11. The petition lacks merit and dismissed with a cost of Rs.25000/-.

THE HON'BLE SUDHIR AGARWAL, J.

WRIT A No. 16933 of 1999

Smt. Archana Srivastava ...Petitioner
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Sri A.K. Srivastava, Sri U.N. Khare

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C., Sri H.N. Sharma, Sri Anirudha Sharma

A. Service – Appointment/Recruitment – Procedural illegality/Favoritism - Petitioner protesting against the candidature of respondent no. 3, filed the present writ petition before the result was declared. On 21.04.1999, any appointment made was made subject to the decision of the writ petition and later on 04.04.2001, the appointment of respondent no. 3 on the post of Clerk by District Magistrate was stayed. (Para 3, 9)

The Court observed that the application of respondent-3 originally was submitted for the post of Assistant Accountant and since he did not possess requisite qualification, his candidature was rejected but subsequently manipulations were done in the application form and same was accepted for post of Junior Clerk. (Para 23 to 26)

After expiry of last date, no indulgence can be granted to entertain an application or document of a candidate who has come thereafter - In the present case, respondent-3 has been allowed to participate for recruitment on the post of Junior Clerk by District Magistrate, passing order on 11.12.1998, though that is much after date of expiry of last date of submission of application form. This was clearly illegal and shows that appointment of respondent-3 was not fair but in collusion with the then District Magistrate. It is vitiated in law on account of favoritism and procedural illegality committed by concerned authority. (Para 27, 28)

Since appointment of respondent-3 was already made subject to result of writ petition and subsequently it was also stayed, the mere fact that after filing of writ petition, respondent-3 was appointed would make no difference. Appointment of respondent no. 3 is declared illegal and set aside. (Para 29)

Writ petition allowed. (E-4)

Precedent followed:

1. Rajendra Patel Vs. St. of U.P. & anr., (2016) 1 UPLBEC 331 (Para 27)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal, J.

1. This Writ Petition under Article 226 of Constitution has been filed by Smt. Archana Srivastava, praying for a writ of mandamus directing respondents to quash candidature of candidates who applied beyond time for the post of Junior Clerk, award her weightage marks in respect to sports certificate and additional qualification possessed by petitioner in accordance with Rules and proceed accordingly.

2. The case set up by petitioner is that an advertisement was published on 10.08.1998 inviting applications for recruitment to the posts of Junior Clerk in the office of Niyantrak Pradhikari Viniyamit Kshetra, Konch, District Jalaun. Pursuant thereto, petitioner applied along with seven other candidates. Respondent-3 Rajiv Pandey, a resident of State of Bihar had applied for the post of 'Assistant Accountant' in the Office of Treasury Officer, Orai, Jalaun. His candidature for the said post was rejected but thereafter respondent-2 allowed respondent-3 to be considered for the post of Junior Clerk though he had obtained sports certificate in State of Bihar which was not recognized for weightage in the State of U.P. but that was also considered and he was allowed to appear in the selection test. When petitioner came to know about this fact, made representation dated 05.03.1999 and 30.03.1999, protesting against candidature of respondent-3 but ignoring the same, respondent-2 allowed respondent-3 to participate in selection and ignored petitioner's application.

3. Since result was not declared, therefore, writ petition was filed seeking a mandamus to respondents-1 and 2 to ignore candidature of respondent-3 for the post of Junior Clerk as he had not applied in time for the said post and thereafter make selection by awarding weightage of sports certificate to petitioner.

4. A Counter Affidavit has been filed by respondents-1 and 2 sworn by Smt. Urmila Devi, Deputy Collector, Konch, District Jalaun. It is stated therein that respondent-3 submitted form for Junior Clerk but due to clerical mistake, since the date of advertisement of vacancies for Junior Clerk and Assistant Accountant were same, therefore, his application form was forwarded to District Treasury. Thereafter by order of District Magistrate, application of two candidates, Rajiv Nayan and Rajiv Kumar Pandey were included in the list of candidates who had applied for the post of Junior Clerk. This information was also given to Karmik Department vide letter dated 11.12.1998. Mere fact that respondent-3 was resident of Bihar, was irrelevant since there was no condition of domiciliation for applying for the post of Junior Clerk. With regard to weightage to sports certificate also, it is said that there was no distinction, whether a person has participated in the prescribed sports level in State of Bihar or State of U.P. Respondent-3 submitted certificate upto School level for which he was awarded two marks while petitioner did not submit any sports proficiency certificate, therefore, she was not awarded any weightage of participation in sports.

5. Further, for the post of Junior Clerk, in type test of 20 maximum marks, petitioner could secure 13.20 marks while respondent-3 secured 15.20 marks. Selection for the post of Junior Clerk was made in accordance with Rules and only mistake happened is that the application form of Rajiv Nayan and Rajiv Kumar Pandey were forwarded to District Treasury but thereafter they were considered for the post of Junior Clerk under the orders of District Magistrate. The marks obtained by petitioner and respondent-3 in the written test, interview and under various heads are given in para-10 of counter affidavit as under:

Sl.No.	Subject of Test	Prescribed Maximum marks	Marks obtained
			Petitioner	Respondent-3
1	Written Test	40	20.00.	12.90.
2	50 per cent of the marks obtained in written test	20	10.00.	09.60.
3	Minimum qualification (Intermediate)	30	18.18	15.49
4	Marks of retrenched employee	15	-	-
5	Sports marks	5	00.	02.00.
6	Typing Test	20	13.20.	15.20.
7	Interview	10	06.00.	05.80.
	Total Marks	100	47.38	48.09

6. Separate Counter Affidavit has been filed by respondent-3 stating that he has been selected for the post of Junior Clerk and appointment letter dated 20.04.1999 was issued appointing him on the post of Junior Clerk. He has submitted joining report on 20.04.1999 and since then working on the post of Junior Clerk in the Office of Niyantrak Pradhikari Viniyamit Kshetra, Konch, District Jalaun. He has further stated that petitioner did not submit any certificate showing her participation in sports activity, therefore, she was not awarded any marks/weightage under the said 'Head'. With regard to his own application, in para-7 of Counter Affidavit, respondent-3 has stated that the Office committed a mistake and treated his application as it if was for the post of Assistant Accountant and hence forwarded the same to District Treasury though it ought to have been sent to concerned authorities dealing with recruitment of Junior Clerk. Similar error was committed in respect of one Rajiv Nayan hence both these applications, under the orders of District Magistrate, subsequently were sent to appropriate authority and they were allowed to participate in recruitment to the post of Junior Clerk.

7. Petitioner has filed Rejoinder Affidavit reiterating that respondent-3 actually had applied for the post of 'Assistant Accountant' and since he did not possess requisite qualification, his candidature was rejected. Subsequently District Magistrate illegally allowed interpolation in the application form and illegally accepted the same for the post of Junior Clerk. In para-6 of Rejoinder Affidavit it has specifically been said that respondent-3 never applied for the post of Junior Clerk in the Office of Niyantrak Pradhikari Viniyamit Kshetra, Konch, District Jalaun, as such he was not entitled to be considered for the post of Junior Clerk. His entitlement for weightage of sports participation is also disputed.

8. Two Supplementary Counter Affidavits have also been filed on behalf of respondent-2.

9. In the Supplementary Counter Affidavit filed on behalf of respondent-2 sworn on 02.09.2013 by Sri L. Venketshwar Loo, the then District Magistrate, Jalaun and working as Consolidation Commissioner, U.P. at the time of swearing the affidavit, it is said that a letter of appointment was issued to respondent-3 by Deepak Kumar, the then District Magistrate/ Niyantrak Pradhikari Viniyamit Kshetra, Konch, District Jalaun on 20.04.1999. On 21.04.1999 this Court passed following interim order:

"Heard learned counsel for the petitioner. The respondents 1 and 2 are directed to file counter affidavit within two months. The petitioner shall take steps to serve respondent no. 3 by registered post within one week.
List in 4th week of July 1999.

Any appointment made shall be subject to the decision of the writ petition." (emphasis added)

10. Subsequently, on 04.04.2001 this Court passed another interim order as under:

"The matter was fixed peremptorily today. Learned counsel for the petitioner has informed Shri H.N. Sharma in writing that this matter will be taken up today. The letter is taken on record.

Counter affidavit filed by respondent no. 3 is not on record. Counter affidavit has been filed by standing counsel in the office on 16-9-99. Office shall trace out the counter affidavit and place it on record.

Standing counsel has produced a copy of counter affidavit wherein it has been stated that respondent no. 3 has been appointed by District Magistrate Jalaun during the pendency of the writ petition but copy of a appointment letter has not been filed.

Until further orders of this court, the appointment of respondent no. 3 on the post of Clerk by District Magistrate Jalaun shall remain stayed." (emphasis added)

11. Thereafter, petitioner filed Contempt Application No 2793 of 2001 but the same was rejected, hence respondent-3 has been continuously working on the post of Junior Clerk and getting the salary.

12. Another Supplementary Affidavit has been filed on behalf of respondent-2 sworn by Sri Sanjay Kumar, Naib-Tehsildar, Tehsil Konch, District Jalaun appending therewith a copy of sports certificate dated 24.07.1987 showing participation of respondent-3 in Football and Athletics at School Level, i.e. B.B. High School, Begusarai, Bihar. Copy of advertisement dated 09.08.1998 for the post of Junior Clerk has also been filed as Annexure SCA-2 wherein last date of submission of application form was 31.08.1998. The format of application shows that for School level sports also weightage was provided. A copy of Government Order dated 29.08.1998 has also been filed as Annexure SCA-3 showing procedure for direct recruitment on Group-C posts which clarifies that recruitment shall be made by holding a written test of 100 marks which will comprise of examination in general Hindi, General Knowledge and General Studies which will be of value of 40 per cent marks. 30 per cent marks are provided for marks obtained in minimum educational qualification, 15 per cent marks for retrenched employees, five marks for International level sportsman, 4 marks for National level, 3 marks for State level and 2 marks for University/College or Schools level sportsman. 20 per cent marks for typing and stenography wherever it is necessary and thereafter interview. A copy of application form of petitioner has also been placed on record as SCA-4 to show that she did not append any certificate of sports participation along with her application form.

13. Respondent-3 in his affidavit sworn on 02.09.2013 has stated specifically that he as well as petitioner both applied for appointment to the post of Junior Clerk pursuant to advertisement, copy whereof has been filed as Annexure-8 to the writ petition, and he was entitled to get weightage for sports quota certificate. It is also said that he has been issued letter of appointment on 20.04.1999 and his appointment has never been challenged by petitioner, therefore, writ petition is liable to be dismissed since he has already been appointed and the same has not been challenged.

14. This Court took it seriously as to why respondent-3 was allowed to continue since his appointment itself was stayed by order dated 04.04.2001 and consequently on 06.08.2013, it passed following order:

"Affidavit filed by the learned counsel for the respondent is taken on record.

The petitioner has challenged the selection of respondent no.3 on the ground that selection was unfair and illegal.

At the time of moving of this writ petition this Court passed the following order on 21.4.99 :

"Heard learned counsel for the petitioner. The respondents 1 and 2 are directed to file counter affidavit within two months. The petitioner shall take steps to serve respondent no. 3 by registered post, within one week.

List in 4th week of July, 1999.

Any appointment made shall be subject to the decision of the writ petition."

It appears that District Magistrate appointed respondent no. 3 on 20.4.1999. The matter was again heard on 4.4.2001. On the said date the learned counsel for the respondent no.3 did not appear before the Court inspite of written notice given by learned counsel for the petitioner. Learned Standing Counsel who represent the District Magistrate informed the Court that respondent no.3 has already been appointed by the District Magistrate during the pendency of the writ petition.

Having taken note of the said fact the Court has stayed the appointment of the respondent no.3. The order passed by this Court on 4.4.2001 reads as under :-

"The matter was fixed peremptorily today. Learned counsel for the petitioner has informed Shri H.N.Sharma in writing that this matter will be taken up today, the letter is taken on record.

Counter affidavit filed by respondent no.3 and standing counsel is not on record. Counter affidavit has been filed by standing counsel in the office on 16.9.99. Office shall trace out the counter affidavit and place it on record.

Standing counsel has produced a copy of counter affidavit wherein it has been stated that respondent no.3 has been appointed by District Magistrate, Jalaun during the pendency of the writ petition but copy of appointment letter has not been filed.

Until further orders of this court, the appointment of respondent no.3 on the post of clerk by District Magistrate, Jalaun shall remain stayed."

From the record it appears that petitioner aggrieved by the contemptuous and illegal action of the District Magistrate preferred Contempt Petition No. 2793 of 2001 before this Court. It appears that only part of the order dated 4.4.2001 was placed before the Contempt court which has been quoted by the Contempt Court in its order. It is admitted case of the respondent no.3 that inspite of positive direction of this Court on 4.4.2001 he is continuing and receiving salary.

From the record it is also evident that after filing counter affidavit the respondent no.3 and learned Standing Counsel has not taken any steps to get the interim order vacated.

Let notice be issued to the then District Magistrate to explain his conduct. The respondent no.3 is represented by Sri Anirudh Sharma, learned counsel. Four weeks time is granted to the District Magistrate and the respondent no.3 for filing reply to the show cause as to why respondent no.3 is continuing even after order of this Court dated 4.4.2001. (emphasis added)

The District Magistrate shall redirect this order to the then District Magistrate, wherever he is currently posted.

List the matter after four weeks."

15. When the matter was further heard, a serious dispute arose as to, whether respondent-3 had applied for the post of 'Assistant Accountant' or 'Junior Clerk' and application was submitted within prescribed time or not. Consequently, this Court required respondent-2 to produce original record of recruitment/selection before Court vide order dated 21.10.2019. The same has been produced for my perusal.

16. Original Application form of respondent-3 shows that in the Column of post, initially 'Kanishtha Lipik' is mentioned but the same is scored out. Thereafter, post of 'Sahayak Lekhakar' is mentioned. The same is also scored out. Then again, post 'Kanishtha Lipik' is mentioned. Application is signed on 06.09.1998 by respondent-3 though demand draft mentioned in Application is No. 359629 dated 08.09.1998 which shows that demand draft was prepared subsequently and appended to application form which was signed on 06.09.1998. On the photograph, there is signature of respondent-3 and date 07.09.1998 is mentioned with some illegible endorsement. On the left side of application form, there is endorsement of receipt dated 11.09.1998 and thereafter there is an endorsement of necessary action made and signed by Senior Treasury Officer. Thereafter somebody has signed on behalf of District Magistrate on 11.09.1998. On the right side of application form, there is an endorsement of District Magistrate, Jalaun at Orai which is undated and there is a seal of District Magistrate with following endorsement:

''आवेदित पद के लिये निर्धारित योग्यता के अन्तर्गत न होने के कारण आवेदन पत्र निरस्त किया जाता है।''

"The application form is rejected due to not being under the prescribed qualification for the post applied."

17 . Then in the middle of Application Form, there is another endorsement with the seal of District Magistrate stating as under:

"Allowed for regulated area"

18. At the bottom of Application Form, somebody has made endorsement mentioning the date of 17.09.1998 as under:

*''महोदय, इसका सम्बन्ध उरई कोषागार में विरूपित पदों से नहीं है। कृपया वापसी स्वीकार करें।''

"Sir, It is not related to the post advertised in Treasury Office, Orai. Please acknowledge the return."

19. Not only this, I find that there are several applications in which interestingly manipulations have been made. There is an Application From of Vijay Shankar Mahajan where in the Column of Post, there is a separate Paper pasted on which post mentioned is 'Kanishtha Lipik' but that paper pasting is slightly open and I find mention of Post of 'Sahayak Lekhakar' on the Application Form, originally. This has been tried to be concealed by pasting a paper and mentioning the post of Junior Clerk. Who has done and why has done I find nothing is clear.

20. A similar application is that of A.U. Siddiqui. Therein also the post mentioned in the Application Form is different but it is in the Treasury Department, as paper pasting is slightly torn on the side but paper pasted on it mentions the post as 'Junior Clerk' and this manipulation has also been done subsequently but without any initials etc.

21. In the case of Rajiv Nayan also I find that his application is signed on 30.08.1998. His candidature was also rejected by District Magistrate but subsequently District Magistrate has allowed it for regulated area. The application form appears to have been received in the Treasury Department on 16.09.1998. Original Record also contains letter of one Rajiv Nayan dated 11.12.1998 addressed to the District Magistrate stating that he received letter dated 28.11.1998 on 07.12.1998 informing that his candidature has been rejected on the ground of lack of qualification though he has never applied for the post of Assistant Accountant but submitted application for the post of Junior Clerk and, therefore, he should be allowed to participate in recruitment of Junior Clerk. Thereon, Sri Vinod Kumar Srivastava, Treasury Officer submitted a report on 11.12.1998 stating that application form mentioned the post 'Junior Clerk' but Department was not mentioned and there was some mistake and considering this aspect, District Magistrate passed order permitting him to be considered for the post of Junior Clerk. Communicating the said information, Sri Amit Mohand Prasad, the then District Magistrate, Jalaun sent a letter to Special Secretary, U.P. Government on 11.12.1998.

22. Heard Sri A.K. Srivastava, Advocate, for petitioner; learned Standing Counsel appearing for State-respondents-1 and 2 and Sri Prabhakar Awasthi, Advocate, holding brief of H.N. Sharma, Advocate, appearing for respondent-3.

23. As discussed above, original record shows that the candidates who have submitted applications for the posts in Treasury, have been allowed subsequently to change the post after expiry of last date for submission of application form. Respondent-3's application clearly mentioned initially post of 'Junior Clerk'/ 'Assistant Accountant' and both were scored out. Thereafter the post of Junior Clerk is mentioned. The application was submitted for Assistant Accountant. It was rejected by District Magistrate in September' 1998 but subsequently District Magistrate allowed him to appear in selection for the post of Junior Clerk. The alteration on the application form in respect of the post is not initialed by any one. The order sheet containing notes of Treasury Officer and concerned Clerks are dated December, 1998. It shows that subsequently when respondent-3 was allowed to appear for the post of 'Junior Clerk', Order sheet was got prepared accordingly and then District Magistrate, Deepak Kumar, allowed respondent-3 to appear for the post of Junior Clerk though his application was already rejected in September, 1998. This is a serious matter and shows an extraordinary indulgence on the part of the then District Magistrate in permitting respondent-3 to participate for the post of Junior Clerk. The extraordinary favour to respondent-3 by District Magistrate is writ large from the fact that even when the order of appointment was stayed by this Court on 04.04.2001, still he was allowed to continue and salary was paid.

24. In the matter of recruitment and appointment, corruption and manipulation by concerned officials with the record of candidates, for the reasons other than bona fide, has become a matter of routine. This case is glaring example of such an illegality. Once an application has been submitted by a candidate, which is not properly filled in or properly submitted or various columns are not properly filled in, in normal course it ought to be rejected. It appears, however, that concerned authorities whenever are interested they find out the ways and means to favour the candidates in whom they are interested. This is what has been done in the case in hand also. Various scoring out on the original application form of respondent-3 and the factum that District Magistrate had rejected the said application, how could review its decision and allowed respondent-3 to participate, could not be explained by learned Standing Counsel. He tried to rely on the defence taken that the application was wrongly forwarded to Treasury Officer though respondent-3 had submitted application for the post of 'Junior Clerk' yet failed to explain various erases made on the application form and also the endorsement of District Magistrate and that too without any date. It appears that initially respondent-3 submitted application mentioning both the posts, i.e., 'Junior Clerk and Assistant Accountant', and that is why stroke has been added between the words "Junior Clerk" and "Assistant Accountant" but later on "Junior Clerk" was scored out and that action has been done with a different pen and in a different manner. Later when he was not found eligible for the post of 'Assistant Accountant', as he did not fulfill requisite qualification for the said post, his application was rejected by District Magistrate. Then in December, 1998 when he allowed respodnent-3 to appear in the recruitment to the post of Junior Clerk with a different pen, he was allowed to score out the words "Assistant Accountant" and in a different handwriting and pen, "Kanishtha Lipik" again has been mentioned in the Application form. At the end of application form, there is an endorsement by someone as subordinate officer, as under:

''महोदय, इसका सम्बन्ध उरई कोषागार में विरूपित पदों से नहीं है। कृपया वापसी स्वीकार करें। ह0 17/9/98''

"Sir, It is not related to the post advertised in Treasury Office, Orai. Please acknowledge the return. Sig. 17/9/98"

(English Translation by Court)

25. Who has made this endorsement and what for, particularly when application was already rejected by District Magistrate and more so, after rejection of application form, letter was also sent in November, 1998 to the concerned candidates communicating rejection, I find no explanation. Further the documents in original file have been placed in a suspicious manner, inasmuch no application of respondent-3 permitting him to appear for the post of Junior Clerk is on record. There is an application of Rajiv Nayan and original file submitted to this Court mentions the said application as Paper Sl.No.-1. The said application is undated. There are three endorsement on the said letter and all are dated 11.12.1998. Then the order sheet starts and on the one side, it is marked as Sl.No.-2 while there is Sl.No.-4 on the right hand side but that serial number is scored out. Then comes, another paper which is marked as Sl.No.-5. On the back side of it there is Sl.No. 3 and on the right side, there is Sl.No.-6 which is scored out. It shows that order-sheet is also arranged in the manner which suits to the authorities concerned. Then there is Noting dated 11.12.1998 of Additional District Magistrate (Finance and Revenue) addressed to District Magistrate and it is a separate order sheet with Sl.No. 4. Then again comes the order sheet Sl.No. 5 whereunder Sl.No. 1 is also mentioned which is scored out and it contains a noting of Prescribed Authority dated 20.04.1999 and then signature of Deepak Kumar, District Magistrate, Jalaun at Orai and that too dated 20.04.1999. Then again a photocopy of order sheet which is on record and marked as Sl.No.-6 and Sl.No.-4 is also mentioned which is scored out. Then there is another separate order sheet which is shown as Sl.No.-5 and on the back side Sl.No.-7 is mentioned and on the right side also Sl.No. 6 is also mentioned which is scored out and it contains endorsement of A.D.M. dated 11.12.1998. Various documents in the file, which are tagged at top are letters dated 11.12.1998 sent by District Magistrate to State Government and it contains Paper Sl. No.-56 whereafter there is another Paper Sl. No.-56 which is original copy of appointment letter sent to respondent-3. The Application Form placed on record contains three page numbers two of them are scored out. It also shows that documents in the original file have not been maintained in regular course of business.

26. Be that as it may, the fact remains that application of respondent-3 originally was submitted for the post of Assistant Accountant and it also mentioned on the top endorsement AA196 which appears to be short form of Assistant Accountant but subsequently all the manipulations have been done in which respondent-2 obviously must have been instrumentality otherwise nothing could have been permitted.

27. A Full Bench of this Court in Rajendra Patel Vs. State of U.P. and another (2016) 1 UPLBEC 331 has clearly held that after expiry of last date, no indulgence can be granted to entertain an application or document of a candidate who has come thereafter.

28. In the present case, respondent-3 has been allowed to participate for recruitment on the post of Junior Clerk by District Magistrate passing order on 11.12.1998 though that is much after date of expiry of last date of submission of application form. This was clearly illegal and shows that appointment of respondent-3 was not fair but in collusion with the then District Magistrate. It is vitiated in law on account of favoritism and procedural illegality committed by concerned authority. Since appointment of respondent-3 was already made subject to result of writ petition and subsequently it was also stayed, the mere fact that after filing of writ petition, respondent-3 was appointed would make no difference.

29. In the result, writ petition is allowed. Appointment of respondent-3 is declared illegal and hereby set aside.

30. The facts disclosed above show that despite interim order passed by this Court, respondent-3 was allowed to continue and paid salary, therefore, for the period subsequent to order 04.04.2001, the amount of salary which has been paid to respondent-3 is clearly unauthorized and illegal. However, since he has worked, I do not find it appropriate to direct recovery of salary from respondent-3 but this illegality and contemptuous act has been perpetuated/be allowed by the then District Magistrate, therefore, in my view entire amount which has been paid towards salary to respondent-3, on and after the stay order passed by this Court on 04.04.2001, must be recovered from concerned Officials who held Office of District Magistrate from that date till now and allowed this illegality. I order accordingly. The respondent-1 shall give opportunity to concerned District Magistrate(s) who held the Office during this period and make recovery of the amount which has been paid as salary to respondent-3 from such District Magistrate(s) who held Office during this period and allowed salary to be paid to respondent-3 despite stay order passed by this Court on 04.04.2001.

31. Considering the facts and circumstances and also the fact that original application form of petitioner nowhere shows that he submitted certificate of sports and even otherwise almost 20 years have passed, I find it appropriate that the vacancy on the post of 'Junior Clerk', after setting aside the appointment of respondent-3, will be filled in by initiating process of recruitment, afresh.

32. However, petitioner shall be entitled to cost which I quantify to Rs. 1 lac against respondents-1 and 2.

A. Criminal Law-Indian Penal Code-Section 147,323,504 & 506-Service–Appointment– Petitioner was declared unfit for the post of Junior Assistant after selection. Reason mentioned was the pendency of a criminal case against the petitioner u/s 147, 323, 504 and 506 IPC. The Court held that, as the petitioner was not aware about the pendency of criminal case at the time of submitting his declaration, he could not have disclosed the same. Also, his offence was not so serious to refuse appointment. (Para 9, 10)

2. Commissioner of Police & ors. Vs. Sandeep Kumar, (2011) 4 SCC 644 (Para 8)

Petition assails order dated 09.08.2019, passed by Regional Food Controller, Ayodhya Region, Ayodhya.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajesh Singh Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Sri J.P. Tripathi, learned counsel for the petitioner and Dr. Udai Veer Singh, learned Addl. C.S.C. for the State respondents.

2. This Court has passed order dated 5.2.2020 which reads as under :

"By means of this petition the petitioner has assailed the order dated 9.8.2019 passed by the Regional Food Controller, Ayodhya Region, Ayodhya declaring the petitioner unfit for the post of Junior Assistant on which he was finally selected. The reasons so indicated in the impugned order is that the petitioner while submitting his information on 6.8.2018 has concealed the fact that one criminal case bearing Crime No. 238/2017 under section 147, 323, 504 and 506 I.P.C. at P.S. Naunhara, District Ghazipur was pending wherein the charge-sheet has been filed against the petitioner on 13.1.2018.

The learned counsel for the petitioner has categorically indicated in para 10 of the writ petition that petitioner was absolutely unaware about the aforesaid criminal case and charge-sheet inasmuch as the petitioner could know about the aforesaid fact on the police verification being made against him in the month of March, 2019 and immediately after knowing the aforesaid fact the petitioner intimated the authorities that he has obtained bail in the aforesaid case. Not only the above the petitioner has preferred a letter to the department on 13.5.2019 which has been enclosed with the counter affidavit wherein the petitioner has intimated the fact that he was absolutely unaware about the aforesaid case and since he has been released on bail and the matter is pending before the criminal court, therefore, if the petitioner is held guilty in the aforesaid criminal case his services may be terminated. On that application of the petitioner the appointing authority has preferred a letter dated 13.6.2019 (Annexure no. 7) to the Commissioner, Food and Civil Supplies apprising the fact that as per opinion of D.G.C.(Civil), Ayodhya there is no legal impediment appointing the petitioner on the post in question. However, on the said letter the Additional Commissioner, Food and Civil Supplies has written letter dated 12.7.2019 (Annexure no. 8) to the Regional Food Controller, Ayodhya to take appropriate decision as he is the appointing authority, thereafter the Regional Food Controller has passed the impugned order dated 9.8.2019. In the counter affidavit this fact has not properly been replied as to whether the petitioner was informed about the pending criminal case and the charge-sheet which was filed on 13.1.2018. If the aforesaid fact was not within the knowledge of the petitioner then the premise of the authorities on which the impugned order has been passed would not be said to be correct.

Therefore, in view of the above the learned Addl. C.S.C. is directed to obtain the information from the Court concerned wherein the charge-sheet dated 13.1.2018 has been filed against the petitioner regarding the information of the criminal case being given to the petitioner on or before 8.6.2018 when the petitioner has submitted his declaration. The aforesaid exercise shall be carried out within a period of two weeks.

List this petition on 24.2.2020 within top 10 cases.

Learned counsel for the petitioner may also file the order-sheet of the Court concerned to convince the Court that on or before 8.6.2018 the information of pendency of any criminal case or charge-sheet has not been provided to him. "

3. In compliance of the aforesaid order learned counsel for the petitioner has already filed affidavit bringing on record the certified copy of the order-sheet of the learned court-below i.e. A.C.J.M., Ghazipur demonstrating the fact as to when the petitioner could know about the pendency of the criminal case.

4. Learned Addl. C.S.C. has also produced the letter dated 22.2.2020 preferred by the Regional Food Controller, addressing to the C.S.C. of this Court enclosing therewith some relevant correspondences, the same are taken on record. As per aforesaid instructions this much has been indicated that the charge-sheet in the issue in question has been submitted before the Court concerned on 13.1.2018 and the petitioner has filed his declaration before the competent authority on 8.6.2018, before submission of charge-sheet, therefore, the fact was known to the petitioner regarding pendency of criminal case. In the aforesaid instruction it has nowhere been indicated as to how such information was provided to the petitioner.

5. The affidavit so filed by Sri Tripathi, learned counsel for the petitioner clearly indicates that the learned court-below has issued notice to the petitioner on 17.10.2018 directing him to appear before the Court concerned on 5.1.2019. Therefore, there is no doubt that the petitioner could know about the pendency of criminal case only after the notice has been issued by the Court concerned on 17.10.2018 for his appearance on 5.1.2019.

6. In view of the above it is clear that when the petitioner has filed declaration on 8.6.2018 he was absolutely unaware about the pendency of the criminal case inasmuch as he could know about the aforesaid fact on or after 17.10.2018.

7. The issue in question has already been settled by the Hon'ble Apex Court while issuing guidelines in such type of matters as to how those circumstances can be dealt with, in re: Avtar Singh vs. Union of India & others reported in (2016) 8 SCC 471. The relevant para of the judgment in re: Avtar Singh (supra) are 38.1 to 38.4, 38.5 and 38.6, which are being reproduced herein below :

"38.1. Information given to the employer by a candidate as to conviction, acquittal or arrest, or pendency of a criminal case, whether before or after entering into service must be true and there should be no suppression or false mention of required information.

38.2.While passing order of termination of services or cancellation of candidature for giving false information, the employer may take notice of special circumstances of the case, if any, while giving such information.

38.3. The employer shall take into consideration the Government orders/ instruction/ rules, applicable to the employee, at the time of taking the decision.

38.4. In case there is suppression or false information of involvement in a criminal case where conviction or acquittal had already been recorded before filling of the application/verification form and such fact later comes to knowledge of employer, any of the following recourses appropriate to the case may be adopted:

38.5. In a case where the employee has made declaration truthfully of a concluded criminal case, the employer still has the right to consider antecedents, and cannot be compelled to appoint the candidate.

38.6. In case when fact has been truthfully declared in character verification form regarding pendency of a criminal case of trivial nature, employer, in facts and circumstances of the case, in its discretion may appoint the candidate subject to decision of such case."

8. The Hon'ble Apex Court in re: Commissioner of Police and others vs. Sandeep Kumar, (2011) 4 SCC 644, in para 12 has held as under :

"12. It is true that in the application form the respondent did not mention that he was involved in a criminal case under Sections 325/34 IPC. Probably he did not mention this out of fear that if he did so he would automatically be disqualified. At any event, it was not such a serious offence like murder, dacoity or rape, and hence a more lenient view should be taken in the matter."

9. The Hon'ble Apex Court has held that the offence under Section 325/34 IPC is not so serious to refuse appointment of any person. In the light of the aforesaid dictum of the Hon'ble Apex Court, in the present case, the offence of the petitioner is less serious than the offence under Section 325 IPC inasmuch as under Section 325 IPC, the punishment prescribed as seven years whereas in none of the sections, the petitioner's charge is having punishment of about seven years. Therefore, it appears that while passing the impugned order dated 09.08.2019, the competent authority has not invoked his discretion reasonably.

10. In view of the above, I am of the considered opinion that since the petitioner was not aware about the pendency of the criminal case at the time of submitting his declaration, therefore, he could have not disclosed such fact in his declaration. Therefore, it appears that the impugned order dated 9.8.2019 is liable to be revisited inasmuch as the order impugned suffers from arbitrariness and discrimination, hence, the same is liable to be set aside.

11. Accordingly, a writ in the nature of certiorari is issued quashing the order dated 9.8.2019 passed by the Regional Food Controller, Ayodhya Region, Ayodhya (Annexure no. 1). The matter is remitted back to the authority concerned to pass appropriate orders strictly in accordance with law considering the facts and circumstances of the issue in question as well as the dictum of Hon'ble Apex Court in re: Avtar Singh (supra). The compliance of the aforesaid order shall be made with promptness preferably within a period of one month.

12. In view of above observations, writ petition is Allowed.

13. No order as to costs.

CIVIL SIDE

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE SUDHIR AGARWAL, J.

Radhey Shyam Birla ...Petitioner
Versus
Union of India & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Sri Kshetresh Chandra Shukla, Sri Vivek Kumar Singh

Counsel for the Respondents:
S.S.C., Sri Devendra Pratap Singh, Sri Jitendra Nath Sharma, Kirtika Singh, Sri V.B. Singh

A. Service Law –General Clauses Act, 1897-: Section 27;- Indian Evidence Act, 1872:- Section 114(e), 114(f);- Indian Post Office Act, 1898:- Sections 2(f), 3, 4, 17, 14 – Voluntary Retirement Scheme - Resignation - It is for the sendee, who deny service of registered letter upon him and attempted to challenge endorsement of "refusal" made by Postman, to lead evidence which includes examination of "Postman" also and in case he fails to do so, legal presumption will go against him and will remain to be unrebutted unless there is other material to show otherwise.
Nothing of this sort has been shown in the case in hand. (Para 45)
Petitioner withdrew his resignation and communicated this fact to the respondents vide letters dated 07.07.2003 and 21.07.2003 which was sent by registered post. It is not the case of the respondents that registered letter is not properly addressed and, hence, presumption of service lies in favour of petitioner unless proved otherwise by respondents. Respondents as per the own case set up finally accepted resignation of petitioner vide letter dated 30.01.2004 i.e. after withdrawal of resignation which could not have been done. Therefore, acceptance of resignation letter dated 31.07.2002 is invalid and not in accordance with law. (Para 7, 16, 46)

B. Meaning of words "resign" and "resignation" referred to – A conditional resignation is not a valid resignation (Para 52 to 62) - It can be safely said that letter of resignation tendered by petitioner in the present case is a conditional letter of resignation. It states that resignation may be accepted on payment of all outstanding dues, which shows that resignation was simultaneous to payment of all outstanding dues. Hence, it could not have been accepted. (Para 50, 51)
Therefore, the contention of the respondent that withdrawal of resignation being conditional, will not be treated to be a withdrawal, does not suffice, as the resignation itself is rendered invalid. (Para 49)

C. Constitution of India: Article 12 – A public functionary cannot be permitted to act like a dictator causing harassment to a common man and in particular when the person subject to harassment is his own employee - The respondents being "State" under Art. 12, its officers are public functionaries. Petitioner has placed on record certain documents to show that some employees have been retained by respondents which is sought to be explained by respondents that a skeleton staff was maintained to take out formal closure activities. This means that entire staff has not been terminated. In these facts and circumstances, there is no reason to deny relief to petitioner to which he is entitled, particularly when respondent-Employer has committed fault. They cannot be allowed to take advantage of their own wrong. (Para 64, 65, 66, 73, 74)
Therefore, the contention that Unit in which petitioner was working is closed in 2004 itself and, therefore, petitioner neither can be given re-employment or reinstatement nor any other service benefit, does not suffice. (Para 63)
Writ petition allowed. (E-4)

Petition assails orders dated 31.07.2003 and 31.01.2004, passed by National Textiles Corporation (UP) Ltd.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal, J.

1. Heard Sri Vivek Kumar Singh, learned counsel for petitioner and Sri Devendra Pratap Singh, learned counsel for respondents.

2. Petitioner was an employee of National Textiles Corporation (U.P.) Limited (hereinafter referred to as "NTCL") which was having its unit New Victoria Mills at Kanpur. He was appointed on 27.04.1984 as Cotton Selector (non-gazetted post). Several units of NTCL suffered losses and declared sick, therefore, Modified Voluntary Retirement Scheme (hereinafter referred to as "MVRS") was launched by Respondent-Employer and pursuant whereto, petitioner submitted letter dated 31.07.2002 resigning from service. Said letter reads as under:-

''राष्ट्रीय पुनर्वास योजना द्वारा संचालित संसोधित स्वैच्छिक सेवानिवृत्ति योजना के अन्तर्गत मिल की सूचना दिनांक 13–6–2002, एवं 27–7–2002 के परिप्रेक्ष्य में अपना त्याग पत्र देना चाहता हूं।

अतः निवेदन है कि प्रार्थी के सेवाकाल से सम्बन्धित समस्त देयों का भुगतान सुनिश्चित करते हुए त्याग पत्र स्वीकार करने की कृपा करें।''

"Under amended Voluntary Retirement Scheme run by National Rehabilitation Plan, in the light of information dated 13.6.2002 and 27.7.2002, I wish to tender my resignation.

It is, therefore, requested that resignation of applicant be kindly accepted ensuring all payments payable to him relating to his service period."

(English Translation by Court)

3. However, before it could be accepted, petitioner submitted another letter dated 07.07.2003 withdrawing his resignation letter dated 31.07.2002. A reminder letter dated 21.07.2003 was also submitted by petitioner to Officer on Special Duty Unit at Kanpur intimating that he is withdrawing his resignation and in this regard he has already submitted letter dated 07.07.2003, therefore, his resignation should not be accepted. Averments in respect of withdrawal of resignation vide letters dated 07.07.2003 and 31.07.2003 have been made in paras- 14 and 15 of writ petition which read as under:-

"14. That the petitioner withdrawn his resignation as tendered on 31.07.2002 by means of letter dated 7.7.2003 given to respondent no. 4. The said applicatioin dated 7.7.2003 was duly received by Factory Manager/ Manager

(Industial Relation) on same date which was duly endorsed on the Register of New Victoria Mills.

15. That the petitioner also sent withdrawal application dated 21.07.2003 through registered post to respondent-4 and the copy of the same also forwarded before the respondent no. 3 for revocation of his resignation dated 31.07.2002 tendered in pursuance to modified Voluntary Retirement Scheme."

4. However, respondents communicated to petitioner that his resignation has been accepted with effect from 01.08.2003.

5. It is contended that since petitioner has already withdrawn resignation, subsequent acceptance of resignation is patently illegal and of no legal consequence.

6. Sri D.P. Singh, learned counsel for respondent-Employer drew my attention to the averments contained in para-8 of counter affidavit wherein it is stated that letter dated 07.07.2003 was not received by Office/Management and has wrongly been annexed as Annexure-3 to the writ petition. It is further stated that it was a conditional withdrawal of resignation to provide a job in the Mill which was not possible. Reply to para-15 of the writ petition has been given in para-9 of the counter affidavit wherein it is stated that letter dated 31.07.2002 mentioned in said letter, was not actually received in the Office. He also submitted that Mill has already been closed, therefore, it is not possible to take petitioner into service.

7. The first question up for consideration before Court is, "whether acceptance of resignation letter dated 31.07.2002 is valid and in accordance with law".

8. Parties have not disputed that resignation letter dated 31.07.2002 was given by petitioner. Its contents are already reproduced in para-2 of the judgement. Respondents claim to have accepted petitioner's resignation after an year i.e. vide order dated 31.07.2003. Petitioner was sought to be relieved on 01.08.2003. The letter/ notice dated 31.07.2003 issued by Sri N.K. Pandey, Officer on Special Duty (hereinafter referred to as "OSD") is Annexure-5 to the writ petition and it reads under:-

"Notice

It is, hereby, informed to the following employees that their resignation under M.V.R.S., have been accpeted by the management. Accordingly, they are, hereby, retired/relieved from the services of the mills w.e.f. 01.08.2003 (before duty).

3	Sri R.S. Birla	Cotton Selector	Spg.

(N.K. Pandey)

Officer on Spl. Duty"

9. There is another office order dated 10.09.2003 issued by OSD Sri N.K. Pandey which clearly states that due to some unavoidable circumstances, acceptance of resignations under MVRS is not possible and, hence, they (petitioner and another) are desired to continue in service and for the gap, if any, they may avail earned leave. Said office order is annexed as Annexure-6 to the writ petition and it reads as under:-

"Due to some unavoidable circumstances, till further orders to accept the resignation under MVRS of the following officials of the mills is not possible and as such they are desired to continued their services. For the gap, if say in between, they may avail their earned leave.

1. Sri Mohd. Yunus, Jr. Asstt. W/H/ Incharge.

2. Sri R.S.Birla, Cotton Selector."

10. The facts about office order dated 10.09.2003 have been mentioned by petitioner in para-22 of the writ petition. It has been replied in para-11 of the counter affidavit wherein, though, it has been denied but subsequent explanation shows admission of issue of said letter dated 10.09.2003 by Sri N.K. Pandey, OSD. It would be appropriate to reproduce para-11 of the counter affidavit as under:-

"11. That the contents of paragraph Nos. 22 and 23 of the writ petition as stated are denied. The letter of a OSD of N.V.M. Dated 10.09.2003 is not the denial of MVRS or non acceptance of his resignation submitted by him dated 31.07.2002. It was merely a letter for taking work from the petitioner as a temporary measure for which necessity arose as a wining up operation. Few skeleton hands were required for closing of operation. But it does not effect the status of the petitioner to claim continuance of service in the Mill which is not existence."

11. Then, there is another letter dated 23.10.2004 (Annexure-1 to the counter affidavit) filed on behalf of respondents-1 to 4 wherein it is stated that petitioner's resignation has been accepted and he has been relieved from service with effect from 01.02.2004. Here the date of relieving, after acceptance of resignation, has changed from 01.08.2003 to 01.02.2004. Respondents have also filed a copy of letter dated 16.02.2004 stating that original copy of letter dated 30.01.2004 regarding acceptance of petitioner's resignation under MVRS with effect from 31.01.2004 is enclosed and the same was also displayed on notice board. This letter dated 16.02.2004 (Annexure- CA-2) reads as under:-

"Shri R.S. Birla, Ex.Cotton Selector

H.No. 11/249,
Opp: G.C.T.I. Hostel, Souterganj,
Kanpur

Dear Sir,

Enclosed please find herewith the original copy of this letter dated 30.01.2004 regarding accpetance of your resignation under Modified Voluntary Retirement Scheme w.e.f. 31.01.2004 (After duty). A copy of the same has already been displayed at the Notice Board of the mills. Please also submit your Bank Account number immediately.

Thanking you,
Yours faithfully,
for New Victoria Mills,
Unit of NTC (UP) Limited,

(Govind Singh)

Officer on Spl. Duty"

12. A copy of letter dated 31.01.2004 is Annexure-10 to the writ petition and this shows that alleged acceptance of resignation under MVRS was vide letter dated 31.01.2004 and petitioner was sought to be relieved in the afternoon on 31.01.2004. It also directed petitioner to collect his dues from office. The contents of letter dated 31.01.2004 reads as under:-

''आपके संशोधित स्वैच्छिक सेवानिवृत्ति योजना के अन्तर्गत जो त्याग पत्र दिया गया है, उसे सवीकार कर लिया गया है। आपको दिनांक 31.01.2004 (ड्यूटी उपरानत) से मिल की सेवाओं से सेवानिवृत्त किया जाता है।

"The resignation tendered by you under the Modified Voluntary Retirement Scheme has been accepted. You stand retired from the Mill services w.e.f. 31.01.2004 (after duty).

You may on expiry of 25 days receive your dues from the Mill office in any working day."

(English Translation by Court)

13. In between, I find that there is one more letter dated 07.10.2003 which informs petitioner that his resignation under MVRS has been accepted by Management and shortly he shall be relieved. This letter dated 07.10.2003 is Annexure-7 to the writ petition and contents thereof reads as under:-

''सूचनीय है कि संशोधित स्वैच्छिक सेवानिवृत्ति के अन्तर्गत आपके द्वारा दिया त्याग पत्र दिनांक 12.07.2002 प्रबन्ध तंत्र द्वारा स्वीकार किया जाता है। तथा आपको शीघ्र सेवा से मुक्त कर दिया जायेगा।''

"Be informed that your resignation tendered under the Modified Voluntary Retirement Scheme stands accepted by the Management on 12.07.2002 and you will be relieved of your duties at the earliest."

14. Therefore, as per the case set up by respondents, resignation submitted by petitioner on 31.07.2002 was accepted, firstly, vide letter dated 31.07.2003 and he was relieved on 01.08.2003; thereafter vide letter dated 10.09.2003, petitioner was informed that it is not possible to accept his resignation and he will continue to work. Again, vide letter dated 07.10.2003, respondents claim to have accepted petitioner's resignation but state that he shall be relieved shortly. Then comes third letter dated 31.01.2004 informing petitioner that his resignation has been accepted and he is being relieved in the afternoon on 31.01.2004. In the meantime, respondents admit that petitioner had continued to work and one of such letter dated 07.01.2004 (Annexure-9 to the writ petition) shows that earlier he was attached with Vigilance Department of the Unit, vide order dated 09.01.2001 which was withdrawn and he was directed to report to his place of new posting. He was relieved by Vigilance Officer on 07.01.2004. Subsequent vide letter dated 16.02.2004 issued by respondents refers to resignation of petitioner vide letter dated 30.01.2004 and his relieving in the afternoon on 31.01.2004 which means that earlier acceptance was not acted upon by respondents or it was not accepted or there was no such valid acceptance at all. In the meantime, petitioner submitted letter dated 07.07.2003 withdrawing his resignation. Then letter dated 21.07.2003 (Annexure-4 to the writ petition) was also given referring to withdrawal letter dated 07.07.2003. It was sent by registered post. Interestingly, facts regarding withdrawal letters dated 07.07.2003 and 21.07.2003 have been stated in paras- 14, 15 and 16 to the writ petition and it read as under:-

"14. That the petitioner withdrawn his resignation as tendered on 31.07.2002 by means of letter dated 7.7.2003 given to respondent no.4. The said application dated 7.7.2003 was duly received by Factory Manager/ Manager (Industrial Relation) on same date which was duly endorsed on the Register of New Victoria Mills.

15. That the petitioner also sent withdrawal application dated 21.07.2003 through registered post to respondent-4 and the copy of the same also forwarded before the respondent no. 3 for revocation of his resignation dated 31.07.2002 tendered in pursuance to Modified Voluntary Retirement Scheme.

16. That it is noteworthy here that the office of respondent no. 4 had received the said registered revocation letter dated 23.07.2003."

15. Respondents have replied aforesaid paragraphs in paras- 8 and 9 of counter affidavit and the same read as under:-

"8. That the contents of paragraph Nos. 12, 13 and 14 of the writ petition as stated are denied. The letter of resignation dated 31.07.2002 has been accepted and acted upon by the management. By letter dated 07.07.2003 which has not been received by the management and has wrongly been annexed as Annexure No. 3 in the writ petition, even its perusal tells different story. It is a conditional withdrawal of resignation and provide a job in the mill was impossibility for the management. It is reiterated that the letter is a manufactured document only to create a confusion.

9.That contents of paragraph Nos. 15, 16 and 17 of the writ petition as stated are denied. It is too late for the petitioner to take Summer Sault. His resignation dated 31.07.2002 was accepted and on the Notice Board pasted on 31.07.2003. Petitioner has been relieved from duty w.e.f. 01.08.2003, his name appears at Sl.No.3 vide Annexure-5 in the writ petition annexed by the petitioner. As stated above, even the withdrawal of resignation which has never received by the management was conditional as sated by the petitioner by a document Annexure No. 3 not received by the management. In the alternative, the petitioner will have no other remedy in the matter as due to the closure of mill, no relief can be granted. It is wrong to allege that the registered letter dated 23.07.2003 was ever received by the management rather the management is always informed even personally to the petitioner that he stood relieved. His resignation has been accepted and his MVRS is ready can be collected by him. The petitioner was fluctuating in the decision."

16. The provisions of MVRS also shows that once resignation is accepted, incumbent could not have been allowed to continue since that will have resulted in abolition of post. Hence, if resignation of petitioner was accepted by respondents vide letter dated 31.07.2003, neither it could have been deferred nor petitioner could have been allowed to continue nor there would have arisen any other occasion to accept resignation at two different times i.e. 07.10.2003 and 30.01.2004. This shows that respondents have taken inconsistent stand in the matter though, in the meantime, petitioner already withdrew his resignation and communicated this fact to the respondents vide letter dated 07.07.2003 and again vide letter dated 21.07.2003 which was sent by registered post. The registered receipt is shown as Annexure-8 to the rejoinder affidavit and copy of said letter was also addressed to Chairman and Managing Director, N.T.C. (U.P.) Limited, Kanpur. It is not the case of respondents that registered letter is not properly addressed and, hence, presumption of service lie in favour of petitioner unless proved otherwise by respondents. In taking above view, I am fortified by Statute and may refer the same as under.

17. First, is Section 27 of General Clauses Act, 1897 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1897" which reads as under:

"27. Meaning of service by post.- Where any Central Act or Regulation made after the commencement of this Act authorizes or requires any document to be served by post, where the expression "serve" or either of the expressions "give" or "send" or any other expression is used, then, unless a different intention appears, the service shall be deemed to be effected by properly addressing pre-paying and posting by registered post, a letter containing the document, and unless the contrary is proved, to have been effected at the time at which the letter would be delivered in the ordinary course of post."

18. Another relevant provision is Section 114, Illustrations (e) and (f), Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1972") which reads as under:

"114. Court may presume existence of certain facts.- The Court may presume the existence of any fact which it thinks likely to have happened, regard being had to the common course of natural events, human conduct and public and private business, in their relation to the facts of the particular case.

Illustrations

The Court may presume-

(e) The judicial and official acts have been regularly performed;

(f) That the common course of business has been followed in particular cases;"

19. The third is Indian Post Office Act, 1898 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1898"). Section 3 and 14 thereof, relevant for the purpose of present case, are reproduced as under:

"3. Meanings of "in course of transmission by post" and "delivery".- For the purposes of this Act,-

a) a postal article shall be deemed to be in course of transmission by the post from the time of its being delivered to a post office to the time of its being delivered to the addressee or of its being returned to the sender or otherwise disposed of under Chapter VII;

b) the delivery of a postal article of any description to a postman or other person authorized to receive postal articles of that description for the post shall be deemed to be a delivery to a post office; and

*c) the delivery of a postal article at the house or office of the addressee, or to the addressee or his servant or agent or other person considered to be authorized to receive the article according to the usual manner of delivering postal articles to the addressee, shall be deemed to be delivery to the addressee."

"14. Post Office marks prima facie evidence of certain facts denoted.-In every proceeding for the recovery of any postage or other sum alleged to be due under this Act in respect of a postal article,-

*(a) the production of the postal article, having thereon the official mark of the Post Office denoting that the article has been refused, or that the addressee is dead or cannot be found, shall be prima facie evidence of the fact so denoted, and

(b) the person from whom the postal article purports to have come, shall, until the contrary is proved, be deemed to be the sender thereof."

20. Though in the three statutes referred to above, the oldest one is Act, 1872 but in fact the provisions relating to Post Office Act are older, going to 1866 when the first Post Office Act was enacted. In the then British Indian Territory governed by the British Government, postal services were established by appointing a Director, Post Office by the Governor General in Council in order to regulate this branch of public service and revenue, in the light of experiences gained by English postal legislation and development of Post Offices. Commenting upon the Post Office service in England, in Whitfield Vs. Lord Le Despencer (1778) 2 Cowp. 754, Lord Mansfield had said:

*"The Post Master has no hire, enters into no contract, carries on no merchandise or commerce. But the post office is a branch of revenue, and a branch of police, created by Act of Parliament. As a branch of revenue, there are great receipts; but there is likewise a great surplus of benefit and advantage to the public, arising from the fund. As a branch of police it puts the whole correspondence of the kingdom (for the exceptions are very trifling) under government, and entrusts the management and direction of it to the crown, and officers appointed by the crown. There is no analogy therefore between the case of the Post Master and a common carrier."

21. Following the above decision, in a recent case in Triefus & Co. Ltd. Vs. Post Office (1957) 2 Q.B. 352, it was held that Post Office is a branch of Revenue and Post Master General does not enter into any contract with a person who entrusted to the Post Office a postal packet for transmission overseas.

22. Presently also the Post Office service in India, with which this Court is concerned, is not in the hands of any private individual or corporate body but it is a Department of Government of India and on certain matters, it is regulated by various Statutes including Act, 1898.

23. I have referred to the above two decisions in Whitfield Vs. Lord Le Despencer (1778) 2 Cowp. 754 and Triefus & Co. Ltd. Vs. Post Office (1957) 2 Q.B. 352 for the reason that the system of Post Office in India has been observed to be similar as it was in England. Apex Court referring to the certain provisions of Act, 1898 has said, in Union of India Vs. Mohd. Niazim AIR 1980 SC 431, as under:

"These are only some of the provisions of the Act which seem to indicate that the post office is not a common carrier, it is not an agent of the sender of the postal article for reaching it to the addressee. It is really a branch of the public service providing postal services subject to the provisions of the Indian Post Office Act and the rules made thereunder.

The law relating to the post office in England is not very much different from that in this country. "

24. The aforesaid decision was rendered considering the provisions in Act, 1898 which was enacted by repealing previous Act of 1866 so as to consolidate and amend the law relating to Post Office in India.

25. The Post Office in India, thus, is an institution established by a statute. "Postage" required to avail of the postal services has been defined in section 2 (f) of Act, 1898 as "the duty chargeable for the transmission by post of postal articles". Under section 4 the exclusive privilege of conveying letters is reserved to the Central Government with certain exceptions which are not significant. Section 17 of the Act says that "postage stamps" shall be deemed to be issued by Government for the purpose of revenue. The provisions of the Act indicate that the Post Office is not a common carrier. It is not an agent of sender of the postal article for reaching it to the addressee. It is really a branch of the public service providing postal services subject to the provisions of Act, 1898 and the Rules made thereunder. It is in this context, Section 14 of Act, 1898 would also be a matter of relevance which says that the production of the postal article, having thereon the official mark of Post Office denoting that the article has been refused, or that the addressee is dead or cannot be found, shall be prima facie evidence of the fact so denoted. The Statute provides a prima facie evidence of the mark given by Postal Department on the postal article sent by post regarding its correctness, though the word "prima facie" shows that it is liable to be disproved by adducing evidence otherwise. Meaning thereby the mere denial by the party in respect to whom the endorsement has been made by postal agent otherwise, would not be sufficient unless he adduce evidence to discredit prima facie evidence in the shape of endorsement made by postal department on the article concerned. This provision read with Section 114 of Act, 1872 and Section 27 of Act, 1897 makes the situation quite clear. It appears that in various decisions, while considering the question of service of notice, most of the times, provisions of Act, 1898 and its implication have been omitted even when the service was sought to be effected by registered post.

26. Initially the issue of service of notice under Section 106 of Transfer of Property Act, 1882 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1882") was considered by Privy Council in Harihar Banerji and others Vs. Ramshashi Roy and others AIR 1918 PC 102. Court said, if a letter, properly directed, containing a notice to quit, is proved to have been put into Post Office, it is presumed that letter reached its destination at the proper time according to the regular course of business of Post Office and was received by the person to whom it was addressed. The presumption would apply with still greater force to such letters for which the sender has taken precaution to register and is not rebutted but strengthened by the fact that a receipt for the letter is produced, signed on behalf of the addressee by some person other than the addressee himself. Here was a case where service of notice was not denied by all and one of the person has admitted its service, therefore, a presumption was drawn. So the facts of this case makes it clear that the presumption was rightly drawn.

27. In Sukumar Guha Vs. Naresh Chandra Ghosh AIR 1968 Cal. 49, a Single Judge (Hon'ble Amresh Roj, J.) referring to Section 114, Illustration (f) of Act, 1872, Section 106 of Act, 1882 and Section 27 of Act, 1897 said that presumption under Section 27 of Act, 1897 can arise only when a notice is sent by registered post while there may arise a presumption under Section 114 of Act, 1872 when notice is sent by ordinary post or under certificate of posting. Both the presumptions are rebuttable. When the cover containing notice has been returned to the sender by postal authorities, then that fact is direct proof of the fact that the notice sent by post was not delivered to the party to whom it was addressed. Whether it was tendered and, if so, to whom tendered, remains a matter to be ascertained on evidence. If acceptable evidence is available that it was tendered to the party personally, then such facts may bring the service of notice within the second mode, namely, tendered or delivered personally to such party. If however, tender or delivery is not to the party personally but to a member of his family or a servant, then it may be effective tender or delivery only when the notice was addressed to the residence of the party. Such personal tender or vicarious tender may be effective even if it was through the agency of post office, and proof of that tender comes from testimony of any person present at the event, and not only by examining the postman. Here what I find is that when Court talks of evidence, when we read it in the context of Section 114 of Act, 1872, a registered envelop received back from postal authority with the endorsement of postman of "refusal" will constitute a valid evidence to show that it was served upon the addressee but he refused to accept unless proved otherwise and for that purpose the examination of postman for constituting a prima facie evidence further would not be required in view of Section 14 of Act, 1898. This Section 14 of Act, 1898 has not been noticed by the Court.

28. This Court in Wasu Ram Vs. R.L. Sethi 1963 AWR 472 said:

"The question whether a communication sent through the post was received by the address is one of fact, but in many cases it may be difficult and inconvenient if not impossible, to produce the postal official who delivered the letter or the money order. To obviate this difficulty the Evidence Act permits certain presumptions to be made under certain circumstances. S. 16 provides that "when there is a question whether a particular act was done, the existence of any course of business, according to which it naturally would have been done, is a relevant fact". The illustration (a) to this section explains that in a question "whether a particular letter was despaired, the facts that it was the ordinary course of business for all letter put in a certain place to be carried to the post, and that particular letter was put in that place, are relevant". S. 114 provides that the court may presume the existence of any fact which it thinks likely to have happened, regard being had to the common course of natural events, human conduct and public and proper business, in their relation to the facts of the particular case. Illustration (e) to this section says that "the court may presume that judicial and official acts have been regularly performed"; and Illustration (f) says that the court may presume that "the common course of business has been followed in particular cases". The combined effect of these two sections is to raise a presumption that a communication sent by post was received in the ordinary course by the addressee, and if it was returned to the sender with the endorsement "refused", the postman must have tendered it but delivery could not be made because of the refusal of the addressee. These presumptions are based on human experience and common sense. Our experience tells us that millions of letters which are posted are delivered in due course to the address, though in exceptional cases letters do get lost. The onus of proof is on the person who asserts that the abnormal happened in his case and the communication sent by post did not follow its normal course to destination."

29. This Court further held:

"Whenever a communication is sent by post there is a presumption that it was duly delivered or tendered. If the communication is returned by the post office with the endorsement "refused" the presumption will be that it was tendered by the postal authorities in their ordinary course of business to the addressee who refused. The strength of the presumption will vary according to the fact of each case, being strong in the case of registered letters, and strongest in the case of money orders and insured articles the delivery of which cannot be made without observing certain precautions which are prescribed. Rules u/Chap. VII of the Post and Telegraph Guide provide that in case of refusal the money order shall be returned to the remitter with the endorsement "refused". If the addressee states on oath that he never received the communication, the Court must decide after considering all the surrounding circumstances, whether he should be believed. The question is always one of fact, though I would add as a matter of plain common sense that a denial which is not only bare but bare-faced and made by a person who stood to profit by his denial and, therefore, had all the motive in the word to deny, will not ordinarily weaken the presumption."

30. The above view was followed in Asa Ram Vs. Ravi Prakash AIR 1966 All. 519 and relevant observation in para 3 reads as under:

"3. Mr. Sinha then argued that a presumption of refusal could arise only if the endorsement 'refused' was proved by evidence, and this could only be done by producing the postman who made the endorsement. I do not agree. If the landlord deposes that he sent an envelop containing the notice and that the same envelop was received by him with the endorsement 'refused' which was not there before and he produces the envelop with the endorsement, this is a sufficient evidence to prove the endorsement. In this case the respondent appeared as a witness and proved the sending and the return of the envelope. On this evidence the Court could rely on the presumption authorized under S. 114 of the Evidence Act."

31. Thereafter, the issue came to be considered by a Full Bench in Ganga Ram Vs. Phulwati AIR 1970 All. 446. One of the three questions referred for consideration before Full Bench was "whether it is incumbent on the plaintiff to prove the endorsement of refusal on the notice sent by registered post by producing the postman or other evidence in case the defendant denies service on him? Full Bench considered this question referring to provisions of all three Statutes, namely, Act, 1872; Act, 1897 and Act, 1898.

Besides others, it also referred to Rule 64 (1) of Indian Post Office Rules which reads as under:

"64 (1). If the sender of a registered article pays at the time of posting the article a fee of one anna in addition to the postage and registration fee, there shall be sent to him on the delivery of the article a form of acknowledgement which shall be signed by the addressee or if the addressee refuses to sign shall be accompanied by a statement to the effect that the addressee has refused to sign."

32. Having referred to various provisions of Act, 1898 and Rules framed thereunder, Court said, when the postmen or the clerks at the station of destination are required to do and what endorsements they are required to make, all such acts are clearly provided in the Statute. All such acts are done by them and all such endorsements are made by them in discharge of their official duties. Court, thus, proceeded further and held that a notice sent by registered post will be entitled to draw a presumption regarding due service of that notice vide Illustration (e) and (f) of Section 114 of Act, 1872. In this regard, Court also referred to Section 16 of Act, 1872 and said that as a proposition, it cannot be disputed that when a letter is delivered to an accepting or receiving post office it is reasonably expected that in the normal course it would be delivered to the addressee. That is the official and the normal function of the post office.

33. Having said so, Court further proceeded to hold that taking into consideration the manner in which Post Office deals with registered letters, the endorsement on the notice "Refused" strengthens the presumption that an attempt was made to deliver the notice to the addressee. Court in para 22 of the judgment clearly said:

"... with the endorsement "Refused" the presumption of service could be raised under Section 27 of the General Clauses Act, and it would be a presumption of law, and not of fact."

34. It also held that a presumption of law is rebuttable unless it is made unrebuttable by some provision of law. Full Bench disagreed with the view taken by the Bombay High Court in Vaman Vithal Vs. Khanderao Ram Rao. AIR 1935 Bom 247, Nagpur High Court in Jankiram Narhari Vs. Damodhar Ramchandra, AIR 1956 Nag. 266 and Madhya Bharat High Court in Tekchand Devidas Vs. Gulab Chand Chandan Mal, AIR 1957 Madh B. 151 where the said three Courts have taken a view that there can be no presumption that the endorsement of refusal was made by the postman unless the postman is examined and such endorsement was inadmissible in evidence. Full Bench thus answered the question accordingly holding that postman is not necessarily to be examined by plaintiff.

35. The above Full Bench judgment in Ganga Ram (supra) has been referred to and approved in Samittri Devi and another Vs. Sampuran Singh and another (2011) 3 SCC 556 (para 26).

36. This issue also came up for consideration in Puwada Venkateswara Rao Vs. Chidamana Venkata Ramana AIR 1976 SC 869 and in para 10 of the judgment, it has held:

"It is not always necessary, in such cases, to produce the postman who tried to effect service. The denial of service by a party may be found to be incorrect from its own admissions or conduct."

37. In Har Charan Singh Vs. Shiv Rani AIR 1981 SC 1284, a three-Judge Bench (by majority held) with respect to notice when registered letter is returned with endorsement of "refusal", said:

"Section 27 of the General Clauses Act, 1897 deals with the topic 'Meaning of service by post' and says that where any Central Act or Regulation authorities or requires any document to be served by post, then unless a different intention appears, the service shall be deemed to be effected by properly addressing, pre-paying and posting it by registered post, a letter containing the document, and unless the contrary is proved, to have been effected at the time at which the letter would be delivered in the ordinary course of post. The section thus raises a presumption of due service or proper service if the document sought to be served is sent by properly addressing, prepaying and posting by registered post to the addressee and such presumption is raised irrespective of whether any acknowledgement due is received from the addressee or not. It is obvious that when the section raises the presumption that the service shall be deemed to have been effected it means the addressee to whom the communication is sent must be taken to have known the contents of the document sought to be served upon him without anything more. Similar presumption is raised under Illustration (f) to s. 114 of the Indian Evidence Act whereunder it is stated that the Court may presume that the common course of business has been followed in a particular case, that is to say, when a letter is sent by post by pre-paying and properly addressing it the same has been received by the addressee. Undoubtedly, the presumptions both under s. 27 of the General Clauses Act as well as under s. 114 of the Evidence Act are rebuttable but in the absence of proof to the contrary the presumption of proper service or effective service on the addressee would arise."

38. Again this issue came to be considered by a two-Judge Bench in Anil Kumar Vs. Nanak Chandra Verma AIR 1990 SC 1215. Overruling this Court's decision in Shiv Dutt Singh Vs. Ram Das AIR 1980 All. 280 Court held in para 2, as under:

"2. The question considered in both the decisions was to the statement on oath by the, tenant denying the tender and refusal to accept delivery. It was held that the bare statement of the tenant was sufficient to rebut the presumption of service. In our opinion there could be no hard and fast rule on that aspect. Unchallenged testimony of a tenant in certain cases may be sufficient to rebut the presumption but if the testimony of the tenant itself is inherently unreliable, the position may be different. It is always a question of fact in each case whether there was sufficient evidence from the tenant to discharge the initial burden."

39. In Jagdish Singh Vs. Natthu Singh AIR 1992 SC 1604, Court confirmed a decision of this Court in respect of presumption about service of notice received with the endorsement of "refusal" and held that presumption contemplated by Section 27 of Act, 1897 must be drawn to deem service upon the addressee. In para 8 of the judgement, the Court said:

"In our opinion, the High Court was right in its view. The notices must be presumed to have been served as contemplated by S. 27 of the General Clauses Act."

40. I find a straight answer as to who should disprove the factum of offer of registered letter when returned by postal authority with the endorsement of "refusal" in Gujarat Electricity Board Vs. Atmaram Sungomal Poshani AIR 1989 SC 1433 where it has been observed:

"There is presumption of service of a letter sent under registered cover, if the same is returned back with a postal endorsement that the addressee refused to accept the same. No doubt the presumption is rebuttable and it is open to the party concerned to place evidence before the Court to rebut the presumption by showing that the address mentioned on the cover was incorrect or that the postal authorities never tendered the registered letter to him or that there was no occasion for him to refuse the same. The burden to rebut the presumption lies on the party, challenging the factum of service. In the instant case, the respondent failed to discharge this burden as he failed to place material before the court to show that the endorsement made by the postal authorities was wrong and incorrect. Mere denial made by the respondent in the circumstances of the case was not sufficient to rebut the presumption relating to service of the registered cover."

41. Following Apex Court decision in Gujarat Electricity Board (supra), this Court in Jhabul Ram Vs. District Judge, Ballia 1994 (23) ALR 464 has also said in para 9 as under:

"9. Bald denial of the petitioner could not absolve him from the burden of rebutting the presumption of service of notice arising from the endorsement by the postal authorities on the registered cover containing the notice. The court below did not commit any error, muchless an error apparent on the face of record, in holding that the notice in question was duly served on the petitioner."

42. I find another Apex Court's decision straight on this issue i.e. Basant Singh Vs. Roman Catholic Mission 2003 (1) AIC 1 (SC). In paras 8 and 10 of the judgment, Court has observed:

"The presumptions are rebuttable. It is always open to the defendants to rebut the presumption by leading convincing and cogent evidence."

"As already noticed, Hari Singh appeared and save and except the bald statement that registered letter was not tendered to him, no evidence whatsoever was led to rebut the presumption. He could have examined the postman, who would have been the material witness and whose evidence would have bearing for proper adjudication. He has failed to discharge the onus cast upon him by the Statute."

43. This Court has followed above decision in Noor Mohammad and another Vs. XIV Additional District and Sessions Judge, Kanpur Nagar 2006 (63) ALR 244. Therein Revisional Court reversed Trial Court's order on the ground that tenant has tendered rent to landlord through money order which was received with the endorsement "refusal" by the postman but when landlord denied the tender of money order, tenant did not examine the postman and hence failed to discharge burden lying upon him. In other words, Revisional Court said that it is the sender who should examine the postman and not the sendee/addressee for whom the postal authorities have endorsed that it has refused to accept the article. This view of Revisional Court was reversed by this Court by observing:

"In respect of endorsement of refusal by the postman, there is no necessity to examine the postman to prove that. If there is any such duty then it is for the person denying tender by the postman."

44. This Court also in Brij Nandan Gupta Vs. III Addl. District Judge, Rampur and another (Writ-A No. 24853 of 1989) decided on 30.7.2012 in para 21 of judgment said:

"Similarly, if a notice has been sent by landlord by registered post and it is received back with an endorsement made by an official of Post Office namely Postman that it was refused by the addresee, presumption of service upon addressee shall be drawn unless the tenant prove that the letter was never offered to him by the Postman and endorsement made thereon is not correct. The tenant's bare denial would not be sufficient in such a case and he will have to prove his case by adducing relevant evidence. Such denial can be by making statement on oath and in such case onus would shift on the landlord to prove that refusal was by the tenant which he can show by summoning the postman and adducing his oral evidence. However, this is one aspect of the matter. Sometimes from the conduct of tenant or other circumstances, his denial even if on oath, can justifiably be disproved by the Court without having Postman examined."

45. The above authorities leave no manner of doubt that it is for the sendee, who deny service of registered letter upon him and attempted to challenge endorsement of "refusal" made by Postman, to lead evidence which includes examination of 'Postman' also and in case he fails to do so, legal presumption will go against him and will remain to be unrebutted unless there is other material to show otherwise. Nothing of this sort has been shown in the case in hand.

46. Hence, I answer the question in favour of petitioner that he withdrew his resignation in July, 2003 itself while respondents as per the own case set up finally accepted resignation of petitioner vide letter dated 30.01.2004 i.e. after withdrawal of resignation which could not have been done.

47. The exposition of law that once resignation is withdrawn, it could not have been accepted, has not been disputed by learned counsel for respondents before this Court in view of law laid down in Union of India etc. Vs. Gopal Chandra Misra and Others (1978) 2 SC 301; Union of India and Another Vs. Wing Commander T. Parthasarathy (2001) 1 SCC 158 and Srikantha S.M. Vs. Bharath Earth Movers Ltd. (2005) 8 SCC 314.

48. In Shambhu Murari Sinha Vs. Project & Development India Ltd. & Another(2002) 2 SCC 437, it was held, if voluntary retirement is withdrawn by an employee, he continue to remain in service and the relationship of Employer and employee would not come to an end.

49. The next submission is, "whether withdrawal being conditional, it will not be treated to be a withdrawal".

50. Here, I find that the very resignation letter itself, if read properly, it is clearly a conditional resignation. The second para of resignation letter dated 31.07.2003 states that resignation may be accepted on payment of all outstanding dues. Therefore, condition imposed by petitioner for acceptance of resignation was simultaneous payment of all outstanding dues. If resignation is conditional, it could not have been accepted.

51. Resignation in relation to an office connotes the act of giving up or relinquishment of the office. To relinquish office means to cease to hold office or to lose hold of the office. Therefore, it means that the employee wants to sever his relation from the employer without any riders and then only it would amount to resignation.

52. Corpus Juris Secundum Vol.77 page 311 defines the words "resign' and "resignation' as under: -

"RESIGN. To give up; to surrender by a formal act; to yield; to relinquish; to give up one's office or position; to withdraw from. The word "resign," in its ordinary and usual sense, imports a voluntary act, and has been held not to include the act of one whose continuance in a position has been terminated by death or by induction into the armed forces under the Selective Service Act.

"Resign" has been held equivalent to, or synonymous with, "abandon" see 1 C.J.S. p 41 note 38, "renounce" see 76 C.J.S. p 206 notes 90.2, 90.3."

"RESIGNATION. It has been said that "resignation" is a term of legal art, having legal connotations which describe certain legal results. It is characteristically the voluntary surrender of a position by the one resigning, made freely and not under duress, and the word is defined generally as meaning the act of resigning or giving up, as a claim, possession, or position."

53. The Words and Phrases Permanent Edition Vol.37 Page 473 defines the word "Resign' denoting voluntarily act, to give up, surrender by formal act, yield, relinquish, give up one's office or position, or withdraw from. It is synonymous with words "abandon" and "renounce". At Page 474 the word "Resignation' has been defined and at Page 476 it provides that the resignation must be unconditional and with the intent to operate as such.

54. Black's Law Dictionary Sixth Edition Page 1310 defines the resignation as formal renouncement or relinquishment of an office. It must be made with intention of relinquishing the office accompanied by act of relinquishment. It is said that resignatio est juris proprii spontanea refutatio i.e. resignation is spontaneous relinquishment of one's own right.

55. In the case of R.J. Maurya Versus State, 1967 SLR 823 it was held that the term resignation implies voluntary surrender of the position by a person resigning and acting freely and not under duress and it becomes effective when the authority competent to make appointment accepts it.

56. In Ramchand Nihalchand Advani Versus Anandlal Bapalal Kothari and another, AIR 1962 Gujrat 21, it was held that the letter of resignation must be unambiguous and where an ambiguous letter of resignation is submitted, the authority should right to the employee to explain or clear the ambiguity instead of proceeding to accept the same.

57. Madhya Pradesh High Court in Hirdeyashawer Singh Chauhan Versus State of Madhya Pradesh, 1987 Jabalpur Law Journal 566 observed that "the resignation denotes voluntary surrender of a position by one resigning, made freely and not under duress. The resignation denotes, therefore, a spontaneous relinquishment of one's own right. It is conveyed by maxim resignatio est juris proprii spontanea refutatio."

58. Recently, the question, when a resignation would be conditional and what are the requirement of a valid letter of resignation has been considered in Prabha Atri (Dr.) Versus State of U.P. and others, 2003 (1) UPLBEC 772, AIR 2003 SC 534 wherein it has been held:

"The only question that mainly requires to be considered is as to whether the letter dated 9.1.1999 could be construed to mean or amounted to a letter of resignation or merely an expression of her intention to resign, if her claims in respect of the alleged lapse are not viewed favourably. Rule 9 of the Hospital Service Rules provided for resignation or abandonment of service by an employee. It is stated therein that a permanent employee is required to give three months notice of resignation in writing to the appointing authority or three months salary in lieu of notice and that he/she may be required to serve the period for such notice. In case of non-compliance with the above, the employee concerned is not only liable to pay an amount equal to three months salary but such amount shall be realizable from the dues, if any, of the employee lying with the Hospital. In Words and Phrases (Permanent Edition) Vol. 37 at page 476, it is found stated that, "To constitute a "resignation", it must be unconditional and with intent to operate as such. There must be an intention to relinquish a portion of the term of office accompanied by an act of relinquishment. It is to give back, to give up in a formal manner, an office." At page 474 of the very same book, it is found stated: "Statements by club's President and corresponding Secretary that they would resign, if constant bickering among members did not cease, constituted merely threatened offers, not tenders, of their resignations." It is also stated therein that "A `resignation' of a public office to be effective must be made with intention of relinquishing the office accompanied by act of relinquishment". In the ordinary dictionary sense, the word `Resignation' was considered to mean the spontaneous relinquishment of one's own right, as conveyed by the maxim: Resignatio est juris proprii spontanea refutatio [Black's Law Dictionary 6th Edition]. In Corpus Juris Secundum. Vol.77, page 311, it is found stated "It has been said that `Resignation' is a term of legal art, having legal connotations which describe certain legal results. It is characteristically, the voluntary surrender of a position by the one resigning, made freely and not under duress and the word is defined generally as meaning the act of resigning or giving up, as a claim, possession or position. " (Para-7)

"We have carefully considered the submissions of the learned counsel appearing on either side, in the light of the materials and principles, noticed supra. This is not a case where it is required to consider as to whether the relinquishment envisaged under the rules and conditions of service is unilateral or bilateral in character but whether the letter dated 9.1.1999 could be treated or held to be a letter of resignation or relinquishment of the office, so as to severe her services once and for all. The letter cannot be construed, in our view, to convey any spontaneous intention to give up or relinquish her office accompanied by any act of relinquishment. To constitute a `resignation', it must be unconditional and with an intention to operate as such. At best, as observed by this Court in the decision in P.K. Ramachandra Iyer (supra) it may amount to a threatened offer more on account of exasperation, to resign on account of a feeling of frustration born out of an idea that she was being harassed unnecessarily but not, at any rate, amounting to a resignation, actual and simple. The appellant had put in about two decades of service in the Hospital, that she was placed under suspension and exposed to disciplinary proceedings and proposed domestic enquiry and she had certain benefits flowing to her benefit, if she resigns but yet the letter dated 9.1.99 does not seek for any of those things to be settled or the disciplinary proceedings being scrapped as a sequel to her so-called resignation. The words 'with immediate effect' in the said letter could not be given undue importance dehors the context, tenor of language used and the purport as well as the remaining portion of the letter indicating the circumstances in which it was written. That the management of the Hospital took up such action forthwith, as a result of acceptance of the resignation is not of much significance in ascertaining the true or real intention of the letter written by the appellant on 9.1.1999. Consequently, it appears to be reasonable to view that as in the case reported in P.K. Ramachandra Iyer (supra) the respondents have seized an opportunity to get rid of the appellant the moment they got the letter dated 9.1.1999, without due or proper consideration of the matter in a right perspective or understanding of the contents thereof. The High Court also seems to have completely lost sight of these vital aspects in rejecting the Writ Petition." (Para-10)

59. It would also be appropriate to quote the letter of resignation which was considered in Prabha Atri (Dr.) Versus State of U.P. and others (Supra) which is as under: -

"Your letter is uncalled for and should be withdrawn. I have been working in this Hospital since May, 10, 1978 and have always worked in the best interest of the patients. It is tragic instead of taking a lenient view of my sickness you have opted to punish me.

If the foregoing is not acceptable to you then, I have no option left but, to tender my resignation which immediate effect."

60. Considering the kind of letter of the resignation, Court in Prabha Atri (Dr.) Versus State of U.P. and others (Supra) found it a conditional letter and, therefore, not a valid resignation in the eyes of law.

61. It can be safely said that letter of resignation tendered by petitioner in the present case is also a conditional letter of resignation. A reading of the entire letter dated 31.07.2002 shows that it is not unconditional.

62. A Division Bench of this Court in Phool Chandra Singh Vs. The Chairman, Vindhyavasini Gramin Bank and Others 2006 (6) AWC 5513 (All.) has also taken a similar view that a conditional resignation is not a valid resignation, hence, it could not have been accepted.

63. The last submission is that Unit in which petitioner was working is closed in 2004 itself and, therefore, petitioner neither can be given re-employment or reinstatement nor any other service benefit.

64. This fact could not be disputed by learned counsel for petitioner. The question is, "whether for the fault of respondents, petitioner can be allowed to suffer and despite the fact that injustice has been caused to petitioner, can he be denied ultimate relief to which he otherwise is entitled".

65. The respondents being "State" under Article 12 of the Constitution of India, its officers are public functionaries. As observed above, under our Constitution, sovereignty vest in the people. Every limb of constitutional machinery therefore is obliged to be people oriented. Public authorities acting in violation of constitutional or statutory provisions oppressively are accountable for their behaviour. It is high time that this Court should remind respondents that they are expected to perform in a more responsible and reasonable manner so as not to cause undue and avoidable harassment to the public at large and in particular their ex-employees and their legal heirs like the petitioner. The respondents have the support of entire machinery and various powers of statute. An ordinary citizen or a common man is hardly equipped to match such might of State or its instrumentalities. Harassment of a common man by public authorities is socially abhorring and legally impressible. This may harm the common man personally but the injury to society is far more grievous. Crime and corruption, thrive and prosper in society due to lack of public resistance. An ordinary citizen instead of complaining and fighting mostly succumbs to the pressure of undesirable functioning in offices instead of standing against it. It is on account of, sometimes, lack of resources or unmatched status which give the feeling of helplessness. Nothing is more damaging than the feeling of helplessness. Even in ordinary matters a common man who has neither the political backing nor the financial strength to match inaction in public oriented departments gets frustrated and it erodes the credibility in the system. This is unfortunate that matters which require immediate attention are being allowed to linger on and remain unattended. No authority can allow itself to act in a manner which is arbitrary. Public administration no doubt involves a vast amount of administrative discretion which shields action of administrative authority but where it is found that the exercise of power is capricious or other than bona fide, it is the duty of the Court to take effective steps and rise to occasion otherwise the confidence of the common man would shake. It is the responsibility of Court in such matters to immediately rescue such common man so that he may have the confidence that he is not helpless but a bigger authority is there to take care of him and to restrain arbitrary and arrogant, unlawful inaction or illegal exercise of power on the part of the public functionaries.

66. In our system, the Constitution is supreme, but the real power vest in the people of India. The Constitution has been enacted "for the people, by the people and of the people". A public functionary cannot be permitted to act like a dictator causing harassment to a common man and in particular when the person subject to harassment is his own employee.

67. Regarding harassment of a common man, referring to observations of Lord Hailsham in Cassell & Co. Ltd. Vs.

Broome, 1972 AC 1027 and Lord Devlin in Rooks Vs. Barnard and others 1964 AC 1129, the Apex Court in Lucknow Development Authority Vs. M.K. Gupta JT 1993 (6) SC 307 held as under:

"An Ordinary citizen or a common man is hardly equipped to match the might of the State or its instrumentalities. That is provided by the rule of law..... A public functionary if he acts maliciously or oppressively and the exercise of power results in harassment and agony then it is not an exercise of power but its abuse. No law provides protection against it. He who is responsible for it must suffer it.....Harassment of a common man by public authorities is socially abhorring and legally impermissible. It may harm him personally but the injury to society is far more grievous." (para 10)

68. The above observations as such have been reiterated in Ghaziabad Development Authorities Vs. Balbir Singh JT 2004 (5) SC 17.

69. In a democratic system governed by rule of law, the Government does not mean a lax Government. The public servants hold their offices in trust and are expected to perform with due diligence particularly so that their action or inaction may not cause any undue hardship and harassment to a common man. Whenever it comes to the notice of this Court that the Government or its officials have acted with gross negligence and unmindful action causing harassment of a common and helpless man, this Court has never been a silent spectator but always reacted to bring the authorities to law.

70. In Registered Society Vs. Union of India and Others (1996) 6 SCC 530 the Apex court said:

"No public servant can say "you may set aside an order on the ground of mala fide but you can not hold me personally liable" No public servant can arrogate in himself the power to act in a manner which is arbitrary".

71. In Shivsagar Tiwari Vs. Union of India (1996) 6 SCC 558 the Apex Court has held:

"An arbitrary system indeed must always be a corrupt one. There never was a man who thought he had no law but his own will who did not soon find that he had no end but his own profit."

72. In Delhi Development Authority Vs. Skipper Construction and Another AIR 1996 SC 715 has held as follows:

"A democratic Government does not mean a lax Government. The rules of procedure and/or principles of natural justice are not mean to enable the guilty to delay and defeat the just retribution. The wheel of justice may appear to grind slowly but it is duty of all of us to ensure that they do grind steadily and grind well and truly. The justice system cannot be allowed to become soft, supine and spineless."

73. Petitioner has placed on record certain documents to show that some employees have been retained by respondents which is sought to be explained by respondents that a skeleton staff was maintained to take out formal closure activities. This means that entire staff has not been terminated.

74. In these facts and circumstances of the case, I find no reason to deny relief of petitioner to which he is entitled, particularly when I find respondent-Employer to have committed fault. They cannot be allowed to take advantage of their own wrong.

75. In view thereof, writ petition is allowed. Impugned orders dated 31.07.2003 and 31.01.2004 passed by respondents are hereby set aside. Petitioner shall be entitled to all consequential benefits in accordance with law.

A.– Service law-Central Civil Services (Pension) Rules, 1972-Rule 26–ensionary benefits- Petitioner tendered his resignation, instead of submitting his defence reply to the charge sheet. The Court held it to be a mode of avoiding disciplinary proceedings, and rejected the claim regarding payment of retiral dues. (Para 10)

B. 'Resignation' and 'retirement' are the different expressions, therefore, both may not be treated at par - The concept of "resignation" and retirement" are different, and in same regulations these expressions are used in different connotations. The benefit cannot be extended, especially as resignation is one of the disqualifications for seeking pensionary benefits, under the Regulations. (Para 8)
The decision to 'resign' is materially distinct from a decision to seek 'voluntary retirement'. The decision to resign results in the legal consequences that are distinct from the consequences flowing from voluntary retirement and the two may not be substituted for each other based on the length of an employee's tenure, which shall stand forfeited upon resignation. Petition challenges order dated 20.09.2019, passed by Sub Divisional Officer, Hasanganj, Unnao.

1. Heard Sri L.P. Singh, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Ran Vijay Singh, learned Addl. Chief Standing Counsel for the State-respondents.

2. By means of this petition, the petitioner has assailed the order dated 20.9.2019 passed by the Sub Divisional Officer, Hasanganj, Unnao rejecting the claim of the petitioner regarding payment of retiral dues.

3. As per the impugned order, the petitioner was initially appointed on the post of Lekhpal in the year 1953 and he discharged his duties as Lekhpal till 1975. While discharging the duties of Lekhpal, the petitioner had discharged the services of Assistant Registrar, Kanoongo as an officiating basis w.e.f. 1975 to the year 1980. However, the petitioner was placed under suspension on 29.11.1979 and a charge sheet has been issued on 19.4.1980. The petitioner opted not to reply the charge sheet and submitted his resignation on 28.4.1980. The reason assigned in the resignation letter is that the petitioner was willing to contest the election of Legislative Assembly, therefore, he requested that his resignation be accepted. Accordingly, resignation of the petitioner has been accepted. Thereafter, the petitioner claimed that since his resignation has been accepted, therefore he be paid pension and other retiral benefits. The competent authority has rejected said claim of the petitioner placing reliance upon the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in re; Senior Divisional Manager, Life Insurance Corporation of India and others v. Shree Lal Meena, (2019) 4 SCC 479.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner has contended that instead of deciding the issue in the light of the dictum of the Hon'ble Apex Court in re; Shree Lal Meena (supra), it should have been decided in the light of the decision of the Hon'ble Apex Court in re; Asger Ibrahim Amin v. Life Insurance Corporation of India, 2015 (6) AWC 5829 (SC).

5. At this juncture, resignation application of the petitioner, which has been enclosed as Annexure No.1 to the counter affidavit, would be relevant to refer. The aforesaid resignation application of the petitioner is having as many as eleven paragraphs. Paragraph-4 of the said application categorically provides that the petitioner was aware about the charge sheet, however, he has submitted that the charges of the charge sheet are baseless, therefore, the petitioner shall not submit his defence reply to the charge sheet.

6. This is an admission on the part of the petitioner that instead of filing his defence reply to the charge sheet, he opted to tender his resignation.

7. In the case of Asger Ibrahim Amin (supra), the question before the Hon'ble Apex Court was that "whether the appellant is entitled to claim pension even though he resigned from service of his own volition and, if so, whether his claim on this count had become barred by limitation or laches. The Hon'ble Apex Court has held that the appellant had worked continuously for 23 years, sought to discontinue his service and requested waiver of three months notice in writing and the said notice was accepted by the respondent corporation and the appellant was thereby allowed to discontinue his services. It has further been held that the appellant ought not to be deprived of pensionary benefits merely because he styled his termination of service as resignation or because there is no provision to retire voluntarily at that time. Therefore, the Hon'ble Apex Court has finally held that termination of services of the appellant was voluntary retirement within the ambit of rules.

8. The facts of the present case are not similar to the case in re; Asger Ibrahim Amin (supra). Rather the Hon'ble Apex Court in re; Shree Lal Meena (supra) has dealt the similar issue and has held that the resignation and retirement are the different expressions, therefore, both may not be treated at par. In para-33 of the judgment, the Hon'ble Apex Court has observed that if the employee had not been removed by discharge due to misconduct, the discharge by resignation in such circumstances may be different. However, in the present case, since the petitioner did not submit his defence reply to the charge sheet after being placed under suspension, therefore, the factum of misconduct could not be proved. Vide para-42, the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that service jurisprudence, recognising the concept of "resignation" and "retirement" as different, and in the same regulations these expressions being used in different connotations, left no manner of doubt that the benefit could not be extended, especially as resignation was one of the disqualifications for seeking pensionary benefits, under the Regulations. Paras-33 & 42 of the case in re; Shree Lal Meena (supra) are being reproduced herein below:-

"33. In order to elucidate the legal principle further, we may note that Sheelkumar Jain [Sheelkumar Jain v. New India Assurance Co. Ltd., (2011) 12 SCC 197] took note of the judgment of the three-Judge Bench in Sudhir Chandra Sarkar v. Tisco Ltd. [Sudhir Chandra Sarkar v. Tisco Ltd., (1984) 3 SCC 369 : 1984 SCC (L&S) 540] An uncovenanted employee of the respondent Company, paid on a monthly basis, sought to recover a sum as gratuity, for continued service rendered over 29 years, under the Retiring Gratuity Rules, 1937, after having resigned from service. The employee was paid the provident fund dues. The High Court of Patna opined [Tisco Ltd. v. Sudhir Chandra Sarkar, 1968 SCC OnLine Pat 96 : AIR 1969 Pat 53] against the employee. When the matter reached this Court, one of the contentions raised by the respondent Company was that the employee had resigned and not retired from service. It was noticed that Rule 1(g) defines "retirement" as "the termination of service by reason of any cause other than removal by discharge due to misconduct". The employee had not been removed by discharge due to misconduct. The termination of service, being on account of resignation, it was held to qualify within the definition of "retirement" under the Rules. The rest of the judgment, dealing with the principles as to how gratuity should be treated, is not relevant.

42. It is relevant to note that M.R. Prabhakar [M.R. Prabhakar v. Canara Bank, (2012) 9 SCC 671 : (2012) 2 SCC (L&S) 802] dealt with a similar scheme for employees of Canara Bank, and the plea was that such of the employees who had resigned must be construed as voluntarily retired, thus, entitling them to pensionary benefits. Suffice to say that, once again, the principle was of differentiation between the concept of "voluntary retirement" and "resignation". Regulation 2(y) as applicable to the employees of Canara Bank, being pari materia to Rule 2(y) under the Pension Regulations of 1995, had brought in "voluntary retirement" in the definition of "retirement", but had not considered it appropriate to bring in the concept of "resignation". Service jurisprudence, recognising the concept of "resignation" and "retirement" as different, and in the same regulations these expressions being used in different connotations, left no manner of doubt that the benefit could not be extended, especially as resignation was one of the disqualifications for seeking pensionary benefits, under the Regulations."

9. The Hon'ble Apex Court in re; BSES Yamuna Power Ltd. v. Ghanshyam Chand Sharma and Another, Civil Appeal No.9076 of 2019 @ SLP (C) No.6553 of 2018, decided on 5.12.2019 has considered the decision of the Hon'ble Apex Court in re; Asger

Ibrahim Amin (supra) and distinguished the same. Paras 14 & 19 of the aforesaid judgment are being reproduced herein below:-

"14. The view in Asger Ibrahim Amin was disapproved and the court held that the provisions providing for voluntary retirement would not apply retrospectively by implication. In this view, where an employee has resigned from service, there arises no question of whether he has in fact ?voluntarily retired? or ?resigned?. The decision to resign is materially distinct from a decision to seek voluntary retirement. The decision to resign results in the legal consequences that flow from a resignation under the applicable provisions. These consequences are distinct from the consequences flowing from voluntary retirement and the two may not be substituted for each other based on the length of an employee's tenure.

19. On the issue of whether the first respondent has served twenty years, we are of the opinion that the question is of no legal consequence to the present dispute. Even if the first respondent had served twenty years, under Rule 26 of the CCS Pension Rules his past service stands forfeited upon resignation. The first respondent is therefore not entitled to pensionary benefits."

10. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the relevant material available on record as well as the aforesaid dictums of the Hon'ble Apex Court, I am of the considered opinion that since the resignation may not be treated at par with the other mode of dispensing with the service including the voluntary retirement, therefore the petitioner shall not be entitled to the pensionary benefits. Further, the petitioner has tendered his resignation to avoid the disciplinary proceedings as instead of submitting his defence reply to the charge sheet, he tendered his resignation, therefore the intent of the resignation is not appreciated. The reasons so given in the impugned order are appropriate and correct law of the Hon'ble Apex Court has been cited while rejecting the claim of the petitioner vide impugned order dated 20.9.2019.

11. Accordingly, the writ petition is devoid of merit, the same is dismissed being misconceived.

12. No order as to costs.

Civil Law- U.P. Provincial Small Causes Courts Act, 1887-Limitation Act, 1963-SCC Revision u/s 25-application for substitution-beyond limitation-Article 121 of Act, 1963-not applicable-as it applies to Appeal or suit-not revision-Article 137 of Act, 1963 applicable-limitation -3 years-Application within time-Revision allowed.

Held, Now on the analogy of the ratio laid down by the Full Bench decision even if the provisions of Order XXII CPC do not apply to revisional proceedings such as an SCC Revision under Section 25 of the Act, 1887, inspite of Section 17 thereof, an order cannot be passed against a dead person, therefore, the legal representatives of a dead party have to be brought on record. Now, as the revision at hand is neither a suit nor an appeal, Article 121 of the Schedule to the Act, 1963 would not apply as the said Article would apply to an application to have the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff or appellant or of a deceased defendant or respondent to be made a party in a suit or appeal under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 which is not attracted herein. Therefore, in these circumstances on the analogy of the Full Bench decision in Chandradeo Pandey, as this revision under Section 25 of the Act, 1887 is before the High Court, it is Article 137 of the Act, 1963 which applies and the limitation in such circumstances for filing the application for substitution in an SCC revision under Section 25 of the Act, 1887 would be 3 years.(para 8) (E-9)

7. Chandradev Pandey & ors.Vs. Sukhdev Rai & ors., AIR 1972 Allahabad 504

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajan Roy, J.)

1. In this SCC revision, under Section 25 of the U.P. Provincial Small Causes Courts Act, 1887 (herein after referred as Act, 1887), an application for substitution has been filed by the revisionist to which an objection has been raised by Shri Rajeev Kumar Tripathi, learned counsel for the opposite party that it is beyond the period of limitation prescribed under Article 121 of the Limitation Act, 1963. On being confronted learned counsel for the revisionist submitted that Article 121 of the Act, 1963 does not apply to the case at hand as it is a revision and in view of the full bench decision of this Court reported in AIR 1972 Allahabad 504, Chandradev Pandey and others Vs. Sukhdev Rai and others, Article 137 of the Act, 1963 is applicable, according to which, the period of limitation is 3 years, therefore, the application for substitution, considering the date of death, is within the prescribed period of limitation.

2. The Provincial Small Causes Courts Act, 1887 is a pre-constitution Act which continues to be in force. The revision at hand has been filed under Section 25 of the said Act, 1887. Section 17 of the Act deals with application of the Code of Civil Procedure to the Court of small causes and in all proceedings arising out of the suits before it, which would include a revision under Section 25. According to Sub-section 1 of Section 17, the procedure prescribed in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 shall save in so far as is otherwise provided by that Code or by this Act be the procedure followed in a Court of small causes in all suits cognizible by it and in all proceedings arising out of such suits. The proviso to the said Sub-section is not relevant. A Reference may be made in this regard to Section 7 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 which reads as under:-

"7. Provincial Small Cause Courts.- The following provisions shall not extend to Courts constituted under the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887 (9 of 1887). [or under the Berar small Cause Courts Law, 1905], or to Courts exercising the jurisdiction of a Court of Small Causes [under the said Act or Law], [or to Courts in [any part of India to which the said Act does not extend] exercising a corresponding jurisdiction] that is to say, -

(a) so much of the body of the Code as relates to-

(i) suits excepted from the cognizance of a Court of Small Causes;

(ii) the execution of decrees in such suits;

(iii) the execution of decrees against immovable property; and

(b) the following sections, that is to say,-

Sections 91 and 92,

Sections 94 and 95 [so far as they authorise or relate to-

(i) orders for the attachment of immovable property,

(ii) injunctions,

(iii) the appointment of a receiver of immovable property, or

(iv) the interlocutory orders referred to in clause (e) of Section 94], and Sections 96 to 112 and 115."

3. Thus Section 7 prescribes the provisions of CPC which do not extend to the Courts constituted under the Act, 1887. The said provision does not mention Order XXII CPC which relates to substitution of legal representatives in the case of death of plaintiff, defendant etc. Now reference may be made to Order 50 CPC which reads as under in its application in the State of U.P.:-

"1. Provincial Small Cause Courts.- The provisions hereinafter specified shall not extend to Courts constituted under the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887)9 of 1887), [or under the Berar Small Cause Courts Law, 1905] or to Courts exercising the jurisdiction of a Court of Small Causes [under the said Act or Law], or to Courts exercising the jurisdiction of a Court of Small causes in [under the said Act or Law], [or to Courts in [any part of India to which the said Act does not extend] exercising a corresponding jurisdiction] that is to say-

(a) so much of this schedule as relates to-

(i) suits excepted from the cognizance of a Court of Small Causes or the execution of decrees in such suits;

(ii) the execution of decrees against immovable property or the interest of a partner in partnership property;

(iii) the settlement of issues; and

(b) the following rules and orders:-

Order II, Rule 1 (frame of suit);

Order X, Rule 3 (record of examination of parties);

Order XV, except so much of Rule 4 as provides for the pronouncement at once of judgment and Rule 5;

Order XVIII, Rules 5 to 12 (evidence);

Orders XLI to XLV (appeals);

Orders XLVII, Rules 2, 3, 5, 6, 7 (review);

Order LI."

4. A reading of the aforesaid provision shows that it mentions the provisions of CPC which shall not extend to the Courts under the Act, 1887 and it does not include Order XXII CPC as referred herein above. However, the case at hand is a revision and not a suit nor an appeal and it has been the consistent view that Order XXII Rule 2 to 10(a) applies to suits and by virtue of Rule 11 thereof to appeals but these provisions do not apply to a revision under Section 115 CPC as the word revision has not been used therein and it is distinct from a suit or appeal under the CPC. A reference may be made in this regard to the Full Bench decision reported in Mohd. Sadat Ali Khan Vs. The Administrator, Corporation of City of Lahore, AIR 1949 Lahore 186; as also other decisions reported in Ram Datt Singh and another Vs. Ajodhia Singh and others, AIR 1952 Allahabad 446; Khuda Bux Khan vs. Maha Nand Tewari and Anr., AIR 1948 Oudh 84; The Union of India, Ministry of Commerce and Industry, Government of India vs. Seth Shanti Sarup and others, AIR 1966 Allahabad 530; Baksho and another Vs. Piaro and others, AIR 1920 Sind 120; and another Full Bench decision in the case of Chandradeo Pandey (supra). In fact, the Full Bench in Chandradeo Pandey, after coming to the conclusion that the provisions of Order XXII do not apply to revisions also considered the question whether any period of limitation has been prescribed in the Code of Civil Procedure for an application to bring the heirs of a deceased party on record in a revision application? After considering the relevant provisions, Full Bench opined that Article 137 of the Schedule contained in the Act, 1963 was applicable to such applications in revisional proceedings under Section 115 CPC which prescribed a limitation of 3 years from the date the right to apply accrues. Having held as above the Full Bench also expressed its opinion about the desirability of requisite amendment in the Rules of the Code on the administrative side so as to prescribe a uniform period of limitation of 90 days for bringing heirs of a deceased party on record even in revision applications.

5. As regards the reliance placed by Shri Tripathi upon the decision of the Supreme Court in Shankar Ramchandra Abhyankar's (supra) case, in the said case the Supreme Court observed that when the aid of the High Court is invoked on the revisional side it is done because it is a superior Court and it can interfere for the purpose of rectifying the error of the Court below. Section 115 of the Code of Civil Procedure circumscribes the limits of that jurisdiction but the jurisdiction which is being exercised is a part of the general appellate jurisdiction of the High Court as a superior Court and it is only one of the modes of exercising power conferred by the statute; basically and fundamentally it is the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court which is being invoked and exercised in a wider and larger sense. It did so in the context as to whether the judgment of this Subordinate Court would merge in an order passed by the High Court on the revisional side and therefore it went on to hold that it did not therefore consider that the principle of merger of order of inferior Courts in those of superior Courts would be affected or would become inapplicable by making a distinction between a petition for revision and an appeal. The question being considered by the Supreme Court was as to whether after the revision under Section 115 CPC against the order of the subordinate Court had been dismissed a writ petition challenging the said order of the subordinate Court should have been entertained. It went on to opine that even if the order of the appellate Court had not merged in the order of the single Judge passed in exercise of revisional powers under Section 115 it was of the view that a writ petition ought not to have been entertained by the High Court when the respondent had already chosen the remedy under Section 115 of the Code of Civil Procedure. The context in which the said observations have been made was very different than the context which presents itself before this Court in this case and which was present before the Full Bench in the case of Chandradeo Pandey. Although the term appeal has not been defined in the Code of Civil Procedure there can be no doubt on a reading of Order XXII CPC that the words suit and appeal have been specifically and categorically used therein and the provisions of Rule 2 to 10(a) of Order XXII have been specifically made applicable to appeals vide Rule 11 which is obviously a reference to the appeals prescribed under the Code of Civil Procedure. The appeals under the Code of Civil Procedure are prescribed under different Sections and Orders viz-a-viz revisions.

6. A Single Judge Bench of this Court had the occasion to consider the applicability of Order XXII CPC to proceedings other than suits and appeals in the case of Surat and others versus Bhragunath Upadhya and others, 1989 RD 298 and it opined as under:-

"Order XXII admittedly by the use of the language was made applicable to the suits or original proceedings but by virtue of Order XXII, Rule 11 it was made applicable to appeals. It is significant while under rule 11 the provisions of Order XXII has been made applicable to the appeals it was not made applicable either to revision or other miscellaneous proceedings. If Order XXII was applicable to all proceedings referred to in section 141 apart from suit or original proceeding there was no need to include appeals by making such provision. This further clarifies that Order XXII since being procedure providing and refer to substantive right like abatement has not been made applicable to other proceedings."

7. As regards the reliance placed by Shri Tripathi upon a Single Judge Bench decision of the Guwahati High Court reported in (2016) 6 Gauhati Law Reports 774, with respect, when there is a Full Bench decision of this Court, the ratio of which applies to the case at hand, propriety demands that I should follow it, therefore, the said decision of the Guwahati High Court does not help the Counsel for the opposite party especially in view of the reasons given herein above regarding the inapplicability of the decision in Shankar Ramchandra Abhyankar's case to the issue involved herein.

8. Now on the analogy of the ratio laid down by the Full Bench decision even if the provisions of Order XXII CPC do not apply to revisional proceedings such as an SCC Revision under Section 25 of the Act, 1887, inspite of Section 17 thereof, an order cannot be passed against a dead person, therefore, the legal representatives of a dead party have to be brought on record. Now, as the revision at hand is neither a suit nor an appeal, Article 121 of the Schedule to the Act, 1963 would not apply as the said Article would apply to an application to have the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff or appellant or of a deceased defendant or respondent to be made a party in a suit or appeal under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 which is not attracted herein. Therefore, in these circumstances on the analogy of the Full Bench decision in Chandradeo Pandey, as this revision under Section 25 of the Act, 1887 is before the High Court, it is Article 137 of the Act, 1963 which applies and the limitation in such circumstances for filing the application for substitution in an SCC revision under Section 25 of the Act, 1887 would be 3 years. It being so, the application of the revisionist is within time. As no objections have been filed to the application for substitution on any other ground nor any other objection has been raised during argument therefore the same is allowed. Let necessary substitution be carried out. List immediately after regular work is resumed in the Courts.

10. Sandeep Singh Tomar Vs. St. Of M.P.,MCRC No. 9816 of 2013

(Delivered by Hon'ble Yashwant Varma, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the applicants, Sri Vikas Sahai learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

2. The applicants who are minors have petitioned this Court through their natural guardian seeking anticipatory bail in Case Crime No. 305 of 2019 under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471, 120B, 504 and 506 IPC, Police Station Tanda, District Rampur.

3. The principal question which has been raised is whether a petition under Section 438 of the Criminal Procedure Code at the behest of a child in conflict with law would be maintainable. According to Sri Vikas Sahai, the learned A.G.A., the application under Section 438 of the Criminal Procedure Code at the behest of a minor is not maintainable since the apprehension of arrest is misplaced. According to the learned A.G.A. the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act 20151 and more particularly Sections 10 and 12 thereof put in place a detailed procedure to deal with the investigation and trial of cognizable offences that may be committed by minors. It was submitted that in terms of Section 10 of the 2015 Act, a child cannot be arrested and since he is only apprehended and placed in the charge of the Special Juvenile Police Unit2 or the designated Child Welfare Police Officer3 for production before the concerned Juvenile Justice Board4 within 24 hours of such apprehension, the jurisdiction of the Court under Section 438 of the Criminal Procedure Code is not liable to be invoked. The Court notes that different High Courts of the country have taken a conflicting view on the maintainability of a petition for anticipatory bail at the behest of a minor. There is however no authoritative pronouncement of this Court on the question that is raised. In view thereof and since the issue is likely to arise in future also, it would be appropriate to clarify the legal position. The position with respect to the maintainability of a petition in light of the inherent attributes of the remedy provided by Section 438 would have to be decided bearing in mind the twin scenarios in which a petition for anticipatory bail by a minor may be presented before this Court. The first and obvious situation would be where the minor approaches this Court after the registration of a first information report alleging commission of a cognizable offence while the second could be where a minor apprehends arrest and detention prior to the registration of a first information report. The Court proposes to deal with and answer the question of maintainability with reference to the two foreseeable situations noted above.

4. In order to deal with the question that is raised, it would firstly be necessary to notice the provisions made in the 2015 Act as also the provisions that were engrafted and put in place in the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 Act5 which since stands repealed. Dealing firstly with the provisions contained in the 2000 enactment, it becomes pertinent to notice the provisions made in Section 1(4) thereof:

"1. [(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, the provisions of this Act shall apply to all cases involving detention, prosecution, penalty or sentence of imprisonment of juveniles in conflict with law under such other law.]"

5. The 2000 Act envisaged the constitution of a Board in terms of Section 4 that read thus: -

"4. Juvenile Justice Board.--(1)Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974), the State Government may,[within a period of one year from the date of commencement of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Amendment Act, 2006, by notification in the Official Gazette, constitute for every district], one or more Juvenile Justice Boards for exercising the powers and discharging the duties conferred or imposed on such Boards in relation to juveniles in conflict with law under this Act.

(2)A Board shall consist of a Metropolitan Magistrate or a Judicial Magistrate of the first class, as the case may be, and two social workers of whom at least one shall be a woman, forming a Bench and every such Bench shall have the powers conferred by the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974), on a Metropolitan Magistrate or, as the case may be, a Judicial Magistrate of the first class and the Magistrate on the Board shall be designated as the principal Magistrate."

6. Section 10 of the 2000 Act was framed in the following terms: -

"10.Apprehension of juvenile in conflict with law. --(1)As soon as a juvenile in conflict with law is apprehended by police, he shall be placed under the charge of the special juvenile police unit or the designated police officer, who shall produce the juvenile before the Board without any loss of time but within a period of twenty-four hours of his apprehension excluding the time necessary for the journey, from the place where the juvenile was apprehended, to the Board:

Provided that in no case, a juvenile in conflict with law shall be placed in a police lockup or lodged in a jail.]

(2)The State Government may make rules consistent with this Act,--

(i)to provide for persons through whom (including registered voluntary organisations) any juvenile in conflict with law may be produced before the Board;

(ii) to provide the manner in which such juvenile may be sent to an observation home."

7. The subject of bail of a juvenile was governed by the provisions of Section 12 which read thus: -

"12.Bail of juvenile. --(1)When any person accused of a bailable or non-bailable offence, and apparently a juvenile, is arrested or detained or appears or is brought before a Board, such person shall, notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) or in any other law for the time being in force, be released on bail with or without surety [or placed under the supervision of a Probation Officer or under the care of any fit institution of fit person] but he shall not be so released if there appear reasonable grounds for believing that the release is likely to bring him into association with any known criminal or expose him to moral, physical or psychological danger or that his release would defeat the ends of justice.

(2)When such person having been arrested is not released on bail under sub-section (1) by the officer incharge of the police station, such officer shall cause him to be kept only in an observation home in the prescribed manner until he can be brought before a Board.

(3)When such person is not released on bail under sub-section (1) by the Board it shall, instead of committing him to prison, make an order sending him to an observation home or a place of safety for such period during the pendency of the inquiry regarding him as may be specified in the order."

8. The commission of an offence allegedly committed by a "child in conflict with law" was to be enquired into by the Board in accordance with the procedure prescribed in Section 14. On the Board being satisfied after due enquiry that a juvenile had committed an offence, it was obliged to pass further orders as enumerated in Section 15. Section 16 of the 2000 Act injuncted the Board or the competent court from passing any sentence of death or imprisonment which may extend to imprisonment for life. It also injuncted passing of orders committing a juvenile to prison in default of payment of fine or failure to furnish security.

9. The 2000 Act was repealed and replaced by the 2015 enactment which came into force on 31 December 2015. The S.O.R. of the amending Act read thus:-

"Statement of Objects and Reasons.- Article 15 of the Constitution, inter alia, confers upon the State powers to make special provision for children. Articles 39 (e) and (f), 45 and 47 further makes the State responsible for ensuring that all needs of children are met and their basic human rights are protected.

2. The United Nations Convention on the Rights of Children, ratified by India on 11 December, 1992, requires the State Parties to undertake all appropriate measures in case of a child alleged as, or accused of, violating any penal law, including (a) treatment of the child in a manner consistent with the promotion of the child's sense of dignity and worth (b) reinforcing the child's respect for the human rights and fundamental freedoms of others (c) taking into account the child's age and the desirability of promoting the child's reintegration and the child's assuming a constructive role in society.

3. The Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act was enacted in 2000 to provide for the protection of children. The Act was amended twice in 2006 and 2011 to address gaps in its implementation and make the law more child-friendly. During the course of the implementation of the Act, several issues arose such as increasing incidents of abuse of children in institutions, inadequate facilities, quality of care and rehabilitation measures in Homes, high pendency of cases, delays in adoption due to faulty and incomplete processing, lack of clarity regarding roles, responsibilities and accountability of institutions and, inadequate provisions to counter offences against children such as corporal punishment, sale of children for adoption purposes, etc. have highlighted the need to review the existing law.

4. Further, increasing cases of crimes committed by children in the age group of 16-18 years in recent years makes it evident that the current provisions and system under the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000, are ill equipped to tackle child offenders in this age group. The data collected by the National Crime Records Bureau establishes that crimes by children in the age group of 16-18 years have increased especially in certain categories of heinous offences.

5. Numerous changes are required in the existing Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 to address the above mentioned issues and therefore, it is proposes to repeal existing Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 and re-enact a comprehensive legislation inter alia to provide for general principles of care and protection of children, procedures in case of children in need of care and protection and children in conflict with law, rehabilitation and social re-integration measures for such children, adoption of orphan, abandoned and surrendered children and offences committed against children. This legislation would thus ensure proper care, protection, development, treatment and social re-integration of children in difficult circumstance by adopting a child-friendly approach keeping in view the best interest of the child in mind.

6. The notes on clauses explain in detail the various provisions contained in the Bill.

7. The Bill seeks to achieve the above objectives."

Section 1(4) of the 2015 enactment stipulates: -

"1 (4) Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, the provisions of this Act shall apply to all matters concerning children in need of care and protection and children in conflict with law, including –

(i) apprehension, detention, prosecution, penalty or imprisonment, rehabilitation and social reintegration of children in conflict with law;

(ii) procedures and decisions or orders relating to rehabilitation, adoption, reintegration, and restoration of children in need of care and protection."

10. The expression "child in conflict with law" is defined in Section 2(13) to mean a child who is alleged or found to have committed an offence and who has not completed 18 years of age on the date of commission of such offence. Section 4 which is in terms similar to the provisions made in the 2000 Act reads as under:-

"4. Juvenile Justice Board.-(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974), the State Government shall, constitute for every district, one or more Juvenile Justice Boards for exercising the powers and discharging its functions relating to children in conflict with law under this Act.

(2) A Board shall consist of a Metropolitan Magistrate or a Judicial Magistrate of First Class not being Chief Metropolitan Magistrate or Chief Judicial Magistrate (hereinafter referred to as Principal Magistrate) with at least three years experience and two social workers selected in such manner as may be prescribed, of whom at least one shall be a woman, forming a Bench and every such Bench shall have the powers conferred by the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) on a Metropolitan Magistrate or, as the case may be, a Judicial Magistrate of First Class."

11. Since the answer to the question posited would turn on the provisions made in Section 10 and 12, it would be apposite to extract the two sections herein below: -

"10.Apprehension of child alleged to be in conflict with law.- (1) As soon as a child alleged to be in conflict with law is apprehended by the police, such child shall be placed under the charge of the special juvenile police unit or the designated Child Welfare Police Officer, who shall produce the child before the Board without any loss of time but within a period of twenty-four hours of apprehending the child excluding the time necessary for the journey, from the place where such child was apprehended:

Provided that in no case, a child alleged to be in conflict with law shall be placed in a police lock-up or lodged in a jail.

(2) The State Government shall make rules consistent with this Act,--

(i) to provide for persons through whom (including registered voluntary or non-governmental organisations) any child alleged to be in conflict with law may be produced before the Board;

(ii) to provide for the manner in which the child alleged to be in conflict with law may be sent to an observation home or place of safety, as the case may be.

12.Bail to a person who is apparently a child alleged to be in conflict with law.-(1) When any person, who is apparently a child and is alleged to have committed a bailable or non-bailable offence, is apprehended or detained by the police or appears or brought before a Board, such person shall, notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) or in any other law for the time being in force, be released on bail with or without surety or placed under the supervision of a probation officer or under the care of any fit person:

Provided that such person shall not be so released if there appears reasonable grounds for believing that the release is likely to bring that person into association with any known criminal or expose the said person to moral, physical or psychological danger or the person's release would defeat the ends of justice, and the Board shall record the reasons for denying the bail and circumstances that led to such a decision.

(2) When such person having been apprehended is not released on bail under sub-section(1)by the officer in-charge of the police station, such officer shall cause the person to be kept only in an observation home in such manner as may be prescribed until the person can be brought before a Board.

(3) When such person is not released on bail under sub-section(1)by the Board, it shall make an order sending him to an observation home or a place of safety, as the case may be, for such period during the pendency of the inquiry regarding the person, as may be specified in the order.

(4) When a child in conflict with law is unable to fulfil the conditions of bail order within seven days of the bail order, such child shall be produced before the Board for modification of the conditions of bail."

12. Section 10 places safeguards with respect to a juvenile who is alleged to have committed a cognizable offence by providing that he shall be put in the charge of the SJPU or the designated CWPO who shall be obliged to produce the child before the Board without any loss of time and in any case within 24 hours of apprehension. The authorities including the Board enjoined with undertaking an enquiry are obliged to follow the procedure as prescribed in the 2015 Act and as far as possible also to bear in mind the procedure as laid down in the Criminal Procedure Code for trial of summons cases. Section 14 prescribes the procedure to be adhered to in respect of the enquiry to be initiated in respect of a child in conflict with law. The 2015 enactment then makes special provisions with respect to preliminary assessment in enquiries in respect of heinous offences committed by a juvenile. The expression "heinous offence" has been explained in Section 2(33) to include offences for which the minimum punishment under the I.P.C. or any other law for the time being in force is imprisonment of seven years or more.

13. Exercising powers conferred by Section 110 of the 2015 Act, the Union Government has also framed model rules titled the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Model Rules

20166. Rule 8 deals with the subject of pre production action by the police and other agencies. The said rule reads thus: -

"8. Pre-Production action of Police and other Agencies.-(1) No First Information Report shall be registered except where a heinous offence is alleged to have been committed by the child, or when such offence is alleged to have been committed jointly with adults. In all other matters, the Special Juvenile Police Unit or the Child Welfare Police Officer shall record the information regarding the offence alleged to have been committed by the child in the general daily diary followed by a social background report of the child in Form 1 and circumstances under which the child was apprehended, wherever applicable, and forward it to the Board before the first hearing:

Provided that the power to apprehend shall only be exercised with regard to heinous offences, unless it is in the best interest of the child. For all other cases involving petty and serious offences and cases where apprehending the child is not necessary in the interest of the child, the police or Special Juvenile Police Unit or Child Welfare Police Officer shall forward the information regarding the nature of offence alleged to be committed by the child along with his social background report in Form 1 to the Board and intimate the parents or guardian of the child as to when the child is to be produced for hearing before the Board.

(2) When a child alleged to be in conflict with law is apprehended by the police, the police officer concerned shall place the child under the charge of the Special Juvenile Police Unit or the Child Welfare Police Officer, who shall immediately inform:

(i) the parents or guardian of the child that the child has been apprehended along with the address of the Board where the child will be produced and the date and time when the parents or guardian need to be present before the Board;

(ii) the Probation Officer concerned, that the child has been apprehended so as to enable him to obtain information regarding social background of the child and other material circumstances likely to be of assistance to the Board for conducting the inquiry; and

(iii) a Child Welfare Officer or a Case Worker, to accompany the Special Juvenile Police Unit or Child Welfare Police Officer while producing the child before the Board within twenty- four hours of his apprehension.

(3) The police officer apprehending a child alleged to be in conflict with law shall:

(i) not send the child to a police lock-up and not delay the child being transferred to the Child Welfare Police Officer from the nearest police station. The police officer may under sub-section (2) of section 12 of the Act send the person apprehended to an observation home only for such period till he is produced before the Board i.e. within twenty-four hours of his being apprehended and appropriate orders are obtained as per rule 9 of these rules;

(ii) not hand-cuff, chain or otherwise fetter a child and shall not use any coercion or force on the child;

(iii) inform the child promptly and directly of the charges levelled against him through his parent or guardian and if a First Information Report is registered, copy of the same shall be made available to the child or copy of the police report shall be given to the parent or guardian;

(iv) provide appropriate medical assistance, assistance of interpreter or a special educator, or any other assistance which the child may require, as the case may be;

(v) not compel the child to confess his guilt and he shall be interviewed only at the Special Juvenile Police Unit or at a child-friendly premises or at a child friendly corner in the police station, which does not give the feel of a police station or of being under custodial interrogation. The parent or guardian, may be present during the interview of the child by the police;

(vi) not ask the child to sign any statement; and

(vii) inform the District Legal Services Authority for providing free legal aid to the child.

(4) The Child Welfare Police Officer shall be in plain clothes and not in uniform.

(5) The Child Welfare Police Officer shall record the social background of the child and circumstances of apprehending in every case of alleged involvement of the child in an offence in Form 1 which shall be forwarded to the Board forthwith. For gathering the best available information, it shall be necessary upon the Special Juvenile Police Unit or the Child Welfare Police Officer to contact the parent or guardian of the child.

(6) A list of all designated Child Welfare Police Officers, Child Welfare Officers, Probation Officers, Para Legal Volunteers, District Legal Services Authorities and registered voluntary and non-governmental organisations in a district, Principal Magistrate and members of the Board, members of Special Juvenile Police Unit and Childline Services with contact details shall be prominently displayed in every police station.

(7) When the child is released in a case where apprehending of the child is not warranted, the parents or guardians or a fit person in whose custody the child alleged to be in conflict with law is placed in the best interest of the child, shall furnish an undertaking on a non-judicial paper in Form 2 to ensure their presence on the dates during inquiry or proceedings before the Board.

(8) The State Government shall maintain a panel of voluntary or non-governmental organisations or persons who are in a position to provide the services of probation, counselling, case work and also associate with the Police or Special Juvenile Police Unit or the Child Welfare Police Officer, and have the requisite expertise to assist in physical production of the child before the Board within twenty-four hours and during pendency of the proceedings and the panel of such voluntary or non-governmental organisations or persons shall be forwarded to the Board.

(9) The State Government shall provide funds to the police or Special Juvenile Police Unit or the Child Welfare Police Officer or Case Worker or person for the safety and protection of children and provision of food and basic amenities including travel cost and emergency medical care to the child apprehended or kept under their charge during the period such children are with them."

14. The process to be followed for production of a child is set forth in Rule 9 which is in the following terms: -

9. Production of the child alleged to be in conflict with law before the Board.- (1) When the child alleged to be in conflict with law is apprehended, he shall be produced before the Board within twenty-four hours of his being apprehended, along with a report explaining the reasons for the child being apprehended by the police.

(2) On production of the child before the Board, the Board may pass orders as deemed necessary, including sending the child to an observation home or a place of safety or a fit facility or a fit person.

(3) Where the child produced before the Board is covered under section 83 of the Act, including a child who has surrendered, the Board may, after due inquiry and being satisfied of the circumstances of the child, transfer the child to the Committee as a child in need of care and protection for necessary action, and or pass appropriate directions for rehabilitation, including orders for safe custody and protection of the child and transfer to a fit facility recognised for the purpose which shall have the capacity to provide appropriate protection, and consider transferring the child out of the district or out of the State to another State for the protection and safety of the child.

(4) Where the child alleged to be in conflict with law has not been apprehended and the information in this regard is forwarded by the police or Special Juvenile Police Unit or Child Welfare Police Officer to the Board, the Board shall require the child to appear before it at the earliest so that measures for rehabilitation, where necessary, can be initiated, though the final report may be filed subsequently.

(5) In case the Board is not sitting, the child alleged to be in conflict with law shall be produced before a single member of the Board under sub-section (2) of section 7 of the Act.

(6) In case the child alleged to be in conflict with law cannot be produced before the Board or even a single member of the Board due to child being apprehended during odd hours or distance, the child shall be kept by the Child Welfare Police Officer in the Observation Home in accordance with rule 69 D of these rules or in a fit facility and the child shall be produced before the Board thereafter, within twenty-four hours of apprehending the child.

(7) When a child is produced before an individual member of the Board, and an order is obtained, such order shall be ratified by the Board in its next meeting.

15. Rule 10 prescribes the procedure to be adopted by the Board post production of the child in conflict with law and stipulates:-

"10. Post-production processes by the Board.- (1) On production of the child before the Board, the report containing the social background of the child, circumstances of apprehending the child and offence alleged to have been committed by the child as provided by the officers, individuals, agencies producing the child shall be reviewed by the Board and the Board may pass such orders in relation to the child as it deems fit, including orders under sections 17 and 18 of the Act, namely:

(i) disposing of the case, if on the consideration of the documents and record submitted at the time of his first appearance, his being in conflict with law appears to be unfounded or where the child is alleged to be involved in petty offences;

(ii) referring the child to the Committee where it appears to the Board that the child is in need of care and protection;

(iii) releasing the child in the supervision or custody of fit persons or fit institutions or Probation Officers as the case may be, through an order in Form 3, with a direction to appear or present a child for an inquiry on the next date; and

(iv) directing the child to be kept in the Child Care Institution, as appropriate, if necessary, pending inquiry as per order in Form 4.

(2) In all cases of release pending inquiry, the Board shall notify the next date of hearing, not later than fifteen days of the first summary inquiry and also seek social investigation report from the Probation Officer, or in case a Probation Officer is not available the Child Welfare Officer or social worker concerned through an order in Form 5.

(3) When the child alleged to be in conflict with law, after being admitted to bail, fails to appear before the Board, on the date fixed for hearing, and no application is moved for exemption on his behalf or there is not sufficient reason for granting him exemption, the Board shall, issue to the Child Welfare Police Officer and the Person-in-charge of the Police Station directions for the production of the child.

(4) If the Child Welfare Police Officer fails to produce the child before the Board even after the issuance of the directions for production of the child, the Board shall instead of issuing process under section 82 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 pass orders as appropriate under section 26 of the Act.

(5) In cases of heinous offences alleged to have been committed by a child, who has completed the age of sixteen years, the Child Welfare Police Officer shall produce the statement of witnesses recorded by him and other documents prepared during the course of investigation within a period of one month from the date of first production of the child before the Board, a copy of which shall also be given to the child or parent or guardian of the child.

(6) In cases of petty or serious offences, the final report shall be filed before the Board at the earliest and in any case not beyond the period of two months from the date of information to the police, except in those cases where it was not reasonably known that the person involved in the offence was a child, in which case extension of time may be granted by the Board for filing the final report.

(7) When witnesses are produced for examination in an inquiry relating to a child alleged to be in conflict with law, the Board shall ensure that the inquiry is not conducted in the spirit of strict adversarial proceedings and it shall use the powers conferred by section 165 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (1 of 1872) so as to interrogate the child and proceed with the presumptions in favour of the child.

(8) While examining a child alleged to be in conflict with law and recording his statement during the inquiry under section 14 of the Act, the Board shall address the child in a child-friendly manner in order to put the child at ease and to encourage him to state the facts and circumstances without any fear, not only in respect of the offence which has been alleged against the child, but also in respect of the home and social surroundings, and the influence or the offences to which the child might have been subjected to.

(9) The Board shall take into account the report containing circumstances of apprehending the child and the offence alleged to have been committed by him and the social investigation report in Form 6 prepared by the Probation Officer or the voluntary or non- governmental organisation, along with the evidence produced by the parties for arriving at a conclusion.

10 A. Preliminary assessment into heinous offences by Board.- (1) The Board shall in the first instance determine whether the child is of sixteen years of age or above; if not, it shall proceed as per provisions of section 14 of the Act.

(2) For the purpose of conducting a preliminary assessment in case of heinous offences, the Board may take the assistance of psychologists or psycho-social workers or other experts who have experience of working with children in difficult circumstances. A panel of such experts may be made available by the District Child Protection Unit, whose assistance can be taken by the Board or could be accessed independently.

(3) While making the preliminary assessment, the child shall be presumed to be innocent unless proved otherwise.

(4) Where the Board, after preliminary assessment under section 15 of the Act, passes an order that there is a need for trial of the said child as an adult, it shall assign reasons for the same and the copy of the order shall be provided to the child forthwith."

16. The answer to the question as framed would principally depend upon recognising the scope and essential intent underlying Section 1(4) which underscores that the provisions of the 2015 Act insofar as they relate to the subject of apprehension, detention, prosecution, penalty or imprisonment would apply in respect of a children in conflict with law notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force. It would also be relevant to note that the provisions of Section 5 of the Criminal Procedure Code, strictly speaking, may have no application since it relates to enactments that were in force when that Code was promulgated. Undisputedly the 2015 Act is a subsequent legislation and its provisions consequently would not be effected by Section 5. However Section 4 (2) of the Criminal Procedure Code would have limited application and be recognised as governing the field in areas for which no special procedure or provision is made under the 2015 Act. What impact Section 4 (2) would ultimately have on the question that is raised shall be dealt with a little later. Having set out the relevant provisions engrafted in the 2015 Act and the Model Rules, it would be apposite to briefly recognise and underscore the nature of the safeguards that are put in place in relation to the arrest of a child in conflict with law and the enquiry which is to be undertaken by the Board.

PRE PRODUCTION STAGE

17. Section 10 apart from enjoining the police to place the apprehended juvenile in the custody of the SJPU or the CWPO also restrains the authorities from placing the juvenile in a police lock up or jail. The provision mandates the placement of the juvenile in an observation home or place of safety till such time as he is produced before the Board. In terms of the Proviso appended to Rule 8 (1) of the Model Rules, no child is to be apprehended except in the case of commission of a heinous offense or where it is otherwise in his best interest. The Rule prescribes that no FIR shall be lodged or registered except where a heinous offense is alleged to have been committed by a child. In all other cases, the SJPU or the CWPO shall enter the information received in the General Diary, apprise the parents of the child and transmit the information along with the social background report to the Board. Rule 8 (3) reiterates the statutory restraint against transmitting the child to jail, placement of handcuffs or any other fetter, his placement in the custody of the SJPU or the CWPO and being accommodated in a welfare home till his production before the Board. It further mandates the child being apprised of the charges levelled against him and being provided with a copy of the FIR if lodged. Additionally it provides for the child being interviewed at the SJPU or a child friendly place or corner of the police station. The Rule requires the parents or the guardian to be present during the interview and also obliges the authorities to inform the District Legal Services Authority to enable it to provide legal aid to the child. The Rule prescribes that the juvenile shall not be compelled to sign any statement. After the completion of these formalities and not later than 24 hours from apprehension the child is to be produced before the concerned Board. On a reading of the aforesaid Rule and the numerous obligations and safeguards put in place it is evident that the apprehension of a child under the 2015 Act is not akin to incarceration or arrest as otherwise effected under the Criminal Procedure Code. The 2015 Act appears to put in place a comprehensive, distinct and special procedure insofar as the apprehension of a child is concerned.

POST PRODUCTION STAGE

18. Upon being presented before the Board, the opening and foremost issue which arises is the consideration of bail. In terms of Section 12 of the 2015 Act, the Board is mandated to release the child on bail unless it forms the opinion that the child is likely to fall into the association of known criminals, the release is likely to have a negative physical, moral or psychological impact or otherwise defeat the ends of justice. Where the Board decides to refuse bail, the child is liable to be placed in an observation home till the completion of the enquiry initiated under the 2015 Act. These provisions are mirrored in Rule 9 of the Model Rules.

19. Upon a thoughtful consideration of the provisions noticed above, it is manifest that the 2015 Act and the Model Rules lay in place a special and overarching procedure dealing with the apprehension of a child in conflict with law. The procedure so laid in place constitutes a distinct and significant departure from the power and procedure for arrest and detention as contained in the Criminal Procedure Code. Upon a holistic consideration of the provisions engrafted in the 2015 Act and the Model Rules, it is also manifest that they construct and put in place a self contained and compendious code to deal with issues arising in relation to a child in conflict with law. They clearly and unmistakably represent the intent of the Legislature to lay in place an independent, inclusive and all embracing statutory regime to deal with the issues of arrest and enquiry of a child who is alleged to have committed a crime.

20. Having noticed the relevant provisions and the underlying scheme of the 2015 Act the stage is now set to consider the decisions rendered by different High Courts on the subject. Before proceeding to notice the judgments rendered and which directly deal with the question posed here, it would be relevant to note the following two decisions rendered by learned Judges of the Kerala and the Chhattisgarh High Court. In Gopakumar v. State of Kerala7 a learned Judge of the Kerala High Court held: -

8. However, right of the juvenile or juvenile in conflict with law to seek pre-arrest bail having apprehension of his arrest on accusation of a non-bailable offence is not the decisive question that may emerge for consideration before the court when such a request is made by such a person. That has necessarily to be considered and examined with reference to the laudable objectives behind the enacting of the 'Act' and the duty cast upon the court to see that the right of a juvenile or juvenile in conflict with law is not in any way impaired. More so, to ensure that none of the provisions of the Act in relation to such juvenile is violated. The Act has been primarily enacted taking note that the justice system as available for adults is not suitable and cannot be applied to a juvenile or a child. A new system 'Juvenile justice system' is provided under the Act to protect the interests of the juvenile. Even when a juvenile in conflict with law is apprehended or arrested by police, the mandate of the Act is that such juvenile shall be placed under the charge of the special juvenile police unit or the designated police officer. What should be done on apprehension of a juvenile in conflict with law is covered by S. 10 of the Act, which commands that the special juvenile police unit or the designated police officer, to which/whom the juvenile is handed over, shall immediately report to the member of the Board. Juvenile Justice Board is the authority before which the apprehended or arrested juvenile has to be produced, and on such production, it has to pass orders whether he is to be released on bail with or without sureties. Release of the juvenile even where he is accused of a non-bailable offence can be denied only where the Board is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that his release is likely to bring him into association with any known criminal or expose him to moral, physical or psychological danger or that his release would defeat the ends of justice. When such be the law governing the grant of bail to a juvenile even when he is accused of a non-bailable offence on the authority Juvenile Justice Board, after his arrest or apprehension and production, the directions issued under Annexure-V order by the learned Sessions Judge, which have been referred to earlier, compelling the juvenile to report before the police station during the investigation of the crime, are totally unsustainable. Where the salutary provisions covered by the Act insulate the juvenile or the child from being exposed to the vagaries of the police, and also from the justice system applicable to the rest of the society, mandating how they are to be dealt with even on arrest or apprehension, and a separate body and other authorities are provided constituting a juvenile justice system to deal with them, the directions given under Annexure-V order exposing and compelling the juvenile to suffer at the hands of police, asking him to report to the police station and investigating officer is violative of the Act.

9. What should have been done by the learned Sessions Judge when the juvenile applied for anticipatory bail, which in the present case was opposed by the Public Prosecutor, has also to be looked into. So far as the juvenile in conflict with law, the competent authority to deal with him is the Juvenile Justice Board. But, it has to be noticed whatever powers enjoined by the Juvenile Justice Board can be exercised by the High Court or the Court of Session. S. 6 of the Act deals with the powers of the Juvenile Justice Board. Sub-s.(2) of that section reads thus:

6. Powers of Juvenile Justice Board:

(1) X X X

(2) The powers conferred on the Board by or under this Act may also be exercised by the High Court and the Court of Session, when the proceeding comes before them in appeal, revision or otherwise.

10. So much so, when any proceeding in relation to a juvenile comes before the High Court or the Court of Session all powers conferred on the Board under the Act can be exercised. Such proceeding need not arise from appeal or revision. The words "or otherwise" used in sub-s.(2) of S 6 of the Act is quite significant and it has to be given true meaning and spirit taking note of the objectives of the enactment when that be so, even in an application moved under S. 438 of the Code, orders could be passed by the Sessions Judge exercising the powers of the Juvenile Justice Board. At any rate, orders passed by the Sessions Judge should be in conformity with the provisions of the Act and not against or violative of the spirit and objectives of that Act. Where the police apprehends a juvenile in conflict with law, the Act mandates for placing the juvenile in charge of the special juvenile police unit or the designated police officer, and, such unit or police officer further bound to report the matter immediately to a member of the Juvenile Justice Board, there could be no direction or order to release the juvenile in the event of his arrest on execution of a bond as passed under Annexure-V order. Mandatory prescriptions covered by S. 10 of the Act have to be complied with by the police officer in the event of apprehension/arrest of juvenile in conflict with law, and once custody of the apprehended juvenile is handed over to the juvenile special unit or the designated police officer, what is his control over the juvenile is also taken care of under S. 11 of the Act. Such being the provisions covered by the Act to ensure the right of the juvenile in conflict with law, to prevent him from being exposed to police and police stations, Annexure-V order passed directing execution of bond by the petitioner in the event of his arrest and all other conditions imposed thereunder have no sanction of law, and they are vacated."

21. While the said decision proceeds to enter certain observations which may be interpreted as being in support of the proposition that an anticipatory bail petition could be moved by a child in conflict with law, it becomes pertinent to note that Gopakumar itself was principally dealing with the validity of certain conditions which were imposed by the Sessions Judge while according pre-arrest bail to the applicant there. The decision clearly does not deal with the question posited before us, namely, the maintainability of a petition for anticipatory bail at the behest of a child.

22. In Preetam Pathak v. State of Chhattisgarh8, a learned Judge of the Chhattisgarh High Court held thus: -

6. A close and careful perusal of Section 12 of the Act, 2000 would show that an application for bail of juvenile would be entertainable by the Board only if he is arrested and brought before the Board where he is accused of bailable or non-bailable offences and the condition precedent to the juvenile would be, he is arrested or detained or appears or is brought before a Board, then only his application filed under Section 12 of the Act, 2000 shall be decided by the Board. Apart from Section 12 of the Act, 2000, there is no other provisions in the Act, 2000 like Section 438 of Cr.P.C. giving powers to the Board to grant anticipatory bail to the juvenile and thus, power and jurisdiction to grant anticipatory bail has not been conferred to the juvenile Justice Board, and therefore, the provisions contained in Section 438 of Cr.P.C. cannot be exercised by this court or court of session to grant anticipatory bail to the juvenile by virtue of provisions contained in Section 6(2) of the Act, 2000.

7. The aforesaid question came to be considered before the High Court of Madhya Pradesh in case of Kapil Durgawani v. State of Madhya Pradesh (2010 (IV) MPJR 155), in which, after consideration it has been held that provisions of Section 12 of the Act, 2000 do not provide such power to the Board which is equivalent to Section 438 of Cr.P.C. and the Board has no jurisdiction to entertain application under Section 438 of Cr.P.C. by holding as under:

"Provisions of Section 12 of the Act, 2000, do not provide such powers to the Board which is equivalent to Section 438 of Cr.P.C. The Board has no jurisdiction to entertain application under Section 438 of Cr.P.C."

8. Again similar proposition has been reiterated by the MP High Court in case of Sandeep Singh Tomar v. State of M.P. (2014(IV) MPJR 49)

9. I am in respectful agreement with the view taken by the High Court of Madhya Pradesh in Kapil Durgawani (Supra) and Sandeep Singh Tomar (Supra), and in the considered opinion of this court juvenile is not entitled to maintain application under Section 438 of Cr.P.C. in absence of specific provisions in the Act, 2000. Accordingly, the application filed Section 438 of Cr.P.C. for anticipatory bail is dismissed as not maintainable in law. However, the applicant is at liberty to appear before the Board and to move appropriate application under Section 12 of the Act, 2000."

23. This decision deals with the question of whether the Board constituted under the 2000 Act could entertain a petition under Section 438. The learned Judge held that in the absence of a specific conferment or extension of power to grant anticipatory bail, the Board could not entertain a petition for grant of anticipatory bail. The learned Judge took note of Section 6 (2) of the 2000 Act which extended powers conferred upon the Board also to a Court of Sessions or the High Court while dealing with maters arising from that enactment. It becomes pertinent to note that similar provisions stand engrafted in the 2015 Act by virtue of Section 8(2). The learned Judge consequently proceeded to hold that by extension the petition for anticipatory bail before the High Court was not maintainable. In the respectful opinion of this Court, the contemporaneous powers conferred upon a Court of Sessions or the High Court by virtue of Section 8 (2) of the 2015 Act or Section 6 (2) of the 2000 Act would really not furnish an answer to the question posed since it would still leave the issue of whether the powers comprised in Section 438 stand excluded by implication open to debate.

24. That takes the Court to the principal decision in support of the issue of maintainability of the Kerala High Court in Mr. X S/O Baby V.M. v. State of Kerala9 rendered by a learned Judge of that Court. This decision directly deals with the question that arises for our consideration in this application. While dealing with the right of a child in conflict with law to maintain an application for anticipatory bail, the learned Judge held:-

"17. Section 10 of the Act empowers the police for apprehending a child alleged to be in conflict with law. It does not provide for arresting a child alleged to be in conflict with law. Section 46(1) of the Code deals with how arrests are to be made. It provides that in making an arrest, the police officer or other person making the same shall actually touch or confine the body of the person to be arrested, unless there be a submission to the custody by word or action. Apprehending a person necessarily involves touching or confining the body of that person or submission of the person to the control of the police officer. Therefore, apprehending a person involves arrest of the person. Apprehending a person curtails his personal freedom and liberty. In my view, merely for the reason that Section 10 of the Act provides for apprehending a child in conflict with law and not for arresting him, it cannot be held that an application under Section 438 of the Code by him/her is not maintainable.

18. As per Section 12 of the Act, when any person, who is apparently a child and is alleged to have committed a bailable or non-bailable offence, is apprehended or detained by the police or appears or brought before the Juvenile Justice Board, such person shall, notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) or in any other law for the time being in force, be released on bail unless the Board is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that granting bail to him is likely to bring him into association with any known criminal or expose him to moral, physical or psychological danger or his release would defeat the ends of justice. Section 12(1) of the Act, to a large extent, obliterates the distinction between a bailable offence and a non-bailable offence as far as a child in conflict with law is concerned because whatever be the nature of the offence, bailable or non-bailable, he is entitled to be released on bail unless the proviso to that provision applies. The question is whether Section 12(1) of the Act, for that reason, creates a bar for the application of Section 438 of the Code.

19. Section 12(1) of the Act deals with a situation where a child in conflict with law is apprehended or detained by the police or appears or brought before the Board. It deals with the procedure to be followed after apprehending a child in conflict with law. When a child in conflict with law is apprehended or detained or appears or brought before the Board, the provision contained in Section 12(1) of the Act comes into play. The expression "notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974)" in Section 12(1) of the Act is applicable to granting of bail to a child who is alleged to be in conflict with law after his apprehension or detention by the police or appearance or production before the Board. It does not deal with a situation before apprehending a child in conflict with law. In other words, this provision does not deal with a situation before the apprehension or detention of a child in conflict with law by the police or his appearance or production before the Board. Therefore, the provision contained in Section 12(1) of the Act does not take away the jurisdiction of the High Court or the Court of Session under Section 438 of the Code even by implication.

20. Section 4(1) of the Code provides that all offences under the Indian Penal Code shall be investigated, inquired into, tried, and otherwise dealt with according to the provisions contained in the Code. Section 4(2) of the Code states that all offences under any other law shall be investigated, inquired into, tried, and otherwise dealt with according to the same provisions, but subject to any enactment for the time being in force regulating the manner or place of investigating, inquiring into, trying or otherwise dealing with such offences. Section 5 of the Code states that nothing contained in the case shall, in the absence of a specific provision to the contrary, affect any special or local law for the time being in force, or any special jurisdiction or power conferred, or any special form of procedure prescribed, by any other law for the time being in force. It is apparent from Section 4 of the Code that the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code are applicable where an offence under the Indian Penal Code or under any other law is being investigated, inquired into, tried or otherwise dealt with. Section 5 of the Code is not in derogation of Section 4(2) and it only relates to the extent of application of the Code in the matter of territorial and other jurisdiction and it does not nullify the effect of Section 4(2) of the Code. The provisions of the Code would be applicable in the absence of any contrary provision in the special Act or any special provision excluding the jurisdiction or applicability of the Code.

21. In Vishwa Mitter v. O. P. Poddar : AIR 1984 SC 5, the Supreme Court has held as follows:

"Generally speaking, anyone can put the criminal law in motion unless there is a specific provision to the contrary. This is specifically indicated by the provision of sub-section (2) of S.4 which provides that all offences under any other law meaning thereby law other than the Indian Penal Code shall be investigated, inquired into, tried, and otherwise dealt with according to the provisions in the Code of Criminal Procedure, but subject to any enactment for the time being in force regulating the manner or place of investigating, inquiring into, trying or otherwise dealing with such offences. It would follow as a necessary corollary that unless in any statute other than the Code of Criminal Procedure which prescribes an offence and simultaneously specifies the manner or place of investigating, inquiring into, trying or otherwise dealing with such offences, the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure shall apply in respect of such offences and they shall be investigated, inquired into, tried and otherwise dealt with according to the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure."

22. There is no provision in the Act which either expressly or by necessary implication excludes the applicability of Section 438 of the Code which provides for granting anticipatory bail. The Act does not contain any special provision dealing with granting of anticipatory bail to a child in conflict with law. Where no special provision is made under the Act with regard to any particular matter, the provision contained in the Code in that regard shall be applicable. The Act does not contain any provision which excludes the general application of the provisions of the Code as such. Wherever the legislature intended to give overriding effect to the statutory scheme of the Act over the provisions of general application contained in the Code, it has been specifically provided so.

24. I am in respectful agreement with the aforesaid view. At this juncture, it is to be noticed that in Gopakumar v. State of Kerala (2012 (4) KHC 841: 2012 (4) KLT 755), while considering the provisions contained in the Act of 2000, this Court has held that a juvenile in conflict with law apprehending arrest in a non - bailable offence, no doubt, will be entitled to seek the discretionary relief of pre-arrest bail envisaged under Section 438 of the Code because that Section takes within its ambit 'any person' to seek such relief when he has reason to believe that he may be arrested on an accusation of having committed a non - bailable offence.

25. The upshot of the discussion above is that an application for anticipatory bail under Section 438 of the Code at the instance of a child in conflict with law is maintainable before the High Court or the Court of Session."

25. As is evident from the conclusions recorded in Mr. X, the learned Judge took the view that the expression "apprehend" would include and necessarily involve the arrest of a person and consequently it cannot be held that an application for anticipatory bail could not be maintained by the child. Proceeding to deal with the non obstante clause as used in Section 12, the learned Judge held that the same can have no application to a situation where a child in conflict with law is yet to be apprehended. In view thereof the learned Judge opined that the provisions contained in Section 12 do not take away the jurisdiction of either the High Court or the Court of Sessions to entertain a petition under Section 438. The learned Judge then proceeded to hold that no provision of the 2015 Act either expressly or by necessary implication excluded the applicability of Section 438 of the Criminal Procedure Code. It was further noted that since the 2015 Act did not contain any special provision dealing with the grant of anticipatory bail to a child, the provisions made in that respect in the Criminal Procedure Code would apply.

26. The learned Judge also rested his decision on the decision rendered by a Division Bench of the Chhattisgarh High Court in Sudhir Sharma v. State of Chhattisgarh10 where dealing with an identical question, the Division Bench held as follows: -

32. As has already been dealt with hereinabove, sub section (2) of Section 4 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 clearly provides that all offences under any other law shall be investigated, enquired into, tried and other wise dealt with according to the provisions contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, but subject to any other enactment for the time being in force, regulating the manner or place of investigating, enquiring into, trying or otherwise dealing with such offences. Therefore, where no special provisions have been made with regard to any particular procedure under the Act of 2015 of general application contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, to the extent they are not inconsistent or derogative with the provisions and statutory scheme of the Act of 2015, shall be applicable.

33. The Act of 2015 does not contain any provision which excludes the general application of the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 as such. As has been examined hereinabove, overriding effect has been given to certain provisions of the Act of 2015 by providing non obstante clause in respect of certain matters. Wherever legislature intended to give overriding effect to the statutory scheme of Act of 2015 over the provisions of general application contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, it has been specifically provided in given provision, which have been referred to hereinabove.

34. Word "notwithstanding anything" is used in contra-distinction to the phrase 'subject to', the later conveying idea of provision yielding place to another provision or other provision to which, it is made subject to. Please see Punjab Sikh Regular Motor Service, Moudahapara, Raipur v. Regional Transport Authority, AIR 1966 SC 1318 and South India Corporation (P) Limited v. Secretary, Board of Revenue, Trivandrum, AIR 1964

SC 207. Therefore, phrase "subject to" which occurs in Section 4(2) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 and the phrase "notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973" mentioned in various provisions of the Act of 2015, read together in juxtaposition pave wave for approach to be adopted while examining the issue whereby application of Act of 2015 in general and provisions of Section 12 of the Act of 2015 in particular, legislature intended to exclude the juvenile (child as defined under the Act of 2015) from the category of persons having statutory remedy of applying for grant of anticipatory bail.

38. Applying the aforesaid principles applicable in the matter of interpretation of non obstante clause, if the scheme of Act of 2015 in general and the provisions relating to grant of post arrest bail as contained in Section 12 of the Act of 2015 in particular, having non obstante clause to override the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, generally with the provisions of general applications of Section 4 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, the legislative intention does not appear to altogether exclude provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 in relation to provisions contained in Chapter XXXIII relating to bails and bonds. Provisions relating to bails and bonds contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 would be rendered inapplicable only to the extent that they are inconsistent with the provisions of grant of bail contained in the Act of 2015. There is no warrant for conclusion that non obstante clause contained in Section 12 of the Act of 2015 completely excludes the availability of remedy of applying for grant of anticipatory bail by CICL, who is apprehending his arrest on the accusation of commission of any offence. The only provision for grant of bail as contained under Section 12 of the Act of 2015, which deals with application for grant of bail by a CICL applies, when he is apprehended or detained by the police or appears or brought before the Board on the allegation of having committed a bailable or non-bailable offences. The statutory scheme of Section 12 mandates grant of bail to a CICL by use of word "shall" unless there appears reasonable grounds for believing that the release is likely to bring the CICL in association with known criminal or to expose such person to mental, physical or psychological danger or his release would defeat the ends of justice. The provision, in fact, deals with a case of child differently from any other person who is not a child. Unless the aforesaid three exceptional grounds are made out for rejection of application for grant of bail, CICL has to be granted bail irrespective of nature and gravity of allegations against him. We fail to see how the beneficial provision for grant of bail to CICL could be interpreted to the utter prejudice of a CICL to say that he would not be entitled to say that important statutory scheme of seeking anticipatory bail provided under Section 438 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 is not available to him. On rational construction of the non obstante clause in Section 12, it only seeks to put a ClCL in a better position as compared to any other person who is not a CICL by providing that ordinarily a CICL has to be granted bail and it could be rejected upon existence of three specified grounds exhaustively enumerated in the provision itself. There is no justification for giving non obstante of such a wide amplitude as to exclude the statutory remedy of applying for anticipatory bail by a CICL. The Act of 2015 is completely silent with regard to anticipatory bail. Therefore, in view of the provision contained in Section 4 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, the provision relating to grant of anticipatory bail contained in Section 438 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 will continue to have application and will be available to CICL, who is apprehending arrest."

27. Significantly the decisions rendered in Mr. X and Sudhir Sharma fail to notice the provisions made in Section 1(4) of the 2015 Act. Commencing with a non obstante clause, the provision as noted above, clearly appears to indicate the legislative intent to create an independent and special procedure to deal with the issue of arrest and detention of a child in conflict with law.

28. The view taken in Mr. X has been followed by a learned Judge of the High Court of Jharkhand in Birbal Munda and Others v. State of Jharkhand11 where it was held: -

"13. After going through the Judgments and orders of various High Courts referred to above it is crystal clear that some of the High Courts are of the view that the anticipatory bail filed on behalf of a child in conflict with law under Section 438 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is not maintainable basically for the following two reasons:-

(a) Since there is non obstante clause in Section 12 of Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 regarding the applicability of the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure and Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 is a special act hence the application for grant of anticipatory bail preferred by a child in conflict with law cannot be entertained by the High Court or a Court of Session in exercise of the power under section 438 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, as there is no provision either in the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 or in the Code of Criminal Procedure to enable a child in conflict with law to move an application for anticipatory bail either before the Court of Session or the High Court.

(b) The second ground is that as the provisions of Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 do not envisages arrest of the child in conflict with law and deliberately the legislature has used the word 'apprehend' instead of the word 'arrest' so the pre requisites for exercising power under Section 438 of Code of Criminal Procedure that there has to be an apprehension of the applicant of being arrested in connection with non-bailable offence does not exist hence, the power under Section 438 of the Code of Criminal Procedure cannot be exercised by a High Court or a Court of Session in granting anticipatory bail to a child in conflict with law in exercise of power under Section 438 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

14. So far as the first ground for non-availability of the relief of anticipatory bail to a child in conflict with law on the ground of non obstante clause as appearing in Section 12 of Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 is concerned, I am of the considered view that non obstante clause does not take away various provisions of bail or anticipatory bail envisaged in the Code of Criminal Procedure but only removes various barriers for grant of bail under the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure and authorizes the Juvenile Justice Board that in-spite of such barriers for granting of bail as envisaged in Section 436 and 437 of the Code of Criminal Procedure for releasing the person arrested or detained.

15. Further the Hon'ble Supreme court of India in the case of Nikesh Tarachand Shah v. Union of India[(2018) 11 SCC 1: AIR 2017 SC 5500] while considering the provision of bail in cases involving the offences punishable under The Prevention of Money-Laundering Act, 2002, Section 45(1) of which starts with the non obstante clause imposing restrictions for grant of anticipatory bail, which reads as under when the said judgment was passed (Subsequently the said section has been amended):-

45. Offences to be cognizable and non-bailable.-

(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974), no person accused of an offence punishable for a term of imprisonment of more than three years under Part A of the Schedule shall be released on bail or on his own bond unless-

(i) the Public Prosecutor has been given an opportunity to oppose the application for such release; and

(ii) where the Public Prosecutor opposes the application, the court is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that he is not guilty of such offence and that he is not likely to commit any offence while on bail: Provided that a person who is under the age of sixteen years or is a woman or is sick or infirm, may be released on bail, if the special court so directs: Provided further that the Special Court shall not take cognizance of any offence punishable under section 4 except upon a complaint in writing made by-

(i) the Director; or

(ii) any officer of the Central Government or State Government authorised in writing in this behalf by the Central Government by a general or a special order made in this behalf by that Government.

16. Inter alia observed as under in paragraph- 35 of the said judgement:-

35. Another conundrum that arises is that, unlike the Terrorist and Disruptive Activities (Prevention) Act, 1987, there is no provision in the 2002 Act which excludes grant of anticipatory bail. Anticipatory bail can be granted in circumstances set out in Siddharam Satlingappa Mhetre v. State of Maharashtra,[(2011) 1 SCC 694 (See paragraphs 109, 112 and 117) : (AIR 2011 SC 312, Paras 118-119, 122 and 128)]. Thus, anticipatory bail may be granted to a person who is prosecuted for the offence of money laundering together with an offence under Part A of the Schedule, which may last throughout the trial. Obviously for grant of such bail, Section 45 does not need to be satisfied, as only a person arrested under Section 19 of the Act can only be released on bail after satisfying the conditions of Section 45. But insofar as pre-arrest bail is concerned, Section 45 does not apply on its own terms. ... …

(Emphasis Supplied)

17. Thus, certainly the said non obstante clause does not exclude the availability of remedy of applying for grant of anticipatory bail on behalf of a child in conflict with law, who is apprehending his arrest on accusation of having committed a non bailable offence therefore beneficial provision to grant of bail to a child in conflict with law, like the instant case where a child as young as 5 years has been accused of murdering the deceased in furtherance of common intention, as envisaged under section 438 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and certainly keeping in view the objects and reasons of the enactments in view Section 12 of Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 cannot be interpreted to the detriment of a child in conflict with law and the interpretation that the said provision disentitles a child in conflict with law to the statutory scheme of seeking anticipatory bail provided under Section 438 of the Code of Criminal Procedure will not be a rational construction of non obstante clause appearing in Section 12 of Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 as the said non obstante clause only seeks to put the child in conflict with law in a better position as compared to any other person who is not a child in conflict with law by providing that in absence of existence of three specified grounds exhaustively enumerated in the said section the child in conflict with law has to be granted bail and interpreting the said non obstante clause by giving it a wide amplitude as to exclude the statutory remedy of applying for anticipatory bail by a child in conflict with law will be an illogical interpretation.

18. Further as Section 438 of the Code of Criminal Procedure envisages that any person who has reason to believe that he may be arrested on an accusation of having committed a non-bailable offence may apply to the High Court or the Court of Session under Section 438 of the Code of Criminal Procedure that in the event of such arrest he shall be released on bail and though the word 'person' has not been defined in the Code of Criminal Procedure but the same has been defined in Section 11 of the Indian Penal Code which reads as under:-

11. "Person"-The word "person" includes any company or association or body of persons, whether incorporated or not.

19. Hence, applying the definition of person mentioned in the Indian Penal Code to the word "person' as mentioned in section 438 of the Code of Criminal Procedure in terms of Section 2 (y) of the Code of Criminal Procedure which reads as under:-

"2. Definitions:- In this Code, unless the context otherwise requires,- (y) words and expressions used herein and not defined but defined in the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860) have the meanings respectively assigned to them in that Code."

20. It cannot be said that the Code of Criminal Procedure does not provide a child in conflict with law which certainly comes within the ambit of the words "person of any age" is entitled to approach the High Court to seek the relief of anticipatory bail in terms of Section 438 of the Code of Criminal Procedure or the Court of Session.

21. So far as the second ground that a child in conflict with law does not has the remedy to the anticipatory bail as the word 'apprehend' has been used instead of the word 'arrest' in Section 10 of Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 is concerned, in P. Ramanatha Aiyar's Law Lexicon, published by Wadhwa and Company(Reprint 2002 of Second Edition 1997) the meaning of the word 'Apprehend' has been mentioned as under:

Apprehend- To seize under process of law; to take into custody; make prisoner; arrest by legal warrant or authority.

22. As mentioned in the said Law Lexicon the distinction between the words 'apprehension' and 'arrest' was considered by Court in England in the case of Montgomery County v. Robinson (85 III 176, Black) and the said two words have been distinguished as under:

"The term 'apprehension' seems to be more peculiarly appropriate to seizure on criminal process; while "arrest" may apply to either a civil or criminal action but it perhaps be confined to the former."

23. It is pertinent to refer to section 46(1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure which reads as under:

46. Arrest how made - (1) In making an arrest the police officer or other person making the same shall actually touch or confine the body of the person to be arrested, unless there be a submission to the custody by words or action.

[Provided that where a woman is to be arrested, unless the circumstances indicate to the contrary, her submission to custody on an oral intimation of arrest shall be presumed and, unless the circumstances otherwise require or unless the police officer is a female, the police officer shall not touch the person of the woman for making her arrest]

24. The said section provides that in making an arrest the police officer or the person making arrest shall actually touch or confine the body of the person to be arrested and unless there be a submission to the custody by word or action, thus apprehending a person necessarily involves touching or confining the body of that person to or submission of the person to the control of the police officer or the person making arrest. Therefore "apprehending" in my humble opinion also involves the arrest of a person as apprehending a person certainly curtails his personal freedom and liberty as has been held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Gubaksh Singh Sibbia vs. State of Punjab reported in (1980) 2 SCC 565: AIR 1980 SC 16632 wherein bail has been interpreted as under:-

".... .... Thus, bail is basically release from restraint, more particularly, release from the custody of the police. The act of arrest directly affects freedom of movement of the person arrested by the police, and speaking generally an order of bail gives back to the accused that freedom on condition that he will appear to take his trail. ....…"

25. Thus, I am of the considered view that the provision contained in Section 12 (1) of Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 does not extinguish the jurisdiction of a High Court or the Court of Session under Section 438 of the Code of Criminal Procedure in any manner."

29. In Birbal Munda the learned Judge, placing reliance upon the definition of the word "person" as appearing in Section 11 of the Indian Penal Code, proceeded to hold that a child in conflict with law would clearly fall within the ambit of the words "person of any age". The learned Judge further held that there was no significant distinction between the words "apprehension" and "arrest" and therefore held that Section 12 of the 2015 Act does not extinguish the jurisdiction of a High Court of the Court of Sessions as conferred by Section 438 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

30. A contrary view has been taken by the Division Bench of the Madras High Court in K. Vignesh v. State represented by the Inspector of Police12 where it was held: -

"11. While enacting the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015, the Legislature was well aware of Chapter V of the Code of Criminal Procedure more particularly Section 46 of the Code of Criminal Procedure as to how a person could be arrested. Had it been the intention of the Legislature, that a police officer should be empowered to arrest a child in conflict with law, the Legislature would have very well used the expression

'arrest' instead of using the expression 'apprehend' in Section 10 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015. In our considered view, the Legislature has, thus, consciously omitted to use the expression 'arrest' in Section 10 of the Act, which means that the Legislature did not want to empower the police to arrest a child in conflict with law. The Legislature, being aware of the consequences that ensue the arrest, has avoided to empower the police to arrest a child in conflict with law. At the same time, the child in conflict with law cannot be let free as it would not be in the interest of the child in conflict with law as well as the society. Therefore, the Legislature had obviously thought it fit to give only a limited power to the police. In other words, the Legislature has empowered the police simply to apprehend a child in conflict with law and immediately, without any delay, cause his production before the Juvenile Justice Board. The Juvenile Justice Board has also not been empowered to pass any order of remand of the child in conflict with law either with the police or in jail. The proviso to Section 10 of the Act makes it very clear that in no case a child alleged to be in conflict with law shall be placed in a police lock-up or lodged in a jail. The Board has been obligated to send the child either to an observation home or a place of safety. There are lot of other safeguards in the Act as well as in the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Model Rules, 2016 to ensure that the child so apprehended by a police or any other authority shall not in any manner be disturbed emotionally, psychological or physically. Thus, a reading of the entire scheme of the Act would inform that no authority, including the police, has been empowered to arrest a child in conflict with law but instead the child in conflict with law could only be apprehended and produced before the Juvenile Justice Board.

15. From the above narration of various provisions of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015, one can understand, without any doubt whatsoever, that a child in conflict with law cannot be arrested and thus there can not be apprehension of arrest and so an application at the instance of a child in conflict with law either before the High Court or before the Court of Sessions under Section 438 Cr.P.C. is not maintainable. The Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 is a self-contained Code which is both substantive as well as procedural. The Act takes care of the interest of the child in conflict with law on the child being apprehended. When a question arises before the Board as to whether to grant bail to the child or not, the Board shall not grant bail if it finds that it is likely to bring the child into association with any known criminal or expose the said person to moral, physical or psychological danger or when the Board finds that the person's release would defeat the ends of justice. Even after bail is refused to the child, the child cannot be remanded to either judicial custody or police custody. The Board shall ensure the welfare of the child by keeping the Child in an Observation Home or a place of safety.

16. Thus, there are lot of safeguards provided to the child in conflict with law in the event the child is apprehended by the police. In the light of these safeguards, and in the light of the legal position that the child in conflict with law cannot be arrested, the child in conflict with law need not apply for anticipatory bail. The legislature has consciously did not empower the police to arrest a child in conflict with law. Thus, it is manifestly clear that an application seeking anticipatory bail under Section 438 Cr.P.C. at the instance of a child in conflict with law is not at all maintainable. Similarly, a direction to the Juvenile Justice Board to release the child in conflict with law cannot be issued by the High Court in exercise of its inherent power saved under Section 482 Cr.P.C. Thus, we approve the view of the Hon'ble Mr. Justice P.N. Prakash in Ajith Kumar Vs. State, reported in 2016 (2) CTC 63 and we are impelled to overrule all the other orders wherein conflicting views have been expressed. Accordingly, we answer the reference."

31. The Division Bench as is evident from the extracts quoted above proceeded to draw a distinction between the expression "arrest" and "apprehend" and came to conclude that since no arrest was contemplated under the provisions of the 2015 Act, the provisions of Section 438 would not apply. More significantly K. Vignesh noted that the 2015 Act was a self-contained code in both a substantive as well as a procedural sense. In that view it held that an application for anticipatory bail would not be maintainable.

32. The view taken by the Madras High Court is also shared consistently by the Madhya Pradesh High Court, which too has taken the view that a petition for anticipatory bail at the behest of a child is not maintainable. Noticing the various decisions rendered by that High Court on the subject, a learned Judge while deciding Miscellaneous Criminal Case No. 10345 of 201913 held as follows: -

"11. The Act, 2015 further makes it clear that bail plea of a juvenile can only be entertained when he is arrested or detained or appears or is brought before the Board, and not otherwise. In fact, no provision in the Act or in the Code of Criminal Procedure enables the juvenile to move an application for anticipatory bail either before the Court of Sessions or High Court or even before the Board, which has been exclusively constituted for the purpose of dealing with the proceedings pertaining to a juvenile. Reason appears behind this is that the Act makes the bail a rule and jail an exception.

12. The issue regarding anticipatory bail of a Juvenile has been dealt with by this Court in para 16, 21 to 23 of Satendra Sharma v. State of Madhya Pradesh MCRC No. 4183 of 2014, dated 8.7.2014, which are as under:

16. On bare perusal of this provision, it is clear that the bail application of a juvenile can be entertained by the Board only when he is arrested or detained or appears or is brought before the Board otherwise application cannot be entertained. If the juvenile is arrested or detained or appears or is brought before the Board then certainly bail application will be filed under Section 12 and the same be decided by the Board only but not by the High Court or Court of Session as discussed above.

21. The anticipatory bail can be granted in anticipation of arrest but such proceedings are not inserted in the Act. The only provision for bail of Juvenile is given under Section 12 of the Act which has been discussed as above.

22. In view of the aforesaid discussion, this Court is of the view that application for grant of anticipatory bail preferred by the juvenile cannot be entertained by the High Court or the Court of Session by applying the provision contained under Section 6(2) of the Act. The powers conferred on the Board can be used by High Court and the Court of Session only when proceedings come before them in appeal, revision or otherwise except under Section 438 and 439 of Cr.P.C. Therefore, I respectfully disagree with the interpretation made by the learned Single Judge of the Hon. Rajasthan High Court and Hon. Chhattisgarh High Court.

23. Accordingly, application for grant of anticipatory bail by the applicant is hereby dismissed. ….

13. In Kapil Durgawani v. State of Madhya Pradesh reported in 2010 (IV) MPJR 155, the High Court of Madhya Pradesh has held that even the Juvenile Board has no jurisdiction to entertain anticipatory bail application. Relevant portion of the decision is extracted as under:

"Provisions of Section 12 of the Act, 2000 do not provide such powers to the Board which is equivalent to Section 438 of Cr.P.C. The Board has no jurisdiction to entertain application under Section 438 of Cr.P.C."

14. Similar view is taken by the High Court of Chattisgarh in Preetam Pathak v. State of Chattisgar in MCRC (A) No. 1104 of 2014 and it has held as under:

7. A close and careful perusal of Section 12 of the Act, 2000 would show that an application for bail of juvenile would be entertainable by the Board only if he is arrested and brought before the Board where he is accused of bailable or non bailable offences and the condition precedent to the juvenile would be, he is arrested or detained or appears or is brought before a Board, then only his application filed under Section 12 of the Act, 2000 shall be decided by the Board. Apart from Section 12 of the Act, 2000, there is no other provisions in the Act, 2000 like Section 438 of Cr.P.C. giving powers to the Board to grant anticipatory bail to the juvenile and thus, power and jurisdiction to grant anticipatory bail has not been conferred to the juvenile Justice Board, and therefore, the provisions contained in Section 438 of Cr.P.C. cannot be exercised by this court or court of session to grant anticipatory bail to the juvenile by virtue of provisions contained in Section 6(2) of the Act, 2000.

8. The aforesaid question came to be considered before the High Court of Madhya Pradesh in case of Kapil Durgawani v. State of Madhya Pradesh, in which, after consideration it has been held that provisions of Section 12 of the Act, 2000 do not provide such power to the Board which is equivalent to Section 438 of Cr.P.C. and the Board has no jurisdiction to entertain application under Section 438 of Cr.P.C. by holding as under:

"Provisions of Section 12 of the Act, 2000, do not provide such powers to the Board which is equivalent to Section 438 of Cr.P.C. The Board has no jurisdiction to entertain application under Section 438 of Cr.P.C."

15. Again similar view was reiterated by MP High Court in case of Sandeep Singh Tomar V. State of M.P. Passed in M.Cr.C. No.9816 of 2013, decided on 10th March, 2014.

16. Therefore, in my considered opinion, in absence of specific provisions in the Act, 2015, juvenile is not entitled to move application under Section 438 of Cr.P.C. "

33. On a careful consideration of the various judgments rendered by different High Courts it is relevant to note that those which hold that a petition for anticipatory bail is not maintainable at the behest of a child have proceeded principally on the basis of the absence of a specific conferral of power to grant anticipatory bail under the 2015 Act. This Court however is respectfully of the opinion that mere absence of a specific provision enabling the Board to grant anticipatory bail is clearly not an answer to the question posed. Suffice it to note that Section 4 of the 2015 Act while provides for the constitution of the Board confers on that entity all powers as invested in a Metropolitan Magistrate or a Judicial Magistrate of the First Class by the Criminal Procedure Code. It also cannot be disputed that the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code would generally apply except where a departure in respect of a particular matter is made in the 2015 Act or a special provision to the contrary engrafted therein. This would also appear to be the correct position when one bears the provisions of Section 4 (2) of the Criminal Procedure Code in mind. Similarly this Court fails to find any significance liable to be accorded to the non-obstante clause as appearing in Section 12 of the 2015 Act. The non-obstante clause as employed in Section 12 merely regulates the power of bail as conferred and invested in the Board. It simply enables the Board to release a child in conflict with law on bail irrespective of any procedural or substantive restraint or fetter as contained in the Criminal Procedure Code to the contrary. Consequently the only impact which the concerned non obstante clause has is to confer on the Board a power to release a child on bail irrespective of any condition or restriction that may be found in the Criminal Procedure Code with respect to the grant of bail. The non-obstante clause as appearing in Section 12 consequently is neither indicative nor determinative of the right of a child to seek anticipatory bail.

34. This Court is also of the considered view that it would be clearly hazardous to base the answer to the question posed on the quagmire of semantics and the perceived distinction as sought to be drawn by certain High Courts while interpreting the words "arrest" and "apprehend". P. Ramanatha Aiyar in the Advanced Law Lexicon defines the expressions "apprehension" and "arrest" to mean "the seizing or taking hold of a man; the act of arresting or seizing under process of law; the apprehension of criminals". The word "apprehend" has been defined to mean "to take into custody; make prisoner; arrest by legal warrant or authority". In Words And Phrases Permanent Edition, the expression "apprehension" has been defined to mean:-

"The word "apprehension" means the seizure, taking, or arresting of a person on a criminal charge, the term "apprehension" being applied exclusively to criminal cases as distinguished from the word "arrest," which is applied to both civil and criminal cases. Hogan v. Stophlet, 53 N.E. 604, 606, 179 Ill. 150, 44, L.R.A. 809. See, also, Montgomery County v. Robinson, 85 Ill. 174, 176."

"Apprehend" is defined as "to take or seize (a person) by legal process; to arrest; as to apprehend a criminal." "Arrest" is defined as "the taking or apprehending of a person by authority of law; legal restraint; custody." The words "apprehension" and "arrest," as used in Rev.St.1899, [] 2474, V.A.M.S. [] 544.150, providing that any two judges of the county court may offer, for the county, a reward for the apprehension and arrest of a person committing a felony, are synonyms, and a reward offered for the apprehension of a felon is within the authority of the judges of the county court. Cummings v. Clinton County, 79 S.W. 1127, 1129, 181 Mo. 162, quoting Webster's Dict."

35. In the Oxford English Dictionary the word "apprehension" has been defined as the "seizure of a person, a ship etc. in the name of justice or authority; arrest".

The word "arrest" has been defined to mean "apprehend or restraining of one's person in order to be forthcoming to answer an alleged or suspected crime". It has further been defined to include "a person being placed under legal restraint, in the hands of law, arrest". It is thus manifest that the expressions "apprehend" and "arrest" are possible to be used interchangeably and do not appear to have a generic or significant distinction. Both those words would appear to include the detention or a person by virtue of a power conferred by law. The answer to the question, therefore, cannot be made to rest merely on the use of the expression "apprehend" in Section 10 of the 2015 Act.

36. A clearer and a more sustainable answer clearly flows from the recognition of the 2015 Act as being a complete code in itself. As has been noticed in the earlier parts of this decision, the enactment lays in place an all encompassing and comprehensive statutory regime dealing with a child in conflict with law and issues arising from and pertaining to the apprehension, detention, prosecution, penalty and imprisonment of such a child. This is clearly evident from a reading of Section 1(4). This singular provision is clearly indicative of the legislative intent to confer upon the 2015 Act exclusivity and an overriding effect insofar as these subjects in relation to a child in conflict with law are concerned. It is the provisions of Section 1(4) and the special and distinct procedure as laid in place which appears to indicate and imply that Section 438 Criminal Procedure Code would have no application. The Court also bears in mind that both Sections 10 and 12 lay down a detailed procedure and statutory mechanism which must be mandatorily followed consequent to the apprehension of a child in conflict with law. These provisions neither entail nor envisage the detention or placement of the child in a jail or police lock-up. As is manifest from the procedure as laid down in Section 10 the child upon being apprehended by the police has to be immediately placed in the custody and care of the SJPU or the CWPO to be produced before the concerned Board without any loss of time and in any case within 24 hours of apprehension. During the period before his production before the Board the child is to be placed in an observation home. The provision also does not empower the authorities to question or interrogate. As is evident from the provisions made in the Model Rules he is to be interviewed by the SJPU or the CWPO bearing in mind the salutary safeguards that have been put in place. In terms of Section 12 the Board is obliged to forthwith release the child unless it forms the opinion that hid release would fall within the ambit of the Proviso to Section 12 and be not conducive to the over all interest of the child. This Court is consequently of the view that the principal trigger which confers the right of an individual to invoke the provisions of Section 438, namely, of arrest and detention by the police is absent. It consequently must be held that the need to invoke the jurisdiction of either the High Court or the Court of Sessions as conferred by Section 438 of the Criminal Procedure Code is clearly obviated.

37. More importantly, the special provisions laid in place clearly indicate that the provision of pre-arrest bail as made in Section 438 of the Criminal Procedure Code would clearly impede, hinder and may even disrupt or retard the mandatory statutory procedure which is liable to be adhered to in view of the provisions made in the 2015 Act and the Model Rules. The 2015 Act lays in place a complete machinery to deal with issues that may arise on account of the apprehension of a child in conflict with law. An order of anticipatory bail would clearly disrupt and interfere with the salutary process statutorily constructed.

38. That only leaves the Court to deal with a situation where a child apprehends his arrest or detention prior to the registration of a first information report or prior to the recordal of a cognizable offence not falling in the genre of a heinous offence by the SJPU or the CWPO. It becomes relevant to note that in terms of the provisions made in Rule 8 of the Model Rules, the process is initiated either upon the registration of a first information report in the case of a heinous offence or where any other cognizable offence not entailing imprisonment of more than seven years comes to be recorded. The procedures as contemplated in Sections 10 and 12 read with Rules 8 and 9 would stand initiated only upon the recordal of information. However as has been consistently held the powers conferred by Section 438 Cr.P.C. can be invoked even before a report in respect of a cognizable offence is made or recorded. During this period and in such a situation the child has no remedy or avenue of protection under the 2015 Act. Prior to the registration or recordal of information in respect of a cognizable offense, the child would consequently be left with no remedy against an apprehended deprivation of liberty. The Court cannot possibly leave a child in such a situation with no avenue of redress or protection against a potential deprivation of liberty. It is only within this limited window that perhaps the right of a child in conflict with law to invoke Section 438 can possibly be recognised. The Court is of the considered view that the right conferred by Section 438 of the Criminal Procedure Code would be entitled to be invoked by a child apprehending arrest prior to the registration of a first information report in the case of a heinous offense or recordal of information in respect of other offenses and prior to Section 10 and other provisions of the 2015 Act coming into play.

SUMMATION

39. The Court is of the considered opinion that the mere use of the expression "apprehended" in Section 10 does not really furnish an answer to the question framed. As noticed hereinabove the words arrest and apprehend can possibly be used as substitutes of each other and convey an identical meaning. The absence of a specific conferment of power to grant anticipatory bail upon the Board and by extension to the Court of Sessions or the High Court is not determinative of the question raised since the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code may otherwise apply and operate in areas where the 2015 Act is either silent or constructs no special or distinct measure. The non obstante clause as used in Section 12 is only indicative of the Board being conferred the power to grant bail notwithstanding any restraint or fetter that may be found in that regard in the Criminal Procedure Code.

40. The implied exclusion of Section 438 essentially flows from Section 1(4) of the 2015 Act that confers on the provisions made therein in respect of arrest and detention the character of preeminence. The section is a clear manifestation of the legislative intent that the provisions of the 2015 Act dealing with arrest and detention must necessarily prevail over any other law for the time being in force. The 2015 Act represents an all encompassing and self contained code laying in place a separate and distinct procedure liable to be followed in case of arrest or detention of a child in conflict with law. It places significant and special safeguards in respect of the apprehension of a child in conflict with law. It is in that sense not an incarceration or detention by the police as normally understood. The extension of the provisions of Section 438 of the Criminal Procedure Code would clearly interfere with and disrupt the statutory process that is otherwise liable to be followed upon apprehension of a child. It must consequently be held that once a first information is registered or information otherwise recorded by the SJPU or the CWPO with regard to a child in conflict with law, the provisions of Section 438 stand impliedly excluded. In such a situation it is the provisions made in Sections 10 and 12 of the 2015 Act which alone must be permitted to operate and recognised in law to be applicable.

41. The only limited window in which Section 438 can be held to apply is the pre recordal of information stage with regard to an offense allegedly committed by a child. As noticed above, Section 10 comes into play only once information in respect of an offense comes to be recorded. Prior to that a child apprehending detention or deprivation of liberty is accorded no protection or avenue of redress under the 2015 Act. It is within this narrow confine alone that his right to invoke the jurisdiction of the Court of Sessions or the High Court must be recognised to exist and preserved.

CONCLUSION

42. In the present case, a first information report has already come to be lodged against the two applicants. The learned AGA has rightly submitted that the police cannot apprehend the applicants and that it is the procedure prescribed by Sections 10 and 12 that will have to be necessarily followed. In that view of the matter the Court is of the opinion that the apprehension of arrest is clearly misplaced.

43. Taking on board the statement of the learned AGA, the instant application is dismissed as not maintainable.

A. Criminal Law-Code of Criminal Procedure,1973-section 438-application-concurrent jurisdiction of anticipatory bail-special circumstances must be convincingly established and not on vague allegations before the jurisdiction of the High Court is invoked-a strong foundation in respect of both the apprehension of arrest as well as in justification of the concurrent jurisdiction of the High Court being invoked directly-it is for the concerned judge to assess whether special circumstances do exist warranting the jurisdiction of the High Court being invoked directly-Hence reference is answered.(Para 3 to 22)

Whenever an application for relief u/s 438 is moved, discretion has to be always exercised judiciously, and with caution, having regard to the facts of every case.while the power of granting anticipatory bail is not ordinary, at the same time, its use is not confined to exceptional cases.application should be based on concrete facts and not vague or general allegations relatable to one or other specific offence.(Para 8, 9, 10)

The reference is answered. (E-6)

1. We have heard Sri Gaurav Kacker, learned Advocate and other counsels appearing for the various applicants and the learned AGA.

2. A learned Judge of the Court while considering a petition for anticipatory bail has deemed it appropriate to refer the following questions for the consideration of this Full Bench: -

"(i) Whether the Court would have no jurisdiction to reject the anticipatory bail after considering the grounds of compelling reasons mentioned in the affidavit being found not appealing, which would amount nothing but to approach this Court directly;

(ii) Whether amongst the grounds which have been enumerated in the judgment in the case of Vinod Kumar (supra), the ground at Serial (A) requires any reconsideration so as to preclude the co-accused approaching this Court directly in case the other co-accused's regular bail/anticipatory bail is rejected by the Court of Sessions and whether he be also subjected to filing such an affidavit, showing therein the circumstances in which he had to feel compelled to approach this Court directly;

(iii) Whether amongst the grounds which have been enumerated in the judgment in the case of Vinod Kumar (supra), the ground at Serial (B) requires any reconsideration as to whether an accused, who is not residing within the jurisdiction of the Sessions Court concerned, faces a threat of arrest, should be allowed to approach the High Court directly, to move an anticipatory bail application by the logic given above in Para 6 of this judgment; and

(iv) Whether such anticipatory bail applications which do not contain any compelling reason to approach this Court directly, should be entertained.

3. While passing the referral order, the learned Judge also suggested the formation of a Bench larger than the one which had rendered judgment in Onkar Nath Agarwal and others Vs. State1, a decision rendered by three learned Judges of this Court. The Reference came to be made in the backdrop of the decision rendered in Vinod Kumar Vs. State of U.P. and another2 in which a learned Judge framed the following questions for consideration:-

"A. The nature of the concurrent jurisdiction conferred by Section 438 Cr.P.C.

B. Whether parties should be commanded to necessarily approach the Sessions Court first before invoking the jurisdiction of this Court under Section 438 Cr.PC

C. In what circumstances can the High Court be approached directly under Section 438 Cr.P.C.

D. Exceptional or Special circumstances.

E. The perceived conflict between the decisions rendered in Harendra Singh @ Harendra Bahadur Vs. The State of U.P.1 and Neeraj Yadav And Another Vs. State of U.P.2

F. Impact of the Explanation to Section 438(2) Cr.P.C.

G. The period for which anticipatory bail should operate."

4. Upon due consideration of the decisions rendered on the subject by the Court as well as those rendered by different High Courts of the country, the following conclusions came to be recorded:

"A. Section 438 Cr.P.C. on its plain terms does not mandate or require a party to first approach the Sessions Court before applying to the High Court for grant of anticipatory bail. The provision as it stands does not require an individual first being relegated to the Court of Sessions before being granted the right of audience before this Court.

B. Notwithstanding concurrent jurisdiction being conferred on the High Court and the Court of Session for grant of anticipatory bail under Section 438 Cr.P.C., strong, cogent, compelling and special circumstances must necessarily be found to exist in justification of the High Court being approached first without the avenue as available before the Court of Sessions being exhausted. Whether those factors are established or found to exist in the facts of a particular case must necessarily be left for the Court to consider in each individual matter.

C. The words "exceptional" or "extraordinary" are understood to mean atypical, rare, out of the ordinary, unusual or uncommon. If the jurisdiction of the Court as conferred by Section 438 Cr.P.C. be circumscribed or be recognised to be moved only in exceptional situations it would again amount to fettering and constricting the discretion otherwise conferred by Section 438 Cr.P.C. Such a construction would be in clear conflict of the statutory mandate. The ratio of Harendra Singh must be recognised to be the requirement of establishing the existence of special, weighty and compelling reasons and circumstances justifying the invocation of the jurisdiction of this Court even though a wholesome avenue of redress was available before the Court of Sessions.

D. What would constitute "special circumstances" in light of the nature of the power conferred must be left to be gathered by the Judge on a due evaluation of the facts and circumstances of a particular case. It would be imprudent to exhaustively chronicle what would be special circumstances. It is impossible to either identify or compendiously postulate what would constitute special circumstances. Sibbia spoke of the "imperfect awareness of the needs of new situations". It is this constraint which necessitates the Court leaving it to the wisdom of the Judge and the discretion vested in him by statute.

E. While the Explanation may have created an avenue for an aggrieved person to challenge an order passed under Section 438(1), it cannot be construed or viewed as barring the jurisdiction of the High Court from entertaining an application for grant of anticipatory bail notwithstanding that prayer having been refused by the Court of Sessions.

F. Till such time as the question with respect to the period for which an order under Section 438 Cr.P.C. should operate is answered by the Larger Bench, the Court granting anticipatory bail would have to specify that it would continue only till the Court summons the accused based on the report that may be submitted under Section 173(2) Cr.P.C. whereafter it would be open for the applicant on appearance to seek regular bail in accordance with the provisions made in Section 439 Cr.P.C."

5. In Ankit Bharti Vs. State of U.P. and another3 the learned Judge while referring the matter to this Full Bench expressed certain reservations with respect to the answers rendered in Vinod Kumar while dealing with the question of what would constitute "special circumstances" enabling an applicant to approach the High Court directly by way of a petition under Section 438 of the Criminal Procedure Code. The doubt itself was expressed in respect of contingencies "A' and "B' as set forth in Vinod Kumar while answering Question 'D'. In Vinod Kumar, the learned Judge while dealing with Question 'D' held thus: -

"Harendra Singh leaves a window open with the learned Judge observing that requiring the party to invoke the jurisdiction conferred on a Court of Sessions must be recognized as the normal course and the High Court entitled to be moved only in extraordinary circumstances and special reasons. The learned Judge further went on to observe in the ultimate conclusion drawn that for "extraneous" (sic) or special reasons the High Court could also exercise the powers conferred by Section 438 Cr.P.C. notwithstanding the Court of Sessions having not been moved. What appears upon a holistic reading of that decision is the intent of the learned Judge to convey the duty of the applicant approaching the High Court to establish the existence of exceptional and special circumstances. The only clarification which, therefore, would merit being entered is with regard to the requirement of proving the existence of extraordinary or exceptional circumstances. The words "exceptional" or "extraordinary" are understood to mean atypical, rare, out of the ordinary, unusual or uncommon. If the jurisdiction of the Court as conferred by Section 438 Cr.P.C. be circumscribed or be recognised to be moved only in exceptional situations it would again amount to fettering and constricting the discretion otherwise conferred by Section 438 Cr.P.C.

Such a construction would perhaps run the risk of being again viewed as being in conflict of the statutory mandate and the discretion conferred. In the considered view of the Court what the learned Judge did seek to convey and hold in Harendra Singh was the requirement of establishing the existence of special, weighty, compelling reasons and circumstances justifying the invocation of the jurisdiction of this Court even though a wholesome avenue of redress was available before the Court of Sessions.

Regard must be had to the fact that the Constitution Bench in Sibbia had an occasion to deal with the correctness of the restrictions as formulated by the Full Bench of the Punjab and Haryana High Court on the exercise of power under Section 438 Cr.P.C. Dealing with that aspect the Constitution Bench clearly held that the exercise of discretion as statutorily conferred cannot be confined in a straitjacket. This simply since it would be impossible to either prophesize or foresee the myriad situations in which the jurisdiction of the Court may be invoked. It was for the aforesaid reasons that the Constitution Bench held that this aspect must be left to the judgment and wisdom of the Court to evaluate and consider whether special circumstances exist or are evidenced by the facts of a particular case. The Court deems it apposite to extract the following paragraphs from the decision rendered by the Constitution Bench: -

"13. This is not to say that anticipatory bail, if granted, must be granted without the imposition of any conditions. That will be plainly contrary to the very terms of Section 438. Though sub-section (1) of that section says that the Court "may, if it thinks fit" issue the necessary direction for bail, sub-section (2) confers on the Court thepower to include such conditions in the direction as it may think fit in the light of the facts of the particular case, including the conditions mentioned in clauses (i) to (iv) of that sub-section. The controversy therefore is not whether the Court has the power to impose conditions while granting anticipatory bail. It clearly and expressly has that power. The true question is whether by a process of construction, the amplitude of judicial discretion which is given to the High Court and the Court of Session, to impose such conditions as they may think fit while granting anticipatory bail, should be cut down by reading into the statute condition which are not to be found therein, like those evolved by the High Court or canvassed by the learned Additional Solicitor General. Our answer, clearly and emphatically, is in the negative. The High Court and the Court of Session to whom the application for anticipatory bail is made ought to be left free in the exercise of their judicial discretion to grant bail if they consider it fit so to do on the particular facts and circumstances of the case and on such conditions as the case may warrant. Similarly, they must be left free to refuse bail if the circumstances of the case so warrant, on considerations similar to those mentioned in Section 437 or which are generally considered to be relevant under Section 439 of the Code.

14. Generalisations on matters which rest on discretion and the attempt to discover formulae of universal application when facts are bound to differ from case to case frustrate the very purpose of conferring discretion. No two cases are alike on facts and therefore, courts have to be allowed a little free play in the joints if the conferment of discretionary power is to be meaningful. There is no risk involved in entrusting a wide discretion to the Court of Session and the High Court in granting anticipatory bail because, firstly, these are higher courts manned by experienced persons, secondly, their orders are not final but are open to appellate or revisional scrutiny and above all because, discretion has always to be exercised by courts judicially and not according to whim, caprice or fancy. On the other hand, there is a risk in foreclosing categories of cases in which anticipatory bail may be allowed because life throws up unforeseen possibilities and offers new challenges. Judicial discretion has to be free enough to be able to take these possibilities in its stride and to meet these challenges. While dealing with the necessity for preserving judicial discretion unhampered by rules of general application, Earl Loreburn, L. C. said in Hyman v. Rose :

"I desire in the first instance to point out that the discretion given by the section is very wide..... Now it seems to me that when the Act is so express to provide a wide discretion,... it is not advisable to lay down any rigid rules for guiding that discretion. I do not doubt that the rules enunciated by the Master of the Rolls in the present case are useful maxims in general, and that in general they reflect the point of view from which judges would regard an application for relief. But I think it ought to be distinctly understood that there may be cases in which any or all of them may be disregarded. If it were otherwise, the free discretion given by the statute would be fettered by limitations which have nowhere been enacted. It is one thing to decide what is the true meaning of the language contained in an Act of Parliament. It is quite a different thing to place conditions upon a free discretion entrusted by statute to the court where the conditions are not based upon statutory enactment at all. It is not safe, I think, to say that the court must and will always insist upon certain things when the Act does not require them, and the facts of some unforeseen case may make the court wish it had kept a free hand."

15. Judges have to decide cases as they come before them, mindful of the need to keep passions and prejudices out of their decisions. And it will be strange if, by employing judicial artifices and techniques, we cut down the discretion so wisely conferred upon the courts, by devising a formula which will confine the power to grant anticipatory bail within a strait-jacket. While laying down cast-iron rules in a matter like granting anticipatory bail, as the High Court has done, it is apt to be overlooked that even judges can have but an imperfect awareness of the needs of new situations. Life is never static and every situation has to be assessed in the context of emerging concerns as and when it arises. Therefore, even if we were to frame a 'Code for the grant of anticipatory bail', which really is the business of the legislature, it can at best furnish broad guide-lines and cannot compel blind adherence. In which case to grant bail and in which to refuse it is, in the very nature of things, a matter of discretion. But apart from the fact that the question is inherently of a kind which calls for the use of discretion from case to case, the legislature has, in terms express, relegated the decision of that question to the discretion of the court, by providing that it may grant bail "if it thinks fit". The concern of the courts generally is to preserve their discretion without meaning to abuse it. It will be strange if we exhibit concern to stultify the discretion conferred upon the courts by law.

26. We find a great deal of substance in Mr. Tarkunde's submission that since denial of bail amounts to deprivation of personal liberty, the Court should lean against the imposition of unnecessary restrictions on the scope of Section 438, especially when no such restrictions have been imposed by the legislature in the terms of that section. Section 438 is a procedural provision which is concerned with the personal liberty of the individual, who is entitled to the benefit of the presumption of innocence since he is not, on the date of his application for anticipatory bail, convicted of the offence in respect of which he seeks bail. An overgenerous infusion of constraints and conditions which are not to be found in Section 438 can make its provisions constitutionally vulnerable since the right to personal freedom cannot be made to depend on compliance with unreasonable restrictions. The beneficient provision contained in Section 438 must be saved, not jettisoned. No doubt can linger after the decision in Maneka Gandhi that in order to meet the challenge of Article 21 of the Constitution, the procedure established by law for depriving a person of his liberty must be fair, just and reasonable. Section 438, in the form in which it is conceived by the legislature, is open to no exception on the ground that it prescribes a procedure which is unjust or unfair. We ought, at all costs, to avoid throwing it open to a Constitutional challenge by reading words in it which are not be found therein"

On an overall consideration of the above the Court is of the considered view that Harendra Singh when interpreted and understood in the manner indicated above, rightly balances the issues that arise. While it was urged that the aforesaid decision would be per incuriam the views expressed by our Full Bench in Onkar Nath Agarwal and the decision of the Constitution Bench in Sibbia, this Court finds no merit in that submission since as noted above, even Onkar Nath Agarwal had envisaged situations where the High Court may relegate parties to the Court of Sessions and refuse to invoke its jurisdiction. Insofar as Sibbia is concerned, it becomes relevant to bear in mind that the Constitution Bench was not dealing with the issue that arises for our consideration directly. The observations with regard to the exercise of discretion as appearing therein were entered in the context of the principles formulated by the Full Bench of the Punjab and Haryana High Court relating to the exercise of power under Section 438 itself. The issue of a self imposed restraint exercised by the High Court in light of the contemporaneous jurisdiction conferred on the Court of Session was not a question directly in issue. The argument of per incuriam is thus liable to be and is consequently rejected.

The legal position which consequently emerges is that notwithstanding the concurrent jurisdiction being conferred on the High Court and the Court of Session for grant of anticipatory bail under Section 438 Cr.P.C., strong, cogent, compelling reasons and special circumstances must necessarily be found to exist in justification of the High Court being approached first and without the avenue as available before the Court of Sessions being exhausted. Whether those factors are established or found to exist in the facts of a particular case must necessarily be left for the Court to consider in each case.

What would constitute "special circumstances" in light of the nature of the power conferred, must also be left to be gathered by the Judge on a due evaluation of the facts and circumstances of a particular case. It would perhaps be imprudent to exhaustively chronicle what would be special circumstances. As noticed above, it would be impossible to either identify or compendiously propound what would constitute special circumstances. Sibbia spoke of the "imperfect awareness of the needs of new situations". It is this constraint which necessitates the Court leaving it to the wisdom of the Judge and the discretion vested in him by statute. Without committing the folly of attempting to exhaustively enunciate what would constitute special circumstances or being understood to have done so, the High Court would be justified in entertaining a petition directly in the following, amongst other, circumstances:-

(A) Where bail, regular or anticipatory, of a coaccused has already been rejected by the Court of Sessions;

(B) Where an accused not residing within the jurisdiction of the concerned Sessions Court faces a threat of arrest;

(C) Where circumstances warrant immediate protection and where relegation to the Sessions Court would not subserve justice;

(D) Where time or situational constraints warrant immediate intervention.

These and other relevant factors would clearly constitute special circumstances entitling a party to directly approach the High Court for grant of anticipatory bail."

6. As is manifest and evident from the above extract, the learned Judge chose, and in our opinion correctly, to observe that it would be imprudent to exhaustively chronicle what would constitute special circumstances. A further caveat was placed with the learned Judge observing that the aforesaid exposition on the question should not be viewed as an attempt to exhaustively enunciate what would constitute special circumstances. The learned Judge thus left it entirely at the discretion of the Judge considering a petition for anticipatory bail to ascertain whether such special circumstances did in fact exist entitling the applicant to approach the High Court directly. In our considered view the answer as framed to Question 'D' in Vinod Kumar clearly needs no further explanation or elaboration.

7. There can never be an encyclopedic exposition as to what would constitute special circumstances. The grounds on which a petition for anticipatory bail may be instituted before the High Court can neither be placed in a straightjacket nor can be comprehensively enumerated. Decades ago the Constitution Bench in Gurbaksh Singh Sibbia Vs. The State of Punjab4 had cautioned against any attempt to compendiously enumerate the myriad situations in which a petition for anticipatory bail may come to be moved. It had in that backdrop set aside the directions framed by the Full Bench of the Punjab and Haryana High Court seeking to guide the power conferred by Section 438 of the Criminal Procedure Code only in exceptional cases. The Constitution Bench held that where the statutory provision itself did not employ or place any words of limitation on the discretion conferred, it would not only be incorrect but also inappropriate to read into that provision fetters which the Legislature had chosen not to place. It also denounced attempts to subject the discretion statutorily conferred to controls by way of judicial interpretation. In fact Sibbia held that the Legislature had wisely left it to the discretion of the Court. The note of prudence was entered bearing in the mind the impossibility of predicting the infinite and imponderable situations in which petitions for anticipatory bail may come to be presented.

8. More recently, a Constitution Bench in Sushila Aggarwal Vs. State [NCT of Delhi] and others 5 was called upon to consider whether protection accorded under Section 438 should be limited for a fixed period and whether the life of such an order should end at the time when the accused is summoned by the Court. While dealing with those questions, the Constitution Bench reiterated the conclusions entered in Sibbia, which clearly has come to be regarded as the locus classicus on the subject. Delivering his concurring opinion in Sushila Aggrawal, Ravindra Bhat J. observed thus: -

84. The accused is not obliged to make out a special case for grant of anticipatory bail; reading an otherwise wide power would fetter the court's discretion. Whenever an application (for relief under Section 438) is moved, discretion has to be always exercised judiciously, and with caution, having regard to the facts of every case. (Para 21,Sibbia).

85. While the power of granting anticipatory bail is not ordinary, at the same time, its use is not confined to exceptional cases (Para 22, Sibbia).

86. It is not justified to require courts to only grant anticipatory bail in special cases made out by accused, since the power is extraordinary, or that several considerations - spelt out in Section 437-or other considerations, are to be kept in mind. (Para 24-25, Sibbia).

87. Overgenerous introduction (or reading into) of constraints on the power to grant anticipatory bail would render it Constitutionally vulnerable. Since fair procedure is part of Article 21, the court should not throw the provision (i.e. Section 438) open to challenge "by reading words in it which are not to be found therein." (Para 26).

9. Dealing then with the nature of the foundation that must be laid in an application for anticipatory bail, the learned Judge held: -

"133. Having regard to the above discussion, it is clarified that the court should keep the following points as guiding principles, in dealing with applications under Section 438, Cr. PC:

(a) As held in Sibbia, when a person apprehends arrest and approaches a court for anticipatory bail, his apprehension (of arrest), has to be based on concrete facts (and not vague or general allegations) relatable a specific offence or particular of offences. Applications for anticipatory bail should contain clear and essential facts relating to the offence, and why the applicant reasonably apprehends his or her arrest, as well as his version of the facts. These are important for the court which considering the application, to extent and reasonableness of the threat or apprehension, its gravity or seriousness and the appropriateness of any condition that may have to be imposed. It is not a necessary condition that an application should be moved only after an FIR is filed; it can be moved earlier, so long as the facts are clear and there is reasonable basis for apprehending arrest."

10. While framing "FINAL CONCLUSIONS" and on the aspect noted above, the Constitution Bench observed: -

"140. This court, in the light of the above discussion in the two judgments, and in the light of the answers to the reference, hereby clarifies that the following need to be kept in mind by courts, dealing with applications under Section 438, Cr. PC:

(1) Consistent with the judgment in Shri Gurbaksh Singh Sibbia v. State of Punjab, when a person complains of apprehension of arrest and approaches for order, the application should be based on concrete facts (and not vague or general allegations) relatable to one or other specific offence. The application seeking anticipatory bail should contain bare essential facts relating to the offence, and why the applicant reasonably apprehends arrest, as well as his side of the story. These are essential for the court which should consider his application, to evaluate the threat or apprehension, its gravity or seriousness and the appropriateness of any condition that may have to be imposed. It is not essential that an application should be moved only after an FIR is filed; it can be moved earlier, so long as the facts are clear and there is reasonable basis for apprehending arrest."

11. We have noted these conclusions recorded by the Constitution Bench in Sushila Aggarwal for they shall be of some import for reasons, which follow.

12. Reverting however to the principal issue, we are of the considered view that Vinod Kumar rightly desisted from either postulating or particularizing the various circumstances in which an individual may be recognized as entitled to move the High Court directly and left it to the judicious discretion of the Court to be exercised bearing in mind the facts and exigencies of each particular case. The words of caution and circumspection as entered in Sibbia and Sushila Agarwal in the context of the power conferred by Section 438 apply with equal force while understanding the nature and extent of the concurrent jurisdiction of the High Court. Regard must be had to the fact that it is well nigh impossible to predict upon imponderables such as the immanency of the threat, issues of access to justice and redress and the exigencies of a particular situation. It would not only be unwise but injudicious to frame what was dubbed in Sibbia to be "formulae of universal application". The Court would be well advised to leave it to a judicious exercise of discretion in the facts of each cause brought before it.

13. It may also be noted that undisputedly the jurisdiction as conferred on the High Court and the Court of Sessions by Section 438 is concurrent. As was held by the earlier Full Bench of the Court in Onkar Nath Agrawal that discretion and the power of the High Court to entertain an application directly is one which is liable to be exercised according to the facts and circumstances of the each case. The Full Bench there had observed in paragraph 8 as follows:-

"8. It may, however, be mentioned that inasmuch as Section 438 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 gives a discretionary power to grant bail, this discretion is to be exercised according to the facts and circumstances of each case. There may be cases in which it may be considered by the High Court to be proper to entertain an application without the applicant having moved the Court of Sessions initially. Similarly there may be cases in which the Court may feel justified in asking the applicant to move the Sessions Court or to refer the matter to that Court. In any case all depends upon the discretion of the Judge hearing the case."

14. As a minor digression from the main issue, it becomes relevant to state that significantly the learned Judge while making the present Reference and requesting the Chief Justice to constitute a Bench larger than that which had decided Onkar Nath Agrawal does not rest this recommendation on any decision or precedent to the contrary. In fact as was noted in Vinod Kumar the view so expressed by the Full Bench in Onkar Nath Agrawal has not only held the field for decades but has also been followed by the Full Bench of the Himachal Pradesh in Mohan Lal and others etc. Vs. Prem Chand and others etc6, by the High Court of Uttarakhand in Mubarik & another v. State of Uttarakhand & others7, as well as the Full Bench of the Calcutta High Court in Diptendu Nayek Vs. State of West Bengal8. Viewed in that light we are of the considered view that there was neither a conflict between precedents that required resolution nor was there any question which merited an authoritative exposition by a Bench larger than which had decided Onkar Nath Agarwal. It would be worthwhile to recollect the following pertinent observations made by a Full Bench of the Court in Suresh Jaiswal Vs. State of U.P.9 and another in this context: -

"56.In the instant matter, as expressed above, we could not find any conflict between two decisions which warranted a reference before the Larger Bench.

57. The questions, in the reference order, framed by the Division Bench, assuming conflict of opinion in the election matters, with due respect, are sweeping. On a plain reading of the order of reference, it appears that their Lordships have referred the questions to the Larger Bench with a view to create a precedent assuming that those questions of law of importance may arise in election matters and an authoritative pronouncement of a Larger Bench is needed on the subject

58. The pronouncement by a Full Bench, with due regard to the learned Judges referring the matter, on a hypothetical conflict, would not be a proper judicial exercise."

15. The Reference, in that sense, was clearly not merited. However and since we have heard parties not only on the question of maintainability of the Reference but also on the questions formulated for our consideration, we deem it apposite to render our opinion in order to lend a quietus to the doubts which appear to exist.

16. We, therefore, hold that the conclusions as recorded in Vinod Kumar on the meaning to be ascribed to exceptional or special circumstances needs no reconsideration. It must, as was noted there, be left to the concerned Judge to exercise the discretion as vested in him by the statute dependent upon the facts obtaining in a particular case.

17. The second aspect which needs to be emphasized and reiterated is that Vinod Kumar itself while articulating some of the situations in which the High Court may be moved directly had underlined the necessity of those assertions being evidenced and substantiated in fact. A bald assertion without requisite particulars was neither suggested as being sufficient to petition the High Court nor does such an assumption flow from that decision. Vinod Kumar has explained that an application of grant of anticipatory bail cannot rest on vague and unsubstantiated allegations or lack of material particulars in support of the threat of imminent arrest. The learned Judge has while dealing with this aspect also referred to the pertinent observations as made by the Supreme Court in Rashmi Rekha Thatoi Vs. State of Orissa10. Consequently it must be held that some of the circumstances which have been noted by the learned Judge in Vinod Kumar by way of an exemplar of what may constitute special circumstances is not to be read or understood as empty incantations but must necessarily be supported and established from the material on record. The petition must rest on a strong foundation in support of the imminent threat of arrest as alleged. This aspect has also been duly emphasised by the Constitution Bench in Sushila Agarwal as is evident from the parts extracted above with it being observed that the application must be based "...on concrete facts (and not vague or general allegations)..."

18. Viewed in that backdrop it is manifest that it was open for the learned Judge to assess the facts of each case to form an opinion whether special circumstances existed or not entitling the applicant there to approach the High Court directly. Considered from the aforesaid perspective, it is manifest that Question (i) as framed by the learned Judge is really unwarranted. If the learned Judge was of the opinion that the averments made in support of the existence of special circumstances were "not appealing" [as he chooses to describe it] or unconvincing, nothing hindered the Court from holding so.

19. We would consequently answer the Reference by holding that the decision in Vinod Kumar does not merit any reconsideration or explanation. As rightly held in that decision, there can be no exhaustive or general exposition of circumstances in which an applicant may be held entitled to approach the High Court directly. The Court would clearly err in attempting to draw a uniform code or dictum that may guide the exercise of discretion vested in the Court under Section 438 of the Criminal Procedure Code. The discretion wisely left unfettered by the Legislature must be recognised as being available to be exercised dependent upon the facts and circumstances of each particular case. The contingencies spelled out in Vinod Kumar as illustrative of special circumstances may, where duly established, constitute a ground to petition the High Court directly.

20. The special circumstances the existence of which have been held to be a sine qua non to the entertainment of an application for anticipatory bail directly by the High Court must be left for the consideration of the Hon'ble Judge before whom the petition is placed and a decision thereon taken bearing in mind the facts and circumstances of that particular cause. However special circumstances must necessarily exist and be established as such before the jurisdiction of the High Court is invoked. The application must rest on a strong foundation in respect of both the apprehension of arrest as well as in justification of the concurrent jurisdiction of the High Court being invoked directly. The factors enumerated in Vinod Kumar including (A) and (B) as constituting special circumstances do not merit any review except to observe that the existence of any particular circumstance must be convincingly established and not rest on vague allegations.

21. In light of the aforesaid, we answer the Reference as follows: -

Question (i) and (iv) clearly do not merit any elucidation for it is for the concerned Judge to assess whether special circumstances do exist in a particular case warranting the jurisdiction of the High Court being invoked directly. We answer Questions (ii) and (iii) in the negative and hold that Vinod Kumar does not merit any reconsideration or further explanation. It would be for the concerned Judge to form an opinion in the facts of each particular case whether special circumstances do exist and stand duly established.

22. Reference stands answered accordingly. The individual applications may now be placed for disposal before the appropriate Bench for disposal in light of the above.

List of Cases Cited:-

Sundeep Kumar Bafna Vs. St. Of Mah. (2014) 16 SCC 623

(Delivered by Hon'ble Jaspreet Singh, J.)

1. In compliance of the order passed by this Court dated 05.05.2020, the learned counsel for the applicant has provided all the necessary documents along with an e-mail and a supplementary affidavit which are taken on record.

2. The Court has heard the learned counsel for the applicant as well as Sri J.S. Tomar, learned A.G.A. for the State-respondent.

3. The submissions of the learned counsel for the applicant is that the applicant has been falsely implicated. The averments made in the First Information Report do not constitute any offence and it is motivated on account of the prevailing circumstances of COVID-19 pandemic. It has been submitted by learned counsel for the applicant that as per the First Information Report version, on 09.04.2020 at around 04:30 PM both the applicant and one Sunny Masih were riding on a motorcycle which was being driven by Austin paul, the applicant.

4. At the Polytechnic crossing, the police party which was headed by Sri Anil Kumar Singh had intecepted the motorcycle and had asked the applicant as why he was moving on the motorcycle during the COVID-19 pandemic lockdown. It was also questioned to the applicant that he had got written the "Civil Court" on the front of his motorcycle. The applicant explained that his father is a working as a Reader in the Civil Court at Lucknow and that the applicant is working as a Nursing Staff in the Medical College on contractual basis and had been issued a duty pass by the Medical College and under these circumstances, the applicant who is exempted from the lockdown is entitled to move.

5. The applicant had also suggested that since the police inspector had got written the word "Police" on his motorcycle, similarly, the applicant's father had also got the word Civil Court written and this rebuke perhaps irked the police officer and under these circumstances the applicant has been implicated and as per the First Information Report, it has been alleged that 6 grams of smack was found in possession of the applicant no. 1 and 5 grams of smack was recovered from Sunny Masih.

6. It is under these circumstances that the First Information Report was lodged and the applicant who brought before the Remand Magistrate. It has been submitted by learned counsel for the applicant that the applicant does not have any criminal history and he has been falsely implicated and under these circumstances the applicant is entitled to be enlarged on bail.

7. The learned A.G.A. had raised an objection and submitted that on the own showing of the applicant, it would indicate that he had made an application for bail before the Remand Magistrate and since the said application remained un-disposed as per their own averments, hence the present bail application is not maintainable.

8. The learned counsel for the applicant while responding to the aforesaid objection and in respect of his submissions has filed a supplementary affidavit which has been taken on record. It has been submitted that since the application for alleged bail was produced before the Remand Magistrate, the same is not going to come in the way of the applicant, inasmuch as, that the application was before the Court which did not possess the jurisdiction, hence it does not make this application before the High Court, as not maintainable.

9. The Court has considered the rival submissions and also perused the material available on record including the supplementary affidavit filed by the learned counsel for the applicant.

10. First and foremost, it would be necessary to ascertain whether the bail application is maintainable in light of the objections raised by the learned A.G.A.

11. The matter of this bail is governed by The Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985. Section 36 of the Act of 1985 envisages the establishment of Special Courts for trial of offences under the said Act.

12. Section 36 of The Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985 reads as under:-

13. Section 36 in The Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985:-

"36. Constitution of Special Courts.

1) The Government may, for the purpose of providing speedy trial of the offences under this Act, by notification in the Official Gazette, constitute as many Special Courts as may be necessary for such area or areas as may be specified in the notification.

(2) A Special Court shall consist of a single Judge who shall be appointed by the Government with the concurrence of the Chief Justice of the High Court.

Explanation. In this sub-section, High Court means the High Court of the State in which the Sessions Judge or the Additional Sessions Judge of a Special Court was working immediately before his appointment as such Judge.

(3) A person shall not be qualified for appointment as a Judge of a Special Court unless he is, immediately before such appointment, a Sessions Judge or an Additional Sessions Judge.]

Section 36 Sub Section (2) of the said Act provides that the Special Court consisting of a single Judge shall be appointed by the Government with the concurrence of the Chief Justice of the High Court and Sub Section 3 clearly indicates a person shall not be qualified for appointment as a Judge of the Special Court, unless he is immediately before such appointment as an Additional Sessions Judge."

14. From the perusal of the aforesaid Section, it is clear that the Special Court envisaged under Section 36 of The Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985 is to be headed by a Judge whose minimum qualification for appointment ought to be a Sessions Judge or an Additional Sessions Judge. In the aforesaid view of the matter, the application for bail also ought to have been produced before the Special Court headed by the Special Court.

15. From the perusal of the material available on record, it indicates that the application for bail was placed before the Remand Magistrate who needless to say was neither the Sessions Judge nor an Additional Sessions Judge nor was he a Judge of the Special Court as envisaged under Section 36 of the Act of 1985.

16. In view of the aforesaid, the alleged application before the Remand Magistrate was wholly immaterial, inasmuch as, neither the Magistrate was competent to entertain or had the jurisdiction to deal with the said application. Thus, even if at all, any such application was filed before the Remand Magistrate it was filed before a Court having no jurisdiction, therefore, this Court is of the opinion that merely because the said application remained pending or undisposed of before a Court of no jurisdiction is not going to affect the rights of the applicant to approach this Court under Section 439 Cr.P.C.

17. Section 439 Cr.P.C., would indicate that it relates to special powers of the High Court as well as of the Sessions Court in respect of bail which reads as under:-

439.Special powers of High Court or Court of Session regarding bail.?(1) A High Court or Court of Session may direct?

(a) that any person accused of an offence and in custody be released on bail, and if the offence is of the nature specified in sub-section (3) of Section 437, may impose any condition which it considers necessary for the purposes mentioned in that sub-section;

(b) that any condition imposed by a Magistrate when releasing any person on bail be set aside or modified:

Provided that the High Court or the Court of Session shall, before granting bail to a person who is accused of an offence which is triable exclusively by the Court of Session or which, though not so triable, is punishable with imprisonment for life, give notice of the application for bail to the Public Prosecutor unless it is, for reasons to be recorded in writing, of opinion that it is not practicable to give such notice.

(2) A High Court or Court of Session may direct that any person who has been released on bail under this Chapter be arrested and commit him to custody."

18. At this stage, it will be gainful to refer to certain observations made by the Apex Court in the case of Sundeep Kumar Bafna Vs. State of Maharashtra 2014 (16) SCC 623 which are being reproduced hereinafter for convenient perusal:-

"7. Article 21 of the Constitution states that no person shall be deprived of his life or personal liberty except according to procedure established by law. We are immediately reminded of three sentences from the Constitution Bench decision in P.S.R. Sadhanantham v. Arunachalam [P.S.R. Sadhanantham v. Arunachalam, (1980) 3 SCC 141 : 1980 SCC (Cri) 649] , which we appreciate as poetry in prose: (SCC p. 144, para 3)

"3. Article 21, in its sublime brevity, guardians human liberty by insisting on the prescription of procedure established by law, not fiat as sine qua non for deprivation of personal freedom. And those procedures so established must be fair, not fanciful, nor formal nor flimsy, as laid down in Maneka Gandhi case [Maneka Gandhi v. Union of India, (1978) 1 SCC 248] . So, it is axiomatic that our constitutional jurisprudence mandates the State not to deprive a person of his personal liberty without adherence to fair procedure laid down by law."

Therefore, it seems to us that constriction or curtailment of personal liberty cannot be justified by a conjectural dialectic. The only restriction allowed as a general principle of law common to all legal systems is the period of 24 hours post arrest on the expiry of which an accused must mandatorily be produced in a court so that his remand or bail can be judicially considered".

"As observed in Gurcharan Singh v. State (Delhi Admn.) [Gurcharan Singh v. State (Delhi Admn.), (1978) 1 SCC 118 : 1978 SCC (Cri) 41] , there is no provision in the CrPC dealing with the production of an accused before the Court of Session or the High Court. But it must also be immediately noted that no provision categorically prohibits the production of an accused before either of these courts. The legislature could have easily enunciated, by use of exclusionary or exclusive terminology, that the superior Court of Session and High Court are bereft of this jurisdiction or if they were so empowered under the old Code now stood denuded thereof. Our understanding is in conformity with Gurcharan Singh [Gurcharan Singh v. State (Delhi Admn.), (1978) 1 SCC 118 : 1978 SCC (Cri) 41] , as perforce it must. The scheme of the CrPC plainly provides that bail will not be extended to a person accused of the commission of a non-bailable offence punishable with death or imprisonment for life, unless it is apparent to such a court that it is incredible or beyond the realm of reasonable doubt that the accused is guilty. The enquiry of the Magistrate placed in this position would be akin to what is envisaged in State of Haryana v. Bhajan Lal [State of Haryana v. Bhajan Lal, 1992 Supp (1) SCC 335 : 1992 SCC (Cri) 426] , that is, the alleged complicity of the accused should, on the factual matrix then presented or prevailing, lead to the overwhelming, incontrovertible and clear conclusion of his innocence. CrPC severely curtails the powers of the Magistrate while leaving that of the Court of Session and the High Court untouched and unfettered. It appears to us that this is the only logical conclusion that can be arrived at on a conjoint consideration of Sections 437 and 439 CrPC. Obviously, in order to complete the picture so far as concerns the powers and limitations thereto of the Court of Session and the High Court, Section 439 would have to be carefully considered. And when this is done, it will at once be evident that CrPC has placed an embargo against granting relief to an accused, (couched by us in the negative), if he is not in custody".

"Furthermore, while Section 437 severally curtails the power of the Magistrate to grant bail in context of the commission of non-bailable offences punishable with death or imprisonment for life, the two higher courts have only the procedural requirement of giving notice of the bail application to the Public Prosecutor, which requirement is also ignorable if circumstances so demand. The regimes regulating the powers of the Magistrate on the one hand and the two superior courts are decidedly and intentionally not identical, but vitally and drastically dissimilar. Indeed, the only complicity that can be contemplated is the conundrum of "committal of cases to the Court of Session" because of a possible hiatus created by CrPC."

---------------------

"What is to happen to the accused in this interregnum; can his liberty be jeopardised! The only permissible restriction to personal freedom, as a universal legal norm, is the arrest or detention of an accused for a reasonable period of 24 hours. Thereafter, the accused would be entitled to seek before a court his enlargement on bail. In connection with serious offences, Section 167 CrPC contemplates that an accused may be incarcerated, either in police or judicial custody, for a maximum of 90 days if the charge-sheet has not been filed. An accused can and very often does remain bereft of his personal liberty for as long as three months and the law must enable him to seek enlargement on bail in this period. Since severe restrictions have been placed on the powers of a Magistrate to grant bail, in the case of an offence punishable by death or for imprisonment for life, an accused should be in a position to move the courts meaningfully empowered to grant him succour. It is inevitable that the personal freedom of an individual would be curtailed even before he can invoke the appellate jurisdiction of the Sessions Judge. The Constitution therefore requires that a pragmatic, positive and facilitative interpretation be given to CrPC especially with regard to the exercise of its original jurisdiction by the Sessions Court. We are unable to locate any provision in CrPC which prohibits an accused from moving the Court of Session for such a relief except, theoretically, Section 193 which also only prohibits it from taking cognizance of an offence as a court of original jurisdiction. This embargo does not prohibit the Court of Session from adjudicating upon a plea for bail. It appears to us that till the committal of case to the Court of Session, Section 439 can be invoked for the purpose of pleading for bail. If administrative difficulties are encountered, such as, where there are several Additional Sessions Judges, they can be overcome by enabling the accused to move the Sessions Judge, or by further empowering the Additional Sessions Judge hearing other bail applications whether post-committal or as the appellate court, to also entertain bail applications at the pre-committal stage. Since the Magistrate is completely barred from granting bail to a person accused even of an offence punishable by death or imprisonment for life, a superior court such as Court of Session, should not be incapacitated from considering a bail application especially keeping in perspective that its powers are comparatively unfettered under Section 439 CrPC."

"There are no restrictions on the High Court to entertain an application for bail provided always the accused is in custody, and this position obtains as soon as the accused actually surrenders himself to the Court."

---------------------

"The Sessions Court as well as the High Court, both of which exercise concurrent powers under Section 439, would then have to venture to the merits of the matter so as to decide whether the applicant-appellant had shown sufficient reason or grounds for being enlarged on bail."

19. Thus, from the proposition as noticed above, it is clear that both the High Court and the Sessions Court exercise concurrent powers under Section 439 Cr.P.C.. In the present case it is not disputed that the applicant is in custody as envisaged and explained in the case of Sundeep Kumar Bafna (Supra) hence there is no impediment for this Court to consider the bail application and the bail application filed before the Remand Magistrate was before a Court having no jurisdiction to entertain it, thus it will not create an embargo on this Court to entertain and consider the bail application on its merits and in any case an application filed before the Remand Magistrate is liable to be ignored and it has been rendered otiose.

20. In the aforesaid circumstances, this Court is of the opinion that this Court can consider the bail application despite an application having been moved before a Court lacking jurisdiction. In view of the aforesaid, the objection raised by the learned A.G.A. is over ruled.

21. The Court has considered the bail application on its own merits which has been opposed by the learned A.G.A., however, looking into the facts and circumstances, the material available on record as well as the fact that the accusation against the applicants are yet to be tested in trial and only if the evidence and material produced before the Court is proved beyond reasonable doubt, can the applicant be convicted.

22. In the aforesaid facts and circumstances and taking a holistic view, this Court without expressing any opinion on the merits of the case is of the view that the applicant is entitled to be released on bail.

23. The Registry of this Court has reported certain defects and in this regard the High Court has laid down a guideline vide circular dated 14.04.2020. The relevant portion thereof is being reproduced hereinafter:-

"2. However, during the lock down period, the requirement of an affidavit/e-affidavit/scanned Notary Affidavit shall not be mandatory in the case of BAIL APPLICATIONS and ANTICIPATORY BAIL APPLICATIONS. In lieu thereof, Counsel shall have to submit, in the e-filed petitions, the Adhar Card Number, full details of the card holder like name, parentage, age and address, as also the mobile number linked to the adhar card, of the person wanting to act as the deponent in the matter along with a declaration of that applicant/petitioner/pairokar affirming the correctness of the disclosures and averments made in the application/petition. In case of civil matters, a prayer for dispensing with the requirement of filing an affidavit may be made along with the urgency application which shall also be considered simultaneous with the issue of urgency.

3. This waiver or relaxation is subject to a proper affidavit being filed, in hard copy, within a period of 15 days from the date the lock down is lifted. No further time shall be granted for the purpose. In case a proper affidavit is not filed as specified above, the said case shall stand dismissed automatically and any order passed therein, shall stand recalled, without any reference to the Court. A communication, in this regard shall be sent by the Registry to the Court(s) below/authorities concerned, forthwith for consequential action."

24. Hence this order passed by the Court shall be subject to the compliance of the conditions as prescribed in the circular dated 14.04.2020.

25. Let the applicant Austin Paul involved in Case Crime No. 207 of 2020, under Sections 8/21 of The Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985, Police Station Vibhut Khand, District Lucknow be released on bail on his furnishing a personal bond to the satisfaction of the Jail Authorities where said accused is imprisoned, provided the accused applicant/s shall also undertake to furnish two reliable sureties required by the court concerned, within a period of 6 weeks from the date of his/her actual release.

26. At the time of executing required sureties the following conditions shall be imposed in the interest of justice.

(i) The applicant shall file an undertaking to the effect that he shall not seek any adjournment on the dates fixed for evidence when the witnesses are present in court. In case of default of this condition, it shall be open for the trial court to treat it as abuse of liberty of bail and pass orders in accordance with law.

(ii) The applicant shall remain present before the trial court on each date fixed, either personally or through his counsel. In case of his absence, without sufficient cause, the trial court may proceed against him under Section 229-A of the Indian Penal Code.

(iii) In case, the applicant misuses the liberty of bail during trial and in order to secure his presence proclamation under Section 82 Cr.P.C. is issued and the applicant fails to appear before the court on the date fixed in such proclamation, then, the trial court shall initiate proceedings against him, in accordance with law, under Section 174-A of the Indian Penal Code.

(iv) The applicant shall remain present, in person, before the trial court on the dates fixed for (i) opening of the case, (ii) framing of charge and (iii) recording of statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. If in the opinion of the trial court, absence of the applicant is deliberate or without sufficient cause, then it shall be open for the trial court to treat such default as abuse of liberty of bail and proceed against him in accordance with law.

(v) The party shall file computer generated copy of such order downloaded from the official website of High Court Allahabad.

(vi) The computer generated copy of such order shall be self attested by the counsel or the party concerned.

(vii) The concerned Court/Authority/Official shall verify the authenticity of such computerized copy of the order from the official website of High Court Allahabad and shall make a declaration of such verification in writing.

27. And in case any application be filed before the Remand Magistrate, the same should be ignored and has been rendered ocious.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Chandra Dhari Singh, J.)

1. Objection filed by the State is taken on record.

2. This bail application has been taken up today through Video Conferencing.

3. The instant application under Section 438 Cr.P.C. has been filed with a prayer for anticipatory bail of the accused-applicant who is involved in FIR No.268 of 2020, under Sections 188 & 505(2) IPC, Police Station Kotwali Nagar, District Ayodhya.

4. Brief facts of the case are that the applicant is editor of online news portal "The Wire". As per the prosecution story, the complainant had lodged the FIR on 01.04.2020 in the aforementioned sections alleging therein that the applicant had made a tweet on website Twitter.com which was allegedly defamatory towards the Chief Minister of Uttar Pradesh. The said FIR was lodged on the report published by "The Wire" on 31.03.2020 titled as "Covid-19 Cases Spike in Nizzamuddin Nehru Stadium in Delhi to Become Quarantine Centre", which was also tweeted by the applicant on 31.03.2020 and 01.04.2020. Relevant portion of the tweet is reproduced hereinbelow:-

"On the day the Tablighi Jamaat event was held. Yogi Adityanath insisted that a large fair planned for Ayodhya on the occasion of Ram Navami from March 25 to April 2 would proceed as usual while Acharya Paramhans said that Lord Ram would protect devotees from the coronavirus'.

One day after Modi announced the "curfew like" national lockdown on March 24, Adityanath violated the official guidelines to take part in a religious ceremony in Ayodhya along with dozens of people."

5. The error in the said report was corrected as soon it became known of the applicant and the incorrect version was deleted. FIR was registered on 01.04.2020. The instant application has been filed seeking anticipatory bail of the applicant as an apprehension of arrest in connection of the said FIR.

6. Shri I.B. Singh, learned Senior Advocate has submitted that the said FIR is nothing but an attempt to muzzle free speech and it is also submitted that the report in the said Magzine and Tweeter handle by the applicant is based on statements of facts which was also covered by various other news publications such as Deccan Herald, The Print, NDTV and Economic Times. The said report has never been denied by the Government of U.P. In such circumstances, the learned Senior Advocate has submitted that the applicant has not committed any offence as alleged in the FIR. The FIR is frivolous, malicious and motivated in nature. Furthermore, one small error in the report wherein the statement was wrongly attributed to the Chief Minister of U.P. was corrected as soon it became known and even before the registration of the FIR. It is submitted that any factual inaccuracies are not subject to any criminal action in law, even more so the offences with which the applicant has been charged.

7. Learned Senior Advocate has further submitted that the FIR purportedly relates to the said article and tweets in relation thereto, which are matters of record, so there is no possibility of tampering of evidence and there is no requirement of custodial interrogation. Learned Senior Advocate has further submitted that the applicant is a permanent resident and working in Delhi. He has deep roots in Delhi and his immediate family is also resident of Delhi.

8. Learned Senior Advocate has also submitted that only one offence cited is non-bailable and that too carries the maximum imprisonment of three years, in which arrest is deprecated by Courts and the law. It is further submitted that the news portal i.e. "The Wire" and the applicant were being targeted and harassed by Government of U.P. through U.P. Police in connection with the said article even though the small factual inaccuracy therein has been promptly corrected presumably because the said article shows the U.P. Government's handling Covid-19 crisis in critical light.

9. Learned Senior Advocate has submitted that on 10.04.2020 pursuant to FIR No.246 of 2020, some policemen of U.P. came to the applicant's residence and served upon his wife a written notice under Section 41(A) of Cr.P.C. directing the applicant to appear at Police Station Ayodhya at 10 AM on 14.04.2020 knowing fully well that given the current lockdown, where no trains or planes are operating and people are being prosecuted for stepping out of their houses, and further, the border between the NCT of Delhi and the State of Uttar Pradesh is closed for ordinary traffic, it would be impossible for the applicant to comply with the said notice. The applicant gave reply to the said notice through Email dated 13.04.2020 to the relevant officials of Uttar Pradesh police. In his response, the applicant clearly expressed his willingness to cooperate with the respondents in the investigation and highlighted his inability to comply with the direction to appear at P.S. Ayodhya on 14.04.2020 in view of lockdown.

10. It is further submitted that the police has sent a second notice under Section 41(A) of Cr.P.C., on 26.04.2020 relating to FIR No.246 of 2020. The applicant replied to the said second notice on 28.04.2020 providing a response to all questions and requesting the police to provide copy of FIR and relevant underlying documents as required.

11. Learned Senior Advocate has submitted that the applicant has very reasonable apprehension of being arrested in pursuance of registration of FIR No.246 of 2020 in which the applicant has been charged with non-bailable offence. Learned Senior Advocate has further submitted that while exercising its discretion under Section 438 Cr.P.C., a Court may, inter alia, take into consideration the nature and gravity of the accusation and the role of the accused. He has relied on a judgment rendered by Hon'ble Supreme Court of India in the case of Siddharam Satlingappa Mhetre v. State of Maharashtra - (2011) 1 SCC 694 to support his argument.

12. Learned Senior Advocate has further submitted that the liberty of an individual cannot be in the thrall of such frivolous invocation of non-bailable provisions. To strengthen his contention/submission, learned Senior Advocate has relied on Para - 112(x) of Siddharam Satlingappa's case (supra).

13. Learned Senior Advocate has submitted that in the instant case filing of an FIR with cognizable and non-bailable offences is only with the sole aim of using the threat of arrest to browbeat the applicant and "The Wire" into deleting the said article which shows the U.P. Government's handling of the Covid-19 crisis in a critical light. He has further submitted that the liberty of an individual is important in the liberty of society as a whole. He has relied on a judgment rendered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Gurbaksh Singh Sibbia v. State of Punjb - (1980) 2 SCC 656.

14. Learned Senior Advocate has further submitted that in the case of Ashok Sagar v. State (NCT of Delhi) - 2018 SCC Online Del 9548, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that imprisonment of an accused during the course of investigation and trial is not meant to be punitive and the requirement of arrest at this stage is only to secure the cooperation of the accused and to prevent any potential prejudice being caused to the investigation if it is shown that such prejudice is likely to be caused. If no such apprehension exists, there can be no reasonable ground to arrest the accused, as incarceration would then assume a punitive avatar.

15. In the instant case, the FIR purportedly relates to an online news report and a tweet in relation thereto, which are matters of record, so there is no possibility of tampering of evidence and no requirement of custodial interrogation. Moreover, there is no chance of the applicant fleeing, as he is permanent resident and working in Delhi. The applicant has deep roots in Delhi.

16. Learned Senior Advocate has lastly submitted that the investigation has already been completed and after the investigation, the police has filed charge-sheet. The Court below has taken cognizance on the charge-sheet filed by the investigating officer, but inspite of filing the charge-sheet and the cognizance being taken, the present applicant has a strong apprehension of arrest by the investigating agency.

17. During the argument, learned counsel has referred a judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Bhadresh Bipinbhai Sheth v. State of Gujarat - (2016) 1 SCC 152 and submitted that the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that there is no requirement that the accused must make out a "special case" for the exercise of the power to grant anticipatory bail and a person seeking anticipatory bail is a free person entitled to presumption of innocence.

18. It is also submitted that a Constitution Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Sushila Aggarwal v. State (NCT of Delhi) - 2020 SCC Online SC 98, has held that while holding that protection under Section 438 of Cr.P.C., should ordinarily be without any restriction as to time and that it should continue till the end of trial, reiterated the importance of the protection of individual liberty against arbitrary, frivolous and malicious arrests by recalling that it is such arrests which lead to the enactment of the protection under Section 438 of Cr.P.C.

19. Learned Senior Advocate has further submitted that, therefore, filing the charge-sheet by the police as well as the cognizance being taken by the Court does not bar for grant of anticipatory bail to the accused-applicant in the instant case.

20. Per contra, Shri V.K. Shahi, learned Additional Advocate General and Shri Jayant Singh Tomar, learned Additional Government Advocate have vehemently opposed the submissions made by learned Senior Advocate appearing for the accused-applicant and submitted that no case is made for granting the relief as sought for in the instant application under Section 438 of Cr.P.C. He has submitted that the said article and the tweet were nothing but to create a confusion amongst the public at large in order to disturb the communal harmony by tweeting else on the day Tabligi Jamat event was held by Muslim Community and various statements linked with Chief Minister were purposely made with intention to create disharmony amongst the two communities. It is submitted that because of this article and tweet, there were several unfortunate communal incidents which destroyed the public peace, and cases were registered upon which actions were taken immediately by the vigilant activities and activeness of the district police.

21. It has further been vehemently submitted on behalf of the State that if the police had not taken appropriate prompt measures, the communal harmony would have been disturbed not only in the city but even would have widely spread outside the state.

22. Learned Additional Advocate General has submitted that investigation of the case has been conducted and during the course of investigation notices under Section 41(A) of Cr.P.C. have been served upon the accused/applicant upon which he has given reply through Email and the same has been included in the case diary as well. After completion of the investigation, a charge-sheet against the accused/applicant has been filed in the Court concerned on 08.05.2020. Learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Faizabad, District Ayodhya has taken cognizance on the said charge-sheet and after prima-facie satisfaction, summon has been issued against the accused-applicant and the next date is fixed as 08.06.2020.

23. Learned Additional Advocate General has taken a serious objection that there is every likelihood that the accused-applicant will abscond and intimidate the witnesses and he may evade trial too. The accused-applicant is holding passport of U.S.A., and is an American citizen, and is residing in India since 1995. Therefore, the applicant can flee away from the country.

24. Learned Additional Advocate General has submitted that since the police has already completed the investigation and charge-sheet has been filed and the Court concerned has already taken congnizance, under law, there is no apprehension of arrest to the applicant-accused by the investigating agency.

25. Learned Additional Advocate General has submitted that in view of the facts and circumstances, the accused-applicant is not entitled for any relief by this Court. The anticipatory bail application of the applicant is devoid of merits and is based on misconceived facts and liable to be rejected.

26. I have heard Shri I.B. Singh, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Ms. Surangama Sharma, learned counsel appearing for the applicant; Shri V.K.

27. The concept of anticipatory bail was introduced in Cr.P.C. by 1973 amendment. The said provision can be invoked by a person who has a "reasonable apprehension" that he may be arrested for committing a non-bailable offence. The main purpose for incorporating Section 438 in Cr.P.C. was that the liberty of an individual should not be unnecessarily jeopardised. Right to life and personal liberty are one of the important fundamental rights guaranteed by the constitution and therefore, no person should be confined or detained in any manner unless he has been held guilty. The provision of 438 Cr.P.C., (U.P. Amendment) is reproduced hereinbelow:-

"438. (1) Where any person has reason to believe that he may be arrested on accusation of having committed a non-bailable offence, he may apply to the High Court or the Court of Session for a direction under this section that in the event of such arrest he shall be released on bail; and that Court may, after taking into consideration, inter alia, the following factors, namely:-

(i) the nature and gravity of the accusation;

(i) the antecedents of the applicant including the fact as to whether he has previously undergone imprisonment on conviction by a Court in respect of any cognizable offence;

(iil) the possibility of the applicant to flee from justice; and

(iv) where the accusation has been made with the object of injuring or humiliating the applicant by having him so arrested; either reject the application forthwith or issue an interim order for the grant of anticipatory bail:

Provided that where the High Court or, as the case may be, the Court of Session, has not passed any interim order under this sub-section or has rejected the application for grant of anticipatory bail, it shall be open to an officer in-charge of a police station to arrest, without warrant, the applicant on the basis of the accusation apprehended in such application.

(2) Where the High Court or, as the case may be, the Court of Session, consider it expedient to issue an interim order to grant anticipatory bail under sub section (1), the Court shall indicate therein the date, on which the application for grant of anticipatory bail shall be finally heard for passing an order thereon, as the Court may deem fit, and if the Court passes any order granting anticipatory bail, such order shall include inter alia the following conditions, namely:-

(i) that the applicant shall make himself available for interrogation by a police officer as and when required;

(ii) that the applicant shall not, directly or indirectly, make any inducement, threat or promise to any person acquainted with the facts of the case so as to dissuade him from disclosing such facts to the Court or to any police officer;

(iii) that the applicant shall not leave India without the previous permission of the Court; and

(iv) such other conditions as may be imposed under sub-section (3) of section 437, as if the bail were granted under that section.

Explanation:- The final order made on an application for direction under sub-section (1); shall not be construed as an interlocutory order for the purpose of this Code

(3) Where the Court grants an interim order under sub-section (1), it shall forthwith cause a notice being not less than seven days notice, together with a copy of such order to be served on the Public Prosecutor and the Superintendent of Police, with a view to give the Public Prosecutor a reasonable opportunity of being heard when the application shall be finally heard by the Court

(4) On the date indicated in the interim order under sub-section (2), the Court shall hear the Public Prosecutor and the applicant and after due consideration of their contentions, it may either confirm, modify or cancel the interim order.

(5) The High Court or the Court of Session, as the case may be, shall finally dispose of an application for grant of anticipatory bail under sub-section (1), within thirty days of the date of such application.

(6) Provisions of this section shall not be applicable -

(a) to the offences arising out of -

(i) the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act, 1967;

(ii) the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985;

(iii) the Official Secret Act, 1923;

(iv) the Uttar Pradesh Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986.

(b) in the offences, in which death sentence can be awarded.

(7) If an application under this section has been made by any person to the High Court, no application by the same person shall be entertained by the Court of Session."

28. From the collection and scheme of Chapter XXXIII and Section 438 Cr.P.C., it becomes explicitly clear that the legislature intended to bring anticipatory bail within the category of bail and not to treat it as something different from bail.

29. Therefore, I can straightway trace out the meaning of the word "bail' as found in the various judgments of the Hon'ble Supreme Court and the Law Dictionaries.

30. The 'bail' means as per Wharton's Law Lexicon, to "set at liberty a person arrested on security being taken for his appearance'.

31. As per the Encyclopaedia Britanhica, the bail is a procedure by which a Judge: or Magistrate sets at liberty one who has been arrested, upon receipt of security to ensure the release prisoner's latter appearance in Court for further proceedings.

32. In Nagendra v. King Emperor AIR 1924 Cal 476, it is held that the object of the bail is to secure the attendance of the accused at the time of the trial and that the proper test to be applied for the solution of the question whether bail should be granted or not is whether it is probable that the party will appear to take his trial.

33. Thus, it is clear that the object of the bail is to secure the attendance of the accused at the trial. The accused person who enjoys freedom is in a much better position to look after his case and to properly defend himself in, the trial than if he is in custody. In other words, as the Apex court holds, a presumed innocent person must have his freedom in the form of bail to enable him to establish his innocence at the trial.

34. In Savitri Agarwal and Ors. vs. State of Maharashtra & Ors. - (2009) 8

SCC 325, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that while exercising the power under sub-section 1 of Section 438 Cr.P.C., the Court must be satisfied that the applicant invoking the provision has reasons to believe that he is likely to be arrested for committing non-bailable offence and such believe must be founded for reasonable grounds.

35. Section 438 Cr.P.C. contemplates an application to be made by person apprehending arrest of an accusation of having committed a non-bailable offence. It is indicative of the fact that the application for anticipatory bail is pivoted on an apprehension of arrest which invites exercise of power under Section 438 of Cr.P.C. The expression "reason to believe" or reasonable apprehension of arrest, a term substitute for each other is the governing factor to let off a person on anticipatory bail where submission of charge-sheet, is an idle parade. It is settled law now that the submission of the charge-sheet is not a lock gate for the applicant to be enlarged on anticipatory bail but it ensures generation of apprehension of arrest. "Reason to believe" or apprehension of arrest for having committed a non-bailable offence does not grant any licence to any wrong-doer to be enlarged on anticipatory bail.

36. According to the rule of construction, the expression "reason to believe" should be construed with the aim, object and scheme of Section 438 Cr.P.C. The inflammatory allegations having their pedestal on falsity, malafide, and motive afford considerable grounds to be enlarged on anticipatory bail as the object of it is to protect an individual from humiliation and harassment. Thus, the expression "reason to believe" must be the belief of reasonable mind where the petitioner or the individual is immune. The "reason to belief" never contemplates nor it accords any licence to any individual to commit the offence and to seek protection within the realm of Section 438. The expression "reasonable belief" fosters a belief of genuine belief apprehension of arrest of an allegation which prima facie is insubstantial and made with a sinister motive, the object being to malign a person where his arrest by prosecuting agency is immediate than remote. But when a non-bailable offence has been committed by an accused, such "reason to believe" or apprehension of arrest can never be equated with the genuine belief of apprehension of arrest proceeding from prima facie substantial material entitling him to pre-arrest bail. The section can never be used by any individual to cultivate his rights when he is prima facie liable for an accusation and does not commensurate with his innonce. Reasonable belief is not colourable belief.

37. Section 438(1) Cr.P.C. provides that when any person has reason to believe that he may be arrested, he may approach the High Court or Sessions Court. It does not refer to a particular time or stage to have such an apprehension of arrest. However, the words and the language under Section 438(1) and (3) are so clear, so as to lead to the conclusion that whenever any person apprehends that he may be arrested for a non-bailable offence, he may seek for anticipatory bail, irrespective of the stages.

38. Therefore, the apprehension that he may be arrested on an accusation of a non-bailable offence has alone to be given due consideration and weight, irrespective of the state of the case.

39. When apprehension of arrest arises? The apprehension of arrest for a non-bailable offence, one can have at different stages, namely :-

(b) during further investigation under Section 173(8), Cr.P.C. even after filing of the charge sheet under Section 173 Cr.P.C.;

(c) after taking cognizance by the Magistrate, summoning the accused under Section 204 Cr.P.C. through warrant;

(d) while the Magistrate committing the Sessions case to the Court of Session under Section 209 Cr.P.C. and remanding the accused to custody;

(e) during the enquiry or trial, if the Court, on the basis of the evidence let in, impleads a person as an accused under Section 319 Cr.P.C. for the purpose of summoning and detaining him under Section 319 (2) and (3) Cr.P.C.

40 The above five contingencies involve different stages. Once the person accused of is released on anticipatory bail or on bail at one stage, the operation of the bail continues till the conclusion of trial.

41. The grounds on which apprehension of arrest is based must be capable of being examined by the Court objectively. Then alone the Court can determine whether the applicant has reason to believe that he would be arrested. Therefore, Section 438 Cr.P.C. cannot be invoked, unless there is some material on the basis of which the Court can come to the conclusion that the apprehension of the petitioner for the arrest is genuine.

42. In the case of Gurbaksh Singh Sibbia (supra), the Hon'ble Supreme Court went to the extent of observing that in some circumstances even without registration of the F.I.R., the Court can grant the relief of anticipatory bail, if the reasonable belief of the apprehension is established before the Court by giving the details of the events and facts.

43. This would show that even during the investigation, there are two stages at which there may be apprehension of arrest. One is, before the F.I.R. and another is subsequent to the F.I.R. But, in the light of the observation of the Supreme Court, it can be concluded that if the applicant entertains the apprehension of arrest at the hands of the police at the petition enquiry before registering F.I.R., the High Court or the Court of Session could invoke Section 438 Cr.P.C., provided the imminence of a likely arrest is shown to exist to the Court. Since registration of F.I.R. itself would be a strong material to show that he has got reason to believe that he may be arrested by the police.

44. The second stage is during the course of further investigation under Section 173(8) Cr.P.C. If a person is not arrested in the first investigation and in the event of taking up for further investigation by the police either on the direction of the superior officer or on the direction of the Court or on the basis of fresh materials, which have come to light, the person against whom the materials have been collected in the further investigation could approach for anticipatory bail, since apprehension of arrest could be shown to the Court exists.

45. The next stage for apprehension of arrest is at the time of taking cognizance by the Magistrate on entertaining the police report or the complaint and issuing warrant of arrest.

46. Under Chapter XVI, the proceedings before the Magistrate commences. Under Section 204 Cr.P.C., the Magistrate after taking cognizance of an offence, can issue summons for the attendance of the accused. In a warrant case, he may issue warrant directing the police to arrest the accused to produce before him at a certain time. Though the Magistrate invariably issues summons even in a warrant case under Section 204, Cr.P.C. after taking cognizance, in a police case, when the police intimated to the Court that the accused person was not arrested, since he was absconding, the Magistrate issues warrant directing the police to apprehend the absconding accused. .

47. In fact, only when the charge sheet is filed and the cognizance is taken by the Magistrate and the process is issued, the apprehension of arrest will become more stronger. At least, during the course of investigation it could be said that the apprehension of arrest is not reasonable, since under Section 41(A) Cr.P.C. the arrest is not mandatory. The reading of Section 41 Cr.P.C. would make clear that the arrest need not be resorted to in all cases automatically. The police has got a large discretion to arrest or not to arrest a person.

48. Therefore, it can be said that during the investigation, when the police officer has decided not to arrest, there is no apprehension of arrest. But, after filing of the charge sheet and that too once the warrant/summon is issued to appear the accused, then there would certainly be an apprehension of arrest.

49. In the case of Directorate of Enforcement v. Deepak Mahajan -1994 SCC (Crl) 785, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as follows:-

"Thus the Code gives power of arrest not only to a police officer and a Magistrate but also under certain circumstances or given situations to private persons. Further, when an accused person appears before a Magistrate or surrenders voluntarily, the Magistrate is entitled to take that accused persons into custody and deal with him according to law. Needless to emphasize that the arrest of a person is a condition precedent for taking him into judicial custody thereof. To put it differently, the taking of the person into judicial custody is followed after the arrest of the person concerned by the Magistrate on appearance or surrender……

In the backdrop of the above legal position, the conclusion that can be derived is that a Magistrate can himself arrest or order any person to arrest any offender if that offender has committed an offence in his presence and within his local jurisdiction or on his appearance or surrender or is produced before him and take that person (offender), into his custody subject to the bail provisions."

50. Therefore, this would make it clear that a person can apprehend arrest at the hands of the Magistrate for the purpose of remanding him to custody, while committing the sessions case to the Court of Session for trial with an accusation of non-bailable offence and this would certainly make that person to be entitled for approaching the Court under Section 438 Cr.P.C..

51. In view of the above principle as laid down in several judgments of the Hon'ble Supreme Court, I have to test the instant case on the aforesaid principle.

52. The applicant tweeted an article on the website Twitter.com on 31.03.2020 (supra) and the same was also published in the news portal "The Wire" titled as "Covid-19 Cases Spike in Nizzamuddin Nehru Stadium in Delhi to Become Quarantine Centre". Thereafter, the present applicant realised his mistake in the tweet dated 31.06.2020 and the same was corrected later on and a clarificatory tweet was also tweeted on the website Twitter.com on 01.04.2020 prior to lodging of the FIR in the instant case. It is contended in the affidavit accompanying the bail application that "on 10.04.2020, pursuant to FIR No.246 of 2020, some policemen of U.P. came to the applicant's residence and served upon his wife a written notice under Section 41(A) of Cr.P.C. directing the applicant to appear at Police Station Ayodhya at 10 AM on 14.04.2020 knowing fully well that given the current lockdown.....". It is also contended in Para - 38 of the affidavit accompanying the bail application that the applicant has expressed his willingness to cooperate with the investigating agency in the investigation via Email dated 13.04.2020 to the relevant police officer, however also shown his inability to comply with the direction to appear at Police Station Ayodhya on 14.04.2020 in view of lockdown due to Covid-19.

53. The applicant has stated on the affidavit that there are very reasonable and sufficient apprehension of being arrested for non-bailable offence. In Para-45 of the affidavit accompanying accompanying the bail application, it has been contended that the apprehension of the applicant is further fortified by the conduct of Uttar Pradesh Police, which has already sent two notices under Section 41(A) of Cr.P.C. in relation to FIR No.246 of 2020.

54. Learned Senior Advocate appearing for the accused-applicant has submitted that the applicant is willing to cooperate with the investigation as well as the entire proceeding of the trial in the instant case. It is also submitted that there is no possibility of fleeing away as he has deep route in the society, is a permanent resident of Delhi and is a reputed journalist. It is also submitted that the applicant undertakes that he shall not misuse any condition imposed by this Court while granting bail.

55. Learned Additional Advocate General has taken objection that the applicant is having an American passport and therefore, there is a chance of him fleeing away from India. It has further been submitted that since the charge-sheet has been filed by the police after completion of investigation and the cognizance has been taken on the said charge-sheet by the concerned Court, therefore, there is no reasonable apprehension of arrest of the applicant in the instant case by the police.

56. I do not find any merit in the argument advanced by learned Additional Advocate General, as the law discussed above in several judgments clarify the situation.

57. In view of the observations made, the instant anticipatory bail application under Section 438 Cr.P.C. is allowed.

58. It is directed that, in the event of his arrest in connection with FIR No.268 of 2020, under Sections 188 & 505(2) IPC, Police Station Kotwali Nagar, District Ayodhya, the applicant Siddharth Varadarajan, be released on bail on his executing a personal bond to the tune of Rs.2,00,000/- (Rupees Two Lakh) with two sureties each in the like amount to the satisfaction of the learned trial Court concerned.

59. The applicant shall abide by the following conditions:

1. The applicant shall not leave India during the currency of trial without prior permission from the concerned trial Court.

2. The applicant shall surrender his passport to the concerned trial Court or before this Court forthwith. His passport will remain in custody of the concerned trial Court/with the registry of this Court.

3. The applicant shall file an undertaking to the effect that he shall not seek any adjournment on the dates fixed for evidence and the witnesses are present in court. In case of default of this condition, it shall be open for the trial court to treat it as abuse of liberty of bail and pass orders in accordance with law to ensure presence of the applicant.

4. In case, the applicant misuses the liberty of bail, the trial Court concerned may take appropriate action in accordance with law.

5. The applicant shall remain present, in person, before the trial court on the dates fixed for (i) opening of the case, (ii) framing of charge and (iii) recording of statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. If in the opinion of the trial court default of this condition is deliberate or without sufficient cause, then it shall be open for the trial court to treat such default as abuse of liberty of his bail and proceed against him in accordance with law.

6. The party shall file computer generated copy of such order downloaded from the official website of High Court Allahabad.

7. The computer generated copy of such order shall be self attested by the counsel or the party concerned.

8. The concerned Court/Authority/Official shall verify the authenticity of such computerized copy of the order from the official website of High Court Allahabad and shall make a declaration of such verification in writing.

60. It is clarified that all the observations contained in this order are only for disposal of this anticipatory bail application and shall not affect the trial proceedings in any manner.

1. This application has been filed to release the applicant on bail in case crime no. 574 of 2019, under Section 8/21 of the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substance Act, 19851, P.S. Shahpur, District Gorakhpur. An amount of 1 Kg 17 gm of charas is alleged to have been recovered from the possession of the applicant which is above the commercial quantity.

2. Notice of the present bail application was served on the Government Advocate on 8.1.2020. However, no counter affidavit has been filed.

3. When the matter was being heard on 4.2.2020, learned Additional Government Advocate (AGA) placed before the court a recent judgement of the Supreme Court dated 24.01.2020 passed in Criminal Appeal No. 154-157 of 2020 (State of Kerala Vs. Rajesh)2 to contend that in view of the provisions of Section 37(1)(b)(ii) of the NDPS Act, since the offence involves recovery of the narcotic drug in excess of the commercial quantity, the Court is required to record its satisfaction that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the applicant is not guilty of such offence and that the applicant is not likely to commit any offence while on bail.

4. Apart from the learned counsel for the parties, the Court also requested Shri Imran Ullah and Dr. Arun Srivastava, learned counsel to assist the Court as amicus curie on the legal issues involved in the matter. On the date fixed, the case was heard at length.

5. Learned counsel for the applicant, Shri Rajeev Lochan Shukla, has relied upon a judgement of the Supreme Court in the case of Sujit Tiwari Vs. State of Gujarat and Another in Criminal Appeal No. 1897 of 2019, whereby the bail application filed by one of the accused who was charged under the NDPS Act in respect of the recovery of 1445 Kg of heroin was allowed after imposing stringent conditions. It is contended that by the learned counsel that the Apex Court took note of the prosecution case at the highest and observed that the appellant was aware that his brother was indulging in some illegal activity because obviously such huge amount of money of Rs. 50 crores cannot be made otherwise. It is stated by Shri Shukla that in that case before the Supreme Court the provisions of Section 37 of the N.D.P.S. Act were specifically considered. While referring the judgement of the Supreme Court in State of Kerala, Shri Shukla has contended that the Apex Court has dealt with the expression "reasonable grounds" appearing in Section 37 of the Act as meaning something more than prima facie grounds. He contends that the expression "reasonable grounds" contemplates substantial probable causes for believing that the accused is not guilty of the alleged offence. It is contended that "reasonable grounds" appearing in Section 37 of the Act would not entail a finding to be recorded by the Court regarding its satisfaction beyond reasonable doubt but to an extent more than prima facie. It is contended that the Court while exercising its jurisdiction for grant of bail or otherwise has to take into account the overall facts of the case and the compliance of the mandatory provisions of the N.D.P.S. Act before coming to a finding. The contention is that this Court may, accordingly, grant bail in view of the facts of the present case.

6. Shri Imran Ullah, learned counsel (amicus curie) while referring to paragraph nos. 7 and 22 of the judgement of the Apex Court in the case of State of Kerala has contended that the Court is required to record a finding mandated under Section 37 of the N.D.P.S. Act which is a sine qua non for grant of bail to the accused under the N.D.P.S. Act. With regard to bail, learned counsel has referred to the judgements of the Apex Court in the matters of Sanjay Chandra Vs. Central Bureau of Investigation3, Union of India Vs. Shiv Shanker Kesari4, State of M.P. Vs. Kajad5, Union of India Vs. Ram Samujh and another6, Union of India Vs. Thamisharasi7 and Dataram Singh Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and another8 . It is contended by the learned counsel that refusal of bail is the rule and its grant an exception in view of Section 37(1)(b)(ii). Liberal approach in the matter of bail under the NDPS Act is uncalled for. He contends that Section 37 of the NDPS Act starts with a non-obstante clause and therefore, the provisions of Section 437/439 of the Code of Criminal Procedure would not be applicable with regard to a person accused of an offence punishable under Section 19 or Section 24 or Section 27A and also for offences involving commercial quantity of contraband. The words "reasonable grounds" also appear in clause (i) of Section 437 of Cr.P.C. but the authority given to a High Court or a Court of Session under clause (a) of Section 439 permitting release on bail of any person accused of an offence would be curtailed in view of the stringent provision of Section 37(1)(b)(ii) of the NDPS Act. The limitations prescribed under the NDPS Act on granting of bail are in addition to the limitations under Cr.P.C. or any other law for the time being in force. It is further contended that while considering an application for bail with reference to Section 37 of the NDPS Act, the Court is not called upon to record a finding of not guilty. With reference to the phrase "reasonable grounds for believing", the learned counsel has referred to paragraph no. 37 of the judgement of the Supreme Court in the case of Sanjay Chandra (supra) to contend that the legislature has used the the words 'reasonable grounds for believing' instead of 'the evidence' which means the court dealing with the grant of bail can only satisfy itself as to whether there is a genuine case against the accused and that the prosecution will be able to produce prima facie evidence in support of the charge.

7. Dr. Arun Srivastava, learned counsel has referred to the judgement of the Supreme Court in the case of Arif Khan @ Agha Khan Vs. State of Uttarakhand9. In that case the Supreme Court has held that compliance of the requirements of Section 50 of the NDPS Act are mandatory and therefore the provisions of Section 50 have to be strictly complied with. It is contended that where, in case the applicant is not informed of his right under Section 50 of the NDPS Act, conviction of the accused would be vitiated.

8. Section 37 of the NDPS Act, as substituted by Act 2 of 1989 and as further amended by Act 9 of 2001, is as follows:

"37. Offences to be cognizable and non-bailable.- (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974)-

(a) every offence punishable under this Act shall be cognizable;

(b) no person accused of an offence punishable for offences under section 19 or section 24 or section 27A and also for offences involving commercial quantity shall be released on bail or on his own bond unless-

(i) the Public Prosecutor has been given an opportunity to oppose the application for such release, and

(ii) where the Public Prosecutor opposes the application, the court is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that he is not guilty of such offence and that he is not likely to commit any offence while on bail.

(2) The limitations on granting of bail specified in clause (b) of sub-section (1) are in addition to the limitations under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) or any other law for the time being in force, on granting of bail."

SUMMARY OF THE PRINCIPLES WITH REGARD TO BAIL UNDER THE NDPS ACT WITH REFERENCE TO A PERSON ACCUSED under Section 19 or Section 24 or Section 27A and also for OFFENCES INVOLVING 'COMMERCIAL QUANTITY'

9. It is no longer res nova that in view of Section 37(1)(b) of the NDPS Act, refusal of bail is the rule and its grant an exception and, that too after, inter alia, providing the Public Prosecutor an opportunity to oppose the application for such release. The law with regard to grant of bail in matters under the NDPS Act is quite well settled. However, some of the principles may be summarized as follows:-

i) Powers of the High Court to grant bail under section 439 Cr.P.C are subject the limitations contained in Section 37 of the NDPS Act.

While considering the scope of Section 439 of the Cr. P.C. with respect to Section 37 of the NDPS Act, the Supreme Court, in the case of Narcotics Control Bureau v. Kishan Lal10, looked into the provision of S.37 of the NDPS Act as amended in the year 1989 and held:

"For all the aforesaid reasons we hold that the powers of the High Court to grant bail under Section 439 are subject to the limitations contained in the amended Section 37 of the NDPS Act and the restrictions placed on the powers of the court under the said section are applicable to the High Court also in the matter of granting bail".

ii) The total period of custody under the NDPS Act of the accused permissible during investigation is to be found in Section 167 CrPC read with Section 36A of the NDPS Act.

In the case of Union of India Vs. Thamisharasi7, the Supreme Court held that Section 37 of the NDPS Act does not exclude the application of the proviso to sub-section (2) of Section 167 of the Code, even in respect of persons who are accused of offences under the NDPS Act, and observed as follows:

"13. Accordingly, provision in Section 37 to the extent it is inconsistent with Section 437 of the Code of Criminal Procedure supersedes the corresponding provisions in the Code and imposes limitations on granting of bail in addition to the limitations under the Code of Criminal Procedure as expressly provided in sub-section (2) of Section 37. These limitations on granting of bail specified in sub-section (1) of Section 37 are in addition to the limitations under Section 437 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and were enacted only for this purpose; and they do not have the effect of excluding the applicability of the proviso to sub-section (2) of Section 167 CrPC which operates in a different field relating to the total period of custody of the accused permissible during investigation.

14. In our opinion, in order to exclude the application of the proviso to sub-section (2) of Section 167 CrPC in such cases an express provision indicating the contrary intention was required or at least some provision from which such a conclusion emerged by necessary implication. As shown by us, there is no such provision in the NDPS Act and the scheme of the Act indicates that the total period of custody of the accused permissible during investigation is to be found in Section 167 CrPC which is expressly applied. The absence of any provision inconsistent therewith in this Act is significant."

However, after insertion of S. 36A by the Act 2 of 1989 and its substitution by Act 9 of 2001, sub-section (4) of Section 36A reads as under:

(4) In respect of persons accused of an offence punishable under section 19 or section 24 or section 27A or for offences involving commercial quantity the references in sub-section (2) of section 167 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) thereof to "ninety days", where they occur, shall be construed as reference to "one hundred and eighty days":

Provided that, if it is not possible to complete the investigation within the said period of one hundred and eighty days, the Special Court may extend the said period up to one year on the report of the Public Prosecutor indicating the progress of the investigation and the specific reasons for the detention of the accused beyond the said period of one hundred and eighty days.

iii) After the charge-sheet is filed, an accused under the NDPS Act cannot exercise the right to be released on bail on failure of the prosecution to file the charge-sheet within the time prescribed. But on the other hand if he exercises the right within the time allowed by law and is released on bail under such circumstances, he cannot be rearrested on the mere filing of the charge-sheet.

In the case of Dr. Bipin Shantilal Panchal Vs. State of Gujarat11, the Supreme Court while considering an appeal against rejection of bail of the appellant who was accused of offences under the NDPS Act, observed as follows:

"4. .....Therefore, if an accused person fails to exercise his right to be released on bail for the failure of the prosecution to file the charge-sheet within the maximum time allowed by law, he cannot contend that he had an indefeasible right to exercise it at any time notwithstanding the fact that in the meantime the charge-sheet is filed. But on the other hand if he exercises the right within the time allowed by law and is released on bail under such circumstances, he cannot be rearrested on the mere filing of the charge-sheet.....…"

iv) Detention made as a sequel to the arrest would become unlawful beyond the period of 24 hours without the order of a Magistrate.

In the case of Manoj Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh12 the appellant was arrested in connection with a case involving NDPS Act registered by police in Rajasthan. Later, in another case under the NDPS Act in Madhya Pradesh involved the appellant who was recorded as arrested. Though an order granting bail was passed by the Rajasthan High Court, the appellant did not execute the bond since his arrest in Madhya Pradesh case became a stonewall for his release from custody. His application for bail before the Madhya Pradesh High Court, after the Sessions Judge rejected his bail application, was rejected. After 90 days of his arrest in the Madhya Pradesh case, he moved an application before the Special Judge, Kota (Rajasthan) for bail under the proviso to S. 167 (2) of the Cr. P.C as no charge-sheet was filed in the Madhya Pradesh case. But the Special Judge rejected the application saying that he was never produced before the court after formal arrest and no order as regards the first remand was ever passed and therefore, the question of completion of investigation within a period of 90 days does not arise. The High Court also did not enlarge the applicant on bail. The Supreme Court observed as follows:

"12. If the police officer is forbidden from keeping an arrested person beyond twenty-four hours without order of a Magistrate, what should happen to the arrested person after the said period? It is a constitutional mandate that no person shall be deprived of his liberty except in accordance with the procedure established in law. Close to its heels the Constitution directs that the person arrested and detained in custody shall be produced before the nearest magistrate within 24 hours of such arrest. The only time permitted by Article 22 of of the Constitution to be excluded from the said period of 24 hours is "the time necessary for going from the place of arrest to the court of the Magistrate". Only under two contingencies can the said direction be obviated. One is when the person arrested is an "enemy alien". Second is when the arrest is under any law for preventive detention. In all other cases the Constitution has prohibited peremptorily that "no such person shall be detained in custody beyond the said period without the authority of a Magistrate".

13. When the State of Madhya Pradesh, whose police made the arrest of the appellant in connection with the M.P. case on 7-8-1998, admitted that after arrest he was not produced before the nearest Magistrate within 24 hours, its inevitable corollary is that detention made as a sequel to the arrest would become unlawful beyond the said period of 24 hours."

v) Liberal approach in the matter of bail under the NDPS Act is uncalled for.

Then, in the case of State of M.P. Vs. Kajad5, the Supreme Court was considering an appeal against an order of the High Court allowing the second bail application of the respondent who was accused under the NDPS Act (as it stood prior to its amendment in the year 2001). The Supreme Court held:

"5. ..... Negation of bail is the rule and its grant an exception under sub-clause (ii) of clause (b) of Section 37(1). For granting the bail the court must, on the basis of the record produced before it, be satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the accused is not guilty of the offences with which he is charged and further that he is not likely to commit any offence while on bail. It has further to be noticed that the conditions for granting the bail, specified in clause (b) of sub-section (1) of Section 37 are in addition to the limitations provided under the Code of Criminal Procedure or any other law for the time being in force regulating the grant of bail. Liberal approach in the matter of bail under the Act is uncalled for.

7. In the instant case, the learned Single Judge of the High Court has granted the bail on his own sense of observation regarding the course of conduct adopted by the accused at the time of his interception and arrest. Merely because the accused was found to be continuing to hold bag containing opium during the period, the raiding party searched him in accordance with the provisions of the Act, the learned Judge was not justified to conclude "it is by itself unnatural". How the learned Judge concluded that the conduct of the accused or raiding party were unnatural is not discernible from the impugned order. A person, apprehended by a raiding party, who is sought to be searched is supposed to hold the goods in his possession unless he opts to flee from the place of occurrence or is advised to throw the container in which the offending substance is contained. Section 37 of the Act has been referred to in the impugned order not for the purposes of showing of its compliance but to justify the passing of an apparently wrong order. If, besides referring to Section 37 of the Act, the learned Judge would have referred to its provisions, he would not have fallen a prey to the ulterior designs of the respondent-accused."

vi) On merits, no person shall be granted bail unless the two conditions are satisfied, that is, the satisfaction of the Court that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the accused is not guilty and that he is not likely to commit any offence while on bail.

The Supreme Court in the case of Union of India Vs. Shiv Shanker Kesari4, while considering an appeal against bail which was granted to the respondent by this Court on the ground that the recovery was not from the exclusive possession of the accused-respondent and other members of the family are involved in the case and that the respondent had no criminal history, observed as follows:

"6. As the provision itself provides no person shall be granted bail unless the two conditions are satisfied. They are; the satisfaction of the Court that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the accused is not guilty and that he is not likely to commit any offence while on bail. Both the conditions have to be satisfied. If either of these two conditions is not satisfied, the bar operates and the accused cannot be released on bail.

7. The expression used in Section 37 (1)(b)(ii) is "reasonable grounds". The expression means something more than prima facie grounds. It connotes substantial probable causes for believing that the accused is not guilty of the offence charged and this reasonable belief contemplated in turn points to existence of such facts and circumstances as are sufficient in themselves to justify recording of satisfaction that the accused is not guilty of the offence charged.

11. The Court while considering the application for bail with reference to Section 37 of the Act is not called upon to record a finding of not guilty. It is for the limited purpose essentially confined to the question of releasing the accused on bail that the Court is called upon to see if there are reasonable grounds for believing that the accused is not guilty and records its satisfaction about the existence of such grounds. But the Court has not to consider the matter as if it is pronouncing a judgment of acquittal and recording a finding of not guilty.

12. Additionally, the Court has to record a finding that while on bail the accused is not likely to commit any offence and there should also exist some materials to come to such a conclusion."

"3. In view of Section 37(1)(b) of the Act unless there are reasonable grounds for believing that the accused is not guilty of such offence and that he is not likely to commit any offence while on bail alone will entitle him to a bail. In the present case, the petitioner attempted to secure bail on various grounds but failed. But those reasons would be insignificant if we bear in mind the scope of Section 37(1)(b) of the Act. At this stage of the case all that could be seen is whether the statements made on behalf of the prosecution witnesses, if believable, would result in conviction of the petitioner or not. At this juncture, we cannot say that the accused is not guilty of the offence if the allegations made in the charge are established. Nor can we say that the evidence having not been completely adduced before the Court that there are no grounds to hold that he is not guilty of such offence. The other aspect to be borne in mind is that the liberty of a citizen has got to be balanced with the interest of the society. In cases where narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances are involved, the accused would indulge in activities which are lethal to the society. Therefore, it would certainly be in the interest of the society to keep such persons behind bars during the pendency of the proceedings before the court, and the validity of Section 37(1)(b) having been upheld, we cannot take any other view."

vii) Even in a criminal appeal against the order of conviction under the NDPS Act, the mandatory provisions of Section 37 of the Act cannot be ignored while suspending the sentence.

The Supreme Court in the case of Union of India v. Rattan Mallik14 observed as follows:

"10. As already noted, in the present case, the respondent has been convicted and sentenced for the offences under the NDPS Act and therefore, while dealing with his application for grant of bail, in addition to the broad principles to be applied in prosecution for the offences under the Penal Code, 1860 the relevant provision in the said special statute in this regard had to be kept in view.

15. ..... It is evident from the afore-extracted paragraph that the circumstances which have weighed with the learned Judge to conclude that it was a fit case for grant of bail are: (i) that nothing has been found from the possession of the respondent; (ii) he is in jail for the last three years, and (iii) that there is no chance of his appeal being heard within a period of seven years. In our opinion, the stated circumstances may be relevant for grant of bail in matters arising out of conviction under the Penal Code, 1860, etc. but are not sufficient to satisfy the mandatory requirements as stipulated in clause (b) of sub-section (1) of Section 37 of the NDPS Act.

16. Merely because, according to the learned Judge, nothing was found from the possession of the respondent, it could not be said at this stage that the respondent was not guilty of the offences for which he had been charged and convicted. We find no substance in the argument of learned counsel for the respondent that the observation of the learned Judge to the effect that "nothing has been found from his possession" by itself shows application of mind by the learned Judge tantamounting to "satisfaction" within the meaning of the said provision. It seems that the provisions of the NDPS Act and more particularly Section 37 were not brought to the notice of the learned Judge."

viii) The seriousness of cases under the NDPS Act have to be viewed like this that in a murder case, the accused commits murder of one or two persons, while those persons who are dealing in narcotic drugs are instrumental in causing death or in inflicting death-blow to a number of innocent young victims, who are vulnerable: it causes deleterious effects and deadly impact on the society.

The Supreme Court in the case of Union of India Vs. Ram Samujh and another6 has observed as follows:

"7. It is to be borne in mind that the aforesaid legislative mandate is required to be adhered to and followed. It should be borne in mind that in murder case, the accused commits murder of one or two persons, while those persons who are dealing in narcotic drugs are instrumental in causing death or in inflicting death-blow to a number of innocent young victims, who are vulnerable: it causes deleterious effects and deadly impact on the society; they are a hazard to the society; even if they are released temporarily, in all probability, they would continue their nefarious activities of trafficking and/or dealing in intoxicants clandestinely. Reason may be large stake and illegal profit involved. This Court, dealing with the contention with regard to punishment under NDPS Act, has succinctly observed about the adverse effect of such activities in Durand Didier v. Chief Secy., Union Territory of Goa. as under: (SCC p. 104, para 24)

"24. With deep concern, we may point out that the organised activities of the underworld and the clandestine smuggling of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances into this country and illegal trafficking in such drugs and substances have led to drug addiction among a sizeable section of the public, particularly the adolescents and students of both sexes and the menace has assumed serious and alarming proportions in the recent years. Therefore, in order to effectively control and eradicate this proliferating and booming devastating menace, causing deleterious effects and deadly impact on the society as a whole, the Parliament in its wisdom, has made effective provisions by introducing this Act 81 of 1985 specifying mandatory minimum imprisonment and fine."

8. To check the menace of dangerous drugs flooding the market, the Parliament has provided that the person accused of offences under the NDPS Act should not be released on bail during trial unless the mandatory conditions provided in Section 37, namely,

(i) there are reasonable grounds for believing that accused is not guilty of such offence; and

(ii) that he is not likely to commit any offence while on bail are satisfied. The High Court has not given any justifiable reason for not abiding by the aforesaid mandate while ordering the release of the respondent-accused on bail. Instead of attempting to take a holistic view of the harmful socio-economic consequences and health hazards which would accompany trafficking illegally in dangerous drugs, the Court should implement the law in the spirit with which the Parliament, after due deliberation, has amended."

ix) Compliance or otherwise of Section 50 of the NDPS Act is a factual issue that can only be considered during trial.

The Supreme Court in the Constitution Bench judgments in the matters of State of Punjab v. Baldev Singh15 and Vijaysinh Chandubha Jadeja v. State of Gujarat16 has observed that compliance of Section 50 of the NDPS Act can be looked into during trial. Therefore, this aspect may not be looked into at the stage of grant of bail.

x) Compliance or otherwise of Section 42 of the NDPS Act is also a factual issue which can be considered during trial.

A Constitution Bench of the Supreme Court, in the matter of Karnail Singh v. State of Haryana, while looking into the mandate of Section 42 has observed:

"35. In conclusion, what is to be noticed is that Abdul Rashid [(2000) 2 SCC 513 : 2000 SCC (Cri) 496] did not require literal compliance with the requirements of Sections 42(1) and 42(2) nor did Sajan Abraham [(2001) 6 SCC 692 : 2001 SCC (Cri) 1217] hold that the requirements of Sections 42(1) and 42(2) need not be fulfilled at all. The effect of the two decisions was as follows:

(a) The officer on receiving the information [of the nature referred to in sub-section (1) of Section 42] from any person had to record it in writing in the register concerned and forthwith send a copy to his immediate official superior, before proceeding to take action in terms of clauses (a) to (d) of Section 42(1).

(b) But if the information was received when the officer was not in the police station, but while he was on the move either on patrol duty or otherwise, either by mobile phone, or other means, and the information calls for immediate action and any delay would have resulted in the goods or evidence being removed or destroyed, it would not be feasible or practical to take down in writing the information given to him, in such a situation, he could take action as per clauses (a) to (d) of Section 42(1) and thereafter, as soon as it is practical, record the information in writing and forthwith inform the same to the official superior.

(c) In other words, the compliance with the requirements of Sections 42(1) and 42(2) in regard to writing down the information received and sending a copy thereof to the superior officer, should normally precede the entry, search and seizure by the officer. But in special circumstances involving emergent situations, the recording of the information in writing and sending a copy thereof to the official superior may get postponed by a reasonable period, that is, after the search, entry and seizure. The question is one of urgency and expediency.

(d) While total non-compliance with requirements of sub-sections (1) and (2) of Section 42 is impermissible, delayed compliance with satisfactory explanation about the delay will be acceptable compliance with Section 42. To illustrate, if any delay may result in the accused escaping or the goods or evidence being destroyed or removed, not recording in writing the information received, before initiating action, or non-sending of a copy of such information to the official superior forthwith, may not be treated as violation of Section 42. But if the information was received when the police officer was in the police station with sufficient time to take action, and if the police officer fails to record in writing the information received, or fails to send a copy thereof, to the official superior, then it will be a suspicious circumstance being a clear violation of Section 42 of the Act. Similarly, where the police officer does not record the information at all, and does not inform the official superior at all, then also it will be a clear violation of Section 42 of the Act. Whether there is adequate or substantial compliance with Section 42 or not is a question of fact to be decided in each case. The above position got strengthened with the amendment to Section 42 by Act 9 of 2001.

It, therefore, is reflected in this judgement that compliance of Section 42 is a question of fact. Thus, it is to be looked into by the Courts during trial and may not be looked into for consideration of a bail application.

xi) Whether possession of the drug or substance is below or above the commercial quantity, has to be viewed in light of Note-4 appended to the Notification of the Central Government specifying small quantity and commercial quantity.

Note 4 was inserted at the foot of the Notification of the Central Government specifying small and commercial quantity by means of S.O. 2941(E) dated 18th November, 2009 which reads as follows:-

"The quantities shown in column 5 and column 6 of the Table relating to the respective drugs shown in column 2 shall apply to the entire mixture or any solution or any one or more narcotic drugs or psychotropic substances of that particular drug in dosage form or isomers, esters, ethers and salts of these drugs, including salts of esters, ethers and isomers, wherever existence of such substance is possible and not just its pure drug content."

In the case of Harjit Singh v. State of Punjab17, while distinguishing the case of E. Micheal Raj18, and considering the aforesaid Note 4, the Supreme Court held:

"13. Notification dated 18-11-2009 has replaced the part of the Notification dated 19-10-2001 and reads as under:

"In the Table at the end after Note 3, the following Note shall be inserted, namely:

(4) The quantities shown in Column 5 and Column 6 of the Table relating to the respective drugs shown in Column 2 shall apply to the entire mixture or any solution or any one or more narcotic drugs or psychotropic substances of that particular drug in dosage form or isomers, esters, ethers and salts of these drugs, including salts of esters, ethers and isomers, wherever existence of such substance is possible and not just its pure drug content."

14. Thus, it is evident that under the aforesaid notification, the whole quantity of material recovered in the form of mixture is to be considered for the purpose of imposition of punishment. However, the submission is not acceptable as it is a settled legal proposition that a penal provision providing for enhancing the sentence does not operate retrospectively. This amendment, in fact, provides for a procedure which may enhance the sentence. Thus, its application would be violative of restrictions imposed by Article 20 of the Constitution of India. We are of the view that the said Notification dated 18-11-2009 cannot be applied retrospectively and therefore, has no application so far as the instant case is concerned.

21. In the instant case, the material recovered from the appellant was opium. It was of a commercial quantity and could not have been for personal consumption of the appellant. Thus the appellant being in possession of the contraband substance had violated the provisions of Section 8 of the NDPS Act and was rightly convicted under Section 18(b) of the NDPS Act. The instant case squarely falls under clause (a) of Section 2(xv) of the NDPS Act and clause (b) thereof is not attracted for the simple reason that the substance recovered was opium in the form of the coagulated juice of the opium poppy. It was not a mixture of opium with any other neutral substance. There was no preparation to produce any new substance from the said coagulated juice. For the purpose of imposition of punishment if the quantity of morphine in opium is taken as a decisive factor, Entry 92 becomes totally redundant.

22. Thus, as the case falls under clause (a) of Section 2(xv), no further consideration is required on the issue. More so, opium derivatives have to be dealt with under Entry 93, so in case of pure opium falling under clause (a) of Section 2(xv), determination of the quantity of morphine is not required. Entry 92 is exclusively applicable for ascertaining whether the quantity of opium falls within the category of small quantity or commercial quantity.

23. The judgment in E. Micheal Raj [(2008) 5 SCC 161 : (2008) 2 SCC (Cri) 558] has dealt with heroin i.e. diacetylmorphine which is an "opium derivative" within the meaning of the term as defined in Section 2(xvi) of the NDPS Act and therefore, a "manufactured drug" within the meaning of Section 2(xi)(a) of the NDPS Act. As such the ratio of the said judgment is not relevant to the adjudication of the present case.

25. The notification applicable herein specifies small and commercial quantities of various narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances for each contraband material. Entry 56 deals with heroin, Entry 77 deals with morphine, Entry 92 deals with opium, Entry 93 deals with opium derivatives and so on and so forth. Therefore, the notification also makes a distinction not only between opium and morphine but also between opium and opium derivatives. Undoubtedly, morphine is one of the derivatives of the opium. Thus, the requirement under the law is first to identify and classify the recovered substance and then to find out under what entry it is required to be dealt with. If it is opium as defined in clause (a) of Section 2(xv) then the percentage of morphine contents would be totally irrelevant. It is only if the offending substance is found in the form of a mixture as specified in clause (b) of Section 2(xv) of the NDPS Act, that the quantity of morphine contents becomes relevant.

26. Thus, the aforesaid judgment in E. Micheal Raj [(2008) 5 SCC 161 : (2008) 2 SCC (Cri) 558] has no application in the instant case as it does not relate to a mixture of narcotic drugs or psychotropic substances with one or more substances. The material so recovered from the appellant is opium in terms of Section 2(xv) of the NDPS Act. In such a fact situation, determination of the contents of morphine in the opium becomes totally irrelevant for the purpose of deciding whether the substance would be a small or commercial quantity. The entire substance has to be considered to be opium as the material recovered was not a mixture and the case falls squarely under Entry 92. Undoubtedly, the FSL report provided for potency of the opium giving particulars of morphine contents. It goes without saying that opium would contain some morphine which should not be less than the prescribed quantity, however, the percentage of morphine is not a decisive factor for determination of the quantum of punishment, as the opium is to be dealt with under a distinct and separate entry from that of morphine."

xii) Possession of narcotic drugs, controlled substances or psychotropic substances can be either 'physical' or 'constructive'. Courts require circumspection while considering issues of possession in a bail application in view of the presumption to be drawn under Section 54 during trials.

Under Section 54 of the NDPS Act it is provided as follows:

54. Presumption from possession of illicit articles.- In trials under this Act, it may be presumed, unless and until the contrary is proved, that the accused has committed an offence under this Act in respect of-

(a) any narcotic drug or psychotropic substance or controlled substance;

(b) any opium poppy, cannabis plant or coca plant growing on any land which he has cultivated;

(c) any apparatus specially designed or any group of utensils specially adopted for the manufacture of any narcotic drug or psychotropic substance or controlled substance; or

(d) any materials which have undergone any process towards the manufacture of a narcotic drug or psychotropic substance or controlled substance, or any residue left of the materials from which any narcotic drug or psychotropic substance or controlled substance has been manufactured, for the possession of which he fails to account satisfactorily.

Therefore, for purpose of bail, where such grounds are raised, the courts would be circumspect, as this aspect of the matter is a factual dispute which needs to be gone into during trial.

REFERENCES OF OTHER CASES

10. Dataram Singh Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and another8

This case before the Supreme Court was not under the provisions of the NDPS Act. The Court observed that a humane attitude is required to be adopted by a Judge while dealing with an application for remanding a suspect or accused person to police custody or judicial custody. The Court observed that there are several reasons for this, including maintaining the dignity of the accused person howsoever poor that person might be, the requirements of Article 21 of the Constitution, and the fact that there is enormous overcrowding in prisons leading to social and other problems. However, the Supreme Court, in the opening paragraph of the judgement observed as follows:-

"1. Leave granted. A fundamental postulate of criminal jurisprudence is the presumption of innocence, meaning thereby that a person is believed to be innocent until found guilty. However, there are instances in our criminal law where a reverse onus has been placed on an accused with regard to some specific offences but that is another matter and does not detract from the fundamental postulate in respect of other offences. "

Thus the Supreme Court, in Dataram Singh, has clearly excluded those offences under statutes (like the NDPS Act) which place a reverse onus on an accused.

11. State of Kerala

The discretion exercised by the High Court in granting post arrest bail to the accused-respondent without noticing the mandate of Section 37(1)(b)(ii) of the NDPS Act and thereafter rejecting the application filed by the appellant under Section 482 Cr.P.C. for recalling the order of the post arrest bail was considered. The Learned Judge of the High Court without noticing Section 37 of the NDPS and taking notice of the fact that the other accused-persons in Crime No. 14 of 2018 had since been released on bail, granted him post arrest bail. The prosecution case was that the respondents and others were found to be in possession of 1.800 Kg of hashish oil. They were arrested and after investigation a chargesheet was filed. Their post arrest bail application was dismissed by the Sessions Judge whereafter they preferred the bail application before the High Court. The High Court by its order dated 10.5.2019 granted bail to the respondents and others in crime no. 19 of 2018 and observed that both the accused have completed 195 days in judicial custody and their further detention is not necessary as nothing remains to be investigated against them. The Supreme Court observed that Section 37 of the NDPS Act has been referred to by the learned Single Judge in the impugned order not for the purpose of showing its compliance, but to justify due application of mind in taking decision to grant post arrest bail under the order dated 10.5.2019. When a recall application was filed under Section 482 Cr.P.C by the appellant for recalling the order of the post arrest bail, the Single Judge observed that even if it was an erroneous order and it did not involve application of mind, still it was not open for the Court to reconsider the facts invoking Section 482 Cr.P.C. and expressed its view that the remedy of the State lies in assailing the orders of the Court before the superior forum, if so advised, and dismissed the application by the order dated 12.6.2019.

12. Among the contentions advanced on behalf of the respondents before the Supreme Court in State of Kerala the following points were raised:

(i) Accused nos. 1 to 4 were granted post arrest bail by the high Court in Crime No. 14 of 2018 but the prosecution has not taken any steps to challenge the grant of bail to all other accused persons.

(ii) Chargesheet was filed in both the cases, that is, in Crime No. 14/2018 and Crime No. 19/2018 and the matter is fixed for framing of charge. No further investigation is required from the accused respondents and the learned Judge under the impugned judgement has put stringent conditions while granting post arrest bail to the respondents, which was neither been misused nor violated and after affording due opportunity of hearing and noticing Section 37 of the NDPS Act, satisfaction was recorded that the accused-persons deserved post arrest bail.

(iii) The High Court was cognizant of the fact that it could be a case of false implication on account of animosity of the office-colleagues of a person convicted under the Prevention of Corruption Act on the complaint of the respondent.

(iv) There being no prior case against the respondent under the NDPS Act except two aforesaid cases, and the judicial discretion having been exercised, no interference is called for by this Court.

13. The Supreme Court observed that the contraband recovered is more than the commercial quantity and held as follows:

"20. The scheme of Section 37 reveals that the exercise of power to grant bail is not only subject to the limitations contained under Section 439 of the CrPC, but is also subject to the limitation placed by Section 37 which commences with non-obstante clause. The operative part of the said section is in the negative form prescribing the enlargement of bail to any person accused of commission of an offence under the Act, unless twin conditions are satisfied. The first condition is that the prosecution must be given an opportunity to oppose the application; and the second, is that the Court must be satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that he is not guilty of such offence. If either of these two conditions is not satisfied, the ban for granting bail operates.

21. The expression "reasonable grounds" means something more than prima facie grounds. It contemplates substantial probable causes for believing that the accused is not guilty of the alleged offence. The reasonable belief contemplated in the provision requires existence of such facts and circumstances as are sufficient in themselves to justify satisfaction that the accused is not guilty of the alleged offence. In the case on hand, the High Court seems to have completely overlooked the underlying object of Section 37 that in addition to the limitations provided under the CrPC, or any other law for the time being in force, regulating the grant of bail, its liberal approach in the matter of bail under the NDPS Act is indeed uncalled for.

22. We may further like to observe that the learned Single Judge has failed to record a finding mandated under Section 37 of the NDPS Act which is a sine qua non for granting bail to the accused under the NDPS Act.

23. The submission made by learned counsel for the respondents that in Crime No. 14/2018, the bail has been granted to the other accused persons(A-1 to A-4), and no steps have been taken by the prosecution to challenge the grant of post-arrest bail to the other accused persons, is of no consequence for the reason that the consideration prevailed upon the Court to grant bail to the other accused persons will not absolve the act of the accused respondent(A-5) from the rigour of Section 37 of the NDPS Act.

24. The further submission of the learned counsel for the respondents that they have been falsely implicated in Crime No. 19/2018 for the reason that the batchmates of the excise official, Babu Varghese was convicted in the corruption case on the trap being laid down by the respondent-Shajimon (A-1) is only a conjecture of self-defence, and no inference could be drawn of false implication, more so when in Crime No. 19/2018 and 14/2018, charge-sheets have been filed after investigation and the matter is listed before the learned trial Judge for framing of the charge where the accused respondents certainly have an opportunity to make their submissions."

14. Accordingly, the Supreme Court allowed the appeals of the State of Kerala and the order passed by the High Court releasing the respondents on bail was set aside.

15. Sujit Tiwari Vs. State of Gujarat and Another19

This case of the Supreme Court has been relied upon by the learned counsel for the applicant. The facts of the case were that the brother of the appellant, one Suprit Tiwari, who was the master of a ship (MV Hennry) and the crew members of that ship, when intercepted by the Indian Coast Guard, could not produce any documents pertaining to departure from last port of call i.e. Abu Dhabi in UAE or for the next port of call i.e. Bhavnagar in Gujarat. Suprit Tiwari when questioned, admitted that they were carrying contraband substance in the nature of narcotics substance and he identified the locations and 1445 Kg of narcotics substances (heroin) in 1526 packets were recovered from the ship which was intercepted on 29.7.2017. The Narcotic Control Bureau carried out its investigation and after completion filed a complaint before the Special Judge, NDPS Court at Porbandar in Gujarat on 22.12.2017 against the Master and the 7 crew members and against five other persons including the appellant Sujit Tiwari who is the brother of Suprit Tiwari. Suprit Tiwari revealed that he had informed his brother Sujit Tiwari about some illegal activity in which he was to make huge amount of money and he also told Sujit that he would get Rs. 50 crores through hawala. The appellant was arrested on 4.8.2017 with the allegation that he was party of the conspiracy to smuggle the huge quantity of contraband into India. On behalf of the appellant two arguments were advanced, firstly, that there is no material to connect the appellant with the crime and, secondly that the appellant is entitled to a default bail since the investigation has not been completed within the period prescribed under Section 167 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, read with Section 36A of the NDPS Act. The Supreme Court went through the statement made by the appellant under Section 67 of the NDPS Act. While noticing that the question whether the statement so made is admissible or not having been referred to a larger Bench, for the purpose of the case, the Supreme Court took the statement into consideration even though the appellant had resiled from the same.

16. The Supreme Court observed as follows:

"10. The prosecution story is that the appellant was aware of what his brother was doing and was actively helping his brother. At this stage we would not like to comment on the merits of the allegations levelled against the present appellant. But other than the few WhatsApp messages and his own statement which he has resiled from, there is very little other evidence. At this stage it appears that the appellant may not have even been aware of the entire conspiracy because even the prosecution story is that the brother himself did not know what was loaded on the ship till he was informed by the owner of the vessel. Even when the heroin was loaded in the ship it was supposed to go towards Egypt and that would not have been a crime under the NDPS Act. It seems that Suprit Tiwari and other 7 crew members then decided to make much more money by bringing the ship to India with the intention of disposing of the drugs in India. During this period the Master Suprit Tiwari took the help of Vishal Kumar Yadav and Irfan Sheikh who had to deliver the consignment to Suleman who had to arrange the money after delivery. The main allegation made against the appellant is that he sent the list of the crew members after deleting the names of 4 Iranians and Esthekhar Alam to Vishal Kumar Yadav and Irfan Sheikh through WhatsApp with a view to make their disembarkation process easier. Even if we take the prosecution case at the highest, the appellant was aware that his brother was indulging in some illegal activity because obviously such huge amount of money could not be made otherwise. However, at this stage it cannot be said with certainty whether he was aware that drugs were being smuggled on the ship or not, though the allegation is that he made such a statement to the NCB under Section 67 of the NDPS Act.

11. At this stage, without going into the merits, we feel that the case of the appellant herein is totally different from the other accused. Reasonable possibility is there that he may be acquitted. He has been behind bars since his arrest on 04.08.2017 i.e. for more than 2 years and he is a young man aged about 25 years. He is a B.Tech Graduate. Therefore, under facts and circumstances of this case we feel that this is a fit case where the appellant is entitled to bail because there is a possibility that he was unaware of the illegal activities of his brother and the other crew members. The case of the appellant is different from that of all the other accused, whether it be the Master of the ship, the crew members or the persons who introduced the Master to the prospective buyers and the prospective buyers."

Therefore the Supreme Court directed bail to the appellant, Sujit Tiwari, after imposing some stringent conditions.

CONSIDERATION OF THE PRESENT CASE

17. Coming to the facts of the instant case, the FIR dated 24.11.2019 was lodged by the Station Officer stating that on 24.11.2019 the informant and other police personnel, for purpose of inspecting the area and for maintaining law and order were busy in Basharatpur area when an special informant informed them that one person who engages in purchase and sale of narcotic substance is standing in the wait for someone near H.N. Singh Crossing of Basharatpur area. If hurried, the person can be nabbed along with the substance. Believing that information, the informant and others after taking physical search of each other to ensure that nobody had any unauthorized substance with them, they reached H.N. Singh Crossing. The special informant indicated a person standing near the graveyard near Metro Hospital that he is that person. Then the police personnel surrounded that person and apprehended him. When that person was asked his name and address, he started stammering out of fear and said that his name was Shailendra Kumar Gupta @ Shailu s/o Ramashray Prasad Gupta, in whose hand there was a solid substance in a plastic bag. When that person was subjected to rigorous interrogation, he said that he purchases and sells charas and other narcotic substance for profit and that he was standing there holding charas in his hand to sell it. After informing the applicant about his right and then taking a consent letter from him for taking his search, his search was taken and thereafter two solid rectangular pieces wrapped in brown plastic were found in a plastic bag which he was holding in right hand. The bag was opened. On opening it was smelt and found that it was a substance like charas. Thereafter, one constable was asked to get an electronic weighing scale for taking the weight of the solid substance. When the recovered rectangular pieces were weighed on the electronic weighing scale then 1 Kg 17 grams of the substance was recovered. When the documents pertaining to the recovered charas were asked for, the apprehended person did not show them. Thereafter, the offence under Section 8/21 of the NDPS Act was explained to that person and he was arrested by the police and the recovered charas was seized. From the recovered substance, in the presence of the accused, 9 grams were taken out and were sealed in a white cloth. An arrest memo was prepared at the site on which the applicant signed. A recovery memo was also prepared, a copy of which was given to the applicant.

18. The contention of the learned counsel for the applicant is that the applicant has been falsely implicated in the case and the recovered contraband was planted on him. It is contended that the applicant has serious enmity with one Smt. Guddi Devi who is the mother of a leader of the ruling political party at Gorakhpur. That leader professes to be close to the Chief Minister of the State. A suit between the aforesaid Smt. Guddi Devi and the father of the applicant being O.S. No. 882 of 1992 is pending in the court of Additional Civil Judge (Junior Division) F.T.C., Gorakhpur. In view of this enmity another police case being case crime no. 123 of 2019 was got registered on fake and trumped up charges against the applicant as well as others for allegedly indulging in public gambling and the applicant is on bail in that case. It is alleged that in case crime no. 123 of 2019, the applicant has been falsely implicated at the behest of one Sandeep Kumar who is the son of Smt. Guddi Devi. It is contended that the wife of the applicant, Smt. Sunita Gupta had lodged a complaint against Sandeep and his associates on 23.10.2019 for "Jan Sunwai" before the Senior Superintendent of Police, Gorakhpur. It is contended that in the present case the applicant is absolutely innocent and has not committed any crime nor has he indulged in trafficking of any narcotic drug. No independent witness of the alleged recovery is there even though the alleged incident occurred in a heavily populated area.

19. Learned counsel for the applicant has referred to the statement of the first informant and the statement of the Sub-Inspector and the constable which have been enclosed as Annexure No. 2 and 3 to the affidavit to contend that the arrest of the applicant was admittedly done at 4:10 PM in the afternoon in broad daylight. The statements of the police personnel themselves reveal that at the time of recovery and arrest of the applicant several members of the public were standing around. Learned counsel has referred to the site plan prepared by the police which is enclosed as Annexure No. 4 to the affidavit in an attempt to demonstrate that in a crowded area in broad day light, the applicant has been shown standing on the roadside holding 1 Kg 17 grams of charas in his right hand in a plastic bag. It is contended that the presence of the applicant at that point of time holding onto 1Kg 17 grams of charas is highly improbable and unbelievable. The consent for taking the physical search of the applicant which is not in the hand writing of the applicant, was taken by forcing him to sign on a blank sheet of paper. However, learned counsel has fairly conceded that he is not pressing this application on the ground of non-compliance of Section 50 of the NDPS Act as the applicant was alleged to have been holding on to a packet of charas in his right hand and not concealed in his clothes. It is contended that since, in the case of Sujit Tiwari, the Supreme Court granted bail, imposing stringent conditions, where a massive quantity of heroin was recovered, this Court may also grant bail in this case with stringent conditions. It is finally contended that if the applicant is enlarged on bail, he will not abscond or tamper with the evidence nor intimidate the witnesses and is ready to furnish reliable sureties to the satisfaction of the court concerned.

20. Shri Nagendra Kumar Srivastava, learned A.G.A. on the other hand while opposing the bail application, he has referred to the judgements of the Supreme Court in Satpal Singh Vs. State of Punjab20, Union of India Vs. Ram Samujh and others6 and Union of India Vs. Shri Shiv Shanker Kesari4. It is his contention that the amount recovered from the possession of the applicant is above the commercial quantity and as such the rigour of Section 37(1)(b)(ii) would be applicable in the present case. He states that a perusal of the FIR reveals that the applicant is guilty of the offence and, given his criminal history, is likely to commit offence while on bail. The charge-sheet has been filed on 12.01.2020.

21. The case of Satpal Singh20, referred to by the learned A.G.A. is essentially a case arising out of proceedings under Section 438 of the Cr.P.C having its own set of facts that would not apply in the present case. The other cases referred to by the learned A.G.A. have already been discussed above.

22. Perusal of the FIR and statements recorded of the informant and other policemen, site plan of the place of occurrence as well as the order dated 4.1.2020 passed by the Incharge Additional Sessions Judge, reveal that an amount of 1 Kilogram and 17 grams of charas was allegedly recovered from the applicant who is stated to have been carrying in his right hand in a bag. The commercial quantity of charas is 1 Kg. The contention of the learned counsel for the applicant that the presence of the applicant at that point of time holding on to the narcotic substance being highly improbable and unbelievable, is wholly a factual issue and thus is a matter to be considered during trial. No finding can be recorded by the Court with regard to allegations of motivated action by the police in framing the applicant at the stage of bail given the facts and material on record of the present case. While considering the broad probabilities, given the documents on record, it is not possible for this Court to record its satisfaction that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the applicant is not guilty of the offence and that he is not likely to commit any offence while on bail.

23. The judgement of the Supreme Court in the matter of Sujit Tiwari19, that has been relied upon by the learned counsel for the applicant, cannot be of any assistance to the applicant as that case is based on its own unique facts, with the Supreme Court observing that the case of the appellant therein was totally different from the other accused. There is no dilution of the principles for grant of bail in such cases.

24. In view of the aforesaid facts and circumstances, this bail application is rejected at this stage.

25. It is clarified that the observations with regard to the case of the applicant, made in this order are strictly confined to the disposal of this bail application and must not be construed to have any reflection on the ultimate merits of his case.

26. Given the fact that the applicant is in jail since 25.11.2019 the trial of the case is expedited.

1. The present application under section 439 Cr.P.C. has been filed by the applicants for interim bail. The prayer made in the present application is reproduced here under:-

"This Hon'ble Court may graciously be pleased to consider this matter as imminently urgent and allow this application. It is to be noted here that the WHO has declared Coronavirus as a Public Health Emergency and has categorically stated that individuals suffering from diabetes of any kind, are at increased risk of severe illness from Coronavirus and they should be particularly stringent in following social distancing measures, including significantly limiting face to face interaction. Therefore, it is imperative that this Hon'ble Court may hear the matter and pass some interim order/grant interim bail to the applicants in Arrest Order dated 19.3.2020 issued by respondent no. 2 in furtherance of Order No. 03/117/2018-CL-II (NR) dated 21.02.2018 and Order No. 7/117/2108/CL-II dated 22.08.2019 under sections 447 and 448 of the Companies Act, 2013 or else the applicants shall suffer irreparable loss and injury which could not be compensated, as this matter rquired urgent hearing by this Hon'ble Court"

2. The present matter has been nominated to this Bench by Hon'ble The Chief Justice vide order dated 30.4.2020 and the same was heard through video conferencing and judgment/order was reserved by this Court on 1.5.2020.

3. Heard Sri Anurag Khanna, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Ms. Gunjan Jadwani, learned counsel for the applicants and Sri Gyan Prakash, learned Assistant Solicitor General of India for the respondents.

4. Pleadings between the parties have been exchanged through e-mail which are on record.

5. The brief facts of the case are that the applicants have been arrested in pursuance of the arrest order dated 19.3.2020 by the Arresting Officer, who is Assistant Director of Ministry of Corporate Affairs for the offence under sections 447 and 448 of the Companies Act, 2013 from Delhi and Mumbai respectively. Copies of grounds of arrest were also served on the applicants on 19.3.2020. In pursuance of Order No. 03/117/2018-CL-II (NR) dated 21.02.2018 and Order No. 7/117/2108/CL-II dated 22.08.2019 under sections 447 and 448 of the Companies Act, 2013 issued by the Ministry of Corporate Affairs, Government of India (hereinafter referred to as the MCA) which in exercise of power under sections 212 (1) (c) of the Companies Act, 2013 had ordered for investigation into affairs of Rotomac Global Pvt. Ltd. (hereinafter referred to as the 'RGPL') and 10 others and Frost International Ltd. (hereinafter referred to as 'F.I.L.') by the Serious Fraud Investigation Office-respondent no. 2 (hereinafter referred to as 'the SFIO') in the public interest. Pursuant to the order of MCA, Director SFIO vide Order No. SFIO/Inv./AOI/2018-19 dated 20.06.2018 had appointed a team of officers for carrying out investigation into the affairs of the Company. The applicant no. 1 is the Director and CEO of M/s F.I.L. and applicant no. 2 is the Managing Director of F.I.L.

6. The applicants before approaching this Court for interim bail have approached the Apex Court due to present pandemic and spread of Covid-19 (Corona Virus) due to which working of all the Courts were suspended in the State and filed Writ Petition (Crl.) No. 126 of 2020 for seeking following relief:-

"Pass a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus or any other appropriate writ for seeking of immediate release of the petitioners in light of the threat posed to the life and personal liberty of the petitioners in light of the Covid-19."

7. The Apex Court on 1.4.2020 was pleased to dispose of the said writ petition and directed the applicants to approach High Court by filing bail applications thus, the applicants have filed the present bail application before this Court seeking interim bail.

8. Learned counsel for the applicants submits that applicant no. 1 is suffering from Type-II diabetes and is also asthmatic patient and suffered from frequent asthmatic attack and he is required to take insulin injection as well as other medicines for asthma to maintain his health. So far as applicant no. 2 is concerned, he is Senior citizen aged about 63 years and is also Type-II diabetic patient suffering from ill health for a long time. Further he is overweight and has a diminished lung capacity and he is also required to take insulin injection as well as other medicine in order to maintain his health. It has been vehemently argued by learned counsel for the applicants that due to Covid-19, the life of the applicants is under great threat and particularly when they are also suffering from the disease of diabetes and asthma and there are increased risk of severe suffering from Corona Virus and they should be particularly stringent in following social distancing measures including significantly limiting face to face interaction. He submitted that the applicants are presently confined in District Jail, Kanpur Nagar which is over crowded and due to large number of persons in the said jail, the inmates are highly suspected to come into contact of Covid-19 (Novel Corona Virus). He submitted that the Apex Court taking suo motu cognizance of the threat to prisoners of various prisons in India, into the light of Corona Virus, on 16.3.2020 passed an order in Suo Motu Writ Petition (Civil) No. 1 of 2020 and thereafter passed an order in the said petition on 23.3.2020 for releasing the inmates of jail directing the respective States/Union Territories to constitute a high power committee and consider the release of prisoners, who have been convicted or under trial for the offence for which prescribed punishment are about 7 years or less, with or without fine and the prisoners has been convicted for lesser number of years than the maximum. Learned counsel for the applicants has placed reliance on the order of the Delhi High Court in the case of Arvind Yadav vs. N.C.T. Delhi being numbered as Bail Application No. 778 of 2020 where the Delhi High Court vide order dated 22.4.2020 was pleased to grant interim bail to the accused, who was involved under the N.D.P.S. Act, 1985 considering the lock down due to Covid-19. He also placed reliance on another judgment of the Delhi High Court in the case of Babulal vs. N.C.T. Delhi in Crl. Appeal No. 291 of 2020 by which the Delhi High Court vide order dated 20.4.2020 was pleased to grant interim suspension of sentence to the appellant, who was sentenced for heinous crimes under the POCSO Act, considering the "unprecedented circumstances of a public health emergency that prevail today and the consequent need to decongest prisons for overall medical safety of all the prisoners...".

9. Learned counsel for the applicants further placed reliance on an order passed by Lucknow Bench of this Court in Crl. Misc. Bail Application No. 2013 of 2020 Subhash Chandra Agarwal vs. State of U.P. passed on 30.4.2020 in which interim bail has been granted to the accused in the said case for the offence under sections 419, 420, 467, 468, 471 I.P.C. He also submitted that the investigation of the present case is pending since June, 2018 and the applicants have been co-operating in the investigation being conducted by the SIFO. He submitted that applicant no. 1, who had gone to New Delhi for the purpose of interrogation in the present case on 19.3.2020, was detained and arrested by the Arresting Officer whereas applicant no. 2 was arrested from Mumbai in the present case. He further pointed out that since the date when the applicants were arrested and were lodged in Kanpur District Jail, the Investigating Officer has not visited in jail for the purpose of investigation and the allegation against the applicants is that they committed fraud in the affairs of 11 Companies and have further not furnished documents to the Investigating Officer, is not correct as the applicants have supplied voluminous documents to the respondent no. 2. There would not be any fruitful purpose to detain them in jail as till date no complaint has been filed by respondent no. 2 against them for offences under sections 447, 448 the Companies Act, 2013. They have no flight risk. They are ready to abide by the conditions which may be imposed by this Court.

10. Per contra, Sri Gyan Prakash, learned Assistant Solicitor General of India appearing for the respondents has submitted that the applicants were arrested on 19.3.2020 and they being the Directors/Controllers, used the corporate identities of the respective Companies of Rotomac Group, i.e., Rotomac Global Pvt. Ltd., Rotomac Exports Pvt. Ltd., Crown Alba Writing Instruments Pvt. Ltd, Kothari Foods & Fragrances Pvt. Limited, Mohan Steels Ltd. and Frost International Ltd. to deceive the Public Financial Institutions/Banks in obtaining credit facilities in the form of Letter of Credits and otherwise against which they defaulted to the tune of Rs. 4,000/- crores approximately in the case of RGPL and Rs. 3500/- crores approximately in the case of FIL which amounts continue as outstanding liabilities in the respective Companies. The applicant no. 1 is the Director & CEO, the signatory of the financial statements of FIL for the financial year 2013-14 to 2017-18. Applicant no. 1 along with his father applicant no. 2, who is the Managing Director were ultimate decision makers of the business of F.I.L. which have been also accepted by all the others Directors and employees of the F.I.L. whose statements were recorded under oath. They under the garb of Merchantile Trade have fraudulently induced the Banks & Public Financial Institutions to obtain credit facilities. He had knowingly falsified the books of account and the financial statements of F.I.L. deliberately concealing material facts thereby inducing BFIs to fraudulently extending credit facilities to F.I.L. which ultimately remained outstanding as account of F.I.L. became

N.P.A. The falsified financial statements signed by the applicant no. 1 for the financial year 2013-14 to 2017-18 that was filed with ROC and that submitted to BFIs depicted false MT trade receivables to the tune of approx. Rs. 3500 crore in F.I.L. as per financial statements for financial year 2017-18. He submitted that the offence committed by the applicants being the Director and the Managing Director of F.I.L., has come into light during the investigation, is of grave nature. The plea which has been taken by the applicants for granting them interim bail in view of spread of Covid-19 (Corona Virus) is only an attempt to claim a relief indirectly which they cannot seek directly in such a offence of high magnitude amounting to thousands of crores. As this stage, their release would definitely hamper the investigation and further there are strong chances of tempering with the investigation of the present case. He further argued that so far as the judgment the Apex Court passed in Suo Motu Writ Petition (Civil) No. 1 of 2020 is concerned that relates to the offence which are punishable maximum upto 7 years and the Apex Court has categorically made it clear in its order that while considering the case of the said accused persons, the nature and gravity of the offence should be also taken into account by the High Powered Committee constituted in the light of the order of the Apex Court dated 23.3.2020. In the present case the offences under Sections 447 and 448 of the Companies Act, 2103 for which the applicants have been charged is punishable maximum upto 10 years and is of grave nature, hence the applicants cannot claim any relief in pursuance of the order of the Apex Court passed in Suo Motu writ petition. Therefore, their case is distinguishable from category/class of those prisoners. He next pointed that the applicants have made an application before the Additional Session Judge/Special Judge, Court no. 9 Kanpur Nagar which is the designated Court under section 436 of the Companies Act, 2013 that they may be permitted to have home cooked food, clothes, bedding and medicine etc. which was not opposed by the respondent no. 2 S.F.I.O. and in pursuance thereof they are being given the said facilities. He further submitted that the applicants are also being given their regular medicines for their ailment in jail. So far as the case which have been relied upon by the learned counsel for the applicants with respect to release on interim bail by the Delhi High Court with respect to accused involved in serious offences are concerned, it was a short period for operating Bank account and taking care of mentally retarded child of the said accused. He submitted that looking into the gravity and nature of offence committed by the applicants where they have deceived the Public Financial Institutions/Banks worth thousands of crores, this Court should not exercise its discretion in grant of interim bail to the applicants and the same be rejected. Learned Assistant Solicitor General in support of his argument has relied upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Serious Fraud Investigation Office vs. Nittin Johari and another (Criminal Appeal No. 1381 of 2019, P Chidrambaram vs. Directorate of Enforcement (2019) 9 SCC 24, Y.S. Jagan Moham Reddy vs. Central Bureau of Investigation, reported in 2013 (7) SCC 439, and in Rohit Tandon vs. Directorate of Enforcement, (2018) 11 SCC 46 and State of Gujarat vs. Mohanlal Jitamalji Porwal, (1987) 2 SCC 364 in which the Court has observed that economic offences constitute a class apart and need to be visited with a different approach in the matter of bail. The economic offence having deep rooted conspiracies and involving huge loss of Public funds, needs to be viewed seriously and considered as grave offences affecting the economy of the country as a whole and thereby posing serious threat to the financial health of the Companies. The court thus observed that while granting bail, the court has to keep in mind the nature of accusations, nature of evidence in support thereof, the severity of punishment which conviction will ential, the larger interest of the public/State and other similar considerations.

11. Considered the rival submissions made by learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

12. It transpires from the record that the applicants before approaching this Court has filed Writ Petition (Crl.) No. 126 of 2020 before the Apex Court and on 1st April, 2020, the Apex Court passed the following order:-

"The above writ petitions are filed for grant of bail in favour of the petitioners in veiw of the threat posed to their lives in the light of COVID-19. Notice was issued on 27.03.2020.

Today, we are informed that the High Court of Allahabad is taking up matters which are of urgent nature. As the Writ Petitions pertain to grant of bail, we are of the opinion that the petitioners should withdraw these writ petitions to approach the High Court by filing bail applications. The High Court of Allahabad is requested to take up the bail applications at the earliest. We make it clear that we have ot heard the matters on merit.

The writ petitions are, accordingly, disposed of as withdrawn."

13. From a perusal of the aforesaid order passed by the Apex Court, it is apparent that the applicants were given liberty to approach this Court by filing bail application and the applicants in pursuance of the said order, had filed the present application under section 439 Cr.P.C. for interim bail taking into account serious threat to their lives because of the severe illness, from Corona Virus. Thus it is clear that no regular bail application has been filed by the applicants nor the same is pending before this Court or before the Special Judge, (Companies Act, 2013) at Kanpur Nagar. The applicants without moving regular bail application before this Court in the present case, have come up with a prayer only for grant of interim bail due to Covid-19 (Corona Virus) which speaks of lot of their conduct and the contention of counsel for the respondent appears to be justified to a great extent that the applicants want to seek relief indirectly which they cannot seek directly being a difficult task, realizing the nature and gravity of the offence as nothing had stopped them to file a regular bail applications before this Court on merits which this Court is also hearing showing urgency in the matters.

14. Be that as it may. The applicants have chosen to file the present bail application under sections 439 Cr.P.C. for interim bail, the Court in the interest of justice proceeds to decide the same with the prayer made therein.

15. The main thrust which has been canvassed by learned counsel for the applicants is that due to Covid-19 (Corona Virus) infection, the applicants being diabetic patients have great risk to their lives if they are kept in jail where there are much chances of they being infected by Corona Virus. The applicant no. 1 is the son of applicant no. 2 and further claims that he is also a patient of Asthma. Due to over crowding in District Jail where they are confined they cannot follow the guideline of social distancing measures, including significantly limiting face to face interaction and due to lack of medical care regarding their lives in the prevalent environment in jail, they may be released on interim bail by this Court. In this regard, the applicant's counsel have also drawn the attention of Court towards the order dated 23.3.2020 passed by the Apex Court Suo Motu in the aforesaid writ petition and also circular dated 18.3.2020 of this Court whereby the working of court below has been suspended. So far as the order dated 23.3.2020, it is evident that the Apex Court has directed each State/Union Territories to constitute a High Powered Committee to determine which class of prisoners can be released on parole or on interim bail for said period as may be thought appropriate. The Court has directed that the State/Union Territories could consider the release of the prisoners, who have been convicted or under trial for the offence which prescribed punishment upto 7 years or less, with or without fine and the prisoners, who have been convicted for lesser number of years than the maximum. The Apex Court further left it open for the High Powered Committee to determine the category of prisoners, who should be release as aforesaid, depending upon gravity and the nature of offence and other relevant factor thereto. In pursuance of the same, High Powered Committee had been constituted in the State of U.P. as has been informed by the Secretary U.P. Legal Services Authorities Lucknow vide order dated 27th March, 2020 and as per the resolution of the High Powered Committee in its meeting dated 27.3.2020 had issued certain directions regarding convicted and under trial prisoners and has resolved as follows:-

a) Convicts already on parole would get extended special parole of 08 additional weeks.

b) Convicts who have already availed 01 parole peacefully and surrendered on time will be granted afresh one-time special parole for 08 weeks.

c) Convicts who are not facing a sentence of more than 7 years shall be released on special parole for 08 weeks.

The Committee further resolved that following category of under trial prisoners (except prisoners who are Foreign Nationals) may be released on Interim Bail.

a) Under trial prisoners facing criminal cases in which maximum sentence is 07 years and presently confined in jails may be released on interim bail for 08 weeks by the Sessions Court, Additional Sessions Court or the Chief Judicial Magistrate including other Judicial Magistrates, as the case may be, on furnishing personal bond with the under taking written on the personal bond itself that he/she shall surrender before the Court after expiry of the interim bail period. Other conditions may be imposed by the Court if it thinks fit, considering the circumstances of the case.

b) The grant of interim bail may be done by visiting the jails, on alternate days, by the Sessions Judge/Additional Sessions Judge/the Chief Judicial Magistrate/other Judicial Magistrates, as the case may be, on the bail applications at the jails itself and it shall be done forthwith. For drafting bail applications, to be moved by under trial prisoners assistance and services of prison officers, jail staff, jail Para Legal Volunteers (PLVs) and Panel Lawyers empanelled with the District Legal Services Authority (DLSA) may be utilized under intimation to the Secretary, DLSA of the concerned district. For this purpose passes shall be issued to the Judges/Magistrate & Panel Lawyers during lock down period by the District Administration.

c) The Undertrial Review Committee contemplated by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Re Inhuman Conditions in 1382 prisons, (2016) 3 SCC 700, shall meet every week and take such decisions in consultation with the concerned district authority as per the said judgment.

16. From a perusal of the resolution of the said Committee, it is apparent that the Committee has resolved to release the under trial prisoners on interim bail, who are facing criminal cases in which the maximum sentence is of 7 years and presently confined in jails, for a period of eight weeks by the competent courts. Thus, the contention of Assistant Solicitor General Sri Gyan Prakash appearing on behalf of the respondents, who vehemently argued that the applicants are not entitled for interim bail as per the order passed by the Apex Court Suo Motu in the aforesaid writ petition by which a High Powered Committee has been constituted as their case is distinguishable from under trial prisoners as the offence in which the applicants have been confined in jail is punishable with a maximum sentence upto 10 years, appears to have substance. Moreover, so far as the risk of applicants being infected due to Corona Virus because of their severe illness in the lack of following strict norms of social distancing measures including face to face interaction is concerned, it has been pointed by learned Assistant Solicitor General that the applicants had moved an application before the Special Judge (Companies Act) Kanpur Nagar for providing them home cooked food, clothes, bedding and medicines etc. was not opposed by the S.F.I.O. on account of which the same are being provided to them and the said fact has not been denied by learned counsel for the applicants but he has submitted that the said facilities is not adequate for the applicants to run the risk of their lives as the present interim bail application has been filed only on the ground of risk to life of the applicants because of their illness and coming in contact with Covid-19 (Corona Virus) infected persons. The main thrust of the argument of learned counsel for the applicants was only on the said issue though he tried to argue on the merits of the case in short stating that the Central Government has ordered for investigation by Serious Fraud Investigation Officer through its Director-respondent no. 2 by its order dated 21.2.2018 and 22.8.2019 respectively as is apparent from the grounds of arrest which has been enclosed along with the present application but the same has yet not been concluded by the Investigating Officer nor report has been submitted to the Central Government by it, hence no fruitful purpose would be served if the applicants are being detained in jail as no investigation is taking place and no Inspector of respondent no. 2 has visited the jail for the purpose of investigation since the date, i.e., 19.3.2020 they have been detained in jail. He stated that the applicants have been co-operating in the investigation and the applicant no. 1 was arrested by the respondent no. 2 when he went for the purpose of interrogation on 19.3.2020 at Delhi and no complaint has been filed till date under the Companies Act, 2013 in pursuance of the said investigation. With respect to the argument of learned counsel for the applicants, the Court only wants to observe that from a perusal of the ground of arrest, it is apparent that applicant no. 1 Sujay Desai was the Director/CEO of F.I.L. and along with said Company, the investigation has been ordered and is underway into the affairs of Rotomac Global Pvt. Ltd. and 10 other Companies and Frost International Limited by S.F.I.O. in public interest under the order dated 21.2.2018 and 22.8.2019 respectively of Ministry of Corporate Affairs, Government of India and applicant no. 2 Uday J. Desai was functioning as Director of Frost International Limited from 31.5.1995 onward and as Managing Director of the said Company from 29.12.2008 onward and under their direction they used Merchantile Trade for rotation of funds continuously manipulating and falsified books of account and financial statements of the Company to fraudulently inducing the Banks and Public Financial Institutions for obtaining credit facilities. As a result of fraudulent activities, the Company has defaulted against outstanding liabilities of Rs. 3578/- crores approximately to Banks and Public Financial Institutions thereby causing wrongful loss to them and their acts and omission are punishable under section 447 and 448 of the Companies Act, 2013. Learned Assistant Solicitor General appearing on behalf of the respondents through his objection filed has drawn the attention of the Court that the applicants have been arrested for the commission of offence of fraud with Public Sector Banks and Financial Institutions involving total amount of Rs. 7500/- crores approximately (Rs. 4000/- crores approximately in RGPL and Rs. 3500/- crores in F.I.L.) and the Ministry of Corporate Affairs vide order dated 21.2.2018 ordered investigation into the affairs of 11 Companies of Rotomac Group and Frost International Ltd. and during investigation, it has been revealed that the approval was taken from Ministry of Corporate Affairs to investigate the affairs of another Company, i.e., F.I.L. and Ministry of Corporate Affairs vide order dated 22.8.2019 granted the said approval.

17. Thus, taking into account the nature and gravity of the offence which shakes the conscience of the society and public at large, the investigation being still pending and there are strong apprehensions that there would be chances of tampering of evidence by the applicants, the prayer for grant of interim bail is hereby refused.

18. Accordingly, the present application for grant of interim bail to the applicants, namely, Sujay Desai and Uday J. Desai in Arrest Order dated 19.3.2020 issued by respondent no. 2 in furtherance of Order No. 03/117/2018-CL-II (NR) dated 21.02.2018 and Order No. 7/117/2108/CL-II dated 22.08.2019 under sections 447 and 448 of the Companies Act, 2013, is hereby rejected.

19. However, it is directed that the I.G. (Prison) State of U.P. Lucknow is directed to ensure that the applicants are kept safely in District Jail, Kanpur Nagar where they are stated to be confined as on date taking all necessary precautions as has been issued by the State of U.P. in the context of Corona Virus (COVID-19) particularly, if any, also with respect to prisoners detained in jail throughout the State.

20. It is further directed that the respondent no. 2 shall expedite the investigation of the present case and conclude the same at the earliest.

21. It is made clear that any observation made by this Court would not prejudice the right of the applicant for considration of his regular bail application under section 439 Cr.P.C., if any, filed before this Court or the Court below, as the case may be, as the same has been made only for the disposal of the present application.

22. Copy of this order shall be produced by the counsel for the applicants before I.G. (Prison) State of U.P. Lucknow for necessary information and follow up action. The learned Assistant Solicitor General shall also forward a copy of this order to the I.G. (Prison) State of U.P. Lucknow for its immediate follow up and compliance, forthwith.

1. The present bail application under section 439 Cr.P.C. has been filed by the applicant. The prayer made in the bail application is reproduced here under:-

"Pass an order directing the immediate release of the applicant in the case pertaining to the order dated 21.02.2018 bearing no. 03/117/2018-CL-I (NR) passed by the Central Government under section 212 of the Companies Act, 2013 directing the SFIO to investigate into the affairs of Rotomac Global Pvt. Ltd., in light of the threat posed to the life and personal liberty of the applicant because of rampant spread of Corona Virus/Covid-19 till such time that the pandemic is curtailed, on such terms and conditions as this Hon'ble Court deems fit and necessary; and pass an order to enlarge the accused applicant on interim bail in the case pertaining to the order dated 21.02.2018 bearing no. 03/117/2018-CL-I (NR) passed by the Central Government under section 212 of the Companies Act, 2013 directing the SFIO to investigate into the affairs of Rotomac Global Pvt. Ltd. till disposal of the bail application moved by the applicant on such terms and conditions as are deemed fit and proper in the circumstances of the case and in the interest of justice as well;"

2. The present matter has been nominated to this Bench by Hon'ble The Chief Justice vide order dated 30.4.2020 and the same was heard through video conferencing and judgment/order was reserved by this Court on 1.5.2020.

3. Heard Sri S.V. Raju, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Rahul Agarwal and Sri Pranjal Krishna, learned counsels for the applicant and Sri Gyan Prakash, learned Assistant Solicitor General of India appearing on behalf of the respondent.

4. Pleadings between the parties have been exchanged through e-mail which are on record.

5. The brief facts of the case are that on 21.2.2018 vide letter no. 03/117/2018-CL-I (NR) passed by the Central Government under section 212 (1) (c) of the Companies Act, 2013 (hereinafter referred as 'the Companies Act) directing the Special Fraud Investigation Office (hereinafter referred to as 'SFIO') to investigate into the affairs of Rotomac Global Pvt. Ltd. (hereinafter referred to as 'the RGPL') and 10 others and Frost International Limited (hereinafter referred to as 'FIL') in the public interest. The applicant was arrest by SFIO at New Delhi vide Arrest Order dated 19.3.2020. Thereafter, the SFIO obtained his transit remand from the court at Delhi and brought the applicant to Kanpur Nagar on 21.3.2020. Thereafter, the Additional Session Judge/Special Judge, Court No. 9, Kanpur Nagar which is the designated Court under section 436 of the Companies Act, 2013 remanded the applicant to judicial custody on 21.3.2020. A copy of the arrest order dated 19.3.2020 is annexed with the present bail application.

6. The applicant before approaching this Court for the prayers aforesaid has approached the Apex Court vide Writ Petition (Criminal) No. 125 of 2020 for grant of bail in view of the threat posed to his life in the light of Covid-19.

7. The Apex Court on 1.4.2020 was pleased to dispose of the said writ petition and directed the applicant to approach High Court by filing bail application, thus the applicant has filed the present bail application before this Court seeking bail for limited period, i.e., till such time that pandemic COVID-19 (Corona Virus) is curtailed.

8. Sri S.V. Raju, learned Senior Advocate appearing on behalf of the applicant has basically argued that in view of the rampant spread of Covid-19 (Corona Virus) the applicant may be released on bail in the present case till such time when the pandemic is curtailed and further interim bail may be granted to him till the disposal of the present bail application. He submitted that the applicant is aged about 33 years and he is having a family of which he is the sole bread earner. The applicant has the liability of septuagenarian parents, who suffer from serious medical conditions. He has also the liabilities of his five year old son and his wife. It is further stated that the applicant himself is suffering from urinary infection which is not subsidizing and increasing the blood sugar level and he was also admitted on 27.3.2020 in the jail hospital, hence there is grave and impeding threat to his life on account of his arrest in the wake of rampant spread of the Corona Virus, hence the applicant be released on this ground alone. He further pleaded in para-32 of the affidavit filed in support of the bail application that the applicant reserves liberty to file another bail application (if the need so arise, at a later stage). It is further argued by learned counsel for the applicant that the SFIO was directed vide order dated 21.2.2018 to investigate into the affairs of RGPL pursuant to the registration of F.I.R. by the C.B.I. on 18.2.2018. It is stated that the allegation made in the F.I.R. dated 18.2.2018 and the investigation being conducted by the SFIO are pari-materia. On 22.2.2018, the applicant was arrested by the CBI in pursuance of the F.I.R. dated 18.2.2018 and after his arrest, the applicant was granted bail by the Lucknow Bench of this Court vide order dated 30.11.2018 passed in Bail Application No. 3492 of 2018 copy of which is annexed as annexure-4 to the present bail application. Being aggrieved by the said bail order, the C.B.I. filed an SLP before the Apex Court being S.L.P. (Crl.) No. 5931 of 2019 titled as "State through CBI/BS & FC/ v. Rahul Kothari". The Apex Court vide order dated 22.11.2019 refused to interfere with the judgment of the High Court and dismissed the S.L.P., copy of which is also annexed as annexure-5 to the bail application. He submitted that as the applicant has already been granted bail in case crime no. RC/BD1/2018/E/0001 for the offence under sections 120-B I.P.C. read with section 420, 467, 468, 471 I.P.C. and section 13 read with section 13 (1) (d) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988, police station CBI/BS & FC/New Delhi, District Kanpur/Delhi, he is entitled to be released on bail in this case also for the offence under section 447 and 448 of the Companies Act which is punishable upto 10 years as in the case, registered by the C.B.I., in which he has been granted bail, the offences are punishable upto seven years and life imprisonment. He further submitted that the case of the applicant may be considered in the light of the judgment of the Apex Court passed in Suo Motu Writ Petition (Civil) No. 1 of 2020 wherein the Apex Court has directed the States/Union Territories to constitute a High Powered Committee to determine which class of prisoners can be released on parole or interim bail for such period as may be thought appropriate. The Apex Court further directed to consider the release of the prisoners, who have been convicted or under trial for the offence for which prescribed punishment is upto 7 years or less, with or without fine and the prisoners has been convicted for lesser number of years than the maximum. He has pointed out that the applicant before approaching this Court, has approached the Apex Court by filing S.L.P. (Crl.) No. 125 of 2020 in which the Apex Court vide order dated 1.4.2020 has given liberty to the applicant to file a bail application before this Court copy of the same is annexed as annexure-12 to the bail application, hence the applicants has approached this Court by means of filing this application for bail till the curtailment of pandemic Corona Virus (COVID-19). Learned counsel for the applicant further submits that the applicant has been co-operating with the investigation at regular intervals since 2018 and on 18.3.2018, a day prior to his arrest, he had gone to New Delhi for the purpose of interrogation and the applicant is not at flight risk as he has already surrendered his passport before the Special Judge, Anti Corruption, C.B.I. at Lucknow. He also has argued that so far as the bar contained under section 212 (6) (ii) of the Companies Act,2013 will not apply while dealing with an application for bail on medical grounds in view of the Proviso to Section 212 (6) (ii) of the Companies Act, 2013 as compared to Section 37 of the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985 (hereinafter referred to as 'the N.D.P.S. Act') as there is no such proviso under section 37 (1) (b) (11) in the N.D.P.S. Act and the applicant being a sick person, the bar does not apply on him in view of the proviso to section 212 (6) (ii) of the Companies Act, 2013, hence the applicant may be released on bail. Learned counsel for the applicant has relied upon para-22 of the judgment of the Apex Court in the case Gurucharan Singh vs. State (Delhi Administration), (1978) 1 SCC 118 and further relied on para-30 of the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Sanjay Chandra vs. CBI, (2012) 1 SCC 40 relating to grant of bail.

9. Per contra, learned Assistant Solicitor General Sri Gyan Prakash appearing on behalf of the respondent opposed the prayer made in the present application and has vehemently argued that the applicant was arrested along with two other persons for commission of offence of fraud with Public Sector Banks involving total amount of Rs. 7500/- crores approximately for the offence under sections 447, 448 of the Companies Act, 2013 which provides for maximum punishment upto ten years. The Ministry of Corporate Affairs in exercise of its power under section 212 (1) (c) of the Companies Act, 2013 vide order dated 21.2.2018 has ordered investigation in the affairs of 11 Companies of Rotomac Group. On the basis of material collected during investigation an approval was sought from the Ministry of Corporate Affairs to investigate into the affairs of another Company, i.e., Frost International Ltd. and the Ministry of Corporate Affairs vide order dated 22.8.2019 granted the said approval. The provisions contained under sections 212 (3) of the Companies Act, 2013, empowers certain category of officials of SFIO to arrest any person on the basis of material collected during investigation and after recording reasons to believe that any person is guilty of offence punishable under section 447 of the Companies Act, 2013. In exercise of the aforesaid powers granted under section 212 (3) of the Companies Act, 2013 and after recording reason to believe in this regard on the basis of material collected during investigation since 21.2.2018 qua Rotomac Group of Companies and since 22.8.2019 qua Frost International Ltd., the applicant along with two others was arrested on 19.3.2020 for the offence punishable under section 447 of the Companies Act, 2013. The applicant has been arrested after there being sufficient material which was collected and obtained by respondent on 19.3.2020 and arrest was made by the Arresting Officer after recording reason to believe and taking approval to arrest the aforesaid persons as per the prescribed rules. The applicant after being brought on transit remand was produced before the Special Judge (Companies Act) at Kanpur Nagar an application was moved by the applicant for seeking relief of interim bail/house arrest, home cooked food, bedding, clothes and medicines etc. on the ground of spread of Corona Virus (COVID-19) in pursuance of the order dated 16.3.2020 passed by the Apex Court in the aforesaid case, the Special Judge (Companies Act) rejected his prayer for interim bail/house arrest but the other prayers for home cooked food, bedding, clothes and medicines etc. was not opposed by SFIO and as such the same are being provided to the applicant while being in jail and remanded him to judicial custody. He submitted that the plea of sickness which has been taken by the applicant due to coming in contact with Corona Virus (COVID-19) infected persons, does not appeal to reason as the applicant is not such a sick person as has been argued as he is only suffering from urinary infection and making emotional argument before this Court for taking care of old parents and family though he is involved in an offence of fraud in the affairs of Company of Rotomac group which are 11 in number. So far as the argument of learned counsel for the applicant that on the instructions of SFIO, the CBI has registered an F.I.R. against the applicant for the offence in question, is absolutely incorrect and denied, as the C.B.I. has investigated into the offences other than the Companies Act, 2013 which is a Special Act. The CBI has not investigated the fraudulent affairs of Rotomac Group which consists of RGPL and 10 other Companies and FIL as has been ordered by the Ministry of Corporate Affairs. He argued that SFIO is a statutory Investigation Office established under Section 211 of the Companies Act, 2013 and in terms of Section 212 of the Companies Act, 2013 it may conduct investigation into the affairs of the Company under the order of Ministry of Corporate Affairs. Moreover, the investigation in question has been ordered by the Central Government in exercise of its power under section 212 (1) (c) of the Companies Act, 2013 in the instant case and not on the basis of registration of F.I.R. by C.B.I. He has drawn the attention of the Court towards paras-25 to 28 of the written submissions regarding denial made by respondent SFIO with respect to the averments made in para-14 of the affidavit filed in support of the bail application categorically. So far as the argument of learned counsel for the applicant with respect to the bar contained under section 212 (6) (ii) of the Companies Act will not apply while dealing with the application for bail on medical ground is concerned, it appears to be also not correct in view of the fact that the applicant is not such a sick person, who is not able to perform normal pursuits of his life as he is only suffering from urinary infection and stated to be having low blood sugar. He has drawn the attention of the Court towards the averment made in the written objection in para-32 in which it had referred to the judgment of the Supreme Court dated 12.09.2019 in the matter of S.F.I.O. v. Nittin Johari and another (Criminal Appeal No. 1381 of 2019) wherein the Apex Court has set aside order of the Delhi High Court on the said issue and remanded the matter to the High Court and thereafter the Delhi High Court rejected the bail application of the said accused as has been stated in para-34 of the written objection. Learned Assistant Solicitor General in support of his argument has relied upon the judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of Serious Fraud Investigation Office vs. Nittin Johari and another (Criminal Appeal No. 1381 of 2019, P Chidrambaram vs. Directorate of Enforcement (2019) 9 SCC 24, Y.S. Jagan Moham Reddy vs. Central Bureau of Investigation, reported in 2013 (7) SCC 439, and in Rohit Tandon vs. Directorate of Enforcement, (2018) 11 SCC 46 and State of Gujarat vs. Mohanlal Jitamalji Porwal, (1987) 2 SCC 364 in which the Court has observed that economic offences constitute a class apart and need to be visited with a different approach in the matter of bail. The economic offence having deep rooted conspiracies and involving huge loss of Public funds, needs to be viewed seriously and considered as grave offences affecting the economy of the country as a whole and thereby posing serious threat to the financial health of the companies. The court thus observed that while granting bail, the court has to keep in mind the nature of accusations, nature of evidence in support thereof, the severity of punishment which conviction will ential, the larger interest of the public/State and other similar considerations.

10. Considered the rival submissions made by learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

11. It transpires from the record that the applicant before approaching this Court has filed Writ Petition (Crl.) No. 125 of 2020 before the Apex Court and on 1st April, 2020, the Apex Court passed the following order:-

"The above writ petitions are filed for grant of bail in favour of the petitioners in veiw of the threat posed to their lives in the light of COVID-19. Notice was issued on 27.03.2020.

Today, we are informed that the High Court of Allahabad is taking up matters which are of urgent nature. As the Writ Petitions pertain to grant of bail, we are of the opinion that the petitioners should withdraw these writ petitions to approach the High Court by filing bail applications. The High Court of Allahabad is requested to take up the bail applications at the earliest. We make it clear that we have ot heard the matters on merit.

12. From a perusal of the aforesaid order passed by the Apex Court, it is apparent that the applicant was given liberty to approach this Court by filing bail application and the applicant in pursuance of the said order, had filed the present application under section 439 Cr.P.C. for immediate release on bail taking into account serious threat to his life because of the illness, from Corona Virus. Thus, it is clear that he has not moved a regular bail application under section 439 Cr.P.C. before this Court in the present case and has come with a limited prayer to immediately be released till such time that the pandemic COVID-19 (Corona Virus) is curtailed and further reserved his right to move another application (if need so arise, at a later stage) as has been averred by him in para-32 of the affidavit file in support of the bail application which speaks a lot of his conduct and the contention of learned counsel for the respondent appears to be justified to a great extent that the applicant want to seek relief indirectly which he cannot seek directly being a difficult task realizing the nature and gravity of the offence as nothing had stopped him to file a regular bail application before this Court on merits which this Court is also hearing, showing urgency in the matter.

13. Be that as it may. The applicant has chosen to file the present bail application under sections 439 Cr.P.C. for immediate release till such time that the pandemic COVID-19 (Corona Virus) is curtailed, the Court in the interest of justice proceeds to decide the same with the prayers made therein.

14. The main argument of learned counsel for the applicant is that due to Covid-19 (Corona Virus) infection, the applicants being a sick person has great risk to his life if he is kept in jail where there are much chances of he being infected by said Corona Virus. Due to over crowding in District Jail where he is confined, he cannot follow the guideline of social distancing measures, including significantly limiting face to face interaction and due to lack of medical care regarding his life in the prevalent environment in jail, he may be released immediately on bail by this Court. In this regard, the applicant's counsel has also drawn the attention of Court towards the order dated 23.3.2020 passed by the Apex Court Suo Motu in the aforesaid writ petition and also circular dated 18.3.2020 of this Court whereby the working of court below has been suspended. So far as the order dated 23.3.2020, it is evident that the Apex Court has directed each State/Union Territories to constitute a High Powered Committee to determine which class of prisoners can be released on parole or on interim bail for said period as may be thought appropriate. The Court has directed that the State/Union Territories could consider the release of the prisoners, who have been convicted or under trial for the offence which prescribed punishment upto 7 years or less, with or without fine and the prisoners, who have been convicted for lesser number of years than the maximum. The Apex Court further left it open for the High Powered Committee to determine the category of prisoners, who should be release as aforesaid, depending upon gravity and the nature of offence and other relevant factor thereto. In pursuance of the same, High Powered Committee had been constituted in the State of U.P. as has been informed by the Secretary U.P. Legal Services Authorities Lucknow vide order dated 27th March, 2020 and as per the resolution of the High Powered Committee in its meeting dated 27.3.2020 had issued certain directions regarding convicted and under trial prisoners and has resolved as follows:-

a) Convicts already on parole would get extended special parole of 08 additional weeks.

b) Convicts who have already availed 01 parole peacefully and surrendered on time will be granted afresh one-time special parole for 08 weeks.

c) Convicts who are not facing a sentence of more than 7 years shall be released on special parole for 08 weeks.

The Committee further resolved that following category of under trial prisoners (except prisoners who are Foreign Nationals) may be released on Interim Bail.

a) Under trial prisoners facing criminal cases in which maximum sentence is 07 years and presently confined in jails may be released on interim bail for 08 weeks by the Sessions Court, Additional Sessions Court or the Chief Judicial Magistrate including other Judicial Magistrates, as the case may be, on furnishing personal bond with the under taking written on the personal bond itself that he/she shall surrender before the Court after expiry of the interim bail period. Other conditions may be imposed by the Court if it thinks fit, considering the circumstances of the case.

b) The grant of interim bail may be done by visiting the jails, on alternate days, by the Sessions Judge/Additional Sessions Judge/the Chief Judicial Magistrate/other Judicial Magistrates, as the case may be, on the bail applications at the jails itself and it shall be done forthwith. For drafting bail applications, to be moved by under trial prisoners assistance and services of prison officers, jail staff, jail Para Legal Volunteers (PLVs) and Panel Lawyers empanelled with the District Legal Services Authority (DLSA) may be utilized under intimation to the Secretary, DLSA of the concerned district. For this purpose passes shall be issued to the Judges/Magistrate & Panel Lawyers during lock down period by the District Administration.

c) The Undertrial Review Committee contemplated by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Re Inhuman Conditions in 1382 prisons, (2016) 3 SCC 700, shall meet every week and take such decisions in consultation with the concerned district authority as per the said judgment.

15. From a perusal of the resolution of the said Committee, it is apparent that the Committee has resolved to release the under trial prisoners on interim bail, who are facing criminal cases in which the maximum sentence is of 7 years and presently confined in jails, for a period of eight weeks by the competent courts. Thus, the contention of Assistant Solicitor General Sri Gyan Prakash appearing on behalf of the respondent, who vehemently argued that the applicant is not entitled for bail/interim bail as per the order passed by the Apex Court Suo Motu in the aforesaid writ petition by which a High Powered Committee has been constituted as the case of the applicant is distinguishable from the under trial prisoners as the offence in which the applicant has been confined in jail is punishable with a maximum sentence upto 10 years, appears to have substance. Moreover, so far as the risk of applicant being infected due to Corona Virus because of his illness in the lack of following strict norms of social distancing measures including face to face interaction is concerned, it has been pointed by learned Assistant Solicitor General that the applicant is not such a sick person, who is not able to perform normal pursuits of his life as he is only suffering from urinary infection and stated to be having low blood sugar for which there is adequate facility of his treatment in the jail hospital and the applicant had himself admitted that he was admitted in the jail hospital on 27.3.2020. Moreover, the applicant had moved an application before the Special Judge (Companies Act) Kanpur Nagar for providing him home cooked food, clothes, bedding and medicines etc. was not opposed by the S.F.I.O. which is being provided to him and the said fact has not been denied by learned counsel for the applicant. So far as the argument of learned counsel for the applicant with respect to the fact that the applicant had already been released on bail in the F.I.R. lodged by the C.B.I. with respect to Rotomac Global Pvt. Ltd. for the offence in case crime no. RC/BD1/2018/E/0001 under sections 120-B I.P.C. read with section 420, 467, 468, 471 I.P.C. and section 13 read with section 13 (1) (d) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988 by the Lucknow Bench of this Court on 30.11.2018 against which the S.L.P. filed by the C.B.I. before the Apex Court was dismissed on 22.11.2019 is concerned, it appears from the order passed by the Lucknow Bench of this Court that the applicant, who was one of the Director of the said Company and his father Vikram Kothari was Managing Director, Ms. Sadhna Kothari, who belong to his family were involved along with other public servants, who were Bank officials and the F.I.R. was lodged by the C.B.I. was on the complaint lodged by the Bank of Baroda against RGPL which was aggrieved by some of the transactions of the Company and the officials of the Bank of Baroda in collusion with the applicant and Vikram Kothari, who is the father of the applicant, were involved in forging and fabricating letter of credit and the charge-sheet has been submitted against the applicant and his father Vikram Kothari in the said case. It appears that because of Bank of Baroda being aggrieved by some of the transactions of RGPL had individually made a complaint to C.B.I to investigate the case and the C.B.I. had registered a case on its complaint against the Company in question in which the applicant and his father was Managing Director, hence the said bail order cannot be of any help to the applicant in the present case as the investigation in the present case ordered by the Ministry of Corporate Affairs, by the Central Government in pursuance of the order passed on 21.2.2018 into the fraudulent affairs of RGPL and 10 others and F.I.L. by the SFIO is in public interest in view of Section 212 (1) (c) of the Companies Act, 2013 which is a Special Act. It appears from the grounds of arrest received by the applicant on the date of his arrest on 19.3.2020 that the applicant was found to be functioning as the Director of RGPL on 1.12.2004 and as a whole time Director on 16.8.2014 and under his direction he used Mercantile Trade for rotation of funds continuously manipulating and falsified books of account and financial statements of the Company to fraudulently inducing the banks and public financial institutions for obtaining credit facilities. As a result of fraudulent activities the Company has defaulted against outstanding liabilities of Rs. 2886/- crores approximately to banks and public financial institutions thereby causing wrongful loss to them and his act and omission are punishable under section 447 and 448 of the Companies Act, 2013. He stated that the applicant has been co-operating in the investigation and a day prior to his arrest by respondent, the applicant went for the purpose of interrogation on 19.3.2020 at Delhi and no complaint has been filed till date under the Companies Act, 2013. Learned Assistant Solicitor General appearing on behalf of the respondent through his objection filed has drawn the attention of the Court that the applicant has been arrested for the commission of offence of fraud with Public Sector Banks and Financial Institutions involving total amount of Rs. 7500/- crores approximately (Rs. 4000/- crores approximately in RGPL and Rs. 3500/- crores in F.I.L.) and the Ministry of Corporate Affairs vide order dated 21.2.2018 ordered investigation into the affairs of 11 Companies of Rotomac Group and Frost International Ltd. and during investigation, it has been revealed that the approval was taken from Ministry of Corporate Affairs to investigate the affairs of another Company, i.e., F.I.L. and Ministry of Corporate Affairs vide order dated 22.8.2019 granted the said approval. There is also a criminal antecedent of the applicant which has been registered by the C.B.I. at the instance of Bank of Baroda in which the C.B.I. has submitted charge-sheet against the applicant and his father Vikram Kothari and is pending trial before the Special Judge, Anti Corruption, CBI Court at Lucknow.

16. Thus, taking into account the nature and gravity of the offence which shakes the conscience of the society and public at large, investigation being still pending and there are strong apprehension that there would be chances of tampering of evidence by the applicant, the prayer of the applicant for grant of immediate release till such time that pandemic COVID-19 (Corona Virus) is curtailed, is hereby refused.

17. Accordingly, the prayer made in the present bail application for immediate release on bail till such time that pandemic COVID-19 (Corona Virus) is curtailed to the applicant, namely, Rahul Kothari pertaining to the Order dated 21.02.2018 issued by respondent no. 2 in furtherance of Order No. 03/117/2018-CL-II (NR) dated 21.02.2018 and Order No. 7/117/2108/CL-II (NR) dated 22.08.2019 under sections 447 read with 36 (c) and 448 of the Companies Act, 2013, is hereby rejected.

18. However, it is directed that the I.G. (Prison) State of U.P. Lucknow is directed to ensure that the applicant is kept safely in District Jail, Kanpur Nagar where he is stated to be confined as on date taking all necessary precautions as has been issued by the State of U.P. in the context of Corona Virus (COVID-19) particularly, if any, also with respect to prisoners detained in jail throughout the State.

19. It is further directed that the respondent shall expedite the investigation of the present case and conclude the same at the earliest.

20. It is made clear that any observation made by this Court would not prejudice the right of the applicant for consideration of his regular bail application under section 439 Cr.P.C., if any, filed before this Court or the Court below, as the case may be, as the same has been made only for the disposal of the present bail application.

21. Copy of this order shall be produced by the counsel for the applicants before I.G. (Prison) State of U.P. Lucknow for necessary information and follow up action. The learned Assistant Solicitor General shall also forward a copy of this order to the I.G. (Prison) State of U.P. Lucknow for its immediate follow up and compliance, forthwith.

A. Criminal Law- Prevention of Corruption Act,1988-Section 13(2)-Code of Criminal Procedure,1973-Sections 439 & Indian Penal Code,1860-Sections 409, 420, 467, 468, 471, 120B & application-rejection-applicants received brokerage amount from DHFL directly into their bank account-they failed to disclose as to how and why they have received amount into their account-trial court rightly rejected the bail of the accused person.

B. The instant case involves a scam of huge magnitude involving money of 42000 employees of the three Electricity Corporations who have invested it with a hope they would get good return. Trust of employees has been breached by conspiracy of the accused.economic offences constitute a class apart and need to be visited with a different approach in the matter of bail.

C. While granting bail, the court has to keep in mind the nature of accusations, evidence, the severity of the punishment,character and circumastances, reasonable possibility of securing the presence fo accused at trial, reasonable apprehension of the witnesses being tampered with, the larger interests of the public/state and other similar considerations.

The accused in furtherance of criminal conspiracy with malafide intention for personal gain and in violation of the relavant provisions of law, invested huge amount of two funds. Their malafide decision caused huge loss to these funds to the amount of Rs. 2267.9 crores besides interest.

The application is rejected. (E-6)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dinesh Kumar Singh, J.)

1. The present applications under Section 439 Cr.P.C. have been filed seeking bail in FIR No.540 of 2019 inititially registered under Sections 409, 420, 467, 468, 471, 120B IPC. Section 13(2) of the Prevention of Corruption Act has been added subsequently during the course of investigation.

2. On 2nd November, 2019, the aforesaid FIR came to be registered on the complaint of one I.M. Kaushal, Secretary, Trustof Uttar Pradesh Power Corporation Limited (hereinafter referred to as "U.P.P.C.L.") against one Mr. Praveen Kumar Gupta, ex-Secretary (Trust) and Mr. Sudhanshu Dwivedi, the accused-applicant in Bail No.12506 of 2019 who served U.P.P.C.L. in the capacity of Director (Finance) from June 2016 to June 2019.

3. As per the FIR, in pursuance of the implimentation of the Uttar Pradesh ElectricityReforms Transfer Scheme, 2000, the Uttar Pradesh State Electricity Board was divided on 14th January, 2000 into 3 Companies i.e. (i)Uttar Pradesh Power Corporation Limited, (ii) Uttar Pradesh Rajya Vidut Utpadan Nigam Limited, and (iii) Uttar Pradesh Hydro Power Corporation Limited. On 14th January, 2000 itself the employees working in the Uttar Pradesh State Electricity Board were assigned to the aforesaid three corporations established in pursuance of the Reform Scheme. In respect of all the employees working in these three power corporations, Uttar Pradesh State Power Sector Employees Trust was constituted on 29th April, 2000 under the provisions of the Provident Fund Act, 1952 to manage general provident fund, gratuity fund and pension fund of the employees of three electricity corporaions so consituted.

4. A Trust-deed was executed on 24th April, 2000 for creation of the Trust. As per trust deed, the aforesaid three funds namely, General Provident Fund, Gratuity Fund and Pension Fund created for the benefit of employees of three power corporations shall be called "Uttar Pradesh State Power Sector Employees General Provident Fund", "Uttar Pradesh State Power Sector Employees Gratuity Fund" and "Uttar Pradesh State Power Sector Employees Pension Fund". These funds collectively would be referred to as "Funds'.

5. As per the Trust-deed, the funds vest in Board of Trustees who shall administer the Funds in accordance with the Rules as set out in the Schedule of the Trust-deed. The First Trustees are:

(i)"Chairman cum Managing Director, U.P.P.C.L.' Chairman of the Trust;

(ii) "Chairman cum Managing Director of U.P.R.V.U.N.L.' Member; and

(iii) "Chairman cum Managing Director, U.P. Hydro Power Corporation Ltd.', Member.

6. The other Trustees are to hold office on appointment by nomination or otherwise, in the manner as provided in the Uttar Pradesh State Power Sector Employees General Provident Fund Rules, 2000.

7. Clause 7 of the Trust-deed reads as under:-

"7. That the trustees of the Board shall hold the "Funds' and the amounts accruing in Trust for the Members and beneficiaries of the said "Funds' and shall administer and apply the same in accordance with these presents and the Rules, nevertheless subject to the Provisions of the Employees' Provident Funds and Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1952 and the Schemes framed thereunder, and the Income Tax Act, 1961 and the Income Tax Rules, 1962."

8. For the management of provident fund of the employees joining the U.P.P.C.L. on 14.01.2000 or later, Uttar Pradesh Power Corporation Contributory Provident Fund Rules, 2004 were enacted and made applicable with effect from 1st April, 2004. Uttar Pradesh Power Corporation Contributory Provident Trust (hereinafter referred to as "CPF") was constituted on 25th June, 2006 under the Provident Fund Act, 1952.

9. Appropriation and the management of Provident Funds of the employees of the Uttar Pradesh State Power Sector Employees Trust and the Uttar Pradesh Corporation C.P.F. Trust was the responsibility of Secretary (Trust) and Director (Finance) U.P.P.C.L. The management and appropriation and other related actions with respect to provident funds account of the employees were to be performed by the Secretary (Trust) and Director (Finance) of both the Trusts in accordance with the directions issued by the Central Government from time to time.

10. The amount deducted from the salaries of the member employees of the Uttar Pradesh State Power Sector Employees Trust and the Uttar Pradesh Corporation Contributory Provident Fund Trust were forwarded to the Trust office by all three Corporations which then were required to be invested by the Secretary (Trust) on the approval of Director (Finance) and trustee and in accordance with the directions issued from time to time by the Board of Trustees in various approved schemes.

11. On 08.05.2013, it was resolved by the Board of Trustees of the U.P. State Power Sector Employees Trust that the amount of the General Provident Fund would be invested in term deposits of the nationalised Banks for a period of 1 to 3 years. Further, it was resolved in the meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Uttar Pradesh State Power Sector Employees Trust on 21st April, 2014 that in case there were alternative investment avenues available which were as safe as investment in the Banks and offered more assured interests, they should be presented after contemplation and, if needed then the Director (Finance) should be duly authorised to take the services of investment advisor.

12. In pursuance of the aforesaid resolutions till October, 2016, Provident Fund amounts of the two Trusts were deposited in the Nationalised Banks in term deposits accruing interest.

13. However, in the month of December, 2016 on the proposal of the then Secretary of the Trust, Mr. Praveen Kumar Gupta, after obtaining the approvals from the then Director (Finance), Mr. Sudhanshu Dwivedi and the then Managing Director, U.P.P.C.C.L., Mr. A.P. Mishra, co-accused,they started investing the G.P.F. and C.P.F. funds in the P.N.B. Housing term deposits. In the same series, the G.P.F. and C.P.F. funds were invested as term deposits by Mr. Sudhanshu Dwivedi and Mr. Praveen Kumar Gupta from March, 2017 in a private institution named Deewan Housing Finance Ltd (hereinafter referred to as "DHFL') without taking the recommendation/cognizance of M.D./Chairman and without any authority of law in illegal and mala fide manner for personal gains.

14. It is further alleged that appropriation of funds was not done in accordance with the notification dated 2nd March, 2015 issued by the Ministry of Finance, Government of India.It is further alleged that according to the aforesaid notification, the funds of non Government Provident Fund could have been invested in the unscheduled commercial banks to the maximum limit of 50%.

15. It is alleged that the forged and fabricated minutes of the meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Contributory Provident Fund allegedly held on 24th March, 2017 were prepared. In the aforresiad meeting it was allegedly resolved that "the Board of Trustees agreed to consider the investment proposals as per the government notification dated 2nd March, 2015 in the securities with higher security and high interest rates other than deposits of nationalised banks in AAA rated Companies. As per prevailing practice, further investment and the securities would be decided by Secretary (Trust) on the case to case basis with the consent/approval of Director (Finance), U.P.P.C.L. trustee.

16. It has been alleged that as per record available in the office of trust from March, 2017 to December, 2018, the then Secretary (Trust) Mr. Praveen Kumar Gupta who was in charge of both C.P.F. and G.P.F. Trust after obtaining approval from the then Director (Finance), Mr. Sudhanshu Dwivedi and transgressing the clear directives of the Government of India as contained in its notification dated 2nd March, 2015 according to which clear directions were issued that the moneys of the employees Provident Fund should not be invested in any of the institutions other than scheduled/unscheduled commercial banks, with ill intentions invested more than 50% of the amount in term deposit of DHFL, knowing well that it did not fall in the category of unscheduled commercial banks and it was an unsecured private institution.

17. It is also alleged that according to the records available, GPF contributions amounting to Rs.2631.20 crores were invested in DHFL out of which only Rs.1185.50 crores have been received by the trust office and an amount of Rs.1445.70 crores plus interest is yet to be received. Similarly, an amount of Rs.1491.5 crores of the Contributory Provident Fund was invested in the DHFL, out of which Rs.669.3 crores have been received by the office of the trust and Rs.822.2 crores plus ineterest is yet to be received.Thus,the total amount of Rs.2267.90 crores (Principal Amount) and interest is yet to be received from the DHFL.

18. It is alleged that the then Director (Finance) and the Secretary Trust by not following the directives issued by the Government of India dated 2nd March, 2015 and investing more than 50% of the amount of employees' GPF and CPF in DHFL have committed the offence of Criminal Breach of Trust.

19. Thus, allegations in sum and substance are that the accused in furtherance of criminal conspiracy with malafide intention for personal gain and in violation of the relevant provisions of law, have invested huge amount of two funds i.e. Uttar Pradesh Power Sector Employees General Provident Fund and Uttar Pradesh Power Corporation Limited Contributory Provident Fund in DHFL, a company incorporated under the Companies Act. Their malafide decision has caused huge loss to these funds to the amount of Rs.2267.9 crores (Principal Amount) besides interest. The investigation has revealed that the investments have been made in the DHFL by the accused for personal gain as they have received the huge amount from DHFL as commission for making such investments.

20. The aforesaid two trusts were created under the Employees Provident Fund and Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1952 and rules made thereunder as well as the provisions of Indian Trust Act, 1882.

21. Rule 11 of the Uttar Pradesh State Sector Employees General Provident Fund Rules 2000 which provides power and function of the secretary of the Trust reads as under:-

"(a) The Company Secretary of the UPPCL shall function as the Secretary of the Board.

(b) The Secretary will be assisted by such staff for the efficient discharge of his function as the Board may decide.

(c) The Director (Finance) of UPPCL and the Secretary of the Board shall jointly operate the accounts of the Fund."

22. Rule 22 provides investment of the Assets of the fund which reads as under:-

"22.Investment of the Assets of the Fund:

(a) The trustees shall, subject to the Provisions contained herein invest all money of the Fund, in accordance with the provisions of Section 418 of the Companies Act, 1956 and in the manner prescribed by the Central Government from time to time, in this behalf, so however, that the securities in which the money is invested shall be payable in India both in respect of capital and interest.

Provided that the investments must be in accordance with provisions laid down in the Income Tax Rules, 1982 and as may be prescribed by the RPFC.

(b) The Trustees may deposit such sums of money as are not invested in accordance with sub-rule (a) above or are required for day to day needs of the Fund in a Post Office Saving Bank Account or in any Scheduled Bank, and open account or accounts in such Bank or Banks for the purpose in the name of the fund, and such accounts shall be operated by the Director (Finance) of UPPCL and the Secretary of the Board.

(c) All investments made or to be made as aforesaid shall be held in the name of the Fund."

23. Thus, according to the aforesaid Rule 22 the money of the Fund is to be invested in accordance with the provisions of Section 418 of the Companies Act, 1956 and in the manner prescribed by the Central Government from time to time in this behalf. It is also provided that the investments must be in accordance with the provisions laid down in the Income Tax Rules, 1962 and as may be prescribed by the RPFC.

24. Similarly, some of the provisions of UPPCL Contributory Provident Fund Rules, 2004 would be apt to make note of for disposal of the present bail applications.

25. Rule 14 provides for investment of the fund amount which reads as under:-

"14.0 Investment

(i) All moneys of the Fund shall be invested expeditiously not later than the close of the month of recovery subject to such directions the Board may give from time to time. The investments shall be in the securities mentioned or referred to in clause (a) to (d) of Section 20 of the Indian Trust Act, 1882 (II of 1882), provided that such securities are payable both in respect of capital and in respect of interest in India and in such other securities as the Central Government may from time to time approve in this regard. Furthermore guidelines issued by the Ministry of Finance and Ministry of Labour regarding investment pattern shall be followed for making investment.

(ii) All expenses incurred in respect of, and loss, if any, arising from any investment shall be charged to the Fund."

26. Thus, 2004 Rules are Pari materia provisions with the 2000 rules.

27. Section 20 of the Indian Trust Act, 1982 postulates that the investment shall be made in the security satisfying clause (a) to (d) for investment of Trust money reads as under:-

"20. Investment of trust-money.--Where the trust property consists of money and cannot be applied immediately or at an early date to the purposes of the trust, the trustee is bound (subject to any direction contained in the instrument of trust) to invest the money on the following securities and on no others:--

(a)in promissory notes, debentures, stock or other securities3[of any4[State Government] or] of the5[Central Government], or of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland:6[Provided that securities, both the principal whereof and the interest whereon shall have been fully and unconditionally guaranteed by any such Government, shall be deemed, for the purposes of this clause, to be securities of such Government;

(b) in bonds, debentures and annuities7[charged or secured by the8[Parliament of the United Kingdom]9[before the 15th day of August, 1947] on the revenues of India or of the10[Governor-General in Council11] or of any Province11]:12[Provided that after the fifteenth day of February, 1916, no money shall be invested in any such annuity being a terminable annuity unless a sinking fund has been established in connection with such annuity; but nothing in this proviso shall apply to investments made before the date aforesaid;]

12[(bb)in India three and a half per cent. stock, India three per cent. stock, India two and a half per cent. stock or any other capital stock13[which before the 15th day of August, 1947, was] issued by the Secretary of State for India in Council under the authority of an Act of Parliament14[of the United Kingdom] and charged on the revenues of India;15[or which16[was] issued by the Secretary of State on behalf of the Governor-General in Council under the provisions of Part XIII of the Government of India Act, 1935];]

(c)in stock or debentures of, or shares in, railway or other companies the interest whereon shall have been guaranteed by the Secretary of State for India in Council; 15[or by the Central Government] 15[or in debentures of the Bombay 16[Provincial] Co-operative Bank Limited, the interest whereon shall have been guaranteed, by the Secretary of State for India in Council] 13[or the State Government of Bombay]; 17

(d) in debentures or other securities for money issued, under the authority of 18[any Central Act or Provincial Act or State Act], by or on behalf of any municipal body, port trust, or city improvement trust in any Presidency-town or in Rangoon Town, or by or on behalf of the trustees of the port of Karachi:] 19[Provided that after the 31st day of March, 1948, no money shall be invested in any securities issued by or on behalf of a municipal body, port trust or city improvement trust in Rangoon Town, or by or on behalf of the trustees of the port of Karachi;]

(e) on a first mortgage of immovable property situate in 20[any part of the territories to which this Act extends]: Provided that the property is not a lease hold for a term of years, and that the value of the property exceeds by one-third, or, if consisting of buildings, exceeds by one-half, the mortgage-money; 21[] 22[(ee) in units issued by the Unit Trust of India under any unit scheme made under section 21 of the Unit Trust of India Act, 1963 (52 of 1963); or]

(f) on any other security expressly authorized by the instrument of trust, 22[or by the Central Government by the notification in the Official Gazette] or by any rule which the High Court may from time to time prescribe in this behalf: Provided that, where there is a person competent to contract and entitled in possession to receive the income of the trust property for his life, or for any greater estate, no investment on any security mentioned or referred to in clauses (d), (e)

and (f) shall be made without his consent in writing."

28. Section 418 of the Companies Act, 1956 provides that the amount of provident fund shall be deposited in the post office, State Bank of India or in a Nationalised Schedule Bank. The aforesaid provision is applied to safeguard the provident fund deposits of the employees. However, it has been alleged that in clear departure from the statutory provisions, the applicant and co-accused for the purpose of earning illicit brokerage, deposited the provident funds amounts in DHFL, a private entity and such investment was completely unsafe and hazardous. As a consequence of the illegal decisions and actions of the applicant and other co-accused, Rs. 2267.90 crores (Principal Amount) and interest of the provident funds of the employees have been dishonestly misappropriated.

29. Section 418 of the Companies Act 1956 is reproduced here under:-

"418. Provisions applicable to provident funds of employees.

(1)Where a provident fund has been constituted by a company for its employees or any class of its employees, all moneys contributed to such fund (whether by the company or by the employees) or received or accruing by way of interest or otherwiseto such fund shall, within fifteen days from the date of contribution, receipt or accrual, as the case may be, either-

(i)in a post office savings bank account, or

(ii)in a special account to be opened by the company for the purpose in the State Bank of India or in a Scheduled Bank, or

(iii) where the company itself is a Scheduled Bank, in a special account to be opened by the company for the purpose either in itself or in the State Bank of India or in any other Scheduled Bank; or

(b)be invested in the securities mentioned or referred to in clauses (a) to (e) of section 20 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882 (2 of 1882).

(2)Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the rules of any provident fund to which sub- section (1) applies or in any contract between a company and its employees, no employee shall be entitled to receive, in respect of such portion of the amount to his credit in such fund as is invested in accordance with the provisions of sub- section (1), interest at a rate exceeding the rate of interest yielded by such investment.

(4)Where a1trust has been created by a company with respect to any provident fund referred to in sub- section (1), the company shall be bound to collect the contributions of the employees concerned and pay such contributions as well as its own contributions, if any, to the trustees2within fifteen days from the date of collection]; but in other respects, the obligations laid on the company by this section shall devolve on the trustees and shall be discharged by them instead of by the company."

30. Relevant portion of the notification dated 2nd March, 2015 issued by Ministry of Finance is reproduced hereunder:-

31. Heard Mr. Saurabh Shankar Srivastava and Mr.P. Chakravarty, learned counsels for the applicants, Mr. V.K Shahi, learned Additional Advocate General and Mr. Anurag Verma for the State.

32. The applicant, Sudhanshu Dwivedi was appointed as Director (Finance) of UPPCL on 30th June, 2016.In the capacity of Director (Finance) of UPPCL, he became Trustee of the aforesaid two trusts.

33. So far as accused-applicant, Sudhanshu Dwivedi is concerned, Mr.Saurabh Shankar Srivastava, learned counsel has submitted that it was largely the secretary of the trust who was also the General Manager (Finance and Accounts) of U.P.P.C.L. who in fact was looking after its day to day operations along with his assisting team. He has further submitted that initially the monies of the provident funds were invested in term deposits with the schedule Nationalised Banks. However, when better interest rates were offered by unscheduled commercial banks, they became the preferred investment avenues. After demonetisation and following economic slowdown, the term deposits with the banks started yielding much lower rates of interest and as such the Board of Trustees in the best interest of the employees, explored the new investment avenues and, therefore, it was collectively decided by the trustees that the investment can be done in the AAA rated Housing Finance Companies which were duly recognised by the National Housing Bank, a body constituted under the National Housing Bank Act, 1987 which gives due recognition to the housing finance Companies operational in India on the basis of several qualifying variables. He has further submitted that in December 2016, it was unanimously resolved by the Board of Trustees that in order to get best returns on the funds, the monies would be invested in the term deposits with Punjab National Bank Housing Company which yielded better returns than those offered by the banks.

34. The Secretary of the trust informed that better rates were offered by DHFL which was a AAA rated company and was also duly recognised by the National Housing Bank. Thereafter, an opinion was sought from all the trustees including the applicant. Learned counsel has submitted that role of the applicant was only to the extent of recommending on the financial health and viability of the DHFL. The applicant conducted an extensive research and found that the top investors of the DHFL were the variousscheduled banks including State Bank of India and many other well recognised companies and investment funds. After making such exercise, he approved DHFL for investment. It is also submitted that some dispute erupted between the DHFL and Reliance Nippon Asset Management Limited and the matter went to the Bombay High Court in Commercial Suit (Lodging) No.1034 of 2019 and, the Bombay High Court by an oral order dated 30th September, 2001 restrained the DHFL from making any payments to any of its other creditors without the leave of the Court.

35. Learned counsel for the accused-applicant has also submitted that notification of the Government of India dated 2nd March, 2015 is not applicable on the twoTrusts as they are not registered with the EPFO which regulates the Provident Funds which are registered with it and are exempted in accordance with the Employees Provident Fund and Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1952. It is further submitted that since the Trusts are not registered with EPFO, the investments done by UPPCL are to be treated as the ones essentially coming from a company and not from the trust.

36. It is further submitted that the decision to invest in the DHFL was approved by the Board of trustees in its meeting held on 22-24th April 2017 in which Mr Sanjay Agrawal, Chairman UPPCL and Trust, Mr. A.P. Mishra, Managing Director, UPPCL, Mr. Satya Prakash Pandey, Director (P & A) U.P.P.C.L.and Trustee, Mr Sudhanshu Dwivedi, the Director (Finance) and Mr. P. K. Gupta, General Manager (F & A,) Secretary (Trust) were present. It is further submitted that all these persons had signed the resolution. It is said that Sanjay Agrawal was the Chairman who signed the resolution but he has not been made the accused as he is an influential person. It is further submitted that the decision on investment was not taken with a malafide intention and, there is nothing in evidence which would connect illegal gratification/commission having been paid to the accused-applicant by DHFL in lieu of investment made. He has further submitted that he acted with due care and with bonafide intention and there is no criminality involved for which he is being prosecuted. Investments made in DHFL were for earning better rate of interest in favour of the employees and, therefore, the FIR in question has been lodged in hurried manner and , the accused applicant should be enlarged on bail.

37. In the Supplementary affidavit, it has been stated that the accused applicant had only rendered an advice on investment in DHFL and measuring its then excellent financial health, he had himself invested Rs.20 lakh of his GPF fund in the said Company. Since the proceedings under the insolvency and bankruptcy code have been initiated against the DHFL,the accused-applicant has also filed this claim before the NCLT, Bombay. In view of the aforesaid, it has been submitted that the accused-applicant did not have any malafide intention in giving consent for investment of funds in DHFL.

38. Mr. V.K. Shahi, learned Additional Advocate General has submitted that the management and investment of the GPF/PPF amount of all the 42000 employees of the Power Corporation was required to be carried out in conformity with GPF Rules, 2000, CPF Rules, 2004 and the Gazette notification of Government of India dated 2nd March, 2015. These rules specifically provide that the investment is to be made in accordance with the rules and the notifications issued by the Government of India. He, therefore, has submitted that there is no substance in the submission of the learned counsel for the accused-applicant that the Government of India notification dated 2nd March 2015 has no application in respect of the two Trusts whose money was invested in DHFL. He has further submitted that the notification dated 2nd March, 2015, spells out in detail the investment patterns, which is required to be followed and adhered to in making investments of CPF amounts. He has further submitted that investment in DHFL has been made in blatant violation of the guidelines, contained in the notification dated 2nd March, 2015 as well as GPF Rules, 2000 and CPF Rules 2004 as well as provisions of Indian Trust Act and Indian Companies Act, 1956.

39. It has been further submitted that the Director (Finance), Secretary and Managing Director of UPPCL being trustees were under duty and responsibility to invest GPF and CPF contributions of the employees safely and in accordance with law. However, for the illicit purposes of earning brokerage amount, the applicant in connivance with the Secretary, P. K. Gupta and Managing Director, A.P. Mishra invested GPF and CPF contributions of the employees in GPF and CPF Trusts illegally and unsafely invested in the shape of FDRs in DHFL, a non banking financial company.

40. It has been further submitted that the decisions regarding investment of PF amount, could have been taken only by the Board of trustees, however, in the instant case no meeting of Board of trustees was convened and on 17th December, 2016 the applicant, Mr, Praveen Kumar Gupta and A.P. Mishra co-accused took a decision for investment of provident fund amount in PNB Housing Finance. Subsequently,the investment was made in LIC Finance Company in defiance of the provision of law and stipulation. In the same series on 16th March 2017, the investments were unlawfully made in DHFL. To ratify the investments so made and in furtherance of illegal and malafide designs, allegedly a meeting of the Board of trustees was convened on 24th March, 2017 by circulation. The minutes of the said meeting were also found to be false, forged and fictitious. Mr Sanjay Agrawal, a senior IAS official has mentioned in his statement that his alleged signatures on the minutes of meeting, allegedly convened on 24th March, 2017 are forged and fictitious. In the Supplementary affidavit filed by the State, a true copy of the report of the Forensic Science Laboratory, Uttar Pradesh, Mahanagar, Lucknow in respect of the forged signature in the minutes of alleged meeting of the Board dated 24th March, 2017 has been placed on record. It has been found that the signatures of Mr Sanjay Agrawal on the minutes of the alleged meeting of the Board of Trustees held on 24.03.2017 are forged and he did not append his signatures.

41. Thus, it is submitted that only the Board of Trustees comprising of 10 members was empowered to take appropriate decisions with regard to investment of CPF and GPF amounts. However, the accused-applicant being Director (Finance),P.K. Gupta,(Secretary,Trust) and Mr. A.P. Mishra (Managing Director) of UPPCL and trustee in furtherance of criminal conspiracy and to earn illicit brokerage amount, without convening any meeting of the Board of trustees, carried out authorised and illegal investments of the provident fund amounts in clear breach and violation of the Rules and provisions of Indian Trust Act and Companies Act, Provident Funds and Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1952 and Government of India notifications.

42. It has been further submitted that the amount of brokerage was transmitted from DHFL to 14 companies including Alpine Associates, a company run and operated by one Ashish Chaudhari, a close confidant of accused, Abhinav Gupta s/o Mr. P. K. Gupta. The brokerage amount was subsequently transferred to several other firms through RTGS with the assistance of certain Chartered Accountants. The said firms in turn, for the purposes of justifying their proscribed money, made cash payments to several Chartered Accountants and the money after exchange of several hand, reached Abhinav Gupta s/o Praveen Kumar Gupta, Secretary (Trust).

43. Mr. Abhinav Gupta has stated in his statement before the investigating officer that a sum of approximately 30 crores was received as brokerage from C.A., Lalit Goyal and, the said amount was divided amongst the present applicant Director (Finance), P.K.Gupta (Secretary,Trust) and A.P. Mishra (Managing Director). A copy of the statement given by accused, Abhinav Gupta has been placed on record with the counter affidavit.

44. I have considered the submissions and the provisions of the relevant rules and the Acts carefully.

45. The accused-applicant was Director (Finance) and the trustee who was to operate the account of the trust with secretary of the Trusts. He was the person who recommended for investment in the DHFL.The investments were made on 16th March, 2017 without there being any authorisation of the Board of Trustees, but to justify the investment forged minutes of meeting allegedly held on 24th March, 2017 were prepared on which signature of the Chairman, Mr Sanjay Agrawal were forged. Statement of Abhinav Gupta s/o Praveen Kumar Gupta has prima facie disclosed that the brokerage amount of Rs.30 crores was given by DHFL for making investment and this brokerage amount was divided among three accused. The acts of commission and omission of the accused along with other co-accused have caused huge loss to the two trusts created for the welfare of poor 42000 employees of the threee electricity corporations out of their hard earnrd money.

46. The economic crime of such scale and magnitute are carefully and meticulously planned and executed. It is well settled that economic offences constitute a class apart and need to be visited with a different approach in the matter of bail. While granting bail, the court has to keep in mind the nature of accusations, magnitude and gravity of offence and nature of evidence in support of the accusations.

47. The Supreme Court in the case of Y.S. Jagan Mohan Reddy vs CBI: (2013) 7 SCC 439 in paras 34 and 35 in respect of granting bail in economic offences having deep rooted conspiracy and large public money involved has held as under:-

"34.Economic offences constitute a class apart and need to be visited with a different approach in the matter of bail. The economic offences having deep-rooted conspiracies and involving huge loss of public funds need to be viewed seriously and considered as grave offences affecting the economy of the country as a whole and thereby posing serious threat to the financial health of the country.

35.Economic offences constitute a class apart and need to be visited with a different approach in the matter of bail. The economic offences having deep-rooted conspiracies and involving huge loss of public funds need to be viewed seriously and considered as grave offences affecting the economy of the country as a whole and thereby posing serious threat to the financial health of the country."

48. In judgment rendered in the case of State of Bihar Vs. Amit Kumar (2017) 13 SCC 751, it has been held that while considering the bail involving socio-economic offences stringent parameters should be applied. Paras 8-9 of the said judgment are extracted hereunder:-

"8.A bare reading of the order impugned discloses that the High Court has not given any reasoning while granting bail. In a mechanical way, the High Court granted bail more on the fact that the accused is already in custody for a long time. When the seriousness of the offence is such the mere fact that he was in jail for however long time should not be the concern of the courts. We are not able to appreciate such a casual approach while granting bail in a case which has the effect of undermining the trust of people in the integrity of the education system in the State of Bihar.

9.We are conscious of the fact that the accused is charged with economic offences of huge magnitude and is alleged to be the kingpin/ringleader. Further, it is alleged that the respondent-accused is involved in tampering with the answer sheets by illegal means and interfering with the examination system of Bihar Intermediate Examination, 2016 and thereby securing top ranks, for his daughter and other students of Vishnu Rai College, in the said examination. During the investigation when a search team raided his place, various documents relating to property and land to the tune of Rs 2.57 crores were recovered besides Rs 20 lakhs in cash. In addition to this, allegedly a large number of written answer sheets of various students, letterheads and rubber stamps of several authorities, admit cards, illegal firearm, etc. were found which establishes a prima facie case against the respondent. The allegations against the respondent are very serious in nature, which are reflected from the excerpts of the case diary. We are also conscious of the fact that the offences alleged, if proved, may jeopardise the credibility of the education system of the State of Bihar."

49. Further, the aforesaid view has been reiterated in the case of Rohit Tandon vs Directorate of enforcement (2018) 11 SSC 46. Paras 21 and 22 of the aforesaid judgement read as under:-

"21.The consistent view taken by this Court is that economic offences having deep-rooted conspiracies and involving huge loss of public funds need to be viewed seriously and considered as grave offences affecting the economy of the country as a whole and thereby posing serious threat to the financial health of the country. Further, when attempt is made to project the proceeds of crime as untainted money and also that the allegations may not ultimately be established, but having been made, the burden of proof that the monies were not the proceeds of crime and were not, therefore, tainted shifts on the accused persons under Section 24 of the 2002 Act.

22.It is not necessary to multiply the authorities on the sweep of Section 45 of the 2002 Act which, as aforementioned, is no more res integra. The decision in*Ranjitsing Brahmajeetsing Sharmav.State of Maharashtra[Ranjitsing Brahmajeetsing Sharmav.State of Maharashtra*, (2005) 5 SCC 294 : (2005) SCC (Cri) 1057] and*State of Maharashtrav.Vishwanath Maranna Shetty[State of Maharashtrav.Vishwanath Maranna Shetty*, (2012) 10 SCC 561 : (2013) 1 SCC (Cri) 105] dealt with an analogous provision in the Maharashtra Control of Organised Crime Act, 1999. It has been expounded that the Court at the stage of considering the application for grant of bail, shall consider the question from the angle as to whether the accused was possessed of the requisite mens rea. The Court is not required to record a positive finding that the accused had not committed an offence under the Act. The Court ought to maintain a delicate balance between a judgment of acquittal and conviction and an order granting bail much before commencement of trial. The duty of the Court at this stage is not to weigh the evidence meticulously but to arrive at a finding on the basis of broad probabilities. Further, the Court is required to record a finding as to the possibility of the accused committing a crime which is an offence under the Act after grant of bail.

50. The Supreme Court in its judgement in Serious Fraud Investigation Office Vs. Nitin Johri and another, (2019) 9 SCC 165, while considering the factors to be taken into account while considering the bail involving serious economic offences in para 24-27 has held as under:-

"24.At this juncture, it must be noted that even as per Section 212(7) of the Companies Act, the limitation under Section 212(6) with respect to grant of bail is in addition to those already provided in CrPC. Thus, it is necessary to advert to the principles governing the grant of bail under Section 439 of CrPC. Specifically, heed must be paid to the stringent view taken by this Court towards grant of bail with respect of economic offences. In this regard, it is pertinent to refer to the following observations of this Court in*Y.S. Jagan Mohan Reddy[Y.S. Jagan Mohan Reddyv.CBI*, (2013) 7 SCC 439 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 552] : (SCC p. 449, paras 34-35)

"34. Economic offences constitute a class apart and need to be visited with a different approach in the matter of bail. The economic offences having deep-rooted conspiracies and involving huge loss of public funds need to be viewed seriously and considered as grave offences affecting the economy of the country as a whole and thereby posing serious threat to the financial health of the country.

35. While granting bail, the court has to keep in mind the nature of accusations, the nature of evidence in support thereof, the severity of the punishment which conviction will entail, the character of the accused, circumstances which are peculiar to the accused, reasonable possibility of securing the presence of the accused at the trial, reasonable apprehension of the witnesses being tampered with, the larger interests of the public/State and other similar considerations."

This Court has adopted this position in several decisions, including*Gautam Kunduv.Directorate of Enforcement[Gautam Kunduv.Directorate of Enforcement*, (2015) 16 SCC 1 : (2016) 3 SCC (Cri) 603] and*State of Biharv.Amit Kumar[State of Biharv.Amit Kumar*, (2017) 13 SCC 751 : (2017) 4 SCC (Cri) 771] . Thus, it is evident that the above factors must be taken into account while determining whether bail should be granted in cases involving grave economic offences.

25.As already discussed supra, it is apparent that the Special Court, while considering the bail applications filed by Respondent 1 both prior and subsequent to the filing of the investigation report and complaint, has attempted to account not only for the conditions laid down in Section 212(6) of the Companies Act, but also of the general principles governing the grant of bail.

26.In our considered opinion, the High Court in the impugned order has failed to apply even these general principles. The High Court, after referring to certain portions of the complaint to ascertain the alleged role of Respondent 1, came to the conclusion that the role attributed to him was merely that of colluding with the co-accused promoters in the commission of the offence in question. The Court referred to the principles governing the grant of bail as laid down by this Court in*Ranjitsing Brahmajeetsing Sharmav.State of Maharashtra[Ranjitsing Brahmajeetsing Sharmav.State of Maharashtra*, (2005) 5 SCC 294 : 2005 SCC (Cri) 1057] , which discusses the effect of the twin mandatory conditions pertaining to the grant of bail for offences under the Maharashtra Control of Organised Crime Act, 1999 as laid down in Section 21(4) thereof, similar to the conditions embodied in Section 212(6)(ii) of the Companies Act. However, the High Court went on to grant bail to Respondent 1 by observing that bail was justified on the "broad probabilities" of the case.

27.In our considered opinion, this vague observation demonstrates non-application of mind on the part of the Court even under Section 439 CrPC, even if we keep aside the question of satisfaction of the mandatory requirements under Section 212(6)(ii) of the Companies Act."

51. The present case involves a scam of huge magnitude involving money of 42000 employees of the Three Electricity Corporations who had invested it with a hope that they would get good return on it at the time they would need money. Trust has been breached in criminal conspiracy by the accused which has resulted huge loss to the two Trusts resultantly to the employees. The accused is an influential person. The money trail is yet to be completely discovered and, therefore, at this stage, the accused-applicant cannot be released on bail.

52. The trial court in well considered order has rejected the bail application of the accused applicant. I have not been persuaded to take a different view than taken by the trial court. In view thereof, the bail application of the accused, Sudhanshu Dwivedi is rejected.

53. So far as bail application of the accused-applicant, Vikas Chawla is concerned, as per the prosecution version, name of the accused-applicant has come into light during the course of Investigation. Role of the the accused-applicant in the offence is that of receiving brokerage amount from DHFL directly into his bank account which the accused failed to disclose/ account for as to how and why he has received the said amount into his account.

54. The accused has received huge brokerage amount of Rs.5.69 crores in his account from DHFL directly for which he has not accounted properly and satisfactorily.This is a documentary evidence. He has not been able to show anything for having any connection with DHFL or having any business relation with DHFL. The allegation against the accused-applicant is that he along with others have criminally conspired to commit the offence by receiving the said brokerage amount from the DHFL. Direct brokerage details are part of the case diary which prima facie reveals that the several times amounts were transmitted by the DHFL to several companies. The said brokerage amount is in crores. The accused company's name also find place at Serial No.4 and Serial No.14 which reveals that the brokerage amount has also been received by the company of the accused.

55. Whether the accused had knowledge of the above mentioned transactions with the DHFL or the Chartered Accountant had kept him in dark, is a matter of Investigation and evidence which would not be seen at this stage.

56. Considering the allegation and the evidence available on record and the fact that a deep rooted conspiracy involved in the present case, I do not find it to be appropriate to release the accused applicant on bail at this stage and thus, his bail application is also rejected.

Battery of lawyers headed by Sri Dileep Kumar, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Rajrshi Gupta, Manish Singh, Raj Kumar Singh Chauhan for the applicant, Sri Ravi Kiran Jain, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Swetashwa Agarwal, learned counsel for the complainant, Sri SK Pal, learned G.A., Sri Ghanshyam Kumar, learned AGA assisted by Sri Mohd. Afzal, brief holder were heard at length.

2. The pleadings between the parties have been exchanged and matter is ripe for final arguments.

3. The instant is a much discussed case in the social media/news papers which has created upheaval and turmoil in the society whereby the accused applicant Chinmayanand, Ex-Member of Parliament who once also adorned the post of Minister for internal affairs in the Government of India is suffering incarceration in jail since 20th August, 2019 in connection with Case Crime No. 0445 of 2019, P.S. Kotwali, District Shahjahanpur. The FIR of the case was initially registered by Harish Chandra Sharma, father of the alleged victim, Miss "A", on 27.08.2019 under sections 364 and 506 IPC at P.S. Kowali, District Shahjahanpur naming the applicant Swami Chanmayanand, Rector of SS Law College, Shahjahanpur as well as certain other persons. Eventually, an Special Investigating Team, constituted on the directions of the Hon'ble Apex Court, when the Hon'ble Apex Court has taken a suo moto cognizance Writ (Crl) No. 2 of 2019, entitling "In Re- MISSING OF AN LL.M. STUDENT AT SWAMI SUKHDEVANAND LAW COLLEGE (SS LAW COLLEGE), FROM SHAHJAHANPUR, U.P., vide its direction dated 02.09.2019. The aforesaid team, after collecting the evidence during investigation, submitted its report under section 173 (2) of the Code of Criminal Procdure (in short "Cr.P.C.") under sections 376-C, 354-D, 342 and 506 IPC against the sole named accused- Swami Chinmayanand alias Krishna Pal Singh and learned Magistrate took cognizance for the aforesaid offence against the accused.

4. In the FIR, lodged by Harish Chandra Sharma, father of the alleged victim, the complainant has admitted that his daughter was persuing her LL.M. Education from SS Law College, Shahjahanpur and she was residing in the hostel of the aforesaid College. He alleged therein that since 23.08.2019, the mobile telephone of the victim was switched off and through the facebook account of (Miss "A"-daughter of Harish Chand) saw certain videos and pictures uploaded by the daughter. For the first time, came to know that her daughter and some other girls were being subjected to sexual misadventures by the accused applicant and they are being extended threats for their lives by his hired goons. He further raised his eyebrows alleging therein that his daughter is being duped in hot water by the miscreants, including the named applicant. In advancement of the allegation, the complainant mentioned that the whereabouts of his daughter is not known and in distress. When he in-vainly tried to contact the accused-Chinmayanand alias Krishna Pal Singh on phone, yielded no result, her room in the hostel of the alleged victim was found locked. It was highlighted in the aforesaid FIR that the accused-applicant is a man of status, high stature and being political giant, he along with his accomplice is quite capable to spindle with the evidence and room of the victim was desired to be sealed by the authorities in front of responsible media personals.

5. Beyond the aforesaid FIR, it is quite evident that only relying upon the evidence of the facebook account and uploaded videos, father of the alleged victim has galvanized and prompted the present FIR. It appears from the text of the FIR, lodged by father that there was no direct contact between the daughter and her father. The relationship between father and the daughter seems to be quite strange as they were having no direct contacts and were alien to each other and the father was taking stock of the situation of his daughter through her facebook account.

6. During the pendency of the present bail application one more development came into fora, when the copy of another FIR was demonstrated before this Court, which was lodged on 25.08.2019 for the incident occurred on 22.08.2019 at P.S. Shahjahanpur, District Shahjanapur lodged by one Om Singh, Advocate, the legal supervisor of the Mumukshu Ashram, Shahjahanpur (said to be owned by the accused applicant- Swami Chinmayanand alias Krishna Pal Singh). In fact, a case was lodged by Om Singh on 25.08.2019 for the incident of 22.08.2019 bearing CC No. 442 of 2019 under sections 387, 507 IPC and 67 of the Information Technology (Amendment) Act 2008 against unknown holder of mobile No. 8604207465 with the allegation on the holder of above mobile, that the applicant (herein accused) received a call on his mobile no. 9415326300 from the aforesaid phone (No. 8604207465) demanding ransom of Rs. Five Crore and threatening him of defamation in the society by making certain nude videos and pictures of the accused, viral in the social network, if the aforesaid ransom demand remains unfulfilled. The gist and substance of CC No. 442 of 2019, lodged on 25.08.2019 derives that it was got registered as a contrivance only to malign the stature and status to the extent of assassination of the applicant's character.

Fortifying the aforesaid narratives of the allegations, it is contended that soon thereafter sensing some rat in the dirty ragged story, father of Miss "A"- Harish Chanda lodged CC No. 445 of 2019 on 27.08.2019 in a foxy manner and design, two days after the aforesaid FIR, enrolling applicant as accused and slapping all sort of malicious allegations upon him to reduce his high reputation into ashes. To build up mountain of his argument, learned counsel for the applicant submitted that the complainant of the aforesaid FIR, even has diced his daughter Miss "A" to win the dirty game for the sake of monetary and material gains.

7. After lodging FIR No. 0442 of 2019 against the holder of mobile phone number 8604207465, the police investigated the matter by hotly pursued accused, who were at run, who demanded the ransom amount from the applicant. This fact was also much tossed in the print and in the electronic media and the Hon'ble Apex Court took suo-moto cognizance of both the matters in Writ (Criminal) No. 2 of 2019 re: Missing of an LL.M student at Swami Shukhdevana Law College (SS Law College) from Shahjahanpur under section PIL-W on the new papers report as well as on online new portals stating therein that an LL.M student Miss "A" of the aforesaid College is missing from 24.08.2019, wherein the missing girl levelled certain allegations on the persons running the institutions in SS Law College. When the the matter was taken up for consideration by Hon'ble the Apex Court on 30.08.2019, learned counsel appearing for the petitioners informed the Court that the missing girl has been located in Rajasthan and she was enroute to Shahjahanpur. It was directed by the Court that the missing girl shall be produced within two and half hours before the Court. Thereafter on the same day at about 7.30 P.M. on 30.08.2019 the missing girl "A" appeared before the Court. She stated before the Court on camera, that prior to Raksha Bandhan, she left Shahjahanpur along with her three collegemates, who were also her "family friends". She made certain grievances against the institution as well as the management of the College, made certain apprehensions and refuted to return to her home State without meeting and conversing with her parents at Delhi. Subsequently on the suggestions of the Amicus Curiae, the registry of the Court was directed to ensure the stay Miss "A" in All India Woman's Conference "Bapnu Ghar" at Bhagwan Das Marg, New Delhi for four days the alleged victim girl was also permitted to talk to her parents on landline phone installed therein. Furthermore, relying upon the aforesaid statement of Miss "A" the Commissioner of Police, Delhi was directed to constitute a police team for escorting the parents of Miss "A" from Shahjahanpur to New Delhi to meet her. On 2nd September 2019 the case was again taken up by the Hon'ble Apex Court.

8. Sri Dileep Kumar, learned Senior Advocate appearing for the applicant pointed out that in the aforesaid statement the alleged victim girl before Hon'ble Apex Court did not even whisper of any sexual assault upon her by the applicant or any other person at Shahjahanpur, though she raised certain grievances against the institution as well as the management. It is contended by learned Senior Advocate Sri Dilip Kumar that the victim is a major girl, student of LL.M. had got fullest opportunity to share all her so-called atrocities faced by her during almost one year by the accused applicant, at least to her blood relations (parent) but astoundingly, kept mum and not only this Miss "A" also maintained her aberrant silence before the highest Court of the country. A girl, whose virginity is at stake, not uttering a single word to her own parent or before the Court regarding the alleged incident, is an astonishing conduct which speak volumes about the ingeniousness of the prosecution story.

9. Both the cases i.e. Case Crime No. 0445 of 2019 under sections 364 and 506 IPC and CIR No. 0442 of 2016 under sections 387, 507 and 67 of the Information and Technology Act were entrusted to the Special Investigation Team for investigation, lead by Shri Navin Arora (IGP, Public Grievance Cell).

10. Learned counsel for the applicant has drawn attention of the Court to the letter written by Miss "A" dated 05.09.2019 addressed to the Incharge Inspector, Lodhi Colony, South Delhi vide DD No. 42 -A wherein for the first time, after her missing report, she narrated the entire saga of outrageous criminality committed upon her since October 2018 to July 2019. The aforesaid letter is self revealing wherein she has given vivid description, giving every minutest detail of alleged atrocities and sexual advances/excesses faced by her by none other but the applicant -Swami Chinmayanand. The period of aforesaid misdeeds has been mentioned to be from October 2018 to July 2019 during which she accused the applicant to forcibly make his body massaged and perforce used to establish corporeal relationship with her. Thereafter her statement under section 161 Cr.P.C. was recorded and her Majid statement was recorded on 13.09.2019 wherein she stated that she was subjected to consistent rape during aforesaid period by the accused applicant- Chinmayanand. In the month of October 2018 during her stay in the Hostel, she was taken by the goons of the accused forcibly and forced to massage and establish sexual relationship with him. During this period, she purchased an online spy camera (spectacle fit-in with hidden camera), with which she used to record the entire distasteful episodes. Her statement recorded under section 164 Cr.P.C. on 16.09.2019, also contains almost same flavour and texture with certain modifications hither and thither. After receiving directions from the Hon'ble Apex Court, the Special Investigating Team was constituted and on 04.11.2019. The SIT, lead by Sri Navin Arora, after holding thread bear investigation and probed both the cases i.e., Case Crime Nos. 442 of 2019 and 445 of 2019 were entrusted to SIT. After having in-depth probe, the SIT submitted charge sheet and thereafter the concerned Magistrate took cognizance in both the offences against respective accused persons on different dates. The SIT after thrashing voluminous evidence in the twin cases, summarized their story, salient features unearthed therein are enumerated herein below :

Miss "A" was a regular student B.A., LL.B., in the aforesaid College and after completing the degree course, she was keen to pursue future Master's course of study by getting herself admitted in LL.M. Since her merit was too low in the admission test/graduation (LL.B.) course, she developed contacts with the applicant-Chinmayanand, who is the Rector of the aforesaid College. The applicant, using his good authority and offices, got Miss "A" admitted in the aforesaid Law College and not only this he purchased and gifted a Scooty and made its payment, through one Vivek Gupta, not only this her boarding was also arranged in the OBC hostel of the College, mother of Miss "A" was given employment in a school run by the Ashram. All these benevolence showered upon Miss "A" brought her closer to the accused applicant. Miss "A" initially was forced to go to Ashram thereafter she used to visit the Ashram of the accused as a frequent visitor, where she used to stay at with the applicant, serve the accused-applicant and not only this, she offered opportunity of sexual advancement and affinity. In the span of time Miss "A" purchased the special spectacles, referred to above, and recorded certain nude photographs/video clips while massaging the applicant. In order to black mail the accused applicant, Miss "A" in connivance with her accomplices namely, Sanjay, Sachin, Vikram and few others in the garb of the aforesaid photographs/video clips planned to demand ransom from the applicant threatening him to make those nude pictures/video of the accused-applicant viral on the social media otherwise pay ransom of Rs. Five Crores. All the accused persons on a rented car motored to Ghaziabad, Delhi, Shimla, Rajasthan and other places. Meanwhile, co-accused Sanjay somehow managed to install whatsapp application on his mobile using SIM, issued from the ID and OTP of mobile number no. 8604207465, which belonged to another person. Thereafter, using the aforesaid number, he took screenshots of the selected obscene video clips, prepared by Miss "A" and sent to accused applicant- Chinmayanand's number 9415326300, demanding ransom of Rs. Five Crores. In furtherance of the execution of the aforesaid plan, to hingle the accused applicant -Chinmayanand, on 09.08.2019 co-accused Sachin went to Chinmayanand's Mumukshu Ashram for bargaining the ransom amount in liu of the aforesaid obscene photographs/video clips and kneel him down before them.

11. To rebut the aforesaid allegations levelled against Miss "A" and her accomplices, father of Miss "A" Case Crime No. 445 of 2019, under sections 364/506 IPC was lodged at P.S. Kotwali, District Shahjahanpur against the applicant- Chinmayanad and other unknown persons of the Mumukshu Ashram.

12. Perusal of the record establishes that the applicant misused his position of stature in getting Miss "A" admitted in the LL.M. (P.G.) course. Not only this, on behalf of Miss "A" he deposited the requisite fee of her class, provided her accommodation in the hostel and part time job to her in the e-Library, the employment of the mother of Miss "A" in the Institution run by Ashram. The relationship between both the parties got deepened when Miss "A" started serving the applicant at his personal level and became a frequent visitor of applicant's Ashram.

13. What is mind boggling, disturbing and matter of concern is that a student of LL.M., i.e. Miss "A" comes into contact with the applicant, seeks and enjoys his 'patronage' and 'benevolence' as well as on her family members and in lieu of that she was said to be exploited physically by the applicant, keeps mum throughout the entire long period for almost 9-10 months. She never shared anything with anyone including her parents. On the other hand, during those dark period, on her own, purchased an spy-camera fitted goggles, from which she shot nude pictures and recorded videos of the accused, which were used by her in demanding the ransom money from the accused applicant, after blackmailing her. During the entire period of the alleged atrocities committed by the applicant, she was sharing private moments with the applicant, got her family member employed in the College and other material benefits from the applicant. There is nothing on record to show that she ever objected to or raised any protest or divulged anything adverse before the claimed incident. Therefore, it is difficult to decipher as to who has used whom ? It seems to be a matter of quid pro quo.

14. The applicant, who is aged about more than 72 years, suffering from number of ailments, who was Member of Parliament and has once adorned the post of State Minister for internal affairs in the Government of India has got himself involved in a most discreet incident and that too for a considerable period of time, as per the report of 173 (2) Cr.P.C. of the police.

15. It is derived from the record that for the first time her woos on 05.09.2019 busted out after coming in contact with her parents at Delhi, prior to this date there is not any whisper by her that the accused applicant has exploited her. She never shared the alleged nightmare faced by her during last 9-10 months with her parents or any near and dear ones.

16. Sri Ravi K. Jain, Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Swetashwa Agarwal refuted the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the applicant tooth and nail. It is submitted by Sri Jain, that a person who adorn the position of Union Minister and now Rector of group of educational institution, stoop down to this level is deplorable. He at this elderly age acted in such a shabby manner and behavior, exploited a young girl to quench his sexual lust by using his musclemen to lift her (victim) from hostel, developed affinity with her and then compelled her to massage him and then ravished her. Rebutting her question marked conduct and behavior for 9-10 months raised by the learned counsel for the applicant, it was argued that the victim was being mercilessly exploited by the applicant for 9-10 months and during the entire weeping dark period, she was at receiving end, therefore, to win over the devastating situation, she mustered the courage, stood straight and decided to take revenge by exposing the demonized character and behavior of the accused-Chinmayanand.

Adding spirit to his aforesaid argument Sri Jain relied upon the celebrated judgement of Hon'ble Apex Court passed in the case of State of U.P. Through CBI v. Amarmani Tripathi [(2005) 8 SCC 21] whereby Hon'ble the Apex Court has enumerated the factors, while considering and deciding the bail application, extract of which are reproduced herein below:

"15. It is well settled that the matters to be considered in an application for bail are (i) whether there is any prima facie or reasonable ground to believe that the accused had committed the offence; (ii) nature and gravity of the charge; (iii) severity of the punishment in the event of conviction; (iv) danger of accused absconding or fleeing if released on bail; (v) character, behaviour, means, position and standing of the accused; (vi) likelihood of the offence being repeated; (vii) reasonable apprehension of the witnesses being tampered with; and (viii) danger, of course, of justice being thwarted by grant of bail (see Prahlad Singh Bhati vs. NCT, Delhi 2001 (4) SCC 280 and Gurcharan Singh vs. State (Delhi Administration) AIR 1978 SC 179). .."

It is contended by Shri Jain, learned Senior Advocate that accused-applicant is an ex-union minister, a political giant belonging to ruling party? He is involved in the grevious offence of sexual exploitation of young girl "Miss A". Besides this, keeping in view his position standing in the society, if released on bail, it is highly likely that trial would not see its final day.

17. Before adjudicating the bail application, the Court is conscious about the "word of caution" provided by Hon'ble the Apex Court in its recent judgment in the case of Shri P. Chidambaram v. Central Bureau of Investigation in Criminal Appeal No. 1603 of 2019 [arising out of SLP (Crl) No. 9269 of 2019] along with Criminal Appeal No. 1605 of 2019 [arising out of SLP (Crl) No. 9445 of 2019] decided by the Hon'ble Apex Court, wherein Hon'ble the Supreme Court had deprecated the practice of giving any finding on the merits, while deciding the Bail Application. Paragraph 18 of the judgement in the aforesaid case is relevant in the matter, which has been enumerated herein below:

"18. In the present case, in the impugned judgment, paras (51) to (70) relate to the findings on the merits of the prosecution case. As discussed earlier, at the stage of considering the application for bail, detailed examination of the merits of the prosecution case and the merits or demerits of the materials relied upon by the prosecution, should be avoided. It is therefore, made clear that the findings of the High Court in paras (51) to (70) be construed as expression of opinion only for the purpose of refusal to grant bail and the same shall not in any way influence the trial or other proceedings."

18. On the aforesaid premises, this Court is also shunning to express its opinion on the merits of the case but the fact remains that both the referred cases has been investigated by the police thoroughly and has submitted its report under section 173 (2) Cr.P.C., charge sheet has also been filed and the learned Magistrate concerned has taken cognizance of the offences in both the cases. Besides this, the Bail Application of Miss "A" was allowed by coordinate Bench of this Court while deciding Criminal Misc. Bail Application No. 43814 of 2019 on 04.12.2019 and all the accomplices of her on different occasions, who are accused of Case Crime No. 442 of 2019.

19. In the present scenario where this Court finds that it might be a case of quid pro quo, the intriguing question arises whether the applicant be granted bail or not ? In this regard, let us examine the Bail in criminal jurisprudence by examining the celebrated judgements of Hon'ble Apex Court. In the circumstances, principles of law down in the case of Nikesh Tarachand Shah v. Union of India and another passed in Writ Petition (Criminal) No. 67 of 2017 by the Hon'ble Apex Court is flambeaus, which categorically establishes the concept of validity and lucidity for adjudication of bail to any person. For ready reference, paragraph 13 of the aforesaid judgement, is required to be enumerated below, which runs as under :

"13. What is important to learn from this history is that clause 39 of Magna Carta was subsequently extended to pre-trial imprisonment, so that persons could be enlarged on bail to secure their attendance for the ensuing trial. It may only be added that one century after the Bill of Rights, the US Constitution borrowed the language of the Bill of Rights when the principle of habeas corpus found its way into Article 1 Section 9 of the US Constitution, followed by the Eighth Amendment to the Constitution which expressly states that, "excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted."

20. Therefore, perusal of the aforesaid principles of law enunciated in the case of Nikesh Tarachand Shah (Supra) categorically establishes that seeking bail is the fundamental right of any person under law, which cannot be suspended. It is the sacrosanct duty of any court to protect life and personal liberty of any person except according to fair, just and reasonable procedure established by valid law and here the law laid down under Article 21 of the Constitution of India, which deals with lives and personal liberty of any citizen, can in no way be ignored or jeopardized in any manner.

21. Now coming nearer home, it is pertinent to mention the observation made by Hon'ble Krishna Iyer, J., in the case of Gudikanti Narasimhulu v. Public Prosecutor, High Court of Andhra Pradesh [1978 AIR 429, 1978 SCR (2) 371] wherein the Court observed that the issue of bail is one of the liberty, justice, public safety and burden of the public treasury, all of which insist that a developed jurisprudence of bail is integral to a socially sensitized judicial process. After all, personal liberty of an accused or convict is fundamental, suffering lawful eclipse only in terms of procedure established by law. The last four words of Article 21 are the life of that human right.

22. Similarly in the case of Gucharan Singh v. State (Delhi Administration)[(1978) 1 SCC 118 : 1978 SCC (Cri) 41] it was observed as below :

"There cannot be an inexorable formula in the matter of granting bail. The facts and circumstances of each case will govern the exercise of judicial discretion in granting or cancelling bail."

23. Apart of all the aforesaid citations, referred to above, this Court, while adjudicating the instant bail matter, is more focussing on the principles laid down by Hon'ble the Apex Court in the case of Shri P.Chidambaram (Supra) wherein the Court has described well settled principles with regard to the facts and circumstances of each case and the factors, which are to be essentially considered while adjudicating bail application of any applicant. For ready reference, relevant paragraphs 22 and 23 of the aforesaid judgment are enumerated herein below :

"22. The jurisdiction to grant bail has to be exercised on the basis of the well-settled principles having regard to the facts and circumstances of each case. The following factors are to be taken into consideration while considering an application for bail:- (i) the nature of accusation and the severity of the punishment in the case of conviction and the nature of the materials relied upon by the prosecution; (ii) reasonable apprehension of tampering with the witnesses or apprehension of threat to the complainant or the witnesses; (iii) reasonable possibility of securing the presence of the accused at the time of trial or the likelihood of his abscondence; (iv) character behaviour and standing of the accused and the circumstances which are peculiar to the accused; (v) larger interest of the public or the State and similar other considerations (vide Prahlad Singh Bhati v. NCT, Delhi and another (2001) 4 SCC 280). There is no hard and fast rule regarding grant or refusal to grant bail. Each case has to be considered on the facts and circumstances of each case and on its own merits. The discretion of the court has to be exercised judiciously and not in an arbitrary manner."

24. The aforesaid essential ingredients with regards to the facts and circumstances as well as the factors, emanating therein, are the alma mater for consideration of any bail application lying before this Court.

25. Though, learned counsel for the informant has tried to establish that there was a conspiracy hatched by the applicant against Miss "A" and the conspiracy has given birth to the FIR mentioning therein the ransom and blackmailing of the accused by Miss "A" and her accomplices, therefore, the application for bail of the accused application is liable to be rejected.

26. Sri Dilip Gupta, learned Senior Advocate for the applicant has tried to fortify his argument by drawing attention of the Court towards the case of Dataram Singh v. State of U.P. and another reported in reported in AIR 2018 SC 980, specially paragraph 17, extract of which is referred to herein below :

"17. In our opinion, it is not necessary to go into the correctness or otherwise of the allegations made against the appellant. This is a matter that will, of course, be dealt with by the trial judge. However, what is important, as far as we are concerned, is that during the entire period of investigations which appear to have been spread over seven months, the appellant was not arrested by the investigating officer. Even when the appellant apprehended that he might be arrested after the charge sheet was filed against him, he was not arrested for a considerable period of time. When he approached the Allahabad High Court for quashing the FIR lodged against him, he was granted two months time to appear before the trial judge. All these facts are an indication that there was no apprehension that the appellant would abscond or would hamper the trial in any manner. That being the case, the trial judge, as well as the High Court ought to have judiciously exercised discretion and granted bail to the appellant. It is nobody's case that the appellant is a shady character and there is nothing on record to indicate that the appellant had earlier been involved in any unacceptable activity, let alone any alleged illegal activity."

27. Hon'be the Apex Court after thrashing the case of Nikesh Tarachand Shah (Supra) going back to the decision of Magna Carta. In that decision, reference was made to Gurbaksh Singh Sibbia v. State of Punjab (1980) 2 SCC 565) wherein it is observed that it was held way back in Nagendra v. King-Emperor (AIR 1924 Cal 476) that bail is not to be withheld as a punishment. Reference was also made to Emperor v. Hutchinson (AIR 1931 All 356) wherein it was observed that grant of bail is the rule and refusal is the exception. The provision for bail is therefore age-old and the liberal interpretation to the provision for bail is almost a century old, going back to colonial days.

28. However, it does not meant that bail should be granted in every case liberally rather while adjudicating any bail application, the Court must consider authentic evidence collected during investigation, available on record with humanity and compassion and if it thinks that there are possibilities of granting bail to an accused, the conditions thereof should not be so strict that it turns to be incapable to be complied with and thus making the bail order illusionary.

29. Thus taking into stock of all the facts and circumstances of the case, submissions of the learned counsel for the rival parties, discussions referred to herein above, especially the principles of law and the essential factors to be focused upon while adjudicating any bail application by Hon'ble Apex Court in the latest case of Shri P. Chidambaram v. CBI (Supra), this Court is drawing its conclusion in the instant case.

30. No doubt, the accusations leveled against the accused- Chinmayanad (who is supposed to have deep influence in the society as well in the administration because of his atomizing stature), are severe and there are reasonable apprehensions of his tampering with the evidence, which endangers the security of the presence of the rival party/s during the trial, as well as the circumstances, which are peculiar to the octogenarian accused, who is suffering from number of old age ailments, as canvassed by the learned Senior Advocate of the applicant, has further agitated that the medical evidence of Miss "A" is also unable to sufficiently indicate that she was subject to sexual exploitation for a long time. Besides this, the police after holding an indepth probe into the matter has submitted in charge sheet under sections 376 C, 354 D, 342 and 506 IPC. The maximum punishment is under section 376 C IPC, not less than five years but extend to ten years because legislation in its own wisdom has excluded this offence from the realm of 'Rape'. In this connection, it is worthwhile to point out here that the learned Magistrate has already taken cognizance of the offences and blurred chances of any tempering of evidence at this stage. It is also canvassed that accused of Case Crime No. 445 of 2019, Miss "A" was already admitted on bail in extortion matter by a coordinate Bench of this Court that there is no justifiable reason to deny the bail to the present applicant- Chinmayanad. As pointed out earlier, that both the parties crossed their limits and at this stage it is very difficult to adjudicate as to who exploited whom?? In fact, both of them used each other.

31. To the contrary it is also noteworthy there are material on record where the family members of Miss "A" were being benefited out of the solipsistic behavior of the accused applicant. It is also noticeable that there is also nothing on record that during the period of the alleged atrocities committed upon Miss "A" she made any complaint or even any whisper to her family members against the accused applicant, therefore, at this juncture, this Court draws its conclusion that it was a complete matter of quid pro quo but over a span of time the greed for extracting "more", she along with her accomplices seems to have advanced for hatching a conspiracy against the applicant and tried to black mail him for ransom, through the obscenic video clips recorded by herself.

32. It is apprehended by the complainant that the accused applicant - Swami Chinmayanad alias Krishna Pal Singh is an affluent giant robust personality of Shahjahanpur, therefore, he may infringe law of the land in any manner, he has the capacity to influence/tamper the evidence and thus fair trial in his home town i.e. Shahjahanpur may be affected. The apprehension raised by the complainant is not unfounded and this Court acknowledging the same is duty bound to give sun on the path of justice to the court below in accordance with law.

33. This Court is conscious of the fact that many times, the learned trial courts sway away be the observations of the Apex Court while adjudicating the bail orders. It is, therefore, earnestly directed that no observation of this Court in passing this order shall effect either ways by the trial court during trial. The trial court would apply its own judicial discretion and accused while adjudicating the trial of the instant case.

34. In view of the above, let the applicant-Swami Chinmayanand alias Krishna Pal Singh, be released on bail on his executing a personal bond and furnishing two heavy sureties each in the like amount to the satisfaction of the court concerned in case crime no. 0445 of 2019, under Sectrions 376-C, 354-D, 342 and 506 IPC, P.S. Kotwali, District Shahjahanpur with the following conditions:-

(i) THE APPLICANT SHALL FILE AN UNDERTAKING TO THE EFFECT THAT HE SHALL NOT SEEK ANY ADJOURNMENT ON THE DATE FIXED FOR EVIDENCE WHEN THE WITNESSES ARE PRESENT IN COURT. IN CASE OF DEFAULT OF THIS CONDITION, IT SHALL BE OPEN FOR THE TRIAL COURT TO TREAT IT AS ABUSE OF LIBERTY OF BAIL AND PASS ORDERS IN ACCORDANCE WITH LAW.

(ii) THE APPLICANT SHALL REMAIN PRESENT BEFORE THE TRIAL COURT ON EACH DATE FIXED, EITHER PERSONALLY OR THROUGH THEIR COUNSEL. IN CASE OF THEIR ABSENCE , WITHOUT SUFFICIENT CAUSE, THE TRIAL COURT MAY PROCEED AGAINST HIM UNDER SECTION 229-A IPC.

(iii) IN CASE, THE APPLICANT MISUSE THE LIBERTY OF BAIL DURING TRIAL AND IN ORDER TO SECURE HIS PRESENCE PROCLAMATION UNDER SECTION 82 CR.P.C., MAY BE ISSUED AND IF APPLICANT FAILS TO APPEAR BEFORE THE COURT ON THE DATE FIXED IN SUCH PROCLAMATION, THEN, THE TRIAL COURT SHALL INITIATE PROCEEDINGS AGAINST HIM IN ACCORDANCE WITH LAW, UNDER SECTION 174-A IPC.

(iv) THE APPLICANT SHALL REMAIN PRESENT, IN PERSON, BEFORE THE TRIAL COURT ON DATES FIXED FOR (1) OPENING OF THE CASE, (2) FRAMING OF CHARGE AND (3) RECORDING OF STATEMENT UNDER SECTION 313 CR.P.C. IF IN THE OPINION OF THE TRIAL COURT ABSENCE OF THE APPLICANTS ARE DELIBERATE OR WITHOUT SUFFICIENT CAUSE, THEN IT SHALL BE OPEN FOR THE TRIAL COURT TO TREAT SUCH DEFAULT AS ABUSE OF LIBERTY OF BAIL AND PROCEED AGAINST HIM IN ACCORDANCE WITH LAW.

(v) THE TRIAL COURT MAY MAKE ALL POSSIBLE EFFORTS/ENDEAVOUR AND TRY TO CONCLUDE THE TRIAL WITHIN A PERIOD OF ONE YEAR AFTER THE RELEASE OF THE APPLICANTS.

35. However, it is made clear that any violation of above conditions by the applicant, shall have serious repercussion on his/her bail so granted by this court and the trial court is at a liberty to cancel the bail, after recording the reasons for doing so, in the given case of any of the condition mentioned above.

36. After release of the applicant by the court of Shahjahanpur it is further directed that trial of both the aforementioned criminal cases i.e., CC No. 442 of 2019 and 445 of 2019 be transmitted to the court of corresponding jurisdiction at Lucknow from the court of the court of Shahjahanpur thereafter the court concerned at Lucknow is directed to take both the cases on priority basis, if possible on day to day basis, and adjudicate them pursuant to the aforesaid conditions, referred to above.

37. The Senior Superintendent of Police, Lucknow is directed to ensure the security and safety of Miss "A", her family members and witnesses during the entire trial period by deputing an officer to the rank of Senior Sub Inspector and armed constables.

38. With the aforesaid directions, the bail application stands allowed with the aforesaid riders.

Second Appeal No. 92 of 2020

Harihar Tiwari ...Appellant
Versus
Kshetriya Sri Gandhi Ashram, Moradabad ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellant:
Sri Ambrish Chandra Pandey, Sri Sandeep Kumar Tiwari

Counsel for the Respondent:
Sri Digvijay Singh, Sri Sudhir Kumar Singh

A. Civil Law-Civil Procedure Code – Section 100 – Substantial question of law Determination – If the question is settled then it would not be a substantial question of law – Merely because in the substantial question of law so framed in the memo of appeal involving interpretation of any particular provision of the law by itself could not be a substantial question of law. (Para 22 and 23)

B. Civil Law- U.P. Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorized Occupant) Act, 1972 – Section 2(e)(iv) and 15 – Application of the Act – Public Premises – Act would apply only in case, when a society is registered under the Societies Registration Act, 1860, the governing body whereof consists wholly of public officers or nominees of the State Government or both – Unless the governing body of the society consists of wholly of public officer or nominees of the State Government or both, it cannot be treated as a society referred to in Section 2(e) (iv) of the Act and premises whereof would not be treated as a 'public premises'. (Para 17)

1. Kiran Singh & ors. Vs. Chaman Paswan and others AIR (1954) SC 340

2. Sir Chunilal Vs. Mehta and sons Ltd Vs. Century Spinning and Manufacturing Co. Ltd. AIR (1962) SC 1314

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vivek Kumar Birla, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the defendant-appellant, who is plaintiff-appellant in the connected Second Appeal No. 92 of 2020 and Sri Digvijay Singh, learned counsel appearing for the plaintiff-respondent in the present appeal, who is defendant-respondent in the connected Second Appeal No. 92 of 2020.

2. Since, same premises in question is involved in Original Suit No. 114 of 2017 (Computer No. 101 of 2017) as well as in the Original Suit No. 9 of 2017 (Computer No. 102 of 2017) between the same parties, the same are being connected and are being decided by a common judgment.

3. Second Appeal No. 94 of 2020 has been filed for setting aside the judgment and order dated 16.10.2019 (decree dated 22.10.2019) passed by the Additional District and Session Judge, Court No. 1, Moradabad in Civil Appeal No. 30 of 2019 (Harihar Tiwari vs. Kshetriya Sri Gandhi Ashram) as well as order dated 3.4.2019 passed by the Additional J.S.C.C. / Additional Civil Judge (Senior Division) in O.S. No. 114 of 2017 (Kshetriya Sri Gandhi Ashram vs. Harihar Tiwari).

4. Second Appeal No. 92 of 2020 has been filed for setting aside the judgment and order dated 16.10.2019 (decree dated 22.10.2019) passed by the Additional District and Session Judge, Court No. 1, Moradabad in Civil Appeal No. 31 of 2019 (Harihar Tiwari vs. Kshetriya Sri Gandhi Ashram) as well as order dated 3.4.2019 (decree dated 9.4.2019) passed by the Additional J.S.C.C. / Additional Civil Judge (Senior Division) in O.S. No. 09 of 2017 (Harihar Tiwari vs. Kshetriya Sri Gandhi Ashram).

5. Original Suit No. 09 of 2017 was filed by Harihar Tiwari against Kshetriya Sri Gandhi Ashram for permanent injunction regarding the premises in question, which is in his possession as employee of the Kshetriya Sri Gandhi Ashram. Original Suit No. 114 of 2017 was filed against Harihar Tiwari by Kshetriya Sri Gandhi Ashram for mandatory injunction on the allegation that after termination of his services he is unauthorized occupant in the premises in question and therefore, decree of eviction/possession against him was prayed for.

6. Common facts are involved in both the suits. Though they were not consolidated but were decided by the judgments of the same date.

7. In the present second appeal, submission of learned counsel for the appellant is that his occupation of the premises in question was as an employee of the Kshetriya Sri Gandhi Ashram. His services were undisputedly terminated by the Management Committee on 8.7.2013 and the Assistant Registrar Firm, Society and Chits, Moradabad set aside the said order vide order dated 4.3.2014. Challenging the same Writ Petition No. 17553 of 2014 was filed by Kshetriya Sri Gandhi Ashram, wherein the interim order dated 26.3.2014 was granted staying the operation of the order dated 4.3.2014 passed by the Assistant Registrar. He submits that since writ petition is still pending, therefore, he is not unauthorized occupant and that the suit itself was not maintainable.

8. For the purpose of entertaining present appeal as well as the connected appeal learned counsel for the appellant submitted that the suit itself was not maintainable in view of the provisions of Section 15 of the U.P. Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorized Occupant) Act, 1972 (hereinafter referred to as the Act of 1972). After arguments learned counsel for the appellant admitted that infact, his suit was filed as a regular civil suit and was decided by the Civil Judge as a regular civil court and therefore, other grounds and questions relating to J.S.C.C. would not be relevant.

9. I have carefully gone through the substantial questions of law framed in the memo of appeal in both the appeals.

10. Substantial questions of law framed in both the appeals are quoted as under:-

"A. Whether both the courts below have exceeded their jurisdiction in deciding the suit/appeal which was bar under section 15 of U.P. Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorized Occupants) Act, 1972.

B. Whether the J.S.C.C. Court has erred in taking the cognizance of the suit which is barred by Article 4, Article 17, and Artical 19 of Scheduled 2 of the Provincial Small Cause Court Act, 1887.

C. Whether the lower appellate court was justified in deciding the appeal whereas no appeal lies under section 96 of C.P.C. against the judgment and decree of J.S.C.C. Courts.

D. Whether both the court below was justified in passing the order of eviction on the ground of dismissal of service which is still subjudice before this Hon'ble High Court.

E. Whether the J.S.C.C. Court erred in taking the cognizance of the suit on the ground of pecuniary jurisdiction as the valuation of suit is above 1,00,000/-."

"A. Whether both the courts below have exceeded their jurisdiction in deciding the suit/appeal which was bar under section 15 of U.P. Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorized Occupants) Act, 1972.

B. Whether the trial court below was justified in dismissing the suit without deciding the issue no. 4, regarding the jurisdiction of court, which is in the teeth of the requirement of order XX Rule 5 C.P.C.

C. Whether the lower appellate court was justified in deciding the appeal whereas no appeal lies under section 96 of C.P.C. against the judgment and decree of J.S.C.C. Courts.

D. Whether the J.S.C.C. Court has erred in taking the cognizance of the suit which is barred by Article 4, Article 17, and Artical 19 of Scheduled 2 of the Provincial Small Cause Court Act, 1887.

E. Whether both the court below was justified in passing the order of eviction on the ground of dismissal of service which is still subjudice before this Hon'ble High Court.

F. Whether the J.S.C.C. Court erred in taking the cognizance of the suit on the ground of pecuniary jurisdiction as the valuation of suit is above 1,00,000/-."

11. He submits that substantial question of law involved in the case is as to whether the suit filed by the Kshetriya Sri Gandhi Ashram was barred by Section 15 of the Act of 1972. He has placed reliance on judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Kiran Singh and others vs. Chaman Paswan and others AIR 1954 SC 340 to submit that question of jurisdiction can be raised at any point of time even if the same was not raised earlier. He submits that in case the court has no jurisdiction then the decree and judgment of the trial court or any other court not having jurisdiction would be a nallity.

12. Per contra, learned counsel for the respondent has disputed the same and submits that the suit was maintainable. He further submits that hence no substantial question of law is involved and the present second appeal is devoid of merits. He submits that Harihar Tiwari was unauthorized occupant after termination of his services and his status as on date is that of an unauthorized occupant and hence, no relief can be granted to the appellant.

13. I have considered the submissions and have perused the record.

14. The facts are not in dispute.

15. In support of his arguments of learned counsel for the appellant that a substantial question of law is involved, he has also drawn attention to Section 15 of the Act of 1972, which provides that the jurisdiction of civil court is barred in case of a public premises.

16. A reference to definition of public premises as given in the Act would, therefore, be relevant. Section 2(e) of the Act of 1972 provides for definition of public premises. Sub-section (iv) of Section 2(e) provides as under:-

"(e) "public premises" means any premises belonging to or taken on lease or requisitioned by, or on behalf of, the State Government, and includes any premises belonging to, or taken on lease by, or on behalf of-

(i) ...…
(ii) ...…
(iii)...…
(iv) any society registered under the Societies Registration Act, 1860, the governing body whereof consists, under the rules or regulations of the society, wholly of public officers or nominees of the State Government or both."

(emphasis supplied)

17. A perusal of the aforesaid definition clearly indicates that the Act would apply only in case, when a society is registered under the Societies Resigration Act, 1860, the governing body whereof consists, under the rules or regulations of the society, wholly of public officers or nominees of the State Government or both. Therefore, it is very much clear that unless the governing body of the society consists of wholly of public officer or nominees of the State Government or both, only then it can be treated as a society referred to in Section 2(e) (iv) of the Act and premises whereof would be treated as a "public premises".

18. In the present case, it is not the case of Harihar Tiwari that the society (his employer) consists of any such governing body or any such persons as given in Clause (iv) of Section 2(e) of the Act of 1972.

19. A perusal of the trial court's judgment would clearly indicates that issue no. 5 was framed in respect as to whether the court has jurisdiction to try the suit. This issue was decided against the defendant Harihar Tiwari vide order dated 27.2.2018 and was made part of the judgment.

20. A perusal of memo of 1st appeal filed before the lower appellate court clearly indicates that the said finding on issue no. 5 was not challenged and the jurisdiction of the court was thus, admitted by the appellant Harihar Tiwari.

21. Even if it is accepted that the question of jurisdiction can be challenged at any stage, this Court is of the opinion that since the society is not being alleged to be a society governing body whereof consists of wholly of public officers or nominees of the State Government or both, under such circumstances, Kshetriya Sri Gandhi Ashram cannot be treated to be a society, premises whereof can be held to be "public premises" as provided under Section 2(e) of the Act of 1972. Fact of the matter is that there was even no pleading to this effect.

22. A Constitutional Bench of 5 Judges of Hon'ble Apex Court in Sir Chunilal V. Mehta and sons Ltd vs. Century Spining and Manufacturing Co. Ltd AIR 1962 SC 1314 has considered the question 'as to what is the substantial question of law'. Various judgments of High Courts and Full Bench were considered by the Hon'ble Constitutional Bench and it was held that if the question is settled then it would not be a substantial question of law. Paragraph 6 of the aforesaid judgment is quoted as under:-

"6. We are in general agreement with the view taken by the Madras High Court and we think that while the view taken by. the Bombay High Court is rather narrow the one taken by the former High Court of Nagpur is too wide. The proper test for determining whether a question of law raised in the case is substantial would, in our opinion, be whether it is of general public importance or whether it directly and substantially affects the rights of the parties and if so whether it is either an open question in the sense that it is not finally settled by this Court or by the Privy Council or by the Federal Court or is not free from difficulty or calls for discussion of alternative views. If the question is settled by the highest Court or the general principles to be applied in determining the question are well settled and there is a mere question of applying those principles or that the plea raised is palpably absurd the question would not be a substantial question of law."(emphasis supplied)

23. Therefore, it is clear that merely because in the substantial question of law so framed in the memo of appeal involving interpretation of any particular provision of the law by itself could not be a substantial question of law.

24. In the present case, definition of the word "public premises" itseld would make it abundantly clear that in absence of any pleading or evidence on record to the effect that the defendant society was a society covered under Clause (iv) of Section 2(e) of the Act of 1972, the suit cannot be said to be barred by Section 15 of the Act of 1972.

25. In the opinion of this Court it is not a substantial question of law, which requires any interpretation by this Court in view of the law laid down by Hon'ble Apex Court in Sir Chunilal V. Mehta and sons Ltd (supra) the question framed above, even if it is treated to be a question of law, it is not open to interpretation.

26. Insofar as the substantial questions of law as framed in the memo of appeal regarding applicability of the Provincial Small Causes Court Act are concerned, it is clear that both the suits filed as regular original suits and were decided on regular civil side and not by the court as Judge, Small Causes, therefore, first appeal is maintainable under Section 96 of C.P.C. Hence, no substantial question requiring interpretation of or applicability of Provincial Small Causes Court Act, 1887 is involved in the present appeal in this regard is involved. His position has also been admitted by learned counsel for the appellant during course of arguments.

27. This Court is of the opinion that no substantial question of law is involved in the present case.

28. Both the appeals are devoid of merits and are accordingly dismissed.

CIVIL SIDE
DATED: LUCKNOW 06.03.2020

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE VIRENDRA KUMAR-II, J.

Second Appeal No. 171 of 2010

Banshraj ...Appellant
Versus
Ram Naresh & Anr. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Appellant:
Rajendra Prasad Tripathi

Counsel for the Respondents:
Nishant Srivastava, Dinesh Kr. Shukla

A. Civil law-Civil Procedure Code – Section 11 – U.P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1957 –

Section 52 and 64 – Binding effect of the order of Nyaya Panchayat – Nyaya Panchayat was not having jurisdiction to decide the dispute of civil nature of shares – Judgment of Nyaya Panchayat was not binding on the respondent on the basis of principle of res-judicata – The suit was not barred by provisions of Section 11 of the C.P.C. (Para 31, 32 and 48)

B. . Civil law- Civil Procedure Code – Order XLI, Rule 1 – Reasons for the Decision – Judgment of the appellate court has to state the reasons for the decision – The first appellate court has a defined role and its judgment should show application of mind and reflect the reasons on the basis of which it agrees with the trial court – There has to be an 'expression of opinion' in the proper sense of the said phrase. (Para 65 and 67)

C. Civil law- Civil Procedure Code – Section 96 – Concurrent Finding and Reversing Finding – Duty of the first appellate court – Appellate court has the jurisdiction to appreciate the evidence de novo while hearing the first appeal and either affirm the finding of the trial court or reverse it – If the appellate court affirms the finding, it is called 'concurrent finding of fact' whereas if the finding is reversed, it is called 'reversing finding' – Where the judgment of the lower appellate court is a judgment of reversal it is primary duty of the appellate court to consider the reasons given by the trial court and those reasons must also be reversed. (Para 75 and 78)

D. . Civil law-Civil Procedure Code – Section 100 and 103 – Second Appeal – Substantial Question of Law – Interference in question of fact – It is the intention of the legislature to limit the scope of second appeal only when a substantial question of law is involved. It never wanted the High Court to be a fact-finding court – However, it is not an absolute rule that the High Court cannot interfere in a second appeal on a question of fact – Section 103 CPC enables the High Court to consider the evidence when the same has been wrongly determined by the courts below on which a substantial question of law arises as referred to in Section 100 – When appreciation of evidence suffers from material irregularities and when there is perversity in the findings of the court which are not based on any material, the court is empowered to interfere on a question of fact as well – Held, unless and until there is absolute perversity, it would not be appropriate for the High Courts to interfere in a question of fact. (Delivered by Hon'ble Virendra Kumar-II, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Rajendra Kumar Tripathi, learned counsel for appellant ex-parte as none is responding on behalf of the respondents.

2. The present second appeal has been preferred by the appellant assailing impugned judgment and decree dated 26.3.2010 delivered by learned District Judge, Court No.-2 Gonda in Civil Appeal No. 135 of 2008 (Ram Naresh Vs. Banshraj and another) by which learned first appellate court has set aside the judgment and decree dated 12.9.2008 delivered by trial court of learned Additional Civil Judge (Jr. Div.) III, Gonda in Original Suit No. 253 of 1994 (Ram Naresh Vs. Banshraj and another).

3. The trial court had dismissed the suit of plaintiff/respondent no. 1 and first appellate court has decreed the suit of plaintiff/respondent no. 1 by setting aside impugned judgment and decree dated 12.9.2008 and held 1/3 share of plaintiff and both the defendants. It is directed by first appellate court to prepare preliminary decree accordingly.

4. It is pleaded in grounds of appeal that first appellate court has not appreciated oral and documentary evidence minutely and in correct perspective, as it was done by the trial court. It is also mentioned that disputed property was comprising of ancestral property, land purchased by means of sale deed and new Abadi. It was not appreciated by first appellate court that property purchased by means of sale deed gives rise to only purchaser and none-else.

5. Likewise first appellate court has not correctly appreciated the provisions of Uttar Pradesh Panchayat Raj Act, 1947 regarding jurisdiction of Nyay Panchayat. The findings of the first appellate court is incorrect that Nyay Panchayat was not competent to deliver judgment regarding disputed property. The plaintiff/respondent no. 1 could participate in proceedings conducted by Nyay Panchayat, but he had not opted to participate knowingly. He was bound by the decision given by Nyay Panchayat. The provisions of Section 11 of the C.P.C. applies to the proceedings of present dispute between the parties.

6. It is further pleaded that since disputed property also comprised land of New Abadi, therefore, Gram Sabha was the necessary party.

7. On the basis of aforesaid pleadings, the impugned judgment and decree dated 26.3.2010 has been sought to be set aside.

8. On 26.2.2020 present appeal was heard ex-parte and the following order was passed:-

"Heard learned counsel for the appellant ex-parte, because none is responding on behalf of respondents.

It was directed vide order dated 05.12.2019 as follows:

"List revised. Learned counsel for appellant is present. None is responding on behalf of respondents today.

On 14.11.2019 this Court has passed the following order:

"List revised. Case called out twice.

None is responding on behalf of the respondents.

Learned counsel for appellant is present.

In this case record of first appellate court and trial court has been received.

In the interest of justice, the case is adjourned.

List on 05.12.2019.

Learned counsel for respondents has to appear and argue the case on the next date of listing, otherwise this case shall be decided in accordance with law."

Learned counsel for respondents has to appear and argue the present second appeal on the next date of listing, otherwise, it shall be heard exparte.

List on 08.01.2020."

After 05.12.2019, on next date of listing i.e. 08.01.2020, 14.01.2020, 17.01.2020, 24.01.2020 and 11.02.2020, learned counsel for respondents did not appear for arguments, therefore, today ex-parte arguments of learned counsel for the appellant heard and concluded.

Judgment reserved."

9. Learned counsel for respondents has not appeared during proceedings of present appeal after 19.12.2017. On 19.12.2017 Mr. Dinesh Kumar Shukla, Advocate informed his illness on behalf of the respondents.

10. Notices issued against respondent nos. 1/1/1 and 1/1/2 were served sufficiently. In absence of respondents, the following substantial questions of law were formulated on 3.1.2018:-

1- Whether judgment given by Nayay Panchayat on the same subject matter between the same parties would have effect of resjudicata and Section-11 C.P.C is a bar for fresh trial?

2- In any suit for partition identification for disputed properties as ancestral is essential or not?

3- Where between the parties it is admitted that most of the properties have been divided, the presumption of property to be joined would not help the person who is seeking partition of the property in dispute?

4- Whether non-compliance of the provisions contained in order 41, Rule 31 by lower appellate court has resulted in prejudice to the present appellant, if so, its effect?

Thereafter the appeal was admitted.

11. Learned counsel for appellants on the basis of substantial questions of law formulated by this Court has put forth his argument on the basis of contentions made in grounds of appeal. He submitted relying on decision of this Court dated 1.9.2017 delivered in Second Appeal No. 403 of 2014 (Jagannath Vs. Savitri Devi and others) that first appellate court has not framed any point of determination and has violated the provisions of order XLI, Rule 31 of C.P.C.

12. Likewise, learned counsel for appellant relying on decision of Karnataka High Court in the case of Ambanna Vs. Ghanteappa reported in AIR 1999 Karnataka 421 (Principal Seat at Bengaluru) has submitted that if particulars of property has not been mentioned in plaint of suit for partition, then such plaint is liable to be rejected under Order VII, Rule 3 of C.P.C. The plaintiff/respondent no. 1 has not mentioned particulars like description of property in correct perspective with correct boundaries. These particulars has not been proved during course of trial of original suit. Therefore, the provisions of Order VII, Rule 3 are attracted to the contentions of plaint of present matter. Therefore, plaint instituted by the plaintiff ought to have been rejected for violation of aforesaid provisions.

13. Learned counsel for appellant has further submitted that the disputed property comprises ancestral property, the property purchased by respondent/appellant Banshraj by means of sale deed and some portion of disputed property was allotted by Gram Sabha to him. Therefore, the Land Management Committee of Village Dixit Purwa, Mauza Semara Shekhpur, Tehsil Tarabganj, District Gonda was the necessary party of present suit.

14. It is further submitted that the trial court and first appellate court has not considered and recorded the findings on issue no. 5 in correct perspective, rather both the learned courts below have not considered the issue no. 5 on the basis of contentions of written statement filed by appellant Banshraj.

15. It is also submitted that likewise, judgment delivered by Nyay Panchayat was operative as res-judicata according to provisions of Section 11 of C.P.C. The principle of res judicata was not complied with by the first appellate court and argument of learned defence counsel was discarded on this score illegally.

16. I have perused record of Original Suit No. 253 of 1994 (Ram Naresh Vs. Banshraj and another) and impugned judgment and order dated 26.3.2010 delivered by first appellate court in Civil Appeal No. 135 of 2008.

Factual matrix

17. The plaintiff/respondent no. 1 Ram Naresh instituted suit for partition before the trial court. He has contended that ancestral house is marked as अ ब स द in plaint map and Abadi land is marked by ब स य र ल, which is situated as courtyard for keeping debris, Kundaur and Khalihan. On this land trees of Eucalyptus, Mango, Neem, Mahua, Shisham and Imli are standing.

18. The plaintiff and defendants are real brothers and the disputed property is their joint property. They are living separately from 15 years ago and agricultural land was divided 10-12 years ago. The land of Abadi could not be divided. Now there was extension in family of plaintiff and there is paucity of accommodation, he is having 1/3 share in the disputed property and wants to construct separate house for his family. He requested the defendants to divide the disputed property and give him 1/3 share, but defendants refused for partition on 20.5.1994. Therefore, suit was instituted by the plaintiff.

19. Respondent no. 2 Hansraj filed his written statement 25 Ka before the trial court and pleaded that there is Kachcha house in dilapidated condition, which is inhabitant. He constructed Pakka Dalan. He has corroborated this fact that trees of aged 20 years are standing in the disputed property. Ghari, Madwa, place for debris, and Kandaur are also situated on this land. The plaintiff and defendants are having equal share in the disputed property, whereas defendants Banshraj took possession of Abadi land greater than his share. The plaintiff and defendants are residing in the disputed property from the period of their ancestors.

20. The defendant Banshraj filed his written statement Ka-15. He has pleaded that disputed property is not identifiable and plaint map is incorrect. He has further pleaded that only property marked by अ ब स द is ancestral property. He purchased property marked with ब स य र ल व by means of sale deed dated 8.7.1965 executed by Smt. Ram Dulari widow of Bindeshwari Prasad and this land is in his possession.

21. He has further pleaded that land marked with द र ल व is new Abadi, which was obtained by him on Patta executed by Land Management Committee regarding Khasra No. 1015. He has mentioned in paragraph no. 13 and 14 that trees are standing on land marked by द र ल व and ब स य र. He has further mentioned that Hansraj purchased land, which was situated on east and northern side of their ancestral house and constructed his house. The plaintiff did not purchase any land or property. He has disclosed the entire property as ancestral property incorrectly.

22. The defendant Banshraj has also relied upon decision delivered by Nyay Panchayat in the year 1980 and contended that 1/3 share was given to him in ancestral house. The remaining property was decided as his self acquired property. He has claimed that entire property was partitioned 32-35 years between the plaintiff and defendants. He has accepted that the plaintiff and defendant are real brothers. In paragraph no. 9, he has mentioned his pedigree.

23. On the basis of pleadings of both the parties, the trial court framed the following issues:-

1- क्या विवादित सम्पत्ति पक्षकारों की पैतृक सम्पत्ति है?

2- क्या विवादित सम्पत्ति में सभी पक्षकारों का 1/3 भाग है?

3- क्या विवादित भूमि अपरिच्यात्मक है?

4- क्या वाद अमूल्यांकित है एवं न्यायशुल्क कम अदा किया गया है?

5- क्या विवादित सम्पत्ति गॉव सभा की भूमि है एवं उसे आवश्यक पक्षकार न बनाये जाने के कारण वाद निरस्त होने योग्य है?

6- वादी किस अनुतोष को पाने का अधिकारी है?

(i) Whether the disputed property is ancestral property of both the parties?

(ii) Whether both the parties are having 1/3 share in the disputed property?

(iii) Whether the disputed property is not identifiable?

(iv) Whether the suit is under valued and court fee paid is deficient?

(v) Whether disputed property belongs to Land Management Committee and it is necessary party of the suit and it should be dismissed because the Land Management Committee was not arrayed as party?

(vi) To what relief plaintiff is entitled?

Substantial question of Law No. 1

24. Learned counsel for appellant has relied upon paper no. 211/53/1 (complaint), 211/53/2 (agreement), 211/54/1, 211/54/2 report submitted before the Nyay Panchayat 211-211/55/1 to 211/55/4 judgment delivered by Nyay Panchayat, which is available on record of trial court. The learned first appellate court has considered the provisions of Uttar Pradesh Panchayat Raj Act and these documents relied upon by learned defence counsel before the trial court.

25. On perusal of these documents, it reveal that Banshraj defendant no. 2/appellant submitted a complaint on 5.6.1980 for offence punishable under Section 448, 504 and 323 IPC regarding incident dated 5.6.1980 committed by Hansraj-respondent no. 2 and his wife Smt.

Savita Devi. He apprised the Nyay Panchayat that Hansraj Mishra has taken forcible possession over the Dalan and assaulted his two daughters. The plaintiff Ram Naresh/respondent no. 1 was not party to the proceedings conducted by Nyay Panchayat. On 28.6.1980 Banshraj and Hansraj executed agreement to authorize Nyay Panchayat to decide dispute between them.

26. It is relevant to mention here that DW-3 Agnu was examined on behalf of appellant as defence witness. The evidence of DW-3 was appreciated by learned first appellate court and found that he could not disclose the nature of proceedings conducted by Nyay Panchayat. He has denied that these proceedings were conducted for criminal offence, but stated that this proceeding was related to civil dispute. He was the Punch of Nyay Panchayat, even then he could not disclose the details of disputed property, regarding which, Nyay Panchayat delivered its judgment. He could not disclose this fact also that when disputed land was inspected by Nyay Panchayat. He stated this fact incorrectly, as Bashraj himself filed complaint against Hansraj and his wife. Therefore, the evidence of DW-3 was discarded by first appellate court.

27. It is relevant to mention here that learned trial court has also appreciated the evidence of DW-3 Agnu and found that he stated before the trial court that Ram Naresh instituted a case of civil nature against Banshraj before the Nyay Panchayat. He stated this fact incorrectly as Banshraj himself filed complaint against Hansraj and his wife. He has specifically stated that he was unable to disclose the details of disputed property.

28. The trial court has not recorded any specific finding about the proceedings conducted by Nyay Panchayat. Therefore, first appellate court has rightly observed that the proceedings instituted by Banshraj before the Nyay Panchayat was mainly of criminal nature and Nyay Panchayat decided the civil dispute also by composite judgment regarding criminal and civil dispute. Therefore, the details of property क ख ग घ mentioned in inspection report does not extend any benefit to the appellant that the disputed property क was ancestral property. ख was property purchased by Banshraj by means of sale deed and ग property was given by Pradhan and Consolidation Officer to him of Patta being Abadi of Gram Samaj and property घ Ghari was a joint property of plaintiff and defendants.

29. It is pertinent to mention here that neither the sale deed nor the Patta was produced during proceedings conducted by Nyay Panchayat by Banshraj. Appellant-Banshraj and respondent no. 2- Hansraj only participated before the Nyay Panchayat. Complainant/respondent no. 1-Ram Naresh was not summoned by Nyay Panchayat nor any allegation is levelled by Banshraj against him in his complaint submitted on 5.6.1980. The statement of complainant Banshraj and witnesses Ramesh Pratap Singh and Paras Nath Pandey were examined by Nyay Panchayat regarding the incident of assault and Hansraj was also examined.

30. It is mentioned in the judgment dated 10.8.1980 delivered by Nyay Panchayat that at the point of time of inspection of disputed property, the persons present on the spot had apprised; the Nyay Panchayat that Consolidation Officer and Village Head gave disputed property ग on Patta to complainant Banshraj. There was no request in complaint of Banshraj that Nyay Panchayat should also decide the shares of the parties. Therefore, Nyay Panchayat could not decide the shares of complainant-defendant regarding the disputed property mentioned in map prepared at the point of time of inspection.

31. In these circumstances, the Nyay Panchayat was not having jurisdiction to decide the dispute of civil nature of shares of complainant and defendants, because complainant Ram Naresh/respondent no. 1 was not participating during aforesaid period. Therefore, judgment dated 10.8.1980 relied upon by learned counsel for appellant was not binding on respondent no. 1/Ram Naresh on the basis of provisions of Section 11 of i.e. principle of res-judicata.

32. Learned first appellate court has considered Section 64, 52/1A of U.P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1957. Section 52 and 64 provides as follows:-

52. Offences cognizable by Nyaya Panchayats - [(1) The following offences as well as abetments of and attempts to commit such offices, if committed within the jurisdiction of a Nyaya Panchayat shall be cognizable by such Nyaya Panchayat] :

(a) offences under sections 140, 160, 172, 174, 179, 269, 277, 283, 285, 289, 290, 294, 324, 334, 341, 352, 357, 358, 374, 379, 403, 411, (where the value of the stolen or misappropriated property in cases under Sections 379, 403 and 411 does not exceed fifty rupees), 426, 428, 430, 431, 447, 448, 504, 506, 509, and 510 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860;

(b) offences under sections 24 and 26 of the Cattle Trespass Act, 1871;

(c) offences under sub-section (1) of Section 10 of the United Provinces District Board Primary Education Act, 1926;

(d) offences under Sections 3, 4, 7 and 13 of the Public Gambling Act, 1867;

(e) any other offence under aforesaid enactments or any other enactment as may, by notification in the official Gazette, be declared by the State Government to be cognizable by a Nyaya Panchayat; and

(f) any offence under this Act or any rule made there-under.

(1-A) The State Government may by order published in the Official Gazette empower any Nyaya Panchayat to take cognizance of offences under Sections 279, 286, 336 and 356 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 and may likewise withdraw any offence referred to in clauses (a) to (d) of sub-section (1) from the cognizance of Nyaya Panchayats generally or such Nyaya Panchayats as may be specified. (2) Any criminal case relating to an offence under Section 143, 145, 151 or 153 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860, pending before any court may be transferred for trial to the Nyaya Panchayat if in the opinion of such court the offence is not serious.

64. Extent of jurisdiction in civil cases - (1) Subject to the provisions of Section 66 a Nyaya Panchayat may take cognizance of any civil case of the following description if its value does not exceed one hundred rupees -

(a) a civil case for money due on contract other than a contract in respect of immovable property;

(b) a civil case for the recovery of movable property or for the value thereof;

(c) a civil case for compensation for wrongfully taking or injuring a movable property; and

(d) a civil case for damages caused by cattle trespass.

(2) The State Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, direct that the jurisdiction of any Nyaya

Panchayat shall extend to all such civil cases of the value not exceeding five hundred rupees."

33. Learned counsel for appellant has argued before first appellate court that according to Section 64 of Nyay Panchayat, Nyay Panchayat was competent to decide civil dispute of property of costs less than Rs.100/-

34. Appellant Banshraj relied upon sale deed, which was of Rs.100/-. Therefore, first appellate court has held that Nyay Panchayat was not having jurisdiction to decide civil dispute also.

35. According to Section 64 of U.P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1947, Nyay Panchayat is not competent to hear and decide the suit for partition of immovable and civil case of property valued Rs.100/- or its value, which exceed Rs.100/-. The category of cases within jurisdiction of Nyay Panchayat has been enumerated in Section 64 and civil dispute of partition of property between the parties was not entertainable by Nyay Panchayat. The Nyay Panchayat was not having jurisdiction to decide suit for partition.

36. Likewise, no notification issued by the State Government of U.P. enhancing pecuniary jurisdiction upto Rs.500/- was not produced before the trial court. The present suit was valued at Rs.3,600/-.

37. Therefore, Nyay Panchayat was not having pecuniary jurisdiction to entertain the present dispute. The Nyay Panchayat was not having jurisdiction to take cognizance of offence under Sections 379, 403 and 411 IPC, where the value of the stolen or misappropriated case property exceeded Rs.50/-. According to Section 52/1A of U.P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1957 provides also that Nyay Panchayat was not competent to decide disputed property of costs above Rs.50/-.

38. Likewise, the first appellate court has considered criminal proceedings also in light of provisions of Section 52 of U.P. Panchayat Raj Act.

39. Learned first appellate court has also recorded finding regarding sale deed dated 8.7.1965 relied upon by the appellant in light of provisions of Section 54 of Transfer of Property Act, which provides that transaction/transfer of property of costs of Rs.100/- or above could be made only by means of registered document, but sale deed paper no. Ka/52 has not been registered, therefore, no rights could be transferred by Ram Dulari wife of Bindeshwari Prasad on the basis of sale deed dated 8.7.1965 in favour of appellant Banshraj.

40. Learned first appellate court has appreciated and analysed the evidence of both the parties and found that in the year 1965 appellant and respondent were living jointly and there was no partition of agricultural land or Abadi land in the year 1965. The present original suit no. 253 of 1984 (Ram Naresh Vs. Banshraj and another) was instituted on 27.5.1994. It is pleaded in the plaint that plaintiff and defendant were living separately from 15 years ago and agricultural land was divided 10-12 years ago.

41. Therefore, the appellant was obliged to prove this fact that consideration of alleged sale deed dated 8.7.1965 was paid by his source of income and it was his self acquired property. The consideration of sale deed was not paid by the income/joint fund of both the parties.

42. Learned first appellate court has also tallied the boundaries mentioned in the sale deed with the disputed property mentioned in map of plaint and found that there was no mention of fact that on western side, property of appellant Ram Naresh was situated and ancestral property of parties was situated.

43. I have also tallied the boundaries mentioned in sale deed dated 8.7.1965 and boundaries mentioned in map of plaint and in map prepared by Amin paper no. 24/2 ग. On eastern side of sold property way along with house of Ram Deen was existed as per sale deed. On western side Ghari has been shown. On southern side Aaraji Majruba. On north side, house of Mustari was mentioned.

44. Learned first appellate court has observed that in map of plaint, the place marked ब स य र was bounded. On western side of house of appellant Ram Naresh and main door of his house was opened towards eastern side i.e. towards disputed property marked with ब स य र. Therefore, learned first appellate court has observed on the basis of boundaries mentioned in plaint map and sale deed dated 8.7.1965 that it could not be proved that disputed property marked with ब स य र was the same property, which was sold by Ram Dulari widow of Bindeshwari Prasad.

45. It is relevant to mention here that the trial court has not tried to consider the identity of disputed property mentioned in plaint map on the basis of inspection report 24 ग/1 and map 24 ग/2 prepared by Amin under orders of trial court in correct perspective, before holding that disputed property was not identifiable. It is relevant to mention here that complainant/respondent no. 1 has appended plaint map Ka15/6 of disputed property and facts mentioned in plaint map are corroborated by map 24 ग/2 prepared by Amin.

46. Therefore, finding of trial court regarding issue no. 3 that disputed property was not capable of identification was incorrect. Moreover, the trial court was obliged to appreciate the evidence of plaintiff/respondent no. 1, appellant/defendant DW-1 and respondent no. 2 DW-4 in light of map prepared by Amin 24 ग/2 and facts mentioned in plaint map. The sufficient material was available on record for consideration of trial court regarding identification of disputed property in this regard.

47. Learned first appellate court has mentioned in judgment and order dated 26.4.2010 that none of the parties argued on issue no. 3 and 4, which were framed by trial court regarding identification of disputed property and deficiency of violation of the suit and court fees. The finding recorded by the trial court on issue no. 3 is liable to be set aside as it is not recorded on the basis of material available on record.

48. On the basis of appreciation of evidence available on record, learned first appellate court has rightly recorded the finding in correct perspective regarding sale deed dated 8.7.1965 and documents relating to Nyay Panchayat relied upon by appellant Banshraj. The suit of plaintiff/respondent no. 1 was not barred by provisions of Section 11 of the C.P.C.

49. The substantial question of law no. 1 is decided against the appellant.

Substantial question of law no. 2 and 3:-

50. These substantial question of law are formulated on the basis of grounds of appeal regarding identification of disputed properties and joint property. Where between the parties, it is admitted that most of the properties have already been divided, then the presumption of property to be joint would not help the person, who is seeking partition of the property dispute?

51. The trial court after appreciation of evidence of both parties has recorded finding that disputed property was not identifiable and the plaintiff could not prove the details of disputed property, according to him, which was subject of partition.

52. On perusal of impugned judgment delivered by learned trial court, it reveal that trial court has only considered the plaint map and it has not considered map 24 ग/2 prepared by Amin of civil court. The every minute details, i.e. measurement and boundaries of disputed property has been mentioned in this map, which could be relied upon by the trial court.

53. The appellant Banshraj has specifically contended in his written statement that the disputed property marked with द र ल व related to Nai Abadi and it was given by Land Management Committee to him, by executing Patta of Khasra No. 1015. The appellant has not produced any Patta given by Consolidation Officer and Village Head to him of this property, before the proceedings conducted by Nyay Panchayat.

54. The appellant was also present on spot, when Amin inspected the disputed property under order of the trial court. Amin has submitted his report 24 ग along with map of disputed property 24 ग/2. The appellant had not stated before Amin as per report 24 ग that the property was obtained by him by means of Patta, which was included in the disputed property.

55. During course of trial also, the appellant was not able to prove his specific contention mentioned in written statement that disputed property द र ल व was part of Nai Abadi and he took it on Patta from Land Management Committee of Khasra No. 1015. No Patta was produced before the trial court also.

56. The complainant Ram Naresh PW-1 and his witnesses PW-2 Anirudh, PW-3 Kubernath and DW-5 Hansraj defendant/respondent no. 2 has proved this fact that sale deed dated 8.7.1965 relied upon by appellant Banshraj is fictitious and his contention that land of Nai Abadi on Kharsa No. 1015 was included in the disputed property, was incorrect, which was obtained by him on Patta from Land Management Committee.

57. The appellant DW-1 Banshraj was unable to prove the fact of Patta obtained by him of Khasra No. 1015 by producing it before the trial court. His witnesses DW-2 Triyugi Narain, DW-3 Agnu, DW-4 Dharm Baksh Singh also were unable to prove the identification of property obtained by Banshraj on Patta.

58. On perusal of map 24 ग/2 prepared by Amin discloses this fact that all the properties sought to be partitioned in this matter is situated in the same campus. PW-1 Ram Naresh, and DW-5 Hansraj are co-sharer and real brothers of appellant Banshraj. They have proved that disputed property mentioned in plaint map is their joint property of Abadi and it was not ever partitioned.

59. Learned first appellate court has appreciated the evidence of both the parties and observed that issue no. 1 and 2 framed by trial court was liable to be decided in positive in favour of plaintiff and both the defendant and plaintiff Ram Naresh were having 1/3 share in the disputed property and entire property was ancestral property of them.

60. The learned defence counsel on behalf of the appellant has not pressed issue no. 5 even before the trial court regarding necessity of Land Management Committee ought to have been arrayed in the original suit.

61. It is pertinent to mention here that when issue no. 5 was not pressed, even before the trial court and alleged Patta given by Land Management Committee was not produced by appellant Banshraj before the trial court, therefore, it cannot be said that Land Management Committee was the necessary party of the original suit.

62. Learned first appellate court has observed in the impugned order dated 26.4.2010 that appellant Banshraj had not produced any evidence before the trial court. Therefore, the trial court has decided issue no. 5 in negative against the appellant.

63. Therefore, the learned first appellate court has rightly recorded finding that complainant Ram Naresh and defendant-appellant Banshraj and Harsraj-respondent no. 2 are having 1/3-1/3 share in the disputed property and rightly decreed suit of the plaintiff and a direction has been given for preparation of preliminary decree. The impugned judgment and order dated 12.9.2008 has been set aside in correct perspective after due appreciation of evidence of both the parties. Therefore, substantial question of law no. 2 and 3 are hereby decided against the appellant.

64. The impugned judgment and order dated 26.4.2010 is modified that map 24 ग/2 prepared by Amin of civil court shall be considered while preliminary decree would be prepared by the trial court.

Substantial question of law no. 4:-

65. Learned counsel for appellant has argued that learned first appellate court has not complied with provisions of Order XLI, Rule 31 of C.P.C., which resulted in prejudice to the appellant, if so affect?

66. On perusal of impugned judgment and order dated 26.3.2010, it reveal that first appellate court has addressed the dispute by analyzing and evaluating the evidence adduced by both the parties before the trial court on the basis of issue framed by trial court and substantially complied with provisions of Order XLI, Rule 31 C.P.C. On the point of compliance of Order XLI, Rule 31 C.P.C., the following exposition of law is relevant:-

67. Hon'ble the Apex Court in the case of R.S. Anjayya Gupta v. Thippaiah Setty, reported in (2019) 7 SCC 300 has held as under:-

17. In a recent decision of this Court in U. Manjunath Rao [U. Manjunath Rao v. U. Chandrashekar, (2017) 15 SCC 309 : (2018) 2 SCC (Civ) 682] , the Court after adverting to*Santosh Hazari [Santosh Hazari v. Purushottam Tiwari*, (2001) 3 SCC 179, para 15], Sarju Pershad Ramdeo

Sahu v. Jwaleshwari Pratap Narain Singh [Sarju Pershad Ramdeo Sahu v.Jwaleshwari Pratap Narain Singh, AIR 1951 SC 120, para 15], Madhukar [Madhukar v.Sangram, (2001) 4 SCC 756, para 5], H.K.N. Swami v. Irshad Basith [H.K.N. Swami v. Irshad Basith, (2005) 10 SCC 243, para 3] and SBI v. Emmsons International Ltd. [SBI v.Emmsons International Ltd., (2011) 12 SCC 174 : (2012) 2 SCC (Civ) 289] went on to observe thus: (U. Manjunath Rao case [U. Manjunath Rao v. U. Chandrashekar, (2017) 15 SCC 309 : (2018) 2 SCC (Civ) 682] , SCC pp. 313-15, paras 11-14)

"11. ... "3. ... Thus, in the first appeal the parties have the right to be heard both on the questions of facts as well as on law and the first appellate court is required to address itself to all the aspects and decide the case by ascribing reasons.'

12. In this context, we may usefully refer to Order 41 Rule 31 CPC which reads as follows:

"ORDER 41

Appeals from Original Decrees

31. Contents, date and signature of judgment.--The judgment of the appellate court shall be in writing and shall state--

(a) the points for determination;

(b) the decision thereon;

(c) the reasons for the decision; and

(d) where the decree appealed from is reversed or varied, the relief to which the appellant is entitled;

and shall at the time that it is pronounced be signed and dated by the Judge or by the Judges concurring therein.'

13. On a perusal of the said Rule, it is quite clear that the judgment of the appellate court has to state the reasons for the decision. It is necessary to make it clear that the approach of the first appellate court while affirming the judgment of the trial court and reversing the same is founded on different parameters as per the judgments of this Court. In Girijanandini Devi [Girijanandini Devi v. Bijendra Narain Choudhary, AIR 1967 SC 1124] , the Court ruled that while agreeing with the view of the trial court on the evidence, it is not necessary to restate the effect of the evidence or reiterate the reasons given by the trial court. Expression of general agreement with reasons given in the trial court judgment which is under appeal should ordinarily suffice. The same has been accepted by another three-Judge Bench in Santosh Hazari [Santosh Hazari v. Purushottam Tiwari, (2001) 3 SCC 179, para 15]. However, while stating the law, the Court has opined that expression of general agreement with the findings recorded in the judgment under appeal should not be a device or camouflage to be adopted by the appellate court for shirking the duty cast on it. We are disposed to think, the expression of the said opinion has to be understood in proper perspective. By no stretch of imagination it can be stated that the first appellate court can quote passages from the trial court judgment and thereafter pen few lines and express the view that there is no reason to differ with the trial court judgment. That is not the statement of law expressed by the Court. The statement of law made in Santosh Hazari [Santosh Hazari v. Purushottam Tiwari, (2001) 3 SCC 179, para 15] has to be borne in mind.

14. In this regard, a three-Judge Bench decision in Asha Devi v. Dukhi Sao [Asha Devi v. Dukhi Sao, (1974) 2 SCC 492] is worthy of noticing, although the context was different. In the said case, the question arose with regard to power of the Division Bench hearing a letters patent appeal from the judgment of the Single Judge in a first appeal. The Court held that the letters patent appeal lies both on questions of fact and law. The purpose of referring to the said decision is only to show that when the letters patent appeal did lie, it was not restricted to the questions of law. The appellant could raise issues pertaining to facts and appreciation of evidence. This is indicative of the fact that the first appellate court has a defined role and its judgment should show application of mind and reflect the reasons on the basis of which it agrees with the trial court. There has to be an "expression of opinion" in the proper sense of the said phrase. It cannot be said that mere concurrence meets the requirement of law. Needless to say, it is one thing to state that the appeal is without any substance and it is another thing to elucidate, analyse and arrive at the conclusion that the appeal is devoid of merit."

Under Order XLI, Rule 33 of C.P.C. reads as under:-

"33. "Power of Court of Appeal-The Appellate Court shall have power to pass any decree and make any order which ought to have been passed or made and to pass or make such further or other decree or order as the case may require, and this power may be exercised by the Court notwithstanding that the appeal is as to part only of the decree and may be exercised in favour of all or any of the respondents or parties, although such respondents or parties may not have filed any appeal or objection and may, where there have been decrees in cross-suits or where two or more decrees are passed in one suit, be exercised in respect of all or any of the decrees, although an appeal may not have been filed against such decrees:

Provided that the Appellate Court shall not make any order under section 35A, in pursuance of any objection on which the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred has omitted or refused to make such order."

Principles for entertaining Second Appeal

68. On the point of admission of Second appeal, the following exposition of law is relevant:-

69. In the case of Thulasidhara v. Narayanappa, (2019) 6 SCC 409 the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as under:

"7.1. At the outset, it is required to be noted that by the impugned judgment and order [Narayanappa v. Rangamma, 2007 SCC OnLine Kar 737] , in a second appeal and in exercise of the powers under Section 100 CPC, the High Court has set aside the findings of facts recorded by both the courts below. The learned trial court dismissed the suit and the same came to be confirmed by the learned first appellate court. While allowing the second appeal, the High Court framed only one substantial question of law which reads as under:

"Whether the appellant is the owner and in possession of the suit land as he purchased it in the year 1973, that is, subsequent to the date 23-4-1971 when Ext. D-1, partition deed, Palupatti is alleged to have come into existence?"

No other substantial question of law was framed. We are afraid that the aforesaid can be said to be a substantial question of law at all. It cannot be disputed and even as per the law laid down by this Court in the catena of decisions, the jurisdiction of the High Court to entertain second appeal under Section 100 CPC after the 1976 Amendment, is confined only with the second appeal involving a substantial question of law. The existence of "a substantial question of law" is a sine qua non for the exercise of the jurisdiction under Section 100 CPC.

7.2. As observed and held by this Court in Kondiba Dagadu Kadam v. Savitribai Sopan Gujar [Kondiba Dagadu Kadam v. Savitribai Sopan Gujar, (1999) 3 SCC 722], in the second appeal under Section 100 CPC, the High Court cannot substitute its own opinion for that of the first appellate court, unless it finds that the conclusions drawn by the lower court were erroneous being:

(i) Contrary to the mandatory provisions of the applicable law;

(ii) Contrary to the law as pronounced by the Apex Court;

or

(iii) Based on inadmissible evidence or no evidence.

It is further observed by this Court in the aforesaid decision that if the first appellate court has exercised its discretion in a judicial manner, its decision cannot be recorded as suffering from an error either of law or of procedure requiring interference in the second appeal. It is further observed that the trial court could have decided differently is not a question of law justifying interference in second appeal.

7.3. When a substantial question of law can be said to have arisen, has been dealt with and considered by this Court in Ishwar Dass Jain v. Sohan Lal [Ishwar Dass Jain v. Sohan Lal*, (2000) 1 SCC 434] . In the aforesaid decision, this Court has specifically observed and held: (SCC pp. 441-42, paras 10-13)

"10. Under Section 100 CPC, after the 1976 Amendment, it is essential for the High Court to formulate a substantial question of law and it is not permissible to reverse the judgment of the first appellate court without doing so.

11. There are two situations in which interference with findings of fact is permissible. The first one is when material or relevant evidence is not considered which, if considered, would have led to an opposite conclusion. …

12. The second situation in which interference with findings of fact is permissible is where a finding has been arrived at by the appellate court by placing reliance on inadmissible evidence which if it was omitted, an opposite conclusion was possible. …

13. In either of the above situations, a substantial question of law can arise."

70. In the case of Gurnam Singh v. Lehna Singh, (2019) 7 SCC 641 the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as under:

"13.1.The suspicious circumstances which were considered by the learned trial court are narrated/stated hereinabove. On reappreciation of evidence on record and after dealing with each alleged suspicious circumstance, which was dealt with by the learned trial court, the first appellate court by giving cogent reasons held the will genuine and consequently did not agree with the findings recorded by the learned trial court. However, in second appeal under Section 100 CPC, the High Court, by the impugned judgment and order has interfered with the judgment and decree passed by the first appellate court. While interfering with the judgment and order passed by the first appellate court, it appears that while upsetting the judgment and decree passed by the first appellate court, the High Court has again appreciated the entire evidence on record, which in exercise of powers under Section 100 CPC is not permissible. While passing the impugned judgment and order, it appears that the High Court has not at all appreciated the fact that the High Court was deciding the second appeal under Section 100 CPC and not first appeal under Section 96 CPC. As per the law laid down by this Court in a catena of decisions, the jurisdiction of the High Court to entertain second appeal under Section 100 CPC after the 1976 Amendment, is confined only when the second appeal involves a substantial question of law. The existence of "a substantial question of law" is a sine qua non for the exercise of the jurisdiction under Section 100 CPC. As observed and held by this Court in Kondiba Dagadu Kadam [Kondiba Dagadu Kadam v. Savitribai Sopan Gujar, (1999) 3 SCC 722] , in a second appeal under Section 100 CPC, the High Court cannot substitute its own opinion for that of the first appellate court, unless it finds that the conclusions drawn by the lower court were erroneous being:

(i) Contrary to the mandatory provisions of the applicable law;

(ii) Contrary to the law as pronounced by the Supreme Court;

or

(iii) Based on inadmissible evidence or no evidence.

It is further observed by this Court in the aforesaid decision that if the first appellate court has exercised its discretion in a judicial manner, its decision cannot be recorded as suffering from an error either of law or of procedure requiring interference in second appeal. It is further observed that the trial court could have decided differently is not a question of law justifying interference in second appeal."

71. Hon'ble Supreme Court in State of M.P. v. Dungaji, (2019) 7 SCC 465 has propounded regarding interference by High Courts in exercising of power under Section 100 C.P.C. as follows:

"10. Now, so far as the impugned judgment and order [Dungaji v. State of M.P., Second Appeal No. 580 of 2003, order dated 29-10-2010 (MP)] passed by the High Court declaring and holding that the marriage between Dungaji and Kaveribai had been dissolved by way of customary divorce, much prior to the coming into force the provisions of the 1960 Act and therefore after divorce, the property inherited by Kaveribai from her mother cannot be treated to be holding of the family property of Dungaji for the purposes of determination of surplus area is concerned, at the outset, it is required to be noted that as such there were concurrent findings of facts recorded by both the courts below specifically disbelieving the dissolution of marriage between Dungaji and Kaveribai by way of customary divorce as claimed by Dungaji, original plaintiff. There were concurrent findings of facts recorded by both the courts below that the original plaintiff has failed to prove and establish that the divorce had already taken place between Dungaji and Kaveribai according to the prevalent custom of the society. Both the courts below specifically disbelieved the divorce deed at Ext. P-5. The aforesaid findings were recorded by both the courts below on appreciation of evidence on record. Therefore, as such, in exercise of powers under Section 100 CPC, the High Court was not justified in interfering with the aforesaid findings of facts recorded by both the courts below.

Cogent reasons were given by both the courts below while arriving at the aforesaid findings and that too after appreciation of evidence on record. Therefore, the High Court has exceeded in its jurisdiction while passing the impugned judgment and order in the second appeal under Section 100 CPC.

11. Even on merits also both the courts below were right in holding that Dungaji failed to prove the customary divorce as claimed. It is required to be noted that at no point of time earlier either Dungaji or Kaveribai claimed customary divorce on the basis of divorce deed at Ext. P-5. At no point of time earlier it was the case on behalf of the Dungaji and/or Kaveribai that there was a divorce in the year 1962 between Dungaji and Kaveribai. In the year 1971, Kaveribai executed a sale deed in favour of Padam Singh in which Kaveribai is stated to be the wife of Dungaji. Before the competent authority neither Dungaji nor Kaveribai claimed the customary divorce. Even in the revenue records also the name of Kaveribai being wife of Dungaji was mutated. In the circumstances and on appreciation of evidence on record, the trial court rightly held that the plaintiff has failed to prove the divorce between Dungaji and Kaveribai as per the custom.

12. At this stage, it is required to be noted that before the competent authority, Kaveribai submitted the objections. Before the competent authority, she only stated that she is living separately from Dungaji and Ramesh Chandra, son of Padam Singh, has been adopted by her. However, before the competent authority neither Dungaji nor Kaveribai specifically pleaded and/or stated that they have already taken divorce as per the custom much prior to coming into force the 1960 Act. Therefore, as rightly observed by the learned trial court and the first appellate court only with a view to get out of the provisions of the Ceiling Act, 1960, subsequently and much belatedly, Dungaji came out with a case of customary divorce. As rightly observed by the learned trial court that the divorce deed at Ext. P-5 was got up and concocted document with a view to get out of the provisions of the Ceiling Act, 1960. As observed hereinabove, the High Court has clearly erred in interfering with the findings of facts recorded by the courts below which were on appreciation of evidence on record."

72. Hon'ble the Apex Court in the case of Narayana Gramani v. Mariammal, reported in (2018) 18 SCC 645 has held as under:-

17. Sub-section (1) of Section 100 says that the second appeal would be entertained by the High Court only if the High Court is "satisfied" that the case involves a "substantial question of law". Sub-section (3) makes it obligatory upon the appellant to precisely state in memo of appeal the "substantial question of law" involved in the appeal. Sub-section (4) provides that where the High Court is satisfied that any substantial question of law is involved in the case, it shall formulate that question. In other words, once the High Court is satisfied after hearing the appellant or his counsel, as the case may be, that the appeal involves a substantial question of law, it has to formulate that question and then direct issuance of notice to the respondent of the memo of appeal along with the question of law framed by the High Court. Sub-section (5) provides that the appeal shall be heard only on the question formulated by the High Court under sub-section (4). In other words, the jurisdiction of the High Court to decide the second appeal is confined only to the question framed by the High Court under sub-section (4). The respondent, however, at the time of hearing of the appeal is given a right under sub-section (5) to raise an objection that the question framed by the High Court under sub-section (4) does not involve in the appeal. The reason for giving this right to the respondent for raising such objection at the time of hearing is because the High Court frames the question at the admission stage which is prior to issuance of the notice of appeal to the respondent. In other words, the question is framed behind the back of respondent and, therefore, sub-section (5) enables him to raise such objection at the time of hearing that the question framed does not arise in the appeal. The proviso to sub-section (5), however, also recognises the power of the High Court to hear the appeal on any other substantial question of law which was not initially framed by the High Court under sub-section (4). However, this power can be exercised by the High Court only after assigning the reasons for framing such additional question of law at the time of hearing of the appeal. (See Santosh Hazari v. Purushottam Tiwari [Santosh Hazari v. Purushottam Tiwari, (2001) 3 SCC 179] and Surat Singh v. Siri Bhagwan [Surat Singh v. Siri Bhagwan, (2018) 4 SCC 562 : (2018) 3 SCC (Civ) 94])

73. In the case of Arulmighu Nellukadai Mariamman Tirukkoil v. Tamilarasi, reported in (2019) 6 SCC 686, Hon'ble Apex Court has held as under:-

10. The need to remand the case has occasioned because we find that the High Court failed to frame any substantial question of law arising in the case while admitting the appeal as required under Section 100(4) of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (hereinafter referred to as "CPC") and further failed to decide the appeal as provided under Section 100(5) CPC.

11. It is noticed that the High Court framed two substantial questions of law (see para 7 of the impugned judgment [Tamilarasi v. Arulmighu Nellukadai Mariamman Tirukkoil, 2011 SCC OnLine Mad 1684]) for the first time in the impugned judgment [Tamilarasi v.Arulmighu Nellukadai Mariamman Tirukkoil, 2011 SCC OnLine Mad 1684] itself. In other words, what was required to be done by the High Court at the time of admission of the appeal was to formulate a question of law after hearing the appellant as provided under Section 100(4) CPC, but the High Court did it in the impugned judgment. Similarly, the High Court could have taken recourse to the powers conferred by the proviso to Section 100(5) CPC for framing any additional question of law at the time of final hearing of the appeal by assigning reasons for framing additional question, if it considered that any such question was involved. It was, however, not done. Instead, the High Court framed the questions for the first time while delivering the impugned judgment.

12. In our considered opinion, the procedure and the manner in which the High Court decided the second appeal regardless of the fact whether it was allowed or dismissed cannot be countenanced. It is not in conformity with the mandatory procedure laid down in Section 100 CPC.

13. Recently, this Court had an occasion to examine this very question in Surat Singh v.Siri Bhagwan [Surat Singh v. Siri Bhagwan, (2018) 4 SCC 562 : (2018) 3 SCC (Civ) 94] . The law is explained in paras 19 to 35 of this decision which read as under: (SCC pp. 567-69)

"19. ... Section 100 of the Code reads as under:

"100. Second appeal.--(1) Save as otherwise expressly provided in the body of this Code or by any other law for the time being in force, an appeal shall lie to the High Court from every decree passed in appeal by any court subordinate to the High Court, if the High Court is satisfied that the case involves a substantial question of law.

(2) An appeal may lie under this section from an appellate decree passed ex parte.

(3) In an appeal under this section, the memorandum of appeal shall precisely state the substantial question of law involved in the appeal.

(4) Where the High Court is satisfied that a substantial question of law is involved in any case, it shall formulate that question.

(5) The appeal shall be heard on the question so formulated and the respondent shall, at the hearing of the appeal, be allowed to argue that the case does not involve such question:

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall be deemed to take away or abridge the power of the Court to hear, for reasons to be recorded, the appeal on any other substantial question of law, not formulated by it, if it is satisfied that the case involves such question.'

20. Sub-section (1) of Section 100 says that the second appeal would be entertained by the High Court only if the High Court is "satisfied" that the case involves a "substantial question of law". Sub-section (3) makes it obligatory upon the appellant to precisely state in memo of appeal the "substantial question of law" involved in the appeal. Sub-section (4) provides that where the High Court is satisfied that any substantial question of law is involved in the case, it shall formulate that question. In other words, once the High Court is satisfied after hearing the appellant or his counsel, as the case may be, that the appeal involves a substantial question of law, it has to formulate that question and then direct issuance of notice to the respondent of the memo of appeal along with the question of law framed by the High Court.

21. Sub-section (5) provides that the appeal shall be heard only on the question formulated by the High Court under sub-section (4). In other words, the jurisdiction of the High Court to decide the second appeal is confined only to the question framed by the High Court under sub-section (4). The respondent, however, at the time of hearing of the appeal is given a right under sub-section (5) to raise an objection that the question framed by the High Court under sub-section (4) does not involve in the appeal. The reason for giving this right to the respondent for raising such objection at the time of hearing is because the High Court frames the question at the admission stage which is prior to issuance of the notice of appeal to the respondent. In other words, the question is framed behind the back of respondent and, therefore, sub-section (5) enables him to raise such objection at the time of hearing that the question framed does not arise in the appeal. The proviso to sub-section (5), however, also recognises the power of the High Court to hear the appeal on any other substantial question of law which was not initially framed by the High Court under sub-section (4). However, this power can be exercised by the High Court only after assigning the reasons for framing such additional question of law at the time of hearing of the appeal.

22. Adverting to the facts of this case at hand, we are at a loss to understand as to how the High Court while passing a final judgment [Bhagwan v. Murti Devi, 2006 SCC OnLine P&H 2175] in its concluding paragraph could frame the substantial question of law for the first time and simultaneously answered the said question in appellant's favour. Obviously, the learned Judge must have done it by taking recourse to sub-section (4) of Section 100 of the Code.

23. Here is the case where the High Court was under a legal obligation to frame the substantial question at the time of admission of the appeal after hearing the appellant or/and his counsel under sub-section (4) of Section 100 of the Code, but the High Court did it while passing the final judgment in its concluding paragraph.

24. Such novel procedure adopted by the High Court, in our considered opinion, is wholly contrary to the scheme of Section 100 of the Code and renders the impugned judgment legally unsustainable.

25. In our considered opinion, the High Court had no jurisdiction to frame the substantial question at the time of writing of its final judgment in the appeal except to the extent permitted under sub-section (5). The procedure adopted by the High Court, apart from it being against the scheme of Section 100 of the Code, also resulted in causing prejudice to the respondents because the respondents could not object to the framing of substantial question of law. Indeed, the respondents could not come to know on which question of law, the appeal was admitted for final hearing.

26. In other words, since the High Court failed to frame any substantial question of law under sub-section (4) of Section 100 at the time of admission of the appeal, the respondents could not come to know on which question of law, the appeal was admitted for hearing.

27. It cannot be disputed that sub-section (5) gives the respondents a right to know on which substantial question of law, the appeal was admitted for final hearing. Sub-section (5) enables the respondents to raise an objection at the time of final hearing that the question of law framed at the instance of the appellant does not really arise in the case.

28. Yet, the other reason is that the respondents are only required to reply while opposing the second appeal to the question formulated by the High Court under sub-section (4) and not beyond that. If the question of law is not framed under sub-section (4) at the time of admission or before the final hearing of the appeal, there remains nothing for the respondent to oppose the second appeal at the time of hearing. In this situation, the High Court will have no jurisdiction to decide such second appeal finally for want of any substantial question(s) of law.

29. The scheme of Section 100 is that once the High Court is satisfied that the appeal involves a substantial question of law, such question shall have to be framed under sub-section (4) of Section 100. It is the framing of the question which empowers the High Court to finally decide the appeal in accordance with the procedure prescribed under sub-section (5). Both the requirements prescribed in sub-sections (4) and (5) are, therefore, mandatory and have to be followed in the manner prescribed therein. Indeed, as mentioned supra, the jurisdiction to decide the second appeal finally arises only after the substantial question of law is framed under sub-section (4). There may be a case and indeed there are cases where even after framing a substantial question of law, the same can be answered against the appellant. It is, however, done only after hearing the respondents under sub-section (5).

30. If, however, the High Court is satisfied after hearing the appellant at the time of admission that the appeal does not involve any substantial question of law, then such appeal is liable to be dismissed in limine without any notice to the respondents after recording a finding in the dismissal order that the appeal does not involve any substantial question of law within the meaning of sub-section (4). It is needless to say that for passing such order in limine, the High Court is required to assign the reasons in support of its conclusion.

31. It is, however, of no significance, whether the respondent has appeared at the time of final hearing of the appeal or not. The High Court, in any case, has to proceed in accordance with the procedure prescribed under Section 100 while disposing of the appeal, whether in limine or at the final hearing stage.

32. It is a settled principle of rule of interpretation that whenever a statute requires a particular act to be done in a particular manner then such act has to be done in that manner only and in no other manner. (See Interpretation of Statutes by G.P. Singh, 9th Edn., p. 347 and Baru Ram v. Prasanni [Baru Ram v. Prasanni, AIR 1959 SC 93].)

33. The aforesaid principle applies to the case at hand because, as discussed above, the High Court failed to follow the procedure prescribed under Section 100 of the Code while allowing the second appeal and thus committed a jurisdictional error calling for interference by this Court in the impugned judgment.

34. While construing Section 100, this Court in Santosh Hazari v. Purushottam Tiwari [Santosh Hazari v. Purushottam Tiwari, (2001) 3 SCC 179] succinctly explained the scope, the jurisdiction and what constitutes a substantial questions of law under Section 100 of the Code.

35. It is, therefore, the duty of the High Court to always keep in mind the law laid down in Santosh Hazari [Santosh Hazari v. Purushottam Tiwari, (2001) 3 SCC 179] while formulating the question and deciding the second appeal."

14. In the light of the foregoing discussion, we cannot sustain the impugned judgment [Tamilarasi v. Arulmighu Nellukadai Mariamman Tirukkoil, 2011 SCC OnLine Mad 1684] which, in our view, is not in conformity with the mandatory requirements of Section 100 CPC and hence calls for interference in this appeal.

15. The appeal thus deserves to be allowed and it is accordingly allowed. The impugned judgment is set aside. The case is remanded to the High Court for deciding the second appeal afresh in accordance with law. The High Court will frame proper substantial question(s) of law after hearing the appellant and if it finds that any substantial question(s) of law arises in the case, it will first formulate such question(s) and then accordingly decide the appeal finally on the question(s) framed in accordance with law.

74. The Division Bench of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Chand Kaur v. Mehar Kaur, (2019) reported in 12 SCC 202 : 2019 SCC OnLine SC 426 at page 203 has held in paragraph no. 3 to 5 has held as under:-

3. The need to remand these cases to the High Court is called for because we find that the High Court though disposed of bunch of second appeals (RSAs Nos. 2066 to 2068 of 1987 and RSAs Nos. 2292 to 2294 of 1987) but it did so without framing any substantial question(s) of law as is required to be framed under Section 100 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (hereinafter referred to as "the Code").

4. In our opinion, framing of substantial question(s) of law in the present appeals was mandatory because the High Court allowed the second appeals and interfered in the judgment of the first appellate court, which was impugned in the second appeals. It is clear from the last paragraph of the impugned order [Mehar Kaur v. Chand Kaur, 2011 SCC OnLine P&H 17686] quoted hereinbelow: (Mehar Kaur case [Mehar Kaur v. Chand Kaur, 2011 SCC OnLine P&H 17686] , SCC OnLine P&H paras 15-16)

"15. However, I am unable to convince myself with the latter part of the judgment of the learned lower appellate court wherein Chand Kaur was held to be entitled to ½ share of the property of Jaimal, by placing reliance on the judgment delivered in the previous litigation between Mehar Singh and Chand Kaur. Once the learned lower appellate court arrived at a specific finding of fact that Chand Kaur was neither the daughter of Santo nor Santo is daughter of Cheta, thus, there was no basis for it to hold that Chand Kaur was entitled to hold half of the property of late Jaimal. By placing reliance on the previous judgment, the learned lower appellate court went against its own judgment and impliedly admitted that Santo was the daughter of Cheta. It is obvious that such a status of things cannot co-exist. By necessary implication, as a result of the finding arrived at by the learned lower appellate court regarding Santo not being the daughter of Cheta, the entitlement of the property of late Jaimal falls on Mehar Singh and Mehar Kaur in equal shares.

16. In view of above, RSAs Nos. 2066-68 of 1987 filed by Mehar Kaur succeed and RSAs Nos. 2292-94 of 1987 filed by Chand Kaur are dismissed. The findings of the learned lower appellate court are modified to the extent that Mehar Singh and legal heirs of Mehar Kaur are held entitled to succeed to the entire property of late Jaimal Singh in equal shares and the legal heirs of Chand Kaur shall have no right to such property at all."

5. This Court has consistently held that the High Court has no jurisdiction to allow the second appeal without framing a substantial question of law as provided under Section 100 of the Code. In other words, the sine qua non for allowing the second appeal is to first frame the substantial question(s) of law arising in the case and then decide the second appeal by answering the question(s) framed. (See Surat Singh v. Siri Bhagwan [Surat Singh v. Siri Bhagwan, (2018) 4 SCC 562 : (2018) 3 SCC (Civ) 94] and Vijay Arjun Bhagat v. Nana Laxman Tapkire [Vijay Arjun Bhagat v. Nana Laxman Tapkire, (2018) 6 SCC 727 : (2018) 3 SCC (Civ) 801] .)

75. The Division Bench of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of State of Rajasthan v. Shiv Dayal, reported in (2019) 8 SCC 637 : (2019) 4 SCC (Civ) 203 : 2019 SCC OnLine SC 1034 at page 639 has held in paragraph nos. 7, 8 and 11 to 17 and 25 as under:-

7. By impugned order [State v. Shiv Dayal, Civil Second Appeal No. 83 of 1999, order dated 23-3-1999 (Raj)] , the High Court dismissed the second appeals holding that the appeals did not involve any substantial question of law. It is against this order, the State felt aggrieved and has filed the present appeals by way of special leave before this Court.

8. So, the short question, which arises for consideration in these appeals, is whether the High Court was justified in dismissing the State's second appeals on the ground that these appeals did not involve any substantial question of law.

11. In our opinion, the need to remand the case to the High Court has arisen because we find that the second appeals did involve several substantial questions of law for being answered on merits in accordance with law. The High Court was, therefore, not right in so holding.

12. Indeed, we find that the High Court dismissed the second appeals essentially on the ground that since the two courts have decreed the suit, no substantial question of law arises in the appeals. In other words, the High Court was mostly swayed away with the consideration that since two courts have decreed the suit, resulting in passing of the decree against the State, there arises no substantial question of law in the appeals. It is clear from the last paragraph of the impugned order, which reads as under:

"Under these circumstances, when both the learned courts have arrived at the conclusion that the disputed area is outside the forest area. Therefore, the principles laid down in T.N. Godavarman Thirumulpad v. Union of India (abovequoted) cannot be enforced in this appeal. (emphasis supplied)

13. We do not agree with the aforementioned reasoning and the conclusion arrived at by the High Court. It is not the principle of law that where the High Court finds that there is a concurrent finding of two courts (whether of dismissal or decreeing of the suit), such finding becomes unassailable in the second appeal.

14. True it is as has been laid down by this Court in several decisions that "concurrent finding of fact" is usually binding on the High Court while hearing the second appeal under Section 100 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (hereinafter referred to as "the Code"). However, this rule of law is subject to certain well-known exceptions mentioned infra.

15. It is a trite law that in order to record any finding on the facts, the trial court is required to appreciate the entire evidence (oral and documentary) in the light of the pleadings of the parties. Similarly, it is also a trite law that the appellate court also has the jurisdiction to appreciate the evidence de novo while hearing the first appeal and either affirm the finding of the trial court or reverse it. If the appellate court affirms the finding, it is called "concurrent finding of fact" whereas if the finding is reversed, it is called "reversing finding". These expressions are well known in the legal parlance.

16. When any concurrent finding of fact is assailed in second appeal, the appellant is entitled to point out that it is bad in law because it was recorded dehors the pleadings or it was based on no evidence or it was based on misreading of material documentary evidence or it was recorded against any provision of law and lastly, the decision is one which no Judge acting judicially could reasonably have reached. (See observation made by learned Judge, Vivian Bose, J., as his Lordship then was a Judge of the Nagpur High Court in*Rajeshwar Vishwanath Mamidwar v. Dashrath Narayan Chilwelkar [Rajeshwar Vishwanath Mamidwar v. Dashrath Narayan Chilwelkar*, 1942 SCC OnLine MP 26 : AIR 1943 Nag 117] para 43.)

17. In our opinion, if any one or more ground, as mentioned above, is made out in an appropriate case on the basis of the pleading and evidence, such ground will constitute substantial question of law within the meaning of Section 100 of the Code.

25. In our view, the High Court, therefore, should have admitted the second appeal by framing appropriate substantial question(s) of law arising in the case and answered them on their respective merits rather than to dismiss the appeals without considering any of the aforementioned questions.

On the point of concurrent finding, following exposition of is relevant:-

76. In S.V.R.Mudaliar (Dead) by Lrs. and Ors. Vs. Rajabu F.Buhari (Mrs) (Dead) by Lrs. and Ors. AIR 1995 SC 1607, the Court in paras 14 and 15 of the judgment has upheld the contention that though the appellate court is within its right to take a different view on the question of fact, but that should be done after adverting to the reasons given by trial court in arriving at the findings in question. Appellate Court before reversing a finding of fact has to bear in mind the reasons ascribed by Trial Court. Court relied and followed earlier decision of Privy Council in Rani Hemant Kumari Vs. Maharaja Jagadhindra Nath, 10 CWN 630 and in para 15 of the judgment said:

"There is no need to pursue the legal principle, as we have no doubt in our mind that before reversing a finding of fact, the appellate court has to bear in mind the reasons ascribed by the trial court. This view of ours finds support from what was stated by the Privy Council in Rani Hemant Kumari Vs. Maharaja Jagadhindra Nath, (1906) 10 Cal.W.N. 630, wherein, while regarding the appellate judgment of the High Court of judicature at Fort William as "careful and able", it was stated that it did not "come to close quarters with the judgment which it reviews, and indeed never discusses or even alludes to the reasoning of the Subordinate Judge."

77. Following the above decision Hon'ble B.L.Yadav, J in Smt. Sona Devi Vs. Nagina Singh and Ors. AIR 1997 Patna 67 observed that whenever judgment of Appellate Court is a judgment of reversal, it is the primary duty of Appellate Court while reversing the findings of Trial Court to consider the reasons given by Trial Court and those reasons must also be reversed. Unless that is done, judgment of lower Appellate Court cannot be held to be consistent with the requirement of Order XLI, Rule 31, which is a mandatory provision.

78. The above view has also been followed recently in Jaideo Yadav Vs. Raghunath Yadav & Anr., 2009(3) PLJR 529 wherein the Court said that Trial Court recorded its findings but lower Appellate Court had not reversed the said findings and rather on the basis of some findings of its own, title appeal was allowed by lower Appellate Court without appreciating findings of Trial Court on the concerned issue. The court then said :

"The law is well settled in this regard that where the judgment of the lower appellate court is a judgment of reversal it is primary duty of the appellate court to consider the reasons given by the trial court and those reasons must also be reversed."

79. This court has also followed the same view in Doodhnath and another Vs. Deonandan AIR 2006 Allahabad 3. Recently this view has also been followed in Second Appeal No. 47 of 2015, Awadh Narayan Singh Vs. Harinarayan, decided on 22.1.2015.

80. The Division Bench of Hon'ble the Apex Court in the case of State of M.P. v. Sabal Singh, reported in (2019) 10 SCC 595 : 2019 SCC OnLine SC 1340 at page 605 in paragraph nos. 31 and 32 has held as under:-

31. About entries in revenue record the trial court and first appellate court, have recorded a concurrent finding of fact that the land was not under personal cultivation. It was not open to the High Court to interfere with the findings of fact, which was based on the proper appreciation of evidence on record. Even the plaintiff was unable to state whether there was any crop in the relevant year 2007 before Zamindari Abolition. Such finding of fact based on proper appreciation of evidence could not have been interfered with by the High Court within the ken of Section 100 CPC.

32. The decision of the High Court of Madhya Pradesh in Bheron Singh v. State of M.P.[Bheron Singh v. State of M.P., 1983 RN 243 (MP)] has been relied upon, on behalf of the respondent-plaintiffs, in which the entry of "bir" land i.e. grassland came up for consideration, which was made in the column of "Alavajot" i.e. not under plough. The plaintiff in the said case was erstwhile Zamindar of the suit land, and it was recorded as "khudkasht land". We are unable to accept the proposition mentioned above as the provision of Section 4(1) of the Abolition Act, 2003 had not been considered in Bheron Singh [Bheron Singh v. State of M.P., 1983 RN 243 (MP)] . Where "bir" land vests in the State and only the land under personal cultivation as defined in Section 2(c) and so recorded as khudkasht as per Section 4(2), was saved from vesting. "Grass" was recorded in Alavajot column i.e. in area not under plough. The decision in Bheron Singh [Bheron Singh v. State of M.P., 1983 RN 243 (MP)] cannot be said to be laying down good law, as such it is overruled.

81. The Division Bench of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Jagdish Chander v. Satish Chander, reported in (2019) 12 SCC 237 : 2019 SCC OnLine SC 283 at page 241 in paragraph no. 16 has held as under:-

16. Though, it is the contention of the respondent that such gift deed was not executed by Smt Vidya Devi on her free will and consent, there is no evidence on record placed to substantiate such allegation. Further, in absence of challenge to the gift deed, it is not open to record any findings on the validity of the gift. The High Court also committed error in relying on the mutation proceeding, which itself is based on the registered gift deed. Further, the High Court fell in error in reappreciating the evidence on record to come to a different conclusion than the findings recorded by the trial court, in exercise of power under Section 100 of the Code of Civil Procedure. As the findings recorded by the trial court and the first appellate court are in accordance with the evidence on record, and further the High Court has misconstrued the document of gift, we are of the view that judgment [Satish Chander v. Jagdish, 2016 SCC OnLine HP 3781] of the High Court is liable to be set aside.

82. In the case of Ramathal v. Maruthathal, reported in (2018) 18 SCC 303, Hon'ble Apex Court has held as under:-

3. A brief reference to the facts which are necessary for disposal of the appeal before us are, the appellant herein who is the plaintiff in the suit (hereinafter "the buyer", for brevity) and Respondent 2 who is the defendant (hereinafter "the seller", for brevity unless context otherwise requires) entered into an agreement of sale in respect of suit schedule property on 10-12-1986. The sale consideration was fixed at Rs 1,01,000 per acre. An amount of Rs 40,000 was paid as earnest money. As per the terms of the agreement, one year was stipulated for completion of the sale by executing an absolute sale deed. Additionally, the agreement stipulated that the seller has to conduct a survey for the identification of the boundaries of the suit schedule property. As the said condition was not complied with by the seller, the buyer issued a notice dated 26-9-1987 calling upon the seller to comply with the stipulated obligation without any further delay. Confronted by continuous denials by the seller, the buyer having left with no option, has filed the instant suit seeking specific performance of the agreement of sale dated 10-12-1986.

10. The seller had agreed for conducting a survey of the scheduled property at their own cost and also agreed to demarcate the boundaries by affixing stones. Additionally, the sale consideration was agreed to be calculated according to the extent of land found in the survey. On the other hand, the buyer had agreed to pay the entire sale consideration within six months from the date of the contract. It is to be noted that the seller had agreed to rectify any hindrance which might occur in selling of the land other than those related to the Government, the panchayat, and the Housing Board and to extend the period of the agreement on happening of such hindrances. Moreover, the schedule of the property mentions the extent of property to be 1.87¾ acres.

11. Perusal of various conditions stipulated in the agreement makes it clear that the reciprocal promises were dependent on each other and must be determined on the true construction of the contract in the order which the nature of transaction requires. The view taken by the High Court, regarding the interpretation of the contract wherein the execution of the contract was independent of the payment obligation, is erroneous and cannot be sustained in the eye of the law as the contract needs to be read as a whole and not in a piecemeal approach as undertaken by the High Court. Therefore, the buyer's payment obligation and the obligation to execute the contract, was dependent upon the measurement to be conducted by the seller.

12. The factual aspect which was supposed to be considered was whether the survey was conducted by the seller or not. It is on record that DW 1 and DW 2 have stated that the survey was conducted subsequent to the execution of the agreement, but no documents were marked on behalf of the seller evidencing the fact that survey was undertaken. When both the courts below took a view that evidence of the witness was not believable on detailed consideration of their cross-examination and non-availability of documentary evidence to prove that survey was conducted, then the High Court should not have interfered with such factual findings by taking into consideration the oral evidence of witnesses without there being any documentary evidence. The crucial fact that the survey was not conducted had attained finality by the earlier judgment of the High Court in CRP No. 2195 of 1989. Therefore, once the trial court and the first appellate court which are the fact-finding courts have come to the specific conclusion that the plaintiff is entitled for specific performance of the agreement of sale, the High Court on reappreciation of evidence could not have upset the factual findings in second appeal.

13. It was not appropriate for the High Court to embark upon the task of reappreciation of evidence in the second appeal and disturb the concurrent findings of fact of the courts below which are the fact-finding courts. At this juncture, for better appreciation, we deem it appropriate to extract Sections 100 and 103 CPC, which reads as follows:

"100. Second appeal.--(1) Save as otherwise expressly provided in the body of this Code or by any other law for the time being in force, an appeal shall lie to the High Court from every decree passed in appeal by any court subordinate to the High Court, if the High Court is satisfied that the case involves a substantial question of law.

(2) An appeal may lie under this section from an appellate decree passed ex parte.

(3) In an appeal under this section, the memorandum of appeal shall precisely state the substantial question of law involved in the appeal.

(4) Where the High Court is satisfied that a substantial question of law is involved in any case, it shall formulate that question.

(5) The appeal shall be heard on the question so formulated and the respondent shall, at the hearing of the appeal, be allowed to argue that the case does not involve such question:

103. Power of High Court to determine issues of fact.-- In any second appeal, the High Court may, if the evidence on the record is sufficient, determine any issue necessary for the disposal of the appeal--

(a) which has not been determined by the lower appellate court or both by the court of first instance and the lower appellate court, or

(b) which has been wrongly determined by such court or courts by reason of a decision on such question of law as is referred to in Section 100."

14.A clear reading of Sections 100 and 103 CPC envisages that a burden is placed upon the appellant to state in the memorandum of grounds of appeal the substantial question of law that is involved in the appeal, then the High Court being satisfied that such a substantial question of law arises for its consideration has to formulate the questions of law and decide the appeal. Hence a prerequisite for entertaining a second appeal is a substantial question of law involved in the case which has to be adjudicated by the High Court. It is the intention of the legislature to limit the scope of second appeal only when a substantial question of law is involved and the amendment made to Section 100 makes the legislative intent more clear that it never wanted the High Court to be a fact-finding court. However, it is not an absolute rule that the High Court cannot interfere in a second appeal on a question of fact. Section 103 CPC enables the High Court to consider the evidence when the same has been wrongly determined by the courts below on which a substantial question of law arises as referred to in Section 100. When appreciation of evidence suffers from material irregularities and when there is perversity in the findings of the court which are not based on any material, the court is empowered to interfere on a question of fact as well. Unless and until there is absolute perversity, it would not be appropriate for the High Courts to interfere in a question of fact just because two views are possible; in such circumstances the High Courts should restrain itself from exercising the jurisdiction on a question of fact.

83. On the basis of exposition of law propounded by the Apex Court, the exposition of law relied upon by learned counsel for appellant does not extend any benefit to the appellant and these are not applicable to the facts and circumstances of this case.

84. The impugned judgment and order dated 26.3.2010 cannot be termed as perverse or against the evidence available on record.

85. On the basis of above discussions, present second appeal lacks merits, impugned judgment and order dated 26.3.2010 is liable to be upheld and it is upheld.

86. A copy of judgment along with record of first appellate court as well as trial court be transmitted to the trial court for information and further action/compliance.

THE HON'BLE RAJNISH KUMAR, J.

Sahab Deen ...Appellant

Versus

Keshav Prasasd & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Appellant:
Angrej Nath Shukla

Counsel for the Respondent:
Mohammad Aslam Khan, Ram Dev Tiwari

A. Civil Law-Civil Procedure Code – Order XIV, Rule 1(1) and 1(6) – Framing of Issue – Need – Issues arise when a material proposition of fact or law is affirmed by the one party and denied by the other party and in case the defendant makes no defence the court need not frame and record issues – Suit may be decided without framing issues, if the case comes under exception, but it cannot be decided without considering the evidence. (Para 15 and 16)

B. Civil Law-Civil Procedure Code – Order VIII, Rule 10 – Written Statement – Failure to file within time – Court's proceeding – Need of consideration of Evidence – Where any party from whom a written statement is required under Rule 1 or Rule 9 fails to present the same within the time permitted or fixed by the Court, as the case may be, the Court shall pronounce judgment against him – If the trial court was of the view that the judgment could not be pronounced and ex-parte evidence was filed, then it should have considered the evidence adduced before it for making such order in relation to the suit as it thinks fit. (Para 20 and 22)

C. Contract Law- Indian Contract Act, 1872 – Section 13, 14, 16 and 19 – Free Consent – Undue Influence – Effect on validity of contract – A contract, made by undue influence without free consent and consideration, is voidable at the option of the party whose consent was so caused. (Para 27)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajnish Kumar, J.)

1. Heard, Shri Angrej Nath Shukla, learned counsel for the appellant and Shri Mohammad Arif khan, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Shri Ram Dev Tiwari, learned counsel for the respondents.

2. This second appeal has been filed for setting aside the judgment and decree dated 27.01.2017 passed in Regular Civil Appeal No.27 of 2014 by the learned Additional District Judge / Special Judge (A.P.) CBI, Lucknow as well as the judgment and decree dated 18.10.2002 passed in Regular Suit No.64 of 1999 (Sahab Deen Vs. Keshav Prasad and Others) by the learned Civil Judge, (J.D), Hawali, Lucknow

3. The brief facts of the case are that the land in question i.e. gata no.216 having an area of 9 Bigha, 12 Biswa, 9 Biswansi situated in Village- Bhaisora, Pargana, Tehsil and District- Lucknow was purchased by the appellant / plaintiff from his father-in-law on 21.02.1998. Thereafter he instituted a case for mutation before the Tehsil. His father-in-law, under the influence of his other son-in-laws, demanded additional money. When the appellant / plaintiff showed his inability to pay the additional money, the brother-in-laws of the appellant / plaintiff i.e. the son-in-laws of his father-in-law namely Ram Nath, Juggi Lal and Suresh filed a forged objection putting his thumb impression. The respondent / defendants no.1 and 2 had also filed objection in the court of Naib Tehsildar on the ground that the father-in-law of the appellant / plaintiff has entered into an agreement for sale with them. The appellant / plaintiff has no knowledge about the alleged agreement. The father-in-law of the appellant / plaintiff, who is a member of scheduled tribes, also could not sell the land in question to the respondent / defendants no.1 and 2 who are not member of scheduled tribes under Section 157 (B) of the Uttar Pradesh Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950. The respondent / defendants no.1 and 2 had also filed a Regular Suit No.828 of 1998 in the court of Civil Judge, Junior Division-Hawali against the father-in-law of the appellant / plaintiff for cancellation of sale deed.

4. The appellant / plaintiff had filed a regular suit no.64 of 1999 for cancellation of sale deed dated 23.11.1998 executed in favour of the respondent / defendant no.4 namely Sarju on the ground that the respondent / defendants had kidnapped the appellant / plaintiff and Shri Raghunandan Prasad, the witness of the sale deed on 21.11.1998 and kept them in their custody, beaten, threatened and asked them to execute the sale deed and in case of default they would be implicated in a false criminal case. They had taken to the appellant / plaintiff and Raghunandan Prasad to the office of the Sub Registrar and got the sale deed executed while the appellant / plaintiff and Raghunandan Prasad were under duress which was registered in the office of Sub Registrar at Sl. No.4516 part 97/98 PU.73/84 on 23.11.1998. The appellant / plaintiff and the witness were released by the defendants after execution of the sale deed without paying the sale consideration and threatening of implicating in a false case in case they tell to anybody. On coming back he came to know that his wife had given information of his kidnapping to the State Authorities and had also gone to the Police Station- Gosainganj but no action was taken. On receipt of copy of the sale deed the appellant / plaintiff came to know that the purchaser is Sarju S/o Sita Ram resident of Ahibaranpur. He had also given application to the higher Police officers on 26.12.1998 for his safety and lodging FIR against the accuseds but under the pressure of the respondent / defendants the FIR could be lodged on 20.01.2001 at Police Station- Gomti Nagar.

5. On issuance of the notices, the respondent / defendants had appeared in the suit but did not file any written statement therefore the suit was proceeded ex-parte. The appellant / plaintiff- Sahab Deen was examined as PW-1, Chameli W/o Shri Sahab Deen as PW-2 and Raghunandan Prasad S/o Ram Deen as PW-3. Thereafter the suit was decided ex-parte on 18.02.2002 and dismissed on the ground that the incident is of 21.11.1998 and the First Information Report has been lodged on 20.01.2001 which does not support the statements of the plaintiff because the FIR should have been lodged immediately or within some period while it has been lodged after a period of about two years. The regular civil appeal filed by the appellant / plaintiff against the judgment and decree dated 18.02.2002 was also dismissed by the judgment and decree dated 27.01.2007. Hence, the present second appeal has been filed under Section 100 of Civil Procedure code, 1908 (here-in-after referred as C.P.C.) which was admitted on the following substantial questions of law:-

"1. Whether the dispute can be decided without framing the issues in the case.

4. Whether the judgment can be passed without framing the issues if the matter relates to cancellation of sale deed.

5. Whether judgment can be passed without discussing the evidence and statement of the witnesses in the proceeding.

a. Whether without framing of issues, evidence of witnesses can be ignored in the judgment on the mere strength of probability of a fact which even does not constitute a part of cause of action."

6. An application for impleadment under order 1 Rule 10 of C.P.C. readwith Section 151 C.P.C. has also been filed to implead Managing Director of E Squire Homes as he has purchased the suit property during pendency of the suit / appeal which is bard by Section 52 of the Transfer of Property Act.

7. Submission of learned counsel for the appellant was that the appellant / plaintiff was owner of the land in dispute which was purchased by him from his father-in-law through registered sale deed dated 21.02.1998. The respondent / defendants had kidnapped the appellant / plaintiff and got the sale deed executed after beating and threatening and this evidence was also given by the marginal witness. A telegram was also sent in regard to kidnapping of appellant / plaintiff by the wife of the appellant / plaintiff. The appellant / plaintiff was released by the respondent / defendants after threatening him for implicating in a false criminal case. After release the appellant / plaintiff had also informed to the higher Police officer but under the pressure of the respondent / defendants the FIR could be lodged in regard to the occurrence on 28.01.2001. The appellant / plaintiff had specifically pleaded about his kidnapping, beating and threatening and execution of sale deed under duress and the evidence to this effect was also adduced before the trial court during the suit proceedings. The respondent / defendants though appeared but did not file any written statement therefore the suit proceeded ex-parte and the trial court without framing issues and considering and appreciating the evidence adduced before it dismissed the suit merely on the ground of delay in lodging the FIR and the appeal has also been dismissed which could not have been done by the trial court as well as by the appellate court without considering and appreciating the evidence on record and recording any finding on the basis of the evidence.

8. It was also submitted that since no written statement was filed the averments of the plaint stands admitted therefore the suit should have been allowed on this ground alone. The coercion and unlawful influence under which the sale deed was got executed without any sale consideration was proved before the trial court on which the contract can be set aside under Section 19(A) of the Indian Contract Act but without considering it the learned trial court as well as appellate court dismissed the suit and the appeal respectively, which is not sustainable in the eyes of law.

9. Per contra, learned counsel for the respondent / defendants had submitted that as alleged by the appellant / plaintiff, plaintiff and the witness were kidnapped on 21.11.1998 and the sale deed was executed on 23.11.1998 thereafter they were released forthwith. But no effort was made for lodging the FIR after the release and highly belated FIR was lodged on 21.01.2001. He had also submitted that the kidnapped witness can not be made witness and Section 68 of the Indian Evidence Act deals with proof of wills. He had also submitted that there is no proof of coercion etc. which is clear from the demeanor of witnesses of the plaintiff. Since no written statement was filed therefore there was no need of framing issues. The suit was dismissed in default and it was restored without notice therefore no written statement could be filed but the appellant / plaintiff had to prove his case even if no written statement was filed. But he failed to do so. The appeal was decided complying the provisions of Order 41 Rule 31. He had also submitted that there is no documentary evidence to show coercion and signature of Sub Registrar on the registered sale deed itself is a presumption of execution of valid sale deed under Section 70 of the Indian Evidence Act. Lastly, it was submitted that the concurrent findings of the facts can not be interfered by re-appreciating the evidence and substituting findings. Accordingly, the present second appeal, being misconceived, is liable to be dismissed with cost.

10. In regard to the application for impleadment he had submitted that Sahab Deen had executed the sale deed on 23.11.1998 to Sarju i.e. the respondent / defendant no.4. He had executed the sale deed to Rajeshwari Mishra on 11.10.2001. Rajeshwari Mishra executed various sale deeds; one on 15.12.2004 to Arvind Singh Sisodiya for an area of 1-10-0, on 18.05.2016 an area of 1.10 in favour of E Squire Homes but the application for impleadment has been filed only to implead the Managing Director of E Squire Homes who has purchased only a part of the land therefore the same is liable to be dismissed.

11. I have considered the submissions of learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

12. The land in dispute was purchased by the appellant / plaintiff from his father-in-law on 21.02.1998. Thereafter he had filed a case for mutation before the Tehsil, in which the objections were filed. It appears that a suit for cancellation of sale deed was filed by the respondent / defendants no.1 and 2 on the ground that the father-in-law of the appellant / plaintiff had entered into an agreement for sale with them but the same was dismissed as informed.

13. It appears that the appellant / plaintiff alongwith Raghunandan Prasad was kidnapped on 21.11.1998. An information in this regard was sent by his wife on 22.11.1998. On 23.11.1998 a sale deed was got executed by the appellant / plaintiff in favour of the respondent / defendant no.4 namely Sarju S/o Sita Ram. The suit was filed alleging therein that the respondent / defendants have got the sale deed executed by abducting, beating and threatening to the appellant / plaintiff without paying any consideration. Therefore, after release from the custody of the respondent / defendants, he had filed the suit for cancellation of sale deed. The respondent / defendants appeared in the suit but they did not file any written statement. However, it has been argued on their behalf that since the suit was dismissed in default and thereafter restored without notice therefore no written statement could be filed. Be that as it may, it is not disputed that no written statement was filed.

14. Order XIV provides settlement of issues and determination of suit on issues of law or on issues agreed upon. Rule 1(1) provides issues arise when a material proposition of fact or law is affirmed by the one party and denied by the other. Rule 1 (6) provides that nothing in this rule requires the court to frame and record issues where the defendant at the first hearing of the suit makes no defence. Rule 3 provides that the Court may frame the issues from all or any of the materials i.e. allegations made on oath by the parties, or by any persons present on their behalf, or made by the pleaders of such parties; allegations made in the pleadings or in answers to interrogatories delivered in the suit and the contents of documents produced by either parties. The Hon'ble Apex Court, in the case of Sham Lal (Dead) By Lrs. Vs. Atme Nand Jain Sabha (Regd.) Dal Bazar; (1987) 1 SCC 222, has held that "at the first hearing of the suit" would be the day when the Court applies its mind to the case, which may be the date of settlement of issues or the date for preliminarily examination of the parties.

15. In view of above, issues arise when a material proposition of fact or law is affirmed by the one party and denied by the other party and in case the defendant makes no defence the court need not frame and record issues. In the present case the respondent / defendants had not filed any written statement therefore there was no material proposition of fact or law which were affirmed by the appellant / plaintiff and denied by the respondent / defendants. Therefore, this court is of the view that the decision of the regular suit filed by the appellant / plaintiff without framing of the issues, even though it was the case of cancellation of sale deed, does not suffer from any error or illegality and the substantial question of law nos.1 and 4 are decided accordingly.

16. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Alka Gupta Vs. Narendra Kumar Gupta; (2010) 10 SCC 14, has held that a civil suit has to be decided after framing issues and trial permitting the parties to lead evidence on the issues, except in cases where the Code or any other law makes an exception or provides any exemption. Therefore the suit may be decided without framing issues, if the case comes under exception, but it can not be decided without considering the evidence.

17. Adverting to the substantial question of law nos.5 and (a) this court finds that the suit for cancellation of sale deed was proceeded ex-parte. Thereafter the evidence was adduced by the appellant / plaintiff. The appellant / plaintiff- Sahab Deen was examined as PW-1, Chameli his wife was examined as PW-2 and Raghunandan, the marginal witness of the sale deed in question as PW-3. Copy of the sale deed and FIR lodged on 20.01.2001 at Police Station- Gosainganj, District- Lucknow were filed.

18. The witnesses examined on behalf of the appellant / plaintiff have stated in evidence about kidnapping of the appellant / plaintiff, about the purchase of the land in dispute on 23.02.1998 by the appellant / plaintiff from his father-in-law, filing of the case for mutation, objection by the brother-in-laws by putting forged signatures of the seller, filing of regular suit no.828 of 1998 by the respondent / defendants no.1 and 2 for cancellation of sale deed in favour of the appellant / plaintiff, kidnapping of the appellant / plaintiff and Raghunandan Prasad; the marginal witness, sending information by the wife of the appellant / plaintiff to the Senior Superintendent of Police in regard to the kidnapping of the appellant / plaintiff, execution of sale deed under duress and information to the higher officers. The wife of the appellant / plaintiff has also given statement in regard to the kidnapping of the appellant / plaintiff by the respondent / defendants and about giving information to the Superintendent of Police by telegram at Police Station- Gomti Nagar. The marginal witness of the sale deed in question has also supported the evidence of the appellant / plaintiff and stated that he was also kidnapped alongwith the appellant / plaintiff and kept near Police Station- Gomti Nagar in a shop of Patra-Balli where the appellant / plaintiff was beaten and he was also threatened for doing what is being said failing which they will be thrown on railway line. It was also told to them that S.H.O., Police Station- Gosainganj is their friend and they may be implicated in NDPS case. They were taken to the Sub Registrar's Office where the thumb impression was got put by the appellant / plaintiff and signatures by the witness. No question was asked from them. They had also not seen the purchaser Sarju and no money was given to the appellant / plaintiff. After execution of the sale deed they were taken to the Khurdahi by a Maruti and released there after threatening. Thereafter their wives alongwith the others went to the Police Station. On being informed they also went to the Police Station where the Deewan, Ram Vriksha Yadav asked to send them jail under NDPS and on being assured that they would not take any action they were released. Subsequently, the appellant / plaintiff had given application to the higher officers in which the Circle Officer- Mohanlalganj had recorded his statement. He had also stated that his statement has not been recorded in any mutation proceeding on the basis of sale deed.

19. In view of above, the witnesses examined on behalf of appellant / plaintiff have given evidence in support of the pleadings of the appellant / plaintiff. But without considering and recording any finding in regard to the evidence adduced before the trial court, the trial court dismissed the suit merely on the ground that the FIR has been lodged after about two years from which the statement of the appellant / plaintiff does not get strength and the plaintiff has failed to prove his case that as to whether the thumb impression was put by him from his free will or against his will.

20. Admittedly, no written statement was filed by the respondent / defendants. Order VIII, Rule 10 of the C.P.C. provides that where any party from whom a written statement is required under rule 1 or rule 9 fails to present the same within the time permitted or fixed by the Court, as the case may be, the Court shall pronounce judgment against him, or make such order in relation to the suit as it thinks fit and on the pronouncement of such judgment a decree shall be drawn up. Therefore in case no written statement has been filed the court shall pronounce judgment against the party who has failed to file the written statement or may make such order in relation to the suit as it thinks fit.

21. Balraj Taneja and Another Vs. Sunil Madan and Another; (1999) 8 SCC 396, in which the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that there are two separate and distinct provisions under which the Court can pronounce judgment on the failure of the defendant to file Written Statement. The failure may be either under Order 8 Rule 5(2) under which the Court may either pronounce judgment on the basis of the facts set out in the plaint or require the plaintiff to prove any such fact; or the failure may be under Order 8 Rule 10 C.P.C. under which the Court is required to pronounce judgment against the defendant or to pass such order in relation to the suit as it thinks fit. It has also held that if the plaint itself indicates that there are disputed questions of fact involved in the case regarding which two different versions are set out in the plaint itself, it would not be safe for the Court to pass a judgment without requiring the plaintiff to prove the facts so as to settle the factual controversy. It has also been held that the Court has to write a judgment which must be in conformity with the provisions of code or at least set out the reasoning by which the controversy is resolved. Therefore if the Court has proceeded to decide the case after evidence by the plaintiff then it ought to have considered the evidence adduced before it.

22. In the present case since no written statement was filed the trial court could have pronounced the judgment against the respondent / defendants admitting the suit of the plaintiff. If the trial court was of the view that the judgment could not be pronounced and ex-parte evidence was filed, then it should have considered the evidence adduced before it for making such order in relation to the suit as it thinks fit. But in the present case the learned trial court has not considered and recorded any finding on the basis of evidence adduced before it and dismissed the suit merely on the ground of delay in lodging the FIR which does not constitute a part of cause of action. The cause of action for the suit for cancellation of sale deed was alleged execution of the sale deed under duress without payment of consideration.

23. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of ShantiLal Gulabchand Mutha Vs. Tata Engineering and Locomotive Company Limited and Another; (2013) 4 SCC 396 has held that the court must give reasons for passing such judgment, however, short it be, but by reading the judgment, a party must understood what were the facts and circumstances on the basis of which the court must proceed, and under what reasoning the suit has been decreed. The relevant paragraph-9 is extracted below:-

"9. In view of the above, it appears to be a settled legal proposition that the relief under Order VIII Rule 10 CPC is discretionary, and court has to be more cautious while exercising such power where defendant fails to file the written statement. Even in such circumstances, the court must be satisfied that there is no fact which need to be proved in spite of deemed admission by the defendant, and the court must give reasons for passing such judgment, however, short it be, but by reading the judgment, a party must understood what were the facts and circumstances on the basis of which the court must proceed, and under what reasoning the suit has been decreed."

24. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Alka Gupta Vs. Narender Kumar Gupta; (2010) 10 SCC 141 has held that Code of civil procedure is nothing but an exhaustive compilation- cum-enumeration of the principles of natural justice with reference to a proceeding in a court of law. The entire object of the Code is to ensure that an adjudication is conducted by a court of law with appropriate opportunities at appropriate stages. A civil proceeding governed by the Code will have to be proceeded with and decided in accordance with law and the provisions of the Code, and not on the whims of the court. There are no short-cuts in the trial of suits, unless they are provided by law.

25. Section 10 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872 provides that all agreements are contracts if they are made by the free consent of parties competent to contract, for a lawful consideration and with a lawful object, and are not hereby expressly declared to be void. Section 13 defines the consent of two or more persons are said to consent when they agree upon the same thing in the same sense. Section 14 defines free consent which is said to be free when it is not caused by coercion or undue influence or fraud or misrepresentation or mistake subject to the provisions of sections 20, 21 and 22. Consent is said to be so caused when it would not have been given but for the existence of such coercion, undue influence, fraud, misrepresentation or mistake.

26. Sub Section-3 of Section 16 of the Contract Act provides that where a person who is in a position to dominate the will of another, enters into a contract with him, and the transaction appears, on the face of it or on the evidence adduced, to be unconscionable, the burden of proving that such contract was not induced by undue influence shall be upon the person in a position to dominate the will of the other. Section 19 provides the voidability of agreements without free consent at the option of the party whose consent was so caused. Section 19 (A) provides the power to set-aside the contract induced by undue influence at the option of the party whose consent was so caused.

27. In view of above, a contract, made by undue influence without free consent and consideration, is voidable at the option of the party whose consent was so caused. In the present case the appellant / plaintiff has alleged that the sale deed in question has been got executed under duress by beating and threatening him and without paying any consideration. Therefore it is voidable at his option. If the opposite parties / defendants were in a position to dominate the will of plaintiff, the burden was on them to prove that the sale deed was not induced by undue influence. But the trial court, without considering even the evidence adduced by the appellant / plaintiff, dismissed the suit for cancellation of sale-deed merely on the basis of delay in lodging the FIR which could not have been done by trial court.

28. So far as the arguments of the learned counsel for the respondents in regard to the alleged concurrent findings is considered, as discussed above in fact no finding has been recorded by the learned trial court on the basis of evidence adduced before it. The learned appellate court has also, though mentioned the evidence adduced by the appellant / plaintiff but without considering and recording any finding, dismissed the appeal on the ground that the FIR has been lodged keeping in mind the subsequent events after about two years but has not disclosed any alleged subsequent events. In regard to the evidence simply it has been stated that the contents of the plaint does not strengthen from the documentary / oral evidence but no reasons have been assigned. Therefore in fact no finding of facts on the basis of evidence adduced before the trial court has been recorded by the court's below.

29. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Ishwar Dass Jain (Dead) Through LR's Vs. Sohan Lal (Dead) By LR's; (2000) 1 SCC 434 has held that there are two situations in which interference with findings of fact is permissible. The first one is when material or relevant evidence is not considered which, if considered, would have led to an opposite conclusion. The said judgment has been relied by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Thulasidhara and Another Vs. Narayanappa and Others; (2019) 6 SCC 409.

30. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of T. Ramalingeswara Rao (Dead) Vs. N. Madhava Rao; 2019 (37) LCD 1664 has held in paragraph 12 as under:-

"12. When the two Courts below have recorded concurrent findings of fact against the plaintiffs, which are based on appreciation of facts and evidence, in our view, such findings being concurrent in nature are binding on the High Court. It is only when such findings are found to be against any provision of law or against the pleading or evidence or are found to be wholly perverse, a case for interference may call for by the High Court in its second appellate jurisdiction."

31. A coordinate Bench of this Court in the case of State of U.P. and Others Vs. Ashok Kumar and Others; 2014 SCC Online All 12789 has held that under Section 107 C.P.C. the appellate court has got jurisdiction to exercise all such powers which is vested in the Courts of original jurisdiction. Virtually, the appeal is in continuation of suit.

32. In view of the aforesaid discussion this court is of the considered opinion that the suit could not have been decided without considering, appreciating and recording any finding on the basis of evidence adduced before it merely on the ground of delay in lodging the FIR. Accordingly, the substantial question of law nos.5 and (a) are decided in favour of the appellant / plaintiff and against the respondent / defendants. Therefore the judgment and decree passed in Regular Suit and the Civil Appeal are not tenable in the eyes of law and liable to be set-aside with direction to decide the Regular Suit No.64 of 1999 (Sahab Deen Vs. Keshav Prasad and Others) afresh after considering the evidence adduced before it in accordance with law.

33. So far as the application for impleadment of the appellant / plaintiff is concerned, the provisions of Section 52 of the Transfer of Property Act would be applicable on the subsequent sale deeds. However and since the second appeal is being decided considering the substantial question of laws and being remanded for fresh disposal, the application stands disposed of with liberty to the appellant / plaintiff to implead the subsequent purchasers before the trial court, if so advised.

34. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Arjan Singh Vs. Punit Ahluwalia and Others; (2008) 8 SCC 348 has held that execution of sale deed during pendency of the suit would be hit by the doctrine of lis pendens as adumbrated under Section 52 of the Transfer of Property Act and would not come in the Court's way in passing a decree in favour of the appellant. Its validity or otherwise would not be necessary to be considered as the appellant is not bound thereby.

35. The second appeal is, accordingly, allowed. The judgment and decree dated 27.01.2017 passed in Regular Civil Appeal No.27 of 2014 by the learned Additional District Judge / Special Judge (A.P.) CBI, Lucknow and judgment and decree dated 18.10.2002 passed in Regular Suit No.64 of 1999 (Sahab Deen Vs. Keshav Prasad and Others) passed by learned Civil Judge, (J.D.) Hawali, Lucknow are hereby set-aside. The matter is remanded to the trial court to decide the Regular Suit No.64 of 1999 (Sahab Deen Vs. Keshav Prasad and Others) afresh expeditiously and preferably within six months from the date of receipt of record. No orders as to costs.

36. The lower court record, alongwith a copy of this order, shall be remitted to the trial Court within two weeks from today.

THE HON'BLE J.J. MUNIR, J.

Second Appeal No. 460 of 1996

Chandrawati ...Appellant
Versus
Faisal Khan & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Appellant:
Sri T. Varma, No Name, Sri J.S. Pandey

Counsel for the Respondents:
Sri M. Islam, Sri Syed Ahmed Faizan

A. Civil Law- Indian Succession Act, 1925 – Section 213 (1) and (2) – Will – Need of probate to claim under it – Exception in favour of Muslim and Christian – Relevance – Sub-Section (2) is a proviso to sub-Section (1) and clearly excepts wills made by Mohmandans and Indian Christians from the teeth of the mandatory requirement about obtaining probate of a will by a legatee, before he claims under it – Even if for a moment it were to be considered that there was some doubt about the constitutionality of this provision on ground that it excepts members of two particular religious communities, there is no basis to infer that kind of a discrimination – This is so because the view of the law regarding the requirement of a compulsory probate, as interpreted by the Supreme Court and this Court, would show that there is no requirement, even for a Hindu, Buddhist, Sikh or Jain, or for that matter, anyone to obtain probate of a will in Uttar Pradesh. (Para 15)

B.Evidence Law- Indian Evidence Act, 1872 – Section 73 – Comparison of the signature – Court's power – None of the parties produced any expert in support of their plea – The Court was competent to go into the question by doing a comparison going by the clear legislative edict to that effect, carried in Section 73. (Para 21 and 24)

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. This is a defendant's second appeal. The plaintiff-respondents (for short, "the plaintiffs') instituted O.S. No. 63 of 1983 in the Court of Munsif, Amroha, District Moradabad against the four defendants, seeking relief of permanent prohibitory injunction, to the effect that respondent Nos. 2 and 3 be restrained perpetually from delivering possession of the suit property to defendant Nos. 1 and 4 and to maintain status quo on the spot. The Trial Court, vide judgment and decree dated 22.02.1992 decreed the suit restraining defendant Nos. 1 and 4 from interfering with the plaintiffs' possession over the suit property. Defendant Nos. 2 and 3 were declared tenants in the said property and were ordered by the decree to attorn the plaintiffs as their landlords. A declaration was also made in those terms. The sole appellant, Smt. Chandrawati, who was defendant no. 1 to the suit, is hereinafter referred to as "the defendant'. The plaintiff-respondents, who are arrayed here as plaintiff-respondents first set, are hereinafter referred to as "the plaintiffs'. Defendant nos. 2 and 3, who are arrayed as respondent Nos. 5 and 6 in the second set, shall be hereinafter referred to as "defendant nos. 2 and 3'. The defendant No. 4 to the suit Usman Ali, Advocate here arrayed as respondent No. 7 in the second set, shall be hereinafter referred to as "defendant No. 4'.

2. Aggrieved by the aforesaid decree, the defendant carried an appeal to the District Judge, Moradabad where it was registered as Civil Appeal No. 137 of 1992. Upon assignment, it came up for determination before the Court of the 4th Additional District Judge, Moradabad, who by the impugned judgment and decree dated 12th March, 1996, dismissed the defendant's appeal with costs and affirmed the Trial Court.

3. Aggrieved, this appeal from the appellate decree has been filed.

4. This appeal was admitted to hearing on the following substantial questions of law:

1. whether the will dated 26.10.1979 alleged to have been executed by Abdul Mueed in favour of Farhan Khan was proved in accordance with law. If not its effect?

2. Whether will dated 26.10.1979 can be made the basis of the suit without getting probate for the same?

3. Whether the courts below could act as an Expert and tally the signature of the plaintiff-respondents by themselves?

4. Whether the courts below have gone beyond the relief sought and made declaration which would not have been pleaded or proved by the plaintiff-respondents?

5. The hearing in this appeal commenced on 29.01.2020 when Sri J.S. Pandey, Advocate holding brief of Sri Tarun Varma, learned counsel for the appellant addressed the Court on behalf of the appellant. No one appeared on behalf of the respondents. Accordingly, this appeal has proceeded ex parte. It was heard on 29.01.2020, 21.01.2020 and today. At the hearing, Sri J.S. Pandey has confined his submissions to two substantial questions of law that is to say questions Nos. 2 and 3 extracted supra. Now, the suit giving rise to this appeal appears to have been instituted in the Court of Munsif, Amroha for a permanent prohibitory injunction in terms indicated hereinbefore.

6. The plaintiffs came with a case that one Abdul Mueed Khan was owner in possession of the suit property detailed at the foot of the plaint. Abdul Mueed Khan died issueless. It was the plaintiff's case that Abdul Mueed Khan, during his lifetime, had executed a will bequeathing the suit property in favour of one Farhat Khan on 26.10.1979. Upon death of the testator, succession opened in favour of Farhat Khan in terms of the bequests and Farhat Khan thus became owner and entered possession of the suit property. After the decease of Farhat Khan, the plaintiffs became owners of the suit property by interstate succession, being his heirs under the law. Defendant Nos. 2 and 3 were claimed to be in actual physical possession of the suit property as tenants of the testator, Abdul Mueed Khan, and after his death, they were said to have become the tenants of Farhat Khan. After Farhat Khan, the tenants held on behalf of the plaintiffs' by operation of law. The cause of action in the suit arose as the plaintiffs claimed that the defendant, who had got a sale deed of the suit property executed in her favour by defendant No. 4 on 21.09.1982, in collusion with defendant Nos. 2 and 3, the plaintiffs' tenants, was proceeding to take possession of the said property along with defendant No. 4. The plaintiffs sued to prevent that eventuality and to protect their possession.

7. The defendant filed a written statement traversing the plaint allegations and asserted that the plaintiffs had no cause of action to sue. The defendant asserted that the will dated 26.10.1979 from Abdul Mueed Khan that was propounded by the plaintiffs as a bequest in favour of Farhat Khan, was a forged and bogus document that was got up in collusion with defendant No. 2. It was asserted that defendant No. 4 was owner of the suit property after Mueed Khan, being his nephew as Mueed Khan died issueless. It was also pleaded on behalf of the defendant that the defendant No. 2 has been in occupation as a tenant at the rate of Rs. 150/- per year. There was some dispute about the payment of rent between defendant no. 2 and the original owner of the property, Mueed Khan that had led defendant no. 2 to deposit rent in Court.

8. After exchange of pleadings, issues were struck between parties in Hindi that were rendered into English by the Lower Appellate Court. The issues, six in number, and in the manner rendered into English by the lower Court, read as follows:

1. Whether Abdul Mueed Khan was the owner and in possession of the property in dispute?

2. Whether Abdul Mueed Khan had executed a will on 26.10.79 of the disputed property in favour of Farhat Khan?

3. Whether Usman Khan was the owner of the property in dispute?

4. Whether the sale deed dated 21.09.82 executed by Usman Khan in favour of defendant no. 1 is illegtal and void?

5. Whether the suit has wrongly been valued and the court fees paid is insufficient?

6. To what relief, if any, are the plaintiffs entitled?

9. Learned counsel for the appellant does not dispute the correctness of the English rendition of the issues done by the Lower Appellate Court. The parties led evidence, both documentary and oral, where four witnesses were examined on behalf of the plaintiffs and one on behalf of the defendant.

10. A reading of the judgment of the Lower Appellate Court shows that the will was proved by examining both marginal witnesses. The will was accepted to be proved on the evidence of PW-3, Buniyad Ali, who successfully established, in the opinion of the Courts below, for a fact that he had seen the testator's sign the will and himself had signed in the presence of the testator, who had seen him sign. The Lower Appellate Court concurring with the Trial Court appears to have found the will to be a plausible disposition by the testator, who has been held to be a literate person. He has also been found to be one who could understand the consequences of his actions and his best interest. The Lower Appellate Court on a reasonable view of the evidence, has excluded practice of any fraud, cheating or deception, to secure execution of the will on a plain paper, that was subsequently got signed.

11. Heard Sri J.S. Pandey, Advocate holding brief of Sri Tarun Varma, learned counsel for the appellant. No one appears on behalf of the respondents.

12. There cannot be much scope for this Court to interfere with consistent findings of fact recorded by the two Courts below about proof of the will in favour of Farhat Ali by Abdul Mueed Khan, the testator. Learned counsel for the appellant also does not canvass a case that those findings are wrong or can be re-evaluated in the present second appeal.

13. Learned Counsel for the appellant Sri Pandey, however, has emphatically submitted that the will dated 26.10.1979 propounded by Abdul Mueed Khan in favour of Farhat Ali Khan could not have been accepted by the Courts below, whatever they might have found for a fact regarding proof of the will, the logical nature of its disposition, exclusion of a case of fraud and deceit etc. He submits that the will could not have been acted upon or looked into by the Courts below because of the provisions of Section 213 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925 (for short, the Succession Act') . It is urged that Section 213 (supra) prohibit any Court of justice from accepting the right of any person as an executor or a legatee under a will, unless a Court of competent jurisdiction in India has granted probate of the will, under which the legatee claims. It is submitted here for a fact that no probate of the will dated 26.10.1979 was ever granted by a Court of competent jurisdiction, as mandated by Section 213 of the Succession Act.

14. This Court has considered the submission of the learned counsel for the appellant with reference to the substantial question of law No. 2, formulated in this appeal. For one, the issue that an unprobated will cannot be acted upon on behalf of a person who claims a right under it as a legatee, was not raised either before the Trial Court or before the Lower Appellate Court. It has been raised before this Court for the first time. As such, there is no factual foundation before this Court to act upon the plea, to the extent, that for a fact, it is not known whether probate was indeed secured or not. Assuming that a probate of the will in question was not secured, going by the practice in the State, the question is being determined on the basis of a premise that there was no probate of the will in question. The provisions of Section 213 of the Succession Act are being quoted in extenso:

"213. Right as executor or legatee when established.--

(1) No right as executor or legatee can be established in any Court of Justice, unless a Court of competent jurisdiction in 1[India] has granted probate of the Will under which the right is claimed, or has granted letters of administration with the Will or with a copy of an authenticated copy of the Will annexed.

[(2) This section shall not apply in the case of Wills made by Muhammadans [or Indian Christians], or and shall only apply--

(i) in the case of Will made by any Hindu, Buddhist, Sikh or Jaina where such Wills are of classes specified in clauses (a) and (b) of section 57; and

(ii) in the case of Wills made by any Parsi dying, after the commencement of the Indian Succession (Amendment) Act, 1962, where such Wills are made within the local limits of the ordinary civil jurisdiction of the High Courts at Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, and where such Wills are made outside those limits, in so far as they relate to immoveable property situated within those limits.

15. A bare reading of the provisions of sub-Section (2) of Section 213 shows that sub-Section (2) is a proviso to sub-Section (1) and clearly excepts wills made by Mohmandans and Indian Christians from the teeth of the mandatory requirement about obtaining probate of a will by a legatee, before he claims under it. Even if for a moment it were to be considered that there was some doubt about the constitutionality of this provision on ground that it excepts members of two particular religious communities from the operation of the rule in sub-Section (1) of Section 213, there is no basis to infer that kind of a discrimination, also. This is so because the view of the law regarding the requirement of a compulsory probate, as interpreted by their Lordships of the Supreme Court and this Court, would show that there is no requirement, even for a Hindu, Buddhist, Sikh or Jain, or for that matter, anyone to obtain probate of a will in Uttar Pradesh. In this regard, the decision of this Court in Dr. Sunil Kumar vs. Chaitanya Prakash and others, 2014 SCC OnLine All 15433: 2014 (10) ADJ 642 may be referred to with profit. Paragraphs 8, 9 and 10 of the report in Dr. Sunil Kumar (supra) is relevant, where it has been held:

8. From the perusal of the aforementioned provisions, it is quite evident that a probate will not be required to be obtained by a Hindu in respect of a Will made regarding the immovable properties situate in Uttar Pradesh. The same view taken by this Court in the Case of Naubat Ram v. Gayatri Devi [1968 ALJ 69.] . Here in the present case, the parties are Hindu and the property situate in the State of Uttar Pradesh, as such, section 57 read with section 213 of the Indian Succession Act is not at all application in the present case.

9. At this juncture, it is useful to refer the observations made by the Apex Court in the case of Clarence Pais v. Union of India [2001 (43) ALR 249 (SC).] , which reads as follows:

"The scope of section 213(1) of the Act is that it prohibits recognition of rights as an executor or legatee under a Will without production of a probate and sets down a rule of evidence and forms really a part of procedural requirement of the law of forum. Section 213(2) of the Act indicates that its applicability is limited to cases of persons mentioned therein. Certain aspects will have to be borne in mind to understand the exact scope of this section. The bar that is imposed by this section is only in respect of the establishment of the right as an executor or legatee and not in respect of the establishment of the right in any other capacity. The section does not prohibit the will being looked into for purpose's other than those mentioned in the section. The bar to the establishment of the right is only for its establishment in a Court of justice and not its being referred to in other proceedings before administrative or other Tribunal. The section is a bar to everyone claiming under a Will, whether as plaintiff or defendant, if no probate or Letters of Administration is granted. The effect of section 213(2) of the Act is that the requirement of probate or other representation mentioned in sub-section (1) for the purpose of establishing the right as an executor or legatee in a Court is made inapplicable in case of a will made by Muhammadans and in the case Of wills coming under section 57(c) of the Act. Section 57(c) of the Act applies to all Wills and codicils made by any Hindu, Buddhist, Sikh or Jain, on or after the first day of January, 1927 which does not relate to immovable property situate within the territory formerly subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal or within the local limits of the ordinary civil jurisdiction of the High Courts of Judicature at Madras and Bombay, or in respect of property within those territories. No probate is necessary in the case of Wills by Muhammadans. Now by the Indian Succession [Amendment] Act, 1962, the section has been made applicable to Wills made by Parsi dying after the commencement of the 1962 Act. A combined reading of sections 213 and 57 of the Act would show that where the parties to the Will are Hindus or the properties in dispute are not in territories falling under section 57(a) and (b), sub-section (2) of section 213 of the Act applies and sub-section (1) has no application. As a consequence, a probate will not be required to be obtained by a Hindu in respect of a will made outside those territories or regarding the immovable properties situate outside those territories. The result is that the contention put forth on behalf of the Petitioners that section 213(1) of the Act is applicable only to Christians and not to any other religion is not correct."

10. Learned Counsel for the revisionist has relied upon the decision of the Apex Court in the case of T. Venkata Narayana v. Smt. Venkata Sub-bamma (dead) [(1995) 5 SCC 691 : 1996 (28) A.I.R. 70 (SC).] . The authority cited by the learned Counsel for the revisionist is not at all applicable in the present case. In the said case the Apex Court has not considered the implication of section 57 read with section 213 of the Indian Succession Act. However, the Apex Court in his subsequent decision in the case of Clarence Pais v. Union of India (supra) has made it clear that a probate will not be required to be obtained by a Hindu in respect of a Will made with respect to the immovable properties situate in Uttar Pradesh.

16. The substantial questions of law raised is squarely answered against the appellant by the decision of this Court in Dr. Sunil Kumar (supra) following the decision of their Lordships of the Supreme Court in Clarence Pais v. Union of India, 2001 (4) SCC 325, the relevant part of which has been quoted in Dr. Sunil Kumar (supra). The position that therefore emerges is that neither a Hindu or a Mohmandan and practically all classes of persons who have been mentioned in Section 213 of the Succession Act, read with Section 57, whomsoever are required to compulsorily obtain a probate of a will under which they claim as legatee, or to be the executor thereof, in respect of a bequest made for immovable properties situate in Uttar Pradesh. Substantial question of law No. 2 pressed on behalf of the appellant is, accordingly, answered in the negative.

17. The other substantial question of law that has been pressed by Sri Pandey on behalf of the appellants is substantial question of law No. 3, hereinabove extracted. Learned counsel for the appellant submits that the will cannot be regarded as proved going by the findings recorded by the Courts below, as those Courts being Courts of fact, were under an obligation to call an expert to determine the genuineness of the signatures of the testator on the will, once the bequest was disputed by the defendant. The submission of Sri Pandey, in particular, is that there was a specific case pleaded in paragraph 3 of the written statement that the will propounded by the plaintiffs dated 26.10.1979, was absolutely a forged and bogus document. He submits that in the face of such a plea, it was imperative for the Courts below to have called in aid an expert to determine the genuineness of the testator's signatures. He has criticized the approach of the Trial Court, in going about doing a comparison of the admitted and the disputed signatures of the testator, by comparing the two specimens itself and holding that the signatures of the testator on the bequest were genuine.

18. This Court has considered the aforesaid submission keenly. It is true for a fact that the Trial Court has gone about the exercise of doing a comparison of the admitted and the disputed signatures of the testator on the will, comparing them with certain admitted signatures, the specimen of which were available on certain documents, which are marked as Exhibits 5 to 7. The Trial Court on doing a comparison of the admitted and the disputed signatures has recorded a finding that the two signatures are attributable to one and the same person. In this regard, the Trial Court has recorded the following finding (in Hindi vernacular):

इस अभिलेख पर अब्दुल मुईद खां के लेख में लिखे गये कुछ निर्विवादपत्र प्रस्तुत किये गये। वादी के द्वारा प्रस्तुत पत्र, प्रदर्श–5 से 7 है। इन पत्रों पर अबदुल मुईद खां का लेख तथा हस्ताक्षर प्रतिवादिनी सं0 के साक्षी डी0 डब्लू0 2 सुनाउल्लाह खां ने भी स्वीकार किया। अबदुल मुईद खां के इन पर उपलब्ध हस्ताक्षर इच्छापत्र पर उपलब्ध हस्ताक्षरों से पूर्ण रपेण मिलते है। इसी प्रकार प्रतिवादिनी सं0 के द्वारा प्रस्तुत पत्र प्रदर्श क–2 से क–5 पर उपलब्ध अबदुल मुईद खां के हस्ताक्षर इच्छापत्र पर उपलब्ध हस्ताक्षरों से पूर्ण रपेण मेल खातें है

19. Now, whether the Trial Court could do this by a comparison of the admitted signatures with those disputed, without the aid of an expert, is the moot question. In this regard, the provisions of Section 73 of the Indian Evidence Act are very relevant. These are quoted infra:

73. Comparison of signature, writing or seal with others admitted or proved.--In order to ascertain whether a signature, writing or seal is that of the person by whom it purports to have been written or made, any signature, writing, or seal admitted or proved to the satisfaction of the Court to have been written or made by that person may be compared with the one which is to be proved, although that signature, writing, or seal has not been produced or proved for any other purpose. The Court may direct any person present in Court to write any words or figures for the purpose of enabling the Court to compare the words or figures so written with any words or figures alleged to have been written by such person.

1[This Section applies also, with any necessary modification, to finger impressions.]

1.Ins. By Act 5 of 1899, sec. 3.

20. In support of his contention learned counsel for the appellant has relied upon a decision of the Gauhati High Court in Shyam Sundar Chowkhani alias Chandan & others vs. Kajalkanti Biswas, AIR 1999 Gau 101, where it has been held:

"14. Since the science of identification of handwriting by comparison is not an infallable one, prudence demands that before acting on such opinion, the Court should be fully satisfied about the authorship of the admitted writing which is made the sole basis for comparison and the Courts should also be fully satisfied about the competence and credibility of the handwriting Expert. When there are conflicting opinions, it is necessary to exercise extra care and caution in evaluating their opinions before accepting the same. In no case can the Court base its finding solely on the opinion of the Handwriting Expert. It however does not mean that even if there exists numerous shrieking similarities and mannerism which tend down to identify the writer, the Court will not act on the Expert's evidence. It all depends on the character of the evidence of the Expert and the facts and circumstances of each case. The ordinary method of proving handwriting are:--

(i) By calling as a witness a person who wrote the document or saw it written or with qualified expert opinion as to the hand writing by virtue of Section 47 of the Evidence Act.

(ii) By the admission of the person against whom the document is tendered.

(iii) By comparison of handwriting as provided in section 73 of the Evidence Act. It should also be borne in mind that only where other evidence is not available and the handwriting has not been proved by independent witness to be the handwriting of a particular person that it is necessary to have recourse to the provisions of section 73 of the Evidence Act. The two paragraphs of section 73 are not mutually exclusive. They are complementary to each other, section 73 is, therefore, to be read as a whole in the light of section 45 of the Evidence Act. (See (1979) 2 SCC 158 : AIR 1979 SC 14). Section 73 read as a whole in the light of section 45 and section 47 of the Evidence Act makes it clear that the Court does not exceed its power under section 73 of the Evidence Act if in the interest of justice, it directs a person appearing before it whether it is Civil or Criminal Court to give a sample writing to enable the same to be compared by Hand Writing Expert because even in adopting such course the purpose is to enable the Court to compare the disputed writing with the admitted writing and to reach its own conclusion with assistance of the Expert.

16. First let us take up the legality of the finding arrived at by the Court regarding genuineness of the signatures of the plaintiffs in Exhibit K.A. In order to decide it again we must go back to section 73 of the Evidence Act. Although Section 73 empowers the Court to compare the disputed writing with the specimen/admitted writing shown to be genuine, prudence demands that the Court should be extremely slow in venturing an opinion on the basis of comparison, more so, when the quality of evidence in respect of specimen/admitted writing, is not of high standard (See (1992) 3 SCC 700 : AIR 1992 SC 2100). Of course that case before the Apex Court was a criminal case. As pointed out by Privy Council in 3 Indian Appeals 154 - A comparison of a hand writing by the Court with the other document not challenged as fabricated upon its own initiative and without guidance of an expert and even that it is at all times hazardous and recognizably inconclusive. It is unsafe to arrive at a decision in a case where there is a conflict of testimony between the parties as to the general character of a signature on the correct determination of the genuineness of the signature by mere comparison with the admitted signatures specially without the and in evidence of microscopic enlargement or any expert's evidence (See AIR 1928 Privy Council 277). further a signature made for the occasion post-litem-motam merely for the use at the trial ought not to be taken as a standard, as it is likely to be simulated. It may however, be compared with any genuine writing for all, that is, worth. The criteria of comparison of signature can not be a safe guide and surely can not be the sole guide. But that is, what has been done by the learned judge in this particular case. The learned Judge did not discus any other evidence on this point and based solely on his own comparison, he came to the finding that the signatures in Exhibit KA are not the signatures of the plaintiffs.....…"

21. In the present case none of the parties produced any expert in support of their plea, particularly the defendant, who urged that the bequest was a forged document and the signatures thereon were not those of the testator. It was her burden to have examined an expert, and may be thereafter, the plaintiff would also have to examine an expert. To whatever end the experts would have opined, the Court would then avail the benefit of two expert reports before it while forming its opinion whether the signatures on the will were genuine or not. In the absence of any side, particularly the defendant examining an expert, it was always open to the Court to have done a comparison of its own, between the disputed signatures and those admitted, and recorded its own conclusions as it has done.

22. The scope, authority and duty of the Court's power to do a comparison of the disputed signature/ handwriting with that admitted fell for consideration of the Supreme Court in Murari Lal vs. State of Madhya Pradesh, (1980) 1 SCC 704, where it was held:

"12. The argument that the court should not venture to compare writings itself, as it would thereby assume to itself the role of an expert is entirely without force. Section 73 of the Evidence Act expressly enables the court to compare disputed writings with admitted or proved writings to ascertain whether a writing is that of the person by whom it purports to have been written. If it is hazardous to do so, as sometimes said, we are afraid it is one of the hazards to which Judge and litigant must expose themselves whenever it becomes necessary. There may be cases where both sides call experts and two [Vide Correction slip No. F. 3/79 (Ed.J) dt. 21-8-80] voices of science are heard. There may be cases where neither side calls an expert, being ill able to afford him. In all such cases, it becomes the plain duty of the court to compare the writings and come to its own conclusion. The duty cannot be avoided by recourse to the statement that the court is no expert. Where there are expert opinions, they will aid the court. Where there is none, the court will have to seek guidance from some authoritative textbook and the court's own experience and knowledge. But discharge it must, its plain duty, with or without expert, with or without other evidence. We may mention that Shashi Kumar v.Subodh Kumar [AIR 1967 SC 1326 : 1967 Cri LJ 1197] and Fakhruddin v. State of M.P. [AIR 1967 SC 1326 : 1967 Cri LJ 1197] were cases where the Court itself compared the writings."

23. In this regard, a decision of this Court in Satya Prakash Pandey and others vs. Dev Brat Mishra, 2011 (3) ADJ : 2011 SCC OnLine All 202 may be referred to. In Satya Prakash Pandey and others (supra) it has been held in paragraph 16, 17 and 18 of the report:

"16. The second reason given in the impugned order for entertaining and deciding a review application is that the view expressed by the earlier Presiding Officer on the genuineness of the signatures appearing on the compromise 64 Ka was erroneous. Admittedly in the present case neither of the parties have applied or furnished any report of an expert on the disputed signatures. The court in the absence of any such report has the jurisdiction to peruse the signatures and come to a prima facie finding with respect to its genuineness on comparison. Moreover the opinion of the expert is merely an opinion which generally requires corroboration. The court can decide whether the expert opinion requires corroboration at all. The expert report can be accepted only if the court is satisfied by comparing the admitted signature with the disputed signature and then come to its own conclusion. Hence when an expert report is available on record of a case it is still the conclusion of the court that either accepts it or rejects it. The court in any event has to take the final decision. Therefore, in a case where there is no expert report on record the court has to even then give its conclusion on the dispute and that can be done by the court upon bare perusal of the two signatures.

17. The Supreme Court in Murari Lal (supra) held that by comparing the writing itself the court could not assume the rule (sic) in of an expert. Section 73 of the Evidence Act enables the court to compare the disputed writing with admitted or proved writing to ascertain whether the writing is of that person. The opinion of the expert is an aid to the court, but where there is no such report the court will have to seek guidance from the authoritative text book and the court's own experience and knowledge. It was held that duty is to be discharged by the court with or without expert and with or without other evidence.

18. Admittedly in the present case neither of the parties have produced or applied for report of a handwriting and fingerprint expert. The Court never refused to admit an expert opinion. In such circumstances the court was within its jurisdiction to form an opinion by comparison of the disputed and admitted signatures. That is what has been done by the court in the judgment under review. The impugned order is an order passed on a review application and such was not a ground under Order XLVII Rule 1 Code of Civil Procedure to hold that an error apparent on the face of record has been committed in comparison of the signature by the earlier Presiding Officer, and hence it can be reviewed."

24. The present case is clearly one where the Court did not refuse to admit in evidence any expert opinion produced by the parties. But, shorn on any expert assistance, the Court was competent to go into the question by doing a comparison going by the clear legislative edict to that effect, carried in Section 73 of the Indian Evidence Act. This view has the approval of their Lordships of the Supreme Court in Murari Lal vs. State of M.P., AIR 1980 SC 531, which has been referred to in Satya Prakash Pandey and others (supra). It is not a case where the Court took upon itself the role of an expert, where it had guidance. It is a case where the Court discharged its duty in accordance with Section 73 where there was no expert evidence led by parties to its aid, in deciding upon the dispute regarding genuineness of the signatures, that was raised by the defendants.

25. In this view of the matter, substantial question No. 3 is answered in the manner that in the absence of an expert report being filed by either party, it is not only open to a Court but its duty to do a comparison of the admitted and disputed signatures and record its own findings. In view of the answers to substantial questions of law nos. 2 and 3, which alone were pressed, this court does not find any merit in this appeal.

26. This appeal fails and is dismissed. However, costs will go easy looking to the fact that the respondents have not appeared at the hearing.

27. Let a decree be drawn up, accordingly.

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE AJAY BHANOT, J.

Second Appeal No. 540 of 1991

The Union of India & Anr. ...Appellants
Versus
Sri Awadhesh Kumar Agarwal
...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellants:
Sri S.N. Agarwal, Sri Devendra Tripathi

Counsel for the Respondent:
Sri Sri Dhan Prakash, Sri Rakesh Kumar Garg

A. Civil Law-Indian Railways Act, 1890 – Section 78-B – Compensation – Service of Notice – Limitation of time – Object – Purpose of the notice is to enable the Railway authorities to make an expeditious and meticulous enquiry into the nature and bonafides of the claim for compensation – It would prevent stale claims from being raised to the detriment to the Railway authorities – A bonafide claim would also encourage resolution of disputes without recourse to frivolous litigation – There is a strong public interest element involved in this provision. (Para 22, 23 and 24)

B. Interpretation of Statute – Liberal construction – Pedantic approach – Statutory period of six month for service of notice – Held, in view of the purpose of the the enactment, the notice under Section 78B of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, has to be construed in a liberal manner and a pedantic approach has to be eschewed. (Para 26)

C. Civil Law-Indian Railways Act, 1890 – Section 140 – Mode of Service – Multiple or Exclusive – A combined reading of Sections 78B and 140, show that no exclusive mode for service of notice has been provided in the statute. The service can be made by multiple modes as described in the said provision – The phrase 'may be served' in Section 140 manifests the permissive intent of the legislature in regard to the mode of service and conferment of the option of choosing the mode of service upon the claimant – The legislature accords primacy to the fact of effective service of notice over the method of service. (Para 33, 34 and 36)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajay Bhanot, J.)

1. This second appeal arises out of the judgment and decree dated 23.11.1990 rendered in Civil Appeal No. 03 of 1987, Awadhesh Kumar Agarwal Vs. Union of India and another, by learned Special Judge, Essential Commodities Act, Etah, which reverses the judgment and decree of the learned trial court/ learned Additional Civil Judge, Etah in Original Suit No. 15 of 1984, (Awadhesh Kumar Agarwal Vs. Union of India and another), dated 05.08.1986.

2. The instant second appeal has been instituted by the defendants in the civil suit.

3. The plaintiff-respondent brought civil proceedings, registered as Original Suit No. 15 of 1984, (Awadhesh Kumar Agarwal Vs. Union of India and another), seeking compensation for damage caused to goods by the negligence of the Railway authorities. The learned trial court by judgment and decree dated 05.08.1986 had dismissed the suit of the plaintiff on the foot that the notice dated 21.07.1981 sent by the plaintiff, under Section 78B of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, was not served upon the Railway authorities within the time stipulated under the said provision.

4. The plaintiff took the judgment and decree of the learned trial court in appeal. The appeal was registered as Civil Appeal no. 03 of 1987, Awadhesh Kumar. Vs. Union of India and another.

5. The only point formulated for determination and argued before the learned first appellate court was whether the notice under Section 78B of the Indian Railways Act was lawful and within the statutory time limit prescribed in the provision. The findings of the appellate court are set forth hereinafter.

6. The learned appellate court in its judgment took judicial notice of the fact that a telegram is delivered within 24 hours of its dispatch. If the distance between the two places, namely, place of dispatch and the point of receipt is very far, at the outside the telegram will be received by the addressee within 48 hours.

7. Admittedly, the telegram was sent by the plaintiff on 21.07.1981. Six months period from the date of delivery of the goods for carriage to the railways, were set to expire on 25.07.1981. The appellate court noticed the statement on oath given by the plaintiff in regard to timely service of the telegram and also the failure of the defendant-appellant to refute the same. The appellate court then opined that in the normal course of things, the telegram would reach its destination within 24 hours after the same was booked for dispatch by the plaintiff-respondent. There was no reason to take a different view in this case.

8. The endorsement made by the railway employees of the Gorakhpur Office of the Railways on the telegram that the same was received on 28.07.1981, was disbelieved by the learned appellate court. The learned appellate court found against the Railways (defendant-appellant), that on the basis of such endorsement, it cannot be concluded that the telegram did not reach its destination in the time.

9. Consequently, the learned appellate court found that it cannot be said that the plaintiff did not submit his claim within time.

10. The learned appellate court then delved into the legal obligations of the postal authorities, after a telegram is submitted to them for dispatch. The Posts and Telegraph Departments became responsible for timely dispatch of the telegram after the signature and deposit of prescribed expenses for telegraph services. In light of such legal obligations of the postal authorities also the plaintiff cannot be fastened with for delay on the part of the postal authorities.

11. The learned appellate court finally concluded that the date on which the letter were delivered to the postal department for dispatch, along with the prescribed expenses would be the date of service of the notice for the claim. The plaintiff-respondent had delivered telegram for dispatch after payment of prescribed expenses on 21.07.1981. Hence, it would be presumed that the claim was also submitted by the plaintiff on like date i.e.

12. The contents of the notice were also noticed by the learned appellate court. The telegraphic communication records the date and number of the Bilti. The consignment of goods was identified with full particulars in the notice. The amount of loss and the demand /claim of compensation is also stated in the communication sent by the telegram.

13. After looking to the said recitals in the telegram, the learned first appellate court found that the substance of the claim for compensation was mentioned in the telegram. In this manner, the telegram satisfied the ingredients of Section 78B of the Indian Railways Act.

14. In the wake of these enquiries, the first appellate court found that the claim sent by the plaintiff-respondent was within prescribed time and the notice conformed to the requirements of Section 78B of the Indian Railways Act, 1890.

15. The learned first appellate court allowed the appeal of the plaintiff and set aside the judgment and decree dated 05.08.1986 of the learned trial court. The suit of the plaintiff for Rs. 9,740.50/- along with costs was decreed in favour of the plaintiff-appellant by the learned appellate court.

16. Aggrieved by the judgment of the learned appellate court, the defendant-respondent, namely, Union of India, instituted the instant second appeal before this Court.

17. Shri Devendra Tripathi, learned counsel for the appellant submits that the learned first appellate court erred in law and misinterpreted the provisions of Section 78B read with Section 140 of the Indian Railways Act, 1890. Learned counsel for the appellant contended that on account of such incorrect interpretation, the notice which was ineffective and time barred was found to be valid and within time prescribed by the first appellate court.

18. Shri Rakesh Kumar Garg, learned counsel for the respondents submits that all the ingredients of Section 78B were satisfied. The contents of notice were consistent with Section 78B of the Indian Railways Act, 1890. Further the notice was within time and cannot be held to be outside the period of limitation.

19. The learned counsels for both the parties agree that the following substantial question of law arises for consideration in appeal:

"1. Whether the notice dated 21.07.1981 conformed to the requirements of Section 78B of the Indian Railways Act and was served within the time stipulated therein, and in a manner provided in the said provision read with Section 140 of the Indian Railways Act, 1890?"

20. A claim to compensation for loss caused by the Railways has to be preceded by a notice of such claim under Section 78B of the Indian Railways Act, 1890 (as amended from time to time) to the competent authorities described in the aforesaid provision. The service of such notice has to be made in the manner provided under Section 140 of the Indian Railways Act, 1890.

21. Thus, the combined reading of Section 78B and Section 140 of the Indian Railways Act, 1890 (as amended from time to time), provides the conditions precedent and the statutory scheme for instituting and processing of claims to compensation for losses. Section 78B provides for the notice in the following terms:

"78B. Notification of claims to refunds of overcharges and to compensation for losses. A person shall not be entitled to a refund of an overcharge in respect of animals or goods carried by railway or to compensation for the loss, destruction, damage, deterioration or non-delivery of animals or goods delivered to be carried, unless his claim to the refund or compensation has been preferred in writing by him or on his behalf

(a) to the railway administration to which the animals or goods were delivered to be carried by railway, or

(b) to the railway administration on whose railway the destination station lies, or the loss, destruction, damage or deterioration occurred, within six months from the date of the delivery of the animals or goods for carriage by railway :

Provided that any information demanded or inquiry made in writing from, or any complaint made in writing to, any of the railway administration mentioned above by or on behalf of the person within that said period of six months regarding the non-delivery or delay in delivery of the animals or goods with particulars sufficient to identify the consignment of such animals or goods shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to be a claim to the refund or compensation."

22. The purpose of the notice contemplated under Section 78B of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, is to enable the Railway authorities to make an expeditious and meticulous enquiry into the nature and bonafides of the claim for compensation. This enquiry would aid the Railway authorities in determining whether the loss for which compensation is being claimed was occasioned by negligence of the Railway employees or agents of the Railways and the extent of the responsibility of the Railways to pay such compensation.

23. A specific time period prescribed in Section 78B of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, for a notice for compensation, would prevent stale claims from being raised to the detriment to the Railway authorities. The Railway authorities will be hard put to entertain claims submitted after inordinate delay as evidence would be lost to time and remembrance.

24. A bonafide claim would also encourage resolution of disputes without recourse to frivolous litigation. There is a strong public interest element involved in this provision. Fictitious claims and frivolous litigation make an unnecessary drought on the time of the courts and are a drain on the public exchequer.

25. The purpose of the notice is not to deprive a bonafide claimant of his/her legitimate claim but to assist the process of determining both the correctness and the quantum of such claim. The provision also offers a protection to the Railways against fraudulent claims.

26. In this wake, the notice under Section 78B of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, has to be construed in a liberal manner and a pedantic approach has to be eschewed. The effective service of the notice in the time period stipulated in the statute, is of course a mandatory requirement before Courts can consider the claim on its merits.

27. The fundamental ingredients of such a notice, as set out under Section 78B of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, is that the claim should be preferred in writing. The section also requires that claim must be preferred strictly within the time period mentioned in it. The notice should contain a claim for damages. There is no requirement for a specific sum for compensation to be denoted in the notice. The notice has to be served upon the competent authority described in the provision.

28. At this stage, it is pertinent to mention here that Section 78B of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, was inserted by amending Act No. 39 of 1961 in the Indian Railways Act, 1890. The corresponding old section or precursor of Section 78B of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, was Section 77 which ran as follows:

"77. Notification of claims to refunds of overcharges and to compensation for losses. A person shall not be entitled to a refund of an overcharge in respect of animals or goods carried by railway or to compensation for the loss, destruction, damage, deterioration or non-delivery of animals or goods delivered to be so carried, unless his claim to the refund or compensation has been preferred in writing by him or on his behalf to the railway administration within six months from the date of the delivery of the animals or goods for carriage by railway."

29. A perusal of amended Section 78B of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, and its precursor Section 77 of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, shows the nature of the notice in both the provisions essentially remains the same. The amendments in regard to the notice made under Section 78B of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, only provide for certain additional railway authorities to whom the notice is to be preferred and also incorporates communications which are deemed to be valid notices under Section 78B of the Indian Railways Act, 1890.

30. The scope and purpose of Section 77 of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, discussed in the preceding part of the narrative, finds support in authority of old standing. The authority can be safely applied to this case as well.

31. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Jetmull Bhojraj Vs. Darjeeling Himalayan Railway Co. Ltd. and Others, reported at AIR 1962 SC 1879, considered the scope of the notice under Section 77 of the Indian Railways Act, 1890. In Jetmull Bhojraj (supra), the Hon'ble Supreme Court consolidated and distilled the authorities handed down by the various High Courts in regard to the requirements of a notice under Section 77 of the Indian Railways Act, 1890. Being in agreement with such authorities, adopted the same in their entirety by holding thus:

"20.The first question to which we address ourselves is whether the appellant had complied with the requirements of Section 77 of the Railways Act. The relevant portion of that section reads thus:

"A person shall not be entitled to compensation for the loss, destruction or deterioration of goods delivered to be so carried unless his claim to compensation has been perferred in writing by him or on his behalf to the Railway administration within six months from the date of the delivery of the goods for carriage by railway."

The High Courts in India have taken the view that the object of service of notice under this provision is essentially to enable the Railway administration to make an enquiry and investigation as to whether the loss, destruction or deterioration was due to the consignor's laches or to the wilful neglect of the Railway administration and its servants and further to prevent stale and possibly dishonest claims being made when owing to delay it may be practically impossible to trace the transaction or check the allegations made by the consignor. In this connection we may refer to a few of the decisions. They are:Shamsul Huqv.Secretary of State[ILR 57 Cal 1286] ;A. Mahadeva Ayyarv.S.I. Railway[R 45 Mad 135 (FB)] ;Governor-General-in-Councilv.Gouri Shankar Mills Ltd., [ILR 28 Pat 178 FB] ;Meghaji Hirajee & Co.v.Bengal Nagpur Railway[(1939) Nag 141] . Bearing in mind the object of the section it has also been held by several High Courts that a notice under Section 77 should be liberally construed. In our opinion that would be the proper way of construing a notice under that section. In enacting the section the intention of the legislature must have been to afford only a protection to the Railway administration against fraud and not to provide a means for depriving the consignors of their legitimate claims for compensation for the loss of or damage caused to their consignments during the course of transit on the Railways."

32. The mode of service of notice on railway administration is provided under Section 140 of the Indian Railways Act, 1890. The provision being relevant to the controversy is extracted hereunder:

"140. Service of notices on railway administration. Any notice or other document required or authorised by this Act to be served on a railway administration may be served, in the case of a railway administered by the Government, on the Manager or the Chief Commercial superintendent and, in the case of a railway administered by a railway company, on the Agent in India of the railway company--

(a) by delivering the notice or other document to the Manager or the Chief Commercial Superintendent or Agent; or

(b) by leaving it at his office; or

(c) by forwarding it by post in a prepaid letter addressed to the Manager or the Chief Commercial Superintendent or Agent at his office and registered under the Indian Post Office Act, 1898 (VI of 1898)."

33. A combined reading of Sections 78B and 140 of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, show that no exclusive mode for service of notice has been provided in the statute. The service can be made by multiple modes as described in the said provision.

34. The phrase "may be served" in Section 140 of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, manifests the permissive intent of the legislature in regard to the mode of service and conferment of the option of choosing the mode of service upon the claimant.

35. Section 140(a) of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, contemplates service of notice "by delivering the notice" to the competent officials named therein. Section 140(b) of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, visualises service "by leaving it at his office". The amplitude of the provision allows service to be made in diverse forms. The claimant may adopt any of the methods of service according to his preference. However, the fact of effective service is an imperative requirement.

36. Clearly the legislature accords primacy to the fact of effective service of notice over the method of service.

37. The view taken by by this Court in regard to the scheme of Section 140 read with Section 78B of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, can be reinforced by good authority.

38. A Full Bench of the Hon'ble Madras High Court in A. Mahadeva Aiyar Vs. The South Indian Railway Company, Limited, reported at AIR 1922 Mad 362 : 1921 SCC OnLine Mad 140, while considering the scope of Section 140 of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, held thus:

"12...Section 140refers to three modes by which service may be effected, namely (1) delivery of the notice to the Manager or Agent personally, (2) leaving it at his office and (3) sending it by registered post. The second and third methods are not peisonal service but a person is relieved from further liability if he leaves the notice at the Agent's office or sends it by registered post, even if the notice for some reason does not actually come into the Agent's hands.. The object of the section is to see that the company gets notice and there is no magic in the methods provided for by the section to see that it reaches him, if as a matter of fact the notice comes into his hands. Supposing the plaintiff adopts the method of sending the notice by post without registration and the Agent admits receipt of the notice which is otherwise valid, there is no reason for holding that non-registration is such a vital defect that it invalidates the notice. The Code of Civil Procedure provides for modes of service of summons and notices. I do not think it can be said that where a party without objection receives and admits receipt of the summons or notice, he can fail to appear and plead the mode by which he received the process as an excuse.

So far as notices of action are concerned the substantial point is whether they reached the person to whom the law requires notice to be given; and the method by which he received it is a matter which is of comparative unimportance and a deviation from the methods prescribed in the section will in my opinion be only an irregularity."

39. The plaintiff chose the mode of service of notice by sending a telegraph. Notices or communications sent by telegraph, are covered under the Indian Telegraph Act, 1885, as well as the Indian Evidence Act, 1872. This mode of service clearly comes within the ambit of Section 140(a) and 140(b) of the Indian Railways Act, 1890.

40. The mode of service adopted by the plaintiff-respondent to serve the notice upon the appellant-respondent/railway authorities, was a lawful mode as contemplated under the Indian Railways Act,1890.

41. The learned appellate court has found that the notice contemplated under Section 78B of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, was served upon the competent authority on 21.07.1981. The last date of service of notice in terms of Section 78B of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, was 25.07.1981. The contents of the notice as recorded by the learned appellate court have been noticed earlier.

42. The above findings of fact returned by the learned first appellate court have been extracted in extenso in the earlier part of the narrative. The findings of fact are beyond reproach and are based upon material and the evidence in the record. These findings of fact are also supported with cogent reasons.

43. Applying the aforesaid findings of fact to the statutory scheme explained hereinabove, this Court finds that the notice for claim under Section 78B of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, was served upon the competent railway authority within the statutory period of six months from the date of the delivery of the consignment. The notice contained the demand for compensation as contemplated in the provision. The notice clearly identifies the goods with sufficient particulars to enable the railway authorities to undertake any necessary enquiry in that regard.

44. In this manner, the service of the notice upon the Railway authorities was valid and within the time period prescribed under Section 78B of the Indian Railways Act,1890. Further, the ingredients of a notice as required under Section 78B of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, are satisfied by the notice dated 21.07.1981 sent by the plaintiff-respondent.

45. The service of such a valid notice with the stipulated time period is a precondition for success of any claim for compensation. The service of a valid notice in the manner prescribed by law, has been established. The claim of the plaintiff-respondent for compensation is liable to be allowed and was rightly granted by the learned first appellate court.

46. The substantial question of law is answered as follows.

"The notice under Section 78B of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, contained the necessary ingredients in a valid notice for compensation and was also served in a lawful manner and within the time frame prescribed in Section 78B of the Indian Railways Act, 1890. The notice was fully consistent with the requirements of Section 78B read with Section 140 of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, and cannot be faulted in any manner."

47. The substantial question of law having been answered in favour of the plaintiff-respondent and against the appellant, the judgment and decree of the learned first appellate court is liable to be upheld.

48. The judgment and decree dated 23.11.1990 rendered by the learned Special Judge, Essential Commodities Act, Etah, in Civil Appeal No. 03 of 1987 (Awadhesh Kumar Agarwal Vs. Union of India and another) is affirmed.

49. The second appeal is dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vipin Chandra Dixit, J.)

1. Both the First Appeals From Orders have been filed under Section 173 of Motor Vehicle Act, 1988(hereinafter referred as 'Act, 1988') against the judgment and award dated 13.9.1996 passed by Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/Vth Additional District Judge, Bulandshahr(hereinafter referred as 'Tribunal') in Motor Accident Claim Petition No. 88 of 1992 by which compensation of Rs.2,02,000/- alongwith 12% interest had been awarded to the claimant Netrapal Singh on account of injuries received by him in a road accident. Both the appeals were connected and with the consent of counsel for the parties are being decided by common judgment.

2. Brief facts of the case are that the claimant Netrapal Singh had filed claim petition under section 140 and 166 of Act, 1988 claiming compensation of Rs.9,75,000/- alongwith 18% interest on account of injuries received by him in a road accident which had occurred on 16.1.1992. It is alleged in the claim petition that the claimant is owner and driver of mini bus bearing no. DL-5C-4895 and was going to Meerut from village Pittobans, District Bulandshahr and about 6:30- 7:00 a.m. on 16.1.1992 when he reached near 'pullia' of village Kaithala at Bulandshahr-Gulawathi road, all of a sudden Roadways bus bearing no. UGE-705 driven by its driver rashly and negligently came from the opposite direction (Gulawathi side) and dashed the mini bus of claimant who received grievous injuries in the accident. It is also alleged in the claim petition that on account of injuries the claimant has become permanent disabled and as per disability certificate issued by Chief Medical Officer, Meerut he has become permanent disabled to the extent of 58%. The FIR was lodged on 17.1.1992 at 10 A.M. regarding the accident at Gulawathi Police Station. The age of the claimant was 26 years at the time of accident and his income was Rs.6000/- per month from transport business but on account of disability he is unable to do anything.

3. The opposite party/U.P. State Road Transport Corporation(hereinafter referred as "Corporation") had put in appearance and filed its written statement denying the claim allegations and it was pleaded in the written statement that there was fog in the morning and the claimant who was driving mini bus came from wrong side without blowing light and collided with the bus and there was no negligence on the part of driver of the Corporation and the accident was occurred on account of sole negligence of the claimant himself. It was also pleaded that owner and insurance company of mini bus was not impleaded as a party.

4. The Tribunal had framed five issues for determination regarding negligence of the driver of the Corporation, contributory negligence of the claimant, non-impleadment of necessary parties as well as quantum of compensation. The claimant himself had appeared as P.W.-1 and had also produced one eye witness Narendra Singh as P.W.2, Dharamveer Singh(father of the claimant) as P.W.-3, Vijay Daleep, General Manager of Priya Hospital as P.W.-4 and Naveen Kumar, Junior Clerk of C.M.O. office Meerut as P.W.-5,whereas the driver of the Corporation had appeared as D.W.-1 and Narendra Mohan Sharma, Junior Station Incharge of Bulandshahr Depo had appeared as D.W.-2.

5. The Tribunal had recorded the finding while deciding issue nos. 1 and 2 that both the vehicles were coming from opposite directions and both the drivers were driving their vehicles rashly and negligently and were responsible for the accident and hold 40% negligence of claimant who was driving the mini bus and 60% negligence of the driver of the Corporation. The issue no.3 regarding non impleadment of parties was decided against the claimant holding that owner and insurance company of mini bus were necessary parties and since they are not impleaded as a party in the claim petition, the claimant is not entitled for 40% amount of compensation.

6. While deciding issue nos. 4 & 5 regarding quantum of compensation, the Tribunal had disbelieved the income of Rs.6000/- per month as alleged by the claimant and it was accepted as Rs.3000/- per month and deducting 1/3rd towards personal expenses and the multiplier of 18 was applied accepting the age of claimant as 28 years. The future loss of earning was accepted as 58% of the income accepting 58% permanent disability discloses in the disability certificate and assessed the amount of compensation as Rs.3,36,560 including medical expenses and other non pecuniary damages. The amount of compensation was reduced to the extent of 40% on account of 40% contributory negligence and compensation of Rs.2,02,000/- alongwith 12 % interest was awarded vide judgment and award dated 13.9.1996 which is impugned in both the appeals.

7. FAFO No. 860 of 1996 was filed by the claimant for enhancement of compensation on the ground that 40% amount has wrongly been deducted towards contributory negligence, the amount of compensation granted for the pain and agony suffered by the claimant is too low, the income of the claimant has wrongly been assessed as Rs.3000/- per month in place of Rs.6000/- per month and Tribunal has also erred in accepting 58% loss of earning capacity on account of 58% disability whereas on account of disability the claimant/appellant has become unfit for any job and there is 100% loss of earning.

8. FAFO No. 3375 of 2009(Old Defective No. 56 of 1997) has been filed by the Corporation against the same award on the ground that the accident occurred on account of rash and negligent driving of the claimant himself who was driving the mini bus and there was no negligence on the part of driver of the Corporation and 60% liability has wrongly been imposed upon the Corporation holding 60% negligence of driver of Corporation and a very excessive amount of compensation has been awarded and the rate of interest as 12 % is also on higher side.

9. Heard Sri Yogendra Pal Singh, learned counsel for claimant Netrapal Singh and Sri Sanjeev Kumar Yadav, learned counsel for U.P. State Road Transport Corporation and perused the record.

10. The factum of accident has not been disputed by the parties but only the rash and negligence has been disputed by both the parties. The Tribunal had decided the issue of negligence holding that the drivers of both the vehicles were negligent and responsible for the accident and 60% liability has been fixed upon Corporation holding 60% negligence of driver of Corporation and 40% of the claimant holding his contributory negligence. The learned counsel for the Corporation has submitted that the accident had occurred on account of sole negligence of claimant and there was no negligence of Corporation driver. On the other hand, the learned counsel for claimant has submitted that the driver of Corporation was sole negligent and responsible for the accident.

11. The principles for deciding negligence and contributory negligence had been discussed by the Division Bench of this Court in FAFO No. 1818 of 2012 Bajaj Allianz General Insurance Co. Ltd. vs. Smt. Renu Singh and others decided on 19.7.2016. The relevant paragraph nos. 16,19,22 and 25 are reproduced herein below:-

"16. Negligence means failure to exercise required degree of care and caution expected of a prudent driver. Negligence is the omission to do something which a reasonable man, guided upon the considerations, which ordinarily regulate conduct of human affairs, would do, or doing something which a prudent and reasonable man would not do. Negligence is not always a question of direct evidence. It is an inference to be drawn from proved facts. Negligence is not an absolute term, but is a relative one. It is rather a comparative term. What may be negligence in one case may not be so in another. Where there is no duty to exercise care, negligence in the popular sense has no legal consequence. Where there is a duty to exercise care, reasonable care must be taken to avoid acts or omissions which would be reasonably foreseen likely to caused physical injury to person. The degree of care required, of course, depends upon facts in each case. On these broad principles, the negligence of drivers is required to be assessed.

19. In view of the fast and constantly increasing volume of traffic, motor vehicles upon roads may be regarded to some extent as coming within the principle of liability defined in Rylands V/s. Fletcher, (1868) 3 HL (LR) 330*. From the point of view of pedestrian, the roads of this country have been rendered by the use of motor vehicles, highly dangerous. 'Hit and run' cases where drivers of motor vehicles who have caused accidents, are unknown. In fact such cases are increasing in number. Where a pedestrian without negligence on his part is injured or killed by a motorist, whether negligently or not, he or his legal representatives, as the case may be, should be entitled to recover damages if principle of social justice should have any meaning at all.*

22. By the above process, the burden of proof may ordinarily be cast on the defendants in a motor accident claim petition to prove that motor vehicle was being driven with reasonable care or that there is equal negligence on the part of driver of another vehicle.

25. Truck is a very big vehicle where as a car is relatively a very small vehicle. The driver of truck should have taken proper care which he has not taken and therefore, it cannot be said that the driver of truck was not solely negligent. We find no reason to accept the submission of learned counsel for appellant that driver of truck was not solely negligent."

12. In view of the ratio of the above decision, obviously the liability of the heavy vehicle appears to be more. The Tribunal is not justified in confining it to 60%. Taking into account of the entire evidence on record and the fact that the bus of the corporation had hit the mini bus from front slightly on the wrong side, the interest of justice would require the apportionment of negligence in the ratio of 70% and 30% respectively.

13. So far as quantum of compensation is concerned, the claimant had not produced any authentic evidence regarding his income and no income tax return was filed and even he had failed to produce any document regarding ownership of the mini bus and as such the Claims Tribunal has rightly accepted the notional income of the claimant as Rs.3000/- per month.

14. It is further submitted by the counsel for the claimant that the Claims Tribunal had erred in accepting 58% loss of earning on the basis of 58% permanent disability mentioned in the disability certificate issued by Chief Medical Officer whereas there was 100% loss of earning capacity. On the other hand, learned counsel for the Corporation has submitted that the loss of earning was accepted on higher side without recording any finding towards functional disability of whole body.

15. The Hon'ble Apex Court in Raj Kumar vs. Ajay Kumar reported in 2011 (1) TAC 785 has laid down the law in respect of assessment of future loss of income in the case of injury. The relevant paragraphs 8 and 18 are reproduced herein below:-

"8. Where the claimant suffers a permanent disability as a result of injuries, the assessment of compensation under the head of loss of future earnings, would depend upon the effect and impact of such permanent disability on his earning capacity. The Tribunal should not mechanically apply the percentage of permanent disability as the percentage of economic loss or loss of earning capacity. In most of the cases, the percentage of economic loss, that is, percentage of loss of earning capacity, arising from a permanent disability will be different from the percentage of permanent disability. Some Tribunals wrongly assume that in all cases, a particular extent (percentage) of permanent disability would result in a corresponding loss of earning capacity, and consequently, if the evidence produced show 45% as the permanent disability, will hold that there is 45% loss of future earning capacity. In most of the cases, equating the extent (percentage) of loss of earning capacity to the extent (percentage) of permanent disability will result in award of either too low or too high a compensation. What requires to be assessed by the Tribunal is the effect of the permanently disability on the earning capacity of the injured; and after assessing the loss of earning capacity in terms of a percentage of the income, it has to be quantified in terns of money, to arrive at the future loss of earnings (by applying the standard multiplier method used to determine loss of dependency). We may however note that in some cases, on appreciation of evidence and assessment, the Tribunal may find that percentage of loss of earning capacity as a result of the permanent disability, is approximately the same as the percentage of permanent disability in which case, of course, the Tribunal will adopt the said percentage for determination of compensation (see for example, the decisions of this court in Arvind Kumar Mishra v. New India Assurance Co. Ltd.- 2010(10) SCALE 298 and Yadava Kumar v. D.M. National Insurance Co. Ltd. - 2010 (8) SCALE 567).

18. The Tribunal has proceeded on the basis that the permanent disability of the injured-claimant was 45% and the loss of his future earning capacity was also 45%. The Tribunal overlooked the fact that the disability certificate referred to 45% disability with reference to left lower limb and not in regard to the entire body. The said extent of permanent disability of the limb could not be considered to be the functional disability of the body nor could it be assumed to result in a corresponding extent of loss of earning capacity, as the disability would not have prevented him from carrying on his avocation as a cheese vendor, though it might impede in his smooth functioning. Normally, the absence of clear and sufficient evidence would have necessitated remand of the case for further evidence on this aspect. However, instead of remanding the matter for a finding on this issue, at this distance of time after nearly two decades, on the facts and circumstances, to do complete justice, we propose to assess the permanent functional disability of the body as 25% and the loss of future earning capacity as 20%."

16. The Claims Tribunal while assessing the loss of earning capacity has failed to consider the actual functional disability and had erred in accepting 58% loss of earning capacity whereas on account of evidence adduced by the claimant the functional disability is accepted as 45% and loss of future earning capacity as 40%. While assessing the just compensation I found that the Tribunal had committed wrong in applying the multiplier of 18 accepting the age of the claimant as 28 years as the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Smt. Sarla Verma vs. Delhi Road Transport Corporation reported in 2009(2) TAC 677 has held that there are discrepancies/errors in the multiplier scale given in the second schedule and provided multiplier table. Para 21 is reproduced herein below:-

"21. We therefore hold that the multiplier to be used should be as mentioned in column (4) of the Table above (prepared by applying Susamma Thomas, Trilok Chandra and Charlie), which starts with an operative multiplier of 18 (for the age groups of 15 to 20 and 21 to 25 years), reduced by one unit for every five years, that is M-17 for 26 to 30 years, M-16 for 31 to 35 years, M-15 for 36 to 40 years, M-14 for 41 to 45 years, and M-13 for 46 to 50 years, then reduced by two units for every five years, that is, M-11 for 51 to 55 years, M-9 for 56 to 60 years, M-7 for 61 to 65 years and M-5 for 66 to 70 years."

17. The multiplier table provided in the above decision was also affirmed by the Constitutional Bench of Hon'ble Apex

Court in the case of National Insurance Company Ltd. vs. Pranay Sethi reported in 2017(4) T.A.C. 673.

18. The Hon'ble Apex Court has provided the multiplier of 17 for the age group of 26 to 30 years and as such the appropriate multiplier in the present case would be 17.

19. The Claims Tribunal had also erred in deducting 1/3rd towards personal expenses, which is applicable only in the case of death, as held by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Raj Kumar(supra). The paragraph 20 is reproduced herein below:-

"20. In the case of an injured claimant with a disability, what is calculated is the future loss of earning of the claimant, payable to claimant, (as contrasted from loss of dependency calculated in a fatal accident, where the dependent family members of the deceased are the claimants). Therefore there is no need to deduct one-third or any other percentage from out of the income, towards the personal and living expenses."

20. The claims Tribunal had not awarded any amount towards future prospects, whereas the claimant is also entitled 40% future prospects in view of law laid down by the Constitutional Bench of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of National Insurance Company Ltd. vs. Pranay Sethi reported in 2017(4) T.A.C. 673.

21. In view of aforesaid discussion, the quantum of compensation has been reassessed as follows:-

1) Monthly income Rs.3000/-

2) Annual income Rs.3000/- X 12 = Rs. 36,000/-

3) Future prospects 40% = Rs.14,400/-

4) Total annual income = Rs.36000/- + Rs.14,400 =Rs.50,400/-

5) Loss of earning capacity 40% = Rs.20,160/-

6) Multiplier applicable -17 =Rs.20,160 x 17 = 3,42,720/-

7) Medical expenses Rs.60,000/-

8) Non-pecuniary damages Rs.25,000/-

Total Rs. 3,42,720/- + Rs.60,000/- + Rs.25,000/- =Rs.4,27,720/-

22. Since the claimant himself was found negligent to the extent of 30%; as such the amount of compensation is reduced to 30%(Rs. 4,27,720/- minus Rs.1,28,316/- =2,99,404/-). It is taken in round figure as Rs.3,00,000/-. The rate of interest as 12% is also on higher side. The Hon'ble Apex Court in a latest decision Civil Appeal No.242/243 of 2020 National Insurance Company Ltd. vs. Birender and others has awarded 9% interest.

23. In view of aforesaid discussion, both the appeals are hereby disposed off and award of the Tribunal is modified and compensation awarded by the Tribunal is enhanced from Rs.2,02,000/- to Rs.3,00,000/- with interest at the rate of 9% from the date of filing of claim petition. The corporation is directed to pay enhanced amount within two months.

24. No order as to costs.

(Para 34 and 61)

C. Court Proceeding – Decision on merit – D. Micro and Small and Medium Enterprises Development Act, 2006 – Section 2(n) and 8 – Term 'Supplier' – Meaning – Requirement of filing of Memorandum within 180 days – Court below relied upon the notification bearing No. 2/311123007-MSNE POL (PL) to arrive at conclusion that it is not mandatory for an Industrial undertaking to file its Industrial Entrepreneur's Memorandum – Since this was the only ground relied upon by Uttar Pradesh State Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur, the finding so recorded by Council was rightly set aside by Court below – In the absence of any such materials to establish that filing of Industrial Entrepreneur's Memorandum is mandatory, the finding recorded by the Court below upheld. 1. This First Appeal From Order under Section 37 of Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 (hereinafter referred to as Act, 1996) has been filed by Respondent-Appellant challenging judgement and order dated 08.09.2015 passed by District Judge, Kanpur Nagar in Misc. Case No. 100/74 of 2010 (M/s P.M. Electronics Limited Vs. Uttar Haryana Bijli Vitran Nigam Ltd. (UHBVNL) under Section 34 of Act, 1996, whereby Court below has set aside award dated 22.02.2010 delivered by U.P. State Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council Kanpur and remanded the matter before aforesaid Council Kanpur for decision a fresh on merits after giving notice and opportunity of hearing to the parties.

2. We have heard Mr. H. N. Singh, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Mr. Ashutosh Srivastava, Advocate alongwith Mr. M.C. Chaturvedi, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Mr. Baleshwar Chaturvedi. Learned counsel for Respondent-Appellant and Mr. Alok Kumar Yadav, learned counsel representing Claimant-Opposite Party.

3. Respondent-appellant Uttar Haryana Bijli Vitran Nigam Ltd. (hereinafter referred to as UHBVNL) is a Government of Haryana undertaking having its registered office at Shakti Bhavan Sector-6 Panchkula, Haryana (hereinafter referred to as 'Appellant'). Appellant is engaged in distribution of electricity.

4. Claimant-Opposite Party M/S P. M. Electronics Ltd. is a Company duly incorporated under the Companies Act, 1956 (hereinafter referred to as Claimant-Opposite Party). Claimant-Opposite Party is engaged in manufacturing and marketing of power and distribution transformers of various KVA ratings.

5. Appellant awarded various purchase orders to Claimant-Opposite Party during the period 1991 to 2000. Things were going on smoothly and bills of Claimant-Opposite Party were being paid regularly. However, in the year 1997, it appears that there was some delay in payment of principal amount. Accordingly, Claimant-Opposite Party filed CMWP No. 7916 of 1997 before Punjab and Haryana High Court claiming payment of interest on principal amount for the period of delayed payment. During pendency of above mentioned writ petition, Claimant-Opposite Party filed a Civil Misc. Application in the aforesaid writ petition praying therein that directions be issued to Government of Haryana to establish Industrial Facilitation Council (hereinafter referred to as 'IFC') as contemplated under Sections 7A and 7B of Interest on Delayed Payment to Small Scale Ancillary Industrial Undertaking Act, 1993 (hereinafter referred to as Act, 1993) within a period of three months.

6. It transpires from record that by and large contract awarded to Claimant-Opposite Party was performed smoothly by him. However, in the year 2000, Claimant-

Opposite Party is alleged to have failed in completing purchase orders resulting in immense loss to UHBVNL. Consequently, in view of above and in accordance with conditions of contract, UHBVNL encashed bank guarantee submitted by Claimant-Opposite Party.

7. It is further gathered from record that Claimant-Opposite Party filed an Original Suit in Civil Court at Panchkula, Haryana, but neither plaint of aforesaid suit nor any other document has been brought on record to show the relief claimed in aforesaid suit or what has ultimately happened in that suit.

8. Subsequently, Chief Engineer UHBVNL, Panchkula Haryana passed an order dated 3.10.2006, blacklisting Claimant-Opposite party, but there is nothing on record to show that aforesaid order dated 3.10.2006 was challenged by Claimant-Opposite party.

9. Punjab and Haryana High Court did not examine the merits of claim raised by petitioner i.e. Claimant-Opposite Party herein in CMWP No. 7916 of 1997 but disposed of the said writ petition finally vide order dated 13.02.2002.

10. Perusal of order dated 13.02.2002 goes to show that aforesaid writ petition was disposed of finally on the undertaking given by counsel for State of Haryana. For ready reference order dated 13.02.2002 referred to above is reproduced herein-below:

" In pursuant to order dated December 20, 2001, Mrs. Meenaxi Anand Chaudhary, Principal Secretary, to government of Haryana, Department of Power is present in Court. She has stated that the Government shall constitute the requisite council as provided under Section 7A of the Interest on Delayed Payment to Small Scale and Ancillary Industrial Undertakes (Amendment) Act, 1958. She has further stated that in fact is the Small Scale Industries Department, which is directly concerned with this matter. However, she has stated for and on behalf of the Government of Haryana that Council shall be constituted within a period of three months from today.

In this view of the matter, the application has been rendered instructions and the same is disposed of accordingly.

Dasti on payment."

11. Pursuant to aforesaid order dated 07.05.2002 passed by Punjab and Haryana High Court, Government of Haryana established IFC at Chandigarh. Accordingly, Claimant-Opposite Party filed his claim before IFC (Haryana) under Act 1993, vide claim dated 31.07.2002 claiming a sum of Rs.12,70,89,049/- alongwith pendente-lite and future interest as well as cost of claim petition.

12. Perusal of Claim Petition dated 31.07.2002 filed by claimant-opposite party goes to show that Claimant-Opposite Party in support of of it's claim of Rs.12,70,89,049/- pleaded that claimant-opposite party is a small scale industrial unit having permanent registration certificate. Claimant-Opposite party supplied various goods under different purchase orders to appellant. However, appellant failed to make timely payment i.e. within the time period prescribed by Act 1993. It was then pleaded that claimant-opposite party falls within the category of 'Supplier' as defined under section 2 (f) of Act 1993. Respondent-appellant is a 'Buyer' and therefore, liable under the statute i.e. Act 1993 to make payment on or before period prescribed under Act 1993. As appellants have failed to make payment on or before due date, as envisaged under section 3 of Act 1993, they are liable to pay interest for the period of delayed payment as per the rates prescribed is Sections 4 and 5 of Act 1993. Aforesaid provisions cast a statutory duty upon Purchaser to pay interest for the period of delayed payment.

13. During pendency of aforesaid Claim Petition dated 31.07.2002 filed by claimant-opposite party before IFC, Haryana Micro Small and Medium Enterprises Development Act, 2006 (hereinafter referred to as Act, 2006) came into force on 02.10.2006. By reason of Section 32 of Act 2006, old Act of 1993 stood repealed.

14. Consequently, after coming into force of Act, 2006, IFC (Haryana) losts its existence. As a result of aforesaid, dispute of parties pending before IFC Haryana came to be stayed and thereafter adjourned as IFC (Haryana) now had no jurisdiction to decide claim of Claimant-Opposite Party. Under the new Act 2006, jurisdiction to decide claim of Claimant-Opposite Party now vested with Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council Haryana or Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Uttar Pradesh which were established at Chandigarh and Kanpur respectively as per Section 20 read with Section 21 of Act, 2006.

15. Claimant-Opposite Party filed an application dated 21.03.2007 before Director of Industries Haryana-Cum-Chairman Industries Facilitation Council Haryana praying therein that original file pertaining to claim submitted by claimant-opposite party be sent to U.P. State Micro & Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Directorate of Industries (U.P.) Kanpur. Thereafter, Claimant-Opposite Party filed reminders dated 27.11.2006, 08.12.2006, 22.12.2006, 07.02.2007 and 07.04.2007 in continuation of transfer application dated 21.3.2007 earlier filed by him.

16. However, as no consequential action was taken on aforesaid applications/representations submitted by claimant-opposite party, they submitted a new claim dated 19.06.2007 before U.P. State Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council which was constituted under Act, 2006. Claimant-Opposite Party now revised its claim to Rs.42,19,02,100/-. The break up of same is as follows:

"Interest due as per Section 16 and 17 of Act i.e. Rs. 40,74,54,079/-

Cost of goods supplied Rs. 43,50,817/-

Cost of recoveries made illegally through encahsment of Bank Guarantee and the cost of material supplied Rs.1,00,97,204/-"

17. Subsequently, Haryana State Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council passed an order dated 02.04.2008 directing Claimant-Opposite Party to approach Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur as Claimant-Opposite Party is registered in Uttar Pradesh. For ready reference order dated 02.04.2008 is reproduced herein-below:-

Sir,

Reference this office letter No. TS/HMSEFC/Ist meeting/392-A dated 8.1.2008 on the subject cited above.

2. The Ist meeting of Ist Meeting of Haryana Micro and Small Enterprises Facilitation Council fixed for 22.01.2008 at 11-00 AM under the Chairmanship of the undersigned. The decision of the Council is reproduced below:

"M/s P.M. Electronics Pvt. Ltd. Noida has submitted an applicati0on for transfer of their case to Micro & Small Enterprises Facilitation Council set up by the U.P. State, since HMSEFC under the Micro, Small & Medium Development Act, 2006 does not have jurisdiction to proceed further in their case. To this effect the claimant has submitted various representations dated 21.3.07,7.4.07, 29.10.07 and 22.1.2008 respectively.

On the request of the Claimant, the Council decided to dispose of the case since the unit of the claimant is registered in U.P. Sate with the direction to claimant to approach MSEFC set up by the U.P. Govt. if they so desire"

This is for your kind information.

18. It is pursuant to aforesaid order that claim of Claimant-Opposite Party submitted on 19.6.2007, came to be considered by Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur.

19. Notices were issued to opposite party, i.e. Appellant herein by Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur. Accordingly, Appellant filed objections dated 22.12.2008 before Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur. According to Appellant, claim raised by Claimant-Opposite Party is not tenable as Claimant-Opposite Party had originally filed a claim of Rs.12,70,89,049.00, which was pending before Haryana Industrial Facilitation Council and later on before Haryana Micro and Small Enterprises Facilitation Council, Chandigarh. Aforesaid claim was transferred to U.P. Micro and Small Enterprises Facilitation Council (UPMSME), vide order dated 22.01.2008. Therefore, filing of a fresh claim without disclosing pendency of previous pending claim amounts to concealment of fact and therefore, claim is liable to be dismissed on aforesaid ground. Apart from above, fresh claim as filed by claimant opposite party is barred by limitation and therefore liable to be dismissed.

20. It may be noted that proceedings before Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur were to be conducted as per provisions of Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 (hereinafter referred to as 'Act, 1996').

21. Ultimately, Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industries Facilitation Council, Kanpur gave arbitral award dated 22.02.2010, whereby claim of Claimant-Opposite Party M/S P.M. Electronics Ltd. was rejected.

22. Perusal of award dated 22.02.2010 passed by Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur goes to show that Council has rejected claim of Claimant-Opposite Party by formulating two points of consideration;

A. Whether Claimant can file petition for interest being treated to be a supplier as defined in Section 2(n) of the Act.

B. Whether Claimant can claim interest on due interest when principal amount has already been received by him.

23. While considering the first point of consideration as to whether claimant is to be treated as 'Supplier' as defined in Section 2(n) of Act, 2006, Council considered meaning of the term 'Supplier', as defined in Section 2(n) read with Section 8 of Micro and Small and Medium Enterprises Development Act, 2006, to ascertain whether claimant i.e. opposite party herein, is covered within the meaning of term "Supplier' as defined in Section 2(n) of Act, 2006. For ready reference Section 2 (n) and Section 8 of Micro and Small and Medium Enterprises Development Act, 2006 relied upon by Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur, are reproduced herein-below:-

"Section 2(n). "Supplier" means a micro or small enterprise, which has filed a memorandum with the authority referred to in sub-section (1) of section 8, and includes,-

(i) The National Small Industries Corporation, being a company, registered under the Companies Act, 1956 (1 of 1956)

(ii) The Small Industries Development Corporation of a State or a Union territory, by whatever name called, being a company registered under the Companies Act, 1956 (1 of 1956)

(iii) any company, co-operative society, trust or a body, by whatever name called, registered or constituted under any law for the time being in force and engaged in selling goods produced by micro or small enterprises and rendering services which are provided by such enterprises;

Section 8. Memorandum of micro, small and medium enterprises-(1) Any person who intends to establish-*

(a) A micro or small enterprise, may, at his discretion, or

(b) A medium enterprise engaged in providing or rendering of services may, at his discretion; or

(c) A medium enterprise engaged in the manufacture or production of goods pertaining to any industry specified in the First Schedule to the Industries (Development and Regulation) Act, 1951 (65 of 1951) shall file the memorandum of micro, small, or as the case may be, of medium enterprise with such authority as may be specified by the State Government under sub-section (4) or the Central Government under sub-section (3):

Provided that any person who, before the commencement of this Act, established-

(a) a small scale industry and obtained a registration certificate, may, at his discretion; and

(b) an industry engaged in the manufacture or production of goods pertaining to any industry specified in the

First Schedule to the Industries (Development and Regulation) Act, 1951 (65 of 1951), having investment in plant and machinery of more than one crore rupees but not exceeding ten crore rupees and, in pursuance of the notification of the Government of India in the erstwhile Ministry of Industry (Department of Industrial Development) number S.O.477(E) dated the 25th July, 1991 filed an Industrial Entrepreneur's Memorandum, shall within one hundred and eighty days from the commencement of this Act, file the memorandum, in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

(2) The form of the memorandum, the procedure of its filing and other matters incidental thereto shall be such as may be notified by the Central Government after obtaining the recommendations of the Advisory Committee in this behalf.

(3) The authority with which the memorandum shall be filed by a medium enterprise shall be such as may be specified by notification, by the Central Government.

(4) The State Government shall, by notification, specify the authority with which a micro or small enterprise may file the memorandum.

(5) The authorities specified under sub-sections (3) and (4) shall follow, for the purposes of this section, the procedure notified by the Central Government under sub-section (2)."

24. Upon consideration of Section 2 (n) read-with Section 8 of Act, 2006, Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur concluded that though it is not obligatory for every Micro Small and Medium Enterprise to file a memorandum but only those Enterprises who have filed memorandum can be treated to be 'Supplier' as per Section 2(n) of Act, 2006. It was further observed that as per Section 8 of Act, 2006 such memorandum is required to be filed within 180 days from the date of enforcement of Act, 2006. Since there is nothing on record to show that Claimant-Opposite Party ever filed memorandum before competent authority, as required under Section 8 of Act 2006, he cannot be treated as 'Supplier' as defined under Section 2 (n) of Act, 2006. Consequently, Council concluded that as Claimant-Opposite Party does not fall within the meaning of the term 'Supplier' as defined in Section 2(n) of Act, 2006, its claim cannot be considered. With regard to second point of consideration regarding claim of interest on due interest when Claimant Opposite Party has already received principal amount, Council concluded that claim was barred by limitation.

25. Feeling aggrieved by award dated 22.02.2010, Claimant-Opposite Party filed objections against the same before District Judge, Kanpur in terms of Section 34 of Act, 1996. Same came to be registered as Misc. Case No. 100/74 of 2010 (M/s P.M. Electronics Limited Vs. Uttar Haryana Bijli Vitran Nigam Ltd. (UHBVNL).

26. Perusal of objection under Section 34 of Act, 1996 filed by Claimant-opposite party no.2 goes to show that award dated 22.02.2010 rendered by Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur was challenged by Claimant-Opposite Party on the grounds that finding recorded by Council to the effect that Claimant-Opposite Party does not fall within the meaning of term supplier as defined under Section 2 (n) of Act, 2006 is incorrect. It was further alleged that at the time of presentation of claim in October 2002, Act 2006 relied upon by Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur was not in existence and therefore, claim of Claimant-Opposite Party could not be rejected on the aforesaid ground. Under the Provisions of Act 1993, Claimant-Opposite Party was covered within the definition of term "Supplier" as defined in Section 2 (F) of Act, 1993. Company is not under legal obligation to submit its memorandum as per Section 8(1) (A) of Act, 2006. Thus, Section 8 of Act, 2006 has wrongly been relied upon in case of Claimant-Opposite Party. It was next urged that Section 8 of Act, 2006 grants freedom to Small Scale Industries to present or not to present their memorandum. Therefore, Section 2(n) of Act, 2006 is not to be read alongwith Section 8 of Act, 2006 but independent of the same. It was then contended that finding has been recorded by Council that some dues are pending payment in the hands of purchaser but in spite of the same claim of payment of interest for the period of delayed payment was denied. In elaboration of aforesaid, it was urged that Gauhati High Court in its decision reported in 2002 (1) GLT 947 has held that Act, 1993 creates a statutory liability under the aforesaid Act upon purchaser and he cannot be relieved of his liability to pay interest on delayed payment. Claimant-Opposite Party has raised its claim regarding delayed payment and for that purpose has submitted separate bills which are liable to be paid by Appellant. It was also alleged that Section 3 of Act, 1993 defines statutory obligation of purchaser. The purchaser is bound to make payment of goods received on or before agreed date and in case the purchaser fails to make payment as aforesaid, he shall be liable to pay interest. According to Claimant-Opposite Party, his claim was rejected by Council on the ground that it was barred by limitation as 'Supplies' were made 7 to 10 years before. View taken by the Council is contrary to mandate of Section 14 of Limitation Act, 1963 inasmuch as the period spent in pursuing a wrong legal remedy is liable to be excluded. Admittedly, Claimant-Opposite Party filed CMWP No. 7916 of 1997 in Punjab and Haryana High Court, which was disposed of finally vide order dated 07.05.2002. Upon exclusion of aforesaid period, it cannot be said that claim of Claimant-Opposite Party is barred by limitation. Award rendered by Council is against Public Policy of India and therefore, liable to be set aside under Section 34 (2) (B) (II) of Act, 1996. It was also pleaded that Council did not give equal opportunity to parties which is contrary to mandate of Section 18 of Act, 1996. Award has been passed against Claimant-Opposite Party on non-existent grounds. No objection was ever raised before Council that Claimant-Opposite Party is not a 'Supplier' within the meaning of aforesaid term as defined under Section 2 (n) of Act, 2006. Thus Council has erroneously interpreted Section 8 (1) of Act, 1996. The award has been rendered after a period of 90 days which is in gross violation of Section 8 (1) of Act, 1996. On aforesaid factual and legal premise, claimant-opposite party prayed that award itself is liable to be set aside.

27. Appellant contested the objections filed by Claimant-Opposite Party by filing reply. A preliminary objection was raised on behalf of Appellant that objections under Section 34 of Act, 1996 filed by Claimant-Opposite Party are not maintainable being barred by provisions of Code of Civil Procedure as well as relevant provisions of Act, 1996 in respect of territorial jurisdiction of Court. On merits of the claim, it was pleaded that grounds raised by Claimant-Opposite Party for setting aside award do not fall within ambit and scope of Section 34 of Act, 1996. Claim Petition filed by Claimant-Opposite Party in the year 2008 is hopelessly barred by limitation. It was also contended that Claimant-Opposite Party is not a 'Supplier' within the meaning of term "Supplier" as defined in Section 2 (n) of Act, 2006. Section 2 (n) of Act, 2006 deals with such 'Supplier', who has filed memorandum before authority mentioned in Section 8 of Act, 2006, which is nominated by State Government. Claimant-Opposite Party has failed to establish itself as a 'Supplier' within the meaning of Act, 2006. The pendency of Claim Petition before Haryana MSMEFC was not disclosed in fresh Claim Petition filed by Claimant-Opposite Party.

28. District Judge, Kanpur upon consideration of pleadings of parties, the provisions of Act, 1993, Act, 1996 as also Act, 2006 passed judgement and order dated 08.09.2015 whereby award dated 22.02.2010 passed byUttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industries Facilitation Council, Kanpur was set aside and matter remanded to aforesaid Council to decide same on mertis a fresh after giving notice and opportunity of hearing to parties.

29. Court below concluded that Principal Civil Court, Kanpur has jurisdiction to hear objections under section 34 of Act 1996 filed by claimant-opposite party. In support of aforesaid conclusion reliance was placed upon judgment of Supreme Court in Executive Engineer, Road Development Division No.III, Panvel and another V. Atlanta Limited, 2014 (11) SCC 619, wherein it has been held that where High Court and District Court have jurisdiction to decide objections under Section 34 of Act, 1996 then in that eventuality challenge to award shall lie only before High Court otherwise it shall lie before District Court being Principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction. Reliance was also placed upon Constitution Bench judgement in Bharat Aluminum Company Vs. Kaisar Aluminum Technical Services and Others, 2012 (9) SCC 552, wherein it has been held that the Court having jurisdiction over place where arbitration took place will have jurisdiction to hear objections under sections 34 of Act 1996. Since award dated 22.02.2010 was rendered by Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council at Kanpur and arbitral proceedings were conducted by Council at Kanpur as per provisions of Act 1996, therefore, Principal Civil Court Kanpur shall have jurisdiction to decide objections under section 34 filed by claimant-opposite party.

30. On the issue of parallel remedies being availed by claimant-opposite party, inasmuch as, an original suit has been filed before civil Court at Panchkula, Haryana and during pendency of aforesaid civil suit, claim regarding payment of interest for the period of delayed payment has been raised, Court below concluded that from record it appears that original suit was in respect of purchase order nos. 23 and 24. However, it is not clear whether the claim raised in original suit is the subject matter of present proceeding. In the absence of material regarding above being brought on record, Court below opined that the cause of action pleaded in original suit as well as present proceedings are different.

31. In respect of finding recorded by Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur in the impugned award dated 22.2.2010 that claim raised by claimant respondent is barred by limitation, Court below set aside the same. Reference was made to section 32 of Act 2006 which provides that any proceedings initiated under the Repeal Act shall be deemed to have been filed and pending under the new Act of 2006. For ready reference, Section 32 of Act 2006 relied upon by Court below is reproduced herein under:

"32. Repeal of Act.-- (1) The interest on Delayed Payments to Small Scale and Ancillary Industrial Undertakings Act, 1993 (32 of 1993) is hereby repealed.

(2) Notwithstanding such repeal, anything done or any action taken under the Act so repealed under sub-section (1) shall be deemed to have been done or taken under the corresponding provisions of this Act."

32. Furthermore, after coming into force of Act 2006, IFC (Haryana) had no jurisdiction to hear claim of claimant-opposite party. Consequently, vide order dated 2.4.2008 IFC (Haryana) refused to hear the claim of claimant-respondent and transferred record to Medium and Small Enterprises, Faciliation Council, U.P. As such, by virtue of section 18 (4) of Act 2006, Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur acquired jurisdiction to decide the claim.

33. Lastly, Court below concluded that new claim was filed to avoid delay as IFC (Haryana) had no jurisdiction to decide the claim. This fact has been noted in the order dated 22.1.2008, passed by the Director of Industy/Chairman, Haryana Micro and Small Enterprises Facilitation Council. As the new claim presented by claimant-opposite party is in continuation of their old claim, it cannot be said to be barred by time. To butress aforesaid conclusion, Court below relied upon judgement of Apex Court in M/s Shakti Tubes Ltd. through Director Vs. State of Bihar and Others, 2009 (1) SCC 786, wherein it has been held that period spend in bonafide pursuing a wrong legal remedy should be excluded. In the light of aforesaid judgement, claim presented before IFC (Haryana) will have to be excluded and consequently, the claim of claimant-opposite party cannot be said to be barred by limitation.

34. Court below also considered the question, "whether claimant-opposite party falls within the meaning of term 'Supplier' as defined under section 2 (n) of Act 2006." For this purpose, Court below referred to section 2 (n) and section 8 (1) of Act 1996. Thereafter, Court below referred to a notification bearing No. 2/311123007-MSNE POL (PL) Government of India, whereby filing of Industrial Entrepreneur's Memorandum was made discretionary. Court below further held that above mentioned notification was not placed by Claimant-Opposite party before Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur, which is a bonafide mistake. Claimants have also filed copy of certificate showing that claimant is registered as a Small Scale Industry. It thus concluded that claimant-opposite party falls within the meaning of the term "Supplier" as defined in section 2 (n) of Act 2006.

35. Another issue that was considered by Court below was that Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur by placing reliance upon judgement of Assam High Court in Assam State Electricity Boards and Others Vs. Trusses and Towers Pvt. Ltd., AIR 2002 Assam 49, rejected claim petition filed by claimant opposite party on the ground that claim for payment of interest alone was not maintainable. Aforesaid finding was reversed by Court below, by referring to the case of M/s. Shakti Tubes Ltd. Through. Director v. State of Bihar & Ors, reported in 2009 (1) SCC 786, wherein it has been held that period spent in pursuing a writ petition before High Court should be excluded in reckoning limitation period. Reference was also made to Purvanchal Cabels and Conductors Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Assam State Electricity Board and Others, 2012 (7) SCC 462, wherein it has been held that under scheme of Act, 2006, payment of interest on delayed payment is a statutory liability which must be discharged. Applying ratio of aforesaid judgment, Court below concluded that a claim petition can be filed only for claiming interest also. As such, conclusion drawn by Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur is illegal. Court below strengthened its aforesaid conclusion by observing that supplies were made during the period 1990 to 1996. The payment in respect of aforesaid supplies were made with delay and therefore, claimant is entitled to seek payment of interest for period of delayed payment. Admittedly, claimant-opposite party had filed its claim under section 6 of Act 1993. IFC (Haryana) i.e. the body required to be constituted as per sections 7 (a) and 7 (b) of Act 1993 but was constituted only in the year 2001. Thereafter, claimant filed its claim before aforesaid council in the year 2002. During pendency of claim, Act 2006 came into force and thereafter, Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur was established on 11.6.2007 and claim was presented by claimant opposite party before aforesaid council on 19.6.2007. Thereafter, IFC (Haryana) vide order dated 2.4.2008 disposed of case of claimant-opposite party with direction to approach Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur. In view of aforesaid, Court below concluded that claim filed by claimant-opposite party is not barred by limitation and therefore maintainable.

36. As objections were filed under section 34 of Act 1996, it was obligatory upon Court below to examine, whether objections filed by claimant-opposite party fulfill any of the parameters provided for in section 34 of Act 1996 itself for challenging an award. Court below referred to judgements of Apex Court wherein the provisions of sections 34 of Act 1996 have been interpreted. Reference was made to the judgement in Mcdermott International Inc. Vs. Burn Standard Co. Ltd. and Others, 2006 (11) SCC 181, wherein following has been observed:

" The arbitral award can be set aside if if is contrary to (a) fundamental policy of Indian law; (b) the interests of India; (c) justice of morality; or (d) if it is patently illegal or arbitrary. Such patent illegality however, must go to the root of the matter. The public policy violation, indisputably should be so unfair and unreasonable as to shock the conscience of the court. Lastly, where the arbitrator, however, has gone contrary to or beyond the expressed law of the contract or granted relief in the matter not in dispute, would come within the purview of section 34 of Act"

37. Reference was also made to the case of Bharat Cooking Coal Ltd. Vs. L.K. Ahuja Company Ltd. 2001 (4) SCC 86, wherein Court has observed that where there is an error apparent on the face of award, same is liable to be set aside. Then reliance was placed upon Maharashtra State Electricity Board Vs. Sterilite Industries (India) and Another, 2001 (8) SCC 482, wherein it has been held that where an error of law is apparent on the face of award, the same is liable to be set aside. Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur while passing impugned award has recorded certain findings to conclude that claim filed by claimant-opposite party is not maintainable. Findings recorded by council are illegal and perverse and consequently, award dated 22.2.2010 rendered by council was set aside, vide judgement and order dated 08.09.2015.

38. Feeling aggrieved by aforesaid order dated 08.09.2015 passed by District Judge, Kanpur, Respondent-UHBVNL has now approached this Court by means of present First Appeal From Order preferred under Section 37 of Act, 1996.

39. Mr. H. N. Singh, learned Senior Counsel for Appellant in challenge to impugned judgement and order submits that impugned judgement and order passed by Court below is not only illegal but also without jurisdiction, hence same is liable to be set aside by this Court. Elaborating his arguments, he contends that proceedings under section 34 of Act 1996 is not like an appeal. An award can be set aside only if any of the conditions enumerated in section 34 of Act 1996 which provide the grounds for setting aside an award are satisfied. As none of the grounds provided for in Section 34 of Act 1996 is attracted in present case therefore, Court below committed an illegality in setting aside award dated 22.2.2010, passed by Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur.

40. It is next contended that claim filed by claimant-opposite party was not maintainable as claimant-opposite party cannot be allowed to avail parallel remedies for the same relief. It is an undisputed fact that claimant-opposite party filed original suit in Civil Court at Panchkula, Haryana, which is still pending. During pendency of aforesaid suit, no claim petition under section 6 of Act 1993 was maintainable on behalf of claimant-opposite party.

41. Giving impetus to the challenge made, learned Senior Counsel further contends that claimant-opposite party has filed a time barred claim before Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur. Finding to the contrary recorded by Court below is not only illegal, but also perverse and erroneous.

42. He lastly contended that claimant-opposite party does not fall within the meaning of term 'Supplier' as defined under section 2 (n) of Act 2006 and hence no claim petition could be filed by claimant-opposite party under section 18 of Act 2006. On the aforesaid factual and legal premise, learned Senior Counsel vehemently urged before us that impugned judgement and order passed by Court below is liable to be set aside by this Court.

43. Mr. Alok Kumar Yadav, learned counsel for claimant-opposite party has supported the impugned judgement and order on the strength of the submissions made by him in support of impugned judgement and order passed by Court below and also the observations/findings made in the impugned judgement and order. According to learned counsel for claimant-opposite party, impugned judgement and order passed by Court below is perfectly just and legal. Court below upon consideration of entire gamut of facts and circumstances and law as applicable has opined to remand the matter before Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur for decision afresh after giving notice and opportunity of hearing to the parties. Order of remand passed by Court below is an innocuous order and parties will have adequate opportunity to address Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur on the merits/ demerits of claim raised by claimant-opposite party. As such, present appeal is liable to be dismissed. It is then contended that learned Senior Counsel appearing for appellant could not point out any illegality in the order of remand. Law of remand has now been crystalized and no remand, which is vague, can be sustained. It is also well settled that remand cannot be made to fill up the lacuna in evidence or for the purpose of rehearing. No such situation could be pointed out in impugned order making the same illegal. He thus submits that impugned order of remand passed by Court below is not liable to be interfered with.

44. On the merits of claim submitted by claimant-opposite party, he submits that Court below has recorded a categorical finding that subject matter of original suit filed in civil Court at Panchkula, Haryana and the subject matter of claim filed by claimant-opposite party before IFC (Haryana), vide claim petition dated 31.7.2002 are different. The finding so recorded by Court below has not been specifically challenged as no ground challenging the said finding has been raised in the grounds of appeal nor a question of law to that effect has been framed. Apart from above, no factual foundation has been laid in the affidavit filed in support of stay application disputing correctness of the said finding.

45. He also submits that finding recorded by Court below that claim filed by claimant-opposite party is not barred by limitation is perfectly just and legal. In justification of aforesaid finding, he submits that Claimant-Opposite party had initially filed C.MW.P. No. 7916 of 1997 for payment of interest on principal amount for the period of delayed payment. In the aforesaid writ petition, an application was filed with the prayer that directions be issued to Government of Haryana for establishing Industrial Facilitation Council (IFC) Haryana as per sections 7 (A) and 7 (B) of Act 1993. Aforesaid writ petition was disposed of finally vide order dated 13.2.2002, on the undertaking submitted by the Counsel for Government of Haryana that IFC shall be established. Pursuant to order dated 13.2.2002, IFC (Haryana) was constituted in the year 2002 and consequently claim was filed before IFC (Haryana), vide claim petition dated 31.7.2002. During pendency of aforesaid claim petition, Act, 2006 came into force on 2.10.2006. By reason of Section 32 of aforesaid Act, old Act of 1993 stood repealed. Consequently, Claimant-Opposite Party filed an application dated 21.03.2007 before Director of Industries, Haryana-Cum-Chairman Industries Facilitation Council Haryana praying therein that original file pertaining to claim submitted by claimant-opposite party be sent to U.P. Industry Facilitation Council, Directorate of Industries (U.P.) Kanpur. Thereafter, Claimant-Opposite Party filed reminders dated 27.11.2006, 08.12.2006, 22.12.2006, 07.02.2007 and 07.04.2007 in continuation of transfer application dated 21.3.2007 earlier filed by him. As no action was taken claimant-opposite party submitted its claim dated 19.6.2007 under section 18 of Act 2006 before Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur. It may be noted that Act 2006 came into force on 02.10.2006. Thereafter, under the Act 2006 Haryana Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Chandigarh was established on 5.9.2007. The Council disposed of claim petition filed by claimant-opposite party vide order dated 2.4.2008 and the record was sent by Haryana Council on 16.4.2008. On the aforesaid facts, he submits that reliance placed by Court below upon Section 14 of Limitation Act to extend benefit of limitation to claimant-opposite party, cannot be said to be illegal. Claimant opposite party was bonafide perusing its remedy and therefore, clearly entitled to benefit of section 14 of Limitation Act. It is not the case of appellant that claimant opposite party was not bonafidely pursuing its remedy. As such Court below has not concluded any illegality in granting benefit of Section 14 of Limitation Act of claimant-opposite party.

46. The impugned order was further defended on the submission that Court below has rightly concluded that claim petition filed by claimant-opposite party was maintainable. Referring to section 32 of Act 2006, it was urged that as per mandate of aforesaid section any proceedings initiated under Act 1993 or pending under Act 1993, would be deemed to be initiated under new Act and also pending under new Act. Secondly, he submits that inspite of provisions of Section 32 of Act 2006, Director of Industries/Chairman, Haryana Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council passed order dated 2.4.2008, whereby the claim petition filed by claimant-opposite party was disposed of with liberty to approach Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur as claimant-opposite party is registed in State of U.P. and therefore, Haryana Council has no jurisdiction to adjudicate upon its claim. As no orders transferring pending claim petition were being passed on earlier claim petition dated 31.7.2002 filed by claimant opposite party and further to avoid delay claim petition dated 19.6.2007 was filed before Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur. In view of above, conclusion drawn by Court below holding claim petition filed by claimant-opposite party to be maintainable is perfectly just and legal.

47. Mr. Alok Yadav, in support of impugned judgement and order dated 8.9.2015, passed by Court below further submits that finding recorded by Court below that claimant-opposite party is covered within the meaning of term 'Supplier' as defined in section 2 (A) read with section 8 of Act 1996 is perfectly justified. He contends that Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur while considering the aforesaid issue had concluded that since there is nothing on record to show that claimant has filed its Industrial Entrepreneur's Memorandum within a period of 180 days from the date Act 1996 came into force as per mandate of section 8 (1) proviso, it cannot be treated as 'Supplier'. However, before Court below notification No. 2/311123007-MSNE POL (PL) Government of India was brought on record, whereby filing of Industrial Entrepreneur's Memorandum has been made discretionary. It is on the strength of aforesaid document that Court below has held claimant-opposite party to be a 'Supplier'.

48. From the arguments/counter arguments raised by learned counsel for parties, following issues arise for determination.

(i) Whether the objection filed by Claimant-opposite party satisfied the parameters of Section 34 of Act, 1996.

(ii) Whether the Claimant-opposite party has availed paralled remedies in asmuch as it has filed Original Suit at District Court-Panchuula Haryana and also raised an arbitral dispute.

(iii) Whether the claim of Claimant-opposite party is barred by limitation.

(iv) Whether Claimant-opposite party is covered within the meaning of term "supplier" as defined in Section 2 (n) of Act, 2006.

49. We take up the first point first. An award rendered by arbitral Tribunal can be set aside under section 34 of Act 1996. However, Section 34 of Act 1996 itself provides that award can be set aside only on the grounds enumerated under section 34 of Act 1996. Therefore, what has to be examined by us is, whether any of the parameters provided in section 34 of Act 1996 for setting aside an award are satisfied in the present case and on that account the award dated 22.2.2020 passed by Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council could be set aside.

50. Before we take up the aforesaid exercise, it would be prudent to note that Act, 1996 was amended vide Act No. 3 of 2016 with retrospective effect from 23.10.2015. Accordingly, unamended section 34 of Act, 1996 as well as amended section 34 of Act 1996 are reproduced herein-under:

Unamended

"Section 34 Application for setting aside arbitral award. –

(1) Recourse to a Court against an arbitral award may be made only by an application for setting aside such award in accordance with sub-section (2) and sub-section (3).

(2) An arbitral award may be set aside by the Court only if--

(a) the party making the application furnishes proof that--

(i) a party was under some incapacity, or

(ii) the arbitration agreement is not valid under the law to which the parties have subjected it or, failing any indication thereon, under the law for the time being in force; or

(iii) the party making the application was not given proper notice of the appointment of an arbitrator or of the arbitral proceedings or was otherwise unable to present his case; or

(iv) the arbitral award deals with a dispute not contemplated by or not falling within the terms of the submission to arbitration, or it contains decisions on matters beyond the scope of the submission to arbitration:

Provided that, if the decisions on matters submitted to arbitration can be separated from those not so submitted, only that part of the arbitral award which contains decisions on matters not submitted to arbitration may be set aside; or

(v) the composition of the arbitral tribunal or the arbitral procedure was not in accordance with the agreement of the parties, unless such agreement was in conflict with a provision of this Part from which the parties cannot derogate, or, failing such agreement, was not in accordance with this Part; or

(b) the Court finds that--

(i) the subject-matter of the dispute is not capable of settlement by arbitration under the law for the time being in force, or

(ii) the arbitral award is in conflict with the public policy of India.

Explanation. --Without prejudice to the generality of sub-clause (ii) it is hereby declared, for the avoidance of any doubt, that an award is in conflict with the public policy of India if the making of the award was induced or affected by fraud or corruption or was in violation of section 75 or section 81.

(3) An application for setting aside may not be made after three months have elapsed from the date on which the party making that application had received the arbitral award or, if a request had been made under section 33, from the date on which that request had been disposed of by the arbitral tribunal: Provided that if the Court is satisfied that the applicant was prevented by sufficient cause from making the application within the said period of three months it may entertain the application within a further period of thirty days, but not thereafter.

(4) On receipt of an application under sub-section (1), the Court may, where it is appropriate and it is so requested by a party, adjourn the proceedings for a period of time determined by it in order to give the arbitral tribunal an opportunity to resume the arbitral proceedings or to take such other action as in the opinion of arbitral tribunal will eliminate the grounds for setting aside the arbitral award."

Amended

34 Application for setting aside arbitral award.

(1) Recourse to a Court against an arbitral award may be made only by an application for setting aside such award in accordance with sub-section (2) and sub-section (3).

(2) An arbitral award may be set aside by the Court only if--

(a) the party making the application furnishes proof that--

(i) a party was under some incapacity, or

(ii) the arbitration agreement is not valid under the law to which the parties have subjected it or, failing any indication thereon, under the law for the time being in force; or

(iii) the party making the application was not given proper notice of the appointment of an arbitrator or of the arbitral proceedings or was otherwise unable to present his case; or

(iv) the arbitral award deals with a dispute not contemplated by or not falling within the terms of the submission to arbitration, or it contains decisions on matters beyond the scope of the submission to arbitration:

Provided that, if the decisions on matters submitted to arbitration can be separated from those not so submitted, only that part of the arbitral award which contains decisions on matters not submitted to arbitration may be set aside; or

(v) the composition of the arbitral tribunal or the arbitral procedure was not in accordance with the agreement of the parties, unless such agreement was in conflict with a provision of this Part from which the parties cannot derogate, or, failing such agreement, was not in accordance with this Part; or

(b) the Court finds that--

(i) the subject-matter of the dispute is not capable of settlement by arbitration under the law for the time being in force, or

(ii) the arbitral award is in conflict with the public policy of India.

Explanation1.- For the avoidance of any doubt, it is clarified that an award is in conflict with the public policy of India, only if,--

(i) the making of the award was induced or affected by fraud or corruption or was in violation of section 75 or section 81; or

(ii) it is in contravention with the fundamental policy of Indian law; or

(iii) it is in conflict with the most basic notions of morality or justice.

Explanation 2--For the avoidance of doubt, the test as to whether there is a contravention with the fundamental policy of Indian law shall not entail a review on the merits of the dispute.]

[(2A) An arbitral award arising out of arbitrations other than international commercial arbitrations, may also be set aside by the Court, if the Court finds that the award is vitiated by patent illegality appearing on the face of the award:

Provided that an award shall not be set aside merely on the ground of an erroneous application of the law or by re-appreciation of evidence.]

(3) An application for setting aside may not be made after three months have elapsed from the date on which the party making that application had received the arbitral award, or, if a request had been made under section 33, from the date on which that request had been disposed of by the arbitral tribunal:

Provided that if the Court is satisfied that the applicant was prevented by sufficient cause from making the application within the said period of three months it may entertain the application within a further period of thirty days, but not thereafter.

(4) On receipt of an application under sub-section (1), the Court may, where it is appropriate and it is so requested by a party, adjourn the proceedings for a period of time determined by it in order to give the arbitral tribunal an opportunity to resume the arbitral proceedings or to take such other action as in the opinion of arbitral tribunal will eliminate the grounds for setting aside the arbitral award.

[(5) An application under this section shall be filed by a party only after issuing a prior notice to the other party and such application shall be accompanied by an affidavit by the applicant endorsing compliance with the said requirement.

(6) An application under this section shall be disposed of expeditiously, and in any event, within a period of one year from the date on which the notice referred to in sub-section (5) is served upon the other party.]

51. The term "Public Policy" of India was considered in relation to execution of Foreign Award, for the first time in Renusagar Power Co. Ltd. Vs. General Electric Company, 1994 SCC Supl. (1) 644 wherein following has been observed in paragraph 66:

"66. Article V(2)(b) of the New York Convention of 1958 and Section 7(1)(b)(ii) of the Foreign Awards Act do not postulate refusal of recognition and enforcement of a foreign award on the ground that it is contrary to the law of the country of enforcement and the ground of challenge is confined to the recognition and enforcement being contrary to the public policy of the country in which the award is set to be enforced. There is nothing to indicate that the expression "public policy" in Article V(2)(b)of the New York Convention and Section 7(1)(b)(ii) of the Foreign Awards Act is not used in the same sense in which it was used in Article

1(c) of the Geneva Convention of 1927 and Section 7(1) of the Protocol and Convention Act of 1937. This would mean that "public policy" in Section 7(1)(b)(ii) has been used in a narrower sense and in order to attract the bar of public policy the enforcement of the award must invoke something more than the violation of the law of India. Since the Foreign Awards Act is concerned with recognition and enforcement of foreign awards which are governed by the principles of private international law, the expression "public policy" in Section 7(1)(b)(ii) of the Foreign Awards Act must necessarily be construed in the sense the doctrine of public policy is applied in the field of private international law. Applying the said criteria it must be held that the enforcement of a foreign award would be refused on the ground that it is contrary to public policy if such enforcement would be contrary to (i) fundamental policy of Indian law; or (ii) the interests of India; or (iii) justice or morality."

52. Act, 1996 came into force on 22.08.1996 and old Arbitration Act, 1940 was repealed. Scope of Section 34 of Act, 1996 which deals with challenge to award came to be considered exhaustively in Oil and Natural Gas Corporation Ltd. Vs. Saw Pipes Ltd., 2003 (5) SCC 705, and Court observed as follows in paragraph 31:

"31. Therefore, in our view, the phrase "public policy of India" used in Section 34 in context is required to be given a wider meaning. It can be stated that the concept of public policy connotes some matter which concerns public good and the public interest. What is for public good or in public interest or what would be injurious or harmful to the public good or public interest has varied from time to time. However, the award which is, on the face of it, patently in violation of statutory provisions cannot be said to be in public interest. Such award/judgment/decision is likely to adversely affect the administration of justice. Hence, in our view in addition to narrower meaning given to the term "public policy" inRenusagar case[1994 Supp (1) SCC 644] it is required to be held that the award could be set aside if it is patently illegal. The result would be -- award could be set aside if it is contrary to:

(a) fundamental policy of Indian law; or

(b) the interest of India; or

(c) justice or morality, or

(d) in addition, if it is patently illegal.

Illegality must go to the root of the matter and if the illegality is of trivial nature it cannot be held that award is against the public policy. Award could also be set aside if it is so unfair and unreasonable that it shocks the conscience of the court. Su*ch award is opposed to public policy and is required to be adjudged void."*

53. Law laid down by Apex Court in Oil and Natural Gas Corporation Ltd. (Supra) was consistently followed and came to be reiterated in Mcdermott International Incorporation Vs. Burn Standard Co. Ltd. and Others, 2006 (11) SCC 181, wherein Court considered previous judgements on the ambit and scope of Section 34 and held in paragraphs 58, 59, 60, 62 and 63 as follows:

"58.InRenusagar Power Co. Ltd.v.General Electric Co.[1994 Supp (1) SCC 644] this Court laid down that the arbitral award can be set aside if it is contrary to (a) fundamental policy of Indian law; (b) the interests of India; or (c) justice or morality. A narrower meaning to the expression "public policy" was given therein by confining judicial review of the arbitral award only on the aforementioned three grounds. An apparent shift can, however, be noticed from the decision of this Court inONGC Ltd.v.Saw Pipes Ltd.[(2003) 5 SCC 705] (for short "ONGC"). This Court therein referred to an earlier decision of this Court inCentral Inland Water Transport Corpn. Ltd.v.Brojo Nath Ganguly[(1986) 3 SCC 156 : 1986 SCC (L&S) 429 : (1986) 1 ATC 103] wherein the applicability of the expression "public policy" on the touchstone of Section 23 of the Indian Contract Act and Article 14 of the Constitution of India came to be considered. This Court therein was dealing with unequal bargaining power of the workmen and the employer and came to the conclusion that any term of the agreement which is patently arbitrary and/or otherwise arrived at because of the unequal bargaining power would not only be ultra vires Article 14 of the Constitution of India but also hit by Section 23 of the Indian Contract Act. In ONGC[(2003) 5 SCC 705] this Court, apart from the three grounds stated inRenusagar[1994 Supp (1) SCC 644] , added another ground thereto for exercise of the court's jurisdiction in setting aside the award if it is patently arbitrary.

59.Such patent illegality, however, must go to the root of the matter. The public policy violation, indisputably, should be so unfair and unreasonable as to shock the conscience of the court. Where the arbitrator, however, has gone contrary to or beyond the expressed law of the contract or granted relief in the matter not in dispute would come within the purview of Section 34 of the Act. However, we would consider the applicability of the aforementioned principles while noticing the merits of the matter.

60.What would constitute public policy is a matter dependant upon the nature of transaction and nature of statute. For the said purpose, the pleadings of the parties and the materials brought on record would be relevant to enable the court to judge what is in public good or public interest, and what would otherwise be injurious to the public good at the relevant point, as contradistinguished from the policy of a particular Government. (SeeState of Rajasthanv.Basant Nahata[(2005) 12 SCC 77] .)

62. We are not unmindful that the decision of this Court in ONGC [(2003) 5 SCC 705] had invited considerable adverse comments but the correctness or otherwise of the said decision is not in question before us. It is only for a larger Bench to consider the correctness or otherwise of the said decision. The said decision is binding on us. The said decision has been followed in a large number of cases. (See The Law and Practice of Arbitration and Conciliation by O.P. Malhotra, 2nd Edn., p. 1174.)

63. Before us, the correctness or otherwise of the aforesaid decision of this Court is not in question. The learned counsel for both the parties referred to the said decision in extenso."

54. However, Law commission in its 246th Report made suggestions so as to make the application for setting aside an arbitral award restricted on the ground of public policy and to apply only when award was persuaded or affected by fraud or corruption, or was against the fundamental policy of Indian law or in contravention with the most basic notions of morality.

55. It is in the light of above that Section 34 of Act, 1996 came to be amended by Act, No. 3 of 2016 with retrospective effect from 23.10.2015. We have already referred to the amended provisions of Section 34 of Act, 1996.

56. Subsequently Section 34 of Act, 1996 again came up for consideration in Associate Builders Vs. Delhi Development Authority, 2015 (3) SCC 49, wherein Court again elaborately considered the ambit and scope of Section 34 of Act, 1996 and further crystallized law on the subject after considering Renusagar (Supra), ONGC (supra), Mcdermott International Incorporation (supra) and other judgements which occupied the field. For ready reference paragraphs 13,15,16,17,18,19,20,21,22,23,24,25,26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, which are relevant for the controversy in hand, are reproduced herein below:

"13. Inasmuch as serious objections have been taken to the Division Bench judgment [DDA v. Associate Builders, 2012 SCC OnLine Del 769] on the ground that it has ignored the parameters laid down in a series of judgments by this Court as to the limitations which a Judge hearing objections to an arbitral award under Section 34 is subject to, we deem it necessary to state the law on the subject.

15. This section in conjunction with Section 5 makes it clear that an arbitration award that is governed by Part I of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 can be set aside only on grounds mentioned under Sections 34(2) and (3), and not otherwise. Section 5 reads as follows:

"5.Extent of judicial intervention.--Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, in matters governed by this Part, no judicial authority shall intervene except where so provided in this Part."

16. It is important to note that the 1996 Act was enacted to replace the 1940 Arbitration Act in order to provide for an arbitral procedure which is fair, efficient and capable of meeting the needs of arbitration; also to provide that the tribunal gives reasons for an arbitral award; to ensure that the tribunal remains within the limits of its jurisdiction; and to minimise the supervisory roles of courts in the arbitral process.

17.It will be seen that none of the grounds contained in sub-section (2)(a) of Section 34 deal with the merits of the decision rendered by an arbitral award. It is only when we come to the award being in conflict with the public policy of India that the merits of an arbitral award are to be looked into under certain specified circumstances.

18.InRenusagar Power Co. Ltd.v.General Electric Co.[Renusagar Power Co. Ltd.v.General Electric Co., 1994 Supp (1) SCC 644] , the Supreme Court construed Section 7(1)(b)(ii) of the Foreign Awards (Recognition and Enforcement) Act, 1961:

"7. Conditions for enforcement of foreign awards.--(1) A foreign award may not be enforced under this Act--

(b) if the Court dealing with the case is satisfied that--

(ii) the enforcement of the award will be contrary to the public policy."

In construing the expression "public policy" in the context of a foreign award, the Court held that an award contrary to

(i) The fundamental policy of Indian law,

(ii) The interest of India,

(iii) Justice or morality, would be set aside on the ground that it would be contrary to the public policy of India. It went on further to hold that a contravention of the provisions of the Foreign Exchange Regulation Act would be contrary to the public policy of India in that the statute is enacted for the national economic interest to ensure that the nation does not lose foreign exchange which is essential for the economic survival of the nation (seeSCC p. 685, para 75). Equally, disregarding orders passed by the superior courts in India could also be a contravention of the fundamental policy of Indian law, but the recovery of compound interest on interest, being contrary to statute only, would not contravene any fundamental policy of Indian law (seeSCC pp. 689 & 693, paras 85 & 95).

19. When it came to construing the expression "the public policy of India" contained in Section 34(2)(b)(ii) of the Arbitration Act, 1996, this Court inONGC Ltd.v.Saw Pipes Ltd.[(2003) 5 SCC 705 : AIR 2003 SC 2629] held: (SCC pp. 727-28 & 744-45, paras 31 & 74)

"31. Therefore, in our view, the phrase "public policy of India' used in Section 34 in context is required to be given a wider meaning. It can be stated that the concept of public policy connotes some matter which concerns public good and the public interest. What is for public good or in public interest or what would be injurious or harmful to the public good or public interest has varied from time to time. However, the award which is, on the face of it, patently in violation of statutory provisions cannot be said to be in public interest. Such award/judgment/decision is likely to adversely affect the administration of justice. Hence, in our view in addition to narrower meaning given to the term "public policy' inRenusagar case[Renusagar Power Co. Ltd.v.General Electric Co., 1994 Supp (1) SCC 644] it is required to be held that the award could be set aside if it is patently illegal. The result would be--award could be set aside if it is contrary to:

(a) fundamental policy of Indian law; or

(b) the interest of India; or

(c) justice or morality, or

(d) in addition, if it is patently illegal.

Illegality must go to the root of the matter and if the illegality is of trivial nature it cannot be held that award is against the public policy. Award could also be set aside if it is so unfair and unreasonable that it shocks the conscience of the court. Such award is opposed to public policy and is required to be adjudged void.

74. In the result, it is held that:

(A)(1) The court can set aside the arbitral award under Section 34(2) of the Act if the party making the application furnishes proof that:

(i) a party was under some incapacity, or

(ii) the arbitration agreement is not valid under the law to which the parties have subjected it or, failing any indication thereon, under the law for the time being in force; or

(iii) the party making the application was not given proper notice of the appointment of an arbitrator or of the arbitral proceedings or was otherwise unable to present his case; or

matters beyond the scope of the submission to arbitration.

(2) The court may set aside the award:

(i)(a) if the composition of the Arbitral Tribunal was not in accordance with the agreement of the parties,

(b) failing such agreement, the composition of the Arbitral Tribunal was not in accordance with Part I of the Act,

(ii) if the arbitral procedure was not in accordance with:

(a) the agreement of the parties, or

(b) failing such agreement, the arbitral procedure was not in accordance with Part I of the Act.

However, exception for setting aside the award on the ground of composition of Arbitral Tribunal or illegality of arbitral procedure is that the agreement should not be in conflict with the provisions of Part I of the Act from which parties cannot derogate.

(c) If the award passed by the Arbitral Tribunal is in contravention of the provisions of the Act or any other substantive law governing the parties or is against the terms of the contract.

(3) The award could be set aside if it is against the public policy of India, that is to say, if it is contrary to:

(a) fundamental policy of Indian law; or

(b) the interest of India; or

(c) justice or morality; or

(d) if it is patently illegal.

(4) It could be challenged:

(a) as provided under Section 13(5); and

(b) Section 16(6) of the Act.

(B)(1) The impugned award requires to be set aside mainly on the grounds:

(i) there is specific stipulation in the agreement that the time and date of delivery of the goods was of the essence of the contract;

(ii) in case of failure to deliver the goods within the period fixed for such delivery in the schedule, ONGC was entitled to recover from the contractor liquidated damages as agreed;

(iii) it was also explicitly understood that the agreed liquidated damages were genuine pre-estimate of damages;

(iv) on the request of the respondent to extend the time-limit for supply of goods, ONGC informed specifically that time was extended but stipulated liquidated damages as agreed would be recovered;

(v) liquidated damages for delay in supply of goods were to be recovered by paying authorities from the bills for payment of cost of material supplied by the contractor;

(vi) there is nothing on record to suggest that stipulation for recovering liquidated damages was by way of penalty or that the said sum was in any way unreasonable;

(vii) in certain contracts, it is impossible to assess the damages or prove the same. Such situation is taken care of by Sections 73 and 74 of the Contract Act and in the present case by specific terms of the contract."

20.The judgment inONGC Ltd.v.Saw Pipes Ltd.[(2003) 5 SCC 705 : AIR 2003 SC 2629] has been consistently followed till date.

21.InHindustan Zinc Ltd.v.Friends Coal Carbonisation[(2006) 4 SCC 445] , this Court held: (SCC p. 451, para 14)

"14. The High Court did not have the benefit of the principles laid down inSaw Pipes[(2003) 5 SCC 705 : AIR 2003 SC 2629] , and had proceeded on the assumption that award cannot be interfered with even if it was contrary to the terms of the contract. It went to the extent of holding that contract terms cannot even be looked into for examining the correctness of the award. This Court inSaw Pipes[(2003) 5 SCC 705 : AIR 2003 SC 2629] has made it clear that it is open to the court to consider whether the award is against the specific terms of contract and if so, interfere with it on the ground that it is patently illegal and opposed to the public policy of India."

22.InMcDermott International Inc.v.Burn Standard Co. Ltd.[McDermott International Inc.v.Burn Standard Co. Ltd., (2006) 11 SCC 181] , this Court held: (SCC pp. 209-10, paras 58-60)

"58. InRenusagar Power Co. Ltd.v.General Electric Co.[Renusagar Power Co. Ltd.v.General Electric Co., 1994 Supp (1) SCC 644] this Court laid down that the arbitral award can be set aside if it is contrary to (a) fundamental policy of Indian law; (b) the interests of India; or (c) justice or morality. A narrower meaning to the expression "public policy' was given therein by confining judicial review of the arbitral award only on the aforementioned three grounds. An apparent shift can, however, be noticed from the decision of this Court inONGC Ltd.v.Saw Pipes Ltd.[(2003) 5 SCC 705 : AIR 2003 SC 2629] (for short "ONGC'). This Court therein referred to an earlier decision of this Court inCentral Inland Water Transport Corpn. Ltd.v.Brojo Nath Ganguly[(1986) 3 SCC 156 : 1986 SCC (L&S) 429 : (1986) 1 ATC 103] wherein the applicability of the expression "public policy' on the touchstone of Section 23 of the Contract Act, 1872 and Article 14 of the Constitution of India came to be considered. This Court therein was dealing with unequal bargaining power of the workmen and the employer and came to the conclusion that any term of the agreement which is patently arbitrary and/or otherwise arrived at because of the unequal bargaining power would not only be ultra vires Article 14 of the Constitution of India but also hit by Section 23 of the Contract Act, 1872. InONGC[(2003) 5 SCC 705 : AIR 2003 SC 2629] this Court, apart from the three grounds stated inRenusagar[Renusagar Power Co. Ltd.v.General Electric Co., 1994 Supp (1) SCC 644] , added another ground thereto for exercise of the court's jurisdiction in setting aside the award if it is patently arbitrary.

59. Such patent illegality, however, must go to the root of the matter. The public policy violation, indisputably, should be so unfair and unreasonable as to shock the conscience of the court. Where the arbitrator, however, has gone contrary to or beyond the expressed law of the contract or granted relief in the matter not in dispute would come within the purview of Section 34 of the Act. However, we would consider the applicability of the aforementioned principles while noticing the merits of the matter.

60. 60. What would constitute public policy is a matter dependent upon the nature of transaction and nature of statute. For the said purpose, the pleadings of the parties and the materials brought on record would be relevant to enable the court to judge what is in public good or public interest, and what would otherwise be injurious to the public good at the relevant point, as contradistinguished from the policy of a particular Government. (SeeState of Rajasthanv.Basant Nahata.)"

23.InCentrotrade Minerals & Metals Inc.v.Hindustan Copper Ltd.[(2006) 11 SCC 245] , Sinha, J., held: (SCC p. 284, paras 103-04)

"103. Such patent illegality, however, must go to the root of the matter. The public policy, indisputably, should be unfair and unreasonable so as to shock the conscience of the court. Where the arbitrator, however, has gone contrary to or beyond the expressed law of the contract or granted relief in the matter not in dispute would come within the purview of Section 34 of the Act.

104. What would be a public policy would be a matter which would again depend upon the nature of transaction and the nature of statute. For the said purpose, the pleadings of the parties and the materials brought on record would be relevant so as to enable the court to judge the concept of what was a public good or public interest or what would otherwise be injurious to the public good at the relevant point as contradistinguished by the policy of a particular Government. (SeeState of Rajasthanv.Basant Nahata.)"

24.InDDAv.R.S. Sharma and Co.[(2008) 13 SCC 80] , the Court summarised the law thus: (SCC pp. 91-92, para 21)

"21. From the above decisions, the following principles emerge:

(a) An award, which is

(i) contrary to substantive provisions of law; or

(ii) the provisions of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996; or

(iii) against the terms of the respective contract; or

(iv) patently illegal; or

(v) prejudicial to the rights of the parties;

is open to interference by the court under Section 34(2) of the Act.

(b) The award could be set aside if it is contrary to:

(a) fundamental policy of Indian law; or

(b) the interest of India; or

(c) justice or morality.

(c) The award could also be set aside if it is so unfair and unreasonable that it shocks the conscience of the court.

(d) It is open to the court to consider whether the award is against the specific terms of contract and if so, interfere with it on the ground that it is patently illegal and opposed to the public policy of India.

With these principles and statutory provisions, particularly, Section 34(2) of the Act, let us consider whether the arbitrator as well as the Division Bench of the High Court were justified in granting the award in respect of Claims 1 to 3 and Additional Claims 1 to 3 of the claimant or the appellant DDA has made out a case for setting aside the award in respect of those claims with reference to the terms of the agreement duly executed by both parties."

25.J.G. Engineers (P) Ltd.v.Union of India[(2011) 5 SCC 758 : (2011) 3 SCC (Civ) 128] held: (SCC p. 775, para 27)

"27. Interpreting the said provisions, this Court inONGC Ltd.v.Saw Pipes Ltd.[(2003) 5 SCC 705 : AIR 2003 SC 2629] held that a court can set aside an award under Section 34(2)(b)(ii) of the Act, as being in conflict with the public policy of India, if it is (a) contrary to the fundamental policy of Indian law; or (b) contrary to the interests of India; or (c) contrary to justice or morality; or (d) patently illegal. This Court explained that to hold an award to be opposed to public policy, the patent illegality should go to the very root of the matter and not a trivial illegality. It is also observed that an award could be set aside if it is so unfair and unreasonable that it shocks the conscience of the court, as then it would be opposed to public policy."

"22. InONGC Ltd.v.Saw Pipes Ltd.[(2003) 5 SCC 705 : AIR 2003 SC

2629] this Court after examining the grounds on which an award of the arbitrator can be set aside under Section 34 of the Act has said: (SCC p. 727, para 31)

"31. ... However, the award which is, on the face of it, patently in violation of statutory provisions cannot be said to be in public interest. Such award/judgment/decision is likely to adversely affect the administration of justice. Hence, in our view in addition to narrower meaning given to the term "public policy" inRenusagar case[Renusagar Power Co. Ltd.v.General Electric Co., 1994 Supp (1) SCC 644] it is required to be held that the award could be set aside if it is patently illegal'."

Fundamental Policy of Indian Law

27.Coming to each of the heads contained inSaw Pipes[(2003) 5 SCC 705 : AIR 2003 SC 2629] judgment, we will first deal with the head "fundamental policy of Indian law". It has already been seen fromRenusagar[Renusagar Power Co. Ltd.v.General Electric Co., 1994 Supp (1) SCC 644] judgment that violation of the Foreign Exchange Act and disregarding orders of superior courts in India would be regarded as being contrary to the fundamental policy of Indian law. To this it could be added that the binding effect of the judgment of a superior court being disregarded would be equally violative of the fundamental policy of Indian law.

28.In a recent judgment,ONGC Ltd.v.Western Geco International Ltd.[(2014) 9 SCC 263 : (2014) 5 SCC (Civ) 12] , this Court added three other distinct and fundamental juristic principles which must be understood as a part and parcel of the fundamental policy of Indian law. The Court held: (SCC pp. 278-80, paras 35 & 38-40)

"35. What then would constitute the "fundamental policy of Indian law' is the question. The decision inONGC[(2003) 5 SCC 705 : AIR 2003 SC 2629] does not elaborate that aspect. Even so, the expression must, in our opinion, include all such fundamental principles as providing a basis for administration of justice and enforcement of law in this country. Without meaning to exhaustively enumerate the purport of the expression "fundamental policy of Indian law', we may refer to three distinct and fundamental juristic principles that must necessarily be understood as a part and parcel of the fundamental policy of Indian law. Thefirst and foremostis the principle that in every determination whether by a court or other authority that affects the rights of a citizen or leads to any civil consequences, the court or authority concerned is bound to adopt what is in legal parlance called a "judicial approach' in the matter. The duty to adopt a judicial approach arises from the very nature of the power exercised by the court or the authority does not have to be separately or additionally enjoined upon the fora concerned. What must be remembered is that the importance of a judicial approach in judicial and quasi-judicial determination lies in the fact that so long as the court, tribunal or the authority exercising powers that affect the rights or obligations of the parties before them shows fidelity to judicial approach, they cannot act in an arbitrary, capricious or whimsical manner. Judicial approach ensures that the authority acts bona fide and deals with the subject in a fair, reasonable and objective manner and that its decision is not actuated by any extraneous consideration. Judicial approach in that sense acts as a check against flaws and faults that can render the decision of a court, tribunal or authority vulnerable to challenge.

38. Equally important and indeed fundamental to the policy of Indian law is the principle that a court and so also a quasi-judicial authority must, while determining the rights and obligations of parties before it, do so in accordance with the principles of natural justice. Besides the celebratedaudi alteram partemrule one of the facets of the principles of natural justice is that the court/authority deciding the matter must apply its mind to the attendant facts and circumstances while taking a view one way or the other. Non-application of mind is a defect that is fatal to any adjudication. Application of mind is best demonstrated by disclosure of the mind and disclosure of mind is best done by recording reasons in support of the decision which the court or authority is taking. The requirement that an adjudicatory authority must apply its mind is, in that view, so deeply embedded in our jurisprudence that it can be described as a fundamental policy of Indian law.

39. No less important is the principle now recognised as a salutary juristic fundamental in administrative law that a decision which is perverse or so irrational that no reasonable person would have arrived at the same will not be sustained in a court of law. Perversity or irrationality of decisions is tested on the touchstone ofWednesbury[Associated Provincial Picture Houses Ltd.v.Wednesbury Corpn., (1948) 1 KB 223 : (1947) 2 All ER 680 (CA)] principle of reasonableness. Decisions that fall short of the standards of reasonableness are open to challenge in a court of law often in writ jurisdiction of the superior courts but no less in statutory processes wherever the same are available.

40. It is neither necessary nor proper for us to attempt an exhaustive enumeration of what would constitute the fundamental policy of Indian law nor is it possible to place the expression in the straitjacket of a definition. What is important in the context of the case at hand is that if on facts proved before them the arbitrators fail to draw an inference which ought to have been drawn or if they have drawn an inference which is on the face of it, untenable resulting in miscarriage of justice, the adjudication even when made by an Arbitral Tribunal that enjoys considerable latitude and play at the joints in making awards will be open to challenge and may be cast away or modified depending upon whether the offending part is or is not severable from the rest."

29.It is clear that the juristic principle of a "judicial approach" demands that a decision be fair, reasonable and objective. On the obverse side, anything arbitrary and whimsical would obviously not be a determination which would either be fair, reasonable or objective.

30.The audi alteram partemprinciple which undoubtedly is a fundamental juristic principle in Indian law is also contained in Sections 18 and 34(2)(a)(iii) of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act. These sections read as follows:

"18.Equal treatment of parties.--The parties shall be treated with equality and each party shall be given a full opportunity to present his case.

34.Application for setting aside arbitral award.--(1)

(2) An arbitral award may be set aside by the court only if--

(a) the party making the application furnishes proof that--

(iii) the party making the application was not given proper notice of the appointment of an arbitrator or of the

arbitral proceedings or was otherwise unable to present his case;"

31.The third juristic principle is that a decision which is perverse or so irrational that no reasonable person would have arrived at the same is important and requires some degree of explanation. It is settled law that where:

(i) a finding is based on no evidence, or

(ii) an Arbitral Tribunal takes into account something irrelevant to the decision which it arrives at; or

(iii) ignores vital evidence in arriving at its decision, such decision would necessarily be perverse.

32.A good working test of perversity is contained in two judgments. InExcise and Taxation Officer-cum-Assessing Authorityv.Gopi Nath & Sons[1992 Supp (2) SCC 312] , it was held: (SCC p. 317, para 7)

"7. ... It is, no doubt, true that if a finding of fact is arrived at by ignoring or excluding relevant material or by taking into consideration irrelevant material or if the finding so outrageously defies logic as to suffer from the vice of irrationality incurring the blame of being perverse, then, the finding is rendered infirm in law."

InKuldeep Singhv.Commr. of Police[(1999) 2 SCC 10 : 1999 SCC (L&S) 429] , it was held: (SCC p. 14, para 10)

"10. A broad distinction has, therefore, to be maintained between the decisions which are perverse and those which are not. If a decision is arrived at on no evidence or evidence which is thoroughly unreliable and no reasonable person would act upon it, the order would be perverse. But if there is some evidence on record which is acceptable and which could be relied upon, howsoever compendious it may be, the conclusions would not be treated as perverse and the findings would not be interfered with."

33.It must clearly be understood that when a court is applying the "public policy" test to an arbitration award, it does not act as a court of appeal and consequently errors of fact cannot be corrected. A possible view by the arbitrator on facts has necessarily to pass muster as the arbitrator is the ultimate master of the quantity and quality of evidence to be relied upon when he delivers his arbitral award. Thus an award based on little evidence or on evidence which does not measure up in quality to a trained legal mind would not be held to be invalid on this score [Very often an arbitrator is a lay person not necessarily trained in law. Lord Mansfield, a famous English Judge, once advised a high military officer in Jamaica who needed to act as a Judge as follows:"General, you have a sound head, and a good heart; take courage and you will do very well, in your occupation, in a court of equity. My advice is, to make your decrees as your head and your heart dictate, to hear both sides patiently, to decide with firmness in the best manner you can; but be careful not to assign your reasons, since your determination may be substantially right, although your reasons may be very bad, or essentially wrong".It is very important to bear this in mind when awards of lay arbitrators are challenged.] . Once it is found that the arbitrators approach is not arbitrary or capricious, then he is the last word on facts. InP.R. Shah, Shares & Stock Brokers (P) Ltd.v.B.H.H. Securities (P) Ltd.[(2012) 1 SCC 594 : (2012) 1 SCC (Civ) 342] , this Court held: (SCC pp. 601-02, para 21)

"21. A court does not sit in appeal over the award of an Arbitral Tribunal by reassessing or reappreciating the evidence. An award can be challenged only under the grounds mentioned in Section 34(2) of the Act. The Arbitral Tribunal has examined the facts and held that both the second respondent and the appellant are liable. The case as put forward by the first respondent has been accepted. Even the minority view was that the second respondent was liable as claimed by the first respondent, but the appellant was not liable only on the ground that the arbitrators appointed by the Stock Exchange under Bye-law 248, in a claim against a non-member, had no jurisdiction to decide a claim against another member. The finding of the majority is that the appellant did the transaction in the name of the second respondent and is therefore, liable along with the second respondent. Therefore, in the absence of any ground under Section 34(2) of the Act, it is not possible to re-examine the facts to find out whether a different decision can be arrived at."

34.It is with this very important caveat that the two fundamental principles which form part of the fundamental policy of Indian law (that the arbitrator must have a judicial approach and that he must not act perversely) are to be understood.

Interest of India

35.The next ground on which an award may be set aside is that it is contrary to the interest of India. Obviously, this concerns itself with India as a member of the world community in its relations with foreign powers. As at present advised, we need not dilate on this aspect as this ground may need to evolve on a case-by-case basis.

36.The third ground of public policy is, if an award is against justice or morality. These are two different concepts in law. An award can be said to be against justice only when it shocks the conscience of the court. An illustration of this can be given. A claimant is content with restricting his claim, let us say to Rs 30 lakhs in a statement of claim before the arbitrator and at no point does he seek to claim anything more. The arbitral award ultimately awards him Rs 45 lakhs without any acceptable reason or justification. Obviously, this would shock the conscience of the court and the arbitral award would be liable to be set aside on the ground that it is contrary to "justice"

Morality

37.The other ground is of "morality". Just as the expression "public policy" also occurs in Section 23 of the Contract Act, 1872 so does the expression "morality". Two illustrations to the said section are interesting for they explain to us the scope of the expression "morality":

"(j)A, who isB's Mukhtar, promises to exercise his influence, as such, withBin favour ofC, andCpromises to pay 1000 rupees toA. The agreement is void, because it is immoral.

(k)Aagrees to let her daughter to hire toBfor concubinage. The agreement is void, because it is immoral, though the letting may not be punishable under the Penal Code, 1860."

38.InGherulal Parakhv.Mahadeodas Maiya[1959 Supp (2) SCR 406 : AIR 1959 SC 781] , this Court explained the concept of "morality" thus: (SCR pp. 445-46 : AIR pp. 797-98)

"Re. Point 3 -- Immorality: The argument under this head is rather broadly stated by the learned counsel for the appellant. The learned counsel attempts to draw an analogy from the Hindu law relating to the doctrine of pious obligation of sons to discharge their father's debts and contends that what the Hindu law considers to be immoral in that context may appropriately be applied to a case under Section 23 of the Contract Act. Neither any authority is cited nor any legal basis is suggested for importing the doctrine of Hindu law into the domain of contracts. Section 23 of the Contract Act is inspired by the common law of England and it would be more useful to refer to the English law than to the Hindu law texts dealing with a different matter. Anson in hisLaw of Contractsstates at p. 222 thus:

"The only aspect of immorality with which courts of law have dealt is sexual immorality.…'

Halsbury in hisLaws of England, 3rd Edn., Vol. 8, makes a similar statement, at p. 138:

"A contract which is made upon an immoral consideration or for an immoral purpose is unenforceable, and there is no distinction in this respect between immoral and illegal contracts. The immorality here alluded to is sexual immorality.'

In theLaw of Contractby Cheshire and Fifoot, 3rd Edn., it is stated at p. 279:

"Although Lord Mansfield laid it down that a contractcontra bonos moresis illegal, the law in this connection gives no extended meaning to morality, but concerns itself only with what is sexually reprehensible.'

In the book on theIndian Contract Actby Pollock and Mulla it is stated at p. 157:

"The epithet "immoral" points, in legal usage, to conduct or purposes which the State, though disapproving them, is unable, or not advised, to visit with direct punishment.'

The learned authors confined its operation to acts which are considered to be immoral according to the standards of immorality approved by courts. The case law both in England and India confines the operation of the doctrine to sexual immorality. To cite only some instances: settlements in consideration of concubinage, contracts of sale or hire of things to be used in a brothel or by a prostitute for purposes incidental to her profession, agreements to pay money for future illicit cohabitation, promises in regard to marriage for consideration, or contracts facilitating divorce are all held to be void on the ground that the object is immoral.

The word "immoral' is a very comprehensive word. Ordinarily it takes in every aspect of personal conduct deviating from the standard norms of life. It may also be said that what is repugnant to good conscience is immoral. Its varying content depends upon time, place and the stage of civilisation of a particular society. In short, no universal standard can be laid down and any law based on such fluid concept defeats its own purpose. The provisions of Section 23 of the Contract Act indicate the legislative intention to give it a restricted meaning. Its juxtaposition with an equally illusive concept, public policy, indicates that it is used in a restricted sense; otherwise there would be overlapping of the two concepts. In its wide sense what is immoral may be against public policy, for public policy covers political, social and economic ground of objection. Decided cases and authoritative textbook writers, therefore, confined it, with every justification, only to sexual immorality. The other limitation imposed on the word by the statute, namely, "the court regards it as immoral', brings out the idea that it is also a branch of the common law like the doctrine of public policy, and, therefore, should be confined to the principles recognised and settled by courts. Precedents confine the said concept only to sexual immorality and no case has been brought to our notice where it has been applied to any head other than sexual immorality. In the circumstances, we cannot evolve a new head so as to bring in wagers within its fold."

39.This Court has confined morality to sexual morality so far as Section 23 of the Contract Act, 1872 is concerned, which in the context of an arbitral award would mean the enforcement of an award say for specific performance of a contract involving prostitution. "Morality" would, if it is to go beyond sexual morality necessarily cover such agreements as are not illegal but would not be enforced given the prevailing mores of the day. However, interference on this ground would also be only if something shocks the court's conscience.

Patent Illegality

40.We now come to the fourth head of public policy, namely, patent illegality. It must be remembered that under the Explanation to Section 34(2)(b), an award is said to be in conflict with the public policy of India if the making of the award was induced or affected by fraud or corruption. This ground is perhaps the earliest ground on which courts in England set aside awards under English law. Added to this ground (in 1802) is the ground that an arbitral award would be set aside if there were an error of law by the arbitrator. This is explained by Denning, L.J. inR.v.Northumberland Compensation Appeal Tribunal, ex p Shaw[(1952) 1 All ER 122 : (1952) 1 KB 338 (CA)] : (All ER p. 130 D-E : KB p. 351)

"Leaving now the statutory tribunals, I turn to the awards of the arbitrators. The Court of King's Bench never interfered by certiorari with the award of an arbitrator, because it was a private tribunal and not subject to the prerogative writs. If the award was not made a rule of court, the only course available to an aggrieved party was to resist an action on the award or to file a bill in equity. If the award was made a rule of court, a motion could be made to the court to set it aside for misconduct of the arbitrator on the ground that it was procured by corruption or other undue means (seeStatutes 9 and 10 Will. III, C. 15). At one time an award could not be upset on the ground of error of law by the arbitrator because that could not be said to be misconduct or undue means, but ultimately it was held inKentv.Elstob[(1802) 3 East 18 : 102 ER 502] , that an award could be set aside for error of law on the face of it. This was regretted by Williams, J., inHodgkinsonv.Fernie[(1857) 3 CB (NS) 189 : 140 ER 712] , but is now well established."

41.This, in turn, led to the famous principle laid down inChampsey Bhara Co.v.Jivraj Balloo Spg. and Wvg. Co. Ltd.[AIR 1923 PC 66 : (1922-23) 50 IA 324 : 1923 AC 480 : 1923 All ER Rep 235 (PC)] , where the Privy Council referred toHodgkinson[(1857) 3 CB (NS) 189 : 140 ER 712] and then laid down: (IA pp. 330-32)

"The law on the subject has never been more clearly stated than by Williams, J. inHodgkinsonv.Fernie[(1857) 3 CB (NS) 189 : 140 ER 712] : [CB(NS) p. 202 : ER p. 717]

"The law has for many years been settled, and remains so at this day, that, where a cause or matters in difference are referred to an arbitrator, whether a lawyer or a layman, he is constituted the sole and final Judge of all questions both of law and of fact. ... The only exceptions to that rule are cases where the award is the result of corruption or fraud, and one other, which, though it is to be regretted, is now, I think firmly established viz. where the question of law necessarily arises on the face of the award or upon some paper accompanying and forming part of the award. Though the propriety of this latter may very well be doubted, I think it may be considered as established.'

Now the regret expressed by Williams, J. inHodgkinsonv.Fernie[(1857) 3 CB (NS) 189 : 140 ER 712] has been repeated by more than one learned Judge, and it is certainly not to be desired that the exception should be in any way extended. An error in law on the face of the award means, in Their Lordships' view, that you can find in the award or a document actually incorporated thereto, as for instance, a note appended by the arbitrator stating the reasons for his judgment, some legal proposition which is the basis of the award and which you can then say is erroneous. It does not mean that if in a narrative a reference is made to a contention of one party that opens the door to seeing first what that contention is, and then going to the contract on which the parties' rights depend to see if that contention is sound. Here it is impossible to say, from what is shown on the face of the award, what mistake the arbitrators made. The only way that the learned Judges have arrived at finding what the mistake was is by saying: "Inasmuch as the arbitrators awarded so and so, and inasmuch as the letter shows that the buyer rejected the cotton, the arbitrators can only have arrived at that result by totally misinterpreting Rule 52.' But they were entitled to give their own interpretation to Rule 52 or any other article, and the award will stand unless, on the face of it they have tied themselves down to some special legal proposition which then, when examined, appears to be unsound. Upon this point, therefore, Their Lordships think that the judgment of Pratt, J. was right and the conclusion of the learned Judges of the Court of Appeal [Jivraj Baloo Spg. and Wvg. Co. Ltd.v.Champsey Bhara and Co., ILR (1920) 44 Bom 780. The judgment of Pratt, J. may be referred to at ILR p. 787.] erroneous."

This judgment has been consistently followed in India to test awards under Section 30 of the Arbitration Act, 1940.

42.In the 1996 Act, this principle is substituted by the "patent illegality" principle which, in turn, contains three subheads:

42.1.(a) A contravention of the substantive law of India would result in the death knell of an arbitral award. This must be understood in the sense that such illegality must go to the root of the matter and cannot be of a trivial nature. This again is really a contravention of Section 28(1)(a) of the Act, which reads as under:

"28.Rules applicable to substance of dispute.--(1) Where the place of arbitration is situated in India--

(a) in an arbitration other than an international commercial arbitration, the Arbitral Tribunal shall decide the dispute submitted to arbitration in accordance with the substantive law for the time being in force in India;"

42.2.(b) A contravention of the Arbitration Act itself would be regarded as a patent illegality -- for example if an arbitrator gives no reasons for an award in contravention of Section 31(3) of the Act, such award will be liable to be set aside.

42.3.(c) Equally, the third subhead of patent illegality is really a contravention of Section 28(3) of the Arbitration Act, which reads as under:

*"28.Rules

applicable to substance of dispute.--(1)-(2)*

(3) In all cases, the Arbitral Tribunal shall decide in accordance with the terms of the contract and shall take into account the usages of the trade applicable to the transaction."

This last contravention must be understood with a caveat. An Arbitral Tribunal must decide in accordance with the terms of the contract, but if an arbitrator construes a term of the contract in a reasonable manner, it will not mean that the award can be set aside on this ground. Construction of the terms of a contract is primarily for an arbitrator to decide unless the arbitrator construes the contract in such a way that it could be said to be something that no fair-minded or reasonable person could do.

43.InMcDermott International Inc.v.Burn Standard Co. Ltd.[McDermott International Inc.v.Burn Standard Co. Ltd., (2006) 11 SCC 181] , this Court held as under: (SCC pp. 225-26, paras 112-13)

"112. It is trite that the terms of the contract can be express or implied. The conduct of the parties would also be a relevant factor in the matter of construction of a contract. The construction of the contract agreement is within the jurisdiction of the arbitrators having regard to the wide nature, scope and ambit of the arbitration agreement and they cannot be said to have misdirected themselves in passing the award by taking into consideration the conduct of the parties. It is also trite that correspondences exchanged by the parties are required to be taken into consideration for the purpose of construction of a contract. Interpretation of a contract is a matter for the arbitrator to determine, even if it gives rise to determination of a question of law. [SeePure Helium India (P) Ltd.v.Oil and Natural Gas Commission[(2003) 8 SCC 593 : 2003 Supp (4) SCR 561] andD.D. Sharmav.Union of India[(2004) 5 SCC 325] .]

113. Once, thus, it is held that the arbitrator had the jurisdiction, no further question shall be raised and the court will not exercise its jurisdiction unless it is found that there exists any bar on the face of the award."

44.InMSK Projects (I) (JV) Ltd.v.State of Rajasthan[(2011) 10 SCC 573 : (2012) 3 SCC (Civ) 818] , the Court held: (SCC pp. 581-82, para 17)

"17. If the arbitrator commits an error in the construction of the contract, that is an error within his jurisdiction. But if he wanders outside the contract and deals with matters not allotted to him, he commits a jurisdictional error. Extrinsic evidence is admissible in such cases because the dispute is not something which arises under or in relation to the contract or dependent on the construction of the contract or to be determined within the award. The ambiguity of the award can, in such cases, be resolved by admitting extrinsic evidence. The rationale of this rule is that the nature of the dispute is something which has to be determined outside and independent of what appears in the award. Such a jurisdictional error needs to be proved by evidence extrinsic to the award. (SeeGobardhan Dasv.Lachhmi Ram[AIR 1954 SC 689] ,Thawardas Pherumalv.Union of India[AIR 1955 SC 468] ,Union of Indiav.Kishorilal Gupta & Bros.[AIR 1959 SC 1362] ,Alopi Parshad & Sons Ltd.v.Union of India[AIR 1960 SC 588] ,Jivarajbhai Ujamshi Shethv.Chintamanrao Balaji[AIR 1965 SC 214] andRenusagar Power Co. Ltd.v.General Electric Co.[(1984) 4 SCC 679 : AIR 1985 SC 1156])"

45.InRashtriya Ispat Nigam Ltd.v.Dewan Chand Ram Saran[(2012) 5 SCC 306] , the Court held: (SCC pp. 320-21, paras 43-45)

"43. In any case, assuming that Clause 9.3 was capable of two interpretations, the view taken by the arbitrator was clearly a possible if not a plausible one. It is not possible to say that the arbitrator had travelled outside his jurisdiction, or that the view taken by him was against the terms of contract. That being the position, the High Court had no reason to interfere with the award and substitute its view in place of the interpretation accepted by the arbitrator.

44. The legal position in this behalf has been summarised in para 18 of the judgment of this Court inSAILv.Gupta Brother Steel Tubes Ltd.[(2009) 10 SCC 63 : (2009) 4 SCC (Civ) 16] and which has been referred to above. Similar view has been taken later inSumitomo Heavy Industries Ltd.v.ONGC Ltd.[(2010) 11 SCC 296 : (2010) 4 SCC (Civ) 459] to which one of us (Gokhale, J.) was a party. The observations in para 43 thereof are instructive in this behalf.

45. This para 43 reads as follows: (Sumitomo case[(2010) 11 SCC 296 : (2010) 4 SCC (Civ) 459] , SCC p. 313)

"43. ... The umpire has considered the fact situation and placed a construction on the clauses of the agreement which according to him was the correct one. One may at the highest say that one would have preferred another construction of Clause 17.3 but that cannot make the award in any way perverse. Nor can one substitute one's own view in such a situation, in place of the one taken by the umpire, which would amount to sitting in appeal. As held by this Court inKwality Mfg. Corpn.v.Central Warehousing Corpn.[(2009) 5 SCC 142 : (2009) 2 SCC (Civ) 406] the Court while considering challenge to arbitral award does not sit in appeal over the findings and decision of the arbitrator, which is what the High Court has practically done in this matter. The umpire is legitimately entitled to take the view which he holds to be the correct one after considering the material before him and after interpreting the provisions of the agreement. If he does so, the decision of the umpire has to be accepted as final and binding.'"

46.Applying the tests laid down by this Court, we have to examine whether the Division Bench has exceeded its jurisdiction in setting aside the arbitral award impugned before it."

57. Recently in Ssangyong Engineering & Construction Co. Ltd. v. National Highways Authority of India (NHAI), 2019 SCC Online SCC 677, Court has considered effect of Section 2A incorporated in Section 34 of Act 1996 and held as under in paragraphs 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 70 and 76:

"35. What is clear, therefore, is that the expression "public policy of India", whether contained in Section 34 or in Section 48, would now mean the "fundamental policy of Indian law" as explained in paragraphs 18 and 27 ofAssociate Builders(supra), i.e., the fundamental policy of Indian law would be relegated to the "Renusagar" understanding of this expression. This would necessarily mean that the Western Geco (supra) expansion has been done away with. In short, Western Geco (supra), as explained in paragraphs 28 and 29 of Associate Builders (supra), would no longer obtain, as under the guise of interfering with an award on the ground that the arbitrator has not adopted a judicial approach, the Court's intervention would be on the merits of the award, which cannot be permitted post amendment. However, insofar as principles of natural justice are concerned, as contained in Sections 18 and 34(2)(a)(iii) of the 1996 Act, these continue to be grounds of challenge of an award, as is contained in paragraph 30 of Associate Builders (supra).

36. It is important to notice that the ground for interference insofar as it concerns "interest of India" has since been deleted, and therefore, no longer obtains. Equally, the ground for interference on the basis that the award is in conflict with justice or morality is now to be understood as a conflict with the "most basic notions of morality or justice". This again would be in line with paragraphs 36 to 39 of Associate Builders (supra), as it is only such arbitral awards that shock the conscience of the court that can be set aside on this ground.

37. Thus, it is clear that public policy of India is now constricted to mean firstly, that a domestic award is contrary to the fundamental policy of Indian law, as understood in paragraphs 18 and 27 of Associate Builders (supra), or secondly, that such award is against basic notions of justice or morality as understood in paragraphs 36 to 39 of Associate Builders (supra). Explanation 2 to Section 34(2)(b)(ii) and Explanation 2 to Section 48(2)(b)(ii) was added by the Amendment Act only so thatWestern Geco (supra), as understood in Associate Builders (supra), and paragraphs 28 and 29 in particular, is now done away with.

38. Insofar as domestic awards made in India are concerned, an additional ground is now available under sub-section (2A), added by the Amendment Act, 2015, to Section 34. Here, there must be patent illegality appearing on the face of the award, which refers to such illegality as goes to the root of the matter but which does not amount to mere erroneous application of the law. In short, what is not subsumed within "the fundamental policy of Indian law", namely, the contravention of a statute not linked to public policy or public interest, cannot be brought in by the backdoor when it comes to setting aside an award on the ground of patent illegality.

39. Secondly, it is also made clear that re-appreciation of evidence, which is what an appellate court is permitted to do, cannot be permitted under the ground of patent illegality appearing on the face of the award.

40. To elucidate, paragraph 42.1 of Associate Builders (supra), namely, a mere contravention of the substantive law of India, by itself, is no longer a ground available to set aside an arbitral award. Paragraph 42.2 of Associate Builders (supra), however, would remain, for if an arbitrator gives no reasons for an award and contravenes Section 31(3) of the 1996 Act, that would certainly amount to a patent illegality on the face of the award.

41. The change made in Section 28(3) by the Amendment Act really follows what is stated in paragraphs 42.3 to 45 inAssociate Builders(supra), namely, that the construction of the terms of a contract is primarily for an arbitrator to decide, unless the arbitrator construes the contract in a manner that no fair-minded or reasonable person would; in short, that the arbitrator's view is not even a possible view to take. Also, if the arbitrator wanders outside the contract and deals with matters not allotted to him, he commits an error of jurisdiction. This ground of challenge will now fall within the new ground added under Section 34(2A).

42. What is important to note is that a decision which is perverse, as understood in paragraphs 31 and 32 of Associate Builders (supra), while no longer being a ground for challenge under "public policy of India", would certainly amount to a patent illegality appearing on the face of the award. Thus, a finding based on no evidence at all or an award which ignores vital evidence in arriving at its decision would be perverse and liable to be set aside on the ground of patent illegality. Additionally, a finding based on documents taken behind the back of the parties by the arbitrator would also qualify as a decision based on no evidence inasmuch as such decision is not based on evidence led by the parties, and therefore, would also have to be characterised as perverse.

70. The expression "most basic notions of ... justice" finds mention in Explanation 1 to sub-clause (iii) to Section 34(2)(b). Here again, what is referred to is, substantively or procedurally, some fundamental principle of justice which has been breached, and which shocks the conscience of the Court. Thus, in Parsons (supra), it was held:

"7. Article V(2)(b) of the Convention allows the court in which enforcement of a foreign arbitral award is sought to refuse enforcement, on the defendant's motion or sua sponte, if "enforcement of the award would be contrary to the public policy of (the forum) country.' The legislative history of the provision offers no certain guidelines to its construction. Its precursors in the Geneva Convention and the 1958 Convention's ad hoc committee draft extended the public policy exception to, respectively, awards contrary to "principles of the law' and awards violative of "fundamental principles of the law.' In one commentator's view, the Convention's failure to include similar language signifies a narrowing of the defense [Contini, International Commercial Arbitration, 8 Am.J.Comp.L. 283, 304]. On the other hand, another noted authority in the field has seized upon this omission as indicative of an intention to broaden the defense [Quigley, Accession by the United States to the United Nations Convention on the Recognition and Enforcement of Foreign Arbitral Awards, 70 Yale L.J. 1049, 1070-71 (1961)].

8. Perhaps more probative, however, are the inferences to be drawn from the history of the Convention as a whole. The general pro-enforcement bias informing the Convention and explaining its supersession of the Geneva Convention points toward a narrow reading of the public policy defense. An expansive construction of this defense would vitiate the Convention's basic effort to remove preexisting obstacles to enforcement. [See Straus, Arbitration of Disputes between Multinational Corporations, in New Strategies for Peaceful Resolution of International Business Disputes 114-15 (1971); Digest of Proceedings of International Business Disputes Conference, April 14, 1971, at 191 (remarks of Professor W. Reese)]. Additionally, considerations of reciprocity - considerations given express recognition in the Convention itself - counsel courts to invoke the public policy defense with caution lest foreign courts frequently accept it as a defense to enforcement of arbitral awards rendered in the United States.

9. We conclude, therefore, that the Convention's public policy defense should be construed narrowly. Enforcement of foreign arbitral awards may be denied on this basis only where enforcement would violate the forum state's most basic notions of morality and justice.[Restatement Second of the Conflict of Laws 117, comment c, at 340 (1971); Loucks v. Standard Oil Co., 224 N.Y. 99, 111, 120 N.E. 198 (1918)]."

However, when it comes to the public policy of India argument based upon "most basic notions of justice", it is clear that this ground can be attracted only in very exceptional circumstances when the conscience of the Court is shocked by infraction of fundamental notions or principles of justice. It can be seen that the formula that was applied by the agreement continued to be applied till February, 2013 -in short, it is not correct to say that the formula under the agreement could not be applied in view of the Ministry's change in the base indices from 1993-94 to 2004-05. Further, in order to apply a linking factor, a Circular, unilaterally issued by one party, cannot possibly bind the other party to the agreement without that other party's consent. Indeed, the Circular itself expressly stipulates that it cannot apply unless the contractors furnish an undertaking/affidavit that the price adjustment under the Circular is acceptable to them. We have seen how the appellant gave such undertaking only conditionally and without prejudice to its argument that the Circular does not and cannot apply. This being the case, it is clear that the majority award has created a new contract for the parties by applying the said unilateral Circular and by substituting a workable formula under the agreement by another formula de hors the agreement. This being the case, a fundamental principle of justice has been breached, namely, that a unilateral addition or alteration of a contract can never be foisted upon an unwilling party, nor can a party to the agreement be liable to perform a bargain not entered into with the other party. Clearly, such a course of conduct would be contrary to fundamental principles of justice as followed in this country, and shocks the conscience of this Court. However, we repeat that this ground is available only in very exceptional circumstances, such as the fact situation in the present case. Under no circumstance can any Court interfere with an arbitral award on the ground that justice has not been done in the opinion of the Court. That would be an entry into the merits of the dispute which, as we have seen, is contrary to the ethos of Section 34of the 1996 Act, as has been noted earlier in this judgment."

58. Having referred to the ambit and scope of Section 34 of Act, 1996 as crystallized by Apex Court, we proceed to examine first point of consideration i.e. whether in the facts and circumstances of case objections under section 34 of Act, 1996 filed by claimant-opposite party satisfied any of the parameters of Section 34 of Act, 1996 as noted herein above for setting aside the impugned award.

59. Admittedly, claim of claimant-opposite party was rejected by U.P. Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur, vide award dated 22.2.2010. Council concluded that claimant opposite party does not fall within the meaning of the term 'Supplier' as defined in section 2(n) of Act, 2006 and secondly, claim filed by opposite party No.2 was barred by limitation. We fail to understand how Council could on the one hand reject claim being barred by limitation and simultaneously hold that claim filed by opposite party is not maintainable as claimant opposite party is not covered within the meaning of the term 'Supplier' as defined in Section 2(n) of Act, 1996. It is well settled that if claim is barred by limitation, then merits cannot be looked into.

60. Consequently, in view of contradictory findings recorded by Council in support of it's conclusion to reject claim of opposite party No. 2, issues which emerge for consideration before Court below were on the merits of the claim i.e. whether the claimant-opposite party No. 2 falls within the meaning of term 'Supplier' as defined under section 2(n) of Act, 1996 and secondly, whether Council was correct in concluding that claim raised by opposite party No.2 is barred by limitation.

61. We shall separately deal with the issue, whether claimant-opposite party

No.2 falls within the meaning of term 'Supplier' as defined under section 2(n) of Act, 1996 in the later part of this judgement. At this stage, we are only concerned, whether the question referred to above, relating to the status of claimant-opposite party No.2 was an issue which went to the root of the matter or not. Similarly, question of limitation raised by appellant before council was a substantial issue or not as it is by now well settled that if a claim is barred by limitation then it cannot be considered.

62. We have already referred to the entire gamut of case law regarding the ambit and scope of Section 34 of Act, 1996 and we are of the view that both the aforesaid issues were substantial issues which went to the root of the matter and therefore, claimant-opposite party was clearly justified in approaching the District Judge, under Section 34 of Act, 1996. Thus, we conclude by observing that in the facts and circumstances of the case, Court below was justified in entertaining objections filed by opposite party as the same were in conformity with the law laid down in Associate Builders (Supra).

63. Second issue arises for consideration is whether claimant-opposite has availed parallel remedy by approaching the Civil Court at Panchkula Haryana and also raised an earlier dispute. The maintainability of claim filed by claimant-opposite party was challenged before Court below also on the aforesaid ground. However, Court below upon consideration of record observed that the cause of action pleaded in original suit and in the claim petition are different.

64. Learned Senior Counsel, Mr. H.N. Singh has again raised this issue before us by submitting that once claimant-opposite party had already approached Civil Court at Panchkula, District Haryana for redressal of its grievance, it cannot simultaneously raise an arbitral dispute.

65. Countering the submissions urged by learned Senior Counsel, Mr. Alok Kumar Yadav, learned counsel representing claimant-opposite party submits that Court below after considering the record has recorded a specific finding that subject matter of original suit filed before Civil Court, Panchukla, Haryana, and the subject matter of claim raised by claimant-opposite party are different. The findings so recorded by Court below has not been specifically challenged as neither any ground to that effect has been raised in the memo of present appeal nor a question of law to that effect has been framed. He further submits that apart from above, no factual foundation has been laid for challenging aforesaid finding recorded by Court below. The affidavit filed in support of stay application appended along with memo of appeal is completely silent on this point. Extending his arguments, he further contends that the appellants have not brought on record even the copy of the plaint of origianl suit filed by claimant-opposite party before Civil Court at Panchkula on the basis of which a parallel could be drawn regarding the cause of action pleaded and the relief claimed in Original Suit and the claim raised before the Council at Kanpur.

66. We find force in the arguments raised by learned counsel for claimant-opposite party. It is true that no ground has been formulated in the grounds of appeal nor any question of law to that effect has been framed regarding correctness of findings recorded by Court below on the issue of parallel remedies. We further find that no factual foundation has been laid in the affidavit filed in support of Stay Application appended along with memo of appeal regarding illegality/perversity in the findings recorded by Court below on the aforesaid issue. Moreover, neither the plaint nor any other document has been brought on record along with the memo of appeal or by means of additional evidence to plead and establish that the cause of action pleaded in the plaint as well as the relief claimed by means of above noted claim petition are similar. Thus, we have no hesitation to conclude that aforesaid objection raised by the learned counsel for appellant to the claim raised by claimant-opposite party is an half hearted attempt to challenge impugned judgement and order. Accordingly, we reject the aforesaid contentions.

67. On the issue of limitation, we find that appellant raised an objection regarding maintainability of claim filed by opposite party No. 2 before the Council on the ground of limitation. Objections so raised by appellant before Council were accepted and Council concluded that claim raised by opposite party No. 2 is barred by limitation.

68. It is an undisputed fact that Appellant awarded various purchase orders to Claimant-Opposite Party during the period 1991 to 2000. Things were going on smoothly and bills of Claimant-Opposite Party were being paid regularly. However, in 1997, some delay occurred in payment of principal amount. Accordingly Claimant-Opposite Party filed CMWP No. 7916 of 1997 before Punjab and Haryana High Court claiming payment of interest on principal amount for the period of delayed payment. During pendency of above mentioned writ petition Claimant-Opposite Party filed a Civil Misc. Application in the aforesaid writ petition praying therein that directions be issued to Government of Haryana to establish Industrial Facilitation Council (hereinafter referred to as 'IFC') as contemplated under Sections 7A and 7B of Act, 1993 within a period of three months.

69. Punjab and Haryana High Court did not examine merits of claim raised by petitioner i.e. Claimant-Opposite Party herein in CMWP No. 7916 of 1997 but disposed of said writ petition finally, vide order dated 13.02.2002 on the undertaking scheduled by counsel for State of Haryana. For ready reference order dated 13.02.2002 is reproduced herein-below:

" In pursuant to order dated December 20, 2001, Mrs. Meenaxi Anand Chaudhary, Principal Secretary, to government of Haryana, Department of Power is present in Court. She has stated that the Government shall constitute the requisite council as provided under Section 7A of the Interest on Delayed Payment to Small Scale and Ancillary Industrial Undertakes (Amendment) Act, 1958. She has further stated that infact is the Small Scale Industries Department, which is directly concerned with this matter. However, she has stated for and on behalf of the Government of Haryana that Council shall be constituted within a period of three months from today.

In this view of the matter, the application has been rendered instructions and the same is disposed of accordingly.

Dasti on payment."

70. Pursuant to aforesaid order dated 13.2.2002, Government of Haryana, constituted Industrial Facilitation Council Haryana at Chandigarh in the year 2002. Thereafter, claimant-opposite party filed it's claim before IFC, Haryana, vide claim dated 31.7.2002, claiming a sum of Rs. 12,70,89,049/- alongwith pendente-lite and future interest as well as cost of claim petition.

71. During pendency of aforesaid Claim Petition dated 31.07.2002 filed by claimant-opposite party before IFC, Haryana Micro Small and Medium Enterprises Development Act, 2006 (hereinafter referred to as Act, 2006) came into force on 02.10.2006. By reason of Section 32 of Act 2006, old Act of 1993 stood repealed.

72. Consequently, after coming into force of Act, 2006, IFC (Haryana) losts its existence. As a result of aforesaid, dispute of parties pending before IFC Haryana came to be stayed and thereafter adjourned as IFC (Haryana) now had no jurisdiction to decide claim of Claimant-Opposite Party. Under the new Act 2006, Jurisdiction to decide claim of Claimant-Opposite Party now vested with Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council Haryana or Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Uttar Pradesh which were established at Chandigarh and Kanpur, respectively, as per Section 20 read with Section 21 of Act, 2006.

73. Claimant-Opposite Party filed an application dated 21.03.2007 before Director of Industries, Haryana-Cum-Chairman Industries Facilitation Council, Haryana, praying therein that original file pertaining to claim submitted by claimant-opposite party be sent to U.P. State Micro & Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Directorate of Industries (U.P.) Kanpur. Thereafter, Claimant-Opposite Party filed reminders dated 27.11.2006, 08.12.2006, 22.12.2006, 07.02.2007 and 07.04.2007 in continuation of transfer application dated 21.3.2007 earlier filed by him.

74. However, as no consequential action was taken on the aforesaid applications/representations submitted by claimant-opposite party, it submitted a new claim dated 19.06.2007 before U.P. State Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council which was constituted under Act, 2006. Claimant-Opposite Party now revised its claim to Rs.42,19,02,100/-. The break up of same is as follows:

"Interest due as per Section 16 and 17 of Act i.e. Rs. 40,74,54,079/-

Cost of goods supplied Rs. 43,50,817/-

Cost of recoveries made illegally through encahsment of Bank Guarantee and the cost of material supplied Rs.1,00,97,204/-"

75. Subsequently, Haryana State Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council passed an order dated 02.04.2008 directing Claimant-Opposite Party to approach Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur as Claimant-Opposite Party is registered in Uttar Pradesh. For ready reference order dated 02.04.2008 is reporduced herein-below:-

Subject: Ist Meeting of Haryana Micro and Small Enterprises Facilitation Council fixed for 22.01.2008 at 11-00 AM under the Chairmanship of Shri D.R.Dhingra, IAS, Director of Industries & Commerce, Haryana-Cum-Chairman , HMSEFC.

Sir,

Reference this office letter No. TS/HMSEFC/Ist meeting/392-A dated 8.1.2008 on the subject cited above.

2. The Ist meeting of Ist Meeting of Haryana Micro and Small Enterprises Facilitation Council fixed for 22.01.2008 at 11-00 AM under the Chairmanship of the undersigned. The decision of the Council is reproduced below:

"M/s P.M. Electronics Pvt. Ltd. Noida has submitted an applicati0on for transfer of their case to Micro & Small Enterprises Facilitation Council set up by the U.P. State, since HMSEFC under the Micro, Small & Medium Development Act, 2006 does not have jurisdiction to proceed further in their case. To this effect the claimant has submitted various representations dated 21.3.07,7.4.07, 29.10.07 and 22.1.2008 respectively.

On the request of the Claimant, the Council decided to dispose of the case since the unit of the claimant is registered in U.P. Sate with the direction to claimant to approach MSEFC set up by the U.P. Govt. if they so desire"

This is for your kind information.
(D.R. Dhingra)
Director of Industries & Commerce,
Haryana- Cum-Chairman, HMSEFC"

76. It is pursuant to aforesaid order that claim of Claimant-Opposite Party submitted on 19.6.2007, came to be considered by Uttar Pradesh Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur. The Council rejected the claim of claimant-opposite party, vide award dated 22.2.2010.

73. Mr. Alok Yadav, learned counsel for claimant-opposite party submits that from the facts as noted above, it cannot be said that claimant-opposite party was not conscious of its rights. Right from inception, claimant-opposite party has been agitating its claim before the forum as available. Apart from above, Section 32 of Act, 2006 clearly provides that an action taken under the Act so repealed, shall be deemed to have been done or taken under the corresponding provision of this Act. Therefore, what is sought to be urged is that by virtue of Section 32 of Act, 2006, claim of claimant-opposite party shall be deemed to have been filed under Act, 1993 and therefore, same cannot be rejected on the ground of limitation.

77. He further contents that in case the objections raised by appellant is accepted then claimant-opposite party shall be rendered remedy less as claim presented under the Act, 1993 has been disposed of on the ground that the counsel at Haryana has no jurisdiction on account of Act, 2006, and the claim cannot be considered under Act, 2006 on account of it being barred by limitation.

78. It was in order to avoid aforesaid anomaly that Section 32 has been incorporated in Act, 2006. Therefore, claim of claimant-opposite party shall be deemed to have been filed under Act, 1993 and therefore, the same cannot be rejected on the ground of limitation.

79. We find considerable force in the submissions urged by Mr. Alok Yadav, learned counsel for claimant-opposite party. It is an undisputed fact that claimant-opposite party had first approached High Court of Punjab and Haryana by means of a writ petition. Thereafter, pursuant to an order passed in the writ petition filed by claimant-opposite party, IFC Haryana was constituted in the year 2002. Accordingly, claimant-opposite party filed a claim petition dated 31.7.2002 before IFC Haryana. During pendency of aforesaid claim petition, Act, 2006 came into force. Consequently, IFC Haryana, had no jurisdiction to decide the claim of claimant-opposite party. It was in aforesaid circumstances that claimant-opposite party submitted an application dated 21.3.2007 to transfer claim petition filed by claimant-opposite party to U.P. State Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Directorate of Industries (U.P) Kanpour. As no consequential action was taken on aforesaid transfer application, claimant-opposite party filed reminders dated 27.11.2006, 8.12.2006, 22.12.2006, 7.2.2007 and 7.4.2007. However, in spite of aforesaid, no action was taken by IFC, Haryana to transfer claim petitions filed by claimant-opposite party to U.P., Claimant-Opposite Party filed its new claim dated 19.6.2007 before U.P. State Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Directorate of Industries (U.P) Kanpur. It is, thereafter, IFC Haryana passed the order dated 2.4.2008 whereby claim filed by claimant-opposite party was disposed of with direction to claimant opposite party to approach N.E.F.C. set up by Government of U.P. Therefore, on the facts as noted above, it cannot be said that claimant-opposite party has raised its claim for the first time in the year 2007. Consequently, in the facts and circumstances of case, we do not find that the claim filed by claimant-opposite party can be said to be barred by limitation. However, this conclusion arrived at by us, will not preclude the appellant herein to raise an objection with regard to validity of amended claim filed by claimant-opposite party in the year 2007.

80. This brings us to the last question involved in the present appeal, whether claimant-opposite party is covered within the meaning of term 'Supplier' as defined under Section 2 (n) of Act, 2006. As already noted above, according to Mr. H.N. Singh, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the appellant, claimant-opposite party is not covered within the meaning of term 'Supplier' as defined in Section 2 (n) of Act, 2006. Since the claimant-opposite party is not covered within the meaning of term 'Supplier', therefore, claimant-opposite party could not have filed any claim petition in terms of Section 18 of Act, 2006.

81. Submission urged by learned Senior Counsel is founded on the proposition that claimant-opposite party did not submit memorandum which is required to be filed within 180 days from the date of enforcement of Act, 2006. Since there is nothing on record to show that claimant-opposite party ever filed its memorandum before competent authority as per Section 8 of Act, 2006, it cannot be treated as 'Supplier' within the meaning of section 2(n) of Act, 2006.

82. Mr. Alok Kumar Yadav on the other hand submits that at the time of presentation of claim in October, 2006, Act, 2006 relied upon by Uttar Pradesh State Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur, was not in existence. Furthermore, company is not under a legal obligation to submit memorandum before competent authority as per section 8 (i)(a) of Act, 2006. Thus, Section 8 of Act, 2006 has wrongly been relied upon in case of Claimant-Opposite Party. It was next submitted that Section 8 of Act, 2006 grants freedom to Small Scale Industries to present or not to present their memorandum. Therefore, Section 2(n) of Act, 2006 is not to be read alongwith Section 8 of Act, 2006 but independent of the same. Apart from above, Government of India has issued notification bearing No. 2/311123007-MSNE POL (PL), whereby filing of Industrial Entrepreneur's Memorandum has been made discretionary. Therefore, in veiw of above, it cannot be said that claimant-opposite party was not under a legal obligation to file Industrial Enterpreneur's Memorandum before the Competent Authority as per mandate of Section 8 of Act, 2006. Consequently, claimant-opposite party is a supplier within the meaning of section 2 (n) of Act, 2006.

83. We have carefully analyzed the submissions urged by learned counsel for parties. It is an undisputed fact that Court below has relied upon the notification bearing No. 2/311123007-MSNE POL (PL) to arrive at conclusion that it is not mandatory for an Industrial undertaking to file its Industrial Entrepreneur's Memorandum. Since this was the only ground relied upon by Uttar Pradesh State Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Kanpur, the finding so recorded by Council was rightly set aside by Court below. In the absence of any such materials to establish that filing of Industrial Entrepreneur's Memorandum is mandatory, we uphold the finding recorded by the Court below.

84. For all the reasons given herein above, we do not find any good ground to interfere with the judgement and order impugned in present First Appeal from Order. Court below by means of impugned judgement and award has set aside award and remitted the matter before Arbitral Tribunal for adjudication afresh, which is perfectly in accordance with law. Court while deciding objections under section 34 of Act, 1996, cannot substitute the award by its own judgement. Since the matter has been remanded to Micro and Small Industrial Facilitation Council, Uttar Pradesh for decision afresh, we have it open to appellant to raise all objections regarding merits of claim raised by claimant-opposite party, except the plea of limitation that the claim as a whole is barred by limitation and secondly, that claimant-opposite party is not covered within the meaning of term 'Supplier' as defined under section 2 (n) of Act, 2006.

85. In view of above, present appeal fails and is liable to be dismissed . It is, accordingly, dismissed with cost which we quantify at Rs. 50,000/- payable by appellant to claimant-opposite party within a period of one month from today.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vivek Agarwal, J.)

1. Heard Sri Pawan Kumar Singh, learned counsel for the appellant and Sri Ram Singh, learned counsel for the respondents.

2. This appeal has been filed by the insurance company being aggrieved by award dated 21.08.2014 passed by learned Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/Additional District Judge, Court No. 1, Aligarh on the following grounds namely:-

(i) That claim petition was filed under the provisions of Section 163-A of the Motor Vehicles Act and therefore, tribunal was bound to follow the provisions contained in schedule 2 of the Act.

(ii) That learned claims tribunal arbitrarily made a deduction of 1/5th from the income of the deceased whereas as per the second schedule only 1/3rd deduction is permissible.

(iii) That learned claims tribunal has added 50% towards future prospects whereas no future prospect could have been awarded in a case filed under Section 163-A.

3. Learned counsel for the appellant-insurance company has place reliance on the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in case ofDeepal Girishbhai Soni and others vs. United India Insurance Co. Ltd., Baroadaas reported inAIR 2004 SC 2107wherein it has been held that by reason of Section 163-A, compensation is required to be determined on the basis of a structured formula whereas in terms of Section 140, only a fixed amount is to be given.It has been further held that a provision of law providing for compensation is presumed to be final in nature unless a contra is indicated, in the statutes either expressly or by necessary implication. Similarly, reliance has been placed on the judgment ofUnited India Insurance Co. Ltd. vs. Kaushalya Devi and othersdecided by High Court of Delhi in M.A.C. Appeal No. 898 of 2006 decided on 14.03.2007 and as reproduced from MANU/DE/7345/2007 wherein it has been held that the tribunal cannot assess compensation in excess of annual income of Rs. 40,000/- as stipulated in the second schedule to the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988. Reliance is also placed on the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in case ofUnited Indian Insurance Co. Ltd. vs. Sunil Kumar and othersas reported in2018 (1) TAC 3 (SC)wherein it has been held that grant of compensation under Section 163-A on the basis of structured formula is in nature of final award and adjudication thereunder is required to be made without any requirement of any proof of negligence of driver/owner of vehicle involved.

4. Sri Ram Singh, learned counsel for the respondent-claimants, on the other hand, submits that he is not pressing para-1 of his cross-objection, but in the light of the law laid down in case ofMagma General Insurance Co. Ltd. vs. Nanu Ram @ Chuhru Ram and othersasreported in2019 (132) ALR 745 (SC), each of the claimants is entitled to loss of consortium and learned claims tribunal has erred in not awarding consortium to each of the claimants. It is also submitted that claims tribunal erred in reducing the income from Rs. 3,500/- per month to Rs. 3,000/- per month and in fact, it should have restricted the income to Rs. 40,000/- because even if minimum wages are taken into consideration on the date of the accident i.e., 28.01.2012, then for a truck driver, minimum wages were to the tune of more than Rs. 4,000/- per month. He supports remaining award and submits that no further indulgence is required. He further submits that even in a claim petition under Section 163-A, future prospects can be awarded and in support of his contention, he places reliance on Division Bench's judgment of this Hon'ble Court in case ofNational Insurance Company Ltd. vs. Smt. Gayatri Devi and othersas reported in2015 (1) AICC 580, wherein Insurance Company had challenged the award, wherein Division bench of this Court held that even in a claim under Section 163-A, future prospects can be awarded in as much as it is open to the tribunal to consider granting compensation under other heads as specified under Rule 220-A of the U.P. Rules, 1998.

5. Similarly, reliance has been placed on another Division Bench judgment of this Court in case of the Oriental Insurance Company Ltd. vs. Sadhna and others as reported in 2015 (2) AICC 1089 where Hon'ble Division Bench of this High Court held that schedule was amended more than two decades ago and tribunal has determined monthly income to be Rs. 4,000/- which is justified in holding that there is no scope for interference and dismissed the appeal. Referring to the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in case of R.K. Malik and another vs. Kiran Pal and others as reported in 2009 TAC (3) 1 (SC) which is a case of 29 school children dying in an accident. It is held that it is appropriate to grant Rs. 75,000/- to each of the claimants as compensation for future prospect of the children over and above awarded by the High Court.

6. A perusal of judgment in case of R.K. Malik (supra) noted that compensation has been awarded by the tribunal as well as the High Court on the basis of second schedule and relevant multiplier under the Act. Thereafter, Supreme Court noted that as far as non-pecuniary damages are concerned, the tribunal had not awarded any compensation under the head of non-pecuniary damages, however, in appeal, High Court elaborately discussed this aspect of the matter and awarded non-pecuniary damages of Rs. 75,000/-.

However, in para 16, it is observed as under:-

".....16. Then, how does one calculate pecuniary compensation for loss of future earnings and loss of dependency of the parents, grand parents etc. in the case of non-working student? Under the Second Schedule of the Act in case of a non earning person, his income is notionally estimated at Rs. 15,000/- per annum. The Second Schedule is applicable to claim petitions filed under Section 163 A of the Act. The Second Schedule provides for the multiplier to be applied in cases where the age of the victim was less than 15 years and between 15 years but not exceeding 20 years. Even when compensation is payable under Section 166 read with 168 of the Act, deviation from the structured formula as provided in the Second Schedule is not ordinarily permissible, except in exceptional cases. [see Abati Bezbaruah v. Dy. Director General, Geological Survey of India, (2003) 3 SCC 148); 2003 (2) T.A.C. 18; United India Insurance Company Ltd. vs. Patricia Jean Mahajan, (2002) 6 SCC 281: 2002 (2) T.A.C. 335 and U.P. State Road Transport Corp. v. Trilok Chandra, (1996) 4 SCC 362 : 1996 (2) T.A.C. 286.

7. In First Appeal From Order No. 199 of 2017, National Insurance Co. Ltd., Lucknow vs. Luvkush and others, the Division Bench of this Hon'ble High Court has visited the aspect of rule making wherein Rule 220-A of U.P. Rules, 1998 too has been discussed.

8. Relying on different sections of the Motor Vehicles Act, it has been pointed out that each of the section of the Motor Vehicles Act confers power of making rules upon State Government for the purpose of carrying into effect provisions of particular chapter/ chapters. In this regard, Section 28 confers power of making rules upon State Government for the purpose of carrying into effect provisions of Chapter II other than the matters specified in Section 27. Chapter II, contemplates provisions of licensing of drivers of motor vehicles. In sub-section (2) of Section 28 certain specific subjects are mentioned but the same are also in the context of licensing of connected matters therewith.

9. Similarly, Section 38 confers power upon State Government to make rules for the purpose of carrying into effect provisions of Chapter III. Sub-section (2) specifies certain subjects which also relates to matters concerned with Chapter III which deals with provisions of licensing of conductors of stage carriages.

10. Then comes Section 65 which confers similar power upon State Government for framing rules for carrying into effect the provisions of Chapter IV relating to registration of motor vehicles.

11. Next is Section 95 which confers power upon State Government to frame rules as to Stage Carriages and Contract Carriages and conduct of passengers in such vehicles. This Section 95 is part of Chapter V which contains provisions relating to control of transport vehicles.

12. Section 96 confers power upon State Government to frame rules for the purpose of carrying into effect, provisions of Chapter V.

13. Section 107 confers power to frame rule for carrying into effect the provisions of Chapter VI which deals with special provisions relating to State transport undertakings.

14. Section 111 confers power upon State Government to frame rules regulating construction, equipment and maintenance of motor vehicles and Trailers, with respect to all matters other than the matters specified in sub-section (1) of Section 110. This Section 111 is part of Chapter VII which contains provisions of construction, equipment and maintenance of motor vehicles.

15. Section 138 confers power to frame rules upon State Government for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of Chapter VIII which contains provisions relating to control of traffic.

16. Section 176 is the only relevant provision which takes into its ambit Sections 165 to 174 which are part of Chapter XII relating to Claims Tribunal. Section 176 reads as under:

"176. Power of State Government to make rules.--A State Government may make rules for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of sections 165 to 174, and in particular, such rules may provide for all or any of the following matters, namely:-

(a) the form of application for claims for compensation and the particulars it may contain, and the fees, if any, to be paid in respect of such applications;

(b) the procedure to be followed by a Claims Tribunal in holding an inquiry under this Chapter;

(c) the powers vested in a Civil Court which may be exercised by a Claims Tribunal;

(d) the form and the manner in which and the fees (if any) on payment of which an appeal may by preferred against an award of a Claims Tribunal; and

(e) any other matter which is to be, or may be, prescribed."

17. Lastly, it is Section 213 which is part of Chapter XIV, i.e., "Miscellaneous". Section 213 confers power upon State Government to establish a Motor Vehicles Department and appoint officers therefor as it thinks fit.

18. Thereafter, Para 82, 83 and 84 reads as under:-

".....82. A delegated/ subordinate legislation neither can create substantive rights and obligations nor can enhance efficacy or reduce normal functional ambit of principal legislation. A Full Bench of this Court in Chandra Kumar Sah and another Vs. The District Judge and others, AIR 1976 All 328 held that when a rule framing power is conferred upon State Government to make rules to carry out the purposes of this Act, it does not give carte blanche to enact independent legislation. The expression "to carry out the purposes of the Act" means to enable its provisions to be effectively administered. They connote that rules are to be confined to the same field of operation as that marked out by Act itself. Court further observed in para 11 as under:

"11. .... This power will authorise the provision of subsidiary means of carrying into effect what is incidental to the execution of its specific provisions. But such a power will not support attempts to widen the purposes of the Act, to add new and different means of carrying them out or to depart from or vary the plan which the legislature has adopted to attain its ends Shanahan v. Scott (96 Com WLR 245). In other words a subordinate law cannot substantially modify the scheme or policy of the Act."

83. In Global Energy Limited and another Vs. Central Electricity Regulatory Commission, 2009(15) SCC 570, Court in para 25 of judgment, with regard to power of delegated legislation, said as under:

"25. It is now a well settled principle of law that the rule making power "for carrying out the purpose of the Act" is a general delegation. Such a general delegation may not be held to be laying down any guidelines. Thus, by reason of such a provision alone, the regulation making power cannot be exercised so as to bring into existence substantive rights or obligations or disabilities which are not contemplated in terms of the provisions of the said Act." (emphasis added)

84. In Kunj Behari Lal Butail vs. State of H.P., 2000(3) SCC 40, a three Judge Bench of Court, said:

"14. We are also of the opinion that a delegated power to legislate by making rules "for carrying out the purposes of the Act" is a general delegation without laying down any guidelines; it cannot be so exercised as to bring into existence substantive rights or obligations or disabilities not contemplated by the provisions of the Act itself."

19. Therefore, it is apparent that Rule 220-A of the U.P. Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 has been framed under Section 176 of the Motor Vehicles Act.

20. Section 176 of the Motor Vehicles Act deals with the Power of State Government to make rules for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of Sections 165 to 174. Thus, Section 163(A), which is part of Chapter 11 has not been included in the ambit of rule making under Section 176 and therefore, Rule 220-A will not be applicable to the statutory provisions contained in Section 163-A of the Motor Vehicles Act which specifically provides for special provisions as to payment of compensation on structured formula basis. It clearly provides that compensation as indicated in the second schedule is to be paid.

21. Recently, vide Ministry of Road and Transport notification dated May 22nd, 2018, Second Schedule under Section 163-A of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 has been amended and it has held as under:-

"1. (a) Fatal Accidents:

Compensation payable in case of Death shall be five lakh rupees.

(b) Accidents resulting in permanent disability:

Compensation payable shall be = [Rs. 5,00,000/- × percentage disability as per Schedule I of the Employee's Compensation Act, 1923 (8 of 1923)] :

Provided that the minimum compensation in case of permanent disability of any kind shall not be less than fifty thousand rupees.

(c) Accidents resulting in minor injury:

A fixed compensation of twenty five thousand rupees shall be payable:

2. On and from the date of 1st day of January, 2019 the amount of compensation specified in the clauses (a) to (c) of paragraph (1) shall stand increased by 5 per cent annually".

3. This notification shall come into form on the date of its publication in the Official Gazette."

22. Recently, Hon'ble Supreme Court in case of Civil Appeal No. 9393 of 2019, Ramkhiladi and others vs. United India Insurance Co. Ltd. and others decided on 07.01.2020 (AIR 2020 SC 527) wherein it has been held that this amendment in second schedule is prospective and not retrospective.

23. In view of such facts, it is apparent that compensation in terms of a claim under Section 163-A will not include future prospects and this aspect of the matter as to the applicability of Rule 220-A has not been considered in case of National Insurance Co. Ltd. vs. Gayatri Devi and others as well as in case of Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. vs. Sadhna and others. As far as judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court is concerned, R.K. Mailik is not a case decided in reference to Section 163-A. In fact, Hon'ble Supreme Court in case of Raj Rani and others vs. Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. and others as reported in MACD 2009 SC 345 in para-12 has observed that the counsel may be correct to some extent that for the purpose of computation of the total amount of compensation under Section 163-A of the Motor Vehicles Act, the future prospects may not be of much relevance. Same is the ratio of the law laid down by Madhya Pradesh High Court in case of United India Insurance Co. Ltd. vs. Rajkumari and others as decided in M.A. No. 476 of 2012 on 25.02.2019. This when read in terms of para 16 of the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in case of R.K. Malik vs. Kiran Pal, then it is crystal clear that Supreme Court has also observed that in a claim under Section 163(A) of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, compensation is to be awarded on structured formula basis.

24. In view of such facts, this Court is of the opinion that arguments put-forth by the learned counsel for the respondent in support of their entitlement to payment of compensation in deviation of the provisions contained in second schedule is not sustainable, it deserves to be rejected and is rejected.

25. As far as the contention of the counsel for the claimants that each of the claimant is entitled to loss of consortium in the light of the law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in case of*Magma General Insurance Co. Ltd. vs. Nanu Ram @ Chuhru Ram and others(supra)*is concerned, ratio of that judgment will not be applicable to the facts of the present case inasmuch as that was a case under the provisions of Sections 166, 168 and 173 of the Motor Vehicles Act and not under Section 163-A of the Motor Vehicles Act.

26. In view of such legal pronouncements, I have no hesitation to hold that tribunal erred in passing the impugned award by adopting incorrect and faulty methodology of making 1/5th deduction and adding 50% towards future prospects. Similarly, it erred in arbitrarily treating the income of the deceased at Rs. 3,000/-per month against the submission of the appellant that the income of the deceased was to the tune of Rs. 3,500-4,000/- per month. Therefore, as per the provisions contained in schedule 2 of the Motor Vehicles Act, compensation will be recomputed as under; annual income Rs. 40,000/-, 1/3rd to be deducted towards personal expenses, therefore, dependency will come out to Rs.26,667/- on which a multiplier of 16 will be applicable as the victim was between the age of 35-40 years, taking total compensation to Rs. 4,26,672/-. Over and above, other claimants are entitled to a sum of Rs. 2,000/- under the head of funeral expenses, a sum of Rs. 5,000/- under the head of loss of consortiumas one of the beneficiary is wife of the deceased and Rs. 2,500/- towards the loss of estate. Besides this, claimants are entitled to a sum of Rs. 10,556/- towards the amount spent by them on treatment of the deceased as has been awarded by learned claims tribunal. Thus, total compensation will come out to Rs. 4,46,728/- in place of Rs. 7,21,756/- (seven lakhs twenty one thousand seven hundred and fifty six rupees) awarded by learned claims tribunal.

27. This amount will be appropriated in the same ratio as has been directedby learned claims tribunal. The claim amount will carry interest @ 7% from the date of filing of the claim petition till the date of actual payment.

28. In above terms appeal is disposed off.

5. National Insurance Company Ltd.. vs. Pranay Sethi & ors. (2017) 16 SCC 680

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ramesh Sinha, J.
Hon'ble Ajit Kumar, J.)

1. Heard Sri Sudeep Agarwal, learned counsel for the appellants, Sri Vibhuti Narain, learned counsel for respondent no. 1, Sri Hemant Kumar, Advocate holding brief of Sri V.K. Gupta, learned counsel for respondent no. 2 and perused the record.

2. This first appeal from order is directed against the award dated 29th September, 2012 passed by the Claim Tribunal/District Judge, Azamgarh allowing the claim petition of the claimants bearing no. 840 of 2009 for a compensation of Rs. 6,89,336/- @ 7% simple interest per annum, for the purposes of enhancement.

3. Assailing the award on the issue of computation of compensation, it has been argued that while making the assessment of income of the deceased son of the claimants, the tribunal has manifestly erred in taking into consideration only the basic pay and the dearness allowance and then deducting the tax from that. He submits that in view of the authority pronounced by the Supreme Court in the case of Sunil Sharma vs. Bachinder Pal, 2011 LAWS SC 2 73, the house rent allowance, city compensatory allowance and the medical allowance are also to be added towards the computation of the income. He has also placed reliance upon another authority of the Supreme Court in the case of National Insurance Company Limited vs. Indira Srivastava 2007 LAWS SC 12 95.

4. On the question of multiplier, it has been argued that multiplier of 12 has wrongly been applied whereas the multiplier of 17 should have been applied as per the IInd schedule of the The Motor Vehicles Act, 1989 and the Rules. It is also argued that on count of future prospects nothing has been added nor, any amount has been paid towards the loss of consortium even towards the funeral expenses only a meager amount has been directed to be paid. He has also placed reliance upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Laxmi Devi & others v. Mohammad Tabbar & Another (2008) 12 SCC 165 and Sarla Verma & Ors. v. Delhi Tranpsort Corporation & Anr. (2009) 6 SCC 121 and also finally in the case of National Insurance Company Limited. vs. Pranay Sethi and others (2017) 16 SCC 680 and this is how it has been claimed that the amount of compensation awarded by the tribunal needed to be enhanced.

5. Learned counsel appearing for the respondent-Insurance Company though has sought to defend the order of the tribunal for the reasons assigned therein and has thus defended the compensation awarded.

6. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and their arguments across the bar, we now proceed to examine the correctness of assessment of income of the deceased by the tribunal and consequential determination of compensation. In the matter of assessment of income of salaried or non-salaried person, the legal position has now come to be settled by the decisions of the Apex Court of this country in a series of its judgment and, therefore, it is proper to examine the award in question, in the light of the authorities on this aspect of the Apex Court.

7. The Apex Court in the case of Sunil Sharma Sharma v. Bachitar Singh, 2011-LAWS (SC)-2-73 vide paragraphs 8 and 9 has held thus:-

"8 In the case of National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Indira Srivstava and Ors. [AIR 2008 SC 845], SB. Sinha, J. has observed that "The term 'income' has different connotations for different purposes. A Court of law, having regard to the change in societal conditions must consider the question not only having regard t pay packet the employee carries home at the end of the month but also other perks which are beneficial to the members of the entire family. Loss cause to the family on a deth of a near and dear one can hardly be compensated on monitory terms." His Lordship also stated that if some facilities were being provided whereby the entire family stood to benefit, the same must be held to be relevant for the purpose of computation of total income on the basis of which the amount of compensation payable for the death of the kith and kin of the applicants was required to be determined. This Court held that superannuation benefits, contributions towards gratuity, insurance of medical policy for self and family and education scholarship were beneficial to the members of the family. This Court clarified that by opining that 'just compensation' must be determined having regard to the facts and circumstances of each case. The basis for considering the entire pay packet is what the dependents have lost in view of death of the deceased. It is in the nature of compensation for future loss towards the family income" and that " the amounts therefore, which were required to be paid to the deceased by his employer by way of perks, should be included for computation of his monthly income as that would have been added to his monthly income by way of contribution to the family as contra-distinguished to the ones which were for his benefit. We may, however, hasten to add that from the said amount of income, the statutory amount of tax payable thereupon must deducted."

9. In Raghuvir Singh Matolys and Ors. v. Hari Singh Malviya and Ors. [JT 2009 (7) SC 597: 2009 (15) SCC 363], this Court has observed that dearness allowance and house rent allowance should be included for computation of income of the deceased."

8. In National Insurance Company Ltd. vs. Indira (supra) the Apex Court vide paragraphs 17 to 20 has held thus:-

17. The amounts, therefore, which were required to be paid to the deceased by his employer by way of perks, should be included for computation of his monthly income as that would have been added to his monthly income by way of contribution to the family as contradistinguished to the ones which were for his benefit. We may, however, hasten to add that from the said amount of income, the statutory amount of tax payable thereupon must be deducted.

18. The term 'income' in P. Ramanatha Aiyar's Advanced Law Lexicon (3rd Ed.) has been defined as under :

"The value of any benefit or perquisite whether convertible into money or not, obtained from a company either by a director or a person who has substantial interest in the company, and any sum paid by such company in respect of any obligation, which but for such payment would have been payable by the director or other person aforesaid, occurring or arising to a person within the State from any profession, trade or calling other than agriculture."

It has also been stated :

'INCOME' signifies 'what comes in' (per Selborne, C., Jones v. Ogle, 42 LJ Ch.336). 'It is as large a word as can be used' to denote a person's receipts '(per Jessel, M.R. Re Huggins, 51 LJ Ch.938.) income is not confined to receipts from business only and means periodical receipts from one's work, lands, investments, etc. AIR 1921 Mad 427 (SB). Ref. 124 IC 511 : 1930 MWN 29 : 31 MLW 438 AIR 1930 Mad 626 : 58 MLJ

19. If the dictionary meaning of the word 'income' is taken to its logical conclusion, it should include those benefits, either in terms of money or otherwise, which are taken into consideration for the purpose of payment of income-tax or profession tax although some elements thereof may or may not be taxable or would have been otherwise taxable but for the exemption conferred thereupon under the statute.

20. In N. Sivammal & Ors. v. Managing Director, Pandian Roadways Corporation & Ors. [(1985) 1 SCC 18], this Court took into consideration the pay packet of the deceased.

9. This above issue has come to be discussed in Pranay Sethi's case (supra) vide paras-30, 31, 32 and 33 thus.

30. While adverting to the addition of income for future prospects, it stated thus:-

"24. In Susamma Thomas this Court increased the income by nearly 100%, in Sarla Dixit the income was increased only by 50% and in Abati Bezbaruah the income was increased by a mere 7%. In view of the imponderables and uncertainties, we are in favour of adopting as a rule of thumb, an addition of 50% of actual salary to the actual salary income of the deceased towards future prospects, where the deceased had a permanent job and was below 40 years. (Where the annual income is in the taxable range, the words "actual salary" should be read as "actual salary less tax"). The addition should be only 30% if the age of the deceased was 40 to 50 years. There should be no addition, where the age of the deceased is more than 50 years. Though the evidence may indicate a different percentage of increase, it is necessary to standardise the addition to avoid different yardsticks being applied or different methods of calculation being adopted. Where the deceased was self-employed or was on a fixed salary (without provision for annual increments, etc.), the courts will usually take only the actual income at the time of death. A departure therefrom should be made only in rare and exceptional cases involving special circumstances."

31. Though we have devoted some space in analyzing the precedential value of the judgments, that is not the thrust of the controversy. We are required to keenly dwell upon the heart of the issue that emerges for consideration. The seminal controversy before us relates to the issue where the deceased was self-employed or was a person on fixed salary without provision for annual increment, etc., what should be the addition as regards the future prospects. In Sarla Verma, the Court has made it as a rule that 50% of actual salary could be added if the deceased had a permanent job and if the age of the deceased is between 40 - 50 years and no addition to be made if the deceased was more than 50 years. It is further ruled that where deceased was self-employed or had a fixed salary (without provision for annual increment, etc.) the Courts will usually take only the actual income at the time of death and the departure is permissible only in rare and exceptional cases involving special circumstances.

32. First, we shall deal with the reasoning of straitjacket demarcation between the permanent employed persons within the taxable range and the other category where deceased was self-employed or employed on fixed salary sans annual increments, etc.

33. The submission, as has been advanced on behalf of the insurers, is that the distinction between the stable jobs at one end of the spectrum and self-employed at the other end of the spectrum with the benefit of future prospects being extended to the legal representatives of the deceased having a permanent job is not difficult to visualize, for a comparison between the two categories is a necessary ground reality. It is contended that guaranteed/definite income every month has to be treated with a different parameter than the person who is self-employed inasmuch as the income does not remain constant and is likely to oscillate from time to time. Emphasis has been laid on the date of expected superannuation and certainty in permanent job in contradistinction to the uncertainty on the part of a self- employed person. Additionally, it is contended that the permanent jobs are generally stable and for an assessment the entity or the establishment where the deceased worked is identifiable since they do not suffer from the inconsistencies and vagaries of self-employed persons. It is canvassed that it may not be possible to introduce an element of standardization as submitted by the claimants because there are many a category in which a person can be self-employed and it is extremely difficult to assimilate entire range of self-employed categories or professionals in one compartment. It is also asserted that in certain professions addition of future prospects to the income as a part of multiplicand would be totally an unacceptable concept. Examples are cited in respect of categories of professionals who are surgeons, sports persons, masons and carpenters, etc. It is also highlighted that the range of self-employed persons can include unskilled labourer to a skilled person and hence, they cannot be put in a holistic whole. That apart, it is propounded that experience of certain professionals brings in disparity in income and, therefore, the view expressed in Sarla Verma (supra) that has been concurred with Reshma Kumari (supra) should not be disturbed.

9. Learned counsel appearing for the respondent-Insurance Company could not give any explanation as to why in computing the income of the deceased, who was a salaried person, only basic pay and the dearness allowance have been considered.

10. In the light of the aforesaid authorities which could not be disputed by learned counsel for the respondents, we are of the considered opinion that the computation of income of the deceased for the purposes of determination of compensation shall include the basic pay, dearness allowance, medical allowance, transport allowance and annual bonus and the deduction could be only of professional tax as well as the income tax. However, it is to be borne in mind that there may be several allowances awarded in a salary of a particular month which might have been awarded due but all such allowances may not constitute monthly salary otherwise. In the case in hand, we find following salary details that were provided by the claimant vide salary slip of the period 01.04.2009 to 30.04.2009:-

Earnings	Deductions
Basic salary 7,140.00	PF 989.00
Dearness Allowance 1,100.00	Professional Tax 200.00
House Rent Allowance 4,196.00	Income Tax 723.00
Medical Allowance 2,623.00	Infosys Welfare Trust 100.00
Transport Allowance 1,048.00	GYM facilities 300.00
Leave Travel Allowance 2,623.00	Hostel Rent Recovery 2,750.00
Annual Bonus/Ex-gratia 353.00	Membership fee 150.00
TPI Incentive 2,720.00
Bonus Ex-Gratia Advance Pmt.

1,566.00
Salary Arrears 11,496.00
Total 34,865.00	Total 5,212.00

In the above details leave travel allowance, TPI incentive and Bonus ex-gratia advance payment can not be treated as part of regular monthly salary. Training Period Incentive (TPI) is normally given by the companies in the very first month of after training especially in case of Infosys Solution Pvt. Ltd. Further salary arrears are given annually for fixation of dearness allowance/increments and so that will not form part of regular monthly salary. The increment will automatically enhance the basic salary and arrears only indicate dating it back to the date and time with effect from which such increment has been awarded and so the arrears got accumulated. With the increment/award of Dearness Allowance the basic salary and/or plus Dearness Allowance stands mentioned in the salary slip and that should be taken into account. The hostel rent is charged for the period when the trainee is under training and for that he has to compulsorily stay in the hostel and, therefore, deduction is shown in regular monthly salary but once the training period is over and the Training Period Incentive (TPI) is finally paid, there can be no further deductions towards hostel rent. And so also Infosys Welfare Trust amount and Gym facilities charges and membership fee are all not liable to be deducted as the employee, in the case in hand had passed away.

11. Thus, considering the admitted position of salary as discussed above following will be the actual income to be taken into account for computation of compensation:

Earning		Deductions
Basic Pay	7,140/-	Professional Tax	200.00
D.A.	1,100/-	Income Tax	723.00
H.R.A.	4,196/-
Medical Allowance	2,623/-
Transport Allowance	1,048/-
Total	16107	Total	923/-

Net Pay Rs. 15184/-

12. Coming to the question of multiplier now we refer to paragraphs 42 and 44 of Pranay Sethi's judgment (supra) that run as under:-

42. As far as the multiplier is concerned, the claims tribunal and the Courts shall be guided by Step 2 that finds place in paragraph 19 of Sarla Verma read with paragraph 42 of the said judgment. For the sake of completeness, paragraph 42 is extracted below :-

"42. We therefore hold that the multiplier to be used should be as mentioned in Column (4) of the table above (prepared by applying Susamma Thomas, Trilok Chandra and Charlie), which starts with an operative multiplier of 18 (for the age groups of 15 to 20 and 21 to 25 years), reduced by one unit for every five years, that is M-17 for 26 to 30 years, M- 16 for 31 to 35 years, M-15 for 36 to 40 years, M-14 for 41 to 45 years, and M-13 for 46 to 50 years, then reduced by two units for every five years, that is,

M-11 for 51 to 55 years, M-9 for 56 to 60 years, M-7 for 61 to 65 years and M-5 for 66 to 70 years."

44. At this stage, we must immediately say that insofar as the aforesaid multiplicand/multiplier is concerned, it has to be accepted on the basis of income established by the legal representatives of the deceased. Future prospects are to be added to the sum on the percentage basis and "income" means actual income less than the tax paid. The multiplier has already been fixed in Sarla Verma which has been approved in Reshma Kumari with which we concur.

(emphasis added)

13. Learned counsel appearing for the Insurance Company could also not give any satisfactory reply to the arguments advanced by learned counsel for the appellants that the two judgments of the Supreme Court in Lalita Devi and Sarla Verma (supra) still hold the field as these judgments have not been overruled. These judgments have found approval of the Constitution Bench in Pranay Sethi's case (supra) as well.

14. In view of the above and by applying the rule laid down in Sarla Verma's case, in our considered opinion, the multiplier of 18 would be applicable as the deceased was 24 years' of age at the time of accident.

15. The legal position towards conventional head of future prospects has been summarized in the case of Pranay Sethi (supra) vide paragraph-59.3 thus:-

"59.3. While determining the income, an addition of 50% of actual salary to the income of the deceased towards future prospects, where the deceased had a permanent job and was below the age of 40 years, should be made. The addition should be 30%, if the age of the deceased was between 40 to 50 years. In case the deceased was between the age of 50 to 60 years, the addition should be 15%. Actual salary should be read as actual salary less tax."

16. So now, so far as future prospects are concerned, the claimants are entitled to 50% of the income assessed on the basis of the principles laid down in Pranay Shetty's case (supra). Again for loss of state, we determine the amount as Rs. 15,000 and also Rs. 10,000 towards funeral expenses.

17. In view of the above, we direct that the appellants shall be entitled to the compensation as per the following computation.

Income from salary	15184/- p.m.	Rs. 1,82,208/- p.a.
Future Prospects	50% of Rs. 1,82,208/-	Rs. 91,104/-
Total Income		Rs. 2,73,312/-
Deduction towards personal expenses	1/2th of total income	Rs. 1,36,656/-
Dependency	2,73,312-1,36,656	Rs. 1,36,656/-
Multiplier		18
Compensation	1,36,656/- x 18	Rs. 24,59,808/-

Funeral Expenses	10,000/-
Loss of Estate	Rs. 15,000/-
Total Compensation	24,84,808

18. Now coming to the question of interest, we are of the opinion that in normal circumstances 6 to 7% only is admissible in motor accident claim's cases. However, no straightjacket formula can be applied and the interest shall be determined and payable on the facts and circumstances of each case. The deceased was the only issue of his parents, and was, thus only bread earner of the family and it is unfortunate that he met with fatal accident and the poor parents had to wait for 3-4 years for the award of compensation and then more than 7 years before the high court for enhancement on account of wrong assessment of income at the end of the tribunal in spite of settled legal position in the matter. In such circumstances, therefore, we find it proper to award interest @ 7 % from the date of application till date of actual payment made under the award of the tribunal and @ 9% interest on the enhanced compensation from the date of payment till enhanced payment is made under this order and also over and above the amount if has remained unpaid till date under the award of the tribunal.

19. Thus the compensation enhanced from Rs. 6,89,366/- to Rs. 24,84,808/-, i.e., by Rs. 17,95,442/- as above shall be paid @ 9% interest from the date of this judgment till actual payment is made of the enhanced compensation including the past any amount if has remained unpaid, by the respondents Insurance Company till the actual enhanced compensation coupled with unpaid amount, is paid.

18. In view of the above, this appeal stands allowed in above terms modifying the award of the Motor Accidents Claims Tribunal.

Counsel for the Respondents:

Civil law-Original suit filed for cancelation of registered will deed-on ground that some imposter was projected as Bahadur and thum impression is forged-Suit dismissed- Appeal filed-In appeal-Application under Order 41 Rule 27 C.P.C. filed-for opinion of fingerprint expert-as they were not aware of legal issue and their counsel never advised them for the same-lack of proper legal advice-not a substantial cause-W.P. dismissed.

Held, Admittedly, no application was moved by the petitioners before the trial Court to seek expert opinion. It cannot be said that the petitioners with due diligence could not have moved such an application to disapprove the thumb impression of Maggal over the will in question. In the instant case it was not as if the additional evidence was required by the Court to enable it to pronounce judgment and, therefore, additional evidence was sought to be adduced for 'substantial cause' and in view of the settled legal proposition, lack of proper legal advice does not constitute a 'substantial cause' to let the petitioners bring in additional evidence at this belated stage. (Para 15) (E-9)

3. U.O.I. v. Ibrahim Uddin, (2012) 8 SCC 148

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rakesh Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Shri Narendra Bahadur Singh, learned counsel for the petitioners.

2. This petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India has been filed challenging the order dated 21.2.2014 passed by the Additional District Judge, Court No. 7, Faizabad in Civil Appeal No.155 of 2011 (Ashok Kumar v. Onkar Prasad) whereby and whereunder the application on behalf of the plaintiff-petitioner herein purported to be made under Order 41 Rule 27 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (for short "the Code') has been rejected.

3. In order to appreciate the issue requiring determination a few material facts are stated as under: -

Maggal, the original plaintiff, instituted a suit against Onkar Prasad and Om Prakash, the defendants-respondents herein, for cancellation of a registered will deed dated 27.5.1982, executed by his brother Bahadur in favour of Onkar Prasad and Om Prakash, the defendants, respondents herein. It was the case of the original plaintiff that the Ram Narayan, the father of the respondents got the will deed executed in their favour by projecting some imposter as Bahadur and that the alleged thumb impression of Bahadur on the will was a forged one. The suit was contested by the defendants by filing their written statement. During the pendency of the suit, the original plaintiff died and in his place the petitioners were substituted as his legal representatives.

4. The trial Court after appreciating the evidence on record dismissed the suit by judgment and decree dated 12.8.2011. Feeling aggrieved, the petitioners filed an appeal before the Additional District Judge. In the said appeal, the petitioners on 24.9.2013 moved an application under Order 41 Rule 27 of the Code praying that the opinion of fingerprint expert be called for to establish that the thumb impression on the will deed was not that of Bahadur. It was stated that the petitioners were not well versed with the law and were totally dependent upon their counsel and that their counsel did not advice them to seek the opinion of a fingerprint expert. It was alleged that while preparing the case their counsel advised them to seek the opinion of fingerprint expert, and accordingly, the application was being moved.

5. To the said application objection was filed on behalf of the respondents to the effect that the petitioners cannot be permitted to fill any lacuna in the case and the application under Order 41 Rule 27 was moved with a view to delay the decision of the case.

6. By reason of the impugned order, the Additional District Judge has rejected the said application on the ground that the case of the petitioner was not covered under Order 41 Rule 27 of the Code. The relevant portion of the order is extracted below: -

"प्रस्तुत केस में प्रार्थी/अपीलार्थीगण के द्वारा ऐसी कोई स्थिति नहीं बतायी गयी है जिसके द्वारा आदेश 41 नियम 27 सिविल प्रकिया संहिता के प्रावधान में निर्धारित शर्तों में से कोई भी शर्त अथवा स्थिति प्रकट या स्थापित होती हो। अवर न्यायालय के समक्ष उभय पक्षों द्वारा अपने–अपने साक्ष्य प्रस्तुत किए गए थे। साक्ष्यों के आधार पर अवर न्यायालय नें विवादित/प्रश्नगत वसीयतनामा दिनांक 27.05.1982 को सही माना, जिसमें वसीयनामा के हाशिया गवाहान द्वारा न्यायालय में साक्ष्य देकर उसे साबित कराया गया है। ऐसी स्थिति में, प्रस्तुत अपील के स्तर पर, यह कत्तई आवश्यक प्रतीत नहीं होता कि विवादित वसीयतनामा के सही होने के तथ्य के बिन्दु पर अवर न्यायालय के द्वारा अन्तिम विनिश्चयन किए जाने के उपरान्त बिना किसी औचित्य या आधार के अब वसीयतनामा पर लगे निशानी अंगूठा का मिलान निष्पादनकर्ता के किसी अन्य दस्तावेज पर बने निशानी अंगूठा से कराया जाय। अवर न्यायालय के समक्ष इस हेतु प्रार्थी/अपीलार्थीगण को पूर्ण अवसर था। यह भी स्थापित नही किया गया है कि प्रार्थी/अपीलार्थीगण ने अवर न्यायालय के समक्ष वसीयकर्ता के निशानी अंगूठा की कोई इक्सपर्ट राय मंगाए जाने का कोई प्रार्थनापत्र देकर पैरवी की गयी जिसको अवर न्यायालय ने इन्कार कर दिया रहा हो। इस प्रकार प्रस्तुत प्रार्थनापत्र विलम्बनकारी एवं निराधार प्रतीत होता है जो निरस्त होने योग्य है।"

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner has submitted that it was only on account of lack of legal advice that the petitioner did not move an application before the trial Court seeking the opinion of a fingerprint expert. He has submitted that in the interest of justice the application be allowed and the opinion of fingerprint expert be called for.

8. Under the scheme of the Code, it is the trial Court, before whom, the parties are required to adduce their evidence, oral or documentary. However, under Section 107(1)(d), additional evidence can be adduced before the appellate court in three exceptional circumstances enumerated in Rule 27 of Order 41 of the Code. Rule 27 of Order 41 reads as under:

"27. Production of additional evidence in appellate court.--(1) The parties to an appeal shall not be entitled to produce additional evidence, whether oral or documentary, in the appellate court. But if--

(a) the court from whose decree the appeal is preferred has refused to admit evidence which ought to have been admitted, or

(aa) the party seeking to produce additional evidence, establishes that notwithstanding the exercise of due diligence, such evidence was not within his knowledge or could not, after the exercise of due diligence, be produced by him at the time when the decree appealed against was passed, or

(b) the appellate court requires any document to be produced or any witness to be examined to enable it to pronounce judgment, or for any other substantial cause, the appellate court may allow such evidence or document to be produced or witness to be examined.

(2) Whenever additional evidence is allowed to be produced by an appellate court, the court shall record the reason for its admission."

9. Power of the appellate court to pass any order under Rule 27 of Order 41 is limited. Clauses (a), (aa) and (b) of sub-rule (1) refer to three different situations. For exercising its jurisdiction thereunder, the appellate court must arrive at a finding that one or the other conditions enumerated thereunder is satisfied. It is clear that parties to the lis are not entitled to produce additional evidence as a matter of course. Before a party is permitted to produce additional evidence under sub-clause (aa), it has to show a good reason as to why the evidence was not produced in the trial Court. It is well settled that the parties cannot be allowed to fill the lacunae at the appellate stage.

10. In K.R. Mohan Reddy v. Net Work Inc., (2007) 14 SCC 257 the Apex Court has held as under:

"17. It is now a trite law that the conditions precedent for application of clause (aa) of sub-rule (1) of Rule 27 of Order 41 is different from that of clause (b). In the event the former is to be applied, it would be for the applicant to show that the ingredients or conditions precedent mentioned therein are satisfied. On the other hand if clause (b) to sub-rule (1) of Rule 27 of Order 41 CPC is to be taken recourse to, the appellate court is bound to consider the entire evidence on record and come to an independent finding for arriving at a just decision; adduction of additional evidence as has been prayed by the appellant was necessary.

19. The appellate court should not pass an order so as to patch up the weakness of the evidence of the unsuccessful party before the trial court, but it will be different if the court itself requires the evidence to do justice between the parties. The ability to pronounce judgment is to be understood as the ability to pronounce judgment satisfactorily to the mind of the court. But mere difficulty is not sufficient to issue such direction."

11. In N. Kamalam v. Ayyasamy, (2001) 7 SCC 503 the Apex Court while interpreting Rule 27 of Order 41 of the Code, observed as under:

"19. Incidentally, the provisions of Order 41 Rule 27 have not been engrafted in the Code so as to patch up the weak points in the case and to fill up the omission in the court of appeal -- it does not authorise any lacunae or gaps in evidence to be filled up. The authority and jurisdiction as conferred on to the appellate court to let in fresh evidence is restricted to the purpose of pronouncement of judgment in a particular way." (emphasis supplied)

12. In Union of India v. Ibrahim Uddin, (2012) 8 SCC 148 after a survey of a large number of cases the Apex Court held as under:

"36. The general principle is that the appellate court should not travel outside the record of the lower court and cannot take any evidence in appeal. However, as an exception, Order 41 Rule 27 CPC enables the appellate court to take additional evidence in exceptional circumstances. The appellate court may permit additional evidence only and only if the conditions laid down in this Rule are found to exist. The parties are not entitled, as of right, to the admission of such evidence. Thus, the provision does not apply, when on the basis of the evidence on record, the appellate court can pronounce a satisfactory judgment. The matter is entirely within the discretion of the court and is to be used sparingly. Such a discretion is only a judicial discretion circumscribed by the limitation specified in the Rule itself. (Vide K. Venkataramiah v. A. Seetharama Reddy, Municipal Corpn. of Greater Bombay v. Lala Pancham, Soonda Ram v. Rameshwarlal and Syed Abdul Khader v. Rami Reddy.)

37. The appellate court should not ordinarily allow new evidence to be adduced in order to enable a party to raise a new point in appeal. Similarly, *where a party on whom the onus of proving a certain point lies fails to discharge the onus, he is not entitled to a fresh opportunity to produce evidence, as the court can, in such a case, pronounce judgment against him and does not require any additional evidence to enable it to pronounce judgment. (*Vide Haji Mohammed Ishaq v. Mohd. Iqbal and Mohd. Ali and Co.)

* * *

39. It is not the business of the appellate court to supplement the evidence adduced by one party or the other in the lower court. Hence, in the absence of satisfactory reasons for the non-production of the evidence in the trial court, additional evidence should not be admitted in appeal as a party guilty of remissness in the lower court is not entitled to the indulgence of being allowed to give further evidence under this Rule. So a party who had ample opportunity to produce certain evidence in the lower court but failed to do so or elected not to do so, cannot have it admitted in appeal. (Vide State of U.P. v. Manbodhan Lal Srivastava and S. Rajagopal v. C.M. Armugam.)

40. The inadvertence of the party or his inability to understand the legal issues involved or the wrong advice of a pleader or the negligence of a pleader or that the party did not realise the importance of a document does not constitute a "substantial cause" within the meaning of this Rule. The mere fact that certain evidence is important, is not in itself a sufficient ground for admitting that evidence in appeal.

13. These are the broad principles to be kept in view while dealing with an application under Order 41 Rule 27 of the Code.

14. In the present case, the contention of the petitioners was that the will deed was not executed by Bahadur and it did not contain his thumb impression. The petitioners had ample opportunity before the trial Court to adduce evidence in support of their contention. It was open to them to call for an expert opinion but the same was not done and their suit was dismissed on the ground that the petitioners were not able to establish their case. At the appellate stage, in the application moved by the petitioners under Order 41 Rule 27 of the Code the only reason for adducing additional evidence was that they were not aware of legal issue and their counsel never advised them to call for the opinion of fingerprint expert.

15. Admittedly, no application was moved by the petitioners before the trial Court to seek expert opinion. It cannot be said that the petitioners with due diligence could not have moved such an application to disapprove the thumb impression of Maggal over the will in question. In the instant case it was not as if the additional evidence was required by the Court to enable it to pronounce judgment and, therefore, additional evidence was sought to be adduced for "substantial cause' and in view of the settled legal proposition, lack of proper legal advice does not constitute a "substantial cause' to let the petitioners bring in additional evidence at this belated stage.

16. The burden of proving that the will deed was concocted and forged was on the petitioners and they ought to have taken steps to have the document examined by a fingerprint expert, to establish that the disputed thumb mark on the will, was different from the admitted thumb mark of Bahadur. They failed to do so. The petitioners cannot be permitted to fill in the lacuna in their case.

17. The lower appellate court has elaborately considered the factual matrix and held that the petitioners have not satisfied any of the conditions stipulated under Order 41 Rule 27 and hence they are not entitled to produce additional evidence. The Additional District Judge has rightly dismissed the application moved on behalf of the petitioners.

18. There is no infirmity or illegality in the order impugned in this petition. The petition is devoid of merit and is accordingly dismissed.

3. Suresh Seth Vs Commissioner, Indore Municipal reported in AIR 2006 SC 767

(Delivered by Hon'ble Karunesh Singh Pawar, J.)

1. Heard Sri Himanshu Raghav, learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri Rakumar Singh, learned counsel for respondent no. 1, and Sri Manish Mishra, learned counsel for respondent no. 2 and 3.

Through this writ petition the petitioners are praying following relief:-

(i) Issue an appropriate writ, order or direction thereby holding the omission to make any provision for enabling by State Government the restoration of property of senior citizens lost in deceptive transactions, ultra vires to Sub-section (2) of Section 22 of The Maintenance and Welfare of Parents and Senior Citizens Act, 2007;

(ii) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus or likewise thereby directing the State Government to restore the amount of money lost in the execution of fraudulent sale deed dated 15.01.2016 (Annexure No. 3) after recovering the same from the private opposite parties.

2. Brief facts of the case are that the petitioners are couple and senior citizens. The petitioner no. 2 retired in the year 2015 as driver from Public Works Department and as such he got certain post retiral dues. One Naresh Chand sold a piece of land measuring 0.096 hectare from gata no. 365 situated in Village Mohammadpur Kala vide registered sale deed dated 15.01.2016. Consequently, his name came to be mutated in the revenue record. Thereafter opposite party no. 2 sold a piece of land measuring 0.243 hectare from gata No. 1262 situated at Village Chunka, Pargana and Tehsil Mohmoodabad, District Lucknow vide registered sale deed dated 15.01.2016 to petitioner no. 1 and on the basis of the said sale deed name his name was mutated in the revenue record on gata no. 1262.

3. It is contended that although the petitioners got possession of land gata no. 365, they were not allowed to get possession over gata no. 1262. Later on the petitioners were told that land pertaining to gata no. 365 had already been sold to opposite party no. 9 and the petitioners have not got the land on which they have spent all their money which they got as post retiral dues on the superannuation of the petitioner no. 2.

4. Aggrieved by this, the petitioners got an first information report dated 23.04.2017 registered vide case crime No. 143, under Sections 419/420/467/468/471 I.P.C., Police Station Mahmoodabad, District Sitapur. Regarding gata no. 1262, the petitioners filed regular suit no. 16 of 2018 "Smt. Shanti Devi Vs. Ram Naresh and Others" wherein learned Civil Judge (Senior Division) has passed order dated 16.01.2018 for maintaining of status quo till the next date. Thereafter, due to the ill health and old age of the petitioners, they could not do the pairavi in the civil suit and as such the interim order lapsed and the opposite parties took forcible possession on the land.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioners further submits that the petitioners have neither possession/ownership of the land nor the money they spent for the purchase of the same. They have been defrauded and they are forced to live under sub human conditions and the paltry pension available with petitioner no. 2 is highly insufficient to cater medical expenses, fooding clothing and day to day expenses. He further submits that the Maintenance and Welfare of Parents and Senior Citizens Act, 2007 after receiving the assent of the President on 20.03.2007 was published in the gazetted of India on 31.12.2007. Section 22 of the Maintenance and Welfare of Parents and Senior Citizens Act, 2007 Act mandates the State Government to prescribe the comprehensive action plan for providing protection of life and property of senior citizens. The Section 22 of the Maintenance and Welfare of Parents and Senior Citizens Act 2007 Act reads as under:-

"22 Authorities who may be specified for implementing the provisions of this Act.

(1) The State Government may, confer such powers and impose such duties on a District Magistrate as may be necessary, to ensure that the provisions of this Act are properly carried out and the District Magistrate may specify the officer, subordinate to him, who shall exercise all or any of the powers, and perform all or any of the duties, so conferred or imposed and the local limits within which such powers or duties shall be carried out by the officer as may be prescribed.

(2) The State Government shall prescribe a comprehensive action plan for providing protection of life and property of senior citizens."

6. It is also submitted that in exercise of powers and Section 22 of tthe Maintenance and Welfare of Parents and Senior Citizens Act 2007, the U.P. Maintenance and Welfare of Parents and Senior Citizens Rules, 2014 have been framed. It is submitted that although chapter 6 of Rules 2014, there is explicit provision which protects the senior citizens by fraudulent transfers and enabling the restoration of the property of senior citizens if it is taken by way of deception otherwise than in due process of law. It is lastly submitted that the aforesaid enactment might serve better purpose if in Section 22 of the Act, 2007, the following provision is included:-

"(3) The State Government shall enable restoration of the property of senior citizens if taken away by way of deception, otherwise than in due process of law"

7. Learned counsel for the respondents have opposed the petition submitting that the petition contained disputed question of facts and even otherwise, this Court cannot direct the State Government to legislate.

8. Having considered the arguments of learned counsel for the parties and after pursuing the record, it appears that regarding part of gata no. 365 an F.I.R. has been lodged and regarding other sale deed pertaining to gata no. 1262 bearing regular suit no. 16 of 2018 "Smt. Shanti Devi Vs. Ram Naresh and Others" has been filed which appears to be pending, although the interim order granted on 16.01.2018 has lapsed.

9. Learned counsel for the petitioners submits that although regular suit is pending regarding gata no. 1262, however, considering the fact that the petitioners are senior citizens, ailing and are incapable in doing pairavi in the aforesaid regular suit, the amount of money lost in execution of the fraudulent sale deed dated 15.01.2016 contained in Annexure No. 3, may be restored in their favour after recovering the same from the private opposite parties.

10. From the record, it is evident that regular suit in respect of gata no. 1262, is already pending and law in this regard is settled that where a civil suit is pending respect of a lis writ petition is not maintainable. Even otherwise these are disputed question of facts which are pending adjudication before the learned civil court and therefore on this ground also the writ petition is not maintainable.

11. The petitioners by way of this writ petition are seeking a writ of mandamus directing the State Government to legislate for the restoration of the property of senior citizens if taken by way of deception for fraud and otherwise even in due process of law. Law in this regard is settled and therefore, this Court cannot direct to legislate. The Apex Court in "Pravasi Bhalai Sangathan v. Union of India reported in AIR 2014 SC 1591" has held that held that the our constitution clearly provides for separation of powers and the court merely applies the law that it gets from the legislators, the Court cannot re-writ, re-cast or re-framed the legislation for a very good reason that it has not power to legislate. the power to legislate has not been conferred on the courts. Likewise the court it is not have the powers to issue any direction to the legislators to enact any law in a particular manner.

12. The Apex Court has also considered this question in Union Of India vs Prakash P. Hinduja & Anr reported in AIR 2003 SC 2692 wherein it was held as under:-

"Under our constitutional scheme the Parliament exercises sovereign power to enact laws and no outside power or authority can issue a direction to enact a particular piece of legislation."

13. In "Suresh Seth vs Commissioner, Indore Municipal reported in AIR 2006 SC 767" the Apex Court held as under:-

"The Court cannot issue any direction to the Legislature to make any particular kind of enactment. Under our constitutional scheme Parliament and Legislative Assemblies exercise sovereign power to enact laws and no outside power or authority can issue a direction to enact a particular piece of legislation."

14. In view of the above, law laid down by the Apex Court it is clear that this Court cannot issue any mandamus directing the State legislature even indirectly to legislate that power being exclusively conferred on the legislators and no writ can be issued by this Court. Apart from the above, the writ petition contains disputed question of facts which cannot be adjudicated by this Court, accordingly, the same fails and is dismissed.

7. Sarpanch, Lonand Grampanchayat Vs. Ramgiri Gosavi, AIR 1968 SC 222

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rakesh Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Anurag Srivastava, learned counsel for the petitioners.

2. This petition under Article 227 of the Constitution has been filed challenging the order dated 15.11.2016 passed by the Additional District Judge, Court No. 1, Lucknow in Misc. Case No. 61 of 2010, Smt. Kaushalya Devi v. Suresh Kumar and others. Through this order dated 15.11.2016, the application for condonation of delay in filing the first appeal has been allowed and the delay in filing the said appeal has been condoned. The appeal was registered as RCA No. 18 of 2017 and an order dated 27.02.2017 was passed, whereby the said appeal has been admitted and the petitioners have been directed to file their objection. This order is also under challenge.

3. Few material facts relevant to appreciate the controversy at hand are as follows. The petitioners and Ram Kumari, respondent no. 4 herein, were the co-owners of the suit property situated at Gram Kakori, Pargana Kakori, Tehsil and District Lucknow. It appears that on the basis of an agreement to sell, alleged to have been executed by respondent no. 4 in their favour, the petitioners on 31.05.2006, filed a Regular Suit No. 443 of 2006 against the respondent no.4 in the Court of Civil Judge (Jr. Div.), Lucknow. Despite notice the respondent no. 4 did not appear in the said suit and the trial Court passed a judgment and decree dated 11.12.2007 directing the respondent no. 4 to execute a sale deed in favour of the petitioners in pursuance of the agreement to sell dated 06.06.2005, within one month or else the petitioners would have the right to get the sale deed executed in their favour through Court. After the expiry of the said period, the petitioners moved an application for execution before the Civil Judge which was numbered as Misc. Case No. 9 of 2008. Once more, the respondent no. 4 did not appear before the Court, and ultimately, on 01.10.2008, a sale deed was executed in favour of the petitioners with respect to half portion of the land in question and the same was registered before the Sub Registrar, Lucknow.

4. On 04.04.2009 the respondent no. 3 filed an application under Order 9 Rule 13 CPC along with an affidavit for setting aside the ex parte judgment and decree dated 11.12.2007 passed in Regular Suit No. 443 of 2006, before the Civil Judge (Jr. Div.), South, Lucknow. The said case was registered as Misc. Case No. 11-C/09, Kaushalya Devi v. Suresh Kumar and others. Along with the said application, the respondent no. 3 also filed an application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act supported by an affidavit praying for condonation of delay in filing the said application. On receiving notice, the petitioners appeared in the said case.

5. It was thereafter that the respondent no. 3 filed first appeal before the District Judge, Lucknow under Section 96 of CPC against the ex parte judgment and decree dated 11.12.2007 passed in Regular Suit No. 43 of 2006. Along with the said appeal, the respondent no. 3 also filed an application for condoning the delay under Section 5 read with Section 14 of the Indian Limitation Act supported by an affidavit. The said matter was registered as Misc. Case No. 61 of 2010. The petitioners filed objections to the application for condonation of delay.

6. On 15.11.2016, the Additional District Judge passed an order whereby the delay in filing the appeal has been condoned and the application for condonation of delay has been allowed. The relevant portion of the order is extracted below:-

"Learned counsel of applicant submitted the argument as per averment made in the application. Learned counsel also submitted that when an exparte decree is passed, aggrieved person has two options; one to file an appeal and another to file an application under Order 9 Rule 13 CPC. He can take re-course both the proceedings simultaneously. The learned counsel placed reliance on "Bhanu Kumar Jain vs. Archana Kumar and Anr. (2005) 1 Supreme Court Cases page-787." The learned counsel also submitted that a fraud vitiates the proceedings and a decree obtained by fraud can be challenged by any person aggrieved. The learned counsel cited Suraj Dev Vs. Board of Revenue AIR 1982, Allahabad page-23. He further contended that if a counsel wrongly pursue a remedy under wrong Act, it will be a good ground to condone the delay in pursuing remedy under the correct provision. On this point learned counsel placed reliance on "Dy. Collector Vs. Comunidav.of Dambolin" AIR 1996 Supreme Court page-48.

Learned counsel for opposite party, in addition to the averment made in the objection, submitted that a third party, who is aggrieved with a decree, is entitled to file an application under Order 9 Rule 13 CPC. There is no sufficient ground to condone the delay in filing this Misc. Civil Appeal.

Applicant, who was not a party in the original suit No.443/2006 Suresh Kumar & Anr. vs. Ram Kumari, which has been decreed exparte against the defendant, has filed a civil appeal. As per report of the Munsarim, there is a delay of 788 days, so to Condone the delay the application U/S 5 Limitation Act has been moved and the ground taken is that on the wrong advice of the counsel applicant has preferred an application under Order 9 Rule 13 CPC instead of appeal, which is more accurate remedy in this matter. At this stage what is to be seen is that there is sufficient ground to condone the delay or not, the maintainability of the appeal and other grounds as taken by the parties are to be considered at the relevant stage. While disposing the application U/S 5 Limitation Act, it is established law that liberal view should be adopted and hard and technical approach should be avoided. It is also settled principle of law that a party should not suffer due to mistake of his counsel. So considering the entire facts and circumstances of the case, there appears to be sufficient ground to condone the delay and it will be just and proper to provide the opportunity, so that the matter can be decided on merits. To compensate the opposite party, adequate costs may be imposed.

Hence, application is liable to be allowed on costs."

7. The learned counsel for the petitioners has placed heavy reliance on a judgment of the Apex Court in Salil Dutta v. TM & MC Private Limited, (1993) 2 SCC 185 to contend that mistake of a counsel cannot be accepted as sufficient cause for condonation of delay.

8. It is a settled principle of law that the ratio of any judgment should be understood in the background of the facts of that particular case, and a little difference in facts makes a huge difference in the precedential value of a judgment. (See Bhavnagar University v. Palitana Sugar Mill Pvt. Ltd., (2003) 2 SCC 111).

9. It is in this light that the judgment cited by the petitioner is to be understood. On a perusal of the judgment rendered in Salil Dutta (supra), it is noticed that the party seeking condonation of delay had alleged that its counsel had advised it that it need not appear at the stage of final arguments in the suit. The Apex Court had come to a conclusion that this stance was built up on a fabricated story and that the said party was acting with malafide intent and was guilty of non-cooperation in court proceedings. These facts are starkly different from the facts of the case at hand.

10. In condoning the delay, the impugned order relies upon the Apex Court judgment in Deputy Collector, Northern Sub-Division Panajii v. Comunidade of Bambolim, AIR 1996 SC 148 which has been further affirmed in Ashok v. Rajendra Bhausaheb Mulak, (2012) 12 SCC 27 wherein the Apex Court has held as under:

"Whether or not an appeal was maintainable against the impugned order was and continues to be a highly debatable issue as seen in the foregoing paragraphs. The Petitioners appear to have been advised that the orders could be challenged only by way of SLPs. That advice cannot in the circumstances of the case, be said to be a reckless piece of advice nor can the Petitioners be accused of lack of diligence in the matter when the SLPs were admittedly filed within the period of limitation stipulated for the purpose. The decision of this Court in Deputy Collector, Northern Sub-Division Panaji v. Comunidade of Bambolim, (1995) 5 SCC 333, recognizes a bonafide mistake on the part of the counsel in pursuing a remedy as a good ground for condonation of delay in approaching the right forum in the right kind of proceedings." (emphasis supplied)

11. In light of the judgments discussed above, the conclusion of the learned Court below cannot be said to be an arbitrary or capricious exercise of the discretion vested in it under Section 5 of the Limitation Act.

12. It is also a settled proposition of law that the term "sufficient cause' should be liberally construed and that the discretion exercised by a Court should not be readily interfered with unless it is found to have been exercised in an arbitrary, capricious or perverse manner.

13. In N. Balakrishnan v. M. Krishnamurthy, (1998) 7 SCC 123 the Apex Court in paragraph nos. 9, 12 and 13 has held as under:

"9. It is axiomatic that condonation of delay is a matter of discretion of the court. Section 5 of the Limitation Act does not say that such discretion can be exercised only if the delay is within a certain limit. Length of delay is no matter, acceptability of the explanation is the only criterion. Sometimes delay of the shortest range may be uncondonable due to a want of acceptable explanation whereas in certain other cases, delay of a very long range can be condoned as the explanation thereof is satisfactory. Once the court accepts the explanation as sufficient, it is the result of positive exercise of discretion and normally the superior court should not disturb such finding, much less in revisional jurisdiction, unless the exercise of discretion was on wholly untenable grounds or arbitrary or perverse. But it is a different matter when the first court refuses to condone the delay. In such cases, the superior court would be free to consider the cause shown for the delay afresh and it is open to such superior court to come to its own finding even untrammelled by the conclusion of the lower court.

12. A court knows that refusal to condone delay would result in foreclosing a suitor from putting forth his cause. There is no presumption that delay in approaching the court is always deliberate. This Court has held that the words "sufficient cause" under Section 5 of the Limitation Act should receive a liberal construction so as to advance substantial justice vide Shakuntala Devi Jain v. Kuntal Kumari and State of W.B. v. Administrator, Howrah Municipality.

13. It must be remembered that in every case of delay, there can be some lapse on the part of the litigant concerned. That alone is not enough to turn down his plea and to shut the door against him. If the explanation does not smack of mala fides or it is not put forth as part of a dilatory strategy, the court must show utmost consideration to the suitor. But when there is reasonable ground to think that the delay was occasioned by the party deliberately to gain time, then the court should lean against acceptance of the explanation. While condoning the delay, the court should not forget the opposite party altogether. It must be borne in mind that he is a loser and he too would have incurred quite large litigation expenses. It would be a salutary guideline that when courts condone the delay due to laches on the part of the applicant, the court shall compensate the opposite party for his loss." (emphasis supplied)

14. To the same effect is the decision in Bhagmal v. M.P. Cooperative Marketing and Consumer Federation Ltd., (2003) 11 SCC 727 wherein the Apex Court held as under:-

"3. Normally the High Court would be wary in interfering with an order passed in the exercise of a discretion conferred by law particularly when such discretion was exercised to enable a party to pursue his statutory remedy of appeal. No doubt the discretion has to be exercised judicially. There is again no doubt that the delay in filing the appeal was apparently very long. Nonetheless the High Court in exercising writ jurisdiction should have been slow to upset a benefit granted to a party in having his statutory remedy to be pursued by condoning the delay albeit its length.

5. Whether those events were not sufficient for condoning the delay or not was considered by the appellate authority in exercise of its discretion and it showed inclination to accept them for condoning the delay. As the appellate authority had done so in its discretion it is well within the jurisdiction vested under law. In such a situation it was not proper that the High Court in exercise of its extra-ordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 or 227 of the Constitution upset such a finding granted to the appellant which only enabled him to have the statutory remedy of appeal pursued further."

(emphasis supplied)

15. In Sarpanch, Lonand Grampanchayat v. Ramgiri Gosavi, AIR 1968 SC 222 the Apex Court while dealing with the power of the High Courts under Artile 227 of the Constitution, opined as under:

"... the High Court is vested with the power of judicial superintendence over the tribunal under Article 227 of the Constitution. This power is not greater than the power under Article 226 and is limited to seeing that the tribunal functions within the limits of its authority, see Nagendra

Nath Bora v. Commissioner of Hills Division and Appeals, Assam. The High Court will not review the discretion of the Authority judicially exercised, but it may interfere if the exercise of the discretion is capricious or perverse or ultra vires. In Sitaram Ramcharan, etc. v. M.N. Nagarshana this Court held that a finding of fact by the authority under the similarly worded second proviso to Section 15(2) of the Payment of Wages Act 1936 could not be challenged in a petition under Article 227. The High Court may refuse to interfere under Article 227 unless there is grave miscarriage of justice. (emphasis supplied)

16. This Court is unable to find any valid ground for interfering with the discretion exercised by the lower Court in condoning the delay in filing the appeal, and this petition challenging the orders dated 15.11.2016 passed in Misc. Case No. 61 of 2010 and order dated 27.02.2017 passed in RCA No. 18 of 2017 is accordingly dismissed in limine. All other questions or issues on merits and maintainability remain open to be raised in the appeal.

(Para 8 and 9)

SCC Revision dismissed (E-1)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Piyush Agrawal, J.)

1. Heard Shri Rahul Sahai, learned counsel for the revisionist - defendant and Mohd. Arif, learned counsel for respondent – plaintiff.

2. The present SCC revision is directed against the judgement & order dated 30.10.2019 passed by the Additional District Judge, Court No. 13/SCC Judge, Agra in SCC Case No. 01 of 2018; whereby, the the SCC suit filed by the respondent - plaintiff - landlord for recovery of arrears of rent and eviction of the petitioner - defendant - tenant from the property in dispute has been allowed.

3. It has been averred that the the respondent - plaintiff - landlord instituted an SCC Suit for payment of arrears of rent, ejectment and mesne profit. The respondent - plaintiff was running a hotel in the name of "Mumtaz Bila". On account of her going to Kuwait, she let out the hotel in question to the revisionists - defendant on 01.03.2016 determining the rate of rent for the first year at Rs. 5 lacs per annum; whereafter, the same was to be paid at the rate of Rs. 50,000/- per month. It is further averred that Rs. 1 lac was paid, in cash, for the first year and remaining Rs. 4 lacs was paid through two separate cheques, of which the said cheques were bounced on 28.10.2016, which was declined to be honoured by the revisionist – tenant.

4. Accordingly, a notice dated 15.11.2017 was sent by the respondent - landlord terminating the tenancy of the revisionist - defendant. In spite of the service of notice, the revisionist - defendant - tenant failed to file any written statement. Accordingly, the matter was directed to be proceeded ex parte against the revisionist - defendant vide order dated 09.05.2018. The ex parte order dated 09.05.2018, was recalled on 02.04.2019. Vide order dated 21.05.2019, the revisionist - defendant was non-suited under Order VIII, Rule 10 CPC, as he failed to submit the written statement. After perusal of the records, the learned Additional District Judge, vide judgement & decree dated 30.10.2019, directed ejectement of the revisionist - defendant from the property in dispute, against which, the present revision has been filed by the defendant – revisionist.

5. Learned counsel for the revisionist - defendant submits that since the agreement, on the strength of which the tenancy is claimed by the respondent - plaintiff - landlord, is for a period of 10 years, but the same is an unregistered agreement under the Indian Stamp Act, 1899 and hence, the same cannot be read in evidence. It is further submitted that as per section 35 of the Indian Stamp Act, the agreement in question is not admissible in evidence. He further submitted that there was no occasion for the court below to non-suit the revisionist - defendant by adopting a procedure under Order VIII, Rule 10 of CPC against the revisionist – defendant.

6. Learned counsel for the respondent - plaintiff - landlord has defended the impugned order by contending that the order impugned has been passed in accordance with law and after following due process of law. He further submits that the revisionist - defendant has not denied, anywhere, that he has not taken the property in question to use the same as tenant on the basis of monthly rent to be paid by him, but in spite of the said fact, no payment of rent has been paid by the revisionist - defendant. Even the cheques, which were being given to the respondent, were bounced. Therefore, the revisionist - defendant was in default in making payment of rent of the property in dispute. It is further submitted that in spite of the notice having been served upon the revisionist - defendant, no payment of outstanding rent has been made and the revisionist has failed to brought on record any material to show that he had paid the rent from 01.03.2016.

7. The Court has perused the record.

8. It is admitted to the parties that the property in dispute was being used by the revisionist - defendant. Learned counsel for the revisionist has tried to bring to the notice of this Court that the agreement was for a period of 10 years, but the same was unregistered agreement, which is inadmissible in evidence under the provisions of the Indian Stamp Act. But the said agreement can still be read for colateral purpose for providing the nature and character of the possession of the person occupying the premises thereunder. The person, who holds over the premises in question under the unregistered agreement, has to pay monthly rent holding over as a tenant from month-to-month.

9. In the instant case, the agreement was for a period exceeding one year and therefore, the agreement, being unregistered, is inadmissible in evidence, but the revisionist - defendant - tenant has not disputed that he is occupying the premises in question. A person, who holds over under an unregistered agreement and continues in possession, has to pay monthly rent holding over as a "tenant" from month-to-month.

10. The revisionist - defendant has utterly failed to bring on record the documents showing the payment of month-to-month rent of the premises in question. Only a bald averment has been made with regard to payment of rent in cash. It has come on record that the revisionist - defendant is in occupation of the premises in question without paying rent and the same is still outstanding.

11. In view of the aforesaid facts and circumstances of the case, the impugned judgement & decree does not suffer from any illegality and hence, no interference is called for by this Court.

12. The SCC revision is, accordingly, dismissed.

(A) Criminal Law- Prevention of Money Laundering Act, 2002 (PMLA) - Section 3/4 - Section 19 -Code of criminal procedure, 1973 - Sections 482 - Inherent jurisdiction - the - power to arrest - Section 44(1)(C) – offence triable by Special courts - Section 45 - Offence be cognizable and non - bailable - Section 88 Cr.P.C. – power to take bond for appearance - does not confer any right on the accused to enforce for accepting the bond - confer a discretion on the Court concerned whether to accept bond from the accused or from a person appearing in the Court or not - Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988 (PC) - Section 13(2) read with Section 13(1)(d) - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Sections 120-B and 409 IPC - application of an accused in the case relating to PML Act - in respect of granting bail or furnishing bond - has to be considered in accordance with the provisions contained in the CrPC - applications of the petitioner and other co-accused for releasing them on furnishing bonds – rejected - no error in the impugned order. (Para-27,31,33)

The petitioner and other co-accused moved an application before Sessions Judge/Special Judge, PMLA for allowing them to furnish bonds to the satisfaction of the PMLA Court in Complaint Case instead of taking them in custody and dealing with their bail applications etc. - learned Special Judge rejected the applications of the petitioner and other co-accused for releasing them on furnishing bonds - accused were issued summon for appearance under Section 3/4 of the Prevention of Money Laundering Act, 2002 - they did not appear - issued non-bailable warrants . (Para-1,2)

HELD:- A person accused of the offences under Section 3/4 PML Act, has been issued summon or warrant to appear before the Court, is not a ''free agent', and mere fact that he has been granted bail by the Court in predicate/schedule offence(s), and he was not arrested by the Enforcement Directorate under Section 19 during the course of investigation are only factors to be considered at the time of considering the bail application of the accused by the PMLA Court, but it would not be correct to say that he is a "free agent" and, therefore, his bond should be accepted and he is not required to apply for regular bail - accused are trying to delay the trial- Special Judge, PMLA, should take all necessary steps for their appearance before the Court and early conclusion of the trial.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dinesh Kumar Singh, J.)

1. This petition under Sections 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 has been filed, impugning the order dated 12th November, 2019 passed by the Sessions Judge/Special Judge, PMLA, Lucknow on applications filed by the petitioner and other co-accused for allowing them to furnish bonds to the satisfaction of the PMLA Court in Complaint Case No. 9 of 2017 instead of taking them in custody and dealing with their bail applications etc.

2. The petitioner and other co-accused had been summoned for 29.01.2018 by the Court for appearance and participation in trial for offences under Section ¾ of the Prevention of Money Laundering Act, 2002 (hereinafter referred to as the "PML Act'). The petitioner and other co-accused did not appear in person on 29.01.2018 in compliance of summoning order before the Court, however, their counsels appeared on the date fixed, and sought sometime to file applications necessary for putting appearance and furnishing bonds etc. on the ground that the petitioner and other co-accused were already released on bail in schedule offence(s), and they had not misused the liberty.

It was further contended that the Enforcement Directorate did not arrest the petitioner during the investigation under Section 19 PML Act. It was also contended that the trial of schedule offence(s) as well as offence(s) under PML Act should be jointly conducted by the Court as provided under the provisions of Section 44(1)(C) PML Act. The Special Court, however, vide order dated 29th January, 2018 did not grant any relief, as prayed for, and issued non-bailable warrants against the petitioner and other accused.

3. The petitioner, instead of appearing before the Special Court, approached this Court by way of filing Petition No. 509 of 2018 under Section 482 CrPC, praying therein that the proceedings of Complaint

Case No. 9 of 2017 initiated by the Enforcement Directorate before the Special Judge, PMLA/Sessions Judge, Lucknow be quashed, and secondly that the petitioner should be directed to furnish personal bond to the satisfaction of the Court concerned in the aforesaid complaint case, and the Court be directed to accept the same. However, during the course of arguments, the first prayer was not pressed.

4. This Court, vide order dated 13th February, 2018, without expressing its opinion on merit of the case, disposed of the said 482 petition, providing the petitioner to move an application before the learned Special Judge, PMLA through counsel within a week under Section 88 CrPC read with Section 45 PML Act, and, it was provided that the learned Special Judge should deal with the application strictly in accordance with law.

It was further provided that till the decision on the said application, non-bailable warrant issued against the petitioner vide order dated 29th January, 2018 would not be given effect to.

5. Pursuant to the aforesaid opportunity granted by this Court, the petitioner and other co-accused moved applications before the Special Judge, PMLA, Lucknow, praying therein that the Special Court should accept the bonds or personal bonds under the provisions of Section 88 CrPC read with Section 45 PML Act.

6. The Sessions Judge/Special Judge, PMLA, vide impugned order dated 12th November, 2019 has dismissed the applications filed by the petitioner and other co-accused in the light of judgment dated 23rd March, 2006 passed by the Division Bench of this Court in Criminal Misc. Application No.8810 of 1989 "Babu Lal and others Vs. Smt. Momina Begum' and Criminal Misc. Application No.8811 of 1989 "Parasnath Dubey and others Vs. State of U.P. and others'. This Court had issued Circular Letter No.33 of 2006 dated 7thAugust, 2006, circulating the judgment dated 23rd March, 2006 for its strict compliance. The relevant portion of the judgment dated 23rd March, 2006, which is contained in the Circular Letter No. 33 of 2006 dated 7th August, 2006 has been reproduced by the learned Special Judge in the impugned order.

7. The Division Bench of this Court, in the aforesaid judgment, had held that in cases which were governed by Sections 436 and 437 CrPC, the provisions of Section 88 CrPC would not be applicable for the reason that Section 436 and 437 CrPC are specific provisions which deal with particular kind of cases, whereas scope of Section 88 CrPC is much wider. The case, in which Section 436 CrPC is applicable, an accused has to appear before the Court, and thereafter, only the question of granting bail would arise. It had been further held that where summon or warrant to an accused was issued, the procedure under Section 436 and 437 CrPC would be necessarily followed, and summon or warrant, as the case may be, had to be executed and honoured.

8. The learned Special Judge, PMLA, in the impugned order has further held that the cases relating to schedule offence(s) and offence(s) under PML Act are mutually exclusive and, therefore, the benefit given in schedule offence(s) cannot be extended to the offence(s) of money laundering. The Special Judge has, thus, rejected the applications filed by the petitioner and other co-accused.

9. The proceedings of Complaint Case No. 9 of 2017 pending before the Special Judge, PMLA, Lucknow relates to a mega scam of several hundred crores known as National Rural Health Mission (hereinafter referred to as "NRHM") scam in Uttar Pradesh.

10 Allegation, against the petitioner and other co accused, is that they were involved a criminal conspiracy and in furtherance thereto they misappropriated an amount of Rs. 2.94 Crores approximately in supplying computers and peripherals by M/s HCL Infosystems Limited, Lucknow to NRHM.

11. The CBI had registered an FIR on 2nd January, 2012 under Sections 120-B and 409 IPC and Section 13(2) read with Section 13(1)(d) Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988 (hereinafter referred to as "PC Act') against the petitioner and other co-accused. The FIR was registered by the CBI in compliance of the order dated 15th November, 2011 passed by this Court in Writ Petition No. 3611 (M/B) of 2011 (PIL) and connected Writ Petition No.2647 (M/B) of 2011 (PIL).

12. In sum and substance, allegations are that Mr. G.K. Batra, the then Managing Director, Shreetron India Limited, Lucknow, a subsidiary of U.P. Electronic Corporation Limited (a State Government Undertaking), Mr. Virendra Goel, the present accused, proprietor of M/s Axis Marketing, New Delhi, Mr. Neeraj Upadhyay, Proprietor of M/s Radhey Shyam Enterprises, Lucknow and Mr. Avichal Mishra, Executive of M/s HCL Infosystems Limited, Lucknow and other unknown persons entered into a criminal conspiracy and in furtherance thereto misappropriated an amount of Rs.2.94 Crores by showing undue favours to private firms.

13. In pursuance of the tendered notice, three firms viz. M/s HCL Infosystems Limited, Lucknow, M/s Axis Marketing, New Delhi and M/s Radhey Shyam Enterprises, Lucknow submitted their bids, which were opened on 7th August, 2009. The lowest bidder was M/s HCL Infosystems Limited, Lucknow and, thus, the work of supplying computers and peripherals was given to M/s HCL Infosystems Limited, Lucknow. Strangely enough, after getting the order for supplying the computers and peripherals, the HCL Infosystems Limited, Lucknow informed that supply would be made through M/s Axis Marketing, New Delhi and M/s Radhey Shyam Enterprises, Lucknow, and both the firms would supply 50% each of the items. Shreetron India Limited made the total payment of Rs.7.49 Crores to M/s Axis Marketing, New Delhi and M/s Radhey Shyam Enterprises, Lucknow. However, the said two firms made payment of only Rs.4.55 Crores to M/s HCL Infosystems Limited and they, caused a pecuniary loss of Rs.2.94 Crores to the NRHM scheme. These accused had misappropriated balance amount of Rs.2.94 Crores.

14. Investigation under the provisions of PML Act was undertaken by Enforcement Directorate vide order dated 14th April, 2012 to investigate the offence of money laundering with reference to predicate offence(s) initiated vide FIR dated 2nd January, 2012 registered by the CBI in which the CBI had filed charge-sheet against four accused.

15. The investigation under the PML Act pertained to generation of proceeds of crime by causing wrongful loss of Central Government funds allotted under the National Rural Health Mission Scheme in supply of 951 computers and peripherals through M/s Shreetron India Limited at an exorbitant price. The investigation under the PML Act has revealed that a sum of Rs.1,29,21,903/-, which is the "proceeds of crime' in terms of Section 2(1)(u) o PML Act, was in possession of Mr. V.K. Batra, son of Late G.K. Batra, Mr. Virendra Goel, Smt. Nidhi Upadhyay, wife of Mr. Neeraj Upadhyay and Mr. Neeraj Upadhyay.

16. The assets acquired by the aforesaid persons from the "proceeds of crime" were attached vide order dated 15thJanuary, 2015.

17. After investigation, a complaint case was filed, which is Complaint Case No. 9 of 2017 pending before the Sessions Judge/Special Judge, PMLA, Lucknow.

18. Heard Mr. Purnendu Chakravarty, learned counsel representing the petitioner, as well as Mr. Shiv P. Shukla, learned counsel representing the respondents.

19. Learned counsel for the petitioner has submitted that Section 45 PML Act provides for release of an accused on bail or on his own bond. The release of any accused on bond has been incorporated under section 45 of the PML Act because if the accused would be on bail in the schedule offence(s) and, the complaint by the Enforcement Directorate is filed under the PML Act in respect of the same predicate offence, no purpose would be served in sending the accused in custody for offences under PML Act and, under these circumstances the accused should be released on bond. He has submitted that circumstance for release on bond under Section 45 PML Act would be that if the Enforcement Directorate did not arrest the accused under Section 19 PML Act during the course of investigation and in the predicate offence(s) accused is on bail, then the accused should be released on bond inasmuch as custody of the accused would not be required during trial and, therefore, no purpose would be served by sending the accused in jail and, then he would be required to apply for regular bail. The learned counsel has placed reliance on the following judgments in support of his contentions:-

i) Pankaj Jain Vs. Union of India and another, 2018 (5) SCC 743;

ii) Arun Sharma Vs. Union of India, 2016 SCC Online P&H 5954;

iii) Madhu Limaye and another Vs. Ved Murti and others, 1971 AIR 2486;

Besides, Nikesh Tarachand Shah Vs. Union of India and another (2018) 11 SCC Page-1.

20. The learned counsel for the petitioner has further submitted that as per Section 44 (1)(C) PML Act trials of cases in relation of predicate offence(s) and offence(s) under the PML Act are to be conducted by the same Court.

21. Per contra, Mr. Shiv P. Shukla, learned counsel appearing for the Enforcement Directorate, has submitted that the offence(s) under the PML Act are cognizable and non-bailable. He has submitted that a person, who is facing trial for non-bailable offence(s), cannot be released on furnishing bond. The learned counsel has further submitted that the judgment of the Punjab-Haryana High Court in Arun Sharma Vs. Union of India has been held to be not correctly decided by the Supreme Court in its judgment in the case of Pankaj Jain Vs. Union of India and another (supra).

22. The learned counsel for the Enforcement Directorate has further submitted that Section 88 CrPC confers discretion on the Presiding Officer of the Court. Section 88 CrPC does not confer any enforceable right to an accused that he must be released on furnishing bond. The predicate/schedule offence(s) and offence(s) under the PML Act are mutually exclusive. An accused does not become entitled automatically to be released on furnishing bond if the Court has granted him bail in schedule offence(s). Further Section 44 PML Act provides for transfer of trial of case under predicate offence to the Court of Special Judge on an application by the prosecution. It does not give any right to the accused to ask for transfer of the case under predicate offence(s) before the Special Judge. It is for the prosecution to decide whether it would be appropriate, convenient and in the interest of justice that the trial of schedule offence(s) and offence(s) under PML Act should be held by the same Court or not. The learned counsel has further submitted that the fact that the petitioner had been granted bail in the predicate offences by the concerned Court, and he was not arrested under Section 19 PML Act during the course of investigation would be the circumstances to be considered while deciding the bail application, but these factors do not confer a right to an accused to be released on furnishing bond or he should be allowed to furnish bond.

23. I have considered the submissions advanced by the counsels representing the respective parties and perused the record.

24. The question, which falls for consideration, is whether an accused facing trial for offences under the provisions of Section ¾ PML Act is entitled to be released on furnishing bond under Section 45 PML Act read with Section 88 Code of Criminal Procedure if he has been granted bail in the predicate/schedule offence(s) and, he was not arrested under Section 19 PML Act during the course of investigation by the Enforcement Directorate. Section 45 PML Act provides that the offences under the PML Act are cognizable and non-bailable.

25. The Supreme Court in Nikesh Tarachand Shah Vs. Union of India's case (supra) had struck down the two conditions mentioned in section 45 for grant of bail i.e. the Public Prosecutor has to be given an opportunity to oppose an application for release on bail and the Court must be satisfied where the Public Prosecutor opposes the application that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the accused is not guilty of such offence(s) and that he is not likely to commit any offence while on bail. Para-54 of the aforesaid judgment, on reproduction, reads as under:-

"54.Regard being had to the above, we declare Section 45(1) of the Prevention of Money-Laundering Act, 2002, insofar as it imposes two further conditions for release on bail, to be unconstitutional as it violates Articles 14 and 21 of the Constitution of India. All the matters before us in which bail has been denied, because of the presence of the twin conditions contained in Section 45, will now go back to the respective courts, which denied bail. All such orders are set aside, and the cases remanded to the respective courts to be heard on merits, without application of the twin conditions contained in Section 45 of the 2002 Act. Considering that the persons are languishing in jail and that personal liberty is involved, all these matters are to be taken up at the earliest by the respective courts for fresh decision. The writ petitions and the appeals are disposed of accordingly."

The aforesaid decision has no bearing to the controversy involved in the present case.

26. Section 45 PML Act of post decision in Nikesh Tarachand Shah reads as under:-

"45. Offences to be cognizable and non-bailable.--(1) [Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974), no person accused of an offence 107 [under this Act] shall be released on bail or on his own bond unless--]

(i) the Public Prosecutor has been given an opportunity to oppose the application for such release; and

(ii) where the Public Prosecutor opposes the application, the court is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that he is not guilty of such offence and that he is not likely to commit any offence while on bail:

Provided that a person, who, is under the age of sixteen years, or is a woman or is sick or infirm [or is accused either on his own or along with other co-accused of money-laundering a sum of less than one crore rupees], may be released on bail, if the Special Court so directs:

Provided further that the Special Court shall not take cognizance of any offence punishable under Section 4 except upon a complaint in writing made by--

(i) the Director; or

(ii) any officer of the Central Government or a State Government authorised in writing in this behalf by the Central Government by a general or special order made in this behalf by that Government.

[(1-A) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974), or any other provision of this Act, no police officer shall investigate into an offence under this Act unless specifically authorised, by the Central Government by a general or special order, and, subject to such conditions as may be prescribed.]

(2) The limitation on granting of bail specified in [* ] sub-section (1) is in addition to the limitations under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) or any other law for the time being in force on granting of bail.

[Explanation.--For the removal of doubts, it is clarified that the expression "Offences to be cognizable and non-bailable" shall mean and shall be deemed to have always meant that all offences under this Act shall be cognizable offences and non-bailable offences notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, and accordingly the officers authorised under this Act are empowered to arrest an accused without warrant, subject to the fulfilment of conditions under Section 19 and subject to the conditions enshrined under this section.]"

27. Section 46 PML Act provides that the provisions of CrPC, including the provisions as to the bails or bonds, shall apply to the proceedings before Special Court and for the purposes of such provisions, the Special Court shall be deemed to be a Court of Session. Section 65 PML Act further provides that the provisions of CrPC shall apply in so far as they are not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act, in arrest, search, seizure, attachment, confiscation, investigation and prosecution and all other proceedings under this Act. Thus, from a conjoint reading of Section 45, 46 and 65 PML Act, it is clear that the provisions of the CrPC would be applicable in the proceedings before the Special Court, including the provisions of bails or bonds and also would be applicable in respect of arrest, search, seizure, attachment, confiscation, investigation and prosecution and all other proceedings under this Act. Thus, the provisions of CrPC have been made applicable even in respect of granting bail or furnishing bond, as the case may be. The application of an accused in the case relating to PML Act has to be considered in accordance with the provisions contained in this regard in the CrPC. Section 88 CrPC reads as under:-

"Section 88. Power to take bond for appearance. When any person for whose appearance or arrest the officer presiding in any Court is empowered to issue a summons or warrant, is present in such Court, such officer may require such person to execute a bond, with or without sureties, for his appearance in such Court, or any other Court to which the case may be transferred for trial."

28. The Supreme Court had an occasion to consider Section 91 of CrPC, 1898 similar to provisions of Section 88 new Code of 1973 in Madhu Limaye and another Vs. Ved Murti and others (supra) 1970 (3) SCC 739. The following observations were made in context of Section 91:-

".....In fact section 91 applies to a person who is present in Court and is free because it speaks of his being bound over, to appear on another day before the Court. That shows that the person must be a "free agent" whether to appear or not. If the person is already under arrest and in custody, as were the petitioners, their appearances depended not on their own volition, but on the volition of the person, who had his custody..... ."

29. The Punjab-Haryana High Court in Arun Sharma Vs. Union of India, relying on the said observations of the Supreme Court in the case of Madhu Limaye and another, has held that in a situation where the accused were not arrested under Section 19 of the PML Act during the course of investigation and were not produced in custody for taking cognizance, Section 88 CrPC shall apply upon appearance of the accused person on their own volition before the trial Court to furnish bonds for their appearance.

30. A person, who has been issued summon or warrant to appear before the Court, cannot be said to be a "free agent'. The Supreme Court in Pankaj Jain Vs. Union of India and another (supra) has dealt with the judgment of the Punjab-Haryana High Court in paras-27 to 29, and in para-29 it has held as under:-

"29.In the Punjab & Haryana case, the High Court has relied on judgment of this Court inMadhu Limayev.Ved Murti[Madhu Limayev.Ved Murti, (1970) 3 SCC 739] and held that Section 88 shall be applicable since accused were not arrested under Section 19 of PMLA during investigation and were not taken into custody for taking cognizance. What the Punjab & Haryana High Court missed, is that this Court in the same paragraph had observed "that shows that the person must be a free agent whether to appear or not". When the accused was issued warrant of arrest to appear in the court and proceeding under Sections 82 and 83 CrPC has been initiated, he cannot be held to be a free agent to appear or not to appear in the court. We thus are of the view that the Punjab & Haryana High Court has not correctly applied Section 88 in the aforesaid case."

31. The Supreme Court in the aforesaid judgment has also held that the words used in Section 88 confer a discretion on the Court concerned whether to accept bond from the accused or from a person appearing in the Court or not. This Section does not confer any right on the accused to enforce for accepting the bond. Thus, since the judgment of the Punjab-Haryana High Court in Arun Sharma, (supra) does not lay down correct law, the petitioner ca not claim benefit of the same. A person accused of the offences under Section 3/4 PML Act, has been issued summon or warrant to appear before the Court, is not a "free agent', and mere fact that he has been granted bail by the Court in predicate/schedule offence(s), and he was not arrested by the Enforcement Directorate under Section 19 during the course of investigation are only factors to be considered at the time of considering the bail application of the accused by the PMLA Court, but it would not be correct to say that he is a "free agent" and, therefore, his bond should be accepted and he is not required to apply for regular bail.

32. Provisions to bail and bond are provided in Chapter-XXXIII of the Cr.P.C. The special provisions contained in Chapter-XXXIII of the Code cannot be made to rendered otiose by interpreting general provision of Section 88 of the Code. When a person is accused of cognizable and non-bailable offence, his bail application has to be dealt with the provisions contained in Chapter XIII of the Code. The Supreme Court in Pankaj Jain Vs. Union of India (supra) in paras-24 and 25 has approvingly quoted the judgments of Delhi High Court in Sanjay Chandra Vs. CBI, 2011 OnLine Del 2365 and Patna High Court in Anand Deo Singh Vs. State of Bihar, 2000 SCC OnLine Pat 311, which are reproduced hereunder:-

"24. Another judgment of the Delhi High Court in Sanjay Chandra v. CBI [SanjayChandra v. CBI, 2011 SCC OnLine Del 2365] decided on 23-5-2011 supports the submission raised by the learned Additional Solicitor General that power under Section 88 CrPC, the word "may" used in Section 88 CrPC is not mandatory and is a matter of judicial discretion. Paras 20, 21 and 22 of the judgment are to the following effect: (SCC OnLine Del)

"20. Learned Shri Ram Jethmalani and learned Shri K.T.S. Tulsi, Senior Advocates appearing for accused Sanjay Chandra, learned Shri Mukul Rohatgi, Senior Advocate appearing for accused Vinod Goenka, learned Shri Soli Sorabjee and learned Shri Ranjit Kumar, Senior Advocates appearing for accused Gautam Doshi, learned Shri Rajiv Nayar, Senior Advocate appearing for accused Hari Nair and learned Shri Neeraj Kishan Kaul, Senior Advocate appearing for accused Surendra Pipara, at the outset, have contended that the order of learned Special Judge dated 20-4-2011 rejecting the bail of the petitioners is violative of the mandate of Section 88 CrPC. It is contended that admittedly the petitioners were neither arrested during investigation nor were they produced in custody along with the charge-sheet as envisaged under Section 170 CrPC. Therefore, the trial court was supposed to release the petitioners on bail by seeking bonds with or without sureties in view of Section 88 CrPC. Thus, it is urged that on this count alone, the petitioners are entitled to bail.

21. The interpretation sought to be given by the petitioners is misconceived and based upon incorrect reading of Section 88 CrPC, which is reproduced thus:

''88. Power to take bond for appearance.--When any person for whose appearance or arrest the officer presiding in any court is empowered to issue a summons or warrant, is present in such court, such officer may require such person to execute a bond, with or without sureties, for his appearance in such court, or any other court to which the case may be transferred for trial.'

22. On reading of the above, it is obvious that Section 88 CrPC empowers the court to seek bond for appearance from any person present in the court in exercise of its judicial discretion. The section also provides that aforesaid power is not unrestricted and it can be exercised only against such persons for whose appearance or arrest the court is empowered to issue summons or warrants. The words used in the section are "may require such person to execute a bond" and any person present in the court. The user of word "may" signifies that Section 88 CrPC is not mandatory and it is a matter of judicial discretion of the court. The word "any person" signifies that the power of the court defined under Section 88 CrPC is not accused specific only, but it can be exercised against other category of persons such as the witness whose presence the court may deem necessary for the purpose of inquiry or trial. Careful reading of Section 88 CrPC makes it evident that it is a general provision defining the power of the court, but it does not provide how and in what manner this discretionary power is to be exercised. The petitioners are accused of having committed non-bailable offences. Therefore, their case for bail falls within Section 437 of the Code of Criminal Procedure which is the specific provision dealing with grant of bail to an accused in cases of non-bailable offences. Thus, on conjoint reading of Sections 88 and 437 CrPC, it is obvious that Section 88 CrPC is not an independent section and it is subject to Section 437 CrPC. Therefore, I do not find merit in the contention that order of the learned Special Judge refusing bail to the petitioners is illegal being violative of Section 88 CrPC."

25. Another judgment which is relevant in this context is the judgment of the Patna High Court in Anand Deo Singh v. State of Bihar [Anand Deo Singh v. State of Bihar, 2000 SCC OnLine Pat 311 : (2000) 2 PLJR 686] . The Patna High Court had the occasion to consider Section 88 CrPC where in para 18, following has been held: (SCC OnLine Pat)

"18. In my considered view, Section 88 of the Code is an enabling provision, which vests a discretion in the Magistrate to exercise power under the said section asking the person to execute a bond for appearance only in bailable cases or in trivial cases and it cannot be resorted to in cases of serious offences. Section 436 of the Code itself provides that bond may be asked for only in cases of bailable offences."

33. In view of the aforesaid discussions, I do not find that the learned Special Judge has committed any error in passing the impugned order and rejecting the applications of the petitioner and other co-accused for releasing them on furnishing bonds. The accused are not "free agents' as they were issued summon for appearance on 29th January, 2018 and when they did not appear, they had been issued non-bailable warrants vide order dated 29th November, 2018. The accused are trying to delay the trial and, therefore, it is provided that the Special Judge, PMLA, Lucknow should take all necessary steps for their appearance before the Court and early conclusion of the trial.

34. This petition stands dismissed.

35. Let a copy of this order be transmitted to the Sessions Judge/Special Judge, PMLA, Lucknow forthwith.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan , J.)

1. Heard Sri Pavan Kishore and Mr. Piyush Kishore Srivastava, learned counsel for the applicant and learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. Learned counsel for the applicant and the learned A.G.A. agree that the present application may be disposed of at this stage without calling for further affidavits in view of the order proposed to be passed today.

3. By means of this 482 Cr.P.C. application, the applicant has questioned summoning order dated 8th March, 2017 as well as the proceedings of complaint case under Section 138 of Negotiable Instrument Act, 1881 (hereinafter referred to as "N.I. Act") registered as Complaint Case No. 846 of 2016 (Ayub Hasan Vs. Master Ali Jan), pending in the court of learned Judicial Magistrate, Garh Mukteshwar, Hapur.

4. Learned counsel for the applicant has argued that it is admitted case of the opposite party no. 2 that though, the opposite party no. 2 has sent a notice dated 7th October, 2016, but the service of notice has not been effected and therefore, the complaint which has been filed on 7th November, 2016, is not maintainable as the time period of 15 days cannot be calculated as to when the notice has been given to opposite party no. 2. He has also submitted that there is no whisper about service of notice sent on 7th October, 2016. Under the circumstances, pre-condition as contained under Section 138 N.I. Act has remained uncomplied with and, therefore according to him, proceedings are clearly not maintainable under the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881.

5. Learned counsel for the applicant has relied upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the Case of Shakti Travel and Tours v. State of Bihar reported in 2002 (9) SCC 415, wherein the Supreme Court has very categorically held that complaint is maintainable under Section 138 of Negotiable Instrument Act, only when it is filed after due service of notice as contemplated under Section 138 N.I. Act.

6. Learned counsel for the applicant has further placed reliance upon the judgment of Single Judge of this Court in the case of Deepak Kumar and Another v. State of U.P. and Another, reported in 2006 (8) ADJ, 427, wherein this Court has very categorically held that service of notice is pre-condition to maintain a complaint under Section 138 of the N.I. Act. Considering in detail meaning of effective service of notice prescribed as pre-condition to maintain the complaint, the Court vide para 9 and 10 held thus:

"9. Pondering over the rival contentions, I find that there is substance in the submissions raised by the counsel for the applicant. As a fact, neither in the complaint, nor in statement under Section 200, Cr. P.C. nor in the counter-affidavit any date of service on notice demanding repayment of cheque money from the applicants is mentioned. No document was also appended along with the complaint so as to indicate the said date. Even during the course of argument, the counsel for the respondent-complainant could not point out the date of service of such notice. Thus, in the total absence of date of service of notice demanding payment of the cheque amount, no offence is made out against the applicants. Moreover, it cannot be said that any such notice was ever served on the applicants and consequently fifteen days period for making the payment of the cheque money cannot be counted and unless that is done no offence is made out against the applicants. The contention of respondent-complainant that the service is to be presumed as also cannot be accepted because Section 27 of General Clauses Act does not take into its purview service by private courier. For a proper understanding of this submission Section 27 of the General Clauses Act is quoted below:--

"Meaning of Service by post-- Where any (Central Act) or Regulation made after the commencement of this Act authorizes or requires any document to be served by post, whether the expression

"serve" or either of the expressions "give" or "send" or any other expression is used, then, unless a different intention appears, the service shall be deemed to be effected by properly addressing, pre-paying and posting by registered post, a letter containing the document, and unless the contrary is proved, to have been effected at the time at which the letter would be delivered in the ordinary course of post."

10. Thus, the wordings of Section 27 of the General Clauses Act clearly indicates that this section deals only with service by "Post' and that too "registered service" when such a service is contemplated by the Act itself. Attour. no other mode of service is embraced in Section 27. The condition precedent for the applicability of this section are firstly, that the service must be provided by the Act itself and secondly, that such "service shall be deemed to be affected by properly addressing, pre-paying and posting by registered post" (Emphasis mine). Unless the twin conditions are satisfied Section 27 of the General Clauses Act will not apply. In the present case the second condition is not satisfied and therefore the service of notice on the applicants cannot be presumed. Since the legislature has kept service by private courier outside the purview of the Section 27 of the General Clauses Act, therefore the Courts cannot implant such presumption of service into that section and rightly so because private courier services are privately run businesses without any authenticity of service. (Emphasis mine) consequently, the contention of the learned counsel for the applicant that the service should be presumed in the present case cannot be accepted as it does not hold good on the provision of the statute itself and has to be rejected. Resultantly, the submission of the counsel for the applicant that in the present case no offence is made out holds good and deserves to be accepted and I hold so."

7. Learned counsel for the applicant has also placed reliance upon the judgment of this Bench in the case of Nawab Singh Vs. State of U.P. & Another (Application U/S 482 No. 2604 of 2020, decided on 21st January, 2020).

8. Countering the argument, learned A.G.A. has submitted that condition of service of notice virtually stands complied with. In support of his submission, the learned A.G.A. has placed relinace upon the judgment of Single Judge of this Court in the case of Chand Mohd v. State of U.P, reported in Laws (All) 2017 5 308. In paragraph nos. 19 and 20, the learned Single Judge has held thus:

"19. Perusal of Section 27 of the General Clauses Act, as aforequoted clearly indicates that there is a presumption of service by registered post. The provisions of the aforesaid Section 27 of the Act regarding presumption of service has been interpreted by Hon'ble Supreme Court and it has been held that there is a rebuttable presumption of service by registered post. Reference in this regard may be had to the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Gujarat Electricity Board v. Atmaram Sungomal Poshani12; Commissioner of Income Tax (Adm.), Bengal v. V.K. Gururaj and Ors.13, State of U.P. v. T.P. Lal Srivastava14; Adavala Suthaiah and Ors. Special Deputy Collector, Land Acquisition and Ors. Anr.15 and Shimla Development Authority and Ors. v. Santosh Sharma (Smt.) and Anr., (1997) 2 SCC 637.

20. It has also been well settled by Hon'ble Supreme Court that when notice is sent at the correct address by registered post and neither acknowledgment nor undelivered registered cover is received back then there is presumption of service although rebuttable. The burden to rebut presumption lies on the party challenging the factum of service. Reference in this regard may be had to the judgments of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Indian Bank v. Datla Venkata Chinna Krishnam Raju17; Ram Chandra Verma v. Jagat Singh Singhi and others18; ATTABIRA Regulated Market Committee v. Ganesh Rice Mills19; Union of India v. Ujagar Lal20; C.C. Alavi Haji v. Palapetty Muhammed21 (Paras 10 & 15) and Sunil Kumar Shambhudayal Gupta (DR) and others v. State of Maharashtra22 (Paras 53 to 56)."

9. Banking upon the judgment, learned counsel for the applicant submits that the complaint was ultimately maintainable and it cannot be said that mandatory requirement of law was not fulfilled.

10. I have considered the submissions of the learned counsel for the applicant and the learned A.G.A. for the State and have gone through the records of the present application as well as the impugned order. Normally, this Court would have issued notice to opposite party no.2 to file counter affidavit but in view of mutual consent of learned counsel for the applicant and learned A.G.A. as recorded above, no purpose would be served by keeping the present application pending. However, liberty is reserved for opposite party no.2 to file an appropriate application, for modification or recall of this order, if he feels so aggrieved.

11. Having heard the arguments advanced across the Bar and pleadings advanced and having perused the record, I find two material aspects coming out from the pleadings very clearly: one that notice dated 7th October, 2016 infact was sent by registered post and, therefore, it cannot be said that notice was sent on itself, and second, it clearly comes out from the record that there is no whisper regarding effective service of notice at the end of the complainant in the complaint. The complainant has not mentioned as to when he received back envelop containing notice and whether after receiving envelop back he had made complaint or prior to that. Accordingly even if he made complaint after accepting of the notice from the post office with note 'left', he could have filed such complaint only after expiry of 15 days but it is not the case here. Secondly if he considers that service of notice was effected then in all probability complaint should have been filed only after expiry of 15 days, and the date of service would have been clearly mentioned in the complaint. In the absence of any such mention in complaint itself, no inference of effective service and requirement of 15 days prior notice can be presumed to have been complied with.

12. Under the circumstances, I am of the considered opinion that case of the complainant stands fully covered by the judgment of the Apex Court in the case Shakti Travel and Tours (supra) and in the case of Deepak Kumar and Another (supra).

13. So far judgment relied upon by counsel for the respondent is concerned, that refers to the word 'service', it cannot be doubted that in case if the service is refused or service by absence could not be made effective, service could be deemed sufficient as per law, but in any case 15 days time prescribed by law should always be fulfilled to maintain complaint under section 138 of N.I.Act, 1881, which is lacking in the present case.

14. In view of above, the application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. stands allowed and the proceedings are quashed.

15. It is however always open for opposite party no. 2 to proceed in accordance with law in the light of the judgment of Apex Court in the case of Yogendera Pratap Singh v. Savitri Pandey and Another, reported in 2014 LawSuit (SC) 793.

3. Amrut bhai Shambhubhai Patel Vs. Sumanbhai Kantibhai Patel & ors., AIR 2017 SC 774

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Krishna Gautam, J.)

1. The applicants namely, Nusrat, Noor Mohammad, Nurkan, Furkana, Anjum, by means of this application under Section 482 Cr.P.C., have invoked the inherent jurisdiction of the Court with prayer to set aside impugned charge-sheet dated 26.9.2019, order dated 4.9.2019, passed by Judicial Magistrate, Mawana, Meerut as well as the entire proceeding of Criminal Case No. 7075/9 of 2019 (State V/s Nusrat), arising out of Case Crime No. 4 of 2019, under Sections 498A, 323, 504, 506, 376D, 307, 201, 342 I.P.C. & Section ¾ of D.P. Act, P.S. Mawana, District Meerut, pending in the Court of Special Chief Judicial Magistrate, Meerut, which was subsequently filed after filing of previous charge-sheet and taking of cognizance over it, in course of further investigation made by Investigating Officer and in accordance with order of Magistrate, over an application moved under Section 173(8) of Cr.P.C.

2. Heard learned counsel for the applicants and learned A.G.A. for the State.

3. Learned counsel for the applicants argued that Case Crime No. 4/2019, was got registered under Sections 498A, 323, 504, 506, 376-D, 307, 201, 342 I.P.C. & Section 3/4 of D.P. Act, upon the report of Saima, against Nusrat- husband, Noor Mohammad- father-in-law, Nurkan brother-in-law, Furkana- sister-in-law, Anjum- sister-in-law and one friend of Nurkan. This was investigated, wherein, charge-sheet was filed and cognizance over this charge-sheet was taken, for offences punishable under Sections 498A, 323, 504, 506 I.P.C. read with Section 3/4 of D.P. Act. Offences punishable under Sections 376-D, 307, 201 and 342 I.P.C. were held to be not made out and for those offences, charge-sheet was not filed. Subsequently, an application for further investigation was moved by Investigating Officer, before Magistrate and it was rejected, vide order dated 27.8.2019. It was a detailed judicial order, whereby, application moved under Section 173(8) of Cr.P.C. was rejected. Again, an application was moved by I.O. with same prayer, which was allowed by order dated 4.9.2019, by writing a single word "permitted" by Judicial Magistrate and in view of this, further investigation, made by Investigating Officer, subsequent, charge-sheet was filed, wherein, cognizance was taken for offences including offences punishable under Sections 376-D, 307, 201 and 342 I.P.C., which was apparently erroneous. Hence, this application under Section 482 of Cr.P.C. was filed. But due to mistake by steno, both of the cognizance taking orders were challenged. Whereas, this application was filed for challenging second and subsequent cognizance taking order. Hence, on previous date, this Court permitted for making deletion and correction in application, with a direction for filing of supplementary affidavit, which has been filed on today and taken on record. Hence, this subsequent investigation, in form of further investigation, was not permitted and the subsequent charge-sheet for those additional sections were under abuse of process of law. Hence, for ensuring end of justice, this application has been filed with above prayer.

4. Learned counsel for the informant vehemently opposed with this contention that primarily it is being challenged that in Para 5 of affidavit filed on today, it has been written that it is the first petition under Section 482 of Cr.P.C., which is against the fact and it can never be said that owing to error of steno relief was mentioned in application. The subsequent objection is that it was the order of Senior Superintendent of Police for making further investigation, which is provided under Section 173(8) of Cr.P.C. to Police Officer for making further investigation, in case of receiving of further changed circumstances and fact, even after, cognizance taken by Magistrate in a charge-sheet filed before, and this order of S.S.P. has not been challenged. Inspector in-charge submitted application before Magistrate for a permission, which needs to be a formal permission for further investigation, but it was rejected because there was no specification as to what evidence were available and what compels for moving of this application. Under above circumstance, application was rejected. Subsequent application was moved, with mentioning of those facts and it was allowed by Magistrate and after obtaining this formal permission by Magistrate, investigation was made, wherein, charge-sheet was filed and cognizance over it, was taken. Hence, the application merits its dismissal. It be dismissed.

5. Learned AGA has also vehemently opposed the argument of learned counsel for the applicants.

6. The mere question to be seen at this juncture, is as to whether further investigation continued in exercise of permission granted by Magistrate, was erroneous? Or it was valid permission.

7. Apex Court in Vinubhai Haribhai Malaviya and others vs. State of Gujrat and another, AIR 2019 SC 5233, has held that Magistrate has power to order further investigation under Section 156(3) of Cr.P.C. even at post cognizance stage. At page No. 60, Apex Court has discussed various previous laws, which were of this view that in post cognizance stage, power to permit for further investigation by Magistrate was not there, but this was held to be incorrect law and this power remains with Magistrate at even post cognizance stage.

8. Section 173(8) of Cr.P.C. provides:-

"Nothing in this section shall be deemed to preclude further investigation in respect of an offence after a report under sub- section (2) has been forwarded to the Magistrate and, where upon such investigation, the officer in charge of the police station obtains further evidence, oral or documentary, he shall forward to the Magistrate a further report or reports regarding such evidence in the form prescribed; and the provisions of sub-sections (2) to (6) shall, as far as may be, apply in relation to such report or reports as they apply in relation to a report forwarded under sub- section (2)."

9. Meaning thereby, Magistrate needs for giving a formal permission to be given for further investigation. Though this power remains with Police officer under circumstances, when new facts emerges regarding the same case crime number and it is never mandatory that further investigation may not be proceeded by Investigating Officer, if Magistrate has denied for further investigation.

10. Now, in present case, the order of Magistrate, passed while rejecting application previously moved, under Section 173(8) of Cr.P.C., reveals that law of Apex Court in Bikash Ranjan Rout Vs. State through the Secretary (Home), Govt. of NCT Delhi, AIR 2019 SC 2002 as well as in Amrut bhai Shambhubhai Patel vs. Sumanbhai Kantibhai Patel & others, AIR 2017 SC 774, has been discussed, wherein, the law is very well elaborated that further investigation is to be initiated on application of prosecution/ investigating agency by Magistrate, if there is detection of material evidence/fresh evidence. Its purpose is to bring the true facts before the Court, even if they are discovered at a subsequent stage to the primary investigation. Meaning thereby, in case of recovery of further evidence related with above offence, further investigation under Section 173(8) of Cr.P.C. is to be directed. But the condition in which this application was rejected, was that that nothing has been mentioned by Investigating Officer in its application regarding what kind of evidence is there, which required further investigation. Hence, application was vague in nature, that is why it was rejected. Meaning thereby, merit of application was not discussed in above order, but on the basis of devoid of fact to be written in it and being it a vague application, it was rejected. Subsequently, application by I.O. was moved with above fact, as was there, requiring further investigation and the order of rejection by Court of Magistrate was mentioned in this application that once an application was moved and it was rejected because of application being vague and with no fact and on this application, the fact which came in the light, were written. Then after, the same Magistrate permitted for further investigation. Hence, the very argument of learned counsel for the applicants that first order was not mentioned in this application, which was subsequently moved, was incorrect and against the fact. It was written in that application, subsequently moved, that previous application, moved by I.O., was not with that facts, which were required in view of law of Apex Court given in case of Amrut bhai Shambhubhai Patel vs. Sumanbhai Kantibhai Patel & others (supra). Hence, the order for formal investigation could not be obtained.

11. In present case, a First Information Report was lodged against accused persons, with accusation of offences punishable under Sections 376-D, 307 I.P.C. and it was investigated and mentioned that those offences were not made out i.e. it is nothing new added by I.O. Rather, it was since the beginning, and the contention of informant-victim was intact. Subsequent investigation mentioned the evidence collected after submission of previous charge-sheet and on the basis of that evidence, subsequent charge-sheet was filed, over which cognizance was taken. Hence, this Court, in exercise of inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 of Cr.P.C., is not to embark upon factual matrix because it may prejudice trial and the fact is to be seen by trial court. The order of Magistrate for further investigation was a formal permission, given in accordance with law. Hence, this application merits its dismissal.

12. Dismissed, as such.

The applicant, by means of this application under Section 482 Cr.P.C., has invoked the inherent jurisdiction of this Court with prayer to quash the order dated 13.12.2019, passed by learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 2, Mainpuri, in Session Trial No. 3 of 2018, State of U.P. Vs. Vipul Pratap Singh and others, under Sections 498-A, 304-B, 504 I.P.C. and Section 3/4 Dowry Prohibition Act, Police Station Bhogaon, District Mainpuri (arising out of Case Crime No. 436 of 2017), at Police Station Bhogaon, District Mainpuri, wherein application moved under Section 311 Cr.P.C. for further examining applicant PW-1, his wife Shashi Prabha PW-3 and his son Rudra Pratap Singh PW-4 in above trial by application 28-A and the same was rejected.

2. Heard learned counsel for applicant, learned counsel for opposite party no. 2, learned A.G.A. for State and perused the record.

3. Learned counsel for applicant argued that applicant is complainant / informant of above case crime number, wherein death of his daughter under suspicious circumstances, within seven years of marriage, had occurred and it was by way of suicide regarding demand of dowry and cruelty by her husband and their close relatives, wherein bail to father-in-law, mother-in-law and brother-in-law were granted by this Court and bail to husband is still pending for disposal. The opposite party no. 3 is Police Inspector posted at Mathura, who is father-in-law of deceased, was exercising pressure over informant and his family members for not giving evidence against accused persons, otherwise to face dire consequences, but applicant was not afraid of it and this case crime number was got registered, wherein trial was proceeded, but applicant managed to get a forged case lodged for offence punishable under Section 376-D I.P.C. at Police Station Raya Mathura, wherein he managed to get co-accused Devendra Singh arrested, thereafter, a threat for giving evidence in favour of accused persons were extended and ultimately applicant succumbed to above threat. He, his wife and his son gave evidence before trial court and they have not supported case of prosecution. Even then, blackmailing was being made by accused persons. Then application was moved under Section 311 Cr.P.C. for re-examining those three witnesses, who were examined by trial court, because their evidence were under threat and were not independent evidence and this application 28A was rejected by trial court under abuse of process of law. Hence, this application with above prayer.

4. Learned counsel for opposite party no. 2 has vehemently opposed this application with contention that in this very case crime number death by suicide had occurred at the place of informant i.e. not at the home of accused persons, even then, case was got lodged against accused persons, wherein charge sheet was submitted and trial was proceeded. There is a direction of Hon'ble Court for expeditious disposal of above trial that too within a stipulated period. Thereafter, applicant was summoned, but he did not appear for trial, whereupon warrant were issued against him and, thereafter, he appeared and was examined by court. After his examination, other witnesses were examined that too with interval, but at no point of time any allegation regarding threat was there and in those evidences, prosecution witnesses have not supported case of prosecution. Subsequently, with a view to malign and blackmail accused persons, who were innocent, an application under Section 311 Cr.P.C., was moved for summoning one witness Gyan Singh, who has not been examined under Section 311 Cr.P.C. This was objected by accused persons and it was rejected by trial court. Above order has not been placed on record. After above order, this application under section 311 Cr.P.C. with above prayer was moved and it was rejected by impugned order, which is well in accordance with law. This proceeding is itself under abuse of process of law. Hence, the same be rejected.

5. Learned A.G.A. has also vehemently opposed the application.

6. Having heard learned counsel for both sides and gone through material placed on record, it is apparent that applicant, his wife and his son were examined in examination-in-chief. Then, they were declared hostile upon the request of prosecution and they were cross-examined by prosecution itself. Again they were examined in cross-examination by defence counsel and all these witnesses have not supported case of prosecution. At no point of time it was raised before trial court that these testimonies were under coercion or under threat. Subsequently, another application was moved under Section 311 Cr.P.C.. Therein, also it was not mentioned. Ultimately, this application 28-A was moved on 19.11.2019 i.e. after a considerable lapse of time in between, with above prayer.

7. Section 311 Cr.P.C. reads as under:-

311. Power to summon material witness, or examine person present. Any Court may, at any stage of any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code, summon any person as a witness, or examine any person in attendance, though not summoned as a witness, or. recall and re- examine any person already examined; and the Court shall summon and examine or recall and re- examine any such person if his evidence appears to it to be essential to the just decision of the case.

8. Meaning thereby, it is settled law that if the conditions under this Section are satisfied, the court can call a witness not only on the motion of either side or suo motu for examination of a witness, who had already been examined or present in the court or being summoned for examination for the end of justice and proper judicial decision making. The court has been empowered by this Section to summon witnesses, in cases where end of justice require so. It is enabling section, which enables court for examining witnesses either examined or to be examined for the end of justice, but this situation should be there.

9. In the present case, if situation is to be analysed, it is apparent that with a view to have favour in a case of rape being said to be lodged against applicant, he became hostile to prosecution case. Not only he, his wife and his son became hostile. They have not supported case of prosecution with a view to have favour in a case, which was said to be manipulated and lodged upon initiation of Police Inspector opposite party no. 3 against applicant. Though, above case crime number and F.I.R. is not with specific title or parentage or residence. It is merely with a name of Ajit Pratap Singh. How it is related with this case is not apparent therein. The applicant has yet not been arrested by Investigating Officer in above case, as has been argued by learned counsel for applicant, whereas in this case he had appeared before trial court, had given evidence and the evidence is with interval, wherein evidence was recorded by trial court and at no point of time this complaint was ever lodged neither any complaint of such threat was there, whereas it was said that since the beginning threat was being extended. The law laid down in Zahira Habibullah Sheikh Vs. State of Gujarat; 2004 (49) ACC 238, Vijay Kumar Vs. State of U.P.; 2011 (74) ACC 879, Natasha Singh Vs. C.B.I.; 2013 (82) ACC 387, Sheela Devi Vs. State of U.P.; Criminal Revision No. 1344 of 2018 Allahabad and Dinesh Kumar Mishra Vs. State of U.P.; 2019 (108) ACC 40, relies that principles governing Section 311 Cr.P.C. and end of justice is a sine qua non for exercise of jurisdiction under this section and in present case there is no frustration of end of justice at all. Accordingly, this application merits its dismissal. The application is dismissed as such.

10. Interim order stands vacated. The trial court is directed to make compliance of order given in this case regarding disposal, as mentioned in it.

1. Heard Shri L.P. Mishra, learned counsel assisted by Shri Baljeet Singh appearing for the applicants, Shri V.K. Shahi, learned Additional Advocate General assisted by Shri Anurag Verma, learned A.G.A. for the State and Shri Prashant Chandra, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Ms. Mahima Pahwa appearing for the complainant-respondent no. 2.

2. This application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed seeking the following main reliefs:

"I. set aside the impugned summoning order dated 13.02.2019 passed in Criminal Case No. 5694/2019, Case Crime No. 0260/2018, under Section 406, 420, 467, 468, 471, 120-B I.P.C., Police Station-Husainganj, district Lucknow.

II. set aside the impugned charge sheet dated 10.02.2019, filed by the Investigating Officer in Case Crime No. 0260/2018, under Section 406, 420, 467, 468, 471, 120-B I.P.C., Police Station-Husainganj, District Lucknow.

III. set aside the entire proceedings of the Case Crime No. 0260/2018, under Section 406, 420, 467, 468, 471, 120-B I.P.C., Police Station-Husainganj, District Lucknow."

3. Shri L.P. Mishra, learned counsel appearing for the applicants submitted that applicant no. 4, i.e., M/s. United Breweries Ltd. (hereinafter referred to as the "Company'), which is a registered company engaged in manufacture and sale of Beer, received a demand order on 7th September, 2018 at 7.56 p.m. through e-mail by the Manager of the licensee-Ashok Jaiswal, on which, the Company directed its transporter, namely, M/s. Sical Logistics Ltd. to arrange vehicles to deliver the goods from its go-down located at Ghaziabad to the licensee at Lucknow.

4. M/s. Sical Logistics Ltd. has a contract for arrangement of trucks for transportation services with New Fatehpur Kolkata Transport Company, which, in turn, hires several trucks from open market. In the aforesaid transaction, New Fatehpur Kolkata Transport company had hired truck nos. UP32 HN 3209 and UP32 FN 8048 for delivery of consignment of respondent no. 2 to Lucknow. In the course of process, M/s. Sical Logistics Ltd. issued BT/consignment note dated 11th September, 2018 for delivering the Beer to the consignee, namely, Ashok Kumar Jaiswal, Station Road, Lucknow. After arrangement of the trucks by the transporter, transport permit-F.L. 36 was taken from Excise Department on 11.09.2018 for supply of the Beer by 13th September, 2018. Consignment of Beer was dispatched for delivery to the licensee at Lucknow on 11.09.2018 by truck nos. UP32 HN 3209 and UP32 FN 8048 after payment of excise duty, in advance. It is, thus, submitted by learned counsel for the applicants that the Company consigned the entire goods/Beer in respect of the demand order dated 7th September, 2018 through Company's registered transporter by the aforesaid trucks, which were having GPS systems as mandated by Excise department's Track and Trace Policy.

5. He further submitted that one QTS Solutions Pvt. Ltd. was the contractor, authorised by the Excise department for tracking the location of the trucks and both the trucks were in contact of the said Agency through GPS upto the outer limit of city of Lucknow. The GPS device of both the trucks lost contact with GPS tracker Agency on 13th September, 2018 after 11.41 p.m., on which, QTS Solutions Pvt. Ltd. sent a message through e-mail on 14.09.2018 at 4.15 p.m. to Mr. Dharam Chand, who was working as Depot In-charge under the Company, who, in turn, informed to the two officials of Company as well as the transporters M/s. Sical Logistics Ltd. about the lost of the trucks. Learned counsel for the applicants submited that QTS Solutions Pvt. Ltd. and M/s. Sical Logistics Ltd. were instructed by the Company to make serious efforts for tracing the trucks. The officers of the Company also inquired about the location of the truck from respondent no. 2 through telephone forthwith, but respondent no. 2 informed that the trucks had not yet come at his place. Thereafter, the Company apprised the said fact to the Excise department, on which, Officer In-charge, District Excise Office vide letter dated 14th September, 2018 directed the Company to file F.I.R.

6. In pursuance to the aforesaid incident, Mukesh Kumar, Managar, M/s. Sical Logistics Ltd. lodged F.I.R. No. 0390 of 2018 on 16th September, 2018 under Sections 420, 406 I.P.C., P.S. Badalpur, District Gautam Budh Nagar with the allegation that on 11th September, 2018, two vehicles, one of which was bearing no. UP32 HN 3209 (driver-Mukesh Kumar s/o Moti Lal r/o Village and Post Khursaina, District Etawah and owner-Harjeet Kumar Rawat s/o Rampal Rawat r/o Sewai Baruna, U.P. Lucknow, mobile no. 7753995356) and second vehicle was bearing UP32 FN 8048 (driver-Shanu s/o Bhagwan Deen, r/o Mohalla Masjidganj, Shahjahanpur, mobile no. 8979887803 and owner-Subhash, mobile no. 7753995355 r/o Sewai Baruna Nagram road, Lucknow), were checked out from the factory premises carrying 1180 cases of Beer having LR No. 248000524, invoice value Rs.35,39,405/- and L.R. No. 248000523, invoice value Rs.39,23,630/- respectively. It is further alleged that on 13th September, 2018, at about 16.40 hrs., when the transporter, namely, Happy Singh Arora from his mobile no. 8750711313 talked to driver Mukesh on his mobile no. 6399156672, then he was informed that vehicles were standing near Junabganj, Lucknow at Chauhan Dhaba due to "no entry". Thereafter, they could not contact with the drivers and the vehicles along with goods were vanished.

7. Shri Mishra submitted that the incident was also reported to respondent no. 2. Thereafter, Company through e-mail dated 21st September, 2018 requested the licensee for sending fresh demand to re-supply of the Beer against the order dated 07.09.2018, the consent of which was given by the licensee to the Company by e-mail on 22.09.2018. However, by the same letter, licensee also informed the Company that criminal proceedings have already been initiated in police Station Husainganj, Lucknow with regard to non-supply of Beer and civil proceedings are to be initiated for the loss suffered. Learned counsel for the applicants has submitted that after inquiry, it came into the notice of the applicants that F.I.R. No. 260 of 2018 under Section 406 I.P.C., P.S. Husainganj, District Lucknow was lodged on 16.09.2018 against the Company and the applicants herein, namely, Akhil Sharda, Arvind Padhi and Himanshu Tiwari, in which after conducting due investigation, the Investigating Officer found no incriminating material against the applicants, as such, he prepared final report dated 13th October, 2018 with the finding that the goods were supplied by the Company, but the same were not reached to the destination, but Company resupplied the goods, thus, no offence is made out.

8. Relevant part of the findings made by the Investigating Officer is being reproduced as under:

"श्रीमान जी निवेदन है कि वादी संजीत जायसवाल उपरोक्त की तहरीरी सूचना पर दिनांक 16.09.2018 को थाना–हाजा पर मु0अ0सं0–260/18 धारा–406 भा0दं0वि0 बनाम अखिल शारदा आदि तीन नफर उपरोक्त के पंजीकृत हुआ जिसकी विवेचना मुझ उ0नि0 द्वारा सम्पादित की गयी दौरान विवेचना बयान वादी मुकदमा, निरीक्षण घटनास्थल, बयाननात गवाहान, से अभियोग के जुर्म धारा 420 भा0दं0वि0 की बढ़ोत्तरी की गयी तमामी विवेचना से पाया गया कि वादी मुकदमा द्वारा तीन ट्रक बीयर का आर्डर दिया गया कम्पनी द्वारा आर्डर किये गये माल को समय से भेजा गया परन्तु वाहन चालकों द्वारा बीच मे ही माल को धोखाधड़ी करके हड़प लिया गया जिसके सम्बन्ध में थाना बादलपुर जिला गौतमबुद्ध नगर मे मु0अ0सं0–390/18 धारा–420, 406 भा0दं0वि0 अभियोग पंजीकृत कराया गया वादी मुकदमा द्वारा दिये गये आर्डर की पूर्ति वादी मुकदमा को कर दी गयी है। जिसकी पुष्टि जिला आबकारी अधिकारी लखनऊ द्वारा दिनांक 27.09.18 को की गयी है। विवेचना मे पाया गया वादी मुकदमा द्वारा किये गये माल आर्डर समय से कम्पनी द्वारा भेजा गया परन्तु बीच मे ही ट्रक चालको द्वारा हेराफेरी करके माल हड़प कर लिया गया जिसके सम्बन्ध मे थाना बादलपुर गौतमबुद्ध नगर मे अभियोग पंजीकृत होने के कारण वादी मुकदमा द्वारा दिये गये आर्डर की पूर्ति नही हो सकी थी। जो पूर्ति कर दी गयी। फलस्वरूप अभियोग मे प्रतिपक्षीगणो द्वारा धारा–420, 406 भा0दं0वि0 का गठन होना न पाये जाने के कारण जरिये अंतिम रिपोर्ट विवेचना समाप्त की जाती है निवेदन है कि तथ्यों एवं परिस्थितियों को दृष्टिगत अंतिम रिपोर्ट को स्वीकृत करने की कृपा करें।"

9. Learned counsel for the applicants further submitted that as per the provisions of the Excise Laws, the supplier/Company, is required to maintain lease of orders received in seriatim and the concerned Excise Officer verifies the lease of orders and credit of amount in the bank account of supplier/Company. Thereafter, the Company is required to arrange the trucks within 48 hours through its transporters for transportation of the Beer. Details of the trucks and drivers are also required to be provided to the concerned Excise Officers at the time of taking of F.L. 36 for transporting the Beer. The details of the trucks, drivers and the route for transportation of Beer are to be mentioned in F.L. 36. Learned counsel for the applicants also submitted that after consent of the licensee on 22nd September, 2018, fresh F.L. 36 was taken from the official website of the Excise Department on 22.09.2018 itself and the Beer was also sent on the same day against the order dated 07.09.2018 through the transporter of the Company without taking any extra cost from respondent no. 2. Thereafter, goods were delivered at the location of the licensee at Lucknow on 24.09.2018, which was accepted by the licensee. He also submitted that since the Company supplied the goods to the informant, therefore, no offence under Sections 420, 406 I.P.C. can be said to be made out. He also submitted that, however, even after receipt of the goods, since the acknowledgement was not given by the licensee, the Company contacted Excise department, on account of which, an Excise Inspector was deputed to verify the delivery of the Beer. The concerned Excise Officer inspected the location of licensee and submitted his report dated 27.09.2018 that Beer was duly received by the licensee at his premises against the order dated 07.09.2018.

10. Learned counsel for the applicants also submitted that in pursuance of the first demand order dated 7th September, 2018, entire goods were resupplied to respondent no. 2 at his location on 24.09.2018 and the delay, which caused in delivery, was not in the hands of the applicants.

11. He further submitted that the licensee had also placed another order through e-mail on 11.09.2018 at 8.30 p.m. for delivery of 1880 cases of Beer at Varansi. Since the vehicles for transportation of Beer could not be arranged, in the meantime, the licensee on 15th September, 2018 modified its original order dated 11th September, 2018 through e-mail instructing that the ordered Beer be delivered at Lucknow instead of Varansi. After receipt of the revised order dated 15.09.2018 with the changed location, F.L. 36 was taken on 17.09.2018 and on the same day, consignment of Beer was dispatched after payment of excise duty through transporter of the Company, namely, M/s. Sical Logistics Ltd. by truck no. UP 81 BT 5285 from Aligarh to Lucknow and the consignment of Beer was received by the licensee on 19.09.2018.

12. Submission of Shri L.P. Mishra is that similarly in pursuance of the indent/order dated 7th September, 2018, after taking the transport permit F.L. 36 on 11th September, 2018, the consignment was dispatched on the same day for delivery to the licensee through truck nos. UP32 HN 3209 and UP32 FN 8048, but both the trucks lost communication with the GPS Tracker agency on 13th September, 2018, just 1 and 1/2 km. away from the Kanpur Road, Junabganj, Lucknow, U.P., 226401. However, the entire goods were supplied to respondent no. 2 at his location on 24.09.2018, without any extra cost. Even then, respondent no. 2 pressed F.I.R. bearing Case Crime No. 260 of 2018 (supra) under Section 406 I.P.C., P.S. Husainganj, District Lucknow., in which, Investigating Officer, after recording the statement of the informant and inspecting the site, prepared final report dated 13th October, 2018 (Annexure 12) with the observation that the goods were supplied by the Company, but the same were not reached to the destination, as a result, re-supply of the goods was made.

13. After filing of the said final report, Ashok Kumar Jaiswal, licensee of F.L. 2B moved an application (undated) before the Inspector General of Police, Lucknow and requested that the final report dated 13.10.2018 may be rejected as the officers of the Company are habitual in committing such types of crime. In pursuance to the said application, final report dated 13.10.2018 was rejected by Additional Superintendent of Police (Crime), Lucknow and the matter was transferred for reinvestigation to the Crime Branch. The second Investigating Officer prepared the impugned charge sheet dated 10th February, 2019, however, there is no incriminating evidence for making out the alleged offence.

14. Shri Mishra submitted that, as a matter of fact, the licensee was forcing for rebate and the second Investigating Officer was used as a tool for the same, as vide letter dated 26th December, 2018, Investigating Officer asked to the Company that why the rebate amounting to Rs.2,26,73,750/- was not paid for the period 01.04.2018 to 30.09.2018 to the firm of licensee-Ashok Jaiswal, M/s. Beehive Alcoveb Ltd. In reply to the same, the Company vide letter dated 15th January, 2019 categorically stated that the Company had not offered any rebate to the complainant during the period 01.04.2018 to 30.09.2018, therefore, the claim of rebate for the said period aggregating to Rs.2,26,73,750/- made by the complainant, is unfounded. Learned counsel for the applicants also submitted that the Company also clarified in the said letter that during the inspection of depot of the Company at NOIDA made by the Investigating Officer on 26th December, 2018 and Sales Office at Delhi, all the statement of account of the complainant maintained by the Company was also shown. In the said letter, it was further stated that all the transactions are managed and recorded in accordance with the Excise Laws under the supervision of Excise officials. He further submitted that on 25.01.2019, the Investigating Officer wrote another letter to the Company stating that Beehive Alcoveb Ltd., i.e., licensee of F.L. 2B, namely, Ashok Kumar Jaiswal lodged F.I.R. No. 0260 of 2018 against the applicants alleging that the rebate is not being given to the complainant, which was being provided prior to 1st April, 2018, therefore, asked the Company to give details of all the licensees for the period of 2015-16, 2016-17 and 2017-18 with the explanation that as to how much rebate has been given to other licensees. Learned counsel for the applicants submitted that the Investigating Officer Mr. Jai Prakash Yadav was continuously making pressure for giving the aforesaid rebate to the complainant, as he again wrote a letter dated 31st January, 2019 and asked that why the rebate in the account of complainant is not being credited for the period 1st April, 2018 to 30th September, 2018. Reply dated 03.02.2019 to the said letter was given by the officers of the Company stating that there is no agreement between the Company and complainant for sharing the profit of trade and no any rebate amount is payable to the complainant during the aforesaid period.

15. He further submitted that merely on the basis of presumption, impugned charge sheet has been prepared on 10th February, 2019 with the finding that huge loss of excise duty was found, as also forged documents were prepared by the applicants and the goods were deliberately shown missing, and as per the trade practice, rebate amount was to be credited in the account of complainant and by not doing so, the licensee was also cheated by the applicants. Learned counsel for the applicants submitted that the Company suffered a lot as its goods were found missing, but re-supply was made without any cost. He vehemently submitted that there is no evidence of criminal breach of trust, cheating or forgery on the part of the applicants. He also submitted that the dispute between the Company and complainant in relation to the rebate, is of civil nature, therefore, criminal prosecution is not permissible.

16. In support of his argument, Shri Mishra relied on the decision of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the cases of Vinod Natesan Vs. State of Kerala & Ors., (2019) 2 SCC 401, Anand Kumar Mohatta & Anr. Vs.

State (Govt. of NCT of Delhi) Department of Home & Anr., 2019 (1) JIC 1 (SC), Prof. R K Vijayasarathy & Anr. Vs. Sudha Seetharam & Anr. (Criminal Appeal No. 238 of 2019), Pooja Ravinder Devidasani Vs. State of Maharashtra & Ors., 2015 (1) JIC 398 (SC), Lalit Kargeti Vs. State of U.P. & Ors., 2018 (2) JIC 427 (All), Surya Pratap Singh Vs. State of U.P. & Anr., 2016 (1) JIC 659 (All) and Nitin Jain & Ors. Vs. State of U.P. & Anr., 2015 (1) JIC 424 (All).

17. He further submitted that the ingredients of alleged offences do not stand satisfied. He relied on the decision of this Court passed in the cases of Lourenco D' Souza Vs. State of U.P. & Anr., 2017 (1) JIC 592 (All), Pawan Kumar Jain Vs. State of U.P. & Anr., 2018 (2) JIC 369 (All).

18. In support of his submission that criminal prosecution cannot be used as a weapon of harassment nor can it be used for malicious intention, learned counsel for the applicants placed reliance on the decision in the cases of State of Haryana Vs. Bhajan Lal, 1992 Supp. (1) SCC 335, International Advanced Research Center for Powder Metallurgy and New Materials (ARCI) & Ors. Vs. Nirma Cerglass Technics Pvt. Ltd. & Anr., (2016) 1 SCC (Cri) 269 and Smt. Padma Jain & Ors. Vs. State of U.P. & Anr. reported in 2016 (1) JIC 787 (All).

19. Further submitting that cognizance cannot legally be taken in a mechanical manner without any application of mind, Shri Mishra placed reliance on the decision in the cases of Pepsi Foods Ltd. & Anr. Vs. Special Judicial Magistrate & Ors., (1998) 5 SCC 343, Sukhbir Singh Vs. State of U.P. & Ors., 2017 (1) JIC 451 (All) and Sunil Bharti Mittal Vs. Central Bureau of Investigation, (2015) 4 SCC 609.

20. He also submitted that High Court can analyse the material to secure the ends of justice and to prevent the use of process of any Court. He relied on the decision of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Indian Oil Corporation Vs. N.E.P.C. India Ltd., (2006) 6 SCC 736 and Anand Kumar Mohatta & Anr. Vs. State (Govt. of NCT of Delhi) Department of Home & Anr., 2019 (1) JIC 1 (SC).

21. On the other hand, Shri V.K. Shahi, learned Additional Advocate General submitted that the instant application is not maintainable. Placing reliance on the judgment and order of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of State of Gujarat Vs. Afroz Mohammed Hasanfatta, 2019 OnLine SC 132, he submitted that at the stage of issuing process on the police report, the court is not required to weigh the evidentiary value of the materials on record. Learned A.A.G. further submitted that on 16th September, 2018, F.I.R. No. 0260 of 2018 under Section 406 I.P.C. was lodged by Sanjeet Jaiswal, respondent no. 2 against the applicants. He submitted that as per the Excise Policy, it was obligatory on the part of the accused persons to supply the product within 72 hours and admittedly, the goods were supplied belatedly. He further submitted that it is the admitted case of the applicants that two trucks UP32 HN 3209 and UP32 FN 8048 were checked out on 11th September, 2018 for supply of the goods from the go-down of the applicants, but in the statement of Harjeet Kumar, owner of truck no. UP32 HN 3209 recorded by the Investigating Officer under Section 161 Cr.P.C., he stated that he looks after the work of his truck as well as truck no. UP32 FN 8048 owned by his brother and their trucks were being used for transporting the sand and since last several months, the trucks were standing in the yard. Further in the statement of the informant under Section 161 Cr.P.C., he stated that the goods in lieu of Rs.92,98,902/- were not supplied within 72 hours, therefore, he suffered a lot. Shri V.K. Shahi also relied on the letter of District Excise Officer, Gautam Budh Nagar dated 18th September, 2018, written to the Excise Commissioner, Allahabad that the transporter lost the goods, therefore, the probability of affecting of excise revenue cannot be ruled out. Learned A.A.G. lastly submitted that the applicants have alternative remedy of moving discharge application before the trial court at the appropriate stage.

22. Shri Prashant Chandra, learned Senior Counsel appearing on behalf of the informant submitted that the charge sheet dated 10.02.2019 was filed after collecting the incriminating evidence against the applicants, on which the court below rightly taken cognizance under Section 190(1)(b) Cr.P.C. In support of his submission, Shri Chandra also relied on the decision of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of State of Gujarat Vs. Afroz Mohammed Hasanfatta (supra). He further submitted that since the entire charge sheet has not been filed and only some extract thereof has been annexed with the application, therefore, the validity of entire charge sheet can neither be assailed nor questioned, as something, which is not before the Court, cannot be examined. Shri Chandra also submitted that the applicants have not come with the clean hands and have consciously indulged in material suppression and have twisted facts with the object to mislead this Court and, thus, the application is liable to dismissed as it is not for the applicants to choose as to what facts are to be stated. In support of his argument, he relied on the decision of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Bhaskar Laxman Jadhav & Ors. Vs. Karamveer Kakasaheb Wagh Education Society & Ors., (2013) 11 SCC 531. Further relying on the decision of the Sau. Kamal Shivaji Pokarnekar Vs. State of Maharashtra & Ors. (Criminal Appeal No. 255 of 2019), he submitted that at the initial stage of issuance of process, it is not open to the court to stifle the proceedings by entering into the merits of the contentions made on behalf of the accused. He also relied on the decision of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the cases of Devendra Pratap Singh Vs. State of Bihar & Anr., (2019) 4 SCC 351, S. Krishnamoorthy Vs. Chellammal, (2015) 14 SCC 559, Chilakamarthi Venkateshwarlu & Anr. Vs. State of Andhra Pradesh & Ors. (Criminal Appeal No. 1082 of 2019), Mohd. Allaudin Khan Vs. State of Bihar & Ors., (2019) 6 SCC 107. He concluded his argument with the emphasis that the High Court may have an obligation to intervene under Section 482 Cr.P.C., in cases where manifest error has been committed by the Magistrate in issuing the process despite the fact that the alleged acts did not at all constitute offences.

23. I have considered the arguments advanced by the learned counsel for the parties and gone through the record.

24. Before dealing with the facts of the case, it is necessary to consider the argument of learned counsel for the complainant as well as learned Additional Advocate General regarding maintainability of the present application.

25. After going through the decisions of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the cases of

State of Gujarat Vs. Afroz Mohammed Hasanfatta (supra), Bhaskar Laxman Jadhav (supra) and Mohd. Allaudin Khan (supra) relied by Shri Prashant Chandra, it is evident that the Hon'ble Apex Court categorically held that under Section 482 Cr.P.C., High Court may intervene in cases where manifest error has been committed by the Magistrate in issuing process despite the fact that the alleged facts did not at all constitute offences. In such circumstances, it is obligatory to go through the facts of the case and the material collected by the Investigating Officer. In such circumstances, the argument advanced by the learned counsel for the respondents has no legs to stand.

26. Insofar as the submission advanced by Shri V.K. Shahi, learned A.A.G. that the applicants have alternative remedy of discharge at the appropriate stage, therefore, the application is not maintainable, is also baseless. It is well settled by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of State of Haryana Vs. Bhajan Lal (supra) that the inherent power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. can be exercised. Hon'ble Apex Court has laid down seven guidelines explaining as to under what circumstances, the power can be exercised. Para 102 of the report is reproduced as under:

"102.In the backdrop of the interpretation of the various relevant provisions of the Code under Chapter XIV and of the principles of law enunciated by this Court in a series of decisions relating to the exercise of the extraordinary power under Article 226 or the inherent powers under Section 482 of the Code which we have extracted and reproduced above, we give the following categories of cases by way of illustration wherein such power could be exercised either to prevent abuse of the process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice, though it may not be possible to lay down any precise, clearly defined and sufficiently channelised and inflexible guidelines or rigid formulae and to give an exhaustive list of myriad kinds of cases wherein such power should be exercised.

(1) Where the allegations made in the first information report or the complaint, even if they are taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety do not prima facie constitute any offence or make out a case against the accused.

(2) Where the allegations in the first information report and other materials, if any, accompanying the FIR do not disclose a cognizable offence, justifying an investigation by police officers under Section 156(1) of the Code except under an order of a Magistrate within the purview of Section 155(2) of the Code.

(3) Where the uncontroverted allegations made in the FIR or complaint and the evidence collected in support of the same do not disclose the commission of any offence and make out a case against the accused.

(4) Where, the allegations in the FIR do not constitute a cognizable offence but constitute only a non-cognizable offence, no investigation is permitted by a police officer without an order of a Magistrate as contemplated under Section 155(2) of the Code.

(5) Where the allegations made in the FIR or complaint are so absurd and inherently improbable on the basis of which no prudent person can ever reach a just conclusion that there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused.

(6) Where there is an express legal bar engrafted in any of the provisions of the Code or the concerned Act (under which a criminal proceeding is instituted) to the institution and continuance of the proceedings and/or where there is a specific provision in the Code or the concerned Act, providing efficacious redress for the grievance of the aggrieved party.

(7) Where a criminal proceeding is manifestly attended with mala fide and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge."

27. Reiterating the parameters laid down in the case of Bhajan Lal (supra), Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Rajiv Thapar & Ors. Vs. Mohan Lal Kapoor, (2013) 3 SCC 330 laid down that the discretion vested in the High Court under Section 482 of the Code can be exercised suo motu to prevent the abuse of the process of the Court and/or to secure the ends of justice. Relevant part of the judgment is as under:

"25. Section 482 CrPC is being extracted hereunder:

"482.Saving of inherent powers of High Court.--Nothing in this Code shall be deemed to limit or affect the inherent powers of the High Court to make such orders as may be necessary to give effect to any order under this Code, or to prevent abuse of the process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice."

The discretion vested in a High Court under Section 482 CrPC can be exercised suo motu to prevent the abuse of process of a court, and/or to secure the ends of justice.

26. This Court had an occasion to examine the matter in State of Orissa v.Debendra Nath Padhi [(2005) 1 SCC 568 : 2005 SCC (Cri) 415] (incidentally the said judgment was heavily relied upon by the learned counsel for the respondent complainant), wherein it was held thus: (SCC p. 581, para 29)

"29. Regarding the argument of the accused having to face the trial despite being in a position to produce material of unimpeachable character of sterling quality,the width of the powers of the High Courtunder Section 482 of the Code and Article 226 of the Constitution of India is unlimited whereunder in the interests of justice the High Court can make such orders as may be necessary to prevent abuse of the process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice within the parameters laid down in Bhajan Lal case [State of Haryana v. Bhajan Lal, 1992 Supp (1) SCC 335 : 1992 SCC (Cri) 426] ."

27. Recently, this Court again had an occasion to examine the ambit and scope of Section 482 CrPC in Rukmini Narvekar v. Vijaya Satardekar [(2008) 14 SCC 1 : (2009) 1 SCC (Cri) 721] wherein in the main order it was observed that the width of the powers of the High Court under Section 482 CrPC and under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, was unlimited. In the said judgment, this Court held that the High Court could make such orders as may be necessary to prevent abuse of the process of any court, or otherwise to secure the ends of justice. In a concurring separate order passed in the same case, it was additionally observed that under Section 482 CrPC, the High Court was free to consider even material that may be produced on behalf of the accused, to arrive at a decision whether the charge as framed could be maintained. The aforesaid parameters shall be kept in mind while we examine whether the High Court ought to have exercised its inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 CrPC in the facts and circumstances of this case.

28. The High Court, in exercise of its jurisdiction under Section 482 CrPC, must make a just and rightful choice. This is not a stage of evaluating the truthfulness or otherwise of the allegations levelled by the prosecution/complainant against the accused. Likewise, it is not a stage for determining how weighty the defences raised on behalf of the accused are. Even if the accused is successful in showing some suspicion or doubt, in the allegations levelled by the prosecution/complainant, it would be impermissible to discharge the accused before trial. This is so because it would result in giving finality to the accusations levelled by the prosecution/complainant, without allowing the prosecution or the complainant to adduce evidence to substantiate the same. The converse is, however, not true, because even if trial is proceeded with, the accused is not subjected to any irreparable consequences. The accused would still be in a position to succeed by establishing his defences by producing evidence in accordance with law. There is an endless list of judgments rendered by this Court declaring the legal position that in a case where the prosecution/complainant has levelled allegations bringing out all ingredients of the charge(s) levelled, and have placed material before the Court, prima facie evidencing the truthfulness of the allegations levelled, trial must be held.

29. The issue being examined in the instant case is the jurisdiction of the High Court under Section 482 CrPC, if it chooses to quash the initiation of the prosecution against an accused at the stage of issuing process, or at the stage of committal, or even at the stage of framing of charges. These are all stages before the commencement of the actual trial. The same parameters would naturally be available for later stages as well. The power vested in the High Court under Section 482 CrPC, at the stages referred to hereinabove, would have far-reaching consequences inasmuch as it would negate the prosecution's/complainant's case without allowing the prosecution/complainant to lead evidence. Such a determination must always be rendered with caution, care and circumspection. To invoke its inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 CrPC the High Court has to be fully satisfied that the material produced by the accused is such that would lead to the conclusion that his/their defence is based on sound, reasonable, and indubitable facts; the material produced is such as would rule out and displace the assertions contained in the charges levelled against the accused; and the material produced is such as would clearly reject and overrule the veracity of the allegations contained in the accusations levelled by the prosecution/complainant. It should be sufficient to rule out, reject and discard the accusations levelled by the prosecution/complainant, without the necessity of recording any evidence. For this the material relied upon by the defence should not have been refuted, or alternatively, cannot be justifiably refuted, being material of sterling and impeccable quality. The material relied upon by the accused should be such as would persuade a reasonable person to dismiss and condemn the actual basis of the accusations as false. In such a situation, the judicial conscience of the High Court would persuade it to exercise its power under Section 482 CrPC to quash such criminal proceedings, for that would prevent abuse of process of the court, and secure the ends of justice.

30. Based on the factors canvassed in the foregoing paragraphs, we would delineate the following steps to determine the veracity of a prayer for quashment raised by an accused by invoking the power vested in the High Court under Section 482 CrPC"

28. The facts, as emerged out from the record, are that the Company is engaged in manufacture and sale of Beer, which is regulated and governed by the Excise Act and other relevant laws of the State. Respondent no. 2, who is the Manager of Licensee firm having F.L. 2B, is engaged in business of sale of Beer etc. by purchasing the same from the Company. On 7th September, 2018, respondent no. 2 sent a demand order at 7.56 p.m. to the Company through e-mail for truck load Beer, containing 2360 case. The said mail was also sent to the Assistant Excise Commissioner, Web Distillery Liquor. In pursuance of the indent/demand order dated 07.09.2018, the Company directed its transporter-M/s. Sical Logistics Ltd. to arrange vehicles to deliver the goods from its go-down located at 55, Loha Mandi near Shardha Dharamkanta, Ghaziabad, U.P. to the licensee at Lucknow. However, as the process for supply of goods to respondent no. 2 was initiated on 10.09.2018. After arrangement of the trucks by the transporter, transport permit F.L. 36 was taken on 11.09.2018 for supply of the Beer by 13.09.2018. Thereafter, the consignment of Beer was dispatched on 11.09.2018 for delivery to the licensee at Lucknow, after payment of excise duty, by the said transporter of the Company through truck nos. UP32 HN 3209 and UP32 FN 8048, which have the GPS systems. Location of both the trucks was being tracked by QTS Solutions Pvt. Ltd., which was authorised by the Excise department, through GPS upto the outer limit of city of Lucknow. On 13th September, 2018, the GPS device of both the trucks lost contact with GPS tracker Agency after 11.41 p.m. Ultimately, on 21.09.2018, the Company requested the licensee through e-mail for resupply of Beer against order dated 07.09.2018. The consent for resupply of the Beer against the order dated 07.09.2018 was given by the licensee through e-mail on 22.09.2018. The licensee also informed the Company that criminal proceedings have already been initiated in Police Station Husainganj, District Lucknow with regard to non-supply of Beer, as also of the civil proceedings to be initiated for the loss suffered.

29. On the written complaint of respondent no. 2, F.I.R. bearing Case Crime No. 260 of 2018, under Section 406 I.P.C., P.S. Husainganj, District Lucknow was lodged on 16.09.2018 against the employees of the Company, Akhil Sharda, Himanshu Tiwari and Arvind Padhis with the allegation that on 07.09.2018 and 11.09.2018, two orders were placed for supply of the Beer and Rs.92,98,902/- were paid as per the provisions of Excise Laws. The said Beer was to be supplied within 72 hrs., but the same had not been supplied and, thus, money paid by the informant was apprehended to be cheated. Investigating Officer after recording the statement of the informant and preparing the site plan, submitted final report dated 13th October, 2018 with the observation that the goods were supplied by the Company, but the same did not reach to the destination. Thereafter, Company again supplied the goods to the informant and, therefore, no offence under Sections 420, 406 I.P.C. is made out. Thereafter, Ashok Kumar Jaiswal licensee of FL 2B moved an application before the Inspector General of Police, Lucknow and requested that the officers of the Company are habitual in committing such types of crime and the trucks loaded with the liquor worth of crores of rupees are being missed, on account of which, State suffered revenue loss. Thereafter, the final report dated 13.10.2018 was rejected by the Additional Superintendent of Police (Crime), Lucknow and the matter was transferred for reinvestigation to the Crime Branch. In pursuance of the same, Mr. Jai Prakash Yadav, Investigating Officer, after recording the statement of witness-Abdul Haq, Harjeet Kumar and Subhash (owner of the trucks in question) under Section 161 Cr.P.C., prepared charge sheet dated 10.02.2019 and observed that on the basis of evidence collected during the course of investigation, inspection of site plan, it is found that M/s. United Breweries Ltd., Akhil Sharda s/o Ashwani Kumar Sharda, Arvind Padhi s/o P.K. Padhi, Himanshu Tiwari s/o Ram Nandan Tiwari, all r/o 626, DLF Tower & DDA, Police Station Jasola, New Delhi prepared forged documents and did forgery with the common intention, as a result of which, State suffered huge loss of excise revenue. Investigating Officer further noticed that they committed cheating with the informant also, therefore, offence under Sections 406, 420, 467, 468, 471 and 120B I.P.C. is made out, on which, court below passed summoning order dated 13.02.2019.

30. As on 05.04.2019, interim order was passed by this Court, relevant part of which, is reproduced as under:

"Till that time, no coercive action will be taken against the applicants, subject to condition for deposit of adequate security regarding allegations of tax evasion, if any, fixed by the Court below within a week from today. It is also provided that applicants will not leave the country without permission of the Court below."

31. It is evident from the Annexure RA-7 to the rejoinder affidavit dated 17.07.2019 that the aforesaid order dated 05.04.2019 of this Court was placed before A.C.J.M., Court No. 25, Lucknow. He directed the Investigating Officer to submit a report that how much excise duty is evaded by the accused. The Investigating Officer submitted a report dated 17.04.2019 (Annexure-RA-8) and stated that the accused person evaded excise duty amounting to Rs.43,23,164/- in the present case, but this fact does not find place in the case diary. The relevant part of the report dated 17.04.2019 given by Investigating Officer to A.C.J.M., Court No. 25, Lucknow is as under:

35. It is undisputed that for re-supply of the Beer, excise duty was duly paid to the Excise department, after which F.L. 36 was issued and the goods were supplied by the Company, which was duly received by the informant's side. It is also undisputed that initially, in Case Crime No. 260 of 2018 (supra), final report was prepared by the Investigating Officer on 13.10.2018. However, on the request of the Ashok Kumar Jaiswal, investigation was transferred to the Crime branch and charge sheet was prepared by the 2nd Investigating Officer on 10.02.2019 with the observation that there is a loss of U.P. Excise revenue. The charge sheet was prepared against the Company, Akhil Sharda, Arvind Padhi and Himanshu Tiwari with the allegation that by preparing a forged documents, the Company cheated the informant and also cause U.P. excise revenue loss.

36. In the present case, admittedly, on the order having been placed by the complainant's side for supply of the liquor, it was dispatched by the applicants, strictly in accordance with the provisions of U.P. Excise Laws and when it was found missing near the border of District Lucknow, information of the same was duly reported to the Excise officials. Thereafter, on the direction of the Excise officials, F.I.R. No. 0390 of 2018, under Sections 420, 406 I.P.C., P.S. Badalpur, District Gautam Budh Nagar was lodged on 16th September, 2018 by Mukesh Kumar-Manager of M/s. Sical Logistics Ltd., provider of the vehicles. Thereafter, fresh request was asked by the applicants from the complainant on 21st September, 2018 as per the requirement of excise law to pay the excise duty against the order, in response to which, he gave consent on 22.09.2018 against the order dated 7th August, 2018 to resupply the goods. However, vide letter dated 21.09.2018, it was also informed by the complainant that F.I.R. No. 0260 of 2018 (supra) was lodged against the applicants due to non-supply of the goods. Indisputably, applicants re-supplied the goods against the order dated 07.09.2018 in lieu of the missing goods without taking any extra cost. Thereafter, final report dated 13th October, 2018 was prepared by the 1st Investigating Officer. However, on the application (undated) of Shri Ashok Kumar Jaiswal-licensee, investigation was transferred to the Crime branch. Thereafter, the subsequent Investigating Officer distorted the investigation and started making queries from the applicants that as to why the rebate amounting to Rs.2,26,73,750/- was not paid to the complainant for the period of 1st April, 2018 to 30th September, 2018.

37. On 26th December, 2018, 2nd Investigating Officer-Jay Prakash Yadav wrote a letter to the Company and asked that why the rebate amounting to Rs.2,26,73,750/- has not been paid to the complainant, reply of which, was given by the Company on 15th January, 2019. This fact is recorded in the case diary of Parcha No. SCD 13. Letter dated 26.12.2018 written by the 2nd Investigating Officer is as under:

"15.01.2019
The Inspector,
Crime Branch ,
Lucknow.
Kind Attention: Mr. J.P Yadav
Dear Sir ,
Ref: Your letter dated 26.12.2018

We refer to your letter dated 26.12.2018 in relation to a complaint by Mr. Ashok Kumar Jaiswal, Licencee FL-2B, Beehive Alcoveb, Lucknow (hereinafter " the Complainant ") regarding non- payment of rebate for the period 01.04.2018 - 30.09.2018 aggregating to Rs. 2,26,73,750/- by United Breweries Limited (hereinafter "the Company").The Complainant also alleged that the Company has not provided the statement of account to them.

We would like to inform you that the Company has not offered any rebate to the Complainant during the period 01.04.2018 to 30.09.2018 and therefore the claim of rebate for the said period aggregating to Rs 2,26,73,750/- made by the Complainant is unfound. The Complainant is put to strict proof of the same. During your inspection of our Depot at Noida on 26.12.2018 and our Sales Office at Delhi on 26.12.2018, we have shown you the statement of account of the Complainant maintained by the Company. We have also shared the statement of account of the Complainant maintained by the Company. WE have also shared the statement of account with the Complainant and therefore the allegation made by the Complainant that they have not received the statement of account is not true.

It may be noted that the Company is engaged in manufacture and sale of beer and the business transactions between the Company and the Complainant are governed by State Excise Laws. All Laws of the Sate under supervision of the Excise officials.

Notwithstanding what is stated above, it is humbly submitted that the dispute in question is civil/ commercial in nature and may fall under differently jurisdiction.

Thanking you."

40. Again a letter dated 31st January, 2019 was written by Jay Pakash Yadav, 2nd Investigating Officer to the Company and asked that under what circumstances, the rebate for the period 01.04.2018 to 30.09.2018 has not been paid. It is evident from the Parcha No. SCD 15 dated 30th January, 2019, in which majeed statement of licensee-Ashok Kumar Jaiswal was recorded by the Investigating Officer under Section 161 Cr.P.C., in which he stated that he is doing business with the Company since long and from time to time, viz., for the period of 31.03.2017 to 16.06.2017, the Company gave rebate and credited the amount of Rs.2 crore in his account. Again on 27.09.2017, Rs.30,00,000/- was credited in his account by the Company. He, thus, stated that for the period of 01.04.2018 to 30.09.2018, about Rs.2 crore 43 lacs were to be credited in his account as rebate, but the same has not been credited. He also stated that the facility of rebate was being given to other groups.

41. The relevant part of the statement of Ashok Kumar Jaiswal is as under:

43. Reply dated 03.02.2019 given by the Company is also reproduced as under:

"03.02.2019
The inspector In-Charge,
Heinous Crime Branch,
Lucknow.
Kind Attention : Mr. JP Yadav
Dear Sir,
Ref: Your letter dated 31.01.2019

We refer to you letter dated 31.01.201 in connection with FIR No. 260/18 (pertaining to non- supply of goods) seeking details on the points raised in your letter. We submit our response as under:

1. Statement of business transactions with Licensees of Chadha Group (Wave Group) in the year 2016-17,2017-18 and 01.04.2018 to 30.09.2018.

You have sought information in respect of several licensees for past three years ans you will appreciate that the information cannot be compiled in short notice as the information pertains to 3rd party. Further, the information is privileged and confidential and we will have to inform the concerned parties to provided this information.

2. It would be incorrect to say that as per the trade practice we have been sharing profit in trade with the complainant in the past. The Company offers some trade benefits to Licensees which based on various factors including brands, market, volume, etc. and there is no profit sharing understanding/agreement with the complainant. It is entirely at the discretion of the Company to offer such benefits. You are already informed that the Company has not offered any scheme/rebate during the period 01.04.2018 to 30.09.2018 and therefore no amount is payable to the Complainant on this account. We reiterated that these are purely commercial aspects of the trade and may fall under diffrent jurisdiction.

3. As explained above, there is no agreement between the Company and the Complainant for sharing of profit in trade.

4. Notwithstanding the above, it is humbly submitted that the case in subject FIR No. 260/2018 was for non- supply of beer against the consideration paid by the complainant and for which amounts the goods have already been supplied and the grievance stands resolved."

44. It is worthy to be noticed here that during the course of investigation, statement of the owner of the alleged two trucks bearing no. UP32 HN 3209 and UP32 FN 8048 was also recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C., in which he stated that his trucks were not used for the purpose as his trucks were being used for transporting sand and since last three months, trucks were standing in the yard, meaning thereby, the vehicle provider provides some other vehicles plying with the numbers UP32 HN 3209 and UP32 FN 8048 and this was the subject matter of investigation of F.I.R. No. 0390 of 018 under Section 420, 406 I.P.C. lodged by Mukesh Kumar-Manager of M/s. Sical Logistics Ltd. But, it reveals from the record of the case diary provided by Shri V.K. Shahi, learned A.A.G. of the aforesaid case that the investigation of the aforesaid case was transferred from Police Station Badalpur, Gautam Budh Nagar to Police Station Banthara, Ditrict Lucknow and was re-numbered as F.I.R. No. 227 of 2019, under Sections 406, 420 I.P.C., P.S. Banthara, District Lucknow. However, investigation of the aforesaid case was dropped by the Investigating Officer on 28th June, 2019 with the finding that for the same offence, F.I.R. No. 260 of 2018 (supra) was lodged in P.S. Husainganj, District Lucknow, investigation of which was being conducted by the same Investigating Officer. Thereafter, impugned charge sheet dated 10.02.2019 was filed in F.I.R. No. 260 of 2018 (supra) with the finding that the alleged goods were vanished with the conspiracy of the Company and its officials and only in the peshbandi, F.I.R. No. 227 of 209 (old no. 390 of 2018) was lodged at P.S. Badalpur.

45. It is evident from the case diary of Case Crime No. 260 of 2018 (supra) that initially 1st Investigating Officer submitted final report with the finding that the goods were re-supplied to the licensee/buyer, but the 2nd Investigating Officer twisted the investigation with the correspondence to the applicants that as to why the rebate was not being paid to the complainant.

46. It is apparent from the record and the pleadings that there is no evasion of tax and it seems that there is a dispute of rebate between the parties and, therefore, the impugned criminal prosecution is a sheer abuse of the legal process. It is in view of the reasons, as observed above that no ingredients of deception, fraudulent or dishonest act by inducing the person or criminal breach of trust or forgery are found.

47. Considering the aforesaid facts and parameters laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of State of Haryana Vs. Bhajan Lal (supra) and Rajiv Thapar (supra), the application is allowed and the impugned charge sheet dated 10.02.2019 in F.I.R. No. 260 of 2018 and its consequential summoning order dated 13.02.2019 passed by ACJM-I, Court No. 25, Lucknow are set aside.

48. However, before parting with the judgment, it is hereby observed that since it is evident from the record that the owner of the vehicle nos. UP32 HN 3209 and UP32 FN 8048 stated that the vehicles were standing in his yard, meaning thereby, either the owner is a falsehood or the service provider of the vehicles to the Company is plying illegal vehicles on the aforesaid numbers, which is a matter of investigation.

49. In such circumstances, it is directed that the investigation of Case Crime No. 227 of 2019 under Sections 406, 420 I.P.C., P.S. Banthara, District Lucknow (old no. 390 of 2018, under Sections 406, 420 I.P.C., P.S. Badalpur, District Gautam Budh Nagar) be transferred to C.B.C.I.D. forthwith. Commissioner of Police, Lucknow is directed to pass necessary orders for handing over all the necessary documents to the office of Director General of C.B.C.I.D., who, in turn, is directed to depute some competent officer not below the rank of Deputy Inspector General of Police to monitor the further investigation of the aforesaid case on weekly basis and conclude the same as early as possible, strictly in accordance with law.

50. Photocopy of both the case diaries are returned back to the learned A.A.G.

51. Office is directed to communicate this order to the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Lucknow as well as Additional Chief Secretary (Home), Director General (Police), U.P., Director General, C.B.C.I.D. and Police Commissioner, Lucknow for necessary compliance.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Krishna Gautam, J.)

1. The applicant Indradev Seth, by means of this application under Section 482 Cr.P.C., has invoked the inherent jurisdiction of the Court with prayer to quash the summoning order dated 21.11.2019, passed by learned Additional Session Judge, Fast Track Court- I, Mirzapur, in S.T. No. 43 of 2016 (State of U.P. Vs. Suraj Seth and others), under Section 498A, 304B, 201 I.P.C. read with Section 3/4 of D.P. Act, Police Station- Ahrora, District- Mirzapur, pending before the Court of learned Additional Session Judge, Fast Track Court- I, Mirzapur.

2. Heard learned counsel for the applicant and learned A.G.A. for the State.

3. Learned counsel for the applicant argued that file was scheduled for judgement but trial Court, vide impugned order, summoned two witnesses under Section 311 of Cr.P.C., whereas no such argument was ever raised either by prosecution or by defence side nor those witnesses were necessary for their evidence. Rather, Court became bias, after filing of a written argument by defence side and this argument was gone through by the Presiding Judge. But no where this was mentioned in order-sheet that this argument was filed. Then after for deferring delivery of judgment, this impugned order has been passed. Many other arguments regarding facts of case, were argued but the same are not concerned with disposal of present matter, in issue. Hence, need not to be mentioned.

4. Learned AGA has vehemently opposed the above prayer.

5. The sole question is whether trial Judge was justified in passing impugned order or not.

6. No doubt Section 311 of Cr.P.C., provides power to trial Judge for summoning any of the witness being needed for the just decision of case before delivery of judgement at any stage.

7. Section 311 Cr.P.C. provides "Power to summon material witness, or examine person present. Any Court may, at any stage of any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code, summon any person as a witness, or examine any person in attendance, though not summoned as a witness, or recall and re- examine any person already examined; and the Court shall summon and examine or recall and re-examine any such person if his evidence appears to it to be essential to the just decision of the case."

8. It is crystal clear that the Court is empowered to summon any person as witness, at any stage of any inquiry, trial or other proceeding. The power is not confined to any particular class or person. It is settled law that if the conditions under this Section is satisfied, the Court can call a witness not only on the motion of either of the prosecution or defence but also it can do so on its own motion. Any person can be summoned as a witness or recalled or re-examined at any stage of proceeding, where those ingredients is present and this has been propounded by Apex Court in Mohanlal Shamji Soni vs Union Of India And Another, 1991 CriLJ 1521. Learned counsel for the applicant has pressed law of Apex Court in Raja Ram Prasad Yadav Vs. State of Bihar and another, AIR 2013 SC 3081, where this power of trial court to summon, recall or re-examine any person, has been stated as follows:

(B) Criminal P.C. (2 of 1974), S. 311 - Power of Court to summon, recall or re-examine any person - Exercise of - Governing principles.

While dealing with an application under Section 311 Cr.P.C. read along with Section 138 of the Evidence Act, we feel the following principles will have to be borne in mind by the Courts:

a) Whether the Court is right in thinking that the new evidence is needed by it? Whether the evidence sought to be led in under Section 311 is noted by the Court for a just decision of a case?

b) The exercise of the widest discretionary power under Section 311 Cr.P.C. should ensure that the judgment should not be rendered on inchoate, inconclusive speculative presentation of facts, as thereby the ends of justice would be defeated.

c) If evidence of any witness appears to the Court to be essential to the just decision of the case, it is the power of the Court to summon and examine or recall and re-examine any such person.

d) The exercise of power under Section 311 Cr.P.C. should be resorted to only with the object of finding out the truth or obtaining proper proof for such facts, which will lead to a just and correct decision of the case.

e) The exercise of the said power cannot be dubbed as filling in a lacuna in a prosecution case, unless the facts and circumstances of the case make it apparent that the exercise of power by the Court would result in causing serious prejudice to the accused, resulting in miscarriage of justice.

f) The wide discretionary power should be exercised judiciously and not arbitrarily.

g) The Court must satisfy itself that it was in every respect essential to examine such a witness or to recall him for further examination in order to arrive at a just decision of the case.

h) The object of Section 311 Cr.P.C. simultaneously imposes a duty on the Court to determine the truth and to render a just decision.

i) The Court arrives at the conclusion that additional evidence is necessary, not because it would be impossible to pronounce the judgment without it, but because there would be a failure of justice without such evidence being considered.

j) Exigency of the situation, fair play and good sense should be the safe guard, while exercising the discretion. The Court should bear in mind that no party in a trial can be foreclosed from correcting errors and that if proper evidence was not adduced or a relevant material was not brought on record due to any inadvertence, the Court should be magnanimous in permitting such mistakes to be rectified.

k) The Court should be conscious of the position that after all the trial is basically for the prisoners and the Court should afford an opportunity to them in the fairest manner possible. In that parity of reasoning, it would be safe to err in favour of the accused getting an opportunity rather than protecting the prosecution against possible prejudice at the cost of the accused. The Court should bear in mind that improper or capricious exercise of such a discretionary power, may lead to undesirable results.

l) The additional evidence must not be received as a disguise or to change the nature of the case against any of the party.

m) The power must be exercised keeping in mind that the evidence that is likely to be tendered, would be germane to the issue involved and also ensure that an opportunity of rebuttal is given to the other party.

n) The power under Section 311 Cr.P.C. must therefore, be invoked by the Court only in order to meet the ends of justice for strong and valid reasons and the same must be exercised with care, caution and circumspection. The Court should bear in mind that fair trial entails the interest of the accused, the victim and the society and, therefore, the grant of fair and proper opportunities to the persons concerned, must be ensured being a constitutional goal, as well as a human right.

9. Meaning thereby, just and proper decision is to be seen by trial Court for summoning any witness, under Section 311 of Cr.P.C. Court may summon, upon motion moved by either side or by suo moto, if it finds it necessary. Now in case in hand, it has been written in First Information Report that information of alleged disease of deceased was communicated to informant by some Mohan Seth. Subsequently, this Mohan Seth apprised that deceased had died. Now Mohan Seth was shown as a witness but prosecution not examined this witness. This was a plea by defence that no such occurrence ever occurred. Rather it was a natural death, owing to ailment, for which deceased was being taken for her treatment. Meaning thereby, the bona fide of accused that he communicated one relative of informant about disease of deceased and he communicated instantly to informant about this ailment of deceased, is a crucial point and if Mohan Seth proves it that he had been informed by accused side that deceased was under ailment and was taken for treatment, then it will prove the bona fide of accused persons, that will substantiate the plea of defence. Subsequently, information of death, being said to be given to Mohan Seth and communicated to informant by Mohan Seth, is also of that much crucial nature. Hence, Mohan Seth was an important witness to be examined before trial Court for appreciation of this aspect that accused persons did informed Mohan Seth about disease of deceased and she being taken for treatment. Hence, trial Judge rightly concluded for summoning Mohan Seth, for his examination and this examination will be helpful for accused himself, in case he proves so. By examining this witness the real and just decision will be passed.

10. Regarding other witnesses, driver of that tempo, by which deceased was said to be taken to hospital for treatment and if it is so and proved on record, then, bona fide of accused persons and plea of defence, will be substantiated. Either prosecution or defence itself ought to examine these witnesses, for fortifying their plea and placing their bona fide but unfortunately these witnesses are not examined and for reaching correct and just decision in judicial decision making, their evidence was must and in course with guidelines given by Apex Court, narrated as above. Accordingly, there is nothing wrong in the impugned order. This application merits its dismissal.

11. Dismissed, as such.

(A) Criminal Law- The Negotiable instruments Act, 1981 - Section 138 - Section 391 (1)- Cr.P.C.Code of criminal procedure, 1973 - Sections 482 – Inherent jurisdiction - Section 243 Cr.P.C. – Evidence for defence - Section 391 Cr.P.C. - Appellate court may take further evidence or direct it to be taken - - appellate court is entitled to take additional evidence, only if it thinks, additional evidence to be necessary - it depends on facts of each and every case to come to a conclusion as to whether it is 'necessary' to take additional evidence or not. (Para-12)

Complaint filed against the applicant - Section 138 of the Negotiable Instruments Act - application moved by the applicant before the trial court & concerned bank - with respect to loss of cheque - cheque in question dishonored with the endorsement "insufficient fund" and not with the endorsement "mismatch of signature" - For the first time, the applicant claimed before the appellate court through application under section 391 Cr.P.C. that the cheque did not bear his signature and disputed cheque be got examined by hand writing expert – despite ample opportunity given during trial to get admitted signatures compared with the disputed signature on the cheque - no such prayer was made. (Para-16)

HELD:-The applicant did not want to file any additional evidence but wanted to create new evidence merely on the ground that the disputed cheque does not bear his signatures . Application under Section 391 Cr.P.C. filed by the applicant before the Appellate court was not bonafide and was simply moved to create confusion and delay in disposal of appeal and the application has been rightly rejected by learned Additional District and Sessions Judge.(Para –13, 17)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan, J.)

1. Supplementary affidavit filed by the learned counsel for the applicant today in the Court, which is taken on record.

2. Heard Mr. Pravin Kumar Mishra, learned counsel for the applicant, Mr. P.K. Shahi, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

3. This application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed by the applicant seeking to quash the impugned order dated 12.12.2019 passed by the learned Additional District and Sessions Judge, Court No.05, Bijnor in Criminal Appeal No. 72 of 2018, whereby an application under Section 391 Cr.P.C. was rejected.

4. The brief facts of the case are that, a complaint has been filed by the complainant/opposite party no.2 against the applicant under Section 138 of the Negotiable Instruments Act with the allegations that the applicant purchased pots of brass worth Rs. 2,75,000/- on 24.04.2015 from opposite party no. 2 and for payment of which, he gave a cheque bearing No.993347 dated 24.04.2015 for Rs. 2,75,000/- drawn on Oriental Bank of Commerce, Branch, Bhaneda to the complainant. The cheque was presented before the concerned bank on 24.04.2015 but it was dishonored with the endorsement "insufficient fund'. A notice was sent by the complainant to the applicant on 28.04.2015, which was received by him on 29.04.2015, but despite notice, the amount was not paid. Therefore, the complaint was filed against the applicant, on which, the applicant was summoned and put into for the trial. After trial, the learned Judge, Additional Court, Bijnor, vide judgment and order dated 31.10.2018 convicted the applicant under Section 138 of the Negotiable Instruments Act and sentenced him to undergo simple imprisonment for three months with fine of Rs. 3,50,000/- and in case of default of payment of fine further undergone simple imprisonment for a period of one month. It was further directed that out of total amount of fine/compensation of Rs. 3,50,000/-, Rs. 3,40,000/- has been directed in favour of complainant/opposite party no.2.

5. Feeling aggrieved by the judgment and order of the trial court dated 31.10.2018, the applicant filed a Criminal Appeal No. 72 of 2018, which is pending in the Court of Additional District and Sessions Judge, Court No. 05, Bijnor. During pendency of appeal, an application Kha-22 was moved by the applicant under Section 391 Cr.P.C. for getting the alleged signature of the applicant on the disputed chaque verified by hand writing expert on the ground that the cheque was alleged to have been issued by the applicant on 24.04.2015 whereas the cheque was not issued by the applicant nor it bears signature. During defence evidence, the applicant had moved applications B-25 and B-26 before the court below stating therein that the cheque of applicant was stolen for which an application was given to the bank concerned on 29.04.2015. Consequently, the application under Section 391 Cr.P.C. was rejected by the Additional District and Session Judge on the ground that earlier no such application was moved by the applicant before the trial court with respect to verification of the signature of the applicant on the disputed cheque, however, the applicant moved the applications B-25 and B-26 before the trial court regarding stolen cheque. During trial, applicant had enough time to verify his signature but the opportunity was not availed by the applicant and, therefore, no sufficient ground to invoke Section 391 Cr.P.C. arises. Consequently, application Kh-22 was rejected.

6. It has been contended by learned counsel for the applicant that learned Additional District and Session Judge, was not justified in rejecting the application under Section 391 Cr.P.C. specially when there was specific denial of the applicant that the cheque did not bear his signature and entire case was fabricated. The cheque was stolen and was misused, for which, an application was already moved by the applicant before the concerned bank. Therefore, the appellate court should have directed for sending the disputed cheque to hand writing expert for verification of signature on the cheque in question. It has further been contended by learned counsel for the applicant that appellate court committed error in not exercising jurisdiction under Section 391 Cr.P.C. in not permitting the applicant to verify his signature by hand writing expert, which has resulted in failure of justice.

7. Learned counsel for the applicant has relied upon the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of "Brig. Sukhjeet Singh (Retd.) MVC vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and others" reported in 2019 (3) Supreme 242 wherein the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as under:-

"11. In the present appeal, we are concerned only with the rejection of application filed by the appellant under Section 391 Cr.P.C. before the Session Judge in the criminal appeal filed by him against the conviction order, whether the Session Judge committed error in not exercising power under Section 391 Cr.P.C. to permit the appellant to lead additional evidence is a question to be answered. Whether the High Court committed error in not exercising power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. as to secure the ends of justice?

12. Chapter XXIX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 deals with "Appeals". Section 391 Cr.P.C. empowers the Appellate Court to take further evidence or direct it to be taken. Section 391 is as follows:-

"391. Appellate court may take further evidence or direct it to be taken.--

(1) In dealing with any appeal under this chapter, the Appellate Court, if it thinks additional evidence to be necessary, shall record its reasons and may either take such evidence itself, or direct it to be taken by a Magistrate, or when the Appellate Court is a High Court, by a Court of Session or a Magistrate. (2) When the additional evidence is taken by the Court of Session or the Magistrate, it or he shall certify such evidence to the Appellate Court, and such Court shall thereupon proceed to dispose of the appeal. (3) 7 of 13 The accused or his pleader shall have the right to be present when the additional evidence is taken. (4) The taking of evidence under this section shall be subject to the provisions of Chapter XXIII, as if it were an inquiry."

13. The key words in Section 391(1) are "if it thinks additional evidence to be necessary". The word "necessary" used in Section 391(1) is to mean necessary for deciding the appeal. The appeal has been filed by the accused, who have been convicted. The powers of Appellate Court are contained in Section 386. In an appeal from a conviction, an Appellate Court can exercise power under Section 386(b), which is to the following effect:-

(b) in an appeal from a conviction- (i) reverse the finding and sentence and acquit or discharge the accused, or order him to be re- tried by a Court of competent jurisdiction subordinate to such Appellate Court or committed for trial, or (ii) alter the finding, maintaining the sentence, or (iii) with or without altering the finding, alter the nature or the extent, or the nature and extent, of the sentence, but not so as to enhance the Same;

14. Power to take additional evidence under Section 391 is, thus, with an object to appropriately decide the appeal by the Appellate Court to secure ends of justice. The scope and ambit of

Section 391 Cr.P.C. has come up for consideration before this Court in Rajeswar Prasad Misra Vs. State of West Bengal and Another, AIR 1965 SC 1887. Justice Hidayatullah, speaking for the Bench held that a wide discretion is conferred on the Appellate Courts and the additional evidence may be necessary for a variety of reasons. He held that additional evidence must be necessary 8 of 13 not because it would be impossible to pronounce judgment but because there would be failure of justice without it. Following was laid down in Paragraph Nos. 8 and 9:-

"8. ..... Since a wide discretion is conferred on appellate courts, the limits of that courts' jurisdiction must obviously be dictated by the exigency of the situation and fair play and good sense appear to be the only safe guides. There is, no doubt, some analogy between the power to order a retrial and the power to take additional evidence. The former is an extreme step appropriately taken if additional evidence will not suffice. Both actions subsume failure of justice as a condition precedent. There the resemblance ends and it is hardly proper to construe one section with the aid of observations made by this Court in the interpretation of the other section. 9. Additional evidence may be necessary for a variety of reasons which it is hardly proper to construe one section with the aid of observations made to do what the legislature has refrained from doing, namely, to control discretion of the appellate court to certain stated circumstances. It may, however, be said that additional evidence must be necessary not because it would be impossible to pronounce judgment but because there would be failure of justice without it. The power must be exercised sparingly and only in suitable cases. Once such action is justified, there is no restriction on the kind of evidence which may 9 of 13 be received. It may be formal or substantial. It must, of course, not be received in such a way as to cause prejudice to the accused as for example it should not be received as a disguise for a retrial or to change the nature of the case against him. The order must not ordinarily be made if the prosecution has had a fair opportunity and has not availed of it unless the requirements of justice dictate otherwise..... ....."

15. This Court again in Rambhau and Another Vs. State of Maharashtra, (2001) 4 SCC 759 had noted the power under Section 391 Cr.P.C. of the Appellate Court. Following was stated in Paragraph Nos. 1 and 2:-

"1. There is available a very wide discretion in the matter of obtaining additional evidence in terms of Section 391 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. A plain look at the statutory provisions (Section 391) would reveal the same..... 2. A word of caution however, ought to be introduced for guidance, to wit: that this additional evidence cannot and ought not to be received in such a way so as to cause any prejudice to the accused. It is not a disguise for a retrial or to change the nature of the case against the accused. This Court in the case of Rajeswar Prasad Misra v. State of W.B. in no uncertain terms observed that the order must not ordinarily be made if the prosecution has had a fair opportunity and has not availed of it. This Court was candid enough to record however, that it is the concept of justice which ought to prevail and 10 of 13 in the event, the same dictates exercise of power as conferred by the Code, there ought not to be any hesitation in that regard."

16. From the law laid down by this Court as noted above, it is clear that there are no fetters on the power under Section 391 Cr.P.C. of the Appellate Court. All powers are conferred on the Court to secure ends of justice. The ultimate object of judicial administration is to secure ends of justice. Court exists for rendering justice to the people...." In the aforesaid judgment, the Hon'ble Supreme Court while discussing two grounds rejecting the application under Section 391 Cr.P.C. by the Court of Sessions and High Court held that neither the filing of an application for additional evidence at a belated stage is a ground to reject the same nor the delay in decision of the appeal is a ground to dismiss the same if the proposed additional evidence enables the Court to secure the ends of justice in achieving the object of judicial administration."

8. Learned counsel for the applicant has also relied upon the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of "Kalyani Baskar vs. M.S. Sampornam" reported in 2006 0 Supreme(SC) 1109.

9. Learned counsel for the applicant has, thus, contended that if the applicant is able to prove that his standards signature do not tally with the signature appended on the cheque in question, he can be acquitted and, therefore, the impugned order dated 12.12.2019, passed by the appellate court, dismissing the application of the applicnat filed under Section 391 Cr.P.C., be set aside.

10. Per contra, Mr. P.K. Shahi, learned A.G.A. for the State supported the impugned order and submitted that the cheque was issued by the applicant in connection with payment which was due from the applicant. During defence evidence, the applicant had ample opportunity to file an application for verifying his signature but he did not make any application before the trial court for comparison of his admitted signature with the disputed signature on the cheque in question and no such application was maintainable in the appellate court. It was also submitted that provisions of Section 391 Cr.P.C. will apply only in case of additional evidence, which came to light subsequently but the provision cannot be used to create additional evidence, which was not available to the trial court.

11. Before dealing with the arguments of learned counsel for the applicant, it would be useful to reproduce Section 391 of the Code of Criminal Procedure:-

"391. Appellate court may take further evidence or direct it to be taken.-

(1) In dealing with any appeal under this chapter, the Appellate Court, if it thinks additional evidence to be necessary, shall record its reasons and may either take such evidence itself, or direct it to be taken by a Magistrate, or when the Appellate Court is a High Court, by a Court of Session or a Magistrate.

(2) When the additional evidence is taken by the Court of Session or the Magistrate, it or he shall certify such evidence to the Appellate Court, and such Court shall thereupon proceed to dispose of the appeal.

(3) The accused or his pleader shall have the right to be present when the additional evidence is taken.

(4) The taking of evidence under this section shall be subject to the provisions of Chapter XXIII, as if it were an inquiry."

12. According to Section 391 (1) Cr.P.C., the appellate court is entitled to take additional evidence, only if it thinks, additional evidence to be necessary. The key words in Section 391(1) Cr.P.C. are 'if it thinks additional evidence to be necessary'. The word 'necessary' used in Section 391(1) Cr.P.C. is to mean necessary for deciding the appeal. However, it depends on facts of each and every case to come to a conclusion as to whether it is 'necessary' to take additional evidence or not.

13. In the facts and circumstances of the present case, the applicant did not want to file any additional evidence but wanted to create new evidence merely on the ground that the disputed cheque does not bear his signatures.

14. The judgment relied upon by learned counsel for the applicant, in the case of Brig. Sukhjeet Singh (supra) wherein the Apex Court has held that mere delay in filing the application is not a ground to reject the same if the proposed additional evidence allows the lower appellate Court to achieve the object of judicial administration and to secure the ends of justice. This decision is of no help of the applicant as the Appellate Court has not rejected the application under Section 391 Cr.P.C. on the ground of delay in filing the said application, whereas, the Appellate Court has rejected the same on the ground that during course of trial, the applicant did not move any application for verification of his signature, it means that, the applicant did not want to file any additional evidence but wanted to create new evidence merely on the ground that the disputed cheque does not bear his signatures.

15. The judgment relied upon by learned counsel for the applicant, in the case of Kalyani Baskar (supra) wherein the Apex Court has held that where the accused denies his or her signature on the cheque and moved an application under Section 243 Cr.P.C. for sending the cheque in question for expert opinion, the same should have been allowed. This decision is also of no help of the applicant as during trial before the court below, the applicant did not make any application under Section 243 Cr.P.C. for verification of signature by hand writing expert, though sufficient opportunity was granted by the trial court to the applicant to lead defence evidence. Had such an application been moved before the trial court and the same having been rejected, it was open to the applicant to make a prayer under Section 391 Cr.P.C. before the Appellate Court but since no such prayer was made by the applicant before the trial court, there was no occasion for moving such an application before the Sessions Judge.

16. Perusal of the record shows that during trial, the applicant moved an application before the trial court with respect to loss of cheque for which an application was moved by the applicant before the concerned bank on 01.04.2015. However, the cheque in question was dishonored with the endorsement "insufficient fund" and not with the endorsement "mismatch of signature". Thus, it is clear that signature on the cheque is of the applicant. In spite of that, if the applicant find that the cheque in question was not issued by him, he should have moved an application before the trial court for verification of his signature by hand writing expert. For the first time, the applicant claimed before the appellate court that the cheque did not bear his signature and disputed cheque be got examined by hand writing expert. The applicant had ample opportunity during trial to get his admitted signatures compared with the disputed signature on the cheque but despite sufficient opportunity being given by the trial court, no such prayer was made by him. Thus the application for getting the signatures verified by handwriting expert was simply moved with a view to delay the disposal of appeal and the application under Section 391 Cr.P.C. does not appear to be bonafide.

17. Having considered the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the applicant, learned A.G.A. and also perusing the record, I have come to the conclusion that application under Section 391 Cr.P.C. filed by the applicant before the Appellate court was not bonafide and was simply moved to create confusion and delay in disposal of appeal and the application has been rightly rejected by learned Additional District and Sessions Judge, Bijnor. Hence the prayer made in the present application is refused.

18. The present application lacks merit and is, accordingly, rejected.

(A) Criminal Law- Forum to file an appeal – legal controversy - referred to larger bench for opinion - Code of criminal procedure, 1973 - Section 482 Cr.P.C - appeal being the creation of statute - when the victim or when the victim is also a complainant chose to file an appeal against acquittal in a case instituted upon complaint, it would be under proviso to Section 372 CrPC read with 378 (4) & 378 (5) CrPC - Proviso to 372 CrPC gives right to the victim to file an appeal - Section 378 (4) & (5) CrPC provides procedure, limitation and forum to file an appeal in a case instituted upon complaint. (Para-40)

Complainant filed an application under section 138 of Negotiable Instruments Act before the court of Chief Judicial Magistrate - accused acquitted by the concerned Magistrate after dismissal of the complaint - Against the order of acquittal the complainant preferred an appeal, before the Sessions Court under section 372 Cr.P.C. - appeal dismissed by the sessions court – ground – not maintainable under section 372 Cr.P.C. - application under section 482 Cr.P.C. filed with a prayer to quash the order passed by the Additional District and Sessions Judge.
(Para-3,4)

HELD:- (a)The appeal by a 'victim' who is a complainant also against the order of acquittal in a criminal complaint case under 138 of Negotiable Instrument Act would lie to the High Court under proviso to Section 372 read with Sub-section (4) & (5) of Section 378 CrPC.
(Para - 41)

(b) Against the same judgment and order of acquittal in a complaint case, in a situation where victim and complainant both are different persons, appeal by a victim would lie under the proviso to 372 CrPC read with Section 378 (4) (5) CrPC only before the High Court.

(Para - 41)

(B) Statutory Interpretation - legislative intent of insertion of proviso to section 372 CrPC - victim, whether complainant or not, has right to file appeal against the acquittal in a case constituted upon complaint also - interpretation which promotes and advances the object and purpose of the enactment - object and purpose of insertion of proviso is to strengthen the give rights to victim - purposive interpretation to the enactment – not to result in anomalies, injustices or absurdities - Section 378 (4) and (5) CrPC, provides procedure to file appeal by complainant against acquittal in a case instituted upon the complaint .(Para-49,50,51)

HELD:- Upon conjoint reading, the sole interpretation is that, an appeal in both the situations have to be filed before one forum only as any other interpretation will lead into a situation of uncertainty and anomalies . The forum that is prescribed under section 378(4) CrPC is High Court to file appeal by the complainant, therefore considering the principles of statutory interpretation even victim has to file appeal against acquittal in a case constituted upon complaint, before High Court only. This will not only avoid uncertainty but will also serve the purpose of the enactment.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shashi Kant Gupta, J.)

1. The questions referred to this Bench for opinion are as follows:

(i) Whether against acquittal order in a criminal complaint case under Section 138 Negotiable Instruments Act, the victim, who is complainant also, may prefer appeal before the Sessions Judge taking recourse to the proviso to Section 372 Cr.P.C. or the said appeal shall lie before the High Court under the said provisions.

(ii) Whether against the same judgment and order of acquittal in a complaint case, in a situation when victim and complainant both are different persons, victim may file appeal under the proviso to Section 372 CrPC before the Sessions Judge or such appeal shall lie before the High Court ?

2. Since the learned Single Judge could not subscribe to the views expressed by the learned Single Judges of this Court in Criminal Misc. Application (Under Section 482 Cr.P.C) No. 5934 of 2012, Ashok Kumar Srivastava and others vs. State of UP and another, (decided on 30.03.2012) and Criminal Revision No. 3539 of 2015, Ved Prakash Yadav and 2 others Vs. State of UP and 2 others, (decided on 24.09.2015), referred the matter to a larger bench for resolving the conflict, the Chief Justice thereupon has referred the matter to us for our opinion.

3. Since the legal controversy raised in all the criminal Misc. Applications are similar, they are decided by a common order by treating the Criminal Misc. Application No. 3171 of 2016 (U/S 482 CrPC) Anil Kumar Agrawal Vs. State of UP as a leading case. For the purpose of deciding the matter, it would be appropriate to have a quick glance to the fact of the Criminal Misc. Application No. 3171 of 2016 (U/s 482 Cr.P.C) Anil Kumar Agarwal Vs. State of U. P. and another. The complainant therein had filed an application under section 138 of Negotiable Instruments Act before the the court of Chief Judicial Magistrate Jhansi. The accused were acquitted by the concerned Magistrate after dismissal of the complaint.

4. Against the order of acquittal the complainant preferred an appeal, being appeal no. 145 of 2013, Anil Kumar Agrawal Vs. Braj Bhushan Lahariya and another before the Sessions Court , Jhansi under section 372 Cr.P.C. The said appeal was dismissed by the sessions court, Jhansi as not maintainable under section 372 Cr.P.C. Hence, the application under section 482 Cr.P.C. was filed with a prayer to quash the order dated 16.11.2015 passed by the Additional District and Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court, Jhansi in Criminal Appeal No. 145 of 2013 (Anil Kumar Agarwal vs. Braj Bhushan Lahariya and another) .

5. Learned counsel for the applicant Sri Sushil Shukla has submitted that the victim or the complainant has been given unfettered right of appeal in terms of proviso to Section 372 Cr.P.C to challenge the acquittal of an accused by preferring an appeal before the Court of Session if the order of acquittal is passed by the Court of Magistrate or before the High Court if order of acquittal is passed by the Court of Session and for preferring such appeal there is no need to obtain leave/special leave from such Courts after insertion of the proviso to Section 372 Cr.P.C by Act 5 of 2009 w.e.f. 31.12.2009. He further submitted that appeal against the order of acquittal would lie to the Court to which an appeal ordinarily lies against the order of conviction of such Court irrespective of the fact whether the acquittal order is passed in a case instituted upon a complaint case or police report. While placing reliance upon the decision Malikarjun Kodagali (Dead) Represented through Legal Representatives Vs. State of Karnataka and others-(2019) 2 SCC 752, he has submitted that the victim for challenging the order of acquittal in an appeal need not to obtain leave of the Court and that his appeal has to be dealt as a regular appeal.

6. Per contra, learned Standing Counsel Mr. Syed Ali Murtaza appearing on behalf of the State has submitted that the complainant in a compliant case, who is a victim also is entitled to prefer appeal before the High Court against the order of acquittal whether it is passed by a Magistrate or Sessions Judge and appeal would lie again before the High Court even when the victim and complainant both are different persons in a case arising from the same judgment and order of acquittal in a complaint case.

7. Learned AGA in support of his contention has placed reliance upon the following decisions of the High Court as well as of the Apex Court:

i. Mallikarjun Kodagali (Dead) Represented Through Legal Representative Vs. State of Karnataka & others, (2019) 2 SCC 752

ii. Subhas Chand Vs. State Delhi Administration, (2013) 2 SCC 17

iii. M/s Tata Steel Ltd. Vs. M/s Atma Tube Products Ltd. & others, 2013 (1) ILR 719 (P&H)

iv. Damodar S. Prabhu Vs. Sayed Babalal H. 2010 CrLJ 2860,

v. Dharmveer Singh Tomar Vs. Ramraj Singh Tomar, 2011, Law Suit (MP) 55, vi. Top Notch Infotronix (I) Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Infosoft Systems & Ors, 2011 Law Suit (Bom) 711.

8. Before we proceed further, it would be relevant to note certain provisions of CrPC, which are relevant for our purpose, to address the questions. The word 'complaint' and the word 'victim' have been defined by clauses (d) and (wa) of Section 2 of CrPC, which read as under :

"(d) "complaint" means any allegation made orally or in writing to a Magistrate, with a view to his taking action under this Code, that some person, whether known or unknown, has committed an offence, but does not include a police report.

Explanation.- A report made by a police officer in a case which discloses, after investigation, the commission of a non-cognizable offence shall be deemed to be a complaint; and the police officer by whom such report is made shall be deemed to be the complainant; (wa) "victim" means a person who has suffered any loss or injury caused by reason of the act or omission for which the accused person has been charged and the expression "victim" includes his or her guardian or legal heir".

9. We are referring to above definitions, 'complainant and victim' as they are referred to in Section 372 and Section 378 of CrPC respectively around which the whole web of arguments has been woven by learned counsel for the parties. Chapter XXIX CrPC deals with appeal. The heading of section 372 CrPC is "No appeal to lie unless otherwise provided". Unamended Section 372 CrPC prior to 31.12.2009 stood as follows:

"372. No appeal to lie unless otherwise provided.- No appeal shall lie from any judgment or order of a Criminal Court except as provided for by this Code by any other law for the time being in force:

10. Section 372 CrPC was amended by Act 5 of 2009 with effect from 31.12.2009, whereby a proviso was added. It would be advantageous at this stage to reproduce the amended Section 372 CrPC, which reads as under:

"372. No appeal to lie unless otherwise provided.- No appeal shall lie from any judgment or order of a Criminal Court except as provided for by this Code or by any other law for the time being in force:

Provided that the victim shall have a right to prefer an appeal against any order passed by the Court acquitting the accused or convicting for a lesser offence or imposing inadequate compensation, and such appeal shall lie to the Court to which an appeal ordinarily lies against the order of conviction of such Court."

11. A bare reading of the proviso inserted to Section 372 CrPC, it is evident that there are following three circumstances in which the victim shall have the right to prefer an appeal against any order:

(a) acquitting the accused;
(b) convicting for lesser offence;
(c) imposing inadequate compensation.

12. Similarly, we are also concerned with Section 378, which provides for appeal in case of acquittal. The provisions contained in Section 378, read as follows:

"378. Appeal in case of acquittal. - (1) Save as otherwise provided in sub-section (2), and subject to the provisions of sub- sections (3) and (5), -

(a) the District Magistrate may, in any case, direct the Public Prosecutor to present an appeal to the Court of Session from an order of acquittal passed by a Magistrate in respect of a cognizable and non-bailable offence;

(b) the State Government may, in any case, direct the Public Prosecutor to present an appeal to the High Court from an original or appellate order of an acquittal passed by any Court other than a High Court [not being an order under clause (a)] or an order of acquittal passed by the Court of Session in revision.

(2) If such an order of acquittal is passed in any case in which the offence has been investigated by the Delhi Special Police Establishment constituted under the Delhi Special Police Establishment Act, 1946 (25 of 1946) or by any other agency empowered to make investigation into an offence under any Central Act other than this Code, the Central Government may, subject to the provisions of sub-section (3), also direct the Public Prosecutor to present an appeal-

(a) to the Court of Session, from an order of acquittal passed by a Magistrate in respect of a cognizable and non-bailable offence;

(b) to the High Court from an original or appellate order of an acquittal passed by any Court other than a High Court [not being an order under clause (a)] or an order of acquittal passed by the Court of Session in revision.

(3) No appeal to the High Court under sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) shall be entertained except with the leave of the High Court.

4. If such an order of acquittal is passed in any case instituted upon complaint and the High Court, on an application made to it by the complainant in this behalf, grants special leave to appeal from the order of acquittal, the complainant may present such an appeal to the High Court.

(5) No application under sub-section (4) for the grant of special leave to appeal from an order of acquittal shall be entertained by the High Court after the expiry of six months, where the complainant is a public servant, and sixty days in every other case, computed from the date of that order of acquittal.

(6) If in any case, the application under sub-section (4) for the grant of special leave to appeal from an order of acquittal is refused, no appeal from that order of acquittal shall lie under sub-section (1) or under sub- section (2)."

13. Prior to the amendment in section 372 Cr.P.C. there was no specific provision for the victim. By way of amendment in section 372 Cr.P.C. the proviso was added to enable the victim to file a statutory appeal against any order passed by the court acquitting or convicting the accused for a lesser offence or imposing inadequate compensations and further providing that that such appeal shall lie to the court to which an appeal ordinarily lies against the order of conviction of such court.

14. At this stage, it would also be appropriate to refer to the statements and reasons to achieve the objectives for whichthe amendment of Codeof Criminal Procedure by Act No.5 of 2009 was enforced. It reads as follows:

"(1) The Law Commission has undertaken a comprehensive review of the Codeof Criminal Procedure in its 154th report and its recommendations have been found very appropriate, particularly those relating to provisions concerning arrest, custody, and remand, procedure for summons and warrant-cases, compounding of offences, victimology, special protection in respect of women and injury and trial of persons of unsound mind. Also, as per the Law Commission's 177th report relating to arrest, it has been found necessary to revise the law to maintain a balance between the liberty of the citizens and the society's interest in maintenance of peace as well as law and order.

(2) The need has also been felt to include measures for preventing the growing tendency of witnesses being induced or threatened to turn hostile by the accused parties who are influential, rich and powerful. At present, the victims are the worst sufferers in a crime and they don't have much role in the Court proceedings. They need to be given certain rights and compensation, so that there is no distortion of the criminal justice system. The application of technology in investigation, inquiry and trial is expected to reduce delays, help in gathering credible evidences, minimize the risk of escape of the remand prisoners during transit and also facilitate utilization of police personnel for other duties. There is an urgent need to provide relief to women, particularly victims of sexual offences, and provide fair-trial to persons of unsound mind who are not able to defend themselves. To expedite the trial of minor offences, definition of warrant-case and summons-case are to be changed so that more cases can be disposed of in a summary manner."

15. While creating a substantive right to the victim to prefer an appeal against an order passed by the Court acquitting the accused or convicting for a lessor offence or imposing inadequate compensation, no limitation was provided under Section 372 CrPC.

16. Full Bench of this court in the case of Mast Ram Tiwari Vs. State of U.P. and others passed in Criminal Misc. Application u/s 372 Cr.P.C. (Leave to Appeal) No. 351 of 2017 decided on 19.1.2018 held that the limitation for preferring an appeal against the order of acquittal by the victim would be 90 days in all cases other than the cases instituted upon complaint, and six months where the complainant is Public Servant and 60 days in every other case instituted upon complaint against the order of acquittal after the High Court grants special leave to appeal. Meaning thereby the aforesaid Full Bench of this Court in Mast Ram Tiwari (supra) acknowledged the fact that an appeal filed against the order of acquittal by the victim instituted upon complaint would be maintainable before the high court subject to limitation as provided under the said section 378(5) Cr.P.C.

17. The word 'victim' as defined under Section 2(wa) does not make any distinction between the victim in a complaint case and the victim in a police case (State prosecution) and if, for taking recourse to proviso to Section 372, the victim in a complaint case opts to file appeal against the order of acquittal, he would be governed by sub-section (5) of Section 378 CrPC. Section 378, does not use the word 'victim'. Sub-sections (4) and (5) of Section 378 thereof, deal with a right of appeal against the order of acquittal in any case instituted upon complaint on behalf of the complainant and, that too, on an application made to the High Court seeking special leave to appeal and once the leave is granted, the complainant can present the appeal to the High Court.

18. It may be noted that the Code of Criminal Procedure when originally enacted in the year 1861 did not provide for any right to appeal against acquittal to anyone including the State. It was in the Code of Criminal Procedure of 1898 that Section 417 was inserted enabling the Government to direct the Public Prosecutor to present an appeal to the High Court from an original or appellate order of acquittal passed by any Court other than a High Court. The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 came into being on January 25, 1974 repealing the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898. The recommendations made by the Law Commission of India, referred to above, was more or less adopted by the Parliament when it imposed a restriction in sub-Section (3) to Section 378 against entertainment of an appeal against acquittal "except with the leave of the High Court". Sub- section (4) of Section 378 retained the condition of maintainability of an appeal at the instance of a complainant against an order of acquittal passed in a complaint-case only if special leave to appeal was granted by the High Court.

19. The only significant amendment brought into force was in Section 378 whereby the appeals against acquittal in certain cases are now maintainable in the Court of Session without any leave to appeal to check arbitrary exercise of power and to curb reckless acquittal. Amending Act 5 of 2009 came into force conferring the 'right to a victim and further adding a new Section 2(wa) which defines "victim". The concept of 'Victim Compensation Scheme' has also been brought on the Statute Book by the same Amendment Act through a newly-added Section 357A which inter alia provides that "every State Government in co-ordination with the Central Government shall prepare a scheme for providing funds for the purpose of compensation to them victim or his dependents who have suffered loss or injury as a result of the crime and who, require rehabilitation".

20. The principal controversy before us is whether against acquittal order in a criminal complaint case under Section 138

Negotiable Instruments Act, the victim, who is a complainant also, may prefer appeal against the order passed by the Magistrate before the Sessions Judge taking recourse to the proviso to Section 372 Cr.P.C. or the said appeal shall lie before the High Court under the said provisions and secondly whether against the same judgment and order of acquittal in a complaint case, in a situation when victim and complainant both are different persons, victim may file appeal under the proviso to Section 372 CrPC before the Sessions Judge or such appeal shall lie before the High Court ?

21. The Full Bench of this Court in the case of Manoj Kumar Singh Vs. State of U.P. & 3 Others in Criminal Misc. Application Defective U/s 372 CrPC (Leave to Appeal) No. 67 of 2013 while referring to the definition of Section 2 (wa) of Cr.P.C has held that the victim means the actual sufferer of offence (receiver of harm caused by the alleged offence) and no person other than actual receiver of harm can be treated as victim of offence, so as to provide him /her right to prefer appeal under the proviso of section 372, though, in his or her absence or disability, his "legal heir" or "guardian" would qualify as victim and have a right to appeal. A person who claims himself to be 'guardian' or 'legal heir' of actual victim (direct sufferer), would be able to maintain appeal provided he establishes his claim as such before the court in his application by disclosing his particulars; relationship with the direct sufferer; and the grounds on which such claim of being "legal heir" or "guardian" is based. It was further held that the expression "Legal Heir" has to be understood in its ordinary or natural sense. That is if any person is able to establish his status as "heir" recognized by law, he can be termed as "Legal Heir" and the preferences/restrictions / categories provided under any statute / personal law governing succession/ inheritance will have no consequence. It was further held that the word "Guardian" includes a Judicial Guardian (appointed by law), a legal Guardian, a Natural Guardian.

22. It may be noted that the Legislature has prescribed different conditions for the maintainability of appeal against order of acquittal passed in a 'police-case' vis-à-vis a 'complaint-case' i.e. a case instituted upon a private complaint. No appeal against acquittal in a complaint-case is maintainable to the Court of Session and for an appeal to High Court, the State or Central Government are required to obtain 'leave' of the High Court as mandated by Section 378(3) and if such an appeal is presented by the complainant, he/she is required to seek 'special leave' of the High Court under Section 378(4) of the Code.

23. In this context, it is notable to refer to the decision of the Apex Court in the case of Subhash Chand Vs. State (Delhi Administration)- (2013) 2 SCC 17 wherein it has been held that Sub-Section (4) of Section 378 makes provision for appeal against an order of acquittal passed in case instituted upon complaint. It states that in such case if the complainant makes an application to the High Court and the High Court grants special leave to appeal, the complainant may present such an appeal to the High Court. This sub-section speaks of "special leave' as against sub-section (3) relating to other appeals which speaks of "leave'. Thus, complainant's appeal against an order of acquittal is a category by itself. The complainant could be a private person or a public servant. This is evident from sub-section (5) which refers to application filed for "special leave' by the complainant. It grants six months period of limitation to a complainant who is a public servant and sixty days in every other case for filing application. Sub-Section (6) is important. It states that if in any case complainant's application for "special leave' under sub-Section (4) is refused no appeal from order of acquittal shall lie under sub-section (1) or under sub-section (2). Thus, if "special leave' is not granted to the complainant to appeal against an order of acquittal the matter must end there. Neither the District Magistrate not the State Government can appeal against that order of acquittal.

24. The question arose before the Full Bench of High Court of Punjab and Haryana in the case of M/s Tata Steel Ltd Vs. M/S Atma Tube Products Ltd (Supra) that What will happen if the 'victim' in a complaint-case is different from the 'complainant' or where such 'victim' cannot otherwise be a 'complainant' due to statutory embargo against the filing of the complaint by some one other than the designated authority of State? Would he/she be entitled to file an appeal under proviso to Section 372 Cr.P.C and it was held by the Full Bench of the said Court interalia as follows:-

(i) the 'complainant' in a complaint-case who is a 'victim' also, shall continue to avail the remedy of appeal against acquittal under Section 378(4) only except where he/she succeeds in establishing the guilt of an accused but is aggrieved at the conviction for a lesser offence or imposition of an inadequate compensation, for which he/she shall be entitled to avail the remedy of appeal under proviso to Section 372;

(ii) the 'victim', who is not the complainant in a private complaint-case, is not entitled to prefer appeal against acquittal under proviso to Section 372 and his/her right to appeal, if any, continues to be governed by the un- amended provisions read with Section 378 (4) of the Code;

(iii) the Legislature has given no separate entity to a 'victim' in the complaint-case filed by a public servant under a special Statute and the appeal against acquittal in such a case can also be availed by the 'complainant' of that case under Section 378(4) of the Code only.

(iv) those 'victims' of complaint-cases whose right to appeal have been recognized under proviso to Section 372, are not required to seek 'leave' or 'special leave' to appeal from the High Court in the manner contemplated under Section 378(3) & (4), for the Legislature while enacting proviso to Section 372 has prescribed no such fetter nor has it applied the same language used for appeals against acquittals while enacting sub-Section (3) & (4) of Section 378 of the Code.

25. Thus, the Full Bench of the Punjab and Haryana High Court in the case M/S Tata Steels Ltd. (Supra) has categorically held that the complaint in a complaint case who is a victim shall continue to avail the remedy of appeal against acquittal order under Section 378 (4) and when the 'victim' who is not the complainant in a private complaint-case, is not entitled to prefer appeal against acquittal under proviso to Section 372 and his/her right to appeal, if any, continues to be governed by the un- amended provisions read with Section 378 (4) of the Code. However, if the appeal is being filed by the victim in his own right or where the complainant is also a victim, he or she is not required to take leave to appeal or special leave to appeal under Section 378(3)(4) of the Code. The decision of Full Bench of Punjab and Haryana High Court in Tata Steel Ltd. (supra) with regard to taking special leave to appeal or leave to appeal under Section 378(3)(4) of the Code has been affirmed by the Apex Court in the case of Malikarjun Kodagali (Supra) wherein it has been held in paragraph 93 of the judgment that the right(s) of a "victim' under the amended Code are substantive and not mere brutam fulmen hence these are not accessory or auxiliary to those of the State and are totally incomparable as both the sets of rights or duties operate in different and their respective fields. It was further held that a "victim' is not obligated to seek "leave' or "special leave' of the High Court for presentation of appeal under proviso to Section 372 of the Code."

26. It may be worthwhile to note that the Full Bench of the Punjab and Haryana High Court in the case of M/S Tata Steel Ltd. (Supra) has further held that where a 'victim' is competent to institute a private complaint but permits or consents expressly or implicitly to the filing of such complaint by his family-members, near and dears or an acquaintance, the 'victim' and 'complainant' in such a case cannot be seen differently and would be inseparable, hence the 'victim' will also fall back on Section 378(4) only which specifically refers to filing of appeals against acquittal at the instance of complainant and not under proviso to Section 372 of the Code which has been pre-dominantly incorporated to provide right to appeal to the 'victims' in police-case who are not permitted to participate or have any say during trial. For ready reference Para 81 of the judgment rendered in the Tata Steel Ltd.'s case (supra) is quoted hereinbelow :

"What will happen if the 'victim' in a complaint-case is different from the 'complainant' or where such 'victim' cannot otherwise be a 'complainant' due to statutory embargo against the filing of the complaint by some one other than the designated authority of State? Would he/she be entitled to file an appeal under proviso to Section 372 or should he/she be clubbed together with the complainant underSection 378(4) of the Code? We are of the view that the 'victim' in complaint-cases cannot have a remedy superior to that of the complainant of such case and since the Apex Court in the latest decision in Subhash Chand's case (supra) has held that the complainant's remedy, whether he is a private person or a public servant, to question the acquittal lies only inSection 378(4) of the Code, hence the 'victim' will also have to be relegated to that conditional remedy only. Similarly, where a 'victim' is competent to institute a private complaint but permits or consents expressly or implicitly to the filing of such complaint by his family-members, near and dears or an acquaintance, the 'victim' and 'complainant' in such a case cannot be seen differently and would be inseparable, hence the 'victim' will also fall back onSection 378(4) only which specifically refers to filing of appeals against acquittal at the instance of complainant and not under proviso toSection 372 of the Code which has been pre-dominantly incorporated to provide right to appeal to the 'victims' in police-case who are not permitted to participate or have any say during trial."

27. At this stage, it would also be apposite to refer to the decision of the three Judges Bench of the Apex Court in the case of Mallikarjun Kodagali (Supra). In the aforesaid case, the basic question arose before the Apex Court that whether the appeal filed by the appellant before the High Court under the proviso to Section 372 CrPC was maintainable or not against the order dated 28.10.2013 passed by the District and Sessions Judge, Bagalkot (Karnataka) acquitting the accused by a judgment wherein the alleged offence was committed prior to 31.12.2009 i.e. 06.02.2009 although the judgment was passed after 31.12.2009 i.e. on 28.10.2013. The Apex Court held that right to appeal is available even if alleged offence took place prior to 31.12.2009 (Act 5 of 2009 was enacted) but the order of acquittal was passed by Trial Court after 31.12.2009. The Apex Court for the reasons mentioned in the judgment allowed the appeals setting aside the judgment passed by the High Court holding that the victim as defined in Section 2(wa) of the Cr.P.C. would be entitled to file an appeal before the Court to which an appeal ordinarily lies against the order of conviction, as such, the appeal filed by Kodagali was found maintainable. Facts of the aforementioned case (Mallikarjun) clearly indicates that judgment was passed therein by the Sessions Judge in a case instituted upon a Police Report and not upon complaint. Thus, the Apex Court was dealing with a situation as to whether right of appeal is available if the alleged offence was committed prior to 31.12.2009 (before enactment of Act 5 of 2019) but the judgement was passed by the Sessions Judge after 31.12.2009.

28. A close look to para 76 of the judgment in the case of Mallikarjun Kodagali (supra) would reveal that the apex court in the said para was engaged in a controversy as to whether the 'victim' as defined in Section 2 (wa) CrPC was required leave to appeal for preferring appeal against the order of acquittal. It was further observed by the Apex Court in paragraph 76 of aforementioned case Mallikarjun Kodagali (supra) that the language of the proviso to Section 372 CrPC is quite clear particularly when it is contrasted with the language of Section 378(4) CrPC, which confines to an order of acquittal passed in a case instituted upon a complaint, and the word "complaint' has been defined in Section 2(d) of the Cr.P.C. and refers to any allegation made orally or in writing to a Magistrate and this has nothing to do with the lodging or the registration of an FIR, and therefore, according to the Apex Court, it is not at all necessary to consider the effect of a victim being the complainant as far as the proviso to Section 372 of the Cr.P.C. is concerned. Thus, the Apex Court was also of the opinion that Section 378(4) CrPC deals with the appeal arising against the acquittal in any case instituted upon the complaint. It has nothing to do with the case arising out of the police report. For ready reference para 76 of Mallikarjun Kodagali (Supra) is quoted here under:

"76. As far as the question of the grant of special leave is concerned, once again, we need not be overwhelmed by submissions made at the Bar. The language of the proviso to Section 372 of the Cr.P.C. is quite clear, particularly when it is contrasted with the language of Section 378(4) of the Cr.P.C. The text of this provision is quite clear and it is confined to an order of acquittal passed in a case instituted upon a complaint. The word ''complaint' has been defined in Section 2(d) of the Cr.P.C. and refers to any allegation made orally or in writing to a Magistrate. This has nothing to do with the lodging or the registration of an FIR, and therefore it is not at all necessary to consider the effect of a victim being the complainant as far as the proviso to Section 372 of the Cr.P.C. is concerned."

29. Section 378(4) & 378(5) specifically provides remedy to the complainant to file an appeal against the acquittal in any case instituted upon complaint. Section 378(4)(5) Cr.PC provides the forum to file an appeal, period of limitation and leave to appeal.

30. Before amendment in 372 CrPC there was no provision for the victim to file an appeal against acquittal either in a police case, or complaint case. However, proviso to 372 Cr.P.C gives substantive right to the victim to file appeal without leave to appeal. Section 378(1) (2) & (3) CrPC has been predominantly incorporated to deal with the appeal against acquittal arising out of police case.

31. The Full Bench of this Court in the case of Mast Ram Tiwari Vs. State of UP (Supra) has held that the word 'victim' as defined under Section 2(wa) does not make any distinction between the victim in a complaint case and the victim in a police case (State prosecution) and if, for taking recourse to proviso to Section 372, if the victim in a complaint case opts to file appeal against the order of acquittal, he would be governed by sub-section (5) insofar as the limitation is concerned. In other words, a limitation for filing an appeal by the victim in a complaint case against the order of acquittal would be 60 days as provided for under sub-section (5) by seeking leave to appeal from the High Court.

32. The apex court in Subhash Chand Vs. State (Delhi Admn.) (supra) has held that once it is a case instituted on a complaint and an order of acquittal is passed, whether the offence is bailable or non-bailable, cognizable or non-cognizable, the complainant can file an application under Section 378 (4) for special leave to appeal against it in the High Court. So far as the State is concerned, as per Section 378 (1) (b), it can in any case, that is even in a case instituted on a complaint, direct the Public Prosecutor to file an appeal to the High Court from an original or appellate order of acquittal passed by any court other than High Court. The apex court in the aforesaid case Subhash Chand finally concluded at paragraph 23 of the judgment that a complainant can file an application for special leave to appeal against an order of acquittal of any kind only to the High Court. He cannot file such appeal in the Sessions Court. For ready reference para 20 of the judgment in Subhash Chand (supra) is quoted hereinbelow :-

"Since the words ''police report' are dropped from Section 378(1) (a) despite the Law Commission's recommendation, it is not necessary to dwell on it. A police report is defined under Section 2(r) of the Code to mean a report forwarded by a police officer to a Magistrate under sub-section (2) of Section 173 of the Code. It is a culmination of investigation by the police into an offence after receiving information of a cognizable or a non-cognizable offence. Section 2(d) defines a complaint to mean any allegation made orally or in writing to a Magistrate with a view to his taking action under the Code, that some person, whether known or unknown has committed an offence, but does not include a police report. Explanation to Section 2(d) states that a report made by a police officer in a case which discloses after investigation, the commission of a non- cognizable offence shall be deemed to be a complaint, and the police officer by whom such report is made shall be deemed to be the complainant. Sometimes investigation into cognizable offence conducted under Section 154 of the Code may culminate into a complaint case (cases under the Drugs & Cosmetics Act, 1940). Under the PFA Act, cases are instituted on filing of a complaint before the Court of Metropolitan Magistrate as specified in Section 20 of the PFA Act and offences under the PFA Act are both cognizable and non-cognizable. Thus, whether a case is a case instituted on a complaint depends on the legal provisions relating to the offence involved therein. But once it is a case instituted on a complaint and an order of acquittal is passed, whether the offence be bailable or non- bailable, cognizable or non-cognizable, the complainant can file an application under Section 378(4) for special leave to appeal against it in the High Court. Section 378(4) places no restriction on the complainant. So far as the State is concerned, as per Section 378(1)(b), it can in any case, that is even in a case instituted on a complaint, direct the Public Prosecutor to file an appeal to the High Court from an original or appellate order of acquittal passed by any court other than High Court. But there is, as stated by us hereinabove, an important inbuilt and categorical restriction on the State's power. It cannot direct the Public Prosecutor to present an appeal from an order of acquittal passed by a Magistrate in respect of a cognizable and non-cognizable offence. In such a case the District Magistrate may under Section 378(1)(a) direct the Public Prosecutor to file an appeal to the Session Court. This appears to be the right approach and correct interpretation of Section 378 of the Code."

33. Section 378 (4) (5) CrPC specifically provides for an appeal against the acquittal in any case instituted upon complaint. Therefore, as corollary thereto, it can be safely inferred that dichotomy has been created by the legislature with respect to appeals against acquittal in any case instituted on police report/case and appeals against acquittal in any case instituted upon complaint. Section 372 does not provide mode or procedure or limitation. It is merely an enabling provision conferring right to the victim to file an appeal against the orders detailed in the proviso to Section 372 CrPC. If the appeal is filed against acquittal in a case instituted upon 'police case/report', the victim for lesser offence or imposing adequate compensation, then such appeal shall lie to the Court to which an appeal ordinarily lies against the order of conviction of such count. Meaning thereby that in a police case if the acquittal order is passed by the Magistrate then the appeal would lie before the Sessions Judge and in case order of acquittal is passed by the Sessions Judge in its original jurisdiction or as a appellate court, then the appeal would lie before the High Court but if the order of acquittal is passed in any case instituted upon complainant then the appeal on behalf of the victim as well as the complainant of the case would lie only and only before the High Court under Section 378 (4)(5) CrPC. Proviso to Section 372 is only a enabling provision conferring right on the victim to file an appeal but if the appeal is filed against the acquittal in a complaint case then the procedure and conditions as provided under Section 378 (4)(5) CrPC would be applicable. Meaning thereby that the appeal would be only in High Court against the order of Magistrate as well as Sessions Court acquitting the accused in a complaint case. However, in view of the decision in the case of Tata Steel Ltd. (supra) and Mallikarjun Kodagali (supra) victim or when victim is a complainant also would not require to seek special leave or leave to appeal from an order of acquittal in a complaint case

34. The interpretation of the Proviso to Section 372 CrPC was also considered by the Full Bench of the Gujarat High Court in the case of Bhavuben Dineshbhai Makwana Vs. State of Gujarat, 2013 Cri LJ 4225 where one of the questions framed for consideration in the case was as follows :-

"(iii) If the victim prefers an appeal before this Court, challenging the acquittal, invoking his right under proviso to Sec. 372 of Cr.P.C., whether that appellant is required to first seek leave of the Court, as is required in case of appeal being preferred by the State?"

35. The aforesaid question was answered in the following words by the Full Bench of Gujarat High Court in the case of Bhavuben Dineshbhai Makwana (supra):-

"36. If the victim also happens to be the complainant and the appeal is against acquittal, he is required to take leave as provided in Sec. 378 of the Criminal Procedure Code but if he is not the complainant, he is not required to apply for or obtain any leave. For the appeal against inadequacy of compensation or punishment on a lesser offence, no leave is necessary at the instance of a victim, whether he is the complainant or not."

36. The decision in the case of Bhavuben Dineshbhai Makwana came into consideration before the Apex Court in the case of Mallikarjun Kodagali (supra). The apex court in paragraph 35 of the judgment while referring to the aforesaid decision of the Full Bench of the High Court of Gujarat has held as follows : -

"In our opinion, the Gujarat High Court made an artificial and unnecessary distinction between a victim as a victim and a victim as a complainant in respect of filing an appeal against an order of acquittal. The proviso to Section 372 of the Cr.P.C. does not introduce or incorporate any such distinction."

37. Thus, the apex court was of the opinion that the Full Bench of the Gujarat High Court made an artificial and unnecessary distinction between a victim as a victim and a victim as a complainant in respect of filing an appeal against the order of acquittal under Section 372 CrPC.

38. The learned Single Judge while referring the matter to the larger Bench has very rightly observed that in Ashok Kumar Srivastava's case (supra), the learned Single Judge has not dealt with the Situation/contingency which may arise if the victim and complainant both are different persons and the victim prefers to file an appeal against the acquittal before the Sessions Judge taking recourse to the proviso to Section 372 CrPC and the complainant being different person files an application for leave before the High Court for filing appeal under Section 378 (4) CrPC against the same judgment and order. In other words, if the leave is granted to the complainant by the High Court to file an appeal under Section 378 (4) CrPC and the appeal is admitted and the criminal appeal preferred by the victim before the Sessions Judge against the order of acquittal in a case instituted on a complaint is also admitted, there is further chance of conflict of opinion against the same judgment and order of acquittal. If the law laid down by the Single Judge of this Court in Ashok Kumar Srivastava's case (supra) and Ved Prakash Yadav (supra) is sustained, it would lead to absurdity and inconsistency. It will be seen that neither this aspect has been considered in the said judgment nor any solution in this regard has been given.

39. It is significant to note that proviso to 372 CrPC, inter alia, provides that appeal filed by the victim shall lie to the Court to which an appeal ordinarily lies against the order of conviction of such Court, however, under Section 378 (4) & (5), the legislature confers right to the complainant to file an appeal against the order of acquittal in a case instituted upon complaint before the High Court. Thus, anomaly has been apparently created with respect to forum to which appeal on behalf of the victim and complainant would lie against the order of acquittal in a case instituted upon complaint. In cases, where the language used in a statue is capable of bearing more than one construction, the court in its attempt to find out the true meaning shall have due regard to the consequences of alternative constructions so as to avoid the resultant hardship, serious inconvenience, injustice, absurdity, inconsistency or straight clash between two sections of the same act. In that situation, rule of harmonious construction may be applied so that aim and object of the legislature inserting new provisions can be achieved harmonizing both the provisions in order to avoid any absurdity and inconsistency. In this context it would be useful to refer to the observation by the Full Bench of the Calcutta High Court in the case of Tata Steel Ltd. (supra) that the proviso to Section 378 of the Code has been pre-dominantly incorporated to provide right to appeal to the victim in a 'police case' who are not permitted to participate or have any say during trial. Proviso to Section 372 CrPC does not speak about the 'complaint case' or 'police case'/report. In case, proviso to Section 372 and Section 378 (4) & (5) are harmonized in order to give true meaning and intention of the legislature, it can be safely be held that under the proviso to Section 372 appeal against acquittal in a case instituted on police report/state prosecution shall lie to the Court to which an appeal ordinarily lies against the order of conviction of such Court. The aforesaid interpretation is consonance with the scheme of the Chapter XXIX of CrPC dealing with the Criminal Appeal and would give effect to both the provision i.e. Section 372 and Section 378 (4) (5) CrPC. It will result in harmonizing the two provisions.

40. The appeal by the victim against the order of acquittal in any case instituted on the complaint requires to be dealt with in the same manner as appeal filed by the complainant. Section 378 (4) & (5) CrPC is required to be read with the Section 372 CrPC when the appeal is filed by the victim. However, the victim or when the victim is a complainant also, would not require to seek leave or special leave to appeal. Chapter XXIX of the CrPC deals with appeals. Proviso to Section 372 CrPC cannot be read into isolation. It does not lay down the procedure as to how and in what manner and within what time, the appeal has to be filed. The appeal being the creation of statute, it is also necessary to prescribe the limitation and procedure for filing an appeal, therefore, when the victim or when the victim is also a complainant chose to file an appeal against acquittal in a case instituted upon complaint, it would be under proviso to Section 372 CrPC read with 378 (4) & 378 (5) CrPC. Proviso to 372 CrPC gives right to the victim to file an appeal and Section 378 (4) & (5) provides procedure, limitation and forum to file an appeal in a case instituted upon complaint.

41. Thus, in view of the aforesaid discussion, our answers to the questions referred to us are as follows :-

(a). We are of the firm opinion that the appeal by a 'victim' who is a complainant also against the order of acquittal in a criminal complaint case under 138 of Negotiable Instrument Act would lie to the High Court under proviso to Section 372 read with Sub-section (4) & (5) of Section 378 CrPC.

(b). Against the same judgment and order of acquittal in a complaint case, in a situation where victim and complainant both are different persons, appeal by a victim would lie under the proviso to 372 CrPC read with Section 378 (4) (5) CrPC only before the High Court.

42. The reference is answered accordingly.

Per- Hon'ble Saurabh Shyam Shamshery, J. :- (concurring)

43. I have privilege of going through well-reasoned and eloquently written judgment by my brother Justice Shashi Kant Gupta. I am in agreement with reasoning and conclusion arrived at by my Learned brother. In my supplementary judgment, I am dealing with the issue of statutory interpretation only.

44. In the present reference, submissions on behalf of applicants is that the proviso to section 372 CrPC shall also give right to a "victim' irrespective of the fact that whether he is a complainant or not, to prefer an appeal against acquittal of the accused, even in a case arising out of a complaint also. Such appeal shall lie to the court before which an appeal ordinarily lies against the order of conviction of such Court. Further submission is that, such appeal shall lie without special leave to appeal.

45. Countering the submissions, counsel for the State has submitted that any interpretation which may lead to provide two different forum of appeal on the basis of appellant being "victim' (whether complainant or not) or being complainant (who is not a victim), before the court to which an appeal ordinarily lies against the order of conviction of such Court under the proviso to section 372 CrPC as well as before the High Court with special leave to appeal under section 378 (4) and (5) CrPC respectively in case of filling appeal against the order of acquittal in any case instituted upon complaint, will only lead to a situation of uncertainty, anomalies, injustice and absurdities. Further submission is that this Court has to give such interpretation to proviso of section 372 and section 378 (4) and (5) CrPC, which is not only harmonious and purposive but also advances the purpose and object of the enactment.

46. Jurisprudence of statutory interpretation has moved from literal interpretation to purposive interpretation, which advances the purpose and object of a legislation. The Supreme Court in catena of judgments has dealt with the issue of literal interpretation vis-a-vis purposive interpretation. Following references to this respect from the Supreme Court are some of them. :-

(I) The Apex Court in The Central India Spinning and Weaving Manufacturing Comp. versus The Municipal Committee, Wardha); AIR 1958 SC 341 has held that :-

"It is also a recognised principle of construction that general words and phrases however wide and comprehensive they may be in their literal sense must usually be construed as being limited to the actual objects of the Act."

(II) The Apex Court in Girdhari Lal & Sons versus Balbir Nath Mathur); 1986(2) SCC 237 has held that :-

"9. So we see that the primary and foremost task of a Court in interpreting a statute is to ascertain the intention of the legislature, actual or imputed. Having ascertained the intention, the Court must then strive to so interpret the statute as to promote and advance the object and purpose of the enactment. For this purpose, where necessary the Court may even depart from the rule that plain words should be interpreted according to their plain meaning. There need no meek and mute submission to the plainness of the language. To avoid patent injustice, anomly or absurdity or to avoid invalidation of a law, the court would be well justified in departing from the so-called golden rule of construction so as to give effect to the object and purpose of the enactment by supplementing the written word if necessary".

"16. Our own court has generally taken the view that ascertainment of legislative intent is a basic rule of statutory construction and that a rule of construction should be preferred which advances the purpose and object of a legislation and that though a construction, according to plain language, should ordinarily be adopted, such a construction should not be adopted where it leads to anomalies, injustices, or absurdities, vide K.P. Varghese V. ITO (1981) 4 SCC 173 , State Bank of Travancore v. Mohd. M. Khan, (1981) 4 SCC 82, Som Prakash Rekhi V. Unioin of India, (1981) 1 SCC 449, Ravula Subba Rao V. CIT, AIR 1956 SC 604, Govindlal v. Agricultural Produce Market Committee, (1975) 2 SCC 482 and Babaji Kondaji v. Nasik Merchants Co-op Bank Ltd. (1984) 2 SCC 50."

(III) The Supreme Court in Utkal Contractors & Joinery Pvt. Ltd. versus State of Orissa; 1987 (3) SCC 279 has held that :-

"....A statute is best understood if we know the reason for it. The reason for a statute is the safest guide to its interpretation. The words of a statute take their colour from the reason for it. How do we discover the reason for a statute? There are external and internal aids. The external aids are Statement of Objects and Reasons when the Bill is presented to Parliament, the reports of Committees which preceded the Bill and the reports of Parliamentary Committees. Occasional excursions into the debates of Parliament are permitted. Internal aids are the Preamble, the scheme and the provisions of the Act. Having discovered the reason for the statute and so having set the sail to the wind, the interpreter may proceed ahead. No provision in the statute and no word of the statute may be construed in isolation. Every provision and every word must be looked at generally before any provision or word is attempted to be construed. The setting and the pattern are important. It is again important to remember that Parliament does not waste its breath unnecessarily. Just as Parliament is not expected to use unnecessary expressions, Parliament is also not expected to express itself unnecessarily. Even as Parliament does not use any word without meaning something, Parliament does not legislate where no legislation is called for. Parliament cannot be assumed to legislate for the sake of legislation; nor can it be assumed to make pointless legislation. Parliament does not indulge in legislation merely to state what is already validly done. Parliament may not be assumed to legislate unnecessarily. Again while the Words of an enactment are important, the context is no less important. For instance, "the fact that general words are used in a statute is not in itself a conclusive reason why every case falling literally within them should be governed by that statute, and the context of any act may well indicate that wide or general words should be given a restrictive meaning." (See Halsbury, 4th Edn. Vol. 44 Para 874)."

(IV) The Supreme Court in Eera (through Dr. Manjula Krippendorf) v. State (NCT of Delhi) and Anr.; 2017(15) SCC 133 has held that :-

"I have referred to the aforesaid authorities to highlight that legislative intention and the purpose of the legislation regard being had to the fact that context has to be appositely appreciated. It is the foremost duty of the Court while construing a provision to ascertain the intention of the legislature, for it is an accepted principle that the legislature expresses itself with use of correct words and in the absence of any ambiguity or the resultant consequence does not lead to any absurdity, there is no room to look for any other aid in the name of creativity. There is no quarrel over the proposition that the method of purposive construction has been adopted keeping in view the text and the context of the legislation, the mischief it intends to obliterate and the fundamental intention of the legislature when it comes to social welfare legislations. If the purpose is defeated, absurd result is arrived at. The Court need not be miserly and should have the broad attitude to take recourse to in supplying a word wherever necessary. Authorities referred to hereinabove encompass various legislations wherein the legislature intended to cover various fields and address the issues. While interpreting a social welfare or beneficent legislation one has to be guided by the "colour", "content" and the context of "statutes" and if it involves human rights, the conceptions of Procrustean justice and Lilliputtian hollowness approach should be abandoned. The Judge has to release himself from the chains of strict linguistic interpretation and pave the path that serves the soul of the legislative intention and in that event, he becomes a real creative constructionist Judge."

47. Upon conscientious analysis of the above-mentioned judgments, following are the points which a court should consider while interpreting any enactment :-

(I) ascertain legislative intent (actual or imputed) of the enactment

(II) interpret the enactment as to promote and advance its object and purpose.

(III)to avoid patent injustice, the court may depart even from golden rule of interpretation.

(IV) for purposive interpretation, the court must give complete interpretation to the purpose, object, text and context of the enactment.

(V) any construction which leads to anomalies, injustice or absurdities should not be adopted.

(VI) court should move towards such interpretation which serves the soul of the legislative intent.

48. On the basis of arguments advanced and judgments cited before this bench, following position of law on the issue emerges :-

(a) Statements and reasons of the Act No. 5 of 2009 wherein by proviso to section 372 of CrPC was inserted, mainly states that the 'victims' are the worst sufferers in a crime, they don't have much role in court proceedings. Therefore they need to be armoured with special rights. Rights of a 'victim' as defined under section 2 (wa) CrPC are kept on a higher pedestal and that must be given its full meaning.

(b) Supreme Court in Mallikarjun Kodagali (Dead) Represented through Legal Representative Vs State of Karnataka and Others : (2019) 2 SCC 752, has held that :- "the proviso to Section 372 of the Cr.P.C. must also be given a meaning that is realistic, liberal, progressive and beneficial to the victim of an offence". The Court further held that it is not mandatory for victim to obtain special leave to appeal from High Court to file appeal under the said proviso.

(c) Section 378 (4) and (5) CrPC provides that an order of acquittal passed in a case instituted upon complaint can be challenged before High Court on grant of an application for special leave to appeal and no such application shall be entertained by the High Court after the expiry of six months, where the complainant is a public servant, and sixty days in every other case, computed from the date of that order of acquittal.

49. Applying the points emerged from the judgment cited for interpretation of the enactment, first point to be ascertained is the legislative intent of insertion of proviso to section 372 CrPC. As mentioned earlier, the object of amendment is to give a 'victim' certain privileges during the court proceedings. Therefore victim, whether complainant or not, has right to file appeal against the acquittal in a case constituted upon complaint also.

50. Second point is to give such interpretation which promotes and advances the object and purpose of the enactment. The object and purpose of insertion of proviso is to strengthen the give rights to victim. In Mallikarjun Kodagali (supra) the Court held that :-

"Putting the Declaration to practice, it is quite obvious that the victim of an offence is entitled to a variety of rights. Access to mechanisms of justice and redress through formal procedures as provided for in national legislation, must include the right to file an appeal against an order of acquittal in a case such as the one that we are presently concerned with. Considered in this light, there is no doubt that the proviso to Section 372 of the Cr.P.C. must be given life, to benefit the victim of an offence". Therefore even filling appeal against acquittal in a case instituted upon a complaint, the victim does not require leave to appeal.

51. Next point is to give purposive interpretation to the enactment which may not result in anomalies, injustices or absurdities. It is to be determined that, whether a victim has a right to file appeal to the court to which an appeal ordinarily lies against the order of conviction of such Court as provided under proviso to section 372 CrPC or before High Court as provided under section 378 (4) CrPC. Section 378 (4) and (5) CrPC, provides procedure to file appeal by complainant against acquittal in a case instituted upon the complaint. Upon conjoint reading, the sole interpretation is that, an appeal in both the situations have to be filed before one forum only as any other interpretation will lead into a situation of uncertainty and anomalies. The forum that is prescribed under section 378(4) CrPC is High Court to file appeal by the complainant, therefore considering the principles of statutory interpretation even victim has to file appeal against acquittal in a case constituted upon complaint, before High Court only. This will not only avoid uncertainty but will also serve the purpose of the enactment.

52. Registrar General of this Court is directed to ensure the circulation of this order amongst all the judicial officers in the State for their guidance.

53. Let a copy of this order be also sent to the Chief Secretary, Principal Secretary (Law) & Legal Remembrancer, Government of U.P. Lucknow and Stamp Reporter of this Court for taking necessary follow up action.

54. Let the records of these cases be accordingly placed before the respective Single Judge as per roster for final disposal.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal, J.)

1. By means of this application filed under Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (hereinafter referred to as "the Cr.P.C."), seven accused applicants, namely, Kaushal Kishore Mishra, Smt. Indrani Mishra, Kaushika Mishra, Shailja Mishra, Shailka Mishra, Kaushlendra Mishra and Harsh Vardhan Verma, have challenged Charge Sheet No. 358A of 2008 dated 06.07.2009 in Case No.1713 of 2009 (Case Crime No. 827 A of 2008) under Sections 147, 323, 336, 296, 504, 505 (3), 506 IPC, Police Station Kotwali Nagar, District Gonda and the entire proceedings in the aforesaid case pending in the Court of Judicial Magistrate Second, Gonda. Applicants have also requested that final report submitted by police in Case Crime No. 827A/2008, under Sections 147, 323, 336, 296, 504, 505 (3), 506 IPC be accepted.

2. Facts, in brief, giving rise to this application are that a First Information Report (hereinafter referred to as "FIR") No. 90/09 registered as Case Crime No. 827A/2008, under Sections 147, 323, 336, 296, 504, 505 (3), 506 IPC, was lodged on 19.03.2009 at 05:40 P.M. at Police Station Kotwali Nagar, District Gonda by Mohd. Shabbir Khan son of Abdul Rajjak Khan (hereinafter referred to as the "Complainant"), wherein ten accused including all the applicants and others were implicated alleging that they are resourceful persons indulged in unlawful activities and also have political patronage. They have unauthorisedly encroached upon the land of Maszid Hanafia Madarsa Islamia Mousul Ulma Warsi, Baharaich Road, Gonda and have created a mound of earth soil causing lot of inconvenience to the people who used to go Madrasa for study and offer Namaj in Maszid belong to Muslim Community. Accused persons are intending to raise unauthorised construction on the disputed land which used to be opposed by Complainant as well as other respected persons of society and they also put pressure upon authorities to make impartial enquiry in the matter so that communal harmony be maintained. Pursuant thereto police made an investigation and after perusal of government record, illegal possession of accused persons was removed. A document of compromise was also prepared and signed by representatives of both parties which included signatures of accused persons. Representatives of Muslim Community were honestly following the aforesaid compromise but accused and their relatives used to talk senseless and tried to find out an opportunity to weaken Complainant and other representatives of Muslim Community. On 21.11.2008 when people had gone to offer Namaj, after parking their cycles, accused persons started to damage their cycles as also throwing bricks and stones and started riots. Hearing noise, members of Peace Committee came to settle the matter but accused being annoyed attacked collectively upon Syed Ali, Sonu, Babbu, Mansoor Khan, Kallan Khan, Complainant and others and also hit them with Lathi and Danda causing injuries to several persons. Complainant and others ran away to protect themselves but accused continued to threaten them of killing and evicting from area itself. Accused with a common intention formed unlawful assembly, entered Maszid and Madarsa to kill Complainant and others, beat them inside the Mosque and damaged goods kept in Mosque, like, Clock, Chatai etc. They also attempted to take away Rs. 630/- which was a donation. Naib Secretary, Kallan Khan tried to stop them from taking away donation box, whereupon accused Kaushlendra hit on the chest of Kallan Khan with his legs and forcibly taken away donation box.

3. Police made investigation and during course of investigation recorded various statements including that of Shabbir Khan, Complainant, on 19.03.2009. On the same day Police also recorded statements of Heera Lal Gupta and Sheetla Bux Tripathi, who said that accused Kaushlendra Mishra was with him when he had gone to Court for some work and in the afternoon he received an information that Kaushlendra Mishra's family members were assaulted by the persons who had come to offer Namaz. The witnesses and Kaushlendra Mishra rushed to the house and found Kaushlendra Mishra's father, aged about 70 years and mother as well as sister in serious injured condition. Sri Kaushal Kishore Mishra, Smt. Indrani Mishra, Smt. Kaushaka Mishra, Smt. Shalaja Mishra, Km. Shalaka Mishra and Harsh Vardhan Verma were medically examined on 21.11.2008 at District Hospital Gonda and their medical report containing injuries are Annexures-4 to 9 to the application. Smt. Indrani Mishra also found to have suffered fracture in the shaft of middle phalanx of right index finger. Medical examination of Mansoor, Mohd. Kallan Khan, Sonu, Syed Ali and Babbu was held on 09.12.2008 wherein also they found to have sustained injuries and all where categorized by Doctors in District Hospital, Gonda as simple injuries caused by hard and blunt object about three weeks back.

4. On 19.05.2009 investigation was transferred to SIS, Bahraich vide order of Deputy Inspector General of Police, Devipatan and after transfer Investigating Officer recorded statements of Babbu Ali, Sonu, Monu, Kaleem, Shahjadey, Guddu alias Shakoor, Nawab, Rajjoo, Lallan Khan and Akbar Ali. Police submitted charge sheet on 06.07.2009 against 10 accused persons including all applicants under Sections 147, 323, 336, 296, 504, 505 (3), 506 IPC.

5. It is contended that no case under the aforesaid provisions is made out at all and Police has submitted charge sheet in hurried manner without making proper investigation and charge sheet is founded on no evidence at all.

6. Police, during investigation, also recorded statements of Dr. Roop Chandra, Chief Medical Superintendent, District Hospital, Gonda who admitted that he conducted medical examination on 09.12.2008 and by mistake noticed duration of injuries as three weeks though it was only three days. Similar statement was given by Dr. Ajeet Singh, Emergency Medical Officer, District Hospital, Gonda, who also conducted medical examination of some injured persons on 09.12.2008. Consequently, a Final Report was submitted by Police on 17.12.2009 in Case Crime No. 827A of 2008. Complainant filed protest petition which was allowed by Court below and applicants have been summoned to face trial vide order dated 11.01.2010.

7. Learned counsel for applicants submitted that as per own complaint of Complainant, incident took place on 21.11.2008 and alleged injured persons of Complainant side were examined on 09.12.2008, i.e., almost on 18th day while the accused injured persons were examined on 21.11.2008 itself and their injuries are well supported by medical examination but ignoring the same Magistrate has failed to apply its mind that Doctors who examined Complainant's injured persons mentioned duration of their injuries as three weeks while in statement recorded by Police they clearly said that duration was only three days hence Complainant's story was apparently false, still Magistrate has taken cognizance and summoned applicants which is nothing but a sheer gross abuse of process of law.

8. Learned A.G.A., however, submitted that statements of two Doctors that they mistakenly mentioned duration of three weeks though it was only three days, is subject to further examination in evidence as it is not probable that when more than one medical officer conducted medical examination, both committed same mistake with respect of duration of injuries and at this stage, therefore, defence of applicants cannot be examined.

9. I have gone through the record and rival submissions. It is no doubt true that injured witnesses have confirmed FIR story that they sustained injuries on 21.11.2008 and the factum that injuries were found on the person/ persons named by Complaint also cannot be doubted but further question is, "whether they sustained injuries on 21.11.2008 or just three days earlier when medical examination was conducted on 09.12.2008".

10. Further, accused applicants sustained injuries on 21.11.2008 is also a matter of evidence but atleast this much is clear that some incident took place on 21.11.2008. As per own showing of applicants, they sustained injuries and not Complainant's named persons. If there was a cross case, who was aggressor, who started dispute, who attacked first, is all a matter of evidence. At this stage, it cannot be said that no incident has taken place or no offence has been committed and there is no evidence whatsoever. Whether accused defence is justified or not is not to be examined at this stage. The allegations being factual in nature can be decided only after evidence is recorded in trial.

11. In view of settled legal proposition, no findings can be recorded about veracity of allegations at this juncture in absence of evidence. Apex Court has highlighted that jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. be sparingly/rarely invoked with complete circumspection and caution. Very recently in Criminal Appeal No.675 of 2019 (Arising out of S.L.P. (Crl.) No.1151 of 2018) (Md. Allauddin Khan Vs. The State of Bihar & Ors.) decided on 15th April, 2019, Supreme Court observed as to what should be examined by High Court in an application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. and in paras 15, 16 and 17 said as under :

"15. The High Court should have seen that when a specific grievance of the appellant in his complaint was that respondent Nos. 2 and 3 have committed the offences punishable under Sections 323, 379 read with Section 34 IPC, then the question to be examined is as to whether there are allegations of commission of these two offences in the complaint or not. In other words, in order to see whether any prima facie case against the accused for taking its cognizable is made out or not, the Court is only required to see the allegations made in the complaint. In the absence of any finding recorded by the High Court on this material question, the impugned order is legally unsustainable.

16. The second error is that the High Court in para 6 held that there are contradictions in the statements of the witnesses on the point of occurrence.

17. In our view, the High Court had no jurisdiction to appreciate the evidence of the proceedings under Section 482 of the Code Of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (for short "Cr.P.C.") because whether there are contradictions or/and inconsistencies in the statements of the witnesses is essentially an issue relating to appreciation of evidence and the same can be gone into by the Judicial Magistrate during trial when the entire evidence is adduced by the parties*. That stage is yet to come in this case."*

12. Recently, above view has been reiterated by Apex Court in Criminal Appeal No. 175 of 2020 (State of Madhya Pradesh Vs. Yogendra Singh Jadaun and another), decided on 31.01.2020.

13. The principles which justify interference under Section 482 Cr.P.C. by Court have been laid down in various authorities in which Supreme Court's judgment in State of Haryana vs. Bhajan Lal and others, 1992 Supp (1) SCC 335 was leading precedent and thereafter matter has also been examined by even Larger Benches.

14. In State of Haryana vs. Bhajan Lal and others (supra) issue of jurisdiction of this Court under Section 482

Cr.P.C. has been considered and what has been laid down therein in paragraph 102, has been repeatedly followed and reiterated consistently. In very recent judgment in Google India Private Limited Vs. Visakha Industries and Ors. , AIR 2020 SC 350, guidelines laid down in paragraph 102 in Bhajal Lal's case (supra) have been reproduced as under :

"102. In the backdrop of the interpretation of the various relevant provisions of the Code under Chapter XIV and of the principles of law enunciated by this Court in a series of decisions relating to the exercise of the extraordinary power Under Article 226 or the inherent powers Under Section 482 of the Code which we have extracted and reproduced above, we give the following categories of cases by way of illustration wherein such power could be exercised either to prevent abuse of the process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice*, though it may* not be possible to lay down any precise, clearly defined and sufficiently channelised and inflexible guidelines or rigid formulae and to give an exhaustive list of myriad kinds of cases wherein such power should be exercised.

(1) Where the allegations made in the first information report or the complaint, even if they are taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety do not prima facie constitute any offence or make out a case against the Accused.

(2) Where the allegations in the first information report and other materials, if any, accompanying the FIR do not disclose a cognizable offence*, justifying an investigation by police officers Under Section 156(1) of the Code except under an order of a Magistrate within the purview of Section 155(2) of the Code.*

(3) Where the uncontroverted allegations made in the FIR or complaint and the evidence collected in support of the same do not disclose the commission of any offence and make out a case against the Accused.

(4) Where, the allegations in the FIR do not constitute a cognizable offence but constitute only a non-cognizable offence*, no investigation is permitted by a police officer without an order of a Magistrate as contemplated Under Section 155(2) of the Code.*

(5) Where the allegations made in the FIR or complaint are so absurd and inherently improbable on the basis of which no prudent person can ever reach a just conclusion that there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the Accused.

(6) Where there is an express legal bar engrafted in any of the provisions of the Code or the concerned Act (under which a criminal proceeding is instituted) to the institution and continuance of the proceedings and/or where there is a specific provision in the Code or the concerned Act, providing efficacious redress for the grievance of the aggrieved party.

(7) Where a criminal proceeding is manifestly attended with mala fide and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the Accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge. (emphasis added)

15. Court has also reproduced note of caution given in paragraph 103 in Bhajan Lal's case (supra) which reads as under :

"103. We also give a note of caution to the effect that the power of quashing a criminal proceeding should be exercised very sparingly and with circumspection and that too in the rarest of rare cases*; that the court will not be justified in embarking upon an enquiry as to the reliability or genuineness or otherwise of the allegations made in the* FIR or the complaint and that the extraordinary or inherent powers do not confer an arbitrary jurisdiction on the court to act according to its whim or caprice."

16. What would be the scope of expression "rarest of rare cases" referred to in para 103 in State of Haryana vs. Bhajan Lal (supra) has been considered in Jeffrey J. Diermeier and Ors. Vs. State of West Bengal and Ors. , 2010 (6) SCC 243, Court has said that words "rarest of rare cases" are used after the words 'sparingly and with circumspection' while describing scope of Section 482 CrPC. Those words merely emphasize and reiterate what is intended to be conveyed by the words 'sparingly and with circumspection'. They mean that the power under Section 482 to quash proceedings should not be used mechanically or routinely, but with care and caution, only when a clear case for quashing is made out and failure to interfere would lead to a miscarriage of justice. The expression "rarest of rare cases" is not used in the sense in which it is used with reference to punishment for offences under Section 302 IPC, but to emphasize that the power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. to quash FIR or criminal proceedings should be used sparingly and with circumspection.

17. Supreme Court in Jeffrey J. Diermeier (supra) infact referred to an earlier Three Judges' Bench judgment in Som Mittal Vs. State of Karnataka, 2008 (3) SCC 753, to explain phrase "rarest of rare cases". In Som Mittal (supra), Court also said that exercise of inherent power under Section 482 CrPC is not a rule but exception. Exception is applied only when it is brought to notice of Court that grave miscarriage of justice would be added if trial is allowed to proceed where accused would be harassed unnecessarily or if trial is allowed to linger when prima facie it appears to Court that trial would likely to be ended in acquittal. Whenever question of fact is raised which requires evidence, Courts always said that at pre trial stage i.e. at the stage of cognizance taken by Magistrate power under Section 482 CrPC would not be appropriate to be utilized, since, question of fact has to be decided in the light of evidence which are yet to be adduced by parties.

18. In Lakshman vs. State of Karnataka and others, 2019 (9) SCC 677 Court said that it is not permissible for High Court in application under Section 482 CrPC to record any finding wherever there are factual disputes. Court also held that even in dispute of civil nature where there is allegation of breach of contract, if there is any element of breach of trust with mens rea, it gives rise to criminal prosecution as well and merely on the ground that there was civil dispute, criminality involved in the matter cannot be ignored. Further whether there is any mens rea on part of accused or not, is a matter required to be considered having regard to facts and circumstances and contents of complaint and evidence etc, therefore, it cannot be said pre judged in a petition under Section 482 CrPC.

19. In Chilakamarthi Venkateswarlu and Ors. Vs. State of Andhra Pradesh and Ors., AIR 2019 SC 3913, Court reiterated that inherent jurisdiction though wide and expansive has to be exercised sparingly, carefully and with caution and only when such exercise would justify by tests specifically laid down in Section itself. In paragraph 14 of judgment, Court said :

"14. For interference Under Section 482, three conditions are to be fulfilled. The injustice which comes to light should be of a grave, and not of a trivial character; it should be palpable and clear and not doubtful and there should exist no other provision of law by which the party aggrieved could have sought relief."

20. Court also said that in exercise of jurisdiction under Section 482 CrPC it is not permissible for the Court to act as if it were Trial Court. Court has only to be prima facie satisfied about existence of sufficient ground for proceeding against accused. For that limited purpose, Court can evaluate material and documents on record but it cannot appreciate evidence to conclude whether materials produced are sufficient or not for convicting accused. High Court should not exercise jurisdiction under Section 482 CrPC embarking upon an enquiry into whether evidence is reliable or not or whether on reasonable apprehension of evidence, allegations are not sustainable, or decide function of Trial Judge. For the above proposition, Court relied on its earlier authority in Zandu Pharmaceuticals Works Limited and others vs Mohd. Sharaful Haque and others, 2005 (1) SCC 122.

21. Power under section 482 CrPC should not be exercised to stifle legitimate prosecution. At the same time, if basic ingredients of offfences alleged are altogether absent, criminal proceedings can be quashed under Section 482 CrPC. Relying on M.A.A. Annamalai Vs. State of Karnataka and Ors. , 2010 (8) SCC 524, Sharda Prasad Sinha Vs. State of Bihar, AIR 1977 SC 1754 and Nagawwa Vs. Veeranna Shivalingappa Konjalgi and Ors., 1976 AIR 1976 SC 1947, Court in Chilakamarthi Venkateswarlu and Ors. (supra) said that where allegations set out in complaint or charge sheet do not constitute any offence, it is open to High Court exercising its inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 CrPC to quash order passed by Magistrate taking cognizance of offence. Inherent power under Section 482 CrPC is intended to prevent abuse of process of Court and to clear ends of justice. Such power cannot be exercised to do something which is expressly barred under CrPC. Magistrate also has to take cognizance applying judicial mind only to see whether prima facie case is made out for summoning accused persons or not. At this stage, Magistrate is neither required to consider FIR version nor he is required to evaluate value of materials or evidence of complainant find out at this stage whether evidence would lead to conviction or not.

22. It has also been so observed in Rakhi Mishra Vs. State of Bihar and Ors., 2017 (16) SCC 772 and Sonu Gupta Vs. Deepak Gupta and Ors. , 2015 (3) SC 424 and followed recently in Roshni Chopra and others vs. State of U.P. and others, 2019 (7) Scale 152. Here Court also referred to judgment in Dy. Chief Controller of Imports & Exports v. Roshanlal Agarwal and Ors., (2003) 4 SCC 139, wherein paragraph 9, Court said that in determining the question whether any process has to be issued or not, Magistrate has to be satisfied whether there is sufficient ground for proceeding or not and whether there is sufficient ground for conviction; whether the evidence is adequate for supporting conviction, can be determined only at the trial and not at the stage of inquiry.

23. However, it is also true that at the stage of issuing process to the accused, Magistrate is not required to record detailed reasons. In U. P. Pollution Control Board vs. Mohan Meaking Limited and others, 2000 (3) SCC 745, after referring to a decision in Kanti Bhadra Shah Vs State of West Bengal 2001 SCC 722, Court said :

"Legislature has stressed the need to record reasons in certain situations such as dismissal of complaint without issuing process. There is no such requirement imposed on a Magistrate for passed detailed order while issuing summons. Process issued to accused cannot be quashed merely on the ground that Magistrate had not passed a speaking order."

24. Same proposition was reiterated in Nupur Talwar Vs Central Bureau of Investigation and others, 2012 (11) SCC 465.

25. In a Three Judges' Bench in Parbatbhai Aahir and Ors. Vs State of Gujarat and Ors, 2017 (9) SCC 641, Court has observed that Section 482 CrPC is prefaced with an overriding provision. It saves inherent power of High Court, as a superior court, to make such orders as are necessary (i) to prevent an abuse of the process of any court; or (ii) otherwise to secure the ends of justice. In Paragraph 15 of the judgment Court summarized as under :

"(i) Section 482 preserves the inherent powers of the High Court to prevent an abuse of the process of any court or to secure the ends of justice. The provision does not confer new powers. It only recognises and preserves powers which inhere in the High Court;

(ii) The invocation of the jurisdiction of the High Court to quash a First Information Report or a criminal proceeding on the ground that a settlement has been arrived at between the offender and the victim is not the same as the invocation of jurisdiction for the purpose of compounding an offence*. While compounding an offence, the power of the court is governed by the provisions of Section 320 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973.* The power to quash Under Section 482 is attracted even if the offence is non-compoundable.

(iii) In forming an opinion whether a criminal proceeding or complaint should be quashed in exercise of its jurisdiction Under Section 482, the High Court must evaluate whether the ends of justice would justify the exercise of the inherent power;

(iv) While the inherent power of the High Court has a wide ambit and plenitude it has to be exercised; (i) to secure the ends of justice or (ii) to prevent an abuse of the process of any court;

(v) The decision as to whether a complaint or First Information Report should be quashed on the ground that the offender and victim have settled the dispute, revolves ultimately on the facts and circumstances of each case and no exhaustive elaboration of principles can be formulated;

(vi) In the exercise of the power Under Section 482 and while dealing with a plea that the dispute has been settled, the High Court must have due regard to the nature and gravity of the offence. Heinous and serious offences involving mental depravity or offences such as murder, rape and dacoity cannot appropriately be quashed though the victim or the family of the victim have settled the dispute. Such offences are, truly speaking, not private in nature but have a serious impact upon society. The decision to continue with the trial in such cases is founded on the overriding element of public interest in punishing persons for serious offences;

(vii) As distinguished from serious offences, there may be criminal cases which have an overwhelming or predominant element of a civil dispute. They stand on a distinct footing in so far as the exercise of the inherent power to quash is concerned;

(viii) Criminal cases involving offences which arise from commercial, financial, mercantile, partnership or similar transactions with an essentially civil flavour may in appropriate situations fall for quashing where parties have settled the dispute;

(ix) In such a case, the High Court may quash the criminal proceeding if in view of the compromise between the disputants, the possibility of a conviction is remote and the continuation of a criminal proceeding would cause oppression and prejudice; and

(x) There is yet an exception to the principle set out in propositions (viii) and (ix) above. Economic offences involving the financial and economic well-being of the state have implications which lie beyond the domain of a mere dispute between private disputants*. The High Court would be justified in declining to quash where the offender is involved in an activity akin to a financial or economic fraud or misdemeanour. The consequences of the act complained of upon the financial or economic system will weigh in the balance. (emphasis added)*

26. Above observations have been reiterated in Arun Singh and other Vs State of U.P. passed in Criminal Appeal no.250 of 2020 (arising out of Special Leave Petition (Crl.) No. 5224 of 2017), decided by Supreme Court on 10.02.2020.

27. Reliance placed by learned counsel for petitioner in Pepsi Foods Ltd (supra) on the scope of Section 482 CrPC is also in conformity with law as discussed above. I do not find anything otherwise stated therein or something which is different than what has been discussed above, which may help petitioner in a different manner. No doubt Court said that summoning of accused in criminal case is a serious matter and Criminal law cannot be set into motion as a matter of course, but to suggest that at the cognizance stage, defence evidence can be looked into and assessed on merit or it can be done by this Court when an application under Section 482 CrPC is brought to this Court against order of cognizance/summoning is neither legal nor permissible. This argument is, therefore, rejected.

28. In view of above discussion and facts and circumstances, I do not find that any case has been made out justifying interference at this stage. It cannot be said that no incident has taken place or there is no evidence whatsoever to show that applicants have committed no offence. Hence, no interference under Section 482 Cr.P.C. would be justified.

29. Application is accordingly dismissed.

It is further pleaded by applicants that a divorce petition dated 14.01.2010 under Section 13 of Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1955") was also filed by Rohit Agarwal, husband of OP-2, in the Court of Civil Judge (Senior Division), Gautambudh Nagar which was presented in the Court on 24.02.2010. In order to harass applicants, OP-2 subsequently filed aforesaid report on the basis of false and incorrect facts, hence, entire proceedings are malicious and liable to be set aside.

5. Learned counsel for applicants submitted that applicants are brother-in-law i.e. Nandoi and sister-in-law i.e. Nanand of OP-2. They are not residing with other accused persons since after marriage of applicant-1 with applicant-2. They are residing at Bangalore. Allegations levelled against applicants are patently false. It is said that applicant-2 Ambhuj Goel is a software engineer working at HCL Technologies, Bangalore since March, 2009 and stayed there till 12.07.2009. In FIR itself, address of husband of OP-2 and her father and mother-in-law have been given as A-OO3 Black Gold Apartment (Senior Citizen Society) Omega-2 Pocket U.P.-02, Greater Noida, Gautambudh Nagar and address of applicants has been given as Suswee Apartment, Flat No.8, 15 Main Road, 17 J.P. Nagar, Phase-5, Bangalore which shows that applicants were residing at a different place, hence, there was no occasion on their part to harass and commit cruelty or torture upon OP-2 as stated in the FIR and the entire proceedings are vitiated in law and wholly malicious.

6. It is further said that the only allegations made against applicants are that applicant-1 used to comment that in the marriage of her brother, 15 lakhs were settled and applicant-2 used to comment that he got 10 gram gold coin but father of OP-2 gave a gold coin of only 5 gram. There is no allegation so as to attract offences under Sections 498-A, 427, 506 IPC read with Sections 3/4 of Act, 1961 and, hence, entire proceedings are vitiated in law, malicious, illegal and liable to be set aside. Sri Saurabh Mishra, Advocate appearing on behalf of applicants, in support of his submission, has placed reliance on the judgements of Supreme Court in Ramesh and Others Vs. State of Tamil Nadu 2005 Crl.L.J. 1732; U. Suvetha Vs. State by Inspector of Police and Another (2009) Cri.L.J. 2974; Preeti Gupta and Another Vs. State of Jharkhand and Another 2010 AIR SCW 4975 and Geeta Mehrotra and Another Vs. State of U.P. and Another AIR 2013 (SC) 181. He has also relied on certain judgements rendered by Single Judges of different High Courts in Smt. Rani and Another Vs. State of U.P. and Another 2010 (7) ADJ 72 (Ald.); Patna High Court's decision in Sunil Kumar Singh and Another Vs. State of Bihar and Another 2006 Cr.L.J. 3527 (Patna); Rajasthan High Court's decision in Khuman Chand Vs. State of Rajasthan 1998 Cr.L.J. 1670; Delhi High Court's decision in Savitri Devi Vs. Ramesh Chand and Others 2003 Cr.L.J. 2759 and Punjab and Haryana High Court's decision in Lakhwinder Singh Vs. State of Punjab 2000 Cr.L.J. 4751.

7. Besides, applicants have also filed a Misc. Application with a request to accept on record judgement dated 05.02.2016 passed by Sri Suresh Chand, IVth Family Judge, Family Court, Lucknow in Matrimonial Suit No.0001077 of 2013, Rohit Agarwal Vs. Smt. Garima Goel passing a decree of divorce under Section 13 of Act, 1955; and, order dated 28.08.2019 passed in First Appeal No. 20 of 2016, Smt. Garima Goel Vs. Principal Judge Family Court Lucknow and Another to show that judgement of Principal Judge Family Court is pending in appeal before this Court.

8. Sri Manish Kumar II, learned counsel for OP-2 has contended that charge-sheet has been submitted by police after making investigation and collecting evidence during investigation and on that basis cognizance has been taken by Magistrate. At this stage, defence of accused persons and their evidence neither was before Court below nor in the proceedings under Section 482 Cr.P.C., such defence of accused persons can be looked into by this Court and, therefore, it cannot be said that there is no evidence whatsoever and proceedings are malicious which again is a question of fact and can be decided after evidence is adduced before Trial Court, hence, no interference under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is justified in the present case.

9. Learned AGA appearing on behalf of State supports and adopts the arguments of learned counsel for Informant/OP-2.

10. In the present case, stage at which applicants have come before this Court is when charge-sheet was submitted by police after investigation and thereupon Magistrate took cognizance and issued process summoning accused applicants along with three accused persons for trial for the offence under Sections 498-A, 427, 506 IPC read with Sections 3/4 of Act, 1961. Admittedly, no evidence has been recorded by Trial Court at the stage when applicants have come to this Court to challenge charge-sheet, order of cognizance and process.

11. Scope of judicial review at this stage to interfere under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is very limited. If allegations contained in FIR taken to be true, and evidence collected by police is looked into, can it be said that offences under aforesaid Sections in respect whereof cognizance has been taken and process has been issued, are not made out only the Court would interfere otherwise not. Scope of judicial review in such matters has been laid down by Supreme Court time and again and it would be fruitful to have a retrospect of some authorities on the subject.

12. At the stage of charge sheet factual query and assessment of defence evidence is beyond purview of scrutiny under Section 482 Cr.P.C. The allegations being factual in nature can be decided only subject to evidence. In view of settled legal proposition, no findings can be recorded about veracity of allegations at this juncture in absence of evidence. Supreme Court has highlighted that jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. be sparingly/rarely invoked with complete circumspection and caution. In Md. Allauddin Khan Vs. The State of Bihar & Others 2019 (6) SCC 107, Supreme Court observed as to what should be examined by High Court in an application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. and in paras 15, 16 and 17 said as under :

"15. The High Court should have seen that when a specific grievance of the appellant in his complaint was that respondent Nos. 2 and 3 have committed the offences punishable under Sections 323, 379 read with Section 34 IPC, then the question to be examined is as to whether there are allegations of commission of these two offences in the complaint or not. In other words, in order to see whether any prima facie case against the accused for taking its cognizable is made out or not, the Court is only required to see the allegations made in the complaint. In the absence of any finding recorded by the High Court on this material question, the impugned order is legally unsustainable.

16. The second error is that the High Court in para 6 held that there are contradictions in the statements of the witnesses on the point of occurrence.

17. In our view, the High Court had no jurisdiction to appreciate the evidence of the proceedings under Section 482 of the Code Of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (for short "Cr.P.C.") because whether there are contradictions or/and inconsistencies in the statements of the witnesses is essentially an issue relating to appreciation of evidence and the same can be gone into by the Judicial Magistrate during trial when the entire evidence is adduced by the parties. That stage is yet to come in this case."

(emphasis added)

13. Recently, above view has been reiterated by Supreme Court in Criminal Appeal No.175 of 2020 (State of Madhya Pradesh Vs. Yogendra Singh Jadaun and another) decided vide judgment dated 31.01.2020.

14. The principles which justify interference by Court under Section 482 Cr.P.C. have been laid down in various authorities in which Supreme Court's judgment in State of Haryana vs. Bhajan Lal and others, 1992 Supp (1) SCC 335 is leading precedent and thereafter matter has also been examined by even Larger Benches.

15. In State of Haryana vs. Bhajan Lal and others (supra) issue of jurisdiction of this Court under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been considered and what is laid down therein in paragraph 102, has been repeatedly followed and reiterated consistently. In a very recent judgment in Google India Private Limited Vs. Visakha Industries and Ors., AIR 2020 SC 350, guidelines laid down in paragraph 102 in Bhajal Lal's case (supra) have been reproduced as under :

"102. In the backdrop of the interpretation of the various relevant provisions of the Code under Chapter XIV and of the principles of law enunciated by this Court in a series of decisions relating to the exercise of the extraordinary power Under Article 226 or the inherent powers Under Section 482 of the Code which we have extracted and reproduced above, we give the following categories of cases by way of illustration wherein such power could be exercised either to prevent abuse of the process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice*, though it may* not be possible to lay down any precise, clearly defined and sufficiently channelised and inflexible guidelines or rigid formulae and to give an exhaustive list of myriad kinds of cases wherein such power should be exercised.

(1) Where the allegations made in the first information report or the complaint, even if they are taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety do not prima facie constitute any offence or make out a case against the Accused.

(2) Where the allegations in the first information report and other materials, if any, accompanying the FIR do not disclose a cognizable offence*, justifying an investigation by police officers Under Section 156(1) of the Code except under an order of a Magistrate within the purview of Section 155(2) of the Code.*

(3) Where the uncontroverted allegations made in the FIR or complaint and the evidence collected in support of the same do not disclose the commission of any offence and make out a case against the Accused.

(4) Where, the allegations in the FIR do not constitute a cognizable offence but constitute only a non-cognizable offence*, no investigation is permitted by a police officer without an order of a Magistrate as contemplated Under Section 155(2) of the Code.*

(5) Where the allegations made in the FIR or complaint are so absurd and inherently improbable on the basis of which no prudent person can ever reach a just conclusion that there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the Accused.

(6) Where there is an express legal bar engrafted in any of the provisions of the Code or the concerned Act (under which a criminal proceeding is instituted) to the institution and continuance of the proceedings and/or where there is a specific provision in the Code or the concerned Act, providing efficacious redress for the grievance of the aggrieved party.

(7) Where a criminal proceeding is manifestly attended with mala fide and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the Accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge." (emphasis added)

16. Court has also reproduced note of caution given in paragraph 103 in Bhajan Lal's case (supra) which reads as under :

"103. We also give a note of caution to the effect that the power of quashing a criminal proceeding should be exercised very sparingly and with circumspection and that too in the rarest of rare cases; that the court will not be justified in embarking upon an enquiry as to the reliability or genuineness or otherwise of the allegations made in the FIR or the complaint and that the extraordinary or inherent powers do not confer an arbitrary jurisdiction on the court to act according to its whim or caprice." (emphasis added)

17. What would be the scope of expression "rarest of rare cases" referred to in para 103 in State of Haryana vs. Bhajan Lal (supra) has been considered in Jeffrey J. Diermeier and Ors. Vs. State of West Bengal and Ors. , 2010 (6) SCC 243, Court has said that words "rarest of rare cases" are used after the words 'sparingly and with circumspection' while describing scope of Section 482 CrPC. Those words merely emphasize and reiterate what is intended to be conveyed by the words 'sparingly and with circumspection'. They mean that the power under Section 482 to quash proceedings should not be used mechanically or routinely, but with care and caution, only when a clear case for quashing is made out and failure to interfere would lead to a miscarriage of justice. The expression "rarest of rare cases" is not used in the sense in which it is used with reference to punishment for offences under Section 302 IPC, but to emphasize that the power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. to quash FIR or criminal proceedings should be used sparingly and with circumspection.

18. Supreme Court in Jeffrey J. Diermeier (supra) infact referred to an earlier Three Judges' Bench judgment in Som Mittal Vs. State of Karnataka, 2008 (3) SCC 753, to explain phrase "rarest of rare cases". In Som Mittal (supra), Court also said that exercise of inherent power under Section 482 CrPC is not a rule but exception. Exception is applied only when it is brought to notice of Court that grave miscarriage of justice would be added if trial is allowed to proceed where accused would be harassed unnecessarily or if trial is allowed to linger when prima facie it appears to Court that trial would likely to be ended in acquittal. Whenever question of fact is raised which requires evidence, Courts always said that at pre trial stage i.e. at the stage of cognizance taken by Magistrate power under Section 482 CrPC would not be appropriate to be utilized, since, question of fact has to be decided in the light of evidence which are yet to be adduced by parties.

19. In Lakshman vs. State of Karnataka and others, 2019 (9) SCC 677 Court said that it is not permissible for High Court in application under Section 482 CrPC to record any finding wherever there are factual disputes. Court also held that even in dispute of civil nature where there is allegation of breach of contract, if there is any element of breach of trust with mens rea, it gives rise to criminal prosecution as well and merely on the ground that there was civil dispute, criminality involved in the matter cannot be ignored. Further whether there is any mens rea on part of accused or not, is a matter required to be considered having regard to facts and circumstances and contents of complaint and evidence etc, therefore, it cannot be said pre judged in a petition under Section 482 CrPC.

20. In Chilakamarthi Venkateswarlu and Ors. Vs. State of Andhra Pradesh and Ors., AIR 2019 SC 3913, Court reiterated that inherent jurisdiction though wide and expansive has to be exercised sparingly, carefully and with caution and only when such exercise would justify by tests specifically laid down in Section itself. In paragraph 14 of judgment, Court said :

"14. For interference Under Section 482, three conditions are to be fulfilled. The injustice which comes to light should be of a grave, and not of a trivial character; it should be palpable and clear and not doubtful and there should exist no other provision of law by which the party aggrieved could have sought relief."

21. Court also said that in exercise of jurisdiction under Section 482 CrPC it is not permissible for the Court to act as if it were Trial Court. Court has only to be prima facie satisfied about existence of sufficient ground for proceeding against accused. For that limited purpose, Court can evaluate material and documents on record but it cannot appreciate evidence to conclude whether materials produced are sufficient or not for convicting accused. High Court should not exercise jurisdiction under Section 482 CrPC embarking upon an enquiry into whether evidence is reliable or not or whether on reasonable apprehension of evidence, allegations are not sustainable, or decide function of Trial Judge. For the above proposition, Court relied on its earlier authority in Zandu Pharmaceuticals Works Limited and others vs Mohd. Sharaful Haque and others, 2005 (1) SCC 122.

22. Power under section 482 CrPC should not be exercised to stifle legitimate prosecution. At the same time, if basic ingredients of offfences alleged are altogether absent, criminal proceedings can be quashed under Section 482 CrPC. Relying on M.A.A. Annamalai Vs. State of Karnataka and Ors. , 2010 (8) SCC 524, Sharda Prasad Sinha Vs. State of Bihar, AIR 1977 SC 1754 and Nagawwa Vs. Veeranna Shivalingappa Konjalgi and Ors., 1976 AIR 1976 SC 1947, Court in Chilakamarthi Venkateswarlu and Ors. (supra) said that where allegations set out in complaint or charge sheet do not constitute any offence, it is open to High Court exercising its inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 CrPC to quash order passed by Magistrate taking cognizance of offence. Inherent power under Section 482 CrPC is intended to prevent abuse of process of Court and to clear ends of justice. Such power cannot be exercised to do something which is expressly barred under CrPC. Magistrate also has to take cognizance applying judicial mind only to see whether prima facie case is made out for summoning accused persons or not. At this stage, Magistrate is neither required to consider FIR version nor he is required to evaluate value of materials or evidence of complainant find out at this stage whether evidence would lead to conviction or not.

23. It has also been so observed in Rakhi Mishra Vs. State of Bihar and Ors., 2017 (16) SCC 772 and Sonu Gupta Vs. Deepak Gupta and Ors. , 2015 (3) SC 424 and followed recently in Roshni Chopra and others vs. State of U.P. and others, 2019 (7) Scale 152. Here Court also referred to judgment in Dy. Chief Controller of Imports & Exports v. Roshanlal Agarwal and Ors., (2003) 4 SCC 139, wherein paragraph 9, Court said that in determining the question whether any process has to be issued or not, Magistrate has to be satisfied whether there is sufficient ground for proceeding or not and whether there is sufficient ground for conviction; whether the evidence is adequate for supporting conviction, can be determined only at the trial and not at the stage of inquiry.

24. However, it is also true that at the stage of issuing process to the accused, Magistrate is not required to record detailed reasons. In U.P. Pollution Control Board vs. Mohan Meaking Limited and others, 2000 (3) SCC 745, after referring to a decision in Kanti Bhadra Shah Vs State of West Bengal 2001 SCC 722, Court said :

"Legislature has stressed the need to record reasons in certain situations such as dismissal of complaint without issuing process. There is no such requirement imposed on a Magistrate for passed detailed order while issuing summons. Process issued to accused cannot be quashed merely on the ground that Magistrate had not passed a speaking order." (emphasis added)

25. Same proposition was reiterated in Nupur Talwar Vs Central Bureau of Investigation and others, 2012 (11) SCC 465.

26. In a Three Judges' Bench in Parbatbhai Aahir and Ors. Vs State of Gujarat and Ors, 2017 (9) SCC 641, Court has observed that Section 482 CrPC is prefaced with an overriding provision. It saves inherent power of High Court, as a superior court, to make such orders as are necessary (i) to prevent an abuse of the process of any court; or (ii) otherwise to secure the ends of justice. In Paragraph 15 of the judgment Court summarized as under :

"(i) Section 482 preserves the inherent powers of the High Court to prevent an abuse of the process of any court or to secure the ends of justice. The provision does not confer new powers. It only recognises and preserves powers which inhere in the High Court;

(ii) The invocation of the jurisdiction of the High Court to quash a First Information Report or a criminal proceeding on the ground that a settlement has been arrived at between the offender and the victim is not the same as the invocation of jurisdiction for the purpose of compounding an offence. While compounding an offence, the power of the court is governed by the provisions of Section 320 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973. The power to quash

Under Section 482 is attracted even if the offence is non-compoundable.

(iii) In forming an opinion whether a criminal proceeding or complaint should be quashed in exercise of its jurisdiction Under Section 482, the High Court must evaluate whether the ends of justice would justify the exercise of the inherent power;

(iv) While the inherent power of the High Court has a wide ambit and plenitude it has to be exercised; (i) to secure the ends of justice or (ii) to prevent an abuse of the process of any court;

(v) The decision as to whether a complaint or First Information Report should be quashed on the ground that the offender and victim have settled the dispute, revolves ultimately on the facts and circumstances of each case and no exhaustive elaboration of principles can be formulated;

(vi) In the exercise of the power Under Section 482 and while dealing with a plea that the dispute has been settled, the High Court must have due regard to the nature and gravity of the offence. Heinous and serious offences involving mental depravity or offences such as murder, rape and dacoity cannot appropriately be quashed though the victim or the family of the victim have settled the dispute. Such offences are, truly speaking, not private in nature but have a serious impact upon society. The decision to continue with the trial in such cases is founded on the overriding element of public interest in punishing persons for serious offences;

(vii) As distinguished from serious offences, there may be criminal cases which have an overwhelming or predominant element of a civil dispute. They stand on a distinct footing in so far as the exercise of the inherent power to quash is concerned;

(viii) Criminal cases involving offences which arise from commercial, financial, mercantile, partnership or similar transactions with an essentially civil flavour may in appropriate situations fall for quashing where parties have settled the dispute;

(ix) In such a case, the High Court may quash the criminal proceeding if in view of the compromise between the disputants, the possibility of a conviction is remote and the continuation of a criminal proceeding would cause oppression and prejudice; and

(x) There is yet an exception to the principle set out in propositions (viii) and (ix) above. Economic offences involving the financial and economic well-being of the state have implications which lie beyond the domain of a mere dispute between private disputants. The High Court would be justified in declining to quash where the offender is involved in an activity akin to a financial or economic fraud or misdemeanour. The consequences of the act complained of upon the financial or economic system will weigh in the balance."

27. Above observations have been reiterated in Arun Singh and other Vs State of U.P. passed in Criminal Appeal no.250 of 2020 (arising out of Special Leave Petition (Crl.) No. 5224 of 2017), decided by Supreme Court on 10.02.2020.

28. Now, considering the facts in the light of aforesaid exposition of law, I find that first allegation against applicants is that their behavior was not cordial with applicants. It is not disputed that both the applicants were residing at Bangalore while OP-2 was married to Sri Rohit Agarwal residing at Greater Noida, District

Gautambudh Nagar. Admittedly, marriage of OP-2 with Rohit Agarwal was solemnized on 17.02.2009 at Lucknow but thereafter she came to reside with Rohit Agarwal at his residence at Greater Noida, District Gautambudh Nagar and was residing thereat. The second allegation against applicant-1 is that she used to said that his brother's marriage was of 15 lakh and applicant-2 said that in his engagement, he got 10 gram gold coin while father of OP-2 gave gold coin only of 5 gram. The third allegation against applicant-2 is that he gave a slip of Rs.5539/- and father of Informant-OP-2 gave Rs.55,000/- cash to him.

29. Police recorded statement of Informant-OP-2 under Section 161 Cr.P.C., copy whereof has been filed as Annexure-6 wherein FIR version has been reiterated. Some more facts in respect of other accused persons have been stated but there is no change by way of addition, alteration or modification in respect of allegations made against applicants in the FIR.

30. Statement of father of OP-2 is Annexure-7 to the affidavit who has made a general allegation that applicants and other accused persons used to harass and torture OP-2 and left no occasion to make comments for bringing less dowry in the marriage. He did not make any statement that he paid any amount of cash to applicant-2.

31. Statement of Smt. Kumkum Goel, mother of OP-2 is Annexure-8 to the affidavit and here also, I find that general allegation of harassment has been made against applicants along with other accused persons and there is no averment that any amount was paid to applicant-2 in cash by husband of Smt. Kumkum Goel i.e. Gopal Krishna Goel.

32. The statement of OP-2 is that applicant-1 said that marriage of her brother was of Rs.15 lakh and applicant-2 said that father of OP-2 gave a gold coin of 5 gram though applicant-2 receives in his marriage a gold coin of 10 grams. This statement is of no consequences. Mere comment or taunt, cannot amount to a cruelty as to attract 498-A IPC or Section 3 and 4 of Act, 1961. Even if the allegations of Rs.55,000/- paid cash by father of OP-2 is treated to be correct but it is not stated anywhere that applicant-2 has demanded any dowry and said dowry was paid to him. The assertion is that he gave a slip of Rs.5539/- and their payment was made. It appears to be some payment towards some expenses.

33. Taking the aforesaid averments to be correct and also considering the fact that applicant-1 has married with applicant-2 long back, they had a 7 year old son, and residing at Bangalore for several years and no specific date and time of their presence at Greater Noida, District Gautambudh Nagar has been mentioned, I find that apparently offences under Sections 498-A, 427, 506 IPC read with Sections 3/4 of Act, 1961 are not made out.

34. We now proceed to examine the above sections in detail. First of all, I propose to consider Section 498-A IPC which reads as under:-

35. Section 498-A. Husband or relative of husband of a woman subjecting her to cruelty.--

"Whoever, being the husband or the relative of the husband of a woman, subjects such woman to cruelty shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years and shall also be liable to fine.

Explanation.--For the purpose of this section, "cruelty" means--*

(a) any wilful conduct which is of such a nature as is likely to drive the woman to commit suicide or to cause grave injury or danger to life, limb or health (whether mental or physical) of the woman; or

(b) harassment of the woman where such harassment is with a view to coercing her or any person related to her to meet any unlawful demand for any property or valuable security or is on account of failure by her or any person related to her to meet such demand."

36. In order to attract Section 498-A I.P.C., essential ingredients are:

"(a) that the victim was a married lady (she may also be a widow),

*(b) that she has been subjected to cruelty by her husband or the relative of her husband,

*(c) that such cruelty consisted of either (1) harassment of the woman with a view to coerce meeting a demand of dowry, or (2) a wilful conduct by the husband or the relative of her husband of such a nature as is likely to lead the lady to commit suicide or to cause grave injury to her life, limb or health;

(d) that such injury aforesaid may be physical or mental. When the husband or the relative of a husband of a woman subjects such woman to cruelty, he or they shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years and shall also be liable to fine."

37. Thus, the emphasis is on 'cruelty' which is the core element of Section 498-A IPC and this 'cruelty' has also been defined in the Section itself. The word 'cruelty' encompasses any of the following elements:-

(i) any wilful conduct which is of such a nature as is likely to drive the woman to commit suicide; or

(ii) any wilful conduct which is to cause grave injury or danger to life, limb or health (whether mental or physical) of the woman.

38. The Explanation (b) of Section 498-A IPC defines 'cruelty' embraces which is in fold harassment. Criminality attached to what harassment is punishable in the following circumstances:-

(i) where harassment of woman with a view to coercing her or any person related to her to meet any unlawful demand for any property or valuable security; or

(ii) where harassment is on account of failure by her or any person related to her to meet such demand.

39. It is thus evident that every cruelty or every wilful conduct for harassment do not have the element of criminal culpability. If there has been any physical violation or infliction of injury, the position may be different but that is not the case here. Some allegation of demand etc. have been levelled against other accused but in respect of applicants, even such allegations have not been made.

40. In this context, I find that facts of this case are broadly similar to an authority of Supreme Court in Ramesh Vs. State of Tamil Nadu (supra). Therein application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. filed by Ramesh and Another was dismissed by Madras High Court and thereafter matter was taken up to Supreme Court. Wife of Ramesh filed a complaint dated 23.06.1999 with All Women Police Station, Trichy alleging commission of offences under Section 498-A and 406 IPC and Sections 3/4 of Act, 1961. Allegations made therein against husband, in-laws, including brother and sister of husband. After registration of report, investigation was conducted and charge-sheet was submitted by police on 28.12.2001 in the Court of Judicial Magistrate-III, Trichy. Magistrate taken cognizance, issued warrants against accused persons on 13.02.2002. Accused persons filed Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.593 of 2002 in Bombay High Court for quashing FIR or in the alternative to transfer the FIR to Mumbai. Initially, proceedings were stayed but ultimately writ petition was dismissed as withdrawn on 02.06.2003 with a prayer to approach Madras High Court for appropriate relief. Thereafter, accused filed application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. challenging charge-sheet as also the cognizance order passed by Magistrate but the same was dismissed by Court. The matter was taken in Supreme Court and basically proceedings were challenged by raising following three grounds:-

(i) Allegations are frivolous and without any basis;

(ii) Even according to FIR, no incriminating act has been done within the jurisdiction of Trichy Police Station and Court at Trichy and, therefore, learned Magistrate lacked territorial jurisdiction to take cognizance.

(iii) Taking cognizance of the alleged offence is barred under Section 468(1) Cr.P.C. as it was beyond the period of limitation prescribed under Section 468(2).

41. In this case, we are concerned with respect to first question which has been considered by Supreme Court in para-6 of the judgement and it has held that from the FIR and contents of charge-sheet, Court did not find that offence under Section 498-A, 406 IPC and Section 4 of Act, 1961 are made out against sister-in-law i.e. Nanand. She is a married sister of Informant's husband who is undisputedly living with her family. Assuming that during relevant time, i.e., between March and October, 1997, when Informant lived in Mumbai in her marital home, the said lady stayed with them for some days, there is nothing in the complaint which connects her with an offence under Section 498-Aor any other offence of which cognizance was taken.

42. Court further said:-

"Certain acts of taunting and ill-treatment of Informant by her sister-in- law (appellant) were alleged but they did not pertain to dowry demand or entrustment and misappropriation of property belonging to Informant. What was said against her in the F.I.R. is that on some occasions, she directed complainant to wash W.C. and she used to abuse her and used to pass remarks such as "even if you have got much jewellery, you are our slave."

43. It is further stated in the report that Gowri would make wrong imputations to provoke her husband and would warn her that nobody could do anything to her family. These allegations, even if true, do not amount to harassment with a view to coercing the Informant or her relation to meet an unlawful demand for any property or valuable security. At the most, the allegations reveal that her sister-in-law Gowri was insulting and making derogatory remarks against her and behaving rudely against her. Even acts of abetment in connection with unlawful demand for property/dowry are not alleged against her. The bald allegations made against her sister-in-law seem to suggest the anxiety of Informant to rope in as many of the husband's relations as possible. Neither the FIR nor the charge-sheet furnished the legal basis to the Magistrate to take cognizance of the offences alleged against appellant Gowri Ramaswamy. High Court ought not to have relegated her to the ordeal of trial.

44. Following the above decision, a similar view has been taken by learned Single Judge Hon'ble Navin Sinha, J. (as His Lordship then was) in Sunil Kumar Singh and Another Vs. State of Bihar and Another (supra).

45. A similar situation has also come up for consideration in Geeta Mehrotra and Another vs. State of U.P. and Another (supra). Therein application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. filed by accused appellants was disposed of by this Court observing that the issue on territorial jurisdiction was raised which may be raised before Trial Court and till then, interim protection was allowed not to take coercive process against applicants. Accused applicants instead of approaching Magistrate filed appeal before Supreme Court. Facts are that one Shipra Mehrotra (before marriage Shipra Seth) filed FIR against her husband, father-in-law, mother-in-law, brother-in-law and sister-in-law under Sections 498-A, 323, 504, 506 IPC read with Sections 3/4 of Act, 1961. It was registered as FIR No.54 of 2004 at Mahila Thana Daraganj, Allahabad. Complainant levelled allegation is that she was married with Shyamji Mehrotra s/o Balbir Saran who was living at Eros Garden, Charmswood Village, Faridabad, Suraj Kund Road at Faridabad Haryana. Prior to marriage, Informant/complainant and her family members were told by Shyamji Mehrotra and his elder brother Ramji Mehrotra, their mother Smt. Kamla Mehrotra and sister Geeta Mehrotra that Shyamji is employed as a Team Leader in a top I.T. Company in Chennai and is getting salary of Rs.45,000/- per month. After negotiation between the parents of the complainant and the accused, marriage of the complainant Shipra Seth (later Shipra Mehrotra) and Shyamji Mehrotra was performed whereafter complainant left her house to live at the marital home. Atmosphere of marital house was peaceful for sometime but soon after marriage, when other relatives left, the maid who cooked meals was first of all paid-off by aforesaid four persons who then told complainant that from now onwards, complainant will have to prepare food for the family. In addition, the above four accused started taunting and scolding her on trivial issues. Complainant/Informant also came to know that Shyamji was not employed anywhere and always stayed in the house. Shyamji gradually took away all the money which the complainant had with her and then told her that her father had not given dowry properly, therefore, she should get Rupees five lakhs from her father in order to enable him to start business, because he was not getting any job. Complainant declined and said that she will not ask her parents for money whereupon Shyamji, on instigation of other accused-family members, started beating her occasionally. To escape every day torture and to upkeep financial stars of the family, complainant took up a job in a Call Centre at Convergys on 17.2.2003 where complainant had to do night shifts due to which she used to come back home at around 3 a.m. in the morning. Just on her return from work, the household people started playing bhajan cassettes after which she had to getup at 7'o clock in the morning to prepare and serve food to all the members in the family. Often on falling asleep in the morning, Shyamji, Kamla Devi and Geeta Mehrotra tortured complainant every day mentally and physically. Ramji Mehrotra often provoked the other three family members to torture and often used to make complainant feel sad by making inappropriate statements about the complainant and her parents. Her husband Shyamji also took away the salary from complainant.

46. After persistent efforts, Shyamji finally got a job in Chennai and he went to Chennai for the job in May, 2003. However, there was no change in his behaviour even after going to Chennai. Complainant often called him on phone to talk to him but he always did irrelevant talks and conversation. He never spoke properly with complainant whenever he visited home and often used to hurl filthy abuses. Complainant states that she often wept and tolerated the tortures of accused persons for a long time but made no complain to her family members and that would make them feel sad. At last, when Complainant realized that even her life is in danger, she compelled to tell everything to her father on phone who was very upset on hearing her woes. On 15.7.2003, Complainant heard some conversation of her mother-in-law and sister-in-law and she had apprehension that they want to kill her in the night only. She apprised the situation to her father on phone who told that he will call back her father-in-law and she should go with him immediately and he will come in the morning. The father-in-law Satish Dhawan and his wife who were living in Noida came in the night and ultimately she came back and lodged report. Investigation was made by police and thereafter submitted charge-sheet against all the accused family members including husband and sister-in-law of Informant/complainant.

47. Sister and brother of Complainant's husband Shyamji Mehrotra filed an application under Section 482Cr.P.C. praying for quashing of charge-sheet and entire criminal proceedings on the ground of being malicious and only to rope entire family members without any actual foundation or truth. It was also challenged that incident in any case had taken place at Faridabad and investigation could have been done there only, while investigation in the matter has been done by police at Allahabad who had no jurisdiction in the matter. High Court non-suited the applicants on the ground that issue of territorial jurisdiction cannot be decided by it and the applicants may take up this plea before Trial Court. Thereafter, applicants Geeta Mehrotra and her brother Ramji Mehrotra filed appeal before Supreme Court. Their contention was that High Court was not examined whether any case was made out against sister-in-law and brother-in-law of Complainant/Informant. Even if the allegations and facts stated in the FIR are taken to be true, on the face of it, there was no specific allegation against sister and brother of Informant's husband and they were falsely and illegally implicated.

48. Relying on its earlier judgement in Ramesh Vs. State of Tamil Nadu (supra), Court in Gita Mehrotra (supra) said as under:-

"Coming to the facts of this case, when the contents of the FIR is perused, it is apparent that there are no allegations against Kumari Geeta Mehrotra and Ramji Mehrotra except casual reference of their names who have been included in the FIR but mere casual reference of the names of the family members in a matrimonial dispute without allegation of active involvement in the matter would not justify taking cognizance against them overlooking the fact borne out of experience that there is a tendency to involve the entire family members of the household in the domestic quarrel taking place in a matrimonial dispute specially if it happens soon after the wedding."

49. It also relied on an earlier decision in G.V. Rao Vs. L.H.V. Prasad and Others 2000 (3) SCC 693, wherein Court held that there has been an outburst of matrimonial dispute in recent times. Marriage is a sacred ceremony to enable young couple to settle down in life and live peacefully. But little matrimonial skirmishes suddenly erupt which often assume serious proportions resulting in heinous crimes in which elders of the family are also involved who were counselled and brought about rapprochement are rendered helpless on their being arrayed as accused in the criminal case. There are many reasons which need not be mentioned here for not encouraging matrimonial litigation so that the parties may ponder over their defaults and terminate the disputes amicably by mutual agreement instead of fighting it out in a court of law where it takes years and years to conclude and in that process the parties lose their "young" days in chasing their cases in different Courts.

50. Court reminded a well settled proposition that if FIR do not disclose a commission of offence by an individual accused, it would be justified to quash the proceedings against him/ her so as to prevent abuse of process of law. No one can be allowed to undergo an ordeal of illegal, malicious or false prosecution and undergo a physical and mental torture so long as such proceedings continue.

51. In Preeti Gupta and Another Vs. State of Jharkhand and Another (supra), Court held as under:-

"The ultimate object of justice is to find out the truth and punish the guilty and protect the innocent. To find out the truth is a herculean task in majority of these complaints. The tendency of implicating husband and all his immediate relations is also not uncommon. At times, even after the conclusion of criminal trial, it is difficult to ascertain the real truth. The courts have to be extremely careful and cautious in dealing with these complaints and must take pragmatic realities into consideration while dealing with matrimonial cases. The allegations of harassment of husband's close relations who had been living in different cities and nevervisited or rarely visited the place where the complainant resided would have an entirely different complexion. The allegations of the complaint are required to be scrutinized with great care and circumspection. Experience reveals that long and protracted criminal trials lead to rancour, acrimony and bitterness in the relationship amongst the parties. It is also a matter of common knowledge that in cases filed by the complainant if the husband or the husband's relations had to remain in jail even for a few days, it would ruin the chances of amicable settlement altogether. The process of suffering is extremely long and painful."

52. Learned counsel for applicants has relied on a judgement in U.Suvetha Vs. State by Inspector of Police and Another (supra). Therein the basis issue raised and decided is whether a concubine or a girl friend can be said to be relative so as to attract Section 498-A IPC and the same has been answered in negative. Therefore, aforesaid judgement, in my view, has no authority on the point of issue in the present application.

53. Thus, so far as applicants are concerned, Section 498-A IPC is not attracted in the present case if the allegation made in FIR, which we have already notice above, are taken to be true.

54. Now, I come to Section 427 IPC which deals with the offence of "Mischief". The word "Mischief" defines in Section 425 IPC, therefore, both sections are reproduced as under:-

"Section 427. Mischief causing damage to the amount of fifty rupees.-- Whoever commits mischief and thereby causes loss or damage to the amount of fifty rupees or upwards, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to two years, or with fine, or with both."

55. In order to attract Section 427 I.P.C., essential ingredients are:

"(i) That the accused committed mischief;

(ii) That he thereby caused loss or damage to the amount of fifty rupees or more."

56. Section 425 IPC defines the word "Mischief".

"Whoever with intent to cause, or knowing that he is likely to cause, wrongful loss or damage to the public or to any person, causes the destruction of any property, or any such change in any property or in the situation thereof as destroys or diminishes its value or utility, or affects it injuriously, commits "mischief".

Explanation 1.--It is not essential to the offence of mischief that the offender should intend to cause loss or damage to the owner of the property injured or destroyed. It is sufficient if he intends to cause, or knows that he is likely to cause, wrongful loss or damage to any person by injuring any property, whether it belongs to that person or not.*

Explanation 2.--Mischief may be committed by an act affecting property belonging to the person who commits the act, or to that person and others jointly."*

57. Having gone through the entire FIR repeatedly and also enquired from learned counsel for OP-2 but neither I could find anything therein nor counsel for Informant/Complainant could show as to how Section 427 IPC is attracted in this case as there is no such allegation whatsoever against applicants in the entire report so as to attract offence of Section 427 IPC against applicants. There is no allegation that applicants have caused any wrongful loss or damage or destruction or destroy or diminishes its value or utility or affects to any property of Complainant/Informant i.e. OP-2 and, therefore, there is no mischief at all, hence, Section 427 IPC is not attracted at all.

58. Section 506 IPC deals with an offence of 'Criminal Intimidation' which is defined in Section 503 IPC and both are reproduced as under:-

"Section 506. Punishment for criminal intimidation.--

Whoever commits, the offence of criminal intimidation shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to two years, or with fine, or with both;

If threat be to cause death or grievous hurt, etc.--And if the threat be to cause death or grievous hurt, or to cause the destruction of any property by fire, or to cause an offence punishable with death or imprisonment for life, or with imprisonment for a term which may extend to seven years, or to impute, unchastity to a woman, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to seven years, or with fine, or with both."

59. Ingredients essential to attract Section 506 IPC are as follows:-

"1. Accused threatened complainant, his person, property or reputation or the person or reputation of any one in whom he is interested.

2. Such threat was with some injury.

3. Threat was with intent to (1) cause alarm to complainant, (2) to cause complainant to do any act which he was not legally bound to do, (3) to cause to omit to do any act which he was legally entitled to do.

4. Threat given was (1) to cause death, (2) to cause grievous hurt, (3) to cause destruction of any property, (4) to cause an offence punishable with death, imprisonment for life, imprisonment for a term which may extend to 7 years or to impute unchastity to a woman.

5. Accused intended complainant so threatened or alarmed to do any act which he was not legally bound to do or to omit to do any act which the complainant was legally entitled to do as the means of avoiding the execution of such threat."

"Section 503 IPC. Criminal intimidation.--*

Whoever threatens another with any injury to his person, reputation or property, or to the person or reputation of any one in whom that person is interested, with intent to cause alarm to that person, or to cause that person to do any act which he is not legally bound to do, or to omit to do any act which that person is legally entitled to do, as the means of avoiding the execution of such threat, commits criminal intimidation.

Explanation.--*

A threat to injure the reputation of any deceased person in whom the person threatened is interested, is within this section."

60. When questioned, learned counsel for OP-2 could not dispute that no allegation whatsoever has been made in the complaint/report which may amount to an offence of Criminal Intimidation on the part of applicants, therefore, Section 506 read with Section 503 IPC is also not attracted in the case in hand.

61. Now, I come to remaining two Sections i.e. Sections 3 and 4 of Act, 1961 and both sections are also reproduced as under:-

"Section 3 of Act, 1961. Penalty for giving or taking dowry.-- (1) If any person, after the commencement of this Act, gives or takes or abets the giving or taking of dowry, he shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than five years, and with fine which shall not be less than fifteen thousand rupees or the amount of the value of such dowry, whichever is more:

Provided that the Court may, for adequate and special reasons to be recorded in the judgment, impose a sentence of imprisonment for a term of less than five years.

(2) Nothing in sub-section (1) shall apply to, or in relation to,-- (a) presents which are given at the time of a marriage to the bride (without any demand having been made in that behalf):

Provided that such presents are entered in a list maintained in accordance with the rules made under this Act;

(b) presents which are given at the time of a marriage to the bridegroom (without any demand having been made in that behalf):

Provided that such presents are entered in a list maintained in accordance with the rules made under this Act:

Provided further that where such presents are made by or on behalf of the bride or any person related to the bride, such presents are of a customary nature and the value thereof is not excessive having regard to the financial status of the person by whom, or on whose behalf, such presents are given."

"Section 4 of Act, 1961. Penalty for demanding dowry.--"If any person demands, directly or indirectly, from the parents or other relatives or guardian of a bride or bridegroom, as the case may be, any dowry, he shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than six months, but which may extend to two years and with fine which may extend to ten thousand rupees:

Provided that the Court may, for adequate and special reasons to be mentioned in the judgment, impose a sentence of imprisonment for a term of less than six months."

62. Section 3 of Act, 1961 deals with offence "giving or taking dowry" or abeting the offence of giving or taking dowry. Section 4 of Act, 1961 deals with offence of "demand of dowry".

63. The term "Dowry" has been defined in Section 2 of Act, 1961 and it reads as under:-

"2 Definition of "dowry'. --In this Act, "dowry" means any property or valuable security given or agreed to be given either directly or indirectly--

(a) by one party to a marriage to the other party to the marriage; or

(b) by the parents of either party to a marriage or by any other person, to either party to the marriage or to any other person, at or before or any time after the marriage in connection with the marriage of the said parties, but does not include dower or mahr in the case of persons to whom the Muslim Personal Law (Shariat) applies.

Explanation II.-- The expression "valuable security" has the same meaning as in section 30 of the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860)."

64. If anyone is involved in the most heinous social evil of dowry, I have no manner of doubt that law must be allowed to take it course with full swing and there should not be any sympathy, compassion or leniency for such person who is indulged in such crime but only on whims and caprice someone who is not accused of any such offence, should not be implicated and undergo an ordeal criminal trial merely for the reason that he or she is relative of the husband and every relative of the husband should be made to teach a lesson. After all, performance of marriage by itself is no offence and if any one is relative of one of the spouse who is alleged to be a guilty of offence of dowry, mere relationship should not be a reason to implicate such person in a criminal proceedings.

65. Hon'ble S.S. Nijjar, J. (as His Lordship then was) in Lakhwinder Singh Vs. State of Punjab (supra), dealing with slightly a similar matter and observed that it is generally seen that when any marriage goes in rough weather the tendency of bride is to insinuate as many members of the family of her husband as possible with the allegation of laying demand for dowry and also treating her with cruelty when their demand for dowry is not being fulfilled. Allegations of misappropriation of dowry are also made some times against those members of the family of the husband who do not have anything with the dowry which is the basic concern of the bride and bridegroom and at best parents of the bridegroom. If there is no entrustment of any article of dowry to anyone and the ingredients of definition of dowry under Section 2 of Act, 1961 are not satisfied, offence of Section 3/4 of Act, 1961 will also not be attracted.

66. In these circumstances, it cannot be said that offences under Section 3/4 of Act, 1961 against applicants are made out and, in my view, proceedings, if allowed against applicants will be nothing except but a gross abuse of process of law and ends of justice required that the same must be quashed against applicants.

67. In the result, application is allowed. Impugned Charge-sheet No.38 of 2010 dated 31.03.2010 in Case Crime No.51 of 2010 dated 17.02.2010 and also order dated 22.04.2010 passed by Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate IIIrd, Lucknow taking cognizance, issuing process and registering as Case No.1908 of 2010, under Sections 498-A, 427, 506 IPC read with Sections 3/4 of Act, 1961 as well as subsequent proceedings thereto are hereby quashed.

THE HON'BLE MRS. MANJU RANI CHAUHAN, J.

Application U/S 482 Cr.P.C. No. 3761 of 2020

Geeta Devi ...Applicant
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Applicant:
Sri Om Prakash Vishwakarma

Counsel for the Respondents:
A.G.A.

(A) Criminal law- Code of criminal procedure, 1973 - Sections 482 – Inherent jurisdiction - police can investigate into matters relating to commission of 'cognizable offences' brought to its notice under section 154 Cr.P.C. - Officer-in-charge of police station has power to investigate U/S 156(1) - Magistrate has power to take cognizance u/s 190 Cr.P.C. on receiving the 'complaint' - matter relating to section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. relates to power of Magistrate to order investigation by police in matters relating to cognizable offences brought before it through complaint - Sections 154 and 156 Cr.P.C. provide procedure for registration and investigation of complaint - Order dated 30.10.2019 passed by the Special Judge, S.C./S.T (Prevention of Atrocities) Act - Set aside.(Para-9,10)

Application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. filed by the applicant has been directed to be treated as complaint case - right and interest of the applicant is involved in the present case as the property of applicant has been looted - allegations made in the application filed under section 156 (3) Cr. P. C. are not only serious, but also show the commission of a cognizable offence. (Para-2,3,7)

HELD:- Accused persons have no right to be heard at pre-cognizance stage - Special Judge, S.C./S.T (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, directed to exercise his discretionary power and decide afresh the application under section 156(3) Cr.P.C. moved by the applicant and to pass appropriate order, in accordance with law. (Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Om Prakash Vishwakarma, learned counsel for the applicant, and the learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. This application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed challenging the order dated 30.10.2019, passed by the Special Judge, S.C./S.T (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, Jaunpur in Misc. Case No. 117 of 2019 (Geeta Devi vs. Satya Narayan and others), under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C., Police Station-Sikrara, District-Jaunpur by which the application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. filed by the applicant has been directed to be treated as complaint case.

3. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that a perusal of the complaint filed by the applicant clearly discloses the commission of a cognizable offence. He, therefore, submits that once the application filed by the applicant under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. disclosed the commission of a cognizable offence, the Magistrate has erred in law in directing to proceed with the application as a complaint case. He further submits that the right and interest of the applicant is involved in the present case as the property of applicant has been looted. The learned counsel for the applicant has contended with vehemence that the court below has passed the impugned order in a mechanical manner and has ignored the judgement of the Apex Court rendered in the case of Lalita Kumari Vs. Government of U.P. and others reported in 2014 (2) SCC 1.

4. Learned A.G.A. on the other hand has supported the impugned order and has pointed out that the grievance of the applicant has not gone unattended by the court below. The court below after taking into consideration the entire gamut of the facts and circumstances of the case has rightly concluded to treat the application filed by the applicant under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. as a complaint. The applicant shall still have an opportunity to prove his case before the court below.

5. Considered the rival submissions made by the learned counsel for the parties.

6. A perusal of the impugned order shows that no sufficient reason has been disclosed, on the basis of which, the Magistrate has proceeded to treat the application under section 156(3) Cr.P.C. as a complaint.

7. From the record, it transpires that in the present case, the right and interest of the applicant in her property is involved. The allegations made in the application filed under section 156 (3) Cr. P. C. are not only serious, but also show the commission of a cognizable offence. The applicant has alleged in the complaint that on 19.06.2019 at about 09:00 p.m., the accused persons came at the house of applicant and destroyed her house and when the applicant objected the same, accused-Sunil Mishra and Anil Mishra threatened the applicant by putting gun on applicant's chest and, thereafter, Sunil Mishra entered into the house of applicant and misbehaved with the daughter-in-law of applicant. They also forcefully took away several properties of the applicant. However, the Magistrate vide order dated 30.10.2019 directed that the said application shall be treated as a complaint. A perusal of the order impugned passed by the Magistrate shows that the Magistrate was of the view that since all the evidence required in respect of the incident which occurred on the alleged date can be given by the applicant, there is no necessity of police investigation in the matter.

8. In view of the nature of the allegations made by the applicant in the application filed under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C., the Special Judge, S.C./S.T (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, Jaunpur ought to have allowed the application and directed the police of Police Station Sikrara, Jaunpur to investigate into the matter and, thereafter, submit a report.

9. Sections 154 and 156 Cr.P.C. provide procedure for registration and investigation of complaint. The same are quoted herein under:-

"154. Information in cognizable cases- (1) Every information relating to the commission of a cognizable offence, if given orally to an officer in charge of a police station, shall be reduced to writing by him or under his direction, and be read Over to the informant; and every such information, whether given in writing or reduced to writing as aforesaid, shall be signed by the person giving it, and the substance thereof shall be entered in a book to be kept by such officer in such form as the State Government may prescribe in this behalf.:

[Provided that if the information is given by the woman against whom an offence under section 326A, Section 326B, Section 354, Section 354A, Section 354B, Section 354C, Section 354D, Section 376, Section 376A, Section 376B, Section 376C, Section 376D, Section 376E or Section 509 of the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860) is alleged to have been committed or attempted, then such information shall be recorded, by a woman police officer or any woman officer:

Provided further that -

(a) in the event that the person against whom an offence under section 354A, Section 354B, Section 354C, Section 354D, Section 376, Section 376A, Section 376B, Section 376C, Section 376D, Section 376E or Section 509 of the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860) is alleged to have been committed or attempted, is temporarily or permanently mentally or physically disabled, then such information shall be recorded by a police officer, at the residence of the person seeking to report such offence or at a convenient place of such person's choice, in the presence of an interpreter or a special educator, as the case may be;

(b) the recording of such information shall be videographed;

(c) the police officer shall get the statement of the person recorded by a Judicial Magistrate under clause (a) of sub-section (5A) of Section 164 as soon as possible].

(2) A copy of the information as recorded under sub- section (1) shall be given forthwith, free of cost, to the informant.

(3) Any person aggrieved by a refusal on the part of an officer in charge of a police station to record the information referred to in subsection (1) may send the substance of such information, in writing and by post, to the Superintendent of Police concerned who, if satisfied that such information discloses the commission of a cognizable offence, shall either investigate the case himself or direct an investigation to be made by any police officer subordinate to him, in the manner provided by this Code, and such officer shall have all the powers of an officer in charge of the police station in relation to that offence.

156. Police officer' s power to investigate cognizable case.

(1) Any officer in charge of a police station may, without the order of a Magistrate, investigate any cognizable case which a Court having jurisdiction over the local area within the limits of such station would have power to inquire into or try under the provisions of Chapter XIII.

(2) No proceeding of a police officer in any such case shall at any stage be called in question on the ground that the case was one which such officer was not empowered under this section to investigate.

(3) Any Magistrate empowered under section 190 may order such an investigation as above- mentioned."

10. From the perusal of the aforesaid provisions, it is evident that the police can investigate into matters relating to commission of 'cognizable offences' brought to its notice under section 154 Cr.P.C. Officer-in-charge of police station has power to investigate U/S 156(1) in such case. Magistrate has power to take cognizance u/s 190 Cr.P.C. on receiving the 'complaint'. Thus the matter relating to section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. relates to power of Magistrate to order investigation by police in matters relating to cognizable offences brought before it through complaint. Complaint has been defined in section 2(d) Cr.P.C. of as follows : "complaint' means any allegation made orally or in writing to a Magistrate, with a view to his taking action under this Code, that some person whether known or unknown, has committed an offence, but does not include a Police report." Code of Criminal Procedure has given different type of powers to deal with such matters relating to commission of cognizable offences when brought before it.

11. A Division bench of this Court in the case of ''Sukhwasi v. State of U.P., 2007(59) ACC 739" held as under:

"Applications under section 156(3) Cr.P.C. are coming in torrents. Provisions under section 156(3) Cr.P.C. should be used sparingly. They should not be used unless there is something unusual and extra ordinary like miscarriage of justice which warrants a direction to the Police to register a case. Such application should not be allowed because the law provides them with an alternative remedy of filing a complaint, therefore, recourse should not normally be permitted for availing the provisions of section 156(3) Cr.P.C.

The reference is, therefore, answered in the manner that it is not incumbent upon a Magistrate to allow an application section 156(3) Cr.P.C. and there is no such legal mandate".

12. However, the said judgement does not provide any reason as to why F.I.R. should not be registered in respect of a cognizable offence.

13. Learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance upon the judgement of the Apex Court in the case of Lalita Kumari Vs Goverment of Uttar Pradesh and another, reported in 2014 (2) SCC 1. He has relied upon paragraph 111 of the aforesaid judgement, which is reproduced herein under:-

"111) In view of the aforesaid discussion, we hold:

"i) Registration of FIR is mandatory under Section 154 of the Code, if the information discloses commission of a cognizable offence and no preliminary inquiry is permissible in such a situation.

ii) If the information received does not disclose a cognizable offence but indicates the necessity for an inquiry, a preliminary inquiry may be conducted only to ascertain whether cognizable offence is disclosed or not.

iii) If the inquiry discloses the commission of a cognizable offence, the FIR must be registered. In cases where preliminary inquiry ends in closing the complaint, a copy of the entry of such closure must be supplied to the first informant forthwith and not later than one week. It must disclose reasons in brief for closing the complaint and not proceeding further.

iv) The police officer cannot avoid his duty of registering offence if cognizable offence is disclosed. Action must be taken against erring officers who do not register the FIR if information received by him discloses a cognizable offence.

v) The scope of preliminary inquiry is not to verify the veracity or otherwise of the information received but only to ascertain whether the information reveals any cognizable offence.

vi) As to what type and in which cases preliminary inquiry is to be conducted will depend on the facts and circumstances of each case. The category of cases in which preliminary inquiry may be made are as under:

a) Matrimonial disputes/ family disputes

b) Commercial offences

c) Medical negligence cases

d) Corruption cases

e) Cases where there is abnormal delay/laches in initiating criminal prosecution, for example, over 3 months delay in reporting the matter without satisfactorily explaining the reasons for delay.

The aforesaid are only illustrations and not exhaustive of all conditions which may warrant preliminary inquiry.

vii) While ensuring and protecting the rights of the accused and the complainant, a preliminary inquiry should be made time bound and in any case it should not exceed 7 days. The fact of such delay and the causes of it must be reflected in the General Diary entry.

viii) Since the General Diary/Station Diary/Daily Diary is the record of all information received in a police station, we direct that all information relating to cognizable offences, whether resulting in registration of FIR or leading to an inquiry, must be mandatorily and meticulously reflected in the said Diary and the decision to conduct a preliminary inquiry must also be reflected, as mentioned above."

14. In view of the aforesaid, the orders dated 30.10.2019 passed by Special Judge, S.C./S.T (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, Jaunpur cannot be sustained. Accordingly, the present criminal misc. application succeeds and is allowed at the admission stage without issuing notice to the prospective accused persons as they have no right to be heard at pre-cognizance stage. The order dated 30.10.2019 passed by the Special Judge, S.C./S.T (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, Jaunpur are consequently set aside.

15. The concerned court below i.e. Special Judge, S.C./S.T (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, Jaunpur is directed to exercise his discretionary power and decide afresh the application under section 156(3) Cr.P.C. moved by the applicant and to pass appropriate order, in accordance with law, keeping in view the observations made by this court, within a period of one month from the date of production of a certified copy of this order.

16. With the aforesaid directions, the present application is allowed.

(A) Criminal law - Code of criminal procedure, 1973 - Sections 482 – Inherent jurisdiction - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Sections 323, 504, 506, 354, 354A, 354B IPC – taking cognizance - when the Magistrate applies his judicial mind to the facts mentioned in a complaint or to a police report or upon information received from any person regarding an offence - summoning order has to be passed after considering relevant material and showing appropriate reasons. (Para- 11,14)

Summoning order passed in a cyclostyled proforma and only the case number, name of accused and Sections of IPC were written by pen and rest of the contents are on a printed proforma order. (Para-14)

HELD:- It is apparent that there is nothing to indicate that the impugned order has been passed after applying judicial mind and thus, the impugned summoning order is not sustainable and, accordingly, the impugned summoning order is, hereby, set aside and learned trial court is directed to pass order afresh, in accordance with law. (Para-15)

Application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. disposed of finally. (E-7)

List Of Cases Cited:-

2. Ankit vs. St. of U.P. & anr., JIC 2010 (1) 432

(Delivered by Hon'ble Suresh Kumar Gupta, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the applicant and learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. This application under Section 482, Cr.P.C. has been filed for quashing the entire criminal proceedings of case No. 1505 of 2019 (State vs. Kaushal Kumar Gupta & others), arising out of case crime No. 304 of 2018, under Sections 323, 504, 506, 354, 354A, 354B IPC, Police Station-Adampur, District Varanasi, as well as charge sheet dated 02.05.2019 and cognizance order dated 07.11.2019, pending in the court of Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 7, District Varanasi.

3. The contention of the counsel for the applicants is that the applicants have been falsely implicated in this case and on the basis of false and frivolous allegation, the present FIR was lodged against the applicant. He further submitted that there is dispute between opposite party no. 2 and the applicant regarding residential house. He further submitted that no offence against the applicant is disclosed and the present prosecution has been instituted with a malafide intention for the purposes of harassment, the Investigating officer without collecting sufficient evidence submitted charge sheet under section 354 IPC against the applicant. He further submitted that learned Magistrate has not applied his judicial mind while in passing the cognizance order as the order has been made on a printed proforma, in which the name of the accused has been filled up by hand. This Court in the case of Ankit vs. State of U.P. and another, JIC 2010 (1) 432, has held that cognizance order being on a printed proforma is clearly without application of judicial mind and henc is liable to quash on this ground alone.

4. Learned counsel for the applicant also relied upon paragraph Nos. 6 and 12 of the judgement passed by Hon'ble Allahabad High Court in the case of Akash Garg Vs. State of U.P. reported in [2011 (11) ADJ 849].

"6. It is well settled that the Magistrate is not bound by the conclusion of the Investigating Officer. He is competent under law to form his own independent opinion on the basis of the materials collected during the investigation. The Magistrate may or may not agree with the conclusion of the Investigating Officer. If the Investigating Officer submits charge sheet, in that eventuality the Magistrate may differ from the charge sheet and refuse to take cognizance by holding that no case is made out. In a case where the final report is submitted the Magistrate may on perusal of the materials placed in support of the final report opine that the conclusion of the Investigating Officer is not correct and the offence is made out. In that eventuality, the Magistrate may reject the final report and take cognizance of the offence.

12. It is also well settled that at the stage of taking cognizance of an offence, the Magistrate is not required to examine thoroughly the merits and demerits of the case and to record a final verdict. At that stage he is not required to record even reasons, as expression of reasons in support of the cognizance may result in causing prejudice to the rights of the parties (complainant or accused) and may also in due course result in prejudicing the trial. However, the order of the Magistrate must reflect that he has applied his mind to the facts of the case. In other words at the stage of taking cognizance what is required from the Magistrate is to apply his mind to the facts of the case including the evidence collected during the investigation and to see whether or not there is sufficient ground (prima facie case) to proceed with the case. The law does not require the Magistrate to record reasons for taking cognizance of an offence."

5. What is meant by 'taking cognizance' in regard to an offence by a competent Magistrate is not defined or described in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (Cr.P.C.) or any other act. However the term has acquired a definite connotation through well settled judicial pronouncements.

6. The term 'taking cognizance' actually means 'become aware of', but in reference to a Court or a Judge, it means 'to take notice of judicially'. The term has no mystic significance in criminal law. In practice 'taking cognizance' means taking notice of an offence for initiation of proceedings under Section 190 Cr.P.C.

7. 'Cognizance' refers to the point when the court first takes judicial notice of an offence by not only applying its mind to the contents of the complaint/police report, but also proceeding further as provided further in Chapter XIV of the Cr.P.C.

8. Taking cognizance includes either taking steps to see whether there is basis for initiating a judicial proceeding or initiating a judicial proceeding against an offender by the Magistrate.

9. Ordinarily, a citizen can initiate criminal proceedings against an offence by two means. He may either lodge an FIR before the Police Officer (Station House Officer) if the offence is a cognizable one, or he may lodge complaint before a competent Judicial Magistrate irrespective of whether the offence is cognizable or non-cognizable. Any Magistrate of the first class and the duly empowered second class Magistrate may take cognizance of any offence for further proceedings.

10. As per Section 190(1) an empowered Magistrate may take cognizance of any offence-

a). Upon receiving a complaint of facts which constitute such an offence.

b). Upon a police report of such facts.

c). Upon information received from any person other than a police officer, or upon his own knowledge, that such an offence has been committed."

11. Thus the cognizance is taken when the Magistrate applies his judicial mind to the facts mentioned in a complaint or to a police report or upon information received from any person regarding an offence.

12. The issuance of process by the court occurs at a subsequent stage duly after considering the materials placed before it. It happens when the Magistrate decides to proceed against the offender whom a prima facie case is clearly made out. Taking cognizance of an offence is not equivalent to issuance of process: issuance of process takes place only after taking cognizance of the offence. When a Magistrate applies his mind for issue of process, he must be held to have taken cognizance of the offences the complaint put forth.

13. The cognizance and summoning order passed by learned Magistrate dated 07.11.2019 is read as under:-

"आज आरोप पत्र प्राप्त हुआ। समस्त अभियोजन प्रपत्रों का अवलोकन किया। संज्ञान लिया गया दर्ज रजिस्टर हो। पत्रावली में मूल अभियोजन प्रपत्र शामिल मिशिल किया गया। अभियुक्त जरिये सम्मन तलब हो पत्रावली वास्ते हाजिरी मुल्जिम दिनांक 28.01.20 को पेश हो।"

14. Perusal of the record shows that impugned summoning order dated 07.11.2019 has been passed in a cyclostyled proforma and only the case number, name of accused and Sections of IPC were written by pen and rest of the contents are on a printed proforma order. It is well settled that summoning order has to be passed after considering relevant material and showing appropriate reasons.

15. Considering the above-stated facts and law as referred above, it is apparent that there is nothing to indicate that the said impugned order has been passed after applying judicial mind and thus, the impugned summoning order dated 07.11.2019 is not sustainable and, accordingly, the impugned summoning order dated 07.11.2019 is, hereby, set aside and learned trial court is directed to pass order afresh, in accordance with law.

16. With the aforesaid observations, the instant application is disposed of finally.

(A) Criminal Law-Code of criminal procedure, 1973 - Sections 482 – Inherent jurisdiction - Section 227 – Discharge – Section 228 Cr.P.C. – Framing of charge - Indian Penal Code, 1860 – Sections 302 and 201 I.P.C. - exercise of inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is within the limits. (Para-10)

Statement of accused, made to police, while in custody, is not admissible - statement of accomplices and statements in close proximity of time and their conduct are to be seen at the time of making of judicial decision making - learned trial court concluded for framing of charge for offence of conspiracy for murder, followed by murder of neighbour, against applicant and this was on the basis of evidence, on the basis of which charge sheet was filed and cognizance was taken by Magistrate - there was sufficient reason and evidence on record.(Para-6)

HELD:- Trial court at the stage of disposal of application under Section 227, 228 Cr.P.C. need not to make meticulous analysis of evidence on record. Rather a prima facie case is to be seen as to whether there exist prima facie case for framing of charge and prima facie case is to be decided in view of guidelines given by apex court in Sajjan Kumar Vs. 9. Dhanlakshmi Vs. R.Prasana Kumar, (1990) Cr LJ 320 (DB): AIR 1990 SC 494

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Krishna Gautam, J.)

1. The applicant, by means of this application under Section 482 Cr.P.C., has invoked the inherent jurisdiction of this Court with prayer to quash the impugned order dated 18.01.2012, passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 3, Bulandshahar in Session Trial No. 579 of 2011, arising out of Case Crime No.175 of 2010, State Versus Madan and others, under Sections 302 and 201 I.P.C., Police Station Ahmedgarh, District Bulandshahar.

2. Heard learned counsel for applicant, learned A.G.A. for State and perused the record.

3. Learned counsel for applicant argued that applicant is of no concern with offence of murder of Sonu. There is no connecting evidence against her. On the basis of her confessional statement, charge sheet has been filed, whereas prosecution version is that she was under illicit relation with Anil. It was witnessed by Sonu and Ganesh, who were residing with husband of applicant at his home. They protested this illicit relation. Applicant entered in conspiracy with Anil for getting rid from Ganesh and Sonu. In between, Anil was murdered, wherein Ganesh and Sonu were accused for offence of murder. Ganesh was detained in judicial custody. Sonu was subsequently murdered. For this offence of murder, case was got registered against one Madan. Subsequently, Madan and Deepak were added as party and on the basis of alleged illicit relation, charge sheet has been filed against applicant. Learned Additional Sessions Judge opined and framed charge for offence punishable under Section 302, 201 I.P.C., which was challenged before this Court in Application U/S 482 No. 26741 of 2011 and this Court vide order dated 21.11.2011 allowed above application, thereby quashed order of framing of charge against applicant. The file was remanded back to trial court for hearing afresh and passing order over application moved under Section 227 Cr.P.C., in view of discussions, made by this Court, in above order. After hearing both sides, application under Section 227 Cr.P.C. was rejected and subsequently an order for framing of charge for offence punishable under Section 302 I.P.C. and its conspiracy punishable under Section 201 I.P.C. was passed, which has been assailed in this proceeding.

4. Learned A.G.A. has vehemently opposed the application with this contention that there is a prima facie case for filing of charge sheet and cognizance taken over it. At the time of framing of charge, meticulous and detailed analysis of facts is not to be made by trial court. Even on the basis of strong suspicion, charge may be framed and it has been rightly been framed by trial court. Hence, this application be dismissed.

5. Having heard learned counsel for both sides and gone through material placed on record coupled with order of this Court, passed in Application U/S 482 No. 26741 of 2011 (supra), it is apparent that trial court at the stage of disposal of application under Section 227, 228 Cr.P.C. need not to make meticulous analysis of evidence on record. Rather a prima facie case is to be seen as to whether there exist prima facie case for framing of charge and prima facie case is to be decided in view of guidelines given by apex court in Sajjan Kumar Vs. Central Bureau of Investigation, JT 2010 (10) SC 413. The apex court in Palwinder Singh Vs. Balwinder Singh and others; (2008) 14 Supreme Court Cases 504 has propounded that jurisdiction of learned Sessions Judge, while exercising power under Section 227 Cr.P.C. is limited. Charge can be framed also on the basis of strong suspicion. Marshaling and appreciation of evidence is not in the domain of court at that point of time. Pre-trial acquittal not permitted. Pre-trial charge acquittal is never accepted. The Court cannot appreciate evidence at the stage of framing of charge. The same law has been propounded by apex court in Shoraj Singh Ahlawat & Ors vs State Of U.P. & Anr; AIR 2013 Supreme Court 52.

6. In present case, initially charge was framed for offence under Sections 302, 201 I.P.C. and this order was set aside by Court, as above, with a direction for deciding the same afresh. The accusations since the lodging of first information report was that Smt. Pooja was under illicit relations with Anil and it was seen by her Dewar (brother-in-law) and Sonu (neighbour), who had protested it. This compelled Pooja for hatching conspiracy with Anil for getting rid from Ganesh and Sonu. Ganesh and Sonu were taken by Anil to the shop of Deepak at Delhi. They were present in company in close proximity of time when Anil was found dead and a case was got lodged for offence of murder of Anil against Ganesh and Sonu, wherein Ganesh is in judicial custody. For getting rid of Sonu and for getting the revenge of above murder, Madan and Deepak hatched conspiracy with Smt. Pooja, wherein Sonu was taken by Madan and Deepak and under close proximity of time he remained with them. Subsequently, his dead body was found. Autopsy examination followed by inquest proceeding established death of Sonu as a result of anti mortem injuries. Meaning thereby, it was not a suicide or accidental death. Rather it was a homicide death and this homicide death was instantly complained by his father to be a murder by Smt. Pooja under conspiracy with Madan and Deepak and motive for this conspiracy was said to be illicit relation in between Anil and Pooja, for which there was persistent resistance by Ganesh and Sonu. Last seen evidence of Sonu being in company of Deepak and Madan; the motive for this murder; hatching of conspiracy for elimination of Ganesh and Sonu by Pooja in connivance with Anil; subsequently with Deepak and Madan was therein case diary. The other witnesses, examined under Section 161 Cr.P.C., have reiterated those ingredients. It was coupled with statement of those co-accused persons as well as of Smt. Pooja. Though, statement of accused, made to police, while in custody, is not admissible, but it being a statement of accomplices and statements in close proximity of time and their conduct are to be seen at the time of making of judicial decision making, but under all those facts and circumstances, learned trial court concluded for framing of charge for offence of conspiracy for murder, followed by murder of Sonu, against applicant Pooja and this was on the basis of evidence, on the basis of which charge sheet was filed and cognizance was taken by Magistrate. Hence, for this order, there was sufficient reason and evidence on record.

7. Moreso, this Court, in exercise of inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C., is not to embark upon factual matrix, because it may prejudice fair trial.

8. Saving of inherent power of High Court, as given under Section 482 Cr.P.C, provides that nothing in this Code shall be deemed to limit or affect the inherent powers of the High Court to make such orders as may be necessary to give effect to any order under this Code, or to prevent abuse of the process of any Court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice. Meaning thereby this inherent power is with High Court (I) to make such order as may be necessary to give effect to any other order under this Code (II) to prevent abuse of the process of any Court (III) or otherwise to secure the ends of justice. But Apex Court in State of Andhra Pradesh v. Gaurishetty Mahesh, JT 2010 (6) SC 588: (2010) 6 SCALE 767: 2010 Cr. LJ 3844 has propounded that "While exercising jurisdiction under section 482 of the Code, the High Court would not ordinarily embark upon an enquiry whether the evidence in question is reliable or not or whether on a reasonable apprehension of it accusation would not be sustained. That is the function of the trial Judge/Court". In another subsequent Hamida v. Rashid, (2008) 1 SCC 474, hon'ble Apex Court propounded that "Ends of justice would be better served if valuable time of the Court is spent in hearing those appeals rather than entertaining petitions under Section 482 at an interlocutory stage which after filed with some oblique motive in order to circumvent the prescribed procedure, or to delay the trial which enable to win over the witness or may disinterested in giving evidence, ultimately resulting in miscarriage of Justice". In again another subsequent Monica Kumar v. State of Uttar Pradesh, (2008) 8 SCC 781, the Apex Court has propounded "Inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 has to be exercised sparingly, carefully and with caution and only when such exercise is justified by the tests specifically laid down in the section itself." While interpreting this jurisdiction of High Court Apex Court in Popular Muthiah v. State, Represented by Inspector of Police, (2006) 7 SCC 296 has propounded "High Court can exercise jurisdiction suo motu in the interest of justice. It can do so while exercising other jurisdictions such as appellate or revisional jurisdiction. No formal application for invoking inherent jurisdiction is necessary. Inherent jurisdiction can be exercised in respect of substantive as well as procedural matters. It can as well be exercised in respect of incidental or supplemental power irrespective of nature of proceedings".

9. Regarding prevention of abuse of process of Court, Apex Court in Dhanlakshmi v. R.Prasana Kumar, (1990) Cr LJ 320 (DB): AIR 1990 SC 494 has propounded "To prevent abuse of the process of the Court, High Court in exercise of its inherent powers under section 482 could quash the proceedings but there would be justification for interference only when the complaint did not disclose any offence or was frivolous vexatious or oppressive" as well as in State of Bihar v. Murad Ali Khan, (1989) Cr LJ 1005: AIR 1989 SC 1, Apex Court propounded "In exercising jurisdiction under Section 482 High Court would not embark upon an enquiry whether the allegations in the complaint are likely to be established by evidence or not".

10. Meaning thereby, exercise of inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is within the limits, propounded as above. Accordingly, this application merits its dismissal. The application is dismissed as such.

Complaint under section 138 of the Negotiable Instrument Act - Magistrate after recording the statement of the complainant as well as witnesses under Sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C. - summoned the applicant - Magistrate not applied judicial mind in passing the summoning order - order made on a printed proforma - where only information of case number, name of parties, section, date and next date is to be filled by Magistrate in handwriting. (Para -3,4)

HELD:- The conduct of the judicial officers concerned in passing orders on printed proforma by filling up the blanks without application of judicial mind is objectionable and deserves to be deprecated - The summoning of an accused in a criminal case is a serious matter and the order must reflect that Magistrate had applied his mind to the facts as well as law applicable thereto. (Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan , J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the applicant and learned AGA for the State.

2. This application has been filed for setting aside the entire proceeding of Complaint Case No.1946 of 2016 (Pawan Kumar Vs. Deepak Jha), under Section 138 of Negotiable Instruments Act, Police Station Prem Nagar, District Jhansi, arising out of impugned summoning order dated 22.02.2019 passed by learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No.2, Jhansi as well as to set aside the impugned summoning order dated 22.02.2019.

3. Record reflects that a complaint under section 138 of the Negotiable Instrument Act was filed on 15.12.2016 by opposite party no. 2- Pawan Kumar Jain against the applicant herein alleging dishonoring of cheque, on the ground of insufficiency of fund. The Magistrate concerned after recording the statement of the complainant as well as witnesses under Sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C., vide impugned order dated 22.02.2019 has summoned the applicant.

4. While assailing the impugned summoning order, contention of learned counsel for the applicant is that the Magistrate has not applied judicial mind in passing the summoning order as the order has been made on a printed proforma, in which the name of the accused has been filled up by hand.

5. Relying upon the decision of this Court in Ankit Vs. State of U.P. and another, JIC 2010 (1) 432, submission of the learned counsel for the applicants is that the order impugned being on a printed proforma is clearly without application of judicial mind and hence is liable to be quashed on this ground alone.

6. `Learned AGA has also admitted that the order impugned has been passed on the printed proforma and therefore, keeping in view the decision in the case of Ankit (supra), the Magistrate concerned may be directed to pass a fresh order.

7. I have considered the arguments so advanced by learned counsel for the applicant and learned A.G.A. and also perused the record.

8. The certified copy of the order summoning the accused has been appended as Annexure-3. From a perusal of the above order, it is evident that it is a typed proforma where only information of case number, name of parties, section, date and next date is to be filled by Magistrate in handwriting. It appears that the blanks in the printed proforma have been filled up by some court employee and the Magistrate namely Sri Manoj Kumar Tiwari, Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No.2, Jhansi, has thereafter just put his initial, which leads to the conclusion that the Magistrate has passed the order in a mechanical manner without application of judicial mind.

9. Despite there being a series of decisions of the Apex Court and this Court disapproving such practice of passing orders on printed proforma by the judicial officers, it is very painful and unfortunate to see that applicant in the present case has been summoned by the Magistrate by an order in which blanks have been filled in on a printed proforma without applying judicial mind. This type of order has already been held unsustainable by this Court in the case of Ankit (supra) relying on in a number of decisions of the Apex Court. The relevant portion of the said decision, is extracted below:

"Although as held by this Court in the case of Megh Nath Guptas & Anr V State of U.P. And Anr, 2008 (62) ACC 826, in which reference has been made to the cases of Deputy Chief Controller Import and Export Vs Roshan Lal Agarwal, 2003 (4^) ACC 686 (SC), UP Pollution Control Board Vs Mohan Meakins, 2000 (2) JIC 159 (SC): AIR 2000 SC 1456 and Kanti Bhadra Vs State of West Bengal, 2000 (1) JIC 751 (SC): 2000 (40) ACC 441 (SC), the Magistrate is not required to pass detailed reasoned order at the time of taking cognizance on the charge sheet, but it does not mean that order of taking cognizance can be passed by filling up the blanks on printed proforma. At the time of passing any judicial order including the order taking cognizance on the charge sheet, the Court is required to apply judicial mind and even the order of taking cognizance cannot be passed in mechanical manner. Therefore, the impugned order is liable to be quashed and the matter has to be sent back to the Court below for passing fresh order on the charge sheet after applying judicial mind."(Emphasis supplied)

10. In view of the above, the conduct of the judicial officers concerned in passing orders on printed proforma by filling up the blanks without application of judicial mind is objectionable and deserves to be deprecated. The summoning of an accused in a criminal case is a serious matter and the order must reflect that Magistrate had applied his mind to the facts as well as law applicable thereto.

11. In view of what has been stated above, the present application is allowed. The order impugned dated 22.02.2019 passed by Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Jhansi is hereby quashed. The Magistrate is directed to pass fresh order after applying the judicial mind.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan , J.)

1. Supplementary affidavit filed today is taken on record.

2. Heard Sri Mohd. Afzal learned counsel for the applicant, Sri Amit Singh Chauhan, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the entire record.

3. This application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed with a prayer to quash the proceedings of Complaint Case No.1047/2017, under Section 138 of Negotiable Instrument Act (in short, 'N.I. Act'), Police Station Kotwali City, District Bijnor as well as impugned summoning order dated 19.04.2018 passed by Judge Additional Court, Bijnor.

4. Brief facts of the case are that a complaint has been filed with the allegation that the applicant and opposite party no.2 were having friendly relations to each other, due to this the applicant borrowed Rs.5,10,000/- in the month of April-May, 2016 from opposite party no.2. The money was given with the assurance that the same will be returned after two months. The time period of two months elapsed and the applicant did not return the aforesaid money taken by him. A cheque no.384965 dated 04.05.2017 issued from U.P. Gramin Bank from Account No.92810100195567 of Rs.2,00,000/- was given by the applicant to the complainant. However, the date on the cheque was filled as 25.09.2017. The applicant asked the complainant to present the cheque stating that by that time he will be having the said amount in his account. Believing the applicant, the cheque was presented on 25.09.2017 at Kotak Mahindra Bank, but the same was returned on 11.10.2017 due to "insufficient funds". When the complainant inquired about the same, no specific reply was given, therefore, notice was given on 07.11.2017 to the accused and since neither the reply was given nor any money was returned, after the legal notice being given to the accused the complaint was filed.

5. It has been contended by learned counsel for the applicant that the applicant has been summoned without following the procedure as laid down in the case of J V Baharuni, Giriraj Proteins Pvt. Ltd. Baldevbhai Ramjibhai Patel vs. State of Gujarat, D M Finance, Vishnubhai Hargovinddas Patel reported in 2014 (10) SCC 494. It has further been submitted that the order sheet of the trial court, which has been appended as Annexure no.SA-1 to this supplementary affidavit in support of this petition, reflects that the procedure has not been followed. He has referred to Paragraph No. 61 of the aforesaid judgment, which is reproduced herein below:-

"61. However, to summarise and answer the issues raised herein, following directions are issued for the Courts seized off with similar cases:

1. All the subordinate Courts must make an endeavour to expedite the hearing of cases in a time bound manner which in turn will restore the confidence of the common man in the justice delivery system. When law expects something to be done within prescribed time limit, some efforts are required to be made to obey the mandate of law.

2. The learned Magistrate has the discretion under Section 143 of the N.I. Act either to follow a summary trial or summons trial. In case the Magistrate wants to conduct a summons trial, he should record the reasons after hearing the parties and proceed with the trial in the manner provided under the second proviso to Section 143 of the N.I. Act. Such reasons should necessarily be recorded by the Trial Court so that further litigation arraigning the mode of trial can be avoided.

3. The learned Judicial Magistrate should make all possible attempts to encourage compounding of offence at an early stage of litigation. In a prosecution under the Negotiable Instruments Act, the compensatory aspect of remedy must be given priority over the punitive aspect.

4. All the subordinate Courts should follow the directives of the Supreme Court issued in several cases scrupulously for effective conduct of trials and speedy disposal of cases.

5. Remitting the matter for de novo trial should be exercised as a last resort and should be used sparingly when there is grave miscarriage of justice in the light of illegality, irregularity, incompetence or any other defect which cannot be cured at an appellate stage. The appellate Court should be very cautious and exercise the discretion judiciously while remanding the matter for de novo trial.

6. While examining the nature of the trial conducted by the Trial Court for the purpose of determining whether it was summary trial or summons trial, the primary and predominant test to be adopted by the appellate Court should be whether it was only the substance of the evidence that was recorded or whether the complete record of the deposition of the witness in their chief examination, cross examination and re-examination in verbatim was faithfully placed on record. The appellate Court has to go through each and every minute detail of the Trial Court record and then examine the same independently and thoroughly to reach at a just and reasonable conclusion."

6. It has further been contended by learned counsel for the applicant that the concerned court below, while passing the summoning order dated 19.04.2018, treated the complaint filed by the complainant-opposite party no.2 as a complaint case and proceeded with the same as a complaint case. However, no reason has been recorded in the order dated 19.04.2018 as to why a departure has been made from the procedure provided under Section 138 of N.I. Act. Although the petitioner had filed a discharge application, which has been rejected by the court below vide order dated 19.04.2018 but the learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the petitioner should not suffer for fault on the part of lawyers, who had not taken such a ground before the court concerned. Learned counsel for the petitioner, therefore, submits that once the Apex Court in the case of J V Baharuni, Giriraj Proteins Pvt. Ltd. Baldevbhai Ramjibhai Patel (Supra) has issued direction to all the courts in India to strictly comply with the directions contained in the aforesaid case, no exception can be carved out by the court below to the same. It is, thus, contended that since the summoning order passed by the court below without following the procedure as laid down in the case of J V Baharuni, Giriraj Proteins Pvt. Ltd. Baldevbhai Ramjibhai Patel (Supra), the same cannot be sustained and is, therefore, liable to be quashed.

7. In support of his contention, learned counsel for the applicant has also relied upon the judgment passed in Application u/s 482 No.30953 of 2018 (Bali Ram @ Vinod Kumar Vs. State of U.P. & others) and Matter under Article 227 No.9655 of 2019 (Atausalam @ Chhote Vs. State of U.P. & another).

8. Per contra, learned A.G.A. for the State has opposed the contention raised by the learned counsel for the applicant by submitting that the disputed cheque was issued by the applicant but the same have been dishonoured. Therefore, the opposite party no.2 was right in proceeding against the applicant by filing a complaint under Section 138 N.I. Act.

9. Consequently, the present criminal misc. application succeeds and is allowed. The impugned summoning order dated 19.04..2018 passed by Judge, Additional Court, Bijnor is hereby, set aside. The matter is remanded to the Judge, Additional Court, Bijnor to decide the summoning of the applicant afresh in light of the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of J V Baharuni, Giriraj Proteins Pvt. Ltd. Baldevbhai Ramjibhai Patel (Supra) within a period of one month from the date of production of a certified copy of this order.

5. Amrawati & anr. Vs. St. of U.P. , 2004 (57) ALR 290

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Krishna Gautam, J.)

1. This Application, under Section 482 of Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, (Hereinafter, in short, referred to as 'Cr.P.C.'), has been filed by the Applicants, Sunil Soni (Brother-in-law and Smt. Pooja Soni (Sister-in-law), with a prayer for setting aside impugned summoning order, dated 27.9.2019, and for quashing of entire proceeding of Case No.115 of 2019, re-registered as Case No.1158 of 2019 (State vs. Mukesh Soni and others), arising out of Case Crime No.366 of 2019, under Sections-498-A and 304-B of Indian Penal Code, 1860 (Hereinafter, in short, referred to as 'IPC'), read with Section 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act, Police Station-Kotwali Jhansi, District-Jhansi, pending before the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Jhansi.

2. Learned counsel for applicants argued that both of the applicants were married eight years before the occurrence. They were residing at a remote place, which is at a distance of more than eighty kilometers, in Madhya Pradesh and are having no concern with the affairs of the family of the deceased and also are having no concern with regard to demand of dowry, if any, or cruelty, with regard to it or, for that matter, dowry death of the deceased. Pursuant to general allegations, levelled against them, they have been roped in this case for above offences, just to harass them, whereas, Investigating Officer has not chargesheeted them because of the fact that they were not concerned with the occurrence, but, the informant submitted an application before learned Magistrate, at the time of taking of cognizance, wherein, cognizance, for offences, punishable, under various Sections, has been taken against the applicants, too, and, thereby, process of summoning has been issued. It was under abuse of process of law, in view of law laid down by the Apex Court, in the case of Geeta Mehrotra and another vs. State of U.P. and another, (2012) 10 SCC 741. Hence, for avoiding abuse of process of law and to secure ends of justice, this Application, under Section 482 of Cr.P.C., has been filed, with above prayer.

3. Learned AGA, representing State of U.P., has vehemently opposed this Application.

4. First information report reveals that it was got lodged, upon a report of Jagdish Prasad Soni, under Sections 498A and 304B of IPC, read with Section 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act, against Mukesh Soni, Ashok Soni, Munna Soni, Smt. Bina Bai, Smt. Pooja Devi and Sunil Soni. Accusation, therein, was with regard to demand of dowry and cruelty, with regard to it. Marriage was performed on 18.2.2018 and since very beginning, above demand of dowry, coupled with cruelty for it, being made by all those named accused persons. It has been specifically mentioned that present applicants were also amongst them, who were not satisfied with dowry, and were demanding additional dowry, resulting in cruelty with regard to it.

5. Investigation proceeded, wherein, statements of informant and other witnesses were got recorded. It culminated in submission of chargesheet against Mukesh Soni, Ashok Soni, Munna Soni and Smt. Bina Bai, for offences, under Sections 498A and 304B of IPC, read with Section 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act, leaving behind Smt. Pooja Devi and Sunil Soni. An application, by the informant, was moved before the Magistrate that there had been evidence in the statements, recorded, under Section 161 of Cr.P.C., as of informant and other witnesses, too, wherein specific accusation of demand of a four wheeler, as additional dowry, coupled with cruelty, with regard to it, against accused persons, including, Smt. Pooja Devi and Sunil Soni, present applicants, herein, was there and even after it, the chargesheet has been filed in this case, leaving behind them (present applicants herein).

6. Learned Magistrate heard both sides and found that there were statements, recorded, under Section 161 of Cr.P.C., as of informant and other witnesses, who were fully intact, even then, the Investigating Officer, without any reasons, has left those two accused persons (present applicants herein), and as such, on the basis of the evidence, collected in the chargesheet, itself, those two accused persons, applicants herein, were also summoned.

7. Repeated propositions of law, as has been propounded by the Apex Court, is that the Court is not bound by the conclusion drawn by the Investigating Officer, while submitting chargesheet, rather, application of judicial mind, at the stage of cognizance taking, is to be made by the Court and if some other conclusion is being drawn, on he basis of evidence collected by the Investigating Officer, then, the Court may take a decision otherwise also, as above.

8. Meaning thereby, the opinion and finding of Investigating Officer is not binding upon the Magistrate, but, the Magistrate has to take a decision on the basis of the evidence, collected and contained in the Case Diary, prepared, during investigation. No additional document of fact is to be taken at that juncture of taking cognizance and in present case, statement of informant, Jagdish Prasad Soni and other witnesses, namely, Devendra Kumar, Smt. Bharati Devi, Ramesh Chandra and Dharmendra Kumar, were fully intact and accusation of first information report was reiterated in those statements. Hence, conclusion drawn by the Magistrate was in accordance with the evidence collected by the Investigating Officer, as contained in the Case Diary. Therefore, while passing impugned summoning order, learned Magistrate has not committed any abuse of process of law.

9. Section 304B of Indian Penal Code, 1860, reads as under:

"304B. Dowry death.-(1) Where death of a woman is caused by any burns or bodily injury or occurs otherwise than under normal circumstances, within seven years of her marriage and it is shown that soon before her death, she was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry, such death shall be called "dowry death", and such husband or relative shall be deemed to have caused her death.

(2) Whoever commits dowry death shall be punished with imprisonment for a term, which shall not be less than seven years, but which may extend to imprisonment for life."

10. Meaning thereby, the essential ingredients for offence of dowry death and punishment therof is death of a woman caused by any burns or bodily injury or occurs otherwise than under normal circumstances. This unnatural death of deceased, within seven years of marriage, appears to have shown that soon before her death, deceased was subjected to cruelty or harassment by husband or any relative of her husband and this cruelty was in connection with any demand of dowry. This will be a "dowry death", punishable, under sub-section (2) of Section 304B of IPC, as above.

11. In present case in hand, death of the deceased is within one and a half years of marriage at nuptial house, by burn and bodily injuries, coupled with accusation of demand of dowry since very beginning of marriage against husband, father, mother, brother, sister and brother-in-law is there. Present applicants are the real sister of the husband and the husband of real sister of husband. Both of them come within the the category of relative of husband. Hence, charges for those offences were made out against the applicants, too, and on the basis of evidence, collected in the Case Diary, by the Investigating Officer, cognizance was taken by the learned Magistrate, which was perfectly a valid and legal order, passed in accordance with law, and as such, there was no abuse of process of law, warranting interference of this Court, in exercise of inherent power, conferred upon it by Section 482 of Cr.P.C.

12. So far as law, as laid down by the Apex Court, in the case of Geeta Mehrotra and another vs. State of U.P. and another (Supra), cited by the learned counsel for the applicants is concerned, the facts of above case and the facts of present case are entirely different. In Geeta Mehrotra's case (Supra), the unmarried sister-in-law, i.e., Nand and Jeth (Elder brother of husband and brother-in-law) were arrayed as the accused and they were of no concern with the occurrence. Hence, in such circumstances, law was laid by the Apex Court, whereas, in present case, learned Magistrate has applied its judicial mind and on the application of judicial mind, on the basis of evidences, collected by the Investigating Officer, in the Case Diary, impugned summoning order has been passed.

13. Remaining argument of present applicants of having no concern with the occurrence of dowry death, is a question of fact to be seen by the Trial court and this Court, in exercise of inherent power, under Section 482 of Cr.P.C., is not expected to embark upon factual matrix because it may prejudice a fair trial.

14. Regarding prevention of abuse of process of Court, Apex Court, in the case of Dhanlakshmi v. R.Prasana Kumar, (1990) Cr LJ 320 (DB): AIR 1990 SC 494, has propounded "To prevent abuse of the process of the Court, High Court, in exercise of its inherent powers under section 482, could quash the proceedings, but, there would be justification for interference only when the complaint did not disclose any offence or was frivolous vexatious or oppressive" as well as in the case of State of Bihar v. Murad Ali Khan, (1989) Cr LJ 1005: AIR 1989 SC 1, Apex Court propounded "In exercising jurisdiction under Section 482 High Court would not embark upon an enquiry whether the allegations in the complaint are likely to be established by evidence or not".

15. Meaning thereby, exercise of inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is within the limits, propounded as above.

16. In view of what has been discussed above, this Application, under Section 482 of Cr.P.C., merits dismissal and it stands dismissed accordingly. However, it is made clear that the Trial court has to make trial as per evidence to be led before it and the law of Legislation as well as precedents on the subject and not to be influenced by any observations or findings made, hereinabove, in this judgment because the same was pertaining to this proceeding only.

17. However, it is directed that if the applicants appear and surrender before the court below within 30 days from today and apply for bail, their prayer for bail shall be considered and decided in view of the settled law laid by this Court in the case of Amrawati and another Vs. State of U.P. reported in 2004 (57) ALR 290 as well as judgement passed by Hon'ble Apex Court reported in 2009 (3) ADJ 322 (SC) Lal Kamlendra Pratap Singh Vs. State of U.P.

18. For a period of 30 days from today, no coercive action shall be taken against the applicants.

19. In case, if the applicants do not appear before the Court below within the aforesaid period, coercive action shall be taken against them.

1. Heard Mr. Indra Kumar Chaturvedi, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Mr. Siddhartha Kumar Mishra, learned counsel for applicant and Mr. Virendra Kumar Maurya, learned Additional Government Advocate, assisted by Mr. Vikash Chandra Tewari, learned brief holder for the State of U.P./opposite party No.1 and perused the record with the assistance of learned counsel for the parties.

2. This application under section 482 of Code of Criminal Procedure, (herein-after referred to as 'Cr.P.C'.) has been preferred by the applicant against the order dated 19.12.2019 passed by the learned Additional Sessions Judge (Fast Track Court-I), Bhadohi-Gyanpur in Sessions Trial No. 87 of 2018 (State vs Shri Prakash Mishra) arising out of Case Crime No. 94 of 2010, under section 376 IPC, police station Aurai, district Bhadohi, whereby application No. 6 Kha, dated 10.04.2018 under section 207 Cr.P.C. moved on behalf of the applicant has been rejected. Further prayer has been made to direct the trial court to supply the copy of relevant documents as mentioned in the application dated 10.04.2018 as per provision of section 207 Cr.P.C.

3. The main issues, which have arisen for consideration in the present case, are as under:

(i) "Whether any document which is neither part of case diary nor police report under section 173 Cr.P.C., on which the prosecution does not propose to rely can be given to accused in compliance of provisions contained under section 207 of Code of Criminal Procedure ?"

(ii) "Whether documents as mentioned in section 207 of Code of Criminal Procedure can be supplied to accused even after commitment of case to the Court of Sessions, in case same has not been supplied to accused either in full or in part before commitment of case to the Court of Sessions?"

4. After going through the record of this case, I find that this is an old case of the year 2010 and is being unnecessarily dragged since long on the issue of compliance of the provisions provided under section 207 of Cr.P.C. Since, this case has a chequered history in this regard, therefore, before delving into the issue, it is necessary to mention factual matrix of the case in brief. The occurrence is alleged to have been taken place on 26.03.2010 at village Sikarha, police station Handia, district Allahabad and the first information report was lodged by victim on 27.03.2010 registered at Book No. 036427 at police station Aurai district Sant Ravidas Nagar (Bhadohi). The investigation of the case was conducted by the police of police station Aurai, district Sant Ravidas Nagar and the charge sheet was submitted on 14.06.2010 against the applicant, on which cognizance had already been taken by the Magistrate concerned on 22.06.2010.

5. As per the case of the accused-applicant, same first information report was also registered at Book No. 036428, but on account of some irregularities, original copy of the same was not forwarded to court. On 05.11.2011, 06.06.2011, 08.09.2015 and 12.05.2016, applications were moved on behalf of the applicant to provide copy of all the documents/police papers along with copy of first information report registered at Book No. 036428. The aforesaid applications of the applicant has been decided vide order dated 28.05.2016 directing the concerned clerk to prepare copy of all the documents, on which prosecution proposes to rely and to provide the same to the applicant, but so far as the prayer of the applicant for providing copy of first information report registered at Book No. 036428 is concerned, the same was rejected by the same order dated 28.05.2016 observing that as per report submitted by police, the first information report dated 27.03.2010 of this case was registered at Book No. 036427, original copy of said first information report is available on record and considering the same, cognizance of this case was taken by the Magistrate. It is also observed that due to inadvertent mistake, on the basis of same information, another first information report was also registered at Book No. 036428, therefore, it is not justified to give copy of the same to the applicant for the purpose of this case.

6. The aforesaid order dated 28.05.2016 had been challenged by the applicant in Criminal Revision No. 39 of 2016 before the Sessions Judge, Bhadohi, which has been dismissed by order dated 03.06.2016. Both the aforesaid orders dated 28.5.2016 and 03.06.2016 have not been further challenged by the applicant, and as such same have attained finality.

7. The applicant again on 09.06.2016 and 14.06.2016 moved applications for providing copy of first information report registered at Book Nos. 036427 and 036428, but the said applications were again rejected vide order dated 18.06.2016 by the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bhadohi observing that the same prayer was earlier made by the applicant through the applications dated 05.11.2011, 06.06.2011, 08.09.2015 and 12.05.2016, which have already been decided vide order dated 28.05.2016, therefore, moving of another application with same prayer is not liable to be accepted.

8. In the order dated 18.06.2016, it is also mentioned that so far as registration of first information report at Book No. 036428 is concerned, an explanation has already been tendered by the concerned police station on 07.06.2016. Case is of the year 2010, but committal of the case is being lingered on due to non cooperation of the applicant on one ground or the other. The Magistrate concerned while deciding application dated 14.06.2016 has also directed the applicant to co-operate in the proceedings of committal with further direction to the concerned clerk to get the copy of all the police papers prepared afresh fixing 02.07.2016 for providing the same to the applicant. On 02.07.2016, learned Magistrate again directed the concerned clerk to get the copy of all prosecution papers prepared fixing 23.07.2016 for supply of copies and committal of case. At that stage, the applicant moved an application dated 02.07.2016 praying therein to pass an order under section 173(8) of Cr.P.C. for further investigation in the matter by the police of police station Handia, district Allahabad. Thereafter, the applicant started sending adjournment applications seeking exemption of his personal appearance before the trial court on 23.07.2016, 09.08.2016, 12.08.2016, 24.08.2016, 02.09.2016, 03.10.2016, 14.10.2016, 20.10.2016, 28.10.2016, 24.11.2016, 03.12.2016, 09.12.2016, 13.12.2016. 03.01.2017, 11.01.2017, 19.01.2017, 31.01.2017, 15.03.2017, 24.04.2017, 18.05.2017, 03.06.2017, 17.06.2017, 26.07.2017, 26.08.2017, 11.09.2017, 28.10.2017, 22.11.2017, 23.12.2017, 11.01.2018, 24.01.2018, 15.02.2018, 15.03.2018, 19.03.2018, 20.03.2018.

9. On 21.03.2018, the applicant moved an application praying therein that an explanation be called for from the police station Aurai in respect of F.I.R. registered at Book No. 36428. On 24.03.2018 when the case was fixed for committal of the case, the applicant moved another application challenging the validity of cognizance taken in the matter. All the aforesaid applications dated 02.07.2016, 21.03.2018 and 24.03.2018 were decided and rejected by common order dated 24.03.2018 and further date was fixed on 27.03.2018 for committal of the case to the court of sessions.

10. On 27.03.2018, learned counsel for accused was present, but again application was moved on behalf of accused-applicant for exemption of his personal appearance. On the said date, copies of all the documents/police papers were ready for being supplied to the accused, but learned counsel for accused refused to receive the same and was insisting to provide copy of Chik F.I.R. registered at Book No. 036428 after getting the original copy summoned from the police station, Aurai, district Sant Ravidas Nagar.

11. Under the circumstances, on 27.03.2018 before committing the case to the court of sessions, a detailed order was passed before lunch hours by the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate concerned mentioning that all the prayer and objections raised on behalf of applicant by means of several applications, as mentioned above, have already been decided. However, one more opportunity was given to the accused to receive the copy of all the documents/police papers, otherwise it shall be presumed that accused-applicant is not cooperating in the proceedings of the court. Case was posted after lunch hour for committal of case. After lunch hour, the court of Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bhadohi, Gyanpur was informed that copy of some documents of the prosecution have been provided to the accused-applicant as per direction of the court, in view of provision of section 207 Cr.P.C., but he has refused to receive the other documents. Under the circumstances, the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bhadohi, Gyanpur after recording the said fact, passed separate order dated 27.03.2018 committing the case to the court of sessions.

12. On 10.04.2018, the applicant again moved an application under section 207 Cr.P.C. for providing copies of F.I.R. registered at Book No. 036428, X-ray Report, Pathology Report, Supplementary Report and Statement of witnesses, which has been rejected by the trial court vide impugned order dated 19.12.2019, which is the subject matter of challenge in the present application.

13. Since, pure legal question regarding compliance of section 207 Cr.P.C. is involved in the present case, therefore, it is not necessary to issue notice to opposite party No. 2, as the matter is pending since 2010 and till date charges have not been framed in the trial proceedings.

14. Assailing the impugned order dated 19.12.2019, main substratum of argument of learned counsel for the applicant is that the application dated 10.04.2018 under section 207 Cr.P.C. moved on behalf of the applicant for providing copy of F.I.R registered at Book No. 036428 and other documents of the prosecution, which are part of the case diary and police report, on which prosecution is relying, has been illegally rejected by the trial court. It is next submitted by the learned counsel for the applicant that without complying the provision of section 207 Cr.P.C., case could not be committed to the court of sessions, therefore, impugned order dated 19.12.2019 is not sustainable in the eye of law and is liable to be quashed.

15. Learned counsel for the applicant in support of his submission, placed reliance upon the following judgments:

1. Ramesh vs State of Maharashtra, 1995 Cr.L.J. 3424

2. State of Kerala vs Babu, 1999 (4) SCC 621

3. Prakash, Ravi Karan vs State of U.P., 2019 Supreme (All) 2405

16. Per contra, learned Additional Government Advocate vehemently opposed and refuted the submissions advanced on behalf of the applicant, submitted that from perusal of the order sheet of this case, which is on record as annexure-4 to the application, it is apparently clear that provision of section 207 Cr.P.C. has already been complied with. It is also submitted that from the order sheet of this case, it is clear that best efforts have been made by the court to provide the copy of all the relevant documents of the prosecution to the accused-applicant, but he accepted some documents and refused to receive remaining documents deliberately with ulterior motive just to delay the proceedings of the trial. So far as demand of copy of F.I.R. registered at Book No. 036428 is concerned, the same has no concern with this case as first information report dated 27.03.2010 of this case was registered vide Chik F.I.R. registered at Book No. 036427, on which investigation proceeded and charge sheet has been submitted. Much emphasis has been given that the prayer for providing copy of Chik F.I.R. registered at Book No. 036428 to the applicant has already been refused by the Magistrate concerned vide order dated 28.05.2016, which has attained finality as revision preferred against the same by the applicant, was also dismissed on 03.06.2016, therefore, there is no illegality in the impugned order dated 19.12.2019. Lastly, it is submitted that since, liberty has been granted to the applicant for inspection of any documents, therefore present application is liable to be dismissed.

17. After having heard the argument of learned counsel for the parties as mentioned above, this Court is of the view that every case turns on its own facts, therefore, before delving into the issue, it would be useful to set out sections 173 and 207 of Code of Criminal Procedure, which reads as under:

"173. Report of police officer on completion of investigation.

(1) Every investigation under this Chapter shall be completed without unnecessary delay.

(2) (i) As soon as it is completed, the officer in charge of the police station shall forward to a Magistrate empowered to take cognizance of the offence on a police report, a report in the form prescribed by the State Government, stating-

(a) the names of the parties;

(b) the nature of the information;

(c) the names of the persons who appear to be acquainted with the circumstances of the case;

(d) whether any offense appears to have been committed and, if so, by whom;

(e) whether the accused has been arrested;

(f)whether he has been released on his bond and, if so, weather with or without sureties;

(g) whether he has been forwarded in custody under section 170;

(h) whether the report of medical examination of the woman has been attached where investigation relates to an offence under sections 376, 376-A, 376-B, 376-C, 376-D or section 376-E of the Indian Penal Code;

(ii)The officer shall also communicate, In such manner as may be prescribed by the State Government, the action taken by him, to the person, if any, by whom the information relating to the commission of the offence was first given.

(3)Where a superior officer of police has been appointed under section 158, the report shall, in any case in which the State Government by general or special order so directs, be submitted through that officer, and he may, pending the orders of the Magistrate, direct the officer in charge of the police station to make further investigation.

(4)Whenever it appears from a report forwarded under this section that the accused has been released on his bond, the Magistrate shall make such order- for the discharge of such bond or otherwise as he thinks fit.

(5)When such report is in respect of a case to which section 170 applies, the police officer shall forward to the Magistrate along with the report-

(a) all documents or relevant extracts thereof on which the prosecution proposes to rely other than those already sent to the Magistrate during investigation;

(b) the statements- recorded under section 161 of all the persons whom the prosecution proposes to examine as its witnesses.

(6) If the police officer is of opinion that any part of any such statement is not relevant to the subject- matter of the proceedings or that its disclosure to the accused is not essential in the interests of justice and is inexpedient in the public interest, he shall indicate that part of the statement and append a note requesting the Magistrate to exclude that part from the copies to be granted to the accused and stating his reasons for making such request.

(7) Where the police officer investigating the case finds it convenient so to do, he may furnish to the accused copies of all or any of the documents referred to in sub- section (5).

(8)Nothing in this section shall be deemed to preclude further investigation in respect of an offence after a report under sub- section (2) has been forwarded to the Magistrate and, where upon such investigation, the officer in charge of the police station obtains further evidence, oral or documentary, he shall forward to the Magistrate a further report or reports regarding such evidence in the form prescribed; and the provisions of sub-sections (2) to (6) shall, as far as may be, apply in relation to such report or reports as they apply in relation to a report forwarded under sub- section (2)."

"207. Supply to the accused of copy of police report and other documents.- In any case where the proceeding has been instituted on a police report, the Magistrate shall without delay furnish to the accused, free of cost, a copy of each of the following:-

(I) the police report;

(ii) the first information report recorded under section 154;

(iii) the statements recorded under sub- section (3) of section 161 of all persons whom the prosecution proposes to examine as its witnesses, excluding therefrom any part in regard to which a request for such exclusion has been made by the police officer under sub- section (6) of section 173;

(iv) the confessions and statements, if any, recorded under section 164;

(v) any other document or relevant extract thereof forwarded to the Magistrate with the police report under sub- section (5) of section 173:

Provided that the Magistrate may, after perusing any such part of a statement as is referred to in clause (iii) and considering the reasons given by the police officer for the request, direct that a copy of that part of the statement or of such portion thereof as the Magistrate thinks proper, shall be furnished to the accused:

Provided further that if the Magistrate is satisfied that any document referred to in clause (v) is voluminous, he shall, instead of furnishing the accused with a copy thereof, direct that he will only be allowed to inspect it either personally or through pleader in Court."

18. Aforesaid provisions are applicable to all types of cases instituted upon police reports. Compliance of provisions of section 207 Cr.P.C. is condition precedent for commitment of the case to the court of sessions. If copy of documents mentioned in section 207 Cr.P.C. are not supplied to accused either in full or in part, he cannot effectively defend himself before the trial court/sessions court. The first proviso to section 207 Cr.P.C. empowers the court to exclude from the copies to be furnished to the accused such portion as may be covered by section 173 (6) Cr.P.C. The second proviso to section 207 Cr.P.C. empowers the court to provide to the accused an inspection of the documents instead of copies thereof, if in the opinion of the court, it is not practicable to furnish to the accused, the copies of the documents because of voluminous contents thereof. The provisions of section 173 (5) Cr.P.C. makes it incumbent on the investigating agency to forward/transmit to the court concerned all documents/statements, etc., on which the prosecution proposes to rely in the course of trial. Section 173 (5) Cr.P.C., however, is subject to the provisions of section 173 (6) Cr.P.C., which confers a power on the investigating officer to request the court concerned to exclude any part of the statement or documents forwarded under section 173 (5) Cr.P.C. from the copies to be granted to the accused.

19. In the light of facts and issues involved in this case, it is relevant to deal with the judgments relied upon on behalf of the applicant.

20. In the case of Ramesh vs State of Maharashtra, reported in 1995 Cr.L.J. 3424, application of the accused for directing the prosecution to produce the dying declaration of the deceased and also for supply of statements of witnesses recorded by the police was rejected. In the said case, it was admitted fact that dying declaration of the deceased was recorded and was part of police papers, but prosecution was not relying on the same. The High Court while deciding the issue has directed the Additional Sessions Judge to get it ascertained as to whether such dying declarations are in existence or not, if they are in existence, copies thereof shall be supplied to accused. The relevant observation and finding recorded in paragraphs 15 and 16 of the said judgment, are reproduced herein below:

"15. If such a dying declaration is recorded during investigation and is kept back from the accused, Merely because it helps the accused, to deny the copy thereof to him for the purposes of defence would be highly prejudicial to him. The said dying declaration, if existing on record, would undoubtedly provide a material to the defence to effectively cross-examine regarding the nature of investigation. Even the investigating officer could be subjected to a cross-examination on the basis of such dying declaration. Apart from that, such dying declaration could be used for unearthing the truth of the prosecution story, because it might affect the evidentiary value of the other dying declarations on account of the contradictions. Under such circumstances, it will not be fair to deny the copy of the dying declaration to the accused on the spacious ground that it forms a part of the case diary. If such dying declaration is proved to be in existence, it will be the right of the accused to have the copy thereof. The trial Court was, therefore, in error in not establishing as to whether such dying declaration exists or not. It has already been pointed out that there is no denial that there are no such dying declarations. The impugned order is, therefore clearly incorrect and will have to be set aside.

16. In the result, the learned Additional Sessions Judge is directed to get it established as to whether such dying declarations are in existence or not. If they are in existence, copies thereof shall be supplied to the applicant-accused. With these observations the instant Criminal Application stands disposed of."

21. In the case of State of Kerala vs Babu, reported in 1999 (4) SCC 621, applications were moved on behalf of accused persons to summon case diary of another case for confronting the witness with his previous statement as found in the said case diary and to recall the said witness. The Sessions Judge, allowed the said applications, which came to be challenged before the High Court by the State as well as brother of the deceased. The said petitions came to be dismissed by the High Court by holding that there is no bar in law to summon the case diary of case even other than one, which is being tried, for the purpose of contradicting the evidence of prosecution witness. On filing appeal by special leave, the Apex Court has held that a case diary of another case, not pertaining to the trial in hand can be summoned if the court trying the case considers that production of such a case diary is necessary or desirable for the purpose of trial, under section 91 of the Code.

22. In the case of Prakash, Ravi Karan vs State of U.P., reported in 2019 Supreme (All) 2405, judgment and order dated 30.04.2015 passed by trial court, by which accused has been convicted, was challenged, wherein the Division Bench of this Court while deciding the case has made an observation with regard to compliance of provision of section 207 Cr.P.C. in paragraph 31 of the judgment, which is reproduced herein below:

"31. Section 238 of Cr.P.C. unequivocally provided that a solemn duty is cast on the Magistrate to satisfy himself that he has strictly complied with the provisions of Section 207 Cr.P.C. viz. furnishing the accused, free of cost, copies of documents as prayed for by him and referred to in that section itself without delay and such satisfaction has to be invariably judicial satisfaction. An omission to comply with the mandatory provision of law as enshrined in Section 207 Cr.P.C. read with Section 238 Cr.P.C is bound to cause serious prejudice to the accused and such a situation may even vitiate the criminal trial. The supply of documents and statements prepared at the investigating stage as mandated under Section 207Cr.P.C. cannot be treated a mere superfluity or empty formality. It is highly improper and irregular on the part of the Court to shirk its responsibility in this regard and put the accused at the mercy of prosecution by merely observing inter alia that it is the duty of prosecution "to follow the rules of natural justice'. Thus, it can safely be held that accused could not be refused to supply copies of documents even at the stage of trial, if relied upon by the prosecution per statutory provisions of Section 207 Cr.P.C. and also as per the provisions of Section 238 Cr.P.C. If we go carefully through the ratio laid down in V.K. Sasikala Vs. State (2012) 9 SCC 771, we get clear idea about the solemn duty of the Court to supply copies of documents to the accused. It is the duty of the Court to supply to the accused, copies of the police report, the first information report recorded under Section 154 Cr.P.C., the statements recorded under Section 161 (3) the confessions and statements, if any, recorded under Section 164 and any other documents or relevant extract thereof, which is forwarded to the Magistrate along with police report."

23. In view of aforesaid discussion, it is apparent that the judgments relied upon on behalf of the accused-applicant are of no help to the applicant as applicant's demand of first information report registered at Book No. 036428, on which neither investigation was done nor same was made part of case diary/police report and prosecution does not propose to rely on the same.

24. Here, it is apposite to mention that even one additional or different fact may make big difference between the conclusion in two cases. Each case depends on its own facts and a close similarity between one case and another is not enough, because even a single significant detail may alter entire aspect. It is well settled that accused is entitled to have copies of the statements and documents accompanying the police report, which the prosecution may use against him as evidence during the trial.

25. Recently, the Apex Court in the case of P. Gopalkrishnan @ Dileep Vs. State of Kerala and another, reported in AIR 2020 SC 1, has also discussed the scope and object of Section 207 Cr.P.C. In the said case, basic facts was that two police reports were submitted on 17.04.2017 and 22.11.2017 respectively. When the appellant was supplied a copy of the second police report on 15.12.2017, all documents noted in the said report, on which the prosecution proposed to rely, were not supplied to the appellant, namely, (i) electronic record (contents of memory card); (ii) Forensic Science Laboratory (for short, "the FSL') reports and the findings attached thereto in C.D./D.V.D.; (iii) medical reports; C.C.T.V. footages and (iv) Call data records of accused and various witnesses etc. It is noted by the concerned Magistrate that the visuals copied and documented by the forensic experts during the forensic examination of the memory card were allowed to be perused by the appellant's counsel in the presence of the regular cadre Assistant Public Prosecutor of the Court, in the Court itself. After watching the said visuals, some doubts cropped up, which propelled the appellant to file a formal application before the Judicial First Class Magistrate, Angamaly for a direction to the prosecution to furnish a cloned copy of the contents of memory card containing the video and audio footage/clipping, in the same format as obtained in the memory card, along with the transcript of the human voices, both male and female recorded in it. The Magistrate vide order dated 7.2.2018, rejected the said application, essentially on the ground that acceding to the request of the appellant would be impinging upon the esteem, decency, chastity, dignity and reputation of the victim and also against public interest. Aggrieved by above order dated 7.2.2018, the appellant preferred petition before High Court, which came to be dismissed observing that the seized memory card was only the medium on which the alleged incident was recorded and hence that itself is the product of the crime. Further, it being a material object and not documentary evidence, is excluded from the purview of Section 207 of the 1973 Code. The matter came to Apex Court and appeal has been allowed. The relevant observations made by the Apex Court in paragraph nos. 41, 42, 43 and 44 are being reproduced herein-below:-

"41. We are conscious of the fact that Section 207 of the 1973 Code permits withholding of document(s) by the Magistrate only if it is voluminous and for no other reason. If it is an "electronic record", certainly the ground predicated in the second proviso in 42 (2018) 17 SCC 324Section 207, of being voluminous, ordinarily, cannot be invoked and will be unavailable. We are also conscious of the dictum in the case of Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, West Bengal vs. Satyen Bhowmick & Ors.43, wherein this Court has restated the cardinal principle that accused is entitled to have copies of the statements and documents accompanying the police report, which the prosecution may use against him during the trial.

42. Nevertheless, the Court cannot be oblivious to the nature of offence and the principle underlying the amendment to Section 327 of the 1973 Code, in particular sub Section (2) thereof and insertion of Section 228A of the 1860 Code, for securing the privacy of the victim and her identity. Thus understood, the Court is obliged to evolve a mechanism to enable the accused to reassure himself about the genuineness and credibility of the contents of the memory card/pendrive from an independent agency referred to above, so as to effectively defend himself during the trial. Thus, balancing the rights of both parties is imperative, as has been held in Asha Ranjan (supra) and 43 (1981) 2 SCC 109Mazdoor Kisan Shakti Sangathan (supra). The Court is duty bound to issue suitable directions. Even the High Court, in exercise of inherent power under Section 482 of the 1973 Code, is competent to issue suitable directions to meet the ends of justice.

43. If the accused or his lawyer himself, additionally, intends to inspect the contents of the memory card/pen drive in question, he can request the Magistrate to provide him inspection in Court, if necessary, even for more than once along with his lawyer and I.T. expert to enable him to effectively defend himself during the trial. If such an application is filed, the Magistrate must consider the same appropriately and exercise judicious discretion with objectivity while ensuring that it is not an attempt by the accused to protract the trial. While allowing the accused and his lawyer or authorized I.T. expert, all care must be taken that they do not carry any devices much less electronic devices, including mobile phone which may have the capability of copying or transferring the electronic record thereof or mutating the contents of the memory card/pendrive in any manner. Such multipronged approach may subserve the ends of justice and also effectuate the right of accused to a fair trial guaranteed under Article 2 1of the Constitution.

44. In conclusion, we hold that the contents of the memory card/pen drive being electronic record must be regarded as a document. If the prosecution is relying on the same, ordinarily, the accused must be given a cloned copy thereof to enable him/her to present an effective defence during the trial."

26. On perusal of impugned order dated 19.01.2019, I find that the application dated 10.04.2018 under Section 207 Cr.P.C. of the accused-applicant has been rejected mainly on the ground that the case is pending since 2010. The request for providing copy of Chik F.I.R. registered at Book No. 036428 has already been refused by a detailed order dated 28.05.2016 and the same has attained finality, because Criminal Revision No. 39 of 2016 preferred by the applicant against the said order dated 28.05.2016 before the Sessions Judge, Bhadohi, has been dismissed at admission stage on 03.06.2016, which has not been further challenged. On 27.03.2018, the case has been committed to the court of sessions. In the committal order dated 27.03.2018, it is clearly mentioned that some documents of the prosecution case have been given to the accused, but the accused has refused to receive the remaining documents. It has also been observed that on account of delaying tactics adopted by the applicant, till date charge could not be framed in this case despite lapse of about ten years from the date of incident. Applicant cannot be permitted to raise similar issue again and again, which has already been rejected on 28.05.2016. However, liberty has been granted to applicant to inspect any document in the court.

27. Now, I proceed to decide issue No.1.

28. The aim and object of section 207 of Cr.P.C. is to provide copy of police report along with documents appended thereto, on which prosecution proposes to rely against the accused, is only to give a fair opportunity to the accused to defend himself otherwise accused will not be able to defend himself in true sense. The right of accused with regard to disclosure of documents is limited at the stage of supplying copies to him in view of Section 207 of Cr.P.C. At that stage, the accused cannot claim an indefeasible legal right to claim every document, on which prosecution does not propose to rely. In the present case, it is admitted fact that F.I.R. dated 27.03.2010 was registered at Book No. 036427 and investigation was done and charge-sheet was submitted pursuant to said F.I.R. It has come on record that due to inadvertent mistake, on the basis of F.I.R. registered at Book No. 036427, another F.I.R. was registered at Book No. 036428, which has not been given effect to. The police of concerned police station has also submitted explanation in this regard on 07.06.2016. The F.I.R. registered at Book No. 036428 is neither part of case diary nor part of police report. The prosecution also does not propose to rely on the same, therefore, in the opinion of the Court no prejudice is being caused to the accused-applicant at this stage. The case, which is pending since 2010 without framing charge, ought not to be lingered on by raising aforesaid issue at the stage of compliance of Section 207 of Cr.P.C. It is also relevant to mention that section 91 of Cr.P.C. empowers the Court to summon production of any document or other things, which the Court considers it necessary or desirable for the purposes of any investigation, inquiry, trial or other proceeding under the provisions of Code of Criminal Procedure. In a trial, before a court of sessions, the accused has also legal right under section 233(3) of Cr.P.C. to apply for the issue of any process for compelling the attendance of any witness or the production of any document or thing. Similarly, in a trial of warrant cases by Magistrate legal right has been given to accused under section 243(2) of Cr.P.C. to apply to the Magistrate to issue any process for compelling the attendance of any witness for the purpose of examination or cross examination, or the production of any document or other thing, for which the Court has to pass reasoned order.

29. The provisions of sections 91, 233 & 243 Cr.P.C. are reproduced herein below:-

"91. Summons to produce document or other thing.-

(1)Whenever any Court or any officer in charge of a police station considers that the production of any document or other thing is necessary or desirable for the purposes of any investigation, inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code by or before such Court or officer, such Court may issue a summons, or such officer a written order, to the person in whose possession or power such document or thing is believed to be, requiring him to attend and produce it, or to produce it, at the time and place stated in the summons or order.

(2) Any person required under this section merely to produce a document or other thing shall be deemed to have complied with the requisition if he causes such document or thing to be produced instead of attending personally to produce the same.

(3) Nothing in this section shall be deemed-

(a) to affect sections 123 and 124 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (1 of 1872), or the Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1891 (13 of 1891) or

(b) to apply to a letter, postcard, telegram or other document or any parcel or thing in the custody of the postal or telegraph authority."

"233. Entering upon defence.-

(1)Where the accused is not acquitted under section 232, he shall be called upon to enter on his defence and adduce any evidence he may have in support thereof.

(2)If the accused puts in any written statement, the Judge shall file it with the record.

(3)If the accused applies for the issue of any process for compelling the attendance of any witness or the production of any document or thing, the Judge shall issue such process unless he considers, for reasons to be recorded, that such application should be refused on the ground that it is made for the purpose of vexation or delay or for defeating the ends of justice."

"243. Evidence for defence.-

(1)The accused shall then be called upon to enter upon his defence and produce his evidence; and if the accused puts in any written statement, the Magistrate shall file it with the record.

(2) If the accused, after he has entered upon his defence, applies to the Magistrate to issue any process for compelling the attendance of any witness for the purpose of examination or cross-examination, or the production of any document or other thing, the Magistrate shall issue such. process unless he considers that such application should be refused on the ground that it is made for the purpose of vexation or delay or for defeating the ends of justice and such ground shall be recorded by him in writing:

Provided that, when the accused has cross- examined or had the opportunity of cross- examining any witness before entering on his defence, the attendance of such witness shall not be compelled under this section, unless the Magistrate is satisfied that it is necessary for the ends of justice.

(3) The Magistrate may, before summoning any witness on an application under sub- section (2), require that the reasonable expenses incurred by the witness in attending for the purposes of the trial be deposited in Court."

30. The Apex Court in the case of P. Gopalkrishnan @ Dileep (supra) has also held that accused is entitled to have copies of statements and documents accompanying police report, which prosecution may use against him during the trial.

31. In view of above, this Court is of the view that at the stage of compliance of provisions of Section 207 Cr.P.C. accused is not entitled to get copy of such document, which is neither part of case diary nor police report and on which prosecution does not propose to rely against the accused. Accordingly, first issue is decided against the accused-applicant. As such, applicant is not entitled to get copy of F.I.R., which was inadvertently registered at Book No. 036428 on the basis of main F.I.R. registered at Book No. 036427.

32. Now I proceed to decide issue no.2.

33. It is well settled that no person shall be deprived of his life and liberty except by procedure established by law is constitutionally guaranteed to every one. Only after following a fair, reasonable and equitable procedure, liberty of a person can be curtailed in accordance with law. Right of accused to defend himself as against the accusations made against him is also a constitutional right. No one shall be condemned unheard. Before condemning a person a reasonable opportunity must be given to him. Without furnishing and disclosing copies of the incriminating materials asking the accused to defend himself will be an empty formality. In the present case, the trial court, in the committal order dated 27.03.2018, has mentioned that some documents of the prosecution have been given to the accused, but the accused himself refused to receive remaining documents. From the order-sheet of the case, it is not clear that which documents of the case have been given to accused-applicant and which documents have been refused by the applicant to receive. As such, at least it appears that full compliance of provisions of section 207 Cr.P.C. has not been made. Here, it would be useful to mention that under Section 207 Cr.P.C. the expression "Magistrate" has been used instead of expression "Court", but the provisions of section 207 Cr.P.C. will have to be given a liberal and relevant meaning so as to achieve its object, because under various special enactment requirement of commitment of a case to court of Sessions by the Magistrate as mandated by the Court has been dispensed with and the Special Courts constituted under the special statute have been empowered to receive the report of the investigation along with the relevant documents directly from the investigating agency and thereafter to take cognizance of the offence, if so required. There is no limitation or prohibition that after commitment of the case to the court of Sessions or during the trial before the Sessions Court those copies cannot be asked for. Compliance of principles of natural justice incorporated in Section 207 Cr.P.C., cannot be limited upto the committal court or up to the commitment of the case to the Court of Sessions. If copies of documents as provided under Section 207 Cr.P.C., which ought to have been furnished to the accused were not furnished to him by the committal court or the trial court before framing of the charge, the accused cannot defend himself effectively. Therefore, those documents can be supplied to him even after commitment of the case to the court of sessions in order to ensure principles of natural justice and fair trial.

34. In view of above discussion, the second issue is decided in favour of accused-applicant.

35. Order sheet reveals that cognizance in this case was taken on 20.06.2010 and on 02.07.2016 the Magistrate concerned directed the concerned clerk to get the copies of all prosecution documents prepared fixing 23.07.2016 for supply of those copies to the accused and committal of case, but from that day till 20.03.2018 applicant started sending adjournment application seeking exemption of his personal appearance on 34 dates and thereafter the accused-applicant adopting different modus operandi by hook or by crook delayed the trial proceedings. The valuable time of the court below has been wasted only in deciding applications under Section 207 Cr.P.C. moved by the applicant on one ground or others.

36. In view of above, impugned order dated 19.12.2019 is quashed only to the extent, whereby prayer of the accused-applicant for providing documents accompanied police report under Section 173 Cr.P.C. has been refused. So far as applicant's request for demand of copy of F.I.R., which was inadvertently registered at Book No 036428 as mentioned above is concerned, the same is hereby rejected.

37. As a fallout and consequence of aforesaid discussion, this application under section 482 Cr.P.C. is partly allowed with a direction to the trial court to provide copy of all the documents accompanied police report to the accused applicant, on which prosecution proposes to rely against the applicant within two weeks from the date of production of certified copy of this order before it. It is made clear that in case accused-applicant or his counsel refuses to receive the same, the trial court after recording the said facts in the order sheet shall send above mentioned documents to the address of the accused-applicant by registered post within a week thereafter, and will proceed with the trial, in accordance with law, making all endeavour to conclude the trial, expeditiously, without granting any unnecessary adjournments to either of the parties, preferably within a period of one year, keeping in mind that this case is pending since 2010. Applicant is also directed to co-operate with the trial proceeding.

38. Office is directed to communicate this order to the concerned court below.

Criminal Law-Criminal Procedure Code (2 of 1974) - Section 482 - Quashing of summoning order - use of blank printed proforma in passing the judicial order not proper - Held - Certain places in the impugned summoning order left blank which shows that there was total non application of mind while passing the summoning order - Summoning order quashed (Para 5, 8)

Application allowed (E-5)

List of case cited :

Ankit Vs. St. of U.P. & anr. reported in 2009 (9) ADJ 778

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Sri Ashutosh Sharma, learned counsel for the applicant and Sri Amit Singh Chauhan, learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. This application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed for quashing the impugned summoning order dated 20.02.2019 as well as subsequent orders and the entire proceedings of Complaint Case No.3073 of 2018 (Shriram Transport Vs. Sudesh), Police Station Navabad, District Jhansi, pending in the court of A.C.J.M.-II, Jhansi.

3. It has been submitted by learned counsel for the applicant that the Judicial Magistrate did not apply his judicial mind at the time of passing the summoning order against the applicant as the impugned summoning order has been passed on a printed proforma, which is not permissible under law. In support of his contention, learned counsel for the applicant has relied upon the judgment in the case of Ankit Vs. State of U.P. & another reported in 2009 (9) ADJ 778.

4. Certified copy of the impugned summoning order is annexed as Annexure 1 to the affidavit which goes to show that the order has been passed on a printed proforma by filling up the blanks. Blanks on the printed proforma appear to have been filled by the court employee. Learned Magistrate has simply put his initial over his name without applying his judicial mind before passing the said order.

5. He has further submitted that the learned Magistrate has simply signed the summoning order which in fact is the reproduction of a rubber stamp. The entire language of the order consists of a rubber stamp which was already typed with blank spaces at certain places. Certain places in the impugned summoning order are left blank which shows that there was total non-application of mind while passing the summoning order.

6. Learned counsel for the applicant has confined his argument only to the extent that the impugned summoning order is a printed proforma order, which has been passed without applying its judicial mind, and the same is illegal and liable to be quashed.

7. On the other hand, learned A.G.A. submits that the impugned summoning order, which has been prepared and passed by filling up the blanks on the printed proforma, is wholly illegal and invalid.

8. The argument advanced on behalf of applicant has substance. The use of blanks printed proforma in passing the judicial order is not proper and the order of summoning the applicant has been passed without application of judicial mind, which is substantiated by the fact that even the date has not been mentioned filling up the blanks which has been left in the rubber stamp for mentioning the date of appearance.

9. In view of the facts and circumstances of the case, stated above, the impugned summoning order dated 20.02.2019 is hereby quashed. Learned court below is directed to pass a fresh order on the complaint after applying his judicial mind.

10. The application stands allowed.

11. Let a copy of this order be sent to the court concerned for compliance.

12. Register General of this Court is directed to send a copy of this order to the concerned court taking into consideration the fact that all the Presiding Officer shall restrain themselves from using such printed proforma in judicial work. The blank printed proformas available in the court below will be seized.

1. Mr. Ajay Sengar, learned Advocate has filed his appearance slip today on behalf of opposite party No. 2/informant, which is taken on record.

2. Heard Mr. Ashok Nath Tripathi, Mr. Gopal Krishna, Mr. Rakesh Nath Tripathi, learned counsel appearing for the applicant, Mr. Ajay Sengar, learned counsel for the opposite party No. 2/informant and Mr. Shiv Sewak Ram Dwivedi, learned Additional Government Advocate assisted by Mr. Raj Mani Yadav, learned brief holder representing the State and perused the materials available on record.

3. By means of this application under section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, herein after referred as "Cr.P.C" the applicant has invoked the inherent jurisdiction of this Court for quashing of the order dated 26.11.2019 passed by learned Sessions Judge, Jalaun at Orai in Sessions Trial No. 30 of 2019 (Lakhan and others vs. State of U.P. and another) arising out of Case Crime No. 326 of 2018, police station Kotwali, district Jalaun, whereby the application No. 16-Kha dated 3.7.2019 moved by the informant, Premnarayan under section 319 Cr.P.C. was allowed and applicant, Jaswant was summoned to face the trial for the offence punishable under Sections 147, 148, 302/149, 323/149, 504 and 506 IPC as well as entire proceedings of aforesaid case.

4. In short compass, the facts of the case are that a written report was lodged by the informant of the case, namely, Premnarayan on 09.11.2018 at the police station Kotwali Koanch, district Jalaun against accused-persons, Lakhan, Man Singh, Sahab Singh, Jaswant (present applicant) and Yatendra to the effect that on 08.11.2018 at 5.00 p.m., while he was sitting along with his brother, Sundar (deceased), and witnesses, Mahendra, Gajendra, Karan Singh and Sitaram at the door platform (Chabootra) of Gajendra situated in front of his house, the accused, Man Singh came there and abused the aforesaid persons that they were laughing at him. Thereafter, accused, Man Singh left the place giving threat to the persons sitting there, and after some time, he along with accused, Lakhan, Sahab Singh, Jaswant (applicant) and Yatendra came there and with an intention to kill, accused Lakhan and Man Singh caught hold of deceased, Sundar and accused Jaswant (applicant) fired at him by his country made pistol (Katta), as a result thereof, he received pellet injuries on his forehead and succumbed to the injury. The accused Sahab Singh also fired at the deceased by his weapon, but his shot did not hit the deceased. The accused persons also cordoned the aforesaid persons with a common intention and started beating them with lathi and danda, due to which, witnesses Gajendra, Mahendra, Karan and Sitaram also received grievous injuries. It is further mentioned in the report that there was old enmity between the parties.

5. On the basis of the aforesaid written report, a case was registered at Case Crime No. 326 of 2018, under Sections 147, 148, 149, 323, 504, 506 and 302 IPC, police station Kotwali, district Jalaun,

6. On 09.11.2018 post-mortem of deceased, Sundar was conducted and following injuries were found on his person:-

1. Wound of entry 3 cm X 1.5 cm on right parietal region oval shaped 2 cm medial from right ear & 5 cm lateral to Rt. Orbit. Margins are lacerated. Edges are inverted and irregular. No blackening, scorching, tattooing seen.

2. No other external visible injury seen.

3. No exit wound present.

7. During Investigation, statements under Section 161 Cr.P.C. of informant, Premnarayan and Mahendra Singh have been recorded, in which they have reiterated the prosecution version as mentioned in the first information report in which specific allegations have been levelled against the applicant, Jaswant that while the deceased was caught hold of by Man Singh and Lakhan Singh, Jaswant fired at the deceased, hitting on his forehead. Due to the injury received by the deceased he died. However, in their statements recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. other witnesses, namely, Gajendra Singh, Karan Singh, Anil Kumar Kori, Deep Narayan Pal, Ramesh Singh Pal and Shyam Kishore Rathore have stated that co-accused, Jahar Singh fired at deceased, Sundar, causing his death.

8. After the culmination of investigation, the Investigating Officer submitted charge sheet dated 18.1.2019 against Lakhan Singh, Man Singh, Sahab Singh, Yatendra and Jahar Singh under Sections 147, 148, 302/149, 323/149, 504 and 506 IPC and exonerated the present applicant, Jaswant from all the charges.

9. It is also pointed out that Ramesh Kumar has also lodged first information report dated 09.11.2018 at 10.33 PM with regard to alleged incident dated 08.11.2018 at 5.00 PM against Sundar, Mahendra Singh, Premnarayan, Gajendra, Parichat, Sitaram and Purshuram, which was registered as Case Crime No. 334 of 2018, under Sections 147, 148, 149, 323, 504, 506 and 308 IPC, police station Kotwali Konch, district Jalaun with the allegation of causing injuries to Surajpal, Jitendra, Man Singh and Sahab Singh, in which also charge sheet dated 22.1.2019 has been submitted by the Investigating Officer against Mahendra Singh, Premarayan, Gajendra Singh and Sitaram for the offence under Sections 147, 148, 149, 323, 504, 506 and 325 IPC as no offence against Mahendra Singh, Premarayan, Gajendra Singh and Sitaram was made out under Section 308 IPC.

10. As the case against the applicant at Case Crime No. 326 of 2018, police station Kotwali, district Jalaun was exclusively triable by the court of Sessions, the learned Magistrate committed the case to the court of sessions, where case was registered as Sessions Trial No. 30 of 2019.

11. In the trial, evidence of informant, Premnarayan, who was examined as PW-1 and injured Mahendra Singh, who was examined as PW-2 has been recorded. Both the aforesaid prosecution witnesses in their evidence have specifically stated that the deceased was caught hold by accused, Man Singh and Lakhan Singh, whereas Jaswant fired at the deceased, which hit on forehead of the deceased The relevant part of statements of PW-1 and PW-2, which is against the present applicant is reproduced herein below:-

Statement of PW-1 Premnarayan

xxxx इसके बाद लाखन और मान सिंह ने सुन्दर को पकड़ लिया। जसवन्त ने अपने तमंचे से फायर कर दिया।

उसके बाद साहब सिंह ने भी गोली चलायी। लेकिन जसवन्त की गोली भाई सुन्दर को लगी और लाठी डण्डों से सभी लोग मारने लगे। हम लोग लब बचाने के लिए पहुंचे तो हम लोगों के साथ भी मारपीट की जिसमें महेन्द्र, सीताराम, गजेन्द्र, करन सिंह इन सभी को गम्भीर चोटें आयीं।

Statement of PW-2, Mahendra Singh

तभी मान सिंह व लाखन सिंह ने मेरे पिता सुन्दर सिंह को पकड़ लिया। जसवन्त सिंह ने अपने तमंचे से मेरे पिता सुन्दर सिंह को गोली मार दी जो मेरे पिता सुन्दर सिंह के सिर पर लगी। तभी साहब सिंह ने भी गोली चलायी। तब हम लोग बचाने आये। तब हम लोगों की भी मारपीट की करन सिंह, सीताराम, गजेन्द्र सिंह व मेरी मारपीट की । मुझे भी चोटें आयी थीं।

12. On the basis of aforesaid evidence, application under Section 319 Cr.P.C. dated 37.2019 was moved by the informant/opposite party No. 2, which has been allowed by the trial court. The said impugned order dated 26.11.2019 is under challenge in the present case.

13. Assailing the impugned order dated 26.11.2019, the main substratum of argument of learned counsel for the applicant is that merely on the basis of statements of PW-1 and PW-2, applicant cannot be summoned as an additional accused to face trial unless entire prosecution witnesses are examined.

14. It is next submitted by learned counsel for the applicant that merely by taking the name of applicant, he cannot be summoned. It is also submitted by learned counsel for the applicant that during investigation some of the witnesses have stated that fire was made by Jahar Singh, therefore, charge sheet was not submitted against the applicant, Jaswant. PW-1 and PW-2 deliberately taken his name assigning the role of firing on deceased with ulterior motive, which cannot said to be more than prima facie, therefore, impugned order dated 26.11.2019 is not sustainable in the eye of law and liable to be quashed by this Court.

15. Learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance upon the judments of Hon'ble the Apex Court in the cases of Labhuji Amratji Thakor and others vs. State of Gujarat and others; AIR 2019 SC 734 and Hardeep Singh vs. State of Punjab and others; 2014 (3) SCC 92 or Shiv Prakash Mishra vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and another; 2019 (7) SCC 806 to contend that the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. can be exercised only where strong and cogent evidence are found against a person and not in a casual and cavalier manner. The decree of satisfaction before summoning the offence under Section 319 Cr.P.C. must be more than prima facie, which is warranted at the time of framing of charges against the accused.

16. Per contra, learned Additional Government Advocate supported the order of the court below and vehemently opposed the aforesaid submissions of learned counsel for the applicant by contending that in the first information report there is specific allegation of firing against the applicant, which hit the deceased and thereby he died. The statement of informant, recorded during trial as PW-1 is consistent. PW-2 has also given same statement against the applicant, which is much more than prima facie evidence against the applicant. It is also submitted by learned Additional Government Advocate that the cross-examination of PW-1 and PW-2 has already been completed.

17. In the present case there was specific allegations against the applicant and the enmity between the accused and the complainant was existing. It is a broad day light murder, which took place at 5.00 p.m. in front of the house of the informant. It is not expected from the injured to depose wrong facts and frame a false case against the applicant leaving the real culprits to go scot free.

18. Before adverting to the claim of the parties, it would be useful to quote Section 319 Cr.P.C.

"319. Power to proceed against other persons appearing to be guilty of offence.

(1) Where, in the course of any inquiry into, or trial of, an offence, it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence for which such person could be tried together with the accused, the Court may proceed against such person for the offence which he appears to have committed.

(2) Where such person is not attending the Court, he may be arrested or summoned, as the circumstances of the case may require, for the purpose aforesaid.

(3) Any person attending the Court, although not under arrest or upon a summons, may be detained by such Court for the purpose of the inquiry into, or trial of, the offence which he appears to have committed.

(4) Where the Court proceeds against any person under sub- section (1), then-

(a) the proceedings in respect of such person shall be commenced a fresh, and the witnesses re- heard;

(b) subject to the provisions of clause (a), the case may proceed as if such person had been an accused person when the Court took cognizance of the offence upon which the inquiry or trial was commenced."

19. From the perusal of Section 319 Cr.P.C., it is clear that it is the duty of the Court to see that no accused is left unpunished. Where the investigating agency for any reason does not array the real culprit as accused, the Court is empowered to call the said accused to face the trial.

20. The moot question involved in the present case is as to at which stage the power should be exercised in respect of a person named in the FIR, but not charge sheeted and the degree of satisfaction that is required for invoking the powers under Section 319 Cr.P.C.

21. These two questions, where specifically dealt with by the Constitution Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Hardeep Singh and others (Supra), where the Court held as under:

"Thus, in view of the above, we hold that power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. can be exercised at the stage of completion of examination in chief and court does not need to wait till the said evidence is tested on cross-examination for it is the satisfaction of the court which can be gathered from the reasons recorded by the court, in respect of complicity of some other person(s), not facing the trial in the offence"

xxxxxx

"At the time of taking cognizance, the court has to see whether a prima facie case is made out to proceed against the accused. Under Section 319 Cr.P.C., though the test of prima facie case is the same, the degree of satisfaction that is required is much stricter."

22. The Court further held as under:

"Power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. is a discretionary and an extra-ordinary power. It is to be exercised sparingly and only in those cases where the circumstances of the case so warrant. It is not to be exercised because the Magistrate or the Sessions Judge is of the opinion that some other person may also be guilty of committing that offence. Only where strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person from the evidence led before the court that such power should be exercised and not in a casual and cavalier manner.

Thus, we hold that though only a prima facie case is to be established from the evidence led before the court not necessarily tested on the anvil of Cross-Examination, it requires much stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity. The test that has to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge, but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes unrebutted, would lead to conviction. In the absence of such satisfaction, the court should refrain from exercising power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. In Section 319 Cr.P.C. the purpose of providing if "it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence' is clear from the words "for which such person could be tried together with the accused." The words used are not "for which such person could be convicted'. There is, therefore, no scope for the Court acting under Section 319 Cr.P.C.. to form any opinion as to the guilt of the accused."

23. The Division Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Vikas Vs. State of Rajasthan (2014)3 SCC 321 has held that on the objective satisfaction of the court a person may be 'arrested' or 'summoned', as the circumstances of the case may require, if it appears from the evidence that any such person not being the accused has committed an offence for which such person could be tried together with the already arraigned accused persons.

24. While dealing with the duty and power of the Court under Section 319 Cr.P.C., Hon'ble Supreme Court in Brijendra Singh and others Vs. State of Rajasthan, 2017(7) SCC 706 has held as under:

"It is the duty of the court to do justice by punishing the real culprit. Where the investigating agency for any reason does not array one of the real culprits as an accused, the court is not powerless in calling the said accused to face trial. The question remains under what circumstances and at what stage should the court exercise its power as contemplated in Section 319 Cr.P.C."

xx xx xx

"The court is the sole repository of justice and a duty is cast upon it to uphold the rule of law and, therefore, it will be inappropriate to deny the existence of such powers with the courts in our criminal justice system where it is not uncommon that the real accused, at times, get away by manipulating the investigating and/or the prosecuting agency. The desire to avoid trial is so strong that an accused makes efforts at times to get himself absolved even at the stage of investigation or inquiry even though he may be connected with the commission of the offence." It also goes without saying that Section 319 Cr.P.C., which is an enabling provision empowering the Court to take appropriate steps for proceeding against any person, not being an accused, can be exercised at any time after the charge-sheet is filed and before the pronouncement of the judgment, except during the stage of Section 207/208 Cr.P.C., the committal etc., which is only a pre-trial stage intended to put the process into motion."

25. The aforesaid principles have further followed by Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the cases of Periyasami and others Vs. S. Nallasamy; 2019 (4) SCC 342, Sugreev Kumar vs. State of Punjab and others; AIR 2019 SC 2903, Shiv Prakash Mishra vs. State of Uttar Pradesh; 2019 (7) SCC 806 and Mani Pushpak Joshi vs. State of Uttrakhand and another; AIR 2019 SC 5263.

26. In the instant case the first information report has been lodged on 09.11.2018 with the allegations that on 08.11.2018 at about 5.00 P.M., while the informant was sitting along with his brother Sundar (deceased) and witnesses Mahendra, Gajendra, Karan Singh and Sitaram at the platform of Gajendra in front of his house, after some altercation, accused Lakhan, and Man Singh caught hold of his brother (deceased) whereas accused Jaswant (the present applicant) fired at him by the country made pistol, due to which he died. The version of the FIR was categorically reiterated by the first informant in his statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. Witnesses Mahendra Singh and Sita Ram have also stated that it was Jaswant (the applicant), who had fired at the deceased. However, some of the witnesses namely Gajendra, Karan, Anil Kumar Kori, Deep Narayan Pal, Ramesh Singh Pal and Shyam Kishore Rathore in their statements under Section 161 Cr.P.C have stated that it was co-accused Jahar Singh, who fired at the deceased. The investigating officer on the basis of the statements of Gajendra, Karan, Anil Kumar Kori, Deep Narayan Pal, Ramesh Singh Pal and Shyam Kishore Rathore has exonerated Jaswant and in his place name of Jahar Singh has been introduced as accued, whereas the name of Jahar Singh did not find place in the FIR lodged by the first informant.

27. In the trial, the first informant Premnarayan was examined as PW-1 and injured Mahendra Pal has been examined as PW-2. Both the witnesses in their examination-in-chief have clearly deposed that accused Lakhan and Man Singh have caught hold of the deceased-Sundar, whereas accused-Jaswant (the present applicant) fired from his country made pistol, which hit the deceased. At this stage the evidence of PW-1, the first informant of the case, who was also an eyewitness of the case and PW-2, Mahendra Pal, who is an injured witness cannot be discarded.

28. In view of above, it can safely be hold that the learned Sessions Judge while passing the impugned order dated 26.11.2019 was fully satisfied that there are strong and cogent evidence against the applicant and has not passed the order in a casual manner.

29. The order passed by the learned Sessions Judge was in consonance with the law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Hardeep Singh; Labhuji Amratji Thakor and others; Shiv Prakash Mishra; Vikas; and Brijendra Singh and others (Supra) and it cannot be said that the order of the learned Sessions Judge is in the teeth of the order of Hon'ble Supreme Court indicated referred to above.

30. Each case must be decided on its own facts and merit. Even one additional or different fact may make big difference between the conclusion in two cases, because even a single significant detail may alter entire aspect.

31. Considering the facts, materials on record as well as statements of PW-1 and PW-2, as mentioned above, this Court is also of the view that the evidence which has come on record against the applicant are much more than prima facie and are sufficient to proceed against the applicant in exercise of power under Section 319 Cr.P.C.

32. In view of what has been indicated herein above, I do not find any illegality or irregularity in the order dated 26.11.2019 passed by the learned Sessions Judge, Jalaun at Orai summoning the applicant under Section 319 Cr.P.C. to face the trial under Sections 147, 148, 302/149, 323/149, 504 and 506 IPC along with other accused.

33. The application is bereft of merit. It is accordingly rejected.

1. Heard Sri Nandit K. Srivastava, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Prashant Shukla, learned counsel for the applicant and Sri Gyan Prakash, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Sanjay Kumar Yadav, learned counsel for the C.B.I.

2. This present application has been filed with a prayer to quash the order dated 26.4.2006 passed by Special Chief Judicial Magistrate (CBI) Ghaziabad in Case No. 3140 of 2005, under Section 364, 120B, 302, 201, 220 IPC, P.S. Medical, District, Meerut.

3. As per F.I.R., the prosecution version is that on 26.2.1994, at about 10:15 O' clock, informant- Krishnapal Singh was going to Shastri Nagar on scooter and when he reached near supply depot at about 10:30 O' clock where existed a speed breaker he slowed down his scooter then all of a sudden two men stopped him showing a country made pistol and snatched away his scooter and fled towards Commissioner Chauraha, right then police of P.S. Lal Kurti reached there and he (informant) told them that two miscreants had fled from there after having snatched his scooter and thereafter they gave a chase to the miscreants. The registration number of scooter of the informant was DL3SC0326. He had borrowed the said scooter from one of his friends and that he could recognize the miscreants. The case crime no. 64 of 1994, under Section 392 was registered against two unknown persons.

4. On the same day, another F.I.R. was lodged being crime no. 82 of 94, under Section 307 and 412 IPC, P.S. Medical College, in which Station Officer- Avinash Mishra along with his team mates had proceeded in search of the accused persons. When he was in Tajgarh at about 10:35 pm, on 26.2.1994 he received an information from control room on RT Set that two miscreants had snatched scooter no. DL 3 SC 0326 from a person near supply depot, P.S. Lal Kurti, Meerut and had turned towards jail chungi and that the Inspector-Lal Kurti was following them. Upon this information, he proceeded on a Government Jeep in search of the miscreants and when reached near road bend towards Samrat Palace he saw the scooter bearing no. DL 3 SC 0326 coming from the side of jail Chungi which took turn towards Samrat Palace. His police team followed scooter, at that time, Shyam Lal Kashyap, S.O., Nauchandi was coming from the side of Samrat Palace. Having seen his vehicle, at about 10:30 pm, the miscreants turned towards his side (side of the S.O. Avinash Mishra) and when they found themselves surrounded, they fired upon them/police with an intent to kill. The police team challenged the miscreants and thereafter the miscreants having left the scooter on rough land, on the side of the road, made fires upon the police personnel. Thereafter the police challenged them that they were surrounded by the police and that they should throw their arms and surrender. Several round of fires were made by the police personnel in their defence in which one of the miscreants (unknown) died on the spot and the other succeeded in fleeing away taking benefit of cover of darkness. He was given chase by S.I., Mahesh Chauhan, S.O. Nauchandi and Constable 583 Harendra but could not be apprehended. The scooter was lying there which was looted from the area of P.S., Lal Kurti. The dead body of the unknown miscreant, who was having ammunition near his right hand and empty cartridges as well as looted scooter, were lying on the spot. In this encounter, the empty cartridges used by the police personnel of 38 bore and two empty cartridges fired by the Inspector in-charge P.S. Lal Kurti and by Station in-charge Nauchandi of 38 bore and empty cartridges fired by S.S.I., Sanjay Sirohi of 38 bore and two empty cartridges of 38 bore fired by S.I. Mahesh Chauhan had been brought by him (Avinash Mishra), which were deposited in sealed condition with specimen seal. No police personnel was injured in this encounter.

5. Thereafter on 22.12.1995, an F.I.R. was registered against the applicant, details of which are that a Writ Petition (Crl.) No. 93 of 1994 was filed before the Hon'ble Supreme Court of India by Smt. Munni Devi, wife of Om Prakash Maheshwari alleging therein that her son Gopal Maheshwari and his maternal uncle Suresh Chandra were illegally taken away in the morning on 25.2.1994 by U.P. Police from the house of Suresh Chandra of Mohalla, Jai Jairam, Kasganj and she apprehended fake encounter and liquidation of Gopal Maheshwari by police. The Hon'ble Supreme Court directed that the District and Sessions Judge, Meerut shall conduct an inquiry and submit his report within three months, which was submitted on 14.12.1995 before the Hon'ble Apex Court and gist of the said report was as follows. Gopal Maheshwari and Suresh Chandra were picked up by Meerut police (Avinash Mishra, applicant, the then S.O., P.S. Medical College, Meerut, Sanjay Sirohi, Chandra Pal Singh, Mahesh Singh, companion police officials) from the house of Suresh Chandra in Kasganj in the intervening night of 24/25.2.1994 and he was brought to Meerut. Suresh Chandra was locked in the room of first floor of P.S. Medical College, Meerut and Gopal Maheshwari was whisked away to an unknown destination but later on he was killed in the night of 26/27.2.1994 by the accused-applicant along with other named co-accused and some other persons in custody. A fake encounter was shown by local police in the case with a view to liquidate Gopal Maheshwari putting up a theory of looting a scooter by Gopal Maheshwari and subsequently encounter was fabricated by police in conspiracy with Krishnapal Singh, a private person. The identity of the deceased Gopal Maheshwari was known to the accused persons including applicant and deliberately they did not disclose it to the Prabhat Kumar Sharma (City Magistrate, Meerut), who prepared panchayatnama of the dead body and the dead body of the deceased was deliberately cremated as unclaimed. The Hon'ble Supreme Court vide order dated 15.12.1995 directed further investigation to be made in this matter by C.B.I., hence the case was registered under Sections 120B, 302, 201, 218 IPC against above named accused persons which includes applicant and regular case was registered and investigation was entrusted to Kishore Kumar, Deputy S.P., C.B.I., SIC-IV, New Delhi for investigation.

6. After investigation into this case, charge sheet was submitted on 6.12.2000 against the accused-applicant mentioning therein that deceased Gopal Maheshwari and Suresh Chandra were picked up by Meerut Police along with accused-applicant and other co-accused from the house of Suresh Chandra in Kasganj in the intervening night of 25.2.1994 and were brought to Meerut. Suresh Chandra was locked up in a room on the first floor of the P.S. while the deceased Gopal Maheshwari was taken away to an unknown destination but later on he was killed in the intervening night of 26/27.2.1994 by applicant and other co-accused, while he was in custody. A fake encounter was shown by the applicant in order to liquidate the deceased putting up a theory of looting of a scooter by the deceased and subsequently encounter was fabricated by police in conspiracy with co-accused Krishnapal Singh. The identity of the deceased was known to the applicant and his teammates but they concealed the same and did not disclose it to Prabhat Kumar Sharma, Additional City Magistrate, Meerut who prepared panchayatnama and cremated the dead body as unclaimed. Thereafter the Apex Court passed order dated 15.12.1995 directing C.B.I. to investigate the matter. It was further found in the investigation that Om Prakash Maheshwari was living with his family in his house at 33 Hari Nagar in Meerut in February 1994, who was a broker in Sarrafa market and his son Gopal Maheshwari (deceased) was also working with him and was a Meena Artisan. The deceased some time in January, 1994 reached Kasganj, District Etah and started living and working there with his maternal uncle Suresh Chandra due to constant harassment by Meerut Police to involve him in a cases falsely. It also emerged in the investigation that applicant along with other co-accused named above entered into a criminal conspiracy during the period 1994 in Meerut to eliminate the deceased by making a fake police encounter at Meerut on 26.2.1994 and causing disappearance of evidence to cover up the theory of fake encounter. In pursuance of the said conspiracy, the accused applicant along with co-accused fabricated the theory of police encounter that constable Lalit Kumar of P.S. Medical College, while he was on patrol duty, died in a road accident on 11.2.1994 and his service rifle went missing with regard to which a case crime no. 63 of 1994, under Section 279, 304-A, 427, 379 IPC was registered at P.S. Medical College on 12.2.1994 against unknown. Accused applicant Avinash Mishra was the I.O. of the said case. An anonymous letter was received disclosing availability of the aforesaid missing service rifle in the house of Suresh Chandra of Kasganj, which was endorsed by Sri Shiv Sagar Singh, C.O. Civil Lines, Meerut on 21.2.1994 to the accused-applicant to enquire and report. The accused-applicant and other co-accused left the Police Station, Medical College vide G.D. entry no. 49 at 8:30 pm on 24.2.1994 and reached Kasganj from Meerut by Maruti Car No. dDQ 8590 at about 3:15 am on 25.2.1994 for investigation of the aforesaid case for recovery of the missing service rifle. The accused applicant and other teammates took assistance of S.I. Bahadur Ali, Constables Ramesh Chandra and Shiv Shankar Mishra of P.S. Kasganj. Thereafter the applicant and other teammates reached house of Suresh Chandra (maternal uncle of the deceased) in Mohalla Jaijai Ram, Kasganj for recovery of the said missing rifle. The search of his house was made but nothing was recovered. The applicant and co-accused picked up Suresh Chandra and deceased Gopal Maheshwari (as he were already available there) under the garb of investigation/interrogation. The applicant along with Suresh Chandra and Gopal Maheshwari, SI Bahadur Ali and two constables Ramesh Chandra and Shiv Shankar Mishra came back to the P.S. Kasganj, there S.I. Bahadur Ali took accused-applicant to C.O. ML Ghai. The applicant informed M.L. Ghai that he was taking two persons namely, Suresh Chandra and deceased Gopal Maheshwari for the purposes of interrogation. S.I. Bahadur Ali also informed this fact to Govind Singh, S.O. P.S. Kasganj that the accused-applicant had taken away the aforesaid two persons in custody. The S.I. Bahadur Ali and two other Constables Ramesh Chandra and Shiv Shankar Mishra on seeing the photograph of Gopal Maheshwari (deceased) confirmed that the said deceased was picked up by the applicant along with other co-accused from the house of Suresh Chandra, Mohalla Jaijai Ram, Kasganj in the early morning of 25.2.1994. Thereafter applicant and other co-accused returned to P.S. Medical College, Meerut by the said Maruti car. Suresh Chandra was locked in a room of the first floor of P.S. Medical College, Meerut and deceased Gopal Maheshwari was taken away to an unknown destination and later on Suresh Chandra was released on 26/27.2.1994. Further it is revealed in investigation that accused Krishnapal Singh took Bajaj scooter bearing no. DL 3 SC 0326 from Manoj kumar Mishra at about 9:30 pm on 26.2.1994, whereby he was going to meet his friend Harendra Pal Singh in Meerut for taking some money from him as Krishnapal Singh was doing business of supply of Video Cassetes to various shopkeepers including the Manoj Kumar Mishra. On way to Shashtrinagar, Meerut, he slowed down his scooter due to speed beaker on Mall Road near supply depot at about 10:30 pm on 26.2.1994 and it was then that two miscreants, one having country made pistol, snatched his scooter at pistol point and then both ran away towards commissioner Chauraha. The investigation further discloses that accused- Om Pal Singh along with Sanjay Sirohi reached the place where scooter was looted, immediately by police jeep URI No. 7794. Accused Krishnapal Singh reported accused Om Pal Singh and others about the incident of loot then and there. Krishnapal Singh also pointed out towards the scooter which was being taken away by two miscreants towards commissioner Chauraha, The accused Om Pal Singh directed Krishnapal Singh for lodging a case of loot of scooter at P.S. Lalkurti, Meerut, which was lodged as crime no. 64 of 1994, under Section 392 IPC, against two unknown persons. Further it has come in the investigation that accused- Inspector Om Pal Singh flashed the message on R.T. Set about the incident of loot and chased miscreants along with Sanjay Sirohi and others by police vehicle. Two miscreants along with looted scooter were fleeing towards commissioner chauraha. The accused Om Pal Singh and Sanjay Sirohi were armed with service revolvers. Two miscreants reached Samrat Palace under P.S. Medical College, in open field where scooter skidded and fell. On receipt of the message on R.T. Set, accused Avinash Mishra along with accused Mahesh Kumar Singh, accused Chandra Pal Singh and others and also accused Shyam Lal Kashyap reached Samrat Palace. The accused-applicant along with other accused were armed with service revolvers. The accused inspector Om Pal Singh also chased the miscreants and reached Samrat Palace. Two miscreants started firing upon the police. Finding no way, the aforesaid accused made 12 rounds of fire from their service revolvers and in this cross fire, one miscreant had killed, while other escaped. Out of 12 rounds, the accused Om Pal Singh fired one round, accused Mahesh Singh fired two rounds, while accused-applicant fired four rounds, accused Sanjay Sirohi fired four rounds and Shyam Lal Kashyap fired one round from their service revolvers. The miscreant (Gopal Maheshwari) was thus killed in police encounter, whereas the other miscreant managed to escape. Many other senior police officials also reached the spot on receipt of message of encounter.

7. The case crime no. 82 of 1994, under section 307, 412 IPC being crime no. 83 of 1994, under Sections 25 Arms Act was registered on 26.2.1994 against two unknown at P.S. Medical College on a written report of applicant and investigation was taken up by Ramker Singh, Inspector Civil Lines, Meerut. Further it has come in investigation that Sri Prabhat Kumar

Sharma, Additional City Magistrate conducted Panchayatnama on 26/27.2.1994 of the deceased as an unidentified person of 25 years of age and articles recovered from him were also noted, which are detailed in the said investigation report. Further it has come in investigation that unidentified deceased (Gopal Maheshwari) had received three injuries caused by bullets. Dr. Vinod Kumar Gupta, Reserve Duty Medical Officer, Medical College, Meerut conducted post-mortem report of the deceased as an unidentified man and recorded his cause of death to be shock and hemorrhage due to injuries sustained and also recovered three bullets from the body of the deceased and thereafter the body of the deceased was cremated as unidentified/unclaimed. The accused Om Pal Singh mentioned fact of encounter in G.D. No. 4, dated 27.2.1994 at P.S. Lal Kurti and accused Shyam Lal Kashyap recorded the said fact in G.D. of P.S. Nauchandi at serial no. 36 of 27.2.1994. The accused applicant sealed 12 empties fired by the accused persons and prepared its recovery memo dated 26.2.1994. Subsequently, looted scooter was received back by the accused Krishnapal Singh, who identified the dead miscreant as the same person on the spot, who was one of the two scooter snatchers. Subsequently, the investigation of crime no. 82 and 83/1994, under Section 307/412 and 25-A Arms Act were taken by Sri Raghunath Shukla, Inspector,C.B.C.I.D., Meerut, under the order of Government of U.P. and he submitted final report no. 47, dated 21.12.1995, in the court of ACJM-VI, Meerut recommending closure of the both the said crime numbers and got registered a case under Section 302, 342, 346, 347, 364, 216, 217, 182, 201, 323, 193, 197, 198, 203, 211 and 120B IPC against the accused applicant and others for killing the deceased Gopal Maheshwari in a fake encounter at P.S., Medical College. With a view to proving false presence of the deceased within District Meerut, accused Pratap Singh got registered crime no. 49 of 1994, under section 504, 506 IPC, P.S. Bhasuna, District Meerut on 25.2.1994 against deceased Gopal Maheshari and his brother in pursuance to well planned conspiracy. Further more accused persons managed the surrender application in the name of Gopal Maheshwari in the court of ACJM-4, Meerut on 25.2.1994 in some case falsely. It was also motivated attempt to prove the physical presence of deceased Gopal Maheshwari in Meerut on 25.2.1994. During investigation by C.B.I., the theory of police encounter was found to be absolutely false and concocted by the accused persons and so was the case of surrender application under Section 504 and 506 IPC as mentioned above. Investigation also discloses that on 25.2.1994, Vishnu Kumar sent a telegram to the Hon'ble Chief Justice of India, New Delhi mentioning that Suresh Chandra and Gopal Maheshwari (deceased) had been brought to Meerut, at about 4:00 am on 25.2.1994 from Kasganj for killing them in a fake encounter. Another telegram was also sent to S.S.P., Meerut by Rakesh on 25.2.1994 to the effect that Meerut Police had brought Gopal Maheshwari from Kashganj for fake encounter. Further investigation revealed that Gopal Maheshwari (deceased) was known from before to the accused-applicant and other co-accused, who got his body cremated as unidentified with ulterior motive. Further there was found no speed beaker on the Mall Road on 26.2.1994. Further it has come in investigation that accompanying other police men were not associated with the accused persons at the time of encounter and that the accused-applicant, co-accused Sanjay Sirohi, Mahesh Singh and Chandra Pal Singh kidnapped the deceased Gopal Maheshwari from Kasganj on 25.2.1994, hence they committed offence under Section 364 IPC and thereafter accused-applicant, Sanjay Sirohi, Mahesh Singh, Chandra Pal Sing, Om Pal Singh, Shyam Lal Kashyap committed his murder on 26.2.1994 and caused disappearance of evidence and fabricated a false police encounter case in conspiracy with co-accused Krishnapal Singh and thus they committed offence under Section 120-B IPC read with Section 302, 201, 220 IPC and substantive offences thereof. Accused-Pratap Singh lodged false crime no. 49 of 1994, under Section 504 and 506 IPC at P.S. Bahsuma, Meerut on 24.2.1994 against deceased Gopal Maheshwari and his brother, whereas deceased was in illegal custody of the aforesaid accused and thus he has committed an offence under Section 201 IPC. Further it is mentioned in the charge sheet that Government of U.P. was requested on 5.4.2019 for according sanction for prosecution against aforesaid accused persons but the same was still awaited. The officers of the C.B.I. of the level of D.S.P., S.P. and D.I.G. pursued matter at various levels including Chief Secretary and many reminders were also issued to the Government and ultimately court was pleased to issue direction to the State Government on 12.7.2001 through Chief Secretary to expedite taking decision to accord sanction for prosecution within 60 days. Government did not respond and then the court issued reminder on 8.11.2001 to the Chief Secretary of U.P. for compliance of the order dated 12.7.2001 of the court. In spite of directions of the court, sanction had yet not been issued by the State Government and prayer was made that cognizance of the offences may be taken against accused persons and they be summoned and be put to trial according to law.

8. The submission made by the learned counsel for the applicant is that admittedly charge sheet was filed on 6.12.2001 awaiting sanction from the State Government, thereafter the case was numbered as 1419 of 2001 in the court of Special Chief Judicial Magistrate (CBI, Dehradun) and applicant was summoned vide order dated 13.8.2002. Prior to the order dated 13.8.2002, the State Government vide its order dated 24.7.2002 refused to grant sanction for prosecution of the applicant and copy thereof was forwarded to DIG (CBI) SIC-IV New Delhi, for appropriate action at their end, which is annexed at annexure- 5 but for the reasons best known to the prosecuting agency despite the official communication of the said order of the State Government dated 24.7.2002 refusing the grant of sanction, the same was never placed before Special Chief Judicial Magistrate (CBI), Dehradun, who has summoned the applicant vide order dated 13.8.2002. The applicant was also not informed about the said order regarding refusing of sanction. Therefore left with no option, the applicant challenged the order dated 13.8.2002 passed in case no. 1419 of 2001 by the Special Chief Judicial Magistrate, CBI, in Crl. Revision No. 94 of 2002 before Additional Sessions Judge/FTC- First Dehradun, stating therein that the applicant could not have been prosecuted without proper sanction. Vide judgment and order dated 17.9.2003, the revisional court allowed the revision and set aside the order dated 13.8.2002 of Special Chief Judicial Magistrate, CBI, Dehradun. Further it is argued that refusal of sanction was deliberately concealed by the prosecuting agency, both at the time of passing summoning order dated 13.8.2002 and at the time of arguments in criminal revision no. 94 of 2002. The revisional court while allowing the revision observed that in case the sanction for prosecution by the State Government is granted in future, the matter would again revive and thereafter the matter was consigned. The prosecuting agency thereafter clandestinely pursued the matter at the State level and concealed the facts that previously after examining the entire matter, State of U.P. vide order dated 24.7.2002 had refused the sanction to prosecute the applicant and that the summoning order was set aside. It is further submitted that it is apparent that the State thereafter without even going through the record of the case, vide order dated 15.7.2005 accorded sanction for prosecution of the applicant, which is annexure-7 to the application. Immediately thereafter an application was moved by the learned counsel for the C.B.I. before J.M., C.B.I., Dehradun to reopen the matter in the light of subsequent sanction order dated 15.7.2005. The learned Judicial Magistrate, C.B.I., thereafter on the said application, directed that the record be sent to the competent court having jurisdiction in the light of order passed by Uttranchal High Court after creation of new State of Uttaranchal, true copy of the order dated 13.9.2005 is annexure-8 to the application. Thereafter the matter was sent to the court of C.J.M., CBI, Ghaziabad who after going through the record took cognizance and summoned the accused vide order dated 26.4.2006, which is annexed at annexure-9. The said order is bad in law as the same is based on an order which has been obtained by concealment of material facts. No fresh reason have been assigned by the State while deviating from its earlier order dated 24.7.2002. The applicant is a Government servant and due to false implication, his entire career is at stake and he got the knowledge of the summoning order dated 26.4.2006 on 16.6.2006 and the same is nothing but an abuse of process of court therefore the same needs to be quashed.

9. Learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance upon State of Himachal Pradesh, 2010 (14) SCC 527, in which Hon'ble Apex Court has dealt with power of the Government to review its order granting or refusing sanction to prosecute. In this case, respondent was said to have been caught red-handed accepting bribe from the complainant; upon completion of the investigation, vigilance Department sought sanction under Section 19 from Government to prosecute respondent; Principal Secretary had found no justification in granting sanction to prosecute the respondent and hence the same was refused; thereafter the Vigilance Department took up the matter again with Principal Secretary, Health for grant of sanction; Competent Authority reconsidered the matter and granted the sanction to prosecute the respondent; no fresh material was available for further consideration; it was held that sanction to prosecute public servant may be granted only where fresh materials have been collected by investigating agency subsequent to earlier order and matter is reconsidered by sanctioning authority in the light of fresh materials; power of sanctioning authority, being not of a continuing character, could have been exercised only once on the same materials.

10. Learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance upon State of Punjab and Anr. Vs. Mohammed Iqbal Bhatti, 2009 (67) ACC 350, in which matter dealt by the Apex Court was whether the State has any power to review the order; it was held that in the event it appears from the order and record that even if a valid order is not authenticated in terms of article 166 (3) of the Constitution of India, the same would not be vitiated in law; failure to authenticate an executive order is not fatal as the said order is directory and not mandatory, hence no interference was warranted and accordingly, the appeal was dismissed. Paragraph nos. 5 and 6 of the said judgment are quoted hereinbelow:-

5. The respondent is a public servant. The Governor of the State of Punjab is his appointing authority. He is, therefore, not removable from his office save by and with the sanction of the Government and in that view of the matter if he is accused in any offence alleged to have been committed by him while acting or purporting to act in discharging of his official duty, grant of prior sanction is imperative in character in terms of Section 197 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973. The power of the State, as is well known, is performed by an executive authority authorized in this behalf in terms of the Rules of Executive Business framed under Article 166 of the Constitution of India insofar as such a power has to be exercised in terms of Article 162 thereof. Once a sanction is refused to be granted, no appeal lies thereagainst.

11. Learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance upon Suresh Kumar Bhikamchand Jain Vs. Pandey Ajay Bhushan and others, 1998 CRI. L. J. 1242, in which process was issued by the Magistrate for appearance of the accused on being satisfied that there was ground for proceeding; plea by the accused taken before Magistrate was that offence was committed by him in discharge of official duty and that court had no power to take cognizance in absence of previous sanction of government; it was held that accused can produce relevant materials to establish necessary ingredients for invoking section 197(1) Cr.P.C.

12. Learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance upon State of Orissa & Others Vs. Ganesh Chandra Jew, 2004, AIR SCW 1296, in which it has been held by Hon'ble Apex Court that the expression 'no court shall take cognizance of such offence except with previous sanction' makes protection mandatory and bars the very cognizance of complaint'. Further it is held that the expression 'any offence alleged to have been committed by him while acting or purporting to act in discharge of his official duty'. In the said expression, the expression 'official duty' implies that the act or omission must have been done by public officer in course of his service and that it should have been in discharge of his duty. The section does not extend its protective cover to every act or omission done by a public servant in service but restricts its scope of operation to only those acts or omissions which are done by a public servant in discharge of official duty. Further it is held that it has been widened further by extending protection to even those acts or omissions which are done in proposed exercise of official duty. That is under colour of office, Official duty, therefore implies that the act or omission must have been done by a public servant in course of his service and such act or omission must have been performed as part of the duty which further must have been official in nature. The section has thus to be construed strictly, while determining its applicability to any act or omission in course of service. Its operation has to be limited to those duties which are discharged in course of duty. But once any act or omission has been found to have been committed by a public servant in discharge of his official duty, then it must be given liberal and vide construction so far its official nature is concerned. For instance a public servant is not entitled to indulge in criminal activities. To that extent the section has to be construed narrowly and in a restricted manner but once it is established that act or omission was done by public servant while discharging his duty then the scope of its being official should be construed so as to advance objective of the section in favour of the public servant.

13. Learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance upon State of Maharashtra Vs. Dr. Budhikota Subbard, (1993) 3 SCC 339, in which it is held by Hon'ble Apex Court that for protection under Section 197 Cr.P.C., the offence must have been committed 'while acting or purporting to act in discharge of his official duty'; further the meaning of official duty has been referred as (1) act or omission must have been done by public servant in course of his service and (2), it should have been done in discharge of his duty.

14. Learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance upon State through C.B.I. Vs. B.L. Verma & another, (1997) 10 SCC 772. In this case, it is held by the Apex Court that provision of Section 197 Cr.P.C. is mandatory, hence where the actions alleged against public servant to be constituting offences had been done in purported discharge of his duties, even though amounting to abuse of power, it was held that the trial court could not, in absence of sanction under Section 197 Cr.P.C. take cognizance of the said offences and therefore it was held that High Court had rightly directed the dropping of the proceedings, however, it was further held that such an order of the High Court did not have the effect of barring grant of Section subsequently and activating the prosecution thereafter.

15. Learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance upon R.Balakrishna Pillai Vs. state of Kerala & another, (1996) I SCC 478. In this case, it is held that for extending protection under Section 197 Cr.P.C., it has to be assessed as to whether the act complained of had a direct nexus or relation with the official duties of a public servant and that will depend on facts of each case. It was further held that where the act is directly and reasonably connected with official duty as in the present case the act alleged was directly and reasonably connected with the official duty of a Minister, therefore, it attracted protection under Section 197(1) Cr.P.C. and it is further held that protection under Section 197(1) Cr.P.C. extends to public servant even if the public servant sought to be prosecuted has ceased to be a public servant on the date of taking cognizance of the offence.

16. Learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance upon Amrik Singh Vs. State of Pepsu, AIR 1955 Supreme Court 309. Paragraph no. 11 of the said judgment is as follows:-

11. .....The result then is that whether sanction is necessary to prosecute a public servant on a charge of criminal misappropriation, will depend on whether the acts complained of hinge on his duties as a pubic servant. If they do, then sanction is requisite. But if they are unconnected with such duties, then no sanction is necessary.

17. Learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance upon Mansukhlal Vithaldas Chauhan Vs. State of Gujarat, (1997) 7 SCC 622. In this case, it is held that sanction for prosecution requires to be a valid sanction which involves independent application of mind to the facts of the case as also material and evidence collected during investigation by the Authority competent to grant sanction. The sanction issued by an Authority on the directions of the High Court is held to be invalid because there was no independent application of mind by the said authority. The High Court's direction had taken away discretion of the Authority not to grant sanction and it was left with no choice but to mechanically accord sanction in obedience of the mandamus issued by the High Court.

18. Learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance upon R.S. Nayak Vs. A.R. Antulay, 1984 SCC (Cri) 172. In this case it is held that MLA is not a public servant. It is further held that accused must continue to be a public servant on the date of taking cognizance of the offence and not on the date of commission of the offence which are per-conditions for granting sanction. It is further held that where a accused holds a number of public offices, competent authority to accord sanction would be the one, competent to remove him from office which he is alleged to have misused and abused with corrupt motive. The removing authority has to apply its mind on the question of sanction considering the allegation regarding corrupt use of the official power.

19. From the side of C.B.I., counter affidavit has been filed in which it is stated that case was registered on 22.12.1995 at C.B.I./SIC-IV, New Delhi in pursuance of the order of Apex court dated 15.12.1995 in Writ Petition (Crl.) No. 93 of 1994 (Smt. Muni Devi Vs. State of U.P.) against S.L. Kashyap the then Station Officer, P.S. Nauchandi, Meerut and other co-accused which includes the accused applicant under Section 120-B read with Section 302, 364, 201 and 220 IPC and subsequently investigation was entrusted to C.B.I/S.I.C.-IV, Lucknow on 27.12.1995. The petitioner Munni Devi was mother of the deceased Gopal Maheshwari, who stated that her brother Suresh Chandra and her son Gopal Maheshwari (deceased) were illegally taken away on the morning of 24.2.1994 by police personnel subsequently in the night of 26/27.2.1994 deceased Gopal Maheshwari was killed in fake encounter.

20. In response to the averments made in the affidavit from the side of applicant, it is submitted that in course of investigation, sufficient evidence was gathered to prosecute the applicant along with other co-accused. S.P.'s report dated 19.3.1999 was sent to Government of U.P. requesting to accord sanction for prosecution and for departmental action. Deepti Vilas, Secretary, Government of U.P. vide letter dated 24.7.2002 intimated C.B.I. the decision of the State Government regarding sanction for prosecution against accused officers including the accused-applicant, photo copy of the said letter is annexed at annexure CA-1 to the counter affidavit. C.B.I. filed charge sheet on 7.12.2001 against the accused-applicant and other co-accused in the court of C.J.M., without sanction for prosecution and the trial court took cognizance on 17.1.2002. On 16.7.2004, the same court passed an order that in absence of sanction for prosecution, the proceedings of the case were closed and the same could be resumed if the sanction for prosecution was accorded. Subsequently, the sanction of prosecution against the accused persons was granted under Section 197 Cr.P.C. by the State Government vide order dated 15.7.2005 which is annexed at annexure CA-2. It is further mentioned that the trial has remained held up for last five years and that it is imperative in the interest of justice that the stay order dated 21.6.2006 be vacated so that the trial may proceed.

21. Reliance has been placed by C.B.I. upon Devendra Pratap Singh Vs. State of Bihar and Anr., AIR SC 1671, in which a police officer (S.H.O) was alleged to have committed offences of hurt, theft and criminal intimidation and it was held that the said offences did not have any nexus or relation with discharge of his official duties as Government officers, hence sanction was not necessary.

22. During oral submissions made by the learned counsel for the applicant much emphasis was laid by him that when in earlier vide order dated 24.7.2002, the sanction to prosecute the applicant was not given by the Government then without any fresh material, subsequently vide order dated 15.7.2005 the prosecution sanction could have been given by the State Government as there does not lie any power with Sate Government to review its order and in this regard the pertinent ruling which he has relied is a case of State of Punjab Vs. Bhatti (supra).

23. In this regard, I have gone through both the orders i.e. order dated 24.7.2002, whereby it was conceded by the Government of U.P. that sanction does not require to be accorded and only departmental proceedings were held against the applicant and other co-accused in which it was mentioned that with respect to according sanction, the Government considered the matter and it was found that deceased had died in police encounter in the intervening night of 26/27.2.1994. According to local police, in the night of 26.2.1994 at about 10:30 pm, on Mall Road two unknown persons had looted a scooter of one Krishnapal Singh on the basis of which case of loot was registered at P.S. Lalkurti, Meerut and soon after receiving this information, the police party had reached the spot and at the instance of Krishnapal Singh, chase was given to the miscreants. It is further mentioned that the police of P.S. Medical College, District Meerut had an encounter with miscreants in which police had made firing in their defence and in the same, one miscreant had died on the spot which was found to be deceased Gopal Maheshwari, while the other miscreants had fled from the spot. It is further mentioned in the said order that C.B.I. had concluded that the deceased Gopal Maheshwari was picked up from house in Kasganj in the intervening night of 24/25.2.1994 and that he was kept illegally in police custody till 26.2.1994 and in the intervening night of 26/27.2.1994, he was murdered showing it to be a false encounter, while as per the facts provided from the side of CBI, from the deceased Gopal Maheshwari and other co-accused ticket no. H-27 & H-28 were recovered of Nandan Cinema. Both these tickets were of 26.2.1994 of the evening 6 to 9 pm show by which CBI had concluded that the deceased Gopal Maheshwari was arrested by police of Kasganj in the intervening night of 24/25.2.1994 and after keeping him in illegal custody, he was eliminated in fake encounter in the intervening night of 26/27.2.1994, the said version of the C.B.I. becomes doubtful and hence it was held that there was no justification to grant grant prosecution sanction. In subsequent order dated 15.7.2005, it was recorded by the Government that the opinion has come on record that Gopal Maheshwari (deceased) resident of 33 Harinagar, P.S. Bramhpuri, Meerut and Suresh Chandra resident of Mohalla Jaijairam, P.S. Kotwali Kasganj, both were caught in the intervening night of 24/25.2.1994 by the accused-applicant along with other co-accused and were detained on the first floor of the Police Station, Medical College, Meerut and thereafter the applicant and the other co-accused had eliminated him in the intervening night of 26/27.2.1994 showing it to be a fake encounter, while it was shown that deceased and Krishnapal Singh were fleeing after looting scooter from Pratap Singh, apart from that a panchayatnama was also prepared by the City Magistrate without identification of the dead body and his body was also cremated. With respect to causing death of the deceased Gopal Maheshwari in fake encounter on 26.2.1994, case crime no. 82 of 1994 was registered at P.S., Meerut, under Sections 307 and 412 IPC and also under crime no. 83 of 1994, under Section 25 of Arms Act, in which the Hon'ble Supreme Court had passed order for investigation on 15.12.1995 and under the order of Apex Court, investigation was handed over to C.B.I. and the C.B.I. after extensive investigation has found prima facie that a case under Section 302/201/218 read with Section 120B IPC is found to be made out against the accused applicant and other co-accused. Further it is recorded that after having gone through the entire evidence, which has been presented before it and after careful consideration of the same, Government is convinced that the applicant along with other accused be prosecuted for the said offence and Hon'ble Governor has been pleased to accord the prosecution sanction. It appears from the perusal of both the orders that in the earlier order material, that there was an order of Supreme Court passed on the writ petition filed by the mother of the deceased for investigation to be held which was handed over to C.B.I., was not taken into consideration as no such mention has been found in the said order, hence it is found that additional material was placed before Government for considering as to whether prosecution sanction be accorded or not and therefore at the subsequent stage, when the same has been accorded on the basis of additional material, it cannot be said that any violation of law has been made by the Government by according the said sanction and therefore above mentioned law which has been cited by the learned counsel for the applicant would not help at all. Further I find that facts of this case are very clear now as have been mentioned above that the accused-applicant is found involved in taking away the deceased and thereafter a fake encounter was made in which he was eliminated and that when the inquest was being conducted by the said City Magistrate, the same was allowed to be done without his identity being disclosed though it has come in evidence that accused-applicant knew full well the identity of the said deceased and thereafter his cremation was also allowed to take place without disclosing his identity, which shows that there is plenty of inculpatory evidence against the applicant.

24. As regards prosecution sanction, much argument was also made that protection under Section 197 Cr.P.C. should be extended to the accused, to which learned counsel for the C.B.I. has relied upon Devendra Pratap Singh Vs. State of Bihar (supra) in which it is clearly held that when there is no nexus of the act committed by the accused with his official duty, protection of section 197 Cr.P.C. would not be given. Several citations which have been relied upon by the learned counsel for the applicant himself clearly speak that there should be nexus of the act allegedly done by the accused with his official duty and if it is not the case then no protection can be granted to the accused. In the present case, it is found that it cannot be held to fall in official duty of the applicant to eliminate the deceased, if he had committed any wrong then judicial process ought to have been resorted to by lodging F.I.R. under the appropriate sections, but this Court finds that question of granting protection under Section 197 Cr.P.C. does not arise, however, it is irrelevant because already prosecution sanction has been granted in this case by the Government. It has also to be made clear here that investigation in this case was handed over to C.B.I. pursuant to the order of Hon'ble Suprme Court therefore Hon'ble Apex Court was fully seized with the matter and a query was made from the learned counsel for the applicant as to why he did not approach the Hon'ble Apex Court when he was feeling aggrieved that this sanction has been granted subsequently by reviewing earlier order. If there was any such grievance to him he could have approached, the Hon'ble Apex Court and mentioned in Writ Petition (Crl.) No. 93 of 1994, which has been disposed of also vide order dated 25.7.2005, in which Hon'ble Apex Court has passed following order:-

In view of the counter affidavit filed on behalf of the State informing this Court that the sanction has now been granted for prosecution of accused no. 1 to accused no. 6, no further orders are called for. The CRLMP stands disposed of.

25. It appears from the order of Hon'ble Apex Court as well that it has disposed of the matter when it found that sanction for prosecution has already been accorded, therefore, I find that no ground to allow this application and the same deserves to be rejected and accordingly, rejected.

26. Interim order stands vacated forthwith.

1. Heard Sri Ronak Chaturvedi, learned counsel for the applicant, Mr. Anand Priya Singh, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 and Mr. Prashant Kumar, learned A.G.A. for the State assisted by Mr. P.K. Sahi, State Law Officer.

2. Learned counsel for the applicant, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 and the learned A.G.A. agree that the present application may be disposed of at this stage without calling for further affidavits in view of the order proposed to be passed today.

3. By means of this 482 Cr.P.C. application, the applicant has questioned order dated 16th September, 2014 summoning the applicant, order dated 21st March, 2015 issuing non-bailable warrant against him as well as the entire proceedings of the Complaint Case No. 1546 of 2014 (Om Construction Vs. M/s. Komal Construction), under Section 138 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881 (hereinafter referred to as the "N.I. Act"), Police Station-Obra, District-Sonbhadra, pending in the Court of .

4. The facts, as borne out from the complaint made by opposite party no.2 against the applicant on 13th August, 2014 under Section 138 N.I. Act in the Court of Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Sonebhadra, are as follows:

The company of applicant, in the name and style of "M/s. Komal Construction, under various work orders and tenders of Railaway and other departmnts, extensively undertakes various types of constructions such as pool construction, brick works etc. on huge basis and all the works and other arrangements are done by the applicant. Since the company got two work orders from M/s. Kalendi Raiwaly Construction (Engineering Ltd.) and for completion of the said work on time and on speed, which requires a lot of labor, resources, machines, etc. to speed up the work to complete on an adjusted basis. To fulfill all those works, the applicant needed to assign work to another person or firm and pay their expenses according to labor under which the applicant made a proposal to opposite party no. 2. to do the above work speedily and also assured that the applicant has more big tasks and his client talked him to complete the said work quickly and in lieu of this, the applicant requested opposite party no.2 for arranging machine, labor, capital and other expenses and also assured him to give work order of his company. Accepting the proposal, the applicant, opposite party no.2 agreed to work with him. Opposite party no.2 requested the applicant that because there are two marriages in his house, he would arrange the machine, money and everything but he would reach on the spot rarely. Being busy in the said marriages, opposite party no.2 could hardly reach the spot but he had arranged machine, money and everything whichever was required as per his assurance. In that way opposite party no.2 spent lot of money and labor on trusting the applicant and the opposite party no.2 also got a written contract from the applicant and he had worked under those contracts. In this way, opposite party no.2 started working with the applicant under contracts given by the applicant and gave his machine, labor and money. After being free from marriages, when he came to the site of applicant, he came to know that the applicant had taken money and labor from other people like him and those people were very angry and they were threatening the applicant to return their money. When opposite party no.2 asked the applicant as to why he has not given their money, he told opposite party no.2 that in case he is interested in working with him, he may do the same, otherwise get away with his money. When opposite party no.2 asked the applicant to refund the expenditure incurred in aforesaid works taken by him, he started bothering him by promising to refund the same by tomorrow or day-after tomorrow. In spite of that, the applicant continued to lure him by showing him income tax return worth of 5-7 crores and a turnover of 50-60 crores. Ultimately after enormous pressure exerted by opposite party no.2, the applicant told him to make a statement of account of money whichever has been spend by him and at the end of February 2014, he accounted for about Rs. 15 crores on the applicant, which he has also admitted in the presence of other sharers of his company and some others. To refund the same, out of total amount of Rs. 15 crores, for paying Rs. 50 lacs, the applicant has given some cheques to opposite party no.2 and he has also assured the opposite party no.2 to refund all the money on different dates in future. When Cheque no. 002107 dated 15th June, 2014 for a sum of Rs. 12,00,000/-, Cheque no. 002108 dated 15th June, 2014 for a sum of Rs. 12,00,000/- and Cheque no. 002109 dated 15th June, 2014 for a sum of Rs. 12,00,000/- (i.e. total Rs. 36,00,000/-), which were given by the applicant, has been presented on 3rd July, 2014 by opposite party no.2 for encashment in Allahabad Bank, Branch-Obera, where account of opposite party no. 2 bearing Account No. 5018365077 is maintained, on the same day the same has been returned as dishonoured with a return memo showing "insufficient balance".

5. The said complaint supported by an affidavit has been registered as Complaint Case No. 1546 of 2014 (Om Construction Vs. M/s. Komal Construction), under Section 138 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881 (hereinafter referred to as the "N.I. Act"), Police Station-Obra, District-Sonbhadra. After recording statement of the complainant under Section 200 Cr.P.C, the court below has passed an order dated 16th September, 2014 and when the applicant could not appear before the court below, the court below has passed an order dated 21st March, 2015 issuing non-bailable warrant against the applicant. It is against these two orders that the present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed.

6. On the matter being taken up, a Coordinate Bench of this Court passed following order:

"Heard learned counsel for the applicant and leaned AGA.

Learned counsel for the applicant has submitted that the complaint as well as the affidavits filed in support of the complaint is completely silent about any notice or its service upon the applicant as required under Section 138 of Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881.

Submissions made by learned counsel for the applicants, prima facie, appear to have substance and a prima facie case for grant of interim relief is made out.

Issue notice to opposite party no. 2 returnable within four weeks. He may file counter affidavit within the same period after receipt of notice. Rejoinder affidavit, if any, may be filed within two weeks thereafter.

List this case after expiry of aforesaid period. Till the next date of listing no coercive steps shall be taken against the applicant only in Complaint Case No. 1546 of 2014, under Section 138 of N. I. Act, P.S. Obra, District Sonbhadra."

7. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that before summoning the applicant, the court below has not recorded statements of witnesses of opposite party no.2 except him, which is per se illegal. The applicant is the Director/Partner of M/s. Komal Construction. The said company is engaged in construction work. It is no doubt true that the applicant and the complainant were carrying on business transaction but the applicant has already re-paid some amount to the complainant. It is further submitted that in the complaint, the complainant/opposite party no.2 has only given the details of the cheques and the date of its dishonour. In the complaint, it is nowhere alleged that any legal notice was given by the complainant/opposite party no.2 through his advocate to the applicant nor anything has been said about the receipt of the same to the applicant, which are necessary and essential ingredients as per Section 138 N.I. Act. It is further submitted by the learned counsel for the applicant that Section 138 N.I. Act very clearly provides that the offence would be made out, if the payee or the holder in due course of the cheque, makes a demand for the payment of the said amount of money by giving a legal notice in writing, to the drawer of the cheque within 15 days of the receipt of the information received by him by the Bank qua the return of the cheque as unpaid. In the complaint, opposite party no.2. has only mentioned the date on which he has received information from the Bank and it has nowhere been mentioned as how he made a demand for the payment of the said amount of money. In absence of necessary and essential ingredients of the alleged offence, the complaint itself becomes void and the proceedings initiated on such a complaint is not at all maintainable. As such the same are liable to be quashed by this Court. Learned counsel for the applicant further submits that even the statement of opposite party no.2 which has been given on an affidavit, does not depict the allegations of sending notice or making a demand from the applicant. The statement like the complaint is absolutely silent about the factum of sending legal notice and failure on the part of the applicant to repay the amount, which is necessary ingredient for constituting an offence under Section 138 N.I. Act. The court below only on the basis of such complaint and statement of the complainant has committed error in passing the summoning order against applicant, which is also illegal. It is further submitted that in the impugned order passed by the court below dated 16th September, 2014, it has been mentioned that cheques were dishonoured on 3rd July, 2014 and the legal notice, which was sent on 14th July, 2014. However, the said legal notice depicts that the said notice is a registered legal notice sent by the opposite party no.-2 through his advocate, namely, Ravindra Nath Pandey on 14th July, 2014. Even otherwise, the purported notice is vague and does not clearly depict the exact amount, which the applicant had to pay to the complainant. Neither in the complaint nor in the statement of the complainant recorded under Section 200 Cr.P.C., it has been mentioned as to on what date, the said legal notice has been received by the applicant. It is next submitted that even assuming without admitting that any such notice has been sent on 14th July, 2014 by registered post then, it can be inferred that the same has been delivered as per the period mentioned under Section 27 of the General Clauses Act, which mentions a period of 30 days. It is thus, submitted that if 30 days are to be calculated from 14th July, 2014, then it can be said that the said notice was delivered on 13th August, 2014, which further gives 15 days time to the applicant to repay the amount. If this 15 days period is added to 13th August, 2014, then it would mean that the complaint could not have been filed before 28th August, 2014 but in the present case the opposite party no.2 has filed the complaint on 13th August, 2014, which makes the complaint premature because no complaint can be maintained against the drawer of a cheque before the expiry of 15 days from the date of receipt of the notice under Proviso (c) to Section 138 N.I. Act, because the drawer/accused cannot be said to have committed any offence until then nor there is any accrual of cause of action for filing complaint under Section 138 N.I. Act. Any complaint filed before the expiry of the said 15 days is non est. Hence no cognizance of an offence can be taken on the basis of such non est complaint. In support of his aforesaid submissions, learned counsel for the applicant has relied upon following judgments of the Apex Court:

i. Jugesh Sehgal Vs. Shamsher Singh Gogi, reported in (2009) 14 SCC 683;

ii. Yogendra Pratap Singh Vs. Savitri Pandey & Another reported in (2014) 14 SCC 812;

iii. N. Harihara Krishnan Vs. J. Thomas reported in (2018) 13 SCC 663.

8. Learned counsel for the applicants, therefore, submitted that the present criminal proceedings initiated against the applicant are an abuse of the process of the Court and law. On the cumulative strength of the aforesaid submissions, it is submitted by learned counsel for the applicants that the proceedings of the above mentioned complaint case are liable to be quashed by this Court.

9. Per contra, Mr. Prashant Kumar, learned A.G.A. for the State and Mr. Anand Priya Singh, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 have opposed the submissions made by the learned counsel for the applicant by contending that there is no illegality or infirmity in the order of summoning of the applicant passed by the concerned Magistrate. Learned counsel for the State and the learned counsel for opposite party no.2, therefore, submits that the present application is liable to be dismissed.

10. I have considered the submissions made by the learned counsel for the applicants and have gone through the records of the present application.

11. Before expressing any opinion on the merits of the case set up by both the parties, it would be worthwhile to reproduce Sections 138, 139 & 142 of the Negotiable Instrument Act, which are quoted herein-below:

138. Dishonour of cheque for insufficiency, etc., of funds in the account. -- Where any cheque drawn by a person on an account maintained by him with a banker for payment of any amount of money to another person from out of that account for the discharge, in whole or in part, of any debt or other liability, is returned by the bank unpaid, either because of the amount of money standing to the credit of that account is insufficient to honour the cheque or that it exceeds the amount arranged to be paid from that account by an agreement made with that bank, such person shall be deemed to have committed an offence and shall, without prejudice to any other provisions of this Act, be punished with imprisonment for 19 [a term which may be extended to two years], or with fine which may extend to twice the amount of the cheque, or with both: Provided that nothing contained in this section shall apply unless--

(a) the cheque has been presented to the bank within a period of six months from the date on which it is drawn or within the period of its validity, whichever is earlier;

(b) the payee or the holder in due course of the cheque, as the case may be, makes a demand for the payment of the said amount of money by giving a notice in writing, to the drawer of the cheque, 20 [within thirty days] of the receipt of information by him from the bank regarding the return of the cheque as unpaid; and

(c) the drawer of such cheque fails to make the payment of the said amount of money to the payee or, as the case may be, to the holder in due course of the cheque, within fifteen days of the receipt of the said notice.

Explanation.-- For the purposes of this section, "debt or other liability" means a legally enforceable debt or other liability.]

139. Presumption in favour of holder*.--It shall be presumed, unless the contrary is proved, that the holder of a cheque received the cheque of the nature referred to in section 138 for the discharge, in whole or in part, of any debt or other liability.*

"142 Cognizance of offences. -- Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974)--

(a) no court shall take cognizance of any offence punishable under section 138 except upon a complaint, in writing, made by the payee or, as the case may be, the holder in due course of the cheque;

(b) such complaint is made within one month of the date on which the cause of action arises under clause (c) of the proviso to section 138: [Provided that the cognizance of a complaint may be taken by the Court after the prescribed period, if the complainant satisfies the Court that he had sufficient cause for not making a complaint within such period.]

(c) no court inferior to that of a Metropolitan Magistrate or a Judicial Magistrate of the first class shall try any offence punishable under section 138."

12. From the above, it is manifestly clear that a dishonour would constitute an offence only if the cheque is returned by the bank "unpaid' either because the amount of money standing to the credit of the drawer's account is insufficient to honour the cheque or that the amount exceeds the amount arranged to be paid from that account by an agreement with that bank. Now, for an offence under Section 138 NI Act, it is essential that the cheque must have been issued in discharge of legal debt or liability by accused on an account maintained by him with a bank and on presentation of such cheque for encashment within its period of validity, the cheque must have been returned unpaid. The payee of the cheque must have issued legal notice of demand within 30 days from the receipt of the information by him from the bank regarding such dishonor and where the drawer of the cheque fails to make the payment within 15 days of the receipt of the aforesaid legal demand notice, cause of action under Section 138 NI Act arises.

13. From the Chapter XVII comprising Sections 138 to 142 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, which was introduced in statute by Act 66 of 1988, it is also apparently clear that the object underlying the provision contained in the said Chapter was aimed at inculcating faith in the efficacy of banking operations and giving credibility to negotiable instruments in business and day to day transactions by making dishonour of such instruments an offence. A negotiable instrument whether the same is in the form of a promissory note or a cheque is by its very nature a solemn document that carries with it not only a representation to the holder in due course of any such instrument but also a promise that the same shall be honoured for payment. To that end Section 139 of the Act raises a statutory presumption that the cheque is issued in discharge of a lawfully recoverable debt or other liability. This presumption is no doubt rebuttable at trial but there is no gain saying that the same favours the complainant and shifts the burden to the drawer of the instrument (in case the same is dishonoured) to prove that the instrument was without any lawful consideration. It is also noteworthy that Section 138 while making dishonour of a cheque an offence punishable with imprisonment and fine also provides for safeguards to protect drawers of such instruments where dishonour may take place for reasons other than those arising out of dishonest intentions. It envisages service of a notice upon the drawer of the instrument calling upon him to make the payment covered by the cheque and permits prosecution only after the expiry of the statutory period and upon failure of the drawer to make the payment within the said period.

14. Under Section 138 of the Act, where a cheque issued by the drawer in the discharge of any debt or any other liability is returned by the bank unpaid, because the amount standing to the credit of that account is insufficient to honour the cheque, the said person is deemed to have committed an offence. This is subject to proviso to Section 138 which provides that the cheque should have been presented to the bank within the period of six months from the date of which it is drawn or within the period of its validity, whichever is earlier. The payee must also make a demand for the payment of the said amount by giving a notice in writing to the drawer of the cheque within 30 days of the receipt of the information by him from the bank regarding the return of the cheque unpaid. If despite this demand, the drawer fails to make the payment within fifteen days of the receipt of the notice, a cause of action arises for prosecuting him for the offence punishable under Section 138 of the Act. Section 142 provides that the court shall take cognizance of an offence punishable under Section 138 of the Act upon receipt of a complaint in writing made by the payee or, as the case may be, the holder in due course of the cheque. Such complaint must be made within one month of the date on which the cause of action arises under clause (c) of the proviso to Section 138. However, discretion is given to the court to take cognizance of the complaint even after the prescribed period, if the complainant satisfies the court that he had sufficient cause for not making the complaint within such period.

15. persons who purported to discharge their liability by issuing cheques without really intending to do so, which was demonstrated by the fact that there was no sufficient balance in the account to discharge the liability. Apart from civil liability, a criminal liability was imposed on such unscrupulous drawers of cheques. The prosecution, however, was made subject to certain conditions. With a view to avoid unnecessary prosecution of an honest drawer of a cheque, or to give an opportunity to the drawer to make amendments, the proviso to Section 138 provides that after dis- honour of the cheque, the payee or the holder of the cheque in due course must give a written notice to the drawer to make good the payment. The drawer is given 15 days time from date of receipt of notice to make the payment, and only if he fails to make the payment he may be prosecuted. The object which the proviso seeks to achieve is quite obvious. It may be that on account of mistake of the bank, a cheque may be returned despite the fact that there is sufficient balance in the account from which the amount is to be paid. In such a case if the drawer of the cheque is prosecuted without notice, it would result in great in-justice and hardship to an honest drawer. One can also conceive of cases where a well intentioned drawer may have inadvertently missed to make necessary arrangements for reasons beyond his control, even though he genuinely intended to honour the cheque drawn by him. The law treats such lapses induced by inadvertence or negligence to be pardonable, provided the drawer after notice makes amendments and pays the amount within the prescribed period. It is for this reason that clause (c) of proviso to Section 138 provides that the section shall not apply unless the drawer of the cheque fails to make the payment within 15 days of the receipt of the said notice. To repeat, the proviso is meant to protect honest drawers whose cheques may have been dishonoured for the fault of others, or who may have genuinely wanted to fulfill their promise but on account of inadvertence or negligence failed to make necessary arrangements for the payment of the cheque. The proviso is not meant to protect unscrupulous drawers who never intended to honour the cheques issued by them, it being a part of their modus operandi to cheat unsuspecting persons.

16. If a notice is issued and served upon the drawer of the cheque, no controversy arises. Similarly if the notice is refused by the addressee, it may be presumed to have been served. This is also not disputed. This leaves us with the third situation where the notice could not be served on the addressee for one or the other reason, such as his non availability at the time of delivery, or premises remaining locked on account of his having gone elsewhere etc. If in each such case the law is understood to mean that there has been no service of notice, it would completely defeat the very purpose of the Act. It would then be very easy for an unscrupulous and dishonest drawer of a cheque to make himself scarce for sometime after issuing the cheque so that the requisite statutory notice can never be served upon him and consequently he can never be prosecuted. There is good authority to support the proposition that once the complainant, the payee of the cheque, issues notice to the drawer of the cheque, the cause of action to file a complaint arises on the expiry of the period prescribed for payment by the drawer of the cheque. If he does not file a complaint within one month of the date on which the cause of action arises under clause (c) of the proviso to Section 138 of the Act, his complaint gets barred by time. Thus, a person who can dodge the postman for about a month or two, or a person who can get a fake endorsement made regarding his non availability can successfully avoid his prosecution because the payee is bound to issue notice to him within a period of 30 days from the date of receipt of information from the bank regarding the return of the cheque as unpaid. He is, therefore, bound to issue the legal notice which may be returned with an endorsement that the addressee is not available on the given address.

17. Section 142 of the NI Act prescribes the mode and so also the time within which a complaint for an offence under Section 138 of the NI Act can be filed. A complaint made under Section 138 by the payee or the holder in due course of the cheque has to be in writing and needs to be made within one month from the date on which the cause of action has arisen under clause (c) of the proviso to Section 138. The period of one month under Section 142(b) begins from the date on which the cause of action has arisen under clause (c) of the proviso to Section 138. However, if the complainant satisfies the Court that he had sufficient cause for not making a complaint within the prescribed period of one month, a complaint may be taken by the Court after the prescribed period. Now, since the answer to question (i) is in the negative, this Court observes that the payee or the holder in due course of the cheque may file a fresh complaint within one month from the date of decision in the criminal case and, in that event, delay in filing the complaint will be treated as having been condoned under the proviso to clause (b) of Section 142 of the NI Act. This direction shall be deemed to be applicable to all such pending cases where the complaint does not proceed further in view of the answer to question (i). As this Court has already held that a complaint filed before the expiry of 15 days from the date of receipt of notice issued under clause (c) of the proviso to Section 138 is not maintainable, the complainant cannot be permitted to present the very same complaint at any later stage. His remedy is only to file a fresh complaint; and if the same could not be filed within the time prescribed under Section 142(b), his recourse is to seek the benefit of the proviso, satisfying the Court of sufficient cause.

18. In Jugesh Sehgal (Supra), which has been relied upon by the learned counsel for the applicant, the Apex Court in paragraph-21 has observed as follows:

"21. Bearing in mind the above legal position, we are of the opinion that it was a fit case where the High Court, in exercise of its (2008) 3 SCC 574 jurisdiction under Section 482 of the Code, should have quashed the complaint under Section 138 of the Act."

19. In Yogendra Pratap Singh (Supra), which has also been relied upon by the learned counsel for the applicant, in paragraph nos. 36 to 41, the Apex Court has observed as follows:

"36. A complaint filed before expiry of 15 days from the date on which notice has been served on drawer/accused cannot be said to disclose the cause of action in terms of clause (c) of the proviso to Section 138 and upon such complaint which does not disclose the cause of action the Court is not competent to take cognizance. A conjoint reading of Section 138, which defines as to when and under what circumstances an offence can be said to have been committed, with Section 142(b) of the NI Act, that reiterates the position of the point of time when the cause of action has arisen, leaves no manner of doubt that no offence can be said to have been committed unless and until the period of 15 days, as prescribed under clause (c) of the proviso to Section 138, has, in fact, elapsed. Therefore, a Court is barred in law from taking cognizance of such complaint. It is not open to the Court to take cognizance of such a complaint merely because on the date of consideration or taking cognizance thereof a period of 15 days from the date on which the notice has been served on the drawer/accused has elapsed. We have no doubt that all the five essential features of Section 138 of the NI Act, as noted in the judgment of this Court in Kusum Ingots & Alloys Ltd.19 and which we have approved, must be satisfied for a complaint to be filed under Section 138. If the period prescribed in clause (c) of the proviso to Section 138 has not expired, there is no commission of an offence nor accrual of cause of action for filing of complaint under Section 138 of the NI Act.

37. We, therefore, do not approve the view taken by this Court in Narsingh Das Tapadia1 and so also the judgments of various High Courts following Narsingh Das Tapadia1 that if the complaint under Section 138 is filed before expiry of 15 days from the date on which notice has been served on the drawer/accused the same is premature and if on the date of taking cognizance a period of 15 days from the date of service of notice on the drawer/accused has expired, such complaint was legally maintainable and, hence, the same is overruled.

38. Rather, the view taken by this Court in Sarav Investment & Financial Consultancy2 wherein this Court held that service of notice in terms of Section 138 proviso (b) of the NI Act was a part of the cause of action for lodging the complaint and communication to the accused about the fact of dishonouring of the cheque and calling upon to pay the amount within 15 days was imperative in character, commends itself to us. As noticed by us earlier, no complaint can be maintained against the drawer of the cheque before the expiry of 15 days from the date of receipt of notice because the drawer/accused cannot be said to have committed any offence until then. We approve the decision of this Court in Sarav Investment & Financial Consultancy and also the judgments of the High Courts which have taken the view following this judgment that the complaint under Section 138 of the NI Act filed before the expiry of 15 days of service of notice could not be treated as a complaint in the eye of law and criminal proceedings initiated on such complaint are liable to be quashed.

39. Our answer to question (i) is, therefore, in the negative.

40. The other question is that if the answer to question (i) is in the negative, can the complainant be permitted to present the complaint again notwithstanding the fact that the period of one month stipulated under Section 142(b) for the filing of such a complaint has expired.

41. Section 142 of the NI Act prescribes the mode and so also the time within which a complaint for an offence under Section 138 of the NI Act can be filed. A complaint made under Section 138 by the payee or the holder in due course of the cheque has to be in writing and needs to be made within one month from the date on which the cause of action has arisen under clause (c) of the proviso to Section 138. The period of one month under Section 142(b) begins from the date on which the cause of action has arisen under clause (c) of the proviso to Section 138. However, if the complainant satisfies the Court that he had sufficient cause for not making a complaint within the prescribed period of one month, a complaint may be taken by the Court after the prescribed period. Now, since our answer to question (i) is in the negative, we observe that the payee or the holder in due course of the cheque may file a fresh complaint within one month from the date of decision in the criminal case and, in that event, delay in filing the complaint will be treated as having been condoned under the proviso to clause (b) of Section 142 of the NI Act. This direction shall be deemed to be applicable to all such pending cases where the complaint does not proceed further in view of our answer to question (i). As we have already held that a complaint filed before the expiry of 15 days from the date of receipt of notice issued under clause (c) of the proviso to Section 138 is not maintainable, the complainant cannot be permitted to present the very same complaint at any later stage. His remedy is only to file a fresh complaint; and if the same could not be filed within the time prescribed under Section 142(b), his recourse is to seek the benefit of the proviso, satisfying the Court of sufficient cause. Question (ii) is answered accordingly."

20. In N. Harihara Krishnan (Supra), which has also been relied upon by the learned counsel for the applicant, the Apex Court in paragraph nos. 26 and 27 has observed as follows:

"26. The scheme of the prosecution in punishing under Section 138 of THE ACT is different from the scheme of the CrPC. Section 138 creates an offence and prescribes punishment. No procedure for the investigation of the offence is contemplated. The prosecution is initiated on the basis of a written complaint made by the payee of a cheque. Obviously such complaints must contain the factual allegations constituting each of the ingredients of the offence under Section 138. Those ingredients are: (1) that a person drew a cheque on an account maintained by him with the banker; (2) that such a cheque when presented to the bank is returned by the bank unpaid; (3) that such a cheque was presented to the bank within a period of six months from the date it was drawn or within the period of its validity whichever is earlier; (4) that the payee demanded in writing from the drawer of the cheque the payment of the amount of money due under the cheque to payee; and (5) such a notice of payment is made within a period of 30 days from the date of the receipt of the information by the payee from the bank regarding the return of the cheque as unpaid. It is obvious from the scheme of Section 138 that each one of the ingredients flows from a document which evidences the existence of such an ingredient. The only other ingredient which is required to be proved to establish the commission of an offence under Section 138 is that inspite of the demand notice referred to above, the drawer of the cheque failed to make the payment within a period of 15 days from the date of the receipt of the demand. A fact which the complainant can only assert but not prove, the burden would essentially be on the drawer of the cheque to prove that he had in fact made the payment pursuant to the demand.

27. By the nature of the offence under Section 138 of the Act, the first ingredient constituting the offence is the fact that a person drew a cheque. The identity of the drawer of the cheque is necessarily required to be known to the complainant (payee) and needs investigation and would not normally be in dispute unless the person who is alleged to have drawn a cheque disputes that very fact. The other facts required to be proved for securing the punishment of the person who drew a cheque that eventually got dishonoured is that the payee of the cheque did in fact comply with each one of the steps contemplated under Section 138 of THE ACT before initiating prosecution. Because it is already held by this Court that failure to comply with any one of the steps contemplated under Section 138 would not provide " cause of action for prosecution". Therefore, in the context of a prosecution under Section 138, the concept of taking cognizance of the offence but not the offender is not appropriate. Unless the complaint contains all the necessary factual allegations constituting each of the ingredients of the offence under Section 138, the Court cannot take cognizance of the offence. Disclosure of the name of the person drawing the cheque is one of the factual allegations which a complaint is required to contain. Otherwise in the absence of any authority of law to investigate the offence under Section 138, there would be no person against whom a Court can proceed. There cannot be a prosecution without an accused. The offence under Section 138 is person specific. Therefore, the Parliament declared under Section 142 that the provisions dealing with taking cognizance contained in the Cr.P.C. should give way to the procedure prescribed under Section 142. Hence the opening of non-obstante clause under Section 142. It must also be remembered that Section 142 does not either contemplate a report to the police or authorise the Court taking cognizance to direct the police to investigate into the complaint."

21. In D. Vinod Shivappa Versus Nanda Belliappa reported in (2006) 6 SCC 456, specially in paragraph nos. 15 to 19, the Apex Court has observed as follows:

"15. We cannot also lose sight of the fact that the drawer may by dubious means manage to get an incorrect endorsement made on the envelope that the premises has been found locked or that the addressee was not available at the time when postman went for delivery of the letter. It may be that the address is correct and even the addressee is available but a wrong endorsement is manipulated by the addressee. In such a case, if the facts are proved, it may amount to refusal of the notice. If the complainant is able to prove that the drawer of the cheque knew about the notice and deliberately evaded service and got a false endorsement made only to defeat the process of law, the Court shall presume service of notice. This, however, is a matter of evidence and proof. Thus even in a case where the notice is returned with the endorsement that the premises has always been found locked or the addressee was not available at the time of postal delivery, it will be open to the complainant to prove at the trial by evidence that the endorsement is not correct and that the addressee, namely the drawer of the cheque, with knowledge of the notice had deliberately avoided to receive notice. Therefore, it would be pre- mature at the stage of issuance of process, to move the High Court for quashing of the proceeding under Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The question as to whether the service of notice has been fraudulently refused by unscrupulous means is a question of fact to be decided on the basis of evidence. In such a case the High Court ought not to exercise its jurisdiction under Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

17. In (1999) 7 SCC 510 : K. Bhaskaran vs. Sankaran Vaidhyan Balan and another, the drawee had presented a cheque issued by the drawer but the same was dishonoured. A notice was sent by registered post but the same was returned with the endorsement that the addressee was found absent on 3rd , 4th and 5th February, 1993 and intimation was served on addressee's house on 6th February, 2003. Thereafter the postal article remained unclaimed till 15th February, 1993 and it was returned to the sender with a further endorsement "unclaimed". The complaint filed by the drawee was dismissed on the ground of territorial jurisdiction as also on the ground that since the notice had not been received by the drawer, there was no cause of action for filing the complaint. On appeal, the High Court reversed the order of acquittal. The appellant approached this Court by special leave. This Court held in favour of the respondent on the question of territorial jurisdiction. On the question of notice this Court considered the scheme of Section 138 of the Act by particular reference to clauses (b) and (c) of the proviso thereof. In view of the legislative scheme it was held, the failure on the part of the drawer to pay the amount should be within 15 days "of the receipt" of the said notice. It was clear that the "giving of notice" in the context was not the same as the receipt of notice. "Giving" was the process of which the "receipt" was the accomplishment. This Court then observed :

"If a strict interpretation is given that the drawer should have actually received the notice for the period of 15 days to start running no matter that the payee sent the notice on the correct address, a trickster cheque drawer would get the premium to avoid receiving the notice by different strategies and he could escape from the legal consequences of Section 138 of the Act. It must be borne in mind that Court should not adopt in interpretation which helps a dishonest evader and clips an honest payee as that would defeat the very legislative measure."

18. This Court noticed the position well settled in law that the notice refused to be accepted by the drawer can be presumed to have been served on him. In that case the notice was returned as "unclaimed" and not as refused. The Court posed the question "Will there be any significant difference between the two so far as the presumption of service is concerned?" Their Lordships referred to Section 27 of the General Clauses Act and observed that the principle incorporated therein could profitably be imported in a case where the sender had despatched the notice by post with the correct address written on it. Then it can be deemed to have been served on the sendee, unless he proves that it was not really served and that he was not responsible for such non-service. This Court dismissed the appeal preferred by the drawer holding that where the notice is returned by the addressee as unclaimed such date of return to the sender would be the commencing date in reckoning the period of 15 days contemplated in clause (c) to the proviso of Section 138 of the Act. This would be without prejudice to the right of the drawer of the cheque to show that he had no knowledge that the notice was brought to his address. Since the appellant did not attempt to discharge the burden to rebut the aforesaid presumption, the appeal was dismissed by this Court. The aforesaid decision is significant for two reasons. Firstly it was held that the principle incorporated in Section 27 of the General Clauses Act would apply in a case where the sender despatched the notice by post with the correct address written on it, but that would be without prejudice to the right of the drawer of the cheque to show that he had no knowledge that the notice was brought to his address.

"Section 27 of the General Clauses Act deals with the presumption of service of a letter sent by post. The despatcher of a notice has, therefore, a right to insist upon and claim the benefit of such a presumption. But as the presumption is rebuttable one, he has two options before him. One is to concede to the stand of the sendee that as a matter of fact he did not receive the notice, and the other is to contest the sendee's stand and take the risk for proving that he in fact received the notice. It is open to the despatcher to adopt either of the options. If he opts the former, he can afford to take appropriate steps for the effective service of notice upon the addressee."

22. From the records, it is not disputed that neither in the complaint nor in the statement of the complainant recorded under Section 200 Cr.P.C., is it mentioned as to on which dates, he has demanded for refund of his money from the applicant, on which date he had presented the alleged cheques in the bank for encashment. The complainant has also not disclosed the date on which he had sent the legal notice to the applicant through his advocate and the date of service of notice. The complainant has also disclosed the date i.e. 3rd July, 2014 on which the dishonoured cheques along with return memo showing "insufficient balance" amount in the account of the applicant, has been received.

23. From the aforesaid, it is not clear that one of main ingredient i.e. date of service of notice from which the date the cause of action arises i.e. date of bank return memo as per the provisions of Section 138 N.I. Act is completely missing in the present case. As per Section 138 read with Section 142 N.I. Act and the above discussions and law laid down by the Apex Court, the period of complaint being filed from the date of service of notice i.e. within one month is also not complied in the present case.

24. In the impugned summoning order also the concerned Magistrate has only recorded the date on which the alleged cheques were dishonoured i.e. 3rd July, 2014 and the date of legal notice i.e. 14th July, 2014, which was sent to the applicant but he has not recorded the date on which the legal notice has been served from which the date the cause of action would arise.

25. In view of the provisions of Sections 138 read with Section 142 N.I. Act as well as the law laid down by the Apex Court on this subject, the main ingredients are not complied with by the complainant while filing such immature complaint, which is liable to be quashed.

26. Accordingly, the entire proceedings of the Complaint Case No. 1546 of 2014 (Om Construction Vs. M/s. Komal Construction), under Section 138 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881 (hereinafter referred to as the "N.I. Act"), Police Station-Obra, District-Sonbhadra, are quashed. However, it shall be open for the complainant/opposite party no.2 to file a fresh complaint against the applicant in accordance with law.

27. The present application is, accordingly, allowed. There shall be no order as to costs.

List of cases cited :

St. of Haryana Vs. Bhajan Lal, AIR 1992 SC 604

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajiv Joshi, J.)

1. Heard Sri Nipun Singh, learned counsel for the applicants , learned AGA for the State and Sri Rajeev Kumar, learned counsel for the opposite party no.2.

2. Present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed for quashing the summoning order dated 20.2.2018 and bailable warrant dated 21.3.2018 issued by the Civil Judge (Senior Division)/Fast Track Court, Gautam Budh Nagar as well as the entire proceedings of Complaint Case No. 2946 of 2017 (Rajendra Kumar Vs. Charanjeet Singh and others), under Section 323 of IPC, P.S. Sector-58, Noida, District Gautam Budh Nagar.

3. Brief facts for consideration of present application are that applicant-1 is a Managing Director of a Company incorporated under the Companies Act, 1956 formerly known as GSC Tafan Glass Pvt. Ltd. now known as GSC Glass Ltd., having its head office at 5 and 7, Udyog Vihar, Greater Noida, District Gautam Budh Nagar, while the applicant-2 and 3 are the ex-manager and ex-supervisor respectively of the said company and have retired long ago. The informant-opposite party no.2 was working as a helper in cutting department of the company.

4. In respect of an incident, which is alleged to have occurred on 17.6.2001 at 8.30 AM, an application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. was filed on 23.6.2001for lodging/registering the first information report under Section 323, 326 and 506 IPC and first information report was lodged against the applicants on 17.7.2001 at case crime no. 179 of 2001, under Sections 323, 326 and 506 IPC, P.S. Sector-58, Noida, District Gautam Budh Nagar.

5. After registration of the first information report, police of the concerned police station investigated the matter in terms of Chapter XII of Cr.P.C. and submitted a final report dated 10.10.2001. Against this final report, the opposite party no.2-informant filed a protest petition dated 11.4.2011 i.e. after about 10 years. Upon filing of the aforesaid protest petition, the Court below passed an order dated 23.9.2011 directing the Station House Officer of the police station Sector 58, Noida to conduct further investigation in the matter and conclude the same at the earliest. After the passing of the aforesaid order dated 23.9.2011, the opposite party no.2 filed criminal misc. writ petition no. 20290 of 2014 (Rajendra Singh Vs. State of U.P. and others), which was disposed of by this Court vide order dated 7.11.2014. The order dated 7.11.2014 is reproduced herein below:

"Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and learned A.G.A.

This petition has been filed by the petitioner with a prayer that suitable direction may be issued to the authority concerned for ensuring fair investigation of case crime no. 179 of 2001, u/s 323, 326, 506 IPC P.S. Sector 58 Noida District Gautam Budh Nagar.

From the perusal of the record it reveals that the petitioner is the first informant of the above mentioned case. In case the petitioner is having any grievance with regard to the investigation of the abovementioned case, the same may be raised before the SSP, Gautam Budh Nagar who shall look into the matter so that fair and expeditious further investigation of the abovementioned case may be ensured.

With the above direction this petition is finally disposed of."

6. After the order passed by this Court in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 20290 of 2014, the matter was investigated by the Investigating Officer under the direct supervision of Senior Superintendent of Police, Gautam Budh Nagar and again a final report dated 19.9.2014 was submitted by the Investigating Officer. Aggrieved by the said final report, the opposite party no.2 filed a protest petition on 6.7.2015. The Chief Judicial Magistrate, Gautam Budh Nagar vide its order dated 28.7.2015 did not accept the final report and treated the protest petition filed by opposite party no. 2 as a complaint case and fixed 7.9.2015 for recording of the statement of opposite party no.2 under Section 200 Cr.P.C.

7. Subsequently, statement of opposite party no.2, the informant/complainant was recorded on 29.1.2016. The statements of earlier witnesses of the informant namely, Salek and Ranveer alias Rani and new witnesses namely, Leele, Munish Chand and Dr. S.P. Jain (Retired) were recorded. Copy of these statements recorded under Section 202 Cr.P.C. have been appended collectively as annexure-14 to the affidavit while the statement under section 200,Cr.P.C. is annexure-13.

8. From bare perusal of the statement of Dr. S.P. Jain (Retired) , E.N.T. Surgeon, it is clear that the alleged injury of the informant could be possible while cleaning the ear and the said injury would have no impact on his hearing capacity and would heal at its own.

9. Ultimately, the Civil Judge (Senior Division)/Fast Track Court, Gautam Budh

Nagar has summoned the applicants vide order dated 20.2.2018 for the offence under Section 323 IPC.

10. The order dated 20.02.2018 summoning the applicants as well as the order dated 21.3.2018 issuing the bailable warrant against them and the entire proceedings of Complaint Case No. 2946 of 2017 are impugned in the present application.

11. Contention of learned counsel for the applicants is that present criminal proceedings are wholly malicious and amounts to abuse of the process of law, in as much as, no explanation has been furnished by the complainant with regard to the delay of about 10 years in filing the protest petition from the date of submission of final report i.e. 10.10.2001. It is further contended by learned counsel for the applicants that the court below while passing the impugned summoning order dated 20.2.2018 has not considered this aspect of the matter. He next submitted that the period for taking cognizance as prescribed under section 468,Cr.P.C. for an offence under Section 323 IPC has expired long back.

12. On the other hand, learned AGA as well as learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2 supported the impugned summoning order and submitted that applicants have rightly been summoned and after considering the statements made by the informant-opposite party no. 2 under Section 200 Cr.P.C as well as his witnesses under Section 202 Cr.P.C, the summoning order has rightly been passed and prima facie, a case for an offence under Section 323 is made out.

13. I have considered the rival submission so raised by learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

14. The complainant in support of his case produced one witness amongst the factory workers namely, Leele Singh, who happens to be the real brother of opposite party no.2 and even his statement was recorded after a lapse of more than 15 years from the date of incident. In his statement, Leele Singh stated that he saw the opposite party no.2 when he was injured, but his blatant lie is proved beyond doubt as when his real brother (complainant) was allegedly injured, he even did not accompany him to the hospital and went to the factory to attend his routine duty. There is no explanation for the delay of about 10 years in filing the protest petition after the final report was submitted on 10.10.2001.

15. Section 468 Cr.P.C. creates a bar for taking cognizance after the lapse of period of limitation. The provisions of Section 468 Cr.P.C. read as under:

"468. Bar to taking cognizance after lapse of the period of limitation.

(1) Except as otherwise provided elsewhere in this Code, no Court shall take cognizance of an offence of the category specified in sub- section (2), after the expiry of the period of limitation.

(2) The period of limitation shall be-

(a) six months, if the offence is punishable with fine only

[Provisions of this Chapter shall not apply to certain economic offences, see the Economic Offences (Inapplicability of Limitation) Act, 1974 (12 of 1974), s. 2 end Sch.]

(b) one year, if the offence is punishable with imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year;

(c) three years, if the offence is punishable with imprisonment for term exceeding one year but not exceeding three years."

16. From a bare reading of the aforesaid Section, it is manifestly clear that there is a legislative bar in taking cognizance of offences of the category specified in subsection (2) after the expiry of the period of limitation. The offence under section 323 IPC being punishable with imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year, it is covered by section 468 (2) (b),Cr.P.C., for which the period of limitation prescribed is one year. Thus, in this case the period of limitation for taking cognizance was one year. The protest petition which was subsequently treated as a complaint was filed after expiry of about 10 years, even otherwise from bare perusal of entire facts and circumstances, it is apparent that the entire prosecution against the applicants is malicious and amounts to abuse of the process of law.

17. The Apex Court in State of Haryana vs. Bhajan Lal, AIR 1992 SC 604, after considering the previous decisions of the Apex Court and the provisions of the Code, culled out categories of cases, wherein at a threshold stage, criminal prosecution could be quashed either in exercise of powers under Article 226 of the Constitution or under Section 482 Cr.P.C, as the case may be, with a view to either prevent abuse the process of the Court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice, making it clear that it may not be possible to compartmentalize each and every such contingencies, but nevertheless following categories were mentioned:

(1) Where the allegations made in the first information report or the complaint, even if they are taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety do not prima facie constitute any offence or make out a case against the accused.

(2) Where the allegations in the first information report and other materials, if any, accompanying the FIR do not disclose a cognizable offence, justifying an investigation by police officers under Section 156(1) of the Code except under an order of a Magistrate within the purview of Section 155(2) of the Code.

(3) Where the uncontroverted allegations made in the FIR or complaint and the evidence collected in support of the same do not disclose the commission of any offence and make out a case against the accused.

(4) Where, the allegations in the FIR do not constitute a cognizable offence but constitute only a non-cognizable offence, no investigation is permitted by a police officer without an order of a Magistrate as contemplated under Section 155(2) of the Code.

(5) Where the allegations made in the FIR or complaint are so absurd and inherently improbable on the basis of which no prudent person can ever reach a just conclusion that there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused.

(6) Where there is an express legal bar engrafted in any of the provisions of the Code or the concerned Act (under which a criminal proceeding is instituted) to the institution and continuance of the proceedings and/or where there is a specific provision in the Code or the concerned Act, providing efficacious redress for the grievance of the aggrieved party.

(7) Where a criminal proceeding is manifestly attended with mala fide and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge.

18. On the basis of allegation made in the first information report as well as from the summoning order, this Court is of the view that present prosecution is malicious and amounts to abuse of process of law and is also barred by limitation as prescribed under Section 468 (2)(b) and the case is squarely covered by the illustration (7) made in the case of Bhajan Lal (supra).

19. In view of what has been stated above. the summoning order dated 20.2.2018 and bailable warrant dated 21.3.2018 passed by the Civil Judge (Senior Division)/Fast Track Court, Gautam Budh Nagar as well as the entire proceedings of Complaint Case No. 2946 of 2017 (Rajendra Kumar Vs. Charanjeet Singh and others), under Section 323 of IPC are unsustainable in the eyes of law and are accordingly quashed.

20. In the result, the application stands allowed.

Application U/S 482 Cr.P.C. No. 13819 of 2019

Sanjeev Gupta ...Petitioner
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Sri Sanjeev Gupta (In Person)

Counsel for the Respondents:
A.G.A., Sri Nitin Gupta

A. Criminal law- Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 – Section 340 - offence effecting the administration of justice - Scope - legislative intent that offence committed should be of such nature which directly effects the administration of justice, viz., offence is committed after document is produced or given in evidence in court - provisions u/s 340 of CrPC come into play while offence has been commissioned subsequent to the document produced in court (Para 19, 22)

B. Criminal Law-Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 340 - offence effecting the administration of justice - Expression - 'any Court is of opinion that it is expedient in the interests of justice' – Meaning of - Held - denotes that Court, in case, is of the opinion that enquiry should be conducted in the interest of justice then he will conduct a preliminary enquiry and record a finding to that effect and make in writing complaint to the Magistrate Ist Class having competent jurisdiction (Para 20)

Application filed u/s 340 Cr.P.C before trial alleging PW-2, PW-3, PW-4 falsely deposed before the trial court - Applicant pointed out that there was contradiction in the statements made by them - Trial court rejected application - Appellate Court observed that correctness of statements of witness on oath are subject matter of judicial examination and the accused has no right to allege it to be false - Held - Fact, as deposed by respondents no. 2 to 4, as to whether the applicant had been taken by respondents no. 2 to 4 or not to the police station, is not going to effect the administration of justice and conviction of the applicant is not reasonably probable or likely on this basis alone (Para 27)

Application dismissed (E-5)

3.Amarsang Nathaji As Himself Vs Hardik Harshadbhai Patel & ors., 2017 (1) SCC 113

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dinesh Pathak, J.)

01. Heard Shri Sanjeev Gupta, applicant in person and Shri Nitin Gupta, learned counsel for respondents no. 2 to 4 and Shri Amit Sinha, learned A.G.A. appearing for the State.

02. By means of the present application filed under Section 482 Cr.P.C., the applicant has challenged the order dated 18.03.2019 passed by the 12th Additional District & Sessions Judge, Ghaziabad in Criminal Appeal No. 114 of 2018 confirming the order dated 30.07.2018 passed by the Chief Judicial Magistrate VIIIth, Ghaziabad, rejecting the application dated 30.07.2018 filed under Section 340 Cr.P.C.

03. The factual matrix of the case is that the second marriage of the applicant was solemnized with Ritu on 01.07.2012 according to rituals of Arya Samaj but unfortunately the marriage did not prove successful due to several reasons. Ultimately, Ritu (wife of the applicant) lodged an F.I.R. dated 09.08.2013 (Ex. Ka-3) registered as Case Crime No. 331 of 2013 under Sections 498-A, 323, 377, 504 of I.P.C. and Section 3/4 Dowry Prohibition Act, P.S. Link Road, Ghaziabad.

04. Charge-sheet (Ex. Ka-6) was submitted against the applicant which led to registration of a Criminal Case No. 75 of 2016. Applicant was held guilty under Sections 498-A, 323 & 377 I.P.C. and Section 4 of the D.P. Act but was exonerated under Section 504 I.P.C. vide order dated 12.09.2018 passed by the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 08, Ghaziabad.

05. Against the aforesaid order dated 12.09.2018, present applicant preferred an appeal, registered as Criminal Appeal No. 129 of 2018 and the same was partly allowed vide order dated 30.05.2019 passed by the Sessions Judge, Ghaziabad, exempting him under Section 4 of the Dowry Prohibition Act however, confirming the conviction under Sections 498-A, 323 and 377 I.P.C., and reducing the sentence of five years, as awarded under Section 377 I.P.C. by the trial court, to four years with rigorous imprisonment.

06. Meanwhile, the Applicant moved pendente lite application dated 30.07.2018 under Section 340 Cr.P.C. before the trial court after the evidence of parties was closed and the case was listed for final hearing, beseeching criminal action against PW-2 Shri Ashok Sabharwal (respondent no. 2 father of the victim), PW-3 Smt. Shashi Sabharwal (respondent no. 3 mother of the victim) and PW-4 Smt. Neha Sabharwal (respondent no. 4 Bhabhi of the victim), on the ground of perjury.

07. Aforesaid application was rejected on the same day vide order dated 30.07.2018 passed by A.C.J.M, Court No.8, Ghaziabad observing that the accused-applicant has deliberately filed this application, at the stage of argument, just to delay the court proceedings, therefore, no sufficient ground is made out.

08. Aforesaid order dated 30.07.2019 was affirmed in Criminal Appeal No.114 of 2018 vide order dated 18.03.2019 by the Additional Session Judge, Court No.12, Ghaziabad, on the ground that the accused has already been held guilty by the trial court, therefore, there is no question of false statements being made by the witnesses. It has also been observed that correctness of statements of witness on oath are subject matter of judicial examination and the accused has no right to allege it to be false. Being aggrieved and dissatisfy with the appellate order dated 18.03.2019, the present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is preferred with the prayer for quashing the orders, passed by the courts below.

09. Perusal of the order-sheet dated 27.11.2019 reveals that the applicant has refused to file rejoinder affidavit to the counter affidavit filed by the respondents.

10. I have carefully examined the submissions made by the learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

11. From the submission of the parties, moot issue before me is whether PW-2, PW-3 and PW-4 have falsely deposed before the trial court thereby committing perjury and action for the same is liable to be initiated under Section 340 read with 195(1)(b) of the Cr.P.C.

12. In application dated 30.07.2019 filed under Section 340 of Cr.P.C. allegations leveled against Smt. Neha Sabharwal (respondent no. 4) are that on 30.10.2015 she had deposed that on 09.08.2013 when Ritu was alone, present applicant Sanjeev Gupta manhandled and abused her and, therefore, on her shouting Smt. Neha Sabharwal (Bhabhi of Ritu) along with her mother-in-law and father-in-law with the help of passers-by caught hold the applicant-Sanjeev Gupta and took him to the police station. On the other hand her mother-in-law and father-in-law have denied on oath taking Sanjeev Gupta to the police station. Smt. Neha Sabharwal, in her statement recorded on 14.10.2013 under Section 161 Cr.P.C., had corroborated the version of her father-in-law and mother-in-law. As such, according to the applicant-Sanjeev Gupta, he is aggrieved due to the deposition made by respondents no. 2 to 4 qua taking him to the police station and has tried to point out that there is a contradiction at two stages of statement made by them.

13. Counsel for the respondents has contended that application filed by the applicant under Section 340 of Cr.P.C. was based on the statement given by opposite party nos. 2 to 4 during trial proceeding of criminal case pending against the applicant, therefore, the said application is not maintainable in the eyes of law. It is also contended that correctness of evidence, given during the trial, is to be examined by the trial court and provisions enumerated under Section 195 Cr.P.C. cannot be relied upon. He also emphasized that trial was concluded by the judgment dated 12.09.2018 which is partly affirmed/modified in Criminal Appeal vide judgment dated 30.05.2019 and as such no ground is made out to entertain the contempt proceedings under Section 340 of Cr.P.C.

14. Since the issue is related to the maintainability of application under Section 340 of Cr.P.C., it would be necessary to examine the provisions as embodied under Section 340 read with Section 195 of Cr.P.C. and in particular the provision which is relevant for our purposes i.e. Section 195(b)(i)(ii), read as under:-

"195. Prosecution for contempt of lawful authority of public servants, for offences against public justice and for offences relating to documents given in evidence- (1) No Court shall take cognizance---

(a)(i) .....…

(ii) .....…

(iii) .....…

(b) (i) of any offence punishable under any of the following sections of the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860), namely, sections 193 to 196 (both inclusive), 199, 200, 205 to 211 (both inclusive) and 228, when such offence is alleged to have been committed in, or in relation to, any proceeding in any Court, or

(ii) of any offence described in section 463, or punishable under section 471, section 475 or section 476, of the said Code, when such offence is alleged to have been committed in respect of a document produced or given in evidence in a proceeding in any Court, or

(iii) of any criminal conspiracy to commit, or attempt to commit, or the abetment of, any offence specified in sub- clause (i) or sub- clause (ii), except on the complaint in writing of that Court, or of some other Court to which that Court is subordinate."

15. The provision to initiate proceeding for contempt of lawful authority of public servants etc., Section 195 of Cr.P.C., is envisaged under Section 340 Cr.P.C. which reads as under :-

"340. Procedure in cases mentioned in Section 195 - (1) When, upon an application made to it in this behalf or otherwise, any Court is of opinion that it is expedient in the interests of justice that an inquiry should be made into any offence referred to in clause (b) of sub- section (1) of section 195, which appears to have been committed in or in relation to a proceeding in that Court or, as the case may be, in respect of a document produced or given in evidence in a proceeding in that Court, such Court may, after such preliminary inquiry, if any, as it thinks necessary,-

(a) record a finding to that effect;

(b) make a complaint thereof in writing;

(c) send it to a Magistrate of the first class having jurisdiction;

(d) take sufficient security for the appearance of the accused before such Magistrate, or if the alleged offence is non-bailable and the Court thinks it necessary so to do, send the accused in custody to such Magistrate; and

(e) bind over any person to appear and give evidence before such Magistrate.

(2) The power conferred on a Court by sub- section (1) in respect of an offence may, in any case where that Court has neither made a complaint under sub-section (1) in respect of that offence nor rejected an application for the making of such complaint, be exercised by the Court to which such former Court is subordinate within the meaning of sub- section (4) of section 195

(3) A complaint made under this section shall be signed,-

(a) where the Court making the complaint is a High Court, by such officer of the Court as the Court may appoint;

(b) in any other case, by the presiding officer of the Court.

(4) In this section,"Court" has the same meaning as in section 195."

16. Section 195 creates a bar to private prosecution. Normally, Section 190 of Cr.P.C. invokes jurisdiction to Magistrate for taking cognizance of any offence under conditions i.e. (a) on receiving a complaint with respect to constitution of offence, (b) upon a police report with respect to incident and (c) upon information received from any person other than police officer or upon his own knowledge. Provisions as embodied under Section 195 of Cr.P.C. provides exception to this general provision and creates embargo upon power of the Court to take cognizance on certain type of offences enumerated therein. Section 195 of Cr.P.C. clearly denotes that it deals with three distinct category of offence which have been described in Clause (a), (b)(i) and (b)(ii), which relates to the contempt of lawful authority of public servant, offence against public justice and offences relating to document given in evidence.

17. In the present matter in hand, the applicant has made allegations with respect to the correctness of contents of affidavit which was filed as an statement on oath during the court proceeding and tried to make out an offence of perjury which is said to have been committed by respondents no. 2 to 4.

18. Commission of offence, while any document was submitted as an evidence during court proceeding, can be examined within the ambit of Section 195 (1) (b) (ii) of Cr.P.C. Before discussing the scope of Clause b (ii), I feel it apposite to discuss the scope of Clause b (i) of Section 195 of Cr.P.C. Clause (b) (i) refers to offence of Chapter XI of I.P.C. which is captioned as "Of false evidence and offence against public justice." The offences mentioned in this clause relates to giving or fabricating false evidence or making a false declaration in any judicial proceeding or before a court of justice or before a public servant who is bound or authorized by law to receive such declaration, and also to some other offences which have a direct co-relation with the proceeding in a court of justice. Likewise provision as embodied under Clause (b) (ii) also relates to the offence which directly co-relate with the proceeding in a court of justice. The expression i.e. "when such offence is alleged to have been committed in respect of a document produced or given in evidence in a proceeding in any court" should normally means that commission of such offence after a document is actually been produced or given in the court. Meaning thereby offence should have been committed at subsequent stage while the document is produced and given in evidence in a proceeding in any court.

19. Section 340 of Cr.P.C. falls under chapter XXVI of Cr.P.C. which is captioned as "provisions as to offence effecting the administration of justice". There is a clear cut legislative intent that offence committed should be of such nature which directly effects the administration of justice, viz., offence is committed after document is produced or given in evidence in court and enable the court to make a complaint in respect of such offence if that court is of the view that it is expedient in the interest of justice that an enquiry should be made into an offence. Clause (b) of Section 195 (1) Cr.P.C. authorizes such court to examine prima facie as it think necessary and then make a complaint thereof in writing after having recording a finding to that effect as contemplated under Section 340 (1) of Cr.P.C.

20. Bare perusal of Section 340 Cr.P.C. clearly shows that it is a subjective satisfaction of the court concerned as to whether any enquiry should be made or not into any offence referred to in clause (b) of sub section 1 of Section 195 of Cr.P.C. which appears to have been committed in or in relation to a proceeding in that court or, as the case may be, in respect of a document produced or given in evidence in a proceeding in that case. Before initiating the proceeding court is also under obligation to conduct a preliminary enquiry. The phrase employed in Section 340 with respect to the cognizance to be taken by the court is "Any Court is of opinion that it is expedient in the interest of justice". The term as mentioned in Section 340 clearly denotes that Court, in case, is of the opinion that enquiry should be conducted in the interest of justice then he will conduct a preliminary enquiry and record a finding to that effect and make in writing complaint to the Magistrate Ist Class having competent jurisdiction.

21. Scope of Section 340 has already been dealt with in detail by the Constitution Bench of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Iqbal Singh Marwah & Another vs. Meenakshi Marwah & Another reported in 2005 (4) SCC, 370. Relevant paragraph nos. 18, 25 & 26 of the aforesaid judgment is quoted herein below :-

"18. In view of the language used in Section 340 Cr.P.C. the Court is not bound to make a complaint regarding commission of an offence referred to in Section 195(1)(b), as the Section is conditioned by the words "Court is of opinion that it is expedient in the interest of justice." This shows that such a course will be adopted only if the interest of justice requires and not in every case. Before filing of the complaint, the Court may hold a preliminary enquiry and record a finding to the effect that it is expedient in the interests of justice that enquiry should be made into any of the offences referred to in Section 195(i)(b). This expediency will normally be judged by the Court by weighing not the magnitude of injury suffered by the person affected by such forgery or forged document, but having regard to the effect or impact, such commission of offence has upon administration of justice. It is possible that such forged document or forgery may cause a very serious or substantial injury to a person in the sense that it may deprive him of a very valuable property or status or the like, but such document may be just a piece of evidence produced or given in evidence in Court, where voluminous evidence may have been adduced and the effect of such piece of evidence on the broad concept of administration of justice may be minimal. In such circumstances, the Court may not consider it expedient in the interest of justice to make a complaint. The broad view of clause (b)(ii), as canvassed by learned counsel for the appellants, would render the victim of such forgery or forged document remedyless. Any interpretation which leads to a situation where a victim of a crime is rendered remedyless, has to be discarded.

25. In view of the discussion made above, we are of the opinion that Sachida Nand Singh has been correctly decided and the view taken therein is the correct view. Section 195(1)(b)(ii) Cr.P.C. would be attracted only when the offences enumerated in the said provision have been committed with respect to a document after it has been produced or given in evidence in a proceeding in any Court i.e. during the time when the document was in custodia legis.

26. In the present case, the will has been produced in the Court subsequently. It is nobody's case that any offence as enumerated in Section 195(b)(ii) was committed in respect to the said will after it had been produced or filed in the Court of District Judge. Therefore, the bar created by Section 195(1)(b)(ii) Cr.P.C. would not come into play and there is no embargo on the power of the Court to take cognizance of the offence on the basis of the complaint filed by the respondents. The view taken by the learned Additional Sessions Judge and the High Court is perfectly correct and calls for no interference.

22. In the case of Iqbal Singh Marwaha (supra) Hon'ble Supreme Court laid at rest the controversy with regard to the scope and applicability of the bar contained under Section 195 of Cr.P.C., it is clear that where the forgery is said to have been committed outside the court and before the document is produced in court then the bar under Section 195 of Cr.P.C. would not operate and Magistrate can take cognizance of a complaint filed by an aggrieved party and would not be necessary to adopt the procedure laid down under Section 340 of Cr.P.C. Meaning thereby, on the reverse, provisions under Section 340 of Cr.P.C. come into play while offence has been commissioned subsequent to the document produced in court and after conducting preliminary enquiry, court can make complaint for such offence to take penal action.

23. In support of his contention, learned counsel for the respondents has cited the decision of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Ashok Kumar Aggarwal vs. Union of India & Others reported in 2013 (15) SCC, 539. In the aforesaid case offence of perjury has been leveled against Investigating Officer who has said to have been filed a false affidavit with respect to completion of enquiry but subsequently it has been found that some further enquiry was conducted with respect to the incident in question. Hon'ble Supreme Court has discussed the scope of Section 340 read with Section 195 of Cr.P.C. and came to the conclusion that there was no attempt at the part of the Investigating Officer to mislead the court.

24. Relevant paragraph nos. 7 & 8 are quoted herein below :-

"7. In this context, reference may be made of Section 340 under Chapter XXVI of the Cr.P.C., under the heading of "Provisions as to Offences Affecting the Administration of Justice". This Chapter deals with offences committed in or in relation to a proceeding in the court, or in respect of a document produced or given in evidence in a proceeding in the court and enables the court to make a complaint in respect of such offences if that court is of the view that it is expedient in the interest of justice that an inquiry should be made into an offence. Clause (b) of Section 195 (1) Cr.P.C. authorises such court to examine prima facie as it thinks necessary and then make a complaint thereof in writing after having recorded a finding to that effect as contemplated under Section 340 (1) Cr.P.C. In such a case, the question remains as to whether a prima facie case is made out which, if unrebutted, may have a reasonable likelihood to establish the specified offences and whether it is also expedient in the interest of justice to take any action. Thus, before lodging a complaint, the condition precedent for the court to be satisfied are that material so produced before the court makes out a prima facie case for a complaint and that it is expedient in the interest of justice to have prosecution under Section 193 IPC. (Vide: Karunakaran v. T.V. Eachara Warrier & Anr., AIR 1979 SC 290; and

K.T.M.S. Mohd. & Anr. v. Union of India, AIR 1992 SC 1831). "

"8. In the case of Chajoo Ram v. Radhey Shyam & Anr., AIR 1971 SC 1367, this Court held: "7. The prosecution for perjury should be sanctioned by courts only in those cases where the perjury appears to be deliberate and conscious and the conviction is reasonably probable or likely. No doubt giving of false evidence and filing false affidavits is an evil which must be effectively curbed with a strong hand but to start prosecution for perjury too readily and too frequently without due care and caution and on inconclusive and doubtful material defeats its very purpose. Prosecution should be ordered when it is considered expedient in the interests of justice to punish the delinquent and not merely because there is some inaccuracy in the statement which may be innocent or immaterial. There must be prima facie case of deliberate falsehood on a matter of substance and the court should be satisfied that there is reasonable foundation for the charge." (Emphasis added)"

25. Counsel for the respondents has also placed reliance upon the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Amarsang Nathaji As Himself vs. Hardik Harshadbhai Patel And Others reported in 2017 (1) SCC, 113 wherein case of Iqbal Singh Marwaha (supra) was referred.

26. In view of the discussion made herein above, it is lucid that alleged crime of perjury as stated by the applicant in his application dated 30.07.2019 filed under Section 340 of Cr.P.C. is not going to, in any manner, effect the administration of justice which warrants any interference of the Court for moving complaint qua offence, which is said to have been committed while document was in custodia legis.

27. Mere fact, as deposed by respondents no. 2 to 4, as to whether the applicant had been taken by respondents no. 2 to 4 or not to the police station, is not going to effect the administration of justice and conviction of the applicant is not reasonably probable or likely on this basis alone.

28. Learned trial court has not found the present case fit, in the interest of justice, to enquire into with respect to offence of perjury said to have been committed by respondents no. 2 to 4 and rightly rejected the application on the ground that application was deliberately filed by the applicant, at the final stage of hearing, to prolong the litigation. There was no occasion to invoke the jurisdiction of the court concerned to initiate proceeding of contempt against the contesting respondents no. 2 to 4 for alleged offence of perjury. No offence made out while document was in custodia legis. As per allegation made by the applicant that contesting respondents no. 2 to 4 have filed false statement before the court, meaning thereby, offence of perjury allegedly committed made by the contesting respondents no. 2 to 4 would be prior to submission of documents in judicial proceeding in court. Therefore, as per law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Iqbal Singh Marwaha (supra), no case is made out to invoke the jurisdiction of court concerned under Section 340 of Cr.P.C.

29. The applicant has further argued that the courts below have committed illegality in not relying upon the provisions as embodied under Section 343 Cr.P.C. & 194 I.P.C. In my opinion, provisions as embodied under Section 343 Cr.P.C. is not applicable in the instant case inasmuch as it provides the procedure to be followed by the Magistrate before whom the complaint is made by the Court concerned after conducting preliminary enquiry under Section 340 Cr.P.C. Provisions as contained under Section 194 I.P.C. are also not attracted inasmuch as it relates to giving or fabricating false evidence with intent to procure conviction of capital offence whereas the present matter relates to offence under Sections 498-A, 323, 377, 504 of I.P.C. & ¾ Dowry Prohibition Act.

30. The applicant has also submitted that no reason has been assigned by the court below in rejecting the application dated 30.07.2019. In support of his contention, he has cited judgment dated 29.09.2008 passed by the Hon'ble Apex Court in Criminal Appeal No. 1549 of 2008; State of Himachal Pradesh vs. Manoj Kumar @ Chotu. Aforesaid cited case is arising out of criminal trial under Section 376, 511 & 506 of I.P.C. Learned trial court has acquitted accused giving him the benefit of doubt. Against the order of acquittal, appeal was filed along with an application for grant of leave in terms of Section 378 of Cr.P.C. Aforesaid application under Section 378 of Cr.P.C. was dismissed summarily merely stating 'Dismissed'.

31. Against the order of dismissal of above application, criminal appeal was preferred. In those circumstances the Hon'ble Apex Court had observed that reason has to be assigned for refusing grant of leave to file appeal against acquittal and accordingly allowed the appeal and remanded the matter to the High Court for disposal of appeal on merits. Aforesaid cited judgment is clearly distinguishable from the facts of the present case inasmuch as the order in question has to be examined under the scope of Section 340 of Cr.P.C., apart from that the courts below has discussed the case of the applicant and found no ground of interference. Even otherwise, as discussed above, no offence has been committed during the time when the documents was in custodia legis.

32. It is admitted to the parties that the applicant has preferred Criminal Revision No. 2618 of 2019 (Sanjeev Gupta vs. State of U.P. & Others) assailing the order dated 30.05.2019 passed by the Sessions Judge, Ghaziabad in Criminal Appeal No. 129 of 2018. The aforesaid revision is still pending and by this Court vide order dated 09.07.2019, the applicant has been enlarged on bail. Therefore, the matter is still sub judice before this Court and the correctness of orders passed by the courts below in original proceeding are still to be examined. Both the courts below have passed conviction order against the applicant relying upon the statements made by witnesses, therefore, at this juncture statement made by respondents no. 2 to 4 cannot be held to be false or be held guilty of committing perjury.

33. The present application moved by the applicant lacks merit and deserves to be dismissed. No sufficient ground is shown to invoke the inherent power of this Court under Section 482 of Cr.P.C. Application dated 30.07.2018 under Section 340 Cr.P.C. filed by the applicant has rightly been rejected by the courts below.

34. The present application filed under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is dismissed. Parties shall bear their own cost.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan, J.)

1. List revised.

2. Counsel for the opposite party no. 2 is not present.

3. Heard learned counsel for the applicants and learned A.G.A. for the State.

4. This application has been filed with a prayer to quash the impugned charge sheet dated 15.02.2014 in Case Crime No. 2287 of 2013, under Sections 363, 366, 354, 506, 342, 120-B I.P.C. as well as entire proceeding of S.T. No. 1200 of 2014 "State Vs. Abid and another" under Sections 363, 366 I.P.C., Police Station- Indrapuram, District Ghaziabad.

5. Brief facts of the case are that opposite party no. 2 lodged an F.I.R. on 18.12.2013 against five accused persons alleging therein that his fourteen year old daughter Kumari Laxmi @ Kavita studying in Class VIII was enticed away by the applicants with the help of his family members on 17.12.2013. It is further alleged that when he searched in his house, then, he found that sum of Rs.5,00,000/- and jewellery was also taken away by them. After investigation, charge sheet was submitted against the applicants.

6. It has been submitted by the learned counsel for the applicants that applicants approached this Court by means of Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 12735 of 2015 (Nizam and another Vs. State of U.P. and 2 others) and the boy Nizam, petitioner no. 1 whereas victim - Kumari Laxmi @ Kavita, petitioner no. 2 appeared in person before this Court and the Hon'ble Court vide order dated 25.05.2015, directed that in case the petitioners approach the S.S.P. concerned to provide them protection for the purposes of appearing before the court concerned to record the statement of the kidnapped girl under Section 164 Cr.P.C., and for medical examination, the same may be provided.

7. In pursuance of the order dated 25.05.2015, medical of the girl was conducted and she was found to be 18 year old. As per the statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. of the victim, which was recorded on 09.06.2015, she has stated that she had left her house as she was annoyed with her parents, who were forcing her for marriage. Therefore, she left her house out of her own sweet will on 17.12.2013 and went to Gujarat to stay with her friend Ruksar. She has further stated that she had gone all alone. She knows Nizam since last two years and has performed Niqah with him on 13.12.2015 and they were staying as husband and wife. She was never enticed by anyone, wherever she went, it was out of her own sweet will.

8. Learned counsel for the applicants submits that no offence under the relevant Sections is made out against the applicants.

9. Learned counsel appearing for the State has argued that from the allegations leveled in the impugned F.I.R. and statement of the victim recorded under Section 164 Cr.P.C. as well as from the statement of other witnesses recorded by the police during the course of investigation and the material collected by it, the case against the applicants for commission of offence is punishable under Sections 363, 366, 354, 506, 342, 120B I.P.C. are made out. Hence, no interference is called for by this Court while exercising inherent powers under Section 482 Cr.P.C. and this Criminal Misc. Application is liable to be dismissed.

10. There is no doubt that the Court should be very careful while exercising the powers under section 482 Cr.P.C. particularly in the matters of quashing of charge sheet.

11. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in plethora of judgments has laid down the guidelines with regard to exercise of jurisdiction by the High Courts under section 482 Cr.P.C. In State of Haryana v. Bhajan Lal 1992 Supp(1) SCC 335, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has listed the categories of cases when the power under section 482 Cr.P.C. can be exercised by the High Courts. The law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in State of Haryana v. Bhajan Lal (supra) has later on followed in various decisions. To mention a few -- Madhavrao Jiwajirao Scindia v. Sambhajirao Chandrojirao Angre, (1988) 1 SCC 692; State of Haryana v. Bhajan Lal,1992 Supp (1) SCC 335; Rupan Deol Bajaj v. Kanwar Pal Singh Gill (1995) 6 SCC 194; Central Bureau of Investigation v. Duncans Agro Industries Ltd (1996) 5 SCC 591; State of Bihar v. Rajendra Agrawalla (1996) 8 SCC 164, Rajesh Bajaj v. State NCT of Delhi, (1999) 3 SCC 259; Medchl Chemicals & Pharma (P) Ltd. v. Biological E. Ltd (2000) 3 SCC 269 Hridaya Ranjan Prasad Verma v. State of Bihar (2000) 4 SCC 168, M. Krishnan v. Vijay Singh (2001) 8 SCC 645 and Zandu Pharmaceutical Works Ltd. v. Mohd. Sharaful Haque (2005) 1 SCC 122. The principles relevant are as under:

"(i) A complaint can be quashed where the allegations made in the complaint, even if they are taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety, do not prima facie constitute any offence or make out the case alleged against the accused. For this purpose, the complaint has to be examined as a whole, but without examining the merits of the allegations. Neither a detailed inquiry nor a meticulous analysis of the material nor an assessment of the reliability or genuineness of the allegations in the complaint, is warranted while examining prayer for quashing of a complaint.

(ii) A complaint may also be quashed where it is a clear abuse of the process of the court, as when the criminal proceeding is found to have been initiated with mala fides/malice for wreaking vengeance or to cause harm, or where the allegations are absurd and inherently improbable.

(iii) The power to quash shall not, however, be used to stifle or scuttle a legitimate prosecution. The power should be used sparingly and with abundant caution.

(iv) The complaint is not required to verbatim reproduce the legal ingredients of the offence alleged. If the necessary factual foundation is laid in the complaint, merely on the ground that a few ingredients have not been stated in detail, the proceedings should not be quashed. Quashing of the complaint is warranted only where the complaint is so bereft of even the basic facts which are absolutely necessary for making out the offence.

(v) A given set of facts may make out: (a) purely a civil wrong; or (b) purely a criminal offence; or (c) a civil wrong as also a criminal offence. A commercial transaction or a contractual dispute, apart from furnishing a cause of action for seeking remedy in civil law, may also involve a criminal offence. As the nature and scope of a civil proceeding are different from a criminal proceeding, the mere fact that the complaint relates to a commercial transaction or breach of contract, for which a civil remedy is available or has been availed, is not by itself a ground to quash the criminal proceedings. The test is whether the allegations in the complaint disclose a criminal offence or not."

12. Recently the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Rishipal Singh vs. State of U.P. and Anr., AIR 2014 SC 2567 has held as under:

13. This Court in plethora of judgments has laid down the guidelines with regard to exercise of jurisdiction by the Courts under Section 482, Cr.P.C. In State of Haryana v. Bhajan Lal 1992 Supp(1) SCC 335, this Court has listed the categories of cases when the power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. can be exercised by the Court. These principles or the guidelines were reiterated by this Court in Central Bureau of Investigation v. Duncans Agro Industries Ltd. 1996 (5) SCC 591; Rajesh Bajaj v. State NCT of Delhi 1999 (3) SCC 259 and; Zandu Pharmaceuticals Works Ltd. v. Mohd. Sharaful Haque & Anr (2005) 1 SCC 122. This Court in Zandu Pharmaceuticals Ltd., observed that:

"The power under Section 482 of the Code should be used sparingly and with to prevent abuse of process of Court, but not to stifle legitimate prosecution. There can be no two opinions on this, but if it appears to the trained judicial mind that continuation of a prosecution would lead to abuse of process of Court, the power under Section 482 of the Code must be exercised and proceedings must be quashed".

14. Also see Om Prakash and Ors. V. State of Jharkhand 2012 (12) SCC 72.

What emerges from the above judgments is that when a prosecution at the initial stage is asked to be quashed, the tests to be applied by the Court is as to whether the uncontroverted allegations as made in the complaint prima facie establish the case. The Courts have to see whether the continuation of the complaint amounts to abuse of process of law and whether continuation of the criminal proceeding results in miscarriage of justice or when the Court comes to a conclusion that quashing these proceedings would otherwise serve the ends of justice, then the Court can exercise the power under Section 482, Cr.P.C. While exercising the power under the provision, the Courts have to only look at the uncontroverted allegation in the complaint whether prima facie discloses an offence or not, but it should not convert itself to that of a trial Court and dwell into the disputed questions of fact."

15. As per law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the above referred cases, the High Court should be very careful while exercising power under section 482 Cr.P.C., however, at the same time, it should not allow a litigant to file vexatious complaints to otherwise settle his or her scores by setting the criminal law into motion, which is a pure abuse of process of law and it has to be interdicted at the threshold.

16. In view of the above legal position well settled by the Hon'ble Supreme Court, I would like to deal with the facts of the present case, which lead to file the impugned FIR against the applicants for the offences punishable under Sections 363, 366, 354, 506, 342, 120-B I.P.C.

17. Initially, an F.I.R. was lodged by Mahendra Singh Yadav, father of the victim, alleging therein that her minor daughter who was student of Class VIII was being teased by Nazim, while she used to go to school. Nazim stays in front of the house of the informant at Khoda. When the victim informed about the conduct of Nazim to the informant, he along with his relatives went to Nazim's house where he met his father, brother, sister and brother-in-law and when he told about the conduct of Nazim to the aforesaid persons, they started fighting with the informant and asked him not to come to his house again and be ready to face dire consequences. After the aforesaid incident, informant tried to convince Nazim not to tease his daughter. Five days prior to lodging of the F.I.R., victim told the informant that family members of Nazim along with him were standing near the building and starring at her. On 17.12.2013, at about 07:00 p.m., when the informant along with his wife and son, namely, Saurabh had gone to the doctor for medicine, in his absence, Nazim came and took away his daughter Laxmi @ Kavita and informant's nine year old daughter Nandini was locked in the house by Nazim. When the informant reached the house, Nandini told him about the incident. The informant also found that Rs.5,00,000/-, 800g gold ornaments and 200g silver ornaments missing from his house. He has further alleged that he is fully sure that his daughter has been enticed away by Nazim with the help and assistance of his family members. For the aforesaid incident, F.I.R. was lodged under Sections 363, 366, 354, 506 I.P.C.

18. At this stage, it would be necessary to refer these aforesaid Sections 363, 366, 354, 506 I.P.C. :

363. Punishment for kidnapping.--Whoever kidnaps any person from 1[India] or from lawful guardianship, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to seven years, and shall also be liable to fine.

366. Kidnapping, abducting or inducing woman to compel her marriage, etc.--Whoever kidnaps or abducts any woman with intent that she may be compelled, or knowing it to be likely that she will be compelled, to marry any person against her will, or in order that she may be forced or seduced to illicit intercourse, or knowing it to be likely that she will be forced or seduced to illicit intercourse, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to ten years, and shall also be liable to fine; 1[and whoever, by means of criminal intimidation as defined in this Code or of abuse of authority or any other method of compulsion, induces any woman to go from any place with intent that she may be, or knowing that it is likely that she will be, forced or seduced to illicit intercourse with another person shall be punishable as aforesaid].

354. Assault or criminal force to woman with intent to outrage her modesty.--Whoever assaults or uses criminal force to any woman, intending to outrage or knowing it to be likely that he will thereby outrage her modesty, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to two years, or with fine, or with both.

506. Punishment for criminal intimidation.--Whoever commits, the offence of criminal intimidation shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to two years, or with fine, or with both; If threat be to cause death or grievous hurt, etc.--And if the threat be to cause death or grievous hurt, or to cause the destruction of any property by fire, or to cause an offence punishable with death or 1[imprisonment for life], or with imprisonment for a term which may extend to seven years, or to impute, unchastity to a woman, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to seven years, or with fine, or with both.

19. Section 363 is the punishment for kidnapping from lawful guardianship and Section 366 deals with kidnapping, abducting and inducing women to compel her to marry. Whereas, Section 354 is assault or criminal force to women with intend to outrage her modesty and Section 504 deals with intentional insult with intend to provoke breach of peace. In the present case, after F.I.R. was lodged, Nazim along with victim approached this Hon'ble Court by means of filing a writ petition in which protection was given to Nazim as well as the victim and the Court had further directed the victim to get her statement recorded under Section 164 Cr.P.C. and also get her medically examined. Therefore, on the basis of the aforesaid, it cannot be said that she was kidnapped or abducted from lawful guardianship.

20. The statement of the victim under Section 164 Cr.P.C. also goes to show that no criminal force was applied on the victim to outrage her modesty and she was not forced by Nazim to marry her. The victim has also not spoken anything serious against the family members of Nazim, therefore no offence under the relevant Sections is made out.

21. The Court must in each case consider the evidence before it and the surroundings circumstances before reaching a conclusion because each case has its own peculiar facts which may have a bearing. The undisputed facts of the case are that the victim was 18 year old as is clear from the medical certificate. She was a major grown up girl and had gone willingly with him that no force was applied to outrage her modesty nor she was kidnapped and that she has married Nazim out of her own sweet will and is living as husband and wife with him.

22. In the light of the aforesaid discussion and looking to the facts and circumstances, this Court is convinced that applicants are not guilty of the offence punishable under Sections 363, 366, 354, 506, 342, 120-B I.P.C., hence the continuance of the impugned F.I.R. against the applicants and other proceedings pursuant thereto will be nothing but in abuse of the process of the Court and the same are liable to be quashed.

23. Resultantly, the entire proceedings of Case Crime No. 2287 of 2013, under Sections 363, 366, 354, 506, 342, 120-B I.P.C. as well as entire proceeding of S.T. No. 1200 of 2014 "State Vs. Abid and another" under Sections 363, 366 I.P.C., Police Station- Indrapuram, District Ghaziabad, are an abuse process of law. The same are hereby quashed.

24. The present application is accordingly allowed. There shall be no order as to costs.

1. Heard sri Arun Kumar Singh learned counsel for the applicants and Sri Virendra Kumar Maurya and Jagdamba Prasad Singh learned Additional Government Advocates for the State/opposite party no.1 and perused the record with the assistance of learned counsel for the parties.

2. This application under section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed by the applicants with a prayer to quash impugned Charge-sheet dated 01.04.2015 arising out of in Case Crime No.284 of 2014 and the proceeding of Session Trial No.375 of 2018 in Case No.2209 of 2016 (State vs. Radha Devi and others), under sections 323, 506, 315 & 498A I.P.C. read with section 3/4 Dowry Prohibition Act, Police Station Bilhaur, District Kanpur Nagar, pending in the court of Fast Track Court, Court No.II, Kanpur Dehat.

3. A splendid question involved in this case is that "as to whether on the acquittal of co- accused, the charge sheet and criminal proceeding pursuant thereto against the remaining co-accused are liable to be quashed under section 482 Cr.P.C."?

4. It is submitted by the learned counsel for the applicant that the applicant no.1 Smt. Radha Devi is sister-in-law (Nanad), applicant no.2, Smt. Meenu is Senior Co-sister (Jethani) and applicant No.3 Smt. Pan Kumar is mother-in-law (Saas) of opposite party no.2, namely, Smt Asha Devi, who lodged FIR on 15.06.2014, registered as Case Crime No.284 of 2014 against the applicants, namely Smt. Radha Devi, Smt. Meenu and Smt. Pan Kumar and two other co-accused, namely, Laxman (husband) and Ram Naresh brother-in-law (Jeith). The investigating officer after investigation has submitted two charge-sheets in this case. Charge-sheet dated 29.10.2014 was submitted against the co-accused, Laxman (husband) and Ram Naresh (Jeith) and charge-sheet dated 01.04.2015 was submitted against the applicant Radha Devi, Meenu and Smt. Pan Kumar, who are on bail. It is next submitted that co-accused Laxman and Ram Naresh have been acquitted by judgment and order dated 11.06.2018 by Additional District & Session Judge/Fast Track Court No.3 in Session Trial No.53 of 2015, therefore, the applicants are not entitled to face trial and proceedings against them are liable to be quashed at the pre-trial stage by this Court in exercise of power under section 482 Cr.P.C.

5. Per contra, Sri Virendra Kumar Maurya and Jagdamba Prasad Singh, learned Additional Government Advocates refuting the aforesaid submissions of the learned counsel for the applicants, vehemently opposed the aforesaid prayer of the applicants by contending that in this case charge sheet had been filed on 01.04.2015 against the applicants, but they have filed the present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. in July, 2019 challenging the charge sheet dated 01.04.2015 after four years without any proper explanation of delay in filing the present application. The proceeding of the trial against the applicants cannot be said to be abuse of the process of Court, and cannot be quashed merely on the ground that two other co-accused of this case have been acquitted. The present application is liable to be dismissed on merit as well as on the ground of latches.

6. After having heard the argument of learned counsel of the parties, this Court is of the view that every case turns on its own facts and evidence as may be adduced and acquittal of co- accused in a trial emanating from same case crime does not necessarily entail acquittal of the other co-accused, who are yet to be put on trial. In a trial of co-accused, the prosecution is not called upon nor it is expected to adduce evidence against absconding co-accused or such co accused who did not face trial.

7. Before delving into this issue, it would also be useful to set out sections 40, 41, 42 and 43 of The Indian Evidence Act, 1872, which are under the heading "Judgments of Courts of justice when relevant", which reads as under :-

Section 40 :- Previous judgments relevant to bar a second suit or trial.--The existence of any judgment, order or decree which by law prevents any Courts from taking cognizance of a suit or holding a trial is a relevant fact when the question is whether such Court ought to take cognizance of such suit, or to hold such trial.

Section 41 :- Relevancy of certain judgments in probate, etc., jurisdiction.--A final judgment, order or decree of a competent Court, in the exercise of probate, matrimonial admiralty or insolvency jurisdiction which confers upon or takes away from any person any legal character, or which declares any person to be entitled to any such character, or to be entitled to any specific thing, not as against any specified person but absolutely, is relevant when the existence of any such legal character, or the title of any such person to any such thing, is relevant. Such judgment, order or decree is conclusive proof-- that any legal character, which it confers accrued at the time when such judgment, order or decree came into operation; that any legal character, to which it declares any such person to be entitled, accrued to that person at the time when such judgment, 3[order or decree] declares it to have accrued to that person; 3[order or decree] declares it to have accrued to that person; that any legal character which it takes away from any such person ceased at the time from which such judgment, 3[order or decree] declared that it had ceased or should cease; 3[order or decree] declared that it had ceased or should cease; and that anything to which it declares any person to be so entitled was the property of that person at the time from which such judgment, 3[order or decree] declares that it had been or should be his property.

(3) Ins. by Act 18 of 1872, sec. 3.

Section 42 :- Relevancy and effect of judgments, orders or decrees, other than those mentioned in section 41.--Judgments, orders or decrees other than those mentioned in section 41, are relevant if they relate to matters of a public nature relevant to the enquiry; but such judgments, orders or decrees are not conclusive proof of that which they state.

Section 43 :- Judgments, etc., other than those mentioned in sections 40 to 42, when relevant.--Judgments, orders or decrees, other than those mentioned in sections 40, 41 and 42, are irrelevant, unless the existence of such judgment, order or decree, is a fact in issue, or is relevant under some other provisions of this Act.

8. The Apex Court in the matter of Rajan Rai Vs. State of Bihar (2006) 1 SCC 191 has also considered the provisions of Section 40,41,42 and 43 of the Indian Evidence Act and held that judgment of acquittal of co-accused rendered in earlier trial arising out of same transaction was wholly irrelevant in the case of the accused, who was tried separately. The relevant paragraph nos. 8 and 10 of the said judgment are reproduced herein-below:-

"8. Coming to the first submission very strenuously canvassed by Shri Mishra, it would be necessary to refer to the provisions of Sections 40 to 44 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 [in short `the Evidence Act'] which are under the heading `Judgments of Courts of justice when relevant', and in the aforesaid Sections the circumstances under which previous judgments are relevant in civil and criminal cases have been enumerated. Section 40 states the circumstances in which a previous judgment may be relevant to bar a second suit or trial and has no application to the present case for the obvious reasons that no judgment order or decree is said to be in existence in this case which could in law be said to prevent the Sessions Court from holding the trial. Section 41 deals with the relevancy of certain judgments in probate, matrimonial, admiralty or insolvency jurisdiction and is equally inapplicable. Section 42 refers to the relevancy and effect of judgments, orders or decrees other than those mentioned in Section 41 in so far as they relate to matters of a public nature, and is again inapplicable to the present case. Then comes Section 43 which clearly lays down that judgments, order or decrees, other than those mentioned in Sections 40, 41 and 42, are irrelevant, unless the existence of such judgment, order or decree is a fact in issue, or is relevant under some other provisions of the Evidence Act. As it has not been shown that the judgment of acquittal rendered by the High Court in appeals arising out of earlier sessions trial could be said to be relevant under the other provisions of the Evidence Act, it was clearly "irrelevant" and could not have been taken into consideration by the High Court while passing the impugned judgment. The remaining Section 44 deals with fraud or collusion in obtaining a judgment, or incompetency of a court which delivered it, and can possibly have no application in the present case. It would thus appear that the High Court was quite justified in ignoring the judgment of acquittal rendered by it which was clearly irrelevant.

10. A three Judges' Bench of this Court had occasion to consider the same very question in the case of Karan Singh vs. The State of Madhya Pradesh, AIR 1965 SC 1037, in which there were in all 8 accused persons out of whom accused Ram Hans absconded, as such trial of seven accused persons, including accused Karan Singh, who was appellant before this Court, proceeded and the trial court although acquitted other six accused persons, convicted the seventh accused, i.e., Karan Singh under Section 302 read with Section 149 IPC. Against his conviction, Karan Singh preferred an appeal before the High Court. During the pendency of his appeal, accused Ram Hans was apprehended and put on trial and upon its conclusion, the trial court recorded order of his acquittal, which attained finality, no appeal having been preferred against the same. Thereafter, when the appeal of accused Karan Singh was taken up for hearing, it was submitted that in view of the judgment of acquittal rendered in the trial of accused Ram Hans, the conviction of accused Karan Singh under Section 302 read with Section 149 IPC could not be sustained, more so when other six accused persons, who were tried with Karan Singh, were acquitted by the trial court and the judgment of acquittal attained finality. Repelling the contention, the High Court after considering the evidence adduced came to the conclusion that murder was committed by Ram Hans in furtherance of the common intention of both himself and accused Karan Singh and, accordingly, altered the conviction of Karan Singh from Section 302/149 to one under Section 302/34 IPC. Against the said judgment, when an appeal by special leave was preferred before this Court, it was contended that in view of the verdict of acquittal of accused Ram Hans, it was not permissible in law for the High Court to uphold conviction of accused Karan Singh. This Court, repelling the contention, held that decision in each case had to turn on the evidence led in it. Case of accused Ram Hans depended upon evidence led there while the case of accused Karan Singh, who had appealed before this Court, had to be decided only on the basis of evidence led during the course of his trial and the evidence led in the case of Ram Hans and the decision there arrived at would be wholly irrelevant in considering merits of the case of Karan Singh, who was appellant before this Court. This Court observed at page 1038 thus:-

" As the High Court pointed out, that observation has no application to the present case as here the acquittal of Ramhans was not in any proceeding to which the appellant was a party. Clearly, the decision in each case has to turn on the evidence led in it; Ramhans's case depended on the evidence led there while the appellant's case had to be decided only on the evidence led in it. The evidence led in Ramhans's case and the decision there arrived at on that evidence would be wholly irrelevant in considering the merits of the appellant's case."

In that case, after laying down the law, the Court further considered as to whether the High Court was justified in converting the conviction of accused Karan Singh from Section 302/149 to one under Section 302 read with section 34 IPC after recording a finding that the murder was committed by Ram Hans in furtherance of common intention of both himself and accused Karan Singh. This Court was of the view that in spite of the fact that accused Ram Hans was acquitted by the trial court and his acquittal attained finality, it was open to the High Court, as an appellate court, while considering appeal of accused Karan Singh, to consider evidence recorded in the trial of Karan Singh only for a limited purpose to find out as to whether Karan Singh could have shared common intention with accused Ram Hans to commit murder of the deceased, though the same could not have otherwise affected the acquittal of Ram Hans. In view of the foregoing discussion, we are clearly of the view that the judgment of acquittal rendered in the trial of other four accused persons is wholly irrelevant in the appeal arising out of trial of appellant Rajan Rai as the said judgment was not admissible under the provisions of Sections 40 to 44 of the Evidence Act. Every case has to be decided on the evidence adduced therein. Case of the four acquitted accused persons was decided on the basis of evidence led there while case of the present appellant has to be decided only on the basis of evidence adduced during the course of his trial."

9. The Apex Court in another matter of Yanob Sheikh @ Gagu Vs. State of West Bengal (2013) 6 SCC 428 has also considered the issue that what would be effect of judgment of acquittal of one accused on the other co-accused. The relevant paragraph nos. 24, 25 and 26 of the said judgment are reproduced herein-below:-

"24. In the present case, we are concerned with the merit or otherwise of the above reasoning leading to the acquittal of the accused Najrul. We are primarily concerned with the effect of this acquittal upon the case of the Appellant-accused. The Trial Court in its judgment clearly stated that there was direct and circumstantial evidence against the accused implicating him with the commission of the crime. Finding the Appellant guilty of the offence, the Trial Court punished him accordingly. Where the prosecution is able to establish the guilt of the accused by cogent, reliable and trustworthy evidence, mere acquittal of one accused would not automatically lead to acquittal of another accused. It is only where the entire case of the prosecution suffers from infirmities, discrepancies and where the prosecution is not able to establish its case, the acquittal of the co-accused would be of some relevancy for deciding the case of the other."

"25. In the case of Dalbir Singh v. State of Haryana (2008) 11 SCC 425, this Court held as under:

13. Coming to the applicability of the principle of falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus, even if major portion of evidence is found to be deficient, residue is sufficient to prove guilt of an accused, notwithstanding acquittal of large number of other co-accused persons, his conviction can be maintained. However, where large number of other persons are accused, the court has to carefully screen the evidence:

51. ... It is the duty of court to separate grain from chaff. Where chaff can be separated from grain, it would be open to the court to convict an accused notwithstanding the fact that evidence has been found to be deficient to prove guilt of other accused persons. Falsity of particular material witness or material particular would not ruin it from the beginning to end. The maxim falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus has no application in India and the witnesses cannot be branded as liars. The maxim falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus (false in one thing, false in everything) has not received general acceptance in different jurisdiction in India, nor has this maxim come to occupy the status of rule of law. It is merely a rule of caution. All that it amounts to, is that in such cases testimony may be disregarded, and not that it must be disregarded. The doctrine merely involves the question of weight of evidence which a court may apply in a given set of circumstances, but it is not what may be called 'a mandatory rule of evidence'.(See Nisar Ali v. State of U.P.) Merely because some of the accused persons have been acquitted, though evidence against all of them, so far as direct testimony went, was the same does not lead as a necessary corollary that those who have been convicted must also be acquitted. It is always open to a court to differentiate the accused who had been acquitted from those who were convicted. (See Gurcharan Singh v. State of Punjab.) The doctrine is a dangerous one, specially in India, for if a whole body of the testimony were to be rejected, because witness was evidently speaking an untruth in some aspect, it is to be feared that administration of criminal justice would come to a dead stop. Witnesses just cannot help in giving embroidery to a story, however, true in the main. Therefore, it has to be appraised in each case as to what extent the evidence is worthy of acceptance, and merely because in some respects the court considers the same to be insufficient for placing reliance on the testimony of a witness, it does not necessarily follow as a matter of law that it must be disregarded in all respects as well. The evidence has to be sifted with care. The aforesaid dictum is not a sound rule for the reason that one hardly comes across a witness whose evidence does not contain a grain of untruth or at any rate exaggeration, embroideries or embellishment. (See Sohrab v. State of M.P. and Ugar Ahir v. State of Bihar.) An attempt has to be made to in terms of felicitous metaphor, separate grain from the chaff, truth from falsehood. Where it is not feasible to separate truth from falsehood, because grain and chaff are inextricably mixed up, and in the process of separation an absolutely new case has to be reconstructed by divorcing essential details presented by the prosecution completely from the context and the background against which they are made, the only available course to be made is discard the evidence in toto. (See Zwinglee Ariel v. State of M.P. and Balaka Singh v. State of Punjab.) As observed by this Court in State of Rajasthan v. Kalki normal discrepancies in evidence are those which are due to normal errors of observations, normal errors of memory due to lapse of time, due to mental disposition such as shock and horror at the time of occurrence and these are always there however honest and truthful a witness may be. Material discrepancies are those which are not normal and not expected of a normal person. Courts have to label the category to which a discrepancy may be categorised. While normal discrepancies do not corrode the credibility of a party's case, material discrepancies do so."

"26. The cumulative effect of the above discussion is that the acquittal of a co-accused perse is not sufficient to result in acquittal of the other accused. The Court has to screen the entire evidence and does not extend the threat of falsity to universal acquittal. The Court must examine the entire prosecution evidence in its correct perspective before it can conclude the effect of acquittal of one accused on the other in the facts and circumstances of a given case."

10. In view of above discussion, it is clear that the judgment of acquittal of co-accused in a criminal trial is not admissible under sections 40 to 43 of the Evidence Act to bar the subsequent trial of the absconding co-accused and cannot hence be deduced as a relevant document while considering the prayer to quash the proceedings against remaining co-accused under section 482 Cr.P.C. The judgment of acquittal will be admissible only to show as to who were the parties in the proceedings or factum of acquittal. As such securing of acquittal by co-accused cannot be considered as relevant circumstances and ground for exercising power under section 482 Cr.P.C., to quash the proceedings as against those accused who has not faced the trial. The judgment not inter parties cannot justify the invocation of the doctrine of issue stopple under the Law.

11. It is also well settled that power of quashing the criminal proceedings at the pre-trial stage should be exercised very sparingly and with circumspection and that too in the exceptional and rare case. The extraordinary or inherent powers do not confer an arbitrary jurisdiction on the Court to act according to its whim or caprice. As such the inherent powers of the High Court cannot normally be invoked, unless such materials are of an unimpeachable nature, which can be translated into legal evidence in the course of trial.

12. As a fallout and consequences of aforesaid discussion, I have no hesitation in holding that even on the acquittal of co-accused, the charge sheet and criminal proceeding pursuant thereto against the remaining co-accused cannot be quashed under section 482 Cr.P.C.

13. The application sans merit and is, accordingly, dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shamim Ahmed, J.)

1. This application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed by the applicant invoking the inherent jurisdiction of this Court with the prayer for quashing the order dated 10.06.2019 passed by Incharge Judicial Magistrate, Court No.11 Deoria in Misc. Case No.171 of 2019 (State Vs. Satya Prakash Mall), arising out of Case Crime No.318 of 2018, under Sections 419, 420, 467, 468, 471, 272 I.P.C. and under Sections 60, 63, 72 of Excise Act, Police Station Rudhrapur, District Deoria.

2. Further prayer has also been made to quash the order dated 18.07.2019 passed by Additional District and Sessions Judge, Court No.7, Deoria in Criminal Revision No.93 of 2019 (Vikas Kumar Vs. State of U.P.) filed against the aforesaid order of learned Incharge Judicial Magistrate, Deoria, rejecting the release application which has been confirmed by the learned revisional court.

3. Counter and rejoinder affidavits have been exchanged between the parties.

4. Heard learned counsel for the applicant, learned A.G.A. for the opposite parties and perused the record.

5. Learned counsel for the applicant has submitted that the applicant is the registered owner of vehicle/Mahindra Scorpio bearing Chasis No. MA1TA2TDKJ2J39166 and Engine No.TDJ4J79127, in this regard sale certificate and trade certificate were issued by the agency. Thereafter, the applicant has applied for registration of the said vehicle before the Regional Transport Officer, Siwan and when the vehicle of the applicant was driven by driver, while going to Deoria for treatment of his relative, then police of Police Station Rudhrapur, District Deoria caught the vehicle and detained at Police Station Deoria without any reason. When the applicant came to know about this incident he went to police station to ensure about the incident but the vehicle of the applicant was not there and it was detained by the police to some other place keeping the vehicle in their custody.

6. Learned counsel for the applicant further argued that the applicant has been falsely implicated in the case to extract illegal gratification from him and after the denial the police, thereafter, lodged an F.I.R. under Sections 419, 420, 467, 468, 471, 272 I.P.C. and under Sections 60, 63, 72 of Excise Act, Police Station Rudhrapur, District Deoria and vehicle was ceased by the police. Learned counsel for the applicant further argued that the applicant was released on bail on 28.01.2019 in respect of the above incident.

7. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that the applicant has moved release application before the learned Magistrate stating therein that he is an agriculturist and was using his vehicle for personal use and when the vehicle was ceased by the police, driver of the applicant was going to Deoria for treatment of his relative and the vehicle was wrongly detained by the police. Learned counsel for the applicant further submits that it was wrongly stated by the police that applicant was transporting the liqueur in the said vehicle.

8. Learned counsel for the applicant further submits that the release application of the applicant was rejected by the learned Magistrate on 10.06.2019 only on the ground that the investigation was going on and the confiscation proceedings under Section 72 of U.P. Excise Act were pending before the District Magistrate, Deoria, therefore, the vehicle cannot be released. Against the order of learned Magistrate, the applicant has filed criminal revision before the Additional District and Sessions Judge, Deoria bearing Case No.93 of 2019 (Vikas Vs. State of U.P.) and the learned revisional court rejected the criminal revision vide order dated 18.07.2019 on the same ground, observing that the confiscation proceedings are pending before the District Magistrate, Deoria, therefore, the vehicle in question cannot be released.

9. Learned counsel for the applicant has submitted that the vehicle is standing in open yard in the police station since long and with the passage of time ultimately it will become junk and after sometime it is not useful for any purpose. Reliance has been placed on the law laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Sunderbhai Ambalal Desai and C.M. Mudaliar Vs. State of Gujrat, AIR 2003 SC 638.

10. Learned counsel for the applicant has further drawn the attention of the Court regarding the provisions of Sections 451 and 457 of Cr.P.C., which is quoted as under:-

"451. Order for custody and disposal of property pending trial in certain cases. When any property is produced before any Criminal Court during any inquiry or trial, the Court may make such order as it thinks fit for the proper custody of such property pending the conclusion of the inquiry or trial, and, if the property is subject to speedy and natural decay, or if it is otherwise expedient so to do, the Court may, after recording such evidence as it thinks necessary, order it to be sold or otherwise disposed of.

Explanation.- For the purposes of this section," property" includes-

(a) property of any kind or document which is produced before the Court or which is in its custody,

(b) any property regarding which an offence appears to have been committed or which appears to have been used for the commission of any offence.

457. Procedure by police upon seizure of property.

(1) Whenever the seizure of property by any police officer is reported to a Magistrate under the provisions of this Code, and such property is not produced before a Criminal Court during an inquiry or trial, the Magistrate may make such order as he thinks fit respecting the disposal of such property or the delivery of such property to the person entitled to the possession thereof, or if such person cannot be ascertained, respecting the custody and production of such property.

(2) If the person so entitled is known, the Magistrate may order the property to be delivered to him on such conditions (if any) as the Magistrate thinks fit and if such person is unknown, the Magistrate may detain it and shall, in such case, issue a proclamation specifying the articles of which such property consists, and requiring any person who may have a claim thereto, to appear before him and establish his claim within six months from the date of such proclamation."

11. Learned counsel for the applicant has further submitted that the applicant is ready to comply with all the conditions, which the lower court will impose while releasing the vehicle. Undisputedly, applicant is the rightful owner of the vehicle, therefore, the vehicle be released in his favour and the impugned orders be quashed.

12. Learned A.G.A. has opposed the application and detailed counter affidavit has been filed. In the counter affidavit it has been stated that the proceedings under Section 72 of the U.P. Excise Act are pending before the District Magistrate, Deoria who is the competent authority to decide this issue whether the vehicle be released or not and the applicant may appear before the District Magistrate and apprise him regarding his grievances. Learned A.G.A. further submits that the vehicle is involved in criminal case under Sections 419, 420, 467, 468, 471, 272 I.P.C. and under Sections 60, 63, 72 of Excise Act and therefore, the vehicle cannot be released in favour of the applicant.

13. In the rejoinder affidavit filed by the applicant, it has been stated by the learned counsel for the applicant that applicant is an innocent person and has been falsely implicated in the case and the vehicle has nothing do with the alleged offence. It was further submitted that no evidence was collected by the investigating officer under Section 17 of the Excise Act and the police personnel cannot lodge a complaint under Excise Act, therefore, the entire proceedings is against the process of law and is liable to be quashed.

14. Learned counsel for the applicant has contented that mere pendency of confiscation proceedings before the District Magistrate under Section 72 of the U.P. Excise Act shall not operate as a bar against the release of vehicle seized under Section 60 of the U.P. Excise Act.

15. After having heard the learned counsel for the parties, I have carefully gone through the relevant legal provisions and the judgments rendered by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Sunderbhai Ambalal Desai (supra) and the judgment passed by this court in various cases under the U.P. Excise Act.

16. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Sunderbhai Ambalal Desai, AIR 2003 SC 638 (supra) in para 17 and 21 has been pleased held as under:-

"17. In our view, whatever be the situation, it is of no use to keep such seized vehicles at the police stations for a long period. It is for the Magistrate to pass appropriate orders immediately by taking appropriate bond and guarantee as well as security for return of the said vehicles, if required at any point of time. This can be done pending hearing of application for return of such vehicles.

21. However these powers are to be exercised by the concerned Magistrate. We hope and trust that the concerned Magistrate would take immediate action for seeing that powers under Section 451 Cr.P.C. Are properly and promptly exercised and articles are not kept for a long time at the police station, in any case, for not more than fifteen days to one month. This Object can also be achieved if there is proper supervision by the Registry of the concerned High Court in seeing that the rules framed by the High Court with regard to such articles are implemented properly."

17. In Nand Vs. State of U.P., 1996 Law Suit (All) 423 this Court has observed that pendency of the confiscation proceedings under Section 72 of the U. P. Excise Act is not a bar for release of the vehicle which is required for the trial under Section 60 of the U. P. Excise Act. It has been clearly observed by this Court in para 7 that:-

" I think it is not proper to allow the truck to be damaged by remaining stationed at police station. Admittedly, the ownership of the truck is not disputed. The State of Uttar Pradesh does not claim its ownership. Therefore, I think it will be proper and in the larger interest of public as well as the revisionist that the revisionist gives a Bank guarantee of Rs. 2 lakhs before the C.J.M., Kanpur Dehat and files a bond that he shall be producing the truck as and when needed by the criminal courts or the District Magistrate, Kanpur Dehat, and he shall not make any changes nor any variation in the truck."

18. This Court further has held in the case of Jai Prakash Vs. State of U.P., 1992 AWC 1744 that mere pendency of confiscation proceedings before the Collector is no bar to release the vehicle.

19. In Kamaljeet Singh Vs. State of U.P., 1986 U.P. Cri. Ruling 50 (Alld), the same view was taken by this court that pendency of confiscation proceedings shall not operate as bar against the release of vehicle seized u/s 60 of Excise Act.

20. In the opinion of this Court, it is not disputed that the power under Section 451 of Cr.P.C. is not properly and widely used by the court below while passing the orders. The power conferred under Section 451 of Cr.P.C. be exercised by the court below with judicious mind and without any unnecessarily delay. So that the litigant may not suffer, merely keeping the article in the custody of the police in the open yard will not fulfill any purpose and ultimately it result the damage of the said property. The owner of the property be allowed to enjoy the fruits of the said property for the remaining period for which the property is being made.

21. Further in the opinion of this Court, the procedure as contemplated under Section 457 of Cr.P.C. be also followed promptly, so that the concerned Magistrate may take prompt decision for disposal of such properties and be released in favour of the entitled person of the said property, keeping the said property in the custody will not solve any purpose and that gives a mental and financial torture to the owner of the said property which is also against the law and against the principles of natural justice.

22. As per the legal propositions mentioned above and keeping in view this fact that undisputedly the applicant is the registered owner of the seized vehicle and the ownership of the vehicle is not indispute neither the State or any other person has claimed their ownership over the vehicle, therefore, no useful purpose will be served in keeping the vehicle stationed at the police station in the open yard for a long period allowing it to be damaged with the passage of time.

23. In view of the above facts and circumstances of the case, the impugned orders are not sustainable in the eyes of law and require interference by this court.

24. Accordingly, the application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. is allowed and the impugned order dated 10.06.2019 & order dated 18.07.2019 are set aside and the case is remitted back to the concerned Magistrate to decide the release application of the applicant afresh within a period of two months from the date of certified copy of this order is filed before the court below in the light of the aforesaid observations and the law as discussed above.

Subodh S. Salaskar Vs. Jayprakash M. Shah U.P. Criminal Rulings 2008 (3) 614

(Delivered by Hon'ble Naheed Ara Moonis, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the applicants, the learned AGA for the State and perused the record.

2. The instant application has been filed invoking the inherent powers of this court under Section 482 Cr.P.C. to quash the proceeding of complaint Case No. 1288 of 2010 whereby the applicant has been summoned to face trial under Section 138 of Negotiable Instrument Act, police station M.M. Gate, district Agra and the order dated 18.10.2010 passed by the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate-II, Agra in the aforesaid case.

3. The submission of the learned counsel for the applicant is that the applicant is maliciously being prosecuted pursuant to the complaint lodged by the opposite party no.2 under Section 138 of Negotiable Instrument Act on 1.5.2006. It is alleged in the complaint that the opposite party no.2 had sold her two plots to the wife of the applicant for consideration of Rs. 5 lacs, the payment whereof was given by two cheques. One cheque was honour by the bank while another cheque no. 546759 dated 25.6.2005 was dishonoured by the bank with the memorandum dated 21.12.2005 mentioning "not arranged for". It was mentioned in the complaint that the opposite party no.2 had sent a registered notice on 4.1.2006 but the same was never received by the applicant and has been alleged that despite service of notice no reply was given by the applicant nor made any payment. On the basis of the aforesaid complaint dated 1.5.2006 the statements of the complainant and witnesses were recorded and the court below proceeded to summon the applicant to face trial by order dated 24.5.2006 under Section 138 of Negotiable Instrument Act. The court below has further observed that no prima facie offence is made out under Section 420 I.P.C.

4. Aggrieved by the summoning order dated 24.5.2006 the applicant challenged the proceeding before this court by filing Criminal Misc. Application No. 642 of 2008, which was disposed of with the direction to the applicant to surrender before the court below and apply for bail and file objection. In pursuance of the order of this court the applicant had surrendered before the court below and was released on bail. The applicant has filed objection denying the contents of the complaint and submitted that in the registered sale deed only one cheque of Rs. 2,50,000/- was mentioned, which was honoured on 28.6.2005 by the bank in favour of the opposite party no.2 and Rs. 2,50,000/- was given to the opposite party no.2 in cash. The second cheque in dispute was given as guarantee of which stop payment was done by the applicant on 12.7.2005 as one cheque, which was issued in favour of the opposite party no.2 was also cleared in respect of the sale consideration. In the objection the applicant has also denied that no notice whatsoever was received by the applicant. Specific plea was raised in respect of filing the complaint as barred by limitation as the complainant has filed the complaint after four months on 1.5.2006 whereas it ought to have been filed on 19.2.2006 after expiry of 15 days notice. This objection has been rejected by the court below wholly on erroneous ground by holding that such objection cannot be decided at this stage, which will be considered at the time of hearing of the case.

5. The said order was passed on 16.10.2008, as such the same was again challenged before this court by filing 482 Petition No. 3009 of 2009. The petition was allowed and another Bench of this court quashed the order dated 16.10.2008 directing the court below to consider the question of maintainability of complaint first then proceed with the trial "if need arises for the same".

6. In pursuance of the direction of this court the learned Magistrate after considering the arguments qua the objection raised by the applicant with regard to maintainability of the complaint rejected the objection on 18.10.2010, hence this petition has been filed. The learned Magistrate has committed manifest error in accepting that the complaint has been filed by the opposite party no.2 was maintainable and filed well within time for which no separate application is required for condoning the delay and maintained the order summoning the applicant to face trial under Section 138 of Negotiable Instrument Act. When the complaint itself barred by time of which no plausible explanation was given by moving a separate application to condone the delay in filing the appeal the hence prosecution of the applicant suffers from manifest error of law.

7. The learned counsel for the applicant has relied upon the decision of the Apex Court in U.P. Criminal Rulings 2008 Volume 3 Page 614 Subodh S. Salaskar Vs. Jayprakash M. Shah and another and submitted that it has been specifically held that in the matter of dishonour of cheque unless condition precedent for taking cognizance are not satisfied cognizance of offence cannot be taken. Reliance has been paced in paras 23 and 24 of the aforesaid case, which is delineated herein as under;

" 23. The complaint petition admittedly was filed on 20.04.2001. The notice having been sent on 17.01.2001, if the presumption of service of notice within a reasonable time is raised, it should be deemed to have been served at best within a period of thirty days from the date of issuance thereof, i.e., 16.02.2001. The accused was required to make payment in terms of the said notice within fifteen days thereafter, i.e., on or about 2.03.2001. The complaint petition, therefore, should have been filed by 2.04.2001."

"24. Ex facie, it was barred by limitation. No application for condonation of delay was filed. No application for condonation of delay was otherwise maintainable. The provisions of the Act being special in nature, in terms thereof the jurisdiction of the court to take cognizance of an offence under Section 138 of the Act was limited to the period of thirty days in terms of the proviso appended thereto. The Parliament only with a view to obviate the aforementioned difficulties on the part of the complainant inserted proviso to Clause (b) of Section 142 of the Act in 2002. It confers a jurisdiction upon the court to condone the delay. It is, therefore, a substantive provision and not a procedural one. The matter might have been different if the Magistrate could have exercised its jurisdiction either under Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963 or Section 473 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1976. The provisions of the said Acts are not applicable. In any event, no such application for condonation of delay was filed. If the proviso appended to Clause (b) of Section 142 of the Act contained a substantive provision and not a procedural one, it could not have been given a retrospective effect. A substantive law, as it is well-settled, in absence of an express provision, cannot be given a retrospective effect or retroactive operation."

8. Considering the dictum of the Apex Court the court directed not to take coercive action against the applicant while issuing notice to the opposite party no.1 on 23.11.2010. Thereafter the aforesaid order was confirmed by order dated 16.9.2011 staying further proceeding of the case. Despite service of notice no counter affidavit has been filed on behalf of the opposite party no. 2. However, the court below has now proceeded against the applicant in view of the order of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Asian Resurfacing of Road Agency Pvt. Ltd. and others Vs. Central Bureau of Investigation, AIR 2018 SC 2039 that the proceedings shall not be stayed after expiry of six months and hence the court below by order dated 30.3.2019 has issued non bailable warrant against the applicant.

9. It is further submitted by the learned counsel for the applicant that issuance of non bailable warrant against the applicant is liable to be quashed and also the further proceeding of the case as the complaint itself is not maintainable, which was filed beyond the period of limitation of which no separate application was moved for condoning the delay in filing the complaint, which is the requirement of the law.

10. The learned A.G.A. has refuted the submission of the learned counsel for the applicant and contended that the order passed by the court below way back on 24.5.2006 summoning the applicant to face trial does not suffer from any error much less any error of law and the case, which has been cited by the learned counsel for the applicant on the basis of which the proceeding has been stayed would not apply in the present facts and circumstances of the case. The disputed question of fact with respect to execution of the sale deed in consideration of Rs. 5 lacs is not disputed at all by the applicant. The opposite party no.2 was handed over two cheques by the applicant. Each of Rs. 2,50,000/-. The applicant had got the sale deed executed in the name of his wife Smt. Prabha Sharma of which reference has been given in the sale deed. As one cheque issued by the applicant was encashed, the other cheque of Rs. 2,50,000/- was returned due to insufficiency of fund in the account of the applicant on 21.12.2005 and hence a legal notice was given by the opposite party no.2 on 4.1.2006 of which neither any reply was given nor payment of the cheque amount was paid and hence the complaint was filed on 1.5.2006 by the opposite party no.2. The opposite party no.2 in paragraph 6 of the complaint has specifically given reason for not filing the complaint earlier as she was seriously ill and her treatment was going on in Ganga Nursing Home, Rambagh, Agra and was advised by the Doctor for complete bed rest from 1.2.2006 to 27.4.2006 and in this regard the Doctor has issued a certificate, which was appended along with the complaint. As the applicant has committed fraud with the opposite party no. 2 who got the sale deed executed surreptitiously in the name of his wife and the cheque was given when there was no amount of Rs. 2,50,000/- in his account on account of which the cheque was dishonoured and hence the complaint was filed on 1.5.2006 by the opposite party no. 2. After taking into account the oral and documentary evidence the learned court below proceeded to pass the order summoning the applicant to face trial. So far as the filing of the complaint not within time is concerned the objection of the applicant is absolutely baseless which is only in order to linger on the proceeding as twice the court below has rejected the same after considering the provisions of law regarding maintainability, as such the applicant has ample opportunity to raise the objection with respect to the disputed question of fact at the appropriate stage before the trial court. Hence the present 482 petition is liable to be dismissed.

11. This court has given anxious consideration to the arguments advanced by the learned counsel for the applicant and the learned A.G.A. for the State.

12. So far as the question raised by the learned counsel for the applicant that the complaint is barred by limitation for which no separate application has been filed to condone the delay in filing the complaint, it is necessary to deal the provisions of Sections 138 and 142 of the Act.

"138 - Dishonour of cheque for insufficiency, etc., of funds in the account    Provided that nothing contained in this section shall apply unless--

(a) the cheque has been presented to the bank within a period of six months from the date on which it is drawn or within the period of its validity, whichever is earlier;

(b) the payee or the holder in due course of the cheque, as the case may be, makes a demand for the payment of the said amount of money by giving a notice in writing, to the drawer of the cheque, within thirty days of the receipt of information by him from the bank regarding the return of the cheque as unpaid; and

(c) the drawer of such cheque fails to make the payment of the said amount of money to the payee or, as the case may be, to the holder in due course of the cheque, within fifteen days of the receipt of the said notice."

Section 142 of the Act also puts a limitation in the power of the court to take cognizance of the offences, which reads as under:

"142 . Cognizance of offences Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974)--

(a) no court shall take cognizance of any offence punishable under section 138 except upon a complaint, in writing, made by the payee or, as the case may be, the holder in due course of the cheque;

(b) such complaint is made within one month of the date on which the cause-of-action arises under clause (c) of the proviso to section 138 :

Provided that the cognizance of a complaint may be taken by the Court after the prescribed period, if the complainant satisfies the Court that he had sufficient cause for not making a complaint within such period.

(c) no court inferior to that of a Metropolitan Magistrate or a Judicial Magistrate of the first class shall try any offence punishable under section 138."

13. The language used in Section 138 of the Act is based upon five components, namely, (i) drawing the cheque, (ii) presentation of cheque to the bank, (iii) returning of the cheque unpaid by the drawer,(iv) giving notice in writing to the drawer of the cheque demanding payment of the amount and (v) failure of the drawer to make payment within 15 days of receipt of the notice.

14. In the present case the disputed cheque no. 546749 dated 25.6.2005 of Rs. 2,50,000/- of State Bank of India, Sadar Bazar, Agra handed over to the complainant by the applicant, which bears his signature and on giving assurance by the applicant when the cheque was deposited by the opposite party no.2 in her account after five months in Punjab National Bank, Agra, the same was returned with the endorsement of "insufficient fund" in the account of the applicant on 21.12.2005, hence a legal notice was given with respect to the dishonour of the cheque by the complainant through registered post on 4.1.2006, which was received by the applicant but even after expiry of 15 days when the required amount was not paid by the applicant the complaint was filed on 1.5.2006 specifically bringing to the notice that as she fell ill she could not file the complaint within the time and in this regard she has filed medical certificate of the Doctor along with the complaint even during this period also the applicant had not paid the due amount to the opposite party no. 2.

15. The contention of the counsel for the applicant is that the requirement of Section 142 has not been complied with yet the cognizance has been taken by the court below suffers from manifest error in view of the decision of the Apex Court in Subodh S. Salaskar Vs. Jayprakash M. Shah would not apply in the present circumstance of the case. The case of Subodh S. Salaskar Vs. Jayprakash M. Shah (supra) was in relation to the complaint, which was filed under Section 138 of the Act on 20.4.2001. In that case the notice was issued on 16.2.2001 then the complaint petition should have been filed by 2.4.2001, which was filed on 20.4.2001. Thus it is evident that the complaint in the said case was filed prior to the amendment of Section 142 of the Act.

16. The amendment in Clause (b) of Section 142 of the Act has been added by the Negotiable Instruments (Amendment and Miscellaneous Provision) Act, (55) 2002 with effect from 6.2.2003, which delineates here as under;

"Provided that the cognizance of a complaint may be taken by the court after the prescribed period, if the complainant satisfies the court that he had sufficient cause for not making the complaint within such period."

17. Thus this amended provision was not applicable when the complaint was filed in Subodh S. Salaskar Vs. Jayprakash M. Shah's case for which a separate application for condoning the delay was required to be filed as per the provisions of t he Limitation Act. The Apex Court has held that the proviso to Clause (b) of Section 142 of the Act was inserted in 2002 could not have been retrospective effect, which is a substantive provision, hence the proceeding was quashed holding the complaint in the said case was not filed within time and held that the learned Magistrate had no jurisdiction to take cognizance under Section 138 of the Act.

18. By virtue of the amendment the proviso added in 2002 under Section 142 of the Act does not lay any requirement for filing an application separately under Section 5 of the Limitation Act. The present complaint was filed in 2006 after the amendment has came into force. Thus according to the proviso if the complainant has put forth the reason in the complaint itself for not filing the complaint within time and the learned Magistrate is satisfied that delay has been explained can take cognizance of the offence as such the said case is not applicable in the present facts and circumstances of the case. It is not incumbent upon the opposite party no.2 to file separate application for condoning the delay in filing the complaint in view of the proviso to Section 142 of the Act. The complainant had satisfied that she had sufficient cause for not making a complaint within the prescribed period as there is an explanation of the delay in filing the complaint the learned court below has committed no error in rejecting the objection of the applicant in the light of the amended proviso of Section 142 of the Act who however succeeded in getting the proceeding of the present case stalled for a long period. The other factual aspect of the case cannot be decided at the threshold, which is the subject matter of trial. Thus it cannot be said that the filing of complaint was barred by limitation, the learned Magistrate has rightly rejected the objection filed by the applicant by impugned order dated 18.10.2010 which does not call for any interference. The applicant has utterly failed to make out any case that the cognizance is bad in law, hence there is no justifiable reason to quash the proceeding pending against the applicant since 2010.

19. The application is absolutely misconceived and is accordingly dismissed. The interim order is hereby vacated. The disputed questions of fact will be considered by the court below in accordance with law and it is expected that as the proceeding is pending since long the court below shall proceed with the case on its own merit expeditiously in accordance with law after giving opportunity of hearing to both the parties.

20. Since the non bailable warrant had already been issued against the applicant, he is directed to appear before the court concerned within three weeks and apply for bail, which shall be considered by the court below in accordance with law.

21. The office is directed to communicate this order to the court below through FAX forthwith for information and necessary compliance.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajit Singh, J.)

1. Heard Sri Rajiv Lochan Shukla, learned counsel for the applicants, Sri Ravi Prakash Pandey, learned AGA for the State and perused the material available on record.

2. The present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed by the applicants for quashing the impugned order dated 18.09.2019 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.10, Meerut in S.T. No.447 of 2018 and 912 of 2018 (State of U.P. vs. Ikram and Ors.), under Sections 147, 148, 149, 323, 342, 352, 307, 302 and 308 IPC, Police Station Parichitgarh, District Meerut.

3. The first information report of this incident was lodged by the complainant against 13 named accused-persons. It was alleged in the FIR that brother of the complainant was done to death by the accused-persons and later on 'Behnoi'-Kamrul of the complainant Muzassim was also done to death by the accused-persons and Kamrul and Muzassim had died on the spot and the complainant and his brother Sadrul, Fahim, Kadim, Javed and Salim had also received injuries. The matter was investigated and the police had submitted charge sheet on 29.03.2018 against eight persons and against five accused-persons, the investigation was in progress. Later on second charge sheet was submitted on 23.06.2018 against two persons, namely Iftedar and Jisaan. The cognizance of the offence on the basis of papers submitted by the police was taken by the Sessions Court on 31.08.2018 and later on charges were framed. After framing of charge, an application was moved from the prosecution side under Section 193 Cr.P.C. and in the application it was mentioned that the complainant filed FIR against 13 named persons and eight persons were chargesheeted, later on, two persons were also chargesheeted and cognizance was taken by the trial court against all ten persons and it was mentioned in that application the police had not submitted any report under Section 173(2) Cr.P.C. against three accused-persons, namely Farman, Hussain and Rameej and three years have passed and the police has not submitted any charge sheet against the accused-persons, namely Farman, Hussain and Rameej and it was prayed in that application that three accused, namely Farman, Hussain and Rameej be arrayed as an accused under Section 193 Cr.P.C. and this application was disposed of by the trial court vide impugned order dated 18.09.2019 and by the said impugned order, the application given by the prosecution under Section 193 Cr.P.C. was accepted and the accused Farman, Hussain and Rameej were summoned for trial under Sections 147, 148, 149, 323, 342, 352, 307, 302 and 308 IPC.

4. Aggrieved by this order, the present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed by the accused-persons with a prayer for quashing the impugned order.

5. It has been submitted by the learned counsel appearing on behalf of the applicants that the impugned order passed by the trial court is against the law and when the Sessions court has taken cognizance under Section 193 Cr.P.C. earlier on 31.08.2018, then it was not within the scope of the trial court to again take cognizance of the present accused-applicants on the basis of police papers submitted by the police. It has been further submitted that when the trial was in progress, the evidence of PW-1 was recorded on 20.09.2018, then the application under Section 193 Cr.P.C. is not legally maintainable, as it was beyond the scope of the trial judge to summon the accused-applicants under Section 193 Cr.P.C. It is also submitted that when the trial has progressed, then the court can summon the accused-persons, who were not arrayed as accused in the charge sheet or against whom charge has not been

6. Learned counsel for the applicants has relied on the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Dharm Pal & Ors. Vs. State of Haryana & Ors. reported in 2014 3 SCC 306, Hardeep Singh Vs. State of Punjab & Ors. reported in 2014 3 SCC 92 and in the case of Y. Saraba Reddy Vs. Puthur Rami Reddy & Anr. reported in 2007 4 SCC 773.

7. Sri Ravi Prakash Pandey, learned AGA has vehemently opposed the arguments advanced by learned counsel for the applicants and submitted that the impugned order passed by the learned trial judge under Section 193 Cr.P.C. is a perfect order and no interference is legally required in that impugned order as it was well within the scope of the learned trial judge to array some other persons as an accused in the trial.

8. This Court would like to refer to the provisions of Sections 190 and 193 Cr.P.C. of the Code, which has come into play in the instant case for the proper understanding thereof, as it shall provide categorical answer to the issue in hand and will help this Court in tracing the underlying legal principle laid down in the present case.

"Section 190. Cognizance of offences by Magistrates. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Chapter, any Magistrate of the First Class, and any Magistrate of the Second Class specially empowered in this behalf under sub-section (2), may take cognizance of any offence ---

(a) upon receiving a complaint of facts which constitute such offence;

(b) upon a police report of such facts;

(c) upon information received from any person other than a police officer, or upon his own knowledge, that such offence has been committed.

(2) The Chief Judicial Magistrate may empower any Magistrate of the Second Class to take cognizance under sub-section (1) of such offences as are within his competence to inquire into or try.

Section 193. Cognizance of offences by courts of Session.--- Except as otherwise expressly provided by this Code or by any other law for the time being in force, no Court of Session shall take cognizance of any offence as a court of original jurisdiction unless the case has been committed to it by a Magistrate under this Code."

9. Sections 190 and 193 of the Code are in Chapter XIV. This Chapter contains the title "Conditions requisite for initiation of proceedings". Section 190 deals with cognizance of offence by Magistrates. It empowers any Magistrate of the First Class, and any Magistrate of the Second Class which are specially empowered to take cognizance "of any offence" under three circumstances mentioned therein. These three circumstances include taking of cognizance upon a police report of such facts which may constitute an offence. It is trite law that even when police report is filed stating that no offence is made out, the Magistrate can ignore the conclusion arrived at by the investigating officer and is competent to apply its independent mind to the facts emerging from the investigation and take cognizance of the case if it thinks that the facts emerging from the investigation do lead to prima facie view that commission of an offence is made out. In such a situation, the Magistrate is not bound to follow the procedure laid down in sections 200 and 202 of the Code for taking cognizance of the case under Section 190(1)(a) though it is open for him to act under Section 200 or Section 202 as well as held in the case of Minu Kumari Vs. State of Bihar, reported in (2006) 4 SCC, 359. Thus, when a complaint is received by the Magistrate under Section 190(1)(a) of the Code, the Magistrate is empowered to resort to procedure laid down in Section 200 or 202 of the Code and then take cognizance. If police report is filed he would take cognizance upon such a report, as provided under Section 190(1)(b) of the Code in the manner mentioned above as highlighted in the case of Minu Kumari (Supra).

10. Likewise, Section 193 of the Code empowers the Court of Session to take cognizance of offences and states that the Court of Session shall not take cognizance of any offence as the court of original jurisdiction unless the case has been committed to it by the Magistrate under this Code. As per this section, the Court of Session can take cognizance only after the case has been committed to it by the Magistrate, However, once the case is committed to it by the Magistrate, the Court of Session is empowered to take cognizance acting "as a court of original jurisdiction".

11. In view of the aforesaid provisions, the question that arises is as to whether the Magistrate can take cognizance of an offence which is triable by the Court of Session or he is to simply commit the case to the Court of Session, after completion of committal proceedings as it is the Court of Session which is competent to try such cases. On the one hand, Section 190 of the Code empowers the Magistrate to "take cognizance of any offence" which gives an impression that such Magistrate can take cognizance even of an offence which is triable by the Court of Session. On the other hand, when the case if committed to the Court of Session by the Magistrate, Section 193 of the Code stipulates that the Court of Session shall take cognizance "as a court of original jurisdiction" which shows that the cognizance is taken by the Court of Session as a court of original jurisdiction and, thus, it is the first time the cognizance is taken and any order passed by the Magistrate while committing the case to the Court of Session did not amount to taking cognizance of the offence which is triable by the Court of Session.

12. A bare reading of Section 190 of the Code which uses the expression "any offence" amply shows that no restriction is imposed on the Magistrate that the Magistrate can take cognizance only for the offence triable by the Magistrate Court and not in respect of the offence triable by a Court of Session. Thus, he has the power to take cognizance of an offence which is triable by the Court of Session. If it is so, the question is as to what meaning is to be assigned to the words "as a court of original jurisdiction" occurring in Section 193 of the Code when the Court of Session takes cognizance of any offence. To put it otherwise, when the Magistrate has taken cognizance and thereafter only committed the case to the Court of Session, whether the Court of Session is not empowered to take cognizance of an offence again under Section 193 of the Code or it still has power to take cognizance acting as court of original jurisdiction. In order to find the answer, it is necessary to have a look on the decision of the Apex Court in the case of Dharam Pal Vs. State of Haryana, reported in (2014) 3 SCC., 306.

13. In the case of Dharam Pal Vs. State of Haryana (Supra), an F.I.R. was registered against one N and the appellants for the commission of offences under Sections 307 and 323 read with Section 34 I.P.C. The police after investigation submitted its report under Section 173(2) of the Code before the Magistrate sending only N for trial while including the names of the appellants in Column 2 of the report. On receipt of such police report, the Magistrate did not, straightaway, commit the case to the Sessions Court but, on an objection being raised by the complainant, issued summons to the appellants therein to face trial with the other accused N as the Magistrate was convinced that a prima facie case to go for trial had been made out against the appellants as well. Further, while doing so, the Magistrate did not hold any further inquiry, as contemplated under Sections 190, 200 or even 202 of the Code, but proceeded to issue summons on the basis of the police report only. In this background, the following questions arose for the consideration by the Constitution Bench. (SCC p.312, para 7).

"7.1 Does the Committing Magistrate have any other role to play after committing the case to the Court of Session on findings from the police report that the case was triable by the Court of Session ?

7.2 If the Magistrate disagrees with the police report and is convinced that a case had also been made out for trial against the persons who had been placed in Column 2 of the report, does he have the jurisdiction to issue summons against them also in order to include their names, along with Nafe Singh, to stand trial in connection with the case made out in the police report ?

7.3 Having decided to issue summons against the appellants, was the Magistrate required to follow the procedure of a complaint case and to take evidence before committing them to the Court of Session to stand trial or whether he was justified in issuing summons against them without following such procedure ?

7.4 Can the Sessions Judge issue summons under Section 193 Cr.P.C. as a court of original jurisdiction ?

7.5 Upon the case being committed to the Court of Session, could the Sessions Judge issue summons separately under Section 193 of the Code or would he have to wait till the stage under Section 319 of the Code was reached in order to take recourse thereto ?

7.6 Was Ranjit Singh Vs. State of Punjab, reported in the case of (1998) 7 SCC, 149, which set aside the decision in the case of Kishun Singh Vs. State of Bihar, reported in (1993) 2 SCC, 16, rightly decided or not ?'

14. Answering the reference, the Constitution Bench in the case of Dharam Pal Vs. State of Haryana (Supra), held that :

"The Magistrate has ample powers to disagree with the final report that may be filed by the police authorities under section 173(2) of the Code and to proceed against the accused persons dehors the police report. The Magistrate has a role to play while committing the case to the Court of Session upon taking cognizance on the police report submitted before him under Section 173(2) of the Code. In the event the Magistrate disagrees with the police report, he has two choices. He may act on the basis of a protest petition that may be filed, or he may, while disagreeing with the police report, issue process and summon the accused. Thereafter, if on being prima facie satisfied that a case had been made out to proceed against the persons named in Column 2 of the report, he may proceed to try the said persons or if he is satisfied that a case had been made out which was triable by the Court of Session, he must commit the case to the Court of Session to proceed further in the matter. Further, if the Magistrate decides to proceed against the persons accused, he would have to proceed on the basis of the police report itself and either inquire into the matter or commit it to the Court of Session if the same is found to be triable by the Sessions Court.

The Sessions Judge is entitled to issue summon under Section 193 of the Code upon the case being committed to him by the Magistrate. Section 193 speaks of cognizance of offences by the Court of Session. The key words in the section are that (Dharam Pal Dharam Pal Vs. State of Haryana (Supra) (SCC p.319, para 38).

"38.....no Court of Session shall take cognizance of any offence as a court of original jurisdiction unless the case has been committed to it by a Magistrate under this Code."

The provision of section 193 entails that a case must, first of all committed to the Court of Session by the Magistrate. The second condition is that only after the case had been committed to it, could the Court of Session take cognizance of the offence exercising original jurisdiction. The submission that the cognizance indicated in Section 193 deals not with cognizance of an offence but of the commitment order passed by the Magistrate, was specifically rejected in view of the clear wordings of Section 193 that the Court of Session may take cognizance of the offences under the said section.

Cognizance of an offence can only be taken once. In the event, a Magistrate takes cognizance of the offence and then commits the case to the Court of Session, the question of taking fresh cognizance of the offence and, thereafter, proceeding to issue summons, is not in accordance with law. If cognizance is to be taken of the offence, it could be taken either by the Magistrate or by the Court of Session. The language of Section 193 of the Code very clearly indicates that once the case is committed to the Court of Session by the Magistrate, the Court of Session assumes original jurisdiction and all that goes with the assumption of such jurisdiction. The provisions of section 209 of the Code will, therefore, have to be understood as the Magistrate playing a passive role in committing the case to the Court of session on findings from the police report that the case was triable by the Court of Session. Nor can there by any question of part cognizance being taken by the Magistrate and part cognizance being taken by the Sessions Judge.

In the process of coming to the aforesaid conclusions, this Court in Dharam Pal Vs. State of Haryana (Supra) accepted the view expressed in the of Kishun Singh Vs. State of Bihar, reported in (1993) 2 SCC, 16 (SCC p.320, para 40) the Sessions Court has jurisdiction on committal of a case to it, to take cognizance of the offences of the persons not named as offenders but whose complicity in the case would be evident from the materials available on record. It specifically held that upon committal under Section 209 of the Code, the Sessions Judge may summon those persons shown in Column 2 of the police report to stand trial along with those already named therein.

Interestingly, at the same time, the Court in the case of Dharam Pal Vs. State of Haryana (Supra) also held that it would not be correct to hold that on receipt of a police report and seeing that the case is triable by a Court of Session, the Magistrate has no other function but to commit the case for trial to the Court of Session and the Sessions Judge has to wait till the stage under Section 319 of the Code is reached before proceeding against the persons against whom a prima facie case is made out from the material contained in the case papers sent by the Magistrate while committing the case to the Court of Session."

15. In this view of the matter Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Balveer Singh Vs. State of Rajasthan, reported in (2016) 6 SCC, 680, held as under :

"In that view of the matter, we have no hesitation in agreeing with the views expressed n Kishun Singh Vs. State of Bihar (Supra) that the Sessions Court has jurisdiction on committal of a case to it, to take cognizance of the offences of the persons not named as offenders but whose complicity in the case would be evident from the materials available on record. Hence, even without recording evidence, upon committal under Section 209, the Sessions Judge may summon those persons shown in Column 2 of the police report to stand trial along with those already named therein."

16. It is well settled position of law that cognizance of an offence can only be taken once and if once the cognizance of the offence has been taken in the present case by the Sessions Court after committal of the case to the Sessions Court and the Sessions Court had charged the accused and the trial of the accused has commenced then again the Sessions Court will not be able to go back and to take further cognizance of the case again under Section 193 Cr.P.C.

17. In the present matter as the cognizance has already been taken by the learned Sessions Judge and charges were framed against the accused after considering the police papers annexed with the charge-sheet and the trial had started, it would not be proper for the trial court to take further cognizance of the case and to summon the three accused by the impugned order. The summoning of the three accused by the impugned order is not in consonance with the legal provisions of law. The cognizance taken by the trial sessions court under Section 193 Cr.P.C. for the second time is not perfectly valid and permissible by law. The impugned order is not legally proper and the impugned order transpires that the trial sessions court has abused the process of law. The impugned order is liable to be quashed.

18. The impugned order dated 18.09.2019 passed by Additional Sessions

Judge, Court No.10, Meerut in S.T. No.447 of 2018 and 912 of 2018 (State of U.P. Vs. Ikram and Ors.), under Sections 147, 148, 149, 323, 342, 352, 307, 302 and 308 IPC, Police Station Parichitgarh, District Meerut, is hereby quashed with the direction that since the trial has proceeded and is at an advanced stage as the prosecution has examined the prosecution witness of the trial and if the trial court considers after evaluating the evidence before it, which has come during trial then the trial court may proceed against the persons, who appears to be guilty of the commission of offence with the aid of Section 319 Cr.P.C.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Krishna Gautam, J.)

1. The applicants, by means of this application under Section 482 Cr.P.C., have invoked the inherent jurisdiction of this Court with prayer to quash the entire proceeding of Complaint Case No. 1577 of 2012, under Sections 323, 504, 506 I.P.C. and Section 3(1)(X) of the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989, pending in the Court of Judicial Magistrate, Duddhi, Sonebhadra.

2. Heard learned counsel for applicants, learned counsel for opposite party no. 2, learned A.G.A. for State and perused the record.

3. Learned counsel for applicants argued that a departmental inquiry was pending against Vinod Kumar Tanay, wherein applicant no. 1 K.P. Thakur was Enquiry Officer and applicant no. 2 Binod Kumar was Presenting Officer. This enquiry was being hindered by Vinod Kumar Tanay by any means. He was summoned for recording of evidence in above inquiry, where he came with M.P. Tiwari, another co-worker. It was objected with a direction to M.P. Tiwari not to intervene in the proceeding of enquiry and he was asked to remain outside of the chamber of applicant no. 1, wherein enquiry was being conducted. He made obstruction. The complainant Vinod Kumar Tanay was of habit of creating hindrance in the smooth functioning by making false accusation at different stages because of being member of Scheduled Caste community. In that enquiry too he tried so, for which instant complaint was lodged by applicants to Department's superiors as well as local authorities. This complaint, with false accusation, was got lodged before court of Judicial Magistrate, Duddhi, Sonebhadra, wherein allegation was levelled with a view to make hindrance in above departmental enquiry, wherein he was examined under Section 200 Cr.P.C. and his two witnesses (co-workers), were examined under Section 202 Cr.P.C. and on the basis of same, learned Magistrate passed impugned summoning order for offences punishable under Sections 323, 504, 506 I.P.C. read with Section 3(1)(X) of SC/ST Act, whereas no assault or abuse in a public view was said to be made by applicants nor it was ever made. The statements, recorded under Section 200 Cr.P.C. as of complainant was with no mention that this occurrence of alleged assault and abuse was made with intention to abuse or insult on the basis of complainant being member of Scheduled Caste community by present applicants, who were not member of Scheduled Caste community. The place of occurrence has been said to be chamber of applicant no. 1 that too after bolting it from inside i.e. it was not an abuse in the public view. The essential ingredients of offence punishable under Section 3(1)(X) of the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 (hereinafter referred as the Act) are intentionally insults or intimidates with intent to humiliate a member of a Scheduled Caste or a Scheduled Tribe in any place within public view. In Gorige Pentaiah Versus State of Andhra Pradesh & Others; (2008) 12 Supreme Court Cases 531, apex court has propounded at para 6 that a public view is the view, which is of public access. Once it is inside any house, it will not be a public view and in the case of lack of above basic ingredient, the offences of Section 3(1)(X) of the Act is not completed. The same has been propounded by apex court while interpreting public view in same case at para 28. In present case, the place of occurrence has been said to be chamber of applicant no. 1, which was said to be bolted from inside. Meaning thereby, that was not a public view at all. The enquiry concluded with dismissal of complainant as well as his witnesses. Applicants being officers of Northern Coalfields Limited being Controller and Head of Department of Mining, where complainant was an employee and they are to take work from him with administrative control and if such type of practice is being permitted then it will be highly impossible for administrative superiors in getting work from administrative inferiors in performance of official duties. The allegations levelled by complainant was false, baseless and under manipulation, for hindering senior officers and influencing enquiry being conducted against him. It was abuse of process of law.

Hence, this application with above prayer for setting aside impugned summoning order.

4. Learned counsel for opposite party no. 2 vehemently opposed above argument with this contention that there was huge corruption in the office of applicants, for which repeated complaint was being made by complainant, and no inquiry was got conducted, whereas documents regarding same were in the office of given section of the office concerned from where it may be taken and inquiry may be conducted, but no such inquiry was ever conducted and complainant was being victimized, wherefor above departmental enquiry was being constituted and proceeded, wherein complainant along with his colleague M.P. Tiwari, went for appearing in above enquiry. When this occurrence took place, door was bolted from inside and M.P. Tiwari was asked to remain outside from chamber, wherein he was assaulted and insulted by taking name of his caste and threat of dire consequences was extended, which was instantly complained to Department's officers as well as local authorities and police, but of no avail. Then a complaint was filed before Judicial Magistrate, where cognizance was taken and enquiry under Sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C. was got conducted, thereafter, prima facie evidence was found and impugned summoning order was passed against applicants, against which this application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed and it is with ulterior motive to get complainant victimized. Hence, this court in exercise of inherent jurisdiction is not to dwell in factual aspect. There was a medical paper, where injuries were found. Hence, this application be dismissed.

5. Learned A.G.A. has vehemently argued that in first line of complaint at para 2, it has been specifically mentioned that complainant was member of Scheduled Caste community and he was insulted and abused by accused persons because of being a member of Scheduled Caste community and place of occurrence was an office, which can never be held to be residential premises of accused persons. It was a public place. It can never be said to be not in public view. Accordingly, this application be dismissed.

6. Saving of inherent power of High Court, as given under Section 482 Cr.P.C, provides that nothing in this Code shall be deemed to limit or affect the inherent powers of the High Court to make such orders as may be necessary to give effect to any order under this Code, or to prevent abuse of the process of any Court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice. Meaning thereby this inherent power is with High Court (I) to make such order as may be necessary to give effect to any other order under this Code (II) to prevent abuse of the process of any Court (III) or otherwise to secure the ends of justice. But Apex Court in State of Andhra Pradesh v. Gaurishetty Mahesh, JT 2010 (6) SC 588: (2010) 6 SCALE 767: 2010 Cr. LJ 3844 has propounded that "While exercising jurisdiction under section 482 of the Code, the High Court would not ordinarily embark upon an enquiry whether the evidence in question is reliable or not or whether on a reasonable apprehension of it accusation would not be sustained. That is the function of the trial Judge/Court". In another subsequent Hamida v. Rashid, (2008) 1 SCC 474, hon'ble Apex Court propounded that "Ends of justice would be better served if valuable time of the Court is spent in hearing those appeals rather than entertaining petitions under Section 482 at an interlocutory stage which after filed with some oblique motive in order to circumvent the prescribed procedure, or to delay the trial which enable to win over the witness or may disinterested in giving evidence, ultimately resulting in miscarriage of Justice". In again another subsequent Monica Kumar v. State of Uttar Pradesh, (2008) 8 SCC 781, the Apex Court has propounded "Inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 has to be exercised sparingly, carefully and with caution and only when such exercise is justified by the tests specifically laid down in the section itself." While interpreting this jurisdiction of High Court Apex Court in Popular Muthiah v. State, Represented by Inspector of Police, (2006) 7 SCC 296 has propounded "High Court can exercise jurisdiction suo motu in the interest of justice. It can do so while exercising other jurisdictions such as appellate or revisional jurisdiction. No formal application for invoking inherent jurisdiction is necessary. Inherent jurisdiction can be exercised in respect of substantive as well as procedural matters. It can as well be exercised in respect of incidental or supplemental power irrespective of nature of proceedings".

7. Regarding prevention of abuse of process of Court, Apex Court in Dhanlakshmi v. R.Prasana Kumar, (1990) Cr LJ 320 (DB): AIR 1990 SC 494 has propounded "To prevent abuse of the process of the Court, High Court in exercise of its inherent powers under section 482 could quash the proceedings but there would be justification for interference only when the complaint did not disclose any offence or was frivolous vexatious or oppressive" as well as in State of Bihar v. Murad Ali Khan, (1989) Cr LJ 1005: AIR 1989 SC 1, Apex Court propounded "In exercising jurisdiction under Section 482 High Court would not embark upon an enquiry whether the allegations in the complaint are likely to be established by evidence or not".

8. Meaning thereby, exercise of inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is within the limits, propounded as above. But this provision under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is for ensuring end of justice by avoiding abuse of process of law and it is not a power creating section under Code of Criminal Procedure, rather it is an acknowledging power of High Court of Judicature for ensuring that no abuse of process of law by any criminal machinery is to be there and this Court is to see as to whether there is any abuse of process of law apparently on the face of record or in procedure.

9. In present case, the complaint is by an administrative inferior against administrative superior, admittedly, who is conducting a departmental enquiry against him and he had gone there to participate in above proceeding. The Enquiry Officer is to decide as to whether Assisting Officer is to be given to employee, who is delinquent employee in above inquiry or inquiry is to be conducted in camera in Chamber. Any Tom and Harry can never be permitted to come inside, wherein the enquiry is being conducted and to participate in above enquiry, rather if any Assisting Officer is to be taken by delinquent employee, he will have to move an application before Administrative Head or Enquiry Officer for appointing and permitting any Assisting Officer to that delinquent employee and, thereafter, that Assisting Officer may take part in above Administrative Enquiry. In present case, M.P. Tiwari in his statement, recorded under Section 202 Cr.P.C., has said that he went at the place of occurrence to say the justice. Neither he was appointed as Assisting Officer nor he was permitted to take part in enquiry, but he went to that place for saying justice. He was so social worker and so a person of securing cause of justice that without following the procedure, he present himself for saying justice, though he was asked to remain out and he remained out side. The door was locked form inside. It was a Chamber of the Enquiry Officer, where Presenting Officer and Enquiry Officer were present and it can never be said to be a public view. Even if, any occurrence took place at that place, it may never be said to be a public view and it has been verified by apex court, mentioned as above. Hence, the very ingredient of offence punishable under Section 3(1)(X) of the Act was missing. The second aspect is that complainant in his statement recorded under Section 200 Cr.P.C. has not said that he was insulted because of being a member of Scheduled Caste community by a persons, who were not member of Scheduled Caste community. This ingredient too was missing in the statement of complainant, recorded under Section 200 of Cr.P.C. Other two witnesses, who were examined were co-workers of the same Department and they were admittedly not inside the room, when this occurrence took place and how this occurrence took place, what was precipitation time and what resulted in this occurrence, were not witnessed by those witnesses. Hence, for the same occurrence, these superiors have lodged complaint with local authorities as well as Department Heads and for the same, this complaint was filed there. What was the precipitating point, could not be determined by those witnesses. Moreso, apex court in Vaijnath Kondiba Khandke vs State Of Maharashtra and Anr. AIR 2018 SC 2659, has propounded that while dealing with a matter, in which complaint or accusation has been lodged by administrative junior or employee against his Head of Office or administrative superior regarding their exploitation or harassment, the Court must take in mind that if such type of occurrence are being actually visualized, then it will be highly impossible for administrative superiors to take work from administrative juniors. There must be administrative authority of administrative superiors, then and then only, they will be in position to take work from junior employees and mere bald allegation of harassment and such type of exploitation are to be strictly analyzed with all care and caution. Hence, in present case, admittedly, applicants were Enquiry Officer and Presenting Officer. They were conducting a regular departmental enquiry against complainant. Meaning thereby, charge was framed and the employee complainant was charged employee. Meaning thereby, prima facie, he was delinquent employee, for which charge was framed. Preliminary inquiry stage was passed. Thereafter, departmental enquiry was being conducted and when this enquiry was conducted this fuss was created. Who created this and what was the precipitating point was to be visualized and examined by Magistrate before summoning applicants, but casually impugned order of summoning for offence punishable under Section 3(1)(X) of the Act was passed. On above facts and circumstances, as apparently offence under Section 3(1)(X) of the Act was not made out, on the basis of evidence collected in inquiry by Magistrate concerned, hence this application merits to be allowed in part.

10. The application is partly allowed. The summoning for offence punishable under Section 3(1)(X) of the Act is hereby quashed. For rest of the offences, the prayed relief is refused.

No. 630 of 2010 under Gangster Act.

7. On the other hand, learned A.G.A. as well as learned counsel for the informant have submitted that matter has been very well dealt with by another Bench of this Court in Rohit Singh vs. State of U.P. (2016) 95 ACC 350 and has submitted that validity of this section has been upheld by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Dharmendra Kirthal v. State of U.P. [(2013) 8 SCC 368. Hon'ble Apex Court observed as follows :

"32. The present provision is to be tested on the touchstone of the aforesaid constitutional principle. The provision clearly mandates that the trial under this Act of any offence by the Special Court shall have precedence and shall be concluded in preference to the trial in such other courts to achieve the said purpose. The legislature thought it appropriate to provide that the trial of such other case shall remain in abeyance. It is apt to note here that "any other case" against the accused in "any other court" does not include the Special Court. The emphasis is on speedy trial and not denial of it. The legislature has incorporated such a provision so that an accused does not face trial in two cases simultaneously and a case before the Special Court does not linger owing to clash of dates in trial. It is also worthy to note that the Special Court has been conferred jurisdiction under sub-section (1) of Section 8 of the Act to try any other offences with which the accused may, under any other law for the time being in force, have been charged and proceeded at the same trial."

8. Hon'ble Apex Court has also held in Shashi Gupta vs. State of U.P., in that case, Hon'ble Apex Court has stated as under :-

"We have seen the provisions of Sections 7 & 8 of the Gangsters Act. In our opinion, these provisions do not mean that if a case is already started under the provisions of the Indian Penal Code and has proceeded to some extent, then if a case under the Gangsters Act has been initiated on the same facts, then it must be transferred to the Special Court under the Gangsters Act. If this submissions is accepted then a large number of cases will be thus delayed and frustrated".

9. This issue was also dealt with by this Court in Mobin Iftikhar Zaidi v. State of U.P. (Application U/s 482 No. 27361 of 2011), in which it has been observed that, "The legislative intention was not that the proceedings of other offences must be kept in abeyance till conclusion of trial under the Gangsters Act."

10. Relevant part of the judgment is being reproduced below :-

"A perusal of the aforesaid provision reveals the legislative intent behind the said provision and its object was that the trial under the Gangsters Act should be given preference and the same should not get unduly delayed because of pendency of other cases in other courts. The legislative intention was not that the proceedings of other offences must be kept in abeyance till conclusion of trial under the Gangsters Act. Its intent was that the dates fixed in the other trials and in the case under the Gangsters Act should not clash together, in order to ensure that the trial under the Gangsters Act does not get unduly delayed or hampered with and reaches to its logical conclusion at the earliest. It can not be the intention of the legislature that if a person is required in other cases in crimes of such henious nature such as murder, dacoity, loot and rape etc, the trial of those offences should not proceed further till conclusion of trial under Gangsters Act. In view of the above, it is clear that the legislative intent is that the trial under the Gangsters Act need be given preference to other trial."

11. Learned counsel for the applicants contended that all the provision of Sections 7, 8 and 12 of the U.P. Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act have to be read together then Court should form an opinion.

12. Sections 7, 8 and 12 of U.P. Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act is being reproduced below:-

"7. Jurisdiction of Special Courts- (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code, were a Special Court has been constituted for any local area, every offence punishable under any provision of this Act or any rule made thereunder shall be triable only by the Special Court within whose local jurisdiction it was committed whether before or after the constitution of such special Court.

(2) All cases triable by a Special Court, which immediately before the constitution of such Special Court were pending before any Court, shall on creation of such Special Court having jurisdiction over such cases, stand transferred to it.

(3) Where it appears to any court in the course of any inquiry or trial in respect of any offence that the case is one which should be 'red by a Special Court constituted under this Act for the area in which such case has arisen, it shall transfer such case to such Special Court and thereupon such case shall be tried and disposed of by the Special Court in accordance with the provisions of this Act:

Provided that it shall be lawful for the Special Court to act on the evidence, if any, recorded by the Court in the case in the presence of the accused before the transfer of the case under this section:

Provided further that if the Special Court is of opinion that further examination of any of the witnesses whose evidence is already recorded in the case is necessary in the interest of justice, it may re-summon any such witness and after such further examination, cross-examination and re-examination, it any, as it may permit, the witness shall be discharged.

(4) The State Government may, if satisfied that it is necessary or expedient in the public interest so to do, transfer any case pending before a Special Court to another Special Court.

8. Power of Special courts with respect to other offences.- (1) When trying any offence punishable under this Act a Special Court may also try any other offence with which the accused may, under any other law for the time being in force, be charged at the same trial.

(2) If in the course of any trial under this Act of any offence, it is found that the accused has committed any other offence under this Act or any rule thereunder or under any other law, the Special Court may convict such person of such other offence and pass any sentence authorized by this Act or such rule or, as the case may be, such other law, for the punishment thereof."

12. From the above discussion, it emerges that intention of legislature behind enacting Section 12 is that case under the Gangsters Act should not be delayed. Other cases can go on but clash of dates has to be avoided and for this purpose 'kept in abeyance' would mean that if dates are common then case under the Gangsters Act will get precedence.

13. Learned A.G.A. as well as learned counsel for the informant have also submitted that Session Trial under Section 302 I.P.C. is pending since 2005 and sole purpose of the applicants is to get delayed the judgement of the Session Trial and this application has been filed only to get delayed the trial.

14. After perusal of the provisions of Gangsters Act, it emerges that the intention of the legislative behind enacting Section 12 is that case under the Gangsters Act should not be delayed. Other cases can go on but clash of dates has to be avoided and for this purpose 'kept in abeyance' would mean that if dates are common then case under the Gangsters Act will get precedence.

15. If cases under the IPC or other Acts have been the basis for slapping Gangsters Act, then all the cases can be tried by Special court. It will save valuable time of court apart from ridding prosecution of its burden of producing same evidence repeatedly in different courts.

16. Moreover, Section 7 enables Special court to utilize the evidence recorded during trial.

17. This Court is in respectful agreement with the view taken by Hon. Rajesh Dayal Khare, J. and with the view of Hon. Sudhir Kumar Saxena, J.

18. If the interpretation is given that till the conclusion of trial under the Gangsters Act all other cases have to be placed in abeyance, then a chaotic situation would arise and accused would manage a case pending under various other acts merely on the ground of pendency of case under Gangster Act.

19. In the present case Session Trial against the accused persons is pending since 2005 and they are just trying to get delayed the trial with the help of Section 12 of the Gangsters Act.

20. After considering all the submissions and the law laid down by this Court, this Court is of the opinion that the trial against the accused persons cannot be kept in abeyance till conclusion of the trial under the Gangsters Act. The only consideration for this Court is that there should not be any collusion of date so that cases under the Gangsters Act are not delayed.

21. In the case on hand, the report was lodged in the year 2005. The trial is pending since 2005 and the trial is about to conclude. The sole purpose of filing of this application is to get the trial delayed, which this Court will not permit.

22. The prayer claimed by the applicants is devoid of merits and is liable to be rejected and hence, it is accordingly dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs.Manju Rani Chauhan , J.)

1. The present 482 Cr.P.C. application has been filed to quash the charge sheet dated 26.03.2019 as well as cognizance and summoning order dated 12.04.2019 passed by learned Special Chief Judicial Magistrate, Allahabad in Criminal Case No.619 of 2019 (State Vs. Zulfekar Ali and others), under Sections 147, 148, 308, 452, 323, 504, 325 I.P.C., Police Station Mauaima, District Prayagraj, arising out of Case Crime No.272 of 2018, pending in the Court of Special Chief Judicial Magistrate, Allahabad.

2. Heard Sri Ronak Chaturvedi, learned counsel for the applicant, Sri Amit Singh Chauhan, learned A.G.A. and perused the record.

3. It has been contended by learned counsel for the applicant that the order dated 12.04.2019 contained in Annexure 2 to the application by which cognizance of the offence in the instant matter has been taken suffers from judicial non application of mind. It has further been submitted that the cognizance and summoning order have been passed in a mechanical manner, order being without reasons is bad in the eyes of laws as it reflects non application of mind. It has also been argued on behalf of the applicant that the perusal of record of investigation goes to show that the entire allegations made by opposite party no.2 are false and incorrect and the applicant has falsely been implicated in order to exert pressure upon him, hence entire proceeding is also liable to be quashed. Learned counsel for the applicant has argued that the impugned order dated 12.04.2019 whereby the court below has taken cognizance and has issued summons to the applicant, also reflects non application of mind as it is a single line order, not mentioning the offences or the name of the accused.

4. In support of his contention, learned counsel for the applicant has relied upon Application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. No.11232 of 2018 (Shakuntala Devi Vs. State of U.P. & others), decided on 25.07.2018, Sunil Bharti Mittal Vs. Central Bureau of Investigation reported in (2015) 4 SCC 609; Fakhruddin Ahmad Vs. State of Uttaranchal reported in (2008) 17 SCC 157.

5. On the other hand, learned A.G.A. has vehemently rebutted the contentions of the applicant's side by submitting that the order taking cognizance and issuing summons against accused is not required to have reasons, much more so when such order is passed upon a charge sheet filed by the Investigating Officer under Section 173 (2) of the Code of Criminal Procedure which itself contains the entire material collected by Investigating Officer, and hence, the impugned order is not amenable to challenge only on this score. According to learned A.G.A. the merit of the order is to be tested on the basis of the contents and allegations of FIR and material available on case diary or on the basis of any other requirement of law necessary to be fulfilled in order to pass order of cognizance and issuing summons against accused.

6. Learned A.G.A. has relied upon several judgments in support of his contention.

7. The Apex Court in the case of Kanti Bhadra Shah and another Vs. State of West Bengal (2000) 1 SCC 722 in para nos.11 and 12 has observed as under :-

"11. Even in cases instituted otherwise than on police report the Magistrate is required to write an order showing the reasons only if he is to discharge the accused. This is clear from Section 245. As per the first sub-section of Section 245, if a magistrate, after taking all the evidence considers that no case against the accused has been made out which if unrebutted would warrant his conviction, he shall discharge the accused. As per sub-section (2) the Magistrate is empowered to discharge the accused at any previous stage of the case if he considers the charge to be groundless. Under both sub-sections he is obliged to record his reasons for doing so. In this context it is pertinent to point out that even in a trial before a court of session, the judge is required to record reasons only if he decides to discharge the accused. (vide Section 227 of the Code). But if he is to frame the charge he may do so without recording his reasons for showing why he framed the charge.

12. If there is no legal requirement that the trial court should write an order showing the reasons for framing a charge, why should the already burdened trial Courts be further burdened with such an extra work. The time has reached to adopt all possible measures to expedite the the court procedures and to chalk out measures to avert all roadblocks causing avoidable delays. If a Magistrate is to write detailed orders at different stages merely because the counsel would address arguments at all stages, the snail paced progress of proceedings in trial courts would further be slowed down. We are coming across interlocutory orders of Magistrates and Sessions Judges running into several pages. We can appreciate if such a detailed order has been passed for culminating the proceedings before them. But it is quite unnecessary to write detailed orders at other stages, such as issuing process, remanding the accused to custody, framing of charges, passing over to next stages in the trial. It is a salutary guideline that when orders rejecting or granting bail are passed, the Court should avoid expressing one way or other on contentious issues, except in cases such as those falling within Section 37 of the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985."

8. The Apex Court in the case of Bhushan Kumar and another Vs. State (NCT of Delhi) and another, (2012) 5 SCC 424 has referred the case of Kanti Bhadra Shah's case as well as U.P. Pollution Control Board Vs. Mohan Meakins Ltd. & others (2000) 3 SCC 745 and observed in paragraph nos.12, 13, 14, 19 and 20, which is as follows :-

(12) A "summons" is a process issued by a Court calling upon a person to appear before a Magistrate. It is used for the purpose of notifying an individual of his legal obligation to appear before the Magistrate as a response to violation of law. In other words, the summons will announce to the person to whom it is directed that a legal proceeding has been started against that person and the date and time on which the person must appear in Court. A person who is summoned is legally bound to appear before the Court on the given date and time. Willful disobedience is liable to be punished under Section 174 IPC. It is a ground for contempt of court.

(13) S ection 204 of the Code does not mandate the Magistrate to explicitly state the reasons for issuance of summons. It clearly states that if in the opinion of a Magistrate taking cognizance of an offence, there is sufficient ground for proceeding, then the summons may be issued. This section mandates the Magistrate to form an opinion as to whether there exists a sufficient ground for summons to be issued but it is nowhere mentioned in the section that the explicit narration of the same is mandatory, meaning thereby that it is not a pre-requisite for deciding the validity of the summons issued.

(14) Time and again it has been stated by this Court that the summoning order under Section 204 of the Code requires no explicit reasons to be stated because it is imperative that the Magistrate must have taken notice of the accusations and applied his mind to the allegations made in the police report and the materials filed therewith.

(15) .....

(17) .....

(18) .....

(19) This being the settled legal position, the order passed by the Magistrate could not be faulted with only on the ground that the summoning order was not a reasoned order.

(20) It is inherent in Section 251 of the Code that when an accused appears before the trial Court pursuant to summons issued under Section 204 of the Code in a summons trial case, it is the bounden duty of the trial Court to carefully go through the allegations made in the charge sheet or complaint and consider the evidence to come to a conclusion whether or not, commission of any offence is disclosed and if the answer is in the affirmative, the Magistrate shall explain the substance of the accusation to the accused and ask him whether he pleads guilty otherwise, he is bound to discharge the accused as per Section 239 of the Code."

9. The case of Fakhruddin (supra) upon which the learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance is of no help to him as the Apex Court in the case of Fakhruddin (supra) was examining the validity of the order passed by Uttaranchal High Court by which it had declined to quash the charge sheet on the ground that it had no power to look into the documents and papers which were filed along with charge sheet for the purpose of considering the prayer for quashing of prosecution, and the Apex Court, while disagreeing with the reasons spelt out by the High Court for refusing to quash the charge sheet set aside the order of the Uttaranchal High Court and remitted the matter back to the High Court for deciding the prayer for quashing of prosecution afresh in accordance with law.

10. The other case, i.e. Shakuntala Devi (supra) which has been relied upon by learned counsel for the applicant is not applicable in the present case as in that case earlier a detailed order was filed containing reasons not to accept the charge sheet as filed. Certain specific observations were made in that order to take notice of contradictions in the statements recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. Then, prima facie, it was observed that the investigation had not been properly conducted. A hope was also expressed that if a proper investigation were conducted, it may be possible to collect essential evidence. Consequently, further investigation was directed, after which cognizance order was passed.

11. In view of the discussions made hereinabove, I think that there is no legal requirement that the trial court should write the order showing reasons for taking cognizance or for framing of charge after going through the several decisions of Hon'ble the Apex Court as well as this Court on subject in issue, I am of the view that once the Magistrate takes cognizance of an offence either without discussing what are the reasons behind it, it shall be presumed that on the basis of material available before him he is satisfied that there is sufficient material for taking cognizance and if he is satisfied with those materials for taking cognizance, the detail discussion of those materials by the learned Magistrate is not required. Further once he issues process, even without writing word "cognizance is taken", it is presumed that he has taken cognizance, the writing of word "cognizance is taken" is not necessary. The reason is that by issuance of process he proceeds with the case and the accused who has been summoned for trial have sufficient opportunity to defend himself at the appropriate stage provided in code. In response of issuance of process/summons it is not open for the accused to challenge the summoning order on the ground that no cognizance has been taken or no satisfaction has been shown or there is no detail discussion of the material available rather he has to follow the next step of the process.

12. The prayer for quashing the order dated 12.04.2019 is refused as I do not see any abuse of the court's process either.

13. It is argued that the co-accused Shahjad Ali @ Babloo and others have been granted relief of bail by a co-ordinate Bench of this Court vide order dated 01.11.2019 passed in Application u/s 482 No.39127 of 2019. The same is reproduced hereinunder :-

"Heard learned counsel for the applicants and learned A.G.A. for the State.

The present 482 Cr.P.C. application has been filed to quash the charge sheet dated 26.3.2019 as well as the cognizance order dated 18.4.2019 and the entire proceedings of Criminal Case No. 619 of 2019, arising out of Case Crime No. 0272 of 2018, under Sections-147, 148, 308, 452, 323, 325, 504 I.P.C., Police Station- Mau Aima , District- Prayagraj, pending in the court of Special Chief Judicial Magistrate, Allahabad.

The contention of learned counsel for the applicants is that no offence against the applicants is disclosed and the present prosecution has been instituted with a malafide intention for the purpose of causing harassment. He pointed out certain documents and statements in support of his contention. At this stage, the argument raised by learned counsel for the applicants involves factual disputes and appraisal of evidence.

From the perusal of the material on record and looking into the facts of the case at this stage it cannot be said that no offence is made out against the applicants at this stage. All the submissions made at the bar, relate to the disputed questions of fact, which cannot be adjudicated upon by this Court under Section 482 Cr.P.C. At this stage only prima facie case is to be seen in the light of the law laid down by Supreme Court in cases of R.P. Kapur Vs. State of Punjab, A.I.R. 1960 S.C. 866, State of Haryana Vs. Bhajan Lal, 1992 SCC (Cr.) 426, State of Bihar Vs. P.P.Sharma, 1992 SCC (Cr.) 192 and lastly Zandu Pharmaceutical Works Ltd. Vs. Mohd. Saraful Haq and another (Para-10) 2005 SCC (Cr.) 283.

The prayer for quashing the entire proceeding of the aforesaid case is refused.

However, in view of the entirety of facts and circumstances of the case, it is directed that in case the applicants appear and surrender before the court below within 60 days from today and apply for bail, their prayer for bail shall be considered and decided in view of the settled law laid by this Court in the case of Amrawati and another Vs. State of U.P. reported in 2004 (57) ALR 290 as well as judgement passed by Hon'ble Apex Court reported in 2009 (3) ADJ 322 (SC) Lal Kamlendra Pratap Singh Vs. State of U.P.

With the aforesaid directions, this application is finally disposed of.

Till then no coercive action shall be taken against the applicants.

However, in case, the applicants do not appears before the court below within the aforesaid period, coercive action shall be taken against them.

It is made clear that the applicants will not be granted any further time by this Court for surrendering before the court below as directed above."

14. However, it is observed that if the bail has not been obtained as yet, the accused may appear before the court below and apply for bail within two months from today. The court below shall make an endeavour to decide the bail application on the same day, if possible, keeping in view the observations made by the Court in the Full Bench decision of Amrawati and another Vs. State of U.P. 2004 (57) ALR 290 and also in view of the decision given by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Lal Kamlendra Pratap Singh Vs. State of U.P. 2009 (3) ADJ 322 (SC).

15. In the aforesaid period or till the date of appearance of the accused in the court below, whichever is earlier, no coercive measures shall be taken or given effect to.

16. With the aforesaid observations, this application is finally disposed off.

Criminal law-Code of Criminal Procedure - Section 311-Application to recall of PW-2 for cross-examination rejected-for three years prosecution did not adduced any evidence-after three years statement recorded and on same day opportunity to cross examination closed due to non pressence of lawyer-impugned order quashed-Application allowed. (E-9)

Held, Considering the above, I am of the view that if the defence is not given proper opportunity to cross-examine PW-2-prosecutrix, who is the victim of the case, it will cause a serious prejudice to defence case as her testimony would go unrebutted. It is a fundamental right of an accused to have fair trial as envisaged under Article 21 of the Constitution and if the impugned order is not quashed then the main object of affording fair trial to accused in the spirit of life and liberty shall be greatly jeopardized. The powers to recall a witness under Section 311 Cr.P.C. is a very wide and could be exercised for the just decision of a case. The Section 311 Cr.P.C. empowers the Courts to recall material witness at any stage of enquiry or trial, if his/her evidence appears to it to be essential to the arrival at the just decision of a case. 2. The Secretary, Department of Horticulture, Chandigarh & ors. Vs. Raghu Raj AIR 2009 SC 514

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajul Bhargava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Vinay Kumar Advocate, Sri S.K. Sharma Advocate, learned counsels for the applicant, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the materials and documents on record.

2. The present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C has been filed with a prayer to quash the order dated 04.10.2019 passed by the learned Special Judge (POCSO)/Additional Session Judge, Kanpur Nagar, in Session trial No. 9 of 2013, arising out of Case Crime No. 466 of 2013, under Sections 376, 504, 506, 406 I.P.C., P.S. Kalyanpur, District- Kanpur Nagar, whereby the application under Section 311 Cr.P.C filed by the applicant to recall PW-2, prosecutrix for cross-examination has been dismissed.

3. The applicant is an accused under Sections 376, 504, 506 and 406 I.P.C, presently facing trial. The statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C of PW-2, prosecutrix was recorded on 02.11.2015 and thereafter on account of non-presence of the prosecutrix and mostly at the instance of prosecution; the case got continuously adjourned from 19.12.2015 to 06.10.2018. Thereafter on 03.11.2018 the prosecution proved the statement of the prosecutrix, however, since the counsel of the applicant was not present for cross-examination neither any adjournment application was filed by the defence counsel, as such the concerned court below closed the opportunity of defence to cross-examine the PW-2, prosecutrix vide same order dated 03.11.2018. Subsequently, on 20.12.2018 an application under Section 311 Cr.P.C. was filed, for recall of PW-2 for cross-examination, which has been rejected under the impugned order dated 04.10.2019.

4. It has been argued by learned counsel for the applicant that the applicant and other accused are facing a grave charge of commission of rape and the court below denied the opportunity of cross-examination of the star witness, thus, the testimony of the prosecutrix would remain unrebutted creating grave injustice and prejudice to the applicant. It is further argued that in fact the applicant has been attending the court regularly barring few occasions as is evident from the order-sheet, however, the record would demonstrate that the prosecution itself was proceeding in a lackadaisical manner and on the date when impugned order was passed there was some negligence and remissness on the part of his lawyer for which the applicant cannot be made to suffer and therefore the closure of an opportunity to cross-examine by the trial court that the defence counsel willingly did not appear to cross-examine PW-2, prosecutrix is unfounded. The opportunity to recall PW-2 was moved on 20.11.2018 itself but the same reamin pending and was decided by the impugned order dated 4.10.2019.

5. After carefully perusing the order-sheet on record, I find that the examination-in-chief of the prosecutrix, PW-2 was recorded on 2.11.2015, however, as the statement recorded under Section 164 Cr.P.C. was not on record and the same could not be proved the prosecution sought adjournment and on the request of the prosecution the case was adjourned. Order-sheet also reflects that for about three years the prosecution did not adduce any evidence and produced the prosecutrix on 3.11.2018. It appears that her statement recorded under Section 164 Cr.P.C. was proved by the prosecution and on the very same day as the counsel for the applicant did not appear for cross-examination the court closed the opportunity to cross-examine the prosecutrix. Learned counsel has further argued that till date the evidence of prosecution is going on and therefore the applicant may be provided at least an opportunity to cross-examine PW-2, prosecutrix for the just decision of the case and set-aside the impugned order.

6. In my considered opinion, not affording an opportunity, particularly in view of the fact that the lawyer of the applicant was not available to cross-examine the prosecutrix before the concerned Court below on the date fixed, is not justified.

7. In the case of Rafiq and others vs. Munshilal and others AIR 1981 SC 1400, the Hon'ble Supreme Court dealt with a matter where negligence on part of a counsel had caused adverse consequences to the litigant. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in para 3 of the Judgement, held as under: -

"3.The disturbing feature of the case is that under our present adversary legal system where the parties generally appear through their advocates, the obligation of the parties is to select his advocate, brief him, pay the fees demanded by him and then trust the learned advocate to do the rest of the things. The party may be a villager or may belong to a rural area and may have no knowledge of the court's procedure. After engaging a lawyer, the party may remain supremely confident that the lawyer will look after his interest. At the time of the hearing of the appeal, the personal appearance of the party is not only not required but hardly useful. Therefore, the party having done everything in his power to effectively participate in the proceedings can rest assured that he has neither to go to the High Court to inquire as to what is happening in the High Court with regard to his appeal nor is he to act as a watchdog of the advocate that the latter appears in the matter when it is listed. It is no part of his job. Mr. A.K. Sanghi stated that a practice has grown up in the High Court of Allahabad amongst the lawyers that they remain absent when they do not like a particular Bench. Maybe he is better informed on this matter. Ignorance in this behalf is our bliss. Even if we do not put our seal of imprimatur on the alleged practice by dismissing this matter which may discourage such a tendency, would it not bring justice delivery system into disrepute. What is the fault of the party who having done everything in his power and expected of him would suffer because of the default of his advocate. If we reject this appeal, as Mr. A.K. Sanghi invited us to do, the only one who would suffer would not be the lawyer who did not appear but the party whose interest he represented. The problem that agitates us is whether it is proper that the party should suffer for the inaction, deliberate omission, or misdemeanour of his agent. The answer obviously is in the negative. May be that the learned advocate absented himself deliberately or intentionally. We have no material for ascertaining that aspect of the matter. We say nothing more on that aspect of the matter. However, we cannot be a party to an innocent party suffering injustice merely because his chosen advocate defaulted. Therefore, we allow this appeal, set aside the order of the High Court both dismissing the appeal and refusing to recall that order. We direct that the appeal be restored to its original number in the High Court and be disposed of according to law."

8. Likewise, in the case of The Secretary, Department of Horticulture, Chandigarh and Ors. Vs. Raghu Raj AIR 2009 SC 514, the Hon'ble Apex Court considered the responsibility of a counsel and consequences of non-appearance of a counsel or any default on part of a counsel on a litigant. Such default of counsel cannot visit the party with any penal consequences. The Hon'ble Apex Court in para 27 and 28 of the Judgement, held as under: -

"27. Now, it cannot be gainsaid that an advocate has no right to remain absent from the Court when the case of his client comes up for hearing. He is duty bound to attend the case in Court or to make an alternative arrangement. Non-appearance in Court without `sufficient cause' cannot be excused. Such absence is not only unfair to the client of the advocate but also unfair and discourteous to the Court and can never be countenanced.

28. At the same time, however, when a party engages an advocate who is expected to appear at the time of hearing but fails to so appear, normally, a party should not suffer on account of default or non-appearance of the advocate. "

9. It is further pertinent to note here that in view of the fact that the applicant is being tried for a heinous offence under Section 376 I.P.C., as such the cross-examination of PW-2, who is the victim, is absolutely essential to arrive at just decision of the case and the impugned order rejecting the applicant's application under Section 311 Cr.P.C.

10. Considering the above, I am of the view that if the defence is not given proper opportunity to cross-examine PW-2-prosecutrix, who is the victim of the case, it will cause a serious prejudice to defence case as her testimony would go unrebutted. It is a fundamental right of an accused to have fair trial as envisaged under Article 21 of the Constitution and if the impugned order is not quashed then the main object of affording fair trial to accused in the spirit of life and liberty shall be greatly jeopardized. The powers to recall a witness under Section 311 Cr.P.C. is a very wide and could be exercised for the just decision of a case. The Section 311 Cr.P.C. empowers the Courts to recall material witness at any stage of enquiry or trial, if his/her evidence appears to it to be essential to the arrival at the just decision of a case.

11. Considering the facts and circumstances of the case, I am of the view that the ends of justice would be served, if an opportunity is granted to the applicant to cross-examine PW-2-prosecutrix. In view of it, the learned Judge is directed to recall PW-2, prosecutrix by fixing a date within three weeks and ensure her presence through concerned police station. It is made clear that on appearance of PW-2, prosecutrix, the defence shall positively cross-examine her and no further opportunity shall be given, unless the trial court under some exigency deems it fit to adjourn the case for her cross-examination.

12. In view of aforesaid, the impugned order dated 04.10.2019 cannot be sustained and is hereby quashed and the application is accordingly allowed.

13. However, considering the long pendency of trial, the trial Court is hereby directed to expedite the aforesaid trial and conclude the same in accordance with law, considering the provisions of Section 309 Cr.P.C, without granting unnecessary adjournments to either of the parties as expeditiously as possible preferably within a period of four months from the date of production of a certified copy of this Order, if there is no legal impediment.

14. Office is directed to communicate the order to the court concerned forthwith.

6. St. of Bihar v. Murad Ali Khan, (1989) Cr LJ 1005: AIR 1989 SC 1

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Krishna Gautam, J.)

1. This Application, under Section 482 of Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (Hereinafter in short referred as 'Cr.P.C.'), has been filed by Anand Prakash Singh, applicant, with a prayer for setting aside impugned, dated 15.2.2019, passed by the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court no.7, Varanasi, in Case No.1571 of 2013, State vs. Anand Prakash Singh, of Police Station-Adampura, District Varanasi, pending in the court of Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, court no.7, Varanasi, whereby, Application, filed under Section 311 of Cr.P.C., by the applicant, with a prayer for re-examining PW-1, has been rejected.

2. Learned counsel for applicant argued that an application, under Section 311 of Cr.P.C., was moved before the Trial court, with a prayer for giving an opportunity to learned counsel for defence for questioning PW-1 over photographs, which could not be filed on record by the erstwhile counsel, under his wrong advise, and after engagement of present counsel, it was thought that above witness be cross-examined over those photographs. Witness, Varsha Singh, is there in those photographs and this Application was rejected by Trial court, which was an abuse of process of law. Hence, this Application, with above prayer, invoking inherent jurisdiction of this Court, under Section 482 of Cr.P.C.

3. Learned AGA, representing State of U.P., has vehemently opposed this Application.

4. From very perusal of the Application, moved, under Section 311 of Cr.P.C., before Trial court, it is apparent that on the date, i.e., 5.2.2018, some photographs were said to have been filed through list before the court, concerned, and prosecution witness no.1 could not be cross-examined over those photographs because of non-filing of the same before Trial court by the erstwhile counsel owning to his unknown reasons, whereas, those photographs were of this depiction that witness, PW-1, was present therein and it will belie entire case of prosecution. Hence, in the interest of justice, witness be summoned.

5. It was objected by other side with this contention that those photographs were result of tricky photography and it was neither with any certificate, certifying same to be original one nor any negative of the same nor were placed on record prior to above date of filing of the application, rather, those tricky photographs were got fabricated, only with a view to linger the proceeding.

6. Learned Trial court, after hearing learned counsel for both sides, rejected the application, while passing impugned order.

7. Admittedly, it was never said that those photographs could not be placed on record, even after, best exercise, made by the applicant, i.e., those documents were not filed till above date of Application, hence, no question arises for any cross-examination over those photographs and once it were opposed to be a tricky photographs and manufactured by the applicant, with a view to lingering proceeding, then, very genesis and admissibility of above photographs were challenged and unless those photographs were admitted on record, after satisfying ingredients by proving by applicant, by evidence of the person, who prepared those photographs and these ingredients were not part of record, and as such they are not admitted and no question of taking those photographs on record arises.

8. Moreso, Section 311 of Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, provides, as under:

"311. Power to summon material witness, or examine person present.-Any Court may, at any stage of any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code, summon any person as a witness, or examine any person in attendance, though not summoned as a witness, or recall and re-examine any person already examined; and the Court shall summon and examine or recall and re-examine any such person if his evidence appears to it to be essential to the just decision of the case."

9. Thus, end of justice is a sine qua non for entertaining an application, under Section 311 of Cr.P.C. This Section is an enabling Section, empowering the court for summoning and re-examining a witness, who had already been examined or to be examined or to be summoned for examination, in the course of ends of justice, for reaching just judicial making by the court and in present case, learned Magistrate, by a detailed order, had written those ingredients and concluded that there was no ground for re-examining of PW-1, with regard to above photographs.

10. This Court, in exercise of inherent jurisdiction, conferred upon it by Section 482 of Cr.P.C, is not to embark upon factual matrix because it may prejudice fair trial. On the ground of law, too, the impugned order is well intact and has been passed in accordance with provisions of law and precedents on the subject and as such does not call for any interference by this Court, in exercise of inherent jurisdiction.

11. Apex Court, in State of Andhra Pradesh v. Gaurishetty Mahesh, JT 2010 (6) SC 588: (2010) 6 SCALE 767: 2010 Cr. LJ 3844, has propounded that "While exercising jurisdiction under section 482 of the Code, the High Court would not ordinarily embark upon an enquiry whether the evidence in question is reliable or not or whether on a reasonable apprehension of it accusation would not be sustained. That is the function of the trial Judge/Court". In another subsequent judgment, in the case of Hamida v. Rashid, (2008) 1 SCC 474, Hon'ble Apex Court propounded that "Ends of justice would be better served if valuable time of the Court is spent in hearing those appeals rather than entertaining petitions under Section 482 at an interlocutory stage which after filed with some oblique motive in order to circumvent the prescribed procedure, or to delay the trial which enable to win over the witness or may disinterested in giving evidence, ultimately resulting in miscarriage of Justice". In again yet another judgment, in the case of Monica Kumar v. State of Uttar Pradesh, (2008) 8 SCC 781, the Apex Court has propounded "Inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 has to be exercised sparingly, carefully and with caution and only when such exercise is justified by the tests specifically laid down in the section itself." While interpreting this jurisdiction of High Court Apex Court, in the case of Popular Muthiah v. State, Represented by Inspector of Police, (2006) 7 SCC 296, has propounded "High Court can exercise jurisdiction suo motu in the interest of justice. It can do so while exercising other jurisdictions such as appellate or revisional jurisdiction. No formal application for invoking inherent jurisdiction is necessary. Inherent jurisdiction can be exercised in respect of substantive as well as procedural matters. It can as well be exercised in respect of incidental or supplemental power irrespective of nature of proceedings".

12. Regarding prevention of abuse of process of Court, Apex Court, in the case of Dhanlakshmi v. R.Prasana Kumar, (1990) Cr LJ 320 (DB): AIR 1990 SC 494, has propounded "To prevent abuse of the process of the Court, High Court, in exercise of its inherent powers under section 482, could quash the proceedings, but, there would be justification for interference only when the complaint did not disclose any offence or was frivolous vexatious or oppressive" as well as in the case of State of Bihar v. Murad Ali Khan, (1989) Cr LJ 1005: AIR 1989 SC 1, Apex Court propounded "In exercising jurisdiction under Section 482 High Court would not embark upon an enquiry whether the allegations in the complaint are likely to be established by evidence or not".

13. Meaning thereby, exercise of inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is within the limits, propounded as above.

14. In view of what has been discussed, hereinabove, this Application, being devoid of merits, merits dismissal and it stands dismissed as such.

1. Heard Sri Pramod Kumar Saxena, learned counsel for the applicant and Mr. Amit Singh Chauhan and Mr. Prashant Kumar, learned A.G.As. for the State.

2. Learned counsel for the applicant and the learned A.G.A. agree that the present application may be disposed of at this stage without calling for further affidavits in view of the order proposed to be passed today.

3. By means of this 482 Cr.P.C. application, the applicant has questioned summoning order dated 7th May, 2019 passed by the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Jalaun in Complaint Case No.1277 of 2019 (Sm. Kamla Devi Vs. Ranjit), under Section 138 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881 (hereinafter referred to as the "N.I. Act"), Police Station-Kotwali Orai, District-Jalaun, whereby the applicant has been summoned. The applicant also seeks for quashing of the order dated 24th October, 2019 passed by the Sessions Judge, Jalaun in Criminal Revision No. 66 of 2019, whereby the revision filed by the applicant against the summoning order dated 7th May, 2019, has been dismissed.

4. The facts, as borne out from the records of the present application, are as follows:

The complainant/opposite party no.2 and applicant are relatives, as the applicant is son-in-law of brother of the complainant/opposite party no.2. In month of April, 2016, being the relative of the complainant, the applicant had taken a loan of Rs. 1,90,000/- from the complainant for purchasing of tractor and installation of tube-well on his field, on the assurance that he would repay the same within a year. After expiry of the aforesaid period, when the complainant requested the applicant to return the aforesaid money, he deferred the same. When the complainant exerted pressure upon the applicant to repay the same, he had given a cheque no. 806369 of Vijaya Bank for a sum of Rs. 1,90,000/- to the complainant on 15th January, 2019. On the same day, the complainant has presented the same before the Central Bank of India, where her saving bank account is maintained, for encashment, but the same has been returned to the complainant on 19th January, along with return memo that there was no sufficient balance in the account of the applicant. Thereafter since the applicant was the relative, opposite party no.2/complainant did not want to take any legal action against him, hence she made all efforts to reconcile the matter but all went in vain. Thereafter the complainant/opposite party no.2 sent a legal notice to the applicant through her advocate on 6th February, 2019 within 15 days of the receipt of return memo, which has been served upon him on 9th February, 2019. The applicant instead of repaying the loan amount of complainant, has sent a reply to the legal notice sent by opposite party no.2 on 5th March, 2019. Hence, the present complaint has been filed by the complainant/opposite party no.2. After registration of the said complaint case, impugned summoning order has been passed against the applicant.

5. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that the applicant is self-employed and driving E-Rikshaw for his livelihood in New Delhi and its surrounding area for the last five years. Opposite party no.2/complainant is sister of father-in-law of the brother of the applicant, namely, Dharmendra. The allegations made in the complaint case that the applicant has taken loan of Rs. 1,90,000/- from the complainant for purchasing tractor and installation of tube-well on his field, is absolutely false and fictitious as in the year 2016, the applicant was living in New Delhi, where he was driving E-Rickshaw for his livelihood. It is further submitted that the applicant had never given any cheque of Rs. 1,90,000/- to the complainant/opposite party no.2 for repayment of loan taken by him. He was unaware of any conspiracy which was being hatched by opposite party no.2 or her sons. After receiving legal notice dated 6th February, 2019 sent by the Advocate of complainant about the loan taken, dishonour of cheque and demand of payment, he came to know that some conspiracy is going on against him and he tried to search his cheque book and found that the same was missing. On 28th February, 2019, the applicant informed the concerned Branch of the Bank about his missing cheques and stopping of payment from the said account. It is further submitted that being close relatives, sons of the complainant, namely, Sandeep, Jitendra and Kuldeep, came to Delhi and resided in the room of the applicant in November, 2018 and they stole the cheque book of the applicant and by making his forged signatures, they cooked up a false and frivolous story. It is further submitted that the applicant was not engaged in agriculture for which he had to take any loan. His father and two elder brothers are engaged in agriculture. When he came to know that Sandeep son of opposite party no.2 had stolen his cheque book and forged his signatures on one leaf and deposited in the account of opposite party no.2 at Orai as conspired, the applicant gave reply to the legal notice sent by opposite party no.2 through her Advocate on 5th March, 2019. It is further submitted that after getting reply of notice, opposite party no.2 instead of contacting the applicant and clarifying the matter, straightway filed the present complaint case against him on 19th March, 2019 without enclosing copy of the reply of applicant. The concerned Magistrate, without application of judicial mind, took congizance and summoned the applicant on 7th May, 2019. Since the applicant was residing in Delhi, he had no knowledge about the summoning order issued against him and could not appear before the court below, the bailable warrant has been issued against him. It is against the summoning order dated 7th May, 2019, applicant has preferred Criminal Revision No. 66 of 2019, which has also been dismissed by the District and Sessions Judge, Jalaun at Orai vide order dated 24th October, 2019. The revisional court has also committed error in confirming the summoning order. It is further submitted that on 20th September, 2019 the applicant has also tried to lodge a first information report against the complainant and her sons for theft, forgery and cheating and when the same has not been lodged, he moved a complaint before the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Jalaun which was registered as Complaint Case No. 5549 of 2019. It is further submitted that the complaint/opposite party no.2 concealed the facts mentioned in the reply given by the applicant to the legal notice dated 6th February, 2019, in which he had taken a plea that the cheque has been stolen and the signature appended on he said cheque was forged. Complainant has also not attached copy of the said reply along with the complaint. It is also submitted that in the complaint, the complainant/opposite party no.2 did not disclose that by what mode, before whom and at which place, the loan was given, as it is not given in the normal course of business. Such amount is legally not recoverable debt/loan as per Section 138 N.I. Act, hence no offence will be constituted if the cheque is dishonored on the ground of stolen and forged cheque. It is further submitted that the concerned Magistrate has acted in mechanical manner while passing the summoning order dated 7th May, 2019 and did not apply his judicial mind, as it was not a case of business transaction but it is case of hatched conspiracy between near relations. No details of loan, witnesses and cheque have been disclosed in the complaint which makes the whole case very flimsy and doubtful. In support of his plea, the learned counsel for the applicant has commended this Court to the following decisions of the Apex Court:

1.Raj Kumar Khurana Vs. State of (NCT of Delhi) & Another reported in (2009) 6 SCC 72;

2. S.P. Chengalvaraya Naidu (dead) by L.Rs. Appellants Vs. Jagannath (dead) by L.Rs. & other Respondents, reported in AIR 1994 SC 853; and

6. Learned counsel for the applicants, therefore, submitted that the present criminal proceedings initiated against the applicants are not only malicious but also amount to an abuse of the process of the Court. On the cumulative strength of the aforesaid submissions, it is submitted by learned counsel for the applicants that the proceedings of the above mentioned complaint case are liable to be quashed by this Court.

7. Per contra, Mr. Chauhan learned counsel for the State has opposed the submissions made by the learned counsel for the applicant by contending that there is no illegality or infirmity in the order of summoning of the applicant passed by the concerned Magistrate, as also in the order affirming the same passed by the revisional court. It is further submitted that the submissions made by the learned counsel for the applicant that stolen cheques cannot be a basis of constituting an offence of Section 138 of N.I. Act is liable to be rejected on the ground that it is not a case of fraud, conspiracy or stealing of cheques. As per the own case of the applicant, It is only after receiving legal notice sent by opposite party no.2 through her Advocate, he made an application before the Bank about missing of cheques and stopping of his account only on 28th February, 2019 and thereafter he went to concerned Police Station for lodging of the first information report, but the same has not been lodged and ultimately he filed a complaint thereafter. The said step has only been taken to build up his case of fraud, conspiracy and stealing of cheque. It is also submitted that the plea taken on behalf of the applicant that the signature appended on the cheque is not of the applicant, the same is forged and fabricated, which have been committed by opposite party no.2 and her sons, is also liable to be rejected on the ground that after presentation of the cheque in question before the Bank for encashment by opposite party no.2, the same has been dishonoured and returned on 19th January, 2019 with a endorsement that there is no sufficient balance in the account of the applicant and not with an endorsement that the signature is different. The concerned Magistrate on the basis of materials and evidence produced before him has rightly passed the order summoning the applicant. At the initial stage, the truth, veracity and effect of the evidence which the prosecutor adduced cannot be meticulously judged, nor is any weight to be attached to the probable defence of the accused. It is not obligatory for the concerned Magistrate at that stage to consider in any detail and weigh in a sensitive balance whether the facts, if proved, would be incompatible with the innocence of the accused or not. At that stage, the concerned Magistrate is not to see whether there is sufficient ground for conviction of the accused or whether the trial is sure to end in his conviction. Strong suspicion against the accused, if the matter remains in the region of suspicion, cannot take the place of proof of his guilt at the conclusion of the trial. But at the initial stage if there is a strong suspicion which leads the court to think that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence then it is not open to the concerned Magistrate to say that there is no sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused. It is further submitted that the revisional court has also not committed any error in affirming the order of the concerned Magistrate summoning the applicant. It is further submitted that the case laws as cited by the learned counsel for the applicant are not applicable in the facts of the present case. On the cumulative strength of the aforesaid, learned A.G.A. for the State submits that the present application is liable to be dismissed.

8. I have considered the submissions made by the learned counsel for the applicants and have gone through the records of the present application.

9. Before expressing any opinion on the merits of the case set up by both the parties, it would be worthwhile to reproduce Sections 118, 138 and 139 of the Negotiable Instrument Act, which are quoted herein-below:

"118. Presumptions as to negotiable instruments. --Until the contrary is proved, the following presumptions shall be made:--

(a) of consideration --that every negotiable instrument was made or drawn for consideration, and that every such instrument, when it has been accepted, indorsed, negotiated or transferred, was accepted, indorsed, negotiated or transferred for consideration;

(b) as to date --that every negotiable instrument bearing a date was made or drawn on such date;

(c) as to time of acceptance --that every accepted bill of exchange was accepted within a reasonable time after its date and before its maturity;

(d) as to time of transfer --that every transfer of a negotiable instrument was made before its maturity;

(e) as to order of indorsements --that the indorsements appearing upon a negotiable instrument were made in the order in which they appear thereon;

(f) as to stamps --that a lost promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque was duly stamped;

(g) that holder is a holder in due course --that the holder of a negotiable instrument is a holder in due course:

Provided that, where the instrument has been obtained from its lawful owner, or from any person in lawful custody thereof, by means of an offence or fraud, or has been obtained from the maker or acceptor thereof by means of an offence or fraud, or for unlawful consideration, the burden of proving that the holder is a holder in due course lies upon him.

138. Dishonour of cheque for insufficiency, etc., of funds in the account. -- Where any cheque drawn by a person on an account maintained by him with a banker for payment of any amount of money to another person from out of that account for the discharge, in whole or in part, of any debt or other liability, is returned by the bank unpaid, either because of the amount of money standing to the credit of that account is insufficient to honour the cheque or that it exceeds the amount arranged to be paid from that account by an agreement made* with that bank, such person shall be deemed to have committed an offence and shall, without prejudice to any other provisions of this Act, be punished with imprisonment for 19 [a term which may be extended to two years], or with fine which may extend to twice the amount of the cheque, or with both: Provided that nothing contained in this section shall apply unless--

(a) the cheque has been presented to the bank within a period of six months from the date on which it is drawn or within the period of its validity, whichever is earlier;

(b) the payee or the holder in due course of the cheque, as the case may be, makes a demand for the payment of the said amount of money by giving a notice in writing, to the drawer of the cheque, 20 [within thirty days] of the receipt of information by him from the bank regarding the return of the cheque as unpaid; and

(c) the drawer of such cheque fails to make the payment of the said amount of money to the payee or, as the case may be, to the holder in due course of the cheque, within fifteen days of the receipt of the said notice.

Explanation.-- For the purposes of this section, "debt or other liability" means a legally enforceable debt or other liability.]

139. Presumption in favour of holder.--It shall be presumed, unless the contrary is proved, that the holder of a cheque received the cheque of the nature referred to in section 138 for the discharge, in whole or in part, of any debt or other liability."*

10. From the above, it is manifestly clear that a dishonour would constitute an offence only if the cheque is returned by the bank "unpaid' either because the amount of money standing to the credit of the drawer's account is insufficient to honour the cheque or that the amount exceeds the amount arranged to be paid from that account by an agreement with that bank. Now, for an offence under Section 138 NI Act, it is essential that the cheque must have been issued in discharge of legal debt or liability by accused on an account maintained by him with a bank and on presentation of such cheque for encashment within its period of validity, the cheque must have been returned unpaid. The payee of the cheque must have issued legal notice of demand within 30 days from the receipt of the information by him from the bank regarding such dishonor and where the drawer of the cheque fails to make the payment within 15 days of the receipt of the aforesaid legal demand notice, cause of action under Section 138 NI Act arises.

11. From the Chapter XVII comprising Sections 138 to 142 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, which was introduced in statute by Act 66 of 1988, it is also apparently clear that the object underlying the provision contained in the said Chapter was aimed at inculcating faith in the efficacy of banking operations and giving credibility to negotiable instruments in business and day to day transactions by making dishonour of such instruments an offence. A negotiable instrument whether the same is in the form of a promissory note or a cheque is by its very nature a solemn document that carries with it not only a representation to the holder in due course of any such instrument but also a promise that the same shall be honoured for payment. To that end Section 139 of the Act raises a statutory presumption that the cheque is issued in discharge of a lawfully recoverable debt or other liability. This presumption is no doubt rebuttable at trial but there is no gain saying that the same favours the complainant and shifts the burden to the drawer of the instrument (in case the same is dishonoured) to prove that the instrument was without any lawful consideration. It is also noteworthy that Section 138 while making dishonour of a cheque an offence punishable with imprisonment and fine also provides for safeguards to protect drawers of such instruments where dishonour may take place for reasons other than those arising out of dishonest intentions. It envisages service of a notice upon the drawer of the instrument calling upon him to make the payment covered by the cheque and permits prosecution only after the expiry of the statutory period and upon failure of the drawer to make the payment within the said period.

12. This Court having noticed the facts of the case and the evidence on the record needs to note the legal principles regarding nature of presumptions to be drawn under Section 139 of the Act and the manner in which it can be rebutted by an accused. Section 118 provides for presumptions as to negotiable instruments. The complainant being holder of cheque and the signature appended on the cheque having not been denied by the Bank, presumption shall be drawn that cheque was issued for the discharge of any debt or other liability. The presumption under Section 139 is a rebuttable presumption. Before this Court refers to various judgments of the Apex Court considering Sections 118 and 139, it is relevant to notice the general principles pertaining to burden of proof on an accused especially in a case where some statutory presumption regarding guilt of the accused has to be drawn.

13. A Three-Judge Bench of the Apex Court in the case of K*ali Ram Vs. State of Himachal Pradesh, reported in (1973) 2 SCC 808 has laid down following:-

"23. .....One of the cardinal principles which has always to be kept in view in our system of administration of justice for criminal cases is that a person arraigned as an accused is presumed to be innocent unless that presumption is rebutted by the prosecution by production of evidence as may show him to be guilty of the offence with which he is charged. The burden of proving the guilt of the accused is upon the prosecution and unless it relieves itself of that burden, the courts cannot record a finding of the guilt of the accused. There are certain cases in which statutory presumptions arise regarding the guilt of the accused, but the burden even in those cases is upon the prosecution to prove the existence of facts which have to be present before the presumption can be drawn. Once those facts are shown by the prosecution to exist, the Court can raise the statutory presumption and it would, in such an event, be for the accused to rebut the presumption. The onus even in such cases upon the accused is not as heavy as is normally upon the prosecution to prove the guilt of the accused. If some material is brought on the record consistent with the innocence of the accused which may reasonably be true, even though it is not positively proved to be true, the accused would be entitled to acquittal."

14. Further the Apex Court in Bharat Barrel & Drum Manufacturing Company Vs. Amin Chand Pyarelal, reported in (1999) 3 SCC 35 had considered Section 118(a) of the Act and held that once execution of the promissory note is admitted, the presumption under Section 118(a) would arise that it is supported by a consideration. Such a presumption is rebuttable and defendant can prove the non-existence of a consideration by raising a probable defence. In paragraph No.12 following has been laid down:-

"12. Upon consideration of various judgments as noted hereinabove, the position of law which emerges is that once execution of the promissory note is admitted, the presumption under Section 118(a) would arise that it is supported by a consideration. Such a presumption is rebuttable. The defendant can prove the non-existence of a consideration by raising a probable defence. If the defendant is proved to have discharged the initial onus of proof showing that the existence of consideration was improbable or doubtful or the same was illegal, the onus would shift to the plaintiff who will be obliged to prove it as a matter of fact and upon its failure to prove would disentitle him to the grant of relief on the basis of the negotiable instrument. The burden upon the defendant of proving the non-existence of the consideration can be either direct or by bringing on record the preponderance of probabilities by reference to the circumstances upon which he relies. In such an event, the plaintiff is entitled under law to rely upon all the evidence led in the case including that of the plaintiff as well. In case, where the defendant fails to discharge the initial onus of proof by showing the non-existence of the consideration, the plaintiff would invariably be held entitled to the benefit of presumption arising under Section 118(a) in his favour. The court may not insist upon the defendant to disprove the existence of consideration by leading direct evidence as the existence of negative evidence is neither possible nor contemplated and even if led, is to be seen with a doubt. The bare denial of the passing of the consideration apparently does not appear to be any defence. Something which is probable has to be brought on record for getting the benefit of shifting the onus of proving to the plaintiff. To disprove the presumption, the defendant has to bring on record such facts and circumstances upon consideration of which the court may either believe that the consideration did not exist or its non-existence was so probable that a prudent man would, under the circumstances of the case, shall act upon the plea that it did not exist....."

15. In M.S. Narayana Menon Alias Mani Vs. State of Kerala and Another, reported in (2006) 6 SCC 39, the Apex Court had considered Sections 118(a), 138 and 139 of the Act, 1881 and held that that presumptions both under Sections 118(a) and 139 are rebuttable in nature. Explaining the expressions "may presume" and "shall presume" referring to an earlier judgment, following was held in paragraph No.28:-

"28. What would be the effect of the expressions "may presume", "shall presume" and "conclusive proof" has been considered by this Court in Union of India v. Pramod Gupta, (2005) 12 SCC 1, in the following terms: (SCC pp. 30-31, para 52) "It is true that the legislature used two different phraseologies "shall be presumed' and "may be presumed' in Section 42 of the Punjab Land Revenue Act and furthermore *although provided for the mode and manner of rebuttal of such presumption as regards the right to mines and minerals said to be vested in the Government vis-à-vis the absence thereof in relation to the lands presumed to be retained by the landowners but the same would not mean that the words "shall presume' would be conclusive. The meaning of the expressions "may presume' and "shall presume' have been explained in Section 4 of the Evidence Act, 1872, from a perusal whereof it would be evident that whenever it is directed that the court shall presume a fact it shall regard such fact as proved unless disproved. In terms of the said provision, thus, the expre*ssion "shall presume' cannot be held to be synonymous with "conclusive proof'."

16. In view of the above, it is clear that the expression "shall presume" cannot be held to be synonymous with conclusive proof. Referring to definition of words "proved" and "disproved" under Section 3 of the Evidence Act, following was laid down by the Apex Court in paragraph No.30 of the aforesaid judgment:

"30. Applying the said definitions of "proved" or "disproved" to the principle behind Section 118(a) of the Act, the court shall presume a negotiable instrument to be for consideration unless and until after considering the matter before it, it either believes that the consideration does not exist or considers the non-existence of the consideration so probable that a prudent man ought, under the circumstances of the particular case, to act upon the supposition that the consideration does not exist. For rebutting such presumption, what is needed is to raise a probable defence. Even for the said purpose, the evidence adduced on behalf of the complainant could be relied upon."

17. The Apex Court has already held that what is needed is to raise a probable defence, for which it is not necessary for the accused to disprove the existence of consideration by way of direct evidence and even the evidence adduced on behalf of the complainant can be relied upon. Dealing with standard of proof, following was observed in paragraph No.32:-

"32. The standard of proof evidently is preponderance of probabilities. Inference of preponderance of probabilities can be drawn not only from the materials on record but also by reference to the circumstances upon which he relies."

18. In Krishna Janardhan Bhat Vs. Dattatraya G. Hegde, reported in (2008) 4 SCC 54, the Apex Court has held that an accused for discharging the burden of proof placed upon him under a statute need not examine himself. He may discharge his burden on the basis of the materials already brought on record. Following was laid down in Paragraph No.32:-

"32. An accused for discharging the burden of proof placed upon him under a statute need not examine himself. He may discharge his burden on the basis of the materials already brought on record. An accused has a constitutional right to maintain silence. Standard of proof on the part of an accused and that of the prosecution in a criminal case is different."

19. The Apex Court again reiterated that whereas prosecution must prove the guilt of an accused beyond all reasonable doubt, the standard of proof so as to prove a defence on the part of an accused is "preponderance of probabilities". In paragraph No.34, following was laid down:-

"34. Furthermore, whereas prosecution must prove the guilt of an accused beyond all reasonable doubt, the standard of proof so as to prove a defence on the part of an accused is "preponderance of probabilities". Inference of preponderance of probabilities can be drawn not only from the materials brought on record by the parties but also by reference to the circumstances upon which he relies."

20. In Kumar Exports Vs. Sharma Carpets, reported in (2009) 2 SCC 513, the Apex Court again examined as to when complainant discharges the burden to prove that instrument was executed and when the burden shall be shifted. In paragraph Nos. 18 to 20, following has been laid down:-

"18. Applying the definition of the word "proved" in Section 3 of the Evidence Act to the provisions of Sections 118 and 139 of the Act, it becomes evident that in a trial under Section 138 of the Act a presumption will have to be made that every negotiable instrument was made or drawn for consideration and that it was executed for discharge of debt or liability once the execution of negotiable instrument is either proved or admitted. As soon as the complainant discharges the burden to prove that the instrument, say a note, was executed by the accused, the rules of presumptions under Sections 118 and 139 of the Act help him shift the burden on the accused. The presumptions will live, exist and survive and shall end only when the contrary is proved by the accused, that is, the cheque was not issued for consideration and in discharge of any debt or liability. A presumption is not in itself evidence, but only makes a prima facie case for a party for whose benefit it exists.

19. The use of the phrase "until the contrary is proved" in Section 118 of the Act and use of the words "unless the contrary is proved" in Section 139 of the Act read with definitions of "may presume" and "shall presume" as given in Section 4 of the Evidence Act, makes it at once clear that presumptions to be raised under both the provisions are rebuttable. When a presumption is rebuttable, it only points out that the party on whom lies the duty of going forward with evidence, on the fact presumed and when that party has produced evidence fairly and reasonably tending to show that the real fact is not as presumed, the purpose of the presumption is over.

20. .....The accused may adduce direct evidence to prove that the note in question was not supported by consideration and that there was no debt or liability to be discharged by him. However, the court need not insist in every case that the accused should disprove the non-existence of consideration and debt by leading direct evidence because the existence of negative evidence is neither possible nor contemplated. At the same time, it is clear that bare denial of the passing of the consideration and existence of debt, apparently would not serve the purpose of the accused. Something which is probable has to be brought on record for getting the burden of proof shifted to the complainant. To disprove the presumptions, the accused should bring on record such facts and circumstances, upon consideration of which, the court may either believe that the consideration and debt did not exist or their non-existence was so probable that a prudent man would under the circumstances of the case, act upon the plea that they did not exist....."

21. A Three-Judge Bench of the Apex Court in Rangappa Vs. Sri Mohan, reported in (2010) 11 SCC 441 had elaborately considered provisions of Sections 138 and 139. In the above case, trial court had acquitted the accused in a case relating to dishonour of cheque under Section 138. The High Court had reversed the judgment of the trial court convicting the accused. In the above case, the accused had admitted signatures on the cheque. This Court held that where the fact of signature on the cheque is acknowledged, a presumption has to be raised that the cheque pertained to a legally enforceable debt or liability, however, this presumption is of a rebuttal nature and the onus is then on the accused to raise a probable defence. In Paragraph No.13, following has been laid down:-

"13. The High Court in its order noted that in the course of the trial proceedings, the accused had admitted that the signature on the impugned cheque (No. 0886322 dated 8-2-2001) was indeed his own. Once this fact has been acknowledged, Section 139 of the Act mandates a presumption that the cheque pertained to a legally enforceable debt or liability. This presumption is of a rebuttal nature and the onus is then on the accused to raise a probable defence. With regard to the present facts, the High Court found that the defence raised by the accused was not probable."

22. After referring to various other judgments of this Court, the Apex Court in that case held that the presumption mandated by Section 139 of the Act does indeed include the existence of a legally enforceable debt or liability, which, of course, is in the nature of a rebuttable presumption. In paragraph No.26, following was laid down:-

"26. In light of these extracts, we are in agreement with the respondent claimant that the presumption mandated by Section 139 of the Act does indeed include the existence of a legally enforceable debt or liability. To that extent, the impugned observations in Krishna Janardhan Bhat, (2008) 4 SCC 54 may not be correct. However, this does not in any way cast doubt on the correctness of the decision in that case since it was based on the specific facts and circumstances therein. As noted in the citations, this is of course in the nature of a rebuttable presumption and it is open to the accused to raise a defence wherein the existence of a legally enforceable debt or liability can be contested. However, there can be no doubt that there is an initial presumption which favours the complainant."

23. Elaborating further, the Apex Court has held that Section 139 of the Act is an example of a reverse onus and the test of proportionality should guide the construction and interpretation of reverse onus clauses on the defendant-accused and the defendant- accused cannot be expected to discharge an unduly high standard of proof. In paragraph Nos. 27 and 28, following was laid down:-

"27. Section 139 of the Act is an example of a reverse onus clause that has been included in furtherance of the legislative objective of improving the credibility of negotiable instruments. While Section 138 of the Act specifies a strong criminal remedy in relation to the dishonour of cheques, the rebuttable presumption under Section 139 is a device to prevent undue delay in the course of litigation. However, it must be remembered that the offence made punishable by Section 138 can be better described as a regulatory offence since the bouncing of a cheque is largely in the nature of a civil wrong whose impact is usually confined to the private parties involved in commercial transactions. In such a scenario, the test of proportionality should guide the construction and interpretation of reverse onus clauses and the defendant-accused cannot be expected to discharge an unduly high standard of proof.

28. In the absence of compelling justifications, reverse onus clauses usually impose an evidentiary burden and not a persuasive burden. Keeping this in view, it is a settled position that when an accused has to rebut the presumption under Section 139, the standard of proof for doing so is that of "preponderance of probabilities". Therefore, if the accused is able to raise a probable defence which creates doubts about the existence of a legally enforceable debt or liability, the prosecution can fail. As clarified in the citations, the accused can rely on the materials submitted by the complainant in order to raise such a defence and it is conceivable that in some cases the accused may not need to adduce evidence of his/her own."

24. In its latest judgment, the Apex Court in the case of Basalingappa Vs. Mudibasappa reported in (2019) 5 SCC 418, specifically in paragraph nos. -23 and 24 has noticed as follows:

"23. We may now notice judgment relied by the learned counsel for the complainant, i.e., judgment of this Court in Kishan Rao Vs. Shankargouda, (2018) 8 SCC 165. This Court in the above case has examined Section 139 of the Act. In the above case, the only defence which was taken by the accused was that cheque was stolen by the appellant. The said defence was rejected by the trial court. In paragraph Nos. 21 to 23, following was laid down:-

"21. In the present case, the trial court as well as the appellate court having found that cheque contained the signatures of the accused and it was given to the appellant to present in the Bank, the presumption under Section 139 was rightly raised which was not rebutted by the accused. The accused had not led any evidence to rebut the aforesaid presumption. The accused even did not come in the witness box to support his case. In the reply to the notice which was given by the appellant, the accused took the defence that the cheque was stolen by the appellant. The said defence was rejected by the trial court after considering the evidence on record with regard to which no contrary view has also been expressed by the High Court.

22. Another judgment which needs to be looked into is Rangappa v. Sri Mohan (2010) 11 SCC 441. A three-Judge Bench of this Court had occasion to examine the presumption under Section 139 of the 1881 Act. This Court in the aforesaid case has held that in the event the accused is able to raise a probable defence which creates doubt with regard to the existence of a debt or liability, the presumption may fail. Following was laid down in paras 26 and 27: (SCC pp. 453-54) "26. In light of these extracts, we are in agreement with the respondent claimant that the presumption mandated by Section 139 of the Act does indeed include the existence of a legally enforceable debt or liability. To that extent, the impugned observations in Krishna Janardhan Bhat, may not be correct. However, this does not in any way cast doubt on the correctness of the decision in that case since it was based on the specific facts and circumstances therein. As noted in the citations, this is of course in the nature of a rebuttable presumption and it is open to the accused to raise a defence wherein the existence of a legally enforceable debt or liability can be contested. However, there can be no doubt that there is an initial presumption which favours the complainant.

27. Section 139 of the Act is an example of a reverse onus clause that has been included in furtherance of the legislative objective of improving the credibility of negotiable instruments. While Section 138 of the Act specifies a strong criminal remedy in relation to the dishonour of cheques, the rebuttable presumption under Section 139 is a device to prevent undue delay in the course of litigation. However, it must be remembered that the offence made punishable by Section 138 can be better described as a regulatory offence since the bouncing of a cheque is largely in the nature of a civil wrong whose impact is usually confined to the private parties involved in commercial transactions. In such a scenario, the test of proportionality should guide the construction and interpretation of reverse onus clauses and the defendant-accused cannot be expected to discharge an unduly high standard of proof."

23. No evidence was led by the accused. The defence taken in the reply to the notice that cheque was stolen having been rejected by the two courts below, we do not see any basis for the High Court coming to the conclusion that the accused has been successful in creating doubt in the mind of the Court with regard to the existence of the debt or liability. How the presumption under Section 139 can be rebutted on the evidence of PW 1, himself has not been explained by the High Court.

24. The above Kishan Rao case was a case where this Court did not find the defence raised by the accused probable. The only defence raised was that cheque was stolen having been rejected by the trial court and no contrary opinion having been expressed by the High Court, this Court reversed the judgment of the High Court restoring the conviction. The respondent cannot take any benefit of the said judgment, which was on its own facts."

(Emphasis added)

25. This Court has also considered the judgments of the Apex Court in the cases of of Raj Kumar Khurana and S.P. Chengalvaraya Naidu (dead) by L.Rs. (Supras), which have heavily been relied upon by the learned counsel for the applicant. The facts of that case is that the appellant of the said case had lost two blank cheques in his office along with some stamp papers and immediately thereafter he had informed the Bank about missing of the said cheques and also he made a complaint before the Police Station on 21st April, 2001 and when the said blank cheques were alleged filled up on 24th June, 2001 and presented before the Bank, the same were returned dishonoured with the remarks "Said cheque reported lost by the drawer". However, in the facts of the present case, as per the own statement of the applicant that sons of opposite party no.2 went to the place of applicant at New Delhi and stole the cheques of the applicant in November, 2018 and after making forged signatures of the applicant, on 15th January, 2019 opposite party no.2 had presented the same before the Bank but same has been returned by the Bank to the complainant on 19th January, along with return memo that there was no sufficient balance in the account of the applicant. Thereafter the complainant/opposite party no.2 sent a legal notice to the applicant through her advocate on 6th February, 2019 within 15 days of the receipt of return memo, which has been served upon him on 9th February, 2019. Only on 28th February, 2019, the applicant had informed the Bank about his missing of cheques and stoppage of his bank account. Thereafter on 5th March, 2019, he had given reply to the legal notice dated 6th February, 2019 but has not filed any first information report or complaint under Section 156 Cr.P.C. till that date. It is on 20th September, 2019 (reference paragraph-21 of the affidavit accompanying the present application), applicant went to the Police Station for lodging of the first information report about theft, forgery and cheating alleged to have been committed by opposite party no.2 and her sons by using his stolen cheques. When his first information report has not been lodged, he made a complaint under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. (reference paragraph-22 of the affidavit accompanying the present application). However, perusal of the said complaint does not mention the date on which such complaint has made moved by the applicant. Therefore, in the opinion of the Court, the case relied upon by the learned counsel for the applicant in the case of Raj Kumar Khurana (Supra) is clearly distinguishable in the facts of the present case.

26. So far as the second judgment relied upon by the learned counsel for the applicant in the case of S.P. Chengalvaraya Naidu (dead) by L.Rs. (supra) is concerned, this Court has perused the said judgment in which the Apex Court has held that the courts of law are meant for imparting justice between the parties. One who comes to the court, must come with clean-hands. It can be said without hesitation that a person whose case is based on falsehood has no right to approach the Court. He can be summarily thrown out at any stage of the litigation. A litigant who approached the court, is bound to produce all the documents executed by him which are relevant to the litigation. If he withholds a vital document in order to gain advantage on the other wise then he would be guilty of playing fraud on the court. However, in the facts of the present case, neither both the courts below or this Court has prima facie found that the opposite party no.2 has committed any fraud by submitting or filing any forged document. No evidence was led by the applicant. The defence taken in the reply to the notice that cheque was stolen having been rejected by the two courts below as the applicant had not been successful in creating doubt in the mind of the Courts with regard to the existence of the debt or liability or missing or stealing of cheques. The Bank has also not made a remark on the return memo to the opposite party no.2 that there was no sufficient balance in the account of the applicant. Therefore, the case relied upon the by the learned counsel for the applicant in the case of S.P. Chengalvaraya Naidu (dead) by L.Rs. (supra) is also not applicable.

27. In view of the aforesaid, this Court finds substance in the contention raised by the learned A.G.A. for the State that there is no illegality or infirmity in the orders passed by both the courts below. This Court also finds that the trial Court after examining the original copy of cheque, cheque return memo, bank receipt, notice, notice delivery statement and original registry receipt, has found substance in the submission of the complainant and has observed that prima facie case for the offence punishable under Section 138 N.I. Act is made out against the applicant and he has rightly passed the impugned order dated 7th May, 2019 summoning the applicant. This Court also finds that after hearing the learned counsel for the parties and examining the records available on record, the revisional court has rightly rejected the criminal revision filed by the applicant against the summoning order dated 7th May, 2019. While passing the impugned order, the revisional court has recorded a finding that the case of the applicant is that he has not taken any money from the complainant and he has not given any cheque to her as also the signature appended on the said cheque is forged, as the same was not of the applicant, may be examined at appropriate stage and before appropriate forum, as the correctness, genuineness or veracity of the same cannot be examined at this pre-trial stage. Hence, this Court does not find any illegality or perversity in the order passed by the Courts below.

28. Even otherwise, this Court also observes that the applicant has already availed his remedy of revision against the order passed by the trial Court. Since in the present case also, the applicant has tried to wreck up the issue of `legality' or `propriety' of the orders passed by the Courts, therefore, the present application is nothing but a second revision; in the garb of application filed under Section 482 Cr.P.C. However, a person cannot be permitted to do indirectly what he cannot do directly. A bare perusal of Section 482 Cr.P.C shows that the power under Section 482 Cr.P.C can be invoked for three purposes, namely, for giving effect to the orders passed under this Court, for preventing the abuse of the process of the Court and to meet the ends of justice. In the present case, the prayer of the applicant is not for giving any effect to any order passed by the Court. Therefore, the first eventuality prescribed under Section 482 Cr.P.C is not at all attracted. Still further, by any means, an order passed by a Court of competent jurisdiction and continuation thereof; cannot be branded as an abuse of the process of Court; unless it is alleged and shown to the High Court that the Courts below had acted for irrelevant reasons or for extraneous considerations. Needless to say that sufficiency of reasons is not to be gone into after the revisional Court. It is not even the allegation of the applicant in this case that orders are passed by Court below; for irrelevant or extraneous considerations. So far as the third ingredient of Section 482 Cr.P.C is concerned, this Court is not supposed to go into `legality' and `propriety' of the order passed by the trial Court. Section 397(3) of Cr.P.C prohibits second revision by a party. Under Section 397(1), the Revisional Court is authorized to see `legality' and `propriety' of the order passed by the Court. Since second revision by the same party is prohibited under Section 397(3), therefore, any argument on `legality' or `propriety' of an order passed by the Court below, ordinarily, is not to be appreciated in proceedings under Section 482 Cr.P.C, unless it is shown, at the macro level, that such an order has resulted from considerations which were totally alien to the process of the Court or have produced incomprehensibly absurd result and, therefore, have resulted in defeating the ends of justice itself. What cannot be done directly, cannot be done indirectly as well. In the present case, except to argue for re-appreciation of the material before the trial Court, there is not even a submission or an allegation regarding any aberration in the process adopted by the Courts for passing the impugned orders. Therefore, power under Section 482 Cr.P.C cannot be exercised by this Court to re-appreciate the same material, which was available before the Courts below and which have been duly appreciated by the Courts below.

29. Apart from the above, this Court also observes that plea taken on behalf of the applicant that the present complaint is not maintainable on the ground that sons of opposite party no.2 has stolen his cheques and after committing forgery and playing fraud with the help of same, opposite party no. 2 had presented the same before the Bank, cannot be accepted at this stage of the proceedings, as under the order of the trial court he has only been summoned under the provisions of N.I. Act only. The said plea may be taken and examined during the course of trial not at the pre-trial stage. It may also be observed that if it is accepted that sons of opposite party no.2 had stolen his cheques in November, 2018 from his house as per his own statement and after making forged signatures of the applicant, on 15th January, 2019 opposite party no.2 had presented the same before the Bank but same has been returned by the Bank to the complainant on 19th January, along with return memo that there was no sufficient balance in the account of the applicant. Thereafter the complainant/opposite party no.2 sent a legal notice to the applicant through her advocate on 6th February, 2019 within 15 days of the receipt of return memo, which has been served upon him on 9th February, 2019. Only on 28th February, 2019, the applicant had informed the Bank about his missing of cheques and stoppage of his bank account. Thereafter on 5th March, 2019, he had given reply to the legal notice dated 6th February, 2019 but has not filed any first information report or complaint under Section 156 Cr.P.C. till that date. It is on 20th September, 2019 (reference paragraph-21 of the affidavit accompanying the present application), applicant went to the Police Station for lodging of the first information report about theft, forgery and cheating alleged to have been committed by opposite party no.2 and her sons by using his stolen cheques.

30. From the aforesaid it is apparent that from November, 2018 to 28th February, 2019 he has slept over his missing cheques and woke up only after service of legal notice dated 6th February, 2019 i.e. on 9th February, 2019 but after 19 days he moved an application before the Bank for stoppage of bank account. Except that, he has taken six months and twenty days to go to Police Station for lodging of the first information report. Therefore, this Court is of the opinion that the said plea has no leg to stand. The other plea taken on behalf of the applicant that the signature appended on the cheque is not of the applicant the same is forged, has also no leg to stand on the ground that the on presentation of the same, the Bank has returned the same along with return memo as "there was no sufficient balance in the account of applicant" and not as "mismatched signatures".

31. In the present case, much less to speak of any process alien to law being adopted by the Courts below, as stated above, this Court does not find even any illegality or perversity in the orders passed by the Courts below.

32. This application is accordingly dismissed. There shall be no order as to costs.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Krishna Gautam, J.)

1. This Application, under Section 482 of Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (Hereinafter, in short, referred to as 'Cr.P.C.'), has been filed by the Applicants, Jata Shankar Trivedi and Divya Trivedi, with a prayer for setting aside impugned chargesheet, dated 6.12.2018 and cognizance taking order, dated 2.2.2019, with entire proceeding, in Criminal Case No. 2138 of 2019, State vs. Jata Shankar Trivedi and othrs, arising out of Case Crime No.49 of 2018, under Sections-498A and 376D of Indian Penal Code, Police Station-Collectorganj, District-Kanpur Nagar, pending in the court of Additional Chief Metropolitant Magistrate, IX, Kanpur Nagar.

2. Learned counsel for applicants argued that Opposite party no. 2 fell in love with the son of Applicant no.1, resulting in love marriage with him. Both of them resided separately at Shuklaganj, Unnao. Applicants are having no concern with them. Subsequently, Opposite party no.2 fell in extramarital relationship with Rinkesh Shukla, who usurped entire belonging of son of Applicant No.1 and ultimately ousted him from his house at Shuklaganj, Unnao. Being father, Applicant no.1, and feeling pity upon his own son, permitted him to reside at his home. Then, threat was being extended by Rinkesh Shukla to applicants. Ultimately, this false case was got manipulated and fabricated against Applicant no.1 and other accused persons, with concocted story, whereas, a missing report of his own son was got reported, prior to this occurrence, by Applicant no.1 and this was mentioned in the first information report, lodged at Police Station, concerned, itself, that this concocted story of offence of rape seems to be suspicious because Applicant no.1 has moved an application, under Section 156 (3) of Cr.P.C., before the Magistrate, concerned, with regard to missing of his son, wherein, apprehension on Opposite party no.2 and Rinkesh Shukla was expressed upon which a first information report was lodged and as a result whereof this false implication of Applicant no.1 and other accused is there, wherein impugned chargesheet has been filed upon which cognizance has been taken by the court, concerned, whereas, no such occurrence ever occurred and applicants are being victimized by Opposite party no.2. This was a proceeding, under abuse of process of law. Hence, for avoiding abuse of process of law in ensuring ends of justice, this Application, under Section 482 of Cr.P.C., has been filed, with above prayer.

3. Learned AGA, representing State of U.P., has vehemently opposed this Application.

4. From very perusal of the first information report, it is apparent that the previous report of missing of son of Applicant no.1 was lodged and this occurrence of rape was held to be a suspicious one, whereupon, Inspector, Police Station-Shuklaganj, District Kanpur Nagar, was directed for making investigation, under above facts and circumstances, but, it is there that investigation resulted in submission of chargesheet, wherein, cognizance has been taken by the learned Magistrate. The chargesheet has been filed on the basis of evidence, collected and statements recorded, under Section 161 of Cr.P.C. There are statements, under Sections 164 of Cr.P.C., too. Hence, this Court, in exercise of its inherent jurisdiction, conferred upon it by Section 482 of Code of Criminal Procedure, is not expected to embark upon factual matrix because it may prejudice fair trial. However, it cannot be said that there is nothing on record for making an indulgence in exercise of inherent jurisdiction. Hence, prayed relief, for quashing of chargesheet is not liable to be granted, hence, declined. However, the arguments as well as facts and circumstances, raised before this Court, can very well be raised before the Trial court, concerned, at the stage of proceeding, under Section 227 of Cr.P.C., and before the Magistrate, prior to making committal to the court of Sessions, that too, by way of adopting proper procedure, in accordance with law and if applicants raise such a plea the courts, concerned, will consider and decide the same, in accordance with the provisions of law and precedents on the issue.

5. Apex Court, in State of Andhra Pradesh v. Gaurishetty Mahesh, JT 2010 (6) SC 588: (2010) 6 SCALE 767: 2010 Cr. LJ 3844, has propounded that "While exercising jurisdiction under section 482 of the Code, the High Court would not ordinarily embark upon an enquiry whether the evidence in question is reliable or not or whether on a reasonable apprehension of it accusation would not be sustained. That is the function of the trial Judge/Court". In another subsequent judgment, in the case of Hamida v. Rashid, (2008) 1 SCC 474, Hon'ble Apex Court propounded that "Ends of justice would be better served if valuable time of the Court is spent in hearing those appeals rather than entertaining petitions under Section 482 at an interlocutory stage which after filed with some oblique motive in order to circumvent the prescribed procedure, or to delay the trial which enable to win over the witness or may disinterested in giving evidence, ultimately resulting in miscarriage of Justice". In again yet another judgment, in the case of Monica Kumar v. State of Uttar Pradesh, (2008) 8 SCC 781, the Apex Court has propounded "Inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 has to be exercised sparingly, carefully and with caution and only when such exercise is justified by the tests specifically laid down in the section itself." While interpreting this jurisdiction of High Court Apex Court, in the case of Popular Muthiah v. State, Represented by Inspector of Police, (2006) 7 SCC 296, has propounded "High Court can exercise jurisdiction suo motu in the interest of justice. It can do so while exercising other jurisdictions such as appellate or revisional jurisdiction. No formal application for invoking inherent jurisdiction is necessary. Inherent jurisdiction can be exercised in respect of substantive as well as procedural matters. It can as well be exercised in respect of incidental or supplemental power irrespective of nature of proceedings".

6. Regarding prevention of abuse of process of Court, Apex Court, in the case of Dhanlakshmi v. R.Prasana Kumar, (1990) Cr LJ 320 (DB): AIR 1990 SC 494, has propounded "To prevent abuse of the process of the Court, High Court, in exercise of its inherent powers under section 482, could quash the proceedings, but, there would be justification for interference only when the complaint did not disclose any offence or was frivolous vexatious or oppressive" as well as in the case of State of Bihar v. Murad Ali Khan, (1989) Cr LJ 1005: AIR 1989 SC 1, Apex Court propounded "In exercising jurisdiction under Section 482 High Court would not embark upon an enquiry whether the allegations in the complaint are likely to be established by evidence or not".

7. Meaning thereby, exercise of inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is within the limits, propounded as above.

8. In view of what has been discussed above, this Application, under Section 482 of Cr.P.C., merits dismissal and it stands dismissed accordingly.

9. Applicants prayed for a protection from being victimized in above case.

10. In view of the prayer made by the applicants, they are being afforded an opportunity to appear and surrender before the court below within 30 days from today and apply for bail. Their prayer for bail shall be considered and decided in view of the settled law laid by this Court in the case of Amrawati and another Vs. State of U.P. reported in 2004 (57) ALR 290 as well as judgement passed by Hon'ble Apex Court reported in 2009 (3) ADJ 322 (SC) Lal Kamlendra Pratap Singh Vs. State of U.P.

11. For a period of 30 days from today, no coercive action shall be taken against the applicants.

12. In case, if the applicants do not appear before the Court below within the aforesaid period, coercive action shall be taken against them.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sanjay Kumar Singh, J.)

1. Heard Sri Ravindra Sonker, learned counsel for the applicants and learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. This application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been preferred by the applicants with a prayer to quash the impugned summoning order dated 27.09.2018, passed by Judicial Magistrate, Sahaswan, District Budaun as well as the entire proceeding of Complaint Case No. 75 of 2018 (Acchan Miyan vs. Mahboob and others), under Sections 323, 504, 506, 452 I.P.C., Police Station Sahaswan, District Budaun, pending in the court of Judicial Magistrate, Sahaswan, District Budaun.

Basic Facts

3. Facts in brief of the case is that opposite party no. 2 filed an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. on 09.04.2018 before the Judicial Magistrate, Sahaswan, District Budaun with a prayer to issue direction to the incharge Inspector of Police Station Sahaswan, District Budaun to lodge the first information report against the present applicants raising allegations that the complaint is the resident of same locality where the applicants reside. In the complaint it is said that there was a dispute relating to money transaction between the complainant and the applicant no. 4 & others but later it was settled on the intervention of the neighbours. On 02.04.2018 at about 06:00 P.M. when the complainant was lying on a cot in his house and his wife was cooking food, the accused persons entered into his house along with weapons and started abusing the complainant. On making objection, the accused persons assaulted him and his wife namely Smt. Chanda Bee due to which they have received injuries. It is further alleged that on raising alarm by the wife of the complainant, several other persons of locality namely Sakhi Ahmad, Shabab and others rushed to the place of occurrence and saved the complainant and his wife, Smt. Chanda Bee. It is submitted that on the next day, the complainant got himself medically examined and medical report along with application was sent to the police but no action was taken. Injury report of the complainant, Acchhan Miyan is on record which is appended as Annexure No. 2 to the affidavit filed in support of this application and on perusal of the same it is clear that the complainant Acchhan Miyan was examined by Medical Officer of the Government Hospital on 03.04.2018 at 09:30 P.M. and he received four injuries on his person. The said application dated 09.04.2018 of the complainant was treated as complaint which was registered as Complaint Case No. 75 of 2018 in the court of Judicial Magistrate, Sahaswan, District Budaun by order dated 03.07.2018.

4. Learned Magistrate has recorded the statement of the complainant under Section 200 Cr.P.C. on 30.08.2018 in which he retreated the version as mentioned in his application dated 09.04.2018. From the side of complainant witnesses Mohd. Fasal, Smt. Chanda Bee and Sakhi Ahmad have been examined under Section 202 as PW-1, PW-2 & PW-3 respectively on 07.09.2018 are on record and appended as Annexures no. 2, 3 and 4 respectively to the affidavit filed in support of this application. Learned Magistrate by order dated 27.09.2018 summoned the applicants under Sections 452, 323, 504, 506 I.P.C. to face trial.

Submissions on behalf of applicants

5. It is submitted by the learned counsel for the applicants that prior to moving of application dated 09.04.2018, under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. by the complainant of this case, the applicant no. 4 has also filed an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. against the opposite party no. 2 and others. On 26.03.2018 it was also treated as complaint bearing Complaint Case No. 25 of 2018, on which learned Judicial Magistrate, Sahaswan, District Budaun after recording the statement of applicant no. 4 and his witnesses under Sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C. respectively, summoned the opposite party no. 2 and others under Sections 323, 504 and 506 I.P.C. by summoning order dated 18.08.2018 and they are facing trial. Copy of the application dated 26.03.2018, under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. of applicant no. 4 and summoning order dated 18.08.2018 passed by learned Judicial Magistrate, Sahaswan, District Budaun against opposite parties no. 2 and others are appended as Annexures no. 6 and 7 to the affidavit filed in support of application.

6. On the aforesaid fact, it is submitted by learned counsel for the applicants that the allegation in the impugned complaint against the applicants is false and infact true fact is that applicant no. 4 is a permanent resident of Delhi. On 04.03.2018, the applicant no. 4 came in the village of complainant to participate in the marriage, where complainant and other 13 persons associated with him for hatching conspiracy and assaulted the applicant no. 4, who in order to save his life entered into the house of his sister-in-law. Then the complainant side entered into the said house and assaulted him by tearing the clothes and also looted Rs. 40,000/-. It is submitted that the injury report as filed by the opposite party no. 2/complainant is fictitious and injuries are simple in nature. The witnesses of complainant are interested witnesses who cannot be relied upon. It is submitted that the launching of criminal proceeding by the opposite party no. 2 against the applicants is abuse of the process of law. No offence under Sections 452, 323, 504, 506 I.P.C. are made out against the applicants. The learned Magistrate has summoned the applicants by impugned summoning order dated 27.09.2018 is without recording his satisfaction.

7. Learned counsel for the applicants has placed reliance upon the judgment of this Court in the case of Mahboob & Ors. vs. State of U.P. Through Secy. Home Department Civil Secretariat & Anr., 2016 Law Suit (Allahabad) 3768, decided on 20.12.2016, in which the co-ordinate Bench of this Court has quashed the summoning order with a direction to pass fresh order because in that case, learned Magistrate has passed a very cryptic order simply by saying that from the statement of the complainant as well as other witnesses recorded under Sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C. there are no sufficient ground to summon the accused persons.

8. Learned counsel for the applicants has further placed reliance upon the judgment of Apex Court passed in the case of Eicher Tractors Ltd. vs. Harihar Singh, 2008 Law Suit (S.C.) 1643, wherein the Apex Court relying on the parameters indicated in category (7) of Bhajan Lal's case and quashed the proceedings under Sections 420, 468, 471 I.P.C.

Submissions on behalf of State

9. Per contra learned A.G.A. has submitted that the facts of the aforesaid two judgments, reliance upon which has been placed by learned counsel for the applicants are based on different facts and circumstances. It is submitted that in the present case, there are four injuries on the persons of the complainant, which is also apparent from the injury report dated 03.04.2018 of the opposite party no. 2. The learned Magistrate has passed the impugned summoning order dated 27.09.2018 after considering the entire facts narrated in the complaint as well as the affidavit, copy of application sent to S.S.P., copy of injury report and receipt of registered post as well as statements of the complainant and witnesses namely PW-1 Mohd. Fasal, PW-2 Smt. Chanda Bee and PW-3 Sakhi Ahmad. Learned A.G.A. has further submitted that the learned Magistrate has recorded the reason of satisfaction for summoning the accused applicants to face trial and also mentioned that from the material evidence available on record, prima-facie evidence against the applicants under Sections 323, 504, 506, 452 I.P.C. are made out, therefore, there is no illegality in the impugned summoning order dated 27.09.2018 and as such the present application is liable to be dismissed.

Discussion

10. After having heard the arguments advanced on behalf of learned counsel for the parties and examining the record, I find that the requirement of summoning the accused under Section 204 Cr.P.C. as settled by the Apex Court, has fulfilled by the learned Magistrate in the impugned order dated 27.09.2018. It is well settled that at the stage of summoning under Section 204 Cr.P.C., learned Magistrate is neither required to go into the merits and de-merits of the case nor to examine the genuineness of the allegations or otherwise. At the stage of summoning the accused, learned Magistrate is required to see, whether on taking the entire contents of the complaint on their face value as it is the prima-facie offence is made out against the accused or not.

11. In this case the complainant has received injuries. The injury report is on record. Accepting the contents of the complaint as true, this Court feel that prima-facie offence against the applicants are made out.

12. It is also well settled that the disputed questions of fact and the defence of the accused cannot be taken into consideration at the pre-trial stage. After going through the facts of the case of Mahboob & Ors. vs. State of U.P. Through Secy. Home Department Civil Secretariat (supra) and Eicher Tractors Ltd. vs. Harihar Singh (supra), I find that the fact of both the cases are on different footing. There was no injury report also in the aforesaid cases. The manner of passing summoning order, as it was in the case of Mahboob & Ors. vs. State of U.P. (supra) was also different. In that case, summoning order was cryptic and very laconic in nature, while the impugned order dated 27.09.2018 of this case is otherwise and the same has been passed considering all the material evidence on record.

13. The Apex Court in R.P. Kapur vs. State of Punjab, AIR 1960 SC 866, summarized come categories of cases where inherent power can and should be exercised to quash the proceedings :-

(i) where it manifestly appears that there is a legal bar against the institution or continuance of the proceedings;

(ii) where the allegations in the first information report or complaint taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety do not constitute the offence alleged;

(iii) where the allegations constitute an offence, but there is no legal evidence adduced or the evidence adduced clearly or manifestly fails to prove the charge.

14. The Apex Court in State of Bihar and another vs. P.P. Sharma I.A.S. and another, 1992 SCC (Cri.) 192, has observed that Supreme Court has repeatedly held that the appreciation of evidence is the function of the criminal courts. High Court in exercise of power under Article 226 and 227 of the Constitution of India cannot assume such jurisdiction and put an end to the process of investigation and trial provided under the law.

15. The Apex Court in Zandu Pharmaceutical Works Ltd. and Ors. vs. Mohd. Sharafful Haque and another, 2005 SCC (Cri.) 283, has observed that when a complaint is sought to be quashed, it is permissible to look into the materials to assess what the complainant has alleged and whether any offence is made out even if the allegations are accepted in toto.

Conclusion

16. Considering the nature of allegations, material available on record and findings recorded by the learned Magistrate, the present case does not fall in the category recognized by the Apex Court, where this Court can exercise its inherent power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. to quash the criminal proceeding at the initial stage. It is well settled by the Apex Court in catena of judgments that power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. should be used sparingly only to prevent the abuse of the process of the Court, when there is a patent error or gross injustice. On accepting the facts of the present case as mentioned in the complaint, as true, taking the same in their entirety, it cannot be said that no cognizable offence is made out against the applicants.

17. In view of the above, I do not find any merit in the arguments so advanced on behalf of applicants. The impugned order dated 27.09.2018 does not suffer from any illegality and there is no abuse of the process of law. The application lacks merit, it is accordingly dismissed.

A. Allocation of Work, Roster and Benches - Allahabad High Court Rules: Chapter V: Rule 14(1) – There is a difference between "part heard"/"tied up" matters and nominated/specially assigned matters. If a nominated/specially assigned matter is released by a Bench – not being a "tied up" or a "part heard" case – the Registry ordinarily should place it before the Hon'ble, The Chief Justice, for an appropriate order of fresh assignment or a direction.
The Court proposed to hear out the matter on its merit after receiving appropriate orders from the Hon'ble Chief Justice. (E-4) (Delivered by Hon'ble Biswanath Somadder, J.

Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. On 20th January, 2020, the following order was passed:-

"The records reveal that the Hon'ble, The Chief Justice, nominated / assigned Special Appeal Defective No.24 of 2020 (State of U.P. through Principal Secretary Department of Higher Education Government of U.P. Lucknow and another v. S.M. College, Chadausi through its Secretary, Shantanu Kumar & another) to be listed before a Bench presided over by Hon'ble Mr. Justice Bala Krishna Narayana, as per order dated 16th January, 2020. However, the office report dated 20th January, 2020, reads as follows:-

"Reference Hon'ble Court's Order dt. 17/01/2020 and Hon'ble CJ's Order for the new roster w.e.f. 20/01/2020 and continuation of administrative orders dt. 16/12/13 regarding PH and TU cases.

The case is put up for orders before Hon'ble regular court of the case dealing with the roster."

The administrative order of the Hon'ble, The Chief Justice, dated 16th December, 2013 - which has been referred to in the office report dated 20th January, 2020 - reads as follows:

"No pending case, civil or criminal, shall be treated as part heard or tied up in a Court after the commencement of a new roster. All pending cases shall be listed before the appropriate Bench dealing with such matters in accordance with the fresh roster, unless so ordered by the Chief Justice in a specific case hereafter."

A plain reading of the administrative order of the Hon'ble, The Chief Justice dated 16th December, 2013, reveals that the same would be applicable only in respect of pending cases - civil or criminal- which have been treated as either "part heard" or "tied up" in a Court. This is neither a "part heard" matter nor a "tied up" matter. Rather, this is a matter which has been nominated / specially assigned by the Hon'ble, The Chief Justice, to be listed before a Bench presided over by the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Bala Krishna Narayana. In fact, "tied up" cases and "partly heard" cases have been clearly defined in Rule 14 (1) under Chapter V of the Allahabad High Court Rules, 1952, which reads as follows:

"14. Tied up cases.-(1) A case partly heard by a Bench shall ordinarily be laid before the same Bench for disposal. A case in which a Bench has merely directed notice to issue to the opposite party or passed an ex parte order shall not be deemed to be a case partly heard by such Bench."

The administrative order of the Hon'ble The Chief Justice dated 16th December, 2013, which has been relied on in the office report dated 20th January, 2020, as such, will not be applicable in the instant case.

If a nominated / specially assigned matter is released by a Bench - not being a "tied up" or a "part heard" case - the Registry ordinarily should place it before the Hon'ble, The Chief Justice, for an appropriate order of fresh assignment or a direction from the Hon'ble, The Chief Justice, for the matter to be listed before the regular Bench. In this case, however, the matter has been placed before us by virtue of the office report dated 20th January, 2020, which does not refer to any such direction of the Hon'ble, The Chief Justice, consequent upon the order dated 17th January, 2020, passed by the Division Bench presided over by the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Bala Krishna Narayana.

The Registry is therefore directed to place the matter before the Hon'ble, The Chief Justice for necessary order."

2. Consequent thereto, the matter was placed before the Hon'ble the Chief Justice for necessary order.

3. It appears that the Hon'ble the Chief Justice, in His Lordship's administrative side, has passed the following order on 17th February, 2020:-

"Lay/list before appropriate Court dealing with such matters."

4. Since this is the appropriate Court dealing with such matters, we now propose to hear out the matter on its merit.

Special Appeal No. 397 of 2010

State of U.P. & Anr. ...Appellant
Versus
Akbar Naim & Ors. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellant:

A. Service – Payment of salary – Constitution of India: Article 23 - Non-payment of arrears of salary to the writ petitioner for the period in question does not have any concern w.r.t. the question of qualification or experience of the petitioner/respondent at the time of the appointment on the post of Assistant Teacher in the Institution.

There is no order of the competent authority for withholding the salary of the writ petitioner/respondent. (Para 23)
The petitioner/respondent is continuously working on the post of Assistant Teacher in the institution since the date of the appointment, and is also getting salary from the said date except for the period in question. (Para 24)
No disciplinary proceeding or any action provided in the statute was taken either for an alleged absence for the period in question or for the lack of qualification (in education or experience). Petitioner admittedly lacking in experience and educational qualification was allowed to work on the post of Assistant Teacher since last several years and was also paid salary continuously except for the period in question. (Para 7, 24)

B. Meaning of 'Begar' discussed – ' Begar' can take different forms such as forced labour, taking work without remuneration or taking work without paying adequate remuneration or remuneration less than the minimum wages. (Para 16 to 22)

Appeal dismissed. (E-4)

1. S. Vasudevan Vs. S.D. Mital, AIR 1962 Bom 53 (Para 19)

2. People's Union for Democratic Rights Vs. U.O.I., (1982) 3 SCC 235; AIR 1982 SC 1473 (Para 21)

3. St. of Guj. Vs. Hon'ble High Court of Gujarat, (1998) 7 SCC 392 (Para 22)

Appeal against judgment and order dated 10.03.2010, passed in Writ Petition No. 1842 (SS) of 1994.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Chandra Dhari Singh, J.)

1. The instant intra-court appeal has been filed by appellants under Chapter VIII Rule 5 of the Allahabad High Court Rules, 1952 against the judgment and order dated 10.03.2010 passed by the learned Single Judge in Writ Petition No.1842 (SS) of 1994 by which the writ petition has been allowed with a direction to the respondents to call for the records and go through the orders passed by the State Government and this Court and release the payment of held up salary to the petitioner (respondent no.1 herein) within six weeks for the period 01.10.1992 to 03.02.1995. While allowing the writ petition, a cost of Rs.5000/- was also imposed on the respondents.

2. Brief facts of this case are that respondent no.1, who was working as a teacher in a Madarsa Darul Uloom Pir Batawan, District-Barabanki, has approached this court seeking payment of his held up salary w.e.f. 01.10.1992 to 03.02.1995. The said Madarsa is duly recognized and aided by Government of U.P. Initially the District Basic Educational Officer, Barabanki was exercising administrative control over this institution, later on, the District Minorities Welfare Officer became the supervisory authority in the District. The respondent no.1 has discharged his duties and functions during the above said period with utmost dedication but the salary was not paid as the same could not be processed. The respondent no.1 approached the superior authorities including the State Government and several letters and orders were issued by the District Minorities Welfare Officer, Barabanki and the State Government directed the Principal, Madarsa Darul Uloom Pir Batawan, Barabanki to settle accounts and released the payment of salary to the respondent no.1 for the abovesaid period but nothing has been done towards the payment of salary during the period as stated above. Thereafter, the respondent no.1 has filed Writ Petition No.1842 (SS) of 1994, which has been allowed vide impugned order dated 10.03.2010.

3. It has been submitted by learned Counsel for appellants-State that while passing the impugned order, the learned Single Judge has erred in law by not taking into consideration the fact that the writ petition was filed in the year 1994 in which on 19.02.1999, the appellant-District Minority Welfare Officer, Barabanki have been impleaded as respondents after control being taken by the appellants over the institution and also on 19.03.1999, the notices have been issued but the writ petition was dismissed for want of prosecution on 12.08.1999. Thereafter, it was restored on 20.08.1999 and the writ petition has been finally allowed only on the basis of the supplementary affidavit filed by the respondent no.1 placing on record several orders issued by the State Government directing the Principal to settle the account and release the payment of salary to the respondent no.1.

4. Learned Counsel for the appellants-State has submitted that the learned Single Judge while allowing the writ petition has also not considered the fact that two inquiries were conducted against the respondent no.1/ writ petitioner in which it was found that the respondent no.1 did not performed the duty as teacher from 01.10.1992 to 03.02.1995. In the inquiry, it was also found that the respondent no.1 did not work with Mr. Zaheer Anwar, Assistant Teacher during the said period and the said fact had also concealed by the respondent no.1.

5. It has again been submitted by learned Counsel for the appellants-State that while allowing the writ petition, the learned Single Judge has also not considered the fact that the Director Minority Welfare Department, Uttar Pradesh issued an order on 30.11.2005 to conduct an inquiry for verifying the presence of the respondent no.1 for the period in question and in the inquiry, it was found that the salary of the respondent no.1 was not paid due to his absence from duty though repeated notices were sent by the Principal and to that effect the inquiry report dated 08.12.2005 was submitted to the higher authorities and the respondent no.1 had resumed the duty on 04.02.1995 after submitting the undertaking that he would complete the requisite educational qualification for the post held by him within two years and to that effect an order dated 09.02.1995 has also been passed by the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Barabanki.

6. Learned Counsel for the appellants-State has next contended that the respondent no.1 holding the post of Assistant Teacher Aaliya for which the basic qualification is Fazil or Kamil with three years teaching experience and respondent no.1 do not possess the requisite qualification and to that effect respondent no.1 submitted an affidavit before the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Barabanki to permit him to resume his duties with the undertaking that he will complete his education qualification for the said post but till date, the respondent no.1 had not completed the education qualification as provided in the Government Order. The respondent no.1 admittedly resumed his duties since 04.02.1995, which itself shows that he did not performed his duties from 01.10.1992 to 03.02.1995. The respondent no.1 after resuming his duty from 04.02.1995 had manipulated his service book from 1990 to 1999 and fixed his annual increments for the period, he has worked and succeeded in getting payment of Rs.43,486/- in collusion with the then District Minority Welfare Officer.

7. Per contra, learned Counsel appearing for the respondent no.1 has submitted that the respondent no.1 had not manipulated his service book from 1990-1999 after resuming his duties from 04.02.1995. He has also submitted that the annual increments were not given to the respondent no.1 w.e.f. 1990. The respondent no.1 had represented the matter to the higher authorities as well as the State Government. The State Government had scrutinized the matter and called for report from the authority concerned and thereafter came to the conclusion that since there is nothing adverse against the respondent no.1 and neither any disciplinary inquiry nor any department proceedings have ever been initiated against the respondent no.1 either for an alleged absence for the period in question or for the lack of qualification and, therefore, the State Government vide order dated 25.11.1999 directed the District Minority Welfare Officer, Barabanki that if there is no departmental/disciplinary proceedings against the respondent no.1, he should be awarded annual increments and also make payment of arrears of salary.

8. Learned Counsel appearing for the respondent no.1 has further submitted that in compliance of the order dated 25.11.1999, the then District Minority Welfare Officer, Barabanki inquired the matter and found that the question of qualification with respect to appointment of the respondent no.1 is not applicable against him and no reasonable ground is find out for not giving him annual increments in his salary and, therefore, his annual increments have been restored vide order dated 21.10.1999 and the proceedings are in process for preparation of arrears of salary bill with effect from October, 1992 up till 03.02.1995.

9. It has again been submitted by learned Counsel appearing for the contesting respondent that the salary of one Mr. Zaheer Anwar, Assistant Teacher and Mr. Siraj Ahsan, Assistant Teacher working with the petitioner were also stopped by the appellants but later on, the salary and arrears were paid to them in the year 1999 and 1993 respectively whereas the salary and arrears of the respondent no.1 from 01.10.1992 to 03.02.1995 have illegally been denied without assigning any reason. Therefore, the learned Single Judge after considering the entire material on record has found that the respondent no.1 is legally entitled for the salary and arrears for the said period as he had performed duty during the said period.

10. We have considered the submissions advanced by learned Counsel for the parties and perused the record.

11. Counter and rejoinder affidavits have been exchanged between the parties and the same are available on record.

12. After perusal of the record, we found that in the year 1992, the respondent no.1 had approached this Court by filing Writ Petition No.901 (SS) of 1992 on behalf of all the teachers and employees for non-payment of their salary which was withheld by the then Shiksha Adhikari from July, 1991 onward, which was allowed vide order dated 13.02.1992 with a direction to the District Basic Education Officer, Barabanki to make the payment of the salary of the teachers and the other employees who are working in the institution taking into account the records of the institution as well as the employees and last salary bill of staff of the institution. It was further directed that the arrears of teachers and other employees should also be paid and in future salary of the teachers and other employees should also be paid regularly. In pursuance to the order dated 13.02.1992, the salary of the respondent no.1 was paid till September, 1992. Again the salary of the respondent no.1 was stopped from the month of October, 1992 and against non-payment of salary, the respondent no.1 represented his case before higher authorities and also before the District Basic Education Officer including the District Magistrate, Barabanki.

13. It has also been argued by learned Counsel appearing for respondent no.1 that inspite of all efforts, when the salary of respondent no.1 was not paid by the District Basic Education Officer and by the other authorities concerned of the department, the respondent no.1 agitated the matter again and ultimately vide an order dated 03.09.1993 and 27.09.1993, the District Basic Education Officer had passed an order stating therein that if the respondent no.1 submits an affidavit to the effect that he is working in the institution from October, 1992 till date and in future he will also continue to work and put his signature on the attendance register. Inspite of the affidavit submitted by the respondent no.1, the salary of the petitioner has not been paid.

14. In the instant case, the respondent no.1 has argued that he is working regularly in the institution and, therefore, he is entitled for salary as was received by him in the past. It has been well recognised and settled that right to education is a fundamental right under Part III of the Constitution of India. It is a pious obligation of the State and the Society to provide education at all levels to all citizens and the State may discharge this obligation either through State owned or State recognised educational institutions and may get the aforesaid activity supplemented by the private institutions as well.

15. The respondent no.1 is continuously working in the institution and the said institution is also taking the service of the respondent no.1 but the salary has been denied which is contrary to the constitutional obligation. It is evident from the record that the petitioner has continuously work in the institution as a Teacher for the period in question, therefore, the respondent no. 1 legitimately expects to be adequately compensated for the work he has done.

16. Article 23 of the Constitution of India prohibits "Begar', which reads as under:

"23. Prohibition of traffic in human beings and forced labour.

(1) Traffic in human beings and begar and other similar forms of forced labour are prohibited and any contravention of this provision shall be an offence punishable in accordance with law.

(2) Nothing in this article shall prevent the State from imposing compulsory service for public purposes, and in imposing such service the State shall not make any discrimination on grounds only of religion, race, caste or class or any of them."

17. The aforesaid Article envisages to solve three unsocial practices prevailing in the India society namely;

i) Traffic in human beings;
ii) Begar; and
iii) similar forms of forced labour

18. In the present context, we are concerned with one of the evils of "Begar.' The word "Begar' is of Indian origin and has been adopted in the English vocabulary. It is understood to be a labour or service which a person is forced to give without receiving any remuneration for it. In other words extracting labour or service from a person by the government or by person in power without giving remuneration for it amounts to "Begar.' "Begar' can take different forms such as forced labour, taking work without remuneration or taking work without paying adequate remuneration or remuneration less than the minimum wages.

19. It is very difficult to formulate a precise definition of the word 'begar', but there can be no doubt that it is a form of forced labour under which a person is compelled to work without receiving any remuneration. Molesworth describes 'begar' as "labour or service exacted by a government or person in power without giving remuneration for it." Wilson's Glossary of Judicial and Revenue Terms gives the following meaning of the word 'begar': "a forced labourer, one pressed to carry burthens for individuals or the public. Under the old system, when pressed for public service, no pay was given. The Begari, though still liable to be pressed for public objects, now receives pay: Forced labour for private service is prohibited." Begar may therefore be loosely described as labour or service which a person is forced to give without receiving any remuneration for it. That was the meaning of the word 'begar' accepted by a Division Bench of the Bombay High Court in S. Vasudevan v. S.D. Mital: AIR 1962 Bom 53. 'Begar' is thus clearly a form of forced labour. Now it is not merely 'begar' which is unconstitutionally (sic) prohibited by Article 23 but also all other similar forms of forced labour. This Article strikes at forced labour in whatever form it may manifest itself, because it is violative of human dignity and is contrary to basic human values

20. In view of the above Constitutional mandate no Government or public body or a person can take work from anyone without paying remuneration or less remuneration then admissible or by force as it would be a clear violation not only of the fundamental right of a person but of a much superior human right which inheres in every individual.

21. In People's Union for Democratic Rights v. Union of India, (1982) 3 SCC 235 : AIR 1982 SC 1473, it has been observed that Article 23 of the Constitution of India protects individual not only against State but against private citizens and that Begar means labour or servive which a person is forced to give without receiving any remuneration or which is less than minimum wages. It amounts to violation of fundamental enshrined under Articles 17, 23 and 24 of the Constitution. It has further been laid down that it is the Constitutional obligation of the State to take necessary steps to stop such violation and ensuring observation of the fundamental right by private individuals who are transgressing the same.

22. The aforesaid decision has been followed in State of Gujarat v. Hon'ble High Court of Gujarat, (1998) 7 SCC 392 and where in context with the convicts it was held that all prisoners doing labour are entitle to equitable wages.

23. The learned Single Judge while passing the judgment and order dated 10.03.2010 found that there is no order of competent authority for withholding the salary of writ petitioner/ respondent no.1 for the period 01.10.1992 to 03.02.1995. The District Magistrate, Barabanki is neither the competent authority nor having any jurisdiction in the statute to withhold or stop the salary of respondent no.1/ writ petitioner rather the competent authorities were continuously directed to make payment of salary to the writ petitioner for the period in question.

24. Since the date of appointment i.e. 25.06.1987, the writ petitioner is continuously working on the post of Assistant Teacher in the institution of respondent no.4 and also is getting salary from the date of initial appointment except the period in question. It is admitted fact that the writ petitioner was not having experience qualification of three years for the post of Assistant Teacher at the time of initial appointment then why disciplinary proceedings or any action provided in the statute has not been taken against the writ petitioner by the competent authority rather the opposite parties allowed the writ petitioner to work on the said post of Assistant Teacher since last several years and also make payment of salary for the said post continuously except the period in question. The salary of the period in question has been withheld by the opposite parties is not on the ground of qualification rather the same has been withheld by the opposite parties on the ground that the attendance of the writ petitioner for the said period has not been verified by the Principal of the Institution whereas it is admitted fact that the regular principal of the Institution was placed under suspension by the Committee of Management at the relevant time and the writ petitioner being senior most Teacher of the Institution was allowed to work as Officiating Principal of the Institution.

25. From the perusal of the aforesaid facts and circumstances, it is clear that the dispute in question i.e. with respect to non-payment of arrears of salary to the writ petitioner for the period 01.10.1992 to 03.02.1995 is having no concerned with respect to the question of qualification or experience of the writ petitioner at the time of appointment on the post of Assistant Teacher in the Institution.

26. In view of above, we do not find any illegality or irregularity in the order dated 10.03.2010 passed by the learned Single Judge in Writ Petition No.1842 (SS) of 1994. Accordingly, the instant special appeal is dismissed.

A. Service – Compassionate appointment – The terminal benefits given to the family cannot be taken into consideration while deciding the status of the family for the purpose of consideration of compassionate appointment.
(Para 27 to 30)

B. No man should suffer because of the fault of the Court or delay in the procedure. It is evident that the petitioner has been vigilant in espousing his cause for compassionate appointment and his rightful claim was denied by the illegal and arbitrary act of respondent no. 3. There is no fault of the petitioner for the delay caused in adjudication of his claim, therefore, his rightful claim for compassionate appointment cannot be denied on the ground of delay. (Para 31 to 34)

C. Cause of action to claim compassionate appointment accrues on the date of death of deceased employee, therefore, the rules or scheme governing the compassionate appointment prevalent on the date of death of deceased employee is relevant for consideration of claim for compassionate appointment. In the present case, the F.C.I. had adopted the Central Government Circular dated 09.10.1998 by Circular No.EP-01200109 dated 14.05.2001 prior to the death of father of the petitioner, therefore, the Central Government Circular dated 09.10.1998 adopted by F.C.I. would govern the consideration of compassionate appointment of the petitioner. (Para 18, 19)

Petition assails order dated 09.11.2005, passed by Senior Regional Manager, Food Corporation of India, Lucknow.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Saral Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Rahul Jain, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Satya Prakash, learned counsel for the respondents.

2. The petitioner by means of the present petition has assailed the order dated 09.11.2005 passed by Senor Regional Manager, Food Corporation of India, Lucknow (respondent no.3) rejecting the claim of the petitioner for compassionate appointment.

3. The brief facts of the case are that one H.U. Khan, father of the petitioner, was working as a Technical Assistant (Ist) in Food Corporation of India (hereinafter referred to as 'F.C.I.'), who died-in-harness on 10.03.2002 leaving behind his widow, five sons including petitioner and four daughters. Out of four daughters, one is married. The petitioner is the eldest son of Late H.U. Khan. The entire responsibility of the family came on shoulder of petitioner being eldest son of Late H.U. Khan. The petitioner has passed Class IX and fulfills the eligibility criteria for appointment on Category-IV post under dying-in-harness scheme.

4. The petitioner submitted an application to the District Magistrate, Allahabad, respondent no.2, seeking appointment on compassionate ground. The petitioner claimed appointment on the compassionate ground on the basis of Circular No.7 of 1997 dated 31.03.1997 of F.C.I. which provided condition and eligibility criteria for appointment on compassionate ground. On submission of the said application, three member committee conducted an enquiry and submitted report to the respondent no.2 stating therein that no member of the family of the petitioner is in government department and members of the family do not have any source of income. The said report also stated that the widow of Late H.U. Khan is burdened with the responsibility of good education and marriage of three daughters, and sons and daughters of late H.U. Khan had given consent for the appointment of the petitioner on Category-IV post. The said report recommended for appointment of the petitioner on the compassionate ground.

5. Pursuant to the aforesaid report, respondent no.2 directed the respondent no.3 by letter dated 28/30.10.2003 for granting compassionate appointment to the petitioner. When no action was taken on the letter of respondent no.2, petitioner approached this Court by means of Writ Petition No. 42840 of 2005 (Safkatullah Khan Vs. Food Corporation of India and Others) wherein this Court by judgement and order dated 26.05.2005 directed the respondent no.3 to consider the grievance of the petitioner and pass orders within a period of three months.

6. Pursuant to the order of this Court, respondent no.3 rejected the claim of the petitioner by order dated 09.11.2005. Relevant extract of the order dated 09.11.2005 is extracted hereinbelow:-

"...

As per directions of the Govt of India vide circular No.14014/6/94 Estt. (d)dt. 8/9.10.1998. The following provision has been provided for compassionate appointment.

a). Appointment on compassionate grounds should be made only on regular basis and that too only if regular vacancies meant for that purpose are available.

b). Compassionate appointments can be made upto a maximum of 5% of vacancies falling under direct recruitment quota in any group 'C' or 'D' post. The appointing Authority may hold back upto 5% of vacancies in the aforesaid categories to be filled by direct recruitment through staff Selection Commission or otherwise so as to fill such vacancies by appointment on compassionate grounds. A person selected for appointment on compassionate grounds should be adjusted in the recruitment roster against the appropriate category viz SC/ST/OBC/Genl. depending upon the category to which he belongs. For example if he belongs to SC category he will be adjusted against the SC reservation point and if he belongs to ST/OBC he will be adjusted against ST/OBC point and if he belongs to Genl. category he will be adjusted against the vacancy point meant for Genl. Category.

c). While the ceiling of 5% for making compassionate appointment against regular vacancies should not be circumvented by making appointment of dependent family member of Govt. servant on casual case daily wage/adhoc/contract basis against regular vacancies, there is no bar to considering him for such appointment if he is eligible as per the normal rules/orders governing such appointments.

d). The ceiling of 5% of direct recruitment vacancies for making compassionate appointment should not be exceeded by utilising any other vacancy e.g. sports quota vacancy.

e). Employment under the scheme is not confined to the Ministry/Department/Office in which deceased/medically retired Government servant had been working. Such an appointment can be given any where under the Government of India depending upon availability of a suitable vacancy meant for the purpose of compassionate appointment.

f). If sufficient vacancies are not available in any particular office to accommodate the persons in the waiting list for compassionate appointment, it is open to administrative Ministry/Department/Office to take up the matter with other Ministries/Department/Offices of the Govt. of India to provide at an early date appointment on compassionate grounds to those in the waiting list.

So keeping in view the aforesaid provision and ceiling of 5% there exists no vacancy and hence the claim of the petitioner at this stage is not tenable and is hereby rejected. This disposes off the representation dated 17.9.2005 of the petitioner.

(Hukam Singh)
Senior Regional Manager"

7. A counter affidavit has been filed by respondents contending inter alia that Circular No.EP-01200109 dated 14.05.2001 of the F.C.I. had adopted the Central Government Circular dated 09.10.1998 for compassionate appointment, and such appointments are made as per the provisions contained in Government Circular dated 09.10.1998. It was further stated that F.C.I. had already paid terminal benefits of the father of the petitioner amounting to Rs.10,56,980/- (including GPF, Gratuity and other amounts); hence, petitioner had sufficient funds to meet immediate financial exigencies of the family. It further stated that since 5% posts of the direct recruitment on Category IV reserved for compassionate appointment were filled during the year 2000-01, therefore, no post was available in Category-IV and petitioner could not be considered for appointment due to non-availability of the post.

8. The F.C.I. further filed first supplementary affidavit wherein in paragraph 5(i), it is stated that no vacancy of Category-IV was available at the time of issue of order of respondent no.3 dated 9/10.11.2005. In paragraph 5(iv) of the said affidavit, it is stated that the cases upto Roaster No.516 were considered for Category-IV post for compassionate appointment during 2000-01, and no appointments were made thereafter as no vacancy existed. In paragraph 5 (v), it was further averred that petitioner's name in the roaster register is placed at 923. In paragraph 5(vii), it was further averred that case of the petitioner will be considered as per the prevalent scheme for compassionate appointment as and when vacancy arises.

9. F.C.I. filed second supplementary affidavit annexing therewith the letter/order dated 04.11.2011 by which claim of the petitioner was again rejected by referring several judgements of the Apex Court on the ground that F.C.I. had released terminal benefits amounting to Rs.10,65,809/-. The relevant extract of the said order is extracted hereinbelow:-

Reg: Compassionate Ground Appointment- Shri Shaflat Ula Khan.

Your candidature for compassionate ground appointment vides your application dated 5.11.2003 placed at zonal roster No. 923 for category IV post has been examined on merits for the years 2003 by the Zonal Empowered Committee and was rejected with the approval of the competent authority since no vacancy within ceiling limit of 5% of the DR quota exist. It may be noted that FCI follows Government of India instructions (and not by State Government rules) as contained in its Oms No. 14014/6/94-Estt (D) dated 9.10.1998 and No. 14014/19/2002-Estt (D) dated 5.5.2003

2. It has also observed that-

FCI released Rs.10,65,809/- as retiral benefits.

3. Further it may also be noted that Hon'ble Supreme Court in its various judgments has observed that - IN THE CASE OF UMESH KUMAR NAGPAL VERSUS HARYANA & OTHERS JT 1994(3) SC 525. Compassionate appointment cannot be granted after lapse of a reasonable period and it is not a vested right which can be exercised at any time in future.

IN THE CASE OF LIC ERSUS Mrs ASHA RAMCHANDRAN AMBEKAR & ORS (JT 1994(2) SC 183 DATED 28.2.1995 that the High Court and Administrative Tribunals cannot give direction for appointment of a person on compassionate grounds but can merely direct consideration of the claim for such an appointment.

IN THE CASE OF HARYANA STATE ELECTRICITY BOARD VS KRISHNA EVI 2002 Iij 773 the Apex Court while reiterating the objective of the compassionate appointment as laid down in the earlier cases further observed that the application made at a belated stage cannot be entertained for the reason that by lapse of time, the purpose of making such appointment stands evaporated.

IN STATE OF MANIPUR Vs MOHD RAJAODIN 2003 (7) SCC 511 the Apex Court reiterated that the purpose of giving compassionate appointment is only to mitigate hardship caused to the family of the deceased on account of his unexpected death in service, only to alleviate the distress of the family but at a belated stage as these grounds are no more in existence, therefore, the employment cannot be claimed or provided.

IN STATE BANK OF INDIA AND OTHERS Vs JASPAL KAUR JT 2007 (3) SC 35 that.....Hence a major criterion while appointing a person on compassionate grounds should be the financial condition of the family the deceased person left behind. Unless the financial condition is entirely penury, such appointments cannot be made."

IN THE CASE OF HARYANA STATE ELECTRICITY BOARD AND ANOTHER VS HAKIM SINGH JT 1997 (8) SC 332 the Apex Court cautioned that the object of providing compassionate employment is only to relieve the family from financial hardship. Therefore, an ameliorating relief should not be taken as opening of alternative mode of recruitment to public employment.

Yours Faithfully,
(T P PUNJ)
ASSTT GENL MANAGER (E.IX)
For EXECUTIE DIRECTOR (NORTH)"

10. The F.C.I. also annexed the copy of report dated 14.09.2018 of the committee constituted by competent authority to reassess the vacancy position from the year 1995 to 2017. For the purposes of the present case, vacancy position as noted in the report for the year 2003, 2004, 2005, 2006, 2007 & 2008 is extracted hereinbelow:-

11. In the rejoinder affidavit to the supplementary affidavit, petitioner stated that terminal benefits paid to the mother of the petitioner cannot be a ground to deny the compassionate appointment to the petitioner. The petitioner further pleaded that no opportunity of hearing was afforded to him before passing the impugned order. It has also been averred that even as per the report of respondents, right from the year 2005 vacant posts under 5% ceiling were available in the F.C.I., therefore, the claim of the petitioner has been wrongly rejected by respondent no.3.

12. Learned counsel for the petitioner has submitted that the order impugned in the writ petition rejecting the claim of the petitioner is non-speaking and without application of mind inasmuch as the said order did not consider the report of the committee constituted to enquire about the financial condition of the family as well as the size of family of the petitioner and liability of the family. He submits that the said report clearly states that widow has the liability to look after her three unmarried daughters. He further submits that the only reason on which claim of the petitioner was rejected by respondent no.3 is that no vacancy under 5% quota of direct recruitment reserved for compassionate appointment was available which is contrary to record inasmuch as, as per the vacancy position shown in the report dated 14.09.2018, the vacancy in category-IV post was available. He further submits that in the first supplementary affidavit of F.C.I. in paragraph 5(i), it is averred that no vacancy was available at the time of passing of order dated 9/10.11.2005 whereas as per the report dated 14.09.2018, there were vacancies in category-IV from 2004 onwards and as such, the reason assigned for rejecting the claim of petitioner is not sustainable. He further submits that claim of the petitioner has to be considered as per the scheme of compassionate appointment applicable on the date of cause of action for appointment under dying-in-harness scheme. In support of the said contention, he has placed reliance upon the judgement of Apex Court in the case of Canara Bank and Another Vs. A. Mahesh Kumar 2015 AIR 2411.

13. It is further urged by the learned counsel for the petitioner that the claim of the petitioner is to be considered in the light of scheme applicable for compassionate appointment, and in the present case, the scheme does not envisage the rejection of claim of petitioner on the ground of financial condition of family of deceased person. He submits that terminal benefits cannot be taken into account in considering the financial condition of the family. Accordingly, he submits that the rejection of claim of the petitioner for compassionate appointment on the ground of payment of terminal benefits of the father of the petitioner which is sufficient to meet the financial exigencies as stated in the letter of communication dated 04.11.2011 annexed with the second supplementary affidavit is not sustainable in law. In support of the said contention, he placed reliance upon the judgement of this Court in the case of Adams Paul & Another Vs. State Bank of India and Others 2015 33 LCD 2449 and Nirdesh Kumar Vs. State of U.P. & Others 2013 (2) UPLBEC 1356.

14. Per contra, learned counsel for the respondents submits that father of petitioner had died in the year 2002, and more than 18 years have elapsed and family of petitioner has survived, therefore, family is not in any financial stress. Hence, he submits that the present is not a case where compassionate appointment is to be given to the petitioner in order to tide over the financial stress of the family. In support of his aforesaid contention, he has placed reliance upon the judgement of this Court in the cases of Writ-A No.31020 of 2002 (Krishna Kumar Vs. Food Corporation of India and Others) and Writ A No.27326 of 2005 (Vijay Kumar Vs. Zonal Manager (N) Food Corporation and Others).

15. He further contends that terminal benefits of the father of the petitioner had been released, therefore, family of the petitioner is not in any financial stress and further, as there is no vacancy available with the F.C.I. in Category-IV, therefore, claim of the petitioner has rightly been rejected by respondent no.3. He further submits that Circular No.7 of 1997 dated 31.03.1997 of F.C.I. is not applicable in the present case.

16. To the aforesaid submission, learned counsel for the petitioner has submitted that petitioner is espousing his cause for compassionate appointment immediately after the death of his father, and the rightful claim of the petitioner for compassionate appointment was denied illegally and arbitrarily by the respondent no.3. Thus, the submission is that it is settled in law that no one should suffer for the fault of the court, and as there was no delay on the part of the petitioner in espousing his cause, the claim of the petitioner cannot be defeated on the ground of delay. In support of his contention, he has placed reliance upon the judgement of Apex Court in the case of Atma Ram Mittal Vs. Iswhar Singh Punia 1988 (4) SC 284 and another judgement of Apex Court in the case of Jayantibhai Raojibhai Patel Vs. Municipal Council, Narkhed & Others 2019 (9) JT 67 SC.

17. I have considered the rival submissions of the parties and perused the record.

18. As per petitioner, his claim for compassionate appointment is to be considered as per Circular No.7 of 1997 whereas according to the respondent the claim of the petitioner is to be considered as per Central Government Circular dated 09.10.1998 adopted by F.C.I. by Circular No.EP-01200109 dated 14.05.2001. To consider the said issue , it would be apt to refer paragraph 13 of the judgement of Apex Court in the case of Canara Bank and Another (supra) which is being extracted hereinbelow:-

"13. Applying these principles to the case in hand, as discussed earlier, respondent's father died on 10.10.1998 while he was serving as a clerk in the appellant-bank and the respondent applied timely for compassionate appointment as per the scheme "Dying in Harness Scheme' dated 8.05.1993 which was in force at that time. The appellant-bank rejected the respondent's claim on 30.06.1999 recording that there are no indigent circumstances for providing employment to the respondent. Again on 7.11.2001, the appellant-bank sought for particulars in connection with the issue of respondent's employment. In the light of the principles laid down in the above decisions, the cause of action to be considered for compassionate appointment arose when the Circular No.154/1993 dated 8.05.1993 was in force. Thus, as per the judgment referred in Jaspal Kaur's case, the claim cannot be decided as per 2005 Scheme providing for ex-gratia payment. The Circular dated 14.2.2005 being an administrative or executive order cannot have retrospective effect so as to take away the right accrued to the respondent as per circular of 1993."

19. The Apex Court in the aforesaid case has held that cause of action to claim compassionate appointment accrues on the date of death of deceased employee, therefore, the rules or scheme governing the compassionate appointment prevalent on the date of death of deceased employee is relevant for consideration of claim for compassionate appointment. In the present case, the F.C.I. had adopted the Central Government Circular dated 09.10.1998 by Circular No.EP-01200109 dated 14.05.2001 prior to the death of father of the petitioner, therefore, the Central Government Circular dated 09.10.1998 adopted by F.C.I. would govern the consideration of compassionate appointment of the petitioner.

20. Paragraph 7 of the Central Government Circular dated 09.10.1998 provides for Determination/Availability of vacancies which is being reproduced hereinbelow:-

"7. DETERMINATION/AVAILABILITY OF VACANCIES.

(a). Appointment on compassionate grounds should be made only on regular basis and that too only if regular vacancies meant for that purpose are available.

(b). Compassionate appointments can be made upto a maximum of 5% of vacancies falling under direct recruitment quota in any Group 'C' or 'D' post. The appointing authority may hold back upto 5% of vacancies in the aforesaid categories to be filled by direct recruitment through Staff Selection Commission or otherwise so as to fill such vacancies by appointment on compassionate grounds. A person selected for appointment on compassionate grounds should be adjusted in the recruitment roster against the appropriate category viz SC/ST/OBC/General depending upon the category to which he belongs. For example, if he belongs to SC category he will be adjusted against the SC reservation point, if he is ST/OBC he will be adjusted against ST/OBC point and if he belongs to General category he will be adjusted against the vacancy point meant for General category.

(c). While the ceiling of 5% for making compassionate appointment against regular vacancies should not be circumvented by making appointment of dependent family member of Government servant on casual/daily wage/ad-hoc/contract basis against regular vacancies, there is no bar to considering him for such appointment if he is eligible as per the normal rules/orders governing such appointments.

(d). The ceiling of 5% of direct recruitment vacancies for making compassionate appointment should not be exceeded by utilizing any other vacancy e.g. sports quota vacancy.

(e). Employment under the scheme is not confined to the Ministry/Department/Office in which deceased/medically retired Government servant had been working. Such an appointment can be given anywhere under the Government of India depending upon availability of a suitable vacancy meant for the purpose of compassionate appointment.

(f). If sufficient vacancies are not available in any particular office to accommodate the persons in the waiting list for compassionate appointment, it is open to the administrative Ministry/Department/Offices to take up the matter with other Ministries/Department/Offices of the Government of India to provide at an early date appointment on compassionate grounds to those in the waiting list."

21. Now, the court proceeds to consider as to whether the respondent no. 3 has rightly rejected the claim of the petitioner for compassionate appointment. The father of the petitioner died on 10.03.2002. On the application of the petitioner, there was a report of three members committee which recommended that the petitioner be given compassionate appointment under dying-in-harness scheme considering the liability and financial exigencies of the family. The said report clearly stated that the widow had responsibility of three daughters whom she had to look after and the burden of their marriage is also on her. The respondent no.2 by letter dated 28/30.10.2003 directed the respondent no.3 to appoint petitioner on compassionate ground. When the respondent no.3 did not comply with the direction of respondent no.2, the petitioner filed Writ Petition No. 42840 of 2005 which was disposed off by this court by order dated 26.05.2005 directing the respondent no.3 to consider the claim of the petitioner. Pursuant to the direction of this court , the respondent no.3 passed order dated 09.11.2005 rejecting the claim of the petitioner on the ground that no vacancy under 5% quota for direct recruitment is available.

22. Perusal of order dated 09.11.2005, extracted above, clearly reveals that respondent noted the relevant provisions of Circular dated 8/9.10.1998 providing procedure for compassionate appointment and rejected the claim of the petitioner by cryptic finding that as no vacancy under 5% quota reserved for compassionate appointment is available with F.C.I., therefore, petitioner cannot be appointed.

23. In the first supplementary affidavit of F.C.I, it is stated that no vacancy on the date of passing of order dated 9/10.11.2005 was available under 5% quota. The said averment as well as reason assigned in the impugned order are contrary to record inasmuch as report dated 14.09.2018 containing the vacancy position from 1995 to 2018 reveals that there were vacancies in Category-IV post from the year 2004 onwards. The said report gives the actual vacancy position as on 31st December of the relevant year, but it does not give the vacancy position quota wise. It is evident from the report that, there were 95 vacancies in Category-IV on 31st December 2004, 695 vacancies on 31st December 2005, 934 vacancies on 31st December 2006, 1042 vacancies on 31st December 2007 and so on. Thus, it is evident that sufficient number of vacancy were available with the F.C.I. from the year 2004 onwards.

24. At this juncture, it would be relevant to refer the order passed by this Court on 17.07.2019 whereby this Court directed the F.C.I. to file an affidavit giving total number of Category-IV posts as also 5% quota. The order of this Court dated 17.07.02019 is extracted hereinbelow:-

" A supplementary affidavit on behalf of respondents is stated to have been filed on 6.8.2009, which is not on record.

Office may trace it out and placed it on record.

Learned counsel for the respondents will also obtain instructions as to whether any vacancy has since been caused in the organization against which petitioner's compassionate appointment can be considered. The total number of class IV posts as also the 5% quota shall also be disclosed.

List on 31st July, 2019".

25. But despite the specific direction of this Court to provide details of 5% quota, the F.C.I. filed a report with the Second Supplementary Affidavit giving total number of vacancies, but nothing has been averred in the affidavit as to how no vacancy under 5% quota is available despite there is large number of vacancies in Category-IV.

26. It is further relevant to mention that the compassionate appointment is entirely different from an appointment by direct recruitment. The object and purpose of the compassionate appointment is to provide immediate succor to the family of deceased to tide over the financial crunch which had been caused due to the death of the bred earner of the family. The averment made in paragraph 5(1) of the first supplementary affidavit of F.C.I. that no vacancy under 5% quota exist is contrary to the report dated 14.09.2018 which gives year wise vacancy position of Category IV post. In this view of the fact, the reasons assigned in the impugned order that no vacancy under 5% quota is available with F.C.I. is contrary to record and not sustainable.

27. So far as the denial of claim of petitioner communicated by letter dated 04.11.2011 on the ground that terminal benefit to the family of petitioner had been released, therefore, family is not in any financial crunch is misconceived and not sustainable for the reasons that there is report of three members committee which recommended for appointment of petitioner on compassionate ground considering the hardship and liability of the family. The report clearly stated that the widow is burdened with the responsibility of three daughters whom she has to feed, provide good education and also perform their marriage.

28. At this stage, it would be pertinent to refer judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Govind Prakash Verma Vs. Life Insurance Corporation of India and Others 2005 (10) SCC 289 wherein the Apex Court has held that terminal benefits given to the family cannot be taken into consideration while deciding the status of the family for the purpose of consideration of compassionate appointment. Paragraph 6 of the said judgement is being extracted hereinbelow:-

"6. In our view, it was wholly irrelevant for the departmental authorities and the learned Single Judge to take into consideration the amount which was being paid as family pension to the widow of the deceased (which amount, according to the appellant, has now been reduced to half) and other amounts paid on account of terminal benefits under the Rules. The scheme of compassionate appointment is over and above whatever is admissible to the legal representatives of the deceased employee as benefits of service which one gets on the death of the employee. Therefore, compassionate appointment cannot be refused on the ground that any member of the family received the amounts admissible under the Rules. So far as the question of gainful employment of the elder brother is concerned, we find that it had been given out that he has been engaged in cultivation. We hardly find that it could be considered as gainful employment if the family owns a piece of land and one of the members of the family cultivates the field. This statement is said to have been contradicted when it is said that the elder brother had stated that he works as a painter. This would not necessarily be a contradiction much less leading to the inference drawn that he was gainfully employed somewhere as a painter. He might be working in his field and might casually be getting work as a painter also. Nothing has been indicated in the enquiry report as to where he was employed as a regular painter. The other aspects, on which the officer was required to make enquiries, have been conveniently omitted and not a whisper is found in the report submitted by the officer. In the above circumstances, in our view, the orders passed by the High Court are not sustainable. The respondents have wrongly refused compassionate appointment to the appellant. The inference of gainful employment of the elder brother could not be acted upon. The terminal benefits received by the widow and the family pension could not be taken into account."

29. It would be apposite to refer judgement of this Court in the case of Nirdesh Kumar (supra) wherein this Court has held that if the compassionate appointment is denied on the ground that family has received terminal benefits that would frustrate the object of dying-in-harness rules. Para 9 and 10 of the judgement is extracted hereinbelow:-

"9. Rule-5 provides that in case, the spouse of the deceased employee is not in government service then one member of his family who is not under the service of Government or Government Corporation be given suitable employment. Thus employment of any other member of family, except spouse, is irrelevant. The legislature was cautious of the fact that employed children of the deceased may not take responsibility of other unemployed children in the present atmosphere of the society. Rule-6 prescribes the content of the application for compassionate appointment. Under Rule-6 (d) details of financial condition of the family is required to be disclosed. As the very object of compassionate appointment is to provide employment to the one member of the family of the deceased employee which use to come to the stage of penury due to sudden death of bread earner as such financial condition of the family is a relevant consideration. This Court in the cases of State Bank of India and others Vs. Ram Piyare and others, 2001 (2)

U.P.L.B.E.C. 1597; Sharda Devi (Smt.) Vs. District Magistrate/Collector, Ghaziabad and Others, 2003 (2) U.P.L.B.E.C. 1134; Pramod Kumar Rajak Vs. Registrar General High Court Allahabad, 2011(4) U.P.L.B.E.C. 2692 and Writ - A No. 64494 of 2009 Surem Devi vs. State of U.P. & Others, decided on 30.04.2012 and Supreme Court in Govind Prakash Verma v. LIC of India, (2005) 10 SCC 289 have held that while deciding the financial status of the family for the purposes of compassionate appointment, the terminal benefits received on the death of the employee or the pension granted to the widow are required to be ignored. Relevant portion of the judgment of Govind Prakash Verma (supra) is quoted below:

"In our view, it was wholly irrelevant for the departmental authorities and the learned Single Judge to take into consideration the amount which was being paid as family pension to the widow of the deceased (which amount, according to the appellant, has now been reduced to half) and other amounts paid on account of terminal benefits under the Rules. The scheme of compassionate appointment is over and above whatever is admissible to the legal representatives of the deceased employee as benefits of service which one gets on the death of the employee. Therefore, compassionate appointment cannot be refused on the ground that any member of the family received the amounts admissible under the Rules. So far as the question of gainful employment of the elder brother is concerned, we find that it had been given out that he has been engaged in cultivation. We hardly find that it could be considered as gainful employment if the family owns a piece of land and one of the members of the family cultivates the field."

10. The condition of the family of the petitioner is that the two elder brothers are married and have their own family and are living separately. The burden of marriage of unmarried daughter of the deceased is still on the widow of the deceased. The pension received by the deceased will continue during the life of the widow only. Thus the terminal benefits as well as the pension received by the widow mother is not relevant consideration for deciding the application for compassionate appointment. In case, compassionate appointment is denied on account of terminal benefits and pension granted to the widow, then the object of the Rule, 1974 will be frustrated, as in most of the cases, these benefits are provided on the death of the employees".

30. Thus, in view of settled position of law that the claim of compassionate appointment cannot be rejected on the ground of payment of terminal dues to the bereaved family, the rejection of claim of the petitioner by respondent no.3 on the ground that terminal benefits have been given to the widow of the deceased is not sustainable for the reasons given above.

31. So far as the submission of learned counsel for the respondents that sufficient time has elapsed and as urgent need to provide financial succor to the family has lost its purpose on account of the delay, therefore, no relief can be granted to the petitioner at this stage, it would be worth to point out that the two judgements relied upon by the learned counsel for the respondents have not considered the settled principle of law that no person should suffer for the fault of the court.

32. It would be worth mentioning paragraph 8 of the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Atma Ram Mittal (supra) wherein the Apex Court has held that no one should suffer for the fault of the court. Paragraph 8 of the judgment is extracted hereinbelow:-

"8 It is well-settled that no man should suffer because of the fault of the Court or delay in the procedure. Broom has stated the maxim "actus curiam neminem gravabit"-an act of Court shall prejudice no, man. Therefore, having regard to the time normally consumed for adjudication, the 10 years exemption or holiday from the application of the Rent Act would become illusory, if the suit has to be filed within that time and be disposed of finally. It is common knowledge that unless a suit is instituted soon after the date of letting it would never be disposed of within 10 years and even then within that time it may not be disposed of. That will make the 10 years holidays from the Rent Act illusory and provide no incentive to the landlords to build new houses to solve problem of shortages of houses. The purpose of legislation would thus be defeated. Purposive interpretation in a social amelioration legislation is an imperative irrespective of anything else"

33. It is also relevant to refer paragraph 38.6 of the judgement of Apex Court in the case of Deepali Surwase quoted in paragraph 11 of the Apex Court judgement in the case of Jayantibhai Raojibhai Patel (supra), which is being extracted hereinbelow:-

"11.In Deepali Surwase, the appellant had been employed as a teacher in a primary school run by a trust. The services of the appellant had been terminated by the management of the school pursuant to an ex-parte inquiry proceeding. The School Tribunal quashed the termination of the appellant"s services and issued a direction for the grant of full back wages. In appeal, the High Court affirmed the view of the Tribunal that the termination was illegal, but set aside the direction for grant of back wages. In appeal, a two-judge Bench of this Court laid down the following principles:

"22. The very idea of restoring an employee to the position which he held before dismissal or removal or termination of service implies that the employee will be put in the same position in which he would have been but for the illegal action taken by the employer. The injury suffered by a person, who is dismissed or removed or is otherwise terminated from service cannot easily be measured in terms of money...The reinstatement of such an employee, which is preceded by a finding of the competent judicial/quasi-judicial body or court that the action taken by the employer is ultra vires the relevant statutory provisions or the principles of natural justice, entitles the employee to claim full back wages. If the employer wants to deny back wages to the employee or contest his entitlement to get consequential benefits, then it is for him/her to specifically plead and prove that during the intervening period the employee was gainfully employed and was getting the same emoluments. The denial of back wages to an employee, who has suffered due to an illegal act of the employer would amount to indirectly punishing the employee concerned and rewarding the employer by relieving him of the obligation to pay back wages including the emolument."

(Emphasis supplied)

The Court laid down the following principles to govern the payment of back wages:

"38.1….

38.2. …

38.3.…

38.6. In a number of cases, the superior courts have interfered with the award of the primary adjudicatory authority on the premise that finalisation of litigation has taken long time ignoring that in majority of cases the parties are not responsible for such delays. Lack of infrastructure and manpower is the principal cause for delay in the disposal of cases. For this the litigants cannot be blamed or penalised. It would amount to grave injustice to an employee or workman if he is denied back wages simply because there is long lapse of time between the termination of his service and finality given to the order of reinstatement. The courts should bear in mind that in most of these cases, the employer is in an advantageous position vis-à-vis the employee or workman. He can avail the services of best legal brain for prolonging the agony of the sufferer i.e. the employee or workman, who can ill-afford the luxury of spending money on a lawyer with certain amount of fame. Therefore, in such cases it would be prudent to adopt the course suggested in Hindustan Tin Works (P) Ltd. v. Employees [Hindustan Tin Works (P) Ltd. v. Employees, (1979) 2 SCC 80 : 1979 SCC (L & S) 53] "

34. From the facts narrated above, it is evident that the petitioner has been vigilant in espousing his cause for compassionate appointment and his rightful claim for compassionate appointment was denied by the illegal and arbitrary act of the respondent no.3. Further, there is no fault of the petitioner for the delay caused in adjudication of the claim of the petitioner for compassionate appointment, therefore, the rightful claim of the petitioner for compassionate appointment cannot be denied on the ground of delay in view of the settled principle of law that no one should suffer for the fault of the court.

35. Thus, for the reasons given above, the impugned order dated 09.11.2005 and communication letter dated 04.11.2011 (Annexure no.1 to the second supplementary affidavit) are not sustainable in law and are set aside. The writ petition is allowed and the competent authority is directed to reconsider the claim of the petitioner in the light of observations made above and pass appropriate order within a period of two months from the date of production of certified copy of this order.

A. Service Law – Appointment under Dying in Harness Rules – U.P. Recruitment of Dependent of Government Servants Dying in Harness Rules, 197-Section 2(c) – Unmarried sister may be included in the definition of 'family', if her brother i.e. the deceased government servant was unmarried. In the present case, the deceased government servant was married, therefore, the petitioner cannot be included in the definition of 'family'. (Para 6, 7)

Writ petition dismissed. (E-4)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajesh Singh Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Sri A.K. Jauhari, learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri Ran Vijay Singh, learned Addl. C.S.C. for the State respondents and Sri Gaurav Mehrotra, learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2.

2. By means of this petition the petitioner has prayed that the opposite parties be directed to appoint the petitioner under Dying in Harness Rules on suitable post.

3. The present petitioner is unmarried sister of late employee, namely Sanjay Kumar Singh who was serving on the post of 'Orderly' at District Judgeship, Lucknow.

4. The contention of learned counsel for the petitioner is that since the employee died on 15.6.2015 during the service period leaving behind old aged mother, daughters namely Km. Riya aged about 11 years, Km. Saloni aged about 9 years and the petitioner who is unmarried sister. The wife of late employee died on 4.7.2010, before the death of the deceased employee. All the aforesaid family members were totally dependent upon the late employee, therefore, learned counsel for the petitioner has contended that in view of the provisions of U.P. Recruitment of Dependent of Government Servants Dying in Harness Rules, 1974 the petitioner should be given any appointment under the aforesaid rules.

5. Sri Gaurav Mehrotra, learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2 has drawn attention of this Court towards the definition of 'family' which has been given under section 2(c) which reads as under :

"2(c) "family" shall include the following relations of the deceased Government servant:

(i) Wife or husband;

(ii) Sons / adopted sons;

(iii) Unmarried daughters, unmarried adopted daughters, widowed daughters and widowed daughters and widowed daughter-in-law;

(iv) unmarried brothers, unmarried sisters and widowed mother dependent on the deceased Government Servant, if the deceased Government servant was unmarried;

(v) aforementioned relations of such missing Government servant who has been declared as "dead" by the competent Court;

Provided that if a person belonging to any of the above mentioned relations of the deceased Government servant is not available or is found to be physically and mentally unfit and thus ineligible for employment in Government service, then only in such situation the word "family" shall also include the grandsons and the unmarried granddaughters of the deceased Government servant dependent on him."

6. On the basis of aforesaid definition only that unmarried sister may be included in the definition of 'family' if her brother

i.e. the deceased government servant was unmarried. However, in the present case the deceased government servant was married and was having two minor daughters, therefore, present petitioner may not be included in the definition of 'family'.

7. Having heard learned counsel for the petitioner and having perused the material available on record, I am of the considered opinion that since the present petitioner who is unmarried sister of the deceased government servant who was married when he died in harness, therefore, she cannot be included in the definition of 'family'.

8. Accordingly no direction as prayed in the writ petition may be issued, therefore, the writ petition is misconceived and is accordingly dismissed.

9. No order as to costs.

10. However, there is no need to provide liberty to the petitioner to challenge the rules inasmuch as it is always open for the aggrieved person to challenge any rules, if he / she is aggrieved out of those rules.

A. Service Law– Recruitment/Promotion – Violation of principle of natural justice - Constitution of India: Articles 14, 16, 311; U.P. State District Court Service Rules, 2013: Schedule B, Column 2 at Serial No. 5, Rules 3(3), 4, 5, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 19; U.P. Subordinate Civil Courts Ministerial Establishment Rules, 1947; U.P. Subordinate Civil Courts Inferior Establishment Rules, 1955; U.P. State District Court Services (First Amendment) Rules, 2017

Validity of Schedule B Column 2 at Serial 5 of Rules, 2013: Under Rules, 1947, there was no provision permitting promotion of Group D employees to Group C post but such a mode of recruitment was provided by Government Order dated 01.01.1970 and for promotion of Group D employees in Group C in District Judgeships the same was extended by this Court's Circular dated 05.02.1973 and since then till promulgation of Rules, 2013 promotions have been made from Group D to Group C to the extent of 20% as and when vacancies had occurred following the manner of such promotion, i.e., written examination, interview and typing test provided in the GO dated 01.01.1970 and on.

In supercession of all the Rules framed prior to enforcement of Rules, 2013, new set of Rules were framed wherein also there was no provision permitting Group D employees as one of the course of recruitment in Group C by considering eligible Group D employees for promotion. GO dated 01.01.1970 and subsequent GOs issued as such were not part of Rules, 1947 or any other Rule but issued independently containing own method of promotion and eligibility conditions and applied for promotion of Group D employees to Group C in District Judgeships by this Court's Circular dated 05.02.1973.

Therefore, it was held that Rules, 2013, when provided that all earlier Rules are being superseded, did not include the independent Government orders issued from time to time commencing from 01.01.1970. Hence, what was practiced and followed in respect of Rules, 1947 after issue of GO dated 01.01.1970 and subsequent GOs, making amendment therein, continued even after enactment of Rules, 2013 and, therefore, promotion of petitioners cannot be said to be invalid or illegal as the same were made admittedly in accordance with procedure laid down in said Government orders. (Para 11, 25)

Court did not find it necessary to go into the validity of Rules, 2013, since inferred that relevant GOs had continued to provide source of recruitment by promotion of Group D employees to Group C. (Para 25)

B. Rules, 2013 as amended in 2017, are totally different than the Government orders (dated 01.01.1970, 31.08.1982 and 03.09.1995) and hence Government orders would cease to apply on and after 21.06.2017 when Amendment Rules, 2017, came into force and a different procedure for promotion to Group D employees has been adopted and till then earlier GOs, held the field hence promotion of petitioners made thereunder cannot be said to be vitiated in law and illegal, hence impugned orders cannot be sustained. (Para 26)

Writ petitions allowed. (E-4)

Precedent followed:

1. Rajesh Kumar Srivastava Vs. St. of U.P. & ors., 2009 (1) AWC 239 (Para 9)

2. Y.V. Rangaiah & ors. Vs. J. Sreenivasa Rao & ors., (1983) 3 SCC 284 (Para 11)

Present petition assails order dated 27.05.2017, issued by District Judge, Kannauj.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal, J.)

1. Writ-A No. 27362 of 2017 (hereinafter referred to as 'WP-1') has been filed by seven petitioners, namely, Ram Tirath, Shailendra Kumar Awasthi, Subhash Chandra Shukla, Ravindra Singh, Sumit Kumar, Manoj Kumar Jaiswal and Raman Singh challenging validity of Schedule B Column 2 at Serial No. 5 relating to recruitment on the post of Junior Assistant/Copyist (Group-C post) of U.P. State District Court Service Rules, 2013 (hereinafter referred to as 'Rules, 2013') as ultra vires, being violative of Articles 14 and 16 of the Constitution of India. Petitioners have also prayed for issue of writ of certiorari to quash order dated 27.05.2017 (Annexure-4 to the writ petition) issued by District Judge, Kannauj in compliance of Administrative Committee's resolution dated 16.11.2016, communicated by Court's letter dated 19.05.2017, reverting petitioners to Group D cadre from Group C.

2. Facts, in brief, as pleaded in WP-1 are that petitioners were appointed in Group D cadre in Judgeship Kannauj on 10.03.2005, 27.07.2005, 02.07.2002, 21.08.2003, 17.09.2005, 04.11.2004 and 04.11.2004 respectively. Earlier recruitment on the posts in ministerial cadre in Subordinate Courts in State of U.P. was governed by the provisions made in U.P. Subordinate Civil Courts Ministerial Establishment Rules, 1947 (hereinafter referred to as 'Rules, 1947'). Similarly, recruitment and appointments to the posts in Group D Inferior services were governed by U.P. Subordinate Civil Courts Inferior Establishment Rules, 1955 (hereinafter referred to as Rules, 1955). In supersession of aforesaid Rules and some others, a comprehensive set of Rules regulating recruitment and other conditions of service of various Group D and Group C posts in District Judgeships were made, i.e., Rules, 2013 published in U.P. Gazette (Extraordinary) dated 04.07.2013 and by virtue of Rule 1, it came into force from the date of publication in official gazette.

3. The posts, which were brought within the purview of Rules, 2013 are given by designations in Column 2 of Schedule A read with Rule 3 (2) of Rules, 2013. By virtue of Rule 3 (3) read with Schedule B Column 2, designations and categories of posts have been revised from the date of commencement of Rules, 2013 i.e. 04.07.2013. Chapter III deals with recruitment and contains Rules 4 to 18. Method of recruitment and qualification etc. are governed by Rule 4 read with Schedule B Columns 3 and 4 and procedure for appointment is provided in Rule 5. Both the Rules are reproduced as under:-

*"4. Method of recruitment, qualifications etc.--In respect of each category of posts of the service specified in column (2) of Schedule 'B', the method of recruitment and minimum qualification shall be as specified in the corresponding entries in columns (3) and (4) thereof.

5. Procedure of appointment. - Subject to the provisions of these rules, recruitment to any category of post in the service shall be made by the Selecting Authority.-

(1) In the case of recruitment by direct recruitment, after giving wide publicity in at least two newspapers, one in Hindi and one in English of State level having wide circulation in that district concerned.

(2) In the case of recruitment by promotion, by the Selecting Authority on the basis of criteria laid down in Schedule 'B' subject to fitness of the candidate to discharge the duties of the post, from among the persons eligible for promotion."

(emphasis added)

4. Rule 9 provides further procedure for direct recruitment which consists of written examination and interview and thereafter list of selected candidates is to be prepared as per Rule 12. Rule 13 provides the manner in which appointments are to be made. Rule 14 talks of duration of operation of select list prepared under Rule 12. Rules 9, 10, 11, 12, 13 and 14 are reproduced as under:-

*"9. Direct Recruitment:- (1) The Appointing Authority shall intimate the Selecting Authority in the month of July every year the number of vacancies existing and likely to occur during the year of recruitment for direct recruitment in different category of posts. The Selecting Authority shall invite applications by giving vide publicity indicating the total number of vacancies notified for recruitment and the number of vacancies reserved for different reserved categories.

(2) The Selecting Authority may short-list the candidates to be called for the written examination equal to twenty five times the number of vacancies notified on the basis of the marks obtained in the qualifying examination given in Schedule 'B' or by a preliminary objective test.

(3) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in these Rules, the Appointing Authority and the Selecting Authority with regard to conduct of examination and selection shall act in accordance with general or special orders issued by Hon'ble Chief Justice of the High Court, from time to time.

10. Eligibility of candidates for the interview- (1) For the purpose of* selection of the candidates for the interview, the appointing authority shall prepare a list of names of candidates on the basis of percentage of the total marks secured in the written examination in the order of merit and if two or more candidates have secured equal percentage of total marks in the written examination, the order of merit in respect of such candidates shall be fixed on the basis of their age, the person or persons older in age being placed higher in order of merit. From among the candidates whose names are included in such list*, as far as may be,* such number of candidates as is equal to five times the number of vacancies notified*, selected in the order of merit, shall be eligible for the interview:*

(2) For the purpose of this rule,-

''Written examination' means the competitive examination held by the Selecting Authority as per syllabus given in Schedule 'C'.

11. Interview*.--Selecting Authority shall interview the eligible candidates selected under Rule 10 and award marks on the basis of their performance in the interview. The object of such interview is to assess the suitability of the candidates for appointment to the cadre or the post applied for by them and their calibre including intellectual and social traits of personality.*

12. List of Selected candidates.- (1) The Selecting Authority shall on the basis of the aggregate of the percentage of the total marks secured in the written examination as determined under Rule 10 and of the marks secured at the interview under Rule 11 and taking into consideration the orders in force relating to reservation of posts for Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes, Other Backward Classes and others prepare in the order of merit a list of the candidates eligible for appointment to the category of post and if the aggregate of the percentage of total marks secured in the written examinations as determined under Rule 10, and of the marks secured at the interview under Rule 11, of two or more candidates is equal, the order of merit in respect of such candidates shall be fixed on the basis of their age, the person or persons older in age being placed higher in the order of merit. The number of names of the candidates to be included in such list shall be equal to the number of the vacancies notified for the recruitment.

(2) The Selecting Authority shall in accordance with the provisions of sub-rule (1) also prepare an additional list of names of the candidates not included in the list prepared under sub-rule (1) in which the number of candidates to be included shall, as far as possible, be ten percent of the number of vacancies notified.

(3) The lists so prepared under sub-rule (1) and (2) shall be pasted on the notice board of the Judgeship on the same day on which interview is held or on the next working day and a copy of the same shall be forwarded to the High Court.

13. Appointment of candidates.- (1) Subject to Rules 15 and 16 candidates whose names are included in the list prepared under sub-rule (1) and published under sub-rule (3) of Rule 12 may be appointed by the appointing authority in the vacancies in the particular cadre in the order in which the names are found in the list after satisfying itself, after such inquiry as may be considered necessary that each such candidate is suitable in all respects for appointment to a post in the cadre. Candidates whose names are included in the list prepared under sub-rule (2) and published under sub-rule (3) of Rule 12 may be similarly appointed after the candidates whose names are included in the list prepared under sub-rule (1) of Rule 12 have been appointed.

(2) The inclusion of the name of a candidate in any list published under Rule 12, shall not confer any right of appointment.

14. Duration of operation of the lists.- The list of names of the candidates published by the Selecting Authority under Rule 12 in respect of any cadre shall cease to be operative on appointment of the last advertised vacancy or one year whichever is earlier." (emphasis added)

5. District Judge, Kannauj sent a letter dated 22.02.2016 with reference to Government Orders dated 01.01.1970, 31.08.1982 and 03.09.1995 dealing with subject of promotion of Group D employees to Group C, informing that there are total 117 Group C sanctioned posts, where against 103 employees are working and therefore, 14 posts of Junior Assistants are vacant; 23 vacancies of Group C comes within the quota of promotion from Group D to Group C where against 16 Group D employees after promotion are working, therefore, seven vacancies for promotion in Group D to Group C are available, hence, he sought permission of this Court to fill in those seven vacancies of Group C by promotion from Group D employees. Vide letter dated 30.03.2016 sent by Joint Registrar (Judicial), permission was granted with reference to Government Order dated 03.09.1995.

6. For making promotion of Group D employees to Group C in accordance with Government Order dated 03.09.1995, District Judge constituted a Committee which published notice dated 31.03.2016 inviting applications from Group D employees of District Judgeship Kannauj who have completed five years of continuous service, possess educational qualification upto High School or Intermediate or equivalent thereto and conversant with typing. Procedure for selection comprised of written test, evaluation of character rolls and interview.

7. In the aforesaid selection, all the petitioners were declared successful and selected whereupon, vide order dated 08.04.2016, District Judge, Kannauj promoted them in Group C posts and placed them on probation for two years with reference to Rule 19 Chapter IV of Rules, 2013.

8. All the petitioners joined pursuant to promotion order dated 08.04.2016, started working on their respective Group C post and were getting salary. Petitioners were also sent for computer training programme pursuant to this Court's order dated 03.11.2016 to Judicial Training and Research Institute, U.P., Lucknow where they completed their training.

9. All of sudden, District Judge, Kannauj passed impugned order dated 27.05.2017 cancelling petitioners' promotion and reverting them to Group D post. Aforesaid order has been challenged on the ground of violation of principle of natural justice and Article 311 of Constitution of India as no enquiry has been conducted.

10. It is further stated by petitioners that earlier recruitment and appointment to Group C was governed by Rules, 1947. For promotion from Group D to Group C first, a Government Order was issued on 01.01.1970. This Government Order providing promotion of Group D employees to Group C was adopted and made applicable to Subordinate Courts, vide High Court's Circular dated 05.02.1973. Though under Rules, 2013, no such promotion of Group D employees to Group C has been recognized but in absence of anything to show that Government Orders providing promotion of Group D employees to Group C are superseded, the said Government Orders must be deemed to have continued in force despite enforcement of Rules, 2013. Relying on a Division Bench Judgment of this Court in Rajesh Kumar Srivastava Vs. State of U.P. and others, 2009 (1) AWC 239, it is said that manner in which promotions are made from Group D to Group C has been clearly stated in para 33 of said Judgement, which reads as under:-

"33. The menace of such illegal and arbitrary selection for whatever reasons has acquired alarming proportion and has almost continued unabated. Therefore, it requires to be dealt with an iron hand forthwith. Conscious of the fact that we are not supposed to legislate, but in order to control the malady of such unlawful selection at least in subordinate judiciary*, in exercise of supervisory jurisdiction, we consider it suitable in the fitness of things to lay down the* following guidelines to facilitate fair selection by supplementing the Rules in the area in which they are silent.

1. A selection committee of three persons headed by the District Judge concerned and two senior most judicial officers of the judgeship be constituted in every judgeship.

2. First of all, every year all class - III posts within the promotional quota from amongst the class - IV employees be filled up and the process in this regard be completed latest by 31st December every year

3. Thereafter, all the vacancies of class - III and class - IV posts in each judgeship, as far as possible, may be advertised in a district level newspaper in the month of January/February every year so that the selection process is completed by 31st of March every year.

4. The selection process should be based upon a written test of maximum 75 marks to test the workable knowledge of Hindi followed by an interview of maximum 25 marks.

5. On the basis of merit in written test candidates to a maximum of thrice the number of vacancies advertised to be filled up, should ordinarily be called for interview.

6. A combined merit list on the basis of the marks obtained in written test and interview should be drawn along with a waiting list of equal number of candidates as the vacancy advertised and then the selection be made from the said merit list. " (emphasis added)

11. Petitioners further have averred that Group C vacancies on which petitioners were selected occurred much before the enforcement of Rules, 2013 and, therefore, have to be filled in accordance with procedure as it was prior to enforcement of Rules, 2013 and, for this proposition reliance is placed on Y.V. Rangaiah and others Vs. J. Sreenivasa Rao and others, (1983) 3 SCC 284. In any case, promotions having been made after permission granted by this Court, it cannot be said that promotions were bad.

12. Challenging validity of Rules, 2013, which provided only direct recruitment as a source of recruitment to the posts of Junior Assistant/Copiest (Group C post), it is contended that right of Group D employees for promotion, which permits promotional avenues to them has been defeated by aforesaid Rules, 2013 after almost four decades without rhyme and reason and denial of promotion to Group D to Group C, therefore, is patently arbitrary, irrational and violative of Article 14 of Constitution. It is further stated that Rules, 2013 have now been amended by U.P. State District Court Services (First Amendment) Rules, 2017 (hereinafter referred to as 'Amendment Rules 2017') published in U.P. Gazette Extraordinary dated 21.06.2017. By virtue of Rule 1 (ii) of Amendment Rules, 2017, the amendment has come into force from the date of publication in official gazette. Rules 4, 5 and 12 of Rules, 2013 quoted above are amended by Amendment Rules, 2017 and the amended provisions are reproduced as under:-

*"4. Method of recruitment, qualifications etc.--In respect of each category of posts of the service specified in column (2) of Schedule 'B', the method of recruitment and minimum qualification shall be as specified in the corresponding entries in columns (3) and (4) thereof."

"5. Procedure of appointment. - Subject to the provisions of these rules, recruitment to any category of post in the service shall be made by the Selecting Authority.-

*(1) In the case of recruitment by direct recruitment, after giving wide publicity in at least two daily newspapers, one in Hindi and one in English of State level having wide circulation in that district and also in Employment news and other like publication and also on the website of the High Court. In addition to it the names may be requisitioned from local Employment Exchange. The advertisement apart from other necessary particulars shall also specify in clear terms, the number of posts available for selection and recruitment, the qualifications and other eligibility criteria for such posts and the Rules under which the selection and recruitment is to be made.

(2) In the case of recruitment by promotion, by the Selecting Authority on the basis of criteria laid down in Schedule 'B' subject to fitness of the candidate to discharge the duties of the post, from among the persons eligible for promotion."

"12. List of Selected candidates.- (1) The Selecting Authority shall on the basis of the aggregate of the percentage of the total marks secured in the written examination as determined under Rule 10 and of the marks secured at the interview under Rule 11 and taking into consideration the orders in force relating to reservation of posts for Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes, Other Backward Classes and others prepare in the order of merit a list of the candidates eligible for appointment to the category of post and if the aggregate of the percentage of total marks secured in the written examinations as determined under Rule 10, and of the marks secured at the interview under Rule 11, of two or more candidates is equal, the order of merit in respect of such candidates shall be fixed on the basis of their age, the person or persons older in age being placed higher in the order of merit. The number of names of the candidates to be included in such list shall be equal to the number of the vacancies notified for the recruitment.

(2) The Selecting Authority shall in accordance with the provisions of sub-rule (1) also prepare an additional list of names of the candidates not included in the list prepared under sub-rule (1) in which the number of candidates to be included shall, as far as possible, be ten percent of the number of vacancies notified.

(3) The lists so prepared under sub-rule (1) and (2) shall be pasted on the notice board of the Judgeship on the same day on which interview is held or on the next working day and a copy of the same shall be forwarded to the High Court."

(emphasis added)

13. Schedule B Serial No. 5 Column 2 has also been substituted by Amendment Rules, 2017 and substituted provision reads as under:-

"(a) Eighty percent by direct recruitment by holding competitive test.
(b) Twenty percent by promotion from amongst Group "D" employees on the basis of seniority subject to rejection of the unfit with minimum of five years substantive and satisfactory service having qualification upto High School:
Provided that the post of Amin Grade-II shall be filled only by the direct recruitment." (emphasis added)

14. It is contended that by way of amendment, now 20 per cent vacancies in Group 'C' are made available for promotion to Group D employees, therefore, result is that this promotion quota stands denied to Group D employees only for the period when Rules, 2013 were implemented, i.e., from 04.07.2013 till Amendment Rules, 2017 came into force, i.e., 21.06.2017. Denial of promotion to Group D employees only for this period of about four years i.e., 04.07.2013 to 20.06.2017, on account of faulty drafting of Rules, 2013 wherein right of promotion of Group D employees was excluded without any rhyme and reason, is patently discriminatory and arbitrary. It is further stated that while Rules, 2013 were being framed, this flaw was noticed and Court made correspondence for making proper correction but Rules, 2013 were published and State took four years in rectifying the mistake without any logic or rationale, therefore, denial of promotion for a limited period, that too, for the fault/ mistake committed in draft of Rules, 2013 is illegal. Petitioners and similarly placed other Group D employees cannot be made to suffer, hence, denial of promotion to petitioners during 04.07.2013 to 20.06.2017, under Rules, 2013, is patently arbitrary and discriminatory.

15. Contesting WP-1, a counter affidavit has been filed on behalf of Respondents 2, 3 and 4 sworn by Sri Ajay Kumar Srivastava, Additional District Judge, FTC-I, Kannauj. It is not disputed that petitioners were appointed on various posts in Group D in District Judgeship Kannauj and also confirmed thereon on various dates. The promotions of petitioners from Group D to Group C by District Judge Kannauj are also not disputed. However, it is submitted that under Rules, 2013, there was only one source of recruitment to Group C i.e. direct recruitment. Till amendment made on 21.06.2017, Rules, 2013 did not provide any promotion of Group D to Group C, hence, promotion of petitioners during that period was patently illegal being de hors Rules, 2013. Therefore, order passed by the District Judge, pursuant to resolution dated 16.11.2016 of Administrative Committee is in conformity of Rules, 2013, as they stood on the date when petitioners were promoted illegally, is correct and in accordance with law. The impugned order is not an order of demotion or reversal as such but promotions having been made illegally, the same have been cancelled and, therefore, Article 311 of the Constitution has no application. The amendment made in Rules, 2013 is prospective, hence, petitioners cannot claim any benefit thereof. So long as Rules govern the field, reliance placed on Government Orders is misplaced as Government Orders being executive in nature cannot prevail over statutory rules.

16. We find that no reply has been given by respondents 2, 3 and 4 to the averments made in paragraphs 19A to 19W of the writ petition, which have been inserted after allowing amendment application on 17.07.2019.

17. Writ-A No. 40115 of 2017 (hereinafter referred to as 'WP-2') relates to District Judgeship Baghpat wherein petitioners were initially appointed as Group D employees and subsequently promoted in Group C under Rules, 2013 and the said promotion order has been cancelled as there was no provision for promotion of Group D to Group C under Rules, 2013 prior to its amendment made by Amendment Rules, 2017. WP-2 is filed by three petitioners, namely, Sanjay Kumar Singh, Navin Kumar Gupta and Ritesh Kumar Singh, who were appointed in Group D cadre on 22.04.2000, 22.04.2000 and 20.11.2006 respectively. Here also District Judge, Baghpat sought permission of this Court for filling Group C vacancies within promotion quota of Group D as per Government Order dated 03.09.1995 and the same was allowed by Court's letter dated 09.04.2015 sent by Joint Registrar (Judicial). District Judge, Baghpat, vide order dated 20.04.2015 constituted Selection Commitee for promotion of Group D employees to Group C with reference to Government Orders dated 01.01.1970, 31.08.1982 and 03.09.1995. Petitioners and one Krishna Gopal Mishra were declared successful, hence, District Judge, Baghpat issued order dated 06.10.2015 promoting them in Group C and placing on two years probation under Rules, 2013. This Court thereafter issued letter dated 25.01.2017 observing that some promotions have been made in Group 'C' from Group 'D' though there is no provision for such promotion under Rules, 2013 and, therefore, steps for cancellation of promotion should be taken. Pursuant thereto, order dated 31.01.2017 was issued to petitioners requiring them to show cause, why their promotion be not cancelled which was replied by petitioners, vide letter dated 06.02.2017. Ultimately, vide order dated 24.08.2017 (Annexure 13 to WP-2), promotions of petitioners were cancelled and consequential order was issued on 25.08.2017 (Annexure 14 to the writ petition). In all other respect, the submissions advanced in WP-2 are similar to WP-1, hence, we are not adding the pleadings to avoid repetition.

18. Writ-A No. 7663 of 2017 (hereinafter referred to as 'WP-3') also relates to District Baghpat and there are four petitioners, namely, Sanjay Kumar Singh, Navin Kumar Gupta, Krishna Gopal Mishra and Ritesh Kumar Singh. It is similar to WP-2, with only difference that in this writ petition show cause notice dated 31.01.2017 as also this Court's letter dated 25.01.2017 has been challenged. In respect of all other aspects, it is similar to WP-2, hence, we are avoiding repetition.

19. Writ-A No.5123 of 2017 (hereinafter referred to as "WP-4") relates to District Sant Ravidas Nagar-Bhadohi at Gyanpur. It has been filed by eight petitioners, namely, Anis Ahmad, Jitendra Singh, Suresh Tripathi, Himanshu Srivastava, Virendra Kumar, Ram Kailash, Shyam Lal and Manager Ram, who were all initially appointed as Group D employees on 20.12.2005, 23.12.2005, 24.05.2000, 29.10.2005, 12.05.1997, 09.01.1997, 05.06.2006 and 27.01.2005 respectively. Pursuant to letter dated 05.10.2016 issued by In-charge, Registrar General directing all District Judges to fill in Group C vacancies which comes within the promotion quota of Group D, District Judge, Bhadohi, vide letter dated 07.10.2016 constituted a Selection Committee. As per District Judge's letter dated 07.10.2016, there were total 114 sanctioned posts in Group C including Stenographer. There against promotion quota for Group D employees being 20 per cent came to 29 posts. 14 Group D employees after promotion were working in Group C and, thus, there were 15 vacancies in Group C which could have been filled in by promotion of Group D employees. For filling these 15 vacancies, selection was held but only 10 persons could be selected out of which eight were given promotion vide order dated 18.10.2016. Subsequent to High Court's letter dated 25.01.2017 observing that there was no provision for promotion in Rules, 2013, promotions have been cancelled, vide order dated 28.01.2017. In all other respect grounds raised in WP-4 are similar to earlier writ petitions, i.e., WP-1, 2 and 3, hence, we are not referring to further pleadings to avoid repetition.

20. In these writ petitions, certain facts which are undisputed may be summarized as under:-

(I) In Rules, 1947, there was no provision providing promotion of Group D employees to Group C. For the first time, a Government Order was issued on 01.01.1970, which was amended from time to time. The said Government Order made provision for promotion of Group D employees to Group C. Initially 15 per cent quota was provided for those, who had passed High School and worked five years continuously. This quota was subsequently increased to 20 per cent by providing 5 per cent to those who possess qualification of Intermediate.

(II) High Court adopted Government Order dated 01.01.1970 by circular dated 05.02.1973 and that is how, promotions have been made in District Judgeship, till enforcement of Rules, 2013.

(III) Rules, 2013 have superseded all earlier Rules inconsistent to it and provided only direct recruitment on Group C posts of Junior Assistant.

(IV) In 2016, when Registry issued general circular directing District Judges to fill in promotion quota in Group C from Group D employees, it clearly omitted to notice that under Rules, 2013, no promotion of Group D employees to Group C was contemplated and only direct recruitment was provided.

(V) District Judges mechanically followed directions contained in High Court's circular, without noticing that under Rules, 2013 no quota for promotion from Group D to Group C is provided, though interestingly in the promotion orders reference has been made to Rules, 2013.

(VI) Promotions were made but later on High Court itself detected illegality that without there being any provision under Rules, 2013 regarding promotion of Group D to Group C, promotions have been made, hence, it directed District Judges to cancel such illegal promotions. Orders passed by District Judges cancelling promotions are consequential to this direction of High Court.

(VII) Last, but not the least, Rules, 2013 have been amended by Amendment Rules, 2017 and whatever earlier was omitted in Rules, 2013, has now been removed and promotion quota upto 20 per cent in Group C has been provided for Group D employees.

(VIII) Thus, the only period which remains without any provision relating to promotion of Group D to Group C is 04.07.2013 to 20.06.2017.

21. In this backdrop, the following issues arise for our consideration:-

(I) Whether Rules, 2013, in so far as no provision for promotion of Group D employees to Group C was made initially, i.e., till 20.06.2017, are arbitrary and ultra vires of Articles 14 and 16 of the Constitution.

(II) Whether promotions of petitioners from Group D to Group C after enforcement of Rules, 2013 made prior to 21.06.2017, were ex-facie illegal and void ab initio.

(III) Whether vacancies in which promotions have been made, are those which already occurred before enforcement of Rules, 2013 and eligible Group D employees were entitled to be considered for promotion in accordance with the provision as available before Rules, 2013.

22. Now, we proceed to examine the above issues and, first of all, we propose to consider the issue of vires of Rules, 2013 in so far as it did not make any provision for promotion of Group D employees to Group C.

23. On the question of vires the matter has been argued from two angles:-

(I) Group D employees were entitled to have at least two avenues of promotion and the promotion quota which they were already enjoying for the last more than four and half decades, was denied abruptly making provision of only direct recruitment. It is per se arbitrary and discriminatory.

(II) Whether the defect having been removed by Amendment Rules, 2017, operating aforesaid amendment prospectively, in stead of giving effect from the date Rules, 2013 were framed, is arbitrary and discriminatory.

24. First of all we propose to consider question of validity of Rules, 2013 prior to its amendment in 2017 in so far as it provided recruitment in Group C only by direct recruitment and not by promotion of Group D employees.

25. It is not disputed that under Rules, 1947 there was no provision permitting promotion of Group D employees to Group C post but such a mode of recruitment was provided by Government Order dated 01.01.1970 and for promotion of Group D employees in Group C in District Judgeships the same was extended by this Court's Circular dated 05.02.1973 and since then till promulgation of Rules, 2013 promotions have been made from Group D to Group C to the extent of 20% as and when vacancies had occurred following the manner of such promotion, i.e., written examination, interview and typing test provided in the Government Orders dated 01.01.1970 and on. In supercession of all the Rules framed prior to enforcement of Rules, 2013 new set of Rules were framed wherein also there was no provision permitting Group D employees as one of the course of recruitment in Group C by considering eligible Group D employees for promotion. Government Order dated 01.01.1970 and subsequent Government orders issued as such were not part of Rules, 1947 or any other Rule but issued independently containing own method of promotion and eligibility conditions and applied for promotion of Group D employees to Group C in District Judgeships by this Court's Circular dated 05.02.1973. We find it difficult to hold that Rules, 2013, therefore, when provided that all earlier Rules are being superseded, would include the independent Government orders issued from time to time commencing from 01.01.1970. If that be so, what was practiced and followed in respect of Rules, 1947 after issue of Government Order dated 01.01.1970 and subsequent Government orders, making amendment therein, in our view, that would have continued even after enactment of Rules, 2013 and, therefore, promotion of petitioners cannot be said to be invalid or illegal as the same were made admittedly in accordance with procedure laid down in said Government orders. Respondents also treated the same position inasmuch as when process of recruitment for promotion was initiated by respective District Judges as also on the Administrative Side, by this Court, they always referred to one or other Government orders, referred to above, in relation of promotion of Group D employees to Group C. In these circumstances, we find that it is not necessary to go into the validity of Rules, 2013 since relevant Government orders had continued to provide source of recruitment by promotion of Group D employees to Group C to the extent of 20% and, therefore, cancellation of petitioners' promotion and reversion to Group D post is patently illegal.

26. Learned Standing Counsel then contended that this argument will not prevail for the reason that in 2017 an amendment was made in Rules, 2013 which suggest that Government orders were not available. This argument, in our view, is also fallacious and ignores the fact that amendment made in Rules, 2017, in fact makes a provision of promotion of Group D employees to Group C in a manner which was not consistent with procedure prescribed in aforesaid Government orders. That being so, aforesaid Government orders became contrary to what was specifically provided in Rules, 2013 after amendment in 2017, and when Rules contained a provision specifically inconsistent to executive orders, i.e., Government orders, obvious consequence is that rules will prevail. Aforesaid Government orders thus came to an end on the enforcement of Amendment Rules, 2017 and thereafter field is covered by Rules, 2013 as amended in 2017. Then on, Government order would cease to apply. This is evident from the fact that under aforesaid Government orders procedure for promotion included written examination, interview etc. but the Rules, 2013 as amended in 2017 now provides promotion of Group D to Group C only on the basis of seniority subject to rejection of unfit and only eligibility for Group D employees is confined to 5 years satisfactory substantive service having qualification upto High School. In earlier Government orders 20% promotion quota was divided as 15% to those who had qualification upto High School and 5 years substantive service and 5% to those who had 5 years substantive service and Intermediate qualification. Now eligibility has been modified. Entire eligibility is now confined to those Group D employees who have educational qualification upto High School and have 5 years substantive and satisfactory service to their credit. All such Group D employees are entitled to be considered for promotion on the criteria seniority subject to rejection of unfit. Court has also made a distinction in respect of Amin Grade II post which earlier did not exist. Now it is provided that recruitment to Amin Grade II would be made only by direct recruitment and those posts shall not be available for promotion to Group D employees. Rules, 2013 as amended in 2017, therefore, are totally different than the Government orders and hence Government orders would cease to apply on and after 21.06.2017 when Rules, 2017 were amended and a different procedure for promotion to Group D employees has been adopted and till then earlier Government orders, in our view, held the field hence promotion of petitioners made thereunder cannot be said to be vitiated in law and illegal, hence impugned orders cannot be sustained.

27. In view of the fact that writ petitions can be allowed on above ground also, we do not find necessary to go into other aspects of the matter and, therefore, we leave other questions open to be considered in some appropriate time.

28. For the reasons stated above, writ petitions are allowed. Orders impugned in the writ petitions cancelling promotion of petitioners and reverting them from Group C to Group D post, are hereby set aside. Petitioners shall be treated to be validly promoted Group C employees and entitled for all consequential benefits.

A. Constitution of India – Article 226 – Scope of Interference – Petition barred by Time – If a relief otherwise has become barred by time under common law, would not be granted in writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India except where the case is of violation of a fundamental right. (Para 10)

B. Right to Property – Fundamental Right – Common Law Remedy – The right to property or for that matter, any other right flowing from any agreement by itself is not a fundamental right – It is all dependent upon the enforcement of such agreement and getting the right declared as maintainable only through common law remedy. 2. P. S. Sadasivaswamy Vs. St. of T.N. (AIR 1974 SC 2271)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ramesh Sinha, J.

Hon'ble Ajit Kumar, J.)

1. Sri Ishan Shishu, learned Advocate, has filed his memo of appearance on behalf respondent no.1-Union of India today in Court, which is taken on record.

2. Heard Sri Prabhakar Awasthi, learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri Anand Tiwari, learned counsel appearing for the respondents Corporation, Sri Ishan Shishu, learned counsel appearing for respondent no.1-Union of India and perused the record.

3. By means of this writ petition, under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, the petitioner has questioned the order dated 21st August, 2019 (Annexure No.17 to the writ petition) passed by the Executive Director, UPSO-II of the Indian Oil Corporation, namely, the respondent No.3 disposing of the complaint of the petitioner dated 1st August, 2018 in compliance of the order of this Court dated 23rd May, 2019 passed in Writ-C No.17850 of 2019, holding the complaint to be devoid of any merits besides being barred by limitation and laches.

4. The facts of the case can be drawn in a narrow compass like this that a partnership firm constituted as M/s. Siyana Filling Station, Garh Siyana Road was commissioned with a retail outlet of the petroleum products on 1st January, 1970. The partnership firm had partners, namely, Ziaul Islam and Sri Viquarul Islam. On 9th August, 1990 a request was made to the Corporation for recognizing the change in the constitution of the firm with Sri Mashqoorul Islam as a new partner with existing partner Sri Ziaul Islam having partnership of 49 % and 51% respectively and Sri Viquarul Islam was shown as to have resigned from the partnership firm. The approval was accorded to the request of the new partnership firm by the Company vide its letter dated 28th March, 1992 and a dealership agreement got executed with new set up on 25th March, 1992. It appears that soon thereafter on 12th May, 1994 another request was made on behalf of the firm M/s. Siyana Filling Station of the reconstitution of the firm with existing partners Sri Mashqoorul Islam and Smt. Tahira Choudhary, W/o Mashqoorul Islam as a new partner with share of 49% and 51% respectively and this time Ziaul Islam, who is the petitioner before this Court, was shown to have resigned from the firm. Ever since then the firm started working in the name of M/s. Siyana Filling Station with new partnership firm with Sri Mashqoorul Islam and Smt. Tahira Choudhary as partners.

5. This above partnership agreement between the firm and the Oil Company came to be questioned, it appears for the first time by the petitioner and for the redressal of their grievance they even approached the Delhi High Court invoking extraordinary writ jurisdiction vide Writ-C No.13964 of 2018 which, however, came to be dismissed on 21st December, 2018. Thereafter, the petitioner filed another writ petition before this Court bearing number Writ-C No.17850 of 2019 seeking a direction for the disposal of his complaint dated 1st October, 2018 in accordance with law and this Court passed an order on 23rd May, 2019 directing the respondents competent authority to consider and decide the matter within a period of two months.

The competent authority of the respondent Oil Company has finally disposed of the objection/complaint of the petitioner under its order dated 28th August, 2019 holding the complaint of petitioner to be baseless and devoid of merits and hence this petition.

6. Assailing the order rejecting the objection of the petitioner, it has been vehemently urged by the learned counsel for the petitioner that the complaint and the point raised in the complaint has virtually remained unaddressed to in the order passed by the respondent competent authority and, therefore, on merits the order is quite unsustainable. It is argued that the respondents have got carried away by the order passed by the Delhi High Court dismissing the writ petition and the delay involved in the matter in approaching the authority.

7. Per contra, learned counsel appearing for the respondents has defended the order for the reasons assigned therein.It has been vehemently urged by the learned counsel for the respondents that the matter relates to the rights between the parties for which the proper course would have been to avail a common law remedy but since the petitioner knew that any suit seeking declaration of the partnership agreement to be void had become barred by law of limitation, the present writ petition has been filed. It is thus argued that if the time has run out and the suit is barred by limitation, the civil rights flowing from any document cannot now be tested in writ proceedings and, therefore, it is submitted that the writ petition deserves to be dismissed.

8. Having heard learned counsel for the parties, their arguments across the bar and having perused the records, what we find is that the basic question involved in the matter is the validity of the partnership agreement between the Sri Mashqoorul Islam and Smt. Tahira Choudhary, namely, the respondent nos. 5 & 6 respectively and the agreement between the Oil Company and the said firm for continuation of the retail outlet dealership, entered on 13th June, 2000. The question therefore is whether such an agreement is void and no right can flow from it and the earlier partnership agreement to which the petitioner was a party should have continued and consequently the dealership agreement dated 13th June, 2000 should also be rendered void.

9. The settled legal position is that in civil jurisprudence if the rights between the litigating parties flow from an instrument, it is necessary to get it declared valid by a Court of Law competent to pass a declaratory decree to that extent.Similarly, if the validity of a document on the basis of which rights are claimed by the parties and being objected to by a third party to such document, then such a document is also required to be declared as void by a Court of Law competent to pass a declaratory decree to that effect.The common law remedy are meant to resolve such disputed rights between the parties by inviting evidence both written and oral and in the absence of any challenge to an instrument, a person is equally entitled to get his rights perfected through law of acquiescence or permissive action and conduct of the other party. It is when the right of one party pitted against the rights of the others which might have accrued due to passage of time, the law of limitation steps in. The Limitation Act provides limitation for a suit of declaratory decree to be 3 years from the date of knowledge. In the present case what we find is that the new partnership firm namely the respondent no 4 with partners respondent nos. 5 and 6 entered into a agreement with the Oil Company in the year 2000, to be specific 13th June,2000 and since then the retail outlet of the petroleum product is functioning. The respondents cannot deny the knowledge of functioning of the retail outlet by the firm, to which he himself was a party prior to his resignation in the year 1994 and yet he remained silent for a pretty long time. A person who has ceased to be partner in the partnership firm and if he permits the firm to continue with new partners and enter into an agreement with the Oil Company, it would attract the law of acquiescence qua the new partnership agreement and consequently fresh agreement with the Oil Company. No representation business to an authority of Oil Company would have fetched the result of condoning the limitation because there is no law as such authorizing the authority to declare a partnership agreement to be void except a competent court of law having civil jurisdiction to that count. The petitioner remained silent and could be said to have awakened from a long slumber only in the year 2018 when he unsuccessfully knocked the door of Delhi High Court. It is not denied to the petitioner that the petition filed by him before Delhi High Court, had been dismissed. A second writ petition for the same cause of action in the garb of a representation/ complaint would not have been maintainable, however, instead of going into question of maintainability of the second writ petition as the first one having been dismissed by a High Court, we hold that the petitioner now cannot be granted relief in this petition for which a proper course would have been to approach the Civil Court of competent jurisdiction and for which the limitation has already run out.

10. The legal position in this regard is very sound that if a relief otherwise has become barred by time under common law, would not be granted in writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India except where the case is of violation of a fundamental right. The right to property or for that matter, any other right flowing from any agreement by itself is not a fundamental right and it is all dependent upon the enforcement of such agreement and getting the right declared as maintainable only through common law remedy. We are here reminded of a judgement of Gwalior Bench of High Court of Madhya Pradesh in Venkatlal Baldeoji Mahajan Vs. Kanhiyalal Jankidas and others (AIR 1763 MP 153) in which it has been observed thus:-

"It is clear that the question of laches comes in when the plaintiff seeks to obtain an equitable relief. But the principle of laches, which is based on the equitable doctrine is not applicable to a case where the Court has to determine the legal rights of a party. An objection as to delay or laches does not avail the defendant when a legal relief is sought against him except as a circumstance to show abandonment. He can or course rely on the statute of limitation but if the suit is instituted within the period prescribed by the Limitation Act his suit cannot be thrown out because of any amount of laches or delay. This position is plain enough. But if any authority is needed 1 may quote with respect a decision of Abdur Rehman J. in Krishnamachari v. Chengalraya, MANU/TN/0391/1938: AIR 1940 Mad 281."

11. In the case of P.S.Sadasivaswamy Vs. State of Tamil Nadu (AIR 1974 SC 2271), the Apex Court has held thus:-

"A person aggrieved by an order or promoting a junior over his head should approach the Court at least within six months or at the most a year of such promotion..

It is not that there is any period of limitation for the Court to exercise their powers under Article 226 nor is it that there can never be a case where the Courts cannot interfere in a matter after the passage of a certain length of time. But it would be a sound and wise exercise of discretion for the Courts to refuse to exercise their extraordinary powers under Article 226 in the case of persons who do not approach it expeditiously for relief and who stand by and allow things to happen and then approach the Court to put forward stale claim and try to unsettle settled matters. The petitioner's petition should, therefore, have been dismissed in limine.

12. In view of the above, we decline to interfere with the order impugned in the present writ petition. The writ petition fails and is, accordingly, dismissed.

A.Civil Law- UP Revenue Code, 2006 – Agricultural Dispute – Significance of need to decide it expeditiously – State of Uttar Pradesh has a substantial agrarian economy and majority of its citizens live in villages – Agricultural land is, therefore, of utmost importance to the citizenry living in the villages – Issues and disputes relating to agricultural lands are to be dealt with by the revenue courts/authorities – The fact that such large number of writs are being filed only with the prayer to expedite proceedings pending before revenue authorities/courts is a matter of serious concern – Apart from creating discord amongst otherwise closely knit social set up it is one of the primary cause for commission of crimes/offences in villages. (Para 15 and 16)

C. Revenue Tribunal and Officers – Appointment – Independence of process – Need of Consultation of Chief Justice – The Revenue Courts established under the Code of 2006 apparently have all attributes of a Tribunal – The officers manning Revenue Courts are therefore expected to be at least law graduates and adequately trained to deal with the disputes arising before the Revenue Courts – Apex Court's observation that the appointment of the President of the Revenue Tribunal had to be made only after consultation with the Chief Justice of that State, relied upon – Held that being a part of the judicial dispensation system of State the Revenue Courts are also expected to be given their independence in accordance with the constitutional scheme – The issue was treated as an issue of larger public interest – Additional Chief Secretary was called upon to file affidavit. (Para 17, 18 and 19)

Writ Petition kept pending (E-1)

Cases relied on :-

1. PIL No. 53556 of 2015; Yashpal Singh Vs. St. of U.P. & ors. decided on 01 March 2016

2. Writ Petition No. 1184 (M/B) of 2016; Ayodhya Prasad Tripathi & ors. Vs. St. of U.P. & ors. decided on 09 January 2018

3. St. of Mah. Vs. Labour Law Practitioners' Assc. & ors., (1998) 2 SCC 688

4. St. of Guj. Vs. Guj. Revenue Tribunal Bar Assc. & anr., (2012) 10 SCC 353

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ashwani Kumar Mishra, J.)

1. Petitioner is permitted to implead State of Uttar Pradesh through its Additional Chief Secretary, Revenue, U.P. at Lucknow as well as Chairman of the Board of Revenue, U.P. at Allahabad as respondent nos.4 and 5 respectively, and notices on behalf of said respondent is also accepted by learned Standing Counsel.

2. Twenty eight writ petitions filed under Article 226 of the Constitution of India have been assigned by Hon'ble The Chief Justice to be heard by this Court. Eighteen out of these twenty eight petitions i.e. Writ Petition Nos.6407 of 2020, 6419 of 2020, 6453 of 2020, 6461 of 2020, 6462 of 2020, 6435 of 2020, 6448 of 2020, 6472 of 2020, 6473 of 2020, 6474 of 2020, 6478 of 2020, 6483 of 2020, 6491 of 2020, 6495 of 2020, 6501 of 2020, 6513 of 2020, 6519 of 2020 and 6525 of 2020, raise a common grievance that proceedings before the revenue courts/authorities under the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 (hereinafter referred to as "Act of 1950'), U.P. Land Revenue Act, 1901 (hereinafter referred to as "Act of 1901') and U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 (hereinafter referred to as "Code of 2006') are being kept pending for unduly long (even decades in some cases) causing innumerable difficulties for the petitioners. Prayer is, consequently, made to command the authorities concerned to expedite the proceedings. Writ Petition No.6407 of 2020 is taken as the leading case and all other petitions have been connected to it.

3. State of Uttar Pradesh has a substantial agrarian economy and majority of its citizens live in villages. Agricultural land is, therefore, of utmost importance to the citizenry living in the villages. Issues and disputes relating to agricultural lands like mutation, demarcation, partition, removal of encroachment, title disputes etc. are to be dealt with by the revenue courts/authorities. The fact that such large number of writs are being filed only with the prayer to expedite proceedings pending before revenue authorities/courts is a matter of serious concern. Apart from creating discord amongst otherwise closely knit social set up it is one of the primary cause for commission of crimes/offences in villages. It is, therefore, necessary for this Court to examine the concern in wider perspective and issue necessary directions in that regard.

4. The Act of 1950 made provisions for constitution of the Revenue Courts specified in Schedule II, referred to in Section 331 of the Act of 1950, and also specified the nature of jurisdiction to be exercised by them. By virtue of Section 330 and 331 of the Act of 1950 the jurisdiction of civil courts stood ousted in so far as the issues triable by Revenue Courts were concerned. These Revenue Courts in the State of Uttar Pradesh functioned under supervision and control of the Board of Revenue, established under The United Provinces Board of Revenue Act, 1922 (hereinafter referred to as "Act of 1922'). The orders passed by revenue courts attain finality under the Act(s). The Act of 1950 as also the Act of 1901 and the Act of 1922 etc. have been repealed by the Code of 2006.

5. The Code of 2006 also provides for the Board of Revenue in Chapter III. By virtue of Section 8 the Board is to be the Chief Controlling Authority in all matters relating to disposal of cases, appeals or revisions and subject to the superintendence, direction and control of the State Government, in all other matters provided for in the Code of 2006. Chapter XIII of the Code of 2006 provides for jurisdiction and procedure of Revenue Courts. Section 206 of the Code of 2006 clearly provides that no civil court shall exercise jurisdiction over any of the matters specified in the Second Schedule and no other court than the Revenue Court or the Revenue Officer specified in Column 3 of Third Schedule shall entertain any suit, application or proceedings specified in Column 2 thereof. Section 207 provides for the remedy of first appeal while Section 208 provides a remedy of second appeal in a case involving substantial question of law. The Board of Revenue or the Commissioner are vested with power of revision and the Board also has the power of review. Section 212 permits the Board to transfer cases from one Revenue Officer to another. By virtue of Section 214 of the Code of 2006 the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 and that of the Limitation Act, 1963 are made applicable unless otherwise provided for in the Code of 2006.

6. Section 4 (16) of the Code of 2006 defines Revenue Court in following terms:-

"4(16) "Revenue Court" means all or any of the following authorities (that is to say) the Board and all members thereof, Commissioners, Additional Commissioners, Collectors, Additional Collectors, Chief Revenue Officers, Assistant Collectors, Settlement Officers, Assistant Settlement Officers, Record Officers, Assistant Record Officers, Tahsildars, Tahsildars (Judicial) and Naib Tahsildars;"

7. The proceedings which are sought to be expedited in this bunch of petitions raise issues/disputes pending before the Revenue Court/Revenue Authorities and lie exclusively in the realm of the Code of 2006. The jurisdiction in that regard of Civil Court stands ousted by virtue of Second Schedule and lies exclusively in the Revenue Court by virtue of Third Schedule appended to the Code of 2006. The functioning of the Revenue Authorities/Revenue Courts, therefore, arise substantially for consideration in this matter.

8. At the outset, it is worth noticing that this is not the first occasion when the concern in this regard is being noticed by this Court. After the Revenue Code of 2006 was enforced on 29.11.2012 a Division Bench of this Court in PIL No.53556 of 2015 (Yashpal Singh Vs. State of U.P. and others) took note of the provisions of the Code of 2006, as per which Additional Commissioners, Additional Collectors and Assistant Collectors were to be appointed only to exercise judicial duties as is assigned to them by State Government. On 30th October, 2015 the Division Bench after considering the report submitted by the District Judge with regard to functioning of revenue courts made following observations:-

"....The vast proportion of disputes before the Revenue Courts relate to agricultural land and property. It has been reported that the Presiding Officers of the Revenue Courts do not observe regular and disciplined sittings in the Revenue Courts and because of their administrative duties and law and order responsibilities, they do not get much time to devote to judicial functioning. The report of the District Judge suggests that one option is to create a separate cadre of revenue officers, who are devoted to only judicial functioning in the Revenue Courts or to appoint one or two Executive Officers in every district who can sit in the Court throughout the day and perform judicial duties."

This Court observed in the subsequent order dated 4.12.2015 as under:-

"Having regard to this background, in our view, it would be necessary for the State Government to act in the matter to ensure that a cadre of officers, exclusively to the resolution of revenue cases, is created along the lines as suggested by the Board of Revenue. Moreover, due and appropriate attention should be bestowed on the need to ensure that persons so appointed have sufficient knowledge of law so as to facilitate the disposal of revenue cases. Since this proposal is pending consideration before the State Government, we direct that a decision in that regard be taken within a period of two months from today".

The petition ultimately came to be disposed of vide following directions dated 1.3.2016:-

"We are of the view that the State Government must immediately take steps under the enabling provisions of sub section (5) of Section 11 and Section 12 and sub section (6) of Section 13. This would ensure that judicial work is assigned to officers who would only perform judicial duties on the revenue side and would be exempted from administrative functions. Judicial work requires a frame of mind, qualification and experience which are quite different from the discharge of administrative duties and it is but necessary that the provisions which have been contained in the newly enforced provisions of the Code are implemented in the State expeditiously. As regards the proposal for the creation of a cadre, it has been stated that the Finance Department to whom a proposal was submitted for consent had raised certain queries which has been responded to on 22 February 2016 by the Board of Revenue. After the consent of the Finance Department, the proposal would be placed before the Cabinet after obtaining the consent of the Law Department and the Department of Personnel. Since the proposal is now pending before the Government and the Government has indicated its intention to finalize the matter expeditiously, we direct that a final decision thereon should be taken within a period of six months from the receipt of a certified copy of this order."

It would be worth noticing that more than six lakh cases were pending as on 1.1.2015 before the revenue courts.

9. Again in Ayodhya Prasad Tripathi and others Vs. State of U.P. through Principal Secretary, Department of Revenue and others, in Writ Petition No.1184(M/B) of 2016, the directions issued in the case of Yashpal Singh (supra) were reiterated by a subsequent Division Bench and the State Government was directed to take necessary decision in the matter within two months. The petition has been ultimately disposed of on 9.1.2018.

10. A period of about five years have passed since the above directions were issued in the matter but no satisfactory measures appear to have been taken and the situation has not improved.

11. In the leading writ petition no. 6407 of 2020 a prayer has been made to direct the Tehsildar, District Kushinagar, to dispose of the proceedings of Case No. T.201905440205022 pending since April, 2010 under Section 34 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act, 1901. In some of the other petitions which are directed to be connected with this case such proceedings are pending for the last about two decades. According to petitioner in the present case she has purchased certain land situated in Village Ahirauli, Tappa Bachholi, Pargana Sahjahanpur, Tehsil Hata, District Kushinagar on 8th March, 2010 and has applied for mutation of her name but even after expiry of 10 years, the proceedings have not been concluded. The ordersheet has been annexed, according to which hundred of dates have been fixed but the Tehsildar concerned has not decided the matter, so far. Similar are the facts in other seventeen cases which are clubbed with the present writ petition.

12. Learned counsel for the petitioner states that there is only one Tehsildar (Judicial) in Tehsil Hata, District Kushinagar, who is mostly engaged in other Protocol and VIP Duty etc. and has no time to attend judicial proceedings. It is stated that even summary proceedings are kept pending for decades together and even routine orders are not passed. Thereafter, unless this Court intervenes the situation is not likely to change.

13. Prima facie, this Court finds petitioner's grievance to have substance. Mutation proceedings are admittedly summary in nature and ought to be concluded, expeditiously, or else various other complications arise for the parties.

14. Learned counsel for the petitioner states that neither any separate cadre of judicially trained persons is created to discharge the work of Revenue Courts including Tehsildar (Judicial) and the work assigned to them is virtually placed at the bottom with priority given to other administrative and protocol matters. The ordersheet of the pending case is a sad reflection of the casual manner in which proceedings are routinely adjourned, which results in no orders being passed, as is expected of the revenue authority/court.

15. It would also be relevant to note that the judicial work before the revenue courts is being allocated to administrative officers who even lack the basic awareness of law, inasmuch as a law degree is not even mandatory for them. While dealing with appointment of Presiding Officers of the Labour Court the Supreme Court of India in the case of The State of Maharashtra Vs. Labour Law Practitioners' Association and others, reported in (1998) 2 SCC 688, observed that Industrial Tribunals have the trappings of a court and the functions performed by their Presiding Officers has to be regarded as judicial functions. After referring to Article 234 to 236 of the Constitution of India the Supreme Court observed as under:-

"The District Judge, therefore, covers a judge of any Principal Civil Court of Original Jurisdiction. With an increase in the numbers of a specialised courts and tribunals which are being set up to deal with specific kinds of civil litigation which would otherwise have been dealt with b y the ordinary civil courts, we now have a number of specialised courts exercising different categories of civil original jurisdiction. It can be specialised civil original jurisdiction pertaining to Labour and Industrial disputes specified in the relevant Acts as in the case of Labour and Industrial Courts, or it could be pertaining to recovery of bank debts and so on. The structure of civil courts exercising original jurisdiction is no longer monolithic. The judge of the Principal Civil Court heading the concerned set of courts under him an d exercising that jurisdiction can also fall in the category of a "District Judge" by whatever name called. Learned single judge and learned Judges of the Division Bench have, therefor, held t hat and Industrial Court is a civil court exercising civil original jurisdiction; and the person presiding over it could well be termed as a District Judge. The term "District Judge" should not b e confined only to the judge of the Principal Civil Court in the hierarchy of general civil courts. The term would now have to include also the hierarchy of specialised civil courts, such as a hierarchy of Labour Courts and Industrial Courts. The fact that the Chief Presidency Magistrate and the Sessions Judge were also included in the definition of "District" Judge indicates that a wide interpretation is to be given tot he expression "District Judge". The extensive definition of a District Judge under Article 236 is indicative of the same.

Under Article 236 (b), the expression "judicial service" is defined to mean "a service consisting exclusively of persons intended to fill the post of district judge and other civil judicial posts inferior to the post of district judge." Judicial service thus postulates a hierarchy of courts with t he District Judge as the head an d other judicial officers under him discharging only judicial functions.

We need not refer at length to various other judgment which have dealt with the question whether a Tribunal set up under different Acts which were before the Court in each case was a judicial body or a court, and whether it was a court subordinate to the High Court. In Harinagar Sugar Mills Ltd. v. Shyam Sunder Jhunjhunwala & Ors. [AIR 1951 SC 1559], the Central Government exercising appellate powers under Section 111 of the Companies Act was held to be acting as a judicial body and not as an administrative body. In t he case of Shripatrao Dajisahab Ghatge & Anr v. The State of Maharashtra & Anr. [AIR 1977 Bombay 384], the term "courts" was held to cover all tribunals which were basically courts performing judicial functions giving judgments which were binding and exercising sovereign judicial power transferred tot hem by the State. It was held that High Court could exercise its jurisdiction under Article 227 over such tribunals. A Full Bench of the Gujarat High Court in the case of Shaikh Mohammedbhikhan Hussainbhai & etc. v. The Manage, Chandrabhanu Cinema & Ors, etc. [1986 Lab I.C. 1749] held that Labour Courts and Industrial Courts were courts for the purposes of contempt of Courts Act and were also courts subordinate to the High Court.

.....…

The constitutional scheme under Chapter V of Part VI dealing with the High Courts and Chapter VI of Par VI dealing with eh subordinate courts shows a clear anxiety on the part of the framers of the Constitution to preserve and promote independence of the judiciary from the executive. Thus Article 233 which deals with appointment of District judges requires that such appointments shall be made by the Governor of the State in consultation with the High Court. Article 233(2) has been interpreted as prescribing that "a person in the service of the Union or the State" can refer only to a person in the judicial service of the Union or the State. Article 234 which deals with recruitment of persons other that District Judges to the judicial service requires that their appointments can be made only in accordance with the Rules framed b y the Governor of the State after consultation with the State Public Service Commission and with the High Court. Article 235 provides that he control over district courts and courts subordinate thereto shall be vested in the High Court; and Article 236 defines the expression "District Judge" extensively as covering judges of a city civil court etc, as earlier set out, and the expression "judicial service" as meaning a service consisting exclusively of persons intended to fill the post of the District Judge and other civil judicial posts inferior to the post of District judge. Therefore, bearing in mind the principle of separation of powers and independence of the judiciary, judicial service contemplates a service exclusively of judicial posts in which their will be a hierarchy headed by a District Judge. The High Court has rightly come to the conclusion that the persons presiding over Industrial and Labour Courts would constitute a judicial service so defined. Therefore, the recruitment of Labour Court judges is required to be made in accordance with Article 235 of the Constitution."

16. The Revenue Courts also perform judicial functions and their Presiding Officers are expected to be legally trained persons who can work independently. Knowledge in the field of Law is otherwise expected of such officers as they interpret various provisions of law and their decisions attain finality. This aspect does not appear to have been examined. Quality of determination by those who even do not have a law degree is likely to suffer. Large number of writ petitions are, therefore, entertained against the orders passed by the revenue courts as the rights of parties, including title matters, are decided finally by such courts.

17. The Revenue Courts established under the Code of 2006 apparently have all attributes of a Tribunal. The officers manning Revenue Courts are therefore expected to be at least law graduates and adequately trained to deal with the disputes arising before the Revenue Courts. It would be worth referring at this stage to a judgment of the Supreme Court of India arising out of a challenge laid to the appointment of President of the Gujarat Revenue Tribunal, wherein the Gujarat High Court had set aside the appointment of the President of the Gujarat Revenue Tribunal. While affirming the view taken by the Gujarat High Court the Hon'ble Supreme Court extensively examined the statutory provisions relating to constitution of Tribunal as also the procedure to be followed by it and the duty cast upon it to act judicially. The orders of Tribunal were found amenable to exercise of jurisdiction of the High Court under Article 226 and 227 of the Constitution of India. In such circumstances the Apex Court held that the appointment of the President of the Gujarat Revenue Tribunal had to be made only after consultation with the Chief Justice of that State. Following observations of the Apex Court in State of Gujarat Vs. Gujarat Revenue Tribunal Bar Association and another reported in (2012) 10 SCC 353, are reproduced hereinafter:-

"16. Although the term "court" has not been defined under the Act, it is indisputable that courts belong to the judicial hierarchy and constitute the country's judiciary as distinct from the executive or legislative branches of the State. Judicial functions involve the decision of rights and liabilities of the parties. An enquiry and investigation into facts is a material part of judicial function. The legislature, in its wisdom has created tribunals and transferred the work which was regularly done by the civil courts to them, as it was found necessary to do so in order to provide efficacious remedy and also to reduce the burden on the civil courts and further, also to save the aggrieved person from bearing the burden of heavy court fees, etc. Thus, the system of tribunals was created as a machinery for the speedy disposal of claims arising under a particular statute/Act. Most of the tribunals have been given the power to lay down their own procedure. In some cases, the procedure may be adopted by the tribunal and the same may require the approval of the competent authority/Government. However, in each case, the principles of natural justice are required to be observed. Such tribunals therefore, basically perform quasi-judicial functions. The system of tribunals is hence, unlike that of the regularly constituted courts under the hierarchy of judicial system which are not authorised to devise their own procedure for dealing with cases. Under certain statutes tribunals have been authorised to exercise certain powers conferred under some provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure (hereinafter referred to as "CPC") or the Code of Criminal Procedure (hereinafter referred to as "CrPC"), but not under the whole Code, be it Civil or Criminal. However, in a regular court, the said Codes, in their entirety, Civil as well as Criminal, must be strictly adhered to. Therefore, from the above, it is evident that the terms "court" and "tribunal" are not interchangeable.

17. A tribunal may not necessarily be a court, in spite of the fact that it may be presided over by a judicial officer, as other qualified persons may also possibly be appointed to perform such duty. One of the tests to determine whether a tribunal is a court or not, is to check whether the High Court has revisional jurisdiction so far as the judgments and orders passed by the tribunal are concerned. The supervisory or revisional jurisdiction is considered to be a power vesting in any superior court or tribunal, enabling it to satisfy itself as regards the correctness of the orders of the inferior tribunal. This is the basic difference between appellate and supervisory jurisdiction. The appellate jurisdiction confers a right upon the aggrieved person to complain in the prescribed manner to a higher forum whereas, supervisory/revisional power has a different object and purpose altogether as it confers the right and responsibility upon the higher forum to keep the subordinate tribunals within the limits of the law. It is for this reason that revisional power can be exercised by the competent authority/court suo motu, in order to see that subordinate tribunals do not transgress the rules of law and are kept within the framework of powers conferred upon them. Such revisional powers have to be exercised sparingly, only as a discretion in order to prevent gross injustice and the same cannot be claimed, as a matter of right by any party. Even if the person heading the tribunal is otherwise a "judicial officer", he may merely be persona designata, but not a court, despite the fact that he is expected to act in a quasi-judicial manner. In the generic sense, a court is also a tribunal, however, courts are only such tribunals as have been created by the statute concerned and belong to the judicial department of a State as opposed to the executive branch of the said State. The expression "court" is understood in the context of its normally accepted connotation, as an adjudicating body, which performs judicial functions of rendering definitive judgments having a sense of finality and authoritativeness to bind the parties litigating before it. Secondly, it should be in the course of exercise of the sovereign judicial power transferred to it by the State. Any tribunal or authority therefore, that possesses these attributes, may be categorised as a court.

29. The present writ petition was filed on the premise that the post of the President of the Gujarat Revenue Tribunal was covered by the expression "District Judge", as has been defined under Article 236 of the Constitution; the definition being an exclusive one, and thus, in view of the provisions of Article 233 of the Constitution, the appointment of the President of the Tribunal can be made only upon consultation with the High Court. In the alternative it was suggested that the said Tribunal is a court and that the post of the President is one of judicial service, and in view of the provisions of Article 234 of the Constitution, the appointment of the President can be made only upon consultation with the High Court, as well as the Gujarat Public Services Commission. Even otherwise, having regard to the functions, powers and duties vested in the President, a person with legal qualification and long judicial experience should alone be appointed as President. Reference to the Bombay Legislative Assembly debate dated 18-4-1939, as expressed by the then Revenue Minister, revealed that the intention of the legislature had been that the post be filled by a retired High Court Judge, or a District Judge of not less than ten years' standing. Further, the Tribunal dealing with various cases under the Gujarat Agricultural Lands Ceiling Act, 1960, the Gujarat Private Forests Act, the Bombay Public Trusts Act, the Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act, the Bombay Jagirdari and Other Tenure Abolition Act, and with questions of title under Section 37(2) of the Bombay Land Revenue Court has to deal with large number of civil disputes between the citizens, as well as between the Government and citizens and, it is pertinent to note that at the relevant time of filing of this writ petition, 6500 cases were pending before the Tribunal. With these assertions, the prayers made by the writ petitioners were mainly to declare Sections 4 and 20 of the 1958 Act as ultra vires and unconstitutional on the grounds that they gave absolute unguided power to the State Government in relation to the appointment of the President, and further, to declare Rule 3(1) so far as it authorises the appointment of the Secretary, as ultra vires and void, and also to quash the appointment of the respondent as the President.

33. During the course of arguments before the High Court, the learned Additional Advocate General had conceded that the judgments and orders passed by the Tribunal can be challenged under Article 227 of the Constitution. Thus, it has been conceded before the High Court that the High Court has supervisory control over the Tribunal to the extent that it can revise and correct the judgments and orders passed by it. In such a fact situation, the consultation/concurrence of the High Court, in the matter of making the appointment of the President of the Tribunal is required."

18. The provisions of the Code of 2006, referred to above, would prima facie suggest that it has all attributes of a Tribunal and the provisions of Chapter VI of the Constitution of India would be attracted. In the Revenue Code, 2006 the legislature has also fixed a timeline within which various proceedings are required to be performed by the Revenue Courts/Authorities. More often than not such timelines are not adhered to and writ petitions are routinely filed for issuing necessary directions to conclude the proceedings. Contempt petitions are also being filed in large numbers before this Court as proceedings are not being concluded even despite directions issued by this Court. This is not a desirable situation. State Legislature having fixed specific time frames for disposal of matters must also provide for necessary supporting infrastructure for implementing the statutory provisions limiting the period within which disputes are to be resolved. Merely creating rights or fixing timelines for disposal of cases in the Legislation will not yield any results and would remain a farce unless necessary supporting infrastructure is created for the purpose. As the task of adjudication is assigned in specific areas exclusively to the Revenue Courts it is in utmost public interest that competent officers in the field of law (atleast law graduates) having adequate training are made available in sufficient numbers or else the malaise will continue. Being a part of the judicial dispensation system of State the Revenue Courts are also expected to be given their independence in accordance with the constitutional scheme.

19. In such circumstances, instead of issuing a routine direction to the Revenue Court/Revenue Authority to dispose of the proceedings pending before it, it would be necessary to confront the State with the pressing issues, noticed in this order, and to call upon the Additional Chief Secretary of the Department concerned to examine it in larger public interest and to file his personal affidavit clarifying the stand of the State on following issues:-

(i) What is the total number of cases pending before the Revenue Courts in the State of Uttar Pradesh as on 1.1.2020?

(ii) Whether any specialized cadre of law knowing officers has been created to man the Revenue Courts and what is the minimum qualification prescribed for them at different levels? The strength of cadre at different levels would also be specified both in terms of its sanction and the officers existing as on 1.1.2020.

(iii) Whether the officers manning the Revenue Courts are exclusively entrusted with the task specified in the Revenue Code 2006 or are given other administrative and protocol duties, etc.?

(iv) How the State proposes to provide fair and early disposal of cases pending before Revenue Courts/Revenue Authorities?

(v) Whether the Chairman and the Members of the Board of Revenue are appointed in consultation with Hon'ble The Chief Justice?

The required affidavit would be filed by the Additional Chief Secretary of Revenue Department of the State of Uttar Pradesh, within four weeks.

20. Since the issues noticed in this order are predominantly found to be in public interest, as such, the Registry is directed to treat this matter alongwith connected petitions as a Public Interest Litigation and to place it on 6th April, 2020 before a bench to be nominated by Hon'ble the Chief Justice.

1. वर्तमान व्यवहार प्रकीर्ण याचिका के माध्यम से याची ने प्रार्थना की है कि, आयुक्त, आजमगढ़ मण्डल, आजमगढ़

द्वारा पारित निर्णय दिनांक 25.01.2017, जिससे याची के द्वारा दायर की गई अपील संख्या 256/F (अन्तर्गत 13 (3) उत्तर प्रदेश अनुसूचित वस्तु वितरण आदेश 2016 (संक्षेप में 'आदेश 2016') बलहीन होने के कारण निरस्त की गयी है तथा उप जिलाधिकारी निजामाबाद, आजमगढ़ द्वारा पारित आदेश दिनांक 06.09.2016, जिससे द्वारा याची के उचित दर दुकान का अनुबन्ध पत्र निरस्त किया गया था, उक्त आदेश की पुष्टी की गई है, को निरस्त किया जाये।

2. याची सरकारी सस्ते गल्ले, मिट्टी तेल का विक्रेता है एवं उसे उचित दर दुकान (ग्राम पंचायत खानपुर चितरविल, विकासखण्ड मिर्जापुर) का अनुबन्ध पत्र जारी किया गया था तथा याची सन् 1992 से उचित दर दुकान कॊ लगातार चला रहा था। दिनांक 24.06.2016 को दूरभाष पर की गयी शिकायत के क्रम में याची की उचित दर दुकान पर आकास्मिक स्थलीय निरीक्षण क्षेत्रीय पूर्ति निरिक्षक, निजामाबाद द्वारा किया गया। निरीक्षण के दौरान मौके पर उपस्थित ग्रहस्थियों/ अंत्योदय कार्ड धारको व उनके परिवार से खाद्यान वितरण सम्बधी पूछ-ताछ भी करी गई। दुकान पर पात्र गृहस्थियों/ अंत्योदय कार्ड धारकों की सूची, सामान की दराे का पट्ट, सामाग्री पट्ट, सूचना पट्ट आदि प्रदर्शित नहीं किया गया था। पूछताछ के दौरान यह भी विदित हुआ कि याची का व्यवहार ग्राहको के प्रति अच्छा नहीं रहता था। याची ने अंत्योदय कार्ड धारको कॊ शासन द्वारा निर्धारित मात्रा से कम एवं अधिक मूल्य पर खाद्यान का वितरण किया एवं अन्य शिकायतें भी पायी गई। अतः यह माना गया कि याची ने आदेश 2004 व अनुबन्ध पत्र की शर्तो का उल्लंगन किया है। तदानुसार उप जिलाधिकारी, निजामाबाद आजमगढ़ ने क्षेत्रिय पूर्ति निरीक्षक, निजामाबाद की जाँच आख्या दिनांक 26.06.2016 पर संज्ञान लेते हुए, अपने आदेश दिनांक 29.06.2016 के द्वारा याची का अनुबन्ध पत्र तत्काल प्रभाव से निलम्बित कर दिया तथा याची को एक सप्ताह के अन्दर अपना पक्ष रखने का समय दिया। साथ ही साथ याची के उचित दर दुकान का समस्त कोटा दूसरी दुकान से सम्बन्ध कर दिया गया।

3. याची के अपना स्पष्टीकरण एक निवेदन के रूप में दिया जिसमें कहा गया कि सूची सम्रागी दर पट्ट व समाग्री पट्ट प्रदर्शित किया गया था। यह भी कहा कि कुछ कार्ड धारक दुबारा बयान देना चाहते है, क्योंकि पहले उन्होने किसी दबाव में आकर याची के विरूद्ध ब्यान दिया था। याची के विरूद्ध शिकायत मात्र चुनावी रंजिश के कारण की गई है। अन्तः प्रार्थना की गई कि निलम्बित दुकान बहाल करी जायॆ। याची ने माह अप्रैल, मई, जून सन् 2016 की वितरण पंजिका व स्टाक पंजिका की छाया प्रति व समस्त योजनाओ के कार्ड धारको का सामूहिक हस्ताक्षर किया गया प्रार्थना पत्र भी प्रस्तुत किया।

4. याची के स्पष्टीकरण देने के उपरान्त उपजिलाअधिकारी, निजामाबादा, आजमगढ़ ने प्रकरण की सुनवाई करी तथा क्षेत्रीय पूर्ति निरिक्षक की जाँच आख्या दिनांक 26.06.2016, याची द्वारा दिया गया लिखित स्पष्टीकरण एवं संलग्न प्रदर्शों का

ध्यान पूर्वक परिशीलन करने के उपरान्त प्राधिकारी इस निष्कर्ष पर पहुचे की याची (उचित दर विक्रेता) ने आवश्यक वस्तुओ के वितरण में गम्भीर अनियमतायें कारित की है। फलस्वरूप याची का अनुबन्ध पत्र निरस्त करने योग्य है। तदनानुसार अनुबन्ध पत्र निरस्त करने का आदेश दिनांक 16.09.2016 पारित किया। उक्त आदेश के प्रमुख अंश निम्न है।

" इस प्रकार उचित दर विक्रेता ग्रामपंचायत खानपुर चितरावल द्वारा दिनांक 12.07.2016 को प्रस्तुत स्पष्टीकरण व साक्ष्यों का क्षेत्रीय पूर्ति निरीक्षक द्वारा परीक्षणोपरान्त आख्या दिनांक 14.09.2016 प्रस्तुत किया गया कि विक्रेता द्वारा अन्तयोदय कार्डधारको में शासन द्वारा निर्दारित मात्रा से कम मात्रा एवं निर्धारित मूल्य से अधिक मूल्य 95 रू० के स्थान पर 100रू० लेकर खाद्यान का वितरण किया गया है विक्रेता द्वारा प्रस्तुत की गयी स्पष्टीकरण में अधिक मूल्य लिया जाना स्वीकार किया गया है तथा चीनी का वितरण निर्धारित मात्रा 02 किग्रा० के स्थान पर 01 किग्रा० शासन द्वारा निर्धारित मूल्य 13.50 रू० प्रति किग्रा० न लेकर 15.00 रू० लिया जाना विक्रेता द्वारा स्वीकार किया गया है। पात्र गृहस्थी के अधिकांश कार्डधारकों में राशन वितरण नहीं किया गया है। पात्र गृहस्थी के अधिकंश कार्ड धारकों में राशन वितरण नहीं कियागया है। कुछ पात्र गृहस्थी कार्डो पर वितरण किया गया है तो दर्ज यूनिट के अनुसार वितरण न करके मनमाने ढंग से कम मात्रा व अधिक मूल्य पर वितरण किया गया है। समस्त योजना के कार्ड धारकों में मिट्टी तेल शासन द्वारा निर्धारित मात्रा पर वितरण किया गया है किन्तु अधिक मूल्य लिया गया है। विक्रेता द्वारा प्रस्तुत वितरण पंजिका में कार्डधारकों के नामों के सम्मुख मात्रा व मूल्य अंकित है किन्तु प्राप्तकर्ता के हस्ताक्षर वाले कालम में अधिकतर अंगूठा निशानी लगा है , ऐसा प्रतीत होता है कि बाद में निशानी अंगूठा लगा दिया गया है तथा वितरण पंजिका किसी भी सक्षम अधिकारी द्वारा प्रमाणित नहीं है। समस्त पात्र गृहस्थी योजनाओं के कार्डधारकों एक ही मात्रा में खाद्यान्न का वितरण करना अंकित है जबकि यूनिट के अनुसार खाद्यान वितरण किया जाना था जिससे स्पष्ट है कि विक्रेता द्वारा कपटपूर्ण नीति से वितरण पंजिका तैयार की गयी है। विक्रेता द्वारा प्रस्तुत स्पष्टीकरण के पुष्ट भाग पर संयुक्त रूप से लोगो का हस्ताक्षर व निशानी अंगूठा लगवाया गया है इन लोगो का न तो कार्ड संख्या अंकित है और न तो किस योजना के कार्डधारक है, इसका भी उल्लेख नहीं है। विक्रेता द्वारा कार्डधारको से दुर्व्यवहार का दोषी पाया गया है। विक्रेता द्वारा अन्तयोदय कार्डधारकों में शासन द्वारा निर्धारित मात्रा से कम एवं अधिक मूल्य पर खाद्यान्न का वितरण किया जाना, चीनी निर्धारित मात्रा॥मूल्य पर वितरण न करना, मिट्टी तेल का वितरण निर्धारित मूल्य पर न करना, कार्डधारको से दुर्व्यवहार करना उचित दर दुकान पर पात्र गृहस्थीयों॥अन्त्योदय कार्डधारको की सूची, रेट व स्टाक बोर्ड, साइन बोर्ड, टोलफ्री नं० प्रदर्शित न करना जो उ०प्र० अनूसूचित वस्तु वितरण आदेश 2004 व अनुबन्ध पत्र की शर्तो का उल्लघंन है। उचित दर विक्रेता श्री राजू कुमार द्वारा निलम्बन के क्रम में प्रस्तुत स्पष्टीकरण व साक्ष्य बलहीन व तथ्यहीन

5. याची अपने अनुबन्ध पत्र के निरस्त करने के आदेश दिनांक 16.09.2016 के क्षुब्द होकर कण्डिका सं 28(3) , उत्तर प्रदेश आवश्यक वस्तु (विक्रय एवं वितरण नियंत्रण का अधिनियम) आदेश 2016 (संछेप में 'आदेश 2016') के अंतर्गत आयुक्त आजमगढ़ मण्डल, आजमगढ़ के समक्ष अपील दायर की। अपील के मुख्य आधार निम्न लिखित है :-

"10- यह कि क्षेत्रीय पूर्तिनिरीक्षक की जॉच आख्या 14.09.2016 की भी कापी अपीलकर्ता को नहीं दी गयी जो नैसर्गिक न्याय के सिद्धान्त के विपरीत है।

11- यह कि उपरोक्त से यह भी स्पष्ट होता है कि क्षेत्रीय पूर्ति निरीक्षक ने दिनांक 24.06.2016 की शिकायत पर दिनांक 26.6.2016 को जॉच रिपोर्ट दिया और फिर प्रार्थी के स्पष्टीकरण एवं समस्त अभिलेखों का परीक्षण भी पूर्ति निरीक्षक द्वारा किया गया बताया गया और पुनः जॉच आख्या दिनांक 24.09.2016 को दी गई। इस प्रकार शिकायतकर्ता ही जॉच अधिकारी के रूप में अनुबन्ध पत्र निरस्त करने का निर्णय भी लिया जो कानूनन गलत है। क्योंकि उपजिलाधिकारी द्वारा स्वयं स्वतंत्र रूप से कोई निर्णय नहीं लिया गया।

12- यह कि उपजिलाधिकारी द्वारा जॉच आख्या दिनांक 14.09.2016 के आधार पर आदेश पारित किया गया है जॉच आख्या से संतुष्ट होने का कोई निष्कर्ष आदेश में नहीं दिया है कि किस आधार पर अनुबन्ध पत्र निरस्त किया गया है।"

6. आयुक्त, आजमगढ़ मण्डल, आजमगढ़ ने अपने आदेश दिनांक 2.1.2017 के माध्यम से याची की अपील संख्या 256/ए को बलहीन मानते हुए निरस्त कर दिया। आदेश के प्रमुख अंश निम्न है।

"पत्रावली के अवलोकन से स्पष्ट है कि अपीलकर्ता की ओर से दिनांक 12.07.2016 को स्पष्टीकरण दिया गया है, जिसके साथ सादे पेपर पर कतिपय ग्रामवासियों के हस्ताक्षर है, एवं अभिलेखों की छायाप्रति एवं कुछ अभिलेखों की मूल प्रति प्रस्तुत की गयी है। वितरण रजिस्टर किसी भी अधिकारी द्वार प्रमाणित नहीं किया गया है, जबकि वितरण रजिस्टर के अन्तिम पृष्ठ पर यह प्रमाणित नहीं किया गया है, जबकि वितरण रजिस्टर के अन्तिम पृष्ठ पर यह प्रमाणित किया जाता है कि रजिस्टर में क्रमांक इतने से इतने पन्ने हैं। केवल माह अप्रैल 2016 के मिट्टी तेल का रजिस्टर प्रमाणित किया गया है। विद्वान उपजिलाधिकारी द्वारा अपीलकर्ता की ओर से प्रस्तुत स्पष्टीकरण व अभिलेखों का क्षेत्रीय पूर्ति निरीक्षक से परीक्षण कराया गया है। क्षेत्रीय पूर्ति निरीक्षक द्वारा दिनांक 14.09.2016 को प्रस्तुत किया गया, जिसमें उल्लेख किया गया कि समस्त पात्र गृहस्थी योजना के कार्डधारकों को एक ही मात्रा में खाद्यान्न वितरण किया जाना अंकित किया

गया है। जबकि यूनिट के आधार पर खाद्यान्न वितरण किया जाना चाहिए। विक्रेता द्वारा प्रस्तुत वितरण पंजिका में कार्डधारकों के नाम के सम्मुख मात्रा व मूल्य अंकित है, किन्तु प्राप्त कर्ता के हस्ताक्षर वाले कालम में अधिकतर निशानी अंगूठा लगा है तथा वितरण रजिस्टर सक्षम अधिकारी द्वारा प्रमाणित नहीं है। समस्त योजनाओं के कार्डधारकों के मिट्टी तेल शासन द्वारा निर्धारित मात्रा पर वितरण किया गया है, किन्तु निर्धारित मूल्य से अधिक मूल्य लिया गया है। विक्रेता द्वारा अपने स्पष्टीकरण के पुष्ट भाग पर संयुक्त रूप से लोगों का हस्ताक्षर निशानी अंगूठा लगवाया गया है, जबकि न तो उन लोगो कार्ड संख्या अंकित किया गया है और न तो किस योजना के कार्डधारक हैं, इसका भी कोई उल्लेख नही किया गया है। अपने परीक्षण रिपोर्ट में यह भी अंकित किया है कि विक्रेता द्वारा कार्डधारकों से दुर्व्यवहार का दोषी पाया गया है। अन्त्योदय बी०पी०एल० एवं पात्र गृहस्थी योजना के खाद्यान्न, चीनी, मिट्टी तेल आदि निर्धारित मात्रा से कम व निर्धारित मूल्य से अधिक मूल्य पर वितरण किया गया है। इस प्रकार स्पष्टीकरण व साक्ष्य बलहीन व तथ्यहीन पाये जाने के कारण अनुबन्ध पत्र बनाये रखने का कोई औचित्य न पाते हुए दुकान निरस्त किये जाने की संस्तुति की गयी है।

इस प्रकार विद्वान उपजिलाधिकारी द्वारा अपीलकर्ता के वितरण के विरूद्ध पूर्व में भी की गयी शिकायत तथा दूरभाष पर की गयी शिकायत के आधार पर पूर्ति निरीक्षक से आकस्मिक स्थलीय निरीक्षण कराकर कार्डधारकों के बयान के आधार पर जांच में पायी गयी गम्भीर अनियमितताओं के दृष्टिगत अपीलकर्ता की दुकान का अनुबन्ध पत्र, स्पष्टीकरण प्राप्त कर पुनः स्पष्टीकरण व अभिलेखों का परीक्षण कराकर जांच में पायी गयी गम्भीर अनियमितताओं के दृष्टिगत अपीलकर्ता की दुकान को बनाये रखने का कोई औचित्य न पाते हुए आलोच्य आदेश दिनांक 16.09.2016 द्वारा अपीलकर्ता की दुकान का अनुबन्ध पत्र निरस्त किया है। इस प्रकार विद्वान उपजिलाधिकारी द्वारा पत्रावली उपलब्ध अभिलेखों व साक्ष्यों का विधिवत परीक्षण करने के उपरान्त ही आलोच्य आदेश दिनांक 16.09.2016 पारित किया है, जिसमें किसी प्रकार के हस्तक्षेप का कोई औचित्य नहीं पाया जाता है। अपील निरस्त होने योग्य है।

अतः अपीलकर्ता द्वारा प्रस्तुत अपील बलहीन होने के कारण निरस्त की जाती है। अवर न्यायालय की पत्रावली आदेश की प्रति सहित वापस की जाती है। बाद आवश्यक कार्यवाही इस न्यायालय की पत्रावली दाखिल दफ्तर हो।"

7. याची ने वर्तमान याचिका के द्वारा उपरोक्त वर्णित आक्षेपित आदेश दिनांक 25.1.2017 व 16.9.2016 को निरस्त करने की प्रार्थना की है। याची नें याचिका के प्रस्तर 20 व आधार प्रस्तर (I) व (II) में उल्लेख किया है, कि क्षेत्रीय पुर्ति अधिकारी द्वारा की गई जॉच आख्या दिनांक 26.06.2016 की प्रति-याची को नहीं दी गयी थी। अतः याची के विरुद्ध समस्त कार्यवाही नैसर्गिक न्याय के सिद्धान्तो के विरूद्ध की गई है, अतः ऐसी कार्यवाही निरस्त किये जाने योग्य है। याची ने अपने

कथन के समर्थन में कुछ विधि वयवस्थाओ का भी उल्लेख किया है।

8. प्रति-पक्षी संख्या 3 ने प्रति शपथ पत्र दाखिल किया है तथा याचिका के प्रस्तर संख्या 20 के उत्तर में निम्न लिखा है।

"यह कि याचिका के प्रस्तर संख्या-20 में उल्लिखित विधि व्यवस्थाओं पर टिप्पणी की आवश्यकता नहीं है शेष जिस प्रकार लिखित है, स्वीकर नहीं है क्योंकि याची द्वारा आवश्यक वस्तुओं के वितरण में अनियमितता किया जाना सिद्ध पाये जाने के फलस्वरूप याची का अनुबन्ध-पत्र निरस्त किया गया। याची द्वारा उल्लिखित विधि व्यवस्थाए याची के प्रकरण मे लागू नहीं है।"

प्रति पक्षी संख्या ३ ने आधार संख्या (I) व (II) का कोई प्रति उत्तर नहीं दिया है। याची द्वारा प्रतिशपथ का उत्तर भी दाखिल किया जिसमे जाँच आख्या दिनाँक 26.06.2016 को याची को न देने का तथ्य फिर से उल्लेखित किया है।

9. याची के विद्वान अधिवक्ता हरीश चन्द्र दूबे ने प्रबल प्रतिवेदन किया और कहा कि याची के विरूद्ध समस्त कार्यवाही नैसर्गिक न्याय के सिद्धान्तों के विरूद्ध की गई है। याची को जाँच आख्या की प्रति नहीं दी गई है। याची के द्वारा दिये गये दस्तावेजो का परिशीलन ध्यान पूर्वक नहीं किया गया है। उप जिलाधिकारी ने मात्र जाँच आख्या पर ही केन्द्रित होकर अपना आदेश पारित किया। उप जिलाधिकारी ने अपना कोई स्वतंत्र निष्कर्ष नहीं दिया है। इसी क्रम में आयुक्त महोदय ने भी याची की अपील सतही व अनौपचारिक रूप से निरस्त कर दी एवं अपील में लिये गये विभिन्न आधार पर कोई ध्यान या टिप्पणी नहीं करी है।

10. याची के विद्वान अधिवक्ता ने इस न्यायालय की एकल पीठ द्वारा पारित विधि वयवस्था (रामकृपाल यादव बनाम उ०प्र० सरकार एवं अन्य रिट पिटिशन नं० 4011 (एम०आई०एस) आफ 2010 व अन्य याचिकाओं का निर्णय दिनांक 05.05.2011) पर इस न्यायालय का ध्यान आकृषित कराया, कि उक्त व्यवस्था में यह प्रतिपादित किया है कि, किसी अनुबन्ध पत्र को निरस्त करना एक गंभीर विषय है, जिसपर अनौपचारिक रूप में निर्णय नही लिया जा सकता। निर्णय लेने वाले प्राधिकारी को निष्पक्षता से निर्णय लेना चाहिये एवं नैसर्गिक न्याय के सिद्धान्तो का पालन करना चाहिये। ऐसा दस्तावेज (जैसे जाँच आख्या, निरीक्षण आख्या आदि) जिसका उपयोग पीड़ित के विरूद्ध किया गया हैं, उसकी प्रति उसको न देना, ऐसे स्थापित नियमों के विरूद्ध होगा तथा ऐसे आदेश निरस्त किये जाने योग्य होगे।

11. प्रति उत्तर में उ०प्र० सरकार के स्थाई अधिवक्ता ने कथन किया की याची ने वृहद स्तर पर आदेश 2004 व निबन्धन पत्र की शर्तो के विरूद्ध कार्य किया एवं गम्भीर अनियमिताये बरती है। क्षेत्रीय पूर्ति निरीक्षक की जांच आख्या में उल्लेखित है कि याची ने ग्राहको को अधिक मूल्य में कम सामग्री प्रदान करी व दुकान पर सूचना पट्ट इत्यादि भी नहीं लगाये थे। याची का व्यवहार भी ठीक नहीं रहा। याची ने ऐसा कोई स्पष्टीकरण नहीं दिया है जिससे,

निरस्तीकरण आदेश में लिये गये आधार असत्य माने जाये। याची को अपना पक्ष रखने के लिए समय दिया गया तथा याची ने लिखित स्पष्टीकरण के साथ आवश्यक दस्तावेज भी लगाये थे, जिनका परिशीलन किया गया। अतः नैसर्गिक न्याय के नियमो का पूर्णतः पालन हुआ है।

12. याची व प्रतिवादीगण के विद्वान अधिवक्ताओं के कथनो का श्रवण किया एवं उपलब्ध दस्तावेजो तथा विधि व्यवस्थाओ का परिशीलन ध्यान पूर्वक किया।

13. नैसर्गिक न्याय के सिद्धान्तो का पालन किसी भी कार्यवाही चाहे वो न्यायिक, प्रशासनिक, न्यायिकल्प ही क्यो न हो आवश्यक है। यह विधि सम्मत है कि सही, निष्पक्ष एवं पारदर्शी निर्णय के लिए इन सिद्धान्तो का पालन करना अनिवार्य है। निर्णय लेने की प्रक्रिया में निष्पक्षता सुनिशिक्षित करना निष्पक्ष निर्णय के अधिकार का एक महत्वपूर्ण स्तम्भ है। ऐसी प्रक्रिया जिसमें इन सिद्धान्तो का परिपालन नहीं किया जाता है, तो ऐसा माना जायेगा कि पीड़ित व्यक्ति के अधिकारो पर प्रतिकूल प्रभाव हुआ है।

14. सर्वोच्च न्यायालय ने अपने कई निर्णय मे निरंतर यह प्रतिपादित किया है कि नैसर्गिक न्याय के सिद्धान्तो का पालन अनिवार्य रूप से किया जाना चाहिये। ऐसा न करने से समस्त कार्यवाही निरस्त की जा सकती है। सिद्धान्तो का परिपालन न करने से यह माना जायेगा की कार्यवाही मे निष्पक्षता नहीं रखी गयी है। एस एल कपूर बनाम जगमोहन एंड सन्स (1980 (4) एस सी सी, 379) मामले में यह प्रश्न उठा था कि क्या नैसर्गिक न्याय के नियमो का पालन तब भी किया जाना चाहिये जब कोई ऐसे अविवादित तथ्य जो निर्णय लेने के लिए पर्याप्त हो और नोटिस देने के बाद भी अन्त परिणाम वही होगा। इस पर सर्वोच्च न्यायालय नॅ प्रतिपादित किया कि केवल इसलिए क्योंकि तथ्य स्वीकार किये जा सकते है या निर्विवाद है, नैसर्गिक न्याय के सिद्धान्तो का पालन न करने का कोई कारण नहीं हो सकता है। सर्वोच्च न्यायालय की पाँच न्यायमूर्ति की संवैधानिक पीठ ने एस एस गिल बनाम चीफ इलेक्शन कमिशनर (1978 (1) एस सी सी 405), में यह प्रतिपादित किया कि प्राशासनिक एवं अर्धन्यायिक कार्यो में नैसर्गिक न्याय के सिद्धान्तो का परिपालन अनिवार्य है। नैसर्गिक न्याय के नियमों का उद्देश्य "न्याय को विफल होने से रोकना" है। ये नियम न्यायिक तथा न्यायिक-कल्प कार्रवाईयों में तो लागू होते ही हैं, वरन प्रशासनिक कार्रवाईयों में भी लागू होते हैं। न्यायिक-कल्प जाँच तथा प्रशासनिक जाँच, दोनों, का उद्देश्य यही होता है कि न्यायसंगत विनिश्चय पर पहुँचे। प्रशासनिक कार्यवाहियों मे भी 'निष्पक्षता', एवं 'मनमानेपन का बहिष्करण', होना तथा उचित एवं न्यायसंगत रूप से कार्य करना, अनिवार्य है। यह सुप्रतिष्ठित विधि है कि, ऐसी प्रशासनिक कार्यवाही में, जो सिविल दुष्परिणाम उत्पन्न करती हो, नैसर्गिक न्याय के सिद्धान्त अनिवार्य रूप से लागू होते है। अर्थात् किसी प्रशासनिक आदेश से सिविल दुष्परिणाम उत्पन्न होते हों तो ऐसा प्रशासनिक आदेश भी नैसर्गिक न्याय के नियमों के अनुपालन के उपरान्त ही पारित कियॅ जा साकतॅ है। "विधिसम्मत

शासन" का अंतनिर्हित सिद्धान्त है कि सिविल दुष्परिणाम उत्पन्न करने वाला आदेश, नैसर्गिक न्याय के सिद्धान्तों का अनुपालन करके ही पारित किया जाये।

15. वर्तमान याचिका के तथ्यो से यह विदित 15होता है, कि याची के विरूद्ध समस्त कार्यवाही का आधार क्षेत्रिय पूर्ती अधिकारी की जाँच आख्या दिनांक 26.06.2016 है। उप जिलाधिकारी एवं आयुक्त ने उक्त जांच आख्या को ही आधार मान कर अपने निर्णय पारित किये है। इस तथ्य15 से कि उक्त जांच आख्या के प्रति याची को नहीं दी गई है, प्रति वादी के अधिवक्ता इंकार नहीं कर पाये है। अतः यह सिद्ध होता है कि उक्त जांच आख्या की प्रति याची को कभी भी नही दी गई है। मै याची के विद्वान अधिवक्ता के कथन से पूर्णत: सहमत हूँ की निर्णय लेने की प्रक्रिया में निष्पक्षता नहीं रखी गयी है व नैसर्गिक न्याय के सिद्धान्तों का परिपालन नहीं किया गया है।

16. उपरोक्त विवेचना के प्रकाश में एवं उपरोक्त वर्णित न्यायिक प्रतिपादनों के गहन अध्ययन के उपरान्त, मै इस निष्कर्ष पर पहुँचता हूँ कि वर्तमान वाद मे नैसर्गिक न्याय के सिद्धान्तो का अनुपालन नहीं हुआ है। इस कारण से निर्णय लेने की सम्पूर्ण प्रक्रिया दूषित हो गई है। अतः ऐसी प्रक्रिया को न्यायपूर्ण व दोषरहित नहीं कहा जा सकता है। अतः आक्षेपित आदेश दिनांक 16.09.2011 (उपजिलाधिकारी निजामाबाद, आजमगढ़) एवं 25.01.2017 (आयुक्त, आजमगढ़ मण्डल, आजमगढ़) न्यायपूर्ण न होने के कारण निरस्त किये जाने योग्य है, अतः निरस्त किये जाते है। यह याचिका इस आदेश के साथ अंतिम रूप से निस्तारित की जाती है, कि वर्त्तमान प्रकरण उप जिलाधिकारी आजमगढ़ को प्रतिशरण इन निर्देशों के साथ किया जाता है, वो वर्त्तमान प्रकरण को नैसर्गिक सिद्धान्तों का पालन करते हुए, इस आदेश की प्रमाणित प्रतिलिपि के मिलने के चार सप्ताह के अंतर्गत, गुण दोष के आधार पर निस्तारित करेंगे। यहां यह उल्लेखित करना आवश्यक है कि इस न्यायालय ने वर्तमान प्रकरण के गुण दोष पर कोई टिप्पणी नहीं की है।

A. Constitution of India – Fundamental Rights – Nature – Exhaustive or Evolving – The Constitutional law defines the substance of fundamental rights – The text of the Constitution, is a conceptual philosophy of fundamental rights, and not an exhaustive guide to fundamental rights – The text of the Constitution is fixed, fundamental rights are always evolving. This is the essence of constitutional law jurisprudence – There is a method in the evolution of constitutional law jurisprudence. (Para 50 and 54)

B. Constitution of India – Interpretation – Role of the Court – Evolution of constitutional law rights are guided and controlled by the text of the constitution, long settled judicial principles of interpretation of the constitution, and judicial precedents in point – Development of constitutional law happens on these sure foundations. Constitutional rights are distilled from this process – The judicial process would have to evolve, to meet the felt needs of the time – For the process to be credible and efficacious, a change has to come from within the judicial system – But change is inevitable, if judicial adjudication is to be just and remain relevant. In this regard, the High Court has a responsibility to fulfill, if not an obligation to discharge. (Para 55, 60 and 62)

C. Education – Importance – Education is the supreme act of nation building, which essentially means nurturing of constitutional values, realization of constitutional goals, and strengthening the rule of law – The quest for knowledge defines the Indian civilization. A salient feature in the search for learning, distinguishes the Indian civilization – Knowledge in Hellenic civilization was founded on reason. The human thirst for knowledge was also quenched by revelation – The distinctive feature of learning in Indian civilization, is that India's search for knowledge, while always embracing reason as a method and never denying revelation as a source, insists on realization as its goal. (Para 63 and 65)

D. University – Role and contribution – The universities are the custodians of the old values, even as they ceaselessly push the boundaries of modern knowledge – Through knowledge they will learn, that humanity unites more than diversity differentiates. With learning they will understand, that diversity enriches human life, and does not divide humankind – University is a paternal institution. By the act of suspension or debarment of a delinquent student, the university abandons its ward. The university has solved its problem, but the society has one at its hands – The role of the University does not end in punishing perpetrators of violence. It begins with the identification of the causes of violence, communal hatred, and other forms of deviant conduct – The fruit of knowledge imparted by the universities lies in the manifestation of human values in the human personality and expression of humanity in human conduct. (Para 67, 68, 162 and 163)

E. Constitution of India – Article 21 – Human dignity – Fundamental Right – Human dignity made a decisive contribution in the development of the rights of life and liberty, in jurisprudential systems of free societies across the world – Human dignity is not inserted in the text of the fundamental rights under the Constitution of India. Human dignity occurs in the Preamble to the Constitution of India – Consistent and high authority have thus entrenched human dignity as fundamental to right to life, which flows from Article 21 of the Constitution of India. (Para 92, 97 and 121)

F. Constitution of India – Article 21 – Fundamental Right – Right against dehumanizing elements of punishment – Every form of punishment should protect the essential sanctity of human life and comport with fundamental norms of decency evolved by a civilized society – Dignity of an individual/student is injured, when it is found that the punishment precludes reform by rehabilitative measures, and prevents self enhancement by further education – The degrading or dehumanizing elements of the punishment have to be eliminated to bring it in conformity with requirement of human dignity, contemplated by Article 21 of the Constitution of India. (Para 136 and 146)

G. Constitution of India – Article 21 – Rehabilitation and Reformation – Absence of an environment of reform, self development and rehabilitation in a university, denies the opportunity of redeeming one's reputation – The individual is permanently discarded by the institution, and loss of human self worth is total – This system of punishment is destructive of fundamental elements of human dignity, and violative of Article 21 of the Constitution of India. (Para 137)

H. Therapeutic Approach – Significance – Solution of Social Dysfunction – Under the therapeutic method, however, an individual's happiness depends on his or her self-esteem, and self-esteem is a by-product of public recognition – With the rise of therapeutic approaches by mid century, they were increasingly seen as social pathologies that needed to be treated through counseling and psychiatric intervention – Therapeutic solutions to social problems, are being increasingly recognized by social scientists, medical experts, psychologists, and jurists alike. (Para 153 and 194)

I. Nudge – Methodology – Behavioral Change – Importance of Yoga, Meditation and Vipassana – The methodology of 'nudges', in creating behavioral change has been gaining acceptability. The organization 'Nudge' in Lebanon, has done noteworthy work with refugee children, and on environmental protection – The Behavioral Insights Teams sometimes called 'Nudge Units', are also existing in many nations including Australia, Canada, Germany, Qatar, the United Arab Emirates, Japan, the United States, and the United Kingdom – Ancient branches of knowledge and wellness like yoga, meditation, vipassana and so on may prove to be rich resources to benefit from. (Para 189, 190 and 191)

J. Doctrine of Proportionality – Punishment – Balance between Institutional discipline and Individual rights – The essence of proportionality is that, the competent authority while imposing a punishment upon a delinquent student, has to co-relate and balance the imperatives of institutional discipline with the demands of individual rights – Too light a punishment will not be conducive to institutional discipline. Too harsh a punishment will not be consistent with norms of justice – Held, the impugned action fails the test of proportionality – Writ of mandamus regarding rehabilitation program issued to the Universities. (Para 214 and 217)

A. Reliefs sought

1. The petitioner has assailed the order dated 27.12.2017 passed by the respondent no. 4, Assistant Registrar (ACAD), Banaras Hindu University, Varanasi, suspending him from all privileges and activities of the University and hostel. The petitioner has further challenged the consequential order dated 03.07.2019, wherein the respondent University declined to consider the case for admission to any of the courses in the University to the academic sessions 2019-20.

2. The petitioner has also prayed for a writ in the nature of mandamus to command the respondents to consider the case of the petitioner for admission in M.A. History for the academic session 2019-21.

B. Arguments of the learned counsel for parties

3. Sri R. K. Ojha, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Ratnakar Upadhyay, learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the impugned order was passed in violation of the statutes of the university. The punishment imposed upon the petitioner is disproportionate. There is no provision for reform and rehabilitation of delinquent students in the statutes, which has resulted in violation of the fundamental right of the petitioner guaranteed under Article 21 of the Constitution of India.

4. Sri Anish Kumar, Sri Pankaj Misra and Sri Gaurav Pundir, learned counsels for the petitioner in connected writ petitions adopt the aforesaid arguments of the learned Senior Counsel, apart from raising factual issues peculiar to the respective writ petitions in which they appear.

5. Sri V.K. Upadhyaya, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri V.D. Chauhan, learned counsel for the BHU submits that the BHU has taken action as per law.

6. The learned Senior Counsel relied on the affidavits filed by the B.H.U., on creation of a reform and rehabilitation programme for delinquent students.

7. Sri Ajit Kumar Singh, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri V. D. Chauhan, learned counsel for the IIT BHU, contends that the IIT BHU, as a matter of policy accepts and is willing to adopt a professionally designed reform and rehabilitation programme for delinquent students. However, good order and discipline have to be maintained in the university, at all costs. In fact IIT BHU is currently even running a reform programme. He fairly conceded that the programme is not fully developed, and does not have a supporting statutory/legal frame work.

8. Sri Shashank Shekhar Singh, learned counsel for the respondent-AMU, submits that the AMU fully accepts the idea of a reform and rehabilitation programme for delinquent students on an institutional basis. He however contends that no compromise with the good order, discipline, and the stability of the academic atmosphere can be made in any manner.

9. Sri Rizwan Akhtar, learned counsel for the UGC, Sri Rakesh

Srivastava, and Sri Abrar Ahmed, learned counsels for the Union of India, have also been heard.

C. Facts

(i) Background

10. The petitioner claims that he is eligible for admission to the M.A. History course in the respondent University, in the academic session 2019-21. He has been denied admission on the foot of the impugned order of suspension dated 27.12.2017 and the consequential order dated 03.07.2019.

(ii) Suspension order : Consequences

11. The petitioner was suspended from all privileges and activities of the University and hostel by order dated 27.12.2017 purportedly passed under ECR No. 264 of 1979 as contained in Chapter VIII of the BHU Calender Part I Volume II, providing for ordinances governing maintenance of discipline and grievances procedure.

12. Consequent to the order dated 27.12.2017, the petitioner shall remain suspended, till his acquittal by the court in the criminal case. No terminal date can be set for conclusion of the criminal trial. Hence the suspension is for an indefinite period. The suspension order bars the petitioner, from entering the university campus, or accessing any facilities therein. All further academic pursuits are denied to the petitioner during the suspension. The effect of the order of suspension is punitive.

(iii) Suspension order : Validity

13. The order dated 27.12.2017, has been passed in purported exercise of powers of the ECR No. 264 of 1979, as contained in Chapter VIII of the BHU Calender Part I, Volume II, providing for ordinances governing maintenance of discipline and grievances procedure.

14. The order dated 27.12.2017 passed by the Assistant Registrar (ACAD), Banaras Hindu University, Varanasi which suspends the petitioner from all privileges and activities of the University and hostel, records that an F.I.R. No. 1510 of 2017 was registered under Sections 147, 148, 427, 435, 341, 323, 34 I.P.C and ¾ Prevention of Damage to Public Property Act, 1984, against a number of students including the petitioner. The order references the communication of the Chief Proctor, B.H.U. dated 26.12.2017, which recommends disciplinary action against the students named in the F.I.R., along with the petitioner.

15. The validity of the impugned suspension order, on its merits shall be considered, in the following sequence. The examination of the material available before the authority passing the order, will be followed by the consideration of scope of the provisions. Finally, adherence to the procedure prescribed by law will be tested.

16. The provision under which the suspension order was passed, empowers the competent authority of the University, to suspend a student from all privileges and activities of the University, when such student is "accused of, or involved in, an offence involving moral turpitude or heinous crime (including those involving violence or intimidation) and is wanted by the police or has been released on bail in connection with any such offence, or detained under any provision, or against whom Police investigation or criminal prosecution for any such offence is pending, of enquiry under U.P. Goonda Act is initiated;"

17. Lodgement of an F.I.R. for any criminal offence, does not automatically lead to a suspension, under the aforesaid provision.

18. The intention of the legislature is not far to seek. Lodgement of false criminal cases, is not uncommon in the country. Further criminal trials take an inordinately long time to conclude. No terminal date can be set, once criminal proceedings are set in motion.

19. Mechanical exercise of power of suspension, upon mere lodgement of a criminal case, will lead to unintended consequences. On many occasions, it would lead to an indefinite suspension, and denial of opportunities of education. At times causing a stigma, without any enquiry.

20. The provision obligates the authority, to record its satisfaction whether the FIR is in respect, of an offence involving moral turpitude, or a heinous crime (including those involving violence and intimidation). This condition precedent has to be followed before an order of suspension is passed.

21. Moral turpitude is a phrase of wide ambit. Some definitions of moral turpitude, from good authority will be extracted, to take the discussion forward. The Black's Law Dictionary defines "moral turpitude" as under:

"An act of baseness, vileness or depravity in the private and social duties which a man owes to his fellow men or to society in general, contrary to the accepted and customary rule of right and duty between man and man."

22. According to Bouvier's Law Dictionary, meaning of "moral turpitude" is under:

"Bad faith, bad repute, corruption, defilement, delinquency, discredit, dishonor, shame, guilt, knavery, misdoing, perversion, shame, ice, wrong."

23. The mere commission of a criminal offence, will not lead to an inference, that the act is one of moral turpitude. Offences which can be categorised, as those involving "moral turpitude", will be depend on the facts of each case.

24. The scope and terms of such enquiry, were elaborated by the Hon'ble Supreme Court, in the case of State Bank of India and Others Vs. P. Soupramaniane, reported at 2019 SCC OnLine SC 608, by holding that:

"10. There is no doubt that there is an obligation on the Management of the Bank to discontinue the services of an employee who has been convicted by a criminal court for an offence involving moral turpitude.Though every offence is a crime against the society, discontinuance from service according to the Banking Regulation Act can be only for committing an offence involving moral turpitude. Acts which disclose depravity and wickedness of character can be categorized as offences involving moral turpitude. Whether an offence involves moral turpitude or not depends upon the facts and the circumstances of the case. Ordinarily, the tests that can be applied for judging an offence involving moral turpitude are:

a) Whether the act leading to a conviction was such as could shock the moral conscience or society in general;

b) Whether the motive which led to the act was a base one, and

c) Whether on account of the act having been committed the perpetrators could be considered to be of a depraved character or a person who was to be looked down upon by the society.8

11.The other important factors that are to be kept in mind to conclude that an offence involves moral turpitude are :- the person who commits the offence; the person against whom it is committed; the manner and circumstances in which it is alleged to have been committed; and the values of the society.9According to the National Incident - Based Reporting System (NIBRS), a crime data collection system used in the United States of America, each offence belongs to one of the three categories which are: crimes against persons, crimes against property, and crimes against society. Crimes against persons include murder, rape, and assault where the victims are always individuals. The object of crimes against property, for example, robbery and burglary is to obtain money, property, or some other benefits. Crimes against society for example gambling, prostitution, and drug violations, represent society's prohibition against engaging in certain types of activities. Conviction of any alien of a crime involving moral turpitude is a ground for deportation under the Immigration Law in the United States of America. To qualify as a crime involving moral turpitude for such purpose, it requires both reprehensible conduct and scienter, whether with specific intent, deliberateness, willfulness or recklessness."

25. A similar fact based enquiry, will determine if the offending act, was a "heinous crime (including those involving violence & intimidation)".

26. Satisfaction of these jurisdictional prerequisites, is not recorded in the impugned order. No enquiry in that regard was conducted. The issue whether the offending act attributed to the petitioner, fell in the categories of "heinous crime (including violence and intimidation) or was an act of moral turpitude", is wholly absent from consideration. The impugned order suffers from non application of mind, and was passed mechanically.

27. In light of the preceding discussion, this Court finds that, the order dated 27.12.2017 was passed in violation of ECR No. 264 of 1979, as contained in Chapter VIII of the BHU Calender Part I, Volume II, providing for ordinances, governing maintenance of discipline and grievances procedure, and is arbitrary.

28. The order dated 03.07.2019, being a consequential one, has no legs to stand on after it is found that the order dated 27.12.2017 is illegal and arbitrary.

D. Legal Issues common in all writ petitions

29. Absence of any reform and rehabilitative measures, in the administrative and legal frameworks of the universities, has serious legal and constitutional implications.

30. The impugned action and the statutory regime, of imposing punishments, will also be judged in such constitutional and legal perspectives. The discussion on these issues, shall be common in all the companion writ petitions.

31. Calling attention to the statutes of the universities namely, BHU, IIT BHU and AMU, the learned counsels for the petitioners; contended that the said statutes do not contain provisions for reform and rehabilitation of delinquent students. The action against delinquent students, is governed and regulated, solely by the penal provisions, of the statutes of the respective universities. The punitive scheme is a common thread, in the statutes of all the three universities.

32. In response, all the counsels for the various respondents universities', in fact conceded, that as on date no structured and professionally designed programmes for reform, self development and rehabilitation of delinquent students, backed by a proper legal frame work, exist in the respective universities.

33. Accordingly, various orders were passed by this Court, from time to time, requiring the respective universities namely, Banaras Hindu University, Indian Institute of Technology Banaras Hindu University, and Aligarh Muslim University, as well as the University Grants Commission and the Union of India through the Ministry of Human Resource Development, New Delhi, to submit their responses in regard to creation of a reform and rehabilitation frame work, for delinquent students in universities and institutions of higher learning. The respondents were also required to indicate, whether they had any opposition or even reservation, in regard to the creation of the reform and rehabilitative programme for delinquent students in the universities.

34. All the respondents namely Banaras Hindu University (hereinafter referred to as BHU), Indian Institute of Technology, Banaras Hindu University (hereinafter referred to as IIT BHU), Aligarh Muslim University (hereinafter referred to as the AMU) as well as Union of India through Ministry of HRD and University Grants Commission (hereinafter referred to as UGC) have submitted their responses to the aforesaid issues.

E. Stands of respective respondents on affidavits

(i) Response of IIT BHU

35. The IIT BHU in its affidavit has recorded its full agreement with a reform oriented approach, to deal with deviant behaviour in students. Thus IIT, B.H.U., has made a ringing endorsement, of the need to adopt a reform and rehabilitation programme for delinquent students. However, it has also underscored the need for punitive action, to maintain a peaceful environment in the campus. The relevant paras of the affidavit are quoted hereinunder:

"2. That the present affidavit is being filed in compliance of the order dated 19.9.2019 passed by this Hon'ble Court.

4. That the Institute as indicated in the foregoing paragraph, is in full agreement with a reform oriented approach. However, in cases where reformative steps do not yield the desired corrections in behavior and actions of erring students, the Institute has to resort to punitive action in order to maintain the peaceful environment in the campus."

36. By categorically stating its commitment to reform of delinquent students, the IIT BHU has been true to its founding principles, and has faithfully discharged its obligations, under law and to the society.

(ii) Response of AMU

37. Upon orders being passed by this Court, the AMU to its credit, constituted an expert committee. The report of the expert committee has been submitted, and is made part of the record of the Court. The relevant parts of the Committee Report are extracted hereinbelow:

"In the light of the above the committee observes as under:

1. Our criminal justice system envisages two type of laws: one for Juveniles and second for other than Juveniles. There is a separate law for Juveniles known as Juvenile Justice Act, 2015 whereas others are covered under Code of Criminal Procedure, 1. 1976 and Indian Penal Code, 1860. The application of AMU Discipline and Conduct Rules, 1985 does not come primarily under the definition of Juvenile therefore the protection available to Juveniles are not available to the Students of the university in general. It becomes more relevant in view of the fact that at the time of admission every the disciplinary jurisdiction of the Vice Chancellor and the other authorities of the University is required to sign a declaration to the effect that he submits himself to the disciplinary jurisdiction of the Vice Chancellor and the other authorities of the University.

2. That it is also pertinent to mention here that Aligarh Muslim University is primarily a RESIDENTIAL UNIVERSITY and there are approximately 36,665 Students [22.593 University Students and departments/courses/Schools in the Aligarh Muslim University. Among these students 12,158 students reside in 56 Hostels (22 for girls) in the campus within the radius of 10 KM. Therefore, the future career of thousands of the students cannot be allowed to be jeopardized for the sake of handful of students who are involved in the indiscipline act and are destroying the whole atmosphere of the University.

3. In principle that criminal activity has no role to play in our education system therefore the students who are involved in the criminal activity have also no role to play in our education system. The students who are indulged in the criminal activity have different mind-set and have nothing to do with their studies. They are not at all interested to pursue their studies and their presence only hampers the study of the other students who are interested to pursue their study. It is the duty of the University to marginalize such type of students so that the students at large, who are more interested to pursue their studies, may pursue their studies in cordial and peaceful/ atmosphere.

4. That as per existing rules of the University, there is no compulsory/ mandated counselling available to students against whom the discipline and conduct rules are invoked. These rules are also not invoked in a routine way but being a residential University there are day-today interactions/counselling with the Wardens, Provost Tutors, Teachers and Senior Students holding positions of Senior Hall/Food etc.

5. That the extreme punishments as provided in the 1985 rules are invoked when there is an extreme situation and continuance/presence of the students became a threat to the academic environment and campus life of the University.

6. At the same time the observations of the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Ajay Bhanot in this matter are highly appreciable in the context to infuse a reformative approach that the solution lies in engaging with the students, and harnessing their energies creatively. Errant behavior has to be reformed and not condemned. Erring students have to be transformed and not judged. The purpose of education is to unlock the immense potentiality in the human resource of the nation. This is possible by bringing about a conceptual shift in the concept of enforcing discipline, in the portals of the University. Indiscipline unchecked is indiscipline unleashed. But it is equally true. that expelling students from the University is a short term, if not a myopic view of the issue. A balance has to be drawn by the University authorities. The University has to create an ecosystem, with qualified staff and detailed programs of engaging with such students, with a view to give them an opportunity to reform themselves. Expulsion of students would abandon them to their own devices, close the doors of reformation to them, and shut them out from the redeeming light of knowledge. Leaving children accused of misconduct or deviant behavior, to fend for themselves would create issues for the society at large. In case Universities decline to shoulder the responsibilities of bringing such children back to the correct path, and do not provide the frame work for mainstreaming this class of students, the consequences would be detrimental to the society at large. There is no better institution in our democratic frame work, to embrace the young and questing spirits who have strayed from their path of morally upright and correct conduct. The Universities are uniquely equipped to deal with the challenge on an institutional basis. The Universities are repositories of knowledge, resources and experience to meet the challenge at hand. What is at stake, is not merely the future of an individual, but stability of the society The concerns of the society have to be handled by the University. The magnitude of the challenge is large, but it is imperative for the Universities to accept it and provide the adequate response.

After detailed deliberations and in the backdrop of above the committee proposes that:

1. Structural reformative approach may be included in the AMU Students Conduct and Discipline Rules of 1985 as this committee has identified some areas (not all inclusive) for counselling by a psychologist as enumerated above.

2. As the misconduct offences/crimes related to internet and cyberspace were not available when the Discipline Rules were framed, the same needs to be identified and appropriately included in the AMU Students Conduct and Discipline Rules of 1985 as it is growing among young and youth.

3. Outside campuses were not established when these rules were framed, hence, there is also need to amend these rules to include a structure for those centres.

The committee therefore recommends to the Vice-Chancellor as follows:

AMU Students Conduct and Discipline Rules 1985 were framed almost 30 years back and in the light of the observations given above, a detailed and exhaustive exercise may be undertaken by a committee to be appointed by the Vice-Chancellor under the convenorship of the Proctor of the University to formulate and propose a draft of revised AMU Students Conduct and Discipline Rules, inclusive of reformative approach, after exploring similar rules already enforced by sister universities and institutions in India and abroad for further consideration of the Vice-Chancellor and Academic Council of the University."

38. The AMU has thus in principle, recognized the need for a reform and rehabilitation programme for delinquent students in some areas in the university. The AMU too has accorded top priority, to the maintenance of discipline in the campus, and is rightly unwilling to compromise with the same.

(iii) Response of BHU

39. The initial affidavit filed by the BHU, in regard to their stand on a reformative and rehabilitation programme for delinquent students, stated in effect that the reformation of the students indulging deviant behaviour is achieved, by providing for various categories of punishments, depending upon the nature of indiscipline. It further asserted, that in the name of reformation, the University cannot give a "go by", to the objectives of the university. The relevant paras 17 and 18 of the affidavit dated 17.09.2019 are extracted hereunder:

"17. In the present case no such conditions exist and as such the continuance of the order of suspension of the petitioner from the privileges of the University and Hostel is in accordance with law. That 17. it is the University humbly that submitted administration and the Vice-Chancellor in particular is the custodian of the interests of all the students involved in various academic pursuits in the University. In the case of Banaras Hindu University the number of all the students at various levels runs into more than 30 thousand. For the smooth functioning of the University and maintenance of an environment conducive to academic pursuits the interest of an individual student must give way to the larger interests of all the students as a whole. This is not only in the interest of the students themselves but also in public interest. In the of reformation of the students the University name administration cannot give a go by to the objectives of the University nor can it take an action which may have the potential of destroying the smooth functioning of the University embroiling the University in large scale unrest both in the student as well as in the teaching community. If the University such situation is brought about a administration would be failing in its duty. The fact that Banaras Hindu University is the largest residential University in the country if not the world cannot be lost sight of. Even small spark has the potential of turning into a conflagration which may become difficult to contain.

18. That the facility and provisions aimed at reformation of the erring students found indulging in deviant behavior is inherent in the Ordinances of the University dealing with students' indiscipline by providing for various categories of punishments depending upon the nature of indiscipline."

40. However, subsequently, the BHU filed an affidavit on 26th September, 2019, easing its reservations, against a reform and rehabilitation programme. The affidavit exhibited a shift in stand, indicating a willingness to consider a reformative approach. The para 7 of the affidavit is extracted hereunder:

"7. That all the aforesaid mechanisms and provisions exist in the University for creation and preservation of an academic ambience conducive to teaching and learning and vibrant and peaceful community life. However, there exist no provision in the Rules of the University for any formal reformative mechanism or process for such students as are found involved in an offence involving moral turpitude or heinous crime and hence are suspended from the privileges of the University. However, the University is not averse to considering this aspect, if it is found appropriate by the University through Constitution of a Committee of stakeholders which may look into as to whether such a mechanism is desirable in principle in the context of maintenance of academic ambience of the University or it may be detrimental to it, particularly, to the interest of larger group of the students, teachers and employees."

41. In substance the BHU was open to the concept of a structured reformative programme. It has however, desisted from taking a categorical position, on this most critical issue. While openness to new ideas is appreciated, failure to take a specific stand is also noticed. The Court will go no further.

(iv) Response of UGC

42. Sri Rizwan Ali Akhtar, learned counsel for the UGC has relied on the affidavit filed by the UGC. The UGC in its affidavit, stated that the universities are autonomous institutions. The academic and administrative decisions, are to be taken by the universities concerned, as per law. It was also stated that "the UGC has no role to play on day to day function of the Central Universities".

(v) Response of UoI

43. The Ministry of Human Resource Development, Government of India has chosen not to file any affidavit, despite orders passed by the Court and opportunities granted by the Court. The Court has to proceed, with the hearing in the interests of justice.

44. It was informed that the Ministry of Human Resource Development, Government of India, on its part had sent communications to the AMU and BHU, to protect its interests. The Court finds that the interests of the Union of India, are in no manner adversely affected. In these cases the interests of the Union of India, are not converse to the universities.

"The best lack all conviction."
~WB Yeats

45. Present discontents cannot be addressed by rote responses. Contemporary problems cannot be resolved by jejune formulae.

46. The universities cannot avoid a stand at the decision point. By prevarication at the decision point, the university may postpone the reckoning, but cannot escape responsibility.

47. Law has to hold institutions accountable to their obligations, to the founding purposes, to the students and to the society at large.

48. Universities of eminence cannot justify present inertia on the foot of past glory. Universities have to be aware of the risks, of basking in the reflected glory of the past. Eminence is achieved by past glory, however, reputation is retained by present endeavours.

49. Universities at certain critical decision points, would be true to their founding purposes and extant obligations by making clear and creative interventions. The universities as well as other authorities cannot show ineptitude in the face of crises, and equivocation in the face of solutions. In these critical situations the universities as well as other authorities, have to stand up and intervene and not stand by and equivocate.

F. Evolution of Fundamental Rights by courts

50. The fundamental rights of citizens are stated in Part III of the Constitution of India. But as in all cases, text of the rights can never be the exhaustive description of all rights. Rights have to be interpreted from the text of the Constitution. The process of interpretation of the text, often results in the evolution of rights. The Constitution is the textual origin of fundamental rights. Constitutional law defines the substance of fundamental rights.

(i) Legislative lag, executive inertia and fundamental rights

51. The fast pace of life in modern times often, outstrips the capacity of the legislature, to cope with the consequences of social change. There is a limit to human foresight, but the possibilities of life are limitless. The limits of legislation are the constraints of human foresight. The legislative process is complex and even time taking. Human affairs do not wait on the legislative process. These facts frequently create a legislative lag. It is almost inevitable in the nature of things.

52. The first intersection of life with law, at times happens in courts, even before the legislature grapples with the problems. The courts are often seized, of various emerging issues in social and individual lives, before the legislatures are cognizant of them.

53. A legislative hiatus or executive lethargy, cannot cause a constitutional stasis. The enforcement of fundamental rights, cannot be forestalled by a legislative lag or executive inertia. Constitutional guarantees and Fundamental Rights, have to be enforced on demand. Constitutional overhang is perpetual. Law is always in motion, and never on a holiday.

54. The text of the Constitution, is a conceptual philosophy of fundamental rights, and not an exhaustive guide to fundamental rights. The text of the Constitution is fixed, fundamental rights are always evolving. This is the essence of constitutional law jurisprudence. There is a method in the evolution of constitutional law jurisprudence.

55. Evolution of constitutional law rights are guided and controlled by the text of the constitution, long settled judicial principles of interpretation of the constitution, and judicial precedents in point. The march of law is also assisted by consensus of values, in the comity of civilized nations. These universal values are often manifested in International Conventions and Treaties. Another source of such values is comparative international jurisprudence. The felt needs of the times are also factored in by the courts.

Development of constitutional law happens on these sure foundations. Constitutional rights are distilled from this process. In this process, the courts discharge their constitutional obligations. This is not judicial activism by courts. It is judging.

56. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Vishaka Vs. State of Rajasthan, reported at 1997 (6) SCC 241, issued various guidelines for the safety of women at working places. The guidelines held the field, till the Parliament enacted the legislation in that regard. Judicial directions in that case preceded, the legislative enactment. Infact the legislature was alerted, to the need of a legislation to cover the field, by the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court.

57. This narrative will profit from the observations of the Hon'ble Supreme Court, in the case of Rattan Chand Hira Chand v. Askar Nawaz Jung, reported at (1991) 3 SCC 67:

"The legislature often fails to keep pace with the changing needs and values nor is it realistic to expect that it will have provided for all contingencies and eventualities. It is, therefore, not only necessary but obligatory on the courts to step in to fill the lacuna. When courts perform this function undoubtedly they legislate judicially. But that is a kind of legislation which stands implicitly delegated to them to further the object of the legislation and to promote the goals of the society. Or to put it negatively, to prevent the frustration of the legislation or perversion of the goals and values of the society. So long as the courts keep themselves tethered to the ethos of the society and do not travel off its course, so long as they attempt to furnish the felt necessities of the time and do not refurbish them, their role in this respect has to be welcomed.

All courts have at one time or the other felt the need to bridge the gap between what is and what is intended to be. The courts cannot in such circumstances shirk from their duty and refuse to fill the gap. In performing this duty they do not foist upon the society their value judgments. They respect and accept the prevailing values, and do what is expected of them. The courts will, on the other hand, fail in their duty if they do not rise to the occasion but approve helplessly of an interpretation of a statute or a document or of an action of an individual which is certain to subvert the societal goals and endanger the public good."

G. Process of law and the courts : Current State & Contemporary Challenges

58. The pace of technological, social and economic developments, often pose a challenge to the courts. Courts of today often have to deal with complex issues ranging from science, technology, economics, archaeology, medicine, social sciences and across other fields of highly specialized knowledge.

59. Lawyers on occasions lack the expertise, to grasp and simplify issues of varying complexity, from fields unrelated to law. Judges do not fare any better. Parties have their interests to protect.

60. The intellectual capital created by traditional resources of the judicial process, may not be adequate to manage such contemporary challenges. The judicial process would have to evolve, to meet the felt needs of the time. The rising tides of human knowledge, cannot pass the courts by. This shall require change in procedures, and development of infrastructure.

61. The intellectual resource base has to be widened. The debate has to be broadbased, to include direct inputs from experts as well. This would also entail well equipped libraries, which are staffed by qualified personnel and research assistants, and may be even experts. Institutional arrangements for interface of the courts with experts, have to be in place to ensure procedural propriety.

62. Debate on these issues will pave the way for the most important change, i.e. change in mindset. For the process to be credible and efficacious, a change has to come from within the judicial system. But change is inevitable, if judicial adjudication is to be just and remain relevant. In this regard, the High Court has a responsibility to fulfill, if not an obligation to discharge.

H. Education

(i) Importance and scope

"Where the mind is without fear and the head is held high,
Where knowledge is free".
~Tagore

63. In education mankind discovered the message of unquenchable optimism, that humans could be separated from the cycle of repetitive thought and action. Learning was the key to the uninterrupted progress of any society. Knowledge instilled the belief that human life could be improved. Through knowledge alone, the hope is realized that humans can be reformed, and humanity can be transformed. Education is the supreme act of nation building, which essentially means nurturing of constitutional values, realization of constitutional goals, and strengthening the rule of law.

64. The idea of the Indian nation is founded, on the ideals of the Indian civilization. Many of these ideals are manifested in the Constitution, and find expression in constitutional law.

65. The quest for knowledge defines the Indian civilization. A salient feature in the search for learning, distinguishes the Indian civilization. Knowledge in Hellenic civilization was founded on reason. The human thirst for knowledge was also quenched by revelation. The distinctive feature of learning in Indian civilization, is that India's search for knowledge, while always embracing reason as a method and never denying revelation as a source, insists on realization as its goal.

66. The diversity of thought is reflected in the plurality of discourse in India. The enduring values which define India, have been preserved and propagated by the tradition of civilized debate. The unity of our nation is protected by respect and affirmation of a multi hued cultural heritage and embracement of varied traditions of thought.

(ii) Role and obligation of universities

"Where the mind is led forward by thee Into ever widening thought and action."
~Tagore

67. The universities are the custodians of the old values, even as they ceaselessly push the boundaries of modern knowledge.

68. In universities students of diverse backgrounds, and different beliefs, congregate in a common pursuit of knowledge. Through knowledge they will learn, that humanity unites more than diversity differentiates. With learning they will understand, that diversity enriches human life, and does not divide humankind. University experience will help them, cultivate constitutional values, and transcend violent and other aberrational tendencies.

69. Universities are not teaching shops, nor are they mere examining bodies. Universities nurture the intellect and develop the character of the young citizens in a wholesome manner. Students gain knowledge and imbibe values in universities. These dual pursuits constitute the founding purpose of a university, in fact its raison detre.

70. A unifocal approach promoting scholastic achievements, to the exclusion of character building, would undermine the founding principles of a university. A failure of character or deficit of values in students, may impel action against the delinquent student, but should also cause introspection in university authorities.

71. University education is not an arm's length transaction, between the teachers and the taught. Nor is university education an exact contractual relation, in the likeness of a consumer and a service provider.

I. Discipline in Universities: Concept, Need & Challenges

(i) Violence, intimidation and moral turpitude

"Where the clear stream of reason has not lost its way into the dreary desert sand of dead habit"

~Rabindranath Tagore

72. Violence degrades human life. Intimidation stifles human thought. Moral turpitude is the low ebb of human conduct. These are the scourges and yet inescapable facts of human life. Our society faces these issues, and our varsities grapple with them.

73. Violence, intimidation, and acts of moral turpitude, are not conducive to the academic atmosphere of a varsity, and pose a mortal threat to the values of a university. They retard the growth of free thought and reasoned debate. These evils have no place in our universities. The universities can prosper only when such evils are got rid of.

(ii) Communal disturbances in universities

"Where the world has not been broken up into fragments by narrow domestic walls".

~Rabindranath Tagore

74. In Writ C No. 32955 of 2019, (Ajay Singh Vs. Union of India and Others), the petitioner is charged with disturbing the communal harmony in the university.

75. Stoking communal hatred not only disrupts peace and order in a university, but can roil the foundations of law and harmony in our society. The problem cannot be tackled as a "discipline" issue alone. A composite and a conceptual approach has to be adopted. The roots of communal hate have to be analyzed and addressed. Communal hatred is a narrative, which stands in direct opposition, to our civilizational ethos and constitutional values. Communal hatred holds a threat, to the rule of law. Communal hatred cannot be countenanced in our universities, nor can be given any space in our society.

(iii) Discipline in universities

76. Discipline is the bedrock of any organization. In a university, discipline does not mean conformity of thought, or creation of a regimented class of people. In a varsity discipline is not the residue, after dissent is stifled and dissenters purged.

77. Discipline in a university is the consensus among all stakeholders, to live by the universal values which define the academic world. Discipline in a varsity is common allegiance and unshakable adherence, to values which nurture free thought, respect dissentient opinions, and create an environment of unimpeded academic pursuits. Hate and true debate cannot co-exist. Violence and true learning cannot cohabit.

78. Discipline has to be preserved at all costs, if the raison detre of the University is to be protected at all times. Indiscipline unchecked is indiscipline unleashed. However in our constitutional scheme, the means of ensuring discipline, is as important as the end of keeping discipline.

(iv) Statutory approach to maintaining discipline

79. The universities have created legal frameworks, to deal with acts of indiscipline, and to maintain discipline and order.

80. The power to take disciplinary action, and impose punishment upon delinquent students, is vested in the competent authorities, by the statutes of the concerned university. The following statutes govern and regulate, the process of initiating disciplinary action against delinquent students, and imposition of penalty for misconduct.

BHU -The Banaras Hindu University Act No. XVI of 1915 {Section 60}

ii. Chapter VIII, Ordinances Governing Maintenance of Discipline and Grievances Procedure.

iii. Notification, New Delhi, 31st July, 2017, BHU

AMU- The Aligarh Muslim University (Act No. XL of 1920), [Amendment] Act, 1981 (62 of 1981)

ii. Section 35 (5) of the AMU

iii. The Statutes of the University (as adapted under Section 28 of the Act) amended upto December, 2012).

IIT BHU - i. The Institutes of Technology Act, 1961

ii. The Institutes of Technology Amendment Act, 2012.

iii. Section 17(2) of the Act, 1961 (already quoted)

(The relevant extracts of the statutes are appended as appendix 1 to the writ petition.)

J. Statutory Regime of Punishments in light of Article 21 & Doctrine of Proportionality

81. The statutes of all the three universities contemplate only penal action, to deal with all forms of indiscipline or deviant conduct. The penal action may lead to suspension, and can even extend to expulsion and debarment.

82. The punitive provisions of the Statutes of the respective universities, manifest the deterrent intent of the law. A reformist approach to the problem is absent in the statutes. The makers of statutes have solely adopted a punitive or deterrent approach to the exclusion of other methods of dealing with issues of indiscipline or deviant conduct.

83. The aforesaid ordinances of the universities and the affidavits of the respondents have been perused. Submissions of the learned counsel for the universities have been considered. This Court finds that there is no structured, professionally designed reform, self development and rehabilitation programme, or therapeutic support system backed by a legal frame work, to deal with the delinquent students and like issues in the universities.

84. The statutory monopoly of a punitive approach, to deviant behaviour, and the exclusion of all other responses, often creates a lack of balance in the actions of the concerned University. In such cases, the punishment becomes disproportionate, not because the decision maker was incapable of measured action, but because the ordinances/statutes preclude a proportional response.

85. It is clarified, that the requirement of punitive provisions in the statutes is a given. The need to empower the authority, to take disciplinary action in law is undisputed. There is no infirmity in the statutory provisions. The inadequacy is in the reach of the statutory provisions.

86. The decision maker is constrained in his choices, by the absolute dominance of punitive provisions, and complete omission of reformative measures in the ordinances.

87. The impact of absence of reformative provisions and the presence of a statutory bias in favour of a punitive approach, on the fundamental rights of the petitioners, shall also be assessed in the next part of the judgment.

K. Punishments and Article 21

(i) Right to human dignity

88. A life without dignity is robbed of its meaning. Absent self worth, life is devoid of content.

89. Human dignity as a concept, was created by an international consensus, on universal human values. "Human dignity" and "self worth" are used, in close proxmity in international instruments, reflecting the affinity between the concepts.

90. The comity of nations, first pledged commitment to protecting the "dignity and worth" of the human person, in the charter of the United Nations. These eternal values were reiterated, in subsequent international instruments and conventions including the Convention for the Suppression of the Traffic in Persons and of the Exploitation of the Prostitution of Others (1951); the Supplementary Convention on the Abolition of Slavery, the Slave Trade, and Institutions and Practices Similar to Slavery (1956); the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women (1979); the Convention on the Rights of the Child (1989); and the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (2006).

91. Human dignity and self worth, were increasingly incorporated in the jurisprudence of all liberty loving nations in the post World War II era.

92. The complexity of the concept of human dignity, never diluted the usefulness of the theory of human dignity in enhancing the worth of the human person. Human dignity made a decisive contribution in the development of the rights of life and liberty, in jurisprudential systems of free societies across the world.

93. However, the Court would do well to observe the caution, that a sweeping judicial definition of human dignity, would make an abstract theory, unintelligible. An unduly wide judicial construct of human dignity, would create unworkable judicial tests.

94. Likewise if the courts adopt too narrow a view of human dignity, a concept which has made stellar contribution to the advancement of human rights will be lost.

95. Keeping these pitfalls in mind, a balance has to be maintained, between attempting too much and recoiling from the task altogether.

96. The applicability of human dignity, would be determined in this case, by evolving a workable test or construct of human dignity and self worth applicable to these cases.

97. Human dignity is not inserted in the text of the fundamental rights under the Constitution of India. Human dignity occurs in the Preamble to the Constitution of India.

98. The Preamble to the Constitution, reflects the resolve of the People of India, to secure to all its citizens

"Justice social, economic and political;
Liberty of thought, expression, belief, faith and worship;
Equality of status and of opportunity;
and to promote among them all and Fraternity assuring the dignity of the individual and the unity of the Nation."

The Preamble to the Constitution is not analogous, to a preamble to any legislative enactment.

99. The unique place of the Preamble, in the Constitution came to be noticed very early, in Sajjan Singh v. State of Rajasthan, reported at AIR 1965 SC 845. The Hon'ble Supreme Court found that the Preamble to our Constitution is "not of the common run". Further the Preamble bore the "stamp of deep deliberation" and precision.

100. This feature shines light on the special significance, attached to the Preamble by the framers of the Constitution. The Preamble was held to be a part of the Constitution, by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Kesavananda Bharati v. State of Kerala, reported at (1973) 4 SCC 225.

101. The words 'life, law and liberty' in Article 21 of the Constitution of India, were freed from the confines of narrow and literal interpretation by the Courts. (See Maneka Gandhi v. Union of India, (1978) 1 SCC 248)

102. A defining moment came when the Hon'ble Supreme Court, liberated "life" from the fetters of mere physical existence. (see Olga Tellis v. Bombay Municipal Corpn. Reported at (1985) 3 SCC 545).

103. Over the years human dignity, has been read into the meaning of life and liberty, under Article 21 of the Constitution of India, by consistent pronouncements of the courts.

104. A broad overview of some of the leading pronouncements of the Hon'ble Supreme Court, elevating human dignity to the status of a fundamental right, are discussed in the succeeding paragraphs.

(ii) Supreme Court on human dignity

105. The concept of human dignity forming a part of Article 21, was introduced in Prem Shankar Shukla v. UT of Delhi, reported at (1980) 3 SCC 526. While construing the constitutional rights of prisoners, in Prem Shankar Shukla (supra), Krishna Iyer, J. speaking for a three-Judge Bench of the Hon'ble Supreme Court held:

"1. ... the guarantee of human dignity, which forms part of our constitutional culture, and the positive provisions of Articles 14, 19 and 21 spring into action when we realise that to manacle man is more than to mortify him; it is to dehumanise him and, therefore, to violate his very personhood, too often using the mask of "dangerousness" and security.

21. The Preamble sets the humane tone and temper of the Founding Document and highlights justice, equality and the dignity of the individual."

106. Undermining the human dignity of a detenue, under the Conservation of Foreign Exchange and Prevention of Smuggling Activities (COFEPOSA) Act, 1974 was not countenanced by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Francis Coralie Mullin v. UT of Delhi, reported at (1981) 1 SCC 608 by ruling thus:

"6. ... The fundamental right to life which is the most precious human right and which forms the ark of all other rights must therefore be interpreted in a broad and expansive spirit so as to invest it with significance and vitality which may endure for years to come and enhance the dignity of the individual and the worth of the human person.

7. ... the right to life enshrined in Article 21 cannot be restricted to mere animal existence. It means something much more than just physical survival."

107. The right to live with human dignity flowing from Article 21, was employed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court to unlock the fetters of those living in bondage and setting them free in Bandhua Mukti Morcha v. Union of India, reported at (1984) 3 SCC 161. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Bandhua Mukti Morcha (supra) observed that:

"10. ...This right to live with human dignity enshrined in Article 21 derives its life breath from the directive principles of State policy and particularly clauses (e) and (f) of Article 39 and Articles 41 and 42 and at the least, therefore, it must include protection of the health and strength of the workers, men and women, and of the tender age of children against abuse, opportunities and facilities for children to develop in a healthy manner and in conditions of freedom and dignity, educational facilities, just and humane conditions of work and maternity relief. These are the minimum requirements which must exist in order to enable a person to live with human dignity, and no State -- neither the Central Government nor any State Government -- has the right to take any action which will deprive a person of the enjoyment of these basic essentials."

108. Dehumanizing treatment given to the arrested activists of an organization by the police authorities was called out by the Hon'ble Supreme court, in Khedat Mazdoor Chetna Sangath v. State of M.P., reported at (1994) 6 SCC 260, wherein it was recognized:

"10. ... It is, therefore, absolutely essential in the interest of justice, human dignity and democracy that this Court must intervene; order an investigation, determine the correct facts and take strongest possible action against the respondents who are responsible for these atrocities."

109. The right of human dignity was also construed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in M.Nagaraj v. Union of India, reported at (2006) 8 SCC 212. In that case the right was held to be intrinsic to and inseparable from human existence:

"26. ... The rights, liberties and freedoms of the individual are not only to be protected against the State, they should be facilitated by it. ...It is the duty of the State not only to protect the human dignity but to facilitate it by taking positive steps in that direction. No exact definition of human dignity exists. It refers to the intrinsic value of every human being, which is to be respected. It cannot be taken away. It cannot give(sic be given).It simply is. Every human being has dignity by virtue of his existence.

42. India is constituted into a sovereign, democratic republic to secure to all its citizens, fraternity assuring the dignity of the individual and the unity of the nation. The sovereign, democratic republic exists to promote fraternity and the dignity of the individual citizen and to secure to the citizens certain rights. This is because the objectives of the State can be realised only in and through the individuals. Therefore, rights conferred on citizens and non-citizens are not merely individual or personal rights. They have a large social and political content, because the objectives of the Constitution cannot be otherwise realised."

110. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Shabnam v. Union of India, reported at (2015) 6 SCC 702 elaborated the following elements of the human dignity;

"14. This right to human dignity has many elements. First and foremost, human dignity is the dignity of each human being "as a human being". Another element, which needs to be highlighted, in the context of the present case, is that human dignity is infringed if a person's life, physical or mental welfare is harmed. It is in this sense torture, humiliation, forced labour, etc. all infringe on human dignity. It is in this context many rights of the accused derive from his dignity as a human being."

(emphasis in original)

111. Aharon Barak (former Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Israel), discussed the constitutional value of human dignity, in the following celebrated passage:

"The constitutional value of human dignity has a central normative role. Human dignity as a constitutional value is the factor that unites the human rights into one whole. It ensures the normative unity of human rights. This normative unity is expressed in the three ways: first, the value of human dignity serves as a normative basis for constitutional rights set out in the constitution; second, it serves as an interpretative principle for determining the scope of constitutional rights, including the right to human dignity; third, the value of human dignity has an important role in determining the proportionality of a statute limiting a constitutional right. "

112. The views of the Judge Aharon Barak, were approved and incorporated in the corpus of human dignity jurisprudence, in our country by the Hon'ble Supreme court in Jeeja Ghosh v. Union of India, reported at (2016) 7 SCC 761.

113. The consequences of loss of human dignity in an individual's life, were noted by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Mehmood Nayyar Azam v. State of Chhattisgarh, reported at (2012) 8 SCC 1.

114. Similar sentiments were expressed on human dignity, by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in National Legal Services Authority v. Union of India, reported at (2014) 5 SCC 438.

115. In Maharasthra University of Health Sciences v. Satchikitsa Prasarak Mandal reported at (2010) 3 SCC 786, the Hon'ble Supreme court upon consideration of good authority, reiterated the dignity of the individual as a core constitutional concept.

116. While in Selvi v. State of Karnataka reported at (2010) 7 SCC 263, the Hon'ble Supreme Court ruled thus:

"244.....we must recognize that a forcible intrusion into a person's mental processes is also an affront to human dignity and liberty, often with grave and long-lasting consequences."

117. Even prisoners have been found entitled to the fundamental rights while in custody by the Hon'ble Supreme Court (see Sunil Batra (II) Vs. Delhi Administration, reported at 1980 (3) SCC 488).

118. The importance of therapeutic approach in dealing with the criminal tendencies of prisoners and the necessity for reform, was considered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in T.K. Gopal v. State of Karnataka, reported at (2000) 6 SCC 168, by holding that:

"15. The therapeutic approach aims at curing the criminal tendencies which were the product of a diseased psychology. There may be many factors, including family problems. We are not concerned with those factors as therapeutic approach has since been treated as an effective method of punishment which not only satisfies the requirements of law that a criminal should be punished and the punishment prescribed must be meted out to him, but also reforms the criminal through various processes, the most fundamental of which is that in spite of having committed a crime, maybe a heinous crime, he should be treated as a human being entitled to all the basic human rights, human dignity and human sympathy. It was under this theory that this Court in a stream of decisions, projected the need for prison reforms, the need to acknowledge the vital fact that the prisoner, after being lodged in jail, does not lose his fundamental rights or basic human rights and that he must be treated with compassion and sympathy."

119. In Asfaq v. State of Rajasthan and Others, reported at (2017) 15 SCC 55, the Hon'ble Supreme Court emphasizing the need for reform of a convict held that "redemption and rehabilitation of such prisoners for good of societies must receive due wightage while they are undergoing sentence of imprisonment."

120. The judicial authorities can be multiplied, reiterating the above holdings. However, the same will add volume, but not value to the narrative.

121. Consistent and high authority have thus entrenched human dignity as fundamental to right to life, which flows from Article 21 of the Constitution of India.

122. The narrative would not be complete without reference to the most authoritative pronouncement, of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of K.S. Puttaswamy v. Union of India reported at (2017) 10 SCC 1

123. Dr. D. Y. Chandrachud, J. speaking for the Constitution Bench, firmly and irrevocably, reiterated that human dignity is a fundamental right under Article 21 of the Indian Constitution, with customary eloquence, in K.S. Puttaswamy (supra). Dr. D. Y. Chandrachud, J., upon consideration of the judicial precedents in point distilled the concept of human dignity and its place in part III of the Constitution:

"Jurisprudence on dignity

"108.Over the last four decades, our constitutional jurisprudence has recognised the inseparable relationship between protection of life and liberty with dignity. Dignity as a constitutional value finds expression in the Preamble. The constitutional vision seeks the realisation of justice (social, economic and political); liberty (of thought, expression, belief, faith and worship); equality (as a guarantee against arbitrary treatment of individuals) and fraternity (which assures a life of dignity to every individual). These constitutional precepts exist in unity to facilitate a humane and compassionate society. The individual is the focal point of the Constitution because it is in the realisation of individual rights that the collective well-being of the community is determined. Human dignity is an integral part of the Constitution. Reflections of dignity are found in the guarantee against arbitrariness (Article 14), the lamps of freedom (Article 19) and in the right to life and personal liberty (Article 21).

118. Life is precious intself. But life is worth living because of the freedoms which enable each individual to live life as it should be lived. The best decisions on how life should be lived are entrusted to the individual. They are continuously shaped by the social milieu in which individuals exist. The duty of the State is to safeguard the ability to take decisions. "Life" within the meaning of Article 21 is not confined to the integrity of the physical body. The right comprehends one's being in its fullest sense. That which facilitates the fulfillment of life is as much within the protection of the guarantee of life.

119. To live is to live with dignity. The draftsmen of the Constitution defined their vision of the society in which constitutional values would be attained by emphasising, among other freedoms, liberty and dignity. So fundamental is dignity that it permeates the core of the rights guaranteed to the individual by Part III. Dignity is the core which unites the fundamental rights because the fundamental rights seek to achieve for each individual the dignity of existence. Privacy with its attendant values assures dignity to the individual and it is only when life can be enjoyed with dignity can liberty be of true substance. Privacy ensures the fulfilment of dignity and is a core value which the protection of life and liberty is intended to achieve."

(iii) Comparative International Jurisprudence

124. A survey of comparative international jurisprudence, on the point of human dignity and the rights flowing therefrom, shows convergence in the values of human dignity across the free world.

125. The foreign authorities can be cited to show that human dignity is an accepted universal value in the comity of nations.

126. In Rosenblatt v. P Baer,* reported at 1966 SCC OnLine US SC 22 : 383 US 75 (1966), the US Supreme Court found that "The essential dignity and worth of every human being" was at the root of any system of "ordered liberty".

"The right of a man to the protection of his own reputation from unjustified invasion and wrongful hurt reflects no more than our basic concept of the essential dignity and worth of every human being- a concept at the root of any decent system of ordered liberty."

127. In the case of Armoniene v. Lithuania, reported at (2009) EMLR 7, the European Court of Human Rights set its face against an act of disclosure of a person's state of health, causing "exclusion from social life", and found it violative of the right to privacy by holding thus:

"The Court takes particular note of the fact that the family lived not in a city but in a village, which increased the impact of the publication on the possibility that the husband's illness would be known by his neighbours and his immediate family, thereby causing public humiliation and exclusion from village social life."

128. The human dignity rights of prisoners included rehabilitation, in the opinion of the US Supreme Court in Procunier, Corrections Director, ET AL. Vs. Martinez ET AL. reported at 416 U.S. 396 (1974):

"The Court today agrees that "the weight of professional opinion seems to be that inmate freedom to correspond with outsiders advances rather than retards the goal of rehabilitation."

Balanced against the State's asserted interests are the values that are generally associated with freedom of speech in a free society - values which "do not turn to dross in an unfree one." Sostre v. McGinnis, supra, at 199. First Amendment guarantees protect the free and uninterrupted interchange of ideas upon which a democratic society thrives. Perhaps the most obvious victim of the indirect censorship effected by a policy of allowing prison authorities to read inmate mail is criticism of prison administration. The threat of identification and reprisal inherent in allowing correctional authorities to read prisoner mail is not lost on inmates who might otherwise criticize their jailors. The mails are one of the few vehicles prisoners have for informing the community about their existence and, in these days of strife in our correctional institutions, the plight of prisoners is a matter of urgent public concern. To sustain a policy which chills the communication necessary to inform the public on this issue is at odds with the most basic tenets of the guarantee of freedom of speech.

The First Amendment serves not only the needs of the polity but also those of the human spirit - a spirit that demands self-expression. Such expression is an integral part of the development of ideas and a sense of identity. To suppress expression is to reject the basic human desire for recognition and affront the individual's worth and dignity.14Cf. Stanley v. Georgia, 394 U.S.[416 U.S. 396, 428]557 (1969). Such restraint may be "the greatest displeasure and indignity to a free and knowing spirit that can be put upon him." J. Milton, Aeropagitica 21 (Everyman's ed. 1927). When the prison gates slam behind an inmate, he does not lose his human quality; his mind does not become closed to ideas; his intellect does not cease to feed on a free and open interchange of opinions; his yearning for self-respect does not end; nor is his quest for self-realization concluded. If anything, the needs for identity and self-respect are more compelling in the dehumanizing prison environment. Whether an O. Henry writing his short stories in a jail cell or a frightened young inmate writing his family, a prisoner needs a medium for self-expression. It is the role of the First Amendment and this Court to protect those precious personal rights by which we satisfy such basic yearnings of the human spirit."

129. The validity of a punishment causing loss of nationality, for an act of desertion in military service, was in issue before the US Supreme Court, in Trop Vs. Dulles, reported at 356 US 86 (1958). The US Supreme Court in Trop (supra) reiterated the importance and role of rehabilitation in a penal system, while dealing with the validity of the punishment. The principle holding of the US Supreme Court on these points is as under:

"Expatriation, in this respect, constitutes anespecially demoralizing sanction. The uncertainty, and the consequent psychological hurt, which must accompany one who becomes an outcast in his own land must be reckoned a substantial factor in the ultimate judgment.

The novelty of expatriation as punishment does not alone demonstrate its inefficiency. In recent years we have seen such devices as indeterminate sentences and parole added to the traditional term of imprisonment. Such penal methods seek to achieve the end, at once more humane and effective, that society should make every effort to rehabilitate the offender and restore him as a useful member of that society as society's own best protection. Of course, rehabilitation is but one of the several purposes of the penal law. Among other purposes are deterrents of the wrongful act by the threat of punishment and insulation of society from dangerous individuals by imprisonment or execution. What then is the relationship of the punishment of expatriation to these ends of the penal law? It is perfectly obvious that it constitutes the very antithesis of rehabilitation, for instead of guiding the offender back into the useful paths of society it excommunicates him and makes him, literally, an outcast. I can think of no more certain way in which to make a man in whom, perhaps, rest the seeds of serious antisocial behavior more likely to pursue further a career of unlawful activity than to place on him the stigma of the derelict, uncertain of many of his basic rights. Similarly, it must be questioned whether expatriationcan really achieve the other effects sought by society in punitive devices. Certainly it will not insulate society from the deserter, for unless coupled with banishment the sanction leaves the offender at large. And as a deterrent device this sanction would appear of little effect, for the offender, if not deterred by thought of the specific penalties of long imprisonment or even death, is not very likely to be swayed from his course by the prospect of expatriation.However insidious and demoralizing may be the actual experience of statelessness, its contemplation in advance seems unlikely to invoke serious misgiving, for none of us yet knows its ramifications."

(iv) Constitutionality of punishments under the statutes

"Universities are made by love, love of beauty and learning."

~ Annie Besant

130. The engagement of human dignity and Article 21 will now be examined in the context of punishment, imposed on a delinquent student.

131. The statutory scheme of enforcing discipline by imposition of punishments and suspension has a salutary purpose, but it needs to be compliant with the requirements of fundamental rights.

132. Punishment has to be effective to serve its purpose; however, it cannot be purblind to human dignity, if it is to retain its constitutionality.

133. Severity of a punishment is not sufficient basis for holding it unconstitutional. The enquiry into the constitutionality of a punishment, will examine the relationship between the punishment and its purpose, and whether the penalty can achieve the purpose. The enquiry will also determine whether the punishment degrades the human person, and whether it devalues human dignity against established norms of decency, or has a dehumanizing effect.

134. Degree of injuries to self esteem, extent of degradation of human worth, depth of humiliation caused by the punishment, are facts to be probed in an enquiry into the validity of the punishment.

135. Experience teaches the fact of human fallibility, but knowledge holds the hope of human redemption. If error is part of human nature, reform is an element of human spirit. The capacity of human beings to introspect on erring ways and the power of human will to reform deviant conduct are building blocks of the concept of human dignity. "Every sinner has a future, many a saint had a past."

136. Punishment for deviant conduct, cannot be so severe as to degrade human life. Every form of punishment should protect the essential sanctity of human life and comport with fundamental norms of decency evolved by a civilized society. Any act which dehumanizes life cannot be countenanced by societies and courts which value life and liberty. The degrading or dehumanizing elements of the punishment have to be eliminated to bring it in conformity with requirement of human dignity, contemplated by Article 21 of the Constitution of India.

137. Failure to consider susceptibility to reform, while denying the right to access privileges and activities of the university, negates the possibility of rehabilitation. Absence of an environment of reform, self development and rehabilitation in a university, denies the opportunity of redeeming one's reputation. Termination of dialogue with the delinquent student, without offering an opportunity to reform, makes him an outcaste. The individual is permanently discarded by the institution, and loss of human self worth is total. This system of punishment is destructive of fundamental elements of human dignity, and violative of Article 21 of the Constitution of India.

138. Another aspect of the punishment which needs consideration, is the consequence exclusion from higher education.

139. Education is a most credible and effective mode of restoring self esteem and enhancing self worth. By denying opportunities of education to a delinquent student, without looking at the possibility of reform, the power to redeem one's errors and enhance self worth is taken away from an individual. In these cases, closure of avenues of education, extinguishes the hope for a better tomorrow. Loss of hope and its sequitor perpetual condemnation are fatal blows to the human spirit and self esteem.

140. Acts of deviant conduct, violence or intimidation, do not cease the need for social engagement or knowledge. Such needs are more acutely felt and require satisfaction in these cases.

141. Order may be enforced by punishments. Causes of deviant conduct can be addressed only by engagement. Punishments deal with the offence, reform deals with the offender.

142. Public interest however demands that the claim for further education, and engagement with delinquent students, should be guided and controlled by the authorities.

143. Statutory regimes in universities, dealing with delinquent behaviour and university environments, which are bereft of therapeutic and reform based support systems, are incompatible with the constitutional mandate to uphold human dignity. The violations of human dignity, in such cases, are summed up hereinunder:

144. Dignity violations occur when a punishment meted out to a student, does not consider his susceptibility to reform, and degrades his person by exclusion to the point where his diminished self worth cannot be reinstated due to systemic inadequacies or institutional shortcomings.

145. By denying further education, and neglecting to create an institutional system of reform, self development and rehabilitation, the university in effect tells the delinquent student, that it does not recognize the student's need to re-establish his self esteem. In other words, the student is not only impervious to reform, but incapable of enhancing his self esteem.

146. Dignity of an individual/student is injured, when it is found that the punishment precludes reform by rehabilitative measures, and prevents self enhancement by further education.

147. The punitive consequences of the action, cannot go beyond the requirements of the case. In this case they do.

An institutional reform, self development and rehabilitation programme, will enable a delinquent student to introspect on errors, express remorse and correct course.

148. Neglect by the universities to create an institutional reform, self development and rehabilitation programme thus places substantial obstacles in the enjoyment of the fundamental right of human dignity under Article 21.

149. The result of the preceding narrative is as follows:-

(i) The impugned action taken by the university, against the petitioner is violative of the fundamental right of human dignity of the petitioner, guaranteed under Article 21 of the Constitution of India, as it fails to consider his susceptibility to reform, and does not enable the petitioner to undergo a reform and self development process to redeem himself.

(ii) The statutory omission of reform measures, is an inadequacy which renders the university incapable of rectifying the violation made by it. The systemic fault-line is contrary to the mandate of Article 21 of the Constitution of India.

(v) Systemic responses : Responsibilities of the State and universities

150. Exercise of judicial power is the prerogative of the courts; but upholding the Constitution is not the monopoly of the courts.

151. To realize the fundamental rights guaranteed under the Constitution and to achieve the goals contemplated under the Preamble, all stakeholders have to play their part and all organs of governance have to perform their obligations. Constitutional ideals will become meaningful only if constitutional values animate the functioning of all institutions of governance. Universities have a special role to play.

152. The State and in this case the universities too, have the obligation to create an enabling environment, (emphasis supplied) where life and life enhancing attributes under Article 21 of the Constitution of India flourish and where constitutional ideals become a reality.

153. The importance of "therapeutic approach" in solving social dysfunctions, the growth in role of the State to give away public recognition in the way they treat their citizens, the evolution of law on the subject, and the contribution of universities were analyzed by Francis Fukuyama in his book "Identity". Some of the instructive passages are extracted below:

"The therapeutic turn in the popular culture of advanced liberal democracies such as the United States was inevitably reflected in its politics, and in an evolving understanding of the role of the state. In the classical liberalism of the nineteenth century, the state was held responsible for protecting basic rights such as freedom speech and association, for upholding a rule of law, and for providing essential public services such as police, roads, and education. The government "recognized" its citizens by granting them individual rights, but the state was not seen as responsible for making each individual feel better about himself or herself."

"Under the therapeutic method, however, an individual's happiness depends on his or her self-esteem, and self-esteem is a by-product of public recognition. Governments are readily able to give away public recognition in the way that they talk about and treat their citizens, so modern liberal societies naturally and perhaps inevitably began to take on the responsibility for raising the self-esteem of each and every one of their citizens".

"Therapeutic services came to be deeply embedded in social policy, not just in California but throughout the United States and in other liberal democracies. States began to offer psychological counseling and other mental health services, and schools began to incorporate therapeutic insights into the way that they taught children."

"In the early twentieth century, social dysfunctions such as delinquency or teen pregnancy were seen as deviant behaviour that needed to be dealt with punitively, often through the criminal justice system".

"But with the rise of therapeutic approaches by mid century, they were increasingly seen as social pathologies that needed to be treated through counseling and psychiatric intervention".

"The 1956 amendments to the Social Security Act allowed for federal reimbursements of a range of therapeutic services to strengthen family life and self-support."

"The therapeutic state metastasized across a wide number of institutions, including a large non-profit sector that by the 1990s had become the delivery vehicle for state-funded social services".

"Universities found themselves at the forefront of the therapeutic revolution." (emphasis supplied)

154. These special needs of citizens have to be addressed by State action, and also through judicial interventions in a nuanced manner, and in a larger perspective. Exclusive reliance on coercive powers of the law, shall be inadequate and an unsatisfactory way of dealing with the problem. The therapeutic jurisprudence draws heavily from concept of human dignity and self worth for its philosophical underpinning.

155. Disciplinary action should also be supported by reformative philosophy. Reformative philosophy does not undermine the deterrent approach.

156. The statutory regime imposes punishment for delinquent acts. The reform programme will address the cause of delinquency itself. Framing the approach to discipline as a choice between punishment or reform is misleading. A just corrective system needs both. Both approaches complement each other and can be pursued simultaneously. Deterrent aspect may also be reinforced, by making grant of the degree contingent upon successful completion of the reform programme.

157. The ordinances providing for punishments for deviant conduct need to be duly supported by a legal framework for structured reform, self development and rehabilitation programmes. This environment will accord social recognition to the need for reform of delinquent students. The degrading effect of punishment will be ameliorated. Dialogue will end isolation, reform will reinstate self worth and education will enhance self esteem.

158. Structured reform, self development and rehabilitation programmes and therapeutic support, within a legal framework, will create an enabling environment (emphasis supplied) in the universities, to realize the fundamental right of human dignity, flowing from Article 21 of the Constitution of India.

L. Reform, Self Development & Rehabilitation

(i) Role of universities in achieving behavioral change

"You must be the change you wish to see in the world"

~Mahatma Gandhi

159. Non violence as a philosophy of thought, and a creed of conduct, was developed in India on a scale wider than elsewhere. From the Buddha to Ashoka and the Mahatma, behavioral change in adopting non violence as a way of life, at the national scale was greatly accomplished in India.

160. The response of the Indian civilization, to the challenges of communal hatred and communal otherness, was profound and without parallel. The unique response of the Indian society was fashioned by the universal philosophy of the Indian civilization; of affirming the unity of the human race, of embracing diversity, of respecting dissent, and creating a harmonious dialogue of faiths. The lives and teachings of saints and thinkers like Guru Nanak, Kabir, Vivekananda, Tagore and Mahatma Gandhi, bear testimony to this composite culture.

161. For each generation to produce such individuals of excellence is an exorbitant demand. Today behavioral change is achieved in a different manner, albeit more incrementally and less dramatically. Institutions like universities have a critical role to play. Universities have an obligation to the society and the individual. The universities have an irrevocable compact, and an organic connect with the society.

162. University is a paternal institution. By the act of suspension or debarment of a delinquent student, the university abandons its ward. The university has solved its problem, but the society has one at its hands. The downstream effects of the punishments, have not been considered by the respondents. Clearly there are direct costs to the society as well. There are no other institutions of equal standing, to engage with the youth, deal with the discontent or aberration, and channelize youthful energies.

163. The role of the University does not end in punishing perpetrators of violence. It begins with the identification of the causes of violence, communal hatred, and other forms of deviant conduct. Thereafter the responsibility to achieve behavioral change commences. The fruit of knowledge imparted by the universities lies in the manifestation of human values in the human personality and expression of humanity in human conduct. Knowledge which does not change human behaviour in this manner is futile.

(ii) Imbibing Constitutional values and purging communal hatred

164. The Indian civilizational ethos and the Indian constitutional values are congruent. The Supreme Court distilled the essence of Indian values, when it emphasised "our tradition teaches tolerance, our philosophy preaches tolerance and our Constitution practises tolerance; let us not dilute it" while upholding the religious rights of Jehovah's witnesses in Bijoe Emmanuel and others vs. State of Kerala and others, reported at (1986) 3 SCC 615.

165. Universities have to protect the space for open dialogue, respectful engagement and reasoned debate. Universities need to ensure that the space for constitutional values, is not encroached by communal hatred.

166. The universities have the responsibility, to preserve this heritage, and the obligation to nurture these constitutional values. University experience has to inculcate these values in the students.

167. The universities may consider holding seminars, workshops, heritage festivals, cultural festivals, literature festivals, and encourage other activities to achieve this end. This has to be a part of the larger programme of value creation and self development.

(iii) Present discontents of students and solutions

168. The preceding discussion shows how a reform, self development and rehabilitation programme, will create an enabling environment, for realization of the fundamental rights of the individual under Article 21. How such programme, will yield tangible benefits for the society, will now be examined.

169. The paradox of the digital age is a plethora of devices and a dilution of dialogue, the substitution of conversation by chatter. There is the ever present danger of growth of knowledge and diminution of thought. The young are empowered by technology, but made restless by the void in values, and lack of direction.

170. The dilemmas of the digital age were acutely summed up by Yuval Noah Harari in his profound and acclaimed work "Homo Deus":

"Today our knowledge is increasing at breakneck speed, and theoretically we should understand the world better and better. But the very opposite is happening. Our new-found knowledge leads to faster economic, social and political changes; in an attempt to understand what is happening, we accelerate the accumulation of knowledge, which leads only to faster and greater upheavals. Consequently we are less and less able to make sense of the present or forecast the future."

171. In this situation lack of avenues of engagement, absence of a structured reform, self development and therapeutic support system, leaves the students with little options. The choices available in the society, to satisfy their need for belonging, to recover self esteem, and to channelize youthful energies are not very encouraging.

172. Re-establishing meaningful dialogue, recreating an environment of fruitful conversation, and making empathetic engagement are some of the present challenges. The responsibility of reaching out and engaging with the students, and increasing quality interface with them, lies with the universities and the teachers.

173. These obligations can be accomplished by a meticulously created reform/self development programme and high quality of academic leadership within a comprehensive legal framework.

174. Universities are a microcosm of the society. They are laboratories of social change, and also agents of social transformation.

175. The manner in which the universities deal, with aberrations of violence other forms of deviant conduct, and deficit of values in students, has repercussions for the society at large. The divergent pulls of primordial instincts of hate and violence, against a citizen's duties in a nation ruled by law can best be managed by universities.

176. The universities are uniquely placed to deal with these issues. The universities have the intellectual capital, institutional framework and moral leadership, which puts them in the front rank of institutions to effect such change. The environment in the University should encourage and engender reflective actions instead of automatic choices.

177. The reform, self development and rehabilitation programme, will give an individual student correct direction in life, and prevent one from drifting away. The student will be anchored in constitutional values, and will not be led astray by social evils. The support and aid by the university will give one a sense of ownership and belonging. No harvest is richer for a nation, than citizens empowered by a constitutional value system.

178. The high pedestal at which teachers are placed in Indian traditions and thoughts, was recalled to explain the current role of teachers in Indian society, by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Avinash Nagra Vs. Navodaya Vidyalaya Samiti and Others, reported at (1997) 2 SCC 534. The relevant extracts were succinctly summed up by a Division Bench of this Court, in the case of Devarsh Nath Gupta Vs. State of U.P. and Others, reported at 2019(6) ADJ 296 (DB):

"22. Special status of teacher has been reminded by Court inAvinash Nagra vs. Navodaya Vidyalaya Samiti and others(1997) 2 SCC 534. Quoting Father of the Nation, Court said that a teacher cannot be without character. If he lacks it, he will be like salt without its savour. A teacher must touch the hearts of his students. Boys imbibe more from the teacher's own life than they do from books. If teachers impart all the knowledge in the world to their students but do not inculcate truth and purity amongst them, they will have betrayed them. Quoting Shri Aurobindo, Court said that it is the teacher's province to hold aloft the torch, to insist at all times and at all places that this nation of ours was founded on idealism and that whatever may be the prevailing tendencies of the times, our children shall learn to live among the sun-lit peaks. Court also referred Dr. S. Radhakrishanan saying that we, in our country, look upon teacher as gurus or, as acharyas. An Acharya is one whose achar or conduct is exemplary. He must be an example of Sadachar or good conduct. He must inspire the pupils who are entrusted to his care with love of virtue and goodness. The ideal of a true teacher is "andhakaraniridhata gurur itya bhidhiyate" (Andhakar is not merely intellectual ignorance, but is also spiritual blindness). He, who is able to remove that kind of spiritual blindness, is called a 'guru'. Swami Vivekananda was also quoted saying that student should live from his very boyhood with one whose character is a blazing fire and should have before him a living example of the highest teaching. In our country, the imparting of knowledge has always been through men of renunciation. The charge of imparting knowledge should again fall upon the shoulder of Tyagis."

179. In Avinash Nagra (supra), the obligations of teachers to transform students into responsible citizens, and inculcate the value system of the Indian Constitution, was stated thus:

"...The State has taken care of service conditions of the teacher and he owed dual fundamental duties to himself and to the society. As a member of the noble teaching profession and a citizen of India he should always be willing, self-disciplined, dedicated with integrity to remain ever a learner of knowledge, intelligently to articulate and communicate and imbibe in his students, as social duty, to impart education, to bring them up with discipline, inculcate to abjure violence and to develop scientific temper with a spirit of enquiry and reform constantly to rise to higher levels in any walk of life nurturing Constitutional ideals enshrined inArticle 51Aso as to make the students responsible citizens of the country. Thus the teacher either individually or collectively as a community of teachers, should regenerate this dedication with a bent of spiritualism in broader perspective of the Constitutionalism with secular ideologies enshrined in the Constitution as an arm of the State to establish egalitarian social order under the rule of law. Therefore, when the society has given such a pedestal, the conduct, character, ability and disposition of a teacher should be to transform the student into a disciplined citizen, inquisitive to learn, intellectual to pursue in any walk of life with dedication, discipline and devotion with an inquiring mind but not with blind customary beliefs....."

180. The students entering universities embark on a new phase in their lives. Many are often removed from their comfort zone, and the secure environment of their homes, to face the challenges of independent life. At times these new challenges can be intimidating, and the uncertainties can create apprehensions, in the minds of the young adults.

181. Some students are unmoored in this trying phase of life and change of circumstances. Ragging of juniors in institutions of higher learning and other evils make the situations worse for freshers. Such students especially girls students in our country, need full institutional support to face these challenges.

182. It is the responsibility of the universities and the institutions of higher learning to create requisite environment of sensitizing the senior students and supporting the freshers in every possible manner.

183. A programme for self development implemented in a proactive manner shall foster constitutional values among students. Students need to realize the value of dissent in a democracy, but also have to understand the manner of dissent in a society ruled by law.

184. This process also requires initiation of engagement with the students and improving the quality of interface between the teachers and the taught. Educating the educators in this regard has to be a part of any such programme. Workshops have to be held and other methods have to be explored, to cultivate constitutional values in students and achieve behavioral change.

185. These are the preventive measures to address the issues of indiscipline, deficit in values and deviant behaviour in all institutions of higher learning.

186. The preventive measures preclude the occurrence of deviant behaviour. The post facto rehabilitation measures prevent recurrence of deviant behaviour. Both have to be integrated into one conjoint system of value creation, in the universities and institutions of higher learning.

187. Structured reform/self development programmes run by universities, can be catalysts for inducing behavioral change, and inculcating a constitutional value system in students. A successful reform, self development &rehabilitation programme, can convert a possible danger into a real asset for the society.

(iv) Creation of reform, self development & rehabilitation programmes

188. Many branches of knowledge in modern times are devoted to the study of human psychology, social behaviour and behavioural change. Psychology, Psychiatry, Sociology, Anthropology and Behavioral Economics, are some fields dedicated to gaining insights into human behaviour and inducing behavioural change.

189. Works of the Nobel prize winning economist Richard Thaler deserve special mention. The methodology of "nudges", in creating behavioral change has been gaining acceptability. The organization "Nudge" in Lebanon, has done noteworthy work with refugee children, and on environmental protection.

190. The Behavioral Insights Teams sometimes called "Nudge Units", are also existing in many nations including Australia, Canada, Germany, Qatar, the United Arab Emirates, Japan, the United States, and the United Kingdom. The Economic Survey released by India's Finance Ministry in July, 2019 has concluded with the clear recommendations that "the proposal to set up a behavioral economics unit in the NITI Ayog must be immediately activated". The report further noticed that the unit should work with State Governments, helping them to make their programme more effective, and informing them of the potential value of Behavioural Insights.

191. Ancient branches of knowledge and wellness like yoga, meditation, vipassana and so on may prove to be rich resources to benefit from.

192. Many scientific researches have confirmed the efficacy of these ancient systems of human wellness. These branches of knowledge have to be approached with a scientific and an open academic mindset. Personal beliefs have to be respected at all times. There can be no imposition of any system, which is resisted on grounds of faith or beliefs; in which cases other options may be given.

193. Socially useful work like planting and taking care of trees, and flora may be a part of the programme. Sports and sporting activities also go a long way in creating integrating social values, and enhancing emotional intelligence. Teaching needy children, serving the sick, and other forms of service to the society are options which may be explored. Counselling sessions with experts and psychologists could prove useful.

194. Therapeutic solutions to social problems, are being increasingly recognized by social scientists, medical experts, psychologists, and jurists alike.

195. Creation of course content of the reform or self development programme, and manner of its implementation has to be decided by the respondents. This requires wide consultations, deliberations and workshops with academia, varsities, institutions of research, student counsellors, psychologists, psychiatrists, students and other stakeholders.

196. The UGC is a statutory body, and cannot abdicate its responsibilities in this scenario. The functions of the UGC are enumerated in the University Grants Commission Act, 1956. The UGC will play an important role, in the creation and standardization of the course, for reformation and self development, and aid its implementation on an institutional basis.

197. The Government of India in particular, the Ministry of Human Resource Development, also has a contribution to make in the process. The Ministry of Human Resource Development, Government of India, New Delhi, has to provide the necessary support to the University as may be required under law to create and implement the reform, self development and rehabilitation programme. This support would include the creation of necessary infrastructure for implementing the programmes.

198. Both the University Grants Commission and the Ministry of Human Resource Development, Government of India, are required to support the universities in their endeavours to create and implement the programmes of reform, self development and rehabilitation.

199. Law enforcement agencies the world over are engaging with the youth, to draw them away from the appeal of extreme ideologies.

200. The prestige enjoyed by universities and the teachers in society, will make the programme credible to concerned individuals, and acceptable to the student community. The key to the efficacy of any structured reform programme, is empathetic engagement and a supportive environment.

201. An impersonal approach and institutional prejudice, can make the programme a non starter. Due sensitization of all stakeholders is required, before implementing the programme.

202. The founding purpose of universities to supply intellectual and moral leadership to the society, and to be at the vanguard of social transformation, will be eminently achieved by effective reformation/therapeutic/self development programmes.

(v) Concerns of universities regarding discipline & restraints during the reformation, self development & rehabilitation programme:

203. The Court is cognizant of concerns of the universities, that a reform programme should not derail university administration, nor should it have a detrimental effect on discipline and good order in the campus. A reform and rehabilitation programme, is not intended to allow a wrongdoer to escape justice.

204. Apprehensions of the universities need to be addressed. The reform programme has to be created and structured and implemented in a manner that it does not adversely impact the good order and discipline in the university campus.

205. The start of reform programme does not inevitably mean a free access to, or unconditional reinstatement of a delinquent student into the university campus. In cases of indiscipline where presence of individuals poses a threat of breakdown of order in the university campus, a decision can be made only by the university. Even when such students undergo a reform programme, and the students are pursuing their academic studies, the university may impose restraints it deems fit.

206. To obviate possibilities of disruption in the academic atmosphere, various measures of graduated restrictions may be imposed on a case to case basis. These restraints may include minute monitoring of movements in campus, restricting movements and contact, an employee escort till the student is in the campus, alteration of class schedules and timings. Such lighter restrictions could continue, while undergoing reform programmes along with the academic course.

207. More stringent measures in aggravated cases, may include a campus ban, with on-line classes and home schooling. Transfer to constituent colleges or other universities from a pool of universities, or setting up separate premises are among the options. In these cases entry to the specific university campus may be barred, even as the reform programme is underway, and the student is prosecuting his academic course.

208. These are some illustrative instances, of restraints which may be imposed by the universities.

M. Proportionality & Punishment

209. The controversy has to be seen from another critical legal perspective. The doctrine of proportionality is an established ground of judicial review in the Indian Constitutional jurisprudence.

210. Aharon Barak, former President of Supreme Court of Israel in his book "Proportionality" thus defines the rules of the doctrine of proportionality, "According to the four components of proportionality a limitation of constitutional right will be permissible if, (1) It is designated for a proper purpose, (2) The measures undertaken to effectuate such a limitation are rationally connected to the fulfillment of that purpose, (3) The measures undertaken are necessary and in that there are alternative measures that may similarly achieve that same purpose with a lesser degree of limitation and finally; (4) Their needs to be a proper relation "proportionality strict senso and balance" between the importance of achieving the proper purpose and social importance of preventing the limitation on the constitutional right."

211. The concept of proportionality essentially visualizes, a graduated response to the nature of the misconduct by a delinquent student. The purpose of the institution, its role in the society and its obligations to the nation, provide the setting for adjudication of the issue of proportionality.

212. Proportionality first came to be applied in the context of punishments imposed for misconduct in service jurisprudence. The necessity of proportional punishment, in cases of misconduct by students is more strongly needed. Hence action of the respondent-University, is liable to be tested on the anvil of disproportionality.

213. The "doctrine of proportionality" was introduced, and embedded in the administrative law of our country, by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Ranjit Thakur Versus Union of India, reported at (1987) 4 SCC 611. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Ranjit Thakur held thus:

"Judicial review generally speaking, is not directed against a decision, but is directed against the "decision making process". The question of the choice and quantum of punishment is within the jurisdiction and discretion of the Court-Martial. But the sentence has to suit the offence and the offender. It should not be vindictive or unduly harsh. It should not be so disproportionate to the offence as to shock the conscience and amount in itself to conclusive evidence of bias. The doctrine of proportionality, as part of the concept of judicial review, would ensure that even on an aspect which is, otherwise, within the exclusive province of the Court-Martial, if the decision of the Court even as to sentence is an outrageous defiance of logic, then the sentence would not be immune from correction. Irrationality and perversity are recognised grounds of judicial review. "

214. The essence of proportionality is that, the competent authority while imposing a punishment upon a delinquent student, has to co-relate and balance the imperatives of institutional discipline with the demands of individual rights. Too light a punishment will not be conducive to institutional discipline. Too harsh a punishment will not be consistent with norms of justice.

215. The enquiry into the four components of proportionality, as elucidated by Justice Aharon Barak in his book "Proportionality" has been made in the preceding part of the judgment. The purpose and obligations of universities, have also received consideration, in the earlier part of the narrative.

216. The measures undertaken against the petitioner, are not rationally connected to the fulfillment of the purpose sought to be achieved. The proper and designated purpose of a punishment in a university, has to include reform of the student, not mere imposition of penalty. Clearly there are alternative reformative measures, that can achieve the same purpose, with a lesser degree of curtailment of the students rights.

217. The impugned action fails the test of proportionality. The action taken against the petitioner, does not achieve the purpose, and social importance of the reform and rehabilitation of the delinquent student. The impugned order is liable to be set aside on this ground as well.

N. Conclusions & Reliefs

218. The impugned order of suspension dated 27.12.2017 and the consequential order dated 03.07.2019 do not record any past instances of violence or deviant conduct on the part of the petitioner. The petitioner has tendered a contrite apology, to the Court through his counsel, (this is without prejudice to the defence to the petitioner in criminal case), and seeks an opportunity to evolve into a law abiding and responsible citizen of the country.

219. The acts of violence if proved, may warrant disciplinary action to maintain discipline in the campus. But the facts of the case, also require reformative measures to protect the future of the petitioner. However, the suspension of the petitioner cannot continue indefinitely. A regular departmental enquiry against the students has not been concluded till date. The petitioner cannot be deprived of higher education indefinitely.

220. In the wake of the preceding discussion, this Court finds that the order dated 27.12.2017 passed by the respondent no. 4, Assistant Registrar (ACAD), Banaras Hindu University, Varanasi is arbitrary and illegal and of no effect. The order dated 27.12.2017 passed by the respondent no. 4, Assistant Registrar (ACAD), Banaras Hindu University, Varanasi is quashed.

221. The consequential order dated 03.07.2019 passed by the respondent no. 5, Deputy Registrar (Academic), Banaras Hindu University, Varanasi, is quashed.

222. The quashment of the impugned order, does not in any manner exonerate the petitioner of his guilt. Nor does it preempt the regular enquiry into the misconduct. The law shall take its course, unhindered by any observation made in this judgement.

223. In the facts of the instant case and the material in the record, the admission of the petitioner in the M.A. course, shall happen in the manner and the time frame provided in the final directions.

224. The issue relating to creation of reform, self development and rehabilitation programmes in the University was heard as a common issue in various writ petitions. The Secretary, Ministry of Human Resource Development, Union of India, New Delhi and the Chairman, University Grants Commission, New Delhi, were also parties in the leading two writ petitions namely Writ C No. 13214 of 2019 (Anant Narayan Mishra Vs. The Union of India and Others) and Writ C No. 26755 of 2019 (Mohammad Ghayas Vs. State of U.P. and Others). All connected writ petitions were heard together.

225. The directions issued to the Secretary, Ministry of Human Resource Development, Union of India, New Delhi and the Chairman, University Grants Commission, New Delhi, in the leading two writ petitions; Writ C No. 13214 of 2019 (Anant Narayan Mishra Vs. The Union of India and Others) and Writ C No. 26755 of 2019 (Mohammad Ghayas Vs. State of U.P. and Others) being of a general nature, shall be part of all connected writ petitions including the instant writ petition.

The matter is remitted to the respondents.

226. A writ in the nature of mandamus is issued commanding the respective respondents to execute the following directions in the light of this judgment:

I. The University shall create a reform, self development and rehabilitation programme, for students accused of misconduct and against whom disciplinary action or any action to deny facilities of the university is proposed or taken;

II. The reform, self development and rehabilitation programme should be created after wide consultations and workshops with institutions of higher learning and research, universities, experts, student counsellors/psychologists, psychiatrists, students and other stakeholders;

III. University Grants Commission will aid the above process by providing the necessary support to the University to create, standardize and effectuate the reform, self development and rehabilitation programme in the university;

IV. The Secretary, Ministry of Human Resource Development, Government of India, New Delhi, shall also provide the necessary support to create infrastructure in the University to effectuate the reform, self development and rehabilitation programme in the University, in light of this judgment and as per law;

V. The reform, self development and rehabilitation programmes shall be processed as per law, and integrated into the existing legal/statutory framework, of the University dealing with deviant conduct and punishments;

VI. The case of petitioner for admission to M.A. course shall be considered after the creation of the reform, self development and rehabilitation programme;

VII. In case the petitioner is found eligible for admission to M.A. course, he shall be permitted to pursue the M.A. course along with the reform, self development and rehabilitation programme in the University;

VIII. It shall be open to the BHU to impose necessary restraints, as it deems fit, upon the petitioner even as he pursues his academic course along with the reform, self development and rehabilitation programme;

IX. The exercise shall be completed, preferably, within six months, but not later than 12 months. At all times the respondents keeping in mind the best interests of the students and the society, shall make all efforts to expedite the compliance of the directions;

X. It shall be open to the respondents to create a scheme for reform, self development and rehabilitation for convicts in criminal cases who wish to pursue further higher studies in the respondent University;

XI. The counsels for the respondents shall provide certified copy of this judgment along with copy of the judgment of this Court rendered in Writ C No. 13214 of 2019 (Anant Narayan Mishra Vs. The Union of India and Others), to the Vice Chancellor, Banaras Hindu University, Varanasi; the Secretary, Ministry of Human Resource Development, Union of India, New Delhi and the Chairman, University Grants Commission, New Delhi, for necessary compliances.

227. The writ petition is allowed to the extent and manner indicated above.

A.Civil Law- The Securitisation and Reconstruction of Financial Assets and Enforcement of Securities Interest Act, 2002 – Section 14 – Functions of District Magistrate on the issue of taking Possession – Two distinct jobs have to be performed by the District Magistrate – The first is to pass a suitable order for the purpose of taking possession of the secured assets; and second is to take possession of such assets and the documents and to forward them to the secured creditor which job can be authorized by him to be performed by any officer subordinate to him also – The job of passing the order for the purpose of possession has to be performed by the District Magistrate himself whereas the job of taking possession can be delegated by him to any subordinate officer. (Para 10 and 11)

B. Interpretation of Statute – Delegatus Non Potest Delegair – Meaning – Application to the Enactment – Delegate has no power to delegate i.e. a distinction conferred by Statute on any authority is intended to be exercised by that authority only and not by any other unless the contrary intention is expressed in the Statute itself – District Magistrate is persona designeta, that is a person as an individual upon whom the power to pass an order of possession of the secured assets has been conferred exclusively – In the absence of any intention conferring any authority upon the District Magistrate to delegate the aforesaid power to any other person, officer or authority, the power to pass an order of possession the Act has to be exercised by the District Magistrate and none else. (Para 13, 14 and 15)

C. Criminal Law-S.R.F.A.E.S.I. Act, 2002 – Section 14 – Criminal Procedure Code – Section 20 – Power of Additional District Magistrate – Since Additional District Magistrate is empowered to exercise the powers of the District Magistrate under the Code or any other law in force, the order passed by him under Section 14 of the Securitization Act is not without jurisdiction – The application moved under Section 14 can be considered even by the Additional District Magistrate provided he is directed by the State Government to perform the said powers under the Securitization Act in accordance with Section 20(2) of the Code. (Delivered by Hon'ble Pankaj Mithal, J.

1. Under challenge in this writ petition is the order dated 26.08.2019 passed by the Additional District Magistrate (Finance and Revenue), District Rampur.

2. The aforesaid order has been passed by him in exercise of powers under Section 14 of the The Securitisation and Reconstruction of Financial Assets and Enforcement of Securities Interest Act, 2002 (hereinafter referred to as "Securitisation Act") directing Up Zila

Magistrate (Sadar) and the Circle Officer to take possession of the secured assets of the petitioners.

3. The principle argument of Sri Prateek Kumar, learned counsel for the petitioners is that the aforesaid order is without jurisdiction and as such a nullity. The Additional District Magistrate has no authority in law to pass any order under Section 14 of the Securitisation Act. The power to pass an order under the aforesaid provisions is vested solely in the District Magistrate or the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate. The aforesaid power is a quasi-judicial power and it cannot be delegated to any other person, officer or authority. The Additional District Magistrate would not be included in the definition of the District Magistrate for the purposes of the Securitisation Act.

4. In defence of the above order, learned Standing Counsel and Sri Habib Ahmad, learned counsel appearing for Allahabad Bank submits that the powers exercised by the District Magistrate under Section 14 of the Act are not adjudicatory in nature rather administrative and same can be delegated, if necessary, to any other person, officer or authority by the District Magistrate. In fact, in view of the provisions of Section 20 and 23 of the Criminal Procedure Code (hereinafter referred to as "Code"), the Additional District Magistrate have all the powers of a District Magistrate and is entitle to exercise all his powers in his absence.

5. In view of the respective submissions of counsel for the parties, we are seized with the following three questions :-

(i) Whether the power exercisable under Section 14 of the Act are in the nature of persona designeta and can be exercised only by the District Magistrate/Chief Metropolitan Magistrate and not by any other officer much less the Additional District Magistrate; and

(ii) Whether the Additional District Magistrate is a District Magistrate for the purposes of exercising the said power; and

(iii) Whether the District Magistrate/ Chief Metropolitan Magistrate can delegate the power to pass an order under Section 14 of the Securitisation Act to any subordinate authority/officer such as Additional District Magistrate.

6. In context with all the above issues, it is pertinent to refer to Section 14 of the Securitisation Act. The aforesaid provision stipulates that where any secured creditor is desirous of taking possession of the secured assets, he may move an application in writing to the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate or the District Magistrate (for our purpose only "District Magistrate" hereinafter) of the area concerned for taking its possession and the application has to be accompanied by an affidavit declaring as many as 9 things as enumerated in the provision whereupon the District Magistrate on being satisfied as to the contents of the affidavit, order for the possession of the secured assets.

7. The aforesaid provision further lays down that the District Magistrate after passing of such an order may authorize any officer subordinate to him to take possession of such assets and documents relating thereto and forward them to the secured creditor.

8. The aforesaid Section 14 in its entirety as it stands today is reproduced hereinbelow for the purposes of convenience-:

14. Chief Metropolitan Magistrate or District Magistrate to assist secured creditor in taking possession of secured asset. - (1) Where the possession of any secured asset is required to be taken by the secured creditor or if any of the secured asset is required to be sold or transferred by the secured creditor under the provisions of this Act, the secured creditor may, for the purpose of taking possession or control of any such secured asset, request, in writing, the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate or the District Magistrate within whose jurisdiction any such secured asset or other documents relating thereto may be situated or found, to take possession thereof, and the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate or, as the case may be, the District Magistrate shall, on such request being made to him-:

(a) take possession of such asset and documents relating thereto; and

(b) forward such asset and documents to the secured creditor.

[Provided that any application by the secured creditor shall be accompanied by an affidavit duly affirmed by the authorised officer of the secured creditor, declaring that-

(i) the aggregate amount of financial assistance granted and the total claim of the Bank as on the date of filing the application;

(ii) the borrower has created security interest over various properties and that the Bank or Financial Institution is holding a valid and subsisting security interest over such properties and the claim of the Bank or Financial Institution is within the limitation period;

(iii) the borrower has created security interest over various properties giving the details of properties referred to in sub-clause (ii) above.

(iv) the borrower has committed default in repayment of the financial assistance granted aggregating the specified amount;

(v) consequent upon such default in repayment of the financial assistance the account of the borrower has been classified as a non-performing asset;

(vi) affirming that the period of sixty days notice as required by the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 13, demanding payment of the defaulted financial assistance has been served on the borrower;

(vii) the objection or representation in reply to the notice received from the borrower has been considered by the secured creditor and reasons for non-acceptance of such objection or representation had been communicated to the borrower;

(viii) the borrower has not made any repayment of the financial assistance in spite of the above notice and the Authorised Officer is, therefore, entitled to take possession of the secl1red assets under the provisions of sub-section (4) of section 13 read with section 14 of the principal Act;

(ix) that the provisions of this Act and the rules made thereunder had been complied with:

Provided further that on receipt of the affidavit from the Authorised Officer, the District Magistrate or the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate, as the case may be, shall after satisfying the contents of the affidavit pass suitable orders for the purpose of taking possession of the secured assets [within a period of thirty days from the date of application]:-

Provided also that the requirement of filing affidavit stated in the first proviso shall not apply to proceeding pending before any District Magistrate or the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate, as the case may be, on the date of commencement of this Act.]

[Provided further that if no order is passed by the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate or District Magistrate within the said period of thirty days for reasons beyond his control, he may, after recording reasons in writing for the same, pass the order within such further period but not exceeding in aggregate sixty days.]

[(1A) The District Magistrate or the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate may authorise any officer subordinate to him,-

(i) to take possession of such assets and documents relating thereto; and

(ii) to forward such assets and documents to the secured creditor.]

(2) For the purpose of securing compliance with the provisions of sub-section (1), the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate or the District Magistrate may take or cause to be taken such steps and use, or cause to be used, such force, as may, in his opinion, be necessary.

(3) No act of the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate or the District Magistrate [any officer authorised by the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate or District Magistrate] done in pursuance of this section shall be called in question in any Court or before any authority.

9. The aforesaid provision contemplates the following steps -:

(i) Moving of an application accompanied by an affidavit containing certain essentials by the secured creditor before the District Magistrate for the purpose of obtaining possession of the secured assets ;

(ii) Passing of a suitable order by the District Magistrate on satisfaction of the contents of the affidavit for taking possession of the secured assets;

(iii) Authorization by the District Magistrate to any subordinate officer to take possession of assets and documents and to forward them to the secured creditor.

10. In view of the above provision, two distinct jobs have to be performed by the District Magistrate under Section 14 of the Act. The first is to pass a suitable order for the purpose of taking possession of the secured assets; and second is to take possession of such assets and the documents and to forward them to the secured creditor which job can be authorized by him to be performed by any officer subordinate to him also.

11. Thus, in a way, the job of passing the order for the purpose of possession has to .be performed by the District Magistrate himself whereas the job of taking possession can be delegated by him to any subordinate officer.

12. In other words, the actual order for possession has to be passed by the District Magistrate and by no other authority whereas the possession can be taken thereafter by any other officer or authority as may be authorized by the District Magistrate. The Parliament has separated the functions of passing an order on an application made by the secured creditor and the consequential act of taking possession of secured assets and documents thereof for forwarding them to the secured creditor. The consequential act following the order of possession has been permitted to be delegated by the District Magistrate to any officer subordinate to him but not the power to pass the order itself whether it happens to be an administrative order or a quasi-judicial order with no adjudication of any lis between the parties.

13. It is a well recognized legal maxim "Delegatus Non Potest Delegair" meaning that delegate has no power to delegate i.e. a distinction conferred by Statute on any authority is intended to be exercised by that authority only and not by any other unless the contrary intention is expressed in the Statute itself.

14. In the present enactment, the District Magistrate is persona designeta, that is a person as an individual upon whom the power to pass an order of possession of the secured assets has been conferred exclusively and it is not intended to be delegated either expressly or impliedly.

15. In the absence of any intention conferring any authority upon the District Magistrate to delegate the aforesaid power to any other person, officer or authority, the power to pass an order of possession under Section 14 (1) of the Securitisation Act has to be exercised by the District Magistrate and none else.

16. Now coming to the other aspect of the matter, whether the District Magistrate includes Additional District Magistrate, a reference may be had to Section 20 of the Code which is quoted hereinbelow-:

20. Executive Magistrates. - (1) In every district and in every metropolitan area, the State Government may appoint as many persons as it thinks fit to be Executive Magistrates and shall appoint one of them to be the District Magistrate.

(2) The State Government may appoint any Executive Magistrate to be an Additional District Magistrate, and such Magistrate shall have [such] of the powers of a District Magistrate under this Code or under any other law for the time being in force, [as may be directed by the State Government].

(3) Whenever, in consequence of the office of a District Magistrate becoming vacant, any officer succeeds temporarily to the executive administration of the district, such officer shall, pending the orders of the State Government, exercise all the powers and perform all the duties respectively conferred and imposed by this Code on the District Magistrate.

(4) The State Government may place an Executive Magistrate in charge of a sub-division and may relieve him of the charge as occasion requires; and the Magistrate so placed in charge of a sub-division shall be called the Sub-Divisional Magistrate.

[(4-A) The State Government may, by general or special order and subject to such control and directions as it may deem fit to impose, delegate its powers under sub-section (4) to the District Magistrate.]

(5) Nothing in this section shall preclude the State Government from conferring, under any law for the time being in force, on a Commissioner of Police, all or any of the powers of an Executive Magistrate in relation to a metropolitan area.

17. The aforesaid provision relates to Executive Magistrates and provides that the State Government may appoint as many persons as it thinks fit to be Executive Magistrates for every district and shall appoint one of them to be the District Magistrate.

18. It further lays down that the State Government may appoint any Executive Magistrate to be the Additional District Magistrate who shall have such powers of the District Magistrate under the Code or any other law for the time being in force as may be directed by the State Government.

19. In the absence of the District Magistrate, any officer who succeeds him temporarily is entitle to exercise his powers and perform all duties conferred and imposed under the Code upon the District Magistrate.

20. In other words, State Government is entitle to appoint several Executive Magistrate for every district and one of them to be the District Magistrate. The Executive Magistrate can also be appointed as an Additional District Magistrate and can be conferred with the powers of the District Magistrate under the Code or any other law for the time being in force and is also entitle to perform the functions and duties of the District Magistrate as conferred upon him under the Code.

21. In view of the above, the District Magistrate and Additional District Magistrate are both executive magistrates and the Additional District Magistrate possesses such of the powers of the District Magistrate under the Code or any other law in force as may be directed by the State. In the absence of the District Magistrate, his functions and duties may also be performed by the Additional District Magistrate but that performance is confined to the Code only.

22. Section 35 and 37 of the Securitisation Act provides that the Securitisation Act is a special enactment and its provisions shall have effect notwithstanding anything inconsistent therewith contained in any law for the time being in force and that the provisions of the Securitisation Act shall be in addition to, and not in derogation of the certain Acts mentioned therein or any other law for the time being in force. The aforesaid provisions read as under :-

"35. The provisions of this Act to override other laws. - The provisions of this Act shall have effect, notwithstanding anything inconsistent therewith contained in any other law for the time being in force or any instrument having effect by virtue of any such law.

37. Application of other laws not barred. - The provisions of this Act or the rules made thereunder shall be in addition to, and not in derogation of, the Companies Act, 1956 (1 of 1956), the Securities Contracts (Regulation) Act, 1956 (42 of 1956), the Securities and Exchange Board of India Act, 1992 (15 of 1992), the Recovery of Debts Due to Banks and Financial Institutions Act, 1993 (51 of 1993) or any other law for the time being in force."*

23. In Irshad Husain1, a Division Bench of this Court was seized with a similar controversy as to whether Additional District Magistrate/ Additional Collector (Finance and Revenue) has the authority to pass an order under Section 14 of the Securitisation Act. The Court simply by referring to provisions of Section 14 of the Securitisation Act and Section 14-A of the Revenue Act held that as the powers of the Additional Collector are similar to those of the Collector, the order passed by Additional Collector is not without jurisdiction.

24. The aforesaid decision has been rendered on the basis of Section 14-A of the U.P. Land Revenue Act, 1901 (hereinafter referred to as "Revenue Act") wherein appointments and powers of the Additional Collectors have been laid down. The powers of the Collectors or the Additional Collectors are for the purposes of collection of revenue and not for exercising magisterial powers of administration.

25. Section 14-A of the Revenue Act is reproduced below for the sake of convenience :-

[14-A. Appointment, powers and duties of Additional Collectors.] - (1) The [State Government] may appoint an Additional Collector in a district or in two or more districts combined.

(2) An Additional Collector shall hold his office during the pleasure of the [State Government].

[(3) An Additional Collector shall exercise such powers and discharge such duties of a Collector in such case or classes of cases as the Collector concerned may direct.]

(4) This Act and every other law for the time being applicable to a Collector shall apply to every Additional Collector, when exercising any powers or discharging any duties under sub-section (3), as if he were the Collector of the district.

26. According to the aforesaid provision, Additional Collector has been authorized to exercise powers of the Collector and to discharge his duties, as may be directed. It also provides that law applicable to a Collector shall also be applied to every Additional Collector while exercising powers or discharging duties as a Collector. It thus entrusts him with the powers and functions of the Collector. However, the position of the Collector or the Additional Collector is totally different from that of the District Magistrate/ Additional District Magistrate whose appointment, powers and duties are not governed by the provisions of the Revenue Act but by the Code. Both these officers exercise distinct powers and functions. One acts as a revenue officer of the district whereas the other as the executive magistrate or administrative officer of the district. Therefore, the powers conferred upon Collector/ Additional Collector or the nature of their duties cannot be equated with that of the District Magistrate/Additional District Magistrate. Accordingly, the decision in Irshad Husain (supra) and some other decisions rendered on its basis are not relevant and conclusive insofar as the powers of the Additional District Magistrate viz-a-viz the District Magistrate under Section 14 of the Securitisation Act are concerned as they are not the same as that of Collector/Additional Collector.

27. The aforesaid decision in Irshad Husain (supra) does not refer to any other provision of law and fails to take into account the ex-facie distinction between the duties of the Collector and the District Magistrate. The provisions relating to Collector/Additional Collector and those relating to District Magistrate/Additional District Magistrate are distinct and operate in altogether a different field and as such the aforesaid decision cannot be treated to be a good precedent for the purposes of resolving the controversy as to whether Additional District Magistrate and District Magistrate are one of the same authority who have been conferred with the same powers for the purposes of passing an order under Section 14 of the Securitisation Act.

28. The Full Bench decision in Brahm Singh2 is also in context with the powers of the Collector and the Additional Collector. In the said case, the short controversy under consideration was whether the powers and functions of the Collector can be exercised by the Additional Collector under Section 198 (4) of U.P. Z.A. and L.R. Act. It was in context with the said controversy that the Court held that in view of Section 14-A of the Revenue Act, the Additional Collector acts and discharges duties and functions or exercises such powers of the Collector that would be deemed to have been exercised by him under the Act and as such the powers under Section 198(4) of the said Act are exercisable by him also.

29. The aforesaid decision also does not extend any help to us for deciding the controversy at hand viz-a-viz the powers, duties and functions of District Magistrate/Additional District Magistrate in reference to Section 14 of the Securitisation Act.

30. In Rich Field3, one another Division Bench of this Court was again seized of the matter regarding the powers of the District Magistrate to pass orders under Section 14 of the Securitisation Act. The Court after referring to Irshad Husain (supra) disagreed with the decision of the Calcutta High Court in S.K. Akbar Ali4 which laid down that an Additional District Magistrate even if conferred with the powers of the District Magistrate does not become District Magistrate and remains to be an officer below the District Magistrate and accordingly held that Additional District Magistrate is competent to decide the application filed under Section 14 of the Securitisation Act.

31. One more Division Bench of this Court in M/s Lakshya Concosts5 while dealing with an identical controversy relying upon Irshad Husain and Rich Field Industries (supra) opined that the Additional District Magistrate had not acted illegally or without jurisdiction in deciding the application under Section 14 of the Securitisation Act.

32. The said Division Bench further referred to Section 20 of the Code and came to the conclusion that the District Magistrate and Additional District Magistrate are Executive Magistrates and since Additional District Magistrate is empowered to exercise the powers of the District Magistrate under the Code or any other law in force, the order passed by him under Section 14 of the Securitisation Act is not without jurisdiction.

33. The respondents, on the other hand, relied upon the following three decisions-:

(i) Ajaib Singh6
(ii) Hari Chand Aggarwal7
(iii) Nainital Bank Limited8

34. In Ajaib Singh, it has been observed that unless a person is appointed under the Code as a District Magistrate, he cannot be called a District Magistrate and that an Additional District Magistrate is an officer below the rank of the District Magistrate.

35. The Three Judges' Bench of the Apex Court in Hari Chand Aggarwal held that Additional District Magistrate and District Magistrate are two different authorities and that Additional District Magistrate is not competent to requisition the property simply because he has been vested with all powers of the District Magistrate under the Code. The Hon'ble Supreme Court therein observed that the object of appointing an Additional District Magistrate is to relieve the District Magistrate of some of his duties and that he is subordinate to the District Magistrate to a limited extent only.

36. In Nainital Bank Limited where an identical controversy was under consideration as to whether Additional District Magistrate is empowered to pass order under Section 14 of the Securitisation Act, the Court held that the provisions of the Code or the Revenue Act can not be pressed into motion to contend the District Magistrate referred to under Section 14 of the Securitisation Act, would also include an Additional District Magistrate. Notwithstanding that District Magistrate and Additional District Magistrate are two different and distinct authorities and Additional District Magistrate is subordinate to District Magistrate and cannot be called as District Magistrate. Nonetheless, as both are Executive Magistrates and the Additional District Magistrate is entitle to perform functions and duties of the District Magistrate or to exercise his powers in his absence as conferred upon him under the Code or any other law in force, the Additional District Magistrate to some extent virtually acts as a District Magistrate. The use of the phrase "any other law for the time being in force" as used in Section 20 of the Code and Sections 35 and 37 of the Securitisation Act has very wide amplitude to cover the powers of the District Magistrate conferred upon him under the Act which can be exercised by Additional District Magistrate in case of necessity and if so directed. It would not be proper rather unnecessary to narrow down the scope of the above phrase by excluding the Act from it as has been done by the Uttarakhand High Court in the above case. The provisions of none of the above enactments permit such limited use of the above phrase to confine it in relation to the law relating to securities markets only.

37. In view of the above, we find it difficult to agree and follow the above decision of the Uttarakhand High Court more particularly when there is a good precedent of our own High Court in the shape of M/s Lakshya Concosts Private Limited (supra).

38. In The Authorised Officer, Indian Bank9, the issue that cropped up before the Apex Court was whether the Chief Judicial Magistrate (C.J.M.) is competent to process the request of the secured creditor for taking possession of secured assets under Section 14 of the Securitisation Act as the aforesaid provision mentions only Chief Metropolitan Magistrate (C.M.M.). The Apex Court after in depth consideration of the entire controversy held that substitution of the functionaries (C.M.M. as C.J.M.) qua the administrative and executive or so to say the non-judicial functions discharged by them in the light of Code, would not be inconsistent with Section 14 of the Securitisation Act. It would be meaningful, purposive and contextual construction of Section 14 of the Securitisation Act to include C.J.M. as competent to assist the secured creditor to take possession of the secured assets. It was thus held that C.J.M. is equally competent to deal with the application moved by the secured creditor under Section 14 of the Securitisation Act.

39. Similarly, in the light of the provisions of the Code, it would be meaningful to include Additional District Magistrate as District Magistrate and to hold that the application moved under Section 14 of the Securitisation Act can be considered even by the Additional District Magistrate provided he is directed by the State Government to perform the said powers under the Securitisation Act in accordance with sub-section 2 of Section 20 of the Code or if he succeeds District Magistrate temporarily for discharge of the executive, administration of the District Magistrate in accordance with sub-section 3 of Section 20 of the Code.

40. In view of the above, we find no force in the challenge made to the impugned order and in the argument raised on behalf of the petitioners.

41. The writ petition is accordingly dismissed with no order as to costs.

6. Sanjay Kumar Gupta Vs. St. of U.P. & ors., 2013 (5) ADJ 506 (DB)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Piyush Agrawal, J.)

1. Heard Sri W.H. Khan, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Javed Hasain Khan, for the petitioner, learned Standing Counsel for State-respondents and Sri Vinod Kumar Chandel, for respondent nos. 2 and 3.

2. By means of the present writ petition, the petitioner is challenging the recovery certificate dated 24.8.2019 issued by Upper Mukha Adhikari, Zila Panchayat, Sonebhadra as well as recovery citation dated 0.1.2019 issued by Tehsildar Chunar, District Mirzapur, on the ground that there is no provision under UP Kshetra Samiti and Zila Panchayat Adhiniyam, 1961, to recover the contractual amount as arrears of land revenue.

3. Brief facts of the case is that in pursuance of the Advertisement dated 4.7.2015 issued by Adhyaksh and Upper Mukhya Adhikari, Zila Panchayat Sonebhadra and published in daily "Aaj' dated 7.7.2015 for awarding contract of realizing Parivahan Shulk for the year 2015-16, the petitioner submitted his tender and was a successful bidder of the price of Rs. 8 crores. In pursuance thereof an agreement was executed on 20.7.2015 between the petitioner and Zila Panchayat, Sonebhadra.

4. It has been averred that neither at the time of advertisement dated 4.7.2015/7.7.2015 nor at the time of entering into the contract dated 20.7.2015, the respondents informed the petitioner that validity of the by-laws of Zila Panchayat, Sonebhadra was under challenged by several persons whereby the realization of Pariwahan Shulka was stayed. In view of the pendency of litigation at various stages i.e. before this Court as well as before the Apex Court, the company as well as the firms did not pay the prescribed Pariwahan Shulka to the petitioner and therefore, the petitioner could not realize the same.

5. It is further averred that somehow, the petitioner deposited the first instalment of Rs. 01 crore and security deposit of Rs. 25 lakh, which was to be adjusted in the last instalment. Thereafter another two instalments, firstly on 30.9.2015, the petitioner deposited Rs. 3.50 crore along with tax of Rs. 7 lakhs and additional tax of Rs. 14,000/- and the other on 31.12.2015, deposited Rs. 3.25 crores along with tax of Rs. 07 lakhs and additional tax of Rs. 14,000/-.

6. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that on 26.12.2015, Upper Mukhaya Adhikari wrote a letter to the petitioner for deposit of remaining amount of Parivahan Shulk within three days and in case of default the loss caused to the Zila Panchayat would be realized from the petitioner. In response thereto, the petitioner sent a reply dated 5.1.2016 to the Upper Mukha Adhikari in which it has been submitted that the petitioner was not informed by Zila Panchayat about the pending litigation, therefore, different companies are neither paying the tax nor cooperating with the petitioner as such the petitioner could not collect the prescribed fee.

7. He further submitted that when the coercive action was taken against the petitioner by terminating the agreement by order dated 18.1.2016, a Writ Petition No. 3954 of 2016 was filed before this Court in which the pleadings have been exchanged but the same is still pending. In the meantime, the impugned recovery notice has been issued for realization of Rs. 3,26,21,116/- including 10 % collection charges as arrears of land revenue.

8. The counsel for the petitioner submitted that admittedly in pursuance of advertisement dated 7.7.2015 published in daily "Aaj' , the petitioner applied for contract of Pariwahan Shulk for the period 2015-16 and the petitioner was successful bidder, thus the contract was executed in favour of the petitioner on 20.7.2015. But neither at the time of advertisement nor at the time of execution of contract, Zila Parishad had intimated the petitioner that litigation in respect of validity of by-laws of Zila Parishad is pending as such the Parivahan Shulk cannot be realized. It is further submitted that in view of pending litigation, the Parivahan Shulk could not be realized and the same was duly intimated to the respondents but instead of co-operating with the petitioner, the respondents choose to terminate the contract of the petitioner and also issued impugned recovery certificate to recover the contractual amount as the arrears of land revenue.

9. He further submitted that under UP Kshetra Samiti and Zila Panchayat Adhiniyam, 1961, there is no provision for recovery of contractual amount as an arrears of land revenue.

10. In support of his contention, learned counsel for the petitioner has relied upon the judgement and order passed by this Court in Writ C No. 12575 of 2013 (Subhas Tiwari Vs. State of UP) decided on 17.10.2014; relevant part of the judgement is extracted below :-

"Sri W.H. Khan, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the petitioner has contended before us that the amount which are claimed under the recovery certificate are the sums which the Zila Panchayat alleges to be payable under the contract aforementioned and which cannot be recovered as arrears of land revenue in the light of various Division Bench judgments of this Court. In support of his submission Sri Khan has placed reliance on the judgment rendered by this Court in Mohd. Umar Vs. Collector / District Magistrate, Moradabad and others 2006 (3) AWC 2412; Sanjay Kumar Gupta Vs. State of U.P. and others 2013 (5) ADJ 506; Abrar Hussain Vs. District Magistrate / Collector and others in Writ Petition No. 40319 of 2006 decided on 26.11.2013. The counsel for the Zila Panchayat does not dispute the legal proposition and principles laid down in the aforementioned judgements and is also not able to dispute the position in law as noticed and declared in the aforesaid judgments.

For the view taken by the Division Benches of this Court, we find it just and proper to conclude that the impugned recovery certificate, seeking to enforce the recovery as arrears of land revenue, cannot be sustained."

11. The counsel for the petitioner further contended that in the absence of any provision under UP Kshetra Samiti and Zila Panchayat Adhiniyam, 1961, no recovery of contractual amount can be made as arrears of land revenue and in view of the judgement passed by this Court in case of Subhash Tiwari *(supra), the impugned recovery citation is liable to be set aside.

12. Learned counsel for the respondents did not dispute the aforesaid contention made by the learned counsel for the petitioner.

13. We have considered the arguments of the learned counsel for the parties and perused the material on record.

14. There is no factual dispute in the matter. The only contention raised by the counsel for the petitioner for consideration of this Court is that the contractual amount cannot be recovered as arrears of land revenue as U.P. Kshetra Samiti and Zila Panchayat Adhiniyam, 1961 does not empower the respondents to do so, therefore the impugned recovery certificate is liable to be set aside.

15. The respondents could not place any material before this Court to show any provision which empowers the Zila Panchayat to recover the contractual amount as arrears of land revenue.

16. This Court in the case of Subhash Chand Vs. Collector, Etawah and others, 1999 (1) AWC, 582 held as follows:

22. In our view the Theka money due is on account of Tehbazari fee payable to the Zila Parishad. The Zila Parishad in order to managing itself realisation of the Tehbazari fee has given it on Theka of the petitioner. It has passed its headache or burden to the Thekedar. The loss and profits are his responsibility. The Theka money flows from Tehbazari fee therefore how could it be taken away from the scope and ambit of the Act. In our view it has a direct nexus with the Tehbazari fee. We have to consider the substance and not the form while interpreting the document.

23. The Legislature has used the phraseology "any sum due" in Section 161 of U. P. Kshettra Panchayats and Zila Panchayats Adhiniyam, 1961. Similarly, the Legislature has used the phraseology "any sum due" in Section 159 also of the said Act. Thus, a combined reading of both these statutory provisions, i.e. Sections 159 and 161 of the said Act makes it crystal clear that the phraseology "any sum due" has been used by the Legislature in such a comprehensive sense that it covers in its widest amplitude any sum due under the Act or under any rule/bye-law framed thereunder and therefore, any such sura would be recoverable as arrears of land revenue, i.e. in the manner as provided under Chapter VIII of the said Act. Accordingly we are of the considered view that the term 'any sum due' in the facts and circumstances of present case, would Include the Theka money, i.e. the amount due from the Thekedar towards the Tehbazari fee or licence fee. This is the harmonious construction of the two provisions. The Legislature has used the term 'mutatis mutandis' in Section 161 of the Act which means in the given context that the provisions of Chapter VIII would apply to deal the recovery of taxes and certain other claims. The Legislature has purposely used the terms 'certain other claims' which includes any sum due. The mode of recovery provided by the Legislature is to recover as arrears of land revenue is a speedy and expeditious mode of recovery and we cannot question the wisdom of the Legislature in providing such a speedy and effective mode of recovery. It is very interesting aspect of the matter to note in the instant case. that the recovery certificate issued by the Atirikt Mukhya Adhikari, the respondent No. 3 to Collector Etawah attached as Annexure-1 to the writ petition has been challenged by means of this writ petition. A bare perusal of Annexure-1 shows that the amount of Rs. 2,75,000 which was sought to be recovered was shown as the amount due to the Zila Parishad. The relevant portion of Annexure-1 reads as under :

'महोदय, श्री सुभाष चन्द्र पुत्र श्री नत्थू सिंह निवासी संवारपुर परगवा इटावा जिसके संबंध में यह विश्वाश किया जाता है कि यह आपके जिले में स्थान संवारपुर परगना इटावा में निवास करता है उसकी सम्पति ग्राम संवारपुर परगना इटावा में आपके जिले में है.....तहबाजारी वेदपुरा वर्ष 86–87 के बकाये मददे 2,75,000.00 (दो लाख पचहत्तर हजार रू. मात्र) की धनराशि शेष है।

अतिरिक्त मुख्य अधिकारी

24. After hearing the learned counsel for the parties we are of the view that the amount in question can be recovered as arrears of land revenue and it is unfortunate that public money is not being paid by the petitioner. We are also of the view that the submissions raised by Mr. Agarwal that it cannot be recovered as arrears of land revenue are of no substance and we are also of the view that the petitioner introduced some pleas of the writ petition filed by one Sri Ali Hasan which is of no relevance in this petition as the land was different and the scope of that writ petition was different. It was regarding validity of fee.

25. We have considered the aforementioned judgments referred by the learned counsel for the petitioner first in Surendra Kumar Rai (supra)--the question of Section 161 was never discussed in this case. Similarly in Raj Bahadur Singh (supra)--it deals with U. P. Town Area Act. Bhagwati Prasad (supra)--it also deals with U. P. Town Area Act (Sections 20 and 21} Angad Pandey (supra)--it also deals with U. P. Town Area Committee and money dues which cannot be recovered as arrears of land revenue and it was held that any amount due to the Thekedar in view of the contractual term cannot be recovered as arrears of tax. Similarly in Umesh Chandra (supra)--it was observed that amount of Rs. 5,500 can be recovered under Section 158 of the Act as it is due to a Contractor and cannot be recovered under U. P. Moneys Recoveries of Dues Act as it is not tax or rent.

26. In other words the consistent view was that it is a contractual amount between the Contractor and Zila Panchayat and has no link with the fee. On the aforesaid facts we do not accept the ration as Section 161 did not fall for consideration in those judgments.

27. We are of the considered view that the plea raised by the petitioner that the money due cannot be recovered as arrears of land revenue and should not be ordinarily entertained in writ proceedings. We refuse to exercise, in the facts and circumstances, our discretion under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

17. Similar view has been taken by this Court in the case of Titu Singh Mathura Vs. District Magistrate/Collector, Mathura and others, 2003 (5) AWC 3479. Relevant part of the judgement is extracted below:-

6. From perusal of the aforesaid provisions of the Municipalities Act and Town Area Act, it is clear that the contention of the learned Counsel for the petitioner is well founded. Under Section 173-A of the Municipalities Act, it is provided that any sum due on account of tax, other thanoctroi or toll or any similar tax payable upon immediate demand, from a person to a board, the board may, recover as arrears of land revenue. In the instance case the amount in question became due from the petitioner as a result of default in payment of Theka money between the parties. Similarly Section 21 of the Town Areas Act provides that arrears of any tax imposed under this Act may be recovered and no other amount. Therefore, the provisions of Section 173-A of the Municipalities Act, and Section 21 of the Town Areas Act are not attracted. The amount in question is not a tax imposed under the aforesaid two Act and as such the amount due from the petitioner could not be recovered as arrears of land revenue. Besides the aforesaid decisions, there are two recent decisions also in Bisheshwar Singh @ Kalloo v. District Magistrate/Collector. Shahjahanpur and Ors. MANU/UP/0433/2001 and Rakesh Shukla v. District Magistrate/Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Phoolpur, Allahabad and Anr. MANU/UP/0554/2002. In these decisions also, the Division Bench found that the Theka money could not be recovered as arrears of land revenue. However, the Bench did not interfere on the ground that the equity was not in favour of the petitioner.

7. Therefore, in view of the decisions of the Division Benches, clearly holding that only taxes imposed under the Municipalities Act, and Town Area Act can be recovered as arrears of land revenue, we are of the opinion that the amount in question cannot be recovered as arrears of land revenue and the recovery certificate as well as the citation are liable to be quashed.

18. In the case of Iliyas Vs. State of UP and others, 2007 (2) ADJ, 143 (D.B.) this Court has held as follows:

4. In view of the aforesaid provisions the learned counsel for the petitioner submits that it is clear that only taxes, which are due to the municipalities can be recovered as arrears of land revenue and no other sum can be recovered as arrears of land revenue.

5. The petitioner has placed reliance upon a Division Bench judgment of this Court reported in 2006(3) UPLBEC, 2643 Mohammad Umar Vs. Collector/District Magistrate, Moradabad and others and reliance has been placed upon paras 10, 12 to 14 and paras 15 and 17 of the said judgment and has submitted that the Division Bench of this Court has held that amount due towards the contract for realization of Tehbazari cannot be recovered as arrears of land revenue and there is no provision under the Municipalities Act or U.P. Town Area Act authorizing the respondents to realize theka money as arrears of land revenue, as such, the said amount cannot be recovered in the said manner and has held that in view of the aforesaid fact, the respondents have no authority to recover the amount due to the petitioner as arrears of land revenue.

6. We have considered the submission made on behalf of the petitioner and the respondents. We are in full agreement with the judgment relied upon by the counsel for the petitioner. As there is no factual dispute in the present writ petition, the only question was to be decided whether the amount due against the petitioner can be recovered as arrears of land revenue or not. As in view of the Division Bench judgment of this Court, which is fully applicable to the present case, the Tehbazari amount due against the petitioner cannot be recovered as arrears of land revenue, as such, without inviting the counter affidavit, with the consent of the parties, the writ petition is being disposed of.

7. In view of the aforesaid fact, the recovery certificate dated 10.5.2004 (Annexure 5 to the writ petition issued by the respondents is hereby quashed. The writ petition is allowed. It is, however, open to the respondents to recover the amount from the petitioner in accordance with law.

19. This Court in the case of Mohd. Umar Vs. Collector / D.M. Moradabad and others, 2006 (9) ADJ 66 (All) (DB) has held herein below:

65. The first question which poses consideration is whether in the absence of execution of agreement an enforceable contract between the parties came into existence. The petitioners participated in the public auction for the collection of Tehbazari dues and were highest bidders. In a public auction the bidders offer their bids and the moment of fall of hammer on highest bid, that highest bid is taken to be accepted. In a public auction the fall of hammer concludes the contract. The auction proceedings, the list of bidders is the only evidence of the contract indicating that out of various offers the highest bid was accepted. Section 97 of the U.P. Municipalities Act relates to the execution of the contracts and provides that every contract made by or on behalf of a Municipality whereof the value or the amount exceeding to Rs.250/- shall be in writing provided that unless the contract has been duly executed in writing, no work including collection of materials in connection with the said contract shall be commenced or undertaken. Every such contract shall be signed by the President or the Vice President or by Executive Officer or Secretary or by any person or persons empowered under sub section (2) of sub-section (3) of previous section to sanction the contract if further and in the like manner empowered in this behalf by the Municipality. The auctions of Tehbazari contract were held in which the petitioners offered highest bids and made part payment of auction money. The petitioners having accepted the conditions of auction sale and having made payment in part performance of the contract a binding contract came into existence between the petitioners and the respondents. In a public auction on the acceptance of the highest bid of the tenderer a concluded contract between the parties enforceable at law came into existence. The highest bids of the petitioners at various auctions were in the nature of an offer which were accepted by the petitioners who were highest bidders and the petitioners deposited the amount in part a performance of the conditions of auction sales, therefore, a valid and legally enforceable contract came into being. Reliance in this regard may be placed on the decision in B.C. Mohendra Versus Municipal Board, Saharanpur AIR 1970 SC 729. Section 10 of the Indian Contract Act provides that all agreements are contracts if they are made by free consent of the parties competent to contract, for a lawful consideration and with a lawful object and are not expressly declared to be void. In all these cases the petitioners participated in an auction sale and being highest bidder made part payment under the terms and conditions of auction sales and carried out the work of collection of Tehbazari dues. The petitioners cannot wriggle out of the contract on the ground of non-execution of agreements. A concluded contract at auction sales came into being between the parties on the fall of hammer and acceptance of higher bid.

69. The decisions in the cases of Mahesh Chand (supra) and Surendra Kumar Rai (supra) have been distinguished and held to be per incuriam in the case of Subhash Chand Versus Collector Etawah and others 1999 (1) AWC 582 as the provisions of section 161 of the Adhiniyam 1961 did not fall for consideration in those judgments. Section 161 of the Adhiniyam 1961 provides that any sum due to Kshetra Panchayat under this Act or under any rule or under any bye-law made therein and declared by this Act or such rule or bye-law to be recovered in the manner provided by this Chapter shall mutatis mutandis be recoverable as provided in this Chapter. Section 161 deals with the recovery of dues of Kshettra Panchayat which is a distinct and separate body from a Zila Panchayat. The provisions exclusively relating to Kshettra Panchayat are not applicable to Zila Panchayats. Moreover, for the applicability of the provisions of section 161 any sum must be due to a Kshettra Panchayat and it must have been declared to be recoverable in the manner provided in Chapter VIII. In these writ petitions the Theka money is not due to Kshettra

Panchayat under this Act or under any rule or any bye-laws made thereunder. The auction money is due to Zila Panchayats which are distinct and separate body. The amount being due to Zila Panchayats, the facts of the case of Subhash Chandra (supra) are distinguishable. In view of these facts, the unpaid amount of auction sale held by the Zila Panchayat cannot be recovered as arrears of land revenue.

20. Similar view has been taken by this Court in the case of Sanjay Kumar Gupta Vs. State of UP and others, 2013 (5) ADJ 506 (DB). Relevant part of the judgement is extracted below :-

9. Admittedly, the contract between the petitioner and Nagar Palika Parishad, Mawana was for realisation of entry fees/parking fees from the vehicles which enter the territory of Nagar Palika Parishad, Mawana, Meerut. It is thus in the nature of 'toll' and not 'tax'. Under Section 173(A) of the Municipalities Act, 1916, the Municipal Board can only recover a sum due on account of tax as arrears of land revenue. The section itself carves out an exception, by laying down that the Board will have no power to recover arrears of octroi or toll as arrears of land revenue. Interpreting the aforesaid provision of law, a Division Bench of this Court in Titu Singh v. District Magistrate/Collector, Mathura, 2003 (5) AWC 3479, has held that the arrears of theka money (parking fees) cannot be realised as arrears of land revenue. The said decision has been followed in [Iliyas v. State of U.P. and others,].

10. We are in respectful agreement with the view taken in the aforesaid decisions. Accordingly, it is held that the impugned citation for recovery of balance theka money, as arrears of land revenue is without jurisdiction.

11. Before parting, it may be stated that the contention of the respondents that since it is public money and therefore, the petitioner may be directed to pay the said amount, does not desist us from granting aforesaid relief to the petitioner as even in case it is public money, it has to be recovered only in accordance with the procedure prescribed by law.

12. The Apex Court in its judgment in Iqbal Naseer Usmani v. Central Bank of India and others, 2006 (2) SCC 241, repelled similar contention and held as under:

According to the High Court "the money of the Bank and financial institutions is public money, which should be in circulation, otherwise the Bank and depositors will suffer." We are afraid that while this may be very good sentiment, it cannot apply in the face of Section 3 of the Act for the reason that Section 3 does not envisage the provisions of the Act being utilised for recovery of every loan taken. Section 3(1)(b) permits this to be done only in respect of loans taken under a "State-sponsored scheme", which expression has been defined in Section 2(g) of the Act. Since it is admitted that the loan taken by the appellant was not under or in relation to a "State-sponsored Scheme" within the meaning of Section 2(g), whatever else it may be, it would not be recoverable by recourse to the machinery under Section 3 of the Act.

13. Following the law laid down by the Apex Court, we have no hesitation in granting the relief prayed for. Accordingly, the impugned citation dated 1.12.2009 issued by the Tehsildar, Mawana, District Meerut is hereby quashed.

21. In view of the legal proposition enumerative above as well as the principles laid down by this Court in the aforesaid judgements, it is very clear that contractual amount cannot be recovered as arrears of land revenue, in the absence of any provisions contained under UP Kshetra Samiti and Zila Panchayat Adhiniyam, 1961. Therefore, the action taken by the respondents by way of issuing the recovery citation is not legally justified.

22. The counsel for the respondents also could not bring any material or law contrary to the aforesaid judgements, before this Court, therefore, the action taken by the respondents in issuing recovery citation for recovery of the contractual amount as arrears of land revenue, is illegal.

23. In the facts of the case, we find just and proper to conclude that the impugned recovery certificate dated 24.8.2019 issued by Upper Mukhya Adhikari, Zila Panchayat, Sonebhadra and recovery citation dated 1.11.2019 issued by Tehsildar Chunar, Distt. Mirzapur, seeking to enforce the recovery of contractual amount as arrears of land revenue, cannot be sustained and are hereby quashed.

24. The writ petition is allowed. No order as to costs.

Every agricultural activity in the village is dependent upon the Cattles which are used for ploughing the fields and other related activities by the agriculturist – The Village economy is largely dependent upon the agricultural activities and even for Vegetarian urban population, agricultural produces are coming from the Villages – Over the period of years, with the increase in population, public spaces are being compromised which has resulted in ecological disasters. We cannot be oblivious of the imminent need to preserve our environment by restoring and maintaining public spaces both in rural and urban areas. (Para 15 and 26)

B. Civil law-U.P.Z.A.&L.R. Act, 1950 – Section 132 – Public Utility Land – Claim of Bhumidhari rights – Scope – In rural areas, public spaces such as ponds, pasture lands, lands in river bed and the lands used for casual or occasional cultivation described under Section 132 have to be preserved and protected by the Revenue Authorities who have been conferred with the ample powers to undo the wrong – No Bhumidhari rights could be granted in the Public Utility land kept aside for 'Charagah' (Pasture Land) – It cannot be settled in favour of an agricultural labour even belonging to Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribes by taking recourse to the proceedings under Section 122-B (4-F) of the Act. (Para 24, 26 and 31)

C. Public Utility Land – Illegal Encroachment – Duty of State and Revenue authorities – It is the duty of the State and the appropriate Local authority to take necessary measures at the grassroot level. The Revenue Authorities are required to keep a strict vigil in the area of their jurisdiction so as to ensure that the public spaces are not illegally occupied or encroached by the Villagers or outsiders – Appropriate timely action is the need of the hour. In each case of such illegal encroachment coming before the Revenue Authorities, action in accordance with the statutory provisions has to be taken. (Para 27)

D. Civil Law-U.P.Z.A.&L.R. Act, 1950 – Section 333 – Supervisory Power – Objects and Scope – The Board or the Commissioner can make an enquiry into an order passed by the Subordinate Court by summoning the record of the suit or proceedings conducted by it, either on its own motion, i.e. suo motu or an application moved by any person bringing the said fact to its knowledge – The enquiry is limited to the question of failure in exercise of jurisdiction vested in the court concerned, or exercise of the jurisdiction not vested in or if it has acted in exercise of its jurisdiction illegally or with material irregularity – The supervisory powers given to the Board or the Commissioner is in order to keep the Subordinate revenue authorities or the Courts within their bounds. (Para 19 and 20)

E. Court proceeding – Playing of fraud – Consequence – Fraud vitiates every solemn act – A judgment or decree obtained by playing fraud on the Court is a nullity and nonest in the eye of law – Such a judgement and decree passed either by the Court of first instance or by the highest Court has to be treated as a nullity by every Court, whether superior or inferior – It can be challenged in any Court even in a collateral proceedings. (Para 21)

F. Constitution of India – Article 226 – Principle of Natural Justice – Scope of Interference – The observance of principles of natural justice cannot be put in a strait jacket formula. Wherever a plea is taken regarding violation of natural justice, the person pleading it has to establish that prejudice has been caused to him by such action – On demonstration of the said fact, interference under Article 226 of the Constitution of India can be made to remedy the situation – High court would be right in refusing to invoke its extraordinary discretionary power under Article 226 of the Constitution to quash an order which would result in restoration of an illegal order. 1. This Special Bench has been constituted by Hon'ble The Chief Justice on a reference made by learned Single Judge vide judgment and order dated 8.3.2017 in the present petition.

2. We have heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

3. The petitioners before the learned Single Judge placed reliance on the judgment and order dated 12.7.2011 in Writ Petition no.5820 of 2002 (Kanhaiya and others) wherein the order dated 13.9.2001 passed by the Additional Commissioner in revision expunging the names of the petitioners therein had been set aside on the ground that it was passed without issuing notice to them. The counsel for the petitioners herein insisted that the petitioners being similarly situated persons challenging the common order dated 13.9.2001 are entitled for the same relief. The observations made in the referral order in this regard are relevant to be noted hereunder:-

"Another supplementary affidavit has been filed by the petitioners on 20.01.2012, in which the petitioners have said that their writ petition was similar to Writ Petition No. 5820/2002 filed by Kanhaiya and others and said writ petition was allowed by order of Coordinate Bench of this Court dated 12.07.2011, copy of the said order has been filed as annexure 1 to the supplementary affidavit and a prayer has been made for grant of similar relief.

The judgement and order dated 12.07.2011 shows that the same contention was raised before this Court in Writ Petition No. 5820 of 2002, that the private respondent had filed an application on the basis of which the Additional Commissioner treated the same to be a revision and without issuing notice to the petitioners had passed the order dated 13.09.2001 expunging their names and directing for recording of plot no.46 as 'charagah'.The Hon'ble Court thereafter has recorded that the party, who could have been affected had not been given an opportunity or notice in the matter. In such circumstances, the order impugned passed by the Additional Commissioner dated 13.09.2001, was quashed and the matter was remanded back to respondent no. 1 i.e. Additional Commissioner for taking appropriate decision, after issuance of notice to the petitioners and after inviting objections.

While passing the order dated 12.07.2011 the Hon'ble Court also observed thus:

"While passing any order, respondent no.1 will also take into consideration whether in the facts and circumstances as it has been informed that the consolidation proceeding is going on, he will have a jurisdiction to pass such order or not. All these objections have to be taken into consideration by the respondent no.1."

Since this writ petition is by similarly situated petitioners as those of Writ Petition No. 5820 of 2001, which has been allowed by Coordinate Bench of this Court, which order is ordinarily binding upon this Court also, I can not take any contrary view unless I refer the matter to the Chief Justice for constitution of a Division Bench to hear and decide the following questions of law:-"

4. It appears that having different opinion, facing with the previous directions in a similar matter, the learned Single Judge deemed it fit and proper to make a reference while framing the following Questions of law to be answered by the larger Bench:-

"A. Whether the Additional Commissioner was empowered to treat an application bringing to his notice the fraud committed by the revenue authorities, as a revision and take necessary action because under U.P.Z.A & L.R. Act, the powers of revision are vested under Section 333 of the U.P.Z.A & L.R. Act and include the power to correct an error where the subordinate revenue authority has acted in the exercise of jurisdiction illegally or with material irregularity and the Revisional Authority may pass such order in the case as he thinks fit?

B. Whether an order passed by the Sub Divisional Officer in case filed under Section 229 B U.P.Z.A. & L.R Act, which was passed without reference to the issues involved in the "lis" and without formal adjudication of points for determination could be said to be a decree in the eyes of law when admittedly it was against the statutory provisions of the very same Act, under which the said jurisdiction was exercised?

C. Whether there is any requirement of opportunity of hearing in a case where from the records in question and the reports submitted by the Revenue Authorities, it is apparent that an illegality has been committed and a fraud has been played. In terms of the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Aligarh Muslim University Vs Mansoor Ali Khan 2000(7) SCC 529? Whether such an exercise would be an exercise in futility and following of principles of natural justice an empty formality?

D. Whether this Court would exercise its extraordinary writ jurisdiction to set aside an order which would amount to restoration of an illegal order?

E. Whether in view of the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of A.M. Allison Vs. B.L. Sen*, AIR 1956 SC 227 and* Mohammad Swaleh Vs. III Additional District Judge, 1998 (1) SCC 40, this Court should set aside the order passed by the Additional Commissioner, looking into the necessity to preserve public utility lands and ponds emphasized by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Hinch Lal Tiwari Vs. Kamla Devi, 2001 (6) SC 496 and Jagpal Vs. State of Punjab and others, 2011 (11) SCC 396?"

5. Having carefully read the referral order, we find that answer to the questions referred can be given only while dealing with the merits of the case of the parties herein. The reason being the legal position on the questions of law referred to us is not unsettled and no authoritative pronouncement of the larger Bench is needed. It has to be seen whether the questions referred would arise in the controversy at hands in the facts and circumstances of the case.

6. Further, having carefully perused the order dated 12.7.2011 passed by the learned Single Judge in the previous Writ Petition no.5820 of 2002, we note that all questions were left open to be examined by the Additional Commissioner while relegating the matter. On the merits of the claim of the petitioners therein only this much was noted that no notice was issued to the petitioners before passing the order dated 13.9.2001 expunging their names and directing for recording of plot no.46 as 'Charagah'. We further find that there was no expression of opinion of the learned Single Judge while passing the judgment and order dated 12.7.2011 on any of the issue before us under the referral order. The conflict of opinion appears to be only on the merits of the case, though in the referral order the learned Single Judge has not expressed any definite opinion on any of the issues before her.

7. The facts in brief relevant to decide the controversy at hands are that the present petition has been filed for quashing of the order dated 13.9.2001 passed by the Additional Commissioner, Basti in Revision no.29 of 2001. The said revision was registered on an application dated 10.8.2001 filed by one Vishram, resident of Village-Saraini, Tehsil-Bhanpur, District-Basti.

8. The averments in the said application was that Arazi No.46 area 2-0-0 situated in Mauja Saraini, Tappa Kothila, Pargana Basti, Tehsil-Bhanpur, District-

Basti was kept aside for 'Charagah' (Pasture Land) during the last consolidation proceedings. In the middle of the land in dispute, there exist a pokhar (pond) where Village cattles used to drink water. In the land in question a Village fair was also being held. However, in order to grab the land in question illegally, certain Scheduled Caste persons of the Village got settlement of the said land in their names and got entry in the proceeding under Section 122-B (4-F) of U.P.Z.A & L.R Act (hereinafter referred as the 'Act) Kanhaiya, Siya Ram, Bundele, Gulai and Hari Ram all sons of Ram Lal got their names recorded in Category -3 in an area of 16-0-0 (pukhta) of plot no.46 taking benefit of Section 122-B (4-F) of the Act. Two persons namely Nokhairam and Ramkewal sons of Ram Surat constructed their houses over the land in question. On the restoration/recall application filed by a member of Land Management Committee, the then Sub-Divisional Officer had stayed the operation of the order passed under Section 122-B (4-F) of the Act. The revision filed by Kanhaiya and others was also rejected by the Commissioner, Gorakhpur on the ground of maintainability. It was averred therein that the Village was under consolidation and taking benefit of the same the opposite parties were making efforts to get their names recorded in the public utility land, which was kept aside for 'Charagah' (Pasture Land). The prayer in the application was to evict the unauthorised occupants and restore the public utility land in its original position.

9. On the presentation of the said application, it appears that the Commissioner, Basti Division, Basti had summoned the report of the lekhpal as also the Original basic year khatauni from 1397-1404 fasli. The lekhpal in his report dated 6.9.2001 produced original records namely Gausvara dated 6.9.2001 and extract of khatauni for 1399-1404 fasli. The said report of lekhpal has been extracted in the order impugned. It is recorded in the order impugned that in the Basic year Khatauni (1399 to 1404 fasli), Arazi 46, (Area 17-0-0) has been entered in Khata no.198. In the same document, in Khata no.65- Arazi 46/2 (Area 1-10-0) was entered in the name of Bundele s/o Ram Lal in Category-1; Arazi no.46/3 Area 1-10-0 in Khata no.66 in Category-1 was recorded in the name of Babu Ram s/o Puddan; in Khata No.198, Arazi no.46 (Area 3-0-0) names of Babu Ram s/o Puddan, Bundele, Hariram sons of Ramlal were entered in Category-3 and Arazi no.46M (Area 3-0-0) was entered in the names of Kanhaiya, Gulai, Siyaram sons of Ram lal as Asami in Category-3. Name of Guru Prasad s/o Kanhaiya was recorded as Non-transferable Bhumidhar in Arazi no.46 M in an Area 3-10-0; Arazi no.46, Area 1-0-0, Khata no.198 in category-4 was entered in the name of Lakshram s/o Sewak. As result of it, out of total Area of 20-0-0 of Arazi no.46, entered in the Basic year Khatauni, only an area of 17-0-0 remained in Khata No.198. It was directed that the revenue record keeper shall explain after making an enquiry as to how the aforesaid entries were made and when and under whose order? It was further observed that the public utility land kept aside for 'Charagah' under Section 132 of U.P.Z.A & L.R Act could not have been settled in favour of private persons. Direction was, therefore, given to find out the guilty officials and initiate appropriate proceedings against them. Simultaneously, it was ordered that no right whether Asami or Bhumidhari (transferable or non-transferable) could be conferred in the public utility land within the meaning of Section 132 of U.P.Z.A & L.R Act. The entries made in the name of the private persons noted hereinabove were directed to be expunged being illegal and void ab initio. Entries of 'Charagah' in Arazi no.46, Area 20-0-0 was directed to be restored in Khata of 'Charagah' (Pasture Land). It was further directed that the copy of the order be also sent to the Settlement Officer (Consolidation), Basti for information.

10. Challenging this order, the petitioners herein (two in number) averred in the writ petition that they belong to Scheduled Caste category and each of them has been in possession of the land in dispute since prior to 30.6.1975. Over an area of 1-10-0 of Arazi no.46, their names were initially recorded in Category (Class)-4 in the revenue records. But later, both the petitioners filed two separate suits under Section 229-B of U.P.Z.A & L.R Act seeking declaration of Bhumidhar rights in the said land. The said suits were registered as Suit no.25 and 26, respectively, and decreed by two separate judgments and orders of the same date, i.e. 20.1.1989. After expunging the entries of the names of the petitioners in Category-4, the land in question was directed to be recorded in their names in Category-1. Both the aforesaid orders have been appended as Annexures-'1' and '2' to the writ petition and to contend that the petitioners, thereafter, have installed their tubewells and are using the land in question for agricultural purposes. The complainant/respondent no.2 is a member of higher class and the complaint is motivated. The Commissioner, however, being swayed away by the statement of the respondent had directed for deletion of names of the petitioners from the revenue record, without even issuing notice to them. As no notice or opportunity of hearing had been granted to the petitioners herein, the order impugned is liable to be quashed.

11. Sole ground to press the prayer for quashing the order impugned is non-compliance of principles of natural justice.

12. At the outset, we may note that we have not been able to gather anything from the order impugned which would demonstrate that notice was issued to the petitioners herein after registration of the application moved by the respondent no.2 as Revision under Section 333 of U.P.Z.A & L.R Act.

13. First question (A) in the referral order, therefore, arises for consideration before us as to whether the Commissioner had jurisdiction for expunging the entries in the revision noticing that fraud had been committed by the Revenue Authorities in manipulating the records as also in view of the error apparent on the face of record in making the revenue entries in the name of private persons of the public utility land.

14. We may also note that the petitioners are claiming right in the Public Utility Land on the basis of an order passed by the Sub-Divisional Officer in proceedings under Section 122-B (4-F) of the Act, operation of which was stayed on a recall application filed by a member of Gram Sabha. We do not have any record pertaining to the proceedings under Section 122-B (4-F) nor anything has been disclosed in the writ petition. Only the copies of the decree passed in the declaratory suits under Section 229-B of U.P.Z.A & L.R Act suit nos.25 of 26 have been filed with the writ petition. As per the stand of the complainant and the findings recorded in the order impugned, the land in question i.e. Arazi No.46, area 20-0-0 was kept aside during the course of consolidation as land for 'Charagah' under Section 132 of U.P.Z.A & L.R Act. We may, at this stage, note the relevant provisions of Section 122-B (4-F), 132 and 333 of the U.P.Z.A & L.R Act to answer the issue before us:-

"122B. Powers of the Land Management Committee and the Collector. -

[(4-F) Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sub-sections, where any agricultural labourer belonging to a Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribe is in occupation of any land vested in a Gaon Sabha under Section 117 (not being land mentioned in Section 132) having occupied it from before [May 13, 2007] and the land so occupied together with land, if any, held by him from before the said date as bhumidhar, sirdar or asami, does not exceed 1.26 hectares (3.125 acres), then no action under this section shall be taken by the Land Management Committee or the Collector against such labourer, and [he shall be admitted as bhumidhar with non-transferable rights of that land under Section 195 and it shall not be necessary for him to institute a suit for declaration of his rights as bhumidhar with non-transferable rights in that land.]]

Explanation. - The expression "agricultural labourer" shall have the meaning assigned to it in Section 198.

"132. Land in which [bhumidhari] rights shall not accrue. - Notwithstanding anything contained in Section 131, but without prejudice to the provisions of Section 19, [bhumidhari] rights shall not accrue in-

(a) pasture lands or lands covered by water and used for the purpose of growing singhara or other produce or land in the bed of a river and used for casual or occasional cultivation;

(b) such tracts of shifting or unstable cultivation as the State Government may specify by notification in the Gazette; and

[(c) lands declared by the Slate Government by notification in the Official Gazette, to be intended or set apart for taungya plantation or grove lands of a [Gaon Sabha] or a Local Authority or land acquired or held for a public purpose and in particular and without prejudice to the generality of this clause-

(i) lands set apart for military encamping grounds;

(ii) lands included within railway or canal boundaries;

(iii) lands situate within the limits of any cantonment;

(iv) lands included in sullage farms or trenching grounds belonging as such to a local authority;

(v) lands acquired by a town improvement trust in accordance with a scheme sanctioned under Section 42 of the U.P. Town Improvement Act, 1919 (U.P. Act V11 of 1919) or by a municipality for a purpose mentioned in Clause (a) or Clause (c) of Section 8 of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 (U.P. Act VII of 1916); and

(vi) lands set apart for public purposes under the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953 .]"

"[333. Power to call for cases. - (1) The Board or the Commissioner or the Additional Commissioner may call for the record of any suit or proceeding [other than proceeding under sub-section (4-A) of Section 198] decided by any court subordinate to him in which appeal lies or where an appeal lies but has not been preferred, for the purpose of satisfying himself as to the legality or propriety of any order passed in such suit or proceeding and if such subordinate court appears to have;

(a) exercised a jurisdiction not vested in it by law; or

(b) failed to exercise a jurisdiction so vested, or

(c) acted in the exercise of jurisdiction illegally or with material irregularity;

the Board or the Commissioner or the Additional Commissioner, as the case may be, may pass such order in the case as he thinks fit.

(2) If an application under this section has been moved by any person either to the Board or to the Commissioner or to the Additional Commissioner, no further application by the same person shall be entertained by any other of them.]"

15. From a conjoint reading of the said provisions, we may note that under the Scheme of the Zamindari Abolition Act, no Bhumidhari rights could accrue in a 'Pasture Land' or public utility land covered by the Clauses (a) to (c) (i)-(vi) of Section 132 of U.P.Z.A & L.R Act. Section 122-B (4-F) categorically states that any land vested in Gaon sabha under Section 117, (not being land mentioned in Section 132), if in occupation of any agricultural labourer belonging to Scheduled Caste and Scheduled Tribes can be settled in the manner as provided therein. It is, thus, clear that no private person can be conferred Bhumidhari Rights, either transferable or non-transferable, in a land which has been declared as public utility land under any of the Category of Section 132 of the Zamindari Abolition Act. In view of the clear language of Section 122-B (4-F) read with Section 132, we have no doubts that the land kept aside as 'Pasture Land' (Charagah)' in the village could not have been settled in favour of the petitioners by taking aid of the provisions of Section 122-B (4-F), or by declaring them Bhumidhar either with non-transferable or transferable rights under Section 229B of the Act. It appears that the orders of settlement of land in favour of the petitioners and declaration of Bhumidhari rights in their names under the Act have been obtained by playing fraud upon the process of law.

16. It may not be out of place to note here that the Land Management Committee and the Collector are empowered under Section 122-B for eviction of unauthorised occupants of the land belonging to Gram Sabha and they can also realise compensation for damage, misappropriation or wrongful occupation of such land, which can be recovered as arrears of land revenue.

17. We may also note that the proceeding for eviction of an unauthorised occupant can be undertaken as per the provisions in Section 122-B of the Act, which requires that the Assistant Collector has to issue notice calling upon the person in unauthorised occupation to explain his conduct and also to show cause as to why he may not be held liable to pay compensation.

18. Further remedy available to the aggrieved person to assail the order passed by the Assistant Collector under Sub-section-(3) or sub-Section-(4) by filing revision before the Collector on the ground mentioned in clauses (a) to (c) of Section 333. Finality has been attached to the order passed by the Collector in revision and a person aggrieved can only file a suit in the Court of competent jurisdiction to establish the rights claimed by him in such land property.

19. Section 333, on the other hand, confers supervisory powers upon the Board or the Commissioner or the Additional Commissioner, as the case may be, to call for the record of any suit or proceeding, decided by the Court subordinate to it, for the purpose of satisfying itself as to the legality or propriety of any order passed in such suit or proceeding, where no appeal lies or though an appeal lies but has not been preferred. The said enquiry is limited to the question of failure in exercise of jurisdiction vested in the court concerned, or exercise of the jurisdiction not vested in or if it has acted in exercise of its jurisdiction illegally or with material irregularity.

20. The plain and simple reading of the provisions of Section 333(1) of the Zamindari Abolition Act makes it clear that the Board or the Commissioner can make an enquiry into an order passed by the Subordinate Court by summoning the record of the suit or proceedings conducted by it, either on its own motion, i.e. suo motu or an application moved by any person bringing the said fact to its knowledge. The supervisory powers given to the Board or the Commissioner, in our opinion, is in order to keep the Subordinate revenue authorities or the Courts within their bounds. The application moved by a person bringing the said fact to the knowledge of the supervisory or revisional authority would be only an intimation or information of the illegality committed by such Authority or the Court. The complainant, however, has no say in the enquiry, if any, initiated by the Revisional Authority by invoking its power under Section 333 of U.P.Z.A & L.R Act, on his application.

21. Moreover, it is settled proposition in law that fraud vitiates every solemn act. A judgment or decree obtained by playing fraud on the Court is a nullity and nonest in the eye of law. Such a judgement and decree passed either by the Court of first instance or by the highest Court has to be treated as a nullity by every Court, whether superior or inferior. It can be challenged in any Court even in a collateral proceedings. As a fraud is an act of deliberate deception with the design of securing something by taking unfair advantage of another. It is a deception in order to gain by another's loss. It is a cheating intended to get an advantage. A litigant who approaches the Court must come with clean hands. A person whose case is based on falsehood has no right to get any relief from the Court. He can be summarily thrown out at any stage of the litigation. If he withholds a vital document in order to gain advantage on the other side or produces a document as a basis of his claim which is forged or fabricated document, then he would be guilty of playing fraud on the Court as well as on the Opposite side. Reference may be made to decision of the Apex Court in S.P. Chengal Varaya Naidu vs Jagannath and others reported in (1994) 1 SCC 1 in support of the above view.

22. In light of the above discussion, the action of the Commissioner in treating the application filed by the respondent no.2 as a revision under Section 333 to U.P.Z.A & L.R Act would be suo motu exercise of power conferred on him, on receipt of intimation of fraud played in the revenue records. The question no.1 of the reference is, thus, answered in affirmative.

23. The decisions relied by the learned counsel for the petitioners in Raj Kumar vs Ashok Kumar Chaurasia reported in (2016) 2 ADJ 672 and Ramesh Chaturvedi vs State of U.P through Collector Faizabad and others reported in (2019) 2 ALJ 292 are distinguishable on the facts and the circumstances of the present case.

24. As far as the second question (B) is concerned, we do not find it necessary to deliberate on the said issue as we are not examining the merits of the order passed by the sub-divisional Officer in the suit under Section 229-B of U.P.Z.A & L.R Act, passed in favour of the petitioners, inasmuch as, we are of the definite opinion no Bhumidhari rights could be granted in favour of the petitioners herein in the Public Utility land kept aside for 'Charagah' (Pasture Land) under Section 132 of U.P.Z.A & L.R Act.

25. In so far as the fifth question (E) is concerned, we may note at this stage itself that there cannot be any two opinion or doubt about the directions issued by the Apex Court in Hinch lal Tiwari vs Kamala Devi and Ors reported in (2001) 6 SCC 496 and Jagpal Singh and others vs State of Punjab and others reported in (2011) 11 SCC 396 that the material resources of the Community like forests, tanks, ponds, hillock, mountain etc; being nature's bounty need to be protected for a proper and healthy environment as they maintain delicate ecological balance and enable people to enjoy a quality life which is essence of the guaranteed right under Article 21 of the Constitution. The Government including Revenue Authorities have been mandated to take appropriate steps under the relevant statutory provisions to prevent damage, misappropriation of the Village land which is vested in the Gaon Sabha being Public-Utility land under Section 132 of the Act.

26. The Pasture Land in a Village area is lifeline of the village people as they need a ground for grazing by their cattles. Every agricultural activity in the village is dependent upon the Cattles which are used for ploughing the fields and other related activities by the agriculturist. The Village economy is largely dependent upon the agricultural activities and even for Vegetarian urban population, agricultural produces are coming from the Villages. Over the period of years, with the increase in population, public spaces are being compromised which has resulted in ecological disasters. We cannot be oblivious of the imminent need to preserve our environment by restoring and maintaining public spaces both in rural and urban areas. In rural areas, public spaces such as ponds, pasture lands, lands in river bed and the lands used for casual or occasional cultivation described under Section 132 of the Zamindari Abolition Act have to be preserved and protected by the Revenue Authorities who have been conferred with the ample powers to undo the wrong. Apathy or lack of immediate action at the ends of Revenue Authorities has resulted in illegal encroachment of the Public Utility Lands in the rural area.

27. This Court and the Apex Court has repeatedly expressed its concern over the said issue but it is the duty of the State and the appropriate Local authority to take necessary measures at the grassroot level. The Revenue Authorities are required to keep a strict vigil in the area of their jurisdiction so as to ensure that the public spaces are not illegally occupied or encroached by the Villagers or outsiders.

Appropriate timely action is the need of the hour. In each case of such illegal encroachment coming before the Revenue Authorities, action in accordance with the statutory provisions has to be taken. Adequate checks and balances have been provided under the Act to remedy an illegal or overzealous attempt of a Revenue Authority in any such situation. We are, therefore, of the considered opinion that no exception can be taken to the action taken by the Commissioner for restoration of the public utility land in Arazi no.46 area 20-0-0 after summoning the original records, when the fact of illegal or forged revenue entries was brought before it by way of an application moved by the respondent no.2. The fifth and last question no.'E' of the reference is, thus, answered in affirmative.

28. Now we are left with two more question nos.'C' & 'D' of the reference. Question no.'C' is about the need of observance of principles of natural justice and question no.'D' is about exercise of extraordinary discretionary writ jurisdiction in the instant case in the light of the facts brought before us. Both the questions can be answered together as answer to one would be dependent on answer to another.

29. As to question no.'C' and 'D', no debate or deliberation is required as it is settled that the observance of principles of natural justice cannot be put in a strait jacket formula. Wherever a plea is taken regarding violation of natural justice, the person pleading it has to establish that prejudice has been caused to him by such action. On demonstration of the said fact, interference under Article 226 of the Constitution of India can be made to remedy the situation. In a case where on consistent and indisputable facts only one conclusion is possible, then in such a case, it would not be possible to hold that breach of natural justice was itself in prejudice. (Reference S. L. Kapoor vs Jagmohan and others reported in (1980) 4 SCC 379). It is, thus, a settled proposition of law that if no other conclusion is possible on admitted or indisputable fact, it is not necessary to quash the order which is shown to have been passed in violation of natural justice. However, it is observed in Aligarh Muslim University vs Mansoor Ali Khan reported in (2000) 7 SCC 529 that the above principles is in the nature of exception and great care must be taken by the Court in applying this exception. Similarly, it is settled position of law that the High court would be right in refusing to invoke its extraordinary discretionary power under Article 226 of the Constitution to quash an order which would result in restoration of an illegal order. The refusal by the High Court to exercise of its extraordinary discretionary jurisdiction in such circumstance of a case would be justified. [Reference- Gadde Venkateswara Rao vs Government of A.P and others, AIR 1966 SC 828]. Both the question nos. 'C' and 'D' of the reference are, thus, answered in the above terms.

30. Reverting to the facts of the instant case, we find that only ground urged by the petitioners to seek quashing of the order dated 13.9.2001 passed by the Commissioner is that the names of the petitioners were expunged from the Revenue records without affording them any opportunity of hearing. The basis of the claim of the petitioners to seek Bhumidhari rights in the disputed property is the declaration granted by the Sub-divisional officer in the suits filed under Section 229-B. In the order impugned, categorical finding of fact has been recorded by the Commissioner after perusal of the original records that the land in question namely Arazi no.46 area 20-0-0 was reserved for 'charagah' (Pasture Land) during the course of the consolidation proceedings. The merits of the said finding has, however, not been challenged before us. We, therefore, cannot take exception to the findings of fact recorded by the Commissioner as there is nothing before us which would justify interference in the aforesaid findings in exercise of our extraordinary discretionary jurisdiction.

31. At the cost of repetition we may note here that in view of the findings returned by the Additional Commissioner regarding the nature of the land in dispute being public utility land, declaratory decree obtained by the petitioners in Suit nos.25 and 26 of 1987 under Section 229-B of U.P.Z.A & L.R Act appear to be nullity. The order of the Revenue Authority is nonest in the eye of law. We may also note that the public utility land under Section 132 of U.P Act can not be settled in favour of an agricultural labour even belonging to Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribes by taking recourse to the proceedings under Section 122-B (4-F) of the Act. Any such attempt by a Revenue Authority would be illegal exercise of jurisdiction vested in it and has to be viewed seriously. The petitioners, therefore, cannot derive any benefit from the settlement, if any, made in their favour under Section 122-B (4 F) of the Act. They cannot take benefit of the declaratory decree which in itself is a nullity or nonest in the eye of law.

32. Nonethless, the order impugned passed by the Commissioner does not show that any notice was issued to the petitioners herein who claimed to be in occupation of the land-in-dispute for a long time. Eviction of even an unauthorised occupants from the Gram Sabha land can be made by undertaking appropriate proceedings under Section 122-B of the Act. Further, an enquiry into the plea of fraud put forward before the Commissioner was required and in the event of notice the aggrieved person against whom allegations of fraud are made may come up with the plea that he is innocent. The notice is all the more necessary as on eviction of an unauthorised occupant from the Gram Sabha land in a proceeding either on suo motu motion or at the instance of any person, including Gram Sabha, compensation for damages, misappropriation or wrongful occupation can be levied which can be recovered from such person as arrears of land revenue. As any action against unauthorised occupant for eviction and realization of compensation or damages entails serious civil consequences, we find it expedient in the interest of justice, that the notice to the unauthorised occupant or the petitioners herein whose names have been recorded in the revenue record was necessary before expunging entries of their names from the revenue record and further for taking physical possession of the land belonging to the Gram Sabha.

33. In light of the aforesaid, though we do not find any justifiable ground to quash the order passed by the Additional Commissioner by invoking extraordinary jurisdiction vested in us under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, but in order to meet the ends of justice, it is provided that the petitioners herein was required to put to notice by the Commissioner to show cause as to why action be not taken against them for illegal occupation of the public utility land (Pasture Land) reserved under Section 132 of U.P.Z.A & L.R Act. While taking their defence, it would be open for the petitioners to raise all issues available in law and also to challenge the findings recorded by the Commissioner in the order impugned regarding the nature of the land in question being public utility land. We, thus, make it clear that all issues are kept open to be assailed by the petitioners before the Commissioner who shall examine them being the supervisory revisional authority within the scope of Section 333 of the U.P.Z.A & L.R Act. We also make it clear that we are keeping intact the order impugned in the present petition so far as the petitioners herein are concerned and only making it subject to the fresh order to be passed by the Commissioner or the concerned revisional authority. We, therefore, disposed of the present petition with the directions as follows:-

(i) The petitioners shall file an application in reply to the findings returned by the Assistant Commissioner in the order impugned alongwith the certified copy of this order, before the Commissioner or the competent revisional authority within a period of four weeks from the date of this order. The said reply shall be treated as a reply to the notice to show cause had it been earlier issued to the petitioner.

(ii) On presentation of such an application, the competent revisional authority shall be under obligation to pass a fresh reasoned and speaking order in accordance with law by intimating the date fixed before it to the petitioners, within a further period of two months.

(iii) The petitioners herein shall be under obligation to cooperate in the above proceedings. In any case, no unnecessary adjournment shall be granted to any of the petitioners herein so that they may not linger on the proceedings.

(iv) The status quo as to the nature and possession of the land as on date, shall be maintained in so far as the petitioners herein are concerned till the passing of the fresh order by the revisional authority.

34. After taking fresh decision as directed above, necessary action for restoring the nature and possession of the land in question shall be taken by the competent authority which shall be brought to its logical ends in accordance with law, as expeditiously as possible. In other words, all necessary actions to undo the wrong done, if any, shall be taken and proceedings in this regard be brought to their logical ends.

35. In case of non compliance or dereliction of the petitioners in cooperating in the proceedings before the Revenue authorities, the guilty person(s) would expose him/them in the contempt proceedings for deliberate violation of the directions issued hereinabove.

36. Subject to the above, the present petition is disposed of.

Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Sri Shashi Bhushan Mishra

Counsel for the Respondents:

A. Civil Law-Industrial Dispute Act, 1947 – Section 4K – Reference – Limitation – Although it is clear that there is no limitation prescribed for seeking reference of a dispute to Labour Court, but it is also a sine qua non for referring any dispute to Labour Court that on the date of reference, industrial dispute should be in existence – The workman by maintaining complete silence for 28 years had unequivocally given up his alleged claim, if any. (Para 8)

B. Labour dispute – Proceedings before the Conciliation Officer – Nature – The proceedings before the Conciliation Officer are administrative in nature and are not judicial proceedings – He only has the power to facilitate reconciliation between the parties. He does not possess adjudicatory powers – The State Government is not bound by the recommendation made by the Conciliation Officer. It is competent to take its own independent view as to whether on basis of material brought before it, there exists any dispute in praesenti, worthy of reference to the Labour Court and if it comes to the conclusion that there is no such material, it is fully competent in declining to make reference, as in the instant case. (Para 9)

Writ Petition dismissed (E-1)

Cases relied on :-

1. Sapan Kumar Pandit vs. U.P. Electricity Board, (2001) 6 SCC 222

2. Prabhakar vs. Joint Director, Sericulture Department & anr., (2015) 15 SCC 1

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manoj Kumar Gupta, J.)

1. The petitioner has called in question an order dated 16.9.2009 in C.P. Case No. 14 of 2004, and another dated 15.10.2016 contained in Letter No. 4966/PiP-I.R./16 by Deputy Labour Commissioner, Mirzapur Division, Pipri, Sonebhadra. He has also prayed for a mandamus commanding the Deputy Labour Commissioner to refer the dispute between the parties for adjudication by Labour Court.

2. The background facts leading to the instant petition are that Ramjag Tripathi, late husband of the petitioner (hereinafter referred to as the 'workman'), was a Clerk on probation in Primary Section of Hindalco Primary School, Renukoot. The said Institution is run by a separate Management, distinct from Hindalco Industries Limited, which is a company incorporated under the Indian Companies Act. By order dated 15.9.1975, the Management of the Institution informed him that his services were no more required since after 20th September, 1975. On 4.1.2003, after a gap of 28 years, the workman made an application to the President, Hindalco, alleging that he had made repeated representations to the authorities regarding illegal retrenchment of his service, but no heed was paid. In the meantime, he had attained the age of superannuation, i.e. 60 years and consequently, he should be deemed to have retired. It was also claimed that since his retrenchment was illegal, therefore, all his dues be paid, treating him to have retired on the date of superannuation. The workman thereafter filed Writ Petition No. 2035 of 2003 before this Court, which was dismissed by order dated 1.5.2003, holding that he had alternative remedy of approaching the Labour Court. The workman thereafter filed an application dated 31.5.2003, alleging illegal retrenchment at the hand of the Management. It was admitted in the application that the retrenchment was made on 15.9.1975 and there was delay of 27 years 18 days in approaching the authorities under the U.P. Industrial Disputes Act 1947 (hereinafter referred to as the 'the Act'), but the said delay was sought to be explained by alleging that in the meantime he had been making repeated written and oral representations to the Employer to reinstate him in service and they also kept assuring him of the same. However, when he could not get any relief from the Management, he had approached the authorities. It seems that upon filing of the said application, a case was registered before the Conciliation Officer, bearing C.P. Case No. 14 of 2004. The respondent company filed objection contending that the claim made by the workman in his application was totally false, fabricated and devoid of correct facts. He had approached the authorities after 28 years of his alleged retrenchment. After lapse of such long time, the Management was not retaining any record or evidence. The delay was fatal and accordingly the matter be consigned to record. In other words, the objection was that there was no live dispute in existence in the year 2003 about alleged illegal retrenchment done in the year 1975.

3. On 3.7.2004, the Conciliation Officer passed order to the effect that the delay in approaching the authorities under the Act is condoned and fixed 17.7.2004 for producing evidence by the parties. The Company sought to challenge the said order by filing an appeal before Labour Commissioner, Kanpur, contending that the order dated 3.7.2004 condoning delay was wholly illegal, as there was no live dispute in existence. It is noteworthy that the appeal filed by the Management was more in the shape of representation to higher authority as under law, no appeal against such order is contemplated. Thereafter, it seems that the matter remained pending before the Conciliation Officer and ultimately on 16.9.2009 the Assistant Labour Commissioner (Conciliation Officer) vide letter dated 16.9.2009 (impugned herein) held that there is no evidence before him to explain such long delay of 28 years and in his opinion, the matter should be consigned to record. The State Government accepted the recommendation made by the Conciliation Officer and passed an order on 8th October 2009, declining to make reference of the alleged dispute to the Labour Court. The reason disclosed in the order is gross delay of 27 years on the part of the workman in raising the dispute. The petitioner, who is widow of the deceased workman, filed an application dated 23.9.2016, once again making request for reference of the dispute to the Labour Court. The Deputy Labour Commissioner, Mirzapur Region, Pipri, Sonebhadra vide impugned letter dated 15.10.2016 informed the petitioner that C.P. Case No. 14 of 2004 had been consigned to record and the request for reference of dispute was declined long back and the same was also duly communicated vide letter dated 8.10.2019 through the Deputy Labour Commissioner. Consequently, it was not possible to accept the request contained in the application dated 23.9.2016.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that the stand taken by the authorities in declining to make reference to the Labour Court is not sustainable in law, inasmuch as there is no limitation prescribed under the Act for raising the dispute. It is submitted that expression "at any time" employed in Section 4K of the Act is conclusive of the legislative intent. In support of his submission, he has placed reliance on a judgment of Supreme Court in Sapan Kumar Pandit vs. Uttar Pradesh Electricity Board, (2001) 6 SCC 222. He further submitted that initially the Conciliation Officer passed a specific order condoning the delay and therefore, after holding the conciliation proceedings for number of years, it was not open to the Conciliation Officer to make recommendation against the workman. It is also submitted that the State Government erred in acting upon the recommendation made by the Conciliation Officer in declining to make reference.

5. On the other hand, learned counsel for respondent no. 6 submitted that the Institution, nor the Committee of Management of the Institution was made party to the conciliation proceedings, nor even before this Court and on this ground alone, the claim now sought to be agitated ought to be rejected. He further submitted that there was gross delay on part of the workman in approaching the authorities under the Act. In between, there was never any representation from the workman, nor any such evidence was filed before the authorities. It is submitted that the only written representation received by the Management was dated 4.1.2003, which the workman made after hhe attained the age of 60 years, praying for release of his dues. It is further submitted that in the aforesaid background, the Institution did not retain record of a workman who was engaged on probationary basis and whose service was later dispensed with within a short period. This is an additional ground for rightly not accepting the claim of the workman for reference of dispute to the Labour Court at such distance of time. He has placed reliance on judgment of Supreme Court in Prabhakar vs. Joint Director, Sericulture Department and another, (2015) 15 SCC 1 and various judgments of this Court.

6. The facts are not much in dispute. The workman was working as a Clerk in Primary Section of Hindalco Primary School, Renukoot. He was informed by letter dated 15.9.1975 that his services were no more required since after 20th September, 1975. Although it is the case of the workman that he made several representations, as well as oral requests to the Management for his reinstatement, but not a single written representation, as allegedly made by him, has been brought on record. The only representation is dated 4.1.2003, which he made to the President, Hindalco, alleging that he was wrongly retrenched from service in the year 1975 and now since he had attained the age of superannuation, his dues be paid. It was followed by filing of Writ Petition No. 2035 of 2003, resulting in dismissal on 1.5.2003. The workman thereafter moved application dated 31.5.2003 before the Assistant Labour Commissioner, raising the dispute, on basis of which C.P. Case No. 14 of 2004 was registered. It is evidently clear that the matter was agitated by the workman by approaching the Management and then this Hon'ble Court by way of a writ petition, followed by application before Deputy Labour Commissioner, resulting in registration of C.P. Case No. 14 of 2004 for the first time in the year 2003. During this long 28 years which passed in between, there is no explanation worth accepting so as to hold that the workman had been continuously agitating against his alleged retrenchment. Moreover, there is also no evidence to show that during this period, the Management ever gave any assurance to him for his reinstatement in service. Learned counsel for the respondent rightly pointed out that the workman filed application dated 4.1.2003 after he attained 60 years of age as he was only interested in wages and not in working in the Institution. It seems that for such reason, he maintained complete silence until he attained the age of superannuation and then started agitating the matter. It is also nowhere asserted that during this period he remained idle or was not gainfully employed.

7. In Prabhakar, the Supreme Court after considering various previous decisions, summarized the legal position in paragraph-42 of the Law Report as under: -

"42. On the basis of aforesaid discussion, we summarise the legal position as under:

42.1 An industrial dispute has to be referred by the appropriate Government for adjudication and the workman cannot approach the Labour Court or Industrial Tribunal directly, except in those cases which are covered by Section 2A of the Act. Reference is made Under Section 10 of the Act in those cases where the appropriate Government forms an opinion that 'any industrial dispute exists or is apprehended'. The words 'industrial dispute exists' are of paramount importance unless there is an existence of an industrial dispute (or the dispute is apprehended or it is apprehended such a dispute may arise in near future), no reference is to be made. Thus, existence or apprehension of an industrial dispute is asine qua nonfor making the reference. No doubt, at the time of taking a decision whether a reference is to be made or not, the appropriate Government is not to go into the merits of the dispute. Making of reference is only an administrative function. At the same time, on the basis of material on record, satisfaction of the existence of the industrial dispute or the apprehension of an industrial dispute is necessary. Such existence/apprehension of industrial dispute, thus, becomes a condition precedent, though it will be only subjective satisfaction based on material on record. Since, we are not concerned with the satisfaction dealing with cases where there is apprehended industrial dispute, discussion that follows would confine to existence of an industrial dispute.

42.2 Dispute or difference arises when one party make a demand and other party rejects the same. It is held by this Court in number of cases that before raising the industrial dispute making of demand is a necessary pre-condition. In such a scenario, if the services of a workman are terminated and he does not make the demand and/or raise the issue alleging wrongful termination immediately thereafter or within reasonable time and raises the same after considerable lapse of period, whether it can be said that industrial dispute still exist.

42.3 Since there is no period of limitation, it gives right to the workman to raise the dispute even belatedly. However, if the dispute is raised after a long period, it has to be seen as to whether such a dispute still exists? Thus, notwithstanding the fact that law of limitation does not apply, it is to be shown by the workman that there is a disputein praesenti. For this purpose, he has to demonstrate that even if considerable period has lapsed and there are laches and delays, such delay has not resulted into making the industrial dispute seized to exist. Therefore, if the workman is able to give satisfactory explanation for these laches and delays and demonstrate that the circumstances discloses that issue is still alive, delay would not come in his way because of the reason that law of limitation has no application. On the other hand, if because of such delay dispute no longer remains alive and is to be treated as "dead", then it would be non-existent dispute which cannot be referred.

42.4 Take, for example, a case where the workman issues notice after his termination, questioning the termination and demanding reinstatement. He is able to show that there were discussions from time to time and the parties were trying to sort out the matter amicably. Or he is able to show that there were assurances by the Management to the effect that he would be taken back in service and because of these reasons, he did not immediately raise the dispute by approaching the labour authorities seeking reference or did not invoke the remedy Under Section 2A of the Act. In such a scenario, it can be treated that the dispute was live and existing as the workman never abandoned his right. However, in this very example, even if the notice of demand was sent but it did not evoke any positive response or there was specific rejection by the Management of his demand contained in the notice and thereafter he sleeps over the matter for number of years, it can be treated that he accepted the factum of his termination and rejection thereof by the Management and acquiesced into the said rejection.

42.5 Take another example. A workman approaches the Civil Court by filing a suit against his termination which was pending for number of years and was ultimately dismissed on the ground that Civil Court did not have jurisdiction to enforce the contract of personal service and does not grant any reinstatement. At that stage, when the suit is dismissed or he withdraws that suit and then involves the machinery under the Act, it can lead to the conclusion that dispute is still alive as the workman had not accepted the termination but was agitating the same; albeit in a wrong forum.

42.6 In contrast, in those cases where there was no agitation by the workman against his termination and the dispute is raised belatedly and the delay or laches remain unexplained, it would be presumed that he had waived his right or acquiesced into the act of termination and, therefore, at the time when the dispute is raised it had become stale and was not an 'existing dispute'. In such circumstances, the appropriate Government can refuse to make reference. In the alternative, the Labour Court/Industrial Court can also hold that there is no "industrial dispute" within the meaning of Section 2(k) of the Act and, therefore, no relief can be granted."

8. Although it is clear that there is no limitation prescribed for seeking reference of a dispute to Labour Court, but it is also a sine qua non for referring any dispute to Labour Court that on the date of reference, industrial dispute should be in existence. The workman by maintaining complete silence for 28 years had unequivocally given up his alleged claim, if any. The Management was also right in taking a stand that serious prejudice would be caused to it in case reference is made at this distance of time, inasmuch as it had not been in possession of any record of an employee who remained in service on probationary basis for a short period and who never agitated the issue after dispensation of his services. Even before this Court, as noted above, no material has been placed to show that there was any representation in writing by the workman to the Management, complaining about his alleged illegal retrenchment. The alleged dispute therefore ceased to exist and the claim sought to be raised by the workman in the year 2003 was a dead claim, a stale one, not worthy of reference to the Labour Court and this Court finds no illegality in the stand taken by the respondent authorities in declining to refer the matter to the Labour Court.

9. The proceedings before the Conciliation Officer are administrative in nature and are not judicial proceedings. He only has the power to facilitate reconciliation between the parties. He does not possess adjudicatory powers. The initial order passed by the Conciliation Officer on the application of the workman that delay is condoned and thereafter notice is issued, calling upon the parties to file their evidence, was not an order which could operate as res judicata, so as to prevent the Conciliation Officer, after the parties had led evidence, to arrive at the conclusion that the dispute is not a live one, worthy of being referred to the Labour Court. Thus, this Court finds no force in the submission of learned counsel for the petitioner that once the Conciliation Officer at initial stage condoned the delay in approaching him, he could not have made an adverse recommendation to the State Government for not referring the dispute to Labour Court on ground of delay. Even otherwise, the State Government is not bound by the recommendation made by the Conciliation Officer. It is competent to take its own independent view as to whether on basis of material brought before it, there exists any dispute in praesenti, worthy of reference to the Labour Court and if it comes to the conclusion that there is no such material, it is fully competent in declining to make reference, as in the instant case. Consequently, this Courts finds no illegality in the impugned orders to warrant interference in exercise of writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution.

10. The petition lacks merit and is dismissed.

A. Civil Law-U.P. Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973 – Proviso to Sub-Section (4) of Section 18 – Lease to develop amusement park over the leased land – Determination – Right to the lessor of re-entry – Sufficient Reason – The import of the proviso is putting a caveat to the main provision in favour of a lease holder – Sub Section 4 of Section 18 shows that legislative intent of giving right to the lessor of re-entry upon failure of the lessee to make constructions as provided and contemplated under the lease agreement – But that too is when found without sufficient reason, meaning thereby for not undertaking any action or performing as per land use under the lease agreement, one must ensure that it was not for any 'sufficient reason' to record. (Para 17)

Writ Petition allowed (E-1)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ramesh Sinha, J.)
&
Hon'ble Ajit Kumar, J.)

1. Heard Sri Anurag Khanna, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Tarun Agrawal, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri M.C. Chaturvedi, learned Senior Advocate and Additional Advocate General assisted by Sri M.N.Singh, learned counsel for the respondent/ Development Authority.

2. By means of present writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, the petitioner has come up with prayer for a writ of certiorari for quashing of the order dated 26.5.2009 whereby Ghaziabad Development Authority (for short "Authority") has determined the lease of the petitioner for the reason that petitioner did not abide by the terms and conditions of the lease as the land use for which lease was granted, was not performed.

3. Briefly stated facts of the case are that respondent authority executed the lease deed on 29.12.1999 in respect of the land earmarked as "green belt", in favour of the petitioner to develop the amusement park over the leased land. However, when the petitioner did not perform as per terms of the lease, the authority came to determine the same under the order impugned.

4. Assailing the order impugned, learned Senior Advocate, Sri Khanna has argued that order having been passed in violation of the provision contained under Section 18(4) of the U.P. Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973 (for short "Act No. 11 of 1973"), the order impugned is liable to be rendered unsustainable and deserves to be quashed.

5. Relying upon the proviso to sub section 4 of Section 18 of the Act No. 11 of 1973, it has been argued that authority before passing any order determining the lease under sub-section 4 of Section 18 whereby lessor is meant to re-enter the land forfeiting the lease, it is mandatory to issue a show cause notice of such a proposed action. However, in the present case, as he submits, it is quite reflective from various documents that have been brought on record in the form of notice alongwith counter affidavit issued to the petitioner on 12th March, 2005, 20th May, 2005, 6.10.2005 and 23rd March, 2007, that all are referable to a proposed action under Section 27 of the Act No. 11 of 1973 and cannot be construed as a notice contemplated under the proviso prior to the exercise of power under sub section 4 of Section 18 of the Act No. 11 of 1973.

6. Sri Khanna submits that these notices only question the construction/development activity as an unauthorized one without sanction of approval by the authority and are meant for the proposed demolition exercise, whereas under the proviso to sub section 4 of Section 18 of Act No. 11 of 1973, show cause notice will be in respect of the proposed action of determination of lease and cancellation thereof.

7. Sri Khanna has further drawn our attention to the contents of paragraphs 14 and 15 of the counter affidavit to demonstrate that ultimate action in question has been taken only on the basis of these notices as the petitioner had failed to reply the same. He, therefore, submits that the averments as have come to be made amount to complete admission on the part of the respondent authority that they never issued any notice under the proviso to sub section 4 of Section 18 of Act No. 11 of 1973.

8. Learned Senior Advocate has argued that the order passed cancelling the lease and entire proceeding preceding the order of cancellation undertaken by the respondent authority, where de hors the procedure prescribed and so the said order is liable to be held bad and unsustainable.

9. Per contra, learned Senior Advocate Sri M.C. Chaturvedi appearing for contesting respondent, Development Authority has sought to justify the order for the reasons assigned therein. However, alternatively, he has argued that if non issuance of the notice is the only reason that makes the order liable to go, this plea being technical, the matter can be remitted to the authority and the order impugned can be taken to be notice as contemplated under the proviso to sub section 4 of section 18 of Act No. 11 of 1973. He has sought to urge that no pleadings even raised regarding merit of the order nor, any averment has come up to demonstrate that petitioners complied with terms and condition of the lease as stipulated thereunder and thus, he submits that the matter can be revisited before the authority and decision afresh can be directed to be taken.

10. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and their respective arguments raised across the bar and having perused the record, we are needed to test the order impugned in the light of the provision contained under sub section 4 of Section 18 of the Act, 1973, as we find that in the counter affidavit, respondents have authority has admitted that notices were the same notices as have been appended, to have preceded the order impugned. We proceed to examine the notice filed as CA-1,2 and 3 in the first instance to find as to whether these notices can be termed as the ones contemplated under the proviso to sub section 4 of section 18 of the Act No. 11 of 1973.

11. A bare perusal of the notice as per contents, undoubtedly notices revealed it to be in respect of the some development activity as alleged to have been undertaken by the petitioner without there being any sanction for the same of the authority and so notices are meant for an explanation to be submitted by the petitioner of the proposed action under Section 27 read with section 28 of Act No. 11 of 1973. For better appreciation, Sections 27 and 28 of the Act, 1973 are reproduced as under:

27. "Order of demolition of building - (1) where any development has been commenced or is being carried on or has been completed in contravention of the master plan or zonal development plan or without the permission, approval or sanction referred to in Section 14 or in contravention of any conditions subject to which such permission, approval or sanction has been granted in relation to the development area, then without prejudice to the provisions of Section 26 (the Vice Chairman or any officer of the authority empowered by him In that behalf may make an order directing that such development shall be removed by demolition, felling or otherwise by the owner thereof or by the person at whose instance the development has been commenced or is being carried out or has been completed, within such period not being less than fifteen days and more than forty days from the date on which a copy of the order of removal, with a brief statement of the reasons therefore, has been delivered to the owner or that person as may be specified in the order and on his failure to comply with the order, (the Vice Chairman or such officer) may remove or cause to be removed the development and the expenses of such removal as certified by (the Vice Chairman or such officer) shall be recoverable from the owner or the person at whose instance the development was commended or was being carried out or was completed as arrears of land revenue and no suit shall lie in the Civil Court for recovery of such expenses.

Provided that no such order shall be made unless the owner or the person concerned has been given a reasonable opportunity to show cause why the order should not be made.

(2) Any person aggrieved by an order under Sub-section (1) may appeal to the 4(Chairman) against that order within thirty days from the date thereof and the 5[Chairman) may after hearing the parties to the appeal either allow or dismiss the appeal or may reverse or vary any part of the order.

(3)The 6[Chairman) may stay the execution of an order against which an appeal has been filed before it under Sub-section(2).

The decision of the 7(Chairman) on the appeal and, subject only to such decision, the order under Sub-section (1), shall be final and shall not be questioned in any Court.

The provisions of this section shall be in addition to, and not in or derogation of, any other provision relating to demolition of buildings of contained in any other law for the time being In force.

28. Power to stop development-(I) Where any development in a development area has been commenced or continued in contravention of the Master Plan or Zonal Development Plan or without the permission, approval or sanction referred to in Section 14 or In contravention of any conditions subject to which such permission, approval or sanction has been granted, then, without prejudice to the provisions of Sections 26 and 27, the Vice Chairman of the Authority or any officer of the Authority empowered by him in that behalf may make an order requiring the development to be discontinued on and from the date of the service of the order, and such order shall be complied with accordingly.

Where such development is not discontinued in pursuance of the order under Sub-section (1), the Vice-Chairman or the said officer of the Authority may require any police officer to remove the person by whom the development has been commenced and all his assistants and workmen from the place of development within such time as may be specified in the requisition, and such police officer shall comply with the requisition accordingly.

After the requisition under Sub-section (2) has been complied with the Vice-Chairman of the Authority may depute by a written order a police officer or an officer or employee of the Authority to watch the place in order to ensure that the development is not continued.

Any person failing to comply with an order under Sub-section (1) shall be punishable with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, for every day during which the non-compliance continues after the service of the order.

No compensation shall be claimable by any person for any damage which he may sustain in consequence of the removal of any development under Section 27 or the discontinuance of the development under this section.

The provisions of this section shall be in addition to and not in derogation of, any other provision relating to stoppage of building operations contained in any other law for the time being in force. (Emphasis added)

12. From a bare reading of the aforesaid provisions, the legislative intents is quite apparent that a person is to undertake every development activity in an area within the territorial limits of the Authority with the prior approval of such authority or else shall face the action of demolition. The development activity therefore, always has to be in tune with the development plan and, therefore, illegal development activity and constructions to that extent are meant to be arrested at the earliest and we find that such a proceeding has nothing to do with the right of a person to the property.

13. Now Development of land has to take place in accord with the develop scheme as per zonal development plan as may be developed and prescribed by the Development Authority and a consequential Master Plan with the approval of the State Government (vide sections 8,910, 11 and 12 of the Act No. 11 of 1973). Section 14 that has an effect of consequential action in case of violation of the plan, under Section 27 of the Act, is reproduced hereunder:

14. Development of land In the developed area.-

(1) After the declaration of any area as development area under Section 3, no development of -land shall be undertaken or carried out or continued in that area by any person or body (including a department of Government)- unless permission for such development has been obtained in writing from the [Vice-Chairman) in accordance with the provision of this Act.

(2) After the coming into operation of any of the plans in any development area no development shall be undertaken or carried out or continued in that area unless such- development is also in accordance, with such plans.

(3) Notwithstanding anything contained In Sub-sections (1) and (2), the following provisions shall apply in relation-to development of land by any department of any State Government or the Central Government or any local authority-when any such department or local authority intends to carry out any development of land it shall inform the (Vice Chairman] in writing of its intention to do so -giving full, particulars thereof, including any plans and documents, at least 30 days before undertaking such development; in the case of a department of any State Government or the Central Government, if the (Vice-Chairman) has no objections it should inform such department of the same within three weeks from the date of receipt by it under Clause (a) of the department's intention, and if the Vice-Chairman does'not make any objection within the said period the department shall be free to carry out the proposed development; where the C 4[Vice-Chairman) raises any objection to the proposed development on the ground that the development is not conformity with any Master Plan or Zonal Development Plan prepared or intended to be prepared by it, or on any other ground, such department or the local authority, as the case be, shall-

(i)either make necessary modifications in the proposal development to meet the objections raised by the 5[Vice-Chairman] or

(ii) submit the proposals for development together with the objections raised by the[Vice-Chairman] to the State Government for decision under Clause (d)

the State Government, on receipt of proposals for development together with the objections of the 2[Vice-Chairman) may either approve the proposals with or without modifications or direct the department or the local authority, as the case may be, to make such modification as proposed by the Government and the decision of the State Government shall he final:

the development of any land begun by any such department or subject to the provisions of Section 59 by any such local authority before the declaration referred to in Sub-section (1) may be completed by that department or local authority with compliance with the requirement of Sub-sections (1) and (2).

(Emphasis added)

14. So the scheme of Act No. 11 of 1973 in the light of the above provision is that development of an area has to take place as per zonal and Master Plan floated with the approval of the State Government and any constructions thereof invites action under Sections 27 and 28 of the Act No. 11 of 1973.

15. Now Section 17 of the Act, provides for compulsory acquisition of land by the Authority and its disposal as per the plan. Section 18 that deals with the disposal of the acquired land under the Act, is reproduced hereunder in its entirety:

18. Disposal of land by the Authority or the local Authority concerned.-

(1) Subject to any directions given by the State Government in this behalf, the Authority or, as the case may be, the local Authority concerned may dispose of any land acquired by the State Government and transferred to it, without undertaking or carrying out any development thereon; or any such land after undertaking or carrying out such development as it thinks fit.

to such persons, in such manner and subject to such terms and conditions as it considers expedient for securing the development of the development area according to plan.

(2) Nothing in this Act shall be construed as enabling the Authority or the local Authority concerned to dispose of land by way of gift,() but subject thereto, references in this Act, to the disposal of land shall be construed as references to the disposal thereof in any manner, whether by way of sale, exchange or lease or by the creation of any easement, right or privilege or otherwise.

2(3) Notwithstanding, anything contained in Sub-section (2), the Authority or the local Authority concerned may create a mortgage or charge over such land (including any building thereon) in favour of the Life Insurance Corporation of India. the Housing and Urban Development Corporation, or a banking company as defined in the Uttar Pradesh Public Moneys (Recovery of Dues) Act, 1972 or any other financial institution approved by general or special order in this behalf by the State Government.

1[(4) Where vacant land has been disposed of under this section by way of lease for making constructions within the time with right of forfeiture of the lease and re-entry upon failure to make constructions within such time, and the lessee fails without sufficient reason, to make the constructions or a substantial portion thereof, within the stipulated time or such extended time as the lessor may grant, the 2[lessor may subject to the provisions of Sub-section (4-A) forfeit] the lease and re-enter upon the land:

Provided that no forfeiture and re-entry shall be made unless the lessee has been allowed reasonable opportunity to show cause against the proposed action.

3[(4-A) Where a lessee fails to make construction within the stipulated time, and the extended time, if any, under Sub-section (4) so that the total period from the date of lease exceeds five years, a charge at the rate of two per cent of the prevailing market value of the concerned land shall be realised every year from him by the lessor and if from the date of imposition of the said charge a further period of five years elapses the lease shall stand forfeited and the lessor shallre-enter upon the land :)

4[Provided that where the period of five years has expired before the commencement of the Uttar Pradesh Urban Planning and Development (Amendment) Act, 1997, or where the period of five years expires within one year after such commencement, the charge shall be realizable after a period of one year from the date of such commencement.]

(5) Upon such forfeiture and re-entry, the premium paid by the lessee for such land shall be refunded without any interest, after deducting-

(a) the amount, if any, due to the lessor under that lease, and

(b) a sum equivalent to 5 per cent of the premium, for administrative expenses.

(6)Any person aggrieved by an order under Sub-section (4) may, within 30 days from the date of knowledge thereof, prefer an appeal to the District Judge whose decision shall be final.

(7)The land so re-entered upon after forfeiture of lease may be disposed of in accordance with the provisions of Sub-sections (1) and (2)].

(Emphasis added)

16. Sub Section 1 thus provides for transfer of land on such terms and conditions as the Authority may consider expediant for securing development under the development area but of course, according to the plan Sub Section (2) provides for various modes of transfer/disposal of land and lease is one such mode prescribed for. And Sub Section (4) empowers forfeiture of lease and re-entry for violation of terms of lease.

17. The import of the proviso is putting a caveat to the main provision in favour of a lease holder. Sub Section 4 of Section 18, from its bare reading, shows that legislative intent of giving right to the lessor of re-entry upon failure of the lessee to make constructions as provided and contemplated under the lease agreement but that too is when found without sufficient reason, meaning thereby for not undertaking any action or performing as per land use under the lease agreement, one must ensure that it was not for any 'sufficient reason' to record. Here comes the element of adjudication because authority has to evaluate the explanation of the lessee qua the charges of violation of the lease and then adjudicate the issue regarding right to re-entry. The natural corollary is unless a show cause notice is given of the proposed action for the forfeiture of the lease deed and re-entry of the lessor, offering a 'reasonable opportunity' to explain no action can be undertaken by the authority forfeiting the lease and making re-entry.

18. So in the entire regime of the Act two different actions/ coercive measures are contemplated to meet two different contingencies and the consequential effect of the respective actions are also different and there is no overlapping of procedures to make one notice as substitution of the other merely because the authority is one and the same. The contents of the order impugned since clearly indicate that impugned action has been undertaken for not developing the amusement park to house sport activities like recreational one: swimming, golf course, joyride etc, it clearly speaks of an action as contemplated under sub section 4 of Section 18 and, therefore, in our ultimate conclusion that we arrive is that notices appended as C.A. 1,2 and 3 cannot be read and held to be notices under the proviso to sub section 4 of Section 18 of the Act No. 11 of 1973 to justify the consequential order.

19. Applying the above legal principle to case in hand and in view of the facts discussed above, we find that there is no such notice and, therefore, we find merit in the argument of learned Senior Advocate that the order impugned cannot be sustained in law as it being a result of exercise power de hors the procedure prescribed.

20. It is also sought to be urged by learned Senior Advocate Sri M.C. Chaturvedi, appearing for the respondent that the petitioner has the opportunity to explain his position and meet the charges on merits here itself in this petition. He argues that endeavour of the Court while exercising power under Article 226 should be aimed at achieving substantial justice. He submits that since the pleadings are absolutely silent qua the grounds/charges for violation of terms of the lease, it is writ large on the face of it that petitioner does not have any reasonable explanation to offer to sustain the lease rights.

21. Meeting this above argument, suffice it to say that determination of lease for violation of its terms entail a detail fact finding enquiring and at times personal opportunity of hearing may even become necessary. Such matters cannot be decided on mere affidavits. The element of adjudication as we have already referred to above being involved in the exercise of power under Section 18(4), it is always proper to let the competent authority decide the same. Once can argue that appeal involves a question of law so the said remedy may be bypassed in a certain case but task of primary authority cannot be bypassed, more so, in case where for lack of notice, a litigant had neither any opportunity to offer explanation nor, had offered any explanation.

22. However, since the lease has come to be determined for violation of the terms and conditions thereof and grounds have been clearly spelt out in the order, we take it that the petitioner now has requisite notice and so what is required at his end is to submit reply. So we find merit in the argument of learned Senior Advocate Sri M.C. Chaturvedi to the extent that matter may be remitted to the authority concerned to revisit the entire issue and decide afresh in accordance with law and that too without being influenced by any finding returned in the order impugned.

23. In view of the above the order impugned 26.05.2009 (Annexure No. 1 to the writ petition) to the extent it determines the lease and cancels the same and findings are returned in support thereof, is hereby quashed, however, contents thereof and reasons assigned therein are directed to be treated as a notice to the petitioner to submit his reply and offer explanation to the alleged violation of terms and conditions of the lease and non performance of the land use for which land in question was leased out to the petitioner.

24. Accordingly, the petitioner is directed to submit reply/explanation within period of four weeks from today and authority shall consider the reply of the petitioner and thereafter shall proceed to pass order afresh. The authority shall conclude the proceedings as directed hereinabove within a further period of eight weeks from the date of submission of reply of the petitioner.

25. We may, however, hasten to add and clarify that if any proceeding has been initiated by the authority under Section 27 of the Act No. 11 of 1973, that will be a separate one and it will be open for the authority to bring that to a logical end in the light of provisions prescribed for in that regards under the Act No. 11 of 1973.

26. The writ petition is allowed to the extent indicated hereinabove and subject to the aforesaid observations and directions but, with no order as to cost.

1. A request has been made by Sri Rohan Gupta, Advocate holding brief of Sri Ankit Saran, learned counsel for applicant to adjourn this matter today.

2. This bail application is pending since 2017 and applicant is in jail since 20.10.2016. It appears that learned counsel for last more than three years did not make any attempt to argue the case but allowed detention of his client in jail. Even today, he did not show any interest by arguing the matter. He does not want to give a chance to his client to celebrate Holi at his residence.

3. Under these circumstances, I have no option but to adjourn this matter for today.

(Delivered by Hon'ble B. Amit Sthalekar, J.)

1. Heard Shri Vimlendu Tripathi, learned counsel for the appellants and the learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. The present criminal appeal has been filed against the judgement and order dated 24.1.2001 passed by the Special Judge (D.A.A. Act), Etawah in S.T No. 503 of 1993 connected with S. T. No. 546 of 1993 whereby the appellant have been convicted under section 148 I.P.C. and sentenced to 3 years R.I., under section 307/149 I.P.C. and sentenced to 7 years R.I. and under section 302/149 I.P.C. to life imprisonment. All the sentences were directed to run concurrently.

3. Briefly stated the facts of the case are that on 14.11.1991 a written report Ext. Ka-1 was submitted by one Akhilesh Kumar scribed by Rajveer Singh at police station Bharthana, Etawah, which was registered as case crime no. 294 of 1991 under sections 147, 148, 149, 307 and 302 I.P.C. wherein it was stated that on 14.11.1991 at about 6 a.m. the informant Akhilesh Kumar alongwith Prahlad Singh, Govind Singh, Sovaran Singh, Malkhan Singh, Ajmer Singh, Manoj Kumar and Babloo were ploughing his filed which he had purchased from Uma Shanker resident of Kunjpura Etawah and with regard to this agricultural plot he had old enmity with Nathu Ram and regarding which a court decision had been made in favour of his (Akhilesh's) father as a result of which Nathu Ram and his sons bore enmity towards Akhilesh. It is alleged that seeing Akhilesh and his companions ploughing the said plot, Nathu Ram (died during trial) alongwith Diwari Lal, Dinesh Chandra, Viresh Chandra, Shiv Singh, Sarvesh Chandra (died during trial), Nihal Singh and Kusum Singh armed with Lathi, Stick, Spear, Pharsa, Country Made Pistol, and handbombs came to the plot and surrounded the complainant after which Nath Ram exhorted his companions to kill the complainant and other persons whereupon the accused persons, namely, Nathu Ram and Sarvesh Chandra fired upon the complainant and others and also attacked them with Lathi, Danda, Pharsa Spear, and country made pistols, as a result of which the complainant's brother Ramesh Chandra died on the spot whereas Prahlad Singh, Kripal Singh, Govind Singh and Manoj Kumar sustained bullet injuries and injuries from Danda, Spear, Lathi and Pharsa. The complainant and the other injured started shouting upon which Subhash Chandra, Jaiveer and other villagers rushed to the spot and on their challenge the accused persons ran away. On the basis of this written report F.I.R. was registered by the police on 14.11.1991 at 10.35 a.m. (Ext. Ka. 2). Ext. Ka- 14 dated 14.11.1991 is a search report in respect of the accused persons which mentions that all the accused persons had ran away from their houses. Ext. Ka-8 is the recovery memo which shows recovery of four empty cartridges, one cartridge is of 12 bore, pieces of used bombs, half burn strings and three cartridges were recovered from the field of Nirbal. Ext. Ka-7 is the recovery memo of plain and blood stained earth from the place where the deceased Ramesh Chandra had fallen.

4. The inquest report is Ext. Ka-6 which shows the time of the F.I.R. as 10.35 a.m. dated 14.11.1991 and the time of commencement of inquest is mentioned as 11 a.m. dated 14.11.1991 and the time of completion of the inquest is mentioned as 2.00 p.m. dated 14.11.1991.

LathiLathilathiLathiLathiLathiLathiLathilathilathilathiLathi

5. The dead body of the deceased Ramesh Chandra was sent for post mortem examination and postmortem was conducted on 15.11.1991 at 3 p.m. by Dr. H.N. Singh (P.W.-5) who has noted the following ante mortem injuries on the person of the deceased:-

"(1) Blast Injury 8cmx8cm x skull cavity deep lying on part of forehead including nasal bone, causing multiple fracture of frontal bone & nasal bone. Injury is surrounded by blackening in are of 15cmx 14cm.

(2) Incised wound 24cm x 2cm x skull cavity deep causing multiple fractures of both parietal and occipital bone. Wound is lying transversely on the occipital and both parietals, on right Side 1 cm about right Ear and on left side 6cm above the left. Brain matter drained out.

(3) Incised wound 12 cm x 3 cm x skull cavity deep on back of head transversely situated above the neck at level of mid of both ears causing fracture of underlying occipital bone.

(4) Abrasion 2cm x 1 cm on outer aspect of left upper arm 13 cm below top of shoulder.

(5) Incised wound 4cm x 1cm x muscle deep, 8 cm below rest of neck on right Side back."

6. The doctor has also opined on the basis of the injuries that the death of the deceased is possible to have been caused at 7:00 am on 14.11.1991. He has also opined that the injuries are capable of being caused by a hand grenade and that the blast injury has been caused within a distance of 3 ft. In the opinion of the doctor the death of the deceased has been caused due to shock and excess bleeding.

7. The injured Akhilesh, the informant was examined by P.W.-6 Dr. K.K. Sharma, who has prepared the report (Ext.Ka.5) and has noted the following injuries:-

"(1) A lacerated wound of size 3.5 x0.5 cm, muscle deep, irregular margins, over right Side of the head, 7.5 cm above the right Pinna of ear.

(2) A traumatic swelling of size 8cm X 5 cm over posterio lateral side of the left elbow joint."

8. In the opinion of the doctor the injuries are simple and caused by blunt object. Duration fresh.

9. The injured Manoj Kumar S/o Prahlad Singh was examined by Dr. B.S. Bisaria (P.W.-8) who has noted the following injuries:-

"(1) Multiple semi-circular wound in an area 12cm x 11 cm on the right side of face and ear measuring about 0.2 x 0.5 cm in diameter x skin deep.

(2) Multiple semi-circular would in an area of 15cm x 14 cm on the front of right shoulder measuring about 0.2 x 0.5 cm in diameter x skin deep."

10. In the opinion of the doctor, all the injuries are simple and fresh and caused by any firearm weapon. The doctor has also advised for X-Ray.

11. Injuries suffered by injured Govind (who has not been examined during trial) as noted by Dr. V.S. Bisaria (P.W.-8) are as under:-

"(1) Lacerated wound 5cm x 0.7 cm x muscle deep on the right side of skull 11 cm above of right ear.

(2) Abrasion 0.2 cm x 0.3 cm on the tip of right nose."

12. In the opinon of the doctor, all the injuries are simple, fresh and caused by hard blunt object.

13. The witness has testified that these injuries are capable of being caused by a blunt object. This witness also stated that he cannot say that injury no. 1 and 2 caused to Manoj Kumar were caused by bullet though the injury no. 1 is under the right side of the ear and is semi-circular. He also stated that normally a bullet is round in shape but pellets can be in any form and shape.

14. The investigating officer S.I. Radhey Shyam, P.W.-7 conducted the investigation of the case and prepared the inquest report (Ext. Ka-6), the recovery memo of empty cartridges and half burnt strings (Ext. Ka-8), prepared site plan (Ext. Ka-9), photo lash, dead body challan, letter to R.I. and letter to C.M.O. (Ext. Ka-10, 11, 12 and 13 respectively). The dead body was sealed and sent for postmortem examination through constables Tulsiram and constable Ram Kripal. The investigating officer in his testimony has stated that F.I.R was noted in his presence and registered as Case Crime No. 294 of 2991 under sections 147, 148, 149, 307 and 302 I.P.C. by Head Moharrir Shyam Babu Shukla and the G.D. was also prepared by him. He has proved the chik F.I.R Ext. Ka-1 as well as F.I.R. Ext. Ka-2. He has also stated that the informant Akhilesh met him around 10.30 a.m. and thereafter he went to the site which is an agricultural plot. There was no temple on the plot. He has also stated that the residences of two of the accused was situated to the south of the village Bhaisai. He prepared the chauhaddi of the site and marked it in the site plan. As per the site plan to the north is the plot of Surendra Yadav and Prem Singh. The actual site where the incident occurred has been marked as 'C' under red line. It is the field of Rama Shanker and Uma Shanker. The informant in his statement informed that with regard to this very plot he had won a case and there was a conflict between the parties with regard to this very plot. According to the informant this plot was of Nathu Ram and his sons. The investigating officer has also stated that the informant had told him that they were attacked not only with lathi and sticks but also by fire arm i.e. country made pistols and guns and pharsa as well as hand bomb. The investigating officer has stated that he has prepared the site plan on the disclosure and pointing out by the informant Akhilesh. Blood was also found on the Medh on the field of Nirbal Singh, which has been marked in the site plan as '+'. The investigating officer could not remember as to whether at the site there was any plough. The investigating officer has denied that the dead body of the deceased Ramesh Chandra was first brought to the police station and then sent for post mortem examination. The investigating officer has also identified the handwriting and signature of S.I. P.K. Mishra. He has further stated that subsequent investigation was carried out by S.H.O. himself.

15. In his cross examination he has deposed that after completion of investigation the charge sheet, Ext. Ka-14 has been submitted by P.K. Mishra, Inspector.

16. In order to prove its case during trial, the prosecution has examined 8 witnesses in all.

17. P.W. 1 Akhilesh is the first informant and injured witness of the incident and has reiterated the version of the F.I.R. stating that on 14.11.1991 at about 6 a.m. in the morning he alongwith Prahlad Singh, Govind Singh, Sovaran Singh, Malkhan Singh, Ajmer Singh, Manoj Kumar and Babloo had gone to the agricultural plot in question where the incident occurred to plough the same. He has stated that he had won a court case with regard to this plot recently and had anticipated and also feared that some quarrel may take place with regard to this plot. At the same time Nathu Ram with whom the court case had been contested came to the site alongwith Diwari Lal, Dinesh Chandra, Viresh Chandra, Shiv Singh, Sarvesh Chandra, Nihal Singh and Kusum Singh. Nath Ram was armed with a Kanta and country made pistol, Diwari Lal was armed with spear and country made pistol, Dinesh Chandra was armed with country made pistol, Viresh Singh was armed with a Kanta and Pharsa, Nihal was armed with gun and Kusum was carrying a Jhola (bag) and armed with Lathi/Danda. On reaching the spot Nathu Ram exhorted the other accused persons to kill the informant and other persons and immediately thereafter all the accused persons started assaulting the informant and others and also opened fire in which Prahlad Singh, Kripal Singh, Govind and Manoj as well as informant Akhilesh received injuries. In the end accused Kusum threw a hand bomb which hit Ramesh Chandra who died on the spot. The informant has also stated that on hearing the hue and cry, Subhash Chandra, Jaiveer and several other persons of the village reached there and on their challenge the accused persons ran away from the spot. The informant has proved the report which was scribed by Rajveer which was also signed by him. The informant also stated that the medical examination of the injured persons was carried out and Prahlad and Kripal being more seriously injured were sent to Gwalior for treatment. In his cross examination he has stated that Nathu Ram's father is Bachchan Lal but he does not know the name of the father of Bachchan Lal. Raj Kumar was not the uncle of Nathu Ram but belonged to the same family. Jodha and ....(sic) also belong to the same family. Ameer Singh's father was Ram Chandra. Ameer Singh was resident of Kunjpura which is near Jaswant Nagar. Kunjpura is about 50 km. away from the village of the informant, P.W. 1. The informant also stated that he does not know whether Jodha is the brother of Ram Chandra or not. Babloo is the son of Hawaldar. Ajmer and Malkhan are real brothers and are sons of Sovaran. Sovaran and Hawaldar are real brothers. Prahlad and the deceased Ramesh Chandra and the P.W. 1 Akhilesh are real brothers. Govind's father is Iqbal. The accused Diwari Lal, Viresh, Shiv Singh, Sarvesh and Dinesh are real brothers and sons of Nathu Ram. P.W. 1 then stated that Raj Kumar was blind, he was married but had no children. His wife had predeceased him. Raj Kumar had executed a sale deed of his land in favour of one Badan Singh. Prior to execution of this sale deed Raj Kumar had executed a sale deed in favour of Lakhan Singh. Lakhan is the resident of Kunjpura. P.W. 1 stated that he does not know where Badan Singh resides. Lakhan Singh's father is Pyarey Lal. Badan Singh used to come to the house of Raj Kumar. The plot in dispute was chak no. 580. P.W. 1 has further stated that the land which Raj Kumar had given to Lakhan through sale deed was resold by Lakhan Singh to Raj Kumar through a sale deed. This witness has further stated that it is wrong to say that Lakhan Singh had got executed the sale deed of this land executed in his favour by playing fraud on Raj Kumar and on fear of being exposed and on objection being raised by Raj Kumar he had returned the same to Raj Kumar through a sale deed. This witness also stated that Badan Singh after three days of execution of the sale deed took the same land through a sale deed in favour of his son Uma Shanker. He also stated that half of this land was thereafter sold by Uma Shanker to his brother Rama Shanker through a sale deed. This fact was in the knowledge of Raj Kumar who did not raise any objection. This witness also stated that he did not know whether any part of this land was given by Raj Kumar to a school or to a temple of Mahaveerji though he has stated that on chak no. 580 there is a temple of Mahaveerji which was got constructed by Raj Kumar. To the west of this temple there is a primary school but he does not know the number of plot but he has stated that this land also belonged to Raj Kumar. Raj Kumar had died about 15 years ago. The primary school was got constructed by Raj Kumar. He has also stated that with regard to the disputed plot no. 580 civil proceedings are still pending. Raj Kumar for the purposes of management of temple and primary school had constituted committees of which the President was the accused Nathu Ram. He has also stated that civil proceedings in respect of plot in dispute was between the accused Nathu Ram and the informant's father Latoori Singh, Sovaran Singh, Kripal, Malkhan Singh, Ajmer etc. The sale deed of the same disputed land relating to the temple and school was got executed by Latoori Singh, father of the informant, Anarkali, Malkhan Singh, Ajmer, Kripal Singh from Uma Shanker and Rama Shanker. Uma Shankar and Rama Shankar got executed the sale deed of house of Raj Kumar in favour of Latoori, Anarkali and Prem Singh upon which Dinesh accused, instituted proceedings under section 107/116 Cr.P.C. against Latoori Singh, Prahlad, deceased Ramesh Chand, Kripal Singh, Sovaran, Malkhan and Ajmer. Rajveer was the scribe of this report. The informant has denied that he and the others had purchased the land in dispute through a fraudulent sale deed. He could not remember since what time the court proceedings were going on between him, Uma Shanker, Ameer Singh and others and Nathu Ram though he has stated that at the time when he purchased the land there was already a dispute going on with Nathu Ram. He has also denied that Nathu Ram was residing in the temple and has stated that instead he was residing in his house.

18. The informant P.W. 1 in his cross examination stated that accused Kusum used to sell milk and he has no enmity against him. The informant also stated that house of Nathu Ram was situated in the west and the temple was also situated in the west and the house was about 30 steps from the temple and Nathu Ram used to reside in the said house. He also stated that prior to purchase of the house by the informant, Ameer Singh used to reside therein and this house originally belonged to Raj Kumar and has been built on chak no. 580. The informant was not aware as to whether Raj Kumar had executed a fraudulent sale deed in favour of Ameer Singh but it is wrong to say that Raj Kumar always resided in the house. The informant also stated that he alongwith 9 - 10- persons had gone to the plot no. 580 to plough the same for the first time. There were two ploughs. He also stated that he had no apprehension that any conflict will ensue but stated that so many people had gone there with him because their help was required. He also stated that one person used one plough and it is incorrect to say that they had gone there with the intention to pick up a quarrel. He also stated that prior to the prosecution party ploughing the land Nathu Ram was in his house. Adjacent to plot no. 580 is the field of Himmat Singh and adjacent to that is the field of Nirbal Singh. He further deposed that he alongwith his companions started ploughing the land concerned from the east at that time the sun had already arisen and prior to start of the conflict they had already ploughed about 20 Koorh. Both the ploughs were being used. Ramesh was sitting in the field of Nirbal Singh and others were sitting in the field Chak No. 580. The informant and Govind were operating the two ploughs. The informant has also stated that those who were ploughing were carrying small sticks whereas the others were not carrying any weapon of any kind. He also stated that accused on reaching the field asked the informant and others to stop ploughing the field and immediately started assaulting them. The informant had seen the accused coming to the field with weapons and he alongwith his companions were frightened. Though they made an attempt to run away and some persons managed to run away but they could not escape. The informant ran towards his brother Ramesh, Govind ran towards Kripal Singh and before running they had released the bullocks and buffaloes from the ploughs. When he reached near Ramesh he was also assaulted by the accused persons. By that time Kusum had taken out a bomb from the Jhola (bag) and thrown it at Ramesh as a result of which Ramesh died on the spot. The informant had not been able to reach Ramesh and he was still 70 - 80 steps away when he saw accused Kusum throwing the bomb at Ramesh. The informant also stated that he was assaulted by Shiv Singh. Shiv Singh was armed with Pharsa and Sarvesh was armed with Kanta. The informant further stated that though in his examination in chief he had stated that Shiv Singh and Sarvesh were armed with Lathi and Danda but that is not correct as they were armed with Pharsa and Kanta. Kusum was armed with hand bomb in a Jhola and also had a Katta (country made pistol). He also stated that injuries caused to him were caused by the wooden part of the Kanta. He also stated that Kusum had no concern with the land in dispute. The informant also stated that his companions had gone with him because their help was required in leveling the field and also for preparing the small boundaries and to remove the grass. The informant also stated that he had recently won a case regarding this land and therefore his companions also came with him by way of precaution. The informant also stated that injuries of Prahland and Manoj were caused by fire arm. Accused Dinesh and Nihal Singh were firing from their guns and no one else was firing. Injuries of Kripal Singh were caused by Nathu Ram by Pharsa and Kanta, Sarvesh by Katta and Kanta and Diwari by Ballam (Spear) and Govind was also assaulted. The informant stated that it is wrong to say that they had gone to the land in dispute to seize the same. He also stated that neither of his companions carried a Phawda (spade) and they were not possessing any Kudal or Khurpi.

19. This witness in cross examination has further stated that plot in question Chak no. 580 measured about 11 bighas in which there was a banyan tree standing. He also stated that he had gone with his companions to plough the said land but he had no apprehension that Nathu Ram would fight over it although there was enmity between him and Nathu Ram. After this marpeet the informant and others went to the police station in a Bullock Cart, the body of the deceased was lying in the field. One Har Vilas had brought the bullock cart from the village and another bullock cart was brought by Vishundara. The entire marpeet lasted about 10-12 minutes. The informant was medically examined in P.H.C. Bharthana at about 1 p.m. alongwith his injured companions. The injuries of Kripal and Prahlad being serious in nature, they were referred to Etawah for treatment but the informant did not go with him and instead Rajesh and Satyendra had gone with them. After medical examination the informant and others came to the police station and met the Daroga and gave him the entire information.They reached the police station after the medical examination at about 2 p.m. Other than the injured nobody had come with the informant to the police station. At one place the informant has stated that prior to his medical examination he had gone with his father Latoori to the police station but he could not remember whether anybody else had gone with him. After the dead body came to the police station the informant had gone to Etawah with the dead body for post mortem examination. He stayed in the night at Etawah as the post mortem was conducted on the next day. He also stated that no fire arms were used against him but Nihal Singh was carrying a gun with which he had fired at Ramesh.

20. P.W. 2 Kripal Singh is the injured witness and in his deposition he had stated that at about 7 O'clock in the morning his son Govind Singh was ploughing the field no. 580 and Sovaran Singh, Ajmer Singh, Malkhan Singh, Ramesh, Prahlad, Manhoj, Babloo alias Ramakant were present there alongwith him. He deposed that they were preparing the Medh and cleaning the grass of the said plot. At the same time accused Nathu Ram, Diwari Lal, Sarvesh, Shiv Singh, Viresh, Dinesh, Kusum Singh, Nihal Singh reached there. Nathu Ram and Sarvesh were armed with Kanta and country made pistols, Shiv Singh was armed with Pharsa and country made pistol, Viresh was armed with Pharsa and Katta, Diwari Lal was armed with Ballam (spear) and Katta, Dinesh was armed with gun, Nihal Singh was armed with gun and Kusum was armed with hand bombs and country made pistol. Nathu Ram asked them to stop ploughing otherwise all will be killed but they protested and did not stop ploughing, whereupon the accused persons started assaulting them and the P.W. 2 alongwith Prahlad, Akhilesh, Manoj, Govind Singh received injuries. Ramesh was also injured and died on the spot. He also stated that since he received injuries in the beginning, therefore, he could not see as to who has caused injuries to Ramesh but he clearly stated that injuries to him were caused by Sarvesh and Diwari Lal with Kanta. Nathu Ram wanted to purchase the land in question which was purchased by him, Ajmer Singh, Malkhan Singh ....(sic), Latoori for which a consolidation case was won by them and mutation was also carried out in their favour. Accused Dinesh thereafter made a false report (Istgasa) but for want of witnesses this case also ended in favour of the P.W. 2 (Kripal Singh). He further deposed that on hearing the hue and cry Subhash, Jagveer Singh, Ramanath, Nathuram and other villagers reached on the spot and witnessed the incident.

21. In the cross examination P.W. 2 Kripal Singh stated that Raj Kumar was the resident of his village and he was blind. Nathu Ram accused was the uncle of Raj Kumar (Chacha). In the plot no. 580 of Raj Kumar there is a primay school and a Hanuman temple. To the west of the temple in this plot there was a house of Raj Kumar. He does not know whether Raj Kumar had made separate committees for the primary school and the Hanuman Temple but these properties were being looked after by Ajmer Singh. P.W.-2 also stated that the house of Raj Kumar is to the west of the temple and very close to it and in this house Nathu Ram and his sons reside. Nathu Ram used to do pooja in the temple. The primary school was got constructed by Raj Kumar and he had donated the school and the land to the Government with the intention that the Government would run the school. The Government had also constructed a new school on this plot no. 580. Raj Kumar had no children. The house of Raj Kumar in which Nathu Ram was residing was sold by Uma Shanker and Rama Shanker in favour of Anarkali wife of Hawaldar. He has also stated that Uma Shanker and Rama Shanker were sons of Ameer Singh. Kusum Singh was running a pan shop and was also selling milk. Kusum Singh used to collect milk from the village and sell the same in Bharthana, Etawah. Kusum Singh is the resident of Dadiyan which is about one and half kms away from village Bhasai. No member of his family resides in the village of P.W. 2. The witness also stated that there was a consolidation case between Nathu Ram and his family and also a civil dispute.

22. In cross examination this witness further stated that at the time of incident alongwith him the other legitimate title holders were removing grass from the ploughed field but they were not carrying any Kudal or Khurpi. It is incorrect to say that on that day he did not go to the field to prepare the Medh (small boundary). He has also stated that he had informed the investigating officer that his son Govind and informant Akhilesh were ploughing the field whereas he alongwith others was removing the grass from the ploughed field by hand. He also stated that before assaulting them the accused had fired in the air. They were not carrying Lathi or Sticks but they came with the common intention to kill. He has stated that he was assaulted by Kanta and not with any fire arm by Sarvesh and Diwari Lal. He has stated that Diwari Lal had assaulted him with the wooden part of the Ballam (spear). He has clarified that he had been assaulted by the wooden part and not from the sharp edge of the Ballam as a result of which he has received injuries. At the time when he was assaulted he was standing towards the south of the temple at a distance of about 200 steps, to the south of which there is the field of Nirbal Singh. He stated that for the first time when he saw the accused persons they were to the north south near the temple and he was not frightened seeing the accused persons otherwise he would have run away. Nathu Ram asked them to stop ploughing but they did not stop. Deceased Ramesh was standing behind him on the southern Medh. He has denied that any hand bomb was thrown from his side at Nathu Ram or that they were injured by any hand bomb thrown by them at Nathu Ram. He has also deposed that it is incorrect to say that they had received injuries while they were throwing bomb at Nathu Ram and that Ramesh has also received bomb injuries in this process. He had gone in a buffalo cart alongwith his son Govind and wife to Bharthana. He had gone from the village to the hospital and from there he had gone to a hospital in Gwalior for treatment. He met the Daroga 9 - 10 days after returning from Gwalior. He also stated that it is wrong to say that a false report has been lodged against the accused persons with the connivance of the police and by changing the time in the F.I.R. It is also incorrect to say that no such incident as narrated by him had occurred and it is also incorrect to say that there was firing from both sides.

23. P.W. 3 Manoj Kumar s/o Prahlad Singh is also an injured eye witness of the incident and has deposed that on 14.11.1991 at about 7 a.m. in the morning he had gone to the field alongwith Kripal Singh, Govind, Prahlad Singh, Ramesh Singh, Akhilesh, Sovaran Singh, Malkhan Singh, Ajmer Singh and Ramakant. They had won a case in respect of the land in question and therefore, they had all gone to the field and at the time of the incident some persons were removing grass of the field. At that time, Nathu Ram armed with Katta and Kanta, Diwari Lal armed with Ballam and country made pistol, Sarvesh armed with Katta and Kanta, Viresh armed with Katta and Pharsa, Shiv Singh armed with Katta and Pharsa and Kusum, who was carrying a jhola containing hand bombs and a Katta, Nihal Singh armed with country made pistol and Dinesh armed with gun reached there and surrounded them and started assaulting them. In this assault Ramesh, Manoj, Prahlad, Akhilesh, Kripal Singh and Govind had received injuries. He alongwith Prahlad was injured by fire arm which were used by Nihal and Dinesh. He stated that he received pellet injuries on his ear and neck. He further stated that perhaps Kripal Singh had received injuries by Pharsa and his uncle Ramesh had died on the spot on receiving the injuries caused to him by Pharsa and hand bomb. Hand bomb was thrown by Kusum Singh at Ramesh which had badly injured Ramesh. After that this witness got his medical examination done of his injuries.

24. In his cross examination this witness further stated that with regard to plot no. 580 there was a court case with Nathu Ram and even at that time there was some civil case was going on. Between the house of Nathu Ram and temple there may be a distance of 10 - 15 ft. The house of Nathu Ram is situated to the west of the temple. He does not know whether Raj Kumar resides in the same house in which Nathu Ram alongwith his family was residing. Raj Kumar had no other house in the village. He does not know whether Raj Kumar is the uncle of accused Nathu Ram. The house in which Nathur Ram's family resides is in the name of Nathu Ram of which a sale deed was got executed by the wife of Hawaldar, and Prem Singh but he does not know from whom this sale deed was got executed. Till the date of the incident the vendor had not taken possession of the said plot no. 580. He stated that he alongwith others had gone to the plot no. 580 for the first time to take possession of the same. He had no apprehension that there would be any quarrel with the accused or that the accused Nathu Ram would try to prevent them from taking possession of the plot. They had taken two pairs of ploughs to the field alongwith 10 persons who were not armed with any weapon. Two people were ploughing the field and rest were removing the grass from the field. He had given statement to the Daroga on the date of the incident but after that the Daroga had not examined him. The witness has denied that he alongwith others had gone to the field in question, plot no. 580, with arms or hand bombs to plough the field. This witness has clearly stated that accused Viresh was armed with pharsa and Katta, Sarvesh was armed with Katta and Kanta, Shiv Singh was armed with Pharsa and Katta. When the witness first saw the accused they were carrying arms, they came from all sides. Nathu Ram was on the north west corner of the field.

25. The witness also deposed that he saw the accused persons only when they were about 5-6 ft. away and were on all sides of the field. He also stated that he along with others did try to run away but they could not escape and were assaulted by the accused appellants. Ramesh died on the spot after the incident. Subhash and Jaiveer alongwith other villagers came to the spot after the injuries were caused to him and the accused persons ran away seeing the villagers. On hearing the sound of firearm the bullocks ran away with the plough. The injured were taken by bullock cart to Barthana. He also stated that from the Thana they came to Etawah for treatment. From the Thana the witness Manoj along with Prahalad Singh, Kripal Singh and Govind Singh had gone to the hospital in a jeep. The witness remained admitted in the hospital for two days. The witness also stated that accused Dinesh and Nihal were carrying guns, the rest of the accused were carrying two weapons each. The accused had fired using both hands. This witness has stated that first the hand bomb was thrown and thereafter, the accused attacked with pharsa and then started firing from the firearms. The witness has stated that it is incorrect to say that he alongwith others had gone to the plot no. 580 in question to take forcible possession or that they had not won the case and had gone to the said plot with hand grenades and guns etc., to take forcible possession of the same through a fraudulent sale deed and that on accused Nathu Ram remonstrating with them, they threw hand grenades at Nathu Ram. The witness has also stated that it is incorrect to say that other than accused Nathu Ram no other accused was present at the spot and it is also incorrect to say that the time of the F.I.R. has been changed in collusion with the police.

26. P.W.-4 Head Constable Shyam Babu Shukla is the Head Muharir and he has proved the filing of the written report by the informant Akhilesh Kumar and has also affirmed that on the said basis he has registered the Chik F.I.R. being Case Crime no. 273. He has also proved his signature on the F.I.R. which is Ext.Ka.2 as well as the time of 10:35 am and date 14/11/1991 mentioned therein. The witness has also stated that General Diary (GD) has been weeded out. It is maintained in the Thana for one year and thereafter sent to the record room and after five years it is weeded out.

27. P.W.-5 Dr. H.N. Singh has conducted the postmortem of the deceased Ramesh Chandra. This witness has proved the injuries as per the postmortem report Ext.Ka.4.

28. P.W-6 is Dr. K.K. Sharma who has examined the injured Akhilesh. This witness has proved the injury report Ext.Ka.5, caused to Akhilesh Kumar, the informant.

29. P.W.-7 is Radhey Shyam Verma, who has conducted the investigation of the case. His deposition has already been narrated above.

30. P.W.-8 is Dr. B.S. Bisaria who has medically examined the injured Manoj and injured Govind and also proved the injury report Ext. Ka.13.

31. On the basis of the evidence brought on record by the prosecution the trial court has convicted and sentenced the appellants, as aforesaid.

32. Sri Vimlendu Tripathi, learned counsel for the accused-appellants submitted that the copy of the FIR was sent to the Magistrate on 18.11.1991 i.e. after four days of the incident and was not sent promptly, therefore, the FIR itself is ante-timed.

33. Rebutting the submissions of the learned counsel for the appellants on the question of the FIR being forwarded to the Magistrate belatedly, learned A.G.A. has submitted that even though Section 157 Cr.P.C. requires such report to be sent by the police officer to the Magistrate empowered to take cognizance of such evidence forthwith but that is only for purposes of keeping control of the investigation and if necessary to give appropriate directions under Section 159 Cr.P.C. The learned AGA submitted that if the FIR is otherwise promptly recorded and there is nothing on record or even a whiff of suspicion to show that there was a possibility of it being anti-timed, the mere fact that the report was forwarded to the Magistrate belatedly would not vitiate the trial nor can it be conjectured on that ground that the F.I.R. is anti-timed. Reliance has been placed on the judgment of the Supreme Court in Pala Singh and others Vs State of Punjab, (1972) 2 SCC 640. Paragraph 7 of the said judgment reads as under:-

"7. Shri Kohli strongly criticised the fact that the occurrence report contemplated by S. 157, Cr.P.C. was sent to the magistrate concerned very late. Indeed, this challenge, like the argument of interpolation and belated despatch of the inquest report, was developed for the purpose of showing that the investigation was not just, fair and forthright and, therefore, the prosecution case must be looked at with great suspicion. This argument is also unacceptable. No doubt, the report reached the magistrate at about 6 p.m. Section 157, Cr. P.C. requires such report to be sent forthwith by the police officer concerned to a magistrate empowered to take cognisance of such offence. This is really designed to keep the magistrate informed of the investigation of such cognizable offence so as to be able to control the investigation and if necessary to give appropriate direction under s. 159. But when we find in this case that the F.I.R. was actually recorded without delay and the investigation started on the basis of that F.I.R. and there is no other infirmity brought to our notice, then, however improper or objectionable the delayed receipt of the report by the magistrate concerned it cannot by itself justify the conclusion that the investigation was tainted and the prosecution insupportable. It is not the appellants case that they have been prejudiced by this delay."

34. The judgment of the Supreme Court in Pala Singh (supra) has been followed by a Division Bench of this Court in Criminal Appeal no. 2525 of 1978, Chhotey Lal and others Vs State of U.P. reported in 1990 (2) Crimes (HC) 531. Paragraph 14 of the said judgment reads as under:-

"14. It is true that Sec. 157 Cr.P.C. was not properly complied with inasmuch as the Special Report was not sent forthwith to the Court concerned but this by itself, without any other circumstance, is nothing to come to a conclusion that the investigating was tainted or that the F.I.R. was not in existence at the time when it is alleged to have come into existence. In the case of Pala Singh and another Vs. State, it has been held that mere delay in receipt of report of occurrence by the Magistrate will not make the investigation tainted without any other conclusion which may lead to that conclusion. In the present case since the prosecution evidence has been found to be reliable, this delay in sending of the special report to the Magistrate will have no bearing on the prosecution case."

35. Reliance has also been place on the judgment of the Supreme Court in Bhajan Singh Alias Harbhajan Singh Vs State of Haryana, (2011) 7 SCC 421 wherein it was held by the apex court that the Cr.P.C. provides for internal and external checks, one of them being the receipt of copy of the F.I.R. by the Magistrate concerned. This is to ensure that the F.I.R. may not be anti-timed or anti-dated. The purpose of prompt reporting to the Magistrate is that Section 159 Cr.P.C. empowers the Magistrate to hold investigation or preliminary enquiry of the offence either himself or through a Magistrate subordinate to him. Explaining the word "forthwith" in Section 157 Cr.P.C., the Apex Court held that the word "forthwith" does not mean that the prosecution is required to explain the delay of every hour in sending the F.I.R. to the Magistrate. If in a given case, the number of dead or injured persons is very high delay in dispatching the report is natural. Paragraphs 28, 29, 30 and 31 of the judgment read as under:-

"28. Thus, from the above it is evident that the Cr.P.C provides for internal and external checks: one of them being the receipt of a copy of the FIR by the Magistrate concerned. It serves the purpose that the FIR be not anti-timed or anti-dated. The Magistrate must be immediately informed of every serious offence so that he may be in a position to act under Section 159 Cr.P.C., if so required. Section 159 Cr.P.C. empowers the Magistrate to hold the investigation or preliminary enquiry of the offence either himself or through the Magistrate subordinate to him. This is designed to keep the Magistrate informed of the investigation so as to enable him to control investigation and, if necessary, to give appropriate direction.

29. It is not that as if every delay in sending the report to the Magistrate would necessarily lead to the inference that the FIR has not been lodged at the time stated or has been anti-timed or anti-dated or investigation is not fair and forthright. Every such delay is not fatal unless prejudice to the accused is shown. The expression `forthwith' mentioned therein does not mean that the prosecution is required to explain delay of every hour in sending the FIR to the Magistrate. In a given case, if number of dead and injured persons is very high, delay in dispatching the report is natural. Of course, the same is to be sent within reasonable time in the prevalent circumstances.

30. However, unexplained inordinate delay in sending the copy of FIR to the Magistrate may affect the prosecution case adversely. An adverse inference may be drawn against the prosecution when there are circumstances from which an inference can be drawn that there were chances of manipulation in the FIR by falsely roping in the accused persons after due deliberations. Delay provides legitimate basis for suspicion of the FIR, as it affords sufficient time to the prosecution to introduce improvements and embellishments. Thus, a delay in dispatch of the FIR by itself is not a circumstance which can throw out the prosecution's case in its entirety, particularly when the prosecution furnishes a cogent explanation for the delay in dispatch of the report or prosecution case itself is proved by leading unimpeachable evidence.

31. In view of the above, we are in agreement with the High Court that there was no delay either in lodging the FIR or in sending the copy of the FIR to the Magistrate. It may be pertinent to point out that defence did not put any question on these issues while cross-examining the Investigating Officer, providing him an opportunity to explain the delay, if any. Thus, we do not find any force in the submissions made by the learned counsel for the appellants in this regard."

36. The Supreme Court in 1998 SCC (Crl) 1055, Shiekh Ayub Vs State of Maharashtra has held as under:-

".....It was urged by the learned counsel that the fact that copy of the FIR had reached the Magistrate on 10.2.1995 creates a serious doubt regarding the date and time when the FIR was prepared. He also drew our attention to the evidence of PW.3 Aslam who had stated that the police had prepared some writing after coming to the village and had taken his thumb expression on it. We do not find any substances in this contention because after recording the FIR at 7.30 a.m. the Investigating Officer had proceeded to the place to the place of the incident and prepared inquest reports. The evidence of Panch witness PW.6 and the inquest reports show that work of preparing inquest reports had started at 8 a.m. The inquest reports and other Panchnamas also contain the number of FIR. Therefore, there can be no doubt that the FIR had come into existence before 8 a.m. on 6.2.1995. Even though it had reached the Magistrate after three days that delay cannot, in view of the other evidence, create any doubt regarding its genuineness."

37. From the record we find that the FIR was registered on 14.11.1991 and there is also a date of 15.11.1991 mentioned on the side. It is to be noted that the date of 18.11.1991 is also mentioned in the FIR (Ext.Ka.2) but from that alone we are not inclined to take the view that the F.I.R. is anti timed. No doubt the information ought to have been communicated to the concerned Magistrate promptly but there is nothing on record to lead to the presumption that if it was sent on 18.11.1991, the F.I.R. itself would be anti timed. At the most it may be lapse on the part of the police.

38. In the present case, we may further note that the incident occurred on 14.11.1991 at about 7:00 am. Ten people were present from the prosecution side on the plot no. 580; they had gone to plough the field and clean the grass when they were attacked by the accused persons who were eight in number. The accused were carrying lethal weapons like farsa, kanta, ballam (spear), tamancha and hand bomb. Large number of persons from the members of the prosecution party were injured and some were sent to Etawah for treatment while some were sent to Gwalior for treatment. In spite of this, the F.I.R. was lodged on 14.11.1991 itself at 10:35 am. The written report has been proved by the informant P.W.-1 and the F.I.R. has also been proved by Investigating Officer, P.W.-7 and P.W.-4 Head Constable Shyam Babu Shukla who was the Head Muharir at the relevant point of time. In the inquest report held on 14.11.1991 itself at 11:00 am(Ext.Ka.6), the time and date of F.I.R. is mentioned as 10:35 am dated 14.11.1991. Thus, it was a prompt F.I.R. In the circumstances, in our opinion, merely because the report was forwarded to the Magistrate on 18.11.1991 if true, would not be fatal to the trial. However, we may at the same time, hasten to caution the Government on this aspect of the matter to ensure that copy of the F.I.R. in all such cases is forwarded to the Magistrate promptly and that the provisions of Section

157 Cr.P.C. are complied with in letter and spirit.

39. The learned counsel then submitted that there is a contradiction in the description of injuries by the informant Akhilesh (P.W. 1) and that in his cross examination the informant P.W-1 has stated that injuries were caused to him by Lathi and Danda whereas in his examination-in-chief he has stated that injuries caused to him was of a kanta. We find that in his examination-in-chief the informant has stated that the injury was caused to him by the stick portion which is attached to a kanta. His injury report, as verified by the Doctor K.K. Sharma, P.W.-6 also mentions that the injuries have been caused by a blunt object. Therefore, we do not accept the submissions of the learned counsel for the appellants that there is any contradiction in the statement of informant Akhilesh with regard to injuries received by him.

40. The next submission of the learned counsel for the appellants is that the witnesses are wholly unreliable since they are interested witnesses being related to one another. We find that the witnesses P.W.-1 and 3 are fact witnesses and though they are related to each other in the sense that P.W.-1 Akhilesh complainant is the son of Latoori Singh and P.W.-3 Manoj Kumar is the son of Prahlad Singh, who is the brother of informant Akhilesh Singh. Thus the witness Manoj Kumar is the nephew of the informant Akhilesh Singh. All these witnesses have testified with regard to weapons being carried by each of the accused and there is no contradiction in that regard in their statements. It is relevant to note here that it is the admitted case of the prosecution from the inception that on the date of the incident they had gone to the field in question, measuring 11 bighas, for cultivating the same alongwith two ploughs, bullock and buffalo and started cultivating the field. The witnesses of fact have also very clearly deposed that while two persons were ploughing the field, rest of the persons were cleaning the field and removing grass from the field whereas some persons were sitting, may be waiting for their turn since the plot in question was big in size. The prosecution witnesses have also very specifically deposed that it is the accused persons who reached the spot armed with deadly weapons and challenged them to stop cultivating the field and when they did not oblige, the accused persons started assaulting them with their weapons. The prosecution witnesses have also received injuries in the incident and have been medically examined by the doctors, who have proved their injuries during trial. Otherwise also the incident took place at about 7.00 a.m. in the morning and it is a day light incident and therefore, in the absence of any major contradiction in the testimonies of the prosecution witnesses, we are not inclined to disbelieve their testimony merely on the ground that they happened to be related to each other. The mere fact that prosecution witnesses are related to each other is no ground to discard their testimony, which is otherwise unimpeachable, merely on a false notion that the related witnesses would have colluded to given false evidence to deliberately implicate the accused more so when the related witnesses are also injured witnesses.

41. The Supreme Court in the case of Waman and others Vs State of Maharashtra, (2011) CrLJ 4287 (SC) in paragraphs 7,8,9,10,11 and 12 has held as under:-

"7) In view of the stand of the counsel for the appellants that since PWs 1-4, eye-witnesses are closely related to the deceased and complainant, conviction can not be based on such evidence, let us state the law on the admissibility/acceptability or otherwise of their evidence as considered by this Court.

8) In Sarwan Singh and Others vs. State of Punjab, (1976) 4 SCC 369, a three-Judge Bench of this Court, while considering the evidence of interested witness held that it is not the law that the evidence of an interested witness should be equated with that of a tainted witness or that of an approver so as to require corroboration as a matter of necessity. The evidence of an interested witness does not suffer from any infirmity as such, but the courts require as a rule of prudence, not as a rule of law, that the evidence of such witnesses should be scrutinized with a little care. Once that approach is made and the court is satisfied that the evidence of the interested witness has a ring of truth such evidence could be relied upon even without corroboration. The fact of being a relative cannot by itself discredit the evidence.

In the said case, the witness relied on by the prosecution was the brother of the wife of the deceased and was living with the deceased for quite a few years. This Court held that "but that by itself is not a ground to discredit the testimony of this witness, if it is otherwise found to be consistent and true".

9) In Balraje alias Trimbak vs. State of Maharashtra, (2010) 6 SCC 673, this Court held that the mere fact that the witnesses were related to the deceased cannot be a ground to discard their evidence. It was further held that when the eyewitnesses are stated to be interested and inimically disposed towards the accused, it has to be noted that it would not be proper to conclude that they would shield the real culprit and rope in innocent persons. The truth or otherwise of the evidence has to be weighed pragmatically and the court would be required to analyze the evidence of related witnesses and those witnesses who are inimically disposed towards the accused. After saying so, this Court held that if after careful analysis and scrutiny of their evidence, the version given by the witnesses appears to be clear, cogent and credible, there is no reason to discard the same.

10) The same principles have been reiterated in Prahalad Patel vs. State of Madhya Pradesh, (2011) 4 SCC 262. In para 15, this Court held that "though PWs 2 and 7 are brothers of the deceased, relationship is not a factor to affect credibility of a witness. In a series of decisions this Court has accepted the above principle (vide Israr vs. State of U.P., (2005) 9 SCC 616 and S. Sudershan Reddy vs. State of A.P., (2006) 10 SCC 163)

11) The above principles have been once again reiterated in in State of U.P. vs. Naresh & Ors., (2011) 4 SCC 324. Here again, this Court has emphasized that relationship cannot be a factor to affect the credibility of an witness. The following statement of law on this point is relevant:

"29. .... The evidence of a witness cannot be discarded solely on the ground of his relationship with the victim of the offence. The plea relating to relatives' evidence remains without any substance in case the evidence has credence and it can be relied upon. In such a case the defence has to lay foundation if plea of false implication is made and the Court has to analyse the evidence of related witnesses carefully to find out whether it is cogent and credible. [Vide Jarnail Singh vs. State of Punjab (2009) 9 SCC 719, Vishnu & Ors. v. State of Rajasthan, (2009) 10 SCC 477; and Balraje @ Trimbak (supra)]"

12) It is clear that merely because the witnesses are related to the complainant or the deceased, their evidence cannot be thrown out. If their evidence is found to be consistent and true, the fact of being a relative cannot by itself discredit their evidence. In other words, the relationship is not a factor to affect the credibility of a witness and the courts have to scrutinize their evidence meticulously with a little care."

42. The Supreme Court in the case of Gangabhavani v. Rayapati Venkat Reddy, AIR 2013 SC 3681, on the issue of related witnesses has held as under:-

"EVIDENCE OF A RELATED/INTERESTED WITNESSES:

11. It is a settled legal proposition that the evidence of closely related witnesses is required to be carefully scrutinised and appreciated before any conclusion is made to rest upon it, regarding the convict/accused in a given case. Thus, the evidence cannot be disbelieved merely on the ground that the witnesses are related to each other or to the deceased. In case the evidence has a ring of truth to it, is cogent, credible and trustworthy, it can, and certainly should, be relied upon.

(Vide: Bhagalool Lodh & Anr. v. State of U.P., AIR 2011 SC 2292; and Dhari & Ors. v. State of U. P., AIR 2013 SC 308).

12. In State of Rajasthan v. Smt. Kalki & Anr. AIR 1981 SC 1390, this Court held:

"5A. As mentioned above the High Court has declined to rely on the evidence of P.W. 1 on two grounds: (1) she was a "highly interested" witness because she "is the wife of the deceased".....For, in the circumstances of the case, she was the only and most natural witness; she was the only person present in the hut with the deceased at the time of the occurrence, and the only person who saw the occurrence. True it is she is the wife of the deceased; but she cannot be called an 'interested' witness. She is related to the deceased. 'Related' is not equivalent to 'interested. A witness may be called 'interested' only when he or she derives some benefit from the result of a litigation; in the decree in a civil case, or in seeing an accused person punished. A witness who is a natural one and is the only possible eye witness in the circumstances of a case cannot be said to be 'interested'. In the instant case P.W.1 had no interest in protecting the real culprit, and falsely implicating the respondents." (Emphasis added) (See also: Chakali Maddilety & Ors. v. State of A. P., AIR 2010 SC 3473).

13. In Sachchey Lal Tiwari v. State of U.P., AIR 2004 SC 5039, while dealing with the case this Court held:

"7. .....Murders are not committed with previous notice to witnesses; soliciting their presence. If murder is committed in a dwelling house, the inmates of the house are natural witnesses. If murder is committed in a street, only passers-by will be witnesses. Their evidence cannot be brushed aside or viewed with suspicion on the ground that they are mere 'chance witnesses'. The expression 'chance witness' is borrowed from countries where every man's home is considered his castle and everyone must have an explanation for his presence elsewhere or in another man's castle. It is quite unsuitable an expression in a country where people are less formal and more casual, at any rate in the matter explaining their presence."

14. In view of the above, it can safely be held that natural witnesses may not be labelled as interested witnesses. Interested witnesses are those who want to derive some benefit out of the litigation/case. In case the circumstances reveal that a witness was present on the scene of the occurrence and had witnessed the crime, his deposition cannot be discarded merely on the ground of being closely related to the victim/deceased."

43. Therefore, in such circumstances though the prosecution witnesses are related to each other but on the ground of their relationship alone it cannot be accepted that the testimonies of the prosecution witnesses are tainted and unreliable and they are interested witnesses. The contention of the learned counsel for the appellants is thoroughly misconceived and is rejected.

44. The learned counsel for the accused-appellants next submitted that the incident was triggered on account of grave and sudden provocation offered by the prosecution witnesses and therefore, the accused were entitled to the benefit of exception to sub section (2) of Section 300 I.P.C. The submission is that P.W.-1 in his testimony has stated that on the date of the incident i.e. 14.11.1991 he alongwith his other companions had gone to plot no. 580 for the first time to cultivate the same. He has also referred to the statement of P.W.-3 Manoj Kumar wherein the P.W.-3 has also stated that till the date of the incident the informant and others had not taken possession of the plot no. 580 in question and therefore, submits that on the date of the incident itself the informant and his companions had gone to the plot in question for the first time with the intention to take possession of the same and it was to prevent them from taking forcible possession that the incident occurred in the heat of the matter. Reference has been made to the provisions of Section 101, 103 and 105 of the Evidence Act, 1872 which read as under:-

"101. Burden of proof.--Whoever desires any Court to give judgment as to any legal right or liability dependent on the existence of facts which he asserts, must prove that those facts exist. When a person is bound to prove the existence of any fact, it is said that the burden of proof lies on that person.

102.....

103. Burden of proof as to particular fact.--The burden of proof as to any particular fact lies on that person who wishes the Court to believe in its existence, unless it is provided by any law that the proof of that fact shall lie on any particular person.

104.....

105. Burden of proving that case of accused comes within exceptions.--When a person is accused of any offence, the burden of proving the existence of circumstances bringing the case within any of the General Exceptions in the Indian Penal Code, (45 of 1860), or within any special exception or proviso contained in any other part of the same Code, or in any law defining the offence, is upon him, and the Court shall presume the absence of such circumstances."

45. We may also note that what emerges from the testimony of the witnesses of fact (P.W.-1 and P.W.-3) is that there was some litigation with regard to plot no. 580 between members of the prosecution party on one hand and Nathu Ram and accused appellants on the other, and that the prosecution had won a case with regard to the said plot. No doubt the testimony of both the prosecution witnesses P.W.-1 and P.W.-3 would indicate that they had gone to the said plot for the first time to take possession thereof. P.W.-1 has stated he along with his companions went to the plot in question for the first time to plough the same and P.W.-3 has stated that prior to the incident they were not in possession of the said plot but having won a case with regard to the said land it can be expected of them to have gone to the field to plough the same on the basis of such decision. The fact that when the informant and the witnesses of fact were ploughing the field the accused persons came to the plot armed with weapons has been clearly narrated by the prosecution witnesses in their testimonies. The witnesses have stated that Nath Ram was armed with a Kanta and country made pistol, Diwari Lal was armed with ballam (spear) and country made pistol, Dinesh Chandra was armed with country made pistol, Viresh Chandra was armed with a Kanta and Pharsa, Sarvesh was armed with Kanta and tamancha, Nihal was armed with gun and Kusum was carrying a Jhola (bag) and armed with Lathi/Danda. The injuries sustained by the P.W.-1, P.W.2, P.W.-3 and the deceased Ramesh Chand, have been proved by prosecution witnesses Dr. H.N. Singh, Dr. K.K. Sharma and Dr. B.S. Bisaria, and in the opinion of the doctors the injuries sustained by the injured and the deceased could have been caused by the weapons carried by the accused persons. At this point we may refer to the statement of the accused persons recorded under section 313 Cr.P.C. None of the accused-appellants in their statement have taken the plea of private defence. It is clearly notable that none of the accused in their statement have anywhere stated that the informant and the others were also carrying *lathi*s, dandas or even lethal weapons. Nowhere in their statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. have they stated that they were first attacked by the informant and other prosecution witnesses or by the deceased.

46. The learned counsel for the accused-appellants at this stage, referred to the judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of Yogendra Morarji Vs State of Gujarat, (1980) 2 SCC 218. The relevant paragraphs 14, 15 and 16 of the said judgment read as under:-

"14. Before coming to the facts of the instant case, the principles governing the burden of proof where the accused sets up a plea of private defence, may also be seen, Section 105, Evidence Act enacts an exception to the general rule whereby in a criminal trial the burden of proving everything necessary to establish the charge against the accused beyond reasonable doubt, rests on the prosecution. According to the section, the burden of proving the existence of circumstances bringing the case within any of the General Exceptions in the Indian Penal Code*; or within any special exception or proviso contained in any other part of* the Code or in any other Law, shall be on the accused person, and the Court shall presume the absence of such circumstances. But this Section does not neutralise or shift the general burden that lies on the prosecution to prove beyond reasonable doubt all the ingredients of the offence with which the accused stand charged. Therefore, where the charge about the accused is one of culpable homicide, the prosecution must prove beyond all manner of reasonable doubt that the accused caused the death with the requisite knowledge or intention described in Section 299 of the Penal Code. It is only after the prosecution so discharges its initial traditional burden establishing the complicity of the accused, that the question whether or not the accused had acted in the exercise of his right of private defence, arises. As pointed out by the Court in Dahyabhai v. State of Gujarat , under Section 105, read with the definition of "shall presume" in Section 5, Evidence Act, the Court shall regard the absence of circumstances on the basis of which the benefit of an Exception (such as the one on which right of private defence is claimed), as proved unless, after considering the matters before it, it believes that the said circumstances existed or their existence was so probable that a prudent man ought, under the circumstances of the particular case, to act upon the supposition that they did exist. The accused has to rebut the presumption envisaged in the last limb of Section 105, by bringing on record evidential material before the Court sufficient for a prudent man to believe that the existence of such circumstances is probable. In other words, even under Section 105, the standard of proof required to establish those circumstances is that of a prudent man as laid down in Section 3, Evidence Act. But within that standard there are degrees of probability, and that is why under Section 105, the nature of burden on an accused person claiming the benefit of an Exception, is not as onerous as the general burden of proving the charge beyond reasonable doubt cast on the prosecution. The accused may discharge his burden by establishing a mere balance of probabilities in his favour with regard to the said circumstances.

15. The material before the Court to establish such a preponderance of probability in favour of the defence plea may consist of oral or documentary evidence, admissions appearing in evidence led by the prosecution or elicited from prosecution witnesses in cross-examination presumptions, and the statement of the accused recorded under Section 313 of the CrPC, 1973.

16. Notwithstanding the failure of the accused to establish positively the existence of circumstances which would bring his case within an Exception, the circumstances proved by him may raise a reasonable doubt with regard to one or more of the necessary ingredients of the offence itself with which the accused stands charged. Thus, there may be cases where, despite the failure of the accused to discharge his burden under Section 105, the material brought on the record may, in the totality of the facts and circumstances of the case, be enough to induce in the mind of the Court a reasonable doubt with regard to the mens rea requisite for an offence under Section 299 of the Code (See Dahyabhai v. State of Gujarat (ibid) State of U. P. v. Ram Swarup , Pratap v. State of U.P. .

47. What is laid down in that judgement is that the prosecution must first prove its case before a plea of private defence can be set up by the accused and then examined by the court. In the present case, we find that the informant along with other injured as well as the deceased had gone to the plot no. 580 to plough the same. They were ten in number. A question has been raised by the defence as to why so many persons were required to plough the field and that this alone would show that their intention was to create disturbance and take forcible possession of the said plot and that they had gone to the field well prepared for eventuality.

48. We are not inclined to believe the submission of the learned counsel for the appellants for the reason that the plot in question measured 11 bighas which is a very large plot, as stated by prosecution witnesses and therefore, it can be accepted that ten people had gone there to plough the field in question. It is also to be noted that the prosecution witnesses have very specifically and clearly stated in their testimonies that they had gone to the field in question to plough the same alongwith two ploughs, bullocks and buffalo. They have further deposed that while two persons were ploughing the field by two ploughs other persons were cleaning the field and removing the grass and some persons were there to help them since the field was measuring 11 bighas.

49. From the statement of P.W.-1, P.W.-2 and P.W.-3 it is clear that none of them or their companions were carrying any weapons and in fact they have clearly stated that they had absolutely no apprehension that they would be stopped from ploughing the field or that an incident of the kind would ensue since so far as they were concerned they had already won the litigation in their favour with regard to the said land. We may also note that the accused in their statements recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. have nowhere stated that the prosecution party was carrying weapons and offered resistance and that therefore, they had to defend themselves and they exercised their right of private defence.

50. The learned counsel for the appellants at this stage, referred to the judgment of the Supreme Court in Moti Singh Vs State of Maharashtra, (2002) 9 SCC 494 and submitted that right of private defence cannot be denied to the accused even if the plea to that effect has not been taken in the examination of the accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. Reference has been made to paragraphs 4, 9, 10, 11 and 12 which read as under:-

"4. Though the appellant did not adopt the right of private defence as a plea in the statement recorded under Section 313 of the Criminal Procedure Code, his co-accused (fifth accused - Jai Singh) put forward a case that the prosecution witnesses and the deceased marched towards their house in retaliation for the earlier incident and launched an attack on the inmates including him.

9. Section 102 of the Indian Penal Code says that the right of private defence of the body commences as soon as a reasonable apprehension of danger to the body arises from an attempt or even a threat to commit any offence though the offence may not have been committed and the right continues as long as such apprehension of danger to the body continues. Section 100 of the Indian Penal Code confers the right of private defence of the body upto the voluntary causing of death or of any other harm to the assailant, if the offence which occasions the exercise of the right, be of any of the acts as may reasonably cause the apprehension that grievous hurt be the consequence of such assault.

10. Regarding the contention that the appellant is disentitled to get the benefit of right of private defence as he failed to make out a plea in that regard we may point out that it would be quite unjust to deny such a right to the accused merely on the ground that he adopted a different line of defence.

If the evidence adduced by the prosecution would indicate that the accused were put under a situation where they could reasonably have apprehended grievous hurt even to one of them, it would be inequitable to deny the right of private defence to the accused merely on the ground that he has adopted a different plea during the trial. The crucial factor is not what the accused pleaded, but whether the accused had the cause to reasonably apprehend such danger. A different plea adopted by the accused would not foreclose the judicial consideration on the existence of such a situation.

11. This Court has stated the above legal position time and again. A three judge bench of this Court in State of U.P. v. Lakhmi has stated thus:

"The law is that burden of proving such an exception is on the accused. But the mere fact that the accused adopted another alternative defence during his examination under Section 313 of the Code without referring to exception I of Section 300 of IPC is not enough to deny him of (he benefit of the exception, if the court can cull out materials from evidence pointing to the existence of circumstances leading to that exception. It is not the law that failure to set up such a defence, would foreclose the right to rely on the exception once and for all. It is axiomatic that burden on the accused to prove any fact can be discharged either through defence evidence or even through prosecution evidence by showing a preponderance of probability".

12. A two judge bench of this Court in Periasami and Anr. v. State of Tamil Nadu has stated thus:

"We may point out that the appellants have not stated, when examined under Section 313 of the Code, that they have acted in exercise of such right. Of course, absence of such a specific plea in the statement is not enough to denude them of the right if the same can be made out otherwise."

51. We find that facts of that case as put forth by co-accused Jai Singh (therein) is that the prosecution witnesses and the deceased marched towards their (accused) houses in retaliation for an earlier incident and launched an attack on the community including him. In that case, it has also been noted that the injuries sustained by accused Jai Singh was caused by the prosecution party armed with blunt objects. We may note that, it is in that context, that even though the plea of private defence was not raised in Section 313 of the Code but the Hon'ble Supreme Court admitted the plea of private defence in view of the grievous injury inflicted to one of the accused. Paragraph 14 of the said jugement reads as under:-

"14. In our considered opinion, the appellant, even if the prosecution version that it was he who inflicted the fatal stab on the deceased is to be accepted as correct, it ended in the exercise of right of private defence.

As the reasonable apprehension that the grievous hurt would have been inflicted to one of the accused cannot be ruled out on the broad probabilities, delineated by the prosecution to the evidence, we are disposed to extend the said right to this appellant. Resultantly the conviction and sentence passed on him cannot be sustained."

52. In the present case, what we find is that neither the plea of private defence has been taken by the accused appellants in their testimony recorded under Section 313 of the Code of Criminal Procedure nor is it the case of the accused that any of the prosecution witnesses were carrying weapons or were otherwise armed and that any injuries had been caused to the accused persons which resulted in retaliation by the accused persons by way of private defence and which resulted in injuries to the prosecution witnesses and death of Ramesh Chand. There is no injury report on record to show any injury being caused to or sustained by any of the accused persons to support the theory of an attack or assault having been launched by the prosecution side which resulted in a retaliation by the accused. In such circumstances, the plea of private defence is neither available nor can be allowed to be raised by the accused in the facts and circumstances of the present case.

53. The learned counsel for the appellants has also referred to the judgement of the Supreme Court in the case of Vajrapu Sambayya Naidu and others Vs State of Andhra Pradesh and Others, (2004) 10 SCC 152. Paragraphs 20 and 21 of the said judgement read as under:-

"20. The trial court came to the conclusion that the members of the defence party though they had a right of private defence of property, had exceeded that right by causing injuries which ultimately resulted in the death of one of the members of the prosecution party. This was on the assumption that the members of the defence party had only a right of private defence of property, which did not entitle them to cause the death of any person in the exercise of that right. Rut the facts of this case disclose that when they sought to exercise their right of private defence of property, they were attacked by the members of the prosecution party and three of them suffered incised wounds. The case of the defence in this regard appears to be probable and therefore though initially the appellants had only the right of private defence of property; once the members of the prosecution party started an assault on them with sharp cutting weapons, that gave rise to the right of private defence of person as well. Since in the circumstances, they must have apprehended that atleast grievous injury may be caused to them, if not death, they were certainly entitled to use reasonable force to resist the members of the prosecution party and their right of private defence extended to causing death of any of the aggressors if that became necessary. Unfortunately, the courts below have not viewed the case from this angle. We are of the view that the appellants were entitled to exercise their right of private defence of property as well as of person in the facts and circumstances of the case.

21. Even assuming that the right of private defence of persons did not accrue to the appellants and that, in fact, they exceeded their right of private defence of property, it has to be seen as to which of the accused exceeded that right. It is well settled that in a case where the court comes to the conclusion that the members of the defence party exceeded the right of private defence, the court must identify and punish only those who have exceeded the right. Section 34/149 IPC will not be applicable in the case of persons exercising their right of private defence. [See : State of Bihar v. Mathu Pandey and Subramani v. State of Tamil Nadu]. For the same reason, the appellants cannot be held guilty of the offence under Section 148 IPC, because nothing is an offence which is done in the exercise of the right of private defence."

54. The facts of the said case itself disclose that the defence party was actually attacked and assaulted by the prosecution with sharp cutting weapons and this gave a reasonable apprehension to the appellants that at least grievous injury may be caused to them if not, death and therefore, they were entitled to use reasonable force to resist the members of the prosecution party which gives the appellants the right to private defence. We find that the facts of the said case are totally different from the facts of the present case and have no application to the present case as we have already noted hereinabove that it is nobody's case herein that the members of the prosecution party were armed with weapons of any kind which may have raised a reasonable apprehension in the minds of the accused-appellants that grievous injury resulting in possible death to one of them would have been caused if they had not exercised their right of private defence. The facts of the case on the other hand are that the prosecution party had gone to the plot no. 580 in question to plough the same, may be for the first time, on the basis of some judgement in their favour and it is when they were ploughing the field that the accused-appellants armed with farsa, ballam (spear), kanta, country made guns, tamancha and hand bomb assaulted the prosecution party resulting in the death of one of the members of the prosecution party namely, Ramesh Chandra and injuries to the other prosecution witnesses. Further the case was decided in favour of prosecution therefore prosecution party was rightful owner of the land as such no question of right of private defence regarding the property arises for the defence.

55. The next judgment relied upon by the learned counsel for the appellants is (2014) 5 SCC 744, State of Rajasthan Vs Manoj Kumar. Relevant paragraphs 15, 15.1, 15.2 and 15.3 read as under:-

"15. The learned counsel for the State next contended that when the accused persons had exceeded their right of private defence and caused the death of the deceased, all of them should have been convicted under Section 302/34 IPC. In this regard, we may refer with profit to certain authorities before we advert to the facts unfurled in the case at hand:

15.1. In Munshi Ram v. Delhi Administration, AIR 1968 SC 702, while dealing with right to private defence, this Court has observed that law does not require a person whose property is forcibly tried to be occupied by trespassers to run away and seek the protection of the authorities, for the right of private defence serves a social purpose and that right should be liberally construed. The Court further stated that such a right not only will be a restraining influence on bad characters but it will encourage the right spirit in a free citizen, because there is nothing more degrading to the human spirit than to run away in the face of peril.

15.2. In Mohd. Ramzani v. State of Delhi, 1980 SCC (Cri) 907 the Court has observed that:

"19. ....It is further well-established that a person faced with imminent peril of life and limb of himself or another, is not expected to weigh in "golden scales" the precise force needed to repel the danger. Even if he in the heat of the moment carries his defence a little further than what would be necessary when calculated with precision and exactitude by a calm and unruffled mind, the law makes due allowance for it."

15.3. In Bhanwar Singh and others v. State of Madhya Pradesh (2008) 16 SCC 657 it has been ruled to the effect that for a plea of right of private defence to succeed in totality, it must be proved that there existed a right to private defence in favour of the accused, and that this right extended to causing death and if the court were to reject the said plea, there are two possible ways in which this may be done, i.e., on one hand, it may be held that there existed a right to private defence of the body, however, more harm than necessary was caused or, alternatively, this right did not extend to causing death and in such a situation it would result in the application of Section 300 Exception 2."

56. In our opinion, the said judgment also has absolutely no application to the facts of the present case. That was a State appeal and the plea of the State was that since all the accused persons had exceeded their right of private defence and caused the death of the deceased all of them should have been convicted under Section 302/34 IPC. The judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of Manoj Kumar has no application to the facts of the present case and is therefore, clearly distinguishable.

57. The learned counsel for the appellants has referred to the judgment of the Supreme Court in Kashi Ram and others Vs State of Madhya Pradesh, (2002) 1 SCC 71. In our opinion, the said judgment has no application to the facts of the present case.

58. The learned counsel for the appellants has also referred to the judgment of the Supreme Court in Bhawar Singh and others Vs State of Madhya Pradesh, (2008) 16 SCC 657. Paragraphs 51 and 52 of which read as under:-

"51. To put it pithily, the right of private defence is a defence right. It is neither a right of aggression or of reprisal. There is no right of private defence where there is no apprehension of danger. The right of private defence is available only to one who is suddenly confronted with the necessity of averting an impending danger not of self creation. Necessity must be present, real or apparent.

52. The basic principle underlying the doctrine of the right of private defence is that when an individual or his property is faced with a danger and immediate aid from the state machinery is not readily available, that individual is entitled to protect himself and his property. That being so, the necessary corollary is that the violence which the citizen defending himself or his property is entitled to use must not be unduly disproportionate to the injury which is sought to be averted or which is reasonably apprehended and should not exceed its legitimate purpose. We may, however, hasten to add that the means and the force a threatened person adopts at the spur of the moment to ward off the danger and to save himself or his property cannot be weighed in golden scales. It is neither possible nor prudent to lay down abstract parameters which can be applied to determine as to whether the means and force adopted by the threatened person was proper or not. Answer to such a question depends upon host of factors like the prevailing circumstances at the spot, his feelings at the relevant time; the confusion and the excitement depending on the nature of assault on him etc. Nonetheless, the exercise of the right of private defence can never be vindictive or malicious. It would be repugnant to the very concept of private defence. {See Dharam v. State of Haryana [2006 (13) SCALE 280]}."

59. In our opinion, the judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of Bhawar Singh (Supra) pithily states the law that right of private defence cannot be treated as a right of aggressor or of reprisal. There is no right of private defence where there is no apprehension of danger. The right of private defence is available only to one who is suddenly confronted with the necessity of averting an impending danger not of self creation. In our opinion, the said judgment supports the case of the prosecution more than the case of the appellants.

60. The learned counsel for the appellants has also placed reliance on the judgment of the Supreme Court in Munshi Ram Vs Delhi Administration, AIR (1968) SC 702 particularly paras 18 and 19 wherein it was held that if the complainant party had invaded the land of the accused and the accused were taken by surprise, law does not require a person whose property is forcibly tried to be occupied by trespassers to run away and seek the protection of the authorities. The right of private defence serves a social purpose and that right should be liberally construed. The said judgment in our opinion has no application to the facts of the present case particularly in view of the ratio of Bhawar Singh (Supra).

61. With regard to the plea of private defence claimed by the accused appellants, the learned AGA has relied on the judgment of the Supreme Court in Rajinder and others Vs State of Haryana, (1995) 5 SCC 187. Paragraphs 19, 20, 21 and 22 of the said judgments read as under:-

"19. Having drawn the above inferences we have now to ascertain whether the unauthorised entry of the complainant party in the disputed land, which according to the trial Court was in settled possession of the accused party legally entitled the latter to exercise their right of private defence and, if so, to what extent. The fascicule of Sections 96 to 106 I.P.C. codify the entire law relating to right of private defence of person and property including the extent of and the limitation to exercise of such right. Section 96 provides that nothing is an offence which is done in the exercise of the right of private defence and Section 97 which defines the area of such exercise reads as under:

"97. Every person has a right, subject to the restrictions contained in section 99, to defend-

First. - His own body, and the body of any other person against any offence affecting the human body:

Secondly, - The property, whether moveable or immoveable, of himself or of any other other person. against any act which is an offence falling under the definition of theft. robbery, mischief or criminal trespass, or which is an attempt to commit theft, robbery, mischief or criminal trespass. (emphasis supplied)

On a plain reading of the above section it is patently clear that the right of private defence, be it to defend person or property, is available against an offence. To put it conversely, there is no right of private defence against any act which is not an offence. In the facts of the instant case the accused party was entitled, in view of Section 97 and, of course, subject to the limitation of Section 99, to exercise their right of private defence of property only if the unauthorised entry of the complainant party in the disputed land amounted to "criminal trespass", as defined under Section 441 I.P.C. The said Section reads as follows:

"Whoever enters into or upon property in the possession of another with intent to commit an offence or to intimidate, insult or annoy any person in possession of such property,

Or having lawfully entered into or upon such property, unlawfully remains there with intent thereby to intimidate, insult or annoy any such person, or with intent to commit an offence, is said to commit "criminal trespass".

21. It is evident from the above provision that unauthorised entry into or upon property in the possession of another or uniawfully remaining there after lawful entry can answer the definition of criminal trespass if, and only if, such entry or unlawful remaining is with the intent to commit an offence or to intimidate insult or annoy the person in possesion of the property. In other words, unless any of the intentions referred in Section 441 is proved no offence of criminal trespass can be said to have been committed. Needless to say, such anintention has to be gathered from the facts and circumstances of a given case. Judged in the light of the above principles it cannot be said that the complainant party committed the offence of "criminal trespass" for they had unauthorisedly entered into the disputed land, which was in possession of the accused party, only to persuade the latter to withdraw thereupon and not with any intention to commit any offence or to insult, intimidate or annoy them. Indeed there is not an iota of material on record to infer any such intention. That necessarily means that the accused party had no right of private defence to property entitling them to launch the murderous attack. On the contrary, such murderous attack not only gave the complainant party the right to strike back in self defence but disentitled the accused to even claim the right of private defence of person.

22. We hasten to add, that even if we had found that the complainant party had criminally tresoassed into the land entitling the accused party to exercise their right of private defence we would not have been justified in disturbing the convictions under Section 302 read with Section 149 I.P.C., for Section 104I.P.C. expressly provides that right of private defence against "criminal trespass" does not extend to the voluntary causing of death and Exception 2 to Section 300 I.P.C. has no manner of application here as the attack by the accused party was premeditated and with an intention of doing more harm than was necessary for the purpose of private defence. Which is evident from the injuries sustained by the three deceased, both regarding severity and number as compared to those received by the four accused persons. However, in that case we might have persuaded purselves to set aside the convictions for the minor offences only: out then that would have been, needless to say, a poor solace to the appellants."

62. We find that the Supreme Court in the said judgment has held that even if the complainant party has committed criminal trespass in the land entitling the accused to exercise their right of private defence, the court would not have been justified in disturbing the convictions under Section 302 read with Section 149 IPC particularly in the light of the provisions of Sections 104 IPC which expressly provides that right of private defence against criminal trespass does not extend to voluntarily causing of death.

63. We may also refer to the judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of Abid Vs State of U.P., 2009 (66) ACC 737 (SC). The facts in that case were that the accused persons were aggressors. D-1 and D-2 were unarmed when they asked the accused persons as to why they had harvested the standing crop. Assuming that the accused persons therein had purchased the agricultural land from one Gheesey through a registered sale deed and they were in possession but there was no justifiable reason for them to attack D-1 and D-2 with deadly weapons like ballam, gandasa and *lathi*s even if, D-1 and D-2 had questioned them about harvesting the crop. The Supreme Court held that in the circumstances, the trial court as well as High Court could not be said to have committed any error in not accepting the plea of private defence. Paragraphs 24, 25,

26 and 27 of the said judgment reads as under:-

"24. That it is for the accused to establish plea of private defence is well settled. The plea of self-defence, is not required to be proved by the accused beyond reasonable doubt. What is required of the Court is to examine the probabilities in appreciating such a plea. Nevertheless, the accused has to probablise the defence set up by it. In the present case, the accused has miserably failed to establish, much less probablise, right of private defence. As a matter of fact, the evidence on record shows that the accused persons were aggressors. D-1 and D-2 were unarmed when they asked accused persons as to why they had harvested the standing crop. Assuming that the accused persons had purchased the agricultural land from Gheesey by registered sale deed and they were in possession but there was no justifiable reason for them to attack D-1 and D-2 with deadly weapons like ballam, gadasa and lathis, even if D-1 and D-2 questioned them about harvesting the crop. In the facts and circumstances of the case, there is no scope for any right of private defence as D-1 and D-2 had neither put the person nor the property of the accused in peril.

25. In our considered view, the trial court as well as the High Court cannot be said to have committed any error in not accepting the plea of private defence.

26.The deadly weapons with which appellants were armed and large number of injuries inflicted on D-1 and D-2 clearly show that the appellants shared common object of committing murder. That the accused persons were more than five and formed unlawful assembly is amply established. D-1 and D-2 died on the spot. The conviction of the accused under Section 302 read with 149 IPC does not suffer from any legal flaw.

27. The result of the foregoing discussion is that both appeals must fail and are dismissed."

64. In the present case, we find that though the prosecution party were ten in number but they were completely unarmed. They had gone to the field in question may be for the first time, to plough the same. It was a very big plot measuring about 11 bighas and therefore, two ploughs drawn by bullocks and buffaloes were required and other members of the party were involved in cleaning the ground and removing the grass. The prosecution party had gone there as they had won a case against the accused. The witnesses of fact have stated that as there was a judgment in their favour they had no apprehension of any assault from the accused party or from anybody. The accused appellants came there armed with deadly weapons like *farsa, kanta, ballam (spear), guns, tamancha and hand bomb*s and immediately on arriving on the plot the accused Kusuma Appellant no.6 threw a hand bomb on Ramesh Chandra resulting in his instantaneous death. Rest of the prosecution witnesses were assaulted by other weapons which is borne out from their injury report. Not a single injury is reported to have been caused to the accused party (appellants) to even remotely suggest that the members of the prosecution party were also armed with weapons. No such injury report has been brought on record by the accused appellants, therefore, in the circumstances the plea of private defence raised by the accused appellants must necessarily be rejected.

65. The Supreme Court in Avtar Singh Vs State of Haryana, 2012 (79) ACC 699, held that the role played by the accused in causing serious injuries on the deceased and the injured witnesses and the other persons being found proved, the same does not call for any interference. If once that conclusion is irresistible the only other question to be considered was the plea of self-defence raised on behalf of the appellants and in this context the conclusion of the trial court in holding that it was the accused party who had attacked the complainant party and thereby the complainant party cannot be held to be aggressors was perfectly justified.

66. The learned counsel for the appellants next submitted that the deceased Ramesh Chandra died as a result of bomb injuries sustained by him thrown by Kusuma and therefore, the case of Kusuma should have been distinguished and separated from that of the other accused and that the accused-appellants other than Kusuma ought not have been convicted under Section 302/34 IPC as they had no such intention to cause the death of Ramesh Chandra.

67. In the present case, we may refer to certain facts of the case. The accused persons were armed with weapons as attributed to them in the testimony of the prosecution witnesses. The accused Kusuma was carrying a hand bomb in a bag and it was he who threw the bomb which struck Ramesh Chandra resulting in his instantaneous death. It has come in the testimony of the witnesses that Kusuma was in no way related to any of the accused or any of the members of the prosecution party. There is no enmity between the prosecution party and Kusuma. Kusuma used to purchase milk from the village and take it to sell it in Barthana, Etawa. He also used to run a Pan shop in the village. The submission of the learned counsel is not acceptable and is liable to be rejected for the reason that none of the members of the prosecution party was carrying any arms at the time when the incident happened. They had gone to the field to plough the same may be for the first time, on the basis of a judgment in their favour. The accused came their armed with pharsa, ballam (spear), kanta, country made guns, tamancha and one of the accused Kusum Singh was also carrying hand bomb in a bag (jhola). In the given facts and circumstances, it could hardly be assumed that the accused did not come to the field at 7:00 in the morning, armed with weapons as mentioned above, not to cause grievous injuries which would likely result in death of one or other members of the prosecution party. It is another matter that the injury no.1 sustained by the deceased Ramesh Chandra is a blast injury, injury no. 2,3 and 5 are lacerated wounds and injury no.4 is an abrasion. The Doctor who conducted the postmortem P.W.-5 testified that the cause of death was due to shock and excess bleeding due to injuries sustained by the deceased. To a question put by the defence counsel the witness P.W.-5 has stated that it is possible that the blast injury could have been caused by a hand bomb. The injury no. 1 is a blast injury which has caused fatal injuries to the deceased on his head and that his bone of the nose and the frontal bone of the head has been completely broken. In the circumstances, it also cannot be presumed that injuries no. 2,3,4 and 5 could not have been caused to the deceased by the weapons being carried by the other accused other than accused Kusuma Singh. The fact that all the accused came to the plot armed with such weapons as they were carrying and the fact that they also used those weapons and assaulted the members of the prosecution party with the same, resulting in the death of Ramesh Chandra and injuries to other prosecution witnesses clearly shows that they came with the common intention to cause grievous injuries and even death and therefore, in the circumstances, in our opinion, the case of the other accused is in no manner distinguishable from the act of the accused Kusuma Singh.

68. We may look at the matter from another angle. The accused Kusuma, appellant no. 6 was in no way concerned with the plot no. 580; he was in no way concerned with the members of the prosecution party, yet the other accused brought him at 7:00 am armed with hand bomb; the intention could only have been to use the same with the full knowledge that the same can cause death and therefore, in our opinion, the particular act of the other accused cannot be distinguished from the act of accused Kusuma and therefore, the judgement of the Supreme Court in the case of State of Rajasthan Vs. Manoj Kumar(supra) has no application to the present case.

69. The learned counsel for the appellants next referred to the judgment of the Supreme Court in Samsul Haque Vs State of Assam passed in Criminal Appeal no. 1905 of 2009 with Criminal Appeal no. 246 of 2011 and submitted that incriminating material was not put to the defendant appellants during trial, therefore, the defendants did not have adequate opportunity to rebut such material. Paragraphs 21, 22 and 23 of the judgment read as under:-

"21. The most vital aspect, in our view, and what drives the nail in the coffin in the case of the prosecution is the manner in which the court put the case to accused No.9, and the statement recorded under Section 313 of the Cr.P.C. To say the least it is perfunctory.

22. It is trite to say that, in view of the judgments referred to by the learned Senior Counsel, aforesaid, the incriminating material is to be put to the accused so that the accused gets a fair chance to defend himself. This is in recognition of the principles of audi alteram partem. Apart from the judgments referred to aforesaid by the learned Senior Counsel, we may usefully refer to the judgment of this Court in Asraf Ali v. State of Assam (2008) 16 SCC 328. The relevant observations are in the following paragraphs:

"21. Section 313 of the Code casts a duty on the Court to put in an enquiry or trial questions to the accused for the purpose of enabling him to explain any of the circumstances appearing in the evidence against him. It follows as necessary corollary therefrom that each material circumstance appearing in the evidence against the accused is required to be put to him specifically, distinctly and separately and failure to do so amounts to a serious irregularity vitiating trial, if it is shown that the accused was prejudiced.

22. The object of Section 313 of the Code is to establish a direct dialogue between the Court and the accused. If a point in the evidence is important against the accused, and the conviction is intended to be based upon it, it is right and proper that the accused should be questioned about the matter and be given an opportunity of explaining it. Where no specific question has been put by the trial Court on an inculpatory material in the prosecution evidence, it would vitiate the trial. Of course, all these are subject to rider whether they have caused miscarriage of justice or prejudice. This Court also expressed similar view in S.

Harnam Singh v. The State (AIR 1976 SC 2140), while dealing with Section 342 of the Criminal Procedure Code, 1898 (corresponding to Section 313 of the Code). Non- indication of inculpatory material in its relevant facets by the trial Court to the accused adds to vulnerability of the prosecution case. Recording of a statement of the accused under Section 313 is not a purposeless exercise."

23. While making the aforesaid observations, this Court also referred to its earlier judgment of the three Judge Bench in Shivaji Sahabrao Bobade v. State of Maharashtra*(1973) 2 SCC 793 , which considered the fall out of the omission to put to the accused a question on a vital circumstance appearing against him in the prosecution evidence, and the requirement that the accused's attention should be drawn to every inculpatory material so as to enable him to explain it. Ordinarily, in such a situation, such material as not put to the accused must be eschewed. No doubt, it is recognised, that where there is a perfunctory examination under* Section 313 of the Cr.P.C., the matter is capable of being remitted to the trial court, with the direction to retry from the stage at which the prosecution was closed."

70. The learned counsel submitted that the questions put to the accused during trial and their statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. are absolutely identical in nature and no question has been put to any of the accused with regard to causing the death of Ramesh Chandra and therefore, a vital question in this regard has not been put to any of the accused. In support of these submissions, the learned counsel has also relied upon a judgment of the Supreme Court in Asraf Ali Vs State of Assam, (2008) 16 SCC 328. Paragraphs 15, 16, 17 and 18 of which read as under:-

"15. What is the object of examination of an accused under Section 313 of the Code? The section itself declares the object in explicit language that it is "for the purpose of enabling the accused personally to explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence against him". In Jai Dev v. State of Punjab (AIR1963 SC 612) Gajendragadkar, J. (as he then was) speaking for a three-Judge Bench has focussed on the ultimate test in determining whether the provision has been fairly complied with. He observed thus:

"The ultimate test in determining whether or not the accused has been fairly examined under Section 342 would be to inquire whether, having regard to all the questions put to him, he did get an opportunity to say what he wanted to say in respect of prosecution case against him. If it appears that the examination of the accused person was defective and thereby a prejudice has been caused to him, that would no doubt be a serious infirmity."

16. Thus it is well settled that the provision is mainly intended to benefit the accused and as its corollary to benefit the court in reaching the final conclusion.

17. At the same time it should be borne in mind that the provision is not intended to nail him to any position, but to comply with the most salutary principle of natural justice enshrined in the maxim audi alteram partem. The word "may" in clause (a) of sub-section(1) in Section 313 of the Code indicates, without any doubt, that even if the court does not put any question under that clause the accused cannot raise any grievance for it. But if the court fails to put the needed question under clause (b) of the sub-section it would result in a handicap to the accused and he can legitimately claim that no evidence, without affording him the opportunity to explain, can be used against him. It is now well settled that a circumstance about which the accused was not asked to explain cannot be used against him.

18. In certain cases when there is perfunctory examination under Section 313 of the Code, the matter is remanded to the trial Court, with a direction to re-try from the stage at which the prosecution was closed."

71. The submission is that questions which have been put to the accused under section 313 Cr.P.C. is that the accused carried out the assault on the members of the prosecution party with the intention to cause the death of Akhilesh Kumar. The submission of the learned counsel is that no question was put to any of the accused with regard to death of Ramesh Chandra being caused by any of them and therefore, there was a vital lapse in the entire trial and that the accused were denied an opportunity to defend themselves since it was not Akhilesh Singh who had died but it was Ramesh Chandra who had died whereas the question put to the accused during trial was that the act of accused had resulted in the death of Akhilesh Singh. In this context, we may refer to the question no.1 which was actually put to the accused Brijendra under Section 313 Cr.P.C and we are not quoting the questions put to the other accused since the questions put to all the accused are of identical wordings.

"प्रश्न 1:- अभियोजन के साक्ष्य में आया है कि दिनांक 14.11.1991 को समय करीब 7 बजे सुबह व स्थान वादी अखिलेश कुमार के हार स्थिति ग्राम भैसई थाना भरथना जिला इटावा में एक विधि विरुद्ध जमाव के सदस्य थे जिसका सामान्य उद्देश्य रमेश चन्द्र की हत्या करना था और उस समय घातक आयुध से लैस थे तथा आपने वादी अखिलेश कुमार आदि पर जान से मारने की नियत से फायर किया जिससे उसकी मृत्यु हो गयी। इस सम्बन्ध में आपको क्या कहना है। उत्तर:- गलत है।"

72. A reading of the question no.1 would show that the question which was put to the accused was that 'had they not come to the disputed plots in question on 14.11.1991 at 7:00 in the morning with the common object alongwith other co-accused persons to commit murder of Ramesh Chandra armed with lethal weapons and had fired upon the informant Akhilesh Kumar with the intention to kill him and that they had assaulted Akhilesh Kumar, the informant and others with the intention to cause his death. It is these lines "cause his death" which is being interpreted by the learned counsel for the appellants to submit that the question which was put to the appellants was that they came to cause the death of Akhilesh Kumar although Akhilesh had not died but had only received injuries with a blunt object as per medical report. The submission of the learned counsel can be out-rightly rejected for the reason that the question put to the accused-appellants specifically was that 'they had come on the date and time of the incident at the disputed site with a common object to cause the murder of Ramesh Chandra armed with lethal weapons and had also fired upon Akhilesh Kumar and others resulting in the death of Ramesh Chandra.' This clearly indicates that the question put to the accused related to the murder of Ramesh Chandra and does not suggest that Akhilesh Kumar was the person who had been murdered because with reference to Akhilesh Kumar the word "aadi" has also been used and it is not to suggest that all the members of the prosecution party had died but that the murder was of Ramesh Chandra and the intention was to cause the murder of Ramesh Chandra. The question put to the accused has to be read as a whole and not by splitting it to distort its intent and meaning. Therefore, in our opinion, the judgement referred to by the learned counsel for the appellants in the case of Samsul Haq (supra) and Asraf Ali (supra) have no application to the facts of the present case.

73. The learned counsel for the appellants next submitted that the entire story of there being a dispute between the members of the prosecution party and the appellants is a concocted story and the land always belonged to Nathu Ram and other accused and therefore, there was no motive to commit the murder.

74. On the question of motive, we may reject the submission of the learned counsel for the appellants out right on the ground that this was a day light murder having being executed at 7:00 in the morning on 14.11.1991 and there were also injured eye witnesses of the said incident and they have specifically and very clearly narrated the incident in their testimony. Therefore when there are injured and impeachable eye witness account of a day light incident motive becomes irrelevant.

75. In the case of Shardul Singh Vs. State of Haryana (2002) 8 SCC 372, it has been held that :-

"motive', which is not always capable of precise proof, if proved, may lead additional support to strengthen the probability of the commission of the offence by the person accused but the absence of motive does not ipso facto warrant an acquittal."

76. Similarly, in the case of Ravindra Kumar Vs. State of Punjab, (2001) 7 SCC 690, the Apex Court has held that-

"It is generally an impossible task for the prosecution to prove what precisely would have impelled the murderers to kill a particular person. All that prosecution in many cases could point to is the possible mental element which could have been the cause for the murder. It is therefore not possible to change the tide on account of the inability of the prosecution to prove the motive aspect to the hilt.

77. Similarly in the case of State of U.P. Vs. Baburam (2000) 4 SCC 515 it has been held that-

"It is not possible to accept the view that motive may not be very much material in cases depending on direct evidence whereas motive is material only when the case depends upon circumstantial evidence. There is no legal warrant for making such a hiatus in criminal cases as for the motive for committing the crime. Motive is a relevant factor in all criminal cases whether based on the testimony of eyewitnesses or circumstantial evidence. The question in this regard is whether the prosecution must fail because it failed to prove the motive or even whether inability to prove motive would be weaken the prosecution to any would be well and good for it, particularly in a case depending on circumstantial evidence, for such motive could then be counted as one of the circumstances. However, it is generally in a difficult area for any prosecution to bring on record what was in the mind of the respondent. Even if the investigating officer would have succeeded in knowing it through interrogations that cannot be put in evidence by them due to the ban imposed by law. When the prosecution succeeded in showing the possibility of some ire for the accused towards the victim, the inability to further put on record the manner in which such ire would have swelled up in the mind of offender to such a degree as to impel him to commit the murder cannot be construed as a fatal weakness of the prosecution."

78. Similarly, in the case Thaman Kumar Vs. State of Union Territory of Chandigarh, (2003) 6 SCC 380, it has been held that-

"There is no such principle or rule of law that where the prosecution fails to prove the motive for commission of the crime, it must necessarily result in acquittal of the accused. Where the ocular evidence is found to be trustworthy and reliable and finds corroboration from the medical evidence, a finding of guilt can safely be recorded even if the motive for the commission of the crime has not been proved. Hence in the facts and circumstances of the case, the absence of any evidence on the point of motive cannot have any such impact so as to discard the other reliable evidence available on record which unerringly establishes the guilt of the accused."

79. Similarly, in the case of Yunis alias Kariya Vs. State of M.P. (2003) 1 SCC 425, it has been held that-

"Failure to prove motive for crime in our view is of no consequence. The role of the accused persons in the crime stands clearly established. The ocular evidence is very clear and convincing in this case. The illegal acts of the accused persons have resulted in the death of a young boy of 18 years. It is settled law that establishment of motive is not a sine qua non for proving the prosecution case."

80. In (1973) 3 SCC 219 (Shivaji Genu Mohite Vs. The State of Mahrashtra) the Supreme Court in paragraph 12 has held as under:

"12. As stated earlier, the fact that the prosecution in a given case has been able to discover a sufficient motive or not cannot weigh against the testimony of any eye-witness. Evidence as to motive would, no doubt, go a long way in cases wholly dependent on circumstantial evidence. Such evidence would form one of the links in the chain of circumstantial evidence in such a case. But that would not be so in cases where there are eye-witnesses of credibility, though even in such case if a motive is properly proved such proof would strengthen the prosecution case and fortify the court in its ultimate conclusion. But that does not mean that if a motive is not established the evidence of any eye-witness is rendered untrustworthy."

81. In (2017) 11 SCC 120 (Rajagopal Vs. Muthupandi alias Thavakkalai and Others) the Supreme Court in paragraph 14 has held as under:

"14. Equally, it is well established that motive does not have to be established where there is direct evidence. Given the brutal assault made on PW-1 by criminals, the fact that witnesses have turned hostile can also cut both ways, as is well known in criminal jurisprudence."

82. Learned counsel for the appellants then submitted that the description of injuries by injured Akhilesh Kumar, informant P.W.-1 is contradictory. We may note here that minor discrepancies in statements of witnesses will not vitiate the trial. The Supreme Court in the case of State of U.P. Vs M.K. Anthony, (1985) 1

SCC 505, in paragraph 10 has held as under:-

"10. While appreciating the evidence of a witness, the approach must be whether the evidence of the witness read as a whole appears to have a ring of truth. Once that impression is formed, it is undoubtedly necessary for the court to scrutinise the evidence more particularly keeping in view the deficiencies, draw-backs and infirmities pointed out in the evidence as a whole and evaluate them to find out whether it is against the general tenor of the evidence given by the witness and whether the earlier evaluation of the evidence is shaken as to render it unworthy of belief. Minor discrepancies on trivial matters not touching the core of the case, hyper-technical approach by taking sentences torn out of context here or there from the evidence, attaching importance to some technical error committed by the investigating officer not going to the : root of the matter would not ordinarily permit rejection of the evidence as a whole. If the court before whom the witness gives evidence had the opportunity to form the opinion about the general tenor of evidence given by the witness, the appellate court which had not this benefit will have to attach due weight to the appreciation of evidence by the trial court and unless there are reasons weighty and formidable it would not be proper to reject the evidence on the ground of minor variations or infirmities in the matter of trivial details. Even honest and truthful witnesses may differ in some details unrelated to the main incident because power of observation, retention and reproduction differ with individuals. Cross examination is an unequal duel between a rustic and refined lawyer. Having examined the evidence of this witness, a friend and well-wisher of the family carefully giving due weight to the comments made by the learned Counsel for the respondent and the reasons assigned to by the High Court for rejecting his evidence simultaneously keeping in view the appreciation of the evidence of this witness by the trial court, we have no hesitation in holding that the High Court was in error in rejecting the testimony of witness Nair whose evidence appears to us trustworthy and credible.

83. The Supreme Court in the case of Gangabhavani v. Rayapati Venkat Reddy, AIR 2013 SC 3681, on the issue of contradictions in evidence has held as under:-

"CONTRADICTIONS IN EVIDENCE:

9. In State of U.P. v. Naresh, (2011) 4 SCC 324, this Court after considering a large number of its earlier judgments held:

"In all criminal cases, normal discrepancies are bound to occur in the depositions of witnesses due to normal errors of observation, namely, errors of memory due to lapse of time or due to mental disposition such as shock and horror at the time of occurrence. Where the omissions amount to a contradiction, creating a serious doubt about the truthfulness of the witness and other witnesses also make material improvement while deposing in the court, such evidence cannot be safe to rely upon. However, minor contradictions, inconsistencies, embellishments or improvements on trivial matters which do not affect the core of the prosecution case, should not be made a ground on which the evidence can be rejected in its entirety. The court has to form its opinion about the credibility of the witness and record a finding as to whether his deposition inspires confidence.

Exaggerations per se do not render the evidence brittle. But it can be one of the factors to test credibility of the prosecution version, when the entire evidence is put in a crucible for being tested on the touchstone of credibility.

Therefore, mere marginal variations in the statements of a witness cannot be dubbed as improvements as the same may be elaborations of the statement made by the witness earlier. The omissions which amount to contradictions in material particulars i.e. go to the root of the case/materially affect the trial or core of the prosecution's case, render the testimony of the witness liable to be discredited." A similar view has been re-iterated by this Court in Tehsildar Singh & Anr. v. State of U.P., AIR 1959 SC 1012; Pudhu Raja & Anr. v. State, Rep. by Inspector of Police, JT 2012 (9) SC 252; and Lal Bahadur v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2013) 4 SCC 557).

10. Thus, it is evident that in case there are minor contradictions in the depositions of the witnesses the same are bound to be ignored as the same cannot be dubbed as improvements and it is likely to be so as the statement in the court is recorded after an inordinate delay. In case the contradictions are so material that the same go to the root of the case, materially affect the trial or core of the prosecution case, the court has to form its opinion about the credibility of the witnesses and find out as to whether their depositions inspire confidence.

84. The learned counsel for the appellants lastly submitted that the Site Plan Ext. Ka.9 does not show where the accused were alleged to be standing and therefore, the entire prosecution story is manufactured and concocted.

85. The Investigating Officer has proved the site plan Ext.Ka.9 prepared on 14.11.1991 itself which clearly shows the plot "C" where the quarrel occurred and just below it to the South is the plot "D" which is the plot of Nirbal Singh and the plot where the body of the deceased was found is marked by "+". The arrows which come from North in the Southerly direction show the same to be coming from Shiv Mandir and houses to the North therein which are marked as "houses of the accused" and after crossing the entire plot "C" which is a large plot, the arrows turn to the east to plot "C". Thus, we find no reason to doubt the site plan although the submission of the learned counsel for the appellants is that the places where the accused persons were standing have not been indicated in the site plan but we may add that in a case of this nature where a sudden attack and assault was launched by the accused persons upon the members of the prosecution party and the prosecution witnesses of fact have also stated that accused were standing all around the field and moving and attacking and they were eight in number, the mere fact that the presence of individual accused persons at a particular spot has not been shown in the site plan would not be fatal to the trial or to induce us to disbelieve the prosecution case.

86. For reasons aforesaid, we do not find any illegality or infirmity in the judgment of the trial court and the same is upheld.

87. The appeal lacks merit and is accordingly dismissed.

88. The appellants Diwari Lal, Dinesh Chandra, Viresh Chandra, Shiva Singh, Nihal Singh and Kusuma are on bail.

C.J.M. Etawah is directed to take them into custody in the aforesaid case and send them to jail to serve out the sentences, awarded by the trial court and affirmed by us.

89. Office is directed to send a copy of this order to the court concerned within a week for compliance. The compliance report shall be sent by the court concerned to this court within a further period of fifteen days.

1. Heard Sri Surendra Bahadur Singh learned Advocate on behalf of the appellant, Sri L.D. Rajbhar and Sri Prem Shankar Mishra learned Additional Government Advocates on behalf of the State and perused the record.

2. The present appeal is directed against the judgment and order dated 28.7.1997 in Sessions Trial No. 185 of 1996 (State vs. Smt. Sohbatti Devi), arising out of Case Crime No. 07 of 1996, under Section 302/201 I.P.C., Police Station-Bakhira, District- Basti by which the appellant Smt. Sohbatti wife of Sri Ram Nath, resident of Village Bardad, Police Station Bakhira, District Basti has been convicted for offence under Section 302 I.P.C. and sentenced for life imprisonment and for the offence under Section 201 I.P.C. convicted and sentenced for five years. Both the sentences are directed to run concurrently.

The events in the prosecution story go on as under:-

3. A missing report dated 13.1.1996 was lodged by Smt. Kumari Devi wife of Phoolbadan, resident of Village Bardad, Police Station Bakhira, District Basti to state that her son Rajendra aged about 5 years had gone missing around 6:00 PM on 12.1.1996. She alongwith other villagers had searched for the child but they could not find him.

4. A first information report dated 16.1.1996 scribed by Rajdev Yadav son of Ramkewal Yadav was lodged by Smt. Kumari Devi wife of Phoolbadan to state that his missing son was found dead and his dead body was recovered after much efforts from a pond behind her house at around 10:00 AM on 16.1.1996 itself. The body was recovered with the help of villagers named as Janardan son of Ram Bachan, Ram Chandra son of Shiv Baran, Pradhan Sundar @ Chunnur son of Ghisai and Up-pradhan Jayram son of Manohar. She raised suspicion that her sister-in-law Sohbatti wife of Ram Nath had murdered her son Rajendra and concealed his dead body in the pond. The motive for murder as narrated therein was to grab all landed property of the first informant. It is stated that whenever there was altercation between the first informant and her sister-in-law, the accused used to threaten that she would kill both the first informant and her son. The report further states that body of the child (her son) after recovery had been kept besides the pond. The said written report was exhibited as Exhibit 'Ka-1'. The first information report was registered as Chik report (Exhibit Ka-2) at around 02:00 PM on 16.1.1996 under Sections 302/201 IPC. The date and time of the incident as reported therein is 12.1.1996 around 6:00 PM. The search memo dated 16.1.1996 (Exhibit Ka-14) indicates that search was conducted for the accused/appellant but no incriminating article was found nor the accused/appellant was found. 'Exhibit Ka-15' is the memo of receipt of the torch belonging to the witness Phoolmati who stated that she had witnessed the accused with the child (deceased) alive on the day of missing in the light of the torch. The postmortem was conducted on 17.1.2996 at around 3:00 PM. The Doctor had opined the estimated time of murder about three days back.

5. The findings on external examination of the dead body are:-

Average build body of the child about five years. Body covered with dry mud and sand particle. Wrinkles are present on skin at both palm and sole & foot, face cyanosed, Eyes congested, Bloody froth coming from both the nostrils, mud & sand under nails of hand and foot absent rigor mortis passed off from all the four limbs.

Ante mortem injuries:-

(1) Abrasion 1x0.5 cm on bridge of nose 0.5 cm below root of nose, horizontal;

(2) Abrasion 1x0.5 cm on bridge of nose obliquely present 1.0 cm below injury no. 1;

(3) Multiple abrasion in area of 6x1.5 cm on left side of face 2c.m. front of left ear tragus.

(4) Abrasion 2.5 cmx0.5cm on lower lip both sides;

(5) abraded contusion 5x2.5 cm in front of neck 1.5 cm above sternal notch in mid & both sides.

The conditions of internal organs indicated in the report shows the cause of death due to asphyxia as a result of strangulation. The postmortem examination of the deceased child, thus, ruled out possibility of death due to drowning. The homicidal death of the child is proved from the report.

6. As the events go on, the inquest was conducted on 16.1.1996, started around 15:30 hours and ended at 17:10 hours. The clothes found on the dead body were a half shirt, one kurta over it and girdle of black thread (करधनी) tied in the waist.

The police had submitted charge sheet against the appellant after completion of the investigation. The charges framed against the accused were of committing murder and concealing the dead body. The accused denied both the charges and demanded trial. The accused was committed to the Sessions Court for trial.

7. The prosecution had examined 13 witnesses. Amongst them, PW-1, PW-2, PW-3, PW-6, PW-7, PW-9 and PW-10 are witnesses of facts.

8. PW-4 is the constable Prem Shankar Tripathi who was posted in Thana Bakhira at that point of time. He proved that the police reached the spot of the incident on 16.1.1996 at around 4:15 PM and when they reached, dead body was outside the pond (गड़ही). After inquest was completed at around 4:00 PM, he moved from the place of incident with the dead body to the Mortuary. The entry in GD of police lines was made on 16.1.1996 at 11:00 PM and body was handed over to the Doctor in the District Hospital on 17.1.1996 at around 10:00 AM. The postmortem was conducted at around 3:30 PM and till that time, the dead body was intact in the sealed cover and no one had touched the same.

9. PW-5 is the Constable/Moharrir working in the Police Station Bakhira who prepared Chik report and GD entry Rapat No. 19 (time around 14:00 hours) on 16.1.1996 which were exhibited as 'Exhibits Ka-2 and Ka-3'. He states that special report of the case was sent through Rapat No. 20 time at 14:30 hours on 16.1.1996 by another Constable. With regard to the missing report dated 13.1.1996, this witness states that the said report was given by the first informant in writing at the Police Station and was entered in GD Rapat No. 35 at 19:05 hours. He, however, did not prove the GD entry of the said report as it was not brought by him. He states that after the written report of missing dated 13.1.1996, no one was arrested by the police though the Station House Officer visited the place of incident. At the time of lodging of the first information report dated 16.1.1996, Sri Manju Singh Yadav, the S.I. was present.

He moved to the place of occurrence soon after the report was entered in the G.D. He denied any suggestion of report being a result of deliberation by the police. S.I. Manju Singh Yadav, the Investigating Officer who had been examined as PW-11. PW-12 is the Investigating Officer who on transfer of PW-11 had completed the investigation and submitted the charge sheet in the Court.

10. PW-13 is the Doctor who conducted postmortem of the dead body. The Doctor in his deposition proved that he received the dead body on 17.1.1996 and conducted postmortem. He proved the injuries indicated in the report. He states that the dead body was brought to the hospital by two constables. As per his findings, during strangulation, both the neck and nose of the child were pressed. To explain the condition of the dead body found near the pond, he stated that no water was found in the lungs that means the child was first murdered and then thrown in the water. There were no traces of sand and mud in his nails, which means that the child was not thrown alive in the water or it was not a case of death due to drowning. Estimated time of occurrence as per his report was around mid-night of 13/14.1.1996. He denied suggestion of death being caused in the night of 12.1.1996 or that it was a result of accident by drowning. He further clarified that semisolid food was present in the stomach which could be identified by him as Rice, Dal, Potato, Gobhi. As the food was undigested, in all probability, death had been caused within 2 to 2½ hours of the deceased child consuming food. On a suggesting given by the defence, only this was stated that there was possibility of occurrence of injury no. 3 and injury no. 4 had the child fallen on a rough ground. However, injury no. 4 could only occur because of pressing of mouth. Injury no. 5 came due to strangulation either by hand or a round stick. The Doctor states very categorically that had the child fallen in the pond (गड़ही), the injuries nos. 3, 4 and 5 could not have come.

From the statement of the postmortem Doctor, it is, thus, proved that the death of the child was caused due to strangulation and not by drowning. Someone had killed him and then threw his body in the pond. Amongst the formal witnesses, only PW-11 remains who is an important witness, his deposition would be seen at the appropriate stage.

11. We would next proceed to appreciate the evidence of witnesses of facts:-

PW-2 Smt. Kumari Devi is the first informant, the mother of the deceased child and sister-in-law of the accused/appellant Smt. Sohbatti. In her deposition, she states that her husband Phoolbadan was three brothers. One of his brother was residing in Ahemadabad. Phoolbadan had gone missing 5 to 6 years ago and his whereabouts were not known. Ram Nath, husband of Sohbatti (the appellant) is her brother-in-law. She had two children, one son Rajendra who was aged about five years and a daughter of about 10 to 11 years old. After her husband had gone missing, she started living in her Maika (parental home). Her agricultural land was being managed by Smt. Sohbatti. One month before the incident, she came back to the village and asked her land back from Sohbatti. She was then threatened by Sohbatti that his son would be killed. Her son Rajendra had gone missing at around 6:00 PM on 12.1.1996. When all efforts to fetch him went in vain, she reported the matter on the next day, i.e. on 13.1.1996 in the Police Station. On 16.1.1996, during day time, the dead body of her son was recovered from the pond behind her house in the presence of Sundar Pradhan, Jayram, Janardan and Ramchandra. After the dead body was taken out from the pond, the first information report scribed by Rajdev was lodged in the Police Station. She proved the written report bearing her thumb impression in the writing of Rajdev (Exhibited as Exhibit 'Ka-1'). The clothes of deceased were identified by her and exhibited. She stated that the appellant had murdered her son to grab her landed property. In the cross-examination, PW-2 states that after her husband had gone missing, she stayed in her 'Maika' for about 5-6 years. Thereafter, she returned to the village (her matrimonial home) few months back. Her daughter stayed back with her maternal grand-parents. In the Village, she started living in the house of Ram Nath husband of Sohbatti. She did not have cordial relations with Sohbatti and earlier had to go back to her 'Maika' because Sohbatti was fighting with her. She did not have cordial relationship with Ram Nath either. On a suggestion given by the defence that she was residing with Ram Nath as husband and wife, she states that after Sohbatti was lodged in jail, she started cooking food for him and looks after his children as no one else was there to do that. She then admitted that for about two to three months, she was residing with Ram Nath as husband and wife but then stated that since Ram Nath did not want to leave his wife, she would not reside with him anymore.

Then she goes on to say that 2-3 days before her son had gone missing, she had an altercation with Sohbatti. It was not because of Ram Nath but because of land. At that time, Ram Nath was present and he also supported Sohbatti. On the fateful day, when the child had gone missing, Ram Nath was not at home and only Sohbatti was present. Ram Nath had gone elsewhere.

12. About the scribe of the written report Rajdev Yadav son of Ramkewal Yadav, she states that she did not know him earlier and she could know him only while searching for her missing child. She went to search her son with the villagers who were collected at a common place namely Chamanganj Chauraha. All of them came to her house and she told everyone loudly that Sohbatti had killed her son. They then took her to the Police Station to lodge the missing report. She states that she told the police that Sohbatti had kidnapped her child but the police did not record this fact in the missing report. The police did not reach the Village on the next day of the missing report. After the dead body was found, she went to the Police Station, lodged the report written by Rajdev with her thumb impression; the police, thereafter, came to the Village with them. She then states that after her child had gone missing and before the dead body could be found, Smt. Phoolmati wife of Ram Saware and Smt. Gujrati Devi wife of Kamal Lohar though met her in the night and told that they heard the cries of her son shouting "mai mai", but they did not tell her that Sobhatti had killed the child.

13. She then states that Rajdev PW-3 told her that Sohbatti confessed her guilt and that from the next day of the incident itself, Sohbatti was pleading everyone in the village with whom she had good relations to save her. PW-2 denied having knowledge of whether Sohbatti was at home or not when the dead body was recovered from the pond. She then states that the police took Smt. Sohbatti to the Police Station from the pond itself where the dead body was recovered. Ram Saware was also taken to the Police Station for interrogation.

14. PW-3 Rajdev is the scribe of the first information report. He states that after four days of the child gone missing, the dead body was found in the pond behind the house of the first informant and the appellant. Pradhan and Up-pradhan and other villagers were present when the dead body was taken out from the pond at around 11:00 AM. The report of the incident was written by him on the dictation of Kumari (PW-2). He further states itself that one day after the recovery of the dead body, at around 10:00 AM, Sohbatti (the appellant) met him at Chamanganj Bazar and confessed that she had killed the child and pleaded him to save her.

This witness states that his house was at a distance of half kms. from the house of the first informant (PW-2) in another purva. He knew both Kumari (PW-2) and Sohbatti (the appellant) prior to the incident. During altercation between them two-three times prior to the incident he went to pacify. He then said that these ladies must have fought two-three times in one year, last being about 2-4 months back. Kumari, Sohbatti and wife of Shivpujan, another brother (three ladies of the house) were not going out to work but they used to remain in their houses.

He denied having knowledge that Kumari was living with Ram Nath. But says that Kumari was living in the village around one year prior to the incident. Ram Nath, husband of Sohbatti was a labour and worked outside the village. On the date of incident, Ram Nath was not in the village and had gone to visit some relative one or two days prior to the incident.

15. He further states that after the child had gone missing, for about three-four days, he continuously went to the house of Kumari. On the next day of missing, PW-2 Kumari came to his house at around 7-8 PM to inform that her son was missing and also told him that Sohbatti was behind all that, but no report was written by him about missing of the child. He did not go to the Police Station to lodge the missing report. Rather on the next day of missing, he went to the house of Kumari, stayed there for about half hour and then went back to his house around 10:00 PM. He refused having any knowledge of the missing report lodged by Kumari (PW-2). He states that he did not have any information of police reaching the spot after the missing report was lodged.

16. He further states that on the next day of missing when he went to the house of Kumari Devi, Sohbatti and Phoolmati met him but he did not meet Gujrati. He made enquiry from them about the missing child. Both of them expressed ignorance. Sohbatti met him consecutively on the second, third, fourth and fifth day after missing of the child. He then states that after the dead body was found, Sohbatti confessed her guilt and and pleaded him to save her. The witness explains that he used to mediate on small issues between villagers; and that was why Sohbatti pleaded him to help her. But Sohbatti did not visit his house. He did not meet Ram Nath during the days when the child had gone missing and the dead body was found. He met Sohbatti at her home after the dead body was found. The day when dead body was recovered, Sohbatti was at her home. On the second day, Sohbatti met him near the Nandaur Marg Chauraha, around 1 km. away from her house.

17. He then states that when he reached the house of Kumari at around 9-10 AM, body was still in the water and was being taken out. They proceeded to the Police Station when the dead body was still seen in the pond. Police came in the afternoon and then body was taken out from the water by two young men. The report was written by him on the dictates of Kumari before the police came and body was seen. He states that Daroga Ji (the SHO) interrogated Sohbatti but deny having any knowledge that she was taken to the Police Station. Thereafter, the SHO called him, Pradhan, and other respectable persons of the Village to the Police Station. He was not interrogated by the police on the day of recovery of the dead body rather they were called to the Police Station two-three days, thereafter. When police made inquiries, he told about the confession by Sohbatti. He then states that the news of the incident had travelled in the entire Block and everyone knew that Sohbatti had murdered the child.

He denied having personal acquaintance with the SHO Manju Singh Yadav. He states that all the BDC members and elected Gram Pradhan were called to the Police Station by the SHO.

18. PW-1 was the Gram Pradhan who states that the dead body of child Rajendra was found behind the house of the appellant and the first informant after four days when he had gone missing. They could not find the child despite best efforts. Kumari, the first informant (PW-2) was living in her 'Maika' after her husband had gone missing and Sohbatti was ploughing her fields. One month prior to the incident, Kumari came back to the village and asked for her land. Altercation ensued on refusal by Sohbatti as she wanted to grab the land. On 16.1.1996, Janardan came to him in the morning and told that Sohbatti sent him to convey the message that ''कि प्रधान से कहो की लाश खोजवाये लाश तालाब में मिलेगी''. Janardan and Ram Nath had entered the pond (Pokhar) and then the dead body was recovered from the North-East corner of the pond, behind the house of the first informant and the appellant. After the dead body was taken out, the report was lodged by Kumari, police came and inquest was done. PW-1 is the inquest witness. He goes on to say that when he got message of Sohbatti through Janardan, he went to the house of Sohbatti, she also told him to look for the dead body in the pond behind her house.

19. In cross-examination, this witness states that after Phoolbadan (husband of Kumari), his wife and children had left the village, his landed property was shared by both his brothers Shivpujan and Ram Nath. Ram Nath and Shivpujan both had divided the share of the Phoolbadan amongst them and were ploughing his field as Kumari went to her 'Maika'. One month prior to the incident, Kumari came back to the village and earlier also she used to come to the village. When he was elected as Gram Pradhan, share of Phoolbadan was returned to Kumari by his intervention. Shivpujan gave it willingly. He categorically states that four months prior to the incident, share of land of Phoolbadan was handed over to Kumari.

He denied the suggestion of any enmity of the first informant or her husband Phoolbadan with any of the villagers. He states that on the day when the child gone missing, he was in the Police Station for his own work. He went to the house of Kumari hearing noise in the night at around 08:00 PM. He got to know there that Ram Nath went to his in-laws house around 4:00 PM. Sohbatti was in the village but he did not meet her. Kumari was crying, house of Sohbatti was open and her one son was playing near the door, another younger child of Sohbatti was sleeping on the Cot in 'Osara'. PW-1 states that he went to the Police Station on the next day alongwith other villagers to lodge the missing report.

20. He then states that on the same day, on his instructions a net was thrown in the pond at around 9:00 PM. Kumari told him then also that Sohbatti was the perpetrator of the crime. They all, however, were busy in fetching the missing child but no one looked for him in the house, Bhusoula, Dhari or Charani of Sohbatti. No inquiry was made from the neighbours Phoolmati and Gujrati. Wife of Shivpujan was in the post delivery stage and hence she was not questioned. No one was there in the house of Shivpujan apart from his wife.

On 13.1.1996, a report was scribed by Rajdev Yadav at the police station when and he alongwith Kumari and Rajdev went to the Police Station to lodge the missing report. But, the said report was not taken by the S.H.O. rather he told by PW-11 to make good efforts to search the child. He states that Kumari then told the S.H.O. that Sohbatti had done all that but the police did not come to the village.

21. He then says that after coming back, they searched for the dead body in the pond. 20 persons had entered in the pond but dead body could not be found. He also interrogated Sohbatti but she denied. Sohbatti did not help them in finding the child, she rather tried to flee from the village but was caught thrice. After she was threatened and scolded, she sent the above said message through Janardan to PW-1. He denied use of any physical force or doing any 'maar-peet' with Sohbatti but told that Sohbatti was threatened that she would be lodged in jail. On the third day, after receipt of message of Sohbatti, the dead body was recovered.

PW-1 then deposed that Sohbatti also told him that Ramsaware was roaming near the pond during the night and when she looked at him, he hid inside his house. Sohbatti told him that had efforts be made that day, body would be found in the pond. PW-1 has denied any suggestion of enmity between Kumari and Ramsaware, but admits that on 14.1.1996 police had taken both Ramasware and Sohbatti to the Police Station for interrogation. He states that statement of Phoolmati and Gujarati were recorded in the village in front of many villagers. He denied that he went to the Police Station, after the dead body was taken by the police. He denied that they were called by the SHO to the Police Station after recovery of the dead body.

22. There are two more witnesses of fact, PW-9 Ram Briksha and PW-10 Jayram, both residents of the same village. PW-9 Ram Briksha denied that he had seen Sohbatti (the appellant) with the child on 16.1.1996 at around 9:00 AM near her house or she made any confession to him.

P.W.10 Jayram states that Sohbatti did not meet him in the morning nor she gave any message to him to search the dead body behind her house. Both PW-9 and PW-10 were cross-examined by the A.D.G.C., but nothing could be elicited from their statements.

23. Two more witnesses to assert the theory of last seen, PW-6 and PW-7, have been examined. Both had been declared hostile. PW-6 Phoolmati states that she did not witness Sohbatti strangulating the child in the torch light with Gujrati (PW-7). She only heard the cries of the child. In the cross-examination by A.D.G.C., she states that she did not tell the police that she last witnessed the accused with the child alive and how it was written in her statement was not known to her.

PW-7 Smt. Gujrati also states that she had no knowledge about the incident. She did not witness Sohbatti strangulating the child in the torch light.

Thus, the witnesses of last seen PW-6 and 7 and two more witnesses PW-9 and PW-10 of extra judicial confession did not support the prosecution case.

24. Only three prosecution witnesses of the fact, thus, remained who are PW-1 (the Gram Pradhan), PW-2 (the first informant) and PW-3 (the scribe of the first information report). Relevant part of their statements in the examination-in-chief and in cross-examination have been extracted above in detail to assess their testimony. The deposition of PW-11, the Investigating Officer is also to be appreciated at this stage.

25. PW-11, S.I. Manju Singh Yadav stated that Chik FIR (Exhibit Ka-2) was signed by him as he was present in the Police Station on 16.1.1996 at around 14:00 hours. The missing report dated 13.1.1996 given by Kumari Devi was endorsed with her thumb impression and proved as 'Exhibit Ka-4'. The entry of the said report had been made in the General Diary Rapat No. 35 dated 13.1.1996 in the handwriting and signature of Kanhaiya Prasad which PW-11 had identified. He states that after missing report was lodged, on 14.1.1996, he went to the Village in search of the missing child. The Entry in G.D. Rapat No. 10, Time 07:45 dated 14.1.1996 was stated to be proof of the said fact.

26. He further stated in the examination-in-chief that the investigation was commenced by him after registration of the first information report. He went to the place of incident after recording statement of Kumari Devi in the Police Station itself. Dead Body was taken in police custody and inquest was prepared in the handwriting of S.I. Ravindra Chandra Bhadauriya on his dictation. All the reports were carrying his signature and proved as 'Exhibit Ka-6 to Ka-12'. After completion of formalities, body was sent for the postmortem. The site map of the place of incident was drawn by him as Exhibit 'Ka-13'. Thereafter, he recorded statements of Sundar @ Chunnur (PW-1), Janardan and Jayram. The search of the accused was conducted and the search memo was prepared in his own handwriting bearing his signature exhibited as Exhibit 'Ka-14'.

27. He further states that on 17.1.1996, statements of Phoolmati (PW-6) and Gujrati (PW-7), Rajdev Yadav (PW-3), Ram Briksha Chaudhary (PW-9) were recorded and torch of Phoolmati was checked and memo 'Ka-15' was prepared to note that it was found in working condition. The statements of all four witnesses have been filed in the court in his own handwriting and signature entered in the CD, as 'Exhibits 'Ka-16' to 'Ka-18'. On 20.1.1996, Smt. Sohbatti was arrested and her statement was recorded. The said fact had been noted in GD Rapat No. 24 dated 20.1.1996 at 18:15 hours in the handwriting of Head Constable Ram Badai and signed by him, which was exhibited as Exhibit 'Ka-20'. After arrest of the accused, another site plan was prepared on the pointing of the accused which bears his signature. He proves the same to be correct according to the spot, which is exhibited as Exhibit Ka-21.

PW-11 denied suggestion of any acquaintance with Gram Pradhan (PW-1) or Rajdev (PW-3).

28. He further states in the cross-examination that he did not know as to why during lodging of the missing report, name of Smt. Sohbatti was not disclosed by Kumari Devi. The special report of missing was also sent on 13.1.1996 itself as entered in GD No. 35, Time 17:05 hours. He goes on to say that thereafter, he went to the village in the night on 13.1.1996, but as no offence was made out from the missing report, no first information report was registered. On 13.1.1996, when he reached the village around 11:00 PM, he made search for the child but did not meet anyone in the neighbourhood. The Gram Pradhan, Jayram and others were not there and there was no reason for him to look for the dead body in the pond. Thereafter, he went to other places under his jurisdiction and returned to the Police Station only on 14.1.1996. He further states that he might have told the Gram Pradhan to search for the child as he told that to everyone. Intimation to other police stations were also given on remote sets; requisition was also sent for "Kashti Talash" (search through boat) which was issued.

29. He further states that on 16.1.1996, Kumari Devi came to the Police Station at around 14:00 hours (2:00 PM) alongwith Rajdev Yadav and Sundar @ Chunnur and her statement was recorded in the Police Station but statements of Sundar @ Chunnur and Jayram were not recorded in the Police Station. Kumari Devi intimated him that she came back to the village around six months prior to the incident alongwith his five year old child. The motive for murder, according to her, was to grab her land. After registration of the first information report and recording of statement of the first informant (PW-2), he proceeded to the place of incident and reached at the place at around 3:15 PM. When he reached, he found the dead body besides the pond as it was already taken out from the water. The accused did not meet him nor she was present in her house. He searched for the accused and then prepared the search memo. Gujrati and Phoolmati were not interrogated. Janardhan and Ramchandra were interrogated. The statement of Sundar Pradhan was taken but he did not disclose the name of Ramsaware being one of the suspects. PW-11 completely denied arrest of Ramsaware for interrogation. He did not meet husband of accused Smt. Sohbatti either prior to or after the incident. He also did not meet the accused/appellant between the date of missing of the child till recovery of his dead body. The appellant was arrested only on 20.1.1996 and then for the first time, he met her.

PW-11 categorically denied that he took the accused and Ramsaware both to the Police Station on 16.1.1996 for interrogation and denied that they were detained in the Police Station uptil 20.1.1996 and thereafter, Ramsaware was released and Smt. Sohbatti was illegally challaned. He denied that statement of Gujrati, Phoolmati was wrongly recorded by him at the instance of Rajdev in order to save Ramsaware or statement of Sohbatti was recorded in order to give false colour to the case.

30. At this stage, the evidence of Prem Shankar Tripathi PW-4 is also to be appreciated. He states that he took the dead body to the District Hospital for postmortem from the place of incident. In cross-examination, he states that he was present in the Police Station Bakhira on 16.1.1996. The first informant had reached the Police Station at around 12:00 noon. He did not remember whether S.H.O. was present in the Police Station at that point of time. He, however, states that he alongwith S.I. Ravindra Chandra Bhadauriya and S.H.O. left the Police Station at 3:30 Hours to go to the place of incident. They reached there within one and a half hour. The body was outside the pond and when for the first time he looked at the body, it was being sealed as all the paper work was done by Constable Bhadauriya. The dead body was, thereafter, brought to the Police Station and was taken to the Mortuary by him. It was handed over to the Doctor on 17.1.1996. He denied that the paper work was done by the Investigating Officer while sitting in the Police Station and not at the place of crime.

31. The accused/appellant Smt. Sohbatti in her statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C denied that Kumari was residing in her 'Maika' after her husband had gone missing. She also denied that there was any dispute between them regarding share of Kumari in the landed property rather she stated that Kumari was living in the village and managing her own property. She denied any information of lodging of the missing report on 13.1.1996. She, however, admits that the dead body of child Rajendra was found from the 'Garhi' at the back side of their house after seven days of missing at around 10:00 AM. She denied herself keeping the dead body concealed for those days. She also specifically denied the versions of witnesses Phoolmati, Jayram, Gujrati, Ram Briksha recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. She denied G.D. entry no. 20 regarding her arrest and stated that it was a forged paper. Her answer to question no. '16' is relevant to be noted hereunder:-

उत्तर– दरोगा जी गांव पर आये गडहे से लाश निकलवाये व उसी समय उसे व मेरे गांव के राम सवारे को थाने पर पकड़कर ले गये। मुझे 4–5 दिन तक थाने में रोके रखे। तथा मेरा गलत ब्यान दर्ज कर के राम सवारे को छोड दिया तथा मेरा चालानन कर दिया। मै वेकसूर हूँ। मेरे दो छोटे बच्चे है।

बयान सुनकर तसदीक किया

32. It can, thus, be seen that the accused/appellant categorically stated that she and Ramsaware both were detained in the Police Station for 4 to 5 days. She then states that the police had falsely implicated her and she is innocent. She produced defence witnesses DW-1 and DW-2. DW-1 Gorakhnath is a police officer who brought both GD dated 13.1.1996 and 16.1.1996 of the Police Station Bakhira. In GD entry dated 13.1.1996 at Rapat No. 35, Time 19:05 hours, though there was an entry of the missing report of Kumari Devi but there was no entry of movement of S.I. Manju Singh Yadav for the village-in-question, whereas, the entry of his movement dated 13.1.1996 at Rapat No. 41, Time 21:45 hours was for "Dabish Abhiyukt" but the name of Village had not been mentioned there. He was not cross-examined by the prosecution.

DW-2 S.C. Ehsaan Ullah, C.O. Peshi Khalilabad states that he was posted as C.O. Peshi, Khalilabad and proved the photo copy of Special report of Case Crime No. 07 of 1996 under Sections 302/201 IPC as Exhibit 'Kha-1'.

33. Having a threadbare discussion of the statements of the prosecution witnesses and defence of the appellant in her statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. as well as the evidence of defence witnesses, the circumstances of the case as culled out are under:-

(i) There is no evidence of last seen. Both the witnesses of last seen produced by the prosecution had turned hostile. From a reading of their entire testimony, it cannot be ascertained that they had last seen the accused/appellant with the deceased child alive.

(ii) No one had seen the deceased child alive before or near the time of his missing. The first informant though lodged a missing report stating that she did not see her child since around 6:00 PM on 12.1.1996 but there is complete silence in her statement as to where and when was she last with her child on 12.1.1996. She did not name the appellant in the missing report being even a suspect. The first informant and the appellant being members of one family were living in adjacent houses. Semisolid food was found in the stomach of the deceased child and as per the description in the postmortem examination, the food inside the stomach could be identified being full meal comprising of Dal, Rice and vegetables. As per the opinion of the Doctor based on the condition of food in the stomach, the time gap between taking of food and death of child could be two to three hours. There is nothing in the statement of the first informant who is mother of the child as to when she had last fed her child or someone else in the house had given him food on the fateful day, i.e. 12.1.1996.

(iii) The appellant stayed in her house for all those seven days till she was arrested by the police after the dead body was found. She was neither the suspect nor was interrogated at any point of time by the police prior to 16.1.1996, before the dead body of the child was found in the pond.

(iv) Only circumstance put forward by the prosecution to suspect the appellant is that she used to quarrel with the first informant over a piece of land belonging to the husband of the first informant. This is stated to be the motive to commit the crime. If we examine the alleged motive in the facts and circumstances placed before us, we find that the first informant though states that the accused appellant was ploughing her field but nothing more has been brought on record. PW-1 who was Gram Pradhan, on the other hand, stated that the dispute pertaining to the disputed land was settled with his intervention and the piece of land was already handed over to the first informant. The motive to commit the crime, therefore, did not appear to be present at the relevant point of time.

Altercations between two ladies, who are sister-in-law living in the adjacent houses is the most common circumstance. Occasional altercations on one or other occasion, cannot be taken as a sound reason to assign motive for committing such a heinous offence. The name of the appellant appeared in the first information report (lodged after four days) after the dead body was recovered from the pond.

(v) The statement of PW-1 and PW-3 of extra judicial confession made by the appellant to them is also not convincing. There are material contradictions/embellishments and improvements in their depositions. It cannot be said that they were having a relationship of trust and confidence with the accused/appellant which may have prompted her to disclose her guilt to them. On the other hand, from the statement of the Gram Pradhan PW-1, it appears that the confession of the appellant, if any, was a result of coercion and threat given to her that if she did not accept her guilt, she would be lodged in jail. The confession of the appellant before the Gram Pradhan (PW-1) and Rajdev (PW-3), therefore, cannot be said to be voluntary.

(vi) In the present case, the prosecution story rests squarely on circumstantial evidence. It has been consistently laid down by the Apex Court that the inference of guilt, in a case of circumstantial evidence, can be justified only when all the incriminating facts and circumstances are found to be incompatible with the innocence of the accused or the guilt of any other person. The circumstances from which an inference as to the guilt of the accused is drawn, have to be proved beyond reasonable doubt and have to be shown to be closely connected with the principle fact sought to be inferred from those circumstances.

It was laid down in Bhagat Ram vs. State Of Punjab1 that when the case depends upon the conclusion drawn from the circumstances, the cumulative effect of the circumstances must be such as to negative the innocence of the accused and bring home the offences beyond any reasonable doubt.

The principles for dealing with circumstantial evidence discussed by the Apex Court in Bodhraj Alias Bodha and others vs. State of Jammu and Kashmir2 are as under:-

"11. We may also make a reference to a decision of this Court in C Chenga Reddy and Ors. v. State of A,P,, [1996] 10 SCC 193, wherein it has been observed thus:

"21. In a case based on circumstantial evidence, the settled law is that the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is drawn would be fully proved and such circumstances must be conclusive in nature. Moreover, all the circumstances should be complete and there should be no gap left in the chain of evidence. Further the proved circumstances must be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused and totally inconsistent with his innocence."

12. In Padala Veera Reddy v. State of A.P. and Ors.. AIR (1990) SC 79, it was laid down that when a case rests upon circumstantial evidence, such evidence must satisfy the following tests;

"10. (1) the circumstances from which an inference of guilt is sought to be drawn, must be cogently and firmly esablished;

(2) those circumstances. should be of a definite tendency unerringly pointing towards guilt of the accused;

(3) the circumstances. taken cumulatively, should from a chain so complete that there is no escape from the conclusion that within all human probability the crime was committed by the accused and none else; and

(4) the circumstantial evidence in order to sustain conviction must be complete and incapable of explanation of any. other hypothesis than that of the guilt of the accused and such evidence should not only be consistent with the guilt of the accused but should be inconsistent with his innocence."

13. In State of U.P. v. Ashok Kumar Srivastava, (1992) Crl.L.J.l 104, it was pointed out that great case must be taken in evaluating circumstantially evidence and if the evidence relied on is reasonably capable of two inferences, the one in favour of the accused must be accepted. h was also pointed out that the circumstances relied upon must be found to have been fully established and the cumulative effect of all the facts so established must be consistent only with the hypothesis of guilt.

14. Sir Alfred Wills in his admirable book "Wills" Circumstantial Evidence" (Chapter VI) lays down the following rules specially to be observed in the case of circumstantial evidence: (1) the facts alleged as the basis of any legal inference must be clearly proved and beyond reasonable doubt connected with the factum probandum, (2) the burden of proof is always on the party who asserts the existence of any fact, which infers legal accountability, (3) in all cases, whether of direct or circumstantial evidence the best evidence must be adduced which the nature of the case admits, (4) in order to justify the inference of guilt, the inculpatory facts must be incompatible with the innocence of the accused and incapable of explanation, upon any other reasonable hypothesis than that of his guilt, (5) if there be any reasonable doubt of the guilt of the accused, he is entitled as of right to be acquitted.

15. There is no doubt that conviction can be based solely on circumstantial evidence but it should be tested by the touch-stone of law relating to circumstantial evidence laid down by the this Court as far back as in 1952.

16. In Hanumant Govind Nargundkar and Anr. v. State of' Madhya Pradesh, AIR (1952) SC 343, wherein it was observed thus:

"It is well to remember that in cases where the evidence is of a circumstantial nature. the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn the first instance be fully established and all the facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused. Again, the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency and they should be such as to exclude every hypothesis but the one proposed to be proved. In other words. there must be a chain of evidence so far complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for a conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and it must be such as to show that within all human probability the act must have been done by the accused."

17. A reference may be made to other decision in Sharad Birdhichand Sarda v. State of Maharashtra, AIR (1984) SC 1622. Therein, while dealing with circumstantial evidence, it has been held that onus was on the prosecution to prove that the chain is complete and the infirmity of lacuna in prosecution cannot be cured by false defence or plea. The conditions precedent in the words of the this Court, before conviction could be based on circumstantial evidence, must be fully established. They are:

(1) the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should be fully established. The circumstances concerned must or should and not may be established;

(2) the facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused. that is to say, they should not be explainable on any other hypothesis except that the accused is guilty;

(3) the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency;

(4) they should excludee very possible hypothesis except the one to be proved;

(5) there must be a chain of evidence so compete as not to leave any reasonable ground for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability the act must have been done by the accused."

Same principles have been reiterated in Babu vs. State of Kerala3 reads as under:-

"22. In Krishnan v. State represented by Inspector of Police (2008) 15 SCC 430, this Court after considering large number of its earlier judgments observed as follows:

'15....This Court in a series of decisions has consistently held that when a case rests upon circumstantial evidence, such evidence must satisfy the following tests:

(i) the circumstances from which an inference of guilt is sought to be drawn, must be cogently and firmly established;

(ii) those circumstances should be of definite tendency unerringly pointing towards guilt of the accused;

(iii) the circumstances, taken cumulatively, should form a chain so complete that there is no escape from the conclusion that with all human probability the crime was committed by the accused and none else; and

(iv) the circumstantial evidence in order to sustain conviction must be complete and incapable of explanation of any other hypothesis than that of the guilt of the accused and such evidence should not only be consistent with the guilt of the accused but should be inconsistent with his innocence. (See Gambhir v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1982 SC 1157)".

23. In Sharad Birdhichand Sarda v. State of Maharashtra AIR 1984 SC 1622, while dealing with circumstantial evidence, it has been held that the onus was on the prosecution to prove that the chain is complete and the infirmity or lacuna in prosecution cannot be cured by false defence or plea. The conditions precedent before conviction could be based on circumstantial evidence, must be fully established. They are:

(i) the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should be fully established. The circumstances concerned `must or should' and not `may be' established;

(ii) the facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused, that is to say, they should not be explainable on any other hypothesis except that the accused is guilty;

(iii) the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency;

(iv) they should exclude every possible hypothesis except the one to be proved; and

(v) there must be a chain of evidence so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability the act must have been done by the accused.

A similar view has been re-iterated by this Court in State of U.P. v. Satish, (2005) 3 SCC 114; and Pawan v. State of Uttaranchal (2009) 15 SCC 259.

24. In Subramaniam v. State of Tamil Nadu, (2009) 14 SCC 415, while considering the case of dowry death, this Court observed that the fact of living together is a strong circumstance but that by alone in absence of any evidence of violence on the deceased cannot be held to be conclusive proof, and there must be some evidence to arrive at a conclusion that the husband and husband alone was responsible therefor. The evidence produced by the prosecution should not be of such a nature that may make the conviction of the appellant unsustainable. (See Ramesh v. State of Rajasthan (2009) 12 SCC 603)."

(vii) In the instant case, the prosecution tried to prove its story from three circumstances; (i) firstly the theory of last seen by two witnesses (PW-6 and PW-7) who had turned hostile; (ii) Secondly, the extra judicial confession of the accused/appellant before PW-1, Gram Pradhan and PW-3, Rajdev (who was also scribe of the first information report); (iii) Thirdly, the motive to commit the crime as stated was the dispute pertaining to a piece of land belonging to the husband of the first informant.

(viii) As noted above, the prosecution has not been able to prove the evidence of last seen. We may also note that the last seen theory comes into play where the time gap between the point of time when the accused and the deceased were last seen alive and when the deceased is found dead is so small that possibility of any person other than the accused being the author of the crime becomes impossible. The burden is on the prosecution to prove by positive evidence that the deceased and accused were seen alive together. In absence of any positive evidence in the instant case, it cannot be concluded that the accused and deceased were together or were last seen alive together before the child had gone missing. It would be hazardous to come to a conclusion of guilt of the appellant in absence of any such evidence. [Reference Ramreddy Rajesh Khanna Reddy and another vs. State of A.P.4 and Rameshbhai Chandubhai Rathod vs. State of Gujarat5]

(ix) As far as motive is concerned, its importance in cases of circumstantial evidence cannot be ignored. The motive may be considered as a circumstance which is relevant for assessing the evidence. The absence of motive in a case depending on circumstantial evidence is a factor that weighs in favour of the accused. However, if the evidence is clear and unambiguous and the circumstances prove the guilt of the accused, the same is not weakened even if the motive is not a very strong one. [State of Uttar Pradesh vs. Kishanpal and others6, Pannayar vs. State of Tamil Nadu by Inspector of Police7 and Babu vs. State of Kerala3]

In the instant case, the motive though narrated by the prosecution but is not found to be an existing circumstance from the deposition of the prosecution witnesses.

As noted above, the Gram Pradhan PW-1 states that the dispute relating to the land belonging to the husband of the first informant had been settled with his intervention prior to the commission of the crime. The motive in the instant case as stated in the deposition of the first informant (PW-2), therefore, seems to have been obliterated at the time of commission of the crime. It, therefore, becomes a very weak evidence. In absence of any other positive evidence to corroborate, the motive cannot be taken as the sole circumstance, based on the statement of the first informant, to hold that it is the appellant who could only be the perpetrator of the crime as she used to quarrel with the first informant over a piece of land which was earlier in her possession.

(x) The last circumstance is the extra judicial confession of the appellant in the narration of PW-1 and PW-3, the prosecution witnesses. As far as the law relating to extra judicial confession, it is held in Sahadevan and another vs. State of Tamil Nadu8 that extra-judicial confession is a weak piece of evidence. Wherever the Court, upon due appreciation of the entire prosecution evidence, intends to base a conviction on an extra judicial confession, it must ensure that the same inspires confidence and is corroborated by other prosecution evidence.

In Balwinder Singh vs. State of Punjab9 and Kavita vs. State of Tamilnadu10, it is held that an extra-judicial confession by its very nature is rather a weak piece of evidence and requires appreciation with the great deal of care and caution. It is to be proved just like any other fact and the value thereof depends upon the veracity of the witness to whom it is made.

While explaining the dimensions of the principles governing the admissibility and evidentiary value of an extra judicial confession, the Apex Court in State of Rajasthan vs. Raja Ram11 stated the following principle:-

"19. An extra-judicial confession, if voluntary and true and made in a fit state of mind, can be relied upon by the court. The confession will have to be proved like any other fact. The value of evidence as to confession, like any other evidence, depends upon the veracity of the witness to whom it has been made. The Court further expressed the view that such a confession can be relied upon and conviction can be founded thereon if the evidence about the confession comes from the mouth of witnesses who appear to be unbiased, not even remotely inimical to the accused and in respect of whom nothing is brought out which may tend to indicate that he may have a motive of attributing an untruthful statement to the accused.xxxxxxxxxxxxxxx"

In Aloke Nath Dutta and others vs. State of West Bengal12, it was held that the reliance placed by the Court on extra judicial confession in absence of other corroborating material would be unjustified:-

"87. Confession ordinarily is admissible in evidence. It is a relevant fact. It can be acted upon. Confession may under certain circumstances and subject to law laid down by the superior judiciary from time to time form the basis for conviction. It is, however, trite that for the said purpose the court has to satisfy itself in regard to: (i) voluntariness of the confession; (ii) truthfulness of the confession; and (iii) corroboration.

xxxxxxxxxxxxx

89. A detailed confession which would otherwise be within the special knowledge of the accused may itself be not sufficient to raise a presumption that confession is a truthful one. Main features of a confession are required to be verified. If it is not done, no conviction can be based only on the sole basis thereof."

While analyzing the principles for accepting the admissibility of extra judicial confession, it was noted in Sahadevan8 as under:-

"15.6. Accepting the admissibility of the extra-judicial confession, the Court in the case of Sansar Chand v. State of Rajasthan [(2010) 10 SCC 604] held that :-

"29. There is no absolute rule that an extra-judicial confession can never be the basis of a conviction, although ordinarily an extra-judicial confession should be corroborated by some other material. [Vide Thimma and Thimma Raju v. State of Mysore, Mulk Raj v. State of U.P., Sivakumar v. State (SCC paras 40 and 41 : AIR paras 41 & 42), Shiva Karam Payaswami Tewari v. State of Maharashtra and Mohd. Azad v. State of W.B. 2008 (15) SCC 449]

30. In the present case, the extra-judicial confession by Balwan has been referred to in the judgments of the learned Magistrate and the Special Judge, and it has been corroborated by the other material on record. We are satisfied that the confession was voluntary and was not the result of inducement, threat or promise as contemplated by Section 24 of the Evidence Act, 1872."

15.7. Dealing with the situation of retraction from the extra-judicial confession made by an accused, the Court in the case of Rameshbhai Chandubhai Rathod v. State of Gujarat [(2009) 5 SCC 740], held as under :

"53. It appears therefore, that the appellant has retracted his confession. When an extra-judicial confession is retracted by an accused, there is no inflexible rule that the court must invariably accept the retraction. But at the same time it is unsafe for the court to rely on the retracted confession, unless, the court on a consideration of the entire evidence comes to a definite conclusion that the retracted confession is true."

15.8. Extra-judicial confession must be established to be true and made voluntarily and in a fit state of mind. The words of the witnesses must be clear, unambiguous and should clearly convey that the accused is the perpetrator of the crime. The extra-judicial confession can be accepted and can be the basis of conviction, if it passes the test of credibility. The extra-judicial confession should inspire confidence and the court should find out whether there are other cogent circumstances on record to support it. [Ref. Sk. Yusuf v. State of W.B. [(2011) 11 SCC 754] and Pancho v. State of Haryana [(2011) 10 SCC 165]."

It was further held as under:-

"16. Upon a proper analysis of the above-referred judgments of this Court, it will be appropriate to state the principles which would make an extra- judicial confession an admissible piece of evidence capable of forming the basis of conviction of an accused. These precepts would guide the judicial mind while dealing with the veracity of cases where the prosecution heavily relies upon an extra-judicial confession alleged to have been made by the accused.

The Principles

(i) The extra-judicial confession is a weak evidence by itself. It has to be examined by the court with greater care and caution.

(ii) It should be made voluntarily and should be truthful.

(iii) It should inspire confidence.

(iv) An extra-judicial confession attains greater credibility and evidentiary value, if it is supported by a chain of cogent circumstances and is further corroborated by other prosecution evidence.

(v) For an extra-judicial confession to be the basis of conviction, it should not suffer from any material discrepancies and inherent improbabilities.

(vi) Such statement essentially has to be proved like any other fact and in accordance with law."

Section 24 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 states as under:-

"24. Confession caused by inducement, threat or promise, when irrelevant in criminal proceeding.--A confession made by an accused person is irrelevant in a criminal proceeding, if the making of the confession appears to the Court to have been caused by any inducement, threat or promise,1 having reference to the charge against the accused person, proceeding from a person in authority and sufficient, in the opinion of the Court, to give the accused person grounds, which would appear to him reasonable, for supposing that by making it he would gain any advantage or avoid any evil of a temporal nature in reference to the proceedings against him.--A confession made by an accused person is irrelevant in a criminal proceeding, if the making of the confession appears to the Court to have been caused by any inducement, threat or promise,2 having reference to the charge against the accused person, proceeding from a person in authority and sufficient, in the opinion of the Court, to give the accused person grounds, which would appear to him reasonable, for supposing that by making it he would gain any advantage or avoid any evil of a temporal nature in reference to the proceedings against him."*

In the instant case, extra judicial confession has been made to two persons who both were in authority being Gram Pradhan and a BDC member in the Village. We may not conclude that they had any kind of ill will or motive of attributing an untruthful statement to the accused but it cannot be ruled out that the confession by the accused/appellant may have been made as a result of inducement, threat or promise and it cannot be said to be voluntarily.

34. From a conspectus of the circumstances put forth by the prosecution, in the light of the analysis of the legal position pertaining to each circumstance brought before us, we find that the prosecution has utterly failed to bring the relevant material, i.e. those circumstances which definitely and unerringly point towards guilt of the accused. All the circumstances, taken cumulatively, do not form a chain so complete that there is no escape from the conclusion that in all probabilities, like a prudent man, the crime was committed by the accused and no one else. The circumstantial evidence brought forward by the prosecution are not such which would form a complete chain and are incapable of explanation of any other hypothesis than that of the guilt of the accused. In the broken chain of circumstances, we do not find any clinching evidence against the appellant to hold her guilty.

35. We also think it pertinent to note that it was a murder or death of the child which was homicidal in nature. The dead body was found in a pond which was a public pond accessible to one and all in the village. It may said that it was easily accessible to the appellant being situated behind her house and taking advantage of the location, she might have succeeded in committing the crime. But we cannot ignore that the first informant was also residing in the adjacent house and no material circumstance could be brought before us by any of the prosecution witness which would cast any burden on the appellant to explain the homicidal death of the child. The possibility of someone else committing the crime cannot be ruled out.

36. There is one more circumstance which goes in favour of the accused. In her statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C., the appellant categorically stated that she was detained in the Police Station for about 3-4 days alongwith one Ram Saware, a neighbour for interrogation. Ram Saware was, however, released and the appellant was implicated. The arrest of the appellant was shown to have been made on 20.1.1996, though her name had figured in the first information report and she was present in her house as per the prosecution witnesses. There is no explanation by the Investigating Officer (PW-11) as to why the arrest of the appellant was delayed for four days. The search Memo Exhibit Ka '14' indicates that search was conducted in the absence of the accused but no incriminating material was found. The statement of the appellant that she was detained in the Police Station for four days without any arrest, therefore, appears to be true and the possibility of her false implication on the pressure of the influential persons of the village like Gram Pradhan and BDC member (PW-1 and PW-3) at the behest of the first informant (PW-2), can be ruled out.

37. There are other circumstances for which prosecution has not given any explanation:-

(i) Nothing can be culled out from the investigation as to where was the dead body for 3-4 days and why was it not searched thoroughly near the house of the appellant when she was a prime suspect form the beginning as per the deposition of PW-2 (the first informant);

(ii) The Gram Pradhan PW-1 states that he conducted search for the dead body of the child in the pond on the day when missing report was lodged and a net was thrown in the pond and also 20 persons had entered in the pond to search for the dead body;

(iii) From the site plan, it appears that the Pond is a large water body accessible to everyone in the village.

(iv) The medical report of the dead body also indicates that it was not immersed in the water for a long time.

(v) Rigor mortis had passed off from all the four limbs and there was no indication of rotting (सड़न) in the medical report;

(vi) Ramnath, the husband of the appellant, is completely missing from the whole scene though as per the deposition of the first informant, he was present during altercation between the appellant and the first informant about 2-3 days prior to the date of missing of the child.

(vii) It seems surprising that the police did not even interrogate Ramnath, husband of the appellant who was also a resident of the same house during the entire investigation.

(viii) Who had last seen the child alive, when and where, is completely missing from the prosecution evidence.

38. The role of Investigating Officer in the present scenario also becomes questionable. It is evident that the Investigating Officer did not make any sincere effort to find out the truth of the story narrated by the witnesses of facts. It appears that the appellant was implicated in a zeal to solve the crime by the Investigating Officer in a hurried manner. The trial court has also committed the same error while holding the appellant guilty of murder of the child.

39. The present is not a case where putting all circumstances together, the Court can reach at the conclusion that "no one else than the appellant could be the perpetrator of the crime". Another question which comes in the mind of the Court is "if not the appellant then who else could be the perpetrator of the crime?". We are not finding answer to the question either way, in negative or in affirmative. We are also afraid to give answer to the said question in absence of any cogent material before us. For mere reason that we are not finding the real culprit, we cannot draw the inference that the appellant must have committed the crime.

In support of our above view, we would be benefited by the observations of the Apex Court in Shankarlal Gyarasilal Dixit vs. State Of Maharashtra13, where the Apex Court was in the same position as we are today.

Relevant paragraph is quoted hereunder:-

"32. The High Court, it must be said, has referred to the recent decisions of this Court in Mahmood v. State of U.P. [1976 (1) SCC 542] and Chandmal v. State of Rajasthan [1976 (1) SCC 621] in which the rule governing cases of circumstantial evidence is reiterated. But, while formulating its own view the High Court, with respect, fell into an error in stating the true legal position by saying that what the Court has to consider is whether the cumulative effect of the circumstances establishes the guilt of the accused beyond the "shadow of doubt". In the first place, 'shadow of doubt', even in cases which depend on direct evidence is shadow of "reasonable" doubt. Secondly, in its practical application, the test which requires the exclusion of other alternative hypothesis is far more rigorous than the test of proof beyond reasonable doubt.

33. Our judgment will raise a legitimate query: If the appellant was not present in his house at the material time, why then did so many people conspire to involve him falsely ? The answer to such questions is not always easy to give in criminal cases. Different motives operate on the minds of different persons in the making of unfounded accusations. Besides, human nature is too willing, when faced with brutal crimes, to spin stories out of strong suspicions. In the instant case. the dead body of a tender girl, raped and throttled, was found in the appellant's house and, instinctively, everyone drew the inference that the appellant must have committed the crime. No one would pause to consider why the appellant would throw the dead body in his own house, why would he continue to sleep a few feet away from it and whether his house was not easily accessible to all and sundry, as shown by the resourceful Shrinarayan Sharma. No one would even care to consider why the appellant's name was not mentioned to the police until quite late. These are questions for the Court to consider."

40. For the reasons as aforesaid, we find that the impugned judgment is not sustainable in the eyes of law and is liable to be set aside.

41. Accordingly, the judgment and order dated 28.7.1997 passed by the Special Judge, Basti in Sessions Trial No. 185 of 1996 (State vs. Smt. Sohbatti Devi), arising out of Case Crime No. 07 of 1996, Police Station- Bakhira, District-Basti, convicting and sentencing the accused-appellant Smt. Sohbatti, under Section 302/201 I.P.C. is set aside and the accused-appellant is acquitted of all the offences/charges.

42. The appeal is allowed.

43. The accused-appellant Smt. Sohbatti is in jail. She shall be released from jail forthwith.

44. The office is directed to send back the lower court record along with a certified copy of this judgment for information and necessary compliance.

45. The compliance report be furnished to this Court through the Registrar General, High Court, Allahabad.
