High Court in Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, West Bengal6, paragraph Nos. '8' & '9' of the report in R.R. Chari3 read as under:-

"8. In Gopal Marwari v. Emperor (1), it was observed that the word 'cognizance'is used in the Code to indicate the point when the Magistrate or a Judge first takes judicial notice of an offence. it is a different thing from the initiation of proceedings. It is the condition precedent to the initiation of proceedings by the Magistrate. The court noticed that the word 'cognizance'is a word of somewhat indefinite import and it is perhaps not always used in exactly the same sense.

"9. After referring to the observations in Emperor v. Sou- rindra Mohan Chuckerbutty (2), it was stated by Das Gupta J. in Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, West Bengal v. Abani Kumar Banerjee (3) as follows :--

" What is taking cognizance has not been defined in the Criminal Procedure Code and I have no desire to attempt to define it. It seems to me clear however that before it can be said that any magistrate has taken cognizance of any offence under section 190 (1) (a), Criminal Procedure Code, he must not only have applied his mind to the contents of the petition but he must have done so for the purpose of proceeding in a particular way as indicated in the subse- quent provisions of this Chapter-- proceeding under section 200 and thereafter sending it for inquiry and report under section 202. When the magistrate applies his mind not for the purpose of proceeding under the subsequent sections of this Chapter, but for taking action of some other kind, e.g., ordering investigation under section 156 (3), or issuing a search warrant for the purpose of the investiga- tion, he cannot be said to have taken cognizance of the offence."

In our opinion that is the correct approach to the question before the court."

33. The above view had been noted with approval by the Apex Court in Narayandas Bhagwandas Madhavdas4 by observing as under:-

".....It is, however, argued that in Chari's case this Court was dealing with a matter which came under the Prevention of Corruption Act. It seems to us, however, that makes no difference. It is the principle which was enunciated by Das Gupta, J., which was approved. As to when cognizance is taken of an offence will depend upon the facts and circumstances of each case and it is impossible to attempt to define what is meant by taking cognizance. Issuing of a search warrant for the purpose of an investigation or of a warrant of arrest for that purpose cannot by themselves be regarded as acts by which cognizance was taken of an offence. Obviously, it is only when a Magistrate applies his mind for the purpose of proceeding under s. 200 and subsequent sections of Chapter XVI of the Code of Criminal Procedure or under s. 204 of Chapter XVII of the Code that it can be positively stated that he had applied his mind and therefore had taken cognizance."

34. The above legal position laid down in Suresh Chand Jain7 was considered by the Full Bench of this Court in Ram Babu Gupta Vs. State of U.P. & others9 to answer the question referred to it "as to whether on an application filed under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C., the Magistrate need not to apply his mind and simply direct the police to register and investigate." The Full Bench has held that it is not possible to hold that when an application is moved before the Court only for exercise of powers under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C., it will remain an application only and would not be in the nature of the complaint. It was held that in any case, the Magistrate has to apply his mind on the allegations in the complaint to use his powers under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. It was, thus, held that:-

"on receiving a complaint the Magistrate has to apply his mind to the allegations in the complaint upon which he may not at once proceed to take cognizance and may order it to go to the police station for being registered and investigated.T he order of the Magistrate must indicate application of mind. If the Magistrate takes cognizance; he proceeds to follow the procedure provided in Chapter XV of Cr.P.C."

35. The questions referred to the Full Bench was answered, accordingly.

36. In India Carat Pvt. Ltd. vs. State of Karnataka10, considering the provisions as contained in Chapter XIV, Chapter XV and Chapter XVI of the Code, it was observed in paragraph '13' as under:-

"13. From the provisions referred to above, it may be seen that on receipt of a complaint a Magistrate has several courses open to him..... .....Yet another course open to the Magistrate is that instead of taking cognizance of the offence and following the procedure laid down under Section 200 or Section 202, he may order an investigation to be made by the police under Section 156(3). When such an order is made, the police will have to investigate the matter and submit a report under Section 173(2). On receiving the police report the Magistrate may take congnizance of the offence under Section 190(1)(c) and issue process straightaway to the accused. The Magistrate may exercise his powers in this behalf irrespective of the view expressed by the police in their report whether an offence has been made out or not. This is because the police report under Section 173(2) will contain the facts discovered or unearthed by the police as well as the conclusion drawn by the police therefrom. If the Magistrate is satisfied that upon the facts discovered or unearthed by the police there is sufficient material for him to take cognizance of the offence and issue process, the Magistrate may do so without reference to the conclusion drawn by the Investigating Officer because the Magistrate is not bound by the opinion of the police officer as to whether an offence has been made out or not. Alternately the Magistrate, on receiving the police report, may without issuing process or dropping the proceeding proceed to act under Section 200 by taking cognizance of the offence on the basis of the complaint originally submitted to him and proceed to record the statement upon oath of the complaint and the witnesses present and thereafter decide whether the complaint should be dismissed or process should be issued."

37. The question regarding the power of Magistrate to order investigation under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. further came up for consideration before the Apex Court in Sakiri Vasu vs. State of U.P. & Ors.11 wherein it is observed that Section 156(3) provides for a check by the Magistrate on the police performing its duties under Chapter XII of the Code. In case where the Magistrate finds that the police has not done its duties of investigating the case at all or has not done it satisfactorily, he can issue direction to the police to do the investigation properly and can also monitor the same.

38. It was held therein that although Section 156(3) is very briefly worded but there is an implied power with the Magistrate under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. to order registration of a criminal case and/or to direct the officer in charge of the police station concerned to hold a proper investigation and take all such necessary steps that may be necessary for ensuring a proper investigation including monitoring the same.

39. The above view taken in Sakiri Vasu11 is supported by the reasoning therein that even though these powers have not been expressly mentioned in Section 156(3) Cr.P.C., they are implied in the said provision as when a power is given to an authority to do something it includes such incidental or implied powers which would ensure the proper doing of that thing. Relevant paragraph Nos. '18', '19' & '20' are noted as under:-

"18. It is well-settled that when a power is given to an authority to do something it includes such incidental or implied powers which would ensure the proper doing of that thing. In other words, when any power is expressly granted by the statute, there is impliedly included in the grant, even without special mention, every power and every control the denial of which would render the grant itself ineffective. Thus where an Act confers jurisdiction it impliedly also grants the power of doing all such acts or employ such means as are essentially necessary to its execution.

19. The reason for the rule (doctrine of implied power) is quite apparent. Many matters of minor details are omitted from legislation. As Crawford observes in his Statutory Construction (3rd edn. Page 267):-

If these details could not be inserted by implication, the drafting of legislation would be an indeterminable process and the legislative intent would likely be defeated by a most insignificant omission.

20. In ascertaining a necessary implication, the Court simply determines the legislative will and makes it effective. What is necessarily implied is as much part of the statute as if it were specifically written therein."

40. The abovenoted views have been considered in a recent decision in Vinubhai Haribhai and Malaviya & Ors. vs. State of Gujarat & Anr.12 while dealing with the power of the Magistrate to order further investigation under Section 173(8) of the Code after the charge sheet is filed and cognizance is taken. The argument there was that the Magistrate would have no power to order further investigation into an offence after he takes cognizance of the offence on submission of the charge-sheet on the direction issued by it under Section 156(3) of the Code. Dealing with the said argument, it was observed that the power of a Magistrate under Section 156(3) of the Code is very wide, for it is this judicial authority that must be satisfied that a proper investigation by the police takes place.

41. Relevant paragraph '23' of the report is quoted as under:-

"23. It is thus clear that the Magistrates power under Section 156(3) of the CrPC is very wide, for it is this judicial authority that must be satisfied that a proper investigation by the police takes place. To ensure that a proper investigation takes place in the sense of a fair and just investigation by the police - which such Magistrate is to supervise - Article 21 of the Constitution of India mandates that all powers necessary, which may also be incidental or implied, are available to the Magistrate to ensure a proper investigation which, without doubt, would include the ordering of further investigation after a report is received by him under Section 173(2); and which power would Vinubhai Haribhai Malaviya vs The State Of Gujarat on 16 October, 2019 Indian Kanoon continue to enure in such Magistrate at all stages of the criminal proceedings until the trial itself commences. Indeed, even textually, the investigation referred to in Section 156(1) of the CrPC would, as per the definition of investigation under Section 2(h), include all proceedings for collection of evidence conducted by a police officer; which would undoubtedly include proceedings by way of further investigation under Section 173(8) of the CrPC."

42. The Apex Court in Vinubhai12 in paragraph '24' has then considered an earlier three Judge Bench decision in Devarapalli Lakshminarayan Reddy & Ors. vs. V. Narayana Reddy & Ors.13 wherein the question considered was that "in view of clause (a) of the first proviso to Section 202 (1) of the Code a Magistrate who receives a complaint, disclosing an offence exclusively triable the Court of Sessions, is debarred from sending the same to the police for investigation under Section 156(3) of the Code." In the facts of that case, in the complaint of commission of offences under Sections 307, 395, the Magistrate forwarded it to the police for investigation.

43. While dealing with the power of the Magistrate to order police investigation under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C and Section 202 (1) of the Code, it was held in Devapralli13 that there is distinction between a police investigation ordered under Section 156(3) on the one and directed under Section 202(1) Cr.P.C., as two operate in distinct spheres at different stages. Further it was observed that the first is excersiable at the pre-cognizance stage, the second at the post-cognizance stage when the Magistrate is in seisin of the case. That means in the case of a complaint regarding commission of a cognizable offence, the power under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. can be invoked by the Magistrate before he takes cognizance of the offence under Section 190(1)(a) Cr.P.C. But if he once takes such cognizance and embarks upon the procedure embodied in Chapter XV, he is not competent to switch back to the precognizance stage and avail of Section 156(3).

44. Paragraph '17' of Devapralli13 has been noted in paragraph '24' of the report in Vinubhai12 and is extracted as under:-

"24. However, Shri Basant relied strongly on a Three Judge Bench judgment in Devarapalli Lakshminarayana Reddy & Ors. v. V. Narayana Reddy & Ors. (1976) 3 SCC 252. This judgment, while deciding whether the first proviso to Section 202 (1) of the CrPC was attracted on the facts of that case, held:

"17.....It may be noted further that an order made under sub-section (3) of Section 156, is in the nature of a peremptory reminder or intimation to the police to exercise their plenary powers of investigation under Section 156(1). Such an investigation embraces the entire continuous process which begins with the collection of evidence under Section 156 and ends with a report or charge-sheet under Section 173. On the other hand, Section 202 comes in at a stage when some evidence has been collected by the Magistrate in proceedings under Chapter XV, but the same is deemed insufficient to take a decision as to the next step in the prescribed procedure. In such a situation, the Magistrate is empowered under Section 202 to direct, within the limits circumscribed by that section an investigation for the purpose of deciding whether or not there is sufficient ground for proceeding. Thus the object of an investigation under Section 202 is not to initiate a fresh case on police report but to assist the Magistrate in completing proceedings already instituted upon a complaint before him."

This judgment was then followed in Tula Ram & Ors. v. Kishore Singh (1977) 4 SCC 459 at paragraphs 11and 15."

45. It may further be relevant to quote paragraph '25' & '26' of the report in Vinubhai12 which read as under:-

"25. Whereas it is true that Section 156(3) remains unchanged even after the 1973 Code has been brought into force, yet the 1973 Code has one very important addition, namely, Section 173(8), which did not exist under the 1898 Code. As we have noticed earlier in this judgment, Section 2(h) of the 1973 Criminal Procedure Code defines investigation in the same terms as the earlier definition contained in Section 2(l) of the 1898 Criminal Procedure Code with this difference that investigation after the 1973 Code has come into force will now include all the proceedings under the CrPC for collection of evidence conducted by a police officer. All would clearly include proceedings under Vinubhai Haribhai Malaviya vs The State Of Gujarat on 16 October, 2019 Indian Kanoon - http://indiankanoon.org/doc/131202146/
13 Section 173(8) as well. Thus, when Section 156(3) states that a Magistrate empowered under Section 190 may order such an investigation, such Magistrate may also order further investigation under Section 173(8), regard being had to the definition of investigation contained in Section 2(h).

26. Section 2(h) is not noticed by the aforesaid judgment at all, resulting in the erroneous finding in law that the power under Section 156(3) can only be exercised at the pre-cognizance stage. The investigation spoken of in Section 156(3) would embrace the entire process, which begins with the collection of evidence and continues until charges are framed by the Court, at which stage the trial can be said to have begun. For these reasons, the statement of the law contained in paragraph 17 in Devarapalli Lakshminarayana Reddy (supra) cannot be relied upon." (emphasis added)

46. Having carefully gone through the above observations in Vinubhai12, it is evident that the power of a Magistrate to direct the police to conduct "investigation" under Section 156(3) flows in Chapter XII from the power conferred upon it under Section 190 Cr.P.C. under Chapter XIV of the Code to take cognizance of a criminal offence upon receiving an information of commission of offence(s), which is within his competence to inquire into. As noted in Vinubhai12, the investigation "spoken of in Section 156(3) would embrace the entire process, which begins with the collection of evidence and continues until charges are framed by the Court, at which stage the trial can be said to have begun." The statement of law as contained in paragraph '17' in Devarapalli13 noted above that "once the Magistrate takes cognizance of the offence under Section 190(1)(a) and embarks upon the procedure embodied in Chapter XV, he is not competent to switch back to the pre-cognizance stage and avail Section 156(3) to issue direction to the police to conduct investigation for collection of evidence" has been held to be erroneous finding in law, ignoring the language of Section 2(h) of the Code.

47. It was further observed in Vinubhai12 that the provisions of Section 173(8) Cr.P.C. is an important addition in the 1973 Code which did not exist under the 1898 Code whereas Section 156(3) remains unchanged, to hold that "nothing in the provisions of Section 173(1) to 173(7) Cr.P.C. shall be deemed to preclude further investigation in respect to an offence, after a report under Sub-section (2) of Section 173 has been forwarded to the Magistrate." It was held therein that the Court of Magistrate enjoys the jurisdiction to direct further investigation under Section 173(8) into the offence even after taking cognizance on the charge-sheet/police report submitted under Section 173(2) Cr.P.C. Section 173(8) Cr.P.C. opens with Non-obstante clause and, therefore, the power therein cannot be said to have any inhibition.

48. In Vinay Tyagi vs. Irshad Ali @ Deepak & others14 having analysed the provisions of the Code and various judgments of the Apex Court, it is said that:-

40. Having analysed the provisions of the Code and the various judgments as afore-indicated, we would state the following conclusions in regard to the powers of a magistrate in terms of Section 173(2) read with Section 173(8) and Section 156(3) of the Code:

40.1. The Magistrate has no power to direct reinvestigation or fresh investigation (de novo) in the case initiated on the basis of a police report.

40.2. A Magistrate has the power to direct further investigation after filing of a police report in terms of Section 173(6) of the Code.

40.3. The view expressed in (2) above is in conformity with the principle of law stated in Bhagwant Singhs case (supra) by a three Judge Bench and thus in conformity with the doctrine of precedence.

40.4. Neither the scheme of the Code nor any specific provision therein bars exercise of such jurisdiction by the Magistrate. The language of Section 173(2) cannot be construed so restrictively as to deprive the Magistrate of such powers particularly in face of the provisions of Section 156(3) and the language of Section 173(8) itself. In fact, such power would have to be read into the language of Section 173(8).

40.5. The Code is a procedural document, thus, it must receive a construction which would advance the cause of justice and legislative object sought to be achieved. (emphasis added)..... It does not stand to reason that the legislature provided power of further investigation to the police even after filing a report, but intended to curtail the power of the Court to the extent that even where the facts of the case and the ends of justice demand, the Court can still not direct the investigating agency to conduct further investigation which it could do on its own.

40.6. It has been a procedure of proprietary that the police has to seek permission of the Court to continue further investigation and file supplementary chargesheet. This approach has been approved by this Court in a number of judgments. This as such would support the view that we are taking in the present case."

49. In Ramdev Food Products Private Ltd. vs. State of Gujarat15, the dispute was that on a complaint filed by the appellant therein against 14 accused for alleged commission of offences under Sections 409, 420, 406, 467, 468, 471 read with Sections 120-B and 114 of the Penal Code, 1860, the Magistrate passed an order directing the police to give a report to the Court under Section 202(1) of the Code instead of directing investigation under Section 156(3) of the Code, as sought by the appellant. The said order was not interfered by the High Court. Challenging the order of the Magistrate and the High Court, it was argued that the Magistrate has erred in declining to order investigation under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. which was necessary in view of the allegation of forgery of documents and stamp paper by the accused to create backdated partnership deeds by forging signatures of a dead person. Such documents being in custody of the accused could not be otherwise produced except on arrest in the course of investigation and in accordance with Section 27 of the Evidence Act. Option of proceeding under Section 202, as against Section 156(3), has to be exercised only when evidence has already been collected and what remained to be decided was whether there was sufficient ground to proceed. Mere fact that the appellant first approached the police and the police did not register first information report could not be taken against it nor the dispute being of civil nature was a bar to criminal proceedings, if a case was made out. It was further argued that the direction under Section 156(3) for investigation was all the more necessary as under Section 202, the police officer had no power of arrest. In such a situation calling for report under Section 202 will not serve the purpose of finding out the truth. The arrest was integral part of the investigation.

50. In the light of above submissions, one of the questions framed for consideration is as under:-

"6.1 (I) Whether discretion of the Magistrate to call for a report under Section 202 instead of directing investigation under Section 156(3) is controlled by any defined parameters?"

51. To answer the said question, in paragraph '13' of the report, the Court has proceeded to deal with the following question:-

"13. We may first deal with the question as to whether the Magistrate ought to have proceeded under Section 156(3) or was justified in proceeding under Section 202(1) and what are the parameters for exercise of power under the two provisions."

52. The Apex Court after considering the provisions in Chapter XII, Chapter XIV and Chapter XV has considered the law laid down by the Apex Court in Lalita Kumari1 and held in paragraph 19 that:-

"19. Thus, this Court has laid down that while prompt registration of FIR is mandatory, checks and balances on power of police are equally important. Power of arrest or of investigation is not mechanical. It requires application of mind in the manner provided. Existence of power and its exercise are different. Delicate balance had to be maintained between the interest of society and liberty of an individual. Commercial offences have been put in the category of cases where FIR may not be warranted without enquiry."

53. It was further observed in paragraph '20' while relying upon the decision of the Apex Court in Anil Kumar vs. M.K. Aiyappa16 that directions by the Magistrate for investigation under Section 156(3) cannot be given mechanically.

54. It was then held in paragraph '22' to '22.3' to hold as under:-

"22. Thus, we answer the first question by holding that:-

22.1 The direction under Section 156(3) is to be issued, only after application of mind by the Magistrate. When the Magistrate does not take cognizance and does not find it necessary to postpone instance of process and finds a case made out to proceed forthwith, direction under the said provision is issued. In other words, where on account of credibility of information available, or weighing the interest of justice it is considered appropriate to straightaway direct investigation, such a direction is issued.

22.2 The cases where Magistrate takes cognizance and postpones issuance of process are cases where the Magistrate has yet to determine "existence of sufficient ground to proceed". Category of cases falling under Para 120.6 in Lalita Kumari (supra) may fall under Section 202.

22.3 Subject to these broad guidelines available from the scheme of the Code, exercise of discretion by the Magistrate is guided by interest of justice from case to case."

55. Thus, in the whole scheme of the Code of Criminal Procedure as clarified in the pronouncements of the Apex Court ranging from 1951 to 2019, it is evident that if a person has a grievance that his FIR has not been registered by the police, his first remedy is to approach the Superintendent of Police under Section 154(3) Cr.P.C. or other police officer referred to in Section 36 Cr.P.C. If his grievances still persist, then he can approach a Magistrate under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. He has a further remedy of filing a criminal complaint under Section 200 Cr.P.C. On receipt of the complaint, however, several courses are open to the Magistrate:-

(i) He may take cognizance of the offence at once and proceed to record statements of the complaints and the witnesses present under Section 200, and proceed under Chapter XV and Chapter XVI, accordingly.

(ii) If, he thinks fit, he may postpone the issue of process and either inquire into the case himself or direct an investigation to be made by the police officer or such other process as he may thinks fit, for the purpose of deciding whether or nor there is sufficient ground for proceeding. He may then issue process if in his opinion there is sufficient ground of proceeding; or dismiss the complaint if there is no sufficient ground for proceeding.

(iii) Yet another course open to the Magistrate is that instead of taking cognizance of the offence and following the procedure laid down under Section 200 or Section 202, he may order investigation to be made by the police under Section 156(3).

(iv) On receiving the police report, the Magistrate may take cognizance of the offence under Section 190(1)(b) and issue process straightway to the accused. The Magistrate may exercise his power in this behalf irrespective of the view expressed by the police in their report whether an offence has been made out or not. This is because the Magistrate is not bound by the opinion of the police officer as to whether an offence has been made out or not.

56. Thus, the above discussion pertaining to the power of the Magistrate under Section 156(3) in Chapter XII read with Section 190 in Chapter XIV of the Code leaves no room for doubt that there is nothing in the Code of the Criminal Procedure, which curtails or puts any embargo on the power of the Magistrate to make an "inquiry" as defined under Section 2(g) of the Code or to order for "investigation" defined under Section 2(h) of the Code, in dealing with the application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. i.e. in exercise of the power conferred upon it under Chapter XII or Chapter XIV of the Code to satisfy itself about the veracity of the allegations of commission of a criminal offence made therein.

57. In its discretionary power, it is open for the Magistrate to direct the police to register a criminal case under Section 154 Cr.P.C. and conduct investigation. At the same time, it is open for the Magistrate, where the facts of the case and the ends of justice so demand, to take cognizance of the matter by treating it as a complaint and proceed for the "inquiry" under Section 200 and 202 Cr.P.C.

58. It cannot be said nor it could be demonstrated that in each case, without application of its independent mind, the Magistrate shall issue simply direction "to register and investigate" i.e. to lodge a first information report on an application filed under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. The power to conduct a preliminary inquiry into the report of commission of criminal offence(s), conferred on the Magistrate within the scheme of the Code of Criminal Procedure has not been curtailed by any of the observations made by the Apex Court in the case of Lalita Kumari1.

59. However, it is pertinent to note that while exercising its discretionary power under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C., the Magistrate like any other Court of discretionary jurisdiction is to act fairly and consciously and ensure that the discretion conferred upon it is exercised within the limits of judicial discretion. The entire emphasis is to act in an unbiased and just manner, strictly in accordance with law, to find out the truth of the case which shall come before it.

60. It is a Magistrate who is the competent authority to take cognizance of an offence and it is his duty to decide whether on the basis of the record and documents produced, an offence is made out or not and if made out, what course of law should be adopted. Emphasis is laid to the statement in Vinubhai12, wherein it is stated that "it is the judicial conscience of the Magistrate which has to be satisfied with reference to the record and the documents placed before him by the investigating agency, in coming to an appropriate conclusion in consonance with the principles of law." It would not be out of place to note para '17' of the report in Vinubhai12 at this stage:-

"17. It is clear that a fair trial must kick off only after an investigation is itself fair and just. The ultimate aim of all investigation and inquiry, whether by the police or by the Magistrate, is to ensure that those who have actually committed a crime are correctly booked, and those who have not are not arraigned to stand trial. That this is the minimal procedural requirement that is the fundamental requirement of Article 21 of the Constitution of India cannot be doubted. It is the hovering omnipresence of Article 21 over the CrPC that must needs inform the interpretation of all the provisions of the CrPC, so as to ensure that Article 21 is followed both in letter and in spirit." (emphasis added)

61. Applying the above legal principles, in the facts of the present case, this Court finds that the application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. was filed after a period of two months of the alleged incident and it was noted by the Court concerned that nothing could be traced in favour of the prosecution by medical examination etc. In the circumstances before it, the Court deemed it fair, just and proper to search the evidence(s) which is/are well known to the applicant and in his possession so as to find out the truth of the allegations in the application.

62. Having perused the contents of the application and the order of the Court below, it cannot be said that the Court concerned has committed illegally in exercise of its discretionary jurisdiction under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. or it has exceeded in its jurisdiction in any manner or has exercised jurisdiction not vested in it in law. It cannot be said also that any material injustice has been caused to the applicant on account of the decision of the Court below to treat the application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. as a complaint for the purpose of deciding whether or not there is sufficient ground for proceeding, rather than directing the police to register an FIR and investigate under Section 154 of the Code.

63. The judgment of this Court dated 07.12.2019 in the Application u/s 482 No. 44699 of 2019 (Maneeta vs. State of UP), relied upon by the learned counsel for the revisionist is based on the facts of that case and is of no benefit to the revisionist herein.

64. No illegality much less procedural irregularity can be found in the order passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.1, Kushinagar, which would warrant interference by this Court in exercise of its revisional jurisdiction.

65. The revision is, thus, found devoid of merits and hence dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manoj Misra, J. & Hon'ble Suresh Kumar Gupta, J).)

1. We have heard the learned counsel for the petitioners; Sri Deepak Mishra, the learned A.G.A., for the respondents 1, 2 and 3; Sri Abhishek Srivastava for the respondent no.4; and have perused the record.

2. The instant petition seeks quashing of the first information report (in short FIR) dated 20.10.2015 which has been lodged at P.S. Kavi Nagar, District-

Ghaziabad as Case Crime No. 1343 of 2015, under Sections 420, 407, 468, 471, 406 and 120-B I.P.C.

3. The impugned first information report has been lodged by an authorized representative of Edelweiss Housing Finance Ltd. (respondent no.4) against the petitioners and one Smt. Geeta Devi (non-petitioner).

4. The allegations in the first information report are: that Edelweiss Housing Finance Ltd. (for short informant company) is a registered company doing business in financing, housing loans, etc.; that in the month of December 2012/January 2013, the accused-petitioners, some of whom are directors in M/s Pooja Quench Distributors India Pvt. Ltd (petitioner no.1), applied to the informant company for a housing loan to purchase a property i.e. House No. KF 41, Kavi Nagar, Ghaziabad by creation of mortgage thereon; that in connection therewith, property papers of the aforementioned property, which was stated to be owned by Geeta Devi (co-accused - non-petitioner), were shown to the informant company to indicate that the said property was allotted and leased to Devendra Kumar Jain (allottee) by Improvement Trust (currently Ghaziabad Development Authority), vide lease deed dated 02.02.1977, which was assigned to Smt. Geeta Devi, vide instrument dated 19.07.1978, following which, Geeta Devi obtained freehold rights from Ghaziabad Development Authority vide instrument dated 22.03.2005; that by disclosing that the said property has been purchased by the petitioners from Geeta Devi, vide sale-deed dated 08.03.2013, and by depositing papers thereof, loan of Rs. 3 crores, to finance the purchase, was obtained from the informant company, which was disbursed by the informant company by issuing bank draft of Rs. 3 crores in favour of Geeta Devi; that after paying few installments, in between April 2013 and October 2013, the accused-petitioners defaulted in payment of the installments; that, consequently, the informant company tried to contact the borrowers and when it failed in its efforts, an officer of the informant company was deputed for enquiry / inspection, whereupon, it was found that the property wore locks of IDBI Bank; that, when a detailed enquiry was made, it was found that the said property had been purchased by a person named Rajesh Singh, who had borrowed loan from IDBI Bank against mortgage of the property and, as he had defaulted in repayment of the loan, the IDBI Bank had taken possession thereof; that upon further enquiry, it was found that the purchaser company (M/s. Puja Quench Distributors Pvt. Ltd - petitioner no.1) through its Director (Sunder Singh-petitioner no.2) and other co-purchasers, namely, Smt. Kamlesh Singh (petitioner no.3) and Rajendra Kumar (petitioner no.4) for the purpose of obtaining loan facility had set up an impostor of Geeta Devi as also fabricated papers to show execution of sale-deed in their favour. Thus, in pith and substance, the allegations in the impugned first information report are that by setting up forged and fabricated documents, loan was obtained from a finance company with an intent to defraud the finance company.

5. The petitioners have not disputed that the sale-deed, which was deposited with the informant, was a forged and fabricated document and that it was executed by an impostor of Geeta Devi. Rather, the case of the petitioners is that they are innocent and they had no reason to suspect that their vendor is an impostor of Geeta Devi. In that regard, it would be apposite to reproduce paragraphs 13, 14 and 15 of the writ petition, which are extracted below:-

"13. That petitioner was accosted by the accused, father-in-law Bhan Singh Nagar, brother-in-law Ved Prakash Nagar and Manoj Nagar all residents of KI 140 Kavi Nagar, Ghaziabad, who are all related as in-laws to his younger brother Rajkumar with the proposal for the sale of house and property located at KF 41 Kavi Nagar, Ghaziabad.

14. That the aforementioned accused presented one imposter a lady Smt. Geeta Devi as the owner of the property at KF 41 Kavi Nagar, Ghaziabad which she wanted to sell and further claimed that they had advanced some amount to this lady aforementioned.

15. That the petitioners had no reason to suspect all that was falsely projected before him as the accused were closely related to his younger brother."

6. However, the petition has not been pressed on that ground. This petition has been pressed by claiming that the police after registration of the first information report had investigated the matter and had submitted a final report on 09.11.2015; that to the final report, a protest petition was filed by the informant, upon which a direction was issued by the concerned Magistrate for further investigation; that pursuant to the order for further investigation, the matter was investigated and the police, yet again, submitted a final report on 30.11.2017; that on the said final report, again, by order dated 18.09.2018, the Court of A.C.J.M.-VIth, Ghaziabad, upon protest by the informant, rejected the final report and remanded the matter for further investigation; that, in between, on 16.11.2018, the petitioners, as borrowers, have entered into a settlement/compromise with the informant (creditor) and, by now, abiding the terms of the settlement, borrowers have paid off the dues therefore, as the informant company is not interested in pursuing the matter, the first information report should be quashed.

7. From the averments made in paragraph 9 of the petition, it appears that pursuant to the order of the concerned Magistrate, dated 18.09.2018, directing further investigation, the investigation is in progress. Interestingly, neither the order directing further investigation has been brought on record nor it has been challenged in this petition. It has also not been urged before us that the said order has been challenged in any proceeding and that it has been stayed or set aside.

8. On 18.04.2019, Sri Abhishek Srivastava, who had appeared for the respondent no.4, had stated before the Court that he would have no objection if the impugned first information report is quashed. But he, however, sought time to file an affidavit.

9. Pursuant to the order dated 18.04.2019, Sri Abhishek Srivastava, Advocate, has filed an affidavit of Sri Ragvendra Singh, Law Officer / Authorised representative of the informant company, stating that, as per the terms and conditions of settlement entered by the parties, Rs. 1.5 crores has been received, as per schedule, towards full satisfaction of the informant company. In paragraph 7 of that affidavit, it is stated that since the parties have not only arrived at a settlement but also complied with the terms and conditions of the settlement dated 16.11.2018, the informant company does not want to prosecute the petitioners any further.

10. The learned counsel for the petitioners, by placing reliance on decisions of the Apex Court in Manoj Sharma v. State : 2008 (16) SCC 1; Central Bureau of Investigation, ACB, Mumbai v. Narendra Lal Jain and others : (2014) 5 SCC 364; and Gian Singh v. State of Punjab and another : (2012) 10 SCC 303, has submitted that in view of compromise between the parties, the first information report for offences punishable under Sections 420, 468, 471, 34 and 120-B I.P.C. can and ought to be quashed even though the offences might be non-compoundable.

11. Learned A.G.A. has submitted that cases of economic offences or bank fraud or fraud relating to financial institutions stand on a different footing as they have an impact on the society at large and therefore neither the FIR nor the proceedings in pursuance thereof can be quashed on the basis of compromise between immediately affected parties. In such matters the proceeding would have to be brought to its logical conclusion as per law. He has further submitted that, in the instant case, the petitioners have not disputed the position that the sale-deed was obtained from an impostor of the owner and the same was used for creating a mortgage to obtain loan from a public limited company. It was urged that though it may be true that the informant company might have entered into a settlement with the borrower but who set up the impostor; who was behind the fraud; as to why funds were released without proper verification of the documents; whether original documents were at all there, if so, whether they were checked, are all issues which concern the society at large, inasmuch as the informant is a public limited company, where members of public must have subscribed to its capital, and there may be lenders lending there money to it. He submitted that such financial frauds have a cascading effect on the economy of the nation and destroys faith in the financial system. He has thus submitted that this is not a case where the first information report or the consequential investigation should be quashed on the basis of compromise between immediately affected parties. In support of his submission, the learned A.G.A. has placed reliance on decisions of the Apex Court in State of Maharastra through CBI v. Vikram Anantrai Doshi and others : (2014) 15 SCC 29; and in Gopakumar B. Nair v. Central Bureau of Investigation and another : (2014) 5 SCC 800. He has thus prayed that the petition be dismissed and the investigation be allowed to come to its logical conclusion.

12. We have considered the rival submissions and have perused the record carefully.

13. A perusal of the record including the pleading of the writ petitioners would reflect that even the petitioners do not dispute that the sale-deed which was submitted for obtaining loan was a false document and was executed by an impostor. Though it has not been brought to our notice as to why, earlier, final report was submitted as also why further investigation was directed by the concerned Magistrate but, what is clear is that, the order of further investigation is operating. The only question therefore that remains for us to examine, is whether on the basis of a private settlement between borrower and the creditor, the investigation on the first information report, which discloses commission of non-compoundable offences, relating to forgery and setting up of forged documents to obtain loan from a public limited finance company, can be quashed.

14. The issue as to when a non-compoundable offence can be quashed on the basis of a compromise had been an issue engaging attention of the courts time and again. A three Judge Bench of the Apex Court in Gian Singh's case (supra) had laid down law in that regard, as found in paragraph 61 of the report, which is extracted below:-

"61. The position that emerges from the above discussion can be summarised thus: the power of the High Court in quashing a criminal proceeding or FIR or complaint in exercise of its inherent jurisdiction is distinct and different from the power given to a criminal court for compounding the offences under Section 320 of the Code. Inherent power is of wide plenitude with no statutory limitation but it has to be exercised in accord with the guideline engrafted in such power viz; (i) to secure the ends of justice or (ii) to prevent abuse of the process of any Court. In what cases power to quash the criminal proceeding or complaint or F.I.R may be exercised where the offender and victim have settled their dispute would depend on the facts and circumstances of each case and no category can be prescribed. However, before exercise of such power, the High Court must have due regard to the nature and gravity of the crime. Heinous and serious offences of mental depravity or offences like murder, rape, dacoity, etc. cannot be fittingly quashed even though the victim or victim's family and the offender have settled the dispute. Such offences are not private in nature and have serious impact on society. Similarly, any compromise between the victim and offender in relation to the offences under special statutes like Prevention of Corruption Act or the offences committed by public servants while working in that capacity etc; cannot provide for any basis for quashing criminal proceedings involving such offences. But the criminal cases having overwhelmingly and predominatingly civil flavour stand on different footing for the purposes of quashing, particularly the offences arising from commercial, financial, mercantile, civil, partnership or such like transactions or the offences arising out of matrimony relating to dowry, etc. or the family disputes where the wrong is basically private or personal in nature and the parties have resolved their entire dispute. In this category of cases, High Court may quash criminal proceedings if in its view, because of the compromise between the offender and victim, the possibility of conviction is remote and bleak and continuation of criminal case would put accused to great oppression and prejudice and extreme injustice would be caused to him by not quashing the criminal case despite full and complete settlement and compromise with the victim. In other words, the High Court must consider whether it would be unfair or contrary to the interest of justice to continue with the criminal proceeding or continuation of the criminal proceeding would tantamount to abuse of process of law despite settlement and compromise between the victim and wrongdoer and whether to secure the ends of justice, it is appropriate that criminal case is put to an end and if the answer to the above question(s) is in affirmative, the High Court shall be well within its jurisdiction to quash the criminal proceeding."

15. From above extract, it is clear that before exercising extraordinary power to quash the FIR or the proceeding, relating to a non-compoundable offence, on the basis of a compromise, the High Court must have due regard to the nature and gravity of the crime so as to ascertain whether it has serious impact on society.

16. In cases relating to financial fraud, particularly, where forged papers are set up for obtaining loan facility; and those relating to prevention of corruption matters, the apex court had been consistent in its view that such matters affect the society at large. In this regard, it would be worthwhile to notice the decision of the apex court in State of Maharastra through CBI v. Vikram Anantrai Doshi and others (supra) where it has been observed as follows:-

"26. We are in respectful agreement with the aforesaid view. Be it stated, that availing of money from a nationalized bank in the manner, as alleged by the investigating agency, vividly exposits fiscal impurity and, in a way, financial fraud. The modus operandi as narrated in the chargesheet cannot be put in the compartment of an individual or personal wrong. It is a social wrong and it has immense societal impact. It is an accepted principle of handling of finance that whenever there is manipulation and cleverly conceived contrivance to avail of these kind of benefits it cannot be regarded as a case having overwhelmingly and predominantingly of civil character. The ultimate victim is the collective. It creates a hazard in the financial interest of the society. The gravity of the offence creates a dent in the economic spine of the nation. The cleverness which has been skillfully contrived, if the allegations are true, has a serious consequence. A crime of this nature, in our view, would definitely fall in the category of offences which travel far ahead of personal or private wrong. It has the potentiality to usher in economic crisis. Its implications have its own seriousness, for it creates a concavity in the solemnity that is expected in financial transactions. It is not such a case where one can pay the amount and obtain a "no due certificate" and enjoy the benefit of quashing of the criminal proceeding on the hypostasis that nothing more remains to be done. The collective interest of which the Court is the guardian cannot be a silent or a mute spectator to allow the proceedings to be withdrawn, or for that matter yield to the ingenuous dexterity of the accused persons to invoke the jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution or under Section 482 of the Code and quash the proceeding. It is not legally permissible. The Court is expected to be on guard to these kinds of adroit moves. The High Court, we humbly remind, should have dealt with the matter keeping in mind that in these kind of litigations the accused when perceives a tiny gleam of success, readily invokes the inherent jurisdiction for quashing of the criminal proceeding. The court's principal duty, at that juncture, should be to scan the entire facts to find out the thrust of allegations and the crux of the settlement. It is the experience of the Judge comes to his aid and the said experience should be used with care, caution, circumspection and courageous prudence. As we find in the case at hand the learned Single Judge has not taken pains to scrutinize the entire conspectus of facts in proper perspective and quashed the criminal proceeding. The said quashment neither helps to secure the ends of justice nor does it prevent the abuse of the process of the Court nor can it be also said that as there is a settlement no evidence will come on record and there will be remote chance of conviction. Such a finding in our view would be difficult to record. Be that as it may, the fact remains that the social interest would be on peril and the prosecuting agency, in these circumstances, cannot be treated as an alien to the whole case. Ergo, we have no other option but to hold that the order of the High Court is wholly indefensible."

17. Likewise, in Gopakumar B. Nair's case (supra), by taking a similar view, a three Judges Bench of the Apex Court had refused to quash the proceedings against a borrower on account of alleged settlement with the Bank upon finding that the accused had also been charged for commission of substantive offence under Section 471 IPC. In that regard, it would be useful to reproduce paragraph 14 of the judgment, as reported, which is extracted below:-

"The aforesaid principle of law may now be applied to the facts of the present case. At the very outset a detailed narration of the charges against the accused-appellant has been made. The appellant has been charged with the offence of criminal conspiracy to commit the offence under Section 13(1)(d). He is also substantively charged under Section 420 (compoundable with the leave of the Court) and Section 471 (non-compoundable). A careful consideration of the facts of the case would indicate that unlike in Nikhil Merchant (supra) no conclusion can be reached that the substratum of the charges against the accused-appellant in the present case is one of cheating nor are the facts similar to those in Narendra Lal Jain (supra) where the accused was charged under Section 120-B read with Section 420 IPC only. The offences are certainly more serious; they are not private in nature. The charge of conspiracy is to commit offences under the Prevention of Corruption Act. The accused has also been charged for commission of the substantive offence under Section 471 IPC. Though the amounts due have been paid the same is under a private settlement between the parties unlike in Nikhil Merchant (supra) and Narendra Lal Jain (supra) where the compromise was a part of the decree of the Court. There is no acknowledgement on the part of the bank of the exoneration of the criminal liability of the accused-appellant unlike the terms of compromise decree in the aforesaid two cases. In the totality of the facts stated above, if the High Court has taken the view that the exclusion spelt out in Gian Singh (supra) (para 61) applies to the present case and on that basis had come to the conclusion that the power under Section 482 CrPC should not be exercised to quash the criminal case against the accused, we cannot find any justification to interfere with the said decision."

18. In Central Bureau of Investigation v. Jagjit Singh : (2013) 10 SCC 686, a first information report was registered against Director of Company and Officers of Indian Overseas Bank on allegations that the accused obtained loan for his company against security on forged/ fabricated documents and Indian Overseas Bank including its officers and managers helped him in obtaining such loan. Later, the borrower settled the dispute with Indian Overseas Bank and paid the amount, pursuant to the order passed by Debt Recovery Tribunal, Calcutta. By giving reference of the order of the Debt Recovery Tribunal, the accused moved an application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. before the High Court for quashing the criminal proceedings on the ground that in view of the alleged amicable settlement between the parties, the proceedings were liable to be quashed. The High Court quashed the proceedings against which the Central Bureau of Investigation filed an appeal before the Apex Court. Allowing the appeal and setting aside the order passed by the High Court, the Apex Court observed that the offences when committed in relation with Banking activities, including offences under Section 420/471 IPC, have harmful effect on the public and threaten the well being of the society. It was observed that one may say that the bank is the victim in such cases but, in fact, the society in general, including customers of the Bank is the sufferer.

19. Similarly, in Central Bureau of Investigation v. Maninder Singh : (2016) 1 SCC 389, the Apex Court, in paragraph 16, had observed as follows:-

"16. The allegation against the respondent is "forgery' for the purpose of cheating and use of forged documents as genuine in order to embezzle the public money. After facing such serious charges of forgery, the respondent wants the proceedings to be quashed on account of settlement with the bank. The development in means of communication, science & technology etc. have led to an enormous increase in economic crimes viz. phishing, ATM frauds etc. which are being committed by intelligent but devious individuals involving huge sums of public or government money. These are actually public wrongs or crimes committed against society and the gravity and magnitude attached to these offences is concentrated at public at large."

20. At this stage, it may be noticed that in the decision of Central Bureau of Investigation, ACB, Mumbai v. Narendra Lal Jain (supra), on which reliance has been placed by the petitioner, the Apex Court had approved quashing of the proceeding by the High Court on the basis of settlement as there was no allegation of using a forged document for the purpose of obtaining loan. The decision in Narendra Lal Jain's case (supra) was considered and distinguished in Gopakumar B. Nair's case (supra) by observing that in Narendra Lal Jain's case (supra), the accused was charged for offences punishable under Section 120-B read with Section 420 I.P.C. only and there was no charge of an offence punishable under Section 471 I.P.C.

21. The question therefore that now arises for our consideration is whether the facts giving rise to the impugned FIR reflects a private dispute between borrower and the creditor or it has larger ramification that affects the society at large. If we hold that such transaction would have affect on the society then, on the basis of private settlement between borrower and creditor, the first information report can not be quashed.

22. To answer the above question, we would have to analyze the thrust of the allegations made in the impugned first information report. The thrust of the allegations is that the borrowers had set up a false document for the purpose of taking loan from a public limited housing finance company and, after payment of few installments, they committed default and, when it was inquired, it was found that the property belonging to someone else was mortgaged by setting up a false document. The first information report was lodged in the year 2015 whereas the settlement between the parties came in the year 2018 much after the order of the Magistrate directing further investigation in the matter.

23. Whether the aforesaid transaction has potential to have an impact on the society at large would have to be examined with reference to the manner in which a finance company functions.

24. The business of a public limited finance company, as is the case here, is ordinarily run by borrowing funds from open market and by subscription of its shares by members of the public. In a public limited company, the shareholders and the creditors put their money to run its business. Finance companies may also generate finances by taking deposits from members of public. Therefore if a finance company is defrauded, the impact of its financial morass would be on the public at large and such impact may shake the confidence of the public in the financial system.

25. In view of the above, keeping in mind the law laid down by the Apex Court noticed above, we are of the considered view that an act of defrauding a public limited finance company by setting up forged papers, is an act which has potential to affect the society at large and, therefore, a criminal case based on such a transaction cannot be quashed on the basis of settlement or compromise.

26. A fortiorari, the prayer of the petitioners to quash the first information report and the consequential investigation, cannot be accepted. The petition is dismissed. It is made clear that we have not expressed any opinion on the merits of the allegations made in the impugned FIR.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Anil Kumar-IX, J)

1. Heard Sri Vinai Shankar Singh, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Virendra Singh Rajbhar, learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. This writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India is directed against the order dated 30.10.2019 passed by Commissioner Meerut Division, Meerut (O.P. No.2) as well as order dated 25.09.2019 passed by Additional District Magistrate (Administration), Gautam Budh Nagar directing externment of the petitioner for a period of six months under Section 3 of U.P. Control of Goondas' Act, 1970 (hereinafter referred to as 'Act').

3. Briefly stated the relevant facts giving rise to the present writ petition are that the A.D.M. (Administration) Gautam Budh Nagar on 31.07.2019 issued notice to the petitioner under Section 3 of the Act with the allegation that on the basis of information received by him it appeared that Parvindra (Petitioner) s/o Baraf Singh resident of village Navada, Police Station-Bita-2, District- Gautam Budh Nagar commits offence under Chapter XVI, XVII or XXII of I.P.C., his general reputation is that he terrorizes the people and he is dangerous to the community, he operates his activity within the area of Gautam Budh Nagar. No person is ready to give evidence against him on account of his arduous activities. He is an accused in Case Crime No. 772 of 2018, under Section 384 I.P.C. P.S. Bita-2 which was registered on written report of the police Sub-Inspector. This notice also refers beat report no.43 dated 27.06.2019 received without any detail regarding subject matter of the beat information.

4. The petitioner by the said notice was called upon to furnish written explanation as to why an externment order be not passed against him under Section 3 (3) of the Act. The petitioner was served with the notice, he appeared before the learned Additional District Magistrate and submitted his detailed written explanation enclosing certain documents, copy of the said notice is annexed as Annexure no.3 to the affidavit. On the basis of materials available on record, learned Additional District Magistrate (O.P. No.3) declared him to be 'Goonda' and passed order for his externment for a period of six months by the impugned order dated 25.09.2019.

5. Against the aforesaid order dated 25.09.2019 passed by O.P. No.3, petitioner preferred an appeal before Commissioner Meerut Division, Meerut (O.P. No.2) on 03.10.2019 under Section 6 of Goondas Act that was dismissed by the impugned order dated 30.10.2019 passed by O.P. No.2.

6. Being aggrieved by the aforesaid both the impugned orders this writ petition has been moved by the petitioner.

7. It was submitted by the learned counsel for the petitioner that show cause notice issued against the petitioner suffer from the vice of totally application of mind. It was next submitted that neither the petitioner have criminal antecedents nor he has been involved in any anti social activity, except the solitary case shown in the notice. The show cause notice was issued against the petitioner only on the ground of his involvement in a solitary case. Thus, the petitioner does not come within the meaning of 'Goonda' as defined under Section 2(b) of the Act. The petitioner filed his objection to the show cause notice but the respondent no.3 rejected the same and passed the impugned order. The respondent no.2 has also wrongly affirmed the order passed by the respondent no.3. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submitted that the Division Bench of this Court in the case of Imran @ Abdul Quddus Khan Vs. State of U.P. and other reported in 2000 (suppl.) ACC 171 (HC) has taken the view that for a person to be a 'Goonda' under Sub Section (1) (b) of the Act, it is to be a person who has to his credit repeated/persistent overt acts not isolated and individual act and in view of the above, the impugned orders are liable to be quashed. In support of his submission learned counsel for the petitioner has also placed reliance in Shankar Ji Shukla Vs. Ayukt Allahabad Mandal and others reported in 2005 (52) ACC 633.

8. Learned A.G.A. submitted that the petitioner failed to make out any case for quashing the orders. It was further submitted that a single act or omission is enough to treat the person concerned as an anti social element. There is no illegality or infirmity in the impugned orders warranting interference by this Court.

9. I have considered the submissions made by learned counsel for the parties and perused the impugned orders, further materials brought on record and case law cited by learned counsel for the petitioner in support of his submission.

10. The law of preventive detention is a hard law and, therefore, it should be strictly construed and care should taken that the liberty of a person is not jeopardized unless his case falls squarely within the four corners of the relevant law. The law of preventive detention should not be used merely to clip the wings of the accused who is involved in a criminal prosecution. It is not intended for purpose of keeping a man under detention when under ordinary criminal law it may not be possible to resist the issue of order of bail, unless the material available is such as would satisfy the requirements of the legal provisions authorising such detention. When a person is enlarged on bail by a competent criminal Court, great caution should be exercised in scrutinizing the validity of an order of preventive detention which is based on the very same charge which is to be tried by the criminal Court.

11. A Division Bench of this Court in the case of Imran alias Abdul Quddus Khan (supra) while examining the question whether a person can be labelled as 'Goonda' and notice under Section 3(3) of the U.P. Control of Goondas Act can be clamped upon him only on the basis of a solitary incident has, in paragraph nos. 11, 12, 13 and 14 of its aforesaid judgment, observed as under :-

"11. Ex facie, a person is termed as a 'goonda' if he is a habitual criminal. The provisions of section 2 (b) of the Act are almost akin to the expression 'anti social element' occurring in section 2 (d) of Bihar Prevention of Crimes Act, 1981. In the context of the expression 'anti social element' the connotation 'habitually commits' came to be interpreted by the apex court in the case of Vijay Narain Singh V. State of Bihar and others (1984) 3 SCC-14. The meaning put to the aforesaid expression by the apex court would squarely apply to the expression used in the Act, in question. The majority view was that the word 'habitually' means 'repeatedly' or 'persistently'. It implies a thread of continuity stringing together similar repetitive acts. Repeated, persistent and similar but not isolated, individual and dissimilar acts are necessary to justify an inference of habit. It connotes frequent commission of acts or omissions of the same kind referred to in each of the said sub-clauses or an aggregate of similar acts or omissions. Even the minority view which was taken in Vijay Narain's case (supra) was that the word 'habitually' means 'by force of habit'. It is the force of habit inherent or latent in an individual with a criminal instinct with a criminal disposition of mind, that makes a person accustomed to lead a life of crime posing danger to the society in general. If a person with criminal tendencies consistently or persistently or repeatedly commits or attempts to commit or abets the commission of offences punishable under the specified chapters of the Code, he should be considered to be an 'anti social element'. There are thus two views with regard to the expression 'habitually' flowing from the decision of Vijay Narain's case (supra). The majority was inclined to give a restricted meaning to the word 'habitually' as denoting 'repetitive' and that on the basis of a single act cannot be said to be forming the habit of the person. That is to say, the act complained of must be repeated more than once and be inherent in his nature. The minority view is that a person in habitual criminal who by force of habit or inward disposition inherent or latent in him has grown accustomed to lead a life of crime. In simple language, the minority view was expressed that the word 'habitually; means 'by force of habit'. The minority view is based on the meaning given in stroud's Judicial Dictionary, Fourth Ed. Vol. II? 1204-habitually requires a continuance and permanence of some tendency, something that has developed into a propensity, that is, present from day to day. Thus, the word- 'habitual' connotes some degree of frequency and continuity.

12. The word 'habit' has a clear well understood meaning being nearly the same as 'accustomed' and cannot be applied to single act. When we speak of habit of a person, we prefer to his customary conduct to pursue, which he has acquired a tendency from frequent repetitions. In B.N. Singh V. State of U.P.AI.R. 1960-Allahabad ?754 it was observed that it would be incorrect to say that a person has a habit of anything from a single act. In the Law Lexicon ? Encyclopedic Law Dictionary, 1997 Ed. by P. Ramanatha Aiyer, the expression 'habitual' has been defined to mean as constant, customary and addicted to a specified habit; formed or acquired by or resulting from habit; frequent use or custom formed by repeated impressions. The term 'habitual criminal', it is stated may be applied to any one, who has been previously more than twice convicted of crime, sentenced and committed to prison. The word 'habit' means persistence in doing an act, a fact, which is capable of proof by adducing evidence of the commission of a number of similar acts. 'Habitually' must be taken to mean repeatedly or persistently. It does not refer to frequency INDIAN LAW REPORTS 6 ALLAHABAD SERIES [2000 of the occasions but rather to the invariability of the practice.

13. The expression 'habitual criminal' is the same thing as the 'habitual offender' within the meaning of section 110 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973. This preventive Section deals for requiring security for good behavior from 'habitual offenders'. The expression 'habitually' in the aforesaid section has been used in the sense of depravity of character as evidenced by frequent repetition or commission of offence. It means repetition or persistency in doing an act and not an inclination by nature, that is, commission of same acts in the past and readiness to commit them again where there is an opportunity.

14. Expressions like 'by habit' 'habitual' 'desperate' 'dangerous' and 'hazardous' cannot be flung in the face of a man with laxity or semantics. The court must insist on specificity of facts and a consistent course of conduct convincingly enough to draw the rigorous inference that by confirmed habit, the petitioner is sure to commit the offence if not externed or say directed to take himself out of the district. It is not a case where the petitioner has ever involved himself in committing the crime or has adopted crime as his profession. There is not even faint or feeble material against the petitioner that he is a person of a criminal propensity. The case of the petitioner does not come in either of the clauses of Section 2 (b) of the Act, which defines the expression 'Goonda'. Therefore, to outright label bona fide student as 'goonda' was not only arbitrary capricious and unjustified but also counter productive. A bona fide student who is pursing his studies in the Post Graduate course and has never seen the world of the criminals is now being forced to enter the arena. The intention of the Act is to afford protection to the public against hardened or habitual criminals or bullies or dangerous or desperate class who menace the security of a person or of property. The order of externment under the Act is required to be passed against persons who cannot readily be brought under the ordinary penal law and who for personal reasons cannot be convicted for the offences said to have been committed by them. The legislation is preventive and not punitive. Its sole purpose is to protect the citizens from the habitual criminals and to secure future good behavior and not to punish the innocent students. The Act is a powerful tool for the control and suppression of the 'Goondas'; it should be used very sparingly in very clear cases of 'public disorder' or for the maintenance of 'public order'. If the provisions of the Act are recklessly used without adopting caution and desecretion, it may easily become an engine of operession. Its provisions are not intended to secure indirectly a conviction in case where a prosecution for a substantial offence is likely to fail. Similarly the Act should not obviously be used against mere innocent people or to march over the opponents who are taking recourse to democratic process to get their certain demands fulfilled or to wreck the private vengeance."

15. In the case of Shankar Ji Shukla Vs. Ayukt Allahabad Mandal, Allahabad (supra) the word "habitually" came for consideration before this Court. The Court relying on its previous judgement in the case of Imran @ Abdul Quddus Khan Vs. State of U.P. and others reported in 2000 SCC 171 Alld., as well as the case of Vijay Narain Singh Vs. State of Bihar and others 1984 (3) SCC 14 decided by the Hon'ble Apex Court held that a single or two acts of the accused will not be sufficient to hold that he is habitually involved in commission of the offences referred in the Act.

16. Thus, what follows from the above is that a person can be termed as 'Goonda' and clamped with a show cause notice under Section 3(3) of the Act when there is material indicating that he either by himself or as a member or leader or a gang, habitually commits or attempts to commit, or abet the commission of the offences punishable under Sections 153, 153(b) or Section 294 I.P.C. or Chapter XV, or Chapter XVI, Chapter XVII or Chapter XXII of the I.P.C. or has been convicted for an offence punishable under the Suppression of Immoral Traffic in Women and Girls Act, 1956 or under the U.P. Excise Act, 1910 or the Public Gambling Act, 1867 or Section 25, Section 27 or Section 29 of the Arms Act, 1959 is generally reputed to be a person who is desperate and dangerous to the community or has been habitually passing indecent remarks or teasing women or girls as tout.

17. In the present case, the show cause notice was issued by the O.P. No.3 against the petitioner on the basis of his involvement in only one case, namely Case Crime No. 772 of 2018, Section 384 I.P.C., P.S. Bita-2, District Gautam Budh Nagar. The show cause notice also refers to a beat information report no.43 dated 27.06.2019 recorded without any detail with regard to the subject matter of the beat information.

18. From the above facts and discussion, it appears that the respondent no.3 without applying his judicial mind and observing the provision of law has issued the show cause notice under the Act in routine, casual and mechanical manner and passed the impugned order dated 25.09.2019. The Appellate authority i.e. Commissioner Meerut Division, Meerut (O.P. No.2) also did not consider these facts and dismissed the appeals filed by the petitioner affirming the order passed by O.P. No.3.

19. There is nothing in show cause notice which may indicate that the petitioner fall within the ambit of 'Goonda' as defined under Section 2(b) of the Act. Thus, the impugned orders dated 25.09.2019 and 30.10.2019 passed by the Courts below/Authorities concerned suffer from inherent infirmity and illegality and cannot be sustained.

20. The writ petition succeeds and is allowed. The impugned orders dated 25.09.2019 and 30.10.2019 are hereby quashed.

21. No order as to costs.

Both the cases were tried together by the Court below and was decided by common order.

3. Plaintiff/appellant filed Case No.205 of 2011 under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act for annulling the marriage on the ground that she was married to the defendant/respondent on 12.12.2009 according to Hindu rites and custom at Dabra, District Gwalior (Madhya Pradesh). It was contended that when she was 7 years old, both her parents died, and she was brought up along with her two brothers by her maternal uncle and aunt (Mausa and mausi). It is they who had performed the ceremony of 'Kanyadan' and gave dowry as per their status. It was contended that after marriage, there was constant demand for dowry by the in-laws and appellant was not treated well. For three weeks, she stayed at her in-laws house and, thereafter came to her maternal home along with her brother and after living for 15 days, she again went back to her in-laws house from where her husband took her to Gandhi Dham, Gujarat.

4. In paragraph no.5 of the plaint, it has been specifically stated that at Gandhi Dham (Gujarat), the respondent started pressurising the appellant for sharing bed and having physical relation with his friends, on refusing to do so, she was beaten by her husband. In paragraph 6 of the plaint it is stated that appellant had intimated this to her in laws, but they were not helpful and scolded her saying wife has to obey her husband. It is further stated in paragraph no.8 that she lived at Gandhi Dham till 7.11.2010 and, thereafter, she returned with her brother to her maternal home at Jhansi.

5. The said case was contested by the defendant/respondent by filing his written statement and in the additional pleas, it was stated that the appellant did not want to live at Gandhi Dham and was forcing the respondent to live at Jhansi. It was further averred that appellant and her two brothers are not in control of her maternal uncle and aunt. It is further stated that appellant would quarrel and fight for petty things and she was not interested in doing domestic work and she did not want to live along with family members of the respondent and was always pressurizing him to live separately. It has also been contended that she had been pressurizing the respondent for claiming his share in the family property, consequence of which the parents of the respondent after, giving his share had snapped ties with the respondent and the appellant. It was further stated that the appellant was having extra marital relation with her brother-in-law (Jija).

6. The defendant/respondent filed Case No.94 of 2011 under Section 9 of the Hindu Marriage Act, for restitution of conjugal rights before the Additional Senior Civil Judge at Gandhi Dham. In the said case, he made the same allegation that appellant displayed strange behaviour after returning from her parental house. The said case, after being transferred from Gandhi Dham to the Court of Principal Judge, Family Court at Jhansi was contested by the appellant who filed her written statement denying the said facts and reiterated the case set up by her in her case under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act in the additional pleas.

7. As in both the cases, the parties were same, as such the Principal Judge, Family Court proceeded to decide the same together and following issues were framed :-

"1– क्या याची श्रीमती मोनिका गुप्ता को विपक्षी जितेन्द्र गंधी से अलग रहने का युक्ति युक्त एवं औचित्यपूर्ण आधार है?

2– क्या याची श्रीमती मोनिका गुप्ता अपनी याचिका में वर्णित तथ्यों के आधार पर विपक्षी जितेन्द्र गंधी से विवाह विच्छेद की आज्ञप्ति प्राप्त की अधिकारिणी है?"

8. The Court below, thereafter considering the oral and documentary evidence proceeded to hold that appellant has failed to prove her case for cruelty, nor she could prove her case beyond doubt as far as the allegation of sharing bed and making physical relation with other men, the Court below dismissed the case of the appellant under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act and allowed the application of the defendant/respondent under Section 9 for the restitution of conjugal rights. Against the order dated 18.1.2016 passed by the Principal Judge, Family Court, Jhansi two appeals, First Appeal No.60 2016 filed by the appellant against the order under Section 9 of the Hindu Marriage Act and First Appeal No.61 of 2016 has been preferred against the dismissal of the case under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act.

9. Both the appeals are being heard and decided together as the same arises out of common order of the Court below. This Court before hearing the case on merits had made an effort for reconciliation between the parties on 25.4.2019, but the effort for reconciliation failed.

10. From the pleadings of the parties and from the perusal of the records of the Court below, the question which emerges for consideration is,

(i) whether the appellant is entitled to a decree of divorce on the ground of cruelty.

(ii)Whether there is an irretrievable break down of marriage between the parties.

11. It is contended by the appellant that court below while dealing with the issue failed to record just, cogent and reasonable finding disbelieving the fact of allegation made by the appellant as far as that she was pressurized by defendant/respondent to share bed with friends and colleagues. The Court below should have visualized that lady like appellant whose parents had passed away in her childhood and was brought up by her maternal uncle and aunt and she having no source of livelihood would not make such allegations against her husband which could land her in a dangerous zone unless and until the circumstances compelled her to do so and the Principal Judge, Family Court should not have taken her allegations made in the plaint so lightly and disbelieve for want of any specific evidence. Further the allegations made by the respondent in the additional pleas of the written statement filed in proceedings under Section 13, as well as in petition under Section 9 of the Hindu Marriage Act that appellant was having an illicit relationship with her brother in law also amounted to mental as well as legal cruelty.

12. It has also been argued that the Court below had not recorded any finding in respect of specific pleadings as well as testimony put forward and the court below while coming to the conclusion that no mental cruelty has been established by the appellant, as such was not entitled to a decree of divorce.

13. Sri Gulab Chand, counsel appearing for the husband submitted that the appellant failed to prove cruelty, as alleged by her and the trial court was correct in dismissing her case for divorce. It was submitted that appellant was a highly qualified lady and she had ample opportunity to make complaint directly or through electronic process/message, but she did not availed the same and there was no evidence on record to establish the charge of cruelty. It was further contended that defendant (husband) had got examined the landlord before the court below who adduced that the appellant was never subjected to any cruelty at hands of the respondent-husband.

14. Sri Gulab Chand, counsel for the respondent vehemently argued that this Court has got no jurisdiction to grant a decree of divorce on the ground of irretrievable break down of marriage, as Section 13(1)of the Hindu Marriage Act does not mandate, as a ground for annulling the marriage. He relied upon two judgments of the Apex Court in the case of Vishnu Dutt Sharma vs. Manju Sharma, 2009(6) SCC 379 and Darshan Gupta vs. Radhika Gupta, 2013 (9) SCC 1 wherein the Apex Court has held that irretrievable break down of marriage is not a ground for divorce under the Hindu Marriage Act.

15. Further reliance was placed upon the provisions of sub-Section (1) (i-b) of Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act 1955 whereby petition for divorce could not be presented unless two years have passed since either of the parties has deserted.

16. We have heard Sri Jitendra Kumar Chakraborty and Sri Rajesh Khare, learned Counsel for the appellant and Sri Gulab Chandra, learned Counsel for respondents and have perused the records of the case.

17. In the present case, appellant had filed case under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act for annulling the marriage on the ground of cruelty. The Apex Court in depth had examined the word "cruelty" in the case of Samar Ghosh Vs. Jaya Ghosh, 2007 (4) SCC 511 in Paragraph nos.38, 39, 40, 41, 42 and 43 which are as under:-

"38. Before we critically examine both the judgments in the light of settled law, it has become imperative to understand and comprehend the concept of cruelty.

39. The Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines 'cruelty' as 'the quality of being cruel; disposition of inflicting suffering; delight in or indifference to another's pain; mercilessness; hard-heartedness'.

40. The term "mental cruelty" has been defined in the Black's Law Dictionary [8th Edition, 2004] as under:

"Mental Cruelty - As a ground for divorce, one spouse's course of conduct (not involving actual violence) that creates such anguish that it endangers the life, physical health, or mental health of the other spouse."

41. The concept of cruelty has been summarized in Halsbury's Laws of England [Vol.13, 4th Edition Para 1269] as under:

"The general rule in all cases of cruelty is that the entire matrimonial relationship must be considered, and that rule is of special value when the cruelty consists not of violent acts but of injurious reproaches, complaints, accusations or taunts. In cases where no violence is averred, it is undesirable to consider judicial pronouncements with a view to creating certain categories of acts or conduct as having or lacking the nature or quality which renders them capable or incapable in all circumstances of amounting to cruelty; for it is the effect of the conduct rather than its nature which is of paramount importance in assessing a complaint of cruelty. Whether one spouse has been guilty of cruelty to the other is essentially a question of fact and previously decided cases have little, if any, value. The court should bear in mind the physical and mental condition of the parties as well as their social status, and should consider the impact of the personality and conduct of one spouse on the mind of the other, weighing all incidents and quarrels between the spouses from that point of view; further, the conduct alleged must be examined in the light of the complainant's capacity for endurance and the extent to which that capacity is known to the other spouse. Malevolent intention is not essential to cruelty but it is an important element where it exits."

42. In 24 American Jurisprudence 2d, the term "mental cruelty" has been defined as under:

"Mental Cruelty as a course of unprovoked conduct toward one's spouse which causes embarrassment, humiliation, and anguish so as to render the spouse's life miserable and unendurable. The plaintiff must show a course of conduct on the part of the defendant which so endangers the physical or mental health of the plaintiff as to render continued cohabitation unsafe or improper, although the plaintiff need not establish actual instances of physical abuse."

43. In the instant case, our main endeavour would be to define broad parameters of the concept of 'mental cruelty'. Thereafter, we would strive to determine whether the instances of mental cruelty enumerated in this case by the appellant would cumulatively be adequate to grant a decree of divorce on the ground of mental cruelty according to the settled legal position as crystallized by a number of cases of this Court and other Courts."

18. The concept of legal cruelity has been dealt with by the Supreme Court in case of Sirajmohmedkhan Janmohamadkhan Vs. Hafizunnisa Yasinkhan and another, (1981) 4 SCC 250, which is as under :-

"29. In Sm. Pancho v. Ram Prasad, Roy, J. while dealing with the Hindu Married Women's Right to Separate Residence and Maintenance Act (19 of 1946) expounded the concept of 'legal cruelty' and observed thus:

"In advancement of a remedial statute, everything is to be done that can be done consistently with a proper construction of it even though it may be necessary to extend enacting words beyond their natural import and effect.

Conception of legal cruelty undergoes changes according to the changes and advance of social concept and standards of living. With the advancement our social conceptions, this feature has obtained legislative recognition that a second marriage is a sufficient ground for separate residence and separate maintenance. Moreover, to establish legal cruelty, it is not necessary that physical violence should be used. Continuous ill-treatment, cessation of marital intercourse, studied neglect, indifference on the part of the husband, and an assertion on the part of the husband that the wife is unchaste are all factors which may undermine the health of a wife."

19. Supreme Court in case of V. Bhagat Vs. D. Bhagat, (1994) 1 SCC 337 in Para 16, while dealing with mental cruelty held as under :-

"16. Mental cruelty in Section 13(1)(i-a) can broadly be defined as that conduct which inflicts upon the other party such mental pain and suffering as would make it not possible for that party to live with the other. In other words, mental cruelty must be of such a nature that the parties cannot reasonably be expected to live together. The situation must be such that the wronged party cannot reasonably be asked to put up with such conduct and continue to live with the other party. It is not necessary to prove that the mental cruelty is such as to cause injury to the health of the petitioner. While arriving at such conclusion, regard must be had to the social status, educational level of the parties, the society they move in, the possibility or otherwise of the parties ever living together in case they are already living apart and all other relevant facts and circumstances which it is neither possible nor desirable to set out exhaustively. What is cruelty in one case may not amount to cruelty in another case. It is a matter to be Determined in each case having regard to the facts and circumstances of that case. If it is a case of accusations and allegations, regard must also be had to the context in which they were made. "

20. Further the Apex Court in case of Dr. N.G. Dastane Vs. Mrs. S. Dastane, (1975) 2 SCC 326 Para 30 has observed as under :-

"30. An awareness of foreign decisions could be a useful asset in interpreting our own laws. But it has to be remembered that we have to interpret in this case a specific provision of a specific enactment, namely, section 10(1) (b) of the Act. What constitutes cruelty must depend upon the terms of this statute which provides :

"10(1) Either party to a marriage, whether solemnized before or after the commencement of this Act, may present a petition to the district court praying for a decree for judicial separation on the ground that the other party-

(b) has treated the petitioner with such cruelty as to cause areasonable apprehension in the mind of the petitioner that it will be harmful or injurious for the petitioner to live with the other party;"

The inquiry therefore has to be whether the conduct charged a,.- cruelty is of such a character as to cause in the mind of the petitioner a reasonable apprehension that it will be harmful or injurious for him to live with the respondent. It is not necessary, as under the English law, that the cruelty must be of such a character as to cause "danger" to life, limb or health or as to give rise to a reasonable apprehension of such a danger. Clearly, danger to life, limb or health or a reasonable apprehension of it is a higher requirement than a reasonable apprehension that it is harmful or injurious for one spouse to live with the other."

21. In Savitri Pandey Vs. Prem Chandra Pandey, (2002) 2 SCC 73, the Apex Court while dealing with cruelty in Para 6 held as under :-

"6. Treating the petitioner with cruelty is a ground for divorce under Section 13(1)(ia) of the Act. Cruelty has not been defined under the Act but in relation to matrimonial matters it is contemplated as a conduct of such type which endangers the living of the petitioner with the respondent. Cruelty consists of acts which are dangerous to life, limb or health. Cruelty for the purpose of the Act means where one spouse has so treated the other and manifested such feelings towards her or him as to have inflicted bodily injury, or to have caused reasonable apprehension of bodily injury, suffering or to have injured health. Cruelty may be physical or mental. Mental cruelty is the conduct of other spouse which causes mental suffering or fear to the matrimonial life of the other. "Cruelty", therefore, postulates a treatment of the petitioner with such cruelty as to cause a reasonable apprehension in his or her mind that it would be harmful or injurious for the petitioner to live with the other party. Cruelty, however, has to be distinguished from the ordinary wear and tear of family life. It cannot be decided on the basis of the sensitivity of the petitioner and has to be adjudged on the basis of the course of conduct which would, in general, be dangerous for a spouse to live with the other. In the instant case both the trial court as well as the High Court have found on facts that the wife had failed to prove the allegations of cruelty attributed to the respondent. Concurrent findings of fact arrived at by the courts cannot be disturbed by this Court in exercise of powers under Article 136 of the Constitution of India. Otherwise also the averments made in the petition and the evidence led in support thereof clearly shows that the allegations, even if held to have been proved, would only show the sensitivity of the appellant with respect to the conduct of the respondent which cannot be termed more than ordinary wear and tear of the family life."

22. In A. Jayachandra Vs. Aneel Kaur, (2005) 2 SCC 22 in Paragraph nos.10, 12 and 13, the Apex Court held as under :-

"10. The expression "cruelty" has not been defined in the Act. Cruelty can be physical or mental. Cruelty which is a ground for dissolution of marriage may be defined as willful and unjustifiable conduct of such character as to cause danger to life, limb or health, bodily or mental, or as to give rise to a reasonable apprehension of such a danger. The question of mental cruelty has to be considered in the light of the norms of marital ties of the particular society to which the parties belong, their social values, status, environment in which they live. Cruelty, as noted above, includes mental cruelty, which falls within the purview of a matrimonial wrong. Cruelty need not be physical. If from the conduct of his spouse same is established and/or an inference can be legitimately drawn that the treatment of the spouse is such that it causes an apprehension in the mind of the other spouse, about his or her mental welfare then this conduct amounts to cruelty. In delicate human relationship like matrimony, one has to see the probabilities of the case. The concept, a proof beyond the shadow of doubt, is to be applied to criminal trials and not to civil matters and certainly not to matters of such delicate personal relationship as those of husband and wife. Therefore, one has to see what are the probabilities in a case and legal cruelty has to be found out, not merely as a matter of fact, but as the effect on the mind of the complainant spouse because of the acts or omissions of the other. Cruelty may be physical or corporeal or may be mental. In physical cruelty, there can be tangible and direct evidence, but in the case of mental cruelty there may not at the same time be direct evidence. In cases where there is no direct evidence, Courts are required to probe into the mental process and mental effect of incidents that are brought out in evidence. It is in this view that one has to consider the evidence in matrimonial disputes.

12. To constitute cruelty, the conduct complained of should be "grave and weighty" so as to come to the conclusion that the petitioner spouse cannot be reasonably expected to live with the other spouse. It must be something more serious than "ordinary wear and tear of married life". The conduct, taking into consideration the circumstances and background has to be examined to reach the conclusion whether the conduct complained of amounts to cruelty in the matrimonial law. Conduct has to be considered, as noted above, in the background of several factors such as social status of parties, their education, physical and mental conditions, customs and traditions. It is difficult to lay down a precise definition or to give exhaustive description of the circumstances, which would constitute cruelty. It must be of the type as to satisfy the conscience of the Court that the relationship between the parties had deteriorated to such an extent due to the conduct of the other spouse that it would be impossible for them to live together without mental agony, torture or distress, to entitle the complaining spouse to secure divorce. Physical violence is not absolutely essential to constitute cruelty and a consistent course of conduct inflicting immeasurable mental agony and torture may well constitute cruelty within the meaning of Section 10 of the Act. Mental cruelty may consist of verbal abuses and insults by using filthy and abusive language leading to constant disturbance of mental peace of the other party.

13. The Court dealing with the petition for divorce on the ground of cruelty has to bear in mind that the problems before it are those of human beings and the psychological changes in a spouse's conduct have to be borne in mind before disposing of the petition for divorce. However insignificant or trifling, such conduct may cause pain in the mind of another. But before the conduct can be called cruelty, it must touch a certain pitch of severity. It is for the Court to weigh the gravity. It has to be seen whether the conduct was such that no reasonable person would tolerate it. It has to be considered whether the complainant should be called upon to endure as a part of normal human life. Every matrimonial conduct, which may cause annoyance to the other, may not amount to cruelty. Mere trivial irritations, quarrels between spouses, which happen in day-to-day married life, may also not amount to cruelty. Cruelty in matrimonial life may be of unfounded variety, which can be subtle or brutal. It may be words, gestures or by mere silence, violent or non-violent."

23. Further the Apex Court in case of Samar Ghosh (supra) laid down the guidelines to enumerate some instances of human behaviour which may be relevant in dealing with the case of 'mental cruelty', paragraph no.101 of the judgment is extracted herein as under :-

"101. No uniform standard can ever be laid down for guidance, yet we deem it appropriate to enumerate some instances of human behaviour which may be relevant in dealing with the cases of 'mental cruelty'. The instances indicated in the succeeding paragraphs are only illustrative and not exhaustive.

(i) On consideration of complete matrimonial life of the parties, acute mental pain, agony and suffering as would not make possible for the parties to live with each other could come within the broad parameters of mental cruelty.

(ii) On comprehensive appraisal of the entire matrimonial life of the parties, it becomes abundantly clear that situation is such that the wronged party cannot reasonably be asked to put up with such conduct and continue to live with other party.

(iii) Mere coldness or lack of affection cannot amount to cruelty, frequent rudeness of language, petulance of manner, indifference and neglect may reach such a degree that it makes the married life for the other spouse absolutely intolerable.

(iv) Mental cruelty is a state of mind. The feeling of deep anguish, disappointment, frustration in one spouse caused by the conduct of other for a long time may lead to mental cruelty.

(v) A sustained course of abusive and humiliating treatment calculated to torture, discommode or render miserable life of the spouse.

(vi) Sustained unjustifiable conduct and behaviour of one spouse actually affecting physical and mental health of the other spouse. The treatment complained of and the resultant danger or apprehension must be very grave, substantial and weighty.

(vii) Sustained reprehensible conduct, studied neglect, indifference or total departure from the normal standard of conjugal kindness causing injury to mental health or deriving sadistic pleasure can also amount to mental cruelty.

(viii) The conduct must be much more than jealousy, selfishness, possessiveness, which causes unhappiness and dissatisfaction and emotional upset may not be a ground for grant of divorce on the ground of mental cruelty.

(ix) Mere trivial irritations, quarrels, normal wear and tear of the married life which happens in day to day life would not be adequate for grant of divorce on the ground of mental cruelty.

(x) The married life should be reviewed as a whole and a few isolated instances over a period of years will not amount to cruelty. The ill-conduct must be persistent for a fairly lengthy period, where the relationship has deteriorated to an extent that because of the acts and behaviour of a spouse, the wronged party finds it extremely difficult to live with the other party any longer, may amount to mental cruelty.

(xi) If a husband submits himself for an operation of sterilization without medical reasons and without the consent or knowledge of his wife and similarly if the wife undergoes vasectomy or abortion without medical reason or without the consent or knowledge of her husband, such an act of the spouse may lead to mental cruelty.

(xii) Unilateral decision of refusal to have intercourse for considerable period without there (xiii) Unilateral decision of either husband or wife after marriage not to have child from the marriage may amount to cruelty.

(xiii) Unilateral decision of either husband or wife after marriage not to have child from the marriage may amount to cruelty.

(xiv) Where there has been a long period of continuous separation, it may fairly be concluded that the matrimonial bond is beyond repair. The marriage becomes a fiction though supported by a legal tie. By refusing to sever that tie, the law in such cases, does not serve the sanctity of marriage; on the contrary, it shows scant regard for the feelings and emotions of the parties. In such like situations, it may lead to mental cruelty." decision of either husband or wife after marriage not to have child from the marriage may amount to cruelty.

24. Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 provides for grounds on which petition can be presented for divorce. Cruelty is one of the ground on which, a petition for divorce can be filed, but where there is irretrievable breakdown of marriage, no petition can be filed. The Law Commission of India in its 71st report titled "The Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 - Irretrievable Break Down Of Marriage as a Ground of Divorce" recommended amendments in the Hindu Marriage Act as a new ground for granting divorce among the Hindus. But the recommendation of the Law Commission of India was not accepted.

25. The Supreme Court in case of Naveen Kohli Vs. Neelu Kohli, 2006 (4) SCC 558, while considering the concept of irretrievable breakdown of marriage held as under:-

"80. Since there is no acceptable way in which a spouse can be compelled to resume life with the consort, nothing is gained by trying to keep the parties tied for ever to a marriage that in fact has ceased to exist.

81. Some jurists have also expressed their apprehension for introduction of irretrievable breakdown of marriage as a ground for grant of the decree of divorce. In their opinion, such an amendment in the Act would put human ingenuity at a premium and throw wide open the doors to litigation, and will create more problems then are sought to be solved.

82. The other majority view, which is shared by most jurists, according to the Law Commission Report, is that human life has a short span and situations causing misery cannot be allowed to continue indefinitely. A halt has to be called at some stage. Law cannot turn a blind eye to such situations, nor can it decline to give adequate response to the necessities arising therefrom.

88. Even at this stage, the respondent does not want divorce by mutual consent. From the analysis and evaluation of the entire evidence, it is clear that the respondent has resolved to live in agony only to make life a miserable hell for the appellant as well. This type of adamant and callous attitude, in the context of the facts of this case, leaves no manner of doubt in our mind that the respondent is bent upon treating the appellant with mental cruelty. It is abundantly clear that the marriage between the parties had broken down irretrievably and there is no chance of their coming together, or living together again.

89. The High Court ought to have appreciated that there is no acceptable way in which the parties can be compelled to resume life with the consort, nothing is gained by trying to keep the parties tied forever to a marriage that in fact has ceased to exist.

90. Undoubtedly, it is the obligation of the Court and all concerned that the marriage status should, as far as possible, as long as possible and whenever possible, be maintained, but when the marriage is totally dead, in that event, nothing is gained by trying to keep the parties tied forever to a marriage which in fact has ceased to exist. In the instant case, there has been total disappearance of emotional substratum in the marriage. The course which has been adopted by the High Court would encourage continuous bickering, perpetual bitterness and may lead to immorality. "

26. Earlier in case of Samar Ghosh (supra), the Supreme Court referred to 71st report of the Law Commission of India on "Irretrievable breakdown of marriage" with approval as follows:-

"90. We have examined and referred to the cases from the various countries. We find strong basic similarity in adjudication of cases relating to mental cruelty in matrimonial matters. Now, we deem it appropriate to deal with the 71st report of the Law Commission of India on "Irretrievable Breakdown of Marriage".

91. The 71st Report of the Law Commission of India briefly dealt with the concept of irretrievable breakdown of marriage. This Report was submitted to the Government on 7th April, 1978. In this Report, it is mentioned that during last 20 years or so, and now it would be around 50 years, a very important question has engaged the attention of lawyers, social scientists and men of affairs, should the grant of divorce be based on the fault of the party, or should it be based on the breakdown of the marriage? The former is known as the matrimonial offence theory or fault theory. The latter has come to be known as the breakdown theory. It would be relevant to recapitulate recommendation of the said Report.

92. In the Report, it is mentioned that the germ of the breakdown theory, so far as Commonwealth countries are concerned, may be found in the legislative and judicial developments during a much earlier period. The (New Zealand) Divorce and Matrimonial Causes Amendment Act, 1920, included for the first time the provision that a separation agreement for three years or more was a ground for making a petition to the court for divorce and the court was given a discretion (without guidelines) whether to grant the divorce or not. The discretion conferred by this statute was exercised in a case Lodder v. Lodder Salmond, J., in a passage which has now become classic, enunciated the breakdown principle in these words:

"The Legislature must, I think, be taken to have intended that separation for three years is to be accepted by this court, as prima facie a good ground for divorce. When the matrimonial relation has for that period ceased to exist de facto, it should, unless there are special reasons to the contrary, cease to exist de jure also. In general, it is not in the interests of the parties or in the interest of the public that a man and woman should remain bound together as husband and wife in law when for a lengthy period they have ceased to be such in fact. In the case of such a separation the essential purposes of marriage have been frustrated, and its further continuance is in general not merely useless but mischievous."

93. In the said Report, it is mentioned that restricting the ground of divorce to a particular offence or matrimonial disability, causes injustice in those cases where the situation is such that although none of the parties is at fault, or the fault is of such a nature that the parties to the marriage do not want to divulge it, yet such a situation has arisen in which the marriage cannot survive. The marriage has all the external appearances of marriage, but none in reality. As is often put pithily, the marriage is merely a shell out of which the substance is gone. In such circumstances, it is stated, there is hardly any utility in maintaining the marriage as a fagade, when the emotional and other bonds which are of the essence of marriage have disappeared.

94. It is also mentioned in the Report that in case the marriage has ceased to exist in substance and in reality, there is no reason for denying divorce, then the parties alone can decide whether their mutual relationship provides the fulfilment which they seek. Divorce should be seen as a solution and an escape route out of a difficult situation. Such divorce is unconcerned with the wrongs of the past, but is concerned with bringing the parties and the children to terms with the new situation and developments by working out the most satisfactory basis upon which they may regulate their relationship in the changed circumstances.

95. Once the parties have separated and the separation has continued for a sufficient length of time and one of them has presented a petition for divorce, it can well be presumed that the marriage has broken down. The court, no doubt, should seriously make an endeavour to reconcile the parties; yet, if it is found that the breakdown is irreparable, then divorce should not be withheld. The consequences of preservation in law of the unworkable marriage which has long ceased to be effective are bound to be a source of greater misery for the parties."

27. The Supreme Court in case of Ms. Jorden Diengdeh Vs. S.S. Chopra, AIR 1985 SC 935 held as under :-

"It appears to be necessary to introduce irretrievable breakdown of marriage and mutual consent as grounds of divorce in all cases..... We suggest that the time has come for the intervention of the legislature in those matters to provide for a uniform code of marriage and divorce and to provide by law for a way out of the unhappy situation in which couples like the present have found themselves."

28. Further the Apex Court in case of V. Bhagat (supra) held as under :-

"Irretrievable breakdown of the marriage is not a ground for divorce by itself. But while scrutinizing the evidence on record to determine whether the ground(s) alleged is made out and in determining the relief to be granted, the said circumstance can certainly be borne in mind."

29. However, in case of Geeta Mullick v. Brojo Gopal Mullick, IR 2003 Calcutta 331, the High Court held as under :-

"In our considered opinion, the marriage between the parties can not be dissolved by the trial Court or even by the High Court only on the ground of marriage having been irretrievably broken down, in the absence of one or more grounds as contemplated under section 13(1) of the Hindu Marriage Act,1955."

30. Similarly, in case of Tapan Kumar Chakraborty V.s Jyotsna Chakraborty, AIR 1997 Calcutta 134, the Calcutta High Court held that in a petition for divorce on a ground as mentioned in the Hindu Marriage Act or the Special Marriage Act, Court cannot grant divorce on the mere ground of irretrievable breakdown of marriage.

31. However, the Apex Court in case of Savitri Pandey (supra) held as under :-

"that marriage between the parties cannot be dissolved only on the averments made by one of the parties that as the marriage between them has broken down, no useful purpose would be served to keep it alive. The legislature, in its wisdom, despite observation of the Supreme Court has not thought it proper to provide for dissolution of the marriage on such averments. There may be cases where it is found that as the marriage has become dead on account of contributory acts of commission and omission of the parties, no useful purpose would be served by keeping such marriage alive. The sanctity of marriage cannot be left at the whims of one of the annoying spouses."

32. After the judgment of Supreme Court in Naveen Kohli (supra), the Law Commission of India in its Report No.217 submitted to the Government in March, 2009 regarding irretrievable breakdown of marriage-another ground for divorce, was of the view that:-

"The foundation of a sound marriage is tolerance, adjustment and respecting one another. Tolerance to each other's fault to a certain bearable extent has to be inherent in every marriage. Petty quibbles, trifling differences should not be exaggerated and magnified to destroy what is said to have been made in heaven. All quarrels must be weighed from that point of view in determining what constitutes cruelty in each particular case and always keeping in view the physical and mental conditions of the parties, their character and social status. A too technical and hypersensitive approach would be counter-productive to the institution of marriage. The Courts do not have to deal with ideal husbands and ideal wives. It has to deal with particular man and woman before it.

33. The Law Commission was of the view that :-

"2.1 A law of divorce based mainly on fault is inadequate to deal with a broken marriage. Under the fault theory, guilt has to be proved; divorce Courts are presented with concrete instances of human behaviour as bring the institution of marriage into disrepute. Once the marriage has broken down beyond repair, it would be unrealistic for the law not to take notice of that fact, and it would be harmful to society and injurious to the interest of the parties. Where there has been a long period of continuous separation, it may fairly be surmised that the matrimonial bond is beyond repair. The marriage becomes a fiction, though supported by a legal tie, by refusing to sever that tie, the law in such cases does not serve the sanctity of marriage; on the contrary, it shows scant regard for the feelings and emotions of the parties. Public interest demands not only that the married status should, as long as possible, and whenever possible, be maintained, but where a marriage has been wrecked beyond the hope of salvage, public interest lies in the recognition of that fact. Since there is no acceptable way in which a spouse can be compelled to resume life with the consort, nothing is gained by trying to keep the parties tied for ever to a marriage that in fact has ceased to exist. Human life has a short span and situations causing misery cannot be allowed to continue indefinitely. A halt has to be called at some stage. Law cannot turn a blind eye to such situations, nor can it decline to give adequate response to the necessities arising therefrom."

34. However, the Supreme Court in case of Darshan Gupta (supra), while considering the case of Vishnu Datt Sharma (supra) as to whether relief on the ground of irretrievable break down of marriage is available to the appellant, held as under:

"50. At the present juncture, it is questionable as to whether the relief sought by the learned counsel for the appellant, on the ground of irretrievable breakdown of marriage is available to him. The reason for us to say so, is based on a judgment rendered by this Court in Vishnu Dutt Sharma vs. Manju Sharma, (2009) 6 SCC 379, wherein this Court has held as under:-

"10. On a bare reading of Section 13 of the Act, reproduced above, it is

crystal clear that no such ground of irretrievable breakdown of the marriage is provided by the legislature for granting a decree of divorce. This Court cannot add such a ground to Section 13 of the Act as that would be amending the Act, which is a function of the legislature.

11. Learned Counsel for the appellant has stated that this Court in some cases has dissolved a marriage on the ground of irretrievable breakdown. In our opinion, those cases have not taken into consideration the legal position which we have mentioned above, and hence they are not precedents. A mere direction of the Court without considering the legal position is not a precedent.

12. If we grant divorce on the ground of irretrievable breakdown, then we shall by judicial verdict be adding a clause to Section 13 of the Act to the effect that irretrievable breakdown of the marriage is also a ground for divorce. In our opinion, this can only be done by the legislature and not by the Court. It is for the Parliament to enact or amend the law and not for the Courts. Hence, we do not find force in the submission of the learned Counsel for the appellant.

13. Had both parties been willing we could, of course, have granted a divorce by mutual consent as contemplated by Section 13-B of the Act, but in this case the respondent is not willing to agree to a divorce."

35. Thus, the Apex Court had constantly directed for the amendment in the Hindu Marriage Act, for introducing irretrievable break down of marriage, as one of the grounds for divorce. However, the Law Commission has twice in its 71st report and, thereafter, in report No.217 has recommended for the inclusion of irretrievable break down of marriage, as one of the grounds for divorce. The Apex Court, however, in those cases where it found that mental cruelty existed on the part of one of the spouses, it granted divorce taking into consideration that the marriage cannot continue as it has irretrievably broken down, while it refused to grant divorce in those cases, which were simply based on the ground of irretrievable break down of marriage.

36. In the present case, divorce has been sought on the ground of cruelty by appellant, making serious allegations against the respondent-husband for demand of dowry and sharing bed with his friends and colleagues. In the additional pleas of written statement, defendant-respondent had made counter allegations as regards the character of appellant, having illicit relationship with her brother-in-law (Jija). These allegations, so made, qualifies under the term mental as well as legal cruelty.

37. The appellant in her cross-examination before the court below had clearly stated that the respondent-husband was forcing her to share bed with his friends and colleagues. Her statement was also supported by PW-2, Ram Kumar Gupta, who also in his cross-examination had stated that the appellant had told her that the respondent was forcing her to share bed with other persons. The Court below wrongly repelled and discarded the oral testimony of the appellant and held that she failed to produce material to substantiate her claim.

38. The allegation made by the appellant against her husband are so grave in nature which cannot be proved by evidence nor it can be expected from a lady to make such allegation against her husband after such a short span of marriage, being fully aware of the fact that she has been brought up by her maternal uncle and aunt after her parents passed away at an early age, and she being not employed and earning any money.

39. The Court below completely lost sight of the fact that the respondent-husband had made wild allegations not only in the written statement filed by him in proceedings under Section 13, but also in proceedings under Section 9 of the Act. As there are allegations and counter allegations from both the sides, no decree under Section 9 could have been passed.

40. The Court below also lost sight of the fact that the appellant who was for the first time taken by her husband to Gandhi Dham, Gujarat was living in rented accommodation on the first floor, and it cannot be expected from the appellant who was not familiar with the new place to have reported the matter to landlord or neighbours or to have made complaint to police, except to have told her misery to her maternal uncle, aunt and her brothers, which she did.

41. Another aspect which required consideration was, as to why a newly wedded lady immediately after few months of her marriage will leave her husband's house and make such serious allegations and refuse to go back. Further effort made for reconciliation, also failed. Before passing the judgment impugned a thought should have been given to the misery of the lady who refused to return to her husband's home. Matrimonial proceedings cannot be simply decided on the basis of mere evidence on record, sometimes the Court while examining and scrutinizing the case has to decide on the circumstances which led to the filing of the case, as in the present case, the allegation made in matrimonial case cannot be proved by the wife by any evidence except her testimony.

42. It is true that in Section 13 of the Act, irretrievable breakdown of marriage is not a ground for dissolution of marriage, but the Apex Court has held the decree of divorce on the ground that the marriage has irretrievably broken down can be granted in those cases where both the parties have levelled such allegations against each other that the marriage appears to be practically dead and the parties cannot live together.

43. In the present case, the divorce claimed by the appellant is on the ground of cruelty, it is both mental and physical, the appellant has been subjected to mental cruelty by the respondent-husband pressurising and coercing her to do such act which cannot be justified and expected from any husband. Further the appellant and respondent are living separately since 7.11.2010 i.e. for about 9 years, while the married life existed for a brief period.

44. The Court below in most cryptic and arbitrary manner decided the divorce petition without recording any finding holding that appellant has failed to prove her case, as no evidence was adduced by her in support of the allegations made in the divorce petition, while by the same judgment petition under Section 9 of the husband was allowed. No finding has been recorded as to mental cruelty, suffered by the appellant, as the averment of the petition and testimony had been discarded.

45. In Samar Ghosh (supra), the Apex Court had laid guidelines to enumerate some instances of human behaviour, which may be relevant in dealing with the case of mental cruelty. As from reading of the claims and counter claims of the parties in their petition and written statement, one thing clearly emerges that both the parties have made serious charges against each other, especially in regard to the character. Considering the averments so made by the parties, it can safely be said that the action of the respondent-husband specially in forcing the appellant to share bed with his friends and colleagues, and also making allegation by husband against the appellant, having illicit relationship with her brother-in-law amounts to mental cruelty as enumerated in some of the instances in the guidelines.

46. It is not in dispute that both the parties are living separately for the last nine years and despite the efforts of the Trial Court as well as this Court reconciliation failed. Thus, as the appellant has been subjected to mental cruelty, which is one of the ground for divorce under Section 13 as well as keeping in mind the fact that the marriage between the parties has broken down. No useful purpose would be served to keep it alive, as observed by the Apex Court in case of Savitri Pandey (supra) "the sanctity of marriage cannot be lived at the whims one of the annoying spouses".

47. Argument of the counsel for respondent-husband, that this Court does not have any jurisdiction to grant decree of divorce on the ground of irretrievable break down of marriage under Section 13 has no force, as the appellant had filed petition for divorce on the ground of cruelty and the Apex Court while dealing in case of Vishnu Datt Sharma (supra) and Darshan Gupta (supra) had held that irretrievable break down of marriage is not a ground under Section 13, but the Apex Court in case of Samar Ghosh (supra) and Naveen Kohli (supra) while dealing with the similar situation in which divorce was sought on the ground of mental cruelty. The Court went further and held that where one of the parties, who was subjected to mental cruelty and the marriage cannot be sustained any more having been broken down, came up with the concept of irretrievable break down of marriage. In the present case also the appellant, who has been subjected to mental cruelty by the respondent-husband is also entitled for a decree of divorce as her marriage has completely broken down and no chance of survival remains.

48. As far as the second objection of the counsel for the respondent-husband, that sub-Section (1) (i-b) of Section 13 of the Act debars the parties from presenting petition within two years in case of desertion, but in the present case, the appellant had moved the petition seeking annulment of marriage on the ground of mental cruelty. The argument made has no force and the said provision is not applicable in the present case.

49. Thus there is no use of keeping the appellant and the respondent tied by matrimonial relationship when they cannot live peacefully, since parties are living separately after marriage, appellant has lived for a few months in her matrimonial house, she having made allegation of cruelty and desertion against husband and husband having made counter allegations against her the marriage has irretrievably broken down.

50. As, no application for permanent alimony has been filed by the appellant, nor any oral prayer was made during the course of argument, or at the time of reconciliation held in Chamber, the appellant is not granted any permanent alimony from the respondent.

51. In the interest of justice, the judgment dated 18.1.2016 and decree dated 30.1.2016 are set aside and Case No.205 of 2011 filed by appellant, under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act is decreed and the marriage between the parties stand annulled, and Case No.94 of 2011 filed by the respondent under Section 9 of the Hindu Marriage Act for restitution of conjugal rights is dismissed.

52. Both the appeals stand allowed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajnish Kumar, J.)

1. Heard, Shri Amit Srivastava, learned counsel for the appellants and Shri Shobh Nath Pandey, learned counsel for the respondents.

2. The instant Second Appeal under Section 100 of the Civil Procedure Code is by the appellants/plaintiffs against the judgment and order dated 05.03.2011 passed by the Additional District Judge, Court No.8, Faizabad in Civil Appeal No.87 of 2008;Jata Shankar and another Versus Badri and others, which was preferred by the defendants/respondents for setting aside the judgment and order dated 29.07.2008, passed by the 3rd Civil Judge (JD), Faizabad in Regular Suit No.248 of 1989;Bhagwan Das and others Versus Smt.Raji and another.

3. The brief facts of the case for adjudication of the present Second Appeal are that both the appellants/plaintiffs and the respondents/defendants are the residents of the same village and they were the members of Hindu joint family. Jorai was the owner of the whole property in dispute. After death of Jorai it came in the name of Mahangi, the eldest son of Jorai. After the death of Mahangi it was mutated in the name of Jagesar. Mahangi, Dubar, Lahuri and Rohni took over their possession according to their shares. Lahuri died issueless, therefore, his share was divided among all the brothers. Smt. Raji had equal share in whole property. Jagesar had entrusted his whole property in his life time to Ram Sumer, Chhedo, Bhagwan Dass and Ram Lal, but they had no right to sell the property. It was ordered by Jagesar that they will serve Smt. Raji. She was also issueless. As such they were the heirs of her property, but they had not got their names recorded in the revenue records. Smt.Raji was remarried and after her marriage they had become the owner of her property. Any how she wanted to grab the property of deceased Jagesar and transfer the house and agricultural land to others. After death of Smt.Raji her servant Bhagauti claimed himself to be heir through her Will. While she had never executed any Will and Bhagauti had no possession and right over the land in dispute.

4. The defendants had filed their written statement alleging that Smt. Raji was the owner of the disputed property. She had written Will dated 21/23.01.1980 of her whole property in the name of the defendants. After her death they became owner and bhumidhar of the disputed land. Plaintiffs had never served Smt. Raji while the defendants had served her. There was no relation of wife and husband between the defendants. Plaintiffs are not the heirs of Smt.Raji and the suit had been filed only to grab her property. The suit is not within time and it has been filed only to harass the defendants. Bhgauti had filed additional written statement alleging therein that Smt. Raji was not remarried. Smt. Raji is the nearest relative of the defendants. The defendants are in possession over the land in dispute from the life time of Smt. Raji and they became owner on the basis of Will dated 21/23.01.1980.

5. On the basis of the pleadings of the parties the following issues were framed:-

1. Whether the plaintiff is owner and in possession over the disputed land?

2. Whether the suit is not maintainable in absence of possession?

3. Whether the suit is time barred?

4.Whether the suit is undervalued and the court fee paid is insufficient?

5. Whether the defendants are entitled to get special cost from plaintiffs under section 35 C.P.C.?

6. Whether the plaintiff is entitled to get any relief?

7. Whether Smt. Raji was remarried with Bhagauti?

6. The plaintiff in addition to documentary evidence had examined P.W.1 Bahaoo and P.W.2 Chingo. The defendants had examined D.W.1 Jata Shankar, D.W.2 Ram Lala and D.W. 3 Prabhu Dei and also filed affidavit of Ram Achal.

7. Learned Trial Court had partly allowed the suit of the plaintiffs after considering the arguments of both the parties and the entire evidence on record by means of the judgment and order dated 29.07.2008. Aggrieved with the same the defendants had filed civil appeal no.87 of 2008(Jata Shankar and another Versus Badri and others), which has been allowed by means of judgment and order dated 05.03.2011 and the judgment and order dated 29.07.2008 has been set aside and the suit of the appellants/plaintiffs has been dismissed. Being aggrieved with the same the appellants/plaintiffs have filed the present Second Appeal.

8. The present Second Appeal was admitted by means of the order dated 29.04.2011 on substantial question of law framed at Sl.No.1. Subsequently on an application moved by the appellants another substantial question of law was formulated by means of order dated 11.12.2017. Accordingly two substantial questions of law are involved for adjudication, which are reproduced as under:-

1. Whether the trial court having recorded a finding that the property in dispute is ancestral and the plaintiffs/appellants are in possession over their share, has the lower appellate court erred in law in setting aside the findings of the trial court without any evidence on record?

2. Whether the lower appellate court has failed to make compliance of Order 41 Rule 31 CPC and has not formulated points of determination while deciding the appeal and whether it would result to non-sustainability of impugned judgment in the eyes of law?

9. Learned counsel for the appellants submitted that the suit for permanent injunction was filed by the appellants/plaintiffs against Smt.Raji on 25.05.1989 and Smt. Raji had died on 13.06.1989. Smt. Raji was wife of Jagesar. Smt. Raji had died issueless. Bhagauti Kewat had filed an impleadment application on the basis of a photocopy of registered Will dated 21/23.01.1980 in his favour executed by Smt. Raji, but the original Will was not filed before the trial court. The suit was decreed exparte in the year 1990. The exparte decree was recalled and set aside in the year 1998. Smt. Raji had remarried to Bhagauti Kewat, which is apparent from the family register of house no.23 and also the electoral roll, in which he has been shown as her husband, but the same has wrongly not been accepted on the ground that it is not proved that there was 'saptpadi' in the marriage and mere entry in family register and electoral roll is not sufficient to prove the relationship or remarriage while the 'Dharaua' marriage being customary was proved. The original Will was neither filed nor proved before the trial court. Bhagauti Kewat had transferred the land in dispute to Bhagwati Prasad and Jata Shankar through registered Will dated 16.07.2003. Accordingly they were impleaded in the suit. Since the original Will dated 21/23.01.1980 was not filed, therefore, the chain of transfer was not complete. Therefore the suit was decreed in regard to the land under U.P.Z.A. & L.R.Act. In the appellate court the certified copy of the Will was filed but the same was not proved in accordance with the Evidence Act therefore the same could not have been relied.

10. It has further been contended that the learned trial court has recorded a categorical finding that the name of Bhagauti was recorded in the revenue records by fraud, but without rebutting the said finding the Will has been accepted without being proof in accordance with the Evidence Act, which could not have been done by the learned appellate court.

11. He further submitted that an application for amendment in the written statement was moved by the respondents/defendants in the appellate court to take the plea of suit being barred by Section 49 of the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953. The said application was rejected by means of the order dated 08.05.2009, but the learned appellate court has allowed the appeal on the ground of bar of Section 49 of the U.P.C.H.Act without framing any point of determination on it. In case if the learned appellate court was of the view that it is the legal plea which could have been raised at any stage the matter should have been remitted back to the learned trial court to decide it after affording opportunity to the appellants/plaintiffs.

12. On the basis of above learned counsel for the appellants submitted that the lower appellate court has erred in law in deciding the appeal without formulating the point of determination therefore it is in violation of Order 41 Rule 31 of CPC and also setting aside the findings of the trial court on the basis of the Will filed at the appellate stage, which was not proved and no opportunity has been afforded to the appellants to rebut the same. Therefore the judgment and order passed by the learned appellate court is liable to be set aside.

13. In support of his submissions learned counsel for the appellants has relied on Jagdish Versus Rajendr;AIR 1975 Allahabad 395, K.Laxmanan Versus Thekkayil Padmini and others;2009 (27) LCD 1344, Kanchan Kumar Chaudhary Versus District Judge, Mau and others;RD 1998 (89) 610, Ratti Pal Versus Additional District Judge, Court No.6, Pratapgarh and others;2014 (124) RD 195, Hori Lal Versus Babu Ram and others;2005 All.C.J. 2158, Shri Ram and others Versus Deputy Director of Consolidation, Allahabad and others;2011 (29) LCD 764, Kanailal and others Versus Ram Chandra Singh and others;(2018) 13 SCC 715, Meenakshiammal (dead) Through LRs and others versus Chandrasekaran and Another; 2006 (24) LCD 1316 and Anathula Sudhakar Versus P.Buchi Reddy (dead) by LRs. and others;(2008) 4 SCC 594.

14. Per contra, learned counsel for the respondents submitted that the appellants/plaintiffs had filed the injunction suit but they have failed to prove their title and possession over the land in dispute. The learned Trial Court had decreed the suit partly only in regard to the land covered under the U.P.Z.A.& L.R. Act, but no relief was granted in regard to the land of abadi and no appeal was filed by the appellants-plaintiffs against the said part of the judgment and the same was accepted. The name of late Smt. Raji was recorded in the first consolidation of 1962 and thereafter again in the 2nd consolidation which took place in 1980. Both consolidations took place in the life time of Smt. Raji, but no objection was raised or claim was made by the plaintiffs-appellants during her life time and it was only just before her death the suit for permanent injunction was filed.

15. The land in dispute was transferred in the name of respondents-defendants on the basis of a registered Will executed by Smt.Raji in favour of Bhagauti Kewat and thereafter the registered Will executed by Bhagauti Kewat in favour of the respondents-defendants. The Wills were never challenged by the appellants-plaintiffs and the names of respondent/defendants was mutated in accordance with law on the basis of Will. Therefore, they are not entitled for any relief. Learned counsel for the respondents further submitted that the suit filed by the appellants-plaintiffs was not maintainable and the first appellate court has rightly held that the suit is barred by Section 331 of the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act and Section 49 of the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act.

16. Lastly he submitted that the appellants-plaintiffs and the respondents-defendants were already separated and had separate 'Pariwar' Register, which were filed before the learned trial court. Therefore, the appellants cannot claim the land devolved on late Smt.Raji, which has come in the name of the respondents-defendants on the basis of registered Will.

17. On the basis of above learned counsel for the respondents submitted that the learned trial court had wrongly and illegally partly allowed the suit filed by the appellants-plaintiffs which has rightly been set aside and the suit for permanent injunction of the appellants-plaintiffs has rightly been dismissed. The present appeal has been filed on misconceived and baseless grounds which is liable to be dismissed with costs.

18. In support of his submissions learned counsel for the respondents has relied on Dina Nath Verma and others Versus Gokaran and others;2003 (94) RD 323 and Prabhu Dayal Versus Gaon Samaj, Tandarpore;1965 ALJ 426.

19. I have considered the submissions of learned counsels of the parties and perused the record.

20. The facts which are not in dispute are that Jorai was the owner of the whole property in dispute. After his death it came in the name of Mahangi, Dubar, Lahuri and Rohini. They took over their possession according to their share. Lahuri died issueless, therefore his share was divided among all the brothers. Thereafter the property in dispute came in the name of Jagesar. Smt. Raji being wife of Jagesar had equal share in whole property after his death. Jagesar had entrusted his property to Ram Sumer, Chhedi, Bhagwan Dass and Ram Lal, but they had no right to sell the property as it was provided by Jagesar that they will look after Smt. Raji as she was issueless.

21. The appellant/plaintiffs had filed Suit for permanent injunction alleging therein that Smt. Raji had re-married after the death of Jagesar. Therefore they had become the owner of her property in view of Section 172 of the U.P.Z.A.& L.R.Act. The Suit was filed during life time of Smt. Raji on 25.05.1989 and Smt. Raji died on 13.06.1989 without filing written statement. Bhagauti had got himself impleaded on the basis of a registered Will deed in his favour executed by Smt.Raji on 21/23.01.1980. The plea of the appellants/plaintiffs is that Smt. Raji had re-married with Bhagauti, therefore, the property was reverted to the family of Jagesar and the appellants had become owner and in possession of the property in dispute.

22. Learned Trial court on the basis of evidence and findings recorded in regard to issues no.1 and 7 came to the conclusion that the appellants have not produced any Khasra by which the possession of the plaintiffs could be proved, but since Smt. Raji had re-married and the plaintiffs are owner and in possession under the U.P.Z.A.& L.R.Act, therefore, the said issues are decided in favour of the plaintiffs and against the defendants.

23. Learned Appellate court while considering the findings recorded in regard to the issues no.1 and 7 and the evidence found that P.W.1 has stated that Smt.Raji had done 'Dharauwa' marriage with Bhagauti and at the time of marriage he was 25 years of age. P.W.2 Ram Achal has also stated that Smt.Raji had done 'Dharauwa' marriage with Bhagauti and he was 10 to 20 years old. They live like husband and wife. The marriage of Bhagauti and Smt. Raji took place according to 'Hindu' customs. About 50 members were gathered. Pandit Ji had not come. The marriage was done by 'Biradari'. D.W.1-Jata Shanker, D.W.2-Rampal and D.W.3-Prabhu Dei have denied any 'Dharauwa' marriage between Smt. Raji and Bhagauti or any relation of husband and wife between them. Though it was stated by D.W.2 that Bhagauti was living in the house of Smt.Raji. As per the pleadings and evidence Smt. Raji re-married with Bhagauti prior to 36 years ago and due to re-marriage she lost her title as stated in the plaint. While Jagesar had died in 1959. Therefore, on the basis of versions of the witnesses, the learned appellate court found that Smt. Raji should have married in 1953, which is self contradictory because it is not the case of the plaintiffs that Smt.Raji married in the life time of Jagesar. While in view of above Smt. Raji should have married during life time of Jagesar.

24. In paragraph 8 of the plaint it has been mentioned that after the death of Smt. Raji the said servant Bhagauti showed himself as the legal heir of Smt.Raji on the basis of Will executed by her. Smt. Raji had not executed any Will deed. Therefore, there is an admission by the appellant/plaintiffs that Bhaguati was the servant of Smt. Raji. 'Dharauwa' marriage deposed by the P.W.1 and P.W.2 has not been pleaded in the plaint. It is not proved by the evidence on record that there was 'Saptpadi' in the marriage of Smt. Raji and Bhagauti. 'Dharauwa' marriage has been deposed as a custom in the family but the plaintiffs have even not proved that there was any such custom in the family. The statement of witnesses in absence of pleading is nothing but stray statement which is not binding as held by this court in Ambika Prasad and another Versus Sri Harihar Prasad;1985 (3) LCD 266.

25. In the Will deed dated 21/23.01.1980 filed as Paper No.152 C/2 to 5, Smt. Raji widow of Jagesar and Bhagauti as 'Mausiyat Dewar' has been mentioned. It is also mentioned that he was living with her for the last 18-20 years and serving her and managing her farming etc. It is also apparent from Paper No.152C/19, the order passed on mutation case, that the name of Bhagauti was recorded on the basis of Will, after proving in accordance with law.

26. In absence of 'Saptpadi' and without plea of customary marriage as 'Dharauwa' and without proof of existence of any such custom, merely on the basis of statement of witnesses of plaintiffs and living of Bhagauti with Smt. Raji to serve her and manage her farming cannot be treated as re-marriage in absence of any cogent evidence and the rights of Smt. Raji, a widow, would not be extinguished under Section 172 of U.P.Z.A.& L.R. Act. The findings recorded by the learned trial court that Smt. Raji had re-married with Bhgauti is without any cogent evidence and the learned appellate court has rightly recorded that it is not proved by the cogent, reliable and corroborative evidence and the finding of the trial court is not based on the evidence on record.

27. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Santi Deb Berma Versus Kanchan Prava Devi; 1991 Supp (2) SCC 616 held that living together as husband and wife cannot in any way serve as proof of a valid marriage as per the Act, especially when there is no plea that the marriage was solemnized in accordance with the customary rites and usage, which do not include 'Saptpadi'.

28. This Court in the case of Dina Nath Verma and others Versus Gokaran and others;2003(94) RD 323 does not find "Ghar Baitha" as legal marriage and held that since no objection was raised in consolidation proceedings therefore the allegations are only an after thought and the allegation of re-marriage can not be accepted. The relevant paragraphs 11 to 13 are extracted below:-

"11. Now coming to the other questions firstly, I consider whether Smt. Lakhraji re-married to Phagoo. Oral evidence has been produced regarding re-marriage. However, the same does not appear to convincting. There is absolutely no evidence to show that the marriage took place. On the other hand, only to is alleged that it was "Ghar Baitha"; that sagai took place and thereafter Smt. Lakhraji and Phagoo started living as husband and wife. It does not show that it was a legal marriage. It is not alleged in the plaint that "sapta-pati" took place and therefore, this marriage cannot be recognised and Smt. Lakhraji cannot be divested from the property.

12. In the present case, it is admitted position that the name of Smt. Lakhraji was recorded over the land on which dispute houses exist in CH Form No. 23. Smt. Lakhraji was declared as exclusive owner of the land and chack was carved out in her name. Smt. Yashoda Devi and respondent Nos. 2 and 3 did not raised any objection in the consolidation proceedings. They have not stated that Smt. Lakhraji has been divested from the land because she had re-married with Phagoo. Therefore, the allegations made in the suit is only a after thought and the allegation that Smt. Lakhraji has re-married cannot be accepted.

13. The Apex Court in the case of Surjit Kaur v. Garja Singh [A.I.R. 1994 SCC 135.] , has held that where customary marriage is pleaded but the custom is not pleaded and there is no evidence of the nature of the ceremonies performed in marriage in such a case from the evidence that the parties were living together as husband and wife does not itself show that it would confer status of husband and wife."

29. The judgment passed in the case of Hori Lal Versus Babu Ram and others;2005 All.C.J.2158, Shri Ram and others versus Deputy Director of Consolidation, Allahabad and others;2011 (29) LCD 764 are of no assistance to the case of the appellants.

30. This Court in the case of Prabhu Dayal Versus Gaon Samaj Tandarpore ;1965 ALJ 426 has held that in a Suit for injunction the plaintiff's right to an injunction is based upon some title which he must establish to the satisfaction of the Court. But the appellant/plaintiffs have failed to establish.

31. This Court in the case of Kanchan Kumar Chaudhary Versus District Judge, Mau and others;1998 (89) RD 610 has held that in a suit for permanent injunction the question of title arises only incidentally. Similar view has been taken by this court in the case of Ratti Pal Versus Additional District Judge, Court No.6, Pratapgarh and others;2014(124) RD 195.

32. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Anathula Sudhakar Versus P.Buchi Reddy (dead) by LRs. and others;(2008) 4 SCC 594 has referred the general principles as to when a mere suit for permanent injunction will lie, and when it is necessary to file a suit for declaration and/or possession with injunction as a consequential relief. The relevant paragraph 13 is extracted below:-

"13. The general principles as to when a mere suit for permanent injunction will lie, and when it is necessary to file a suit for declaration and/or possession with injunction as a consequential relief, are well settled. We may refer to them briefly.

13.1. Where a plaintiff is in lawful or peaceful possession of a property and such possession is interfered or threatened by the defendant, a suit for an injunction simpliciter will lie. A person has a right to protect his possession against any person who does not prove a better title by seeking a prohibitory injunction. But a person in wrongful possession is not entitled to an injunction against the rightful owner.

13.2. Where the title of the plaintiff is not disputed, but he is not in possession, his remedy is to file a suit for possession and seek in addition, if necessary, an injunction. A person out of possession, cannot seek the relief of injunction simpliciter, without claiming the relief of possession.

13.3. Where the plaintiff is in possession, but his title to the property is in dispute, or under a cloud, or where the defendant asserts title thereto and there is also a threat of dispossession from the defendant, the plaintiff will have to sue for declaration of title and the consequential relief of injunction. Where the title of the plaintiff is under a cloud or in dispute and he is not in possession or not able to establish possession, necessarily the plaintiff will have to file a suit for declaration, possession and injunction."

33. So far as the proof of Will deed executed by Smt. Raji is concerned the same was acted upon after proving before the Tehsildar. It is also apparent from report of Police Station 172c and Paper No.162c/7 Khasra, 162c/8 Khatauni etc. that the disputed land was in possession of Jagesar-Smt.Raji-Bhagauti-Jata Shanker-

Bhagwati. The disputed house is locked. Therefore the judgments cited by the learned counsel for the appellants in the case of Jagdish Versus Rajendr;AIR 1975 Allahabad 395, Meenakshiammal (dead) through LRs and others Versus Chandrasekaran and another; 2006 (24) LCD 1316 and K. Laxmanan Versus Thekkayil Padmini and others; 2009 (27) LCD 1344 are not applicable on the facts and circumstances of the present case and of no assistance to the case of the appellants.

34. In view of above this court is of the considered opinion that the findings recorded by the learned Trial court in regard to reversion of the land in dispute and possession of the appellants on account of alleged re-marriage of Smt. Raji was perverse and not tenable because no Khasra was also filed showing the possession of the plaintiffs. Therefore, the learned appellate court has rightly set aside the findings of the trial court in regard to possession. This court does not find any illegality or error in it.

35. Learned Appellate court after examining the evidence found that house No.23, Gata No.190-A area 0-0-17, 190-B area 1-2-2, 309 area 3-6-12 and 161 Ka area 0-8-5 given in the bottom of the plaint were recorded in the name of Smt. Raji in the first consolidation and continued in the second consolidation and respondents had not made any objection before the consolidation authorities. However, the matter regarding adjudication of title is pending before the consolidation authorities and thus the suit of plaintiffs was also barred by Section 49 of Consolidation of Holdings Act. Even otherwise the plaintiff/appellants have failed to prove their case as discussed above. In view of no objection raised by the appellant/plaintiffs in both the consolidations during the life time of Smt.Raji, their allegations are only after thought and could not be proved by cogent and reliable evidence, therefore not acceptable in view of judgment in the case of Dina Nath Verma and others Versus Gokaran and others (Supra) also.

36. Adverting to the second question of law Order 41 Rule 31 of the CPC provides that the judgment of the appellate court shall be in writing and shall state the points for determination, the decision thereon, the reasons for the decision and where the decree appealed from is reversed or varied, the relief to which the appellant is entitled.

37. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Kanailal and others Versus Ram Chandra Singh and others; (2018) 13 SCC 715 has observed in paragraph 12 that it is clear from mere reading of Rules 31(a) to (d) that it makes legally obligatory upon the appellate court (both first and second appellate court) as to what should the judgment of the appellate court contain.

38. This court in the case of Raj Kumar and others Versus Ashok Kumar Chaurasia and 3 other;2015 SS Online All.9373 has held that where parties have led the evidence and said evidence has been considered for recording finding and if controversy is discernible from the judgment, then non-framing of points for determination does not vitiate the judgment and same will be treated to be substantial compliance of Order 41 Rule 31 CPC.

39. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of G.Amalorpavam and others Versus R.C.Diocese of Madurai and others; (2006) 3 SCC 224 has held that non-compliance with the provisions may not vitiate the judgment and make it wholly void, and may be ignored if there has been substantial compliance with it and the second appellate court is in a position to ascertain the findings of the lower appellate court.

40. In view of above merely because the points of determination have not specifically been stated, the judgment may not vitiate because it can be ignored if there has been substantial compliance with the provisions i.e. Order 41 Rule 31 CPC and the higher appellate court is able to ascertain the findings of the lower appellate court.

41. Learned counsel for the appellant had also failed to disclose as to which issue has not been framed and evidence has not been considered and only submitted that the points of determination have not been framed while the judgment has been passed after considering the submissions of the parties and the evidence and also the case laws specifically considering the pleadings and evidence in regard to issues on which the arguments were advanced. Therefore, this court is of the view that there is substantial compliance of Order 41 Rule 31 CPC and the judgment does not vitiate on this ground.

42. In the present case the suit for permanent injunction was filed by the appellant/plaintiffs with the allegation that Smt. Raji had re-married after the death of jagesar, therefore, they had become the owner of her property in view of Section 172 of the U.P.Z.A.& L.R.Act. As discussed above the plaintiff-appellants have failed to prove the re-marriage of Smt. Raji and possesson over the property, therefore, the decree passed by the learned trial court has rightly been set aside and suit has been dismissed in accordance with law.

43. In view of above this court is of the considered opinion that there is no illegality or error in the judgment and order dated 05.03.2011 passed by the First Appellate Court. The substantial questions of law framed by this court are accordingly decided against the appellants.

44. This second appeal is hereby dismissed. No order as to costs.

45. The lower Court record shall be remitted to the concerned court forthwith.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION
CIVIL SIDE

BEFORE
THE HON'BLE SUDHIR AGARWAL, J.
THE HON'BLE RAJEEV MISRA, J.

First Appeal No. 448 of 2015

Girish Chandra Srivastava ...Appellant
Versus
Smt. Reeta Srivastava ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellant:
Sri Sriprakash Dwivedi

Counsel for the Respondent:
Sri Ratnesh Khare

A. Civil Law-Hindu Marriage Act (25 of 1955) - S.12(2)(a)(i) - Marriage - Fraud - Consent obtained by fraud - Annulment of marriage - no petition for annulling a marriage on the ground of fraud shall be entertained if the petition is presented more than one year after the fraud had been discovered.

Allegation of husband that wife is elder to him but said fact was concealed at time of marriage - Husband not detailed in his marriage petition as to when factum that age of wife is more than him was discovered - In absence of pleading in that regard in plaint itself, suit filed by husband barred under S. 12(2)(a)(i) (Para 10)

B. Civil Law-Hindu Marriage Act (25 of 1955) - S.13(1)(ia) - Divorce - Cruelty - Merely on the allegation of cruelty without giving specific instances in support of such allegation, same cannot be considered by Court - Necessary to plead specific instances of cruelty

Held - Plaintiff-husband pleaded commission of cruelty upon his parents by wife – However husband failed to plead any specific instance of 'cruelty' - Further, parents of plaintiff-husband were the best persons to prove commission of 'cruelty' upon them by defendant-wife - However, Plaintiff did not adduce his own parents to prove commission of cruelty by defendant-wife - Husband failed to prove cruelty.(Para 13)

C. Civil Law-Hindu Marriage Act (25 of 1955) - S.13 - Divorce - Irretrievable breakdown of marriage - Husband conduct forced the wife to live separately - Wife filed suit for restitution of conjugal rights - Held - it is established that the wife has not herself abandoned the husband - it cannot be said that marriage between parties has broken down irretrievably (Para 27)

D. Civil Law-Hindu Marriage and Divorce Rules, 1956 - Rule 6 - Necessary Parties - Mandatory to implead alleged adulterer or adulteress a co-respondent to the divorce petition - Rule 6 mandatory in nature – Fact - Plaintiff - Husband pleaded that wife is in illegitimate relationship with her 'Jija' - Held - Plaintiff- was obliged to implead 'Jija' of Defendant-wife as a party to the marriage petition - Plaintiff-husband committed procedural error by not impleading 'Jija' of Defendant as a party to the Divorce Petition (Para 25)

E. Matrimonial dispute - Hindu Marriage Act (25 of 1955) - S.13 - Infidelity of wife - legitimacy of child - DNA test - Held - once infidelity of wife was challenged alleging that a son was born out of cohabitation with her 'Jija', it was incumbent upon Plaintiff-husband to apply for D.N.A. - DNA testing is the most legitimate and scientifically perfect means, which the husband could use, to establish his assertion of infidelity infidelity (Para 24)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajeev Misra, J).)

1. This is plaintiff's appeal under section 19 of Family Court's Act 1984 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1984") arising out of judgement dated 16.7.2015 and decree dated 23.7.2015, passed by Principal Judge, Family Court, Varanasi in Marriage Petition No. 536 of 2013 (Girish Chandra Srivastava Vs. Smt. Reeta Srivastava) under section 13 of Hindu Marriage Act , 1955 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1955") whereby, Court below has dismissed marriage petition filed by plaintiff-appellant for divorce on the grounds of cruelty, adultery and desertion.

2. According to plaint allegations, marriage of plaintiff-appellant was solemnized with Reeta Srivastava on 30.11.2001 in a very simple manner. It is the case of plaintiff-appellant that defendant-respondent, without taking consent of plaintiff-appellant, left her marital home in January, 2002 and is residing at her parental home since then. When all attempts by plaintiff-appellant for conciliation between parties failed and defendant-respondent did not return to her matrimonial home to live along plaintiff-appellant, Marriage Petition No. 536 of 2013 (Girish Chandra Srivastava Vs. Smt. Reeta Srivastava) under section 13 of Act, 1955 was filed by plaintiff-appellant for decree of divorce on grounds of cruelty, adultery and desertion. Apart from factual pleas in respect of aforesaid grounds, it was also pleaded in plaint that marriage between parties has been got solemnized by playing fraud. At the time of marriage, age of plaintiff was 43 years, whereas defendant-respondent was aged about 47 years. However, aforesaid fact was concealed and age of defendant-respondent was disclosed as 32 years. It was also alleged that at time of marriage defendant-respondent is younger to her brother Pankaj Khare, whereas true and correct fact is even at the time of marriage, defendant-respondent was elder to plaintiff-appellant. In elaboration of aforesaid ground, it was also pleaded that mensuration cycle of defendant-respondent has come to an end on account of her age. As such, defendant-respondent is incapable of reproducing a child. It was then pleaded that defendant-respondent committed cruelty both physical and mental upon plaintiff-appellant and his family members. Defendant-respondent was alleged to possess M.A. Degree, whereas, plaintiff-appellant is just High School. On account of such disparity, defendant-respondent used to make objectionable comments against plaintiff-appellant. It was also stated that defendant-respondent has failed to discharge her spousal obligations as well as her marriage obligations causing physical and mental cruelty to plaintiff-appellant. Defendant-respondent has refused to perform household jobs and has further entered into a scuffle with parents of plaintiff-appellant. False allegation regarding plaintiff-appellant being drunkard were also leveled by defendant-respondent causing mental agony to plaintiff-appellant. On the question of adulteress character of defendant-respondent, it was pleaded by plaintiff-appellant that defendant-respondent is in illegitimate relationship with Mahesh Khare her 'Jija' (husband of sister) and out of aforesaid illegal relationship, son has been born aged about 12 years. With respect to desertion by defendant-respondent, it was alleged by plaintiff-appellant that defendant-respondent has left house of plaintiff-appellant in January, 2002 without consent of plaintiff-appellant and inspite of best efforts for conciliation and request made by plaintiff-appellant requesting defendant-respondent to return to her marital home and co-habitate with plaintiff-appellant having failed, plaintiff-appellant filed matrimonial petition for grant of divorce.

3. Summons were issued to defendant-respondent but in spite of that, defendant-respondent did not appear. Consequently, service upon defendant-respondent was affected through substituted serviced by way of publication in daily news paper 'Aaj'. Inspite of aforesaid, defendant-respondent did not appear to contest marriage petition filed by plaintiff-appellant. Accordingly, Court below held service upon defendant-respondent to be sufficient. Consequently, marriage petition filed by plaintiff-appellant proceeded ex-parte against defendant-respondent.

4. Plaintiff-appellant, in order to prove his case, adduced only himself as P.W.1. He also filed six documentary evidence i.e. paper Nos. 8-Ga (I) to 8-Ga (VI) vide list of documents (Paper No. 7 Ga), in proof of his case.

5. To adjudicate marriage petition filed by plaintiff-appellant, Court below did not frame specific issues but independently considered grounds pleaded in plaint for grant of a decree of divorce.

6. Court below considered allegations made in plaint, oral testimony of plaintiff-appellant and documentary evidence adduced by plaintiff-appellant, while evaluating grounds for divorce pleaded in plaint. Upon consideration and evaluation of same, Court below concluded that none of the grounds raised by plaintiff-appellant are cogent enough to allow marriage petition filed by plaintiff-appellant and consequently, declined to grant a decree of divorce as prayed for.

7. It was pleaded by plaintiff-appellant that marriage of parties has been solemnized by playing fraud inasmuch as age of defendant-respondent was more than plaintiff-appellant at time of marriage but the said fact was deliberately concealed.

8. Court below took the view that on the aforesaid ground, marriage petition ought to have been filed within a period of one year from date of marriage or from date of knowledge of aforesaid fact. Admittedly, marriage of plaintiff-appellant with defendant-respondent was solemnized on 30.11.2001, whereas Marriage Petition has been filed in the year 2013 vide plaint dated 30.5.2013, without disclosing date on which plaintiff-appellant discovered aforesaid fact. As such, marriage petition filed by plaintiff-appellant on aforesaid ground is barred by limitation.

9. We have considered the finding recorded by Court below in respect of ground urged by plaintiff-appellant that fraud has been played inasmuch as defendant-respondent is elder to plaintiff-appellant but said fact was concealed at time of marriage between parties. As such, same has been got solemnized by playing fraud. Section 12 of Act 1955 relates to voidable marriages. For ready reference Section 12 of Act 1955 is reproduced herein below:

"12 Voidable marriages . (1) Any marriage solemnised, whether before or after the commencement of this Act, shall be voidable and may be annulled by a decree of nullity on any of the following grounds, namely:-

(a) that the marriage has not been consummated owing to the impotence of the respondent*; or]*

(b) that the marriage is in contravention of the condition specified in clause (ii) of section 5*; or*

(c) that the consent of the petitioner*, or where the consent of the guardian in marriage of the petitioner 13 [was required under section 5 as it stood immediately before the commencement of the Child Marriage Restraint (Amendment) Act, 1978 (2 of 1978)], the consent of such guardian was* obtained by force or by fraud as to the nature of the ceremony or as to any material fact or circumstance concerning the respondent; or

(d) that the respondent was at the time of the marriage pregnant by some person other than the petitioner.

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (1), no petition for annulling a marriage:-

(a) on the ground specified in clause (c) of sub-section (1) shall be entertained if-

(i) the petition is presented more than one year after the force had ceased to operate or*, as the* case may be, the fraud had been discovered*; or*

(ii) the petitioner has, with his or her full consent, lived with the other party to the marriage as husband or wife after the force had ceased to operate or, as the case may be, the fraud had been discovered;

(b) on the ground specified in clause (d) of sub-section (1) shall be entertained unless the court is satisfied

(i) that the petitioner was at the time of the marriage ignorant of the facts alleged;

(ii) that proceedings have been instituted in the case of a marriage solemnised before the commencement of this Act within one year of such commencement and in the case of marriages solemnised after such commencement within one year from the date of the marriage; and

(iii) that marital intercourse with the consent of the petitioner has not taken place since the discovery by the petitioner of the existence of the said ground."

(Emphasis added)

10. When finding recorded by Court below on the question that marriage of parties was got solemnized by playing fraud is examined in the light of provisions contained in Section 12 of Act, 1955, it is explicitly clear that finding recorded by Court below on the aforesaid question is perfectly just and legal. Plaintiff-appellant has himself not detailed in his marriage petition as to when the factum that age of Defendant-respondent is more than Plaintiff-appellant was discovered by him. In the absence of pleading in that regard in plaint itself, suit filed by Plaintiff-appellant stood clearly barred under Section 12(2) (a) (i) of the Act, 1955.

11. Plaintiff-appellant also pleaded commission of cruelty upon his parents by Defendant-respondent. Divorce can be granted on the ground of cruelty as per section 13 (1) (i-a). For ready reference, same is reproduced herein below:

"(1) Any marriage solemnized, whether before or after the commencement of this Act, may, on a petition presented by either the husband or the wife, be dissolved by a decree of divorce on the ground that the other party--

(i-a) has, after the solemnization of the marriage, treated the petitioner with cruelty; or "

12. Said issue was considered by Court below but refused to be accepted. Court below concluded that in order to prove 'cruelty', Plaintiff-appellant has not produced any supporting documentary evidence nor has adduced any independent witness to prove the same.

13. Admittedly, Plaintiff-appellant only made allegations of cruelty being committed by Defendant-respondent in the plaint. However, Plaintiff-appellant failed to plead any specific instance of 'cruelty'. Once it was alleged by Plaintiff-appellant that 'cruelty' was committed by Defendant-respondent upon his parents, then plaintiff-appellant ought to have detailed specific instances of 'cruelty' alleged to have been committed by defendant-respondent. Apart from above, parents of plaintiff-appellant were the best persons to prove commission of 'cruelty' upon them by defendant-respondent. However, for reasons best known to Plaintiff-appellant he did not adduce his own parents to prove commission of cruelty by defendant-respondent as alleged by him. We therefore find no illegality in the finding recorded by Court below on aforesaid issue. Consequently, we affirm the same.

14. It was then pleaded by plaintiff-appellant that defendant-respondent does not perform household jobs which is unbecoming of a wife. On this factual premise plaintiff-appellant pleaded for grant of a decree of divorce. However, Court below has considered the aforesaid plea raised by plaintiff-appellant but concluded that same by itself is not sufficient to grant decree of divorce as prayed for by plaintiff-appellant.

15. Section 13 of Act, 1955 provides for grounds of divorce. For ready reference Section 13 of Act, 1955 is reproduced herein-under

" 13 Divorce. --(1) Any marriage solemnized, whether before or after the commencement of this Act, may, on a petition presented by either the husband or the wife, be dissolved by a decree of divorce on the ground that the other party--

[(i) has, after the solemnization of the marriage, had voluntary sexual intercourse with any person other than his or her spouse; or

(i-b) has deserted the petitioner for a continuous period of not less than two years immediately preceding the presentation of the petition; or]

(ii) has ceased to be a Hindu by conversion to another religion; or

[(iii) has been incurably of unsound mind, or has been suffering continuously or intermittently from mental disorder of such a kind and to such an extent that the petitioner cannot reasonably be expected to live with the respondent.

Explanation.--In this clause,--

(a) the expression "mental disorder" means mental illness, arrested or incomplete development of mind, psychopathic disorder or any other disorder or disability of mind and includes schizophrenia;

(b) the expression "psychopathic disorder" means a persistent disorder or disability of mind (whether or not including sub-normality of intelligence) which results in abnormally aggressive or seriously irresponsible conduct on the part of the other party, and whether or not it requires or is susceptible to medical treatment; or]

(iv) has, [] been suffering from a virulent and incurable form of leprosy; or

(v) has, [] been suffering from venereal disease in a communicable form; or

(vi) has renounced the world by entering any religious order; or

(vi) has not been heard of as being alive for a period of seven years or more by those persons who would naturally have heard of it, had that party been alive; []

[Explanation. —In this sub-section, the expression "desertion" means the desertion of the petitioner by the other party to the marriage without reasonable cause and without the consent or against the wish of such party, and includes the wilful neglect of the petitioner by the other party to the marriage, and its grammatical variations and cognate expressions shall be construed accordingly.]

[(1-A) Either party to a marriage, whether solemnised before or after the commencement of this Act, may also present a petition for the dissolution of the marriage by a decree of divorce on the ground--

(i) that there has been no resumption of cohabitation as between the parties to the marriage for a period of 22 [one year] or upwards after the passing of a decree for judicial separation in a proceeding to which they were parties; or

(ii) that there has been no restitution of conjugal rights as between the parties to the marriage for a period of 22 [one year] or upwards after the passing of a decree for restitution of conjugal rights in a proceeding to which they were parties.]

(2) A wife may also present a petition for the dissolution of her marriage by a decree of divorce on the ground,---

(i) in the case of any marriage solemnised before the commencement of this Act, that the husband had married again before such commencement or that any other wife of the husband married before such commencement was alive at the time of the solemnisation of the marriage of the petitioner: Provided that in either case the other wife is alive at the time of the presentation of the petition; or

(ii) that the husband has, since the solemnisation of the marriage, been guilty of rape, sodomy or [bestiality; or]

[(iii) that in a suit under section 18 of the Hindu Adoptions and Maintenance Act, 1956 (78 of 1956), or in a proceeding under section 125 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) [or under the corresponding section 488 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898 (5 of 1898)], a decree or order, as the case may be, has been passed against the husband awarding maintenance to the wife notwithstanding that she was living apart and that since the passing of such decree or order, cohabitation between the parties has not been resumed for one year or upwards; or

[(iv) that her marriage (whether consummated or not) was solemnised before she attained the age of fifteen years and she has repudiated the marriage after attaining that age but before attaining the age of eighteen years.]

Explanation. --This clause applies whether the marriage was solemnised before or after the commencement of the Marriage Laws (Amendment) Act, 1976 (68 of 1976).]

STATE AMENDMENT

Uttar Pradesh.-- In its application to Hindus domiciled in Uttar Pradesh and also when either party to the marriage was not at the time of marriage a Hindu domiciled in Uttar Pradesh, in section 13--

(i) in sub-section (1), after clause (i) insert (and shall be deemed always to have been inserted) the following

"(1-a) has persistently or repeatedly treated the petitioner with such cruelty as to cause a reasonable apprehension in the mind of the petitioner that it will be harmful or injurious for the petitioner to live with the other party; or", and

(ii) for clause (viii) (since repealed) substituted and deem always to have been so substituted for following.

" (viii) has not resumed cohabitation after the passing of a decree for judicial separation against that party and--

(a) a period of two years has elapsed since the passing of such decree, or

(b) the case is one of exceptional hardship to the petitioner or of exceptional depravity on the part of other party; or"."

16. Section 13 (I) (i-a) of Act, 1955 provides for grant of decree of divorce on the ground of cruelty. The term 'cruelty' has not been defined in Act, 1955. Consequently, same has been subject-matter of debate for long.

17. Recently a Division Bench of this Court in Smt. Sarita Devi Vs. Sri Ashok Kumar Singh reported in 2018 (3) AWC 2328 has considered the question of cruelty in detail in paragraphs 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 27 and 29 which reads as under:-

"16. In Samar Ghosh vs. Jaya Ghosh (2007) 4 SCC 511 Court considered the concept of cruelty and referring to Oxford Dictionary defines 'cruelty' as 'the quality of being cruel; disposition of inflicting suffering; delight in or indifference to another's pain; mercilessness; hard-heartedness'.

17. In Black's Law Dictionary, 8th Edition, 2004, term "mental cruelty" has been defined as, "a ground for divorce, one spouse's course of conduct (not involving actual violence) that creates such anguish that it endangers the life, physical health, or mental health of the other spouse."

18. The concept of cruelty has been summarized in Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol.13, 4th Edition Para 1269, as under:

"The general rule in all cases of cruelty is that the entire matrimonial relationship must be considered, and that rule is of special value when the cruelty consists not of violent acts but of injurious reproaches, complaints, accusations or taunts. In cases where no violence is averred, it is undesirable to consider judicial pronouncements with a view to creating certain categories of acts or conduct as having or lacking the nature or quality which renders them capable or incapable in all circumstances of amounting to cruelty; for it is the effect of the conduct rather than its nature which is of paramount importance in assessing a complaint of cruelty. Whether one spouse has been guilty of cruelty to the other is essentially a question of fact and previously decided cases have little, if any, value. The court should bear in mind the physical and mental condition of the parties as well as their social status, and should consider the impact of the personality and conduct of one spouse on the mind of the other, weighing all incidents and quarrels between the spouses from that point of view; further, the conduct alleged must be examined in the light of the complainant's capacity for endurance and the extent to which that capacity is known to the other spouse. Malevolent intention is not essential to cruelty but it is an important element where it exits."

19. In 24 American Jurisprudence 2d, the term "mental cruelty" has been defined as under:

"Mental Cruelty as a course of unprovoked conduct toward one's spouse which causes embarrassment, humiliation, and anguish so as to render the spouse's life miserable and unendurable. The plaintiff must show a course of conduct on the part of the defendant which so endangers the physical or mental health of the plaintiff as to render continued cohabitation unsafe or improper, although the plaintiff need not establish actual instances of physical abuse. "

20. One of the earliest decision considering "mental cruelty" we find is, N.G. Dastane v. S. Dastane (1975) 2 SCC 326, wherein Court has said:

"The enquiry therefore has to be whether the conduct charges as cruelty is of such a character as to cause in the mind of the petitioner a reasonable apprehension that it will be harmful or injurious for him to live with the respondent. "

21. In Sirajmohmedkhan Janmohamadkhan v. Haizunnisa Yasinkhan and Anr. (1981) 4 SCC 250 Court said that a concept of legal cruelty changes according to the changes and advancement of social concept and standards of living. With the advancement of our social conceptions, this feature has obtained legislative recognition, that a second marriage is a sufficient ground for separate residence and maintenance. Moreover, to establish legal cruelty, it is not necessary that physical violence should be used. Continuous ill-treatment, cessation of marital intercourse, studied neglect, indifference on the part of the husband, and an assertion on the part of the husband that the wife is unchaste are all factors which lead to mental or legal cruelty.

22. In Shobha Rani v. Madhukar Reddi, (1988) 1 SCC 105, Court observed that word 'cruelty' has not been defined in Act, 1955 but legislature, making it a ground for divorce under Section 13(1)(i)(a) of Act, 1955, has made it clear that conduct of party in treatment of other if amounts to cruelty actual, physical or mental or legal is a just reason for grant of divorce. Cruelty may be mental or physical, intentional or unintentional. If it is physical, it is a question of fact about degree. If it is mental, the enquiry must begin as to the nature of cruel treatment and then as to the impact of such treatment on the mind of the spouse. Whether it caused reasonable apprehension that it would be harmful or injurious to live with the other, ultimately, is a matter of inference to be drawn by taking into account the nature of conduct and its effect on the complaining spouse. There may, however, be cases where conduct complained of itself is bad enough and per se unlawful or illegal. Then the impact or injurious effect on the other spouse need not be enquired into or considered. In such cases, cruelty will be established if conduct itself is proved or admitted. The absence of intention should not make any difference in the case, if by ordinary sense in human affairs, the act complained of could otherwise be regarded as cruelty.

23. In V. Bhagat v. D. Bhagat (Mrs.), (1994) 1 SCC 337 considering the concept of "mental cruelty" in the context of Section 13(1)(i)(a) of Act, 1984, Court said that it can be defined as conduct which inflicts upon the other party such mental pain and suffering as would make it not possible for that party to live with other. In other words, mental cruelty must be of such a nature that the parties cannot reasonably be expected to live together. The situation must be such that the wronged party cannot reasonably be asked to put up with such conduct and continue to live with other party. It is not necessary to prove that mental cruelty is such as to cause injury to the health of other party. While arriving at such conclusion, regard must be had to the social status, educational level of parties, the society they move in, the possibility or otherwise of the parties ever living together in case they are already living apart and all other relevant facts and circumstances which it is neither possible nor desirable to set out exhaustively. What is cruelty in one case may not amount to cruelty in another case. It is thus has to be determined in each case having regard to the facts and circumstances of each case.

24. In Chetan Dass v. Kamla Devi, (2001) 4 SCC 250, Court observed that matrimonial matters relates to delicate human and emotional relationship. It demands mutual trust, regard, respect, love and affection with sufficient play for reasonable adjustments with spouse. The relationship has to conform to the social norms as well. There is no scope of applying the concept of "irretrievably broken marriage" as a straitjacket formula for grant of relief of divorce but it has to be considered in the backdrop of facts and circumstances of the case concerned.

25. In Savitri Pandey v. Prem Chandra Panadey, (2002) 2 SCC 73, Court held that mental cruelty is the conduct of other spouse which causes mental suffering or fear to matrimonial life of other. Cruelty postulates a treatment of party to marriage with such conduct as to cause a reasonable apprehension in his or her mind that it would be harmful or injurious to live with other party. Cruelty has to be distinguished from ordinary wear and tear of family life.

27. In Vinita Saxena v. Pankaj Pandit, (2006) 3 SCC 778 Court held that complaints and reproaches, sometimes of ordinary nature, may not be termed as 'cruelty' but their continuance or persistence over a period of time may do so which would depends on the facts of each case and have to be considered carefully by the Court concerned.

29. In Samar Ghosh vs. Jaya Ghosh (supra) Court said that though no uniform standard can be laid down but there are some instances which may constitute mental cruelty and the same are illustrated as under:

"(i) On consideration of complete matrimonial life of the parties, acute mental pain, agony and suffering as would not make possible for the parties to live with each other could come within the broad parameters of mental cruelty.

(ii) On comprehensive appraisal of the entire matrimonial life of the parties, it becomes abundantly clear that situation is such that the wronged party cannot reasonably be asked to put up with such conduct and continue to live with other party.

(iii) Mere coldness or lack of affection cannot amount to cruelty, frequent rudeness of language, petulance of manner, indifference and neglect may reach such a degree that it makes the married life for the other spouse absolutely intolerable.

(iv) Mental cruelty is a state of mind. The feeling of deep anguish, disappointment, frustration in one spouse caused by the conduct of other for a long time may lead to mental cruelty.

(v) A sustained course of abusive and humiliating treatment calculated to torture, discommode or render miserable life of the spouse.

(vi) Sustained unjustifiable conduct and behavior of one spouse actually affecting physical and mental health of the other spouse. The treatment complained of and the resultant danger or apprehension must be very grave, substantial and weighty.

(vii) Sustained reprehensible conduct, studied neglect, indifference or total departure from the normal standard of conjugal kindness causing injury to mental health or deriving sadistic pleasure can also amount to mental cruelty.

(viii) The conduct must be much more than jealousy, selfishness, possessiveness, which causes unhappiness and dissatisfaction and emotional upset may not be a ground for grant of divorce on the ground of mental cruelty.

(ix) Mere trivial irritations, quarrels, normal wear and tear of the married life which happens in day to day life would not be adequate for grant of divorce on the ground of mental cruelty.

(x) The married life should be reviewed as a whole and a few isolated instances over a period of years will not amount to cruelty. The ill-conduct must be persistent for a fairly lengthy period, where the relationship has deteriorated to an extent that because of the acts and behavior of a spouse, the wronged party finds it extremely difficult to live with the other party any longer, may amount to mental cruelty.

(xi) If a husband submits himself for an operation of sterilization without medical reasons and without the consent or knowledge of his wife and similarly if the wife undergoes vasectomy or abortion without medical reason or without the consent or knowledge of her husband, such an act of the spouse may lead to mental cruelty.

(xii) Unilateral decision of refusal to have intercourse for considerable period without there being any physical incapacity or valid reason may amount to mental cruelty.

(xiii) Unilateral decision of either husband or wife after marriage not to have child from the marriage may amount to cruelty.

(xiv) Where there has been a long period of continuous separation, it may fairly be concluded that the matrimonial bond is beyond repair. The marriage becomes a fiction though supported by a legal tie. By refusing to sever that tie, the law in such cases, does not serve the sanctity of marriage; on the contrary, it shows scant regard for the feelings and emotions of the parties. In such like situations, it may lead to mental cruelty."

18. The aforesaid Division Bench judgement clearly explains different shades of 'cruelty' which by itself are sufficient enough to dissolve the marriage on the ground of cruelty. The aforesaid judgement also prescribes the mode as to how 'cruelty' has to be proved and in what decree it has to be proved so as to grant of decree of divorce on the ground of 'cruelty'.

19. With the aid of the aforesaid material, Court has now to examine, whether plaintiff-appellant was able to successfully establish cruelty on the part of defendant- respondent and therefore, entitled to the decree of divorce on the aforesaid ground.

20. From perusal of plaint, we find that allegation of cruelty made by plaintiff-appellant is only allegation but does not give any specific instance or instances of cruelty having been committed by Defendant-respondent. Merely on the allegation of cruelty having been committed without giving specific instances in support of such allegation, same cannot be considered by Court. In the present case, Plaintiff-appellant has failed to plead specific instances of cruelty. Plea raised by plaintiff-appellant is not covered under judgement of Apex Court in Samar Ghosh (Supra) wherein

Apex Court has given various instances of mental cruelty. Plea raised by plaintiff-appellant neither singularly nor when considered cumulatively along with other grounds pleaded in plaint, is sufficient enough to grant decree of divorce. Consequently, we do not find any error much less an error on face of record in conclusion drawn by Court below that decree of divorce cannot be granted on ground that wife has refused to perform household job.

21. Plaintiff-appellant in support of his divorce suit further pleaded that defendant-respondent was in illegal relationship with her 'Jija' i.e. husband of sister namely Mahesh Khare. From aforesaid illegal relationship, a son aged about 12 years was born. Court below refused to entertain this ground as Rule 6 of The Hindu Marriage and Divorce Rules, 1956 (hereinafter referred to as "Rules, 1956") were not complied with inasmuch as Mahesh Khare was not impleaded as a party to the proceedings. Apart from above bare pleading no cogent evidence has been adduced by Plaintiff-appellant to substantiate aforesaid plea. Once infidelity of wife of Defendantn-respondent i.e. wife was challenged, it was incombent upon Plaintiff-appellant to apply for D.N.A. Test of the child as well as Mahesh Khare. However, no such step was taken by Plaintiff-appellant. Consequently, Court below rejected the aforesaid ground for grant of divorce prayed for by Plaintiff-appellant. He has also not impleaded the person allegedly involved in adultery with defendant-respondent.

22. We have examined the finding recorded by Court below with regard to adulterous character of Defendant-respondent as alleged by Plaintiff-appellant. For ready reference Rule 6 of Rules, 1956 is reproduced herein-under:-

"6. Necessary Parties- (a) In every petition for divorce or judicial separation on the ground that the respondent is living in adultery or has committed adultery with any person, the petitioner shall make the alleged adulterer or adulteress a co-respondent to the petition unless he or she is excused by the Court from doing so on any of the following grounds:

(i) that the name of such person is unknown to the petitioner although he has made due efforts for discovery,

(ii) that such person is dead;

(iii) that the respondent if a woman is leading the life of a prostitute and that the petitioner knows of no person with whom adultery has been committed; or

(iv) Any other reason that the Court considers sufficient.

(b) In every petition under Sec.13 (1) and (2) of the Act, the petitioner shall make 'the other wife' mentioned in that section a co-respondent.

(c) In every petition under Sec. 11 of the Act on the ground that the condition in Sec. 5 (1) is contravened the petitioner shall make the spouse alleged to be living at the time of the marriage a co-respondent.

(d) If a petitioner does not make the alleged adulterer or adulteress a co-respondent he shall at the time of presenting the petition file a separate application supported by an affidavit giving the reasons."

23. Admittedly, Rule 6 of Rules, 1956 is mandatory in nature and therefore, Plaintiff-appellant was obliged to implead Mahesh Khare i.e. 'Jija' of Defendant-respondent as a party to the marriage petition.

24. That apart, we find that once ifidelity of wife was challenged stating that a son was born out of cohabitation with Mahesh Khare i.e. 'Jija' of Defendant-respondent, it was incumbent upon Plaintiff-appellant to apply for D.N.A. Test of alleged illegitimate son and Mahesh Khare. However, for reasons best known to Plaintiff-appellant no such steps were taken. Reference in this regard be made to judgement of Apex Court in Dipanwita Roy Vs. Ronobroto Roy, 2015 (1) SCC 365 in which Court considered the question of presumption arising out under section 112 and the necessity of holding D.N.A. test. Court referred to provisions of Section 112 and thereafter observed as follows in paragraphs 9, 10, 11, 13, 14, 15, 17, 18:

"9. Learned counsel for the appellant-wife, in the first instance, invited our attention to Section 112 of the Indian Evidence Act. The same is being extracted hereunder:

"112. Birth during marriage, conclusive proof of legitimacy- The fact that any person was born during the continuance of a valid marriage between his mother and any man, or within two hundred and eighty days after its dissolution, the mother remaining unmarried, shall be conclusive proof that he is the legitimate son of that man, unless it can be shown that the parties to the marriage had no access to each other at any time when he could have been begotten."

Based on the aforesaid provision, learned counsel for the appellant-wife drew our attention to decision rendered by the Privy Council in Karapaya Servai v. Mayandi, AIR 1934 PC 49, wherein it was held, that the word 'access' used in Section 112 of the Evidence Act, connoted only the existence of an opportunity for marital intercourse, and in case such an opportunity was shown to have existed during the subsistence of a valid marriage, the provision by a fiction of law, accepted the same as conclusive proof of the fact that the child born during the subsistence of the valid marriage, was a legitimate child. It was the submission of the learned counsel for the appellant-wife, that the determination of the Privy Council in Karapaya Servai's case(supra) was approved by this Court in Chilukuri Venkateshwarly vs. Chilukuri Venkatanarayana, 1954 SCR 424.

10. Learned counsel for the appellant-wife also invited our attention to a decision rendered by this Court in Goutam Kundu vs. State of West Bengal and another, (1993) 3 SCC 418, wherein this Court, inter alia, held as under:

"(1) That Courts in India cannot order blood test as a matter of course.

(2) Wherever applications are made for such prayers in order to have roving inquiry, the prayer for blood test cannot be entertained.

(3) There must be a strong prima facie case in that the husband must establish non-access in order to dispel the presumption arising under Section 112 of the Evidence Act.

(4) The Court must carefully examine as to what would be the consequence of ordering the blood test; whether it will have the effect of branding a child as a bastard and the mother as an unchaste woman.

(5) No one can be compelled to give samle of blood for analysis." Reliance was also placed on the decision rendered by this Court in Kamti Devi and another v. Poshi Ram, AIR 2001 SC 2226, wherefrom, the following observations made by this Court, were sought to be highlighted:

"9. But Section 112 itself provides an outlet to the party who wants to escape from the rigour of that conclusiveness. The said outlet is, if it can be shown that the parties had no access to each other at the time when the child could have been begotten the presumption could be rebutted. In other words, the party who wants to dislodge the conclusiveness has the burden to show a negative, not merely that he did not have the opportunity to approach his wife but that she too did not have the opportunity of approaching him during the relevant time. Normally, the rule of evidence in other instances is that the burden is on the party who asserts the positive, but in this instance the burden is cast on the party who pleads the negative. The raison d'etre is the legislative concern against illegitimatizing a child. It is a sublime public policy that children should not suffer social disability on account of the laches or lapses of parents.

10. We may remember that Section 112 of the Evidence Act was enacted at a time when the modern scientific advancements with Dioxy Nucleric Acid (DNA) as well as Ribonucleic Acid (RNA) tests were not even in contemplation of the legislature. The result of a genuine DNA test is said to be scientifically accurate. But even that is not enough to escape from the conclusiveness of Section 112 of the Act, e.g., if a husband and wife were living together during the time of conception but the DNA test revealed that the child was not born to the husband, the conclusiveness in law would remain unrebuttable. This may look hard from thepoint of view of the husband who would be compelled to bear the fatherhood of a child of which he may be innocent. But even in such a case the law leans in favour of the innocent child from being bastardized if his mother and her spouse were living together during the time of conception. Hence the question regarding the degree of proof of non-access for rebutting the conclusiveness must be answered in the light of what is meant by access or non-access as delineated above.

11.....Its corollary is that the burden of the plaintiff-husband should be higher than the standard of preponderance of probabilities. The standard of proof in such cases must at least be of a degree in between the two as to ensure that there was no possibility of the child being conceived through the plaintiff-husband. " (emphasis is ours)

11. Lastly, learned counsel for the appellant-wife, placed reliance on the decision rendered by this Court in Sham Lal @ Kuldeep vs. Sanjeev Kumar and others, (2009) 12 SCC 454, wherein it was inter alia, held as under:

"Once the validity of marriage is proved then there is strong presumption about the legitimacy of children born from that wedlock. The presumption can only be rebutted by a strong, clear, satisfying and conclusive evidence. The presumption cannot be displaced by mere balance of probabilities or any circumstance creating doubt. Even the evidence of adultery by wife which though amounts to very strong evidence, it, by itself, is not quite sufficient to repel this presumption and will not justify finding of illegitimacy if husband has had access. In the instant case, admittedly the plaintiff and Defendant 4 were born to D during the continuance of her valid marriage with B. Their marriage was in fact never dissolved. There is no evidence on record that B at any point of time did not have access to D." (emphasis is ours).

13. All the judgments relied upon by the learned counsel for the appellant were on the pointed subject of the legitimacy of the child born during the subsistence of a valid marriage. The question that arises for consideration in the present appeal, pertains to the alleged infidelity of the appellant-wife. It is not the husband's desire to prove the legitimacy or illegitimacy of the child born to the appellant. The purpose of the respondent is, to establish the ingredients of Section 13(1)(ii) of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, namely, that after the solemnisation of the marriage of the appellant with the respondent, the appellant had voluntarily engaged in sexual intercourse, with a person other than the respondent. There can be no doubt, that the prayer made by the respondent for conducting a DNA test of the appellant's son as also of himself, was aimed at the alleged adulterous behaviour of the appellant. In the determination of the issue in hand, undoubtedly, the issue of legitimacy will also be incidentally involved. Therefore, insofar as the present controversy is concerned, Section 112 of the Indian Evidence Act would not strictly come into play.

14. A similar issue came to be adjudicated upon by this Court in Bhabani Prasad Jena vs. Convenor Secretary, Orissa State Commission for Women and another, (2010) 8 SCC 633, wherein this Court held as under:

"21. In a matter where paternity of a child is in issue before the court, the use of DNA test is an extremely delicate and sensitive aspect. One view is that when modern science gives the means of ascertaining the paternity of a child, there should not be any hesitation to use those means whenever the occasion requires. The other view is that the court must be reluctant in the use of such scientific advances and tools which result in invasion of right to privacy of an individual and may not only be prejudicial to the rights of the parties but may have devastating effect on the child. Sometimes the result of such scientific test may bastardise an innocent child even though his mother and her spouse were living together during the time of conception.

22. In our view, when there is apparent conflict between the right to privacy of a person not to submit himself forcibly to medical examination and duty of the court to reach the truth, the court must exercise its discretion only after balancing the interests of the parties and on due consideration whether for a just decision in the matter, DNA test is eminently needed. DNA test in a matter relating to paternity of a child should not be directed by the court as a matter of course or in a routine manner, whenever such a request is made. The court has to consider diverse aspects including presumption under Section 112 of the Evidence Act; pros and cons of such order and the test of "eminent need" whether it is not possible for the court to reach the truth without use of such test.

23. There is no conflict in the two decisions of this ourt, namely, Goutam Kundu vs. State of West Bengal (1993) 3 SCC 418 and Sharda vs. Dharmpal (2003) 4 SCC 493. In Goutam Kundu, it has been laid down that courts in India cannot order blood test as a matter of course and such prayers cannot be granted to have roving inquiry; there must be strong prima facie case and the court must carefully examine as to what would be the consequence of ordering the blood test. In Sharda, while concluding that a matrimonial court has power to order a person to undergo a medical test, it was reiterated that the court should exercise such a power if the applicant has a strong prime facie case and there is sufficient material before the court. Obviously, therefore, any order for DNA test can be given by the court only if a strong prima facie case is made out for such a course.

24. Insofar as the present case is concerned, we have already held that the State Commission has no authority, competence or power to order DNA test. Looking to the nature of proceedings with which the High Court was concerned, it has to be held that the High Court exceeded its jurisdiction in passing the impugned order. Strangely, the High Court overlooked a very material aspect that the matrimonial dispute between the parties is already pending in the court of competent jurisdiction and all aspects concerning matrimonial dispute raised by the parties in that case shall be adjudicated and determined by that court. Should an issue arise before the matrimonial court concerning the paternity of the child, obviously that court will be competent to pass an appropriate order at the relevant time in accordance with law. In any view of the matter, it is not possible to sustain the order passed by the High Court. " (emphasis is ours)

It is therefore apparent, that despite the consequences of a DNA test, this Court has concluded, that it was permissible for a Court to permit the holding of a DNA test, if it was eminently needed, after balancing the interests of the parties.

15. Recently, the issue was again considered by this Court in Nandlal Wasudeo Badwaik vs. Lata Nandlal Badwaik and another, (2014) 2 SCC 576, wherein this Court held as under:

"15. Here, in the present case, the wife had pleaded that the husband had access to her and, in fact, the child was born in the said wedlock, but the husband had specifically pleaded that after his wife left the matrimonial home, she did not return and thereafter, he had no access to her. The wife has admitted that she had left the matrimonial home but again joined her husband. Unfortunately, none of the courts below have given any finding with regard to this plea of the husband that he had not any access to his wife at the time when the child could have been begotten.

16. As stated earlier, the DNA test is an accurate test and on that basis it is clear that the appellant is not the biological father of the girl child. However, at the same time, the condition precedent for invocation of Section 112 of the Evidence Act has been established and no finding with regard to the plea of the husband that he had no access to his wife at the time when the child could have been begotten has been recorded. Admittedly, the child has been born during the continuance of a valid marriage. Therefore, the provisions of Section 112 of the Evidence Act conclusively prove that Respondent 2 is the daughter of the appellant. At the same time, the DNA test reports, based on scientific analysis, in no uncertain terms suggest that the appellant is not the biological father. In such circumstances, which would give way to the other is a complex question posed before us.

17. We may remember that Section 112 of the Evidence Act was enacted at a time when the modern scientific advancement and DNA test were not even in contemplation of the legislature. The result of DNA test is said to be scientifically accurate. Although Section 112 raises a presumption of conclusive proof on satisfaction of the conditions enumerated therein but the same is rebuttable. The presumption may afford legitimate means of arriving at an affirmative legal conclusion. While the truth or fact is known, in our opinion, there is no need or room for any presumption. Where there is evidence to the contrary, the presumption is rebuttable and must yield to proof. The interest of justice is best served by ascertaining the truth and the court should be furnished with the best available science and may not be left to bank upon presumptions, unless science has no answer to the facts in issue. In our opinion, when there is a conflict between a conclusive proof envisaged under law and a proof based on scientific advancement accepted by the world community to be correct, the latter must prevail over the former.

18. We must understand the distinction between a legal fiction and the presumption of a fact. Legal fiction assumes existence of a fact which may not really exist. However, a presumption of a fact depends on satisfaction of certain circumstances. Those circumstances logically would lead to the fact sought to be presumed. Section 112 of the Evidence Act does not create a legal fiction but provides for presumption.

19. The husband's plea that he had no access to the wife when the child was begotten stands proved by the DNA test report and in the face of it, we cannot compel the appellant to bear the fatherhood of a child, when the scientific reports prove to the contrary. We are conscious that an innocent child may not be bastardised as the marriage between her mother and father was subsisting at the time of her birth, but in view of the DNA test reports and what we have observed above, we cannot forestall the consequence. It is denying the truth. "Truth must triumph" is the hallmark of justice." (emphasis is ours) This Court has therefore clearly opined, that proof based on a DNA test would be sufficient to dislodge, a presumption under Section 112 of the Indian Evidence Act.

16. It is borne from the decisions rendered by this Court in Bhabani Prasad Jena (supra), and Nandlal Wasudeo Badwaik (supra), that depending on the facts and circumstances of the case, it would be permissible for a Court to direct the holding of a DNA examination, to determine the veracity of the allegation(s), which constitute one of the grounds, on which the concerned party would either succeed or lose. There can be no dispute, that if the direction to hold such a test can be avoided, it should be so avoided. The reason, as already recorded in various judgments by this Court, is that the legitimacy of a child should not be put to peril.

17. The question that has to be answered in this case, is in respect of the alleged infidelity of the appellant-wife. The respondent-husband has made clear and categorical assertions in the petition filed by him under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act, alleging infidelity. He has gone to the extent of naming the person, who was the father of the male child born to the appellant-wife. It is in the process of substantiating his allegation of infidelity, that the respondent-husband had made an application before the Family Court for conducting a DNA test, which would establish whether or not, he had fathered the male child born to the appellant-wife. The respondent feels that it is only possible for him to substantiate the allegations levelled by him (of the appellant-wife's infidelity) through a DNA test. We agree with him. In our view, but for the DNA test, it would be impossible for the respondent-husband to establish and confirm the assertions made in the pleadings. We are therefore satisfied, that the direction issued by the High Court, as has been extracted hereinabove, was fully justified. DNA testing is the most legitimate and scientifically perfect means, which the husband could use, to establish his assertion of infidelity. This should simultaneously be taken as the most authentic, rightful and correct means also with the wife, for her to rebut the assertions made by the respondent-husband, and to establish that she had not been unfaithful, adulterous or disloyal. If the appellant-wife is right, she shall be proved to be so.

18. We would, however, while upholding the order passed by the High Court, consider it just and appropriate to record a caveat, giving the appellant-wife liberty to comply with or disregard the order passed by the High Court, requiring the holding of the DNA test. In case, she accepts the direction issued by the High Court, the DNA test will determine conclusively the veracity of accusation levelled by the respondent-husband, against her. In case, she declines to comply with the direction issued by the High Court, the allegation would be determined by the concerned Court, by drawing a presumption of the nature contemplated in Section 114 of the Indian Evidence Act, especially, in terms of illustration (h) thereof. Section 114 as also illustration (h), referred to above, are being extracted hereunder:

"114. Court may presume existence of certain facts - The Court may presume the existence of any fact which it thinks likely to have happened, regard being had to the common course of natural events, human conduct and public and private business, in their relation to the facts of the particular case.

Illustration (h) - That if a man refuses to answer a question which he is not compelled to answer by law, the answer, if given, would be unfavourable to him."

This course has been adopted to preserve the right of individual privacy to the extent possible. Of course, without sacrificing the cause of justice. By adopting the above course, the issue of infidelity alone would be determined, without expressly disturbing the presumption contemplated under Section 112 of the Indian Evidence Act. Even though, as already stated above, undoubtedly the issue of legitimacy would also be incidentally involved."

25. Thus having considered the legal provisions and case law regarding proof of fact as to whether illegitimate son was born out of cohabitation with another person, we find that Plaintiff-appellant has committed a procedural error in plaint by not impleading Mahesh Khare 'Jija' of Defendant-respondent as a party to the Divorce Potion even when the same was mandatorily required under Rule 6, of Rules 1956. Further no application was filed by Plaintiff-appellant before Court below to ascertain the D.N.A. Character of illegitimate child and Mahesh Khare 'Jija' of Defendant-respondent. In the absence of aforesaid, Court below was totally handicapped to consider the aforesaid issue pressed by Plaintiff-appellant for annulment of marriage. Court below thus did not commit any illegality in refusing to grant a decree of divorce to Plaintiff-appellant on this ground.

26. Lastly, it was pleaded by Plaintiff-appellant before Court below that parties have been living separately since January, 2002, as such, marriage of parties has broken down irretrievably. It was the case of Plaintiff-appellant that defendant-respondent without taking consent of plaintiff-appellant and out of her own free will left her matrimonial home in January, 2002 and is residing with her parents since then. In spite of repeated request made by Plaintiff-appellant defendant-respondent has refused to live with Plaintiff-appellant in her marital home. Reliance is placed upon judgements in Sukhendu Das VS. Rita Mukherjee, 2007 (9) SCC 632. Reliance is placed upon paragraphs 6 and 7 to buttress the submission that in present case also, wife defendant-respondent is living separately since January, 2002 and inspite of knowledge of divorce suit has refused to participate in the same, consequently marriage of parties has broken down irretrievably and forcing appellant to stay in a dead marriage would itself constitute mental cruelty. Para 6 and 7 of the judgement in Sukhendu Das (Supra) read as under:

"6. Mr. Raja Chatterjee, learned counsel appearing for the Appellant submitted that the Respondent deserted the Appellant about 17 years back and she refused to come back and live with him. Apart from the allegation of desertion, the learned counsel also alleged mental cruelty on the part of the Respondent who threatened the Appellant in the year 2005 that she would get a criminal case filed against him if he did not stop attempts to get the divorce. The learned counsel further submitted that the Appellant and the Respondent have been living apart due to matrimonial discord since 17 years and for all practical purposes the marriage has broken down.

7. The Respondent, who did not appear before the trial court after filing of written statement, did not respond to the request made by the High Court for personal appearance. In spite of service of Notice, the Respondent did not show any interest to appear in this Court also. This conduct of the Respondent by itself would indicate that she is not interested in living with the Appellant. Refusal to participate in proceeding for divorce and forcing the appellant to stay in a dead marriage would itself constitute mental cruelty [Samar Ghosh v. Jaya Ghosh, 2007 (2) R.C.R (Civil 595; 2007 (2) R.C.R. (Criminal) 515 : 2007 (2) Recent Apex Judgements (R.A.J) 177: (2007) 4 SCC 511 (para 101) (xiv) . The High Court observed that no attempt was made by either of the parties to be posted at the same place. Without entering into the disputed facts of the case, we are of the opinion that there is no likelihood of the Appellant and the Respondent living together and for all practical purposes there is an irretrievable breakdown of the marriage. "

27. Court below also considered above mentioned ground. Court below upon evaluation of evidence on record, concluded that Plaintiff-appellant had previously filed Marriage Petition No. 258 of 2003 for grant of divorce. Defendant-respondent appeared in aforesaid marriage petition. She appears to have subsequently filed an application under Section 24 of Act, 1955 for grant of interim maintenance. Same was allowed. However, on account of failure of Plaintiff-appellant to pay interim maintenance to defendant-respondent, earlier Marriage Petition NO. 258 of 2003 filed by Plaintiff-appellant came to be dismissed. Restoration application filed by plaintiff-appellant was also rejected. That apart, Defendant-respondent had herself filed Case No. 448 of 2003 in the Family Court, Gorakhpur for restitution of conjugal rights as contemplated under Section 9 of Act, 1955. As such, it is established that Defendant-respondent has not herself abounded Plaintiff-appellant. To the contrary on account of conduct of Plaintiff-appellant, Defendant-respondent has been forced to live separately. On the facts as noted above, it cannot be said that marriage between parties has broken down irretrievably. Consequently, we have no hesitation to hold that finding recorded by Court below that marriage between parties has not broken down irretrievably, does not suffer from any illegality, perversity or being erroneous. Defendant-respondent is legally wedded wife of plaintiff-appellant. As such, plaintiff-appellant is legally and morally bound to maintain his wife. Record shows that plaintiff-appellant has miserably failed in discharging his moral and legal obligation.

28. In view of discussion made herein-above, appeal fails and is liable to be dismissed. It is accordingly dismissed. Cost made easy.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajeev Misra, J).)

1. The present first appeal under section 19 of Family Courts Act, 1984 (hereinafter referred to as 'Act 1984') has been filed by Krishna Murari Plaintiff-appellant (hereinafter referred to as 'Plaintiff') challenging judgement dated 17.11.2015 and decree dated 27.11.2015, passed by Principal Judge, Family Court, Kanpur Dehat in Suit No. 11 of 2009 (Krishna Murari Vs. Sangeeta) under section 13 of Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 (hereinafter referred to as 'Act 1955') whereby suit filed by Plaintiff for grant of decree of divorce on the ground of adultery, which is recognized as a ground of divorce under section 13 (1) (i) of Act 1955 has been dismissed.

2. We have heard Mr. Udhay Bhan Singh, learned counsel for Plaintiff and Mr. Atul Kumar Tiwari, learned counsel representing Defendant-respondent (hereinafter referred to as 'Defendant')

3. According to plaint allegations marriage of Plaintiff was solemnized with Defendant on 17.6.2005 at Hindupur in accordance with Hindu Rites and Customs. After marriage, Defendant came to her matrimonial home at village Nasirapur. It is alleged by Plaintiff that after some time, Defendant insisted that they should live in Bilhour. However Plaintiff resisted the desire of Defendant on the ground that he is the only son of his parents and father of Plaintiff has died long ago. As such, Mother of Plaintiff will be left alone at Naserpur. Therefore, it is not advisable to live in Bilhour. However, it is alleged by Plaintiff that after some time again pressure was exerted by Defendant to live at Bilhour. Ultimately, Plaintiff acceded to the insistence of defendant and started residing at Bilhour. It is further alleged by Plaintiff that on 28.9.2005, when he returned after closing his shop found of his residence locked. On inquiry, it was gathered that Defendant has gone to house of her Jija, namely, Mahesh Chand, who is also living in Bilhour. According to Plaintiff, he reached house of Mahesh Chand at arround 6:00 pm and found Defendant in compromising position with Mahesh. Plaintiff is alleged to have words with Defendant but she refused to pay any heed. After the aforesaid incident, Plaintiff is alleged to have pursuaded Defendant to abstain from visiting her Jija's place but she refused. On complaint being made to father and brother of Defendant Sangeeta, they also did not pay any heed, but to the contrary supported her. They are also alleged to have threatened Plaintiff of his life. Relationship between parties became strained. On 20.4.2006, father of Defendant came to Bilhour, and stating that there is some function in village and Sangeeta shall return after one week. Accordingly, Sangeeta wife of Plaintiff went with her father on 20.4.2006 to her parental home. After one week, Plaintiff went to Hindupur to bring back Sangeeta but father and brother of Defendant refused to send her along with Plaintiff. It is also alleged that on 5.6.2006, when Plaintiff was at his shop, his friend Girish Chand informed that his wife has arrived at her Jija's house, since yesterday. Plaintiff closed his shop and retuned to his home waiting for Defendant. However, as Defendant did not return up to 8:00 pm, Plaintiff went to the house of Jija of Defendant and there he saw his wife Sangeeta in compromising position with Mahesh Chand, her Jija. Inspite of aforesaid, wife of Mahesh i.e. Ranu and Mahesh abused Plaintiff, as such, Plaintiff returned to his home. Defendant lodged an F.I.R. against Plaintiff in which Plaintiff surrendered before Court on 20.7.2006 and enlarged on bail on 20.7.2006. It is also alleged that on 4.8.2006, Pappu, brother-in-law of Plaintiff and Mahesh Chand, Sadhu of Plaintiff are alleged to have assaulted Plaintiff and also took away Rs. 10,000/- from the person of Mahesh. Inspite of all attempts made by relatives of Plaintiff, to have a compromise, Defendant did not accede to the same. To the contrary, she initiated criminal proceedings against Plaintiff. As such, except for divorce there is no other way to resolve the deadlock.

4. Suit filed by Plaintiff was contested by Defendant. She accordingly filed a written statement whereby, not only plaint allegations were denied but also additional pleas were raised. Defendant pleaded that her mother-in-law and sister-in-law have harassed her for demand of dowry. Consequently, criminal case regarding demand of dowry was initiated by Defendant, which is pending consideration. In respect of incident which was alleged to have occurred on 4.8.2006, in which Plaintiff was alleged to have been assaulted by Pappu, brother-in-law and Mahesh Chand (Sadhu) it was stated that Police upon investigation has submitted a final report, as the incident was found to be false. It is the Plaintiff-husband, mother-in-law and sister-in-law of Defendant, who have caused physical and mental cruelty upon defendant and have also harassed defendant for money. No attempt was made by Plaintiff to apologize for his previous mistakes or give an undertaking for good behaviour in future. Defendant categorically pleaded that in case Plaintiff is ready to remove the cause of agony and gives an undertaking that he will keep Defendant properly then Defendant is ready to live with Plaintiff and to discharge her marital obligations as wife of Plaintiff. Allegations made against Mahesh Chand, Jija of Defendant, were categorically denied.

5. After exchange of pleading, parties went to trial. Court below upon consideration of pleadings of parties, framed following issues:

(a) Whether plaintiff is entitled to decree of divorce on grounds mentioned in the plaint.

(b) Whether plaintiff is entitled to any other relief.

6. Plaintiff in support of his case, adduced himself as P.W.-1 and One Surjit as P.W.-2. No documentary evidence was filed by Plaintiff in support of his case. Defendant, in support of her defence adduced herself as D.W.1 and one Rani as D.W.-2. Defendant also filed documentary evidence, in proof of her defence. She accordingly filed copy of formal order passed in Misc. Case No. 20/74/10 Smt. Sangeeta Vs. Krishna Murari.

7. Court below examined pleadings and evidence of parties. It accordingly concluded that Plaintiff has instituted suit for divorce on the ground of adultery but Plaintiff could not prove the same. In support of aforesaid finding, Trial Court observed that in order to prove adultery, following three questions must be answered in affirmative:

(a) Whether after marriage, Defendant had extra marital intercourse with any other person.

(b) Whether Defendant had extra marital intercourse with any other person on account of fraud, force or under influence of some psychotherapeutic substance, as such, she could not understand what is being committed upon her and therefore, no offence can be said to be committed by her. It is only when such crime is committed with a guilty mind that decree of divorce can be granted.

(c) With which person other than husband or wife has defendant entered into extra marital physical relationship.

8. Court below before proceeding to answer aforesaid three questions guarded itself with the parameters by which jurisdiction of Courts while deciding issue of 'adultery' is circumferenced. Court below rightly observed that question of 'adultery' cannot be decided like other grounds for dissolution of marriage. 'Adultery' is normally committed in secrecy and therefore, it is difficult to prove same by direct evidence. Consequently, 'adultery' can be inferred from circumstances. However, burden is upon person, who alleges adultery.

9. Court below examined above mentioned three questions in the backdrop of limitation as stated above and concluded that Plaintiff has failed to prove 'adultery' on the part of Defendant. In view of finding recorded on Issue-1, Court below further held that Plaintiff is not entitled to any other relief. Consequently, Court below dismissed suit of Plaintiff for grant of decree of divorce on ground of 'adultery' vide judgement dated 17.11.2015 and decree dated 27.11.2015. Feeling aggrieved, Plaintiff has now approached this Court by means of present first appeal.

10. Mr. Uday Bahan Singh, learned counsel for Plaintiff in challenge to impugned judgement and decree passed by Court below has submitted that impugned judgement and decree passed by Court below are manifestly illegal and in excess of jurisdiction, hence same are liable to be set aside by this Court. He next submits that from the statement of P.W.-1 and P.W.-2, it is proved beyond doubt that Defendant is guilty of committing 'adultery'. He lastly submits that irrespective of findings recorded by Court below crux of matter is that parties have been living separately since 20.04.2006. As such, for all practical purposes, marriage of parties has broken down irretrievably. Therefore, this Court in exercise of powers under section 19 of Act 1984, can still reverse the decree passed by Court below and decree suit of plaintiff-respondent by granting decree of divorce on ground of irretrievable break down of marriage.

11. Before proceeding to consider the correctness of judgement and decree passed by Court below, it would be appropriate to understand meaning of term 'Adultery' as same has not been defined in Act, 1955.

(i) In Philips Divorce Practice 4th Edition "Adultery" has been defined as voluntary sexual connection between two person of opposite sex who are not married to each other but of whom one alreat is married to third person"

(ii) In Halsbury's Laws of England, Adultery for the purpose of relief in matrimonial jurisdiction has been defined to mean "consensual sexual intercourse during the subsistence of the marriage between one spouse and a person of the opposite sex not the other spouse."

(iii) In Divorce 14th Edition 1952, adultery in relation to matrimonial matters has been held to mean "willing sexual intercourse between a husband or wife and on the opposite sex while the marriage subsists"

(iv) In RAYDON on divorce, 10th Edition, adultery has been held to be a matrimonial offence. It has been defined as "Consensual sexual intercourse between a married person and a person of opposite sex not the spouse, during the subsistence of the marriage."

(v) In Webster's New English Dictionary, 1888, adultery has been defined to mean "Violation of marriage bed; voluntary sexual intercourse of a marrried person with one of the opposite sex, whether unmarried or married to another; (the former case being technically designated single, the latter double adultery)."

(vi) In Fowler's Concise Oxford Dictionary, adultery has been defined as "Voluntary sexual intercourse of married person with one of opposite sex married (double adultery) or not (single adultery)."

(vii) Adultery has been defined in Section 497 I.P.C. as follows:-

" whoever has a sexual intercourse with a person who is and whom he knows or has a reason to believe to be the wife of the another man, without the consent or connivance of that man, such sexual intercourse not amounting to the offence of rape, is guilty of the offence of the adultery, and shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to five years, or with fine or with both."

(viii) The term 'adultery' has not been defined in Act, 1955. What has been stated in Section 13 (1) (i) of Act, 1955 only provides as to what would constitute adultery i.e. "has after the solemnisation of the marriage, had voluntary sexual intercourse with any person other than his or her spouse."

12. Having noted the definition of 'adultery' as defined in various texts, the Court now proceeds to examine, whether Plaintiff has been able to prove 'adultery' on the part of Defendant so as to entitle him to a decree of divorce as prayed for.

13. From perusal of judgement, passed by Court below, it is apparent that Court below upon appreciation of oral and documentary evidence and pleadings of parties, concluded that Plaintiff has failed to establish 'adultery' on party of defendant-appellant. Court below concluded that there is clear contradiction in the statement of P.W.-1 and P.W.-2. It further observed that Plaintiff has alleged that Defendant was in adulterous relationship with husband of Poonam D.W.-2. sister of Defendant. Rani D.W.-2 wife of Mahesh has deposed before Court below and in her statement in chief has clearly supported Defendant. P.W.-2 Surjit Singh in his statement in chief has alleged that he saw Defendant in the company of Mahesh husband of D.W-2 Rani in compromising position. Court below disbelieved the testimony of P.W.-2. Statement in chief of P.W.-2 is completely silent with regard to day, date and timing of alleged act of 'adultery' on part of Defendant in the company of Mahesh, husband of D.W.-2. Thus, having considered the impugned judgement and decree in the light of material on record, we find that Court below did not commit any illegality or irregularity in disbelieving case set up by Plaintiff. Consequently, the conclusion drawn by Court below refusing to grant decree of divorce to Plaintiff, on ground of 'adultery' which is ground for divorce, recognized under section 13 (1)(i) of Act 1955, cannot be said to be illegal or erroneous.

14. On the issue of irretrievable breakdown of marriage, learned counsel for Plaintiff submitted that marriage of parties was solemnized on 17.6.2005 in accordance with Hindu Rites and Customs. However, Defendant, has deserted Plaintiff on 20.04.2006 without any valid reason.

As such, since 20.04.2006 Plaintiff has been denied the happiness and pleasure of marital relationship with wife, causing physical and mental pain and agony to Plaintiff. It is also submitted that inspite of efforts made by Plaintiff to bring back Defendant to her matrimonial home, no heed was paid by Defendant. So much so, that on 15.11.2008, relatives of Plaintiff made an attempt to resolve the dead lock and bring back Defendant to her matrimonial home, but same also failed. On the aforesaid factual premise, learned counsel for Plaintiff submits that admittedly parties have been living separately since 20.04.2006 without any attempt by either side after 15.11.2008 to re-establish marital relationship between the two. This deadlock/stalemate, between the parties, clearly proves that parties have given up each other and there are no chances of reunion between them. As such marriage of parties has broken down irretrievably. Counsel for Plaintiff further submitted that Plaintiff has categorically pleaded in plaint that in spite of repeated efforts made by him, Defendant has chosen not to reside with Plaintiff. In such state of affairs asking the parties to live together will itself amount to injustice rather than doing justice to them. Therefore, in the light of aforesaid facts, it is vehemently urged that decree of divorce be granted to do complete justice between parties.

15. From perusal of plaint, we find that decree of divorce was not prayed for on the ground of irretrievable breakdown of marriage. Therefore, the question that arises for our consideration is:

"Whether a decree of reversal can be passed on a ground which was not the subject matter of adjudication before Court below."

16. The issue relating to irretrievable break down of marriage has been considered by a Division Bench of this Court in First Appeal No. 525 of 2006 (Smt. Kavita Sharma Vs. Neeraj Sharma) decided on 7.2.2018, wherein it has been observed as follows in paragraph 28:-

"28. The above findings recorded by Court below could not be shown perverse or contrary to record. Having considered the fact that parties are living separately from decades, we are also of the view that marriage between two is irretrievable and has broken down completely. Irretrievable breakdown of marriage is not a ground for divorce under Act, 1955. But, where marriage is beyond repair on account of bitterness created by the acts of the husband or the wife or of both, Courts have always taken irretrievable breakdown of marriage as a very weighty circumstance amongst others necessitating severance of marital tie. A marriage which is dead for all purposes cannot be revived by the Court's verdict, if the parties are not willing. This is because marriage involves human sentiments and emotions and if they are dried-up there is hardly any chance of their springing back to life on account of artificial reunion created by the Court's decree. On the ground of irretrievable marriage, Courts have allowed decree of divorce and reference may be made to Naveen Kohli v. Neelu Kohli (2006) 4 SCC 558 and Rishikesh Sharma Vs. Saroj Sharma, 2006(12) SCALE 282. It is also noteworthy that in Naveen Kohli v. Neelu Kohli (supra) Court made recommendation to Union of India that Act, 1955 be amended to incorporate irretrievable breakdown of marriage as a ground for grant of divorce."

17. Similarly this Court in First Appeal No. 792 of 2008 (Ashwani Kumar Kohli Vs. Smt. Anita) decided on 17.11.2016 has also considered the question posed by us and observed as follows in paragraphs 7, 8, 10, 11, 12 and 13:-

"7. Therefore, point for adjudication in this appeal is "whether a decree of reversal can be passed by granting divorce to the appellant on the ground which was not subject matter of adjudication before the Court below and is being raised for the first time in appeal".

8. Under the provisions of Act, 1955 there is no ground like any "irretrievable breakdown of marriage", justifying divorce. It is a doctrine laid down by judicial precedents, in particular, Supreme Court in exercise of powers under Article 142 of the Constitution has granted decree of divorce on the ground of irretrievable breakdown of marriage.

10. This aspect has been considered by this Court in Ram Babu Babeley Vs. Smt. Sandhya AIR 2006 (All) 12 = 2006 AWC 183 and it has laid down certain inferences from various authorities of Supreme Court, which read as under:-

"(i) The irretrievable break down of marriage is not a ground for divorce by itself. But while scrutinizing the evidence on record to determine whether the grounds on which divorce is sought are made out, this circumstance can be taken into consideration as laid down by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Savitri Pandey v. prem Chand Pandey, (2002) 2 SCC 73 and V. Bhagat versus D. Bhagat, AIR 1994 SC 710.

(ii) No divorce can be granted on the ground of irretrievable break down of marriage if the party seeking divorce on this ground is himself or herself at fault for the above break down as laid down in the case of Chetan Dass Versus Kamla Devi, AIR 2001 SC 1709, Savitri Pandey v. prem Chand Pandey, (2002) 2 SCC 73 and Shyam Sunder Kohli v. Sushma Kohli, (2004) 7 SCC 747.

(iii) The decree of divorce on the ground that the marriage had been irretrievably broken down can be granted in those cases where both the parties have levelled such allegations against each other that the marriage appears to be practically dead and the parties can not live together as laid down in Chandra Kala Trivedi versus Dr. SP Trivedi, (1993) 4 SCC 232.

(iv)The decree of divorce on the ground that the marriage had been irretrievably broken down can be granted in those cases also where the conduct or averments of one party have been so much painful for the other party (who is not at fault) that he cannot be expected to live with the offending party as laid down in the cases of V. Bhagat versus D. Bhagat, (supra), Ramesh Chander versus Savitri, (1995) 2 SCC 7, Ashok Hurra versus Rupa Bipin Zaveri, 1997(3) AWC 1843 (SC), 1997(3) A.W.C. 1843(SC) and A. Jayachandra versus Aneel Kaur, (2005) 2 SCC 22.

(v) The power to grant divorce on the ground of irretrievable break down of marriage should be exercised with much care and caution in exceptional circumstances only in the interest of both the parties, as observed by Hon'ble Apex Court at paragraph No. 21 of the judgment in the case of V. Bhagat and Mrs. D. Bhagat, AIR (supra) and at para 12 in the case of Shyam Sunder Kohli versus Sushma Kohli, (supra)."

11. The above authorities have been followed by this Court in "Pradeep Kumar Vs. Smt. Vijay Lakshmi' in 2015 (4) ALJ 667 wherein one of us (Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal,J.) was a member of the Bench.

12. In Vishnu Dutt Sharma Vs. Manju Sharma, (2009) 6 SCC 379, it was held that under Section 13 of Act 1955 there is no ground of irretrievable breakdown of marriage for granting decree of divorce. Court said that it cannot add such a ground to Section 13, as that would amount to amendment of Act, which is the function of legislature. It also referred to some judgments of Supreme Court in which dissolution of marriage was allowed on the ground of irretrievable breakdown but held that those judgments do not lay down any precedent. Supreme Court very categorically observed as under:-

"If we grant divorce on the ground of irretrievable breakdown, then we shall by judicial verdict be adding a clause to Section 13 of the Act to the effect that irretrievable breakdown of marriage is also a ground for divorce. In our opinion, this can only be done by the legislature and not by the Court. It is for the Parliament to enact or amend the law and not for the Court. Hence, we do not find force in the submission of learned counsel for the appellant."

13. The above view has been followed in Darshan Gupta Vs. Radhika Gupta (2013) 9 SCC 1. Similar view was expressed in "Gurubux Singh Vs. Harminder Kaur' (2010) 14 SCC 301. This Court also has followed the above view in Shailesh Kumari Vs. Amod Kumar Sachan 2016 (115) ALR 689."

18. In the case in hand, we find that parties have not been living separately on account of their own free will. Defendant has been forced to live separately on account of conduct of Plaintiff and other in-laws. Record further shows that it is Plaintiff, who has refused to keep Defendant with him as he failed to initiate any proceedings for restitution of conjugal relationship. Defendant has continuously and consistently pleaded that she wants to live with Plaintiff. In this view of the matter, argument raised by learned counsel for Plaintiff that there has been an irretrievable break down of marriage has no factual foundation. That apart this Court in Ashwani Kumar Kohli (supra) has clearly held that divorce cannot be granted on aforesaid ground, particularly when such a plea is raised by one party alone. In addition to aforesaid, decree of divorce was not prayed for, on ground of irretrievable break down of marriage also as parties are alleged to have been living separately since 20.04.2006. Plaint was presented in the year 2009, whereas divorce petition was finally decided vide judgement dated 17.11.2015 and decree dated 27.11.2015 passed by Principal Judge (Family Court), Kanpur Dehat in Suit No. 11 of 2009 (Krishna Murari Vs. Sangeeta). For a period of six long years, Plaintiff kept quiet and now for the first time, this issue is being raised. In our opinion, it is half hearted attempt on the part of learned counsel for Plaintiff to raise this plea without there being any factual foundation for the same.

19. In view of discussion made above, present appeal fails and is, therefore, liable to be dismissed. It is accordingly, dismissed. Cost made easy.

A. Civil Law-Civil Procedure Code (5 of 1908) - S.100 - Second appeal - Substantial question of law - Interpretation of any document including its contents or its admissibility in evidence or its effect on the rights of the parties to the Lis constitutes a substantial question(s) of law within the meaning of Section 100 of the Code.

Substantial question of law involved in the second appeal was about the correct interpretation of the sale deeds relied upon by the defendants, to establish that the suit property is not part of Khasra no.113, but a part and parcel of Khasra no.111. (Para 20)

B. Deed-Construction-Conveyance of land - though boundaries given in the deeds of title are the most reliable evidence about the identity of adjoining properties, but the rule have no application to a situation where physical features about the property suffer change in course of time

Plaintiff suit for possession of land, part of Khasra no.113 - Suit property came into existence owing to the construction of a brick-worked road (kharanja) across plaintiff Khasra no.113 in the year 1956 - Defendant relied upon description of boundaries in sale deeds of the year 1896 to establish that the property is not part of Khasra no.113 but a part of Khasra no.111- Trial dismissed the suit - Lower Appellate court reversed the decree Held - Appellate Court rightly held the suit property to be a subdivision that came into existence on account of the laying of a brick-worked road, across Khasra no.113 after looking into evidence that brought about certain changes to the boundaries of Khasra nos.111 and 113, much later in point of time than execution of the defendants' sale deeds, dated 03.06.1896, 04.06.1896 and 26.03.1920 - description of boundaries in the two sale deeds of the year 1896 would not have a decisive impact upon the rights of parties to the suit property (Para 41)

Second Appeal dismissed. (E-5)

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. This is a defendants' Second Appeal from a decree of possession passed by the Lower Appellate Court, reversing the Trial Court.

2. Nanu Singh brought Original Suit no.101 of 1971 against Bhupeshwar Prasad, Rajeshwar Prasad, Ishwar Prasad, Rameshwar Prasad, all sons of late Hari Kishan Das and Smt. Shashi Prabha, daughter of late Hari Kishan Das for possession of land, part of Khasra no.113, situate at Mauza Khan Alampur, Saharanpur, as detailed and bounded at the foot of the plaint. The Suit was instituted on 27.01.1971. Pending Suit, the Appeal from the Original Decree and the present Appeal, the plaintiffs have grown to a figure of nine on account of exiting this mortal world. The defendants, likewise, who were five before the Trial Court, have grown to a figure of eighteen, with legal representatives being substituted for the deceased defendants, pendente lite.

3. Sri Shamsher Bahadur Singh, the then Munsif City, Saharanpur, who tried the Suit, dismissed it with costs by his judgment and decree dated 11.07.1989. The plaintiffs appealed to the District Judge, Saharanpur, where the Appeal was registered on the file of the learned District Judge as Civil Appeal no.70 of 1989. The Appeal on assignment came up for determination before Sri Naresh Kumar Bahal, the then IVth Additional Civil Judge, Saharanpur on 26.03.1993. The learned Additional Civil Judge by his judgment and decree of the date last mentioned, allowed the Appeal with costs, set aside and reversed the decree of the learned Munsif, ordering the Suit to be decreed with costs. It is ordered by the Appellate Decree that the defendants shall hand over the plaintiffs possession of the suit property within a month of the judgment.

4. Aggrieved, the defendants have brought this Second Appeal.

5. To clarify reference to parties in this judgment, the plaintiff-respondents, who are now nine in number, all heirs and legal representatives of the original and sole plaintiff, Nanu Singh, shall be hereinafter referred to as the 'plaintiff'. The defendant-appellants, multiple in number, as they are from the institution of the Suit, shall be hereinafter referred to as the 'defendants'.

6. The Suit was brought on facts that the suit property is part of Khasra no.113, formally numbered as Khasra no.126, part of Mahaal Asha Ram, situate at Village Khan Alampura, Saharanpur, of which the plaintiff is owner in possession. The defendants have no right, title or interest in the suit property. The suit property, that is part of Khasra no.113, has been detailed at the foot of the plaint. Towards the East of Khasra no.113, there is a house (kothi) and quarters located in Khasra no.111, that are the defendants' ownership. Also, a Mosque and Madarsa annexed to the Mosque Shahjahani, besides a Temple (Mandir) etc., are also located in Khasra no.111. The suit property lies within the local limits of Municipal Board, Saharanpur, which is in possession of the plaintiff since 20 years past. The plaintiff has planted and nurtured two trees over the suit property, a Bel and another Barna, the fruits and shade whereof the plaintiff utilises to his benefit. The plaintiff also utilises the suit property for the purposes of processing his dung based fuel (Uple), stacking firewood and manure, besides using it to bask in the Sun and tether cattle. The plaintiff also exploits the suit property for agriculture, which is a part of the plaintiff's Khasra no.113.

7. The defendants since a long time have been harassing and troubling the plaintiff. To the West of the defendants' Kothi and quarters, there is no land in the title and possession of the defendants, or do they have any drain, window, ventilator or door opening into the suit property. The defendants never had or have any connection or possession of the suit property since 12 years past.

8. It is then pleaded by the plaintiff that in Khasra no.112, there was formerly a way (rasta), which terminated at the western end of Khasra no.115 and the eastern and southern ends of Khasra no.113. This terminus of the way, that was an avenue for natives of the village to proceed to the river, Dhamola, located towards the north of Khasra no.113, caused inconvenience to the local populace in accessing the river themselves and with their cattle. It is pleaded that some respectable natives of the village requested the plaintiff to give passage across Khasra no.113, that was his ownership in order to enable the existing passage terminating there to be extended to the river, to the North. For the purpose, the plaintiff's permission was requested to lay a brick-worked road (kharanja) across his property. The plaintiff permitted construction of a brick-worked road across Khasra no.113, licensing the Municipal Board to lay out that road as a straight stretch across his land. Since the road that was laid out was a straight stretch, the brick-worked road divided the plaintiff's Khasra no.113 in the manner that some part of it towards the North and East was cut-off from the main part of 113. It is this land lying to the East and North of the road permitted by the plaintiff to be laid across Khasra no.113, that is the suit property. This suit property has been pleaded to be in the plaintiff's use and occupation for the purposes hereinbefore detailed.

9. It is, in particular, pleaded on behalf of the plaintiff that through an order dated 13.01.1971 passed by the City Magistrate, Saharanpur in Case no.26 of 1969, under Section 145 Cr.P.C., possession of the suit property was delivered to defendant no.1, which the plaintiff says is in derogation of his title.

10. Defendant nos.1, 3, 4 and 5 filed a single written statement traversing the plaintiff's case. The crux of the defendants' case is that the suit property is located to the East of the Road that divides Khasra no.111 and Khasra no.113. Khasra no.111 is the defendants' property, lawfully acquired through a consistent chain of title passed on from the previous recorded owners. It is asserted that the suit property located to the East of the Road is part of Khasra no.111, and, therefore, in the defendants' title, of which they have been lawfully entrusted possession by the Magistrate, upon a sham dispute being raised by the plaintiff about it.

11. It is the defendants' case that their property located in Khasra no.111 comprises a house (kothi) together with its appurtenant land and outhouses, including servant quarters. The aforesaid property was purchased by one Jyoti Prasad from a certain Lala Ganga Ram through sale deeds dated 03.08.1896 and 04.06.1896, paper nos. 78ग and 79ग, respectively. The said property, together with the House and its appurtenant land, was purchased by Hari Kishan Das, father of defendant nos.1 to 5 through a sale deed dated 26.03.1920, paper no.262ग. The crux of the defendants' case is that all property to the East of the Road, hereinabove referred, is theirs and part of Khasra no.111 and that the Road is located in Khasra no.112, that divides Khasra no.111 from Khasra no.113, that is the plaintiff's property. The plaintiff purchased Khasra no.113 through two sale deeds. First of these is from one Chameli, dated 07.08.1946, paper no.28ग and the other was executed in his favour by Abdul Aziz, dated 07.01.1949.

12. The Trial Court framed the following issues, on which the parties went to trial:

"1. Whether khasara abadi No.113 is the disputed property?

2. Whether the plaintiff is owner of the disputed property?

3. Whether the suit is undervalued and Court fees paid is insufficient?

4. Whether the suit is barred by Sec. 41 of Specific Relief Act?

5. Whether the defendant no.2 Sri Rajeshwar Prasad is an unnecessary party?

6. To what relief if any is the plaintiff entitled?"

13. The varying events in the Trial Court and the Appellate Court have already been detailed hereinbefore. It must be mentioned here, however, that issue no.1 that was dealt with in Appeal was corrected to read, on basis of reasons recorded by the Lower Appellate Court, Khasra no.113 for Khasra no.111 there. The first issue considered by the Appellate Court, rendered in Hindi from the original in English, reads as follows:

"1- क्या खसरा आबादी सं0 113 विवादित है?"

14. The Appellate Court has examined the matter in great detail to opine that in fact the Trial Court, while framing issues, mentioned Khasra no.113 as the suit property in issue no.1, and not 111, as appears from the judgment of the Trial Court. He has recorded his reasons to conclude about the correct contents of issue no.1, with reference to the Khasra number of the suit property mentioned there, in the following words:

"अपीलार्थी के विद्वान अधिवक्ता का कहना है कि विद्वान अवर न्यायालय ने विवादित सम्पत्ति को ख0न0111 का हिस्सा मानकर गलत निर्णय दिया है जबकि प्रत्युरदातागण के विद्वान अधिवक्ता का यह कहना है कि विद्वान अवर न्यायालय ने वाद बिन्दु संख्या 1 ख0न0 113 से सम्बंधित बनाया था। इस सम्बंध में मेरे द्वारा मूल आदेशपत्र का अवलोकन किया गया। विद्वान अवर न्यायालय द्वारा दिनांक 11.1.71 को वाद बिन्दु आदेशपत्र पर अग्रेंजी भाषा में बनाए गए थे परन्तु यह आदेशपत्र लगभग 20 वर्ष से अधिक पुराना होने के कारण निचले व दाहिने हाशिये की ओर से कुछ गला एवं फटा हुआ है। जिस स्थान पर वाद बिन्दु संख्या 1 में खसरा नम्बर का जिक्र आया है उस स्थान से आदेशपत्र फटा हुआ है। विद्वान अवर न्यायालय द्वारा मूलवाद में जो निर्णय लिखा गया हैए उसमें आदेशपत्र से जो वाद बिन्दु संख्या 1 उतारा गया है उसमे पहले ख0न0 113 लिखा हुआ है और उसके उपर

उस पर विद्वान पीठासीन अधिकारी ने अपने लघु हस्ताक्षर किए हैं परन्तु वाद बिन्दु संख्या 1 में जहां पर ख0न0 113 पर ओवरराइटिंग करके ख0न0 111 लिखा है उस पर पीठासीन अधिकारी के लघु हस्ताक्षर नहीं है। पूरे निर्णय को पढ़ने से भी ऐसा प्रतीत होता है कि विद्वान अवर न्यायालय द्वारा वाद बिन्दु संख्या 1 को यह मानकर निर्णय लिखा गया है कि ष्क्या खसरा आबादी संख्या 113 में विवादित सम्पत्ति स्थित हैद्ध अतः मैं अपीलार्थीगण के इस तर्क से सहमत नहीं हूँ कि विद्वान अवर न्यायालय ने वाद बिन्दु सं0 111 से सम्बंधित बनाकर उसे निर्णीत किया है। दोनो पक्षों की बहस को सुनने के पश्चात और पत्रावली पर उपलब्ध अभिवचनों एवं विद्वान अवर न्यायालय द्वारा लिखे गए निर्णय का अवलोकन करने के पश्चात मैं इस निष्कर्ष पर पहुँचा हूँ कि विद्वान अवर न्यायालय द्वारा वाद बिन्दु संख्या 1 इस आशय का बनाया था कि ष्क्या विवादित सम्पत्ति खसरा आबादी संख्या 113 में स्थित है और विद्वान अवर न्यायालय द्वारा इस वाद बिन्दु को ख0न0 113 से सम्बंधित बना हुआ मानकर ही अपना निर्णय लिखा गयाए हालांकि विद्वान अवर न्यायालय का निष्कर्ष यह है कि विवादित सम्पत्ति वादी के ख0न0 113 में स्थित न होकर प्रतिवादीगण के खसरा नं0 111 में स्थित है। यदि विद्वान अवर न्यायालय द्वारा लिखे गए वाद बिन्दु पर लिखी गयी विवेचना को सही मान लिया जाए तो वाद बिन्दु सं0 1 नकारात्मक रूप से तय होना चाहिए थाए जबकि विद्वान अवर न्यायालय द्वारा वाद बिन्दु सं0 1 को सकारात्मक रूप से तय किया गया है। पक्षगण के मध्य वाद बिन्दु सं0 1 से सम्बंधित उत्पन्न संशय को दूर करने के लिए यह बात पुनः लिखना मैं न्यायसंगत समझता हूँ कि विद्वान अवर न्यायालय ने वाद बिन्दु संख्या 1 यह बनाया था कि क्या विवादित सम्पत्ति खसरा आबादी संख्या 113 में स्थित है और इसी वाद बिन्दु पर उन्होने अपनी विवेचना एवं निर्णय भी लिखा है। इस अपील का निस्तारण भी यही मानकर किया जा रहा है कि वाद बिन्दु सं0 1 खसरा नं0 113 से सम्बंधित बनाया गया था और वादी के अभिवचनों के अनुसार वादी पर ही यह भार है कि वह यह साबित करे कि विवादित सम्पत्ति ख0नं0 113 का भाग है।"

15. It must be remarked here that the lower Appellate Court has done a very meticulous exercise, to set the record straight about the plot number of the suit property, mentioned in issue no.1. This Court must record straight away that the reasoning of the lower Appellate Court about the contents of issue no.1, particularly, the Khasra number of the suit property is based on flawless reasoning, that is self-evident. This Court approves the same and proceeds on the basis that it was Khasra no.113, which is the subject matter of issue no.1, as it is that Khasra number, a part of which is claimed to be the suit property by the plaintiff.

16. Both parties led evidence before the Trial Court, that includes a good number of documents, cited on both sides, that find detail in the judgments of the Courts below. Three witnesses were examined on behalf of the plaintiff and two on behalf of the defendants. These include the plaintiff, Nanu Singh, who deposed as PW-1 and defendant no.1, Bhupeshwar Prasad, who testified as DW-2. This evidence has been considered by both the Courts below, to reach discordant conclusions, already mentioned.

17. This appeal was admitted to hearing, vide order dated 16.04.1993, on the following substantial questions of law:

"1. WHETHER the lower appellate court misinterpreted the sale deeds produced by the appellants?

2. WHETHER the lower appellate court illegally and wrongly discorded (sic discarded) a number of important documentary evidence by the appellants.

3. WHETHER plaintiffs having failed to locate the disputed land by survey report, even though several opportunities were provided by the court, the suit out to have been dismissed.

4. WHETHER the lower appellate (sic court) has omitted to consider that there was a (sic an) old road in Khasra no.113 in the same place when (sic where) the new Kharanja road of the Nagarpalika exists?

5. WHETHER the lower appellate court has illegally reversed the judgment and decree passed by the learned Munsif."

18. At the hearing of this appeal, learned Counsel for the defendants confined his submissions to substantial question nos.1 and 4.

19. Heard Sri B. Dayal, learned Counsel for the defendant-appellants and Sri Syed Wajid Ali, learned Counsel for the plaintiff-respondents.

20. The first substantial question of law is about the correct interpretation of the sale deeds relied upon by the defendants, to establish that the suit property is not part of Khasra no.113, but a part and parcel of Khasra no.111. Learned Counsel for the defendants, Sri B. Dayal has urged that interpretation of the sale deeds produced by him and their impact on the rights of the parties, is a substantial question of law that merits adjudication in this second appeal. This submission has been advanced in answer to the contentions advanced by Sri S. Wajid Ali, learned Counsel for the plaintiff that this appeal is concluded by findings of fact, recorded by the lower Appellate Court. For one, it is not readily open to this Court to say that the substantial questions of law that this Court has approved to admit this appeal are not substantial questions of law, as envisaged under Section 100 CPC. But, that is one part of it and not much. Mr. B. Dayal is right in his submission that interpretation of a document and its impact on the rights of parties is indeed a substantial question of law, which has to be decided under Section 100(5) CPC, at the hearing of the Appeal. In this connection Sri Dayal has referred to the decision of the Supreme Court in Uma Pandey and others vs. Munna Pandey and others, AIR 2018 SC 1930, where it has been held:

"14. It is not in dispute that the defendants (respondents) filed one document (EX-A)-(Annexure-P-1 of SLP). This document was relied on and appreciated by the two Courts below for deciding the rights of the parties. The Trial Court decreed the suit and the First Appellate Court reversed it on appreciating the evidence including EX-A.

15. It is a settled principle of law that interpretation of any document including its contents or its admissibility in evidence or its effect on the rights of the parties to the Lis constitutes a substantial question(s) of law within the meaning of Section 100 of the Code.

16. Whenever such question arises in the second appeal at the instance of the appellant, it deserves admission on framing appropriate substantial question(s) on such questions to enable the High Court to decide the appeal on merits bi-party."

21. Learned Counsel for the defendants has placed further reliance on a decision of their Lordships in Rajendra Lalitkumar Agrawal vs. Smt. Ratna Ashok Muranjan, (2019) 3 SCC 378, where it has been held thus:

"10. It cannot be disputed that the interpretation of any terms and conditions of a document (such as the agreement dated 08.08.1984 in this case) constitutes a substantial question of law within the meaning of Section 100 of the Code. It is more so when both the parties admit the document."

22. The interpretation of a document and its impact on the valuable rights of parties has been always regarded as a substantial question of law, that merits consideration in an appeal from an appellate decree, under Section 100 CPC. The very recent decision of their Lordships in Uma Pandey and others (supra) and Rajendra Lalitkumar Agrawal (supra) reinforces that principle beyond cavil.

23. This Court is, therefore, not in agreement with the contention of the learned Counsel for the plaintiff that this appeal is concluded by findings of fact, in the sense that may prohibit this Court, within the confines of its jurisdiction in a second appeal, to pronounce upon the correctness or otherwise of the conclusions drawn by the Lower Appellate Court regarding rights of parties, based on interpretation of the title deeds, that the defendants have relied upon.

24. In order to persuade this Court that on a true construction of the title deeds relied upon by the defendants, the suit property would fall in Khasra No. 111 and not 113, as urged by the plaintiff, learned counsel for the defendant has drawn the attention of the Court to the boundaries of the suit property, as detailed at the foot of the plaint. These boundaries are extracted below:

East : Quarters and Kothi of Defendant & Masjid Shah Jahani.
West: Kharanja and Arazi of Plaintiff of Khasra no. 113
North : Patri Dhamola Nadi
South : Arazi talab and Rasta

25. Learned Counsel for the defendants has pointed out that the western boundary of the suit property shown in the plaint is of particular significance, as that is part of the plaintiff's pleadings. It is indicated in the details of boundaries that to the west of the suit property lies a Kharanja and Arazi of plaintiff of Khasra No. 113. It is contended by learned counsel for the appellant that if to the west lies the Kharanja and Arazi of the plaintiff that is part of Khasra No. 113, the suit property would be located to the east of the Kharanja.

26. The case of the plaintiff specifically pleaded in paragraph 5 of the plaint by contrast is that upon the plaintiff permitting the construction of a brick worked road across Khasra No. 113, in order to provide access to natives of the village to river Dhamola, the straight stretch of the brick worked road divided the petitioner's Khasra No. 113 in a manner that some part of it towards the East and North was cut off from the main part of Khasra No. 113. It is pointed out in this paragraph that it is this part of Khasra No. 113, which has been described to be the suit property. According to learned Counsel for the defendants, if this be the case of the plaintiff, the Western boundary of the suit property ought to have shown land of Khasra No. 111 and the Eastern boundary, the brick worked road (kharanja).

27. It is argued that this apparent contradiction in the plaintiff's pleadings ex facie shows that his case is not consistent in his pleadings about the precise location of the suit property. It is pointed out that by contrast, in the two sale deeds of 1896, through which the predecessor-in-interest of the defendant acquired title to Khasra No. 111, that is to say, the two sale deeds executed by Gangaram in favour of Jyoti Prasad, Paper Nos. 78 Ga and 79 Ga, there is a clear mention of the western boundary of the Kothi that was purchased as Rasta Deh. Rasta Deh translates to "village road". It is urged that it is the same Kothi and land transferred through sale deeds of 1896 to Jyoti Prasad that was purchased by Harikisan Das, the father of original defendants Nos. 1 to 5, through a registered sale deed of 26th March, 1920.

28. It is pointed out that it is common ground between parties that the Kothi stands on Khasra No. 111, the old number of which was 124. It is urged also that the plaintiff claims that he came into possession of the suit property some 20 years prior to institution of this suit. The suit was instituted in the year 1971, and, therefore, the plaintiff's possession would date back to the year 1951. It is asserted that the plaintiff has not specifically disclosed when he was actually dispossessed from the suit property. It is emphasized by Sri Dayal, learned Counsel for the defendants, that the plaintiff claims purchase of the land comprising Khasra No. 113, of which the suit property is a part, through two sale deeds: one from Chameli dated 07.08.1946; and the other from Abdul Aziz, dated 07.01.1949.

29. Learned Counsel for the defendants endeavored to point out that these dates of acquisition of title on a comparison with the date when the plaintiff came into possession of Khasra No. 113, as reckoned hereinbefore, would show that he entered upon Khasra No. 113 after a few years of its purchase from Chameli and Abdul Aziz.

30. It is also emphasized that both Courts below have found for a fact that there was a village road between plot No. 111, whereon the defendants' Kothi stands and plot No. 113, the land purchased by the plaintiff, of which the suit property is a part. It is pointed out that defendant No. 1, who was old enough to have witnessed the transactions leading to the cause of action has said in his dock evidence, that in place of the old village road between Khasra No. 111 and no. 113 (Kothi of defendant and land of the plaintiff) a brick worked road (kharanja) has been laid by the Municipal Board. It is also urged that the Trial Court relied upon the description of boundaries in the sale deed of 3rd June, 1896 and survey sheet of the Municipal Board 1914-1915, filed as paper No. 125-A and exhibited without any objection as exhibit 84A-1, to come to the conclusion that all land up to the site of the village road, over which the brick worked road (kharanja) has now been laid by the Municipal Board, is part of the defendants' Kothi and not the plaintiff's land. Learned counsel submits that on these findings, the Trial Court rightly dismissed the suit. It is also argued by learned Counsel for the defendants that the plaintiff's case of possession has not been vindicated in the proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C., a position which remained undisturbed in those proceedings up to this Court.

31. Sri Dayal, learned Counsel for the defendants urged that the Lower Appellate Court has done a misconstruction about the description of boundaries in the sale deeds of 1896, to conclude that there was land of the plaintiff between the Kothi of the defendants and its appurtenant land, and the old village road (Rasta Deh). It is also argued by Sri Dayal that the Lower Appellate Court has committed a substantial error of law in reversing findings of the Trial Court on the ground alone that neither the area or the Khasra number is mentioned in the two sale deeds of 1896, in favour of Jyoti Prasad executed by Lala Gangaram. His conclusions, drawn from the absence of dimensions and boundaries of land sold way back in the year 1896, to the effect that it is not proved that the Kothi and land of the defendant's exists over khasra No. 111, although admitted to be so to the parties, is manifestly illegal.

32. Sri S. Wajid Ali, learned Counsel for the plaintiff on the other hand has played down the involvement of any substantial question of law as to interpretation of recitals in the two title deeds of 1896, or the subsequent deeds, relied upon by the defendants. He has pointed out that the plaintiff's case is based on a division of his land, comprised of Khasra no.113, with one part of it towards the eastern side being separated from the rest of it, on account of the construction of a brick worked road, that the plaintiff himself lincenced the Municipal Board to construct across his land bearing no. 113, for convenience of natives of the village to access the River Dhamola. The part of Khasra no.113 that went to the other side of the road, on account of the extension of the old village road with a brick worked Kharanja across Khasra no.113, is the suit property, of which the defendants took possession through summary proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C., that is not in accordance with rights of parties.

33. Learned Counsel for the plaintiff has relied upon a decision of the Supreme Court in Gurnam Singh (D) by LRs. v. Lehna Singh (D) by LRs., AIR 2019 SC 1441. He has drawn the attention of this Court to paragraphs 14, 15 and 15.1 of the report in Gurunam Singh (supra), where it is held:

"14. When a substantial question of law can be said to have arisen, has been dealt with and considered by this Court in the case of Ishwar Dass Jain (AIR 2000 SC 426) (Supra). In the aforesaid decision, this Court has specifically observed and held : "Under Section 100 CPC, after the 1976 amendment, it is essential for the High Court to formulate a substantial question of law and it is not permissible to reverse the judgment of the first appellate court without doing so. There are two situations in which interference with findings of fact is permissible. The first one is when material or relevant evidence is not considered which, if considered, would have led to an opposite conclusion. The second situation in which interference with findings of fact is permissible is where a finding has been arrived at by the appellate court by placing reliance on inadmissible evidence which if it was omitted, an opposite conclusion was possible. In either of the above situations, a substantial question of law can arise."

15. Applying the law laid down by this Court in the aforesaid decisions to the facts of the case on hand, we are of the opinion that the High Court has erred in reappreciating the evidence on record in the second appeal under Section 100 of the CPC. The High Court has materially erred in interfering with the findings recorded by the First Appellate Court, which were on reappreciation of evidence, which was permissible by the First Appellate Court in exercise of powers under Section 96 of the CPC. Cogent reasons, on appreciation of the evidence, were given by the First Appellate Court. First Appellate Court dealt with, in detail, the socalled suspicious circumstance which weighed with the learned Trial Court and thereafter it came to the conclusion that the Will, which as such was a registered Will, was genuine and do not suffer from any suspicious circumstances. The findings recorded by the First Appellate Court are reproduced hereinabove. Therefore, while passing the impugned judgment and order, the High Court has exceeded in its jurisdiction while deciding the second appeal under Section 100 CPC.

15.1. As observed hereinabove and as held by this Court in a catena of decisions and even as per Section 100 CPC, the jurisdiction of the High Court to entertain the second appeal under Section 100 CPC is confined only to such appeals which involve a substantial question of law. On going through the substantial questions of law framed by the High Court, we are of the opinion that the question of law framed by the High Court while deciding the second appeal, cannot be said to be substantial questions of law at all. The substantial questions of law framed by the High Court are as under :

"(i) Whether the Appellate Court can reverse the findings recorded by the learned trial court without adverting to the specific finding of the trial Court?

(ii) Whether the judgment passed by the learned lower Appellate Court is perverse and outcome of misreading of evidence?"

The aforesaid cannot be said to be substantial questions of law at all. In the circumstances, the impugned judgment and order passed by the High Court cannot be sustained and the same deserves to be quashed and set aside. At this stage, decision of this Court in the case of Madamanchi Ramappa v. Muthaluru Bojappa, AIR 1963 SC 1633, is required to be referred to.

In the aforesaid decision, this Court has observed and held as under:

"Whenever this Court is satisfied that in dealing with a second appeal, the High Court has, either unwittingly and in a casual manner, or deliberately as in this case, contravened the limits prescribed by S.100, it becomes the duty of this Court to intervene and give effect to the said provisions. It may be that in some cases, the High Court dealing with the second appeal is inclined to take the view that what it regards to be justice or equity of the case has not been served by the findings of fact recorded by Courts of fact; but on such occasions it is necessary to remember that what is administered in Courts is justice according to law and considerations of fair play and equity however important they may be, must yield to clear and express provisions of the law. If in reaching its decisions in second appeals, the High Court contravenes the express provisions of S.100, it would inevitably introduce in such decisions an element of disconcerting unpredictability which is usually associated with gambling; and that is a reproach which judicial process must constantly and scrupulously endeavour to avoid."

34. This Court has keenly considered the submissions advanced on both sides.

35. A perusal of the findings recorded by the lower Appellate Court in reversal of the Trial Court do show that the lower Appellate Court has gone about the task of evaluating evidence in meticulous detail. But, that is not what the concern of this Court is while answering the substantial questions of law, under Section 100(5) CPC. The question in hand is about the interpretation of the sale deeds, relied upon by the defendants, to establish that the property is not part of Khasra no.113 but a part and parcel of Khasra no.111.

36. The lower Appellate Court in holding the suit property to be a subdivision that has come into existence on account of the laying of a brick-worked road, across Khasra no.113, with permission of the defendants, has looked into evidence that brought about certain changes to the boundaries of Khasra nos.111 and 113, much later in point of time than execution of the defendants' sale deeds, dated 03.06.1896, 04.06.1896 and 26.03.1920.

37. It has been held for a fact by the lower Appellate Court on appreciation of evidence that the old village road located in Khasra no.112, mentioned in the sale deeds conferring title on the defendants, terminated at Khasra no.113. The plaintiff permitted laying of a brick-worked road (kharanja) extending the old village road across Khasra no.113, in order to provide access to natives of the village to the River Dhamola. This event has been recorded for a fact by the lower Appellate Court to have happened in the year 1956 when on permission by the plaintiff, the Nagar Palika laid a 10 feet wide brick-worked road, extending the old village road through Khasra no.113 to the River Dhamola. Now, in the face of this change in physical features that earlier demarcated Khasra no.113 from 111, the description of boundaries in the sale deeds of the defendants, dated 03.06.1896, 04.06.1896 and 26.03.1920, would not be very relevant.

38. The mention in those boundaries of a village road (rasta deh) to the west of the kothi (Khasra no.111), that is the defendants' property, would bear reference to a geographical subdivision of these two adjoining Khasra numbers on the premise that the village road ended at Khasra no.112, at the time when the deeds under reference relied upon by the defendants were executed. There was no existence of the brick-worked road (kharanja), permitted by the plaintiff, lateron to be constructed across Khasra no.113. The description of boundaries, therefore, in these deeds would not have a decisive impact upon the rights of parties to the suit property, the suit property having come into existence subsequent in point of time, owing to the construction of a brick-worked road (kharanja) in the year 1956.

39. The lower Appellate Court has, therefore, rightly looked into and done a comparison of the revenue records over a course of time, comparing the Khasra for the Fasli Years 1296 and 1324, and appreciated these together with the oral evidence of parties. The lower Appellate Court on the basis of a further comparison done with the Khasra Mauza Khan Alampura, Pargana, Tehsil and District Saharanpur for the year 1324F, concluded that the old number of Khasra no.111 in 1297F was 124, the old Khasra number of the village road that now bears Khasra no.112 was 125 and that of the plaintiff's which is no.113, used to be no.126. He has recorded on the basis of these revenue records, a detailed measurement and dimensions of these adjoining Khasra numbers.

40. The lower Appellate Court has then concluded that when the old village road in Khasra no.112 (old no.125) was extended into 113 and laid as a brick-worked road (kharanja), across no.113 by the Nagar Palika, it was a 10 feet wide passage. It was extended backwards across Khasra no.112 to join a much wider road, accessing the Dehradun road, also part of Khasra no.112, that is 33 feet wide. However, the extension in Khasra no.113 was just 10 feet wide, that resulted in subdivision of no.113, leaving some part of it on the eastern side of the brick-worked road, adjoining Khasra no.111, owned by the defendants.

41. The findings of the lower Appellate Court, based on appreciation of documentary and oral evidence to conclude the precise manner in which Khasra no.113 has been subdivided to leave a residue on the eastern side of the brick-worked road, laid with permission of the plaintiff, is a flawless finding of fact. It is not for this Court to interfere with that part of the finding. This Court, however, has, within the limited scope of its scrutiny clearly indicated that on a true interpretation of the title deeds, dated 03.06.1896, 04.06.1896 and 26.03.1920, there is no interpretation to be done about identity of the suit property, where conclusions have been drawn by the lower Appellate Court from evidence based on subsequent changes to physical features, that are not contemporaneous to the sale deeds. It is held for a principle that though boundaries given in the deeds of title are the most reliable evidence about the identity of adjoining properties, but the rule may have slender or no application to a situation where physical features about the property suffer change in course of time. In this case that change happened in 1956.

42. Substantial question of law no.1 is, therefore, stand answered in the negative.

43. The second substantial question of law that has been pressed is to the effect whether the lower Appellate Court has omitted to consider that there was an old road in Khasra no.113 in the same place, where the new kharanja road laid by the Nagar Palika exists.

44. This Court while answering the first question had occasion to look into the very detailed evaluation of documentary and oral evidence done by the lower Appellate Court, with regard to the old village road existing in Khasra no.112 (old no.125) and the brick-worked road (kharanja) laid after permission of the plaintiff, in the year 1956 by the Nagar Palika. The issue which the question postulates, on a thorough consideration of the matter, is found to be concluded by well considered findings of facts recorded by the lower Appellate Court.

45. This Court does not think that on the evidence on record and its appreciation done by the lower Appellate Court, this question is really arises in this appeal.

46. In the result, this Appeal fails and is dismissed with costs.

47. Let a decree be drawn up, accordingly.

A. Civil Law-Guardian and Wards Act (8 of 1890) - S. 8 - Appointment of guardian - Custody of minor girl after mother death - Given to father u/s 8 - Challenge by mausi on the ground that natural father plaintiff has remarried and therefore not practical to give guardianship of minor to natural father - Held - father is natural guardian of minor - After death of mother, it is father who is entitled to guardianship of minor children - this rule is subject to certain exceptions - Such exceptions should be strong enough to deprive the father of guardianship of minor children - No interference warranted in custody order. (Para 15)

Firtst Appeal dismissed. (E-5)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajeev Misra, J).)

1. This is an appeal under section 19 of Family Courts Act, 1955 (hereinafter referred to as 'Act 1955') filed by defendants appellants, challenging judgement dated 7.11.2015, passed by Principal Judge (Family Court), Ballia, in Misc. Case No. 18 of 2004 (Shahjahan Vs. Jehangir) whereby, plaintiff-respondent Shahjahan has been appointed as guardian of minor Anjuman under section 8 of Guardians and Wards Act, 1890 (hereinafter referred to as 'Act 1890').

2. We have heard Mr. Abhishek Kumar, learned counsel for defendant-appellants and Mr. Manoj Yadav, representing plaintiff-respondent.

3. It transpires from record that marriage of plaintiff-respondent Shahjahan was solemnized with Rabiya Khatoon on 26.11.2001, in accordance with Muslim Rites and Customs. From aforesaid wedlock, a daughter namely, Anjuman was born on 25.11.2002. Rabiya Khatoon, wife of plaintiff-respondent was subsequently, diagnosed of having cancer. Her treatment started. On account of ailment suffered by Rabiya Khatoon, she came to her parental home at Bansdih Ballia along with her minor daughter Anjuman. Ultimately, Rabiya Khatoon wife of plaintiff-respondent died at her parental home on 12.12.2003. Father of Rabiya Khatoon/Materna Grand Father (nana) of minor Anjuman retained minor Anjuman. Ultimately, minor Anjuman was given in the custody of Gulshan, sister of Rabiya Khatoon, mother of minor Anjuman. It may be noted that Gulshan is sister-in-law of Shahjahan, whereas Jahangir is father-in-law of Shahjahan.

4. Plaintiff-respondent, Shahjahan filed misc. case no. 18 of 2004 (Shahjahan Vs. Jahagir and another) regarding guardianship of minor Anjuman vide plaint dated 13.7.2004. According to plaint allegations, it was alleged by plaintiff-respondent that he was married to Rabiya Khatoon on 26.12.2001 in accordance with Muslim Rites and Customs. From aforesaid wedlock, a daughter namely, Anjuman was born on 25.11.2002. Ultimately, it was discovered that Rabiya Khatoon is suffering from cancer. The plaintiff-respondent accordingly took his wife Rabiya Khatoon to different Doctors for medical treatment. On accunt of ailment suffered by Rabiya Khatoon, she came to her parental home along with minor daughter so that she could meet all of her relatives and friends in the last days of her life. Ultimately, Rabiya Khatoon, wife of plaintiff-respondent died on 12.12.2003 at her parental home. Thereafter, Jahangir, father-in-law of plaintiff-respondent retained custody of minor Anjuman. Subsequently, custody of Anjuman was given to Gulshan, another daughter of Jahangir and sister-in-law of plaintiff-respondent. Thus, plaintiff-respondent filed Misc. Case No. 18/04 (Shahjahan Vs. Jehangir and Another) under Section 8 of Act 1890 for appointment of himself as guardian of minor Anjuman.

5. It was the case of plaintiff-respondent that minor Anjuman is not being properly looked after by defendant-appellants. The minor Anjuman has been deprived of love and affection of father and grand parents. Plaintiff-respondent has solemnized his second marriage with Yasmeen Khatoon on 14.4.2005. Plaintiff-respondent is capable of maintaining his minor dauther and further provide her with education.

6. Suit filed by plaintiff-respondent was contested by defendant-appellants. They accordingly filed a written statement whereby, not only allegations made in plaint were denied but also additional pleas were raised. According to defendant-appellants minor Anjuman is residing with defendant-appellant no.2 Gulshan who is her Mausi (sister of mother of minor Anjuman). The minor is being maintained from the income of husband of defendant-appellant no.2. Plaintiff-respondent did not undertake medical treatment of his wife Rabiya Khatoon. Entire expences in treatment of Rabia Khatoon were borne by husband of defendant-appellant no.2 Gulshan. Rabiya Khatoon, mother of minor Anjuman, during her life time, had executed a will dated 10.11.2003, providing that minor Anjuman shall be brought up by defendant-appellant no.2 Gulshan. The minor is being looked after by defendant-appellant no.2 like her own child. Plaintiff-respondent wants to do away with minor Anjuman. Lastly, it was submitted that in maintaining minor Anjuman, defendant-appellant no.2 incurs an expense of Rs. 5000/- per month. As such, in case the court comes to conclusion that custody of minor be given to plaintiff-respondent than defendant-appellant no.2 be compensated by awarding payment at the rate of Rs. 5000/- per month from 25.11.2002.

7. After exchange of pleadings, parties went to trial. Plaintiff-respondent, in support of his case, adduced himself as A.P.W-1, Sarvdeo Upadhyay as A.P.W.-2 and Yasmeen Khatoon as A.P.W.-3. Plaintiff-respondent filed photocopy of F.D.R. in the name of Anjuman valued at Rs. 1,00,000/-. Plaintiff-respondent also filed documents relating to the education of minor Anjuman and also pay slip of Mustaque Ahmad, husband of defendant-appellant no.1 Gulshan. Defendant-appellant no.1, Gulshan in support of her defence adduced herself as O.P.W.1, defendant-appellant No.2 Jahangir adduced himself as O.P.W.-2 and minor Muskan was adduced as O.P.W.-3. Vide list of documents (paper no. 22 Ga), defendant-appellant No.1 filed nine documents. Apart from above, vide paper No. 28 Ga, the birth certificate of Anjuman and death certificate of Rabiya Khatoon were also filed.

8. Court below examined the case of parties in light of pleadings and evidence both oral and documentary on record. Court below concluded that plaintiff-respondent is the father of minor Anjuman and therefore, he is natural guardian of minor. The theory of will set up by defendant-appellants was disbelieved by court below as original will deed alleged to have been executed by Rabiya Khatoon, was never produced in Court. The defence taken by defendant-appellants that it is they who had borne the entire expenses, pertaining to medical treatment of Rabiya Khatoon was also disbelieved by court below, in view of medical receipts pertaining to Rabiya Khatoon being produced by plaintiff-respondent. Defendant-appellant No.2 Gulshan is having two sons as is proved from evidence of parties, therefore, contention raised by defendant-appellant no.2 that she has only one son was found false. On the aforesaid factual premise, court below concluded that under aforesaid circumstances, it is natural for minor Anjuman to feel neglected. Court below also recorded a finding that plaintiff-respondent has a tailoring shop from which he has sufficient income. On account of minor being detained by defendant-appellant no.1 Gulshan, she has been deprived of natural love and affection of her father and grand parents. On the aforesaid findings Court below opined that plaintiff-respondent is liable to be appointed as guardian of minor Anjuman. Accordingly, Misc. Case No. 18 of 2004 (Shahjahan Vs. Jehangir and Another) was allowed vide judgement dated 7.11.2015, passed by Principal Judge, Family Court, Ballia. Consequently, plaintiff-respondent Shahjahan was appointed as Guardian of minor Anjuman.

9. Thus, feeling aggrieved by aforesaid judgement, defendant-appellants have now come to this Court by means of present first appeal, challenging judgement and order dated 7.11.2015, passed by Court below.

10. Mr. Abhishek Kumar, learned counsel for defendant-appellants has challenged judgement and order 7.11.2015, passed by Court below primarily submitting that daughter of plaintiff-respondent, namely, Anjuman, is minor as her date of birth is 25.11.2002. Secondly he submits that there was no such evidence on record to show that interest of minor was not well protected in guardianship of defendant-appellant No.1 Gulshan. Lastly, he submits that irrespective of the fact that plaintiff-respondent is father of minor and therefore, natural guardian of minor, the guardianship of minor in favour of natural father can be denied in exceptional circumstances. Minor Anjuman was being looked after by defendant-appellant no. 1 Gulshan from 2002 without any complaint made by any person. The natural father i.e. plaintiff-respondent Shahjahan has remarried and therefore, it is not practical to give guardianship of minor Anjuman to natural father i.e. plaintiff-respondent Shahjahan.

11. On the other hand Mr. Manoj Yadav, learned counsel for plaintiff-respondent has supported impugned judgement and order on the strength of findings recorded therein. He further submits that since plaintiff-respondent is the natural guardian of minor Anjuman, guardianship of minor cannot be denied to him.

12. In view of rival submissions, only one point for determination has arisen which requires adjudication in this appeal, i.e;

"Whether Court below was justified in appointing plaintiff-respondent father of minor girl Km. Anjuman as guardian instead of defendant-appellant and judgement under appeal warrants interference or not?"

13. Before proceeding to consider respective submissions made by counsel for the parties, it would be appropriate to refer to section 8 of Act 1890, which reads as under:

"8. Persons entitled to apply for order.--An order shall not be made under the last foregoing section except on the application of--

(a) the person desirous of being, or claiming to be, the guardian of the minor; or

(b) any relative or friend of the minor; or

(c) the Collector of the district or other local area within which the minor ordinarily resides or in which he has property; or

(d) the Collector having authority with respect to the class to which the minor belongs."

14. Section 8 of Act 1890 provides as to who may apply for an order regarding appointment of guardian. Section 7 of Act 1890 empowers the Court to make order as to guardianship. However, neither in section 7 or in section 8, there are any indicators which shall be followed by Court before making an order regarding appointment of a guardian. Similarly, Act, 1890 does not contain any provision, which provides the facts/circumstances which are required to be looked into before making an order appointing a guardian nor there is any such provision indicating facts and circumstances, which are required to be ignored by Court while passing an order regarding appointment of a guardian.

15. It is well established that father is natural guardian of minor. After death of mother, it is father who is entitled to guardianship of minor children. Therefore, in all probability, it is father who has to be appointed as guardian of minor. However, this rule is subject to certain exceptions. Such exceptions should be strong enough to deprive the father of guardianship of minor children.

16. Learned counsel for defendant-appellant could not point out any such special facts, existing in this case, on the basis whereof plaintiff-respondent Shahjahan could be denied guardianship of minor Anjuman. Similarly, no illegality or perversity could be established by learned counsel for defendant-appellants in respect of findings recorded by Court below. The findings of fact recorded by Court below remain intact. Logical conclusion is that if findings could not be dislodged, conclusion also cannot be dislodged. The point for demarcation framed above, therefore, is answered against appellants.

17. In view of above discussion, this appeal is clearly devoid of merits and therefore, liable to be dismissed. It is accordingly dismissed.

18. Cost made easy.

1. New Okhla Industrial Development Authority Vs. Kendriya Karamchari Sahkari Grih Nirman Samiti Ltd., (2017) 4 UPLBEC 3077,

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajeev Misra, J.)

1. Present First Appeal under Section 19 of Family Court Act, 1984 (hereinafter referred to as 'Act 1984') has been filed by plaintiff-appellant challenging Judgment dated 28.10.2015 and decree dated 30.10.2015 passed by Principal Judge, Family Court, Basti dismissing O.S. No. 15 of 2010 (Gulabpati Vs. Smt. Pushpa Rani Pandey and others).

2. We have heard Mr. Ganesh Datt Mishra, learned counsel for plaintiff-appellant and Mr. Manoj Kumar Singh, learned counsel representing defendant-respondents 2 and 3. In spite of revision of cause list, no one has appeared on behalf of defendant-respondent 1, Smt. Pushpa Pandey.

3. Plaintiff-appellant Gulabpati (hereinafter referred to as 'appellant') filed O.S. No. 15 of 2010 (Gulabpati Vs. Smt. Pushpa Rani Pandey and others) for a decree of declaration declaring that plaintiff alone is legally wedded wife of Murli Prasad @ Murlidhar resident of Village Dubaul, Tappa, Hardi, Pargana Basti Pashchim, Tehsil Harraiya, District Basti, who worked in Air Force, as such, plaintiff alone is entitled to receive family pension.

4. According to plaint allegations, it was alleged that plaintiff is legally wedded wife of Murlidhar Pandey @Murli Prasad Pandey son of Chandra Prakash Pandey resident of Village Dubaul, Tappa, Hardi, Pargana Basti Pashchim, Tehsil Harraiya, District Basti. Marriage of plaintiff with Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey was solemnized on 6.6.1965. From aforesaid wedlock and co-habitation of plaintiff and Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey, a daughter was born. Subsequently, Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey joined Air Force under the Ministry of Defence. Plaintiff being a simple and illiterate lady was ill-treated by Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey and his family members. After Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey joined Air Force, status of plaintiff was reduced to that of a domestic servant. Plaintiff is alleged to have complained about aforesaid conduct to Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey but no heed was paid. As plaintiff and her minor daughter were neglected by Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey, she accordingly initiated proceedings under Section 125 Cr.P.C. which was registered as Case No. 14 of 1981 and allowed, vide Judgment and order dated 9.1.1985. Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey was directed to make payment at the rate of Rs.250/- for plaintiff and Rs.150/- for minor daughter, per month. Against order dated 9.1.1985, Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey filed Criminal Revision No. 255 of 1985, which was allowed, vide order dated 11.4.1986. Against order dated 11.4.1986 passed by Revisional Court, i.e., Vth Additional District & Sessions Judge, Basti, plaintiff filed Criminal Revision No. 31 of 1981 (Smt. Gulabpati Vs. State of U.P.) before High Court, Allahabad, which was allowed, vide order dated 23.3.2005. Effect of same was that order dated 11.4.1986 came to be set aside resulting in restoration of earlier order dated 9.1.1985 passed by trial Court. Subsequent to Judgment of High Court, plaintiff filed an execution case and, accordingly, Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey started paying the arrears of maintenance due in instalments. On account of rise in cost of living, plaintiff filed application for enhancement of maintenance, which was allowed and accordingly, amount of maintenance was respectively enhanced to Rs.400/- and Rs.200/- per month. Daughter of plaintiff, Shashibala got married with the help of family members of plaintiff's parental side as well as relatives. Subsequently, plaintiff again filed an application for enhancement which was allowed, vide order dated 15.11.2007, and maintenance payable to plaintiff was enhanced to Rs.2,000/- per month. In spite of fact that from wedlock of plaintiff and Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey, a daughter was born, yet Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey indulged in extra-marital affair by keeping Smt. Pushpa Devi as his kept. Plaintiff, therefore, filed Criminal Case No. 92 of 1984 (Smt. Gulabpati Vs. Murlidhar) in the court of IVth Additional Judicial Magistrate, Basti wherein Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey and other accused were summoned, vide summoning order dated 14.6.1984. Aggrieved by summoning order dated 14.6.1984, parents of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey filed Criminal Revision No. 283 of 1984 (Chandra Prakash Vs. Gunjapati) which was allowed, vide order dated 26.2.1985. On aforesaid facts, it was alleged that plaintiff is legally wedded wife of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey. During the life-time of plaintiff, defendant Smt. Pushpa Devi cannot be legally wedded wife of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey and, therefore, she is kept of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey. During pendency of execution proceedings regarding payment of maintenance amount, counsel for Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey informed Court, i.e., IIIrd Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, on 18.7.2013 that Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandeyhas died on 1.7.2009 and in proof of same also filed the condolence card. Upon death of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey, plaintiff went to her marital home. Along with her mother-in-law Smt. Prem Rani, she performed all the rituals upon death of her husband. However, father-in-law of plaintiff refused to give share of late husband to plaintiff. Plaintiff had also filed O.S. No. 119 of 2004 for maintenance. On account of information, given by counsel for Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey that he has died, substitution application was filed, which has been allowed. In spite of service of notice, defendants have not yet appeared on account of which suit has proceeded ex-parte against them. Even though, upon death of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey, all rituals were performed by plaintiff as his widow with the consent of her father/mother-in-law but father/mother-in-law of plaintiff refused to maintain her. Subsequently, name of plaintiff was scored off from family register and name of Pushpa Rani was got incorporated even though she is not legally wedded wife of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey. No marriage of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey could take place with Pushpa Rani during life time of plaintiff. Husband of plaintiff was initially employed as Airman and upon superannuation, he started working at some other place, therefore, for grant of family pension, plaintiff submitted an application through District Basic Board, Basti, which was replied, vide letter No. R.O./2853/6{2182}/1807 stating therein that Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey has nominated Smt. Pushpa Pandey as his wife in records. It was also alleged that entry so made in official records is not binding upon plaintiff as Pushpa Devi could not be legally wedded wife of plaintiff. It was further alleged that on complaints made by plaintiff, martial proceedings were initiated again plaintiff but on account of order dated 11.4.1986 passed by Vth Additional District and Sessions Judge, aforesaid proceedings were stayed. Aforesaid order dated 11.4.1986 was set aside by High Court. Just on account of an illegal nomination in service records that defendant Pushpa Rani is wife of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey, rights of plaintiff to receive family pension cannot be curtailed.

5. Defendant 1 Smt. Pushpa Pandey contested the suit of plaintiff. She, accordingly, filed a written statement whereby she not only denied plaint allegations but also raised additional pleas. Defendant 1 admitted the place of residence of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey as stated in plaint but she denied status of plaintiff as legally wedded wife of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey. The factum regarding birth of Shashikala from wedlock and co-habitation of plaintiff and Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey was denied. Appointment of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey in Defence Department was, however, admitted. Defendant 1 also denied the allegations made by plaintiff that she is a simple lady and only after Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey got employed, husband of plaintiff as well as his parents started neglecting plaintiff and reduced her status to that of a domestic servant. She also denied the alleged conduct of parents of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey and also the fact that plaintiff was ousted from her marital home. It was also denied that plaintiff is incapable of maintaining herself. Judgment/order passed in proceedings under Section 125 Cr.P.C. are not binding as they have been rendered in summary proceedings. Factum regarding filing of criminal revision and it being allowed as stated in para 5 of plaint was admitted but rest of the averments were denied. Allegations made in plaint that defendant 1 is kept of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey was completely denied and objection to the use of word 'kept' was seriously raised. It was also alleged that plaintiff was initially working in Montesary School and thereafter in a Nursing Home as maid. Factum regarding death of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey was also denied. Allegation regarding performance of religious ceremony by plaintiff at her marital home upon death of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey was also denied. It was further pleaded that name of defendant 1 is recorded in service records and, therefore, she is the legally wedded wife of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey. Reference was also made to various documents in which name of defendant 1 is shown as wife of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey. Plea regarding maintainability of suit was also raised. On the aforesaid defence, it was prayed that suit filed by plaintiff be dismissed.

6. Suit filed by plaintiff was also contested by defendants 2 and 3. Defence of defendants 2 and 3 was primarily based upon entry in service records of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey. After retirement, vide, Pension Payment Order no. 008/14/B/87892/91, pension was sanctioned in favour of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey. Upon death of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey on 31.8.1991, family pension was sanctioned in favour of Smt. Pushpa Rani Pandey as Smt. Pushpa Rani Pandey was nominated as wife of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey, In the service records of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey, it is mentioned that Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey married Pushpa Rani Pandey on 5.2.1980 and from aforesaid wedlock two children, namely, Master Sachin and daughter Sangeeta were born. However, in paragraph 24 of written statement, it was pleaded that though name of Pushpa Rani Pandey is mentioned in the records of Air Force as legally wedded wife of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey, yet plaintiff has been informed that she can approach appropriate Court for redressal of her grievance. On aforesaid defence, it was pleaded by defendants 2 and 3 that suit for declaration filed by plaintiff is liable to be dismissed.

7. On these pleadings raised by parties, Court below framed following issues for adjudication:-

1. Whether plaintiff alone is legally wedded wife of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey having service no.612182 C.P.L. Pandey, M.P. and, therefore, entitled to family pension?

2. Whether suit has been undervalued and court fees paid is deficient?

3. Whether suit is barred by Order 39 Rule 2 C.P.C.?

4. Whether plaintiff has the right to institute present suit?

5. Whether the plaint is not duly signed and verified?

6. Whether Court has jurisdiction to try the suit?

7. Whether plaintiff is entitled to any other relief?

8. Plaintiff in order to prove her case, adduced herself as P.W.1, Shashibala as P.W.2 and Umapati Mishra as P.W. 3. As per impugned judgement, Plaintiff also filed following documents in evidence:-

(i) Paper No. 41 (Ga) -certified copy of order dated 7.4.2010.

(ii) Paper No. 83 (Ga)-copy of order passed by High Court in Criminal Revision No. 31 of 1991.

(iii) Vide list of documents (Paper No. 9 (Ga)) eight documents, i.e., paper no. 10 (Ga) to 19(Ga) were filed. These are Paper Nos. 10(Ga) Reply dated 9.11.2002, sent by Wing Commander, OIC, P & W.W. (F.P), 11(Ga) Judgement dated 26.2.1985, passed in Criminal Revision No. 263 of 1984 (Chandra Prakash Pandey and Others Vs. Gulabpati), 12(Ga) Phot copy of judgement dated 23.3.1995, passed in Criminal Revision No. 31 of 1981, 13 (Ga) Certified copy of entry in Voter list, 14 (Ga) Reply dated 8.8.1980, issued by Sqn.Ldr Officer 1/c- P-10, 15 (Ga) Photo copy of letter 16.10.2019, 16 (Ga) Document not discernible, 17(Ga) Original post card/postal receipts, 18 (Ga) Photo copy of question-answer form, 19(Ga) Photo copy of application dated 18.7.2009 submitted by counsel for opposite party in proceedings under Section 128 Cr.P.C.

(iv) Vide list of documents (Paper No. 56 (Ga)) plaintiff filed following documents:- (a) Paper No. 57 (Ga)-certificate of Pradhan, Paper No. (66Ga to 83Ga)-copy of order sheet of Criminal Revision No. 124 /11/97 (Gulabpati Vs. Murlidhar), Paper No. 102(Ga)-photo copy of letter, Paper No.97Ga-extract of family register, Paper No. 98Ga-voter ID card, Paper No. 121(Ga)-report of Tehsildar

9. Defendant 1 filed paper no. 39 (Ga). Objections dated 4.3.2011, Paper No. 44 (Ga)-extract of family register, Paper No. 45 (Ga)-copy of application for marriage, Paper No. 46 (Ga)- Identity Card as well as joint photograph, photo copy of Voter I.D. Card of Pushpa Rani and Voter I.D. Card of Sachin Kumar. After filing of written statement and upon submission of documents to be taken as documentary evidence on behalf of defendant 1, she abandoned proceedings of suit, consequently, suit proceeded ex-parte against defendant 1.

10. Defendants 2 and 3 filed attested copy of service book of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey. No other document was adduced by defendants to be taken as documentary evidence nor defendants 2 and 3 adduced any witness on their behalf.

11. Upon consideration of pleadings of parties, Court below dismissed suit of appellant, vide Judgment dated 28.10.2015 and decree dated 30.10.2015.

12. Perusal of Judgment of Court below shows that upon evaluation of oral evidence, court below concluded that plaintiff and her witnesses failed to prove the place and time of marriage. Upon evaluation of documentary evidence in the light of Section 5 of Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, Court below arrived at the conclusion that plaintiff has failed to prove herself as legally wedded wife of Murali Prasad Pandey.

13. In respect of Issues 2 and 6, Court below held that aforesaid issues have already been decided, vide order dated 23.11.2011 and, therefore, order dated 23.11.2011 will be part of Judgment.

14. Issue No. 3 was decided in negative, but in favour of plaintiff as such it was held by Court below that suit of plaintiff is not barred by Order 39 Rule 2 C.P.C.

15. Regarding Issue No. 4, Court below held that defendants have failed to prove as to how plaintiff has no right to institute suit, as such, aforesaid issue was decided in negative and against defendants.

16. Court below upon evaluation of plaint held that plaint is duly signed and verified, as such, Issue No. 5 was decided in favour of plaintiff.

17. In respect of relief to which plaintiff was entitled, Court below held that since plaintiff has failed to prove herself to be legally wedded wife of Murlidhar Pandey @ Murli Prasad Pandey, she is not entitled to any relief. Accordingly, issue no. 7 was decided against plaintiff.

18. Mr. G.D. Mishra, learned counsel for appellant in challenge to impugned Judgment and decree passed by Court below has placed before us impugned Judgment passed by Court below. He submits that court below while deciding Issue No.1 has referred to various documents. However, perusal of original record shows that documents referred to by Court below have not been marked 'Exhibits'. According to counsel for appellant until and unless a document is admitted in evidence, it cannot be marked as exhibit and unless the aforesaid exercise is undertaken, there is no legally admissible evidence on record. Therefore, submission urged is that court below has conducted an erroneous trial and, therefore, Judgment and decree passed by court below is liable to be set aside.

19. Mr. Manoj Kumar Singh, learned counsel representing respondents 2 and 3, on the other hand, has supported impugned Judgment and decree by placing reliance upon findings recorded by Court below as well as observations made in impugned Judgment. According to Mr. Manoj Kumar Singh, findings recorded by Court below cannot be said to be illegal, perverse or erroneous, as such, same are not liable to be interfered with. Once findings recorded by Court below are maintained by this Court, then conclusion cannot be challenged. It is, thus, vehemently urged that present First Appeal does not involve any point of determination in law or fact. Hence, same is liable to be dismissed.

20. The issues involved in the present First Appeal can better be appreciated in the light of provisions contained in Order 13, Order 8 C.P.C and Chapter 3 Part C, Rules 40 to 69, General Rules (Civil).

21. When record of court below is scrutinized in the light of provisions noted hereinabove, we find that none of the documents produced by parties were either put for admission or denial. Consequently, none of the documents were either admitted in evidence or proved in evidence. As such, no document filed by either of the parties was marked as an exhibit. What will be the consequence when such a procedure is adopted has been adequately dealt with in New Okhla Industrial Development Authority Vs. Kendriya Karamchari Sahkari Grih Nirman Samiti Ltd., (2017) 4 UPLBEC 3077, wherein following has been observed in paragraphs 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79:-

"19. While advancing arguments, it was also submitted that a very strange procedure in this case was followed by Court below inasmuch as parties submitted documents which included original, photostate copies and true copies. All these documents were marked paper numbers. No exercise of admission or denial of documents admitting documents in evidence, marking of exhibits etc. was undertaken and only on the basis of paper numbers, Court below has proceeded to decide the matter. Infact there is not a single evidence admitted by Court in accordance with procedure prescribed in Order 13 CPC read with General Rules (Civil), 1957 (hereinafter referred to as, 'GR(C), 1957') applicable to Court below and therefore, judgement is based on no valid evidence at all, hence on this ground alone it is liable to be set aside.

20. The entire original record of Court below is before us. We have examined entire record and found that there is not a single document which Court has admitted in evidence and marked exhibit number. No document contains any endorsement of admission or denial. A list of documents alongwith documents is there which have been given paper numbers. Whenever documents were filed before Court, the office has given paper number and those documents have been treated as evidence by Court below in deciding suit.

21. When questioned, learned counsel appearing for plaintiff-respondent whether any document was admitted as evidence and exhibit numbers were marked, he fairly stated that no such procedure has been followed by Court below and this is also evident from impugned judgement of Court below.

22. In these circumstances, we have examined for deciding these appeals only one question for determination i.e. "whether without admitting documents filed by parties as evidence and exhibiting the same in accordance with procedure prescribed under Order 13 read with Rules 4 CPC, was permissible for Court below to decide suit relying on documents, which are not admitted in evidence at all and can be said to be a judgment based on valid evidence."

23. A perusal of impugned judgement shows that a large number of documents were filed, which included original documents, photostate copies and true copies. No document has been referred by Court below with exhibit number. All the documents are referred with paper number. After examination of original record, we find that no document has been marked as exhibit. There is no endorsement by Presiding Officer of Court below admitting any document in evidence and infact even there is no endorsement by parties regarding admission or denial of document(s) filed by other party.

24. It is now a well established principle that a document, not admissible in evidence is to be excluded and cannot be considered a valid evidence for deciding suit.

25. In Roman Catholic Mission Vs. State of Madras, 1966 SCR (3) 283 Court held that a document not admissible in evidence, though brought on record, has to be excluded from consideration.

26. Procedure for taking documentary evidence on record is provided in Order 13 CPC read with General Rule (Civil). It is no doubt true that it is a procedural law, but this procedure is consistent with the principles of natural justice so that no party may suffer in the assessment of evidence to prove a fact, if any documentary evidence is relied, which is either in admissible in evidence or has not been otherwise proved.

27. Section 3 of Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (hereinafter referred to as, 'Act, 1872') says that, "fact is said to be proved when, after considering the matters before it, the Court either believes it to exist, or considers its existence so probable that a prudent man ought, under the circumstances of the particular case, to act upon the supposition that it exists."

28. It is evaluation of result drawn by applicability of rule. The evaluation obviously is based on the pleadings between parties and evidence, oral and/or documentary, led by respective parties. In several cases on preponderance of probability of evidence it can be held that a fact is proved and and therefore to decide suit by holding that fact has been proved, legal evidence is of utmost importance.

29. Here is not a case, where Court has admitted documents and marked exhibits without any objection by either of parties but unfortunately here is a case where documents filed are different manner, i.e. original documents, photostate copies and true copies have been filed. At the time of filing the same were given paper numbers but thereafter no process whatsoever of admitting documents as evidence in accordance with procedure prescribed in statute has undergone. Suit has been decided on these documents as such without admitting even a single document as evidence.

30. At this stage, it would be appropriate to have a bird's eye view of relevant provisions laying down procedure for admitting documents as evidence and marking of same as exhibits.

31. Order XIII deals with production, impounding and return of documents. Rule 1 thereof as it stands today, substituted by CPC Amendment Act, 1999 (hereinafter referred to as "Amendment Act, 1999") w.e.f. 01.07.2002. Earlier Rule 1 reads as under:-

"(1) Documentary evidence to be produced at or before the settlement of issues.--(1) The parties or their pleaders shall produce, at or before the settlement of issues all the documentary evidence of every description in their possession or power, on which they intend to rely, and which has not already been filed in Court, and all documents which the Court has ordered to be produced.

(2) The Court shall receive the documents so produced: Provided that they are accompanied by an accurate list thereof prepared in such form as the High Court directs."

32. The substituted Rule 1 which is effective from 01.07.2002, reads as under:

"1. Original documents to be produced at or before the settlement of issues.-(1) The parties or their pleader shall produce on or before the settlement of issues, all the documentary evidence in original where the copies thereof have been filed along with the plaint or written statement.

(2) The court shall receive the documents so produced:

Provided that they are accompanied by an accurate list thereof prepared in such form as the High Court directs.

(3) Nothing in sub-rule (1) shall apply to documents--

(a) produced for the cross-examination of the witnesses of the other party; or

(b) handed over to a witness merely to refresh his memory."

33. This is consistent with Order VII Rule 14 in respect of the documents of plaintiff and Order VIII Rule 1A in respect of the documents of defendants. Both these rules have also undergone amendment by substitution and Order VII Rule 14 and Order VIII Rule 1A as inserted by Amendment Act, 1999, read as under:-

Rule 14 before Amendment

"Rule 14. Production of document on which plaintiff sues--(1) Where a plaintiff sues upon a document in his possession or power, he shall produce it in Court when the plaint is presented, and shall at the same time deliver the document or a copy thereof to be filed with the plaint.

List of other documents.--(2) Where he relies on any other documents (whether in his possession or power or not) as evidence in support of his claim, he shall enter such documents in a list to be added or annexed to the plaint."

Rule 14 after Amendment

"14. Production of document on which plaintiff sues or relies-(1) Where a plaintiff sues upon a document or relies upon document in his possession or power in support of his claim, he shall enter such documents in a list, and shall produce it in court when the plaint is presented by him and shall, at the same time deliver the document and a copy thereof, to be filed with the plaint.

(2) Where any such documents not in the possession or power of the plaintiff, he shall, wherever possible, state in whose possession or power it is.

(3) A document which ought to be produced in Court by the plaintiff when the plaint is presented, or to be entered in the list to be added or annexed to the plaint but is not produced or entered accordingly, shall not, without the leave of the Court, be received in evidence on his behalf at the hearing of the suit.

(4) Nothing in this rule shall apply to document produced for the cross examination of the plaintiff's witnesses, or, handed over to a witness merely to refresh his memory."

Order VIII Rule 1A (inserted by Amendment Act, 1999)

"1A. Duty of defendant to produce documents upon which relief is claimed or relied upon by him- (1) Where the defendant bases his defence upon a document or relies upon any document in his possession or power, in support of his defence or claim for set off or counter claim, he shall enter such document in a list, and shall produce it in court when the written statement is presented by him and shall, at the same time, deliver the document and a copy thereof, to be filed with the written statement.

(2) Where any such document is not in the possession or power of the defendant, he shall, wherever possible, state in whose possession or power it is.

(3) A document which ought to be produced in Court by the defendant under this rule, but, is not so produced shall not, without the leave of the Court, be received in evidence on his behalf at the hearing of the suit.

(4) Nothing in this rule shall apply to documents--

(a) produced for the cross-examination of the plaintiff's witnesses, or

(b) handed over to a witness merely to refresh his memory."

34. Order XIII Rule 1 now creates an obligation upon parties or their pleader to produce original documents on or before settlement of Issues. Order XIII Rule 2 earlier provided effect of non-production of documents but now by Amendment Act, 1999 it has been omitted. If primary evidence i.e. original document is not available and party intends to lead secondary evidence, then all conditions provided in Evidence Act have to be satisfied. Rule 3 permits a Court to reject a document at any stage of the suit which it considers irrelevant or otherwise inadmissible after recording grounds of such rejection. Rule 4 contemplates endorsement on the documents admitted in evidence and it has to be done by Court since such endorsement has to be signed or initialled by Presiding Officer of the Court. It reads as under:-

"4. Endorsements on documents admitted in evidence- (1) Subject to the provisions of the next following sub-rule, there shall be endorsed on every document which has been admitted in evidence in the Suit the following particulars, namely:--

(a) the number and title of the suit,

(b) the name of the person producing the document,

(c) the date on which it was produced, and

(d) a statement of its having been so admitted; and the endorsement shall be signed or Initialed by the judge.

(2) Where a document so admitted is an entry in a book, account or record, and a copy thereof has been substituted for the original under the next following rule, the particulars aforesaid shall be endorsed on the copy and the endorsement thereon shall be signed or initialed by the Judge."

35. Order XIII Rule 5 provides for endorsement on copies of admitted entries in books, accounts and records. Rule 6 talks of endorsement of documents rejected as inadmissible. The Rules read as under:-

"5. Endorsements on copies of admitted entries in books, accounts and records.- (1) Save in so far as otherwise provided by the Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1891 (XVIII of 1891), where a document admitted in evidence in the suit is an entry in a letter book or a shop book or other account in current use, the party on whose behalf the book or account is produced may furnish a copy of the entry.

(2) Where such a document is an entry in a public record produced from a public office or by a public officer, or an entry in a book or account belonging to a person other than a party on whose behalf the book or account is produced, the court may require a copy of the entry to be furnished--

(a) where the record, book or account is produced on behalf of a party, then by that party, or

(b) Where the record, book or account is produced in obedience to an Order of the court acting of its own motion, then by either or any party.

(3) Where a copy of an entry is furnished under the foregoing provisions of this rule, the court shall, after causing the copy to be examined, compared and certified in manner mentioned in rule 17 of Order VII, mark the entry and cause the book, account or record in which its occurs to be returned to the person producing it.

6. Endorsements on documents rejected as inadmissible in evidence.- Where a document relied on as evidence by either party is considered by the court to be inadmissible in evidence, there shall be endorsed there or the particulars mentioned in clauses (a), (b) and (c) of Rule 4, sub-rule (1), together with a statement of its having been rejected, and the endorsement shall be signed or initialled by the Judge.

36. Order XIII Rule 7 CPC provides that documents which are admitted in evidence shall form part of record of suit. The documents not admitted in evidence shall not form part of record and shall be returned to the persons respectively producing them.

37. Order XIII Rule 8 CPC empowers Court to impound a document and keep in the custody of officer of Court, if it sees sufficient cause, for such period and subject to such conditions, as Court thinks fit.

38. Rule 9 provides for return of admitted documents after suit is disposed of, and, either time for filing appeal has expired or appeal has been disposed of. Proviso covers a situation where a document may be returned at any time earlier than the period provided hereinabove in certain conditions. Rule 10 states that Court may, of its own motion, and its discretion, upon application of any of the parties to suit, send for, either from its own record or from any other Court, record of any other suit or proceeding, and inspect the same. Conditions applicable when such order is passed on the application, are contained in sub-rule 2 of Rule 10. Sub-rule 3 declares that Rule 10 shall not enable Court to use in evidence, any document which under the law of evidence would be inadmissible in suit. Rule 11 extends provisions relating to documents to all other material objects producible as evidence.

39. In exercise of supervisory powers under Article 227 of Constitution of India read with Section 122 CPC, GR (C), 1957 have been notified in supersession of all existing Rules on the subject. These Rules have 28 Chapters dealing with different aspects of procedure to be followed, not only in trial of civil suits etc., but also tell subordinate Courts, manner of maintenance of record of various proceedings and other administrative aspects.

40. Part (A) deals with parties to the proceedings; (B) with applications and pleadings; (C) with Documents; (D) Commissions; (E) Affidavits; (F) Adjournments; (G) Hearing of suit; (H) Transfer or withdrawal of cases; and, (I) Judgment and decree.

41. For purpose of present matter we confine ourselves to Chapter III Part C which deals with documents and contains Rules 40 to 69.

42. Rule 40 of GR (C), 1957 specify the persons who may produce documents in the Court and says that it may be by parties, by persons, other than parties and on requisition issued by Court. Rule 41 imposes an obligation where the documents produced by party or his witness is in a language other than Hindi, Urdu or English and says that it shall be accompanied by a correct translation of the document in Hindi, written in Devnagri script. Such translation shall bear a certificate of party's lawyer to the effect that the translation is correct. If parties are not represented by a lawyer, Court shall have the translation certificate of any person appointed by it in this behalf at the cost of the party concerned.

43. Rule 42 of GR (C), 1957 contemplates that parties desiring to produce any document in Court, shall, before producing it in any Court, obtain admission or denial, recorded on back of the document by the opposite party's lawyer. If opposite party is not represented by lawyer, Court shall get admission or denial by the party in its presence and may, for the purpose, examine the party.

44. Rule 43 lays procedure of list of documents contemplated in Order VII Rule 14 and Order XIII Rule 1 CPC and says that such list of documents shall be in form (part IV-71). It further says that no document whensoever produced, shall be received unless accompanied by the said form duly filled up. In case a document is produced by a witness or person summoned to produce documents, form shall be supplied by the parties at whose instance the document is produced. It also requires that list as well as the documents shall be immediately entered in the general index.

45. If there is any erasures or additions in the documents, other than a registered documents or certified copy, Rule 44 of GR (C), 1957 states that such document shall be accompanied by a statement clearly describing such erasure, addition or interlineation and signed by such party. Reference to such statement shall be made in the list form (part IV-71) with which paper is filed.

46. Rule 45 is basically a provision for safety and convenience of perusal of documents when it is a small piece of paper or of historic value or written on both sides. It reads as under:-

"45. Small documents and documents of historic value.--Small documents when filed in Court shall be filed pasted on a paper equal to the size of the record, and the margin of the paper should be stitched to the file so that no part of the document is concealed by the stitching. If a document contains writing both on the front and the back, it should be kept in a separate cover, which should be stitched to the file at the proper place leaving the main document untouched."

47. When a party require production of a public record, Rule 46 says that application shall be submitted by such party accompanied by an affidavit showing how such party requiring record has satisfied itself that it is material to the suit and why a certified copy of document cannot be produced or will not serve the purpose.

48. When a public record is ordered to be produced but its production require sanction of Head of Department, Rule 47 deals with such a situation and says as under:-

"47. Documents for production of which sanction of head of department is necessary.--When a Court decides that in the interests of justice it is necessary that it should have before it a document which cannot be produced without the sanction of the head of the department concerned, it shall in its order asking for such document set out as clearly as possible (a) the facts, for the proof of which the production of the document is sought; (b) the exact portion or portions of the document required as evidence of the facts sought to be proved. The Court summoning the document shall fix a date for its production, which should not be less than three weeks from the date of issue of summons."

49. Rule 48 deals with public record of different offices like Sub Registrar, Police, Municipal and District Board and Post Office and says as under:-

"48. Registers from Sub-Registrar's office.--(1) A summons for the production of any register or book belonging to the office of a Sub- Registrar shall be addressed to the District Registrar and not direct to the Sub-Registrar.

(2) Production of documents in police custody.-A summons for the production of documents in the custody of the police should be addressed to the Superintendent of Police concerned, and not to the Inspector General.

(3) Production of Municipal and District Board Records.-When duly authenticated and certified copies of documents in the possession of Municipal and District Boards15 are admissible in evidence, the Court shall not send for original records unless, after perusal of copies filed, the Court is satisfied that the production of the original is absolutely necessary.

(4) Post Office records not to be unnecessarily disclosed.-When any journal or other record of a post office is produced in Court, the Court shall not permit any portion of such journal or record to be disclosed, other than the portion or portions which seem to the Court necessary for the determination of the case then before it."

50. For summoning of settlement record, procedure is prescribed in Rule 49 and reads as under:-

"49. Settlement Records.-- When a Court requires the production of any Settlement Record in which the Settlement Officer acted in a judicial capacity, it shall be summoned in the manner provided by Order XIII, Rule10. In other cases the procedure prescribed in Order XVI, Rule 6 shall be followed. The summons to produce such documents shall be issued to the Collector/Deputy Commissioner, who may send the document by messenger or registered post."

51. Rule 50 deals with payment of postage fee, travelling charges and other expenses for transmission or requisition of record etc. Rule 51 says that documents received by registered post, then the registered cover shall not be destroyed but shall be attached to the file of proceedings in the case to which the document is referred.

52. Then comes Rule 52 which says that all document received must be received by the Court and must be dealt with in one or the other of three means i.e. (a) returned; (b) placed on record; and (c) impounded.

53. Thereafter Rule 53 imposes a duty upon Court to inspect documents as soon as they are produced before Court. It says that documents which are proved or admitted by party against whom they are produced in evidence, shall be marked as exhibit in the manner prescribed in Rule 57 and this fact shall be noted in the record. The document which are not proved or not admitted by parties against whom they are produced in Court, shall be kept in record pending proof and shall be rejected at the close of evidence, if not proved or admitted. Documents that are found to be irrelevant or otherwise inadmissible in evidence shall be rejected forthwith. There is a note under Rule 53 stating that no document unless admitted in evidence shall be marked as an exhibit.

54. Rule 54 of GR (C), 1957 clarifies that admission of genuineness is not to be confused with admission of truth of contents and reads as under:

"54. Admission of genuineness not to be confused with admission of truth of contents.-(1)When a certified copy of any private document is produced in Court, inquiry shall be made from the opposite party whether he admits that it is a true and correct copy of the document which he also admits, or whether it is a true and correct copy of the document which he denies, or whether it is a true and correct copy of the document the genuineness of which he admits without admitting the truth of its contents, or whether he denies the correctness of the copy as well as of the document itself. Admission of the genuineness of a document is not to be confused with the admission of the truth of its contents or with the admission that such document is relevant or sufficient to prove any alleged fact.

(2) A Sessions Clerk who fails to furnish security as required by the preceding sub-rule shall not be allowed to hold that most and also other posts of equivalent status.

Explanation.--Posts of Suits Clerk, Execution Clerk, Appeals Clerk and Readers of the courts of Judge, Small Causes, Civil Judges and Munsif shall, for purposes of this rule, be deemed to be in status equivalent to that of a Sessions Clerk."

55. The expression which are to be used by parties while admitting or not admitting documents, is provided in Rule 55 and reads as under:

"55. Proper expression about admissions of documents.-Admission of a document by a party shall be indicated by the endorsement "Admitted by the plaintiff" or "Admitted by the defendant". Admission of a document in evidence by the Court shall be indicated by the endorsement "Admitted in evidence". If any question is raised as to the correctness of a copy and the correctness of its is admitted, the endorsement shall be "correctness of copy admitted". The use of the expression "Admitted as a copy" in endorsement on document is prohibited."

56. Rule 56 talks of documents filed in suits which are compromised or dismissed in default and says:

"56. Endorsement on documents in suits compromised or dismissed for default.-Documents filed in suits, which are dismissed for default or compromised, shall, before being dealt with in the manner provided in Rules 59 and 60 be endorsed with the particulars mentioned in Order XIII, Rule 4(i)and the result of the suit."

57. Rule 57 provides the manner in which marking is to be made in documents and reads as under :

"57. Marking of documents.-(1) Documents produced by a plaintiff and duly admitted in evidence shall be marked with a number, and documents produced by a defendant shall be marked with a number and the letter A, or, where there are more than one set of defendants by the letter A for the first set of defendants, by the letter B for the second, and so on. Where a document is produced by order of the Court and is not produced by any party, the serial number shall be prefaced by the words "Court Exhibit" or an abbreviation of the same.

(2) Where a document is produced by a witness at the instance of a party, the number of the witness shall be endorsed thereon, e.g., Ex.P.W.1 if it is produced by the plaintiff's first witness, and Ex.-A/D.W.1 if it is produced by the defendant's first witness.

(3) The party at whose instance a document is produced by a witness shall deposit the cost of the preparation of a certified copy of that document before it is placed on the record. The office shall then prepare a certified copy and keep it with the original document. If the witness wants to take back his document it shall be returned to him unless there are special reasons for keeping the original on the record.

Provided that a certified copy shall not be necessary where the document is written in a language other than Hindi or English, and a translation has been filed as prescribed by Rule 41.

(4) Every exhibit-mark shall be initialed and dated by the Judge."

58. If a number of documents of same nature are admitted than the manner in which such documents are marked, is provided in Rule 58 as under:

"58. Marking of documents.-Where a number of documents of the same nature are admitted, as for example, a series of receipt for rent, the whole series should bear one figure or capital letter or letters, a small figure or letter in brackets being added to distinguish each paper of the series."

59. Rule 59 states that documents which are rejected as irrelevant or otherwise inadmissible under Order 13 Rule 3 CPC or not proved, unless impounded under Order 13 Rule 8 or rendered wholly void or useless by force of decree, be returned to the person producing it or to the pleader and such person or pleader shall give a receipt for same in column 4 of list (Form Part IV-71).

60. Rules 60 and 61 of GR (C), 1957 deal with retention of impounded and certain other documents and care of impounded documents. Rule 63 talks with the manner in which documents are to be returned. Rule 64 specifically concerned with books of business and read as under:

"64. Books of business.-If a document be an entry in a letter book, a shop book, or other account in current use or an entry in a public record, produced from a public office or by a public officer, a copy of the entry, certified in the manner required by law, shall be substituted on the record before the book, account or record is returned, and the necessary endorsement should be made thereon, as required by Order XIII, Rule 5."

61. It is true that these are the provisions relating to procedure and have been designed to facilitate procedure for imparting justice. The procedural law is not to be dealt as a penal enactment and too technical construction thereof is not needed. This is what has been said by Hon'ble Vivian Bose, J in Sangram Singh vs. Election Tribunal, Kotah and another, 1955(2) SCR 1 and we quote relevant observation as under:

"Now a code of procedure must be regarded as such. It is procedure, something designed to facilitate justice and further its ends : not a Penal enactment for punishment and penalties; not a thing designed to trip people up. Too technical construction of sections that leaves no room for reasonable elasticity of interpretation should therefore be guarded against (provided always that justice is done to both sides) lest the very means designed for the furtherance of justice be used to frustrate it."

62. Evidence is the foundation of every case since in our system of justice disputes are decided, whether Civil or Criminal, on the basis of evidence which may be oral or documentary or both. Therefore, rules dealing with procedure as to how a document will become an evidence is of great importance and such procedure must be adhered. Normal requirement under Rules is that provisions relating to endorsement of document admitted in evidence should be strictly followed.

63. In the past, Courts, on different occasions and in particular, in the light of facts of those cases, deviation in process of marking of evidence or admitting of documents has allowed to stay. Such deviation and has not vitiated proceedings but a close scrutiny of such matters will reveal that such occasions existed due to peculiar facts of those matters. In order to avoid injustice to one or the other party, Courts have not held a document inadmissible at a later stage but in general, law is that in order to make a document, 'exhibit' the procedure prescribed under rules should be adhered to. However, such authorities are mostly in relation to civil matters instituted and proceeded in Courts below prior to amendment of order 13 Rule 1 by C.P.C. Amendment Act, 1999, which came into force on 1.7.2004

64. Legislature has intervened by amending Order 13 Rule 1 and now parties have to file documentary evidence in original. This is clearly with the intention to avoid scope of fictitious, manufactured or otherwise documents, particularly when scientific development has made things much easier to create any kind of manipulation in a document very conveniently. Courts are under a duty that before it treat a document, evidence, it should follow the procedure strictly and unless document is admitted as evidence and marked as exhibit, same obviously cannot be relied to decide a dispute. Marking of mere paper number and decision of a case on that basis is not correct. It may amount to render decision on the basis of documents inadmissible in evidence.

65. In Sadik Husain Khan vs Hashim Ali Khan and others, 1916 ILR (38) All 627, Judicial Committee said:

"Their Lordships, with a view of insisting on the observance of the wholesome provisions of these Statutes, will, in order to prevent injustice, be obliged in future on the hearing of Indian appeals to refuse to read or permit to be used any document not endorsed in the manner required."

66. In Secretary of State vs. (Shrimati) Sarla Devi Chaudhrani, AIR 1924 Lahore 548 followed in Hari Singh vs. Firm Karam Chand-Kanshi Ram, AIR 1927 Lahore 115 and Imam-ud-Din and Anr. vs. Sri Ram Perbhu Dial, AIR 1928 Lahore 142, it was said that documents admitted on record without making endorsement prescribed by Rules cannot be regarded as having been brought on record legally, before Court.

67. In Feroze Din and Ors. vs. Nawab Khan and others, AIR 1928 Lahore 432, Court said that documents should not be endorsed until they are proved. Sometimes the Court may mark a document as an exhibit without having it proved.

68. In Sait Tarajee Khimchand and others vs. Yelamarti Satyam alias Satteyya and others, AIR 1971 SC 1865, Court said that merely marking of an exhibit does not dispense with the proof of documents. It was followed in Sitaram vs. Ram Charan and Ors. AIR 1995 MP 134.

69. In the present case, documents have been filed as original documents, photocopies and true copies. Photocopies and true copies are in nature of secondary evidence and therefore would be admissible in evidence under Section 65 of Act, 1872 in case conditions therein are satisfied.

70. In J. Yashoda Vs. K. Shobha Rani (2007) 5 SCC 730, Court held :-

"The rule which is the most universal, namely that the best evidence the nature of the case will admit shall be produced, decides this objection that rule only means that, so long as the higher or superior evidence is within your possession or may be reached by you, you shall give no inferior proof in relation to it."

71. Section 63 of Act, 1872 talks about what secondary evidence is and reads as under :-

"63. Secondary evidence.- Secondary evidence means and includes--

(1) certified copies given under the provisions hereinafter contained;

(2) copies made from the original by mechanical processes which in themselves insure the accuracy of the copy, and copies compared with such copies;

(3) copies made from or compared with the original;

(4) counterparts of documents as against the parties who did not execute them;

(5) oral accounts of the contents of a document given by some person who has himself seen it."

72. Section 65 of Act, 1872 deals with cases in which secondary evidence may be given. It reads as under :-

"65. Cases in which secondary evidence relating to documents may be given.--Secondary evidence may be given of the existence, condition, or contents of a document in the following cases:--

(a) When the original is shown or appears to be in the possession or power-- of the person against whom the document is sought to be proved, or of any person out of reach of, or not subject to, the process of the Court, or of any person legally bound to produce it, and when, after the notice mentioned in section 66, such person does not produce it;

(b) when the existence, condition or contents of the original have been proved to be admitted in writing by the person against whom it is proved or by his representative in interest;

(c) when the original has been destroyed or lost, or when the party offering evidence of its contents cannot, for any other reason not arising from his own default or neglect, produce it in reasonable time;

(d) when the original is of such a nature as not to be easily movable;

(e) when the original is a public document within the meaning of section 74;

(f) when the original is a document of which a certified copy is permitted by this Act, or by any other law in force in India to be given in evidence;

(g) when the originals consists of numerous accounts or other documents which cannot conveniently be examined in Court, and the fact to be proved is the general result of the whole collection.

In cases (a), (c) and (d), any secondary evidence of the contents of the document is admissible.

In case (b), the written admission is admissible.

In case (e) or (f), a certified copy of the document, but no other kind of secondary evidence, is admissible.

In case (g), evidence may be given as to the general result of the documents by any person who has examined them, and who is skilled in the examination of such documents."

73. In J. Yashoda (Supra), Court said :-

"Section 65 deals with the proof of the contents of the documents tendered in evidence. In order to enable a party to produce secondary evidence it is necessary for the party to prove existence and execution of the original document. Under Section 64, documents are to be provided by primary evidence. Section 65, however permits secondary evidence to be given of the existence, condition or contents of documents under the circumstances mentioned. The conditions laid down in the said Section must be fulfilled before secondary evidence can be admitted. Secondary evidence of the contents of a document cannot be admitted without non-production of the original being first accounted for in such a manner as to bring it within one or other of the cases provided for in the Section."

74. In Ashok Dulichand Vs. Madahavlal Dube (1975) 4 SCC 664 Court said :-

"According to clause (a) of section 65 of the Indian Evidence Act, secondary evidence may be given of the existence, condition or contents of a document when the original is shown or appears to be in the possession or power of the person against whom the document is sought to be proved, or of any person out of reach of, or not subject to, the process of the Court, or of any person legally bound to produce it, and when, after the notice mentioned in section 66, such person does not produce it. Clauses (b) to (g) of section 65 specify some other contingencies wherein secondary evidence relating to a document may be given, but we are not concerned with those clauses as it is the common case of the parties that the present case is not covered by those clauses. In order to bring his case within the purview of clause (a) of section 65, the appellant filed applications on July 4, 1973, before respondent No. 1 was examined as a witness, praying that the said respondent be ordered to produce the original manuscript of which, according to the appellant, he had filed photostat copy. Prayer was also made by the appellant that in case respondent No. 1 denied that the said manuscript had been written by him, the photostat copy might be got examined from a handwriting expert. The appellant also filed affidavit in support of his applications. It was, however, nowhere stated in the affidavit that the original document of which the photostat copy had been filed by the appellant was in the possession of respondent No. 1. There was also no other material on the record to indicate that the original document was in the possession of respondent No. 1. The appellant further failed to explain as to what were the circumstances under which the photostat copy was prepared and who was in possession of the original document at the time its photograph was taken. Respondent No. 1 in his affidavit denied being in possession of or having anything to do with such a document. The photostat copy appeared to the High Court to be not above suspicion. In view of all the circumstances, the High Court came to the conclusion that no foundation had been laid by the appellant for leading secondary evidence in the shape of the photostat copy. We find no infirmity in the above order of the High Court as might justify interference by this Court."

75. A Division Bench of Madhya Pradesh High Court (Indore) in Food Corporation of India Vs. Dena Bank AIR 2004 MP 158 said:-

"It is evident from the above discussion that there is no legal evidence to arrive at the conclusion at which learned Lower Court has arrived. No evidence of any kind has been adduced even the written statement was not filed while the defendant was directed to file written statement. Any document has not been proved. The finding of the learned Lower Court seems to be based on the photostat copies of the award and the order of the Delhi High Court, which have not been even exhibited. Thus, the order passed by the learned Lower Court is not based on any legal evidence and is liable to be set aside."

76. The above observation that photocopy of a document is not a evidence to pass a decree has been affirmed by Supreme Court in Neebha Kapoor Vs. Jayantilal Khandwala (2008) 3 SCC 770 wherein Court referring to judgement of Madhya Pradesh High Court in Food Corporation of India (Supra) said :-

"A decree could not have been granted on the basis of even photostat copies of the documents. Presumption in regard to a negotiable instrument or a bill of exchange in terms of Section 118 of the Act is also an evidence. It is true that a presumption can be raised that a bill of exchange was correctly stamped as provided for under Clause (f) of Sub-section (2) of Section 128 of the Code but a decree is to be passed by a court of law upon application of mind."

77. In R.V.E. Venkatachala Gounder Vs. Arulmigu Viswesaraswami & V.P Temple and Another (2003) 8 SCC 752 referring to Order 13 Rule 4 CPC, Court said :-

"every document admitted in evidence in suit being endorsed by or on behalf of the Court, which endorsement signed or initialled by the Judge amounts to admission of document in evidence. Having said so, Court said, "an objection to the admissibility of the document should be raised before such endorsement is made and the Court is obliged to form its opinion on the question of admissibility and express the same on which opinion would depend the document being endorsed as admitted or not admitted in evidence. In the latter case, the document may be returned by the Court to the person from whose custody it was produced." Further Court said that, "ordinarily an objection to the admissibility of evidence should be taken when it is tendered and not subsequently. The objections as to admissibility of documents in evidence may be classified into two classes:- (i) an objection that the document which is sought to be proved is itself inadmissible in evidence; and (ii) where the objection does not dispute the admissibility of the document in evidence but is directed towards the mode of proof alleging the same to be irregular or insufficient. In the first case, merely because a document has been marked as 'an exhibit', an objection as to its admissibility is not excluded and is available to be raised even at a later stage or even in appeal or revision. In the latter case, the objection should be taken before the evidence is tendered. Once the document has been admitted in evidence and marked as an exhibit, the objection that it should not have been admitted in evidence or that the mode adopted for proving the document is irregular cannot be allowed to be raised at any stage subsequent to the marking of the document as an exhibit." Court said that, "later proposition is a rule of fair play."

78. In H. Siddiqui Vs. A. Ramalingam, (2011) 4 SCC 240 considering the admissibility of secondary evidence Court said :-

"secondary evidence relating to contents of a document is inadmissible, until non-production of original is accounted for, so as to bring it within one or other of the cases provided for in the Section. Secondary evidence must be authenticated by foundational evidence that alleged copy is in fact true copy of the original. Mere admission of a document in evidence does not amount to its proof, therefore, documentary evidence is required to be proved in accordance with law. Court has an obligation to decide question of admissibility of a document in secondary evidence before making endorsement thereon."

79. Photostate copies and true copies which have not even been marked as exhibit and there is no endorsement by Presiding Judge of Court on document admitting the same as evidence in the case in hand, brings a very difficult situation before us to consider as to which evidence was admitted and which was not and what document was proved and whether judgement is founded only on admissible evidence or inadmissible evidence or unproved document, hence unreliable. The question of any objection by party, it appears, has lost its significance since procedure of admitting of document and marking of evidence has been given a complete go bye by Court below and in absence of ascertaining as to which document is admissible, we find no option but to remand the matter by setting aside the judgement dated 10.9.2008 and decree dated 24.9.2008, directing Court below to first observe the procedure of admission of documents in evidence and thereafter decide the matter afresh, in accordance with law. The point for determination formulated above is answered by holding that the judgement and decree passed by Court below is not founded on valid evidence and Court below has erred in law in not following the procedure prescribed for admitting documents in evidence."

22. In the present case also, documents filed by parties have not been marked, 'exhibits'. There is no endorsement made personally by Presiding Judge of Court below on the documents so filed, admitting them in evidence. Thus, what was the evidence which was relied upon by Court below is shrouded in obscurity. Therefore, Judgment passed by Court below is upon basis of such documents which did not form part of documentary evidence adduced by parties. In fact, there was no such document which was legally admitted in evidence. Procedure adopted by court below is in total ignorance of Order 13, Order 8 C.P.C. as well as Rules 40 to 69 of Chapter 3 Part C of General Rules (Civil). In the result, trial of Original Suit No. 15 of 2010 (Gulabpati Vs. Smt. Pushpa Rani Pandey is held to be erroneous.

23. Consequently, present First Appeal succeeds and is allowed. Judgment dated 28.10.2005 and decree dated 30.10.2005 passed by Principal Judge, Family Court, Basti in O.S. No. 626 of 2015 (Gulabpati Vs. Smt. Pushpa Rani Pandey and others) are hereby set aside. Matter is remanded to Court below for decision afresh keeping in mind the observations made hereinabove.

24. In the facts and circumstances of the case, we make the cost easy.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION
CIVIL SIDE

BEFORE
THE HON'BLE SUDHIR AGARWAL, J.
THE HON'BLE RAJEEV MISRA, J.

First Appeal No. 780 of 2017

Shri Vishnu Shankar Pandey ...Appellant
Versus
Smt. Maya Pandey ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellant:
Sri Harish K. Yadav, Sri Harish Kr. Yadav

Counsel for the Respondent:
Sri Brijesh Shukla, Sri Arvind Kumar Tiwari

A. Hindu Marriage Act (25 of 1955) - S.13(1)(ia), S.13(1)(ib) - Divorce - Fulfilment of any one of the grounds mentioned in Section 13 by itself is sufficient to grant divorce - cruelty and desertion are independent grounds of divorce & are not inter-dependant and have to be proved independently by direct evidence (Para 12)

B. Hindu Marriage Act (25 of 1955) - S.13(1)(ia) - Divorce - Cruelty - Plaintiff must plead specific instances of 'cruelty' or make such allegations of 'cruelty' which if considered cumulatively, lead to a reasonable apprehension in the mind of other that it would be harmful or injurious to reside with other spouse

Allegations in plaint do not spell out any specific instances of 'cruelty' but only allegations of 'cruelty' – No such allegations of cruelty which lead to reasonable apprehension that it would be harmful or injurious to reside with wife (Para 24)

C. Hindu Marriage Act (25 of 1955) - S.13(1)(ib) – Divorce - Desertion - Pre-requisite for grant of divorce on ground of desertion - Plaintiff required to plead that defendant deserted plaintiff for a continuous period of not less than two years immediately preceding the presentation of the petition - Period subsequent to institution of suit cannot be taken into consideration for determining desertion on the part of respondent in a suit for divorce

Husband alleged that wife deserted him on 10.11.2008 - Divorce suit instituted on 21.03.2009 - Held - Husband was required to plead that wife deserted him for a continuous period of not less than two years immediately preceding the presentation of the petition - husband failed to establish desertion on part of wife for continuous period of two years prior to institution of suit - Husband not entitled to divorce (Para 12, 26, 27)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajeev Misra, J).)

1. Challenge in this appeal under Section 19 of Family Courts Act, 1984 (hereinafter referred to as 'Act, 1984') is to the judgement dated 25.8.2014 and decree dated 17.9.2014, passed by Additional Principal Judge, Family Court/Additional District and Sessions Judge (Court No. 3), Allahabad, dismissing Matrimonial Petition No. 239 of 2009 (Sri Vishnu Shanker Pandey Vs. Smt. Maya Pandey) under section 13 of Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 (hereinafter referred to as 'Act, 1955') filed by plaintiff-appellant for dissolution of marriage of the parties.

2. Plaintiff-appellant Sri Vishnu Shanker Pandey (hereinafter referred to as 'appellant') filed Matrimonial Petition No. 239 of 2009 (Sri Vishnu Shanker Pandey Vs. Smt. Maya Pandey) for divorce on the grounds of cruelty and desertion. According to plaint allegations, marriage of parties was solemnized 28-29 years prior to institution of above mentioned matrimonial petition. From wedlock of parties, three children namely, Sarita Pandey- Date of Birth 9.12.1984, Surya Prakash Pandey- Date of Birth 2.11.1987 and Ved Prakash Pandey- Date of Birth 5.11.1989, were born. Appellant retired from post of Honorary Lieutenant from Indian Army and started residing at 6/5 Madhuwan Vihar Colony, Umarpur Niva, P.S. Dhoomanganj, District Allahabad. All three children have become major and are residing with appellant. Eldest daughter of appellant Km. Sarita Pandey is working in a private institute at Civil Lines Allahabad. Plaintiff alleged that defendant respondent Maya Pandey, wife of appellant (hereinafter referred to as 'respondent'), is also residing with him. However, since last three years, conduct of respondent has gone bad and she indulges in garrulous talking, which has disturbed peace of house. Aforesaid conduct of respondent amounts to commission of mental cruelty upon appellant. Contrary to her spousal obligations, respondent by her conduct and behaviour has totally dissolved peace and tranquillity of house. Whenever appellant tried to persuade respondent to give up her such conduct, she always behaved rudely and with arrogance and thereby, committing mental cruelty upon appellant. Consequently, it is impossible for appellant to live with respondent. For the last three years, respondent has miserably failed to discharge her spousal obligations even though plaintiff has all along been faithful, nor ever committed such act which may cause pain and agony to respondent. Inspite of aforesaid, respondent has continuously by her false and frivolous allegations degraded prestige of appellant by alleging that appellant is not maintaining respondent and further commits physical atrocities upon her. Appellant alleged that on 10.11.2008, he again persuaded respondent to mend her ways but in vain. To the contrary, on the basis of false, fabricated and incorrect allegations, respondent started residing separately from plaintiff. In furtherance of aforesaid respondent filed an application under section 125 Cr.P.C. claiming maintenance. Thoug parties are living together in same house but they are not in conjugal relationship or in co-habitation. As such, in the same house parties are living separately. Cause of action was pleaded to be continuous since 10.11.2008. On the aforesaid factual foundation, appellant filed Matrimonial Petition No. 239 of 2009 (Sri Vishnu Shanker Pandey Vs. Smt. Maya Pandey) under section 13 of Act, 1955 for dissolution of marriage.

3. Suit filed by appellant was contested by respondent. She filed written statement dated 14.9.2009, whereby not only plaint allegations were denied but additional pleas were also raised. Except for paragraphs 1 and 2 of plaint, remaining paragraphs were denied. In additional pleas respondent admitted that from wedlock of parties, three children namely, Km. Sarita Pandey, Surya Prakash Pandey and Ved Prakash Pandey were born. Appellant retired from Indian Army from the post of Honorary Lieutenant. All three children are still studying and preparing for their examinations. However, appellant does not bear their expenses, as such all expenses are borne by father of respondent. Eldest daughter Km. Sarita Pandey has still not completed her studies and she is continuing the same. However, she is working in a private institute at Civil Lines, Allahabad. Respondent never behaved with appellant in a manner which is unbecoming of a pious and faithful wife nor she ever displayed such conduct on basis of which, it could be alleged that respondent has caused physical/mental cruelty to appellant. To the Contrary, it is appellant who has committed cruelty upon her by continuously assaulting her physically. On account of aforesaid conduct, respondent disclosed the same to her father upon which he repeatedly requested appellant to give up his rude and immoral behaviour which is unbecoming of a caring husband and ideal father. However, irrespective of above, inhuman conduct of appellant continued unabated and on 20.12.2008, appellant in a drunken position, assaulted respondent, ousted her from house, forcing respondent to reside in a room outside her matrimonial home. No maintenance was paid by appellant on account of which it was impossible for respondent to reside with plaintiff. Respondent was always performing her spousal obligations but inspite of above, appellant committed cruelty upon her by his deed and conduct and further failed to maintain her. She never insulted appellant.

It was on account of aforesaid action of appellant that respondent faced despair and destitution forcing her to initiate proceedings under section 125 Cr.P.C. for grant of maintenance. From 20.12.2008, parties are living separately in the same house. Three children are residing with respondent and expenses for maintaining the respondent and her three children are being borne by father of respondent. It is on account of aforesaid that respondent is unable to discharge her spousal obligations. On the aforesaid defence, respondent prayed for dismissal of suit for divorce.

4. Appellant filed a rejoinder affidavit (Paper No. 16 Ga) to the written statement filed by respondent whereby, Appellant reiterated and reaffirmed allegations made in plaint.

5. On the above pleading of parties, Court below framed following issues for determination:

(I) Whether appellant was married to respondent in the year 1980.

(ii) Whether respondent is not having marital co-habitation with appellant since January, 2006.

(iii) Whether respondent is not discharging her marital obligations since February, 2006.

(iv) Whether respondent is committing physical and mental cruelty upon appellant since February, 2006 and without any reason is maintaining distance from appellant since February, 2006.

(v) Whether on 10.11.2008 inspite of pursuation made by appellant requesting respondent not to cause cruelty, respondent threatened appellant that she will not reside with him but live separately.

(vi) Whether appellant always committed physical cruelty upon respondent in a drunkard position and further committed mental cruelty upon her. On 20.12.2008, appellant physically assaulted respondent as such, respondent along with her three children is residing separately. No amount of maintenance is being paid by appellant to respondent as such, entire expenses are being borne by father of respondent, yet appellant repeatedly, extends threat to respondent of killing her.

6. After aforesaid issues were framed, parties went to trial. Appellant in support of his case adduced himself as P.W.1. Further appellant also filed documentary evidence which is detailed in paragraph 6 of impugned judgement. Respondent adduced herself as D.W. 1 to establish her defence. Respondent also adduced documentary evidence as detailed in paragraph 6 of impugned judgement.

7. Court below on the basis of pleadings of parties, oral and documentary evidence adduced, as well as submissions urged on behalf of parties, examined the issues so framed. Court below accordingly re-framed the issues which arose for determination i.e:

(I) Whether respondent has deserted appellant without any valid reason.

(ii) Whether respondent has displayed cruel behaviour against appellant.

(iii) Whether appellant is entitled to any relief.

8. In respect of issue no.1, Court below concluded that since factum of marriage between parties is admitted, date of marriage, therefore, is irrelevant. Issue nos. 1, 2 and 3 as originally framed were considered together. Court below opined that three issues reframed subsequently are included in Original Issue No.3. Upon evaluation of pleadings on record, Court below held that plaintiff has instituted the suit on 23.3.2009. Cause of action for desertion pleaded in plaint is 10.11.2008, which was said to be continuous. As per mandate of Section 13 (i-b), a period of two years must have lapsed from date of desertion up to the date of filing of suit for pleading divorce on the ground of desertion. Aforesaid pre-condition is not satisfied in present case. It was thus held by Court below that appellant has failed to establish desertion on part of respondent. Court below further concluded that respondent is residing separately along with her three children. Conduct of appellant towards respondent is unbecoming of a good husband, as he repeatedly commits physical assault upon respondent in a drunken position and therefore, respondent started residing separately from 20.12.2008. Appellant himself has forced respondent to live separately, as such, there is a valid reason for respondent in residing separately. Consequently, it cannot be said that respondent has deserted appellant. Issue Nos. 4, 5 and 6 were decided together by Court below. Upon evaluation of evidence of parties, as well as pleadings on record, Court below concluded that appellant has failed to establish commission of physical and mental cruelty by respondent upon appellant. Court below further concluded that since plaintiff has failed to prove the grounds of desertion and cruelty upon which plaintiff claimed decree of divorce, no relief prayed for by plaintiff can be granted. On the aforesaid findings, Court below dismissed suit of plaintiff vide judgement dated 25.8.2014 and decree dated 17.9.2014. Thus feeling aggrieved by aforesaid judgement and decree passed by Court below, plaintiff has now come to this Court by means of present first appeal.

9. We have heard Mr. Harish K. Yadav, learned counsel for appellant. Though cause list was revised, none appeared for respondent even though names of Brijesh Shukla and Arvind Kumar Tiwari, Advocates, were duly printed in the cause list as counsel for respondent. As such we proceeded with hearing of present first appeal by hearing learned counsel for appellant.

10. Mr. Harish K. Yadav, learned counsel for appellant, in challenge to impugned judgement and decree passed by Court below has submitted that the same are manifestly illegal and liable to be quashed by this Court. He further submits that findings recorded by court below on twin issues namely, cruelty and desertion are wholly illegal, perverse and erroneous. On the basis of material on record, commission of cruelty by respondent upon appellant and further her act of deserting appellant are duly proved. Consequently, judgement and decree passed by Court below are liable to be set aside and suit filed by appellant for divorce on grounds of cruelty and desertion is liable to be decreed by this Court.

11. Before proceeding to examine the submissions urged by learned counel for appellant, it would be appropriate to reproduce Section 13 of Act 1955, which provides for grounds of divorce:

"" 13 Divorce. --(1) Any marriage solemnized, whether before or after the commencement of this Act, may, on a petition presented by either the husband or the wife, be dissolved by a decree of divorce on the ground that the other party--

[(i) has, after the solemnization of the marriage, had voluntary sexual intercourse with any person other than his or her spouse; or

(i-a) has, after the solemnization of the marriage, treated the petitioner with cruelty; or

(i-b) has deserted the petitioner for a continuous period of not less than two years immediately preceding the presentation of the petition; or]

(ii) has ceased to be a Hindu by conversion to another religion; or

[(iii) has been incurably of unsound mind, or has been suffering continuously or intermittently from mental disorder of such a kind and to such an extent that the petitioner cannot reasonably be expected to live with the respondent.

Explanation.--In this clause,--

(a) the expression "mental disorder" means mental illness, arrested or incomplete development of mind, psychopathic disorder or any other disorder or disability of mind and includes schizophrenia;

(b) the expression "psychopathic disorder" means a persistent disorder or disability of mind (whether or not including sub-normality of intelligence) which results in abnormally aggressive or seriously irresponsible conduct on the part of the other party, and whether or not it requires or is susceptible to medical treatment; or]

(iv) has, been suffering from a virulent and incurable form of leprosy; or

(v) has, been suffering from venereal disease in a communicable form; or

(vi) has renounced the world by entering any religious order; or

(vi) has not been heard of as being alive for a period of seven years or more by those persons who would naturally have heard of it, had that party been alive;

[Explanation. —In this sub-section, the expression "desertion" means the desertion of the petitioner by the other party to the marriage without reasonable cause and without the consent or against the wish of such party, and includes the wilful neglect of the petitioner by the other party to the marriage, and its grammatical variations and cognate expressions shall be construed accordingly.]

(viii) deleted

[(1-A) Either party to a marriage, whether solemnised before or after the commencement of this Act, may also present a petition for the dissolution of the marriage by a decree of divorce on the ground--

(i) that there has been no resumption of cohabitation as between the parties to the marriage for a period of 22 [one year] or upwards after the passing of a decree for judicial separation in a proceeding to which they were parties; or

(ii) that there has been no restitution of conjugal rights as between the parties to the marriage for a period of 22 [one year] or upwards after the passing of a decree for restitution of conjugal rights in a proceeding to which they were parties.]

(2) A wife may also present a petition for the dissolution of her marriage by a decree of divorce on the ground,---

(i) in the case of any marriage solemnised before the commencement of this Act, that the husband had married again before such commencement or that any other wife of the husband married before such commencement was alive at the time of the solemnisation of the marriage of the petitioner: Provided that in either case the other wife is alive at the time of the presentation of the petition; or

(ii) that the husband has, since the solemnisation of the marriage, been guilty of rape, sodomy or bestiality; or

(iii) that in a suit under section 18 of the Hindu Adoptions and Maintenance Act, 1956 (78 of 1956), or in a proceeding under section 125 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) [or under the corresponding section 488 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898 (5 of 1898)], a decree or order, as the case may be, has been passed against the husband awarding maintenance to the wife notwithstanding that she was living apart and that since the passing of such decree or order, cohabitation between the parties has not been resumed for one year or upwards; or

(iv) that her marriage (whether consummated or not) was solemnised before she attained the age of fifteen years and she has repudiated the marriage after attaining that age but before attaining the age of eighteen years.

Explanation. --This clause applies whether the marriage was solemnised before or after the commencement of the Marriage Laws (Amendment) Act, 1976 (68 of 1976).

STATE AMENDMENT

Uttar Pradesh.-- In its application to Hindus domiciled in Uttar Pradesh and also when either party to the marriage was not at the time of marriage a Hindu domiciled in Uttar Pradesh, in section 13--

(i) in sub-section (1), after clause (i) insert (and shall be deemed always to have been inserted) the following

"(1-a) has persistently or repeatedly treated the petitioner with such cruelty as to cause a reasonable apprehension in the mind of the petitioner that it will be harmful or injurious for the petitioner to live with the other party; or", and

(ii) for clause (viii) (since repealed) substituted and deem always to have been so substituted for following.

"(viii) has not resumed cohabitation after the passing of a decree for judicial separation against that party and--

(a) a period of two years has elapsed since the passing of such decree, or

(b) the case is one of exceptional hardship to the petitioner or of exceptional depravity on the part of other party; or"."

12. From perusal of above quoted Section 13 of Act,1955, it is explicit that cruelty and desertion are grounds recognised in law for granting a decree of divorce. While cruelty as a ground of divorce is duly provided for in Section 13 (1) (i-a) of Act, 1955, desertion as a ground of divorce is duly provided for in Section 13 (1) (i-b) of Act, 1955. Under scheme of Act, 1955, grounds of divorce mentioned in Section 13 are independent grounds. Fulfilment of one of the grounds mentioned in Section 13 of Act, 1955 by itself is sufficient to grant divorce. It may also be noted that cruelty and desertion are independent grounds of divorce and have to be proved independently by direct evidence. They are not inter-dependant. However, one important factor distinguishing the aforesaid grounds of divorce is that while there is no pre-requisite for pleading cruelty but in case a plea of desertion is pleaded then a period of two years from date of desertion must have elapsed prior to the date of institution of suit by plaintiff. Period subsequent to institution of suit cannot be taken into consideration for determining desertion on the part of respondent in a suit for divorce.

13. The term 'cruelty' has not been defined in the Act of 1956 and therefore, same has been subject matter of debate for long. Different Courts in India have tried to explain meaning of term 'cruelty' and also crystalize the actions which can constitute cruelty. In doing so varied aspects of human nature in the changing vicissitudes of time have been taken into consideration.

14. A Division Bench of this Court in Smt. Sarita Devi Vs. Sri Ashok Kumar Singh reported in 2018 (3) AWC 2328 has considered the concept of 'cruelty' in detail by referring to the meaning assigned to the term in different dictionaries and text. Following has been observed in paragraphs 16, 17, 18 and 19:-

"16. In Samar Ghosh vs. Jaya Ghosh (2007) 4 SCC 511 Court considered the concept of cruelty and referring to Oxford Dictionary defines 'cruelty' as 'the quality of being cruel; disposition of inflicting suffering; delight in or indifference to another's pain; mercilessness; hard-heartedness'.

17. In Black's Law Dictionary, 8th Edition, 2004, term "mental cruelty" has been defined as, "a ground for divorce, one spouse's course of conduct (not involving actual violence) that creates such anguish that it endangers the life, physical health, or mental health of the other spouse."

18. The concept of cruelty has been summarized in Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol.13, 4th Edition Para 1269, as under:

"The general rule in all cases of cruelty is that the entire matrimonial relationship must be considered, and that rule is of special value when the cruelty consists not of violent acts but of injurious reproaches, complaints, accusations or taunts. In cases where no violence is averred, it is undesirable to consider judicial pronouncements with a view to creating certain categories of acts or conduct as having or lacking the nature or quality which renders them capable or incapable in all circumstances of amounting to cruelty; for it is the effect of the conduct rather than its nature which is of paramount importance in assessing a complaint of cruelty. Whether one spouse has been guilty of cruelty to the other is essentially a question of fact and previously decided cases have little, if any, value. The court should bear in mind the physical and mental condition of the parties as well as their social status, and should consider the impact of the personality and conduct of one spouse on the mind of the other, weighing all incidents and quarrels between the spouses from that point of view; further, the conduct alleged must be examined in the light of the complainant's capacity for endurance and the extent to which that capacity is known to the other spouse. Malevolent intention is not essential to cruelty but it is an important element where it exits."

19. In 24 American Jurisprudence 2d, the term "mental cruelty" has been defined as under:

"Mental Cruelty as a course of unprovoked conduct toward one's spouse which causes embarrassment, humiliation, and anguish so as to render the spouse's life miserable and unendurable. Plaintiff must show a course of conduct on the part of Defendant which so endangers the physical or mental health of Plaintiff as to render continued cohabitation unsafe or improper, although Plaintiff need not establish actual instances of physical abuse. "

15. In Vishwanath Sitram Agarwal Vs. San. Sarle Vishwanath Agarwal, 2012 (7) SCC 288, Supreme Court considered various earlier decisions with regard to meaning of term 'cruelty'. Their Lordships observed as follows in paragraphs 22 to 32:-

22.The expression "cruelty" has an inseparable nexus with human conduct or human behaviour. It is always dependent upon the social strata or the milieu to which the parties belong, their ways of life, relationship, temperaments and emotions that have been conditioned by their social status.

23. In Sirajmohmedkhan Janmohamadkhan v. Hafizunnisa Yasinkhan [(1981) 4 SCC 250 : 1981 SCC (Cri) 829] , a two-Judge Bench approved the concept of legal cruelty as expounded inPancho v. Ram Prasad [AIR 1956 All 41] wherein it was stated thus: (Pancho case [AIR 1956 All 41] , AIR p. 43, para 3)

"3. ... Conception of legal cruelty undergoes changes according to the changes and advancement of social concept and standards of living. With the advancement of our social conceptions, this feature has obtained legislative recognition that a second marriage is a sufficient ground for separate residence and separate maintenance. Moreover, to establish legal cruelty, it is not necessary that physical violence should be used.

Continuous ill-treatment, cessation of marital intercourse, studied neglect, indifference on the part of the husband, and an assertion on the part of the husband that the wife is unchaste are all factors which may undermine the health of a wife."

It is apt to note here that the said observations were made while dealing with the Hindu Married Women's Right to Separate Residence and Maintenance Act (19 of 1946). This Court, after reproducing the passage, has observed that the learned Judge has put his finger on the correct aspect and object of mental cruelty.

24. In Shobha Rani v. Madhukar Reddi [(1988) 1 SCC 105 : 1988 SCC (Cri) 60] , while dealing with "cruelty" under Section 13(1)(i-a) of the Act, this Court observed that the said provision does not define "cruelty" and the same could not be defined. "Cruelty" may be mental or physical, intentional or unintentional. If it is physical, the court will have no problem to determine it. It is a question of fact and degree. If it is mental, the problem presents difficulty. Thereafter, the Bench proceeded to state as follows: (SCC p. 108, para 4)

"4. ... First, the enquiry must begin as to the nature of the cruel treatment. Second, the impact of such treatment on the mind of the spouse. Whether it caused reasonable apprehension that it would be harmful or injurious to live with the other. Ultimately, it is a matter of inference to be drawn by taking into account the nature of the conduct and its effect on the complaining spouse. There may, however, be cases where the conduct complained of itself is bad enough and per se unlawful or illegal. Then the impact or the injurious effect on the other spouse need not be enquired into or considered. In such cases, the cruelty will be established if the conduct itself is proved or admitted."

25.After so stating, this Court observed inShobha Rani case[(1988) 1 SCC 105 : 1988 SCC (Cri) 60] about the marked change in life in modern times and the sea change in matrimonial duties and responsibilities. It has been observed that: (SCC p. 108, para 5)

"5. ... when a spouse makes a complaint about the treatment of cruelty by the partner in life or relations, the court should not search for standard in life. A set of facts stigmatised as cruelty in one case may not be so in another case. The cruelty alleged may largely depend upon the type of life the parties are accustomed to or their economic and social conditions. It may also depend upon their culture and human values to which they attach importance."

26. Their Lordships in Shobha Rani case [(1988) 1 SCC 105 : 1988 SCC (Cri) 60] referred to the observations made inSheldon v.Sheldon [1966 P 62 : (1966) 2 WLR 993 : (1966) 2 All ER 257 (CA)] wherein Lord Denning stated, "the categories of cruelty are not closed". Thereafter, the Bench proceeded to state thus: (Shobha Rani case [(1988) 1 SCC 105 : 1988 SCC (Cri) 60] , SCC p. 109, paras 5-6)

"5. ... Each case may be different. We deal with the conduct of human beings who are not generally similar. Among the human beings there is no limit to the kind of conduct which may constitute cruelty. New type of cruelty may crop up in any case depending upon the human behaviour, capacity or incapability to tolerate the conduct complained of. Such is the wonderful (sic) realm of cruelty.

6. These preliminary observations are intended to emphasise that the court in matrimonial cases is not concerned with ideals in family life. The court has only to understand the spouses concerned as nature made them, and consider their particular grievance. As Lord Reid observed in Gollinsv. Gollins [1964 AC 644 : (1963) 3 WLR 176 : (1963) 2 All ER 966 (HL)] : (All ER p. 972 G-H)

7. "... In matrimonial affairs we are not dealing with objective standards, it is not a matrimonial offence to fall below the standard of the reasonable man (or the reasonable woman). We are dealing with this man or this woman.'"

8. (emphasis in original)

9. 27. In V. Bhagat v. D. Bhagat [(1994) 1 SCC 337] , a two-Judge Bench referred to the amendment that had taken place in Sections 10 and 13(1)(i-a) after the (Hindu) Marriage Laws (Amendment) Act, 1976 and proceeded to hold that the earlier requirement that such cruelty has caused a reasonable apprehension in the mind of a spouse that it would be harmful or injurious for him/her to live with the other one is no longer the requirement. Thereafter, this Court proceeded to deal with what constitutes mental cruelty as contemplated in Section 13(1)(i-a) and observed that mental cruelty in the said provision can broadly be defined as that conduct which inflicts upon the other party such mental pain and suffering as would make it not possible for that party to live with the other. To put it differently, mental cruelty must be of such a nature that the parties cannot reasonably be expected to live together. The situation must be such that the wronged party cannot reasonably be asked to put up with such conduct and continue to live with the other party. It was further observed, while arriving at such conclusion, that regard must be had to the social status, educational level of the parties, the society they move in, the possibility or otherwise of the parties ever living together in case they are already living apart and all other relevant facts and circumstances. What is cruelty in one case may not amount to cruelty in another case and it has to be determined in each case keeping in view the facts and circumstances of that case. That apart, the accusations and allegations have to be scrutinised in the context in which they are made. Be it noted, in the said case, this Court quoted extensively from the allegations made in the written statement and the evidence brought on record and came to hold that the said allegations and counter-allegations were not in the realm of ordinary plea of defence and did amount to mental cruelty.

28. In Parveen Mehta v. Inderjit Mehta [(2002) 5 SCC 706 : AIR 2002 SC 2582] , it has been held that mental cruelty is a state of mind and feeling with one of the spouses due to behaviour or behavioural pattern by the other. Mental cruelty cannot be established by direct evidence and it is necessarily a matter of inference to be drawn from the facts and circumstances of the case. "A feeling of anguish, disappointment and frustration in one spouse caused by the conduct of the other can only be appreciated on assessing the attending facts and circumstances in which the two partners of matrimonial life have been living." (Parveen Mehta case[(2002) 5 SCC 706 : AIR 2002 SC 2582] , SCC p. 716, para 21) The facts and circumstances are to be assessed emerging from the evidence on record and thereafter, a fair inference has to be drawn whether the petitioner in the divorce petition has been subjected to mental cruelty due to the conduct of the other.

29. In Vijaykumar Ramchandra Bhate v. Neela Vijaykumar Bhate [(2003) 6 SCC 334 : AIR 2003 SC 2462] , it has been opined that a conscious and deliberate statement levelled with pungency and that too placed on record, through the written statement, cannot be so lightly ignored or brushed aside.

30. In A. Jayachandra v. Aneel Kaur [(2005) 2 SCC 22] , it has been ruled that the question of mental cruelty has to be considered in the light of the norms of marital ties of the particular society to which the parties belong, their social values, status and environment in which they live. If from the conduct of the spouse, it is established and/or an inference can legitimately be drawn that the treatment of the spouse is such that it causes an apprehension in the mind of the other spouse about his or her mental welfare, then the same would amount to cruelty. While dealing with the concept of mental cruelty, enquiry must begin as to the nature of cruel treatment and the impact of such treatment on the mind of the spouse. It has to be seen whether the conduct is such that no reasonable person would tolerate it.

31. In Vinita Saxena v. Pankaj Pandit [(2006) 3 SCC 778] , it has been ruled that as to what constitutes mental cruelty for the purposes of Section 13(1)(i-a) will not depend upon the numerical count of such incident or only on the continuous course of such conduct but one has to really go by the intensity, gravity and stigmatic impact of it when meted out even once and the deleterious effect of it on the mental attitude necessary for maintaining a conducive matrimonial home.

32. In Samar Ghosh v. Jaya Ghosh [(2007) 4 SCC 511] , this Court, after surveying the previous decisions and referring to the concept of cruelty, which includes mental cruelty, in English, American, Canadian and Australian cases, has observed that: (SCC pp. 545-46, paras 99-100)

"99. ... The human mind is extremely complex and human behaviour is equally complicated. Similarly human ingenuity has no bound, therefore, to assimilate the entire human behaviour in one definition is almost impossible. What is cruelty in one case may not amount to cruelty in the other case. The concept of cruelty differs from person to person depending upon his upbringing, level of sensitivity, educational, family and cultural background, financial position, social status, customs, traditions, religious beliefs, human values and their value system.

100. Apart from this, the concept of mental cruelty cannot remain static; it is bound to change with the passage of time, impact of modern culture through print and electronic media and value system, etc. etc. What may be mental cruelty now may not remain a mental cruelty after a passage of time or vice versa. There can never be any straitjacket formula or fixed parameters for determining mental cruelty in matrimonial matters. The prudent and appropriate way to adjudicate the case would be to evaluate it on its peculiar facts and circumstances…."

16. In Ravi Kumar Vs. Julmi Devi 2010 (4) SCC 476, following was observed in paragraphs 19 to 22:-

19.It may be true that there is no definition of cruelty under the said Act. Actually such a definition is not possible. In matrimonial relationship, cruelty would obviously mean absence of mutual respect and understanding between the spouses which embitters the relationship and often leads to various outbursts of behaviour which can be termed as cruelty. Sometime cruelty in a matrimonial relationship may take the form of violence, sometime it may take a different form. At times, it may be just an attitude or an approach. Silence in some situations may amount to cruelty.

20. Therefore, cruelty in matrimonial behaviour defies any definition and its categories can never be closed. Whether the husband is cruel to his wife or the wife is cruel to her husband has to be ascertained and judged by taking into account the entire facts and circumstances of the given case and not by any predetermined rigid formula. Cruelty in matrimonial cases can be of infinite variety--it may be subtle or even brutal and may be by gestures and words. That possibly explains why Lord Denning in Sheldon v.Sheldon [(1966) 2 WLR 993 : (1966) 2 All ER 257 (CA)] held that categories of cruelty in matrimonial cases are never closed.

21.This Court is reminded of what was said by Lord Reid inGollins v. Gollins[1964 AC 644 : (1963) 3 WLR 176 : (1963) 2 All ER 966 (HL)] about judging cruelty in matrimonial cases. The pertinent observations are: (AC p. 660)

"... In matrimonial cases we are not concerned with the reasonable man as we are in cases of negligence. We are dealing with this man and this woman and the fewer a priori assumptions we make about them the better. In cruelty cases one can hardly ever even start with a presumption that the parties are reasonable people, because it is hard to imagine any cruelty case ever arising if both the spouses think and behave as reasonable people."

The aforesaid passage was quoted with approval by this Court inN.G. Dastane (Dr.) v. S. Dastane [(1975) 2 SCC 326] .

22. About the changing perception of cruelty in matrimonial cases, this Court observed in Shobha Rani v. Madhukar Reddi[(1988) 1 SCC 105 : 1988 SCC (Cri) 60 : AIR 1988 SC 121] at AIR p. 123, para 5 of the report: (SCC p. 108, para 5)

"5. It will be necessary to bear in mind that there has been [a] marked change in the life around us. In matrimonial duties and responsibilities in particular, we find a sea change. They are of varying degrees from house to house or person to person. Therefore, when a spouse makes complaint about the treatment of cruelty by the partner in life or relations, the court should not search for standard in life. A set of facts stigmatised as cruelty in one case may not be so in another case. The cruelty alleged may largely depend upon the type of life the parties are accustomed to or their economic and social conditions. It may also depend upon their culture and human values to which they attach importance. We, the Judges and lawyers, therefore, should not import our own notions of life. We may not go in parallel with them. There may be a generation gap between us and the parties."

17. Reference in this regard may be made to the judgement in K. Srinivas Rao Vs. D. A. Deepa, 2013 (5) SCC 226 wherein following has been observed in paragraphs 10 and16:

"10. Under Section 13(1)(i-a) of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, a marriage can be dissolved by a decree of divorce on a petition presented either by the husband or the wife on the ground that the other party has, after solemnisation of the marriage, treated the petitioner with cruelty. In a series of judgments this Court has repeatedly stated the meaning and outlined the scope of the term "cruelty". Cruelty is evident where one spouse has so treated the other and manifested such feelings towards her or him as to cause in her or his mind reasonable apprehension that it will be harmful or injurious to live with the other spouse. Cruelty may be physical or mental.

16.Thus, to the instances illustrative of mental cruelty noted inSamar Ghosh[(2007) 4 SCC 511] , we could add a few more. Making unfounded indecent defamatory allegations against the spouse or his or her relatives in the pleadings, filing of complaints or issuing notices or news items which may have adverse impact on the business prospect or the job of the spouse and filing repeated false complaints and cases in the court against the spouse would, in the facts of a case, amount to causing mental cruelty to the other spouse."

18. Court in N.G. Dastane V. S. Dastane (1975) 2 SCC 326 considered the concept of 'mental cruelty' and observed as follows:

"The enquiry therefore has to be whether the conduct charges as cruelty is of such a character as to cause in the mind of the petitioner a reasonable apprehension that it will be harmful or injurious for him to live with the respondent. "

19. With regard to 'mental cruelty,' reference be made to the judgement in A. Jaya Chandra Vs. Aneel Kaur, 2005 (2) SCC 22. The aforesaid judgement has also been considered by a division bench in Smt. Sarita Devi (supra) and following has been observed in paragraph-26 of the judgement:

"26. In A. Jayachandra v. Aneel Kaur, (2005) 2 SCC 22, Court observed that conduct of spouse, if established, an inference can legitimately be drawn that treatment of spouse is such that it causes an apprehension in the mind of other spouse, about his or her mental welfare then this conduct amounts to cruelty. Court observed that when a petition for divorce on the ground of cruelty is considered, Court must bear in mind that the problems before it are those of human beings and psychological changes in a spouse's conduct have to be borne in mind before disposing of petition for divorce. Before a conduct can be called cruelty, it must touch a certain pitch of severity. Mere trivial irritations, quarrels between spouses, which happen in day-to-day married life, may also not amount to cruelty."

20. In K. Srinivas Rao Vs. D.A. Deepa (2013) 5 SCC 226, while dealing with the instances of 'mental cruelty,' Court opined that to the illustrations given in the case of Samar Ghosh vs. Jaya Ghosh (2007) 4 SCC 511, certain other illustrations could be added. We think it seemly to reproduce the observations:

"Making unfounded indecent defamatory allegations against the spouse or his or her relatives in the pleadings, filing of complaints or issuing notices or news items which may have adverse impact on the business prospect or the job of the spouse and filing repeated false complaints and cases in the court against the spouse would, in the facts of a case, amount to causing mental cruelty to the other spouse."

21. With the aid of meaning of the term "physical cruelty" and "mental cruelty" this Court has now to examine the issue involved in present appeal: Whether plaintiff-appellant was able to establish commission of 'cruelty' by Defendant-Respondent before Court below and findings to the contrary recorded by Court below are illegal, perverse and erroneous or not.

22. When plaint of divorce suit is examined to ascertain as to how allegations regarding commission of cruelty by respondent were pleased, this Court finds that same have been pleased in paragraphs 6 and 7 of plaint. The same are reproduced herein under for ready reference:

6. यह कि वादी की पत्नी प्रतिवादिनी वादी के मकान में ही रह रही है। और विगत तीन बर्षो से असका व्यवहार काफी खराब हो गया है और वह प्रतिवादिनी वादी के साथ बेवजह बगैर सिर पैर की बातों को लेकर वादी के साथ लडती झगडती है और विग्त तीन वर्षों से घर की शान्ति भंग कर दी है तथा अपने क्रूरता पूर्ण आचरण से वादी को मानसिक रूप से उत्पीडित करती रही है तथा साथ में पत्नी धर्म दायित्वों के बिपरीत अपने आचरण व व्यवहार द्वारा वादी की सुख शान्ति को समाप्त कर दिया है और जब कभी वादी उसे समझाने का प्रयास करता है तो प्रतिवादिनी अपने क्रूरता पूर्ण व्यवहार व आचरण से प्रतिक्षण वादी को उत्पीडित करती आ रही है। जिस कारण अब वादी प्रतिवादिनी के साथ एक साथ रहना सम्भव नहीं है।

7. यह कि वादी के मकान में ही प्रतिवादिनी रहती है और विग्त तीन वर्षों से ज्यादा से पत्नी धर्म के दायित्वों का निर्वहन नहीं करती है फिर भी वादी अपने पतिधर्म के दायित्वों को निर्वहन करता आ रहा है और उसे किसी प्रकार की तकलीफ नहीं देता है इसके बावजूद प्रतिवादिनी वादी को हर तरह से असत्य कथनों द्वारा समाज में अपमानित करती आ रही है कि वादी उसका भरण पोषण नहीं करता है उसको मारता पीटता है और खाना पानी नहीं देता है।

That the wife of plaintiff herein called as defendant is staying in the house of plaintiff only and her behaviour has worsened since last three years as defendant picks up quarrel and fights with plaintiff without any rhyme of reason thereby disrupting the peace and tranquillity of the house since last three years. She had been causing mental harassment to the plaintiff by her cruel behaviour and contrary to her duties as a wife, she has destroyed the peace and tranquility of plaintiff by her conduct and behaviour. Whenever plaintiff tries to reason with her, she causes harassment to the plaintiff by her cruel and traumatic behaviour due to which it has become impossible for plaintiff to cohabit with the defendant.

That the defendant resides in the house of plaintiff only and has failed to discharge obligations of a wife while on the other hand plaintiff continues to discharge dutied of a husband and is not a source of any discomfort to her. Despite this, defendant continues to insult the plaintiff in society by cooking up by all kinds of false narratives like plaintiff refuses to provide maintenance to her, beats her and refuses to provide food as well as nourishment to her.
(English translation by Court)

23. When allegations made in paragraphs 6 and 7 of plaint are examined, it is apparent that they do not spell out specific instances of 'cruelty' but only allegations of 'cruelty'. We may point out that a single instance in isolation is not sufficient for dissolution of marriage on the ground of 'cruelty' as held by Apex Court in Neelam Kumar Vs. Dayarani, 2010 (13) SCC 298.

24. Law on the subject now stands crystallized. Plaintiff in order to succeed in a suit for divorce on the ground of commission of 'cruelty' by respondent must plead specific instances of 'cruelty' or make such allegations of 'cruelty' which if considered cumulatively, lead to a reasonable apprehension in the mind of other that it would be harmful or injurious to reside with other spouse. Therefore, what has to be examined by Court in the present case is ''whether averments made in paragraphs 6 and 7 of plaint satisfy the aforesaid test''.

25. Upon examination of averments made in paragraphs 6 and 7 of plaint, it cannot be said that allegations of 'cruelty' alleged by appellant when considered cumulatively lead to the inescapable conclusion that they cannot cause reasonable apprehension in mind of appellant that it would be harmful or injurious to reside with respondent.

26. From perusal of plaint of divorce suit filed by appellant it is apparent that divorce was instituted vide plaint dated 21.03.2009. Therefore, as per mandate of Section 13 (1) (i-b) of Act, 1955, appellant was required to plead that respondent has deserted plaintiff for a continuous period of not less than two years immediately preceding the presentation of the petition. What has been pleaded in paragraph 8 of the plaint is to the following effect :

8. यह कि जब वादी ने दिनांक 10–11–08 को प्रतिवादिनी को समझाया कि वह उसे मानसिक व सामाजिक रूप से अपने गलत आचरण व व्यवहार से अपमानित व उत्पीडित न करें। उसने वादी के विरूद्ध मिथ्या आरोप लगाते हुए धमकाया कि अब वह उसके साथ नहीं रहेगी और उससे भरण पोषण लेकर अलग रहेगी और अपना स्वतन्त्र जीवन व्यतीत करेगी और पत्पश्चात उसने असत्य कथनों के आधार पर अर्न्तगत धारा 125 दं0 प्र0 संहिता के तहत तीनों वालिग बच्चों के फर्जी नाम व नाबालिग उम्र दर्शाकर इस न्यायालय में भरन पोषण दाखिल किया है।

That when plaintiff counselled her to not harass him mentally and stop insulting him in front of society by her wrong conduct and behaviout, she threatened him while levelling false and mythical charges that she shall no longer cohabit with him and shall reside separately and live an independent life after taking maintenance from him. Thereafter she filed an application under Section 125 Cr.P.C. before this Court for maintenance mentioning forged names of all three kids who have attained majority showing them as minors and on the basis of false statements.
(English Translation by Court)

27. Plain reading of paragraph 8 of plaint shows that appellant alleged that respondent has deserted appellant on 10.11.2008 from when Appellant has started residing separately from respondent. The suit has been instituted vide plaint dated 21.3.2009. Therefore, the pre-requisite for grant of divorce on ground of desertion i.e. expirty of two years from the date of desertion, has to be in existence on the date of institution of suit has not been established by appellant. In view of above, finding recorded by Court below that appellant has failed to establish desertion on part of respondent for a continuous period of two years prior to institution of suit cannot be said to be illegal, perverse or erroneous.

28. In view of discussions made herein above, it cannot be said that findings recorded by Court below that appellant has failed to establish commission of 'cruelty' upon him by respondent and also 'desertion' are illegal, perverse or erroneous. As appellant has failed to prove 'cruelty' and desertion on the part of respondent on the basis of which he prayed for a decree of divorce, Court below has rightly dismissed the suit of appellant. Consequently, this appeal fails and is liable to be dismissed. It is accordingly dismissed. Costs made easy.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. Heard Sri S.K. Mehrotra, learned Standing Counsel for the State. None appeared for the respondents even in the revised call.

2. This appeal, at the behest of the State, has been filed against the judgment and order dated 22.11.1988 passed by Civil Judge, Bijnor in original Suit No. 222 of 1986. The appeal challenges the arbitral award as well as confirmation of the same by the Court below.

3. The parties are referred to as State/ Appellant and Contractor /Respondent.

4. The facts for the purpose of our decision as they are culled out from the record that parties entered into the contract but there were certain disputes regarding certain items and the matter was referred to the Arbitrator who passed the award in favour of the present respondents. Objections were raised by the appellant herein with several contentions that were dealt with by the first Court and rejected the objections and made the award Rule of the Court vide order dated 22.11.1988 which is challenged before this Court. The record was missed and the appellant was directed to reconstruct the same which has been reconstructed. Rest of the documents are filed along with the memo of appeal.'

5. It is submitted that the contracted rate for work was Rs. 8.49 per cubic metre and not Rs. 18 per cubic meter as awarded by the Arbitrator.

6. It is submitted that the diesel was supplied by the Department despite that the Arbitrator has awarded the amount for diesel and though the work was performed at Roorkee and payment was made at Haridwar, the Court below had no jurisdiction to pass orders. The District Bijnor where the Collectorate is situated had no jurisdiction to decide this matter as the contract was entered into at Rorkee. The award was made at Aligarh.

7. The Apex Court in FCI Versus Joginderpal Mohinderpal, (1989) 2 SCC 347 has held that the objection against an arbitral award can be raised only if it falls within the parameters fixed by the provisions of Section 14, and 33 of the Act, 1940. If the award satisfies that it is based on equity, fair play, principles of natural justice and established practice and procedure then the award should not be interfered. In proceedings of arbitration there must be adherence to justice, equity, law and fair play in action. The proceedings must adhere to the principles of natural justice and must be in consonance with such practice and procedure which will lead to a proper resolution of the dispute and create confidence of the people for whose benefit these processes are resorted to FCI Versus Joginderpal Mohinderpal (supra).

8. Sections 30 and 33 of the Act, 1940 read as follows :

"Section 30. Grounds for setting aside award.- An award shall not be set aside except on one or more of the following grounds, namely:-

(a) that an arbitrator or umpire has misconducted himself or the proceedings

(b) that an award has been made after the issue of an order by the Court superseding the arbitration or after arbitration proceedings have become invalid under section 35;

(c) that an award has been improperly procured or is other- wise invalid."

"33. Arbitration agreement or award to be contested by application.- Any party to an arbitration agreement or any person claiming under him desiring to challenge the existence or validity of an arbitration agreement or an award or to have the effect of either determined shall apply to the Court and the Court shall decide the question on affidavits: Provided that where the Court deems it just and expedient, it may set down the application for hearing on other evidence also, and it may pass such orders for discovery and particulars as it may do in a suit."

9. The judicial review of an award has been circumscribed by Apex Court in FCI Versus Joginderpal Mohinderpal (supra) wherein it has been held that arbitration as a mode for settlement of disputes between the parties, has a tradition in India. It has a social purpose to be fulfilled today,. It has a great urgency today when there has been an explosion of litigation in the courts of law established by the sovereign power . It is, therefore, the function of Courts of Law to oversee that the arbitrators act within the norms of justice. Once they do so and the award is clear, just and fair, the Courts should, as far as possible, give effect to the award of the parties and make the parties compel to adhere to and obey the decision of their chosen adjudicator. It is in this perspective that one should view the scope and limit of correction by the court of an award made by the arbitrator.

10. In backdrop of this it will have to be decided as to whether can it be said that the decision of arbitrator upheld by the Court below is bad and was wrongly made the Rule of Court as per Arbitration Act, 1940.

11. While perusing the award, it is found that the arbitrator considered each item threadbare and has given his findings. Can it be said that arbitral award does not fulfill the contours of principles which are required to be followed by an arbitrator under the Act, 1940.

12. While going through the award, it is clear that while considering all the claim, the Arbitrator has given cogent reasons. The cement was not given in time. The demand of the claimant has been considered on the economical as well as that which can be granted as the State has objected to the grant of any amount under the provisions of Arbitration Act, 1940. The objection taken by the State were only general and no specific objection item wise was taken and nor was proved by evidence that contractor was not entitled to the damages and interest. They had filed their objection vide Application NO. 654 of 1998.

Judgments on Arbitration Act, 1940

13. (I) Steel Authority of India Ltd Vs. Gupta Brothers Steel Tubes Ltd. (2009) 10 SCC 63 .

"..... The courts below have currently held that the arbitrator has gone into the issues of facts thoroughly, applied his mind to the pleadings, evidence before him and the terms of the contract and then passed duly considered award and no ground for setting aside the award within the four corners of Section 30 has been made out..... In what we have already discussed above, the view of the arbitrator in this regard is a possible view. Consequently, appeal has no merit and costs."

(ii) Sumitomo Heavy Industries Ltd Vs. Oil & Natural Gas Commission of India (2010) 11 SCC 296

".... award was not only a plausible one but a well reasoned award. In the circumstance the interference by the High Court was not called for. In that view of the matter we allow this appeal and set aside the judgment of the learned Single Judge, as well as that of the Division Bench.…"

(ii) Rashtriya Ispat Nigam Ltd. Vs. M/s Dewan Chand Ram Saran reported as 2012 (5) SCC 306

".... There was no reason for the High Court to interfere in the view taken by the arbitrator which was based, in any case on a possible interpretation of clause 9.3. The learned single Judge as well as the Division Bench clearly erred in interfering with the award rendered by the arbitrator. Both those judgments will, therefore, have to be set-aside. Accordingly, the appeal is allowed and the impugned judgments of the learned Single Judge as well as of the Division Bench, are hereby set aside.…"

(iii) Reported as 2011 (5) SCC 758, in the case of J.G. Engineers Pvt. Ltd. Vs./ Union of India & Anr.

(iv) First Appeal No.137 of 1992, in the case of State of Gujarat & Anr. Vs. Nitin Construction Company, judgment dated 22.03.2013 of the Hon'ble High Court of Gujarat.

(v) First Appeal No.3688 of 2012, in the case of State of Gujarat Vs. Vijay Mistri Construction & Anr., judgment dated 22.03.2013 of the Hon'ble High Court of Gujarat.

(vi) Reported as 2000 (4) GLR 3652 in the case of Oil & Natural Gas Corporation Limited V/s. Essar Steel Limited, (Paragraph-8).

(vii) Reported in 1999(9)SCC 449, Arosan Enterprises Limited V/s. Union of India & Anr.

(viii) Reported in 2003 (8) SCC 4, Continental Construction Limited V/s. State of U.P., Assam State Electricity Board V. Buildworth (P) Ltd., AIR 2017,Gujarat Water Supply & Sewerage Board V. Unique Erectors (Gujarat) (P) Ltd., 1989 (1) SCC 532: Irrigation Department, State Of Orissa V. G.C. Roy, 1992 1 SCC 508 : Jugal Kishore Prabhatilal Sharma V. Vijayendra Prabhatilal Sharma, AIR 1993 SC 864 and Smt. Aruna Kumari V. Government Of Andhra Pradesh, AIR 1988 SC 873.

(ix) Rajasthan State Road Transport Corporation Vs. Indag Rubber Ltd, 2006 (7) SCC 700 wherein it has been held that the award can be set aside on the ground of misconduct if relevant documents are not considered by the Arbitrator.

14. Therefore in light of decisions of the Apex Court and the discussion herein above, the scope of interference with the findings of Arbitrator and confirmed by the District Judge, on the basis of principles would not permit to interfere with the findings, as settled in view of decision in case of Bharat Coking Coal Ltd Vs. Annapurna Construction reported in 2003 (8) SCC 154.

15. As far as ground of jurisdiction is concerned, the learned Judge has given elaborate reasons. I do not think that there is any perversity in the same. Hence, the said submission cannot be granted to upturn the arbitral award.

16. As far as the rate is concerned, for that also reasons are assigned by the learned Judge. Hence, in absence of the parameter fixed for interference by this Court in appeal, I do not find any reason to interfere.

17. Learned Standing Counsel has submitted that in the alternative, if the award is not set aside, the interest awarded by the Tribunal should be interfered with as has been done by this Court in First Appeal From Order No. 714 of 2005 (State of U.P. and others Vs. J.M. Construction Company) decided on 11.4.2019.

18. Recently, the Apex Court in K.Marappan (Dead) Versus Superintending Engineer T.B.P.H.L.C. Circle Anantapur, 2019 JX(SC) 391 and in Raveechee and Company Versus Union of India, AIR 2018 SC 3109 has interpreted the role of the Courts while hearing matters under the arbitration Act .The judgments go to show that pendente lite interest will depend upon several factors such as ; phraseology used in the agreement clauses conferring power relating to arbitration, nature of claim and dispute referred to arbitrator, and on what items power to award interest has been taken away and for which period. The Court observed:

"34. Thus our answer to the reference is that if contract expressly bars award of interest pendente lite, the same cannot be awarded by the Arbitrator. And that the bar to award interest on delayed payment by itself will not be readily inferred as express bar to award interest pendente lite by the Arbitral Tribunal, as ouster of power of the arbitrator has to be considered on various relevant aspects referred to in the decisions of this Court , it would be for the Division Bench to consider the case on merits."

19. Further, this Court considered an identical clause in the contract in the case of Ambica Constructions v. Union of India,(2017) 14 SCC 323, wherein it observed that the Clause of the GCC did not bar the arbitrator from awarding interest pendente lite and affirmed the award passed by the arbitrator. The three Judge Bench of this Court held that the contention raised by the Union of India based on the Clause of the GCC that the arbitrator could not award interest pendente lite was not a valid contention and the arbitrator was completely justified in granting interest pendente lite. Relying on the three Judge Bench judgment in Union of India v. Ambica Construction (supra) and in Irrigation Deptt., State of Orissa (supra), this Court held that the bar to award interest on the amounts payable under the contract would not be sufficient to deny the payment of interest pendente lite.

20. The interest aspect is looked into by the undersigned in First Appeal No. 3256 of 2001 (OIL and Natural Gas Corporation Limited Versus Birla Techneftegas Exploration Limited decided on 7.4.2016 by the High Court of Gujarat wherein the following observations are relevant and are extracted herein below:-

".....28. Therefore in light of decisions of the Apex Court and the discussion hereinabove, the scope of interference with the findings of Arbitrators and confirmed by the District Judge, on the basis of principles, we are not inclined to interfere with the findings, as settled in view of decision in case of Bharat Coking Coal Ltd Vs. Annapurna Construction reported in 2003 (8) SCC 154.

29. The award so far as interest is concerned, reads as follows:

"With regard to contention (a) above, it is contended by the respondent that increase in HSD is not by operation of law but on account of the administrative orders and, therefore, the claim is not maintainable under Article 23.1 which deals only with variation in operating costs on account of change in or enactment of law in India or interpretation of existing law in India after the date of opening of price bid. To examine this contention it is essential to refer to the provisions of Essential Commodities Act, 1955. Section 2 of this Act in subsection (a) defines "Essential Commodity". In sub clause (viii) of clause (a) of section 2, petroleum and petroleum products have also been included as "Essential Commodities Act, Central Government has power to regulate and control the prices at which an essential commodity may be bought or sold. Therefore, increase in prices of HSD being a petroleum product is pursuant to the exercise of powers given to the Central Government under Section 3 of the Essential Commodities Act and is therefore, on account of a change in law."

The Tribunal has relied on the decisions of the Privy Counsel and Apex Court and also relied upon the affidavit of appellant filed before the Tribunal before the Award passed.

The awarding of interest cannot be said to be in any manner, warranting any interference, however, the factum of interest, in our view may be considered, which in our view is on higher side looking to prevalent practice at the relevant time. The quantum of interest, if reduced to 9% from 15%, the same would meet with ends of justice. As a result thereof, we modified the same and factum of interest is ordered to be reduced from 15% to 9%. The rest of the award is not interfered in any manner."

21. Hence, the interest shall be payable at the rate of 9% and not at 12% as that was not the rate fixed. The appeal is partly allowed. The arbitral award and the order of the Court below shall stand modified to the aforesaid extent.

22. Interim relief granted by this Court on 8.12.1989 shall stand vacated forthwith. The amounts if yet not deposited, the same be deposited by recalculating the appellants as expeditiously as possible with the interest accrued not later than 12 weeks from today and, if the amount has already been deposited, the respondent shall refund the amount to the State namely 3% of the award made within three months from today failing which the State shall be at liberty to take action as per the provisions of law as they have failed to appear when the matter is being taken up.

23. This Court is thankful to Sri S.K. Mehrotra, learned Standing Counsel appearing for the State for restructuring the matter and ably assisting the Court. However, no earlier orders has been placed on record of this Court.

4. The First Appeal From Order No. 847 is preferred by the United India Insurance Company Ltd. challenging the order/award dated 10.08.2006, mainly on two grounds which are as follows:-

(i) The quantum of compensation awarded in the judgment and order/award dated 10.08.2006 is to be set aside and modify the same in terms of the Schedule 2 under Section 163(A) of the Motor Vehicle Act, 1988, wherein in absence of any proof of income of the deceased as per the Scheduled, the income shall be determined as Rs. 15,000 per annum, whereas the Tribunal in its award has determined the income @ of 6,000/- per month which comes to Rs. 72,000/- per annum.

(ii) There is no direct evidence of proof of income of the deceased Sri Gulab Chandra

5. Learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that the finding in the award pertaining to determination of income i.e. Rs. 6,000 per month, which comes to Rs. 72,000/- per annum is in pursuance of the evidence adduced by the claimant i.e. Insurance Premium Receipt namely Pradarshak 30 (ga), Telephone Bills as Pradarshak 31 (ga), Copy of the Motor Cycle Certificate as Pradarshak 26 (ga), Licence for the sale of Urea as Pradarshak 32 (ga)/3 and the receipts of purchase of Urea from Devendra Kumar Mahadev Prasad amounting to Rs. 10,00,000/- as Pradarshak 32 (ga)/1 to 32 (ga)/35. All these documents which have been enclosed was uptill March 2003, whereas the accident took place on 09.10.2003 in which Sri Gulab Chandra had died. The licence issued in favour of the deceased for sale of Urea was for the period since 15.07.2000 to 31.03.2003. Learned counsel for the appellant has further submitted that since 01.03.2003, till the date of death of Sri Gulab Chandra i.e. on 09.10.2003, but no evidence was adduced by the claimants that after March 2003, whether deceased was employed or how he was earning his livelihood and there is nothing on the record to show the monthly income of deceased.

6. Learned counsel has further contended that at the most as per the judgment of the Apex Court, if there is no proof of income then the calculation should be treated as Rs. 3,000/- per month which comes to Rs. 36,000/- per annum.

7. On the other hand, learned counsel for the claimant has contended as follows:-

(i) There is no mistake in determining the income of the deceased as Rs. 6,000/- per month mainly for the reason that the Apex Court in catena of decisions have already held that minimum income of a person who is unemployed or where there is no direct proof of income shall not be less than 6,000/- per month.

(ii) The evidence which is on the record clearly establishes that the deceased was paying the insurance of Rs. 1,600/- approximately, since 25.03.1987, that was much prior to his death.

(iii) There is no illegality or perversity in appreciation of the evidence adduced before the Tribunal while calculating the loss to the claimants @ Rs. 6,000/- per month.

8. After perusal of the records, it is found that the Tribunal in its judgment/award dated 10.08.2006 has determined the monthly income of the deceasesd as Rs. 6,000/- per month i.e. Rs. 72,000/- per annum and after deducting one-third against the personal expenses of the deceased which comes to Rs. 24,000/- per annum and the compensation was calculated by the Tribunal as Rs. 48,000/- per annum.

FIRST APPEAL FROM ORDER NO. 256 OF 2007 filed by Owner

9. The First Appeal from Orders No. 256 of 2007 is preferred by the owner of the vehicles with a delay of few months but the same has already been condoned by this Court vide its order dated 30.07.2017. In the present First Appeal From Order an application along with an affidavit under Order 41 Rule 27 C.P.C. was also filed enclosing the driving licence of the driver Rakesh Kumar Yadav who was driving the vehicle at the time of the accident. The reason indicated in the affidavit filed along with the application under Order 41 Rule 27 C.P.C for leading additional evidence before this Court that the appellant-owner of the vehicle had never ever received the summons from the Tribunal and the award has been given ex-parte without providing any opportunity to defend before the Tribunal. In support of the averment made, learned counsel has drawn the attention of this Court towards the lower Court record pertaining to order-sheets of different dates dated 27.09.2004, 12.04.2005, 11.05.2005, 13.07.2005, 05.04.2005 and 23.04.2005.

10. It has further been contended that the Tribunal suddenly passed an order in absence of any thing on record that the claimant had taken any step and notice was sent by the registered post and proceeded ex-parte. Hence, the appellant has no other option except to move an application under Order 41 Rule 27 C.P.C. before this Court.

11. Learned counsel representing owner/appellant has contended that in the award the finding by the Tribunal for holding the licence invalid by giving the finding that on the licence filed by the complainant the name of the driver shown different. The said finding in the award has been given without providing any opportunity to the owner/appellant and solely relied upon the licence filed by the claimants. Whereas, the licence in favour of the driver of the vehicle is valid licence and in support reliance has been placed on the photocopy of the licence filed along with an affidavit in support of application under Order 41 Rule 27 of C.P.C. where only the name i.e. Sri Rakesh Kumar Yadav is written.

12. It has further been contended that in the finding that there is no fitness certificate of the vehicle on the record for plying the vehicle is perverse as per sub-Section 1 of Section 149 of Motor Vehicle Act, 1988 which provides defence available to the Insurance Company for denying the payment but in defence the requirement of fitness certificate is not available with the Insurance Company.

13. Learned Counsel further contended that as per the law laid down by this Court and the Supreme Court, if the vehicle is for private use and not for commercial then fitness certificate is not required.

14. At this stage, this Court asked the learned counsel representing the Insurance Company whether Insurance Company would like to file objection against the applicant under Order 41 Rule 27 C.P.C. Learned counsel for the Insurance company has given a statement on the basis of instruction that there is no need to file any objection against the application for the reason licence enclosed along with application has already been verified from the Regional Transport Officer (hereinafter referred to as "R.T.O."), Kalayan Mumbai and as per the report of the R.T.O., Kalayan, Mumbai, licence was issued in the name of Sri Rakesh Kumar Yadav and the licence number filed before the Tribunal by the claimant and the owner before this Court is the same.

15. Learned Counsel for the Insurance Company was unable to dispute the contention raised by the learned counsel for the owner/appellant pertaining to the requirement of fitness certificate of the vehicle.

FIRST APPEAL FROM ORDER NO. 678 of 2008 filed by the Claimant

16. The First Appeal From Order is preferred by the claimant with a delay of about two years and neither the delay has been condoned nor the First Appeal From Order has been admitted till date. After examining the affidavits filed along with delay condonation application the reasons indicated in the affidavit are satisfactory, hence, the delay is condoned and the Appeal is admitted.

17. The First Appeal From Order has been preferred by the claimant mainly on the following grounds, which are as under:-

"(i) The multiplier of 10 has wrongly been made by the Tribunal, it shall be 14 as per the Judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Sarla Verma (Smt) and others Vs. Delhi Transoport Corporation and another, (2009) 6 SCC, 121.

(ii) Claim for future prospect as per Para 61(iv) and (viii) of the National Insurance Company Vs. Prannay Sethi (2017), 16 SCC, 680.

18. Learned counsel for the claimants has further submitted that the evidence which has been adduced before the Tribunal corroborate with the determination of income at Rs. 6,000/- per month and there is no illegality in the same. He further submitted that as per the determination in the case of National Insurance Company Vs. Prannay Sethi, (2017), 16 SCC, 680 the claimants are entitled for additional 25 percent as the age of the deceased was 43 years.

19. Learned counsel for the claimant has further drawn the attention of this Court that for consortium and funeral expenses, the Tribunal has granted Rs. 2,000/- each, which is not as per the determination provided by the Apex Court in Para 61(iv) and (viii) of the case of National Insurance Company Ltd. Vs. Prannay Sethi, (2017), 16 SCC, 680, wherein the Apex Court has held that loss of estate, loss of consortium and funeral expenses should be Rs. 15,000/-, Rs. 14,000/- and Rs. 15,000/- respectively.

20. In support of the same, the learned counsel for the claimant has further relied the judgment of Chameli Devi and Others Vs. Jivrail Mian and Others, (2019) (4) T.A.C. 724 (S.C.), and wherein the benefit as per the case of National Insurance Company Ltd. Vs. Prannay Sethi, (2017), 16 SCC, 680 was given.

21. On the contrary, learned Counsel representing the Insurance Company has submitted that in absence of any proof of income the claimant is entitled for compensation as per Schedule II under Section 163 (A) of Motor Vehicle Act, 1988 and at the most Rs. 3,000/- per month has been laid down by the Apex

Court and not more than that. An addition of 25 percent is admissible in the cases where there is direct proof of established income and in the present case there is no direct proof of established income of the deceased and no evidence was adduced by the claimants before the Tribunal. Hence the claimants are not entitled for an addition of 25 percent. At the same time learned counsel representing Insurance Company has very fairly conceded that as far as loss of estate and loss of consortium and funeral expenses are concerned, he has no objection if the same shall be given as per the determination given by the Apex Court in the case of National Insurance Company Ltd. Vs. Prannay Sethi (Supra).

22. Learned counsel for the Insurance-company has opposed the applicability of judgment in the case of Chameli Devi and Others Vs. Jivrail Mian and Others, (2019) (4) T.A.C. 724 (S.C.) in the present case for the reason that the deceased in case (Supra) was a carpenter and self-employed, whereas in the present case no evidence was adduced before the Tribunal that after March 2003, the deceased was earning and hence the determination in the case ofChameli Devi and Others Vs. Jivrail Mian and Others, 2019 (4) T.A.C. 724 (S.C.) is per incuriam and not applicable.

23. In reply the learned counsel for the claimant has submitted that in Chameli Devi case, the deceased expired in the year 2001 and the Apex Court had considered the per day wages of an employees as Rs. 200/- meaning hereby in the case of Chameli Devi and Others Vs. Jivrail Mian and Others, (2019) (4) T.A.C. 724 (S.C.), there was no proof of established income.

24. It has further been contended by the learned counsel for the claimant/appellant that multiplier should be of 14 and in support thereto the reliance has been placed on the judgment in the case of Sarla Verma (smt) and Others Vs. Delhi Transport Corporation And Another (2009) 6 SCC, 121 . The Apex Court has provided a chart of multiplier according to the age of the deceased and as per the chart the claimants are entitled for the multiplier of 14 as the age of the deceased was 43 years and the same was not disputed by the learned Counsel representing the Insurance Company.

25. After hearing the submissions made by learned counsels for all the respective parties representing the Insurance Company, the owner of the vehicle, the claimant and after examining the lower Court records, the submission advanced by the learned counsel representing the Insurance Company that income which has been determined in the award is against the statutory provision i.e. Schedule II under Section 163(A) of the Motor Vehicle Act, 1988 and against the judgment of the Apex Court, wherein it has been provided that in absence of any proof of income, the income should be Rs. 3,000/- per month which comes to Rs. 36,000/- per annum and hence the award dated 10.08.2006 is to be set aside and modified to that extent, the said contention is not acceptable for the following reasons:-

26. Firstly, the Apex Court in the case of Chameli Devi (Supra) enhanced the compensation as assessed by the Tribunal as Rs. 3,000 per month to Rs. 5,000/- per month. The Apex Court assessing the income as Rs. 200/- per day being a carpenter. The relevant extract of judgment in the case of Chameli Devi (Supra) is reproduced below:-

Para (ii):- This appeal has been filed for enhancement of compensation. The Tribunal assessed the income of the deceased at Rs. 1,250/- per month but since no positive proof of income was led, the income of Rs. 15,000/- per annum was taken as notional income. This obviously is not a correct position of law. The High Court accepted the income at Rs. 3,000/- per month. According to us, the income assessed by the High Court is on the lower side. The accident happened on 2nd January, 2001. The Tribunal and the High Court held that no proof of income has been produced to show that the deceased was alleged to be a carpenter. We fail to understand what proof can lead except to lead oral evidence.

Para (iii):- Keeping in view the fact that the accident took place in 2001 and the deceased was a carpenter, it would not be unjustified to assess his income at Rs. 200/- per day. It is true that carpenter may not get work every day, hence, we assess the income at Rs. 5,000/- per month. Adding 40% for future prospects i.e. Rs. 2,000/-, the total income works out to Rs. 7,000/- Deducting 1/5th for personal expenses, keeping in view a large number of dependents, the datum figure comes out to Rs. 5,600/- per month or Rs. 67,200/- per year. Applying multiplier of 16, the compensation works out to Rs. 10,75,200/- . Rs. 70,000/- is added towards other non-conventional heads as laid down in National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Pranay Sethi & Ors, (2017) 16 S.C.C. : 20117 (4) T.A.C. 673. The total compensation comes out to Rs. 11,45,200/-

27. Secondly, as per the evidence adduced the Tribunal has rightly assessed the income of the deceased as Rs. 6,000/- per month against the claimed income of Rs. 8,000/- per month. The evidence which is on the record i.e. Insurance premium receipts namely Pradarshk 30 (ga) clearly establishes that the deceased was paying the insurance of Rs. 1,600/- approximately since 25.03.1987 i.e. much prior to his death and the period of licence for running a Urea shop since 15.07.2002 to 31.3.2003.

28. Under these circumstances, this Court does not find any reason to interfere in the income of the deceased assessed by the Tribunal and in the light of the judgment in the case of Chameli Devi (Supra), the Tribunal has rightly assessed the income of the deceased.

29. The submission raised by the learned counsel for the claimant for payment of additional 25 per cent for future prospect, loss of consortium and funeral expenses as per the full Bench decision of Apex Court in the case of Prannay Sethi (Supra), wherein the Apex Court after the analysis, the conclusion is in para 61(iv) and (viii) of the judgment. The relevant portion which is applicable in the present case is reproduced below:-

"(iv) In case the deceases was self-employed or on a fixed salary, an addition of 40% of the established income should be the warrant where the deceased was below the age of 40 years. An addition of 25% where the deceased was between the age of 40 to 50 years and 10% where the deceased was between the age of 50 to 60 years should be regarded as the necessary method of computation. The established income means the income minus the tax component.

(viii) Reasonable figures on conventional heads, namely loss of estate, loss of consortium and funeral expenses should be Rs. 15,000/-, Rs. 40,000/- and

Rs. 15,000/- respectively. The aforesaid amounts should be enhanced at the rate of 10% in the every three years."

30. Similarly, the Apex Court in the case of Chameli Devi (Supra) has given the benefit as per the judgment in case of National Insurance Company Ltd. Vs. Prannay Sethi (Supra),. After going through the judgment of the Apex Court the submission raised in pursuance thereof and the learned counsel representing the Insurance Company has not disputed the same and hence as per the law laid down by the Apex Court the claimants are also entitled for the same benefit.

31. The contention of the learned counsel representing the Insurance Company that the judgments cited by the learned counsel representing the claimants in the case of Chameli Devi and Others Vs. Jivrail Mian and Others (Supra) is per incuriam.

32. The said submission of the learned counsel representing the Insurance Company is not acceptable for the reason that in the case of Chameli Devi and Others Vs. Jivrail Mian and Others (Supra), the Apex Court has given the benefit of National Insurance Company Ltd. Vs. Prannay Sethi (Supra), and the applicability of the Prannay Sethi (Supra) case is not disputed by the learned counsel representing the Insurance Company.

33. If the contention of learned counsel representing the Insurance Company is accepted by this Court then same would be in contravention of the law laid down by the Apex Court in the case of South Central Employees Cooperative Credit Society Employees Union Vs. Yashodabai And Others, (2015) 2 SCC, 727, wherein it has been held that if the High Courts or Subordinate Courts took a different view, there would be total chaos reason being there would be no finality to any order passed by the Apex Court. The High Courts and the Subordinate Courts must follow the decision of the Apex Court unless it is distinguished or overruled or set aside.

34. The Apex Court in the case of Dwarikesh Sugar Industries Limited Vs. Prem Heavy Engineering Works Private Limited and Another reported in AIR (1997) S.C. 2477 has laid down if the position in law is well settled as per the judicial pronouncement, taking a different view by the subordinate Courts including the High Courts clearly amount to judicial impropriety.

35. From the discussions made above, the First Appeal From Order No. 847 of 2006 filed by the Insurance Company deserves to be dismissed.

36. The First Appeal From Order No. 256 of 2007 preferred by the owner of the vehicle, the submission raised by the learned counsel representing the owner/appellant for allowing the application under Order 41 Rule 27 C.P.C. along with an affidavit. The reasons shown for allowing the application under Order 41 Rule 27 C.P.C. are satisfactory. After the perusal of the order-sheets of different dates showing that steps were never ever taken by the claimant and notice/summons were never ever served upon the owner of the vehicles and specially when the same has not been disputed by the learned counsel representing the claimant as well as the Insurance Company after examining the lower Court's record and when the learned Counsel representing the Insurance Company has made a submission after examining the lower Court's record and has further made a submission that he has no objection in allowing the application. On the basis of instructions learned counsel representing the Insurance Company has also given a submission that the licnence filed along with an application under Order 41 Rule 21 C.P.C. has already been verified from the R.T.O., Kalayan, Mumbai and as per the report the licence is valid issued in favour of Sri Rakesh Kumar Yadav. The Counsel representing the claimant has also made a submission that there is no objection in allowing the application under Order 41 Rule 27 C.P.C. Application under Order 41 Rule 27 C.P.C. along with an affidavit is hereby allowed.

37. From the perusal of the licence filed along with an affidavit in support of application under Order 41 Rule 27 of C.P.C., the licence is in the name of Sri Rakesh Kumar Yadav, the driver who was driving the vehicle at the time of the accident on 09.10.2004 and when the same was supported by the statement given by the learned counsel representing the Insurance Company that the said licence got verified from the R.T.O., Kalyan, Mumbai and as per the report of the R.T.O., Kalayan, Mumbai the licence issued in favor of the Sri Rakesh Kumar Yadav, The finding given by the Tribunal in award dated 10.08.2006 to the extent of validity of the licence is not acceptable. The validity of the licence verified by the R.T.O., Kalayan, Mumbai, has not been disputed by the learned Counsel representing the claimants.

38. Hence finding to the effect of the invalid licence of the driver by the Tribunal in its award dated 10.08.2006 is set aside.

39. The finding of the Tribunal in the award dated 10.08.2006 pertaining to the absence of fitness certificate is not in consonance with the sub-Section 2 of Section 149 of Motor Vehicle Act 1988 which is reproduced below:-

"(2) No sum shall be payable by an insurer under sub-section (1) in respect of any judgment or award unless, before the commencement of the proceedings in which the judgment or award unless, before the commencement of the proceedings in which the judgment or award is given the insurer had notice through the Court or, as the case may be, the Claims Tribunal of the bringing of the proceedings, or in respect of such judgment or award so long as execution is stayed thereon pending an appeal; and an insurer to whom notice of the bringing of any such proceedings is so given shall be entitled to be made a party thereto and to defend the action on any of the following grounds, namely :-

(a) that there has been a breach of a specified condition of the policy, being one of the following conditions, namely -

(i) a condition excluding the use of the vehicle-

(a) for hire or reward, where the vehicle is on the date of the contract of insurance a vehicle not covered by a permit to ply for hire or reward, or

(b) for organized racing and speed testing, or

(c) for a purpose not allowed by the permit under which the vehicle is used, where the vehicle is a transport vehicle, or

(d) without side-car being attached where the vehicle is a motor cycle; or

(ii) a condition excluding driving by a named person or persons or by disqualified for holding or obtaining a driving licence during the period of disqualification; or

(iii) a condition excluding liability for injury caused or contributed to by conditions of war, civil war, riot or civil commotion; or

(b) that the policy is void on the ground that it was obtained by the non-disclosure of a material fact or by a representation of fact which was false in some material particular."

40. From the perusal of the sub-Section 2 of Section 149 of the Motor Vehicle Act, 1988, the fitness certificate of vehicle is not required as a defence to the Insurance Company to escape the liability from payment of compensation to the family of the deceased. The Counsel representing the Insurance Company and the claimants has failed to dispute to the fact that fitness certificate is not required for payment of compensation by fixing the liability of the Insurance Company for the purposes of payment of compensation.

41. The judgment relied by the learned counsel representing owner/appellant in the case of Oriental Insurance Company Ltd. Vs. Sushil Kumar Pandey and Others, (2013) (2) T.AC. 361 (All.), wherein it has been held that if the vehicle is used for private service and not for another service or public vehicle, then fitness certificate is not required. The relevant portion of the above-mentioned judgment is reproduced below:-

"(4) The case of the learned Counsel for the appellant is that the offending vehicle is a private service vehicle and, therefore, it is the transport vehicle and hence the fitness certificate is required for the said vehicle under Section 56 of the Act. Private service vehicle is defined by Section 2(33) of the Act (referred hereinabove). Only those motor vehicles, which carries persons for, or in connection with trade or business of the owner shall be considered as private service vehicle and not any other private service vehicle or public vehicle. Therefore, in order to cover the vehicle under the definition of private vehicle it is to be established that the vehicle is being used in connection with his trade or business by the vehicle owner.

(5) In the present case, it is not the case of the Insurance Company that the offending vehicle was being used for carrying of the passengers for the purposes of his trade or business by the owner of the vehicle, therefore, it cannot be private service vehicle. In so far as the Transport Commissioner's circular is concerned, it cannot be read in isolation and it is to be read alongwith provisions of the Act. If it is read alongwith provisions of the Act, it comes down to, that only those vehicle having capacity of more than six persons, is required to have a fitness certificate, which is being used for carrying the passengers for, or in connection with, his trade or business by the owner of vehicle. Moreover, it is the settled principle of law that any circular, which is contrary to the provisions of the Act is not binding and cannot override the provisions of the Act."

42. Learned counsel representing the Insurance Company and the claimant has failed to dispute the legal position settled by the High Court in the case of Oriental Insurance Company Ltd. Vs. Sushil Kumar Pandey (Supra).

43. Under these circumstances, the finding in the award to the extent of fixing the liability of the owner on the above-mentioned case is hereby set aside and the First Appeal From Order No. 256 of 2007 is allowed to the extent of finding in the judgment and fixing the liability of the owner/appellant is set aside and the First Appeal From Order No. 256 of 2007 is hereby allowed.

44. As far as First Appeal From Order No. 678 of 2008 preferred by the claimant/appellant is concerned, from the discussion made above and as per the law laid down by the Apex Court in the case of National Insurance Company Ltd. Vs. Prannay Sethi (Supra) and Chameli Devi and Others Vs. Jivrail Mian and Others (Supra), the claimant is entitled for the benefit as provided in Para 61(IV) and (VIII) of the Judgment in the case of National Insurance Company Ltd. Vs. Prannay Sethi (Supra). As per the judgment passed by the Apex Court in the case of Sarla Verma (smt) and Others Vs. Delhi Transport Corporation And Another (Supra), wherein the chart has been provided for applying the multiplier for determination of compensation and as per the same in the case of the claimants the Tribunal in its award has wrongly applied the multiplier of 10. Looking at the age of the deceased multiplier of 14 is applicable. The same has not been disputed by the Counsel representing the Insurance Company.

45. Hence to the extent of multiplier of 10 in the order/judgment of the Tribunal is hereby set aside.

46. Under these circumstances, the First Appeal From Order No. 678 of 2008 is allowed and modifed to the extent to which claimants are entitled are as follows:-

(i) Compensation with Multiplier (M-14) X Annual Income as shown in the Award has come to Rs. 48,000/- per annum (after deducting 1/3rd of the income against personal expenses) = Rs. 6,72,000/- (ii) 25 percent of future prospects be added i.e. Rs. 1,68,000/- (iii) Loss of estate i.e. Rs. 15,000/-, loss of consortium i.e. Rs. 40,000, funeral charges, i.e. Rs. 15,000, which comes to be Rs. 70,000/- Less Rs. 4,000 (already determined by the Tribunal in its award for loss of consortium and funeral charges) = Rs. 66,000/-

Total = Rs. 6,72,000/- + Rs. 1,68,000/- + Rs. 66,000 = Rs. 9,06,000/-

47. Under these circumstances First Appeal From Order No. 678 of 2008 is hereby allowed and the order/award dated 10.08.2006 passed by Motor Accident Claims Tribunal is modified in terms as specified above.

48. United India Insurance Company is directed to pay the balance amount within a period of two months from today after deducting the amount which has already been paid, if any, to the claimant failing which the interest will be paid as already determined by the Tribunal in its award dated 10.08.2006.

49. Office is directed to send the lower Court's record to the concerned Tribunal.

50. Copy of this judgment shall be placed in all the three First Appeals From Order separately.

A. Civil Law-Uttar Pradesh Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 - Rule 220A - cannot control the obligation of Tribunal to determine just compensation

Held - Rule 220A of U.P. Rules, 1998 lays down only a guideline with respect to award of compensation under different heads but ultimate authority is that of Tribunal to determine and award appropriate compensation which is "just" -Tribunal ought not to have referred to Rules 220A and 220B for awarding compensation under any head and instead it ought to have guided itself by law already settled (Para 95)

B. Motor Accident Claim - Motor Vehicles Act (59 of 1988) - Ss.166, 168 - Compensation - under the head of medical expenses, treatment, medical care etc - deceased in coma - II stage for about 21 months

Deceased remained in coma - II stage for about 21 months - Pecuniary damages in such case of fatal injuries and disability cover all the expenses which have been incurred not only in actual medical treatment i.e. Doctor fee, Hospital fee, testing fee, medicines cost etc. but also expenses incurred for hiring nursing services, expenses incurred by persons present to take care of the injured, boarding, lodging and travelling expenses and also the expenses incurred during shifting of injured from one place to another - Such expenses cannot be excluded from the total amount of compensation to be awarded to claimant (Para 105)

C. Civil Law-Motor Vehicles Act (59 of 1988) - Ss. 166,168 - Compensation - termination of pregnancy due to accident - deceased pregnant at the time of accident - Held - a lump sum of Rs. 2,50,000/- awarded for loss of foetus due to termination of pregnancy in accident (Para 110)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal, J.)

1. First Appeal From Order No. 1020 of 2017 (hereinafter referred to as "FAFO-1") has been filed by defendant-Insurance Company under Section 173 of Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1988") challenging judgement and award dated 29.09.2014 passed by Sri Ashwani Kumar Singh, Additional District Judge, Court No. 1, Ballia/ Presiding Officer, Motor Accidents Claims Tribunal, Ballia (hereinafter referred to as "Tribunal") in Motor Accident Claim Petition (hereinafter referred to as "MACP") No. 57 of 2010 awarding compensation of Rs. 72,47,000/-, payable 50 per cent by appellant-Insurance Company, namely, National Insurance Company Limited (hereinafter referred to as "Insurer-1") and remaining 50 per cent by New India Assurance Company Limited (hereinafter referred to as "Insurer-2") impleaded as respondent-3 in this appeal. Tribunal has also awarded 8 per cent interest on the amount of compensation which is to be computed from 11.06.2010, i.e., the date on which application for compensation was filed, till the date of payment. Respondent-1, who is claimant-respondent, is now substituted by respondent- 1/1, since died during litigation. Respondent-2, Maruti Bhai, is the owner of Truck No. MH 15G 4212 while respondent-4 Ahmad Jalil Shekh is the owner of Qualis bearing registration No. MH 04BN 1138.

2. First Appeal From Order No. 342 of 2015 (hereinafter referred to as "FAFO-2") has been filed by New India Assurance Company Limited i.e. Insurer-2 against the same award and grounds taken therein are also similar as taken in FAFO-1.

3. First Appeal From Order No. 1859 of 2013 (hereinafter referred to as "FAFO-3") is claimant's appeal which has also come up against same award being dissatisfied with quantum of compensation awarded therein and seeks enhancement of compensation to Rs. 1,12,50,000/-.

4. In FAFO-1, Sri Kuldip Shanker Amist, Advocate has appeared for appellant i.e. Insurer-1, Sri Sudhakar Pandey, Advocate has appeared for claimant-respondent and Sri Rakesh Bahadur, Advocate has appeared for respondent-3, i.e., Insurer-2.

5. In FAFO-2, Sri Rakesh Bahadur, Advocate, has appeared for appellant, i.e., Insurer-2, Sri Sudhakar Pandey, Advocate, has appeared for claimant-respondent and Sri Kuldip Shanker Amist, learned counsel for respondent-2 i.e. Insurer-1

6. In FAFO-3, Sri Sudhakar Pandey, Advocate, has appeared for claimant-appellant; Sri Rakesh Bahadur, Advocate, has appeared for for respondent-3, i.e., Insurer-2; and, Sri Kuldip Shanker Amist, learned counsel for respondent-1, i.e., Insurer-1.

7. Since all these appeals having arisen from common judgement and award, they are similar. Therefore, we briefly describe the facts as under.

8. On 15.09.2009 at 07:00 AM, Smt. Manju Shukla wife of Arvind Kumar Shukla went for darshan of Sai Baba at Shirdi (State of Maharashtra) along with her relatives in a vehicle Toyota Qualis being registration No. MH 04BN 1138. When they reached at village Kokan, P.S. Sangamner, District Ahmednagar, a Truck No. MH 15G 4212 which was being driven rashly and negligently by its Driver, collided with Toyota Qualis vehicle causing serious injuries to Smt. Manju Shukla and other passengers. Injured were taken to Tambe Hospital, Sangamner and report was also lodged in P.S. Sangamner. Smt. Manju Shukla sustained injuries on head and went in Coma-II stage. She remained admitted in Tambe Hospital from 15.09.2009 to 08.10.2009 and during treatment, she underwent several testings and medical examinations. As her situation could not be controlled, she was referred to Kokilaben Dhirubhai Ambani Hospital where she was admitted on 08.10.2009 and remained under treatment upto 20.05.2010. During period of treatment, husband of Smt. Manju Shukla and others, who were taking care, resided there by hiring rooms in hotel. She was discharged on 20.05.2010 and brought to her home at Ballia where she was given treatment at Gaurav Nursing Home, Tikampur, run by Dr. D. Rai. She was treated there till 06.06.2011. In the evening at around 06:00 PM on 06.06.2011, when she was at home, she breathed her last and was declared dead by Dr. D. Rai. At the time of accident, Smt. Manju Shukla was in family way having 2 months and 15 days foetus which was terminated due to accident as per Doctor's report. Claimant was working as Business Development Manager in Tata AIG Life Insurance Company. At the time of death, Smt. Manju Shukla was age of about 26 years.

9. During her life time, Smt. Manju Shukla filed Claim Petition No. 166 of Act, 1988 vide application dated 11.06.2010. At the time of filing of aforesaid claim petition, she was undergoing treatment and in the stage of Coma-II at Kokilaben Dhirubhai Ambani Hospital. After her death, claim petition was amended and her husband Arvind Kumar Shukla was impleaded as claimant-1/1. He sought compensation of Rs. 1,12,50,000/- and its description was given as under:

22. Amount of compensation claimed by Claimant-Respondent.
1.	Towards loss of earning of deceased and future prospects.	Rs. 15,00,000/-
2.	Expenses towards treatment of deceased.	Rs. 40,00,000/-
3.	Expenses likely to occur in future, in case she was surviving.	Rs. 20,00,000/-
4.	Expenses towards conveyance and on relatives during treatment of deceased.	Rs. 25,00,000/-
5.	Expenses towards Food Supplements, like milk, fruits, etc., given to deceased during treatment.	Rs. 10,00,000/-
6.	Claim towards pains and suffering suffered by deceased and relatives on account of injuries sustained in the accident.	Rs. 10,00,000/-
7.	Claim towards loss of consortium, love and affection.	Rs. 2,00,000/-
8.	Expenses towards funeral and other rituals.	Rs. 50,000/-
	Total	Rs. 1,12,50,000/-

10. Contesting the claim, Insurer-1 filed written statement through Senior Divisional Manager, Branch at Mau denying the facts stated in various paragraphs of claim petition in general. The objection taken is that claimant Arvind Kumar Shukla has no right to maintain said petition; Death of Smt. Manju Shukla on 06.06.2011 was not admitted to Insurer-1; no report was registered with regard to her death in P.S. Sangamner, District Ahmednagar in the context of accident in question; Claim of compensation under various heads is exaggerated, artificial and not payable; documents in evidence submitted before Tribunal in a sealed box having been sent by Insurer-1 are not acceptable; no evidence was adduced to show that deceased was in family way; facts regarding admission of patient at Tambe Hospital and Kokilaben Dhirubhai Ambani Hospital are fictitious; when deceased being a housewife, there is no question of loss of earning and entire claim is fictitious; earlier notices were issued when injured's claim was allowed but since she has not died, fresh notice must have been issued.

11. A separate written statement was filed by New India Assurance Company Limited, i.e. Insurer-2, wherein it also denied facts stated in the claim petition. In additional pleas, it was stated that claim is excessive and exaggerated; Claimant has no right to file claim petition and not entitled for any compensation; Claim petition was not maintainable at Ballia; Entire negligence causing accident was that of Truck Driver and, therefore, Insurer-2, Insurer of vehicle Toyota Qualis, was not liable to pay any compensation. Copy of written statement of Insurer-2 is at page- 63 of paper book in FAFO-3.

12. Defendant-2 in claim petition, i.e., Sri Maruti Bhai, owner of Truck No. MH 15G 4212, in his written statement though denied the facts stated in claim petition but in additional pleas, he admitted that accident occurred on 15.09.2009 at 07:00 AM at Nasik-Shani Shingnapur road near village Kokar, P.S. Sangamner, District Ahmednagar but pleaded that it was due to negligence of Driver of vehicle Toyota Qualis and not of Truck Driver, therefore, he was not liable to pay any compensation. He also admitted that his Truck No. MH 15G 4212 is insured with Insurer-1 vide Policy No. 311500/31/04/630002877 effective from 05.05.2009 to 04.05.2010 and, therefore, liability, if any, would be that of Insurer-1. It was also pleaded that Driver driving Truck was having a valid Driving Licence and all other documents were also in order.

13. Defendant-4 Sri Ahmed Zalil Shekh, owner of Toyota Qualis bearing no. MH 04BN 1138 also filed a written statement which is at page 74 of paper book in FAFO-3. In general, facts stated in claim petition were denied by him though he admitted that he is the owner of Toyota Qualis No. MH 04BN 1138. In additional pleas, he challenged the right of claimant to file claim petition against him. He claimed that there was no negligence on the part of Driver of Toyota Qualis and in any case, it was duly insured with Insurer-2 on the date of accident vide Policy No. 11060/31/00/01/00024833 effective from 28.12.2008 to 27.12.2009 and, therefore, liability, if any, is that of Insurance Company.

14. On the basis of respective pleadings, Tribunal formulated following seven issues:-

15. After amendment of claim petition, Insurers- 1 and 2 both filed their written statements and thereafter six more issues were framed as under:-

''1. क्या दिनांक 15.09.09 को प्रातः काल 7.00 बजे नासिक शनिसंगारपुर रोड पर ग्राम कोकड थाना संगमनेर जिला अहमदनगर, महाराष्ट् के अन्तर्गत कथित दुर्घटना में लिप्त वाहन ट्क संख्या एम0एच0 15 जी0 4212 व वाहन क्वालिश संख्या एम0एच0 04बी0एन0 1138 के चालकों ने अपने अपने वाहन को तेजी व लापरवाही से चलाकर एक दूसरे को टक्कर मार दिया जिससे वाहन संख्या एम0एच0 04बी0एन0 1138 पर सवार श्रीमती मंजू शुक्ला को गम्भीर चोटें आयी, जिसके परिणामस्वरूप दौरान इलाज उसकी मृत्यु हो गयी?

6. Relief?"

(English Translation by Court)

16. In support of claim, claimant adduced oral evidence by deposing himself as PW-1; Sri Kedar Chaudhary as PW-2; Kumari Sudha Shukla as PW-3; Dr. Dadan Rai as PW-4; Dr. Rajendra Bhau as PW-5; Sri Ravi Ranjan as PW-6; Sri Avinash Srivastava as PW-7 and Sri Bhola Nath as PW-8. The written evidence comprised of First Information Report (hereinafter referred to as "FIR"), Insurance Cover Note of both vehicles, Driving License, permit, fitness certificate, medical bills, certificate issued by Chief Medical Officer regarding permanent disability of Smt. Manju Shukla to the extent of 100 per cent, appointment letter of claimant-respondent, document about his salary and various bill vouchers showing expenditure incurred on the treatment of Smt. Manju Shukla.

17. After examining evidence, Tribunal held that both tortfeasing vehicles were insured with respective Insurance Companies; both Drivers possessed valid Driving License and vehicles have other requisite documents like Fitness Certificate, Registration Certificate etc., and these facts are duly proved. The factum of accident was also found proved. Thereafter, it examined expenditure incurred on treatment of Smt. Manju Shukla and on the basis of medical bills and other documents, it held that Rs. 55 to 56 lacs were spent by husband of deceased; she was in the stage of Coma-II during the period of treatment since after accident; being a housewife, her notional income was assessed at Rs. 4,500/- per month which comes to Rs. 54,000/- per annum. Applying multiplier of 18, her total income comes to Rs. 9,72,000/- and thereafter deducting 1/3, it was reduced to Rs. 6,48,000/-. Further, Tribunal added 50 per cent for future prospects as per Rules 220A and 220B added in U.P. Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 (hereinafter referred to as "Rules, 1998") vide UP Motor Vehicles (Eleventh Amendment) Rules, 2011 (hereinafter referred to as "Amendment Rules, 2011") and this comes to Rs. 9,72,000/-. It allowed Rs. 10,000/- towards loss of estate; Rs. 10,000/- towards loss of consortium and Rs. 5,000/- towards funeral expenses. Tribunal also awarded compensation of Rs. 9,97,000/- plus Rs. 55 lacs towards medical expenses and a sum of Rs. 5,00,000/- towards pain and mental torture, since deceased suffered 100 per cent permanent disability and remained in Coma-II stage for about one year nine months. Thus, total compensation of Rs. 72,47,000/- was awarded. Thereafter, it held that both vehicles were equally responsible for said accident and, therefore, held Insurers- 1 and 2 liable to pay equal amount of compensation and has accordingly directed both to pay 50 per cent each towards compensation out of total compensation of Rs. 72,47,000/- awarded by Tribunal along with 8 per cent interest to be computed from the date of filing of application i.e. 11.06.2010 till actual payment.

18. Sri Rakesh Bahadur, learned counsel appearing for Insurer-2 contended that Drivers were not examined and, therefore, it could not have been proved that accident was due to rash and negligent driving by both the Drivers; there is no finding recorded by Tribunal on the point of negligence; medical expenses as per evidence adduced, were much less than what was actually claimed and awarded by Tribunal, therefore, award in question is bad in law to that extent; deceased was a house-wife, therefore, claimant-husband cannot be said to be dependent upon her and, hence, there was no loss of dependency for awarding any compensation.

19. Adopting his argument, Sri K.S. Amist, Advocate submitted that amount of medical expenses awarded by Tribunal is highly excessive. Referring to Ground-20, he urged that as per documents adduced by claimant, total amount of medical expenses comes to Rs. 26,60,344/- though Rs. 55 lakhs has been awarded by Tribunal which is apparently perverse; no future prospects could have been allowed by relying on Rule 220A added by Amendment Rules, 2011 with effect from 26.09.2011 as accident took place on 15.09.2009 and said Rule was not available on that date.

20. Learned counsel for Claimant in support of his claim for enhancement of compensation contended that Tribunal has awarded only 8 per cent interest though it ought to be 12 per cent and that too, should have been awarded from the date of accident and not from the date of claim petition. He further submits that due to long duration of treatment of deceased, Claimant has to leave his job and sustained serious financial scarcity but no compensation under this head has been awarded; the amount of compensation awarded under the head of loss of estate, love and affection and financial expenses are also meagre and not consistent with law laid down by Supreme Court; for termination of pregnancy due to accident, Claimant was entitled for appropriate compensation but Tribunal awarded only Rs. 2,50,000/- under the said head which is quite inadequate; assessment of notional income of Rs. 4,500/- per month is inadequate, unjust and meagre and it should have been real, just and much higher.

21. On the arguments raised by learned counsel for parties as noticed above and perusal of record, the points for determination which have arisen in these appeals are formulated as under:-

(i) Whether non-examination of Drivers would affect the findings of Tribunal in any manner on the issue of rash and negligence driving.

(ii) Whether Tribunal has erred in law in allowing future prospects and has rightly followed Rule 220A or no future prospects were awardable ?

(iii) Whether Rule 220A could have been relied for determination of just compensation ?

(iv) Whether notional income of deceased has been determined by Tribunal rightly or it needs be increased as claimed by Claimant or reduced as claimed by Insurers-1 and 2 ?

(v) Whether amount of compensation awarded by Tribunal towards medical expenses and for treatment is excessive, based on no evidence or it is on the lower side as claimed by Claimant or is justified and warrants no interference ?

(vi) Whether loss of employment of Claimant on account of long duration Coma-II stage of deceased, running for about 21 months, termination of pregnancy etc., deserves to be awarded any amount of compensation and non-consideration and non-award of any amount on this aspect by Tribunal is erroneous ?

(vii) Whether amount of compensation awarded under the head of loss of estate, love and affection, funeral expenses etc., is just, valid, adequate or needs be increased ?

22. Before coming to aforesaid issues, evidence as adduced before Court below and admitted or proved, may be re-collected at this stage.

23. With regard to Insurance of Truck No. MH 15G 4219, Sri Vinod Kumar Sinha, Development Officer of Insurer-1 appeared as DW-1 and proved that vehicle was insured with Insurer-1 and had a valid period of insurance from 05.05.2009 to 04.05.2010.

24. Similarly, in respect of Insurance of Toyota Qualis, Sri Ashok Kumar, Assistant Manager of Insurer-2 appeared in person and proved insurance of said vehicle with Insurer-2.

25. Giving details of documents which have been considered by Tribunal for awarding Rs. 55,00,000/- towards expenses on treatment, medicines and other incidental expenses, it has referred to a list of 32 documents as under:-

26. Before examining points for determination as formulated above, we find it appropriate to have a glimpse of statutory provisions and the purpose and objective for which Act, 1988 makes provisions for compensation in case of death or injury sustained by a person in a motor accident as that will be a guiding factor in examining the various questions raised in these appeals.

27. It is also evident from record that initially application for compensation was filed by Smt. Manju Shukla through her representative, having sustained serious injuries leading her to Coma-II stage. From the date of accident and during her treatment, lot of expenses were incurred by her husband. Admittedly, application was filed under Section 166 of Act, 1988 by Smt. Manju Shukla. Subsequently, after her death, necessary amendments were made and husband of deceased Smt. Manju Shukla became Claimant. The relevance of application having been filed under Section 166 of Act, 1988 is for a reason. In fact, in Act, 1988, there are three provisions whereunder compensation can be awarded to a victim or his/ her legal heirs as the case may be.

28. Chapter X, having Sections 140 to 144, deals with the provisions relating to "liability without fault", in certain cases. Provisions under this Chapter have been given overriding effect by virtue of Section 144. Section 140(1) provides, where death or permanent disablement has resulted to a person from an accident arising out of use of a motor vehicle or motor vehicles, owner/owners of vehicle shall, jointly and severely, be liable to pay compensation, in respect of such death or disablement, in accordance with said section. Sub-section (2) provides a fixed amount of Rs. 50,000/- in case of death and Rs. 25,000/- in case of permanent disablement. In order to attract Section 140 there is no necessity or requirement to show that accident took place due to rash and negligent driving of tortfeaser vehicle. It recognizes principle of "no fault liability". The amount awardable thereunder is fixed by legislature itself. Liability is that of owner. Insurer does not come into picture when claim is made under Section 140. This "no fault liability" envisaged in Section 140 is distinct from the "rule of strict liability". In other words, liability under Section 140 is a statutory liability. If an amount under Section 140 has been paid and thereafter claim is made under Section 166, amount paid under Section 140 is liable to be deducted from final amount of compensation awarded by Tribunal. The amount under Section 140 being a fixed/crystallized amount, same has to be considered as part of estate of deceased as held in Smt. Manjuri Bera vs. The Oriental Insurance Company Ltd. and another, AIR 2007 SC 1474.

29. Liability under Section 140 has to be borne by owner if vehicle was not insured or there was a breach of conditions of insurance. Though Section 140 makes owner of vehicle responsible for payment of compensation but if vehicle is insured, it is always open to owner to make Insurer liable to pay amount of compensation for the reason that once vehicle is covered under the terms of policy, it is for Insurer to make payment of liability of owner to the extent indicated in policy, be it under Section 166 or Section 140 of Act, 1988.

30. In the scheme of Act, 1988, Chapter X, by virtue of Section 140, contemplates quick relief to a victim by awarding a fixed amount of compensation, if death or permanent disability has resulted from an accident arising out of use of a motor vehicle and for this purpose there is no requirement of pleading or establishing that death or permanent disablement was due to any wrongful act, negligence or default of owner of vehicle.

31. Section 141 declares that right to claim compensation under Section 140 is in addition to any other right to claim compensation on the principle of "fault liability" but it only excludes right to claim compensation under Section 163A. In other words, if a compensation is claimed under "no fault liability" then either it can be an application under Sections 140 or 163A and not both. This is what has also been clarified in The Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. etc. vs. Hansrajbhai V.Kodala and others, 2001(5) SCC 175.

32. Section 142 classifies injuries which are considered "permanent disablement" for the purpose of Chapter X of Act, 1988.

33. By virtue of Section 143 of Act, 1988, benefit of "no fault liability" under Chapter X has also been extended to a workman to claim compensation in respect of death or permanent disablement either by approaching Workman Compensation Commissioner under Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923 (hereinafter referred to as the "Act, 1923") or Tribunal under Act, 1988, by filing application under Section 140 of Act, 1988.

34. Next provision under Act, 1988 is Section 161 read with Section 163, which is a special provision for compensation in case of a hit and run motor accident where identity of vehicle/ tortfeaser is not ascertainable despite reasonable efforts for the purpose. In this regard Section 163 empowers Central Government to make a scheme for payment of compensation in hit and run accident cases and subject to such scheme, Section 161(3) provides compensation of fixed sum of Rs. 25,000/- in case of death and Rs. 12,500/- in case of grievous injuries.

35. Initially when Act, 1988 was enacted there was no provision for compensation in case of "no fault liability" based on a structured formula which provides scope for determination of compensation. By Act 54 of 1994, and w.e.f. 14.11.1994, Section 163A was inserted making special provision for payment of compensation on structured formula. This Section commences with a "non-obstente" clause and overrides provisions of Act, 1988 or any other law for the time being in force or instrument having force of law. It says that owner of vehicle or authorized Insurer shall be liable to pay compensation as indicated in Second Schedule in case of death, to legal heirs and in case of permanent disablement, to the victim, as the case may be. Explanation to Section 163A(1) incorporates by Reference, meaning of "permanent disability" as provided in Act, 1923 to the word "permanent disablement" used under Section 163A of Act, 1988. For claiming compensation under Section 163A(1) claimant is not required to plead or establish that accident occurred due to any wrongful act, neglect or default on the part of owner of vehicle concern or of any other person.

36. There is a note appended to Second Schedule of Act, 1988, raising a legal fiction stating that injuries deemed to result in permanent total disablement/permanent partial disablement and percentage of loss of earning capacity shall be as per Schedule First under Act, 1923. In para 5 of Second Schedule of Act, 1988, provisions of First Schedule of Act, 1923 have been incorporated by reference. To attract Section 163A and to claim compensation thereunder, one has to establish factum of accident, age of deceased/ injured, as the case may be and his/her income. Broadly, these are the only relevant factors to be brought before Tribunal for determining compensation under Section 163A.

37. However, while determining compensation, Tribunal has to consider relevant factors and it cannot be expected to go by a ready reckoner as held in U.P. State Road Transport Corporation and Ors. vs. Trilok Chandra and others, 1996(4) SCC 362.

38. Next provision relating to compensation is Chapter XII, i.e., Section 166 read with Section 165.

39. State Government has empowered by Section 165(1) to constitute one or more Tribunals for the purpose of adjudicating upon claims for compensation in respect of accidents involving death of, or bodily injury, to persons, arising out of use of motor vehicles or damages of any property of a third party so arising or both.

40. Section 166 provides that an application for compensation arising out of an accident of the nature specified in Section 165(1) may be made and these are:

"(a) by the person who has sustained the injury; or

(b) by the owner of the property; or

(c) where death has resulted from the accident, by all or any of the legal representatives of the deceased; or

(d) by any agent duly authorized by the person injured or all or any of the legal representatives of the deceased, as the case may be."

41. Section 168 requires Tribunal to determine amount of compensation which appears to it, "just" after giving opportunity to parties including Insurer.

42. Application under Section 166 can be filed by heirs and legal representatives of victim, in case of death, and it is not relevant, whether they are financially dependent upon the victim or not. Further no other person can apply for compensation under Section 166, if he/she does not come within the term "legal representative" even if he or she is proved to be financially dependent upon the victim.

43. Term "legal representative" has not been defined in Act, 1988, therefore, Court can look into Section 2(11) of Code of Civil Procedure (hereinafter referred to as the "CPC") defining "Legal Representatives".

44. In Smt. Manjuri Bera vs. The Oriental Insurance Company Ltd. (supra) Court held that under Section 2(11) CPC, "legal representative" means a person who in law represents the estate of deceased person and includes any person who inter-meddles with the estate of deceased and where a party sues or is sued in a representative character, the person to whom estate devolves on the death of party so suing or sued.

45. Section 166 contemplates application for compensation which is commonly called as "claim on fault liability". The inter relationship of Sections 163A and 166 was considered in Deepal Girishbhai Soni and others vs. United India Insurance Co. Ltd. 2004(5) SCC 385. Court said that Section 163A is for grant of immediate relief and award made thereunder would be in full and final settlement of claim. It is not interim in nature. Amount of compensation payable thereunder is not to be altered or varied in any other proceedings unlike the amount paid under Section 140 which can be set off against a higher compensation.

46. In Smt. Sarla Verma and Ors. vs. Delhi Transport Corporation and another, 2009(6) SCC 121 it was held, where application is filed under Section 163A of Act, 1988, it is possible to calculate compensation on the structured formula basis even where compensation is not specified, with reference to annual income of deceased if it is not more than Rs. 40,000/-, by applying the formula; (2/3 x AI x M), i.e., two-thirds of the annual income multiplied by multiplier applicable to the age of deceased would be compensation. Several principles of tortious liability are excluded when claim is under Section 163A of Act, 1988 but when application is under Section 166, Tribunal is under a statutory obligation to determine "just" amount of compensation.

47. Section 168 contemplates determination of "just compensation". 'Just' means, fair, reasonable and equitable amount accepted by legal standards. "Just compensation" does not mean perfect or absolute compensation. "Just compensation" principle requires examination of particular situation obtaining uniquely in an individual case.

48. When compensation is to be determined on an application under Section 166, various heads under which damages are to be assessed, have to be looked into by Tribunal and not by merely determining income and applying multiplier.

49. We may consider some broad aspects in the context of injury/ disability and death separately.

Bodily Injury/Disability

50. Here damages are broadly in two categories, i.e., pecuniary damages and special damages. Pecuniary damages are those which victim has actually incurred and which are capable of being calculated in terms of money. Pecuniary damages may include: (i) medical attendance; (ii) loss of earning profit upto the date of trial; (iii) other material loss.

51. Non-pecuniary damages are such which are incapable of being assessed by arithmetical calculation. They may include; (i) damages for mental and physical shock, pain suffering, already suffered or likely to be suffered in future; (ii) damages to compensate for the loss of amenities of life which may include a variety of matters, i.e., on account of injury the claimant may not be able to walk, run or sit; (iii) damages for the loss of expectation of life, i.e., on account of injury the normal longevity of the person concerned is shortened; (iv) inconvenience, hardship, discomfort, disappointment, frustration and mental stress in life.

Death

52. In the case of death, for the purpose of compensation claimant(s) must establish: (i) age of deceased; (b) income of deceased; and, (c) number of dependents. Thereupon Tribunal assesses loss of dependency by considering: (i) additions/deductions to be made for arriving at income; (ii) deductions to be made towards personal living expenses of deceased; and, (iii) multiplier to be applied with reference to the age of deceased.

53. For the time being, the multiplier which has to be applied has been settled by Court in Smt. Sarla Verma and Ors. vs. Delhi Transport Corporation (supra) and the same reads as under:

Age Group		Multiplier
15-20	–	18
21-25	–	18
26-30	–	17
31-35	–	16
36-40	–	15
41-45	–	14
46-50	–	13
51-55	–	11
56-60	–	9

54. In the case of employed deceased, future prospects are also to be taken into consideration to determine loss of dependency. There are some authorities which provide that compensation under the head of future prospect can be allowed even to self employed persons. Presently this question is pending before a Larger Bench on a reference made in Shashikala and others vs. Gangalakshmamma and others, 2015(9) SCC 150. Besides, under following heads also due compensation needs to be awarded.

(i) Love and affection (to be considered separately for wife, children and parents)

(ii) Loss of estate

(iii) Loss of consortium

(iv) Funeral expenses

55. In case of death of a housewife, Courts have referred to certain additional heads which should be considered to assess pecuniary value of housewife. In Mehmet vs. Perry, (1977) 2 All ER 52, following heads were stated for grant of damages after assessing pecuniary value of a housewife's services:

"(a) Loss to the family of the wife's housekeeping services.

(b) Loss suffered by the children of the personal attention of their mother, apart from housekeeping services rendered by her.

(c) Loss of the wife's personal care and attention, which the husband had suffered, in addition to the loss of her housekeeping services."

56. This judgment has been referred to with approval in Arun Kumar Agrawal and another Vs. National Insurance Company Limited and others, 2010(9) SCC 218.

57. Besides above, there are two general heads which are applicable to all category of cases, namely, (i) litigation expenses and (ii) interest.

58. Tribunal has to consider quantum of compensation in the light of discussion made above considering the facts of the case and it is a statutory duty of Tribunal to determine a just compensation which must be allowed to claimant.

59. In R.D. Hattangadi vs. M/s. Pest Control (India) Pvt. Ltd. and others, 1995(1) SCC 551 it was observed that process of determination of amount of compensation involves some guess work, some hypothetical consideration, some amount of sympathy linked with the nature of the disability caused but all aforesaid elements have to be viewed with objective standards. Process of determination involves a reasonable estimate and a justifiable guess work on the part of Tribunal. In the nature of claims involving fatal accident cases, what is required is determination of "what would have been" and not "what actually is". However, approach has to be pragmatic and sympathetic. Court is expected not only to take fortuitous circumstances and good possibilities of future, the advantages in favour of deceased as well as dependents but also the unexpected misfortunes that may happen. Taking all these aspects into account, a fair and justifiable conclusion, striking a fair balance, tranquilised with a sympathetic chord, but devoid of all emotionalism, sensationalism and melodramatic blood and thunder, has to be arrived at by Tribunal. These factors with some minor modification may apply in the case of permanent disability also.

60. Broadly it has been observed that in deciding, what damages should be awarded to a claimant, same should be tested on three principles, first, that the award should be moderate, just and fair and it should not be oppressive to respondent, second, award should not be punitive, exemplary and extravagant and third, as far as possible similar cases must be decided similarly so that community of public at large may not carry the grievance of discrimination.

61. The question of determination of compensation directly came up before Supreme Court in Raj Kumar Vs. Ajay Kumar and another, 2011(1) SCC 343. Therein, claimant sustained fracture of both bones of left leg and fracture of left radius in a motor accident on 01.10.1991. Tribunal awarded compensation under the heads of loss of future earning, pain and sufferings, loss of earning during period of treatment, medical expenses, conveyance and special diet. He was awarded total compensation of Rs. 94,700/- and 9% interest. His appeal for enhancement was rejected by Tribunal and ultimately went in appeal to Supreme Court. It observed that scheme of Act, 1988 shows that award must be "just", which means that compensation should, to the extent possible, fully and adequately restore claimant to the position prior to the accident. The object of awarding damages is to make good the loss suffered as a result of wrong done as far as money can do so, in a fair, reasonable and equitable manner. A person is not only to be compensated for physical injury, but also for the loss which he suffered as a result of such injury. It means that he is to be compensated for his inability to lead a full life, his inability to enjoy those normal amenities which he would have enjoyed but for the injuries, and his inability to earn as much as he used to earn or could have earned. The heads under which compensation needs be awarded in "personal injury" cases are detailed in para 6 of the judgment in Raj Kumar Vs. Ajay Kumar (supra) and it reads as under:

"6. The heads under which compensation is awarded in personal injury cases are the following:

Pecuniary damages (Special Damages)

(i) Expenses relating to treatment, hospitalization, medicines, transportation, nourishing food, and miscellaneous expenditure.

(ii) Loss of earnings (and other gains) which the injured would have made had he not been injured, comprising:

(a) Loss of earning during the period of treatment;

(b) Loss of future earnings on account of permanent disability.

(iii) Future medical expenses.

Non-pecuniary damages (General Damages)

(iv) Damages for pain, suffering and trauma as a consequence of the injuries.

(v) Loss of amenities (and/or loss of prospects of marriage).

(vi) Loss of expectation of life (shortening of normal longevity).

In routine personal injury cases, compensation will be awarded only under heads (i), (ii)(a) and (iv). It is only in serious cases of injury, where there is specific medical evidence corroborating the evidence of the claimant, that compensation will be granted under any of the heads (ii)(b), (iii), (v) and (vi) relating to loss of future earnings on account of permanent disability, future medical expenses, loss of amenities (and/or loss of prospects of marriage) and loss of expectation of life."

62. "Disability" refers to any restriction or lack of ability to perform an activity in the manner considered normal for a human-being. "Permanent disability" refers to the residuary incapacity or loss of use of some part of the body, found existing at the end of period of treatment and recuperation, after achieving maximum bodily improvement or recovery which is likely to remain for remainder life of injured. Permanent disability can be either partial or total. "Partial permanent disability" refers to a person's inability to perform all the duties and bodily functions that he could perform before the accident, though he is able to perform some of them and is still able to engage in some gainful activity. "Total permanent disability" refers to a person's inability to perform any avocation or employment related activities as a result of the accident.

63. The percentage of disability certified in medical terms has been considered and Courts have observed that percentage of disability in respect of a part of body does not mean the same percentage with respect to whole body and it may be different. Para 9 of judgment in Raj Kumar Vs. Ajay Kumar (supra) said as under:

"9. The percentage of permanent disability is expressed by the Doctors with reference to the whole body, or more often than not, with reference to a particular limb. When a disability certificate states that the injured has suffered permanent disability to an extent of 45% of the left lower limb, it is not the same as 45% permanent disability with reference to the whole body. The extent of disability of a limb (or part of the body) expressed in terms of a percentage of the total functions of that limb, obviously cannot be assumed to be the extent of disability of the whole body. If there is 60% permanent disability of the right hand and 80% permanent disability of left leg, it does not mean that the extent of permanent disability with reference to the whole body is 140% (that is 80% plus 60%). If different parts of the body have suffered different percentages of disabilities, the sum total thereof expressed in terms of the permanent disability with reference to the whole body, cannot obviously exceed 100%."
(emphasis added)

64. Court also castigated that Tribunals wrongly assume that percentage of permanent disability is same in terms of percentage of loss of future earning capacity. The two aspects are different. Relevant observations in para 10 of the judgment in Raj Kumar Vs. Ajay Kumar (supra) are reproduced as under:

"10. Where the claimant suffers a permanent disability as a result of injuries, the assessment of compensation under the head of loss of future earnings, would depend upon the effect and impact of such permanent disability on his earning capacity. The Tribunal should not mechanically apply the percentage of permanent disability as the percentage of economic loss or loss of earning capacity. In most of the cases, the percentage of economic loss, that is, percentage of loss of earning capacity, arising from a permanent disability will be different from the percentage of permanent disability. Some Tribunals wrongly assume that in all cases, a particular extent (percentage) of permanent disability would result in a corresponding loss of earning capacity, and consequently, if the evidence produced show 45% as the permanent disability, will hold that there is 45% loss of future earning capacity. In most of the cases, equating the extent (percentage) of loss of earning capacity to the extent (percentage) of permanent disability will result in award of either too low or too high a compensation." (emphasis added)

65. Court also held that in some cases that where evidence and assessment shows that percentage of loss of earning capacity as a result of permanent disability is approximately the same as percentage of permanent disability then in such a situation, said percentage of permanent disability for determination of compensation may be adopted but it is not always. It is in this context Court further said that in order to determine, whether there is any permanent disability and if so the extent of such disability, a Tribunal should consider, and decide, with reference to evidence:

"(i) whether the disablement is permanent or temporary;

(ii) if the disablement is permanent, whether it is permanent total disablement or permanent partial disablement;

(iii) if the disablement percentage is expressed with reference to any specific limb, then the effect of such disablement of the limb on the functioning of the entire body, that is the permanent disability suffered by the person."

66. It was also observed that ascertainment of the effect of permanent disability on actual earning capacity involves three steps. First is to ascertain what activities claimant could carry on inspite of permanent disability and what he could not do as a result of permanent disability. The second is to ascertain claimant's avocation, profession and nature of work before accident, as also his age. The third step is to find out whether claimant is totally disabled from earning any kind of livelihood or despite permanent disability, claimant could still effectively carry on activities and functions, which he was earlier carrying on and whether he was prevented or restricted from discharging his previous activities and functions, but could carry on some other or lesser scale of activities and functions so that he continues to earn or can continue to earn his livelihood.

67. The role of Tribunal was elaborated by observing that it is not a silent spectator when medical evidence is tendered in regard to the injuries and their effect, in particular the extent of permanent disability. Tribunal does not function as a neutral umpire as in a civil suit. It is an active explorer and seeker of truth who is required to hold an enquiry into the claim for determining 'just compensation'. Tribunal should take an active role to ascertain the true and correct position so that it can assess 'just compensation'. Court also observed that when a doctor gives evidence about percentage of permanent disability, Tribunal must find out whether such percentage of disability is functional disability with reference to whole body or whether it is only with reference to a limb. In para 19 of the judgment in Raj Kumar Vs. Ajay Kumar (supra) Court summarized the principles in respect of "permanent disability" and assessment of compensation and in para 20 it gives certain illustrations in regard to assessment of loss of future earning. Same are reproduced as under:

"19. We may now summarize the principles discussed above:

(i) All injuries (or permanent disabilities arising from injuries), do not result in loss of earning capacity.

(ii) The percentage of permanent disability with reference to the whole body of a person, cannot be assumed to be the percentage of loss of earning capacity. To put it differently, the percentage of loss of earning capacity is not the same as the percentage of permanent disability (except in a few cases, where the Tribunal on the basis of evidence, concludes that percentage of loss of earning capacity is the same as percentage of permanent disability).

(iii) The doctor who treated an injured-claimant or who examined him subsequently to assess the extent of his permanent disability can give evidence only in regard the extent of permanent disability. The loss of earning capacity is something that will have to be assessed by the Tribunal with reference to the evidence in entirety.

(iv) The same permanent disability may result in different percentages of loss of earning capacity in different persons, depending upon the nature of profession, occupation or job, age, education and other factors.

20. The assessment of loss of future earnings is explained below with reference to the following illustrations:

Illustration 'A': The injured, a workman, was aged 30 years and earning Rs. 3000/- per month at the time of accident. As per Doctor's evidence, the permanent disability of the limb as a consequence of the injury was 60% and the consequential permanent disability to the person was quantified at 30%. The loss of earning capacity is however assessed by the Tribunal as 15% on the basis of evidence, because the claimant is continued in employment, but in a lower grade. Calculation of compensation will be as follows:

a) Annual income before the accident	Rs. 36,000/-
b) Loss of future earning per annum (15% of the prior annual income)	Rs. 5400/-
c) Multiplier applicable with reference to age	17
d) Loss of future	Rs. 91,800/-

earnings: (5400x17)

Illustration 'B': The injured was a driver aged 30 years, earning Rs. 3000/- per month. His hand is amputated and his permanent disability is assessed at 60%. He was terminated from his job as he could no longer drive. His chances of getting any other employment was bleak and even if he got any job, the salary was likely to be a pittance. The Tribunal therefore assessed his loss of future earning capacity as 75%. Calculation of compensation will be as follows:

a) Annual income before the accident	Rs. 36,000/-
b) Loss of future earning per annum (75% of the prior annual income)	Rs. 27,00/-
c) Multiplier applicable with reference to age	17
d) Loss of future earnings: (27,000x17)	Rs. 4,59,000/-

Illustration 'C': The injured was 25 years and a final year Engineering student. As a result of the accident, he was in coma for two months, his right hand was amputated and vision was affected. The permanent disablement was assessed as 70%. As the injured was incapacitated to pursue his chosen career and as he required the assistance of a servant throughout his life, the loss of future earning capacity was also assessed as 70%. The calculation of compensation will be as follows:

a) Minimum annual income he would have got if had been employed as an engineer	Rs. 60,000/-
b) Loss of future earning per annum (70% of the expected annual income)	Rs. 42,000/-
c) Multiplier applicable (25 years)	18
d) Loss of future earnings: (42,000x18)	Rs. 7,56,000/-

Note: The figures adopted in illustrations (A) and (B) are hypothetical. The figures in Illustration (C) however are based on actuals taken from the decision in Arvind Kumar Mishra (supra).

68. A three Judge Bench considered the question of "just compensation" in a case of permanent disability in Sanjay Verma Vs. Haryana Roadways, 2014(3) SCC 210. Court observed that besides determination of damages under the head "loss of income" and "medical expenses", Tribunal must also award compensation under the head "future treatment" and "pain and sufferings" and where there is requirement of an attendant, cost of attendant should also be included in award of compensation.

69. In Syed Sadiq and others Vs. Divisional Manager, United India

Insurance Company Ltd., 2014(2) SCC 735, claimant sustained injuries in a road accident on 14.02.2008 to lower end of right femur and his right leg was amputed. Medical certificate, verified 24% disability to upper limb and 85% to lower limb. Claimant therein was a Vegetable Vendor. Tribunal allowed compensation treating disability of whole body at 30%, which was enhanced by High Court to 65%. Supreme Court said that a Vegetable Vendor might not require mobility to the extent that he sells vegetables at one place but the occupation of vegetable vending is not confined to selling vegetables from a particular location. It rather involves procuring vegetables from whole-sale market or farmers and then selling it in retail market. This often involves selling vegetables in cart which requires 100% mobility. Court said that even if it is presumed that vegetable vending by claimant involved selling vegetables from one place, claimant would require assistance with his mobility in bringing vegetables to market place which otherwise would be extremely difficult for him with an amputated leg. Court further observed that in manual labour cases, loss of limb is often equivalent to loss of livelihood. In that case Court upheld disability of 85% since claimant was capable to earn his livelihood once he is brought in market place.

70. In Rajan Vs. Soly Sebastian and another, 2015(10) SCC 506 claimant was a driver and in a road accident sustained injury causing blurred vision. Doctor certified body disability to the extent of 60%. High Court treated disability to the extent of 100% since it was not possible for claimant to earn his livelihood by working as driver and there was a total permanent disablement to the extent of 100% in respect of earning capacity. Supreme Court also upheld permanent disability with regard to earning capacity as 100%.

71. In Sanjay Kumar Vs. Ashok Kumar and another, 2014(5) SCC 330 claimant sustained injuries resulting in amputation of right thigh. As per Entry 18 in Part II of Schedule I of Act, 1923, loss of earning capacity was assessed as 70% and Tribunal determined compensation accordingly. Claimant was an Embroider, a skilled workman. Court upheld 70% disability and loss of earning capacity. One more aspect was added that claimant may need assistance in order to travel and move around, regular check-ups and will most likely use a crutch to walk, all of which will incur expenses. It is also a factor which is bound to cause loss of marriage prospects, which is a major loss, keeping in mind the young age of claimant. Thus under the head of loss of future prospect, Court awarded compensation separately at Rs. 75,000/-. It was also observed that amputation, i.e., loss of a limb causes a profusion of distress and claimant has to deal with same for rest of his life. He might have to deal with discrimination and stigma in society due to the fact that he is an amputee. Claimant, therefore, was also allowed compensation of Rs. 1,00,000/- towards loss of amenities. The injury has permanently disabled claimant, reducing his enjoyment of life and full pursuit of all activities he was engaged in, prior to accident.

72. In matter of death, of late, usual award of compensation under the heads "loss of life" and "loss of consortium" is to the extent of Rs. 100000/- under each head; and in respect of loss of love, it is for each category of legal representative, i.e., children behind wife. Under the head of "funeral expenses", 25,000/- is being awarded very frequently. Interest is being allowed at the rate of 9%. Some of the recent authorities in this regard are, Kanhsingh Vs. Tukaram, 2015(1) SCALE 366; Kalpanaraj and others Vs. Tamil Nadu State Transport Corporation, 2015(2) SCC 764; Asha Verman and others Vs. Maharaj Singh and others, 2015(4) SCALE 329; and, Jitendra Khimshanker Trivedi and others Vs. Kasam Daud Kumbhar and others, 2015(4) SCC 237.

73. Now, in the backdrop of statutory provisions as also the precedents discussed above, we now proceed to consider points for determination formulated above in detail.

74. Coming to question-(i), regarding non-examination of Drivers, we find that owner of Truck No. MH 15G 4212 was impleaded as defendant-2 and owner of vehicle Toyota Qualis bearing no. MH 04BN 1138 was impleaded as defendant-4 in the claim petition. Kaleem Babu was driving vehicle Toyota Qualis while Madhukar Ramchandra Vikram was driving tortfeasing Truck. Defendant-2 i.e. owner of Truck before Tribunal while admitting the factum of accident, causing injuries to passengers of Toyota Qualis, stated in paras - 3 and 5 of his written statement that accident took place due to negligence of Driver of Toyota Qualis and not that of Driver of Truck. Similarly, owner of Toyota Qualis in his written statement while admitting accident, pleaded in para-5 that Driver of Truck was negligent and rash in driving which caused accident and there was no negligence on the part of Driver of Toyota Qualis.

75. Insurer-1 in its written statement dated 28.08.2010 initially disputed the very factum of accident and the same stand was taken in additional written statement also. Insurer-2 also in written statement, initially disputed the very factum of accident and claimed that no such accident took place. In the additional written statement dated 13.03.2012 filed by Insurer-2, it reiterated its stand that no such accident took place as is evident from para-3 of additional written statement. There was no pleading at all either on the part of Insurer- 1 or Insurer-2 that accident had taken place not on account of rash and negligent driving of the Drivers but despite of all precautions, unfortunate incident has occurred.

76. Thus, with regard to the factum that there was rash and negligent driving by Drivers or not, no such plea was taken by Insurers- 1 and 2, both, either in their written statements or additional written statements.

77. On the contrary, owners of two tortfeasing vehicles admitted the factum of accident but pleaded that driving of vehicle was rash and negligent on the part of Driver of vehicle other than the one owned by each of them. Meaning thereby, owners of tortfeasing vehicles admitted that accident took place and also admitted that there was rash and negligent driving by Driver. The only difference is that Truck owner pleaded it to be on the part of Driver of Toyota Qualis while owner of Toyota Qualis pleaded it to be on the part of Driver of Truck. That being so, there was no onus on the part of claimant to show that accident has taken place due to rash and negligent driving since this fact, as it is, was not objected or otherwise pleaded by Insurers- 1 and 2 and owners of two tortfeasing vehicles admitted the factum of rash and negligent driving but levelled allegations against each other's Drivers. Thus, there was no initial burden on Claimant to prove the factum of rash and negligent driving and on the contrary, it was for the defendants i.e. owners of two tortfeasing vehicles to adduce evidence in support of their plea that rash and negligent driving was attributable to the Driver of another vehicle than the one owned by them which they failed. That being so, Tribunal has affixed liability upon both the vehicles and since both vehicles were insured with Insurers- 1 and 2, respectively, responsibility has been directed to be shared by both Insurance Companies.

78. In view of above pleadings and discussion, we are clearly of the view that non-examination of Drivers in the case in hand, could not have rendered claim for compensation by claimant not maintainable and for this reason alone, it cannot be said that judgment and award in question is erroneous in any manner. Question-(i), therefore, is answered against Insurers- 1 and 2 i.e. appellants- 1 and 2 in FAFOs- 1 and 3.

79. Now, we come to Questions- (ii) and (iii) which, in our view, can be dealt with together.

80. Certain provisions of Act, 1988 have conferred power upon State Government concerned to make Rules on the subjects stated under aforesaid provisions. Relevant provisions of Act, 1988, in this regard, we may refer in brief as hereunder:-

81. Section 28 confers power of making rules upon State Government for the purpose of carrying into effect provisions of Chapter II other than the matters specified in Section 27. Chapter II, contemplates provisions of licensing of drivers of motor vehicles. In sub-section (2) of Section 28 certain specific subjects are mentioned but the same are also in the context of licensing of connected matters therewith.

82. Similarly, Section 38 confers power upon State Government to make rules for the purpose of carrying into effect provisions of Chapter III. Sub-section (2) specifies certain subjects which also relates to matters concerned with Chapter III which deals with provisions of licensing of conductors of stage carriages.

83. Then comes Section 65 which confers similar power upon State Government for framing rules for carrying into effect the provisions of Chapter IV relating to registration of motor vehicles.

84. Next is Section 95 which confers power upon State Government to frame rules as to Stage Carriages and Contract Carriages and conduct of passengers in such vehicles. This Section 95 is part of Chapter V which contains provisions relating to control of transport vehicles.

85. Section 96 confers power upon State Government to frame rules for the purpose of carrying into effect, provisions of Chapter V.

86. Section 107 confers power to frame rule for carrying into effect the provisions of Chapter VI which deals with special provisions relating to State transport undertakings.

87. Section 111 confers power upon State Government to frame rules regulating construction, equipment and maintenance of motor vehicles and Trailers, with respect to all matters other than the matters specified in sub-section (1) of Section 110. This Section 111 is part of Chapter VII which contains provisions of construction, equipment and maintenance of motor vehicles.

88. Section 138 confers power to frame rules upon State Government for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of Chapter VIII which contains provisions relating to control of traffic.

89. Section 176 is the only relevant provision which takes into its ambit Sections 165 to 174 which are part of Chapter XII relating to Claims Tribunal. Section 176 reads as under:

"176. Power of State Government to make rules.--A State Government may make rules for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of sections 165 to 174, and in particular, such rules may provide for all or any of the following matters, namely:--

(a) the form of application for claims for compensation and the particulars it may contain, and the fees, if any, to be paid in respect of such applications;

(b) the procedure to be followed by a Claims Tribunal in holding an inquiry under this Chapter;

(c) the powers vested in a Civil Court which may be exercised by a Claims Tribunal;

(d) the form and the manner in which and the fees (if any) on payment of which an appeal may by preferred against an award of a Claims Tribunal; and

(e) any other matter which is to be, or may be, prescribed."

90. Lastly, it is Section 213 which is part of Chapter XIV, i.e., "Miscellaneous". Section 213 confers power upon State Government to establish a Motor Vehicles Department and appoint officers therefor as it thinks fit.

91. In exercise of powers under Sections 28, 38, 65, 95, 96, 107, 111, 138, 176, 213 of Act, 1988 read with Section 21 of General Clauses Act, 1897 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1897), Governor of Uttar Pradesh in supersession of all existing Rules on the subject, promulgated the Rules, 1998. Initially, only Rule 220 of Rules, 1998 was available on the statute book with reference to judgement and award of compensation and read as under:-

"220. Judgement and award of compensation - (1) The Claims Tribunal, in passing orders, shall record concisely in judgement the findings on each of the issues framed and the reasons for such finding and make an award, specifying the amount of compensation to be paid by the insurer or in the case of a vehicle exempted under sub-section (2) or (3) of Section 146 by the owner thereof and shall also specify the person or persons to whom compensation shall be payable.

(2) Where compensation is awarded to two or more persons under sub-rule (1) the Claims Tribunal shall also specify the amount payable to each of them.

(3) The Claims Tribunal may, while disposing of claims for compensation, make such orders regarding costs and expenses incurred in the proceeding as it thinks fit."

92. Subsequently, vide Amendment Rules, 2011 published in U.P. Gazette Extraordinary dated 26.09.2011, an amendment was made in Rules, 1998 and Rules 220A and 220B were inserted therein.

93. Admittedly, aforesaid Rules 220A and 220B, neither were in existence when accident took place i.e. 15.09.2009 nor when application for compensation under Section 166 of Act, 1988 was filed by Smt. Manju Shukla herself on 11.06.2010 nor on the date when she died on 06.06.2011 resulting in amendment of application and substitution of husband of deceased as claimant 1/1. Thus, it can be said that Rules 220A and 220B may not have been invoked by Tribunal while adjudicating claim in hand for the reason that there is nothing on record to show that Rules 220A and 220B were given any retrospective effect.

94. Even otherwise, we find that aforesaid Rules only recognize various Heads of damages/compensation which are to be considered for award of compensation by Tribunal and simultaneously it has also quantified amount under certain heads. Considering the aforesaid Rules, a Division Bench of this Court in National Insurance Company Limited Vs. Lavkush and Others 2017 (4) ALJ 391 and III (2018) ACC 319 (All.) has held that statutory obligation of determination of just compensation is that of Tribunal and it cannot be checked and controlled by way of subordinate legislation. This Court, therefore, has held that above Rules at best can be taken as guidelines with respect to award of compensation under different heads but cannot control the obligation of Tribunal to determine just compensation. The amount to be determined by Tribunal has to be considered by Tribunal independently without being hazed by any extraneous material or subordinate legislation and, therefore, Rule 220A cannot control determination of amount of compensation to be awarded by Tribunal. The relevant observations made by this Court in paras - 81, 85 and 86 of the judgement read as under:-

"81. In the light of aforesaid concept of determination of compensation which should be "just" and having been held, a statutory obligation of Tribunal, we find it difficult to accept that such statutory obligation of Tribunal can be restricted, checked or controlled by subordinate delegated legislation, by making a rule, specifying a particular amount and excluding scope of determination of "just compensation" under respective heads for which rule is framed."

"85. As we have already noted that under Section 176 of Act, 1988, power of framing rules in the context of Sections 165 to 174 has been conferred but subjects specified nowhere talks of fixation of amount towards compensation by way of rule, on the part of State Government. When Act contemplates and confers this power upon Tribunal, since compensation has to be determined by process of adjudication, it cannot be said that by fixing certain amount towards compensation under different heads by State Government by framing rule, it has exercised its power to carry out performance of relevant provisions of Act. On the contrary, it runs otherwise. Since there is no challenge to the rules in the case in hand, therefore, we find it appropriate to read Rule 220A, at the best, as a guideline, but ultimate adjudication/ determination has to be made by Tribunal, on the question of amount of compensation which is "just" and payable to claimant.

86. Section 168 confers power upon Tribunal to determine "just" compensation. We are of the view that State Government in exercise of rule framing power cannot control, and exclude scope of determination by Tribunal of "just compensation" under various heads. The attempt of rule making authority in controlling function of Tribunal making a rule, is beyond its competence and would render such Rules ultra vires of Section 168. Hence, in order to read rules in question in harmony, we have no option but to hold that Rule 220A of U.P. Rules, 1998 lays down only a guideline with respect to award of compensation under different heads but ultimate authority is that of Tribunal to determine and award appropriate compensation which is "just". (Emphasis added)

95. We, therefore, answer questions- (ii) and (iii) partly in favour of Insurers- 1 and 2, i.e. appellants of FAFOs- 1 and 3 to the extent that Tribunal ought not to have referred to Rules 220A and 220B in the present case for awarding compensation under any head and instead it ought to have guided itself by law already settled some of which has been referred and discussed above.

96. However, we make it clear that simply for the reason that deceased was a house-wife, it cannot be said that no compensation for future prospects could have been allowed. On this aspect, issue has now been settled by a Constitution Bench in National Insurance Company Limited Vs. Pranay Sethi and Others 2017 (16) SCC 680 wherein Court in para-59 has answered issues considered by it giving its conclusions as under:-

"59. In view of the aforesaid analysis, we proceed to record our conclusions:-

(59.1) The two-Judge Bench in Santosh Devi should have been well advised to refer the matter to a larger Bench as it was taking a different view than what has been stated in Sarla Verma, a judgment by a coordinate Bench. It is because a coordinate Bench of the same strength cannot take a contrary view than what has been held by another coordinate Bench.

(59.2) As Rajesh has not taken note of the decision in Reshma Kumari, which was delivered at earlier point of time, the decision in Rajesh is not a binding precedent.

(59.3) While determining the income, an addition of 50% of actual salary to the income of the deceased towards future prospects, where the deceased had a permanent job and was below the age of 40 years, should be made. The addition should be 30%, if the age of the deceased was between 40 to 50 years. In case the deceased was between the age of 50 to 60 years, the addition should be 15%. Actual salary should be read as actual salary less tax.

(59.4) In case the deceased was self-employed or on a fixed salary, an addition of 40% of the established income should be the warrant where the deceased was below the age of 40 years. An addition of 25% where the deceased was between the age of 40 to 50 years and 10% where the deceased was between the age of 50 to 60 years should be regarded as the necessary method of computation. The established income means the income minus the tax component.

(59.5) For determination of the multiplicand, the deduction for personal and living expenses, the tribunals and the courts shall be guided by paragraphs 30 to 32 of Sarla Verma which we have reproduced hereinbefore.

(59.6) The selection of multiplier shall be as indicated in the Table in Sarla Verma read with paragraph 42 of that judgment.

(59.7) The age of the deceased should be the basis for applying the multiplier.

(59.8) Reasonable figures on conventional heads, namely, loss of estate, loss of consortium and funeral expenses should be Rs. 15,000/-, Rs. 40,000/- and Rs. 15,000/- respectively. The aforesaid amounts should be enhanced at the rate of 10% in every three years." (Emphasis added)

97. In view of above judgement in Pranay Sethi and others (supra), an addition of 40 per cent of established income will have to be applied since the age of deceased was 26 years i.e. below 40 years at the time of death.

98. Now, we proceed to consider question-(iv). Tribunal has assessed notional income of deceased who was admittedly a house-wife at Rs. 150/- per day observing that she was an young lady, well-educated and belong to a good family. For assessing above income, he accepted the above contention advanced on behalf of claimant-appellant in FAFO-2 that even a labour, employed in employment scheme under Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Guarantee Act earn wages of Rs. 150/- per day and, therefore, no income lower than that can be assessed in respect of deceased. Consequently, Tribunal has held monthly income of deceased as Rs.4,500/- and concurrently annual income of Rs.54,000/-. Thereafter, Tribunal has allowed a deduction of 1/3rd of the income towards personal expenses and that is how, the multiplicant has been computed to arrive at compensation as Rs. 6,48,000/-.

99. Learned counsel for Claimant-Appellant in FAFO-2 contended that notional income of deceased has been taken on much lower side but when pointed out, could not dispute, that it is the contention of claimant-appellant himself which has been accepted by Tribunal to determine income at Rs. 150/- per day. That being so, we find no reason to allow claimant-appellant to change his stand before this Court in appeal to claim higher notional income. As we have already noticed above, in case of death of a house-wife, in order to assess pecuniary value of services rendered by a house-wife, Court has upheld determination of pecuniary value after considering following aspects :-

(a) Loss to the family of wife's housekeeping services.

(b) Loss suffered by children of personal attention of their mother, apart from housekeeping services rendered by her.

(c) Loss of wife's personal care and attention suffered by husband in addition to loss of housekeeping services.

100. Here family consisted of a large number of members i.e. Sri Shiv Kumar Shukla (father-in-law), Smt. Shashikala Shukla (mother-in-law), Kumari Sudha Shukla (sister-in-law - nand) etc. All of them have suffered loss of household services as also love and affection and care in different capacities in the family i.e. daughter-in-law, sister-in-law, wife etc. In the claim petition, though claimant-appellant stated that pecuniary value of services rendered by Smt. Manju Shukla worth about Rs. 10,000/- per month but he did not render any evidence so as to prove the same but instead pleaded before Tribunal that pecuniary value/ notional income of deceased should not be less than Rs. 150/- per day and the same has been accepted by Tribunal. In that view of the matter, we find no reason to take a different view and we hold that notional income of deceased determined by Tribunal warrants no interference. Question-(iv) is, therefore, answered against claimant-appellant in FAFO-2.

101. Now, we come to question-(v). Tribunal has referred to various documents and oral deposition of various witnesses and thereafter has awarded Rs. 55,00,000/- towards expenses incurred by claimant on the treatment of deceased. Here, we find a few misreading on the part of Tribunal. Medical bill i.e. Paper No. Ga-82 is shown to be of Rs. 25,00,943/- but as a matter of fact, it is of only Rs. 25,943/-, therefore, about Rs. 24,75,000/- has been read excess in the said document and to this extent, finding of Tribunal is apparently perverse.

102. We, therefore, ourselves have examined the documents and prepared chart as aforesaid. Serial Nos. 10 to 13 (Paper Nos. GA-80 to GA-83) and 24 to 32 (Paper Nos. GA-95 to GA-99 and GA-135 to GA-138) refers to various payments made to hospitals, medical stores for purchase of medicines etc. and employment of nursing staff. Further, a close scrutiny of Paper Nos. GA-80 and GA-81 shows that GA-80 contains details of various expenses incurred in the treatment of deceased at Kokilaben Dhirubhai Ambani Hospital at Mumbai and it is for Rs. 19,25,483/- whereas GA-81 contains receipts of payment made to said Hospital, therefore, both cannot be taken together since amount of expenses shown in GA-80 are same as GA-81 which contains receipts of payment to those expenses. Therefore, GA-81 has also to be excluded. It leaves only following documents of expenses towards medical treatment:-

S.No.	Paper No.	No. of Bills/ Vouchers	Expenses towards	Amount in Rs.
1.	GA-80	102	Hospital: Kokilaben Dhirubhai Ambani	Rs. 19,25,483.00/-
2.	GA-82	4	Bina Nurses Bureau	Rs. 25,943.00/-
3.	GA-83	3	Medicines	Rs. 4,785.00/-
4.	GA-95	90	Medicine at Sri Ram Medical Store	Rs. 67,422.00/-
5.	GA-96	10	Medicine at Sri Ram Medical Store	Rs. 4,848.00/-
6.	GA-97	8	Agrawal Surgical Emporium	Rs. 17,449.00/-

7.	GA-98	20	Gaurav Nursing Home	Rs. 3,87,050.00/-
8.	GA-99	2	Surgery and Pathology	Rs. 3,850.00/-
9.	GA-135	6	Bed Charge of Gaurav Nursing Home	Rs. 1,75,800.00/-
10.	GA-136	6	X-Ray and Pathology of Gaurav Nursing Home	Rs. 13,350.00/-
11.	GA-137	14	Medicine at Sri Ram Medical Store	Rs. 6,727.00/-
12.	GA-138	5	Agrawal Surgical Emporium	Rs. 6,257.00/-
Total				Rs. 26,38,964.00/-
Total : Twenty Six Lakh Thirty Eight Thousand Nine Hundred Sixty Four only

103. Learned counsel for Insurers contended that only the amount which have actually been incurred towards medical treatment, as above, could have been allowed by Tribunal and that is only Rs. 26,38,964/-. Hence, award of compensation of Rs. 55,00,000/- towards expenses incurred on the treatment of deceased by Tribunal is patently erroneous. We find it difficult to accept above submission. Whenever there is a permanent disability, it has been held that pecuniary damages may include (i) medical attendance; (ii) loss of earning profit upto the date of trial; (iii) other material loss.

104. Courts have also held that non-pecuniary damages may also include: (i) damages for mental and physical shock, pain suffering, already suffered or likely to be suffered in future; (ii) damages to compensate for the loss of amenities of life which may include a variety of matters; (iii) damages for the loss of expectation of life, (iv) inconvenience, hardship, discomfort, disappointment, frustration and mental stress in life etc.

105. Facts of the case, which have been considered by Tribunal and not disputed before us, if summarized, show that claimant, deceased and other family members started their journey from Mumbai to Shirdi, travelling in tortfeasing vehicle Toyota Qualis on 15.09.2009 at 07:00 AM. Due to cruel hands of destiny, they met with ill-fated vehicle which collided with a Truck causing injuries to passengers in vehicle Toyota Qualis. Deceased suffered serious injuries and went in Coma-II stage. She was immediately admitted in Tambe Hospital at Sangamner, Maharashtra where she remained admitted from 15.09.2009 to 08.10.2009. She underwent various medical examinations including CT Scan etc. Her condition deteriorated at Tambe Hospital, Sangamner and, therefore, she was referred to Kokilaben Dhirubhai Ambani Hospital. She was taken by ambulance to Hospital at Mumbai where she was admitted on 08.10.2009 and remained there for about seven and a half months i.e. 20.05.2010. Total expenses incurred at Kokilaben Dhirubhai Ambani Hospital, Mumbai are Rs. 19,25,483/-. Since deceased was in Coma on the date of accident itself, she could not have undertaken her care, therefore, she had to be looked after by qualified nurses. Her family members were also supposed to be present for general medical care and arranging treatment. For this purpose, bills of Bina Nurses Bureau, Mumbai (Paper No. GA-82) was produced and claimant also produced various bills of Hospital where he and his family members during the period of treatment of deceased at Sangamner as also Mumbai, incurred expenses towards fooding, lodging, travelling etc. On 20.05.2010, deceased while lying in Coma-II stage was discharged and it is quite common that family members could not be expected to take care of deceased at a distant place from their parental residence i.e. Ballia for a very long time. Therefore, they brought her to Ballia and got admitted at Gaurav Nursing Home, Tikampur under the treatment of Dr. D. Rai. In the aforesaid local Hospital, she remained admitted for almost more than an year and 15 days and died on 06.06.2011. Pecuniary damages in such case of fatal injuries and disability are inclusive and cover all the expenses which have been incurred not only in actual medical treatment i.e. Doctor fee, Hospital fee, testing fee, medicines cost etc. but also expenses incurred for hiring nursing services, expenses incurred by persons present to take care of the injured for the entire period. It will also include boarding, lodging and travelling expenses, if any, by persons taking care of injured in the Hospital and also the expenses incurred during shifting of injured from one place to another. Such expenses cannot be excluded from the total amount of compensation to be awarded to claimant. Therefore, expenses proved by claimant through documents i.e. Paper Nos. GA-75, GA-78, GA-84 and GA-86 to GA-94 cannot be excluded from the amount of compensation and Tribunal having allowed the same, in our view, has proceeded rightly. The total amount proved by aforesaid documents, as expenses incurred by claimant-appellant comes to Rs. 49,46,601.57/-.

106. Therefore, we answer question-(v) holding that under the head of medical expenses, treatment, medical care etc., Tribunal erred in awarding Rs. 55,00,000/- and the same should have been Rs.49,46,602/- (round off).

107. Now, we come to question- (vi). This issue involves three aspects:-

(a) Loss of employment by claimant for getting involved/ engaged in the care and treatment of his wife who remained in Coma-II stage for almost 21 months.

(b) Loss of foetus due to termination of pregnancy in accident.

(c) Pain, shock, disability etc., suffered by deceased during the period, she was in Coma-II stage for about 21 months.

108. Evidence has come on record that claimant Arvind Kumar Shukla was appointed as Business Development Manager in Tata AIG Life Insurance Company Limited, Mumbai vide appointment letter dated 17.09.2008 on a monthly salary of Rs. 25,833/-. Within one year of appointment, the ill-fated accident took place on 15.09.2009 whereafter claimant got engaged in the treatment and care of his wife who was under Coma-II stage and lost his job. It is evident from record and evidence that Smt. Manju Shukla having gone under Coma-II stage on the date and time of accident itself, did not come out of it and in that condition she died on 06.06.2011. Statement of PW-2 Kedar Chaudhary proves that she was brought from Mumbai to Ballia when she was in Coma-II stage. He was also travelling in tortfeasing vehicle Toyota Qualis and an eyewitness to the accident. He has stated that it was a head-on collision between two vehicles.

109. The loss of job of claimant is directly attributable to the accident in question. Fatal injuries suffered by deceased and her continuous treatment ran for about 21 months. In our view, above loss was liable to be taken into consideration for awarding just compensation to claimant since it was directly attributable to the accident in question and injuries suffered by deceased. Claimant has stated that he was capable of saving about Rs. 15,000/- per month. If some margin is allowed to be discounted, at least loss of saving of Rs. 10,000/- per month can be awarded. Thus, in our view, Rs. 2,10,000/-, in lump sum, should have been awarded to claimant for loss of employment.

110. The second aspect is termination of pregnancy. Appellant-PW-1 and Sudha Shukla-PW-3 have stated that deceased was pregnant at the time of accident. Nothing has been brought to our notice from the statement of above witnesses to dislodge the truth of above statement of said witnesses who being family members could have such information and their evidence is quite natural on this aspect. Tribunal has followed the judgement of Delhi High Court in Prakash and Others vs. Arun Kumar Saini and Another 2010 (3) TAC 114 whereby a lump sum of Rs. 2,50,000/- was awarded for termination of foetus in accident. We find no reason to defer from above view and, therefore, uphold the award of Rs. 2,50,000/- on this aspect.

111. Then we come to third aspect i.e. pain, shock etc., suffered by deceased during the period of 21 months when she remained in Coma. Under this head, Tribunal has awarded a lump sum amount of Rs. 5,00,000/-. In our view, this amount is much inadequate and unjust. A young lady, not only suffered pain, mental shock etc., but lost unborn child, went under trauma, remaining in Coma for about 21 months. Her condition was such that Doctors declared her 100 per cent disabled during the above period of 21 months. What she suffered, may not be weighed very accurately in terms of money, still we are of the view that sufferings had continued for almost 21 months i.e. one year and nine months. Thus, the head of mental shock, pain etc., a sum of Rs. 10,00,000/- would have been appropriate to be awarded and we order accordingly. Question-(vi) is, therefore, answered by holding that for loss of job, a sum of Rs. 2,10,000/-; for loss of pregnancy Rs. 2,50,000/- as awarded by Tribunal and for pain and shock etc. a sum of Rs. 10,00,000/- deserves to be awarded.

112. Then, we come to question-(vii). Here, we do not find much difficulty in answering the same for the reason that a Constitution Bench in National Insurance Company Limited vs. Pranay Sethi (supra) has directed that reasonable amount on conventional heads, namely, loss of estate, loss of consortium and funeral expenses should have been awarded. Court itself has awarded Rs. 40,000/-, Rs. 15,000/- and Rs. 15,000/-, respectively under the aforesaid heads.

113. Further in Malarvizhi and Others Vs. United India Insurance Company Limited and Another (Civil Appeal No. 9196-97 of 2019 @ SLP (C) Nos. 9630-31 of 2019) decided on 09.12.2019, Court has awarded under the head of loss of love and affection Rs. 50,000/-.

114. In view of above, we hold that claimant-appellant of FAFO-2 is entitled for compensation in the heads of loss of dependency Rs.6,48,000/-; future prospects Rs.2,59,200/-; medical expenses of medical care and medical attendants etc. Rs.49,46,602/-; loss of profit (loss of employment), termination of pregnancy and mental pain, shock etc. Rs.14,60,000/- and loss of love and affection Rs.1,20,000/-. Total comes to Rs.74,33,802/-. and it is accordingly awarded.

115. Judgment and award dated 29.09.2014 passed by Tribunal is accordingly modified to the above extent and in respect of all other aspects, it is confirmed.

116. All the three appeals are accordingly partly allowed.

117. In view of divided success, cost is made easy.

A. Civil Law-Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 - Ss 166, 168 - Compensation - Determination of age for multiplier - postmortem report cannot be an evidence on the basis of which the age could be determined

In the postmortem report age of the deceased mentioned as 58 years - Held - Tribunal rightly determined the age of the deceased on the basis of the oral testimony in which witnesses stated the age of the deceased to be 53 yrs. The postmortem report cannot be an evidence on the basis of which the age could be determined (Para 7)

B. Civil Law-Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 - Ss 166, 168 - Compensation - Reasonable figures on conventional heads, namely, loss of estate, loss of consortium and funeral expenses is Rs. 15,000/, Rs. 40,000/ and Rs. 15,000/ respectively (Para 10)

1. Sarla Verma Vs. Delhi Transport Corporation Ltd. AIR 2009 SC 3104
2. National Insurance Company Vs. Pranay Sethi & ors AIR 2017 SC 5157

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pradeep Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Manish Kumar Nigam, learned counsel for the appellant-National Insurance Company and Sri Prakash Singh, learned counsel for the claimant-respondents. Perused the record.

2. This appeal has been filed against the judgement and award dated 09.1.2014 passed in M.A.C.P. No. 177 of 2011 (Smt. Vimla Devi and others Vs. Balloo and others) by which, the learned Tribunal has awarded Rs.4,27,000/- as compensation along with simple interest at the rate of 7% per anum from the date of institution of petition.

3. Learned counsel for the appellant has challenged the said award on the basis that the age of the deceased was wrongly determined to be 53 years, whereas in the postmortem report, it is mentioned that the age of the deceased was 58 years, hence multiplier of 11 which was applied by the learned Tribunal is incorrect and the multiplier of 9 should have been applied. Moreover, towards loss of consortium Rs.1,00,000/- and for funeral expenses Rs.25,000/- have been awarded which is not correct in view of the U.P. Motor Vehicle Amended Rules, 2011 which provides for consortium from Rs.5,000/- to Rs.10,000/- and for funeral expenses Rs.5,000/- which ever is less. As such, the compensation which was awarded by the learned Tribunal is excessive and, therefore, the amount of compensation is liable to be modified, accordingly.

4. This claim petition came up before the learned Tribunal on account of death of the deceased by the accident caused by the offending vehicle which was being driven by its driver rashly and negligently which caused the death of the deceased as the offending vehicle went to the wrong side and dashed the deceased. The claim petition was filed by the widow, son, daughter and the mother of the deceased which was contested by the owner and driver of the offending vehicle and the same was also contested by the Insurance Company. On the basis of the pleadings, the following issues were framed:-

(1) Whether, the driver of vehicle no. R.J. 20 C.B.1927 on 13.2.2011 at about 4.00 p.m. driving the vehicle rashly and negligently dashed Matadeen near Badagaon Bus Stand due to which Matadeen received serious injuries and due to that injuries, Matadeen died?

(2) Whether on the date of accident, the driver of vehicle no. R.J. 20 C.B.1927 was having valid and effective license?

(3) Whether on the date of accident, the vehicle no. R.J. 20 C.B.1927 was fully insured with the Insurance Company?

(4) Whether the claimant-respondents are entitled for compensation? If yes, then how much and from whom?

5. In support, oral evidence was given by the claimants along with police papers, such as, FIR, postmortem report, charge sheet, driving license of driver, registration certificate of the offending vehicle and the papers relating to the insurance. No oral evidence was given from by the opposite parties nor any document was filed. On the basis of evidence on record, after due perusal, the impugned award was passed by the learned Tribunal.

6. The learned counsel for the Insurance Company has agitated the impugned award on the basis that the amount awarded for loss of consortium and against the funeral expenses is excessive. The second argument is that the age of the deceased was determined to be 53 years, whereas it should have been 58 years in view of postmortem report. As such, multiplier applied by the learned Tribunal was wrong and instead of multiplier of 11, the multiplier of 9 should have been applied.

7. So far as second argument is concerned, the learned Tribunal has determined the age of the deceased on the basis of the oral testimony given from the side of the claimant-respondents in which witnesses have stated the age of the deceased to be 53 years. The postmortem report cannot be an evidence on the basis of which, the age could be determined by the learned Tribunal and, therefore, the learned Tribunal has rightly determined the age of the deceased to be 53 years. The multiplier of 11 has been applied by the learned Tribunal. In Sarla Verma Vs. Delhi Transport Corporation Ltd., AIR 2009 SC 3104, the Supreme Court has laid down as below:

"We therefore hold that the multiplier to be used should be as mentioned in column (4) of the Table above (prepared by applying Susamma Thomas, Trilok Chandra and Charlie), which starts with an operative multiplier of 18 (for the age groups of 15 to 20 and 21 to 25 years), reduced by one unit for every five years, that is M-17 for 26 to 30 years, M-16 for 31 to 35 years, M-15 for 36 to 40 years, M-14 for 41 to 45 years, and M-13 for 46 to 50 years, then reduced by two units for every five years, that is, M-11 for 51 to 55 years, M-9 for 56 to 60 years, M-7 for 61 to 65 years and M-5 for 66 to 70 years."

8. The above multiplier system has been further affirmed by the Supreme Court in National Insurance Company Vs. Pranay Sethi & others, AIR 2017 SC 5157 and it cannot be said that there is any illegality in applying the multiplier of 11 years as the available multiplier is of 11 at the age from 51 to 55 years in view of the law laid down by the Supreme Court. It is pertinent to mention that multiplier system has been provided under law law to maintain uniformity in determining quantum of compensation in order to avoid variation. A multiplier of 11 has rightly been applied by the learned Tribunal and I do not find any illegality in that.

9. In Sarla Verma (supra), it has been held by the Supreme Court that a proceeding before the Tribunal is in the nature of inquiry in which a very few thing is required to be established. The Court observed:

"Basically only three facts need to be established by the claimants for assessing compensation in the case of death: (a) age of the deceased; (b) income of the deceased; and the (c) the number of dependents. The issues to be determined by the Tribunal to arrive at the loss of dependency are (i) additions/deductions to be made for arriving at the income; (ii) the deduction to be made towards the personal living expenses of the deceased; and (iii) the multiplier to be applied with reference of the age of the deceased."

10. So far as the award of compensation under the conventional head is concerned of consortium and funeral expenses is concerned, in order to maintain uniformity in this respect, the Supreme Court has made it clear in Pranay Sethi (supra) that "Reasonable figures on conventional heads, namely, loss of estate, loss of consortium and funeral expenses should be Rs. 15,000/-, Rs. 40,000/- and Rs. 15,000/- respectively." There is no reason which could afford opportunity for deviation from the above principle laid down in Pranay Sethi (supra). As such, the learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that the said amount for the loss of consortium is liable to be reduced to Rs.40,000/- and for the funeral expenses, the same is liable to be reduced to Rs.15,000/-. The learned Tribunal has awarded Rs. 100000/- for loss of consortium, Rs. 25000/- against funeral expenses and Rs. 5000/- for the loss of estate.

11. Learned counsel for the claimant-respondents has submitted that the learned Tribunal has not considered that the amount for the loss of estate should be much more in view of pronouncement of Supreme Court in Pranay Sethi (supra) and the learned Tribunal has also not calculated the income in the head of future prospect and nothing has been awarded for the loss of affection to the children.

12. The learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that if it was so and the claimant-respondent was feeling that the awarded amount is in lower side and has not been properly calculated in view of legal principles, he should have filed appeal. The learned counsel for the respondent has however countered it on the ground that even if no appeal has been filed, the Court is enough authorized to correct the amount in the aforesaid head under Order 41 Rule 33 of the Civil Procedure Code.

13. It should be noted that the income which has been determined by the learned Tribunal is on the basis of the notional income as the Tribunal determined that claimants were not able to show any income and the finding was given by the learned Tribunal that the deceased was not having any income at all. When this finding has been given that the deceased was not having any income at all, it was not necessary for the learned Tribunal to add any future income as the future income is only permissible in the case of income and not in the case of no income. Therefore, the finding reached by the Tribunal on that point is not required to be disturbed. So far as the amount of loss of estate is concerned, the Tribunal should have awarded Rs. 15000/-, whereas, only Rs. 5000/- has been awarded.

14. In view of above, I do not find any force in other arguments from either side and with the modification that amount of loss of consortium should be Rs.40,000/- and funeral expenses should be Rs.15,000/-. As such an amount of Rs.

70000/- is required to be deducted and Rs. 10000/- should be added against the loss of estate in view of the submission of the learned counsel to respondent-claimant as the amount for the loss of estate should be Rs. 15000/- and not Rs. 5000/- which has been awarded by the learned Tribunal. Thus, a deduction of Rs.60,000/- from the total amount of compensation is required to be made.

15. In view of above discussion, the amount of compensation comes to Rs.3,67,000/-. With this modification, the impugned award is upheld and this appeal is finally disposed.

16. The amount of Rs.25,000/- deposited by the appellant shall be remitted back to the Tribunal which shall be adjusted against the amount of compensation.

Appeal Partly allowed (E-5)

List of case cited :

Sarla Verma and others Versus Delhi Transport Corporation and another reported 2009 Lawsuit(SC) 613

(Delivered by Hon'ble Arvind Kumar Mishra-I, J).)

1. Heard the learned counsel for the appellant, learned Standing counsel and perused the record.

2. By way of the instant appeal, the appellants have prayed for enhancement of the compensation amount awarded by the Tribunal vide its award dated 5.8.2010 in Motor Accident Claim Petition No.72 of 2008 Smt. Shyama @ Rani and others Vs. I.C.I.C.I. Lombard General Insurance Company and others.

3. The claim petition was moved for and over all compensation amount of Rs. 5 lakhs to be realized from the opposite parties, whereas, the Tribunal, under the facts and circumstances of the case, awarded Rs.1,29,500/- along-with interest at the simple rate of 6% per annum.

4. The facts relevant for adjudication of this appeal appear to be that the accident in question was caused on 17.1.2007 while driving rashly and negligently motorcycle No. U.P. 60-H 2126 and dashing the same with the deceased at 7.30 p.m. within village Bharauli Aala on the southern Gazipur Ballia Road near culvert leading from Mohammadabad to Ballia due to which the deceased Agamram Tyagi succumbed to his injuries and died on 18.1.2007. The matter was reported to the police station by the Chaukidar of the concerned village whereupon first information report was lodged and necessary action followed.

5. Later on, the claim petition was moved by the appellants whereby it was claimed that the appellants are the legal heirs of the deceased Agamram Tyagi who was a retired manual labour from coalmine and he would be getting Rs. 3,000/- per month as pension if he had been alive. On account of sudden demise of the deceased Agamram Tyagi, the future of the entire family has been left in the lurch and no one is to look after the family. In the trial court, the matter was contested between the parties and the written statement was filed and on the basis of pleadings, the trial court framed as many as seven issues.

6. Issue no. 1 related to the fact of the incident whether the same was caused by rash and negligent driving of the aforesaid motorcycle on the aforesaid date, time and place by dashing the same with the deceased Agamram Tyagi which resulted into his death during the course of his treatment ?

7. Issue no. 2 related to the fact of holding and possessing valid driving licence by the driver of the offending vehicle.

8. Issue no. 3 related to the fact of insurance of the aforesaid motorcycle No. U.P. 60-H 2126.

9. Issue No.4 related to the fact of compensation, if any, from whom the appellants were entitled to receive.

10. Issue No. 5 related to the fact whether the petition is barred by non-joinder of the necessary party.

11. Issue no. 6 related to the fact of mis-joinder of necessary party.

12. Issue no. 7 related to the point of relief to be given to the appellants.

13. Contention raised on behalf of the appellants is confined to the ambit that the Tribunal while assessing the amount of compensation to be awarded to the appellants erred in law and failed to apply the correct multiplier applicable in the annual dependency amount of the deceased and it wrongly calculated that multiplier of 5 would be applicable to the annual dependency Rs. 24,000/-, whereas, in a catena of cases and particularly in the case of Sarla Verma and others Versus Delhi Transport Corporation and another reported 2009 Lawsuit(SC) 613, Hon'ble Apex Court analyzed the entire multiplier system and has arrived at conclusion that in such cases, normally multiplier of 7 should have been applied by the Tribunal.

14. Learned counsel for the appellants has also engaged attention of this Court to paragraphs 19 and 21 of the judgment and claimed that the principles laid down in Sarla Verma and others (Supra) would prevail but the Tribunal ignored it for no worthy reason. Admittedly, the deceased was 60 years of age. His age should be treated between 60-65 years and while calculating from that point, proper multiplier will be 7 instead of 5.

15. Per contra, learned counsel for the insurance company has vehemently claimed that considering the various facts and the circumstances of the case, obviously it cannot be said with certainty that a person 60 years old would spend only 1/3 of the income for his own use. Here the amount deducted from the annual dependency should have been to the margin of 50% instead of 1/3. Further, the age of the deceased is much more than that which has been shown by the appellants.

16. Considering the siblings of the deceased as old as 7, 10, 12 and 14 years, it cannot be said with certainty that what age the deceased was having at that point of time. Admittedly, the deceased was a retired employee and he was above 60 years and the age factor has not been properly counted by the Tribunal while assessing the case of the appellants. However, the learned counsel submitted that application of proper multiplier say - 5 was rightly applied by the Tribunal and that needs no interference.

17. Considered the submissions.

18. Both sides have filed their papers which have been discussed in the body of the judgment of the Tribunal. The Tribunal, while considering the point of accident, decided issue no. 1 in affirmative in favour of the appellants. Similarly, the factum of insurance of the aforesaid offending vehicle with the insurance company ICICI was also found proper, accordingly finding was recorded by the Tribunal. Similar was the finding that the driver of the offending vehicle was having a legal, valid and effective driving licence. On issue nos. 5 and 6, no evidence was adduced, therefore, the same were decided accordingly.

19. Issue nos. 4 and 7 related to the point of compensation to be awarded to the petitioners, whereas, the Tribunal after considering the claim of the appellants based on the relevant papers and the affidavit, recorded finding to the effect that the deceased Agamram Tyagi was getting only Rs. 3,000/- per month as pension. Therefore, the annual dependency was fixed to Rs.36,000/- and after slicing off 1/3 out of the same, it was pegged to Rs. 24,000/- per annum. Now, considering the age above 60 years, the multiplier of 5 was applied by the Tribunal in this case. However, the principles have been laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Sarla Verma and others Versus Delhi Transport Corporation and another reported 2009 Lawsuit(SC) 613, in para 21, which is extracted as herein below.

"(21)We therefore hold that the multiplier to be used should be as mentioned in column (4) of the Table above (prepared by applying Susamma Thomas, Trilok Chandra and Charlie), which starts with an operative multiplier of 18 (for the age groups of 15 to 20 and 21 to 25 years), reduced by one unit for every five years, that is M-17 for 26 to 30 years, M-16 for 31 to 35 years, M-15 for 36 to 40 years, M-14 for 41 to 45 years, and M-13 for 46 to 50 years, then reduced by two units for every five years, that is, M-11 for 51 to 55 years, M-9 for 56 to 60 years, M-7 for 61 to 65 years and M-5 for 66 to 70 years."

20. In view of above citation of Hon'ble Apex Court, the claim raised on behalf of the appellants is that proper multiplier applied should have been seven instead of five.

21. Upon consideration of the rival submission and perusal of the aforesaid citation of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Sarla Verma (Supra) wherein reflection made in para 21 is indicative of the fact that in such cases, like the present one, the proper multiplier to be applicable would be 7 instead of 5 and the Tribunal erred in law while it applied multiplier of 5 in the annual dependency, therefore, the amount of annual dependency, ought to have been multiplied by 7. Thus, counting at the rate of 7, it is aggregated to Rs.1,68,000/- along-with 7% interest per annum. The Tribunal has also awarded rest of the amount under various other heads - say loss of companionship and estate and the funeral expenses i.e. Rs. 5000/-, Rs.2000/- and Rs. 2,500/- respectively which are justified amount and needs no interference by this Court. The total compensation amount would thus swell to Rs. 1,77,500/- along-with 7% interest instead of 1,29,500/-.

22. In view of above analysis, the instant appeal is partly allowed for and over all compensation amount Rs.1,77,500/-. The judgment and award of the tribunal dated 5.8.2010 passed in Motor Accident Claim Petition No. 72 of 2008 Smt. Shyama @ Rani and others Vs. I.C.I.C.I. Lombard General Insurance Company and others, is hereby modified to the aforesaid extent.

23. Proportional distribution of aforesaid amount among the claimants shall be in line with the disbursement as ordered by the tribunal.

24. The aforesaid entire amount is to be realized from the insurance company and deposited with the tribunal within one month from today.

25. Costs easy.

A. Arbitration Act - "entering upon the reference" - meaning - An arbitrator enters on a reference when he first applies his mind to the dispute - when arbitrator actually enters upon the matter of reference & not when an arbitrator accepted the office or took upon himself that duty

Fact - on 04.09.2004 Civil Judge directed to appoint arbitrator make his award with a period of four months - Civil Judge vide order dated 25.10.2004 appointed sole arbitrator - on 15.11.2004 arbitrator accepted the appointment and entered into reference accordingly and issued notice fixing the first date in the proceedings, on 20.11.2004 for appearance of the parties - Appellant case that award dated 19.03.2005 was time barred made after the mandate of four months had expired - Held - on 20.11.2004 arbitrator applied his mind to the subject matter of dispute put up for arbitration - thus arbitrator entered reference on 20.11.2004 - Computed from the first date fixed in arbitration, he had time upto 19 March 2005 to make the award as his four month mandate survived till then - - No interference (Para 51)

B. Arbitration Act, 1940 - Arbitration & Conciliation Act, 1996 - S. 85 - Abatement - no provision for abatement of any existing arbitration proceeding under 1940 Act on enforcement of the 1996 Act – S. 85(2)(a) of 1996 Act saves operation of 1940 Act - however parties have option to plead & establish existence of an agreement between the parties or consent to apply the New 1996 Act

Held - No provision for abatement of any existing arbitration proceeding under 1940 Act upon enforcement of the New 1996 Act – Even upon the enforcement of the New Act w.e.f. 25.01.1996, the proceedings instituted under Section 20 of the Old 1940 Act, that were pending (on that date), survived - arbitration to be governed by the provision of the 1940 Act (Para 29, 30, 36)

C. Practice & Procedure - Arbitration proceeding - Consent - Stage - stage when consent may be given by the parties to adopt the procedure under the New 1996 Act - parties to an arbitration contract could agree to the applicability of the New 1996 Act even before the New 1996 Act came into force and even when the Old 1940 Act was still holding the field.

Appellant contention that even upon enforcement of the New 1996 Act the claimant pressed application made under Section 20 of the Old 1940 Act (for appointment of arbitrator) - thus parties consented in negative to not proceed under the New 1996 Act - subsequent conduct of the parties of consenting before the arbitrator on 15.02.2005 (to allow the arbitration proceedings to be conducted under the New Act), is an act of no legal consequence - Held - by virtue of Clause 34 of the contract bonds, the New 1996 Act became available upon its enforcement - on 15.02.2005 parties signified to follow the procedure prescribed under the New 1996 Act only - submission by appellant that the option to proceed under the New Act had to be exercised at the first instance, i.e. at the earliest upon enforcement of the New Act, is plainly unsubstantiated - nothing in the New Act or in the language of Section 85, as may allow such an interpretation to arise - consent given by the parties, on 15.02.2005 (before the learned arbitrator), to proceed under the New Act is valid consent - award made in accordance with the provisions of the New Act (Para 40)

D. Arbitration Act (10 of 1940) - S.20(4) - Appointment of sole arbitrator - failure to appoint arbitrator upon specific request - Gives right to other party to invoke jurisdiction of Court for appointment of arbitrator.

MDA contention appointment of the arbitrator by Civil Judge was without jurisdiction as such jurisdiction to appoint arbitrator was available only to Vice Chairman of the MDA -Held - once MDA failed to appoint an arbitrator upon specific request made by the claimant - claimant within its rights to move an application for appointment of an arbitrator - once parties could not agree to appointment of a consented arbitrator - it was left only to the Court to make that appointment - appointment of sole arbitrator did not suffer from any defect. (Para 47)

E. Practice & Procedure – Jurisdiction - acquiescence - Long participation and acquiescence in the proceeding preclude such a party from contending that the proceedings were without jurisdiction - principle is that a party shall not be allowed to blow hot and cold

Held - Once the MDA participated in the proceedings for appointment of arbitrator without raising any objection as to his jurisdiction on account of New 1996 Act having been enforced and allowed such appointment to be made and participated in the proceedings before the arbitrator so appointed - clearly MDA acquiesced - therefore despite defect of jurisdiction, the plea of nullity does not arise - objection raised by the appellant as to inherent lack of jurisdiction and consequently to the award being void ab initio, rejected. 17. Dharma Pratisthanam Vs Madhok Construction (Pvt. Ltd.) (2005) 9 SCC 686

(Delivered by Hon'ble Saumitra Dayal Singh, J.)

1. The present first appeal from order has been filed by the appellant-Meerut Development Authority (in short 'MDA') against rejection of it's objections filed under Section 34 of the Arbitration & Conciliation Act, 1996 (hereinafter referred to as the 'New Act'). The award framed by the learned sole arbitrator dated 19.03.2005 has become enforceable, thus entitling the respondent - M/S Civil Engineering Corporation Ltd. through its proprietor Ms. Tripti Garg (hereinafter referred to as the 'claimant') to monies awarded by the learned arbitrator.

2. Admittedly in 1987, the MDA invited two separate tenders for construction of 62 MIG and 92 LIG houses. Two separate bids were submitted by the claimant for award of the aforesaid two works. They were accepted by MDA. Two separate contract bonds - for construction of 62 MIG and 92 LIG houses, were then executed between the parties on 17.02.1987 and 12.05.1987. The work itself was to be completed within ten months from the date of commencement. However, it remains a fact, despite repeated extensions of time granted, the work could not be completed by the claimant. Ultimately, the MDA cancelled the two contract bonds awarded to the claimant on 01.09.1989. Further, the claimant was black-listed.

3. In such background facts, relying on Clause-34, that was identical in both the contract bonds and which contained an arbitration agreement, the claimant issued a notice dated 08.05.1989 to the MDA to appoint an arbitrator under provisions of the Arbitration Act, 1940 (hereinafter referred to as the 'Old Act').

4. It is also an undisputed fact that no arbitrator came to be appointed by the Vice Chairman, MDA. According to the claimant, it therefore filed an application under Section 20 of the Old Act before the Civil Judge (Senior Division), Meerut, which came to be registered and described as Original Suit No. 904 of 1989. Admittedly, the MDA filed appearance and also it's objections, in that case. Vide order dated 04.09.2004, the said proceeding was allowed and the Additional Civil Judge (Senior Division), Meerut, directed for appointment of an arbitrator. Perusal of that order reveals, in the application filed under Section 20 of the Old Act, the claimant had sought directions to the Vice Chairman of MDA to:- (i) appoint an independent arbitrator and; (ii) to restrain the MDA from awarding the remaining works to any other person. A further direction was sought to issue a commission to prepare inventory of the materials/goods.

5. The order dated 04.09.2004 also reveals that the learned Additional Civil Judge (Senior Division), Meerut directed the parties to propose names of three persons each for appointment of the sole arbitrator. It was further indicated that the arbitrator would be directed to make his award within a period of four months. Before passing the order dated 04.09.2004, the learned Additional Civil Judge (Senior Division), Meerut, appears to have framed five issues, broadly: (i) whether under the contract bonds dated 17.02.1987 and 12.05.1987, there existed any right to appoint an arbitrator; (ii) whether adequate court fee had been paid; (iii) whether the claimant was entitled to any relief; (iv) whether there were any disputes between the claimant & MDA? If yes, it's effect and; (v) whether the application filed under Section 20 was maintainable. All the issues were decided in favour of the claimant.

6. In those proceedings, no objection appears to have been raised by MDA and therefore no issue appears to have been framed as to whether, upon the enforcement of the New Act w.e.f. 25.01.1996, the proceedings instituted by the claimant under Section 20 of the Old Act, that were pending (on that date), survived. Also, it is an undisputed fact that the MDA did not challenge the order dated 04.09.2004 or the consequential order appointing the learned arbitrator, in any separate proceedings.

7. Again undisputedly, neither the MDA appointed any arbitrator during pendency of those proceedings nor any consented arbitrator came to be appointed therein, upon order dated 04.09.2004. Thus, the learned Additional Civil Judge (Senior Division) Meerut, vide his further order dated 25.10.2004 appointed Sri V.K. Tyagi, as the learned sole arbitrator.

8. Upon such order (of appointment), Sri V.K. Tyagi, the learned sole arbitrator issued notice fixing the first date in the proceedings, on 20.11.2004. Both parties then appeared before the learned Arbitrator. It may be noted here itself that even in the course of those arbitration proceedings before the learned arbitrator, no objection was raised by the MDA as to any defect of jurisdiction.

9. At the same time, perusal of the order passed under Section 34 of the New Act reveals, on 15.2.2005 (before the learned Arbitrator) the parties specifically consented to allow the arbitration proceedings to be governed by the New Act. Thereupon, the learned Arbitrator appears to have framed his award dated 19.3.2005. The same was challenged by the MDA on 19.4.2005 by filing objections under Section 34 of the New Act. That proceedings was registered as Arbitration Case No. 49 of 2005. It came to be rejected by the impugned order dated 23.3.2013.

10. Perusal of the impugned order reveals that no specific finding has been returned by the the learned District Judge. Though submissions made have been noticed being - the appointment of the arbitrator was made without jurisdiction, such jurisdiction being available only by the Vice Chairman of the MDA; that appointment had been made contrary to the terms of contract between the parties; in any case, the award dated 19.3.2005 was time barred and; the award is against public policy of India, after noting the counter submissions made on behalf of the claimant, the learned District Judge proceeded to reject the objections filed by the MDA, on a cryptic observation - "After considering the entire facts and circumstances of the case I am of the opinion that the application deserves to be dismissed". No other or separate reason has been assigned to deal with the objections raised by the MDA. Only submissions made have been recorded.

11. Heard Sri Bhupeshwar Dayal, learned counsel for the appellant- MDA and Sri Amit Saxena, learned Senior Advocate, assisted by Sri Mushir Khan, learned counsel for the respondents.

12. First, it has been submitted by learned counsel for the appellant, under Clause 34 of the agreement, the sole arbitrator could be appointed only by the Vice Chairman of MDA and by no other person. If, for any reason whatsoever, as in the present case, it was not possible for the Vice Chairman to appoint an arbitrator, the matter could not be referred to arbitration at all. In this regard, non-appointment of an arbitrator simpliciter (after demand made by the claimant), has been canvassed as sufficient to invoke non-arbitrability clause between the parties. Reliance has been placed on a decision of Kerala High Court in Food Corporation of India & Anr. Vs. A. Mohd. Yunus, AIR 1987 Kerala 231.

13. By way of another reasoning, it has been further submitted, the terms of the agreement i.e. Clause 34 of the contract bonds must be construed strictly, both as to subject matter of arbitration as also the procedure for appointment of the arbitrator. In the instant case though there is no dispute as to the subject matter of dispute (which is clearly arbitrable), yet, in view of the binding clause providing that arbitration may arise only if the arbitrator be appointed by the Vice Chairman, MDA, the appointment made by the learned Additional Civil Judge (Senior Division), Meerut is void. Reliance has been placed on Oriental Insurance Company Limited Vs. Narbheram Power & Steel Pvt. Ltd., (2018) 6 SCC 534 and; M/s Dozco India Pvt. Ltd. Vs. M/s Doosan Infracore Co. Ltd., (2011) 6 SCC 179.

14. Alternatively, since the application made under Section 20 of the Old Act (for appointment of arbitrator), had been pressed by the claimant even upon enforcement of the New Act, clearly therefore, at the first opportunity available, the parties consented to proceed under the Old Act alone. No further power or occasion survived thereafter, to allow the parties to later change their consent, to continue the arbitration proceedings under the New Act. The Old Act alone would govern the arbitration proceedings that followed. In this regard, reliance has also been placed on M/S N. S. Nayak & sons Vs. State of Goa & Anr., (2003) 6 SCC 56.

15. Section 85(2) of the New Act does not contemplate or allow parties to switch between procedures prescribed or created under the Old Act and the New Act. In the instant case, at the first instance, the claimant proceeded to continue with the application filed under Section 20 of the Old Act and the learned sole arbitrator was appointed upon order passed in those proceedings. The parties thus consented in the negative - to not proceed under the New Act. They, bound themselves to be governed by the Old Act. No further scope or occasion survived to the parties, to later agree to proceed with the arbitration under the New Act. Thus, the subsequent conduct of the parties noted in the order passed under Section 34 of the New Act, of consenting before the arbitrator on 15.02.2005 (to allow the arbitration proceedings to be conducted under the New Act), is an act of no legal consequence. Reliance has been placed on M/s Setty's Construction Co. Pvt. Ltd. Vs M/s Kundan Railway Construction Co. Pvt. Ltd., AIR 1999 SC 1535. Since, no proceedings were pending before the arbitrator on 25.01.1996, there did not exist a stage for grant of consent to proceed under the New Act. In such facts, execution of the award that arose later could be pressed only under the Old Act, after obtaining a Rule of Court, as is also clearly held in the case of Thyssen Stahlunion GMBH Vs. Steel Authority of India Ltd., (1999) 9 SCC 334 (in the case of Thyssen itself). Milkfood Ltd. Vs GMC Ice Cream (P) Ltd., (2004) 7 SCC 288 has also been relied as to stage when consent may be given by the parties to adopt the procedure under the New Act.

16. Still alternatively, it has been submitted, if by any stretch, Clause 34 of the contract bonds dated 17.2.1987 and 12.5.1987, is read as evidence - parties had "otherwise agreed" to be governed by the New Act, the proceedings under Section 20 must necessarily be seen to have lost their legal sanction, immediately upon enforcement of the New Act. The continuance of proceedings under Section 20 of the Old Act and the appointment of arbitrator made thereafter, was contrary to Section 11 of the New Act and therefore wholly void ab initio.

17. Last, it has been submitted, without prejudice to the above, in any case, the arbitrator was appointed by the learned Additional Civil Judge (Sr. Div.), Meerut vide order dated 25.10.2004 whereas the award was made on 19.03.2005 well after the mandate of four months had expired. In that regard, it has been further submitted, in any case, the learned sole arbitrator has to be treated to have entered reference on 15.11.2004 - when he issued notice fixing the date 20.11.2004. Computed from that date, the mandate of four months expired on 14.03.2005. Therefore, the award made on 19.03.2005 was time barred. On such submissions, the order passed by the learned District Judge, Meerut rejecting the objections filed under Section 34 of the Act has been assailed.

18. Other grounds of challenge as had been raised in proceedings under Section 34 of the New Act, relating to the merits and other issues have not been canvassed in the present proceedings. Hence, the same are not being adverted to here.

19. Responding first to the second alternate submission made by learned counsel for the MDA, learned Senior Counsel for the claimant submits - the MDA never raised any challenge to the appointment of the learned sole arbitrator made by the learned Additional Civil Judge (Sr. Div.), Meerut (vide his orders dated 04.09.2004 and 25.10.2004), on ground of the New Act becoming the governing law between the parties, MDA did not raise any challenge under Section 33 of the Old Act, on that count and it also did not raise any such challenge in its objections filed under Section 34 of the New Act. Hence, no objection may be raised at this belated stage.

20. On the first alternate submission advanced by learned counsel for the MDA - regarding consent to abide by the Old/New Act, reference has been made both to Clause 34 of the contract bonds that clearly records that the parties agreed to proceed under the New Act, in case of disputes arising between them in future. Reference has been made to the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Rani Constructions Pvt. Ltd. (CA No. 61 of 1999) Vs. Thyssen Stahlunion (supra) as followed and applied in Delhi Transport Corporation Vs. Rose Advertising, AIR 2003 SC 2523 as approved in Milkfood Ltd. Vs GMC Ice Cream (P) Ltd. (supra). Thus, it has been submitted, there is no defect in the pre-existing/prior consent given by the parties to be governed by the New Act, in the event of any disputes arising between them, in future, though on the date of execution of the contract, the New Act had not seen the light of day. The decision of the Supreme Court in M/s N.S. Nayak & Sons Vs St. of Goa (supra) nowhere holds that consent cannot be given to adopt and apply the procedure under the New Act, after appointment of an arbitrator. Thus the consent given by the parties, on 15.02.2005 (before the learned arbitrator), to proceed under the New Act is stated to be a valid consent. In that regard reliance has been placed on a decision of the Supreme Court in National Aluminium Co. Ltd. Vs. Pressteel and Fabrications Pvt. Ltd. & Ors., AIR 2005 SC 1514 and another decision of this Court in State of U.P. Vs. Allied Construction Engineers & Contractors, 2009 (2) AWC 1953.

21. As to the first submission raised by learned counsel for the MDA it has been submitted that the objection raised to the appointment of the learned arbitrator made by the learned court below under Section 20 of the Old Act has no merit inasmuch as it has never been the case of the MDA, either in proceedings under Section 20 of the Old Act or in objections filed under Section 34 of the New Act or in the present appeal that it was, in any way, impossible for the Vice Chairman of MDA to appoint an arbitrator. Therefore, in terms of Section 20(4) of the Old Act, the learned Additional Civil Judge (Sr. Div.), Meerut acquired the jurisdiction to make such an appointment. Reliance has been placed on the decisions of the Supreme Court in the cases of Nandyal Coop. Spinning Mills Ltd. Vs. K.V. Mohan Rao, (1993) 2 SCC 654 and G. Ramachandra Reddy & Co. Vs. Chief Engineer, Madras Zone, Military Engineering Service, (1994) 5 SCC 142. Reliance has also been placed on a decision of this Court in Agra Development Authority, Agra & Ors. Vs. Sheikhein International & Anr., 2007 (3) AWC 2371 as affirmed by the Supreme Court in Civil Appeal No. 5349 of 2009 (Agra Development Authority Agra & Ors. Vs. M/S Sheikhein International & Anr.) decided on 24.07.2019.

22. Next, it has been submitted, the award dated 19.03.2005 was made well within the mandate of four months in as much as it was made within four calendar months from the first date fixed by the arbitrator, in the arbitration proceedings, being 20.11.2004.Last, it has been submitted, if the appointment of the learned arbitrator is treated to have been made under the Old Act and therefore, the award framed is also treated to be one under the Old Act, then, on such reasoning the objections filed by the MDA and it's appeal filed under Section 37, both under the New Act, would also be not maintainable.

23. Last, it has been submitted, if the appointment of the learned arbitrator is treated to have been made under the Old Act and therefore, the award framed is also treated to be one under the Old Act, then, on such reasoning the objections filed by the MDA under Section 34 and it's appeal filed under Section 37, both under the New Act, would also be not maintainable.

24. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and having perused the record, in the first place, by way of a principle, it cannot be disputed to any extent that lack of inherent jurisdiction, if established, may result in the order dated 04.09.2004 being nullity in all or any proceedings. For any order passed by any authority, court or even arbitrator to have legal effect, it must be shown to be fulfilling inherent jurisdictional requirements. The majority view of four out of the seven judge Constitution Bench of the Supreme Court, in the case of UCO Bank Vs. Workmen, AIR 1951 SC 230 had laid down in early days of our constitutional law:-

"The final contention that the sittings in the interval constituted only an irregularity in the proceedings cannot again be accepted because, in the first place, an objection was raised about the sitting of the two members as the Tribunal. That objection, whether it was raised by the appellants or the other party, is immaterial. The objection having been overruled, no question of acquiescence or estoppel arises. Nor can consent give a court jurisdiction if a condition which goes to the root of the jurisdiction has not been performed or fulfilled. No acquiescence or consent can give a jurisdiction to a court of limited jurisdiction which it does not possess. In our opinion, the position here clearly is that the responsibility to work and decide being the joint responsibility of all the three members, if proceedings are conducted and discussions on several general issues took place in the presence of only two, followed by an award made by three, the question goes to the root of the jurisdiction of the Tribunal and is not a matter of irregularity in the conduct of those proceedings. The absence of a condition necessary to found the jurisdiction to make the award or give a decision deprives the award or decision of any conclusive effect. The distinction clearly is between the jurisdiction to decide matters and the ambit of the matters to be heard by a Tribunal having jurisdiction to deal with the same. In the second case, the question of acquiescence or irregularity may be considered and overlooked. When however the question is of the jurisdiction of the Tribunal to make the award under the circumstances summarized above, no question of acquiescence or consent can affect the decision."

25. Undisputedly, the application under Section 20 of the Old Act had been filed on 11.10.1989. On that date, the only law applicable for appointment of arbitrator was the Arbitration Act, 1940. Under Section 20 of that Act, in face of an arbitration agreement between the parties and upon arising a difference, either party to that agreement could have applied the Court to require filing of such agreement, in Court. Thereafter, upon notice to the other party, the Court was empowered to make an order of reference to the arbitrator, in the first place, appointed by the parties or if the parties were unable to agree to such an appointment, to an arbitrator appointed by the Court.

26. In the present facts, there is no doubt that there existed an arbitration agreement between the parties and also that there had arisen a dispute between them. Further, despite service of notice dated 08.05.2019 issued by the claimant to the MDA, to appoint an arbitrator, no such appointment came to be made. Hence, the pre-requirement for filing an application under Section 20 of the Old Act undisputedly stood established on the date 11.10.1989, when that application came to be filed by the claimant. It is also a fact that such application remained pending for a long period of time i.e. till 04.09.2004 which is close to 15 years.

27. On the other hand, the New Act that is the Arbitration & Conciliation Act, 1996 was enforced on 25.01.1996. Up to that date, the application filed by the claimant under Section 20 of the Old Act did not suffer from any defect of jurisdiction or otherwise. In fact, that application had remained fully maintainable till then. If it had been decided till as late as 24.01.1996 (as, in fact, it should have been), there would have no issue with any party.

28. Thus, clearly the application filed by the claimant under Section 20 of the Old Act did not suffer from any inherent lack of jurisdiction, on the date of its filing. Therefore, the plea of nullity set up by MDA has to be examined only in the context of the enforcement of the New Act and its impact on proceedings that upto that point in time, were within jurisdiction. In this regard, Section 85 of the New Act reads as below:-

"85. Repeal and savings.-- (1) The Arbitration (Protocol and Convention) Act, 1937 (6 of 1937), the Arbitration Act, 1940 (10 of 1940) and the Foreign Awards (Recognition and Enforcement) Act, 1961 (45 of 1961) are hereby repealed.

(2) Notwithstanding such repeal,--

(a) the provisions of the said enactments shall apply in relation to arbitral proceedings which commenced before this Act came into force unless otherwise agreed by the parties but this Act shall apply in relation to arbitral proceedings which commenced on or after this Act comes into force;

(b) all rules made and notifications published, under the said enactments shall, to the extent to which they are not repugnant to this Act, be deemed respectively to have been made or issued under this Act."

Also, Section 21 of the New Act reads as below:-

"21. Commencement of arbitral proceedings.--Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, the arbitral proceedings in respect of a particular dispute commence on the date on which a request for that dispute to be referred to arbitration is received by the respondent."*

29. Plainly, in absence of any agreement, otherwise drawn, the statutory scheme clearly protects the arbitral proceedings that had been instituted before enforcement of the New Act. By virtue of Section 21 of the New Act, arbitral proceedings commenced as soon as notice for appointment of arbitrator was received by the opposite party. In absence of any dispute to service of notice (to appoint arbitrator), on MDA, prior to 25.01.1996, it has to be accepted that in the first place the application filed under Section 20 of the Old Act, by the claimant on 11.10.1989 and the arbitration to follow would be governed by the provision of the Old Act. Not only pending arbitration proceedings been saved, but also, the provisions of the Old Act have been saved in entirety with respect to any arbitral proceedings that may be found to have commenced. Moreover, there is no provision for transfer or abatement of any existing arbitral proceeding or any arbitration proceeding. Therefore there was no inherent lack of jurisdiction in institution of those proceedings even upon enforcement of the New Act.

30. By virtue of saving clause contained in Section 85 of the New Act, it became a fact or a ground available to the parties to be pleaded and proved, that the proceedings under Section 20 of the Old Act would not survive because the New Act came into force on 25.01.1996. In other words, the legislative action did not, by its own force, oust the jurisdiction of the learned Additional Civil Judge (Senior Division), Meerut, to proceed with the application filed under Section 20 of the Old Act. It only allowed the parties an option to plead that the New Act applied. Such plea could be accepted only if the party pleading such fact could establish existence of an agreement between the parties or consent of the other, to apply the New Act.

31. Then, for ready reference, Clause 34 i.e. the arbitration clause (identical in both contract bonds), is quoted below:

"Clause 34- Except where otherwise provided in the arbitration contract all questions and disputes relating to the meaning of the specification, designs, drawing and instruction herein mentioned, and as to the quality of workmanship of materials used on the work or as to any other questions, claim right materials used or thing whatsoever, in any way arising out of relating, to the contract, designs, drawing, specifications, estimates, instruction, order or these conditions or otherwise the work or the execution or failure to execute the same whether arising during or failure to execute the same whether arising during the progress of the work or after the completion or abandonment thereof shall be referred to the Sole Arbitration of the person appointed by the Vice Chairman M.D.A. Of the work at the time of dispute. It will be no objection to any such appointment that the Arbitrator is a Government servant then he had to deal with matters, to which the contract relates and that in the course of his duties as*

Government servant, he had expressed views on all or any of the matters in dispute or difference in the event of the arbitrator or to whom the matter is originally referred being transferred or vacating his office or being unable to act for any such reason, Chief Engineer at the time of such transfer, vacation of office or inability to act, shall appoint another person to act as Arbitrator in accordance with the terms of the Contract. Such person shall be entitled to proceed with reference from the stage at which it was left by his predecessor. It is also a term of this contract that no person other than a person appointed by the Vice Chairman should act as Arbitrator, and if for any reason that is not possible, the matter is not to be referred to arbitrator at all.

Subject as aforesaid-the provision of the Arbitration Act, 1940 or any statutory modification or re-enactment thereof and the rules made thereunder and for the time being in force shall apply to the arbitration proceeding under this clause."

32. Undoubtedly, in view of categorical pronouncement of the Supreme Court in the case of Rani Constructions Pvt. Ltd. (CA No. 61 of 1999) as reported in Thyssen Stahlunion (supra) and DTC Corporation Ltd. (supra) there can be no doubt that aforesaid Clause 34 constitutes a valid, pre-existing agreement between the parties, to allow the New Act to govern the proceedings for arbitration that arose between them. Therefore, all that then survives for consideration is, whether in face of such an agreement, the appointment of arbitrator by the learned Additional Civil Judge (Senior Division), Meerut was void.

33. As noted above, the proceedings under Section 20 of the Old Act did not suffer from any inherent lack of jurisdiction or defect on the date of institution. Also, it did not itself become void upon enforcement of the New Act. Had the plea based on Clause 34 of the contract bonds been raised and pressed by the MDA, before the learned Additional Civil Judge (Senior Division), Meerut passed the order dated 04.09.2004, the claimant would have had a right to object to the same and the learned Civil Judge would have been obliged to decide the same. If it had been found, on such objections, that the application filed by the claimant could not be pressed, in that case, a right would have survived to the claimant to seek appointment of an independent arbitrator under Section 11 of the New Act. By not raising any objection at the stage when it became available to it, the MDA allowed the proceedings under Section 20 of the Old Act to continue and conclude. In Prasun Roy v. Calcutta Metropolitan Development Authority, (1987) 4 SCC 217, appointment of an arbitrator, made by the Court, in year 1983 was first challenged in the year 1985, that too after submitting to the jurisdiction of the learned arbitrator so appointed and after long participation in such arbitration proceedings. The Supreme Court considered :-

"5. Can a party be permitted to do that? In Jupiter General Insce. Co. Ltd. v. Corporation of Calcutta P.B. Mukharji, J. as the learned Chief Justice then was observed:

"It is necessary to state at the outset that courts do not favour this kind of contention and conduct of an applicant who participates in arbitration proceedings without protest and fully avails of the entire arbitration proceedings and then when he sees that the award has gone against him he comes forward to challenge the whole of the arbitration proceedings as without jurisdiction on the ground of a known disability of a party. That view of the court is ably stated by the editor of the 15th edn. of Russell on the Law of Arbitration at page 295 in the following terms:

"Although a party may by reason of some disability be legally incapable of submitting matters to arbitration that fact is not one that can be raised as a ground for disputing the award by other parties to a reference who were aware of the disability. If one of the parties is incapable the objection should be taken to the submission. A party will not be permitted to lie by and join in the submission and then if it suits its purpose attack the award on that ground. The presumption in the absence of proof to the contrary will be that the party complaining was aware of the disability when the submission was made'."

6. Mr Kacker submitted that this principle could be invoked only in a situation where the challenge is made only after the making of an award, and not before. We are unable to accept this differentiation. The principle is that a party shall not be allowed to blow hot and cold simultaneously. Long participation and acquiescence in the proceeding preclude such a party from contending that the proceedings were without jurisdiction.

7. Russell on Arbitration, 18th edn. page 105 explains the position as follows:

"If the parties to the reference either agree beforehand to the method of appointment, or afterwards acquiesce in the appointment made, with full knowledge of all the circumstances, they will be precluded from objecting to such appointment as invalidating subsequent proceedings. Attending and taking part in the proceedings with full knowledge of the relevant fact will amount to such acquiescence.

8. The Judicial Committee in its decision in Chowdhri Murtaza Hossein v. Mussumat Bibi Bechunnissa observed at page 220:

On the whole, therefore, Their Lordships think that the appellant, having a clear knowledge of the circumstances on which he might have founded an objection to the arbitrators proceeding to make their awards, did submit to the arbitration going on; that he allowed the arbitrators to deal with the case as it stood before them, taking his chance of the decision being more or less favourable to himself; and that is too late for him, after the award has been made, and on the application to file the award, to insist on this objection to the filing of the award."

Relying on the aforesaid observations this Court in N. Chellappan v. Secretary, Kerala State Electricity Board acted upon the principle that acquiescence defeated the right of the applicant at a later stage. In that case the facts were similar. It was held by conduct there was acquiescence. Even in a case where initial order was not passed by consent of the parties a party by participation and acquiescence can preclude future challenges.

9. In the grounds of appeal no prejudice has been indicated by the appointment of the second arbitrator.

10. Mr S.N. Kacker, learned Counsel for the respondents drew our attention to the fact that the decision in the Chowdhri Murtaza Hossein case was where the party challenged the appointment of the receiver after the award was made. He also submits that in this case the respondents herein had challenged the order of appointment of the arbitrator on 19-4-1983 and not after the arbitrator had made the award. We are unable to accept this distinction. Basically the principle of waiver and estoppel is not only applicable where the award had been made but also where a party challenges the proceedings in which he participated. In the facts of this case, there was no demur but something which can be called acquiescence on the part of the respondents which precludes them from challenging the participation (sic proceedings)."

34. In Dharma Pratisthanam Vs Madhok Construction (Pvt. Ltd.), (2005) 9 SCC 686, a three judge bench of the Supreme Court had the occasion to consider the effect of acquiescence on appointment of arbitrator. In that regard, the Supreme Court examined the difference between the unilateral appointment and unilateral reference. While both were termed to be illegal, at the same time, it was observed that it would make a difference if in respect of unilateral appointment and reference, other party submits to the jurisdiction of the arbitrator and waives its rights which it had under the agreement. In that situation, the arbitrator was held entitled to proceed with reference and the party submitting to his jurisdiction and participating in the proceedings precluded and estopped from raising any objection in that regard, at a later stage. If, however, that party had failed to act when called upon, it could not lead to an inference of implied consent or acquiescence being drawn. Thus, the appellant in that case was found to have not responded to the proposal by the other side to join in the appointment of the sole arbitrator. Such an act was not construed as its consent. It was held:-

"31. Three types of situations may emerge between the parties and then before the court. Firstly, an arbitration agreement, under examination from the point of view of its enforceability, may be one which expresses the parties' intention to have their disputes settled by arbitration by using clear and unambiguous language, then the parties and the court have no other choice but to treat the contract as binding and enforce it. Or, there may be an agreement suffering from such vagueness or uncertainty as is not capable of being construed at all by culling out the intention of the parties with certainty, even by reference to the provisions of the Arbitration Act, then it shall have to be held that there was no agreement between the parties in the eye of the law and the question of appointing an arbitrator or making a reference or disputes by reference to Sections 8, 9 and 20 shall not arise. Secondly, there may be an arbitrator or arbitrators named, or the authority may be named who shall appoint an arbitrator, then the parties have already been ad idem on the real identity of the arbitrator as appointed by them beforehand; the consent is already spelled out and binds the parties and the court. All that may remain to be done in the event of an occasion arising for the purpose, is to have the agreement filed in the court and seek an order of reference to the arbitrator appointed by the parties. Thirdly, if the arbitrator is not named and the authority who would appoint the arbitrator is also not specified, the appointment and reference shall be to a sole arbitrator unless a different intention is expressly spelt out. The appointment and reference -- both shall be by the consent of the parties. Where the parties do not agree, the court steps in and assumes jurisdiction to make an appointment, also to make a reference, subject to the jurisdiction of the court being invoked in that regard. We hasten to add that mere inaction by a party called upon by the other one to act does not lead to an inference as to implied consent or acquiescence being drawn. The appellant not responding to the respondent's proposal for joining in the appointment of a sole arbitrator named by him could not be construed as consent and the only option open to the respondent was to have invoked the jurisdiction of court for appointment of an arbitrator and an order of reference of disputes to him. It is the court which only could have compelled the appellant to join in the proceedings."

35. A converse position (on facts), exists in the present case. Here, the claimant had issued a notice requiring the MDA to appoint an arbitrator. In the least, the MDA failed to appoint an arbitrator. This led to the filing of an application under Section 20 of the Old Act by the claimant. As noted above, that application was wholly maintainable in law on the date of its filing. Also, enforcement of the New Act did not ipso facto render that application, not maintainable. The only situation when that application could have been rejected or dealt with in a manner as may have had the effect of it being held not maintainable, would be if the MDA had brought to the knowledge of the learned Additional Civil Judge (Senior Division), Meerut, Clause 34 of the contract bonds and if it had pressed before that Court that that application be dismissed, for that reason. Even in that case such an objection would have had to be adjudicated by the learned court below. Otherwise no inference could arise that the application had been rendered not maintainable or infructuous. Despite being called upon, the MDA had not raised such objection.

36. What therefore necessarily follows from the above - merely upon enforcement of the New Act, the proceedings on the application filed under Section 20 of the Old Act were not rendered void or lacking in jurisdiction. Therefore, in absence of any objection being raised by the MDA as to jurisdiction, there was no inherent lack of jurisdiction on part of the learned Additional Civil Judge (Senior Division), Meerut in proceeding to decide the application under Section 20 of the Old Act. Thus, the conduct of the MDA is relevant and in fact decisive to the issue. Once the MDA participated in the proceedings for appointment of arbitrator without raising any objection in light of Clause 34 of the contract bonds, read with Sections 85 and 21 of the New Act and allowed such appointment to be made and further did not challenge that order but also participated in the proceedings before the learned arbitrator so appointed, clearly, the MDA acquiesced to the position and, therefore, the present case falls in the category of cases discussed by the Supreme Court in the case of Dharma Pratisthanam VS. Madhok Construction (Pvt. Ltd.) (supra), where despite defect of jurisdiction, the plea of nullity does not arise.

37. Similar approach appears to have been taken by the Division Bench of this Court in the case of Agra Development Authority (supra), wherein, referring to the decision of the Supreme Court in Prasun Roy Vs. Calcutta Metropolitan Development Authority & Anr., AIR 1988 SC 205, it was held that long participation and acquiescence in the proceedings preclude a party from contending that the proceedings were without jurisdiction. The principle of waiver and estoppel were held applicable to proceedings for challenge of appointment of arbitrator as applicable to the proceedings to challenge the award. The division bench of this Court further observed that the words 'long participation' have to be read in conjunction with the word 'acquiescence'.

38. Here, appointment of the arbitrator was made on 04.09.2004. However, no challenge was raised thereto. Later, the MDA participated in the proceedings before the arbitrator and allowed the award to be made without any let or objection as to his jurisdiction on account of New Act having been enforced. The only objection that appears to have been raised, is that the Vice Chairman MDA alone and not the Court could have made the appointment. However, that objection is quite distinct from the objection as to lack of jurisdiction upon enforcement of the New Act. The division bench decision of this Court is also shown to have been confirmed in appeal by the Supreme Court in Civil Appeal Nos. 5349 and 5350 of 2009, Agra Development Authority Vs M/s Sheikhein International & Anr. decided on 24.07.2019, wherein it was observed as under:

"Having heard the learned counsel appearing for the appellants, the learned counsel appearing for the respondents and carefully scrutinizing the material available on record, we see no reason to interfere with the impugned order dated 6.4.2007 passed by the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad in F.A.F.O. Nos. 552 of 1996 and 553 of 1996 respectively.

The Civil Appeals are, accordingly, dismissed.

If any proceeding is pending before the Civil Judge, Agra under Section 34 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996, the same shall be proceeded with in accordance with law and both the parties at liberty to argue the matter before the said Court."

39. That being an order passed on the civil appeal, its precedential value clearly exists. Accordingly, the objection raised by the appellant as to inherent lack of jurisdiction and consequently to the award being void ab initio, is rejected. The issue of defect if any in the appointment of the learned arbitrator remained unexamined and undetermined in absence of any objection being raised by the MDA, at the appropriate time i.e. before the court of first instance or the learned Additional Civil Judge (Senior Division), Meerut who decided the application under Section 20 of the Old Act. The objection if raised would have involved appreciation of evidence, besides law, before it could be adjudicated. In absence of that adjudication, it cannot be entertained now, at this late stage. Consequently, for purpose of the present appeal, the appointment of the learned sole arbitrator has to be treated as valid in law.

40. As to the consent and its effect, in the first place, in the proceedings before the arbitrator, in view of Clause 34 of the contract bonds, read in light of Section 85 and Section 21 of the New Act as also the consent recorded on 15.02.2005 in the proceedings before the arbitrator, it has to be treated as an award made in accordance with the provisions of the New Act. In the first place, by virtue of Clause 34 of the contract bonds, the New Act became available upon its enforcement. Then, by specific consent given by the parties on 15.02.2005, they signified to follow the procedure prescribed under the New Act only. The submission advanced by learned counsel for the appellant that the option to proceed under the New Act had to be exercised at the first instance, i.e. at the earliest upon enforcement of the New Act, is plainly unsubstantiated. There is nothing in the New Act or in the language of Section 85, as may allow such an interpretation to arise. Plainly, two Acts deal with resolution of disputes by means of an alternative and well-recognized mode of arbitration. A rule of procedure which has been allowed to be moulded by the parties according to their will, cannot be restricted in the manner suggested by learned counsel for the appellant. In absence of any statutory indication for the same and in absence of any reasonable ground being shown for such construction to be made, the submission advanced has to be rejected. Beginning from M/s Rani Constructions Pvt. Ltd. (C.A. No. 61 of 1999) as reported in Thyssen Stahlunion GMBH (supra) and as followed in Delhi Transport Corporation Vs Rose Advertising (supra) as also Milkfood Ltd. (supra), the law has remained unequivocally constant, that parties to an arbitration contract could agree to the applicability of the New Act even before the New Act came into force and even when the Old Act was still holding the field. Reliance has wrongly been placed by the appellant on the following observation made in N.S. Nayak & Sons v. State of Goa (supra) :-

"16. The aforesaid discussion only deals with the contention that parties could not have agreed to the application of the new Act till they had the knowledge about the provisions thereof and, therefore, the agreement to the effect that to the arbitral proceedings, the provisions of the Arbitration Act, 1940 or any statutory modification or re-enactment thereof would be applicable, is not valid. The Court negatived the said contention by interpreting the expression "unless otherwise agreed". The Court held that such agreement could be entered into even before coming into force of the new Act. However, it nowhere lays down that in a pending arbitral proceeding, which was being conducted as per the procedure prescribed under the old Act, the parties have option of changing the procedure."

41. That was a case where arbitrators had been appointed much prior to enforcement of the New Act though individual awards came into existence thereafter. An objection was raised by the claimant that appeals filed by the State Government of Goa against those awards, under Section 37 of the Old Act, be decided on the basis of the New Act, in view of the following pre-existing agreement between the parties:

"Subject as aforesaid, the provisions of the Arbitration Act, 1940, or any statutory modification or re-enactment thereof and the Rules made thereunder and for the time being in force shall apply to the arbitration proceedings under this clause."

42. In such facts, the Supreme Court noticed the ratio of its earlier decision in Thyssen Stahlunion GMBH (supra) and categorically observed:-

"12. In our view, paragraph 22 nowhere lays down that after the new Act came into force, even appeals filed under the provisions of the old Act are to be decided on the basis of the provisions contained in the new Act....."

43. Therefore, the ratio of the case has to be read, limited to what was actually decided being, that clause of the contract bonds (in the instant case), cannot alter the basis for decision in appeals if those appeals had been filed (by MDA). Such is not the fact here. In fact, by filing objections under Section 34 of the New Act, the MDA has itself further acted otherwise, apparently on its consent recorded both in Clause 34 of the contract bonds and also before the arbitrator, on 15.02.2005. It cannot now, be permitted to turn around and object to the procedure adopted with its consent obtained in accordance with law, especially in absence of any other defect being claimed in the award.

44. Insofar as the decision in the cases of Oriental Insurance Company (supra) and M/S Dozco India Pvt. Ltd. (supra) are concerned, the same have no application to the facts of the present case inasmuch as in the case of Oriental Insurance Company (supra), the arbitration clause restricted the scope of reference to such cases only where the insurance company did not dispute its liability under or in respect of the policy. A reference made contrary to the opinion of the insurance company, in those facts, was found to be unenforceable. Similarly, in the case of M/S Dozco India Pvt. Ltd. (supra), the arbitration agreement between the parties had fixed the place of arbitration at Korea and the governing law to be that of the Korea. Therefore, no reference could be contemplated or allowed to be made contrary to such an agreed clause.

45. Insofar as the ratio in the case of M/S Setty's Constructions Co. Pvt. Ltd. (supra) is concerned, in that case, the dispute though pertained to appointment of arbitrator pending under the Old Act and the effect of Section 85 of the New Act was considered, however, it remained undisputed that in that case, the High Court had dismissed the claim as premature. That was the main issue considered by the Supreme Court whereon the matter was adjourned. In such proceedings, a preliminary issue was raised as to whether the proceedings for appointment of arbitrator would, in light of enforcement of the New Act, be governed by or under that Act. That preliminary objection was answered holding that the Old Act would continue to govern the proceedings for appointment of arbitrator in view of the fact that such proceedings had been instituted prior to the enforcement of the New Act. However, there was no pre-existing or other agreement between the parties in dispute (in that case), similar to Clause 34 of the contract bonds, in this case. In any case, that objection was not raised by the MDA at the relevant time as was done in M/s. Setty's Construction Co. Pvt. Ltd. (supra). Here, the MDA also appears to have filed objections under Section 34 of the New Act against such award and the same have been dealt with accordingly. The objection to the contrary is again found unsubstantiated and therefore rejected.

46. As to the first submission advanced by learned counsel for the MDA that the appointment of the arbitrator by the learned Additional Civil Judge (Senior Division), Meerut was invalid, in face of the stipulation contained in Clause 34 of the contract bonds giving that power of appointment to the Vice Chairman of MDA, the issue is no longer res integra in view of the categorical pronouncement made by the Supreme Court in the case of Nandyal Coop. Spinning Mills Ltd. (supra) where the in it has been held:

"11. It would thus be clear that if no arbitrator had been appointed in terms of the contract within 15 days from the date of receipt of the notice, the administrative head of the appellant had abdicated himself of the power to appoint arbitrator under the contract. The court gets jurisdiction to appoint an arbitrator in place of the contract by operation of Section 8(1)(a). The contention of Shri Rao, therefore, that since the agreement postulated preference to arbitrator appointed by the administrative head of the appellant and if he neglects to appoint, the only remedy open to the contractor was to have recourse to civil suit is without force. It is seen that under the contract the respondent contracted out from adjudication of his claim by a civil court. Had the contract provided for appointment of a named arbitrator and the named person was not appointed, certainly the only remedy left to the contracting party was the right to suit. That is not the case on hand. The contract did not expressly provide for the appointment of a named arbitrator. Instead power has been given to the administrative head of the appellant to appoint sole arbitrator. When he failed to do so within the stipulated period of 15 days enjoined under Section 8(1)(a), then the respondent has been given right under Clause 65.2 to avail the remedy under Section 8(1)(a) and request the court to appoint an arbitrator. If the contention of Shri Rao is given acceptance, it would amount to putting a premium on inaction depriving the contractor of the remedy of arbitration frustrating the contract itself."

47. Again in G. Ramachandra Reddy & Co. (supra), a similar view had been expressed. Therefore, once the MDA failed to appoint an arbitrator upon specific request made by the claimant, the latter was within its rights to move an application under Section 20 of the Old Act for appointment of an arbitrator. In such proceedings, once the parties could not agree to appointment of a consented arbitrator, it was left only to the Court to make that appointment. Thus, the appointment of Shri V.K. Tyagi as the sole arbitrator did not suffer from any defect.

48. As to the last submission advanced by learned counsel for the appellant, by virtue of Para 3 Schedule I to the Old Act read with Section 3 thereof, the limitation to make the award was four months from the date the learned arbitrator entered reference. On one hand, the MDA has failed to prove any specific date on which it claims, the arbitrator entered reference. In that regard, even the copy of the notice alleged to be dated 15.11.2004 has not been proved. Thus, a bald allegation appears to exist that the learned arbitrator had entered reference on or before 15.11.2004.

49. On the other hand, it admitted the first date in the proceedings, fixed by the learned arbitrator to be 20.11.2004. The learned arbitrator has also stated in his award - "....I accepted the appointment and entered into reference accordingly and fixed Saturday, the 20th Nov 2004 as the 1st date for appearance of the parties and their respective Counsels". This being admitted, clearly, the arbitrator did enter reference on that date and not later. A division bench of this Court in Sardar Mal & Ors. Vs. Sheo Bakhsh Rai & Ors., AIR 1922 All 106, relying on two decisions of English Courts opined, "entering upon the reference" means not when an arbitrator accepted the office or took upon himself that duty, but when he actually entered upon the matter of the reference, when the parties were before him, or under some peremptory order compelling him to conclude the hearing ex parte. Thus, it was observed :

"3. We are of opinion that the provisions "entering on the reference" and "having been called upon to act by notice in writing" are alternative in this sense that where no reference is entered upon at all then the time runs from the notice calling upon the arbitrators to act. But, on the other hand, even although the arbitrators may be called upon to act by entering upon the reference, if they enter upon the reference, they have three months from that moment for making their award and for enlarging the time for making the award if the circumstances at the reference satisfy them that they cannot complete the award within three months. To hold otherwise would seem to strike out from Clause 3 the words "within three months after entering on the reference" in a case where one of the parties happened to call upon the arbitrators to act before they began the reference.

4. This clause was considered by the English Court of Appeal inBaring-Gouldv. Sharpington(1899) 2 Ch., 80 and the view which we take seems to be that which was laid down by the Master of the Rolls, the late LordLindley, in a passage contained in page 91 of the report.

5. In addition to that, under the old clause in England, which was slightly different in form, an equally strong court came to the conclusion in Baker v. Stephens(1867) L.R.2 Q.B. 523 that "entering upon the reference" means "not when an arbitrator accepts the office, or takes upon himself the duty, but when he actually enters upon the matter of the reference, when the parties are before him, or under some peremptory order compelling him to conclude the hearing ex parte."

50. Similar view was taken by a Full Bench of the Calcutta High Court in Ramanath Agarwalla Vs. Goenka & Co. & Ors., AIR 1973 Cal. 253, wherein the Full Bench of the Calcutta High Court, first took note of the above Division Bench decision of this Court in Sardar Mal (supra) and thereafter concluded as below:

"28.We have already observed that an Arbitrator under the provisions of the Arbitration Act is required to act as an Arbitrator. His acting as arbitrator includes (a) entering on reference, (b) proceeding with the reference, and (c) making an award. It follows that the expression "acting as an Arbitrator" is wider than "entering on the reference". Now, the dictionary meaning of "to enter on", in the context in which the expression has been used in the Arbitration Act, is "to take the first step upon or in" or "to begin to deal with a subject" : vide Shorter Oxford English Dictionary. Vol. 1. p. 646.

29.Entering on reference, therefore refers to the first step that the Arbitrator takes in the reference, that is to say, when he begins to deal with the reference. The Arbitrator, under the Act, may have to do various ministerial acts but the doing of any of the ministerial acts is not entering on the reference. It is only when he first applies his mind to the dispute referred to him that he enters on the reference. When, however, in a particular case, he first applied his mind to the dispute would depend, on the facts and circumstances of that case.

30.There have been a number of recent decisions on this point which we may conveniently refer to. The Patna High Court in Sonevlal Thakur v. Lachhminarain, AIR 1957 Pat 395 at p. 397 in paragraph 5 has stated that an Arbitrator does not enter upon a reference the moment he accepts to work as an arbitrator, nor can it be said that he enters upon a reference only when he actually hears the reference. An Arbitrator enters upon a reference when, after having accepted the reference, he applies his mind and does something in furtherance and execution of the work of arbitration. The exact date as to when an arbitrator enters on a reference in a particular case however, has to be determined on the facts and circumstances of the case."

51. Thus, the fact of issuance of notice dated 15.11.2004 by the arbitrator, even if assumed to be correct, would not itself amount to the learned arbitrator having entered reference on that date. He entered reference on 20.11.2004. Computed from the first date fixed in arbitration, he had time upto 19 March 2005 to make the award as his four month mandate survived till then. In absence of any earlier date being shown to exist, on which the learned arbitrator applied his mind to the subject matter of dispute put up for arbitration, the award made on 19.03.2005, appears to have been made within time and it also does not suffer from any defect of limitation.

52. Appeal lacks merit and is accordingly dismissed. Interim order granted earlier is vacated.

Appeal dismissed. (E-5)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Arvind Kumar Mishra-I, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for appellant, learned counsel for the claimant-respondents and perused the material brought on record.

2. By way of the instant appeal, challenge has been made to the award and order dated 15.09.2009 passed by Motor Accident Claim Tribunal / Additional District Judge, Court No.7, Mathura, in Motor Accident Claim Case No.29 of 2008 Chhuttan Lal Vs. Jeep Chalak Jeep No.UP 70 S 5228, Maan Singh and another whereby compensation amount to the tune of Rs.1,94,000/- along with 8% interest was directed to be realized from opposite party no.2, (the present appellant herein) in this appeal.

3. Brief reference of the relevant facts of the case as discernible from the certified copy of the impugned award appears to be that the accident took place on 16.10.2007 at 5:30 pm at Tank Crossing, Mathura while the deceased was proceeding towards his home by scooter no. U.P. 81 F 0840 along with Mormukut Yadav, Advocate when the Government Jeep No.U.P.70 S 5228 being driven rashly and negligently dashed the same with the aforesaid scooter due to which the deceased Harish Chandra succumbed to his injury while he was being taken to the hospital at Mathura.

4. The claimant-respondents preferred the claim petition before the Tribunal whereby it was claimed that the deceased Harish Chandra was bread earner for the entire family and he was head of his family. After his sudden demise, there is no one to look after family of the deceased. The claimant-respondents are mother, father and one minor brother. The deceased was an auto mechanic. He used to earn Rs.15,000/- per month. Under various heads, Rs.38,40,000/- was sought to be realized from the present appellant.

5. The claim petition was contested and both the parties raised their respective pleadings on the basis of which relevant issues were framed by the Tribunal.

6. Issue no.1 related to the point of the accident in question as to whether the accident in question was caused on 16.10.2007 at 5:30 pm at Tank Crossing Mathura by rash and negligent driving of the aforesaid jeep by its driver rashly and negligently due to which it dashed with the scooter of the deceased Harish Chandra, consequently, he sustained injury and succumbed to it while on way to the hospital at Mathura ?

7. Issue no.2 related to the quantum of compensation to be given to the claimant-respondents then its proportion?

8. Issue no.3 also related to the point of compensation to the claimant-respondents?

9. The claimant-respondents produced Mormukut Yadav PW-1, Chandra Bhan PW-2 and Chhuttan Lal PW-3 and also produced documentary evidence by moving list 6-C, which contained relevant papers, apart from producing papers vide 7-C/1 to 9C and 31-C to 36 C.

10. The opposite parties got examined Man Singh DW-1, driver of the aforesaid offending jeep. Thereafter, the Tribunal upon consideration of the submissions of both the parties and upon evaluation of the evidence on record, partly awarded the claim along with interest against the appellant.

11. Consequently, this appeal.

12. Crux contention raised on behalf of the appellant is that in this case, proper evaluation / assessment of the situation on the spot was not made by the Tribunal, for specific reason that the road was being constructed on that date when the accident took place while the deceased scooterist was himself driving the scooter on the wrong side and he suddenly came and crossed the offending jeep due to which the jeep driver applied his brake but in the meanwhile, the deceased scooterist himself driving the scooter at high speed dashed the scooter with the jeep.

13. To vindicate his claim, learned counsel for the appellant has engaged attention of the Court to the testimony of Maan Singh DW-1, driver of the offending vehicle and has claimed that evidence so tendered by the driver of the offending vehicle was truthful and trustworthy, however, it was wrongly disbelieved by the Tribunal and the version of Mormukut Yadav was taken to be correct, whereas, he being an Advocate was well versed to suit the interest of the claimant-respondents. The amount awarded as compensation is excessive and the rate of interest is also at enhanced rate than was required to be applied and the proper interest would have been fixed at the rate of 7% instead of 8%.

14. Per contra, learned counsel for the claimant-respondents has supported the finding of the Tribunal and claimed that the amount of the impugned award under facts and circumstances of the case is justified.

15. Considered the rival submissions apart from testimony available on record.

16. Obviously, there are two witnesses namely Mormukut Yadav PW-1 and Maan Singh PW-2. Insofar as testimony of PW-1 is concerned, it cannot be said that PW-1 being an Advocate was highly interested person and biased in favour of the claimant-respondents. However, it was duty of every witness to come out with truth as to what was seen by him on the spot. No doubt, testimony of PW-1 is exposed to cross examination to be carried out by the other side.

17. However, I have also perused testimony of PW-1 wherein nothing adverse as claimed was found, on the other hand cross examination of DW-2 done on behalf of the claimant respondents throws certain doubt on the claim raised regarding mistake of the deceased himself in the accident. Apart from that, monthly income of the deceased under facts and circumstances of the case was found to be proper. The monthly income of the deceased was assessed to Rs.3000/- Consequently, annual income was Rs.36,000/-. After slicing off 2/3 of the same, it was pegged to Rs.24,000/-. While considering the dependency factor and primarily age of the parents of the deceased, multiplicand of 8 was applied to the aforesaid annual income Rs.24,000/- which after multiplication aggregated to Rs.1,92,000/- and Rs.2000/- was awarded as funeral expenses. The total amount so fixed was Rs.1,94,000/-. Insofar as rate of interest is concerned, it cannot be said to be excessive when the accident took place admittedly in the year 2007. After overall assessment of the award impugned and the entire interest, no infirmity is perceptible as such and the present appeal sans merits and is dismissed.

18. However, Rs.25,000/- deposited by the appellant at this stage shall be remitted to the Tribunal concerned for adjustment of the distribution of the amount of compensation directed as above.

The findings also indicates non application of mind as the arbitrator should have recorded specific finding with regard to the exact relationship of the husband of the petitioner with the President of the society and also the fact that the said relation is covered by the definition of the relations as provided under Rule 2 (u) of the Rules of 1968. It has been submitted by learned counsel for the petitioner that the late husband of the petitioner was allotted a plot by Meerut Sahkari Awas Samiti Ltd.-respondent No.3 (hereinafter referred to as the Samiti) after becoming a member of the said society applied for and was allotted a plot having an area of 1200 square yards and deposited an amount of Rs.10,20,000/- at the rate of Rs.850/- per square yards by means of two demand drafts. The said amount was deposited by the petitioner on 14th June, 1999. He has further submitted that certain other amounts were deposited by him towards development charges etc. Subsequent to allotment of the said plot, a perpetual lease deed was entered into between the petitioner and Meerut Sahkari Awas Samiti Ltd. which was registered on 5th July, 1999; that in the meanwhile the Committee of Management of Meerut Sahkari Awas Samiti Ltd. was superseded and an Administrator was appointed for looking into the affairs of the said Samiti. The Administrator who was appointed on 3rd April, 2000 within one week of assuming the charges of Administrator annulled the resolutions of the Samiti dated 10th September, 1998 and 20th May, 1999 by which the plots in question were allotted to late Laxmi Chand-the husband of the petitioner and subsequently while declaring the registered perpetual lease deed executed on 5.7.1999 void also ordered that the said plot would become the property of the said Samiti and no person shall have any claim on the said plot.

4. The order dated 3rd April, 2000 was challenged by the petitioners by moving an application before the Registrar /Housing Commissioner under Section 70 of the U.P. Housing and Cooperative Societies Act. The Registrar/Housing Commissioner, Uttar Pradesh on 23rd January, 2001 passed an interim order whereby the operation and implementation of the impugned order dated 3.4.2000 was stayed and the arbitration proceedings were referred to Additional Registrar/Managing Director, Uttar Pradesh Sahkari Awas Sangh Limited, 6 Sarojini Naidu Marg, Lucknow. Before the Arbitrator the society filed its written statement. The petitioner as well as the society were afforded full opportunity of hearing and the arbitrator was of the view that cancellation of the plots as well as cancellation of registered lease deed was not in accordance with law but during the course of hearing a fact was brought to the knowledge of the arbitrator that the plot had been allotted to the petitioner by the President of the society, who was a near relative. On coming to know of this facts an inquiry was instituted and an inquiry report was submitted to the arbitrator on 25.6.2005 wherein this fact was endorsed that the husband of petitioner No.1 was a close relative of the President of the society and, therefore, the allotment of the plot was illegal and a perusal of the operative portion of the impugned order clearly indicates that the claim of the petitioner was rejected only on this count.

5. Aggrieved by the aforesaid order the petitioner preferred an appeal under Section 98 of U.P. Cooperative Societies Act before the U.P. Cooperative Tribunal. It has been submitted that after exchange of pleadings when the matter was at the stage of final hearing, a preliminary objection was filed by one of the respondents submitting that appointment of arbitrator by the Housing Commissioner was not in accordance with law and the award suffered from inherent lack of jurisdiction and, therefore, was liable to be set aside and the appeal preferred by the petitioner was liable to be rejected. The Tribunal taking into account various notifications issued by the State of U. P. under Section 3(2) of U. P. Cooperative Societies Act and after considering the same came to the conclusion that the valuation of the claim preferred by the petitioner was more than Rs.1 lakhs and, therefore, the application made to the Housing Commissioner was erroneous as he did not have the jurisdiction in this regard and consequently the nomination of arbitrator was illegal, therefore, the award passed by opposite party No.2 was declared to be a nullity. The Tribunal only considered the preliminary objection of the respondents and the upholding the said preliminary objection rejected the appeal of the petitioner.

6. Assailing the order passed by the Tribunal learned counsel for the petitioner has submitted that Housing Commissioner was fully competent to entertain the application under Section 70 of U.P.

Cooperative Societies Act and there was no error nominating the arbitrator. He has drawn the attention of this Court towards sub-section 2 of Section 3 of the Act which provides as under:-

"(2) The State Government may, for the purposes of this Act, also appoint other persons to assist the Registrar and by general or special order confer on any such person all or any of the powers of the Registrar."

7. Section 71 of U. P. Cooperative Societies Act, 1965 provides reference of a dispute to arbitration which is quoted as under:-

"71. Reference of dispute to arbitration.- (1) On receipt of a reference under sub-section (1) of Section 70, the Registrar may, subject to the provisions of the rules, if any-

(a) decide the dispute himself, or

(b) refer it for decision to an arbitrator appointed by him, or

(c) refer it, if the parties so request in writing, for decision to a board of arbitrators consisting of the three persons to be appointed in the prescribed manner.

(2) The Registrar may, for reasons to be recorded, withdraw any reference made under clause (b) or (c) of sub-section (1) and refer it to another arbitrator or board of arbitrators or decide it himself.

(3) The Registrar, the arbitrator or the board of arbitrators, to whom a dispute is referred for decision under this section may, pending the decision of the dispute make such interlocutory orders including attachment of property as he or they may deem necessary in the interest of justice.

(4) The decision given by the Registrar, the arbitrator or the board of arbitrators under this section shall hereinafter be termed as award.

(5) The procedure to be followed by the Registrar, the arbitrator or the board of arbitrators in deciding a dispute and making an award under this section shall be as may be prescribed."

8. The State Government in exercise of the power under Section 3 of the Act conferred the power upon the Housing Commissioner, U.P. by notification dated 15.6.1976 was which is quoted as under:-

"In exercise of the powers under sub-section (2) of Section 3 of the Uttar Pradesh Co-operative Societies Act, 1965 (U.P. Act XI of 1966) and in suppression of the Government Notification No.1538/XIJ-C-1-12 (AS)-74, dated May 17, 1976, the Governor, for the purpose of the said Act, is pleased to appoint the Housing Commissioner, Uttar Pradesh ex-officio to assist the Registrar and to confer on him all the powers of the Registrar in respect of Uttar Pradesh Sahkari Avas Sangh Limited and of all Urban Co-operative Housing Societies in Uttar Pradesh."

9. It has also been submitted that subsequently vide notification dated 10.8.1989 the State Government has conferred the jurisdiction and power of the Registrar to the Deputy Housing Commissioner and Deputy Registrar and Assistant Housing Commissioner, Assistant Registrar (Co-operative). It has been said that in case the value of the property of the amount of claim involved exceeds rupees one lakh, then under sub-rule (1) of Rule 229 the matter may be sent to the Additional Registrar. Vide another notification dated 31.10.1998 several amendments were carried out under Cooperative Societies Rules including Rule 229 and 229 (1) (c) which is as under:-

"(c) in case the value of the property or the amount of claim involved in the dispute exceeds rupees fifty thousand but does not exceed rupees three lakh, be made to the Additional Registrar having jurisdiction over the region concerned."

10. The affidavit filed by the housing Commissioner also states that by notification dated 08/09/17 the pecuniary amount regarding a petition has been changed by the State Government and the Additional Housing Commissioner/Additional Registrar Cooperative was conferred the jurisdiction in respect of disputes involving a sum of Rs. 5 Lacs to 10 lakhs. In the present case the valuation of the case would be 10 lakhs and therefore in light of the notification dated 08/09/17 which though has been passed subsequently but empowers the Additional Housing Commissioner to act as arbitrator. The Tribunal rejected the appeal of the petitioner on the ground that the Housing Commissioner did not have to entertain any complaint and consequently did not have any power to appoint the arbitrator, and the appeal was therefore rejected because the Additional Registrar does not have jurisdiction to enter upon reference.

11. In the present case the dispute was referred to the Housing Commissioner and Registrar by the High Court vide its judgement and order dated 22.12.2000 passed in writ petition No. 32744 of 2000 and the then Housing Commissioner, referred the dispute for arbitration to Additional Registrar (Co-operative) who was posted as Managing Director, Housing Federation.

12. The U.P. Cooperative Tribunal while appreciating the facts of the case it seems has totally ignored the fact that the dispute in the present case was referred to the Housing Commissioner by the High Court in its order passed on 22/12/00 in writ petition number 32744/2000. The Tribunal has recorded a finding that the present dispute was not cognizable by the housing Commissioner and the housing Commissioner had no authority to firstly entertain the said dispute and subsequently to refer the same for arbitration. The Tribunal has allowed the preliminary objection preferred by the respondent and dismissed the appeal filed by the petitioner, and the matter was remanded for arbitration before the competent authority for a fresh adjudication. By means of interim order dated 20/06/08 this court had stayed the operation of the judgement and order of the tribunal.

13. During the pendency of the instant writ petition, in order to resolve the controversy this court and directed the standing counsel to seek instructions the matter regarding the position of the Housing Commissioner to discharge the duties of Registrar in respect to Section 70 and 71 of the U.P. Cooperative Societies Act. In pursuance to the said directions of this court dated 20/08/2019 an affidavit of the Housing Commissioner was filed. In the said affidavit it has been stated that the power of the Registrar was conferred upon the Housing Commissioner, U.P in respect of inter alia all urban cooperative of the societies in U.P by the State Government by notification dated 15/06/76.

Subsequently by notification dated 10/08/89 the State Government has conferred the jurisdictional power of the Registrar and Deputy Housing Commissioner/Deputy Registrar and Assistant Housing Commissioner/Assistant Registrar, Cooperative Societies posted under the Housing Commissioner. As per rule of 4(c) it has been submitted that in case the amount involved, 1 lakhs that as per rule 229 (1) the matter may be sent to additional registrar.

14. With regard to the facts relating to the present case it is been submitted that the same was referred to the Housing Commissioner/Registrar by the order of the High Court dated 22/12/00 passed in Writ Petition No.32744/2010 and even otherwise the Housing Commissioner had been conferred the power of Registrar as per notification dated 15/06/76 and subsequently the dispute was referred to the then Additional Registrar Cooperative Housing. It has been stated that as per rule 229 (1) (c) the Additional Registrar Cooperative was empowered to deal with the matter of arbitration and therefore he had rightly decided the said arbitration.

15. Sri Rakesh Srivastava, counsel for opposite party No.3 submitted that in view of the statutory provisions contained in U.P Cooperative Societies Act as well is the rules framed thereunder, it is only the Registrar of the U.P. Cooperative Society could have referred the dispute for arbitration, while in the present case the Housing Commissioner having entertained the dispute and therefore the reference of the dispute for arbitration, was totally without jurisdiction and a nullity and therefore has supported the order of the Tribunal.

16. The learned Counsel the petitioner has submitted that before the arbitrator, the grounds of maintainability of the reference of the dispute for arbitration was never raised. The respondents appeared and contested the matter before the arbitrator and therefore they were precluded from challenging the award on the ground of jurisdiction, having acquiesced to his jurisdiction. It is further submitted that in any view of the matter, the reference was made in pursuance to the orders passed by the High Court dated 22/12/2000 in writ petition No.32744 of 2000 and therefore the proceedings were conducted in pursuance and in compliance with the said directions and the same cannot be set aside on the ground of Jurisdiction by the Tribunal.

17. It is also admitted that the order of the High court dated 22/1/2000 attained finality as it was not further challenged and was passed in the presence of the respondents.

18. Considering the arguments raised by both the parties with regard to the jurisdiction of the Housing Commissioner to refer the dispute for arbitration it is noticed that admittedly this High Court at Allahabad by means of order dated 20/02/00 was pleased to direct the petitioner to file the arbitration case before the Housing Commissioner/Registrar and directions were issued to the Housing Commissioner/Registrar that in case of filing of arbitration case then the matter may be decided expeditiously. In furtherance of the aforesaid order the petitioner had approached the Housing Commissioner, and this fact was duly disclosed to the tribunal by the petitioner who had filed additional objection to the preliminary objection, and the Tribunal did not take cognizance of the said fact and proceed to record a finding to the effect that the Housing Commissioner had no jurisdiction to entertain the dispute and refer the same for arbitration. The findings recorded by the Tribunal is, on the face of it, contrary to the order of the High Court and therefore illegal and arbitrary and cannot be sustained.

19. The tribunal in the present case has held that the Housing Commissioner has no authority of jurisdiction to entertain the dispute, despite the fact that it was the High Court which had directed him to entertain the said dispute. The Tribunals do not have any power or authority to sit in appeal over the orders passed by the High Court. Despite this fact having been pointed out by the petitioner in the pleadings before the Tribunal, they choose to blatantly ignore this fact, and proceeded to strike down the order passed by the Housing Commissioner. In this view of the matter also, the order of the Tribunal deserves to be set aside.

20. The second ground of challenge to the order of Tribunal is that as no objection regarding jurisdiction was raised by the respondent before the arbitrator, he would have been deemed to have acquiesced to the award and the same cannot be challenged on this ground subsequently. In the case of M/s Neelakantan & Bros. vs Superintending Engineer, National Highways Salem and others (1988) 4 SCC 462 it has been held "If the parties to the reference either agree beforehand to the method of appointment, or afterwards acquiescence in the appointment made with full knowledge of all the circumstances. they will be precluded from objection~ to such appointment as invalidating subsequent proceedings. Attending and taking part in the proceedings with full knowledge of the relevant fact will amount to such acquiescence,"

21. The aforesaid judgement has been referred with approval by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of M/s Construction India vs Secretary, Works Department Government of Orissa and others (1998) 2 SCC 89.

22. In the case of M.K.Shah Engineers & Contractors vs State of M.P (1999) 2 SCC 594 the honourable apex court has held:-

"18. The subsequent conduct of the respondents involuntarily agreed to the appointment of arbitrators in both the cases and not pursuing their objection under section 33 of the arbitration act, shall be valid on their part on the plea of non-compliance with the earlier part of clause 3.3 .29, if only there was such non-compliance. The respondent State of MP has acquiesced in the appointment of arbitrators and the proceedings for settlement of disputes by arbitration. The respondent cannot be permitted to turn around and plead invalidity or non-maintainability of arbitration proceedings by reference to clause 3.3 .29."

23. Applying the ratio laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the above judgements to the facts of the present case, it can safely be concluded that the respondent having appeared before the arbitrator and having actively participated in the proceedings, they would have been deemed to be participating with knowledge of full facts of the case and did not raise any objections regarding the jurisdiction and competence of the arbitrator or legality of the reference, had, therefore, acquiesced to his jurisdiction. The award was passed against the petitioner. He preferred an appeal to the Cooperative Tribunal, where the respondent raised for the 1st time a preliminary objection with regard to the competence of the Housing Commissioner to refer the dispute raised by the petitioner. The Tribunal proceeded to consider the objections raised by the respondents on merits, without taking into account the order of the High Court dated 22/12/2000 whereby the petitioner was directed to approach the housing Commissioner/registrar.

24. The Tribunal had clearly misdirected itself, while instead of rejecting the preliminary objection raised by the respondents at the very outset, proceeded to consider the merits of the same. The very fact that the Housing Commissioner exercised powers under the UP cooperatives Societies Act on the directions of the High Court, and the exercise of the said power, even otherwise, could not have been be held by the Tribunal to be illegal and arbitrary, coupled with the fact that the respondent who willingly participated before the arbitrator, never raised any objections with regard to the either the reference or the competence of the arbitrator was clearly precluded from raising the same by means of the preliminary objection before the Tribunal. This Court no hesitation in holding that the order of the Tribunal is clearly illegal, arbitrary, and contrary to the settled legal principles. We are not proceeding to adjudicate upon the powers of the housing Commissioner/registrar in entertaining the dispute and to further referring the same to the competent authority in exercise powers under section 3 (2) of the U.P Cooperative Societies Act inasmuch as the same was done under the orders of the court and not on his own motion.

25. Petitioner has also challenged the award passed by the Additional Registrar dated 22.8.2005. The Additional Registrar after considering the entire conspectus of facts as well as material was of the considered view that the cancellation of the allotment of the plot as well as subsequent cancellation of lease deed is illegal and arbitrary and deserves to be set aside but he proceeded to reject the claim of the petitioner solely on the ground that an inquiry report has been received which indicates that the petitioner is near relative of the President of the society and, therefore, the allottment of the plot was illegal. It has been submitted that the arbitrator has not considered the rules or definition as given in Section 2 (u) of the U.P. Cooperative Societies Rules, 1968 and, therefore, the judgement is without any application of mind and being contrary to the statutory provisions and, therefore, liable to be set aside.

26. Section 2(u) of which defines near relation of a person is as follows:-

(u) "Near relation of a person" refers to his following relations: -

(i) wife, (ii) husband, (iii) son, (iv) daughter, (v) father-in-law, (vi) mother-in-law. (vii) wife's sister, (viii) wife's brother, (ix) husband's sister, (x) husband's brother (xi) father, (xii) mother, (xiii) grand-son or grand-daughter, (xiv) father's sister, (xv) brother, (xvi) brother's son, (xvii) sister, (xviii) sister's son, (xix) father's brother, (xx) mother's brother, (xxi) son-in-law, (xxii) daughter-in-law, (xxiii) sister's husband;"

27. It has been submitted that son of the petitioner was "साढू" of the President of the society and this relationship does not fall under definition of "near relative" as per Rule 2 (u) of the Rules of 1968 and, therefore, the allottment of the plot in question is not hit by aforesaid rules and the finding given by the arbitrator in this regard is contrary to the provisions as quoted hereinabove.

28. Challenge was also been made to the cancellation of the lease deed by the administrator which after due consideration returned a finding that same was not in accordance with the rules. The counsel for the petitioner has further submitted that it is only a competent civil court which can cancel a set aside such of registration after examining oral documentary evidence adduced by the parties as held by a full bench of this court in the case of Smt Kusum Lata vs State of U.P and others (2018) 4 UBLBEC 3048. This issue does not deserve any further consideration in this petition in as much as the same has been decided in favour of the petitioner by the arbitrator.

29. It is clear from the Rules that the relationship of the petitioner with the President of the society is not hit by Rule 2(u) and even the arbitrator has nowhere adequately considered this fact and only on the basis of inquiry report submitted at the fag end of proceedings given this finding. The findings also indicates non application of mind as the arbitrator should have recorded specific finding with regard to the exact relationship of the husband of the petitioner with the President of the society and also the fact that the said relation is covered by the definition of the relations as provided under Rule 2 (u) of the Rules of 1968. No such finding has been recorded by the arbitrator. The findings of the arbitrator in this regard are liable to be set aside.

30. As discussed above, the order of Cooperative Tribunal dated 21.5.2008 as well as award dated 22.8.2008 are hereby set aside.

31. As a result of the above discussion, the matter is remanded to the arbitrator, who shall be appointed by the Registrar on an application made by the petitioner. The petitioner is given liberty to make an application to the Registrar along with the certified copy of this judgement, and on receipt of the application the Registrar shall refer the matter for arbitration in accordance with law. The arbitrator is directed to decide the claim of the petitioner within six months from the claim made by the petitioner. The arbitrator shall only consider and decide the issue relating to rejection of the claim of the petitioner on the ground of his being the relative of the President. The respondents having not challenged the findings of the arbitrator with regard to cancellation of plot and of lease deed in favour of petitioner, the same have become final.

32. It has further been submitted that interest of the petitioner has been protected by various interim orders passed during the proceedings and he is continuing in possession till date. It is, therefore, provided that till the decision of the arbitrator status quo with regard to the plot in question shall be maintained.

33. With aforesaid direction the petition stands disposed of.

A. Challenging-notice dated 20.02.2013-proceedings initiated against him-by Economic Offences Wing-seeking declaration of the same as illegal-on the ground that-investigation initiated-without lodging of FIR-notices served on him-instead of appearing or filing reply-before Economic Offences Wing-filed present petition-prel. enquiry permissible-before lodging of FIR-no illegality in impugned notice-Petition Dismissed.

B. Held, in the instant case, on receipt of a complaint against the petitioner, Economic Offences Wing issued a letter dated 21st January, 2013 to the petitioner, another letter dated 20th February, 2013 (annexure-1 to the writ petition) was sent to the petitioner to appear within one week and submit his reply. The petitioner instead of appearing in the office of Economic Offences Wing or filing reply to the queries made by them, file the present petition.We are of the considered opinion that the Economic Offences Wing has taken recourse to a preliminary inquiry which is inconsonance with the decision in Lalita Kumari's case (supra). We do not find any illegality in the impugned notice dated 20th February, 2013. In the light of aforesaid discussion, we are of the view that the writ petition is without any merit, same deserves to be dismissed and the same is hereby dismissed.

List of cases cited:-

1. P. Sirajuddin, ETC vs. State of Madras, ETC', 1970 (1) SCC 595

2. Lalita Kumari vs. State Government of Uttar Pradesh and others', (2014) 2 SCC 1

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ved Prakash Vaish, J.)

1. Heard Sri Dhruv Mathur, learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri Raj Baksh Singh, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for respondents No.1 to 5 and Sri Girish Chandra Sinha, learned counsel for respondent No.9.

2. The petitioner, Sri Radhey Krishna Trivedi has filed the present writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India with the following prayer:-

"(i) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus declaring the impugned investigation/proceeding being conducted against the Petitioner by the Economic Offences Wing of the State Government as illegal.

(ii) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari for quashing the impugned investigation/proceeding being carried out by the Economic Offences Wing of the State Government against the petitioner.

(iii) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing the Respondents not to harass and proceed against the Petitioner in any manner.

(iv) Issue an appropriate writ, order or direction for summoning of all letters, orders, notices, Government Orders pursuant to which the impugned investigation is being conducted against the Petitioner and to quash the same."

3. Briefly stating, the facts as set out in the petition are that the petitioner retired from the post of Assistant Branch Manager, Life Insurance Corporation of India in the year 1997; a letter dated 20th February, 2013 from the office of Economic Offences Wing U.P. was received by the petitioner requiring him to appear within one week and produce all relevant documents and cooperate in the investigation; earlier another letter dated 21st January, 2013 was sent to the petitioner which was referred in the letter dated 20th February, 2013; the petitioner sent reply vide letter dated 04th March, 2013 and requested to provide copy of letter dated 21st January, 2013 pursuant to which the investigation was initiated against him; on 04th March, 2013, the petitioner made an application under Right to Information Act seeking certain information regarding the jurisdiction of the Economic Offences Wing; same was replied by the Economic Offences Wing of the State Government wherein no specific reply was given, however, it was mentioned that the investigation against the petitioner was being conducted in furtherance of G.O. No.V.I.P.-13/25-8-12-17(170)/2012 dated 27.11.2012. It is also stated by the petitioner that the petitioner reliably learnt that there was neither any F.I.R. nor any other request from the Life Insurnace Corporation of India; there is no direction from the competent court to investigate the petitioner but it was only a letter in the form of a complaint from the District President (Raebareli) of the Samajwadi Party making vague, unsubstantiated and incorrect allegations against the petitioner and his family members on the basis of which the Chief Minister's Office required the Economic Offences Wing to investigate the petitioner. It is further stated by the petitioner that the notice issued by the Economic Offences Wing is in complete defiance of law and without registration of any F.I.R.

4. The petition has been contested by respondents No.1 to 4 by filing counter affidavit dated 17.09.2013. Respondent No.5 has filed the separate counter affidavit. Rejoinder affidavit has been filed by the petitioner.

5. A supplementary counter affidavit has also been filed on behalf of respondents No.1 to 4 dated 03.12.2019. In the supplementary counter affidavit, it is stated that Government of U.P. issued several Government Orders giving authority/power to the Economic Offices Wing to enquire into certain matters, and in this context G.O. dated 30.10.2006 and G.O. dated 23.06.2015 have been issued, it is clear from the said Government Orders that the Economic Offences Wing of U.P. Police has been empowered to make enquiries into the matters relating to revenue and economic matters including the matters relating to economic offences. The photocopies of Government Orders dated 30.10.2006 and 23.06.2015 have been filed as annexure-SCA-1 and 2 respectively with the supplementary counter affidavit.

6. The relevant part of the Government Order dated 30th October, 2006 issued by Government of Uttar Pradesh reads as under:-

"ख" शासन के अर्द्धशासकीय पत्र संख्या–39/11/70–सी0एक्स–4, दिनांक 06.12.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that the petitioner retired as Assistant Branch Manager, Life Insurance Corporation of India in the year 1997, after about 16 years of retirement, the petitioner received a letter dated 20.02.2013 from the office of Economic Offences Wing U.P. requiring the petitioner to appear along with relevant documents; there is no F.I.R. against the petitioner; there is no complaint from the Life Insurance Corporation of India or any direction from any competent authority to investigate the petitioner.

8. Learned counsel for the petitioner also submitted that one Brijendra Singh made a complaint to the Chief Minister of Uttar Pradesh against the petitioner, the said complaint was marked to Economic Offences Wing and on the basis of said complaint the Economic Offences Wing has issued a letter dated 20th February, 2013 requiring the petitioner to appear along with all the relevant documents. He further submitted that a letter dated 12th March, 2013 was also issued to the petitioner requiring him to answer certain questions mentioned therein.

9. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submitted that the Economic Offences Wing has no jurisdiction to interrogate the petitioner without registration of any F.I.R.

10. Per contra, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the respondents urged that on receiving a complaint against the petitioner, the petitioner was asked to appear vide lettter dated 21st January, 2013, another letter dated 20th February, 2013 was sent to the petitioner and another letter dated 12th March, 2013 was sent to the petitioner requiring him to submit information mentioned therein.

11. Learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the respondents further submitted that the letter in question was sent to the petitioner in terms of Government Orders dated 30.10.2006 and 23.06.2015 and the petitioner was asked to submit information required in the said letter.

12. Learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the respondents also submitted that it is not necessary to register F.I.R. and the Economic Offences Wing can make inquiries/investigation before registration of F.I.R.

13. We have carefully considered the submissions made by learned counsel for both the parties. We have also gone through the material available on record.

14. At the outset, it may be mentioned that the writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India is not maintainable, however, the petition is pending since 2013, interim order was passed on 05.08.2013, counter affidavit has been filed by the respondents and rejoinder affidavit has been filed by the petitioner, therefore, the present petition is being decided on merits.

15. The Code of Criminal Procedure (hereinafter referred to as "Cr.P.C.") is an enactment designed to ensure a fair investigation of the allegations against a person charge with criminal misconduct. Chapter XII of the Cr.P.C. deals with Information to the Police and their powers to investigate into cases whether cognizable or non-cognizable in the manner provided therein.

16. Section 154 of the Cr.P.C. reads as under:-

"154. Information in cognizable cases.--(1) Every information relating to the commission of a cognizable offence, if given orally to an officer in charge of a police station, shall be reduced to writing by him or under his direction, and be read over to the informant; and every such information, whether given in writing or reduced to writing as aforesaid, shall be signed by the person giving it, and the substance thereof shall be entered in a book to be kept by such officer in such form as the State Government may prescribe in this behalf.*

(2) A copy of the information as recorded under sub- section (1) shall be given forthwith, free of cost, to the informant.

(3) Any person aggrieved by a refusal on the part of an officer in charge of a police station to record the information referred to in sub-section (1) may send the substance of such information, in writing and by post, to the Superintendent of Police concerned who, if satisfied that such information discloses the commission of a cognizable offence, shall either investigate the case himself or direct an investigation to be made by any police officer subordinate to him, in the manner provided by this Code, and such officer shall have all the powers of an officer in charge of the police station in relation to that offence."

17. Section 160 of the Cr.P.C. empowers a police officer making an investigation to require the attendance before himself or any person who appears to be acquainted with the circumstances of the case. Section 161(1) of the Cr.P.C. gives a right to examine orally any person supposed to be acquainted with the facts and circumstances of the case, sub-Section 2 of Section 161 of the Cr.P.C. exempts a person from answering any question which would have a tendency to expose him to a penal charge or to a penalty for forfeiture. Under sub-Section 3 of Section 161 of the Cr.P.C. the police officer is empowered to reduce into writing any statement made to him in the course of such examination. Section 162 of the Cr.P.C. expressly lays down that such a statement made in the course of an investigation, if reduced into writing is not to be signed by the maker thereof and no part of such statement except as expressly provided is to be used for any purpose at any enquiry or trial in respect of any such offence under investigation at the time when the statement was made. Section 163(1) of the Cr.P.C. lays down an embargo on the investigating authority using any inducement, threat or promise to the maker which might influence his mind and lead him to suppose that thereby he would gain any advantage or avoid any evil in reference to his conduct as disclosed in the proceedings. Whereas the other section contain guidelines for the police officer in making investigation, this section expressly provides that any person in a authority even if he is not a police officer must guide himself accordingly, in case, where a crime is being investigated under this Chapter of the Cr.P.C. Section 169 of the Cr.P.C. empowers a police officer making investigation to release an accused person from custody, if there is no sufficient evidence or reasonable ground of suspicion to justify the forwarding of him to a Magistrate by taking a bond from him with or without sureties.

18. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of 'P. Sirajuddin, ETC vs. State of Madras, ETC', 1970 (1) SCC 595 considered the importance of a preliminary inquiry before the lodging of a first information report in a matter involving alleged corruption by a public servant. It was observed as under:-

"..... Before a public servant, whatever be his status, is publicly charged with acts of dishonesty which amount to serious misdemeanour or misconduct of the type alleged in this case and a first information is lodged against him, there must be some suitable preliminary enquiry into the allegations by a responsible officer. The lodging of such a report against a person, specially one who like the appellant occupied the top position in a department, even if baseless, would do incalculable harm not only to the officer in particular but to the department he belonged to, in general. If the Government had set up a Vigilance and Anti-Corruption Department as was done in the State of Madras and the said department was entrusted with enquiries of this kind, no exception can be taken to an enquiry by officers of this department but any such enquiry must proceed in a fair and reasonable manner. the enquiring officer must not act under any preconceived idea of guilt of the person whose conduct was being enquired into or pursue the enquiry in such a manner as to lead to an inference that he was bent upon securing the conviction of the said person by adopting measures which are of doubtful validity or sanction. The means adopted no less than the end to be achieved must be impeccable. In ordinary departmental proceedings against a Government servant charged with delinquency, the normal practice before the issue of a charge-sheet is for some one in authority to take down statements of persons involved in the matter and to examine documents which have a bearing on the issue involved. It is only thereafter that a charge-sheet is submitted and a full-scale enquiry is launched. When the enquiry is to be held for the purpose of finding out whether criminal proceedings are to be resorted to the scope thereof must be limited to the examination of persons who have knowledge of the affairs of the delinquent officer and documents bearing on the same to find out whether there is prima facie evidence of guilt of the officer. Thereafter the ordinary law of the land must take its course and further inquiry be proceeded with in terms of the Code of Criminal Procedure by lodging a first information report."

19. The Hon'ble Supreme Court emphasized the requirement of a preliminary inquiry, where a public servant is alleged to have committed an act of dishonestly involving a serious misdemeanor. The purpose of a preliminary inquiry is to ascertain whether a cognizable offence is made out on the basis of which a first information report can be lodged. On the basis of a first information report under section 154 of the Cr.P.C. is information relating to commission of cognizable offence which is furnished to an officer incharge of a police station. It is with a view to ascertain whether a cognizable offence seems to have been implicated in a case involving an alleged act of corruption by a public servant that a preliminary inquiry came to be directed in the judgment in P. Sirajuddin's case (supra).

20. The Constitution Bench of the Supreme court in 'Lalita Kumari vs. State Government of Uttar Pradesh and others', (2014) 2 SCC 1 after considering the judgment in P. Sirajuddin's case (supra) observed that while section 154 of the Cr.P.C. postulates mandatory registration of a first information report on the receipt of information indicating the commission of a cognizable offence yet there could be situations where a preliminary inquiry may be required. The Hon'ble Supreme Court indicated the cases where a preliminary inquiry may be warranted and was held:-

"120.5. The scope of preliminary inquiry is not to verify the veracity or otherwise of the information received but only to ascertain whether the information reveals any cognizable offence.

120.6. As to what type and in which cases preliminary inquiry is to be conducted will depend on the facts and circumstances of each case. The category of cases in which preliminary inquiry may be made are as under:

a) Matrimonial disputes/ family disputes

b) Commercial offences

c) Medical negligence cases

d) Corruption cases

e) Cases where there is abnormal delay/laches in initiating criminal prosecution, for example, over 3 months delay in reporting the matter without satisfactorily explaining the reasons for delay."

21. The purpose of conducting a preliminary inquiry has been elaborated in the following manner:-

"119. Therefore, in view of various counterclaims regarding registration or non-registration, what is necessary is only that the information given to the police must disclose the commission of a cognizable offence. In such a situation, registration of an FIR is mandatory. However, if no cognizable offence is made out in the information given, then the FIR need not be registered immediately and perhaps the police can conduct a sort of preliminary verification or inquiry for the limited purpose of ascertaining as to whether a cognizable offence has been committed. But, if the information given clearly mentions the commission of a cognizable offence, there is no other option but to register an FIR forthwith. Other considerations are not relevant at the stage of registration of FIR, such as, whether the information is falsely given, whether the information is genuine, whether the information is credible, etc. These are the issues that have to be verified during the investigation of the FIR. At the stage of registration of FIR, what is to be seen is merely whether the information given ex facie discloses the commission of a cognizable offence. If, after investigation, the information given is found to be false, there is always an option to prosecute the complainant for filing a false FIR."

22. A close scrutiny of the aforesaid judgments leads to the conclusion that a preliminary inquiry is permissible before the lodging of a first information report.

23. Moreover, Government Orders dated 30.10.2006 and 23.06.2015 issued by Government of Uttar Pradesh empower the Economic Offences Wing to make inquiries into the matters relating to Economic Offences Wing.

24. In the instant case, on receipt of a complaint against the petitioner, Economic Offences Wing issued a letter dated 21st January, 2013 to the petitioner, another letter dated 20th February, 2013 (annexure-1 to the writ petition) was sent to the petitioner to appear within one week and submit his reply. The petitioner instead of appearing in the office of Economic Offences Wing or filing reply to the queries made by them, file the present petition.

25. We are of the considered opinion that the Economic Offences Wing has taken recourse to a preliminary inquiry which is inconsonance with the decision in Lalita Kumari's case (supra). We do not find any illegality in the impugned notice dated 20th February, 2013.

26. In the light of aforesaid discussion, we are of the view that the writ petition is without any merit, same deserves to be dismissed and the same is hereby dismissed.

27. Interim application(s), if any, stands disposed of.

A. Petitioners-challenging-order dated 01.12.2018-declaring resp.6-as lowest bidder &consequential work order in f/o resp.6-on the ground of-awarding the work in question-contrary to-terms & condition of e-tender-work awarded-on the basis of experience certificate-upon verification-an agreement also executed-petitioner-least competent-even if-the award is cancelled-it won't fall in the lap of petitioner-Petition Dismissed.

B. Held, question which was canvassed before the High Court and which has been pressed before us relates to the merits of the nominations made to the reserved seats. It seems to us that the appellants do not have any right to challenge the nominations made by the Central Government. They do not compete for the reserved seats and have no locus standi in the matter of nomination to such seats. The assumption that if nominations to reserved seats are not in accordance with the rules all such seats as have not been properly filled up would be thrown open to the general pool is wholly unfounded." Needless to say that the respondent no. 6 is providing the services to the Institute and an agreement in regard to providing the services has also been executed on 31.03.2019. For the foregoing reasons, the writ petition for the reliefs sought lack merit and accordingly dismissed.

Writ Petition dismissed. (E-8)

1. Heard Shri Mohd. Mansoor, learned counsel for petitioners, learned

State Counsel, learned counsel appearing for respondents no. 2 to 5 and Shri Sanjay Bhasin, Senior Advocate, assisted by Shri Sunil Sharma, appearing on behalf of respondent no. 6.

2. By means of present writ petition the petitioners has prayed for quashing of order dated 01.12.2018 by which respondent no. 6, M/s Hotel Rajasthan was declared as lowest bidder for providing Patient Kitchen and Dietary Services in Sanjay Gandhi Post Graduate Institute of Medical Sciences, Lucknow and consequential work order dated 01.12.2018, as contained in Annexure No. 1 to writ petition, issued in favour of respondent no. 6- M/s Hotel Rajasthan.

3. Shri Mohd. Mansoor, learned counsel for petitioners submits that the Director of Sanjay Gandhi Post Graduate Institute of Medical Sciences, Lucknow (hereinafter referred as 'Institute') on 28.09.2018 invited e-tender for "Patient Kitchen and Dietary Services'. The said e-tender was in two parts, Technical Bid and Financial Bid. Subsequently, on 18.10.2018 and 14.11.2018 corrigendums were also issued. In response to the same the petitioners along with following firms submitted tender bid:

1) M/s Mohani Caterers, Ahmedabad.

2). M/s Buddha India Hotels Pvt Ltd, Lucknow.

3). M/s Capri Hospitality Services Pvt Ltd, Indore.

4). M/s Vrindavan Enterprises, Gorakhpur.

5). M/s Hotel Rajsthan, Khagaria.

6). M/s Amrit Foods, Lucknow.

3.1 Subsequently by means of impugned order dated 01.12.2018 (annexed as Annexure no. 1) tender in regard to "Patient Kitchen and Dietary Services' in the 'Institute' has been awarded to respondent no. 6-

M/s Hotel Rajasthan, for an amount of Rs 7,19,82,470.12/- by the respondent 'Institute'.

4. Shri Mohd. Mansoor, learned counsel for petitioners while challenging the impugned order submitted that the action on part of the official respondents i.e. authorities of the "Institute' thereby accepting the tender and awarding the work in question in favour of respondent no. 6 is contrary to terms and conditions of the e-tender and requires interference by this Court.

5. Elaborating his arguments he submits that Clause 3 of Section II of the bid "Instruction for Technical & Financial Bid', which is a part of e-tender, provides rejection of bid in certain contingencies. Under Sub-Clause "d' of Clause "3' it is mentioned that the bid shall be rejected if authenticity of any of the supporting document is found to be fabricated and in the instant case the bid of respondent no. 6 ought to have been rejected under Clause 3(d) of bid documents on account of reasons that:

(i) With tender documents respondent no. 6 submitted experience certificate dated 26.11.2018 issued by Hind Institute of Medical Sciences, however the said experience certificate is a forged document and in this regard he submitted that the Chairperson of Management Committee of Hind Institute of Medical Sciences has sent a letter stating therein that no such certificate was issued in favour of the respondent no. 6.

(ii) Respondent no. 6 in support of his bid also submitted experience certificate dated 27.11.2018 issued by the Nova Hospitals Limited, Lucknow. However, on enquiry, Dr. Pancham Singh, one of the authorities of the Nova Hospitals Limited, Lucknow clarified that M/s Hotel Rajasthan has provided dietary services on our verbal instructions to patients on chargeable basis but there was no written Agreement/MoU with M/s Hotel Rajasthan.

(iii) Respondent no. 6 also submitted experience certificate dated 19.11.2018 issued by Awadh Hospital and Heart Center, Lucknow and later on the said hospital clarified that the certificate dated 19.11.2018 which was issued in favour of the respondent no. 6 is to the fact that respondent no. 6 has provided services to patients on chargeable basis but there was no written Agreement/Contract with M/s Hotel Rajasthan.

6. Shri Mohd. Mansoor, learned counsel for petitioners further submits that as per Section II of the bid "Instruction for Technical & Financial Bid', which is a part of e-tender, under Sub-Clause "h' of Clause "3' it is mentioned that the bid shall be rejected if the bid is found to be conditional and the bid of respondent no. 6, being conditional, ought to have been rejected and the same was not done by the "Institute' which is in violation of term of tender document. In this regard he has placed reliance on the note made by respondent no. 6 in the Price Bid/Financial Bid (Annexure 6 to the writ petition) which reads as under:

"In column No. 4 (Quoted Amount of Overhead Expenses) our price 0 (Zero) is not accepted. Our price for column No.4 will change to 0.01(one paisa) as we have not received any communication regarding our query for the same mailed on 28.11.2018. The contract value will change accordingly."

7. Learned counsel for petitioners further submitted that as per Clause "2' of the corrigendum issued by the "Institute' (which is annexed as Annexure no. 4 to the petition) says that "The price in the "Price Bid / Financial Bid', uploaded through corrigendum dated 18.10.2018 /20.10.2018 shall be quoted in Indian Rupees (INR) and its lowest unit shall be paisa'. However in the present case respondent no. 6 has quoted "zero'. Thus violated the condition and accordingly, also, the bid of respondent no. 6 ought to have been rejected, however in utter violation of terms of tenter it has accepted.

8. Learned counsel for petitioners further submitted that clause "7' of the Corrigendum/Clarifications to NIT/Adv. No. I-53/Contract/2018-19 for "Patient Kitchen and Dietary Service' says that:

"Overhead expenses shall include fuel/gas, utensils, disposables, equipments and administrative charge and/or any other charge required to prepare diet as per specification, given in tender document or by the Institute.'

8.1 However, the respondent no. 6 in his tender towards "overhead expenses' has mentioned "zero', whereas the petitioner has mentioned Rs. 0.1/- and even then the tender respondent no. 6 has been accepted.

9. Lastly learned counsel for petitioners argued that the Tax Identification Number (TIN) which was mentioned by petitioners was canceled for the period 06.07.2011 to 2014 and during the said period no commercial transaction was made by respondent no. 6.

10. In support of his case, learned counsel for petitioners placed reliance on the law laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Jagdish Mandal vs State of Orissa & Others, (2007) 14 SCC 517, relevant part of which is as under:

'21. We may refer to some of the decisions of this Court, which have dealt with the scope of judicial review of award of contracts.

21.1) In Sterling Computers Ltd vs. M & N Publications Ltd [1993 (1) SCC 445], this Court observed :

"While exercising the power of judicial review, in respect of contracts entered into on behalf of the State, the court is concerned primarily as to whether there has been any infirmity in the decision making process the courts can certainly examine whether 'decision making process' was reasonable, rational, not arbitrary and violative of Article 14 of the Constitution."

21.2) In Tata Cellular v. Union of India [AIR 1996 SC 11], this Court referred to the limitations relating to the scope of judicial review of administrative decisions and exercise of powers in awarding contracts, thus :

(1) The modern trend points to judicial restraint in administrative action.

(2) The Court does not sit as a court of appeal but merely reviews the manner in which the decision was made.

(3) The Court does not have the expertise to correct the administrative action. If a review of the administrative decision is permitted it will be substituting its own decision, without the necessary expertise which itself may be fallible.

(4) The terms of the invitation to tender cannot be open to judicial scrutiny because the invitation to tender is in the realm of contract. More often than not, such decisions are made qualitatively by experts.

(5) The Government must have freedom of contract. In other words, a fairplay in the joints is a necessary concomitant for an administrative body functioning in an administrative sphere or quasi-administrative sphere. However, the decision must not only be tested by the application of Wednesbury principle of reasonableness (including its other facets pointed out above) but must be free from arbitrariness not affected by bias or actuated by mala fides.

(6) Quashing decisions may impose heavy administrative burden on the administration and lead to increased and unbudgeted expenditure.

This Court also noted that there are inherent limitations in the exercise of power of judicial review of contractual powers. This Court also observed that the duty to act fairly will vary in extent, depending upon the nature of cases, to which the said principle is sought to be applied. This Court held that the State has the right to refuse the lowest or any other tender, provided it tries to get the best person or the best quotation, and the power to choose is not exercised for any collateral purpose or in infringement of Article 14.

21.3) In Raunaq Internationa Ltd. vs. I.V.R. Construction Ltd. [1999 (1) SCC 492], this Court dealt with the matter in some detail. This Court held : "The award of a contract, whether it is by a private party or by a public body or the State, is essentially a commercial transaction. In arriving at a commercial decision considerations which are of paramount importance are commercial considerations. These would be : (1) The price at which the other side is willing to do the work; (2) Whether the goods or services offered are of the requisite specifications; (3) Whether the person tendering has the ability to deliver the goods or services as per specifications. When large works contracts involving engagement of substantial manpower or requiring specific skills are to be offered, the financial ability of the tenderer to fulfil the requirements of the job is also important; (4) the ability of the tenderer to deliver goods or services or to do the work of the requisite standard and quality; (5) past experience of the tenderer, and whether he has successfully completed similar work earlier; (6) time which will be taken to deliver the goods or services; and often (7) the ability of the tenderer to take follow up action, rectify defects or to give post contract services. Even when the State or a public body enters into a commercial transaction, considerations which would prevail in its decision to award the contract to a given party would be the same. However, because the State or a public body or an agency of the State enters into such a contract, there could be, in a given case, an element of public law or public interest involved even in such a commercial transaction.

What are these elements of public interest? (1) Public money would be expended for the purposes of the contract; (2) The goods or services which are being commissioned could be for a public purpose, such as, construction of roads, public buildings, power plants or other public utilities. (3) The public would be directly interested in the timely fulfilment of the contract so that the services become available to the public expeditiously. (4) The public would also be interested in the quality of the work undertaken or goods supplied by the tenderer. Poor quality of work or goods can lead to tremendous public hardship and substantial financial outlay either in correcting mistakes or in rectifying defects or even at times in re-doing the entire work - thus involving larger outlays or public money and delaying the availability of services, facilities or goods, e.g. A delay in commissioning a power project, as in the present case, could lead to power shortages, retardation of industrial development, hardship to the general public and substantial cost escalation. When a writ petition is filed in the High court challenging the award of a contract by a public authority or the State, the court must be satisfied that there is some element of public interest involved in entertaining such a petition. If, for example, the dispute is purely between two tenderers, the court must be very careful to see if there is any element of public interest involved in the litigation. A mere difference in the prices offered by the two tenderers may or may not be decisive in deciding whether any public interest is involved in intervening in such a commercial transaction. It is important to bear in mind that by court intervention, the proposed project may be considerably delayed thus escalating the cost far more than any saving which the court would ultimately effect in public money by deciding the dispute in favour of one tenderer or the other tenderer. Therefore, unless the court is satisfied that there is a substantial amount of public interest, or the transaction is entered into mala fide, the court should not intervene under Article 226 in disputes between two rival tenderers."

21.4) In Air India Ltd vs. Cochin International Airport Ltd [2000 (2) SCC 617], this Court summarized the scope of interference as enunciated in several earlier decisions thus :

"The award of a contract, whether it is by a private party or by a public body or the State, is essentially a commercial transaction. In arriving at a commercial decision considerations which are paramount are commercial considerations. The State can choose its own method to arrive at a decision. It can fix its own terms of invitation to tender and that is not open to judicial scrutiny. It can enter into negotiations before finally deciding to accept one of the offers made to it. Price need not always be the sole criterion for awarding a contract. It is free to grant any relaxation, for bona fide reasons, if the tender conditions permit such a relaxation, for bona fide reasons, if the tender conditions permit such a relaxation. It may not accept the offer even though it happens to be the highest or the lowest. But the State, its corporations, instrumentalities and agencies are bound to adhere to the norms, standards and procedures laid down by them and cannot depart from them arbitrarily. Though that decision is not amenable to judicial review, the court can examine the decision- making process and interfere if it is found vitiated by mala fides, unreasonableness and arbitrariness. The State, its corporations, instrumentalities and agencies have the public duty to be fair to all concerned. Even when some defect is found in the decision-making process the court must exercise its discretionary power under Article 226 with great caution and should exercise it only in furtherance of public interest and not merely on the making out of a legal point. The court should always keep the larger public interest in mind in order to decide hether its intervention is called for or not. Only when it comes to a conclusion that overwhelming public interest requires interference, the court should intervene." [Emphasis supplied]

21.5) In Association of Registration Plates vs Union of India [2005 (1) SCC 679], this Court held:

"..Article 14 of the Constitution prohibits government from arbitrarily choosing a contractor at its will and pleasure. It has to act reasonably, fairly and in public interest in awarding contracts. At the same time, no person can claim a fundamental right to carry in business with the government. All that he can claim is that in competing for the contract, he should not be unfairly treated and discriminated, to the detriment of public interest. ..."

21.6) In B.S.N. Joshi v. Nair Coal Services Ltd [2006 (11) SCALE 526], this Court observed :

"It may be true that a contract need not be given to the lowest tenderer but it is equally true that the employer is the best judge therefor; the same ordinarily being within its domain, court's interference in such matter should be minimal. The High Court's jurisdiction in such matters being limited in a case of this nature, the Court should normally exercise judicial restraint unless illegality or arbitrariness on the part of the employer is apparent on the face of the record."

22. Judicial review of administrative action is intended to prevent arbitrariness, irrationality, unreasonableness, bias and malafides. Its purpose is to check whether choice or decision is made 'lawfully' and not to check whether choice or decision is

'sound'. When the power of judicial review is invoked in matters relating to tenders or award of contracts, certain special features should be borne in mind. A contract is a commercial transaction. Evaluating tenders and awarding contracts are essentially commercial functions. Principles of equity and natural justice stay at a distance. If the decision relating to award of contract is bona fide and is in public interest, courts will not, in exercise of power of judicial review, interfere even if a procedural aberration or error in assessment or prejudice to a tenderer, is made out. The power of judicial review will not be permitted to be invoked to protect private interest at the cost of public interest, or to decide contractual disputes. The tenderer or contractor with a grievance can always seek damages in a civil court. Attempts by unsuccessful tenderers with imaginary grievances, wounded pride and business rivalry, to make mountains out of molehills of some technical/procedural violation or some prejudice to self, and persuade courts to interfere by exercising power of judicial review, should be resisted. Such interferences, either interim or final, may hold up public works for years, or delay relief and succour to thousands and millions and may increase the project cost manifold. Therefore, a court before interfering in tender or contractual matters in exercise of power of judicial review, should pose to itself the following questions :

i) Whether the process adopted or decision made by the authority is mala fide or intended to favour someone.

OR Whether the process adopted or decision made is so arbitrary and irrational that the court can say : 'the decision is such that no responsible authority acting reasonably and in accordance with relevant law could have reached.'

ii) Whether public interest is affected.

If the answers are in the negative, there should be no interference under Article 226. Cases involving black-listing or imposition of penal consequences on a tenderer/contractor or distribution of state largesse (allotment of sites/shops, grant of licences, dealerships and franchises) stand on a different footing as they may require a higher degree of fairness in action.'

10. Learned counsel for petitioners also placed reliance on law laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in judgment dated 23.01.2019 passed in Civil Appeal No. 1050 of 2019 arising out of SLP(C) No. 27818 of 2018 Vidarbha Irrigation Development Corporation vs M/s Anoj Kumar Garwala, relevant part of which is as under:

"10. We may now come to Clause 2.35 which makes it clear that a substantially responsive bid is one which conforms to all terms, conditions and specifications without any material deviation. Inter alia, a material deviation is one which limits, in any substantial way, or is inconsistent with the bidding documents or the employer's rights or bidder's obligations under the Contract. It cannot be gainsaid that a bank guarantee, which is for a period of six months and not for a period of 40 months, would not only be directly inconsistent with the bidding documents but would also be contrary to the employers' right to a bank guarantee for a longer period. This being the case, since a material deviation from the terms and conditions of the tender document was made by Respondent No. 2, when it furnished a bank guarantee for only six months initially, it would be clear that such bid would have to be considered as not substantially responsive and ought to have been rejected by the employer. Clause 2.35.2 also makes it clear that such a bid would have to be rejected outrightly and may not be subsequently made responsive by correction.

13. The law on the subject is well settled. In Bakshi Security and Personnel Services Pvt. Ltd. v. Devkishan Computed Pvt. Ltd. and Ors., (2016) 8 SCC 446, this Court held:

"14. The law is settled that an essential condition of a tender has to be strictly complied with. In Poddar Steel Corpn. v. 12 Ganesh Engg. Works [Poddar Steel Corpn. v. Ganesh Engg. Works, (1991) 3 SCC 273] this Court held as under: (SCC p. 276, para 6)

"6. ... The requirements in a tender notice can be classified into two categories-those which lay down the essential conditions of eligibility and the others which are merely ancillary or subsidiary with the main object to be achieved by the condition. In the first case the authority issuing the tender may be required to enforce them rigidly. In the other cases it must be open to the authority to deviate from and not to insist upon the strict literal compliance of the condition in appropriate cases."

15. Similarly in B.S.N. Joshi & Sons Ltd. v. Nair Coal Services Ltd. [B.S.N. Joshi & Sons Ltd. v. Nair Coal Services Ltd., (2006) 11 SCC 548] this Court held as under: (SCC pp. 571-72, para 66)

"(i) if there are essential conditions, the same must be adhered to;

(ii) if there is no power of general relaxation, ordinarily the same shall not be exercised and the principle of strict compliance would be applied where it is possible for all the parties to comply with all such conditions fully;

(iii) if, however, a deviation is made in relation to all the parties in regard to any of such conditions, ordinarily again a power of relaxation may be held to be existing;

(iv) the parties who have taken the benefit of such relaxation should not ordinarily be allowed to take a different stand in relation to compliance with another part of tender contract, particularly when he was also not in a position to comply with all the conditions of tender fully, unless the court otherwise finds relaxation of a condition which being essential in nature could not be relaxed and thus the same was wholly illegal and without jurisdiction;

(v) when a decision is taken by the appropriate authority upon due consideration of the tender document submitted by all the tenderers on their own merits and if it is ultimately found that successful bidders had in fact substantially complied with the purport and object for which essential conditions were laid down, the same may not ordinarily be interfered with;..."

16. We also agree with the contention of Shri Raval that the writ jurisdiction cannot be utilised to make a fresh bargain between parties.

14) However, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant strongly relied upon Afcons Infrastructure Ltd v. Nagpur Metro Rail Corpn. Ltd, (2016) 16 SCC 818, and paragraphs 14 and 15 in particular, which state:

"14. We must reiterate the words of caution that this Court has stated right from the time when Ramana Dayaram Shetty v. International Airport Authority of India [Ramana Dayaram Shetty v.

International Airport Authority of India, (1979) 3 SCC 489] was decided almost 40 years ago, namely, that the words used in the tender documents cannot be ignored or treated as redundant or superfluous -- they must be given meaning and their necessary significance. In this context, the use of the word "metro" in Clause 4.2(a) of Section III of the bid documents and its connotation in ordinary parlance cannot be overlooked.

15. We may add that the owner or the employer of a project, having authored the tender documents, is the best person to understand and appreciate its requirements and interpret its documents. The constitutional courts must defer to this understanding and appreciation of the tender documents, unless there is mala fide or perversity in the understanding or appreciation or in the application of the terms of the tender conditions. It is possible that the owner or employer of a project may give an interpretation to the tender documents that is not acceptable to the constitutional courts but that by itself is not a reason for interfering with the interpretation given."

15) It is clear even on a reading of this judgment that the words used in the tender document cannot be ignored or treated as redundant or superfluous - they must be given meaning and their necessary significance. Given the fact that in the present case, an essential tender condition which had to be strictly complied with was not so complied with, the appellant would have no power to condone lack of such strict compliance. Any such condonation, as has been done in the present case, would amount to perversity in the understanding or appreciation of the terms of the tender conditions, which must be interfered with by a constitutional court."

11. Reliance has also been placed on the law laid down by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Sobhikaa Impex (P) Ltd & another vs Central Medical Services Society (2016) 16 SCC 233, relevant part of which is as under:

"19. The thrust of the matter is whether the decision by the Registration Committee by itself can be regarded as grant of registration certificate. It is luminescent that its decision to grant registration certificate is subject to conditions. Apart from that, it had not granted any certificate but only a decision was taken. There is a clear distinction between a decision taken and the decision acted upon or given effect to. Therefore, the appellant cannot claim benefit of the said decision. The appellants cannot lay stress on clause 5.4.1 to avail the benefit of treating itself as a responsive bidder. As far as Instructions to Bidders is concerned, the initial clause was that the bidder must be registered under CIB under the Act and the documentary evidence in this regard shall be submitted along with the bid. Amendment elaborating the same postulates that the registration certificate shall be submitted along with the bid at the time of opening of the tender and if it is not done, the bid shall be held as non-responsive. A submission is advanced by the first respondent that it is a clarificatory condition. As we have already opined, decision by the Registration Committee of CIB to provisionally approve registration does not amount to registration by itself with the CIB. So the condition, as such, was not satisfied under the unamended stipulation. The amended clause only provides about the consequence thereof. It can be stated without any shadow of doubt that even if clause 6 would not have been amended, the first respondent, on the ground of non-production of the registration certificate, would have been legally justified to reject the bid. It is an essential condition incorporated in the Instructions to Bidders. In this context, we may profitably refer to the authority in B.S.N. Joshi & Sons Ltd. v. Nair Coal Services Ltd. and others where a two-Judge Bench, after referring to series of judgments has culled out the following principles:-

"(i) if there are essential conditions, the same must be adhered to;

(ii) if there is no power of general relaxation, ordinarily the same shall not be exercised and the principle of strict compliance would be applied where it is possible for all the parties to comply with all such conditions fully;

(iii) if, however, a deviation is made in relation to all the parties in regard to any of such conditions, ordinarily again a power of relaxation may be held to be existing;

(iv) the parties who have taken the benefit of such relaxation should not ordinarily be allowed to take a different stand in relation to compliance with another part of tender contract, particularly when he was also not in a position to comply with all the conditions of tender fully, unless the court otherwise finds relaxation of a condition which being essential in nature could not be relaxed and thus the same was wholly illegal and without jurisdiction;

(v) when a decision is taken by the appropriate authority upon due consideration of the tender document submitted by all the tenderers on their own merits and it it is ultimately found that successful bidders had in fact substantially complied with the purport and object for which essential conditions were laid down, the same may not ordinarily be interfered with;

(vi) the contractors cannot form a cartel. If despite the same, their bids are considered and they are given an offer to match with the rates quoted by the lowest tenderer, public interest would be given priority;

(vii) where a decision has been taken purely on public interest, the court ordinarily should exercise judicial restraint."

20. In Master Marine Services (P) Ltd. v. Metcalfe & Hodgkinson (P) Ltd and another, it has been held that the State can choose its own method to arrive at a decision and it is free to grant any relaxation for bona fide reasons, if the tender conditions permit such a relaxation. It has been further held that the State, its corporations, instrumentalities and agencies have the public duty to be fair to all concerned. Even when some defect is found in the decision-making process, the court must exercise its discretionary powers under Article 226 with great caution and should exercise it only in furtherance of public interest and not merely on the making out of a legal point.

21. In Jagdish Mandal v. State of Orissa and others, it has been ruled that when the power of judicial review is invoked in matters relating to tenders or award of contracts, certain special features should be borne in mind. A contract is a commercial transaction. Evaluating tenders and awarding contracts are essentially commercial functions. Principles of equity and natural justice stay at a distance. If the decision relating to award of contract is bona fide and is in public interest, courts will not, in exercise of power of judicial review, interfere even if a procedural aberration or error in assessment or prejudice to a tenderer, is made out. The power of judicial review will not be permitted to be invoked to protect private interest at the cost of public interest, or to decide contractual disputes.

22. In Union of India and another v. International Trading Co. and another, it has been held that the basic requirement of Article 14 is fairness in action by the State, and non-arbitrariness in essence and substance is the heartbeat of fair play. Actions are amenable, in the panorama of judicial review only to the extent that the State must act validly for a discernible reason, not whimsically for any ulterior purpose. It has been further opined that the meaning and true import and concept of arbitrariness is more easily visualized than precisely defined. A question whether the impugned action is arbitrary or not is to be ultimately answered on the facts and circumstances of a given case.

23. In Jespar I. Slong v. State of Meghalaya and others, this Court stated that fixation of a value of the tender is entirely within the purview of the executive and courts hardly have any role to play in this process except for striking down such action of the executive as is proved to be arbitrary or unreasonable.

24. Keeping in view the aforesaid authorities, we have to consider whether the High Court has fallen into error by not interfering with the grant of contract in favour of the fourth respondent. As the factual analysis would reveal, the appellant No.1 had not filed an application for grant of registration. It was appellant No.2 who had filed it. Be that as it may, the decision dated 31.03.2015 was taken by the Registration Committee of CIB to approve the registration subject to the condition DAC granting permission for commercialization. That apart, the decision taken by the concerned authority, even if it is put on the website, despite the astute submission of Mr. Singh, would not tantamount to grant of registration certificate. The amendment was made, as we perceive, to clarify the position. We have already stated, even if the amendment was not brought in, the first respondent would have been in a position, by applying objective standards, to treat the appellants' bid as non-responsive and non-compliant. The use of the word "must" adds a great degree of certainty to the same; it is a requisite parameter as thought of by the respondent No.1. The tender was floated for purchase which is needed for the nation. The first respondent along with respondent Nos.2 and 3 were taking immense precaution. In such a circumstance, needless to emphasize, public interest is involved. It cannot succumb to private interest. The action on the part of the respondent Nos.1 to 3 cannot be regarded as arbitrary or unreasonable. By no stretch of imagination it can be construed to be an act which is not bonafide or to have been done to favour the fourth respondent. Nothing has been pleaded that the fourth respondent is not eligible or qualified. In our considered opinion, the essential condition of tender being not met with, the tenderer, the appellants herein, were ineligible and the tender was non-responsive. That apart, the amendment was applicable to all. Additionally, the High Court in the first round of litigation had not held that the registration certificate granted on 31.03.2015 would enure to the benefit of the writ petitioners from the date of the decision of the registration authority, and it had rightly not said so. Judged from any angle, we do not perceive any substance in the grounds raised in this appeal."

12. In view of the above learned counsel for petitioners prayed that the order dated 01.12.2018 issued by the "Institute', which is annexed as Annexure No. 1 to writ petition, is liable to be set aside.

13. Per contra, Shri Sanjay Bhasin, Senior Advocate, appearing for "Institute' submitted that so far as the submission of learned counsel for petitioners, on the basis of Sub-clause "d' of clause "3' of Section II of the bid "Instruction for Technical & Financial Bid', which is a part of e-tender, i.e. authenticity of experience certificates, is concerned, it has no force and is misconceived because in the present case the experience certificate dated 26.11.2018 issued by Hind Institute of Medical Sciences, Lucknow was not considered in view of two affidavits submitted by the respondent no. 6 and conflicting communications of Hind Institute of Medical Sciences, Lucknow and tender of respondent no. 6 has been accepted being L-1 and subject to verification of the experience certificates submitted by the respondent no. 6. In this regard he has placed reliance on Minutes of Meetings dated 23.02.2019 and impugned order dated 01.12.2018. The relevant part of Minutes of Meetings reads as under:

"Since the two affidavit furnished by M/s Hotel Rajasthan are not precise as per tender conditions and as per conflicting, communications from Hind Institute, the experience of Hind Institute of Medical Sciences, Lucknow should not be considered while making calculation for deciding eligible successful bidder."

13.1 It appears from impugned order dated 01.12.2018 that tender of respondent no. 6 was accepted being L-1 and subject to verification of the experience certificate.

14. Shri Sanjay Bhasin further submits that so far as the arguments raised by learned counsel for petitioners in regard to experience of Patient Kitchen and Dietary Services rendered by the respondent no. 6 in Nova Hospitals Limited, Lucknow and in Awadh Hospital and Heart Center, Lucknow is concerned, there was no written agreement / MoU with respondent no. 6 with these parties.

14.1 However the concerned have categorically stated that M/s Hotel Rajasthan/respondent no. 6 had provided Patient Kitchen and Dietary Services to patients and also certified their respective certificates dated 27.11.2018 and 19.11.2018 issued in favour of respondent no. 6. The reliance has been placed on the Minutes of Visit (Annexure No. RA-1 to rejoinder affidavit), relevant portion of the same reads as under:

"2. Nova Hospital Limited, Lucknow:

The committee met Dr Pancham Singh, the Hospital Medical Superintendent and enquired about the issuance of experience certificate dated 27.11.2018. Dr Pancham Singh confirmed about issuance of the certificate dated 27.11.2018 and further clarified that M/s Hotel Rajasthan had provided dietary services on our verbal instructions to patients on chargeable basis but there was no written agreement/MOU with M/s Hotel Rajasthan.

The letter ref no Nil dt 24.12.2018 addressed to Pro Uttam Singh, Joint Director(admin) issued by Hospital Medical Superintendent is attached herewith as Annexure II.

3. Awadh Hospital and Heard Centre Lucknow:

The committee met Chief Finance Officer, Mr Satyendra Bhawani, and enquired about the issuance of experience certificate dated 19.11.18. Mr Bhawani confirmed that the experience letter dated 19.11.18 was issued by him and further clarified that M/S Hotel Rajsthan has provided services to patients on chargeable basis but there was no written agreement/contract with M/S Hotel Rajasthan."

14.2 In addition to the above facts, Shri Sanjay Bhasin submitted that so far as experience is concerned, as a matter of fact, respondent no. 6 is providing catering services in the "Institute' since 2014 and there is no complaint whatsoever in regard to services.

15. Shri Sanjay Bhasin, also submitted that so far as argument raised by learned counsel for petitioners, based on Sub-Clause "h' of Clause "3' of Section II of the bid "Instruction for Technical & Financial Bid', which is a part of e-tender, is concerned, it does not, in any manner, debar from quoting "zero" in the technical bid/financial bid and in fact it is not a conditional bid.

16. Shri Sanjay Bhasin, learned counsel appearing on behalf of "Institute' has further submitted that so far as arguments raised by learned counsel for petitioners in regard to validity of Tax Identification Number (TIN) is concerned, the same has been renewed in favour of respondent no. 6 with retrospective effect and as such the argument which has been raised by learned counsel for petitioners in this regard has got no force.

17. In view of the facts as stated above Shri Sanjay Bhasin, Learned Senior Advocate, further submitted that in view of the law laid down by Hon'ble Apex Court in Civil Appeal No. 3588 of 2019 (arising out of SLP(C) No. 46 of 2019) Caretel Infotech Ltd vs Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Ltd & Others, no interference in matter is required by this Court. Relevant part of judgment is as under:

''36. We consider it appropriate to make certain observations in the context of the nature of dispute which is before us. Normally parties would be governed by their contracts and the tender terms, and really no writ would be maintainable under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. In view of Government and Public Sector Enterprises venturing into economic activities, this Court found it appropriate to build in certain checks and balances of fairness in procedure. It is this approach which has given rise to scrutiny of tenders in writ proceedings under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. It, however, appears that the window has been opened too wide as almost every small or big tender is now sought to be challenged in writ proceedings almost as a matter of routine. This in turn, affects the efficacy of commercial activities of the public sectors, which may be in competition with the private sector. This could hardly have been the objective in mind. An unnecessary, close scrutiny of minute details, contrary to the view of the tendering authority, makes awarding of contracts by Government and Public Sectors a cumbersome exercise, with long drawn out litigation at the threshold. The private sector is competing often in the same field. Promptness and efficiency levels in private contracts, thus, often tend to make the tenders of the public sector a non-competitive exercise. This works to a great disadvantage to the Government and the Public Sector.'

18. Shri Sanjay Bhasin, learned counsel for respondent no. 6, further submits that out of seven (7) firms, which submitted the e-tender bid, financial bid of two bidders namely M/s Mohini Caterers, Ahmedabad and M/s Buddha India Hotels Pvt Ltd Lucknow were in violation of condition no. 5 of corrigendum dated 18.10.2018 and due to which the same were rejected. Two bidders namely M/s Jaiswal Canteen (A), Ahmedabad and M/s Amrit Foods, Lucknow were declared as L-2. He further submits that thereafter the financial bid of three lowest bidders namely M/s Capri Hospitality Services Pvt Ltd, Indore, M/s Vrindavan Enterprises, Gorakhpur and M/s Hotel Rajasthan, Khagaria, Bihar were considered and decided according to tie breaker by respondent "Institute'.

18.1 After considering the tender documents/bids submitted by three L-1 bidders, named above and taking into consideration Clause 1(i) and 1(ii) of the corrigendum dated 14.11.2018 the respondent no. 6 was declared successful bidder.

19. Shri Sanjay Bhasin learned counsel for respondent no. 2 to 5 and Shri Sunil Sharma, learned counsel appearing on behalf of respondents no. 6 have stated the writ petition for the reliefs claimed by the petitioners i.e. for quashing of the order dated 01.12.2018, passed in favour of respondent no. 6, by issuance a writ of certiorari with consequential reliefs is not maintainable as if it would be issued then it would be futile exercise as bid of petitioners is L-2 and other two bidders namely M/s Capri Hospitality Services and M/s Vrindavan Enterprises are L-1, who were in tie alongwith respondent no. 6 and in this view the bid in issue cannot be finalised in favour of petitioners. In this regard reliance has been placed on judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Bihar State Financial Corporation & Others vs Chemicot India (P) Ltd & Others (2006) 7 SCC 293, relevant part of which is as under:

''11. We, therefore, in the peculiar facts if this case, are of the opinion that it would be futile to issue a writ of or in the nature of mandamus directing the Corporation to pay the aforementioned amount of Rs.15 lakhs to the respondent-Company. We may, however, hasten to add that we have not gone into the question as to whether the respondent-Company had paid any amount to the Corporation as against the loan amount which had admittedly been received by it. If the respondent-Company had not done so, the Corporation may take such steps in relation thereto, as it may be advised in this behalf but it goes without saying that it would be open to the respondent-Company to raise such contentions, including the payment of additional subsidy to it and/or effect thereof in the proceedings, which may be initiated by the Corporation. We are, therefore, of the opinion that the impugned judgment cannot be sustained. It is set aside accordingly.'

20. Accordingly, it is submitted by learned counsel for respondents that the present writ petition lacks merits and is liable to be dismissed.

21. We have heard arguments of learned counsel for parties and perused the record.

22. In view of the settled legal proposition in respect of interference by this Court in the contractual matter or tender process, we have considered the facts and submissions made by the counsels for the respective parties.

23. Undisputedly the respondent no. 6 (M/s Hotel Rajasthan), M/s Vrindavan Enterprises and M/s Capri Hospitality

Services Pvt. Ltd. were declared L-1 (Lowest Bidder) and in the tie breaker, after taking into account Clause 1 (i) and (ii) of the Corrigendum dated 14.11.2018, the contract was awarded to respondent no. 6 vide impugned order dated 01.12.2018, which was subject to verification of experience certificate and petitioner firm was declared L-2 and after verification the certificates issued by Nova Hospital, Lucknow and Awadh Hospital and Heart Centre, Lucknow, where found genuine, as appears from Annexure No. RA-1 (Minutes of Visit, signed by Three Member Committee of the Institute for verifying the genuineness of experience certificates submitted by respondent no. 6, the relevant part of which is quoted hereinabove) to the rejoinder affidavit filed by the petitioners, and the experience certificate given by the Hind Institute of Medical Sciences, Lucknow was not considered in view of affidavits furnished by the respondent no. 6 and conflicting communications made by Hind Institute of Medical Sciences, Lucknow, as appears from Annexure No. RA-3 (Minutes of the CRFC Meeting held on 23.02.2019, the relevant part of which is quoted hereinabove) to the rejoinder affidavit filed by the petitioners. Accordingly, we find that the challenge of award of contract to the respondent no. 6 on the ground of experience certificate by the petitioners is unsustainable.

24. The next contention/ground of the petitioners is based on Sub Clause (h) of Clause 3 of Section II of the bid "Instruction for Technical & Financial Bid" on which basis it has been stated that the bid submitted by the respondent no. 6 was conditional and ought to have been rejected. In this regard we find from the record i.e. Annexure No. 6 to the writ petition (Price Bid/Financial Bid), wherein it is mentioned that "L-1 bidder shall be the bidder, whose total quoted rates at column no. 7 (sum of column no. 7) are found to be LOWEST" and Criteria for deciding L-1 mentioned in Clause 4(ii) wherein it is mentioned that "The L-1 bidder shall be decided after adding the rates of all the meals i.e. G-1, G-2, G-3, P-1, P-2, P-3, High Protein Diet and Nursing Hostel Diet and standing at lowest out of all the eligible bids" and accordingly it is undisputed that the total amount mentioned in column no. 7 was to be considered while deciding L-1 and in the column no. 7 of the Price Bid/Financial Bid (Annexure No. 6 to the writ petition) submitted by the respondent no. 6, no condition has been mentioned and the note mentioned therein to our view is not a material deviation from the terms and conditions of the tender and on the basis of amount mentioned in column no. 7 the respondent no. 6 declared L-1. Accordingly, we are of the view that the contention of the petitioners that the tender was conditional and ought to have been rejected has no force.

25. In regard to the challenge of award of contract to respondent no. 6 on the ground that as per corrigendum the price in the "Price Bid/Financial Bid" shall be quoted in Indian Rupees and its lowest unit shall be Paisa and in the instant case the respondent no. 6 in the Financial Bid has mentioned "0" (Zero) in column no. 4 of Price Bid/Financial Bid and as such violated the condition of the corrigendum and accordingly accepting the tender in the favour of respondent no. 6 is illegal and arbitrary as well as unjustifiable, we considered the condition no. 2 of the corrigendum annexed as Annexure No. 4 to the writ petition and found that the said condition does not say that the "0" (Zero) could not be mentioned. It is without going to say that "1" (one) is the lowest natural number and "0" is lowest whole number. In view of the same mentioning of "0" (Zero) in Financial Bid by the respondent no. 6, in our view, would not vitiate the financial bid submitted by respondent no. 6.

26. The last ground taken by the petitioners for challenging the award of contract in favour of respondent no. 6 vide order dated 01.12.2018 to the effect that the respondent no. 6 was not having the valid TIN number has also got no force as the TIN number was revived from the retrospective date, as specifically mentioned in para 12 of the counter affidavit filed by the respondent no. 6 and this fact has not been refuted by the petitioners.

27. In addition to above we would also like to observe that the admitted fact is that the petitioner firm was declared L-2 and in addition to respondent no. 6 there were two other firms namely, M/s Vrindavan Enterprises and M/s Capri Hospitality Services Pvt. Ltd., which were declared L-1 and accordingly even if we interfere in matter the tender would not fall in the lap of petitioners and being so as well as in view of the observations made in para 21, which is quoted below, of the judgment passed by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Dr. N. C. Singhal Vs. Union of India, reported as (1980) 3 SCC 29, the writ petition filed by the petitioners challenging the order dated 01.12.2018 is not maintainable.

"21. ..... Even if their promotions are struck down appellant will not get any post vacated by them. Incidentally High Court also upheld their promotions observing that by the time the petition was heard each one of them had requisite service qualification and, therefore, the promotions could not be struck down. Once the challenge on merits fails the second string to the bow need not be examined. Having said all this, appellant is least competent to challenge their promotions. In a slightly comparable situation this Court in Chitra Ghosh Vs. Union of India, (1969) 2 SCC 228, observed as under:

The other question which was canvassed before the High Court and which has been pressed before us relates to the merits of the nominations made to the reserved seats. It seems to us that the appellants do not have any right to challenge the nominations made by the Central Government. They do not compete for the reserved seats and have no locus standi in the matter of nomination to such seats. The assumption that if nominations to reserved seats are not in accordance with the rules all such seats as have not been properly filled up would be thrown open to the general pool is wholly unfounded."

28. Needless to say that the respondent no. 6 is providing the services to the Institute and an agreement in regard to providing the services has also been executed on 31.03.2019.

29. For the foregoing reasons, the writ petition for the reliefs sought lack merit and accordingly dismissed. No order as to costs.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ved Prakash Vaish, J.)

1. Heard Sri Prashant Chandra, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Ms. Meha Rashmi, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Savitra Vardhan Singh, learned counsel for respondent.

2. This is an application for review of judgment and order dated 04th May, 2015 passed by a Bench comprising of Hon'ble Mr. Justice Amreshwar Pratap Sahi and Hon'ble Mr. Justice Aditya Nath Mittal in Writ Petition No.6166 (MB) of 1986 and since his lordship (Hon'ble Mr. Justice Amreshwar Pratap Sahi) has been elevated as Hon'ble the Chief Justice and Hon'ble Mr. Justice Aditya Nath Mittal has retired, hence, this review application has come up before this Bench.

3. The brief facts giving rise to the present application are that the petitioner filed a writ petition seeking directions to the respondent to execute the formal Lease Deed in favour of the petitioner in pursuant of the order of allotment dated 07th November, 1985. The said petition was disposed of by this Court vide order dated 04th May, 2015.

4. The relevant portion of judgment and order dated 04th May, 2015 reads as under:

"...Having considered the submissions raised, the Court proceeded to resolve the matter by allowing the petitioner to withdraw the amount which has already been lying with the Nagar Mahapalika in the circumstances indicated above, for which Sri Apoorva Tewari contends that the petitioner should be refunded an appropriate amount as it has been lying with the Nagar Mahapalika for long.

This, in the opinion of the Court, is the only way out inasmuch as the petitioner has not been able to establish that the offer made to her was a valid transaction in accordance with law. Secondly, in the absence of a lease, there was no concluded contract for being enforced. Thirdly, there was also no legitimate expectation in the absence of any right so as to interfere with the decision of the respondents to rescind the offer made to the petitioner. The Uttar Pradesh Nagar Mahapalika Adhiniyam, 1959, envisages the settlement of the properties of such local bodies through Sections 128 and 129 thereof. The order relied on by the petitioner, that was later on rescinded, appears to be more in the nature of a concession or a grant that does not appear to be as an outcome of a lawful exercise under the provisions referred to herein above. No material has been placed to establish that the procedure prescribed in the aforesaid provisions was followed nor any exercise appears to be available to determine the market value of the property prior to it's settlement.

In view of this concluded legal position and the refund sought by the learned Counsel for the petitioner to which learned Counsel for the Nagar Mahapalika has no objection, we find, in the interest of justice, that since the amount deposited by the petitioner has already been offered to be refunded by the Nagar Mahapalika, it would be appropriate that a sum of Rs.5 Lacs in all is refunded to the petitioner in the background aforesaid. Sri Tewari for the petitioner and Sri Singh for the Nagar Mahapalika are not at variance to this arrangement to finally settle the dispute.

This writ petition is, therefore, disposed of with a direction that in view of these developments, the order aforesaid has been passed with the agreement of the parties and the petitioner would be entitled to refund of Rs.5 Lacs only from the Nagar Mahapalika which shall be handed over to the petitioner within 15 days from today."

5. Learned counsel for the applicant submitted that there is an error apparent on the face of the record in holding that entire allotment proceedings were contrary to the U.P. Nagar Mahapalika Rules, 1958 without referring to any such rule and even in the absence of letter dated 27nd February, 1988 as well as resolution dated 21st April, 1988.

6. Learned counsel for the applicant also submitted that the writ petition was disposed of on the concession given by the earlier counsel and no such authority was given by the petitioner to make such statement.

7. On the other hand, learned counsel for the respondent urged that the writ petition was disposed of on 04th May, 2015 on the basis of statement made by learned counsel for the petitioner and there is no ground for review of judgment and order dated 04th May, 2015.

8. Learned counsel for the respondent further submitted that the petitioner challenged the order dated 04th May, 2015 by filing Special Leave Petition which was dismissed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court on 14.03.2016.

9. We have carefully considered the submissions made by learned counsel for both the parties and gone through the material available on record.

10. At the outset, it may be mentioned that aggrieved by the judgment and order dated 04th May, 2015 passed in Writ Petition No.6116 (MS) of 1986, the applicant filed a petition bearing Special Leave to Appeal (C) No.4384 of 2016. Vide order dated 14.03.2016, the said writ petition was dismissed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court. The Hon'ble Supreme Court passed the following order:

"Delay condoned.

No ground for interference is made out to exercise our jurisdiction under Article 136 of the Constitution of India.

The special leave petition is dismissed.

Pending application (s), if any, stand(s) disposed of. "

11. Now, coming to the merits of the review petition, it may be mentioned that the grounds taken in the review petition amount to almost rehearing of the matter and some of arguments advanced are such as were not raised earlier. A review petition cannot be made as an opportunity to re-argue the matter.

12. On perusal of Rule 1 of Order 47 of the C.P.C., 1908 it is manifestly clear that power of review is a creature of the statute and no court or quasi-judicial body can review its judgment or order unless it is legally empowered to do so. It must be conferred by law either specifically or by necessary implication. The review court cannot sit as appellate court. The mere possibility of two views is not a ground for review.

13. It is well settled that power of review can be exercised for the correction of a mistake and not to substitute a view. The error contemplated under the rule must be such which is apparent on the face of the record and not an error which has to be searched. It must be an error of inadvertence. A court of review has only a limited jurisdiction and it can allow a review on the grounds; (i) discovery of new and important matter or evidence, which after the exercise of due diligence, was not within the applicant's knowledge or could not be produced by him at the time when the decree was passed or order was made; (ii) mistake or error apparent on the face of the record, or (iii) for any other sufficient reason.

14. Rule 1 of Order 47 of the C.P.C., 1908 reads as under:

R. 1. Application for review of Judgment - (1) Any person considering himself aggrieved-

(a) by a decree or order from which an appeal is allowed, but from which no appeal has been preferred.

(b) by a decree or order from which no appeal is allowed, or

(c) by a decision on a reference from a Court of Small Causes, and who from the discovery of new and important matter or evidence which after the exercise of due diligence, was not within his knowledge or could not be produced by him at the time when the decree was passed or order made, or on account of some mistake or error apparent on the face of the record, or for any other sufficient reason, desires to obtain a review of the decree passed or order made against him, may apply for a review of judgment to the Court which passed the decree or made the order.

15. In 'Thungabhadra Industries Ltd. Vs. The Government of Andhra Pradesh',AIR 1964 SC 1372 the Court said:

"A review is by no means an appeal in disguise whereby an erroneous decision is reheard and corrected, but lies only for patent error."

16. In 'Aribam Tuleshwar Sharma Vs. Aribam Pishak Sharma' 1979 (4) SCC 389 the Court said:

"... there is nothing in Article 226 of the Constitution to preclude a High Court from exercising the power of review which inheres in every Court of plenary jurisdiction to prevent miscarriage of justice or to correct grave and palpable errors committed by it. But, there are definitive limits to the exercise of the power of review. The power of review may be exercised on the discovery of new and important matter or evidence which, after the exercise of due diligence was not within the knowledge of the person seeking the review or could not be produced by him at the time when the order was made; it may be exercised where some mistake or error apparent on the face of the record is found; it may also be exercised on any analogous ground. But, it may not be exercised on the ground that the decision was erroneous on merits. That would be the province of a Court of Appeal. A power of review is not to be confused with appellate powers which may enable an Appellate Court to correct all manner of errors committed by the Subordinate Court."

17. Again, in 'Meera Bhanja v. Nirmala Kumari Choudhury', AIR 1995 SC 455 while quoting with approval the above passage from Abhiram Taleshwar Sharma Vs. Abhiram Pishak Shartn (supra), the Court once again held that review proceedings are not by way of an appeal and have to be strictly confined to the scope and ambit of Order 47 Rule 1 CPC.

18. In 'Parsion Devi and others Vs. Sumitri Devi and others', 1997 (8) SCC 715 it was held that an error, which is not self evident and has to be detected by process of reasoning, can hardly be said to be error apparent on the face of the record justifying the court to exercise powers of review in exercise of review jurisdiction.

19. In 'Rajendra Kumar Vs. Rambai', AIR 2003 SC 2095, the Apex Court has observed about limited scope of judicial intervention at the time of review of the judgment and said:

"The limitations on exercise of the power of review are well settled. The first and foremost requirement of entertaining a review petition is that the order, review of which is sought, suffers from any error apparent on the face of the order and permitting the order to stand will lead to failure of justice. In the absence of any such error, finality attached to the judgement/order cannot be disturbed."

20. A close scrutiny of the aforesaid judgments mentioned above it is clear that review is not an appeal in disguise. Rehearing of the matter is impermissible in the garb of review. It is an exception to the general rule that once a judgment is signed or pronounced, it should not be altered. In 'Lily Thomas Vs. Union of India', AIR 2000 SC 1650, the Court held that power of review can be exercised for correction of a mistake and not to substitute a new. Such powers can be exercised within limits of the statute dealing with the exercise of power. The aforesaid view is reiterated in 'Inderchand Jain Vs. Motilal', (2009) 4 SCC 665.

21. In another case, 'Kamlesh Verma Vs. Mayawati and others', 2013 (8) SCC 320, it was observed:

"19. Review proceedings are not by way of an appeal and have to be strictly confined to the scope and ambit of Order 47 Rule 1 of CPC. In review jurisdiction, mere disagreement with the view of the judgment cannot be the ground for invoking the same. As long as the point is already dealt with and answered, the parties are not entitled to challenge the impugned judgment in the guise that an alternative view is possible under the review jurisdiction.

Summary of the Principles:

20. Thus, in view of the above, the following grounds of review are maintainable as stipulated by the statute:

20.1. When the review will be maintainable:-

(i) Discovery of new and important matter or evidence which, after the exercise of due diligence, was not within knowledge of the petitioner or could not be produced by him;

(ii) Mistake or error apparent on the face of the record;

(iii) Any other sufficient reason.

The words "any other sufficient reason" has been interpreted in Chhajju Ram vs. Neki, AIR 1922 PC 112 and approved by this Court in Moran Mar Basselios Catholicos vs. Most Rev. Mar Poulose Athanasius & Ors., AIR 1954 SC 526, to mean "a reason sufficient on grounds at least analogous to those specified in the rule". The same principles have been reiterated in Union of India vs. Sandur Manganese & Iron Ores Ltd. & Ors., 2013 (8) SCC 337.

22.2. When the review will not be maintainable:-

(i) A repetition of old and overruled argument is not enough to reopen concluded adjudications.

(ii) Minor mistakes of inconsequential import.

(iii) Review proceedings cannot be equated with the original hearing of the case.

(iv) Review is not maintainable unless the material error, manifest on the face of the order, undermines its soundness or results in miscarriage of justice.

(v) A review is by no means an appeal in disguise whereby an erroneous decision is reheard and corrected but lies only for patent error.

(vi) The mere possibility of two views on the subject cannot be a ground for review.

(vii) The error apparent on the face of the record should not be an error which has to be fished out and searched.

(viii) The appreciation of evidence on record is fully within the domain of the appellate court, it cannot be permitted to be advanced in the review petition.

(ix) Review is not maintainable when the same relief sought at the time of arguing the main matter had been negatived." (emphasis supplied) ".

22. In the instant case, we find that the writ petition was disposed of on the submissions made by learned counsel for the petitioner for refund of the amount to which learned counsel for the Nagar Mahapalika agreed.

23. Recently, a similar issue was considered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of 'Om Prakash v. Suresh Kumar', Civil Appeal Nos.833-834 of 2020 decided on 30.01.2020 and it was held :

" 9. The moot question is: whether the appellant should be bound by the statement made by his counsel before the High Court that the respondent- tenant will be reinducted in equal area in the newly constructed building within one month i.e. on or before 30.11.2017 from the date of completion of the construction work i.e. 31.10.2017. From the tenor of the statement made before the High Court on behalf of the appellant, it is obvious that it is an unequivocal statement made by the counsel engaged by the appellant to espouse his (appellant's) cause before the High Court. It is not the case of the appellant that he had expressly instructed his counsel not to make such a statement. Further, the statement was in respect of the commitment of the appellant qua the subject matter of the proceedings in which the counsel was engaged and instructed to appear. Not only that, right from the beginning and even before this Court, an attempt was made by the parties to explore possibility of working out an amicable solution, as is evident from the order dated 9.1.2017 before the respondent was put to notice of these appeals, and more particularly, dated 14.11.2017.

10. Considering the above, the appellant cannot now be allowed to resile from the statement made before the High Court, which the High Court justly declined to undo in the review petition filed by the appellant for that purpose. In the peculiar facts of this case, the decision of this Court in Himalayan Coop. Group Housing Society (supra) will be of no avail to the appellant. Inasmuch as, it is not a case where the counsel, who made the statement was not engaged by the appellant before the High Court. The engagement was in respect of eviction proceedings and the statement was in relation to the commitment of the appellant qua the subject matter thereof and being an unequivocal statement, it will be binding on the appellant. In any case, even this Court showed indulgence to the appellant on the basis of impression given to this Court about the possibility of at least sparing a small room for the respondent, which was the basis for issuing notice to the respondent, as is evident from the orders dated 9.1.2017 and 15.2.2017."

24. Applying the aforesaid law to the facts and circumstances of the present case, we are of the considered opinion that there is no sufficient ground for review of judgment and order dated 04th May, 2015.

25. In the light of aforesaid judgments, the application for review deserves to be dismissed and the same is hereby dismissed.

A. Petitioner-seeking-declaration of result-of B.Ed examination-in the academi session 2013-2014-to bring admission-to logical conclusion-reliance placed-on a judgment passed by-coordinate bench-in Ankit Kumar's case-overlooking the judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court-where declarationof result-post 16.9.2013-rendered impermissible.

Refered to larger bench-

1. Whether open to State Govt. or this Court to relax the time sch. Fixed by Hon'ble Apex Court?- No.

2. Whether instruction of state to be acted upon or this would amount to be act of disobedience?-No deliberate attempt to mislead the Court-Not liable under contempt jurisdiction.

Writ Petition dismissed. (E-8)

Held, since instructions of State Government contained in its communication dated 28.11.2018 did not disclose full and complete facts including the order dated 10.09.2018 passed by Hon'ble Supreme Court on the interlocutory application moved by State of U.P. itself (IA No.1216 of 2017), the said instructions could not be acted upon, however, in absence of any specific instruction to learned State counsel to submit before this Court that State did not have any objection if result of those admitted students is declared by the University, the contempt proceedings against officers of the State may not be initiated/instituted. Reference made is answered thus.

5. Assistant Collector of Central Excise, Chandan Nagar, West Bengal vs. Dunlop India Ltd and others,(1985) 1 SCC 260

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajan Roy, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner, Shri Rajesh Tiwari for the State and Shri Subhas Bisaria, learned counsel for the opposite parties no. 3, 4 and 5.

2. This petition was filed on 05.12.2018 seeking the following relief:-

"(i) Issue a writ order or direction in the nature of mandamus thereby commanding and directing the opposite party no. 1 and 2 to issue necessary directive to the respondent no. 3 and 4 to declare the result of the petitioner of the B.Ed. examination so held for the academic session 2013-14 so that the admission of the petitioner so made in pursuance of the Government order dated 26.09.2013 and 08.10.2013 is brought to its logical conclusion, in the interest of justice."

3. Reliance was placed by the petitioner upon a judgment dated 03.12.2018 passed by a Coordinate Bench in a bunch of similar petitioners leading petition being 4289 (M/S) of 2014, Ankit Kumar and 7 others Vs. State of U.P. and others. When this petition came up for hearing, this Court found the said judgment to be in conflict with the decision of the Hon'ble Supreme Court, as such, vide order dated 17.12.2018 following questions were referred for consideration by a larger Bench:-

"(i) Whether it was open for the State Government or this Court to have relaxed the time schedule fixed under the orders of the Apex Court in College of Professional Education (Supra), as reiterated and re-enforced in Maa Vaishno Devi Mahila Mahavidyalaya (Supra), as also the order dated 25.11.2013 passed in I.A. No. 109 and 110 of 2013 in College of Professional Education, fixing 16th September, 2013, by permitting/directing declaration of results of students admitted in B.Ed Course in the Academic Session 2013-14 after 16.09.2013?

(ii) Whether the instructions of the State Government dated 28th November, 2018 could be acted upon or that it amounts to an act in disobedience/derogation of the orders of the Apex Court, referred to above, rendering the responsible officers of the State liable to be proceeded with under contempt jurisdiction, in view of the observations contained in para 90.2 of the Supreme Court judgment in Maa Vaishno Devi Mahila Mahavidyalaya (Supra)?

4. The larger Bench considered the said questions and answered the same vide its judgment dated 18.10.2019. The relevant extract of the said judgment answering question no. 1 is as under:-

"The said prayer was rejected, as observed above, by Hon'ble Supreme Court on 10.09.2018. Thus, it appears that the said order was not brought to the notice of this Court in the case of Ankit Kumar which was decided subsequent to the order dated 10.09.2018 passed by Hon'ble Supreme Court i.e. on 03.12.2018. Dismissal of IA No. 1216 of 2017 filed by the State of U.P. by Hon'ble Supreme Court vide its order dated 10.09.2018 does not leave anyone in doubt that time schedule relating to admission etc. in B.Ed courses by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of College of Professional Education and others (supra) was to be strictly followed and in view of what we have discussed above in reference to provision of Article 141 and 144 of the Constitution of India, we have no hesitation to hold that it was open for any authority or body, be it the State Government or even this Court, to have in any manner relaxed the time schedule as fixed by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of College of Professional Education and others (supra).

We thus answer the question no. 1 referred to us as follows.

It was not open either for the State Government or this Court to have relaxed the time schedule fixed by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of College of Professional Education and others (supra) and that declaration of result of students admitted in B.Ed course in the academic session 2013-2014 after 16.09.2013 is impermissible."

5. The relevant extract of the judgment answering question no. 2 is as under:-

"As regards question no.2 referred to us, we may observe that instructions of the State Government contained in its communication dated 28.11.2018 did not instruct the State Counsel to submit before this Court that the State Government did not have any objection if the result of the petitioners in the said matter, was declared. Nonetheless, we may notice that the said communication dated 28.11.2018 though notices the order dated 25.11.2013 whereby Interlocutory Application Nos. 109-110 were dismissed by Hon'ble Supreme Court, however, it does not make any mention of the order dated 10.09.2018 which was passed by Hon'ble Supreme Court on the interlocutory applications made by the State of U.P. itself (IA No. 1216 of 2017) whereby prayer of the State Government Order dated 08.10.2013, was rejected.

It is needless to say that it is the duty of every authority including the authorities of the State Government and its instrumentalities as well not only to disclose correct facts before the Court but also to disclose full and complete facts so as to assist the Court appropriately in discharge of its judicial functions.

Having observed as above, we may only point out at this juncture that the communication dated 28.11.2018 did not instruct learned Standing Counsel appearing for the State of U.P. to make any such statement that the State had no objection in case result of the petitioners of the said case was declared by University. the manner in which the case of Ankit Kumar was conducted on behalf of State of U.P. though cannot be appreciated for non-disclosure of full and complete facts, however, we do not find it a case of any deliberate attempt by the officers of the State Government to mislead the Court so as to make the officers liable to be proceeded against, under contempt jurisdiction. In this view of the matter, question no. 2 referred to us is answered as follows:

Since instructions of State Government contained in its communication dated 28.11.2018 did not disclose full and complete facts including the order dated 10.09.2018 passed by Hon'ble Supreme Court on the interlocutory application moved by State of U.P. itself (IA No. 1216 of 2017), the said instructions could not be acted upon, however, in absence of any specific instruction to learned State Counsel to submit before this Court that State did not have any objection if result of those admitted students is declared by the University, the contempt proceedings against officers of the State may not be initiated/instituted.

Reference made is answer thus."

6. In view of the aforesaid decision of the larger Bench and the answer given to the questions referred to it, as admittedly the petitioner was granted admissions subsequent to 16.09.2013, in non-adherence and violation to the time schedule fixed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court, the relief prayed for in this petition cannot be granted. It is accordingly declined.

7. The petition is dismissed with the aforesaid observations.

3. Kanwar Singh Saini Vs. High Court of Delhi , 2012 (4) SCC 307

(Delivered by Hon'ble Siddhartha Varma, J.)

1. An election for electing a member of Zila Panchayat Ward/Sector No. 6, Vikas Khand Narayanpur, District - Varanasi was held on 17.10.2015. The result of that election was declared on 2.11.2015. The respondent no. 6 Rakesh who was aggrieved by the election of petitioner filed a writ petition being Writ - C No. 3466 of 2016 to challenge the election result dated 2.11.2015. On 27.1.2016, the writ petition was dismissed on the ground that an alternative remedy was available to the petitioner of that writ petitioner (respondent no. 6 in this writ petition) and that he could have availed the remedy of filing an Election Petition under Section 27 of the U.P. Kshettra Panchayats and Zila Panchayats Adhiniyam, 1961. Thereafter, the respondent no. 6 filed an Election Petition being Election Petition No. 43 of 2016 on 30.1.2016.

2. This Election Petition, as was filed belatedly, was accompanied by an application to condone the delay in filing the election petition as it was filed beyond the limitation prescribed by Rule 4 of the U.P. Zila Panchayats (Settlement of Disputes Relating to Membership) Rules, 1994. Notices, it appears, were issued in the Election Petition and on 21.7.2016 after deeming sufficient notice on the petitioner, through publication, the application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act was allowed. As the petitioner here and the opposite party in the Election Petition was served by publication and as the notice, in fact, was not served on the petitioner, the proceedings in the Election Petition proceeded ex parte.

3. Upon knowledge being gained by the petitioner on 29.1.2018 about the Election Petition a written statement was filed by the petitioner Akhilesh. During the course of hearing, the petitioner Akhilesh who was a candidate and who had won the Election filed an application being Application No. 111C to recall the order dated 21.7.2016 by which the delay in filing the election petition had been condoned. This application was filed on 23.10.2019. The election petitioner (respondent no. 6 here) filed his objection and prayed that the application filed on 23.10.2019 i.e. application no. 111C be rejected. On 3.12.2019, the Election Tribunal i.e. the Court of the Additional District Judge/Special Judge, E.C. Act, Varanasi, rejected the application of the petitioner, hence the instant writ petition.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon Section 27 of the U.P. Kshettra Panchayats and Zila Panchayats Adhiniyam, 1961, and upon Rules 3 and 4 of the U.P. Zila Panchayats (Settlement of Disputes Relating to Membership) Rules, 1994 and submitted that against the result of an election which was declared on 2.11.2015 as per Rule 4 of the U.P. Zila Panchayats (Settlement of Disputes Relating to Membership) Rules, 1994, an Election Petition could have been filed within a period of 30 days. Since the learned counsel for the petitioner took recourse to the provisions of Section 27 of the U.P. Kshettra Panchayats and Zila Panchayats Adhiniyam, 1961, and to Rules 3 and 4 of the U.P. Zila Panchayats (Settlement of Disputes Relating to Membership) Rules, 1994, the same are being reproduced here as under:-

27. Disputes as to membership or disqualification.--(1) if any dispute arises as to whether a particular person is a member of Zila Panchayat under clause (a) of Section 18 the dispute shall be referred in the manner prescribed to the State Government and the decision of the State Government shall be final and binding. (2) If a dispute arises as to whether a person-

(a) has been lawfully chosen a member of a Zila Panchayat under Section 18 or

(b) has ceased to remain eligible for being chosen a member of the Zila Panchayat for the purposes of Section 20 or

(C) has become disqualified to be Adhyaksha or Upadhyaksha for the purposes of Section 19, the dispute shall be referred in the manner prescribed to the Judge whose decision shall be final and binding.

Rule 3. Manner of raising disputes under Section 27(1). (1) If any dispute arises as to whether a person is a member of the Zila Panchayat under clause (a) of sub-section (1) of Section 18 , the same may be raised by any person whose name is registered as an elector in the Electoral roll for the territorial constituency of the concerned Zila Panchayat.

(2) The application shall specify the ground on which the dispute is raised and shall be presented to the District Magistrate by the person making the application and if there are more signatories to it by any or all of them.

(3) The District Magistrate shall, as soon thereafter as may be, refer the application alongwith the entire records and his own comments to the State Government for decisions.

(4) The State Government may, after such enquiry as it considers necessary and after affording a reasonable opportunity of hearing to the parties, pass such order as it considers just and proper.

Rule 4. Manner of raising disputes under Section 27(2)(a) and (b).--(1) If a dispute arises as to whether a person has been lawfully chosen under clause (b) of sub-Section (1) of Section 18 the matter shall be referred by means of a written petition by any person who could legally be a candidate at such choosing to the Judge within thirty days of the date of choosing.

(2) If a dispute arises as to whether a person has ceased to remain eligible for being chosen a member, the matter shall in the manner as provided in sub-rule (1) be raised by any person whose name is registered as an elector in the Electoral roll for the territorial constituency of the concerned Zila Panchayat.

(3) Every petition under sub-rule (1) or sub-rule (2) shall be presented in person by the petitioner, and if there are more than one petitioners by any or all of them.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that when the Election Petition itself was not filed within the limitation provided then it should have been dismissed on the ground of limitation even if the question of limitation was not raised.

6. In this regard, learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon Section 3(1) of the Limitation Act, 1963, and, therefore, the same is being reproduced here as under:-

S.3 : Bar of limitation. (1) Subject to the provisions contained in sections 4 to 24 (inclusive), every suit instituted, appeal preferred, and application made after the prescribed period shall be dismissed although limitation has not been set up as a defence.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that a question of jurisdiction could be raised at any point of time during the continuance of a case and further submitted that limitation in a given case was a question of jurisdiction and if the petitioner raised the same even after some delay then that question had to be looked into and answered. Learned counsel submitted that question of limitation is a plea of law which covered the jurisdiction of a Court and could be raised at any stage. To emphasize this proposition of law, learned counsel relied upon 2015 (6) SCC 412 (Foreshore Co-operative Housing Society Limited v. Praveen D.Desai (Dead) thr. Lrs. and others). Since the learned counsel specifically relied upon paragraphs 49 to 54 they are being reproduced here as under:-

"49. A Constitution Bench of five Judges of this Court in the case of Pandurang Dhondi Chougule vs. Maruti Hari Jadhav, 1966 SC 153, while dealing with the question of jurisdiction, observed that a plea of limitation or plea of res judicata is a plea of law which concerns the jurisdiction of the court which tries the proceeding. The Bench held:-

"10. The provisions of Section 115 of the Code have been examined by judicial decisions on several occasions. While exercising its jurisdiction under Section 115, it is not competent to the High Court to correct errors of fact however gross they may, or even errors of law, unless the said errors have relation to the jurisdiction of the court to try the dispute itself. As clauses (a), (b) and (e) of Section 115 indicate, it is only in cases where the subordinate court has exercised a jurisdiction not vested in it by law, or has failed to exercise a jurisdiction so vested, or has acted in the exercise of its jurisdiction illegally or with material irregularity that the revisional jurisdiction of the High Court can be properly invoked. It is conceivable that points of law may arise in proceedings instituted before subordinate courts which are related to questions of jurisdiction. It is well settled that a plea of limitation or a plea of res judicata is a plea of law which concerns the jurisdiction of the court which tries the proceedings. A finding on these pleas in favour of the party raising them would oust the jurisdiction of the court, and so, an erroneous decision on these pleas can be said to be concerned with questions of jurisdiction which fall within the purview of Section 115 of the Code. But an erroneous decision on a question of law reached by the subordinate court which has no relation to questions of jurisdiction of that court, cannot be corrected by the High Court under Section 115."

50. In the case of Manick Chandra Nandy vs. Debdas Nandy, (1986) 1 SCC 512, this Court, while considering the nature and scope of High Court's revisional jurisdiction in a case where a plea was raised that the application under Order IX Rule 13 was barred by limitation, held that a plea of limitation concerns the jurisdiction of the court which tries a proceeding for a finding on this plea in favour of the party raising it would oust the jurisdiction of the court.

51. In the case of National Thermal Power Corpn. Ltd. vs. Siemens Atkeingesellschaft, 2007 (4) SCC 451, this Court considering the similar question under the Arbitration and Conciliation Act held as under:-

"17. In the larger sense, any refusal to go into the merits of a claim may be in the realm of jurisdiction. Even the dismissal of the claim as barred by limitation may in a sense touch on the jurisdiction of the court or tribunal. When a claim is dismissed on the ground of it being barred by limitation, it will be, in a sense, a case of the court or tribunal refusing to exercise jurisdiction to go into the merits of the claim. In Pandurang Dhoni Chougule v. Maruti Hari Jadhav this Court observed that: (AIR p. 155, para 10)

"10.....It is well settled that a plea of limitation or a plea of res judicata is a plea of law which concerns the jurisdiction of the court which tries the proceedings. A finding on these pleas in favour of the party raising them would oust the jurisdiction of the court, and so, an erroneous decision on these pleas can be said to be concerned with questions of jurisdiction which fall within the purview of Section 115 of the Code."

52. In the case of Official Trustee vs. Sachindra Nath Chatterjee, AIR 1969 SC 823, a three Judges Bench of this Court while deciding the question of jurisdiction of the Court under the Trust Act observed:-

"15. From the above discussion it is clear that before a Court can be held to have jurisdiction to decide a particular matter it must not only have jurisdiction to try the suit brought but must also have the authority to pass the orders sought for. It is not sufficient that it has some jurisdiction in relation to the subject-matter of the suit. Its jurisdiction must include the power to hear and decide the questions at issue, the authority to hear and decide the particular controversy that has arisen between the parties."

53. In the case of ITW Signode India Ltd. vs. CCE, (2004) 3 SCC 48, a similar question came before a three Judges Bench of this Court under the Central Excise Act, 1944, when this Court opined as under:-

"69. The question of limitation involves a question of jurisdiction. The finding of fact on the question of jurisdiction would be a jurisdictional fact. Such a jurisdictional question is to be determined having regard to both fact and law involved therein. The Tribunal, in our opinion, committed a manifest error in not determining the said question, particularly, when in the absence of any finding of fact that such short-levy of excise duty related to any positive act on the part of the appellant by way of fraud, collusion, wilful misstatement or suppression of facts, the extended period of limitation could not have been invoked and in that view of the matter no show-cause notice in terms of Rule 10 could have been issued."

54. In the case of Kamlesh Babu vs. Lajpat Rai Sharma, (2008) 12 SCC 577, the matter came to this Court when the trial court dismissed the suit on issues other than the issue of limitation. The Bench held:-

"23. The reasoning behind the said proposition is that certain questions relating to the jurisdiction of a court, including limitation, goes to the very root of the court's jurisdiction to entertain and decide a matter, as otherwise, the decision rendered without jurisdiction will be a nullity. However, we are not required to elaborate on the said proposition, inasmuch as in the instant case such a plea had been raised and decided by the trial court but was not reversed by the first appellate court or the High Court while reversing the decision of the trial court on the issues framed in the suit. We, therefore, have no hesitation in setting aside the judgment and decree of the High Court and to remand the suit to the first appellate court to decide the limited question as to whether the suit was barred by limitation as found by the trial court. Needless to say, if the suit is found to be so barred, the appeal is to be dismissed. If the suit is not found to be time-barred, the decision of the first appellate court on the other issues shall not be disturbed."

8. In this regard, learned counsel for the petitioner also relied upon a judgement reported in 2012 (4) SCC 307 (Kanwar Singh Saini v. High Court of Delhi). He specifically relied upon paragraph 22 and, therefore, the same is being reproduced here as under:-

"22. There can be no dispute regarding the settled legal proposition that conferment of jurisdiction is a legislative function and it can neither be conferred with the consent of the parties nor by a superior court, and if the court passes order/decree having no jurisdiction over the matter, it would amount to a nullity as the matter goes to the roots of the cause. Such an issue can be raised at any belated stage of the proceedings including in appeal or execution. The finding of a court or tribunal becomes irrelevant and unenforceable/inexecutable once the forum is found to have no jurisdiction. Acquiescence of a party equally should not be permitted to defeat the legislative animation. The court cannot derive jurisdiction apart from the statute. (VideUnited Commercial bank Ltd. v. Workmen, Nai Bahu v. Lala Ramnaraya, Natraj Studios(P) Ltd. v. Navrang Studios, Sardar hasan Siddiqui v Stat. A.R Antulay v. R.S. Nayak, Union of India v. Deoki Nandan Aggarwal, karnal Improvement Trust v. Parkash Wanti, U.P. Rajkiya Nirman Nigam Ltd. v. Indure (P) Ltd., State of Gujarat v. Rajesh Kumar Chimanlal Barot, Kesar Singh v. Sadhu, Kondiba Dagadu Kadam v. Savitribai Sopan Gujar and CCE v. Flock (India) (P) Ltd."

9. Learned counsel for the petitioner, therefore, submitted that the judgement of the Court below which had stated that the decision on the point of limitation, wherein the delay in filing the Election Petition was condoned on 21.7.2016 could not have been questioned in the proceedings of the Election Petition was absolutely erroneous and, therefore, the impugned order dated 3.12.2019 be set aside.

10. Learned counsel appearing for the Election Petitioner (the respondent no. 6 here), however, submitted that the question of limitation could not have been raised after the lapse of almost 3 years and six months. Learned counsel for the respondent no. 6 relied upon Section 23 and stated that the Act provided a limitation of five years for the declaration of any candidate as incapable. Alongwith the written submissions which have been made a part of the record of the case, learned counsel submitted a certified copy of the order sheet of the case and stated that the question of limitation could not have been raised in the manner the petitioner had raised and, therefore, submitted that the order passed by the Election Tribunal was absolutely correct.

11. Having heard the learned counsel for the parties, I am of the view that an Election Petition could not have been filed beyond the Limitation provided. This has also been held in the judgement reported in 2013 (2) AWC 1649 Smt. Sharda Devi vs. State of U.P. Further, I am of the view that even if the defence of limitation is not taken, under Section 3(1) of the of the Limitation Act the Court itself could have looked into the question of limitation and could have refused to proceed with the Election Petition. Still further, I am of the view that a question of limitation is a question of jurisdiction and could have been raised at any point of time while the case was being proceeded with.

12. Under such circumstances, the order dated 3.12.2019 by which the application no. 111C was rejected and the order dated 21.7.2016 by which the delay in filing the Election Petition was condoned both are being quashed.

13. Since the order dated 21.7.2016 is being set aside, the Election Petition being Election Petition No. 43 of 2016 cannot now be further proceeded with.

14. With the above observation, the writ petition stands allowed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal, J.)

1. Sri Jyotindra Misra, Senior Advocate, assisted by Sri Kapil Misra, Advocate has appeared for applicant and learned A.G.A. for State of U.P. Opposite party 2 was issued notice and as per report dated 29.11.2010 submitted by Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bareilly, notice has been served upon opposite party 2 but he has not chosen to appear either in person or through counsel. In fact opposite party 2 is an officer of Police Department, hence learned A.G.A. stated that he represent both opposite parties. In the circumstances, I have heard the matter finally and this application is being decided by this judgment.

2. This is an application filed under Section 482 Cr.P.C. with the prayer to quash order dated 03.9.2004 passed by Sri Shamshad Ali, Additional Sessions Judge/F.T.C. No.2, Lakhimpur Khiri in Sessions Trial No.610 of 2001 arising from Case Crime No.135 of 1998 summoning applicant under Section 319 Cr.P.C., for trial in offence under Section 271, 201 IPC.

3. Facts giving rise to this application are that a First Information Report (hereinafter referred to as "FIR") being Case Crime No.135 of 1998 dated 14.01.1997 was registered at Police Station Kotwali, Lakhimpur Khiri, under Sections 218, 201, 217 IPC on the information given by Surendra Singh Dongari, Inspector Mahila Sahayata Prakoshth, Apraadh Anusandhan Vibhag, Zonal Office, Bareilly alleging that investigation in Case Crime No.35/97 under Section 498A, 304B IPC read with 3/4 Dowry Prohibition Act was conducted by Informant against accused Anil Kumar son of Hari Nandan Prasad, Hari Nandan Prasad son of Jhamman Lal, Mahendra Pratap son of Rajendra Prasad and Rajendra Prasad son of Jhamman Lal resident of Village Sakethu, Police Station Neemgaon, District Lakhimpur Khiri. Informant Investigting Officer found that Sunita alias Anita Devi daughter of Jayendra Singh, who was Complainant/Informant of FIR, registered as Case Crime No.35 of 1997 was admitted in Government Hospital, Sadar, Lakhimpur Khiri on 14.01.1997 for treatment of burn injuries. Dr. A.V.Singh of the Hospital sent a written memo through Ward Boy Shri Ram for recording statement of Smt. Sunita Devi, victim, which was entered by Constable No.33 Manmohan Dayal in G.D. No.5 dated 14.01.1997 at 1:15 A.M. As per opinion of Dr. A.V.Singh, victim was burnt at the level of Grade 1-C and Grade-III and at that time she was whispering something. Head Constable Manmohan Dayal informed the then Additional Tehsildar Sri Chhote Lal for recording her statement through Home Guard Shiv Kumar at 2:15 A.M., but, Chhotey Lal, Additional Tehsildar reached hospital with delay of almost 10 hours i.e. at 11.30 A.M. and at that time, Dr. S.M.Malik was on duty. The aforesaid Additional Tehsildar recorded statement of victim without having medical certificate of condition of victim from aforesaid doctor and also did not record statement as spoken by her i.e. Smt. Sunita Devi (the victim) with an intention to help accused persons and recorded wrong dying declaration. FIR, therefore, was lodged against Sri Chhotey Lal, Tehsildar for committing offence under Sections 218, 201, 217 IPC. After investigation, charge sheet was submitted, against Chhotey Lal who, by that time, had retired, vide charge sheet no.135/98 under Sections 217, 218, 201 IPC and criminal case was registered as Sessions Trial No.610 of 2001.

4. In respect of Case Crime No.35 of 1997 also charge sheet was submitted against Anil Kumar and others under Section 304-B IPC and criminal case was registered as Sessions Trial No. 349 of 1998. At the relevant time Chhotey Lal was Additional Tehsildar, Lakhimpur Khiri and D.N.Bajpai was Tehsildar Sadar, Lakhimpur Khiri.

5. Trial Court found that information sent by Head Constable Manmohan Dayal Verma at 1.15 A.M. on 14.01.1997 was forwarded to Tehsildar Sadar, Lakhimpur Khiri, which was served upon him through Home Guard Shiv Kumar. After communicating information, his (Shiv Kumar) return was registered in Report No.5 at 2.15 a.m. on 14.01.1997. These documents were before Trial Court. Thus, information for recording dying declaration was received by the then Tehsildar Sadar, Lakhimpur Khiri between 1.15 to 2.15 A.M. on 14.01.1997 and at that time Sri D.N.Bajpai was Tehsildar Sadar, Lakhimpur Khiri. In these circumstances, Trial Court found that partisan stand was taken by authorities to help D.N.Bajpai and to implicate Chhotey Lal, Additional Tehsildar. Since Chhotey Lal also could not have escaped from culpability for the reason that he, when informed, was also responsible to reach hospital for recording statement at the earliest but he also delayed the matter and recorded a wrong statement. In the circumstances, Trial Court, on the basis of evidence on record, found D.N.Bajpai, the then Tehsildar Sadar, Lakhimpur Khiri and Dr. S.K.Malik also guilty of offence under Section 217 and 201 IPC hence summoned both of them vide impugned order dated 03.09.2004.

6. Learned counsel for applicant contended that when Investigating Officer found only Chhotey Lal, Additional Tehsildar guilty for offence under Sections 217, 218, 201 IPC, summoning of applicant for the offence under Section 217, 201 IPC is illegal and founded on no evidence whatsoever.

7. Learned counsel for parties, however, could not dispute that the question, whether during trial if Trial Court found any material, can summoned a person not named in charge sheet in exercise of power under Section 319 Cr.P.C., has been subject matter of consideration before a Constitution Bench in Hardeep Singh Vs. State of Punjab and others 2014 (3) SCC 92, in which Court examined following five questions:

"(i) What is the stage at which power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. can be exercised?

(ii) Whether the word "evidence" used in Section 319 (1) Cr.P.C. could only mean evidence tested by cross-examination or the court can exercise the power under the said provision even on the basis of the statement made in the examination-in-chief of the witness concerned?

(iii) Whether the word "evidence" used in Section 319(1) Cr.P.C. has been used in a comprehensive sense and includes the evidence collected during investigation or the word "evidence" is limited to the evidence recorded during trial?

(iv) What is the nature of the satisfaction required to invoke the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. to arraign an accused? Whether the power under Section 319(1) Cr.P.C. can be exercised only if the court is satisfied that the accused summoned will in all likelihood be convicted?

(v) Does the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. extend to persons not named in the FIR or named in the FIR but not charged or who have been discharged?"

8. The aforesaid questions have been answered in para 117 of judgment as under:

"Question Nos. (i) and (iii)

A. In Dharam Pal and Ors. v. State of Haryana and Anr. 2004 (13) SCC 9, the Constitution Bench has already held that after committal, cognizance of an offence can be taken against a person not named as an accused but against whom materials are available from the papers filed by the police after completion of investigation. Such cognizance can be taken under Section 193 Cr.P.C. and the Sessions Judge need not wait till 'evidence' under Section 319 Cr.P.C. becomes available for summoning an additional accused.

Section 319 Cr.P.C., significantly, uses two expressions that have to be taken note of i.e. (1) Inquiry (2) Trial. As a trial commences after framing of charge, an inquiry can only be understood to be a pre-trial inquiry. Inquiries under Sections 200, 201, 202 Cr.P.C.; and under Section 398 Cr.P.C. are species of the inquiry contemplated by Section 319 Cr.P.C. Materials coming before the Court in course of such enquiries can be used for corroboration of the evidence recorded in the court after the trial commences, for the exercise of power under Section 319 Cr.P.C., and also to add an accused whose name has been shown in Column 2 of the charge-sheet.

In view of the above position the word 'evidence' in Section 319 Cr.P.C. has to be broadly understood and not literally i.e. as evidence brought during a trial.

Question No. (ii)

A. Considering the fact that under Section 319 Cr.P.C. a person against whom material is disclosed is only summoned to face the trial and in such an event under Section 319(4) Cr.P.C. the proceeding against such person is to commence from the stage of taking of cognizance, the Court need not wait for the evidence against the accused proposed to be summoned to be tested by cross-examination.

Question No. (iv)

A. Though under Section 319(4)(b) Cr.P.C. the accused subsequently impleaded is to be treated as if he had been an accused when the Court initially took cognizance of the offence, the degree of satisfaction that will be required for summoning a person under Section 319 Cr.P.C. would be the same as for framing a charge. The difference in the degree of satisfaction for summoning the original accused and a subsequent accused is on account of the fact that the trial may have already commenced against the original accused and it is in the course of such trial that materials are disclosed against the newly summoned accused. Fresh summoning of an accused will result in delay of the trial therefore the degree of satisfaction for summoning the accused (original and subsequent) has to be different.

Question No. (v)

A. A person not named in the FIR or a person though named in the FIR but has not been charge-sheeted or a person who has been discharged can be summoned under Section 319 Cr.P.C. provided from the evidence it appears that such person can be tried along with the accused already facing trial. However, insofar as an accused who has been discharged is concerned the requirement of Sections 300 and 398 Cr.P.C. has to be complied with before he can be summoned afresh." (Emphasis added)

9. The aforesaid judgment in fact lays down very clearly that power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. can be exercised by Court against a person not named in First Information Report or no charge-sheet is filed by Police against him and the accused can be summoned only on the basis of examination-in-chief of witness and need not wait for cross-examination etc. With regard to degree of satisfaction of Court for summoning the accused under Section 319 Cr.P.C, Court has said that test are not only same as applicable for framing charge, but a little more in degree.

10. The above view was followed in Brijendra Singh and others Vs. State of Rajasthan (2017) 7 SCC 706 holding:

" ... since it is a discretionary power given to the court Under Section 319 Code of Criminal Procedure and is also an extraordinary one, same has to be exercised sparingly and only in those cases where the circumstances of the case so warrant. The degree of satisfaction is more than the degree which is warranted at the time of framing of the charges against others in respect of whom charge-sheet was filed. Only where strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person from the evidence led before the court that such power should be exercised. It is not to be exercised in a casual or a cavalier manner. The prima facie opinion which is to be formed requires stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity." (Emphasis added)

11. Recently in Shiv Prakash Mishra Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and others (2019) 7 SCC 806, Court relying on the above authorities as also Kailash Vs. State of Rajasthan and another (2008) 14 SCC 51 held as under:

"The standard of proof employed for summoning a person as an Accused person under Section 319 Code of Criminal Procedure is higher than the standard of proof employed for framing a charge against the Accused person. *The power Under Section 319 Code of Criminal Procedure should be exercised sparingly. As held in Kailash Vs. State of Rajasthan and another (2008) 14 SCC 51, "the power of summoning an additional Accused Under Section 319 Code of Criminal Procedure should be exercised sparingly. The key words in Section are "*it appears from the evidence"."any person"."has committed any offence". It is not, therefore, that merely because some witnesses have mentioned the name of such person *or that there is some material against that person, t*he discretion Under Section 319 Code of Criminal Procedure would be used by the court." (Emphasis added)

12. The exposition of law, discussed above, clearly shows that mere taking of name is not sufficient to exercise power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. but there must be something more i.e. evidence must be such wherefrom on judicious consideration, Court must be satisfied that such person can be tried alongwith accused already facing trial.

13. As I have already discussed, from the material available Trial Court has referred to reliable evidence, the fact that information was actually conveyed to the then Tehsildar Sadar Lakhimpur Khiri i.e. Sri D.N.Bajpai and evidence was sufficient to show that he did not exercise due care to reach hospital immediately and without wasting time that too in a serious matter where a married woman, sustained burn injuries, was admitted in hospital and considering her condition, doctor had already sent memo for recording her statement by Magistrate. Thus, it cannot be said that Trial Court, in the case in hand, has exercised jurisdiction casually or in a cavalier manner and there is no appropriate and reasonable evidence to summon applicant.

14. In view thereof, objection in challenge to summoning order, raised by learned Senior Counsel that there is no evidence whatsoever, has no force and rejected.

15. There is another aspect of the matter. Applicant's name is Rajendra Nath Bajpai, but, I find from record that it is D.N.Bajpai who was the then Tehsildar, Sadar and has been summoned by means of impugned order dated 03.9.2004 passed by Additional Sessions Judge/Fast Track Court-2, Lakhimpur Khiri. Certified copy of impugned order also mention the name of the then Tehsildar Sadar Lakhimpur Khiri as 'D.N.Bajpai'. I do not find any order of summoning passed on 03.9.2004 to Rajendra Nath Bajpai, who has filed this application. Therefore, this application, at the instance of Rajendra Nath Bajpai, in my view, even otherwise, is not sustainable.

16. Application is accordingly rejected.

A. Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973- Section 482 - Prayer for quashing F.I.R- Maintainability - Issue regarding the maintainability of quashing of FIR in exercise of powers under Section 482 Cr.P.C. by this Court was referred and decided by a Full Bench of this Court in the case of Ram Lal Yadav Vs. State of U.P. wherein it has been categorically held that unless there is a matter pending before the subordinate court, no application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. can be entertained by the High Court. An application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. in the High Court for quashing of the first information report of the investigation is not maintainable in the High Court unless the charge-sheet has been filed and the Court had issued process on the basis of the charge-sheet.

The inherent power of the High Court, u/s 482 Cr.Pc, can be exercised only when the case is pending in some court and not before that and an application u/s 482 Cr.Pc will not be maintainable at that stage. Against an F.I.R or during the pendency of investigation only the Writ jurisdiction of the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India can be invoked and that too only under exceptional circumstances.

Practice and Procedure- Binding Precedent- When certain question is neither raised nor argued that discussion by the Court even after pondering over the issue in depth would not be a binding precedent.The Apex Court did not categorically say anywhere that both the options were open in both types of cases, i.e., where investigation is pending and where the proceedings are pending in Criminal Courts.

Passing observations of the Supreme Court on a question neither in issue and nor decided would not become a binding precedent and would be Obiter Dicta.

Criminal application rejected.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ramesh Sinha, J.)

1. Heard Sri Arvind Srivastava, learned counsel for the applicant and Sri Irshad Hussain, learned AGA for the State and perused the record.

2. This application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed for quashing the impugned FIR dated 04.09.2019 registered as Case Crime No.0309 of 2019, under Sections 468, 471, 406, 506, 467, 420, 419 I.P.C., Police Station Kotwali, District Azamgarh.

3. Learned AGA raised preliminary objection regarding the maintainability of the prayer made in the present 482 Cr.P.C. Application by the applicant and has stated that as the applicant has prayed for quashing of the FIR in the present 482 Cr.P.C. Application, the same is not maintainable as the petitioner has a remedy of filing a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India for the aforesaid prayer.

4. Learned counsel for the applicant in reply to the preliminary objection raised by the learned AGA has submitted that through out the country a petition challenging a first information report and the proceedings initiated by it is maintainable and can be entertained by this Court in 482 Cr.P.C. Application. He submitted that the scope of Section 482 Cr.P.C. is not confined to any proceedings of the Court only but it is also to secure the ends of justice and to protect the gross abuse of process of law. The power of High Court to exercise its jurisdiction is not limited to any provision of alternative forum and in this regard he has placed reliance of the Judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Asian Resurfacing of Road Agency Private Ltd. and another Vs. Central Bureau of Investigation, 2018 (16) SCC 299 at page 332, the Apex Court observed in paras 52 and 54 which are as under:

"52. The question as to whether the inherent power of a High Court would be available to stay a trial under the Act necessarily leads us to an inquiry as to whether such inherent power sounds in constitutional, as opposed to statutory law. First and foremost, it must be appreciated that the High Courts are established by the Constitution and are courts of record which will have all powers of such courts, including the power to punish contempt of themselves (See Article 215). The High Court, being a superior court of record, is entitled to consider questions regarding its own jurisdiction when raised before it. In an instructive passage by a Constitution Bench of this Court in In re Special Reference 1 of 1964, (1965) 1 SCR 413 at 499, Gajendragadkar, C.J. held:

"Besides, in the case of a superior Court of Record, it is for the court to consider whether any matter falls within its jurisdiction or not. Unlike a Court of limited jurisdiction, the superior Court is entitled to determine for itself questions about its own jurisdiction. "Prima facie", says Halsbury, "no matter is deemed to be beyond the jurisdiction of a superior court unless it is expressly shown to be so, while nothing is within the jurisdiction of an inferior court unless it is expressly shown on the face of the proceedings that the particular matter is within the cognizance of the particular court" [Halsbury's Law of England, Vol. 9, p. 349].

54. It is thus clear that the inherent power of a Court set up by the Constitution is a power that inheres in such Court because it is a superior court of record, and not because it is conferred by the Code of Criminal Procedure. This is a power vested by the Constitution itself, inter alia, under Article 215 as aforestated. Also, as such High Courts have the power, nay, the duty to protect the fundamental rights of citizens under Article 226 of the Constitution, the inherent power to do justice in cases involving the liberty of the citizen would also sound in Article 21 of the Constitution. This being the constitutional position, it is clear that Section 19(3)(c) cannot be read as a ban on the maintainability of a petition filed before the High Court under Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the non-obstante clause in Section 19(3) applying only to the Code of Criminal Procedure. The judgment of this Court in Satya Narayan Sharma v. State of Rajasthan, (2001) 8 SCC 607 at paragraphs 14 and 15 does not, therefore, lay down the correct position in law. Equally, in paragraph 17 of the said judgment, despite the clarification that proceedings can be "adapted" in appropriate cases, the Court went on to hold that there is a blanket ban of stay of trials and that, therefore, Section 482, even as adapted, cannot be used for the aforesaid purpose. This again is contrary to the position in law as laid down hereinabove. This case, therefore, stands overruled. "

5. He further relied upon another case of the Apex Court wherein the Apex Court entertained a petition challenging a first information report under Section 482 Cr.P.C. and has drawn attention in the case of Ajay Mitra Vs. State of M.P. and others, (2003) 3 SCC 11. He also has relied upon a judgment of the Apex Court reported in the case of State of Telangana Vs. Habi Abdullah Jeelani and others, (2017) 2 SCC 779 wherein the Apex Court has observed in paras 11 and 13, which are as under:-

"11. Once an FIR is registered, the accused persons can always approach the High Court under Section 482 CrPC or under Article 226 of the Constitution for quashing of the FIR. In Bhajan Lal (supra) the two-Judge Bench after referring to Hazari Lal Gupta v. Rameshwar Prasad[7], Jehan Singh v. Delhi Administration[8], Amar Nath v. State of Haryana[9], Kurukshetra University v. State of Haryana[10], State of Bihar v. J.A.C. Saldanha[11], State of West Bengal v. Swapan Kumar Guha[12], Smt. Nagawwa v. Veeranna Shivalingappa Konjalgi[13], Madhavrao Jiwajirao Scindia v. Sambhajirao Chandrojirao Angre[14], State of Bihar v. Murad Ali Khan[15] and some other authorities that had dealt with the contours of exercise of inherent powers of the High Court, thought it appropriate to mention certain category of cases by way of illustration wherein the extraordinary power under Article 226 of the Constitution or inherent power under Section 482 CrPC could be exercised either to prevent abuse of the process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice. The Court also observed that it may not be possible to lay down any precise, clearly defined and sufficiently channelized and inflexible guidelines or rigid formulae and to give an exhaustive list of myriad cases wherein such power should be exercised.

13. There can be no dispute over the proposition that inherent power in a matter of quashment of FIR has to be exercised sparingly and with caution and when and only when such exercise is justified by the test specifically laid down in the provision itself. There is no denial of the fact that the power under Section 482 CrPC is very wide but it needs no special emphasis to state that conferment of wide power requires the court to be more cautious. It casts an onerous and more diligent duty on the Court."

6. He next has placed reliance of judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Vaijnath Kondiba Khandke Vs. State of Maharashtra and another, AIR 2018 Supreme Court page 2659 wherein it has been held in para 4, which is as under:

"4. That the appellant as well as said Vidya Ghorpade filed Criminal Application Nos.4724 of 2017 and 5174 of 2017 respectively under Section 482 of Cr.P.C. seeking quashing of the aforesaid FIR. It was submitted that the allegations in the FIR were absurd and inherently improbable and did not make out any case against the applicants. Around this time, the applications preferred by the applicants for anticipatory bail were accepted with certain conditions.

The applications preferred under Section 482 Cr.P.C. were thereafter taken up for hearing. The High Court accepted the plea made by Vidya Ghorpade and quashed the proceedings against her. However, Criminal Application No.4724 of 2017 preferred by the appellant was dismissed by the High Court vide its judgment and order dated 23.01.2018 which is presently under appeal. It was observed: "The facts herein indicate that, there was no direct abetment and the applicants cannot have any intention that the deceased should commit suicide. Even when the accused persons have no such intention, if they create situation causing tremendous mental tension so as to drive the person to commit suicide, they can be said to be instigating the accused to commit suicide.…."

7. He also cited and relied upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Naman Singh alias Naman Pratap Singh and another Vs. State of U.P. and others, (2019) 2 SCC 344, wherein the Apex Court has observed in para 9, which is as under:-

"9. In view of the scheme of the Code as discussed, we have purposely refrained from going into the merits of the case so as not to prejudice either parties and also keeping in mind the nature of the jurisdiction under Section 482 of the Code. Any application by respondent no.4 hitherto under the Code will therefore have to be considered by the appropriate authority or forum in accordance with law. For the reasons discussed, the impugned order is held to be unsustainable and is set aside. The First Information Report therefore also stands quashed for the reasons discussed, but with liberty as aforesaid."

8. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and examined the rival submissions on the aforesaid issue and further perused the record.

9. The aforesaid issue regarding the maintainability of a quashing of FIR in exercise of powers under Section 482 Cr.P.C. by this Court was referred and decided by a Full Bench of this Court in the case of Ram Lal Yadav Vs. State of U.P., reported in 1989 Criminal Law Journal page 1013 wherein it has been categorically held that unless there is a matter pending before the subordinate court, no application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. can be entertained by the High Court. In other words it means that till the stage of investigation of a criminal case, and thereafter till the filing of the charge-sheet and taking cognizance offence by the Court, no application can be made in the High Court for quashing of the first information report or investigation under Section 482 Cr.P.C., however, in very exceptional cases the writ jurisdiction of the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India can be invoked either for quashing of the first information report or for staying the investigation. The Full Bench while considering the aforesaid point has further referred to the cases of the Apex Court which have been delivered after the judgment of the Full Bench in Ram Lal Yadav case (1989) Criminal Law Journal 1013 (supra) none of the Supreme Court Cases considered the question whether jurisdiction of the High Court could be invoked under Section 482 Cr.P.C. while a criminal case was still being investigated. Similarly, the case laws which have been cited by learned counsel for the petitioner referred above also not deciding this point in any of the judgments and any observation that either in its jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India or under Section 482 Cr.P.C. in a suitable case the High Court could grant relief for just an observation of the Supreme Court to indicate that the High Court could exercise its inherent power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. or extra jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India to interfere in a suitable matter pending investigation. This observation only meant that the power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. could be exercised in some proceedings arising out of a complaint etc. when the matter is pending in some Court and the jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India could be exercised when the matter had till then not reached the Court but was still under investigation by a Police Officer. The judgment and observations of the Supreme Court are not at all contrary to the judgment of the Full Bench in the case of Ram Lal Yadav (supra) and it cannot be said that the said observation of the Supreme Court permit any High Court to exercise its power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. when the matter still investigation. The Supreme Court as a matter of fact has quoted Ram Lal Yadav's judgment of the Full Bench of the Allahabad High Court in the case of Janta Dal Vs. H.S. Chauhan (1992) 4 SCC 305. This paragraph in the aforesaid case has been quoted only to indicate that the similar view which the Supreme Court was taking had already been taken by the High Court in the said Full Court. As such the case of Ram Lal Yadav's case (supra) has been given a seal of approval by the aforesaid judgment of the Supreme Court.

10. Thus, the conclusion is inevitable that an application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. in the High Court for quashing of the first information report of the investigation is not maintainable in the High Court unless the charge-sheet has been filed and the Court had issued process on the basis of the charge-sheet. Up to that stage only in a suitable case a petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India alone can be filed in the High Court.

11. A similar view has been taken in a privy counsels' decision in Emperor Vs. Khwaza Nazir Ahmad, AIR, 1945 PC 18 in the said decision the Privy Council has held that the police has a statutory right under Sections 154 and 156 Cr.P.C. to investigate the offense, that the High Court cannot interfere in exercise of inherent power under Section 561-A (now Section 482 Cr.P.C.) and that interference can be made only when the charges preferred before the Court and not before. It was observed that there is statutory right on the part of the police to investigate the circumstances of alleged cognizable crime without requiring any authority from the judicial authorities and it would be an unfortunate result if it should be held possible to interfere with those statutory rights by an exercise of the inherent jurisdiction of the Court under Section 561-A old Cr.P.C. (now Section 482 Cr.P.C.).

12. The decision of the Privy Council in Emperor Vs. Khwaza Nazir Ahmad (supra) was followed by the Apex Court in the case of S. N. Sharma Vs. Vipin Kumar Tiwari, (1970) 1 SCC 5653 wherein it was held that though the Court of Criminal Procedure gives to the police unfettered power to investigate all cases where the suspect that the cognizable offense has been committed, in appropriate cases and aggrieved person can always seek a remedy by invoking the power of the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India under which if the High Court could be convinced that the power of investigation has been exercised by the Police Officer, mala fide, the High Court can always issue a writ of mandamus restraining the police officer from misusing his legal powers. In the case of State of Haryana Vs. C. S. Bhajanlal, 1992 Suppl (1) SCC 335 in this case the High Court of Punjab and Haryana had quashed the entire criminal proceedings inclusive of registration of the FIR on the basis of the complaint preferred by Mr. Dharampal making certain allegations against Chaudhary Bhajanlal. The matter which were issued in Full Bench case of Ram Lal Yadav (supra) was not an issue before the Apex Court in Chaudhary Bhajanlal's case (supra) which was said in para 84 of the judgment at page 625:

"84. The nagging question that comes up for examination more often than not is under what circumstances and in what categories of cases, a criminal proceeding can be quashed either in exercise of the extraordinary powers of the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India or in the exercise of inherent powers of the High Court under section 482 of the Code.…."

13. In other words, when certain question is neither raised nor argued that discussion by the Court even after pondering over the issue in depth would not be a binding precedent. The observations of the Apex Court in the case of State of Haryana Vs. Chaudhary Bhajanlal (supra) have been misinterpreted. Thus, also the case laws of the Apex Court relied upon by the learned counsel for the applicant cannot be of any help to the applicant as the Apex Court did not categorically say anywhere that both the options were open in both types of cases, i.e., where investigation is pending and where the proceedings are pending in Criminal Courts.

14. Thus, the submission advanced by learned counsel for the applicant regarding the preliminary objection raised by learned AGA regarding the maintainability of the present 482 Cr.P.C. Application for quashing of the FIR is not at all acceptable in view of the judgment of the Full Bench decision of this Court in the case of Ram Lal Yadav (supra) which has been followed by a Division Bench in the case of A. S. Bindra Vs. Senior Superintendent of Police, Dehradun and others, reported in 1998 Criminal Law Journal 3845 in which again an identical issue was raised and decided by following the judgment in the case of Ram Lal Yadav's case (supra).

15. Thus, the present 482 Cr.P.C. Application is not maintainable, accordingly, the same is dismissed at this ground alone.

A. Appointment - U.P. Education Service Selection Commission Act, 2019 - provides for establishment of an Education Service Selection Commission in the State for selection of the teachers and non teaching employees - steps are being taken by the State government for enforcement the Act, 2019 and UP recognized Basic Schools (Junior High Schools) (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Teachers) (7th Amendment) Rules, 2019 which prescribes selection of teaching and non- teaching staffs

B. Institution - Section 2(f) - U.P. Education Service Selection Commission Act, 2019 - includes a school of Uttar Pradesh Basic Education Board, aided Junior High School and also include an aided attached Primary School, recognized by the Board established under the Uttar Pradesh Basic Education Act, 1972

Writ Petition Disposed of.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Surya Prakash Kesarwani, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and the learned standing counsel for the respondents.

2. This writ petition has been filed praying for the following relief:-

"Issue a writ order or direction in nature of certiorari quashing the impugned order dated 16-8-2019 as well as 31-10-2019 passed by respondents (Annexure no. 6 and 8 to this writ petition) issued by the respondents;

issue a writ or direction in nature of Mandamus commanding/directing the respondents to permit the petitioners to fill up the vacancy of 05 Assistant teachers in Primary label to the petitioners institution forthwith under the command of this Hon'ble Court.

Issue a writ order of direction in nature of Mandamus commanding/directing the respondents to approve the duly selected Assistant Teachers after being giving permission for appointment and Accord admissible payment of salary to the selected and appointed Assistant Teachers in the petitioners institute in accordance with law."

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the impugned orders dated 16.08.2019 and 31.10.2019 are not applicable to the petitioner inasmuch as the applicant is claiming appointment in Primary Section of the Institution.

4. Learned standing counsel supports the impugned order.

5. I have carefully considered the submissions of learned counsels for the parties.

6. In paragraphs 3 and 4 of the writ petition the petitioner has stated that it is a Junior High School recognised by the U.P. Basic Education Board. By the impugned order dated 16.08.2019, passed by the District Basic Education, Ghaziabad, it was merely informed to the petitioner that a new arrangement regarding selection of Assistant Teacher in Basic Schools is being made and, therefore, it is not possible to grant the permission for appointment on the vacant posts. By the impugned order dated 31.10.2019. The State Government intimated the Director of Education (Basic), Uttar Pradesh, Lucknow, that some amendment for fixing standard of recruitment of Assistant Teachers and employees is under consideration and, therefore, the process of recruitment may not be started. Both these orders have now become irrelevant inasmuch as the State legislature has legislated the Uttar Pradesh Education Service Selection Commission Act, 2019 (U.P. Act No.22 of 2019) which has been notified and published in the Gazette on 27.12.2019. The aforesaid U.P. Act No.22 of 2019 provides for establishment of an Education Service Selection Commission in the State for selection of the teachers and non teaching employees (i) of non Government aided colleges affiliated and associated by an University governed by the Uttar Pradesh State University Act, 1973, (ii) non Government aided intermediate colleges, higher secondary schools, high schools and attached primary schools, basic and junior high schools recognised by the Uttar Pradesh Board of Secondary Education, Prayagraj, and established under the Intermediate Education Act, 1921, and the Uttar Pradesh Basic Education Board established under the Uttar Pradesh Basic Education Act, 1972, respectively. Since the aforesaid Act 2019 has been enacted, therefore, the challenge to the impugned orders by the petitioner is wholly misconceived.

7. The Uttar Pradesh Recognised Basic Schools (Junior High Schools) (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Teachers), Rules 1978 has also been exhaustively amended by the Uttar Pradesh recognished Basic Schools (Junior High Schools) (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Teachers) (7th Amendment) Rules 2019.

8. In view of the aforesaid amendment made in the Rules, 1978, the State Government has also nominated "Pariksha Niyamak Pradhikari, Uttar Pradesh, Prayagraj" for conducting examination for selection and accordingly the prohibition on appointment of Assistant Teachers in non government aided Junior High Schools have been cancelled. These facts are evident from letter no. 1755/अडसठ–3–2019, dated 01.01.2020, issued by State Government to the Director of Education (Basic) Uttar Pradesh, Lucknow, and the Secretary Examination Regulatory Authority, Uttar Pradesh, Prayagraj. A copy of this letter has been produced before me by Sri R.P. Dubey, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel.

9. It is stated by the learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel that all necessary steps are being taken by the State Government for starting selection of Assistant Teachers and employees as per provisions of the Act, 2019 and amended Rules, 1978 and the enforcement of the Act 2019 shall be notified very shortly.

10. I have perused the provisions of Section 13 of the Act, 2019 which provides that every appointment of teaching and non teaching employee in an institution shall be made by the appointing authority only on the recommendation of the Commission and any appointment, excluding the cases of dying-in-harness, made in contravention of the provisions of the Act shall be void. The appointment under dying-in-harness shall be done as prescribed.

11. The word "institution" has been defined in Section 2(f) of the Act, 2019 which includes a school of Uttar Pradesh Basic Education Board, aided Junior High School and also includes an aided attached Primary School, recognised by the Board established under the Uttar Pradesh Basic Education Act, 1972. Section 2(f) is reproduced below:-

(f) "institution" means any of the following, institutions other than an institution established and administered by a minority referred to in clause (1) of Article 30 of the Constitution:-

(1) an affiliated or associated non-government aided college to which the privilege of affiliation has been granted by a University established under the Uttar Pradesh State Universities Act, 1973;

(2) a non-government aided intermediate College or a Higher Secondary School or a High School and an attached primary school recognized by the Board established under the Intermediate Education Act, 1921;

(3) a school of the Uttar Pradesh Basic Education Board or an aided junior high school and includes an aided attached primary school recognized by the Board established under the Uttar Pradesh Basic Education Act, 1972.

12. In view of the facts and circumstances and the legislative amendments and enactment of the Act 2019, no direction can be issued to the respondents to permit the petitioner to fill up vacancy of five Assistant Teachers in the institution in question and to approve the appointment of such Assistant Teachers as may be selected by the petitioner.

13. However, looking into the necessity of selection and appointment of teaching and non teaching employees in non Government aided institutions under the provisions of the Act, 2019 and the relevant Rules, it appears necessary that the State Government should expeditiously take steps for enforcement of the Act, 2019 to make functional the Commission for selection and recommendation for appointment of teaching and non teaching Employees. This Court hopes and trusts that the State Government shall complete the entire exercise and issue necessary notification for enforcement of the Act, 2019 very expeditiously preferably within 15 days, if not issued so far, and shall also make efforts for appointments as expeditiously as possible so that institutions in need may get teaching and non teaching staff.

14. With the aforesaid observations, the writ petition is disposed of.

15. A copy of this order shall be given to the learned Chief Standing Counsel free of cost, for communication to the State Government for necessary compliance.

Counsel for the Petitioners:
Sri Ashok Khare, Sri Siddharth Khare, Sri Rohit Upadhyay, Sri Shantanu Khare

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C., Sri Gagan Mehta

A. Education - U.P. State Universities Act,1973: Section 67; First Statute of the Agra University: Statute 13.03 – The Court refused to interfere with the public notices calling upon the petitioners to submit information as required in the questionnaire, giving effect to the exercise undertaken by the University to verify the marks sheet in order to find out the fake and tampered marks sheet.

B. Writ petition challenging a show cause notice is not maintainable, as at that stage the writ petition is premature. The Apex Court has deprecated the High Court for stalling enquiries as proposed and retarding investigative process to find actual facts with participation and in presence of parties. (Paras 15 to 18, 35)

C. No jurisdictional issue implying that the notice is per se illegal is involved. (Para 29)

University has the jurisdiction to issue the impugned notices - The University had full knowledge about the fact that a large-scale fraud has been committed in issuing fake and tampered marks sheet of B.Ed. Examination- 2005. The verification exercise should have been undertaken by the University voluntarily instead of waiting for any direction from the Court or authority. It would be incorrect to say that the exercise has been undertaken on the dictate of the State Government. (Para 24, 25)

Report of SIT is not being treated as a conclusive piece of evidence to hold degrees/marks sheets to be fake or tampered for the reason that the same have not yet been cancelled by the respondents. It only forms the basis of issuance of notices asking the candidates to furnish information, on which the genuineness of their degrees/marks sheets would be determined. (Para 26)

C. The Court is vested with the power u/s 67 to cancel the degree/marks sheet in cases where the University finds that the same has been tampered. The Court is not empowered to carry out any verification exercise. In the present case, only the Executive Council has such power. (Para 30, 31)

1. Heard Sri Ashok Khare, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Siddharth Khare, counsel for the petitioners, Sri Gagan Mehta, learned counsel for respondent nos.3 & 4 and learned Standing Counsel for respondent nos.1, 2 & 5.

2. The petitioners who are 496 in numbers have preferred the present petition challenging the decision taken by the Executive Council, Dr. Bhim Rao Ambedkar University, Agra in its meeting held on 06.12.2019, notice dated 28.12.2019 issued by the respondent- Dr. Bhim Rao Ambedkar University, Agra (hereinafter referred as 'University') on its official website and notice published in the newspapers dated 29.12.2019.

3. All the petitioners claim that they had taken admission in Bachelor of Education Course (hereinafter referred to as 'B.Ed.') in the University or its affiliated colleges for the academic session 2004-05. After successfully completing the course, each of the petitioners was issued marks sheet showing them as passed in the B.Ed. course. They were also issued degree. On the basis of marks sheet & degree in B.Ed. , petitioners obtained appointment as Assistant Teachers in Junior High School/Senior Basic Schools run by Board of Basic Education in different districts of the State.

4. It transpires from the record that one Sunil Kumar has preferred a Writ Petition No.2906 of 2013 (Sunil Kumar Vs. Dr. Bhim Rao Ambedkar University and Others) praying for a direction to the University to correct marks sheet. In the said writ petition, this Court passed an order on 23.01.2014 directing the State Government to constitute Special Investigation Team as the Court found that fake mark-sheets were issued to the students with the connivance of the employees of the University and colleges affiliated to it.

5. Pursuant to the order passed by this Court in the aforesaid writ petition, a special investigation team (hereinafter referred to as 'SIT') was constituted to conduct an investigation as regards the malpractices committed in issuing the mark sheet to students who are alleged to have passed B.Ed. course in the session 2004-05 from the Universities and Colleges affiliated to the University. The said writ petition was later on converted into public interest litigation by orders of this Court dated 09.09.2015.

6. Upon investigation, the SIT team submitted report in August, 2017 which states that 3517 fake mark sheets and 1053 tampered mark sheets were distributed and these mark sheets have been adjusted in the tabulation chart. The SIT categorized the candidates in two list. One list of those candidates whose mark sheets are fake and the second list of those candidates whose marks sheet have been tampered. The Deputy Inspector General of Police, SIT by letter dated 11.07.2019 forwarded the aforesaid two list alongwith photo copy of tabulation chart to the University. He further requested the University by the said letter to verify the list of candidates from its record, and after identifying the candidates possessing fake and tampered degrees, it should proceed to cancel all such degrees as per procedure provided in the U.P. State Universities Act,1973 (hereinafter referred as 'Act, 1973'). The aforesaid letter was followed by the letter of Additional Chief Secretary dated 25.11.2019 addressed to the Vice Chancellor of the University making similar request to him.

7. Thereafter, the Executive Council of the University held an emergent meeting on 06.12.2019 and after considering the letter of the State Government dated 25.11.2019 took a decision to verify the list of fake/tampered candidates received from the Special Investigation Team and to invite objection against the same. The relevant extract of decision of the Executive Council is extracted hereinbelow:-

8. Pursuant to the decision of the Executive Council, the University proceeded to publish the notice in newspaper whereby all the candidates, who had passed the B.Ed. examination during the academic session 2004-05, have been intimated that three list namely list of fake candidates, list of tampered candidates and list of candidates appearing in the examination on the basis of roll number allotted to more than one candidate has been published on the official website of the University requiring such individual candidate to submit reply online as also offline by registered or speed post within a period of 15 days failing which exparte proceedings would be taken.

9. The Vice Chancellor on 28.12.2019 passed an order to upload the list of fake candidates, list of tampered candidates and list of candidates appearing in the examination on the basis of roll number allotted to more than one candidate for uploading on the official website of the University. Thereafter, a detailed public notice has been released on the official website of the University on 29.12.2019 and University proceeded to publish three separate list namely; list of fake candidates, list of tampered candidates and list of candidates as candidates from among more than one candidate, who have appeared in the examination with the same roll number alongwith said notice and questionnaire. The said notice alongwith questionnaire issued by the University is extracted hereinbelow:-

10. The hard copy of the questionnaire is to bear the signature of the candidate and also the seal and signature of the Principal of the College. The aforesaid public notice calling upon the petitioners to submit information as required in the questionnaire are impugned in the present petition.

11. Challenging the aforesaid notices, learned Senior Counsel has made following submissions;

(i) The decision of the Executive Counsel in its meeting dated 06.12.2019 to verify and identify the fake and tampered marks sheet of B.Ed. for the academic session 2004-05 is not an independent decision of the Executive Council rather the said exercise is being undertaken on the dictate of the letter of Additional Chief Secretary dated 25.11.2019 as well as letter of Deputy Inspector General of Police dated 11.07.2019

(ii) The investigation report of SIT has not yet been accepted either by this Court or by any other Court, and the said report cannot be treated to be a substantial and conclusive piece of evidence to arrive at a conclusion that marks sheet/degree obtained by the petitioners are fake or tampered. In support of his contentions, he has placed reliance upon the judgement of Apex Court in the case of M.C. Mehta (Taj Corridor Scam) Vs. Union of India and Others 2007(1) SCC 10 & judgement of Kerala High Court at Ernakulam in the case of Major Basil John Vs. State of Kerala and Others Crl. M.C. No.1877 of 2015 decided on 22.06.2017.

(iii) Controversy regarding the validity of marks sheet obtained by the petitioners is already concluded by the judgment of this Court in Writ Petition no.399 (MB) of 2007 (Shri Puran Prasad Gupta Memorial Degree College Vs. State of U.P. and Others) as this Court has validated the admission of petitioners and directed for declaration of result. Hence, the aforesaid exercise undertaken by the University to verify the marks sheet in order to find out the fake and tampered marks sheet is nothing but an abuse of process of law.

(iv) As per Section 67 of the Act, 1973, the Court may by a two-third majority of the members present and voting withdraw from any person any degree, or certificate conferred or granted by the University. In the present case, the decision to cancel the degree has not been taken by the Court but by the Executive Council, who is not competent to initiate such process as the Court and Executive Council are two different authorities under the Act, 1973. Thus, the verification exercise undertaken by the Executive Council is without jurisdiction. He further submits that statute 13.03 of the First Statutes of the Agra University provides the procedure and the manner which is to be followed before taking decision to cancel the degree, but the notices impugned are in complete violation of statute 13.03 inasmuch as the said notice does not communicate the charge against the petitioners so as to enable them to submit their explanation.

12. Per contra, Sri Gagan Mehta, learned counsel for the respondents submits that it is settled law that writ petition against a show cause notice is not maintainable. Further he submits that the petitioners may raise all contentions raised in the writ petition before the authority concerned and as the petitioners are not prejudiced, therefore, this court may not exercise power under Article 226 of the Constitution of India and interfere with the show cause notice.

13. I have considered the rival submissions of the parties and perused the record.

14. Before adverting the respective arguments of counsel for the parties, it would be apt to refer few judgements of the Apex Court wherein Apex Court has considered the question regarding the maintainability of writ petition against a show cause notice.

15. In Special Director and Another Vs. Mohd. Ghulam Ghouse and Another AIR 2004 SC 1467 the respondent Mohd. Ghulam Ghouse preferred a writ petition before the High Court challenging the show cause notice for violating Foreign Exchange Regulation Act, 1973. The High Court passed an order of status quo which came to be challenged before the Apex Court in Special Leave Petition. The Apex Court while allowing the appeal held that writ petition challenging a show cause notice is not maintainable. The Apex Court has deprecated the High Court for stalling enquiries as proposed and retarding investigative process to find actual facts with participation and in presence of parties. Paragraph 5 of the judgement is extracted hereinbelow:-

"5. This Court in a large number of cases has deprecated the practice of the High Courts entertaining writ petitions questioning legality of the show cause notices stalling enquiries as proposed and retarding investigative process to find actual facts with the participation and in the presence of the parties. Unless, the High Court is satisfied that the show cause notice was totally non est in the eye of law for absolute want of jurisdiction of the authority to even investigate into facts, writ petitions should not be entertained for the mere asking and as a matter of routine, and the writ petitioner should invariably be directed to respond to the show cause notice and take all stands highlighted in the writ petition. Whether the show cause notice was founded on any legal premises is a jurisdictional issue which can even be urged by the recipient of the notice and such issues also can be adjudicated by the authority issuing the very notice initially, before the aggrieved could approach the Court. Further, when the Court passes an interim order it should be careful to see that the statutory functionaries specially and specifically constituted for the purpose are not denuded of powers and authority to initially decide the matter and ensure that ultimate relief which may or may not be finally granted in the writ petition is accorded to the writ petitioner even at the threshold by the interim protection, granted."

16. In the case of Union of India and Another Vs. Kunisetty Satyanarayana, 2006 (12) SCC 28 the Apex Court after considering various pronouncements of the Apex Court held that writ petition should not be entertained against a show cause notice as at that stage the writ petition is premature. Paragraph 13, 14 & 15 of the judgement are extracted hereinbelow:-

"13. It is well settled by a series of decisions of this Court that ordinarily no writ lies against a charge sheet or show-cause notice vide Executive Engineer, Bihar State Housing Board vs. Ramdesh Kumar Singh and others JT 1995 (8) SC 331, Special Director and another vs. Mohd. Ghulam Ghouse and another AIR 2004 SC 1467, Ulagappa and others vs. Divisional Commissioner, Mysore and others 2001(10) SCC 639, State of U.P. vs. Brahm Datt Sharma and another AIR 1987 SC 943 etc.

14. The reason why ordinarily a writ petition should not be entertained against a mere show-cause notice or charge-sheet is that at that stage the writ petition may be held to be premature. A mere charge-sheet or show-cause notice does not give rise to any cause of action, because it does not amount to an adverse order which affects the rights of any party unless the same has been issued by a person having no jurisdiction to do so. It is quite possible that after considering the reply to the show-cause notice or after holding an enquiry the authority concerned may drop the proceedings and/or hold that the charges are not established. It is well settled that a writ lies when some right of any party is infringed. A mere show-cause notice or charge-sheet does not infringe the right of any one. It is only when a final order imposing some punishment or otherwise adversely affecting a party is passed, that the said party can be said to have any grievance.

15. Writ jurisdiction is discretionary jurisdiction and hence such discretion under Article 226 should not ordinarily be exercised by quashing a show-cause notice or charge sheet."

17. The same view has been taken by the Apex Court in the case of Secretary Ministry of Defence and Others Vs. Prabhash Chandra Mishra AIR 2012 SC 2250. Paragraph 13 of the judgement is extracted hereinbelow:-

"13. Thus, the law on the issue can be summarised to the effect that chargesheet cannot generally be a subject matter of challenge as it does not adversely affect the rights of the delinquent unless it is established that the same has been issued by an authority not competent to initiate the disciplinary proceedings. Neither the disciplinary proceedings nor the chargesheet be quashed at an initial stage as it would be a premature stage to deal with the issues. Proceedings are not liable to be quashed on the grounds that proceedings had been initiated at a belated stage or could not be concluded in a reasonable period unless the delay creates prejudice to the delinquent employee. Gravity of alleged misconduct is a relevant factor to be taken into consideration while quashing the proceedings."

18. In the recent judgement of the Apex Court in the case of Commissioner of Central Excise, Haldia Vs. Krishna Wax (P) Ltd. 2019 (368) ELT 769 (SC) the Apex Court has again reiterated that a writ petition should normally not be entertained against mere issuance of show cause notice. Paragraph 12 of the judgement is extracted hereinbelow:-

"12. It has been laid down by this Court that the excise law is a complete code in itself and it would normally not be appropriate for a Writ Court to entertain a petition under Article 226 of the Constitution and that the concerned person must first raise all the objections before the authority who had issued a show cause notice and the redressal in terms of the existing provisions of the law could be taken resort to if an adverse order was passed against such person. For example in Union of India and another vs. Guwahati Carbon Limited5, it was concluded; "The Excise Law is a complete code in order to seek redress in excise matters and hence may not be appropriate for the writ court to entertain a petition under Article 226 of the Constitution", while in Malladi Drugs and Pharma Ltd. vs. Union of India6, it was observed:-

"...The High Court, has, by the impugned judgment held that the Appellant should first raise all the objections before the Authority who have issued the show cause notice and in case any adverse order is passed against the Appellant, then liberty has been granted to approach the High Court... ...in our view, the High Court was absolutely right in dismissing the writ petition against a mere show cause notice."

It is thus well settled that writ petition should normally not be entertained against mere issuance of show cause notice. In the present case no show cause notice was even issued when the High Court had initially entertained the petition and directed the Department to prima facie consider whether there was material to proceed with the matter."

19. The present case requires to be examined in the light of principles enunciated by the Apex Court regarding maintainability of writ petition against a show cause notice.

20. At this juncture, it would be relevant to refer the chain of events in which the present exercise to verify and cancel the fake, fabricated and tampered marks sheet and degrees have been undertaken. This Court while considering the Writ C No.2906 of 2013 (Sushil Kumar Vs. Dr. Bhimrao Ambedkar University and Another) found that the original cross list produced pertaining to B.Ed. examination 2005 does not bear signature of any of the authority concerned. The first order passed in the writ petition is extracted hereinbelow:-

"Vice-Chancellor of the University should file his personal affidavit after inspection of original records in respect of B.Ed. examination 2005, by the next date.

Original cross list has been produced today pertaining to B.Ed. Examination 2005 before this Court. It is surprising that none of the pages of the register bear any signature of any officer. Such register appears to be, prima facie, a manufactured document. It is stated that cross list are required to be signed by duly authorized persons and it is only then that the cross list can be accepted as genuine. It is also stated that all cross list of other examinations are duly signed by the officers of the University.

List on 12.03.2013.

The cross list produced today is returned to the counsel for the University."

21. In the said writ petition, the Vice Chancellor had filed an affidavit contending therein that though, the First Information Report has been lodged with the police with regard to fake mark-sheets issued to the students but no investigation had taken place. In the aforesaid backdrop, the Court directed the State to be impleaded as a party by order dated 05.08.2013. On the direction of this Court, a preliminary investigation was carried out. The preliminary investigation report revealed the shocking state of affairs in the University. Consequently, this Court on 14.03.2014 issued a direction to the Secretary, Home, U.P. Lucknow, to assign the investigation to a Special Investigation Agency of the State other than C.B, C.I.D. Pursuant to the direction of this Court, a special investigation team was constituted by the orders of Deputy Director General of Police dated 06.05.2014. Subsequently, this Court on 09.09.2015 after noticing the previous orders directed the Registrar General to place the said matter before Hon'ble The Chief Justice requesting him that the writ petition be treated and dealt with as a Public Interest Ligation by the appropriate Bench.

22. In the aforesaid backdrop, the special investigating team constituted pursuant to the orders of this Court conducted the investigation and submitted report in August, 2017. The SIT on verification categorized candidates in two list namely; list of candidates whose marks sheet are fake and list of candidates whose marks sheet are tampered. Pursuant to the aforesaid report, the Director General of Police and Additional Chief Secretary asked the Vice Chancellor of the University to initiate the exercise to cancel the fake and tampered marks sheet and degrees of candidates after verifying it from the records of the University. In the aforesaid background, the Executive Council took a decision to verify the degree, and accordingly, in order to carryout the said verification, notice impugned alongwith questionnaire have been issued.

23. Now, the moot question which arises for consideration is as to whether the show cause notice impugned in the present petition have been issued by a person lacking inherent jurisdiction and the said show cause notice has any in way prejudiced the rights of the petitioners.

24. The first contention of Sri Khare that exercise undertaken by the Executive Council is not an independent exercise but has been done at the behest of the State Government is misconceived inasmuch as the University had full knowledge about the fact that the large scale fraud has been committed in issuing the fake and tampered marks sheet of B.Ed. Examination-2005, which fact is also fortified from the personal affidavit of the Vice Chancellor of the University filed before this Court wherein he has made a categorical averment that as many as 6 FIR had been lodged to investigate the allegation of issuance of fake and tampered mark-sheets to the students in collusion with the University employee but no investigation was done by the Police and a request was made to the Court through the said affidavit to handover the investigation to any independent agency. In the aforesaid backdrop, this Court passed an order for constituting SIT to carryout the investigation.

25. The exercise of verification of fake as well as tampered degree should have been undertaken by the University voluntarily instead of waiting for any direction from the Court or authority more so when it was aware of the fact that the fake and tampered mark-sheets have been issued to the students in connivance with the employees of the University. Thus, to say that the verification exercise undertaken by the University is on the dictate of the State Government is not correct and misconceived. In this view of the fact, the first submission of the petitioner is not sustainable.

26. As far as the second contention of Sri Khare that report of SIT is not a conclusive piece of evidence and that cannot be considered and relied upon to hold that degree/marks sheet of the candidates mentioned in the list of candidates of fake marks sheet or tampered marks sheet also lacks substance for the reason that the respondents have not yet cancelled the marks sheet/degree of the candidates categorized in the three list; the list of candidates of fake mark-sheet, list of candidates of tampered mark-sheets and list of candidates appearing in the examination on the basis of roll number allotted to more than one candidate, rather the authority has issued a notice inviting details from each candidate in the form of questionnaire so as to verify the fact as to whether name of a candidate in the list of fake or tampered marks sheet has been correctly shown in the list submitted by the SIT. Had the authorities treated the report of SIT to be a conclusive piece of evidence, there was no occasion for the respondents to publish the notice impugned in the writ petition and asking the candidates to furnish information sought in the questionnaire. Further, the two letters dated 11.07.2019 & 25.11.2019 of the Deputy Inspector General of Police, SIT & Additional Chief Secretary also directs the University to follow the procedure as provided in the Act, 1973 for cancellation of a degree. Thus, this Court does not find any merit in the second submission of the counsel for the petitioner.

27. So far as the judgements relied upon by Sri Ashok Khare in support of second submission are concerned, the same are not applicable in the facts of the present case as they have been rendered in a different factual context.

28. As regards the third submission of Sri Khare that the controversy as regards the validity of admission and issuance of the mark-sheets of the petitioners have already been concluded by this Court in Writ Petition no.399 (MB) of 2007 (Shri Puran Prasad Gupta Memorial Degree College Vs. State of U.P. and Others) and other writ petitions, this Court without adverting upon the merits of the contention advanced by the learned Senior Counsel finds it appropriate that the petitioners may raise the said contention before the authority concerned as each individual candidate has to demonstrate that his case is covered by the said judgement and this Court has validated his admission.

29. Thus, for the reasons given above, this Court finds that a show cause notice cannot be interfered with by this Court on any of the aforesaid three grounds as none of the issue involves jurisdictional issue or that the notice is per-se illegal.

30. Now, coming to the fourth contention of Sri Khare, it is relevant to mention that the Court is vested with the power under Section 67 of the Act, 1973 to cancel the degree/marks sheet. The Court under Act, 1973 is to exercise such power only in cases where the University finds that the marks sheet or degree has been issued by the University though, it has been tampered. The procedure contemplated under the Act, 1973 cannot be said to be applicable to cancel those degrees which according to the University have not been issued by it and have been procured by the candidates from outside with which the University has no concern.

31. In the case in hand, the Executive Council has undertaken the exercise to verify and sort out list of candidates whose degree or marks sheet are fake and list of candidates whose marks sheet are tampered and list of candidates who have appeared with the roll number allotted to many other candidates. The Court as defined in the Act, 1973 is not empowered to carryout any such exercise, and it is only Executive Council who has power to undertake such exercise. Therefore, the last submission of Sri Khare is also devoid of merit.

32. It has also been urged by Sri Ashok Khare, learned Senior Counsel that questionnaire issued by the respondents requires certain information which may not be available with the petitioners and further the said questionnaire requires that it shall bear the seal and signature of principal of the College which is wholly impossible inasmuch as the principal of the concerned college has refused to sign the form and petitioners are helpless to supply information as sought through the questionnaire.

33. A perusal of the questionnaire reveals that it has not sought any information which cannot be said to be available with the petitioners. The information sought through the aforesaid questionnaire are essential to find out and segregate fake and tampered marks sheet/degree. Thus, in the opinion of the Court, the said contention also does not stand to its merit.

34. This Court while exercising power under Article 226 of Constitution of India cannot shut its eyes about the entire chain of events which had led to unearth scam of such a magnitude where fake marks sheet have been procured by the candidates with impunity and on the basis of such fake or tampered marks sheet, they have obtained employment as Assistant Teacher.

35. Further, this is only a show cause notice and no prejudice is caused to the petitioners in supplying information as sought by the respondent. Therefore, in the opinion of the Court, no good ground has been made out by the petitioners calling for interference by this Court to quash the show cause notice impugned in the present petition, more so when fraud of such a large magnitude has been played in procuring fake marks sheet/degree. At this juncture it would be apt to again refer the judgement of Apex Court in the case of Mohd. Ghulam Ghouse and Another (supra) wherein Apex Court has deprecated the practice of issuing interim orders against a show cause notice or interference with the show cause notice to stall the investigation or inquiry to find out the truth.

36. However, this Court cannot also loose sight of the fact that petitioners have obtained employment on the basis of marks sheet alleged to have been issued to them and have been working for more than a decade. Further, there may be cases where Principal of the concerned college may refuse to put signature on the questionnaire and the petitioners cannot force the Principal of the concerned college to put signature and seal on the questionnaire and petitioners may be rendered remedy less. Therefore, in the interest of justice and fairplay, this Court is of the opinion that University while carrying out the exercise to verify the mark-sheet/degree should follow the following observation of the Court:-

(i) The University while verifying the mark-sheet/degree of a candidate may not refuse to consider the questionnaire of a candidate if the same does not bear the signature & seal of the Principal of the college.

(ii). In case after verification, the University disowns the degree of a candidate being fake, the University is not required to follow the procedure contemplated under the Act, 1973 for cancellation of degree/marks sheet. However, it is desirable in the interest of justice and fairplay that the University in such cases should pass reasoned and speaking order giving the basis on which it has formed opinion that degree is fake and has not been issued by the University.

(iii). In case University finds that the degree/marks sheet have been issued by it though tampered, in such an event, the University is expected to follow the procedure provided in the Act, 1973 and give a show cause notice to such candidate and thereafter, pass appropriate orders.

37. For the reasons given above, this Court does not find any good ground to interfere with the notices impugned in the petition. Consequently, the writ petition lacks merit and is accordingly, dismissed subject to observations made above.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION
CIVIL SIDE
DATED: LUCKNOW 26.02.2020

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE ABDUL MOIN, J.

Special Appeal Defective No. 619 of 2010

Director Indira Gandhi Rashtriya Udan Academy 5775(S/S)2000 ...Appellant
Versus
Sheo Narain Chaudhary ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellant:
O.P. Srivastava, Virendra Kumar Dubey

Counsel for the Respondent:
N.N. Jaiswal, Anupam Verma, Rajan Singh

A. Limitation - Article 215 of the Indian Constitution & Section 20 of the Limitation Act, 1971 - the Court can invoke the jurisdiction vested in it under Article 215 but same has to be exercised subject to the limitation prescribed under Section 20 of the Act of 1971

The Special Appeal was filed on 27.08.2010 while the judgment was pronounced on 07.04.2015 and thus the present application, as per the averments contained therein of the special appeal having been filed by holders of such posts which have neither been creator nor approved in the Academy whereby committing contempt, would clearly be hit by the limitation prescribed under Section 20 of the Act, 1971. (para 13)

C.M. Application No.8909 of 2020.

1. Heard.

2. This is an application filed by the applicant, inter alia, praying for initiation of proceedings under Article 215 of the Constitution of India against the respondents No.1, 2, 3 and 4 for having filed the special appeal by purporting to hold an authority and post which is non existent in the Indira Gandhi Rashtriya Udan Academy (hereinafter referred to as the Academy), whereby committing contempt.

3. Sri Anupam Verma, learned counsel for the applicant contends that Special Appeal Defective No.619 of 2010 had been allowed on 7.4.2015 whereby the order passed in the writ petition in favour of the applicant was set-aside. It is only now that the applicant has come to know of the aforesaid fact of the special appeal having been filed by persons alleging themselves to be holders of such posts which have neither been created nor approved in the Academy.

4. The present application has been filed on 22.1.2020 while the special appeal had been decided on 7.4.2015 i.e. the application is being filed after a period of more than four and half years. Upon a pointed query being put to the learned counsel for the applicant as to how the present application could be said to be within the limitation prescribed in Section 20 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971, reliance has been placed by the learned counsel for the applicant upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Pritam Pal vs. High Court of M.P. reported in AIR 1992 SC 904, judgment of the Full Court of the Kerala High Court in the case of A. Mayilswami vs. State of Kerala and others reported in 1995(2) KLJ 255 and the judgment of Andhra Pradesh High Court in the case of Nallamala Venkateswara Rao and another vs. P. Pradhakar and another reported in 1998(1) ALD 370 to contend that the period of limitation prescribed under Section 20 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 (hereinafter referred to as the Act, 1971) shall not be applicable on an application filed under Article 215 of the Constitution of India.

5. Having heard the learned counsel for the applicant and having perused the record what emerges is that the application under Article 215 of the Constitution of India has been filed by alleging that the special appeal had been filed by the persons alleging themselves to be holders of such posts which have neither been created nor approved in the Academy and thus this Court has been mislead in entertaining the said special appeal. However, the fact of the matter remains that the present application under Article 215 of the Constitution of India is being filed after a period of more than four and half years of the final judgment and more than nine and a half years of the filing of the special appeal inasmuch as the judgment in the special appeal had been delivered on 7.4.2015, the special appeal was filed on 27.8.2010 while the application under Article 215 of the Constitution of India has been filed on 22.1.2020.

6. Section 20 of the Act, 1971, which is relevant for the purpose of deciding the controversy, reads as under:-

"20. Limitation for actions for contempt. No court shall initiate any proceedings of contempt, either on its own motion or otherwise, after the expiry of a period of one year from the date on which the contempt is alleged to have been committed."

7. A perusal of Section 20 of the Act, 1971 thus indicates that limitation for action of contempt has been specified as one year from the date on which the contempt is alleged to have been committed. The filing of special appeal by persons alleging themselves to be holders of such posts which have neither been created nor approved in the Academy is said to be a contempt for which the present application has been filed.

8. Whether the provisions of Section 20 of the Act, 1071 would be attracted in applications filed under Article 215 of the Constitution of India, would be next question to be considered by this Court.

9. The aforesaid question is no longer res-integra taking into consideration the three Judges judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Pallav Sheth v. Custodian and Others reported in (2001)7 SCC 549, wherein the following has been held:-

"The Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 was enacted, as per the Preamble, with a view "to define and limit the powers of certain Courts in punishing Contempts of Courts and to regulate their procedure in relation thereto". It provides for action being taken in relation to civil as well as criminal contempt. It is not necessary, for the purpose of this case, to analyse various Sections of the Act in any great detail except to notice that Sections 3 to 7 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 provides for what is not to be regarded as contempt. Section 8 specifies that nothing contained in the Act shall be construed as implying that any other valid defence in any proceedings for Contempt of Court ceases to be available merely by reason of the provisions of the 1971 Act. Section 9 makes it clear that the Act will not to be implied as enlarging the scope of contempt. Section 10 contains the power of the High Court to punish contempts of subordinate Courts, while Section 12 specifies the punishment which can be imposed for Contempt of Court and other related matters. Procedure to be followed where contempt is in the face of the Supreme Court or a High Court is provided in Section 14, while cognizance of criminal contempt in other cases is dealt with by Section 15. Section 15 has to be read with Section 17 which provides for procedure after cognizance has been taken under Section 15. A decision of the High Court to punish for contempt is made appealable under Section 19 of the Act.

Sections 20 and 22, with which we are concerned in the present case, read as follows:

"20. Limitation for actions for contempt.- No court shall initiate any proceedings for contempt, either on its own motion or otherwise, after the expiry of a period of one year from the date on which the contempt is alleged to have been committed.

22. Act to be in addition to, and not in derogation of, other laws relating to contempt.- The provisions of this Act shall be in addition to, and not in derogation of, the provisions of any other law relating to contempt of courts."

Learned counsel for the parties have drawn our attention to various decisions of this Court in support of their respective contentions. While the effort of both Mr. Venugopal and Mr. Bobde on behalf of the Appellant was that even in exercise of the power under Article 215 of the Constitution the provisions ofSection 20 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 prohibited any action being taken for contempt if a period of one year had elapsed, as was contended in the present case, Mr. Rustomjee submitted that the constitutional power contained under Article 215 could not in any way be stultified or curtailed by any Act of Parliament including Section 20 of the 1971 Act.

It will be appropriate to refer to some of the decisions which have a bearing on the point in issue in the present case.

In Sukhdev Singh Sodhi vs. The Chief Justice and Judges of the Pepsu High Court this Court was concerned with the issue whether this Court could transfer contempt proceedings from Pepsu High Court to any other High Court. For transfer reliance had been placed on Section 527 of the Criminal Procedure Code. While holding that Section 527 did not apply in case where a High Court has initiated proceedings for contempt of itself, it was held that even the Contempt of Courts Act, 1952 recognised the existence of a right to punish for contempt in every High Court and this right is vested in it in the High Court by the Constitution. This Court referred to Article 215 of the Constitution and observed that so far as contempt of a High Court itself is concerned, the Constitution vests this right in every High Court and no Act of a legislature could take away that jurisdiction and confer it afresh by virtue of its own authority. It, accordingly, came to the conclusion that the Code of Criminal Procedure did not apply in matters of contempt triable by the High Court which could deal with it summarily and adopt its own procedure which had to be fair and that the contemner was to be made aware of the charge against him and given a fair and reasonable opportunity to defend himself. Reliance was placed by Mr. Venugopal on a decision in Baradakanta Mishra vs. Mr. Justice Gatikrushna Misra, Chief Justice of the Orissa High Court and it was contended that it was held in this case that Section 20 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 provided a period of limitation by saying that no Court shall initiate any proceeding for contempt either on its own motion or otherwise, after the expiry of a period of one year from the date on which the contempt is alleged to have been committed. In Baradakanta Mishra's case (supra) the Appellant had filed an application before the High Court for initiating contempt proceedings against the Chief Justice and other Judges in their personal capacity. A Full Bench of three Judges were of the opinion that no Contempt of Court had been committed and the application was rejected. The Appellant then purported to avail the right of appeal under Section 19(1) of the Act and filed an appeal in this Court. A preliminary objection was taken by the State against the maintainability of the appeal on the ground that where the High Court had not initiated proceedings and had refused to take action, no appeal as of right would lie under Section 19(1) . This was the only issue which arose for consideration of this Court in Baradakanta Mishra's case and this Court upheld the preliminary objection and held that no appeal under Section 19(1) was maintainable. It is no doubt true that during the course of discussion reference was made to Sections 15, 17 and 20 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 but this Court was in that case not called upon to consider the effect of the provisions of the Contempt of Courts Act vis-à-vis inherent powers of the High Court to punish for contempt. No reference is made in the judgment to Article 129 or Article 215 of the Constitution. Furthermore interpretation of Section 20 was not an issue and no question of limitation arose therein. Under the circumstances, we hold that the observations made by this Court with reference to Section 20 were in the nature of obiter dicta and not binding on this Court in the present case. In any case, Baradakanta Mishra's case decision does not specifically deal with the question as to when or how proceedings for contempt are initiated for the purposes of Section 20 and nor has it considered the applicability of the provisions of the Limitation Act, to which we shall presently refer.

In Firm Ganpat Ram Rajkumar vs. Kalu Ram & Ors. where an Order of this Court ordering delivering of premises had not been complied with, an application was filed for initiation of contempt proceedings. A contention was raised on behalf of the alleged contemner based on Section 20 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971. Dealing with this contention, this Court observed as follows:

"Another point was taken about limitation of this application under section 20 of the Act. S.20 states that no court shall initiate any proceedings for contempt, either on its own motion or otherwise, after the expiry of a period of one year from the date on which the contempt is alleged to have been committed. In this case, the present application was filed on or about 3rd November, 1988 as appears from the affidavit in support of the application. The contempt considered, inter alia, of the act of not giving the possession by force of the order of the learned Sr. Sub-Judge, Narnaul dated 12th February, 1988. Therefore, the application was well within the period of one year. Failure to give possession, if it amounts to a contempt in a situation of this nature is a continuing wrong. There was no scope for application of s. 20 of the Act."

The abovementioned observations indicate that the contention based on Section 20 was not accepted for two reasons firstly that the application for initiating action for contempt was filed within one year of the date when the contempt was alleged to have been committed and secondly failure to give possession amounted to continuing wrong and, therefore, there was no scope for application of Section 20 of the Act. This case is important for the reason that the Court regarded the filing of the application for initiating contempt proceedings as the relevant date from the point of view of limitation.

The power of this Court and the High Court under the Constitution for taking action for contempt of subordinate court came up for consideration in Delhi Judicial Service Association, Tis Hazari Court, Delhi vs. State of Gujarat and Others etc. It referred to Sukhdev Singh Sodhi's case (supra) and held that even after codification of the law of contempt in India the High Courts jurisdiction as the Court of Record to initiate proceedings and take seisin of the matter remained unaffected by the Contempt of Courts Act. It also referred to R.L.Kapur vs. State of Madras and by following the said decision observed as follows:

"... The Court further held that in view of Article 215 of the Constitution, no law made by a legislature could take away the jurisdiction conferred on the High Court nor it could confer it afresh by virtue of its own authority".

Referring to the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 it observed with relation of the powers of the High Court as follows:

"...Inherent powers of a superior Court of Record have remained unaffected even after codification of Contempt Law. The Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 was enacted to define and limit the powers of courts in punishing contempts of courts and to regulate their procedure in relation thereto. Section 2 of the Act defines contempt of court including criminal contempt. Sections 5,6,7,8 and 9 specify matters which do not amount to contempt and the defence which may be taken. Section 10 relates to the power of High Court to punish for contempt of subordinate courts. Section 10 like Section 2 of 1926 Act and Section 3of 1952 Act reiterates and reaffirms the jurisdiction and power of a High Court in respect of its own contempt and of subordinate courts. The Act does not confer any new jurisdiction instead it reaffirms the High Court's power and jurisdiction for taking action for the contempt of itself as well as of its subordinate courts...."

The view in Delhi Judicial Service Association's case (supra) was reiterated and reaffirmed in the case of In re: Vinay Chandra Mishra and it was held that the amplitude and power of this Court to punish for contempt could not be curtailed by the law made by the Parliament or State Legislature. As observed in Income Tax Appellate Tribunal through President vs. V.K. Agarwal and Another at page 25 that the judgment in Vinay Chandra Mishra's case was partially set aside in Supreme Court Bar Association. vs. Union of India and Another on the question of power to suspend an advocate's licence under contempt jurisdiction, the observation in Vinay Chandra Mishra's case with regard to amplitude of the courts power under Article 129 not being curtailed by a law made by the Central or a State Legislature remained unaffected. It was in exercise of the powers under Article 129 that this Court held the respondent in V.K. Agarwal's case (supra) guilty of Contempt of Court as he had tried to influence or question the decision making process of the Income Tax Appellate Tribunal.

The applicability of the Limitation Act to Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 came up for consideration inState of West Bengal and Others vs. Kartick Chandra Das and Others . In that case against a notice of contempt which had been issued by the Single Judge a Letters Patent Appeal were filed under Section 19 of the Contempt of Courts Act which was dismissed on the ground that the delay was not condonable as Section 5 of the Limitation Act did not apply. While reversing this decision of the Calcutta High Court, this Court observed at page 344 as follows:

"7. In consequence, by operation of Section 29(2) read with Section 3 of the Limitation Act, limitation stands prescribed as a special law under Section 19 of the Contempt of Courts Act and limitation in filing Letters Patent appeal stands attracted. In consequence, Sections 4 to 24 of the Limitation Act stands attracted to Letters Patent appeal insofar as and to the extent to which they are not expressly excluded either by special or local law. Since the rules made on the appellate side, either for entertaining the appeals under clause 15 of the Letters Patent or appeals arising under the contempt of courts, had not expressly excluded, Section 5 of the Limitation Act becomes applicable. We hold that Section 5 of the Limitation Act does apply to the appeals filed against the order of the learned Single Judge for the enforcement by way of a contempt. The High Court, therefore, was not right in holding that Section 5 of the Limitation Act does not apply. The delay stands condoned. Since the High Court had not dealt with the matter on merits, we decline to express any opinion on merits. The case stands remitted to the Division Bench for decision on merits."

A Constitution Bench in the case of Supreme Court Bar Association's case (supra) while considering this Court's power to punish for contempt at page 421 observed as follows:

"21. It is, thus, seen that the power of this Court in respect of investigation or punishment of any contempt including contempt of itself, is expressly made "subject to the provisions of any law made in this behalf by Parliament" by Article 142(2). However, the power to punish for contempt being inherent in a court of record, it follows that no act of Parliament can take away that inherent jurisdiction of the court of record to punish for contempt and Parliament's power of legislation on the subject cannot, therefore, be so exercised as to stultify the status and dignity of the Supreme Court and/or the High Courts, though such a legislation may serve as a guide for the determination of the nature of punishment which this Court may impose in the case of established contempt. Parliament has not enacted any law dealing with the powers of the Supreme Court with regard to investigation and punishment of contempt of itself, (we shall refer to Section 15 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971, later on) and this Court, therefore, exercises the power to investigate and punish for contempt of itself by virtue of the powers vested in it under Articles 129 and 142(2) of the Constitution of India. "

"24. Thus, under the existing legislation dealing with contempt of court, the High Courts and Chief Courts were vested with the power to try a person for committing contempt of court and to punish him for established contempt. The legislation itself prescribed the nature and type, as well as the extent of, punishment which could be imposed on a contemner by the High Courts or the Chief Courts. The second proviso to Section 4 of the 1952 Act (supra) expressly restricted the powers of the courts not to "impose any sentence in excess of what is specified in the section" for any contempt either of itself or of a court subordinate to it."

Referring to the powers of the High Court under Article 215 to impose punishment with reference to Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 at page 428, the Court held as follows:

"37. The nature and types of punishment which a court of record can impose in a case of established contempt under the common law have now been specifically incorporated in the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 insofar as the High Courts are concerned and therefore to the extent the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 identifies the nature or types of punishments which can be awarded in the case of established contempt, it does not impinge upon the inherent powers of the High Court under Article 215 either. No new type of punishment can be created or assumed."

In Dr L.P. Misra vs. State of U.P. a contention was raised that while exercising powers under Article 215 in punishing the Appellant therein for Contempt of the High Court the procedure contemplated by Section 14 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 had not been followed. This Court, dealing with this contention, observed as follows:

"12. After hearing learned counsel for the parties and after going through the materials placed on record, we are of the opinion that the Court while passing the impugned order had not followed the procedure prescribed by law. It is true that the High Court can invoke powers and jurisdiction vested in it under Article 215 of the Constitution of India but such a jurisdiction has to be exercised in accordance with the procedure prescribed by law. It is in these circumstances the impugned order cannot be sustained."

In the case of Om Prakash Jaiswal vs. D.K.Mittal and Another a Division Bench of this Court was called upon to interpret Section 20 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971. In that case an undertaking had been given before the High Court on 19th December, 1986 that the Municipal Corporation would not demolish or disturb a construction till disposal of the writ petition. Despite this undertaking, demolition took place on 11th January, 1987. Soon thereafter the Appellant filed an application before the High Court seeking the initiation of proceedings under Section 12 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971. On 15th January, 1987 the High Court issued a show-cause notice to the opposite party as to why contempt proceedings should not be initiated against him for defiance of the Court's order dated 19th December, 1986. On 6th January, 1988, on a concession being made by the Advocate-General the High Court ordered that notices be issued to show-cause why the opposite party be not punished for disobeying the order dated 19th December, 1986.

Subsequently, on 23rd November, 1989 the High Court came to the conclusion that issuing of a show-cause notice did not amount to initiation of proceedings and, therefore, the bar enacted by Section 20 of the Act was attracted and the application was liable to be rejected.

This Court had to consider whether the order of 6th January, 1988 amounted to initiation of proceedings for contempt. Dealing with the question of initiation of proceedings the relevant observations of the judgment are as follows:

"14. In order to appreciate the exact connotation of the expression "initiate any proceedings for contempt" we may notice several situations or stages which may arise before the court dealing with contempt proceedings. These are:

(i) (a) a private party may file or present an application or petition for initiating any proceedings for civil contempt; or

(b) the court may receive a motion or reference from the Advocate General or with his consent in writing from any other person or a specified law officer or a court subordinate to the High Court;

(ii) (a) the court may in routine issue notice to the person sought to be proceeded against;

or

(b) the court may issue notice to the respondent calling upon him to show cause why the proceedings for contempt be not initiated;

(iii) the court may issue notice to the person sought to be proceeded against calling upon him to show cause why he be not punished for contempt.

15. In the cases contemplated by (i) or (ii) above, it cannot be said that any proceedings for contempt have been initiated. Filing of an application or petition for initiating proceedings for contempt or a mere receipt of such reference by the court does not amount to initiation of the proceedings by court. On receiving any such document, it is usual with the courts to commence some proceedings by employing an expression such as "admit", "rule", "issue notice" or "issue notice to show cause why proceedings for contempt be not initiated". In all such cases the notice is issued either in routine or because the court has not yet felt satisfied that a case for initiating any proceedings for contempt has been made out and therefore the court calls upon the opposite party to admit or deny the allegations made or to collect more facts so as to satisfy itself if a case for initiating proceedings for contempt was made out. Such a notice is certainly anterior to initiation. The tenor of the notice is itself suggestive of the fact that in spite of having applied its mind to the allegations and the material placed before it the court was not satisfied of the need for initiating proceedings for contempt; it was still desirous of ascertaining facts or collecting further material whereon to formulate such opinion. It is only when the court has formed an opinion that a prima facie case for initiating proceedings for contempt is made out and that the respondents or the alleged contemners should be called upon to show cause why they should not be punished; then the court can be said to have initiated proceedings for contempt. It is the result of a conscious application of the mind of the court to the facts and the material before it. Such initiation of proceedings for contempt based on application of mind by the court to the facts of the case and the material before it must take place within a period of one year from the date on which the contempt is alleged to have been committed failing which the jurisdiction to initiate any proceedings for contempt is lost. The heading of Section 20 is "limitation for actions for contempt". Strictly speaking, this section does not provide limitation in the sense in which the term is understood in the Limitation Act. Section 5of the Limitation Act also does not, therefore, apply. Section 20 strikes at the jurisdiction of the court to initiate any proceedings for contempt."

It was contended by Mr. Venugopal that Section 20 was mandatory and it imposes a prohibition on the Court in taking action once a period of one year had elapsed. He submitted that Section 20 of the Act nowhere mentions the filing of an application for initiating proceedings of contempt and, therefore, the provisions of Section 29(2) of the Limitation Act would have no application. Relying upon Baradakanta Mishra's case, he submitted that an action of contempt was between the Court and the alleged contemner and hence the date of filing of the petition was not relevant. He submitted that the judgment in Om Prakash Jaiswal's case (supra) had not been correctly decided to the extent that the judgment held that mere issuance of a show-cause notice was not the initiation of contempt proceedings by the Court. He, however, submitted that contempt proceedings are initiated within the meaning of Section 20when the Court, on the application of mind, issued even a show-cause notice within a period of one year of the committal of alleged contempt.

There can be no doubt that both this Court and High Courts are Courts of Record and the Constitution has given them the powers to punish for contempt. The decisions of this Court clearly show that this power cannot be abrogated or stultified. But if the power under Article 129 and Article 215 is absolute can there be any legislation indicating the manner and to the extent that the power can be exercised? If there is any provision of the law which stultifies or abrogates the power under Article 129 and/or Article 215 there can be little doubt that such law would not be regarded as having been validly enacted. It, however, appears to us that providing for the quantum of punishment or what may or may not be regarded as acts of contempt or even providing for a period of limitation for initiating proceedings for contempt cannot be taken to be a provision which abrogates or stultifies the contempt jurisdiction under Article 129 or Article 215 of the Constitution.

This Court has always frowned upon the grant or existence of absolute or unbridled power. Just as power or jurisdiction under Article 226 has to be exercised in accordance with law, if any, enacted by the legislature it would stand to reason that the power under Article 129 and/or Article 215 should be exercised in consonance with the provisions of a validly enacted law. In case of apparent or likelihood of conflict the provisions should be construed harmoniously.

The Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 inter alia provides for what is not to be regarded as contempt; it specifies in Section 12 the maximum punishment which can be imposed; procedure to be followed where contempt is in the face of the Supreme Court or in the High Court or cognizance of criminal contempt in other cases is provided by Sections 14 and 15; the procedure to be followed after taking cognizance is provided by Section 17; Section 18 provides that in every case of criminal contempt under Section 15 the same shall be heard and determined by a Bench of not less than two Judges;Section 19 gives the right of appeal from any order or decision of High Court in the exercise of its jurisdiction to punish for contempt. There is no challenge to the validity of any of the provisions of the Contempt of Courts Act as being violative or in conflict with any provisions of the Constitution. Barring observations of this Court in the Supreme Court Bar Association's case (supra), where it did not express any opinion on the question whether maximum punishment fixed by the 1971 Act was binding on the Court, no doubt has been expressed about the validity of any provision of the 1971 Act. In exercise of its constitutional power this Court has, on the other hand, applied the provisions of the Act while exercising jurisdiction under Article 129 or 125 of the Constitution. In Sukhdev Singh Sodhi's case (supra) it recognised that the 1926 Act placed a limitation on the amount of punishment which could be imposed. Baradakanta Mishra's case was decided on the interpretation of Section 19 of the 1971 Act, namely, there was no right of appeal if the Court did not take action or initiate contempt proceedings. In the case of Firm Ganpat Ram Rajkumar's case (supra) the Court did not hold that Section 20 of the 1971 Act was inapplicable. It came to the conclusion that the application for initiating contempt proceedings (was within time and limitation had to be calculated) as for the purpose of limitation date of filing was relevant and furthermore that was a case of continuing wrong. In Kartick Chandra Das case (supra) the provisions of the Limitation Act were held to be applicable in dealing with application under Section 5 in connection with an appeal filed under Section 19 of the Limitation Act. A three-Judge Bench in Dr L.P.Misra's case (supra) observed that the procedure provided by the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 had to be followed even in exercise of the jurisdiction under Article 215 of the Constitution. It would, therefore, follow that if Section 20 is so interpreted that it does not stultify the powers under Article 129 or Article 215 then, like other provisions of the Contempt of Courts Act relating to the extent of punishment which can be imposed, a reasonable period of limitation can also be provided."

10. From the aforesaid judgment, it emerges that even for application filed under Article 215 of the Constitution of India, the procedure prescribed under the Act, 1971 has to be adhered to.

11. This would be amply clear from a perusal of the judgment of the Apex Court in the case in the case of Dr. L.P. Misra vs. State of U.P. reported in 1998(7) SCC 375, wherein the Apex Court held as under:-

"6. Mr. Dwivedi, Learned Senior Counsel appearing for the appellant in Crl. Appeal No. 483 of 1994 assailed the impugned order principally on the ground that the court while passing the said order did not follow the procedure prescribed by law. Counsel urged that the court had failed to give a reasonable opportunity to the appellants of being heard. Assuming that the incident as recited in the impugned order had taken place, the court could not have passed the impugned order on the same day after it reassembled without issuing a show cause notice or giving an opportunity to the appellants to explain the alleged contemptuous conduct. The minimal requirement of following the procedure prescribed by law had been over looked by the Court. In support of his submission, Counsel drew our attention to Section 14 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 as also to the provisions contained in Chapter XXXV-E of the Allahabad High Court Rules, 1952. Emphasis was laid on Rule 7 and 8 which read as under :-

"7. When it is alleged or appears to t he Court upon its own view that a person has been guilty of contempt committed in its presence or hearing, the Court may cause such person to be detained in custody, and at any time before the rising of the Court, on the same day or as early as possible thereafter, shall-

(a) cause him to be informed in writing of the contempt with which he is charged, and if such person pleads guilty to the charge, his plea shall be recorded and the Court may in its discretion, convict him thereon,

(b) if such person refuses to plead, or does not plead, or claims to be tried or the Court does not convict him, on his plea of guilt, afford him an opportunity to make his defence to the charge, in support of which he may file an affidavit on the date fiked for his appearance or on such other date as may be fiked by the court in that behalf.

(c) after taking such evidence as may be necessary or as may be offered by such person and after hearing him, proceed either forthwith or after the adjournment, to determine the matter of the charge, and

(d) make such order for punishment of discharge of such person as may be just.

8. Notwithstanding anything contained in Rule 7, where a person charged with contempt under the rule applies, whether orally or in writing to have the charge against him tried by some Judge other than the Judge or Judges in whose presence or hearing the offence is alleged to have been committed, and the court if of opinion that it is practicable to do so and that in the interests of proper administration of justice the application should be allowed, it shall cause the matter to be placed together with a statement of the facts of the case, before the Chief Justice for such directions as he may think fit to issue as respects the trial thereof."

Counsel urged that the impugned order is totally opposed to the principles of natural justice and, therefore, unsustainable on this score alone. He, therefore, urged that the impugned order be quashed and set aside.

7. Learned Counsel appearing for the other appellants adopted the same arguments.

8. We heard Learned Solicitor General who was requested to appear and assist the Court.

9. After hearing learned counsel for the parties and after going the rough the materials placed on record, we are of the opinion that the Court while passing the impugned order had not followed the procedure prescribed by law. It is true that the High Court can invoke powers and jurisdiction vested in it under Article 215 of the Constitution of India but such a jurisdiction has to be exercised in accordance with the procedure prescribed by law. It is in these circumstances, the impugned order cannot be sustained."

12. From the judgment in the case of Dr. L.P. Misra (supra), it comes out that though this Court can invoke powers and jurisdiction vested in it under Article 215 of the Constitution of India but the same has to be exercised in accordance with the procedure prescribed under law. In view of the aforesaid judgments in the case of Pallav Seth and Dr. L.P. Misra (supra), even though this Court finds that it can exercise jurisdiction but the said jurisdiction can only be exercised in accordance with the procedure prescribed by law and consequently Section 20 of the Act, 1971 would be the limitation for entertaining an application under Article 215 of the Constitution of India.

13. Admittedly, the special appeal was filed on 27.8.2010 while the judgment in the special appeal was pronounced on 7.4.2015 and thus the present application, as per the averments contained therein of the special appeal having been filed by holders of such posts which have neither been created nor approved in the Academy whereby committing contempt, would clearly be hit by the limitation prescribed under Section 20 of the Act, 1971.

14. So far as the judgment in the case of Pritam Pal (supra), as relied on by the learned counsel by the applicant is concerned, suffice to state that the said judgment was delivered by two Judges while the judgments in Pallav Seth and Dr. L.P. Misra (supra) were both delivered by three Judges and were also of the subsequent dates.

15. Accordingly, taking into consideration the aforesaid judgments, the judgments in the case of A. Mayilswami and Mallamala Venkateswara Rao (supra) as relied by the learned counsel for the applicant, would also have no applicability in the present case.

16. Taking into consideration the aforesaid discussion, this Court clearly finds that the present application is hit by delay and is accordingly dismissed.

A. Service – Termination – It is a settled principle that the maternity leave shall be available to all female employees irrespective of her nature of appointment, be it temporary, permanent, casual, contractual etc. Therefore, the competent authority i.e. Mission Director in the present case, cannot indicate in his order that such leave is not admissible to the petitioner. (Para 7, 13)

B. If any punishment order is stigmatic or based on some allegations, the services of an employee may not be dispensed with without following the due procedure of law. (Para 6, 11)

C. The punishment order can only be passed by the disciplinary authority applying its judicious and independent mind appreciating the facts of eth issue and the legal provisions to that effect. (Para 9)

D. Discretion exercised under the direction or in compliance with some higher authority's instruction, will be a case of failure to exercise discretion altogether. (Para 10)

Precedent distinguished:

1. Rajesh Bhardwaj Vs. Union of India, (Writ-A No. 5484/2013) (Para 4, 5)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajesh Singh Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the parties.

2. This Court has passed order dated 14.1.2020 as under :

"Heard Sri Mahendra Pratap Singh, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Ran Vijay Singh, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the State-respondents.

The case set-forth by learned counsel for the petitioner is that the petitioner applied for the child care leave for three months with effect from 11.07.2019 as application dated 10.07.2019 to that effect has been preferred by the petitioner to her Appointing Authority i.e. the District Homeopathy Medical Officer, Sultanpur. On earlier occasion, the petitioner had proceeded for maternity leave with effect from 07.05.2018 to 13.12.2018 and the said leave has not been sanctioned.

The District Homeopathy Medical Officer, Sultanpur has called an explanation from the petitioner that was duly replied vide explanation dated 20.11.2019. In the said explanation, the petitioner has cited the decision of the Division Bench of this Court in re: Dr. Rachna Chaurasiya vs. State of U.P. & others reported in [2017 (11) ADJ 399 (DB)], which categorically provides that the maternity leave and child care leave are admissible to all the lady employees irrespective of her nature of appointment whether it be permanent, temporary and contractual. After receiving the aforesaid explanation of the petitioner dated 20.11.2019, the Appointing Authority has issued two letters, one letter dated 22.11.2019 to the petitioner and second one to the Mission Director, Uttar Pradesh Rajya Ayush Society, Lucknow. Letter dated 22.11.2019, which was addressed to the petitioner, says that her entire issue including her explanation has been forwarded to the Mission Director for necessary orders.

By means of the impugned order dated 17.12.2019, the Mission Director, Uttar Pradesh Rajya Ayush Society, Lucknow has directed the District Homeopathy Medical Officer, Sultanpur to terminate the services of the petitioner for the reason that she has absented again and again without permission and the leave i.e. the maternity and the child care leave are not admissible to the contract employees, therefore, the said leave may not be exceeded to the petitioner.

The maternity leave as well as the child care leave is admissible to the contract employees also in view of the decision of the Division Bench of this Court rendered in re: Dr. Rachna Chaurasiya vs. State of U.P. & others (supra), therefore, recital to that effect in the impugned order is prima facie unwarranted.

So far as recital to the effect that the petitioner has absented again and again without permission is concerned, the question would be as to whether the petitioner has absented without informing the Competent Authority by preferring an application and as to whether she has sought such relief which can not be granted to her. If any employee has sought such relief which may be granted strictly in accordance with law and the circumstances at that point of time compels the employee to proceed on leave otherwise she shall suffer irreparable loss, whether that conduct of an employee may be treated as misconduct.

Not only the above, whether in a given circumstances the services of an employee may be dispensed with without following the principles of natural justice inasmuch as in the present case the services of the petitioner have been dispensed with without affording an opportunity of hearing.

One more question crops up i.e. as to whether any punishment order against an employee can be passed at the behest of the Superior Authority inasmuch as in the present case admittedly Appointing Authority of the petitioner is District Homeopathy Medical Officer but the services of the petitioner have been dispensed with pursuant to the direction being issued by the Mission Director, Uttar Pradesh Rajya Ayush Society, Lucknow, however, the termination order has been passed by the Appointing Authority.

The law is settled on this point that the punishment order can only be passed by the Disciplinary Authority applying his judicious mind independently appreciating the legal provisions to that effect.

Therefore, the matter requires consideration.

List/ put up this case on 18.01.2020 in the additional cause list to enable the learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel to seek instructions in the matter.

Till the next date of listing, no third party interest shall be created."

3. In compliance of the aforesaid order Sri Ran Vijay Singh, learned Addl. C.S.C. has produced the copy of the instruction letter dated 17.1.2020 preferred by the Director, Homeopathy, U.P. addressing the C.S.C., High Court, Lucknow Bench, Lucknow enclosing therewith some correspondences and letters. Along with the instruction letter one letter dated 17.1.2020 has been enclosed which has been preferred by the District Medical Officer, Homeopathy, Sultanpur addressing to Director, Homeopathy, U.P. The perusal of the aforesaid letter dated 17.1.2020 of the District Medical Officer, Homeopathy, Sultanpur reveals that initially the petitioner absented for three days w.e.f. 7.5.2018 to 10.5.2018 without preferring any application to that effect and she further proceeded on leave in continuation of earlier authorized leave by preferring an application seeking maternity leave. It has further been indicated that after the aforesaid maternity leave which was not sanctioned by the competent authority till date the petitioner again proceeded on leave on 10.7.2019 for care of her child as Child Care Leave for three months i.e. w.e.f. 11.7.2019 to 10.10.2019. Admittedly, the petitioner has submitted her joining on 1.11.2019 but her joining was subject to the necessary orders being passed by the Mission Director, U.P. As per Sri Ran Vijay Singh the Mission Director considering the entire facts and circumstances relating to the petitioner directed the District Medical Officer, Homeopathy, Sultanpur to dispense with the services of the petitioner as she is habitual absentee and the leave sought by the petitioner are not admissible for the contract employees.

4. Besides, Sri Ran Vijay Singh has placed reliance on the judgment dated 20.11.2018 of Division Bench of this Court in re: Rajesh Bhardwaj vs. Union of India (Writ-A No. 5484/2013 along with one connected writ petition) by submitting that since the petitioner was appointed on the post 'Yog Assistant' on contract basis, therefore, being a contract employee her writ petition may not be maintained before this Court.

5. It would be apt to indicate here that the petitioner is taking recourse of the various pronouncements of the Hon'ble Apex Court which provides that if the order of termination is stigmatic, irrespective of nature of appointment, be it ad-hoc, contractual or regular, a full fledged inquiry would be required to be conducted, therefore, in view of the fact that the facts and circumstances of in re: Rajesh Bhardwaj (supra) would not be applicable in the present case as the facts and circumstances of the present case are different. Further, the petitioner has also challenged the impugned order on the ground that the punishment order has not been passed by the appointing authority but the same has been passed at the dictate of superior authority, therefore, in view of the settled propositions of law by the Hon'ble Apex Court in re: (1991) 3 SCC 219, Nagraj Shivarao Karjagi vs. Syndicate Bank, Head Office, Manipal and another, (1995) 5 SCC 302, Anirudhsinhji Karansinhji Jadeja and another and (2009) 7 SCC 69, Commissioner of Income Tax, Shimla vs. Greenworld Corporation Parwanoo the punishment order is liable to be set aside. Therefore, the judgment in re: Rajesh Bhardwaj (supra) shall not be applicable in the present case inasmuch as the facts and circumstances of both the cases are different.

6. So far as the leave of the petitioner is concerned be that authorized or unauthorized the instructions have been received but so far as the two other questions framed in the order dated 14.1.2020 have not been received as those questions are as to whether the services of an employee can be dispensed with without following the due procedure of law or in violation of principles of natural justice and as to whether the punishment order can be passed other than the appointing authority. The law is trite on the point that if any punishment order is stigmatic or based on some allegations, the services of an employee may not be dispensed with without following the due procedure of law. Had the order impugned been simplicitor, such type of protection could have been avoided but in the present case the Mission Director vide order dated 17.12.2019 has levelled allegations against the petitioner that she is habitual absentee and the leave sought by her is not admissible, therefore, her services should be dispensed with.

7. Considering the tone and tenor of the letter dated 17.12.2019, I feel that an ample opportunity should have been provided to the petitioner, particularly for the reason that in her explanation dated 20.11.2019 the petitioner has cited the judgment of Division Bench of this Court in re: Dr. Rachna Chaurasiya (supra) wherein this Court has categorically provided that the maternity leave is admissible to all the employees irrespective of her nature of appointment, therefore, before passing the order dated 17.12.2019 the Mission Director must have considered such legal point as the explanation of the petitioner to that effect has been sent to him by the District Homoeopathy Medical Officer.

8. The Division Bench of this Court in re: Dr. Rachna Chaurasiya (supra) vide para 25 & 27 has held as under :

"25. Maternity benefit is a social insurance and the Maternity Leave is given for maternal and child health and family support. On a perusal of different provisions of the Act, 1961 as well as the policy of the Central Government to grant Child Care Leave and the Government Orders issued by the State of U.P. adopting the same for its female employees, we do not find anything contained therein which may entitle only to women employees appointed on regular basis to the benefit of Maternity Leave or Child Care Leave and not those, who are engaged on casual basis or on muster roll on daily wage basis."

"27.We are of the considered opinion that the benefit under the Act as well as the Rules of the Government Orders providing for grant of Maternity benefits and Child Care leave are applicable to all female employees, irrespective of their nature of employment whether permanent, temporary or contractual."

9. So far as the second question regarding the competence of the authority to pass punishment order is concerned, the law is settled on this point that the punishment order can only be passed by the disciplinary authority applying its judicious and independent mind appreciating the facts of the issue and the legal provisions to that effect. In the present case the punishment order has, however, been passed by the appointing authority but the appointing authority has not applied his own judicious mind independently as he followed the direction being issued by the Mission Director vide letter dated 17.12.2019, therefore, in that count the punishment order dated 26.12.2019 is not sustainable in the eyes of law.

10. The Hon'ble Apex Court in re: Nagraj Shivarao Karjagi (supra), Anirudhsinhji Karansinhji Jadeja and another (supra) and Commissioner of Income Tax, Shimla (supra) it has been held that if the statutory authority has been vested with the jurisdiction, the authority has to exercise it according to its own discretion. If the discretion is exercised under the direction or in compliance with some higher authority's instruction, then it will be case of failure to exercise discretion altogether.

11. The Hon'ble Apex Court in re: Parshotam Lal Dhingra vs Union Of India reported in 1958 AIR 36, 1958 SCR 828 has held the stigmatic termination order may not be passed without affording an opportunity of hearing to an employee if the order entails civil consequences could not have been passed without affording an opportunity of hearing to an employee. Apex Court in the case of High Court of Gujarat Vs. Jayshree Chamanlal Budhhabhatt, 2013 (16) SCC 59, has taken the view that once any allegations are made against the incumbent concerned, which results in stigma, the minimum requirement is to inform the concern person, the charge against him, and to give him reasonable opportunity of being heard. Apex Court in the case of SBI Vs. Palak Modi, 2013 (3) SCC 607, has considered the issue of termination simplicitor or punitive termination. Mention has been made that if misconduct/misdemeanor constitutes the basis of final decision taken by competent authority to dispense with the services of an incumbent albeit by a non-stigmatic order, the Court can lift the veil and declare that in the garb of termination simplicitor, the employer has punished the employee for misconduct.

12. This Court in re: Faraz Hameed Ansari vs. Life Insurance Corporation Of India Thru Chairmann & Others reported in 2018(36) LCD 2062 has held in para 15, while considering various decisions of the Hon'ble Apex Court, para 15 is as under :

"15. Thus, even if the impugned action terminating the services of the petitioners is in the realm of a contract, the same would not be precluded from scrutiny in exercise of its powers of judicial review by this Court available to it under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. I am of the considered opinion that every action of the Corporation, whether statutory or non-statutory or administrative in nature, has to be necessarily in consonance with the constitutional mandate and the impugned order, thus, can be tested on the touchstone of Article 14 of the Constitution of India. In case, the impugned action is found to be unreasonable, irrational, illegal, perverse or unfair, the same can be interfered with in view of the law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of GRIDCO1 Ltd. (supra).

13. If on account of the fact that the petitioner was habitual absentee and the leave sought by the petitioner was not admissible to her, the full-fledged departmental inquiry should have been conducted against the petitioner seeking her explanation to that effect and after providing her opportunity of hearing any appropriate order could have been passed by the disciplinary authority. It might be possible that the petitioner could have defended herself placing on record, some relevant case laws of this Court and Hon'ble Apex Court justifying her conduct and if she fails to justify her conduct the appropriate order could have been passed, but such exercise has not been carried out in the present case. If the Division Bench of this Court in re: Dr. Rachna Chaurasiya (supra) has observed that the maternity leave shall be available to all female employees irrespective of her nature of appointment, be it temporary, permanent, casual, contractual etc., then how the competent authority i.e. Mission Director has indicated in his order that such leave is not admissible to the petitioner, therefore, it appears that such observation is in derogation of the direction being issued by the Division Bench of this Court in re: Dr. Rachna Chaurasiya (supra). It might be possible that the authority concerned i.e. Mission Director was having some judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court or having some relevant material that may authorise him to disagree with the direction of the Division Bench in re: Dr. Rachana Chaurasiya (supra) but such material must have been indicated in the order dated 17.12.2019 otherwise that order shall suffer from vice of perversity.

14. Be that as it may, since the appointing authority are not satisfied with the conduct of the petitioner as being reflected in the impugned orders and the instruction letter and the recital to that effect has also been given in the impugned order, therefore, a proper departmental inquiry strictly in accordance with law should have been conducted and concluded against the petitioner to that effect if it is so warranted and after providing an opportunity of hearing to the petitioner any appropriate order can be passed. Any appropriate order can be passed only by the disciplinary authority independently and such order may not be passed pursuant to the direction being passed by the superior authority.

15. In any case if the departmental inquiry is conducted against the petitioner, the same can be conducted and concluded with promptness preferably within a period of three months and any appropriate order can be passed strictly in accordance with law within one month thereafter. It is needless to say that the petitioner shall cooperate with the departmental proceedings, if the same is initiated inasmuch as this is sole prerogative of the disciplinary authority to initiate the departmental inquiry against the petitioner. It is being clarified that this Court is not directing to conduct the departmental inquiry against the petitioner..

16. In view of the above, I am of the considered opinion that the impugned order dated 17.12.2019 and 26.12.2019 are not sustainable in the eyes of law, therefore, both the orders are hereby quashed.

17. The disciplinary authority is directed to reinstate the petitioner in service and pay her regular salary and other emoluments as and when the same falls due.

18. It is also directed that the appropriate orders regarding earlier leave of the petitioner may be passed strictly in accordance with law.

19. In view of above, writ petition is allowed.

Writ Petition rejected. (E-4)

Present application prays for decree for execution of judgment dated 01.04.2005, passed by this Court in the present writ petition.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Saurabh Lavania, J.)

C.M. Application No. 8686 of 2020 (Application for Execution).

1. Heard Sri G.S.L. Varma, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Manish Pandey, learned State counsel.

2. The present application has been filed under Rule 1 (viii) of Chapter-II read with Rule 6 of Chapter VII of the Allahabad High Court Rules, 1952. It is for preparation of decree for execution of the judgment dated 01.04.2005, passed by this Court in the present writ petition.

3. The application, under consideration, was presented in the Registry of this Court on 21.01.2020.

4. From the prayer made in the application, under consideration, which is quoted below, it is evident that the relief sought is for preparation of decree for execution of the judgment and order dated 01.04.2005, passed by this Court in the present writ petition.

"Wherefore, it is most respectfully prayed, that this Hon'ble court of justice may graciously be pleased to direct the Registrar to prepare the decree on the basis of judgment dated 01.04.2005 and sent the same to the Civil court of the Competent Jurisdiction for the execution of the decree to make payment of the due salary to the petitioner w.e.f. 14.06.2000 till date, in exercise of powers conferred under Rule 1 (VIII) of Chapter II read with Rule 6 of Chapter VII of the Allahabad High Court Rules 1952, otherwise the applicant/petitioner will suffer irreparable loss and injury so that his life livelihood may not be further ruined."

5. For the purposes of disposal of the present application, it would be proper to mention that as per Article 137 provided in the Schedule to Limitation Act, 1963 (in short "Act, 1963"), an application for which no period of limitation is provided under the Act, 1963 shall be filed within three years from the date when the right to apply accrues, the same reads as under:-

Description of application	Period of limitation	Time from which period begins to run
137. Any other application for which no period of limitation is provided elsewhere in this Division.	Three years	When the right to apply accrues.

6. In the present case, in my view, the right to prefer/move application for preparation of decree was accrued to the petitioner on 04.05.2005, the date of the judgment passed in the writ petition filed by the petitioner, and as such the application, under consideration, in my view, itself is not maintainable being highly barred by limitation.

7. For disposal of the present application, it is also relevant to mention that in view of the limitation provided under Article 136 of the Act, 1963 which is quoted below, an application for execution of any decree (other than a decree granting a mandatory injunction) or order of any Civil Court can be filed within 12 years from the date when the decree or order becomes enforceable or where the decree or any subsequent order directs any payment of money or the delivery of any property to be made at a certain date or at recurring periods when default in making the payment or delivery in respect of which execution is sought, takes place.

8. Proviso to it says that an application for the enforcement or execution of a decree granting a perpetual injunction shall not be subject to any period of limitation.

Description of application	Period of limitation	Time from which period begins to run
136. For the execution of any decree	Twelve years	[When] the decree or order becomes

(other than a decree granting a mandatory injunction) or order of any civil court.		enforceable or where the decree or any subsequent order directs any payment of money or the delivery of any property to be made at a certain date or at recurring periods when default in making the payment or delivery in respect of which execution is sought, takes place: Provided that an application for the enforcement or execution of a decree granting a perpetual injunction shall not be subject to any period of limitation.

9. It appears from the judgment and order dated 01.04.2005 and the relief sought in the present application, quoted above, that the petitioner for his money claim has approached this Court by means of the present application, filed in the Registry of this Court on 21.01.2020.

10. Keeping in view the aforesaid facts of the case and the provision as envisaged in Article 136 provided in the Schedule to the Act, 1963, in my view, the application of the petitioner for execution of the judgment for money claim would also be not maintainable being barred by limitation.

11. In addition to the above, with regard to compliance of the order dated 01.04.2005, passed by the writ Court, earlier the petitioner filed the Contempt Petition No. 2280 of 2009, which was dismissed on 18.02.2010. The order dated 18.02.2010 reads as under:-

"This Court in Writ Petition No.5994 (S/S) of 2000 has passed an order on 01.04.2005, whereby the order was made for making the payment of salary.

This contempt petition was filed on 21.10.2009 which is time barred as per section 20 of the Contempt of Court Act 1971 read with proviso of Rule 5 of the Contempt of Court Allahabad High Court, Rules 1977.

The contempt petition is not maintainable being time barred. The same is accordingly dismissed as not maintainable."

12. Aggrieved by the order dated 18.02.2010, the petitioner filed the Special Appeal Defective No. 146 of 2010, which was also dismissed vide judgment and order dated 15.05.2018, after condoning the delay in filing the appeal. The order dated 15.05.2018 reads as under:-

"Heard learned counsel for the appellant and learned Standing Counsel.

This special appeal has been preferred by the appellant against the order dated 18.02.2010 passed by the learned Single Judge by means of which learned Single Judge has proceeded to reject the contempt petition preferred by the appellant as the same was time barred as contemplated under Section 20 of the Contempt of the court Act,1971(hereinafter referred to as, 'the Act of 1971') holding that the contempt petition was preferred at a belated stage.

Learned counsel for the appellant submits that petition was moved under Article 215 of the Constitution of India as there is no limitation provided under Article 215 of the Constitution of India.

It is to be noted that an application can be moved only under Section 12 of the Act of 1971. No other provision is existing on the basis of which the appellant can claim benefits in respect of the period of limitation. If the appellant was well advised, then, the application ought to have been moved under Article 215 of the Constitution of India in the pending writ petition but that was never done. Further, appellant has to proceed before this Court under Section 12 of the Act of 1971 as the said powers are vested with this Court but the same was never invoked by the appellant.

Therefore, in the aforesaid circumstances, this special appeal is liable to be dismissed and is hereby dismissed as the same has no merit."

13. After the order dated 15.05.2018 passed in the Special Appeal Defective No. 246 of 2010, the petitioner moved the application for review of the judgment and order dated 15.05.2018. The same was rejected by the Division Bench of this Court vide judgment and order dated 20.11.2019, which reads as under:-

"Heard Mr. G.S.L. Verma, learned counsel for appellant-applicant as well as Mr. Arun Kumar, learned counsel for respondents no. 2 and 3 on the application for review and condonation of delay application.

This review application has been filed against the order dated 15.5.2018 whereby the special appeal has been dismissed on merit.

Learned counsel for review-applicant submits that the findings recorded by the appellate Court are perverse and not sustainable in law.

We are of the considered view that we in the coordinate Bench cannot look into the findings recorded by another coordinate Bench. The scope of review is very limited. The review application as such deserves to be dismissed.

In view of above, we do not find any reason to condone the delay. The application for condonation of delay (CMA No. 27063 of 2019) and application for review (CMA No. 82290 of 2018) are rejected."

14. Keeping in view the aforesaid facts and circumstances of the case as well as the findings recorded by this Court with regard to limitation provided for moving an application for preparation of decree and for execution of the order, this Court finds that the present application has no merit.

15. Accordingly, the application, in issue, is rejected.

16. The matter is consigned to record.

THE HON'BLE SIDDHARTHA VARMA, J.

Service Single No. 14092 of 2018

Chandra Kumar Misra ...Petitioner
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Mohd. Ali, Lalla Ji Maurya

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C.

A. Service Law– Suspension – Enquiry – Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules: Rule 55 – Petitioner posted as a Lekhpal was suspended on the basis of an extremely vague charge sheet. The Court allowed the petition on the following principles. (Para 11)

B. One of the fundamental principles of natural justice is that no man shall be a judge in his own cause – In the present case, Sub Divisional Magistrate, Biswan when stated to be a witness of the facts which formed the basis of the charges then he would be considered to be a judge in his own cause. There should have been a change of the enquiry officer specially when he had himself lodged a FIR against the petitioner. (Para 4, 7 IV, 12)

C. A decision must be arrived at on some evidence, which is legally admissible. The provisions of the Evidence Act may not be applicable in a departmental proceeding but the principles of natural justice are - The function of an Enquiry Officer is to examine the evidence, even in the absence of the delinquent official to see as to whether the unrebutted evidence is sufficient to hold that the charges are proved. (Para 5, 7, 7 V, 13)

D. It is the basic requirement of rules of natural justice that an employee be given a reasonable opportunity of being heard in any proceeding which may culminate in punishment being imposed on the employee - Denial of enquiry report to the petitioner amounted to the denial of a reasonable opportunity to object to the quantum of punishment. (Para 5, 7 VI, 14)

Writ petition allowed. (E-4)

Present petition assails the orders dated 23.05.1992, passed by the Sub Divisional Officer, Biswan, Dist. Sitapur and Appellate order dated 31.03.2018.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Siddhartha Varma, J.)

1. The petitioner who was posted as a Lekhpal in Kshetra - Nakela, Tehsil - Biswan, District - Sitapur was suspended on 26.11.1991. A charge sheet issued by the Sub Divisional Magistrate, Biswan District - Sitapur was served upon him on 31.12.1991. Upon receiving the charge sheet on 2.1.1992, the petitioner prayed for time for submitting his reply on 16.1.1992. When in the meantime on 10.2.1992, the enquiry office who was appointed by the Sub Divisional Officer, namely, the Naib Tehsildar Biswan, Sri Virendra Bahadur had lodged a First Information Report against the petitioner, he submitted an application to the Sub Divisional Magistrate Biswan with a request that the enquiry officer, namely, Sri Virendra Bahadur be changed. This application was filed by the petitioner on 17.2.1992. However, on 18.2.1992 Sri Virendra Bahadur, who was sought to be changed, in pursuance of the earlier application filed by the petitioner for the extension of time, extended the time to file the reply to the charge sheet up to 25.2.1992. However, this letter never reached the petitioner and, therefore, while the petitioner was still waiting for the extension of time to submit his reply and also for the change of the enquiry officer, the enquiry officer completed the enquiry and on 24.3.1992 submitted his report. Based on the enquiry report, the punishing authority, that is, the Sub Divisional Magistrate, Biswan, in his turn passed an order of dismissal on 23.5.1992. Thereafter, the petitioner approached the High Court by means of a writ petition being Service Bench No. 239 of 1992 which was disposed of by an order dated 14.12.2017 with a direction that the Appellate Authority was to decide the appeal within a period of one month from the passing of the order of the High Court. When the Appellate Court on 31.3.2018 dismissed the appeal, the instant writ petition was filed.

2. Learned counsel for the petitioner has assailed the orders dated 23.5.1992 passed by the Sub Divisional Officer Biswan and the Appellate order dated 31.3.2018 essentially on the following grounds:-

I. If the charges which were levelled against the petitioner were perused it was evident that they were absolutely vague. The charge no. 1 had implicated the petitioner with a charge that he had violated a certain code of conduct. It had stated that as per the Rules, the petitioner could not have participated in the activities of any political party but no rule has been cited. By the charge no. 2 it was stated that on 25.11.1991, in a rally held in Ramleela Maindan, Kasba, Biswan, District Sitapur wherein some political leaders, namely, Rewati Raman Singh, Ram Poojan Patel, Ramnaresh Kushwaha, Kaushal Kishore and Shiv Sewak Dixit etc. were present, the petitioner was also sitting on the dais. It has been further stated that the petitioner had read a certain demand letter from the dais. The charges no. 1 and 2, therefore, stated that the petitioner was involved in certain political activities. The charge no. 3 was to the effect that the petitioner had not done any work connected with his area and that there was no contribution of the petitioner towards the family welfare schemes. By charge no. 4 it was alleged that some allotment of land was also not done by the petitioner. The charge no. 5 was a reiteration of charge no. 2.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that none of the charges indicated as to which particular Rule or Law, the petitioner had violated by participating in the political activity. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that even though the petitioner had never participated in any political activity yet it was not clear from the charges that which Rule was violated by the petitioner. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submitted that a perusal of the charges no. 3 and 4 also did not indicate as to where was the shortcoming in his performance so far as the various schemes were concerned. He submits that the charges did not make it clear as to which land was not allotted by the petitioner. Therefore, learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that the enquiry was vitiated on account of the fact that the charges were not clear.

II. When the petitioner had asked for time and the enquiry officer had not responded and in fact the enquiry officer on 10.2.1992 had lodged a first information report against the petitioner then upon the prayer of the petitioner, the enquiry officer should have got himself changed. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that a person who was himself implicating the petitioner in a criminal case should not have been trusted with the enquiry which was being conducted by him. When the first information report was lodged by the enquiry officer himself against the petitioner and when the petitioner had objected to the same then the petitioner could not have trusted his life with the enquiry officer who had himself lodged the first information report against the petitioner.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner, therefore, submits that the Enquiry Officer should always be like an independent adjudicator and one who was always obliged to act fairly and impartially. He has to act in good faith without any bias. He submits that when the enquiry officer was virtually the representative of the punishing authority and he was all set to punish the petitioner then the Enquiry Report should have been rejected. Learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon 2018 (7) SCC 670 (Union of India and others v. Ram Lakhan Sharma) and since the petitioner's counsel relied upon on the paragraph 24, 28, 31, 33 and 34 they are being reproduced here as under:-

"24.The disciplinary proceedings are quasi-judicial proceedings and Enquiry Officer is in the position of an independent adjudicator and is obliged to act fairly, impartially. The authority exercising quasi-judicial power has to act in good faith without bias, in a fair and impartial manner.

28. When the statutory rule does not contemplate appointment of Presenting Officer whether non-appointment of Presenting Officer ipso facto vitiates the inquiry? We have noticed the statutory provision of Rule 27 which does not indicate that there is any statutory requirement of appointment of Presenting Officer in the disciplinary inquiry. It is thus clear that statutory provision does not mandate appointment of Presenting Officer. When the statutory provision does not require appointment of Presenting Officer whether there can be any circumstances where principles of natural justice can be held to be violated is the broad question which needs to be answered in this case. We have noticed above that the High Court found breach of principles of natural justice in Enquiry Officer acting as the prosecutor against the respondents. The Enquiry Officer who has to be independent and not representative of the disciplinary authority if starts acting in any other capacity and proceed to act in a manner as if he is interested in eliciting evidence to punish an employee, the principle of bias comes into place.

31.A Division Bench of the Madhya Pradesh High Court speaking through Justice R.V. Raveendran, CJ (as he then was) had occasion to consider the question of vitiation of the inquiry when the Inquiry Officer starts himself acting as prosecutor in Union of India and ors. vs. Mohd. Naseem Siddiqui, ILR (2004) MP 821. In the above case the Court considered Rule 9(9) (c) of the Railway Servants (Discipline & Appeal) Rules, 1968. The Division Bench while elaborating fundamental principles of natural justice enumerated the seven well recognised facets in paragraph 7 of the judgment which is to the following effect:

"7. One of the fundamental principles of natural justice is that no man shall be a judge in his own cause. This principle consists of seven well recognised facets:

(i) The adjudicator shall be impartial and free from bias,

(ii) The adjudicator shall not be the prosecutor,

(iii) The complainant shall not be an adjudicator,

(iv) A witness cannot be the Adjudicator,

(v) The Adjudicator must not import his personal knowledge of the facts of the case while inquiring into charges,

(vi) The Adjudicator shall not decide on the dictates of his Superiors or others,

(vii) The Adjudicator shall decide the issue with reference to material on record and not reference to extraneous material or on extraneous considerations.

If any one of these fundamental rules is breached, the inquiry will be vitiated."

33. The Division Bench after elaborately considering the issue summarised the principles in paragraph 16 which is to the following effect:

"16. We may summarise the principles thus:

(i) The Enquiry Officer, who is in the position of a Judge shall not act as a Presenting Officer, who is in the position of a prosecutor.

(ii) It is not necessary for the Disciplinary Authority to appoint a Presenting Officer in each and every inquiry. Non- appointment of a Presenting Officer, by itself will not vitiate the inquiry.

(iii) The Enquiry Officer, with a view to arrive at the truth or to obtain clarifications, can put questions to the prosecution witnesses as also the defence witnesses. In the absence of a Presenting Officer, if the Inquiry Officer puts any questions to the prosecution witnesses to elicit the facts, he should thereafter permit the delinquent employee to cross-examine such witnesses on those clarifications.

(iv) If the Inquiry Officer conducts a regular examination-in-chief by leading the prosecution witnesses through the prosecution case, or puts leading questions to the departmental witnesses pregnant with answers, or cross-examines the defence witnesses or puts suggestive questions to establish the prosecution case employee, the Enquiry Officer acts as prosecutor thereby vitiating the inquiry.

(v) As absence of a Presenting Officer by itself will not vitiate the inquiry and it is recognised that the Inquiry Officer can put questions to any or all witnesses to elicit the truth, the question whether an Inquiry Officer acted as a Presenting Officer, will have to be decided with reference to the manner in which the evidence is let in and recorded in the inquiry.

Whether an Enquiry Officer has merely acted only as an Enquiry Officer or has also acted as a Presenting Officer depends on the facts of each case. To avoid any allegations of bias and running the risk of inquiry being declared as illegal and vitiated, the present trend appears to be to invariably appoint Presenting Officers, except in simple cases. Be that as it may."

34. We fully endorse the principles as enumerated above, however, the principles have to be carefully applied in facts situation of a particular case. There is no requirement of appointment of Presenting Officer in each and every case, whether statutory rules enable the authorities to make an appointment or are silent. When the statutory rules are silent with regard to the applicability of any facet of principles of natural justice the applicability of principles of natural justice which are not specifically excluded in the statutory scheme are not prohibited. When there is no express exclusion of particular principle of natural justice, the said principle shall be applicable in a given case to advance the cause of justice. In this context reference is made of a case of this Court in Punjab National Bank and others vs. Kunj Behari Misra, 1998 (7) SCC 84. In the above case, this Court had occasion to consider the provisions of Punjab National Bank Officer Employees' (Discipline and Appeal) Regulations, 1977. Regulation 7 provides for action on the enquiry report. Regulation 7 as extracted in paragraph 10 of the judgment is as follows:

10. ....."7. Action on the enquiry report.--(1) The disciplinary authority, if it is not itself the enquiring authority, may, for reasons to be recorded by it in writing, remit the case to the enquiring authority for fresh or further enquiry and report and the enquiring authority shall thereupon proceed to hold the further enquiry according to the provisions of Regulation 6 as far as may be.

(2) The disciplinary authority shall, if it disagrees with the findings of the enquiring authority on any article of charge, record its reasons for such disagreement and record its own findings on such charge, if the evidence on record is sufficient for the purpose.

(3) If the disciplinary authority, having regard to its findings on all or any of the articles of charge, is of the opinion that any of the penalties specified in Regulation 4 should be imposed on the officer employee, it shall, notwithstanding anything contained in Regulation 8, make an order imposing such penalty.

(4) If the disciplinary authority having regard to its findings on all or any of the articles of charge, is of the opinion that no penalty is called for, it may pass an order exonerating the officer employee concerned." "

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner also relied upon 2010 (2) SCC 772 (State of Uttar Pradesh and Others vs. Saroj Kumar Sinha) and submitted that an employee should be treated fairly in any proceeding which may culminate in a major punishment. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that an enquiry officer should not act both as a prosecutor and as a judge. His function was to examine facts and evidence which which were presented by the delinquent and the department. This, he submits, the enquiry officer had to do objectively even if the delinquent official is absent. The enquiry officer had to in the absence of the delinquent officer assess the evidence produced by the department and had to see if the unrebutted evidence was sufficient to prove that the charges were proved. Since the learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon paragraphs 28, 29 and 30 of the judgement they are being reproduced here as under:-

"28. An Inquiry officer acting in a quasi judicial authority is in the position of an independent adjudicator. He is not supposed to be a representative of the department/disciplinary authority/Government. His function is to examine the evidence presented by the department, even in the absence of the delinquent official to see as to whether the unrebutted evidence is sufficient to hold that the charges are proved. In the present case the aforesaid procedure has not been observed. Since no oral evidence has been examined the documents have not been proved, and could not have been taken into consideration to conclude that the charges have been proved against the respondents.

29. Apart from the above by virtue of Article 311(2) of the Constitution of India the departmental inquiry had to be conducted in accordance with rules of natural justice. It is a basic requirement of rules of natural justice that an employee be given a reasonable opportunity of being heard in any proceeding which may culminate in punishment being imposed on the employee.

30. When a departmental enquiry is conducted against the Government servant it cannot be treated as a casual exercise. The enquiry proceedings also cannot be conducted with a closed mind. The enquiry officer has to be wholly unbiased. The rules of natural justice are required to be observed to ensure not only that justice is done but is manifestly seen to be done. The object of rules of natural justice is to ensure that a government servant is treated fairly in proceedings which may culminate in imposition of punishment including dismissal/removal from service."

6. In the instant case, learned counsel submitted that when the petitioner could not be present and when the enquiry officer himself appeared to be on inimical terms, he having have lodged a first information report against the petitioner, the enquiry should not have been allowed to continue.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submitted that in the enquiry neither any place, date or time was fixed for the appearance of the petitioner or for the production of any evidence. Witnesses could not be produced by either sides and, therefore, learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that the enquiry was absolutely vitiated. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that as per Rule 55 of the C.C.A Rules which provide for a full fledged enquiry no enquiry took place. He relied upon a decision reported in AIR 1968 SC 158 (State of U.P. and another vs. C.S. Sharma). Since he specifically relied upon paragraphs 6 and 10 of the judgement they are being reproduced here as under:-

"6. The first question is whether this inquiry was made under sub-rule (1) or (3) of r. 55 of the Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules. It is an admitted fact that Sharma was a temporary employee and therefore his case would fall to be governed by sub-rule (3) of r. 55 if it could be said that the enquiry which was being made was for a specific fault or on account of his unsuitability for service. Sub-rule 1) of r. 55 is a general rule for enquiries where the conduct of a person is inquired into for misconduct but sub-rule (3) says that subrule shall not apply where it is proposed to terminate the employement of a probationer, or to dismiss, remove or reduce in rank a temporary government servant for any specific fault or on account of his unsuitability for the service. Sub-rule (3) says that in such cases, the probationer or temporary government servant concerned shall be apprised of the grounds of such proposal, given an opportunity to show cause against the action to be taken against him, and his explanation in this behalf, if any. shall be duly considered before orders are passed by the competent authority. If the third sub-rule applied, it is obvious that the kind of enquiry made complied with its requirements. The first sub-rule, however,- provides for a full-blooded enquiry which is the counter-part of a regular trial : witnesses have to be examined in support of the allegations, opportunity has to be given to the delinquent, officer to cross-examine them and to lead evidence in his defence. In our judgment the present case was governed by the first sub-rule and not the third sub-rule. The third sub-rule deals with the unsuitability of an officer for the service or with a charge for any specific fault. This fault means a fault in the execution of his duties and not a misconduct such as taking bribe etc. which are charges of a more serious nature, affecting the character of the individual concerned. The collocation of the words "any specific fault" or "on account of unsuitability for service" give the clue of the distinction between the third sub-rule and the first sub- rule. An officer who is, for example, habitually lazy or makes mistakes frequently or is not polite or decorous may be considered unsuitable for the service. Another officer who makes a grievous default in the execution of his work may be charged for the specific individual fault, that is a dereliction or defect in the execution of that duty. Where there is an allegation that an officer is guilty of a misconduct such as accepting bribe or showing favours, the matter is not one of specific fault in the execution of his work but something more. That matter will fall to be governed by the first sub-rule because you cannot charge a man with criminal conduct without affording him adequate opportunity to clear his character. Mr. Aggarwal fairly pointed out that the Government had appointed the enquiring officer to take action under r. 55(1) and it is thus quite clear that Government viewed the matter also in this light.

10. We may not omit to state that there was an allegation against the Commissioner that he was biased against Sharma. It does appear that the Commissioner, in one of his letters, stated that he had heard witnesses and satisfied himself that Sharma was definitely corrupt. This statement of the Commissioner showed that :he approached the case with a feeling that Sharma was guilty although the State Government cannot be said to share this bias of the Commissioner. We would have said something more about this, if the occasion had demanded this, but as we are upholding the order of the High Court on the ground that no reasonable 8 54 opportunity was afforded to Sharma to lead his evidence, it is not necessary to say whether an officer in the position of the Commissioner, who on the basis of secret enquiries behind the 'back of ,delinquent officer has reached the conclusion that there are good grounds for holding that the officer is corrupt, should himself ,conduct the enquiry. That matter may be left for consideration in another case."

III. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submitted that domestic enquiries ought to be conducted honestly, bonafidely and with a view to determine whether charges are proved. Care has to be taken to see that the enquiry does not become an empty formality. Learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon 2016 (12) SCC 204 (Chamoli District Cooperative Bank Limited and another v. Raghunath Singh Rana and others).

IV. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submitted that the disciplinary authority, namely, the Sub Divisional Magistrate Biswan when was stated to be a witness of the facts which formed the basis of the charges then he would be considered to be a judge in his own cause. In this regard, learned counsel relied upon 1958 AIR 86 (The State Of Uttar Pradesh vs Mohammad Nooh).

V. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that when the charge itself stated that the meeting at the Ramlila Maidan was held on 25.11.1991 then when the enquiry report which dealt with an incident on 1.3.1992, it could safely be said that the enquiry report was based on conjectures and surmises and learned counsel for the petitioner to substantiate his argument relied upon 2009 (2) SCC 570 (Room Singh Negi vs. Punjab National Bank). The paragraph 23 of the judgement upon which learned counsel heavily relied upon is being reproduced here as under:-

"Furthermore, the order of the disciplinary authority as also the appellate authority are not supported by any reason. As the orders passed by them have severe civil consequences, appropriate reasons should have been assigned. If the enquiry officer had relied upon the confession made by the appellant, there was no reason as to why the order of discharge passed by the Criminal Court on the basis of self-same evidence should not have been taken into consideration. The materials brought on record pointing out the guilt are required to be proved. A decision must be arrived at on some evidence, which is legally admissible. The provisions of the Evidence Act may not be applicable in a departmental proceeding but the principles of natural justice are. As the report of the Enquiry Officer was based on merely ipse dixit as also surmises and conjectures, the same could not have been sustained. The inferences drawn by the Enquiry Officer apparently were not supported by any evidence. Suspicion, as is well known, however high may be, can under no circumstances be held to be a substitute for legal proof.

VI. The counsel for the petitioner submitted that there was also a technical flaw in the enquiry inasmuch as the petitioner was not served with the enquiry report and was also not required to show cause with regard to the punishment. He submitted that denial of the enquiry report to the petitioner amounted to the denial of a reasonable opportunity to object to the quantum of punishment. In this regard, the learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon 1991 (1) SCC 588 (Union of India and Ors. vs. Mohd. Ramzan Khan) and 1994 LIC 762 (Managing Director Ecil Hyderabad ... vs B. Karunakar Etc. Etc).

VII. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that the Appellate Authority also did not act in accordance with law and only dittoed the findings as were arrived at by the punishing authority.

VIII. Learned counsel for the petitioner, therefore, submitted that the enquiry itself was a slip shod one and no findings of it could be relied upon and, therefore, the orders 23.5.1992 and 31.3.2018 be quashed and the writ petition be allowed.

8. The petitioner for having been kept out of service illegally prayed that he be compensated by giving him full back wages. In this regard, the learned counsel relied upon 2013 (10) SCC 324 (Deepali Gundu Surwase v. Kranti Junior Adhyapak Mahavidyalaya (D.ED.) and Others).

9. Learned Standing Counsel, however, in reply submitted that the charges were evident from the charge sheet itself. There was nothing vague about it. He further submitted that when the petitioner was asked to submit his reply then he should have submitted the same and the lodging of the first information report did not mean that the enquiry officer would be biased against the petitioner. He further submitted that the enquiry could not be said to be vitiated on account of the fact that the petitioner was also found to be participating in a political meeting on 1.3.1992. He submitted that it mattered little that though the petitioner was charged for allegedly attending the meeting held on 25.11.1991 but the fact that he had attended meeting on 1.3.1992 was taken into account. He submits that the enquiry officer had, after a broad assessment of the evidence present, concluded that the petitioner was inclined towards politics and had the protection of various politically active leaders and, therefore, no fault could be found with the enquiry report. The order of the punishing authority and the Appellate authority were, therefore, he submitted absolutely correct.

10. Having heard the learned counsel for the parties, this Court is of the view that the order dated 23.5.1992 passed by the Sub Divisional Magistrate, Biswan, dismissing the petitioner from service and the Appellate Court's order dated 31.3.2018 by which the punishment was confirmed could not be sustained in the eyes of law.

11. Firstly, the Court finds that the charge sheet was extremely vague. No Rule had been mentioned which had been relied upon to punish the petitioner. The only allegation in the charge sheet appears to be that since the petitioner was a politically active person he was to be punished.

12. Secondly, when the charges did not show as to which land was not allotted by the petitioner and as to which welfare programme was not followed properly by the petitioner there could not have been any definite reply. Still further when the petitioner was throughout asking for a change of the enquiry officer specially when he had himself lodged a first information report against the petitioner then the enquiry officer should not have been trusted with the life of the petitioner.

13. Thirdly, if the petitioner did not appear then it was the duty of the enquiry officer to have come to a definite conclusion as to whether the petitioner was guilty and was liable to be punished. The enquiry officer should have found out as to whether the unrebutted evidence was also conclusively proved or not. He should have seen whether the charges on the basis of unrebutted charges were proved sufficiently or not, to punish the petitioner.

14. Fourth, I find that the enquiry report and the show cause regarding punishment were also not served upon the petitioner.

15. In the end, since the Court finds that the petitioner was illegally kept out of service on account of wrong orders having been passed, the petitioner be given the benefit of continuity of service and he be also given his full back wages.

16. The orders dated 23.5.1992 passed by the S.D.M. District Sitapur and 31.3.2018 passed by the District Magistrate, Sitapur, are quashed..

17. The writ petition is allowed.

3. Union of India and Anr. Vs. National Federation of the Blind and Ors., 2013 (10) SCC 772 (Para 9)

Present petition assails the order dated 23.06.2018, passed by District Magistrate, Pratapgarh.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajesh Singh Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the parties.

2. By means of this petition the petitioners have assailed the order dated 23.6.2018 passed by the District Magistrate, Pratapgarh rejecting the representation of the petitioner which was preferred seeking benefit of reservation admissible for the dependants of freedom-fighters.

3. Since there is no dispute that the petitioners are dependants of freedom-fighters, therefore, the relevant facts to that effect are not being dealt with.

4. The precise dispute is that the reservation provided for the dependants of freedom-fighters is 2% of the vacancies in view of section 3 (1) of The U.P. Public Services (Reservation For Physically Handicapped, Dependants of Freedom Fighters and Ex-Servicemen) Act, 1993 (hereinafter referred to as Act, 1993 in short).

5. As per impugned order such reservation would be admissible vertically as the vertical reservation shall be given to such candidates from horizontal reservation, therefore, out of total 182 posts of Lekhpal the unreserved posts are 92 and if 2% reservation is applied on 92 posts it will come out as 1.84 and in view of the Government Order dated 28.8.2015 which provides that the number, if it does not come in clear number then no rounding of shall be provided in that case, therefore, only one post shall be reserved for the dependants of freedom-fighters and on that post the appointment has already been provided.

6. Learned counsel for the petitioner has referred Rule 3 of the Act, 1993 is being reproduced herein below:

"3. Reservation of vacancies in favour of physically handicapped etc. - [(1) There shall be reserved at the stage of direct recruitment],-

[(i) in public services and posts two percent of vacancies for dependents of freedom fighters;

(i-a) in public services and posts other than Group 'A' posts or Group 'B' posts, on and from May 21, 1999 two per cent of vacancies, and on and from the date on which the Uttar Pradesh Public Services (Reservation for Physically Handicapped, Dependents of Freedom Fighters and Ex-servicemen) (Amendment) Act, 1999 is published in the Gazette, five per cent of vacancies for Ex-servicemen.]

[((ii) In such public services and posts as the State Government may, by notification, identify not less than four per cent, of the total number of vacancies in the cadre strength in each group of posts meant to be filled with persons with benchmark disabilities of which, one per cent each shall be reserved for persons with benchmark disabilities under clauses (a), (b) and (c) and one per cent for persons with benchmark disabilities under clauses (d) and (e), namely-

(a) blindness and low vision;

(b) deaf and hard of hearing;

(c) locomotor disability including cerebral palsy, leprosy cured, dwarfism, acid attack victims and muscular dystrophy;

(d) autism, intellectual disability, specific learning disability and mental illness;

(e) multiple disabilities from amongst persons under clauses (a) to (d) including deaf blindness in the posts identified for each disabilities.]

(2)[* ]

(3) The persons selected against the vacancies reserved under subsection (1) shall be placed in the appropriate categories to which they belong. For example, if a selected person belongs to Scheduled Castes category he will be placed in that quota by making necessary adjustments; if he belongs to Scheduled Tribes category, he will be placed in that quota by making necessary adjustments; if he belongs to[Other Backward Classes of Citizens], category, he will be placed in that quota by making necessary adjustments. Similarly if he belongs to open competition category, he will be placed in that category by making necessary adjustments.

4. [* ]

[(5) Where due to non-availability of suitable candidates any of the vacancies reserved under sub-section (1) remains unfilled it shall be carried forward for further two selection years, whereafter it may be treated to be lapsed.]

7. As per learned counsel for the petitioner sub-rule 3 of the Rule 3 provides the modality as to how the persons who have been provided reservation under Rule 3 shall be adjusted. It categorically provides that if a selected person belonging to particular category he / she shall be placed in that quota by making necessary adjustments. Perhaps, this modality has been given to adjust the reserved category candidates within a ceiling of 50% of reservation.

8. It has been informed by the learned counsel for the petitioner that the petitioners no. 1 and 2 are in the waiting list at serial no. 1 and 2 of the category of dependant of freedom-fighters.

9. Learned counsel for the petitioner has drawn attention of this Court towards the decision of this Court in re: Pawan Kumar vs. State of U.P. & another reported in (2018) 3 UPLBEC 2298 whereby the identical issue relating to the disabled persons have been considered and the legal analogy of this judgment may be applied in the present case. By means of aforesaid judgment not only the Government Order dated 28.8.2015 has been considered but it has also been considered as to what reservation should be provided to these candidates of special category as per special category e.g. dependants of freedom-fighters and physically handicapped persons. It has also been considered as to whether they should be provided horizontal reservation from vertical or vertical reservation from horizontal. Para 11, 12 and 13 of the aforesaid judgment are being reproduced herein below:

11. The directions issued vide Government Order dated 28.8.2015 cannot be applied in the matter of horizontal reservation, inasmuch as, a careful reading thereof indicates that the directions have been issued not to apply the "rounding off principle" as a caution so that the total percentage of reservation may not exceed more than 50%.

12. In the matter of horizontal reservation, as per the procedure, it is settled position that the horizontal reservation always cut across the vertical reservation i.e. the candidate who seek benefit of any of the category of horizontal reservation has to be considered by adjusting him against the appropriate category of General, OBC, SC & ST i.e. the category to which he belongs. The adjustment has to be made as per the principles laid down by the Apex Court in the case of Indra Sawhney v. Union of India reported in 1992 Supp (3) SCC 217, AIR 1993 SC 477*. The process for adjustment of horizontal category candidate of "persons with disabilities" has been further clarified in* Union of India & Anr. v. National Federation of the Blind & Ors. reported in 2013 (10) SCC 772*, following the law laid down in Indra Sawhney (supra), as under:-*

"42. A perusal of Indra Sawhney (supra) would reveal that the ceiling of 50% reservation applies only to reservation in favour of other Backward classes under Article 16(4) of the Constitution of India whereas the reservation in favour of persons with disabilities is horizontal, which is under Article 16(1) of the Constitution. In fact, this Court in the said pronouncement has used the example of 3% reservation in favour of persons with disabilities while dealing with the rule of 50% ceiling. Para 95 of the judgment clearly brings out that after selection and appointment of candidates under reservation for persons with disabilities they will be placed in the respective rosters of reserved category or open category respectively on the basis of the category to which they belong and, thus, the reservation for persons with disabilities per se has nothing to do with the ceiling of 50%. Para 812 is reproduced as follows:-

"812. .....all reservations are not of the same nature. There are two types of reservations, which may, for the sake of convenience, be referred to as 'vertical reservations' and 'horizontal reservations'. The reservations in favour of Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes and other backward classes [under Article 16(4)] may be called vertical reservations whereas reservations in favour of physically handicapped [under Clause (1) of Article 16] can be referred to as horizontal reservations. Horizontal reservations cut across the vertical reservations - what is called inter-locking reservations. To be more precise, suppose 3% of the vacancies are reserved in favour of physically handicapped persons; this would be a reservation relatable to Clause (1) of Article 16. The persons selected against this quota will be placed in the appropriate category; if he belongs to S.C.

category he will be placed in that quota by making necessary adjustments; similarly, if he belongs to open competition (O.C.) category, he will be placed in that category by making necessary adjustments. Even after providing for these horizontal reservations, the percentage of reservations in favour of backward class of citizens remains - and should remain - the same....."

13. Thus, as per the approved method of computation of reservation at the time of preparation of the merit list of General and socially reserved Category, the last candidate selected in the appropriate category has to be removed so as to adjust the candidate belonging to the special/horizontal category of the said socially reserved or unreserved category. For example, if the candidate seeking benefit of special category of physically disabled, belongs to the General Category, he will be placed in the merit list of the said category by making necessary adjustment. The result is that the last candidate from the merit list of General category will be replaced by the candidate belonging to the special (horizontal category). The same process has to be adopted with reference to the candidates belonging to socially reserved category of OBC, SC & ST. Thus, if adjustment is made in such a manner, the total percentage of reservation, in any case, would not exceed 50%." [Emphasis supplied]

10. This Court in re: Pawan Kumar (supra) has considered the dictum of Hon'ble Apex Court in re: Indra Sawhney (supra) and National Federation of Blinds and others (supra) and considering the ratio of aforesaid judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court it has held that the candidates belonging to the special category of the said socially reserved or unreserved category shall be given the horizontal reservation and they shall be adjusted from their specific category so that said reservation would not exceed 50% ceiling.

11. Sri Vishal Verma has tried to justify the impugned order dated 23.6.2018 but in view of the decision of this Court in re: Pawan Kumar (supra) wherein the dictum of Hon'ble Apex Court in re: Indra Sawhney (supra) and National Federation of Blinds and others (supra) he could not properly justify the said order.

12. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the material available on record and considering the dictum of this Court in in re: Pawan Kumar (supra) wherein the dictum of Hon'ble Apex Court in re: Indra Sawhney (supra) and National Federation of Blinds and others (supra) have been relied upon, I am of the considered opinion that the order dated 23.6.2018 passed by opposite party no. 3, Annexure no. 3 to the writ petition is not sustainable in the eyes of law, therefore, the said order is hereby quashed.

13. In view of dictum of Hon'ble Apex Court in re: in re: Pawan Kumar (supra) as well as the dictum of Hon'ble Apex Court in re: Indra Sawhney (supra) and National Federation of Blinds and others (supra) the 2% reservation for the total 182 vacancies relating to the dependants of freedom-fighters would come out as 3.64 which shall not be rounded of and the same shall be read as 3 in view of the Government Order dated 28.8.2015. Since 1 person in such category has already been appointed, therefore, the opposite parties should provide two vacancies in this quota of dependants of freedom fighters for which the petitioners who are in the waiting list at serial no. 1 and 2 may be appointed.

14. A writ in the nature of mandamus is issued commanding the opposite parties to consider the candidature of the petitioner and appointing him on the post of Lekhpal under the 2% reservation for the category of dependant of freedom-fighters in view of the decision of this Court in re: Pawan Kumar (supra).

15. The compliance of the aforesaid order shall be made within two months from the date of production of the certified copy of the order of this Court.

16. Writ petition is allowed.

17. No order as to costs.

A. Suspension - Rule 17(1) (a) - The Uttar Pradesh Police Officers of the Subordinate Ranks (Punishment and Appeal) Rules, 1991 - the exercise of power of suspension by any other authority not below the rank of Superintendent of Police who has been authorized by the appointing authority in this behalf, and in view thereof the exercise of the power by the authority who has been granted authorization by the appointing authority would also be a valid exercise of power

The power of authorization contemplated under Rule 17(1)(a) having duly been exercised by the appointing authority i.e., the Deputy Inspector General of Police and the necessary authorization having been issued to the Superintendent of Police for exercising the aforesaid power, the order of suspension which has been passed by the Superintendent of Police, Chitrakoot cannot be said to suffer from want of authority. (para 24)

B. Delegation of a discretionary administrative power - Scope - delegatus non potest delegare - delegation of an administrative power is permissible when the relevant law permits the same and statutes frequently make a provision enabling the authority on which powers are conferred in the first instance to delegate the same to subordinate officers

The lawful exercise of power is that it should be exercised by the authority upon whom it is conferred and by no one else. The exception to this principle of the inalienable discretion is the exercise of a statutory power would be in a case where the authority on whom the power is originally conferred by a statute is expressly authorized in terms thereof to delegate the said power by grant of authorization to some other authority. This principle applies to delegation of all forms of power, including administrative powers, conferred in terms of a statutory provision.

3. Marathwada University V. Seshrao Balwant Rao Chavan (1989) 3 SCC 132

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Preet Pal Singh Rathore, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Mata Prasad, learned Standing Counsel appearing for the State-respondents.

2. The present petition has been filed seeking to raise a challenge to the order dated 24.11.2019 passed by the fourth respondent in terms of which the petitioner has been placed under suspension pending initiation of departmental proceedings.

3. The principal contention sought to be raised is that the appointing authority of the petitioner, who is presently working on the post of Inspector, is the Deputy Inspector General of Police and in view thereof the authority competent to pass the order of suspension would be the appointing authority i.e. the Deputy Inspector General of Police and not the Superintendent of Police who has passed the order impugned. Reliance is sought to be placed upon Rule 17(1)(a) of The Uttar Pradesh Police Officers of the Subordinate Ranks (Punishment and Appeal) Rules, 1991 (in short 'the Rules, 1991') in support of the aforesaid contention.

4. Per contra, learned Standing Counsel, on the basis of instructions received, submits that in the instant case the appointing authority i.e. the Deputy Inspector General of Police, Chitrakoot Dham, Range Banda in terms of an order dated 22.11.2019, exercising powers under Rule 17(1)(a) of the Rules, 1991, has authorised the Superintendent of Police, Chitrakoot to exercise the powers of suspension in respect of his sub-ordinate officers including Inspectors and Sub-Inspectors, in cases where departmental proceedings were contemplated against them.

5. It is submitted that the Superintendent of Police, Chitrakoot having been duly authorised by the appointing authority i.e. the Deputy Inspector General of Police by exercising powers under Rule 17(1)(a) the order of suspension cannot be stated to have been passed without authority and the contention raised by the petitioner in this regard is without basis.

6. The question which thus falls for consideration is as to whether the Superintendent of Police could have passed the order of suspension in contemplation of departmental proceedings against an officer of the rank of an Inspector whose appointing authority is the Deputy Inspector General of Police.

7. In order to appreciate the controversy involved the provisions of The Uttar Pradesh Police Officers of the Subordinate Ranks (Punishment and Appeal) Rules, 1991 may be adverted to.

8. The aforementioned Rules, 1991 were made by the Governor in exercise of powers under sub-sections (2) and (3) of Section 46 read with Sections 2 and 7 of the Police Act, 1861 (Act No.V of 1861) and all other powers enabling him in this behalf and in supersession of all existing rules issued in this behalf, for regulating the departmental proceedings, punishment and appeals and Police Officers of the subordinate ranks of the Uttar Pradesh Force.

9. In terms of Section 2 of the Act No.V of 1861, the Rules, 1991 are applicable to all the Police Officers of the subordinate ranks below the rank of Deputy Superintendent of Police. Rule 3(a) defines the appointing authority, as meaning the authority empowered to make appointments to the post which a Police Officer for the time being holds. Under Rule 3(g) the term "Police Officer" is defined to mean a Police Officer of the subordinate rank below the rank of Deputy Superintendent of Police.

10. The power to place under suspension a Police Officer of the subordinate rank against whose conduct an enquiry is contemplated, or is pending, is provided for under Rule 17 of the Rules, 1991. For ease of reference, Rule 17(1)(a) referred to above, is being extracted below:-

"17. Suspension.--(1)(a) A Police Officer against whose conduct an enquiry is contemplated, or is proceeding, may be placed under suspension pending the conclusion of the enquiry in the discretion of the appointing authority or by any other authority not below the rank of Superintendent of Police, authorised by him in this behalf."

11. A plain reading of the aforementioned Rule 17(1)(a) shows that a Police Officer against whose conduct an enquiry is contemplated, or is proceeding, may be placed under suspension pending conclusion of enquiry in the discretion of the appointing authority or by any other authority not below the rank of Superintendent of Police, authorised by him in this behalf.

12. It therefore follows that the power to place a Police Officer of a subordinate rank under suspension in a case where an enquiry is contemplated, or is proceeding against his conduct, is to be exercised by the appointing authority in his discretion. The Rule further makes a provision that the aforementioned power of suspension which is to be exercised by the appointing authority may also be exercised by any other authority not below the rank of Superintendent of Police who is authorised by the appointing authority in this behalf.

13. It is thus clear that Rule 17(1)(a), apart from conferring the power of suspension, in the case of a Police Officer of a subordinate rank against whose conduct an enquiry is contemplated or is pending, upon the appointing authority, also empowers the appointing authority to grant authorisation for exercising the aforesaid power of suspension by any other authority not below the rank of Superintendent of Police.

14. The scope of delegation of a discretionary administrative power entrusted by a statute came up for consideration in the case of Barium Chemicals Ltd. & Anr. Vs. Company Law Board & Ors.1 and it was held that a discretion conferred by a statute on any authority is prima facie intended to be exercised by the authority on which the statute has conferred it and by no other authority, but this intention may be negatived by any contrary indications found in the language, scope or object of the statute. Referring to Crawford on The Construction of Statutes2, the observations made in the judgment are as follows:-

"36. As a general rule, whatever a person has power to do himself, he may do by means of an agent. This broad rule is limited by the operation of the principle that a delegated authority cannot be re-delegate, delegatus non potest delegare. The naming of a delegate to do an act involving a discretion indicates that the delegate was selected because of his peculiar skill and the confidence reposed in him, and there is a presumption that he is required to do the act himself and cannot re-delegate his authority. As a general rule, "if the statute directs that certain acts shall be done in a specified manner or by certain persons, their performance in any other manner than that specified or by any other person than one of those name is impliedly prohibited". See Crawford on statutory Construction, 1940 Edn., Art. 195, p. 335. Normally, a discretion entrusted by Parliament to an administrative organ must be exercised by that organ itself. If a statute entrusts an administrative function involving the exercise of a discretion to a Board consisting of two or more persons it is to be presumed that each member of the Board should exercise his individual judgment on the matter and all the members of the Board should act together and arrive at a joint decision. Prima facie, the Board must act as a whole and cannot delegate its function to one of its members.

x x x x x

38. But the maxim "delegatus non potest delegare" must not be pushed too far. The maxim does not embody a rule of law. It indicates a rule of construction of a statute or other instrument conferring an authority. Prima facie, a discretion conferred by a statute, on any authority is intended to be exercised by that authority, and. by no other. But the intention may be negatived by any contrary indications in the language, scope or object of the statute. The construction that would best achieve the purpose and object of the statute should be adopted."

15. The principle that the maxim delegatus non potest delegare, may be subject to any contrary indications provided in the language of the statute has been stated in De Smith's Judicial Review of Administrative Action3, wherein referring to the article "Delegatus non potest delegare" by John Willis4, it was stated as follows:-

"The maxim delegatus non potest delegare does not enunciate a rule that knows no exception; it is a rule of construction to the effect that "a discretion conferred by statute is prima facie intended to be exercised by the authority on which the statute has conferred it and by no other authority, but this intention may be negatived by any contrary indications found in the language, scope or object of the statute"."

16. The applicability of the principle that a discretionary administrative power should be exercised by the authority upon whom it is conferred in the present day administrative set up which has seen an enormous rise in the nature of administrative activities was considered in the case of Sahni Silk Mills (P.) Ltd. & Anr. Vs. Employees' State Insurance Corporation5 and it was held that delegation is authorised either expressly or impliedly in many statutes granting liberty to a public authority to employ agents to exercise its powers. It has been stated in the judgment as follows:-

"5. The courts are normally rigorous in requiring the power to be exercised by the persons or the bodies authorised by the statutes. It is essential that the delegated power should be exercised by the authority upon whom it is conferred and by no one else. At the same time, in the present administrative set-up extreme judicial aversion to delegation cannot be carried to an extreme. A public authority is at liberty to employ agents to exercise its powers. That is why in many statutes, delegation is authorised either expressly or impliedly. Due to the enormous rise in the nature of the activities to be handled by statutory authorities, the maxim delegatus non potest delegare is not being applied specially when there is question of exercise of administrative discretionary power.

6. By now it is almost settled that the legislature can permit any statutory authority to delegate its power to any other authority, of course, after the policy has been indicated in the statute itself within the framework of which such delegatee is to exercise the power…"

17. The aforementioned proposition that where a statute prescribes a particular body to exercise a power it must be exercised by that body alone and no other unless it is delegated was reiterated in the judgment in the case of Marathwada University Vs. Seshrao Balwant Rao Chavan6 wherein referring to Halsbury's Laws of England, 4th Edn., Vol.1, para 327, it was stated as follows:-

"20. ...It is a settled principle that when the Act prescribes a particular body to exercise a power, it must be exercised only by that body. It cannot be exercised by others unless it is delegated. The law must also provide for such delegation. Halsbury's Laws of England (Vol.I, 4th Edn. para 32) summarises these principles as follows:

"32. Sub-delegation of powers.-- In accordance with the maxim delegatus non potest delegare, a statutory power must be exercised only by the body or officer in whom it has been confided, unless sub-delegation of the power is authorised by express words or necessary implication. There is a strong presumption against construing a grant of legislative, judicial or disciplinary power as impliedly authorising sub-delegation; and the same may be said of any power to the exercise of which the designated body should address its own mind."

18. It is thus an accepted principle of law that a discretionary power must, in general, be exercised only by the authority upon which it has been conferred. The power having been conferred under a statutory provision upon an authority to be exercised upon his individual judgment and discretion the same must be wielded only by the said authority upon whom the power has been conferred and the discretion should be retained unhampered.

19. An element which is essential to the lawful exercise of power is that it should be exercised by the authority upon whom it is conferred and by no one else. The requirement of exercise of the power by the authority upon whom the power is conferred is, in general, insisted rigorously by the courts and any action taken by any agent or delegate would not be permissible.

20. The exception to the aforementioned principle of the inalienable discretion in the exercise of a statutory power would be in a case where the authority on whom the power is originally conferred by a statute is expressly authorised in terms thereof to delegate the said power by grant of authorisation to some other authority. This principle applies to delegation of all forms of powers, including administrative powers, conferred in terms of a statutory provision.

21. Delegation of an administrative power is permissible when the relevant law permits the same and statutes frequently make a provision enabling the authority on which powers are conferred in the first instance to delegate the same to subordinate officers.

22. An order of delegate, when delegation is made as authorised by the statute, is to be treated for all intents and purposes as an order of the authority itself.

23. The Rules, 1991 are of a statutory nature, and as per the provisions under Rule 17(1)(a) thereof the power to place under suspension a Police Officer of a subordinate rank against whose conduct an enquiry is contemplated, or is pending, having been conferred on the appointing authority, in his discretion, the same is normally to be exercised by the said authority itself. However, the Rule expressly permits the exercise of the aforementioned power of suspension by any other authority not below the rank of Superintendent of Police who has been authorised by the appointing authority in this behalf, and in view thereof the exercise of the power by the authority who has been granted authorisation by the appointing authority would also be a valid exercise of power conferred under the Rules, 1991.

24. In the instant case the power of authorisation contemplated under Rule 17(1)(a) having duly been exercised by the appointing authority i.e. the Deputy Inspector General of Police and the necessary authorisation having been issued to the Superintendent of Police for exercising the aforesaid power, the order of suspension which has been passed by the Superintendent of Police, Chitrakoot cannot be said to suffer from want of authority and therefore cannot be assailed on this ground.

25. Counsel for the petitioner, at this stage, confines his prayer to a direction to the respondent authorities that the departmental proceedings which are contemplated pursuant to the order of suspension may be concluded expeditiously. He further undertakes that the petitioner would cooperate with the departmental proceedings.

26. Learned Standing Counsel appearing for the State-respondents, on the basis of his instructions, states that the departmental proceedings in accordance with the procedure under Rule 14(1) have already been initiated and the same would be completed as per the Rules, 1991.

27. Having regard to the facts of the case the writ petition is disposed of with an observation that the respondent authorities would proceed with the matter and endeavour to conclude the departmental proceedings expeditiously, preferably within a period of six months from the date of presentation of a certified copy of this order, provided that the petitioner cooperates with proceedings.

C.S.C.

A. Compassionate Appointment - posthumous child right's does not qualify for a minor and a member of the deceased government servant's family under the Rules of 1974 - not entitle for compassionate appointment on attainment of majority

Sub-rule (3) of Rule 5 of the Rules of 1974 further clarifies that the appointment by way of concession under the Rules shall be granted to that person of the family who shall maintain other members of the family of the deceased Government servant, as were dependent on the deceased Government servant immediately before his death and are unable to maintain themselves. The definition of a son under sub-rule (c) of Rule 2 ex facie does not lend itself to a construction that son would also include a child posthumously born. It is intended to take care of those members of the family who were dependent on the Government servant, when he/she passed away in harness. (para 9)the welfare measure under the Rules of 1974, though construed liberally in case of members of the deceased's family who have not been able to tide over the financial crisis till a minor attains majority and applies under the Rules, in the opinion of this Court, cannot be stretched to a limit where an unborn child is also to be granted a right to apply under the Rules of 1974. The right if granted would be too remote. Also, a compassionate appointment under the Rules of 1974 is in the nature of a concession, and while full effect is to be given to its provisions by extending the concession to those who are eligible under the provisions, its benefits cannot be extended, founded on doctrines of property laws, that essentially govern rights to matters, like inheritance, disposition in the sphere of private law. (Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. The petitioner claims compassionate appointment under the Uttar Pradesh Recruitment of Dependents of Government Servants Dying in Harness Rules, 1974 (hereinafter referred to as the "Rules of 1974"). The petitioner's father died on 26.03.1987 in a road accident while on duty. The petitioner is a posthumous child, who was in his mother's womb at the time when his father passed away. He has come up with a claim seeking compassionate appointment through an application that his mother has made under the Rules of 1974 in the year 2003. This claim of the petitioner has been rejected by the impugned order dated 11.10.2018 passed by the State Government on ground that it has been preferred with a delay of 11 years, 10 months and 03 days, reckoning the delay after giving benefit of relaxation of five years provided under the Rules of 1974.

2. Heard Sri Devesh Mishra, learned counsel for the petitioner, and Sri Sharad Chandra Upadhyay, learned State Law Officer on behalf of all the respondents.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner has submitted that the delay is not an absolutely disabling feature in case of minors and has placed reliance upon a decision of a Division Bench of this Court in State of U.P. and others v. Antariksha Singh, 2019 (7) ADJ 685 (DB). He has referred to Paragraphs- 10, 11 and 12 of the report in State of U.P. and others v. Antariksha Singh (supra) which read as under:

"10. In the instant matters, if no claim is made by the respondent-petitioner for invoking relaxation clause by satisfying requirements of second proviso, then there is no need to forward the same to the State Government to consider the case in light of first proviso to Rule 5 of the Rules of 1974.

11. At this juncture, it would also be appropriate to state that while considering the case of undue hardship several factors are required to be kept in mind including economic status of the family, the term of relaxation desired and the stage on which relaxation is claimed.

12. As already stated, learned single Bench has directed to forward the case of the respondent-petitioner to examine undue hardship without arriving at the conclusion that whether any relaxation is claimed by her or not by pleading the undue hardship."

4. Further reliance has been placed on another Division Bench decision of this Court in Sudhir Kumar Mishra v. State of U.P. and others, 2016 (8) ADJ 639 (DB) (LB). On the principles laid down in this case, the learned counsel for the petitioner has laid particular emphasis, inasmuch as it deals with right of a minor in the context of a belated claim. He has referred to Paragraph nos. 21 and 22 of the report in Sudhir Kumar Mishra (supra), which read thus:

"21. In the instant case, the petitioner submitted that when his father died he was only 4 years old and his mother informed the department that she would make application in prescribed from only when he attained majority. The department negatived the representation in this matter taking stand that the application was not made within prescribed period. However, the petitioner's request for compassionate appointment was made soon after appellant attained majority. Under Rule 5 the time limit within which the dependant of the deceased employee is to be accommodated is fixed as five year. This period can be extended under proviso to Rule 5 where burden of proving the fact that compassionate circumstances continued to exist even till date was on the petitioner himself which he has successfully discharged in this case. There is sufficient evidence of the petitioner having aged and ailing mother, two unmarried sisters, the family having pension as the only source of livelihood, the agricultural land being barren causing nugatory income of about 9000/- per year, which appeared quite insufficient to enable the family to get over the financial crisis which is being faced by the family after the death of his father.

22. On the basis of objective considerations founded on the disclosures made by the petitioner in this case for compassionate appointment and having considered the reasons for the delay, we are of the opinion that undue hardship within the meaning of the first proviso to Rule 5 of the Rules would be caused to the petitioner and his family by the application of the time limit of five years. The expression 'undue hardship' has not been defined in the Rules. Undue hardship would necessarily postulate a consideration of relevant facts and circumstances of the case. In view the income of the family, its financial condition, the extent of dependency and marital status of its members, its liabilities, the terminal benefits received by the family; the age, together with the nugatory income from any other sources in this case, we are of the view that the family continues to suffer financial distress and hardship occasioned by the death of the bread winner. Considering the penurious condition of the family, it appears to be one of the rarest of rare cases where due to exceptional circumstances the family needs the extraordinary remedy to elate the condition of family. It would be appropriate to deal with the case of the petitioner in a just and equitable manner."

5. It is urged that in the case of a minor a liberal approach should be adopted in construing delay and the period of limitation under the proviso to Rule 5 of the Rules of 1974, where relevant circumstances continue to exist on the date the petitioner moves for compassionate appointment. It must be remarked that in Sudhir Kumar Mishra (supra), there were facts to show that the applicant for compassionate appointment had an aged and ailing mother and two unmarried sisters, pension was the only source of livelihood and the agricultural land was non productive. It was concluded that these features showed that the family had not tided over the financial crisis that they had thrown into on account of sudden loss of the bread winner.

6. Sri Sharad Chandra Upadhyay, learned Counsel appearing for the State has opposed the motion to admit this petition to hearing. He submits that a bare perusal of the definition of 'family' in sub-Rule (c) of Rule 2 of the Rules of 1974, talks of dependents of a Government servant under dying-in-harness. It does not expressly or by necessary intendment, refers to an unborn child to be included in the definition of 'family'.

7. This Court has given a thoughtful consideration to the matter. Here, a very different issue arises under the Rules of 1974. Rule 5 of the Rules of 1974, as is material for the present case, is extracted below:

"5. Recruitment of a member of the family of the deceased--(1) In case a Government servant dies in harness after the commencement of these rules, and the spouse of the deceased Government servant is not already employed under the Central Government or a State Government or a Corporation owned or controlled by the Central Government or a State Government, one member of his family, who is not already employed under the Central Government or a State Government or a Corporation owned or controlled by the Central Government or a State Government shall on making an application for the purpose, be given a suitable employment in Government service on a post except the post which is within the purview of the Uttar Pradesh Public Service Commission, in relaxation of the normal recruitment rules if such person--

(i) ... .
(ii) ... .
(iii) ... .
*(2) *** *** ****

(3) Every appointment under sub-rule (1) shall be subject to the condition that the person appointed under sub-rule (1) shall maintain other members of the family of deceased Government servant, who were dependent on the deceased Government servant immediately before his death and are unable to maintain themselves.

*(4) *** *** ***"*

(Emphasis by Court)

8. Likewise, under Rule 2(c) the term 'family' has been defined as follows:

"2. Definitions.--In these rules, unless the context otherwise requires--

(c) "family" shall include the following relations of the deceased Government servant:

(i) wife or husband;

(ii) sons/adopted sons;

(iii) unmarried daughters, unmarried adopted daughters, widowed daughters and widowed daughter-in-law;

(iv) unmarried brothers, unmarried sisters and widowed mother dependant on the deceased Government servant, if the deceased Government servant was unmarried;

(v) aforementioned relations of such missing Government servant who has been declared as "dead" by the Competent Court:

Provided that if a person belonging to any of the abovementioned relations of the deceased Government servant is not available or is found to be physically and mentally unfit and thus ineligible for employment in Government service, then only in such situation the word "family" shall also include the grandsons and the unmarried grand daughters of the deceased Government servant dependent on him."

9. A perusal of the right, which a member of the family of the deceased to compassionate appointment has been given by Rule 5 of the Rules of 1974, makes it clear that it is a member of his family who is entitled to claim compassionate appointment when the deceased, who is in harness and a Government employee, suddenly passes away. Sub-rule (3) of Rule 5 of the Rules of 1974 further clarifies that the appointment by way of concession under the Rules shall be granted to that person of the family who shall maintain other members of the family of the deceased Government servant, as were dependent on the deceased Government servant immediately before his death and are unable to maintain themselves. The 'family' has been defined under sub-rule (c) of Rule 2 of the Rules of 1974 to mean wife or husband, sons including adopted sons, unmarried daughters, unmarried adopted daughters, widowed daughters and widowed daughter-in-law. Now, married daughters and married adopted daughters would also be included within the definition of 'family' in view of the decision of this Court in Vimla Srivastava and others vs. State of U.P. and others, 2016(1)ADJ21. In the said decision, this Court has held the qualification about daughters or adopted daughters being 'unmarried' is discriminatory and violative of Articles 14 and 15 of the Constitution. Now, in the Rule, therefore, daughters and adopted daughters are members of the family, irrespective of their marital status. Also included are unmarried brothers, unmarried sisters and widowed mother dependent on the deceased Government servant, if the deceased Government servant was unmarried. There is no one else who has been held entitled. The definition of a son under sub-rule (c) of Rule 2 ex facie does not lend itself to a construction that son would also include a child posthumously born. It is intended to take care of those members of the family who were dependent on the Government servant, when he/she passed away in harness.

10. An unborn child does have rights under laws relating to property because it is said that an unborn child is en venture sa mere; but, to extend to an unborn child the right to compassionate appointment would be contrary to the plain intendment of the Rules of 1974. Even otherwise, the welfare measure under the Rules of 1974, though construed liberally in case of members of the deceased's family who have not been able to tide over the financial crisis till a minor attains majority and applies under the Rules, in the opinion of this Court, cannot be stretched to a limit where an unborn child is also to be granted a right to apply under the Rules of 1974. The right if granted would be too remote. Also, a compassionate appointment under the Rules of 1974 is in the nature of a concession, and while full effect is to be given to its provisions by extending the concession to those who are eligible under the provisions, its benefits cannot be extended, founded on doctrines of property laws, that essentially govern rights to matters, like inheritance, disposition in the sphere of private law. The principles would have little application in laws governing employment under the State, that are essentially public law matters, always to be guarded against a violation of the equality clause enshrined under Articles 14 and 16 of the Constitutiion.

11. In the opinion of this Court, an extension of the welfare approach under the Rules of 1974 to that limit would do more harm than good to the rights of citizen, who otherwise have a right to consideration for appointment to posts under the State in accordance with the recruitment rules, postulating equality of opportunity but no concession.

12. This question arose before a Division Bench of the Kerala High Court in Priyesh Vasudevan vs. Shameena P. & ors., 2005 SCC OnLine Ker 718 : 2006 Lab IC 303, where a contrary view was taken regarding the rights of a posthumous child to compassionate appointment under the Dying in Harness Scheme in the State of Kerala, that was extended to teachers of aided Schools under Rule 51-B of Chapter XIV A of the Kerala Education Rules. In the context of the rights of a posthumous child to compassionate appointment, it was held in Priyesh Vasudevan (supra):

"31. The Compassionate Employment Scheme recognizes the rights of a minor to get employment assistance. A minor is treated as a dependent under the scheme. A child born one day before the death of the Government servant would also be treated as a dependent. The scheme would apply in favour of the family of the deceased Govern ment Servant if the annual income of the family does not exceed Rs. 1,50,000/-. De pendency is determined mainly with refer ence to the income of the family. No enquiry is contemplated whether the minor was being looked after by deceased Government servant. The minor need not prove that he was depending on his deceased father for his livelihood. Instances of father neglecting to maintain his minor children are many. If we were to hold that such a child is not dependent, it would be disastrous and it would be against the scheme itself. If so, how could we hold that a child in the womb is not a dependent? The rights of the child in the womb, in the matter of succession, are well protected by laws of the land. If so, how could it justifiably be held that a subsequent born child should suffer because of the calamity of his father's death having taken place before he was born? Is there any difference, in the matter of dependency, between a child born one day before and a child born one day after the death of his father or mother? The only answer would be in the negative. It will not be altogether out of context to note that in the matter of dependency a Division Bench of this Court in St. Ignatius High School v. State of Kerala, I.L.R. (2005) 3 Kerala 666, has held that a married daughter is also entitled to be considered for being appointed under the dying-in-harness scheme.

32. With respect, we do not agree with the view taken in AIR 1939 Lahore 290 and we accept the view taken by the Calcutta High Court relied on the decisions of the Madras, Bombay and Allahabad High Courts. It is to be noted that a provision similar to the "Explanation' in Section 6 of the Limitation Act, 1963 was not available in the Indian Limitation Act, 1908.

33. Therefore, we are of the view that a child in the womb would be a "dependent' under the Scheme and that a posthumous child is entitled to the benefit of the Compassionate Employment Scheme on his attaining majority, provided, the application is filed within the period provided in clause 19 of the scheme."

13. In Appeal by Special Leave from the aforesaid decision of the Kerala High Court, their Lordships of the Supreme Court reversed the decision in Civil Appeal No.5203 of 2010, State of Kerala & ors. vs. Priyesh Vasudevan, decided on 09.07.2010, holding thus:

"3. The subject matter of the writ petition before the learned Single Judge was whether an unborn child had a right to be considered for appointment under the Compassionate Employment Scheme which was then applicable to teachers of aided schools under Rule 51B of Chapter XIVA of the Kerala Education Rules.

4. The Division Bench of the High Court has gone on a tangent with regard to the issue involved in the writ appeal and has, on the other hand, proceeded to lay emphasis on the question of a right of an unborn child to succeed to rights of property forgetting that the case involved the question of appointment on compassionate ground which is meant for helping a immediate financial crisis. The High Court has decided the matter on the basis of the provisions of the Limitation Act, the Hindu Succession Act and also the Indian Succession Act, 1925, relating to minors and unborn children.

5. Having regard to the accepted principles relating to appointment on compassionate grounds, we are unable to sustain the approach of the Division Bench of the Kerala High Court and the judgment of the Division Bench is, therefore, set aside."(Emphasis by Court)

14. This Court is, thus, of opinion that a posthumous child does not qualify for a minor and a member of the deceased Government servant's family under the Rules of 1974, entitling him to be considered for compassionate appointment, once he attains majority.

15. In the result, this petition fails and is dismissed. There shall be no order as to costs.

DATED: ALLAHABAD 07.02.2020

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE YASHWANT VARMA, J.

WRIT-A No. 26584 of 2011

Ravi Raj & Ors. ...Petitioners
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioners:
Sri Ashok Khare, Sri Siddharth Khare, Sri A.K. Rai, Sri Sanjeev Kumar

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C.

A. Service Law– Pension - U.P. Retirement Benefits Rules, 1961: Rule 2(3); General Provident Fund (U.P.) Rules, 1985 – Petitioners who were initially selected in 2001, came to be appointed only in October 2006, on account of ensuing litigation, would not be entitled to the benefits of Old Pension Scheme which held the field till 01 April 2005.

B. The orders of appointment clearly provided that they would come into effect from the date when the petitioners join their respective posts. Once the petitioners had accepted this stipulation in the appointment order without demur or protest, it was not open for them to thereafter and belatedly seek to claim benefits of the Old Pension Scheme. (Para 11, 28)

C. A person who was not in service on a particular day, cannot be treated in service and seniority cannot be accorded to him. - Petitioners could not claim any retrospective conferral of benefits commencing from a period even before they had entered service. The same analogy is applied to their claim for coverage under the Old Pension Scheme. (Para 14, 16)

D. The expression "entering services or posts…" cannot be understood as referring to or hinging upon something inchoate or nebulous such as, selection or empanelment of an incumbent to government service. The Rule 2(3) clearly refers to entry into service as being determinative factor. The mere fact that the process of recruitment was initiated prior thereto can be of no assistance to the cause of being governed by the Old Pension Scheme. (Para 21, 27)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Yashwant Varma, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioners and Sri Vishal Tandon learned Standing Counsel for the State respondents.

2. The petition has been preferred principally seeking the following reliefs: -

"a writ order or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing the notice dated 20.04.11 issued by the Additional District Magistrate (Finance & Revenue) Jyotiba Phulenagar (Annexure 14 to the writ petition).

A writ order or direction of a suitable nature restraining any action on the basis of the impugned notice.

A writ, order or direction of a suitable nature commanding the respondents to treat the petitioners as covered by the Old Pension Scheme applicable prior to 01.04.05 and to extend all benefit thereof to the petitioners."

3. The principal question which falls for determination is whether the petitioners who were initially selected in 2001 and on account of ensuing litigation came to be appointed only in October 2006 would be entitled to the benefits of the Old Pension Scheme which held the field till 01 April 2005. Undisputedly on 01 April 2005 a New Pension Scheme was promulgated and according to the petitioners since the provisions made in the erstwhile Scheme were more beneficial, they would be entitled to claim coverage under that Scheme notwithstanding the fact that they ultimately came to be appointed only in 2006. For the purposes of answering the question that is raised, the following skeletal facts may be noticed.

4. In August 2001 the Government of U.P. initiated a selection process for appointment of persons on Group-C posts in different Departments of the State. The petitioners applied and participated in that recruitment exercise. They are also stated to have cleared the typing test and declared as qualified. On 24 December 2001 the District Magistrate cancelled the select list and a decision was taken to hold fresh tests. Aggrieved by that decision various writ petitions came to be preferred before this Court including one filed by Sevandra Singh And Others v. State of U.P. And Others1. The said petition along with connected matters ultimately came to be decided on 04 September 2003 in the following terms.

"For the aforesaid reason, the writ petition are allowed, the order dated 24.12.2001 of District Magistrate concealing the selections and for holding a fresh type test can not be sustained and is set aside. The respondents are directed to give appointments to the selected candidates, from but of the select list in pursuance of type test held on 23.11.2001 and 7.12.2001. The test held on 2.5.2003 is declared to be illegal and quashed. All the selectees as aforesaid including petitioners shall be given appointments within a period of one month. There shall be no order as to costs."

5. As is evident from the operative directions, the order of the District Magistrate was set aside and a further mandamus issued commanding the respondents to give appointments to selected candidates who formed part of the lists which had been prepared pursuant to the tests held on 03 November 2001 and 07 December 2001. The petitioners admittedly were included in those lists. The judgment of the learned Judge was subjected to an appeal at the behest of some of the candidates who had qualified the subsequent test that had been held on 02 May 2003. One of those Special Appeals was numbered as Special Appeal No. 967 of 2003. On 29 September 2003 while entertaining the appeal, the Division Bench provided that the judgment of the learned Judge impugned therein would remain stayed for a period of three months. When the Appeal was taken up again on 27 January 2004 the Division Bench extended the original interim order for a period of one month with liberty to parties to apply for extension, vacation, modification and/or variation of that order. The aforesaid Appeal remained pending on the board of this Court but the interim order, which was to operate only for a period of 1 month from 27 January 2004 was not extended thereafter.

6. On 25 May 2016 the Appeal and other connected matters were again taken up for consideration by a Division Bench when the following order came to be passed: -

"Three appeals are connected with each other, namely, the present appeal, Special Appeal No. 1641 of 2009 and Special Appeal (Def.) No. 983 of 2004 that has been printed in today's cause list of our determination. The other two appeals have not been printed in the cause list, namely, Special Appeal No. 967 of 2003 and Special Appeal No. 1641 of 2009. It is therefore, appropriate that all the three appeals are shown in the cause list correctly alongwith their complete particulars as well as the names of the respective counsel appearing in all the three appeals.

It is also relevant to record that in this appeal no. 967 of 2005, an interim order was passed on 29th September, 2003 that is recorded on the memo of the appeal and the order-sheet indicates the extension of the interim order upto 27th January, 2004. The order-sheet thereafter does not indicate any order except the matter being listed and being passed over on one ground or the other. Special appeal no. 967 of 2003 was after five years listed in 2015 and has now been placed before us without its particulars having been mentioned in cause list alongwith the other appeal.

In this background, learned Standing Counsel who is present for the State in Special Appeal (Def.) No. 983 of 2004 and Special Appeal No. 1641 of 2009 shall collect all appropriate information from the District Magistrate, Jyotiba Phule Nagar about the status of the employment of the candidates in whose favour the learned Single Judge has delivered the judgment dated 4.9.2003 and file an appropriate affidavit in that regard immediately upon reopening of the High Court in the 1st week of July, 2016.

List this case on 4th July, 2016 with all the connected appeals alongwith their correct particulars as well as names of the respective counsel appearing in all the three appeals "

7. The Appeal ultimately came to be dismissed for want of prosecution on 30 January 2017. It would not be out of place to note here that the State had also preferred a Special Appeal2 against the judgment of 04 September 2003 albeit with delay. The delay in the preferment of that appeal was never condoned and the Special Appeal remained defective and pending on the board of the Court.

8. In the meanwhile and since the original judgment was not being implemented, the petitioners here instituted proceedings in contempt. It was upon notices being issued on the contempt petition that they were ultimately granted letters of appointment. By the time that the letters of appointment came to be issued in favour of the petitioners in October 2006, the New Pension Scheme had come into force with effect from 01 April 2005. It is in that context that when the petitioners were required to exercise their options and complete documentation to be governed by the New Pension Scheme that the instant writ petition came to be preferred.

9. Learned counsel for the petitioners has contended that the petitioners had been duly selected in 2001 itself. It was submitted that the final judgment rendered inter partes on 4 September 2003 was never implemented by the State causing grave detriment to the petitioners. It was submitted that the interim orders which operated on the Special Appeal preferred by certain subsequently selected individuals also did not operate after February 2004 and consequently it must be held that there was no impediment operating upon the State from implementing the judgment of the learned Judge rendered on 04 September 2003. It was submitted that the petitioners cannot be placed in a disadvantageous position on account of the inaction and inexplicable delay on the part of the State to implement the judgment rendered inter partes. The sheet anchor of the submissions addressed rests upon a judgment rendered by a learned Judge of the Court in the matter of Mahesh Narayan And Others v. State of U.P. And Others3. According to the learned counsel Mahesh Narayan is a binding authority on the proposition that where the delay is caused by the State, the selectees who have merely come to be appointed post 01 April 2005 cannot be denied the benefits of the Old Pension Scheme.

10. Learned counsel then refers to the pleadings taken in paragraph-25 and 26 of the writ petition to submit that certain persons who had scored marks lower than the petitioners were in fact appointed prior to the New Pension Scheme coming into force and thus the petitioners have been clearly discriminated against. It was contended that the disclosures made in paragraph-25 and 26 of the writ petition have not been denied by the State respondents. The Court however notes that the petitioners never challenged the appointment of candidates who are alluded to in the writ petition at any stage. It is also not disputed that they came to be appointed prior to 1 April 2005. In that view of the matter, the Court finds no justification to either countenance or deal with this issue.

11. Sri Tandon learned Standing Counsel on the other hand submits that the orders of appointment clearly provided that they would come into effect from the date when the petitioners join their respective posts. He submits that once the petitioners had accepted this stipulation in the appointment order without demur or protest, it was not open for them to thereafter and belatedly seek to claim benefits of the Old Pension Scheme. Sri Tandon in this connection places reliance upon the judgment rendered by a Division Bench of the Court in Union of India Through Secretary Ministry of Defence and Others v. Roop Chandra And Others4 where dealing with an identical controversy the Division Bench observed thus: -

"5. Once applicant-respondent have not challenged their appointment from particular date, applicant-respondent cannot subsequently claim that their appointment be treated prior to date of appointment as same will enable them benefit of old pension scheme.

7. In our view appointment begins with the issue of appointment letters. terms of appointment are governed by appointment letter. Once appointment letter so issued to applicant respondent was accepted without any protest, applicant respondents could not have turned around and claim appointment prior to the date mentioned in appointment letters. Tribunal erred in granting the relief prayed for. Both the writ petitions are consequently allowed. Impugned judgements and orders dated 20.5.2011 and 27.4.2012, passed by Tribunal, are set aside."

12. Sri Tandon learned Standing Counsel then drew the attention of the Court to yet another judgment rendered in Ram Nakul v. State of U.P. And Others5 wherein dealing with a similar question, a learned Judge held as follows: -

"6. I have considered the submissions made on behalf of the rival parties and perused the record. It would be relevant to consider the object of the New Pension Scheme which is specificily mentioned in the notification dated 28.03.2015 issued by the State Government which states as follows;

"State Government on 28.03.2005 has disclosed the object of new pension scheme as follows:-

The State Government, in consideration of its long-term fiscal interest and following broadly the pattern adopted by the Central Government has approved the following proposal of introducing a new defined contribution pension system in place of the existing defined benefit pension scheme for new entrances to the service of the State Government and of all State controlled autonomous institutions and State- aided private educational institutions where the existing pension scheme is patterned on the scheme or Government Employees and is funded by the consolidated fund of the State Government.

(i) From 1st of April, 2005, the new defined contribution pension system would mandatorily apply to all new recruits to the service of the State Government and of all State controlled autonomous State aided private educational institutions referred to above. However, employees covered by the existing pension scheme whose service would be of less than ten years on 1st April, 2005, may also voluntarily opt for the new pension system in place of the existing pension scheme.

(ii) Under the new defined contribution pension system, the employee would make a monthly contributor equal to 10 per cent of the salary and dearness allowance. A matching employer's contribution would be made by the State Government or by the concerned autonomous institution/ private educational institution. However, the State Government would provide grant to the concern autonomous institution/ private educational institution for making employer/s contribution until the institution is in a position to make the contribution itself. The contribution and investment returns would be deposited in an account to be known as pension tier-I account. No withdrawal would be allowed from this account during the service period. The existing provisions of defined benefit pension and GPF would not be available to the new recruits covered by the new defined contribution pension system.

(iii) Since new recruits would not be able to subscribe to GPF, they may also have a voluntary tier-II account, in addition to the pension tier-I account. However, employer would make no contribution to tier-II account. The assets in tier-II account; would be invested/managed through exactly the same procedure of for pensioner-I account. However, the employee would be free to withdraw part or all the " second tier" of his money anytime.

(iv) Employee can normally exist tier-I of the pension system at the time of retirement. At exist the employee would be mandatorily required to invest 40 per cent of pension wealth to purchase an annuity from a recognized Insurance company so as to provide for pension for the lifetimes of the employee and his dependent parent and his spouse o at the time of retirement. The remaining pension wealth would, however, be received by the employee as a lump-sum which he would be free to utilize in any manner . In case of employee existing the pension tier-I before retirement, the mandatory annuitisation would be 80 per cent of the pension wealth.

(v) There would be several pension fund manners who would offer mainly three categories of investment options. The pension fund manners and the record keeper would jointly give our easily understood information about past performance to that the employee is able to make informed choices of the investment options.

2. The effective date for operationalisation of the new pension system shall be 1st of April, 2005."

7. From the above, it is clear that the New Pension Scheme was enforced w.e.f. 01.04.2005 and it would mandatorily made applicable to all the new recruits who join the services after 01.04.2005 with only one exception that the candidates whose service would be less than 10 years on 01.04.2005 an option had been given to them for the New Pension Scheme in place of the existing Pension Scheme.

9. In the present matter it is undisputed that petitioner joined the service on 19.04.2005, after the New Pension Scheme came into force i.e. on 01.04.2005. For the purpose of granting any benefit to the employee of the State the relevant date is only the date of actual joining as at the time of joining of service the selected candidate has accepted the terms and conditions of the appointment letter. Learned counsel for the petitioner is not able to substantiate his argument from the record that the petitioner was intentionally denied by the respondents to join service before 01.04.2005."

13. It becomes relevant to note that the decision in Ram Nakul principally follows the judgment rendered by a learned Judge of the Court sitting at Lucknow in Satyesh Kumar Mishra And Others v. State of U.P. And Others6 where while dealing with the question of applicability of the Old and New Pension Schemes and upon noticing the provisions made in the U.P. Retirement Benefits Rules, 19617 in that respect it was held as follows: -

"22. Pursuant to the aforesaid Notification dated 28.3.2005, amendment has been introduced in U.P. Retirement Benefit Rules 1961 known as "U.P. Retirement Benefits (Amendment) Rules, 2005", by the Governor in exercise of power conferred by the proviso to Article 309 of Constitution of India. The said Rules have been made applicable w.e.f. 1.4.2005, and it has been clarified therein that Rules shall not apply to employees whether temporary or permanent entering into services on or after 1st April, 2005 in relation to the affairs of State pensionable establishment,. Not only this, General Provident Fund (U.P.) Rules 1985 has also been amended by the Governor, in exercise of power conferred by the proviso to Article 309 of the Constitution of India, by means of General Provident Fund (U.P.) (Amendment) Rules, 2005, and these Rules have also been made applicable w.e.f. 1.4.2005. While dealing with conditions of eligibility in Rule-4, a proviso has been appended mentioning therein that no government servant entering into on or after 1st April, 2005 shall subscribe to the fund from the date of joining of service.

23. Once a policy decision has been taken to enforce new pension scheme, contribution pension system w.e.f. 1st April, 2005 with no exception accorded to new entrants to service and the only exception that has been carved out is in reference of candidates whose service would be of less than ten years on 1st of April, 2005, then option has been given to them to voluntarily opt for the new pension system in place of the existing pension scheme. Thus, it is imminently clear that new entrants in service have necessarily opt for new pension scheme, and have no escape route.

24. Once appointment of the petitioners have been made on 16.4.2015, 13.5.2005, 4.5.2005, 16.7.2005, 14.8.2006, 16.4.2005, respectively, then, admittedly entry in service has been made after enforcement of new pension scheme. In this view of the matter, petitioners cannot insist that they should be governed under old pension scheme on account of the fact that when the advertisement has been issued, old pension scheme has been in existence.

25. "Recruitment", "Advertisement", "Selection" and "Appointment" are different concepts under the service jurisprudence. "Recruitment" is the process of generating a pool of capable people to apply for employment in organization. Selection forms integral part of recruitment process, wherein from amongst eligible candidates, choice is made of person or persons capable to do the job as per the requirement. The process of selection begins with the issuance of advertisement and ends with the preparation of select list for appointment. "Appointment" is made, after selection process is over, issuance of letter in favour of selected candidates, is an offer to selected candidate to accept the office or position to which he has been selected. On acceptance of the terms and conditions of appointment, the selected candidates on joining has to be accepted as appointed, and he /she would be a new entrant and based on recruitment process, petitioner can not claim that she be brought within the scope and ambit of old pension rules in place of new pension rules. There is no dispute to the fact that process of selection was never altered and the entire selection was undertaken in accordance with the criterion which was laid down at the time of recruitment process. Therefore, assertion of the petitioner that the applicability of New Pension Scheme would amount to change in the terms and conditions of recruitment is untenable.

26. The Apex Court, in the case of Sudhir Kumar Kansal Vs. Allahabad Bank : 2011 (2) ESC 243 held, in the matter of grant of pension, either under the old rule or the new rule, proceeded to mention that in society governed by rule of law sympathies cannot override the Rules and Regulations, and in the said case view has been taken accordingly that appellant was not eligible to claim any benefit under Old Pension Scheme.

27. Inevitable conclusion thus is, that once New Pension Scheme has been introduced and it has been provided that such incumbents entering into service on or after 1st April, 2005 would be governed under the New Scheme, then, said category of incumbents, as matter of right, cannot claim legally to be governed under the old scheme, and their claim of pension will fall within the ambit of Rules as has been introduced w.e.f. 01.04.2005."

14. Sri Tandon then submitted that in 2010 itself the petitioners had raised a contention that their seniority must be counted not from the date of their actual appointment but from the time when they were originally selected or at least when their claim came to be upheld in Sevandra Singh. Sri Tandon draws the attention of the Court to the order passed by a learned Judge on Rajiv Singh And Others v. State of U.P. And Others8 when that claim came to be rejected in the following terms: -

"Heard learned counsel for the petitioners and learned Standing Counsel.

The relief sought in the present writ petition is that the judgment which was passed in 2003 in favour of the petitioners in Writ Petition No.18789 of 2003 may be complied with in true spirit. Petitioners were considered and appointed in pursuance of the judgment passed by this Court in 2006. The claim of the petitioners is that as the judgment in favour of the petitioners was of 2003, therefore, they are entitled to get the seniority and other financial benefits from that date in spite of the fact that they have been given appointment in 2006.

In my opinion, it is not permissible in law. A persons who was not in service on a particular day, cannot be treated in service and seniority cannot be accorded to him."

15. A Division Bench affirming that decision in Special Appeal observed thus:-

"We have gone through the order impugned and found that the court clearly held that the appointments were given in 2006. Therefore, a person who was not in service on a particular date, cannot be treated in service and seniority cannot be accorded to him. The petitioner has taken a plea that two persons were given appointments pursuant to the direction of the writ court in 2003 but the petitioner was excluded.

In the instant case appointment was given only in 2006. If there is any delay on the part of the State between 2003 and 2006, it was open to proceed before the court of contempt. Why the petitioner has invoked the jurisdiction of this Court a second time for giving an interpretation with regard to seniority by filing the writ petition is not known. The learned Single Judge has rightly held that since the vacancy was not available earlier to 2006, how the seniority can be given prior thereto. Hence we do not find any infirmity in the order itself. "

16. Sri Tandon learned Standing Counsel seeks to draw sustenance from the findings as returned in that round of litigation to contend that it was duly noted that the petitioners here could not claim any retrospective conferral of benefits commencing from a period even before they had entered service. In his submission the same analogy must also apply when it comes to their claim for coverage under the Old Pension Scheme.

17. Having noticed the rival submissions, the Court firstly takes note of the judgment in Satyesh Kumar Mishra where the learned Judge noticed the seminal amendments that came to be introduced pursuant to the adoption of the New Pension Scheme. The learned Judge in Satyesh Kumar Mishra taking note of the underlying policy infusing the New Pension Scheme and as embodied in the Government Order of 28 March 2005, took note of significant provisions made by way of amendment in the 1961 Rules as well as the General Provident Fund (U.P.) Rules 1985. It was noted that the 1961 Rules as amended in unequivocal terms provided that they would not apply to employees entering service on or after 01 April 2005 irrespective of whether their engagement in relation to the affairs of the State was on a pensionable or non-pensionable establishment. The learned Judge in light of those amendments proceeded to observe that once a policy decision had been taken to enforce a New Pension Scheme, entrants into service after the dates specified thereunder could not claim benefits of the erstwhile Scheme. It was noted that the statutory regime as introduced did not envisage an option being exercised by entrants. The learned Judge then also took note of the meaning liable to be ascribed to the expressions "Recruitment", "Advertisement", Selection" and "Appointment" to hold that once incumbents had accepted the terms and conditions specified in the appointment, they were bound by the same and could not seek to alter those terms at a subsequent stage.

18. In Bharat Yadav v. State of U.P. And 3 Others9 a learned Judge of the Court again noticing the significant provisions made in Rule 2(3) of the 1961 Rules, the validity of which as was noted in that decision as having been upheld arrived at the same conclusion. The learned Judge while dealing with an identical question held: -

"So far as payment of pension under the old pension scheme is concerned, the same is regulated by the provisions of Rules of 1961. An amendment in the Rules of 1961 was introduced in the year 2005 as per which anyone who joins services of the State after 1.4.2005 would not be entitled to any pension under the Rules of 1961. Rule 2(3) of the Rules of 1961, as amended, reads as under: -

"2(3) These Rules shall not apply to employees entering services and posts on or after April 1, 2005 in connection with the affairs of the State, borne on pensionable establishment, whether temporary or permanent."

The validity of the aforesaid rules were questioned in series of litigations instituted before this Court and a Division Bench of this Court in State of U.P. and others vs. Dukh Haran Singh reported in 2010 (2) AWC1882 (All) has been pleased to affirm the validity of the amendment incorporated in the Rules of 1961. The matter has travelled upto the Apex court and the view taken by the Division Bench of this Court has been affirmed. In that view of the matter, anyone who joins in the service of the State of U.P. after 1.4.2005 would not be entitled to benefit of old pension scheme under the Rules of 1961. Since the petitioner's appointment is after the cut-off date i.e. 1.4.2005 and he never questioned his appointment offered on 27.12.2005, it would not be open for the petitioner to contend now that the benefit of services in the employment of State ought to be granted from a date prior to 1.4.2005. The contention in that regard, based upon the observations of the Division Bench judgment of the Uttrakhand High Court, is not liable to be accepted in view of the fact that Division Bench of this Court has already taken a different view and such view has otherwise been affirmed by the Apex Court. This Court, moreover, finds that the Rules of 1961 consequent upon its amendment, referred to above, did not fall for consideration before the Uttarkhand High Court. In view of the fact that distinct set of rules exist in respect of employees of the State of Uttar Pradesh, the judgment of the Uttrakhand High court would not be of any avail to petitioner's cause. The plea that the pension Rules as it stood when the vacancy was advertised in 2001 be made applicable upon the petitioner, therefore, is rejected.

Bharat Yadav thus and as is manifest treads the same line as the decisions rendered in Satyesh Kumar Mishra and Ram Nakul.

19. This Court is of the considered view that the key to answer the question posed lies in the language employed by Section 2(3) of the 1961 Rules. The decisions noticed above in light of the plain language employed in Rule 2(3) hold that it is only the date on which the incumbent joins service which is relevant for the purposes of adjudging his eligibility to the benefits of the Old or the New Pension Scheme. They also lay stress on the issue of joining and hold that it is that facet which would be determinative. It becomes pertinent to note that Satyesh Kumar Mishra, Ram Nakul and Bharat Yadav were all rendered prior to the judgment in Mahesh Narayan. However of these three decisions only Satyesh Kumar Mishra has been noted with the learned Judge observing that it was liable to be viewed as having been rendered per incuriam. Since Mahesh Narayan clearly proceeds to lay down a principle, which runs contrary to that enunciated in the three previous decisions rendered on the subject, it would be apposite to analyze that decision in some detail.

20. In Mahesh Narayan the learned Judge placing reliance upon a decision rendered by a Division Bench of the Court in Firangi Prasad v. State of U.P. And Others10 has proceeded to hold that that where the delay is on account of inaction on the part of the State, the selectees and individuals cannot be deprived of rights which may have accrued or crystallized. In Mahesh Narayan the learned Judge held that since the decision in Firangi Prasad had not been noticed in Satyesh Kumar Mishra that decision was liable to be viewed as per incuriam. Mahesh Narayan again was a decision which dealt with a selection process which had been initiated and ultimately came to be quagmired in litigation leading to delay in issuance of appointment orders. The learned Judge placing reliance on Firangi Prasad held that in such a situation inaction on the part of the State cannot deprive a candidate of his legitimate right to claim benefits that may have existed when selection commenced. It was noted that although the selection process had been initiated in 2001, it was conferred finality only once legal challenges failed in 2005. It also took note of the fact that the final select list was ultimately published on 12 March 2006 where after appointment letters were issued. In the aforesaid factual backdrop and following Firangi Prasad the learned Judge held that the candidates could not be denied benefits on account of the delay that occurred in the issuance of the appointment orders and consequently they must be held to be eligible to the benefits as provided under the Pension Scheme which prevailed prior to 01 April 2005. While holding thus, the learned Judge also placed reliance upon the decision rendered by the Uttarakhand High Court in Ashutosh Joshi And Others v. State of Uttarakhand And others11 as well as the Delhi High Court in Inspector Rajendra Singh And Others v. Union of India and Others12. It would be pertinent to extract the ultimate conclusions recorded by the Learned Judge in Mahesh Narain which read thus: -

From the perusal of judgments of Satyesh Kumar Mishra (Supra) and Firangi Prasad (Supra), there is no doubt on the point that similar dispute was before this Court in the matter of Satyesh Kumar Mishra (Supra), which was dismissed by this Court against which Special Appeal Defective No. 480 of 2016 is pending. It is also not disputed that legal issue involved in the matter of Satyesh Kumar Mishra (Supra) was also before Division Bench of this Court in the matter of Firangi Prasad (Supra) where the Court has clearly held that on the fault of appointing authority in issuing appointment letter, petitioners cannot be put any type of disadvantage. It appears that at the time of deciding the matter of Satyesh Kumar Mishra (Supra), judgement of Firangi Prasad (Supra) was not placed before this Court, therefore, without considering the same, decision was given in the matter of Satyesh Kumar Mishra (Supra). Under such facts and circumstances, judgement of Satyesh Kumar Mishra (Supra) is per incuriam and cannot be treated as precedent in the present case and will not come in the rescue of respondents.

The controversy and question of law involved in the present case is squarely covered with the judgement of Firangi Prasad (Supra) as well as other judgments relied upon by learned counsel for the petitioners and Courts have taken consistent view that respondents cannot by their inaction deprive a candidate to his legitimate right.

So far as facts of the case are concerned, there is no dispute on the point that pursuant to advertisement No. A-3/E-1/2000, advertisement was issued in news paper on 22.12.2000 and as per order of this Court dated 29.12.2001 passed in Special Appeal No. 485 (S/B) of 2001 (supra), there was no legal impediment in completion of recruitment process, but due to inaction on the part of respondents, it was completed only after dismissal of writ petition on 05.07.2005. Final selected list of selected candidate was published in daily newspaper 'Dainik Jagran' dated 12.03.2006 and thereafter appointment letters were issued. It is also not disputed that in between again in subsequent advertisement No. A-3/E-1/2002, recruitment was completed and candidates had been granted appointment prior to 01.04.2005 and getting the benefit of 'Old Pension Scheme'.

Therefore, considering the facts and circumstances of the case and legal position discussed herein above, writ petition is partly allowed and petitioners are excluded from the effect and operation of Notification dated 28.03.2005 and 07.04.2005 as it is in violation of Article 14 of Constitution of India as well as law laid down by the Courts."

21. Having conferred thoughtful consideration on the various decisions that have come to be rendered on the subject, the Court firstly notes that Mahesh Narayan fails to notice Ram Nakul and Bharat Yadav. Both these decisions directly dealt with the issue of applicability of the Old and New Pension Schemes depending upon the date of entry into service of a particular candidate. These decisions clearly bound the learned Judge while proceeding to decide Mahesh Narayan. However they do not appear to have been brought to the attention of the Court. Both Ram Nakul and Bharat Yadav fundamentally rest and pivot on the statutory amendments as introduced in 2005 in the 1961 Rules. As noted above, Rule 2(3) introduces and constructs a specific injunction in respect of its applicability to employees "entering" services or posts on or after April 01, 2005. Guided by the plain language as used in that Rule, it is manifest that it does not connect the applicability of the Rules to either a selection process commenced or pending or for that matter to any event prior to actual entry into service. In the considered view of this Court the expression "entering services..." cannot be equated to the selection or empanelment of an incumbent to government service. It is manifest that the applicability of the 1961 Rules is made dependent upon an incumbent actually being recognised as having become a member of the service on or before 1 April 2005. Viewed on its plain language it must be held, as this Court does, that entry into service alone would be determinative and since that event would occur only upon the issuance of an actual appointment letter and consequential joining it is these twin facets alone which would govern the issue of applicability of the Old or New Pension Scheme. Unless an incumbent is formally inducted into service, he cannot be viewed as having become a member thereof or a holder of a post. The expression "entering services or posts..." cannot be understood as referring to or hinging upon something inchoate or nebulous. Till such time as the incumbent accepts the offer of appointment and joins on the post, his position remains that of someone waiting at the threshold. It is only once he accepts the appointment, the terms and conditions stipulated therein and joins that he is ordained in service. In view of the aforesaid exposition the Court comes to conclude that the expression "entering" cannot be accorded any other interpretation.

22. That then takes the Court to consider whether Satyesh Kumar Mishra could be said to have been rendered per incuriam. While Mahesh Narayan does so observe on the premise that it fails to notice Firangi Prasad, that would really depend upon whether the Court can on a holistic and careful examination come to the irresistible conclusion that the factual backdrop in which that decision came to be entered and the issue which essentially fell for determination were identical or at least analogous. It must at the outset be noted that Firangi Prasad was not a decision rendered in the backdrop of the 1961 Rules at all. That decision was dealing with a right of an individual to seek regularisation under the provisions of Section 33C of the U.P. Secondary Education Service Selection Board Act, 198213. The Division Bench in Firangi Prasad observed: -

15. The second contention needs to be examined in the light of the facts that have emerged from the record, namely that the appellant for no fault on his part was kept out of the Institution by the inaction of the Management in spite of the District Inspector of Schools having dispatched the selection order on 18.01.1993. From the facts on record, it is evident that the Manager of the Institution had to perform the ministerial act of issuing a letter of appointment to the appellant in terms of the selection order dated 18.01.1993. The Management admittedly complied with it after much persuasion on 25.08.1993, for which the appellant is nowhere at fault. On the contrary, the appellant had been continuously approaching the Management time and again expressing his willingness to join the Institution.

16. In these circumstances, teachers like the appellant fall within an altogether different class of candidates, who have been wrongfully prevented by the inaction of the Management in joining the Institution. The Management has to perform only a ministerial act and by its inaction, it cannot defeat the legitimate claim of a teacher like appellant.

19. The respondents cannot by their inaction, therefore, deprive a candidate of his or her legitimate right to claim continuance in service. It is, therefore, clear that there was a deliberate delay on the part of the Management in issuing the letter of appointment in the present case and accordingly, the right of the appellant to claim continuance under the selection order dated 18.01.1993 cannot be denied. The appellant will, therefore, be entitled to the benefits flowing out of the order dated 18.01.1993 and in such a situation, the letter of appointment will relate back prior to the cut-off date i.e. 06.08.1993.

23. Section 33C, it may be noted, does not engraft any threshold precondition which may be recognised as controlling access to the benefits enshrined in that provision except to the extent where it prescribes the class of teachers who would be entitled to be considered for regularisation. Secondly, unlike Rule 2(3) of the 1961 Rules, the provision also does not commence with a negative stipulation couched in imperative terms, which may be recognised as a legislative injunct against extension of its benefits. Rule 2(3) in no uncertain terms restricts its applicability and in unequivocal terms debars incumbents entering service after 1 April 2005 from the benefits of those Rules. The structure of Section 33C, in this sense, is clearly distinct and dissimilar. Thirdly, the statutory scheme underlying the 1982 Act must also be appreciated under which the management is to perform only a ministerial act of issuing an appointment letter upon receiving intimation of selection of the incumbent by the Board. In fact and as is evident from Rule 13 of the U.P. Secondary Education Services Selection Board Rules, 1998, a structured time frame for issuance of an appointment order is put in place coupled with an obligation upon the Management to report compliance. The decision rendered in Firangi Prasad has to consequently be understood and appreciated in light of what has been noted above. To put it differently, the ratio of Firangi Prasad cannot be appreciated without bearing in mind the distinguishable statutory scheme of the 1982 Act and the Rules framed thereunder.

24. Similarly the reliance placed by the learned Judge on Naveen Kumar Jha v. Union of India and Others14 also appears to be inapposite since that too dealt with a selection for Para Military Forces and does not appear to deal with a provision akin to Rule 2(3).

25. However these pivotal and crucial aspects appear to have been ignored in Mahesh Narayan. The ex facie distinction between Rule 2(3) and Section 33C has clearly not been borne in mind. This perhaps because Rule 2(3) has not even been independently noticed by the learned Judge. The judgment in Firangi Prasad dealing as it did with the right of regularisation as conferred by Section 33C and the observations made in its backdrop cannot consequently be recognised as laying down a proposition on the basis of which Satyesh Kumar Mishra, Ram Nakul and Bharat Yadav may be said to have been incorrectly decided or be per incuriam.

26. The decision in Mahesh Narayan insofar as it seeks to draw sustenance from the judgments rendered by the Uttarakhand and Delhi High Courts also does not commend acceptance in light of the aspect which is noticed by the learned Judge in Bharat Yadav, namely, that in none of the decisions rendered by the two High Courts were provisions pari materia to Rule 2(3) shown to apply. On an overall conspectus of the aforesaid, the Court is of the considered view that insofar as the question that arises in this petition is concerned, it must be answered in light of the provisions made in the 1961 Rules and the decisions rendered in Satyesh Kumar Mishra, Ram Nakul and Bharat Yadav have rightly answered the issue by holding that incumbents appointed after 1 April 2005 cannot be recognised as being eligible to claim benefits of the Old Pension Scheme.

27. The Court additionally notes that the provisions of Rule 2(3) of the 1961 Rules are not assailed. The judgment therefore must necessarily proceed on the basis of that it is that provision alone which governs and must dictate the answer to the question posited. That Rule, as noted above, clearly refers to entry into service as being the determinative factor. None of the petitioners here are shown to have entered into service prior to 01 April 2005. The mere fact that the process of recruitment was initiated prior thereto can be of no assistance to their cause of being governed by the Old Pension Scheme.

28. The Court also bears in mind the decision of the Division Bench of this Court in Roop Chandra where it was held that a stipulation contained in an appointment order cannot be assailed or questioned after its acceptance. As noticed in the earlier part of this judgment the appointment letter of the petitioners had clearly stipulated that their appointment was to come into force upon their joining.

It did not stipulate the appointment coming into effect from some retroactive date. That prescription in the order of appointment was duly accepted without demur or protest. It is not permissible for the petitioners to now and at this point of time to renege from that concession.

29. Insofar as the issue of the interim orders passed on the Special Appeals preferred by certain other selected candidates are concerned, suffice it to note that the State to some extent appears to be justified in submitting that it could not proceed on the assumption that the order of restraint had come to an end or had expired by efflux of time. In any case the justification or otherwise for the delay that occurred in implementation of the judgment of 4 September 2003 is not an issue on which this Court is called upon to rule. As is manifest from the reliefs which are framed, the sole question which this Court is called upon to decide is the entitlement of the petitioners to seek coverage of the Old Pension Scheme. Viewed in that context it really does not fall for this Court to rule on the justifiability or otherwise of the delay which was allegedly caused in the ultimate implementation of the judgment of 04 September 2003. The claim in any case must fall in light of Rule 2(3) of the 1961 Rules. The Court finds no legally justifiable basis to either ignore its unambiguous command or dilute its rigor by virtue of the alleged delay in conferment of appointment to the petitioners for reasons aforenoted. In view of the aforesaid, the challenge to the impugned order fails.

30. The writ petition is dismissed.
