State of U.P. ...Opposite Party

Counsel for the Appellant:
From Jail, Saghir Ahmad A/C

Counsel for the Opposite Party:

A. Evidence law- Evidence Act (1 of 1872)-Section 118 - Who may testify - Child witness - Competency - Preliminary test - it is only a rule of prudence that there should be a record of the question put & answer received during the preliminary examination - for ascertaining the competence of the child witness - If No such test made - Consequence - non recording of the questions & answers – no ground for rejecting the testimony of child witness - if it appears to be otherwise reliable (Para 46)

Held – It appears from PW 13 statement that learned trial court administered oath to him - itcan be inferred that the learned trial court must have found him capable of giving intellectual answers to the questions put to him. (Para 44, 46)

B. Criminal Law- Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860)-Section 302 - Evidence Act (1 of 1872)-Section 3 - Circumstantial evidence - Last seen theory - Applicability - Time gap between last seen and death – time gap between last seen alive and the recovery of dead body must be so small that the possibility of any person other than the accused being the author of the crime becomes impossible - last seen evidence – very important circumstantial evidence – if proved & found trustworthy – it can singularly lead to the inference of guilt. (Para 36, 40)

Accused committed rape and murder of his own 7 years old daughter – statement oflastseen given by PW13 son of the accused - stated accused to ok victim out saying that he is taking her to get medicine – same night victim dead body was recovered- Held – no delay or time gap between last seen and the discovery of the dead body - unimpeachable evidence of last seen supported by medical and FSL report - victim hymen was lacerated, vagina was bleeding, marks of injury on body, show that rape was committed- previous conduct that accused used to sexually abuse the deceased - convictionu/s 302/376(f)IPC justified.

C. Criminal Law -Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860) – Section 201, 361, 363 - Victim 7years daughter of accused – Victim mother already died-accused was only lawful guardian - ingredients ofthe offence u/s 361 not complete to constitute the offence -noevidencethat accused did anything to disappear the body - conviction u/s 363 and section 201IPC is not sustainable

D. Criminal law-Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860) , 376(2)(f) - Protection of Children From Sexual Offences Act (32 of 2012)-Sections 5(n), 5(m), S.6 - Punishment - Death sentence- Death penalty is exception to rule of life imprisonment - Aggravating and mitigating circumstances - just balance has to be struck between the aggravating and the mitigating circumstances

Held – Aggravating circumstances were accused was the father of the deceased & the deceased was only 7 years in age & he committed rape and murder - Mitigating factor is that the accused was in the habit of taking wine and drugs, whole case is based on circumstantial evidence, murder has not been committed in an unusual and cruel manner - sentence of life imprisonment sufficient in the circumstances of the case (Para 64)

Appeal partly allowed (E-5)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pradeep Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Saghir Ahmad, Senior Advocate/Amicus Curiae for the appellant and Sri Ajit Ray, learned AGA for the respondents.

2. This appeal has been filed by the appellant Mouni against the impugned judgment dated 19.09.2019, passed in Special Sessions Trial No. 624 of 2018, by Special Judge (POCSO Act)/Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 9, Agra, arising out of Case Crime No. 605 of 2017, under Sections 363, 302, 201, 376(f) IPC and Section 5(n) read with Section 5(m)/6 of the POCSO Act, Police Station Etmadpur, District Agra by which the learned trial court had convicted the appellant Mouni for the offence under Section 302 IPC and awarded death sentence along with fine of Rs. 1 Lakh and in default of fine one year additional imprisonment, under Section 376(f) IPC for life imprisonment along with fine of Rs. 50,000/- and in default of fine six months additional imprisonment, under Section 363 IPC for seven years imprisonment along with fine of Rs. 25,000/- and in default of fine three months additional imprisonment, under Section 201 IPC for three years imprisonment along with fine of Rs. 10,000/- and in default of fine two months additional imprisonment and for the offences under Section 5(n) read with Section 5(m)/6 of the POCSO Act for 14 years rigorous imprisonment along with fine of Rs. 50,000/- and in default of fine six months additional imprisonment.

3. The Special Judge after convicting and sentencing the appellant for death sentence has submitted the record to this Court for confirmation of death sentence under Section 366 CrPC, which has been registered as Reference No. 6 of 2019.

4. The appeal and the reference both are being decided simultaneously as both relate to the same impugned judgment.

5. Briefly, the prosecution case is that accused Mouni himself lodged an oral report on 24/25.11.2017 at about 02:30 AM in the mid night with the allegation that on 24.11.2017, he and his daughter (victim) aged about 7 years, Jeete aged about 9 years were sleeping on the cot in his hut. At about 02:30 AM in the mid night, he got awakened and found that the victim was not on the cot and she was missing. He tried to search her in the surroundings but he could not trace her. The victim was wearing a red trouser and red sweater. Having failed to trace out her, he went to the police station and orally reported the matter and on that basis, the offence against unknown person was registered under Section 363 IPC. SSI Suneel Kumar started the investigation, the police tried to search out the missing child and in the night at about 03:00 AM, she was found in the naked condition in the courtyard of the building of Government Model School. She was taken to the hospital, where she was declared dead. Thereafter a written report was given by the accused Mouni to the Police Station Etmadpur stating that he was living in a hut near the Government Modal School. On 24.11.2019, when he, his daughter and his son were sleeping in the night on cot, at about 2:30 AM in the night he got awakened and found that his daughter is not there on the cot and was missing. He tried to search her and thereafter, he informed about the incident in the police station in the night itself. He and police of the local police station were searching his daughter in the Government Model School building and there in the courtyard, they found the victim in naked condition and her inner-wear (Baniyan)was lying closer to her. There were mark of injuries on her body and bleeding was present in her private part. She was taken to the emergency of the S.N. Hospital, where she was declared dead. He suspects that some unknown person killed her after committing rape.

6. On the basis of this written report an addition of Sections 302, 201, 376 IPC and Section 3/4 POCSO Act were made and the investigation was started. The inquest report of the dead body was prepared, dead body was sealed and after preparing the necessary papers, the dead body was sent for postmortem. The investigating officer recorded the statements of the witnesses, prepared the site map of the place of occurrence, took in possession the wearings of the deceased and took swab etc. from the private part of the deceased. During investigation, prima-facie the offence was made out against the accused Mouni, the informant himself. Charge-sheet was submitted for the aforesaid offence and charges were framed against the accused person.

7. The prosecution has examined as many as 16 witnesses in support. They are PW-1 Kartal, PW-2 Servesh, PW-3 Johny, PW-4 Dr. Udit Kumar, PW-5 Lajja Ram, PW-6 Shailendra Yadav, PW-7 Shammi Kapoor, PW-8 Rahul, PW-9 Ramchandra, PW-10 Constable Sandeep Singh, PW-11 SI Vinod Kumar, PW-12 Sonu, PW-13 Jeete, PW-14 Constable Harendra Singh, PW-15 SO Fateh Bahadur Singh Bhadauria and PW-16 SI Suneel Kumar.

8. The witnesses have proved the incident and the documents such as written report Ext. Ka-1, postmortem report Ext. Ka-2, chik FIR Ext. Ka-3, GD reports Exts. Ka-4 & Ka-5, panchnama Ext. KA-6, 12 & 13, photo nash Exts, Ka-7 &14, charge sheet Ext. Ka-8, site plan Ext. Ka-9, letter to RI Ext. Ka-10, sample seal Ext. Ka-11, form-13 Ext. Ka-15, report of forensic science laboratory Ext. Ka-16, spot investigation/DNA report Exts. Ka-17/1 & 17/2, letter to CMO Ext. Ka-18, application for video-graphy Ext. Ka-19, recovery memo of clothes of deceased Ext. Ka-20, recovery memo of clothes of the accused Ext. K-21 and envelope, swab of the private part of the deceased, hair of the deceased and the accused, clothes etc. material Exts. 1 to 26.

9. The statement of the accused was recorded under Section 313 CrPC, wherein he has denied the prosecution version and has stated the evidence of the witnesses to be false and given due to enmity. He has been falsely implicated in the present case. However, the accused did not produce any evidence in his defence.

10. After perusing the evidence available on record, the learned trial court has passed the aforesaid impugned judgment convicting and sentencing the accused-appellant by awarding death sentence and other punishments.

11. Feeling aggrieved by the impugned judgment, the present appeal from jail has been filed challenging the impugned judgment on the ground that the impugned judgment is against the facts, evidence and law. The sentence awarded is excessive and the prosecution has failed to prove the case against him. No case is made out and the benefit of doubt has not been given to him, hence, the impugned judgment is liable to be set aside and the accused-appellant is entitled for acquittal.

12. The learned trial court has also submitted the record of the case for confirmation of the death sentence.

13. Before proceeding to analyze and examine the evidence on record, it appears necessary to first go through the evidence which has been produced by prosecution in support of case. PW-1 Kartal has stated that at the time of incident, he was living near Government Model School in a hut constructed by him. Besides his hut there is hut of Rajendra. About ten months ago in the mid night at about 03:30 AM, the police team came and awakened him. Mouni was accompanying the police team who told that his daughter is missing. The police along with Mouni started searching the deceased in the building of Government Model School. Sarvesh was also accompanying. After some times, the appellant came with the deceased who was unconscious. She was taken to the Government Hospital. Thereafter, he came to know that Mouni committed rape and killed her. His statement was taken by the police.

14. PW-2 Sarvesh has stated that his hut is in front of the hut of Mouni, wherein he lives with his family. Ten months before at about 03:30 AM in the mid night, the police jeep came and he was awakened. The police was accompanied by Mouni who told that his daughter is missing. They all started searching his daughter. The police went to search the victim in the garden of the school and in the left side of the building, Mouni went and he told that his daughter is lying in the courtyard. The witness has stated that he saw that the victim was lying naked in the school's courtyard. The victim was taken to the S.N. Medical College. Subsequently, he came to know that Mouni has committed murder of his daughter after committing rape on her. His statement was taken by the police.

15. PW-3 Johny has stated that about ten months before Mouni got the report scribed by him and has the proved the written report. He has also stated about the incident as narrated to him by the accused.

16. PW-4 Dr. Udit Kumar, Medical Officer, CHC, Kheragarh, Agra has stated that on 25.11.2017, Constable Harendra Singh of Police Station Etmadpur had brought the sealed dead body of the daughter of Mouni for postmortem. The dead body was unsealed. The height of the deceased was 3 feet and 10 inches and her weight was about 15 Kg. In the external examination, it was found that her mouth and eyes were closed and the white portion of the eyes were congested. The following ante-mortem injuries were found on the body of the deceased-

(I) Teeth bite 4 cm. X 3 cm. on the on face.

(ii) Teeth bite 4 cm. X 3 cm. on chest at nipple.

(iii) Teeth bite 4 cm. X 3 cm. near the umbilical area.

(iv) Abrasion and contusion was present on the left side of the forehead.

(v) Abrasion 2 cm. X 2 cm. on the front of the nose.

(vi) Lacerated wound 0.5 cm. X 0.5 cm. on the lower lips.

(vii) Abrasion and contusion 9 cm. X 2 cm. on the left side of the neck.

In the internal examination, nothing was found in the head. The brain and its membranes were congested. Lungs were found congested. Heart was empty. Half digested food was present in the stomach. Fecal matter and gas was present in the large intestine. In the small intestine digested food and gas was present. Liver was congested and gall bladder was half full. Kidney was congested. Urinary bladder was empty. Hymen was torn. Bleeding was present in the vagina. Uterus was non gravid. Larynx and Vocqal cords were congested. Trachea was also congested and the hyoid bone was intact.

The reason of death was asphyxia. In the cross examination, the doctor has stated that no clear opinion can be given with regard to commission of rape. Postmortem has been conducted on 25.11.2017 at 5.20 PM and according to doctor, death must have been caused ¾ days before on the same day.

17. PW-5 Lajja Ram has stated that about one year before he was passing with Shailendra Yadav through the Government Model School, Etmadpur, where many persons were gathered. On inquiry, he came to know that accused Mouni has committed sexual assault with his 6-7 years old daughter and at that time, he was in a drunk condition. The people of the locality were scolding him. Accused Mouni sought apology and promised not to repeat such thing. He was in the habit of drinking and he committed the offence on her daughter. In the cross-examination, he has stated that he knew the accused.

18. PW-6 Shailendra Yadav has stated the same thing what was stated by PW-5 Lajja Ram.

19. PW-7 Shammi Kapoor has stated that he was living near the Government Model School, Etmadpur in a hut where accused Mouni was also living in a hut with his family. On 24/25.11.2017 at about 03:30 AM in the mid night, police came on jeep with Mouni for searching the victim. Thereafter, the victim was found in the school and he saw that she was in unconscious state. Mouni was carrying his daughter on his shoulder. She was taken to the hospital, where she was declared dead. Mouni was in the habit of taking drugs and wine. Prior to this incident, there was a complaint that he committed sexual assault with his daughter about 5-6 months before. People of the locality scolded him and he sought apology for the same and promised not to repeat such kind of act.

20. PW-8 Rahul has stated that he used to live near the Government Model School, Etmadpur with his family near the hut of Mouni. One year before, at about 03:30 AM in the mid night, police jeep came and got the nearby people awakened. Mouni was also accompanying the police who said that his daughter was missing. On search, the naked body of the daughter of Mouni was found and taken to the hospital where she was declared dead. Mouni was in the habit of taking wine and drugs and used to sexually assault his daughter.

21. PW-9 Ram Chandra has stated that on the next day of the death of deceased, he reached on the spot and inquest report was prepared by the police and he signed on the inquest report.

22. PW-10 Constable Sandeep Singh has stated that on 25.11.2017, he was on night duty in the police station. At about 03:05 AM, Mouni came and informed that on 24.11.2017 in the mid night, his daughter aged about 7 years and his son aged about 9 years were sleeping with him on a cot and at 02:30 AM in the night, when he got awakened, he found that his daughter is missing. He searched but could not trace her. He gave an oral information in the police station. On the basis of which Crime No. 605 of 2017, under Section 363 IPC was registered. Thereafter, on 25.11.2017, at about 06:10 AM, he gave the written report about the rape and murder of his daughter and on that basis the offence was modified by adding Sections 302, 201, 376 IPC and section ¾ POCSO Act. The entry was made in the corresponding GD.

23. PW-11 SI Vinod Kumar has prepared the inquest report.

24. PW-12 Sonu aged about 12 years is son of accused Mouni who has stated that his sister was killed about one year before by his father Mouni, who used to commit sexual assault and rape with her. He had drinking habit and used to take drugs. He could do anything with anyone. He has however accepted that he did not see the accused committing the offence.

25. PW-13 Jeete aged about 8 years is also son of Mouni. He has stated that his sister was killed by his father in the fateful night when she was sleeping with him and his father. In the night she was weeping and she said that she is feeling pain. His father took her out saying that he is going to get medicine for her.

26. PW-14 Constable Harendra Singh had taken the dead body of the deceased for postmortem and he submitted the postmortem report in the police station.

27. PW-15 Fateh Bahadur Singh Bhadauria, incharge police station and IO of the case has stated that during the course of investigation he also recorded the statement of some witnesses and on the basis of collected evidence, the name of Mouni came into light as accused. He also submitted charge sheet against him.

28. PW-16 SI Suneel Kumar traced out the deceased in the Government Model School with the accused and has stated that when they were searching the deceased in the school, the accused went to the left side and came carrying the deceased on his shoulder and said that he has traced his daughter and he found her in the courtyard of the school. He went there and found that there was blood on the place. The deceased was taken to the district hospital where she was declared dead. Accordingly the addition of other offences were made. During investigation, this fact was brought into the knowledge that 5-6 months before also, he committed the same kind of act with the deceased under the influence of wine and drugs. The local people got him scolded. He has also stated that during investigation, Jeete told him about the incident and said that in the night the deceased was weeping and she said that she was feeling pain in her thigh and chest. Mouni got her drink water and took her out for medicine. He has further stated that his father can do anything as he used to take wine and drugs. During investigation Sonu who is also son of the accused has also stated the similar facts. On the above facts and circumstances he arrested the accused Mouni on 27.11.2017. After being arrested, the accused confessed and at his instance, certain incriminatory things such as black Jarkin, jeans and school coat of deceased from the hedges of school which according to accused the victim was wearing at the time of incident, were recovered of which memo Ext. Ka-20 was prepared and the recovered articles were sealed. Similarly, keeping in view the possibility of availability of blood and semen on the clothes of accused he was wearing at the time of accident, the clothes of accused, underwear, shirt, lower and a round neck T-shirt was taken into possession, sealed and memo Ext. Ka-21 was prepared. After recording the statements of relevant witnesses, he prepared the site map and proved the same as Ext. Ka-9. He also prepared the papers prepared for postmortem. He also sent the aforesaid articles and blood samples of the accused and victim to FSL with other items taken from spot during investigation such as one cigarette, half burnt matchstick, one button, black thread and red thread, blood swab, blood/sperm swab from the spot, hair of deceased found on dead body and bed sheet, piece of bed sheet for comparison, swab and hair from the private part of the accused, Hair recovered from the clothes of victim found in hedges and from spot, hair of the accused for comparison. FSL report is on record and sent items have been produced and proved by the witness.

29. The submission of learned counsel for the appellant is that the whole case is based on circumstantial evidence and there is no evidence of rape being committed by the appellant. The first information report was lodged by the appellant himself and he was falsely implicated and made accused in the case. The further submission is that the age of the victim at the time of incident was 6-7 years and the medical evidence shows that she died out of asphyxia and definite opinion with regards to commission of rape has not been given by the doctor conducting postmortem. It has been further submitted that none of the fact witnesses has seen the incident and they have not been able to say that the accused caused the death of deceased or he committed rape. PW-12 Sonu and PW-13 Jeete who are sons of the accused are child witnesses but their intellectual capacity has not been tested by the learned trial court and their testimony cannot be relied upon nor conviction can be based on their testimony. The learned trial court has committed error in concluding that the case of the accused is covered under the rarest of rare cases and, therefore, the death sentence awarded is not legally justified.

30. Learned AGA has submitted that there was sufficient evidence to prove the charge against the accused-appellant and the learned trial court finding the evidence given by the prosecution reliable and trustworthy passed the finding of conviction and considering the fact that the accused was found to be guilty of committing rape and murder of his own 7 years old daughter, the death sentence awarded by the learned trial court is absolutely justified.

31. From perusal of the first information report, it appears that the accused appellant orally informed the police of Police Station Etmadpur regarding his 7 years old daughter got missing in the mid night of 24.11.2017 when he, his son and the victim were sleeping on a cot in his hut. He got awakened at 02:30 AM in the mid night and found the victim missing. He searched her in the surrounding but could not get her. The information has been given at 03:05 AM in the mid night and the case was registered for the offence under Section 363 IPC against unknown person. On his oral report, the police went with him to his residence and made a search and in Government Model School building, in the courtyard, the victim was found in naked condition with her inner-wear close to her body. She was taken to the hospital and she was found to have died. Thereafter, the accused himself gave a written application to the SO stating this version and making allegations that some unknown person has committed rape and murder. Theefore, Sections 302, 201, 376 IPC and 5(n) read with Section 5(m)/6 of the POCSO Act were added. On the basis of statements recorded by the investigating officer, under Section 161 CrPC of witnesses, the name of the accused appellant came in light and he was charge sheeted for the aforesaid offences.

32. The case of the accused-appellant as disclosed from his statement under Section 313 CrPC and in the manner the defence has conducted cross-examination of the prosecution witnesses is of complete denial and he has alleged that he has been wrongly and falsely framed in the case and the whole case is based on false incident. The accused, however, did not give any evidence in his defence.

33. PW-1 Kartal lives near the hut of accused and close to the Government Model School. He has stated that in the fateful night, the victim was found in the government Model School building. She was unconscious and subsequently found dead by the doctor. This witness has stated during cross-examination that he does not know who committed rape and murder of the victim. He was sleeping when he was awakened. He did not see the victim nor he entered in the exercise of her search. He has also stated that he cannot say when she was found in the late mid night. Similar is the statement of the PW-2 Sarvesh with the difference that with police the accused also searched the victim and he saw that victim was lying in the courtyard of Government Model School in the naked condition. He was told by the accused himself that the victim is lying in the courtyard, then he saw her. The accused did not call the police and said that the victim has been traced. In the cross-examination, he has stated that he cannot say who committed rape and killed the victim. PW-3 Johny is only scriber of the written report and he did not see the incident nor he has any knowledge about it. PW-5 has stated that he cannot say how the victim died and whether the rape was committed on her or not. He has stated that a year before, he had seen the accused committing sexual assault on the victim who was 6-7 years old. Similar is the statement of PW-6 Shailendra Yadav and both these witnesses have stated that because of this incident, the crowd collected in front of the house of the accused and all scolded him. PW-7 Shammi Kapoor has also stated in similar manner but he has stated that he did not see the accused doing sexual assault on his daughter and he was told by others. PW-8 Rahul has stated that the accused was edict of wine and drugs and under that affect, he used to commit sexual assault with the victim. Thus, all these witnesses have either stated about the recovery of dead body or about the fact that the accused was in the habit of committing sexual assault on victim and when seen and scolded by people of the locality, he apologized before them. This fact got further affirmed by the statement of PW-12 Sonu who is son of the accused and has also stated that his sister was killed by the accused who used to sexually assault her. He was edict of wine and drugs and he can do anything with anyone. We find that all the fact witnesses except PW-13 Jeete have stated about earlier conduct of the accused who was in the habit of taking wine and also in the habit of committing sexual assault with the victim and he was seen by the persons of that locality. Thus, all these witnesses have stated the background leading to the commission of offence and the sexual perversion of the accused which is one circumstance indicating towards guilt.

34. The statement of PW-13 Jeete has to be seen in the backdrop of the statement given by other witnesses. PW-13 has stated that he was with his father and victim in the fateful night. The victim was sleeping with him and his father. He got awakened in the night as the victim was weeping and she told that she is in pain. Whereupon his father took her out of the hut saying that he is going to take medicine for her and thereafter, she was not seen alive and her dead body was recovered. This also goes to show that the son of the accused himself has proved the fact that he saw his father taking away the victim from the house and prior to that she was weeping and complaining that she is feeling pain. Thus, it is clear that the accused was the person who was last seen with the deceased taking her away out from the house.

35. Learned counsel for appellant has submitted that PW-12 Sonu has also stated that his father never took wine and the drugs before him. This is not relevant. The submission of the learned counsel is that all these witnesses have not stated with conformity regarding the involvement of the accused in the crime. As regards the statement PW-13 Jeete, it has been submitted that he is 8-9 years old and he did not possess that intellectual capacity to give answer to the questions put to him. His intellectual capacity was not tested by the learned trial court and it was not legal on the part of the court to place reliance on his evidence.

36. It is true that there is no evidence of any witness who might have seen the accused committing rape and causing death of the victim and the prosecution case is based on circumstantial evidence of "last seen together" and only PW-13 has been examined to prove this fact. The statement of PW-13 Jeete is significant as an evidence of the circumstance of last seen. The last seen evidence is very important circumstantial evidence and if proved and found trustworthy, it can singularly lead to the inference of guilt. In State of Rajasthan v Kheraj Ram, (2003) 8 SCC 224, Vilas Pandurang Patil v State of Maharashtra, (2004) 6 SCC 158, Arun Bhanudas Pawar v State of Maharashtra, 2008 (61) ACC 32 (SC) Vithal Eknath Adlinge v State of Maharashtra, AIR 2009 SC 2067 and Vijay Kumar v State of Rajasthan, (2014) 3 SCC 412, the Supreme Court has laid down that circumstantial evidence, in order to be relied on, must satisfy the following tests :

1. Circumstances from which an inference of guilt is sought to be drawn must be cogently and firmly established.

2. Those circumstances must be of a definite tendency unerringly pointing towards guilt of the accused.

3. The circumstances, taken cumulatively, should form a chain so complete that there is no escape from conclusion that within all human probability the crime was committed by the accused and none else.

4. The circumstantial evidence in order to sustain conviction must be complete and incapable of explanation of any other hypothesis than that of the guilt of the accused but should be inconsistent with his innocence- in other words, the circumstances should exclude every possible hypothesis except the one to be proved.

37. In Bhimsingh v State of Uttarakhand, (2015) 4 SCC 281, it was laid down that when the conviction is to be based on circumstantial evidence solely, then there should not be any snap in the chain of circumstances. If there is a snap in the chain, the accused in entitled to benefit of doubt. If some of the circumstances in the chain can be explained by any other reasonable hypothesis, then also the accused is entitled to the benefit of doubt. But in assessing the evidence, imaginary possibilities have no place. The court considers ordinary human probabilities.

38. In Rohtas Kumar v State of Haryana, 2013 (82) ACC 401 (SC), Prithipal Singh v State of Punjab, (2012) 1 SCC 10, it has been further laid down that The doctrine of "last seen together" shifts the burden of proof on the accused requiring him to explain how the incident had occurred. Failure on the part of the accused to furnish any explanation in this regard would give rise to a very strong presumption against him.

39. Further, in Ashok v State of Maharashtra, (2015) 4 SCC 393, it was explained by the Supreme Court that initial burden of proof is on prosecution to adduce sufficient evidence pointing towards guilt of accused. However, in case it is established that accused was last seen together with the deceased, prosecution is exempted to prove exact happening of incident as accused himself would have special knowledge of incident and thus would have burden of proof as per Section 106, Evidence Act. But last seen together itself is not conclusive proof but along with other circumstances surrounding the incident like relations between accused and deceased, enmity between them, previous history of hostility, recovery of weapon from accused, etc. non-explanation of death of deceased, etc. may lead to a presumption of guilt of accused.

40. In State of Goa v Pandurang Mohite, AIR 2009 SC 1066, State of UP v Satish, 2005 (3) SCC 114 and Sardar Khan v State of Karnataka, (2004) 2 SCC 442, it has been remarked that circumstances of "last seen together" do not by themselves and necessarily lead to the inference that it was accused who committed the crime. There must be something more establishing connectivity between the accused and the crime. The time gap between last seen alive and the recovery of dead body must be so small that the possibility of any person other than the accused being the author of the crime becomes impossible.

41. In Niranjan Panja v State of WB, (2010) 6 SCC 525 and State of UP v Satish, (2005) 3 SCC 114, it has been further affirmed by the Supreme Court that the last seen theory comes into play where the time-gap between the point of time when the accused and the deceased were seen last alive and when the deceased is found dead is so small that possibility of any person other than the accused being the author of the crime becomes impossible. It would be difficult in some cases to positively establish that the deceased was last seen with the accused when there is a long gap and possibility of other persons coming in between exists.

42. Recently, in Ravi v State of Karnataka, AIR 2018 SC 2744, reversing the conviction based on "last seen together" where there was a time gap of four days between last seen and recovery of dead body and as per postmortem report the death must have occurred 30 hours ago, the Supreme Court held that the time gap was considerably large and no corroboration was forthcoming, and therefore, in absence of any other circumstance which could connect the accused with crime, reasonable doubt as to involvement of accused is created and in such situation, the burden would not shift under section 106 of the Evidence Act. Following the judgment in Mohibur Rahman vs State of Assam, (2002) 6 SCC 715 and Malleshappa vs State of Karnataka, (2007) 13 SCC 399, the court held:

"'Last seen together' is certainly a strong piece of circumstantial evidence against an accused. However, as it has been held in numerous pronouncements of this Court, the time lag between the occurrence of the death and when the accused was last seen in the company of the deceased has to be reasonably close to permit an inference of guilt to be drawn. When the time lag is considerably large,....., it would be safer for the court to look for corroboration."

43. In this instant case, PW-13 Jeete is the son of the accused and the FIR version is that he was sleeping on the same cot with the victim and accused. The incident took place in the post midnight. He was only 8-9 years in age and therefore, the presence of the witness is very natural at the time of last seen. The victim was weeping and she said that she is feeling pain and the accused took her out saying that he is taking her to get medicine. In the same night, her dead body was recovered from the courtyard of the school which situates close to the hut. Seemingly, there is no delay or time-gap between last seen and the discovery of the dead body. The witness is of very tender age and is own son of the accused-appellant and there is no reason to even think that he would give false or even tutored evidence. Therefore, he has been rightly relied by the learned trial court.

44. So far as not testing the intellectual capacity of the PW-13 is concerned, this procedure has been provided to determine whether oath can be administered or not. It appears from his statement that learned trial court has administered oath to him and therefore, it can be inferred that the learned trial court must have found him capable of giving intellectual answers to the questions put to him. Merely because the learned trial court has not entered into preliminary inquiry to test the competence of witness, it cannot be said that the witness was incapable of understanding the nature of questions put to him and was not capable to give rational reply to them. Section 118 of the Evidence Act provides the need for a witness to be competent and the courts may enter into an inquiry to determine competency of a witness if it is required so that oath can be administered. In Rameshwar v State of Rajasthan, AIR 1952 SC 54, on preliminary inquiry, the trial court did not find the child to be competent to be testified, even then the court proceeded to examine the child without administering oath. The Supreme Court held that even then the evidence of the child can be relied upon.

45. In State of Rajasthan v Vijayram, 1968 Cr.LJ 270, it has been held that the child witness despite being not subjected to preliminary examination and despite no finding recorded about his competency by the trial court, if he is found to have given rational answers, his evidence is admissible. In Suresh v State of UP, AIR 1981 SC 1122, the Supreme Court accepted the evidence of five years child who was sole witness and held that conviction can be based on it's testimony.

46. It is only a rule of prudence that there should be a record of the question put and answer received during the preliminary examination for ascertaining the competence of the child witness. But, non-recording of the questions and answers is no ground for rejecting the testimony of child witness if on close scrutiny, it appears to be otherwise reliable. In Suryanarayana v State of Karnatak, (2001) 9 SCC 129 and State of Karnatak v Shantappa Madivalappa Galapuji, (2009) Crimes 245 (SC), it has been held that the court can base conviction on being convinced about the quality of the evidence as the competency of a child witness is not considered in relation to his age, but on his ability to understand the question and to give rational answer. The law, as laid down in Nivrutti Pandurung Kokate, (2008) 12 SCC 565 and Himmat Sukhdeo Wahurwagh v State of Maharashtra, (2009) 2 Crimes 294, is that all persons are competent to testify unless the court thinks otherwise. Thus, unless the court feels that the witness suffers from some disability and incapable of understanding the questions put and to give rational answer, there is no need to enter into preliminary inquiry to ascertain his competence. In Gul Singh Vs. State of MP, 2015 (88) ACC 358 (SC), it has been held that the testimony of a child witness cannot be rejected unless found unreliable & tutored. In view of the law discussed above, we do not find force in the argument of the learned Amicus Curiae /Senior Advocate on this point.

47. The evidence of last seen is further corroborated by medical evidence which shows that at the time of postmortem, hymen of victim was found lacerated and her vagina was bleeding. It is also clear from the postmortem that on her face there was teeth bite. Abrasion and contusion was also there on her forehead and there was abrasion on breast and nose and her lips were lacerated. It is strange that despite ample evidence of sexual assault and rape, the doctor has not given specific opinion on rape. The fact that her hymen was lacerated and vagina was bleeding and there was abrasion and other marks of injury on her body, amply goes to show that rape was committed on her. The FSL report and DNA report also supports this as rightly concluded by the learned trial court. The doctor has stated that the deceased died out of asphyxia and it also shows that she was caused to death by the accused.

48. As many as 17 items were picked either from spot or taken from the accused for chemical examination and DNA test. The report of FSL is Ext. Ka-16. According to the report, on item 3 jacket, item- 4 coat and item-5 blood/swab and items-8 piece of bed sheet, item-9 swab, item-10 hair, item-11 hair and item-12 hair, partial DNA profile was generated. The DNA profile of material item-15 lower, item-16 underwear and item-17 sample blood were found same. On that basis, the learned trial court has rightly concluded that on comparison of the said items of the victim and accused, the DNA of the accused Mouni was found matched. After a close scrutiny of the evidence given by PW-13 and medical evidence, the learned trial court has rightly concluded that the accused committed rape on the victim and caused her death by closing her mouth or by throttling which resulted in asphyxia. It was also noted down by the learned trial court that just to save himself, the accused demonstrated that he was indulged in searching the deceased and when he came with the police and other witnessed, he himself traced her out from the courtyard of the government Model School.

49. Once it is established that it was the accused who took the victim out of the house, it was on the accused to explain what happened thereafter. He was under legal liability under section 106 of the Evidence Act to explain how her private parts was lacerated and why such injuries were found on her body which could not have been caused except by way of sexual assault and in the course of commission of rape on her. In such cases, the POCSO Act and the Evidence Act, both require the accused to show that he was innocent and did not commit rape. On the contrary, the accused made report to the police that when he got awakened, he found his daughter missing which is fabricated and incorrect in view of the statement of PW-13. The incident took place after midnight and the learned trial court has rightly concluded that at that point of time normally people living around his house must have been in a deep sleep. This also find support from the statement of the witnesses that they were awakened by the police and the accused in the mid night to search the victim. The learned trial court has also rightly concluded that the nature of crime is such that if somebody would have seen the accused committing it, such incident could not have taken place. The accused has alleged that he was falsely implicated, but, there appears to be no reason for his false implication nor there is any reason why the people of that locality would give evidence about his drinking habit and sexually sick and perverted behavior. Had it been so as alleged by accused, there is no reason why his own sons would give evidence against him. We find that there is no force in the argument of the defence regarding false implication of the accused. The previous conduct which has been stated by the witnesses that he used to sexually abuse the deceased, also supports the version of the prosecution and if read in conjunction with the statement of last seen given by PW-13, medical evidence and previous conduct of the accused conclusively indicate the hypothesis that it was he and only he who committed rape and murder of the deceased.

50. In view of the above discussion, we find that the conclusion of the learned trial court that the prosecution successfully established that the accused committed rape and murder of the victim is based on unimpeachable evidence of last seen supported by medical and FSL report and the conduct of the accused himself prior to the incident and soon after the incident. The conviction of accused for the offence under section 302/376(f) IPC is legal and justified.

51. The learned trial court has also convicted the accused under section 363 and 201 IPC for the offence of kidnapping from lawful guardianship and for causing disappearance of the evidence of offence. So far as the offence under section 363 is concerned, it is admitted fact that the victim was 6-7 years daughter of accused. Her mother had already died and the age of her brother residing in the hut was only 8-9 years. The accused was the only lawful guardian at the time of incident. Hence, the ingredients of the offence as defined under section 361 and punishable under section 363 were not complete to constitute the offence and as such, not only that the charge-sheet should not have been submitted by police, even the learned trial court was not required to frame charge for the offence under section 363 IPC. Similarly, the accused allegedly took out the victim under the pretext of getting medicine for her and admittedly she was alive at that point of time as she was weeping. The school from where the body of deceased was recovered is close to the hut of the accused. The circumstances are such that the offence might have been committed in the hut or in the courtyard of school or partly in the hut and partly in the school. Thereafter, there is no evidence given by prosecution that he did anything to disappear the body or evidence as the inner-wear of victim was found close to her body and the clothings were also in the hedges of the school. Therefore, the conviction for the offence under section 363 and section 201 is misconceived, unwarranted and illegal and is liable to be set aside.

52. It appears that the accused has been convicted under section 376(f) IPC (it should be section 376(2))(f)) and also for the offence under section 5(n) read with 5(m)/6 of the POCSO Act. Section 376(f) is attracted when rape has been committed by relative, guardian etc for which minimum ten years imprisonment which may extend to life imprisonment is provided which may continue for the remainder of that person's natural life. Section 6 of the POCSO Act provides punishment for aggravated penetrative assault on a girl below the age of 18 years which shall not be less than 10 years and which may extend to life imprisonment. Section 42 of the POCSO Act provides that where the offence is punishable under this Act and also under section 376 etc IPC, the offender found guilty of such offence shall be liable to punishment under POCSO Act or under the IPC providing greater punishment in degree. We find that section 376 IPC provides punishment which is greater in degree as life imprisonment under section 376(2) may extend to remainder natural life of the accused. Therefore, the learned trial court should have awarded punishment only for the offence punishable under section 376(2)(f) read with section 6 of the POCSO Act and not under section 6 separately. Hence, the separate sentence under section 5(n) read with 5(m)/6 is neither legally required nor justified and the separate sentence is modified and set aside as above.

53. Now, the question is whether the case is covered under the "rarest of the rare case" and the death sentence is justified. In Bachan Singh vs. State of Punjab, AIR 1980 SC 898, the Supreme Court upheld the constitutional validity of death sentence with the rider that it must be imposed in "rarest of the rare" cases and before awarding the death sentence, the following questions may be asked and answered :

1. Is there something uncommon about the crime which renders sentence of imprisonment for life inadequate and calls for a death sentence?

2. Are the circumstances of the crime such that there is no alternative but to impose death sentence even after according maximum weightage to the mitigating circumstances which speak in favour of the Offender?

54. If upon taking an overall view of all the circumstances in the light of the aforesaid proposition and taking into account the answers to the questions posed here in above, the circumstances of the cases are such that death sentence is warranted, the court would proceed to do so. In Machi Singh vs. State of Punjab (1983) 3 SCC 470 the Supreme Court tried to explain, define and identify the meaning of "rarest of the rare' dictum as propounded by Bachan Singh (supra) in the following manner-

1. When the murder is committed in an extremely brutal, grotesque diabolical, revolting, or dastardly manner so as to arouse intense and extreme indignation of the community. For instance, (i) when the house of the victim is set aflame with the end in view to roast him alive in the house, (ii) when the victim is subjected to inhuman acts of torture or cruelty in order to bring about his or her death, (iii) when the body of the victim is cut into pieces or his body is dismembered in a fiendish manner.

2. When the murder is committed for a motive which evince total depravity and meanness. For instance when (a) a hired assassin commits murder for the sake of money or reward (b) a cold blooded murder is committed with a deliberate design in order to inherit property or to gain control over property of a ward or a person under the control of the murderer or vis-à-vis whom the murderer is in a dominating position or in a position of trust. (c) a murder is committed in the course for betrayal of the motherland.

3. When murder of a Scheduled Caste or minority community etc., is committed not for personal reasons but in circumstances which arouse social wrath. For instance when such a crime is committed in order to terrorize such persons and frighten them into fleeing from a place or in order to deprive them or, make them with a view to reverse past injustices and in order to restore the social balance.

4. In cases of "bride burning' and what are known as "dowry-deaths' or when murder is committed in order to remarry for the take of extracting dowry once again or to marry another woman on account of infatuation.

5. When the crime is enormous in proportion. For instance when multiple murders say of all or almost all the members of a family or a large number of persons of a particular caste, community, or locality, are committed.

6. When the victim of murder is (a) an innocent child who could not have or has not provided even an excuse, much less a provocation, for murder, (b) a helpless woman or a person rendered helpless by old age or infirmity, (c) a person vis-à-vis whom the murderer is in a position of domination or trust, (d) a public figure generally loved and respected by the community for the services rendered by him and the murder is committed for political or similarly reasons other than personal reasons.

55. In Ravji vs. State of Rajasthan (1996) 2 SCC 175, where the Supreme Court held that it is only characteristics relating to crime, and not to criminal, which are relevant for sentencing. The Court observed as follows:

"The crimes had been committed with utmost cruelty and brutality without any provocation, in a calculated manner. It is the nature and gravity of the crime but not the criminal, which are germane for consideration of appropriate punishment in a criminal trial. The Court will be failing in its duty if appropriate punishment is not awarded for a crime which has been committed not only against the individual victim but also against the society to which the criminal and victim belong. The punishment to be awarded for a crime must not be irrelevant but it should conform to and be consistent with the atrocity and brutality with which the crime has been perpetrated, the enormity of the crime warranting public abhorrence and it should "respond to the society's cry to justice against the criminal'."

56. In Swamy Shraddananda (2) vs. State of Karnataka, (2008) 13 SCC 767 the Supreme Court observed:

"The inability of the criminal justice system to deal with all major crimes equally effectively and the want of uniformity in the sentencing process by the Court lead to a marked imbalance in the end results. On the one hand there appears a small band of cases in which the murder convict is sent to the gallows on confirmation of his death penalty by this Court and on the other hand there is a much wider area of cases in which the offender committing murder of a similar or a far more revolting kind is spared his life due to lack of consistency by the Court is giving punishments or worse the offender is allowed to slip away unpunished on account of the deficiencies in the criminal justice system."

57. In this case the appellant was convicted for the offense of murder and was awarded death sentence by the Session Judge and the death sentence was confirmed by the Karnataka High Court. The matter came before the Supreme Court in appeal where a bench of two Judges unanimously upheld the conviction but expressed a different view on the punishment. The matter came for consideration before the larger Bench of the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court referred to Bachan Singh (supra) and Machhi Singh (supra) to hold that death sentence could only be awarded in "rarest of the rare case' on recording special reasons and in doing so the court should put itself in the position of the "community' whose collective conscience is so shocked that it will expect the court exercising judicial power to inflict death penalty. Machhi Singh (supra) very carefully crafted the categories of murder in which the society may demand death sentence. The Supreme Court however made it clear that Machhi Singh criteria even though useful but looking to the long gap passed after that judgment, it can not be absolute or inflexible. Referring to Aloke Nath Dutta v State of WB, (2007) 12 SCC 230 and other cases took the view that the most glaring deficiency of the criminal justice system is the lack of consistency in the sentencing process. The Court also referred Jayawant Dattatraya Suryarao vs. State of Maharasthra, (2001) 10 SCC 109 and Nazir Khan vs. State of Delhi (2003) 8 SCC 461 and observed:

"..... this Court modified the death sentence to imprisonment for life or in some cases imprisonment for a term of twenty years with the further direction that the convict must not be released from prison for the rest of his life or before actually serving out the term of twenty years, as the case may be, mainly on two premises; one, an imprisonment for life, in terms of Section 53 read with Section 45 of the Penal Code meant imprisonment for the rest of life of the prisoner and two, a convict undergoing life imprisonment has no right to claim remission."

58. Emphasizing that there is no law on the basis of which a sentence for life imprisonment can be automatically treated as a sentence for a definite period and without any formal remission by appropriate government it will mean an imprisonment for the whole of the natural life of the convicted person, the Court further observed:

".....the unsound way in which remission is actually allowed in cases of life imprisonment make out a very strong case to make a special category for the very few cases where the death penalty might be substituted by the punishment of imprisonment for life or imprisonment for a term in excess of fourteen years and to put that category beyond the application of remission."

59. The Supreme Court pointed out that the issue of sentencing has two aspects.

A sentence may be excessive and unduly harsh or it may be highly disproportionate and inadequate. Some times the court may feel that the case falls short of the rarest of the rare category and death sentence should not be confirmed. But at the same time, considering the nature of the crime, a sentence of life imprisonment for a term of only fourteen years would be grossly inadequate and will amount to no punishment at all. Endorsing the life sentence to mean a sentence for whole natural life, the Court remarked:

".....the formalization of special category of sentence, though for an extremely few number of cases, shall have the great advantage of having the death penalty on the statute book but to actually use it as little as possible, really in the rarest of rare cases. This would only be a reassertion of the Constitution bench decision in Bachan Singh, besides being in accordance with the modern trends in penology."

60. In Dilip Prem Narayan Tiwari vs. State of Maharastra, AIR 2010 SC 36, the Supreme Court, reducing the sentence to that of life imprisonment for 25 years clearly held that multiple murder itself would not be sufficient for imposing death sentence and selecting the sentence the nature of crime, background of criminal, his mind set in the commission of offence and social status are relevant factors. Subsequent decisions show that the Supreme Court has followed the Shradhanand pattern and has substituted life imprisonment for rest of life. For instance, in Sebastian vs. State of Kerala, (2010) 1 SCC 58 where the accused was previously convicted for the offence u/s 354 and further for the offence u/s 363, 376, 379, 302 and 201 IPC for rape and murder of young child and was awarded life imprisonment and he was facing trial for the murder of several children, was awarded death sentence and his sentence was reduced to life imprisonment for rest of life on the ground that the case was based on circumstantial evidence and the accused was a young man of 24 years at the time of incident. In Vikram Singh v State of Punjab, (2010) 3 SCC 56 three accused persons were awarded death sentence for kidnapping and murder for ransom. The Supreme Court upheld the sentence in respect of two accused persons but converted the sentence into life for the third accused.

61. In Mulla v State of UP, (2010) 3 SCC 508 the Supreme Court emphasized that the sentence should be proportionate and befitting to crime and capable of deterring other potential offenders. Finding that the accused persons belonged to extremely poor background and even though they committed murder of five innocent persons for ransom, the Court remarked that criminals who commit crimes due to economic backwardness are most likely to be reformed and therefore converted the death sentence to life sentence for rest of life. The Supreme Court made it clear that death sentence should be awarded only when no other option is available and in such cases the brutality aspect should be considered along with other mitigating factors. He also pointed out that where death sentence has been substituted by life sentence, the courts are free to extend the sentence to rest of life.

62. In Sandeep v State of UP, (2012) 6 SCC 107, the accused was sentenced with death penalty which was upheld by the Allahabad High Court. The Supreme Court, while upholding the conviction of the accused Sandeep, converted the death sentence to life imprisonment with the condition that the main culprit Sandeep would serve minimum imprisonment for 30 years without remissions during the said period. The co-accused was ordered to serve imprisonment for minimum 20 years without remission. Again, in Union of India v V. Sriharan alias Murugan, (2016) 7 SCC 1, the Shradhanand pattern was affirmed on a Reference made by the Court in Union of India v V. Sriharan alias Murugan, 2014 (11) SCC 1 in respect of remission the state was inclined to grant and release the assailants of Rajiv Gandhi. The Court endorsing the judicial power so innovated by the Court and it was remarked that the High Court or Supreme Court may convert the death sentence or impose life imprisonment for the remainder life of the convict. It was remarked that the Court may "alter the said punishment (death sentence) with one either for the entirety of the convict's life or for any specific period of more than 14 years, say 20, 30 or so on depending upon the gravity of the crime committed and the exercise of judicial conscience befitting such offence found proved to have been committed."

63. Similarly, Raj Kumar v. State of Madhya Pradesh, (2014) 5 SCC 353, a case concerning the rape and murder of a 14 years old girl, the Court directed the appellant therein to serve a minimum of 35 years in jail without remission. In Selvam v. State, (2014) 12 SCC 274, the Court imposed a sentence of 30 years in jail without remission in a case concerning the rape of a 9yearold girl. In Tattu Lodhi v. State of MP, (2016) 9 SCC 675, where the accused was found guilty of committing the murder of a minor girl aged 7 years, the Court imposed the sentence of imprisonment for life with a direction not to release the accused from prison till he completed the period of 25 years of imprisonment. Similar approach has been adopted in Parsuram v State of MP, (2019) 8 SCC 382. Recently, in Sachin Kumar Singhraha v State of MP, (2019) 8 SCC 371, where the accused was sentenced capital punishment for the offence of rape and murder of 5 years girl, the Supreme Court converted the sentence into life imprisonment for 25 years without remission and has observed:

"Life imprisonment is the rule to which the death penalty is the exception. The death sentence must be imposed only when life imprisonment appears to be an altogether inappropriate punishment, having regard to the relevant facts and circumstances of the crime."

64. We find that the aggravating circumstances in this case is that the accused was the father of the deceased and the deceased was only 7 years in age and he committed rape and murder. The mitigating factor is that the accused was in the habit of taking wine and drugs, his wife was not alive and the whole case is based on circumstantial evidence and the murder has not been committed in an unusual and cruel manner. In the facts and circumstances of this case and on the basis of the law discussed above, we are of the view that the learned trial court was not justified in awarding death sentence and the sentence of life imprisonment could have been sufficient in the circumstances of the case. The conviction under section 376(2)(f) IPC and under section 5(n) read with 5(m)/6 of the POCSO Act is upheld but the separate punishment under section section 5(n) read with 5(m)/6 of the POCSO Act is not sustainable in view of section 42 of the POCSO Act and is set aside.

65. The conviction and sentence of accused Mouni for the offence under section 363 and section 201 IPC is not sustainable under law and is set aside and consequently, he is acquitted from the said charge.

66. In view of above, affirming the conviction, we modify the death sentence awarded for the offence under section 302 IPC to accused Mouni into life imprisonment with the direction that the life imprisonment shall continue for the whole span of natural life of accused and could not be less than 25 years rigorous imprisonment without remission. The sentence of fine is modified to Rs. 50000/-, and in default, for 6 months additional imprisonment. The sentence awarded under section 376(2)(f) IPC would mean a sentence of life imprisonment for the offence under 376(2)(f) IPC read with section 5(n) read with 5(m)/6 of the POCSO Act and the sentence of fine is modified to Rs. 25000/- and in default, 4 months additional imprisonment. Both the sentences shall run concurrently.

67. With the above modification, the Criminal Appeal and Reference are finally disposed of.

68. The Senior Advocate Shri Saghir Ahmad shall be given Rs. 15000/- for his work as Amicus Curiae and legal assistance to the Court.

69. Office is directed to send the certified copy of this judgment along with lower court record to the court concerned for information and compliance.

Criminal Appeal No. 05 of 1996

Sher Singh & Ors. ...Appellants(In Jail)
Versus
State of U.P. ...Opposite Party

Counsel for the Appellants:
Sri U.N. Sharma, Sri R.S. Prasad, Sri Anoop Trivedi, Sri Abhishek Shukla

Counsel for the Opposite Party:
A.G.A.

Criminal Law - Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860)-Section 302 - Murder - Motive - Previous enmity as a motive of murder mentioned in FIR - enmity is a two-edged sword - It may be a reason for murder or a reason for false implication of the accused persons - Held - In view of the proof of enmity between the first informant and the accused party, material contradictions/omissions in the first report drawn by PW-1 become much more important. (Para 23)

Evidence law-Evidence Act (1 of 1872)-Section 134 - Murder - Solitary witness - Conviction on evidence of single witness - oral testimony of a single witness can be classified into three categories namely, (i) Wholly reliable, (ii) Wholly unreliable, (iii) Neither wholly reliable nor wholly unreliable - Where the single witness is neither wholly reliable nor wholly unreliable - the Court should look for corroboration in material particulars by reliable testimony, direct or circumstantial before acting upon the testimony of the single witness - On any suspicion about the truthfulness of the solitary witness, his testimony has to be discarded (Para 24)

between ocular and medical evidence - Ocular evidence has primacy - Unless completely ruled out by medical evidence - when the contradiction between medical and ocular evidence is so extreme that the medical evidence completely rules out all possibilities of the ocular evidence being true at all, that the ocular evidence is liable to be disbelieved - where the oral evidence is totally irreconcilable with the medical evidence, it becomes obligatory for the prosecution to clarify the discrepancy - In case, the prosecution fails to do so, benefit has to go to the accused (Para 28)

Entire prosecution case rests on the evidence of solitary witness, PW-1, brother of deceased - In the FIR informant PW1(brother of deceased) did not mention that he was present on the spot or had seen the incident- no mention of the weapons carried by the accused persons or their roles in the assault - No detail as to how incident had occurred - For the first time, in his deposition before the Court, PW-1 gives detail narration of the incident - testimony of solitary witness PW1 full of contradictions, material improvements - Held - prosecution failed to explain material improvement in the evidence of PW-1 - It was obligatory for the prosecution to have clarified the discrepancy between the medical evidence and the oral evidence - Prosecution not been able to prove its case beyond all reasonable doubts – Conviction set aside – Appeal allowed

Appeal Allowed (E-5)

1. Heard Sri Anoop Trivedi learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Abhishek Shukla, learned Advocate for the appellants and Sri Jai Narayan learned A.G.A.-I, for the State-respondent.

2. This appeal is directed against the judgment and order dated 22.12.1995 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Muzaffarnagar in Sessions Trial No. 51 of 1993 (State vs. Sher Singh and others) for offence under Section 302 readwith Section 34 IPC, registered at the Police Station Kandhala, District Muzaffarnagar. Four appellants herein have been convicted and sentenced for life for the offences under Section 302 readwith Section 34 IPC, out of whom one appellant no. 3 (Sadhu) had died during pendency of the present appeal.

3. A written report dated 12.8.1992 was filed by Jaiveer Singh son of Neturam, resident of village Garhi Ram Kaur, Police Station Kandhala, District Muzaffarnagar at about 9:45 AM, stating therein that, at about 8:00 AM, while his brother Ramesh was going to the field from his house carrying 'Bogie' 'Jhhota' and food, as soon as he reached at the 'Chak Road' in front of the field of Jai Singh son of Multan, four accused persons named in the FIR had murdered him by firearms. The name of the accused persons indicated in the first information report are Sher Singh son of Ram Singh, Sahendra son of Ram Singh, Sadhu son of Swarup and Gulab son of Malkhan. It is averred therein that the incident was witnessed by Atar Singh son of Chhota, Sahi Ram son of Chhajju and Others. The motive to commit the crime as indicated therein was the litigation going on between the parties and the resultant animosity. The written report was scribed by Brijpal Singh son of Prakash Chand, resident of the same village.

4. As the prosecution story unfolded, police had reached the spot and recovery memos were prepared of the blood stained and plain earth; one steel glass, a bowl and a box of Aluminum with lid and a rubber slipper (Relaxo No. 7); an empty cartridge 12 Bore Red Colour at the bottom of which KF Special 12 Indian Ordinance Factory was written and another empty cartridge 315 Bore Brass at the bottom of which 8MM KF91 was written, all items found besides the dead body. They are marked as Exhibits 'Ka-10', 'Ka-11' and 'Ka-12'. The inquest report marked as Exhibit 'Ka-7' mentioned the time of its commencement as 10:15 AM on 12.8.1992 and completion at about 11:15 AM. There is also a mention therein of the recovered empty cartridges and articles from besides the dead body as kept in the recovery memos mentioned above.

5. A careful reading of the inquest report indicates that the dead body of Ramesh Singh was sealed in a black blanket and handed over on 12.8.1992 to the Constables Kishori Lal and Vijay Pal and that they moved to the Sadar Hospital, Muzaffarnagar alongwith relevant papers for postmortem. The postmortem was, however, conducted on 13.8.1992 at about 10:15 AM. It is mentioned in the postmortem report that the body brought by Constables Kishori Lal and Vijay Pal was received in 'Sealed' state. The estimated time of death mentioned therein is about one day.

6. The external condition of the dead body as described therein is as under:-

"Average built body, Rigor Mortis present in upper and lower extremities. Adbomen distended , greenish discolouration present over lower part of abdomen, face bloated, bloody mucous coming out from nostrils, genital organ slightly swollen, Surgical dressing present over left little finger over a leeking wound.

Ante-mortem injuries are:-

(iv) Gunshot wound of entrance 4½ c.m. x 3½ c.m. x chest and abdomen cavity deep present on posterior lateral aspect of right chest lower part, 12 c.m. below from inferior angle of right scapula & 14 c.m. away from mid line, margins of the wound are irregular & inverted, blackening, scorching and tattooing present, direction from right back to left front, 7th & 8th right ribs fractured underneath. Right dome of diaphragm, right lower to lope of right lung, liver lacerated body underneath."

On internal examination, it was found that:-

"brain and membranes of the skull were lacerated at places, Right middle cranial fossa fractured, Rt. lacerated under injury of chest, Rt. pleural cavity containing one point of blood. Rt. lungs lacerated. Heart membrane lacerated at places, cavity containing 50 ml. blood. Abdomen membrane lacerated at places, cavity containing 2 point of blood, stomach empty, small intestine containing gases and large intestine containing gases & faecal matter. Liver lacerated.

Few pellets, bullets were taken out from the body of deceased and were sealed.

Cause of death is due to shock & Hemorrhage as a result of ante-mortem injuries noted above. The estimated time of death is about one day ago.

7. The prosecution produced two witnesses of fact namely Jaiveer Singh, the first informant as PW-1 and Sahi Ram son of Nain Singh as PW-2 being eye-witnesses of the incident. Amongst formal witnesses, PW-3 Dr. M.M. Sharma, who had conducted postmortem, proved his report as Exhibit 'Ka-2'. In cross-examination, PW-3 stated that all papers pertaining to the postmortem were received in the Mortuary on 13.8.1992 at about 10:00 AM, and the said fact had been mentioned in the Challan Lash Paper No. 14/8. When confronted, PW-3 stated that since gases and faecal matter were present in the Large Intestine, it was possible that death was caused on 12.8.1992 in the morning between 5-6 AM before deceased went to ease himself. On a suggestion, he replied that in the event of having meal, stomach would be empty within 5 to 6 hours. As to the nature of injuries, he replied that injury no. 4 might have been caused from a distance of about 3 to 4 ft.

The Investigating Officer had appeared in the witness box as PW-4 and proved that the site plan was prepared in his handwriting and signature, exhibited as Exhibit 'Ka-3'. The accused Sher Singh was arrested on 21.8.1992. The statements of the eye-witnesses Sahi Ram son of Chhajju, Achpal and another Sahi Ram son of Nain Singh were recorded on 23.8.1992. The statement of other accused persons, namely Sahendra was recorded after he surrendered in the Court of the Chief Judicial Magistrate, and of Sadhu and Gulab Singh were recorded in the District Jail after they surrendered. The charge sheet was submitted in the Court on 20.9.1992 and was proved being his handwriting and signature as Exhibit 'Ka-4'.

PW-5 is the Head Constable Sridatt Tyagi who had proved the Chik FIR and GD entry of about 9:45 AM of the registration of the first information report being in his handwriting and signature as Exhibit 'Ka-5' and 'Ka-6'. He has denied the suggestion of the FIR being lodged after deliberations with the Investigating Officer. PW-6 Constable Chetram proved the recovery memos and inquest report being in his handwriting and signature (Exhibits 'Ka-8' to 'Ka-13'). On being confronted about overwriting in the inquest report, he explained that the same had occurred because of fault of the pen. He denied suggestion of preparation of inquest without the existence of first information report of the incident. Constable Kishori Lal appeared in the witness-box as PW-7 and proved that the dead body was handed over to them for postmortem and it was sealed after the inquest. They received the dead body on 12.8.1992 at about 11:15 AM and took it to the Mortuary through tractor, which was about 65-70 kms. from the place of the incident. They reached back to the police station on the next day. The first informant was not accompanying them whereas other family members were with them.

By reading the statement of PW-7, learned Senior Advocate appearing for the appellants pointed out that PW-7 had deposed that the dead body was handed over to him after inquest in the Jungle of Gram Garhi Ram Kaur. The submission, thus, is that the statement of the first informant in the written report that his brother was done to death at the Chak Road in front of the field of Jai Singh is wrong. The place of incident mentioned in the Chik FIR is also the Jungle of Gram Garhi Ram Kaur located at a distance of about 6 kms. towards South-East of the police station. The place of incident being the Chak Road has neither been mentioned in the first information report nor there is any evidence on record to prove the same. Further, the Investigating Officer though collected blood stained and plain earth allegedly from the place of incident but the same was not sent for chemical examination so as to ascertain the place of occurrence or that the blood collected by the police from the site was in fact human blood. There is no recovery of weapons of offence allegedly committed by four persons and as such there was no question of tallying two empty cartridges (one of 12 Bore and another of 315 Bore) recovered from the spot. The submission, thus, is that the accused persons could not be connected with the crime-in-question by bringing any cogent evidence.

8. As far as the eye-witness account is concerned, it is vehemently urged that the statement of the first informant as PW-1 in the Court that he was also going to the field on foot behind the 'Bogie' is nothing but a material improvement in the narration made by him. The said fact is conspicuously missing in the first information report. By reading the written report submitted by PW-1, it is contended that in his earliest account of the incident, he did not even mention that he was present on the spot or had seen the incident. His narration in the first information report gives a clear indication that the incident was seen by other villagers namely Atar Singh, Sahi Ram and some more persons (unnamed). That means the report of the incident was made by him on the information received about the occurrence from other alleged witnesses. For the first time, in his deposition before the Court, PW-1 gives detail narration of the incident, which as urged by the learned counsel for the appellants, is nothing but an improvement.

9. The submission is that PW-1 was not present at the place of incident, inasmuch as, deceased Ramesh Singh was killed in the late night or early hours of the morning on 12.8.1992. No one had actually seen the incident and for this reason the names of eye-witnesses have been vaguely indicated in the written report lodged by PW-1, whereas he did not mention himself as an eye-witness. The names of other two witnesses who were related to him was introduced in his deposition in the Court for the first time, whereas two others, whose names have been mentioned in the first information report, were also related to the first informant, all being members of the immediate extended family. A suggestion in this regard has been given to PW-1 in the cross-examination but all questions pertaining to his relation with the witnesses were answered in an evasive manner. It, however, became clear that Atar Singh, Achpal, Sahi Ram son of Chhajju and another Sahi Ram son of Nain Singh, all the alleged witnesses were related to him. Further, it was admitted by PW-1 in the cross-examination that accused Sher Singh contested election of Pradhan against Jaipal and PW-1 was supporter of Jaipal. It has also come up in the deposition of PW-1 that his brother Munna was an accused in the murder of brother of Gulab (one of the accused). On a suggestion given by the defence that no independent witness had been examined, PW-1 averred that Sahi Ram and Atra were working at about 100 paces towards North from the place of incident. PW-1 was also confronted on the fact that he did not mention himself as an eye-witness in the first information report, in reply he states that he dictated the said fact but it was not known as to why it was not written there.

10. Learned Senior Advocate for the appellants further pointed out from the deposition of PW-1 in the cross-examination that according to him, deceased had his meal at about 8:00 AM, i.e. before he proceeded to the field. PW-1 states that the place of incident was about 1½ kms. of the village and the first informant was about 100 paces behind the deceased. The written report was scribed at the place of incident by Brij Pal who brought papers from his Boring. They then went to the police station between 9:00 to 09:15 AM through motorcycle. PW-1 states that his brother was dragged to the ground and was not killed on the 'Bogie'. He states that the blood scattered on the ground was not collected by the Investigating Officer; two empty cartridges were, however, collected from the spot and all papers were prepared on the spot itself.

Placing the above extract of the statement of PW-1, it is vehemently argued by the learned counsel for the appellants that PW-1 cannot be said to be an eyewitness of the incident. His testimony in this regard is wholly unbelievable for the simple fact that according to him, deceased proceeded to the field after having his meal which included Dal and Roti. It is urged that according to the written report dictated by PW-1, his brother deceased Ramesh Singh left his home at 8:00 AM and was murdered within 15 minutes thereafter, at about 8:15 AM. On internal examination of the dead body, as indicated in the postmortem report, both Stomach and Small Intestine of deceased were found empty whereas gases and faecal matter were present in the Large Intestine. This condition of the dead body clearly reveals that deceased was murdered before he defecated. It is, thus, argued that looking to the improvement in the deposition of PW-1 in the Court and inherent improbability of the prosecution story about the time of occurrence of the incident as is evident from the medical report, it cannot be accepted that PW-1 was an eye-witness of the incident. There is a serious doubt about the time and place of occurrence of the incident. The improvements and inconsistencies in the deposition of PW-1 are material and go to the root of the matter to shake the version of the prosecution about PW-1 being an eye-witness. The testimony of PW-1, as such, is to be discarded as a whole. Reliance is placed on the decisions of the Apex Court in Darbara Singh vs State Of Punjab1, Moti vs. State of U.P.2 and State of U.P. vs. Ashok Kumar and another3 to assert that where the oral evidence is totally irreconcilable with the medical evidence, it becomes obligatory for the prosecution to clarify the discrepancy. In case, the prosecution fails to do so, benefit has to go to the accused.

11. It is further contended that another eye-witness PW-2 Sahi Ram son of Nain Singh though stated that he reached the spot of occurrence after hearing the sound of gunshot and saw that Ramesh Singh was hit by the firearm and that Jaiveer his brother was present on the spot, but he has refused to identify the assailants by saying that he had seen them only fleeing away from the spot. And for this reason, this witness was declared hostile and was cross-examined by the prosecution. However, on confrontation with his statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C., he categorically stated that he did not mention the name of the assailants to the Investigating Officer but he did not know as to how their names were mentioned in his statement. He further denied suggestion of being won over by the accused persons.

The submission is that other witnesses who allegedly had seen the occurrence have not been produced by the prosecution nor any independent person who was owner of the surrounding fields had appeared in the witness-box to corroborate either the time or the place of occurrence. The testimony of PW-2 in his examination-in-chief that he reached at the place of occurrence and had seen the first informant being present on the spot, is unbelievable, inasmuch as, his own presence on the spot does not seen to be natural. It is pointed out that PW-2 was not named as witness in the FIR. PW-2 stated that he was going alongwith Achpal another villager and had reached at the place of occurrence, i.e. at the Chak Road near the field of Jai Singh by chance, on hearing the sound of gunshot. Even if, this part of his testimony is believed to be true, at the best, he can be said to be a Chance witness. Nothing has been brought by the prosecution to prove that the presence of PW-2 at the scene of occurrence was natural and it was possible for him to reach the spot in the natural course of events. PW-2 is a hostile witness, according to the learned counsel for the appellants, even this part of his testimony in the examination-in-chief is not to be taken of any assistance to the case of the prosecution. In that event, the entire prosecution case rests on the evidence of solitary witness, PW-1, who happens to be brother of deceased. It is contended that the testimony of solitary witness has to be examined with great care and circumspection and cannot be made basis for conviction unless wholly reliable. On any suspicion about the truthfulness of the solitary witness, his testimony has to be discarded.

Reliance is placed on the decisions of the Apex Court in State of Rajasthan vs. Bhola Singh and another4, Lallu Manjhi and another vs. State of Jharkhand5, Munna alias Pooran Yadav vs. State of Madhya Pradesh6 and Takdir Samsuddin Sheikh vs. State of Gujarat and another7 to assail the same.

12. It is contended that moreover, the presence of enmity between the solitary witness (PW-1) and the accused persons is proved from the cross-examination of PW-1 itself. The alleged eye-witness, thus, is not only a related witness but also an interested one. His testimony has to be discarded for this reason also. In any case, it was incumbent on the prosecution to produce independent witness/persons who were occupying the adjoining fields, as according to the alleged eye-witness, the incident had occurred during day time on the Chak Road. No one whose presence was natural at the scene of occurrence had been produced. Adverse inference, therefore, has to be drawn against the prosecution and the benefit has to go to the accused persons. Reliance is placed on the decision of the Apex Court in State of Uttar Pradesh vs. Punni and others8.

Lastly, placing decisions in Babu and others vs. State of Uttar Pradesh9 and Takdir Samsuddin Sheikh7, it is contended that substantial improvement in the version of eye-witness before the Court and contradiction between oral testimony and medical evidence prove fatal to the whole prosecution case. The trial court has erred in basing conviction on the shaky version of the sole eye-witness ignoring all the above inconsistencies and discrepancies inherent in it. The judgment of conviction of the appellants, therefore, deserved to be set aside and the appeal may be allowed.

13. Learned A.G.A., on the other hand, urged that the incident-in-question is a broad day-light incident. It had occurred at about 8:15 AM and the first information report was promptly lodged at 9:45 AM.

The place of incident indicated in the Chik FIR is the Jungle of Gram Garhi. Jungle of a village or field near the village in the local language is one and the same place. It cannot be assumed that the incident had occurred in a Jungle or a forest away from the village as there is nothing on record to believe so. The first informant is the brother of the deceased. His narration of accompanying the deceased to the field is natural. There are four accused persons whose names were clearly indicated in the first information report being the assailants. The FIR discloses not only the names of two persons as witnesses but indicates that apart from them, others had also seen the occurrence. The empty cartridges of 12 Bore and 315 Bore recovered from the spot support the deposition of PW-1 in the Court regarding weapons in the hands of the assailants. The inquest was done on the same day and soon after it was completed at 11:15 AM, body was sent for postmortem from the place of incident itself. The distance of the Mortuary from the place of incident being 65-70 kms. is clearly mentioned in the deposition of PW-

7 Kishori Lal. In the said scenario, if the postmortem was done on the next day i.e. 13.8.1992 in the morning at 10:15 AM, that would not be a factor to create any dent in the story of the prosecution being immaterial. Moreso, when PW-7 categorically proved that he took the dead body to the Mortuary straight way from the place of incident and handed over to the doctor in sealed condition.

Lastly, it is contended that presence of the first informant Jaiveer at the place of incident was also proved by PW-2 Sahi Ram in his deposition in the examination-in-chief, who also belong to the same village. And PW-1 in his deposition in the Court categorically stated that the incident was witnessed by PW-2 Sahi Ram son of Nain Singh. The presence of PW-1 at the place of occurrence, therefore, is corroborated by another eye-witness. Even though PW-2 was declared hostile but this part of his testimony has to be taken as consistent to accept that he had seen PW-1 at the relevant time on the spot of occurrence.

14. In the above scenario, the trial court on appreciation of the entire evidence cumulatively has rightly accepted the prosecution version to base the conviction on the evidence led by it. There is no infirmity in the decision of the trial court. The appeal deserves to be dismissed being devoid of merits.

Reliance is placed on the decisions of the Apex Court in Atmaram and others vs. State of Madhya Pradesh10 and Hiralal Pandey and others vs. State of U.P.11.

15. We have considered the rival submissions made by the learned counsels for the parties and perused the record. The first information report was registered on a written report filed by the brother of deceased. Noticeable is the fact that in the written report which was the first/earliest account of the incident, there is not even a whisper that the first informant was present or had seen the occurrence. The report rather suggests that two named witnesses therein including some other persons had seen the occurrence. The averments of the first information report are in the nature of information given to the police about the murder of Ramesh Singh, brother of the first informant, based on the knowledge gathered by the first informant which seems to be hearsay. There is no mention of the weapons carried by the accused persons (four in number) or their roles in the assault. Virtually no detail as to how incident had occurred has been given, though motive of previous litigation with the accused persons has been clearly indicated in the first information report. For the first time in his deposition before the Court, PW-1 narrates the whole account of the incident while mentioning himself as an eye-witness accompanying deceased to the field. No doubt, FIR need not be an encyclopedia. Each and every detail need not be stated in it. It may not and need not contain all the details of the incident.

It was considered in State of U.P. v. Naresh12 that not naming of the accused in the FIR cannot be a ground to doubt the contents thereof, in case, the statement of the witnesses is found to be trustworthy. It may be that because the informant fully acquainted with the facts lacks necessary skill or ability to reproduce details of the entire incident without anything missing from this. Some people may miss even the most important details in narration. Therefore, missing facts in the FIR cannot be taken as a ground to tilt the balance of the case in favour of the accused.

Reference may also be made, in this regard, to the decisions of the Apex

Court in Darshan Singh @ Bhasuri & Ors vs. State Of Punjab13, Eqbal Baig vs State Of Andhra Pradesh14, Rohtash vs. State of Rajasthan15, Animireddy Venkata Ramana & Ors vs. Public Prosecutor, High Court of Andhra Pradesh16 and Ranjit Singh and others Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh17.

However, there cannot be a quarrel that prompt report of the incident with all its vivid details gives an assurance regarding truth of its version and that the allegations may not be an afterthought or having a colourable version of the incident.

It has been held in Yudhisthir vs. State of M.P.18 that any fact if not disclosed in the FIR or during investigation and stated for the first time in trial, that statement would amount to an improvement and may not be relied upon. However, it all depends upon the credibility of witnesses produced by the prosecution to support its story.

It is also a settled legal proposition that minor contradictions, inconsistencies, embellishments or improvements on trivial matters which do not affect the core of the prosecution case, should not be made a ground on which the evidence can be rejected in its entirety. The Court has to form its opinion about the credibility of the witness and record a finding as to whether his deposition inspires confidence. Minor variations in the statements of a witness cannot be dubbed as improvements as the same may be elaboration of the statement made by the witness earlier. The omissions which amount to contradictions in material particulars i.e. go to the root of the case/materially affect the trial or core of the prosecution's case, render the testimony of the witnesses liable to be discredited.

The Apex Court in the State Of U.P. vs. M.K. Anthony19 has laid down the principle as to what approach should be adopted by the Court, in a case, where there are some discrepancies and improvements in the statement of the witnesses.

Relevant observations in paragraph '10' of the said report are to be noted as under:-

"10. While appreciating the evidence of a witness, the approach must be whether the evidence of the witness read as a whole appears to have a ring of truth. Once that impression is formed, it is undoubtedly necessary for the court to scrutinise the evidence more particularly keeping in view the deficiencies, draw-backs and infirmities pointed out in the evidence as a whole and evaluate them to find out whether it is against the general tenor of the evidence given by the witness and whether the earlier evaluation of the evidence is shaken as to render it unworthy of belief. Minor discrepancies on trivial matters not touching the core of the case, hyper-technical approach by taking sentences torn out of context here or there from the evidence, attaching importance to some technical error committed by the investigating officer not going to the : root of the matter would not ordinarily permit rejection of the evidence as a whole.

.....xxxxxxxxxxxxx.....xxxxxxxxxxxx..... Even honest and truthful witnesses may differ in some details unrelated to the main incident because power of observation, retention and reproduction differ with individuals. Cross examination is an unequal duel between a rustic and refined lawyer. .....xxxxxxxxxxxxxxx....."

16. The crux is that it is the totality of the circumstances, which has to be culled out after careful scrutiny and assessment of prosecution evidence and which is to be taken note of. Difference in some minor details which do not otherwise affect core of the prosecution case, even if present, that itself would not prompt the Court to discard the evidence.

17. Keeping this principle in mind, when we carefully appreciate the evidence before us, we find that the first informant, brother of deceased in his statement before the Court, for the first time, gave details of the occurrence. In his examination-in-chief, the first informant (PW-1) stated that his brother was going to the field in a 'Bogie' carrying food for his father. Four accused persons named as Sahendra, Sher Singh, Gulab and Sadhu met him on the way. They stopped the 'Bogie' and dragged deceased to the ground and at that time Shadu exhorted by yelling "मारो साले को गोली", thereafter, Gulab, Sahendra and Sher Singh opened fires from the country-made pistols and gun in their hands. Country-made pistols have been assigned to accused Sahendra and Sher Singh whereas Gulab was carrying gun according to the first informant. All three fires hit the deceased. PW-1 raised cries. Hearing the same, four witnesses Atra, Sahi Ram and another Sahi Ram and Achpal came on the spot. Seeing them, accused persons ran away in the field towards East. After narrating the above, PW-1 states that he was also going to the field on foot behind the 'Bogie'. The above narration of PW-1 in his deposition in the Court has been termed as a material improvement in his testimony by the learned Senior Counsel for the appellants as every such detail is missing in the FIR.

18. It is contended that PW-1 was not present at the scene of occurrence and as such he did not give any detail in the first informant report as he was not sure about the manner of death of his brother. According to the learned Senior Counsel, deceased was assaulted in the late night hours and in the early hours of morning, on the fateful day and no one had seen the occurrence. The entire story was cooked up after the medical evidence were brought in, in consultation with the expert. Not a single fact as noted above from the deposition of PW-1 can be found in the first information report except the names of four accused persons and the alleged motive. It is contended that after postmortem was conducted and the prosecution became sure that three fires hit the deceased, three accused persons were assigned firearms and forth one was given the role of exhortation in the testimony before the Court.

19. Considering the above arguments, we find that crucial question before us, in the instant case, is to ascertain the presence of PW-1, i.e. the first informant on the spot. While doing the same, we may also note that in the margin notes of the site plan, the Investigating Officer indicated that four accused persons came to the spot from opposite directions. As per the description in Note no. 3 of the Margin in the site plan, two accused persons namely Sher Singh and Gulab came out from the field of Jai Singh whereas other two persons namely Sadhu and Sahendra reached at the spot from the field of Nakli and both the fields are opposite to each other. The site plan was prepared at the pointing of the first informant as deposed by him as PW-1 after the inquest was completed as is clear from the description at Note no. 4 in the Margin of place "x", i.e. the place where deceased was assaulted by the accused. The above noted details, surprisingly, are completely missing in the statement of PW-1. He simply stated that all four accused met the deceased on the Chak Road.

20. Amongst other evidences about the presence of PW-1, we further find that PW-2 has been produced in the witness-box to support/corroborate the version of PW-1 projected as an eye-witness of the occurrence though he has not been mentioned as a witness in the first information report. In his deposition before the Court, PW-2 states that he was going to the village alongwith Achpal (another alleged eye-witness) and when they reached in the Jungle near the field of Jai Singh on the Chak Road, he heard the sound of gunshot and upon reaching on the spot, he saw the deceased having been hit by fires while brother of the deceased namely Jaiveer being present on the spot. He then states that he did not identify the assailants as he had only seen them fleeing away from the spot. At this juncture, this witness was declared hostile by the prosecution. Nothing much can be elicited from his cross-examination wherein he simply stated that he did not mention the names of assailants to the Investigating Officer and as to how it was written in his statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. was not known to him.

21. Having carefully sifted the testimony of this witness (PW-2), keeping in mind that he was declared hostile by the prosecution, we find that he was merely a Chance witness. PW-2 in a casual manner though stated that he was passing the way with Achpal but did not disclose anything more than that, i.e. the reason for his presence near the place of occurrence. Another witness Achpal who was allegedly accompanying him had not been produced in the witness-box, though he has also been mentioned as an eye-witness in the testimony of PW-1 (the first informant). The testimony of PW-2 regarding the presence of PW-1 at the spot of occurrence, therefore, does not carry any weight. We may also note that PW-2 does not state that he reached at the place of occurrence hearing the cries of PW-1 nor he states that other two witnesses namely Atra and Sahi Ram son of Chhajju had also reached or had seen the occurrence. PW-2 as such cannot but be said to be a 'Chance witness' and his testimony in the examination-in-chief, by all standards, cannot be taken as a proof of presence of the first informant PW-1 on the spot.

22. We are, thus, left with the testimony of solitary witness namely PW-1 which is also full of contradictions, improvements and embellishments and as such this witness cannot be categorised as wholly reliable. The material improvements in the deposition of PW-1 (the first informant) have already been noted above. We may further note that in the examination-in-chief, PW-1 stated that he dictated the written report to Brij Pal who scribed the same and readover it to him and thereafter the same report was given by him in the police station to register the case. In the cross-examination, when his attention was drawn to the fact that he did not mention himself as an eye-witness therein, he casually replied that he dictated the said fact but did not know the reason as to why it was not written. This explanation of PW-1 is not acceptable for the reason that in his examination-in-chief he categorically stated that the written report was readover to him after it was transcribed by Brij Pal on his dictation. To our minds, the prosecution has failed to explain this material improvement in the evidence of PW-1.

Further PW-1 was confronted on his relationship with the four witnesses mentioned in his deposition in the Court. Though he evaded answer to all the questions in this regard but from his cross-examination, it can be clearly culled out that PW-1 and four witnesses of the occurrence (mentioned in his deposition) are all family members (belonging to one extended family). According to PW-1, the incident-in-question had occurred in the broad day-light at about 8:15 AM when normally the villagers are working in their fields. No independent witness or owner of the adjoining field who may have reached the spot or had seen the occurrence had been produced by the prosecution nor there is any whisper in the entire evidence that other villagers, apart from four witnesses, had also seen the occurrence. The Investigating Officer admitted in the cross-examination that he did not investigate Jai Singh and Nakli whose fields were adjoining to the place of occurrence. He, however, deposed that the statement of witness Atar Singh was recorded at the place of occurrence but he has not been produced in the witness-box to prove the occurrence. From the deposition of the Investigating Officer (PW-4), it further transpires that statement of other three alleged eye-witnesses namely Sahi Ram son of Nain Singh, another Sahi Ram son of Chhajju and Achpal were recorded only on 23.8.1992.

23. It has also come in evidence that the first informant and accused persons were harbouring ill-will against each other. A suggestion was given to PW-1 in the cross-examination that Sher Singh contested election for the post of Pradhan against Jaipal and PW-1 was supporter of Jaipal. As against other accused persons, it has come up that Munna brother of PW-1 (Jaiveer) was a named accused in the murder of brother of Gulab Singh and Sadhu (another accused) was a witness in that case. Some litigation was also going on between the first informant and accused Sahendra in a proceeding drawn by later. Previous enmity as a result of litigation between the rival parties is also mentioned as a motive of murder in the first information report itself. We cannot loose sight of the fact that enmity is a two-edged sword. It may be a reason for murder or a reason for false implication of the accused persons. In view of the proof of enmity between the first informant and the accused party, material contradictions/omissions in the first report drawn by PW-1 become much more important. One more circumstance, which has been brought before us from the inquest report is that the dead body was sealed in a black blanket. The Investigating Officer as also the Constables who were entrusted the dead body for taking it to Mortuary for the postmortem have deposed that the body was sealed on the spot after inquest was completed and straightway sent to the Mortuary for postmortem. PW-7 proved that the dead body remained in his custody and supervision after it was handed over to him at the place of occurrence till it was handed over to the Doctor for postmortem. PW-7 also states that the first informant was not accompanying him to the Mortuary. Whereas, PW-1 in cross, deposed that the body was taken to the police station from the place of occurrence by the Investigating Officer after inquest was completed and he also accompanied them. He states that it was kept in the police station for two hours and was sealed therein only, the entire process took about 1½ hours, though he denied the suggestion that the report was drawn after the dead body was sealed. From the above conspectus of facts, a doubt arises in the minds of the Court about the truthfulness of the prosecution story. At least, it can be seen that PW-1 is not a truthful witness, wholly reliable one.

24. Giving a word of caution about the appreciation of testimony of single witness, the Apex Court in Vadivelu Thevar vs. State of Madras20 has observed that when faced with the testimony of a single witness, the Court may classify the oral testimony into three categories namely, (i) Wholly reliable, (ii) Wholly unreliable, (iii) Neither wholly reliable nor wholly unreliable.

It is said therein that there may not be any difficulty in accepting or discarding the testimony of the single witness in the first two categories. The difficulty arises in the third category of cases. Where the single witness is found to be in the category of neither wholly reliable nor wholly unreliable, the Court has to be circumspect and has to look for corroboration in material particulars by reliable testimony, direct or circumstantial before acting upon the testimony of the single witness.

25. In the case at hand, having categorized PW-1 as a witness whose testimony can neither be wholly reliable nor wholly unreliable, we are proceeding to look for other material particulars brought on record by the prosecution. In this process, we found another very material aspect of the matter. According to the medico-legal report, in the internal examination, the Doctor PW-3 found that the stomach of deceased was empty. His Small Intestine was also empty whereas Large Intestine contained gases and faecal matter. It is vehemently contended on behalf of the appellants that the above referred narration fully fortifies their stand that the murder took place in the late night hours or in the early morning before the deceased went to ease himself.

26. Having noticed the discrepancies, improvements and inconsistencies in the oral evidence in the foregoing paragraphs of this judgment, we find that the above-mentioned circumstance almost clinches the issue. PW-1 was cross-examined on the above aspect and he categorically deposed that deceased had his meal in the morning before he left the house at about 8:00 AM and that he ate Dal and Roti. The place of incident was about ½ km from the village. The deceased was shot within 15 minutes of leaving his house. In the examination-in-chief, PW-1 also stated that deceased was carrying food for his father. While considering the above categorical statement, we may also note that normally villagers have their meal in the morning before going to the field and if the above evidence of PW-1 is believed to be true, then the same itself is completely demolished by the medical evidence, which shows that both the Stomach and Small Intestine were empty. This condition of the dead body would indicate that at or before the time of murder, the deceased had not taken his meal and the murder must have taken place at least 4-5 hours after he had his last meal. The Doctor on a suggestion of the defence had stated that it takes about 5-6 hours in digestion of 'Roti' and Stomach becoming empty. We cannot doubt or dispute this version of the Doctor. It is, thus, possible that the deceased was done to death much after his night meal and much before his morning meal. This circumstance raises a serious dispute as to the actual time of the incident which is a very much important factor in this matter in finding out whether the case presented by the prosecution is true or not. This discrepancy also materially affects the credibility of evidence of eye-witnesses because if the incident had occurred in the early hours of the morning or late night, a doubt is created in our minds as to the presence of the eye-witnesses. The eyewitness (PW-1) is real brother of deceased and he categorically stated that deceased left the house after having his meal and he was carrying food in the tiffin for his father. We have no reason to doubt the statement of PW-1 about the timing when deceased took his last meal. The prosecution has utterly failed to explain this material discrepancy found in the oral version and medical evidence. The trial court surprisingly, has completely ignored this aspect of the matter.

27. Thus, in the instant case, in view of the shaky version of the sole eye-witness and the surrounding circumstances, time of death becomes a material factor to verify the presence of the eye-witnesses. It was obligatory for the prosecution to have clarified the discrepancy between the medical evidence and the oral evidence. The prosecution having failed to do so, in our opinion, in view of the serious doubt as to the time of incident, the presence of eye-witnesses at the place of occurrence and his narration of the incident also become doubtful.

28. In so far as the issue of inconsistency between medical evidence and ocular evidence is concerned, the law is fairly well settled, that unless the oral evidence available is totally irreconcilable with the medical evidence, the oral evidence would have primacy. And in the event of contradictions between medical and ocular evidence, the ocular testimony of a witness will have greater evidentiary value vis-à-vis medical evidence and only when medical evidence makes the oral testimony wholly improbable, the same becomes a relevant factor in the process of evaluation of such evidence. It is only when the contradiction between the two is so extreme that the medical evidence completely rules out all possibilities of the ocular evidence being true at all, that the ocular evidence is liable to be disbelieved. Reference State of U.P. v. Hari Chand21, Bhajan Lal @ Harbhajan Singh and Ors. v. State of Haryana22 and Darbara Singh vs State Of Punjab1.

29. Proceeding further, we may also note that there are various defects in the investigation. No effort appears to have been made by the Investigating Officer to recover the weapons of offence. The blood stained earth and plain earth though collected but not sent for chemical examination. The place of incident though narrated as the Chak Road in front of the field of Jai Singh but the same is mentioned as Jungle Gram Garhi of Village Rampur in the Chik FIR, a place at a distance of about 6 kms. from the police station. There is no reference of 'Bogie' in the site plan or in the entire prosecution case on which deceased was allegedly going to the field. The recovery memo Exhibit 'Ka-11' records recovery of one steel bowl, glass and an aluminum box with lid which were lying besides the dead body. In the deposition of PW-1, it has come up that deceased was carrying food for his father. The food in the aluminum tiffin box found besides the dead body is completely missing in evidence. It is not indicated in the recovery memo as to whether the aluminum box with lid was filled with the food or was empty or food was scattered besides the dead body. There is complete silence about the presence of father of deceased in the field or else where at the time of incident. How the dead body was sealed in black blanket? The Court is just left in doubt guessing whether the deposition of sole eye-witness is true or not.

30. The genesis or root cause of the incident though is narrated as previous enmity between the parties on account of litigation, but when seen from another angle, it can be said to be a reason for false implication of four accused persons. Sole eye-witness is found to be an interested witness on account of his relationship with the deceased and also being inimical to the accused party. His version is full of discrepancies in material particulars and could not be corroborated by the medical and other evidence on record. The ocular version of PW-1 in the Court is a substantial improvement from his earliest version of the incident as contained in the FIR.

31. On cumulative appreciation of evidence brought by the prosecution, we find that the defects in the investigation becomes irrecoverable in view of inherent improbabilities, omission and material contradictions found in the testimony of sole eye-witness who is not only an interested witness but is also partisan or inimical to the accused persons.

32. We are, therefore, afraid to place reliance on the sole testimony of PW-1 for the purpose of recording conviction of all the accused persons.

At this juncture, we may note the observations of the Apex Court in Jayabalan vs. Union Territory of Pondicherry23, wherein it is said that the Court must be cautious in appreciating and accepting the evidence given by the interested witnesses. Though the approach of the Court, while appreciating the evidence of such witnesses must not be pedantic and the Court must not be suspicious of such evidence but be cautious. The primary endeavour of the Court must be to look for consistency.

In Dalip Singh Vs. State of Punjab24, the Apex Court has observed that in case of enmity, there may be a tendency to drag in an innocent person as an accused against whom a witness has a grudge. A witness who is normally to be considered independent may likely to be tainted. This observation, however, has been clarified to have been made as a general rule of prudence and not as a rule of law. It is further clarified that each case must be judged on its facts and must be limited and be governed by its own fact.

In Raju alias Balachandran and others vs. State of Tamil Nadu25 after appreciation of long line of decisions on the issue of evidence of related or interested witness, it is said that evidence of such a witness should be meticulously and carefully examined. In a case where the related and interested witness may have some enmity with the assailant, the bar would need to be raised and the evidence of the witness would have to be examined by applying a standard of discerning scrutiny. But it would again be only a rule of prudence and not one of law.

33. Applying the rule of caution and prudence in appreciating the evidence of interested and partisan sole eye-witness, in the instant case, we find that possibility of death having been caused in the late night or in the early hours of the morning before deceased had defecated seems more probable. In a criminal trial, cardinal rules of criminal jurisprudence which have to be kept in mind are that there is a presumption of innocence in favour of the accused. The burden is on the prosecution to prove the guilty beyond all reasonable doubts. If two views of the matter are reasonably possible, golden thread of rule which runs through the web of administration of justice in criminal cases is that the view which is favourable to the accused should be adopted. The accused is entitled to the benefit of doubt. The doubt should, however, be reasonable and should be such which rational thinking men will reasonably, honestly and conscientiously entertain and not a timid mind which fights shy - though unwittingly it may be - or is afraid of the logical consequences, if that benefit was not given. It other words, it is "not the doubt of a vacillating mind that has not the moral courage to decide but shelters itself in a vain and idle scepticism". The rule does not warrant acquittal of the accused by resorting to surmises and conjunctures or fanciful considerations. [See The State of U.P. vs. Samman Dass26 and Yogesh Singh vs. Mahabeer Singh and others27]

34. Having carefully scrutinized/sifted the entire evidence produced in this case and the surrounding circumstances, we are satisfied that the prosecution had not been able to prove its case beyond all reasonable doubts, arose in the minds of the Court as discussed in the preceding paragraphs of this judgment. The prosecution evidence is not such which would bring home the guilty persons. The benefit of doubt certainly has to go to the accused persons. The three (3) surviving accused persons are, therefore, entitled to be acquitted of all the offences of which they were charged. Their conviction is liable to be set aside.

35. Accordingly, the judgment and order dated 22.12.1995 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Muzaffarnagar in Sessions Trial No. 51 of 1993 (State vs. Sher Singh and others) convicting and sentencing the accused-appellants namely Sher Singh (appellant no. 1), Sahendra (appellant no. 2) and Gulab (appellant no. 4) for offence under Section 302 readwith Section 34 IPC, registered at Police Station Kandhala, District Muzaffarnagar, is set aside.

The appeal is hereby allowed.

The appellants are on bail. Their sureties shall stand discharged.

The office is directed to send back the lower court record along with a certified copy of this judgment for information and necessary action.

The compliance report be furnished to this Court through the Registrar General, High Court, Allahabad.

A. Criminal law-Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973- Section 154-F.I.R- Every minute detail is not required to be mentioned in the FIR as the FIR is only an information given to the police regarding occurrence of a crime and the person giving the said information may not be in his best frame of mind to give all details of the occurrence while submitting the report to the police.

Settled law that F.I.R is not an encyclopaedia of facts and absence of all details in the F.I.R will not dent the case of the prosecution.

B. Evidence law- Indian Evidence Act, 1872 - Section 3- Section 118- Testimony of related witnesses- It is settled proposition of law that the testimony of a prosecution witness cannot be merely rejected on the ground that he was a relative of the deceased. However, the Court is required to be cautious and careful while examining the evidence of such a witness. Non-production of an independent witness by the prosecution would not weaken the case of the prosecution in case testimony of the prosecution witness produced by the prosecution, may be relative of the deceased, is consistent and trustworthy.

The testimony of a related witness, if he is a natural witness, can be relied upon by the Court provided the evidence is credible and trustworthy and non-examination of independent witnesses will not dent the case of the prosecution.

C. Criminal law- Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Section 149 - In case an offence is committed by any member of an unlawful assembly in prosecution of the common object and such members of that assembly knew the purpose with which they had assembly; then, every person present at the time of committing of that offence is a member of that assembly and is guilty of that offence. The common object of unlawful assembly to cause death of the deceased was well established. There was nexus between common object and the offence committed and, as such, every accused-appellants were liable for the same Indian Penal Code, Section 1860- Section 149- Section 149 of the IPC fixes the vicarious liability of each member of the unlawful assembly participating in the commission of the offence with a common object of doing the said act.

The act of accused appellants collectively amounts to culpable homicide amounting to murder and punishable under Section 302 IPC bringing all of them under joint liability of the offence. The conviction and sentence of appellants under Section 302/149 is confirmed. (Para 43, 47, 56, 65,66)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ritu Raj Awasthi, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Nagendra Mohan, learned counsel for appellant as well as Mr. Pankaj Kumar Tiwari, learned Additional Government Advocate on behalf of State and perused the record including lower Court records.

2. This Criminal Appeal has been filed under Section 374 (2) Code of Criminal Procedure against the judgment and order dated 09.01.1985 passed by the Ist Additional Sessions Judge, Sitapur in Sessions Trial No. 117 of 1982 arising out of case Crime No. 152 of 1981, under Sections 147, 148, 149, 302, 201 Indian Penal Code, Police Station Laharpur, District Sitapur, whereby the accused-appellants, Avadhesh Kumar, Patrakhan, Sheo Poojan, Uma Shanker alias Dalla and Kalloo have been convicted and sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for life under Section 302/149 Indian Penal Code. They have been further convicted and sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for one year under Section 147 Indian Penal Code. The accused-appellants, Avadhesh Kumar, Patrakhan, Sheo Poojan have been convicted and sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for two years under Section 148 Indian Penal Code. The accused-appellants, Avadhesh Kumar and Sheo Poojan have been further convicted and sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for two years under Section 201 Indian Penal Code. All the sentenced are directed to run concurrently. Accused, Purushottam and Pankaj Kumar have been acquitted giving them benefit of doubt.

3. The prosecution case, in brief, is that Mahadeo who was grandfather of the informant, Jagdish (PW-1) had two sons, namely Ram Dayal and Ram Asrey. Ram Dayal had one son, namely, Sri Sarjoo Prasad whereas Ram Asrey had three sons, namely, Roop Narain, Jagdish and Chhail Behari. Sarjoo Prasad was murdered and Roop Narain had lodged the report in that connection in which Gokaran and Ram Mitra were also named as accused along with others. The said case ended in acquittal. Muneshwar was the grandfather of Gokaran. Muneshwar had two sons Misri Lal and Mewa Lal. Gokaran and Patrakhan were the sons of Mishri Lal and he had also one daughter Maya. Maya was married to Chukki alias Pankaj who is an accused in this case. Shyam Murari and Avadhesh were the sons of Gokaran who had also one daughter Rajpati. Rajpati is the wife of accused Sheo Poojan. Avadhesh is also accused. The daughter of Mewa Lal, namely, Bishuna was married to Ram Mitra who was also an accused in the murder of Sarjoo Prasad. Kalloo, Mahesh Prasad and Uma Shanker alias Dalla are also accused in the present case. All the accused persons were on friendly terms with each other. It is alleged that the whereabouts of Gokaran were unknown and a report about his disappearance was lodged by Mishri Lal and in that report Jagdish (PW-1) and Chhail Behari were named as accused. No prosecution was launched on the basis of the said report, therefore, the accused persons were displeased. The wife of Gokaran used to say that she would not take off her bangles for 12 years. The accused Avadhesh and Patrakhan (sons of Gokaran) used to say that they would wreck vengeance. It is alleged that on 15.7.1981 at about 6PM the informant PW-1 (Jagdish) had gone to shahpur market. Deceased, Roop Narain (brother of Jagdish), had also gone to the said market for purchasing goods and selling food-grains. Roop Narain had sold some of his food-grains while he was yet to dispose of his remaining food-grains, Purushottam alias Khattoo fired at him, at that time the deceased Roop Narain was seated and he was hit by the shot. Thereafter Patrakhan fired from half-gun as a result of which Roop Narain fell down. Thereafter the accused persons, Kalloo, Sheo Poojan, Dalla, Avadhesh and Pankaj assaulted the deceased Roop Narain. Kalloo and Dalla were armed with lathi, Sheo Poojan and Avadhesh were armed with Banka while Pankaj was armed with a Chhuri. Patrakhan took out the spent cartridge and kept the same in his pocket and thereafter he fired second shot. The accused Patrakhan also said that he was avenging the murder of his brother and if anyone would advance then he would also be killed. The accused persons lifted Roop Narain and after covering a distance of ten steps the accused Sheo Poojan and Avadhesh severed his head and went away towards the west.

3. The report of the occurrence Ext.Ka-1 was written by Indra Prakash on the dictates of PW-1 (Jagdish Prasad). Gokaran, Indra Prakash, Chhabi Nath and others had also witnessed the said occurrence. The case was registered against accused persons at G.D. No. 27, Ext.Ka-3 on the same day at 8.45PM and the special report was also sent on 15.7.1981 vide GD report No. 23 at 10.05PM.

4. PW-5, Jagdish Prasad Sharma took up the investigation of the case. He recorded the statements of the witnesses and started for the place of occurrence. On account of night, he stayed and on next day he prepared the inquest report of the body of the deceased Roop Narain Ext.Ka-7 along with photo of dead-body, challan dead-body, specimen seal etc. Exts.Ka-8 to Ka-12. He also prepared the site plan Ext.Ka-5 of the place of occurrence. Sri Jagdish Prasad Sharma (PW-5) also took possession of plain earth and blood stained earth in separate containers from the spot which were sealed and memo Ext.Ka-6 was prepared in that connection. The dead body of Roop Narain was sent for postmortem examination in a sealed condition. After completion of investigation, the accused were charge-sheeted. The accused persons did not plead guilty to the charges framed against them and prayed for trial.

5. The prosecution examined PW-1 Jagdish the informant, PW-2 Indra Prakash, PW-3 Gokaran, PW-4 Constable Sri Sipte Hasan, PW-5 Sri Jagdish Prasad Sharma, Investigating Officer and PW-6 Dr. P.C. Pandey to prove the prosecution case.

6. The autopsy of the deceased Roop Narain was performed by Dr.P.C.Pandey on 16.07.1981 at 5PM and he had found the following ante-mortem injuries on the body of the deceased vide postmortem examination report Ext.Ka-12:

i. Multiple gunshot wound on the anterior lateral end of the right thigh, lower portion in an area of 8 cm x 7 cm each measuring 0.3 cm x 0.3 cm x muscle deep. Six gunshot recovered.

xi. Incised wound on the left side back lower portion, 3 cm x 1 cm x muscle deep.

xii. Abrasion on the middle of back 3 cm x 3 cm in eye.

7. Dr. P.C. Pandey, PW-6, who had performed the postmortem of the deceased opined that the antemortem injuries sustained by the deceased were sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death, that the injuries no. 1 and 2 were gun-shot injuries while injuries no. 3 to 11 were caused by sharp edged weapon while injury no. 12 was possibly caused by friction against some hard blunt objection such as banka. The injuries could have possibly been inflicted on 15.7.1981 at 6PM.

8. The Trial Court of learned Additional Sessions Judge, Sitapur framed charges against the appellants for offences punishable under Sections 147, 148, 149, 302, 201 IPC. The accused-appellants pleaded not guilty and claimed trial. The Trial Court recorded the statement of prosecution witnesses as well as statements of appellants under Section 313 Cr.P.C.

9. The accused-Avadhesh alleged that he has been implicated on account of his uncle. The accused-Patrakhan alleged his implication on account of his enmity with Jagdish. The accused Sheo Poojan alleged that he had enmity with Putti Lal and Ram Dhani, there was enmity between them and his grandfather, Jagdish is his Samadhi so he has been implicated.

10. The accused-Uma Shanker alleged that his brother-in-law Pahari used to live in village Gursariya, that Indra Prakash had opened an outlet for the flow of water from his nala as a result of which a quarrel took place between them, he with the help of 5 to 10 persons had closed the said outlet so he has been falsely implicated.

11. The acused-Purushotam alleged that the village Pradhan Ram Pal had murdered his real brother Sri Ram, the Village Pradhan was in the party of the informant so he has been falsely implicated. The accused-Kalloo alleged that his sister was married with Pahari in Gursariya village, he had helped his brother-in-law Indra Prakash in connection with a nala so he has been implicated.

12. The accused-Pankaj alleged that he had gone to village Umariya, Jhabboo had agreed to purchase his bullock and the deal was struck at Rs. 1000/-, he had also paid Rs. 100/- as advance. Jhabboo did not purchase his bullock so he demanded Rs. 100/- back from him as a result of which an altercation had taken place so he has been implicated.

13. PW-1, Jagdish had explained the relationship between his family and that of accused persons. According to which there was old enmity between them. There is no evidence to contradict the same. PW-1, Jagdish stated that Sarjoo Prasad son of Ram Dayal was murdered nearly 25-26 years back regarding which a complaint was lodged by his deceased brother, Roop Narain. When Gokaran son of Mishir Lal disappeared about 12-13 years back and his whereabouts were not known, Mishri Lal had lodged a report with the police in which he and his brother Chhail Behari were named as accused persons, however, no prosecution was launched due to lack of evidence, as such, the accused-persons were annoyed and the wife of Gokaran used to say that she would not remove her bangles for 12 years and she would avenge for the disappearance of Gokaran. In fact, the accused persons used to say that they would take revenge for the same. He further stated that nearly two and half years back at about 6PM he had gone to Shahpur market, deceased Roop Narain had also gone there for selling food-grains, that he had disposed of some of his food-grains but some quantity remained. He had also gone to purchase certain goods after selling food-grains. Purushottam alias Khattoo fired at Roop Narain and at that time Roop Narain was seated. The time was 6 PM. On being hit by shot Roop Narain moved one or two steps and at that time Patrakhan fired from his half gun and Roop Narain fell down, that thereafter the accused-persons, Kalloo, Sheo Poojan alias Dalld, Avadhesh Kumar and Pankaj started assaulting the deceased. Kalloo and Dalla were armed with Lathi, Sheo Poojan and Avadhesh Kumar were armed with banka and Pankaj was armed with knife. The accused Patrakhan took out the spent cartridge from the gun and kept in his pocket and he again fired second shot and also said that if anyone would come forward; then, he would also be killed. It was also said that he was avenging for his brother. Thereafter, the accused persons lifted Roop Narain and after covering a distance of 10 steps, Sheo Poojan and Avadhesh Kumar severed the head of Roop Narain. He also stated that the report of the occurrence was written by Indra Prakash on his dictates. PW-1 Jagdish proved the FIR (Ext. Ka-1).

14. PW-1 Jagdish also stated that on account of fear he did not wish to go to the police station so he handed over the written report to the village Chowkidar. He also stated that he had mentioned in the report that Patrakhan had fired in the air. He, however, could not assign any reason as to why the said fact was not noted in the FIR. He also stated that he did not visit village Chandasuwa and according to his memory he had not visited the said village. He had known the name of 2-4 persons resident of village Chandasuwa. He had known the village Pradhan Jagdish and his brother Bishal, Shyam Pandey, Rampal, Pooran

Kumhar and the accused persons. He also stated that the villagers had told him the name of Khattoo as Purushottam. That after murder of Roop Narain he had enquired about the name of Khattoo and someone from the persons in the village had told the name of Khattoo as Purushottam.

15. From the statement of PW-1 Jagdish it appears that he had not known the accused person Purushottam who was resident of Chandasuwa. Some persons present in the market had disclosed the name of Purushottam.

16. PW-2 Indra Prakash was the scribe of FIR lodged by the PW-1. He had stated that three years back his father-in-law (deceased) was murdered in his village but thereafter he added that he was murdered in village Umariya. Village Umariya was at a distance of one kilometer from his village Gursariya. He had stated that Roop Narain (deceased) was his father-in-law. Shahpur market was at a distance of 2 kilometer from village Muriya towards the south. In the evening of 15.7.1981 at about 6PM his father-in-law Roop Narain was murdered in Shahpur market, his father-in-law had gone there to sell Masoori (Pulse) and rice for meeting out his household expenses. He further stated that he had reached Shahpur market at about 5PM and thereafter he added that he reached there at about 4.30PM. He had gone there to take medicine for his ailing mother. When he reached Shahpur market he had talks with his father-in-law Roop Narain who was selling food-grains. Raghunath and Putwa Mishra were also selling food-grains there and Jagdish was selling food-grains towards east, that when after talking with his father-in-law he had started walking and gone 2-3 steps Khattoo fired at his father-in-law by his country-made pistol. Khattoo was also known by the name Purushottam. His father-in-law (deceased) ran towards north for 2 to 3 steps, that Patrakhan had also fired from his half gun. Purushottam alias Khattoo was the resident of village Chandasuwa. His father-in-law after being hit by shots fell down, that Patrakhan took out the spent cartridge from his barrel and again filled his gun with another cartridge. That Kalloo alias Daya Shanker, Dalla alias Uma Shanker, Sheo Poojan, Avadhesh, Pankaj Kumar alias Chukki started assaulting Roop Narain. Kalloo and Dalla were armed with lathi, Avadhesh and Shop Poojan were armed with banka and Chukki alias Pankaj Kumar was armed with a knife. That thereafter all the accused person lifted Roop Narain and took him upto a distance of 5-6 steps where Sheo Poojan and Avadhesh severed the head of Roop Narain and kept the same in their bag. Patrakhan was also saying that if anyone would advance; then, he would also be killed. He had also fired in the air. He also stated that he had scribed the FIR on the dictates of Jagdish (PW-1).

17. Another eye-witness of the occurrence in question is PW-3 Gokaran, who stated that nearly 3 years back Roop Narain was murdered in Shahpur market at about 6PM. That on that day he had gone from his village to purchase vegetables, etc. from the said market. After purchasing some goods he went towards the place where food-grains were kept for sale. That Khattoo had fired at Roop Narain. When Roop Narain wanted to run then Patrakhan also fired at Roop Narain with his half gun. He had also fired second time, this time Roop Narain fell down and then other accused persons Chukki, Avadhesh, Kalloo, Dalla ad Sheo Poojan assaulted him. The accused Chukki had a knife, Sheo Poojan and Avadhesh had banka while accused Kalloo and Dalla had lathi in their hands. The accused persons also lifted Roop Narain and after going 10 steps Sheo Poojan and Avadhesh severed the head of Roop Narain and went away with their bag. He stated that Shahpur market was at a distance of three miles from his village. He also stated that he had started from his village at 4PM and reached market about 5PM. He further stated that 8-10 more shopkeepers were also seated at the place where Roop Narain was seated. He further stated that none of his relations lived in village Chandasuwa which is at a distance of 2 kilometer from his village. He had no talks with the residents of village Chandasuwa. He had also not enquired about the names of the accused persons from the residents of village Chandasuwa. He further stated that he had merely known Khattoo. He also stated that he had said before the Investigating Officer that the accused had severed the head of the deceased and kept that in a bag. However, PW-5, Jagdish Prasad Sharma who was Investigating Officer in the case in his cross-examination stated the PW-3 Gokaran had not given any such statement before him. PW-3 Gokaran also did not assign any reason as to why Investigating Officer had not recorded the aforesaid statement.

18. PW-5, Jagdish Prasad Sharma (Investigating Officer), in his statement has stated that he had FIR in his possession when the inquest report was prepared. He also stated that Police Sub Inspector, S.K. Singh had prepared the inquest report on his dictation. In column no. 3 of the inquest report (Ext.Ka-7) the date and time are mentioned as 15.7.1981 and 7.30AM or 7.30PM, however, there is some typographical error as the FIR was lodged on 15.7.1981 at 8.45PM, therefore, the time 7.30AM or 7.30PM mentioned in column no. 3 of the inquest report was not correct and that could be due to human error and sheer inadvertence and oversight. In the end of the signature of the SI the numeral 15 of the date 15.7.1981 has been corrected. Below the signature of the IO the date 16.7.1981 is mentioned. Similarly, time 7.30AM is clearly mentioned below the signature of the Sub-Inspector so discrepancy in column no. 3 of the inquest report (Ext.Ka-7) has totally become insignificant.

19. The prosecution had also produced PW-4, Constable Sibte Hasan who had recorded the FIR (Ext.Ka-2) on the basis of written report (Ka-1). He had confirmed the report no. 27 in the GD and the FIR (Ka-2). He has denied that the said report was lodged on the information given by the Chowkidar. The prosecution had also produced Dr. P.C. Pandey, who had conducted the postmortem of the body of deceased Roop Narain and has confirmed the same. The prosecution in order to prove its case had produced certain documentary evidence such as written report (Ka-1), FIR (Ka-2), copy of GD report no. 27 (Ka-3), Site plan (Ka-5) Recovery memo (Ka-6), Inquest report (Ka-7) and Postmortem report (Ka-12) in addition to the witnesses as noted above.

20. Learned counsel for appellants has vehemently argued that there were strong contradictions in the statement of PW-1 as well as PW-2 and they are not trustworthy. In this regard, it has been argued that PW-1 Jagdish in his statement had stated that due to fear he did not wish to go to the police station to lodge the FIR. He also stated that he had handed over the written report to the Chowkidar.

21. It is submitted that the FIR in this case was not registered on the basis of the compliant submitted by PW-1 as PW-1 has himself submitted that he did not wish to go to police station to lodge the FIR and handed over the written complaint to Chowkidar to take it to the police station. This contradiction in the statement of PW-1 is a material contradiction which creates doubt about the veracity of the FIR itself, as such, the entire prosecution case appears to be on falsehood. It is also contended that PW-2 in his statement has stated that the deceased Roop Narain was murdered in his village but thereafter has added that he was murdered in village Umariya, however, subsequently at a later stage, he has stated that Roop Narain was murdered in Shahpur market. The statement of PW-2, as such, was not reliable and the prosecution has failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt.

22. It has further been argued that PW-1 Jagdish in his statement has said that he had gone to his house in the night, after lodging of the FIR and reached the place where the dead body of Roop Narain was lying for preparation of inquest report next day, that in normal circumstance one whose brother has been murdered would not have slept and it was an unnatural conduct of PW-1 Jagdish which creates doubt about his presence at the time of occurrence.

23. It has further been argued by the learned counsel for the appellants that as per PW-1, Patrakhan had fired twice and he had also fired in the air, however, the police had not recovered any empty cartridge from the place of occurrence.

24. It has also been argued by learned counsel for appellants that the alleged offence said to have been committed in the market area where several persons were present, however, the prosecution has not produced any independent witness to support its case. PW-1 and PW-2 are relatives of deceased whereas PW-3 was known to the deceased, as such, an interested witnesse. In fact, no one had witnessed the crime.

25. Learned AGA appearing for the State, on the other hand while rebutting the arguments of appellants' counsel has submitted that the incident had happened in the course of the day when there was sufficient day light, at 6 in the evening on 15.7.1981. In the month of July, there is sufficient sunlight at 6PM, as such, there was no difficulty for the witnesses to identify the accused persons. The witnesses could have faced no difficulty in properly seeing the incidence taking place and identifying the accused persons. They did so with all certainty. The accused were named in the FIR as they were well known to the witnesses of facts. He further submitted that the First Information Report was lodged promptly by the police on receiving written complaint from the informant, Jagdish (PW-1). In this regard, he read over the relevant paragraph-extract of the statement recorded by the Trial Court of PW-1 and other witnesses like Investigating Officer and Head Moharrir as well as another witnesses of facts who were present at the place of occurrence to explain the gap of time between the time of occurrence and lodging of FIR in the police station. There was no delay in lodging of FIR.

26. Learned AGA vehemently denied the arguments of appellants with regard to lodging of FIR by the informant, PW-1. It was submitted that the FIR was lodged on the basis of written complaint submitted by PW-1 himself. The written complaint and the FIR have been verified by the PW-1 and PW-4. He further submitted that after lodging of FIR, the police party moved to the spot where the dead body of the deceased, Roop Narain was lying in Shahpur market. Since it became dark due to night, as such, the Investigating Officer waited for the next day morning for getting the inquest of the deceased done and prepare the inquest report. The inquest proceedings before the witnesses of inquest were performed and inquest report was prepared. It is submitted that the overwriting in the column No. 3 of the inquest report was a human error and it was corrected by the Investigating Officer while signing the inquest report. After signature of the IO in the inquest report, the date and time have been mentioned which clarify the position. It is submitted that after completion of inquest proceedings, the dead body was sent for postmortem. The inquest report contained the case crime no. and relevant sections. It is very much clear that the inquest was done after lodging of FIR. It is also submitted that even memo along with dead body prepared for sending it for the postmortem bears the said case crime number. All these documents have been duly proved, therefore, the statement with regard to registration of FIR, its time and date stand proved and sufficiently corroborated by documents.

27. It has been argued by the learned AGA that in the FIR the informant had given the names of the accused persons and there was no room for any consultation or dictation on the part of the Investigating Officer.

28. Learned AGA has argued that specific role has been assigned to respective accused-persons, weapons used by them, time of occurrence and the presence of ocular witnesses all are proved by the witnesses of facts without any contradiction, inconsistency and doubt. Further, the narration of factual aspect of the incidence stated by the witnesses find support with the independent corroborative evidence like postmortem report, site plan and other formal witnesses.

29. It has been argued by the learned AGA that every minutest detail is not required to be mentioned in the FIR and in case any relevant facts which have come in light in the statement of the prosecution witnesses which were not mentioned in the FIR, the same cannot be rejected simply for the reason that they were not mentioned in the FIR. FIR is simple an information to the police regarding commission of any crime and all the relevant material facts come to the light either during course of investigation by the police or in the statement of prosecution witnesses. The opportunity of cross-examination is provided to the accused-persons and the Court has to decide about the veracity of said facts on the basis of evidence on record. It has also been argued that the accused-persons have been charged under Section 302 read with Section 149 IPC. The presence of accused persons at the place of occurrence was duly proved by the prosecution, as such, they have been rightly convicted under the aforesaid Sections.

30. Learned AGA countering the arguments of learned counsel for appellants submitted that the murder of deceased, no doubt, took place in the market area of Shahpur where several persons may have witnessed the crime, however, looking to the nature of crime when the head of the deceased was severed in broad day light by the accused persons and the head of the deceased was taken away in a bag by them, no person could have come forward to give any evidence against the accused persons. It is also submitted that it is the discretion of the prosecution to produce its witnesses and the defence cannot take advantage in case only three witnesses of facts have been produced by the prosecution.

31. Learned AGA further argued that the worthiness of the testimony of prosecution witnesses cannot be rejected simply because PW-1 and PW-2 are the real brother and son-in-law, respectively of the deceased and PW-3 was known to the deceased. The prosecution witnesses have given the details of the manner in which the crime was committed by the accused persons, also giving the specific role and the specific weapons used by them in the commission of murder of the deceased including the place, date and time of occurrence which clearly goes to establish their presence at the place of occurrence and, as such, the evidence of ocular witnesses was fully trustworthy of credence.

32. Learned AGA submitted that the prosecution has successfully proved its case on the basis of witnesses, material produced and proved before the Court beyond all reasonable doubts. There was sufficient evidence and corroborative material before the learned Trial Court for recording conviction of appellants. The learned Trial Court has rightly convicted the accused-appellants under Section 302/149 IPC. Accordingly, the sentence of life imprisonment imposed by the learned Trial Court is just and proper and there is no error in law or fact and same deserves to be confirmed.

33. After conclusion of arguments, learned AGA in support of his contentions cited certain cases laws. He gave reference of judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Gurmail Singh vs. State of Punjab and another1, where the scope of constructive liability under Section 149 IPC has been explained. It was held in that case that murder of deceased was the common object of the unlawful assembly. It was also clear from nature and number of injuries stated in postmortem report. Injuries on deceased were severe enough to lead to a reasonable conclusion that common object of unlawful assembly was murder of deceased. Hence, totality of facts and circumstances led to compelling inference that attack on deceased was with object of killing him. The accused were liable to convicted under Section 302/149 IPC.

34. Learned AGA also relied on the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Chanakya Dhibar (dead) vs. State of West Bengal and others2, where the Apex Court set aside the acquittal of the accused persons by the High Court and confirmed the conviction of the accused awarded by the Trial Court under Section 304 Part I/149 and 148 IPC. It was held that even if only one of the accused persons used the weapon and definite role of all the accused persons were not assigned, it cannot be accepted that Section 149 would not be applicable.

35. Learned AGA has also placed reliance on the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Jivan Lal and others vs. State of M.P.3, where the conviction was upheld on a solitary evidence. It was held that it is a settled law that conviction can be based on the sole testimony of an eyewitness provided that the said testimony is found to be wholly reliable. Prudence requires that corroboration of the testimony of that witness should be sought for from independent sources to base the conviction.

36. Learned AGA also relies on the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Yakub Ismailbhai Patel vs. State of Gujrat4, where the Apex Court held that the conviction can be based on the testimony of a solitary witness in case the said testimony inspires confidence. The Court should be cautious while examining such evidence. Corroboration of other evidence can be sought.

37. We have considered the arguments advanced by learned counsel for appellants as well as learned AGA.

38. It is to be noted that PW-1 Jagdish had stated that he had gone to police station along with Chowkidar. It has also come in the statement of PW-1 that on account of fear he did not desire to go to police station and he had given the FIR to village Chowkidar. However, from the statement of PW-1 Jagdish it cannot, at all, be concluded that he did not go to the police station to lodge the FIR. He may have apprehended danger so did not wish to go to police station in the night, however, from the statement of other prosecution witnesses such as PW-2, PW-3 and PW-4, it clearly goes to establish that the written report regarding the occurrence was submitted by PW-1 at the police station on the basis of which FIR regarding crime was registered.

39. It is to be noted that PW-1 Jagdish stated that after lodging FIR he had gone home and stayed at home. It is also stated that on 16.7.1981 he went to Shahpur market at 11AM, he had stayed at his house because several persons including relatives had started reaching his house after hearing about the occurrence. The deceased Roop Narain was murdered in Shahpur market and the informant Jagdish after submitting written report at the police station regarding the occurrence of the crime could have gone to his house and had again returned to the place of occurrence next day on 16.7.1981 at 11AM where the body of Roop Narain was lying. It cannot be said that there was any unnatural conduct of PW-1 Jagdish in this regard.

40. In the case of Main Pal v. State of Haryana5 the Apex Court in paragraphs 10 and 11 has held as under:

10. On a bare perusal of the trial court's judgment one thing is patently noticeable. The trial court has merely referred to the arguments advanced and has then come to abrupt conclusions without even indicating any plausible or relevant reasons therefor. Merely coming to a conclusion without any objective analysis relating to acceptability or otherwise of the rival stands does not serve any useful purpose in adjudicating a case. The trial court was required to analyse the evidence, consider the submissions and then come to an independent decision after analysing the evidence, the submissions and the materials on record. Since the trial court had not pragmatically analysed the evidence, and had given abrupt conclusions, that itself made the judgment vulnerable. Further, several aspects which the trial court found to be of significance were really arrived at hypothetically and on surmises. Merely because the evidence of PW 2 shows that he acted in an unnatural manner, that per se would not be a determinative factor to throw out the otherwise cogent prosecution evidence. The High Court on the other hand has considered in great detail the evidence of the witnesses. It has come to a positive finding that PW 1 was in a position to identify the accused persons. Some of the pleas now advanced were also not taken up before the courts below, for example, non-examination of the pellets/wads by the Forensic Science Laboratory. On considering the evidence on record, pragmatically one thing is clear that the High Court after analysing the evidence in great detail, was justified in treating the trial court's judgment to be practically unreasoned.

11. Though PWs 1 and 2 were related to the deceased, that does not in any manner affect the credibility of their evidence. When a person is shown to be the relative of an accused, it is open to the courts to critically analyse his evidence with caution and then come to a conclusion whether the same is credible and cogent. Though the conduct of PW 2 may appear to some to be somewhat unusual, as rightly noted by the High Court, every person cannot act or react in a particular or very same way and it would depend upon the mental set-up of the person concerned and the extent and nature of fear generated and consequently on the spot his reaction in a particular way has to be viewed on the totality of all such circumstances. The hypothetical discrepancy regarding the height from which the gun was shot is one aspect which needs to be noted, only to be rejected. If the eyewitnesses' version, even though of the relatives, is found to be truthful and credible after deep scrutiny the opinionative evidence of the doctor cannot wipe out the effect of eyewitnesses' evidence. The opinion of the doctor cannot have any binding force and cannot be said to be the last word on what he deposes or meant for implicit acceptance. On the other hand, his evidence is liable to be sifted, analysed and tested, in the same manner as that of any other witness, keeping in view only the fact that he has some experience and training in the nature of the functions discharged by him.

41. So far as non-recovery of any empty cartridge from the place of occurrence is concerned, Ext. Ka-6 indicates that the police had taken the blood stained earth and plain wet earth in two separate samples from the place of occurrence. It is to be noted that as per statement of PW-1, Patrakhan had removed the empty cartridge from the barrel of his half gun and kept it in his pocket and thereafter had again filled the gun and fired in the air, as such, the police during investigation may not have got any empty cartridge from the place of occurrence.

42. Learned counsel for appellants tried to emphasize that in the statement given before the Court PW-1 has stated that Patrakhan had fired in the air, however, the same fact has not been mentioned in the FIR.

43. It is needless to observe that every minute detail is not required to be mentioned in the FIR as the FIR is only an information given to the police regarding occurrence of a crime and the person giving the said information may not be in his best frame of mind to give all details of the occurrence while submitting the report to the police.

44. In the case of Animireddy Venkatramana Vs. Public Prosecutor High Court A.P.6, the Apex Court has held that discrepancies in FIR merely because case against some accused named in it could not be established or some inquiries were made to ascertain truth of incident prosecution case cannot be discarded. FIR need not be encyclopedic, each and every detail need not to be stated in it. Court has to ascertain about possibility of false implication of accused. It is also observed that probable, physical and mental condition of informant is relevant.

45. In the case of Betal Singh Vs. State of M.P.7, Babu Singh Vs. State of Punjab8, Baldev Singh Vs. State of Punjab9 and Bijay Singh Vs. State of Bihar10, the Apex Court in these cases has held that mention of few facts or vague facts or if detailed particulars of occurrence are not mentioned in the FIR, then minute details of occurrence is not required as FIR is not encyclopedia of occurrence. In case of Bijay Singh (supra), it is also held that FIR is not substantive piece of evidence of occurrence.

46. So far as the argument of learned counsel for appellants that no one had seen the occurrence of crime is concerned, this argument is not tenable for the reason that when the occurrence of crime of such magnitude where the head of the deceased was severed by the accused persons after firing at him take place, the people present may have run helter-shelter and they would shudder and avoid to be witness. The appellants have not been able to create any doubt about the presence of PW-1 Jagdish at the time of occurrence and, as such, we are of the considered view that the testimony of PW-1 is trustworthy and cannot be rejected merely on presumptions.

47. It is settled proposition of law that the testimony of a prosecution witness cannot be merely rejected on the ground that he was a relative of the deceased. However, the Court is required to be cautious and careful while examining the evidence of such a witness. Non-production of an independent witness by the prosecution would not weaken the case of the prosecution in case testimony of the prosecution witness produced by the prosecution, may be relative of the deceased, is consistent and trustworthy.

48. In the case of State of U.P. v. Sheo Sanehi11, the Apex Court in paragraph 18 regarding related witness has held as under:

18. So far as PWs 3 and 4 are concerned, PW 3 is nephew of deceased Devi Din whereas PW 4 is widow of the said deceased, as such they are natural witnesses and their presence at the alleged place of occurrence cannot be doubted. The names of these two witnesses were disclosed in the first information report itself and they supported the prosecution case in all material particulars in their statements made before the police as well as in court and no infirmity could be pointed out in their evidence, excepting that they were related to the deceased persons and inimical to the accused. It is well settled that merely because a witness is related to the prosecution party and inimical to the accused persons, his evidence cannot be discarded if the same is otherwise trustworthy. In the case on hand, we do not find any infirmity whatsoever in the evidence of PWs 1, 3 and 4, as such it is not possible to disbelieve them, especially in view of the fact that their evidence is supported by medical evidence as well as objective findings of the investigating officer, but the High Court has committed a serious error in discarding their testimonies on this score.

49. In the case of State of Rajasthan Vs. Hanuman12, the Apex Court has held as under:-

The position is well settled that evidence of eye-witnesses cannot be discarded merely on the ground that they are relatives of the deceased. Normally close relatives of the deceased are not likely to falsely implicate a person in the incident leading to the death of the relative unless there are very strong and cogent reasons to accept such criticism."

50. In the case of Banti @ Guddu vs. State of Madhya Pradesh13, the Apex Court has held as under:-

"...Coming to the plea that the presence of PWs 1 and 2 at the spot of occurrence is doubtful, it is to be noticed that both PWs 1 and 2 were cross-examined at length. Nothing Infirm has been elicited to cast doubt on their veracity. If the lack of motive as pleaded by the accused appellants is a factor, at the same time it cannot be lost sight of that, there is no reason as to why PW-1 would falsely implicate the accused persons. There was no suggestion of any motive for such alleged false implication. Merely because PW-1 is a relation of the deceased, and PW-2 was known to him, that per se cannot be a ground to discard their evidence. Careful scrutiny has been done of their evidence and it has been found acceptable by both the trial Court and the High Court. We find no reason to take a different view."

51. Learned counsel for appellants has argued that PW-2 in his statement has stated that the deceased Roop Narain who was said to be his father-in-law was murdered in his village and then added that he was murdered in Umariya which is one kilometer from his village. He has also stated that he had gone to Shahpur market as his mother was unwell, however, no such statement was given to the Investigating Officer. It is also argued that PW-2 in his statement has stated that he had informed that the accused had kept the severed head of deceased Roop Narain in the bag, however, the Investigating Officer in his statement has denied the same which clearly goes to show that the statement of PW-2 is not reliable.

52. So far as the evidence of PW-2 is concerned, it is to be noted that there is no doubt that PW-2 at one place has stated that the deceased was murdered in his village and then added that he was murdered in village Umariya which is one kilometer from his village while at another place he has stated that the deceased was murdered in Shahpur market while selling food-grains such as Mansoori (pulse) and rice. There are certain contradictions in his statement which have not been properly explained by him. The learned Trial Court has, therefore, held that the evidence of PW-2 is not worthy of credence. We have no reason to disagree with the findings of the learned Trial Court in this regard.

53. Another eye-witness in question is PW-3 Gokaran, who stated that nearly three years back Roop Narain was murdered in Shahpur market on 15.7.1981 at about 6PM. That on that day he had gone from his village to purchase vegetables, etc. from the said market. After purchasing some goods he went towards the place where food-grains were kept for sale. It is stated that Khattoo had fired at Roop Narain and when Roop Narain wanted to run away then Patrakhan also fired at Roop Narain with his half gun. He had also fired second time. Roop Narain fell down and then other accused persons Chukki, Avadhesh, Kalloo, Dalla ad Sheo Poojan assaulted him. The accused Chukki had a knife, Sheo Poojan and Avadhesh had banka while accused Kalloo and Dalla had lathi in their hands. The accused persons also lifted Roop Narain and after going 10 steps Sheo Poojan and Avadhesh severed the head of Roop Narain and went away with their bag. He stated that Shahpur market was at a distance of three miles from his village. He also stated that he had started from his village at 4PM and reached market about 5PM. The description of crime by PW-3 Gokaran appears to be natural and correct.

54. Learned counsel for appellants tried to submit that Roop Narain had stood a surety for PW-3 Gokaran vide document Ext. Kha-1 on record 13.7.1981. The occurrence in question took place on 15.7.1981. PW-3 Gokaran in his statement has stated that he did not know whether the deceased Roop Narain had stood a surety for him or not is unbelievable, he was released on bail 2 to 3 days back before the occurrence, the testimony of PW-3 Gokaran is therefore not trustworthy.

55. In this regard, it is to be noted that after his release from jail PW-3 might have gone away to his house and since the occurrence in question took place within two days since his release from jail i.e., soon after Roop Narain stood surety for him so there is a possibility that he might not have come to know the name of Roop Narain as a surety for him. At the time of presentation of bail bonds, the presence of accused is not necessary and the bail bonds are also not submitted in the presence of the accused person, as such, the argument of learned counsel for appellants in this regard is not very much material.

56. PW-3 had given details of the occurrence, specific role of each accused persons, the weapons used by them and the description of the manner in which crime was committed by the accused persons. The presence of PW-3 at the time of occurrence is as such without any doubt.

57. In the case of Yogesh Singh v. Mahabeer Singh14, the Apex Court has observed as under:

24. On the issue of appreciation of evidence of interested witnesses, Dalip Singh v.State of Punjab [Dalip Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1953 SC 364 : 1954 SCR 145 : 1953 Cri LJ 1465] is one of the earliest cases on the point. In that case, it was held as follows: (AIR p. 366, para 26)

"26. A witness is normally to be considered independent unless he or she springs from sources which are likely to be tainted and that usually means unless the witness has cause, such as enmity against the accused, to wish to implicate him falsely. Ordinarily, a close relative would be the last to screen the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent person. It is true, when feelings run high and there is personal cause for enmity, that there is a tendency to drag in an innocent person against whom a witness has a grudge along with the guilty, but foundation must be laid for such a criticism and the mere fact of relationship far from being a foundation is often a sure guarantee of truth."

25. Similarly, in Piara Singh v. State of Punjab [Piara Singh v. State of Punjab, (1977) 4 SCC 452 : 1977 SCC (Cri) 614] , this Court held: (SCC p. 455, para 4)

"4. ... It is well settled that the evidence of interested or inimical witnesses is to be scrutinised with care but cannot be rejected merely on the ground of being a partisan evidence. If on a perusal of the evidence the Court is satisfied that the evidence is creditworthy there is no bar in the Court relying on the said evidence."

26. In Hari Obula Reddy v. State of A.P. [Hari Obula Reddy v. State of A.P., (1981) 3 SCC 675 : 1981 SCC (Cri) 795] , a three-Judge Bench of this Court observed: (SCC pp. 683-84, para 13)

"13. ... it is well settled that interested evidence is not necessarily unreliable evidence. Even partisanship by itself is not a valid ground for discrediting or rejecting sworn testimony. Nor can it be laid down as an invariable rule that interested evidence can never form the basis of conviction unless corroborated to a material extent in material particulars by independent evidence. All that is necessary is that the evidence of interested witnesses should be subjected to careful scrutiny and accepted with caution. If on such scrutiny, the interested testimony is found to be intrinsically reliable or inherently probable, it may, by itself, be sufficient, in the circumstances of the particular case, to base a conviction thereon."

27. Again, in Ramashish Rai v. Jagdish Singh [Ramashish Rai v. Jagdish Singh, (2005) 10 SCC 498 : 2005 SCC (Cri) 1611] , the following observations were made by this Court: (SCC p. 501, para 7)

"7. ... The requirement of law is that the testimony of inimical witnesses has to be considered with caution. If otherwise the witnesses are true and reliable their testimony cannot be thrown out on the threshold by branding them as inimical witnesses. By now, it is well-settled principle of law that enmity is a double-edged sword. It can be a ground for false implication. It also can be a ground for assault. Therefore, a duty is cast upon the court to examine the testimony of inimical witnesses with due caution and diligence."

28. A survey of the judicial pronouncements of this Court on this point leads to the inescapable conclusion that the evidence of a closely related witness is required to be carefully scrutinised and appreciated before any conclusion is made to rest upon it, regarding the convict/accused in a given case. Thus, the evidence cannot be disbelieved merely on the ground that the witnesses are related to each other or to the deceased. In case the evidence has a ring of truth to it, is cogent, credible and trustworthy, it can, and certainly should, be relied upon. (See Anil Rai v. State of Bihar[Anil Rai v. State of Bihar, (2001) 7 SCC 318 : 2001 SCC (Cri) 1009] , State of U.P. v.Jagdeo [State of U.P. v. Jagdeo, (2003) 1 SCC 456 : 2003 SCC (Cri) 351] , Bhagaloo Lodh v. State of U.P.[Bhagaloo Lodh v. State of U.P., (2011) 13 SCC 206 : (2012) 1 SCC (Cri) 813] , Dahari v. State of U.P. [Dahari v. State of U.P., (2012) 10 SCC 256 : (2013) 1 SCC (Cri) 22] , Raju v. State of T.N. [Raju v. State of T.N., (2012) 12 SCC 701 : (2012) 4 SCC (Cri) 184] , Gangabhavani v. Rayapati Venkat Reddy[Gangabhavani v. Rayapati Venkat Reddy, (2013) 15 SCC 298 : (2014) 6 SCC (Cri) 182] and Jodhan v. State of M.P. [Jodhan v. State of M.P., (2015) 11 SCC 52 : (2015) 4 SCC (Cri) 275])

58. The Supreme Court in the case of Vijendra Singh v. State of U.P.15, has observed as follows:

30. It is next contended by Mr Giri, learned counsel for the appellants that all the eyewitnesses are related to the deceased Badan Pal and they being interested witnesses, their version requires scrutiny with care, caution and circumspection and when their evidence is scanned with the said parameters, it does not withstand the said test for which the case set forth by the prosecution gets corroded and the principle of beyond reasonable doubt gets shattered. The aforesaid submission, as we perceive, has no legs to stand upon, for PWs 1 to 3 have deposed in detail about the previous enmity between the parties, their presence at the spot, the weapons the accused persons carried, their proximity to the shed and establishment of the identity of all the four accused. They have also testified as regards the deceased lying in a pool of blood. There is no reason why they would implicate the appellants for the murder of their relation leaving behind the real culprit. That apart, nothing has been elicited in the cross-examination for which their testimony can be discredited.

31. In this regard reference to a passage from Hari Obula Reddy v. State of A.P.[Hari Obula Reddy v. State of A.P., (1981) 3 SCC 675 : 1981 SCC (Cri) 795] would be fruitful. In the said case, a three-Judge Bench has ruled that: (SCC pp. 683-84, para 13)

"[it cannot] be laid down as an invariable rule that interested evidence can never form the basis of conviction unless corroborated to a material extent in material particulars by independent evidence. All that is necessary is that the evidence of the interested witnesses should be subjected to careful scrutiny and accepted with caution. If on such scrutiny, the interested testimony is found to be intrinsically reliable or inherently probable, it may, by itself, be sufficient, in the circumstances of the particular case, to base a conviction thereon."

It is worthy to note that there is a distinction between a witness who is related and an interested witness. A relative is a natural witness. The Court in Kartik Malhar v.State of Bihar [Kartik Malhar v. State of Bihar, (1996) 1 SCC 614 : 1996 SCC (Cri) 188] has opined that a close relative who is a natural witness cannot be regarded as an interested witness, for the term "interested" postulates that the witness must have some interest in having the accused, somehow or the other, convicted for some animus or for some other reason.

59. Thus, from the statement of PW-1, Jagdish and PW-3, Gokaran who are said to be eye-witnesses to the crime, it is very much established that they are not involved or indulged in falsehood or telling lie, their testimony is trustworthy.

60. It is also established that the written report Ext. Ka-1 was lodged at the police station by PW-1 Jagdish. The scribe of FIR is PW-2 Indra Prakash. Merely because the FIR was lodged by Indra Prakash at the dictates of PW-1 it does not become suspicious document. The FIR was lodged at 8.45PM on 15.7.1981. The distance of place of occurrence and police station is 7 miles. PW-2 Indra Prakash is resident of village Gursariya which is at a distance of two and half kilometer from Shahpur market. It may be that PW-2 Indra Prakash may have reached there after the occurrence. FIR, thus, does not become suspicious document.

61. Learned counsel for appellants has argued that the head of the deceased was not recovered by the police and, as such, there was doubt about the identity of the headless body found at the place of occurrence which was said to be of deceased, Roop Narain. In this regard, it is to be noted that since we have found the statements of PW-1 and PW-3 to be trustworthy and they are said to be eye-witnesses to the crime and, as such, even if the head of the deceased was not recovered by the police, it does not in any manner creates any doubt about identity of the deceased who was said to have been put to death by the accused persons.

62. Now, we have to examine the conviction of appellants Avadhesh Kumar, ,Patrakhan, Sheo Poojan, Uma Shanker alias Dalla and Kalloo under Section 302 with the aid of Section 149 IPC. Section 149 IPC, for convenience, is reproduced below:

"149. Every member of unlawful assembly guilty of offence committed in prosecution of common object.--If an offence is committed by any member of an unlawful assembly in prosecution of the common object of that assembly, or such as the members of that assembly knew to be likely to be committed in prosecution of that object, every person who, at the time of the committing of that offence, is a member of the same assembly, is guilty of that offence."

63. It has been argued by the learned counsel for appellants that as per the prosecution case Purushottam @ Khattoo had fired at the deceased. The fire had hit the deceased, Roop Narain when he was seated. Roop Narain tried to run and when he moved for 2 or 3 steps. Patrakhan had fired from his half gun as a result of which Roop Narain fell down. Thereafter. The accused appellants, Avadhesh Kumar, Kalloo, Sheo Poojan, Dalla and Pankaj assaulted the deceased Roop Narain with their weapons. Avadhesh and Sheo Poojan were armed with banka, Kalloo and Dalla were armed with lathi while Pankaj was armed with knife (chhuri). It has been argued that from the postmortem examination report it is evident that the body of the deceased was having gun shot injuries and incised wounds. Injury no. 12 was an abrasion injury. There was no lacerated wound, as such, it cannot be said that the deceased was hit by lathi. The incised wounds could have been caused by sharp edged weapon but no such injury could be attributed to knife (chhuri). The contention is that no such occurrence took place in the manner as alleged by the prosecution.

64. In this connection, it may be pointed out that the headless body of the deceased was recovered. The deceased was assaulted by seven persons out of whom Kalloo and Uma Shanker @ Dalla assaulted the deceased with lathi. There is possibility that the deceased may have sustained lathi blow on his head which was severed and, therefore, in the postmortem examination report the presence of injuries caused by lathi were no mentioned. Moreover, in view of large number of persons assaulting the deceased, it cannot be said that the persons wielding lathis continued to assault the deceased. There is, thus, no contradiction between the ocular evidence and the medical evidence in the present case.

65. In case an offence is committed by any member of an unlawful assembly in prosecution of the common object and such members of that assembly knew the purpose with which they had assembly; then, every person present at the time of committing of that offence is a member of that assembly and is guilty of that offence.

66. In the present case, the presence of the accused-appellants at the place of occurrence and their participation in the crime has been established by the prosecution. The ocular witnesses have clearly stated the specific role and the weapon used by the accused-appellants in murdering the deceased, Roop Narain, severing his head and keeping it in a bag to cause disappearance of evidence of offence. The common object of unlawful assembly to cause death of the deceased was well established. There was nexus between common object and the offence committed and, as such, every accused-appellants were liable for the same.

67. The Apex Court in the case of Gurmail Singh (supra), which has been relied by learned AGA, has explained the constructive liability under Section 149. Relevant paragraph 29 is reproduced below:

29. However, with regard to the constitution of an unlawful assembly, the High Court disagreed with the trial court. It was held that the presence of eight persons armed with guns and gandasas with a motive to wreak vengeance on Gurdail Singh and his family clearly pointed to the existence of an unlawful assembly having a common object. That Gurdial Singh was the target is clear from the number and nature of injuries received by him, which subsequently resulted in his death. Alternatively, it was held that the members of the unlawful assembly knew that an offence against Gurdail Singh was likely to be committed. As such, the ingredients of Section 149 IPC were made out.

68. In the case of Chanakya Dhibar (dead) (supra), which has been relied by the learned AGA, it has been held by the Apex Court that even if one of the accused persons used the weapon and definite role of all the accused persons were not assigned, it cannot be accepted that Section 149 IPC would not be applicable. Relevant paragraph 19 is reproduced below:

"19. All the accused persons were armed. Their conduct before, during and after the occurrence clearly brings about the object. The assembly was patently unlawful. It is inconceivable that persons armed would surround the persons without any criminal object in mind. Mere fact that only one of them used the weapon does not really rule out application of Section 149 IPC. Learned counsel for the accused persons submitted that contrary to the evidence of PWs 3 and 5 there was only one injury found by the doctor. PWs 3 and 5 have stated about assaults and if five persons were really assaulting the result would not have been only one injury. The definition of "assault" as given in Section 351 IPC makes the plea unacceptable. The trial Court had rightly and in proper legal perspective convicted the accused-respondents under Section 148 and 304 Part I read with Section 149 IPC. The High Court's judgment suffers from serious infirmities making it indefensible and is therefore, set aside. The judgment of the trial Court recording conviction and imposing sentences is restored. The appeal is allowed."

69. In a recent judgment in the case of Dev Karan vs. State of Haryana16, the Apex Court has considered the applicability of Section 149 IPC in such cases and has held that where an unlawful assembly as a result of which an offence was committed by the common object is established specific attribution of injuries caused by each individual was not required to be considered. As long as the necessary ingredients of an unlawful assembly are set out and proved, as enunciated in Section 141 IPC, it would suffice the invocation of Section 149 IPC. Relevant paragraph 19, 20 and 21 are reproduced below:

19. Thereafter, it has been opined that if charges framed against the appellant contain all the necessary ingredients to bring home to each of the member of the unlawful assembly, the offence, with aid of Section 149 of the IPC, and the prosecution proves the existence of an unlawful assembly with a common object, which is the offence, as also the 8(1966) 1 SCR 18 membership of each appellant, nothing more is necessary. The effect of these observations is that Section 141 of the IPC only defines what is an unlawful assembly and in what manner the unlawful assembly conducts itself, and in what cases the common object would make the assembly unlawful is specified in the Sections thereafter, inviting the consequences of the appropriate punishment in the context of Section 149 of the IPC.

20. In KuldipYadav v. State of Bihar; (2011) 5 SCC 324, it has been opined in para 36 that a clear finding regarding the nature of the common object of the assembly must be given and the evidence discussed must show not only the common object, but also that the object was unlawful, before recording a conviction under Section 149 of the IPC. What is required is that the essential ingredients of Section 141 of the IPC must be established.

21. On examination of the aforesaid aspect, we are unable to come to a conclusion that there was any fatal flaw in the non-inclusion of Section 141 of the IPC while framing charges, as would render the complete trial illegal, or that it can result in a finding that there would be no occasion to invoke Section 149 of the IPC. Learned counsel appears not to have appreciated the judicial pronouncements in the correct perspective, as what is necessary for invoking Section 149 of the IPC has been set out in these judgments. It has nowhere been said that Section 141 of the IPC should be specifically invoked or else the consequences would be fatal. As long as the necessary ingredients of an unlawful assembly are set out and proved, as enunciated in Section 141 of the IPC, it would suffice. The actions of an unlawful assembly and the punishment thereafter are set out in the subsequent provisions, after Section 141 of the IPC, and as long as those ingredients are met, Section 149 of the IPC can be invoked.

70. In the case of Shambhu Nath Singh and others vs. State of Bihar17, it was held by the Apex Court that there is vicarious liability of every member of an unlawful assembly who were assembled with a common object to commit the offence. The conviction of an offence may be recorded against the members of unlawful assembly even if it be established that the offence of murder was committed by a member of that assembly. Relevant paragraph 7 is reproduced below:

7. Therefore a conviction for an offence under Section 326 read with Section 149 of the Indian Penal Code may be recorded against the members of an unlawful assembly, even if it be established that an offence of murder was committed by a member of that assembly. The offence under Section 326 of the Indian Penal Code is in its relation to the offence of murder a minor offence and the language used in Section 149 of the Indian Penal Code does not prevent the court from convicting for that minor offence merely because an aggravated offence is committed. Counsel for the accused however sought to place reliance upon certain authorities in support of his contention. We may briefly deal with those authorities.

71. In view of above, we are of the considered view that the prosecution has been able to prove its case beyond any reasonable doubt. The act of accused appellants collectively amounts to culpable homicide amounting to murder and punishable under Section 302 IPC bringing all of them under joint liability of the offence. The conviction and sentence of appellants under Section 302/149 is confirmed. The conviction and sentence of appellants under Section 147 is also confirmed. The conviction and sentence of appellants, Avadhesh Kumar, Patrakhan, Sheo Poojan under Section 148 is also confirmed. The conviction and sentence of appellants, Avadhesh Kumar and Sheo Poojan under Section 201 IPC is also confirmed. .

72. We do not find any error in the impugned judgment. It is evincible from the evidence on record that all the accused were in prior consultation and pre-planned to kill Roop Narain and to further this common object they came to the place of occurrence and committed the crime.

73. Thus, we do not find any merit in the criminal appeal, therefore, the same is liable to be dismissed it is accordingly dismissed.

Order

(i) The criminal appeal no. 14 of 1985 preferred by accused-appellants, Avadhesh Kumar, Patrakhan, Sheo Poojan, Uma Shanker alias Dalla and Kalloo arising out of judgment and order of sentence passed in Sessions Trial No. 117 of 1982, Crime No. 152 of 1981, Police Station Laharpur, District Sitapur under Sections 147, 148, 149, 302, 201 IPC is dismissed. The judgment and order of sentence of life imprisonment is confirmed.

(ii) Copy of the judgment be sent to Sessions Judge, Sitapur to ensure compliance under intimation to this Court.

(iii) The Office is directed to provide the copy of the judgment separately to all the five appellants promptly.

(iv) The office is further directed to enter the judgment in compliance register maintained for the purpose on the Court.

Criminal law-Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860)-Section 302, Section 34 - Common intention - Proof - To invoke Section 34 IPC it must be established : (i) common intention and (ii) participation of the accused in the commission of an offence - an act, whether overt or covert, is indispensable to be done by a co-accused - overt or covert act, totality of circumstances, conduct of the accused must be taken into consideration in arriving at the conclusion whether the accused had the such intention to commit an offence of which he could be convicted (19, 24)

Evidence law - Evidence Act (1 of 1872) , Section 3 - Murder - Exhortation to assault - Evidence of exhortation is by nature a weak piece of evidence – however if the evidence is clear, cogent and reliable conviction can be recorded against the person alleged to have exhorted the actual assailant (Para 23)

In pradhan election Deceased Manish worked for winning candidate - accused Mahadev contested but lost election on account of which he was bearing enmity with the deceased - appellants came armed with country-made pistol - appellant Indra Pal and Gulab Singh exhorted accused Mahadev to kill - on which Mahadev fired a shot on the chest of the deceased - receiving the shot he died then and there- after firing shot all accused fled together - Held - circumstances clearly demonstrate that all the accused had common intention to kill the deceased Manish - act of exhortation of the appellant leading to the killing of deceased Manish in furtherance of common intention - clear, cogent and reliable evidence against the appellant Indra Pal in perpetration of the crime - conviction and sentence proper. (Para 35)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ali Zamin, J.)

1. Heard Sri Shashi Dhar Pandey, learned counsel for the appellant, learned A.G.A for the State and perused record carefully.

2. This is an appeal challenging the judgment and order dated 20.12.2000 passed in S.T. No.131 of 1996 (State vs. Mahadev and others) by which the learned IIIrd Additional Sessions Judge, Firozabad has convicted the appellants under Section 302/34 I.P.C. and sentenced each of the appellants to undergo imprisonment for life and fine Rs.5,000/-.to appellant Mahadev Prasad @ Shiv Ram Goojar, Rs 1000/ to appellant Indra Pal @ Guddu and in default of payment of fine they have been directed to undergo additional rigorous imprisonment for a period of three months and one month respectively.

3. At the outset it is noted that during pendency of the trial Gulab Singh @ Golia died, his case was abated vide order dated 06.7.2000 and during pendency of the appeal, appellant no.1 Mahadev Prasad @ Shivram Goojar also died and appeal against him has been dismissed as abated vide order dated 07.01.2019. Hence this appeal is confined to appellant no.2 Indra Pal Singh @ Guddu only.

4. Briefly stated, the facts of the case, as culled out from the case of prosecution, are that the candidate of informant Dinesh Upadhyay had won the election of Gram Pradhan. Accused Mahadev Prasad @ Shivram Goojar s/o Maharaj Singh Goojar also contested the election and he was defeated. Manish, the deceased had worked for winning candidate of Pradhan. On account of which Mahadev Prasad @ Shivram Goojar, Indra Pal @ Guddu, son of Maharaj Singh and Gulab Singh @ Golia son of Rajbir Jatav of his village were bearing enmity with him. On account of this enmity, to avenge from him Mahadev Prasad @ Shivram Goojar kept his wife and children along with all belongings at his house to somewhere else.

Mahadev and his brother Indra Pal used to visit the house. On 13.08.1995 at about 6:00 p.m. Manish Upadhyay was sitting on a cot in front of his house. Informant Dinesh Upadhyay, Chandrabhan son of Srichandra, Raghvendra son of Om Prakash and Virendra Dubey son of Sri Ram Gopal Dubey resident of Rashidpur Kanetha, P.S. Matsaina were also sitting at a some distance, when the accused Mahadev Prasad @ Shivram Goojar, Indra Pal @ Guddu and Gulab Singh @ Golia came having country-made pistol in their hand. Indra Pal @ Guddu and Gulab Singh @ Golia exhorted Mahadev to kill stating that because of him they have been defeated, upon this Mahadev Prasad @ Shivram Goojar fired a shot on the chest of Manish from a country-made pistol. On which he fell down and died. After firing the shot all the three accused fled, they were chased but pointing country-made pistol and threatening of dire consequences, accused fled away towards north side.

5. On the basis of written report Ext.Ka-1 of informant Dinesh Upadhyay, Case Crime No.72/1995, under Sections 302/34 against accused was registered under chik F.I.R. Ext. Ka-8 on 13.08.1995 at 19:15 p.m. and investigation of the case was handed over to S.H.O. Virendra Singh. Virendra Singh, Investigating Officer reached the place of incident and prepared inquest memo Ext.Ka-3. He also prepared relevant papers i.e. letter to R.I. (Ext.Ka-4), challan lash (Ext.Ka-5) photo lash (Ext.Ka-6), letter to C.M.O. (Ext.Ka-7) and dispatched the dead body for postmortem along with constable Jagvir Singh.

6. P.W.6 Dr. S.L. Saraswat conducted postmortem of the dead body on 14.08.1995 at 01:00 p.m. and prepared its report (Ext.Ka-10), according to which following injuries were found on the dead body:

(i). Gun shot wound of 1.2 c.m. x 1 c.m. on the right side of the middle part of chest. Margin inverted, blackening and tattooing were present. Track is directing medial downward, on cutting underneath tissue is tattooed.

(ii). Multiple pin point sized abrasions all over in front both sides of chest were present and right side lung was lacerated.

In opinion of the doctor injuries were possible by fire arm and due to the injuries death was possible. The injuries were possible to have occurred on 13.08.1995 at 6:00 p.m.

7. On 15.08.1995, investigation of the case was handed over to S.I. D.N. Pandey. On 16.08.1995, Investigating Officer took into his possession, the cot on which deceased Manish was sitting at the time of incident and prepared its memo Ext.Ka-2. He also prepared spot map Ext. Ka-11. After completing the investigation he submitted charge sheet (Ext.Ka-10) against accused Mahadev Pradad @ Shivram Goojar, Indra Pal @ Guddu and Gulab Singh @ Golia under Section 302/34 I.P.C..

8. Since the offence under Section 302/34 I.P.C. is exclusively triable by Court of Sessions, therefore, C.J.M., Firozabad committed the accused to the court of Sessions for trial where Case Crime No.72 of 1995, under Section 302/34 I.P.C. was registered as S.T. No.131 of 1996, where from the trial was made over to the court of IInd Additional Sessions Judge, who framed charge under Section 302/34 I.P.C. against the accused persons. In due course of trial, the case was again transferred from the court of IInd additional sessions judge Firozabad to the court of IIIrd Additional Sessions Judge Firozabad.

9. To prove the charge against the accused, prosecution produced seven witnesses. P.W.1 Dinesh Upadhyay informant, P.W.2 Raghvendra and P.W.3 Chhotey Lal are the witnesses of fact. P.W.4 S.I. Virendra Singh, first Investigating Officer. P.W.5 Suresh Babu Sharma scribe of chik FIR and G.D. and also deposed as a witness for secondary evidence on account of death of IInd I.O. D.N. Pandey. P.W.6 Dr. S.L. Saraswat conducted postmortem and P.W.7 Jagvir Singh carrier of the dead body for postmortem, are the formal witnesses.

10. After examination of prosecution witnesses statement of accused persons were recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C., in which they pleaded, case falsely proceeded against them. In defence, no witness has been produced by them.

11. After hearing to the parties and perusal of the record, learned IIIrd Additional Sessions Judge Firozabad passed the impugned judgment and order as disclosed in para 2 of the judgment. Hence this appeal.

12. Sri Shashi Dhar Pandey, learned counsel for the appellant submits that role of exhortation has been assigned to the appellant. Evidence of exhortation is a very weak type of evidence. Apart from the role of exhortation, there is no evidence against the appellant. He also submits that as per FIR as well as ocular evidence single fire was made but in postmortem report two injuries have been found. PW-2 Raghvendra is relative and resident of other village, no independent or neighborhood witness has been produced. Learned trial court without proper evaluation of the evidence has convicted and sentenced the appellant which is not sustainable in the eye of the law and it is liable to set aside.

13. Per contra learned AGA submits that there was pradhan election enmity. Accused Mahadev had contested the Gram pradhan election. In the election he was defeated and one Chunni Lal had won the election. Deceased Manish had worked for Chunni Lal, the winning candidate of Pradhan. On account of which accused Mahadev was bearing enmity against the Manish that because of him he has lost the election. Accused Indra Pal is brother of accused Mahadev and accused Gulab Singh @ Golia is his friend. On account of the election enmity all accused armed with country-made pistol came to the place of incident and on exhortation of accused Indra Pal and Gulab Singh accused Mahadev fired at the deceased from his country-made pistol which hit his chest and due to the injury caused by him he died on the spot. Incident had occurred at 6.00 p.m. on 13.8.95 and its prompt FIR on the same day at 19.15 p.m. has been lodged giving details. It is a day light incident. From the prosecution evidence charge is fully proved against the accused appellant. Learned trial court evaluating properly the evidence on record has rightly convicted and sentenced them and no interference is required by this court.

14. The incident had occurred at 6.00 p.m. on 13.08.95 and its information to the police station as per FIR Ext Ka-8 was given at 19.15 p.m. PW-1 Dinesh Upadhyay has stated that he had written the report at his house. He has also stated that in scribing the report and seeing the son, it took half an hour. As per chik FIR distance of police station from the place of incident is 3 km and according to informant he went to the police station by cycle, in such circumstance it appears that FIR has been lodged promptly without deliberation and consultation.

15. It is not disputed that it is a case of day light occurrence. It is also not disputed that deceased Manish died of homicidal violence. It is evident from the medical evidence adduced in the case. PW-6 Dr S.L. Saraswat has conducted postmortem and prepared report Ext Ka-10, according to which there was a gun shot wound of 1.2 c.m. x 1 c.m. on the right side of the middle part of chest. Margin inverted, blackening and tattooing were present. Track is directing medial downward on cutting underneath tissue is tattooed and multiple pin point sized abrasions all over in front on both sides of chest were present and right side lung was lacerated. In opinion of the doctor injuries were possible by fire arm and due to the injuries death was possible on 13.08.1995 at 06:00 p.m.. From the above, it is clear that Manish died due to the injuries sustained by him.

16. As per Ext. Ka-8 chik FIR deceased Manish Upadhyay on 13.8.95 at 6.00 p.m. was sitting on a cot in front of his house at that time Mahadev prasad, Indra Pal and Gulab Singh came having country-made pistol in their hand, Indra Pal and Gulab Singh Exhorted to kill saying that because of him we have lost the election, upon which Mahadev fired a shot from country-made pistol on the chest of Manish, upon which he fell down there and died. After firing the shot all the accused fled away towards north. PW-1 Dinesh Upadhyay and PW-2 Raghvendra have supported the FIR version through their testimony and from their cross examination nothing has been extracted by defence so that their testimony with regard to coming of accused persons having country-made pistol in their hand and exhortation to the accused Mahadev by Indra Pal and Gulab Singh to kill, can be doubted. From the prosecution evidence it is explicit that role of the appellant is one of exhortation.

17. Now the question before us is that whether the act of exhortation of the appellant Indra Pal is leading to the doing of a criminal act in furtherance of common intention. To appreciate the issue, it will be apt to refer the law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in this regard.

18. In case of Jainul Haque vs State Of Bihar, AIR 1974 SC1651, Hon'ble Supreme Court in para 8 of its judgment has held as under:

"The evidence of exhortation is, in the very nature of things, a weak piece of evidence. There is quite often a tendency to implicate some person, in addition to the actual assailant by attributing to that person an exhortation to the assailant to assault the victim. Unless the evidence in this respect be clear, cogent and reliable, no conviction for abetment can be recorded against the person alleged to have exhorted the actual assailant."

19. In general, principle of criminal law is that the person who commits the offence can be held guilty. Section 34 of Indian Penal Code lays down principle of joint liability in doing criminal act. The essence of liability is to be found in existence of a common intention connecting the accused leading to the doing of a criminal act in furtherance of such intention. If criminal act is done in furtherance of common intention then every person who did the criminal act with the common intention will be liable for the act. Common intention essentially being a state of mind, therefore, it is very difficult to procure direct evidence to prove such intention. Hence, in majority of cases it has to be inferred from the overt or covert act, other relevant circumstances of the case and conduct of accused in totality of circumstances of the case. In this regard gainfully, para 12 of the judgment of apex court in the case of Ramesh Singh @ Photti VS State Of A. P. AIR2004 (SC) 4545, is quoted as under:

"12. To appreciate the arguments advanced on behalf of the appellants it is necessary to understand the object of incorporating Section 34 in the Indian Penal Code. As a general principle in a case of criminal liability it is the primary responsibility of the person who actually commits the offence and only that person who has committed the crime can be held to guilty. By introducing Section 34 in the penal code the Legislature laid down the principle of joint liability in doing a criminal act. The essence of that liability is to be found in the existence of a common intention connecting the accused leading to the doing of a criminal act in furtherance of such intention. Thus, if the act is the result of a common intention then every person who did the criminal act with that common intention would be responsible for the offence committed irrespective of the share which he had in its perpetration. Section 34 IPC embodies the principles of joint liability in doing the criminal act based on a common intention. Common intention essentially being a state of mind it is very difficult to procure direct evidence to prove such intention. Therefore, in most cases it has to be inferred from the act like, the conduct of the accused or other relevant circumstances of the case. The inference can be gathered by the manner in which the accused arrived at the scene, mounted the attack, determination and concert with which the attack was made, from the nature of injury caused by one or some of them. The contributory acts of the persons who are not responsible for the injury can further be inferred from the subsequent conduct after the attack. In this regard even an illegal omission on the part of such accused can indicate the sharing of common intention. In other words, the totality of circumstances must be taken into consideration in arriving at the conclusion whether the accused had the common intention to commit an offence of which they could be convicted."

20. In Suresh and another vs State Of U.P. 2001 3 SCC 673, Hon'ble Supreme Court in para 24 of its judgment has held as under:

"24. Looking at the first postulate pointed out above, the accused who is to be fastened with liability on the strength of Section 34, IPC should have done some act which has nexus with the offence. Such act need not be very substantial, it is enough that the act is only for guarding the scene for facilitating the crime. The act need not necessarily be overt, even if it is only a covert act it is enough, provided such a covert act is proved to have been done by the co-accused in furtherance of the common intention. Even an omission can, in certain circumstances, amount to an act. This is the purport of Section 32, IPC. So the act mentioned in Section 34, IPC need not be an overt act, even an illegal omission to do a certain act in a certain situation can amount to an act, e. g. a co-accused, standing near the victim face to face saw an armed assailant nearing the victim from behind with a weapon to inflict a blow. The co-accused, who could have alerted the victim to move away to escape from the onslaught deliberately refrained from doing so with the idea that the blow should fall on the victim. Such omission can also be termed as an act in a given situation. Hence an act, whether overt or covert, is indispensable to be done by a co-accused to be fastened with the liability under the section. But if no such act is done by a person, even if he has common intention with the others for the accomplishment of the crime, Section 34, IPC cannot be invoked for convicting that person. In other words, the accused who only keeps the common intention in his mind, but does not do any act at the scene, cannot be convicted with the aid of Section 34, IPC. "

21. In Surendra Chauhan VS State Of M. P. , 2000 4 SCC 110, Hon'ble Supreme Court in para 11 of its judgment has held as under:

"11. Under Section 34 a person must be physically present at the actual commission of the crime for the purpose of facilitating or promoting the offence, the commission of which is the aim of the joint criminal venture. Such presence of those who in one way or the other facilitate the execution of the common design is itself tantamount to actual participation in the criminal act. The essence of Section 34 is simultaneous consensus of the minds of persons participating in the criminal action to bring about a particular result. Such consensus can be developed at the spot and thereby intended by all of them. Ramaswami Ayhangar & Ors. v. State of Tamil Nadu2. The existence of common intention can be inferred from the attending circumstances of the case and the conduct of the parties. No direct evidence of common intention is necessary. For the purpose of common intention even the participation in the commission of the offence need not be proved in all cases. The common intention can develop even during the course of an occurrence. Rajesh Govind Jagesha v. State of Maharashtra3. To apply Section 34 IPC apart from the fact that there should be two or more accused, two factors must be established : (i) common intention and (ii) participation of the accused in the commission of an offence. If a common intention is proved but no overt act is attributed to the individual accused, Section 34 will be attracted as essentially it involves vicarious liability but if participation of the accused in the crime is proved and a common intention is absent, Section 34 cannot be invoked. In every case, it is not possible to have direct evidence of a common intention. It has to be inferred from the facts and circumstances of each case."

22. In Pandurang VS State Of Hyderabad, 1955 1 SCR 1083, Hon'ble Supreme Court in para 34 and 35 of its judgment has held as under:

"34. In the present case, there is no evidence of any prior meeting. We know nothing of what they said or did before the attack-not even immediately before. Pandurang is not even of the same caste as the others. Bhilia. Tukia and Nilia are Lambadas, Pandurang is a Hatkar and Tukaram a Maratha. It is true prior concert and arrangement can, and indeed often must be determined from subsequent conduct as; for example, by a systematic plan of campaign unfolding itself during the course of the action which could only be referable to prior concert and pre-arrangement, or a running away together in a body or a meeting together subsequently. But, to quote the Privy Council again,

"the inference of common intention should never be reached unless it is a necessary inference deducible from the circumstances of the case".

But to say this is no more than to reproduce the ordinary rule about circumstantial evidence, for there is no special rule of evidence for this class of case. At bottom, it is a question of fact in every case and however similar the circumstances, facts in one case cannot be used as a precedent to determine the conclusion on the facts in another. All that is necessary is either to have direct proof of prior concert, or proof of circumstances which necessarily lead to that inference, or, as we prefer to put it in the time-honoured way, "the incriminating facts must be incompatible with the innocence of the accused and incapable of explanation on any other reasonable hypothesis". (Sarkar s Evidence, 8th edition, page 30).

35. The learned counsel for the state relied on - Mamand v. Emperor , AIR 1946 PC 45 (C), because in that case the accused all ran away and their Lordships took that into consideration to establish a common intention. But there was much more than that. There was evidence of enmity on the part of the accused who only joined in the attack but had no hand in the killing; and none on the part of the two who did the actual murder. There was evidence that all three lived together and that one was a younger brother and the other a tenant of the appellant in question. There was evidence that they all ran away together: not simply that they ran away at the same moment of time when discovered, but that they ran away together .

As we have said, each case must rest on its own facts and the mere similarity of the facts in one case cannot be used to determine a conclusion of fact in another. In the present case, we are of opinion that the facts disclosed do not warrant an inference of common intention in Pandurang s case. Therefore, even if that had been charged, no conviction could have followed on that basis. Pandurang is accordingly only liable for what he actually did."

23. From the law laid down in the above referred cases it can be deduced that evidence of exhortation is a weak piece of evidence. There is quite often a tendency to implicate some person, in addition to the actual assailant by ascribing to that person role of an exhortation to the assailant to assault the victim. Unless the evidence in this respect is clear, cogent and reliable, no conviction can be recorded against the person alleged to have exhorted the actual assailant.

24. The essence of joint liability in doing a criminal act is to be found in the existence of a common intention connecting the accused leading to the doing of a criminal act in furtherance of such intention. If the act is the result of a common intention then every person who did the criminal act with that common intention would be responsible for the offence committed irrespective of the share which he had in its perpetration. Common intention essentially being a state of mind it is very difficult to procure direct evidence to prove it. Hence, in most cases it has to be inferred from the conduct of the accused or other relevant circumstances of the case. The inference can be gathered by the manner in which the accused arrived at the scene, mounted the attack, determination and concert with which the attack was made, from the nature of injury caused by one or some of them. The contributory acts of the persons who are not responsible for the injury can further be inferred from the subsequent conduct after the attack. Even an illegal omission on the part of such accused can indicate the sharing of common intention. The act need not be very substantial, it is enough that the act is only for guarding the scene for facilitating the crime. Presence of the accused, who in one way or other facilitate the execution of common design is tantamount to actual participation in the criminal act. The act need not necessarily be overt, even a covert act is enough, provided such a covert act is proved to have been done by the co-accused in furtherance of the common intention. To invoke Section 34 IPC two factors must be established : (i) common intention and (ii) participation of the accused in the commission of an offence. To fasten the liability u/s 34 IPC an act, whether overt or covert, is indispensable to be done by a co-accused. If no such act is done by a person, even if he has common intention with the others for the accomplishment of the crime, Section 34, IPC cannot be invoked for convicting that person. In other words, the accused who only keeps the common intention in his mind, but does not do any act at the scene, cannot be convicted with the aid of Section 34, IPC. To ascertain common intention, totality of circumstances must be taken into consideration in arriving at the conclusion whether the accused had the such intention to commit an offence of which he could be convicted.

25. Now, keeping in view the above proposition, we proceed to analyze the evidence in the instant case. As per chik FIR Ext Ka-8 in Gram Panchayat Pradhan election informant candidate had won the election and Mahadev had lost the election of Pradhan. On account of loosing the election Mahadev, Indra Pal and Gulab Singh were bearing enmity with the informant. PW-1 Dinesh Upadhyay has deposed that before the incident, BDC and Gram Panchayat Pradhan election was held. In view of the party organization his son Manish had worked for the winning party. Mahadev had also contested election of Pradhan,who lost the election. On account of this Mahadev was bearing enmity. Defence has not put any question to this witness with regard to Manish had worked for winning party and accused were bearing enmity on account of election of Pradhan, thus, the evidence of the witness with regard to bearing enmity by accused Mahadev on account of defeat in Pradhan election is not controverted. Hence we have no reason to doubt it. Thus, evidence of PW-1 Dinesh Upadhyay with regard to bearing enmity on account of Pradhan election is corroborated with the FIR. In view of the above, enmity of accused Mahadev on account Pradhan election is established.

26. As per FIR Ext. Ka-8, accused Mahadev with intention to avenge due to enmity, had shifted his wife along with his children and household to somewhere else. PW-1 Dinesh Upadhyay has supported the FIR version as he has stated that before the incident Mahadev under a planning had shifted all the goods of his house along with family to somewhere else, only Mahadev and Indra Pal used to visit. On asking in cross examination again he has stated that one-two week before the incident accused Mahadev and Indra Pal had shifted the family and goods from the village and accused used to visit. He has also stated that the incidence of shifting the family and goods was within his knowledge. Although he has stated that he did not tell to the investigating officer in his statement about shifting of family and children one-two week before the incident, but it will not have any adverse effect on the prosecution case because it is already disclosed in the FIR and supported by his dock evidence. Thus evidence of PW-1 Dinesh, regarding shifting of family and goods to somewhere else before the incident is also corroborated with the FIR. As such from the evidence it is also established that before the incident accused Mahadev had shifted his family and goods to somewhere else and accused Mahadev and Indra Pal used to visit the house.

27. According to the FIR after firing the shot all the three accused fled towards north, when they were chased, then pointing country-made pistol they fled away. PW-1 Dinesh Upadhyay has supported this fact also by stating that the accused fled towards north, Chandra Bhan, Virendra and Raghvendra chased them,while fleeing Mahadev fell down stumbling with brick and accused threatened that, if proceeded ahead will be killed. In cross examination he has stated that he did not disclose this fact in the report Ext Ka-1. He has stated that he does not remember as to whether he had told this fact to the investigating officer or not. If statement of Dinesh is ignored whether accused fell down or not while fleeing, from his testimony it is clear that when after the incident accused fled they were chased by Chandra Bhan, Virendra and Raghvendra. Prosecution has produced PW-2 Raghvendra, who has stated that he and Virendra chased the accused, Chandra Bhan was also with them, accused Mahadev, Indra Pal and Gulab Singh pointing country-made pistol had threatened that return back otherwise you will be killed, then they returned. On asking in cross examination he has stated that he, his friend Virendra had tried to catch the accused but accused had pointed country-made pistol and all the three accused pointing country-made pistol threatened that you will be also killed. He has further stated that he had chased the accused 10-12 steps, he does not remember as to whether he had told to the investigating officer about chasing the accused and threatening by accused pointing country-made pistol to return back otherwise will be killed. Since in the FIR it is mentioned that pointing country-made pistol accused fled away, so his above statement will not have any adverse bearing on the prosecution case. He has also stated that he knows the accused before the incident. Thus, with regard to accused fled after the incident and they were chased then by pointing country made pistol towards PW-2 Raghvendra and others and threatening of dire consequences, they fled away, evidence of PW-1 and PW-2 is consistent and corroborated with the FIR. Accordingly from the evidence it is also established that all the accused fled together after the incident and they were chased by PW-2 Raghvendra and others, then by pointing country-made pistol and threatening of dire consequences, all the accused fled away.

28. As per postmortem report proved by PW-6 Dr S.L. Sarswat two injuries:

1. Gun shot wound of 1.2 c.m. x 1 c.m. on the right side of the middle part of chest. Margin inverted, blackening and tattooing were present. Track is directing medial downward on cutting under neath tissue is tattooed.

2. Multiple pin point sized abrasions all over in front of chest both sides at front were present and right side lung was lacerated, have been recorded.

Dr S.L. Sarswat in his cross examination has stated that both injuries are possible by single fire. Thus, recording two injuries by the Doctor, does not demonstrate that two shots were fired. In view of the statement of the doctor as well as prosecution case of single shot was fired, submission of learned counsel for the appellant is devoid of substance that as per FIR as well as ocular evidence single fire was made but in postmortem report two injuries have been found.

29. As per FIR Ext. Ka-8, apart from informant Dinesh Upadhayay, incident was witnessed by Sri Chandrabhan, Raghvendra and Virendra Dubey. According to P.W.1 Dinesh Upadhayay, Chandrabhan belong to his pedigree and witness Raghvendra is his brother-in-law (Sala) and witness Virendra is friend of Raghvendra. Raghvendra and Virendra both are resident of village Rashidpur, Kanetha. Since as per prosecution case no independent or other neighborhood, witness except Chandrabhan belonging to his pedigree, thereby related to the informant, has witnessed the incident, therefore, submission of the learned counsel for the appellant is without substance that no independent witness or neighborhood witness has been produced.

30. Regarding related witness in case of Gangabhavani vs. Rayapati Venkat Reddy and others, (2013) 15 SCC 298, Hon'ble Supreme Court in para 15 of its judgment has held as under:

"15. It is a settled legal proposition that the evidence of closely related witnesses is required to be carefully scrutinized and appreciated before any conclusion is made to rest upon it, regarding the convict/accused in a given case. Thus, the evidence cannot be disbelieved merely on the ground that the witnesses are related to each other or to the deceased. In case the evidence has a ring of truth to it, is cogent, credible and trustworthy, it can, and certainly should, relied upon. (Vide Bhagaloo Lodh v. State of U.P., (2011) 12 SCC 206 and Dahari v. State of U.P. (2012) 10 SCC 256)"

31. Thus, keeping in view the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the above referred case, testimony of the witness P.W.2 Raghvendra is to be scrutinized.

32. P.W.2 Raghvendra has stated that his sister Lata is married with Dinesh Uadhayay. On the occasion of Rakshabandhan he had come to his sister on 10.08.1995 for tying Rakhi, his friend Virendra son of Ram Gopal was also with him. On the request of his sister and brother-in-law he stayed there and he has narrated the story about the incident in his deposition. In his cross-examination he has stated that one and half to quarter to two hours of the incident S.O. Matsaina came to the place of incident and he remained there about one and half to quarter to two hours. His statement that, on coming to the place of incident S.O. Matsaina stayed one and half to quarter to two hours, finds support from the statement of informant P.W.1 Dinesh Upadhyay as he has stated on page 18 of the paper book that, when, S.O. Matsaina came on the day of incident then he stayed one and half to two hours. He has also stated about conducting the inquest memo. He has stated that his statement was recorded by the police after 22-23 days of the incident which was recorded at the house of the informant Dinesh Upadhayay. A police constable had gone to his village to call him. In the period of 22-23 days of the incident no police personnel had gone to him to call for recording his statement. He has also stated that he himself did not tell about the incident to the S.O. Matsaina, which he had witnessed because he did not ask him. P.W.4 Virendra Singh is the first investigating officer, who has stated that he had prepared the inquest memo and other relevant papers like letter to R.I., challan lash, letter to C.M.O. In cross-examination he has clearly stated that after registration of FIR he did not record the statement of scribe of FIR and informant. He did not record statement of Panch. He also did not think it necessary to inquire from informant and other witnesses and preparing the spot map. Since the Ist investigating officer did not even record the statement of the informant and prepared spot map in such a situation recording of statement of this witness after 22-23 days of the incident who is resident of other village, will not adversely affect his veracity. From the cross-examination nothing has been elicited so that his presence on the spot and witnessing the incident can be doubted. Prompt FIR disclosing him as eye-witness of incident has been lodged which also fortify his presence at the time of incident. Considering whole statement of P.W.-2 Raghvendra, it appears that his presence is natural and he is a witness of the incident. He is giving cogent and credible evidence about the incident and his evidence is worthy of trust.

33. In view of the above discussions, we find that evidence of the witness has a ring of truth to it, is cogent, credible and trustworthy.

34. On the basis of the above discussions, it is established that the deceased Manish had worked in election for the winning candidate of Pradhan and accused Mahadev had also contested the election but he lost the election. On account of defeat in the election he was bearing enmity with the deceased. Appellant Indra Pal is brother of the accused Mahadev (died during pendency of appeal). Before the incident Mahadev had shifted his family and goods to somewhere else but Mahadev and appellant Indra Pal used to visit his house. At the time of incident appellant Indra Pal, Gulab Singh and Mahadev came having country-made pistol in their hand. On exhortation of appellant Indra Pal and Gulab Singh accused Mahadev fired a shot on the chest of the deceased Manish and receiving the firearm injury Manish died then and there. After firing the shot all the three accused fled towards north, Raghvendra, Virendra and Chandra Bhan chased them, then pointing country-made pistol accused threatened for dire consequences and fled away.

35. In view of the facts, attending circumstances of the case and evidence on record as discussed above keeping in view the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court, on considering cumulatively, i.e. deceased Manish had worked for winning candidate of Pradhan election, accused Mahadev had also contested but lost the election on account of which he was bearing enmity with the deceased, shifting of family and goods by Mahadev to somewhere else before the incident and Mahadev and appellant Indra Pal used to visit their house even after shifting the family and goods, appellant came armed with country-made pistol along with the co-accused Mahadev and Gulab Singh also armed with country made pistol, on arriving to the deceased appellant Indra Pal and Gulab Singh exhorted accused Mahadev to kill, on which Mahadev fired a shot on the chest of the deceased and receiving the shot he died then and there, after firing shot all accused fled together, and on being chased they threatened of dire consequences for the purpose to guard themselves and fled away, all these circumstances clearly demonstrate that all the accused had common intention to kill the deceased Manish and act of exhortation of the appellant is leading to the killing of deceased Manish in furtherance of common intention. There is clear, cogent and reliable evidence against the appellant Indra Pal in perpetration of the crime. Learned trial court properly evaluating the evidence has recorded the finding of conviction and sentence. We find that learned trial court has not committed any illegality or infirmity in passing the impugned judgment and order.

36. Appeal lacks merit. Accordingly it is dismissed.

37. Appellant No.2 Indra Pal Singh @ Guddu is on bail, his bail is canceled. He shall be taken into custody forthwith to serve out the sentence as awarded by the trial court and affirmed by us.

Office is directed to communicate the order to the court concerned forthwith and remit original record to the court concerned.

1. The instant criminal appeal has been filed against the judgment and order dated 23.10.1981, passed by Ist Additional Sessions Judge, Hardoi in Sessions Trial No.136 of 1981 (State vs. Umashankar and others) arising out of Case Crime No.188 of 1980, P.S.-Qasimpur, District-Hardoi, whereby the respondents-accused (hereinafter referred to as respondents) Uma Shankar, Pyare Lal (since deceased) and Ashok have been acquitted by the trial Court from the charges of offence under Section 302 read with 34 I.P.C.

2. During pendency of appeal, the respondent no.2-Pyare Lal had died and the present appeal filed against him has been abated by this Court vide order dated 11.09.2017.

3. The prosecution case, in brief, is that the deceased Chhotey Lal (hereinafter referred to as deceased), father of P.W.2-Laxmi Kant, the respondents-Pyare Lal (since deceased), Uma Shankar and Ashok were resident of village Rasoolpur Brehman, P.S.-Qasimpur, District-Hardoi. The respondent-Pyare Lal (since deceased) was father of respondent-Ashok whereas respondent-Uma Shankar is friend of respondent-Pyare Lal (since deceased). Shiv Kant, another son of deceased, used to sit with the respondents which was not liked by the deceased as the respondents did not had good character. On 04.11.1980 at 4:00 a.m., the deceased along with his son Laxmi Kant (P.W.-2) was going to plough his field and as they reached near the grove of Chhannu (not examined), the respondents appeared there. Respondent-Ashok was armed with country made pistol whereas respondents-Pyare Lal (since deceased) and Uma Shankar were armed with lathis. The respondent-Pyare Lal (since deceased) instigated the respondents-Uma Shankar and Ashok to kill the deceased whereupon Laxmi Kant (P.W.-2) tried to save his father but he was caught by the respondent-Uma Shankar. On hue and cry made by Laxmi Kant (P.W.-2), Ratan Shankar (not examined) and Chhannu Lal (not examined) appeared at the place of occurrence carrying torches. Meanwhile, the respondent-Ashok fired at the deceased with pistol carried by him, which hit the chest of the deceased, whereupon he fell down. Laxmi Kant (P.W.-2) and other villagers took the deceased by bullock cart at Police Station-Qasimpur, District-Hardoi, where at 7:20 a.m., a written report, (Ext. Ka-1), prepared on dictation of deceased by one Raj Narain (P.W.-1), was filed and first information report (F.I.R.) was registered against the respondents-Pyare Lal (since deceased), Uma Shankar and Ashok and the same was registered as Case Crime No.188 of 1980, under Sections-307/34 I.P.C.. The deceased was sent to Primary Health Center, Behandar, District-Hardoi for recording his dying declaration and his dying declaration was recorded at 8:00 a.m. on 04.11.1980 by Dr. R. K. Singh Chauhan (P.W.-8). The deceased was referred to District Hospital, Hardoi, as his condition was critical, for treatment. Dr. S. N. Singh (P.W.-5), examined the injuries of the deceased at 12:45 p.m. on 04.11.1980 and noted the following injuries on his body :

"Gunshot wound of entry on the right side of chest, just adjacent to the sternal border, 3cmx3cm,chest cavity deep. Margins inverted, bleeds on touch. Air is gashping out of the wound with respiration. Air cavity is present on whole of chest, back with arm and neck. Swelling on the face was present.

4. According to Doctor (P.W.-5), the injuries of the deceased were very dangerous in nature as it was caused by some fire arm and its duration was about 1/4 day. The patient (deceased) was in a very critical condition and was having a difficulty in talking at that time. He prepared the injury report as Ext. Ka-13.

5. During treatment, the deceased died in District Hospital, Hardoi at 4:25 p.m. on 04.11.1980. The inquest report was prepared by S.I., Vidur JI Tripathi (P.W.-3), who sealed the dead body of the deceased and sent the same for post-mortem examination along with relevant papers to District Hospital, Hardoi. Dr. U. D. Kapoor (P.W.-6), Medical Officer In-charge, Sadar Hospital, District-Hardoi conducted the post mortem examination of the dead body of the deceased at 11:00 a.m. on 06.11.1980 and found the following ante mortem injuries :

(i) One gunshot wound of entry 3 cms x 2 cms x chest cavity deep on right side of the chest. Blackening was present around the wound.

(ii) The third and fourth ribs were fractured. The pleura on the right side was badly lacerated and about 8 ounce of blood was present.

(iii) The right lung was badly lacerated.

According to him, during examination, three wadding pieces and 22 small pellets were found from the body of the deceased. In the opinion of Doctor (P.W.-6), death of deceased was caused due to shock and haemorrhage, resulted by ante mortem injury.

6. Investigation of the case was entrusted to S.I., Sri Ram Patil (P.W.-4), posted at Qasimpur, who recorded the statements of Laxmi Kant (P.W.-2), Ratan Shankar (not examined) and Chhannu Lal (not examined). He inspected the place of occurrence and prepared the site plan (Ext.Ka-6), examined the torches and took it in his custody from Ratan Shankar (not examined) and Chhannu Lal (not examined) and after examination, handed over to them. He prepared the memo of handing over of torches (Ext.Ka-5).

7. During investigation, after the death of deceased, the case was converted into under Section 302 I.P.C. and thereafter, the investigation was entrusted to S.O. Raj Bahadur Singh (not examined), Station Officer, P.S.-Qasimpur, who, after due investigation, filed charge sheet (Ext. Ka-9) against the respondents under Section 302 I.P.C. before Chief Judicial Magistrate, Hardoi, who took the cognizance of an offence and since the case was exclusively triable by the Sessions Court, after providing the copies of relevant police papers, committed the case to Court of Sessions, Hardoi for trial.

8. The charge for the offence under Section 302 I.P.C. was framed against the respondent-Ashok whereas the charge for the offence under Section 302 read with 34 I.P.C. was framed against the respondents-Uma Shankar and Pyare Lal (since deceased). All the respondents denied the charges levelled against them and claimed for trial.

9. During trial, the prosecution, in order to prove its case, examined Raj Narain (P.W.-1), Laxmi Kant (P.W.-2), S.I., Vidur JI Tripathi (P.W.-3), S.I., Sri Ram Patil (P.W.-4), Dr. S. N. Singh (P.W.-5), Dr. U. D. Kapoor (P.W.-6), Constable Sarju Prasad (P.W.-7) and Dr. R. K. Singh Chauhan (P.W.-8). Laxmi Kant (P.W.-2) (eye witness of the occurrence) and Dr. R. K. Singh Chauhan (P.W.-8), who recorded the dying declaration of the deceased are witnesses of facts whereas rest are formal witnesses.

10. After conclusion of the prosecution evidence, the statement of respondents were recorded under Section 364 Cr.P.C., 1898 (Section 313 Cr.P.C., 1973). They denied the prosecution evidence and stated that they were falsely implicated due to previous enmity. They did not produce any evidence in their defence. The learned trial Court, after considering the entire evidence available on record, found that the prosecution had failed to prove the guilt of the respondents beyond reasonable doubt and accordingly acquitted all the respondents vide impugned judgment and order.

11. Aggrieved by the said judgment and order passed by learned Trial Court, this appeal has been preferred by the State.

12. Heard learned A.G.A., Sri Subodh Kumar Shukla, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Ashok Kumar Verma, learned counsel for the respondents-accused and perused the record.

13. Learned A.G.A. has submitted the impugned judgment and order passed by Trial Court is against the settled provision of criminal jurisprudence. He further submitted that Laxmi Kant (P.W.-2), son of deceased, was present at the time of occurrence and had seen the whole incident ; his evidence can not be discarded but the trial Court had disbelieved his evidence only on the technical ground. Learned A.G.A. further submitted that disbelieving the second dying declaration of the deceased, recorded by Dr. R. K. Singh Chauhan (P.W.-8) as it was not recorded in question and answer form, is against the settled principle of criminal jurisprudence. Learned A.G.A. further submitted that there is no defect in the dying declaration of the deceased and ocular evidence is wholly corroborated by the medical evidence led by the prosecution. Learned A.G.A, further submitted that the impugned judgment and order is liable to be set aside and the appeal be allowed.

14. Per contra, learned counsel appearing for the respondents submitted that the prosecution has miserably failed its case beyond reasonable doubt. Learned counsel further submitted that the alleged offence was committed in the dark night and outskirts of the village where the presence of Laxmi Kant (P.W.-2) was not natural. Learned counsel further submitted that the statement of Laxmi Kant (P.W.-2) is not supported by the medical evidence led by Dr. S. N. Singh (P.W.-5). Learned counsel further submitted that in the F.I.R., source of light was not mentioned, during investigation prosecution story was manufactured that Ratan Shankar (not examined) and Chhannu Lal (not examined) appeared at the place of occurrence carrying torches but these witnesses were not produced by the prosecution to prove the source of light. Learned counsel further submitted that dying declaration is forged and false because deceased was not in position to speak. Learned counsel further submitted that the respondents are innocent ; the deceased was murdered by unknown persons in the night but due to enmity, they were falsely implicated in this case.

15. We have considered the arguments led by learned counsels for both the parties and perused the record.

16. From perusal of the record, it transpires that the whole prosecution story is based on the statement of Laxmi Kant (P.W.-2) and dying declaration of the deceased. Learned trial Court disbelieved the testimony of Laxmi Kant (P.W.-2) on the ground that the alleged incident was taken place at 4:00 a.m. on 04.11.1980 and at that time there was no source of light at the place of occurrence. Learned trial Court found that on 04.11.1980 sun would have risen at 6:30 a.m. It cannot be believed that even the slightest day light would have been available at 4: 00 a.m. on that day. In addition to it, learned trial Court also disbelieved the statement of Laxmi Kant (P.W.-2) because the deceased had not mentioned the presence of any light at the place of occurrence in his dying declaration (Ext. Ka-16). In the said facts and circumstances, learned trial Court was of the view that Laxmi Kant (P.W.-2) could not have been in a position to identify the assailants properly. In addition to the above, learned trial Court also disbelieved the testimony of Laxami Kant (P.W.-2) on the ground that he had stated that the respondent-Ashok had fired a shot from a distance of 5 steps at his father whereas according to medical evidence, the shot was fired from a very close range as blackening was found present around the wound and the pellets and wadding pieces had entered into the body of the deceased. Learned trial Court also disbelieved the prosecution story on the ground that second dying declaration (Ext.-Ka-16) of the deceased was not in question and answer form.

17. It is settled principle of law that the prosecution case cannot discarded only on the ground that it is based on sole eye witness who is relative of deceased if his testimony is fully trustworthy and reliable. Thus, in this case, it has also to be seen whether the testimony of Laxmi Kant (P.W.2) is reliable or not ? Coming to the facts of this case, admittedly, the alleged occurrence was happened on 04.11.1980 at about 4:00 a.m. in the outskirts of village-Rasoolpur. From the perusal of site plan (Ext. Ka-6), it appears that the said occurrence was caused nearby the grove of one Chhannu Lal (not examined) and nearby the place of occurrence and no residential area has been shown. Laxmi Kant (P.W.-2), star witness of prosecution, has stated that at the time of occurrence, it was 5:00 a.m., he and his father were going to plough his field ; he was carrying plough (Patela) and as they reached near the western side to grove of Chhannu Lal (not examined), he saw that respondents-Pyare Lal (since deceased), Uma Shankar and Ashok were present there ; respondent-Ashok was armed with tamancha (countrymade pistol) whereas respondent-Uma Shankar and Pyare Lal (since deceased) were armed with lathis. He further stated that respondent-Pyare Lal (since deceased) exhortated to kill his father as he ran to save his father, he was caught by respondent-Uma Shankar then respondent-Ashok fired at his father by pistol which hit right side of his father's chest. He further stated that respondent-Ashok had fired from distance of 4-5 steps. According to him, on his alarm, Ratan Shankar (not examined) and Chhannu Lal (not examined) appeared at the place of occurrence and thereafter the aforesaid respondents fled away. He further stated that it was 4:30 a.m. when his father was shot and there was some light in which he identified the respondents. He further stated that he with the help of witnesses brought his father at his house, thereafter he had gone to place of occurrence to bring the plough and when he returned at his house, he learnt that Raj Narain (P.W.-1) had prepared F.I.R. (Tahrir) (Ext.K-1). In cross examination, he admitted that he had not told to Investigating Officer concerned that at the time of occurrence, he was carrying plough (Patela). He further admitted that it was dark night at the time of occurrence and Ratan Shankar (not examined) and Chhannu Lal (not examined) were carrying torches and it was 4:00 a.m. when fire was shot at his father. Further according to this witness, fire was shot from the distance of five steps whereas the according to Dr. U. D. Kapoor, (P.W.-6), the blackening was present around the wound and three wadding pieces and twenty two small pellets were found from the body of the deceased during post-mortem examination. Thus, in absence of source of light and as the medical evidence is not in support of the testimony of this sole eyewitness, the evidence of Laxmi Kant (P.W.-2) becomes doubtful.

18. In addition to the above, although no effective effort was made by Laxmi Kant (P.W.-2) to save his father and only on this ground, his statement cannot be held unreliable but his statement that he, leaving his seriously injured father, had gone to take back plough (Patela) from the place of occurrence in stead to make any effort to carry his father to any hospital forthwith for treatment and meanwhile F.I.R. (Tahrir) (Ext.K-1) was prepared by Raj Narayan (P.W.-1) further makes his conduct and evidence very doubtful.

19. In first information report, the presence of Ratan Shankar (not examined) and Chhannu Lal (not examined) has also been shown, who appeared at the place of occurrence on the alarm raised by Laxmi Kant (P.W.-2). They were independent witnesses. As per prosecution story, they were carrying torches but reasons based known to the prosecution, neither Ratan Shankar (not examined) and Chhannu Lal (not examined) were produced nor said torches were produced before the Trial Court. The prosecution has not put any plausible explanation of non production of those witnesses and vital piece of evidence, which also made the prosecution case doubtful.

20. The prosecution case is also based on the dying declaration made by the deceased which was recorded by Dr. R. K. Singh Chuahan (P.W.-8). It is settled principle of law that an accused may be convicted only on the basis of dying declaration if it is true and is reliable because the admissibility of dying declaration is based on the Latin Maxim "Nemo Moriturus Praesumitur mentire" which means that a person will not meet his maker with a lie in his mouth. It is also settled principle that dying declaration cannot be treated as gospel truth; it must inspire the confidence of the Court and before relying on such dying declaration the Court has to satisfy itself regarding truthfulness and veracity of the statement of the person who had recorded and proved such dying declaration because the person who had made the dying declaration never comes before the Court for examination and the defence has no opportunity to cross examine him. In true sense, the evidence of dying declaration is nothing but heresay evidence which is inadmissible in evidence. Thus it is duty of the Court to ensure the fact that whether such dying declaration was made by the deceased or not, and if it is made by him, whether the deceased was in free and sound state of mind and was not tutored, influenced or pressurized by any person. If it is proved that the maker of the statement was tutored, influenced, pressurized or was not in a position to make such dying declaration or any reasonable suspicion appears in the manner of recording thereof, such dying declaration cannot be made as sole basis for the conviction of accused.

21. Hon'ble Supreme Court in Atbir Vs. Government (N.C.T. Of Delhi) (2010) 9 SCC 1, while discussing the factors governing the reliability of the dying declaration on the basis of law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court has summarized the principles in this regard as follows:-

"The following principles can be culled out from earlier decisions of the Supreme Court:-

(i) Dying declaration can be the sole basis of conviction if it inspires the full confidence of the court.

(ii) The court should be satisfied that the deceased was in a fit state of mind at the time of making the statement and that it was not the result of tutoring, prompting or imagination.

(iii) Where the court is satisfied that the declaration is true and voluntary, it can base its conviction without any further corroboration.

(iv) It cannot be laid down as an absolute rule of law that the dying declaration cannot form the sole basis of conviction unless it is corroborated. The rule requiring corroboration is merely a rule of prudence.

(v) Where the dying declaration is suspicious, it should not be acted upon without corroborative evidence.

(vi) A dying declaration which suffers from infirmity such as the deceased was unconscious and could never make any statement cannot form the basis of conviction.

(vii) Merely because a dying declaration does not contain all the details as to the occurrence, it is not to be rejected.

(viii) Even if it is a brief statement, it is not to be discarded.

(ix) When the eyewitness affirms that the deceased was not in a fit and conscious state to make the dying declaration, medical opinion cannot prevail.

(x) If after careful scrutiny, the court is satisfied that it is true and free from any effort to induce the deceased to make a false statement and if it is coherent and consistent, there shall be no legal impediment to make it the basis of conviction, even if there is no corroboration."

(Emphasis supplied)

22. Further, it is also well settled principle of law that the dying declaration, if it is true and free from any reasonable doubt as well as inspire the confidence of Trial Court, may be sole ground for the conviction. Before relying on such dying declaration, it has to be seen whether there was sufficient light on the place of occurrence and the deceased was in a position to identify the assailant and such dying declaration was recorded in proper manner i.e. in question and answer form or not. The Constitutional Bench of Hon'ble the Apex Court in Harbans Sing and another vs. State of Punjab, AIR 1962 SC 439 while relying the settled principle of law on dying declaration as held by Hon'ble the Apex Court in Khushal Rao vs. State of Bombay, AIR 1958 SC 22, has held as under :-

"The Court then proceeded to review the relevant provisions of the Evidence Act and of the decided cases in the different High Courts in India and in this Court and stated the law in these words:

"That it cannot be laid down as an absolute rule of law that a dying declaration cannot form the sole basis of conviction unless it is corroborated; (2) that each case must be determined on its own facts keeping in view the circumstances in which the dying declaration was made; (3) that it cannot be laid down as a general proposition that a dying declaration is a weaker kind of evidence than other pieces of evidence; (4) that a dying declaration stands on the same footing as another piece of evidence and has to be judged in the light of surrounding circumstances and with reference to the principles governing the weighing of evidence; (5) that a dying declaration which has been recorded by a competent Magistrate in the proper manner, that is to say, in the form of questions and answers, and, as far as practicable, in the words of the maker of the declaration, stands on a much higher footing than a dying declaration which depends upon oral testimony which may suffer from all the infirmities of human memory and human character, and (6) that in order to test the reliability of a dying declaration, the Court has to keep in view the circumstances like the opportunity of the dying man for observation, for example, whether there was sufficient light if the crime was committed at night; whether the capacity of the man to remember the facts stated had not been impaired at the time he was making the statement, by circumstances beyond his control; that the statement has been consistent throughout if he had several opportunities of making a dying declaration apart from the official record of it; and that the statement had been made at the earliest opportunity and was not the result of tutoring by interested parties".

"Hence, in order to pass the test of reliability, a dying declaration has to be subjected to a very close scrutiny, keeping in view the fact that the statement has been made in the absence of the accused who had no opportunity of testing the veracity of the statement by cross-examination. But once the court has come to the conclusion that the dying declaration was the truthful version as to the circumstances of the death and the assailants of the victim, there is no question of further corroboration. If, on the other hand, the court, after examining the dying declaration in all its aspects and testing its veracity, has come to the conclusion that it is not reliable by itself, and that it suffers from an infirmity, then, without corroboration it cannot form the basis of a conviction. Thus, the necessity for corroboration arises not from any inherent weakness of a dying declaration as a piece of evidence, as held in some of the reported cases, but from the fact that the court, in a given case has come to the conclusion that that particular dying declaration was not free from the infirmities referred to above or from other infirmities as may be disclosed in evidence in that case."

23. Dying declaration (Ext. Ka-16) of the deceased was recorded on 04.11.1980 at about 8:00 a.m. by Dr. R. K. Singh Chauhan (P.W.-8). This dying declaration does not show whether any question was put to deceased regarding occurrence or not ? In this dying declaration neither any source of light nor presence of Laxmi Kant (P.W.-2) nor presence of Ratan Shankar (not examined) and Chhannu Lal (not examined) has been stated by deceased. As per this dying declaration, only deceased was going at about 4:00 a.m. to plough his field and when he reached near the grove of Chhannu Lal, the respondents-Pyare Lal, Uma Shankar and Ashok appeared at the place of occurrence, they stopped the deceased and on the exhortation of the respondent-Pyare Lal (since deceased), the respondent-Ashok fired on the person of deceased by pistol. According to Dr. S. N. Singh (P.W.-5), injuries of the deceased was so dangerous that it bleeds on touch and air was gashping out of the wound with the respiration ; the patient was in very critical condition. In his opinion, the injury of the patient was dangerous in nature. Thus, in view of absence of source of light at the place of occurrence, critical condition of deceased and also it is not in question and answer form, the dying declaration (Ext. Ka-16) is doubtful and not reliable.

24. It is settled principle of law that the accused will be presumed as innocent unless and until the prosecution has succeeded to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt and the presumption of innocence of accused is further strengthened if he is acquitted by the Trial Court after considering the material evidence available on record. Hon'ble the Apex Court in Surajpal Singh and others Vs. State, AIR 1952 SC 52 held as under :-

"It is well-established that in an appeal under section 417 of the Criminal Procedure Code, the High Court has full power to review the evidence upon which the order of acquittal was founded, but it is equally well-settled that the presumption of innocence of the accused is further reinforced by his acquittal by the trial court, and the findings of the trial court which had the advantage of seeing the witnesses and hearing their evidence can be reversed only for very substantial and compelling reasons." (Emphasis supplied).

25. It is also well settled principle of law that in an appeal against acquittal, if two views are possible, one is in favour of accused-person and judgment of Trial Court is not illegal or manifestly perverse, the appellate Court should not disturb the order of acquittal. Hon'ble the Apex Court in State of Madhya Pradesh vs. Mukesh and others, (2007) 2 SCC 680 held as under :-

"Moreover, it must be borne in mind that we are dealing with a judgment of acquittal passed by the High Court. If two views are possible, ordinarily this Court would not interfere therewith. The State has not been able to show any illegality in the judgment of the High Court. We, therefore, do not intend to interfere therewith. The appeal is dismissed."

26. In the light of above discussions, we are of the view that the impugned judgment and order passed by Trial Court is well reasoned, well discussed and requires no interference. The prosecution has miserably failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt and there is no illegality or infirmity in the impugned judgment and order dated 23.10.1981 passed by Trial Court in Sessions Trial No.136 of 1981, whereby the respondents-accused were acquitted. The appeal is liable to be dismissed.

27. The judgment and order dated 23.10.1981 passed by Trial Court in Sessions Trial No.136 of 1981 is affirmed. The appeal lacks merit and is dismissed.

DATED: ALLAHABAD 13.12.2019

BEFORE
THE HON'BLE VIRENDRA KUMAR SRIVASTAVA, J.

Vinod ...Appellant(In Jail)
Versus
State of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellant:
Sri Anurag Mishra, Sri Om Prakash

Counsel for the Respondent:
A.G.A., Sri Zuber Ahmad Siddiqui, Sri Ankur Tandon

A. Criminal Law-Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860)-Section 304B, S.498A - Evidence Act (1 of 1872) , Section 3 - Relative as witnesses - No independent eye witness - Reliability - Offences relating to dowry death are mostly committed inside the house of the accused - in such cases there is at least possibility of independent witness - in normal circumstances, neighbours, servants do not come forward to disclose anything regarding the occurrence - close relative do not prefer to implicate a false person, leaving aside the real culprit - it has to be established by the defence, as to why the nearest relative of deceased are falsely implicating him by leaving aside the real culprit - merely on the ground of non production of independent witness, prosecution case can not be thrown out (Para 21, 23)

B. Criminal Law-Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860), Section 304B - Evidence Act (1 of 1872) , Section 113B - Dowry death – Expression - "Soon before her death" - Proximity test - soon before her death does not mean just soon before her death - It means that there should be a proximity between the cruelty or harassment related to the demand of dowry and unnatural death of deceased (Para 24)

C.Criminal Law-Criminal Procedure Code (2 of 1974)-Section 313 - Examination of accused - Object - to give accused an opportunity of explaining the circumstances that appear against him - S. 304 B IPC - Dowry Death -husband with deceased at the time of death - it was husband duty to explain the circumstances that how the death of deceased was caused - what effort was made by him to prevent her from committing suicide - Failure, to explain circumstances or produce any reliable evidence in defence against the evidence produced by the prosecution regarding unnatural death of deceased - strengthen the culpability of husband. (Para 36)

Deceased Pooja married with appellant Vinod - she died within 7 years of her marriage - in unnatural circumstances, inside the house of the appellant - she was subjected to cruelty and harassment just soon before her death by the appellant - due to demand of dowry - FIR lodged without delay - As per medical report died due to strangulation - at the time of death of deceased the appellant was with her but he did not explain any circumstances regarding manner or cause of her death - Husband also not explained as to how the dead body of deceased was laid, out side his house - Conviction justified.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Virendra Kumar Srivastava, J.

1. This appeal has been filed against the judgment and order dated 24.11.2018, passed by Additional Session Judge, Bansi, District Siddharth Nagar, in Sessions Trial No. 30 of 2018 (State vs. Vinod and another), arising out of Case Crime No. 09 of 2018, Police Station (P.S.) Bansi, District Siddharth Nagar, whereby the accused-appellant (hereinafter referred as "appellant') has been convicted and sentenced under Section 498-A I.P.C. for two years rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs. 5,000/- in default whereof, two months additional imprisonment, under Section 304-B I.P.C. for seven years rigorous imprisonment and under Section 4 of Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 (in short "D.P. Act') for two years imprisonment and fine of Rs. 5,000/- and in default whereof, for two months further imprisonment. All the sentences have been directed to run concurrently.

2. The prosecution story, in brief, is that the Pooja (deceased), daughter of PW-2 Subhawati, informant, was married to appellant-Vinod, four years prior to the occurrence. On 11.1.2018, at about 10:30 a.m., PW-2 Subhawati, lodged first information report (hereinafter referred as "F.I.R.') at P.S. Bansi, District Siddharth Nagar that her daughter Pooja (deceased), aged about 27 years, was married to the appellant in 2013; after marriage, the appellant and his mother Ishrawati (since acquitted) used to taunt and harass deceased for want of dowry. It was further stated in F.I.R. that deceased Pooja used to tell PW-2, Subhawati regarding the demand of dowry and torture caused by the appellant and Ishrawati (since acquitted) to her, but she, being widow and unable to fulfil the demand of dowry due to poverty, could not do anything in this regard. In the intervening night of 10/11.1.2018, appellant Vinod along with her mother Ishrawati (since acquitted) committed murder of deceased Pooja by strangulation and her dead body is lying at place of occurrence.

3. The said information was entered in G.D. Report (Ex.Ka.1) and was lodged as Crime No. 0009 of 2018, U/s 498-A, 304-B I.P.C. and 3/ 4 of D.P. Act at P.S. Bansi, District Siddharth Nagar by PW-1 Const. Ankit Singh and investigation was entrusted to PW-8 Dy.S.P. Mahendra Singh.

4. Information was given to PW-4, Kesari Nandan Tripathi (Executive Magistrate), Nayab Tehsildar, Bansi for inspecting and conducting inquest of the dead body of deceased, who proceeded to the place of occurrence, inspected the dead body on 11.1.2018 with the help of S.I. Ravi Kant Mani, and prepared the inquest report (Ex.Ka.1), as well as the relevant papers Ex.Ka.5 to Ex.Ka.8 i.e. challan lash, photo lash, letter to C.M.O., letter to R.I., sealed the dead body of deceased and sent it for post-mortem examination.

5. PW-3, Dr. Sanjay Chaudhary, conducted the post-mortem examination on 11.1.2018 and found the following the ante-mortem injuries on the body of deceased;

(i) Ligature mark around neck 25 c.m. in length and 1 to ½ c.m. in breadth. 5 c.m. below right ear lobe, 8 c.m. below left ear lobe and 6 c.m. below the chin.

(ii) Saliva was dribbling out from the mouth.

6. According to him, upon opening the ligature mark, white subcutaneous tissues were found and the bone of neck was normal. According to him, the death of deceased was caused due to asphyxia caused by ante mortem injury.

7. PW-8, Dy.S.P. Mahendra Dev Singh, inspected the place of occurrence, prepared the site plan Ex.Ka.10, recorded the statement of PW-1 Const. Ankit Singh and PW-2 Smt. Shubhavati, arrested the appellant Vinod and another accused Smt. Ishrawati (since acquitted) and recorded their statement. Meanwhile, upon his transfer, the investigation was entrusted to PW-6, Dy.S.P. Uma Shankar Singh who recorded the statement of other witnesses and upon conclusion of investigation, filed charge-sheet Ex.Ka.9 against the appellant and Smt. Israwati (since acquitted) before competent Magistrate.

8. The Chief Judicial Magistrate took the cognizance and, since the offence was exclusively triable by the Session Court, committed it for trial, after providing the relevant copies of police papers.

9. The learned Trial Judge framed charges against the appellant-Vinod and Smt. Ishrawati (since acquitted) under section 498-A, 304-B I.P.C. and ¾ D.P. Act alternatively under Section 302 I.P.C. who denied the charges and claimed to be tried.

10. Prosecution in order to prove its case, examined PW-1 Const. Ankit Singh, PW-2 Smt. Subhavati, PW-3 Dr. Sanjay Chaudhary, PW-4 Kesari Nandan Tiwari, PW-5 Sangeeta, PW-6 Umashankar Singh, PW-7 Gyandas and PW-8 Mahendra Dev Singh. PW-2 Subhawati, PW-5 Sangeeta and PW-7 Gyan Das are the witnesses of fact and rest witnesses are formal witness.

11. After prosecution evidence, statement of appellant-Vinod and Smt. Ishrawati (since acquitted) U/s 313 Cr.P.C. were recorded, wherein, they denied the prosecution evidence and claimed that they have been falsely implicated in this case. An opportunity was given to them to lead the defence evidence in order to explain the prosecution evidence, DW-1 Ram Sundar was examined by them in defence.

12. Learned Trial Court, by the aforesaid impugned order, while acquitting Smt. Ishrawati, mother-in-law of the deceased, convicted the appellant-Vinod as above, aggrieved whereof, he has preferred this appeal.

13. Heard learned counsel for the appellant, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

14. Learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that the appellant is innocent and has been falsely implicated in this case. The marriage of deceased was solemnized more than 10 years prior to the occurrence; appellant had neither demanded any dowry nor committed any cruelty or harassment to deceased soon before her death; and medical evidence is not corroborated by the ocular evidence as the deceased had committed suicide due to frustration. Learned counsel further submitted that the prosecution has failed to produce either any independent witness or any eye witness. The whole prosecution story is based on the statement of PW-2, Subhawati, mother of deceased who is an interested witness and hence not reliable. Prosecution has miserably failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt. The impugned judgment and order is illegal, unjustified and liable to be set aside.

15. Per-contra, learned A.G.A. and learned counsel for the informant have submitted that the deceased has been found dead inside the house of appellant, husband of deceased. Learned counsels further submitted that due to demand of dowry, appellant used to torture and harass the deceased and caused her death by strangulation. F.I.R. was lodged without any delay and as per medical examination report, deceased had died due to strangulation. Learned counsel further submitted that at the time of death of deceased appellant was with her but he did not explain any circumstances regarding manner or cause of her death. Learned counsel further submitted that the prosecution has succeeded to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt against the appellant. Appeal is liable to be dismissed.

16. I have considered the rival submission of learned counsel for both the parties and perused the record.

17. The offence in question in this case is related to demand of dowry, dowry death, harassment of victim for demand of dowry, cruelty and harassment to the deceased by her husband.

18. Before considering the evidence available on record, led by both parties, in the light of argument advanced by the learned counsel for the parties, it is necessary to refer the relevant provision of law relating to the offence in question i.e. Section 304-B and Section 498-A I.P.C., Section 113-B of Indian Evidence Act and Section 2 Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 which are as under:-

Section 304-B (1) Where the death of a woman is caused by any burns or bodily injury or occurs otherwise than under normal circumstances within seven years of her marriage and it is shown that soon before her death she was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry, such death shall be called "dowry death", and such husband or relative shall be deemed to have caused her death. Explanation.--For the purpose of this sub-section, "dowry" shall have the same meaning as in section 2 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961.

(2) Whoever commits dowry death shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than seven years but which may extend to imprisonment for life.

Section 498-A Husband or relative of husband of a woman subjecting her to cruelty.--Whoever, being the husband or the relative of the husband of a woman, subjects such woman to cruelty shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years and shall also be liable to fine. Explanation.--For the purpose of this section, "cruelty" means

(a) any wilful conduct which is of such a nature as is likely to drive the woman to commit suicide or to cause grave injury or danger to life, limb or health (whether mental or physical) of the woman; or

(b) harassment of the woman where such harassment is with a view to coercing her or any person related to her to meet any unlawful demand for any property or valuable security or is on account of failure by her or any person related to her to meet such demand.

Section 113-B of Indian Evidence Act-Presumption as to dowry death.--When the question is whether a person has committed the dowry death of a woman and it is shown that soon before her death such woman has been subjected by such person to cruelty or harassment for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry, the Court shall presume that such person had caused the dowry death. Explanation.--For the purposes of this section, "dowry death" shall have the same meaning as in section 304B, of the Indian Penal Code.

Section 2 of Dowry Prohibition Act-Definition of "dowry'. In this Act, "dowry" means any property or valuable security given or agreed to be given either directly or indirectly

(a) by one party to a marriage to the other party to the marriage; or

(b) by the parent of either party to a marriage or by any other person, to either party to the marriage or to any other person.

19. The above provision, related with dowry death, clearly shows that if a death of any women is caused within 7 years of her marriage by burn "or otherwise than under normal circumstances" and it is shown that if soon before the death of such women, she was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband, in connection with demand for dowry and if the prosecution succeeds to prove the above ingredient, such death shall be called as dowry death. In addition to above Section 113-B of Indian Evidence Act, further provides that in such cases, if it is shown that a women was subjected, soon before her death by the accused, to cruelty or harassment for in or connection with any demand of dowry, the Court shall presume that such accused had caused the dowry death.

20. According to PW-1 Ankit singh, F.I.R. (Ex.Ka.1) was lodged by him on the information given by PW-2 Shubhawati on 11.1.2018 at about 10:30 a.m. under Section 498-A, 304-B I.P.C. and ¾ D.P. Act. As per the prosecution case, the occurrence was happened in the intervening night of 10/11.1.2018 and PW-2 Shubhawati lodged the F.I.R. when she was informed by PW-5 Sangeeta on 11.1.2018 at about 5:00 a.m. and upon that information PW-2 Shubhawati came to the place of occurrence, saw the dead body of her daughter and lodged the F.I.R. Thus, there is no delay in lodging the F.I.R.

21. So far as the submission of learned counsel for the appellant that no independent witness has been produced and the witnesses produced by the prosecution are relative of deceased, hence the prosecution is doubtful, is concerned, it is settled principle of criminal law that merely on the ground of non production of independent witness, prosecution case can not be thrown out. Offences relating to dowry death are mostly committed inside the house of the accused and in such cases there is at least possibility of independent witness because most of the evidence, facts and circumstances are within the knowledge of the accused person who usually do not state anything regarding the occurrence. In such cases, in normal circumstances, neighbours, servants and family member of the accused also do not come forward to disclose anything regarding the occurrence, in order to save the accused.

22. Hon'ble Supreme Court in Vajresh Venkatray Anvekar vs. State of Maharashtra (2013) 3 SCC 462, while discussing the nature of evidence required for offences relating to dowry death has held as under:-

17. The learned Sessions Judge has refused to rely upon the evidence of the parents, brother and brothers-in-law of Girija primarily on the ground that they are interested witnesses. We find this approach to be very unfortunate. When a woman is subjected to ill-treatment within the four walls of her matrimonial house, ill-treatment is witnessed only by the perpetrators of the crime. They would certainly not depose about it. It is common knowledge that independent witnesses like servants or neighbours do not want to get involved. In fact, in this case, a maid employed in the house of the appellant who was examined by the prosecution turned hostile.

18. It is true that chances of exaggeration by the interested witnesses cannot be ruled out. Witnesses are prone to exaggeration. It is for the trained judicial mind to find out the truth. If the exaggeration is of such nature as to make the witness wholly unreliable, the court would obviously not rely on him. If attendant circumstances and evidence on record clearly support and corroborate the witness, then merely because he is interested witness he cannot be disbelieved because of some exaggeration, if his evidence is otherwise reliable. In this case, we do not find any such exaggeration qua the appellant. The witnesses have stood the test of cross- examination very well. There are telltale circumstances which speak volumes. Injuries suffered by Girija prior to the suicide cannot be ignored. The pathetic story of Girija's woes disclosed by her parents, her brother and her brothers-in-law deserves to be accepted and has rightly been accepted by the High Court. A1 and A3 have been acquitted by the Sessions Court. That acquittal has been confirmed by the High Court. The State has not appealed against that order. We do not want to therefore go into that aspect. But, we must record that we are not happy with the manner in which learned Sessions Judge has ignored vital evidence.

(Emphasis Supplied)

23. In addition to above, it is also settled principle of law that the evidence, produced by the relative of the deceased, cannot be ignored only on the ground that they are relative because the close relative do not prefer to implicate a false person, leaving aside the real culprit. If it is alleged by the defence, it has to be established by the defence, as to why the nearest relative of deceased are falsely implicating him by leaving aside the real culprit. In this case, the evidence led by the PW-2 Subhawati, PW-5 Sangeeta and PW-5 Gyan Das who are nearest relative of deceased are reliable and their evidence cannot be discarded only on the ground that they are relative of the deceased. Thus, the submission raised by the learned counsel for the appellant, in this regard, has no force.

24. It is pertinent to note at this juncture that for the offence of dowry death, homicidal death of the women is not necessary. It includes unnatural as well as accidental death also. It is also necessary to note that section 304-B I.P.C. as well as 113-B of Indian Evidence Act, both the provision state that prosecution is not required to prove the factum of cruelty or harassment by the accused with the deceased soon before death of deceased, beyond reasonable doubt because in these provisions, burden has been laid on prosecution only to show that soon before the death of deceased, she was subjected to cruelty or harassment in connection with demand of dowry by her husband or relatives of her husband. In addition to above, the word soon before her death does not mean just soon before her death. It means that there should be a proximity between the cruelty or harassment related to the demand of dowry and unnatural death of deceased. Hon'ble Supreme Court while discussing Section 304 B I.P.C., Section 113-B Indian Evidence Act and definition of dowry as provided in Section 2 of the D.P. Act, in Maya Devi vs. State of Haryana AIR 2016 SC 125 has held as follows:-

*"16. To attract the provisions of Section 304B, one of the main ingredients of the offence which is required to be established is that "soon before her death" she was subjected to cruelty or harassment "for, or in connection with the demand for dowry". The expression "soon before her death" used in Section 304B IPC and Section 113B of the Evidence Act is present with the idea of proximity test. In fact, learned senior counsel appearing for the appellants submitted that there is no proximity for the alleged demand of dowry and harassment. With regard to the said claim, we shall advert to while considering the evidence led in by the prosecution. Though the language used is "soon before her death", no definite period has been enacted and the expression "soon before her death" has not been defined in both the enactments. Accordingly, the determination of the period which can come within the term "soon before her death" is to be determined by the courts, depending upon the facts and circumstances of each case. However, the said expression would normally imply that the interval should not be much between the cruelty or harassment concerned and the death in question. In other words, there must be existence of a proximate and live link between the effect of cruelty based on dowry demand and the death concerned. If the alleged incident of cruelty is remote in time and has become stale enough not to disturb the mental equilibrium of the woman concerned, it would be of no consequence."

(Emphasis Supplied)

25. Hon'ble Court further in Maya Devi (supra), discussing the law laid down by the Apex Court in Bansi Lal vs. State of Harayana AIR 2011 SC 691; Mustafa Shahadal Shaikh vs. State of Maharashtra AIR 2013 SC 851 and Ramesh Vithal Patil vs. State of Karnataka (2014) 11 SCC 516; regarding the nature of proof required for dowry death, has held as under:-

" 21. Section 304B IPC does not categorise death as homicidal or suicidal or accidental. This is because death caused by burns can, in a given case, be homicidal or suicidal or accidental. Similarly, death caused by bodily injury can, in a given case, be homicidal or suicidal or accidental. Finally, any death occurring "otherwise than under normal circumstances" can, in a given case, be homicidal or suicidal or accidental. Therefore, if all the other ingredients of Section 304B IPC are fulfilled, any death (homicidal or suicidal or accidental) whether caused by burns or by bodily injury or occurring otherwise than under normal circumstances shall, as per the legislative mandate, be called a "dowry death" and the woman's husband or his relative "shall be deemed to have caused her death". The section clearly specifies what constitutes the offence of dowry death and also identifies the single offender or multiple offenders who has or have caused the dowry death.

22. The key words under Section 113B of the Evidence Act, 1872 are "shall presume" leaving no option with a court but to presume an accused brought before it of causing a dowry death guilty of the offence. However, the redeeming factor of this provision is that the presumption is rebuttable. Section 113B of the Act enables an accused to prove his innocence and places a reverse onus of proof on him or her. In the case on hand, accused persons failed to prove beyond reasonable doubt that the deceased died a natural death. When Kavita allegedly committed suicide, her husband- appellant No.2, though he was not present in the house, was present in his office at M.D. University, Rohtak at the relevant time but he did not make any sincere effort to take her to the hospital which was very near to the place of the incident. Similarly, appellant No. 2 got the deceased examined by DW-2 in order to create an impression that she was struggling with chronic depression but the truth floated upon the surface when the deceased reveals that the accused persons were maltreating her and she had started picking up the ideas of suicide. Lastly, appellant No. 2 falsely informed the court that having learnt about the death of his wife Kavita, he left for Delhi to inform her family members. In fact, the accused never went to Delhi and the complainant received a telephonic message from an unknown person regarding the death of his daughter. So far as Maya Devi- appellant No. 1 herein is concerned, there is no denying the fact that she was working as a teacher in a government school and she was not present at the relevant time at the place of incident but it is very much clear from the evidence on record that both the accused persons had a dominating role in the entire episode and she had always accompanied her son-appellant No. 2 herein to the house of the complainant (PW-3) for the dowry demands. The presumption under Section 113B of the Act is mandatory may be contrasted with Section 113A of the Act which was introduced contemporaneously. Section 113A of the Act, dealing with abetment of suicide, uses the expression "may presume". This being the position, a two-stage process is required to be followed in respect of an offence punishable under Section 304-B IPC: it is necessary to first ascertain whether the ingredients of the Section have been made out against the accused; if the ingredients are made out, then the accused is deemed to have caused the death of the woman but is entitled to rebut the statutory presumption of having caused a dowry death. From the evidence on record, we are of the opinion that in the present case Kavita died an unnatural death by committing suicide as she was subjected to cruelty/harassment by her husband and in-laws in connection with the demand for dowry which started from the time of her marriage and continued till she committed suicide. Thus, the provisions of Sections 304B and 498A of the IPC will be fully attracted." (Emphasis supplied)

26. Now the question arises, whether, the deceased died within 7 years of her marriage with the appellant; her death was unnatural; and she was subjected to cruelty or harassment, soon before her death, by the appellant, in connection with demand of dowry or not.

27. PW-2 Smt. Subhawati, mother of the deceased, has specifically stated that the marriage of deceased was solemnized with appellant, four years before her death. According to her, she had given dowry as per her capacity; just after the marriage the appellant, his parents and sisters used to demand a motorcycle in dowry and also to harass and torture her. She further stated that 8-10 days prior to of the occurrence, the appellant Vinod took away deceased from her house and at that time also, he asked for a motorcycle as a dowry. She has further stated that her daughter Sangeeta (PW-5) informed her on phone that deceased Pooja was killed by her in-laws and on that information, she came to Bansi (appellant's house) and saw that the dead body of Pooja was lying in the outer side of the house of appellant. She further stated that she had lodged the F.I.R. (Ex.Ka.3); police reached the place of occurrence and recovered an iron rod in length about 2.5 ft, a scarf and a mobile charger. She further stated that on perusal of dead body, it appeared that the death was caused by strangulation. According to her, dead body of the deceased was sealed before her and inquest report (Ex.Ka.4) was also prepared before her, whereupon she had also put her thumb impression.

28. PW-5, Smt. Sangeeta, sister of deceased, also stated that deceased, her youngest sister, was married with appellant Vinod, just 4 years before the occurrence. Stating that at the time of marriage, dowry was given to appellant according to her capacity; appellant was not satisfied with dowry; he was demanding a motorcycle in dowry and was harassing and torturing the deceased for want of dowry, she further stated that deceased Pooja used to tell her the act of harassment and demand of dowry made to her by the appellant and his relatives, whereupon she used to pacify her. She further stated that on 10th January, 2018, she was in Mumbai; appellant Vinod, at about 4:00 O' clock in the morning, informed her that deceased was not feeling well and was in critical condition. Thereafter, he switched off his phone but as she rang after an hour, he informed that the deceased had died. She further stated that thereafter, she informed her mother (PW-2) that deceased had been murdered by her in-laws.

29. PW-7, Gyan Das, maternal uncle of the deceased, has also stated that deceased was married with the appellant just 4 years before her death and when he used to visit the deceased's matrimonial house, she used to tell him that appellant and his family members used to demand a motorcycle and also used to harass and torture her.

30. PW-3 Dr. Sanjay Chaudhary stating the ante mortem injuries caused to deceased (noted in para no. 5) has specifically stated that the deceased had died due to asphyxia caused by ante-mortem injury. According to him, 500 gm. semi digested food was also found in stomach of deceased.

31. PW-8, Dy. SP Mahendra Singh, Investigating Officer, who inspected the place of occurrence and prepared site plan (Ex.Ka.10) has stated that death of deceased was caused in her bed room.

32. PW-6 Dy. SP Umashanker Singh, who took over the investigation after PW-8 Mahendra Singh, has stated that after recording statement of witnesses and inspecting the panchnama, post-mortem report and other documents, he concluded the investigation and filed charge-sheet (Ex.Ka.9)

33. In addition to above, in F.I.R. (Ex.Ka.3) it has been specifically mentioned that marriage of deceased with appellant was solemnized in 2013 and the incident happened in the intervening night of 10/11.1.2018. PW-2 Smt. Subhavati, PW-5 Sangeeta and PW-7 Gyandas have specifically stated that the deceased was married with applicant four years prior to the occurrence. In cross-examination PW-2 Shubhawati, although has stated that, at the time of marriage, deceased was aged about 15-16 years but again she stated that deceased was graduate. She was not further cross examined on the point of duration of marriage of deceased. In cross-examination, PW-5 Sangeeta further said that the deceased was married with appellant in 2013. Thus the prosecution have successfully proved that unnatural death of deceased was caused within 7 years of her marriage and the submission made by the learned counsel for the appellant has no force.

34. In this case, the nature of cause of death is not disputed because it is admitted fact that the death of deceased was not natural. According to PW-2 Subhawati, PW-5 Sangeeta and PW-7 Gyan Das, the death of deceased was caused by the appellant-Vinod along with his family member for demand of dowry and deceased was subjected to cruelty and harassment by them just before her death in connection with dowry. It is very pertinent to note at this juncture that for the first time PW-2 Subhavati when she reached the place of occurrence, she found that the dead body of deceased was lying in the outer side of the house of appellant. According to PW-3, Dr. Sanjay Chaudhary, ligature mark was present around the neck of deceased. This witness has not found any gap in ligature mark which is generally found in suicidal case by hanging. In addition to above, no rope was found on the place of occurrence by Investigating Officer PW-8 Dy.S.P. Mahendra Singh whereas from perusal of site plan (Ex.Ka.10) it transpires that only two rooms are inside the house of appellant and deceased had died in one room where bed was also lying.

35. According to PW-5, Sangeeta, the appellant Vinod rang her at 4:00 O' clock in the morning of 10th January, 2018 and informed that deceased Pooja was in critical condition. Thereafter, he switched off his phone and after one hour when she (PW-5) again rang him, he informed that the deceased had died. This clearly shows that at the time of death of deceased, the appellant was with the deceased.

36. Appellant Vinod has not stated in his statement under section 313 Cr.P.C., as to how, deceased had died, whereas her death was caused inside his house. He has also not explained as to how the dead body of deceased was laid, out side his house. He has also not specifically denied his presence, at the time of occurrence, inside his house. He has also not explained or disclosed anything regarding the circumstances related to the cause of death, cruelty or harassment just before the death of deceased, demand of motorcycle as dowry and duration of his marriage with deceased. DW-1 Ram Sundar has stated that he got the marriage of appellant Vinod with Pooja solemnized 10 years ago; there was no demand of dowry by the appellant; and there was no harassment or torture with deceased by the appellant. In cross examination, he has specifically admitted that he has also solemnized two other marriages. He further admitted that appellant Vinod is his relative (brother-in-law). This witness neither normally resides at the house of appellant nor was present at the time of occurrence at the house of appellant. Appellant being husband of deceased has to disclose the exact duration or year of his marriage, facts and circumstances as well as cause of death of deceased, in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C., but he did not disclosed it and only answered that prosecution version is false. Similarly, if the appellant was with the deceased at the time of occurrence, it was also his duty to explain the circumstances that how the death of deceased was caused and if she committed suicide, what effort was made by him to prevent her to take such step. Failure, to explain circumstances or produce any reliable evidence in defence against the evidence produced by the prosecution regarding unnatural death of deceased, demand of dowry, cruelty and harassment to deceased, duration of marriage and, to discharge the burden as required U/s 113 B Evidence Act and mere denial to the prosecution evidence put to him U/s 313 Cr.P.C., strengthen the culpability of appellant in committing the offence and the statement of DW-1 Ram Sundar is not sufficient to controvert the prosecution version.

37. Hon'ble Supreme Court Trimukh Maroti Kirkan Vs. State of Maharashtra 2006 (10) SCC 681 where accused was charged for committing murder of his wife and it was established by the prosecution that shortly before the offence, he was seen with his wife inside his house where he and his wife were normally used to reside. Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as under:

"Where an accused is alleged to have committed the murder of his wife and the prosecution succeeds in leading evidence to show that shortly before the commission of crime they were seen together or the offence takes placed in the dwelling home where the husband also normally resided, it has been consistently held that if the accused does not offer any explanation how the wife received injuries or offers an explanation which is found to be false, it is a strong circumstance which indicates that he is responsible for commission of the crime. In Nika Ram v. State of Himachal Pradesh AIR 1972 SC 2077 it was observed that the fact that the accused alone was with his wife in the house when she was murdered there with 'khokhri' and the fact that the relations of the accused with her were strained would, in the absence of any cogent explanation by him, point to his guilt. In Ganeshlal v. State of Maharashtra (1992) 3 SCC 106 the appellant was prosecuted for the murder of his wife which took place inside his house. It was observed that when the death had occurred in his custody, the appellant is under an obligation to give a plausible explanation for the cause of her death in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. The mere denial of the prosecution case coupled with absence of any explanation were held to be inconsistent with the innocence of the accused, but consistent with the hypothesis that the appellant is a prime accused in the commission of murder of his wife. In State of U.P. v. Dr. Ravindra Prakash Mittal AIR 1992 SC 2045 the medical evidence disclosed that the wife died of strangulation during late night hours or early morning and her body was set on fire after sprinkling kerosene. The defence of the husband was that wife had committed suicide by burning herself and that he was not at home at that time. The letters written by the wife to her relatives showed that the husband ill-treated her and their relations were strained and further the evidence showed that both of them were in one room in the night. It was held that the chain of circumstances was complete and it was the husband who committed the murder of his wife by strangulation and accordingly this Court reversed the judgment of the High Court acquitting the accused and convicted him under Section 302 IPC. In State of Tamil Nadu v. Rajendran (1999) 8 SCC 679 the wife was found dead in a hut which had caught fire. The evidence showed that the accused and his wife were seen together in the hut at about 9.00 p.m. and the accused came out in the morning through the roof when the hut had caught fire. His explanation was that it was a case of accidental fire which resulted in the death of his wife and a daughter. The medical evidence showed that the wife died due to asphyxia as a result of strangulation and not on account of burn injuries. It was held that there cannot be any hesitation to come to the conclusion that it was the accused (husband) who was the perpetrator of the crime."

38. Hon'ble Supreme Court in Ramesh Vithal Patil vs. State of Karnataka (2014) 11 SCC 516, while discussing the provision of Section 304B I.P.C. and relevance of Section 113-B of Evidence Act, 1872, held as under:-

"There is also another angle to this case. The prosecution has succeeded in proving facts from which a reasonable inference can be drawn that the deceased committed suicide by jumping in the river along with her daughter. The deceased was in the custody of the appellant. She left the appellant's house with the small child. Admittedly, neither the appellant nor any member of his family lodged any missing complaint. The appellant straightway went to the house of the deceased to enquire about her. This conduct is strange. When his wife and small child had left the house and were not traceable the appellant was expected to move heaven and earth to trace them. As to when and why the deceased left the house and how she died in suspicious circumstances was within the special knowledge of the appellant. When the prosecution established facts from which reasonable inference can be drawn that the deceased committed suicide, the appellant should have, by virtue of his special knowledge regarding those facts, offered an explanation which might drive the court to draw a different inference. The burden of proving those facts was on the appellant as per Section 106 of the Evidence Act but the appellant has not discharged the same leading to an adverse inference being drawn against him."

39. Lastly, it is also pertinent to note that all the witnesses, produced by the prosecution were put to lengthy cross-examination, but nothing could be elicited by way of cross-examination so as to create doubt about their testimonies. Their testimonies have been well supported by the medical evidence which shows that the deceased had been caused to death within 7 years of her marriage, in unnatural circumstances by the appellant due to demand of dowry and prior to her death, she was also subjected to cruelty for the dowry. Death of deceased was caused inside the house of appellant where his presence has been found natural at the time of occurrence. Appellant has failed to produce any reliable evidence regarding his innocence or to create any doubt in the prosecution evidence. Prosecution witness of fact i.e. PW-2 Subhavati, PW-5 Smt. Sangeeta and PW-7 Gyandas are illiterate, and rustic witnesses. The minor discrepancies in the evidence produced by the prosecution will not overshadow the prosecution version in peculiar facts and circumstances of this case. There is complete consistency and coherence in the examination-in-chief and in the cross examination of the prosecution witnesses. There is nothing on record to show that the prosecution witnesses had any animus against the appellant so as to implicate him falsely absolving the actual accused.

40. Thus the prosecution has succeeded to prove that deceased Pooja was married with appellant Vinod; she died within 7 years of her marriage, in unnatural circumstances, inside the house of the appellant and she was subjected to cruelty and harassment just soon before her death by the appellant, due to demand of dowry. Appellant has failed to produce any reliable evidence in his defence to rebut or explain the prosecution evidence in view of the statutory presumption as provided under Section 113 B Evidence Act. The learned Trial Court has elaborately discussed the evidence led by the prosecution in the light of argument advanced by the prosecution as well as the defence. The impugned judgment and order requires no interference and liable to be affirmed.

41. Now coming to the question of sentence whether sentence passed by the Trial Court, is just and proper or not.

42. Appellant has been convicted for the offence under Section 304-B and 498-A I.P.C. and under Section 4 of Dowry Prohibition Act. He has been sentenced only for 7 years rigorous imprisonment for the offence under Section 304-B I.P.C., for 2 years and fine of Rs. 5,000/- for the offence under Section 498-A I.P.C. and Section 4 of Dowry Prohibition Act, for each offence. It has been further directed that all the sentences were run concurrently. Thus the maximum sentence, awarded against the appellant, is 7 years.

43. Looking into the nature and gravity of the offence, I am of the view that the punishment awarded by the Trial Court is just and appropriate and requires no interference. Appeal is liable to be dismissed and impugned judgment and order passed by the learned Trial Court is liable to be affirmed.

44. In the light of above discussion, the appeal lacks merit and is hereby dismissed. The impugned judgment and order dated 24.11.2018 passed by Additional Session Judge, Bansi, District Siddharth Nagar in Sessions Trial No. 30 of 2018 (State vs. Vinod and another), is maintained and affirmed.

45. The appellant is in jail.

46. Let a copy of this judgment along with lower court record be sent to the Additional Sessions Judge, Bansi, District Siddharth Nagar for necessary information and compliance.

A. Criminal law-Criminal Procedure Code (2 of 1974) - Section 154 - FIR - Delay - No plausible explanation for delay of 16 hours in registering FIR by complainant - Held - adverse inference that FIR lodged with due deliberation and consultation - delay fatal to the prosecution case (Para 19)

B. Evidence Law-Evidence Act (1 of 1872) - Section 3 - Contradiction - Material contradictions in testimonies of prosecution witness - as per FIR main door opened by Ram Ratan however P.W. 3 stated that both miscreants opened the door - Another contradiction that there are 3 miscreants however P.W. 2 clearly stated only two miscreants in the incident - contradiction corrodes the credibility of witness - no reliance can be placed (Para 22)

C. Criminal Law-Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860) - Section 393 - Attempt to commit robbery - Allegations that accused persons intended/tried to snatch anklets from the feet of victim however on hearing noise one miscreant fired two rounds - Held - In the present case, alleged gun shot fired by the appellants do not intend to carry away any property as no property was taken away by the appellants - not a case u/s 393 IPC (Para 30)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Suresh Kumar Gupta, J.

1. Heard learned counsel for the appellant and learned A.G.A and perused the record.

2. This criminal appeal has been preferred by appellants-Hargovind and Sri Kishan against the judgment and order dated 30.01.1991, passed by Special Judge (DAA)/ 6th Additional District Judge, Etawah, in S.T. No. 45-46 of 1990 (State Vs. Hargovind and another), whereby convicting the appellant under Section 393 IPC, sentence them to 4 years rigorous imprisonment each and fine of Rs. 500/- each and in default of payment of fine period of 3 months further rigorous imprisonment.

3. Brief facts of this case are as follows:-

4. An FIR Ext. Ka-1 was lodged by Megh Singh and scribed by constable Rajendra Singh S/o Megh Singh (complainant) that in the intervening night on 3/4 .08.1988 at about 11.30 p.m. first informant Megh Singh was sleeping inside the house below the thatch and his son Ram Ratan Singh was sleeping in the gallery of the house and wife of Ram Ratan, Smt. Mahadevi was sleeping in the courtyard and the lantern was lightning in the house and a lamp was lightning near the door and that time Ram Ratan kept torch. On fateful night, three miscreants entered into the house and reached the courtyard and that time accused tried to snatch anklets (Toria), then his brother's wife shouted loudly then one miscreant fired two rounds. Meanwhile, Ram Ratan opened the main door and flashed the torch on miscreants and exhorted them and after hearing the noise and sound of fire complainant also woke up then miscreants fled away from the place of occurrence, immediately and that time villagers namely; Badshah, Suraj Pal and Bhoop Singh etc. armed with lathi and torch reached on the spot and identified the miscreants Hargovind and Shri Kishan, who armed with country made pistol and one miscreants could not be identified. On this allegation, the FIR was lodged by first informant Megh Singh at P.S. Chauvia, District Etawah, under sections 393/397 IPC.

5. After lodging the FIR investigation of the case was entrusted to inspector K.L. Chaudhary, who conducted investigation of this case, during investigation, Investigating Officer on pointing out of complainant prepared site plan Ext. Ka-7. Investigating Officer also recorded the statement of witnesses after completing the formalities of investigation Investigating Officer submitted charge-sheet Ext. Ka 5 against the appellants Hargovind and Sri Kishan under section 393/397 IPC.

6. After filing of the charge-sheet, the charge against appellants Harigovind and Sri Kishan was framed under sections 393/397 IPC by Shri Raj Singh, Spl. Judge (D.A.A.)/ Additional Sessions Judge, Etawah on 02.03.1989.

7. After framing of charge, charge was read over to accused. Accused denied the charge and claimed to be tried.

8. In order to substantiate the charge levelled against the appellants, prosecution examined P.W. 1 complainant Megh Singh, P.W. 2 Badshah, eyewitness, P.W. 3 Smt. Maha Devi eyewitness and victim, P.W. 4 Jai Prakash, who proved FIR Exh. Ka-1, the GD rapat No. 15 Ext. Ka 2, recovery mimo of empty cartridges Ext. Ka-3, and also proved the G.D. No. 25 05/05/88 time 20.5 arrest of the accused Hargovind and empty cartridges as material Ext. 2 and 3. P.W. 5 Sub-Inspector K.L. Chaudhary, investigating officer, who has submitted charge-sheet dated 31.08.1988 and 07.12.1988, who proved the same as Ext. Ka 5 and 6, Site plan as Ext. Ka-7, recovery and Supardigi Memo of torch and Latern as Ext. Ka-8.

9. After conclusion of evidence of prosecution witnesses, trial court has recorded the statements of appellants under section 313 IPC, in which the appellants-accused denied the charge levelled against them and stated that they have been falsely implicated in this case due to enmity. The witness further stated in his testimony that the marriage of his elder brother was solemnized by Jai Devi, elder sister of witness Maha Devi. He further stated that when the marriage proposal of Maha Devi was given to the first informant Megh Singh, then elder brother of accused objected this marriage and due to this reason false case was lodged by the first informant.

10. Learned trial court after hearing the parties convicted the appellants under section 393 IPC as aforesaid.

11. Learned counsel for the appellants has submitted that they have been falsely implicated in this case on the basis of surmise and conjuncture. The evidence adduced by prosecution is deficient. Learned trial court has wrongly convicted the appellants . He further submitted the following points:-

given to the first informant Megh Singh, then elder brother of appellants objected this marriage and due to this enmity false case was lodged by the first informant against the appellants Hargovind and Sri Kishan due to enmity.

(2) Time of incident is 03.08.1988 at 11.30 mid night and the FIR was lodged against the appellants on 04.08.1988 at 3.30 p.m. FIR was lodged after 16 hours of the incident, while the distance from the police station to the place of occurrence is about 8 kms. Due to delay of lodging the FIR, FIR looses spontaneity. FIR was lodged with due deliberation and consultation hence, no reliance can be placed in the FIR.

3. Learned counsel for the appellants has also submitted that only 3 witnesses of the fact were examined by the prosecution. All the 3 witnesses are relative and interested witnesses and no independent witnesses of the locality on the spot was produced by the prosecution, so the non production of the independent witnesses are totally belie the prosecution case. So no reliance placed on the testimony of the witnesses of fact.

(4) Prosecution is failed to assigned any motive against the appellants.

(5) Both the appellants and the first informant of the same village and this also not believable, but in spite of that the accused persons had not tried to conceal their identity which is very unnatural and if, at all they have planted to robbery at least they would have hided their face, so nobody was recognized the same. Learned counsel for the appellant has also submitted that no offence under section 393 IPC is made out.

(6) There are several material contradictions in the statement of examined witness. This aspect is also corrodes the credibility of witness. So no reliance placed on the testimony of the witnesses of fact. In support of this contention, learned counsel for the appellants has relied upon the following judgment:-

1. Lal Man vs. State of U.P. 1990 0 Supreme Court (All) 1871 and

2. Jaggi and others vs. State of U.P. 2014 (2) Law Suit (All) 4219.

12. Learned AGA has vehemently opposed the prayer and submitted that the learned trial court after appreciating the evidence rightly convicted the appellants. Next submission is that the accused were known person and they are clearly identified by the witnesses who present on the spot and although the incident took place in the night but the appellants are the resident of same village. There was sufficient light to identify the known persons of the villagers. It is also submitted that two empty cartridge were recovered from the place of occurrence, which is delivered by the first informant to the police station regarding which the recovery memo was prepared by the police at the time of lodging of the FIR and recovery memo Ext. Ka-2 is duly proved by prosecution.

13. Section 393 IPC reads as under:-

"Section 393 in The Indian Penal Code. 393. Attempt to commit robbery. -- Whoever attempts to commit robbery shall be punished with rigorous imprisonment for a term which may extend to seven years, and shall also be liable to fine."

In this Session trial appellants were convicted under section 393 IPC for attempt to commit robbery.

14. Section 390 Indian Panel Code reads as under:-

"390. Robbery.--In all robbery there is either theft or extortion. When theft is robbery.--Theft is "robbery" if, in order to the committing of the theft, or in committing the theft, or in carrying away or attempting to carry away property obtained by the theft, the offender, for that end, voluntarily causes or attempts to cause to any person death or hurt or wrongful restraint, or fear of instant death or of instant hurt, or of instant wrongful restraint. When extortion is robbery.--Extortion is "robbery" if the offender, at the time of committing the extortion, is in the presence of the person put in fear, and commits the extortion by putting that person in fear of instant death, of instant hurt, or of instant wrongful restraint to that person or to some other person, and, by so putting in fear, induces the person so put in fear then and there to deliver up the thing extorted. Explanation.--The offender is said to be present if he is sufficiently near to put the other person in fear of instant death, of instant hurt, or of instant wrongful restraint."

15. Whether the offence under section 393 is made out against the appellants or not will be discussed after considering the other argument raised by the appellants.

16. So far as regard one of the argument of the appellants is that the FIR is 16 hours delayed, but there is no plausible explanation regarding delay of the FIR on behalf of prosecution.

17. In criminal trial one of the cardinal principles for the Court is to look for plausible explanation for the delay in lodging the report. Delay sometimes affords opportunity to the complainant to make deliberation upon the complaint and to make embellishment or even make fabrications. Delay defeats the chance of the unsoiled and untarnished version of the case to be presented before the Court at the earliest instance. That is why if there is delay in either coming before the police or before the Court, the Courts always view the allegations with suspicion and look for satisfactory explanation. If no such satisfaction is formed, the delay is treated as fatal to the prosecution case.

18. In Thulia Kali v. The State of Tamil Nadu (AIR 1973 SC 501), it was held that the delay in lodging the first information report quite often results in embellishment as a result of afterthought. On account of delay, the report not only gets bereft of the advantage of spontaneity, but also danger creeps in of the introduction of coloured version, exaggerated account or concocted story as a result of deliberation and consultation.

19. In this case although the prosecution tried to explain the delay that P.W. 1 is rustic and his son Rajendra Kumar who was posted at the time of incident as police constable in the police line, Etah. P.W. 1 lodged the FIR with the consultation of his son Rajendra Kumar. Although the prosecution has tried to explain the delay but on perusal of entire circumstances the delay is not satisfactorily explained so adverse inference is to be drawn in this case. This possibility cannot be ruled out that FIR was lodged by the complainant with due deliberation and consultation.

20. Another argument of learned counsel for the appellants is that three relatives and interested witnesses were examined by the prosecution and no independent witness of the locality was produced by the prosecution and due to this, whole prosecution of the case create suspicion. So far as regards the evidentiary value of related and interested witnesses are concerned, in the case of Dalip Singh and others vs. State of Punjab, (AIR 1953 SC 364), it has been laid down as under by the Hon'ble Apex Court:-

No doubt, the evidence of related and interested witnesses has to be scrutinized with caution.

"A witness is normally to be considered independent unless he or she springs from sources which are likely to be tainted and unless the witness has cause, such as enmity against the accused, to wish to implicate him falsely. Ordinarily a close relation would be the last to screen the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent person. It is true, when feelings run high and there is personal cause for enmity, that there is tendency to drag in an innocent person against whom a witness has a grudge along with the guilty, but foundation must be laid for such a criticism and the mere fact of relationship far from being a foundation is often a sure guarantee of truth. However, we are not attempting any sweeping generalization. Each case must be judged on its own facts."

Observations of the Hon'ble Apex Court Masalti and others vs. State of U.P., A.I.R. 1965 SC 202, are worth mentioning:-

"But it would, we think, be unreasonable to contend that evidence given by witnesses should be discarded only on the ground that it is evidence of partisan or interested witnesses. The mechanical rejection of such evidence on the sole ground that it is partisan would invariably lead to failure of justice. No hard and fast rule can be laid down as to how such evidence should be appreciated. Judicial approach has to be cautions in dealing with such evidence, but the plea that such evidence should be rejected because it is partisan cannot be accepted as correct."

The above decision has been followed in Guli Chand and others vs. State of Rajasthan, 1974 (3) SCC 698, in which Vadivelu Thevar vs. State of Madras, AIR 1975 SC 614 was also relied upon. The following observations were made by the Hon'ble Apex Court in Israr vs. State of U.P., [2005(51) ACC 113] in para-12 of the judgement are also important:-

".... Relationship is not a factor to affect credibility of a witness. It is more often than not that a relation would not conceal the actual culprit and make allegations against an innocent person. Foundation has to be laid if plea of false implication is made. In such cases, the Court has to adopt a careful approach and analyze evidence to find out whether it is cogent and credible."

21. The position has been highlighted by Apex Court in the case of Galivenkataiah vs. State of A.P., 2008 (60) ACC 370, in which reference has been made to some other cases also. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of State of Andhra Pradesh vs. S. Rayappa and others, 2006 (1) AAR 259 (SC) dealing the evidence of related/interested witnesses has observed as under:-

"..... By now it is a well-established principle of law that testimony of a witness otherwise inspiring confidence cannot be discarded on the ground that he being a relation of the deceased is an interested witness. A close relative who is a very natural witness cannot be termed as an interested witness. The term interested postulates that the person concerned must have some direct interest in seeing the accused person being convicted somehow or the other either because of animosity or some other reasons.:

In para-8 their Lordships have further observed:

"The relative witness is not necessarily an interested witness. On the other hand, being a close relation to the deceased, they will try to prosecute the real culprit by stating the truth. There is no reason as to why a close relative will implicate and depose falsely against somebody and screen the real culprit to escape unpunished. The only requirement is that the testimony of the relative witnesses should be examined cautiously..."

22. The relative witness is not necessarily an interested witness. There is no reason as to why a close relative will implicate and depose falsely against somebody and screen the real culprit to escape unpunished. The only requirement is that the testimony of the relative witnesses should be examined cautiously. So on the basis of the interested witnesses of prosecution case is not thrown out that no independent witness examined by the court.

23. One of the argument of learned counsel for the appellants is that prosecution failed to assign any motive of alleged incident. So, the conviction could not upheld due to observe of motive.

24. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Ranganayaki vs. State, (2004) 12 SCC 521 has held as under:

"The motive for committing a criminal act is generally a difficult area for the prosecution. One cannot normally see into the mind of anther. Motive is in the mind which impels a man to do a particular act. Such impulsion need not necessarily be proportionally grave to do grave crimes. Many murders have been committed without any known or prominent motive. It is quite possible that the aforesaid imputing factor would remain undiscovered."

2. The Hon'ble Apex Court in Mangaru and others vs. State of U.P., 2008 (62) ACC 40 has laid down that motive may be of importance in the cases of circumstantial evidence and it is well settled principle of law that in the case of direct evidence, motive looses its value.

3. In the present case in hand prosecution could not establish some motive of this incident hence this case is fully based on direct evidence so motive looses its value, hence the motive in this case is not much consequence.

25. One of the argument of learned counsel for the appellants is that there are several material contradictions in the statement of the witnesses examined by the prosecution. Due to material contradiction prosecution is utterly failed to prove the case.

26. Learned counsel for the appellant pointed out several contradictions. One of the contradiction is pointed out by the appellants is that as per first information report the main door was opened by Ram Ratan. P.W. 3 Mahadevi stated in her statement that both the miscreants opened the door and fled away from the spot. Another contradiction is also pointed out that there are 3 miscreants, one miscreant was unknown and P.W. 2 has clearly stated that only two miscreants in this incident.

27. It is also pointed out by learned counsel for the appellants is that P.W. 2 in his statement has stated that he create the pressure then the miscreants made fire while they were running. P.W. 1 and P.W. 3 clearly stated that named appellants fired inside the house. It is also submitted that no fire mark was present in the wall, then the story is concocted and fabricated.

28. There are material contradictions which is pointed out by appellants. These material contradictions are also corrodes in the statements of witnesses examined by the prosecution.

29. Learned counsel for the appellants is also submitted that this point is also ruled out with the false implication of the accused persons. It is argued by learned counsel for the appellants that the appellants were known to the complainant and other witnesses, but in spite of that two accused persons had not tried to conceal their identity, which is very unnatural and if at all they had a plan to commit robbery at least they would have masked their face so that nobody could recognize them in the present case. All the examined witnesses of the fact had deposed that all the miscreants were having open face and did not try to conceal their identity, so this creates doubt upon prosecution story.

30. Now the question raised whether the offence under section 393 IPC is made out against the appellants or not. As mentioned in the FIR that the accused persons had intended to take away anklet (toria) from the feet of Smt. Mahadevi. On perusal of the statement of Smt. Mahadevi, P.W.3, its reveals in her statement that the accused persons have touched anklet (toria), but in their statements it is clearly stated that they have touched her feet. In the present case, if any alleged gun shot fired by the appellants do not intend to carry away any property as no property was taken away by the appellants so prima facie it transpires that this is not a case under the preview of Section 393 IPC. It is surprising that due to such fire no injury cause to any person. It is also surprising that several persons gathered on the spot, but nobody tried to apprehend the appellants on the spot, surprisingly both the appellants escape away from spot safely, so the possibility of false implication is not ruled out in this case.

31. Therefore, looking into the entire facts and circumstances of the case, this Court is of the view that the prosecution has failed to prove its case beyond shadow of doubt. The present appeal is liable to be allowed and the judgment and order of the learned trial court for convicting and sentencing the appellants is liable to be set aside.

32. Accordingly, the appeal is allowed. The judgment and order dated 30.01.1991 passed by Special Judge (DAA)/ 6th Additional District Judge, Etawah, for convicting and sentencing the appellants is set aside. The appellants are acquitted under section 393 IPC.

33. Appeal against the appellants is hereby allowed.

34. The appellants are on bail. There is no need for their surrender. Their bail bonds are canceled and sureties are hereby discharged.

35. Office is directed to transmit the certified copy of this order to the court below along with the lower court record, for necessary compliance.

Appeal allowed (E-5)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pankaj Naqvi, J.)

This criminal appeal is preferred against the judgment and order dated 21.1.1992 passed by VIth Additional Sessions Judge, Aligarh in S.T. No. 78 of 1991 (State Vs. Prem Pal Varshney) convicting/ sentencing the appellant under Section 275 IPC/Section 27 of Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940 to life with fine of Rs.1 lac and a default sentence of 5 years R.I.

(a) PW-1, a Drug Inspector on 12.5.1982 inspected the shop of the appellant, namely M/s National Medical Store, wherein he purchased 5 tables of DEXAMETHASONE (Batch No.38 D/M May 81) vide Cash Memo (Ex.Ka 1), for the purpose of sample/ test survey. PW-1 sent the said sample to Central Drug Laboratory, Calcutta (hereinafter referred to C.D.L.), where it was received on 14.05.1982. The C.D.L. submitted the test report dated 04.06.82 (Ex.Ka 4) disclosing the sample as spurious and that it did not contain DEXAMETHASONE.

(b) PW-1 on 26.6.1982, again inspected the shop of the appellant and purchased vide a cash memo (Exbt Ka-5) 47 tablets of DEXAMETHASONE (Batch No. 38D/M May 81). Out of 47 tablets, PW-1 prepared 4 samples, i.e, 20+9+9+9 and got them sealed in the presence of appellant, duly signed by both of them, appellant was intimated of the same on Form 17 of the same date. PW-1 sent the sample containing 20 tablets to the C.D.L, vide a memo dated 28.06.82 to obtain a test report, which was received by the laboratory on 20.7.1982.

(c) The Government Analyst, C.D.L, Calcutta submitted a report dated 19.8.1982 (Exbt. Ka-10) disclosing that the sample does not contain DEXAMETHASONE and as also the sample is misbranded as per Section 17(f) and adulterated as per Section 17B(eii) of the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940 (hereinafter referred to as the Act). The report dated 19.8.1982 was sent by Registered AD/ Post to the accused / appellant on 28.8.1982 (Ex.Ka-16). The accused / appellant vide his registered / AD Post reply dated 25.9.1982 (Exbt. Ka-18), inter alia controverted the report alleging that the said medicines were purchased from M/s Bharat Pharma and Chemicals, A-5 of Industrial Estate, Hathras under their bill no. 35 dated 22.4.1982. He also requested for a fresh analysis of a sample from a sealed bottle in his possession.

2. PW-1 on above allegations filed a statutory complaint under Section 27 (a), 27(6) read with section 18a(i), 18a(ii), 18a(iia) and 18a(vi) of the Act, on 21.9.1983 before the Special Court. The trial court taking cognizance of an offence under Section 275 of the IPC read with U.P. Act 47 of 1975, as also under Section 18(a)(i), (ii), (iii) and 18(c) of the Act proceeded against the appellant as well as the manufacturer. It appears that the manufacturer approached this Court in A-482 no. 10644 of 1991 and obtained an interim order on 11.10.1991, whereby proceedings of the trial court were stayed against him. The trial of the manufacturer stood segregated.

3. The prosecution examined PW-1, in order to establish its case. The appellant denied the allegations and contended that the alleged sample was purchased from M/s Bharat Pharma and Chemicals, Hathras, a Licensed firm. He examined himself as DW-1.

4. The trial court after considering the evidence was of the view that as the appellant failed to discharge the burden under Section 19(3)(b) of the Act, he is not entitled to the defence available therein, proceeded to convict and sentence him as above.

5. Heard Sri S.S. Sharma, learned counsel for the appellant and Sri A.N. Mulla, the learned A.G.A, assisted by Dr. S.B. Maurya, the learned A.G.A-I.

6. It is submitted by learned counsel for the appellant that as per the case of the prosecution appellant was a retailer, sample in question was sold to PW-1 in the same condition as it was received from the manufacturer against an invoice (CST no. HT717 and UPST no. HT2934) (Ext. Ka-7). He submits that as the appellant did not and could not ascertain that the drug contravened the provisions of Section 18, even after exercising reasonable diligence, he cannot be convicted under Section 27 of the Act. He finally submitted that the conviction under Section 275 IPC is also not sustainable as the appellant discontinued the sale of the drug the moment he came to know of the drug being spurious.

7. The learned A.G.A, controverted the submissions by submitting that the appellant cannot be absolved from his responsibility, merely on the premise that he held a valid license or that he purchased the said medicine from a licensed manufacturer as he had failed to exercise reasonable/ diligence to ascertain that the drug was spurious / misbranded. He further submitted that it was a life saving drug, offence is sufficiently established both under the Drugs Act as also under IPC and no leniency can be shown.

8. The appellant, a retailer, is charged for an offence under Section 18 of the Act on the basis of a test report dated 19.8.1982, duly confronted to him. Section 18 of the Act, insofar relevant is quoted hereinbelow:

"Prohibition of manufacture and sale of certain drugs and cosmetics. --From such date as may be fixed by the State Government by notification in the Official Gazette in this behalf, no person shall himself or by any other person on his behalf--

(a) manufacture for sale or for distribution, or sell, or stock or exhibit or offer for sale,] or distribute--

(i) any drug which is not of a standard quality, or is misbranded, adulterated or spurious;

(ii) any cosmetic which is not of a standard quality, or is misbranded, adulterated or spurious;

(iii) any patent or proprietary medicine, unless there is displayed in the prescribed manner on the label or container thereof the true formula or list of active ingredients contained in it together with the quantities, thereof;

(iv) any drug which by means of any statement design or device accompanying it or by any other means, purports or claims to prevent, cure or mitigate any such disease or ailment, or to have any such other effect as may be prescribed;

(v) any cosmetic containing any ingredient which may render it unsafe or harmful for use under the directions indicated or recommended;

(vi) any drug or cosmetic in contravention of any of the provisions of this Chapter or any rule made thereunder"

9. The plea of defence available to an accused, not being manufacturer or his agent for the distribution thereof, in a prosecution under Section 18 of the Act, is provided under Section 19 of the Act, which is quoted hereunder:

"Section 19. Pleas. - (1) Save as hereinafter provided in this section, it shall be no defence in a prosecution under this Chapter to prove merely that the accused was ignorant of the nature, substance or quality of the drug or cosmetic, in respect of which, the offence has been committed or of the circumstances of its manufacture or import, or that a purchaser, having bought only for the purpose of test or analysis, has not been prejudiced by the sale.

(2) For the purposes of section 18 a drug shall not be deemed to be misbranded or adulterated or spurious or to be below standard quality nor shall a cosmetic be deemed to be misbranded or to be below standard quality only by reason of the fact that -

(a) There has been added thereto some innocuous substance or ingredient because the same is required for the manufacture or preparation of the drug or cosmetic as an article of commerce in a state fit for carriage or consumption, and not to increase the bulk, weight or measure of the drug or cosmetic or to conceal its inferior quality or other defects ; or

(b) In the process of manufacture, preparation or conveyance some extraneous substance has unavoidably become intermixed with it; provided that this clause shall not apply in relation to any sale or distribution of the drug or cosmetic occurring after the vendor or distributor became aware of such intermixture.

(3) A person, not being the manufacturer of a drug or cosmetic or his agent for the distribution thereof, shall not be liable for a contravention of section 18 if he proves -

(a) That he acquired the drug or cosmetic from a duly licensed manufacturer, distributor or dealer thereof ;

(b) That he did not know and could not, with reasonable diligence, have ascertained that the drug or cosmetic in any way contravened the provisions of that section; and

(c) that the drug or cosmetic, while in his possession, was properly stored and remained in the same state as when he acquired it."

10. Sub-section (1) of Section 19 provides that the accused cannot, as a defence, plead ignorance to the nature, substance or quality of the drug involved in the commission of the offence, neither can he plead that he was unaware, or how was it manufactured / imported, nor can he plead that the purchaser suffered no prejudice / loss. Sub-section (3) of Section 19 is in the nature of an exception to Sub-section (1) of Section 19. It applies only when the accused is neither a manufacturer nor his agent for distribution. The said exception provides that such a person, shall not be held liable for the contravention of Section 18, but only when he proves that he acquired the drug or cosmetic from a duly licensed manufacturer, distributor or dealer thereof and even after exercising reasonable diligence, he did not know and could not, have ascertained that the said drug or cosmetic in any way contravened the provisions of Section 18 and that the said drug or cosmetic was properly stored and remained in the same state as he acquired them.

11. Thus, the only moot point in this appeal is as to whether the appellant who is neither a manufacturer nor his agent, succeeded to set up and establish his defence under Section 19(3) of the Act or not.

12. It is admitted case of the prosecution that DEXAMETHASONE was purchased from the appellant, a valid license holder, vide cash memo (Ext. Ka-5) dated 26.6.1982.

13. The term "reasonable diligence" provided under Section 19(3)(b) of the Act will have to be interpreted in the light of the context as also the person, who is expected to exercise reasonable diligence. We are dealing with a statute, where adulteration / misbranding have to be seriously dealt with but while doing so it be also ensured that the burden which is placed on a retailer / seller is not such onerous or cumbersome that it becomes impossible for retailer/ seller to transact normal business. The law does not expect that the retailer / seller would microscopically examine each and every drug / cosmetic or to conduct any other test to authenticate the genuineness of the drug / cosmetic. Once a retailer / seller has established that he bought the drug / cosmetic from a licensed manufacturer or distributor thereof, and stored them properly then the retailer / seller has only to exercise reasonable diligence as expected from an ordinary person indulging in that particular trade. For example, where the drug / cosmetic appears to be misbranded / sub-standard to even a naked eye then it may afford no protection to the retailer / seller that he purchased the drug / cosmetic from a licensed manufacturer and had stored it properly.

14. The trial court refused to give benefit of defence under Section 19(3)(b) on the following grounds:

I) The accused went on selling the drug in question after 5 tablets of DEXAMETHASONE were purchased from the appellant on 12.5.1982 with batch no. 38 D/M May 81 and the report of the CDL, Calcutta dated 4.6.1982 indicated the drug to be spurious.

(II) No complaint to higher authorities against the manufacturer after the receipt of first report dated 4.6.1982.

(III) Warranty was executed by the son of manufaturer in the absence of any role in the proprietorship firm.

15. PW-1 nowhere alleged that the report of the first sample, purchased on 12.5.1982 was ever confronted to the appellant. The appellant under Section 313 CrPC vide Question no.9 specifically denied the receipt of any report dated 4.6.1982 (Ext. Ka-4). The burden was upon the prosecution to establish the service of the report dated 4.6.1982, which it failed to discharge. Thus the finding of the trial court that despite service of the test report dated 4.6.1982, the appellant continued to sell the drug in question, would demonstrate lack of reasonable care and due diligence disentitling him of the defence under Section 19(3)(b) being perverse stands vitiated.

16. The second ground also cannot be sustained, as even after disclosure by the appellant to PW-1 at the first available opportunity that he purchased the drug in question from a licensed manufacturer, i.e, M/s Bharat Pharma and Chemicals, yet no effort was made by PW-1 in seizing the drugs or even inspecting the premises of the manufacturer, rather after an unexplained delay of nearly a month, the concerned officials on 22.7.1982 inspected the premises of the manufacturer. The trial court's view that the lapse on the part of the investigating authorities would not enure to the benefit of accused so as to claim available defence, cannot be sustained as once an accused discloses the name of the manufacturer to the Drug Inspector, then merely because the accused did not complain to higher authorities would not disentitle him of the defence available under Section 19(3) of the Act.

17. The third ground also fails for the reason that the manufacturer was running a proprietorship concern and the deed of warranty was not executed by an outsider but by the son of the manufacturer. Further even assuming that the deed of warranty was not signed by the competent person, yet the same would not deprive the appellant of the defence under Section 19(3)(b), as merely because of this reason, it cannot be said that the appellant knew or could have ascertained that the drug was in contravention of the provisions of Section 18 of the Act. Thus, failure to obtain a warranty from the manufacturer would not ipso facto mean that the accused failed to exercise reasonable diligence.

18. We on above evidence, are of the considered view that once the appellant established that he acquired the drug from a duly licensed manufacturer, whose identity was disclosed to PW-1, at the first available opportunity, he did not know and could not with reasonable diligence, have ascertained that the drug in question, in any way contravened the provisions of Section 18, coupled with the fact that it was not the case of the prosecution that the drug was not properly stored, thus he is entitled to the defence available under Section 19(3) of the Act, and the view taken by the trial court to the contrary cannot be sustained. Insofar, the conviction/ sentence under Section 275 IPC is concerned, there is no evidence that the accused appellant had any knowledge that the drug in question was adulterated. It has come in evidence that after receipt of the test report dated 26.6.1982, which was the basis of the prosecution, the appellant stopped the sale of the drug in question.

Thus, in view of above, the appeal is allowed. Conviction / sentence of the appellant is set aside. The appellant is on bail. His bail bond stands cancelled, sureties discharged.

Let a copy of this judgment along with record be sent to the learned Sessions Judge, concerned for ensuring compliance within 2 months under the intimation to this Court.

(A) Criminal Law-Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860)-Section 302-Section 377-Section 511 - Protection of Children From Sexual Offences Act (32 of 2012) , S.3, S.4 - Murder - accused kidnap a six year boy - made an attempt to have unnatural sex with him - when deceased refused he was brutally killed by cutting into pieces - Conviction proper (Para 21)

Criminal law- Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860)- Section 52, 302 - Murder - Imposition of sentence - Court are required to scrutinize the case minutely to find out whether the case falls under the category of "rarest of the rare case" - whether imposition of death penalty, which is an exception, would be the only appropriate & meaningful sentence and whether imprisonment for life which is the rule would not be adequate and would not meet the ends of justice – a just balance has to be struck between the aggravating and the mitigating circumstances (Para 34)

Allegations of murder against accused - no evidence on record to establish that the accused appellant committed pre-planned and pre-meditated murder of a minor child - accused-appellant suffering from mental ailment 'Unspecified Non-Organic Psychosis'- Held - the manner in which crime is committed by knife blows is brutal, cruel but there is no evidence to suggest as to what could be the reason for the appellant to commit the said offence - This could be on account of frustration, mental stress or because of emotional disorder which would be the mitigating circumstances - Hence death sentence modified to life imprisonment till end of life without remission (Para 38, 40)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pritinker Diwaker, J.).

1. This death reference was made to this Court under Section 366 of the Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 (in short 'Cr PC') for confirmation of sentence awarded to the appellant. The capital case and the death reference are heard together and this judgment will govern both the capital case as well as the reference.

2. A large number of cases in recent times coming before the Courts of law involving rape and murder of young boys/girls, is a matter of concern. In the instant case, boy was about six years of age, who was the victim of sexual assault and animal lust of the accused appellant, he was not only sexually assaulted but was murdered by the accused appellant.

3. This death reference and the capital case arise out of the judgment and order dated 10.4.2018 passed by the Court of Additional Sessions Judge/Court No.1, Pilibhit in Special Sessions Trial No.51/2017 in which, accused/appellant herein was tried, found guilty, convicted and sentenced to undergo death sentence and to pay a fine of Rs.25,000/- for the offence punishable under Section 302 of IPC, to undergo rigorous imprisonment of ten years and to pay a fine of Rs.10,000/- for the offence punishable under Section 377/511 of IPC and to undergo life imprisonment and a fine of Rs.10,000/- for the offence punishable under Section 3/4 of POCSO Act. In default of payment of fine, he shall undergo two years' rigorous imprisonment; one year's rigorous imprisonment and one year's rigorous imprisonment under Sections 302, 377/511 of IPC and Section 3/4 of POCSO Act respectively.

4. In the present case, deceased was a young boy aged about six years, who went missing on 21.2.2017 from his house. He was searched immediately and at about 12:30 in the afternoon, (PW-3) Laik

Ahmad, informed the informant (PW-1) Moin (uncle of the deceased) that he saw accused-appellant Nazeem Mian, carrying Monish (deceased) to the house of Mobin in his arms. Informant immediately rushed to the house in question, and saw the accused-appellant cutting the body of Monish in pieces. Hue and cry was raised by him and hearing the same, number of his neighbours including (PW-2) Uvash reached to the place of occurrence; information was also given to the police who also immediately reached to the place of occurrence; entered the house of Mobin and the accused-appellant was caught red handed. At 12:45 in the afternoon, beheaded dead body of the deceased was found and the body was cut in several pieces, even internal organs of the body were taken out from the body of the deceased which were clustered near the dead body. The crowd gathered there, made an attempt to catch the accused-appellant, but upon information, police made an attempt to make the situation normal. During this, villagers had closed their shops and there was total chaos in the village. Police brought the accused-appellant along with them to the police station and on the basis of written report Ex.Ka.1 lodged by (PW-1) Moin, at 1:30 pm FIR Ex.Ka.16 was registered against the accused-appellant under Sections 377 and 302 of IPC read with Section 3/4 of POCSO Act.

Inquest on the dead body of the deceased was conducted, vide Ex.Ka.6 on 21.2.2017; photograph of the dead body was marked as Material Ex.1. and the body was sent for postmortem which was conducted on the same day, vide Ex.Ka.4 by (PW-4) Dr S K Chawla.

As per Autopsy Surgeon, following injuries were noticed on the body of the deceased:

Injuries - all Ante-mortem:

External Injuries:

1. Deep Hair singed out with blood, Head chopped out from body at level of C-1 vertebra, Large vessels, Trachea, Hyoid bone not traceable.

2. A vertical midline. Incised wound 38 cm x 5 cm in the midline from the level of neck to the genetalia and the intervening gluteal region.

3. On the ventral side skin peeled out to depth vertebra and ribeage below upto the gluteal region.

Internal Injuries:

4. All internal organs viz-a-viz Heart, spleen, liver, small and large intestines separated out and kept in cluster. Both kidneys, attached in place.

5. Internal organs absolutely pale with occasional clots on the body.

6. Missed organs - Intercostal muscles, fatty tissues. Alimentary canal with Rectum & Anal canal, Larynx, Hyoid bone, Trachea- Oesophagus also not traceable.

Cause of Death

Death as a result of Shock and Haemorrhage due to syncope, due to ante-mortem injuries.

5. While framing charge, trial Judge has framed charge against the accused-appellant under Sections 377 and 302 of IPC and Section 3/4 of POCSO Act.

6. So as to hold accused appellant guilty, prosecution has examined seven witnesses. Statement of the accused-appellant was recorded under Section 313 of Cr PC in which, he pleaded his innocence and false implication.

7. By the impugned judgment and order, the trial Judge has convicted the appellant and sentenced, as mentioned in paragraph-3 of this judgment. Hence this appeal.

8. Counsel for the appellant submits:-

(i) that the evidence of last seen by (PW-3) Laik Ahmad is not reliable and it appears that he has falsely implicated the accused appellant.

(ii) that a very improbable story has been put forth by the prosecution where it is alleged that when (PW-1) Moin and (PW-2) Uvash and other villagers, including the police reached to the house of Mobin, accused-appellant was still cutting the body of the deceased in pieces. It has been argued that no normal man would commit such heinous offence and it appears that the deceased was murdered by some third person. Counsel for the accused appellant submits that unfortunately, accused-appellant, who is an innocent and simple villager, was not mentally sound and he has been falsely implicated in the case.

(iii) that there is no conclusive and clinching evidence showing the involvement of the accused-appellant in the commission of crime under Section 377 of IPC; even postmortem report does not suggest the same.

(iv) that the accused-appellant is suffering from mental ailment, namely, 'Unspecified Non-Organic Psychosis' (F-29/0).

9. On the other hand, learned State Counsel submits:

(i) that the trial Court is fully justified in awarding death sentence to the accused-appellant.

(ii) that a young boy, aged about six year, has been done to death by the accused-appellant for no fault of him.

(iii) that upon receiving information of last seen by (PW-3) Laik Ahmad, complainant (PW-1) Moin and (PW-2) Uvash reached to the house of Mobin and there, they were perplexed to see the accused-appellant sitting with the pieces of dead body of the deceased.

(iv) that while referring to the photograph of the dead body, Material Ex.1, it has been argued that the offence has been committed in such a brutal manner where the accused- appellant had taken out the internal organs of the dead body, including heart, spleen, small and large intestines, liver etc. Even Head of the deceased was chopped by the accused-appellant and kept near the dead body.

(v) that after receiving information, police party reached to the place of occurrence and they also saw the brutality done by the accused-appellant in killing the deceased.

(vi) that in 313 Cr PC statement, instead of offering any defence, most of the questions have been admitted by the accused-appellant and thereafter, nothing remains in favour of the accused-appellant and only conclusion is the award of death sentence.

(vii) that from the spot, one knife and one blade was seized and as per FSL, blood was found on both these articles, whereas human blood was found on the knife.

(viii) that taking into consideration the brutality of the offence; age of the victim and acts of perversion on the person of the victim, cumulatively, the sentence awarded by the trial Court is just and proper and does not call for any interference by this Court in its appellate jurisdiction.

(ix) that the accused appellant was found sitting near the dead body of the deceased and blood was also found on his mouth and hands and thus, possibility that the accused appellant might have eaten certain parts of the body, which have been found missing, cannot be ruled out.

(x) that when the accused appellant could not succeed in committing unnatural sex with the deceased, he killed him and this fact, has been admitted by the accused appellant in his 313 Cr PC statement while answering question no.8.

10. Learned State Counsel has also produced a recent medical report of the accused-appellant dated 24.11.2019, mentioning therein that the accused-appellant is not suffering from any mental ailment and is completely fit. Medical report dated 24.11.22019 is given to learned counsel for the defence and is taken on record.

11. (PW-1) Moin, is an uncle of deceased Monish. He states that he knew the accused appellant. On 21.2.2017, his nephew Monish went missing; he was searched by him and other persons and at about 12:30 in the afternoon, he was informed by (PW-3) Laik Ahmad that accused-appellant had taken the deceased in the house of Mobin on his lap. He (this witness) entered the house of Mobin and there in a room, he saw the accused-appellant cutting the dead body of the deceased into pieces by a knife and the body was in naked condition. He immediately raised his cries and upon hearing the same, Anish Ahmad, Iqbal Ahmad, Uvash and Fahmeez reached there and upon receiving information, the police party also reached there and saw the occurrence. Chopped head was kept separately by the appellant and he was cutting the body in pieces. The accused appellant was arrested at the place of occurrence itself and at that time, he was having a knife with him. He states that after seeing the incident, he gathered an impression that the accused appellant did the offence with an intention to commit unnatural sex with the deceased, which might have been protested by him, resulting the commission of offence. He further states that crowed gathered at the place of occurrence wanted to beat the accused appellant, but he was saved by the police. He further states that because of the terror of the incident, villagers had closed their shops and that at his instance, FIR was registered against the accused appellant. He further states that a knife kept by the accused appellant in his hand and was stained with blood. He further states that the clothes of the accused appellant were also stained with blood and he also noticed blood on his mouth and hands. He further states that from the place of occurrence, one bloodstained blade was also seized. Photographer was called, who took a photo of mutilated dead body of the deceased, vide Material Ex.1. Seized articles were produced in the Court and this witness identified all those articles, including knife, blade and other articles. He further states that the body was beheaded; intestines, lungs, liver and heart were separated from the body.

12. (PW-2) Uvash, is other eyewitness to the incident. He states that on the date of occurrence at about 12:30 in the afternoon, he was in his house and upon hearing the commotion, when he reached to the house of Mobin, he saw the accused-appellant having a knife in his hand and then, he noticed the mutilated dead body of the deceased and that the accused appellant was cutting the body in pieces. He also states that he noticed blood on the mouth and hands of the accused appellant. He further states that (PW-1) Moin and Anish were also present at the spot itself.

13. (PW-3) Laik Ahmad, is a witness of last seen, has stated that on the date of occurrence at about 11:45 pm, he saw accused appellant taking the deceased towards the house of Mobin on his lap. He states that as a lot of villagers used to go to the house of Mobin for consuming plums, as a plum tree was in his house, he did not pay much attention as to why the accused appellant is going to said house. However, when he saw Moin, Anish and Nazeem searching the deceased, he informed them that he saw the accused appellant taking the deceased in his lap in the house of Mobin. He further states that after informing this fact to Moin, he left for another village Karjaina to attend one wedding and there, he received telephonic information from his son and daughter that Monish have been killed by the accused appellant.

14. (PW-4) Dr S K Chawala, conducted postmortem on the body of the deceased, vide Ex.Ka.4. He states that the deceased was a young boy of six years; his dead body was in mutilated condition and the separated head was also sent for postmortem. Following injuries have been noted on the body of the deceased:

"External Injuries:

1. Deep Hair singed out with blood, Head chopped out from body at level of C-1 vertebra, Large vessels, Trachea, Hyoid bone not traceable.

2. A vertical midline. Incised wound 38 cm x 5 cm in the midline from the level of neck to the genitalia and the intervening gluteal region.

3. On the ventral side skin peeled out to depth vertebra and ribeage below upto the gluteal region.

Internal Injuries:

4. All internal organs viz-a-viz Heart, spleen, liver, small and large intestines separated out and kept in cluster. Both kidneys, attached in place.

5. Internal organs absolutely pale with occasional clots on the body.

Cause of Death

Death as a result of Shock and Haemorrhage due to syncope, due to ante-mortem injuries."

15. (PW-5) Sacchidanand Ray, is the first Investigating Officer. He states that he reached to the place of occurrence and started investigation. In his presence, photographer took the photograph of mutilated dead body, vide Material Ex.1 and inquest was conducted. He further states that during investigation, he was informed by Sameem Begam, Sajida, Noori, Haseena Bano, Shabina, Lal Mohammad and Mobin that, quite often, the accused-appellant used to tease young kids and everybody was troubled with his conduct, but to avoid dispute/litigation and police action, no complaint was made to the police, resultantly, occurrence of the present incident. He further states that 100 number vehicle reached to the police station at about 12:45 in the afternoon and they disclosed the incident.

16. (PW-6) Jitendra Pal Singh, recorded FIR, vide Ex.Ka.16. He also states that when he saw the accused appellant, his clothes were bloodstained and that he also noticed blood on his face. Accused-appellant was fully conscious and normal.

A question was put to this witness by the Court as to when the accused appellant was in the police station, he was sent for mental check up. Answer was given by the witness that the accused was normal and healthy and, therefore, he was not sent for medical check up. He has further clarified that as the activities of the accused appellant were not abnormal, he did not make any entry regarding his mental condition.

17. (PW-7) Jitendra Singh Yadav, is the second Investigating Officer, has duly supported the prosecution case. He also filed charge-sheet against the accused appellant. He has further clarified that no document regarding medical treatment of the accused appellant has been filed, as he was found medically fit.

18. In 313 Cr PC statement, various questions were put to the accused appellant. While answering question no.1, which relates to the commission of unnatural sex with the deceased and killing him, he replied that this is not correct. He also denied the fact that he took the deceased in his lap to the house of Mobin. He, however, has admitted the fact that the house of Mobin was vacant and that Moin has made a statement that when he reached to the house of Mobin, he saw him (accused appellant) cutting the body of the deceased in pieces. Answering this question, the accused appellant has admitted the fact that he did the said act. He has also admitted the fact that as the deceased had refused to allow him to have physical relation with him, he first killed him and then cut his body in pieces. He has further admitted the fact that certain persons, within the vicinity, have informed that he (accused appellant) used to tease the small children. While answering this question, the appellant says 'yes'. He has also admitted the fact that, at the time of incident, he was fully conscious and his mental condition was normal. He, however, has denied the fact of posting of certain officers in police station by saying he is not aware of the same. The questions and answers put to the accused appellant in 313 Cr PC statement reflect that his mental condition was normal and he was not having any mental problem at the time of recording his 313 Cr PC statement. True it is that merely on the basis of 313 Cr PC statement, accused cannot be convicted, but it can be relied upon and referred to by the Court while considering the other facts and circumstances of the case.

19. Close scrutiny of the evidence makes it clear that on 21.2.2017, the accused-appellant took deceased Monish in the house of Mobin and killed him in a brutal manner. While searching deceased-Monish, when Moin and Ovash reached to the house of Mobin, they found accused appellant sitting and cutting the dead body of the deceased in various pieces; he was having a knife with him and his hands and mouth were stained with blood. From the spot, bloodstained knife and blade were seized. The brutality of the offence can be seen by the act of the accused appellant where the beheaded body was found in several pieces. A reference of the same may be made as under:

"All internal organs viz-a-viz Heart, spleen, liver, small and large intestines separated out and kept in cluster. Both kidneys, attached in place.

Internal organs absolutely pale with occasional clots on the body.

Missed organs - Intercostal muscles, fatty tissues. Alimentary canal with Rectum & Anal canal, Larynx, Hyoid bone, Trachea- Oesophagus also not traceable."

Even when the police reached to the place of occurrence, they found the accused appellant sitting with the pieces of body. (PW-3) Laik Ahmad, a witness of last seen, has also supported the prosecution case and has stated that when Moin was searching the deceased, he informed him that he saw the accused-appellant, carrying the deceased in his arms to the house of Mobin.

20. Considering the statements of (PW-1) Moin, (PW-2) Uvash and (PW-3) Laik Ahmad and the police officials, there is no hesitation for this Court to hold that it is the accused appellant who committed the murder of the deceased in a brutal manner. Even in his 313 Cr PC statement, the accused appellant has admitted his guilt and has stated that it is he who killed the deceased. True it is that merely on the basis of admission made by an accused in his 313 Cr PC statement, he cannot be convicted, but the law in this respect is well settled that if other piece of evidence reflects the involvement of the accused in commission of the offence, his 313 Cr PC statement can be treated as an additional evidence against him. The evidence also reflects that the accused appellant was habitual of teasing/harassing young children.

21. Considering all these aspects of the case, it appears that the accused appellant lifted deceased Monish in his arms to the house of Mobin and made an attempt to have unnatural sex with him. When the deceased refused to succumb to the pressure of the accused appellant, he was brutally killed by him. Taking all these aspects of the matter, in our considered opinion, the trial Court was fully justified in convicting the accused appellant under Sections 302, 377/511 of IPC and Section 3/4 of POCSO Act.

22. Upholding the conviction of the accused appellant, we proceed to consider the question of 'death sentence' awarded to him by the Court below under Section 302 of IPC.

23. Capital punishment has been the subject-matter of great social and judicial discussion and catechism. From whatever point of view it is examined, one indisputable statement of law follows that it is neither possible nor prudent to state any universal form which would be applicable to all the cases of criminology where capital punishment has been prescribed. Thus, it is imperative for the court to examine each case on its own facts, in the light of enunciated principles and before opting for the death penalty, the circumstances of the offender are also required to be taken into consideration along with the circumstances of crime for the reason that life imprisonment is the rule and death sentence is an exception.

24. Before going into the legality and propriety of question of sentence imposed upon the appellant, it is profitable to have a look at the various decisions of the Apex Court in the matter. The decision in Bachan Singh v. State of Punjab reported in AIR 1980 SC 898 pronounced by the Constitutional Bench of the Hon'ble Apex Court stands first among the class making a detailed discussion after the amendment of Cr.P.C. in 1974. In this case, the Apex Court has held that provision of death penalty was an alternative punishment for murder and is not violative of Article 19 of the Constitution of India. Relevant paragraphs of the said judgment are relevant and the same are reproduced herein below:-

"132. To sum up, the question whether or not death penalty serves any penological purpose is a difficult, complex and intractable issue. It has evoked strong, divergent views. For the purpose of testing the constitutionality of the impugned provision as to death penalty in Section 302 of the Penal Code on the ground of reasonableness in the light of Articles 19 and 21 of the Constitution, it is not necessary for us to express any categorical opinion, one way or the other, as to which of these two antithetical views, held by the Abolitionists and Retentionists, is correct. It is sufficient to say that the very fact that persons of reason, learning and light are rationally and deeply divided in their opinion on this issue, is a ground among others, for rejecting the petitioners argument that retention of death penalty in the impugned provision, is totally devoid of reason and purpose. If, notwithstanding the view of the Abolitionists to the contrary, a very large segment of people, the world over, including sociologists, legislators, jurists, judges and administrators still firmly believe in the worth and necessity of capital punishment for the protection of society, if in the perspective of prevailing crime conditions in India, contemporary public opinion channelized through the people's representatives in Parliament, has repeatedly in the last three decades, rejected all attempts, including the one made recently, to abolish or specifically restrict the area of death penalty, if death penalty is still a recognised legal sanction for murder or some types of murder in most of the civilised countries in the world, if the framers of the Indian Constitution were fully aware -- as we shall presently show they were -- of the existence of death penalty as punishment for murder, under the Indian Penal Code, if the 35th Report and subsequent reports of the Law Commission suggesting retention of death penalty, and recommending revision of the Criminal Procedure Code and the insertion of the new Sections 235 (2) and 354 (3) in that Code providing for presentence hearing and sentencing procedure on conviction for murder and other capital offences were before the Parliament and presumably considered by it when in 1972-1973 it took up revision of the Code of 1898 and replaced it by the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, it is not possible to hold that the provision of death penalty as an alternative punishment for murder, in Section 302 of the Penal Code is unreasonable and not in the public interest. We would, therefore, conclude that the impugned provision in Section 302, violates neither the letter nor the ethos of Article 19.

200. Drawing upon the penal statutes of the States in U.S.A. framed after Furman v, Georgia, in general, and Clauses 2(a), (b), (c), and (d) of the Indian Penal Code (Amendment) Bill passed in 1978 by the Rajya Sabha, in particular, Dr. Chitale has suggested these "aggravating circumstances":

Aggravating circumstances : A Court may, however, in the following cases impose the penalty of death in its discretion:

(a) if the murder has been committed after previous planning and involves extreme brutality; or

(b) if the murder involves exceptional depravity; or

(c) if the murder is of a member of any of the armed forces of the Union or of a member of any police force or of any public servant and was committed-

(i) while such member or public servant was on duty; or

(ii) in consequence of anything done or attempted to be done by suc

member or public servant in the lawful discharge of his duty as such member or public servant whether at the time of murder he was such member or public servant, as the case may be, or had ceased to be such member or public servant; or

(d) if the murder is of a person who had acted in the lawful discharge of his duty under Section 43 of the CrPC, 1973, or who had rendered assistance to a Magistrate or a police officer demanding his aid or requiring his assistance under Section 37 and Section 129 of the said Code.

201. Stated broadly, there can be no objection to the acceptance of these indicators but as we have indicated already, we would prefer not to fetter judicial discretion by attempting to make an exhaustive enumeration one way or the other.

204. Dr. Chitaley has suggested these mitigating factors:

"Mitigating circumstances":- In the exercise of its discretion in the above cases, the Court shall take into account the following circumstances:

(1) That the offence was committed under the influence of extreme mental or emotional disturbance.

(2) The age of the accused. It the accused is young or old, he shall not be sentenced to death.

(3) The probability that the accused would not commit criminal acts of violence as would constitute a continuing threat to society. (4) The probability that the accused can be reformed and rehabilitated. The State shall by evidence prove that the accused does not satisfy the conditions 3 and 4 above.

(4) The probability that the accused can be reformed and rehabilitated. The State shall by evidence prove that the accused does not satisfy the conditions 3 and 4 above.

(5) That in the facts and circumstances of the case the accused believed that he was morally justified in committing the offence.

(6) That the accused acted under the duress or domination of another person.

(7) That the condition of the accused showed that he was mentally defective and that the said defect unpaired his capacity to appreciate the criminality of his conduct.

207. We will do no more than to say that these are undoubtedly relevant circumstances and must be given great weight in the determination of sentence.

209. There are numerous other circumstances justifying the passing of the lighter sentence; as there are countervailing circumstances of aggravation. "We cannot obviously feed into a a judicial computer all such situations since they are astrological imponderables in an imperfect and undulating society." Nonetheless, it cannot be over-emphasised that the scope and concept of mitigating factors in the area of death penalty must receive a liberal and expansive construction by the courts in accord with the sentencing policy writ large in Section 354 (3). Judges should never be bloodthirsty. Hanging of murderers has never been too good for them. Facts and figures albeit incomplete, furnished by the Union of India, show that in the past Courts have inflicted the extreme penalty with extreme infrequency - a fact which attests to the caution and compassion which they have always brought to bear on the exercise of their sentencing discretion in so grave a matter. It is, therefore, imperative to voice the concern that courts, aided by the broad illustrative guidelines indicated by us, will discharge the onerous function with evermore scrupulous care and humane concern, directed along the high-road of legislative policy outlined in Section 354 (3), viz., that for persons convicted of murder, life imprisonment is the rule and death sentence an exception. A real and abiding concern for the dignity of human life postulates resistance to taking a life through law's instrumentality. That ought not to be done save in the rarest of rare cases when the alternative option is unquestionably foreclosed."

25. In Machhi Singh v. State of Punjab reported in (1983) 3 SCC 470, a three- Judges Bench of the Supreme Court has made an attempt to cull out certain aggravating and mitigating circumstances and it has been held that it was only in rarest of rare cases, when the collective conscience of the community is so shocked that it will expect the holders of the judicial power centre to inflict death penalty irrespective of their personal opinion as regards desirability or otherwise of retaining death penalty. In this judgment the Supreme Court has summarized the instances on which death sentence may be imposed, which reads thus:-

"38. xxxxxxxxxxx

(i) The extreme penalty of death need not be inflicted except in gravest cases of extreme culpability;

(ii) Before opting for the death penalty the circumstances of the 'offender' also require to be taken into consideration along with the circumstances of the 'crime'.

(iii) Life Imprisonment is the rule and death sentence is an exception. In other words death sentence must be imposed only when life imprisonment appears to be an altogether inadequate punishment having regard to the relevant circumstances of the crime, and provided, and only provided, the option to impose sentence of imprisonment for life cannot be conscientiously exercised having regard to the nature and circumstances of the crime and all the relevant circumstances;

(iv) A balance-sheet of aggravating and mitigating circumstances has to be drawn up and in doing so the mitigating circumstances has to be accorded full weightage and a just balance has to be struck between the aggravating and the mitigating circumstances before the option is exercised."

39. In order to apply these guidelines inter alia the following questions may be asked and answered:

(a) Is there something uncommon about the crime which renders sentence of imprisonment for life inadequate and calls for a death sentence?

(b) Are the circumstances of the crime such that there is no alternative but to impose death sentence even after according maximum weightage to the mitigating circumstances which speak in favour of the offender?

40. If upon taking an overall global view of all the circumstances in the light of the aforesaid proposition and taking into account the answers to the questions posed herein above, the circumstances of the case are such that death sentence is warranted, the court would proceed to do so."

26. The issue again came up before Hon'ble Apex Court in Ramnaresh & others v. State of Chhattisgarh reported in (2012) 4 SCC 257, wherein the Supreme Court reiterated 13 aggravating and 7 mitigating circumstances as laid down in the case of Bachan Singh (supra) required to be taken into consideration while applying the doctrine of "rarest of rare" case. Relevant Para of the same reads thus:-

"76. The law enunciated by this Court in its recent judgements, as already noticed, adds and elaborates the principles that were stated in the case of Bachan Singh (supra) and thereafter, in the case of Machhi Singh (supra). The aforesaid judgments, primarily dissect these principles into two different compartments - one being the "aggravating circumstances" while the other being the "mitigating circumstances". The Court would consider the cumulative effect of both these aspects and normally, it may not be very appropriate for the Court to decide the most significant aspect of sentencing policy with reference to one of the classes under any of the following heads while completely ignoring other classes under other heads. To balance the two is the primary duty of the Court. It will be appropriate for the Court to come to a final conclusion upon balancing the exercise that would help to administer the criminal justice system better and provide an effective and meaningful reasoning by the Court as contemplated under Section 354 (3) of Cr.P.C.

Aggravating Circumstances:

(1) The offences relating to the commission of heinous crimes like murder, rape, armed dacoity, kidnapping etc. by the accused with a prior record of conviction for capital felony or offences committed by the person having a substantial history of serious assaults and criminal convictions.

(2) The offence was committed while the offender was engaged in the commission of another serious offence.

(3) The offence was committed with the intention to create a fear psychosis in the public at large and was committed in a public place by a weapon or device which clearly could be hazardous to the life of more than one person.

(4) The offence of murder was committed fr ransom or like offences to receive money or monetary benefits.

(5) Hired killings.

(6) The offence was committed outrageously for want only while involving inhumane treatment and torture to the victim.

(7) The offence was committed by a person while in lawful custody.

(8) The murder or the offence was committed to prevent a person lawfully carrying out his duty like arrest or custody in a place of lawful confinement of himself or another. For instance, murder is of a person who had acted in lawful discharge of his duty under Section 43 Cr.P.C.

(9) When the crime is enormous in proportion like making an attempt of murder of the entire family or members of a particular community.

(10) When the victim is innocent, helpless or a person relies upon the trust of relationship and social norms, like a child, helpless woman, a daughter or a niece staying with a father/uncle and is inflicted with the crime by such a trusted person.

(11) When murder is committed for a motive which evidences total depravity and meanness.

(12) When there is a cold blooded murder without provocation.

(13) The crime is committed so brutally that it pricks or shocks not only the judicial conscience but even the conscience of the society.

Mitigating Circumstances:

(1) The manner and circumstances in and under which the offence was committed, for example, extreme mental or emotional disturbance or extreme provocation in contradistinction to all these situations in normal course.

(2) The age of the accused is a relevant consideration but not a determinative factor by itself.

(3) The chances of the accused of not indulging in commission of the crime again and the probability of the accused being reformed and rehabilitated.

(4) The condition of the accused shows that he was mentally defective and the defect impaired his capacity to appreciate the circumstances of his criminal conduct.

(5) The circumstances which, in normal course of life, would render such a behavior possible and could have the effect of giving rise to mental imbalance in that given situation like persistent harassment or, in fact, leading to such a peak of human behavior that, in the facts and circumstances of the case, the accused believed that he was morally justified in committing the offence.

(6) Where the Court upon proper appreciation of evidence is of the view that the crime was not committed in a pre-ordained manner and that the death resulted in the course of commission of another crime and that there was a possibility of it being construed as consequences to the commission of the primary crime.

(7) Where it is absolutely unsafe to rely upon the testimony of a sole eye-witness though prosecution has brought home the guilt of the accused."

27. In Sk Abdul Hamid vs. State of MP reported in (1998) 3 SCC 188, while dealing with the question of sentence for the offence of murder, has observed thus;-

9. Now, coming to the death sentence awarded to the appellants which was confirmed by the High Court, it may be noted that under sub-section (3) of Section 354 CrPC when the conviction is for an offence punishable with death or in the alternative, with an imprisonment for life, the Court is required to state reasons for sentence awarded, and in case of sentence of death, the special reasons for such sentence are to be given. Thus, under the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, life imprisonment for the offence of murder is the rule and death sentence is an exception to be resorted to for special reasons to be recorded by the Court. This Court in a number of decisions has laid down guidelines when the extreme penalty of death sentence is to be awarded. (See: Bachan Singh v. State of Punjab and Machhi Singh v. State of Punjab.) In these cases, it was pointed out that death penalty could be awarded in the rarest of rare cases and the circumstance, when the murder is committed in an extremely brutal, grotesque, diabolical, revolting or dastardly manner, so as to arouse intense and extreme indignation of the community would fall within the category of the rarest of rare cases.

10. Special reasons given by the trial court in awarding death sentence to the appellants and confirmed by the High Court, were that it was such a cruel act where the appellants have not even spared the innocent child and the motive being to grab the property. We have given our earnest consideration to the question of sentence and the reasons given by the High Court for awarding death sentence to the appellants. Having regard to the guidelines stated above, it may be noticed that in the present case it was not pointed out by the prosecution that it was a cold-blooded murder. There is nothing on record to show how the murder has taken place. In the absence of such evidence, we do not find that the case before us falls within the category of the rarest of rare cases, deserving extreme penalty of death.

Keeping in view the afore-stated facts, we are of the view that the ends of justice would be met if we substitute the death sentence with that of life imprisonment under Sections 302/34 IPC, while upholding the appellants' conviction, as recorded by the High Court."

28. In the matter of Dharam Deo Yadav vs. State of UP reported in (2014) 5 SCC 509, the Supreme Court has held thus:-

"36. We may now consider whether the case falls under the category of rarest of the rare case so as to award death sentence for which, as already held, in Shankar Kisanrao Khade v. State of Maharashtra (2013) 5 SCC 546 this Court laid down three tests, namely, Crime Test, Criminal Test and RR Test. So far as the present case is concerned, both the Crime Test and Criminal Test have been satisfied as against the accused. Learned counsel appearing for the accused, however, submitted that he had no previous criminal records and that apart from the circumstantial evidence, there is no eye-witness in the above case, and hence, the manner in which the crime was committed is not in evidence. Consequently, it was pointed out that it would not be possible for this Court to come to the conclusion that the crime was committed in a barbaric manner and, hence the instant case would not fall under the category of rarest of rare. We find some force in that contention. Taking in consideration all aspects of the matter, we are of the view that, due to lack of any evidence with regard to the manner in which the crime was committed, the case will not fall under the category of rarest of rare case. Consequently, we are inclined to commute the death sentence to life and award 20 years of rigorous imprisonment, over and above the period already undergone by the accused, without any remission, which, in our view, would meet the ends of justice."

29. In Kalu Khan v. State of Rajasthan reported in (2015) 16 SCC 492, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that:-

"30. In Mahesh Dhanaji Shinde v. State of Maharashtra, the conviction of the appellant-accused was upheld keeping in view that the circumstantial evidence pointed only in the direction of their guilt given that the modus operandi of the crime, homicidal death, identity of 9 of 10 victims, last seen theory and other incriminating circumstances were proved. However, the Court has thought it fit to commute the sentence of death to imprisonment for life considering the age, socio-economic conditions, custodial behaviour of the appellant-accused persons and that the case was entirely based on circumstantial evidence. This Court has placed reliance on the observations in Sunil Dutt Sharma v. State (Govt. of NCT of Delhi) as follows: (Mahesh Dhanaji case, SCC p. 314, para 35)

"35. In a recent pronouncement in Sunil Dutt Sharma v. State (Govt. of NCT of Delhi), it has been observed by this Court that the principles of sentencing in our country are fairly well settled -- the difficulty is not in identifying such principles but lies in the application thereof. Such application, we may respectfully add, is a matter of judicial expertise and experience where judicial wisdom must search for an answer to the vexed question -- Whether the option of life sentence is unquestionably foreclosed? The unbiased and trained judicial mind free from all prejudices and notions is the only asset which would guide the Judge to reach the "truth'."

31. In the instant case, admittedly the entire web of evidence is circumstantial. The appellant-accused's culpability rests on various independent evidence, such as, him being "last seen" with the deceased before she went missing; the extra-judicial confession of his co-accused before PW 1 and the village members; corroborative testimonies of the said village members to the extra-judicial confession and recovery of the deceased's body; coupled with the medical evidence which when joined together paint him in the blood of the deceased. While the said evidence proves the guilt of the appellant-accused and makes this a fit case for conviction, it does not sufficiently convince the judicial mind to entirely foreclose the option of a sentence lesser than the death penalty. Even though there are no missing links in the chain, the evidence also does not sufficiently provide any direct indicia whereby irrefutable conclusions can be drawn with regard to the nexus between "the crime" and "the criminal". Undoubtedly, the aggravating circumstances reflected through the nature of the crime and young age of the victim make the crime socially abhorrent and demand harsh punishment. However, there exist the circumstances such as there being no criminal antecedents of the appellant-accused and the entire case having been rested on circumstantial evidence including the extra-judicial confession of a co-accused. These factors impregnate the balance of circumstances and introduce uncertainty in the "culpability calculus" and thus, persuade us that death penalty is not an inescapable conclusion in the instant case. We are inclined to conclude that in the present scenario an alternate to the death penalty, that is, imprisonment for life would be appropriate punishment in the present circumstances."

30. In Allauddin Mian v. State of Bihar reported in (1989) 3 SCC 5, it was laid down that unless the nature of crime and the circumstances of the offender reveal that the criminal was a menace to the society and the sentence of life imprisonment would be altogether inadequate, the court should ordinarily impose a lesser punishment and not the extreme punishment of death which should be reserved for exceptional cases only.

31. In A. Devendran v. State of Tamil Nadu reported in (1997) 11 SCC 720, which is a case of triple murder, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that the trial court was not justified in awarding death sentence as the accused had no pre-meditated plan to kill any person and as the main object was to commit robbery.

32. In Om Prakash v. State of Haryana reported in (1999) 3 SCC 19, a dispute over a small house between two neighbours resulted in the murder of seven persons. Death sentence was imposed on the accused by the trial court which was confirmed by the appellate court. The Hon'ble Supreme Court observed that the bitterness increased to a boiling point and the agony suffered by the appellant and his family members at the hands of the other party, and for not getting protection from the police officers concerned or total inaction despite repeated written prayers, goaded or compelled the accused to take law in his own hands which culminated in the gruesome murders. The accused was a BSF Jawan aged 23 at the time of incident. The Hon'ble Supreme Court commuted the death penalty to imprisonment for life.

33. In the case of Accused 'X' v. State of Maharashtra, reported in (2019) 7 SCC 1, the Supreme Court, while considering the post-conviction mental illness of accused/death row convict as mitigating factor, has observed as under:

55. Having observed some of the general aspects of sentencing, it is necessary to consider the aspect of post-conviction mental illness as mitigating factor in the analysis of "rarest of the rare' doctrine which has come into force post Bachan Singh case (supra).

56. As a starting point, we need to refer to Piare Dusadh v. King Emperor, AIR 1944 FC 1, that has already recognized pos-conviction mental illness as a mitigating factor in the following manner: (SCC OnLine FC)

"Case No. 47-The applicant in this case was convicted by a Special Judge of the offence of murder and was sentenced to death on 30.9.1942. His appeal to the Allahabad High Court was dismissed and the sentence of death was confirmed.

The appellant is a young man of 25 who has been twice widowed. His victim was his aunt, 30 years of age, whose husband (Kanchan) had about six years previously murdered his own brother, appellant's father. Kanchan was sentenced to death for the murder, but lost his reason while awaiting the execution of the death sentence, and is now detained as a lunatic.

The evidence in this case leaves no room for doubt that the appellant was rightly convicted of murder. There is some confusion as to the exact motive for the undoubtedly brutal assault of which the appellant made his aunt the victim. The prosecution alleged that the appellant being a widower was chagrined by the refusal of his aunt to become his mistress. In his statement before, the Special Judge he said that another uncle (P.W. 7) who according to the appellant was behind the prosecution was on terms of improper intimacy with the deceased and resented even small acts of kindness on the part of the deceased towards the appellant. In the appeal preferred by him through the jail authorities to the High Court, the appellant stated that his aunt was a woman of loose character and was pursuing him with unwelcome attentions. The previous history of this family indicates that the appellant probably suffers from an unbalanced mind. The nature and ferocity of the assault upon his aunt appear to confirm this. In committing the offence the appellant must have been actuated by jealousy or by indignation either of which would tend further to disturb the balance of his mind. He has besides been awaiting the execution of his death sentence for over a year. We think that in this case a sentence of transportation for life would be more appropriate than the sentence of death. We accordingly reduce the sentence of death to one of transportation for life and subject to this modification dismiss the appeal."

However, this case does not provide any guidelines or the threshold for evaluating what kind of mental illness needs to be taken into consideration by the Courts.

57. We note that, usually, mitigating factors are associated with the criminal and aggravating factors are relatable to commission of the crime. These mitigating factors include considerations such as the accused's age, socio-economic condition etc. We note that the ground claimed by "accused x' is arising after a long time-gap after crime and conviction. Therefore, the justification to include the same as a mitigating factor does not tie in with the equities of the case, rather the normative justification is founded in the Constitution as well as the jurisprudence of the "rarest of the rare' doctrine. It is now settled that the death penalty can only be imposed in the rarest of the rare case which requires a consideration of the totality of circumstances. In this light, we have to assess the inclusion of post-conviction mental illness as a determining factor to disqualify as a "rarest of the rare' case.

59. All human beings possess the capacities inherent in their nature even though, because of infancy, disability, or senility, they may not yet, not now, or no longer have the ability to exercise them. When such disability occurs, a person may not be in a position to understand the implications of his actions and the consequence it entails. In this situation, the execution of such a person would lower the majesty of law.

71.1 That the post-conviction severe mental illness will be a mitigating factor that the appellate court, in appropriate cases, needs to consider while sentencing an accused to death penalty."

34. In the light of above proposition of law, we are required to scrutinize the case in hand minutely to find out whether the case falls under the category of "rarest of the rare case", whether imposition of death penalty, which is an exception, would be the only appropriate & meaningful sentence and whether imprisonment for life which is the rule would not be adequate and would not meet the ends of justice.

35. While awarding the death sentence to the appellant, the Court below has drawn a conclusion that the act of the appellant was brutal and the same comes in the category of 'rarest of rare case'. The Court below has observed as follows:

"प्रस्तुत प्रकरण में भी जिस तरीके से अमानवीय कृत्य द्वारा अपराध कारित किया गया है एवं पीड़ित के छोटे–छोटे टुकड़े करके उसकी हत्या की गयी है तथा उसकी खाल ब्लेड से छीलकर निकाली गयी है तथा उसके आंतरिक अंगों को भी काटकर बाहर किया गया है तथा उसका सर धड़ से अलग किया गया है। उक्त समस्त तथ्य अभियुक्त द्वारा कारित अपराध की अतुलनीय भयानकता व बर्बरता को दर्शित करता है तथा यह तथ्य भी उल्लेखनीय है कि मृतक/पीड़ित की आयु मात्र 6 वर्ष थी एवं अभियुक्त उसे बहुत आराम से अधिशासित किये जाने की स्थिति में था एवं पीड़ित द्वारा अभियुक्त को किसी प्रकार से कोई प्रकोपन नहीं दिया गया था। उल्लेखनीय है कि माननीय उच्चतम न्यायालय द्वारा उपरोक्त निर्णय के अंत में उपरोक्तानुसार दो प्रश्न विरचित किये गये हैं, जिसके संबंध में यह कहना समुचित होगा कि दोष सिद्व द्वारा कारित अपराध असामान्य था एवं उपरोक्त अपराध के परिप्रेक्ष्य में अभियुक्त को आजीवन कारावास के दण्ड से दण्डित किया जाना अपर्याप्त होगा एवं समुचित नहीं होगा।

परित्राणाय साधूनां विनाशय च दुष्कृताम् ।

धर्मसंस्थापनार्थाय सम्भवामि युगे युगे।।

श्रीमद् भगवत गीता के उक्त श्लोक को दृष्टिगत रखते हुए आज के परिप्रेक्ष्य में यह कहना समुचित होगा कि धर्म की स्थापना का अर्थ विधि के शासन की स्थापना है। अतः प्रकरण के उपरोक्त समस्त तथ्यों को दृष्टिगत रखते हुये यह न्यायालय इस निष्कर्ष पर पहुंचती हैं कि दोष सिद्व नजीम मियां को उसके द्वारा कारित अपराध rarest of rare case की श्रेणी में आता है एवं उसके लिए दोष सिद्व को मृत्यु दण्ड से ही दण्डित किया जाना सर्वथा उचित होगा। प्रस्तुत प्रकरण के उपरोक्त समस्त तथ्यों एवं परिस्थितियों एवं कारित अपराध की भयानकता, नृशंसता को दृष्टिगत रखते हुये दोष सिद्व नजीम मियां को उसके विरूद्व आरोपित अपराधों के लिए निम्न प्रकार से दण्डित किया जाना समुचित होगा –

1– दोष सिद्व नजीम मियां को धारा 302 भारतीय दण्ड संहिता के अंतर्गत दण्डनीय अपराध के लिए मृत्यु दण्ड एवं 25,000/–रू0 (पच्चीस हजार रूपये) के अर्थदण्ड।"

36. From a perusal of the above, it is clear that the special reasons assigned by the trial Court for awarding extreme penalty of death are that the murder was horrifying as the accused-appellant was in a dominant position; victim was helpless being a child aged about 6 years and the murder was pre-meditated and pre-planned one and committed in a cruel, grotesque and diabolical manner. The accused is a menace to the Society and, therefore, imposition of lesser sentence than that of death sentence, would not be adequate and appropriate. In these circumstances, the Court below has held that the balance-sheet of the aggravating and mitigating circumstances was heavily weighed against the appellant making it the rarest of rare cases and consequently awarded the death sentence.

37. But, having gone through the facts and circumstances of this case, we find that there was no evidence on record to establish that the accused appellant committed pre-planned and pre-meditated murder of a minor child. At least, no such evidence has been led by the prosecution to establish this fact. True it is that the appellant cut the body of the deceased in pieces and when he was doing so, even the witnesses also reached there, but that itself is not sufficient to hold that it is a pre-meditated or pre-planned murder.

38. True that the manner in which crime is committed by knife blows is brutal, cruel and gruesome, but there is absolutely no evidence to suggest as to what could be the reason for the appellant to commit the said offence. This could be on account of frustration, mental stress or because of emotional disorder which would be the mitigating circumstances to be taken note of.

39. It is relevant to mention here that in compliance of the orders of this Court dated 6.2.2019 and 27.3.2019, the Director General (Medical & Health) Uttar Pradesh, Lucknow, filed an affidavit of compliance on 4.4.2019 along with a report of Medical Board, comprising five members, dated 5.3.2019, which indicates the mental health of the appellant. Relevant part of said report is as under:

ष.....सिद्वदोष बन्दी नजीम मियॉ का गठित बोर्ड के अध्यक्ष/सदस्यों के द्वारा बन्दी नजीम मियॉ का मानसिक परीक्षण किया गया। परीक्षणोपरान्त बन्दी नजीम मियॉ को Unspecified Non-Organic Psychosis (F 29.0) रोग से ग्रसित पाया गया है।ष

On 5.1.2020, learned State Counsel has submitted another medical report of the appellant, enclosing several letters which also indicate the mental condition of the appellant. Relevant parts of some letters read as under:

(i) Letter dated 5.12.2018:

".....इस चिकित्सालय के विजिटर्स बोर्ड की बैठक जो माननीय जनपद न्यायाधीश, वाराणसी की अध्यक्षता में दिनांक 24.11.2018 को सम्पन्न हुई, बन्दी नजीम मियॉ को मानसिक रूप से अस्वस्थ्य घोषित कर दिया गया है और मनोरोग विशेषज्ञ की सलाह के अनुसार उपचार चलाते रहने की सलाह दी गयी है। जिसका उपचार मनोरोग विशेषज्ञ की सलाह के अनुसार चल रहा है। ष

(iii) Letter dated 23.4.2019:

".....With Due regards the patient Mr Najeem Miyan S/o Tasabbar Ali was admitted in Mental Hospital, Varanasi Dated-22-10-2018 was diagnosed as a case of "Unspecified Non-Organic Psychosis" (F-29.0) by medical board conclusion dated 05.03.2019 and who was declared unfit by Visitor's Board meeting on dated 06-04-2019, after since the patient was on continuous medication and has shown significant improvement on his mental status examination.

In Context of Point No.3 it could not be commented regarding the aforesaid illness since Adequate history/prescriptions were not available.

On current examination patient is conscious, oriented, responding to external stimulus promptly, mood-euthymic, maintaining personal hygiene and obeying commands.

Judgment intact.

Patient is advised for medication and to be retained in Mental Hospital Varanasi till next Visitor's Board meeting, or till any order from next higher authority."

(iv) Conduct report and behavioral report dated 28.4.2019:

"सिद्वदोष बंदी नजीम मियॉ दिनांक 21.02.2017 को जिला कारागार पीलीभीत दाखिल हुआ। जेल प्रवेश के समय बंदी की मानसिक अवस्था गुमसुम सी प्रतीत हो रही थी। वह किसी भी प्रकार की उत्तेजना से प्रभावित नही था। सिद्वदोष बंदी सामान्य बंदियों की तरह ही बैरक मे रह रहा था व अन्य बंदियो के साथ सामान्य व्यवहार था। दिनांक 04.09.17 को बंदी के असामान्य व्यवहार प्रतीत होने की वजह से जिला अस्पताल पीलीभीत भेजा गया, जहॉ से बंदी को फिजीशियन द्वारा मानसिक रूप से पीड़ित बताया गया व दवा प्रदान की गयी इसके बाद बंदी को दिनांक–19.09.2017 को मानसिक चिकित्सालय बरेली रेफर किया गया, जहॉ पर मानसिक रोग विशेषज्ञ द्वारा बंदी का उपचार चल रहा था। बंदी को पूर्ण रूप से स्वास्थ्य मे सुधार न होने के कारण मानसिक रोग विशेषज्ञ बरेली द्वारा दिनांक–29.08.2018 को मानसिक चिकित्सालय वाराणसी रेफर किया गया, जिस कारण बंदी को दिनांक–22.10.2018 से मानसिक चिकित्सालय वाराणसी मे भेजा गया, तद्दिनांक से अब तक उसका ईलाज चल रहा है।"

(v) Letter dated 17.9.2019:

".....इस चिकित्सालय के विजिटर्स बोर्ड की बैठक जो माननीय जनपद न्यायाधीश, वाराणसी की अध्यक्षता में दिनांक 13.09.2019 को सम्पन्न हुई, बन्दी नजीम मियॉ को मानसिक रूप से स्वस्थ्य घोषित कर दिया गया है और कारागार वापस स्थानान्तरित करने की संस्तुति की गई है।"

(vi) Letter dated 12.12.2019:

".....उपचार के उपरान्त उक्त विशेषज्ञ द्वारा दिनांक 26.10.19 बंदी को मानसिक रूप से स्वस्थ घोषित व आवश्यक दवाईयॉ प्रदत्त करते हुए जिला कारागार पीलीभीत हेतु वापस किया गया। ... ...

वर्तमान मे बंदी नजीम मियॉ पुत्र तसब्बर अली सामान्य बंदियो के साथ बैरक मे रह रहा है तथा बंदी का स्वास्थ्य सामान्य है।"

40. After considering the above facts and circumstances of the case and the fact that the appellant is suffering from 'Unspecified Non-Organic Psychosis' (F 29.0) [a mental ailment] and further relying upon the case of 'Accused 'X' (supra), we are of the view that the instant case does not fall in the category of 'rarest of rare case', warranting capital punishment, particularly looking to the fact that the appellant is suffering from a mental illness. Hence, the death sentence awarded to the appellant under Section 302 of IPC is liable to be converted into life imprisonment till the end of his life without remission.

41. Resultantly, while affirming the conviction of the appellant under Section 302 of IPC, we set aside the 'sentence of death' awarded to the appellant by the Court below and direct that, for the murder committed by the appellant, he shall serve imprisonment till the end of his life without remission. Subject to this alteration in the sentence, capital case is dismissed.

Appeal dismissed (E-5)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Arvind Kumar Mishra-I, J. &
Hon'ble Gautam Chowdhary, J.)

(1) Heard Sri Vimal Kumar, learned amicus curiae for appellant, Sri Krishna Pahal, learned A.A.G. assisted by Sri Om Narin Tripathi, learned A.G.A. Ist, Sri Jitendra Kumar, Sri Sanjay Kumar Rajbhar Sri Nafesh Ahmad, Sri Bhanu Prakash Singh and Sri Ajay Kumar Singh, learned A.G.As/brief holder of the State and perused the record of this appeal.

(2) By way of instant criminal appeal, challenge has been made to the validity and sustainability of the judgment and order of conviction dated 14.02.1991 passed by II Additional Sessions Judge, Shahjahanpur, in Sessions Trial No.413 of 1989 (State Vs. Ata Ullah @ Antu Shah and another), arising out of case crime no.183/1989, under Sections 302 read with Section 34 IPC, Police Station- Tilhar, District- Shahjahanpur, whereby appellant has been sentenced to imprisonment for life.

(3) Brief story as reflected from the FIR appears to be that an FIR was lodged by the informant- Munisha Begum- P.W.1- on 28.05.1989 at 5.00 P.M. in Police Station- Tilhar, District- Shahjahanpur at Case Crime No.183, under Sections 302 IPC against three persons including the present appellant- Ataullah @ Antu Shah- to the effect that one and half months ago some incident of dacoity took place in the house of the appellant, wherein, son of the appellant- Shafi Ullah @ Lalua was murdered. In that incident, Ataullah @ Antu Shah had named husband of the informant- Shahbuddin- and the cousin brother of the informant- Chaman Shah on account of enmity. Chaman Shah had surrendered and obtained bail from the court concerned, and the police and the family members of appellant were searching Shahbuddin (husband of the informant), as the appellant along with his father-in-law Nanhey Shah were intending to kill the husband of the informant prior to the completion of 'chaliswa' ceremony after the death of the son of the appellant. The F.I.R. adds that on the fateful day of occurrence i.e. on 28th May, 1989 at about 4 P.M. the informant was going to take medicine for her son along with deceased- Shahabuddin and jeth (brother-in-law)- Babu Shah, while on way they reached near Tonga Stand in Maujampur Market Tilhar, then the elder brother of the informant- Banney Mian also met them but the informant- Munisha Begum- P.W.1 began to converse with her brother. In the meanwhile, Ataullah @ Antu Shah and the two others- Nanhey Shah and his elder brother Sabir Shah- appeared on the scene and caught hold of informant's husband and at the exhortation of the appellant, Nanhey Shah and Sabir Shah took out their knives and began to assault Shahabuddin (informant's husband) with the same. The informant husband somehow retrieved himself and tried to scamper away, but he was caught again by the appellants and was given knife blows and in the process Ataullah @ Antu Shah whipped out his countrymade gun and pointed it on the chest of the deceased and fired due to which informant's husband fell down and died. On the alarm of the informant the accused ran away towards Chakki. It was requested that report be lodged against the accused and action be taken. This report is Exhibit Ka-1.

(4) Relevant entries were made in the concerned check F.I.R. at Case Crime

No.183/1989, under Section 302 I.P.C. at Police Station- Tilhar, District- Shahjahanpur, which is on record as Ex. Ka.3.

(5) Pursuant to the entries so made in the check F.I.R., a case was registered against the accused at Rapat No.35 dated 28.05.1989 at 17.00 hours in the concerned General Diary at aforesaid case crime number under aforesaid section of Indian Penal Code, copy whereof is on record as Ex.Ka.12.

(6) The investigation was entrusted to P.W.3 S.I. Sri R.S. Bora. He has proceeded to the spot and prepared the inquest report of deceased. It commenced 6.00 P.M. and concluded at 7.30 P.M. on 28.05.1989, which is on record as Exhibit Ka-4. The relevant papers were also prepared at the same time- say- photo of dead body (photo nash)- Exhibit Ka-5, Challan dead body- Exhibit Ka-6, letter to C.M.O.- Exhibit Ka-7, Specimen seal- Exhibit Ka-8. He has also collected the blood stained soil and simple soil and kept it in different containers and prepared a Fard, copy whereof is on record as Exhibit Ka-10. He has inspected the place of occurrence and prepared the site plan, which is Exhibit Ka-9.

(7) After completing the necessary formalities, the cadaver of deceased was sent for postmortem examination. Postmortem examination on the cadaver of deceased was conducted on 29.05.1989 at 04.40 P.M. by Dr. O.P. Khatri P.W.6, wherein the following ante-mortem injury was noted at the time of examination:

Ante mortem injuries

1. One gunshot wound of entry rounded in shape on the right side of chest in 6 O'clock position. The edges were wragged and there was blackening and scorching around the injury.

2. Incised wound 3 cm x 1 cm x 1 cm on the left side of chest.

3. Incised wound 2.5 cm x 1.5 cm x muscle deep on the right side of stomach, 8 cm away from the injury no.1.

4. Multiple incised wound (6) on the back at left side. Among these wounds many wounds were big upto muscle and some of them were deep upto back boon. The bigger wound is 2.5 cm x 1 cm and smallest wound is 1 cm x 1.5 cm. But all the multiple incised wounds are in the area of 28 cm x 14 cm.

5. Multiple incised wounds (4) on the left forearm each wound is 2.5cm x 1cm x muscle deep and all the incised wounds are in the area of 26 cm x 4 cm.

6. Abrasion 3cm x .1 cm in the root of index finger of right hand.

In the opinion of doctor, cause of death was stated to be shock and the ante-mortem injuries. The postmortem report is Exhibit Ka-13.

(8) Statement of the prosecution witnesses was recorded and after completing the formalities charge- sheet- Exhibit Ka-11- was filed against the accused. Consequently, the trial commenced and trial Judge charged the accused under Section 302/34 IPC for committing murder of deceased on 28.05.1989 around 4.00 P.M. within police station- Tilhar, District- Shahjananpur. The Charge was read over and explained to the accused, who denied the charge and opted for trial.

(9) In turn, prosecution was asked to adduce its testimony in order to prove the guilt. The prosecution produced in all six witnesses out of whom, two are the witness of fact and the rest four are formal witnesses. Brief reference of the prosecution witnesses is ut-infra:-

Munisha Begum P.W.1 is the first informant and he has proved written report Ext. Ka.-1.

Banney Mian is the P.W.2 and he is also a witness of fact and elder brother of the Munisha Begum P.W.1.

Ranjeet Singh Vora P.W.3 is the Investigating Officer of this case.

Bhim Sen Sharma is the P.W.4. Samar Pal Singh is P.W.5. He has proved the FIR which is Exhibit Ka-3 and the copy of the GD as Exhibit Ka-12.

Dr. O.P. Khatri P.W. 6 has conducted post-mortem and has proved post-mortem examination report as Exhibit Ka-13.

(10) Except as above, no other evidence was produced and the statement of the accused was recorded u/s 313 Cr.P.C., wherein, he claimed to have been falsely implicated on account of enmity and witnesses were not present on the spot.

(11) However, no evidence was led by the defence.

(12) Consequently, the case was posted for hearing of arguments. After considering the case on its merits and appraisal of facts and circumstances and evaluation of evidence on record, the learned trial judge returned aforesaid finding of conviction against the accused and sentenced him to imprisonment for life, which paved way to this appeal.

(13) It has been succinctly claimed on behalf of the appellant by Amicus Curiae Sri Vimal Kumar that ocular testimony of the occurrence cannot be accepted to be truthful version on account of certain facts so strewn on point of availability of the informant P.W.1 Munisha Begum on the spot at the time of the occurrence at 4.00 P.M. for the specific reason that it is virtually established that the informant was having strange relationship with her husband- the deceased- at the time of the occurrence and was residing separately at her parental home, therefore, there was no point in accompanying the deceased upto the spot where the incident occurred. It is specific defence of the accused that the informant after the occurrence took place was called on the spot and after that only the report was managed and lodged. There are material contradictions regarding the very origin of the incident to the magnitude that the deceased was accompanying the informant from his house and on reaching upto the spot (place of occurrence) the brother of the informant- Banney Mian P.W.2- also met her and while conversing at Mozampur Bazar in front of some hotel, the incident was caused. Infact nothing of the sort ever occurred and no one saw the occurrence. The deceased was having criminal antecedent and a number of criminal cases were lodged against him and there is every possibility of he being killed by others, who are not in the light for the time being and the accused, who had enmity with the informant under impression of strong suspicion and high motive to falsely implicate the accused, the informant has cooked up a false story in collusion with the police after the incident had occurred. The FIR is ante- timed. The presence of the another eye witness P.W.2- Banney Mian is also not believable and acceptable situation under facts and circumstances of the case for the reason that he (P.W.2) resides at far off place from the place of occurrence and as per his own statement, he used to work at the tailoring shop right from 7.30 A.M. upto 5 P.M. There is no explanation as to how and under what circumstances he reached at the spot and witnessed the incident. In the absence of any such conspicuous testimony as adduced by P.W.2, his presence on the spot cannot be believed to be natural one and fact of his presence on the spot must be discarded as such. It is a case of blind murder. Prosecution story is full of a number of infirmities even the Investigating Officer has not investigated properly. The inquest report does not bear the signature of the informant or his brother P.W.1 Munisha Begum and P.W.2 Banney Mian, respectively, whereas the prosecution case is that they were present on the spot at time of preparation of the inquest report, which is Exhibit Ka.4.

(14) A cumulative reading of the entire merit, vis a vis, the evidence on record would not inspire confidence and the prosecution has not proved to the hilt the case of the accused within the four corners of Section 300/302 IPC and the trial court was ignorant of the vitality of the law to be applied in the case has recorded erroneous finding of conviction.

(15) Leaned A.A.G. has supported the presence of the prosecution witnesses particularly P.W.1 Munisha Begum and P.W.2 Banney Mian on the spot at the time of occurrence and has stated that their testimony does not vacillate on the point of main occurrence as to how it started, how it culminated into death of the deceased- the husband of the informant- Shahabuddin. In so far as the contradictions are concerned, the same appear to be minor and there is nothing material reflected throwing any doubt on the point of occurrence. Occurrence itself is established and it went unchallenged. There is no point in sparing the real culprits and involving false person.

(16) In the wake of rival claim, the moot point that arises for adjudication of this appeal relates to the fact as to whether the prosecution has been able to prove its case beyond all reasonable doubt against the appellant?

(17) While scrutinizing the record and particularly evaluating the testimony of the prosecution witnesses of fact, we are required to evaluate the same vis a vis prevailing facts and the circumstances of this case and need to be addressed at this juncture. In so far as the contention regarding the FIR being ante- timed is concerned, then we have before us the F.I.R., Exhibit Ka-1, and the Check F.I.R.. Exhibit Ka-3 as well, which when read conjointly with the testimony of the concerned Head Moharir P.W.5 Samar Pal Singh indicates that the F.I.R. was lodged at Police Station- Tilhar at 5 P.M.- soon after the occurrence which took place at 4.00 P.M. at locality- Mauzampur Bazar. The distance of the police station from the place of occurrence is stated to be 1 Km. The argument of the appellant is that the informant- Munisha Begum was called from her parental home, thereafter the report was lodged after deliberation with the police.

(18) This argument is bald without any supportive materiel and does not stand test of scattered facts and the prevailing circumstances of this case so as to give credence to the claim so raised by the appellant's counsel that it so occurred and no one saw the occurrence and the informant- Munisha Begum was not present on the spot. There is nothing on record, which may show that the informant was called from her parental home and only then the proceeding of the case took place. On that particular aspect certain variations or vacillations are there creeping in the description of the post- incidental follow up, but that would not throw any doubt on the occurrence as the lodging of the FIR is prompt after the incident at 5 P.M. at Police Station- Tilhar, therefore, mere argument would not work in the absence of any cogent supporting material and circumstance of the case therefore, the argument regarding the FIR being ante-timed false flat.

(19) Now, we come over to the contention regarding presence of the prosecution witnesses on the spot at the time of occurrence. The two ocular versions have comeforth in the shape of the description of the occurrence and both the eye witnesses- P.W.1 and P.W.2, respectively, have supported the prosecution version in the manner and the style, as has been described in the FIR itself that it was around 4 P.M. when Babu Shah, Shahbuddin- informant and Bannay Mian were conversing with each other in the locality Umerpur when the accused in company with other assailants appeared on the spot threatened, exhorted, overpowered the victim and the two other assailants dealt knife blows on him. In the meanwhile, when the deceased retrieved himself from the clutches of the two assailants and tried to escape away from the scene, he was again overpowered and he was fatally dealt with by the assailants jointly and the role of the appellant is stated to be at that point of time he whipped out his gun and caused the fatal shot on the chest of the deceased. This ocular version when tallied with the postmortem examination report, Exhibit Ka-13, gives corroboration to the description of the incident described in the first information report as well as in the examination of the two eye-witnesses. There is no whisper of any attendant circumstance, which may lead us to infer that it never happened in that manner, therefore, the point of non- presence of both the eye-witnesses on the spot, cannot be accepted and in regard thereto the argument on this point of the appellant is of no avail.

(20) In so far as the role of the Investigating Officer P.W.3 Sri R.S. Vora is concerned, then Investigating Officer has also proved facts that he recorded statement of the witnesses and collected the simple and the blood stained clay from the spot and he has proved the same as Exhibit Ka-10. The check FIR has also been proved by P.W.3 and similarly the concerned GD entry of the day when the FIR was lodged and apart from that the relevant documents at the time of the preparation of the inquest have also been duly proved in the shape of photo nash- Exhibit Ka-5, Challan dead body- Exhibit Ka-6, letter to C.M.O.- Exhibit Ka-7, Specimen seal- Exhibit Ka-8, respectively. The site plan was prepared by this witness which he has proved as Exhibit Ka-9. There is nothing of the sort, which may throw any doubt regarding the occurrence and the post- incidental processorial development on the spot. Argument to the ambit that the signature of P.W.1 and P.W.2 in the inquest report are missing, would not itself throw away the prosecution case because the post-incidental development is the mind- set of the informant and the working nature of the police, who is seized of the matter on the spot and it cannot be held with certainty that this being that happens, therefore, argument advanced to that ambit is also not material on record.

(21) In so far as the other aspects of this case are concerned, then certainly we come across minor contradictions appearing in the testimony of P.W.1 Munisha Begum and P.W.2 Banney Mian but that is not substantive in nature, therefore, we unhesitatingly and unequivocally hold that the testimony on record is sufficient for recording conviction of the accused as has been rightly done by the trial court itself. Consequently, charge under Section 320/34 IPC stands proved against the appellant and the incident is consistently established, then the motive in the presence of direct ocular testimony of the two witnesses (P.W.1 and P.W.2) is relegated to the background. The prosecution has proved its case beyond all reasonable doubt.

(22) Accordingly, judgment and order dated 14.02.1991 passed by II Additional Sessions Judge, Shahjahanpur, in Sessions Trial No.413 of 1989 (State Vs. A. Evidence Law-Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 8- Conduct of Prosecution witnesses- The conduct of men on encountering a particular situation is to be evaluated going by the prevalent circumstances in a society and is not at all blameworthy or one that creates any doubt about the First Information Report, carrying a truthful account. Non- examination of independent witness- Is lapse of investigation on the part of the police, but in no way does it detract from the veracity of the First Information Report.

The conduct of a person encountering a situation differs from person to person and the same cannot be a ground to question the veracity of the narrative in the F.I.R.

B. Evidence law-Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 3, Section 27-Allegedly recovered proceeds of the dacoity - Not recovered in the presence of the prosecution witnesses, who have signed the recovery memo - Also not signed by any member of the public who are said to be present in large numbers - Not made after a disclosure statement or at least a prior mention of it, followed by its recovery at the pointing of the appellants. Recovered articles are chance discoveries while the appellants were searched and held in connection with the NDPS Case- This recovery is not relevant under Section 27 of the Evidence Act however, it would have to be proved in accordance with law. Recovery on the pointing of the appellants- It cannot be held proved, though not disapproved either- Falls in the category of a fact 'not proved' within the meaning of Section 3 of the Indian Evidence Act. Part of the recovery, that has been sought to be proved with the aid of Section 27 of the Evidence Act must be seen in togetherness with the findings on the evidence of PW-3.

Section 27 of the Evidence Act mandates that the discovered fact has to be in pursuance of a disclosure in order to make it a relevant fact and thus admissible in evidence. Chance recoveries made in connection with some other case, without disclosure, cannot be termed as relevant within the meaning of Section 27 of the Evidence Act.

C. Evidence law-Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 9- Identification of accused - The result of a test identification parade is relevant under Section 9 of the Evidence Act, and although, it is a procedure that rightfully belongs to the stage of investigation to lend the Investigator an assurance about the identity of the offender, it is of great worth in corroborating evidence of the identifying witness in the dock. Fact that the appellants were unlawfully got identified by the police, two days ahead their arrest being shown, at the Police Station by PW-3, privately and unlawfully without holding a test identification parade, is no lapse of investigation but is a relevant fact that hits at the bottom of the prosecution case about the manner in which the appellants came to be identified and arrested, at the instance of the solitary injured witness of the occurrence, PW-3.

The result of Test Identification is a relevant fact for the purpose of corroboration but the same has to be legal and proper so as to withstand the scrutiny of law. (Para9,61,62,66,69,73,82,88,89)

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. These three criminal appeals arise out of a judgment and order of Sri P.K. Singh, the then Additional Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court no.4, Gorakhpur, dated 29.10.2003 passed in Sessions Trial no.177 of 2002, State of U.P. vs. Shyam @ Sambhal and others (arising out of Case Crime no.883 of 2001), under Sections 396, 412 IPC, Police Station Khorabar, District Gorakhpur.

2. By the aforesaid judgment and order, each of the five appellants, have been convicted by the learned Trial Judge of commission of an offence punishable under Section 396 IPC and sentenced to suffer Rigorous Imprisonment for Life, besides being ordered to pay a fine of Rs.5000/- each. In default of payment of fine, the concerned appellant has been ordered to suffer one year's R.I. Appellants, Shyam @ Sambhal, Rinku Kumar Chaudhary and Raju Mali have also been convicted of an offence punishable under Section 412 IPC and sentenced to suffer ten years' Rigorous Imprisonment, besides being ordered to pay a fine of Rs.3000/-. In the event of default, the said appellants, have been ordered to suffer seven months' R.I. Both the sentences have been ordered to run concurrently. Aggrieved, Dhan Singh, Rinku Kumar Chaudhary and Jeevan Mali have preferred Criminal Appeal no.293 of 2004, whereas Shyam @ Sambhal has preferred Criminal Appeal no.6021 of 2003. Raju Mali has appealed separately through Criminal Appeal no.109 of 2004. Criminal Appeal no.293 of 2003 has been heard as the leading case.

3. The facts giving rise to the present appeal are that a written report, Ex. Ka-1 scribed by the informant, Ajay Kumar Rai (PW-1) was lodged at the Police Station Khorabar, District Gorakhpur with the allegations that on 22.11.2001 at 8 O'clock in the morning, he was at his shop, situate at Chandi (Colony). At that time, he received a telephonic call from his uncle's son, Anil Kumar Rai that something untoward had happened at the house of Rakesh situate in Shivaji Nagar Colony, and that therefore, they should come over at once. On this information, he along with his family members reached the house of Rakesh situate at Shivaji Nagar Colony, and saw that the main door was bolted from the inside. They made a lot of effort to open the door, but to no avail. Then they gained entry into the house by scaling a wall on one side. Once inside, they saw that all the doors were ajar, and upon reaching the kitchen, they found the dead bodies of Rakesh Chandra Rai, Chandra Shekhar Rai and Anoop Kumar Rai lying there, and in the Poojaghar abutting the Kitchen, they found Smt. Leelawati wife of Rakesh Chandra Rai and Renu Rai daughter of Rakesh Chandra Rai lying injured, while in the northern Bedroom, the dead bodies of Bobby, Vikki and Vibhu Rai, all sons of Ranjit Rai, lay. All the attaché-cases and trunks carrying belongings of the inmates had been broken open, and contents were strewn all over the place, giving an impression that the victims had been murdered and their valuables looted. The injured Leelawati Rai and Renu Rai were sent to the Hospital for medical aid. The written report closed with a request to register a case and initiate appropriate action.

4. On the basis of this written report, Ex. Ka-1, the chik FIR Ex. Ka42 giving rise to Case Crime No.883 of 2001, under Sections 302, 307, 394 IPC was registered at P.S. Khorabar, District Gorakhpur, and an entry in this regard has been made in G.D. no.21 at 09.30 hours on 22.11.2001. An extract of this GD Entry is Ex. Ka-43.

5. On 22.11.2001, the injured Renu Rai was admitted to R.D.M.O. District Hospital, Gorakhpur. PW-11, Dr. S.K. Srivastava, Medical Officer, examined her and found the following injuries on her person:

(1) Contused ir. (injury) area 5 x 3cm on whole of Lt. eye;

(2) Contusion area 3.5x3 cm on the nose clotted blood present. Inj. kept U.O. Advised X-ray.

(3) Contusion area 5x0.5 cm on Rt. ear bleeding from Rt. ear kept UO &

10. According to the prosecution, during the course of investigation, the Investigating Officer and other police personnel on 12.12.2001 at 12.30 hours were inquiring from the appellants and one Rajesh Mali, who were arrested in connection with an NDPS Case, about certain items of jewelry recovered from three of them. At that time, Smt. Renu Rai (injured in the present case) along with her relatives, Ajay Kumar Rai and Anil Kumar Rai arrived there, and upon seeing the appellants, she turned hysterical and assaulting the appellants, crying aloud, identified them as the robbers who had entered her father's house on the night of occurrence, committed loot and done the entire family to death. Upon being shown the recovered items of jewelry, she identified two Mangalsutra, a silver coin, a pair of silver Bichhiya as hers, which the appellants had looted in the night of 21/22.11.2001. On identification of the appellants by the injured Renu and recovery of proceeds of the dacoity, they were taken into custody in connection with the present crime, apprising them of the offence under Section 396 IPC made out against them. Since the recovered jewelry were case property, the same were sealed in separate containers.

11. According to the prosecution, the appellants confessed to their crime and said that they along with their companions, Vishram and Kalu, entered the victims' house via the roof and after battering the inmates, looted the house. They further said that the stick (Danda) used in the crime and a looted bag carrying diaries, wallet etc., they had thrown under the foliage for fear of identification. According to the prosecution, the appellants volunteered to get the stick (Danda) and the bag thrown away in the bushes nearby, recovered in case the police were willing. The police acting on the aforesaid disclosure, proceeded along with the appellants and the injured victim Renu Rai, together with her relatives, Ajay Kumar Rai and Anil Kumar Rai, to the place where the weapon of offence and the bag were said to have been thrown away by the appellants. The appellants led the way and getting off the main road, walked into the grove of one Arjun, wherefrom under the foliage of a bush, they produced a rexine bag, brownish in colour with print bearing the label 'VIP', made of metal with two black zippers and a stick from a guava tree. Upon opening the bag, were found inside a black coloured wallet, that carried an identity card with a photograph of Rakesh Chandra Rai issued by the Income Tax Commissioner, Allahabad, two small diaries with the name of Chandra Shekhar Rai, scribed on it. Upon seeing the bag and wallet, Renu Rai said that the identity card in the wallet was her father's whereas the diary was her brother's. The stick (danda) bore blood stains and measured the length of about a hand and a three quarters (the manner the dimensions are described in the recovery memo).

12. The police on the basis of this case and material, charge sheeted the appellants vide charge sheet dated 01.03.2002, Ex. Ka-54, submitted by the Investigating Officer Ravi Chandra Mishra, PW-9, praying that the appellants be summoned and punished for the commission of offences punishable under Sections 396 & 412 IPC.

13. The case was committed to the sessions by the learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court no.14, Gorakhpur vide order dated 14.05.2002. After committal to the Court of Session, the Additional Sessions Judge/ Fast Track Court no.3, Gorakhpur, before whom the case came up for framing of charges, proceeded to hear the learned counsel for the parties, and framed a charge for an offence punishable under Section 396 IPC against all the appellants, and against the appellants Shyam @ Sambhal, Raju Mali and Rinku Kumar, framed a charge for an offence punishable under Section 412 IPC. The appellants pleaded not guilty and claimed trial.

14. In order to prove their case, the prosecution have examined the following witnesses:

(1) PW-1, Ajay Kumar Rai, informant and scribe of the written report;

(2) PW-2, Anil Kumar Rai, another witness of fact and relative of the victim family;

(3) PW-3, Renu Rai, injured witness;

(4) PW-4, Dr. R.A.L. Gupta, conducted autopsy;

(5) PW-5, Dr. Mahendra Singh, Superintendent, District Hospital, Gorakhpur, who gave primary medical attention to injured Renu Rai, admitted her and referred her to K.G.M.I., Lucknow;

(6) PW-6, SI Virendra Pratap Singh, drew up inquest reports and other documents regarding investigation;

(7) PW-7, HC 138 Awadhesh Kumar Pandey, registered the FIR in Case Crime no.883 of 2001, under Sectins 302, 306, 394 IPC and also made entry in GD about the case;

(8) PW-8, SI Amarendra Kumar Rai, prepared inquest of Smt. Leela Rai and also drew up other documents for her postmortem;

(9) PW-9, IO Ravi Chandra Mishra, investigated the case and submitted charge sheet;

(10) PW-10, Dr. J.D. Rawat, Assistant Professor, Surgery

Department, KGMI, Lucknow, medically managed injured Renu Rai at KGMI, Lucknow, and proved the Medical Case History of injured Renu Rai; and (11) PW-11, Dr. S.K. Srivastava, examined injuries and drew up the medico-legal report of injured Renu Rai, dated 22.11.2001.

16. Thereafter, the statements of the appellants were recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. They denied the incriminating circumstances appearing in evidence against them and relied upon the following documents:

1) True copy of the Chik FIR;

(2) True copy of the site plan;

(3) True copy of the statement of PW-3, HC Awadhesh Kumar Pandey,

(4) True copy of the statement of PW-9, Ravi Chandra Mishra, Investigating Officer of the case.

17. The Trial Court after hearing both the parties and discussing the evidence and material on record found the appellants variously guilty of offences under Sections 396 and 412 IPC and sentenced each of them as above detailed, by the impugned judgment and order.

18. Aggrieved, the convicts have preferred these appeals.

19. Heard Shri Ashok Kumar Mishra, learned Counsel for all the appellants, Shri J.K. Upadhyay, learned A.G.A. for the State and Sri Rajendra Rai, learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the complainant.

20. Learned Counsel for the appellants, Sri Ashok Kumar Mishra, has assailed the prosecution case as one engineered by the police. He has impressed upon us the fact that the crime is one that has been perpetrated in an entirely different manner by offenders who would be very different than the convicts before us. According to him, the appellants have been framed by the police, either at the instance of the true offenders who might be acquaintances of the family or their kinsmen, or the prosecution is the result of an easy solution to a complicated crime that the police have contrived.

21. To all this end, learned Counsel for the appellants has drawn the Court's attention to some early signs of doubt about the prosecution case. It is pointed out by him that the First Information Report in this case was lodged by Ajay Kumar Rai, after an information he received from Anil Kumar Rai over telephone that some untoward incident had happened at the house of the informant's cousin, Rakesh Chandra Rai. He points out that Anil Kumar Rai is a cousin of the informants. The informant was at his shop in a village 25 kilometers away at the time he received this information, at 8 o' clock in the morning. He proceeded to the house of Rakesh Chandra Rai along with other members of the family, where they found a congregation of people outside the entrance door, that was bolted from within.

22. Learned Counsel for the appellants submits that discovery of the crime thereafter, by Ajay Kumar Rai and others is quite another matter. What is intriguing, according to Sri Ashok Kumar Mishra is the fact that Anil Kumar Rai, who was himself a cousin of Rakesh Chandra Rai did not move in with the aid of all those who were present there to discover what had befallen the inmates of the house, all of whom were his relatives. In a display of conduct, highly unnatural to meet a suspected emergency, he called another cousin of his, that is to say, Ajay Kumar Rai to come over and find out what had befallen the family.

23. Moving further with his submission that the prosecution story is suspect at its inception, learned Counsel for the appellants submits that it is not just that, that Anil Kumar Rai called up Ajay Kumar Rai to come all the way over to the place of occurrence to find out what had happened to the family who became victims of the crime, but he chose to call the first informant over in the face of an emergency, though the informant was located at a distance of about 25 kilometers from Gorakhpur in Village Chandi Gaon. It took Ajay Kumar Rai some 40 - 45 minutes to reach Gorakhpur, and some more to reach the place of occurrence. Once at the house of Rakesh Chandra Rai, the informant found Anil Kumar Rai and his brother Pramil Kumar Rai present, along with a big crowd of unrelated persons. Learned Counsel for the appellants submits that there was no earthly reason for Anil Kumar Rai or Pramil Kumar Rai, both of whom were cousins to Rakesh Chandra Rai, not to have acted swiftly and moved in with the others present to find out whatever had happened inside Rakesh's house, when everyone present suspected some mis-happening. In this regard, learned Counsel for the appellants has drawn attention of the Court to the evidence that figures in the cross-examination of Ajay Kumar Rai at page 63 of the paper-book.

24. Dwelling further upon the suspicious circumstances attending the earliest steps taken by the family to discover the crime leading to the First Information Report, it is pointed out by the learned Counsel for the appellants that Ajay Kumar Rai who deposed before the Trial Court as PW-1, has said in his examination-in-chief (as well as his cross-examination) that he and Anil Kumar Rai, on finding the main door to the house bolted, gained entry via the house of one H.N. Singh, located to the north of Rakesh's house. They did so after moving in to H.N. Singh's house through his main-gate and scaling the wall dividing the two premises.

25. Learned Counsel for the appellants has placed much emphasis on the fact that H.N. Singh, who would be the earliest independent witness about the manner of crime, or atleast its discovery, was never examined by the police, and of course, never examined as a prosecution witness. In this connection, the attention of the Court has been drawn to the examination-in-chief of Ajay Kumar Rai recorded during trial, that figures at page 58 of the paper-book, and his cross-examination at page 65.

26. It is submitted, thus, in substance by the learned Counsel for the appellants that the First Information Report does not at all disclose the true and the earliest account about discovery of the crime that has been perpetrated in a very different manner, and by assassins, completely unrelated to these convicts. The First

Information Report is a prelude to a complete story of falsehood that the prosecution witnesses have lateron come up with; including the story that the injured witness, Smt. Renu Rai, PW-3 has given out falsely on oath in her testimony.

27. Sri J.K. Upadhyay, learned A.G.A. and Sri Rajendra Rai, learned Counsel for the complainant, have refuted the aforesaid submissions of the learned Counsel for the appellants. They have said that the First Information Report is a very natural depiction of the behaviour of close relatives, where a number of their family members became victims of a heinous crime of this nature. There is nothing unnatural about the First Information Report, or to harbour suspicion about the prosecution case on its basis.

28. This Court would consider a little later in this judgment, this and the other submissions advanced on behalf of the appellants. It would be more profitable to record those submissions together with the prosecution's response before moving in to analyze the worth of the prosecution case.

29. There is then a whole lot of scathing criticism about the manner of the appellants' arrest and, more fundamentally, how these appellants came to be connected to the crime. Learned Counsel for the appellants submits that the manner in which the appellants have been shown to be arrested in connection with an NDPS Case near a place called Baudh Sangrahalaya on 12.12.2001, and then shown to be identified by Renu Rai, the sole survivor of the crime and an injured witness, who was passing by, riding pillion with PW-1, Ajay Kumar Rai and Anil Kumar Rai on way to the hospital, ex facie, makes it look like a foisted case. The arrest and the identification, both, that are said to have happened spontaneously, connecting the appellants to the crime, is hard to believe.

30. Learned Counsel for the appellants has laid particular emphasis about the prosecution case to the effect that on 12.12.2001 at 12.30 p.m., the surviving and injured witness, Renu Rai was accompanying PW-1, Ajay Kumar Rai and PW-2, Anil Kumar Rai to the hospital and as they approached a place called Baudh Sangrahalaya, they found near one Arjun's grove a large crowd of people. Upon seeing the crowd, they moved to the grove and there found the appellants in police custody. It is the prosecution case that they were arrested in connected with recovery of Narcotics (Ganja) and certain items of jewelry, that were until then not connected to any crime. Upon seeing the appellants, Renu Rai immediately identified them as the men who had pulled the dacoity at her home and brutally murdered her family members. In this connection, Sri Ashok Kumar Mishra has invited the attention of the Court to the examination-in-chief of PW-1, Ajay Kumar Rai which is extracted below:

"इसके बाद पुलिस घटना स्थल पर पहुंची। दिनांक 12.12.2001 को करीब साढ़े बारह बजे दिन में मै रेनू राय व अनिल कुमार राय के साथ अपने मामा के घर से रेनू को दिखाने अस्पताल जा रहे थे तो बौद्ध संग्रहालय के पास रामगढ़ परियोजना में बाई पास रोड के बगल में अर्जुन के बाग के पास भीड़ देखकर हम लोग वहां गये तो वहां हम लोगों ने देखा कि मुलजिमान हाजिर अदालत को पुलिस ने पकड़ा हुआ है उनके पास से गाजा और मेरे भाई राकेश चन्द्र राय के घर से हत्या कर लूटे हुये दो मंगल सूत्र, चांदी की बिछिया, और एक 1901 का सिक्का बरामद हुआ था जिन्हे रेनू ने पहचाना था

31. To the same effect, learned Counsel for the appellants has pointed out, is the account of identification and arrest of the appellants in connection with this crime by PW-2, Anil Kumar Rai, that finds place in his examination-in-chief, dated 20.08.2002. He has laid particular emphasis on the testimony of PW-3, Renu Rai, the injured and sole surviving witness, who also speaks in identical terms in her examination-in-chief about a wayside and spontaneous identification of the accused by her and their ensuing arrest. Learned Counsel for the appellants has referred to the concluding part of her examination-in-chief, dated 05.09.2002 and the substantial part of it recorded on the following day, i.e., 06.09.2002. The part of deposition of PW-3, referred to by the learned Counsel, recorded on 05.09.2002, reads to the following effect:

"12.12.2001 को दस बजे दिन में अनिल चाचा और अजय मौसा आये और वहां से सवा बारह बजे के करीब निकले डाक्टर के यहां जा रहे थे।"

32. The resumed deposition of PW-3, Smt. Renu Rai on 06.09.2002, that is in continuation of what is extracted above, reads thus:

"मामा के घर से निकले तो वहां से बाई पास रोड पर आये कुछ दूर आगे आकर फिर हम उत्तर की तरफ गये बौद्ध संग्रहालय के पास आई तो वहां पुलिस दिखी वहां पर रुकने के बाद मेरे चाचा और मौसा आपस में बात किये कि यहां पुलिस क्यों खड़ी है वहां से करीब एक सौ मीटर की दूरी पर काफी भीड़ दिखाई दी भीड़ देखने के बाद मेरे चाचा और मौसा वहां लेकर के गये। जब मैं वहां पर पहुंची तो वहां पर भीड़ थी पुलिस वालों ने छः आदमियों को पकड़ा था उनमें से पांच आज न्यायालय में उपस्थित हैं वहां जब मैने देखा तो मैने कहा कि यही वह पाँच आदमी है जिन्होंने मेरे बच्चों व माता पिता भाई व परिवार वालों को मार डाला।"

33. It is next urged by the learned Counsel for the appellants that the Investigating Officer, PW-9 in his cross-examination on behalf of appellants, Raju Mali and Jeewan Mali, dated 02.04.2003 has said that until 11.12.2001, there was no information or knowledge about the identity of the perpetrators. He was tipped off by an informer that some criminal elements were about the place at Tara Mandal (near Baudh Sangrahalaya). He has said that acting on the said tip off, he arrested the appellants on 12.12.2001 from Tara Mandal. He has specified their number to be five in the first instance, and has lateron, modified it to a figure of six. These men were arrested in connection with a case of recovery of narcotics. The recovery of narcotics had led to recovery of some unconnected items to the narcotics case that were pieces of valuable jewelry. While the Investigating Officer was interrogating the six men arrested in connection with the narcotics matter, more about the additional recovery, PW-3 arrived there along with PW-1 and PW-2, and identified the six men present as perpetrators of the present crime spontaneously. It is emphasized that in the evidence of the Investigating Officer, it has again been admitted that no member of the public witnessed the recovery, except the Rai Family. The relevant part of the evidence of the Investigating Officer, upon which account Sri Mishra has laid great emphasis, is reproduced infra:

"दिनांक 11.12.01 तक कोई भी मुलजिम प्रकाश में नहीं आया था। रेनु राय से मेरी मुलाकात 9.12.01 को आजाद नगर में अजय राय वादी मुकदमा के घर पे हुआ था। फिर कहा कि रूस्तम पुर ढाल पर बयान लिया था। दिनांक 9.12.01 को रेनु का बयान लेने के बाद दिनांक 12.12.01 को मुलजिमान को तारा मण्डल से हम लोगों ने गिरफ्तार किया था। कुल पांच मुलजिम पकड़े थे। मेरे खास आदमी मुखबिर ने सूचना दिया था कि कुछ अपराधिक किस्म के आदमी तारा मण्डल के पास है। जिस व्यक्ति ने तारा मण्डल के पास कुछ अपराधिक व्यक्ति के बारे में होने का सूचना दिया था मैं उसका नाम नहीं बता सकता। अजखुद कहा कि 6 मुलजिमानों को पकड़ा गया था। जिस व्यक्ति ने सूचना दिया था उसका नाम बताना उचित नही है। यह सूचना मुझे 10 बजे दिनांक 12.12.01 को मिली थी। यह सूचना मुझे राय गढ़ ताल चौकी पर मिली थी। इस सूचना पर तुरन्त हम लोग तारा मण्डल पहुंच गये और 6 व्यक्ति वहां बैठे मिले। मौके पर पब्लिक के काफी लोग वहां पहुंच गये थे। वहां मौजूद पब्लिक में से मुलजिमान की गिरफतारी का साक्ष्य नही है। बरामदगी का कोई साक्ष्य राय परिवार के अलावा वहां मौजूद काफी लोगों में कोई गवाह नही है। मुलजिमान हम लोगों को देख नहीं पाये होगें इसलिए भगे नही।"

34. Learned Counsel for the appellants has submitted that it is not about the fine details of the prosecution account coming from these three witnesses, pitted against the contradictions here and there about this account in their cross-examination that he emphasizes. According to him, this story about the surviving and injured witness, PW-3, Renu Rai, proceeding to the hospital or a Doctor along with her uncles Ajay and Anil in connection with her treatment, and suddenly on seeing the police or a crowd of people in a grove, close to the Baudh Sangrahalaya, abandoning course and moving in to find out what was afoot there, is inherently unbelievable. He submits that it is beyond comprehension that a vulnerable and shaken person, like Renu Rai, proceeding to a Doctor for a checkup, would suddenly change course on seeing the police or a crowd; to do so is not in keeping with normal or even a slightly variant standard of human behaviour. It is urged by him that on seeing the police along with a crowd, the natural tendency of any peace-loving and law abiding citizen is to move away as sights like these are in the common experience of men of ordinary prudence, sources of brooding trouble. No one wishes to barge into a crowd mixed up with the police to find out what has happened. According to the learned Counsel for the appellants, this is almost a universal reaction of persons circumstanced as the three prosecution witnesses. To add to it is the fact that they were a family, hardly emerged from the trauma of a big crime and tragedy. PW-1 and PW-2, according to their consistent account, had moved out with PW-3 to seek medical consultation. It is in these circumstances preposterous to suggest much less believe, in the submission of Sri Ashok Kumar Mishra that all three of them would move out to a sight that in common perception of men no source of attraction, recreation or curiosity.

35. The account of identification and arrest given by the Investigating Officer in his evidence, in the submission of the learned Counsel for the appellants, is also to its face, shaky and unreliable. In particular, he submits that the fact that the Investigating Officer has spoken about arresting in the first instance five accused in connection with the narcotics case, and lateron correct himself to make it a figure of six, makes the entire prosecution case a riddle about the sixth man apprehended. This is so because the charge sheet in the case has been filed against five men alone, and there is no explanation in the submission of Sri Mishra as to what happened to the sixth man apprehended. The absence of a cogent explanation by the prosecution as to why the sixth man apprehended was not put up for his trial, renders the prosecution seriously doubtful. It is also pointed out by the learned Counsel for the appellants that the Investigating Officer has said in his cross-examination, dated 09.05.2003 at the instance of appellants, Shyam @ Sambhal and Rinku that the arrest took place a little before 12.30 p.m., whereas recovery of narcotics and other articles was made at 12.30 p.m. (on 12.12.2001). The arrest of all the appellants in connection with the narcotics case that were registered as five separate crimes against them was shown at 10.30 a.m. This according to the learned Counsel for the appellants shows that the time of arrest is not certain, which furthers the appellants' case that their implication in the crime was the result of manipulation done by the police in order to do a face saving exercise. The appellants have merely become scapegoats.

36. Learned Counsel for the appellants submits that the account of identification can either be utter falsehood or one that came about in a preplanned manner on a tip off from the police. He also submits that the possibility of this manner of identification and arrest being utterly false, never to have taken place that way is very high, bearing in mind the fact that about this identification and arrest, which involves some recovery also, no witness of the public has been associated; much less examined before the Court. On this part of his submission, Sri Mishra says that the absence of a public witness about this wayside and fantastic identification followed by arrest shows it to be the result of a concocted story conjured up by the police, in connivance with the first informant and the two other prosecution witnesses. There is no independent witness to corroborate it. It is urged that this kind of an inherently unbelievable identification and arrest, in the absence of some independent and corroborating evidence, makes the prosecution story unbelievable. It is also emphasized that since this identification and arrest is a very relevant fact, on the basis of which the appellants have been connected to the crime, the failure of the prosecution to prove it, knocks the bottom out of their case.

37. The next submission of Sri Ashok Kumar Mishra, learned Counsel for the appellants is closely connected to the one about the manner of identification and arrest. It is about recovery of some case property and the weapon of offence. It is urged on behalf of the appellants that it has clearly figured in the deposition of PW-1, that when he along with Renu Rai and Anil Kumar Rai reached the place where the accused had been arrested and they were identified by Renu Rai spontaneously, the police showed them some recovered articles of dacoity that they had already recovered from the accused. It is urged that this recovery of what have been dubbed as part of the dacoits booty was not recovered in presence of either PW-1, PW-2 or PW-3. There is no witness to this recovery, either from the complainant's family or amongst the public. This recovery was shown by the police to have been made along with the recovery referable to the NDPS Case, in connection whereof the accused were shown to be falsely arrested from the grove near the Baudh Sangrahalaya. The recovered articles are attributed to a chance recovery, along with the recovered narcotics. It is only lateron, when the victim of the crime, PW-3 along with PW-1 and PW-2 arrived at the scene of occurrence and PW-3 is said to have spontaneously identified them, that they were shown the recovered articles of loot, which Renu Rai PW-3 is said to have identified. In this connection, learned Counsel for the appellants has drawn attention of the Court to the deposition of PW-1 during his cross-examination, dated 13.08.2002 at the instance of the appellants, Raju Mali and Jeewan Mali. This deposition is extracted below:

"रेनु अभियुक्तों को देखते ही पहचान गई और आवेश में आकर के उलझने लगी। पुलिस ने अभियुक्तों के पास से पहले से बरामद सामान दिखाया, ये सामान दरोगा जी रखे थे। दो मगंल सूत्र चांदी का जिसमें एक मगंल सूत्र टूटा हुआ, दूसरा मगंल सूत्र जिसमें चांदी के लाकेट में सीकड़ में सोने का पानी चढ़ा हुआ था और चांदी की बिछिया, टूटे मगंल सूत्र में मोती के दाने लगे थे जो काले रंग के थे और एक ज्ञान (हथौड़ी) भी बरामद हुआ था। साथ ही एक चादी का सिक्का 1901 का बरामद हुआ था जिसे रेनु ने पहचाना था।"

38. Likewise, PW-1 in his deposition dated 14.08.2002, that is part of his cross-examination at the instance of the appellants, Shyam @ Sambhal and Rinku has said to the following effect:

"मेरे सामने पुलिस के द्वारा कोई मंगल सूत्र या चाँदी का सिक्का बरामद नहीं किया था और मैं यह भी नहीं बता सकता कि किस अभियुक्त के पास से कौन सा सामान बरामद हुआ था। यह कहना गलत है कि मेरे सामने मुलजिम की निशान देही पर कोई सामान बरामद नहीं हुआ।"

39. Learned Counsel for the appellants has also drawn our attention to the deposition in the examination-in-chief of Anil Kumar Rai, PW-2, relating to recovery of the articles of loot. The aforesaid deposition recorded on 20.08.2002 reads as follows:

"हम लोगों के पहुँचने के पूर्व पुलिस ने इन बदमाशों के पास से दो मंगल सूत्र जिसमें एक मंगल सूत्र काले रंग की गुड़िया और चांदी का लाकेट व सिकड़ी जिस पर सोने का पानी चढ़ा था, दूसरा मंगल सूत्र जिसमें काले रंग की मोतिया और चार सोने की गुड़िया गुथी हुई थी और टूटा हुआ था। एक चांदी का सिक्का जिस पर 1901 अंकित था। बिछिया एक अदद बरामद किये गये थे।"

Again, on the following day, that is to say, on 21.08.2002, PW-2 spoke about the recovery of these articles in the following words:

"जो सामान दरोगा जी बरामद किये थे वह सब डिब्बों में अलग अलग मेरे सामने सील किये थे। वह सामान सील्ड हालत में अलग अलग डिब्बों में मेरे सामने है। जिसकी सील मुहर दुरूस्त है। न्यायालय की आज्ञा से वकील मलजिमान को दिखा कर सील खोला गया। सील खोलने पर एक डिब्बें में से काले रंग की मोतियों की माला (मंगल सूत्र) व चार सोने की गुरिया निकली मगंल सूत्र का धागा टुटा हुआ है। दूसरे डिब्बे से मंगल सूत्र मय लाकेट जिस पर सोने का पानी चढ़ा है मय सिकड़ी चांदी की जिस पर सोने का पानी चढ़ा हुआ है, व तीसरे डिब्बे में से एक जोड़ा चांदी की बिछिया व 1901 का एक सिक्का चांदी का निकला। जिन पर क्रमशः वस्तु प्रदर्श 1 ता 4 डाला गया। बरामदशुदा इन सामानों को देखकर रेनु ने कहा कि यह सब

सामान उसके है। इस सामानों को पुलिस ने इन मुलजिमान हाजिर अदालत से बरामद किया था। बरामदशुदा सामानों की लिखा पढ़ी हुई थी इसी स्थान पर हुई थी जिस पर मैने भी हस्ताक्षर बनाये थे वह फर्द मेरे सामने है जिस पर प्रदर्श क-3 डाला गया।"

40. Learned Counsel for the appellants has also laid emphasis on the deposition of PW-3, Smt. Renu Rai who has spoken about this recovery of the looted articles by the police from the arrested men, in her examination-in-chief on 06.09.2002, thus:

"जब मै चिल्लाने लगी और रोने लगी तो पुलिसवालों ने मुझे कुछ सामान दिखाया। दो मगंल सूत्र दिखाये व एक चांदी का सिक्का व एक जोड़ा बिछिया था जो पुलिस वालों ने मुझे दिखाया जो मेरा था। एक लोहे का हथोड़ा दिखाया। बरामद शुदा सामान जो डिब्बे में सर्व मुहर है खोला गया। बरामद शुदा सिक्के पर सन 1901 अंकित है।"

41. Learned Counsel for the appellants submits that the recovery is in two different parts, both of which are not only different about the nature and character of the articles recovered, but the legal incidents thereof. He submits that so far as the recovery of looted articles of property attributed to the appellants is concerned, this recovery from the evidence of the three witnesses of fact, as well as the recovery memo dated 12.12.2001, Ex. Ka-3, is not at all referable to a recovery under Section 27 of the Evidence Act. This recovery is one that the police claim to have been made from the appellants on the wayside, while they were being searched in connection with the NDPS Cases. That search had led to recovery of Ganja from their possession, and along with it, one or the other of the looted articles from three of the appellants as a matter of chance. It was not the kind of recovery that was made at the instance of the appellants who disclosed it ahead of the recovery, which then was made at their pointing out. The recovered articles according to the recovery memo, distinct and separate from the narcotics recovered, were shown to PW-3, Smt. Renu Rai, when these were already in the hands of the police, claimed by them to be recovered from the appellants. These articles were identified by Smt. Renu Rai as part of the looted property, but Smt. Renu Rai or for that matter PW-1 or PW-2 are not witnesses of this recovery.

42. Sri Mishra, learned Counsel for the appellants points out that a perusal of the recovery memo dated 12.12.2001, Ex. Ka-3 shows that it is signed by the accused, the police party, besides Ajay Kumr Rai, Anil Kumar Rai and Smt. Renu Rai. It is submitted by Sri Mishra that this recovery memo is a document, that is hardly of any worth. According to him, the reason is that this recovery was made by the police in connection with the NDPS Case, and, in fact, that the recovery of these articles was also shown in the NDPS Case Recovery Memo. Once the injured, PW-3 identified the appellants, as claimed by the prosecution, recovery memo, Ex. Ka-3 was drawn up, assigning the claimed articles of loot to the present crime. PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3, who have signed the recovery memo, have not witnessed the recovery. He submits that these articles of loot were picked up from the scene of crime, where a lot of jewelry lay strewn and foisted upon the appellants. There is absolutely no public witness of this recovery as would be evident from a perusal of the recovery memo, Ex. Ka-3. Learned Counsel for the appellants has also referred to the evidence of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3, which according to him, consistently shows that the police claimed to have already recovered these articles as part of the NDPS Case apprehension of the appellants and investigation. PW-3 lateron identified them as perpetrators of the present crime. The evidence of the three witnesses, thus, clearly shows that they were shown the claimed articles of loot, what the police had already recovered. None of the prosecution witnesses have stated that these articles of loot were recovered from the appellants in their presence. Also, the recovery of these articles is not endorsed by any other member of the public. The submission, therefore, of the learned Counsel for the appellants is that the entire recovery of the claimed articles of loot is planted.

43. We may now refer to the submission of the learned Counsel for the appellants regarding second part of the recovery. It comprises the weapon of offence, a stick made of guava tree wood, a rexine bag carrying a label of its make described as 'VIP' and the contents of the bag, that revealed a black coloured wallet with an identity card of Rakesh Chandra Rai, bearing his photograph issued by the Commissioner of Income Tax, Allahabad and a small diary, bearing the name of Chandra Shekhar Rai and his address. The bag aforesaid carried another small diary, also bearing the name of Chandra Shekhar Rai.

44. All these recovered articles claimed by the police have been shown through a separate recovery memo, also dated 12.12.2001, but bearing Ex. Ka-2. In the submission of Sri Mishra, this recovery is distinct and different from the first, not only about the contents, but the manner in which it has been made and its legal incidents. This recovery is shown to have been made after the appellants were identified by PW-3, Renu Rai. The appellants are then said to have made a disclosure and led way to the place where they had hidden these articles. It is claimed that they led the police along with PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 to a place, where they left the main road and went into Arjun's grove. There, from under a shrub they recovered the rexine bag and the guava wood stick. The contents of the rexine bag carrying the wallet with an identity card of Rakesh Chandra Rai and the diaries of the other deceased Chandra Shekhar Rai, were identified by Renu Rai as those of her fathers and brothers. The bag was identified as that of her brother, Chandra Sherkhar Rai as well as the diaries, whereas the wallet was identified, together with the identity card, as her fathers, by PW-3. The recovered stick is claimed to be smeared with blood, one hand and a three quarters in length. All these articles are shown to be sealed on the spot with the recovery memo being thumb marked by the appellants, signed by the police party, besides Ajay Kumar Rai, Anil Kumar Rai and Smt. Renu Rai.

45. Learned Counsel for the appellants points out that this recovery memo is not signed by any member of the public, who were around and available in abundance. The recovery memo also does not mention that members of public were invited to sign the recovery memo which they declined. It is urged that the recovery memo also does not say that members of the public went along with the police party and witnessed the recovery. Sri Mishra submits that the entire recovery, on a reading of this recovery memo, Ex. Ka-2, is to its face a product of falsehood and part of a design to frame the appellants. In this connection, apart from the contents of the recovery memo, through which we have been taken, Sri Mishra has drawn the attention of the Court to the examination-in-chief of Ajay Kumar Rai, dated 24.07.2002, where about this part of the recovery, that is subject matter of Ex. Ka-2, it is said by Ajay Kumar Rai, PW-1:

"मुलजिमानों ने कहा था कि पकड़े जाने के भय से हत्या में प्रयुक्त डण्डा व बैग झाड़ी में फेक दिया है आप कहे तो चल कर दे देवे। पुलिस इन अभियुक्तों को तथा हम लोगों को साथ लेकर झाड़ी के पास गई और अभियुक्तों के निशान देही पर हत्या में प्रयुक्ति अमरूद का डण्डा व बैग निकाल कर दिया जिसकी फर्द बनाई गई वह फर्द मेरे सामने है इस पर मेरा भी हस्ताक्षर है इस पर प्रदर्श क-2 डाला गया।"

46. Learned Counsel for the appellants has further laid emphasis about the testimony of this witness in his cross-examination at the instance of appellants, Raju Mali and Jeewan Mali, dated 13.08.2002, where he has said:

"जहाँ पर अभियुक्त पकड़े गये थे वहीं बगल से बाग के बाहर झाड़ी में से डंडा और एक बैग बरामद हुआ था। डंडा ढाई हाथ का था जो अमरूद का था। वहां जनता के काफी लोग एकत्र हो गये थे। पुलिस वालों ने मेरे सामने जनता के किसी आदमी की गवाही नहीं लिया था, मै रेनु व अनिल गवाह थे। इस सम्बन्ध में करीब 40-45 मिनट का समय लगा था। दरोगा का नाम आर0 सी0 मिश्र था और पुलिस के करीब 4-5 लोग थे, फिर वहीं से हम लोग डा0 संजीव श्रीवास्तव के अस्पताल चले गये।"

47. Likewise, learned Counsel for the appellants has referred to the deposition in the examination-in-chief of PW-2, Anil Kumar Rai, dated 21.08.2002, where about this part of the recovery, he has said:

"मेरे अलावा और किसने इस पर दस्तखत बनाया मुझे नहीं मालूम इसके बाद पुलिस ने मुलजिमान से पूछताछ की पूछताछ करने पे मुलजिमान ने पुलिस से कहा कि हत्या में प्रयुक्त डण्डा व बैग पकड़े जाने के भय से यही झाडी में फेंक दिया है कहिये तो चल कर दे देवे। इसके बाद मुलजिम आगे आगे उसके बाद पुलिस उसके बाद हम लोग व जनता गये और मुलजिमान ने अमरूद का डण्डा खून लगा हुआ और एक बैग निकाल कर दिया उस बैग को देखकर रेनु ने कहा कि यह मेरे भाई का है। बैग को दरोगा जी ने खोला जिसमें से दो डायरी एक आइडेन्टीटी कार्ड निकला डायरी चन्द्र शेखर राय का था और आइडेन्टीटी कार्ड राकेश चन्द्र राय का था।"

48. Learned Counsel for the appellants submits about this recovery that though this recovery, and not the one that relates to looted articles, is referable to Section 27 of the Evidence Act, it is as much false and the result of planting as the earlier one. In this connection, he lays particular emphasis on the fact that in the evidence of PW-1 and PW-2, there is no dearth of acknowledgment of the fact that members of the public were available in abundance and according to PW-2, they too had witnessed this recovery. However, the recovery memo is signed by the police party, the first informant, PW-1, the victim, PW-3 and PW-2, but by no member of the public. There is no earthly reason assigned, according to the learned Counsel for the appellants, why not even a single member of the public has signed this recovery memo, claimed as it is to be a recovery made within their sight. Learned Counsel for the appellants again emphasizes that the recovery memo does not carry any remark to the effect that members, one or more from the public present, were asked to sign and they refused. According to Sri Mishra, therefore, the recovery memo, that is referable and sought to be proved with the aid of Section 27 of the Evidence Act, is also the result of a planted and foisted recovery.

49. It is next submitted by Sri Mishra, learned Counsel for the appellants that seven persons have been done to death in this crime. Of them according to the autopsy report, two, Chandra Shekhar Rai and Smt. Leelawati Rai died due to throttling, whereas the other five died due to head injuries. It is submitted on behalf of the appellants that according to the prosecution based on the account of the surviving victim, Renu Rai, PW-3, one of the appellants, Shyam @ Sambhal alone was armed with a stick (danda). The other accused were not armed at all. He points out that a solitary stick (danda), according to the prosecution account, was shown recovered at the pointing of the appellants. However, on reference to the F.S.L. for serological examination of the blood smeared recovered stick (danda), the F.S.L. Examination Report, Ex. Ka-57, dated 17.08.2002 shows that the blood was disintegrated. He submits that there is no evidence of human blood being found on the recovered, alleged weapon of offence. He emphasizes that the recovered stick (danda) is admittedly the only weapon employed to bludgeon the victims, five of whom show that they died of head injuries. It is urged on the basis of the aforesaid evidence by the learned Counsel for the appellants that: the prosecution story is inherently unreliable, inasmuch as, it is beyond imagination that six or more assailants would enter a house to commit dacoity as scantly armed as the appellants here, where one of the entire group was carrying a stick (danda) with all others going bare handed; secondly, though the prosecution version based on an eye witness account by PW-3 shows it to be mostly an assault by a stick (danda), two of the seven victims died of throttling, about which there is no explanation. It strongly suggests that the crime was perpetrated in some other manner and by someone else, than that testified to by PW-3; and, thirdly, that the F.S.L. Report, dated 17.08.2002, reported the blood found on the sole weapon of offence, shown to be recovered from the appellants to be disintegrated. The said stick (danda) cannot be connected to the crime. Also, it suggests strongly that the recovery was fake, false and planted.

50. Learned Counsel for the appellants has assailed the testimony of injured witness, Smt. Renu Rai, PW-3 as a product of an illegal identification. He submits that the appellants were shown to Smt. Renu Rai on 09.12.2001 at the Police Station illegally, three days ahead of their arrest in a fake NDPS Case, followed by a sham and spontaneous identification by PW-3 on the wayside. The appellants who were held in connection with NDPS Case were claimed to be spontaneously and coincidently identified by a passing Smt. Renu Rai, PW-3 as the perpetrators of this crime on 12.12.2001. It is submitted by the learned Counsel for the appellants that the appellants were already in illegal custody of the Police, some days before their arrest in connection with the present crime or even the NDPS Case. No test identification parade was ever organized, so as to ensure a true and forthright identification of the offenders by the injured witness. Rather, these men were virtually introduced to Smt. Renu Rai on 09.12.2001 at the Police Station, and three days later, they were shown arrested in connection with the NDPS Case only to be fantastically identified by Smt. Renu Rai, as she was passing by. It is urged by Sri Mishra that the identification of the appellants on 12.12.2001 near the Baudh Sangrahalaya, where they were shown to be arrested in connection with the NDPS Case, was no identification at all. It is, according to the learned Counsel for the appellants, a pre-planned and scripted story by the police to connect the appellants to this heinous crime, after showing their arrest in an NDPS offence.

51. In this connection, our attention has been drawn by the learned Counsel for the appellants to the testimony of Smt. Renu Rai recorded on 18.09.2002, that figures as part of her cross-examination on behalf of the appellants, Raju Mali and Jeewan Mali. This testimony reads to the following effect:

"जब मै लखनऊ अस्पताल से वापस आई तो मुझे पुलिस थाने ले गई थी। पुलिस ने मुझे वहां आठ नौ बदमाशों को दिखाया वहां पर मुलजिमान हाजिर अदालत नही थे पुलिस मुझे आठ या नौ बजे दिन में ले गई थी। इन बदमशों में मेरी पट्टीदारी या रिश्तेदारी का कोई नही था। उसी दिन फिर मुझे रात के आठ नौ बजे पुलिस थाने ले गई और वहां नौ दस बदमाश थे और ये हाजिर अदालत मुलजिमान भी थे। दिन में ये मुलजिमान वहां नही थे रात में थे। मै वहां पर इन सारे बदमाशों को पहचानी थी और कहा था कि इन्ही बदमाशो ने मेरे यहां कान्ड किया है। उस रात मेरे साथ मेरे मौसा अजय कुमार राय और मेरे चाचा दुर्गेश राय थे। बौद्ध संग्रहालय मै जब गई थी उसके एक दिन पहले नौ तारीख को मुलजिमान को पहचाना था। उस रात में एक मुलजिम थाने में और था और जो मेरे घर में हुये घटना में शरीक था। परन्तु आज वह न्यायालय में नही है नौ तारीख को दरोगा जी ने पहचान के बाद मेरा signature करवाया था । मेरे अलावा और किसी का signature नही कराया था । थाने पर रात में नौ तारीख को मै बीस पच्चीस मिनट रही थी। फिर मै अपने चाचा मौसा के साथ घर चली आई। नौ तारीख के बाद फिर पुलिस मेरे यहां नही पहुची। दरोगा जी ने मेरा कोई बयान नही लिया। दरोगा जी ने वारह तारीख को मेरा बयान लिया था।"

52. Learned Counsel for the appellants has also drawn the attention of the Court to the deposition of this witness recorded on 19.09.2002, next following what has been extracted above. On the said date, her statement to the police that she was proceeding to the Hospital, along with Anil Kumar Rai and Ajay Kumar Rai from Shivaji Nagar Colony, was put to her. In response, she said in her cross-examination thus:

"मैने दरोगा जी को यह बयान नही दिया था कि "दिनांक 12-12-2001 को मै शिवाजी नगर कालोनी से अपने परिवार के अनिल कुमार राय व अजय कुमार राय के साथ अस्पताल जा रही थी"। यदि दरोगा जी ने मेरे बयान में उपरोक्त बातें लिखी है तो मै इसकी कोई वजह नही बता सकता।"

53. It is on the strength of this testimony of PW-3 that the learned Counsel for the appellants submits that there was absolutely no identification of the appellants on the wayside, near the Baudh Sangrahalaya. Nothing of the kind as said by the prosecution witnesses about identification, including PW-3, ever came to pass. The appellants were got identified by the police on 09.12.2001 at the Police Station, and lateron, shown to be arrested in Arjun's grove, near the Baudh Sangrahalaya in a fake NDPS Case. They were then foisted with illegal and fake recoveries said to be proceeds of the dacoity, as also weapons of the crime and some other articles. They were shown to be arrested on a chance identification, that never happened. A bogus statement of Smt. Renu Rai, PW-3, was shown to be recorded on 12.12.2001, post the appellants' fake arrest. It is, in particular, emphasized by Sri Mishra that it is for this reason that none of the recovery memoranda bear signatures of members of the public, except those of Smt. Renu Rai, Anil Kumar Rai and Ajay Kumar Rai.

54. It is submitted on behalf of the appellants that the entire evidence of Smt. Renu Rai, PW-3, who is the prosecution's star witness, collapses under the weight of the fact that all the appellants were introduced to her as the offenders, prior to their sham arrest in the present crime and the antecedent arrest in the NDPS Cases.

55. Sri J.K. Upadhyay, learned A.G.A. and Sri Rajendra Rai, learned Counsel for the complainant have refuted the various contentions put forth on behalf of the appellants and have submitted that the categorical testimony of PW-3, Smt. Renu Rai, who is an injured witness, cannot be trifled with for lapses of investigation, even if they be serious lapses. They have submitted in one voice that the deposition of Smt. Renu Rai is consistent about the involvement of the appellants in the crime and she has described in graphic detail, what befell her family on the fateful night. It is emphasized by the learned A.G.A. as well as learned Counsel for the complainant that Smt. Renu Rai does not know the appellants or has any kind of acquaintance with them. She has no reason to falsely implicate them in a heinous crime.

56. We have carefully considered rival submissions advanced on behalf of both sides.

57. It would be convenient to consider under definitive heads the facts in issue or relevant facts that have been the subject matter of contention before us.

(1) The First Information Report and circumstances attending it

58. The submission of the learned Counsel for the appellants that the sequence of events and circumstances, leading to discovery of the crime and registration of the First Information Report, shows it to be a false account and a coverup for what was the truth about it, is to be seen with reference to the circumstances in which the First Information Report was registered. To the understanding of this Court the First Information Report came to be registered when Anil Kumar Rai and his brother, Pramil Rai, being cousins of the deceased, Rakesh Chandra Rai, were informed, or otherwise came to know from neighbours that there was an unusual quiet about the house in the morning of 22.11.2001. No one was moving there and the door was bolted from within. Sensing trouble, the neighbours along with these two kinsmen of Rakesh Chandra Rai had assembled outside his entrance, where the gate or the main door was bolted from within. Neither the neighbours or Anil or Pramil moved in to see what had happened to the inmates. Instead, he called up over telephone, Ajay Kumar Rai, who is somewhere described as a cousin of Rakesh Chandra Rai, but is in fact his brother-in-law (husband of wife's sister). He conveyed to Ajay Kumar Rai the circumstances that led him and others gathered outside Rakesh's premises to believe that something untoward had happened to the inmates. Anil Kumar Rai asked Ajay Kumar Rai to come over immediately. Anil Kumar Rai waited for Ajay Kumar Rai to come over instead of moving in himself, along with others to render assistance to inmates of the house, whom everyone present believed to have suffered some ill-happening. Ajay Kumar Rai was located in a certain village Chandi Gaon, some 25 kilometers away from the Gorakhpur Headquarters. On receiving information, he immediately moved with other family members, but reckoning the distance between the village Chandi Gaon and Gorakhpur Headquarters, it took him about 45 minutes to reach Gorakhpur, and some more time to reach Rakesh Chandra Rai's house. It was, upon Ajay Kumar Rai's arrival that Anil Kumar Rai along with Ajay Kumar Rai, gained entry to the house of Rakesh Chandra Rai, after scaling a wall, separating his premises from those of one H.N. Singh, whose house the two entered through the main-gate. It is this conduct of Anil Kumar Rai and Pramil Rai, that has been the subject matter of scathing criticism about the First Information Report being the narrative of a false account and a coverup.

59. To our understanding, there is nothing unnatural about it all. The conduct of men on encountering a particular situation is to be evaluated going by the prevalent circumstances in a society. It is not that the conduct of Anil Kumar Rai, his brother Pramil Rai, in awaiting arrival of Ajay Kumar Rai before moving in to the house has to be judged with reference to some copy-book model of ideal behaviour. And, then every departure or a serious departure from it viewed as a circumstance casting suspicion over their conduct, or the first information they lodged. In contemporary times, and times not so contemporary also, the dis-motive of false implication by the police, or at least spending a torturous time being interrogated as a suspect outweighs the motive of ordinary and respectable men to rush in and rescue their fellowmen, or even relatives who might have become victims of a suspected crime or an accident. Under the circumstances, if Anil Kumar Rai or his brother, Pramil Rai thought that they better await the arrival of Rakesh Chandra Rai's brother-in-law, before anyone moved in to see what had happened, the conduct cannot be castigated as unnatural. It must be remarked that due to the fact that anyone who comes close to a suspected or potential scene of crime has to spend quite an unpleasant time, going by the hard handed, high handed and stereotyped investigation by the police, applying outmoded methods, many a life is lost, that could be saved by any good spirited and respectable man. In these circumstances, Anil Kumar Rai or his brother, Pramil Rai did not do anything unnatural in waiting for Ajay Kumar Rai's arrival, along with other members of the family.

60. It would be noticed that our assessment of the situation is in no way a hyperbole, if one were to look to the fact that even unconnected men who had congregated, may be neighbours or just passers by, also did not venture in to take the risk of finding out what had happened to the inmates of the house. No one ventured in until the closest of relatives to the family had arrived, so as to be all differently placed and sufficient in number to bear the brunt of an expected, rustic investigation by the police.

61. In our considered opinion, the conduct of Anil Kumar Rai, his brother, Pramil Rai, all members of the public who had collected outside the house where the crime occurred, as well as that of Ajay Kumar Rai is not at all blameworthy or one that creates any doubt about the First Information Report, carrying a truthful account.

62. So far as criticism of the First Information Report based on non-examination of H.N. Singh is concerned, through whose main door Ajay Kumar Rai and Anil Kumar Rai went inside his house to gain access to the wall separating H.N. Singh's premises and those of Rakesh Chandra Rai, it may be a lapse of investigation on the part of the police, but in no way does it detract from the veracity of the First Information Report. It is true that H.N. Singh would be an independent witness about the manner of discovery of the crime on which the First Information Report is based, and logically ought to have been examined, but his non-examination would not throw the unqualified account of Ajay Kumar Rai and Anil Kumar Rai under any kind of doubt. On this score too, this Court is satisfied that there is nothing about the circumstances leading to the First Information Report or the manner in which the crime has been reported to be discovered, that may cast some legitimate doubt about the First Information Report.

(2) The manner of arrest and connecting the appellants to the crime on its basis

63. About this relevant fact, this Court has heard elaborate arguments on both sides. The learned Counsel for the appellants has been more emphatic about it. It would not be of much utility to recapitulate the appellants' contention about it for every fine detail, including the evidence on which the submissions are based. They have been recorded in the earlier part of this judgment where contentions of parties have been noticed. The manner of arrest is in the opinion of this Court a very relevant fact, because the arrest has ensued identification of the appellants by PW-3, Smt. Renu Rai. But, for the identification that is shown to be a chance occurrence, while the appellants were arrested in connection with an NDPS Case near the Baudh Sangrahalaya and PW-3, Smt. Renu Rai along with her uncles, Ajay Kumar Rai and Anil Kumar Rai suddenly alighting there en route to a Doctor, the appellants would not have been connected to the present crime.

64. It is true that persons of ordinary prudence and common men, like PW-1, Ajay Kumar Rai, PW-2, Anil Kumar Rai and PW-3, Smt. Renu Rai, would not be attracted or virtually drawn to a crowd of people in a grove, with police about the place. Learned Counsel for the appellants has laid much emphasis on this point that any person placed in the circumstances like the three prosecution witnesses would steer clear of troubles way, instead of plunging into it, as the prosecution witnesses have done. On the foot of this rather unusual behaviour, learned Counsel for the appellants has urged strongly, in conjunction with certain other relevant facts that either the prosecution witnesses were called over by the police to do a sham identification of the appellants who were already arrested and identified, or these witnesses never went to the place where the arrest is shown. No arrest in the manner shown was ever made.

65. In our opinion, it is indeed an exemplar of unusual behaviour that the prosecution witnesses circumstanced as they were would be drawn to the rather unseemly sight of a crowd mixed up with the police. They were a family, not yet emerged from a serious tragedy. According to the prosecution, Smt. Renu Rai was proceeding to the Doctors or the Hospital, whatever it might be, to seek medical treatment for some of the persisting fallouts of the assault that she had suffered. There is no particular reason suggested by any of the three witnesses, about what attracted them to the place where the appellants had been apprehended. While they were on way to the Doctors, there would have to be some very special reason for these witnesses to do so, which is conspicuous by its absence in their testimony. The identification of the appellants in the manner it is described by PW-1 in his examination-in-chief, quoted hereinbefore, makes for an account that more than meets the eye. Some articles of loot along with recovered narcotics were said to be lying there, which the witnesses saw and recognized, whereas PW-3, Renu Rai spontaneously identified the six arrested men as the perpetrators of this crime who had committed dacoity and murder at her father's house. It does seem rather unusual and unconvincing that each of the six men present, whom PW-3 had seen during the short period of time that the family suffered the crime, and she too was injured, would spontaneously recognize everyone of them. They were not her acquaintances. At the most one man about whom she has said elsewhere, visiting her place during the day portraying as a beggar could be recognized, but to believe that all six would be identified with precision and spontaneity, defies all good logic.

66. The arrest of the appellants in the NDPS Case and while they were held in police custody, being investigated for the narcotics crime, the sudden appearance of the prosecution witnesses, including PW-3 there, accompanied with prior recovery of some articles of loot and then a post disclosure recovery of the weapon of offence, along with a bag carrying some diaries and wallet to connect it to two of the deceased, appears to be too unnatural and real to happen around. The entire circumstances attending the arrest and identification of the appellants smack of pre-planned action, if at all it happened that way. The part related to recovery of the articles of loot, which is not provable under Section 27 of the Evidence Act, besides the post disclosure recovery attributed to the appellants, are closely related facts, that would soon be dealt with in this judgment. But, on the evidence on record, we are convinced that the appellants were not arrested or identified in the manner the prosecution wants us to believe. They appear to have been arrested under different circumstances, and charged first in connection with the NDPS Case; and, lateron, in connection with the present crime, but not in the manner described. They have been identified also elsewhere by the appellants, and not the way the prosecution urges.

(3) Recovery of some looted articles and the weapon of offence

67. While the learned Counsel for the appellants has assailed the recovery as one that is completely fake, made up and foisted, learned A.G.A. and Sri Rajendra Rai, learned Counsel for the complainant have emphatically submitted that both recoveries have been proved beyond any shadow of doubt. In the submission of the learned A.G.A. and the learned Counsel for the complainant, the first part of the recovery carries with it the guarantee of spontaneity, inasmuch as, the articles of jewelry looted were recovered during search in connection with the NDPS Case. These articles were, thereafter, spontaneously identified by PW-3, who appeared on the scene per chance. In the circumstances, according to the learned Counsel supporting the prosecution, there is no possibility of these recovered articles of loot being planted on the appellants. So far as the recovery of weapon of offence is concerned, it is submitted for the prosecution that the recovery is clearly one made in accordance with the provisions of Section 27 of the Evidence Act, after a disclosure made by the appellants and on their pointing out. There is no reason to doubt both sets of recoveries, that are embodied in the recovery memoranda, both dated 12.12.2001, Ex. Ka-2 and Ex. Ka-3.

68. The recovery of proceeds of dacoity attributed to the appellants is very different from recovery of the weapon of offence and certain other belongings that were recovered at the pointing of the appellants. The looted items of jewelry are said to be recovered from the appellants. Regarding these articles recovered, recovery memo, Ex. Ka-3 has been drawn up. This recovery memo has been drawn up after coincidental and spontaneous identification of the appellants by PW-3 in the grove, where they were held arrested in connection with the narcotics case. It attributes the recovery of a mangalsutra from the appellant, Shyam @ Sambhal with black coloured guria carrying a silver pendant in a gold polished chain, described as sikri. The appellant, Raju Mali was shown to be in possession of another mangalsutra, that carried black coloured beads with four gold gurias entangled in it. It is said to be in a dismembered state. Likewise, the recovery memo shows that from the appellant, Rinku a silver coin bearing the year of mint as 1901 was recovered, that bore the image of the King Emperor, besides two silver bichhia (a pair). It is mentioned in the recovery memo that these already recovered articles of jewelry when shown to PW-3, Smt. Renu Rai were identified by her immediately as her belongings and looted on the night of occurrence.

69. A perusal of the deposition of PW-1, dated 13.08.2002, that is part of his cross-examination at the instance of Raju Mali and Jeewan Mali extracted hereinbefore, clearly shows that these articles said to be recovered from the appellants, were shown as recoveries already made by the police. They were not recovered in the presence of PW-1 or PW-3. Likewise, PW-1 in his cross-examination on 14.08.2002 has categorically said that the police did not recover the mangalsutra or the silver coin in his presence. He could not say what article was recovered from each of the appellants. To the same effect is the deposition of PW-2 recorded on 20.08.2002, where he has clearly said that before the prosecution witnesses reached the place of arrest, the two mangalsutra, the gold coin and the bichhia (a pair) had already been recovered by the police from the appellants. Smt. Renu Rai, PW-3 who is said to have identified the accused on 12.12.2001, in the circumstances already detailed, has said about the recovery of this jewelry that belongs to her family in her examination-in-chief on 06.09.2002, that as she wailed and cried (upon identifying the appellants), the police showed her the two mangalsutra, the gold coin and a pair of bichhia, besides a hammer made of iron. It is, thus, evident that whatever was recovered as proceeds of the dacoity from the appellants, was not recovered in the presence of the prosecution witnesses, who have signed the recovery memo. They have signed the recovery memo, Ex. Ka-3 because the police gave them to understand that these articles were recovered from particular appellants, assigning them possession of different articles. The recovery memo is also not signed by any member of the public who are said to be present in large numbers. This recovery memo is not made after a disclosure statement or at least a prior mention of it, followed by its recovery at the pointing of the appellants. All these articles are said to be chance discoveries while the appellants were searched and held in connection with the NDPS Case. This part of the recovery is, therefore, not relevant under Section 27 of the Evidence Act. That, however, does not mean that the recovery cannot or could not at all be proved. It would have to be proved in accordance with law. Whether it is proved by cogent evidence in this case is quite another matter.

70. It has figured in the cross-examination of PW-1, dated 13.08.2002 at the instance of Raju Mali and Jeewan Mali that at the scene of crime, much articles of jewelry lay strewn. For reasons that we shall presently indicate, we do not find this recovery of looted jewelry from the appellants made by the police, unwitnessed by any member of the public, to be at all reliable. There is a strong possibility that these articles were planted on the appellants, while they were searched and held in connection with the NDPS Case. The other part of the recovery relates to the weapon of offence and a rexine bag carrying two small diaries belonging to the deceased, Chandra Shekhar Rai and a wallet with an identity card of Rakesh Chandra Rai, kept in it. Regarding these recoveries, a separate recovery memo, Ex. Ka-2, also dated 12.12.2001 has been drawn up. These recoveries have been made pursuant to a disclosure statement by the appellants recorded in the recovery memo, Ex. Ka-3, where the disclosure statement has been recorded in the following words:

"इस घटना में प्रयुक्त डण्डा व मिला बैग जिसमें डायरी व पर्स वगैरह था शिनाख्त के भय से हम लोगों ने यही झाड़ी में फेंक दिया है।"

71. Now, Ex. Ka-2 which is the recovery memo relating to the weapon of offence and the rexine bag that was looted, has been recorded in the following words:

"गवाह मौके पर मौजूद श्रीमती रेनू राय w/o श्री रणजीत राय R/o वेला सुल्तान पुर PS घोषी जनपद मऊ हाल पता शिवाजी नगर कालोनी PS खोराबार गोरखपुर व श्री अजय कुमार राय S/o श्री ओपी राय सा0 चांदी PS बासगांव जनपद गोरखपुर व श्री अनिल कुमार राय S/o श्री लाल जी राय R/o 345/B आजाद नगर नहर रोड रूस्तमपुर PS कैण्ट गोरखपुर के समक्ष पकड़े गये अभियुक्त श्याम उर्फ शम्मल, राजू माली, रिंकू चौधरी, धन सिंह, जीवन माली ने आगे-आगे चलकर मुख्य सड़क के उत्तर तरफ अर्जुन के बाग में फेंका गया झाड़ी से निकाल कर वैग रिकसिन का कत्थई छींटदार जिस पर वी0 आई0 पी0 का लेवल टीन का चस्पा है जिसमें काले रंग की दो चैन लगी है तथा अमरूद का डण्डा दिया, बैग खोल कर देखा गया तो एक पर्स काले रंग का जिसमें राकेश चन्द्र राय का फोटो लगा पहचान-पत्र आयकर आयुक्त इलाहाबाद के दस्तखती व एक छोटी डायरी जिस पर चन्द्रशेखर राय का नाम व पता लिखा है तथा नीव प्लाई लिखा है तथा एक छोटी डायरी जिस पर श्री चन्द्र शेखर राय का नाम लिखा है जिसे देखते ही रेनू ने बताया कि यह मेरे भाई की डायरी व बैग है तथा पर्स में मेरे पिता का पहचान-पत्र है उसी बैग में सभी डायरी व पर्स रखकर कपड़े में सील कर सर्व मुहर किया गया डण्डा का निरीक्षण किया गया तो डण्डे में खून का धब्बा लगा है डण्डे की लम्बाई करीब पौने दो हाथ है जिसे वजह सबूत कब्जा में लिया गया जिसे परीक्षण को ध्यान में रखते हुए एक कपड़े में सील कर सर्व मोहर किया गया।"

72. This recovery is relevant under Section 27 of the Evidence Act, being one made pursuant to a disclosure statement and also witnessed by the three prosecution witnesses. The prosecution witnesses are not in any way inimical to the appellants, or their prior acquaintances. Under usual circumstances, therefore, there should be no reason to distrust the fact that recoveries of these articles, that are subject matter of Ex. Ka-2 was made in their presence. It would again be quite another matter whether the weapon of offence is indeed one that was used in the crime or the fact that the bag recovered at the instance of the appellants, pursuant to a disclosure statement was after all a looted article that was thrown there, or under the circumstances of this case and the evidence that would be noticed hereinafter, the appellants were forced to make a false disclosure. And, lateron, planted articles by the police were shown recovered at their instance in the presence of the prosecution witnesses. In ordinary circumstances, it would be imprudent not to accept the recovery of the rexine bag, but other facts and evidence in this case impel us to doubt this recovery, if not altogether reject it. Those circumstances and evidence would be indicated shortly, in the totality of which the arrest, identification and recoveries, all have to be viewed.

73. So far as the weapon of offence is concerned, it is said to be a stick made of guava tree wood. It was found smeared with blood, according to the recovery memo, Ex. Ka-2. However, the serological examination report from the Forensic Science Laboratory, U.P., Lucknow, dated 17.08.2002, Ex. Ka-57, that is listed in the referred articles at serial no.6, has been found in the result to carry blood that was disintegrated, the origin of which could not be ascertained. The weapon of offence said to be recovered at the instance of the appellants cannot, therefore, be surely connected to the crime. So far as the rexine bag carrying the wallet and two diaries of two of the deceased in the crime is concerned, it is a recovery on the pointing of the appellants. It cannot be held proved, though not disapproved either. It falls in the category of a fact 'not proved' within the meaning of Section 3 of the Indian Evidence Act. The circumstances and reasons for us to doubt these recoveries too would be indicated, a little later in this judgment.

(4) Worth and value of the testimony of the sole surviving injured witness, PW-3, Smt. Renu Rai and its bearing, in particular, on the identity of the appellants as also recovery made from them

74. The prosecution have strongly depended upon the testimony of the sole surviving injured witness, Smt. Renu Rai, and say that it is enough by itself to convict the appellants. Sri J.K. Upadhyay, learned A.G.A. and Sri Rajendra Rai, learned Counsel for the complainant who have jointly canvassed the prosecution case before us have submitted that Smt. Renu Rai is the sole surviving and injured witness of the crime. She does not have prior acquaintance with the appellants, that may form basis to suspect a shadow of cause for a false or motivated implication. Learned Counsel for the prosecution have impressed upon the Court the fact that looking to the enormity of the crime, where all members of Renu Rai's family were done to death before her eyes, including her three young sons, there is not the slightest reason to doubt her evidence which is clear, categorical and graphic. There is no reason why PW-3 would falsely implicate the appellants or anyone else, for that matter. It is urged further that being an injured witness, her presence at the scene of crime cannot be doubted. It is also emphasized that she is also not an injured witness of the kind who might have been marginally afflicted in the assault. Like, the other victims, she too suffered battery at the hands of the appellants and remained hospitalized in a critical condition at Lucknow for a number of days. Unlike, the other victims, she was fortunate to have survived. As such, in the submission of the learned Counsel appearing for the prosecution, her evidence comes with an inherent guarantee of truth. There is no way it can be disregarded. Her evidence is of sterling quality, and enough by itself to convict the appellants. The infirmities pointed out by the appellants go no far than lapses or may be failures of an inept investigation. But, none of those lapses are of a kind or nature that may eclipse the eye witness account of PW-3, which the Trial Court has rightly relied upon to convict the appellants. Learned Counsel for the appellants on the other hand has called the testimony of PW-3, Smt. Renu Rai, the product of an illegal identification, and, therefore, vitiated. The details of his submissions in this regard have been recorded hereinbefore and need not be recapitulated.

75. Smt. Renu Rai is indisputably an eye-witness to the gruesome crime and a seriously injured one at that. Her testimony in itself no doubt carries great weight, comes as it does with an inherent guarantee of truth to it. She is a witness who has lost all her family, including three minor sons. We do not have the slightest manner of doubt that she would have reason to falsely implicate anyone knowingly and much less, motivatedly or maliciously, in a crime of this enormity, kind and consequences unless her judgment were blurred by mistake or misguiding suggestion. The principle about a relative generally not deposing to implicate falsely an innocent man, or to shield the true offender, finds authoritative statement in an early decision of their Lordships of the Supreme Court in Dalip Singh vs. State of Punjab, AIR 1953 SC 364, where it is held:

"26.A witness is normally to be considered independent unless he or she springs from sources which are likely to be tainted and that usually means unless the witness has cause, such as enmity against the accused, to wish to implicate him falsely. Ordinarily, a close relative would be the last to screen the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent person. It is true, when feelings run high and there is personal cause for enmity, that there is a tendency to drag in an innocent person against whom a witness has a grudge along with the guilty, but foundation must be laid for such a criticism and the mere fact of relationship far from being a foundation is often a sure guarantee of truth. However, we are not attempting any sweeping generalisation. Each case must be judged on its own facts. Our observations are only made to combat what is so often put forward in cases before us as a general rule of prudence. There is no such general rule. Each case must be limited to and be governed by its own facts.

27.This is not to say that in a given case a Judge for reasons special to that case and to that witness cannot say that he is not prepared to believe the witness because of his general unreliability, or for other reasons, unless he is corroborated. Of course, that can be done. But the basis for such a conclusion must rest on facts special to the particular instance and cannot be grounded on a supposedly general rule of prudence enjoined by law as in the case of accomplices."

76. The same principle with a recount of an earlier authority on the point has been endorsed by the Supreme Court in Abdul Sayeed vs. State of M.P., (2010) 10 SCC 259. In paragraphs 28, 29, 30 & 31 of the report, it has been held:

"28. The question of the weight to be attached to the evidence of a witness that was himself injured in the course of the occurrence has been extensively discussed by this Court. Where a witness to the occurrence has himself been injured in the incident, the testimony of such a witness is generally considered to be very reliable, as he is a witness that comes with a built-in guarantee of his presence at the scene of the crime and is unlikely to spare his actual assailant(s) in order to falsely implicate someone. "Convincing evidence is required to discredit an injured witness." [Vide Ramlagan Singh v. State of Bihar [(1973) 3 SCC 881 : 1973 SCC (Cri) 563 : AIR 1972 SC 2593], Malkhan Singh v. State of U.P. [(1975) 3 SCC 311: 1974 SCC (Cri) 919 : AIR 1975 SC 12], Machhi Singh v. State of Punjab [(1983) 3 SCC 470 : 1983 SCC (Cri) 681], Appabhai v. State of Gujarat [1988 Supp SCC 241 : 1988 SCC (Cri) 559 : AIR 1988 SC 696], Bonkya v. State of Maharashtra [(1995) 6 SCC 447 : 1995 SCC (Cri) 1113], Bhag Singh [(1997) 7 SCC 712 : 1997 SCC (Cri) 1163], Mohar v. State of U.P. [(2002) 7 SCC 606 : 2003 SCC (Cri) 121] (SCC p. 606b-c), Dinesh Kumar v. State of Rajasthan [(2008) 8 SCC 270 : (2008) 3 SCC (Cri) 472], Vishnu v. State of Rajasthan [(2009) 10 SCC 477 : (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 302], Annareddy Sambasiva Reddy v. State of A.P. [(2009) 12 SCC 546 : (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 630] and Balraje v. State of Maharashtra [(2010) 6 SCC 673 :(2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 211].]

29. While deciding this issue, a similar view was taken in Jarnail Singh v. State of Punjab [(2009) 9 SCC 719 : (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 107] , where this Court reiterated the special evidentiary status accorded to the testimony of an injured accused and relying on its earlier judgments held as under: (SCC pp. 726-27, paras 28-29)

"28. Darshan Singh (PW 4) was an injured witness. He had been examined by the doctor. His testimony could not be brushed aside lightly. He had given full details of the incident as he was present at the time when the assailants reached the tubewell. In Shivalingappa Kallayanappa v. State of Karnataka [1994 Supp (3) SCC 235 : 1994 SCC (Cri) 1694] this Court has held that the deposition of the injured witness should be relied upon unless there are strong grounds for rejection of his evidence on the basis of major contradictions and discrepancies, for the reason that his presence on the scene stands established in case it is proved that he suffered the injury during the said incident.

29. In State of U.P. v. Kishan Chand [(2004) 7 SCC 629 : 2004 SCC (Cri) 2013] a similar view has been reiterated observing that the testimony of a stamped witness has its own relevance and efficacy. The fact that the witness sustained injuries at the time and place of occurrence, lends support to his testimony that he was present during the occurrence. In case the injured witness is subjected to lengthy cross-examination and nothing can be elicited to discard his testimony, it should be relied upon (vide Krishan v. State of Haryana [(2006) 12 SCC 459 : (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 214]). Thus, we are of the considered opinion that evidence of Darshan Singh (PW 4) has rightly been relied upon by the courts below."

30. The law on the point can be summarised to the effect that the testimony of the injured witness is accorded a special status in law. This is as a consequence of the fact that the injury to the witness is an inbuilt guarantee of his presence at the scene of the crime and because the witness will not want to let his actual assailant go unpunished merely to falsely implicate a third party for the commission of the offence. Thus, the deposition of the injured witness should be relied upon unless there are strong grounds for rejection of his evidence on the basis of major contradictions and discrepancies therein.

31. Ashfaq (PW 2) had given a graphic description of the entire incident. His presence on the spot cannot be doubted as he was injured in the incident. His deposition must be given due weightage. His deposition also stood fully corroborated by the evidence of Anees (PW 1) and Usman Ali (PW 4). The depositions so made cannot be brushed aside merely because there have been some trivial contradictions or omissions."

77. The principle about the high value of evidence of an injured witness is well acknowledged. A witness who has lost all her family in the crime carries a very high probative value, comes as it does with an inherent guarantee of truth about it. There is no reason to multiply reference to authorities on the point as the proposition involved is well settled. So far as the occurrence goes, the evidence of PW-3 carries graphic detail rendered in an unwavering manner. The deposition of PW-3, in her examination-in-chief on 05.09.2002, requires to be quoted for every word of it. It reads:

"बहलफ बयान किया कि आज से नौ माह से कुछ अधिक हुआ दिनांक 21-12-2001 को मै अपने तीन बच्चो वावी, विक्की और विभू के साथ शिवाजी नगर स्थित अपने पिता राकेश चन्द्र राय के घर पर थी । इस दिन शाम को मेरे यहां एक आदमी भीख मागने आया था यदि वह व्यक्ति जो मेरे घर में उस दिन भीख मागंने आया था यदि आ जाये तो मै पहचान सकती हूँ।

इस प्रश्न के द्वारा अभियोजन पक्ष के अधिवक्ता मुलजिम की शिनाख्त या पहचान कराना चाहते है जिस पर अभियुक्त के विद्वान अधिवक्ता ने विरोध किया कि विवेचना अधिकारी द्वारा दौरान विवेचना शिनाख्त की कार्यवाई नही कराई गई है ऐसी स्थिति में साक्ष्य के समय अभियोजन द्वारा शिनाख्त की कार्यवाई नहीं कराई जा सकती है।

न्यायालय द्वारा अभियुक्त के विद्वान अधिवक्ता का विरोध स्वीकार नही किया गया और अभियोजन पक्ष को अनुमति दी गई कि वह साक्षी द्वारा अभियुक्त की पहचान करा सकते है।

साक्षी द्वारा अभियुक्त हाजिर अदालत श्याम को पहचाना गया और कहा कि यही अभियुक्त मेरे घर पर भीख मांगने आया था।

दरवाजा खोला तो देखा कि जो मुलजिम भीख मागंने आया था वह दरवाजे के सामने डंडा लेकर खड़ा था । उसके पीछे भी चार आदमी डंडा लिये खड़े थे। जो इस समय हाजिर अदालत है। अभियुक्तो को देखकर गवाह ने कहा कि यही मुलजिमान थे जिस पर अभियुक्तो ने अपना नाम राजू, धन सिंह, जीवन, रिंकू कुमार चौधरी बताया। जो आदमी मेरे सामने सबसे पहले खड़ा था उससे मैने पूछा कि तुम तो कल तीन बजे भीख मागने के लिये आये थे इस समय किस लिये आये हो उसने कहा कि कल भीख मॉगने आये थे इस समय लूटने आया हूँ इस पर मुलजिमान मेरे कमरे में घुसते है उसके बाद जो भीख मागने आया वह मेरे गले का मंगल सूत्र पकड़ता है और बाकी लोग बक्सा जो खुला हुआ था उसमें से कपड़े निकाल कर फेकते है बक्से में एक बैग में गहने रक्खा था उस बैग को निकाले और उसमें से गहना निकाल लिये और बैग फेंक दिये। जब मेरे गले से अभियुक्त मगंल सूत्र खीचं रहा था तो मैने कहा कि जो कुछ तुम्हे लेना है तुम ले लो तब तक भीख मागंने वाले के इशारे पर तो धन सिंह ने डंडे से मेरे हसुली की हड्डी पर डंडे से मारा और हसुली की हडडी टूट गई और मुलजिम ने मगंल सूत्र खीच लिया। इस पर मेरे बच्चे जग गये और रोने चिल्लाने लगे जो भीख मागने आया था उसने मेरे बड़े लड़के बावी को अपने हाथ में लिये हुये डंडे से मारा उसके बाद बाकी चारो मुलजिमानों ने मेरे तीन बच्चों को मारा तीनों बच्चो ने चिल्लाना बन्द कर दिया छोटा बच्चा नीचे गिर गया मैने इन लोगों से न मारने के लिये विनय किया लेकिन ये लोग नही माने। बच्चे इन लोगों के मारने से मर गये तीनो बच्चों की मौत हो गई इसके बाद भीख मांगने वाले ने मुझे डंडे से मारा और मै बेहोश हो गई फिर मै नही जानती कि क्या हुआ।

फिर मुझे जब होश आया तो मैने अपने आपको अस्पताल में पाया। सामने मेरे पति खडे थे मैने अपने पति से पूछा कि मै यहां कैसे आ गई तो उन्होने बताया कि तुम्हारी तबियत खराब थी इसलिये लखनऊ अस्पताल ले आया हूँ।"

78. But, the question is that notwithstanding the consistency of her account about the occurrence and identification of the appellants in Court, can it be said on the evidence of PW-3, Smt. Renu Rai that she was mal-influenced, misguided, or in one manner or the other, aberrated in her judgment about identifying the appellants? If for some reason she has erred in her judgment about the identity of the appellants, can her evidence be still classed as sterling so as to found a conviction. Normally, in a matter like the present one, where the identity of the offender or the offenders is completely unknown to the victim, the suspects ought to be put up for a test identification. The result of a test identification parade is relevant under Section 9 of the Evidence Act, and although, it is a procedure that rightfully belongs to the stage of investigation to lend the Investigator an assurance about the identity of the offender, it is of great worth in corroborating evidence of the identifying witness in the dock. There are, however, known exceptions to the rule where no test identification parade may be held. One is where the offender is a prior acquaintance of the witness or otherwise well-known to him/ her. The other is when the identity of the offender becomes known to the witness through some kind of a chance exposure of the offender, such as, publication of photographs in the Print or Electronic Media or the offender being somehow seen by the witness during various steps of investigation, or in some other manner.

79. It is no doubt ultimately identification by the witness in the dock, that is substantive evidence about the offender's involvement. However, that is subject to the witness's assured capability of identifying the offender uncorrupted by suggestion, misplaced imagination or a mistake about the offender's identity of any kind of genre. It has also been held on high authority that notwithstanding the absence of a test identification to corroborate a witness's evidence about identification in the dock, the testimony in Court may still be good in cases where there are reasons for the witnesses to retain an enduring impression about the identity of the offender. In this connection, about the legal postulate, reference may be made to the decision of the Supreme Court in Daya Singh vs. State of Haryana, (2001) 3 SCC 468, where in the context of an offence under Sections 3 and 5 of the Terrorist and Disruptive Activities (Prevention) Act, 1987, an identification of the accused by two prosecution witnesses straightaway in the dock after a lapse of seven and a half years was held good. It was held in Daya Singh (supra):

"11. At this stage we would first refer to the decisions upon which reliance is placed. In the case of Soni [(1982) 3 SCC 368 (1) : 1983 SCC (Cri) 49 (I)] this Court observed that a delay of 42 days in holding the identification parade throws a doubt on genuineness thereof, apart from the fact that it is difficult that after a lapse of such a long time the witnesses would be remembering facial expression of the appellant. In the case of Mohd. Abdul Hafeez [(1983) 1 SCC 143 : 1983 SCC (Cri) 139 : AIR 1983 SC 367] the Court while dealing with a robbery case observed that as no identification parade was held, no reliance can be placed on the identification of the accused after a lapse of four months in the Court. In the case of Hari Nath [(1988) 1 SCC 14 : 1988 SCC (Cri) 14 : AIR 1988 SC 345] the Court observed that evidence of test identification is admissible under Section 9 of the Evidence Act. But the value of test identification, apart from the other safeguards appropriate to a fair test of identification depends upon the promptitude in point of time with which the suspected persons are put up for test identification. If there is an unexplained and unreasonable delay in putting up the accused persons for a test identification, the delay by itself detracts from the credibility of the test. The Court further referred to (para 9) Prof. Borchard: Convicting the Innocent on the basis of error in identification of the accused. The learned author has observed:

"The emotional balance of the victim or eyewitness is so disturbed by his extraordinary experience that his powers of perception become distorted and his identification is frequently most untrustworthy. Into the identification enter other motives not necessarily stimulated originally by the accused personally -- the desire to requite a crime, to exact vengeance upon the person believed guilty, to find a scapegoat, to support, consciously or unconsciously, an identification already made by another. Thus, doubts are resolved against the accused."

12. In AIR paras 10 and 11, the Court has observed as under: (SCC p. 21, paras 19-21)

"19. The evidence of identification merely corroborates and strengthens the oral testimony in court which alone is the primary and substantive evidence as to identity. In Sk. Hasib v. State of Bihar [(1972) 4 SCC 773 : AIR 1972 SC 283] this Court observed: (SCC p. 777, para 5)

"... the purpose of test identification is to test that evidence, the safe rule being that the sworn testimony of the witness in court as to the identity of the accused who is a stranger to him, as a general rule, requires corroboration in the form of an earlier identification proceeding.'

20. In Rameshwar Singh v. State of J&K [(1971) 2 SCC 715 : 1971 SCC (Cri) 638 : AIR 1972 SC 102] this Court observed: [SCC p. 718, SCC (Cri) p. 641, para 6]

"... it may be remembered that the substantive evidence of a witness is his evidence in court, but when the accused person is not previously known to the witness concerned then identification of the accused by the witness soon after the former's arrest is of vital importance because it furnishes to the investigating agency an assurance that the investigation is proceeding on right lines in addition to furnishing corroboration of the evidence to be given by the witness later in court at the trial.'

21. It is, no doubt, true that absence of corroboration by test identification may not assume any materiality if either the witness had known the accused earlier or where the reasons for gaining an enduring impress of the identity on the mind and memory of the witness are, otherwise, brought out. It is also rightly said that:

"Courts ought not to increase the difficulties by magnifying the theoretical possibilities. It is their province to deal with matters actual and material to promote order and not surrender it by excessive theorising or by magnifying what in practice is really unimportant.' "

13. The question, therefore, is -- whether the evidence of injured eyewitnesses PW 37 and PW 38 is sufficient to connect the appellant with the crime beyond reasonable doubt. For this purpose, it is to be borne in mind that the purpose of test identification is to have corroboration to the evidence of the eyewitnesses in the form of earlier identification and that substantive evidence of a witness is the evidence in the court. If that evidence is found to be reliable then absence of corroboration by test identification would not be in any way material. Further, where reasons for gaining an enduring impress of the identity on the mind and memory of the witnesses are brought on record, it is no use to magnify the theoretical possibilities and arrive at conclusion -- what in present-day social environment infested by terrorism is really unimportant. In such cases, not holding of identification parade is not fatal to the prosecution. The purpose of identification parade is succinctly stated by this Court in State of Maharashtra v. Suresh [(2000) 1 SCC 471 : 2000 SCC (Cri) 263] as under: (SCC p. 478, para 22)

"We remind ourselves that identification parades are not primarily meant for the court. They are meant for investigation purposes. The object of conducting a test identification parade is twofold. First is to enable the witnesses to satisfy themselves that the prisoner whom they suspect is really the one who was seen by them in connection with the commission of the crime. Second is to satisfy the investigating authorities that the suspect is the real person whom the witnesses had seen in connection with the said occurrence."

14. In the present case, there is no lapse on the part of the investigating officer in holding the test identification parade. The appellant was arrested on 28-5-1988 and the identification parade was to be held on 2nd June, but on that day the accused refused to take part in the parade. For his arrest, PW 45 Resham Singh, DIG and PW

46 Bishan Singh, CIA Inspector have specifically stated that the appellant was arrested on 27-5-1988 by the Punjab Police and was brought to Kurukshetra on 28-5-1988 and was sent to judicial custody as he was to be identified. Further, there is no reason to disbelieve the evidence of Tahsildar who had gone there for holding the test identification parade of the accused. Learned Senior Counsel Mr Lalit repeatedly submitted that the investigating officer had not produced on record the statement of the accused recorded by Tahsildar and the report submitted by him and, therefore, no credence should be given to the evidence of Tahsildar. In our view, this submission is totally misconceived. It is true that if the investigating officer had produced on record the statement of the accused and the report submitted by Tahsildar, it would have corroborated his say. But in our view the evidence of such disinterested, independent, official witness does not require any corroboration. In cross-examination, the Tahsildar has specifically stated that he did not know the accused Daya Singh personally but the accused was identified by the jail authorities. He has also denied the suggestion that Daya Singh never refused for such identification parade and that he was deposing falsely. The Tahsildar was least interested in the prosecution or falsely involving the accused. Further, he is not expected to know the accused personally nor to remember his face for years. He was discharging his official functions and is not expected to memorise the identity of the persons whose statements he had recorded. There is no reason to hold that jail authorities have committed any mistake in producing Daya Singh before the Tahsildar for parade. Further, the evidence of Tahsildar that he had gone to Central Jail for identification parade gets corroboration from the evidence of PW 38 who also went to the Central Jail Ambala for identifying the accused, but they were informed that the accused had refused to participate in the test parade. It is to be stated that in such a situation, this Court in Suraj Pal v. State of Haryana [(1995) 2 SCC 64 : 1995 SCC (Cri) 313] held that substantive evidence identifying the witness is his evidence made in the Court and if the accused in exercise of his own volition declined to submit for test parade without any reasonable cause, he did so at his own risk for which he cannot be heard to say that in the absence of test parade, dock identification was not proper and should not be accepted, if it was otherwise found to be reliable. The Court observed that "it is true that they could not have been compelled to line up for test parade. But they did so on their own risk for which the prosecution could not be blamed for not holding the test parade". In that case also, the Court disbelieved the justification given by the accused for not participating in the identification parade on the ground that the accused were shown by the police to the witnesses. Same is the position in the present case."

80. It may be remarked here that this case is not concerned with the law about holding a test identification parade or what is the worth of it in establishing the identity of an unknown offender, who is identified in the dock by a witness or an injured witness for that matter. Here, the question is about the credibility of the witness, vis-a-vis, the identity of the appellants, though her credibility about the description of the offence cannot be in doubt. It is in the context of the credibility of PW-3 about identifying the appellants that this Court has looked into the law regarding identification of unknown offenders, which has largely been laid down in the context of the requirement of holding a test identification parade, and the consequences of failure to do so in varying facts and circumstances of different cases. There is valuable guidance in the decision of their Lordships of the Supreme Court regarding identification of strangers by a witness for the first time in Court to be found in Malkhan Singh vs. State of M.P., (2003) 5 SCC 746, where it has been held:

"7. It is trite to say that the substantive evidence is the evidence of identification in court. Apart from the clear provisions of Section 9 of the Evidence Act, the position in law is well settled by a catena of decisions of this Court. The facts, which establish the identity of the accused persons, are relevant under Section 9 of the Evidence Act. As a general rule, the substantive evidence of a witness is the statement made in court. The evidence of mere identification of the accused person at the trial for the first time is from its very nature inherently of a weak character. The purpose of a prior test identification, therefore, is to test and strengthen the trustworthiness of that evidence. It is accordingly considered a safe rule of prudence to generally look for corroboration of the sworn testimony of witnesses in court as to the identity of the accused who are strangers to them, in the form of earlier identification proceedings. This rule of prudence, however, is subject to exceptions, when, for example, the court is impressed by a particular witness on whose testimony it can safely rely, without such or other corroboration. The identification parades belong to the stage of investigation, and there is no provision in the Code of Criminal Procedure which obliges the investigating agency to hold, or confers a right upon the accused to claim a test identification parade. They do not constitute substantive evidence and these parades are essentially governed by Section 162 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Failure to hold a test identification parade would not make inadmissible the evidence of identification in court. The weight to be attached to such identification should be a matter for the courts of fact. In appropriate cases it may accept the evidence of identification even without insisting on corroboration. (See Kanta Prashad v. Delhi Admn. [AIR 1958 SC 350 : 1958 Cri LJ 698] , Vaikuntam Chandrappa v. State of A.P. [AIR 1960 SC 1340 : 1960 Cri LJ 1681] , Budhsen v. State of U.P. [(1970) 2 SCC 128 : 1970 SCC (Cri) 343 : AIR 1970 SC 1321] and Rameshwar Singh v. State of J&K [(1971) 2 SCC 715 : 1971 SCC (Cri) 638].)"

(Emphasis by Court)

81. The same principle has been reaffirmed by their Lordships of the Supreme Court in a recent decision in Raja vs. State By the Inspector General of Police, 2019 SCC OnLine SC 1591, where it has been held:

"15. It has been accepted by this Court that what is substantive piece of evidence of identification of an accused, is the evidence given during the trial. However, by the time the witnesses normally step into the box to depose, there would be substantial time gap between the date of the incident and the actual examination of the witnesses. If the accused or the suspects were known to the witnesses from before and their identity was never in doubt, the lapse of time may not qualitatively affect the evidence about identification of such accused, but the difficulty may arise if the accused were unknown. In such cases, the question may arise about the correctness of the identification by the witnesses. The lapse of time between the stage when the witnesses had seen the accused during occurrence and the actual examination of the witnesses may be such that the identification by the witnesses for the first time in the box may be difficult for the court to place complete reliance on. In order to lend assurance that the witnesses had, in fact, identified the accused or suspects at the first available opportunity, the TIP which is part of the investigation affords a platform to lend corroboration to the ultimate statements made by the witnesses before the Court. However, what weightage must be given to such TIP is a matter to be considered in the facts and circumstances of each case.

16. Again, there is no hard and fast rule about the period within which the TIP must be held from the arrest of the accused. In certain cases, this Court considered delay of 10 days to be fatal while in other cases even delay of 40 days or more was not considered to be fatal at all. For instance, in Pramod Mandal v. State of Bihar, (2004) 13 SCC 150 the accused was arrested on 17.01.1989 and was put up for Test Identification on 18.02.1989, that is to say there was a delay of a month for holding the TIP. Additionally, there was only one identifying witness against the said accused. After dealing with the decisions of this Court in Wakil Singh v. State of Bihar, 1981 Supp SCC 28, Subhash v. State of Uttar Pradesh, (1987) 3 SCC 231 and Soni v. State of Uttar Pradesh,(1982) 3 SCC 368(1) in which benefit was conferred upon the accused because of delay in holding the TIP, this Court considered the line of cases taking a contrary view.....

19. It is, thus, clear that if the material on record sufficiently indicates that reasons for "gaining an enduring impression of the identity on the mind and memory of the witnesses" are available on record, the matter stands in a completely different perspective. This Court also stated that in such cases even non-holding of identification parade would not be fatal to the case of the prosecution. Applying the tests so laid down to the present case, in view of the fact that each of the eyewitnesses had suffered number of injuries in the transaction, it can safely be inferred that every one of them had sufficient opportunity to observe the accused to have an enduring impression of the identity of the assailants. It is not as if the witnesses had seen the assailants, in a mob and from some distance. Going by the injuries, the contact with the accused must have been from a close distance.

24. As has been repeatedly laid down by this Court, what is important is the identification in Court and if such identification is otherwise found by the Court to be truthful and reliable, such substantive evidence can be relied upon by the Court. Considering the totality of circumstances on record, the presence and participation of the Accused Nos. 1 to 6, in our view, stood proved through the eyewitness account. We do not find any infirmity in the evidence of identification by PWs 1 to 5."

82. In the present case, this Court is not at all concerned, as said earlier, about the holding of a test identification parade. To say it again, it is the abiding anxiety of this Court to see whether PW-3, whose account of the occurrence cannot be doubted, has indeed identified the appellants without mistake. If it were a case where the appellants were identified by PW-3, Renu Rai for the first time in the dock, we would have not harboured the least of doubt about the veracity of her evidence about these appellants. But, the evidence of this witness about the fixation of identity of the appellants is under the shadow of grave doubt. We have doubted the manner in which these appellants were spontaneously identified by a passing Renu Rai, along with her two uncles, while on way to the Doctors when she came across a crowd of people with the police there. We have viewed with some suspicion, the rather unnatural conduct of PW-3 as also PW-1 and PW-2, her uncles, Ajay Kumar Rai and Anil Kumar Rai in moving towards the gathered crowd and the police to find out what had happened, where it is said, she suddenly identified all the appellants held there, in connection with a narcotics case. The reason why we have doubted this part of the prosecution case, through which the appellants have been connected to the crime, is not just the manner about which Renu Rai along with PW-1 and PW-2 suddenly rushed to the place, where the police and the crowd were gathered. That suspicion stems from her very inconsistent evidence in her cross-examination about the date, time and manner in which she first identified the appellants.

83. The prosecution case consistently is to the effect that the appellants came to be connected to the crime for the first time on 12.12.2001 when they were coincidentally identified by Renu Rai, PW-3, near the Baudh Sangrahalaya, where they were held in connection with an NDPS Case. This stand has been stoutly taken by PW-1, the first informant and PW-2, Anil Kumar Rai, both of whom are said to have been with PW-3, Renu Rai, when she is claimed to have spontaneously identified the appellants, held in connection with the NDPS Case, near the Baudh Sangrahalaya. In fact, that is also the categorical stand of PW-3, Renu Rai in her examination-in-chief, recorded on 05.09.2002 and on the following day on 06.09.2002. There, she has very definitively supported the prosecution case of that spontaneous identification when she along with PW-1 and PW-2, while on way to the Doctor, changed course to see what was the big crowd about along with the police near the Baud Sangrahalaya. She has said specifically that it was there that she suddenly saw that the six men, whom the police had held (in connection with the NDPS Case), and of whom of five were present in Court that day, were these appellants who had done her children, father, mother and brother to death. This part of her evidence is extracted in paragraphs 31 and 32 (supra).

84. The Investigating Officer too has said in his dock evidence, also extracted in paragraph 33 (supra) to the effect that upto 11th December, 2001, none of the appellants had come to light. He has also said that he met Renu Rai on 09.12.2001 at the Azad Nagar Home of the first informant, Ajay Kumar Rai. He has said thereafter that he arrested the five appellants on 12.12.2001 from Tara Mandal, acting on a tip off from an informer. This bears reference to the incident, where he arrested the appellants in connection with a narcotics case, and later, Renu Rai suddenly appeared to identify the appellants. The appellants were, thereafter, also arrested in connection with the present crime. Thus, the consistent stand of the prosecution is that the appellants were arrested for the first time on 12.12.2001, and it was in connection with a narcotics case from a place, called Baudh Sangrahalaya, near the Tara Mandal, precisely at the grove of Arjun. Soon thereafter, Renu Rai appeared at the scene of occurrence, in the circumstances indicated and spontaneously identified the appellants. There is absolutely no scope about the prosecution case for the appellants being seen, connected or identified to the crime prior to 12.12.2001.

85. Surprisingly, Renu Rai in her cross-examination, dated 18.09.2002, extracted in paragraph 51 (supra) has said in no uncertain terms that after she came back from Hospital, the police took her to the station. The police made her see about 8-9 suspects, but the appellants were not amongst them. This happened about 8-9 in the morning. The same day at about 8-9 in the evening, the police again took PW-3, Renu Rai to the station, where she was brought face to face with a total of about 9-10 suspects. She has said there that these appellants were amongst them. In the morning, they were not there. In the night, they were amongst the men who were shown to her. She has then gone on to say categorically that she identified all the appellants, who had pulled the dacoity at her home. That night, her uncles, Ajay Kumar Rai and Durgesh Rai were with her at the Police Station. It is then said in a very startling turn to her testimony that before she went to the Baudh Sangrahalaya (bearing reference to the claimed and sudden identification on 12.12.2001), a day before on 9th of that month, she had identified the appellants. It is also said that, that night there was one more of the perpetrators at the police station, who was particeps criminis, but was not present in Court. It is also said in no uncertain terms that on the 9th of the month, the Sub-Inspector after identification of these appellants had taken her signatures. She has also said that she had stayed at the police station on the 9th for a period of about 20-25 minutes. It is then said that after the 9th, the police never came to her. The Sub-Inspector took down her statement on the 12th.

86. The prosecution realizing their folly about this star witness, PW-3 testifying to facts in her cross-examination on 18.09.2002, that unmistakably show that the appellants' arrest shown on 12.12.2001 was all sham, and that appellants have been unlawfully shown to this prosecution witness at the Police Station on 09.12.2001, without holding a test identification parade, recalled her on 11.02.2003. Upon being recalled, this witness said in her evidence thus:

"जिस दिन यह घटना हुई थी उसके बाद मुलजिमान को दिनांक 12-12-01 को देखा था।"

None of the appellants chose to cross-examine PW-3 about this stand of hers on 11.02.2003, upon recall.

87. To our understanding, Smt. Renu Rai, PW-3, may be the worst of sufferers of a heinous crime and a seriously injured witness, but her testimony about the circumstances relating to a sudden identification and arrest of the appellants near the Baudh Sangrahalaya on 12.12.2001, when she was passing by, is false to its face. In fact, her stand during the cross-examination, dated 18.09.2002, removes the very basis of the identification and arrest of the appellants in connection with this crime on 12.12.2001. She has said in no uncertain terms that she was taken to the Police Station on 09.12.2001 twice - once in the morning at about 8.00 a.m., and then in the evening at about 8.00 p.m. She was shown the suspects privately and illegally, without holding a test identification parade on both occasions. She did not find any of the appellants amongst the suspects in the morning, when she went to the Police Station. But, in the evening, she found six of them, including the five appellants. She identified them to the police, and was made to sign some papers. Her testimony during cross-examination on 18.09.2002 shows that PW-3, Renu Rai was not tricked by any shrewd cross-examiner into making a stray admission unwittingly and caught off guard. She has been emphatic and categorical that she identified the appellants on 09.12.2001 during her evening visit to the Police Station, in no uncertain terms. Once this is her stand, the story about the arrest of the appellants in connection with an NDPS Case near the Baudh Sangrahalaya, close to the Tara Mandal by the police, turns to utter falsehood. It leads to a certain inference that these men were in police custody on 09.12.2001, detained as suspects, who were illegally shown to PW-3.

88. We must remark here that this fact that the appellants were unlawfully got identified by the police, two days ahead their arrest being shown, at the Police Station by PW-3, privately and unlawfully without holding a test identification parade, is no lapse of investigation as the learned Counsel appearing for the prosecution want us to accept. It is a relevant fact that hits at the bottom of the prosecution case about the manner in which the appellants came to be identified and arrested, at the instance of the solitary injured witness of the occurrence, PW-3. This Court fails to understand what prevented the police from holding a test identification parade, if they had some suspects in hand and a surviving and injured witness to identify. There was no reason for the Police to go about this exercise in a clandestine and unlawful fashion and then come up with a bogus case of implicating the already identified appellants, while detained as suspects in an NDPS Case, attributing to them recovery of some articles, claimed to be proceeds of the dacoity. And, to weave around this bogus arrest in the NDPS Case, a fantastic story of spontaneous identification by Renu Rai as she was passing by the Baudh Sangrahalaya, renders the story untruthful beyond redemption. With this testimony of Renu Rai in the witness box on 18.09.2002, the entire story about the appellants' identification and arrest on 12.12.2001 becomes false to its face.

89. We must also remark here that the learned Sessions Judge on being encountered with this gaping flaw in the prosecution case, has chosen to describe the testimony of PW-3, Renu Rai recorded on 18.09.2002 as a "mistaken slip of tongue". We are not in agreement with the learned Sessions Judge at all. The categorical stand of Smt. Renu Rai in her cross-examination on 18.09.2002 is cast in too certain and detailed a description of the events at the Police Station on 09.12.2001 to pass off as a slip of tongue of any kind. It is on account of this irreconcilable flaw about Smt. Renu Rai's evidence, relating to identification of the appellants and the manner of their arrest that we have looked upon the recovery shown from the appellants, apart from other discrepancies, to be unreliable and untrustworthy. For the same reason, we have not been inclined to accept even that part of the recovery, that has been sought to be proved with the aid of Section 27 of the Evidence Act. Our opinion about the recovery, recorded in the earlier part of this judgment must be seen in togetherness with what we have concluded here, on the basis of Smt. Renu Rai's evidence, dated 18.09.2002.

90. We are mindful of the fact that Smt. Renu Rai is no ordinary witness. Her presence at the scene of crime and her account about it, cannot be doubted. But, her evidence about the appellants is eclipsed by a grave shadow of doubt. To add to it, her conduct in testifying to a false story of identification and arrest of the appellants on 12.12.2001 deprives her of the privilege of being an absolutely truthful witness, and her evidence of its character as sterling.

91. On this kind of evidence, in our considered opinion the identity of the appellants and their connection to the crime is under a shadow of serious doubt. Upon a consideration of the totality of evidence, we find and hold that the appellants are entitled to the benefit of doubt, and it would be unsafe to uphold their conviction.

92. In the result, the appeals succeed and are allowed. The impugned judgment and order dated 29.10.2003 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court no.4, Gorakhpur in Sessions Trial no.177 of 2002, State of U.P. vs. Shyam @ Sambhal and others, under Sections 396, 412 IPC, Police Station Khorabar, District Gorakhpur is hereby set aside and the appellants are acquitted.

93. The appellants are in jail. They shall be released forthwith unless wanted in connection with any other case and subject to fulfilling the requirements under Section 437-A Cr.P.C.

94. A copy of this judgment along with Trial Court record be sent to the learned Sessions Judge, Gorakhpur for information and necessary compliance. Judgment be certified and placed on record.

A. The motive for committing an offence in all cases has not of much importance, particularly where the prosecution case is totally based on direct evidences proof of motive becomes of less significance- If prosecution witnesses consistently have accounted for the material facts of incident without any repugnance or serious anomaly in their own statement or in their statements inter-se, except minor variation having no material alteration in the nature and genesis of the incident, they shall be treated as credible and reliable witness- Non production of torches by the Investigating Officer at the time of his examination in the court would not have any effect of corroding the prosecution case as the assailants were known to the witnesses and they were seen from the very near by the witnesses- The test identification parade is not a substantive piece of evidence- Necessity of test identification parade arises only in cases where the miscreants/assailants are unknown- The witnesses either may be relative or independent must have to pass the test of credibility, truthfulness and reliability. The relative witnesses cannot be said disinterested but it is also true that a witness losing her relatives ,in place of the real culprit, will not falsely implicate someone else and save the real culprit.- if any, discrepancy occurs with regard to the direction of the wound caused by the fire arm injury and distance from the deceased when fired it would be immaterial on the strength of the ocular testimony of the witnesses and is not of such kind which can completely over rule the incident of firing upon the deceased by the accused-appellants-Option of prosecution to examine all its witnesses or some or any one of them to prove the case.

Held- Indian Evidence Act- Section 8- Motive- Plays an important role and relevance with regard to the substantive piece of evidence proving the incident in question with all certainty and the identification of the accused and their role.

Evidence Law- Indian Evidence Act - Section 9- Test identification parade- It is not a substantive piece of evidence. Necessity of test identification parade arises only in cases where the miscreants/assailants are unknown.z

Evidence Law-Indian Evidence Act- Section 118 - Reliability of Witnesses- The witnesses either may be relative or independent, must have to pass the test of credibility, truthfulness and reliability. A witness losing her husband and father in place of the real culprit will not falsely implicate someone else and save the real culprit – If prosecution witnesses consistently have accounted for the material facts of incident without any repugnance or serious anomaly in their own statement or in their statements inter-se, except minor variation having no material alteration in the nature and genesis of the incident, they shall be treated as credible and reliable witness.

The ocular evidence will prevail over the Ballistic evidence in case of contradiction between the two- If any discrepancy occurs with regard to the direction of the wound caused by the fire arm injury and distance from the deceased when fired it would be immaterial on the strength of the ocular testimony of the witnesses and is not of such kind which can completely over rule the incident of firing upon the deceased by the accused-appellants.

Evidence Law-Indian Evidence Act- Section 134- It is the quality of evidence and not the quantity which is important.

The prosecution cannot be compelled to produce all the witnesses unless it is shown that non-examination of a witness by the prosecution has prejudiced the case of the defence.

The accused-appellants remained unsuccessful to show even on preponderance of probabilities the case of defence that dacoity was committed on the date and time of incident in the house of informant and they were falsely implicated by the informant by reason of enmity while the prosecution proved its case against the appellants beyond all reasonable doubt. Accordingly, conviction and sentence of of Appellants u/s 302/307/34 of the IPC upheld. . (Para 27,36,39,43,44,49)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vikas Kunvar Srivastav, J.)

1. These two criminal appeals arise out of the single judgment and order dated 3.5.1986 passed by the Learned special Judge, Unnao in Sessions Trial No.406 of 1985 under Section 302/34 and 307/34 I.P.C., Police Station-Maurawan, District-Unnao, whereby the accused/appellants have been convicted and sentenced to undergo imprisonment for life under Section 302/34 IPC and three years' rigorous imprisonment under Section 307/34 IPC.

2. The case of the prosecution in brief as emerging out from the contents of the F.I.R. and the evidences laid before the court is that the elder brother of the informant (Ram Praksh, PW-1) namely Sachidanand, resident of Village Korwa (Mawai), Police Station - Maurawan, District 'Unnao' was married to Meena Kumari, the daughter of accused appellant, Jatashankar in February 1983. Smt. Meena Kumari died of burn injuries as she caught fire while cooking food. Accused Jatashankar, his sons namely accused appellants Mukesh and Rakesh came under impression that the said Meena Kumari was intentionally burnt by her-in-laws. Consequently, the family of the accused persons developed tense relation with the informant's family on account of above incident. They used to remain in search of chance to take counter action against informant's family in vengeance. On 22.6.1985 at about 6:15 a.m. moving a written complaint, the informant Ramprakash informed the Station House Officer of Police Station- 'Maurawan' that in the preceding night of 21/22.6.1985, when his father Ram Asrey, Mother Smt. Naval kishori (PW-2) and his sister Kumari Girisa were sleeping on their cots in front of their house, Ramparakash (PW-1) was sleeping on the roof of the house and a lilted lantern was hanging as usually on the door of the house, at about 1:00 a.m. when the informant awakened to pee, he saw accused Jatashankar armed with a gun, Mukesh armed with a country made pistol (Katta), Rakesh armed with a 'Tabbal' and Raju, son of maternal aunt of Mukesh armed with a country made pistol (katta) had invaded on the door (sahan) of the house and were near the cot of his father. Accused Jata Shankar and Mukesh fired on his father from their respective weapons. Hearing the noise of gunshot his mother Naval Kishori (PW-2) and sister Kumari Girisa suddenly awakened from sleep and began to shriek for their rescue. On this, accused Mukesh fired upon Smt. Naval kishori also with intention to kill her. The accused Rakesh inflicted blows of the 'tabbal' on the head of Kumari Girisa, consequently both of them sustained injuries. Hearing the hue and cry, the neighbouring villagers Ram Shankar (deceased, victim in the incident), Jagannath and Pyare rushed up to the spot, flashing torches along with others. Ram Shanker was leading them, accused Mukesh and Raju @ Chandra Prakash fired on him, he turned and ran towards his house but fell down at the door of his house and died there. Feared of their lives the other villagers ran away from the spot. The accused appellants were searching the informant-Ramprakash, climbing upon the roof with the help of a ladder, to kill him and his brother. They were shouting that they would take revenge of burning the daughter by killing the entire family. When they could not found the informant and his brother, they fled away from the spot seeing the villager gathering there. Ram Prakash (PW-1) went to Maurawan Police Station got scribed written report and submit the same to the Police Station on 6:15 a.m. of 22nd June 1985. The case was registered against the accused persons and investigated by Shiv Swaroop Tiwari (PW-8) and after completion of all the formalities charge sheet against accused persons has been submitted by him in the Court.

3. The Trial Judge, when the accused persons were produced before the court, framed charges under Section 302 IPC read with Section 34 IPC against all of them while accused Rakesh and Mukesh were charged under Section 307 IPC and accused Jatashankar and Raju for the charge under Section 307 IPC read with Section 34 IPC.

Witnesses of Prosecution Side

4. Prosecution in order to prove its case have produced 9 witnesses in the court namely:-

i. Ramprakash (the informant) as PW-1, who is the son of Ram Asrey, the deceased, victim of the incident.

ii. Naval Kishori (the wife of the deceased, Ram Asrey and mother of PW-1) as PW-2, she is injured in the incident.

iii. Dr. R. Prasad (Medical officer of Primary Health Centre Hilauli, who examined Kumari Girisa, daughter of deceased Ram Asrey, the injured in the incident) as PW-3.

iv. S.I. Tribhuvan Nath Singh (who prepared the inquest report of the dead bodies of Ram Asray and Ram Shankar pandey) as PW-4.

v. Dr R.K Suri (Medical Officer who had done medical examination of Smt. Naval kishori, PW-2 on 23rd June 1985 at 11:35 a.m.) as PW-5.

vi. Ameer Singh (the Head Constable who had prepared chick F.I.R., exhibit ka-12 and registered the case in the G.D exhibit ka-13) as PW-6.

vii. Dr S.P. Rastogi (District Hospital, Unnao who had conducted the autopsy of dead bodies of Ram Asray and Ram Shankar on 23rd June 1985 at 2:00 p.m. and prepared postmortem report exhibit ka-15 and 16) as PW-7.

viii. Shri Shiv Swaroop Tiwari (Station Head Officer incharge, Police Station 'Maurawan' who had done investigation and prepared site plan) as PW- 8 and other memo of seizure and recovery from the spot.

ix. Constable Ram Ashish Singh (who carried the dead bodies of Ram Asray and Ram Shankar in sealed condition to Merchury for postmortem) as PW-9.

Documentary Evidences

5. During trial following documentary evidences were laid before the court and proved by their respective witnesses. The written report submitted in Police Station Maurawan proved by PW-1 Ramprakash is exhibit Ka-1, the F.I.R. registered thereupon is exhibit ka-12, the postmortem of Ram Shankar is proved by PW-7 as exhibit ka-15, postmortem of Ram Asrey proved by PW-7 as Exhibit Ka-16, injury reports of Kumari Girisa proved by PW-3 is exhibit Ka-2, injuries report of Naval Kishori by PW-5 is exhibit ka 5, seizure memo of blood stained clothes of Kumari Girisa and Smt. Naval Kishori respectively ka-17 and ka-18, the seizure memo of lantern from the spot by investigating officer is exhibit ka-19, site plan is exhibit K-20 prepared and proved by investigating officer, the bed sheet which was on the cot of Ram Asrey (deceased) at the time of incident was seized and memo was prepared by the investigating officer is Exhibit Ka-21, the seizure memo of 6 pellets found on the body of the deceased Ram Asrey and three empty cartridges found beneath his cot were prepared by investigating officer and proved in the court is exhibit ka-22, the collection of blood stained soil and plain soil by investigating officer from beneath the cot of Ram Asray and near the dead body of Ram Shanker Pandey was done and the memo prepared by the investigating officer proved in the court by him is exhibit ka-23 and 24. He found one empty cartridge in the field of Bhagwati, the memo prepared by him is exhibit ka-26, the ladder used by the accused persons was seen and memo thereof was prepared by investigating officer is exhibit ka-27, memo of torches prepared by the investigating officer is exhibit ka-30 and 31, the letters prepared for medical examination and proved by him is exhibit ka-28 and 29.

6. After getting examination of all the prosecution witnesses, the trial judge found the case of prosecution established on the basis of evidence of Ramprakash, PW-1, Smt. Naval Kishori, PW-2 and other prosecution witnesses. Para-16 of the impugned judgment of the Trial Judge reads as under:-

"It is established from the testimony of Sri Ram Prakash (PW-1) and Smt. Naval Kisori (PW-2) that the accused persons bore malice towards the deceased and the members of his family because the daughter of accused Jatashanker who was married to the son of Ram Asre (deceased) had died due to burn injuries and the accused persons had impression that she was intentionally burnt by the family members of Ram Asrey (deceased). The accused persons, therefore, armed with gun, country made pistols and Tabbal (a sharp edged cutting weapon). It is further proved from the testimony of these witness that accused Mukesh and Jatashanker had fired at Ram Asre who died instantaneously. On the sound of gun shots, Smt. Naval Kishori (PW-2) and Km. Girisha who were sleeping very close to Ram Asre (deceased) were awakened and as soon as they tried to raise alarm, accused Mukesh fired at PW-2 Smt. Naval Kisori and accused Rakesh assaulted Kumari Girisha with Tabbal. Consequently, both of them had suffered injuries. On the shrieks of these persons, the villagers including Ram Shanker (deceased) rushed to the scene of occurrence. Accused Raju and Mukesh fired at them. Consequently Ram Shanker had sustained injuries and died on the spot. Both these witnesses were cross-examined at a very great length by the learned defence counsel. In spite of lengthy and combersome cross-examination, they could not be shattered. Both these witnesses maintained their mental con-posture throughout and gave convincing replies to all the questions put to them. Had they not seen the occurrence and had they been examined after tutoring they must have collapsed under the weight of tiring trying cross-examination. I find both these witnesses most truthful and credible and do not discover any ground to reject their testimony."

Arguments advanced by learned counsel for the appellant, Sri Jyotindra Misra, Advocate (learned Senior Designated) assisted by learned counsel Sri Kapil Misra, Advocate.

7. The accused appellants have assailed the impugned judgment of conviction and order of sentence on various grounds inter-alia in the appeal, namely learned trial judge has erred in law and facts in recording conviction and sentencing the appellants because the medical evidences show that prosecution story as narrated in the First Information Report is false. It is argued that prosecution has failed to prove it's case beyond all reasonable doubts as there are so many contradictions and discrepancies in the statements of PW-1 and 2 which make highly doubtful the PW-1 to be an eye witness, as he claims himself watching the incident from the roof of his house in the night of 21/22.6.1985. It is doubtful that he could see the incident in the light of lantern hanging on the door of house when his father deceased Ram Asrey, mother Smt. Naval Kishori and sister Kumari Girisa were sleeping on their cots. The night on the date of incident admittedly was a dark night and it was quite impossible for PW-1 to see any thing in the weak light of the lantern, as such identification of accused person by him was reasonably not possible.

8. Learned counsel further contended, reading over the statement of PW-1, that he stated to bear a torch at the time of incident and saw the accused persons in the flash of torch also, whereas neither in the First Information Report the torch is mentioned nor the torch, by investigating officer, was produced in evidence and proved during the trial. Learned counsel further raised a doubt as to the presence of PW-1 on the roof of the house along with his cot, in absence of any stair leading to the roof or without a ladder.

9. Learned counsel further argued that ocular evidence is in variance with the medical evidence which came out from the medical examination reports of the PW-2, (the injured witnesses) as well that of Kumari Girisa. The opinion of doctors who examined the said two injured person is not supporting the statement of said witnesses and as such their presence on the spot is doubtful. Learned counsel further argued that in the darkness of the night it was not possible for the PW-1 to recognize and identify the assailants who committed the crime in the fateful night of 21/22.6.1985. He argued in defence that some dacoits attacked the house of informant and in the course of dacoity Ram Asray and Ram Shankar were gunned down by the unknown assailants to whom the witnesses due to darkness of night could not recognize, informant only under apprehension falsely implicated the accused appellants that they might have attacked in vengeance. As such the entire case of prosecution is cooked, witnesses are uncredible and untrustworthy. The investigation officer had not held identification parade after the arrest of the accused, therefore, the identification of assailants who commit the offence could not be established.

10. Learned counsel to fortify his contention relied on the judgment in Iqbal and Ors. Vs. State of U.P. reported in 2015 6 SCC 623 particularly citing the para-10 and 11 of the judgment which runs as under:-

"10. In cases of dacoity, usually, the offence is committed by unknown persons with the criminal background. It is only in very few cases, the accused-dacoits are known to the victim. PW1-Patia Singh and PW2-Jay Singh have stated that they had witnessed the incident from a distance of three and half yards. PW3-Begraj also stated that he had witnessed the incident from a distance of five-six yards in the feeble torch light. Admittedly, according to the witnesses, there was no electricity at the time of incident in their houses. They claimed that they could see the accused persons with the help of their torch lights. In the courts below, onbehalf of the accused persons, it was argued that the night of incident was an amavasya-new moon night. A perusal of calendar of that month in that year, it is seen that the intervening night of 21/22.09.1979 was a new moon night i.e. amavasya.

11. In our considered view, it is unbelievable that on a new moon night when it was pitch dark, the witnesses who were frightened and who were hiding themselves behind the walls in order to save themselves, could have seen actual faces of the accused persons just by flash of torch lights on their faces and in the light of lantern. Further, there were about 14-15 dacoits in number, all armed with deadly weapons and were continuously making ingress and egress in the house of the deceased, it becomes inconceivable as to how the witnesses standing at a distance in a feeble light would have been able to identify the dacoits."

11. Learned counsel for the appellants further relied on the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Manzoor Vs. State of U.P. and Suleman Vs. State of U.P. reported in 1982 (2) SCC 72 emphasizing the necessity of identification by the Investigating officer when incident happens in a dark night by some unknown assailants hiding their faces, para-12 of the judgment quoted by him reads as under:-

"12. There is then the evidence of P.Ws. 1 and 2, the home-guards of whom only P.W. 2 had identified the appellants in the identification parade held on 17.11.1978. The four home-guards including P.Ws. 1 and 2 are stated to have flashed their torch lights and to have seen the two persons running away from the scene of occurrence after they had heard the alarm of the injured Gul Bahar near the railway line. The torches have not been produced in evidence, and the investigating officer P.W. 12 would say in his evidence that he saw those torches 30 and returned them to the home-guards. It is not known why the investigating officer P.W. 12 thought it fit to return the torches with the aid of which the home-guards are stated to have seen the two persons running away from the scene of occurrence though that will be a relevant piece of material evidence in the case. P.W. 12 has stated that after recording the statement (Ex. Ka. 11) of the deceased Gul Bahar at the District hospital, Saharanpur he went to the mela and recorded the statements of the four home-guards. This evidence of P.W. 12 shows two things, namely (1) that the home-guards would have been on duty at the mela in the night of 22/23.9.1978 40 and could not have been on patrol duty, moving about near the railway line or the lime kiln which is stated by the P.W. 12 to be situate one furlong away from the mela, as P.Ws. 1 and 2 would have it, and (2) that none of the home-guards could have accompanied the injured Gul Bahar from the petrol pump where the First Information Report (Ex. Ka. 1) is stated to have been recorded to the Police Station, for if any home-guard had accompanied the injured Gul Bahar to the Police Station he would have been examined by the police at the Police Station itself in connection with this case and it would not have been necessary for P.W. 12 to have examined that home-guard only at the mela. The evidence of P.Ws. 1 and 2 that Ex. Ka 1 was recorded at the petrol pump is not reliable, for it is stated in Ex. Ka. 1 that one of the home-guards took down the deceased's statement and brought him to the Police Station after recording the report. From the statement in Ex. Ka. 1 that one of the home guards brought the deceased to the Police Station, it would appear that Ex. Ka. 1 could have been written only after the injured Gul Bahar had been taken to the Police Station and not earlier. It is to be noted that none from the petrol pump and the rickshaw-puller who is stated to have carried the injured Gul Bahar from the petrol pump to the Police Station has been examined as a witness at the trial. It is seen from the evidence of P.W. 12 that the home-guard did not give him the description of any of the culprits when he examined them and that he did not even ask them about it though it is stated in the report Ex. Ka 1 that the home-guards had seen the culprits thoroughly and identified them. If at the earliest opportunity the home-guards did not mention any identifying features of the culprits when they were examined by P.W. 12, it is difficult for us to believe how P.W. 2 could have identified both the appellants nearly two months later on 17.11.1978. It has to be noted that the appellants have stated in the trial court that they were shown to the witnesses before the identification parade was held. In these circumstances we are not impressed with the evidence of P.Ws. 1 and 2."

12. Learned counsel in the context of the case discussed in the above judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court applied the finding given therein on the facts of the present case, saying that the torches have not been produced in evidence. It is obvious from the statement of the investigating officer in his evidence that he saw those torches and after preparing memo returned them to the villagers who arrived at spot flashing their torches. He further argued that for the reason of non production of torches during examination of investigating officer the story of seeing and identifying the accused persons in the flash of torches made by neighbouring villager of PW-1 is fictitious and unbelievable.

13. On the basis of arguments stated hereinabove and deferring the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court, the learned counsel for the appellant assailed the impugned judgment and order of sentence as erroneous in fact and law both, based on conjectures and surmises, suffering from mis-appreciation of evidence, by relying uncredible, untruthful and untrustworthy statement of PW-1 (Ram Prakash, the informant) and the injured witnesses PW-2, Smt. Naval Kishori.

Arguments in reply by Ms. Smiti Sahai, learned Additional Government Advocate:

14. In reply to the arguments of learned counsel for the appellant, learned A.G.A., Ms. Smiti Sahai submitted that the first information report by the informant (PW-1) is made quickly and promptly just after the happening of the incident without any unnecessary and unreasonable wastage of time. Therefore, it is a natural narration of incident without any exaggeration. In counter to the argument advanced by learned counsel for the appellant relating to the non disclosure in the F.I.R. about the torch carried by PW-1 at the time of incident and the ladder/stairs leading to the roof, through which he went on the roof of the house in the night for sleeping, she argues that they are immaterial because first information report could not be an encyclopedia of the entire facts. She submitted that the FIR made by the PW-1 is very much natural and spontaneous to communicate the police officer about the fateful incident happened with his family members on the date and time and place of the incident and also that who have committed the same and why.

15. Learned A.G.A. relied on the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Jitendra Kumar Vs. State of Haryana with Sunil Kumar and Anr. Vs. State of Haryana reported in (2012) 6 SCC 204 on the point, 'purpose and nature of the First Information Report'. Para 18 of the said judgment reads as under:-

"18. The Court has also to consider the fact that the main purpose of the FIR is to satisfy the police officer as to the commission of a cognizable offence for him to conduct further investigation in accordance with law. The primary object is to set the criminal law into motion and it may not be possible to give every minute detail with unmistakable precision in the FIR. The FIR itself is not the proof of a case, but is a piece of evidence which could be used for corroborating the case of the prosecution. The FIR need not be an encyclopedia of all the facts and circumstances on which the prosecution relies. It only has to state the basic case. The attending circumstances of each case would further have considerable bearing on application of such principles to a given situation. Reference in this regard can be made to State of U.P. Vs. Krishna Master and Ors. [(2010) 12 SCC 324] and Ranjit Singh and Ors. Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh [(2011) 4 SCC 336]."

16. Learned A.G.A further argued reading over the testimony of PW-1 and PW-2 that the deceased, Ram Asrey, his wife Smt. Naval Kisori and daughter Ms. Girisa were sleeping on their respective cots in sahan just in front of the door of the house, while the accused appeared on the spot, it is proved by the evidences that a lantern was hanging on the door. It is also proved by the evidences that the PW-1, the son of the deceased (Ram Asrey) namely Ram Prakash was sleeping on the roof of the house, at that moment when he awakened from sleep to pee he saw the accused persons near the cot of his father, armed with fire arms, seeing this he raised alarm, watching the entire incident from the roof of the house.

17. Learned A.G.A laid emphasis on the presence of eye witnesses namely PW-1 and PW-2 at the time of commission of offence by accused appellants, as the PW-2, Naval Kisori (wife of the deceased, Ram Asrey) is an witness, who herself had sustained fire arm injuries during the same incident. She further stressed on evidentiary value of her testimony that the same deserves to be put on a higher pedestal of credibility than that of others and cannot be discarded on trivial inconsistency if any. She further argued that the prosecution witness PW-2's injuries are examined by Medical Officer PW-5, who proved his report in the court. PW-2 since is a rustic villager, therefore, the lapse of time from the date of incident till the date of recording of evidence is of utmost consideration when minor and trivial inconsistencies in her statements, if occurs, without having any material bearing upon the fact in issue. Learned A.G.A in support of her argument relied on the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Brahma Swaroop and Another Vs. State of U.P. (2011) 6 SCC 288 particularly on para 28 of the judgment which are quoted hereunder:-

"28. Where a witness to the occurrence has himself been injured in the incident, the testimony of such a witness is generally considered to be very reliable, as he is a witness that comes with a built-in guarantee of his presence at the scene of the crime and is unlikely to spare his actual assailant(s) in order to falsely implicate someone. "Convincing evidence is required to discredit an injured witness". (Vide: State of U.P. v. Kishan Chand & Ors., (2004) 7 SCC 629; Krishan & Ors.v. State of Haryana, (2006) 12 SCC 459; Dinesh Kumar v. State of Rajasthan, (2008) 8 SCC 270; Jarnail Singh & Ors. v. State of Punjab, (2009) 9 SCC 719; Vishnu & Ors. v. State of Rajasthan, (2009) 10 SCC 477; Anna Reddy Sambasiva Reddy & Ors. v. State 2 of Andhra Pradesh, AIR 2009 SC 2661; and Balraje @ Trimbak v. State of Maharashtra, (2010) 6 SCC 673)."

18. Learned A.G.A further emphasized on the reliability, trustworthiness and truthfulness of the witnesses namely PW-1 and PW-2 as their statements are fully corroborated with the medical evidences and testimony of investigating officer (PW-8). She argued that on facts, it could not be said that the witnesses are planted witnesses. They are natural witnesses and incident narrated by them is untutored, unrehearsed and corroborated by other materials proved by evidences on record.

19. Learned A.G.A lastly argued on the explanation submitted by accused appellant as their defence against the evidences proving the case of prosecution that on the date of incident some unknown assailants committed dacoity in the house of informant, who could not be identified, therefore, due to the reason of enmity, informant falsely implicated the accused-appellants, she submitted, the alleged dacoity committed in the house of the informant on the date and time of the incident was not asked from the investigating officer (PW-8) during his examination in trial nor it was proved as a defence to create doubt on the prosecution case.

20. We anxiously heard and considered the respective arguments raised by learned counsel for the appellant and learned A.G.A. Since the judgment before us, is of conviction and sentence, impugned in the present appeal, therefore, the entire evidence led by the prosecution, oral and documentary must be re-appreciated carefully. Before re-appreciation of the evidence available on record of the trial, we formulate following two questions for determination in appeal.

(1) Whether the prosecution has successfully proved it's case by prosecution witnesses beyond all reasonable doubts. and

(2) Whether the accused appellants by setting their defence against the proved case of prosecution, has been successful in showing the same on the preponderance of probabilities, so as to cast upon the prosecution case a reasonable doubt?

21. It is the cardinal rule of our criminal jurisdiction that the burden in the web of proof of an offence would always lie upon the prosecution, to prove, all the facts constituting the ingredients, beyond reasonable doubt. If there is any reasonable doubt the accused is entitled to the benefit of reasonable doubt.

22. In the present appeal the testimony of eye witnesses PW-1 (Ram Prakash) and injured eye witness PW-2 (Naval Kisori) are of utmost importance. While appreciating the evidence of any witness claiming to have seen the incident, the court is to consider and look for the following factors appearing in the entire testimony of the witnesses.

(i) presence of the witness on the spot.

(ii) witnesses having seen the incident.

(iii) credibility of the witnesses.

23. Prosecution to prove its case produced two witnesses of fact namely Ram Prakash (the informant) as PW-1, who watched the entire episode that happened in unfateful night of 21/22.6.1985, and his mother Naval Kisori the wife of Ram Asrey (deceased victim of the incident) as PW-2, who is an injured witness. They narrated the story of the incident in their examination in chief. The defence in cross-examination tested their veracity by putting questions to shaken their credibility and trustworthiness. They have also stated the motive of the appellant for commission of the offence in question. Since in the First Information Report the motive is stated, therefore the evidence of prosecution witnesses is to be seen in the context of motive also if found proved.

Motive

24. The motive for committing an offence in all cases has not of much importance, particularly where the prosecution case is totally based on direct evidences proof of motive becomes of less significance. In the present case the prosecution has set a motive and got it proved by the testimony of PW-1. PW-1 as eye witnesses of the incident. They have stated the motive of the accused-appellants categorically and specifically in the FIR also. The motive as set in the FIR is reiterated by PW-1 without any variation in the examination-in-chief during trial. The statement of PW-1 began on 11.12.1985, after the date of occurrence 21/22.6.1985 that is to say after an interval of about seven months. At that time witness was about 18 to 20 years, his cross-examination was done on 1.2.1986. Since, then about three months more have been elapsed, then also the teenager witness PW-1 and his mother PW-2 firmly stated the motive in cross-examination by defence counsel. PW-1 stated, "after the death of my sister-in-law from burn injuries the accused began to move applications against his family members to the effect that they have burnt her to death (the statement is extracted and highlighted from the testimony of PW-1 Page-2 Para-6 dated 1.2.1986). The injured witness PW-2, wife of the deceased, Ram Asrey namely Naval Kisori in her examination-in-chief has stated in very clear words that the accused-appellants were shouting that they would be taking revenge of their daughter's death from the entire family and were searching her children. This statement in chief of PW-2 remains constant as she has not been cross-examined on this point by learned counsel for the defence. As such since the very inception right from the lodging of F.I.R. the motive imputed upon the accused-appellants for the commission of offence is stated by PW-1 and PW-2 in their deposition before the Court. As such the motive behind commission of offence imputed upon the accused-appellants stands proved by the substantive evidence. The argument of learned counsel for the accused-appellants that if the accused-appellants came under any impression in 1983 when the death of Smt. Meena Kumari, occurred by reason of burn in her in-laws' house, could not be imagined, reasonably to survive till the date of incident 21/22.6.1985, after a considerable lapse of time of more than one and a half years. The arguments of learned counsel is not tenable in the light of the explanation submitted by accused appellant Jatashanker, when he was confronted with this substantive piece of evidence under Section 313 of the Cr.P.C. He replied, 'it would be wrong to say that he had enmity. He further added 'she was burnt by in-laws'. He admitted in last question under Section 313 Cr.P.C. put before him while replying the same that he had moved complaint with regard to the death of his daughter from burning caused by her-in-laws, due to this they (informant's family) had enmity. As such in view of the substantive piece of evidence with regard to motive led by the prosecution and as expressed by the accused-appellant Jatashanker, he was under impression even on the date of submitting explanation under Section 313 Cr.P.C. that his daughter was burnt to death by her-in-laws, is found proved as a strong motive for the commission of offence.

25. The incident of burning resulting into death of Smt. Meena Kumari within one year from marriage is admitted to both the parties. It is also admitted that accused-appellant, Jatashanker moved several complaints for action against in-laws of Meena Kumari, but the same remained of no avail. In such circumstances a frustrated father, quite naturally, as it is proved, to have hatched enmity and vengeance with the in-laws' family to take revenge of his daughter's death. Admittedly he was under impression that his daughter was burnt to death by her in-laws, as comes out from his explanation given by him under Section 313 of the Cr.P.C.

Presence of the witnesses on spot and their credibility.

26. The argument advanced on behalf of the accused-appellant doubting the presence of witnesses on spot is founded on the following contentions-

(i) There was a dark night on the date of incident i.e., 21/22.6.1985 at about 1:00 a.m.

(ii) There was no sufficient source of light wherein the incident could be watched by PW-1, Ram Prakash allegedly from the roof of the house.

(iii) The presence of torches with the neighbouring villagers is mere a story as no independent witness was examined.

(iv) The presence of lantern allegedly hanged on the door is not proved by reason of inconsistent statements of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-8.

(v) Prosecution failed to establish identity of accused after their arrest by holding a test identification parade.

27. If prosecution witnesses consistently have accounted for the material facts of incident without any repugnance or serious anomaly in their own statement or in their statements inter-se, except minor variation having no material alteration in the nature and genesis of the incident, they shall be treated as credible and reliable witness.

28. The incident as reported by the informant to the police is prompt one after commission of offence at 1:00 a.m. in the night of 21/22.6.1985, was registered in the Police Station- Maurawan at 6:15 a.m. The second fact, important for consideration, is that the accused-appellant who were reported as assailants are relatives and not the persons unknown to the informant. Thirdly, it is also to be kept in mind that the informant, Ram Prakash (PW-1) was an 18 years old boy, normally residing in the house along with parents reasonably will be supposed to remain in the house in night. He has proved by his testimony before the court that he was sleeping on the roof. His presence in the house at the time of incident is established by evidence, through his uncontroverted and uncontradicted testimony before the Court. PW-1 has proved that when he awakened under compulsion of the call of nature to pee at 1:00 a.m. he saw the accused-appellants, Jatashanker his sons Mukesh and Rakesh and their cousin brother (son of maternal aunt of Mukesh) Raju near the cot of his father armed with their respective weapons. He has also deposed before the court that all were known to the informant, therefore, they could easily be identified by him from their shape and size of the body postures, gestures and even the manner of movements, etc. irrespective of the fact that the incident happened in night.

29. Another eye witness PW-2, one of the victim of the incident as injured from the firing of the accused-appellant, Mukesh is examined on 1.2.1986, she is a rustic villager, also a lady witness who lost in the incident her husband. She has also identified the accused appellants, as they were very near to her, in the course of commission of offence, therefore, her statement accounting for the incident is believable for the reason of her presence on the spot and having been injured in the incident. The cause of injury sustained by her in the course of incident is stated by PW-1 and PW-2 also. PW-1, Ram Prakash states even in the F.I.R. that "while on the noise of fire my mother and sister awakened and began to cry, Mukesh fired upon mother with intention to kill her and accused-appellant Rakesh inflicted the blow of "tabbal" on the head of Kumari Girisa, sister of the informant. In his statement before the Court, PW-1- Ram Prakash stated on oath in examination-in-chief the same fact as reported by him in the F.I.R. by saying that "when accused Mukesh and Jatashanker fired on his father (Ram Asrey, the deceased victim), hearing the noise of fire his mother and sister awakened, they were crying and screaming. The accused-appellant, Mukesh fired on the mother, while Rakesh inflicted the blow of 'tabbal' on head of his sister Kumari Girisa. In cross-examination, he stated in para-8 of the statement that in the sahan before his house, there was no boundary and that was an open space, the accused were standing at the distance of 4 to 5 hands from the cot of father. When the accused-appellant fired upon his father the mother and sister of the informant tried to flee away from the spot but accused intercepted them, Rakesh caught hold the sister, Kumari Girisa and Mukesh caught hold the mother, Naval Kisori. Mukesh began to beat them and fired only one shot on mother and no fire was made upon sister, Kumari Girisa.

From the testimony of witnesses PW-1 and PW-2 it comes out -

(a) the witnesses PW-1 and PW-2 being the family members naturally in the night, when the incident happened, were in their house sleeping in open Sahan in front of door of the house due to hot night in summer on their respective places told in the statement.

(b) The cot of PW-2, Naval Kisori was in the eastern side of cot of Ram Asrey whereas Kumari Girisa was sleeping on cot lying on western side. As such they were very near to the cot of deceased Ram Asrey when the accused fired on Ram Asrey.

(c) PW-2, Naval Kisori is injured in the same incident by reason of fire from country made pistol made by accused-appellant- Mukesh upon her just after Jatashanker fired on Ram Asrey when he was sleeping.

(d) PW-1, Ram Prakash was sleeping on the roof of the house and when awakened, he saw from the roof, the accused appellants near the cot of his father and he remained there throughout watching the entire incident. He saw accused-appellant armed with gun and Mukesh armed with a country made pistol. They fired upon his sleeping father from their respective weapons. He found his father died when he came down from the roof after the accused fled away. He also deposed in the court about Mukesh and Raju who fired on Ram Shanker Pandey (deceased) who hearing the noise of fire and hue and cry of PW-2 and her daughter, he rushed up to the scene of crime along with other neighbouring villagers. Ram Shanker Pandey died of the fire arm injury made by Mukesh and Raju.

All the above proved fact established the presence of witnesses PW-1 and PW-2 on spot.

30. In similar set of facts before Hon'ble The Supreme Court in the case of Machchi Sigh Vs. State of Punjab & Ors. reported in (1983 3 SCC 470) evidences showed and established the natural presence of the witnesses in the house. Para 25 and 30 thus reads as under:-

"25. The presence of Smt. Sabhan at her own house at night time is but natural. Her husband and her grand-son have been killed. She is the lone survivor of the household. Her evidence therefore assumes great importance. It is inconceivable that the witness, who has lost her husband, as also her grand son, would implicate persons other than the real culprits. The only argument pressed into service was the stock argument regarding insufficiency of light. It was negatived by the courts below. We have already dealt with and negatived this argument for reasons indicated earlier. Her evidence furthermore shows that appellant Kashmir Singh had flashed his torch at her husband (Wanjar Singh) and at her grand-son (Satnam Singh). That she herself remained alive to tell the tale was a stroke of luck. The appellants had shot at her but the rifle shot hit the bullock instead of hitting her. The culprits were naturally, in a hurry to get away. They would not have waited to ascertain whether she was hit. Her evidence remains unshaken. The Courts below have, therefore, rightly considered it to be creditworthy and safe for being acted upon.

30. The order of conviction (passed by the Sessions Court and affirmed by the High Court) is inter-alia based on the dying declaration of Mukhtiar Singh. He was fired at and injured soon after midnight in the early morning of August. 13. He was removed to hospital on that very day. His police statement (which has been subsequently treated as a dying declaration) was recorded on the 16th i.e. three days after the assault. He died on the 18th, two days later. The evidence shows that he was in fit condition to make a statement and his statement was truly and faithfully recorded. His statement has been considered to be genuine and true by the Sessions Court and the High Court. We are of the same opinion. It is true that the dying declaration has not been recorded by a magistrate. But then the evidence shows that Mukhtiar Singh was making good recovery and having regard to the condition of his health, no danger to his life was apprehended, it was in this situation that a magistrate was not summoned. Thus, no fault can be legitimately found on this score. Besides, the only question of importance now is as regards the creditworthiness of the statement which has been recorded. Since this statement has been found to be genuine and true nothing can detract from its value. The evidence provided by the dying declaration is by itself good enough to support the order of conviction. But this is not all. Also available is the evidence of PW 37 Ujagar Singh and his daughter-in-law, Munibai (PW 38). The evidence of these two witnesses lends full corroboration to the dying declaration of the victim, and has been rightly relied upon by the Sessions Court and the High Court. We have no reason to view the evidence askance. The presence of these two witnesses in the household was natural. Their evidence shows that on hearing the report of gun they had concealed themselves behind a herd of cattle andhad witnessed the incident from there. We have no reason to disagree with the view of the Sessions Court and the High Court that their evidence is reliable. There is no substance in the argument that the culprits could not have been identified as the light shed by the lantern was not adequate to enable identification. We have already spelled out our reasons for repelling this contention. The finding of guilt is thus fully supported by evidence. We accordingly confirm the same unhesitatingly. Two of the five appellants (viz : Machhi Singh and Jagir Singh) have been sentenced to death. We will deal with the question of sentence in so far as they are concerned after a shortwhile. In regard to the remaining three, viz : Phuman Singh, Jagtar Singh and Kashmir Singh son of Wadhawa Singh, the sentence imposed by the courts below for the offence under Section 302 read with 149 of IPC; and other offences, must be confirmed. Their appeals will stand dismissed."

Source of light on the spot and argument as to the inconsistent testimonies

31. It is highlighted by learned counsel for the accused appellant that there was no source of light and the prosecution has failed to prove the existence of lantern lilted on the spot of incident. PW-1 has stated the place of lantern, hanging on the door of the house in front of which three peoples namely Ram Asrey (the deceased victim), his wife Naval Kisori, PW-2 and Kumari Girisa their daughter were sleeping on their respective cots. PW-1 in his statement has stated that lantern was hanging out on the door on a "Chabutra" of 3-4 feet height and covered with a "Chappar" in northern side of the door on a peg, whereas PW-2, Naval Kisori stated in her statement the place of lantern out of the door in its southern side in "Kutiya". The PW-8 (Investigating Officer) had shown the lantern hanging at a place shown in the site map as "L", we perused the site map and found that there are two houses of deceased, Ram Asrey one situated in northern side another in southern side, in between these two houses the place adjacent to the southern house is shown where the cots were lying on which deceased, Ram Asrey along with his daughter and wife was sleeping. In oral examination before the court also it is stated by the witnesses PW-1, PW-2 and the PW-8 has also shown outside the door, the three cots, in the middle as letter "A" cot of Ram Asrey is shown and in the east the cot of Naval Kisori is shown as letter "B". The cot of Kumari Girisa is shown in the west as letter "C". The place shown as letter "L" is the place where the lantern was hanging is just in the right side of main door of the southern house that is to say in the east of the open space (Sahan).

32. The statement of PW-1, that lantern was hanging outside the house in northern side and the statement of PW-2 that lantern was hanging on her south direction outside the door proved the position of open space (Sahan) correct, both the witnesses are indicating the same place as shown by the Investigating Officer in his site map. Since they were at different places while watching the incident, their narration of the incident is as they saw from their respective directions.

33. The PW-1 was watching the incident from the roof of his house which is situated in the map in the southern side while the place of incident is in the north of the said house therefore, he told the place of lantern at northern side of the door whereas the cot of PW-2, Naval Kisori was lying on the north south direction and while she awakened with the noise of fire, lantern was on her south direction hanging on the wall of the southern house shown as "L" by the Investigating Officer. Therefore, here seems no inconsistency in the narration of PW-1, 2 and 8 respectively Ram Prakash, Naval Kisori and Investigating Officer with regard to the place of lantern where it was hanging.

34. Learned counsel for the appellant argued about the contradiction that PW-1 in F.I.R. has not stated about a torch in his hand while he was seeing the incident in question in night, in the examination-in-chief PW-1 for the first time stated in his statement before the court that a torch was in his hand while he watched the incident from roof. Secondly, the torches shown in the hands of neighbouring villagers who rushed upto the place of incident hearing the hue and cry of the informant's family members, were also not produced in the court, though the Investigating officer in his statement before the court stated on oath that he saw the torches, prepared memo thereof and returned the same to the witnesses. The torches were not produced during the trial. In the absence of production of torches during the trial the Investigating Officer proved only the seizure memo whereupon Exhibit-30 and 31 were marked before the trial judge.

35. In his examination, the PW-8, the Investigating Officer has not given any justification why the torches were returned to the witnesses and not produced in the court. In the absence of production of torches, the statement of the PW-1 Ram Prakash about carrying in hand a torch while watching the incident from his roof and as reported in the FIR in the hands of neighbouring villagers who rushed towards the place of incident flashing torches might be an improvement on the part of investigating officer, as every Investigating Officer tries to strengthen the case of prosecution. But in view of the circumstances of the present case non production of torches by the Investigating Officer at the time of his examination in the court would not have any effect of corroding the prosecution case as the assailants were known to the witnesses and they were seen from the very near by the witnesses. Secondly, the existence of light emitting from the lantern is also proved, therefore, identity of accused when established, the non production of torches is of no effect.

Test identification parade whether necessary in the facts of the case.

36. When the presence of the witnesses PW-1 and PW-2 on spot is proved and established by evidences the incident and the role of the accused appellants in commission of the crime cannot be discarded in view of the fact that all the accused persons were known to the witnesses PW-1 and PW-2 as they were relatives to them. It is not impossible to see even in the night for an 18 year old boy who is not reported with any ailment of eyes, to see from his roof the entire incident and also not impossible for the PW-2 the wife of deceased, Ram Asrey who herself was on the scene of crime very near to the deceased, Ram Asrey and the assailants to see and identify them. In the aforesaid circumstances, the question of test identification parade, if not made by the investigating officer the same would have no adverse effect on the testimony of PW-1 and 2. Moreover, the test identification parade is not a substantive piece of evidence. Necessity of test identification parade arises only in cases where the miscreants/assailants are unknown, the crime is committed in the night, the assailants are numerous, they have hide themselves with muffled faces during the commission of crime and the witnesses too are under shock and fear to hide themselves in safe places. In such circumstances, the test identification parade is needed after arrest of suspected miscreants otherwise in the circumstances of present case the test identification parade is unnecessary. The case laws relied on by learned counsel for the accused-appellants have no application in the scenario of facts in the present appeal.

37. Hon'ble Supreme Court in State of U.P. Vs. Babu & Ors. reported Manu/SC/1149/2003 in para 7 has held as under:-

"7. Apart from the mention about the torchlight, one important aspect which cannot be lost sight of and which is of relevance and great significance is that the accsed persons are known to the witnesses. When the persons are known, identification is possible from the manner of speech, manner of walking and gesticulating and special features of a person like the physical attributes. The reason indicated to discard PWs 1 and 3 is to the effect that PWs 2 and 9, though they were closely related to the deceased, did not support the prosecution version. That cannot per se be a ground to discard the evidence of other witnesses, one of whom was also a relative, and the other an independent witness. As noted above, the High Court has not discussed the evidence of PWs 1 and 3 to point out any vulnerability. The conclusion arrived at is without reason. Since the High Court has acted on surmises and conjectures, the judgment is indefensible."

38. In similar set of facts before Hon'ble The Supreme Court in Machchi Singh Vs. State of Punjab reported in (1983) 3 SCC 470 in para 5 has held as under:-

"5. The most serious criticism pressed into service by learned Counsel for the appellants in each of the appeals is common. Instead of dealing with the identical criticism, in the identical manner, repeatedly, in the context of each matter, we propose to deal with it at this juncture. The criticism is this. It was a dark night. Electricity had not yet reached the concerned village at the material time. In each crime the appreciation of evidence regarding identification has to be made in the context of the fact-situation that a lighted lantern was hanging in the court-yard where the victims were sleeping on the cots. The light shed by the lantern cannot be considered to be sufficient enough (such is the argument) to enable the eye witnesses to identify the culprits. This argument has been rightly rebuffed by the Sessions Court and the High Court, on the ground that villagers living in villages where electricity has not reached as yet, get accustomed to seeing things in the light shed by the lantern. Their eyesight gets conditioned and becomes accustomed to the situation. Their powers of seeing are therefore not diminished by the circumstance that the incident is witnessed in the light shed by the lantern and not electric light. Moreover, identification did not pose any serious problem as the accused were known to the witnesses. In fact they were embroiled in a long standing family feud. As the culprits had not covered their faces to conceal their identity, it was not difficult to identify them from their facial features, build gait etc. Light shed by the lantern was enough to enable the witnesses to identify the culprits under the circumstances."

The witnesses being relative whether interested.

39. To shatter the credibility of prosecution witnesses PW-1 and 2, learned counsel for the appellant argued that they are related witnesses and there is no independent witnesses whereas the name of neighbouring villagers who rushed to the spot hearing hue and cry of Ram Prakash (PW-1), Naval Kisori (PW-2) and Kumari Girisa as well the noise of fires, namely Jagannath S/o Kedar Nath Pandey and Pyare S/o Ramdas Pasi along with the other neighbouring people of the village armed with lathi flashing torches reached on the spot. Ram Shanker Pandey was leading them. It is proved by the evidences of PW-1 and PW-2 that the accused-appellant Mukesh and Raju fired on Ram Shanker Pandey, he sustained gun shot injury, turned back to his house and died on instantly. Seeing this the rest of the villagers fled away under the fear of their lives from the spot. The gruesome manner of crime and cruelty on the part of the accused-appellants as seen by the villagers was sufficient to keep them away not only from the assailants but the victims also. Under such circumstance only the near relatives like the wife of deceased victim Ram Asrey and his son if left alone to depose in the court against the accused-appellants during their trial then this is not a matter of surprise. The witnesses either may be relative or independent must have to pass the test of credibility, truthfulness and reliability. No doubt the relative witnesses cannot be said disinterested but it is also true that a witness loosing her husband like PW-2 and father like PW-3 in place of the real culprit will not falsely implicate someone else and save the real culprit who killed the nearest and dearest of such witnesses before their eyes. Here again the motive under Section 8 of the Evidence Act has to play an important role and relevance with regard to the substantive piece of evidence proving the incident in question with all certainty and the identification of the accused and their role.

Corroboration from medical evidence.

40. The injuries sustained on the body of PW-2, Naval Kishori was examined by the Medical Officer District Hospital, Unnao on 23.6.1985. Dr. R.K. Suri, the Medical Officer who is examined in the trial has PW-5 has proved the injury report of PW-2, Naval Kisori as follows:-

"1. Multiple fire arm wound of entry in an area of 17 c.m.x15 c.m. present over upper part of right scapular including right shoulder each measuring .25 c.m.x.25 c.m. hard substance palpable at some places underneath the wound. No blackening and charring present margins inverted. Injury kept under observation.

2. Multiple fire arm wound of entry in an area of 8 c.m.x4 c.m. present over right side of the neck behind the right ear. Each measuring .25 c.m.x.25 c.m. Hard substance palpable under neath the wound margins inverted. Injury kept under observation.

3. Lacerated wound 3.5 c.m.x.5 c.m. present over anterior aspect of right leg middle part. wound is infected.

4. Lacerated wound 1.5 c.m.x1c.m. over the anterior aspect of the left leg .6 c.m. below the left knee joint.

Injury no.1 and 2 were caused by some fire arm and 3 and 4 were caused by some blunt object. Injury no.1 and 2 were kept under observation and advised X-ray for pellets, while injury No.3 and 4 are simple ."

The injury report has proved by PW-5 in his writing and under signature. He opined that injury no.1 and 2 are fire arm injuries which might have occasion in between night of 21/22.6.1985 at about 1:00 a.m. He also opined that if the depth of wounds would become a slight more, result might have been fatal. In cross examination also he confirmed the injuries no.1 and 2 caused from the fire arm like country made pistol.

Likewise the injuries sustained by Kumari Girisha caused to her from the blow of "tabbal" inflicted on her head by accused-Rakesh, as stated in evidences before the court by PW-1 and 2, was also examined by Dr. R. Prasad (PW-3) on 22.6.1985. The medical officer M.O.I/C P.H.C., Hilauli which reads as under as Exhibit ka-2:-

"Examination of Injuries:- 1/= A 4 Cms x 1/2 cm x scalp deep wound present on the right side of head posterior-Anterior/Anterio posterior in direction, 10 cm above the right ear fragus Margins irregular clots of blood present (lacerated wound)

Nature:- Simple

Duration about 18 hours (Eighteen hours) day old.

Caused by Head blunt object R."

PW-3 has opined in his report that injuries suffered by Kumari Girisha were approximately 18 days old and caused by some blunt object. This injury report is proved in the court by Dr. R. Prasad as PW-3. He proved the report to have been prepared in his handwriting and signature. He explained that the injuries might have been caused from the reverse end of the "tabbal" because such injuries are in nature seems to have been caused by some blunt object. It would be relevant to extract from the statement of PW-1. Ramprakash, deposed before the court in it's concluding part that a "tabbal" is a tool like Axe (Kulhari). From the statement of Dr. R. Prasad, PW-3 it becomes clear that one side of the tool like "tabbal" is sharp edged whereas it's reverse side has blunt end like Kulhari.

Corroboration from the facts and materials in evidence proved by Investing Officer, PW-8

41. Another witness from whose evidence before the court the fact of presence of witnesses PW-1 and PW-2 on spot found corroboration is the investigating officer namely Shiv Swaroop Tiwari, who is examined as PW-8. P.W.-8 collected the blood stained soil from beneath the cot of deceased, Ram Asray and near the body of the deceased Ram Shankar Pandey prepared memo thereof and proved in the court as Exhibit-Ka-24 and 25. Likewise this witness seized the blood stained bed sheet from the cot of Ram Asrey whereupon he was killed by accused-appellant causing fire arm injury, prepared memo and proved in the court as Exhibit-21. He further recovered empty cartridges from beneath the cot of deceased, Ram Asrey, prepared memo and proved in the court as Exhibit Ka-22. The Investigating Officer, PW-8 further seized the blood stained cloth of Kumari Girisa and PW-2, Smt. Naval Kisori prepared memo and proved in the court as Exhibit-18 and 17 respectively. The investigating officer registering the F.I.R. on the basis of written report submitted by the PW-1, Ramprakash proceeded on spot and found the dead bodies of Ram Asrey and Ram Shankar Pandey on spot.

Post Mortem Report

42. The post-mortem of the body of Ram Shankar Pandey was done at 2:00 p.m. on 23.6.1985 by Dr S.P. Rastogi. It would be important here to mention that house of Ram Asrey as shown in the map by PW-8 is neighbouring to the house of deceased Ram Shanker Pandey. The external examination and antemortem injuries is given herein extracting from the post mortem report which is proved in the court by Dr. S.P. Rastogi as Exhibit ka-15. Likewise he did autopsy on the dead body of Ram Asrey on the same date at about 2:30 p.m. memo prepared by him and proved in the court as Exhibit Ka-16. He found the fire arm injuries on the body of Ram Shankar Pandey and Ram Asrey were fatal injuries which caused the death.

Antemortem injuries and opinion of Dr. S.P. Rastogi mentioned in Post Mortem Report of Ram Shanker Pandey and Ram Asrey are as follows-

Ante Mortem Injuries of Ram Shanker Pandey

Fire arm entrance wound multiple in number present on right side upper part abdomen in an area 9 c.m. x 13 c.m. present 7 c.m. below right nipple and 12 c.m. above the umblicus, 5 c.m. right to midline. Each wound is 0.3 cm x 0.3 cm. size inverted margin, oval in shape, some are muscles deep and some are abdominal cavity deep, Blackening and tatooing present around the wound, on probing direction of wound is from right, obliquely upward medially backward.

On opening the chest cavity, right side of chest cavity following of 200 ml of fluid and clotted blood. Right lung lacerated four chots recovered from the right lung substance and 10 small shots recovered from the right lobe of liver. Right lobe liver lacerated Pentoneal cavity full of 500 ml. fluid and clotted blood and two pieces of wading recovered from the liver substance Eight small shots recovered from the skin and muscle substance.

Opinion as to cause and manner of death.

Died due to shock and haemorrhage as a result.

Ante Mortem Injuries of Ram Asray

1. Abraded contusion 2 cmx 2 cm present below the right lower eye lid 1 cm midial to the lateral angle of right eye.

2. Contusion 2 cmx 2 cm left side cheek 2 cm left to the lateral angle of mouth.

3. Abraided contusion 2 cm x 2 cm present on left side fore arm 2 cm poximal to left wrist joint.

5. Fire arm entrance wound 4 cm x 4 cm present on left side scapula, 6 cm below from the spin of scapula, 5 cm above the lower angle of scapula 8 cm from the left axilla. No blackening and tatooing present. Oval in shape inverted margins chest cavity deep, on proving obliquely medically from back to front. On opening the chest cavity. Left side chest cavity full of fluid and clotted blood 300 ml. Left lung lacerated middle part. 13 small shots recovered from the left lung substance.

Opinion as to cause and manner of death

Died due to shock and haemorrhage as a result of fire arm antemortem injuries.

43. The medical evidence is not in variation with the statement given in the court by the eye witnesses PW-1 Ramprakash and injured eye witness PW-2, Naval Kishori. The statement of both the above two witnesses find further corroboration from the materials collected from the spot by PW-8 are proved in the court. The recovery of dead bodies of the victims of the incident namely Ram Asrey and Ram Shanker Pandey from the spot and post-mortem report amply prove the fatal injuries caused by fire arm convince and give confidence to believe the presence of PW-1 and 2 on spot during the incident therefore, their statements that they have seen the incident could not be disbelieved. They are trustworthy for the simple reason that the role assigned by both the prosecution witness namely PW-1 and PW-2 to the accused-appellant and the manner in which they committed ofence from their respective weapons resulting into the death of Ram Shankar Pandey and Ram Asrey is not suffering from any embellishment, falsity and exaggeration. Moreover the PW-2 is an injured witness, therefore, her testimony stands on a higher pedestal of credence. Deposition of an injured witness should be relied upon unless there are strong grounds for rejection of his/her evidence on the basis of any major contradiction or discrepancy because his/her presence on the scene stands established. Since the testimony of aforesaid two witnesses are not suffering from any contradictions, inconsistencies therefore, we hold the aforesaid witnesses worthy of credence and wholly reliable.

44. The questions asked in cross-examination from PW-1 and PW-2 about the direction from the deceased of accused assailants while they fired upon Ram Asrey and on Ram Shanker Pandey. The distance between the deceased and assailants were also asked from both the witnesses as learned counsel for the defence tried to carve out some discrepancies from answers given by the aforesaid witnesses with regard to the symptoms and shape of wounds caused by fire shot on the body of deceased. But no such discrepancies could be elicited from answers which may shatter the case of prosecution regarding killing of Ram Asrey and Ram Shanker Pandey caused by fire arm injury. PW-1, Ramprakash in page-14 of his cross-examination has stated that accused persons had fired from a distance of 4 to 5 hands (approximately 8 feet), therefore, there is no blackening and tatooing around wound. As such the statement with regard to the fire arm injury on the body of Ram Asrey (deceased) is not in variation with the post mortem report. It is also important to note that in firing upon Ram Asrey heavy projectile like gun was applied by accused Jatashanker whereas Mukesh his son applied country made pistol for firing on the deceased. The blackening depends on the quality of gun powder also. As regards blackening around the injuries on Ram Shanker Pandey (deceased), PW-1 stated that accused Mukesh and Rakesh fired on him with their respective weapons, the country made pistol, when he was rushing up to the scene of crime leading the neighbouring villagers flashing the torches. When it is proved that number of fire arms were used in the present case, multiple fire arm wounds are found on the body of Ram Shanker Pandey is also a corroborative evidence for the fact stated as ocular witness by PW-1, some country made cartridges which had sub standard gun powder of rough quality does not completely burnt and which can be into existence the blackening around the wound even if the fire made from a distance of more than 4 to 5 feet. The above finding made by Trial Judge is correct. The quality of gun powder may cause blackening when shot is made even from a distance of 8 to 10 feet cannot be ruled out. Moreover, Ramprakash is the eye witness who had seen the entire incident from his roof and when the same occurred, on the ground it was not possible for him to observe the correct distance and direction from the roof. As such if any, discrepancy occurs with regard to the direction of the wound caused by the fire arm injury and distance from the deceased when fired it would be immaterial on the strength of the ocular testimony of the witnesses and is not of such kind which can completely over rule the incident of firing upon the deceased Ram Asrey and Ram Shanker Pandey by the accused-appellants.

45. Hon'ble Supreme Court in Thoti Manohar Vs. State of Andhra Pradesh reported in (2012) AIR SCW 3752 in para-30 has held as under:-

"30. The learned counsel for the appellant has endeavoured hard to highlight certain discrepancies pertaining to time, situation of the land, number of persons, etc., but in our considered opinion, they are absolutely minor in nature. The minor discrepancies on trivial matters not touching the core of the matter cannot bring discredit to the story of the prosecution. Giving undue importance to them would amount to adopting a hyper-technical approach. The Court, while appreciating the evidence, should not attach much significance to minor discrepancies, for the discrepancies which do not shake the basic version of the prosecution case are to be ignored. This has been so held in State of U.P. v. M.K. Anthony[7]; Appabhai and another v. State of Gujarat[8]; Rammi alias Rameshwar v. State of Madhya Pradesh[9]; State of H.P. v. Lekh Raj and another[10]; Laxman Singh v. Poonam Singh[11] and Dashrath Singh v. State of U.P.[12] No evidence can ever be perfect for man is not perfect and man lives in an imperfect world. Thus, the duty of the court is to see with the vision of prudence and acceptability of the deposition regard being had to the substratum of the prosecution story. In this context, we may reproduce a passage from the decision of this Court in State of Punjab v. Jagir Singh Baljit Singh and Karam Singh[13], wherein H.R. Khanna, J., speaking for the Court, observed thus:-

"A criminal trial is not like a fairy tale wherein one is free to give flight to one's imagination and phantasy. It concerns itself with the question as to whether the accused arraigned at the trial is guilty of the crime with which he is charged. Crime is an event in real life and is the product of interplay of different human emotions. In arriving at the conclusion about the guilt of the accused charged with the commission of a crime, the court has to judge the evidence by the yardstick of probabilities, its intrinsic worth and the animus of witnesses. Every case in the final analysis would have to depend upon its own facts. Although the benefit of every reasonable doubt should be given to the accused, the courts should not at the same time reject evidence which is ex facie trustworthy on grounds which are fanciful or in the nature of conjectures."

46. On the basis of above discussions with regard to the facts, evidences and materials placed and proved by the prosecution, the answer to the first point framed hereabove for our determination is that prosecution has been successful in proving it's case against the accused-appellants in trial beyond all reasonable doubts.

Non production of all the injured witnesses

47. The appellant raised contention casting doubt as to the prosecution's failure that out of two prosecution witness of the incident who are injured namely Kumari Girisha and Smt. Naval Kishori only Smt. Naval Kishori was examined as PW-2, whereas Kumari Girisha was not produced before the court for examination. This argument may have some force only in case the non-production of one of the injured witnesses caused prejudice to the case of defence. Here PW-2, Naval Kisori and Kumari Girisha both are the near relative to the deceased Ram Asrey. The medical examination report as proved by PW-5, Dr. R. Prasad is proved. From the medical examination report it becomes amply clear that injured Kumari Girisa was a girl of teenage about 15 years old and the incident as happened is sufficiently proved by the PW-2, (mother of Kumari Girisha and wife of the decease Ram Asrey). This is on the option of prosecution to examine all its witnesses or some or any one of them to prove the case.

48. Hon'ble the Supreme Court in Avtar Singh Vs. State of Haryana and Kripal Singh @ Pala & Ors. Vs. State of Haryana & Ors. reported in 2012 9 SCC 432 in its para-19 has held as under:-

"19. The law on this aspect can be succinctly stated to the effect that in order to prove the guilt of the accused, the prosecution should make earnest effort to place the material evidence both oral and documentary which satisfactorily and truthfully demonstrate and fully support the case of the prosecution. Where there were several persons stated to have witnessed the incident and the prosecution examined those witnesses who were able to depose the nature of offence committed more accurately leaving no room for doubt about the involvement of the accused in the occurrence and the extent of their involvement with specific overt act and also were able to withstand the cross-examination by maintaining the sequence and the part played as originally stated, it will be wholly irrelevant and unnecessary to multiply the number of witnesses to repeat the same version."

49. The prosecution while opening it's case during trial has option to state by what evidence it proposes to prove the guilt of the accused, therefore, one cannot compel the prosecution to produce any witness to which the prosecution has not examined. Further Section 134 of the Indian Evidence Act also emphasizes on the quality of evidence and witness, not on the quantity. Section 134 of Indian Evidence Act, 1972 runs as under:-

"134. Number of witnesses.--No particular number of witnesses shall in any case be required for the proof of any fact."

50. Hon'ble the Supreme Court in Hukum Singh & Ors. Vs. State of Rajasthan reported in 2000 (41) ACC 662 in para 12 has discussed the option of prosecution to examine its own witnesses and the effect of such non-examination in given circumstances, which reads as under:-

"12. When the case reaches the stage envisaged in Section 231 of the Code the Sessions Judge is obliged to take all such evidence as may be produced in support of the prosecution. It is clear from the said Section that the Public Prosecutor is expected to produce evidence in support of the prosecution and not in derogation of the prosecution case. At the said stage the Public Prosecutor would be in a position to take a decision as to which among the persons cited are to be examined. If there are too many witnesses on the same point the Public Prosecutor is at liberty to choose two or some among them alone so that the time of the court can be saved from repetitious depositions on the same factual aspects. That principle applies when there are too many witnesses cited if they all had sustained injuries at the occurrence. The Public Prosecutor in such cases is not obliged to examine all the injured witnesses. If he is satisfied by examining any two or three of them, it is open to him to inform the court that he does not propose to examine the remaining persons in that category. This will help not only the prosecution for relieving itself of the strain of adducing repetitive evidence on the same point but also helps the court considerably in lessening the workload. Time has come to make every effort possible to lessen the workload, particularly those courts crammed with cases, but without impairing the cause of justice."

51. Honorable the Supreme Court in Veer Singh & Ors. Vs. State of U.P. reported in 2014 2 SCC 455 in para 21 and 22 has held as under:-

"21. The legal system has laid emphasis on value, weight and quality of evidence rather than on quantity multiplicity or plurality of witnesses. It is not the number of witnesses but -quality of their evidence which is important as there is no requirement under the Law of Evidence that any particular number of witnesses is to be examined to prove/disprove a fact. Evidence must be weighed and not counted. It is quality and not quantity which determines the adequacy of evidence as has been provided under Section 134 of the Evidence Act. As a general rule the Court can and may act on the testimony of a single witness provided he is wholly reliable. (Vide: Vadivelu Thevar and Anr. vs. State of Madras AIR 1957 SC 614; Kunju @ Balachandran vs. State of Tamil Nadu AIR 2008 SC 1381; Bipin Kumar Page 21 21 Mondal vs. State of West Bengal AIR 2010 SC 3638; Mahesh and Another vs. State of Madhya Pradesh (2011) 9 SCC 626; Prithipal Singh and ors. vs. State of Punjab and anr. (2012) 1 SCC 10; Kishan Chand vs. State of Haryana JT 2013 (1) SC 222 and Gulam Sarbar vs. State of Bihar (Now Jharkhand) - 2013 (12) SCALE 504).

22. In the present case we are left with the sole testimony of injured eye-witness PW4 Harbans Kaur. She has lost all the members of her family in the attack during the occurrence. -There is no reason for her to falsely implicate any of the accused in the case. On the contrary she would only point out the correct assailants who are responsible for killing her family members. We are of the considered view that the testimony of PW4 Harbans Kaur is cogent, credible and trustworthy and has a ring of truth and deserves acceptance. All the 12 victims of the occurrence died of homicidal violence is established by the oral testimony of the doctors who Page 22 conducted autopsies on their bodies and the certificates issued by them to that effect."

52. The prosecution no doubt has strict burden to prove its case beyond all reasonable doubts. In the present case, the prosecution by its witnesses proved the case beyond all reasonable doubts. The defence has tried to cause some doubt on the very genesis of the incident saying 'on 21/22.6.1985 a dacoity was committed by some unknown assailants in the house of informant wherein Ram Asrey and Ram Shanker Pandey were killed and Naval Kisori and Kumari Girisa sustained injuries'. In cross examination from PW-1 only a suggestion was given to him by learned counsel for the defence, is it right to say that a dacoity was committed in his house and he falsely implicated the accused appellant, he firmly stated, no this is wrong. He denied another suggestion given to him impliedly that after the incident some articles from his house were not found. He firmly stated that he knows about everything which were present in his house and all those things were present as such after the incident. Likewise PW-2 was also given a suggestion that was there a dacoity committed in her house? She firmly denied. This is important here to discuss that when a defence has been specifically taken by the accused-appellant though no strict proof of such defence is required but if the case of prosecution is proved beyond all reasonable doubts, then onus lies on the accused to prove it's case of defence atleast on preponderance of probabilities.

53. In the case in hand while the prosecution witness denied flatly the suggestion as to the commission of dacoity in the house of informant on the unfateful night of 21/22.6.1983 at about 1:00 a.m. and proved beyond all reasonable doubt the commission of offence by the accused-appellant, then an opportunity was available with the accused-appellant to make query in cross examination with PW-8, the Investigating Officer, about commission of dacoity if any on the date of incident whether reported to him. But not a single question was asked from the Investigating Officer to this effect. Ram Shanker Pandey who died of gun shot injury in the incident was not family member of the informant. He was neighbour, proved to rushed to the scene of incident on hearing the noise of fire and hue and cry of injured witnesses. The Investigating Officer was not asked any question about any different cause of his death than reported by the informant. In this way it cannot be said that atleast on preponderance of probabilities the accused-appellants have shown their case set in defence as probable. As such the accused-appellants could not cast any doubt as against the proved case of prosecution.

54. We therefore in answer to the second point framed by us for determination in appeal, hold that accused-appellants against the proved case of prosecution beyond all reasonable doubt remained unsuccessful to show even on preponderance of probabilities the case of defence that dacoity was committed on the date and time of incident i.e., 21/22.6.1985 in the house of informant and they were falsely implicated by the informant by reason of enmity. Thus, they failed to cause any reasonable doubt against the case of prosecution.

55. We are therefore, of the opinion that the case of prosecution, proved by its witnesses beyond all reasonable doubt, is found sufficient to record conviction by the Trial Judge and award of sentence of life imprisonment under Section 302/34 I.P.C. and imprisonment for three years under Section 307 I.P.C. read with Section 34 I.P.C. to the accused-appellants.

56. Criminal Appeal No. 313 of 1986 (Jata Shanker & Ors. Vs. State of U.P.) and Criminal Appeal No. 459 of 1986 (Raju @ Chandra Prakash Vs. State of U.P.), both arise out of the judgment and order dated 03.05.1986 passed by learned Special Judge, Unnao in Sessions Trial No. 406 of 1985, are dismissed, Conviction and sentence of accused-appellants, namely, Jatashanker, Mukesh, Rakesh and Raju @ Chandra Prakash for life imprisonment under Section 302/34 I.P.C. and rigorous imprisonment for three years under Section 307/34 I.P.C. is hereby confirmed. The accused-appellants, namely, Jatashanker, Mukesh, Rakesh and Raju @ Chandra Prakash are on bail. Their bail bonds and surety bonds are rejected and sureties are discharged.

The accused appellants are directed to surrender before the court of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Unnao within 15 days from the date of order. In case, they do not surrender within the aforesaid time, the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Unnao in order to ensure compliance shall adopt all coercive measures in accordance with law and send them to Jail for undergoing sentence of imprisonment.

Copy of the judgment be sent to Sessions Judge, Unnao to ensure compliance under intimation to this Court. Copy of the judgment be also provided to the accused-appellants.

Office is directed to enter the judgment in compliance register maintained for the purpose in the Court.

2. This criminal appeal has been preferred against the judgment and order dated 20.02.1996, passed by Vth

Additional Sessions Judge, Kanpur Dehat, in Sessions Trial No. 26/89 (State v Arvind and others), under Sections 302 and 120B IPC, Police Station Roora, District Kanpur Dehat by which the accused-appellant namely Arvind Singh has been convicted and sentenced for the offence under Section 302 IPC for life imprisonment along with fine of Rs. 1000/- and in default of fine one year additional rigorous imprisonment, whereas he has been acquitted from the charge under Section 120B IPC.

3. Brief facts of the case is that a first information report was lodged by Munnu Singh (Home Guard) in respect of a criminal incident dated 24.08.1988 at 08:45 PM. The informant is a Home Guard in the village Maizu Mau, Police Station Roora, was on surveillance duty with Home Guards Ghasite Lal, Pancham Lal and Govind Singh in the town and when they were coming from the side of canal to the railway station, at about 08:45 PM, reached in front of town area office on the road. They heard somebody crying Bachao-Bachao from the side of shop of Naresh Kumar. All ran towards the sound raising alarm. They saw that on the road side two persons having Gandasa and axe were assaulting a person. They challenged and seeing them, both the persons ran towards the north of the street and despite efforts made by them, they could not be caught. They saw two persons in the light of torch and electricity and can identify them if they come before them. They saw that a person was lying dead on the spot sustaining injuries. The injuries were bleeding. Many persons reached there and seeing the deceased they said that the deceased person was Aditiya Kumar son of Krishna Bihari Dixit of town Roora. The informant, leaving behind the other Home Guards there, gave an oral information in the police station and on the basis of it, the offence was registered under Section 302 IPC against two unknown persons. On investigation, names of accused persons Arvind Singh, Babua and Sunil Singh came in light. The dead body was taken into possession, inquest report and necessary papers for postmortem was prepared, the dead body was sealed and sent to the District Hospital, Kanpur Nagar for postmortem. The torch of the guard was taken into possession, memo was prepared and the torch was delivered back to him. Blood stained and plain earth was collected from the spot and was kept in two separate containers which were sealed and memo was prepared. After taking the evidence of the witnesses and completing the investigation, charge sheet was submitted against all the three accused persons for the offence under Sections 302 and 120B IPC. Charges were framed for the aforesaid offences against all the accused persons who denied charges and claimed trial. It appears from the impugned judgment that after six witnesses were examined, accused Jaipal Singh @ Bauwa absconded and the trial court separated his file by order dated 29.01.1993, registered as ST No. 26A/89 and thereafter the statement of other witnesses were recorded. On completion of the prosecution evidence, the Statement of the two accused persons were recorded under Section 313 CrPC who put forward the case of denial and stated that they have been falsely implicated in the case due to enmity and with the consultation of the police, the report was lodged. In defence, the accused persons have filed Ext. Kh-1 which is copy of FIR under section 171/332 IPC against Sone Lal, lodged by accused Ramswaroop for committing marpeet and causing obstruction in election process. The learned trial court has noted that accused is neither named nor it has any relation with him.

4. After perusing the evidence and hearing the counsel of both the parties, the learned trial court acquitted accused Sunil for the offence under Sections 302/120B IPC and also acquitted accused Arvind for the offence under Section 120B IPC. Accused Arvind was, however, convicted and sentenced for the offence under Section 302 IPC.

5. Feeling aggrieved by the impugned judgment, the appellant has filed this criminal appeal challenging the impugned judgment stating that to be against the weight of evidence on record. The prosecution failed to prove the guilt beyond reasonable doubt and the awarded sentence is too severe, therefore, the impugned judgment is liable to be set aside and the accused-appellant is entitled for acquittal.

6. The prosecution has examined as many as seven witnesses in support. PW-1 Munnu Singh (informant) has proved his oral report and has given the evidence about the incident. PW-2 Govind Singh, Home Guard and PW-3 Rakesh Kumar Gupta are the witnesses of fact. PW-4 SI S.B. Mishra has proved the inquest report and other papers which were prepared for the purpose of sending the dead body for postmortem. He has also proved the memo of two slippers of the deceased and memo of blood stained and plain earth. PW-5 Akhilesh Kumar is also a witness of fact. PW-6 Dr. A. Rahman (Senior Medical Officer) has proved the postmortem report. PW-7 Inspector R.P. Singh is the Investigating Officer. All these witnesses have proved chik FIR Ext. Ka-1, inquest report Ext. Ka-2, challan dead body Ext. Ka-3, photo nash Ext. Ka-4, letter to CMO Ext. Ka-5, letter to RI Ext. Ka-6, sample seal Ext. Ka-7, memo of sleepers Ext. Ka-8, memo of blood stained and plain earth Ext. Ka-9, postmortem report Ext. Ka-10, site map Ext. Ka-11, memo of torch Ext. Ka-12, charge sheet Ext. Ka-13 and Material Exts. 1 to 3.

7. The submission of the learned Amicus Curiae for the appellant is that all the prosecution witnesses have given false evidence and the discrepancy and improvement made by them goes to show that they are not consistent and reliable. PW-5 is the brother of the deceased and has been examined as eye witness. He has not been produced for cross-examination and instead of lodging any FIR, he went back to Kanpur. It has also been submitted that the informant was declared hostile. Accused Sunil has been already acquitted by the learned trial court. On the other hand, learned AGA has submitted that the learned trial court on the basis of evidence on record has convicted the accused and there is no illegality in the impugned judgment.

8. At this stage, it appears necessary to look at the evidence of prosecution in this case. PW-1 Home Guard Munnu Singh (informant) has stated that on 24.08.1988, he was on surveillance duty in the town Roora with Home Guards Ghaseta Lal, Pancham, Ram Prasad and Govind. When they were coming back from the side of canal to the railway station through road, at about 09:00 PM, in the night, they heard the sound of Bachao-Bachao near the town area. They rushed towards the sound, whereupon, the assailants ran away. It was raining and in the dark night he could not see the assailants. After the incident, 5 to 10 persons gathered there and they recognized the deceased to be the son of Pandit Ji. This witness has been declared hostile.

9. PW-2 Home Guard Govind Singh has also stated that on 24.08.1988, when he along with Home Guard Munnu Singh, Ghaseta Lal, Pancham and Ram Prasad was coming from the side of canal and was going towards the town area, they heard the voice of Bachao-Bachao. It was 09:00 PM and on hearing the voice, they rushed towards the voice making sound of Pakdo-Pakdo. He saw that Arvind with axe and Bauwa Singh with gandasa were assaulting the deceased Aditiya. They tried to catch them but they ran away from there. The witness has also stated that besides these two, accused Sunil Kumar was also there, who ran away towards the house of Ram Swaroop. They came back and found that Aditiya was lying dead. They saw the incident in the light of torch and electricity. Home Guard Munnu Singh went to give information to the police station.

10. PW-3 Rakesh Kumar Gupta has stated that on 24.08.1988, Aditiya Kumar was killed. On that day, he had come from Kanpur to Roora by Shatal (train) and was going to his house from Roora Station with Aditiya Kumar and Akhilesh. When they reached in front of the clinic of Dr. Naresh, accused Sunil stopped and started talking to Aditiya. At that time Arvind, Bauwa singh and Ram Swaroop Singh were also present. Accused Arvind having an axe, Bauwa with gandasa started assaulting Aditiya by gandasa and axe. Ram Swaroop exhorted to kill the deceased. This incident took place at about 08:45 PM. On being assaulted, Aditiya fell down. The incident was seen by him, Akhilesh and Prakash Gupta and the five Home Guards who challenged the assailant, whereupon, the accused persons ran away and behind them accused Sunil also rushed away on his cycle. The Home Guards chased them. The deceased died on spot and he went to his house. In the light of bulb and torch, he saw the incident and identified the accused persons.

11. PW-4 SI S.B. Mishra has stated that on 24.08.1988, he along with SO R.P. Yadav went to the place of occurrence and he prepared the inquest report and sealed the dead body. He also prepared necessary papers for postmortem and with the papers, handed over the dead body to Constables Rama Shanker and Brahama Nand for postmortem.

12. PW-5 Akhilesh Kumar is the brother of deceased. He has stated that on 24.08.1988, he and the deceased were coming from Kanpur by Shatal train to Roora and were going to their house. Rakesh and Prakash were also on the train who were also accompanying them. When they reached to the clinic of Dr. Naresh, accused Sunil stopped the deceased and started talking. Accused persons Arvind Singh,Bauwa Singh and one Ram Swaroop were also present there. Arvind Singh and Bauwa with axe and gandasa started assaulting the deceased. Ram Swaroop exhorted them to kill the deceased. The deceased was crying Bachao-Bachao, whereupon the Home Guards came and in the light of torch they saw the accused and the incident. Accused Sunil ran away towards the house of Ram Swaroop and remaining accused persons ran away towards the north. This incident took place at 08:45 PM. He has stated that his brother had died. He came back to Kanpur to inform his father.

13. PW-6 is Dr. A. Rahman has stated that on 25.08.1988, he was posted as Medical Officer, T.B. Isolation Hospital and at 02:10 PM, he conducted postmortem of the dead body of Aditiya Kumar and prepared the postmortem report which is Ext. Ka-10. The deceased must have died. The deceased must have died 3/4 day before and there may be six hours difference in either side. On external examination, it was found that the deceased was average built, rigor mortise was present in the upper and lower limb. Mouth was closed but the right eye was open. The following ante-mortem injuries were found on the body of the deceased:

(2) Incised wound 9 cm. X 1 ½ cm. X bone deep, 1 ½ cm. below + parallel to injury no. 1, same nature of wound.

(3) Incised wound 7 cm. X 1 ½ cm. X bone deep, 2 cm. above + behind right ear oblique downwards + backwards, edges clean cut.

(4) Incised wound 8 cm. X ½ cm. horizontal on back of head, underlying bone found clean cut, 3 cm. behind the injury no. 3.

(5) Incised wound 10 cm. X 2 ½ cm. X cavity deep, 4 cm. above injury no. 4 + parallel to it, edges clean cut.

(6) Incised wound 8 cm. X 2 cm. X on back of head vertically crossing the injury no. 5, edges + bone clean cut.

(7) Incised wound 8 cm. X. 2 cm. horizontally 2 cm. above back of left ear, edges + bone clean cut.

(8) Incised wound 16 cm. X 3 cm. X cavity deep of left side of head from the mid line of the forehead, 2 cm. down to mid line, edges + bone (temporal + left perital clean cut).

(9) Incised wound 3 ½ cm. X 2 cm. X alna side of right forearm, alna found cut, edges + bone clan cut.

(10) Incised wound 7 cm. X 3 cm. X bond deep of outside of left knee, clean cut, edges clean cut horizontally.

(11) Incised wound 2 ½ cm. X 1 ½ cm. X muscle deep, 2 cm. below injury no. 10, edges clean cut horizontally.

(12) Incised wound 4 cm. X 2 cm. X muscle deep in middle of left pop on literal region horizontally, edges clean cut.

The doctor has said that all wounds were clean cut edges and there was no interlocutory tissue in the gaps of the wound. In the internal examination, it was found that right parietal, left parietal + frontal bone were found clean cut under above lying injuries as mentioned. Membranes cut under injury nos. 5 and 8. Brain tissues out from injury no. 8. Both chambers of the heart were found empty. According to doctor, the death was due to shock and hemorrhage resulting out of ante-mortem injuries.

14. PW-7 R.P. Singh (Investigating Officer) has stated that on 24.08.1988 at 09:10 PM, in the night, the offence was registered on the oral report of Home Guard Munnu Singh and the chik was prepared by Head Constable Ram Baran. He went to the spot and took the statement of Munnu. Inquest report was prepared by SI S.D. Mishra on his direction and necessary papers were also prepared. The dead body was sealed and sent for postmortem. The statement of the inquest witnesses was recorded. By the statement of Home Guard Govind Singh, the name of accused persons came in light and on his identification the site map was prepared. The statements of other witnesses namely Bhagwan Singh, Om Prakash, Akhilesh and Rakesh Kumar etc. were recorded by him. The statement of Home Guards Ghasita Lal, Ram Prasad, Pancham Lal was also recorded. The torch of Home Guard Govind Singh was taken into possession and memo was prepared and torch was given back to him. On 05.12.1988, he was transferred and the investigation was given to SI T.P. Singh who submitted charge sheet against the accused persons. The witness has proved the charge sheet and GD report as he had seen SI T.P. Singh writing and signing.

15. Coming to the FIR which has been lodged by HG Munnu Singh orally in the concerned police station. On 24.8.1988, the incident allegedly took place at 8.45 PM and the FIR has been lodged on the same day at 9.10 PM and there appears to be no delay as the police station is situated at a distance of only 2 furlong. The place of occurrence as shown by IO is according to FIR and the same has been proved by all the fact witness. Place where dead body was found as described in the inquest report and from where blood stained and plain earth was taken also corroborated the place of occurrence. In the postmortem report, it has been mentioned that the deceased died at the time and date alleged by prosecution because of the twelve serious injuries found on the body of deceased which were caused by sharp weapon. The only thing which was to be determined by the trial court was whether the accused persons including appellant caused death of the deceased.

16. Five home guards who were on surveillance duty allegedly saw the incident and only two of them have been examined. Allegedly, they saw the assailants and could recognize them by face. They did not know the names of assailants. PW-1 Informant Munnu Singh has stated that after the incident, 10 to 5 persons reached there and recognized the dead person as Aditya Kumar s/o Krishna Bihari Dixit of town Rura. Clearly, no body could tell the name of the assailants, otherwise, named FIR must have been lodged. PW-2 Govind has also stated that after chasing the assailants, when they came back, 10-20 persons were gathered there who recognized and disclosed the name of the deceased. PW-1 has stated that it was rainy dark night and he could not see the assailants. He could not recognize the assailant as the moment they rushed towards sound, the accused fled away from there. He has stated in the cross-examination that despite electric bulb, there was power cut at the time of incident. The 5-10 persons who reached there came after the accused persons fled away from there. He has further stated that after report was lodged, it was not read over to him. He is illiterate and he just signed over the chick. This witness has been declared hostile as he has disowned the FIR by saying that FIR was not read over to him and that he did not see the assailant. Thus, PW-1 has stated nothing to support prosecution case showing involvement of the accused persons in the commission of the offence. He has clearly stated that because of darkness and rain, he could not see and recognize the assailants. It is clear from the above discussion that by the time FIR was lodged, the name of the assailants was not known and people reached after the incident.

17. PW-2 Govind Singh brings a shift and in examination-in-chief, took the name of accused Arvind with axe and Babua Singh with gandasa and has stated that they were assaulting Aditya. With these two accused persons, accused Sunil was also there who ran away by cycle from the side of the house of Ramswarup. It appears strange. In the FIR accused persons are not named. People gathered there came after incident. But, PW-2 has deposed as if he was knowing the accused persons and the deceased by their name and he said it to the informant. If it was so, there should have been a named FIR as there was nothing to prevent the informant to lodge named FIR against the accused persons. This gives a valid point to determine whether at the time of lodging FIR, the assailants were known to the witness. It has been nowhere stated by the witness that he was acquainted with the accused persons prior to the incident. He has also not disclosed the name of any person who might have told the name of the assailants. During cross-examination, PW-2 has stated that they heard 'bachao bachao' when they were at town area office which was at the distance of 50 to hundred yards away from the spot and when they reached there, they found the deceased lying there. It was a cloudy whether but it was not raining and they chased the accused and on return, they found 15-20 persons gathered there and they told that the deceased is Aditya. He further states that from town area office, on hearing sound of 'bachao bachao' they shouted not to kill the deceased and then the assailants ran away. They all chased and behind their back he lit the torch and saw them from their back but could not see their face. The witness has tried to cover by saying that anybody can be recognized from the back. In our opinion, it is possible only when the accused is known and acquainted but in absence of such positive evidence, it cannot be believed that the witness could recognize the accused persons from the back in torch light in the cloudy dark night. The witness has said that when he lit the torch, the accused persons were not assaulting but running away. It goes to show that this witness even did not see the accused persons assaulting. The witness has said that at the time of preparing inquest report, he had disclosed the name of accused persons and it was mentioned in the inquest report. We have perused the inquest report and we find that the name of the accused persons is not mentioned therein. Moreover, PW-2 Govind is not a witness of inquest report. He has stated that he disclosed the name of the assailants to the informant. This also appears to be false as the informant has not named the accused persons in FIR. On the basis of above analysis of the evidence and apparent discrepancy and substantial improvement in the testimony, we are of the view that PW-2 is not trustworthy and reliable.

18. PW-3 Rakesh Kumar Gupta and PW-5 Akhilesh have been examined as eyewitnesses. Both claim that they came together to Rura from Kanpur by same train together with the deceased. There is no evidence on record that soon before the incident some train arrived there. It was necessary as PW-1 and PW-2 have not stated that these two witnesses were present and saw the incident. On the contrary the people reached there after the incident. Had they been present, they must have signified it to the Home Guards. But, there is nothing as such in the statement of any of the witnesses. They have stated the involvement of not only two accused Arvind and Babua Singh, but also of accused Sunil who stopped the deceased and started talking with him and of Ramswarup extorting the two main accused. On the contrary both have stated that the assailants ran away from there the moment the home guards reached. The most strange and unnatural conduct of these two witnesses is that PW-3 did not stay there and returned home, whereas, PW-5 Akhilesh, the brother of the deceased did not himself lodge the FIR and went back to Kanpur. None of them has stated that they disclosed the names of accused persons to the Home Guards. PW-5 has not even appeared nor has been produced for cross-examination and his evidence is not readable against the accused. Not lodging the FIR and not coming for cross-examination and also the conduct that he did not stay there and went back to Kanpur is so unusual that his presence appears to be suspicious at the time of incident. Both have stated that on being assaulted, when the deceased fell down, the home guards reached. If it was so, there was no question of FIR being lodged against unnamed persons. PW-1 and PW-2 have not stated that at the time of incident, the brother of the deceased was present and he saw the incident. Had he been present at the time of incident, there could have been no occasion for PW-1 to lodge FIR. Normally, FIR is lodged by police when no one has either seen the incident or the assailants and deceased are unknown and not identified.

19. While appreciating the evidence of a witness claiming to have seen the incident, the court has to consider the entire testimony of the witness and look for the factors such as 1. whether the witness was present on the spot; 2. whether the witness had seen the incident and 3. whether the witness is credible. Pw-1 and PW-2 have not stated that PW-3 was present there at the time of incident. But, PW-5, the brother of the deceased, has not been produced for cross-examination and his statement cannot be read to support the claim of PW-3 that he came with the deceased and his brother together by the same train.. He did not come forward at the time of incident to disclose the name and identity of the accused persons. He himself has stated that he did not talk to any of the home guards and he straight forward moved towards his home. It is clear that the witness is not named in FIR nor the IO has marked the place in the site map from where he saw the incident. We are conscious of the settled proposition of law that it is not necessary that eyewitnesses should be necessarily mentioned in the FIR. It has been held in Raj Kishore Jha v State of Bihar, 2003(47) ACC 1068 (SC) and Chittarlal Vs. State of Rajasthan, (2003) 6 SCC 397, mentioning of names of all witnesses in FIR or in statements u/s 161 CrPC is not a requirement of law and non-mentioning of the name of any witness in the FIR would not justify rejection of evidence of the eye-witness. But, in the facts and circumstances of this case where the name of accused persons was not known till lodging of FIR and PW-1 and PW-2 do not state regarding presence of the witness and say that people gathered there after the incident, the non-mentioning of the name of PW-3 in FIR becomes significant to support the conclusion that there is no evidence to establish his presence at the time of occurrence.

20. There is no evidence that PW-3 or his family live close to the place of occurrence or at the alleged time he used to be there usually. It was rainy and cloudy season and unless for good reason, the witness was not supposed to be there. He came from train from Kanpur is a fact which is not supported by any evidence. The brother of the deceased was with him but as he has not been produced for cross-examination, his evidence cannot be read to support this fact. It shows that PW-3 was maximum a chance witness and it has been held by the Supreme Court in Kallu v State of Haryana, AIR 2012 SC 3212, Ramesh v State of UP, 2010 (68) ACC 219 (SC) and Jarnail Singh v State of Punjab, 2009 (67) ACC 668 (SC) that the reason for a chance witness being present on the spot and his testimony requires cautious and close scrutiny. If considered from that angle also, since he is a witness whose very presence at the time of incident has been found to be doubtful, his evidence cannot be relied to record conviction.

21. We also find that none of the fact witnesses have stated any motive for the offence. There was no quarrel between the deceased or his family and the accused persons or their family earlier or at the time of incident. There is no evidence of community of interest or conflict of interest between two sides, nor it has been brought on record that there was any neighborhood jealous, group or local rivalry between them. The prosecution has based the prosecution on the basis of eye-witness account and direct evidence. It is true that absence, lack or inadequacy of motive goes to the back seat and is not significant in the cases based on direct evidence. But, the discussion so far shows that none of the fact witnesses examined by prosecution can be said to be present and had seen the incident. Therefore, absence of motive for the offence is significant. Motive is a necessary element of crime which prompts the offender to commit crime and it is not normal that an offence will be committed for no reason, small or big. Moreover, where the account of alleged eye-witnesses is not credible and the presence of the witness is doubtful, not alleging any motive, even a small reason for the offence, certainly goes to the root of the prosecution case.

22. There is yet another factor. The offence has been alleged to have been committed by axe and gandasa. The CD dated 3.9.1988 makes a mention that the accused persons were in jail by 30.8.1988, within 4-5 days from the date of incident. It appears on record that neither their statement was recorded by IO nor they were taken on police remand nor any effort was made to recover the axe and gandasa used for the commission of offence. The medical evidence shows that all the injuries found on the dead body were incise wounds and the doctor has stated that edges of all wounds were clean cut. Axe and gandasa, normally, are heavy sharp weapons. To ascertain that the nature of said injuries were possible by axe and gandasa, the recovery of weapon could have been useful. No explanation has been furnished by the prosecution why no such effort was made to recover the weapons. It appears to be a very material lapse committed by the IO because of which a relevant evidence could not be placed before the learned trial court which was necessary to arrive at a correct conclusion.

23. The criminal jurisprudence in the country is based on the principle that unless the guilt is established convincingly on the basis of evidence on record, none should be punished. In Rang Bahadur Singh v State of UP AIR 2000 SC 1209, the Supreme Court has observed:

"The time-tested rule is that acquittal of a guilty person should be preferred to conviction of an innocent person. Unless the prosecution establishes the guilt of the accused beyond reasonable doubt a conviction cannot be passed on the accused. A criminal court cannot afford to deprive liberty of the appellants, lifelong liberty, without having at least a reasonable level of certainty that the appellants were the real culprits."

24. Similarly, in State of UP v Ram Veer Singh 2007 (6) Supreme 164 the Court reiterated the above principle and remarked as follows:

"The paramount consideration of the Court is to ensure that miscarriage of justice is prevented. A miscarriage of justice, which may arise from acquittal of the guilty is no less than from the conviction of an innocent."

25. In this instant case, the learned trial court appears to have been swayed away by the fact of murder of the deceased. Guilt is not a matter of inference and it should be proved beyond shadow of any doubt by cogent and reliable evidence. The principle which governs the criminal jurisprudence is the presumption of innocence in favour of accused. Serious and heinous crime requires more strict proof and seriousness of offence itself is no ground for conviction. The trial courts have to give finding on the basis of legal proof after making objective assessment of the evidence. The FIR was against unknown persons and the informant was declared hostile. Another witness who was accompanying the informant could not convincingly state that he was acquainted with the accused persons. He only saw the accused persons from their back and appears to be more probable that he could not recognize them. There was no other witness according to him and therefore, the presence of PW-3 at the time of incident is falsified. The own brother of the deceased has not been produced for cross-examination. He did not lodge FIR went back to Kanpur. Both these witness did not participate in inquest proceeding or disclose their presence to the IO who came there soon after the incident. Therefore, the conduct of these witnesses is unnatural and it gives rise to the probability that they neither saw anything nor they were present. No motive has been alleged nor any enmity has been shown between two sides which also creates doubt on the prosecution case.

26. On the basis of above discussion, we find that the learned trial court has based it's judgment on totally untrustworthy and unreliable evidence ignoring inherent infirmities in the prosecution version and the material contradiction, inconsistencies and substantial improvement made by the fact witnesses. The learned trial court has acquitted the co-accused Sunil which shows that prosecution version was found incorrect at least in respect of one accused. As such there is apparent perversity and illegality in the impugned judgment and the same is not sustainable under law and is liable to be set aside.

27. Consequently, this criminal appeal is allowed. The impugned judgment dated 20.2.1996 passed in ST no. 26/1989 is set aside. The accused-appellant Arvind Singh is therefore acquitted from the charge under section 302 IPC.

28. Sri Devendra Pratap Singh, learned Amicus Curiae shall be paid Rs. Ten Thousands only for the assistance and legal service provided by him in conducting this appeal for the accused-appellants.

29. Office is directed to transmit the lower court record along with a copy of this judgement to the learned court below for information and necessary compliance.

Reliability of prosecution version –

Testimony of the victim not tally with the medical evidence and does not inspire confidences her conduct also not fair. (Paras 14 and 17)

Appeal allowed. (E-2)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dinesh Kumar Singh-I, J.)

1. Heard Sri Sri B.K. Tripathi, Advocate holding brief of Sri Sudharkar Yadav, learned counsel for the appellant no. 1 and Sri G.P. Singh, learned A.G.A. appearing for the State.

2. This appeal has been preferred against the judgment and order dated 24.1.1983 passed by VIth Additional District and Sessions Judge, Shahjahanpur in S.T. No. 544 of 1982 (State vs. Sonpal Singh and another), whereby appellant Sonpal Singh has been convicted under section 376 IPC and has been sentenced for three years R.I. and appellant Rampal has been convicted under section 376/511 IPC and has been sentenced for three years R.I.

3. As regards the appellant no. 1 Sonpal Singh, it is reported by the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Shahjahanpur vide report dated 11.08.2016 that he has expired about 15-20 years ago and after having conducted enquiry in that regard, the said report has been submitted, hence appeal of appellant no. 1 Sonpal Singh stands abated, therefore, before this Court only appellant no. 2 Rampal remains for consideration.

4. As per FIR, the prosecution case is that when the informant (PW1) was going on 16.01.1982 at about 5.00 p.m. along with lota to ease herself out and when she reached near the turn of southern 'med' of sugarcane field of Suresh Singh, the appellant no. 1 Sonpal Singh son of Gindu Singh and appellant no. 2 Rampal son of Jahan came from the front concealing themselves and Sonpal Singh had caught her waist from behind and had taken her forcibly in the said field where sugarcane was there and told her not to raise alarm. The appellant no. 2 Rampal was continuously threatening her that if she cried, she would be killed, therefore, because of fear she did not raise any alarm and both these appellants had thrown her on the ground and thereafter committed rape upon her. Appellant no. 2 Rampal was holding her hand and had closed her mouth while she was raped by appellant no. 1 Sonpal Singh and thereafter appellant no. 2 Rampal had also committed rape upon her and when Rampal was committing rape, her mouth became free and then she cried loudly, hearing this, Ashok Singh son of Shiv Narain Singh, Nek Pal Singh son of Zalim Singh and Rajju son of Lallu of the village came there and then both the appellants fled towards east leaving her. The said witnesses have seen the occurrence and had saved her from clutches of the accused. She had gone to the police station with her husband to lodge FIR.

5. On the complaint (Exhibit Ka-1), chik FIR was prepared at the police station (Exhibit Ka-4). Case Crime No.16 of 1982 was registered under section 376 IPC against both the appellants on 16.01.1982 at 20.00 hours. The entry of this case was made in G.D. dated 16.01.1982 at report no. 47 which is Exhibit Ka-5. Investigation was assigned to S.I. Ram Charan Singh (PW6), who had conducted the investigation. During investigation, he prepared site plan, which is Exhibit Ka-6. Petticoat of the victim was also taken into possession, recovery memo of which is Exhibit Ka-2. Medical examination report is Exhibit Ka-3 and after having recorded statement of witnesses, he has submitted charge-sheet against the appellants under the above-mentioned sections, which is Exhibit Ka-7.

6. On the basis of evidence on record, charge was framed against the accused-appellant Rampal under section 109 read with section 376 as well as 376 read with section 511 IPC on 01.10.1982 to which he pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried. Thereafter the victim Phoolmati was examined as PW1, Dr. Meenu Sagar, who conducted medical examination of the victim, has been examined as PW-2, Rajju son of Zalim has been examined as PW-3, who is witness of fact, Nek Pal Singh has been examined as PW4 who is also witness of fact. Thereafter, evidence of prosecution was closed and statement of accused Rampal was recorded u/s 313 Cr.P.C. on 04.01.1983 in which he has stated that the evidence which has come on record is false and has taken the plea of false implication due to village rivalry but no witness has been examined in defence.

7. Based on the above evidence, the trial court has convicted the accused-appellant which has been assailed before this Court.

8. Learned counsel for the appellants has argued that the scribe of the FIR Sri Krishna has not been examined. The appellant has been falsely implicated due to election rivalry. No injury has been found to have been sustained by the victim, which belies the occurrence because if such an occurrence of rape takes place, certainly victim would have suffered injuries on her private part and on other parts of the body, particularly when she was thrown down on the ground. The victim is a married lady. No specimen of vaginal smear was sent for medical examination to establish the perpetrator of crime, therefore, the accused deserves to be acquitted.

9. I have gone through the evidence on record. PW1, who is victim herself has stated that on 25.10.1982 i.e. about nine years ago when she was going to attend nature's call at about 5.00 p.m. she had left for field of sugarcane of Suresh Singh, which was lying towards east of her house, the accused Sonpal Singh had caught hold of her from behind while the accused Rampal had gagged her mouth and had dragged her inside the field of sugarcane and had committed rape upon her and threatened her that if she cried, she would be killed. While accused Sonpal Singh was committing rape, the other accused Rampal had kept her mouth closed and when accused Sonpal Singh had done dirty work, thereafter Rampal said that he would also do the same work and in the process her mouth became free and she got opportunity to cry loudly, hearing which Ashok Singh, Nek Pal Singh and Rajju came there, then accused fled from there. Thereafter, she came to her house and told all the details to her husband. He got report scribed by one Sri Kishan, who had written the same which was dictated to him and thereafter she had put her signature thereon which is Exhibit Ka-1 and the same was given at Police Station Jalalabad. The police had taken petticoat of her also in his possession and the memorandum, which was prepared of the same, was signed by her. It is further stated by her that she was medically examined. About ten years ago she was married to Ram Ratan and her petticoat is material Exhibit-1 while recovery memo of petticoat is Exhibit Ka-2.

10. In cross-examination, she has stated that between her house and the place of incident there is Kolhu which was located about 2-4 paces away from the 'Med' of field of Suresh Singh. When she was going for easing herself out about 10-20 persons were present at Kolhu. From the place of occurrence, the distance of Kolhu would be around 50-60 paces. Thereafter, she had responded to the court on query that the Kolhu was towards west of the field. The place where she had been dragged was towards south which is a very big field having area of about 4-5 bighas and having crop of sugarcane which was not very high. The height of the crop would have been about one hand. It was further stated by her that to the north of sugarcane field, there was crop of Jwar and to the south of it there was crop of Arhar. The accused had come from eastern side while she was sitting facing towards west. She was dragged about 2-3 paces. Both the accused had caught her hands and then within two minutes of her raising alarm, witnesses had reached there. As soon as the accused saw the witnesses coming, Sonpal Singh fled but witnesses had seen him. The witnesses had seen the accused from a distance of about 2-4 paces. He had fled towards eastern direction. She has further stated that Sonpal Singh had not fled towards south. Her clothes had not got torn. She had returned home at about 6.00 p.m. The witness Ashok Singh is son of Bua of Sri Kishan. Nek Pal Singh is cousin brother of Sri Kishan. Raja Ram is Chachiya Sasur. She had spoken to her husband for writing report but he said let the same be scribed by Sri Kishan. Sri Kishan has a godown. At about 8.00 p.m. she had departed for police station accompanied with Jaswant, Ram Chandra, Rakshpal, Raja Ram, Ram Ratan (husband of the victim). Sri Kishan, who had scribed the report, had not accompanied her to the police station nor Ashok Singh and Nek Pal had gone there. She had reached the police station in the night at about 12.00 O' clock where Chaukidar of the police station was found. She had handed over the written complaint to Munshiji as Inspector was not available there. From the police station at about 2.00 A.M. in the night she was sent to Shahjahanapur in a trolley which belonged to Sri Kishan, where her medical examination was conducted. She had not taken bath in the meantime. Her husband remained with her all along. Near her village, field of accused Sonpal Singh is also situated. She does not know whether Sri Kishan had purchased any field from Thakur of her village. She also does not know whether Sri Kishan was purchasing field from Sonpal Singh. When the accused had come to catch hold of her, they did not have their face covered nor were they having any Lathi. When she was thrown down on the ground, no bungles of her were broken. She does not go out from her house except for the nature's call. Sonpal Singh used to come to her Jeth's house for giving clothes, hence she used to recognize him. She had never gone to the field of Sonpal Singh, who was the only son of his father. She does not know anyone of village of Sonpal Singh. She has denied that Sonpal Singh had any animosity with Sri Kishan and because of that, at the instance of Sri Kishan, she was giving false statement. Accused Rampal was resident of village Patiura, which is about half mile away from her house, which is situated in District Hardoi. She was not visiting the house of Rampal but Rampal used to come to her house. She had seen Rampal coming to her house. Her mother-in-law had pointed out that he was Rampal. She knew his name. At the time when he had gagged her mouth, she knew his name. About two months ago prior to this occurrence, her mother-in-law had told her the name of Rampal. On the date of occurrence, Rampal had not come to her house rather he was going from the road/ passage while she was sitting in 'Dalan', at that her mother-in-law had told her that Rampal was going. Her 'Dalan' was about 2-4 paces away from the road/passage. Rampal used to come to her village for washing of his clothes but had not come to her house. On the day when she had gone for nature's call, she was alone with a lota. When she was thrown down on the ground, her lota was left there only. By that time, she had already eased herself out in the field of Suresh Singh. The place where she was thrown down on the ground, was about two paces away from the place of defecation. The said field of sugarcane was very dense. When she was being dragged in the field, she did not get any abrasion from the leaves of the crop. Rampal was holding her hand and simultaneously he was also keeping her mouth gagged and she has also shown before the Court as to in what manner she was being carried. She had tried to get herself freed. When dirty work was done with her, her petticoat had become dirty. The place where she was thrown down on the ground, there was little grass existing. She had received injuries on her waist as well as her back but no bleeding took place, only pain was being felt. She was told by the accused that if she cried loudly, she would be killed and nothing else. It was not said "Meri Jan Chillana Mat". She had not told the Investigating Officer that Sonpal Singh had told her that "Meri Jan Chillana Mat" and she could not tell the reason as to why the same was written by Investigating Officer. In committing rape upon her, Sonpal Singh took just a minute but during this period, she did not remain quiet. It is wrong to say that she was living on the land of Sri Kishan and that she does farming of his field on 'Batai'. After leaving the police station, at about 6.00 A.M. she reached Sahjahanpur and at about 8.00 A.M. her medical examination was conducted.

11. The statement of this witness is not inspiring much confidence because the same appears to be very unnatural. Her testimony to the effect that one accused was holding her and got her mouth gagged while she was being forcibly dragged inside the field of sugarcane where this offence is said to have been committed and thereafter the said accused continued to keep her in gagged condition till co-accused had committed rape upon her and that thereafter when co-accused had done dirty work, the accused-appellant had also said that he would do the same act and then she got an opportunity to scream loudly because her mouth was freed. When she screamed, then witnesses arrived there and they had seen the accused fleeing from there. It is admitted by her that the accused were not armed with any weapons nor even by a Lathi, therefore, she should not have any apprehension and could easily have cried out before the commission of alleged offence. Therefore, the narration made of this occurrence seems to be unnatural. It has also been stated by her that she was thrown down on the ground where there was little grass and the place where she had defecated, was just two paces away from the place where she was raped, also seems to be very unnatural that a person would do such act close to the place where the excreta would be lying. Further, she has stated that she was thrown down on the ground, she had received injury on her back as well as waist but in medical examination, no such injuries have been found which seems to be a material contradiction.

12. Km. Meenu Sagar has been examined as PW2 who has stated that on 06.11.1982 she conducted medical examination at about 1.00 p.m. of the victim and found no mark of injury on her body as well as on her private part. Vaginal smear was taken and sent to District Hospital for examination. She has proved her report as Exhibit Ka-3.

13. In cross-examination, she has stated that she did not notice any injury on her waist nor on any other part of the body nor did she find any sign of rape. Opinion could be expressed within 24 hours as to whether rape was committed or not or on the basis of vaginal smear report.

14. During the argument, it has not come on record whether any report with respect to vaginal smear was found or not and this witness has testified that she had not noticed any injury either on her body or on her private part which is not in consonance with the statement given by the victim herself as according to her when she was thrown down on the ground, she had suffered injuries on her waist and back.

15. Rajju son of Lallu has been examined as PW3 and he has stated that about 10 months ago at 5.00 p.m. he was near the Kolhu and near him Netpal Singh and Ashok Singh were also present, who all had heard cry of Phoolmati which was coming from south eastern direction from the field of sugarcane, hearing which three of them rushed there and saw both the appellants and Phoolmati. Further, it is stated that he saw that Sonpal Singh had already raped Phoolmati in the said field where she was lying on the ground and Rampal was committing rape and the victim was lying in naked condition. When he challenged the accused, they fled leaving the victim in the said condition and thereafter she set right her clothes and went home and this witness returned to Kolhu.

16. In cross examination, this witness has stated that at the time of occurrence he was at Kolhu and he had reached at the place of occurrence only on hearing of voice of Phoolmati. Kolhu was 100 paces away from the place of occurrence. He had gone to the field of sugarcane straight from the place of Kolhu and within 2-4-6 minutes he had reached there and when he reached there, he saw that Sonpal Singh was holding the hands of Phoolmati and Rampal was doing wrong work. Rampal was holding her legs and was committing rape while Phoolmati told him that Sonpal Singh had already raped her. When he first time reached there, he had seen that Rampal was committing rape upon Phoolmati. It is not that because of shame Phoolmati did not utter anything to him. When he had reached at the place of incident, he had Lathi in his hand but he did not have any quarrel with Rampal and Sonpal Singh. These accused had fled from there just on seeing him. When they were hardly 6-7 paces away from the place of occurrence, the accused fled from there. The crop of sugarcane was of mans' height. Near the place of occurrence, the field of Sonpal Singh is also situated. Phoolmati is daughter-in-law of his brother and Ram Ratan is his real nephew. The house of scribe is near his own house. He does work of farming. He has denied that due to him belonging to the party of Kishan and others, he was giving false statement. Further, he has stated that at Kolhu, sugarcane was being crushed. There was only one Kolhu and near it, he was sitting. The bangles of Phoolmati had not broken nor her sari was found torn nor soiled.

17. The statement of this witness is also not confidence inspiring because he has given statement contradictory to the prosecution case saying that when he reached there at the cry of victim, he found the accused-appellant Rampal committing rape upon her while as per prosecution case as well as statement of PW1, Rampal could not rape rather was holding her hands and keeping gagged mouth of the victim when she was being raped by co-accused Sonpal Singh and that when Sonpal Singh had finished raping, and the accused-appellant said that he would also do the same act, the victim got opportunity to cry loudly, hearing which the witnesses reached there which included PW3. Therefore, the testimony of PW3 is contrary to the prosecution version. His statement is that when he reached there having lathi with him, he did not even try to catch hold of the accused, which sounds also unnatural. Normal conduct would be for him to immediately chase the accused persons and catch hold up them. He has stated that he simply saw occurrence and when accused went away from there, he returned to Kolhu and the victim went home. Further he has stated that he did not see any soil or any tear on the sari of the victim which also seems to be unnatural that in a Kachcha place where the occurrence is said to have taken place, yet clothes of the victim would not get soiled and torn.

18. Nek Pal Singh has been examined as PW4. He has stated in examination-in-chief that about 10 months ago at about 5.00 pm, he was sitting near Kolhu along with Ashok, Raja Ram and one person of Dhanu caste called Dhanu Tanukool, Phoolmati had gone to attend nature's call along with lota in the field of sugarcane of Suresh Singh. After sometime, he had heard cry of Phoolmati and thereafter all of them went there and saw that Sonpal Singh was holding Phoolmati and was committing rape upon her, when he challenged the accused, they fled from there and Phoolmati also got up with shame. Thereafter, Phoolmati told him that she was firstly raped by Sonpal Singh and thereafter by Rampal. She also told them that when Sonpal Singh was committing rape, Rampal had gagged her mouth and was holding her hands and when Rampal was committing rape, her mouth was open because of which she could cry loudly.

19. In cross-examination, this witness has stated that they had challenged the accused from a distance of 8-10 paces and when he reached at the place of occurrence, Rampal was committing rape and Sonpal Singh was standing there only. He also did not find the clothes of victim torn.

20. The statement of this witness is also not inspiring confidence because he and PW3 both have stated to have reached the place of occurrence simultaneously and there is discrepancy between their statements because PW4 has stated that when he reached there, Sonpal Singh was holding Phoolmati and was raping her while according to PW3 when he had reached there Rampal was raping and not Sonpal Singh. This witness in cross-examination has also given different version stating that when he reached there for the first time, Sonpal Singh was holding the hands of victim while in examination in chief, he has stated that Sonpal Singh was holding the hands of victim and was also committing rape.

21. After having analyzed the above statements, I find that the version of the prosecution does not stand proved because the prosecution version as per FIR is that when the victim had gone to ease herself out in the sugarcane of Suresh Singh at a little distance from her house, she was caught from behind by Sonpal Singh and at that time Rampal was also accompanying him and both of them had dragged her in the said field where rape was committed upon her by Sonpal Singh and before Rampal could rape her, she had liberty to cry loudly, hearing which the witnesses PW-3 and PW4 reached there and saw the occurrence. On minutely scanning the above testimony, I find that the said version does not stand proved for the reasons which have been disclosed after analysis of the statements made of each witness above. I also find that both the witnesses i.e. PW3 and PW4 who were said to be eye witnesses, are closely related to the victim, therefore, their testimony could be doubtful on this count also and they could give false statement. Their conduct is also not found to be natural in allowing the accused flee away from the place of occurrence despite being armed with a lathi. The conduct of the victim is also not found fair because her version is very unnatural that such kind of rape would be committed upon her at a place where excreta was lying and for other reasons also which have also been given above.

22. In view of the above, the trial court's judgment is not found in consonance with the evidence on record. The conviction of appellant no. 2 Rampal u/s 376/511 IPC deserves to be set aside and is accordingly set aside, he stands acquitted. The appeal stands allowed.

23. Record reveals that the accused-appellant is on bail, hence his sureties stand discharged.

24. Let a copy of this judgment along with lower court record be transmitted to the trial court for necessary action at his end in accordance with law.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Suresh Kumar Gupta, J.)

1. Heard Sri Manvendra Singh,learned counsel for the appellants and Sri Ratendra Kumar, learned A.G.A.

2. This criminal appeal has been preferred by appellants- Jagat Pal Singh and Shyam Lal Singh against the judgment and order dated 25.02.1991, passed by IV Additional Session Judge, Fatehpur, in S.T. No. 136 of 1986 (State Vs. Jagatpal Singh and Shyam Lal), whereby convicting the appellant no. 1 under Section 307 IPC, for 3 years R.I. and fine of Rs. 2,000/- in default two months simple imprisonment on account of inflicting injury to Ram Manohar Singh, and for inflicting injury to Jai Karan Singh 2 months rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs. 500/- in default of payment of fine 15 days simple imprisonment to him and convicting the appellant no. 2 Shyam Lal under section 307/34 IPC for rigorous imprisonment of 3 months and fine of Rs. 1,000/- on account of inflicting injury to Ram Manohar Singh in default 1 month simple imprisonment and inflicting injury to Jai Karan Singh one month rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs. 500/- and in default of payment of fine 10 days simple imprisonment.

3. Brief facts of this case are as follows-:

4. P.W. 1 Phool Singh has lodged an FIR by means of written application Ext. Ka 1 with the allegation that a dispute regarding agricultural field between the family of the complainant and family of the appellants Jagatpal and Shyam Lal about two years ago. It is further alleged in the FIR that on the date of incident i.e. on 05.07.1985 at about 8.00 a.m. the complainant, his cousin brother Jai Karan and Ram Manohar Singh watering his field, meanwhile, the appellant Jagatpal Singh armed with licensee gun and appellant Shyam Lal armed with lathi came there and objected for watering the field and when the first informant refused to stop for watering, due to this altercation take place, on exhortation of the appellant Shyam Lal, Jagat Pal fired shot from his licensee gun with the intention to kill his brother due to such fire Ram Manohar Singh and Jai Karan Singh have got injury. Munni Lal, Kallu and some villagers arrived at the place of occurrence with the assistance of villagers his licensee gun was snatched away. Meanwhile, the appellant Jagatpal managed to escape from the place of occurrence. After the incident, the complainant P.W. 1 Phool Singh reached at the police station with snatched gun of the appellant Jagatpal along with his injured brother and lodged an FIR.

5. On the basis of written report the chik FIR Ext. Ka 2 was lodged at police station on 05.07.1985 by entering in GD No. Sl. No. 22 11.30 a.m.. The FIR was registered against the appellants Jagat Pal and Shyam Lal under Section 307 IPC and after lodging the FIR, the injured were sent to hospital for medical examination.

6. The injured Ram Manohar and Jai Karan were medically examined on 05.07.1985 at PHC Hathgawan by Medical Officer. The doctor have found following injuries on the persons of injured:-

Injuries of injured Ram Manohar:-

1. Multiple firearm wound of different size from 1/6 to ½ mussel deep size in the area of Rt. Arm extending from Rt. Thumb to right upper mid arm. Blackening present, oozing of blood from the wound present. Swelling around the wound present.

2. Multiple gun shot wound injury of different size on 1/6 to ½ x 1/6 mussel deep size on the Rt. lateral chest extend from upper harden of right hip joint to middle point lateral chest. Oozing of blood present. Blacking present. Swelling around the wound also present. Advise X-ray.

Nature Advise:

All the injury kept under observation. X-ray, cause by some fire arm weapon.

Duration about ½ day old.

Injuries of injured Jai Karan Singh:-

1. One black spot size of ¼ x ¼ size on the upper herden left thigh 2" below the left injury region. Redness and swelling around the wound present.

Nature Advise:

injury kept under observation. Advise X-ray, cause of injury could not be detected.

Duration about ½ day old.

7. After lodging the FIR, the investigation of this case was handed over to the Investigating Officer Sri Ramesh Chandra Verma, who reached the place of occurrence and recorded the statements of witnesses, and prepared the site plan. During investigation recovery memo of alleged licensee gun Ext. Ka 4 was prepared by him.

8. After completing the investigation, investigating officer has submitted charge-sheet against the appellants Jagat Pal and Shyam Lal under section 307 IPC before the court concerned. After submitting charge-sheet the trial court framed the charge Ext. Ka .. against the appellants Jagat Pal and Shyam Lal.

9. The appellants denied the charge framed against them and claimed to be tried.

10. To substantiate the charge, the prosecution has examined 6 witnesses in all. P.W. 1 Phool Singh (complainant), who proved the written report as Ext. Ka-1, P.W. 2 Manohar Singh (injured), P.W. 3, Ram Saran Singh (scribe of the FIR), who proved the FIR as Ext Ka-2, G.D. Entry No. 20, time 11.30 a.m. as Ext. Ka-, recovery memo as Ext Ka-4. P.W. 4 Dashrath (public witness), P.W. 5 Munnil Lal and P.W. 6 Constable Prem Shankar Pandey, who proved site plan as Ext. Ka-5 and charge-sheet as Ext. Ka-6.

11. After completion of statements of prosecution, the statements of accused-appellants were recorded under section 313 Cr.P.. In their statements they denied all the allegation levelled against them.

12. The appellant Shyam Lal stated in his statement that at the time of occurrence he was not present at the place of occurrence, so he raised plea of alibi and the accused-appellant Jagat Pal has stated in his statement recorded under section 313 Cr.P.C. that on the date of occurrence his turn for watering to the field, but the complainant and his brothers assaulted him with lathi and Axe (kulhari), appellant exercise his right of defence to save himself he has shot fired from his licensee gun, which hit Ram Manohar and after this occurrence, he reached at the police station to lodge the FIR for injury inflicted upon him by the informant parties, but his report was not lodged. He further stated that he himself has medically examined.

13. After hearing both the parties, the learned trial court convicted the appellants as aforesaid.

14. During trial appellant no. 1 Jagat Pal reported to be no more. Hence the appeal against appellant no. 1 Jagat Pal was abated.

15. Only one appellant no. 2 Shyam Lal is surviving.

16. I have heard learned Sri Manvendra Singh, learned counsel for the appellant, Sri J.P. Tripathi, learned AGA for the State and perused the record.

17. Learned counsel for the appellant submitted that although the injured Ram Manohar and Jai Karan were medically examined, but the doctor, who prepared the injury reports which was not produced by the prosecution before the trial court, so the material evidence is withheld by the prosecution so the oral evidence is not corroborated by the medical evidence. He further submitted that there are material contradictions in the statements of witnesses, but the learned trial court without appreciating this fact has wrongly convicted the appellant.

18. It is also submitted that as per the allegation made in the FIR, only role of exhortation against the surviving appellant Shyam Lal was attributed, but neither active participation nor prior meeting of mind proved by the prosecution. Mere presence of the appellant in place of occurrence is not sufficient to invoke the provision of Section 34 IPC. Appellant Jagat Pal has clearly stated in his statement that he had exercise his right of private defence, but the learned trial court did not appreciate this fact and learned trial court has wrongly convicted the appellant. Due to this reason finding of trial court is totally perverse.

19. It is also submitted by learned counsel for the appellant that injured witness Jai Karan was material witness which is withheld by the prosecution and also submitted that all the public witnesses produced by the prosecution did not support the prosecution version and become hostile.

20. Learned AGA has vehemently opposed and submitted that by means of clinching evidence learned trial court also appreciated the evidence and the trial court has rightly convicted the appellant and there is no illegality and infirmity in the order passed by learned session court.

21. As no doctor was examined by the court during trial. Learned counsel for the appellant admitted the genuineness of the injury report under section 294 Cr.P.C. of injured Jai Karan Singh as Ext. Ka 7 and Ram Manohar Singh as Ext. Ka-8.

22. P.W. 1 Phool Singh has stated in his statement that when he was watering his field at the time, appellants Jagat Pal armed with licensee gun and Shyam Lal armed with lathi arrived at the place of occurrence, and when he refused for watering the field, then on the exhortation of appellant Shyam Lal, appellant Jagat Pal shot fired from his licensee gun which hit the injured Ram Manohar and Jai Karan. In his cross-examination, P.W. 1 Phool Singh clearly stated that during altercation between injured Ram Manohar and Jai Karan, appellant-accused Shyam Lal armed with *lathi h*ad assaulted the injured, meanwhile appellant Jagat Pal shot fired on him and due to this, Ram Manohar sustained injury. He next submitted in his cross-examination that although the appellant Shyam Lal was present armed with lathi at the place of occurrence, but no injury was inflicted by the appellant Shyam Lal. This fact is also affirmed by perusing the injury report Ext. Ka-7 and Ext. Ka-8.

23. One of the star injured witness Ram Manohar has stated in his statement that appellant Shyam Lal was only objected for watering of the field, but assault was not committed by him. Except this version, nothing stated against appellant Shyam Lal.

24. One of the star injured witness Jai Karan Singh was withheld by the prosecution and no good ground is assigned for non-examination of the above witness, is also adverse effect of the prosecution version.

25. P.W. 4 Dashrath, named eyewitness of the FIR has stated in his cross examination that only role of exhortation has been assigned to the appellant Shyam Lal. He has stated that Jagat Pal fired gun shot and injured assaulted to the appellant by means of lathi.

26. P.W. 4 Munni Lal, named eyewitness who declared hostile and did not support the prosecution version.

27. Other witnesses namely P.W. 5 constable Prem Shankar Pandey and P.W. 4 were also examined by prosecution as secondary witness to prove the site plan Ext Ka 7.

28. By invoking section 34 IPC, the learned trial court convicted the appellant under section 307/34 IPC . Under Section 34 IPC reads as under:-

"Section 34 in The Indian Penal Code. [34. Acts done by several persons in furtherance of common intention. --When a criminal act is done by several persons in furtherance of the common intention of all, each of such persons is liable for that act in the same manner as if it were done by him alone.]"

The act has committed by any one of them is done, is of the common intention, part A prior meeting of the present participation in respect of the overt act until it cannot be said that this is common intention and crime committed by any of them in furtherance of such intention.

29. In case of Kashmira Singh vs. Stat of Punjab AIR 1994 SC 1651, the common intention is to be inferred from the circumstances particularly the part played by the accused and the surrounding circumstances namely nature of the weapon used and the injury indicted as well as the meeting of the minds among the accused who are being held constructively liable.

In Raja Gopal Swamy Konar vs. State of Tamil Nadu 1995 SCC (Cri) 184, Hon'ble Apex Court held that so far as A-2 is concerned he inflicted simple injuries with the stick on P.W. 2 and one on the deceased Ramaswamy. Therefore, common intention to kill the two deceased cannot be made out against him.

30. Case in hand injured witness has clearly stated in his statement that appellant is only with lathi but no injury of lathi is inflicted on the part of the injured by invoking section 307 read with Section 34 IPC, it cannot be said that there was common intention of the appellant to attempt murder of injured Ram Manohar

31. On perusal of the entire evidence although it may be considered that the appellant Shyam Lal was present at the place of occurrence but there is no overt act is done by the appellant. The trial court wrongly convicted the appellant by giving lathi blow to the injured and prosecution is not able to prove the common intention as envisaged under section 34 IPC.

32. After considering the entire evidence and perusal of the record, I am of the opinion that the prosecution is unable to prove the alleged offence under section 307/34 IPC beyond reasonable doubt against sole surviving appellant Shyam Lal.

33. The appeal is allowed. The order dated 25.02.1991 is set aside and the appellant Shyam Lal is acquitted the charge levelled against him under section 307/34 IPC. The appellant is on bail. He need not to surrender before the Court. The sureties and bail bonds are discharged.

34. The office is directed to transmit back the record of the Lower Court with a copy of judgment and order of this Court for immediate compliance.

THE HON'BLE RAJENDRA KUMAR-IV, J.

Criminal Appeal No. 491 of 1998

Santu Kori & Ors. ...Petitioners
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioners:
S.S. Chauhan, Krishna Kr. Singh

Counsel for the Respondents:
Govt. Advocate, M. Naseeruallah, Mohammad Masood Hasan, Mohammad Naseerullah

A. It is well settled that where direct evidence is worthy, it can be believed, then motive does not carry much weight and mind set of accused persons differs from each other.

Indian Evidence Act- Section 8- Motive- Where the case is based on direct evidence, motive loses its relevance.

B. Merely because witnesses are closed relatives of victim, their testimonies cannot be discarded, but Court has to adopt a careful approach and analyse evidence to find out whether it is cogent and credible evidence.

Indian Evidence Act- Section 134- It is the quality and not the quantity of evidence which is important. Conviction can be recorded on the testimony of related witnesses provided the same is credible and corroborated from other evidence.

C. Discrepancies, variations and contradictions in prosecution case – If the same do not go to the root of case then accused-appellant is not entitled to get benefit of the same.

Indian Evidence Act- Section 3- Minor contradictions, improvements and embellishments cannot be made a reason to discard the testimony of a witness.

D. The question of awarding sentence is a matter of discretion to be exercised on consideration of circumstances aggravating and mitigating in the individual cases.The measure of punishment should be proportionate to gravity of offence. Object of sentencing should be to protect society and to deter the criminal in achieving avowed object of law. Sentence should reflects conscience of society and sentencing process has to be stern where it should be. Appellant's conviction under Section 307/34 I.P.C. confirmed but sentence modified to already undergone with fine imposed by trial court.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajendra Kumar-IV, J.)

1. Accused-appellants Santu Kori, Murli and Lahuri (Now dead) and accused-appellant Jhinguri filed this criminal appeal challenging the judgement and order dated 29.8.1998 passed by Special Additional Sessions Judge, Faizabad in Session Trial No. 338 of 1991, State vs. Santu Kori and others, under Section 307 I.P.C. (Crime No. 307 of 1991), Police Station Kotwali Beekapur, District Faizabad whereby Trial Court convicted all the accused-appellants under Section 307/34 I.P.C. and sentenced them to undergo 7 years rigorous imprisonment with fine of Rs. 1000/- each and in default of payment of fine, they shall further undergo for 6 months simple imprisonment.

2. Brief facts of the prosecution case which need to be noted for disposal of the present appeal which are as under :-

On 3.8.1991 at about 9:00 PM, accused persons Santu Kori and Murli with Lathi, accused Jhinguri with Ballam and accused Lahuri with Farsa attacked Ram Tahal in sugar cane field causing serious injuries with intention to kill him.

3. On the basis of of written tehrir Ex.Ka-1 of PW-1 Sant Ram, Chick F.I.R. Ex.Ka-5 was registered under Section 307 I.P.C. against the accused persons, entry of case was made in general diary Ex.Ka-6.

4. Injured Ram Tahal was medically examined by Dr. K.U. Ahmad on 3/4.8.1991 at about 12:40 in the night. Doctor found 9 injuries on the person of injured Ram Tahal and prepared medical report.

5. S.S.I. Surjan Singh Sengar undertook the investigation, visited spot, prepared site plan, recorded the statement of witnesses, found sufficient evidence and submitted charge sheet against the accused-appellants under Section 307 I.P.C.

6. Case, being exclusively triable by Court of Sessions, was committed by Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Faizabad to Session Judge for trial which came to be transferred and decided by Special Additional Sessions Judge, Faizabad.

7. Trial Court framed charges against accused-appellants under Section 307/34 I.P.C. Accused persons denied the charges levelled against them, pleaded not guilty and claimed trial.

8. In order to substantiate its case, prosecution examined PW1-Ram Tahal (Injured), PW-2 Sant Ram, PW-3 Chandrabhan (independent witness), PW-4 Dr. A.K. Srivastava, PW-5 Dr. K.U. Ahmad, PW-6 Gayadeen Tiwari, Head Constable and PW-7 S.I. Surjan Singh Sengar, Investigating Officer of the case. PW-1, 2 and 3 are the witness of fact and other witnesses are formal witnesses.

9. Subsequent to closure of prosecution evidence, Trial Court recorded statement of accused-appellant under Section 313 Cr.P.C. explaining all incriminating and other evidence and circumstances. In the statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C., accused denied prosecution story in toto and subsequently stated that they were falsely implicated in the present case on account of property dispute.

10. Trial court after appreciating the entire evidence of prosecution and hearing of both the parties, convicted and sentenced the accused-appellant as stated above.

11. During the pendency of appeal, accused-appellant no. 1 Santu Kori, appellant no. 3 Murli and appellant no. 4 Lahuri have died. Their appeal stood abated. Only appellant no. 2 Jhinguri remained alive.

12. I have heard Sri Krishna Kumar Singh, learned counsel for the appellants and Ms. Parul Kant, learned AGA for the State at length and have gone through the record available on file with the valuable assistance of learned counsel for the parties.

13. Learned counsel for appellant no. 2 Jhinguri submits that the accused-appellant is innocent and has been falsely implicated in the present case. He has committed no offence. Only PW-1 Ram Tahal is injured in the incident, rest witnesses i.e. PW-2 and 3 are not independent witnesses. They are interested witnesses. The appellant is old person aged about 60 years and incident is of the year, 1991. There is no motive to accused to commit the present crime. There are several contradictions in the statement of witnesses so as to disbelieve their evidence. It is further contended that injured in incident Ram Tahal has also been died during the pendency of appeal. The present appellant and Dharmpal and Satyapal son of Ram Tahal entered into a compromise in the matter and compromise deed is also on file mentioning that criminal appeal be allowed for sentencing of already under gone.

14. On the other hand, learned AGA for the State opposed the submission made by learned counsel for the appellant and submitted that accused-appellant along with other co-accused (Now dead) assaulted the victim Ram Tahal (Now dead) with Lathi, Danda and Ballam causing him serious injuries. Victim was medically examined and trail court after appreciating entire evidence rightly found him guilty, convicted and sentenced him.

15. Although time, date and place of incident, injuries found on the person of victim, respective weapon of accused-appellant are not disputed by learned counsel for the appellant. According to him, accused-appellant is not responsible for causing injuries to victim. He has been falsely implicated.

16. Only question remains for consideration is, "whether accused-appellant is responsible for causing injuries to victim along with other co-accused and Trial Court has rightly appreciated the evidence and found him guilty or not?"

17. Now I may proceed to consider the submissions of learned counsel for the parties and evidence briefly as well as legal points with few important decisions.

18. PW-1 Ram Tahal(Injured) deposed in his statement that on 3.8.1991 at about 9 PM, accused-appellants Santu Kori, Murli, Lahuri and Jhinguri assaulted him with their respective weapon. Accused-appellant Santu Kori and Murli was having Lathi in their hands while Jhinguri was having Ballam and Lahuri was having Farsa. All the four persons surrounded and assaulted him causing serious injuries. He sustained serious injuries and fell down on earth. On hearing his scream Sant Ram, Indra Pal and Ghanshyam came to spot, witnessed the incident and saved him. Accused was recognized in the light of torch.

19. PW-2 Sant Ram (real nephew of PW-1) deposed in his statement that on hearing scream of Ram Tahal, he reached to spot and saw that accused persons were assaulting him with Lathi, Dandal Farsa and Ballam.

20. PW-3 Indra Pal also supported the prosecution case and deposed that he reached the spot on hearing scream of Ram Tahal. He rushed to spot and saw in the light of Torch that accused Jhinguri with Ballam and Lahuri with Farsa and rest accused Santu and Murli with Lathi were assaulting Ram Tahal.

21. All the three witnesses withstood lengthy cross-examination but nothing adverse could be brought on record so as to disbelieve their statement.

22. Doctor conducted medical examination of injured Ram Tahal, found 9 injuries on the person of injured. He prepared medico legal report and opined that injury nos. 1, 2 and 5 have been caused by incisor like Farsa and injury no. 9 was caused by some pointed weapon like Ballam which is assigned to present accused-appellant.

23. So far as motive is concerned, it is well settled that where direct evidence is worthy, it can be believed, then motive does not carry much weight. It is also notable that mind set of accused persons differs from each other. Thus merely because that there was no strong motive to commit the present offence, prosecution case cannot be disbelieved.

24. In Lokesh Shivakumar v. State of Karnataka, (2012) 3 SCC 196, Court held as under :-

"As regards motive, it is well established that if the prosecution case is fully established by reliable ocular evidence coupled with medical evidence, the issue of motive looses practically all relevance. In this case, we find the ocular evidence led in support of the prosecution case wholly reliable and see no reason to discard it."

25. So far as argument of relative witness and non-examination of independent witness are concerned, it is now well settled law laid down in Dalip Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR,1953, SC 364 wherein Court has held :-

"A witness is normally to be considered independent unless he or she springs from sources which are likely to be tainted and that usually means unless the witness has cause, such as enmity against the accused, to wish to implicate him falsely. Ordinarily, a close relative would be the last to screen the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent person. It is true, when feelings run high and there is personal cause' for enmity, that there is a tendency to drag in an innocent person against whom a witness has a grudge along with the guilty, but foundation must be laid for such a criticism and the mere fact of relationship far from being a foundation is often a sure guarantee of truth. However, we are not attempting any sweeping generalisation. Each case must be judged on its own facts. Our observations are only made to combat what is so often put forward in cases before us as a general rule of prudence. There is no such general rule. Each case must be limited to and be governed by its own facts."

26. In Dharnidhar v. State of UP (2010) 7 SCC 759, Court has observed as follows :-

"There is no hard and fast rule that family members can never be true witnesses to the occurrence and that they will always depose falsely before the Court. It will always depend upon the facts and circumstances of a given case. In the case of Jayabalan v. U.T. of Pondicherry (2010) 1 SCC 199, this Court had occasion to consider whether the evidence of interested witnesses can be relied upon. The Court took the view that a pedantic approach cannot be applied while dealing with the evidence of an interested witness. Such evidence cannot be ignored or thrown out solely because it comes from a person closely related to the victim"

27. In Ganga Bhawani v. Rayapati Venkat Reddy and Others, 2013(15) SCC 298, Court has held as under :-

"11. It is a settled legal proposition that the evidence of closely related witnesses is required to be carefully scrutinised and appreciated before any conclusion is made to rest upon it, regarding the convict/accused in a given case. Thus, the evidence cannot be disbelieved merely on the ground that the witnesses are related to each other or to the deceased. In case the evidence has a ring of truth to it, is cogent, credible and trustworthy, it can, and certainly should, be relied upon. (Vide: Bhagalool Lodh & Anr. v. State of UP, AIR 2011 SC 2292; and Dhari & Ors. v. State of U. P., AIR 2013 SC 308)."

28. It is settled that merely because witnesses are closed relatives of victim, their testimonies cannot be discarded. Relationship with one of the parties is not a factor that affects credibility of witness, more so, a relative would not protect actual culprit and make allegations against an innocent person. However, in such a case Court has to adopt a careful approach and analyse evidence to find out whether it is cogent and credible evidence.

29. In so far as discrepancies, variations and contradictions in prosecution case are concerned, I have analysed entire evidence in consonance with submissions raised by learned counsel and find that the same do not go to the root of case and accused-appellant is not entitled to get benefit of the same.

30. When such incident takes place, one cannot expect a scripted version from witnesses to show as to what actually happened and in what manner it had happened. Such minor details normally are neither noticed nor remembered by people since they are in fury of incident and apprehensive of what may happen in future. A witness is not expected to recreate a scene as if it was shot after with a scripted version but what material thing has happened that is only noticed or remembered by people and that is stated in evidence. Court has to see whether in broad narration given by witnesses, if there is any material contradiction so as to render evidence so self contradictory as to make it untrustworthy is minor variation or such omissions which do not otherwise affect trustworthiness of evidence, which is broadly consistent in statement of witnesses, is of no legal consequence and cannot defeat prosecution.

31. In Sampath Kumar v. Inspector of Police, Krishnagiri, (2012) 4 SCC 124, Court has held that minor contradictions are bound to appear in the statements of truthful witnesses as memory sometimes plays false and sense of observation differs from person to person.

32. In Sachin Kumar Singhraha v. State of Madhya Pradesh, 2019 (8) SCC 371, Supreme Court has observed that Court will have to evaluate evidence before it keeping in mind the rustic nature of depositions of the villagers, who may not depose about exact geographical locations with mathematical precision. Discrepancies of this nature which do not go to the root of the matter do not obliterate otherwise acceptable evidence. It need not be stated that it is by now well settled that minor variations should not be taken into consideration while assessing the reliability of witness testimony and the consistency of the prosecution version as a whole.

33. I, lest not forget that no prosecution case is foolproof and the same is bound to suffer from some lacuna or the other. It is only when such lacunae are on material aspects going to the root of the matter, it may have bearing on the outcome of the case, else such shortcomings are to be ignored. (See Smt. Shamim v. State of (NCT of Delhi), 2018 (10) SCC 509)

34. PW-1, 2 and 3 supported the prosecution case. PW-1 Ram Tahal sustained 9 serious injuries on his body at the time of incident. Doctor conducted medical examination report and submitted that injury no. 9 was caused by some pointed weapon like Ballam and as per prosecution witness, accused-appellant was having Ballam at the time of incident. Medical evidence caused with ocular version.

35. Considering the entire facts and circumstances of the case, entire evidence led by prosecution, injuries found on the person of victim and legal preposition discussed herein before,I do not find any legallity or irregularity committed by Trial Court in the impugned order. Trial Court rightly found him guilty. Conviction of accused-appellant Jhinguri deserves to be and is maintained and confirmed.

36. So far as sentence is concerned, it is always a difficult task requiring balancing of various considerations. The question of awarding sentence is a matter of discretion to be exercised on consideration of circumstances aggravating and mitigating in the individual cases.

37. It is settled legal position that appropriate sentence should be awarded after giving due consideration to the facts and circumstances of each case, nature of offence and the manner in which it was executed or committed. It is obligation of court to constantly remind itself that right of victim, and be it said, on certain occasions person aggrieved as well as society at large can be victims, never be marginalized. The measure of punishment should be proportionate to gravity of offence. Object of sentencing should be to protect society and to deter the criminal in achieving avowed object of law. Further, it is expected that courts would operate the sentencing system so as to impose such sentence which reflects conscience of society and sentencing process has to be stern where it should be. The court will be failing in its duty if appropriate punishment is not awarded for a crime which has been committed not only against individual victim but also against society to which criminal and victim belong. Punishment to be awarded for a crime must not be irrelevant but it should conform to and be consistent with the atrocity and brutality which the crime has been perpetrated, enormity of crime warranting public abhorrence and it should 'respond to the society's cry for justice against the criminal'. [Vide : (Sumer Singh vs. Surajbhan Singh and others, (2014) 7 SCC 323, Sham Sunder vs. Puran, (1990) 4 SCC 731, M.P. v. Saleem, (2005) 5 SCC 554, Ravji v. State of Rajasthan, (1996) 2 SCC 175].

38. Hence, applying the principles laid down in the aforesaid judgments and having regard to the totality of facts and circumstances of case, motive, nature of offence and manner in which it was executed or committed, weapon used by him in the commission of offence, compromise between the parties, I partly allow this appeal and confirm appellant's conviction under Section 307/34 I.P.C. but modify sentence to already undergone with fine imposed by trial court.

39. Lower Court record along with a copy of this judgment be sent back immediately to Trial Court through District Court concerned for compliance and further necessary action.

Jail Appeal No. 501 of 2018

Neeraj ...Appellant
Versus
State of U.P. ...Opposite Party

Counsel for the Appellant:

From Jail, Sri Deepak Kumar, Sri Satyendra Narayan Singh, Sri Subash Chandra Pandey

Counsel for the Opposite Party:
A.G.A.

A. Criminal Law-Dowry Prohibition Act-Sections 498A, 304-B, 302 IPC & 3/4 - The death of the deceased was done within 7 years of the marriage due to strangulation and death was occurred homicidal and not suicidal. Clearly established that the death of the deceased occurred within under normal circumstances.

If a married woman dies otherwise under normal circumstances within seven years of her marriage and it is shown that she was subjected to cruelty or harassment soon before her death by her husband or relative, such death will be called as dowry death.

B. Evidence Law-Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 8 -Conduct of any party is also relevant and the conduct of family members of the appellant all of them are fled away from the place of occurrence is also indicate the guilt of the appellant.

The subsequent conduct of a person in reference to the unnatural death of the deceased would be a relevant fact in determining his guilt.

C. Evidence law-Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 106 of the Evidence Act - Burden is on the appellant to establish those fact which disprove his guilt. If he fails to establish or explain these facts, an adverse inference of fact may arise against him.

Failure of a person to explain the facts specially within his knowledge will lead to an adverse influence being drawn against him.

D. The learned trial court although frame alternative charge against the appellant under section 302 IPC, but the learned trial court without assigning any cogent reason acquitted the appellant against the charge levelled under section 302/34 IPC. (Para 30,32,36,37)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Suresh Kumar Gupta, J.)

1. This jail appeal has been preferred against the judgement and order dated 17.07.2018 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 4, Moradabad, in S.T. No. 70 of 2013 (State Vs. Neeraj), arising out of case crime No. 481 of 2012, under Sections 498A, 304-B, 302 IPC & 3/4 of D.P. Act, Police Station-Bilari, District Moradabad convicting and sentencing the appellant u/s 498A for 2 years rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs. 5,000/-, in default of payment of fine 2 months additional rigorous imprisonment, under section 304-B IPC, 10 years rigorous imprisonment and u/s 4 D.P. Act 1 year rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs. 5,000/- in default of payment of fine two months rigorous imprisonment. Further order that out of recovery of fine 50% money shall be given to the brother of deceased Om Prakash @ Sonu and all the sentence shall run concurrently.

2. Brief facts of the case are that the complainant Om Prakash @ Sonu lodged the FIR by giving written report with the allegation that his sister Lokesh aged about 24 years was married with appellant Neeraj five years back of the incident as per Hindu rites and rutuals. During marriage, he has given sufficient dowry according to his financial capacity, but appellant's family was not satisfied with dowry. Thereafter appellant Neeraj, his elder brother Mahendra, his wife Usha, mother-in-law Radha and father-in-law Dungar Singh used to harassment and torture to his sister by demanding motorcycle as additional dowry. Due to poor financial condition of the complainant's family they, were unable to fulfill their demand of motorcycle. Due to this appellant's family used to harass and assaulted her on two occasion due to nonfulmilment of demand of motorcycle they ompel his sister to leave the matrimonial home. Appellant had taken her back to his house after persuasion, but they continued to stick with their demand of motorcycle and often beat to his sister. On the fateful night of 20/21.09.2012 some unknown time her husband Neeraj, Mahendra, Usha, Radha and Dungar Singh had committed murder to his sister by hanging. The dead body was lying at the house of his brother-in-law in village Gataura and all family members including husband of the deceased fled away. On this allegation FIR Ext Ka-4 was lodged at police station Bilari by the complainant on 21.09.2012 at 04.30 p.m., as a case crime no. 481 of 2012, under sections 498A, 304B IPC and ¾ D.P. Act. The distance of the police station is 15 Kms.

3. Before the investigation of the case inquest was done by P.W. 7 Abhay Kumar Singh in presence of inquest witness. Inquest report was prepared by P.W. 7 Abhay Kumar Singh, Tehsildar, and cause of death could not be ascertained so as per opinion of Panch, the dead body was sent to the district hospital for autopsy of deceased Smt. Lokesh.

4. P.W. 3 Dr. S.K. Chaudhary has conducted the postmortem of dead body of the deceased on 22.09.2012 at 12.30 p.m. at District Hospital Moradabad, and prepared postmortem report Ext Ka-3, in which doctor found the age of the deceased was about 24 years and the eye and mouth of the decease was closed, bleed from both intestine. Face congested. Following antemortem injury were found on the person of deceased:-

1. Abraded contusion 15cm x 3cm front of neck extending to left side of neck 4cm below chin, 5cm below left year and 9cm below right ear of lobule subcutaneous tissue under injury mark ecchymosed.

2. Abraded contusion 7cm x 3 cm back of middle of left side of chest.

3. Abraded contusion 6cm x 3cm back of abdomen on left side, 16cm away from injury no. 2.

5. Hyoid Bone fractured. Larynx and Vocal Cords congested. Both lungs congested. Stomach (wall condition, Contents & smell) 200 grms pasty food material . Small intestine chyme & gasses was presemt.

Cause of death due to Asphyxia as a result of antimortem strangulation. Time of death about 1 and ½ day old.

The post-mortem report is on record and marked as Ext. Ka-3

6. Investigating officer, Pankaj Kumar Pandey, P.W. 4, after obtaining necessary papers conducted investigation in this case and prepare site plan on behest of complaint-informant Ext. Ka-6. Primary investigation of this case was conducted by Pankaj Kumar Pandey. He also recorded the statement of complainant Om Prakash. Second investigating officer is P.W. 6 R.S. Gautam. During investigation he recorded the statement of other witnesses and after completing all formalities of the investigation submitted the charge sheet against the appellant Neeraj under section 498A, 304B IPC and Section ¾ D.P. Act., who proved the charge sheet Ext. Ka-7 and exonerated the other accused namely; Mahendra, Dungar Singh, Radha and Usha.

7. After completion of investigation charge-sheet submitted by him before the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Moradabad and Chief Judicial Magistrate, Moradabad, had taken cognizance on the charge sheet on 17.01.2013 and the case was committed before the court of session where it is registered as S.T. No. 75 of 2013 and the case was transferred for trial to the court of Additional District Judged Moradabad.

8. On 29.06.2013 the charge against the appellant was framed under section 498A, 304B IPC and Section ¾ D.P. Act and alternative charge under section 302 IPC was also framed and charge read over and explained to the appellant, and claimed to be tried.

9. To substantiate the charge levelled against the appellant, prosecution has examined 9 witnesses in all.

10. P.W 1 complainant Om Prakash @ Sonu, who is real brother of the deceased, who proved the written report as Ext. Ka-1 and Inquest report as Ext. Ka-2, P.W. 2 Smt. Sonam @ Renu, sister in-law of the deceased, P.W. 3 Dr. S.K. Chaudhary, who proved the post mortem report as Ext. Ka-3 and P.W. 4 HCP Jai Singh, who proved the chick FIR Ext. Ka-4 and GD entry Sl. No. 33/4.30 p.m. Ext. Ka-5 and P.W.5 Pankaj Kumar Pandey (first investigating officer), who proved site plan Ext. Ka-6 and P.W. 6 R.S. Gautam (second investigating officer), who proved charge-sheet as Ext. Ka-7.

11. After conclusion of the evidence of prosecution, statement of appellant was recorded under section 313 Cr.P.C. in which accused denied all the charges and stated that the witnesses wrongly stated before the court and also stated that he is innocent and has been falsely implicated in this case and the deceased Lokesh committed suicide on account of depression. In defence, no evidence was recorded on behalf of appellant.

12. After conclusion of the trial learned trial court acquitted the appellant under section 302 IPC and convicted him under sections 498A, 304B and Section ¾ D.P. Act as aforesaid.

13. Being aggrieved by the judgement and order of conviction dated 17.07.2018, this appeal has been filed by the appellant.

14. I have heard learned counsel for the appellant and learned AGA and perused the material available on record.

15. Learned counsel for the appellant submitted that the trial court has convicted the appellant admittedly on the basis of surmises and conjectures and has failed to appriciate the evidence available on record. He has further submitted that there are material contradictions in the testimony of prosecution witnesses and also submitted that no independent witnesses was produced by the prosecution. One of the main contention of the learned counsel for the appellant is that the death of the deceased Lokesh Devi was suicidal and appellant has clearly stated in his statement that the deceased had committed suicide herself due to stress. Next submitted that the information of this incident has given by him to the parent of the deceased and thereafter the family member of parental house of the deceased arrived at his house and he was also present at the time of last rutuals of the deceased. It is also submitted that during autopsy no grievious injury was found on the person of deceased and also stated that the prosecution has clearly failed to establish that the death of deceased-Lokesh was subject to cruelty and harassment by the appellant. The prosecution failed to prove the charge levelled against the appellant beyond shadow of doubt. Lastly, learned counsel for the appellant submitted that the appellant is very poor person and languishing in jail at the commencement of trial.

16. Apart from arguing on the merits of the case, learned counsel for the appellant further contended although there is no evidence against appellant if court comes to the conclusion about guilt of appellant then a lenient view should be taken in sentencing him and his sentence should be reduced to minimum prescribed under section 304B IPC that is to say, seven years.

17. Per contra learned AGA contended that victim was died inside her matrimonial home. P.W. 3 Dr. S.K. Chaudhary clearly opined that the cause of death is asphyxia as a result of antemortem strangulation. In this case hyoid bone was fractured so medical report clearly shows that this is the clear case of homicidal death. Prosecution clearly established by cogent and credible evidence that deceased was died within seven years of her marriage and soon before her death she was subjected to mental and physical harassment and tortured by making demand of additional dowry. Prosecution is able to prove his case beyond shadow of doubt and appeal of appellant is liable to be dismissed.

18. A report was obtained from the District Jail Superintendent, Moradabad dated 11.02.2019 which shows that during trial the appellant was in jail from 25.11.2012 to 16.07.2018 (5 years 7 months and 22 days) and from 17.07.2018 to till date the appellant is detained in district Jail Moradabad. So presently appellant languishing in jail for a period of more than 7 years.

19. To appreciate the argument of the party and also the evidence it is necessary to look into the statutory provision of Section 304 B, 498A IPC and 13B of the Evidence Act.

20. Their Lordship of Hon'ble Supreme Court in AIR 2013 (SC 1039) in case of Kashmir Kaur vs. State of Punjab has explained the ingredients of offence under section 304B of IPC which reads as under:-

From the above decisions the following principles can be culled out:

a) To attract the provisions of Section 304B IPC the main ingredient of the offence to be established is that soon before the death of the deceased she was subjected to cruelty and harassment in connection with the demand of dowry.

b) The death of the deceased woman was caused by any burn or bodily injury or some other circumstance which was not normal.

c) Such death occurs within seven years from the date of her marriage.

d) That the victim was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband.

e) Such cruelty or harassment should be for or in connection with demand of dowry.

f) It should be established that such cruelty and harassment was made soon before her death.

g) The expression (soon before) is a relative term and it would depend upon circumstances of each case and no straightjacket formula can be laid down as to what would constitute a period of soon before the occurrence.

h) It would be hazardous to indicate any fixed period and that brings in the importance of a proximity test both for the proof of an offence of dowry death as well as for raising a presumption under Section 113B of the Evidence Act.

i) Therefore, the expression "soon before" would normally imply that the interval should not be much between the concerned cruelty or harassment and the death in question. There must be existence of a proximate or life link between the effect of cruelty based on dowry demand and the concerned death. In other words, it should not be remote in point of time and thereby make it a stale one.

j) However, the expression "soon before" should not be given a narrow meaning which would otherwise defeat the very purpose of the provisions of the Act and should not lead to absurd results.

k) Section 304B is an exception to the cardinal principles of criminal jurisprudence that a suspect in the Indian Law is entitled to the protection of Article 20 of the Constitution, as well as, a presumption of innocence in his favour. The concept of deeming fiction is hardly applicable to criminal jurisprudence but in contradistinction to this aspect of criminal law, the legislature applied the concept of deeming fiction to the provisions of Section 304B.

l) Such deeming fiction resulting in a presumption is, however, a rebuttable presumption and the husband and his relatives, can, by leading their defence prove that the ingredients of Section 304B were not satisfied.

m) The specific significance to be attached is to the time of the alleged cruelty and harassment to which the victim was subjected to, the time of her death and whether the alleged demand of dowry was in connection with the marriage. Once the said ingredients were satisfied it will be called dowry death and by deemed fiction of law the husband or the relatives will be deemed to have committed that offence.

21. In this case prosecution examined P.W. 1 Om Prakash, as in his deposition he has stated that her sister Lokesh was married with appellant Neeraj about 5 years ago before the incident. His parent gave sufficient dowry in marriage as according to his status, but sometime after marriage her in-laws were not happy with the dowry given in the marriage. Family members of the appellant always taunted to the deceased Lokesh for being less dowry and started demand of motorcycle. He further stated that due to poor condition of his family he could not fulfill the demand of her in-laws. His sister was previously ousted from her matrimonial home for not giving motorcycle, thereafter, on being convinced in punchayat she was taken back to her matrimonial house, still they continued their demand of motorcycle. All her family members (in-laws) tortured her, but family members of the complainant kept patience. On intervening night of 20/21.09.2012 a call came from village Gataura and it was informed that his sister was killed by members of his matrimonial house. On telephonic information, complainant and other family members reached at the matrimonial house of his sister. The dead body of his sister was lying on the floor of the barandah and all the members in-laws family was absconded after the occurrence.

22. All these allegations a written report was submitted in police station and the case was lodged and the written report was proved by P.W. 1 as Ext. Ka 1. He further stated that he is one of the member of the inquest report and he also put the signature in inquest report as panch witness and proved the inquest report as Ext. Ka 2. It is also submitted that in-laws family captivated him. His father and his family members put thumb impression and signature of some papers and after that they absconded.

23. P.W. 2 Sonam @ Renu wife of P.W. 1 and bhabhi of the deceased. Statement of P.W. 1 is also corroborated with her. In her statement she has clearly stated that in-laws of the deceased tortured and harassed her on demand of motorcycle, when she reached on the spot along with her family members then no body was present at the time in laws house. She also stated in her statement that the deceased has resides with mother of the appellant. Only these two witnesses of facts were examined except P.W. 1 and P.W. 2. P.W. 3 is the doctor S.K. Chaudhary, who has clearly stated that this ante-mortem injury has been caused to the deceased before 1 to 1 ½ days of the postmortem. He has clearly stated that the death of the deceased Lokesh as a result of ante-mortem strangulation. This shows that the death of the deceased was homicidal and not suicidal.

24. P.W. 8 Rajaram, father of the deceased is also corroborated the statements of P.W. 1 and P.W.2.

25. Although, learned counsel for the appellant contended that the deceased committed suicide by hanging herself on account of depression, but no such any evidence is produced by the defence side that the deceased had committed suicide due to depression. The death of the deceased was not possible by hanging and strangulation, so as per the doctor, the case was homicidal not suicidal. Beside the injury on the neck two other injuries have also found antemortem injury on the body of the deceased. Dr. S.K. Chaudhary has clearly stated in the cross-examination that the death of the deceased was done by pressing neck of the deceased and due to this asphyxia occurred. So the death of the deceased was not possible by hanging. There will be whole pattern issue in the mark which will not be given in the case of strangulation as per the Modi Medico Jurisprudence .

26. The prosecution also examined P.W. 4 Pankaj Kumar Pandey, First Investigating Officer, who has clearly stated that he prepared site plan and recorded the statements of witnesses present at the spot. Particularly he has clearly denied that the family members of the appellant was present at that time. In the statement he has also stated that he also recorded the statement of neighbours of the appellant. Nothing incriminate of hanging was also recovered by the police.

27. P.W. 6, Second Investigating Officer R.S. Gautam has stated that nothing any other important found in the statements of the witnesses and this witness only proved the charge-sheet against the appellant under section 498A, 304B IPC and Section ¾ Dowry Prohibition Act only against the appellant.

28. P.W. 7, Abhay Kumar Sigh, Nayab Tehsildar, who conducted the inquest report and panchayatnama, who proved as Ext. Ka-2.

29. P.W. 9 Satish Kumar, Inspector, who prepared the police papers, proved Ext. Ka-9 to 12.

30. On perusal of the entire record, it is reveals that the death of the deceased was done within 7 years of the marriage . It is also established by the evidence of the doctor that the death of the deceased was occurred due to strangulation and death was occurred homicidal and not suicidal. It is clearly established that the death of the deceased occurred within under normal circumstances.

31. Now, other point it has to be seen just before her death, deceased Smt. Lokesh was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband and other relatives of husband in connection with demand of dowry. This element and burden of prove in case of dowry deaths have been dealt with in detail by Hon'ble The Apex Court in Sher Singh @ Pratapa v. State of Haryana 2015 (89) ACC 288 (SC). The Apex Court held as under:

12. In our opinion, it is beyond cavil that where the same word is used in a section and/or in sundry segments of a statute, it should be attributed the same meaning, unless there are compelling reasons to do otherwise. The obverse is where different words are employed in close proximity, or in the same section, or in the same enactment, the assumption must be that the legislature intended them to depict disparate situations, and delineate dissimilar and diverse ramifications. Ergo, ordinarily Parliament could not have proposed to ordain that the prosecution should "prove" the existence of a vital sequence of facts, despite having employed the word "shown" in Section 304 B. The question is whether these two words can be construed as synonymous. It seems to us that if the prosecution is required to prove, which always means beyond reasonable doubt, that a dowry death has been committed, there is a risk that the purpose postulated in the provision may be reduced to a cipher. This method of statutory interpretation has consistently been disapproved and deprecated except in exceptional instances where the syntax permits reading down or reading up of some words of the subject provisions.

13. In Section 113A of the Evidence Act Parliament has, in the case of a wife's suicide, "presumed" the guilt of the husband and the members of his family. Significantly, in section 113 B which pointedly refers to dowry deaths, Parliament has again employed the word "presume". However, in substantially similar circumstances, in the event of a wife's unnatural death, Parliament has in Section 304 B "deemed" the guilt of the husband and the members of his family. The Concise Oxford Dictionary defines the word "presume" as: supposed to be true, take for granted; whereas "deem" as: regard, consider; and whereas "show" as: point out and prove. The Black's Law Dictionary (5th Edition) defines the word "show" as- to make apparent or clear by the evidence, to prove; "deemed" as- to hold, consider, adjudge, believe, condemn, determine, construed as if true; "presume" as- to believe or accept on probable evidence; and "Presumption", in Black's, "is a rule of law, statutory or judicial, by which finding of a basic fact gives rise to existence of presumed fact, until presumption is rebutted." The Concise Dictionary of Law, Oxford Paperbacks has this comprehensive yet succinct definition of burden of proof which is worthy of reproduction:

"Burden of Proof: The duty of a party to litigation to prove a fact or facts in issue. Generally the burden of proof falls upon the party who substantially asserts the truth of a particular fact (the prosecution or the plaintiff). A distinction is drawn between the persuasive (or legal) burden, which is carried by the party who as a matter of law will lose the case if he fails to prove the fact in issue; and the evidential burden (burden of adducing evidence or burden of going forward), which is the duty of showing that there is sufficient evidence to raise an issue fit for the consideration of the trier of fact as to the existence or non-existence of a fact in issue.

The normal rule is that a defendant is presumed to be innocent until he is proved guilty; it is therefore the duty of the prosecution to prove its case by establishing both the actus reus of the crime and the mens rea. It must first satisfy the evidential burden to show that its allegations have something to support them. If it cannot satisfy this burden, the defence may submit or the judge may direct that there is no case to answer, and the judge must direct the jury to acquit. The prosecution may sometimes rely on presumptions of fact to satisfy the evidential burden of proof (e.g. the fact that a woman was subjected to violence during sexual intercourse will normally raise a presumption to support a charge of rape and prove that she did not consent). If, however, the prosecution has established a basis for its case, it must then continue to satisfy the persuasive burden by proving its case beyond reasonable doubt (see proof beyond reasonable doubt). It is the duty of the judge to tell the jury clearly that the prosecution must prove its case and that it must prove it beyond reasonable doubt; if he does not give this clear direction, the defendant is entitled to be acquitted.

There are some exceptions to the normal rule that the burden of proof is upon the prosecution. The main exceptions are as follows. (1) When the defendant admits the elements of the crime (the actus reus and mens rea) but pleads a special defence, the evidential burden is upon him to prove his defence. This may occur, the example, in a prosecution for murder in which the defendant raises a defence of self-defence. (2) When the defendant pleads automatism, the evidential burden is upon him. (3) When the defendant pleads insanity, both the evidential and persuasive burden rest upon him. In this case, however, it is sufficient if he proves his case on a balance of probabilities (i.e. he must persuade the jury that it is more likely that he is telling the truth than not). (4) In some cases statute expressly places a persuasive burden on the defendant; for example, a person who carries an offensive weapon in public is guilty of an offence unless he proves that he had lawful authority or a reasonable excuse for carrying it".

14. As is already noted above, Section 113 B of the Evidence Act and Section 304B of the IPC were introduced into their respective statutes simultaneously and, therefore, it must ordinarily be assumed that Parliament intentionally used the word 'deemed' in Section 304B to distinguish this provision from the others. In actuality, however, it is well nigh impossible to give a sensible and legally acceptable meaning to these provisions, unless the word 'shown' is used as synonymous to 'prove' and the word 'presume' as freely interchangeable with the word 'deemed'. In the realm of civil and fiscal law, it is not difficult to import the ordinary meaning of the word 'deem' to denote a set of circumstances which call to be construed contrary to what they actually are. In criminal legislation, however, it is unpalatable to adopt this approach by rote. We have the high authority of the Constitution Bench of this Court both in State of Travancore-Cochin v. Shanmugha Vilas Cashewnut Factory, AIR 1953 SC 333 and State of Tamil Nadu v. Arooran Sugars Limited (1997) 1 SCC 326, requiring the Court to ascertain the purpose behind the statutory fiction brought about by the use of the word 'deemed' so as to give full effect to the legislation and carry it to its logical conclusion. We may add that it is generally posited that there are rebuttable as well as irrebuttable presumptions, the latter oftentimes assuming an artificiality as actuality by means of a deeming provision. It is abhorrent to criminal jurisprudence to adjudicate a person guilty of an offence even though he had neither intention to commit it nor active participation in its commission. It is after deep cogitation that we consider it imperative to construe the word 'shown' in Section 304B of the IPC as to, in fact, connote 'prove'. In other words, it is for the prosecution to prove that a 'dowry death' has occurred, namely, (i) that the death of a woman has been caused in abnormal circumstances by her having been burned or having been bodily injured, (ii) within seven years of a marriage, (iii) and that she was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband, (iv) in connection with any demand for dowry and (v) that the cruelty or harassment meted out to her continued to have a causal connection or a live link with the demand of dowry. We are aware that the word 'soon' finds place in Section 304B; but we would prefer to interpret its use not in terms of days or months or years, but as necessarily indicating that the demand for dowry should not be stale or an aberration of the past, but should be the continuing cause for the death under Section 304B or the suicide under Section 304B of the IPC. Once the presence of these concomitants are established or shown or proved by the prosecution, even by preponderance of possibility, the initial presumption of innocence is replaced by an assumption of guilt of the accused, thereupon transferring the heavy burden of proof upon him and requiring him to produce evidence dislodging his guilt, beyond reasonable doubt. It seems to us that what Parliament intended by using the word 'deemed' was that only preponderance of evidence would be insufficient to discharge the husband or his family members of their guilt. This interpretation provides the accused a chance of proving their innocence. This is also the postulation of Section 101 of the Evidence Act. The purpose of Section 113B of the Evidence Act and Section 304B of the IPC, in our opinion, is to counter what is commonly encountered - the lack or the absence of evidence in the case of suicide or death of a woman within seven years of marriage. If the word "shown" has to be given its ordinary meaning then it would only require the prosecution to merely present its evidence in Court, not necessarily through oral deposition, and thereupon make the accused lead detailed evidence to be followed by that of the prosecution. This procedure is unknown to Common Law systems, and beyond the contemplation of the Cr.P.C."

32. It is well settled principle of law that once prosecution proved that where the death of the woman which was occurred otherwise under normal circumstances within 7 years of her marriage and she was subjected to cruelty and harassment by her husband and relatives of her husband soon before her death in connection with the demand of dowry, then heavy burden of proof lies upon accused to adduce evidence disbelieving his guilt, beyond reasonable doubt.

33. In the present case accused appellant-Neeraj has failed to prove beyond reasonable doubt that his wife Smt. Lokesh committed suicide due to depression.

34. In the present case in hand, when the family members and relative were arrived at the matrimonial house of the deceased then they saw that all of the family members of in-law had fled away from the scene of occurrence.

35. Section 8 of the Evidence Act is as under:-

Section 8 in The Indian Evidence Act, 1872

8. Motive, preparation and previous or subsequent conduct.--Any fact is relevant which shows or constitutes a motive or preparation for any fact in issue or relevant fact. The conduct of any party, or of any agent to any party, to any suit or proceeding, in reference to such suit or proceeding, or in reference to any fact in issue therein or relevant thereto, and the conduct of any person an offence against whom is the subject of any proceeding, is relevant, if such conduct influences or is influenced by any fact in issue or relevant fact, and whether it was previous or subsequent thereto. Explanation 1.--The word "conduct" in this section does not include statements, unless those statements accompany and explain acts other than statements; but this explanation is not to affect the relevancy of statements under any other section of this Act. Explanation 2.--When the conduct of any person is relevant, any statement made to him or in his presence and hearing, which affects such conduct, is relevant. Illustrations (I) of the evidence Act is relevant.

(i) A is accused of a crime. The facts that, after the commission of the alleged crime, he absconded, or was in possession of property or the proceeds of property acquired by the crime, or attempted to conceal things which were or might have been used in committing it, are relevant.

36. Section 8 of Evidence Act is that any fact is relevant which shows or constitutes a motive or preparation for any fact in issue or relevant fact. The conduct of any party, is also relevant and the conduct of family members of the appellant all of them are fled away from the place of occurrence is also indicate the guilt of the appellant.

37. It is also submitted by prosecution is that the death of the deceased Lokesh is within 5 years in the house of the appellant in view of Section 106 of the Evidence Act. This burden on the appellant to establish those fact which disprove his guilt. In other words, if he fail to establish or explain these facts, an adverse inference of fact may arise against him. In this case the appellant simply show that the deceased had committed suicide only due to depression, except this no defence witness is examined on behalf of the appellant to establish this fact that the deceased had committed suicide due to depression. Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Trimukh Maroti Kirkan vs. State of Maharashtra, in para 17 of the judgement has held that:-

"Where an accused is alleged to have committed the murder of his wife and the prosecution succeeds in leading evidence to show that shortly before the commission of crime they were seen together or the offence takes placed in the dwelling home where the husband also normally resided, it has been consistently held that if the accused does not offer any explanation how the wife received injuries or offers an explanation which is found to be false, it is a strong circumstance which indicates that he is responsible for commission of the crime."

38. For the reasons aforesaid the prosecution is able to prove his case against the appellant. The appellant accused Neeraj for the offence punishable under section 498A, 304B and 4 of D.P. Act beyond shadow of doubt, so far as with regard to the prayer of the appellant for reduction of the sentence of appellant-accused is concerned it is not a case of suicidal death but the case is of homicidal death.

39. The learned trial court although frame alternative charge against the appellant under section 302 IPC, but the learned trial court without assigning any cogent reason acquitted the appellant against the charge levelled under section 302/34 IPC.

40. Thus, finding of the court below is totally whimsical and against the evidence on record, but as no appeal on behalf of the State for enhancement of sentence. In these circumstances, this Court is not inclined to interfere the judgement and order of the trial court.

41. Since there is no instigating circumstances in favour of appellant, so in these circumstances, it shall not be justified to interfere or reduce the sentence awarded to the appellant by the court below.

42. The appeal is liable to be dismissed and is accordingly dismissed.

43. The conviction and sentence of appellant Neeraj passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 4, under section 498A, 304B IPC and Section 4 D.P. Act are upheld. The appellant Neeraj is in jail and he served out the sentence awarded to him.

44. Office is directed to transmit the certified copy of this order to the court below along with the lower court record, for necessary compliance.

Counsel for the Appellant:
From Jail, Sri Ved Prakash Pandey.

Counsel for the Opposite Party:
A.G.A.

A. Criminal law-IPC Section 304 (II) I.P.C-Delay in lodging F.I.R. has been very satisfactorily and reasonably explained and in this case delay is not at all fatal for prosecution case-Statement of a relative or interested witness could not be thrown out only on the ground that the witness is relative or interested witness, rather, such statement is to be scrutinized with caution-Exception-4 to section 300 of the I.P.C.-Appellant only tried to pacify the matter between co-accused (acquitted) and deceased and there were no pre-mediation or pre-arranged plan to commit crime and incident has taken place all of sudden in spur of moment-No intention to commit such fatal assault on the deceased-Sentence of five years rigorous imprisonment reduced to three years rigorous imprisonment alongwith fine with default clause and compensation to the widow / complainant (wife of deceased).

Appeal partly allowed. (E-3)

Held- Where there is absence of any pre-meditation and the incident occurs on the spur of the moment, the weapon is not lethal and there is no repetition of assault after a single blow, the case would come within Exception 4 to Section 300 IPC.(Para 16,21,23,26)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Suresh Kumar Gupta J.)

1. Being aggrieved with the judgment and order dated 12.4.2018 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 21, Shahjahanpur, this jail appeal has been preferred by appellant in S.T. No. 165 of 2014, Case Crime No. 395 of 2013, under sections 304, 504 & 506 I.P.C. in which appellant has been convicted under section 304 (II) I.P.C. for 5 years rigorous imprisonment alongwith fine of Rs. 10,000/- and in default of payment of fine six month further imprisonment. Appellant was acquitted under sections 304/34, 504 &

506 I.P.C. After depositing the aforesaid fine ¾ part of the same shall be given to the victim as compensation.

2. Brief facts of this case are as follows-:

That on 7.9.2013 at about 7-8 P.M. lot of altercation happened between husband of complainant namely Sher Pal (deceased) and her neighbour namely Mausam Ali and this altercation continued for a long time. Complainant alongwith her daughters and her Jeth's son namely Ramesh (appellant) had tried to sort out the matter but all in vain. Then Ramesh inflicted two - three blow of stick on the head of Sher Pal and pushed him on the floor. Accused Mausam Ali is also involved in this incident. Thereafter complainant tried to take her husband to the hospital for treatment but could not do the same due to non-availability of vehicle, resultant her husband-Sher Pal had died on the spot. This occurrence was witnessed by several neighbours of the complainant. Thereafter, complainant scribed a report by Irfan and on the basis of that written report Ex. Ka-1 an F.I.R. was lodged (Ex. Ka-8) on 8.9.2013 at 00.30 mid night at police station Rauja against appellant-Ramesh and co-accused-Mausam Ali. Distance between the police station and place of occurrence is about 12 hours in North-East.

3. This case is entered in G.D. at serial no. 2 dated 8.9.2013 at 00.30 hours (Ex. Ka-2) and inquest report (Ex. Ka-4) as well as papers relating to autopsy is also prepared by SI Janki Prasad Sharma on direction of S.H.O. Afterward autopsy of deceased was done in district hospital by PW-5-Dr. R.S. Prasad. According to PW-5 at the time of alleged incident deceased was 45 years old and duration of death of deceased about one day. In medical examination following ante-mortem injuries were found on the body of deceased:-

i. Lacerated wound 2.5 cm X 1 cm into bone deep on the right eye-brow.

ii. Abraided contusion 4 cm X 2 cm on tip of nose

iii. Contusion 6 cm X 3 cm on the left side of back 12 cm below the right tip of shoulder.

iv. Contusion of 8 cm X 4 cm on left side back 10 cm below.

v. Contusion 12 cm X 3 cm on left side of lower part of back just above left side of buttock.

vi. Abraided contusion 7 cm X 3 cm on right side of back of chest 4 cm below tip of shoulder.

vii. Contusion 8 cm X 2.5 cm on right side of back 9 cm below tip of shoulder.

4. On internal examination of body of deceased injuries no. 4 to 7 were rib fracture on the left side of back, lungs were raptured, heart was empty, stomach was empty, chyme and gases were present in small intestine, bladder was empty. As per result of ante-mortem injuries, doctor opined that death of deceased was done due to shock and hommerrage. Death report is proved as Ex. Ka-7.

5. That investigation of this case was conducted by IO Virendra Bahadur Singh / PW-3. IO prepared site plan (Ex. Ka-2) on instruction of complainant and after recording the statement of witnesses as well as after completing formality of investigation submitted charge-sheet (Ex. Ka-3) against appellant-Ramesh and co-accused-Mausam Ali before C.J.M. concerned, where it is committed to the sessions court and by means of transfer this case is decided by A.D.J. Court No. 21. On 16.7.2014 charge was framed against the appellant as well as co-accused, Mausam Ali, under sections 304/34, 504 & 506 I.P.C. After conclusion of trial learned trial court acquitted co-accused, Mausam Ali, and convicted the appellant as aforesaid.

6. In order to substantiate the charge levelled against the appellant, prosecution examined Smt. Mahadevi (wife of deceased) as PW-1, she proved the written report (Ex. Ka-1). Sita, who is the daughter of deceased as PW-2, PW-1 and PW-2 are reported as eye-witnesses of the alleged incident, IO Virendra Bahadur Singh as PW-3, who proved site plan as Ex. Ka-2 and charge sheet as Ex. Ka-3, Dr. Janki Prasad Verma as PW-4, who proved inquest report as Ex. Ka-7, C.M.O. Letter, R.I. Letter and challan nash Ex. Ka-4 to Ex. Ka-6, Dr. Aditya Prakash Arya as PW-5, who proved post mortem report as Ex. Ka-7 and Ct. Clerk Jitendra Singh as PW-6, who proved the chik F.I.R. as Ex. Ka-8 and relevant G.D. No. 2 as Ex. Ka-9.

7. After examination of these witnesses, on 9.3.2018 statement of accused-appellant was recorded under section 313 Cr.P.C. Accused/ appellant denied all the charges levelled against him and stated that he was falsely implicated in this case by complainant due to personal vengeance. Co-accused Mausam Ali clearly denied the prosecution version and stated that he is innocent and deceased and his wife committed marpeet to one woman of his village namely Sushila Devi and co-accused was the witness of that incident, due to that enmity wife of deceased has falsely implicated him in this case. After hearing of both the parties, learned trial court acquitted the accused and convicted the appellant as aforesaid being aggrieved against the order dated 2.4.2018, this appeal has been filed by the appellant.

8. I have heard learned counsel for the appellant and the learned A.G.A. and perused the material available on record.

9. Learned counsel for the appellant submitted that appellant has been falsely implicated in this case. The occurrence has taken place at about 8 P.M. and F.I.R. was lodged at about 12.30 midnight having delay of 4.30 hours and there is no explanation regarding the same. That no independent eye-witness was examined by the prosecution and both the prosecution witnesses i.e. PW-1 (wife of deceased) and PW-2 (daughter of deceased) are relatives of deceased and they are interested witnesses, therefore no reliance can be placed on the statement of interested and related witnesses. As independent witness was available on the spot as no independent witness examined by the prosecution so conviction of appellant could not be sustained Learned counsel further submitted that death of deceased was died due to falling on the pave road it cannot be established from the evidence that the act was committed by the appellant with intention to kill the deceased. Rather than due to certain altercation between Mausam Ali and deceased this incident unintentionally happened. Learned counsel next submitted that co-accused-Mausam Ali was acquitted by the trial court so appellant is also liable to be acquitted. Learned counsel further submitted that appellant is an old age person and if court found appellant's guilt then considering the poor condition, and there was no pre-mediation or pre-arrange plan and entire circumstances that death of deceased occurred due to non-availability of any vehicle at the time of alleged incident so complainant could not take her husband to the hospital for treatement and he succumbed due to excessive bleeding.

10. Per contra, learned A.G.A. submitted that appellant had intentionally committed culpable homicide and given several fatal blow by stick, which resultant to death of deceased. He further submitted that although there are several eye-witnesses were present at the spot at the time of alleged incident but due to enmity and partibandi in village independent person always refuse to give deposition so it could not be presume that absence of independent eye-witness belied prosecution case. Learned A.G.A. further contended that prosecution is able to prove its case beyond shadow of doubt. The alleged incident has taken place in the village of deceased. Hence, neither date time and place of occurrence nor the identity of accused could be disputed by learned counsel for appellant. Role of appellant to inflict injury to deceased with lathi and unintentionally pushed the deceased on pave road was proved. There is no material on record to disbelieve the prosecution charge against appellant. It is also submitted that learned trial court does not seem to have fallen an error while convicting and sentencing the appellant under section 304 part II I.P.C. Appellant deserves no leniency. So appeal is liable to be dismissed.

11. In order to prove this case prosecution examined six witnesses and out of these only two witness of fact, examined by prosecution. PW-1, Mahadevi, is the wife of deceased as well as an eye-witness of this case. PW-1 deposed in her statement that before three year at 7-8 P.M. there was some altercation between her husband and neighbour, Mausam Ali. Meanwhile, brother-in-law of PW-1, Dharmpal, and her daughter tried to pacify the altercation but they could not succeed. Son of her brother-in-law (jeth) Ramesh and Mausam Ali both assailant grabbed her husband and pushed him on the pave ground. Due to this Sher Pal sudden sustained serious injuries and PW-1 could not take her husband for treatment because she failed to make arrangement of any vehicle and her husband Sher Pal died after half an hour on the spot. At the time of incident a bulb was lightening on the pole and PW-1 clearly identified the accused in the light of bulb. PW-1 in his cross-examination stated by making an improvement that Mausam Ali was armed with banka and inflicted on head of Sher Pal and Ramesh inflicted lathi on the base of nose and both of them pushed Sher Pal on pave road resultant, Sher Pal died.

12. PW-2 is the daughter of deceased who herself examined as an eye-witness and she clearly stated in her statement that Ramesh armed with lathi and Mausam Ali armed with farsa, inflicted injuries to her father so statement of PW-1 also in support of PW-2.

13. Learned trial court acquitted co-accused, Mausam Ali, only on the grounds that although both the witnesses (PW-1 & PW-2) in their statements clearly stated that co-accused, Mausam Ali, was also involved in this incident and taken active participation but in the F.I.R.(Ex. Ka-1) no said allegation is imputed against Mausam Ali. On the opinion of learned trial court that evidence adduced against co-accused, Mausam Ali, was not in consonance with F.I.R. so learned trial court acquitted Mausam Ali against charge levelled upon him and no appeal against acquittal of Mausam Ali is filed by prosecution till date. Only appellant, Ramesh, was convicted and presently he is languishing in jail.

14. One of the argument of learned counsel for appellant is that occurrence has taken place on 7.9.2013 at about 7 to 8 P.M. That distance between place of occurrence and police station is about 3 kms and F.I.R. was lodged against the appellant at 12.13 midnight. Thus there are about 5 hours delay in lodging the F.I.R. which is not at all explained by the prosecution and delay in lodging F.I.R. gives rise to the fact that appellant has been falsely implicated in this case. In case of prompt F.I.R., chance of false implication of accused is very remote. While learned A.G.A. submitted that delay is clearly explained in this matter that first informant is an illiterate, rustic household lady and nobody from the village came forward for arranging conveyance for deceased after alleged incident. Complainant could not manage conveyance in time so in these circumstances, delay occurred in lodging F.I.R. There are many factors which have to be taken into consideration while looking into factum of delay in criminal cases. It is true that court has duty to take notice of delay and examined the same in a back draft of a factual score whether there is any expectable explanation offered by the prosecution but when delay is satisfactorily explained no adverse inference is to be drawn. It is to be seen whether there has been possibility of embellishment in the prosecution version on account of such delay.

15. In this connection it will be useful to take note of the following observation made by Apex Court in Tara Singh & Ors. v. State of Punjab, AIR 1991 SC 63 :

"The delay in giving the FIR by itself cannot be a ground to doubt the prosecution case. Knowing the Indian conditions as they are, one cannot expect these villagers to rush to the police station immediately after the occurrence. Human nature as it is, the kith and kin who have witnessed the occurrence cannot be expected to act mechanically with all the promptitude in giving the report to the police. At times being grief-stricken because of the calamity it may not immediately occur to them that they should give a report. After all it is but natural in these circumstances for them to take some time to go the police station for giving the report. Of course, in cases arising out of acute factions there is a tendency to implicate persons belonging to the opposite faction falsely. In order to avert the danger of convicting such innocent persons the Courts should be cautious to scrutinize the evidence of such interested witnesses with greater care and caution and separate grain from the chaff after subjecting the evidence to a closer scrutiny and in doing so the contents of the FIR also will have to be scrutinised carefully. However, unless there are indications of fabrication, the Court cannot reject the prosecution version as given in the FIR and later substantiated by the evidence merely on the ground of delay. These are all matters for appreciation and much depends on the facts and circumstances of each case."

16. Thus delay in lodging F.I.R. has been very satisfactorily and reasonably explained which has also been discussed by trial court and in this case delay is not at all fatal for prosecution case.

17. So far as the second argument is concerned that only interested and related witnesses i.e. PW-1, Mahadevi w/o deceased and PW-2 Sita, daughter of deceased, were examined by the prosecution. No other independent witness is produced so no reliance can be placed in the statement of interested and related witnesses. That the prosecution has produced only interested and related witnesses i.e. PW-1 & PW-2. Both are relatives of deceased except this no independent eye-witness produced by the prosecution. While PW-1 has clearly stated in her statement that at the time of alleged incident her daughter as well as villagers were present at her door and Ramvir was also sit on his shop but neither anyone come forward nor prevented the appellant from being killing.

18. In Nagappan v. State (by Inspector of Police, Tamil Nadu) reported in (2014) 3 SCC (Cri) 660 Hon'ble the Apex Court in paragraph no. 10 has observed as under :-

"10. As regards the first contention about the admissibility of the evidence of PW 1 and PW 2 being closely related to each other and the deceased, first of all, there is no bar in considering the evidence of relatives. It is true that in the case on hand, other witnesses turned hostile and have not supported the case of the prosecution. The prosecution heavily relied on the evidence of PW 1 & PW 2. The trial court and the High Court, in view of their relationship, closely analysed their statements and ultimately found that their evidence is clear, cogent and without considerable contradiction as claimed by their counsel. This Court, in a series of decisions, has held that where the evidence of "interested witnesses" is consistent and duly corroborated by medical evidence, it is not possible to discard the same merely on the ground that they were interested witnesses. In other words, relationship is not a factor to affect the credibility of a witness. " (emphasis added)

19. In Vikram Singh and others V. State of Punjab reported in (2010) 3 SCC 56 Hon'ble the Supreme Court has cited paragraph 3 of its earlier pronouncement in the case of Rana Pratap and Others V. State of Haryana reported in 1983 (3) SCC 327 which reads as under:-

"There were three eye witnesses. One was the brother of the deceased and the other two were a milk vendor of a neighbouring village, who was carrying milk to the dairy and a vegetable and fruit hawker, who was pushing his laden cart along the road. The learned Sessions Judge and the learned Counsel described both the independent witnesses as chance witnesses implying thereby that their evidence was suspicious and their presence at the scene doubtful. We do not understand the expression 'chance witnesses'. Murders are not committed with previous notice to witnesses; soliciting their presence. If murder is committed in a dwelling house, the inmates of the house are natural witnesses. If murder is committed in a brothel, prostitutes and paramours are natural witnesses. If murder is committed in a street, only passersby will be witnesses. Their evidence cannot be brushed aside or viewed with suspicion on the ground that that they are mere chance witnesses'. The expression 'chance witnesses' is borrowed from countries where every man's home is considered his castle and every one must have an explanation for his presence elsewhere or in another man's castle. It is a most unsuitable expression in a country whose people are less formal and more casual. To discard the evidence of street hawkers and street vendors on the ground that they are 'chance witnesses' even where murder is committed in a street is to abandon good sense and take too shallow a view of the evidence."(Emphasis added)

20. In Sheesh Ram and others v. State of Rajasthan reported in (2014) 3 SCC 689 Hon'ble the Apex Court in paragraph no. 10 has observed as under:-

"10. It is submitted that all these witnesses are related and therefore their evidence cannot be relied upon. Assuming they are related to each other and, hence, interested witnesses, it is well settled that the evidence of interested witnesses is not always suspect. It has to be scrutinized with caution and can be accepted if it is found reliable."

21. Hence, statement of a relative or interested witness could not be thrown out only on the ground that the witness is relative or interested witness, rather, such statement is to be scrutinized with caution.

22. Hon'ble the Apex Court in Gopal Singh Vs. State of U.P. reported in (1978) 3 SCC 327 has observed in paragraph no. 11 as under:-

"11. True, they were interested witnesses, related to the deceased. Far from undermining the circumstances of the case, it guaranteed the truth of their testimony. Being relations, they would be the least disposed to falsely implicate the appellant, or substitute him in place of the real culprit. In short, the murder charges had been proved to the hilt against the appellant."

23. As the law propounded by apex court statement of relatives and interested witnesses could not be thrown out only on the ground that witnesses are relatives. Rather such statement of the witnesses is to be scrutinized with caution. It is made clear that related or interested witnesses will never like to save the real culprit and falsely implicate some other innocent person. In this case alleged occurrence has taken place near the house of the deceased and presence of these witnesses are quite natural. Hence, no adverse inference can be drawn that witnesses are related and interested witnesses. In the backdrop of the legal situation now it is to be seen as to whether the prosecution has been succeed to prove the charges against the accused.

24. It was argued that the incident in question took place on a sudden fight without any premeditation and the act of the appellant hitting the deceased was committed in the heat of passion upon a sudden quarrel without the appellant having taken undue advantage or acting in a cruel or unusual manner. Firstly, there is not even a suggestion that the appellant had any enmity or motive to commit any offence against the deceased. Secondly, because the weapon used was not lethal nor was the deceased given a second blow once he had collapsed to the ground. The prosecution case is that no sooner the deceased fell to the ground on account of the blow on the head, the appellant and his companions took to their heels - a circumstance that shows that the appellant had not acted in an unusual or cruel manner in the prevailing situation so as to deprive him of the benefit of Exception-4. Thirdly, because during the exchange of hot words between the deceased and the appellant, intention of the appellant and his companion was at best to belabour him and not to kill him as such. The cumulative effect of all these circumstances, in our opinion, should entitle the appellant to the benefit of Exception-4 to section 300 of the I.P.C.

25. In Surinder Kumar Vs. Union Territory, Chandigarh (1989) 2 SCC 217, Apex Court held that if on a sudden quarrel a person in the heat of the moment picks up a weapon which is handy and causes injuries out of which only one proves fatal, he would be entitled to the benefit of the Exception provided he has not acted cruelly. This Court held that the number of wounds caused during the occurrence in such a situation was not the decisive factor. What was important was that the occurrence had taken place on account of a sudden and unpremeditated fight and the offender must have acted in a fit of anger. Dealing with the provision of Exception 4 to Section 300 I.P.C. this Court observed:-

".....To invoke this exception four requirements must be satisfied, namely, (i) it was a sudden fight; (ii) there was no premeditation; (iii) the act was done in a heat of passion; and (iv) the assailant had not taken any undue advantage or acted in a curel manner. The cause of the quarrel is not relevant not is it relevant who offered the provocation or started the assault. The number of wounds caused during the occurrence is not a decisive factor but what is important is that the occurrence must have been sudden and unpremeditated and the offender must have acted in a fit of anger. Of course, the offender must not have taken any undue advantage or acted in a cruel manner. Where, on a sudden quarrel, a person in the heat of the moment picks up a weapon which is handy and causes injuries, one of which proves fatal, he would be entitled to the benefit of this exception provided he has not acted cruelly."

26. Considering the entire facts and circumstances of the case as well as after perusing the record in this appeal prosecution has successfully proved the charges levelled against the appellant beyond reasonable doubt. Learned trial court has also rightly recorded the finding of guilt against the appellant. I do not find any illegality in the impugned judgment and order of the trial court. So in these circumstances, the conviction is upheld against the appellant. So far as regard sentence is concerned appellant is the nephew of the deceased. Appellant only tried to pacify the matter between Mausam Ali and deceased and there were no pre-mediation or pre-arranged plan to commit crime and incident has taken place all of sudden in spur of moment. Appellant has no intention to commit such fatal assault on the deceased. Appellant was incarceration few months during trial as well as after judgment he is in jail continuously since 12.4.2018. In these circumstances, it would be appropriate for the end of justice, sentence of five years rigorous imprisonment is reduced to three years rigorous imprisonment alongwith fine of Rs. 10,000/- with default clause and compensation to the widow / complainant (wife of deceased) as awarded by trial court.

27. Appeal is partly allowed on the point of sentence only.

28. Appellant is in jail. The period spent by the appellant in jail shall be set off from the imprisonment awarded by this court. Learned trial court shall ensure compliance of this order.

29. Office is hereby directed to certify this order to the learned trial court immediately. The lower court record should also be transmitted forthwith.

Criminal Appeal No. 655 of 2009

Ram Pal ...Appellant
Versus
State of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Respondent:

A. Evidence law- Indian Evidence Act, Section 154 - Hostile witness- The common law principle, "falsus in uno falsus in omnibus' does not apply in Indian Law of Evidence- - The evidence of a Hostile Witness cannot be altogether rejected and the part of the evidence, which finds corroboration from other evidence, is admissible.

B. Evidence law- Indian Evidence Act- Section 3- Related or Interested Witnesses- Fact that the witnesses are related to each other is no ground for disbelieving their evidence- Relative should have no interest to falsely implicate the accused or protect the real culprit - There is no reason for related witnesses to falsely implicate the accused and let the real culprits go scot free. However, The Court has to treat the said evidence with caution.

C. Evidence law- Indian Evidence Act- Section 45- Opinion of Expert -The evidence of doctor is merely an opinion of expert under Section 45 of the Indian Evidence Act- The expert is a valuable witness when it becomes utmost necessary for the court to record his evidence to form an accurate opinion to determine that the offence was committed by the accused-The other evidences corroborated with the expert's witness' deposition fixes the guilt on the accused-The testimony of eye witness should be paramount unless medical evidence is so conclusive as to rule out even the possibility of eye witness's version to be true- If the opinion of the Doctor corroborates the ocular evidence then the accused can be safely convicted however the ocular version shall be granted primacy over the medical evidence unless the medical evidence overwhelmingly contradicts the ocular version.

D. Criminal Law- Code of Criminal Procedure- Section 313.- Opportunity to enable accused to explain incriminating circumstances emerging out from the evidence against them - All accused have availed the opportunity and commonly blamed the incriminating which came out from prosecution evidence to be "false implication by reason of enmity'-- Failure of the accused to provide explanation to the incriminating material against him would lead the Court to derive an adverse inference against him.

E. Criminal law- Indian Penal Code-Section 34 - Concept of joint liability- The proved facts circumstances and materials available on record attract the constructive liability enshrined in the provision of Section 34 of the IPC.- Section 34 Provides for joint liability of the accused where the common intention and participation of the accused in the commission of the offence is proved.

These three criminal appeals have arisen out from the judgment of Trial Judge, the Additional Sessions Judge (Fast Track Court), No.7 in Sessions Trial No.431 of 1985, dated 03.02.2009, whereby the accused-appellants, namely Ram Pal, Lala Ram and Babu Ram are convicted of the offence punishable under Section 302 IPC read with Section 34 of the IPC and awarded with sentence to undergo life imprisonment with fine to the tune of Rs.5,000/- each. In case of failure to pay the fine, they are further sentenced to undergo imprisonment of six months.

1. The Criminal Appeal no.371 of 2009 is preferred by appellant, "Babu Ram', represented by Sri Kapil Mishra, Advocate assisting learned Senior designate Sri Jyotindra Mishra, Advocate. The criminal Appeal No.577 of 2009 is preferred by "Ram Pal', who is represented by learned counsel Sri Anil Kumar Pandey in the capacity of Amicus Curiae. The Criminal Appeal No.655 of 2009 is preferred by "Lala Ram' who is represented by learned counsel Sri U.P. Singh.

2. Initially, a Case Crime No.48 of 1985 was registered on 4.4.1985 at 7:30 p.m. in Police Station 'Behta Gokul', District 'Hardoi' under Section 302 read with Section 34 of the I.P.C. upon the information of Chhotey Lal, who is further examined by the Trial Court as prosecution witness no.1. The written complaint was directed against: (1) Raj Pal (2) Ram Pal, both sons of Bihari R/o Police Station Behta Gokul, District Hardoi (3) Lal Ram

(4) Babu Ram, both sons of Digga R/o village Paitapur, Police Station Pali, District Hardoi.

3. When the first chargesheet was submitted excluding the name of two named accused Lala Ram and Babu Ram by the Police before the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Hardoi, he committed the case, as the same was triable by the Sessions Judge on 17.07.1985. It comes out from the judgment of learned Trial Judge dated 02.01.1987 that Lala Ram and Babu Ram were summoned for trial along with the chargesheeted accused when the first informant chhotelal, during his examination in chief recorded during trial, reiterated the name of aforesaid accused along with other two accused named in the FIR, in exercise of power under the provision of Section 319 Cr.P.C. It also comes out from the judgment that during the sessions trial, accused Raj Pal died, therefore, the trial as against the deceased-Raj Pal was abated vide order dated 19.09.2000. Accordingly, the trial proceeded with three accused, namely, Babu Ram, Ram Pal and Lala Ram. All the three accused after having been convicted and sentenced by the impugned judgment and order of sentence dated 03.02.2009 by the Trial Judge, have preferred their appeal separately which are described hereinabove.

4. All the appellants are accused of the same criminal incident and were tried in the same sessions trial, therefore, evidences adduced against them are common. We heard the learned counsels on behalf of their respective accused-appellants. In our opinion, it would be proper to decide all the three appeals through a consolidated judgment so as to avoid anomaly and contrary finding on the same evidence.

5. The accused-appellants in the three appeals shall be addressed hereinafter as A1 (Babu Ram) in Criminal Appeal No.371 of 2009, A2 (Rampal) in Criminal Appeal No.577 of 2009 and A3 (Lala Ram) in Criminal Appeal No.655 of 2009.

6. The case in brief, as comes out from the written complaint submitted by Chhoteylal, the First Information Report founded thereupon and the evidences, is that on 04.04.1985 at about 7:30 p.m., Chottey Lal S/o Raggha Raidas R/o Village and Police Station 'Behta Gokul', District 'Hardoi' along with Saheb Lal, (injured) approached to the police station with a report written in his hand writing and signature informing thereby that his brother Ganga Ram was killed by the accused person, namely (1) Raj Pal, (2) Rampal both sons of Behari, R/o village and Police Station Behta Gokul, District Hardoi, (3) Lala Ram and (4) Babu Ram both sons of "Digga' residents of village Paitapur, Police Station Pali, District Hardoi. The report disclosed that on 04.04.1985 at about 6:00 p.m. when the deceased Ganga Ram, his brothers Chottelal (informant) and Saheb Lal, after sowing sugarcanes in their field were on their way to home and reached near the bridge over Sharda Canal, the accused persons namely Raj Pal, Lala Ram (A3), Babu Ram (A1) and Ram Pal (A2), suddenly plunged over the bridge from their hide, intercepted and asked Ganga Ram to halt. Raj Pal (dead) was armed with country-made pistol, A3 with gun, A2 with Lathi (Stick) and A1 was armed with a Gandasa (Chopper). The two accused persons carrying fire arms named above fired on "Ganga Ram' with their respective weapon due to which he got injuries and collapsed on the ground. Thereafter A1 and A2 inflicted on the body of Ganga Ram blows of Gandasa and lathi respectively. Saheblal in order to save Gangaram received lathi blows from A2 to ward him off and was injured. When Chhotey Lal, the informant made hue and cry, "Vijay Pal' son of Laxman and "Kadhiley' son of Sukkha residents of same village Behta Gokul, who were coming on bullock-cart, ran towards the scene of crime. "Ganga Ram' who was severely injured due to profused bleeding succumbed to death on spot. On seeing the witnesses rushing up to the spot of incident, the accused persons fled away. The informant has also disclosed the motive behind the commission of crime by the accused-appellant, that a criminal prosecution was continuing against the deceased (Ganga Ram), along with the other co-accused, with regard to murder of "Digga', (father of both A1 and A3), wherein though Sessions Court recorded conviction against all the accused, but in appeal preferred by deceased in the High Court he was released on bail during the pendency of appeal. He further disclosed that father of Raj Pal, namely, Bihari had also lodged a criminal case under Section 307 I.P.C. against deceased Ganga Ram wherein he was acquitted. Because of these reasons, the accused hatched enmity with deceased Gangaram and in vengeance, they attacked Ganga Ram and done him to death on spot. He approached to the police station after the arrival of other family members, leaving dead body in their supervision.

7. It would be important and relevant to take notice of the fact that on receiving the written report from Chhotey Lal, (the informant), the officer in charge of the Police Station registered FIR and the special report was sent to the concerned Magistrate about the commission of the offence. Site map was prepared. Inquest proceeding was done on the spot where the dead body of "Ganga Ram' was lying since after the incident and ultimately the dead body was sent for post-mortem to the mortuary. From the stage of receiving the written report of the incident upto sending off the dead body for post-mortem, the investigation was done by Sub Inspector 'Ram Ruchi Arya' and thereafter further investigation upto the stage of submission of chargesheet before the concerned Magistrate was done by S.I., Jitendra Nath Singh S.H.O. posted in the Police Station with the first named I.O. The subsequent Investigating Officer, named herein-above, submitted three chargesheets. Out of the four named accused persons in the FIR viz Raj Pal, Lala Ram, Ram Pal and Babu Ram, the first chargesheet was submitted only against Raj Pal and Ram Pal under Section 302 IPC read with Section 34 IPC. Second chargesheet thereafter was submitted against two strangers namely Pramod Kumar and Rameshwar under Section 302 IPC read with Section 34 of the IPC. Lastly, a third chargesheet was submitted by the said Investigating Officer against one more stranger to the FIR, "Devi Dayal' in the same incident under Section 302 IPC read with Section 34 IPC. In all the three chargesheets the named accused Lala Ram and Babu Ram were not included. Accordingly, the Trial Judge in the matter of murder of Ganga Ram as reported in FIR dated 04.04.1985 by Chhotey Lal, on 19.11.1985 tried along with Raj Pal, Ram Pal the additional chargesheeted accused also Pramod and Rameshwar charging them under Section 302 IPC read with Section 34 IPC. Thereafter once again the charge was framed against Devi Dayal also on 28.07.1986. On 28.07.1986, when trial began, on the denial from charges by the aforesaid accused persons, the informant, Chhotey Lal was produced as PW-1 by the prosecution for examination on oath before the court. He firmly said about the involvement of Raj Pal, Ram Pal alongwith

Babu Ram and Lala Ram who were named by him in the FIR. He firmly denied the involvement of Pramod, Rameshwar and Devi Dayal and even stated not to know them. Therefore, the trial Judge exercising its power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. summoned the accused Lala Ram and Babu Ram, who were dropped out from the chargesheet by the Investigating Officer, for trial alongwith the chargesheeted accused persons. Consequent thereupon, the charge of committing offence under Section 302 IPC read with Section 34 IPC with regard to the murder of Ganga Ram with the other two named accused was framed against Babu Ram and Lala Ram on 11.03.1987.

8. The record reveals that during trial accused Pramod Kumar was throughout absconding from last 15 years, therefore his case was separated subjected to the proceedings under Section 299 of the Cr.P.C. Further on the report submitted by the concerned police station about the death of Devi Dayal, his case was abated. Likewise, receiving report about the death of Rameshwar and Raj Pal respectively the proceedings against them were also abated. Thereafter three surviving accused namely Lala Ram (A3), Babu Ram (A1) and Ram Pal (A2) were proceeded with and subjected to further trial.

9. The prosecution to prove its case against the accused-appellants produced eight witnesses and documents prepared during the process of investigation which were proved by their respective witnesses in the court during their examination. For easy reference, the respective witnesses and documents proved by them marked as Exhibits in the course of trial are given hereunder in the appended chart.

PW-1, Chhotey Lal, the informant	Proved his written report submitted in the Police Station Behta Gokul.	Exhibit Ka-1
Pw-2, Dr. Surendra Singh	Proved the post-mortem report, submitted after autopsy of dead body of deceased Ganga Ram	Exhibit Ka-2

The chargesheets were proved by him

10. The trial Judge after recording evidence of the aforesaid prosecution witnesses nos.1 to 8 called the accused-appellants to submit their explanation, if any, against the incriminating facts and circumstances proved on evidences against them under Section 313 of the Code of Criminal Procedure 1973. All the three accused-appellants stated the said evidences false and concocted to implicate them due to enmity. They proposed to produce witnesses in their defence. Consequent thereupon, two witnesses were examined namely, Sushil Bajpayee (DW-1) and Gaya Prasad (DW-2). Sushil Bajpayee supported the plea of alibi of A1 (Babu Ram) deposing that on the date, time and place of incident as reported by PW-1 in his written report and FIR dated 04.04.1985, Babu Ram was not at the spot of incident but was on duty. DW-2 Gaya Prasad stated on oath that he identified three unknown assailants in the District Jail Hardoi who committed the crime with Raj Pal. The Trial Judge evaluated the evidence of aforesaid defence witnesses but did not find the same credible, reliable and trustworthy therefore, discarded. The learned Trial Judge dealing with issues as to the trustworthiness and credibility of the prosecution witnesses held them reliable for recording conviction of the accused-appellants. Learned Trial Judge in his judgment has elaborately discussed both factual and legal aspects of the prosecution case and that of the defence case and held that the prosecution has been successful in proving its case with all certainty beyond all reasonable doubts. The learned Trial Judge thus reached at conclusion that the murder of Ganga Ram was committed by the accused persons named in the First Information Report and none else, therefore, recorded conviction against them for the offence punishable under Section 302 IPC with the aid of Section 34 IPC. Accordingly, awarded the punishment.

11. The learned counsel made submissions on behalf of their respective accused appellants separately. We heard their submissions anxiously devoting several days. We heard the learned Additional Government Advocate for the State and thereafter awarded opportunity of second round of submission in reply to the respective counsels of the appellants. We think it proper and necessary to give a short account of the arguments preferred before us by the learned counsels for the appellants and the respondent State. We perused the voluminous record so as to move ahead for decision on the moot issues involved in all the abovesaid three criminal appeals through a consolidated judgment.

12. Considering the facts and evidences led before the learned Trial Judge and argued before this court also the prosecution case involves four accused, named in the First Information Report dated 04.04.1985, Exhibit Ka-4. The named accused, four in number; are respectively Raj Pal (names), out of whom Raj Pal died during trial. The proceeding abated against him but so far as the role of Raj Pal alongwith other accused as participant in commission of the crime is concerned, it is necessary to be considered in context that accused-appellants are convicted under Section 302 IPC read with section 34 IPC. In other word they are held to have committed the homicide of Ganga Ram in furtherance of their common intention. We are of the opinion to examine and re-appreciate the evidence in view of the above so as to find out whether the prosecution has been successful in proving its case beyond all reasonable doubts. We have to consider also the effect of induction of three other persons as accused by the second Investigating officer J.N Singh namely Pramod Kumar, Rameshwar and Devi Dayal in the context that neither in the First Information Report they were named by the informant nor any of the prosecution witness named them as participant in commission of crime during trial.

Arguments submitted by learned Senior designated Sri Jyotindra Mishra, Advocate assisted by Sri Kapil Mishra , Advocate for and on behalf of the accused-appellant A-1, namely, Babu Ram

Contention as to Ingenuinity of the FIR

13. Learned counsel opened his arguments with condemnation of the First Information Report alleging the same ante-timed and ante-dated as the information received from PW-1 (the informant) Chhotey Lal was got reduced into writing after consultation with the Investigating Officer. The purpose behind this was illustrated by contending the fact that only Raj Pal and Ram Pal were charge-sheeted after investigation alongwith two others, namely, Pramod Kumar and Rameshawar in the chargesheet submitted by the Investigating Officer before the Magistrate concerned. The name of Babu Ram and Lala Ram was added on the consultation with informant and accordingly the First Information Report was styled and registered naming them in the written report and FIR which is ante-timed and ante-dated. He further contended that the statements of prosecution witnesses are suffering from serious discrepancies as to the fact, the weapon, namely, Gandasa (Chopper) allegedly held and used by A-1 in the course of commission of offence. PW-1 and PW-6 assigned to A1 the role in inflicting blows of Gandasa, whereas the PW-3 assigned the role to A-1 of having Lathi in his hand while committing the offence in question. Therefore, the witnesses loose their credibility by virtue of such kind of serious discrepancy in their narration as to the commission of offence by the accused-appellant, A-1.

Discrepancies in the testimony of eye witnesses and the reasons not to believe them.

14. Learned counsel further assailed the credibility and trustworthiness as well as the truthfulness of the witnesses on the ground that their oral statement as a witness of incident is not corroborated with the medical evidence. He pointed out towards the Post-mortem report of deceased Ganga Ram which referrers the injuries no.1 to 7 on his body, as lacerated injuries. A lacerated wound which in the opinion of doctors PW-2 who did autopsy on the dead body of Ganga Ram, would have been caused from an article having blunt edge. In the post-mortem report, Exhibit Ka-2, no incise wounds are reported on the body of deceased Ganga Ram, therefore, probability of using "Gandasa' by accused-appellant A-1 is ruled out. As such the witnesses PW-1 and PW-6 are falsely implicating the accused-appellant A-1, they are not reliable witnesses.

15. He has further submitted that PW-3, Vijay Pal has been declared hostile witness by the prosecution as he did not support the prosecution case against the accused-appellant A-1 of his having used "Gandasa' in the course of occurrence of killing Ganga Ram. He further drew attention towards the statement of PW-3 in cross examination by prosecution in Para-4 to the effect that he could not see anyone inflicting the blow of Gandasa because he was crying for rescue at that time. Further in his cross examination done on behalf of accused-appellant A-1, in Para 7 he again asserted that he could not see anyone inflicting the blow of Gandasa. He further assigned the role to the accused-appellant A-1 of having Lathi and using the same during the incident by inflicting blow of Lathi upon the body of Ganga Ram, (deceased).

Doubt as to the presence of PW-1 and PW-6 on the spot of incident

16. Learned counsel doubted upon the presence of PW-1 and PW-6 at the time of incident on 04.04.1985. He argued the said two witnesses were not present at the spot of incident and did not see anything and have only told a lie to poise their vengeance against the accused-appellant A-1 due to prolonged enmity.

Doubt as to PW-6 being injured witnesses and alleging him to be a planted witnesses

17. Learned defence counsel further argued that witness Saheb Lal (PW-6) is a planted witness. Neither he is an eye witness nor a witness injured in the occurrence. His injuries were self inflicted by him so as to masquerade him an eye witness present during the incident to falsely implicate the accused-appellant A-1. To fortify his argument, he emphasized on the fact that the medical examination of his alleged injuries were not made promptly but the same was procured in consultation with Investigating Officer on 05.04.1985 in District Hardoi. On the basis of above contention, learned counsel assailed the judgment and order of sentence impugned in this appeal that despite the fact that prosecution failed to prove its case by reliable witnesses, the learned Trial Judge committed serious error in appreciating the evidence.

Plea of alibi taken in defence of ''A1'

18. To prove his allegation against the truthness of prosecution case and particularly against the prosecution witnesses, learned defence counsel relied on the statement of DW-1, Sushil Bajpayee. The DW-1 has deposed that 'Babu Ram Verma' was on duty in the Board Examination during second inning on 04.04.1985, as such he gave evidence in support of plea of alibi so as to show the prosecution witnesses implicating falsely the accused-appellant A-1 who actually was not present on the spot of incident on 04.04.1985 at the relevant time of occurrence.

Arguments of learned counsel Sri Anil Kumar Pandey, Amicus Curiae for and on behalf of the accused-appellant A-2, namely, Ram Pal.

False implications

19. Learned Amicus Curiae assailed the judgment of conviction and sentence against Ram Pal on the ground that he is arraigned in the incident for his being brother of the co-accused Raj Pal (died during the trial). He emphatically relied on statement on oath of PW-1, Chottey Lal to argue that he himself admitted in the statement as to his running away to save his life from the spot. As such the learned Amicus Curiae argued that how one can claim himself an eye witness when he left the spot of incident under the fear of his life, when the occurrence just began to occur.

No evidence against A-2

20. He argued that nothing incriminating circumstance against A2 was stated to him when he was called under Section 313 Cr.P.C. to explain. He further emphasized that prosecution has not proposed and adduced evidence against the accused-appellant A-2 to prove his presence on the spot of crime with "lathi'. On bare perusal of question asked to him no weapon is assigned to the accused-appellant A-2 which he was alleged to hold and used in the course of commission of crime. He argued that A2 in his explanation to the question no.13 during examination under Section 313 Cr.P.C. has submitted that the informant, PW-1 and his family members were having enmity with him for the reason, he (accused-appellant A-2) has been a witness in prosecution against Ganga Ram with regard to murder of Digga, the father of accused-appellant A-1 (Babu Ram). The learned trial Judge has not appreciated the evidence correctly and on false implication though the prosecution has not been successful in proving it's case beyond all reasonable doubt, has convicted and sentenced the A2 in the matter of killing of Ganga Ram.

Arguments submitted by learned counsel Sri U.P. Singh, Advocate in Criminal Appeal No.655 of 2009, Lala Ram Vs. State of U.P. for and on behalf of accused-appellant A-3.

Objection as to reliability of prosecution witness of fact

21. Most of the arguments done by learned counsel are as to the falsity of the prosecution case and the prosecution witnesses being untrustworthy and not worthy of reliance for recording a conviction for the offence of murder of "Ganga Ram' are quite similar to that submitted in putting the case of accused-appellant A-1.

22. Learned Advocate Sri U.P. Singh further raised the issue of trustworthiness of the witness of the prosecution witnesses of fact, namely, PW-1, Chhotey Lal, PW-6, Saheb Lal on the ground of their being "Related' and "interested' as they are real brothers of deceased-Ganga Ram, whereas the prosecution witness no.3 is also related with the deceased-Ganga Ram being his cousin brother. On the basis of this contention, he submitted that in no way the said witnesses may be termed as independent witnesses or disinterested witnesses, rather they stand on the footings of interested witnesses having inimical relation with the accused-appellant, therefore, their evidence before the court required thorough care and caution while considered for reliance so as to record conviction against the accused but the learned Trial Judge failed to do so.

Absence of P.W-3 on spot

23. Learned counsel further argued that the informant, PW-1, Chottey Lal was not on the spot of incidence and the written report filed by him i.e. Exhibit Ka-1 was prepared and submitted in the police station with prior consultation and pre-plan to falsely implicate the accused-appellant A-3.

False implication

24. Learned counsel further drew attention of the court towards the fact which we ourselves have noticed in one of the preceding paras, that the investigating officer submitted the first chargesheet excluding Lala Ram and Babu Ram and a final report of no evidence was submitted with regard to them. Chargesheet was submitted dropping their names against rest of the named accused in the FIR namely Raj Pal and Ram Pal. He further submitted that during the investigation, name of two other persons came into light, namely, Pramod and Rameshwar, thereafter one Devi Dayal also came into picture. The case of Pramod could not proceed further in the trial as he was absconding from last 15 years, whereas Devi Dayal and Rameshwar died during trial, therefore, prosecution continued against three surviving accused persons. One of the named accused is Lala Ram (A-3). The conviction recorded not only the role of the accused-appellant but also his presence accompanied with other co-accused was necessary to have been proved, which the prosecution failed to do.

Eye witness's evidence is not in consonance with medical evidence

25. Learned counsel further argued that none of the prosecution witnesses are credible and genuine. The oral account given by the witnesses as to the manner and mode allegedly adopted by A-3 in committing the offence of killing the deceased "Ganga Ram' is not in consonance with the medical evidence. The weapon assigned to the accused-appellant A-3 is a gun whereas a country-made pistol in the hand of Raj Pal (died during trial). The oral account given by the prosecution witnesses as to the distance from the victim Ganga Ram of the accused having firearm his direction from the victim and relatively location of firearm wound on the body of the deceased are not in consonance with each other. The nature of wound does not support the eye witnesses' account of incident and, as such, the witnesses proved themselves not present on the spot of incidence and, therefore, they cannot be said to have seen anything on the spot. Like the learned counsel for the appellant A-1, learned counsel for the appellant A-3 also emphasized on the discrepancies that occurred in the statements of PW-1 and PW-2 as to the manner of attack and weapons said to be used by them. The declaration of hostility of PW-3 is also taken into consideration by learned counsel for the appellant A-3 illustrating inconsistencies between the prosecution witnesses with regard to the use of weapon. In doing so, learned counsel stepped into the capacity as counsel for A-1 with regard to use of Gandasa by him, otherwise the case of accused-appellant A-3 for whom the learned counsel appeared and argued is with regard to the use of gun in the couse of incident of killing Ganga Ram making firearm injury. He further stressed on the point of enmity which induced the informant PW-1 and other prosecution witnesses to falsely implicated the accused -applicant.

Ingenuinity of FIR

26. Learned counsel lastly argued that FIR is ingenuine. The incident is said to have happened on 6:00 p.m. on 04.04.1985. The police station was only two kilometers away from the place of incidence even then PW-1 and PW-6 reached the police station at 7:30 p.m. The delay is not explained. It is, therefore, the FIR is post-dated and ante timed, registered after consultation with the police officer. He summed up his arguments with the fact that there is a proved enmity between the informant, his family members and the accused-appellants. In view of the proved enmity, the witness who are not only relatives of the deceased Ganga Ram but also stands on the footings of interested witnesses, their evidence without proper scrutiny, care and caution and appreciation, could not be taken into reliance for recording conviction against the accused-appellants.

Defence witness not considered

27. In supporting his contentions as to the legal requirement of considering the testimony of defence witnesses and evidentiary value thereof. Learned counsel Sri U.P. Singh, Advocate referred the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in State of Haryana Vs. Ram Singh with Rai Saheb and Anr. Vs. State of Haryana reported in (2002) 2 SCC 426. When it is held elaborately in para 19, the evidence tendered by defence witnesses cannot always be termed to be a tainted one. The defence witness are entitled to equal treatment and equal respect as that of the prosecution. The issue of credibility and trustworthiness ought to be attributed with the defence witnesses at par with that of the prosecution witnesses.

Argument by Sri Chandra Shekhar Pandey, the learned Additional Government Advocate for and on behalf of the State:-

28. Learned A.G.A countered the objection and upon objurgation done by the respective counsels as to the weakness of the prosecution case, witnesses and evidences of the three appellants, he submitted categorically on each and every point. First of all, he clarified that the incident happened in course of the day, when there was sufficient day light at 6:00 p.m. in the evening of 04.04.1985, as the witnesses could have faced no difficulty in properly seeing the incident taking place and identify the accused. They did so, with all certainty. The informant named the accused in the FIR as they were well known to him as well as to other witnesses of fact. He further submitted that the First Information Report was lodged promptly by the police on receiving written complaint from the informant, Chhotey Lal (PW-1) on 7:30 p.m. He read over the relevant paras extracted from the statement recorded by the Trial Judge of PW-1 and other witnesses like Investigating Officer and Head Moharrir (respectively PW-8 and PW-5) as well as another witness of the fact, who was injured in the course of incident, (PW-6, Saheb Lal), to explain the gap of time between time of occurrence (6:00 p.m.) and lodging of the FIR in the Police Station (7:30 p.m.) while the distance of police station from the spot of incident was two kilometers. He submitted that the time spent by PW-1, the informant is well explained from the evidence as firstly he waited his family members and the village Chaukidar thereafter handing over the dead body of Ganga Ram, he proceeded along with his brother, PW-6 Saheb Lal towards the police station and reached there within a reasonable time. He bought plain paper from a nearby shop, wrote the report in his handwriting and then handed over the same to the officer on duty in the police station.

29. Learned A.G.A vehemently denied the argument as to the FIR being ante-timed and ante-dated, quoting the statement of Head Moharrir Sunder Lal (PW-5) that immediately after registering the First Information Report at 7:30 p.m., the special report was sent at 8:40 p.m. on the same day to the concerned Magistrate. He further quoted from the statement of PW-5 that after registering the First Information Report, the police party moved to the spot where the dead body of the deceased-Ganga Ram was lying near the bridge over Sharda Canal in village Karuna Kheda. At the spot necessary inquiry was done. The inquest proceeding before 'Panchas' of dead body was performed and prepared the inquest report. Quoting from Exhibit Ka-7 (the inquest report) he argued that the inquest proceeding started at 2130 hours (9:30 p.m. in the evening) and continued upto 2230 hours (10:30 p.m.) on the same day i.e. 04.04.1985, after the completion of inquest proceeding the dead body was sent for post-mortem. He further added that the Exhibit Ka-7 itself bears the Case Crime No.48 of 1985, under Section 302 IPC registered in Police Station Behta Gokul on 7:30 p.m. and even the memo along with the dead body, sending for the same to post-mortem, bears the said case crime number. All these documents are duly proved by PW-5 and PW-8 in the course of their examination before the Trial Judge and no cross-examination in this regard was done by the counsels for the defence, therefore, the statements with regard to registration of FIR, it's time and date stand un-controverted and even sufficiently corroborated by the proof of documents like Exhibit Ka-1, Exhibit Ka-4 etc. The aforesaid Exhibit Ka-1, Exhibit Ka-4, First Information report and Exhibit Ka-5, FIR and copy of the FIR had been furnished to the informant on the same day. Learned A.G.A. submitted that the arguments advanced by learned counsels for the appellants as to the FIR being ante-dated and ante-timed is baseless.

30. Learned Additional Government Advocate further submitted that the First Information Report was lodged promptly and quickly by the informant, Chhotey Lal (PW-1) clearly naming the accused persons who were four in number, namely, Raj Pal, Lala Ram, Ram Pal and Babu Ram and no one else in their aid in the commission of offence. The first Investigating Officer, PW-8, SI, Ram Ruchi Arya had promptly registered the FIR on the basis of written report then there was no room for any consultation or dictation on the part of the investigating officer on duty from the stage of lodging of the FIR up to the stage of sending the dead body of deceased-Ganga Ram for postmortem. All the proceedings under investigation were done by Ram Ruchi Arya and thereafter when the investigation was taken over by the S.H.O. himself namely J.N. Singh. He on his own when submitted chargesheet arraigned Ram Pal and Raj Pal only and excluded the named accused persons Babu Ram and Lala Ram. Furthermore by way of second charge sheet, he added the names of Pramod and Rameshwar while they were never named by the informant or any other witness of fact during the investigation. He further added the name of Devi Dayal whose name was also not given in the first information report nor disclosed by any witnesses of fact during the investigation. The actual culprits named by the informant could only be arraigned after the examination of PW-1, the informant, Chhotelal before the Trial Judge, when the witness during his examination in chief gave the whole account of the incident took the name of Lala Ram and Babu Ram involved in the incident as reported by him on 04.04.1985 at 7:30 p.m. upon which the FIR was registered, the learned Trial Judge summoned both aforesaid persons for trial along with other accused already chargesheeted by the second investigating officer. Charges were framed afresh against the summoned accused Lala Ram and Babu Ram and evidence were recorded de novo by the Trial Judge.

31. Learned A.G.A submitted that when the prosecution case was clearly confined with the role of four accused, named in the written report, (Exhibit Ka-1) and in the FIR registered thereupon as (Exhibit Ka-4), then induction of Pramod Kumar, Rameshwar and Devi Dayal was done with the malafide on the part of second Investigating Officer with ulterior motive, however, second Investigating Officer could not be traced out for examination before the court and the chargesheet submitted by him was proved in the court by the investigating officer, Ruchi Ram Arya, PW-8.

32. Learned A.G.A. further submitted that the presence, the role assigned to the respective accused, the weapons used by them, the time of occurrence and the presence of ocular witnesses, all are proved by the witness of facts, PW-1, PW-3 and PW-6 without any contradiction, inconsistency and doubt. Further, the narration of the factual aspect of the incident is stated by the witnesses PW-1, PW-3 and PW-6, finds support with the independent corroborative evidence like post-mortem report (Exhibit Ka-2), injury report of PW -6 (Exhibit ka-3), site plan (Exhibit Ka-15) and other formal witnesses.

33. Countering the arguments of learned counsel for the appellant A-1 (Baburam) learned A.G.A submitted that the doubt raised as to the weapon (Gandasa) used by the accused Babu Ram in the course of the commission of the incident is proved by the witness of fact, namely, PW-1 and PW-6. Moreover, the inquest report, Exhibit Ka-7 also supports as during the enquiry of the dead body by the police officer and other witnesses of inquest there were incised wounds on the body of deceased-Ganga Ram.

34. Learned A.G.A. further submitted that so far as the presence of the A-1 on spot in the course of the occurrence is concerned, even the witness PW-3, Vijay Pal, who was declared hostile by the prosecution, has stated about his presence and involvement in the commission of offence, though the weapon used by him is differently stated as "Lathi'.

35. Learned A.G.A further submitted on the objection as to the non-examination of one of the named witness "Kadhiley' by the prosecution. He argued that it is the wisdom and discretion of the prosecution to propose by what witness and evidence it has to prove the case. He further drew attention towards the provision of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 Section 134 of the Act emphasizes on quality of the witness and not upon the quantity of witnesses. If the prosecution has no trust upon the bonafide of witnesses then it is not binding upon it to produce such witness for examination before the court. It is proved by evidence of PW-1 that the said "Kadhiley' was in the company of accused-appellants, therefore, he was not supposed to give a true and real account of incident, if proposed to be examined before the court in trial. As such, the argument of non examination of "Kadhiley' as witness of prosecution is of no avail.

36. Learned A.G.A. concluded his argument saying that prosecution has been successful in proving its case on the basis of statement of witnesses, the materials produced and proved before the court beyond all reasonable doubts, therefore, there was sufficient evidence and corroborating materials before the Trial Judge for recording conviction of the named accused in the first information report, lodged by the informant, PW-1, for the offence of murder of Ganga Ram punishable under Section 302 IPC with the aid of Section 34 IPC. Accordingly sentence of life imprisonment and fine vide judgment dated 03.02.2009 is just and proper. As such there is no error of fact or law in the judgment and the same deserves to be confirmed.

37. With the conclusion of his argument, the learned A.G.A. cited case laws, he relies, in supporting his contentions. Learned A.G.A. gave reference of judgement of Hon'ble Apex Court in Bharwada Bhoginbhai Hirjibhai Vs. State of Gujarat (1983) 3 SCC 217. Though facts of the case were with regard to sexual harassment by the accused-appellants of two minor girls, but the learned A.G.A. cited the case carving out the general principle laid down by their Lordships of the Supreme Court on minor inconsistencies in and between the statements of witnesses of fact. The relevant reasons as enumerated contained in Para-5 of the judgment. It is held as under:-

"(1) By and large a witness cannot be expected to possess a photographic memory and to recall the details of an incident. It is not as if a video tape is replayed on the mental screen.

(2) Ordinarily it so happens that a witness is overtaken by events. The witness could not have anticipated the occurrence which so often has an element of surprised. The mental faculties therefore cannot be expected to be attuned to absorb the details.

(3) The powers of observation differ from person to person. What one may notice, another may not. An object or movement might emboss its image on one person's mind, whereas it might go unnoticed on the part of another.

(4) By and large people cannot accurately recall a conversation and reproduce the very words used by them or heard by them. They can only recall the main purport of the conversation. It is unrealistic to expect a witness to be a human tape-recorder.

(5) In regard to exact time of an incident, or the time duration of an occurrence, usually, people make their estimates by guess-work on the spur of the moment at the time of interrogation. And one cannot expect people to make very precise or reliable estimates in such matters. Again, it depends on the time-sense of individuals which varies from person to person.

(6) Ordinarily a witness cannot be expected to recall accurately the sequence of events which takes place in rapid succession or in a short time span. A witness is liable to get confused, or mixed up when interrogated later on.

(7) A witness, though wholly truthful, is liable to be overawed by the court atmosphere and the piercing cross-examination made by counsel and out of nervousness mix up facts, get confused regarding sequence of events, or fill up details from imagination on the spur of the moment. The sub-conscious mind of the witness sometimes so operates on account of the fear of looking foolish or being disbelieved though the witness is giving a truthful and honest account of the occurrence witnessed by him -- Perhaps it is a sort of a psychological defence mechanism activated on the spur of the moment."

38. Learned A.G.A further posed reliance in this regard on Shivaji Sahab Rao Bobade Vs. State of Maharashtra (1973) 2 SCC 793 (801) para 8, which reads as under:-

"8. Now to the facts. The scene of murder is rural, the witnesses to the case are rustics and so their behavioural pattern and perceptive habits have to be judged as such. The too sophisticated approaches familiar in courts based on unreal assumptions about human conduct cannot obviously be applied to those given to the lethargic ways of our villages. When scanning the evidence of the various witnesses we have to inform ourselves that variances on the fringes, discrepancies in details, contradictions in narrations and embellishments in inessential parts cannot militate against the veracity of the core of the testimony provided there is the impress of truth and conformity to probability in the substantial fabric of testimony delivered. The learned Sessions Judge has at some length dissected the evidence, spun out contradictions and unnatural conduct, and tested with precision the time and sequence of the events connected with the crime, all on the touchstone of the medical evidence and the post-mortem certificate. Certainly, the court which has seen the witnesses depose, has a great advantage over the appellate Judge who reads the recorded evidence in cold print, and regard must be had to this advantage enjoyed by the trial Judge of observing the demeanour and delivery, of reading the straightforwardness and doubtful candour, rustic naivete and clever equivocation, manipulated conformity and ingenious unveracity of persons who swear to the facts before him. Nevertheless, where a Judge draws his conclusions not so much on the directness or dubiety of the witness while on oath but upon general probabilities and on expert evidence, the court of appeal is in as good a position to assess or arrive at legitimate conclusions as the Court of first instance. Nor can we make a fetish of the trial Judge's psychic insight."

He also relied on Mahendra Vs. State of Tamil Nadu (2019) 8 SCC 359. He further cited para 12.4 from the judgment of Apex Court in State of Karnataka Vs. Savarnamma (2015) 1 SCC 323 arguing the rule of benefit of doubt, thus reads as under:-

"12.4. State of Haryana v. Bhagirath [(1999) 5 SCC 96 : 1999 SCC (Cri) 658] : (SCC pp. 100-01, paras 8-11)

"8. It is nearly impossible in any criminal trial to prove all the elements with a scientific precision. A criminal court could be convinced of the guilt only beyond the range of a reasonable doubt. Of course, the expression ''reasonable doubt' is incapable of definition. Modern thinking is in favour of the view that proof beyond a reasonable doubt is the same as proof which affords moral certainty to the Judge.

9. Francis Wharton, a celebrated writer on criminal law in the United States has quoted from judicial pronouncements in his book Wharton's Criminal Evidence (at p. 31, Vol. 1 of the 12th Edn.) as follows:

''It is difficult to define the phrase "reasonable doubt". However, in all criminal cases a careful explanation of the term ought to be given. A definition often quoted or followed is that given by Chief Justice Shaw in the Webster case [Commonwealth v. Webster, 5 Cush 295 : 59 Mass 295 (1850)] . He says: "It is not mere possible doubt, because everything relating to human affairs and depending upon moral evidence is open to some possible or imaginary doubt. It is that state of the case which, after the entire comparison and consideration of all the evidence, leaves the minds of the jurors in that consideration that they cannot say they feel an abiding conviction to a moral certainty of the truth of the charge."'

10. In the treatise The Law of Criminal Evidence authored by H.C. Underhill it is stated (at p. 34, Vol. 1 of the 5th Edn.) thus:

''The doubt to be reasonable must be such a one as an honest, sensible and fair-minded man might, with reason, entertain consistent with a conscientious desire to ascertain the truth. An honestly entertained doubt of guilt is a reasonable doubt. A vague conjecture or an inference of the possibility of the innocence of the accused is not a reasonable doubt. A reasonable doubt is one which arises from a consideration of all the evidence in a fair and reasonable way. There must be a candid consideration of all the evidence and if, after this candid consideration is had by the jurors, there remains in the minds a conviction of the guilt of the accused, then there is no room for a reasonable doubt.'

11. In Shivaji Sahabrao Bobade v. State of Maharashtra [(1973) 2 SCC 793 : 1973 SCC (Cri) 1033 : (1974) 1 SCR 489] this Court adopted the same approach to the principle of benefit of doubt and struck a note of caution that the dangers of exaggerated devotion to the rule of benefit of doubt at the expense of social defence demand special emphasis in the contemporary context of escalating crime and escape. This Court further said: (SCC p. 799, para 6)

''6. ... The judicial instrument has a public accountability. The cherished principles or golden thread of proof beyond reasonable doubt which runs through the web of our law should not be stretched morbidly to embrace every hunch, hesitancy and degree of doubt.'"

39. On point of defective investigation that for certain defect in investigation the accused cannot be acquitted, learned A.G.A. relied on para 10, 11 and 12 of Hema Vs. State through Inspector General of Police AIR 2013 SC 1000 (1004):-

"10. It is settled law that not only fair trial, but fair investigation is also part of the constitutional rights guaranteed under Articles 20 and 21 of the Constitution of India. Accordingly, investigation must be fair, transparent and judicious and it is the immediate requirement of the rule of law. As observed by this Court in Babubhai v. State of Gujarat [(2010) 12 SCC 254 : (2011) 1 SCC (Cri) 336] the investigating officer cannot be permitted to conduct an investigation in a tainted and biased manner. It was further observed that where non-interference of the court would ultimately result in failure of justice, the court must interfere. Though reliance was placed on the above decision in Babubhai case [(2010) 12 SCC 254 : (2011) 1 SCC (Cri) 336] by the appellant, it is not in dispute that in that case, the High Court has concluded by giving detailed reasons that the investigation was totally one-sided based on mala fides. Further, in that case, the charge-sheets filed by the investigating agency in both the cases were against the same set of accused. This was not the situation in the case on hand. Though the State Crime Branch initiated investigation, subsequently, the same was taken over by CBI considering the volume and importance of the offence.

11. In this regard, Mr Raval, learned ASG by drawing our attention to the relevant provisions of the Delhi Special Police Establishment Act, 1946 submitted that the course adopted by CBI is, undoubtedly, within the ambit of the said Act and legally sustainable.

12. Section 5 of the said Act speaks about extension of powers and jurisdiction of special police establishment to other areas. Section 5 of the Act is relevant for our purpose which reads as under:

"5.Extension of powers and jurisdiction of special police establishment to other areas.--(1) The Central Government may by order extend to any area (including Railway areas), in a State, not being a Union Territory the powers and jurisdiction of members of the Delhi Special Police Establishment for the investigation of any offences or classes of offences specified in a notification under Section 3.

(2) When by an order under sub-section (1) the powers and jurisdiction of members of the said police establishment are extended to any such area, a member thereof may, subject to any orders which the Central Government may make in this behalf, discharge the functions of a police officer in that area and shall, while so discharging such functions, be deemed to be a member of a police force of that area and be vested with the powers, functions and privileges and be subject to the liabilities of a police officer belonging to that police station.

(3) Where any such order under sub-section (1) is made in relation to any area, then, without prejudice to the provisions of sub-section (2) any member of the Delhi Special Police Establishment of or above the rank of Sub-Inspector may subject to any orders which the Central Government may make in this behalf, exercise the powers of the officer in charge of a police station in that area and when so exercising such powers, shall be deemed to be an officer in charge of a police station discharging the functions of such an officer within the limits of his station."

To counter the argument of defence with regard to injury wounds and weapon, learned A.G.A. relied on Sukhdeep Singh Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh & Anr. (2010) 9 SCC 177 wherein Honorable Supreme Court has held that it would be impossible for any witness to give a categorized statement as to the posture that deceased or assailants were holding at the time when firing incident happened. He further relied on Mallikarjun Vs. State of Karnataka (2019) 8 SCC 359 to stress the contention that medical evidence when may cast doubt on the ocular testimony would prevail unless medical evidence rules out such possibility of injury being caused by in the manner stated by the prosecution. He relied on Dinesh Yadav vs State of Jharkhand (2017) 174 ADC 76 as the defence did not examine the investigating officer with regard to lacerated wounds.

40. After hearing the learned counsels for the respective appellants, learned Additional Government Advocate for the State and even the arguments advanced in reply to the arguments of learned A.G.A., we in course of the hearing the arguments traversed through the evidences, both oral and documentary brought before the court with regard to the material facts as to the involvement and role of the accused-appellants have formulated the following two points of determination as to reach at conclusion for decision in the appeal, which are as follows:

(i) Whether the prosecution has been successful in proving its case against the accused, named in the FIR dated 04.04.1985 beyond all reasonable doubts?

(ii) Whether the accused-appellants are equally liable jointly for the conviction under section 302 IPC with regard to the killing of Ganga Ram in the incident occurred on 04.04.1985, as reported in the FIR dated 04.04.1985 irrespective of their specific role manner of involvement and weapons assigned to them by prosecution.

Date, time and place of the incident

41. The written report submitted by the informant (PW-1) and proved before the Trial Judge as Exhibit Ka-1 itself mentions the date of incident on 04.04.1985 in the evening at 6:00 p.m. when the deceased "Ganga Ram' along with his younger brother namely Chhotelal (is found the PW-1) and Saheblal (PW-6) after sowing in their field seeds of sugarcane and just reached the bridge over Sharda Canal on the way to their home. Further during examination on oath on 20.12.1986 PW-1 stated that the said bridge over Sharda Canal is situated from their house in Behta Gokul in west at about one and a half kilometers. He further stated the bridge is in the village Karauna Kheda near the village "Behta Gokul' PW-1 further clarified in his statement that their field from where after sowing the sugarcane seeds they were returning back home, is known as "Jhabra' and is far from the said bridge about one and half "furlong' in north west direction (generally furlong is used for measuring distance, especially on a horse racing track; one eighth of a mile; 220 yards or 201 meter). The site map prepared and proved in the court (Exhibit Ka-15) by the investigating officer (PW-8) is relevant to exactly understand the location. In the said map the way leading to the home village of deceased Ganga Ram and his brothers (PW-1 and PW-6) passing through the bridge over Sharda Canal in a direction from east-west. The bridge is shown lying over the canal running from north to south direction. As such the "Bridge' has two side boundary one at north and another at south. The place of incident is shown about to the North boundary wall of the bridge at it's western end marked as A-1.

42. On reversion to the statement of PW-1, again, we found him stating in para-14 during his cross examination on 29.7.1987 the sides of the bridge over the canal, in north and south both are bounded with wall of about 4-5 feets in height. We were coming to the bridge from west direction through the road. When we reached at the western end of the bridge, the accused were on the north of the said boundary wall of the bridge, and there was no water in the canal. The place where the accused sat hidden, the boundary wall on the road side foot path over the bridge on the canal was about 4-5 feet in height. That place was not visible from the road through which we were coming. This portion of statement extracted out from the cross examination is fully corroborated with the independent corroborative evidence on record, the Exhibit Ka-15, duly proved by the investigating officer, PW-8.

43. The statement of PW-1 is further supported from the statement of another eye witness PW-6 Saheb Lal who is injured also in the course of same incident. Undoubtedly PW-6 is the brother of the deceased victim of incident, "Ganga Ram' and the informant Chhotelal (PW-1), therefore, at this juncture of discussion we would not go into the evidentiary value of his deposition before the court, and will confine ourselves to the fact proved by him. He stated in his examination-in-chief before the Trial Judge on 6.1.1988. At the time of recording his statement he was 20 years of age. On the date of incident which occurred about 2 years and 8 months ago the witness was approximately 17 years of age. Without any inconsistency he stated, on the day of incident, I was coming back to home from our field known as "Jhabra' after sowing the sugarcane seeds therein. I was accompanied with my brothers "Ganga Ram' (deceased) and Chhotelal (PW-1). At about 6:00 p.m., when we reached at the Bridge over canal near the village "Karauna Kheda', the accused Lala Ram, Babu Ram, Raj Pal and Ram Pal, popped out from their hiding behind the boundary wall of the bridge and intercepted us armed with their respective weapons. As such PW-6 had also proved the date, time and place as stated by PW-1 and reported by him in the written report Exhibit Ka-1 on 04.04.1985 submitted in Police Station - Behta Gokul.

44. Another witness of fact examined as PW-3 in the trial is cousin brother of the deceased Ganga Ram and the witnesses PW-1 and PW-6, PW-3, Vijay Pal, though declared hostile by the prosecution itself, but what he has stated about the date, time and place of incident is important. We shall discuss further the evidentiary value of the deposition made before the trial Judge during his examination PW-3 in his statement recorded on 02.12.1987 stated in para-2, "When I was coming on my bullock cart towards the bridge and was 15-20 steps away from the western end of the bridge, "Ganga Ram' (deceased), Chhotelal and Saheblal were also ahead of me, proceeding towards the bridge. The accused persons Lala Ram, Raj Pal, Babu Ram and Ram Pal popped out from behind the northern boundary wall of the bridge and attacked over Ganga Ram with their respective weapons. During his cross-examination by defence counsel PW-3 affirms his above referred statement in para-7. He stated the canal was devoid of water. I did not see the accused sitting hidden behind the wall, rather saw them popping out therefrom. No doubt this witness also proved the date, time and place of occurrence in full consistency with the earlier witness PW-1 and PW-6.

45. Lastly on this point the reference of inquest report proved in the court by the Investigating Officer (Exhibit Ka-7). In the inquest report, under the head "the name of village in which the body was found' it is filled in before the witnesses and signed by them, "in the territorial limit of village Behta Gokul" about 2 k.m. away from Police Station Behta Gokul. The dead body was then mentioned to have been lifted from bridge over the canal within the limit of village Behta Gokul to be sent for post-mortem. As per the discussions made above, from the statements of the witnesses it comes out that the incident of killing by the accused persons of Ganga Ram occurred on 04.04.1985 at about 6:00 p.m. at the western end of the bridge over Sharda Canal near village Karauna Kheda lying within the territorial limit of village Behta Gokul and 2 k.m. away from the Police Station of Behta Gokul. The incident took place near the northern boundary wall of the bridge abutting to the road side path of the bridge at it's western end.

Sufficiency of light

46. It was evening when at about 6:00 p.m. the incident took place. The witness PW-3 and PW-6 both were questioned about the sufficiency of light at that time to see the things. Both the witnesses firmly stated that there was sufficient light and it is wrong to say that it was dark when the incident occurred. They boldly denied that at the time of incident it was dark due to sunset. We do not find any improbability in the aforesaid statement as to the sufficiency of light at 6:00 p.m. on 04.04.1985 when the incident took place. April is the beginning of summer season when the days are comparatively longer than in it's preceding months. Generally the time of sun set in April is after 6:30 p.m. It does not mean that immediately after sun set darkness falls as technically it takes around 70-100 minutes in accordance with location proceeding to north to get complete darkness. Sunset is a period when only a part of the Sun and not all the sun is below the horizon. By reason of this astronomical phenomenon, up to sunset time and even after that for a considerable long period there is twilight wherein things are visible. We are therefore fully convinced with the statement of all the three witnesses viz. PW-1, PW-3 and PW-6 that at about 6:00 p.m. in evening of 04.04.1985 when the incident occurred there was sufficient light to make things visible to the witnesses.

Moreover, the witnesses were very well aware with the accused persons, the reasons being that two of them namely Ram Pal and Raj Pal were native villagers, whereas two others namely Babu Ram and Lala Ram were not only their relative but also inimical to the deceased and well known to them.

The manner and mode adopted and weapon used in committing the offence by the accused-appellant

47. It would be unnecessary reiteration of the narration of the incident as informed to the police through the written report Exhibit Ka-1, therefore, we think it proper to discuss the relevant portions of statement of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 stating the manner and mode wherein the accused attacked over "Ganga Ram' with their respective weapon as assigned to them by the informant. Earlier we have considered and discussed the statement of witness as to the date, time and place of occurrence and found settled that Ganga Ram (deceased) alongwith his brother PW-1 and PW-6 (Chhotelal and Saheblal) after sowing their field with seeds of sugarcane was on the way to his home in village Behta Gokul, when he reached at the western end of bridge on their way over Sharda Canal, the accused persons who were hiding behind the northern boundary wall abutting the road side path of the canal, popped out therefrom along with their arms, intercepted him and attacked fatally. Now upon going through the statements of the witnesses and to scrutinizing whether the witnesses have consistently and convincingly deposed before the court about manner and mode wherein the accused with their respective weapon assigned to them by the informant PW-1 has attacked Ganga Ram because of which he succumbed to death.

48. In Exhibit Ka-1 and FIR (Exhibit Ka-4) the weapon assigned to the accused Raj Pal (died during trial) is a country made pistol (Tamancha), the accused-appellant A-3 (Lala Ram) with gun, the accused-appellant A2 (Babu Ram) with "Gandasa' (Chopper) and the accused appellant A-1 (Rampal) with a lathi (stick). PW-1 in his statement during examination-in-chief dated 20.8.1986 and against his examination-in-chief recorded afresh after the trial court summoned the accused appellant A-2 and A-3 for trial under Section 319 of the Criminal Procedure Code 1973, stated firmly that Raj Pal was armed with country made pistol A-3 with gun, A-2 with Gandasa and A-1 with a lathi when they popped out from behind the wall for intercepting the victim (deceased). In para 7 of the statement in chief dated 20.12.1986 PW-1, stated that coming out from where they were hiding, accused shouted and asked to stop and A-3 (Lala Ram) fired on "Ganga Ram' from his gun and Raj Pal fired from his country made pistol over Ganga Ram. Ganga Ram when fell down on the ground unconscious then A-2 and A-1 (Babu Ram and Ram Pal) began to inflict blows over the body of Ganga Ram with their respective weapons namely Gandasa and Lathi. PW-6, Saheblal when swoop in to save Ganga Ram towards accused person he was also beaten by A-1 (Ram Pal) with Lathi due to which he was severely injured. On the hue and cry made by PW-1 and PW-6 for their rescue other witnesses namely Vijay Pal (PW-3) who was coming on his bullock-cart along with "Kadhiley' also saw the incident and raised alarm, on this, the accused "Raj Pal' fled away towards east and rest of them towards west along with their respective weapons. When the witnesses reached upto the place where Ganga Ram was lying on ground, injured who died because of excessive bleeding. The statement accounting the incident in question is further subjected to cross-examination on 29.3.1987. In para-20, PW-1, stated, when intercepted by accused persons (as described earlier in preceding paras) I had seen the weapons held by them in their hands. Ganga Ram did not tried to run away but I ran away from the spot and Saheblal stayed there, first fire on Ganga Ram was done just after intercepting him within one minute. In quick succession thereto, Raj Pal made second fire upon Ganga Ram. Ganga Ram on sustaining two firearm injuries and fell down on the ground soon.. Thereafter, Lala Ram (A-3) fired shot from his gun upon Ganga Ram. Ganga Ram was injured with three shots of firearms. First shot from fire arm injured Ganga Ram below the mandible on left side of neck. Second shot made by Raj Pal caused injury on chest, third fire made by A-3 (Lala Ram) caused injury on the back of head of Ganga Ram while he was lying collapsed on ground A-3 made the fire from a distance of 3 to 4 steps in north from the head of Ganga Ram lying collapsed on the ground. Ganga Ram when A-3 made first fire upon him was standing facing east and the nozel of the gun held by A-3 pointed towards him was 3 to 4 steps away Raj Pal fired on Ganga Ram standing in north direction from him he stood facing east and nozzle of Raj Pal's pistol for 3 to 4 steps away from his chest.

49. About the roles of A-2 (Babu Ram) and A-1 (Ram Pal) PW-1 stated in his cross examination done by the learned defence counsel that when Ganga Ram fell on ground sustaining fire arm injuries, A-2 and A-1 began to inflict blows on Ganga Ram with lathi over his body. He stated that since at that time he (PW-1) was crying and weeping he could not seen on which part of Ganga Ram's body the blow of Gandasa and lathi were made by these two accused, but he saw the accused A-2 blowing Gandasa standing towards head of Ganga Ram which A-1 was blowing lathi over him standing at a distance of about two feet from his legs. For himself, PW-1 stated, "I was standing 4-5 steps away in west direction from Ganga Ram-PW-6 (Saheblal) during his examination-in-chief recorded by the Trial Judge on 6.1.1988 stated about the manner, mode and weapon used in the crime that, when the accused popped out from their place of hiding and intercepted Ganga Ram along with him and PW-1, A-3 was armed with a gun, Rajpal was with country made pistol, A-2 was with a "Gandasa' and A-1 was with a lathi. A-3 asked Ganga Ram to halt and simultaneously both of them fired at him from their respective fire arms. A-2 and A-1 attacked from their respective weapons when the injured Ganga Ram fell on the ground. The PW-6 further stated when he swooped in to save Ganga Ram. A-1 he also sustained lathi blows and upon listening the hue and cry for rescue, witnesses Vijay Pal and Kadhiley also came on spot who saw the incident. After committing the crime accused Raj Pal fled away from the spot towards east while rest of them towards west, Ganga Ram was lying dead on the spot. In para-7 of his statement PW-6 stated while cross-examined, Ganga Ram was just 1 or 2 steps ahead of me when the accused intercepted him at the spot of incident. In para 8 this witness firmly stated again that A-1 hit him with lathi. Whereas A-2 inflicted 6 to 7 blow of Gandasa on the head of Ganga Ram. In para 8 when again cross-examined about his injury sustained during the incident he replied I got contusion with bluish mark which persisted for about 15 days approximately.

50. PW-6 was also cross-examined about the direction of and distance between accused and Ganga Ram (deceased) during the incident. He stated when A-3 made first fire Ganga Ram was facing east and A-3 himself was near Ganga Ram in his north side. When fire was made by Raj Pal at that time also Ganga Ram was facing east. Both the fires made by Raj Pal over Ganga Ram was from north of Ganga Ram.

51. PW-3 Vijaypal is also the witness of fact for whom PW-1 Chhotelal has stated in his examination that he along with another villager "Kadhiley', was coming on his bullock cart and when they heard the cries made for rescue and blast of fire they ran towards the spot. He stated both PW-3 and Kadhiley saw the incident. In para-20 PW-3 stated in his cross-examination about his position at the spot of incident from where both of them were watching the incident. He stated, when Ram Pal (A-1) was inflicting blows of lathi over Ganga Ram, Babu Ram (A-2) was standing towards the head of Ganga Ram, I was about four steps away towards west from Ganga Ram, "Kadhiley' was standing about 50 steps away towards south and Vijay Pal was standing about 15 steps away from me towards west. In the context of this position of the witness PW-3, we considered the oral account of the incident deposed before the trial Judge recorded on 21.12.1987. PW-3 in his examination-in-chief reiterated the weapons assigned to the accused A-2 and A-3 as well as to Raj Pal but for the weapon (Gandasa) assigned to A-1, he deviates from the statement of PW-1, and PW-6. He stated, A-1 (Babu Ram) was holding Lathi. He firmly stood with the FIR version that A-3 and Raj Pal fired on Ganga Ram while A-2 (Rampal) and A-1 hit him with lathi when he fell down on the ground on sustaining fire arm injuries. The witness PW-3 further confirmed the witness of the incident in addition to him to "Kadhiley' only by saying that no one else saw the commission of incident. PW-3 firmly stood with the statement of PW-1 and PW-6 as to the fact that after commission of crime accused Raj Pal fled away towards east whereas rest of them towards west and when they reached near Ganga Ram he was lying dead on the spot. The prosecution declared PW-3, it's hostile witness and opted to cross-examine him. During cross-examination PW-3 firmly stood with the statements of PW-1 and PW-6 with regard to role and weapon of crime assigned to A-3 and Raj Pal by saying that first fire of Ganga Ram was made by A-3 (Lalaram) at that time Ganga Ram was standing, he could not see if the bullet struck to Ganga Ram, but after that fire Ganga Ram fell on the ground at the spot. Just thereafter second fire was made by Raj Pal when Ganga Ram was lying on the ground. Total three fires were made. With regard to the role and weapon assigned to the rest of the two accused A-1 and A-2 (respectively Gandasa and lathi) when he was cross-examined he replied to the prosecution that he did not see any one inflicting blow of gandasa because at that time he was crying for rescue. He further stated about his statement recorded by the Investigating Officer that A-1 was holding Gandasa in his hand, he replied with quite absurdity, if it is written in my statement then I might have spoken this to him (I.O) I do not remember, Babu Ram whether hit Ganga Ram with lathi and Gandasa. However, PW-3 when cross-examined by learned counsel for defence, on the same point he replied in para-7 of his statement, "I did not see any one beating Ganga Ram with "Gandasa'. He stood firmly with the statement as to the role of Raj Pal and A-3, and number of fires made by them on Ganga Ram. He further supported the statement of Saheb Lal (PW-6) that he (PW-3) was 2-3 steps behind the PW-1 and PW-6. He was at 15-20 steps away towards east from the accused-assailants.

52. We are now summing up the statements of the three witnesses PW-1, PW-3 and PW-6 discussed hereinabove as to the mode, manner, weapon held and used by the accused appellants in the commission of incident and their specific roles while acting in consortium during the occurrence. We reached at the finding, (i) the witnesses with all certainty without any inconsistency or anomaly have established that all the accused Lala Ram (A-3) Babu Ram (A-1) Ram Pal (A-2) and Rajpal sat hidden behind the north side of boundary wall of road side patri of Bridge over Sharda Canal lying on the way, heading from west to east, toward the native village of deceased-Ganga Ram namely village Behta Gokul, the deceased Ganga Ram who was coming along with his brothers PW-1 & PW-6 from his field after sowing sugarcanes in their field known as "Jhabra' situated in west. (ii) All the accused popped out from their place of hiding as and when Ganga Ram reached along with his brothers (PW-1 and PW-6) near the western end of the Bridge towards patri abutting to the northern boundary of the bridge, and asked him to halt. (iii) Simultaneously Lala Ram made first fire from his gun over Ganga Ram Rajpal made second fire which respectively hit him below the mandible on the neck and on chest of the Ganga Ram. Ganga Ram on sustaining firearm injuries collapsed on spot. When attacked by the aforesaid two accused Ganga Ram stood facing east while the accused duo were towards north of him about 3-4 steps away. (iv) When Ganga Ram collapsed on the ground Raj Pal made another shot which injured him behind his head. (v) Ram Pal hit PW-6 Saheb Lal with lathi when he swooped in to save Ganga Ram and thus PW-6 got contusion and blow mark over his arm and elbow. (vi) According to PW-1 and PW-6 Babu Ram inflicted the blow of Gandasa after Ganga Ram collapsed on ground sustaining fire arm injury. Babu Ram was blowing Gandasa over Ganga Ram standing towards his head, while Rampal was inflicting blow of lathi standing towards his legs. (vii) According to PW-3, Rampal hit Ganga Ram from lathi when he collapsed on sustaining fire arm injuries. He stated Babu Ram also gave several blows over the body of Ganga Ram after he collapsed on ground.

53. The prosecution has declared PW-3, it's hostile witness because he did not support the role assigned by it to the A-1 of having "Gandasa' from which he inflicted blows upon the body of Ganga Ram when he collapsed on ground. When we go through the statement of PW-3 we found it versatile in nature and intent only to the extent of weapon assigned to A-2 only. For rest of the prosecution version as to the date, time, place of incident, participation of accused persons in the commission of crime the role and weapon used in the commission of crime by the accused, the witness PW-3 is in full consistency with other witness PW-1 and PW-6. Since, the common law principle, "falsus in uno falsus in omnibus' do not apply in Indian Law of Evidence, therefore, the statement of PW-3 is not liable to be discarded as a whole, moreover the statement of PW-3 has not confidently and firmly denied the fact of holding "Gandasa' by A-1 but states that he could not see him or anyone else armed with Gandasa because at the time of incident he was crying for help. As such his denial of the fact of Babu Ram armed with Gandasa and beating Ganga Ram when he collapsed on ground is not firm, confident and full hearted. Leaving the fact of "Gandasa' allegedto have been used by A-1 in the course of commission of crime to be settled on the basis of other independent corroborative evidence, we, reach at finding with all certainty that undoubtedly A-1 was present througout the incident with rest of the named accused person, moreover, the defence has also not taken a firm stand of his absence on the spot and have argued as to his role and participation in crime with lathi and not with Gandasa, as such the presence of accused at the spot of crime in the course of commission of offence along with other accused is a proven fact on evidence led by prosecution beyond all reasonable doubt. We will discuss further it's effect over his liability in the commission of crime.

The reason why PW-1, PW-3 and PW-6 are believed as a witness of fact 54. PW-1 (informant-Chhotelal), PW-6 (injured witness-Saheb Lal) are real brother of Ganga Ram deceased-victim of the incident dated 04.04.1985 for the commission of which the accused appellants and Raj Pal (died during trial) are arraigned for prosecution. The said trio of witness claimed themselves to be eye witnesses of the incident.

55. The P. Ramnatha Aiyar's Law Lexican (third edition, reprint in 2011 by Lexis Nexis Butterworths Wadhwa) Page-431, defines "Eye Witness', one who saw the act, fact or transaction to which he testifies. Hon'ble the Supreme Court in Vishnu Narayan Moger Vs. State of Karnataka 1996 Cr.L.J. 1121 held, "An eye witness is one, who saw the act, fact of transaction to which he testifies. A witness is able to provide graphic account of attack on the deceased can be accepted as eye witness" Needless to signify the witness PW-1, PW-3 and PW-6 eye witnesses who in the case before us giving the graphic account of the attack by the named accused person over the deceased in the incident dated 04.04.1985, therefore, they are the best evidence subject to their cross examination which is essential in testing the veracity and trustworthiness of the witnesses.

56. It is the established law of evidence that the evidence of a witness is assessed by it's worth. In Sir John woodsoff and Syed Amir Ali's "Law of Evidence" Page 461 (S.V. Joga Rao/17th Edition Butterworth, Vol.1, reprint 2001), The appreciation of evidence of eye witness depends upon -

(a) The accuracy of the witness's original observation of the events which he described, and

(b) The correctness and extent of that he remember and his veracity.

57. The credibility of a witness has to be decided by referring to his evidence, finding out how he has fared in cross-examination and what impression is created by his evidence, taken in other context of the case and not by entering into the realm of the conjecture and surmises. We have discussed a lot in preceding paras with the statements recorded in evidence by the Trial Judge, under different heads. We find out on their appreciation firstly that the presence of witnesses PW-1 and PW-6 with Ganga Ram was naturally probable, for the reason

(i) they are real brother of the deceased and their family being agriculturist were ploughing and sowing sugarcane seeds in their field known as "Jhabra' measuring about 11 acrs. for the whole day starting from 7:00 a.m. in the morning of 04.04.1985.

(ii) though the entire field could not been sown that day, therefore, the brothers trio, before the dusk leaving the rest of the unsown field for the next day, departed for their home in village Behta Gokul situated towards west of the "Jhabra' field. On their way to home there was a bridge over Sharda Canal (The place of incident).

(iii) PW-3 villager of the same village Behta Gokul to which deceased and PW-1, PW-6 belonged, was also coming behind them from his field after finishing his agricultural work for the day, as the time was running towards dusk, on his bullock cart along with his native villager "Kadhiley'.

(iv) in agricultural calendar month of April is usually of harvesting of wheat and sowing of sugarcane etc.

58. In the light of above proven fact by evidence of witnesses PW-1, PW-3 and PW-6 which remained constant consistent and uncontradicted even in cross examination emanate our finding as to the aforesaid witnesses that they were naturally present on the spot of incidence. Further they have given graphical account of the incident without any contradiction shaking the case of the prosecution. Therefore, they proved themselves a cogent and reliable eye witness.

59. It has been vehemently argued by learned counsel for defence to discredit witness PW-1 referring his statement that in the course of incident he did nothing to save the deceased Ganga Ram, rather he ran back some steps away when the assailants A-3 and Raj Pal fired on Ganga Ram and A-1 and A-2 were inflicting blows from their respective weapon over the body of Ganga Ram and he collapsed on ground sustaining fire arm injuries. This argument has no weight in the light of proved fact that none of the brother trio namely deceased, Ganga Ram, PW-1 Chhotelal and PW-6 Saheblal or even PW-3 Vijaypal were armed at that time, whereas the accused assailants were armed with their respective weapons. In a similar set of facts before Hon'ble the Apex Court in the case of Sucha Singh Vs. State of Punjab AIR 2003 SC 3617: 2003 (7) SCC 643 it is held, where both the eye witnesses were unarmed and bare handed, while the accused were armed with deadly weapons then how a person would react in a situation like this, could not be encompassed by any rigid formula. It would depend on many factors, such as, where witnesses were unarmed but the assailants were armed with deadly weapons, in a given case instinct of self preservation would be the dominant instinct. The court held that in the case, their inaction in not coming to the rescue of the deceased, could not be a ground for discarding their evidence. So in present case also, the argument of learned defence counsel to discard the evidence of PW-1 (Chhotelal) treating his presence doubtful on the spot of incident at the relevant time of occurrence, on the ground of his statement that he ran back when the assailants fired on Ganga Ram and he did not physically tried to rescue his brother Ganga Ram is not tenable. It is proved that this witness was unarmed at the time of occurrence and was crying for rescue, in response whereof other witnesses rushed to the spot.

60. Another ground raised for discrediting the evidences of PW-1, PW-3 and PW-6, argued by the defence counsel is their being relatives of the deceased. We considered the argument in the context of the present case. The deceased Ganga Ram was killed on a place lying in rural area road running through villages, where general activities of people comes to a retardation with the falling of evening. The brothers trio Ganga Ram (deceased), PW-1 and PW-6 were also after finishing the agricultural work throughout the whole day from 7:00 a.m. and onward going back to their home. At about 6:00 p.m. they reached at the spot where the accused persons sat hidden armed with their respective weapon, waiting for them. PW-6 the cousin brother of deceased was also coming behind them on his bullock cart after finishing agricultural work, from his field along with "Kadhiley' his native villager. All of them were native of the same village and the way leading to their home village "Behta Gokul' from their fields was the only one and common. These are the proved and undisputed facts. As such, they are naturally probable witnesses of the incident happened at the western end of bridge over Sharda Canal lying on their way to home. Law of Evidence does not bar any such person from being a witness of an incident which he had seen being committed before them, even if he is a relative of the victim. In a catena of cases dealt by Hon'ble Apex Court Bhagwan Swaroop Vs State of U.P. AIR 1971 SC 429, State of U.P. Vs. Paras Nath Singh AIR 1973 SC 1093 and Swarn Singh Vs. State of Punjab 1976 Cr.L.J. 1757 it is held, the fact that the witnesses are related to each other is no ground for disbelieving their evidence. Relative should have no interest to falsely implicate the accused or protect the real culprit. In the present case, since as eye witnesses PW's statement neither in itself nor inter se found by us, inconsistent or self contradictory, therefore, the same cannot be discarded on the ground of their being related with the deceased as well as with each other. More over they cannot be said interested in implicating falsely to the accused. In Dahari & Ors. Vs. State of U.P. (2012) 10 SCC 256 Hon'ble Apex Court in para-11, 12 and 24 has held as under:-

"11. It is a settled legal proposition that the evidence of closely related witnesses is required to be carefully scrutinised and appreciated before any conclusion is made to rest upon it, regarding the convict/accused in a given case. In case the evidence has a ring of truth to it, is cogent, credible and trustworthy, it can, and certainly should, be relied upon. [Vide Himanshu v. State (NCT of Delhi) [(2011) 2 SCC 36 : (2011) 1 SCC (Cri) 593] , Ranjit Singh v. State of M.P. [(2011) 4 SCC 336 : (2011) 2 SCC (Cri) 227 : AIR 2011 SC 255] and Onkar v. State of U.P. [(2012) 2 SCC 273 : (2012) 1 SCC (Cri) 646]]

12. Man Bahadur (PW 1) and Raj Bahadur (PW 2) undoubtedly, are the real brothers of the deceased. They, at the time of the incident, were following the deceased on their "moped". They have supported the case of the prosecution to the fullest extent, and even though they were thoroughly questioned by the defence in the course of cross-examination, they did not elicit anything which could shake their testimony. Thus, we do not see any reason to discard their testimonies.

24. It is a broad daylight murder at 9.00 a.m. on the main road. The eyewitnesses had been following the deceased on the "moped" as they had to attend the court's proceedings at Azamgarh. The enmity between the parties stood fully established as criminal cases were pending between them. The case of the prosecution stood fully corroborated by the medical evidence and the ocular evidence. It is not probable that the real brothers of the deceased who had been the eyewitnesses would implicate the appellants falsely sparing the real assailants, though false implication of some of the persons may not be ruled out. Thus, the High Court was justified in acquitting some of the convicts as they did not belong to the family of the appellants/assailants."

61. Hon'ble Apex Court in para -26 of the case of Vijendra Singh & Ors. Vs. State of U.P. (2017) 11 SCC 129 has held as under:-

"26. In Lallan Rai v. State of Bihar [Lallan Rai v. State of Bihar, (2003)

1 SCC 268 : 2003 SCC (Cri) 301] the Court relying upon the principle laid down in Barendra Kumar Ghosh [Barendra Kumar Ghosh v. King Emperor, 1924 SCC OnLine PC 49 : (1924-25) 52 IA 40 : AIR 1925 PC 1] has ruled that the essence of Section 34 is simultaneous consensus of the mind of persons participating in the criminal action to bring about a particular result."

62. The witnesses PW-1, PW-3 and PW-6 were vehemently termed, in the argument by learned counsel for the defence, not only "interested' being relatives of the victim but also interested in false implication, due to enmity with accused. Considering the said argument we carefully examined and scrutinized the statement of the said witnesses to find out the hostility, if any, of the victim (deceased-Ganga Ram) against the accused. We also tried to find out whether and also that the witnesses or any one of them shared any such hostility with the deceased against the accused. We have gone through the statement of PW-1 (the informant Chhotelal) who seems to have been grilled in the cross-examination for a long on the point of enmity. PW-1 has himself in his written complaint (Exhibit Ka-1) and the FIR (Exhibit Ka-4) disclosed that the victim Ganga Ram (deceased) was accused of the murder of one "Digga' the father of A-3 (Lala Ram) and A-1 (Babu Ram). The deceased Ganga Ram was also prosecuted by father of another accused Rajpal under Section 307 IPC wherein he was acquitted. In para 6 of the examination in chief recorded on 20.12.1986, he clarified the position by saying that Ganga Ram was one of the accused in the trial with regard to the murder of Digga and was convicted and sentenced by the Sessions Court. In appeal to the High Court he was released on bail during the pendency of the appeal. At the time of incidence Ganga Ram was continuing on bail. Likewise in the criminal prosecution under Section 307 IPC, on the complaint of Bihari (accused Raj Pal and Ram Pal's father) Ganga Ram was convicted and sentenced by the Sessions Court but acquitted from the High Court in appeal. In Examination in chief recorded on 20.7.1987 PW-1 stated, he knowns the accused Raj Pal and Ram Pal sons of Bihari who are natives of his village Behta Gokul while the accused Lala Ram and Babu Ram are sons of Digga resident of nearby village Partapur. In cross examination dated 20.7.1983 para-17 PW-1 stated that father of PW-3 Lakshman was also accused with Ganga Ram in the criminal prosecution under Section 307 IPC launched by Bihari. The defence has set forth these two criminal prosecution against Ganga Ram as enmity on the part of witnesses PW-1, PW-3 and PW-6 against accused a cause for false implication. In the cross-examination the learned counsels for the defence could not extract any criminal prosecution by or against the said witnesses or civil litigation by or against them pending with the accused, moreover, in the criminal prosecution against Ganga Ram none of the witnesses were co-accused with him. The said prosecution were in a period of more than 12 years ago from the incident of killing of Ganga Ram. Even as we have discussed earlier it was Ganga Ram only, to whom the assailants intercepted and shot down. This is also note worthy here that even on the part of Ganga Ram who was arraigned in trial for murder case of Digga and in prosecution under Section 307 I.P.C. by 'Behari', no criminal prosecution by him against any of the accused was ever launched. There is nothing coming out from the evidence on record as to the witnesses shared any hostility along with Ganga Ram against the accused which may induce them to falsely implicate them for the murder of Ganga Ram.

63. It would be relevant to refer the decision of Hon'ble Apex Court in Darya Singh Vs. State of Punjab AIR 1965 SC 328 (331) which speaks about related witness who is closely related to the victim that he is not necessary an interested witness. Hon'ble the Apex Court in Mahendra Singh Vs. State of U.P. (2017) 11 SCC 129 has held in para-31 as under:-

"31. In this regard reference to a passage from Hari Obula Reddy v. State of A.P. [Hari Obula Reddy v. State of A.P., (1981) 3 SCC 675 : 1981 SCC (Cri) 795] would be fruitful. In the said case, a three-Judge Bench has ruled that: (SCC pp. 683-84, para 13)

"[it cannot] be laid down as an invariable rule that interested evidence can never form the basis of conviction unless corroborated to a material extent in material particulars by independent evidence. All that is necessary is that the evidence of the interested witnesses should be subjected to careful scrutiny and accepted with caution. If on such scrutiny, the interested testimony is found to be intrinsically reliable or inherently probable, it may, by itself, be sufficient, in the circumstances of the particular case, to base a conviction thereon."

It is worthy to note that there is a distinction between a witness who is related and an interested witness. A relative is a natural witness. The Court in Kartik Malhar v. State of Bihar [Kartik Malhar v. State of Bihar, (1996) 1 SCC 614 : 1996 SCC (Cri) 188] has opined that a close relative who is a natural witness cannot be regarded as an interested witness, for the term "interested" postulates that the witness must have some interest in having the accused, somehow or the other, convicted for some animus or for some other reason".

64. Arguing on the non-examination of material witnesses, the learned counsel referred "Kadhiley' who was with PW-3 Vijay Pal on his bullcart few steps behind the victim Ganga Ram and his brothers PW-1 and PW-6 when Ganga Ram was intercepted and attacked by the accused assailants, he had seen the entire incident. It is discussed by us in preceding paragraphs that the prosecution has examined three material witness on the fact of killing Ganga Ram by the accused namely PW-1, PW-3 and PW-6. On the same fact prosecution was at liberty to examine or not any more witness. In the evidence of PW-1, he has already stated that "Kadhiley' has been won over by the accused and would not be able expected to tell the truth in the court. In a similar set of facts before Hon'ble Apex Court in Vijendra Singh Vs. State of U.P. (2017) 11 SCC 129 in para 35, 36, 37 has held as under:-

"35. The next plank of argument of Mr Giri is that since Nepal Singh who had been stated to have accompanied PW 2 and PW 3 has not been examined and similarly, Ram Kala and Bansa who had been stated to have arrived at the tubewell as per the testimony of PW 2, have not been examined, the prosecution's version has to be discarded, for it has deliberately not cited the independent material witnesses. It is noticeable from the decision of the trial court and the High Court, that reliance has been placed on the testimony of PWs 1 to 3 and their version has been accepted. They have treated PW 2 and PW 3 as natural witnesses who have testified that the accused persons were leaving the place after commission of the offence and they had seen them quite closely. The contention that they were interested witnesses and their implication is due to inimical disposition towards accused persons has not been accepted and we have concurred with the said finding. It has come out in evidence that witnesses and the accused persons belong to the same village. The submission of Mr Giri is that non-examination of Nepal Singh, Ramlal and Kalsa is quite critical for the case of the prosecution and as put forth by him, their non-examination crucially affects the prosecution version and creates a sense of doubt. According to Mr Giri, Nepal Singh is a material witness. In this regard we may refer to the authority in State of H.P. v. Gian Chand [State of H.P. v. Gian Chand, (2001) 6 SCC 71 : 2001 SCC (Cri) 980] wherein it has been held that: (SCC p. 81, para 14)

"14. Non-examination of a material witness is again not a mathematical formula for discarding the weight of the testimony available on record howsoever natural, trustworthy and convincing it may be. The charge of withholding a material witness from the court levelled against the prosecution should be examined in the background of the facts and circumstances of each case so as to find whether the witnesses were available for being examined in the court and were yet withheld by the prosecution."

The Court after so holding further ruled that it is the duty of the court to first assess the trustworthiness of the evidence available on record and if the court finds the evidence adduced worthy of being relied on and deserves acceptance, then non-examination of any other witnesses available who could also have been examined but were not examined, does not affect the case of the prosecution.

36. In Takhaji Hiraji v. Thakore Kubersing Chamansing [Takhaji Hiraji v. Thakore Kubersing Chamansing, (2001) 6 SCC 145 : 2001 SCC (Cri) 1070] , it has been held that: (SCC p. 155, para 19)

"19. ... if a material witness, who would unfold the genesis of the incident or an essential part of the prosecution case, not convincingly brought to fore otherwise, or where there is a gap or infirmity in the prosecution case which could have been supplied or made good by examining a witness who though available is not examined, the prosecution case can be termed as suffering from a deficiency and withholding of such a material witness would oblige the court to draw an adverse inference against the prosecution by holding that if the witness would have been examined it would not have supported the prosecution case. On the other hand, if already overwhelming evidence is available and examination of other witnesses would only be a repetition or duplication of the evidence already adduced, non-examination of such other witnesses may not be material. ... If the witnesses already examined are reliable and the testimony coming from their mouth is unimpeachable, the court can safely act upon it, uninfluenced by the factum of non-examination of other witnesses."

37. In Dahari v. State of U.P. [Dahari v. State of U.P., (2012) 10 SCC 256 : (2013) 1 SCC (Cri) 22] , while discussing about the non-examination of material witness, the Court expressed the view that when he was not the only competent witness who would have been fully capable of explaining the factual situation correctly and the prosecution case stood fully corroborated by the medical evidence and the testimony of other reliable witnesses, no adverse inference could be drawn against the prosecution. Similar view has been expressed in Manjit Singh v. State of Punjab [Manjit Singh v. State of Punjab, (2013) 12 SCC 746 : (2014) 4 SCC (Cri) 531] and Joginder Singh v. State of Haryana [Joginder Singh v. State of Haryana, (2014) 11 SCC 335 : (2014) 3 SCC (Cri) 366] ."

65. Tested on the aforesaid parameters we are unable to accept the submission of learned counsels for the defence that due to non examination of "Kadhiley' who had been referred to by PW-3 (Vijay Pal) and PW-1 (Chhotelal) would affect the prosecution version or would create any doubt in the mind of the court. Thus in our considered opinion the witnesses examined by the prosecution are trustworthy and the court could safely rely on their testimony. In the facts of present case no adverse inference can be drawn against the prosecution.

66. Non examination of independent witnesses is argued by learned counsels for defence so as to shake the testimonies of prosecution witness. It would be relevant to refer in this regard the case before Hon'ble Apex Court Raghubeer Singh Vs. State of U.P. (1972) 3 SCC 79. It is held in para-10:-

"10. As against the argument that some witnesses mentioned in the first information report were not examined, it is enough to repeat, what has often been ruled that the prosecution is not bound to produce all the witnesses said to have seen the occurrence. Material witnesses considered necessary by the prosecution for unfolding the prosecution story alone need be produced without unnecessary and redundant multiplication of witnesses. The appellant's counsel has nut shown how the prosecution story is rendered less trustworthy as a result of the non-production of the witnesses mentioned by him. No material and important witness was deliberately kept back by the prosecution. Incidentally we may point out that the accused too have not considered it proper to produce those persons as witnesses for controverting the prosecution version. In this connection general reluctance of an average villager to appear as a witness and get himself involved in cases of rival village factions when spirits on both sides are running high has to be borne in mind."

Injured witness

67. PW-6 Saheblal is an eye witness who himself got injury caused by blows of lathi in the course of incident, as A-2 (Ram Pal) warded him off when he swooped in to rescue Ganga Ram from the assailants. The 16/17 years old boy, after the incident was medically examined under the memo of police by Dr.P.K. Gangwar the incharge medical officer posted in District Hospital Hardoi on 5.4.1985. The said doctor is produced as witness for examination before the Trial Judge. Who proved before the court the report prepared by him under his signature and handwriting pursuant to the letter of investigating officer handed to him by Chowkidar. The report is Exhibit Ka-3 wherein the PW-4 (doctor) has entered complaint of pain at left elbow joint but no external mark of injury seen. PW-1 in his statement and even PW-6 when examined has stated about the injury suffered by him in the course of incident. PW-5 the Head moharrir posted at Police Station Behta Gokul on the relevant date of incident on 04.04.1985 who registered the FIR, when examined before the Court, has also confirmed in para-3 of statement that Saheblal (PW-6) who accompanied PW-1, when arrived at the Police Station, was injured. He further stated that entry to the above effect was made by him in the general diary at report no.29. He stated that a written letter for medical examination was sent by him with the injured Saheblal to District Hospital, Hardoi through Chowkidar. As such Saheb Lal is an injured witness and was present at the spot of incident in the course of commission of crime is undoubted.

68. Hon'ble the Apex Court in Maqsoodan Vs. State of U.P. (1983) 1 SCC 218 (three Judges Bench) has held in para-8 as under:-

"8. The High Court has found that the testimony of the eyewitnesses, namely, PWs 1, 2, 3 and CW 1 "suffer from numerous infirmities". It, therefore, sought support to their testimony from the two earlier statements, erroneously called dying declarations, Exts. Ka-22 and Ka-23 made by PW 3 Vijay Kumar and PW 2 Jagdish respectively. The infirmities referred to by the High Court consisted in, according to the High Court, improvements made by the witnesses and variations in their earlier and latter statements. In our opinion, on that ground alone, the testimony of PWs 1, 2, 3 and CW 1 cannot be Held to be infirm. It is the duty of the court to remove the grain from the chaff. These four witnesses are the injured witnesses having received the injuries during the course of the incident. Their presence at the time and place of the occurrence cannot be doubted; in fact it has not been challenged by the defence. As both the parties were inimical for a long time, it will be prudent to convict only those persons whose presence and participation in the occurrence have been proved by the prosecution beyond reasonable doubt. We agree with the finding of the High Court that the presence and participation of the appellants Maqsoodan, Madan Mohan, Prayagnath and Nando, who are appellants in Criminal Appeal No. 175 of 1974 has been proved beyond reasonable doubt, despite the improvements and variations in their evidence.

69. Hon'ble the Apex Court in para-22 of Veer Singh Vs. State of U.P. (2014) 2 SCC 455 has held as under:-

"22. In the present case we are left with the sole testimony of the injured eyewitness PW 4 Harbans Kaur. She has lost all the members of her family in the attack during the occurrence. There is no reason for her to falsely implicate any of the accused in the case. On the contrary she would only point out the correct assailants who are responsible for killing her family members. We are of the considered view that the testimony of PW 4 Harbans Kaur is cogent, credible and trustworthy and has a ring of truth and deserves acceptance. All the twelve victims of the occurrence died of homicidal violence is established by the oral testimony of the doctors who conducted autopsies on their bodies and the certificates issued by them to that effect."

70. Hon'ble the Apex Court in para 21 and 22 of Shyam Babu Vs. State of U.P. (2012) 8 SCC 651 has held as under:-

"Evidentiary value of related witnesses

21. Mr V.K. Shukla, learned counsel for the appellant submitted that since most of the prosecution witnesses are related to the deceased persons, the same cannot be relied on. We are unable to accept the said contention.

22. This Court has repeatedly held that the version of an eyewitness cannot be discarded by the court merely on the ground that such eyewitness happened to be a relative or friend of the deceased. It is also stated that where the presence of the eyewitnesses is proved to be natural and their statements are nothing but truthful disclosure of actual facts leading to the occurrence, it will not be permissible for the court to discard the statement of such related or friendly witnesses. To put it clear, there is no bar in law on examining family members or any other person as witnesses. In fact, in cases involving family members of both sides, it is a member of the family or a friend who comes to rescue the injured. If the statement of witnesses, who are relatives or known to the parties affected is credible, reliable, trustworthy and corroborated by other witnesses, there would hardly be any reason for the court to reject such evidence merely on the ground that the witness was a family member or an interested witness or a person known to the affected party or friend, etc. These principles have been reiterated in Mano Dutt v. State of U.P. [(2012) 4 SCC 79 : (2012) 2 SCC (Cri) 226] and Dayal Singh v. State of Uttaranchal [(2012) 8 SCC 263] ."

71. Hon'ble the Apex Court in para-28 of Brahma Swaroop Vs. State of U.P. (2011) 6 SCC 288 has held as under:-

"28. Where a witness to the occurrence has himself been injured in the incident, the testimony of such a witness is generally considered to be very reliable, as he is a witness that comes with an in-built guarantee of his presence at the scene of the crime and is unlikely to spare his actual assailant(s) in order to falsely implicate someone. "Convincing evidence is required to discredit an injured witness." (Vide State of U.P. v. Kishan Chand [(2004) 7 SCC 629 : 2004 SCC (Cri) 2021] , Krishan v. State of Haryana [(2006) 12 SCC 459 : (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 214] , Dinesh Kumar v. State of Rajasthan [(2008) 8 SCC 270 : (2008) 3 SCC (Cri) 472] , Jarnail Singh v. State of Punjab [(2009) 9 SCC 719 : (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 107] , Vishnu v. State of Rajasthan [(2009) 10 SCC 477 : (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 302] , Annareddy Sambasiva Reddy v. State of A.P. [(2009) 12 SCC 546 : (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 630 : AIR 2009 SC 2661] and Balraje v. State of Maharashtra [(2010) 6 SCC 673 : (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 211] .)"

Evidentiary value and reliability of the witness PW-3 (Vijay Pal)

72. Much have been discussed over the statement of Vijay Pal (PW-3) earlier in preceding paras. He is declared hostile only to the extent that he did not support the prosecution case that A1 was wielding Gandasa over the body of Ganga Ram when he collapsed on ground sustaining fire arm injuries. Since we have discussed earlier that for rest of the prosecution case PW-3 has been supporting witness and proved a material fact as to the presence and participation of accused in committing crime in question along with the other accused from the very inception through his statement recorded in the Court. The deviation from the statements of other two prosecution witnesses PW-1 and PW-6 is in assigning the weapon whether a "lathi' or a "Gandasa'. His statement to this regard is in contradiction with his pretrial statement given to the Investigating Officer, which he accepted before the Court. He could not explain the contradiction of pretrial statement confidently. Rather he stated during his examination that if the investigating officer has reduced it in to writing his statement that A-1 (Babu Ram) was armed with "Gandasa' and inflicted it's blows over Ganga Ram, then he would have said it to the investigating officer. He further stated on oath that he could not see whether A1 was having a lathi or a Gandasa as he at the time of incident was crying for rescue. Certainly this much of his statement regarding Babu Ram having a "Gandasa', shakes the prosecution version but rest of his tetimony which support the prosecution case as to the presence of A1 at the spot of incident and participation in crime with rest of the accused cannot be discarded for the reason he has been declared hostile by the prosecution itself. In the above context we proceed to ascertain the evidentiary value of and reliability over the statement of this witness in the light of the law laid down by Hon'ble the Apex Court in various cases.

73. It would be relevant to refer the case of Guru Singh Vs. State of Rajasthan (2011) 2 SCC 205 where it is held in para-11 and 12:-

"11. There appears to be a misconception regarding the effect on the testimony of a witness declared hostile. It is a misconceived notion that merely because a witness is declared hostile his entire evidence should be excluded or rendered unworthy of consideration. This Court in Bhagwan Singh v. State of Haryana [(1976) 1 SCC 389 : 1976 SCC (Cri) 7 : AIR 1976 SC 202] held that merely because the Court gave permission to the Public Prosecutor to cross-examine his own witness describing him as hostile witness does not completely efface his evidence. The evidence remains admissible in the trial and there is no legal bar to base the conviction upon the testimony of such witness. In Rabindra Kumar Dey v. State of Orissa [(1976) 4 SCC 233 : 1976 SCC (Cri) 566 : AIR 1977 SC 170] it was observed that by giving permission to cross-examine nothing adverse to the credit of the witness is decided and the witness does not become unreliable only by his declaration as hostile. Merely on this ground his whole testimony cannot be excluded from consideration. In a criminal trial where a prosecution witness is cross-examined and contradicted with the leave of the court by the party calling him for evidence cannot, as a matter of general rule, be treated as washed off the record altogether. It is for the court of fact to consider in each case whether as a result of such cross-examination and contradiction the witness stands discredited or can still be believed in regard to any part of his testimony. In appropriate cases the court can rely upon the part of testimony of such witness if that part of the deposition is found to be creditworthy.

12. The terms "hostile", "adverse" or "unfavourable" witnesses are alien to the Indian Evidence Act. The terms "hostile witness", "adverse witness", "unfavourable witness", "unwilling witness" are all terms of English law. The rule of not permitting a party calling the witness to cross-examine are relaxed under the common law by evolving the terms "hostile witness and unfavourable witness". Under the common law a hostile witness is described as one who is not desirous of telling the truth at the instance of the party calling him and an unfavourable witness is one called by a party to prove a particular fact in issue or relevant to the issue who fails to prove such fact, or proves the opposite test. In India the right to cross-examine the witnesses by the party calling him is governed by the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872. Section 142 requires that leading question cannot be put to the witness in examination-in-chief or in re-examination except with the permission of the court. The court can, however, permit leading question as to the matters which are introductory or undisputed or which have, in its opinion, already been sufficiently proved. Section 154 authorises the court in its discretion to permit the person who calls a witness to put any question to him which might be put in cross-examination by the adverse party. The courts are, therefore, under a legal obligation to exercise the discretion vesting in them in a judicious manner by proper application of mind and keeping in view the attending circumstances. Permission for cross-examination in terms of Section 154 of the Evidence Act cannot and should not be granted at the mere asking of the party calling the witness. Extensively dealing with the terms "hostile, adverse and unfavourable witnesses" and the object of the provisions of the Evidence Act this Court in Sat Paul v. Delhi Admn. [(1976) 1 SCC 727 : 1976 SCC (Cri) 160 : AIR 1976 SC 294] held: (SCC pp. 741-43 & 745-46, paras 38-40 & 52)

"38. To steer clear of the controversy over the meaning of the terms ''hostile' witness, ''adverse' witness, ''unfavourable' witness which had given rise to considerable difficulty and conflict of opinion in England, the authors of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 seem to have advisedly avoided the use of any of those terms so that, in India, the grant of permission to cross-examine his own witness by a party is not conditional on the witness being declared ''adverse' or ''hostile'. Whether it be the grant of permission under Section 142 to put leading questions, or the leave under Section 154 to ask questions which might be put in cross-examination by the adverse party, the Indian Evidence Act leaves the matter entirely to the discretion of the court (see the observations of Sir Lawrence Jenkins in Baikuntha Nath Chattorji v. Prasannamoyi Debya [AIR 1922 PC 409 : 27 CWN 797] . The discretion conferred by Section 154 on the court is unqualified and untrammelled, and is apart from any question of ''hostility'. It is to be liberally exercised whenever the court from the witnesses' demeanour, temper, attitude, bearing, or the tenor and tendency of his answers, or from a perusal of his previous inconsistent statement, or otherwise, thinks that the grant of such permission is expedient to extract the truth and to do justice. The grant of such permission does not amount to an adjudication by the court as to the veracity of the witness. Therefore, in the order granting such permission, it is preferable to avoid the use of such expressions, such as ''declared hostile', ''declared unfavourable', the significance of which is still not free from the historical cobwebs which, in their wake bring a misleading legacy of confusion, and conflict that had so long vexed the English courts.

39. It is important to note that the English statute differs materially from the law contained in the Indian Evidence Act in regard to cross-examination and contradiction of his own witness by a party. Under the English law, a party is not permitted to impeach the credit of his own witness by general evidence of his bad character, shady antecedents or previous conviction. In India, this can be done with the consent of the court under Section 155. Under the English Act of 1865, a party calling the witness can ''cross-examine' and contradict a witness in respect of his previous inconsistent statements with the leave of the court, only when the court considers the witness to be ''adverse'. As already noticed, no such condition has been laid down in Sections 154 or 155 of the Indian Act and the grant of such leave has been left completely to the discretion of the court, the exercise of which is not fettered by or dependent upon the ''hostility' or ''adverseness' of the witness. In this respect, the Indian Evidence Act is in advance of the English law. The Criminal Law Revision Committee of England in its Eleventh Report, made recently, has recommended the adoption of a modernised version of Section 3 of the Criminal Procedure Act, 1865, allowing contradiction of both unfavourable and hostile witnesses by other evidence without leave of the court. The Report is, however, still in favour of retention of the prohibition on a party's impeaching his own witness by evidence of bad character.

40. The danger of importing, without due discernment, the principles enunciated in ancient English decisions, for interpreting and applying the Indian Evidence Act, has been pointed out in several authoritative pronouncements. In Praphullakumar Sarkar v. Emperor [ILR (1931) 58 Cal 1404 : AIR 1931 Cal 401 (FB)] an eminent Chief Justice, Sir George Rankin cautioned, that ''when we are invited to hark back to dicta delivered by English Judges, however eminent, in the first half of the nineteenth century, it is necessary to be careful lest principles be introduced which the Indian Legislature did not see fit to enact'.

It was emphasised that these departures from English law ''were taken either to be improvements in themselves or calculated to work better under Indian conditions'.

52. From the above conspectus, it emerges clear that even in a criminal prosecution when a witness is cross-examined and contradicted with the leave of the court, by the party calling him, his evidence cannot, as a matter of law, be treated as washed off the record altogether. It is for the Judge of fact to consider in each case whether as a result of such cross-examination and contradiction, the witness stand thoroughly discredited or can still be believed in regard to a part of his testimony. If the Judge finds that in the process, the credit of the witness has not been completely shaken, he may, after reading and considering the evidence of the witness, as a whole, with due caution and care, accept, in the light of the other evidence on the record, that part of his testimony which he finds to be creditworthy and act upon it. If in a given case, the whole of the testimony of the witness is impugned, and in the process, the witness stands squarely and totally discredited, the Judge should, as a matter of prudence, discard his evidence in toto."

74. In Attar Singh Vs. State of Maharashtra (2013) 11 SCC 719 Hon'ble the Apex Court has held that if the statement of a witness declared hostile is corroborated with other evidence and inspires confidence it can be relied. Paras-14, 15, 16 and 17, read as under:-

"14. We have meticulously considered the arguments advanced on this vital aspect of the matter on which the conviction and sentence imposed on the appellant is based. This compels us to consider as to whether the conviction and sentence recorded on the basis of the testimony of the witness who has been declared hostile could be relied upon for recording conviction of the appellant-accused. But it was difficult to overlook the relevance and value of the evidence of even a hostile witness while considering as to what extent their evidence could be allowed to be relied upon and used by the prosecution. It could not be ignored that when a witness is declared hostile and when his testimony is not shaken on material points in the cross-examination, there is no ground to reject his testimony in toto as it is well settled by a catena of decisions that the court is not precluded from taking into account the statement of a hostile witness altogether and it is not necessary to discard the same in toto and can be relied upon partly. If some portion of the statement of the hostile witness inspires confidence, it can be relied upon. He cannot be thrown out as wholly unreliable. This was the view expressed by this Court in Syad Akbar v. State of Karnataka [(1980) 1 SCC 30 : 1980 SCC (Cri) 59] whereby the learned Judges of the Supreme Court reversed the judgment of the Karnataka High Court which had discarded the evidence of a hostile witness in its entirety.

15. Similarly, other High Courts in Gulshan Kumar v. State [1993 Cri LJ 1525 (Del)] as also Kunwar v. State of U.P. [1993 Cri LJ 3421 (All)] as also Haneefa v. State [1993 Cri LJ 2125 (Ker)] have held that it is not necessary to discard the evidence of the hostile witness in toto and can be relied upon partly. So also, in State of U.P. v. Chet Ram [(1989) 2 SCC 425 : 1989 SCC (Cri) 388 : AIR 1989 SC 1543 : 1989 Cri LJ 1785] , it was held that if some portion of the statement of the hostile witness inspires confidence it can be relied upon and the witness cannot be termed as wholly unreliable. It was further categorically held in Shatrughan v. State of M.P. [1993 Cri LJ 120 (MP)] that hostile witness is not necessarily a false witness. Granting of a permission by the court to cross-examine his own witness does not amount to adjudication by the court as to the veracity of a witness. It only means a declaration that the witness is adverse or unfriendly to the party calling him and not that the witness is untruthful. This was the view expressed by this Court in Sat Paul v. Delhi Admn. [(1976) 1 SCC 727 : 1976 SCC (Cri) 160 : AIR 1976 SC 294]

16. Thus, merely because a witness becomes hostile it would not result in throwing out the prosecution case, but the court must see the relative effect of his testimony. If the evidence of a hostile witness is corroborated by other evidence, there is no legal bar to convict the accused. Thus testimony of a hostile witness is acceptable to the extent it is corroborated by that of a reliable witness. It is, therefore, open to the court to consider the evidence and there is no objection to a part of that evidence being made use of in support of the prosecution or in support of the accused.

17. While examining the instant matter on the anvil of the aforesaid legal position laid down by this Court in several pronouncements, we have noticed that the support rendered by the daughter Mangibai approving the incident should be accepted as reliable part of evidence in spite of she being a hostile witness. The witness Mangibai's evidence pushes the accused with his bag to the wall and the accused is obliged to explain because her evidence shows that the accused was the only person in the company of the deceased soon before the death. The defence of the accused that Nagibai's injury was a result of fall is ruled out by medical evidence and the details available of the location in the panchnama of offence. The courts below thus have rightly drawn some support from the reports of the chemical analysis since all the articles of the victims and clothes of the accused are found having bloodstains of human Blood Group A. This was in view of the fact that the results of the analysis for determination of the blood group of the victim and accused were conclusive when blood sent in phial was analysed. Thus, the evidence of the daughter of the deceased coupled with other material as also evidence of other witnesses i.e. Ramesh, Khandu, Bhatu and Makhan, provided a complete chain and the prosecution successfully proved that the incident occurred in the manner and the place which was alleged."

75. In Mrinal Das Vs. State of Tripura (2011) 9 SCC 479 Hon'ble the Apex Court it is settled that corroborated part of evidence of hostile witnesses regarding commission of offence is admissible. His statement cannot be discarded enblock only for the reason he has been declared hostile. Relevant para-67 of the judgment thus reads as under:-

"67. It is settled law that corroborated part of evidence of hostile witness regarding commission of offence is admissible. The fact that the witness was declared hostile at the instance of the Public Prosecutor and he was allowed to cross-examine the witness furnishes no justification for rejecting en bloc the evidence of the witness. However, the court has to be very careful, as prima facie, a witness who makes different statements at different times, has no regard for the truth. His evidence has to be read and considered as a whole with a view to find out whether any weight should be attached to it. The court should be slow to act on the testimony of such a witness, normally, it should look for corroboration with other witnesses. Merely because a witness deviates from his statement made in the FIR, his evidence cannot be held to be totally unreliable. To make it clear that evidence of hostile witness can be relied upon at least up to the extent, he supported the case of the prosecution. The evidence of a person does not become effaced from the record merely because he has turned hostile and his deposition must be examined more cautiously to find out as to what extent he has supported the case of the prosecution."

76. In somehow similar situation of a case before Hon'ble Supreme Court in Anil Rai Vs. State of Bihar (2001) 7 SCC 318, where merely because a witness has been declared hostile because of not mentioning the name of one of the accused it is held that his entire evidence cannot be wiped out. Para-26 thus reads as under:-

"26. I also do not find any substance in the submission of the learned counsel for the appellant Subhash Chand Rai (A-2) that as Mukati Singh (PW 12) was declared hostile in not naming his client, the prosecution case could not succeed. The mere fact that the Court gave the permission to the Public Prosecutor to cross-examine his own witness by declaring him hostile does not completely efface the evidence of such witness. The evidence remains admissible in the trial and there is no legal bar to base conviction upon his testimony if corroborated by other reliable evidence. The said witness in his statement recorded in the Court stated that after the meeting in the Panchayat Bhawan he along with Lal Muni Rai and others were coming back to the village and when they reached near puwal heap of Baij Nath Ram he saw accused Avinash Chand Rai (A-1), Anil Rai and Awadh Bihari Rai with others, equipped with rifles and guns. They caught hold of Lal Muni Rai. The witness cried and raised alarm that Lal Muni Rai was held by the aforesaid persons after which a number of people from the village rushed to the place including Chand Muni Rai (deceased). He, however, did not mention the presence of Subhash Chand Rai (A-2) for which he was declared hostile. In his cross-examination he admitted that bloodstained earth was recovered from the spot where Lal Muni Rai and Chand Muni Rai had fallen down. Regarding presence of the eyewitnesses he stated, "I do not remember that I stated before Darogaji that by that time the wife and son of Chand Muni Rai came to secure Chand Muni Rai." The occurrence having taken place and the two persons having died on the date of occurrence have been admitted even by PW 12. There is, therefore, no reason to hold that as Mukati Singh (PW 12) has not named appellant Subhash Chand Rai (A-2), he is entitled to acquittal."

77. In the discussion made above we reached at this conclusion that statement of PW-3 declared hostile is admissible and reliable to the extent it is in corroboration with the other evidences including statements of PW-1 and PW-6 with regard to presence at spot of incident and participation with all the accused in commission of crime since the very inception till the completion of the criminal act of killing "Ganga Ram' (deceased). All the three witnesses of fact are natural eye witnesses, truthful and credible and trustworthy.

78. After the commission of crime the accused fled away from the spot and when the prosecution witnesses PW-1, PW-3 and PW-6 reached near the body of victim Ganga Ram lying collapsed on the ground in a pool of blood, they found him dead on spot with bleeding wounds, all these stand proved by the evidence of aforesaid witnesses, as we have discussed earlier in preceding paras. It is also found proved that after registration of offence against the assailants, in the course of investigation on spot inspection with examination of dead body was done and inquest report (Exhibit Ka-7) was prepared. The inquest report (Exhibit Ka-7) discloses the wounds stained with profused blood on the right side of chest, on the neck below the right ear, marks of pillets' injury caused by fire arm along with several incised lacerated wounds and contusions and abraded injuries on the body of deceased Ganga Ram. In their examination on oath the eye witnesses have consistently and without any anomaly have given a graphical account of the incident in question in detail, how the accused assailants armed with their respective weapons attacked over Ganga Ram and that A-3 with Rajpal fired upon him with their gun and country made pistol thus injured him. The rest of the accused also hit Ganga Ram with their weapon (lathi and Gandasa) when he collapsed. At this stage the wounds and other injuries found on the body of Ganga Ram is a fact relevant to the issue of killing of Ganga Ram by the accused. Though the evidence of PW-1, PW-3 and PW-6 prove sufficiently and reliably as to who caused the injuries to the victim Ganga Ram. Further the nature and effect of the injuries whether sufficient to cause death in the ordinary course of nature, is proved by producing the doctor who did the autopsy of deceased body and prepared post mortem report. PW-2 Dr. Surendra Singh, the then Medical Officer, posted on 5.4.1985 in District Hospital, Hardoi, has proved the post mortem (Exhibit Ka-2), for easy reference the relevant extract from Exhibit Ka-2 is reproduced hereunder:-

Antemortem Injuries

(i) Lacerated wound 4 c.m. x 1.5 c.m. x scalp deep on middle of head 12 c.m. above the bridge of nose.

(ii) Lacerated wound 4 c.m.x 1.5 c.m. x scalp deep on the right side of the middle of the head 10 c.m. above right eye brow.

(iii) Lacerateed wound 2 c.m.x1 c.m. x bone deep on the left eye brow.

(iv) Lacerated wound 1 c.m. x 1.5 c.m. bone deep on the bridle of the nose.

(v) Lacerated wound 3 c.m. x 1.5 c.m. x bone deep on the right eye brow.

(vi) Abraded contusion 5 c.m. x 3 c.m. on the right side of the face.

(vii) Abraded contusion 4 c.m. x 3 c.m. on the left side of the face.

(ix) Firearm wound of entry 2 c.m. x 1.5 c.m. X skin deep through and through on right side of upper part of chest including some part of right shoulder joint 8 c.m. above right nipple at 11 O'clock. Blackening present margins inverted and lacerated.

(x) Firearm wound of Exit 3 c.m. x 2.5 c.m. just below the injury no.9 communicated with injury no.9 c.m. above right nipple at 10 O'clock. Margins everted and lacerated.

(xi) Multiple abrasions in the area of 10 c.m. x 5 c.m. on the right side of the chest 1.5. c.m. above and left to the right Nipple measuring .25 c.m. x .25 c.m. to .5 c.m. x .5 c.m.

(xii) Abrasion 2 c.m. x 1 c.m. on right knee joint.

(xiii) Abrasion 1 c.m. x 1 c.m. on left knee joint.

Cause of Death:- In my opinion death occurred due to shock and hemorrhage as result of Antimortem injury."

79. Surendra Singh (PW-2) confirmed his opinion as to the cause of death of victim of the incident dated 4.4.1985 before the trial Judge also. He stated that in his opinion death of the deceased caused due to shock and excessive hemorrhage on account of the ante mortem injuries caused to him. He further stated that two wading pieces of bullet and 10 big size pillets were found on his body. The injuries reported by him, in the ordinary course of nature, were sufficient to cause death. PW-2 further opined about the time of death on the basis of post mortem staining and rigour mortis of the victim Ganga Ram that it might have occurred on 4.4.1985 at about 6:00 p.m. in evening. He also confirmed that injuries No.8,9 and 10 would have been caused by fire arm like gun and country made pistol (tamancha) and injuries reported at serial No.1 to 7 being lacerated wounds, would have been caused by any blunt end object like lathi also. He did not ruled out the use of "Gandasa' which has one side sharp edge while other side being bat or handle, a blunt end, if the same is wielded on the body of deceased from blunt end. In totality the post mortem report Exhibit Ka-2 and the evidence of Doctor (PW-2) are in consonance with the graphical account of the incident as given by the defence through cross examination of the Doctor (PW-2) but seems to have put much vehemence in asking about the distance and direction of the accused from deceased when made shot at him, so as to falsitfy the statement of accused as to the location of assailants while they are said by them to have fired at Ganga Ram in the course of incident. They argued a lot on the basis of their hypothetical questions and their answer by doctor (PW-2) so as to shake the credibility of the eye witnesses referring the statement of eye witnesses as to the possible direction and distance from the deceased of the accused in the course of incident, keeping in view the fire arm injury wounds on the body of deceased having their margin inverted, lacerated everted or their specific location on the body. However, PW-2 opined that the assailant who caused injury no.8 would have been standing in the right side of the deceased at a distance about one and a half to two feets whereas injury no.9 would have been caused when the victim was lying supine on the ground.

80. The evidence of PW-2 (doctor) is merely an opinion of expert under Section 45 of the Indian Evidence Act. In the case before us the weapons stated to have been used by the accused in the course of commission of incident are proved and the effect caused through them are also found corelated wounds by virtue of the report as to ante mortem injuries found on the body of deceased Exhibit Ka-2 also commensurate with the nature of weapon. We have held that the witnesses PW-1, PW-3 and PW-6 are wholly reliable therefore, the expert evidence of (PW-2) is of not much importance as corroborative evidence. However, it is not in repugnancy with the evidence of the aforesaid eye witnesses of fact. The expert is a valuable witness when it becomes utmost necessary for the court to record his evidence to form an accurate opinion to determine that the offence was committed by the accused. The other evidences corroborated with the expert's witness' deposition fixes the guilt on the accused. In the present case before us the victim of the incident is proved not only by the witnesses of fact PW-1, PW-3 and PW-6 to have on spot died because of the injuries sustained by him from the weapon used by accused. They saw him lying in pool of blood and died on spot. The inquest report also confirms the ante mortem injuries on the dead body and post mortem report also mentions the said ante mortem injuries which in the opinion of PW-2 were fatal to cause death of Ganga Ram. Minor deviation, if any, as to the location of wound on the dead body, the distance between the assailants and the deceased in the deposition of the witness is not material to disbelieve the eye witness's account of the incident. In most of the details given by the witnesses as to the direction and distance they are more or less near the standard condition under forensic science. Ballistic parameters are not strictly the same as the same depend on the kind and strength of the firearms on their bore and the gun powder used in the bullets.

81. It is established law that the testimony of eye witness should be paramount unless medical evidence is so conclusive as to rule out even the possibility of eye witness's version to be true. A three Judges Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court [Hon'ble M.M. Punchi, (C.J.), Hon'ble K.T. Thomas and Hon'ble S.

Rajendra Baboo, J.J] in State of U.P. Vs. Harban Sahai & Ors. (1998) 6 SCC 50 has held in para-9:-

"9. The second reason put forth by the High Court for disbelieving the version of the eyewitnesses is this: PW 1 (Shashi Bhushan) and PW 2 (Shiv Sagar Lal) said that two accused had fired the gun simultaneously, but the deceased sustained only one gunshot injury which is described in the post-mortem certificate as Injury 2. The Public Prosecutor in the trial court endeavoured to show that Injury 7 would possibly have been the result of a gunshot. Dr R.S. Pandey (PW 7) answered to the said query saying that there is a possibility of that injury being caused in a gunshot if pellets have touched that part of the face and deflected therefrom. Injury 7 is described as "multiple abrasions in an area of 7 cm × 6 cm on the right side of the face 2.5 cm below the right eye". But the High Court ruled out the possibility of the said injury having been caused in gunshot on the following reasoning:

"But in the cross-examination the doctor has denied the possibility of such injury being caused while the deceased was being chased from behind and that is exactly what the prosecution case is, that while the deceased was running away the two appellants armed with guns, fired from behind. Consequently Injury 7, even if it is said to be a gunshot injury, would not go to corroborate the prosecution case in any manner."

The High Court has thus knocked out an eyewitness on the strength of an uncanny opinion expressed by a medical witness. Overdependence on such opinion evidence, even if the witness is an expert in the field, to checkmate the direct testimony given by an eyewitness is not a safe modus adoptable in criminal cases. It has now become axiomatic that medical evidence can be used to repel the testimony of eyewitnesses only if it is so conclusive as to rule out even the possibility of the eyewitness's version to be true. A doctor who conducted post-mortem examination or examined an injured person is usually confronted with such questions regarding different possibilities or probabilities of causing those injuries or post-mortem features which he noticed in the medical report. But the answers given by the witness to such questions need not become the last word on such possibilities. After all he gives only his opinion regarding such questions. But to discard the testimony of an eyewitness simply on the strength of such opinion expressed by the medical witness is not conducive to the administration of criminal justice. (Vide Piara Singh v. State of Punjab [(1977) 4 SCC 452 : 1977 SCC (Cri) 614 : AIR 1977 SC 2274] , Mange v. State of Haryana [(1979) 4 SCC 349 : 1979 SCC (Cri) 985 : AIR 1979 SC 1194] , Ram Dev v. State of U.P. [1995 Supp (1) SCC 547 : 1995 SCC (Cri) 402 (2)])"

82. Further in Thaman Kumar Vs. State of Union Territory of Chandigarh (2003) 6 SCC 380, Hon'ble Apex Court has held in para-16 as under:-

"16. The conflict between oral testimony and medical evidence can be of varied dimensions and shapes. There may be a case where there is total absence of injuries which are normally caused by a particular weapon. There is another category where though the injuries found on the victim are of the type which are possible by the weapon of assault, but the size and dimension of the injuries do not exactly tally with the size and dimension of the weapon. The third category can be where the injuries found on the victim are such which are normally caused by the weapon of assault but they are not found on that portion of the body where they are deposed to have been caused by the eyewitnesses. The same kind of inference cannot be drawn in the three categories of apparent conflict in oral and medical evidence enumerated above. In the first category it may legitimately be inferred that the oral evidence regarding assault having been made from a particular weapon is not truthful. However, in the second and third categories no such inference can straight away be drawn. The manner and method of assault, the position of the victim, the resistance offered by him, the opportunity available to the witnesses to see the occurrence like their distance, presence of light and many other similar factors will have to be taken into consideration in judging the reliability of ocular testimony."

83. It would be relevant to refer the significance of distance between victim and the fire arm from which the fire of bullet is discharged. From Modi's Medical Jurisprudence and Toxicology 23rd Edition (reprint 2009) page No.721 following is extracted:-

"If a firearm is discharged very close to the body or in actual contact, subcutaneous tissues over an area of two or three inches around the wound of entrance are lacerated and the surrounding skin is usually scorched and blackened by smoke and tattooed with unburnt grains of gunpowder or smokeless propellant powder. The adjacent hairs are singed, and the clothes covering the part are burnt by the flame. If the powder is smokeless, there may be a grayish or white deposit on the skin around the wound. If the area is photographed by infrared light, a smoke halo round the wound may be clearly noticed. Blackening is found, if a firearm like a shotgun is discharged from a distance of not more than three feet and a revolver or no distinction can be made between on distant shot and another, as far as distance is concerned. Scorching in the case of the latter firearms is observed within a few inches, while some evidence of scorching in the case of shotguns may be found even at one to three ft. Moreover, these signs may be absent when the weapon is pressed tightly against the skin of the body, as the gases of the explosion and the flame smoke and particles of gunpowder will all follow the track of the bullet in the body. Wetting of the skin or clothes by rain reduces the scorching range. Blackening is not affected by wet surface although it can easily be removed by a wet cloth. Blackening with a high power rifle can occur up to about one ft. Usually, if there are unburnt powder grains, the indication is that the shot was fired from a revolver or a pistol and shorter the barrel of the weapon used the greater will be the tendency to the presence of unburnt of slightly burnt powder grains."

84. In the present case PW-1 have deposed before the court that assailants along with their fire arms were in north direction from the deceased at a distance of 3 to 4 steps. One feet is equal to 0.3048 meter. The distance covered by a single step assuming a stride length of 0.762 meters or 2.5 feet. Although stride length varies from person to person as per his/her activity. As such 2.5 feet would be a maximum measurement of one step, otherwise normally, while walking it would be less than 2.5 feet. PW-3 has also stated about distance of fire arm (country made pistol) in the hand of Raj Pal about two steps from the deceased. All the witnesses have consistently deposed that accused persons fired three shots on Ganga Ram simultaneously. The dead body was found with three fire arm wounds measuring 3 c.m.x2.5 c.m. with inverted and lacerated margin and blackening around the wound (injury no.8). Secondly, entry wound measuring 2 c.m.x1.5 c.m. 5 c.m. deep and blackening around the wound with inverted and lacerated margin, thirdly wound of 3 c.m.x2.5 c.m. just below the injury no.9 with margin inverted and lacerated. The witnesses have also deposed the deceased was standing east facing towards the spot when the accused fired at him from north. The fire arm injuries are also on the right side of the body of deceased on mandible below the right ear on neck and right upper side of chest.

85. So far as the injuries inflicted by Gandasa by A1 is concerned the inquest report Exhibit Ka-7 shows presence of incised wound over the head and upper portion of body whereas in post mortem report (Exhibit Ka-2) no incised wound is reported on the body of deceased rather injuries no.1 to 7 are found to be lacerated wound PW-1 and PW-6 both have assigned "Gandasa' in the hand of A-1 and in their deposition before the court A-1 is stated to inflict blow of Gandasa over the head of Ganga Ram collapsed on the ground struck with firearms' shot made by A-3 and Rajpal. PW-3 in contradiction with his earlier statement given to Investigating Officer PW-8 under Section 161 Cr.P.C. has not supported while examined before the court. In his statement on oath, A-2 was stated by him to have been holding a lathi. However, in cross-examination by prosecution PW-3 stated he could not see whether A-1 was having Gandasa as he was crying for rescue at that time. He also asserted, if the investigating officer has written his statement regarding A-1 was armed with and used in the incident Gandasa then he would have been stated to him (I.O.). In view of the above the defence of A1 that he was not armed with Gandasa in the course of commission of offence is not corroborated with medical evidence. The expert opinion as to the lacerated wound depend before the court is that they might have been caused by some blunt end object like lathi. He further, added in case "Gandasa' is blown to inflict injury from it's reverse end which used to be blunt then it might have caused lacerated wound. The doctor's opinion firstly confirms in his report and statements apart of fire arm injuries on the body of deceased Ganga Ram, existence of lacerated wounds (at serial no.1 to 7) also on the body of the deceased Ganga Ram as ante mortem injuries. He opined further that such injuries might have been caused by using some blunt object. Further in cross-examination by the learned counsel for the defence that injuries No.1 and 2 could not be caused if the blows of lathi (stick) had been made from the side of legs of the deceased who lay fallen on the ground. Injuries no.1 and 2 are on the head of the deceased. It has come in statement on oath examination of PW-1 and PW-2 that A-2 was standing towards the head side of the Ganga Ram when he fell on ground and began to inflict blows of Gandasa. It is not asked by the learned counsel for the defence from aforesaid witness whether A-2 used the "Gandasa' for inflicting injuries from sharp edged and of the Gandasa or from reverse end which used to be blunt.

Corroboration from other materials proved in the Court.

86. The prosecution has produced for examination before the trial Judge the Head Moharrir (PW-5) who received the complaint (Exhibit Ka-1) from the informant PW-1 and registered the First Information Report which he proved when examined during trial as Exhibit Ka-4. He placed before the court the G.D. entry of the said FIR at serial no.29, in original and proved the FIR to have been registered in the P.S. Behta Gokul on 04.04.1985 at 7:30 p.m. He has also proved the fact that PW-1 and PW-6 both came together in Police Station to lodge FIR of the incident and that PW-6 was injured to whom he alongwith Chowkidar named "Subedar', sent for medical examination to District Hospital, Hardoi, along with his letter. Exhibit Ka-3. In cross examination this witness confirmed the special report pursuant to the lodging of FIR of the incident was sent to the concerned Magistrate at 8:40 p.m. on the same date 04.04.1985 through a constable named Abdul Samad. This witness as such proved one of the most vital fact, 'the prompt lodging of the FIR' of the incident on 04.04.1985 without any unreasonable delay. This overrules the argument of learned counsel for the defence as to the FIR being ante-timed and ante-dated. He further proved that PW-6 was injured at the time of his arrival at police station for filing FIR and proved this physical condition of PW-6 by showing entry to the same effect in the General Diary dated 04.04.1985 maintained in the Police Station.

87. Another police witness produced before the Trial Judge for examination is the Investigating Officer "Ram Ruchi Arya' as PW-8. He was posted in P.S. Behta Gokul as Additional Sub Inspector. He deposed before the Trial Judge that the FIR of the case concerned in the Police Station was lodged in his presence and that the investigation was handed over to him. He further proved the inquest report (Exhibit Ka-7) prepared in the presence of "Panch' witnesses on 04.04.1985, after enquiry of the dead body, in his own hand writing and signature. He stated that the then S.H.O. Jitendra Nath Singh, S.I. Vipin Singh and S.I. Shreepal Singh Constable Mohd. Yusuf and Ramasre Shukla (PW-7) were also present at the time of inquest. We thoroughly perused the Exhibit Ka-7 (Inquest report) it has properly mentioned crime no.48 registered under Section 302 IPC. None of the column in the prescribed format under Section 174 Cr.P.C is left unfilled. The time of occurrence date and place, the condition of the dead body, incised wounds and fire arm injuries present over the body of the deceased, the time when inquest proceeding started, the opinion of the witnesses as to cause of death all are duly filled. All the details furnished in the inquest report are in full consistency with those stated by the ocular witnesses in their deposition before the Court. The time of reporting as mentioned in Exhibit Ka-7 is 7:30 p.m. on 04.04.1985 and the initiation of proceeding at 9:30 p.m. whereas after completion of inquest proceeding the handing over of the dead body for post mortem at 10:30 p.m. on 04.04.1985 clearly overrules the argument as to the FIR being ante timed and ante dated. No discrepancy in inquest report is argued by learned counsel for defence but for the non mentioning of the name of accused therein. In this regard it would be relevant to give reference of the decision of Hon'ble Apex Court in Brahma Swaroop Vs. State of U.P. (2011) 6 SCC 288 in para-9 has held as under:-

"9. The whole purpose of preparing an inquest report under Section 174 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (hereinafter referred to as "CrPC") is to investigate into and draw up a report of the apparent cause of death, describing such wounds as may be found on the body of the deceased and stating as in what manner, or by what weapon or instrument such wounds appear to have been inflicted. For the purpose of holding the inquest it is neither necessary nor obligatory on the part of the investigating officer to investigate into or ascertain who were the persons responsible for the death. The object of the proceedings under Section 174 CrPC is merely to ascertain whether a person died under suspicious circumstances or met with an unnatural death and, if so, what was its apparent cause. The question regarding the details of how the deceased was assaulted or who assaulted him or under what circumstances he was assaulted is foreign to the ambit and scope of such proceedings i.e. the inquest report is not the statement of any person wherein all the names of the persons accused must be mentioned."

88. Summing up our discussion over the first point of determination framed by us we reached at the conclusion that the prosecution has been successful in proving it's case against the accused-appellants A-1, A-2 and A-3 beyond all reasonable doubts through it's witnesses PW-1, PW-6 who are totally reliable for the reason their deposition before the Trial Judge has ever been free from any inconsistency anomaly, contradiction or improbability and as such in totality give a true, natural and trustworthy graphical account of incident wherein on 04.04.1985 at about 6:00 p.m. the accused appellants (and Rajpal died during trial) attacked Ganga Ram, deceased popping out from their place of hiding with their respective weapons at the western end of the bridge over the Sharda Canal on the way to village Behta Gokul for the reason of enmity with the deceased. We do not find any error in the judgment of the Trial Judge in this regard.

Defence witnesses of behalf of the accused appellants

89. We have earlier held that in the present case before us, which is based on direct and ocular witnesses of the incident, the prosecution has been successful in proving it's case with the help of it's reliable and trustworthy witnesses of fact namely PW-1, PW-3 and PW-6 as well as the formal witnesses and medical witnesses against the accused appellant with regard to their presence and participation in the killing of Ganga Ram (deceased). After closure of prosecution evidence the Trial Judge called the accused appellants personally under Section 313 of the Cr.P.C. so as to enable them to explain incriminating circumstances emerging out from the evidence against them. As such all the three accused appellants were personally given opportunity to explain his stand on the incriminating circumstances in addition to what their counsels would have already done by way of cross-examination. All of them have availed the opportunity and commonly blamed the incriminating which came out from prosecution evidence to be "false implication by reason of enmity'. Further they all wanted to adduce evidence in their defence. One of them (A-2) namely "Babu Ram' in addition to the common explanation of "false implication due to enmity' claimed himself to be on duty in Board Examination thus took plea of alibi. Two witnesses namely Sushil Bajpayee (DW-1) and another "Gaya Prasad' (DW-2) were examined from the side of accused appellant.

90. We perused the judgment of learned Trial Judge to examine whether the defence offered by the accused has been duly considered or not. We found that in compliance of the mandatory duty cast upon the trial court under Section 313 (1)(b) Cr.P.C. the Trial Judge not only recorded the oral examination of the two defence witness DW-1 and DW-2 but also discussed in his judgment on the norms and parameter held by the decisions of our High Courts and the Apex Court for placing reliance on them. The Trial Judge found the plea of alibi not tenable on the ground of specifying the name and identification of the person in respect of whom the photo copy of a duty chart of Board Examination was placed before the Court, the want of mention of specific session of exam whether forenoon or afternoon and period of examination. Likewise the primary fact of appointment and posting of the accused (A-2) as teacher or in any other capacity in the institution at the relevant date was not shown. So far as the document (duty chart in Board Examination) is concerned the trial court observed, it was not admissible for the uncertainty as to the authority who prepared and issued the same. The Trial Judge considered DW-2 as a witness planned to save the accused appellants otherwise by his deposition he has admitted and proved the day, date, time and place of incident along with one of the accused appellant, Raj Pal. Before proceeding to scrutinize the evidence of the defense witnesses, we think it proper to give reference of some decisions of Hon'ble Apex Court relevant to the issue.

91. Hon'ble Apex Court in a recent judgment delivered in Reena Hazarika Vs. State of Assam (2019) 13 SCC 289 has discussed the scope of Section 313 Cr.P.C. and nature of burden of proof of defence given by the accused. Hon'ble Apex Court in para 19, 20, 21 has held as under:-

"19. Section 313 CrPC cannot be seen simply as a part of audi alteram partem. It confers a valuable right upon an accused to establish his innocence and can well be considered beyond a statutory right as a constitutional right to a fair trial under Article 21 of the Constitution, even if it is not to be considered as a piece of substantive evidence, not being on oath under Section 313(2) CrPC. The importance of this right has been considered time and again by this Court, but it yet remains to be applied in practice as we shall see presently in the discussion to follow. If the accused takes a defence after the prosecution evidence is closed, under Section 313(1)(b) CrPC the Court is duty-bound under Section 313(4) CrPC to consider the same. The mere use of the word "may" cannot be held to confer a discretionary power on the court to consider or not to consider such defence, since it constitutes a valuable right of an accused for access to justice, and the likelihood of the prejudice that may be caused thereby. Whether the defence is acceptable or not and whether it is compatible or incompatible with the evidence available, is an entirely different matter. If there has been no consideration at all of the defence taken under Section 313 CrPC, in the given facts of a case, the conviction may well stand vitiated. To our mind, a solemn duty is cast on the court in dispensation of justice to adequately consider the defence of the accused taken under Section 313 CrPC and to either accept or reject the same for reasons specified in writing.

20. Unfortunately neither the trial court nor the High Court considered it necessary to take notice of, much less discuss or observe with regard to the aforesaid defence by the appellant under Section 313 CrPC to either accept or reject it. The defence taken cannot be said to be irrelevant, illogical or fanciful in the entirety of the facts and the nature of other evidence available as discussed hereinbefore. The complete non-consideration thereof has clearly caused prejudice to the appellant. Unlike the prosecution, the accused is not required to establish the defence beyond all reasonable doubt. The accused has only to raise doubts on a preponderance of probability as observed in Hate Singh Bhagat Singh v. State of Madhya Bharat [Hate Singh Bhagat Singh v. State of Madhya Bharat, AIR 1953 SC 468 : 1953 Cri LJ 1933] observing as follows: (AIR p. 471, para 26)

"26. We have examined the evidence at length in this case, not because it is our desire to depart from our usual practice of declining to re-assess the evidence in an appeal here, but because there has been in this case a departure from the rule that when an accused person puts forward a reasonable defence which is likely to be true.... then the burden on the other side becomes all the heavier because a reasonable and probable story likely to be true when pitted against a weak and vacillating case is bound to raise reasonable doubts of which the accused must get the benefit. ..."

21. A similar view is expressed in M. Abbas v. State of Kerala [M. Abbas v. State of Kerala, (2001) 10 SCC 103 : 2002 SCC (Cri) 1270] as follows: (SCC p. 108, para 10)

"10. ... On the other hand, the explanation given by the appellant both during the cross-examination of prosecution witnesses and in his own statement recorded under Section 313 CrPC is quite plausible. Where an accused sets up a defence or offers an explanation, it is well settled that he is not required to prove his defence beyond a reasonable doubt but only by preponderance of probabilities. ..."

92. Here the question before us, is that whether, against the proved case of prosecution as to the presence and participation of accused in crime, the accused persons have put forward a reasonable defence which is likely to be true and can raise a reasonable doubt against the prosecution case. We think it proper to consider the defence case one by one.

(a) Plea of Alibi by accused appellant A-2 (Babu Ram)

93. To examine the plea of alibi set as defence by accused Baboo Ram we have gone through the evidences of PW-1, PW-3 and PW-6. The presence of the said accused on spot of crime his participation along with other accused in commission of crime is proved consistently by all the witnesses of fact named above. The nature of injury found on the body of deceased also corroborated the deposition of eye witnesses. We carefully scrutinized the chief examination and thereafter the cross examination of all the three witnesses of fact whether fact of Baboo Ram's having his employment on the relevant period of incident in an educational institution in any capacity teaching or non-teaching staff. Even assuming him on duty the distance of institution from the spot of incident is not asked from any of the said witness. Moreover, in statement recorded under Section 313 (1)(b) Cr.P.C., this accused has not stated his status as teaching or non-teaching staff in a particular institution. He simply stated, I was on duty in board exam. Further DW-1 Sushil Bajpayee was produced, he too had not disclosed the capacity in which he was in board examination duty on 04.04.1985 in the Inter College "Pali', District Hardoi. He stated about one Baboo Ram Verma working with him on that day in examination duty. He filed a photo state copy of document purported to be duty chart of examination duty of the 04.04.1985 is second session but failed to state who prepared the same and who was the authority to issue that. In totality of facts and circumstances available on record as proved by the evidences, where the issue is whether the accused Baboo Ram was present anywhere else other than the spot of incident, there is nothing on record even to make it possible at least by preponderance of probability.

94. Hon'ble the Apex Court in the judgment delivered in Sheikh Sattar Vs. State of Maharashtra (2010) 8 SCC 430 has held, the burden to establish the plea of alibi is on the accused. Para 34 and 35 are thus reads as under:-

"34. Except for making a bald assertion about his absence from his rented premises, the appellant miserably failed to give any particulars about any individual in whose presence, he may have read the namaz in the morning. He examined no witness from Chikalthana before whom he may have read the Koran in the evening prior to the incident. He examined nobody, who could have seen him in the masjid during the night of the incident. Therefore, the trial court as also the High Court concluded that this plea of being away from the rented premises at the relevant time was concocted.

35. Undoubtedly, the burden of establishing the plea of alibi lay upon the appellant. The appellant herein has miserably failed to bring on record any facts or circumstances which would make the plea of his absence even probable, let alone, being proved beyond reasonable doubt. The plea of alibi had to be proved with absolute certainty so as to completely exclude the possibility of the presence of the appellant in the rented premises at the relevant time. When a plea of alibi is raised by an accused it is for the accused to establish the said plea by positive evidence which has not been led in the present case. We may also notice here at this stage the proposition of law laid down in Gurpreet Singh v. State of Haryana [(2002) 8 SCC 18 : 2003 SCC (Cri) 186] as follows: (SCC p. 27, para 20)

"20. ... This plea of alibi stands disbelieved by both the courts and since the plea of alibi is a question of fact and since both the courts concurrently found that fact against the appellant, the accused, this Court in our view, cannot on an appeal by special leave go behind the abovenoted concurrent finding of fact."

95. This view was further reiterated by the Apex Court in para-64 and 71 of Jitendra Kumar Vs. State of Haryana (2012) 6 SCC 204 which reads as under:-

"64. The mere fact that the accused were residents of a village at some distance would be inconsequential. As per the statement of the witnesses, both these accused were seen by them in the house of Ratti Ram where the deceased was murdered. We are also unable to accept the contention that presence of PW 10 and PW 11 at the place of occurrence was doubtful and the statements of these witnesses are not trustworthy.

71. Once PW 10 and PW 11 are believed and their statements are found to be trustworthy, as rightly dealt with by the courts below, then the plea of abili raised by the accused loses its significance. The burden of establishing the plea of alibi lay upon the appellants and the appellants have failed to bring on record any such evidence which would, even by reasonable probability, establish their plea of alibi. The plea of alibi in fact is required to be proved with certainty so as to completely exclude the possibility of the presence of the accused at the place of occurrence and in the house which was the home of their relatives. (Ref. Sk. Sattar v. State of Maharashtra [(2010) 8 SCC 430 : (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 906] .)"

96. Thus we uphold the finding of learned Trial Judge that accused appellant Baboo Ram failed to establish his plea of alibi even on the preponderance of probabilities in the totality of proven facts and circumstances as on record.

(b) false implication due enmity

97. In one of the preceding paras under the head "enmity' we have discussed the evidence on record by cross examination of PW-1 and PW-6 the real brothers of deceased Ganga Ram. We have found it proved that whatever enmity might have been is amongst Ganga Ram and the accused brother Lala Ram, Baboo Ram. The proved reason of enmity was the murder of "Digga' father of accused brothers Lala Ram and Baboo Ram, for which they were prosecuting Ganga Ram and two others namely Vishram and Ram Kumar. The trial ended at the level of Sessions Judge with conviction of the accused but in appeal by Ganga Ram he was released on bail by the High Court. Admittedly none of the witness was accused in that trial nor any civil or criminal litigation was pending between the witnesses and the accused. Therefore, by cross examination whatever material came on record, it is not proved that the witnesses aforesaid shared any enmity against accused with Ganga Ram (deceased).

98. The witness DW-2 "Gaya Prasad' claims himself an eye witness of the incident. He stated to have seen the murder of "Ganga Ram' by Raj Pal (died duing trial) and three other unknown assailants to whom he identified in District Jail Hardoi. He stated that the family members of Ganga Ram and the I.O. were told by him about the assailants. In cross examination he stated that he don't know why he is not made a witness in the case by prosecution. The Trial Judge has evaluated his deposition and found him an unreliable witness coming forward to save the accused by false story.

99. We scrutinized the evidence of DW-2 Gaya Prasad along with other facts proved on evidence of prosecution witnesses. PW-1 in his statement on oath dated 20.12.1986 in para-4 have stated about the aforesaid "Gaya Prasad' that he knows him as he is resident of the same village Behta Gokul to which he belongs. He further told the court that Gaya Prasad is the companion of Deo Narayan and Ram Murari, his enemies. He ruled out the involvement of any stranger than the named accused as stated by the witnesses DW-2. DW-2 stated that he told the I.O. the fact of unknown assailants, but this seems to be false because on 04.04.1985 just after the time of occurrence at 6:00 p.m. in Police Station Behta Gokul FIR of the incident was lodged at 7:30 p.m. against the named accused namely Raj Pal, Lala Ram, Baboo Ram and Ram Pal. Even the special report to concerned Magistrate was sent and thereafter inquest proceeding was initiated on spot of incident at 9:30 p.m. and completed by 10:30 p.m. Till then the "Gaya Prasad' did not appear as eye witness. It may be seen in the inquest report itself (Exhibit Ka-7) wherein name of the Panch witnesses present on spot is written which does not include name of Gaya Prasad. Even the hostile witness PW-3 in his cross-examination by defence counsel firmly denied the presence of any other witness on spot than him, Kadhiley and PW's 1 and 3. All these prove the DW-2 an inimical witness to the PW-1 and PW-6 the real brother of Ganga Ram. He seems to be a fictitious witness planned to save the accused. The Trial Judge is not in error to hold this witness unreliable, because the witness whether of prosecution or of defence has to fulfill the same criterion as to be treated trustworthy and reliable.

100. On the basis of above discussion we reached at the conclusion that the accused appellant could not establish defence set up by them even on preponderance of probabilities so as to raise any doubt as to the prosecution case.

Liability under Section 34 IPC

101. Our second point of determination in these three criminal appeals of accused appellants is as to their liability consequent upon their joint participation in the commission of crime. Before we proceed to discuss this issue it would be relevant to refer hereunder the provision of Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 which reads as under:-

"34. Acts done by several persons in furtherance of common intention.--When a criminal act is done by several persons in furtherance of the common intention of all, each of such persons is liable for that act in the same manner as if it were done by him alone."

102. Simply stating Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code, provides that all those persons who have committed a crime with a common intention and they have acted while keeping in mind their common institution, then every one should be liable for the act of another done in common intention as if the act is done by the person alone. This is the concept of joint liability enshrined in the Section 34 IPC. The essential ingredients for the application of the joint liability under Section 34 of the IPC obvious from it's language are-

(i) a criminal act is done by several persons.

(ii) the criminal act must be to further the common intention of all,

(iii) there must be participation of all the persons in furthering the common intention.

103. The learned Trial Judge took into consideration the proved facts and materials on record in the light of the three essential ingredients referred hereinabove and held the accused in furtherance of their common intention to take revenge of the murder of accused appellants' (A-2 and A-3) father "Digga' sat hidden with their weapons on the way leading to Ganga Ram's home and when he reached near they suddenly jumped out and intercepted him. A-3 and Rajpal (died during trial) fired on Ganga Ram with their respective fire arms injured thereby when he collapsed on the ground A-2 and A-1 inflicted on his body the blows of their respective weapon namely Gandasa and lathi. Seeing the people rushing to the spot on the hue and cry made by PW's 1, 3 and 6 all the accused fled away from the spot. The Trial Judge on the basis of the said proved facts held all the accused to have participation and role in murder of "Ganga Ram' committed in furtherance of their common intention. Accordingly, he convicted all of them being jointly liable for the offence punishable under Section 302 read with aid of Section 34 IPC.

104. Out of the four accused persons Raj Pal (died during trial) and his case stood abated before the final decision in the trial. The rest of the three convicted accused A-1 (Baboo Ram) A-2 (Ram Pal) and A-3 (Lala Ram) have preferred separate appeals. The vehemence of argument done by their learned counsel is upon the effect caused from specific weapon assigned to them by prosecution and the nature of injury caused to the deceased through their weapon, whether fatal in consequence and sufficient to cause his death. However, with regard to A1 one fact proved on the evidence by deposition of PW-1, PW-6 and PW-3. Consequently, is the presence of all the four accused from the very inception throughout the occurrence of incident. The medical expert's opinion (PW-2, Dr. Surendra Singh) is also corroborative of the evidence of eye witnesses that the cause of death of Ganga Ram is the shock and excessive hemorrhage due to ante mortem injuries. The ante mortem injuries mentioned in the inquest report Exhibit Ka-7 and post mortem report (Exhibit Ka-2) are not only the fire arm wounds but also large and deep lacerated wound on head and other part of the body.

105. In the context of above proved facts it would be relevant to refer one of the earliest case on the concept of joint liability under Section 34 IPC decided by the Privy Council, 'Barendra Kumar Ghosh Vs. King Emperor' (AIR 1925 P.C. 1) where the court convicted one person for the act of another done in furtherance of common intention. The fact of the case are that several armed persons entered into a post office to extort money from the post master who was counting there the cash. They fired on him from pistol due to which he died on the spot. All the assailants fled away without taking money. The police caught one of the assailants Barendra Kumar Ghosh who was standing outside the post office for watching the police and alarm the other members of the group. Calcutta High Court rejected his plea that he was only a watchman and convicted him under Section 302 IPC with the aid of Section 34 IPC. Privi council also rejected the appeal.

106. A perusal of the evidence of PWs no.1, 3 and 6 the presence over spot of incident and participation in crime of all the accused is proved. Therefore, to gather from the evidences inference as to a common intention and that the accused persons were acting in furtherance thereto so as to fasten their joint liability, irrespective of the weapon assigned to them and their use by them it would be relevant to refer the judgment of the Constitution Bench of the Supreme Court in Mohan Singh Vs. State of Punjab AIR 1963 SC 174, relevant para nos. 14 and 15 are thus reads as under:-

"14. What then are the facts and circumstances proved in the present case? It is proved that the appellants shared with Dalip Singh the motive which impelled Dalip Singh to inflict the fatal blow on Gurdip Singh. The close relationship between the appellants and Dalip Singh leaves no room for doubt that they shared the same motive with Dalip Singh to the same extent. It is also proved that Dalip Singh and the two appellants were lying in wait for Gurdip Singh. We have also seen that when the party accompanying Gurdip Singh told the appellant Mohan Singh that the Patwari and the Qanungo had come on the spot to deliver possession of the land to Gurdip Singh, Mohan Singh pretended that he was hungry and went away. Then he seems to have contacted Dalip Singh and Jagir Singh and all the three were lying in wait for Gurdip Singh, who, they knew, would pass that way. Thus, the two appellants and Dalip Singh deliberately concealed themselves behind a grove of Khajoor trees and were armed with lathis. This conduct on the part of the three assailants clearly shows that they had the common intention of fatally assaulting Gurdip Singh. That alone can explain why they were armed with lathis and why they hid themselves behind the Khajoor trees. Besides, as soon as Gurdip Singh and Harnam Singh came near the place where the appellants lay concealed, all of them rushed on Gurdip Singh and chased him when he and Harnam Singh began to run away. This conduct also clearly indicates the presence of the common intention. After chasing the victims, three of them surrounded them and Dalip Singh gave the fatal blow on Gurdip Singh. In the act of surrounding Gurdip Singh, the two appellants undoubtedly played their part and thus helped Dalip Singh. After Gurdip Singh was fatally assaulted, the three assailants apprehended that the villagers would rush on the scene because an alarm had then been raised and so, they ran away together. On these facts, the conclusion appears to be inescapable that the appellants and Dalip Singh were actuated by the common intention to kill Gurdip Singh and the attack made by Dalip Singh on Gurdip Singh was in furtherance of the said common intention. Therefore, in our opinion, there is no difficulty whatever in coming to the conclusion that the appellants are guilty under Section 302/34 of the Indian Penal Code. We have no doubt that if the appellants had raised before the High Court the contention that Section 149 was inapplicable to their case, the High Penal Code. This modification in the order of the conviction does not require any change in the order of sentence at all. For the offence under Section 302, read with Section 34 of which we are convicting them, they would be sentenced to imprisonment for life. The conviction and sentence for the offence under Section 147 is, however, set aside and they are ordered to be acquitted in respect of that offence." Court would have without any hesitation altered their conviction from under Section 302/149 into one under Section 302, read with Section 34.

15. The result is, the conviction of the appellants is accordingly altered into one under Section 302, read with Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code. This modification in the order of the conviction does not require any change in the order of sentence at all. For the offence under Section 302, read with Section 34 of which we are convicting them, they would be sentenced to imprisonment for life. The conviction and sentence for the offence under Section 147 is, however, set aside and they are ordered to be acquitted in respect of that offence."

107. In a latest case before Hon'ble Supreme Court Virendra Vs. State of Haryana decided on 16.12.2019 by Hon'ble Mohan M. Shantanagendar and

K.M. Joseph, J.J. (Manu/SC/1751/2019), it is held as under:-

"11. In order to invoke the principle of joint liability in the commission of a criminal act as laid down in Section 34, the prosecution should show that the criminal act in question was done by one of the accused persons in furtherance of the common intention of all. If this is shown, the liability for the offence may be imposed on any one of the persons in the same manner as if the act was done by him alone. It may be difficult to procure direct evidence to prove the intention of an individual, and in most cases it has to be inferred from the facts and relevant circumstances of the case. The common intention may be through a pre-arranged plan, or it may be generated just prior to the incident. Just as a combination of persons sharing the same common object is one of the features of an unlawful assembly, so is the existence of a combination of persons sharing the same common intention one of the features of Section 34."

108. Each case has to rest on its own facts. Whether the crime is committed in furtherance of common intention or not, well depend upon the material brought on record and the appreciation thereof in proper perspective. Hon'ble the Apex Court in Vijendra Singh & Ors. Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh AIR 2017 SC 860 : (2017) 11 SCC 129 has given reference of some of it's earliest decision which are :-

"22. In this regard, we may usefully refer to a passage from the authority in Pandurang v. State of Hyderabad [Pandurang v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1955 SC 216 : 1955 Cri LJ 572] . The three-Judge Bench in the said case adverted to the applicability and scope of Section 34 IPC and in that context ruled that: (AIR p. 222, paras 32-33)

"32. ... It requires a prearranged plan because before a man can be vicariously convicted for the criminal act of another, the act must have been done in furtherance of the common intention of them all: Mahbub Shah v. King Emperor [Mahbub Shah v. King Emperor, 1945 SCC OnLine PC 5 : (1944-45) 72 IA 148 : AIR 1945 PC 118] . Accordingly there must have been a prior meeting of minds. Several persons can simultaneously attack a man and each can have the same intention, namely, the intention to kill, and each can individually inflict a separate fatal blow and yet none would have the common intention required by the section because there was no prior meeting of minds to form a prearranged plan. In a case like that, each would be individually liable for whatever injury he caused but none could be vicariously convicted for the act of any of the others; and if the prosecution cannot prove that his separate blow was a fatal one he cannot be convicted of the murder however clearly an intention to kill could be proved in his case: Barendra Kumar Ghosh v. King Emperor [Barendra Kumar Ghosh v. King Emperor, 1924 SCC OnLine PC 49 : (1924-25) 52 IA 40 : AIR 1925 PC 1] and Mahbub Shah v. King Emperor [Mahbub Shah v. King Emperor, 1945 SCC OnLine PC 5 : (1944-45) 72 IA 148 : AIR 1945 PC 118] . As their Lordships say in the latter case, ''the partition which divides their bounds is often very thin: nevertheless, the distinction is real and substantial, and if overlooked will result in miscarriage of justice'.

33. The plan need not be elaborate, nor is a long interval of time required. It could arise and be formed suddenly, as for example when one man calls on bystanders to help him kill a given individual and they, either by their words or their acts, indicate their assent to him and join him in the assault. There is then the necessary meeting of the minds. There is a prearranged plan however hastily formed and rudely conceived. But prearrangement there must be and premeditated concert. It is not enough, as in the latter Privy Council case, to have the same intention independently of each other, e.g., the intention to rescue another and, if necessary, to kill those who oppose."

23. And, again: (Pandurang case [Pandurang v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1955 SC 216 : 1955 Cri LJ 572] , AIR p. 222, para 34)

"34. ... But to say this is no more than to reproduce the ordinary rule about circumstantial evidence, for there is no special rule of evidence for this class of case. At bottom, it is a question of fact in every case and however similar the circumstances, facts in one case cannot be used as a precedent to determine the conclusion on the facts in another. All that is necessary is either to have direct proof of prior concert, or proof of circumstances which necessarily lead to that inference, or, as we prefer to put it in the time-honoured way, ''the incriminating facts must be incompatible with the innocence of the accused and incapable of explanation on any other reasonable hypothesis'. (Sarkar's Evidence, 8th Edn., p. 30.)"

24. In this context, we may refer with profit to the statement of law as expounded by the Constitution Bench in Mohan Singh [Mohan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1963 SC 174 : (1963) 1 Cri LJ 100] . In the said case, the Constitution Bench has held that Section 34 that deals with cases of constructive criminal liability provides that if a criminal act is done by several persons in furtherance of the common intention of all, each of such person is liable for the act in the same manner as if it were done by him alone. It has been further observed that the essential constituent of the vicarious criminal liability prescribed by Section 34 is the existence of common intention. The common intention in question animates the accused persons and if the said common intention leads to commission of the criminal offence charged, each of the person sharing the common intention is constructively liable for the criminal act done by one of them. The larger Bench dealing with the concept of constructive criminal liability under Sections 149 and 34 IPC, expressed that just as the combination of persons sharing the same common object is one of the features of an unlawful assembly, so the existence of a combination of persons sharing the same common intention is one of the features of Section 34. In some ways the two sections are similar and in some cases they may overlap. The common intention which is the basis of Section 34 is different from the common object which is the basis of the composition of an unlawful assembly. Common intention denotes action-in-concert and necessarily postulates the existence of a prearranged plan and that must mean a prior meeting of minds. It would be noticed that cases to which Section 34 can be applied disclose an element of participation in action on the part of all the accused persons. The acts may be different; may vary in their character, but they are all actuated by the same common intention. Thereafter, the Court held: (Mohan Singh case [Mohan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1963 SC 174 : (1963) 1 Cri LJ 100] , AIR p. 181, para 13)

"13. ... It is now well settled that the common intention required by Section 34 is different from the same intention or similar intention. As has been observed by the Privy Council in Mahbub Shah v. King Emperor [Mahbub Shah v. King Emperor, 1945 SCC OnLine PC 5 : (1944-45) 72 IA 148 : AIR 1945 PC 118] common intention within the meaning of Section 34 implies a prearranged plan, and to convict the accused of an offence applying the section it should be proved that the criminal act was done in concert pursuant to the prearranged plan and that the inference of common intention should never be reached unless it is a necessary inference deducible from the circumstances of the case."

25. In Harshadsingh Pahelvansingh Thakore [Harshadsingh Pahelvansingh Thakore v. State of Gujarat, (1976) 4 SCC 640 : 1977 SCC (Cri) 26] , a three-Judge Bench, while dealing with constructive liability under Section 34 IPC has ruled thus: (AIR p. 643, para 7)

"7. ... Section 34 IPC fixing constructive liability conclusively silences such a refined plea of extrication. (See Amir Hussain v. State of U.P. [Amir Hussain v. State of U.P., (1975) 4 SCC 247 : 1975 SCC (Cri) 505] ; Maina Singh v. State of Rajasthan [Maina Singh v. State of Rajasthan, (1976) 2 SCC 827 : 1976 SCC (Cri) 332] .) Lord Sumner's classic legal shorthand for constructive criminal liability, expressed in the Miltonic verse "They also serve who only stand and wait" a fortiori embraces cases of common intent instantly formed, triggering a plurality of persons into an adventure in criminality, some hitting, some missing, some splitting hostile heads, some spilling drops of blood. Guilt goes with community of intent coupled with participatory presence or operation. No finer juristic niceties can be pressed into service to nullify or jettison the plain punitive purpose of the Penal Code."

26. In Lallan Rai v. State of Bihar [Lallan Rai v. State of Bihar, (2003) 1 SCC 268 : 2003 SCC (Cri) 301] the Court relying upon the principle laid down in Barendra Kumar Ghosh [Barendra Kumar Ghosh v. King Emperor, 1924 SCC OnLine PC 49 : (1924-25) 52 IA 40 : AIR 1925 PC 1] has ruled that the essence of Section 34 is simultaneous consensus of the mind of persons participating in the criminal action to bring about a particular result.

27. In Goudappa v. State of Karnataka [Goudappa v. State of Karnataka, (2013) 3 SCC 675 : (2013) 2 SCC (Cri) 8] the Court has reiterated the principle by opining that Section 34 IPC lays down a principle of joint liability in doing a criminal act and the essence of that liability is to be found in the existence of common intention. The Court posed the question how to gather the common intention and answering the same held that the common intention is gathered from the manner in which the crime has been committed, the conduct of the accused soon before and after the occurrence, the determination and concern with which the crime was committed, the weapon carried by the accused and from the nature of the injury caused by one or some of them and for arriving at a conclusion whether the accused had the common intention to commit an offence of which they could be convicted, the totality of circumstances must be taken into consideration.

28. The aforesaid authorities make it absolutely clear that each case has to rest on its own facts. Whether the crime is committed in furtherance of common intention or not, will depend upon the material brought on record and the appreciation thereof in proper perspective. Facts of two cases cannot be regarded as similar. Common intention can be gathered from the circumstances that are brought on record by the prosecution. Common intention can be conceived immediately or at the time of offence. Thus, the applicability of Section 34 IPC is a question of fact and is to be ascertained from the evidence brought on record. The common intention to bring about a particular result may well develop on the spot as between a number of persons, with reference to the fact of the case and circumstances of the situation. Whether in a proved situation all the individuals concerned therein have developed only simultaneous and independent intentions or whether a simultaneous consensus of their minds to bring about a particular result can be said to have been developed and thereby intended by all of them, is a question that has to be determined on the facts. (See Kripal v. State of U.P. [Kripal v. State of U.P., AIR 1954 SC 706 : 1954 Cri LJ 1757] .) In Bharwad Mepa Dana v. State of Bombay [Bharwad Mepa Dana v. State of Bombay, AIR 1960 SC 289 : 1960 Cri LJ 424] , it has been held that Section 34 IPC is intended to meet a case in which it may be difficult to distinguish the acts of individual members of a party who act in furtherance of the common intention of all or to prove exactly what part was taken by each of them. The principle which the section embodies is participation in some action with the common intention of committing a crime; once such participation is established, Section 34 is at once attracted.

This extract is taken from Vijendra Singh v. State of U.P., (2017) 11 SCC 129 : (2017) 3 SCC (Cri) 881 : 2017 SCC OnLine SC 21 at page 145

29. In the case at hand, it is contended that there is no injury caused by lathi or ballam. Absence of any injury caused by a lathi cannot be the governing factor to rule out Section 34 IPC. It is manifest from the evidence that the appellant-accused had accompanied the other accused persons who were armed with gun and they themselves carried lathi and ballam respectively. The carrying of weapons, arrival at a particular place and at the same time, entering into the shed and murder of the deceased definitely attract the constructive liability as engrafted under Section 34 IPC."

109. Similarly in the case before us the argument raised by the learned counsel for A-1 (Baboo Ram) and A-2 (Ram Pal) that there is no injury sufficient to cause death of Ganga Ram by lathi and Gandasa, absence of any such injury cannot be the governing factor to rule out application of Section 34 IPC. It is manifest from the evidence that the said appellant accused armed with their respective weapon (lathi and Gandasa) had accompanied the two other accused armed with Gun and country made pistol. The carrying of weapon, sitting collectively at the place of hiding adjacent to the spot of incident waiting for the Ganga Ram (deceased) who was on the way back to home along with his brothers PW-1 and PW-6 intercepting Ganga Ram, hurling fire from the gun and pistol by two accused and when Ganga Ram fell collapsed on the ground beating him by other two accused from their lathi and Gandasa. As such they assured his death and then fled away from the spot seeing the people rushing to the spot on cries to rescue raised by the witnesses. All these proved facts circumstances and materials available on record attract the constructive liability enshrined in the provision of Section 34 of the IPC.

110. Therefore, the act of accused appellants collectively amounts culpable homicide amounting to murder under Section 300 IPC punishable under Section 302 IPC brings all of them under joint liability of the offence irrespective of their weapons and injury caused thereby to the deceased, Ganga Ram. We do not find error in finding of the learned Trial Judge in this regard. It is evincible from the evidences that all the accused were in prior concert and preplanned to kill Ganga Ram and to further this common intention they sat armed together in their place of hiding and in continuance of the same common intention they intercepted Ganga Ram when he reached near to them and ultimately after killing him fled away. We reached thus at the conclusion that accused appellants are jointly liable for the offence of murder of Ganga Ram punishable under Section 302 IPC with the aid of Section 34 IPC.

111. In view of the aforesaid analysis, we do not find any merit in all the three criminal appeal Nos. 371 of 2009 (Baboo Ram Vs. State of U.P.), 577 of 2009 (Ram Pal Vs. State of U.P.) and 655 of 2009 (Lala Ram Vs. State of U.P.) and the same is accordingly liable to be dismissed.

Order

(i) The criminal appeal nos. 371/2009 preferred by accused-appellant Babu Ram, 377/2009 preferred by accused-appellant Ram Pal and 655/2009 preferred by Lala Ram are arising out of judgment and order of sentence passed in Sessions Trial No.431 of 1985, Crime No.48/1985, Police Station Behta Gokul, District Hardoi under Section 302/34 IPC are dismissed. The judgment and order of sentence of life imprisonment along with sentence of fine imposed on each one and consequent upon the failure to deposit the same further imprisonment of six months are confirmed.

(ii) The accused appellant Babu Ram, Ram Pal and Lala Ram are on bail. Their bail bonds and surety bonds are hereby cancelled, the sureties are therefore discharged.

(iii) The accused appellants Ram Pal, Babu Ram and Lala Ram are ordered to surrender before the court of Chief Judicial Magistrate, District Judgeship of Hardoi within 15 days from the date of order. In case of their failure to surrender within aforesaid period, the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Hardoi in order to ensure the compliance shall adopt all coercive measures in accordance with law and send them to jail for undergoing sentence of life imprisonment.

(iv) In case of failure to comply with the sentence of fine the Chief Judicial Magistrate is to ensure the recovery in accordance with law.

(v) Copy of the judgment be sent to Sessions Judge, Hardoi to ensure compliance under intimation to this Court.

(vi) The Office is directed to provide the copy of the judgment separately to all the three appellant promptly.

(vii) The office is further directed to enter the judgment in compliance register maintained for the purpose on the Court.

Criminal Appeal No. 612 of 1996

Jagat Pal & Ors. ...Appellants(In Jail)
Versus
The State of U.P. ...Opposite Party

Counsel for the Appellants:
Sri Sri R.K. Saxena, Sri Sukhveer[A.C.]

Counsel for the Opposite Party:
A.G.A.

Delay of 9 hours in lodging the FIR and convincing and reasonable explanation has not been furnished- Testimony of fact witnesses not in consonance with the FIR version- Where the witness has changed his version and has narrated a new set of facts which neither finds mention in FIR nor in his statement recorded by I.O under section 161 CrPC and which changes the nature and character of his evidence, the evidence becomes significantly contradictory and such improvement shatters his credibility as witness- It amounts to material contradiction and improvement and such evidence is not acceptable and should be discarded – Contradiction between the medical with the ocular evidence- The prosecution has not been able to show and prove the source of light at the time of incident in which the two fact witnesses saw the accused persons, nor has been able to discover any incriminatory article- No reason or motive has been alleged nor there was any enmity between the deceased and accused persons leading to such criminal act.

Held- Delay in lodging FIR- Where the witnesses are unreliable, the delay in lodging the FIR without any explanation becomes fatal for the case of the prosecution.

Evidence Law- Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 155- Credibility of witness- Material contradictions and improvements in the testimony of a witness renders his evidence untrustworthy and unreliable and should be discarded.

Absence of corroborative evidence- Where the medical evidence contradicts the ocular version and there is absence of corroboration of the ocular evidence, the presence of the prosecution witnesses becomes doubtful.

Evidence law-Indian Evidence Act, 1872 – Section 9- Identification of the accused- Early hours of winter morning and no recovery of source of light (torches) makes the identification of the accused doubtful.

Evidence Law -Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 8 - Absence of motive- The prosecution has failed to bring out any motive and on the contrary there was pre-existing bitterness which caused the false implication of the appellants.

The learned trial court has ignored the infirmities and shortcomings in the evidence and prosecution case. The impugned judgement is perverse, illegal and not sustainable under law and is liable to be set aside.

1. Heard Sri Sukhveer Singh, Amicus Curiae, for the appellants and Ms. Meena, learned AGA for the State.

2. This criminal appeal has been filed against the impugned judgment dated 23.3.1996 passed by 3rd Additional Sessions Judge, Kanpur Nagar in ST No. 369 of 1992 arising out of Case Crime No. 16 of 1992 under Sections 302, 323, 506 IPC, Police Station Maharajpur, District Kanpur Nagar, by which the accused-appellants namely Jagat Pal, Jhabboo @ Somnath and Prithvi Pal have been convicted for the offence under Sections 302/34 and 323/34 IPC and have been sentenced to undergo life imprisonment for the offence under Section 302 IPC and three months imprisonment under Section 323 IPC with Rs. 500/- fine each and in default additional imprisonment of one month.

3. Vide order dated 22.11.2019 of this Court, criminal appeal has been abated in respect of appellant no.3 namely Prithvi Pal on account of his death report.

4. Brief facts of this case is that the informant Putti Lal gave a written report on 9.1.1992 at 13:15 PM in respect of criminal incident dated 9.1.1992 at about 4:00 AM in mid night. Ramdhani, nephew of informant, was sleeping on the tube-well at the time of incident and next day in the morning, for a long time when he did not return, his mother asked the informant to go and see why Ramdhani has not come till now from the tube-well. At about 10:00 AM in the morning when the informant was going to the tube-well, on the way he heard the sound of groaning and crying from the tube-well of Ramlal Kushwaha. He went there and found there Ramlal Kushwaha lying on his cot and was groaning. He had incurred bleeding injuries on his mouth. He asked about it then he told that in the mid night at about 4:00 AM Jagat Pal Singh son of Babu Singh Thakur, Jhabboo @ Somnath son of Ved Prakash and Prithvi Pal son of Munni Lal Pasi of the village were assaulting Ramdhani on his tube-well. Hearing his cry, he challenged and cried out 'who is there' and 'I am coming'. Hearing his voice all the three accused persons after killing Ramdhani came to him and threatened him that if he told about it to anyone they would kill him. He said that they have committed a wrong thing by killing Ramdhani whereupon they started beating him by fist and hockey stick. The informant then went to the tube-well of Ramdhani and found that Ramdhani was lying dead below the cot. He told about it in the village and Bihari, Ramesh, Sanwari Lal, Rajkumar and other persons came on the tube-well and at the same time Ramlal s/o Murali, Ram Avatar and Brij Bihari also came and they said that they had also seen the incident. The informant Putti Lal (PW-1) along with Ramlal (PW-2) and Sanwari (PW-3) went to the police station and gave a written report. The offence was registered against the three accused persons namely Jagat Pal, Jhabboo @ Somnath and Prithvi Pal for the offence under Sections 302, 323 and 506 IPC and chik was prepared. The injured Ramlal was sent to hospital and he was medically examined on the injury letter of the police. The police went to the spot and the dead body was taken into possession and sealed. Inquest report was prepared, papers necessary for post-mortem were also prepared and the dead body was handed over to the police personnel to take the same to the District Hospital for post-mortem, where the post-mortem of the dead body was conducted.

5. The Investigating Officer went to the spot and recorded the statement of the witness, prepared spot map and after obtaining the post-mortem report and finding sufficient evidence against the accused persons, submitted charge sheet against them under the aforesaid sections. Charges were framed against the accused persons for the offence under Sections 302/34, 323/34 and 506 IPC. The accused persons denied the charge and claimed trial. Nine witnesses were examined by the prosecution in support of prosecution case. The statements of the accused persons were recorded under Section 313 CrPC. The accused persons stated that they were falsely implicated and false evidence was given against them out of enmity. Accused Somnath has stated that his mausi (sister of his mother) was killed in which an application was given against witness Sanwari on which direction was given to register the case. But, instead of registering a case against him, he was made a witness and the case was registered against Jagatpal and Prithwipal in which they were acquitted. Accused Prithvi Pal has stated that at the time of incident he was in Pali road and he had no idea about the incident and after attachment he appeared. The accused Jagat Pal Singh had stated that Ramlal and Sanwari Lal have enmity with him and Sanwari Lal had given evidence against him earlier also. They have enmity with him because of party rivalry. The nephew of Ramlal namely Rajendra Singh was killed in which Jagat Pal Singh was made an accused and he was acquitted, this is also a reason for enmity. At the time of incident, he was not in the village and on being informed that he has been involved in the case, he surrendered in the Court. The accused persons have, however, not given any evidence in defence. On the basis of evidence on record and after hearing both the sides, the learned trial court passed the impugned judgment convicting and sentencing the appellants for the offence under section 302/34 and 323/34 IPC.

6. Aggrieved by the impugned judgment, the appellants have filed this appeal challenging the impugned judgment on the ground that the conviction and sentence is against weight of evidence on record and is bad in law. The sentence awarded is too severe and the judgment is liable to be set aside and they are entitled for acquittal.

7. Before proceeding to examine the legality of the impugned judgment, it is necessary to go through the prosecution evidence. PW-1 Putti Lal (informant) has stated that the deceased Ramdhani was his nephew, who used to sleep on the tube-well to look after the same. About 15-16 months ago Ramdhani as usual went to his tube-well in the evening and on the next day morning for a long time he did not come back. His mother asked him to go to the tube-well and to see why Ramdhani has not come back as yet. The informant at about 10:00 AM in the morning was going to tube-well and when he reached near the tube-well of Ramlal, he heard the voice of groaning and crying. He went there and saw that Ramlal was lying on his cot and was crying with pain. He had incurred bleeding injury on his mouth. On being asked by him, Ramlal said that in the mid night at about 4:00 AM accused Jagat Pal, Jhabboo @ Somnath and Prithvi Pal of the village were assaulting Ramdhani and hearing him crying Ramlal challenged that who is there and he is coming. The accused persons after killing Ramdhani came to him and threatened him that if he told about it to anyone he will be killed. Ramlal said that they had committed a wrong thing by killing Ramdhani, whereupon, all the three accused persons assaulted him by hockey stick and fist. Then, PW-1 went to tube-well of Ramdhani and found him lying dead below his cot and his neck was cut in the left side. PW-1 went to the village and said about the incident to the villagers. Ramesh, Bihari, Rajkumar, Banwari Lal and Ramlal son of Murli and other persons of the village came there. He got a report scribed by Man Singh and after hearing and understanding the same he put his thumb impression on the report and gave it to the police. He also put his thumb impression on the memo of blood stained and plain earth. In the very beginning of the cross-examination, he had stated that he had not seen the incident and he lodged the FIR on the basis of what Ramlal had stated to him.

8. PW-2 Ramlal has stated that the incident took place in January, 1992. He was sleeping on his tube-well in the night near his tube-well, there is a tube-well of Ramdhani also where Ramdhani was sleeping. In the early morning at 4:00 AM, he heard Ramdhani crying that he is being killed whereupon he went to the tube-well of Ramdhani with torch and stick and saw that accused Prithvi Pal and Jagat Pal having an axe in their hand and Somnath having a hockey like stick were cutting Ramdhani. He said that they had done a very wrong thing by killing Ramdhani whereupon the accused persons said that he will be put to the same condition and started beating him and he sustained injuries. After sunrise informant Putti Lal came there to whom he informed about the incident. His son took him to the police station from where he was sent to hospital where he was medically examined and he was admitted in the hospital.

9. PW-3 Sanwari has stated that at 4:00-4:30 AM in the midnight, on 8/9.01.1992 he was going to sell vegetables with his younger brother Brij Bihari Lal and Ram Avtar. They saw that accused Jagat pal, Prithvi Pal and Jhabboo were coming from the side of tube-well of Ramdhani through chak road with Jagat Pal having a tabbal, Prithvi Pal having an axe and Jhabboo having a hockey in their hand. In the light of torch, he saw that their cloths were stained with blood. He came back at about 11:30 AM after selling his vegetables and then he came to know about the incident by his wife.

10. PW-4 Dr. Y.K. Sharma was posted as Orthopaedic Surgeon in the U.H.M., Hospital, Kanpur Nagar on 10.1.1992 when he conducted post-mortem of the dead body of deceased Ramdhani, who was sent by police station Maharajpur through constable Man Singh and Shiv Sharan along-with necessary papers in a sealed conditions. He conducted post-mortem at 11:45 am on 10.1.1992. The deceased was average built, his mouth and eyes half opened, rigour-mortis was present in his body and stomach was greenish with little swelling. Post death staining was found on his back, hip and back of the thigh. On examination, following ante mortem injuries were found on the body of the deceased-

(1). Incised wound 8 cm x 2 cm x bone deep 1 cm below the right ear ending down ward upto lower part of neck.

(2). Incised wound 11 cm x 5 cm on the upper part of left lateral side of the neck to front portion of jaw and second vertebrae of neck. Veins and arteries of neck were found cut. Second vertebrae was also found cut.

(3) Incised wound 1 cm x ¼ cm muscle deep on the right back shoulder in scapular region.

(4) Abrasion 8 cm x 2 cm in the frontal region of left thigh and knee.

In the internal examination, membrance was found blank. Both right and left lounge were found pale. Both chambers of heart were empty. Gal-bladder and both the kidneys were found pale. Semi digested food was found in the small intestine, gasses and digested food was found in the large intestine. In the opinion of the doctor the cause of death was due to shock and haemorrhage as a result of anti mortem injuries. The doctor has stated that the injuries found on the body of the deceased were possibly caused in the night at about 4:00 PM on 8.1.1992 and might have been caused by axe.

11. PW-5 Head Constable Krishna Murari has prepared chik and has entry the same in the GD.

12. PW-6 Dr. A.P. Verma had examined the injury of Ramlal on 1:45 PM, who was aged about 72 years who was brought by the home guard Uday Veer Singh of police station Maharajpur. Following injuries were found on his body-

(3). Contusion 3.5 cm x 3 cm on right side face over the maxilla bone 0.5 cm below the injury no.2, reddish.

(4). Contusion 2.5 cm x 1 cm over the middle of upper lip 1 cm below the nose, bluish.

(5). Contusion 2.5 cm x 2 cm over the nose 1 cm below the root of nose. Injury kept under observation.

According to doctor, the injured was complaining pain on his shoulder, chest and back but there was no visible injury. All the injuries were simple in nature, injury no.6 was caused by rubbing on hard surface and the remaining injuries might have been caused by blunt object. Injury no.5 was kept under observation and x-ray was advised and injury was half day old and it might have been caused on early morning at 4:00 AM on 9.1.1992 by hockey stick and fist.

13. PW-7 S.I. Pramod Kumar has prepared inquest report and other papers and has also proved memo of blood stained and plain earth taken from spot.

14. PW-8 Constable Man Singh has taken the dead body for post-mortem and he had stated that because it was night, therefore, on the next day in the morning the papers and the sealed dead body was given to the concerned.

15. PW-9 SI Vidya Sagar Tripathi has investigated the offence. He had stated that SI P.K. Singh prepared the inquest report. He recorded statement of injured Ramlal, informant Putti Lal, Brij Bihari, Sanwari Lal, Ram Avtar and Ramlal son of Murli and on the identification of the witnesses he prepared site plan. The statement of Head Constable Krishna Murari was also recorded after recording of other statements and obtaining the post-mortem report, he submitted charge-sheet against the accused persons.

16. It has been submitted by the learned counsel/ Amicus Curiae to the accused-appellants that the FIR is grossly delayed for which there is no convincing explanation and the explanation given by prosecution is apparently fabricated. We find that the incident took place on 8/9.1.1992 in the midnight at 4 AM and the report has been lodged at about 1.15 PM in the noon and the police station is situated at the distance of 5 km. Thus, the FIR has been lodged after about a delay of 9 hours. The reason for this delay has been mentioned in the written report itself. Accordingly, when the deceased did not return in the morning, at 10 AM, the informant went to see him and on the way, Ramlal, in his tube well, said to him about the incident. He was injured at that time. Then he went to the tube-well of Ramdhani where he found him dead. He went back to his village and said about the incident to the villagers including Sanwari who has been examined as PW-3. They all went to the tube-well and meanwhile Ramlal s/o Murali, Brijbihari and Ramautar also came and said that they had seen the incident. It is pertinent to mention that none of these three have been produced in evidence. It is commonly known that village people rise early in the morning and go to field for their natural call etc. Therefore, it looks unusual that nobody could know about the incident till the informant reached there in search of the deceased, more particularly when PW-2 was injured and was crying with pain. He is aged about more than 70 years and it is also unnatural that nobody came to search him nor his cry captured the attention of anyone till the informant reached there. In medical, 6 injuries have been found on his body, five contusion and one abrasion and they are all simple in nature and at least the injuries could not prevent him for next 6 hours to go out and alarm somebody. It was a village and field around and the villagers rise early and leave bed. Therefore, the story that informant could know only when he reached there does not suit to reasoning. It appears probable that the specific mention of 10 AM time in FIR when the informant reached there might have been an attempt to cover the delay. It looks more probable because of the fact that PW-2 has stated that informant reached there at 8 AM. Then, what made him to pass time and when he informed witness Sanwari and villagers, he lodged the FIR. The delay in FIR becomes significant depending upon the trustworthiness and credibility of the fact witnesses. If the witnesses are trustworthy and create confidence in the mind of court, the delay hardly impacts the credibility of prosecution version, otherwise, the delay may become fatal and the whole version may become highly suspicious.

17. It has been also submitted by the learned Amicus Curiae that the fact witnesses examined by the prosecution are not trustworthy and reliable as they have stated during trial contrary to the FIR version and contradictory to their statement recorded by IO under section 161 CrPC. They are not eyewitnesses and have made huge improvement in their on oath statement during trial. FIR has been lodged and the whole prosecution has proceeded on the basis of what PW-2 said and PW-3 who is his son have inimical relation with the accused persons and PW-3 had also given statement against them in another criminal case.

18. From the reading of FIR, it is clear that whatever Ramlal said to the informant, on that basis FIR was lodged and the informant himself did not see the incident. FIR does not disclose that Ramlal said that he saw the accused persons assaulting the deceased. He heard the cry of deceased and he only said who is there and said that he is coming. It has been further provided in the FIR that on his saying so, the accused persons came to his tube-well and threatened and assaulted him by fist and hockey. PW-1 Puttilal informant has narrated same thing in his examination-in-chief. It goes to establish that the informant is not eyewitness and he lodged the FIR on the basis of what was said to him by Ramlal. During cross-examination, he has admitted this fact that he did not see the incident and he lodged FIR on the basis of what Ramlal told him.

19. The question is what will be impact if the testimony of fact witnesses is not in consonance with the FIR version and there is apparent improvement/contradiction as compared to the statement under section 161 CrPC? The law in respect of the statement given under 161 CrPC and improvement made therein by the witness during trial has been discussed by the Supreme Court in several decisions. In State of Rajasthan v Smt Kalki, AIR 1981 SC 1390, while dealing with this issue, this Court observed as under:

"In the depositions of witnesses there are always normal discrepancies, however honest and truthful they may be. These discrepancies are due to normal errors of observation, normal errors of memory due to lapse of time, due to mental disposition such as shock and horror at the time of the occurrence, and the like. Material discrepancies are those which are not normal, and not expected of a normal person."

20. The above observation goes to show that the credibility of witnesses is not shattered on account of normal discrepancy. But, if the same is not normal, it will certainly impact the credibility. In fact, to assess what would be normal discrepancy and what would impact the credibility, there cannot be any hard and fast formula and it depends upon so many factors. Thus, in Alamgir v State of NCT,

Delhi, (2003) 1 SCC 21, it has been observed that if a relevant fact is not mentioned in the statement of the witness recorded under section 161 CrPC, but the same has been stated by the witness before the court as witness, then that would not be a ground for rejecting the evidence of the witness if his evidence is otherwise credit worthy and acceptable. Omission on the part of the police officer would not take away nature and character of the evidence. Alamgir (supra) is in respect of a relevant fact not mentioned in the statement under section 161 or any omission committed by IO and where the statement made during trial by the witness is found to be credit worthy. It implies that when the testimony is not credit worthy or the witness has changed substantially the very nature of allegation, the same would not remain normal and would impact the credibility. In Rudrappa Ramappa Jainpur v State of Karnataka, (2004) 7 SCC 422, the Court finding that the witnesses made improvement and introduced new facts during trial which was not stated to the IO during investigation, remarked that the court below was justified in according acquittal to some of the accused persons. In Bihari Nath Goswami v Shiv Kumar Singh (2004) 9 SCC 186, the Court examined the issue and held:

"Exaggerations per se do not render the evidence brittle. But it can be one of the factors to test credibility of the prosecution version, when the entire evidence is put in a crucible for being tested on the touchstone of credibility."

21. It has been held in Syed Ibrahim v State of AP, AIR 2006 SC 2908; and Arumugam v State, AIR 2009 SC 331 that the courts have to label the category to which a discrepancy belongs. While normal discrepancies do not corrode the credibility of a party's case, material discrepancies do so. It has been clearly laid down in State Represented by Inspector of Police, Tamilnadu, (2008) 15 SCC 440 that, in case, the complainant in the FIR or the witness in his statement under section 161 CrPC, has not disclosed certain facts but meets the prosecution case first time before the court during trial, such version lacks credence and is liable to be discarded.

22. In State of Rajasthan v Rajendra Singh, (2009) 11 SCC 106, it has been held that where the omission(s) amount to a contradiction, creating a serious doubt about the truthfulness of a witness and other witness also make material improvements before the court in order to make the evidence acceptable, it cannot be safe to rely upon such evidence. Similarly, in State Represented by Inspector of Police v Sarvanan, AIR 2009 SC 152, it has been remarked that while appreciating the evidence, the court has to take into consideration whether the contradictions/omissions had been of such magnitude that they may materially affect the trial. Minor contradictions, inconsistencies, embellishments or improvements on trivial matters without effecting the core of the prosecution case should not be made a ground to reject the evidence in its entirety. The Trial Court, after going through the entire evidence, must form an opinion about the credibility of the witnesses and the appellate Court in normal course would not be justified in reviewing the same again without justifiable reasons.

23. We also find that the Supreme Court has remarked in Mahendra Prtap Singh v State of UP, (2009) 11 SCC 334 that, as compared to the statement under section 161 CrPC, where the discrepancies in the evidence of eye-witnesses, if found to be not minor in nature, may become a ground for disbelieving and discrediting their evidence. In such circumstances, witnesses may not inspire confidence and if their evidence is found to be in conflict and contradiction with other evidence or with the statement already recorded, in such a case it cannot be held that prosecution proved its case beyond reasonable doubt.

24. In Sunil Kumar Shambhu Dayal Gupta Vs. State of Maharashtra, 2011 (72) ACC 699 (SC), the Court noted on record that there had been a lot of improvements and contradictions in his statements. The witness deposed for the first time in the court during the trial, that when he went to examine the deceased, she was found in an unkept room/store room and that he was introduced to the deceased as a Psychiatrist and that the deceased had asked him whether he treated his wife in the same way as she had been treated by her husband. None of this was mentioned in his statement recorded by the police. Nor it had been recorded therein that the deceased had told him that she was harassed by the appellants and her ornaments were taken away/worn by her mother in law. More so, he had not stated in his police statement that the deceased was merely mentally disturbed and not suffering from a gross psychological problem. Nor had he stated therein that the deceased had told him that she was not having any faith in any of her family members and she was deprived of their love, affection and sympathy. It has been also noted that the witness did not state in his statement before the police that when he went to see the appellants, they had asked him whether he had brought gold ornaments or had come empty handed or that he was told that the deceased would not be allowed to live there and they would make her condition even more miserable. Such an improvement was made while deposing in court and no explanation could be furnished by him as to why such vital facts were not stated by him at the time of recording his statement under section 161 CrPC. Holding that such statements should be discarded being major contradictions and improvements, the Court laid down:

"Such contradictions in his statements cannot be held to be mere explanations or elaborations of his version, but are tantamount to material contradictions or vital omissions. The Rules of appreciation of evidence requires that court should not draw conclusions by picking up an isolated sentence of a witness without adverting to the statement as a whole. In such a fact- situation, it is not safe to rely on his testimony for the simple reason that he had made a lot of improvements/embellishments while deposing in court and vital contradictions exist with his earlier recorded statement. Thus, no reliance can be placed on his depositions to hold that appellants had ill-treated the deceased or that appellant No.3 had taken away/worn her ornaments or that she had been deprived of their love and affection or that she was not suffering from epilepsy etc."

25. The Supreme Court also found that the prosecution witnesses who were family members of the deceased, stated new facts which were not earlier mentioned either while lodging the FIR or in their statements recorded under section 161 and such allegations had been made for the first time while making statements before the court during trial. There were material contradictions and improvements, which were not mere elaborations of their statements already made. Therefore, the Court held:

"Thus, their statements in regard to those allegations were liable to be discarded. While deciding such a case, the Court has to apply the aforesaid tests. Mere marginal variations in the statements cannot be dubbed as improvements as the same may be elaborations of the statement made by the witness earlier. The omissions which amount to contradictions in material particulars i.e. go to the root of the case/materially affect the trial or core of the prosecution's case, render the testimony of the witness liable to be discredited."

26. In Rohtash v State of Haryana, (2012) 6 SCC 589, there had been major improvements/embellishments in the prosecution case and demand of Rs.10,000/- by the appellant does not find mention in the statements under section 161 CrPC, the same was held to be major improvement which effected the prosecution version adversely. In Tomaso Bruno Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh, (2015) 7 SCC 178, the prosecution tried to establish the case against the accused by making improvements at various stages. The version of PW-3 that he saw both the accused hugging, kissing and cuddling each other and that Francesco Montis was sitting on the other side of the table appearing depressed was not stated to the investigating officer when he recorded his statement under section 161 CrPC. Likewise, version of the witness that on the fateful night, the second accused asked him 'not to disturb till tomorrow morning' was also not mentioned in his statement recorded by the investigating officer under section 161 CrPC. The Court held:

"If the PWs had failed to mention in their statements u/s 161 CrPC about the involvement of an accused, their subsequent statement before court during trial regarding involvement of that particular accused cannot be relied upon. Prosecution cannot seek to prove a fact during trial through a witness which such witness had not stated to police during investigation. The evidence of that witness regarding the said improved fact is of no significance.

27. In Rambraksh v State of Chhatisgarh, AIR 2016 SC 2381, PW3 Dasmatiya Bai in her complaint as well as her statement before the police has not told that she witnessed the occurrence during which both the accused assaulted her husband with lathi and Danda. Only in her testimony before the Court she claimed to have witnessed the occurrence. Pointing out that the High Court has rightly ignored the improved part of her testimony and placed no reliance on it, the Supreme Court laid down that improvement made by witness in his statement made in the Court during trial than what was made to the IO during investigation under section 161 cannot be relied upon.

28. On the basis of above discussion, we are of the view that the improvement made during trial by the witness which is just to eloberate and explain the prosecution version and does not materially alter the version is normal as it may take place because of lapse of time, nervousness and the ability of the witness to obsorve, memorize and reproduce. If the witness is trustworthy and credit worthy, the same becomes insignificant. But, where the witness has changed his version and has narrated a new set of facts which neither finds mention in FIR nor in his statement recorded by IO under section 161 CrPC and which changes the nature and character of his evidence, the evidence becomes significantly contradictory and such improvement shatters his credibility as witness. It amounts to material contradiction and improvement and such evidence is not acceptable and should be discarded.

29. In the light of above, the evidence of PW-2 Ramlal is required to be examined. There, he has given a distinct version from what has been stated in FIR and under the statement under section 161 CrPC by saying that on hearing the sound of Ramdhani, he rushed and reached to the tube well of deceased with his torch and bamboo stick and saw the accused persons. Accused Prithwipal and Jagatpal with axe in their hands and Somnath with a hockey were assaulting the deceased and cutting him. On being challenged by Ramlal, accused persons started beating him by hockey, fist and shoes. In the cross-examination, he has stated that after beating him, the accused persons dragged him to his tube well, kept him there and went away. His clothes were torn and there was dragging mark on the surface. We find that no such mark has been found by IO. The doctor who examined the witness has found 6 injuries and he has accepted that two of them might be old and 5 injuries may result by falling on hard surface from face side. The medical report does not disclose mark of more than one such injuries which may have occurred to the injured on account of dragging on surface. There is only one abrasion which renders the allegation of dragging to a distance of 200 yards improbable. To cover this, PW-2 has made improvement in his statement during trial by saying that the accused persons picked him up from his shoulders and leg and brought him to his tube-well. Moreover, no such statement has been given to IO. On the contrary, he has stated to the IO that on hearing noise, the moment he reached to field, accused persons were returning after causing death of deceased. He has also not stated to the IO that he was beaten by shoes also. In fact, he has admitted that he gave such statement for the first time in the court. During cross-examination, he has further stated that at the time of hearing sound of 'bachao bachao,' he was doing morning prayer. The witness has stated that at the time of incident, there was no light in the hut of deceased. The condition of the witness is that he cannot see without goggles as demonstrated in the court. No torch was given by him to the IO nor the same has been produced in evidence. He is aged about 72 years at the time of incident. It was month of January and naturally, it must have been cold and foggy season. For an old person like him, it is not natural that he would rush and reach on the place of occurrence from a distance of more than two hundred yards. Had this witness reached on spot and personally seen the criminal incident, there was no reason why he did not tell the same to the informant and had he told the same to the informant, there is no reason for the informant not to bring this fact in the FIR. As such, we find discrepancy/contradiction/deliberate and substantial improvement in the statement of the witness which creates doubt with regards to his credibility. We are of the view that PW-2 is not reliable and trustworthy and his testimony being not reliable is liable to be discarded.

30. Coming to the statement of PW-3 Sanwari who happens to be son of PW-2 and his name also finds mention in the FIR. He has clearly stated that he did not see the murder of Ramdhani. He has stated a circumstance only. He has stated that on 8/9.1.1992 in the early morning at about 4-4.30 AM, when he was going to sell vegetables, he saw the accused persons coming from the side of the tube well of deceased Ramdhani, accused Jagatpal carrying tabbal, accused Prithwipal with axe and Somnath carrying a hockey and in the torch light, he saw blood stains on their clothes. The statement aforesaid as stated by PW-3 does not find mention in his statement under section 161 CrPC recorded by IO and when confronted, the witness has stated that if the IO has not written so, he might have been in collusion with the accused person. He has stated that when he came back from Kanpur at about 11.30 AM, he knew about the incident from his wife. He has been also confronted with his statement given to IO that when he reached near the tube-well of deceased, they heard Ramdhani crying and they saw that the accused persons were assaulting him. He has denied to this statement. Similarly, he has been also confronted with his statement given to IO that he and Ramlal s/o Murali together took vegetables and were going to Kanpur for selling the same but to this statement again, the witness has denied. Meaning thereby, this witness has not only deposed additional thing what is in contradiction of what was stated to the IO but also he has denied to what he had stated to IO. Clearly, the witness has made substantial improvement and cannot be relied.

31. It is important to note that PW-9 IO has stated that the informant had stated that what Ramlal said to him on that basis he lodged report. The IO has stated that witness Ramlal did not state to him that he saw the accused persons who were cutting the deceased by axe, nor he said that accused persons assaulted him by shoes, nor he said that he was having torch and in the light of torch he witnessed the incident. The IO has said that Ramlal was not an eyewitness of the incident. Similarly, he has stated that PW-3 Sanwari did not state to him that he saw the accused persons on the way, nor stated that the clothes of accused persons were blood stained nor he stated that he was having torch and in the light of torch he saw the accused persons. The correctness of what has been stated by the IO can be supported by one more circumstance. PW-1 has stated that he told PW-3 Sanwari about the incident in the village. Sanwari came back from Kanpur at 11.30 AM and had he seen the accused persons coming from the side of tube-well, as he has stated, he must have immediately said about it to the informant and in that case this fact must have been mentioned in the FIR. If he did not inform the informant about this relevant fact, it must give rise to the inference that whatever he stated before the court was absolutely afterthought. Now what emerges from the statement is that no witness saw the incident and it appears correct as in the month of January, the climate remains foggy and very cold and at 4 AM in the morning, unless there is specific reason to be out, there is no possibility of anyone seeing the incident and the same is very much evident from the FIR itself.

32. It is also pertinent to mention that Pw-1 has stated that he missed his torch at the place of occurrence and someone out of many persons present might have picked the torch. This is again an attempt to cover as after 10 AM, informant went there and found Ramdhani dead and he or IO did not find the torch. In his statement under section 161 CrPC, he has not stated it to IO. PW-3 has also not handed over any torch to the IO. There is no recovery of any weapon or blood stained clothes of the accused persons. Although, all the three accused persons were in jail by 18.1.1992, no attempt was made to take them on police remand nor any attempt was made to discover the blood stained clothes. Thus, the prosecution has not been able to show and prove the source of light at the time of incident in which the two fact witnesses saw the accused persons, nor has been able to discover any incriminatory article such as weapons and blood stained clothes.

33. In the FIR, there is no mention of weapon used in the incident. In the on oath statement of the informant also, there is no mention of any axe etc and PW-2 said to him that he was beaten by accused by hockey. PW-2 has stated that accused Prithvi Pal and Jagat Pal were having tabbal or axe in their hand and Somnath was having a hockey like stick. Two accused were cutting the deceased by axe and Somnath was assaulting by hockey. But no injury has been found on the body of deceased which could has been caused by hockey or blunt object. Only incise wounds have been found on the body of deceased. Hence, the presence and involvement of accused Somnath is also doubtful.

34. It has been also pointed out that PW-1 has stated that there was no enmity between accused persons and deceased. Some bitterness, may be out of rivalry or jealous or the case against accused in which PW-2 was a witness, was certainly existing between the accused and Ramlal and Sanwari. It cannot be a coincidence that these two have been the witnesses in this case. Therefore, this possibility cannot be ruled out that because of the existing bitterness, they have given evidence in this case. The informant has not been able to allege any motive or reason available to the accused persons for causing death of deceased.

35. On the basis of above discussion, we find that the witnesses who were examined were not trustworthy and reliable; there is delay of 9 hours in lodging and convincing and reasonable explanation has not been furnished; there is substantial improvement in the statement of witnesses; no reason or motive has been alleged nor there was any enmity between the deceased and accused persons leading to such criminal act; seemingly, two star witnesses of fact PW-2 and PW-3, being father and son and having bitter relations with accused side, might have been prompted to give evidence and there appears to be enough discrepancy and lapse in the investigation and prosecution version. The learned trial court has ignored the infirmities and shortcomings in the evidence and prosecution case. The impugned judgement is perverse, illegal and not sustainable under law and is liable to be set aside.

36. The criminal appeal is allowed. The impugned judgement is set aside. The surviving appellants Jagat Pal and Jhaboo @ Somnath are acquitted from the charge under section 302/34 and 323/34 IPC. If they are in jail, they shall be released forthwith and if on bail, they need not to surrender.

37. The learned Counsel/Amicus Curaie Sri Sukhveer Singh shall be paid Rs. Ten Thousands only for the assistance and legal service provided by him in conducting this appeal for the accused-appellants.

38. Office is directed to transmit the lower court record along with a copy of this judgement to the learned court below for information and necessary compliance.

A. Evidence law-Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 27- Indian Penal Code, 1860- Section 149- Motive cannot be ascertained every time for committing crimes- If motive is not in the F.I.R. then a report of crime cannot be discarded- Presence or absence of motive in a case of direct evidence is not of much relevance if the case of the prosecution is proved from other relevant circumstances-The fact that another eye-witness was not produced, will not affect the case of the prosecution if the evidentiary value of the testimony of the sole eye witness is sufficient to prove the prosecution case-No legal impediment in recording a conviction on evidence of a single witness-However such single testimony should be free from blemish and should also be adequate one, corroborated by the medical evidence, prompt F.I.R., and other circumstances, then it can be safely acted upon for recording a conviction-Minor contradictions here and there do not decide the fate of a murder case because human faculties of "sight', "recollection' and "expression' are "imperfect' - Section 27 of the Indian Evidence Act-Recovery was made on the joint pointing of several accused persons- If a fact is actually discovered in consequence of information given, same guarantee is afforded thereby that the information was true and accordingly it can be safely allowed to be given in evidence- All ingredients of section 149 IPC present-The accused persons with intention to kill attacked on vital part of the deceased and caused grievous injuries over his head- The incident having eye witness account and injury on vital part with motive establishes the case of the prosecution.

Held- Indian Evidence Act- Section 8- Motive- Where the case is based on direct evidence, motive loses its relevance.

Evidence law-Indian Evidence Act- Section 134- It is the quality and not the quantity of evidence which is important. Conviction can be recorded on the testimony of a sole witness provided the same is credible and corroborated from other evidence.

Evidence law- Indian Evidence Act- Section 3- Minor contradictions, improvements and embellishments cannot be made a reason to discard the testimony of a witness. Since human faculties of "sight', "recollection' and "expression' are "imperfect', therefore, natural contradictions are bound to occur.

Indian Evidence Act- Section 27- Recovery on joint pointing out- If a fact is actually discovered in consequence of information given, same guarantee is afforded thereby that the information was true and accordingly it can be safely allowed to be given in evidence.

Evidence law-Indian Penal Code- Section 147, 148, 149- All the accused-appellants formed an unlawful assembly and with a common object assaulted the deceased on his head (vital part) resulting in his death. There is ample direct evidence to connect the accused persons with the crime. The findings of the trial court are found just and proper in the facts and circumstances of the case.(Para 27,31,32,33,38,40)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Deepak Verma, J.)

(1) Heard Sri Arvind Kumar Srivastava and Sri Siya Ram Sahu, learned counsels for the appellant No.1, Sri Ram Singh and Sri J.N.Yadav, learned counsels for appellant Nos.2, 4 & 5 and Sri L.D.Rajbhar, learned AGA assisted by Sri Prem Shankar Mishra for the State-respondent.

(2) The instant appeal has been filed by accused-appellants Kuber Singh, Naresh Singh, Awadesh Singh, Chandra Shekhar Singh & Sukhbeer Singh against the judgment and order dated 11.04.1996 passed by Sessions Judge, Banda, whereby the appellants have been convicted and sentenced in Sessions Trial No.187 of 1991 convicting the appellant nos.1 and 2 namely Kuber Singh s/o Barku Singh Thakur and Naresh Singh s/o Ramadhar Thakur, under section 148 I.P.C. to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of two years each, further sentencing them to undergo imprisonment for life under section 302 read with section 149 I.P.C. and convicting the appellant nos.3, 4 & 5 namely Awadhesh Singh, Chandra Shekhar Singh & Sukhbeer Singh all sons of Ramadhar Thakur have been sentenced under section 147 I.P.C. to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of one year each of the appellants and sentenced under section 302 read with section 149 I.P.C. to undergo rigorous imprisonment for life, all the sentences were directed to run concurrently.

(3) The facts giving rise to the present appeal may be summarized as under:-

(4) That on 03.06.1991, the informant Shiv Mohan Singh alongwith his son Raj Kishore Singh (deceased) and grand-son Ashish Singh accompanied by one Devendra Singh (nephew of the informant), had gone to Baberu market with a bullock-cart. They had reached the said market at around 10.00 a.m. The informant purchased stones from the said market and after the same, they all were coming back to their village-Kauhara, Police Station Baberu. The bullock-cart was being driven by Raj Kishore Singh whereas Ashish Singh was sitting on the bullock-cart. The other two persons namely the informant Shiv Mohan Singh and Devendra Singh were following the said bullock-cart from a distance of 50 to 60 paces. The entire party reached the boarder of their village at about 7.00 p.m. All of a sudden, the accused-persons came out from behind the Babool trees. At that time, the accused Kuber Singh and Naresh

Singh were having axes (Kulhari) in their hands whereas the remaining accused-persons were armed with lathis. The accused persons exhorted each other by saying that the enemies were there and they had to do away with them. They approached the bullock-cart and got the same stopped. The bullocks were freed and made to run away. Thereafter the accused persons with their weapons in their hands started beating Raj Kishore Singh and Ashish Singh. Both died on the spot. The accused-persons threw the body of Raj Kishore Singh by the side of road and that of Ashish Singh on the road. The informant and Devendra Singh raised hue and cry and rushed to intervene but they were chased by the accused-persons and hence they ran away from the spot. The informant came to his village and told the village-fellows about the said incident. He could not gather courage to lodge FIR in the night. However, he could muster courage in the morning and got FIR scribed by one Rajbeer Singh and lodged the same at police station concerned. The informant had brought the dead-bodies from the spot and kept them in the house.

(5) The police registered a case mentioned in the FIR, which is shown as Exhibit Ka-4, which was lodged at 6.45 a.m. on 4th June, 1991 by Shiv Mohan Singh s/o Madhav Singh Thakur P.W.-1 at Police Station Baberu, District Banda.

(6) With the informant's report, case was registered as Case Crime No.133 of 1991, under sections 147, 148, 302 I.P.C.. S.I. Nand Kishore commenced the investigation. The case recovery memo of blood stained and plain Khapley and Kappachey at cemented jali and blood stained safi was prepared. On 04.06.1991, recovery of blood stained axe and two bamboo lathis used, was prepared on 07.06.1991 as Exhibit Ka-26 sent to Vidhi Vigyan Proyogshala (Forensic Laboratory). On 04.06.1991, inquest was done and dead bodies were forwarded for autopsy to the District Hospital. Postmortem was conducted on 05.06.1991 by Dr. M.C. Mittal P.W.-2, which are Exhibits Ka-2 and Ka-3.

(9) The investigating officer proceeded with the investigation and submitted chargesheet against the accused persons under sections 147, 148, 302 and 34 I.P.C. and on the pointing out of the appellants, the weapons used in the commission of offence had been recovered. The blood stained clothes were sent for chemical analysis. Human blood was found on the axe which was used by the appellants and pieces of wood taken from the Bullock-cart. On the other articles, blood was disintegrated. The report of the forensic laboratory exhibit Ka 32 was proved by the investigating officer. Charges were framed against the appellants under sections 147, 302 read with section 149 I.P.C. and Section 148 I.P.C. The appellants denied the charges and claimed to be tried as they were falsely implicated in the present case.

(10) The prosecution examined P.W.-1 Shiv Mohan Singh, father of the deceased Raj Kishore Singh and grandfather of the deceased Ashish Singh.

(11) The prosecution also examined Dr.M.C.Mittal, P.W.-2 who had conducted the postmortem report.

(12) P.W.-3 S.I. Nand Kishore, who arrested the accused persons, prepared the site plan and recovery memo during the course of investigation. The investigating officer found clinching and credible material against the accused persons.

(13) After examination of formal witnesses, statement of accused persons were recorded under sections 313 Cr.P.C. who had tried to give different colour to the prosecution version and stated that due to previous enmity they had been falsely implicated. They denied having participated in the incident and stated that they would give evidence but as a matter of fact they led no evidence.

(14) The prosecution to prove its case, examined Shiv Mohan Singh as P.W.-1, who is the eye witness in the case. Deceased Raj Kishore Singh was his son and the deceased Ashish Singh was his grandson. He was produced to prove the factum of murder and involvement of the accused persons with their specific roles. He also proved that there was a motive for the commission of the said gruesome murder. He stated that before the said murder, an altercation between him and accused had ensued in which accused Sukhbir Singh, Awdhesh Singh, Chandra Shekhar Singh and Naresh Singh had fought with him and had also beaten him with fists and kicks. There had been F.I.R.'s from both the sides. Further he stated that the aforesaid murder was committed due to the said enmity. The informant Chandra Shekhar Singh stated that Devendra Singh, who was his nephew, had been won over by the accused persons. In that event, the prosecution did not produce him and it remained a case of single and solitary evidence of P.W.-1, so far as the facts of the case are concerned.

(15) Dr. M.C.Mittal P.W.-2 was produced by the prosecution. P.W.-2 had conducted postmortem on the dead bodies of the deceased persons. The autopsy of deceased Raj Kishore Singh s/o Shiv Mohan was done on 05.06.1991 at 5.00 p.m. and autopsy of deceased Ashish Singh s/o Raj Kishore Singh was done on 05.06.1991 at 5.45 p.m. by P.W.-2, who had found two incised wounds 4 c.m. x 5 c.m. on the top of head and 3 c.m. x .59 bone deep in front of head, three injuries as lacerated and 4, 5, 6 and 7 are abrasions on the dead body of Ashish Singh s/o Raj Kishore Singh. Dr.M.C.Mittal had found one incised injury on the front forehead and one lacerated wound 4 x 5 c.m. bone deep on the right side of the head. The doctor had opined that the injury was caused by sharp edged weapon, which was sufficient for causing death in ordinary course of nature.

(16) S.I. Nand Kishore P.W.-3 who had proved Chick FIR corroborated that the First Information Report was registered in his presence. P.W.-3 had proved that he reached the spot, prepared inquest report, sent the dead body for postmortem in supervision of chowkidar and constables with all documents necessary. After arrest of three appellants Awadhesh Singh, Chandrashekhar Singh and Sukhbir Singh, all sons of Ramadhar Singh and on their pointing out blood stained axe (Khulari) and two lathis had been recovered from the house of the accused persons. Accused- appellants Naresh Singh, Kuber Singh, Chandra Shekhar Singh & Sukhbir Singh examined under section 313 Cr.P.C. and they have denied the allegations made over them.

(17) We have heard learned counsels for the appellants and perused the entire record.

(18) Learned counsels for the appellants have assailed the judgment on various grounds mainly that motive is not genuine and strong and FIR is ante-dated. No witness or public has been examined. It has also been assailed on the ground that there is no source of sufficient light in which the accused-appellants could be recognized and further they have vehemently argued that witness Devendra Singh has not been produced/examined. They also assailed that joint pointing out of the three accused, out of five accused for recovery of blood stained one axe and two bamboo lathis has not properly explained. Further no recovery from other two appellants had been made. Recovery from the appellant Kuber Singh and presence of P.W.-1 are doubtful. The appellants also raised the recovery not being in accordance with Section 27 of the Evidence Act.

(19) Section 27 of the Indian Evidence Act is reproduced below:-

"27. How much of information received from accused may be proved- Provided that, when any fact is deposed to as discovered in consequence of information received from a person accused of any offence, in the custody of a police officer, so much of such information, whether it amounts to a confession or not, as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered, may be proved."

(20) Learned counsel for the appellants argued that the procedure prescribed under Section 27 of the Indian Evidence Act had not been properly followed by prosecution in the alleged recovery of axe and lathis. The said recovery is doubtful. They argued that the evidence adduced by the prosecution with regard to recovery of kulhari and lathi on the pointing out of the three accused, is not acceptable under the law because the said recovery was made on the joint pointing of several accused persons.

(21) Learned counsel for the appellants has placed reliance on the judgment passed by Hon'ble Apex Court in Puttu vs. Emperor reported in A.I.R (32) 1945 Oudh 235, wherein the Apex Court has considered Section 27 in a different perspective which is not applicable in this case. The decision of Puttu (supra) was dissented from the Allahabad High Court in Nathu vs. State, 1958 All 467 relying on Naresh Chandra vs. Emperor, AIR 1942 Cal 593 and State of M.P. vs. Chhotelal Mohanlal, AIR 1951 Nag 71 and it was observed therein:- "It is easily conceivable that two or more persons simultaneously or jointly furnish an information and, as a result of that information, a common discovery is made; such a case will, if either of the conditions is satisfied be covered by the section. Each case will, however, have to be judged on its own facts, but the underlying principle seems to be that the information should be such as cannot be said to be already in the possession of the police, that the discovery is made in consequence of that information, and further that the discovery is not rediscovery of something already discovered."

(22) The appellants' counsel has also placed reliance on the Apex Court judgment reported in Abdul Razak and others vs. State of Karnataka represented by Station Officer, Hutti Police Station, (2015) 6 Supreme Court Cases 282. The facts of the case has no relevance with present facts of the case.

(23) Learned counsel for the appellants argued that it is a case of double murder in which a man aged about 41 years and a minor boy aged about 12 to 13 years had been killed and for such a killing, there should have been a very strong reason. Without a very strong reason and motive, the accused persons could not have admitted to such heinous crime. Further he argued that no motive has been shown which could give indication that accused persons would kill two persons. They have argued that only a minor incident of marpeet, which occurred about two months before the alleged killing, said to be a motive, is not acceptable as sufficient motive for killing two persons. Learned counsel for the appellants argued that only one witness of facts has been examined and thus it is a case of single testimony and according to him that too was that of an interested witness. On the other hand, he tried to show that others had motive to kill. He further elaborated his argument that one Chotey's only son was killed in which deceased Raj Kishore Singh was made an accused and it could be possible that Chotey's kith and kins might have killed Raj Kishote Singh and his son Ashish Singh, so as to make the family of the present informant/P.W.1 without any male lineal descendant and the P.W.-1 falsely implicated the present accused persons.

(24) Learned counsel for the accused-appellants argued that the medical evidence is different from and in contrast with the ocular evidence. The broad intention to the incised wounds shown on the person of the deceased and the alleged weapons assigned to the accused was an effort to show that the injuries were caused by axe (Kulhari) whereas the nature of injuries, as found in the postmortem reports was indicative of the fact that same were caused by sharp edged weapons which could not be Kulhari. The margins were found clean cut and, according to him, that too was an indication of the fact that some sharp cutting weapon like Pharsa might have been used for causing death and not Kulhari, as alleged by the prosecution.

(25) The learned counsel for the appellants argued that the postmortem reports of the deceased are not connecting with the time of the incident. The doctor conducting postmortem had found the stomach and intestine of the deceased to be empty when the incident was stated to be of late evening and the deceased persons were returning from the market.

(26) He further argued that the informant and others had stated that the dead bodies were kept on the cot whereas the Investigating Officer says that they were kept on the ground. On this point, the statement of the accused-appellants was that P.W.-1 was telling a lie. The accused-appellants lastly argued that there was a delay in lodging of the FIR. They argued that incident had occurred on 03.06.1991 at 7.00 p.m. but FIR had been lodged on 04.06.1991 at 6.45 a.m. The informant got the time to prepare a false story and afterthought they lodged the FIR and they also argued that the time of death does not coincide with the view of the doctor concerned on the said point.

(27) Considering the said arguments, it may be noted that motive cannot be ascertained every time for committing crimes. If motive is not in the F.I.R., version of F.I.R, a report of crime cannot be discarded. The incident giving rise to motive may be very minor, but as stated by the appellant's counsel the gravity of motive differs from man to man. A motive may be a minor issue but the same could be sufficient for the accused persons. Thus, in either way the aforesaid position does not exculpate the accused-persons and the question of their culpability can be seen only in the light of the evidence and all other accompanying circumstances as appearing in the case. We are of the considered view that the motive is not very essential in a case of direct evidence i.e. as Hon'ble Apex Court has held in various laws on this point. But in this case in evidence as stated by P.W.-1 it has come up that scuffle had ensued between the parties two months before the occurrence, in which FIR from both the sides were lodged. It is settled that motive is in the minds of the accused persons and cannot be ascertained by the Court. Presence or absence of motive in a case of direct evidence is not of much relevance if the case of the prosecution is proved from other relevant circumstances.

(28) P.W.-1 in his evidence has stated that only 7-8 years back his grandson (son of Raj Kishore) had died of drowning and he did not implicate the accused whereas he had an opportunity to falsely implicate the present accused persons, without waiting for his son and another grand-son to die. He had no enmity with Chhotey Lal after they won in all criminal cases in the murder of his son occurred in the year 1971.

(29) Learned counsel for the appellants further argued that width of the incised-wound was found 0.5 c.m. and 1.00 c.m. In that light he argued that the same could not be caused by a "Kulhari" (axe). The depth of the injuries has been found roughly 3.00 to 4.00 c.ms. and if a "Kulhari" gets pierced into head and goes only upto 4.00 c.m. in depth, one cannot expect more wider injuries than 0.5 c.m. and 1.00 c.m.

(30) Learned counsel for the appellants next argued that stomach of the deceased persons was empty and it was not believable that the stomach and intestine of both the deceased-persons could be empty when they were coming back from the market. In the statement of P.W.-1, he has categorically stated that they did not take any food, not eaten anything during their entire journey and purchasing etc. It has also come in the evidence that they had simply taken tea and water. At 7.00 p.m., when the murder was allegedly done, one cannot expect tea and water to remain in the stomach and intestine of the deceased-persons and if the doctor found these two organs empty, it was a natural and is perfectly in consonance with the ocular version.

(31) It was further raised by the appellant's counsel that only one person's testimony cannot be relied and other witnesses named in the FIR were not produced by the prosecution. We are of the opinion that the fact that another eye-witness was not produced, will not affect the case of the prosecution if the evidentiary value of the testimony of P.W.-1, sole eye witness is sufficient to prove the prosecution case. It is not obligatory that the prosecution produces all witnesses examined during the course of investigation or stated to be present on the spot. It is the choice of the prosecution to produce best evidence in its favour, i.e. it can chose to examine only those witnesses in the witness box who prove the story. The real test is that the testimony of the prosecution witnesses is credit worthy and is true narration of the case. Moreover, it has come in the evidence that Devendra Singh, another eye witness had been won-over by the accused and that is why he was not produced.

(32) In view of law laid down by the Apex Court in Sadhu Ram and another vs. State of Rajasthan; 2003 (46) ACC 993 (SC), there is no legal impediment in recording a conviction on evidence of a single witness. The rule of prudence, however, demands that such single testimony should be free from blemish and should also be adequate one. If such testimony is also corroborated by the medical evidence, prompt F.I.R., and other circumstances, then it can be safely acted upon for recording a conviction.

(33) The testimony of P.W.-1 is not doubtful as P.W.-1 Shiv Mohan Singh in his deposition stated that when they were returning from Baberu market after purchasing and when bullock cart reached in the area of Kauhara about four farlang from abadi area, accused Kuber and Naresh with Kulahri, Sukhbir, Chandrashekhar and Awdhesh with lathi who were hidden behind the Babool tree, suddenly came out from behind the Babool tree and shouted to kill the enemies. They freed the bullocks from the cart and started beating Raj Kishore and Ashish. Deponent and Devendra was coming behind the bullock card. P.W.-1 cried to save his child and grandson, accused killed Raj Kishore and Ashish and threw their bodies on the road. P.W.-1 was present on the spot, his presence at the scene of occurrence is not doubtful. His testimony could not be brushed aside only on account of being solitary witness. Minor contradictions here and there as pointed out by the learned counsel for the appellants do not decide the fate of a murder case because human faculties of "sight', "recollection' and "expression' are "imperfect', therefore, natural contradictions are bound to occur.

(34) The appellants' counsel compared the facts narrated by P.W.-1 with the evidence of Investigating officer and pointed out a minor difference in the statement of P.W.-1, the informant and the Investigating Officer regarding the dead bodies being kept on the "Cot' as stated by P.W.-1, whereas, the Investigating Officer stated that the bodies were found by him on the ground but it was corrected after recollecting the fact that bodies were found on the "Cot'. Such minor discrepancies could not be a reason to disregard the testimony of the witnesses.

(35) The appellants' counsel raised a point that there was delay in lodging the F.I.R. We do not agree with the same, as delay has been already explained by P.W.-1 Shiv Mohan Singh informant who stated in witness that after his son and grand son were killed, he was badly terrified and had no courage to go to the Police Station in the night to lodge the F.I.R. The next date somehow he gathered courage and went to the Police Station in the early morning to lodge the F.I.R.

(36) On the point raised by appellants' counsel regarding site-plan that the dead body of Raj Kishore Singh was shown behind the bullock-cart, while the Investigating Officer found the same in front of the bullock-cart. This objection raised by the appellant's counsel is not correct as it has come up in the evidence that the bullock-cart was shifted from the place of occurrence when he visited the spot. A trail of blood from place 'A' to 'C' has been shown in the site plan and the dead body of Raj Kishore Singh was found at place 'C' and his son at place 'B', whereas bullock cart was shown at place 'A'. Blood was found scattered on the bullock cart and blood-stained pieces were seized and exhibited as 'Ka-24'. On chemical examination, human blood was found on the said seized articles. The prosecution version of the manner in which murder was committed is, thus, proved from the occular version of P.W.-1, corroborated by other relevant material on record.

(37) The appellants' counsel placed Section 27 of the Evidence Act to create a doubt regarding recovery of the axe and lathis.

(38) Hon'ble Apex Court in Sanjay @ Kaka vs. State of NCT of Delhi reported in U.P. Criminal Rules 2007 (323) has held that if a fact is actually discovered in consequence of information given, same guarantee is afforded thereby that the information was true and accordingly it can be safely allowed to be given in evidence.

(39) As discussed above, the deceased had sustained lacerated wounds and incised wounds which is proved from the postmortem report and having been caused by sharp edged weapon and lathi. P.W.-1 categorically stated that Kuber and Naresh had Kulhari/axe, Sukhbir, Chandrashekhar and Awadhesh had lathis. They being members of the unlawful assembly formed by all the accused appellants, are equally liable for the offences committed by any members of unlawful assembly in prosecution of the common object in which double murder was committed. They played important role as they were carrying axe/kulhari and lathi and killed Raj Kishore and Ashish. The conviction of accused under sections 147, 148, 149, therefore, is just and proper. The deceased Raj Kishore received incised wound 4 c.m. x .5 c.m. on the top of the head, 11 c.m. over left eye and incised wound 3 c.m. x 5 cm. bone deep on the front of head, 6 cm. left eye, lacerated wound 1 cm., 5 cm.. bone deep. Lacerated wound of 1 c.m. X 5 c.m. and bone deep. Deceased Ashish received injury incised wound 4 c.m., 1 c.m. on the front of the forehead and lacerated would 4 x 1.5 c.m. bone deep on the right side of above eyes, multiple fractured. Lacerated wound 1.5 c.m.x .5 c.m.colour deep. These injuries can be said to have been caused by the weapon carried by the accused persons.

(40) Further, the conviction under Sections 147, 148 & 149 I.P.C. is just and proper as all the ingredients of section 149 that (i) the offence must be committed by any member of unlawful assembly consisting of five or more members, (ii) It must be shown that the incriminating act wa* s done to accomplish the common object of the unlawful assembly. (iii) It must be within the knowledge of other members that the offence is likely to be committed in prosecution of the common object are satisfied. In the instant case, the accused persons with intention to kill attacked on vital part of the deceased and caused grievous injuries over his head. The incident having eye witness account and injury on vital part with motive coming from the statements of P.W.-1 Shiv Mohan Singh, P.W.-2 Dr. M.C.Mittal and P.W.-3 Nand Kishore, Investigating Officer are corroborating each other. The eye witness account having clinching evidence and natural narration of the occurrence cannot be discarded or brushed aside. We do not find any material fact from the evidence of the case available on the record to cause interference in the decision of the court below.

(41) Having regard to the overall facts and circumstances of the case and also the gravity of the matters, we find no reason to disagree with the view taken by the court below. There is ample direct evidence to connect the accused persons with the crime. The findings of the trial court are found just and proper in the facts and circumstances of the case.

(42) Resultantly, this appeal fails and is, hereby, dismissed. The judgment and order passed by court below is affirmed.

(43) Appellants Kuber Singh, Naresh Singh, Chandra Shekhar Singh & Sukhbir Singh, are on bail. Their bail bonds are cancelled and sureties are discharged. They shall surrender forthwith before the court concerned, be taken into custody and sent to jail to serve their sentence.

(44) Certify this judgment to the court below immediately for compliance.

(45) The compliance be submitted through the Registrar General, High Court, Allahabad.

Government Appeal No. 1088 of 1984

Sunil Kumar Singh ...Appellant
Versus
State of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellant:
Sri D.S.P. Singh, Sri Adarsh Kumar Pandey, Sri Rajiv Kumar Mishra

Counsel for the Opposite Party:
A.G.A.

A. Criminal Law- Indian Penal Code,1860- Section 304- Delayed FIR- After three days of the occurrence-Version in the FIR that the informant was told about the incident by the victim is a version wholly unreliable and appears to have been managed by the prosecution and in particular by the informant and cannot be believed to be correct version in the prevailing facts and circumstances of the case – Testimony of PW3 does not indicate compatibility with natural conduct that after seeing the occurrence, he being Lekhpal posted in district Varanasi at that point of time must have told /described about the incident to anyone but he kept silent for three days-Witness is not reliable and he cannot be believed to be worthy of credit-His natural conduct is inconsistent with that of a man of ordinary prudence, not fit in the prevailing circumstances of the case - Child witness- Not believed to be wholly reliable witness and she appears to have been tutored witness because she has categorically stated in her cross examination that whatever was seen by her was told to her by her parents- Claim of the defence that the air-gun was fired in the play and it somehow incidentally hit the victim can be acted upon as plausible explanation about the incident.

Criminal law-Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 -Section 154- Delay in lodging FIR- The FIR has been lodged belatedly and the same recites a false narrative since the deceased had already expired before the time he allegedly told the First Informant about the occurrence.

Evidence Law-Indian Evidence Act,1872- Section 155- Credibility of witness- The witness having not disclosed the information for three days , his conduct was wholly unnatural and devoid of any credibility.

Evidence law-Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 118- Child Witness- Where the Child Witness admitted that his evidence was based on hearsay, the same goes to show that he is a tutored witness and cannot be relied upon.

Learned trial court while considering merit of the case overlooked above material factual aspects, circumstances and testimony on record and adopted only casual approach- Appellant given benefit of doubt- Conviction u/s 304 Part II set aside. (Para 36, 37, 40, 43, 44)

Criminal Appeal allowed (E-3)

(Delivered by Arvind Kumar Mishra, J.
Hon'ble Gautam Chowdhary, J.)

1. Heard Sri Rajiv Kumar Mishra, learned counsel for the accused-appellant Sunil Kumar Singh, Sri Nafees Ahmad and Sri Bhanu Prakash Singh, learned A.G.A. for the State in the present appeal and Sri Nafees Ahmad and Sri Bhanu Prakash Singh, learned A.G.A. for the State-appellant in the connected Government Appeal Nos.1086 of 1984 and 1088 of 1984.

2. The instant criminal appeal has been preferred by the accused-appellant Sunil Kumar Singh against the judgment and order of conviction dated 04.02.1984 passed by III-Additional Sessions Judge, Varanasi, in Sessions Trial No. 133 of 1981, State Vs. Sunil Kumar Singh and another, arising out of Case Crime No.207 of 1980, under Section 304 Part-II read with Section 34 I.P.C., Police Station Cant, District Varanasi whereby the accused-appellant Sunila Kumar Singh has been convicted under Section 304 Part-II read with Section 34 I.P.C. and instead of being sentenced, he was directed to be released on probation for two years to maintain peace and be of good behaviour on his furnishing a personal bond of Rs.4,000/- along with two sureties each in the like amount.

3. The aforesaid Government Appeal No.1086 of 1984 (State of U.P. Vs. Sunil Kumar Singh and another) was preferred by the State against the same judgment and order of acquittal dated 04.02.1984 and the aforesaid Government Appeal No.1088 of 1984 (State of U.P. Vs. Sunil Kumar Singh and another) has been preferred by the State for enhancement of the sentence.

4. It is relevant to mention that the appeal qua accused Ram Daras stood abated on 20.05.2019.

5. Since the aforesaid appeals arise out of one and the same judgment dated 04.02.1984 passed by III-Additional Sessions Judge, Varanasi, therefore, the instant appeals are being disposed of by way of a common judgment.

6. The prosecution facts as discernible from record suggest that the written report was lodged at Police Station Cant, District Varanasi by the informant Omkar Nath Dubey against the accused-appellant on 11.04.1980 at 7:10 p.m. by describing that the informant's son Atul Kumar was injured by shot at quarter to 5:00 p.m. on 08.04.1980 in front of the office of A.D.M. (Project), Bhuwneshwar Colony Orderly Bazar, Varanasi. The injury was caused by firing with air-gun by Sunil Kumar Singh son of Sabhajeet Singh. On being asked, Chhotey uncle of Sunil Kumar Singh informed that boys were playing and the shot was fired in the play itself. Since condition of the victim Atul Kumar was serious, therefore, actual occurrence could not be known. After three days of the occurrence, Atul Kumar somehow regained consciousness and was able to speak then it transpired that Sunil Kumar Singh deliberately and intentionally fired on him (Atul Kumar). The air-gun belonged to Ram Daras who is peon in Sarada Sahayak Pariyojana. The injured Atul Kumar was taken to the hospital in the evening on 08.04.1980 and got admitted in the hospital in the serious condition at B.H.U. (E.N.T.).

The pellet is entangled in the neck of the injured. Request was made for lodging the first information report.This written report is Ext. Ka-1.

7. The first information report was lodged at Police Station Cant., District Varanasi on 11.04.1980 at Case crime no.207 of 1980 under Section 307 I.P.C. The check FIR is Exhibit Ka-15.

8. On the basis of entries made in the check FIR, case was registered against the accused persons at serial no.56 of G.D. on the same day at 07:10 a.m. at Case Crime No.207 of 1980 under the aforesaid Section of I.P.C. at Police Station Cant., District Varanasi. G.D. entry is Ext. Ka-16.

9. Record reflects that the injured Atul Kumar was medically examined by Dr. T.B. Rai, on 08.04.1980 at 07:05 p.m. who noted the following injury:-

1. Lacerated penetrating wound 3/4 cm x 1/2 cm x depth not proved on front of neck.

10. Injury report is Ext. Ka-5.

11. It so happened that during the treatment, the victim Atul Kumar died on 12.04.1980 at 6:15 p.m. in B.H.U. Hospital Varanasi and the matter was reported at Police Station Cant. on 13.04.1980 due to which the case was altered under Section 302 I.P.C.

12. Record signifies that after coming to know about death of the deceased Atul Kumar, Ali Mohd Khan, PW-8 rushed to the B.H.U. Hospital where he prepared relevant papers pertaining to the inquest of deceased Atul Kumar after appointing inquest witnesses. He started inquest of Atul Kumar at 11:50 a.m. on 13.04.1980 and completed at 3:50 p.m., the very same day and has proved the same as Exhibit Ka-2.

13. In the process, inquest witnesses expressed opinion for conduction of postmortem examination of the dead body in order to ascertain real cause of death. Therefore, relevant papers were prepared by Ali Mohammand Khan, PW-8 for sending the dead body for postmortem examination. Apart from that, relevant papers -say challan dead body, photonash dead body and letter to C.M.O. etc. have been proved as Ext. Ka-7, Ext. Ka-8, Ext. Ka-9, respectively.

14. Record reflects that the postmortem examination on cadaver of the deceased was conducted at mortuary, Varanasi by Dr. H.M. Agarwal, PW-6 at 3:15 p.m. on 13.04.1980. The doctor found the following ante-mortem injuries:-

1. Healing wound 0.8 cm x 0.3 cm on front of neck, 0.5 cm left of mid-line, 8 cm above supra external notch, direction horizontally backward piercing through and through anterior and posterior walls of trachea and oesophagus. One pellet (air gun pellet) found behind oesophagus in front of sixth cervical vertebrae. Frank pus in moderate amount present in front of the vertebrae column behind oesophagus and up to upper media-stinum lower down.

15. Cause of death was asphyxia. The postmortem examination report of the deceased is Exhibit Ka-4.

16. The investigation of this case commenced and the Investigating Officer, PW-8 besides recording statement of prosecution witnesses prepared site plan of place of occurrence Ext. Ka-6. In the meanwhile, accused-appellant Sunil Kumar Singh was arrested by S.O. Shyam Sunder Tiwari PW-10. The investigating was transferred to another Investigating Officer Shyam Sunder Tiwari PW-10, who also took various steps in completing the investigation and papers prepared by the Investigating Officer PW-8 were proved as Ext. Ka-11, Ext. Ka-12 and Ext. Ka-13. He recorded statement of the various persons and also recorded statement of another accused Ram Daras. After completing the Investigating, he filed charge sheet Ext. Ka-14 against the accused-appellant.

17. Pursuant to committal proceeding, case was transferred from the Sessions Court to the aforesaid trial court i.e. III-Additional Sessions Judge, Varanasi for conduction of trial and its disposal.

18. Prosecution opened its case by stating the charges brought against the accused and it also stated the evidence by which it proposed to prove guilt of the accused. The trial court heard the accused as well as prosecution on the point of charge and was, prima-facie, satisfied with the case for framing charges under Sections 302 read with Section 34 I.P.C. Accordingly, trial court framed charge against accused-appellant. Charge was read over and explained to the accused-appellant who abjured charge and opted for trial.

19. Consequently, the prosecution was asked to adduce its testimony in respect of charges. The prosecution produced in all 11 witnesses. A brief reference of them is ut infra:

20. Godawari Devi PW-1 is the mother of the deceased Atul Kumar. Sanjay Singh PW-2 appeared on the spot subsequent to the occurrence and is a witness of the post incidental development. Shyam Bihari Lal PW-3 claims himself to be eyewitness of the occurrence and he has testified about the incident. The child Nisa is the star witness of this case, she was 8 years of age when her testimony was recorded before the trial court. Omkar Nath Dubey PW-5 is the informant. Dr. H.M. Agarwal PW-6 has conducted post mortem examination on the cadaver of the deceased and has proved post mortem examination report Ext. Ka-4. Dr. T.D. Rai PW-7 has medically examined the victim on 08.04.1980 at 07:05 p.m. at S.S.P.G. Hospital Varanasi and has proved medical examination report of the victim as Ext. Ka-5. Ali Mohammad Khan PW-8 is the first Investigating Officer of this case. Constable Brij Kishor Tiwari PW-9 took the dead body in sealed condition to the mortuary at Varanasi and has proved the same. Shyam Sundar Tiwari PW-10 is the subsequent Investigating Officer who after completing the investigation has filed charge sheet against the accused-appellant. Balbhadra Tiwari PW-11 has proved the concerned Check FIR and relevant entry made regarding the same as Ext. Ka-16.

21. No further evidence was adduced by the prosecution, therefore, evidence for the prosecution was closed and statement of accused was recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. wherein he has termed the incident as incidental caused in play and has denied fact that injury was intentionally inflicted upon the deceased. In turn, defence also led testimony of several witnesses namely Krishna Mohan Saxena DW-1 regarding some entries made in the relevant record i.e. electoral papers. Hari Prasad DW-2 was posted in Udai Pratap Degree College and has proved the record regarding date of birth of the accused-appellant. Dinesh Chandra Srivastava is DW-3 and Ramkesh Rai is DW-4.

22. The trial court after hearing both the sides on merit and appraising facts and evaluating the evidence, returned the aforesaid finding of conviction and passed the aforesaid sentence thus instead of passing sentence upon the accused-appellant Sunil Kumar Singh gave him benefit of probation for two years to maintain peace and be of good behaviour on his furnishing a personal bond of Rs.4,000/- along with two sureties each in the like amount.

23. Consequently, the aforesaid three appeals- the first against conviction and sentence by the accused-appellant, the second against the order of acquittal qua aforesaid accused-appellant and the third for enhancement of the sentence by the Government.

24. Sri R.K. Mishra, learned counsel for the accused-appellant has submitted that the entire prosecution story is concocted and highly motivated in the sense that nothing happened on the spot and no one saw the occurrence. It so happened that the deceased Atul Kumar and the accused-appellant Sunil Kumar Singh were playing together and some air-gun was used in the play which in fact caused harm to the deceased. This harm cannot be imputed to a single person that he had any animus to commit crime. Both the accused-appellant and the deceased were of the some tender age. What happened prior to the occurrence has not been accounted by any eye-account testimony.

25. Nisha Devi PW-4 is the only eye-account witness who has also not detailed in her examination in chief as to what transpired prior to the occurrence. The prosecution story is silent on the genesis of the incident created on the spot. Both the children - say accused-appellant Sunil Kumar Singh and the deceased Atul Kumar were playing and their playful activity somehow brought incidental hit by air-gun to the deceased Atul Kumar.

26. Now it so happened that after air-gun hit on the neck of the deceased Atul Kumar, his parents were infuriated and with a view to take revenge lodged false first information report regarding the firing and imputed to the accused-appellant Sunil Kumar Singh by tutoring Nisha Devi PW-4 on the point that the incident occurred in such and such manner. Assuming it to be that any incident as alleged in the first information report took place then version of Nisha Devi PW-4 ipso-facto becomes dubious, vague and tutored as this witness is wholly unreliable, for the reason that as per her testimony, she has described particular manner of the incident that the gun was pointed on the neck of the deceased Atul Kumar, at that particular moment when the incident took place, some conversation between the accused-appellant Sunil Kumar Singh and the deceased Atul Kumar took place that conversation is of particular nature and it has come in her testimony that she told about the incident to her parents after the occurrence took place. But this part of conversation is absolutely silent in the first information report.

27. However, a twist has been given to the entire situation by claiming that the informant was intimated by the injured himself that the accused-appellant Sunil Kumar Singh fired upon him with air-gun which aspect of the case is self-explanatory of fact that there is no iota of evidence or circumstance which may indicate the point that the deceased Atul Kumar ever regained his consciousness and was in fit mental condition to spell / utter any single word.

28. The doctor witness has also not been examined by the prosecution on this point who can testify fact that the deceased Atul Kumar was in fit mental condition to spell / utter word then the point as to how and under what circumstance the informant was intimated by the deceased Atul Kumar himself is an episode self-created by none other than the informant himself and has been wrongly relied by the trial court. Charges against appellant have not been proved beyond reasonable doubt.

29. Contention by the learned A.G.A., in brief, is that conviction recorded under Section 304 Part-II is itself indicative of fact that charge though was framed under Section 302 I.P.C. but conviction was recorded under Section 304 Part-II I.P.C. which deviation by the trial court under facts and circumstances of the case is not justified, for the reason that eye-account testimony of Nisha Devi PW-4 is direct, accurate in consonance with the prosecution version described in the first information report. Her testimony is innocuous and unimpeachable on the point of the occurrence. The intention to cause harm when considered vis-a-vis the attendant facts and circumstances of the case would end in commission of offence of death and it actually occurred in this case. An innocent boy lost his life because of the indolent behaviour of the accused-appellant Sunil Kumar Singh and this case should not be viewed with leniency and no mercy can be shown to the accused-appellant Sunil Kumar Singh on the ground that the accused-appellant Sunil Kumar Singh was at that particular time of this incident a boy of tender age of 12 years. The prosecution witnesses have proved all the relevant facts which are required to be proved by it.

30. In this case, as per allegations the intention to commit the crime was apparent, however, the conviction, if converted, from Section 302 I.P.C. to one under Section 304 I.P.C. then it ought to have been confined to Part-I of Section 304 I.P.C. and the animus which was playing in the mind of the accused-appellant was very much apparent by the criminal act done by him. The trial court wrongly convicted the accused-appellant under Part-II of Section 304 I.P.C. instead it should have convicted the accused-appellant under Part -I of Section 304 I.P.C.

31. Lastly added that the case of the prosecution has been consistently proved and investigation of this case has been done properly and fairly. Testimony of the prosecution witnesses of fact is clinching, sans embellishment and improvement and under circumstances, is natural and inspires confidence. Nisha Devi PW-4 is the star witness who has described every relevant details of the incident and participation of the accused-appellant in the incident.

32. After hearing learned counsel for the parties and considering rival submissions of the respective parties, core consideration that arise in these appeals are two pronged - one relates to fact whether the prosecution was not able to prove its charges against appellant Sunil Kumar Singh in the aforesaid Criminal Appeal (717 of 1984) and second relates to fact whether finding of acquittal is based on conjectures and surmises rather than grounded on material on record and third relates to enhancement of the sentence in the aforesaid Government Appeals?

33. The very genesis of the crime, as we gather from reading of the first information report, describes the incident to have taken place on 08.04.1980 at 4:45 p.m. and description is to the magnitude that with intention to kill, shot was fired with air-gun upon the victim Atul Kumar by the accused-appellant Sunil Kumar Singh. The shot hit on the neck of the victim.

34. The condition of the victim was serious, therefore, details of the incident could not be known and after three days of the incident when the victim was able to speak then it transpired that the accused-appellant Sunil Kumar Singh deliberately shot him with air-gun and the air-gun was owned by peon Ram Daras posted in the office at Sarada Sahayak Pariyojana. The victim was taken to the hospital in the injured condition where he was admitted in serious condition. The pellet was entangled in his neck. If this version of the incident is taken to be correct then we have star witness of this incident namely Nisha Devi PW-4.

35. As regards the occurrence, we have best testimony in the form of PW-4 and PW-3. We scanned the entire testimony of Shyam Bihari Lal PW-3 who happened to be Lekhpal posted in district Varanasi. The place of the occurrence is adjacent to the office of Tehsil. He has described about the incident in his examination in chief that at the relevant point of time, he saw the occurrence when accused-appellant Sunil Kumar Singh was possessing air-gun and was standing at some pace from the victim this air-gun was given by Ram Daras to the accused-appellant Sunil Kumar Singh.

36. As soon as the victim Atul Kumar arrived on the spot, the accused-appellant Sunil Kumar Singh pointed air-gun on his neck and put the trigger on. This is particular piece of testimony regarding the incident. The natural conduct of this witness is to be considered for evaluating veracity of his testimony. In the cross examination, it is admitted to this witness that for over three days, he did not make any statement to any authority about the incident then what to say to the Investigating Officer that after three days, he gave statement to Daroga Ji.

37. Here we come across contrary statement given / made to Daroga Ji and testimony given in the cross examination before the trial court. His testimony does not indicate compatibility with natural conduct that after seeing the occurrence, he being Lekhpal posted in district Varanasi at that point of time must have told /described about the incident to anyone but he kept silent for three days. May be, he is a procured witness, managed by the prosecution in order to articulate things in its favour. Therefore, this witness is not reliable and he cannot be believed to be worthy of credit. He is vacillating on material point and his natural conduct is inconsistent with that of a man of ordinary prudence, not fit in the prevailing circumstances of the case.

38. Now we have testimony of the only star witness Nisha Devi PW-4, sister of the deceased Atul Kumar. After careful perusal of her testimony, we can take note of the description of the incident as testified in her examination in chief wherein she has categorically stated that the deceased Atul Kumar was her brother and the accused-appellant Sunil Kumar Singh fired upon him. The gun was pointed on the neck, with point blank range, and shot was fired at that relevant point of time when the gun was put on the neck of the deceased by the accused-appellant Sunil Kumar Singh, the deceased Atul Kumar asked him not to do so whereupon the accused-appellant Sunil Kumar Singh insisted that he will do this. After sustaining shot, the deceased Atul Kumar fell down to the eastern side of the electric pole on the spot.

39. Upon perusal of the first information report, it is revealed that the incident occurred around 5:00 p.m. on 08.04.1980. This description emerging in examination in chief of this witness (Nisha Devi PW-4) is to be cautiously scrutinized in view of fact that PW-4 is a child witness and at the time of the occurrence, she was about 6 years of age.

40. But before proceeding further, we would like to reflect on the point as we have scanned testimony of the doctor witness who medically examined the deceased and also perused relevant part of the testimony of the Investigating Officer Ali Mohammad Khan PW-8 who went to the B.H.U. Hospital in emergency ward after the investigation was taken over by him on 12.04.1980 then he found the victim Atul Kumar in unconscious state which indicates that the victim was not able to speak at that point of time when the Investigating Officer PW-8 arrived at B.H.U. Hospital Varanasi in the emergency ward on 12.04.1980 and his testimony is admitted on the point that the death occurred on 12.04.1980 in the evening around 6:15 p.m. itself. This being so an independent circumstance, the version in the first information report that the informant was told about the incident by the victim Atul Kumar is a version wholly unreliable and appears to have been managed by the prosecution and in particular by the informant and cannot be believed to be correct version in the prevailing facts and circumstances of the case.

41. Upon careful scrutiny of the entire testimony - say examination in chief and cross examination of the star witness Nisha Devi PW-4, we gather fact that after the occurrence, she told each particular of the occurrence to her parents and Omkar Nath Dubey - informant who is none other than the father of Nisha Devi PW-4.

42. Now the moot point is concerning fact that after the incident took place, each particular of the incident was described and the first information report was lodged on 11.04.1980 much after the occurrence took place on 08.04.1980, how and why was reference to the magnitude that the injured was in fit condition to speak and he told about the incident to the informant then the informant came to know that offence was deliberately committed by none other than the accused-appellant Sunil Kumar Singh. This particular aspect is unimpeachable under existing circumstance of this case and requires explanation by the prosecution and the prosecution has tried to manage things to a degree to bring the case beyond reasonable doubt which it failed on account of certain infirmities creating serious dent in the prosecution story.

43. That way, no doubt the prosecution witness PW-4 is not believed to be wholly reliable witness and she appears to have been tutored witness because she has categorically stated in her cross examination that whatever was seen by her was told by her to her parents. During treatment of the the deceased, the conversation took place between PW-4 and her parents as emerging in her cross examination on page nos.34 and 35 of the paper-book then how and why improvement by PW-5 on point of talk with Atul Kumar that he had conversation with him (the deceased). The prosecution could not come out specifically about any such testimony or circumstance explicit or implicit reflecting on the point that the deceased regained consciousness and was in fit physical condition to speak. Under these circumstances as a measure of caution, PW-4 who is a child witness cannot be wholly relied by us and doubt is created about the very manner and style of the incident in which the offence is claimed to have been committed by the accused.

44. The claim of the defence that the air-gun was fired in the play and it somehow incidentally hit the victim can be acted upon as plausible explanation about the incident. Under these circumstances, we can hold that the case was not proved within the four corners of Section 304 I.P.C. and the trial court did not consider this vital unimpeachable point / circumstance of the case which is self-revealing instead the prosecution on the point of actual occurrence is all the times improving and vacillating and the statement of the prosecution witnesses on the vital point as such are contrary to the Section 161 Cr.P.C. which contrast has been elaborately pointed out by the defence in cross examination of the prosecution witnesses. The prosecution witnesses PW-3 and PW-4 have been specifically challenged by the defence, which has been denied but specific challenge to the witnesses cannot be overlooked by us in view of several infirmities appearing in the testimony and we hold in the final count that the charge has not been proved beyond reasonable doubt and the accused-appellant is entitled to benefit of doubt - acquittal.

45. Learned trial court while considering merit of the case somehow overlooked above material factual aspects, circumstances and testimony on the whole on record and adopted only casual approach. Thus, the trial court erroneously recorded finding of conviction against the accused-appellant under Section 304 Part-II I.P.C. which finding in the absence of consistent and clinching testimony on point of occurrence becomes unsustainable and in the result liable to be set aside by us.

46. Therefore, the judgment and order of conviction dated 04.02.1984 passed by III-Additional Sessions Judge, Varanasi, in Sessions Trial No. 133 of 1981, State Vs. Sunil Kumar Singh and another, arising out of Case Crime No.207 of 1980, under Section 304 Part-II read with Section 34 I.P.C., Police Station Cant, District Varanasi, is hereby set aside. Accused-appellant Sunil Kumar Singh is acquitted of the charge. Accordingly, the instant criminal appeal is allowed.

47. In this case, the accused-appellant is on bail. He need not surrender before the court concerned. His bail bonds are cancelled and sureties are discharged. However, he shall furnish surety bonds in compliance with Section 437A Cr.P.C.

48. Accordingly, Government Appeal No.1086 of 1984 and Government Appeal No.1088 of 1984 being devoid of merit are dismissed.

49. Let a copy of this order be certified to the trial court for its intimation and necessary follow-up action.

THE HON'BLE ANIL KUMAR, J.
THE HON'BLE VIRENDRA KUMAR SRIVASTAVA, J.

Criminal Appeal No. 720 of 1982

State of U.P.(State Appeal) ...Appellant
Versus
Smt. Chhoti & Anr. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Appellant:
Govt. Advocate

Counsel for the Respondents:
Nagendra Mohan, Som Narain Saxena, Wasim Ahmad

A. One of the essential condition for taking into consideration of such confession against another co-accused is that both the accused must have been jointly tried before the Trial Court and if the accused has not been tried jointly before the Trial Court, the extra judicial confession made by him cannot read against another co-accused and such confession is inadmissible in evidence- Accused will be presumed as innocent unless and until the prosecution has succeeded to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt and the presumption of innocence of accused is further strengthened if he is acquitted by the Trial Court- In an appeal against acquittal, if two views are possible, one is in favour of accused-person and judgment of Trial Court is not illegal or manifestly perverse, the appellate Court should not disturb the order of acquittal.

B. Evidence Law-Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 30- Extra judicial confession- Admissibility- Extra judicial confession made by co-accused is a weak type of evidence -The requirement of law for making the said evidence admissible is that both the accused must have been jointly tried before the Trial Court and in absence of such joint trail for any reason, the extra judicial confession made by one accused cannot be read against another co-accused.

C. Criminal Law-Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973- Section 378 (1)- Appeal against acquittal- Presumption of innocence in favour of the accused- Where the accused is acquitted by the trial court, there is a double presumption of innocence in his favour and the view in favour of the accused will be ordinarily accepted unless there is a patent illegality or manifest error apparent from the judgement of the trial court.

1. The instant criminal appeal has been filed against the judgment and order dated 01.01.1982, passed by 3rd Additional District and Sessions Judge, Sitapur in Sessions Trial No.382/1979 (State vs. Smt. Chhoti and others), arising out of Case Crime No.60/1977, under Sections-302 read with 34 and 201 I.P.C., Police Station (P.S.)-Kamlapur, District-Sitapur, whereby the respondents-accused (hereinafter referred to as respondents)- Smt. Chhoti and Ram Swarup have been acquitted by the Trial Court from the charges of offence under Sections-302 read with 34 and Section 201 I.P.C.

2. During pendency of the appeal, respondent no.1-Smt. Chhoti had died and the present appeal, filed against her, has been abated by this Court vide order dated 24.01.2020.

3. The prosecution case, in brief, is that the deceased-Jaswant Singh (hereinafter referred to as deceased) was brother of Jagdish (P.W.-1) (informant). Jagdish Singh (P.W.-1) is resident of village-Kumharanpurwa, P. S.-Kamlapur, District-Sitapur. Babu Ram (P.W.-3), Bachan (P.W.-5) and Mool Chand (P.W.-6) are co-villagers of Jagdish Singh (P.W.-1). The deceased and one Shyam Lal resident of village-Dalelnagar, P.S.-Kamlapur, District-Sitapur, since deceased during committal proceeding, (hereinafter referred to as co-accused-Shyam Lal) were inimical for last two years from the incident as they had quarreled in respect to the irrigation of their field, due to which, the co-accused-Shyam Lal was in search of opportunity to eliminate the deceased. For last one month, the co-accused-Shyam Lal was trying to have friendly relations with the deceased, whereupon the informant (P.W.-1) had warned the deceased that he would not have confidence of co-accused-Shyam Lal as he was a notorious criminal. In addition to it, there was an estrange relationship between the respondent-Ram Swarup and deceased due to dispute regarding a grove between one Saktu and the respondent-Ram Swarup wherein the deceased was supporting the cause of Saktu and Barati Pasi, who were estranged from the respondent-Ram Swarup.

4. On 17.07.1977, at about 9:00-10:00 A.M., the deceased told the Jagdish Singh (P.W.-1) and his family members that he along with Bachan (P.W.-5) was going to the house of the co-accused-Shyam Lal in order to purchase some chaff (Bhusa) for Bachan (P.W.-5) and at that time, the deceased had weared a Dhoti and Baniyan and having a Titan Crystal Watch on his wrist. Since the deceased did not return till 9:00-10:00 P.M. on that day, the informant (P.W.-1) inquired of Bachan (P.W.-5) the whereabouts of deceased, who (P.W.-5) told that the deceased had gone with him to the house of co-accused-Shyam Lal and had talked with co-accused for purchasing of chaff (Bhusa) whereupon the co-accused-Shyam Lal told that he would sell chaff (Bhusa) in 2-3 days. Bachan (P.W.-5) also informed the informant (P.W.-1) that the co-accused-Shyam Lal had taken the deceased inside his house, at that time the respondent-Ram Swarup had also come there and both of them had gone with the deceased inside the house of the co-accused-Shyam Lal. Sensing some suspicious conduct of the co-accused-Shyam Lal as he was a notorious criminal, Jagdish Singh (P.W.-1) along with Sobaran (not examined), Babu Ram (P.W.-3), Bhagwati (not examined) and Bachan (P.W.-5) proceeded to the house of co-accused-Shyam Lal. They reached there at 10:00 P.M. and knocked the door of the co-accused-Shyam Lal by asking the whereabouts of the deceased. In response the respondent-Smt. Chhoti (since deceased) told them that the deceased had not come towards her house since morning. When she was asked to open the door, she refused to do so. Thereafter, the informant (P.W.-1) and other witnesses namely Shiv

Charan (not examined), Sobaran (not examined), Mool Chand (P.W.-6), Ram Swarup Yadav (not examined) and Maiku Lal (not examined), who are resident of village-Dalelnagar, made another attempt to get the door of the co-accused-Shyam Lal opened but they also failed to succeed. As the informant (P.W.-1) failed to receive any information regarding whereabouts of his brother (deceased) and got suspicious that his brother might have been killed by the co-accused-Shyam Lal (since deceased) and the respondent-Ram Swarup, he (P.W.-1) put surveillance (Garabandi) around the house of the co-accused-Shyam Lal. The informant (P.W.-1) along with Shiv Charan sat on the terrace of the house of Shiv Charan. At about 4:00 A.M. in the intervening night of 17-18th July, 1977, some fire flames were sighted by them in the south-west corner of the court-yard of the house of the co-accused-Shyam Lal, which resulted in the burning of Chhappar. It created sufficient light at the place of occurrence and in that light, the informant (P.W.-1) and Shiv Charan (not examined) saw that the co-accused-Shyam Lal and the respondent-Smt. Chhoti (since deceased) were pouring Kharphoos whereas the respondent-Ram Swarup was also pouring diesel from a can. The informant (P.W.-1) and Shiv Charan (not examined) got frightened and remained silent till morning. They made another attempt to get the door of co-accused-Shyam Lal opened but again they could not succeed. On 18.07.1977 at about 10:00 A.M., Ramdhan (P.W.-2) (Village Pradhan) resident of village-Garhi and so many people of villages i.e. Dalelnagar and Kumharpurwan gathered there. Ramdhan (P.W.-2) (Village Pradhan) also requested co-accused-Shyam Lal to open the door but the co-accused-Shyam Lal refused to do so. Thereupon Ramdhan (P.W.-2) asked one Babu Ram (P.W.-3) to enter into the house of the co-accused-Shyam Lal. Thereupon Babu Ram (P.W.-3) entered into the house of the co-accused-Shyam Lal with the help of bamboo ladder and opened the door. Thereafter, the informant (P.W.-1) and other witnesses entered into the house of the co-accused-Shyam Lal and saw that the co-accused-Shyam Lal, the respondent-Smt. Chhoti (since deceased) and the respondent-Ram Swarup were burning the body of the deceased. Seeing the informant and other witnesses, the respondent-Ram Swarup managed to escape from the place of occurrence through back window whereas the co-accused-Shyam Lal and respondent-Smt. Chhoti (since deceased) were caught on the spot. When the co-accused-Shyam Lal was interrogated by Ramdhan (P.W.-2) (Village Pradhan), he admitted that he along with the respondent-Smt. Chhoti (since deceased) and the respondent-Ram Swarup had killed the deceased and packed the dead body of the deceased in a jute bag but they failed to take it out as they were surrounded by the informant (P.W.-1) and other witnesses. He further confessed that he along with other accused were burning the body of the deceased in order to destroy the evidence.

5. The informant (P.W.-1) got the Tahrir (Ext.-Ka-1) written by Babu Ram (P.W.-3) and leaving the semi burnt body of the deceased, at the place of occurrence, reached the P. S.-Kamlapur and lodged the F.I.R. at 3:05 P.M. on 18.07.1977. The said information was entered in G.D. No.-160 on the same day by Head Constable namely Bashir Ahmad (P.W.-8) and First Information Report (Ext. Ka-15) was registered as Case Crime No.60/1977 in the presence of Sri Uday Narain Singh, (P.W.-7), S.O., P.S.-Kamlapur, who took the investigation of the case, recorded the statement of Jagdish Singh (P.W.-1) and proceeded to place of occurrence. When he reached the place of occurrence, he found that semi burnt dead body of the deceased was lying in the kitchen of co-accused-Shyam Lal under his chhappar. He also found that both the co-accused-Shyam Lal and the respondent-Smt. Chhoti (since deceased) were present inside the house and arrested them. He inspected the body of the deceased and recovered half burnt cotton from mouth of deceased.

6. The inquest proceeding of dead body of the deceased was conducted, inquest report (Panchnama) (Ex.-K2-A) as well as other relevant papers required for post-mortem examination were prepared and after sealing the dead body of the deceased, the same was handed over to Constable-Indira Narain Tewari (P.W.-9) and Chaukidar Shiv Ram (not examined) with a direction to proceed for District-Hospital, Sitapur for postmortem examination.

7. Udaya Narain Singh (P.W.-7) also inspected the place of occurrence and prepared the site plan (Ext.Ka-11), recovered the half burnt tat, rope, piece of cloth, some bamboo pieces, half burnt ashes, and also took sample of blood stained earth from the place of occurrence. The recovery memos (Ext.Ka-7 to Ka-10) were prepared in the presence of one Gaya Prasad (not examined) and Saryu (not examined). During interrogation, the co-accused-Shyam Lal told that the deceased was killed by spear (Bhala) and the same had been put in the Ghoora of one Ram Sagar. On the pointing out of the co-accused-Shyam Lal, the said Bhala was recovered in the presence of Ramdhan (P.W.-2), Barati Lal (not examined) and Ram Sagar (not examined) and was handed over to the Investigating Officer (P.W.-7) by co-accused-Shyam Lal.

8. Dr. R. S. Agarwal (P.W.-4), the then Superintendent, P.A.C., Hospital, Sitapur, conducted the postmortem examination of the dead body of the deceased on 19.07.1977 at 3:00 P.M.. According to him, the dead body of the deceased was about two days old and the whole body was burnt from head to toes ; skull bone was visible and there was no skin or muscle present on the head. Intestines were coming out from the right lumber region Right hand and both the feet were amputated due to burn. He found following anti mortem injuries :

"Stabbed wound between 8th and 9th ribs right chest 5cm x 2cm x cavity deep underneath. 8th rib found fractured.

Incised wound from mid of neck to right side of neck anteniorly 5 cm x 1 cm x trachea cut, thyriod cartilage broken and big vessels of right side cut.".

9. According to doctor, the death of the deceased was caused due to shock and haemorrhage as a result of anti mortem injuries and it could have been caused at any time after 10:00 A.M. on 17.07.1977. He prepared the postmortem report (Ext. Ka-2) at the time of examination.

10. After investigation, the charge sheet (Ext. Ka-14) under Section 302 read with 34 and 201 I.P.C. was filed against the co-accused-Shyam Lal, the respondent-Smt. Chhoti (since deceased) and the respondent-Ram Swarup before the concerned Judicial Magistrate, Sitapur, who took the cognizance of offence. During committal proceeding, the co-accused-Shyam Lal died. Since the case was exclusively triable by the Court of Sessions, after providing the copies of relevant police papers, concerned Magistrate committed the case to Court of Sessions, Sitapur for trial.

11. The charges for offence under Section 302 read with Section 34 and 201 I.P.C. were framed against the respondent-Smt. Chhoti (since deceased) and the respondent-Ram Swarup which were read over to them. Both the respondents denied the charges levelled against them and claimed for trial.

12. During trial, the prosecution, in order to prove its case, examined Jaswant Singh (P.W.-1), Ramdhan (P.W.-2), Babu Ram (P.W.-3), Dr. R. S. Agarwal (P.W.-4), Bachan (P.W.-5), Mool Chand (P.W.-6), Uday Narain Singh (P.W.-7), Head Constable, Bashir Ahmad (P.W.-8) and Narain Tewari (P.W.-9).

13. Jaswant Singh (P.W.-1), Ramdhan (Pradhan) (P.W.-2), Baburam (P.W.-3), Bachan (P.W.-5) and Mool Chand (P.W.-6) are witnesses of fact whereas rest witnesses are formal witnesses.

14. After conclusion of the prosecution evidence, the statement of the respondents were recorded under Section 313 Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (hereinafter referred to as Code) wherein they denied the prosecution evidence and stated that they have been falsely implicated. The respondent-Ram Swarup further stated that he had dispute (Jhaghra) with Village Pradhan, Ramdhan (P.W.-2) and due to that enmity, he had been falsely implicated. He further stated that all the witnesses are under the influence of Ramdhan (Village Pradhan) (P.W.-2). The respondent-Smt. Chhoti (since deceased) further stated that she is widow and her elder brother-in-law (Jeth)-Sanatan wanted to grab her land and under the conspiracy, Jagdish Singh (P.W.-1) had falsely implicated her so that she might abandoned her house. She further stated that she had litigation with Sanatan.

15. The respondents-Ram Swarup and Smt. Chhoti (since deceased) were given an opportunity to produce evidence in their defence. The respondent-Smt. Chhoti (since deceased) filed certified copies of two documents i.e. Ext.-Kha-1 and Ext.-Kha-3. Ext.-Kha-1 is a copy of order dated 08.05.1979 passed by Munsif Biswana, Sitapur in Civil Suit No.12 of 1979 (Smt. Kapura vs. Sanatan) and Kxt.Kha-3 is the copy of the judgment dated 29.02.1980 passed by Munsif Biswan in Civil Suit No.12 of 1979 (Smt. Kapura vs. Sanatan). These documents were filed to show that she was in litigation with her elder brother-in-law-Sanatan in respect of agricultural land.

16. The Trial Court, after hearing the learned counsel for both parties and considering the material available on record, disbelieved the prosecution story on the ground that the conduct and presence of the prosecution witnesses were unnatural and unreliable because no effort was made to lodge the first information report promptly, even when Jagdish Singh (P.W.-1) saw at 4:00 A.M. on 18.07.1977 that his brother-deceased was killed and dead body was being brunt by the respondents and co-accused-Shyam Lal. The Trial Court also disbelieved the prosecution witnesses on the ground that no effort was made to get the door opened till 10:00 A.M. on 18.07.1977 even after knowing that the deceased was killed inside the house of the co-accused-Shyam Lal and the dead body was being burnt. The Trial Court also disbelieved the prosecution witness that the deceased was being burnt by the respondents as well as co-accused-Shyam Lal by 4:00 A.M. on 18.07.1977 till 10:00 A.M. on that day. The Trial Court also disbelieved the extra judicial confession of co-accused in the absence of substantive piece of evidence.

17. The Trial Court, in view of aforesaid defect and lacuna in the prosecution case, held that the prosecution had miserably failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt against the respondents and accordingly, acquitted them. Aggrieved by the impugned judgment and order passed by learned Trial Court, State has preferred the present appeal.

18. We have heard Sri Badrul Hasan, learned A.G.A. for the State-appellant, Ms. Devika Singh, learned counsel for the respondent and gone through the records.

19. Learned A.G.A. has submitted that the impugned judgment and order, passed by the learned Trial Court, is against the provisions of law and also against the evidence available on record. Learned A.G.A. further submitted that the fact and evidence, that the death of the deceased was caused in the house of the co-accused-Shyam Lal and body of the deceased was found in his house, has not been disbelieved by the Trial Court. Learned A.G.A. further submitted that the presence of respondent-Ram Swarup at the time of occurrence inside the house of co-accused-Shyam Lal i.e. place of occurrence and his culpability in the offence has been proved by the prosecution witnesses and also by the extra judicial confession of co-accused-Shyam Lal but the Trial Court did not rely on the evidence of prosecution witnesses only on the ground that they are not independent witness. Learned A.G.A. further submitted that there is sufficient evidence on record against the respondent-Ram Swarup, the prosecution has succeeded to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt, the judgment of Trial Court is liable to be set aside and the present appeal be allowed.

20. Per contra, learned counsel for the respondents submitted that the prosecution story is unnatural and unreliable. Learned counsel further submitted that the prosecution witnesses are interested witnesses and their presence and conduct on the place of occurrence are unnatural. The respondents were falsely implicated in this case due to enmity. Learned counsel further submitted that the extra judicial confession of co-accused is not admissible in evidence. Learned counsel further submitted that the presence of the respondent-Ram Swarup has not been proved by the prosecution and nothing has been recovered either from his possession or on his pointing out. Learned counsel further submitted that the ocular evidence is not supported by the medical evidence and the prosecution story is based only on surmises and conjecture, which cannot be relied upon. Learned counsel further submitted that the impugned judgment and order passed by Trial Court is well discussed and well reasoned and according to settled principle of law ; there is no illegality in the said judgment and accordingly, hence, the present appeal is liable to be dismissed.

21. We have considered the rival submissions of learned counsel for both the parties and gone through the records.

22. Jagdish Singh (P.W.-1), informant, star witness of the prosecution, supporting the prosecution case, has stated that he is resident of village-Kumaharanpurwa, P.S.-Kamlapur and village-Dalelnagar is situated one kilometer (K.M.) away to south of his village where co-accused-Shyam Lal and respondent-Smt. Chhoti (since deceased) were resided whereas the respondent-Ram Swarup is residing in village-Gadhi which is situated from one K.M. away to North-East of his village. He further stated that he knew very well the co-accused-Shyam Lal, the respondent-Smt. Chhoti (since deceased) and the respondent-Ram Swarup prior to the alleged occurrence. He stated that husband of the respondent-Smt. Chhoti (since deceased) had died and she used to reside with co-accused-Shyam Lal, who was notorious criminal, was convicted in 2-3 cases and was killed after one year of the alleged occurrence. He (P.W.-1) further stated that Shiv Charan (not examined) and Mool Chand (P.W.-6) are co-villager of co-accused-Shyam Lal. He further stated that there was enmity between the deceased and co-accused-Shyam Lal for last two years as they had quarreled in respect to the dispute of irrigating of their field and for the last one month co-accused-Shyam Lal was trying to have friendly relations with the deceased and informant had warned him to be cautious with the co-accused-Shyam Lal as he would not repose confidence on him. He further stated that in addition to above, the respondent-Ram Swarup was also inimical to the deceased because there was litigation regarding grove between the Saktu, Barati Pasi and the respondent-Ram Swarup wherein the deceased was supporting the cause of Saktu and Barati Pasi. He further stated that on 17.07.1977, at about 9:00-10:00 A.M., the deceased had gone with Bachan (P.W.-5) to the house of co-accused-Shyam Lal for purchasing of chaff (Bhusa) for Bachan (P.W.-5) and when the deceased did not return to his house till late night on that day, he (P.W.-1) inquired Bachan (P.W.5) whereabout of deceased, whereupon Bachan (P.W.-5) replied that he had gone with deceased to the house of co-accused-Shyam Lal to purchase the chaff (Bhusa) and since the transaction of the chaff was not finalized, the deceased stayed at the house of co-accused-Shyam Lal. He (P.W.-5) further informed that the co-accused-Shyam Lal had taken the deceased inside his house and at that time, the respondent-Ram Swarup was also present there. This witness further stated that sensing some untoward, he (P.W.-1), along with other witnesses, went to the house of co-accused-Shyam Lal and knocked his door but the respondent-Smt. Chhoti (since deceased) denied to open the door ; thereupon he (P.W.-1) with help of Ramdhan (Village Pradhan) (P.W.-2), Babu Ram (P.W.-3), Bachan (P.W.-5), Mool Chand (P.W.-6), Sobhran (not examined), Maiku Lal (not exained), Shiv Charan (not examined) and so many people of Village-Dalelnagar and Kumaharanpurwa surrounded the house of co-accused and seized his house. He (P.W.-1) further stated that he and one Shiv Charan (not examined) sat at the terrace of Shiv Charan in order to watch the activity going on inside the house of co-accused-Shyam Lal and had found that at about 4:00 A.M., some flames were sighted in the house of co-accused-Shyam Lal on the south-west corner of the house and also saw that the co-accused-Shyam Lal as well as Smt. Chhoti (since deceased) were putting hey (kharpoos) and the respondent-Ram Swarup was pouring diesel oil from can on the body of the deceased. He further stated that on the next day i.e. 18.07.1977, he (P.W.-1) with the help of other prosecution witnesses again tried to get the door of the house of co-accused-Shyam Lal opened but they did not succeed, thereupon at about 10:00 A.M. on the instructions of Ramdhan (Village Pradhan) (P.W.-2) a ladder was brought by the Babu Ram (P.W.-3) and in order to open the door of the house of co-accused-Shyam Lal, Babu Ram (P.W.-3) climbed on the wall of court-yard of the house and saw that the respondent-Ram Swarup, the respondent-Smt. Chhoti (since deceased) and co-accused-Shyam Lal were burning the body of the deceased. He (P.W.-3) jumped inside the court-yard of the house of the co-accused-Shyam Lal and opened the main door and thereafter, some people including the prosecution witnesses entered into the house of co-accused-Shyam Lal. The co-accused-Shyam Lal and the respondent-Smt. Chhoti (since deceased) were caught at the place of occurrence but the respondent-Ram Swarup managed to escape therefrom through back side window of the house of the co-accused-Shyam Lal. He further stated that the co-accused-Shyam Lal made extra judicial confession to Ramdhan (P.W.-2) that he and the respondent-Smt. Chhoti (since deceased) had caught the deceased and the respondent-Ram Swarup had killed the deceased by spear (Bhala). He (Shyam Lal) further confessed that due to (Garhabandi) of his house, they failed to take out the dead body of the deceased from his house and hence they were disposing the dead body by burning it. Thereafter, he (P.W.-1) reached the police station and lodged the first information report on 18.07.1977 at 15:05 P.M.

23. Bachan (P.W.-5) is also resident of village-Kumaharanpurwa and according to the prosecution case, he and deceased had gone to the house of co-accused-Shyam Lal (since deceased) to purchase the chaff (Bhusha) for Bachan (P.W.-5). The alleged occurrence was happened in the month of July. Bachan (P.W.-5) has admitted that he had eighteen Bigha agricultural land and had only four Goi (Oxen) and one buffallow. In addition to it, he was also cultivating seven Bigha agricultural land on batai. He has further admitted that he had sufficient chaff (Bhusa) for two months of his animals and had also bought some chaff from his uncle prior to two months of occurrence.

24. In our view, the statements of prosecution witnesses i.e. Jagdish Singh (P.W.-1) and Bachan (P.W.-5), that the deceased had gone to the house of co-accused-Shyam Lal, to purchase the chaff (Bhusa) for Bachan (P.W.-5), who had already sufficient chaff (Bhusa) at the time of occurrence, are unreliable because if there was no urgent necessity for purchasing Bhusa to Bachan (P.W.-5), the conduct of deceased to go for purchasing of Bhusa for Bachan (P.W.-5) to the house of co-accused-Shyam Lal, who was inimical to him and was a notorious criminal and staying at his house without any justification in the presence of the respondent-Ram Swarup, who was also inimical to deceased, is highly unnatural and improbable. This inherent defect is fatal to the prosecution case.

25. According to prosecution, apprehension, that some untowards might have been caused to deceased by co-accused-Shyam Lal, was caused to Jagdish (P.W.-1) on 17.07.1977 at 10:00 P.M. when Bachan (P.W.-5) informed him that deceased was carried by co-accused-Shyam Lal inside his house in presence of respondent-Ram Swarup and he (P.W.-1) could not succeed to get the door of house of co-accused-Shyam Lal opened. Such apprehension further strengthened when he (P.W.-1) saw on 18.07.1977 at about 4:00

A.M. that respondent-Ram Swarup was burning the dead body of deceased with the help of co-accused-Shyam Lal and respondent-Smt. Chhoti (since deceased), but F.I.R. of the occurrence was lodged by him on 18.07.1977 at 3:05 P.M. Thus huge delay has been caused in lodging F.I.R. It is settled principle of law that undue delay in lodging F.I.R., if not properly explained, is fatal in each and every cases. In this case, prosecution has failed to explain the delay caused in lodging the F.I.R. and explanation given by Jagdish (P.W.-1) for delay in lodging the F.I.R. that if he had gone to the Police Station or had gone to call the Chaukidar, his companions might have lifted the Garabandi, is not reliable and has rightly been disbelieved by Trial Court on the ground that he (P.W.-1) did not even sent anyone to his house to call his family members who could go to the police station or atleast to call the Chaukidar of the village. Failure of the prosecution to explain the delay, caused in lodging the F.I.R., has further created serious doubt and loopholes in the prosecution case.

26. In addition to the above, there is another lacuna in the prosecution story which also created it wholly unreliable because according to Jagdish Singh (P.W.-1) when he along with other witnesses entered into the house of the co-accused-Shyam Lal, the co-accused-Shyam Lal and the respondent-Smt. Chhoti were caught on the spot whereas the respondent-Ram Swarup managed to escape from the place of occurrence. This version has also been repeated by Ramdhan (Village Pradhan) (P.W.-2), Babu Ram (P.W.-3) and Bachan (P.W.-5). None of the prosecution witnesses has stated that the respondent-Ram Swarup had run away from the place of occurrence with any weapon. Further all the witnesses have stated that the co-accused-Shyam Lal and respondent-Smt. Chhoti (since deceased) were detained at the place of occurrence till the police arrived there and Investigating Officer (P.W.9) has stated that he had arrested the co-accused-Shyam Lal and the respondent-Smt. Chhoti (since deceased) from the place of occurrence on 18.07.1977 at about 18:30 P.M. According to this witness, the spear (Bhala) used in the occurrence, was recovered from Ghoora of one Ram Sagar on the pointing out of the co-accused-Shyam Lal at 8:00 P.M. on 18.07.1977. Thus, if the house of the co-accused was surrounded by the prosecution witnesses since 17.07.1977 at about 10:00 P.M. and the co-accused-Shyam Lal did not succeed to escape from the place of occurrence as he was caught and arrested, then how the spear used in the occurrence was screened inside the Ghoora of Ram Sagar by the co-accused-Shyam Lal has not been explained by the prosecution side. Thus, on this point, the prosecution case further becomes doubtful.

27. In addition to above, according to the prosecution case, on the basis of extra judicial confession made by co-accused ; the deceased was killed by the respondent-Ram Swarup by using spear (Bhala) but according to Dr. R. S. Agarwal (P.W.-4) two anti mortem injuries were found on the body of the deceased ; one was stabbed wound and another was incised wound. In cross-examination, this witness has fairly admitted that injury no.2 i.e. incised wound is not possible by using spear (Bhala) and it would have been caused by any sharp edged weapon. No sharp edged weapon was recovered by any witnesses including Udai Narain Tiwari, S.I., Investigating Officer, (P.W.-7) from the place of occurrence. Prosecution is silent as to how the incised wound would have been caused on the person of deceased. On this account, also the prosecution case becomes doubtful.

28. In addition to above, further according to prosecution, the alleged offence was caused inside the house of co-accused-Shyam Lal r/o village-Dalelnagar and at the time of occurrence, so many people of Village-Dalelnagar i.e. Shiv Charan (not examined), Sobhran (not examined), Mool Chand (P.W.-6), Ram Swarup Yadav (not examined), Maiku Lal (not examined) had appeared at the place of occurrence and made efforts to get the door of the house of co-accused-Shyam Lal opened but they failed to succeed. Further, according to prosecution, these people along with other co-villager of Village-Dalelnagar surrounded the house of co-accused-Shyam Lal but the prosecution has failed to produce any witness of Village-Dalelnagar except Mool Chand (P.W.-6) who did not support the prosecution story because other prosecution witnesses i.e. Jagdish Singh (P.W.-1), Babu Ram (P.W.-3), Bachan (P.W.-5) are resident of Village-Kumharpurwa whereas Ramdhan (P.W.-2) is the resident of Village-Harpalpur. The prosecution has failed to explain as to why any person, who is resident of Village-Dalelnagar, were not produced in support of prosecution case and even Shiv Charan on whose terrace Jagdish Singh (P.W.-1), sat with him and saw that the respondents were burning deceased, was also not produced. Non production of any witness of Village-Dalelnagar is also fatal to the prosecution case.

29. There is one another reason why the prosecution case becomes further doubtful. According to the prosecution, when the prosecution witnesses failed to get the door of the house of co-accused-Shyam Lal opened, they surrounded that house and Jagdish Singh (P.W.-1) along with Shiv Charan (not examined) sat at the terrace of the Shiv Charan in order to watch the activity happened inside the house of co-accused-Shyam Lal and found that at about 4:00 A.M. flames were sighted in the south-west corner of the court-yard of the house of the co-accused-Shyam Lal and also saw that the co-accused-Shyam Lal, the respondent-Smt. Chhoti (since deceased) were pouring Kharphoos whereas the respondent-Ram Swarup was also pouring diesel from a can on the body of the deceased. Shiv Charan was not examined by the prosecution. Jagdish Singh (P.W.-1), in his cross-examination, has admitted that in the intervening night of the occurrence, it was raining the whole night. He has further admitted that he (P.W.-1) told the Investigating Officer that it was raining in the night of the occurrence. He further stated that he had put the plastic seat upon him in the rainy night but persons, who had surrounded the house of co-accused-Shyam Lal had not put any plastic seat (barsati) while the night of the occurrence was very rainy night. In our view, if it was so rainy night that Jagdish Singh (P.W.-1) had covered himself by a plastic seat in the night of the occurrence, his statement, that he saw flames inside the house of co-accused-Shyam Lal due to fire, is self contradictory and not trustworthy, which makes his statement that he had seen the respondent-Ram Swarup, pouring diesel oil on the body of the deceased and was present inside the house of co-accused-Shyam Lal, unreliable and doubtful.

30. So far as the consideration of extra judicial confession made by co-accused-Shyam Lal referred herein above against respondent-Ram Swarup is concerned, the Trial Court has disbelieved the statement of the prosecution witnesses in the absence of substantive piece of evidence. The confession of co-accused is relevant under Section 30 of the Evidence Act, 1872, which reads as under :-

"S. 30. Consideration of proved confession affecting person making it and others jointly under trial for same offence.--

"When more persons than one are being tried jointly for the same offence, and a confession made by one of such persons affecting himself and some other of such persons is proved, the Court may take into consideration such confession as against such other person as well as against the person who makes such confession.

Explanation.--"Offence", as used in this section, includes the abetment of, or attempt to commit the offence.

Illustrations :

(a) A and B are jointly tried for the murder of C. It is proved that A said--"B and I murdered C". The Court may consider the effect of this confession as against B.

*(b) A is on his trial for the murder of C. There is evidence to show that C was murdered by A and B, and that B said--"A and I murdered C". This statement may not be taken into consideration by the Court against A, as B is not being jointly tried."

(Emphasis supplied)

31. Although extra judicial confession is very weak type of evidence but such evidence can be taken into consideration against respondent-Ram Swarup, when it is also used against the co-accused-Shyam Lal. One of the essential condition for taking into consideration of such confession against another co-accused is that both the accused must have been jointly tried before the Trial Court and if the accused has not been tried jointly before the Trial Court, the extra judicial confession made by him cannot read against another co-accused and such confession is inadmissible in evidence.

32. In Achey Lal Singh v. Emperor, AIR 1947 Patna 90 DB, Hon'ble Court held as under :

*"The principle underlying Section 32 (3) is that when a person makes a statement rendering himself liable to criminal prosecution the statement is likely to be a true statement. The section can, therefore, have no application to a statement of a person against whom there is already in existence evidence which would inevitably lead to his prosecution and might by itself lead to his conviction. Consequently, where a person makes a confessional statement incriminating other accused but dies before the commencement or completion of the inquiry his statement is inadmissible either under Section 30 or Section 32 (3) of the Evidence Act, in a trial of the other accused."

(Emphasis Supplied)

33. Now a question arises whether co-accused-Shyam Lal was jointly tried with the respondent-Ram Swarup in this case.

34. It is settled principle of law that no criminal proceeding starts unless cognizance of the offence is taken by the concerned Magistrate/Judge under the relevant provisions of Chapter XIV of the Code and if the offence is exclusively triable by the Court of Sessions, it was committed to the Court of Sessions after complying the provisions of Chapter XVI of the Code. In addition to it, Chapter XVII deals with the framing of charges and Chapter XVIII of the Code deals with trial before the Court of Sessions. Sections 190, 193, 209, 223, 225, 226, 227 and 228 Cr.P.C. are relevant in the context of this case, which are as follows :

Section 190 :- Cognizance of offences by Magistrates :-

"(1) Subject to the provisions of this Chapter, any Magistrate of the first class, and any Magistrate of the second class specially empowered in this behalf under sub-section (2), may take cognizance of any offence -

(a) upon receiving a complaint of facts which constitute such offence;

(b) upon a police report of such facts ;

(c) upon information received from any person other than a police officer, or upon his own knowledge, that such offence has been committed.

(2) The Chief Judicial Magistrate may empower any Magistrate of the second class to take cognizance under sub-section (1) of such offences as are within his competence to inquire into or try."

Section 193 : - Cognizance of offences by Courts of Session :-

"Except as otherwise expressly provided by this Code or by any other law for the time being in force, no Court of Session shall take cognizance of any offence as a Court of original jurisdiction unless the case has been committed to it by a Magistrate under this Code."

Section 209 : - Commitment of case to Court of Session when offence is triable exclusively by it :-

"When in a case instituted on a police report or otherwise, the accused appears or is brought before the Magistrate and it appears to the Magistrate that the offence is triable exclusively by the Court of Session, he shall-

(a) commit, after complying with the provisions of section 207 or section 208, as the case may be, the case to the Court of Session, and subject to the provisions of this Code relating to bail, remand the accused to custody until such commitment has been made;

(b) subject to the provisions of this Code relating to bail, remand the accused to custody during, and until the conclusion of, the trial;

(c) send to that Court the record of the case and the documents and articles, if any, which are to be produced in evidence;

(d) notify the Public Prosecutor of the commitment of the case to the Court of Session."

Section 223 :- What persons may be charged jointly "-

"The following persons may be charged and tried together, namely:-

(a) persons accused of the same offence committed in the course of the same transaction;

(b) persons accused of an offence and persons accused of abetment of, or attempt to commit, such offence;

(d) .....

(e) .....

(f) .....

(g) .....

Provided that where a number of persons are charged with separate offences and such persons do not fall within any of the categories specified in this section, the Magistrate may, if such persons by an application in writing, so desire, and if he is satisfied that such persons wold not be prejudcially affected thereby, and it is expedient so to do, try all such persons together."

Section 225 :- Trial to be conducted by Public Prosecutor :-

"In every trial before a Court of Session, the prosecution shall be conducted by a Public Prosecutor."

Section 226 :- Opening case for prosecution :-

"When the accused appears or is brought before the Court in pursuance of a commitment of the case under section 209, the prosecutor shall open his case by describing the charge brought against the accused and stating by what evidence he proposes to prove the guilt of the accused."

Section 227 :- Discharge :-

"If, upon consideration of the record of the case and the documents submitted therewith, and after hearing the submissions of the accused and the prosecution in this behalf, the Judge considers that there is not sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused, he shall discharge the accused and record his reasons for so doing."

Section 228 :- Framing of charge :-

"(1) If, after such consideration and hearing as aforesaid, the Judge is of opinion that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence which-

(a) is not exclusively triable by the Court of Session, he may, frame a charge against the accused and, by order, transfer the case for trial to the Chief Judicial Magistrate (or any other Judicial Magistrate of the first class and direct the accused to appear before the Chief Judicial Magistrate, or , as the case may, the Judicial Magistrate of the first class, on such date as he deems fit, and and thereupon such Judicial) shall try the offence in accordance with the procedure for the trial of warrant- cases instituted on a police report;

(b) is exclusively triable by the Court, he shall frame in writing a charge against the accused.

(2) Where the Judge frames any charge under clause (b) of sub- section (1), the charge shall be read and explained to the accused and the accused shall be asked whether he pleads guilty of the offence charged or claims to be tried."

35. Thus, it is clear that as soon as the police report is filed before the competent Magistrate, if the Magistrate finds that offence is exclusively triable by the Court of Sessions, he, after compliance of necessary requirements as provided in Section 209 of the Code, shall commit the offence to the Court of Sessions and the Court of Sessions, after examining the accused and hearing learned counsel for prosecution as well as defence, either will discharge the accused or frame charge against him. In addition to above, if trial of more than one accused is to be conducted before the concerned Court, all the accused may be charged and tried together subject to the provisions of Section 223 of the Code.

36. Thus, it is further clear that the accused, whose case was not committed to the Court of Sessions with other accused and he was not charged with any offence either due to his death or for another reason whatsoever, it cannot be said that he was such co-accused, who was jointly tried with other co-accused as required in Section 30 of Evidence Act. In the present case, the co-accused-Shyam Lal had died before the commencement of trial, his case was not committed for trial by the concerned Magistrate, hence, he was not charged and tried by the Trial Court for any offence.

Thus, it cannot be said that the respondent-Ram Swarup was jointly tried with co-accused-Shyam Lal in this case, hence, extra judicial confession of co-accused-Shyam Lal cannot be read against the respondent-Ram Swarup.

37. It is settled principle of law that the accused will be presumed as innocent unless and until the prosecution has succeeded to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt and the presumption of innocence of accused is further strengthened if he is acquitted by the Trial Court after considering the material evidence available on record. In appeal against acquittal the prosecution has to show that gross mistake has been committed by the Trial Court in appreciating the evidence on record or application of settled principle of law.

38. Hon'ble the Apex Court in Surajpal Singh and others Vs. State, AIR 1952 SC 52 held as under :-

"It is well-established that in an appeal under section 417 of the Criminal Procedure Code, the High Court has full power to review the evidence upon which the order of acquittal was founded, but it is equally well-settled that the presumption of innocence of the accused is further reinforced by his acquittal by the trial court, and the findings of the trial court which had the advantage of seeing the witnesses and hearing their evidence can be reversed only for very substantial and compelling reasons."

(Emphasis supplied).

39. It is also well settled principle of law that in an appeal against acquittal, if two views are possible, one is in favour of accused-person and judgment of Trial Court is not illegal or manifestly perverse, the appellate Court should not disturb the order of acquittal. Hon'ble the Apex Court in State of Madhya Pradesh vs. Mukesh and others, (2007) 2 SCC 680 held as under :-

"Moreover, it must be borne in mind that we are dealing with a judgment of acquittal passed by the High Court. If two views are possible, ordinarily this Court would not interfere therewith. The State has not been able to show any illegality in the judgment of the High Court. We, therefore, do not intend to interfere therewith. The appeal is dismissed."

40. In the light of above discussions, we are of the view that the impugned judgment and order passed by Trial Court is well reasoned, well discussed and requires no interference. The prosecution has miserably failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt and there is no illegality or infirmity in the impugned judgment and order dated 01.01.1982 passed by Trial Court in Sessions Trial No.382 of 1979, whereby the respondents-accused were acquitted. The appeal is liable to be dismissed.

41. The judgment and order dated 01.01.1982 passed by Trial Court in Sessions Trial No.382 of 1979 is affirmed. The appeal lacks merit and is dismissed.

42. The respondent-Ram Swarup is in jail. He shall be released forthwith, if not wanted in any other case.

43. Copy of this judgment be sent to District Sessions Judge, Sitapur with Lower Court Record for information and compliance.

A. Criminal law-Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Section 376-In the written report, F.I.R. and the statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. there is allegation of only attempting to commit rape- In her statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C., the prosecutrix for the first time has levelled the allegation of committing rape-The statement of the prosecutrix at every stage has improved, changed and has contradicted its earlier statement and the testimony of the prosecutrix suffers from material inconsistency and as per the settled law conviction cannot be based on such testimony of the prosecutrix which is not worthy of credence and therefore some more corroborative material, may be even short of corroboration is needed to convict the accused-appellant-Though an accused can be convicted under Section 376 I.P.C. on the basis of sole testimony of the prosecutrix if such testimony is worthy of credence and inspires confidence and is of sterling quality then corroboration from other evidence is not required, but like in this case where statement of the prosecutrix suffers from material inconsistency and contradictions, is infirm and does not inspire confidence and there is no other material may be even short of corroboration to support the prosecution case.

Held- Indian Evidence Act- Section 3, Section 155 - Where the testimony of the prosecutrix is contradictory on material points and suffers from inherent inconsistencies and fails to get corroborated from other evidence, then such evidence is not worthy of credence.

Although conviction of an accused can be recorded on the basis of the sole testimony of the prosecutrix but the same should be credible and no corroborative material is required to be looked into, but where the testimony of the prosecutrix is inconsistent and contradictory, then the Court has to look for corroboration of the same from other evidence.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Karunesh Singh Pawar, J.)

1. Heard Sri Sumit Kumar Srivastawa, learned Amicus Curiea and Sri Diwakar Singh, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

2. Learned trial court vide judgment and order dated 03.08.2018 passed in Sessions Trial No. 21/2016 "State Vs. Matru" convicted the appellant under Section 376(1) I.P.C. for a period of seven years rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 20000/-. Learned trial court has further convicted the appellant under Section 506 (2) I.P.C. for a period of three years rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 5000/-. Both the sentences were to run concurrently.

3. The prosecution case in brief as per the written report is that on 08.09.2015 while she was returning from the place of Ex- Pradhan regarding the ghoor dispute with her Devar (brother-in-law) and as soon as she arrived near the field of Raj Kumar Mahtiyak then the appellant caught hold of her from behind and dragged her inside the sugarcane field and tried to commit rape while threatening to kill and when she cried he ran away by extending threats towards his village.

4. A written report regarding the incident was given by the prosecutrix on 09.09.2015 which is exhibited as Ka-1. Consequently chik F.I.R. was registered on 09.09.2015 which is exhibited as Ka-7. Thereafter the statement of the prosecutrix as well as statement of the other prosecution witnesses were taken by the investigating officer. The prosecutrix also gave her statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. before the court. On 12.09.2015, the prosecutrix was medically examined and her clothes were taken by the Doctor Yamini Badal and sent it for forensic examination for examining the D.N.A.

5. The investigating officer filed the charge sheet. Thereafter cognizance was taken and charges were framed against the accused persons vide order dated 13.05.2016 under Section 376/506 I.P.C. which was read over to the accused to which he denied and pleaded to be tried. Thereafter the statement of the accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. was taken wherein his defence of total denial and false implication due to enmity relating to the election of Gram Pradhan.

6. The prosecution in support of its case has examined the prosecutrix as PW-1. PW-2 is Dr. Yamini Badal, who medically examined the prosecutrix. PW-3 is women constable Geeta Rajput, who took the statement of the prosecutrix under Section 161 Cr.P.C. PW-4 is Constable Longshri, who wrote the chik report. PW-5 is the Investigating Officer Sri Jeevan Singh.

7. PW-1 while stating before the Court has said that written report was written by the Inspector at the police station on which she put her thumb impression. While in her examination-in-chief before the court she has denied the version in the written report as well as in the F.I.R. that she was dragged inside the sugar cane field and accused was trying to rape her and once she cried he ran away. She stated that she has told the Inspector that she was dragged inside the sugarcane field and was raped by the accused-applicant. She tried to escape during the occurrence. She was medically examined. She further stated that appellant no. 2 is in collusion with his Devar and took his side. She further stated that when she returned from the place of occurrence to her home, the Pradhan was called upon by the villagers. She further stated that she went to lodge the report along with Gram Pradhan. She further stated that she has not received any injury at the time of occurrence. She has also stated that she is not aware as in whose field the incident had taken place. In her chief she has stated that Guddu Pradhan has called the ambulance and on the ambulance she went to Bijwa Hospital for medical examination, but no medical was conducted on that date rather the same was conducted on the next date. The prosecutrix has denied the suggestion that since the appellant happens to be the friend of her brother-in-law, therefore, she is falsely implicating him. She has further denied the suggestion that no rape has been committed on her.

8. PW-2 Yamini Badal, who conducted the medical examination of the prosecutrix has stated that no injury either upon external or internal has been found on the person of the prosecutrix. The hymen of the prosecutrix was old and torn and has filled up. She has further stated that no blood was oozing from the person of the prosecutrix and she has also stated that the clothes which the prosecutrix was wearing were taken by her and sent for D.N.A. Test to the Forensic Laboratory, Mahanagar at the time of medical examination i.e. on 12.09.2015. Then in the supplementary report prepared on 16.09.2015 no live or dead spermatozoa was found. Lastly it has been stated that on the basis of medical examination and pathology report, no opinion regarding the rape can be given.

9. PW-3 is Sheela Rajput, women constable, who recorded the statement of the prosecutrix under Section 161 Cr.P.C. and has proved Exhibit Ka-6. She recorded the statement of the prosecutrix under Section 161 Cr.P.C. and she sent the prosecutrix to Nari Niketan after the medical examination.

10. PW-4 who is scribe of the chik report and has proved it. She has denied the suggestion that on the saying of gram pradhan, the F.I.R. has been lodged.

11. PW-5 is the investigating officer who has prepared the site plan and has proved it as Exhibit Ka-7. He has taken the statements of the prosecution witnesses. He has further stated that on 17.09.2015 he has seized the clothes which were stained by blood and semen and prepared the fard which is Ex. Ka-3 which is in his writing and signature. Later on, he has stated that he tried to record the statement of the prosecutrix under Section 164 Cr.P.C. On 04.10.2015 and on 10.10.2015 but the prosecutrix refused to give the statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. and he further stated that it appears to him that the prosecutrix does not want to give statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C., however, on 19.10.2015, the statement of prosecutrix was recorded under Section 164 Cr.P.C. and on the basis of the statement the prosecutrix under Section 164 Cr.P.C., the offence was converted under Section 376/506 I.P.C. and the offence under Section 511 I.P.C. was dropped. He further stated that on 10.11.2015, the statements of the witness of fard namely Jagdish Gautam, Mahila Arakshi Geeta Rajput and Sripal were recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. as witnesses of Fard. He again stated that the clothes worn by the prosecutrix at the time of occurrence were sealed and sent to the forensic laboratory on 09.11.2015. He further stated that the restatement of the prosecutrix was recorded on 30.10.2015.

12. Learned counsel for the appellant contends that at the time of occurrence the prosecutrix is 40 to 45 years old widow lady having one child. He further contends that there is unexplained delay of one day in lodging the F.I.R. In the written report as well as in the F.I.R. and also in the statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C., no allegation of rape has been made by the prosecutrix upon the appellant. The allegation of rape has been levelled for the first time in her statement under Section

164 Cr.P.C. He further submits that even in the statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C., she has stated that she lost lot of blood during the occurrence, however, while testifying before the court as PW-1, she has clearly stated that no blood was lost during the occurrence, whereas in the statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. she has stated that her entire clothes were dipped in blood and that blood had oozed out due to the offence committed by the appellant.

13. The next submission of learned counsel for the appellant is that once PW-2 has taken the clothes of the prosecutrix after the medical examination which were containing human blood and semen and sent it for forensic examination on 12.09.2015 after that there is no occasion for the I.O. to recover and seize the clothes of the prosecutrix which were worn by her on the date of incident. The alleged seizure memo of the investigating officer dated 17.09.2015 is false and planted and no explanation has been given by the prosecution as to what happened in the forensic examination of the clothes which were sent by the PW-2 on 12.09.2015. The silence of the prosecution falsifies the entire prosecution story. The independent fard witness Sri Pal, in whose presence, the clothes of the proseuctrix have been seized, has not been produced before the Court and therefore, the fard recovery cannot said to be proved.

14. Learned counsel for the appellant further contends that in the F.S.L. Report only human blood said to have been found which is not enough. In support he has relied on the judgment of this Court in the case of "Khalid and another Vs. State of U.P." Criminal Appeal no. 2717/2011, para no. 29 and 31. Para No. 29 and 31 is reproduced herein as under:-

"29. Although in the forensic lab report the Salwar bore the spot of sperm and human semen, but that alone would not be sufficient to record a finding of the conviction against the accused.

31. No doubt, when the forensic lab examines semen and blood on the garments of the victim, the part of the cloth is cut and examined, which contains spots of blood, semen or spermatozoa. But at least the cloth i.e. Salwar will remain in its original shape. In this particular case a 10 to 12 inches cloth cannot be termed to be a Salwar, hence this part of the prosecution case too, is not reliable."

He further submits that in the medical examination of the prosecutrix, no injury on her internal or external part has been found, whereas the statement of the prosecutrix under Section 164 Cr.P.C. depicts that the clothes of the prosecutrix were dipped in the blood as she lost lot of blood during the occurrence, however, while testifying before the court she has denied her earlier version and said that no blood was lost due to the offence. He further submits that enmity with the accused has been admitted by the prosecutrix in her examination-in-chief, statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. and under Section 164 Cr.P.C. The accused persons have taken the defence of enmity under Section 313 Cr.P.C. and stated that they have been falsely implicated due to the village enmity relating to the election of Pradhan. It is next contended that the ambulance driver has not been examined to support the prosecution story as prosecutrix went to the police station initially on the ambulance along with Pradhan. He further submits that Sub-Inspector/scribe of the written report who has written it has not been produced before the court therefore the written report has not been proved. It is lastly contended that the Village Pradhan was present at every stage of the proceedings as per the statement of the PW-1, however, the investigating officer has not produced him which casts a doubt on the prosecution story. Lastly it is contended that apart from the testimony of the prosecutrix alone, there is no corroborative material to hold the appellant guilty. He submits that the testimony of the prosecutrix has changed at every stage. In the written report, F.I.R. and statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. there is allegation of attempting to commit rape, whereas in the statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C., , for the first time, there is allegation of committing rape. While giving statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. she has stated that she was laying in pool of blood and lost lot of blood during occurrence, whereas while deposing before the court she has stated that she has not lost any blood during the occurrence.

15. It is further contended by the learned counsel for the appellant that the testimony of the prosecutrix is inconsistent at every stage, does not inspire confidence and as such the other corroborative material is needed to sustain the conviction. He further submits that learned trial court has not given any finding on the fact that how blood stained/semen stained clothes of the prosecutrix could be seized twice, first by the doctor on 12.09.2015 and second by the investigating officer on 17.09.2015 and what happened to the clothes seized by the doctor which was sent to the forensic lab. The prosecution is silent at this aspect and therefore the benefit of doubt must go in favour of the appellant as the prosecution has failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt.

16. Learned A.G.A. opposed the appeal but could not dispute the fact that the clothes of the prosecutrix which were seized on 12.09.2015 and sent for forensic lab. There is no forensic lab report neither there is any examination, however he submits that I.O. on 17.09.2015 has seized the clothes of the prosecutrix and sent it for forensic examination on which human blood has been found. The statement of the prosecutrix has supported the prosecution version. The prosecutrix has denied the suggestion regarding the enmity and false implication of the accused-appellant. He further submits that the defence taken by the accused person in their statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C., is vague and is of no benefit to him.

17. Having heard the arguments of learned counsel for the parties, this Court carefully proceeds to examine the evidence of prosecution witnesses. A written report regarding the occurrence was lodged 09.09.2015 and the F.I.R. is of the same day. In the written report, it has been alleged by the prosecutrix that the appellant has tried/attempted to commit rape, however, since she raised alarm, then he left the prosecutrix and ran towards village. In the F.I.R. same story has narrated in the written report has been reiterated by the prosecutrix, however, in her statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. recorded on 19.10.2015 for the first time. The prosecutrix has levelled the allegations of committing rape on the appellant and has further stated that her entire clothes were dipped in blood and the police took those clothes. Then she came home and narrated the incident to one Ram Chandra and thereafter the Pradhan Gudde called the ambulance and took her to Bijwa but there her medical was not conducted and till 19.10.2015 she has not been medically examined. The report was lodged on the next day at police station.

18. The record reveals that the prosecutrix was medically examined on 12.09.2015 at 2:00 P.M. at District Hospital Lakhimpur Kheri. No abnormality was detected in internal genital examination. The clothes of the prosecutrix were sealed and sent for DNA examination by the concerned doctor. No injury was found in the external examination of the prosecutrix. As per the pathology report no spermatozoa was seen either dead or alive. The report of the district hospital is exhibited as Ka-5. In her statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. the prosecutrix has not levelled allegation of rape on the appellant rather has alleged that he attempted to rape her and on her raising alarm he ran towards the village by extending threat to her. While deposing before the Court, PW-1 prosecutrix in her examination-in-chief stated that one year eight months before while she was returning after talking to the Pradhan of Bibipur, the appellant met her on the way of Bibipur to Kamiapur, he followed the prosecutrix, hence she ran and fell on the khadanja (brick road) then the appellant showed her knife and picked her in her lap and took her into the sugarcane field and there she was raped by the appellant and due to this her clothes were stained with blood. After coming home, she told the incident to Ram Chandra who is son of her elder sister and then Guddu Pradhan called the ambulance from which she went to Bijua hospital there no medical examination took place and the next day she went to police station and written report was written by an unknown person. She proved her statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. after seeying it. In her cross she stated that clothes which were taken by the police are not produced in the Court. She contradicted her statement in the examination-in-chief and said in the cross-examination that the written report was written by the inspector at police station. She admitted the enmity with the appellant Matru as he took side of her brother-in-law. In the cross she further stated that at the time of occurrence she did not receive any injury.

19. PW-2 Doctor Yamini Badal in her statement has stated that in her internal and external examination no injury was found on the person of the prosecutrix. Hymen was old and torn and filled up and no bleeding was found on the person of the prosecutrix. She further stated that the clothes of the prosecutrix were sent for DNA examination to the forensic lab Mahanagar, Lucknow. She further stated that on the basis of the pathology report, the supplementary medical report was prepared by her in which no live or dead spermatozoa was found and on the basis of the medical examination and the pathology report, she stated that no definite opinion about rape could be given.

20. PW-3 is the woman constable who took the statement of the prosecutrix under Section 161 Cr.P.C. She stated that after taking statement of the prosecutrix she took the prosecutrix to the District Hospital where she was medically examined on the same day.

21. PW-4 is constable Longshri who has written the chik first information report and has proved it.

22. PW-5 is Jeevan Singh, the investigating officer who has stated that on 17.09.2015, the clothes of the prosecutrix which she was wearing at the time of incident and which were stained with blood and semen were sealed. He further stated that the prosecutrix twice refused to give statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. and because of that he felt that she is not willing to give statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. However, ultimately she gave statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. and on that basis Section 376/506 were added and Section 511 Cr.P.C. was dropped. In his cross examination he again stated that the clothes of the prosecutrix which she worn at the time of incident were sealed on 19.11.2015 for forensic examination. He in the cross examination, further stated that he has taken restatement of the prosecutrix on 30.10.2015.

23. In the offence of rape, statement of the prosecutrix is of utmost importance and law in this regard is settled that on the sole statement of the prosecutrix the accused can be convicted.

24. In this case, in the written report as well as in the F.I.R. the allegation of committing rape is absent rather attempt to commit rape has been alleged by the prosecutrix. In her statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. again the attempt to commit rape has been alleged against the accused-applicant. Second/restatement of the prosecutrix taken on 30.10.2015 has not been exhibited. For the first time while giving statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. i.e. after more than one month and eight days, for the first time the prosecutrix has levelled allegation of rape against the appellant and on that basis section 376/506 I.P.C. have been added and Section 511 I.P.C. has been dropped by the investigating officer. In her statement before the Court as PW-1, the prosecutrix stated that village Pradhan called the ambulance and from the ambulance she was taken to hospital and in the hospital no medical examination was conducted and on the second day, the F.I.R. was lodged through an unknown person. She further stated that blood/semen stained clothes were taken by the police, however, in the cross she has stated that the clothes sealed by the police have not been produced in the Court. She has further admitted the enmity with the appellant in her cross.

25. On the contrary, the medical report which is exhibited as exhibit Ka-4 shows that the prosecutrix was medically examined on 12.09.2015 between 2 PM to 3 PM and clothes of the prosecutrix were sealed and sent for D.N.A. examination. In her statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C., the prosecutrix stated that she lost lot of blood during the occurrence, however, it is while testiying before the Court as PW-1, she contradicted her earlier statement and stated that no blood was lost during the occurrence. The testimony of the prosecutrix has changed at various stages. In the written report, F.I.R. and the statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. there is allegation of only attempting to commit rape. In her statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C., the prosecutrix for the first time has levelled the allegation of committing rape and stated that she was lying in the pool of blood and lost lot of blood during the occurrence. On the contrary when deposing before the Court as PW-1 she stated that she has not lost any blood during the occurrence. Thus, the above contradictory statement of the prosecutrix are not worthy of credence and do not inspire confidence particularly looking into the facts that the prosecutrix has admitted enmity with the accused, the ambulance driver has not been examined from whom the prosecutrix says that he went to police station initially, the village Pradhan who arranged the ambulance and went with the prosecutrix to the police station, has also not been produced, further casts a doubt on the statement of the prosecutrix as well as the prosecution case.

26. After going through the evidence of the prosecutrix witness, it is evident that the statement of the prosecutrix at every stage has improved, changed and has contradicted its earlier statement and the testimony of the prosecutrix suffers from material inconsistency and as per the settled law conviction cannot be based on such testimony of the prosecutrix which is not worthy of credence and therefore some more corroborative material, may be even short of corroboration is needed to convict the accused-appellant.

27. PW-2 doctor Yamini Badal has stated that she had taken the clothes of the prosecutrix and sent it for D.N.A. examination to the forensic lab, Mahanagar, Lucknow. The medical examination report of the prosecutrix which is on record shows that the prosecutrix was medically examined on 12.09.2015 between 2 to 3 PM and her clothes were sent for forensic examination and once the bold stained and semen stained clothes of the prosecutrix have been taken during the medical examination and sent by the doctor for forensic examination on 12.09.2015 then there was no occasion for the investigating officer to take the clothes of the prosecutrix on 17.09.2015 and there could not be a second set of clothes for the investigating officer to seize them and sent them for forensic lab. The entire prosecution story is silent on this aspect as to what happened to the clothes of the prosecutrix which were sent by the doctor on 12.09.2015 and this casts a doubt on the prosecution case and the appellant is entitled to be given the benefit of doubt. The PW-2 doctor Yamini Badal has not supported the prosecution story. She has clearly stated that no injury was found on the person of the prosecution either on the internal or external part. Hymen of the prosecutrix was old and torn and filled up and she was not bleeding and therefore, no opinion of rape has been given by her.

28. The investigating officer at one place while deposing before the court has stated that on 17.09.2015 he seize the clothes of the prosecutrix which were stained of blood and semen and prepared the fard. Later on in the cross examination he stated that the clothes worn by the prosecutrix at the time of occurrence were sealed and sent for forensic lab on 09.11.2015 which is in contradiction to his earlier statement.

29. The independent fard witness Sripal in whose presence the clothes of the prosecutrix are said to be seized by the investigating officer which has not been produced before the Court. This fact coupled with the contradictory statement of the investigating officer wherein he has said that the clothes worn by the prosecutrix were sealed and sent for forensic examination. The seizure memo prepared by the investigating officer dated 17.09.2015 of the clothes of the prosecutrix is doubtful. In view of the fact that once the clothes of the prosecutrix containing human blood and semen were already taken by PW-2 on 12.09.2015, the Investigating Officer could not seal it again on 17.09.2015. Coupled with the fact that independent witness of fard Sripal in whose presence the clothes are said to have been seized has not been produced before the Court creates a serious doubt on the fard recovery and this Court has noticed that the learned trial court while convicting the appellant has not given any finding on this aspect as to what happened to the clothes of the prosecutrix which were seized by PW-2 and sent for forensic examination to Mahanagar laboratory.

30. Since the statements of the prosecutrix has changed at various stages and do not inspire confidence, the other corroborative material may be even short of corroboration is needed. The statement of PW-2 does not support the prosecution case. The statement of PW-5 also does not inspire confidence as once the clothes of the prosecutrix were already seized and sent for forensic examination by the PW-2 on 12.09.2015, the I.O. could not have taken clothes of the prosecutrix again on 17.09.2015. Coupled with the fact that independent witness of the alleged seizure on 17.09.2015 namely Sripal has not been produced before the court.

31. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Mohd. Ali @ Guddu vs. State of Uttar Pradesh (2015) 7 SCC 272 has held as under :-

"Be it noted, there can be no iota of doubt that on the basis of the sole testimony of the prosecutrix, if it is unimpeachable and beyond reproach, a conviction can be based. In the case at hand, the learned Trial Judge as well as the High Court have persuaded themselves away with this principle without appreciating the acceptability and reliability of the testimony of the witness. In fact, it would not be appropriate to say that whatever the analysis in the impugned judgment, it would only indicate an impropriety of approach. The prosecutrix has deposed that she was taken from one place to the other and remained at various houses for almost two months. The only explanation given by her is that she was threatened by the accused persons. It is not in her testiony that she was confined to one place. In fact, it has been borne out from the material on record that she had travelled from place to place and she was ravished a number of times. Under these circumstances, the medical evidence gains significance, for the examining doctor has categorically deposed that there are no injuries on the private parts. The delay in FIR, the non-examination of the witnesses, the testimony of the prosecutrix, the associated circumstances and the medical evidence, leave a mark of doubt to treat the testimony of the prosecutrix as so natural and truthful to inspire confidence. It can be stated with certitude that the evidence of the prosecutrix is not of such quality which can be placed reliance upon."

32. In Hem Raj v. State of Haryana, (2014) 2 SCC 395 it has been held that :-

"10. Faced with such a situation, we were anxious to find out whether there can be any clinching medical evidence suggesting rape, but, unfortunately, the prosecuton has failed to examine Dr.Anjali Shah, who had examined the prosecutrix. The MLR was produced in the Court by P.W.6 J.B. Bhardwaj, Medical Record Technician. This is a serious lapse on the part of the prosecution. We are aware that lapses on the part of the prosecution should not lead to unmerited acquittals. This is, however subject to the rider that in such a situation the evidence on record must be clinching so that the lapses of the prosecution could be condoned. Such is not the case here. The MLR does suggest that the hymen of the prosecutrix was torn. It is also true that the prosecutrix has brought on record FSL report which shows that human semen was detected on the salwar of the prosecutrix and on the underwear of the accused. However, it is difficult to infer from this that the prosecutrix was raped by the appellant. The prosecutrix herself has vacillated on this aspect. It was pointed out that no injuries were found on the prosecutrix. We do not attach much importance to this aspect because presence of injures is not a must to prove commission of rape. But the prosecutrix's evidence is so infirm that it deserves to be rejected. Her brother has come out with a case that the appellant tried to rape the prosecutrix. He did not say that the appellant raped the prosecutrix. Taking an overall view of the matter, we find it difficult to sustain the prosecution case that the prosecutrix was raped by the appellant. This is a case where the appellant must be given benefit of doubt. "

33. In Dola vs. State of Odisha 2018 SCC Online SC 1224 it has been held that in para 31 which is reproduced as under :-

31. In our considered opinion, the Trial Court as well as the High Court have convicted the appellants without considering the aforementioned factors in their proper perspective. The testimony of the victim is full of inconsistencies and does not find support from any other evidence whatsoever. Moreover, the evidence of the informant/victim is inconsistent and self-destructive at different places. It is noticeable that the medical record and the Doctor's evidence do not specify whether there were any signs of forcible sexual intercourse. It seems that the First Information Report was lodged with false allegations to extract revenge from the appellants, who had uncovered the theft of forest produce by the informant and her husband. The High Court has, in our considered opinion, brushed aside the various inconsistencies pointed out by us only on the ground that the victim could not have deposed falsely before the Court. The High Court has proceeded on the basis of assumptions, conjectures and surmises, inasmuch as such assumptions are not corroborated by any reliable evidence. The medical evidence does not support the case of the prosecution relating to the offence of rape. Having regard to the totality of the material on record and on facts and circumstances of this case, it is not possible for this Court to agree with the concurrent conclusions reached by the courts below. At best, it may be said that the accused have committed the offence of hurt, for which they have already undergone a sufficient duration of imprisonment, inasmuch as they have been stated to have undergone two years of imprisonment. Accordingly, the appeal is allowed. The judgments of the Trial Court as well as the High Court are set aside. The appellants are acquitted of the charges levelled against them. They should be released forthwith, if they are not required in any other case."

34. In Sham Singh vs. State of Haryana 2018 SCC Online SC 1042, it has been held in paras 26 and 27:

"26. The evidence of the victim/prosecutrix and the Aunt P.W.10 are unreliable, untrustworthy inasmuch as they are not credible witnesses. Their evidence bristles with contradictions and is full of improbabilities. We cannot resist ourselves to place on record that the prosecution has tried to rope in the appellant merely on assumption, surmises and conjectures. The story of the prosecution is built on the materials placed on record, which seems to be neither the truth, nor wholly the truth. The findings of the court below, though concurrent, do not desire the merit of acceptance or approval in our hands with regard to the glaring infirmities and illegalities vitiating them, and the patent errors apparent on the face of record resulting in serious and grave miscarriage of justice to the appellant.

27. We find that the trial court and the High Court have convicted the accused merely on conjectures and surmises. The Courts have come to the conclusion based on assumptions and not on legally acceptable evidence, but such assumptions were not well founded, inasmuch as such assumptions are not corroborated by any reliable evidence. Medical evidence does not support the case of the prosecution relating to offence of rape."

35. In view of the aforesaid law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court (supra), law can be reiterated that though an accused can be convicted under Section 376 I.P.C. on the basis of sole testimony of the prosecutrix if such testimony is worthy of credence and inspires confidence and is of sterling quality then corroboration from other evidence is not required, but like in this case where statement of the prosecutrix suffers from material inconsistency and contradictions, is infirm and does not inspire confidence and there is no other material may be even short of corroboration to support the prosecution case, so also the fact that statement of PW-2 (Dr. Yamini Badal) does not support the prosecution case and the statement of PW-5 (investigating officer) also does not inspire confidence as once the clothes of the prosecutrix were already seized and sent for forensic examination by PW-2 on 12.09.2015, the investigating officer (PW-5) could not have again seized the clothes of the prosecutrix on 17.09.2015 and no explanation regarding this could be given by the prosecution and coupled with the fact that independent witness of the alleged seizure on 17.09.2015 namely Sri Pal has not been produced before the Court and no finding on this aspect has been recorded by the learned trial court, I am of the view that looking to the totality of the evidence and other material on record, I am unable to agree with the conclusion arrived at the trial court. Accordingly, the judgment dated 03.08.2018 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, F.T.C., Lakhimpur Kheri, is set aside. The appellant is acquitted of all the charges levelled against him. The appellant is directed to be released forthwith if he is not required in any other case.

36. The appeal is accordingly allowed.

A. Duty of the prosecution to prove its case by producing truthful and trustworthy witnesses, may be only one- Quality and not the quantity of witnesses is important- Any effort of the prosecution to prove its case by producing untrustworthy or untruthful witnesses has to be viewed seriously- It is not possible for the Court to discard the testimony of an injured witness ordinarily.Identification by voice – Is a weak piece of evidence- Court has to be extremely cautious in basing the conviction purely on the evidence of Voice identification- The evidence led by the prosecution must be cogent, positive, affirmative and assertive and must establish beyond all reasonable doubts that the witness had ability to identify voice and additionally there was sufficient opportunity for the witness to identify the assailant by voice only.The maxim "falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus" (false in one thing, false in everything) has not received general acceptance in different jurisdiction in India, nor has this maxim came to occupy the status of rule of law- It is merely a rule of caution- All that it amounts to is that in such cases testimony may be disregarded, and not that it must be disregarded. The doctrine merely involves the question of weight of evidence which a court may apply in a given set of circumstances, but it is not what may be called a 'mandatory rule of evidence"-The ocular evidence of prosecution witnesses is so inextricably mixed up that it is not possible to sever one from the other-Difficult to separate grain of truth from the chaff of falsehood, the only course open is to discard the evidence in toto.

Held- Indian Evidence Act- Section 9 - Evidence – Reliability of - Identification by voice – Is a weak piece of evidence - Court has to be extremely cautious in basing the conviction purely on the evidence of Voice identification- The evidence led by the prosecution must be cogent, positive, affirmative and assertive and must establish beyond all reasonable doubts that the witness had ability to identify voice and additionally there was sufficient opportunity for the witness to identify the assailant by voice only.(Para 25)

Evidence Law-Indian Evidence Act – Section 134 - Quality and not the quantity of witnesses is important -Duty of the prosecution to prove its case by producing truthful and trustworthy witnesses, may be only one- Any effort of the prosecution to prove its case by producing untrustworthy or untruthful witnesses has to be viewed seriously. (Para 19)

Evidence Law- Indian Evidence Act- Section 5-"falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus" (false in one thing, false in everything) - The maxim has not received general acceptance in different jurisdiction in India, nor has this maxim come to occupy the status of rule of law- It is merely a rule of caution- It is the duty of the court to separate the grain from the chaff but where the two are inextricably mixed up, then the evidence has to be discarded completely.(Para 26, 28, 29)

The trial Court gave undue weightage to testimony of injured witness ignoring all material contradictions without ascertaining the truthfulness of the prosecution witness - prosecution failed to prove its story by producing truthful witnesses – appellant given benefit of doubt- the conviction of the appellant for the offences under Sections 302 and 307 IPC set aside - Criminal Appeal allowed.(Para 19,25,26,28,35)

1. Heard Ms.Mahima Maurya, learned Amicus Curiae appearing for the appellant and Sri L.D.Rajbhar, Prem Shankar Mishra, learned A.G.As for the State respondent.

2. This criminal appeal is directed against the judgment and order dated 18.5.1996 passed by the IVth Additional Sessions Judge, Jhansi in Sessions Trial No.144 of 1991 (State vs Mohan @ Mohan Singh) under Sections 307 & 302 IPC, P.S -Kotwali, District-Jhansi, whereby appellant Mohan @ Mohan Singh has been convicted for the offences under section 302 and sentenced for life imprisonment and under section 307 I.P.C., sentenced for seven years rigorous imprisonment. Both the punishments are to run concurrently.

3. The prosecution story as unfolded with the First Information Report, dated 10.6.1991 registered at about 5.30 a.m at P.S-Kotwali, District-Jhansi that on 10.6.1991 at about 4.30 a.m, when deceased Jamna (wife of the first informant) and his aunt Rajabeti, wife of Nathhu were going to get drinking water from the Public (Sarkari) Tap and the first informant was accompanying them to attend the call of nature, Mohan (appellant) son of Kallu Kachhi and two other young boys met them at a place inside the outer gate of the village. Seeing them standing, on their way, his aunt Rajabeti stopped them, Mohan then said "rw vkxs c<" and attacked Jamna by knife in her chest while his two accomplices caught hold of Jamuna (deceased). The first informant Parikshit (husband of deceased) challenged them in the torch light and his aunt Rajabeti hit them by the metal pot (Kasedi) which she was carrying to fill water. Mohan also hit back Rajabeti by knife causing injury in her left hand. The deceased fell down and died. Amidst the chaos, on the challenge raised by the first informant, three assailants ran away towards the grove. Some people took deceased Jamna and injured Rajabeti to the District Hospital. The motive to commit the crime as stated in the report is that around five days prior to the occurence, an alteration took place between wife of first informant Parikshit and his neighbour Mohan s/o Kallu Kushwaha also his mother Rama. In the said altercation, Mohan had threatened the deceased with dire consequences. Since it was a normal dispute and hence no report was lodged by the first informant. It was stated that the first informant and his aunt Rajabeti had seen the assailants Mohan and his two accomplices clearly in the torch light and they knew accused Mohan by name whereas his two other accomplices were not known to them. They, however, could recognize them, if the assailants were brought before them. The report is scribed by one Kalicharan s/o Narayan Das.

4. The record indicates that the police swung into action and recoveries were made, site plan prepared and accused Mohan was arrested. The recovery memo of the torch which the first informant was carrying, had been prepared, marked as Exhibit Ka-2. Three Kaseria (metal pots for filling water) carried by deceased and injured Rajabeti recovered from the spot of the crime on 10.6.1991, were sealed in a recovery memo, which was proved and exhibited as 'Exhibit Ka-6'. Blood-stained clothes of injured Rajabeti recovered on 12.6.1991 were kept in Exhibit Ka-7. Recovery memo of blood stained earth and plain earth collected from the spot of crime dated 10.6.1991 has been proved as Exhibit Ka-8.

5. The injury report of Rajabeti wife of Nathhoo aged about 70 years is dated 10.6.1991 which records that she was brought to the district hospital Jhansi on 10.6.1991 at about 5.a.m by one Laxmi Narayan s/o Ram Charan resident of the same village. The injuries found on the person of Rajabeti are as under:-

(1) A punctured wound on the medial surface of Right upper arm. Size 3 cm x 1 cm x 2 cm and is 13 cm above elbow joint. Rt side wound is severly bleeding, margins are sharply cut. regular.

(2) An Incised wound 2.5 cm x 1 cm x-Muscle deep on the ventral surface of Right fore arm. 9 cm above wrist joint sever fresh bleeding present along with some dust particles.

(3) An incised wound 3 cm x 0.5 cm x muscle deep on the dorsal surface of Rt fore arm 10 cm above wrist joint. Fresh bleeding present.

6. It was opined by the doctor that injury nos.1 and 2 (kept under observation) were caused by sharp edged weapon and their duration was fresh. X-ray was advised.

7. The post mortem of deceased Jamna was conducted on 10.6.1991 at about 3.00 pm. Clean cut wound of 2 &1/2 cm x 1 cm was found on the left chest so deep that it punctured the heart of deceased, which was found filled with blood. It was opined by the doctor that death was caused due to the said injury resulting in asphyxia and shock.

8. The inquest was done at the mortuary of the district hospital, Jhansi, which commenced at 9.15 a.m and ended at 11.15 a.m. The person who gave first information to the police, as mentioned in the inquest report, is Parikshit husband of deceased. Cause of death is shown as injury caused by knife. The inquest report records that body was taken out from the mortuary of the District Hospital, lock of which was opened in the presence of the inquest witnesses and other people after police came to the hospital.

9. It is pertinent to note here that the Investigating Officer, who submitted the chargesheet in the Court, had died before his deposition could be recorded in the trial. However, the site plan, charge sheet and other papers prepared by the Investigating officer had been proved to be in his handwriting and signature, by P.W.-5 Constable, Dhani Ram Tiwari P.S-Kotwali, District-Jhansi and marked as Exhibit 'Ka-6' to 'Ka-10' (site plan as Exhibit Ka-9 and chargesheet as Exhibit Ka-10).

10. Amongst the witnesses produced by the prosecution, the first informant (P.W-1) and injured Rajabeti (P.W-2) gave eye-witness account of the incident. P.W-3, Doctor R.N. Sharma who conducted post mortem had proved his report. P.W-4, S.I Ram Bharose Kushwaha is the Head Constable who prepared Chik F.I.R (proved as Exhibit Ka-4) on the written report (proved as Exhibit Ka-1). He stated that the Chik F.I.R was prepared by him at about 5.30 a.m on 10.6.91 and entered in the G.D no.9, which was proved from the original G.D and marked as Exhibit 'Ka-5' being in his own handwriting and signature.

11. Thus, according to the prosecution, deceased was accompanied by P.W-1 the first informant and injured witness P.W-2 at the time of the incident. The trial court discarded the presence of the first informant on the spot of crime noticing that his deposition indicates that he was supposed to be on duty at the time of the incident. The statement of the first informant in the cross examination that he was an employee in railway and his duty was changing in three shifts, and from 7th June to 15th June his shift duty was from 12:00 midnight to 8:00 a.m, was noted by the trial court to hold that the presence of the first informant on the spot was improbable. We may note, at the outset, that the prosecution could not demonstrate that this part of the finding recorded by the trial court is either perfunctory or against the evidence on record.

12. This apart, having carefully read the evidence of P.W-1, we further find that his deposition is full of contradictions and clearly reveal that his presence on the spot was not possible. The first informant states that he was ten steps behind his wife and the injured witness when they were attacked by accused Mohan. As per his version, accused Mohan was intercepted by his aunt Rajabeti when he attacked deceased Jamuna and during the course of occurence Rajabeti was also hit by knife in her right arm. It is astonishing that the first informant being husband of deceased did nothing but witnessed the entire sequence of events in the torch light. Further, in his deposition before the Court, though P.W-1 states that he alongwith others brought deceased Jamuna and injured Rajabeti to the district hospital, but in the written report it is averred that other people took the injured and deceased to the district hospital. When confronted in cross-examination, P.W-1 gave an explanation that since his brother and sister-in-law also accompanied him to the hospital he dictated so in the F.I.R. A suggestion was also given to him that someone else brought deceased and injured to the hospital and he reached the hospital directly on hearing the news. In reply P.W-1 states that he remained at the site after the incident for about 10-15 minutes, then took deceased and the injured to the Hospital where he reached within 10-15 minutes. He remained in the hospital for about 2-3 hrs. In the meantime, police reached the hospital. One hour later, the police took him to the police station to lodge the report. The inquest was done in the hospital. He then states that by the time he reached the police station, sun had risen. His brother Laxmi Narayan and a neighbour namely Kali Charan also accompanied him to the police station. He then states that the entire sequence of events was narrated by him to the Station House Officer (Daroga ji) who dictated it to Kali Charan who wrote the report, and it was then signed by him as the first informant.

13. Analysing the above naration of the P.W-1, this much is evident that the written report scribed by Kali Charan was not dictated by the first informant rather it was scribed on the dictation of the police officer and P.W-1 merely endorsed it. P.W-1 admitted that he was a railway employee and his duties were changing weekly in three shifts, i.e. 8.00 am to 4.00 p.m, 4 p.m to 12.00 mid night and 12:00 mid night to 8.00 a.m. In the month of June 1991, from 1st June to 7th June, his duty shift was 8.00 a.m to 4.00 p.m and from 7th June to 15th June, it was 12.00 midnight to 8.00 a.m. Thus, in the cross examination, he had admitted that on the fateful day, at the time of incident, he was supposed to be on duty. There is no whisper nor any indication in the entire evidence as to how he could be present at his home to accompany the deceased at about 4.00 a.m when she went to get drinking water from the public tap. The prosecution has not explained this circumstance by bringing any cogent evidence on record rather it is completely silent on the issue. This, in our opinion, is a clear dent in the prosecution story.

14. Further, as far as motive narrated by P.W-1 in the First Information Report is concerned, in cross examination P.W-1 admitted that he was neither present during the altercation which took place around 5 days back between accused Mohan and his wife nor was told by his wife that Mohan had threatened her. The narration of motive by P.W-1 in the First Information Report, therefore, seems to be his own creation. When confronted as to why he did not make any effort to save his wife, P.W-1 states that he hit the assailants from the 'Dibba' which he was carrying and challenged them by showing the torch light, but no such "Dibba" was recovered.

15. He further admitted that he did not make any effort to release deceased from the clutches of the assailants, nor he thought of hitting them from the metal pots carried by his wife. He did not touch the dead body of his wife on the spot. We find it difficult to believe that P.W.-1 though was present on the spot but he did not even lift the body of his wife to take her to the hospital. For the above statement and admission of P.W-1 about his duty time on the fateful day which clashed with the time of the incident, we find that the trial court has rightly concluded that P.W-1 was not accompanying the deceased. The prosecution version of P.W-1 being the eye witness has been rightly discarded.

16. Presence of P.W-1 on the spot is also belied from the statement of P.W-2 who states in the examination-in-chief that apart from her no one else had seen the assault. The relevant part of the statement of P.W-2 is to be noted as under:

"मौके पर जब मोहन ने मेरी बहू व मुझे चाकू मारा था उस समय और किसी ने नहीं देखा था। वहॉ पर पडोस में प्लेट फार्म पर काफी लोग सो रहे थे। जो कि वाकया होने के बाद अपने –2 घरो में चले गये थे व अपनी –2 खटिया भी ले गये थे।"

17. P.W-2 further states that first one to reach the spot was a neighbour Jamna wife of Param, who in turn called Laxmi Narayan, she then states that her nephew Parikshit (first informant) was present about 50 paces behind them, but in the very next sentence she stated that she could only remember that wife of Param and Laxmi Narayan reached the spot and who else came, she could not recollect. This part of statement of P.W-2 (in her examination in chief) is also relevant to be noted hereunder:-

"सबसे पहले मुहल्ले के एक बहू परम की बीबी जमुना हमारे पास आयी थी वहीं लक्ष्मी नारायण को बुलाकर लायी थी।

मेरा दूसरा भतीजा पारीक्षत घटना के समय करीब 50 कदमदूरी पर था बरगद के पेड के और आगे था। फिर कहा कि मैं बेहोश हो गयी थी

X X X X X X By R.C.A

मौके पर अन्धेरा था मैंने मोहन या उसके साथी का चेहरा देखकर नहीं पहिचाना था बल्कि उसकी आवाज सुनकर पहिचाना था कि वह मोहन था।

अन्धेरे के कारण मैं यह नहीं देख सकी कि उसे मोहन ने मारा था या सबने मिलकर मारा था।

मैने दरोगा जी को भी यही बताया था कि जब मोहन ने आवाज दी तब मैंने उसे आवाज से पहिचाना था । यदि मोहन आवाज न देता और कोई बात न करता तो मुझे पता भी नहीं चलता कि हमें कौन मार गया।

मुझे 2 दिन बाद होश आया था।"

18. P.W-2 further states that she could not see whether Mohan hit them or any of the other assailants as there was dark. There is no whisper in the statement of P.W-2 about the presence of any source of light, especially the torch light wherein they could have seen the assailants. P.W-2 rather categorically stated that she could recognize Mohan accused, only from his voice. As per P.W-2, had Mohan not spoken a few words she could not have known as to who had assaulted them. This part of extracted statements of P.W-2 belied the whole version of P.W-1 and also makes the recovery of torch wholly farce.

19. Having noticed the contradictions in the statement of P.W-1 as also material contradictions in the statement of both the witnesses of fact (P.W-1 and P.W-2), there remains no doubt that the testimony of P.W-1 (projected as eye witness) is liable to be discarded as a whole. P.W-1 is proved to be a liar. It seems to us that P.W-1 was on duty and he came to know about the incident only after he returned from duty in the morning and that could be only after 8:00 a.m. Apart from the above, further record indicates that police was intimated about the incident through the letter of the hospital authorities which was entered in G.D rapat no.9, time 5.30 a.m. As per the entries therein, deceased was admitted in the hospital at about 4.50 a.m. The district hospital was located at a very short distance (less than one furlong) from the police station. The G.D entry shows that the first information (chik report) was also registered at 5.30 a.m. But P.W-1 states that police reached the hospital on its own and one hour later they took him to the police station to lodge the report. The first informant thus admits that he did not go immediately to the Police Station to lodge the report. The inquest commenced at about 9.15 a.m and in the meantime body was locked in the Mortuary. There is no explanation by the prosecution as to when and on whose information police had reached the hospital. It is also not explained as to when the hospital authorities had reported murder at 5.30 a.m, what action was taken by the police authorities, i.e. what was done between 5.30 a.m to 9.15 a.m.? Why the police took 2 & 1/2 hours to reach the hospital? The inquest indicates that it commenced after lodging of the F.I.R as the time and date of the F.I.R and the name of the first informant has been mentioned therein. P.W-1 has admitted that F.I.R was scribed by Kalicharan not on his dictation rather it was written on the dictation of the police officer (Daroga Ji) to whom he narrated the whole story. From the above conspectus of facts, it is unbelievable that the First Information Report came into picture at 5.30 a.m. It seems to us clearly that the first informant was on duty when the incident had occured.

He reached the hospital after 8.00 a.m when his duty was over or may be sometime before that on hearing the news of the murder of his wife and, thereafter, he went to the police station to lodge the report. But by that time, police were already intimated about the murder through the letter sent by the hospital. In any eventuality, the time of lodging of Chik F.I.R could not be same as the time when letter of the hospital was received in the police station and both could not be entered at G.D no.9, 5.30 a.m. In other words, it seems impossible from the above circumstances culled out from the record that the first information report was lodged at 5.30 a.m. The whole gamut of evidence on record clearly prove the F.I.R being an Ante-timed report having been lodged after deliberations of the police officer (Station house Officer) with the first informant. The first informant has been proved to be a liar considering all surrounding circumstances as his testimony being full of concoctions and contradictions seems a cooked up story. It seems to us that P.W-1 was projected as an eye witness by the Investigating Officer in an overzealous effort to solve the crime. Had the Investigating Officer entered in the witness box, some light could have been thrown on all these aspects bothering the Court. But unfortunately, that could not happen. We are, however, of the opinion that the effort of the prosecution to prove its case by producing a liar in the witness box creates not only a scar but a deep dent in its story. It is always the duty of the prosecution to prove its case by producing truthful and trustworthy witnesses may be only one. The quality and not the quantity of witnesses is important. Any effort of the prosecution to prove its case by producing untrustworthy or untruthful witnesses has to be viewed seriously. In the instant case, the prosecution is guilty of bringing false evidence before a court of law and this act of it makes its story untrue from the beginning. The residue, that is the testimony of P.W-2, therefore, has to be sifted very carefully and with greater circumspection by the Court to assess as to whether the conviction can be based solely on the same.

20. It is argued before us on behalf of the appellant that the decision of the trial court to base the conviction on the sole testimony of P.W.-2 is faulty, in as much as, P.W.-2 cannot but be said to be a tutored witness. A clear suggestion was given by the defence to P.W-2 during the course of examination that she was a tutored witness which could not be overruled from her reply. Once it is established that P.W-1, the creator of the whole story, was telling a lie and the F.I.R is a result of deliberation, it cannot be ruled out by all means that P.W-2 was tutored to take the name of the assailant being accused Mohan. Placing the abovenoted statement of P.W-2, it is contended that she was tutored to take the name of Mohan as the main assailant. Further, as per the prosecution, there were three persons who were involved in the assault, looking to the version of P.W-2, it is not possible for the prosecution to fix the liability for murder on accused Mohan and to prove that other two assailants only caught hold of deceased. It was, thus, not justifiable for the trial court to base the conviction on the testimony of solitary residue witness P.W-2 who categorically admitted that she did not see the real assailant.

21. It is further urged that, the trial court has rested the conviction on the only evidence against the appellant which is voice recognizition by P.W-2, a weak piece of evidence. Reliance is placed on judgment of the Kerala High court in Sainudeen vs State of Kerala reported in (1992) Cri L.J. 1644 and of the Supreme Court in Nilesh Dinkar Paradkar vs State of Maharastra in Criminal Appeal No.537 of 2009 decided on 9th March 2011 as also of M.P High Court in Pratap Singh vs State of M.P in Criminal Appeal no.00601 of 2004 decided on 17.5.2017 to urge that identification of persons by voice is a risky proposition and it is not safe to base the conviction on identification of voice alone as there is always possibility of mistakes in identifying persons by voice. Accurate Voice identification is much more difficult than visual identification. The Courts have to be extremely cautious in basing conviction purely on the evidence of Voice identification. The ability of the individual to identify voice in general and the familiarity of the listener with the known voice; and even a confident recognition of a familiar voice by a listener, must be established beyond all reasonable doubts by cogent, positive, affirmative and assertive evidence. Voice can also be identified by means of voice identification parade.

22. It is vehemently contended by the learned Amicus Curiae that the court below has not taken due care while basing conviction solely on the identification of voice of assailant by P.W-2 who was an old lady of about 70 years at the time of incident. No voice identification parade was done by the trial court to satisfy itself that she was able to identify voice of her neighbour. Submission is that casual approach adopted by the trial court in treating the P.W-2 as a truthful and reliable witness ignoring inconsistencies in her deposition has resulted in conviction of the appellant in absence of any cogent evidence. In fact the prosecution evidence as a whole is to be discarded and the appeal deserves to be allowed.

23. Learned A.G.A, on the other hand, relying upon the judgment of the Apex Court in Kripal Singh vs State of U.P reported in 1965 AIR 712 vehemently urged that identification of the assailant by the injured witness Rajabeti P.W-2 by voice was possible, in as much as, the appellant was her neighbour and she was well acquainted with his voice. It is contended that in the similar facts and circumstances, the Apex Court had upheld conviction on the testimony of witness who asserted that he was able to recognize the assailant and his other accomplices from their gait and voice. It was held therein that even in pitch dark night, it is possible to identify a person through the shape of his body, clothes, gait, manner of walking etc., and identification is possible by voice too. Submission is that the position of law in this regard is well settled with a long line of decisions by the Apex Court, one of them being Kedar Singh and others vs State of Bihar reported in 1998 SCC (cri) 907.

24. Learned A.G.A further urged that P.W-2, Rajabeti is an injured witness and for this reason her testimony on its own has efficacy and relevancy. The logic is that the witness who sustained injuries on her body would prove that she was present at the place of occurence and had seen the occurence by herself. Convincing evidence would be required to discredit an injured witness. The evidence of an injured witness must be given due weightage being a stamped witness as his presence cannot be doubted. His statement is generally considered to be very reliable as it is unlikely that he spares the actual assailant in order to falsely implicate some-one else. The testimony of an injured witness is accorded special status in law. Moreover, every discrepancy in the statement of witness cannot be treated as fatal as a discrepancy which does not affect the prosecution case materially cannot create an infirmity. Unless there are grounds for rejection of evidence of an injured witness on the basis of major contradictions and discrepancies therein, it should be normally relied upon.

25. Considering the above, we may note at the outset, that there is no dispute about the legal principle with regard to the identification of the assailant being possible by voice only and that the evidence of an injured witness acquired special status in law has to be given due weightage. That, it is not possible for the Court to discard the testimony of an injured witness ordinarily. However, at the same time there cannot be a quarrel to the proposition that identification by voice is a weak piece of evidence. Court has to be extremely cautious in basing the conviction purely on the evidence of Voice identification. The evidence led by the prosecution must be cogent, positive, affirmative and assertive and must establish beyond all reasonable doubts that the witness had ability to identify voice and additionally there was sufficient opportunity for the witness to identify the assailant by voice only. There cannot be quarrel also to the proposition that conviction based on the identification of voice alone is somewhat risky and it will always depend on the facts of a case as to what weight has to be attached to a particular piece of evidence. If the Court is satisfied about the identification of persons by evidence of identification of voice alone, no rule of law prevents its acceptance as the sole basis for conviction. In any case, the assessment of prosecution evidence based on voice idenification has to be made in the surrounding circumstances of an individual case.

26. It is settled law that the duty of the Court is to find out truth from the statement of witnesses as the whole body of the testimony cannot be rejected because witnesses were evidently speaking an untruth in some aspect. Minor discrepancies occuring in the statements of witnesss due to normal error of observation, normal error of memory, due to lapse of time, due to mental disposition such as shock and horror at the time of occurence cannot be given much importance. It is often seen that the witnesses tend to decorate their testimony so as to make it more acceptable for the fear of being rejected in a Court of law. An attempt has, thus, to be made to separate grain from chaff, truth from falsehood. Reference Dalbir Singh vs State of Haryana, (2008) 11 SCC 425.

27. The Apex Court in State of Rajasthan vs Kalki and anothers reported in (1981) 2 SCC 752, has held that normal discrepancies in evidence are always there even in the testimony of most honest and truthful witness. The Courts have to label the category to which discrepancies may be categorised. Material discrepancies are those which are not normal and not expected of a normal person. While normal discrepancies do not corrode the credibility of party's case, material discrepancies do so. That it is to be appraised in each case as to what extent the evidence is worthy of acceptance, and merely because in some respects the Court considers the same to be insufficient or is sceptical on placing reliance on the testimony of a witness, it does not necessarily follow as a matter of law that such evidence must be discarded in all respects as well. It is held that the doctrine "falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus' is not a sound rule for the reason that hardly one comes across a witness whose evidence does not contain a grain of untruth or at any rate exaggerations, embroideries or embellishments. Reference Sohrab S/O Belinayata & Anr vs State of M.P reported in (1972) 3 SCC 751 and Ugar Ahir vs State of Bihar reported in AIR 1965 SC 277.

28. Coming to the applicability of the principle of "falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus," it was held in Nisar Ali vs State of U.P reported in AIR 1957 SC 366 that even if a major portion of evidence is found to be deficient, residue is sufficient to prove guilt of an accused. It is the duty of the Court to separate grain from chaff. Where chaff can be separated from grain, it would be open to the Court to convict an accused notwithstanding the fact that evidence has been found to be deficient to prove guilt of other accused persons. Falsity of particular material witness or material particular would not ruin it from the beginning to end. The maxim "falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus" has no application in India and the witnessess cannot be branded as liars taking aid of the said doctrine. The maxim "falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus" (false in one thing, false in everything) has not received general acceptance in different jurisdiction in India, nor has this maxim came to occupy the status of rule of law. It is merely a rule of caution. All that it amounts to is that in such cases testimony may be disregarded, and not that it must be disregarded. The doctrine merely involves the question of weight of evidence which a court may apply in a given set of circumstances, but it is not what may be called a 'mandatory rule of evidence."

29. However, it was enunciated by the Apex Court in Zwinglee Ariel vs State of M.P reported in AIR 1954 SC 15 and followed in Balaka Singh vs The State of Punjab reported in (1975) 4 SCC 511 that in the process of sifting or assessment of weight of evidence, where it is not feasible to separate truth from falsehood, because grain and chaff are inextricably mixed up and in the process of separation an absolutely new case has to be reconstructed by divorcing essential details presented by the prosecution completely from the context and the background against which they are made, the only available course to be made is discard the evidence in toto. The same is true from the observations in Sohrab also. This principle has further been noted with approval in a recent decision of the Apex Court in Dalbir Singh vs State of Haryana (supra) wherein on acquittal of other accused persons, it was urged that the evidence was partisan, lacks cogency and credibility and could not be made basis to convict the appellant therein. In that case, the trial court had directed the acquittal of the co-accused whereas the appellant was convicted on the basis of identification of his voice. The High court and the Apex Court had held therein that identification was possible, particularly when the accused was the grandson of the witness. Further, reliance was placed therein on the decision in Anwar Hussain vs State of U.P reported in (1982) 1 SCC 491, to hold that in a dark night, ocular identification may be difficult in some cases but if a person is acquainted and closely related to another, from the manner of speech, gait and voice, identification is possible.

30. In light of the above legal position, coming to the facts of the instant case, once we have held that the First Information Report is an Ante-timed report and the prosecution has deliberately presented a false evidence by projecting husband of deceased as an eye witness we cannot rule out the possibility of false implication of the appellant. The F.I.R

which is entire edifice and fabric of the prosecution case has been demolished as it lost its authenticity. In our opinion, if the prosecution could go to the extent of producing a false evidence by projecting the husband of deceased as an eye witness, though he was not, it could have added the name of the appellant also falsely. We may also note that though there is no evidence of animosity between the prosecution party and the appellant, but being neighbour or having fought over a dispute relating to a common drain, false implication of appellant by the prosecution witness, (husband of the deceased), creator of the story, cannot be said to be a remote possibility.

31. Sole remaining witness P.W-2 though is an injured witness but she admitted that she did not see the faces of assailants as it was pitch dark. In her examination-in-chief, P.W-2 made contradictory statements as to the presence of first informant P.W.-1. In her examination-in-chief, in the first sentence she stated that no one had seen the incident and in the very next sentence she states that P.W-1 was behind them at a distance of about 50 paces. In third sentence, she denied the presence of P.W-1 on the spot by saying that she did not remember that apart from Laxmi Narayan and Jamuna, wife of Param, who else came on the spot. Her deposition in examination-in-chief itself shows that she was not stating the presence of P.W-1 on the spot of crime on her own volition. Further, in the cross examination, P.W.-2 admitted that there was pitch dark and she did not see the faces of three assailants including accused Mohan.

32. The injuries on the person of P.W-2 were simple in nature, but she stated that she remained unconscious for two days. The discrepancies in the statement of P.W-2 in her examination-in-chief extracted in the foregoing paragraphs cannot be said to be normal discrepancies which occured due to normal error of observance or memory due to lapse of time. The statement of P.W-2 was recorded after four years of the incident, it, therefore, cannot also be accepted that discrepancy in her evidence had occured due to mental disposition of the witness due to shock and horror she suffered at the time of occurence. It seems to us that P.W-2 gave a parrot-like version of the entire case in her statement in examination-in-chief while describing the assault on the deceased and herself.

33. Moreover, though in the cross examination, she accepted that she had not seen the assailant being the appellant as it was pitch dark but deposed to have recognized him by three words "rqe tkvksa cm" (spoken by the appellant). To us, the sentence spoken by assailant is so short that it cannot be accepted that P.W-2 was confident enough to recognize the assailant being the appellant by his voice. When confronted, in the cross examination, P.W-2 admitted that had Mohan not spoken those words, she could not know as to who had assaulted them.

34. It is not understandable why the prosecution introduced P.W.-1 when there was another eye-witness. The effort of the prosecution to prove the presence of P.W-1 at the place of occurence through the inconsistent statement of P.W-2, (the injured witness) is a material embellishment, and inherent discrepancy in the prosecution story.

35. Having read the whole testimony of both prosecution witnesses, namely P.W.-1 and P.W-2, we find that the ocular evidence of prosecution witnesses is so inextricably mixed up that it is not possible to sever one from the other. Having discarded the testimony of P.W-1 being full of falsity, it would be dangerous to accept the statement of P.W-2 to base the conviction of the appellant. We make it clear that we can not and we are not doubting the presence of P.W-2 at the place of occurence but we have a serious doubt about her ability to identify the main assailant being the appellant and her creditworthiness too. Additionally, the statement of P.W.-1 about the enimity between his family and the appellant in the first information report also raises a doubt in the mind of the Court with regard to the possibility of false implication of appellant in the crime. In totality of facts and circumstances of the present case, we find it difficult to separate grain of truth from the chaff of falsehood, the only course open before us, therefore, is to discard the evidence in toto. We are afraid to base the conviction on the building of prosecution evidence, edifice of which is a blatant lie.

36. It appears to us that the trial court was swayed away by the only fact that P.W-2 was an injured witness and as such her presence at the scene of occurence was proved and, thus, giving undue weightage to her testimony, ignoring all material contradictions therein, she was treated as a truthful witness. According to us, the trial court has not taken proper care and due precaution to ascertain the truthfulness of the prosecution witnesses. Further, there were three assailants and no effort was made by the trial court to ascertain as to whether P.W-2, (a 70 years old lady) was able to recognize voice of the appellant. No voice identification parade was conducted.

37. It is fundamental principle of criminal jurisprudence that the prosecution has to prove its case beyond reasonable doubts and in case of any doubt, (reasonable one), benefit must go in favour of the accused.

38. Taking into consideration the entire sequence of events, the occular evidence and the surrounding circumstances, we find that the prosecution has failed to prove its story by producing truthful witnesses. The benefit of doubt which arose in the minds of the Court regarding truthfulness of the case of the prosecution has to go in favour of the accused. And as such, giving benefit of doubt to the appellant, we set aside the conviction of the appellant for the offences under Sections 302 and 307 IPC.

39. Accordingly, the judgment and order dated 18.5.1996 passed by the IVth Additional Sessions Judge, Jhansi in Sessions Trial No.144 of 1991 (State vs. Mohan @ Mohan Singh) arising out of Case Crime No.253 of 1991, Police Station- Kotwali, District-Jhansi, convicting and sentencing the accused-appellant Mohan @ Mohan Singh, under Sections 307, 302 IPC is set aside. The accused-appellant Mohan @ Mohan Singh is acquitted of all the offences/charges.

40. The appeal deserves to be allowed and is hereby allowed.

41. The accused-appellant Mohan @ Mohan Singh is on bail. His whereabouts are not known. Necessary steps shall be taken by the court below to notify this judgment to all concerned.

42. Certify this judgment to the court below for information and necessary compliance.

43. The compliance report be furnished to this Court through the Registrar General, High Court, Allahabad within one month.

44. Ms.Mahima Maurya, learned Advocate rendered valuable assistance to the Court. The Court quantifies Rs.15,000/- to be paid to Ms.Mahima Maurya, Advocate towards fee for the able assistance provided by her in hearing of this Criminal Appeal. The said payment shall be made to Ms.Mahima Maurya, Advocate by the Registry of the Court within the shortest possible time.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Arvind Kumar Mishra-I, J. &
Hon'ble Gautam Chowdhary, J.)

1. This appeal has been preferred by the appellant - Vijai Pal Singh, son of Sri Babu Singh against the judgment and order of conviction dated 10.03.1986, passed by the Sessions Judge, Etawah in Sessions Trial No. 255 of 1984 (State vs Vijai Pal Singh), arising out of Case Crime No. 45 of 1984, under Sections - 302, 307, 324 and 309 I.P.C., Police Station - Barhpura, District - Etawah, whereby the appellant was convicted under the aforesaid sections and was sentenced to life imprisonment under Section - 302 I.P.C.; three years' rigorous imprisonment under Section - 324 I.P.C.; and one year rigorous imprisonment under Section - 309 I.P.C.

2. All these sentences were directed to run concurrently.

3. In the same trial, accused was found not guilty under Section - 307 I.P.C. and was acquitted of the charge.

4. Factual chronology of the case, culminating into lodging of the F.I.R. by informant Chhotey Singh (P.W.1), on 23.06.1984 at 01.55 a.m,. at Police Station - Barhpura, District - Etawah, at Case Crime No. 45 of 1984, under Sections - 307, 309

I.P.C., was that the informant was a Company Hawaldar of 37 Batallion P.A.C. and was posted as such at Police Station - Barhpura. Today i.e. on the date of occurrence (23.06.1984), Constable/P.A.C. 19520 - Vijai Pal Singh was on Sentry duty at the said police station from 11:00 p.m. (to be precise 22.06.1984) to 01:00 a.m. (on 26.06.1984) in the night intervening 22/23.06.1984 and his duty was to be followed by another Sentry Constable - 20185 Arun Kumar, whose duty was to run from 01:00 a.m. to 03:00 a.m. on 23.06.1984. Neither did Constable Vijai Pal Singh wake up/report the informant after his duty was over, nor did he wake up Constable Arun Kumar for taking on his duty (after 1:00 a.m. in the night). It was around 01:30 a.m. (in the night intervening 22/23.06.1984) when a sound of fire was heard. This awakened the informant as well as the other personnel of the force. Vijai Pal Singh was sighted running towards the office of the police station with rifle and he was chased by the informant (Chhotey Singh), Constable 20251 Shanker Bux, Constable 19596 Siddh Nath Rai. Constable 19766 Bhai Lal Yadav and Sentry of the Police Station - C/C.P. 294 Ramesh Singh and Constable 119 Devi Prasad, who were holding torches in their hands. Suddenly, Vijai Pal Singh pointed his rifle towards them and fired two shots on the informant and others, with intention to kill, from the verandah of the office of police station, but the informant and others, escaped unhurt as the bullet missed target and did not hit them. In the meanwhile, Constable Bhai Lal Yadav moved ahead to overpower Vijai Pal Singh, when he effected blow by bannet of his rifle on the back of Bhai Lal Yadav and caused injury to him and entered into the male lockup and confined himself there in the male lock up of the police station, and tried to commit suicide by shooting himself with his rifle on his abdomen. Consequently, he fell down in the lock up. When the informant and others also rushed to the well of the police station, they found Constable Rama Shanker groaning in pain on account of gunshot injury on his stomach. F.I.R. also contains details about the background of this happening that on 21.06.1984, Constable Vijai Pal Singh had rebuked P.A.C./Constables in the barrack, including Constable Shanker Bux. When Rama Shanker objected to the rebuking, Vijay Pal Singh threatened him with dire consequences and on account of that animosity, he shot Rama Shanker with Rifle No. 38458 and Butt No. F632 along with bannet, which were recovered from Vijai Pal Singh. There was one empty cartridge entangled in the chamber of rifle and there was one live cartridge in the magazine. Apart from that, 45 live cartridges were recovered from the belt of Vijai Pal Singh along with 10 chargers. 3 empty cartridges were found from the verandah. All these articles were deposited at the police station and request was made for lodging the report. The written report is Ext.Ka.1, whereas the Check F.I.R is Ext. Ka.12, whereafter a case was registered at aforesaid case crime number against the appellant in the relevant G.D. of the aforesaid date and time at aforesaid police station.

5. The investigation was taken over by P.W.8 Chandra Shekhar, who recorded statement of various witnesses. Besides that, he also recorded the statement of Rama Shanker and has proved the same as Ext. Ka.14. Thereafter, he prepared Site-plan (Ext. Ka.15) and various memos. Prime being one pellet, which was recovered from male lockup. The recovery memo of the same was prepared and marked as Ext.Ka.16. All the materials collected from the spot were kept in the police malkhana and description of the same was entered in the relevant G.D. of the police station. The same is proved as Ext.Ka.17. He also prepared memo of torches, which were marked as Ext.Ka. 3 and Ext. Ka.19, respectively. He was also informed about the death of Rama Shanker, whereupon the case was converted from one under Sections - 307, 309 I.P.C. to one under Sections 302, 307, 309 I.P.C. Relevant note was made in the G.D. Concerned as Rapat No. 2 of date 24.06.1984. This witness has proved the G.D. entry as Ext. Ka.20, which was prepared in the hand writing of one Chhatrapal (Constable), with whom he is well acquainted and knows his handwriting as well. The Investigating Officer has also proved the inquest report of deceased - Rama Shanker as Ext. Ka.21. However, it is noticeable that during course of investigation, Vijai Pal Singh was medically examined on 23.06.1984 at 04:35 a.m. at District Hospital, Etawah by P.W.7 Dr. Diwakar Sharma, wherein he found the following injuries on his person :-

1. Gun shot wound 1 cm x 1 cm x cavity deep on the front of abdomen 6 cm above umbilicus at 1 o' clock position. Margins inverted. Blackening present (Entry).

2. Gun shot wound 5 cm x 5 cm x cavity deep on the back of left side 8 cm above iliac crest 11.5 cm away from mid line. Margins everted. Fresh bleeding present. (wound of exit)

In the opinion of doctor, the condition of patient was poor. The patient was admitted and police was informed. Plain X-ray of abdomen was advised. Nature of injury was "kept under observation". Injury was stated to have been caused by firearm. Duration of the injury was noted fresh. The injury report of Vjai Pal Singh - Constable - is on record and the same is marked as Ex.Ka.6.

6. P.W.7 Dr. Diwakar Sharma had also medically examined the injuries of deceased Rama Shanker (as he was then alive) on 23.06.1984 at 4:50 a.m. at District Hospital, Etawah, wherein he found the following injuries on the person of the deceased:-

1. Gun shot wound 1 cm x 1 cm x cavity deep on front of lower abdomen 6 cm below umbilicus at 7 o' clock position 1 cm away from midline (right). Margins inverted. Blackening present (wound of entry).

2. Gun shot wound 2.5 cm x 3.5 cm x cavity deep on the right side back 36 cm below the root of neck. Margins everted. Bleeding present. (wound of exit)

In the opinion of the doctor, the condition of patient was poor. He was admitted and police was informed. Plain X-ray of abdomen was advised. Nature of injury was "kept under observation". Duration of the injury was found fresh. The injury report of Rama Shanker, Constable is on record and the same is marked as Ex.Ka.7.

7. Besides, Dr. Diwakar Sharma also examined Constable Bhai Lal Yadav at 06:15 a.m. on 23.06.1984 and found the following injury on his person:-

1. Incised wound 2 cm x 0.8 cm x muscle deep on left scapular region 14 cm

In the opinion of doctor, the injury was simple and caused by sharp-edged weapon. Duration of injury was found fresh. The injury report of Bhai Lal Yadav-Constable-is on record and the same is marked as Ex.Ka.8.

8. Dr. Diwakar has also proved fact that the condition of patient Rama Shanker was at the admission and during treatment serious, therefore, he informed the Magistrate for recording his statement, whereupon Tehsildar, Etawah recorded statement of Rama Shanker in his (Dr. Diwakar) presence after his certification about the fit condition of the patient prior to and subsequently to the recording of the statement, was given. This certification has been proved on the original sheet of the statement and marked as Exts.Ka.9 and Ext.Ka.10, respectively. The statement of the injured Rama Shanker, as recorded by the Tehsildar, Etawah has been proved as Ext. Ka-5. Pertinent to observe that P.W.6 Tej Pal Singh-the then Tehsildar of the area - posted in Etawah on 23.06.1984, has proved recording of the statement of Rama Shanker in the morning and has proved his handwriting and the statement recorded at 05:00 a.m. and ended at 05:07 a.m. (on 23.06.1984) as Ext.Ka.5. However, the injured Rama Shanker died during the course of treatment. P.W.7 Dr. Diwakar Sharma has testified to the fact that the information of death of Rama Shanker in the hospital was conveyed to S.H.O., Kotwali by Dr. H.N. Singh, with whom this witness was earlier posted and as such, was acquainted with his handwriting. He has proved the communication letter made by Dr. H.N. Singh as Ext. Ka.11.

9. The post postmortem examination on the cadaver of the deceased Rama Shanker was done by Dr. M. Ali, wherein the following ante mortem injuries were found:-

1. Gun shot wound of entry 1 cm x 1 cm x cavity deep in front of abdomen 7.5 cm below the umbilicus in midline directing upward & backward.

2. Gun shot wound of exit 4 cm x 3.5 cm x cavity deep on back of lumbar regions in midline 33 cms below the neck.

Both the wounds were dressed.

3. Two wounds of cut open in both legs.

Cause of death was due to shock and haemorrhage. The postmortem examination report of deceased Rama Shanker is on record and has been proved as Ext.Ka.4.

10. After completing the investigation, charge-sheet (Ext.Ka.24) was submitted against the accused under the aforesaid sections of I.P.C.

11. Charges were framed under Sections - 302, 307, 324 and 309 I.P.C. The same were denied and trial was opted by the accused.

12. Prosecution, in all, produced 8 witnesses, out of which, P.W.1 Chottey Singh, P.W.2 Bhai Lal, P.W. 3 Shanker Bux, P.W.4 Siddh Nath Rai and P.W.5 Ramesh Singh were examined as witnesses of fact. Apart from that, the following formal witnesses were also examined - P.W.6 Tej Pal Singh was the Tehsildar, Etawah, he recorded statement of both the accused as well as the deceased and has proved it as Ext.Ka. 5. Apart from that, he has also proved certain statement recorded by him, which he has admitted in his cross examination as Ext.Ka.12. P.W.7 Dr. Diwakar Sharma has medically examined the deceased prior to his death as well as the other injured constables including the accused after the occurrence on 22/23.06.1984 at District Hospital, Etawah and he has proved the process. P.W.8 S.I. Chandra Shekhar, is the Investigating Officer. He has detailed the investigation carried out by him and fact of filing the charge-sheet.

13. As no other testimony was adduced, evidence for the prosecution was closed and the statement of the accused was recorded under Section - 313 Cr.P.C., wherein allegation of firing on Rama Shanker was denied by him and he claimed to have been falsely implicated by levelling baseless charges by the informant side. However, in his submission, he has stated that Head Constable- Kashi Prasad had fired on him when he had gone to the chabutra to call Arun Kumar. In order to avert danger to himself, he also fired, which fire, instead of hitting Kashi Prasad, hit Rama Shanker.

14. No evidence, whatsoever, was led by the defense.

15. The trial court after vetting the testimony on record and properly appraising the facts and circumstances, recorded aforesaid finding of conviction and sentenced the appellant to imprisonment for life under Section - 302 I.P.C; three years' rigorous imprisonment under Section - 324 I.P.C.; and one year rigorous imprisonment under Section - 309 I.P.C. which paved way for this appeal.

16. We have heard Sri Bhawishya Sharma, learned Amicus Curiae appearing on behalf of the appellant, Sri Krishna Pahal, learned A.A.G. assisted by Sri Bhanu Prakash Singh, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

17. Contention has been raised on behalf of the appellant that in this case, all the prosecution witnesses are highly interested witnesses. They are highly motivated and influenced by the higher authorities and they are deliberately stating false theory before the court after forming their group. The fact is that the accused himself was shot at by another constable and in order to avoid danger and in self defense, the appellant fired, but the bullet missed its target and hit Rama Shanker. The statement given to the Tehsildar was not correctly recorded and the Tehsildar has sided with the informant side. The circumstances show that no one saw the actual occurrence as to when Rama Shanker, the deceased was hit by bullet/pellet fired by the appellant. The origin of the incident is shrouded in mystery.

18. Learned A.A.G. has claimed that all the prosecution witnesses were present on the spot at the time of occurrence and the incident took place around 01:30 a.m. in the night intervening 22/23.06.1984, when a fire was shot by the appellant and due to the sound of the fire all those sleeping over there got awakened and the accused was at that point of time seen rushing towards the office of the police station with a rifle in his hand and after reaching on the verandah of the police station, he pointed out his rifle towards the informant and the other personnel of the force and fired two shots, thought it did not cause any harm to anyone. Thereafter, the accused locked himself in the male lock up and tried to commit suicide by shooting himself on his abdomen with his rifle. Each and every detail of the occurrence has been proved reasonably beyond any shadow of doubt. P.W.6 Tej Pal Singh is the Tehsildar of Etawah, who recorded statement of the victim as well as the accused, wherein also, the victim has categorically stated that the shot, which hit on his abdomen, was shot by Vijai Pal Singh - the accused. There is no reason to falsely implicate the accused.

19. In the light of the rival submissions, the moot point that arises for adjudication of this appeal relates to fact, whether the prosecution has been able to establish the charge beyond all reasonable doubt ?

20. It can be conveniently observed that the incident in question is admitted to the defense but with difference (he was Constable Kashi Prasad, who shot at the accused first) that the fire shot by the accused in self-defense though aimed at Constable Kashi Prasad, because he had shot at the accused first, but it missed him and instead hit the deceased Rama Shanker. Now, we have to contemplate on this set-up, whether the same is gathered in the attendant facts and circumstances and the same is probable or not ?

21. After arduous scrutiny of the record and the wholesome scrutiny of the five prosecution witnesses, namely, P.W.1 Chhotey Singh - the informant, P.W.2 Bhai Lal Yadav - the injured witness, who was hit on his back by the bannet of the rifle by accused, P.W.3 Shanker Bux Singh, P.W.4 Siddh Nath Rai, P.W.5 Ramesh Singh, it trickles out that in the night intervening 22/23.06.1984, the accused was on patrolling/guard duty at Police Station - Barhpura from 11:00 p.m. in the night (intervening 22.23.06.1984) up to 1:00 a.m. It so happened around 01:30 a.m. (in the night intervening 22/23.06.1984), that a sound of fire awakened these witnesses and the injured - Rama Shanker, when they saw the accused running away towards the office of the police station with rifle in his hand. A number of constables present over there tried to overpower him and in the process, P.W.2 Bhai Lal Yadav, when moved ahead to take him in his grip, the accused gave blow with his bannet of the rifle on his back, which caused injury on his back. The injury of P.W.2 Bhai Lal Yadav has been proved as incised wound 2 cm x 0.8 cm x Muscle deep on left scapular region 14 cm below top of left shoulder tailing present downwards. Wound was longitudinal and it was rated simple and caused by sharp edged weapon. Duration was the fresh. This medical examination was done by P.W.7 Dr. Diwakar Sharma at District Hospital at 06:15 a.m. on 23.06.1984 and the injury report is Ext. Ka.8. Apart from that, the accused also tried to commit suicide by locking up himself in the male lockup of the police station and self suffered one rifle shot on his abdomen. His injuries have also been examined by the same doctor P.W.7 Dr. Diwakar Sharma and has been proved as Ext. Ka.6. In his medical examination, one gun shot wound of entry and one gun shot wound of exit have been noted and the same has been proved as Ext.Ka.6. The testimony of all the witnesses of fact commensurates with the medical documents/evidence and there is no glaring or material inconsistency of any sort, which may reflect anything adverse than the consistent version of the prosecution witnesses regarding the occurrence on the whole and the nature of the injuries caused both on the informant side as well as the accused and the same cannot be doubted by any stretch of imagination. Thus, the statement of the accused as submitted under Section - 313 Cr.P.C. becomes a hollow claim not supported by any evidence or circumstances of the this case.

22. It is important to note that we have, before us, particular testimony of the then Tehsildar, Etawah, who recorded statement of the victim Rama Shanker on 23.06.1984 around 05:00 a.m. and a certification of fitness was previously obtained by him, which was given by Dr.

Diwakar Sharma, who certified that the injured Rama Shanker was, at that point of time, in fit mental/physical condition to give statement. The certification given by the doctor has been proved as Exts.Ka.9 and Ext.Ka.10. Apart from that, the same fact has been fortified by P.W.6, the then Tehsildar, Etawah- Tej Pal Singh. As per testimony of P.W.6-Tej Pal Singh, he himself recorded statement of Rama Shanker Singh on 23.06.1984 in the morning, after obtaining certification from Dr. Diwakar Sharma. He has categorically stated that whatever was stated by the injured-Rama Shanker, was noted by him and after recording the statement, he also obtained signature of Rama Shanker on the statement. On perusal of the statement marked Ext.Ka.5, it is found that Rama Shanker has stated that he had some altercation with the accused on 21.06.1984. In the night intervening 22/23.06.1984, at around 12.30 a.m., while he was sleeping, Constable Vijai Pal was on duty. Vijial Pal shot him, whereupon he got up and in squatting position saw the accused. This piece of testimony is virtually unimpeachable, relevant and admissible under the provisions of The Indian Evidence Act, 1872. The fact of injury being caused to the victim by the accused thus stands proved by the victim by the accused thus stands proved himself and the claim of the appellant, as submitted in his statement recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C., that he was first shot at by Kashi Prasad and then he fired on Kashi Prasad, but the fire missed its target and hit Rama Shanker) is not supported by any corroborating attendant circumstances or facts and not even a whisper is gathered by us after careful scrutiny of the entire record that it in fact so happened. A wholesome and cumulative reading of the testimony of all the five prosecution witnesses of fact has elaborately detailed about the occurrence and their testimony is natural and consistent on point of occurrence. They are worthy of credit. There is no doubt that apart from Rama Shanker (the deceased), no one else saw the shot being fired by the accused and hitting the deceased (Rama Shanker), while he was asleep in the fateful night at the well of the police station. However, the site-plan Ext. Ka.15 indicates, in all niceties, the very topography of the place of occurrence and gives a pictorial sketch of the incident as it originated and ended. Thus, the place of occurrence is also proved by the P.W.8 The Investigating Officer Chandra Shekhar.

23. To claim that the patient/deceased was not in fit mental and physical condition to give any statement, would not, in the absence of any supporting material, give advantage to the accused because fitness certificate prior to and subsequently to the recording of the statement by P.W.6 Tehsildar Tej Pal singh was given by P.W.7 Dr. Diwakar Sharma and who remained present throughout the period when the statement was being recorded. Recording of the statement commenced at 05:00 a.m. on 23.06.1984 and the process was completed by 05:07 a.m. i.e. within seven minutes. The extract of statement proved as Ext. Kha.1 and Ext. Kha.2 loses significance in view of the statement of the deceased himself as to how it all occurred. Assuming it to be that the version of the appellant is correct on point that he was shot by Head Constable Kashi Prasad, when he had gone to the 'chabutra' to wake up Constable Arun Kumar, had it been so, then the theory of sound of one fire being made around 01:30 in the night intervening 22/23.06.1984 goes into oblivion, for the reason that no two shots have been fired at that point of time and sound of one and only one fire was heard by the witnesses. It being so, the claim of the accused that he was shot by Head Constable Kashi Prasad, itself stands falsified and cannot be accepted by us.

24. In view of above scrutiny of evidence and analogy of facts and circumstances of this case, obviously it cannot be said that the charges have not been proved beyond reasonable doubt against the accused and that the trial court erred while it recorded finding of conviction against the accused under Sections - 302, 324 and 309 I.P.C. and imposed the sentence on him.

25. We do not find any infirmity in the judgment and order of conviction and sentence passed by the trial court in Sessions Trial No. 255 of 1984 (State vs Vijai Pal Singh), arising out of Case Crime No. 45 of 1984, under Sections - 302, 307, 324 and 309 I.P.C., Police Station - Barhpura, District - Etawah.

26. Accordingly, this appeal is dismissed.

27. Let a copy of this order be certified to the court below for its intimation and necessary compliance. The lower court record is directed to be remitted to the court concerned.

A. Criminal law- Indian Penal Code- Section 302/201-The delay in recording the statement of the witness by the Investigating Officer and the witness not telling about the incident to the Investigating Officer casts a serious doubt about his being an eyewitness of the occurrence which may suggest that the Investigating Officer was deliberately marking time with a view to decide about shape to be given to the case and eyewitnesses to be introduced.- Contradictions between statements of witnesses on all material points.

Indian Evidence Act- Section3, Section 155- Credibility of Witnesses - Where there is an inordinate delay in recording the statement of the eye witness, the testimonies of the witnesses of fact are contradictory on material points and there is absence of corroboration of the ocular evidence from other evidence, the conviction of the accused cannot stand. **.

Shahid Khan Vs. St. of Raj. AIR 2016 SCC 1178

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ali Zamin, J.)

1. Heard Sri Rajendra Kumar Yadav, learned counsel for the appellant nos.1 and 2, Sri J.N Yadav, learned counsel for the appellant no.3 and learned A.G.A for the State.

2. This appeal has been preferred against the judgment and order dated 12.02.2002, passed in S.T. No.160 of 1991

(State vs. Devendra Singh and others) by which the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.31, Firozabad, has convicted and sentenced each of the appellants to undergo imprisonment for life under Section 302 I.P.C. and to pay a fine of Rs.10000/- in default of payment of fine to undergo six months simple imprisonment and to undergo five years rigorous imprisonment under Section 201 I.P.C. and to pay fine of Rs.5000/- each in default of payment of fine three months simple imprisonment.

3. Prosecution case, in brief, is that in the intervening night of 19/20.01.1990 Raghuvir Singh, father of the informant Bachan Singh, was sleeping as usually in the Machan situated in the field, some unknown persons committed his murder and threw the dead-body in a well by tying his hands and legs. The dead-body was taken out from the well with the help of the villagers. Injury marks were found on the dead body. On the basis of written report (Ex.Ka-1), Chik F.I.R (Ex.Ka-7) Case Crime No.23 of 1990, under Sections 302, 201 I.P.C, Police Station Nagla Khangar, District Firozabad, was registered on 20.1.1990 at 11.50 a.m. Investigation of the case was entrusted to S.O. V.S. Singh (DW-6). The Investigating Officer reached the spot, on his instruction, S.I. Sri Harish Chandra Sharma (PW-4) prepared inquest memo (Ex.Ka-12) and relevant papers. After completion of inquest memo dead-body was dispatched for postmortem.

4. PW-7 Dr. H.M Agarwal conducted postmortem on 21.01.1990 at 2.00 p.m. and prepared inquest report (Ex.Ka-16). According to postmortem, following injuries were found on the body of the deceased:-

"(1) Incised wound of 3 x 1 x bone deep on Rt. cheek, opp. the tragus of Rt. ear (2) Incised wound of 2 x 1-1/2 cm on mandible deep on Rt. side face (3) Incised wound of 4 x 3 cm muscle deep on the Rt. side neck below mandible (4) Incised wound of 3 x 1 cm muscle deep on Rt. side neck 2 cm away from Inj. no.3 (5) Incised wound of 5 x 2 cm x deep structure of Rt. (oesophagus, trachea, blood vessels & nerves) side neck with cut of underneath structure below the angle of mandible Rt. side (6) Incised wound of 3 x 1 cm x bone deep and the back of head just near mastoid bone (7) Incised wound of L shape present on the back of head 3 cm with depth up to scalp (8) Incised wound of 2cm x 2cm x bone deep present on the back of neck, 3cm down to injury no.7 and 2cm apart (9) contusion of 6cm x 4cm on the left cheek (10) Incised wound of 2 x 1-1/2 cm x muscle deep on back of left shoulder."

5. As per opinion of the doctor, death occurred near about 1-1/2 days before conducting postmortem and cause of death was found due to shock and excess bleeding as a result of antemortem injuries.

6. Investigating Officer prepared spot map (Ex.Ka-11) and took into his possession blood stained and plain earth from the place of incident and prepared inquest memo (Ex.Ka-12). He further took into his possession a quilt taken out from the well and prepared its recovery memo (Ex.Ka-13). A blood stained and earthen sickle was also taken into possession from the place of incident and recovery memo (Ex.Ka-14) was prepared.

7. After completing the investigation, Investigating Officer submitted the charge-sheet under Sections 302 and 201 I.P.C. against the accused-appellants, Devendra Singh, Ram Naresh @ Seth and Bhoora, before the Court of C.J.M. Firozabad, who committed accused persons to the Court of Session where Case Crime No.23 of 1990, under Sections 302, 201 I.P.C, Police Station Nagla Khangar, District Firozabad, was registered as Session Trial No.160 of 1991. It was made over to the Court of Additional Sessions Judge-II, Firozabad for trial, who framed charge against the accused persons under Sections 302 and 201 I.P.C.

8. To prove its case prosecution has produced seven witnesses; P.W.1 Bachan Singh is the informant, P.W.2 Agya Ram and P.W.3 Janak Singh are witness of fact, P.W.4 Harish Chandra Sharma prepared inquest of the dead-body, P.W.5 Prem Singh prepared chik and F.I.R. P.W-6 Vijendra Singh Investigating Officer, P.W.7 Dr. H.M. Agarwal conducted postmortem are the formal witnesses. After prosecution evidence, statements of the accused persons were recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C., in which, they pleaded that due to enmity the case proceeded against them. After recording statements of accused persons, Vinod Kumar has been examined as C.W.1.

9. Learned Additional Sessions Judge, Firozabad, after hearing learned counsel for the parties and perusal of the record, has passed the impugned judgment and order as disclosed in para 2 of the judgment.

10. Learned counsel for the appellants submits that there is no eyewitness of the incident. Prosecution has produced P.W.1 informant Bachan Singh and P.W.2 Agya Ram as a witness of fact. P.W.1 Bachan Singh has stated that Agya Ram told him after 39 days of the incident that murder of his father was committed by the accused persons whereas P.W.2 Agya Ram has stated that he told Bachan Singh after two months of the incident. Agya Ram was present in the village but his statement was not recorded promptly by the I.O., therefore, his testimony is not believable. P.W.3 Janak Singh has stated that Vinod Singh was Village Pradhan at the time of incident. He had gone to meet Vinod Singh and when he was sitting there, in his presence, accused Devendra Singh, Ram Naresh and Bhoora came and told that they have committed murder of Raghuvir Singh by sickle and tying him in a quilt and dhoti threw the body into a well. According to P.W.2 Agya Ram he saw committing murder of Raghuvir by accused persons. They had threatened him not to disclose to anyone about the incident but he has stated that an information had spread in the village before telling by him about the incident to P.W.1 Bachan Singh. The witness has also stated that the accused persons told to Vinod that since he is Village Pradhan he should save them as police consider his request. They also stated that if their goats had not entered into the field of Raghuvir Singh then this quarrel would not have happened and Raghuvir Singh would not have been murdered. Vinod has been examined as C.W.1 and he has denied knowledge as to who committed the murder of Raghuvir. He also submits that motive of the incident is alleged that goats of the accused persons had entered into the field of the deceased on account of which an altercation took place which was resolved also, thereafter incident was caused but entering of goats in the field is a matter of trivial nature, on the basis of which, causing the incident does not appear probable specially when matter was resolved. Therefore, he submits that impugned judgment and order is not sustainable and is liable to set aside.

11. Per contra, learned A.G.A. submits that as per evidence goats of the accused persons had entered into the field of deceased regarding which an altercation took place thereafter the deceased was murdered by the accused persons. Prosecution witness P.W.2 Agya Ram and informant P.W.1 Bachan Singh have proved it. Learned Additional Sessions Judge, considering the prosecution evidence, facts and circumstances of the case, has rightly convicted and sentenced the accused persons. No interference is required by this court.

12. According to the prosecution version, the deceased who was sleeping in the intervening night of 19/20-01-1990 in a machan situated in the field was murdered and information was given to this effect that some unknown persons had committed his murder and threw the dead-body into a well by tying his hands and legs. P.W.1 in his cross-examination at page 19 of the paper book has admitted that Agya Ram had told him after 39 days of the incident that Devendra Singh, Ram Naresh and Bhoora committed the murder of Raghuvir Singh, whereas P.W.2 Agya Ram has stated that he told to P.W.1 Bachan Singh after near about two months of the incident. On page 23 of the paper book he has also stated that due to fear he did not tell the informant for two months of the incident. Thus, there is contradiction in the statenment of P.W.1 Bachan Singh and P.W.2 Agya Ram about duration of disclosing information regarding the incident.

13. He has also stated that after 5-6 days of terahi a rumour spread in the village that the accused persons have committed murder of the deceased. He asked Agya Ram about it and Agya Ram consoling told him that there is a rumour in the village that accused appellants had committed murder of the deceased. Agya Ram weepingly told the informant not to disclose the information to anyone. P.W.1 Bachan Singh does not state from whom he heard the rumour about commission of the murder by accused persons after 5-6 days of the terahi. He also does not state that when he heard the rumour he informed to investigating officer. As such the testimony of P.W.1 Bachan Singh does not inspire confidence that P.W.2 Agya Ram told him about the commission of the murder of the deceased by the accused persons. P.W.2 Agya Ram has stated that the incident is at near about 12:00 to 1:00 hours of the night, on that day he was sleeping in his field and his uncle Raghuvir Singh was also sleeping in his field. He had seen in that night the accused appellant. When he flashed the torch he saw that Ram Naresh and Bhoora had pressed his uncle Raghuvir by lathi and Devendra Singh was cutting him with a sickle. Hands and legs of his uncle Raghuvir were tied by his dhoti. He has also stated that he asked the accused persons why they are doing so then the accused persons threatened that if you tell about the incident to anyone then he will also be killed in the same manner and they will also kill his family members. Thereafter, the accused persons threw the dead-body of Raghuvir in the well and put the quilt over him. The accused persons also left the sickle there which was found in the morning. He has also stated that before the incident at about 12:00 hours of the day the accused persons were grazing goats which entered into the field of Raghuvir and Raghuvir had forbidden them whereupon an altercation took place; he intervened in the matter and due to that reason the accused persons committed murder of his uncle Raghuvir. In cross-examination, he has stated that he told the Investigating Officer that he had casually slept in his field in that night. He has also stated that he showed his torch to the Investigating Officer. He has further stated that before he could tell anything to Bachan Singh a rumour had spread in the village that the accused persons had committed murder of the deceased. According to him he was the only eye witness of the incident, therefore, without his telling anybody no rumour could have spread. Since he is the nephew of the deceased therefore his conduct in keeping mum for two months does not appear natural. He has also stated that since the rumour had spread in the village that is why he told about the incident to Udai Singh and Bachan Singh sons of Raghuvir Singh, in that case, it is also possible that actually he did not see the incident and on the basis of rumour he told P.W.1 Bachan Singh about the murder.

14. He has admitted that 'daroga' has recorded his statement after two months of the incident. Investigating Officer P.W.6 Vijender Singh has also stated that on 20.3.1990 he recorded the statement of Agya Ram Singh, although he has stated that before 20.3.1990 he did not meet Agya Ram but he has stated that after dispatching the dead body he tried much to open the case by reading and involving informer, as per statement of P.W.2 Agya Ram he was residing in the village at the time of incident. If the witness Agya Ram was residing in the village at the time of the incident then recording his statement after two months from the date of incident and the witness not telling about the same to the Investigating Officer assumes importance. The delay in recording the statement of this witness by the Investigating Officer and the witness not telling about the incident to the Investigating Officer also casts a serious doubt about his being an eyewitness of the occurrence which may suggest that the Investigating Officer was deliberately marking time with a view to decide about shape to be given to the case and eyewitnesses to be introduced. It will be profitable to refer the case of Shahid Khan vs. State of Rajasthan AIR 2016 SCC 1178 in which Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as under :-

"The statements of PW 25 Mirza Majid Beg and PW 24 Mohamed Shakir were recorded after 3 days of the occurrence. No explanation is forthcoming as to why they are not examined for 3 days. It is also not known as to how the police came to know that these witnesses saw the occurrence. The delay in recording the statements casts a serious doubt about their being eye-witnesses to the occurrence. It may suggest that the investigating officer was deliberately marking time with a view to decide about the shape to be given to the case and the eye-witnesses to be introduced."

15. P.W.2 Agya Ram has also stated that before the incident at about 12:00 hours the accused persons were grazing goats which entered into the field of deceased Raghuvir Singh and Raghuvir had told the accused not to graze goats in his field whereupon an altercation took place, he intervened and resolved it that is why the accused persons committed murder of Raghuvir. In cross-examination, he has stated that before the incident he did not tell anyone about grazing of the goats. He also did not tell to the daroga about grazing of the goats which indicates that the story of grazing goats by accused persons and entering of their goats into the field of deceased Raghuvir Singh is subsequently developed and first time disclosed before the court which actually did not exist, therefore, the story of grazing goats by the accused persons and entering of their goats into the field of deceased Raghuvir Singh and thereafter taking place of altercation between them is neither believable nor reliable. Further more, for the sake of argument, if it happened so and the matter was resolved by the witness Agya Ram, then this issue was not of such a grave nature that accused persons would commit murder of deceased Raghuvir Singh particularly when no reliable evidence has been brought on record to draw such an inference.

16. According to P.W.3 Janak Singh accused persons confessed before Vinod Singh Pradhan of the Village that they committed murder of the deceased Raghuvir Singh but C.W.1 Vinod has denied knowlege about the persons who committed the murder of the deceased-Raghuvir. In cross-examination by Additional District Government Counsel, he has specifically stated that he did not state before the Investigation Officer that many days before Devendra, Ram Naresh and Bhoora of his village came to him and said that you are Pradhan of the village and a wrong has been committed by them and save them they will be grateful to him. He has also stated that the accused persons did not tell him that their goats had entered into the field of Raghuvir Singh that is why in the intervening night of 19/20-01-1990 accused persons committed his murder by tying his hands and legs and threw the body into a well. Thus, the statement of P.W.3 Janak Singh and C.W.1 Vinod Kumar are contrary to each other. Therefore, statement of P.W.3 Janak Singh does not inspire confidence.

17. P.W.2 Agya Ram has stated that he had showed the torch to the Investigating Officer by which he had seen the accused persons in the intervening night of the incident but P.W.6 Investigating Officer on page 37 of the paper book has stated that witness Agya Ram neither showed any torch to him nor he prepared any memo. Thus, on the point of showing torch to the Investigating Officer by which witness Agya Ram had seen the accused persons is also not consistent but contrary to each other. Therefore, witnessing of the incident by this witness in the light of torch is also doubtful.

18. Investigating Officer has stated that Agya Ram told him that he casually slept in his field in the night, whereas P.W.2 Agya Ram has stated that he used to sleep in the field, thus, on the point of sleeping in the field of this witness, prosecution evidence is also contradictory. In view of statement of Investigating Officer (P.W.6) his presence at the time of incident further creates doubt.

19. In view of the above discussion, we come to a conclusion that conduct of P.W.2 Agya Ram keeping mum for a period of two months, despite being nephew of deceased, is not natural. Story of grazing goats by accused persons and entering of the goats into the field of deceased and they had an altercation with the deceased also does not inspire confidence.

20. On a conspectus of facts and circumstances of the case and close scrutiny of the evidences available on record, as discussed above, we find that the prosecution has failed to prove its case. Accordingly, the impugned judgment and order is not sustainable.

21. The appeal is, therefore, allowed. The impugned judgment and order mentioned above convicting and sentencing the appellants is set aside. Appellants are acquitted of the charges u/s 302 and 201

IPC. Appellants are on bail. Their bail bonds are discharged. Each appellant shall file personal bond and two sureties in accordance with Section 437(A) Cr.P.C. to the satisfaction of the court concerned.

22. Office is directed to communicate this order to the court concerned forthwith and send back the record

A. Criminal law-Indian Penal Code,1860 - Section 149, Section 302, Section 304 Part 1 - Indian Evidence Act- Section 3, Section 27 - Code of Criminal Procedure - Section 154, 155 - A detailed description and sequence of incident constituting the offence is not at all required to be mentioned in the FIR- Section 174- For the purpose of holding the inquest it is neither necessary nor obligatory on the part of the Investigating Officer to investigate into or ascertain who were the persons responsible for the death - Any omission on the part of the investigating officer cannot go against the prosecution - Non recording of disclosure statement and non-examination of public witness as regards to the recovery would be of no consequence - Statement of Police Officer can be relied upon and even form basis of conviction when it is reliable, trustworthy and preferably corroborated by other evidence on record - Affidavits have got no evidentiary value as the affidavits are not included in the definition of "evidence" in S. 3 of the Evidence Act - Seizure memo need not be attested in all cases by any independent witness and the evidence of police officer regarding recovery at the instance of the accused should ordinarily be believed -The reason for a chance witness being present on the spot and his testimony requires close scrutiny-Minor contradictions, inconsistencies, embellishments or improvements on trivial matters which do not affect the core of the prosecution case, should not be made a ground on which the evidence can be rejected in its entirety-The evidence of the injured witness is put at a very higher footing and without any substantial reason the statement of such injured witnesses cannot be disbelieved- Statements of the interested witnesses can be safely relied upon by the court when their statements find corroboration by other evidence - The Court can convict an accused on statement of sole witness even if he is relative of the deceased and non examination of independent witness would not be fatal to the case of prosecution - It is not the quantity, rather quality of the evidence which is decisive in arriving at the right conclusion-The allegation of exhortation attributed to all the seven accused persons in a form of chorus is highly improbable in the ordinary course - Not possible for all the seven accused persons to utter the same words simultaneously - Exhortation is considered to be a very weak evidence, unless coupled with some overt act, to show involvement in commission of crime- Both the accused gave only one blow and did not repeat the assault further- Nor they chased any other person of complainant side nor caused injury to them. Their act attracts the offence of culpable homicide not amounting to murder punishable under section 304 Part I instead of the offence of murder punishable under section 302 IPC.

Held- Cr.Pc, 1973- Section 154- FIR is not an encyclopedia- The purpose of FIR is to give information about commission of offence and it is not necessary to give every minute detail.

Criminal law-Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973- Section 174- Inquest Report is not substantive evidence- It is neither necessary nor obligatory on the part of the Investigating Officer to investigate into or ascertain as to who were the persons responsible for the death in the inquest report.

Criminal law-Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973- Section 155- Any omission on the part of the investigating officer cannot go against the prosecution. If the investigating officer has made omissions in the interest of justice, such acts or omission of the investigating officer should not be taken in favour of the accused.

Evidence Law-Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 27- Recovery- When the police personnel are the witness of the recovery made upon the disclosure of the accused then the testimony of police personnel should be treated in the same manner as testimony of any other witness. Statement of Police Officer can be relied upon and may even form the basis of conviction when it is reliable, trustworthy and preferably corroborated by other evidence on record and non- recording of statements of independent witnesses would be of no consequence.

Evidence law-Indian Evidence Act, Section 134- It is the quality of evidence and not the quantity that is important. The Court can convict an accused on statement of sole witness even if he is relative of the deceased and non examination of independent witness would not be fatal to the case of prosecution.

Criminal law-Indian Penal Code- Section 141- Section 149- Unlawful Assembly- Proof of common object is required for conviction with the help of Section 149 IPC. and mere presence will not imply that the accused shared common object and formed unlawful assembly- Three appellants alleged to have exhorted in chorus without doing any covert act, hence it cannot be established that they all constituted an unlawful assembly and shared the common object to commit the offence - Exhortation is considered to be a very week (sic) evidence, unless coupled with some overt act, to show involvement in commission of crime.

Criminal Law- Indian Penal Code, 1860- Section 304 Part II- For the application of Exception 4 to Section 300 IPC, it is not sufficient to show that there was a sudden quarrel and there was no premeditation. It must further be shown that the offender has not taken undue advantage or acted in a cruel or unusual manner. The expression "undue advantage" as used in the provision means "unfair advantage". No evidence that the accused persons came prepared with any planning of committing offence -The offence has been committed by axe and spade which are normal agricultural tools and no unfair advantage was taken by the accused during the incident.No repetition of assault after giving one blow, nor they chased any other person of complainant side nor caused injury to them.

Criminal Appeal no. 1164 of 2000 is allowed. The conviction and sentence of accused-appellants for the offence under section 302/149, 147, 323/149 IPC is set aside and they are acquitted.

Criminal Appeal no. 1503 of 2000 is partly allowed. The conviction and sentence of accused-appellants for the offence under section 302/149 IPC is converted into that of section 304 Part I IPC and consequently, their sentence of life imprisonment is reduced to 12 years rigorous imprisonment and fifty thousand rupees fine each and in default, two years additional imprisonment.(Para 20, 24, 27, 32,39,

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pradeep Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Shri Dileep Kumar, learned Senior Advocate for the accused-appellant, Sri Ajit Ray, learned AGA for the State and Shri G.S. Chauhan, learned counsel for the complainant.

2. These two criminal appeals have been filed by the appellants namely Ram Charan, Ram Singh, Amar Singh, Siyaram, Achchhey Lal and Mahendra against the impugned judgment and order dated 17.5.2000 passed by Sessions Judge, Jhansi in Sessions Trial No.287 of 1996, under Sections 147, 148, 149, 302, 323, 504 IPC, Police Station Todi Fatehpur, District Jhansi, by which the accused appellants have been convicted and sentenced for life imprisonment for the offence under Section 302/149 IPC, for two years RI for the offence under Section 148 IPC to accused-appellants namely Ram Charan, Achchhey Lal, Mahendra and Siyaram, for one year imprisonment to accused-appellants namely Ram Singh and Amar Singh for the offence under Section 147 IPC and six months RI under Section 323/149 IPC to all the accused-appellants. The learned trial court has directed that all the sentences shall run concurrently.

3. Brief facts of this case is that on 31.3.1996, at about 11:00 AM, a criminal incident took place in village Semri, Police Station Todi Fatehpur about which the first information report was lodged on same day at 13:05 PM by Vijay Singh by giving written report to the police. Accordingly, at the time of incident, the informant Vijay Singh, his father Bhairav Yadav, his wife Smt. Sudama Devi, his brother Sripat Smt. Sumitra (wife of Sripat) and Badam Singh of the village had gone to load the log of wheat on their field. His mother was grazing the buffaloes on the mend (divider) of wheat field of the informant. On the adjoining field of accused Achhey Lal of his village, accused Achchhey Lal, Ram Charan, Ram Singh, Amar Singh, Siyaram, Sahab Singh and accused Mahendra Singh were cutting crops. Seeing the mother of the informant grazing the buffaloes, the accused persons with lathi (bamboo stick), farsa (spade) and axe in their hands came together on the mend of the field and started abusing saying that how dare she had left the animals to graze in their field, whereupon the parents of the informant said that half of the mend belonged to them and, therefore, their buffaloes would continue grazing. Because of this, all the accused cried out to kill them and not to let them alive and thereupon accused Achchhey Lal hit his father by his axe on his head who cried and fell down. The brother of the informant namely Sripat reached near the mend and he tried to stop them, whereupon accused Ramcharan and Mahendra Singh hit him by their farsa on his head and he also fell down and died. The accused Sahab Singh assaulted his wife by lathi and she sustained injuries on her back. The complainant side challenged them and persons present in adjoining filed including Bhagwan Das, who was also grazing his animals, came and saw the incident. The father of the informant was seriously injured and when he was being taken to police station on a bullock-cart, on the bank of Patrai river, he also died. The bullock-cart and dead body of the father was left there with Badam Singh. The dead body of his brother was lying in the field. On this written report the offence was registered against the accused persons under Sections 147, 148, 149, 302, 323, 504 IPC and chik FIR was prepared.

4. The incident was seen by the witnesses Badam Singh and Bhagwan Das. Injured Smt. Sudama Devi was sent for medical examination. The case was investigated by police, statements of the witnesses were recorded, inquest report of both the dead bodies was prepared and, along with relevant papers, the dead body was sent for post-mortem. From the place of occurrence, blood stained earth and plain earth was picked up and memo was prepared from the place where deceased Bhairo was assaulted and also from the place where deceased Sripat was assaulted. A search was conducted of the house of the accused persons in order to recover the weapon used in the commission of the offence. Subsequently, accused Achchey Lal, Mahendra and Ram Charan surrendered and they were taken on police remand and in their statements they confessed their guilt and also stated that the axe and farsa by which the crime was committed, they have concealed in the hedges of Simari forest. On the pointing of the accused persons, the axe and farsa were recovered and three recovery memo were prepared separately for each farsa and axe. The axe and farsa were stained by blood and all the recovered items including the clothes of the deceased persons were sent for forensic examination.

5. The Investigating Officer prepared the site map of the place of occurrence and also prepared site map of the place from where the weapon of assault, axe and farsa, were recovered, After completing the investigation, charge sheet was submitted by the Investigating Officer against seven accused persons. The case of accused Saheb Singh was separated, who was sent to Juvenile Justice Board as he was found to be juvenile.

6. The accused persons pleaded not guilty to the charges framed against them under section 147,148,302/149 and 323/149 IPC by the Court and claimed trial.

7. Six witnesses were examined in support of the prosecution case. PW-1 Dr. J.K. Gupta has proved the post-mortem reports as Ext. Ka-1 and Ext. Ka-2. PW-2 Head Constable Sobaran Singh has proved chik FIR Ext. Ka-3, GD report no.14 Ext. Ka-4, GD no.15, Ext. Ka-5, injury letter of Smt. Sudama Devi Ext. Ka-6, GD Report no.26 Ext. Ka-7, GD No.10 Ext. Ka-8, GD report Ext. K-9 and G.D. No. 9 Ext. Ka-10. PW-3 Vijay Singh (eye-witness and informant) has proved written report Ext. Ka-11 and the cloths of both the deceased persons as Material Ext.-1 to Ext.-6. PW-4 Badam Singh is eye-witness and has also proved inquest Ext. Ka-12. PW-5 Sudama Devi is eye-witness. PW-6 Premlal, SO has investigated the case and has proved injury letter of Sudama Devi Ext. Ka-13, Ext. Ka-14 inquest report Ext. Ka-12, Form No.13, photo of dead body, letter to CMO was also prepared by him Ext. Ka-15 to Ext. Ka-17, inquest report of Sripat Ext. Ka-18 and Form No.13, photo dead body, letter to CMO Ext. Ka-19 to Ext. Ka-21, site map of place of occurrence Ext. Ka-22, memo of blood stained and plain earth Ext. Ka-23 and Ext. Ka-24 blood stained earth and plain earth Material Ext.-7 to Ext.-10, search memo Ext. Ka-25, memo of blood stained axe Ext. Ka-26, recovered axe Material Ext. 11, memo of blood stained farsa Ext. Ka-27, recovered farsa Material Ext.-12, memo of another blood stained farsa Ext. Ka-28, recovered farsa Material Ex.-13, site plan from where the weapons were recovered Ext. Ka-29 to Ext. Ka-3i, GD report Ext. Ka-9 and charge sheet Ext. Ka-32. The statements of the accused persons were recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. who did not give any evidence in defence. After hearing the prosecution and defence, learned trial court has passed impugned judgement and has sentenced the accused persons.

8. Aggrieved by the impugned judgement, these two appeals have been filed challenging the same to be illegal on the ground that the conviction and sentence is against the weight of evidence on record, is contrary to law and the sentence awarded is too severe.

9. The learned Senior Advocate Shri Dilip Kumar for the accused-appellant has submitted that the accused persons were falsely implicated. The two deceased persons have been found to have sustained one injury each and seven accused persons have been implicated and all the six persons tried by the learned trial court have been convicted for the offence of murder. Prosecution has examined only related and highly interested witnesses on whom no reliance should have been placed. Not only that the presence of eyewitnesses is doubtful, there is contradiction, improvement and discrepancy in their statement.

10. On the other hand, the learned AGA and the learned counsel of the complainant have submitted that on the basis of evidence on record and finding that the offence of murder was committed by the unlawful assembly constituted by the accused persons, the learned trial court has rightly convicted and sentenced the accused persons.

11. PW-1 Dr. J.K. Gupta conducted post-mortem of both the dead bodies. He has stated that on 1.4.1996 he was posted in CHC, Mau Ranipur as medical officer. The dead body of deceased Bhairo, aged about 65 years, was brought by constable Mahadev Prasad and home-guard Ram Prasad of Police Station Todi Fatehpur in sealed condition along with relevant papers at 11:45 AM and he conducted post-mortem at about 12:00 PM. The deceased was of average height. Rigor mortis was present in the body, eyes were closed and it was greenish on the right side of stomach. Following anti-mortem injuries were found-

Internal Examination

Right parietal bone was found broken from front and back. Frontal and occipital bones were fractured. The brain membrane below the wound was torn. The brain was torn on the right side. The heart was vacant and 100 ml semi digested food was found in the stomach. In the large and small intestine, faecal matters found. The liver, spleen and kidney were found congested. According to the doctor, the deceased must have died due to coma because of anti-mortem head injuries and must have died one day before. The injury was possible by axe and it was possible that injury must have been caused on 31.3.1996 at about 11:00 AM. The injury was sufficient to caused death.

12. PW-1 has stated that on the same day, at about 1:30 PM, the dead body of deceased Sripat was also brought by constable Ganga Prasad Shukla in sealed condition and post-mortem was conducted by him. In the external examination, it was found that the deceased was of average height, mouth closed, right eye opened whereas left eye was closed. The rigor-mortis was present in the whole body. In the lower side of stomach, it was greenish; semen was coming out. Following ante-mortem injury was found-

Internal Examination

The parietal left bone and left side of frontal bone cut.; the brain membrane cut; left brain membrane was torn; in both large and small intestine, faecal matters found; the heart was empty; stomach was empty. Doctor has stated that the deceased must have died due to shock because of ante-mortem injury and he must have died one day before. He has also stated that the injury was possible to have been caused on 31.3.1996 at about 11:00 AM. The instant death after sustaining injury was possible.

13. PW-2 Head Constable Sobaran Singh has stated that on 31.3.1996 he was posted as head Muharir in Police Station Todi Fatehpur. The informant Vijay Singh came in the afternoon at 1:05 PM with his injured wife and gave the written report about the incident on the basis of which the offence was registered and chik FIR was prepared, an entry thereof was made in GD of the same day, a carbon copy thereof is on record. He has further stated that injured Smt. Sudama Devi was sent for medical with injury letter written by constable Ravindra Singh before him. A special report was sent at 2:15 PM and entry was made in GD. The witness has stated that on 1.4.1996, constable Ganga Prasad, constable Mahadev and home guard Ram Prasad and Sultan Singh returned with two bundles of clothes with papers and two envelops containing post-mortem report of Bhairo and Sripat and entry in GD to that effect was made on the same day. The witness has also stated that SO Ram Lal, on 2.4.1996, when returned to police station, gave four containers of blood stained and plain earth relating to this offence about which an entry in the GD was made. On 12.4.1996, at 12:20 PM, SO Premlal came to the police station along with three accused persons Achchey Lal, Ram Charan and Mahendra Singh with one axe and two farsa which were sealed and entry thereof was made in GD on the same day. The witness has stated that the recovered articles and clothes of deceased persons were sent to forensic laboratory on 25.4.1996 for chemical examination and entry to that effect was made in GD.

14. PW-3 Vijay Singh (informant) has stated that his ancestral was Natthu and had two sons namely Paragi and Vrishbhan. Paragi had three sons, Bhairo, Pyarelal and Gulab. Deceased Sripat was his real brother. Accused Achchey Lal, Ram Charan and Ram Singh are sons of Vrishbhan. Accused Mahendra is son of Ram Singh and accused Amar Singh, Sahab Singh and Siya Ram are sons of Ram Charan. The witness has stated that it was two years eight months before when he had gone to his field situated in Semri Ahiran for loading the wheat with his wife Smt. Sudama Devi, his brother Sripat, his Bhabhi Saumitra Devi, his mother Hirabai and his father Bhairo. His father was already there. Badam Singh of the village also went with them. They were collecting and loading the wheat on bullock-cart. His mother Hirabai was grazing buffaloes. The accused persons Acchey Lal, Ram Charan, Ram Singh, Mahendra Singh, Amar Singh, Siyaram and Sahab Singh were cutting their wheat crops in their field in their adjoining field. The field of informant and accused was divided by a mend where his mother was grazing buffaloes. The accused Achchey Lal used abusive language against his mother and said why she has left the buffaloes at their mend, his father and mother said that half of the mend belonged to them and, therefore, buffaloes would graze there. It was 11:00 AM at that time and accused Achchey Lal, Ram Singh, Siyaram came with axe and accused Ram Charan and Mahendra came with farsa and accused Amar Singh and Sahab Singh came with lathi and said kill them and not let them alive, whereupon accused Achchey Lal hit on the head of his father by axe who fell on the ground and when his brother Sripat ran towards his father, accused Ram Charan hit him by farsa, which missed. Accused Mahendra, thereafter, hit by farsa on the head of Sripat who fell on the ground and died. The witness has stated that he sent his wife Sudama to save them. She was hit by accused Sahab Singh by lathi. Badam Singh was present there and Bhagwan Das of the village was also present who was grazing his animals. They ran towards them whereupon the accused persons fled away towards forest. The witness has further stated that the blood of Sripat fell on the ground and on his clothes, Similarly blood also poured on the clothes of his father. The clothes of both the deceased persons have been proved by the witness as material Ext.-1 to Ext.-6. He, his wife and Badam Singh when going to police station on bullock-cart carrying his injured father, his father died on the way on the bank of Pathrai river. He got a written report scribed by Badam Singh and after being read over to him, he put his thumb impression on the report and he and his wife leaving the dead body of father there, went to police station and gave the written report to the police. On being asked by the Police Inspector, he told him that the dead body of his father was lying on the bank of Pathrai river. The Police Inspector went with him there.

15. PW-4 Badam Singh is the eye witness and scriber of the written report. He has stated that he was on the field of Bhairo and Sripat three years before when the incident took place. At that time, the crop was being loaded on the bullock-cart. He was taken to the field by Sripat. It was 10-11 AM Vijay Singh, Smt. Sudama, Smt. Sumitra, mother of Sripat, Sripat and his father Bhairo were loading the wheat and mother of Sripat was grazing the buffaloes on the mend of the field of Bhairo and accused Achchey Lal. He knew accused Achchey Lal, Ram Charan, Ram Singh, Mahendra Singh and Amar Singh (present in Court). The witness has stated that at the time of incident, the accused persons were cutting wheat crops. Using abusive language, they came to the mother of Vijay Singh and said to take away the buffaloes. Accused Achchey Lal and Siyaram were carrying axe whereas accused Mahendra and Ram Charan were carrying farsa and accused Sahab Singh and Amar were carrying lathi in their hand. When this was going on, Bhairo also reached on the mend. Accused Achchey Lal hit Bhairo by his axe on his head who got injured and Ram Charan hit Sripat by pharsa, which missed. Thereafter, accused Mahendra Singh hit Sripat by his farsa on the head of Sripat who died on spot. Accused Sahab Singh hit Sudama by his lathi. Thereafter, accused persons ran away from there. Bhairo was alive and when he was being taken by Vijay Singh and Sudama on bullock-cart to police station Todi Fatehpur, on the bank of Pathrai river, he also died. The witness has stated that Vijay Singh dictated the written report to him and when the report was written he put his thumb impression on it. He stayed there and Vijay Singh and his wife Sudama went to police station and Vijay Singh and Police Inspector came there and the police inspector prepared inquest report on which he also signed, which is Ext. K-12.

16. PW-5 Sudama Devi has stated that the incident took place about three years and three months before at about 11:00 AM when she was collecting the wheat in her field and the same was being loaded on bullock-cart by her, Sripat, Vijay Singh, Sumitra, Bhairo and Badam Singh. Her mother-in-law Hirabai was grazing buffaloes. Accused persons Achchey Lal, Ram Charan, Ram Singh, Sahab Singh, Mahendra Singh and Amar Singh were cutting the crops in their adjoining field. Accused Achchey Lal and Ram Singh came with axe and accused Ram Charan and Mahendra came with pharsa whereas accused Sahab Singh and Amar Singh came with lathi and accused Achchey Lal said to her mother-in-law why she was grazing buffaloes on their mend and why she had left their animals in their field. Her mother-in-law, father-in-law and her husband said that half of the mend belonged to them and her buffaloes would graze there. All the accused persons cried to kill them and not to spare them alive. Accused Achchey Lal hit her father-in-law Bhairao by his axe on the head and he fell on the ground and his elder brother-in-law Sripat when checked him, accused Ram Charan hit by farsa on him but Sripat escaped. Thereafter, accused Mahendra Singh hit by his farsa and caused injury on his head who fell down and died on spot. She has stated that when she reached there, accused Sahab Singh also hit her by lathi and she sustained injury on her back for which she was medically examined.

17. PW-6 SO Premlal has stated that on 31.3.1996 he was posted at police station Todi Fatehpur and in his presence Crime No. 45 of 1996 was registered. He obtained a copy of Chik FIR and GD and copied the same in case diary. He took the statement of head constable Sobaran Singh and informant Vijay Singh. Smt. Sudama Devi was sent with a constable for medical treatment to hospital with injury letter. He went to the bank of Pathrai river with force where the dead body of Bhairo was lying. The inquest witnesses were appointed and inquest report was prepared. The other papers such as Form No.13, photo of dead body, letter to CMO were also prepared by him. The dead body was sealed on spot and was delivered to constable Mahadev and home guard Ram Prasad for post-mortem. Thereafter, he came to village Semri on the field of informant where the dead body of Sripat was lying on the ground. The inquest report and other papers were prepared. The witness has further stated that he inspected the place of occurrence on the identification of the informant and witnesses and prepared site map. He picked up the blood stained and plain earth from the place of occurrence and prepared the memo thereof in the presence of the witnesses. He has also stated that in respect of deceased Bhairo, the blood stained and plain earth was separately sealed in presence of witnesses and memo was prepared. He recorded the statement of the witnesses of inquest report, the witness of memo and eye witness Badam Singh and Bhagwan Das and indulged in search of accused persons in their house. Subsequently, with the permission of the Court, on 6.4.1996, he recorded the statement of the accused persons. Accused Achchey Lal, Ram Charan and Mahendra confessed and stated that they could get recovered the weapons used for murder. Therefore, they were taken on police custody remand and before the witnesses on 12.4.1996 at 8:00 AM in the morning, on their pointing, from the hedges of Semri forest, the blood stained axe was recovered and was sealed and memo was prepared. On the same day, at 9:00 AM, on the pointing of accused Ram Charan, in the presence of witnesses, the blood stained farsa used for causing death was recovered and memo was prepared. On the same day at 11:00 AM, on the pointing of accused Mahendra, before the witnesses, another blood stained farsa was recovered from the hedges about which the memo was prepared. He has further stated that he prepared the site map from where the weapons were recovered. Thereafter, on 19.6.1999, he recorded the statement of Smt. Sudama. He deposited the weapons used in murder and the accused persons in the police station and entry in the GD was made. The weapons were duly sealed. He has further stated that the recovered articles were sent to Forensic Science Laboratory for medical examination on 26.4.1996. He filed charge sheet on 20.4.1996.

18. The learned Senior Advocate for the accused-appellant has submitted that the FIR has been ante time and it was lodged after legal advice and consultation with the police as in the facts and circumstances of the case, it was not possible to lodge FIR at the time it has been shown to be lodged. In fact, the deceased persons were sleeping on their field in the night and were killed by some unknown persons about which the informant side could know only on the next day. The discharge of semen by Sripat at the time of post-mortem also indicates this fact. In order to falsely implicate the accused persons, a false story was created and FIR was lodged.

19. We find that the incident took place on 31.3.1996 at about 11 AM and FIR has been lodged on the same day at about 13.05 PM. The distance of police station from the place of occurrence is about 7 km. In his cross-examination, the informant has stated that at about 12 in the noon, he, his wife and witness Badam Singh with injured Bhairo started for police station and by the time, they reached to Pathrai river, Bhairo died. Then, PW-4 Badam Singh wrote the written report on the dictation of informant on a plain paper which was brought by the informant from a nearby shop situated at the bus stand and thereafter, he brought pad and put thumb impression. Leaving Badam Singh there with the dead body, the informant and his wife Sudama went to the police to lodge FIR, which was just 1 km ahead from that place. As such, it cannot be said that it was not possible to reach the Police Station and lodge the report. It has been submitted that after chick FIR being prepared, it was necessary for the police to get the thumb impression of the informant which was not taken. Since the FIR has been registered on the basis of written report and the same has been copied by the chick writer, this omission is insignificant and meaningless. PW-2 HCP Sobaran Singh has stated that the informant with his wife had come to lodge FIR on 31.3.1996 at 1.05 PM and gave a written report on the basis of which he registered offence and prepared chick in his handwriting and signature and made an entry thereof in the GD. He has also stated that a special report was sent on the same day at about 2.15 PM through CP Manfool Singh and the entry thereof was made in the GD. As such, we do not find any delay in lodging FIR nor there is any reason to accept the argument of defence that the FIR was ante time.

20. It has been pointed out that certain facts which have been stated by informant in his statement such as, the assault of accused got missed; deceased Bhairo met on the way etc are not mentioned in the FIR. we do not find it at all necessary that all the facts are required to be mentioned in the FIR. The purpose of FIR is to give information about commission of offence and it is not necessary to give every minute detail. In Jarnail Singh v State of Punjab, 2009 (6) Supreme 526, Bhagwan Jagannath Markad v State of Maharashtra, (2016) 10 SCC 537 and Ramji Singh v State of UP, 2019 (4) Crimes 585 (SC), it has been held that the FIR is not the encyclopedia of all the facts relating to crime. The only requirement is that at the time of lodging FIR, the informant should state all those facts which normally strike to mind and help in assessing the gravity of the crime or identity of the culprit briefly. In our view, a detail description and sequence of incident constituting the offence is not at all required to be mentioned in the FIR. Since the chick FIR was scribed soon after the receipt of the written statement, therefore, neither the time mentioned nor the nature of improvement indicated above is a substantive improvement with deliberation in order to add falsity. Moreover, the alleged improvement does not cause any adverse impact on the defence and as such, in view of the law laid down in Golla Pullanna Vs. State of AP, AIR 1996 SC 2727, it cannot be given any importance.

21. The inquest report of the dead body of Bhairo was prepared on 31.3.1996 by SO Prem Lal who reached to Patharai river at 2.15 PM and completed inquest at 3.45 PM by appointing five witnesses as panch namely, Badama Singh, Raghuveer Singh, Lalloo, Shobha Ram and Veer Singh. The dead body was lying on bullock-cart and Badam Singh, some people of the village of deceased and of around were present there. The dead body was inspected. The deceased was of average hight, slim and aged about 65 years. On the right side of head, blood clotted incised wound was found. In the opinion of witnesses and SO, the death must have occurred because of head injury. The officer prepared other papers necessary for sending the dead body for post-mortem, sealed the dead body and sent for post-mortem.

22. On the same day, at 4.15 PM, SO Prem Lal reached to the field where the incident took place and conducted inquest of dead body of Sripat which was completed at 5.45 and for which witnesses as panch were appointed namely, Ramswaroop, Lala Ram, Raghuveer Singh, Naipal Singh and Vijay Singh (informant & eyewitness). The dead body was lying on the place of occurrence. Family members and people of locality were present. The deceased was of average hight and strong built and of about 35 years in age. On inspection, a contusion on the left eye and blood clotted incised wound from the root of nose to the mid of scalp was found and the SO and the witnesses were of the view that death was resulted because of the head injury. The dead body was sealed, necessary papers were prepared and dead body was sent for post-mortem.

23. The submission of the learned counsel for the accused-appellants is that on the inquest report of Bhairo, there is over writing on the first page on '15.45 PM' and it can be easily read that earlier it was 14.45 PM and similarly 30.3.1996 has been over written as 31.3.1996. It shows that at the time of inquest, FIR was not in existence as it was not possible for police to reach at the place within 30 minutes from the time of FIR as SO Premlal has himself stated that it took 10 to 15 minutes in copying FIR and making entry in GD and that much of time was also consumed in taking statement of informant and head constable. It has been also pointed out that in none of the inquest report, weapon used in the commission of the offence has been mentioned for the reason that it was not known at that time what weapon was used. It also shows that FIR was not in existence till then.

24. On both the points PW-6 SO Prem Lal has been put question during cross-examination and he has given convincing reply. He has stated that it was a writing error and the same was corrected by him. He, however, could not reply to the question why he did not put initial after correction. But, from the perusal of the inquest report of Bhairo, and considering that the completion of inquest on the first page has been written to be 15.45 PM and there is no over writing on it, we find that the said over writing is simply a correction and on that basis, it is too imaginary to say that the FIR was not in existence. So far as the next limb of argument is concerned, it is settled law that the purpose of inquest is not to incorporate the minute details about the weapons used or other details. The purpose of preparing an inquest report is to investigate into and draw up a report of the apparent cause of death, describing such wounds as may be found on the body of the deceased and stating in what manner, or by what weapon or instrument, if any, such wounds appear to have been inflicted. In other words, for the purpose of holding the inquest it is neither necessary nor obligatory on the part of the Investigating Officer to investigate into or ascertain who were the persons responsible for the death.

25. In George v State of Kerala, AIR 1998 SC 1376 2007, referring the judgement in Podda Narayana v State of AP, AIR 1975 SC 1252, the Supreme Court held that the object of inquest proceedings is merely to ascertain whether a person died under suspicious circumstances or met with an unnatural death and, if so, what was its apparent cause. The question regarding the details how the deceased was assaulted or who assaulted him or under what circumstances he was assaulted is foreign to the ambit and scope of such proceedings. Such omissions in the inquest report are not sufficient to put the prosecution out of Court.

26. Similarly, in Radha Mohan Singh alias Lal Saheb v State of UP, 2006 (54) ACC 862 (SC), it has been held that the investigation for the purpose of inquest is limited in scope and is confined to ascertainment of apparent cause of death. It is concerned with discovering whether in a given case the death was accidental, suicidal or homicidal or caused by animal, and in what manner or by what weapon or instrument the injuries on the body appear to have been inflicted. Details of overt acts need not be recorded in inquest report. Question regarding details as to how the deceased was assaulted or who assaulted him or under what circumstances he was assaulted or who were the witnesses of the assault is foreign to the ambit and scope of proceedings u/s 174 CrPC. There is no requirement in law to mention details of FIR, names of accused or the names of eye-witnesses or the gist of their statements in inquest report, nor is the said report required to be signed by any eye witness.

27. Further, in Brahma Swaroop v State of UP, AIR 2011 SC 280, the Court has reiterated that inquest report is not substantive evidence. But it may be utilized for contradicting witnesses of inquest. Any omission to mention crime number, names of accused penal provisions under which offences have been committed are not fatal to prosecution case. Such omissions do not lead to inference that FIR is ante-timed and evidence of eyewitnesses cannot be discarded if their names do not figure in inquest report. The whole purpose of preparing an inquest report is to investigate into and draw up a report of the apparent cause of death, describing such wounds as may be found on the body of the diseased and stating as in what manner or by what weapon or instrument such wounds appear to have been inflicted. For the purpose of holding the inquest it is neither necessary nor obligatory on the part of the IO to investigate into or ascertain who were the persons responsible for the death. The object is merely to ascertain whether a person died under suspicious circumstances or met with an unnatural death and if so what its apparent cause was. The question regarding the details of how the deceased was assaulted or who assaulted him or under what circumstances he was assaulted is foreign to the ambit and scope of the inquest report. Omissions in the inquest report are not sufficient to put the prosecution out of court. The basic purpose of holding inquest is to report regarding the apparent cause of death whether it is suicidal, homicidal or accidental. It is therefore not necessary to enter all the details of the overt acts in the inquest report. Evidence of eyewitnesses cannot be discarded if their names do not figure in the inquest report. In the case in hand, in both the inquest reports, we find that the inquest proceeding has been drawn before 5 witnesses and injuries found on the dead bodies have been precisely mentioned and it has been also mentioned that death of deceased persons is homicidal due to ante-mortem injury. It has been also mentioned where the dead bodies were found. The corpus was sealed separately, handed over to the police personnels along with necessary letters and papers for post-mortem. We find that non-mentioning of weapon used for the commission of offence is no such omission on the basis of which the inquest report may become tainted and can be discarded and it

28. It has been also submitted that the fact of scribing the FIR by Badam Singh on the dictation of Vijay Singh informant was neither necessary nor probable in the circumstance that Badam Singh himself was the eye witness of the incident who could scribe the report by himself. There was no need to scribe the FIR on the dictation of Vijay Singh informant. It has been further pointed out that the written report on the basis of which the FIR was registered, has no sign of the script paper being folded and it goes to show that the FIR was an ante time document. The thumb impression of the informant is in different ink and according to his statement, he went to the bus stand and got the ink pad and put his thumb impression on the script, which was later on handed over to the police. This further rules out his presence at the Police Station to lodge FIR and he is not wholly reliable witnesses. All these reasons advanced by the learned counsel are just speculations. The informant is admittedly an illiterate person and with the help of Badam Singh he got the written report prepared and because he had to lodge FIR as his father and brother died in the incident, he ensured that the same should be scribed by Badam Singh who happened to be semi-literate. It is most common that FIR is lodged by those who are worst effected by crime. The informant was fully acquainted with all the accused persons and he was present there watching the whole sequence of crime and there is nothing unusual if the written report was scribed by Badam Singh on his dictation. Regarding no sign of fold on the paper on which written report was scribed, the witness has explained that the paper was not tightly folded. That the ink of report and signature was not same has been also convincingly explained by the witness. Moreover, these things are not serious enough to create any doubt or lead to any inference of ante timing of FIR. The informant has stated that he started from place of occurrence at about 12 in the noon. It took about half an hour in reaching to Patarai river which is 4 km away and from there police station is about 1 km where he reached at 1 pm. Meanwhile, written report was prepared at Patarai river in 5 to 10 minutes for which paper was brought from a shop situated on bus stand. The submission of the learned counsel is that all these things could not be possible within such small period and as such the FIR was ante timed. Though, it does not appear to be impossible to lodge the FIR on stipulated time, even then, it may be pertinently mentioned that in matter of timing, a very technical approach is not required to be adopted, particularly when the witness is illiterate and he has stated about time on the basis of his own assessment and it has not been shown or asked by the defence that he was wearing a watch and has stated about time after having verified in watch. It is why during his cross-examination, PW-4 Badam Singh has stated that they moved from the place of occurrence to Police Station with injured Bhairo on bullock-cart between 11-12 am. It was his assessment of time and such marginal difference in the statement is required to be appreciated keeping in view that such error in making assessment of timing is always possible, particularly when the witnesses are illiterate villagers. Even if for the sake of argument, it is assumed that the FIR was ante-time, there is nothing on record to show that it is false or in any way caused prejudice or resulted in injustice to the accused persons.

29. The time of occurrence has been also tried to be discredited on the basis of medical evidence. A suggestion has been given from the side of defence that both the deceased persons were sleeping in their field for the security of their crops and some unknown persons killed them in the night. Learned counsel for the appellants further pointed out towards the discrepancy in the post-mortem report and eye witness account and has submitted that in both the post-mortem reports, small and large intestine of both the deceased have been found containing faecal matters and 100 grams of semi digested food in the stomach of deceased Bhairon, whereas, the eye witness account is to the affect that they had not taken their food in the morning while going to the field on the fateful day. Further submission is that PW-3 Vijay Singh has clearly stated that all the persons leaving the house for the field did not take food and they had taken their food in the preceding night only. He has further clarified this by saying that they left the house after easing and washing of their hand and face etc. He has also stated that his father had also taken food in the preceding night and as he has stated that he got his father on the way, the inference is that he had also not taken food on the date of incident. This fact, however gets falsified by the medical evidence as the stomach and intestine of both the deceased contained semi digested food. The said fact of not taking any meals/breakfast in the morning has come in response to the question put to the witness in cross-examination. The deceased and others set out to field in the early morning at about 6 AM and it was but natural that they did not eat any thing in the morning. The incident took place at about 11 AM. No question has been put to the witness by defence that they did not eat anything during these 5 hours. It is not expected in village life that people working in the field, would continue working till noon with empty stomach and they often take a break to have something by way of lunch/breakfast. This possibility further finds support from the post-mortem report. The opportunity was there with the defence to clarify about this fact, but, the defence has failed to utilize this opportunity.

30. So far as the timing of death is concerned, it has been further pointed out that in the post-mortem report of Sripat, the doctor found him discharging semen and this fact has also come in the statement of doctor as PW-1. The submission of learned counsel for the appellants is that this fact creates doubt to draw otherwise inference regarding the time of death of Sripat. The defence has suggested the fact witness that deceased Sripat had illicit relation with his uncle's wife and a panchayat was also called in respect of it. We find that no question has been put by defence to the doctor to clarify this fact why it was so. There may be several biological reasons or even some sex related ailment for it and the defence should have clarified it from the doctor. In absence of any such cross-examination on this point, no importance can be attached to this argument. The doctor who conducted post-mortem has clearly stated that the death of the two deceased persons was possible a day before from the time of post-mortem and their injury was possible at 11 AM. During his cross-examination, he has stated that a difference of 6 hours in either side is possible in the time of death and the injury to both the deceased was possible to have been caused at the same time. He has stated that it was not possible that the injuries were caused as early as 4 AM and the possibility is minimum that the injury was caused 8 hours before from the alleged time of occurrence. Meaning thereby, the doctor has ruled out any possibility of the death being caused in midnight or between 2 to 4 in the night. Moreover, all the three eye-witnesses examined by the prosecution have stated that the incident took place at about 11 AM in the morning. Nothing has come in their statement which can create any doubt about it. Thus, the time of occurrence has been proved by the eye-witnesses and the same appears to be correct in view of medical evidence.

31. Defence has not specifically disputed the place of occurrence, except denying the incident. Some omission has been pointed out in the site map prepared by IO submitting that it has not been shown where the deceased persons were standing and from where the witnesses saw the incident and whether the incident took place on the adjoining mend or in the field of the accused persons. In our view, it is not significant as the field of both the sides are adjoining divided by mend. The supreme court in Jagdish vs State of UP, 1996 (33) ACC 495, has laid down that the IO is expected to show in the map what he has observed on spot. Other details based on saying of some persons are not needed to be mentioned as per legal requirement. This view has been further affirmed by this court in State of UP vs Lakhan Singh, 2014 (86) ACC 82 (All) (DB). During investigation, PW-6 IO prepared site-map in the presence of informant and other witnesses. The incident took place allegedly on the mend of fields of both sides. It has been pointed out that there is anomaly with regards to the width of the mend in the evidence of fact witnesses. It has been also pointed out that the dead body of Sripat was found in the field of the accused side. Admittedly, the fields of both the sides are adjacent divided by mend and the dead body of Sripat was found in the field of accused side close to mend and therefore, it cannot create doubt as to place of occurrence. On the other hand, where the dead body was found and blood stained earth was lifted is close to mend, may be in the field of accused side. All the fact witnesses have stated that the incident took place on the mend. In the written report Ext. Ka-1, it has been stated that the incident took place on the mend of the field. PW-3 Vijay Singh has more specifically stated that the murder was committed on the mend of the adjoining fields of both sides. The IO has also marked the place of occurrence in the site-map at the same place. Other witnesses PW-4 Badam Singh and PW-5 Sudama Devi have also proved the place of occurrence in their statements. That apart, the officer who has prepared inquest report has found the dead body of Sripat at the same place. Blood-stained earth was lifted from the same place and sealed and recovery memos were prepared which have been produced in evidence and proved by the prosecution witnesses. Hence, the place of occurrence has been established by prosecution.

32. PW-3 has been cross-examined by the defence and the main attack of the defence has been on the post-mortem report, nature of injuries, timing of death and the discrepancies between the medical evidence and ocular testimony. It has also been submitted during arguments that initially, it was stated by PW-3 that when they set out from their house to their field in the morning, his father was with them. Subsequently, during cross-examination, PW-3 tried to improve by stating that his father met him on the way in the lane. He has admitted that he has stated this fact for the first time before the court. Even if it is so, it hardly makes any difference. The fact remains the same that all of them reached to their field together and at the time of incident, they all were present on spot. The plea that this fact was not mentioned in the FIR nor in the statement given to IO, is also not important as it is not necessary to mention every detail in report. In the statement under section 161, the witness states about the incident and responds to any additional question asked by the IO. If no question was asked by IO on the point, there was no occasion for the witness to state this fact. Even IO is not supposed to clarify everything and take statement on all those points the defence is likely to put to the witness. In Rahul Mishra v State of Uttarakhand, AIR 2015 SC 3043 and V.K. Mishra v State of Uttarakhand, (2015) 9 SCC 588, it has been laid down that the investigating officer is not obliged to anticipate all possible defences and investigate from that angle. In any case, any omission on the part of the investigating officer cannot go against the prosecution. Interest of justice demands that such acts or omission of the investigating officer should not be taken in favour of the accused.

33. The learned Senior Advocate has also argued that the recovery of alleged weapons used in commission of the offence by SO in presence of witnesses Jagat Ram and Jaihind; one axe on the pointing of accused Achchhey Lal; one spade on the pointing of accused Ram Charan and one spade on the pointing of accused Mahendra is false and fabricated. Both the public witnesses of recovery were not examined and the spade recovered on the pointing of accused Ram Charan has been shown to be blood stained, whereas, admitted case of prosecution in view of the statements of three eye-witnesses is that no injury was sustained by deceased Sripat by his assault. Only police witnesses have been examined to prove recovery. There is no disclosure statement recorded and proved by prosecution. On the point of recovery of three weapons used for commission of crime, it has been submitted that an affidavit was filed by accused Achchhey Lal, Ram Charan and Mahendra opposing the police custody remand, stating that they never confessed or disclosed their intention to get weapon recovered. Moreover, the confessional statements of these accused persons have not been reduced in writing nor proved, which was necessary in view of the judgement in Jaskaran Vs. State of Punjab, AIR 1995 SC 2345. We now proceed to consider the arguments one by one on these points.

34. PW-6 IO has proved the recovery and has stated that the three accused persons confessed the offence and on their pointing the weapons used for the commission of the offence were recovered. The recovery was made before two public witnesses, but they have not been examined. Therefore, the first question is that in all cases, whether the public witnesses are required to be examined. The law with regards to admissibility and evidentiary value of discovery of material fact and incriminatory articles under section 27 of the Evidence Act has been variously explained and reiterated by the Supreme Court. In Suresh Chandra Bahri Vs. State of Bihar, AIR 1994 SC 2420, where the accused had made confessional disclosure statement under section 27 of the Evidence Act to the police officer during investigation and on the basis thereof, incriminatory articles were found and seized and the evidence showed that the articles belonged to the deceased, it has been held by the Supreme Court that the disclosure statement can be said to be true and also worthy of credence. Non recording of disclosure statement and non-examination of public witness as regards to the said recovery would be of no consequence.

35. It has been held in Bodh Raj v State of J & K, AIR 2002 SC 3164 that section 27 of the Indian Evidence Act is like an exception to Sections 25 to 26 of the Evidence Act and a confessional statement made in police custody leading to discovery of fact has been made admissible in evidence against the accused. The prohibition on admissibility of confessional statement reflects the fear of the Legislature that a person under police influence might be induced to confess because of undue pressure. The statement which is admissible under Section 27 is the one which is the information leading to discovery. The information might be confessional in nature but if it results in discovery of a fact, it becomes a reliable information. But the information permitted to be admitted in evidence is confined to that portion of the information which 'distinctly relates to the fact thereby discovered.

36. In Geejaganda Somaiah, T.N. v State of Karnataka, AIR 2007 SC 1355, it has been laid down that what is important is the information provided by the accused, which leads to the discovery of the fact, which is connected with the particular crime, provided that the accused is in custody. It is of no consequence that the information amounts to a confession which will not be allowed to be proved by the prosecution. But if a relevant fact is discovered in consequence of such information it furnishes assurance regarding the truth of such information. It is such information as relates to the fact thereby discovered is declared to be relevant and is allowed to be proved by the prosecution.

37. In Sandeep v State of UP, (2012) 6 SCC 107 and Mukesh v State for NCT of Delhi & Others, AIR 2017 SC 2161, it was further laid down that if anything or weapons etc. are recovered at the instance of the accused only in the presence of police party and there is no public witness to such recovery or recovery memo, the testimony of the police personnel proving the recovery and the recovery memo cannot be disbelieved merely because there was no witness to the recovery proceedings or recovery memo from the public particularly when no witness from public could be found by the police party despite their efforts at the time of recovery. Seizure memo need not be attested by any independent witness and the evidence of police officer regarding recovery at the instance of the accused should ordinarily be believed. The ground realities cannot be lost sight of that even in normal circumstances, members of public are very reluctant to accompany a police party which is going to arrest a criminal or is embarking upon search of some premises.

38. In Navneethakrishnan v State, AIR 2018 SC 2027, the SC observed-

"The exception postulated under section 27 of the Evidence Act is applicable only if the confessional statement leads to the discovery of some new fact. The relevance under the exception postulated by exception postulated by section 27 aforesaid, is limited "..... as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered.... ." The rationale behind section 27 of the Evidence Act is, that the facts in question should have remained unknown but for the disclosure of the same by the accused. The discovery of facts itself, therefore, substantiates the truth of the confessional statement. And since it is truth that a court must endeavour to search, section 27 aforesaid has been incorporated as an exception to the mandate contained in sections 25 and 26 of the Evidence Act."

39. It has been submitted by the learned counsel for the accused-appellants that the three public witnesses namely, Jagat Ram, Rahees and Jaihind have not been examined by the prosecution. The learned trial court has relied upon the police witness proving the recovery. The Supreme Court in Nathu Singh v State of MP, 1974 Cri. L J 11, has held that testimony of a police witness cannot be discarded for the reason that he is a police witness as it has not been shown that the police had some enmity with accused. Further judgements such as Pramod Kumar Vs. State (GNCT) of Delhi, AIR 2013 SC 3344 and Govindaraju alias Govinda Vs. State of Shri Ramapuram P.S., AIR 2012 SC 1292 also affirm this view in which it has been held that the testimony of police personnel should be treated in the same manner as testimony of any other witness. There is no principle of law that without corroboration by independent witnesses, the testimony of police personnel cannot be relied upon. The presumption that a person acts honestly applies as much in favour of a police personnel as of other persons and it is not a proper judicial approach to distrust and suspect them without good reasons. As a rule it cannot be stated that Police Officer can or cannot be sole eye witness in criminal case. Statement of Police Officer can be relied upon and even form basis of conviction when it is reliable, trustworthy and preferably corroborated by other evidence on record. Experience shows that local people, in order to avoid enmity and bad relation are often reluctant in giving evidence in criminal cases. In the instant case, we find that except giving suggestion of false and planted recovery of weapons, the defence has not cross-examined the witness on the point of recovery so as to discredit the recovery of weapons.

40. We find that there is no error or perversity in the approach of the learned trial court. This instant case is based on direct evidence and the eyewitnesses saw the accused using spade and axe for causing deadly assault and the recovery has been made on the pointing of accused persons. So far as the affidavit of accused persons is concerned which was given by them opposing the application for police remand during investigation denying such disclosure is insignificant in view of the judgement in Ayaaubkhan v State of Maharashtra, AIR 2013 SC 58, where it has been held that affidavits have got no evidentiary value as the affidavits are not included in the definition of "evidence" in S. 3 of the Evidence Act.

41. Moreover, we are of the view that seizure memo need not be attested in all cases by any independent witness and the evidence of police officer regarding recovery at the instance of the accused should ordinarily be believed. The ground realities cannot be lost sight of that even in normal circumstances, members of public are very reluctant to accompany a police party which is going to arrest a criminal or is embarking upon search of some premises. There is no such rule that the police as witness of recovery cannot be believed. We get added strength to take this view on the basis of the judgement of the Supreme Court discussed above.

42. It is pertinent to mention that the recovered weapons stained with blood were sent for chemical examination along with 6 blood stained dresses the deceased were wearing at the time of incident with blood stained and plain earth (total 11 items). The forensic report is on record which is Ext. Ka-33 and on all items, human blood has been found. It links the recovered weapons with the offence and renders additional support to the prosecution version making it most probable that the weapon so recovered on the basis of disclosure statement and pointing of the accused persons were used to commit the offence.

43. So far as the argument with regards to the presence of blood stains on the third weapon is concerned, since all the weapons have been recovered from the same place, this possibility cannot be ruled out that stains might have been possible by coming into contact with each other. Spades and axes are not that kind of weapons which require distinct individual identification. The prosecution version is that all the three weapons were used in commission of the offence and by two which were used by accused Achchhey Lal and Mahendra Singh, the deceased persons sustained injury and died.

44. It has also been submitted that from the very beginning the prosecution came with the story that the accused Achchey Lal gave blow by axe on Bhairon and thereafter, the accused Ram Charan and Mahendra gave blow of spade on the head of Sripat. This fact has also been mentioned in the FIR. PW-3 informant and two other fact witnesses PW-4 and PW-5 also stated to the Investigating Officer in their statements under Section 161 Cr.P.C. that accused Achchey Lal hit Bhairo by his axe and accused Ram Charan and Mahendra gave one blow each by their spade on the head of Sripat. The post-mortem report of the deceased Sripat, which has been duly proved by the doctor, clearly indicates that Sripat sustained single incised wound and this fact has been further corroborated by PW-1 in his testimony.

45. The submission of learned counsel for the appellant is that the testimony of eye witness is falsified by the medical evidence as all the three eye witnesses have made improvement by stating before the trial Court that the blow of accused Ram Charan got missed or Sripat saved himself by that blow and accused Mahendra gave him the fatal blow on his head causing his death on spot. Therefore, the submission is that, keeping in view the anomaly and improvement in the eye witnesses account on this point, their testimony is liable to be discarded and their presence on the spot becomes doubtful at the time of incident. They cannot be treated as wholly reliable witnesses and they cannot be relied to hold the appellants guilty. On close scrutiny of the evidence, we are of the firm view that it does not appear to be a vital improvement, particularly when it is of no gain to prosecution as it only creates doubt with regard to participation and involvement of accused Ram Charan. But on that basis alone, it cannot be said that the whole prosecution case becomes unreliable. The courts have to discharge onerous obligation of justice dispensation by arriving at the truth and in the process the court has to separate grain from chaff and appraise in each case as to what extent the evidence is acceptable.

46. In India, doctrine of falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus does not apply and the approach of the court should be to bring out the correct facts by marshalling the evidence and ignore which is incorrect. In Sucha Singh v State of Punjab, (2003) 7 SCC 643, State of Maharashtra v Tulshiram Bhanudas Kamble, AIR 2007 SC 3042, Janardan Singh v State of Bihar, (2009) 16 SCC 269, Ramesh Harijan v State of UP, (2012) 5 SCC 777, Babu v State of TN, (2013) 8 SCC 60 and State of Karnataka v Suvarnamma, (2015) 1 SCC 323, it has been held:

"Maxim "falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus' is not applicable in India. It is merely a rule of caution. Thus even if a major portion of evidence is found to be deficient, in case residue is sufficient to prove the guilt of an accused, notwithstanding acquittal of number of other co-accused persons, his conviction can be maintained. The court has to separate grain from chaff and appraise in each case as to what extent the evidence is acceptable. If separation cannot be done, the evidence has to be rejected in toto. A witness may be speaking untruth in some respect and it has to be appraised in each case asto what extent the evidence is worthy of acceptance and merely because in some respects the court considers the same to be insufficient for placing reliance on the testimony of a witness, it does not necessarily follow as a matter of law that it must be disregarded in all respects as well. Falsity of particular material witness on a material particular would not ruin it from the beginning to end. The aforesaid dictum is not a sound rule for the reason that one hardly comes across a witness whose evidence does not contain a grain untruth or at any rate exaggeration, embroideries or embellishment."

47. The learned counsel has questioned the presence of all the three fact witnesses at the place of occurrence at the time of incident. In respect of PW-3 informant Vijay Singh, it has been mentioned that sending his wife instead of going himself for rescue is also unnatural. It looks improbable that when two deceased persons were assaulted, instead of going himself, PW-3 Vijay Singh asked his wife to go to save. Had he been present there, he would have himself rushed to save the deceased persons. This also makes the presence of PW-3 at the time of incident improbable. No blood stains have been found on the clothes of PW-3 although he is said to hold his injured father Bhairo and put him on bullock-cart whose head injury was bleeding. It has come in the evidence of witnesses that the wound was covered tightly by cloth (towel) and therefore, if dress of PW-1 was not found blood stained, there is nothing unnatural in it. Again, his not going to save and sending his wife is also natural. In absence of any cross-examination why he did so as he could state some reason, we find that he must have been guided by the idea that the accused might not assault on a lady, particularly of own family. In Sucha Singh Vs. State of Punjab, (2003) 7 SCC 643, the Supreme Court has explained that where eye witnesses did not come to the rescue of the deceased, it has been held that such reaction, conduct and behavior of the witnesses cannot be a ground to discard his evidence when they are unarmed and the accused are armed with deadly weapons. Two senior members of family were already given deadly assault by accused side and therefore, the conduct of the witness cannot be seen with suspicion.

48. It has been further submitted that PW-4 Badam Singh is not of his family nor he has any field of his own near the field where offence was committed and he can be said to be only a chance witness on whom reliance cannot be placed. As laid down in Kallu Vs. State of Haryana, AIR 2012 SC 3212, Ramesh Vs. State of U.P., 2010 (68) ACC 219 (SC) and Jarnail Singh Vs. State of Punjab, 2009 (67) ACC 668 (SC), it is not the rule of law that chance witness cannot be believed. The reason for a chance witness being present on the spot and his testimony requires close scrutiny and if the same is otherwise found reliable, his testimony cannot be discarded merely on the ground of his being a chance witness. Evidence of chance witness requires very cautious and close scrutiny. It has been stated by PW-4 that at the time of occurrence, he was there to render help on request to informant side in collecting and loading of crops. From his statement, it is clear that he was very much acquainted with the accused persons and the deceased side being related by common ancestor. Therefore, it cannot be said that he was chance witness. It was day time and therefore, his presence at the time of occurrence on spot appears to be natural. He has narrated the whole incident giving full support to the prosecution version. So far as the law in respect of appreciation of evidence of chance witness is concerned, even if it is assumed that he was a chance witness, though he was certainly not, the evidence given by him is required to be scrutinized carefully. The testimony of PW-4 appears to be trustworthy and despite a lengthy cross-examination by the defence, nothing has come out, on the basis of which his testimony can be discredited.

49. Certain discrepancy, improvement and contradiction have been pointed out in the statement of PW-3 to discredit him and his presence. Learned counsel has submitted that the conduct of informant in not taking the dead body of his father Bhairon to the police station and leaving the same at the bank of Pathrai river, appears to be unnecessary and highly improbable. PW-3 has further stated that he accompanied the IO to the bank of Pathrai river where the inquest report was prepared. It appears strange that despite his presence, informant was not made a witness to the inquest report. This shows that he was not present when the inquest report was prepared. It finds support from the fact that the inquest of deceased Sripat was prepared subsequently and to that inquest, the informant has been a witness. This goes to show that the informant reached on spot later on and he was made witness of inquest report of Sripat only. On the contrary, he has stated that he was also a witness to the inquest of Bhairo. He has also stated that whatever was written at Patarai river, he put his thumb impression. This appears to be strange as PW-3 is not a witness of inquest of the dead body of Bhairo. He has been witness to the inquest of the dead body of Sripat. No question has been put in respect of inquest of the dead body of Sripat to which he has been witness. The witness was not called upon to see the inquest report of Bhairo nor he has been contradicted that the same does not bear his thumb impression. Notably, the fact of putting thumb impression has come in his statement prior to his statement that he was witness to inquest. He has not specifically stated that he put thumb impression on inquest report. Since, he was a witness to the inquest of the dead body of Sripat and the inquest proceeding took soon after, this possibility cannot be ruled out that he was misled and stated in the confusion of the inquest report of Sripat. The argument that his not being witness is indicative of the fact that he was not present at Pathrai river. There is no rule that the informant must be a witness of inquest proceeding and a lot depends upon the attending situation. Since, Badam Singh could not reach when inquest of dead body of Sripat was being conducted, the informant was made a witness thereto. There is further contradiction in the version of the witness as he has stated that after the preparation of inquest report of the body of the deceased Bhairon, he went back to police station, whereas, PW-6 SO Prem Pal has clearly stated that after leaving the Police Station along with other constables, he first conducted inquest of dead body of Bhairon at the bank of Pathrai river and, thereafter, he visited the place of occurrence where the dead body of the deceased Sripat was lying and the inquest report was prepared there. He has not stated that from Pathrai river, he came back to the police station after completing the inquest report of the dead body of Bhairon as stated by PW-3. In our considered view, the statement of the informant as attacked by the defence, is not significant and on that basis, the complete testimony of the witness cannot be discarded.

50. Certain contradictions, discrepancies and improvements have been mentioned in the statements of fact witnesses. It has been pointed out that contrary to FIR version, it has been developed during evidence that Bhairo was sleeping on the field in the night and he joined the others for field on the way while returning from there in the morning. Witnesses have given varying statement on width of mend where the incident took place to show that the deceased side was not in the field of accused side. It has been also pointed out that the witnesses developed the theory of the assault by accused Ram Charan got missed in view of single injury to deceased Sripat which was found in the medical evidence and in such situation, it becomes doubtful whose blow hit Sripat. Again no blood on grass kept on bullock-cart to carry injured Bhairo was found, nor any blood stains were found on the clothes of PW-1 who happened to handle injured Bhairo whose injury was on head and bleeding to put him on the bullock-cart. There is also discrepancy in ocular account of PW-1 on the point of going to Pathrai river and returning back to Police Station with IO after preparation of inquest report, as PW-6 IO has stated that from there he straight way went to the place of occurrence.

51. On facts, we find that the contradiction, discrepancy or improvement mentioned above are not in respect of time, place, date and manner of the commission of offence. It needs to be mentioned that where own father and real brother is victim of deadly assault and the eyewitnesses were son and his wife and other witness is also related with both side, in such a situation, the witnesses are not supposed to be perfectionist to give the exact account of the incident and narrate every aspect related thereto in a uniform way. It needs to be mentioned that the contradiction and discrepancy have occurred in the statements of fact witnesses in their cross-examination. The witnesses are more or less illiterate and rustics and there is no surprise if there is little deviation and variation in their evidence. In fact, the same is indicative of their truthfulness. It has been remarked in State of UP v Krishna Master, AIR 2010 SC 3071 that where a rustic witness was subjected to grueling cross examination for many days, inconsistencies are bound to occur in his evidence and they should not be blown out of proportion. In State of UP v Chhoteylal, AIR 2011 SC 697 and Dimple Gupta (minor) v Rajiv Gupta, AIR 2008 SC 239, it has been held that It is impossible for an illiterate villager or rustic lady to state with precision the chain of events as such witnesses do not have sense of accuracy of time etc. Expecting hyper technical calculation regarding dates and time of events from illiterate/rustic/villager witnesses is an insult to justice-oriented judicial system and detached from the realities of life. In the case of rustic lady eye witnesses, court should keep in mind her rural background and the scenario in which the incident had happened and should not appreciate her evidence from rational angle and discredit her otherwise truthful version on technical grounds.

52. Some sort of contradiction, improvement and embellishment is bound to occur in the statement of fact witnesses. As laid down in State of UP v Naresh; 2011 (75) ACC 215) (SC), in all criminal cases, normal discrepancies are bound to occur in the depositions of witnesses due to normal errors of observation, namely, errors of memory due to lapse of time or due to mental disposition such as shock and horror at the time of occurrence. Minor contradictions, inconsistencies, embellishments or improvements on trivial matters which do not affect the core of the prosecution case, should not be made a ground on which the evidence can be rejected in its entirety. The Court has to form its opinion about the credibility of the witness and record a finding as to whether his deposition inspires confidence.

53. In Gosu Jayarami Reddy v State of Andhra Pradesh; (2011) 3 SCC(Cri) 630, it was observed that Courts need to be realistic in their expectation from the witnesses and go by what would be reasonable based on ordinary human conduct with ordinary human frailties of memory and power to register events and their details. A witness who is terrorized by the brutality of the attack cannot be disbelieved only because in his description of who hit the deceased and on what part of the body, there is some mix-up or confusion. Further, in Parsu Ram Pandey v State of Bihar AIR 2004 SC 5068, Shivappa v State of Karnataka; AIR 2682, Ramchandaran v State of Kerala AIR 2011 SC 3581, it was held that minor discrepancies or some improvements would not justify rejection of the testimonies of the eye-witnesses, if they are otherwise reliable. Some discrepancies are bound to occur because of the sociological background of the witnesses as also the time gap between the date of occurrence and the date on which they give their depositions in Court. In Mukesh v State for NCT of Delhi, AIR 2017 SC 2161 and Bhagwan Jagannath Markad v State of Maharashtra, (2016) 10 SCC 53, it was reiterated that minor contradictions in the testimonies of the prosecution witness are bound to be there and in fact they go to support the truthfulness of the witnesses. In view of the above, we are of the view that there is nothing in the deposition of the eye-witnesses on the basis of which their evidence can be discarded. We do not find any material contradiction discrepancy or improvement in the statement of the witness and there is consistency so far as narration of the criminal incident.

54. It has been also submitted that PW-3 and PW-4 did not sustain any injury in the incident. PW-5 Sudama Devi has been said to be an injured witness, but, no visible injury has been found on her body in her medical examination. From the evidence on record, it is clear that deceased Sripat intervened during hot conversation and he was done away by the accused side. Before him, deceased Bhairo was given serious blow and he died subsequently. PW-3 sent his wife and she was also assaulted by another accused. In such situation, if PW-3 and PW-4 did not dare to intervene, it is no surprise and appears to be natural. It needs not to be over emphasized why the two witness did not sustain injury.

55. It has been submitted by the learned Senior Advocate for the accused appellants that witness Badam Singh is close relative of Vijay Singh as the grand mother of informant and his grand mother were the real sisters. Their intimacy is also established by the fact that the informant called him to load log of wheat crops lying in his filed. The house of Badam Singh as stated by him is far away from the house of Vijay Singh. Badam Singh himself had his own agricultural land of about 16 and half acres and he has admitted that he went to the field of Vijay Singh for the first time on the date of incident. His statement on several points is contradictory. He cannot be relied and his testimony is liable to be discarded.

56. We find on record that PW-4 Badam Singh has stated that he also comes from the family of deceased and related to both side by a common ancestor. He has denied the suggestion given to him during cross-examination that he was not present there and did not see the incident. The witness has not been challenged from the side of defence on the point of his presence at the time of incident nor on the point of his being called for help in the agricultural work. He is related to both the side and this fact is not disputed between the parties. Therefore, it is no strange if the informant side called him for help. He has narrated the whole sequence of incident. Therefore, we find that the presence of the witness is natural. He has given vivid description of the incident in which the accused persons caused injury to the deceased persons. He has also stated that he scribed the written report on the dictation of Vijay Singh who after hearing the same, put his thumb impression. He has further stated that when Bhairo died at Patharai river, informant left the dead body with him and went to lodge FIR. There is consistency in his statement and he has been rightly relied upon by the learned trial court.

57. It has also been argued that PW-5 Smt. Sudama Devi is not an injured witness. No visible injury has been found in her medical report and the prosecution has not examined the doctor, who conducted her medical to establish that any injury was found on her back. On the contrary, the doctor has written that there was only complaint of pain and no visible injury was found on her back. At the time of lodging of FIR and also when the IO visited the spot, she was present and she described the incident to the IO. As such, in absence of any injury on her body, she does not remain a wholly reliable witness. The learned counsel to the accused-appellant has also submitted that the presence of PW-5 is highly doubtful as she has been alleged to be an eye-witness who also has sustained injury in the incident. It has been pointed out that from the perusal of medical report of Smt. Sudama PW-5, who was examined on 31.3.1996 at 4:00 pm, it appears that no visible injury on her back has been mentioned.

58. The prosecution version has been that accused Sahab Singh gave a lathi blow and she sustained injury on her back. PW-5 has stated that she sustained one blow of lathi. From the perusal of the impugned judgement, it is apparent that the learned trial court has avoided giving any concrete finding as to the injury sustained by Sudama Devi and the involvement of accused Sahab Singh, since he was found to be juvenile and his case was separated to be decided by Juvenile Justice Board. The question before us is whether PW-5 Sudama Devi is an injured witness and her statement should be given weight and appreciated accordingly or she should be considered to be a simple eye-witness?

59. We find on record that Sudama Devi went with informant to Police Station to lodge FIR and from there she was sent with a constable to hospital with injury letter (Ext. Ka-6) for treatment and medical examination. As stated by PW-2 HCP Sobaran Singh, in the injury letter no visible injury has been mentioned and she had herself stated contusion and complaint of pain on the back on the right scapula which has been entered in the GD report.

Although, no visible contusion was found by the doctor, yet in the medical report, complaint of pain has been mentioned. It has been suggested to PW-2 that Sudama Devi did not come to Police Station at the time of lodging of FIR and the FIR was ante timed. PW-6 IO has been also put question on this point and he has stated that her injury was not inspected and on the basis of her saying, the same was mentioned. He has also denied the suggestion that a fake injury letter was prepared and she had no injury nor she came to Police Station and the FIR was ante timed. We do not find any force in this suggestion as the GD shows that she reached the Police Station at the time of lodging of FIR which cannot be discarded on mere suggestion of the defence. Moreover, it has been stated by PW-4 Badam Singh that leaving him with the dead body at Pathrai river, she went with informant to Police Station and this fact has been further affirmed by her and informant in their on oath statement. It has been pointed out that during her cross-examination, she has stated that accused Sahab Singh hit her from the front, whereas, her injury has been alleged to be on her back which falsifies the version on this point. For two reasons, we do not find this argument acceptable. The defence should have asked this to the witness who could have explained it in a better way. In Mahavir Singh v State of Haryana, (2014) 6 SCC 716, it has been laid down that in case the question is not put to the witness in cross-examination who could furnish explanation on a particular issue, the correctness or legality of the said fact/issue could not be questioned. Secondly, a criminal assault is not a static act and a lot depends upon the response of the person assaulted who naturally, to escape, turns or moves. Therefore, the impact of assault on the body a lot depends upon the repercussion and body movement at the relevant time. So far as non examination of the doctor is concerned, it would hardly effect as the charge has been framed for the offence under section 323 IPC for causing simple hurt and for constituting that offence, it is not always necessary to require corroboration by medical report. Assuming for the sake of argument that Sudama Devi was not injured, nevertheless, her statement is acceptable like an eye-witness and there is nothing on record to show that she was not present at the scene of occurrence. Her presence with the entire family is probable and natural at the place of occurrence. PW-5 Sudama Devi has also corroborated the prosecution version on the point of date and time of occurrence. She is an injured witness and her presence during the incident is established because of the injury, she sustained. It is settled principle of law that the evidence of the injured witness is put at a very higher footing and without any substantial reason the statement of such injured witnesses cannot be disbelieved. As held in State of Haryana v Krishan, AIR 2017 SC 3125, Mukesh v State for NCT of Delhi, AIR 2017 SC 2161, Bhagwan Jagannath Markad v State of Maharashtra, (2016) 10 SCC 537 and Jarnail Singh v State of Punjab, 2009 (6) Supreme 526, deposition of an injured witness should be relied upon unless there are strong grounds for rejection of his evidence on the basis of major contradictions and discrepancies.

60. The learned counsel to the accused-appellant has challenged the credibility of fact witnesses on the basis of their being related witness and lack of any motive for the commission of offence. He has submitted that no independent witness has been examined and all the three fact witnesses are relatives and highly interested witnesses and on their evidence no reliance could be placed by the learned trial court. It is admitted fact that PW-3 informant Vijay Singh is son of deceased Bhairo and brother of deceased Sripat, PW-5 Sudama Devi is his wife and PW-4 Badam Singh is related to both side through common ancestor. The law in respect of the testimony of related witnesses has been time and again reiterated by the Supreme Court that the testimony of related witnesses cannot be discarded merely on the basis of relationship. The only requirement is that the testimony of such witness should be scrutinized cautiously and carefully. In Dalip Singh v State of Punjab (1954) SCR 145, while rejecting the argument that witnesses who are close-relatives of the victim should not be relied upon, the Court held as under:

"A witness is normally to be considered independent unless he or she springs from sources which are likely to be tainted and that usually means unless the witness has cause, such as enmity against the accused, to wish to implicate him falsely. Ordinarily, a close relative would be the last to screen the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent person. It is true, when feelings run high and there is personal cause for enmity, that there is a tendency to drag in an innocent person against whom a witness has a grudge along with the guilty, but foundation must be laid for such a criticism and the mere fact of relationship far from being a foundation is often a sure guarantee of truth. However, we are not attempting any sweeping generalisation. Each case must be judged on its own facts. Our observations are only made to combat what is so often put forward in cases before us as a general rule of prudence. There is no such general rule. Each case must be limited to and be governed by its own facts."

61. In Masalti v State of UP AIR 1965 SC 202, the Supreme Court observed:

"But it would, we think, be unreasonable to contend that evidence given by witnesses should be discarded only on the ground that it is evidence of partisan or interested witnesses. ... The mechanical rejection of such evidence on the sole ground that it is partisan would invariably lead to failure of justice."

62. The Supreme Court has also taken the view that related witness does not necessarily mean or is equivalent to an interested witness. A witness may be called interested only when he or she derives some benefit from the result of litigation; a decree in a civil case, or in seeing a person punished in a criminal trial. In Darya Singh v State of Punjab, AIR 1965 SC 328, followed by State of UP v Kishanpal (2008) 16 SCC 73, the Court held as under:

"On principle, however, it is difficult to accept the plea that if a witness is shown to be a relative of the deceased and it is also shown that he shared the hostility of the victim towards the assailant, his evidence can never be accepted unless it is corroborated on material particulars."

63. Again, in Appa v State of Gujarat, AIR 1988 SC 698, the Court has observed:

"Experience reminds us that civilized people are generally insensitive when crime is committed even in their presence. They withdraw from both, victim and vigilant. They keep themselves away from the Court. They take crime as a civil dispute. This kind of apathy of general public is indeed unfortunate but it is everywhere whether in village life or town and city. One cannot ignore this handicap. Evidence of witnesses has to be appreciated keeping in view such ground realities. Therefore, the Court instead of doubting the prosecution case where no independent witness has been examined must consider the broad spectrum of the prosecution version and then search for the nugget of truth with due regard to probability, if any suggested by the accused."

64. Similar view has been expressed in State of AP v S. Rayappa (2006) 4 SCC 512, where the court observed that it is now almost a fashion that public is reluctant to appear and depose before the court especially in criminal cases and the cases for that reason itself are dragged for years and years. The Court stated the principle as follows:

" ....by now, it is a well-established principle of law that testimony of a witness otherwise inspiring confidence cannot be discarded on the ground that he being a relation of the deceased is an interested witness. A close relative who is a very natural witness cannot be termed as interested witness. The term interested postulates that the person concerned must have some direct interest in seeing the accused person being convicted somehow or the other either because of animosity or some other reasons."

65. Further, in Pulicherla Nagaraju @ Nagaraja Reddy v State of AP (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 500, the Supreme Court has held as under:

"In this case, we find that the trial court had rejected the evidence of PW1 and PW2 merely because they were interested witnesses being the brother and father of the deceased. But it is well settled that evidence of a witness cannot be discarded merely on the ground that he is either partisan or interested or closely related to the deceased, if it is otherwise, found to be trustworthy and credible. It only requires scrutiny with more care and caution, so that neither the guilty escape nor the innocent wrongly convicted. If on such careful scrutiny, the evidence is found to be reliable and probable, it can be acted upon. If it is found to be improbable or suspicious, it ought to be rejected. Where the witness has a motive to falsely implicate the accused, his testimony should have corroboration in regard to material particulars before it is accepted."

66. Similarly, in Satbir Singh v State of UP, (2009) 13 SCC 790, the Court has held as under:-

"It is now a well-settled principle of law that only because the witnesses are not independent ones may not by itself be a ground to discard the prosecution case. If the prosecution case has been supported by the witnesses and no cogent reason has been shown to discredit their statements, a judgment of conviction can certainly be based thereupon....."

67. In M.C. Ali v State of Kerala AIR 2010 SC 1639, Himanshu v State (NCT of Delhis, (2011) 2 SCC 36, and Bhajan Singh v State of Haryana, (2011) 7 SCC 421, it was laid down that evidence of a related witness can be relied upon provided it is trustworthy. Again, in Jayabalan v U.T. of Pondicherry, 2010(68)

ACC 308 (SC), the Supreme Court has made following observation:

"We are of the considered view that in cases where the court is called upon to deal with the evidence of the interested witnesses, the approach of the court, while appreciating the evidence of such witnesses must not be pedantic. The court must be cautious in appreciating and accepting the evidence given by the interested witnesses but the court must not be suspicious of such evidence. The primary endeavour of the court must be to look for consistency. The evidence of a witness cannot be ignored or thrown out solely because it comes from the mouth of a person who is closely related to the victim."

68. Dharnidhar v State of UP, (2010) 7 SCC 759 referred the above observation of Jaya Balan (supra) and held that there is no hard and fast rule that family members can never be true witnesses to the occurrence and that they will always depose falsely before the Court. It will always depend upon the facts and circumstances of a given case. Similar view has been taken in Ram Bharosey v State of UP AIR 2010 SC 917, where the Court stated that a close relative of the deceased does not become an interested witness. An interested witness is one who is interested in securing the conviction of a person out of vengeance or enmity or due to disputes and deposes before the Court only with that intention and not to further the cause of justice.

69. Again, in Balraje @ Trimbak v State of Maharashtra, (2010) 6 SCC 673, it has been held that when the eye-witnesses are stated to be interested and inimically deposed against the accused, it would not be proper to conclude that they would shield the real culprit and rope in innocent person. The truth or otherwise of the evidence has to be weighed pragmatically. The Court would be required to analyse the evidence of related witnesses and those witnesses who are inimical towards the accused. But if after careful analysis and scrutiny of their evidence, the version given by the witnesses appears to be clear, cogent and credible, there is no reason to discard the same.

70. Subsequently, in Jalpat Rai v State of Haryana AIR 2011 SC 2719 and Waman v State of Maharashtra AIR 2011 SC 3327, it was observed that the over-insistence on witnesses having no relation with the victims often results in criminal justice going away. The testimony of a witness in a criminal trial cannot be discarded merely because the witness is a relative or family member of the victim of the offence. This view has been reiterated in Shyam Babu v State of UP, AIR 2012 SC 3311, Dhari & Others v State of UP, AIR 2013 SC 308 and Bhagwan Jagannath Markad (supra). Recently, in Ganapathi v State of Tamilnadu, AIR 2018 SC 1635, the Court found no force in the argument that the conviction based on the evidence of family members in a murder trial is not sustainable. In Rupinder Singh Sandhu v State of Punjab, (2018) 16 SCC 475, it has been reiterated by the Supreme Court that relationship by itself will not render the witness untrustworthy. The Supreme Court laid down as below:

"Relationship is not a factor to affect credibility of a witness. It is more often than not that a relation would not conceal the actual culprit and make allegations against an innocent person. Foundation has to be laid if plea of false *implication is made. In such cases, the court has to adopt a careful approach and analyse evidence to find out whether it is cogent and credible. ..... A witness is normally to be considered independent unless he or she springs from sources which are likely to be tainted and that usually means unless the witness has cause, such as enmity against the accused, to wish to implicate him falsely. Ordinarily, a close relative would be the last to screen the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent person. It is true, when feelings run high and there is personal cause for enmity, that there is a tendency to drag in an innocent person against whom a witness has a g*rudg*e along with the guilty, but foundation must be laid for such a criticism and the mere fact of relationship far from being a foundation is often a sure guarantee of truth."*

71. Recently, in Shio Shanker Dubey v State of Bihar AIR 2019 SC 2275, the Supreme Court has reiterated the law as under:

"..... a close relative cannot be characterized as an "interested" witness. He is a "natural" witness. His evidence, however, must be scrutinized carefully. If on such scrutiny, his evidence is found to be intrinsically reliable, inherently probable and wholly trustworthy, conviction can be based on the "sole" testimony of such witness. Close relationship of witness with deceased or victim is no ground to reject his evidence. On the contrary, close relative of the deceased would normally be most reluctant to spare the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent one."

72. Thus, in view of aforementioned decisions of the Supreme Court, it is settled position of law that the statements of the interested witnesses can be safely relied upon by the court in support of the prosecution story. But this needs to be done with care and to ensure that the administration of criminal justice is not undermined by the persons who are closely related to the deceased and inimical with the accused. When their statements find corroboration by other evidence, expert evidence and the circumstances of the case clearly depict complete chain of evidence demonstrating the guilt of the accused, there is no reason as to why the statement of such interested witnesses cannot be relied upon by the Court. It would be hard to believe that the close relatives shall spare the real culprit and shall implicate innocent persons falsely having no enmity and who are close relatives also. There is no rule to the effect that the evidence of related or partisan witness is not acceptable. Association or relation does not render the evidence false and partisanship is no ground to reject the testimony given on oath. It is more so because PW-4 Badam Singh is related to both sides and it has been nowhere suggested by defence that he had bitter relation with accused side to give false evidence against them. All the three witnesses were present on spot at the time of occurrence and they have proved the prosecution case. On due scrutiny of their testimonies, we find that there is spontaneity in their evidence and they have proved the incident in a trustworthy way.

73. It has been also argued that no independent witness has been examined whereas, in the FIR itself, Bhagwan Das of same village was grazing his animals and he checked the accused persons and tried to save the deceased side. The wife of Bhairo who was grazing buffaloes because of which the whole incident took place, has not been also examined. So far as non-examination of the independent witness and other witness is concerned, the option lies with the prosecution to examine as many witness as is required to be examined to prove the charge. In Bhagwan Jagannath Markad v State of Maharashtra, (2016) 10 SCC 537 and Mukesh v State of NCT of Delhi, AIR 2017 SC 2161, it has been held that if a witness examined in the court is otherwise found reliable and trustworthy, the fact sought to be proved by that witness need not be further proved through other witnesses though there may be other witnesses available who could have been examined but were not examined. Non-examination of independent witness is not a mathematical formula for discarding the weight of the testimony available on record however natural, trustworthy and convincing it may be. It is settled law that the Court can convict an accused on statement of sole witness even if he is relative of the deceased and non examination of independent witness would not be fatal to the case of prosecution. Moreover, it is not the quantity, rather quality of the evidence which is decisive in arriving at the right conclusion.

74. The next submission is about motive and it has been argued that the accused persons did not have motive or adequate motive sufficient to cause the death of own relatives. There is lack of any previous enmity between two sides or any quarrel in the near past. It is admitted between the parties that both the sides including witness Badam Singh are connected and related by two branches Pragi and Brisbhan who were sons of one Nathu. Accused persons are descendants of Brisbhan whereas, complaint/deceased side are descendants of Pragi through daughter Ramabai. Witness Badam Singh is connected through another daughter of Pragi whose name was Sita and this relationship is clear in view of the testimony of PW-3 and PW-4 and they have also stated that the relationship of both side was normal without any previous enmity. The defence case has been that some unknown person killed the deceased and the accused persons have been falsely implicated. It has been already discussed earlier that the defence theory that the witnesses did not see the criminal incident as they were not present there, is not convincing. It is a case of broad day light murder and the three eye-witnesses were none other but relatives of deceased persons and well acquainted with both sides. All the three witnesses were present in the field for collecting and loading the wheat log on bullock-cart. For the same reason, witness Badam was also present who was called by informant side to help in collecting and loading the wheat log on bullock-cart. Thus, the prosecution case is based on direct evidence and the settled law is that motive goes to the back seat in such cases.

75. In a number of decisions, like Abu Thakir v State AIR 2010 SC 2119, State of UP v Nawab Singh AIR 2010 SC 3638, Bipin Kumar Mondal v State of West Bengal 2005 SCC (Criminal) 33, Shivraj Bapuray Jadhav v State of Karnataka (2003) 6 SCC 392, Thaman Kumar v State of Union Territory of Chandigarh (2003) 6 SCC 380 and State of HP v Jeet Singh, (1999) 4 SCC 370, it has been repeatedly held by the Supreme Court that motive is not a sine qua non for the commission of a crime. Moreover, it takes a back seat in a case of direct ocular account of the commission of the offence by a particular person. In a case of direct evidence the element of motive does not play such an important role so as to cast any doubt on the credibility of the prosecution witnesses even if there be any doubt raised in this regard. If the eye-witnesses are trustworthy, the motive attributed for the commission of crime may not be of much relevance. Failure to prove motive or absence of evidence on the point of motive would not be fatal to the prosecution case when the other reliable evidence available on record unerringly establishes the guilt of the accused.

76. We find that the Supreme Court has reiterated the aforesaid view in various decisions, such as Gopi Ram v St. Of UP, 2006 (55) ACC 673 SC, R.R. Reddy v State of AP, AIR 2006 SC 1656, Sucha Singh v State of Punjab; AIR 2003 SC 1471, State of Rajasthan v Arjun Singh AIR 2011 SC 3380 and Varun Chaudhry v State of Rajasthan AIR 2011 SC 72. Recently, in Saddik v State of Gujarat, (2016) 10 SCC 663, it has been held that the prosecution case could not be denied on the ground of alleged absence or insufficiency of motive. Motive is insignificant in cases of direct evidence of eyewitnesses. Failure to prove motive or absence of evidence on the point of motive would not be fatal to the prosecution case when the other reliable, truthful and acceptable evidence is available on record sufficient to establish the guilty of accused persons.

77. We are of the view that when there is sufficient direct evidence regarding the commission of offence, the question of motive is insignificant. Motive is a double edged weapon and the key question for consideration in cases based on direct evidence remains whether the prosecution has convincingly and satisfactorily established the guilt of all or any of the accused beyond reasonable doubt by adducing reliable and cogent evidence. As such, the proof of the existence of a motive is not necessary for a conviction for any offence. If the eye-witnesses are trustworthy, the motive attributed for the commission of crime may not be of much relevance.

78. It has been pointed out in the course of argument that the statement of PW-5 Sudama was not recorded by IO on the date of incident or soon after, the disclosure statement of accused persons was not reduced in writing, the injury letter of Sudama Devi was prepared without inspecting the injury, there is no mention in CD by what means the dead bodies were sent for post-mortem and the statement of Badam Singh was not recorded at Patharai river even though he was present there. In our view, the aforesaid omission is neither material nor substantial nor they anyway caused prejudice to the accused persons. Maximum, they relate to lapse in investigation and that too is not significant nor they render any advantage to the defence. In Khem Ram v State of Himachal Pradesh, (2018) 1 SCC 202, State of Karnataka v Suvarnamma, (2015) 1 SCC 323 Hema v State, 2013 (81) ACC 1 (SC) and Leela Ram v State of Haryana, (1999) 9 SCC 52510, it has been laid down that any irregularity or deficiency in investigation by IO need not necessarily lead to rejection of the case of prosecution when it is otherwise proved. The only requirement is use of extra caution in evaluation of evidence. A defective investigation cannot be fatal to prosecution where ocular testimony is found credible and cogent. It can also be pointed out that defect in investigation, if any, cannot give any advantage to the defence unless such defect goes to the very root of the prosecution version. In Rupinder Singh Sandhu vs State of Punjab, (2018) 16 SCC 475, it has been remarked by the supreme court that even if there is lapse in investigation, the same cannot be used to give advantage to accused person in cases where prosecution has led credible evidence, as it is difficult to determine that the investigative defect occurred due to general inefficiency of system or deliberated to shield the accused. In our considered view, the defect pointed out on behalf of the defence appears to be very minor and insignificant in nature and no force can be attached to that part of the argument.

79. It has also been argued that if the prosecution case is believed, in that case also it is established that there was a sudden quarrel between both sides as Heera Bai and Bhairon were insisting to continue their cattle grazing in the filed of accused. Only a single blow was given by accused Achchhey Lal to Bhairon and to Sripat by accused Mahendra. There is no repetition of blow. The blow of accused Ram Charan missed and his involvement is doubtful as the testimony of witnesses is contradictory to the FIR version and is a result of improvement made by them during trial. The other accused persons namely Amar Singh, Siyaram and Ram Singh did not participate in the incident of assault by making any overt act. The allegation of exhortation has been attributed to all the seven accused persons in a form of chorus (maar do salo ko bachne na paye) is highly improbable in the ordinary course. It is not possible for all the seven accused persons to utter the same words simultaneously and, therefore, the role of exhortation attributed to all the accused-appellants cannot be believed. The formation of unlawful assembly is not proved and fact of common object is highly doubtful as the presence of four accused persons were shown on the spot without any overt act and, therefore, their conviction is not sustainable under law.

80. It is clear from the statement of the fact witnesses and medical evidence that two persons have died in the criminal incident by sustaining one injury each. Bhairo was killed by the injury caused by accused Achchhey Lal by his axe, whereas, deceased Sripat was killed by injury caused by accused Mahendra by his spade. It has also come in evidence that accused Ram Charan also assaulted Sripat by his spade but the same got missed. At this stage, we find it necessary to briefly discuss the law with regards to vicarious criminal liability provided under section 149 IPC.

81. Section 149 IPC reads as follows:

"Section 149 IPC:- Every member of unlawful assembly guilty of offence committed in prosecution of common object.--If an offence is committed by any member of an unlawful assembly in prosecution of the common object of that assembly, or such as the members of that assembly knew to be likely to be committed in prosecution of that object, every person who, at the time of the committing of that offence, is a member of the same assembly, is guilty of that offence."

82. The essential ingredients of Section 149 IPC is required to be identified keeping in view section 141 IPC. The ingredients are (I) there must be an unlawful assembly of five or more persons, (II) the assembly must have common object to commit crime as provided under section 141 IPC, (III) the offence must have been committed by all or any of the member of such unlawful assembly, (IV) such offence must have been committed in prosecution of the common object of that assembly, or (V) the offence must be such as the member of that assembly knew it to be likely to be committed. The prosecution is required to prove all the ingredients for applicability of Section 149.

83. It is noteworthy that section 34 IPC also deals with vicarious liability and two or more persons committing offence with common intention to commit same can be held liable with the help of section 34. Explaining the difference between common object with common intention, the Supreme Court, in Chittarmal v State of Rajasthan, AIR 2003 SC 796, expressed the following view:

"It is well settled that Section 34 as well as Section 149 deal with liability for constructive criminality i.e. vicarious liability of a person for acts of others. Both the sections deal with combinations of persons who become punishable as sharers in an offence. Thus they have a certain resemblance and may to some extent overlap. But a clear distinction between common intention and common object is that common intention denotes action in concert and necessarily postulates the existence of a prearranged plan implying a prior meeting of the minds, while common object does not necessarily require proof of prior meeting of minds or pre concert. Though there is a substantial difference between the two sections, they also to some extent overlap and it is a question to be determined on the fact of each case whether the charge under Section 149 overlaps the ground covered by Section 34. Thus, if several persons numbering five or more, do an act and intend to do it, both Section 34 and Section 149 may apply. If the common object does not involve a common intention, then the substitution of Section 34 for Section 149 might result in prejudice to the accused and ought not, therefore, to be permitted. But if it does not involve a common intention, then the substitution of Section 34 for Section 149 must be held to be a formal matter. Whether such recourse can be had or not must depend on the facts of each case. The non-applicability of Section 149 is, therefore, no bar in convicting the appellants under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC, if the evidence discloses commission of an offence in furtherance of the common intention of them all."

84. Before holding a person guilty of an offence with the help of section 149 IPC, a definite conclusion is required to be arrived at on the basis of evidence on record that the offence was committed by an unlawful assembly to which the accused-appellants were members and the offence was committed for the prosecution of common object of such unlawful assembly. In Masalti v State of UP, AIR 1965 SC 202, it was observed as follows:

"what has to be proved against a person who is alleged to be a member of an unlawful assembly is that he was one of the persons constituting the assembly and he entertained along with the other members of the assembly the common object as defined by Section 141 I.P.C. Section 142 provides that whoever, being aware of facts which render any assembly an unlawful assembly, intentionally joins that assembly, or continues in it, is said to be a member of an unlawful assembly. In other words, an assembly of five or more persons actuated by, and entertaining one or more of the common objects specified by the five clauses of Section 141, is an unlawful assembly. The crucial question to determine in such a case is whether the assembly consisted of five or more persons and whether the said persons entertained one or more of the common objects as specified by Section 141. While determining this question, it becomes relevant to consider whether the assembly consisted of some persons who were merely passive witnesses and had joined the assembly as a matter of idle curiosity without intending to entertain the common object of the assembly."

85. In Tarlok Singh v State of Punjab, AIR 1974 SC 1797, the Supreme Court on appreciation of evidence on record held that the prosecution could not establish that except one accused namely Tarlok Singh, other accused have at any time entertain an intention to commit murder and they cannot, therefore, be held liable under Sections 307/149 IPC. It was found that statement of prosecution witness was an omnibus statement. The firing appears to have been sudden and the other accused could not have acted in concert in furtherance of that design, or could not have known that accused would fire.

86. In Musa Khan vs. State of Maharashtra 1977 (1) SCC 733, this Court observed:

".....Thus a court is not entitled to presume that any and every person who is proved to have been present near a riotous mob at any time or to have joined or left it at any stage during its activities is in law guilty of every act committed by it from the beginning to the end, or that each member of such a crowd must from the beginning have anticipated and contemplated the nature of the illegal activities in which the assembly would subsequently indulge. In other words, it must be proved in each case that the person concerned was not only a member of the unlawful assembly at some stage, but at all the crucial stages and shared the common object of the assembly at all these stages."

87. In Lalji v State of UP, 1989 (1) SCC 437, the Sopreme Court held:

"Common object of the unlawful assembly can be gathered from the nature of the assembly, arms used by them and the behaviour of the assembly at or before the scene of occurrence. It is an inference to be deducted from the facts and circumstances of each case."

88. In Allauddin Mian vs. State of Bihar, 1989 (3) SCC 5, the Court remarked as under:-

".....Therefore, in order to fasten vicarious responsibility on any member of an unlawful assembly the prosecution must prove that the act constituting an offence was done in prosecution of the common object of that assembly or the act done is such as the members of that assembly knew to be likely to be committed in prosecution of the common object of that assembly. Under this section, therefore, every member of an unlawful assembly renders himself liable for the criminal act or acts of any other member or members of that assembly provided the same is/are done in prosecution of the common object or is/are such as every member of that assembly knew to be likely to be committed."

89. The Supreme Court made it clear that since this section imposes a constructive penal liability, it must be strictly construed as it seeks to punish members of an unlawful assembly for the offence or offences committed by their associate or associates in carrying out the common object of the assembly. What is important in each case is to find out if the offence was committed to accomplish the common object of the assembly or was one which the members knew to be likely to be committed. The Court said:

"There must be a nexus between the common object and the offence committed and if it is found that the same was committed to accomplish the common object every member of the assembly will become liable for the same."

90. It was further laid down:

"It is not the intention of the legislature in enacting Section 149 to render every member of unlawful assembly liable to punishment for every offence committed by one or more of its members. In order to attract Section 149, it must be shown that the incriminating act was done to accomplish the common object of unlawful assembly and it must be within the knowledge of other members as one likely to be committed in prosecution of the common object. If the members of the assembly knew or were aware of the likelihood of a particular offence being committed in prosecution of the common object, they would be liable for the same under Section 149 IPC."

91. In Sherey v State of UP,1991 Supp (2) SCC 437, the Court held:

"But when there is a general allegation against a large number of persons the Court naturally hesitates to convict all of them on such vague evidence. Therefore we have to find some reasonable circumstance which lends assurance. From that point of view it is safe only to convict the above mentioned nine accused whose presence is not only consistently mentioned from the stage of FIR but also to whom overt acts are attributed."

92. The Supreme Court in Ranbir Yadav v State of Bihar, 1995 (4) SCC 392 highlighted that where there is party or group rivalry, there is a tendency to include the innocent with the guilty and it is extremely difficult for the court to guard against such a danger. It was pointed out that the only real safeguard against the risk of condemning the innocent with the guilty lies in insisting on acceptable evidence which in some measure implicates such accused and satisfies the conscience of the court.

93. In State of UP v Dan Singh, 1997 (3) SCC 747, it was laid down that it is not necessary for the prosecution to prove which of the members of the unlawful assembly did which or what act. The court said:

"While overt act and active participation may indicate common intention of the person perpetrating the crime, the mere presence in the unlawful assembly may fasten vicarious criminal liability under section149. "

94. The above position of law was further elaborated and affirmed in subsequent decisions such as Gangadhar Behara v State of Orissa, 2002 (8) SCC 381 and State of Maharashtra v Kashirao, AIR 2003 SC 3901. In later, it was observed:

"It cannot be laid down as a general proposition of law that unless an overt act is proved against a person, who is alleged to be a member of unlawful assembly, it cannot be said that he is a member of an assembly. The only thing required is that he should have understood that the assembly was unlawful and was likely to commit any of the acts which fall within the purview of Section 141."

It was observed:

"The word 'object' means the purpose or design and, in order to make it 'common', it must be shared by all. In other words, the object should be common to the persons, who compose the assembly, that is to say, they should all be aware of it and concur in it. A common object may be formed by express agreement after mutual consultation, but that is by no means necessary. It may be formed at any stage by all or a few members of the assembly and the other members may just join and adopt it. Once formed, it need not continue to be the same. It may be modified or altered or abandoned at any stage. The expression 'in prosecution of common object' as appearing in Section 149 have to be strictly construed as equivalent to 'in order to attain the common object'. It must be immediately connected with the common object by virtue of the nature of the object. There must be community of object and the object may exist only up to a particular stage, and not thereafter. Members of an unlawful assembly may have community of object up to certain point beyond which they may differ in their objects and the knowledge, possessed by each member of what is likely to be committed in prosecution of their common object may vary not only according to the information at his command, but also according to the extent to which he shares the community of object, and as a consequence of this the effect of Section 149, IPC may be different on different members of the same assembly."

95. Explaining the difference between section 34 and 149 IPC, the Court pointed out that 'common object' is different from a 'common intention' as it does not require a prior concert and a common meeting of minds before the attack. It is enough if each has the same object in view and their number is five or more and that they act as an assembly to achieve that object. The Court observed:

"The 'common object' of an assembly is to be ascertained from the acts and language of the members composing it, and from a consideration of all the surrounding circumstances. It may be gathered from the course of conduct adopted by the members of the assembly. For determination of the common object of the unlawful assembly, the conduct of each of the members of the unlawful assembly, before and at the time of attack and thereafter, the motive for the crime, are some of the relevant considerations. What the common object of the unlawful assembly is at a particular stage of the incident is essentially a question of fact to be determined, keeping in view the nature of the assembly, the arms carried by the members, and the behaviour of the members at or near the scene of the incident."

96. The Court also remarked that it is not necessary under law that in all cases of unlawful assembly, with an unlawful common object, the same must be translated into action or be successful. Under the Explanation to Section 141, an assembly which was not unlawful when it was assembled, may subsequently become unlawful. The Court, therefore, opined:

"It is not necessary that the intention or the purpose, which is necessary to render an assembly an unlawful one comes into existence at the outset. The time of forming an unlawful intent is not material. An assembly which, at its commencement or even for some time thereafter, is lawful, may subsequently become unlawful. In other words it can develop during the course of incident at the spot co instanti."

It was further remarked:

"Section 149, IPC consists of two parts. The first part of the section means that the offence to be committed in prosecution of the common object must be one which is committed with a view to accomplish the common object. In order that the offence may fall within the first part, the offence must be connected immediately with the common object of the unlawful assembly of which the accused was member. Even if the offence committed is not in direct prosecution of the common object of the assembly, it may yet fall under Section 141, if it can be held that the offence was such as the members knew was likely to be committed and this is what is required in the second part of the section."

97. Laying down that the purpose for which the members of the assembly set out or desired to achieve is the object. If the object desired by all the members is the same, the knowledge that is the object which is being pursued is shared by all the members and they are in general agreement as to how it is to be achieved and that is now the common object of the assembly. Referring Chikkarange Gowda v State of Mysore, AIR 1956 SC 731, the Supreme Court said:

"An object is entertained in the human mind, and it being merely a mental attitude, no direct evidence can be available and, like intention, has generally to be gathered from the act which the person commits and the result therefrom. Though no hard and fast rule can be laid down under the circumstances from which the common object can be called out, it may reasonably be collected from the nature of the assembly, arms it carries and behaviour at or before or after the scene of incident. The word 'knew' used in the second branch of the section implies something more than a possibility and it cannot be made to bear the sense of 'might have been known'. Positive knowledge is necessary. When an offence is committed in prosecution of the common object, it would generally be an offence which the members of the unlawful assembly knew was likely to be committed in prosecution of the common object. That, however, does not make the converse proposition true; there may be cases which would come within the second part but not within the first part. The distinction between the two parts of Section 149 cannot be ignored or obliterated. In every case it would be an issue to be determined, whether the offence committed falls within the first part or it was an offence such as the members of the assembly knew to be likely to be committed in prosecution of the common object and falls within the second part. However, there may be cases which would be within first offences committed in prosecution of the common object would be generally, if not always, with the second, namely, offences which the parties knew to be likely committed in the prosecution of the common object."

98. It was further held that it is not necessary for the prosecution to prove which of the members of the unlawful assembly did which or what act? While overt act and active participation may indicate common intention of the person perpetrating the crime under Section 34

IPC, the mere presence in the unlawful assembly may fasten vicariously criminal liability under Section 149. It was held that no hard and fast rule of universal application can be invoked. In the facts of a case, the essential ingredients of Section 149, however, have to be amply established.

99. Similar view was expressed in Rajendra Shantaram Todankar vs. State of Maharashtra (2003) 2 SCC 257, and the Court once again explained Section 149 and held as under:

"A mere possibility of the commission of the offence would not necessarily enable the court to draw an inference that the likelihood of commission of such offence was within the knowledge of every member of the unlawful assembly. It is difficult indeed, though not impossible, to collect direct evidence of such knowledge. An inference may be drawn from circumstances such as the background of the incident, the motive, the nature of the assembly, the nature of the arms carried by the members of the assembly, their common object and the behaviour of the members soon before, at or after the actual commission of the crime. Unless the applicability of Section 149 -- either clause -- is attracted and the court is convinced, on facts and in law, both, of liability capable of being fastened vicariously by reference to either clause of Section 149 IPC, merely because a criminal act was committed by a member of the assembly every other member thereof would not necessarily become liable for such criminal act. The inference as to likelihood of the commission of the given criminal act must be capable of being held to be within the knowledge of another member of the assembly who is sought to be held vicariously liable for the said criminal act."

100. In Bhagwan Singh v State of MP, AIR 2002 SC 1836 and Dani Singh v State of Bihar 2005 SCC (Cri.) 127, it has been laid down that a person can be convicted for his vicariously if he is found to be a member of the unlawful assembly sharing the common object in spite of the fact whether he had actually participated in the commission of the offence or not. In Bharosi v State of MP, AIR 2002 SC 3299, it was said that only one accused caused fatal blow the other accused could not be intended to kill the deceased and Section 149 cannot be invoked. In Nagarjit Ahir vs. State of Bihar 2005 (10 SCC 369, this Court applied rule of caution and in the facts and circumstances of the case held that it may be safe to convict only those persons against whom overt act is alleged with the aid of Section 149, IPC lest some innocent spectators may get involved. In Maranadu vs. State 2008 (16) SCC 529), the Court for determination of `common object' of unlawful assembly stated the legal position thus:

".....For determination of the common object of the unlawful assembly , the conduct of each of the members of the unlawful assembly, before and at the time of attack and thereafter, the motive for the crime, are some of the relevant considerations. What the common object of the unlawful assembly is at a particular stage of the incident is essentially a question of fact to be determined, keeping in view the nature of the assembly, the arms carried by the members, and the behaviour of the members at or near the scene of the incident. It is not necessary under law that in all cases of unlawful assembly, with an unlawful common object, the same must be translated into action or be successful. Under the Explanation to Section 141, an assembly which was not unlawful when it was assembled, may subsequently become unlawful. It is not necessary that the intention or the purpose, which is necessary to render an assembly an unlawful one comes into existence at the outset. The time of forming an unlawful intent is not material. An assembly which, at its commencement or even for some time thereafter, is lawful, may subsequently become unlawful. In other words it can develop during the course of incident at the spot eo instanti."

101. It was then held:

"It is well-known that for determination of common object of the unlawful assembly, the conduct of each of the members of the unlawful assembly before and at the time of attack is of relevant consideration. At a particular stage of the incident, what is object of the unlawful assembly is a question of fact and that has to be determined keeping in view the nature of the assembly, the arms carried by the members and the behaviour of the members at or near the scene of incident."

102. Considering the above, it was found in the facts of that case that nineteen persons were accused of coming to the scene of occurrence armed with deadly weapons sharing the common object of causing grievous hurt to the victim party. On a closer scrutiny of evidence, while applying the rule of caution, it was held by the Apex Court that only those accused persons would be convicted under Section 302 readwith Section 149 IPC whose presence as members of the party of assailants is consistently mentioned and their overt acts in chasing and assaulting deceased was clearly proved. Giving benefit of doubt to the remaining, they were acquitted of the offence under Section 302 read with Section 149 IPC, since evidence against them in chasing and assaulting the deceased was not consistent.

103. In Pandurang Chandrakant Mhatre v State of Maharashtra, 2009 (10) SCC 773, the Supreme Court held that the legal position laid down in Masalti (supra) admits of no doubt and has been followed time and again. However, where a large number of persons are alleged to have participated in the crime and they are sought to be brought to book with the aid of Section 149 IPC, the Court has to apply rule of caution taking into consideration particular facts situation to convict only those accused whose presence was clearly established and overt acts were proved. In Raj Nath v State of UP, 2009 (1) Supreme 370, the SC observed as follows:

"Section 149, IPC consists of two parts. The first part of the section means that the offence to be committed in prosecution of the common object must be one which which is committed with a view to accomplish the common object. In order that the offence may fall within the first part, the offence must be connected immediately with the common object of the unlawful assembly of which the accused was member. Even if the offence committed is not in direct prosecution of the common object of the assembly, it may yet fall under section 141, if it can be held that tge offence was such as the members knew was likely to be committed and this is what is required in the second part of the section."

104. In Bhupendra Singh v State of UP, AIR 2009 SC 3265, it was said that the word 'knew' used in second part of section 149 IPC implies something more than a mere possibility and it also does not mean 'might have been known.' Positive knowledge of the common object is necessary. The emphasis is on common object and not on common intention. Mere presence in an unlawful assembly cannot render a person liable unless there was a common object and he was actuated by that common object and that object is one of those set out in section 141. Where common object of an unlawful assembly is not proved, the accused persons cannot be convicted with the help of section 149.

105. In Mohammed Ankoos v Public Prosecutor, High Court of Andhra Pradesh, Hyderabad, 2010 (1) SCC 94, seventy seven accused persons were charged to the effect that they were members of the unlawful assembly and in prosecution of the common object of such assembly, to commit the murder of five persons, committed the offence of rioting by pouring kerosene and thereby committed an offence punishable under Section 148 IPC. All the accused were charged of committing murder by intentionally causing death and thereby committed an offence punishable under Section 302 IPC. In this case, the trial court found that neither the offence under Section 148 IPC nor under Section 302 IPC was established against the accused beyond reasonable doubt. The High Court though affirmed the findings of the trial court about the acquittal of the appellants under Section 148 IPC but convicted them for the offence punishable under Section 302 read with Section 149 IPC. The Supreme Court took the view that Section 149 IPC creates constructive liability and a person who is a member of the unlawful assembly is made guilty of the offence committed by another, although he may have had no intention to commit that offence and had done no overt act, except his presence in the assembly and sharing the common object of that assembly. But, if it is found the accused has been acquitted under Section 148 IPC, the recourse to Section 149 IPC cannot be taken and it is difficult to sustain conviction with the help of Section 149 IPC.

106. In Kuldip Yadav v State of Bihar, AIR 2011 SC 1736, it was held that Section 149 makes it clear that before convicting the accused with the aid of this provision, the court must give clear finding regarding nature of common object and that the object was unlawful. In absence of such finding as also any overt act on the part of the accused persons, mere fact that they were armed would not be sufficient to prove "common object". The Court must give clear finding regarding nature of common object and that the object was unlawful. Merely because the accused persons were armed in absence of any overt act would not be sufficient to prove common object. It is noteworthy that it was held in Raj Nath v State of UP, AIR 2009 SC 1422 also that in absence overt act, mere presence will not be sufficient to hold anyone guilty by applying section 149.

107. In a subsequent decision in Shaji v State of Kerala, 2011 (5) SCC 423, considering the above rulings, it was held that in order to attract Section 149 IPC, it must be shown that the incriminating act was done to accomplish the common object of unlawful assembly and it must be within the knowledge of other members as one likely to be committed in prosecution of the common object. This view was further affirmed in Ramachandran and others vs. State of Kerala, 2011 (9) SCC 257.

108. In State of Maharashtra v Ramlal Devappa Rathod, (2015) 15 SCC 77, the Court reiterated that section 149 makes both the categories of persons, those who committed the offence as also those who were members of the same assembly liable for the offence under section 149 IPC, if other requirements of the section are satisfied. Therefore, 'if an offence is committed by any person of unlawful assembly, which the members of that assembly knew to be likely to be committed, every member of that assembly is guilty of the offence.' Thus, the law is clear that membership of unlawful assembly is sufficient to hold such members vicariously liable.

109. In Vijay Pandurang Thakre v State of Maharashtra, AIR 2017 SC 897, the Supreme Court laying emphasis that it is on the prosecution to prove constitution of unlawful assembly by the accused persons, made following observation:

"The expression 'in prosecution of the common object' occurring in this Section postulates that the act must be one which have been done with a view to accomplish the common object attributed to the members of the unlawful assembly. This expression is to be strictly construed as equivalent to in order to attain common object. It must be immediately connected with common object by virtue of nature object. In the instant case, even the evidence is not laid on this aspect. As pointed out above, the courts below were influenced by the fact that one of the injuries on the person of Ashok was on his head which became the cause of death and from this, common object is inferred."

110. In Vinubhai Ranchhodbhai Patel v Rajivbhai Dudabhai Patel, AIR 2018 SC 2472, the Supreme Court has discussed in detail the law of vicarious liability under section 149 IPC. The Court said:

" For mulcting liability on the members of unlawful assembly under section 149, it is not necessary that every member of the unlawful assembly should commit the offence in prosecution of the common object of the assembly. Mere knowledge of the likelihood of commission of such an offence by the members of the assembly is sufficient. For example, if five or more members carrying AK 47 rifles collectively attack a victim and cause his death by gunshot injuries, the fact that one or two of the members of the assembly did not in fact fire their weapons does not mean that they did not have the knowledge of the fact that the offence of murder is likely to be committed."

The supreme court further said:

"The common object of assembly is normally to be gathered from the circumstances of each case such as the time and place of the gathering of the assembly, the conduct of the gathering as distinguished from the conduct of the individual members are indicative of the common object of the gathering. Assessing the common object of an assembly only on the basis of the overt acts committed by such individual members of the assembly, in our opinion is impermissible."

111. In State of MP v Killu @ Kailash, 2020 (1) Crimes 47 (SC), five accused persons entered into the house of complainant side in the night, each separately armed with deadly weapon, two with sharp cutting weapon, one having ballam and two having lathi. The death of deceased was caused due to two injuries of sharp cutting weapon. There was no injury caused by lathi and ballam. The Supreme Court said that this would not absolve the other accused from the criminal liability who did not cause any injury. The Court remarked:

"For the application of the principles of vicarious liability under section 149 IPC what is material to establish is that the persons concerned were members of an unlawful assembly, the common object of which was to commit a particular crime. The fact that five persons were separately armed and had entered the house of the deceased during night time is clearly indicative that each one of them was a member of that unlawful assembly, the object of which was to commit the crime.... ."

112. Further, in State of UP v Ravindra @ Babloo, 2020 (1) Crimes 57 (SC), on similar facts based on mob attack, the Supreme Court laid down as follows:

"It cannot be laid down as a general proposition of law that unless an overt act is proved against a person who is alleged to be a member of unlawful assembly, it cannot be said that he is a member of an assembly. ... . The "common object" of an assembly is to be ascertained from the acts and language of the members comprising it, and from consideration of all the surrounding circumstances. It may be gathered from the course of conduct adopted by members of the assembly. What the common object of the unlawful assembly is at a particular stage of incident is essentially a question of fact to be determined, keeping in view the nature of the assembly, the arms carried by the members, and the behaviour of the members at or near the scene of the incident."

113. On the basis of above discussion, we find that, in order to fasten criminal liability with the help of section 149 IPC, the courts are required to take into consideration the facts and circumstances of each individual case. Where there is no doubt with regards to constitution of unlawful assembly and an offence is committed by it in prosecution of common object of the assembly, every member is liable for the offence irrespective of any role played or not. For instance, five or more persons came prepared forming unlawful assembly, armed or unarmed, entered into the premises of victim and committed offence. Another case may be of mob attack where it is not possible to even determine or identify the role of individual accused. Then, there may be a situation where the assembly may not be unlawful at the very inception and it becomes instantly and subsequently unlawful. In such situation, evidence as to knowledge of unlawful object and some overt act towards accomplishment, in addition to proof of unlawful assembly, is decisive for determination of guilt with the help of section 149. Proof of common object is required for conviction with the help of Section 149 IPC. The word 'knew' used in the section means that there should be positive knowledge about the common object. Mere presence in an unlawful assembly cannot render a person liable for an offence committed by that assembly unless there was a common object. The common object has to be definitely found and cannot be a matter of conjuncture or inference. Mere presence in assembly is not sufficient unless coupled with some overt act signifying sharing the common object. The meaning of prosecution of common object is attainment of common object; and 'object' means purpose or design and in order to make it common, it must be shared by all. Joining together with common object to commit the crime and knowledge that others are going to commit the crime is to be proved and established by the prosecution.

114. In view of the aforesaid discussion in respect of vicarious criminal liability, it has to be seen what evidence is on record on the basis of which it can be determined whether the accused appellants constituted an unlawful assembly to commit crime in prosecution of common object of the unlawful assembly and committed murder of the two deceased persons and inflicted simple hurt on the person of Smt. Sudama Devi. From the perusal of FIR and statements of the fact witnesses, it is apparent that both the sides were engaged in cutting and loading crops in their adjoining fields. There was no dispute or quarrel taking place earlier or before the incident and their relationship was normal. Both the sides are related to each other by common ancestor. It is also apparent that the accused side had not come prepared with deadly weapons in the field and they had axe, spade and sickles which are agricultural tools unless used as weapon. Carrying lathi (bamboo stick) is part of village life while involved in agricultural activities. Therefore, the presence of the accused-appellants on the field cannot be termed as unlawful assembly. The mother of the informant was grazing buffaloes on the mend of the fields of both sides and this gave rise to verbal quarrel as the accused persons objected on grazing the animal in their side. Accused persons were in seven in number and similar was the strength of the informant side. All the accused persons have been assigned the role of exhortation to kill. Needless to point out that exhortation is considered to be a very week evidence, unless coupled with some overt act, to show involvement in commission of crime.

115. Out of seven accused persons, accused Ram Singh and Amar Singh have been assigned lathi, accused Siyaram with axe and their role is only of exhortation. There is no injury of lathi to the deceased or anybody else except Sudama Devi and the evidence is that she was given a lathi blow on her back by accused Sahab Singh. Accused Siyaram also did nothing. Thus, nothing was done by accused Ram Singh, Amar Singh and Siyaram which can establish that they all constituted an unlawful assembly and shared the common object to commit crime. They did not chaise or checked anyone, nor they assisted the other accused towards commission of crime. It was an open place and they were there for cutting crops. There was no premeditated and pre-designed act. They belonged to the same family and their being together will not necessarily lead to a conclusion that they formed unlawful assembly together to commit crime. This finds further support from the fact that the deceased persons have sustained one injury each and none of these three have caused that injury. This also leads to definite conclusion that they could not know or realize that any such assault was likely to be caused to deceased persons by other accused. Hence, it is not proved that they constituted unlawful assembly and when the offence was committed, any such unlawful assembly was in existence.

116. We find added support to take the above view on the basis of judgement in Nagarjit Ahir v State of Bihar, (2005) 10 SCC 369, where it was held that it may be safe to convict only those persons against whom overt act is alleged, lest some innocent spectator may get involved. In Bunnilal v State of Bihar, AIR 2006 SC 2531 where only one single blow by one accused which resulted in the death of victim and intention of other accused to cause death was not proved nor any blow was found of the weapons other accused persons were having and there was no proof of knowledge that murder is likely to be committed, it was held that such accused persons cannot be held vicariously guilty for the offence of murder. In Siyaram v State of MP, (2009) 2 Crimes 166, it has been held that mere presence in an unlawful assembly cannot render a person liable unless the common object of the assembly is proved and conviction with the help of section 149 IPC would not be sustainable without such proof. In Vishnu v State of Rajasthan (2009) 10 SCC 773, the Supreme Court cautioned the courts to ascertain whether every member of an unlawful assembly knew the offence likely to be committed in prosecution of the common object in order to convict by applying section 149 IPC. The court should guard against danger of convicting innocent persons and for that purpose scrutinize record carefully and if doubt arises, should give benefit thereof to the accused. In Pandurang Chandrkant Mahatre v State of Maharashtra, (2009) 10 SCC 773, the Supreme Court held that where a large number of persons are alleged to have participated in commission of the crime and are sought to be convicted under section 149 IPC, the court needs to consider all the fact situation and convict only those accused whose presence was clearly established and overt act was proved. In Debashish v State of WB (2010) 9 SCC 111, it was reiterated that mere presence of the persons at the scene of offence, itself would not be enough for conviction unless it is established that each one of them was part of the unlawful assembly and committed the offence in prosecution of the common object of that assembly. It has been held in Vijay Pandurang Thakre (supra) that mere presence will not imply that the accused shared common object and formed unlawful assembly. Even if unlawful assembly is presumed, it is necessary to prove that the alleged crime was the common object. The learned trial court has failed to appreciate these facts and the approach adopted by him in holding these three accused persons guilty with the help of section 149 was not correct and reasonable. As such, the impugned conviction and sentence of accused Ram Singh, Amar Singh and Siyaram for the aforesaid offences is patently perverse and not sustainable under law.

117. The discussion aforesaid goes to establish that the prosecution version of constitution of unlawful assembly by accused persons does not stand and therefore, the criminal liability of remaining accused persons has to be determined keeping in view their individual role in the commission of offence. As per prosecution evidence, deceased Bhairo was assaulted by accused Achhey Lal by his axe who died of that injury while taking to Police Station within an hour. The FIR shows that it was alleged that accused Ram Charan and Mahendra hit Sripat by spade who sustained injury and died on spot. The medical evidence shows that deceased Sripat sustained one injury ranging from face to head. In the evidence, the prosecution witnesses have stated that the assault of accused Ram Charan got missed whereupon, accused Mahendra gave the fatal blow by his spade. The learned Senior Advocate has submitted it to be a huge improvement by the eye-witnesses finding one injury in the post-mortem report to the deceased Sripat. We find that positive evidence has been adduced that deceased Sripat sustained the injury caused by accused Mahendra Singh. A close scrutiny of the statement of PW-3 informant shows that he has not stated this fact to the IO even, nor any of the fact witnesses have stated as such. On the contrary, they have stated to IO that Ram Charan and Mahendra Singh, both hit Sripat by their spade. This improvement has been made only during trial that assault of accused Ram Charan got missed. In Alamgir v State of NCT, Delhi, (2003) 1 SCC 21, it has been laid down that if a relevant fact is not mentioned in the statement of the witness recorded u/s 161 CrPC but the same has been stated by the witness before the court as prosecution witness, then that would not be a ground for rejecting the evidence if his evidence is otherwise credit worthy and acceptable. Omission on the part of the police officer would not take away nature and character of the evidence. There is no doubt about the legal principle that the statement given to IO under section 161 CrPC can be used to contradict the testimony, but ultimately, what is stated before the court on oath during trial prevails. Now the question is what would be impact of this improvement? Certainly, this is a material contradiction, discrepancy and improvement with regards to the role of accused Ram Charan and it creates doubt about his involvement in the crime. Virtually, the fact witnesses have themselves absolved accused Ram Charan from any criminal liability in the incident. As such, accused Ram Charan should have been given benefit of doubt by the learned trial court and to that extent, the impugned judgement is not sustainable under law.

118. Now coming to the case of accused-appellant Achchhey lal who gave the fatal blow to deceased Bhairo and accused Mahendra Singh who caused injury to Sripat who instantly died out of that injury. Three eye-witnesses have stated that they caused injury and the same is supported by medical evidence. There is consistency in the statements of the witnesses and nothing has come out so as to disbelieve or discard their testimony. Their presence is natural at the time of incident and they are trustworthy. The axe and spade used for the commission of offence have been recovered on their pointing and in forensic examination, human blood has been found on them. Both the accused persons gave fatal blow which resulted in death of the two deceased persons. So far as contradiction, discrepancies and improvement in the statement of witnesses is concerned, they need not be over-emphasized in view of settled law that normal contradictions appearing in the testimony of a witness do not destroy or weaken the credibility of a case but material contradictions do so. In Sucha Singh v State of Punjab, (2003) 7 SCC 643 there are minor inconsistencies in the statements of witnesses and FIR in regard to number of blows inflicted and failure to state who injured whom, would by itself not make the testimony of the witnesses unreliable. This, on the contrary, shows that the witnesses were not tutored and they gave no parrot like stereotyped evidence. In Maqsoodan v State of UP, (1983) 1 SCC 218 where the witnesses give consistent version of the incident, it has been held by the Supreme Court that the consistent testimony of the witnesses should be held credible.

119. It is also clear that the FIR was lodged without any delay. The injuries found on the body of the deceased persons namely Bhairo and Sripat find support from the medical evidence and from the post-mortem report by which the date and time of causing the injuries is very much corroborated. Medical evidence clearly indicates that because of head injury both must have died immediately. The impact of the injury was such that brain was coming out from the head and it shows that the blow was such that it could in all probability cause instant death of the deceased persons. The place of occurrence has been fully established. There is no substantial contradiction or discrepancies in the evidence of the prosecution and some of the minor contradiction and discrepancies which have been discussed above does not effect the reliability of the witnesses and that also shows that they are not tutored. Thus, the witnesses examined by prosecution are natural, credible and trustworthy, so as to prove guilt beyond shadow of doubt against accused Achchhey Lal and Mahendra Singh.

120. The learned Senior Advocate for the accused-appellants has submitted that the case is covered by section 304 IPC simpliciter as per definition of culpable homicide and also, the facts of the case attract Explanation IV of section 300 IPC. As such, the conviction and sentence of accused persons for the offence under section 302 is illegal and the offence, if any is covered maximum under section 304 Part I IPC. Supporting his argument, the learned Senior Counsel has pointed out that only single injury has been caused in causing death and none of the appellants repeated the blow. There was no enmity nor any premeditation between two sides and they are related by common ancestor. Moreover, there was verbal altercation on account of buffaloes grazing in the field and upon the heat of sudden quarrel, the incident took place.

121. It has also been submitted that even against assailant Achchey Lal and Mahendra, an offence under Section 302 IPC is not made out as it is case of single blow in a sudden quarrel after being provoked by Heera Bai who was being backed in the quarrel by Bhairon and Sripat at the time of incident. The place of occurrence is situated in the field, which belonged to accused-appellants where the cattle of complainant side were grazing and it was objected from the side of accused persons. On which they insisted and claimed right to graze their cattle there. If considered the over all facts and circumstances, the offence under Section 304 part 2 IPC can only be attracted and in no case an offence under Section 302 IPC could be made out.

122. The learned Senior Advocate has referred the judgement in Criminal Appeal No. 5887 of 2010 (Haider Ali and others v State of UP), decided on 6.5.2019 where a Division Bench of this Court citing a numbers of judgement of the Supreme Court, converted the conviction under Section 302 IPC into Section 304 part 2 IPC giving advantage of Exception 4 of Section 300 IPC. The submission of the learned counsel to the accused-appellants is that in such situation where no role and act has been assigned, conviction of other accused persons is arbitrary and illegal. It has also been argued that the admitted fact is that the field of both sides is adjoining and both the sides were involved in agricultural activities in their respective fields. Only mother of the informant was grazing buffaloes on the mend upon which the incident allegedly took place. There was no previous enmity and the accused persons cannot be said to have come prepared to commit offence. The incident took place suddenly and there was no occasion for the accused persons to constitute unlawful assembly with the common object to commit the offence.

123. Section 299 IPC defines culpable homicide and section 300 of the Indian Penal Code defines murder and culpable homicide not amounting to murder as below:

"299. Culpable homicide - Whoever causes death by doing an act with intention of causing death, or with the intention of causing such bodily injury as islikely to cause death, or with the knowledge that he is likely by such act to cause death, commits the offence of culpable homicide."

"300. Murder.--Except in the cases hereinafter excepted, culpable homicide is murder, if the act by which the death is caused is done with the intention of causing death, or--

2ndly. - If it is done with the intention of causing such bodily injury as the offender knows to be likely to cause the death of the person to whom the harm is caused, or

3rdly. - If it is done with the intention of causing bodily injury to any person and the bodily injury intended to be inflicted is sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death, or--

4thly. - If the person committing the act knows that it is so imminently dangerous that it must, in all probability, cause death or such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, and commits such act without any excuse for incurring the risk of causing death or such injury as aforesaid.

Exception 1.--When culpable homicide is not murder.--Culpable homicide is not murder if the offender, whilst deprived of the power of self-control by grave and sudden provocation, causes the death of the person who gave the provocation or causes the death of any other person by mistake or accident.

The above exception is subject to the following provisos:--

First. - That the provocation is not sought or voluntarily provoked by the offender as an excuse for killing or doing harm to any person.

Secondly. - That the provocation is not given by anything done in obedience to the law, or by a public servant in the lawful exercise of the powers of such public servant.

Thirdly. - That the provocation is not given by anything done in the lawful exercise of the right of private defence.

Exception 2.--Culpable homicide is not murder if the offender, in the exercise in good faith of the right of private defence of person or property, exceeds the power given to him by law and causes the death of the person against whom he is exercising such right of defence without premeditation, and without any intention of doing more harm than is necessary for the purpose of such defence.

Exception 3.--Culpable homicide is not murder if the offender, being a public servant or aiding a public servant acting for the advancement of public justice, exceeds the powers given to him by law, and causes death by doing an act which he, in good faith, believes to be lawful and necessary for the due discharge of his duty as such public servant and without ill-will towards the person whose death is caused.

Exception 4.--Culpable homicide is not murder if it is committed without premeditation in a sudden fight in the heat of passion upon a sudden quarrel and without the offender having taken undue advantage or acted in a cruel or unusual manner.

Exception 5.--Culpable homicide is not murder when the person whose death is caused, being above the age of eighteen years, suffers death or takes the risk of death with his own consent."

124. Several times, the courts in India have outlined the distinction between the two offences and the thrust of the distinction has been based on the the degree of probability of the consequence of the criminal act. Where death is the most probable result and is caused with intention to cause death, the offence is murder, and where it is probable result, it is culpable homicide. The murder may become culpable homicide not amounting to murder if circumstances exist to bring the murder within any of the five exceptions to section 300 IPC. Academically, the distinction appears to be easy, but, when comes to factual matrix and is required to be determined on the basis of objective assessment of fact and evidence, the task is hard and a lot depends upon the sixth sense of the presiding judge who has been asked to give a decision.

125. In State of AP vs Rayavarapu Punnayya, AIR 1977 SC 45, the Supreme Court made following observation:

" .... whenever a court is confronted with the question whether the offence is "murder" or "culpable homicide not amounting to murder", on the facts of a case, it will be convenient for it to approach the problem in three stages. The question to be considered at the first stage would be, whether the accused has done an act by doing which he has caused the death of another. Proof of such causal connection between the act of the accused and the death leads to the second stage for considering whether that act of the accused amounts to "culpable homicide" as defined in section 299. If the answer to this question is prima facie found in the affirmative, the stage for considering the operation of section 300, Penal Code is reached. This is the stage at which the court should determine whether the facts proved by the prosecution brings the case within the ambit of any of the four clauses of the definition of "murder"contained in section 300. If the answer to this question is in the negative the offence would be "culpable homicide not amounting to murder" punishable under the first or the second part of section 304, depending, respectively,on whether the second or the third clause of section 299 is applicable. If this question is found in the positive, but the case comes within any of the exceptions enumerated in section 300, the offence would still be "culpable homicide not amounting to murder," punishable under the first part of section 304, Penal Code."

It was further observed:

"In the scheme of the Penal Code, "culpable homicide" is genus and "murder" its specie. All "murder" is "culpable homicide" but not vice-versa. Speaking generally, "culpable homicide" sans "special characteristics of murder", is "culpable homicide not amounting to murder". For the purpose of fixing punishment, proportionate to the gravity of this generic offence, the Code practically recognises three degrees of culpable homicide. The first is, what may be called, "culpable homicide of the first degree".

This is the greatest form of culpable homicide, which is defined in Section 300 as "murder". The second may be termed as "culpable homicide of the second degree."

126. The above observation has been referred in subsequent decisions and the same holds the field as a guideline in order to appreciate and understand the distinguishing features of the offence of 'murder,' 'culpable homicide' and 'culpable homicide not amounting to murder.' In every murder there is culpable homicide and on existence of certain facts as mentioned in five exceptions to section 300 IPC, a murder may become culpable homicide not amounting to murder, and the difference between the two is the degree of probability and certainty. Where death is the likely result, it is culpable homicide and where it is most obvious result, the offence is murder and if such murder is covered by any of the exceptions to section 300, the same is punishable under section 304 and not under section 302 of the Indian Penal Code.

127. In Pappu vs State of MP, (2006) 7 SCC 391, the Supreme Court exhaustively dealt with the parameters of Exception 4 to section 300 and held that the same can be invoked if death is caused 1. without premeditation; 2. in a sudden fight; 3. without the offender having taken undue advantage or acting in a cruel or unusual manner; and 4. the fight must have been with the person killed. It was remarked,

"It cannot be laid down as a rule of universal application that whenever one blow is given, section 302 ipc is ruled out. It would depend upon the weapon used, the size of it in some cases, force with which the blow was given, part of the body on which it was given and several such relevant factors."

128. In Jagriti Devi vs State of HP, (2009) 14 SCC 771, it was held that the expression 'intention' and 'knowledge' postulate the existence of a positive mental attitude. It was further held that when and if there is intent and knowledge, then the same would be a case under first part of section 304 and if it is only a case of knowledge and not intention to cause death by bodily injury, then the same would be a case of second part of section 304.

129. In Chenda alias Chanda Ram vs State of Chhatisgarh, (2013) 12 SCC 10, pointing out that 'culpability depends on the knowledge, motive and the manner of the act of the accused,' the Supreme Court referring to Rayavarapu Punnayya (supra), converted the conviction of accused from section 302 IPC to section 304 IPC taking into consideration the following circumstances:

*"There is no evidence or previous enmity. The incident has taken place on the spur of the moment. There is no evidence regarding the intention behind the fatal consequence of the blow. There was only one blow. The accused is young. There was no premeditation. The evolution of the incident would show that it was in the midst of a sudden fight. There is no criminal background or adverse history of the appellant. It was a trivial quarrel among the villagers on account of a simple issue. The fatal blow was in the course of a scuffle between two persons. There has been no other act of cruelty or unusual conduct on the part of the appellant. The deceased was involved in the scuffle in the presence of hi*s wife and he had been actually been called upon by her to the spot.... ."

130. In Lavghanbha Devjibhai Vasava vs State of Gujarat, (2018) 4 SCC 329, the Supreme Court summarized the parameters to be taken into consideration while deciding the question as to whether a case falls under section 302 or section 304 IPC as follows:

"(a) the circumstance in which the incident took place; (b) the nature of weapon used; (c) whether the weapon was carried or taken from spot; (d) whether the assault was aimed on vital part of body; (e) the amount of the force used; (f) whether the deceased participated in the sudden fight; (g) whether there was any previous enmity; (h) whether there was any sudden provocation; (I) whether the attack was in the heat of passion; and (whether the person inflicting injury took any undue advantage or acted in the cruel or unusual manner.)"

131. On the basis of above discussion, to put it in simple terms, as outlined in Rayavarapu Punnayya (supra), it is clear that the Indian Penal Code recognizes three degrees of culpable homicide namely, (1) culpable homicide of the first degree, a gravest form of culpable homicide which is defined under section 300 as murder, (2) culpable homicide of the second degree, a lower or lessor form of homicide not amounting to murder as defined in section 299, punishable under the first part of section 304 and (3) culpable homicide of the third degree, a lowest type of culpable homicide, punishable under the second part of section 304.

132. The above classification is based on factors such as the degree of intention, surrounding circumstances in which death was caused, weapon used, influence of apprehension from severe beating from which the accused wanted to escape, causing injury exceeding the right of private defence, presence of premeditation and the like. A person has a right to defend himself and his own person and for that purpose he can use and cause injury as much as it is necessary. But if he exceeds his right and causes more injury than necessary and if death of such person results, the same is culpable homicide not amounting to murder.

133. Exception 4 to Section 300 of the IPC applies in the absence of any premeditation. In fact, Exception 4 deals with cases in which notwithstanding that a blow may have been struck, or some provocation given in the origin of the dispute or in whatever way the quarrel may have originated, yet the subsequent conduct of both parties puts them in respect of guilt upon an equal footing. The question which arises for consideration of this Court is as to whether the act of accused-appellants would fall within the definition of 'murder' or it would be 'culpable homicide not amounting to murder'. A "sudden fight" implies mutual provocation and blows on each side. The homicide committed is then clearly not traceable to unilateral provocation, nor could in such cases the whole blame be placed on one side. Where there is no previous deliberation or determination to fight and a fight suddenly takes place, for which both parties are more or less to be blamed. It may be that one of them starts it, but if the other had not aggravated it by his own conduct it would not have taken the serious turn it did. There is then mutual provocation and aggravation, and it is difficult to apportion the share of blame which attaches to each fighter. The help of Exception 4 can be invoked if death is caused (a) without premeditation, (b) in a sudden fight, (c) without the offenders having taken undue advantage or acted in a cruel or unusual manner, and (d) the fight must have been with the person killed. To bring a case within Exception 4 all the ingredients mentioned in it must be found. It is to be noted that the "fight" occurring in Exception 4 to Section 300 IPC is not defined in IPC. It takes two to make a fight. Heat of passion requires that there must be no time for the passions to cool down and in this case, the parties had worked themselves into a fury on account of the verbal altercation in the beginning. A fight is a combat between two and more persons whether with or without weapons. It is not possible to enunciate any general rule as to what shall be deemed to be a sudden quarrel. It is a question of fact and whether a quarrel is sudden or not must necessarily depend upon the proved facts of each case. For the application of Exception 4, it is not sufficient to show that there was a sudden quarrel and there was no premeditation. It must further be shown that the offender has not taken undue advantage or acted in a cruel or unusual manner. The expression "undue advantage" as used in the provision means "unfair advantage".

134. It has been also argued by the learned Senior Advocate that there appears to be no premeditation on the part of accused. Death has not been caused in unusual or cruel manner. There appears to be no enmity nor any criminal back ground of the accused. In our view, the following observation of the judgement in Kirpal Singh vs State, AIR 1951 Punjab & Haryana 137 is significant:

"To constitute a premeditated killing, it is necessary that the accused should have reflected with a view to determine whether he would kill or not; and that he should have determined to kill as the result of that reflection; that is to say, the killing should be a premeditated killing upon consideration and not a sudden killing under the sudden excitement and under impulse of passion upon provocation given at the time or so recently before as not to allow time for reflection. Such premeditation may be established by direct or circumstantial evidence, such as previous threats, expression of ill feelings, acts of preparation to kill; such as procuring a deadly weapon or selecting a dangerous weapon in preference to one less dangerous, and by the manner in which the killing was committed. For example, repeated shots, blows or other acts of violence are sufficient evidence of premeditation. Premeditation is not proved from the mere fact of a killing by the use of a deadly weapon but must be shown by the manner of the killing and the circumstances, under which it was done or from the other facts in evidence."

135. We find that the above proposition of law holds authority to determine the criminal liability for the offence of murder, culpable homicide and culpable homicide not amounting to murder. Several factors are to be taken into consideration keeping in view the facts and surrounding circumstances of each individual case. Thus, in Mahesh v State of MP, (1996) 6 SCC 668, where on account of cattle grazing in the field of accused by the victim side and accused objecting to it resulting in a sudden fight in terms of verbal altercation and may be exchange of abuse and hot words between both the sides, the accused gave one blow of spade causing death of the deceased, the Supreme Court modified the conviction from section 302 IPC to section 304 IPC. The Court made following observation:

*".... we find that when appellant arrived along with the cattle at the field there was no premeditation for the assault. At the spot, there was altercation between the parties and in the sudden fight, after the deceased objected to the grazing of the cattle, when possibly hot words or even abuses were exchanged between the parties, the appellant gave a single blow with the pharsa on the head of the deceased. ..... thus, placed as the appellant and the deceased were at the time of occurrence, it appears to us that the appellant assaulted the deceased in that sudden fight and after giving him one blow took to his heals. He did not cause any other injury to the deceased and therefore it cannot be said that he acted in any cruel or unusual manner. Admittedly, he did not assault PW-2 or PW-6 who were also present along with the deceased..... . this fortifies our belief that the assault on the deceased was made during a sudden quarrel without any premeditation. In this fact situat*ion, we are of the opinion that Exception-4 to section 300 IPC is clearly attracted... ."

136. In Surain Singh v State of Punjab (2017) 5 SCC 796, there was dispute between both the sides on the point of irrigation. On the fateful day, the criminal incident took place resulting in death of two persons by giving several blows by a small kripan. The Supreme Court converted the conviction from section 302 IPC to section 304 IPC giving benefit of Exception-4 to section 300 IPC.

137. Now coming to the facts of this case, we find that accused Achchhey Lal gave one blow to deceased Bhairo and Mahendra Singh gave one blow to Sripat by his pharsa which resulted in death of both the deceased. Admittedly, the quarrel struck because the mother of the informant was grazing buffaloes at the time of incident on the mend of the fields of both the sides. From the side of accused persons it was objected saying why she left cattle towards their field. In the statement, PW-3 informant has stated that his mother was grazing four animals. The informant has stated that the mend between the fields of both sides was four feet wide which is apparently incorrect as the mend is normally about one to two feet maximum and this fact stands supported by the statement of PW-4 Badam Singh who has stated the mend to be one or one and half feet wide. This possibility cannot be ruled out that some of the animals might have entered in the field of accused side as the animal are not supposed to be that disciplined to restrict themselves on the mend nor it was possible for the mother of informant to alone keep the four animals on the mend. This gave rise to verbal quarrel as the accused side was objecting and the complainant side was insisting to let the cattle graze. Naturally, there was verbal altercation, exchange of hot words and possibly exchange of abuses between both sides. The accused persons were working in their fields. There is no evidence of any earlier dispute or enmity between both the sides nor there is any evidence that the accused persons came prepared in the field with any planning of committing offence. On the contrary, both sides are close relatives with normal relation and with no previous dispute. The offence has been committed by axe and spade which are normal agricultural tools. Therefore, it can also not be said that they took any unfair advantage during the incident. Both the accused gave only one blow and did not repeat the assault further, nor they chased any other person of complainant side nor caused injury to them. They did not even stay there after giving blow and ran away to forest, although, there was not much resistance or challenge from the side of complainant. Of course, death resulted of two persons by single blow given by both the accused almost instantly and the blow was so powerful that brain came out from the head, but, as discussed earlier, the nature of injury is not decisive of culpability and requisite intention and knowledge to cause death is significant and the same has to be determined keeping in view the preparation made, weapon used, nature of relationship between both sides whether normal or inimical and surrounding circumstances. In Surain Singh (supra) several blows were given by kripan causing death of two persons and there was enmity and litigation on the point of irrigation and in Mahesh (supra) death was caused in sudden verbal quarrel between both sides, and the Supreme Court converted the conviction from section 302 to section 304 IPC. In Govind singh vs State of Chhattisgarh, AIR 2019 SC 2120 and Rambir vs State of NCT, Delhi, AIR 2019 SC 2264, where the appellant was convicted for the offence under section 302 IPC, the Supreme Court, finding that there was no premeditation on the part of the accused and the incident took place in sudden quarrel, modified the offence into that of section 304 IPC and reduced the sentence accordingly. We find on facts and on the basis of above discussion and analysis of the judgement of the Supreme Court on the point, that the case of accused Achchhey Lal and Mahendra Singh is on much better footing to conclude that their act attracts the offence of culpable homicide not amounting to murder punishable under section 304 Part I instead of the offence of murder punishable under section 302 IPC.

138. On the basis of above discussion, we are of the view that the conviction and sentence of accused-appellants Ram Singh, Amar Singh and Siyaram is illegal and not sustainable and they are entitled to be acquitted, whereas, accused-appellant Ram Charan is entitled to be acquitted according him benefit of doubt. The charges against accused-appellants Achchhey Lal and Mahendra Singh for the offence under section 148, 323/149 IPC have not been proved beyond shadow of doubt and they deserve to be acquitted for the said charge. The conviction of accused-appellants Achchhey Lal and Mahendra Singh is liable to be converted from section 302 IPC to section 304 Part I IPC and consequently, their sentence of life imprisonment is liable to be modified to 12 years rigorous imprisonment and fifty thousand rupees fine each and in default, two years additional imprisonment. Out of the amount of fine so deposited, 80% is directed to be paid to the informant/ heir of deceased persons.

139. Criminal Appeal no. 1164 of 2000 is allowed. The conviction and sentence of accused-appellants Siyaram, Ram Singh, and Amar Singh for the offence under section 302/149, 147, 323/149 IPC and accused-appellant Ram Charan for the offence under section 302/149, 148, 323/149 IPC is set aside and they are acquitted.

140. Criminal Appeal no. 1503 of 2000 is partly allowed. The conviction and sentence of accused-appellants Achchhey Lal and Mahendra Singh for the offence under section 148, 323/149 is set aside and they are acquitted for the said charge. The conviction of Accused-appellants Achchhey Lal and Mahendra Singh for the offence under section 302/149 IPC is converted into that of section 304 Part I IPC and consequently, their sentence of life imprisonment is reduced to 12 years rigorous imprisonment and fifty thousand rupees fine each and in default, two years additional imprisonment. Out of the amount of fine so deposited, 80% is directed to be paid to the informant/ heir of deceased persons.

141. Accused-appellants Achchhey Lal and Mahendra Singh are directed to surrender before the learned trial court forthwith where from they will be sent to jail to undergo the sentence.

142. Lower court record be transmitted back to the court below with a copy of this judgement to the court below for information and compliance.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Anant Kumar, J.)

1. This criminal appeal under Section 374 (2) of Cr.P.C. has been filed against the judgment and order dated 12.07.2013, passed by the learned Additional District & Sessions Judge, Court No.8, Lucknow in Criminal Case No. 281A of 2006 (Union of India Vs. Aashu Pandit @ Aashu Bajpai @ Aash Narayan Sharma) by which the appellant has been convicted for the offence under Section 8(C)/20(B)(II) of NDPS Act, 1985 and sentenced to undergo 14 Years' R.I. with a fine of Rs.2.00 Lakhs, with default stipulation.

2. Brief facts relevant for disposal of the present criminal appeal are that on behalf of Union of India through Radha Raman Singh, Investigating Officer, Directorate of Revenue Intelligence, Lucknow Regional Unit, 3/71 Vivek Khand, Gomti Nagar, Lucknow had filed a written complaint before the Court of Sessions Judge, Lucknow under Section 8C/20(b) (ii) (C)/29/25 of of NDPS Act, 1985 with the assertion that complainant was an intelligence officer in the Directorate of Revenue Intelligence, posted at Regional Unit, Lucknow and was competent to file this complaint. On the basis of a specific intelligence that Hashish (Charas) is being transported from Nepal by Truck bearing Registration No.UP78/AT 3680 the Deputy Director, Directorate of Revenue Intelligence, Lucknow had sent a team with the direction to intercept the said truck, contraband goods and accused persons. As per the intelligence, it was informed that the said Charas was kept in secret cavity in the back of the driver's cabin of the truck. On getting this information two public witnesses Shri Amrajeet and Shri Rakesh Sharma were called by the DRI officials at Capt. Manoj Pandey Chauraha near Gomti Nagar Police Station, Lucknow at 4.45 A.M. on 28.05.2006. They were told about the information and were requested to accompany the team to witness the proposed action of interception, search of the truck and recovery of the contraband to which both witnesses had agreed and they accompanied the raiding team. The raiding party along with the public witnesses proceeded towards Gosainganj, Lucknow and waited for the said truck near Gosainganj Tiraha, Kanpur bypass at Gosainganj. At about 6.00 A.M. on 28.05.2006 the said truck No. UP87-AT 3680 was seen coming from Haidergarh. It was signalled to stop by the officers.

3. When the said truck stopped the DRI officials introduced themselves to the driver and cleaner and told the purpose of interception of the said truck. It was disclosed to them that search would be done as per requirement of NDPS Act, 1985. On the spot the driver who was driving the truck disclosed his name and address as opposite party no.1 Rajesh Kumar Mishra, S/o late Shri Arjun Mishra, R/o Village Ganeshpur, P.O.- Dhhakhwa Bazar, Police Station Sikriganj, District Gorakhpur and the cleaner as Shri Raju Dube, S/o Shri Rajesh Dube, R/o Village Rooppur, Post office, Police Station and District Kannauj (truck Khalasi).

4. At first the driver and the Khalasi were hesitant but later on they disclosed that Charas was kept in the secret cavity made on the back of the driver's cabin. The said driver and Khalasi were given a right to be searched themselves as well as the truck before the nearest Magistrate or the Gazetted Officer in compliance of Section 50 of NDPS Act, 1985. Both the persons consented in writing before the intercepting party. For safety and security and on the consent of the driver and khalasi intercepting team took the truck along with both the public witnesses to DRI office at 2/31, Vishal Khand, Gomti Nagar, Lucknow and the search of the truck was made in the presence of the intercepting party and witnesses and 720 rectangular shaped bars of Charas (each bar of 250 gms.) were recovered at the instance of driver and khalasi from the secret cavity specifically fabricated on the back of the driver's cabin, which on weighing was found to be 180 Kgs. and after mixing the recoveries, four mixed samples of approximately 25 gms each were obtained from the recovered Charas for testing purpose. The four respective samples were sealed and sent for chemical examination and the remaining Charas was sealed in 09 packets, duly signed by the accused, public witnesses and the member of the intercepting party.

5. Statement of accused namely Raju Dubey was written on the dictation of the accused before Shri Atul Kumar Srivastava, Intelligence Officer, DRI, Lucknow Regional Unit, Lucknow and the statement of accused Rajesh Kumar Mishra, Driver was written himself before Shri Ravindra Kumar Tiwari, Intelligence Officer, DRI, Lucknow Regional Unit, Lucknow.

6. Shri Rajesh Kumar Mishra, driver, in his statement dated 28.05.2006 accepted the crime mentioned in the Panchayat Nama/recovery memo dated 28.05.2006. He also revealed that he came in contact of present appellant at a Dhaba in Nankari (Kanpur) for about one month ago. On the first meeting appellant revealed that he had a truck which contained secret cavity and asked me to drive said truck which contains illegal goods in the secret cavity for which he was to be paid Rs.7000/-. On 27.05.2006 present appellant called Rajesh Mishra at Dhaba situated at Basi (District Sidharth Nagar) near petrol pump. On the said place appellant met Rajesh Kumar Mishra and handed over him the said truck and introduced him to Raju Dubey (Khalasi) at the said truck. Appellant revealed that the Charas was kept in the secret cavity as stated above. They were directed to drive the said truck to Kanpur where the appellant shall meet them and would instruct them regarding further plan.

7. Khalasi also gave almost similar statement on 28.05.2006 and stated that said Rajesh Mishra and Raju Dubey reached Basi on 27.05.2006 in the morning where the appellant was present with another driver Pappu. Ashu Pandit (present appellant) along with other driver headed to Nepal with the said truck and came back at Basi in the evening of that day after loading Charas in the secret cavity and handed over the truck to the opposite party no.1 & 2 and present appellant instructed them to drive the said truck up to Nankari where he would contact them again. But during the said transaction the truck was intercepted, as stated above.

8. During the course of investigation residence of the present appellant was searched but nothing incriminating was recovered from his residence. Various summons were issued to him but he did not appear before the Court and he was not found at the given address.

9. After filing of the complaint since whereabouts of the present appellant was not known the appellant was declared absconder by the trial court vide its order dated 18.02.2008 and the trial of other accused persons Rajesh Kumar Mishra and Raju Dubey proceeded. It is informed that in a separate trial they have already been convicted by the trial court. However, from the perusal of the record of this case which proceeded separately it is evident that later on it was revealed that present appellant is languishing in jail in Kanpur in some other case. So, the accused was summoned through B warrant from Kanpur jail and trial of the present appellant separately proceeded. During the trial the appellant denied all the allegations made against him in the complaint and he stated that he had no concern or relation with the opposite parties Nos. 1 & 2 Rajesh Kumar Mishra and Raju Dubey. He never met them and he even stated that the said truck UP 78 AT 3680 also does not belong to him. During the course of investigation it was found that the said truck was registered in the name of one Shri Amit Kumar, S/o Hari Narain, 1/17 Barsaitpur, Kalyanpur, Kanpur. When the summons were issued in the name of the said Amit Kumar on 27.06.2006 said summons were returned back with the endorsement that on the said address he was not found. Again Investigating Officer contacted previous owner of the truck Vijay Narain Sharma who had sold the said truck to Amit Kumar. Shri Vijay Narain Sharma disclosed that he came in contact with Amit through a broker at RTO officer when in the RTO office said broker in the name of Pandey was contacted no such person was found. As per market value the 180 Kg. Was found value of Rs.54.00 Lakhs and the value of the truck was Rs.4.00 Lakhs.

10. On behalf of prosecution, four witnesses PW 1 Ravindra Kumar Tiwari, PW 2 Atul Kumar Srivastava, PW 3 Rajesh Khanna, PW 4 Radha Raman Singh were examined and to prove the guilt of the appellant Exhibits Ka 1 to Ka 26 were produced.

11. After completion of the prosecution witnesses statement of accused was recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. wherein he was referred to the evidence recorded against him during the trial to which he denied and stated that he is innocent. He has got no concern either with the said truck or with the other two accused named above. No recovery has been taken place from his possession, nor from his house any incriminating material has been recovered. He has been falsely implicated in this case. Accused was given a chance to adduce in his defence but no such evidence has been given.

12. After completion of the evidence from both the sides, the trial court heard the parties and the appellant was convicted as stated above. Hence this appeal.

13. I have heard learned counsel for the appellant as well as learned counsel for Union of India (Directorate of Revenue Intelligence).

14. The argument of learned counsel for the appellant is that according to the prosecution case itself it is an admitted case that the appellant was not arrested on the spot and there is no confessional statement or other statement of the appellant either before the arrest or after his arrest before any authority recorded under Section 67 of NDPS Act. Prosecution Witness PW 4 has also admitted in his deposition before the trial court that present appellant has been made accused merely on the basis of confessional statement of co-accused persons Rajesh Kumar Mishra and Raju Dubey. Prosecution in effort to prove either exclusive possession or the contraband article nor the prosecution could prove even the conscious possession of the appellant regarding the truck or the contraband contained therein through any direct or indirect evidence beyond any reasonable doubt. The trial court has wrongly passed the conviction order against the appellant without any evidence or material on record against the appellant. The prosecution also could not prove the link evidence either regarding the ownership of the truck in question or the ownership of the recovered contraband article against the appellant either during investigation or during trial. It is also stated that after recovery dated 28.05.2006 the appellant's house was also searched but no incriminating article was found from his house. The mode and manner of recording statement of arrested co-accused persons namely Rajesh Kumar Mishra and Raju Dubey under Section 67 of NDPS Act clearly indicates that both were recorded after taking them into custody by DRI officials. Therefore the same is also hit by Article 20 (3) of the Constitution of India and such statement is neither admissible against the appellant, nor it may be read against any other person.

15. It is also argued that it is a settled proposition of law that the confessional statement of any other accused persons cannot be made basis and foundation for launching criminal prosecution against any person and also would not be sufficient for awarding conviction until and unless the same is not corroborated by any independent evidence and material whereas in the present case, there is no connecting evidence in commission of crime against the appellant either collected by the Investigating Officer during investigation or produced during trial.

16. To substantiate the argument, learned counsel for the appellant has placed reliance upon a case law 2018 (3) JIC 820 (SC) : Surinder Kumar Khanna Vs. Intelligence Officer, Directorate of Revenue Intelligence. The brief facts of the said case are similar to the present case and according to the case of Surinder Kumar Khanna (supra) on a specific information that narcotic drugs were going to be transported in a truck No. PB 02 AJ 7288, the officers of the Directorate of Revenue Intelligence (for short "DRI") laid picket at a toll barrier and when said Indica Car of white color was intercepted, in the said car two persons, Raj Kumar @ Raju and one Surinder Pal Singh were found. The vehicle was being driven by one Raj Kumar @ Raju whereas Surinder Pal Singh was sitting next to him. When search of the vehicle was made, four packets wrapped with yellowish adhesive tapes were found concealed in the door of Dickey of the car. The gross weight of those four packets was 4.300 Kg. Those four packets were taken into possession. Two representative samples of 5 Gms. each were taken out as per rules. Statements of both the suspects were recorded. From their statements, it transpired that four packets of heroin had been taken from one Mr. Goldy and those bags were to be delivered to a person of African origin near PGI Chandigarh. A complaint under the relevant sections of NDPS Act was lodged against said Raj Kumar @ Raju and Surinder Pal Singh. During investigation involvement of the appellant Surinder Kumar Khanna was said to have been made out. After the appellant was arrested, a supplementary complaint was presented against him and the matter was taken up with the main complaint. The trial court convicted the appellant along with other two accused persons Surinder Kumar Khanna, Raj Kumar @ Raju and Surinder Pal Singh. When the matter came up before the Hon'ble High Court in appeal, the High Court took a view that :-

"5. As regards the appellant, it was observed by the High Court that he was specifically named by co-accused Raj Kumar @ Raju and Surinder Pal Singh in their statements. Apart from such statements nothing was produced on record to indicate the involvement of the appellant. The High Court however found that the case against the appellant was made out. It was observed:

"Offence of abetment under Section 29 of NDPS Act stood established against accused Surinder Kumar Khanna, showing that he was involved in drug trafficking. He was specifically named by accused Raj Kumar @ Raju and Surinder Pal Singh in their statements. Such statements of accused Raj Kumar @ Raju and Surinder Pal Singh recorded under Section 67 of the NDPS Act are admissible in evidence and are not hit by Section 25 of the Evidence Act because the officers of DRI, who had apprehended Raj Kumar @ Raju and Surinder Pal Singh, traveling in an Indica car and effecting recovery from them do not come within the definition of police officers."

The High Court thus affirmed the order of conviction as recorded against the appellant but reduced the sentence to rigorous imprisonment for a period of 10 years and to pay fine of Rs.1 lakh, in default whereof to undergo further rigorous imprisonment for 1½ years. Similar orders of sentence were passed in respect of other co-accused namely Raj Kumar @ Raju and Surinder Pal Singh."

17. The said conviction was challenged before the Hon'ble Apex Court. The Hon'ble Apex Court after taking into consideration the earlier pronouncements of Apex Court found that the issue whether statement recorded under Section 67 of NDPS Act can be construed as a confessional statement even if the officer who recorded such statement was not to be treated as a police officer, has now been referred to a larger bench : -

"10. Even if we are to proceed on the premise that such statement under Section 67 of the NDPS Act may amount to confession, in our view, certain additional features must be established before such a confessional statement could be relied upon against a co-accused. It is noteworthy that unlike Section 15 of Terrorist and Disruptive Activities Act, 1987 [Similarly Section 18 of Maharashtra Control of Organized Crime Act, 1999] which specifically makes confession of a co-accused admissible against other accused in certain eventualities; there is no such similar or identical provision in the NDPS Act making such confession admissible against a co-accused. The matter therefore has to be seen in the light of the law laid down by this Court as regard general application of a confession of a co-accused as against other accused.

11. In Kashmira Singh v. State of Madhya Pradesh, (1952) SCR 526, this Court relied upon the decision of the Privy Council in Bhuboni Sahu v. the King, (1949) 76 Indian Appeal 147 at 155 and laid down as under :

"Gurubachan's confession has played an important part in implicating the appellant, and the question at once arises, how far and in what way the confession of an accused person can be used against a co-accused? It is evident that it is not evidence in the ordinary sense of the term because, as the Privy Council say in Bhuboni Sahu v. The King "It does not indeed come within the definition of" 'evidence' contained in section 3 of the Evidence Act, It is not required to be given on oath, nor in the presence of the accused, and it cannot be tested by cross-examination." Their Lordships also point out that it is "obviously evidence of a very weak type..... It is a much weaker type of evidence than the evidence of an approver, which is not subject to any of those infirmities."

They stated in addition that such a confession cannot be made tile foundation of a conviction and can only be used in "support of other evidence." In view of these remarks it would be pointless to cover the same ground, but we feel it is necessary to expound this further as misapprehension still exists. The question is, in what way can it be used in support of other evidence? Can it be used to fill in missing gaps? Can it be used to corroborate an accomplice or, as in the present case, a witness who, though not an accomplice, is placed in the same category regarding credibility because the judge refuses to believe him except in so far as he is corroborated ? .....

12. The law laid down in Kashmira Singh (supra) was approved by a Constitution Bench of this Court in Hari Charan Kurmi and Jogia Hajam v. State of Bihar, (1964) 6 SCR 623 at 631-633 wherein it was observed :

"As we have already indicated, this question has been considered on several occasions by judicial decisions and it has been consistently held that a confession cannot be treated as evidence which is substantive evidence against a co-accused person. In dealing with a criminal case where the prosecution relies upon the confession of one accused person against another accused person, the proper approach to adopt is to consider the other evidence against such an accused person, and if the said evidence appears to be satisfactory and the Court is inclined to hold that the said evidence may sustain the charge framed against the said accused person, the court turns to the confession with a view to assure itself that the conclusion which it is inclined to draw from the other evidence is right. As was observed by Sir Lawrence Jenkins in Emperor v. Lalit Mohan Chuckerburty a confession can only be used to "lend assurance to other evidence against a co-accused". In re Periyaswami Moopan Reilly. J., observed that the provision of Section 30 goes not further than this: "where there is evidence against the co-accused sufficient, if believed, to support his conviction, then the kind of confession described in Section 30 may be thrown into the scale as an additional reason for believing that evidence". In Bhuboni Sahu v. King the Privy Council has expressed the same view. Sir John Beaumont who spoke for the Board, observed that "a confession of a co-accused is obviously evidence of a very weak type. It does not indeed come within the definition of "evidence" contained in Section 3 of the Evidence Act. It is not required to be given on oath, nor in the presence of the accused, and it cannot be tested by cross-examination. It is a much weaker type of evidence than the evidence of an approver, which is not subject to any of those infirmities. Section 30, however, provides that the court may take the confession into consideration and thereby, no doubt, makes it evidence on which the court may act; but the section does not say that the confession is to amount to proof. Clearly there must be other evidence. The confession is only one element in the consideration of all the facts proved the case; it can be put into the scale and weighed with the other evidence". It would be noticed that as a result of the provisions contained in Section 30, the confession has no doubt to be regarded as amounting to evidence in a general way, because whatever is considered by the court is evidence; circumstances which are considered by the court as well as probabilities do amount to evidence in that generic sense. Thus, though confession may be regarded as evidence in that generic sense because of the provisions of Section 30, the fact remains that it is not evidence as defined by Section 3 of the Act. The result, therefore, is that in dealing with a case against an accused person, the court cannot start with the confession of a co-accused person; it must begin with other evidence adduced by the prosecution and after it has formed its opinion with regard to the quality and effect of the said evidence, then it is permissible to turn to the confession in order to receive assurance to the conclusion of guilt which the judicial mind is about to reach on the said other evidence. That, briefly stated, is the effect of the provisions contained in Section 30. The same view has been expressed by this Court in Kashmira Singh v. State of Madhya Pradesh where the decision of the Privy Council in Bhuboni Sahu case has been cited with approval."

14. In the present case it is accepted that apart from the aforesaid statements of co-accused there is no material suggesting involvement of the appellant in the crime in question. We are thus left with only one piece of material that is the confessional statements of the co-accused as stated above. On the touchstone of law laid down by this Court such a confessional statement of a co-accused cannot by itself be taken as a substantive piece of evidence against another co-accused and can at best be used or utilized in order to lend assurance to the Court. In the absence of any substantive evidence it would be inappropriate to base the conviction of the appellant purely on the statements of co-accused. The appellant is therefore entitled to be acquitted of the charges leveled against him. We, therefore, accept this appeal, set aside the orders of conviction and sentence and acquit the appellant. The appellant shall be released forthwith unless his custody is required in connection with any other offence."

18. The Hon'ble Apex Court also taken into account the law propounded by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Kashmira Singh Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh (supra) which was approved by the Constitution Bench in Hari Charan Kurmi and Jogia Hajam Vs. State of Bihar (1964) 6 SCR 623 at 631-633. On these assertion, learned counsel for the appellant has argued that the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Surinder Kumar Khanna (supra) has held that the statement of co-accused recorded under Section 67 of NDPS Act cannot be made basis for conviction against other co-accused persons.

19. Another case law cited by learned counsel for the appellant is (2019) 3 SCC (Cri) 684 : (2019) 8 SCC 811 Mohammed Farsrin v. State. In this case also almost similar view has been taken.

20. Encountering the arguments advanced by learned counsel for the appellant, learned counsel for the Union of India (DRI) Shri Deepak Seth has submitted that from the facts enumerated in this case, it is evident that 180 Kg. of charas was recovered from the said truck of which Rajesh Kumar Mishra was driver and Raju Dubey was cleaner is not disputed and both of them have been convicted for 10 Years' R.I. with a fine of Rs.1.00 Lakh each. It is stated by learned counsel for the DRI that from the statement of driver Rajesh Kumar Mishra and Raju Dubey recorded under Section 67 of NDPS Act, complicity of the present appellant is fully proved and this statement was proved before the trial court as Ext. Ka-4 and Ext. Ka-10, so these statements could be read against the appellant and he could very well be convicted merely on the basis of these two statements. It is also stated that statement of Rajesh Kumar Mishra and Raju Dubey are not confessional statement for the reason that a confession cannot be made from any other person. Infact it is a piece of evidence and if it is corroborated with any other evidence, it is admissible as evidence. If there is proof before the Court that confession made by these two persons is voluntary, truthful, reliable and beyond reproach, then it is an effective piece of evidence to establish the guilty.

21. It is also stated that so far as the possession of the contraband is concerned, the word "possession" has not been defined under the provisions of NDPS Act. The expression "possession" is a polymorphyous term. It does not mean only the physical possession. The word "conscious" means awareness brought on fact. In the present case the appellant Ashu Pandit was well aware of the entire fact and was having actual control over the truck as well as the contraband concealed in the same and, therefore, was infact in conscious possession of the same. At the time of trial of present appellant, neither co-accused Rajesh Kumar Mishra, nor Raju Dubey were accused in the case as their trial was over and they were in jail after conviction. Neither any evidence was led by the appellant in support of his case nor he ever tied to call Rajesh Kumar Mishra or Raju Dubey for cross examining them. So, their statement recorded under Section 67 of NDPS Act remain unrebutted.

22. To substantiate the argument, learned counsel for the DRI has relied upon a case law (2011) 11 SCC 347 : Ram Singh Vs. Central Bureau of Narcotics. In the said case law before the Apex Court following question fall for determination :

"8. In view of the rival submissions questions which fall for determination in this appeal are as follows :

(i) Whether the confessions made before the officers of the Central Bureau of Narcotics are admissible in evidence;

(ii) Whether the confessions made were voluntary in nature and if so without corroboration, can it form the basis for conviction; and

(iii) Whether the appellant can be said to be in possession of the opium or selling the same."

23. While considering these question Hon'ble Apex Court has, after taking into consideration the earlier pronouncements, held as under : -

13. This Court had the occasion to consider this question further in the case of Kanhaiyalal vs. Union of India, 2008 (4) SCC 668, wherein it has been held as follows :

"44. In addition to the above, in Raj Kumar Karwal v. Union of India this Court held that officers of the Department of Revenue Intelligence who have been vested with powers of an officer in charge of a police station under Section 53 of the NDPS Act, 1985, are not "police officers" within the meaning of Section 25 of the Evidence Act. Therefore, a confessional statement recorded by such officer in the course of investigation of a person accused of an offence under the Act is admissible in evidence against him. It was also held that power conferred on officers under the NDPS Act in relation to arrest, search and seizure were similar to powers vested on officers under the Customs Act. Nothing new has been submitted which can persuade us to take a different view.

45. Considering the provisions of Section 67 of the NDPS Act and the views expressed by this Court in Raj Kumar Karwal case with which we agree, that an officer vested with the powers of an officer in charge of a police station under Section 53 of the above Act is not a "police officer" within the meaning of Section 25 of the Evidence Act, it is clear that a statement made under Section 67 of the NDPS Act is not the same as a statement made under Section 161 of the Code, unless made under threat or coercion. It is this vital difference, which allows a statement made under Section 67 of the NDPS Act to be used as a confession against the person making it and excludes it from the operation of Section 24 to 27 of the Evidence Act."

14. From what has been observed above, the officers vested with the powers of investigation under the Act are not police officers and, therefore, the confessions recorded by such officers are admissible in evidence. Therefore, the question posed at the outset is answered in the affirmative and it is held that officers of the Central Bureau of Narcotics are not police officers within the meaning of Sections 25 and 26 of the Evidence Act and, hence, confessions made before them are admissible in evidence. In view of aforesaid there is no escape from the conclusion that the confessions made by the appellant before PW 6, Jagdish Mawal and PW 8, Mahaveer Singh are admissible in evidence and cannot be thrown out of consideration.

15. Now we proceed to consider the second question set out at the outset and in order to answer that we deem it appropriate to reproduce Section 24 of the Indian Evidence Act which reads as follows:

"24.Confession caused by inducement, threat or promise, when irrelevant in criminal proceeding.- A confession made by an accused person is irrelevant in a criminal proceeding, if the making of the confession appears to the Court to have been caused by any inducement, threat or promise, having reference to the charge against the accused person, proceeding from a person in authority and sufficient, in the opinion of the Court, to give the accused person grounds, which would appear to him reasonable, for supposing that by making it he would gain any advantage or avoid any evil of a temporal nature in reference to the proceedings against him."

From the plain reading of the aforesaid provision it is evident that a confession made by an accused is rendered irrelevant in criminal proceeding if the making of the confession appears to the Court to have been caused by any inducement, threat or promise with reference to the charge against the accused.

16. A confession, if it is voluntary, truthful, reliable and beyond reproach is an efficacious piece of evidence to establish the guilt of the accused. However, before solely acting on confession, as a rule of prudence, the Court requires some corroboration but as an abstract proposition of law it cannot be said that a conviction cannot be maintained solely on the basis of the confession made under Section 67 of the Act.

17. Bearing in mind the principles aforesaid, now, we proceed to consider the facts of the present case. Appellant's first confession was recorded by PW 6, Jagdish Mawal on 19th July, 1997 and he was produced before the Court on 20th July, 1997 and he made no grievance in regard to the confession recorded. Another confession was recorded on 20th July, 1997 and, thereafter, he was produced before the Special Judge on 21st July, 1997 and a copy of the police diary was handed over to him. This obviously would had contained the confessions made by him. No complaint about the same was made then also. Thereafter appellant was produced before the Court several times but he never retracted his confession. The appellant retracted the confession made by him for the first time in his statement under Section 313 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. In our opinion, when an accused is made aware of the confession made by him and he does not make complaint within a reasonable time, same shall be a relevant factor to adjudge as to whether the confession was voluntary or not. Here in the present case appellant was produced before the Court on several dates and at no stage he made any complaint before the Special Judge of any torture or harassment in recording the confession. It is only when his statement was recorded under Section 313 of the Code of Criminal Procedure that he retracted and denied making such a confession and went to the extent of saying that his signatures were obtained on blank pages. In the facts and circumstances of the case we are of the opinion that the confessional statements made by the appellant were voluntary in nature and could form the basis for conviction. The view which we have taken above finds support from the judgment of this Court in the case of M. Prabhulal v. Assistant Director, Directorte of Revenue Intelligence*, 2003 (8) SCC 449, in which it has been held as follows:*

"It has been established that the Customs Office was about 20 km from the place where the truck and the car were apprehended. Having regard to the large quantity of the heroin, the said vehicles with Accused 2, 3 and 6 were brought to the Customs Office. Further, Accused 1 and 2 did not know Tamil. A Hindi-knowing officer had to be arranged. There was, under the circumstances no delay in recording the statements of the appellants. Further, it is also to be borne in mind that the appellants did not make any complaint before the Magistrate before whom they were produced complaining of any torture or harassment. It is only when their statements were recorded by the trial Judge under Section 313 of the Code of Criminal Procedure that a vague stand about the torture was taken. Under these circumstances, the confessional statements cannot be held to be involuntary. The statements were voluntarily made and can, thus, be made the basis of the appellants' conviction."

20. Same view has been reiterated by this Court in the case of Kanhaiyalal (supra) in which it has been observed as follows :

"Since it has been held by this Court that an officer for the purposes of Section 67 of the NDPS Act read with Section 42 thereof, is not a police officer, the bar under Section 24 and 27 of the Evidence Act cannot be attracted and the statement made by a person directed to appear before the officer concerned may be relied upon as a confessional statement against such person. Since a conviction can be maintained solely on the basis of a confession made under Section 67 of the NDPS Act, we see no reason to interfere with the conclusion of the High Court convicting the appellant."

The second question posed at the outset is thus answered accordingly.

21. Now we proceed to consider the last question, i.e, whether the appellant can be held guilty for being in possession or involved in selling the opium so as to attract the mischief of Section 8/18 of the Act.

22. In sum and substance the confession of the appellant is that he was working in the hotel for the last two months and brought the opium from the house of the hotel-owner to the hotel, where it was being sold in tablets to the truck-drivers. In the confession appellant has not stated or for that matter none of the witnesses have deposed that he was involved in selling the opium-tablets. Therefore, the appellant cannot be held guilty for selling opium.

23. Whether in the state of evidence appellant can be held guilty for possessing the opium only on the ground that he brought the opium from the house of the owner to the hotel is another question which requires adjudication.

24. It is trite that to hold a person guilty, possession has to be conscious. Control over the goods is one of the tests to ascertain conscious possession so also the title. Once an article is found in possession of an accused it could be presumed that he was in conscious possession. Possession is a polymorphous term which carries different meaning in different context and circumstances and, therefore, it is difficult to lay down a completely logical and precise definition uniformly applicable to all situations with reference to all the statutes. A servant of a hotel, in our opinion, cannot be said to be in possession of contraband belonging to his master unless it is proved that it was left in his custody over which he had absolute control.

25. Applying the aforesaid principle when we consider the facts of the present case it is difficult to hold that opium was in possession of the appellant. There is no evidence on record to suggest that the appellant was in occupation of the room from where opium was recovered. Further the evidence clearly points out that title to the opium vested in the owners of the hotel. The confession given by the appellant was only that he was servant of the owners of the hotel from where the opium was recovered. In the face of the state of evidence it is difficult to hold that the appellant was in conscious possession of the opium. Section 18 of the Act prescribes punishment for possession and that possession, in our opinion, has to be conscious. In the facts of the present case it is difficult to hold that the appellant was in possession of the opium and, therefore, his conviction and sentence cannot be sustained."

24. Another case law relied by learned counsel for the DRI is (2003) 7 SCC 465 : Madan Lal and another V. State of H.P., in this case law the Hon'ble Apex Court while interpreting the word "possession" has held as under : -

"22. The expression 'possession' is a polymorphous term which assumes different colours in different contexts. It may carry different meanings in contextually different backgrounds. It is impossible, as was observed in Superintendent & Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, West Bengal v. Anil Kumar Bhunja and Ors. (AIR 1980 SC 52), to work out a completely logical and precise definition of "possession" uniformally applicable to all situations in the context of all statutes.

23. The word 'conscious' means awareness about a particular fact. It is a state of mind which is deliberate or intended.

24. As noted in Gunwantlal v. The State of M.P. (AIR 1972 SC 1756) possession in a given case need not be physical possession but can be constructive, having power and control over the article in case in question, while the person whom physical possession is given holds it subject to that power or control.

25. The word 'possession' means the legal right to possession (See Health v. Drown (1972) (2) All ER 561 (HL). In an interesting case it was observed that where a person keeps his fire arm in his mother's flat which is safer than his own home, he must be considered to be in possession of the same. (See Sullivan v. Earl of Caithness (1976 (1) All ER 844 (QBD).

26. Once possession is established the person who claims that it was not a conscious possession has to establish it, because how he came to be in possession is within his special knowledge. Section 35 of the Act gives a statutory recognition of this position because of presumption available in law. Similar is the position in terms of Section 54 where also presumption is available to be drawn from possession of illicit articles."

25. After hearing the learned counsel for the parties and perusing the case laws cited from the respective sides, I am of the view that the facts of the case of Surinder Kumar Khanna (supra) are akin to the present case. In the present case the appellant was neither arrested on the spot, nor any incriminating article was recovered from his house when a search was made. Even the prosecution wholly failed to establish that the said truck was in any way connected with the appellant or the same was at any time in real or constructive possession/control of the appellant. The prosecution failed to establish the ownership of the truck and no evidence was there pertaining to any connection of the said vehicle with the appellant. So, from the entire material on record, it is evident that except the statement of these two co-accused persons Rajesh Kumar Mishra and Raju Dubey, there is no other material on record against the appellant to show his complicity in the crime. The submission of the learned counsel for the opposite party that the appellant should have summoned co-accused Rajesh Kumar Mishra and Raju Dubey for cross examination does not suit to the reasoning, as it was for the prosecution to establish its case against the appellant beyond all reasonable doubts. So, if the prosecution was relying upon the statement of these two co-accused persons Rajesh Kumar Mishra and Raju Dubey, they should have been produced before the Court and should have afforded an opportunity of cross examination to the appellant.

26. To my view, it would not be safe to rely upon the statement of these two persons recorded under Section 67 NDPS Act as the appellant was not afforded any opportunity of cross examination to these two co-accused persons. So, I fully agree with the case of Surinder Kumar Khanna (supra) and to my view it would not be safe to uphold the conviction of the appellant only on basis of statements of co-accused Rajesh Kumar Mishra and Raju Dubey recorded under Section 67 of NDPS Act. To my view the learned trial court has wrongly convicted the appellant as stated above. There was no cogent and reliable evidence against the appellant. So, to my view the judgment of the trial court suffers from manifest error of law and fact, which deserved to be set aside.

27. Accordingly, the conviction recorded by the trial court by means of judgment and order dated 12.07.2013, passed by the learned Additional District & Sessions Judge, Court No.8, Lucknow in Criminal Case No.281A of 2006 (Union of India Vs. Aashu Pandit @ Aashu Bajpai @ Aash Narayan Sharma) is set aside. Appeal is allowed. Appellant is acquitted of all the charges leveled against him.

28. Appellant is in jail. Let he be set free at once, if not wanted in any other case.

29. Let a copy of the judgment along with the lower court record be transmitted to the trial court concerned for compliance and necessary action.

Rajbhar & Shri Prem Shankar Mishra, learned AGA for the State respondent and perused record.

2. These three Criminal Appeals have been filed by accused-appellants namely Ram Naresh and Kamal against the impugned judgment and order dated 18.6.1996 passed by the Session Judge, Farrukhabad in ST No. 474 of 1993 and 475 of 1993, arising out of Case Crime No.118 & 138 of 1993, Police Station Rajepur, District Farrukhabad, by which accused Ram Naresh and Kamal have been convicted and sentenced under Section 302/34 IPC for life imprisonment and for the offence under Section 25 (i)(c) Arms Act for a term of one year RI each. It has been further directed that both the sentences shall run concurrently.

3. Brief prosecution version is that the incident took place on 3.8.1993 at 1:30 PM village Salempur when the informant Smt. Sudha Devi, her mother Beti Devi and brother Ram Lakhan were going from village through footpath (pagdandi) to village Salempur for taking medicine from doctor. The moment they reached to the footpath of the field of Antu, the accused persons namely Ram Naresh (her elder brother) and Kamal, hidden behind the hedges of mooj, came out having country made pistol in their hands and to the mother who was going ahead to her, the accused Ram Naresh said that today he would not spare her alive as she was the reason for family dispute and she would not let him get his share in the property. Thereafter, in order to kill her mother, he fired on her. The fire hit her mother and the informant and her brother became apprehensive and in order to save their lives ran back shouting to save her mother and her mother ran towards Salimpur. Her mother had sustained injuries by fire and she could not run ahead and fell down. Accused Ram Naresh and Kamal went closer to her mother and by their country made pistol again fired on her mother, who died on spot in the field of Antu. The informant any how concealing herself with her brother went to the police station and gave a written report on the basis of which an offence under Section 302 IPC was registered against both the accused persons. The police went to the place of occurrence and took over the possession of the dead body, prepared inquest report and other papers, sealed the dead body and delivered to the police personnel for post-mortem. The statements of the witnesses were recorded by the Investigating Officer on the same day. From the spot, two empty cartridges and one live cartridge were found near the dead body and the same were taken into possession and sealed. Samples of blood stained and plain earth was also collected from the spot and that was also sealed. A pair of slipper of the deceased Beti Devi and one empty cartridge and one live cartridge was also found there at some distance from the dead body, which were taken in possession and sealed. The memo thereof was prepared in the presence of the witnesses. Subsequently, the accused persons surrendered before court and were taken on police remand as they made confessional statements and stated that they have concealed the country made pistol by which they committed the offences which they have concealed in the courtyard of the accused Ram Naresh. By digging a pit on their instance, the said country made pistol was recovered for which they could not show licence and, therefore, on the basis of recovery of illegal country made pistol, an FIR was lodged under Section 25 Arms Act. The site plan for both the offences was prepared during the investigation, thereafter, finding sufficient evidence against the accused persons, charge sheet was submitted against them under the aforesaid sections.

4. The learned trial court framed charges against the accused persons separately under Section 302 IPC and Section 25 of the Arms Act and in the alternative, also framed charge for the offence under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC. The accused persons denied the charges and claimed trial.

5. In support, the prosecution examined eight witnesses. The statements of the accused persons were recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. and they put forward the case of denial saying that the witnesses had given false statements because of enmity and property disputes. The defence has examined DW-1 Sri Ravindra Kumar, Advocate and DW-2 Krishan Pal.

6. The learned trial court after hearing the prosecution and defence, convicted and sentenced both the accused persons by the impugned judgment.

7. Aggrieved by the conviction and sentence, the accused persons have filed this appeal challenging the impugned judgement being against weight of evidence on record, is bad in the eyes of law and awarded sentence is too severe. Therefore, the impugned order is liable to be set aside and the accused persons are entitled for acquittal.

8. The learned counsel for the appellant-accused has submitted that both the fact witnesses examined by the prosecution are related being daughter and son of the deceased and as such they are highly interested witnesses. No independent witness has been examined. There are material contradiction, improvement and discrepancy in the evidence of fact witnesses. The defence evidence has not been given due weight. There is no such motive alleged for the offence. The recovery of weapon allegedly used for commission of offence is tainted and planted and the same cannot be relied upon.

9. The learned AGA has submitted that the case is based on direct evidence supported by recovery of weapon and and medical evidence and the learned trial court has rightly held the accused persons guilty and has awarded adequate sentence.

10. In the light of rival arguments of parties, let us see the evidence on record on the basis of which the learned trial court has passed the impugned judgement. PW-1 A.K. Kulshrestha, ASI is the formal witness, who has proved chik FIR Ext. Ka-1, GD report No.26 of 6:05 PM Ext. Ka-2, inquest report Ext. Ka-3 and other papers necessary for sending the dead body for post-mortem from Ext. Ka-4 to Ext. Ka-8. The witness also stated that he recorded the statement of informant, recovered two empty cartridges and one live cartridge near the dead body and sealed the same. He also picked up blood stained and plain earth, slippers of the deceased and one empty cartridge and one live cartridge from the place where the slipper was found. All these articles were sealed and memo was prepared before the witnesses which are Ext. Ka-9 to Ext. Ka-12. He has further stated that on 4.8.1993, he made attempt to search the accused persons and recorded the statement of Ram Lakhan and on the pointing of the informant, the site map of the place of occurrence was also prepared, which is Ext. Ka-13. The accused persons surrendered before the Court on 12.8.1993 and they were taken on police remand on 29.8.1993 and on their instance the country made pistol was recovered, which was used in the murder of deceased and which was concealed in the house of accused Ram Naresh, who after digging the place in the house got the country made pistol recovered and gave the same to the police. Their statements have been proved as Ext. Ka-14 and Ext. Ka-15, the country made pistol was sealed on spot and on that basis, recovery memo was prepared, which is Ext. Ka-16 and site plan of recovery was prepared, which is Ext. Ka-18. Prior to it, the witness entered his departure from the police station on GD report no.15 at 10:20 AM on 29.8.1993, copy thereof has been attached and filed by the witness, which is Ext. Ka-17. On the basis of recovery, FIR was lodged for the offence under Section 25 Arms Act, chik FIR and GD report is Ext. Ka-19 and Ext. Ka-20. The witness has also proved the empty cartridge and live cartridge, which were recovered from the spot as material Ext.-1 to Ext.-5. The recovered country made pistol is material Ext.-6 and material Ext.-7. The case under Section 25

Arms Act was investigated by SI Jaipal Singh, who recorded the statement of the witnesses.

11. PW-2 Constable Kamlesh Babu has stated that accused persons Ram Naresh and Kamal, present in the Court, had confessed that they committed murder of Beti Devi and the country made pistol by which she was killed is in the house of accused Ram Naresh and he can get the same recovered. This witness has proved the recovery of country made pistol at the instance of accused persons.

12. PW-3 Smt Sudha Devi (informant and eye witness) has stated that her mother Beti Devi was killed about one year 10 months ago by the accused persons Kamal and Ram Naresh. Three years before her murder, the witness had become widow and she was living with her parents. With her mother, her brothers Ram Pratap, Ram Lakhan were also living. Accused Ram Naresh is her real brother but he used to live separately in the same house. Her father was a teacher and he died on 24.10.1989. She had no share in his property. But she had her share in the money deposited in the fund and she had given affidavit that her share be also given to her mother. The accused Ram Naresh was always angry with her mother as the money and the account was in her control. On the date of incident, she was going to Salempur with her brother and mother. When they reached to the footpath (pagdandi), the accused persons who were hidden in the hedges of mooj (sarpat) came out and said to her mother that they would not let her alive and they fired on her mother which hit her mother who ran towards Salimpur and she and her younger brother Ram Lakhan ran backwards. Her mother could not run much far. The accused persons went close to her mother and fired from close range on her. She sustained injuries and died on the spot. Thereafter, the accused persons ran away from there. She lodged the first information report by giving a written report which she got scribed by Shamsher Singh, which is Ext. Ka-21. On the place of incident, empty cartridge was lying close to her mother's dead body and other was lying at some distance from the dead body and one live cartridge was also found from the place from where the slippers of her mother were recovered.

13. PW-4 SI Ram Naresh Pandey has stated that he was posted at police station Rajepur on 29.8.1993 and on that day the accused persons were taken on police remand and they took the police and witnesses to the house of accused Ram Naresh and got the country made pistol recovered which was used for the commission of offence. The memo was prepared on which he also signed.

14. PW-5 Ram Lakhan Singh (eyewitness) has stated that his father was a teacher who died. His elder sister Sudha Devi is widow and after death of her husband, she used to live with his mother in their house. Accused Ram Naresh also lived with them, who is real brother but he got separated himself from the family from the time of his father. After death of his father, his mother inherited the property. Accused Ram Naresh had instituted a case against his mother regarding the property of his father, which was pending at the time of the murder. About one year and 10 months ago, his mother was killed at 1:30 PM and at that time he, his sister Sudha Devi and his mother were going to Salempur for taking medicine. When they reached to the footpath (pagdandi) of Salempur, the accused persons Ram Naresh and Kamal came out from the hedges of mooj. Ram Naresh said that he would not spare the mother alive as she was the sole reason for the family dispute. Thereafter, he fired on his mother, which hit her on pelvis (kulha). On being injured, she ran away leaving her slippers there. Thereafter, she fell on the ground and both the accused Ram Naresh and Kamal went close to her and both fired on her. Consequently, his mother died on spot. They shouted and on their shout 2-3 persons reached there and later on people from the side of their house also came. His sister went to Rajepur and got FIR scribed by one Shamsher and gave the same to the police station. The accused Kamal is samdhi (father-in-law of son) of accused Ram Naresh.

15. PW-6 SI Kripal Singh took over the investigation when most part of the investigation was completed and filed charge sheet, which is Ext. Ka-22.

16. PW-7 Dr. S.B. Singh has stated that on 4.8.1993, he was posted in District Hospital, Farrukhabad and in the evening, at 3:00 PM, conducted the post-mortem of Smt. Beti Devi, who was brought to the hospital by constable Chote Lal and constable Nawab Singh of PS Rajepur. The deceased was aged about 70 years and she had died one day before. Eyes were closed and mouth was partly opened, rigor mortis had passed from the upper limbs and was present in lower limbs. There was a little swelling on the stomach and the lower part of the stomach was greenish, dried blood, dust, mud and piece of grass were found on the chest and head. On examination, following ante mortem injuries were found on the body of the deceased-

(I) Firearm entry wound 3.5 cm x 2.5 cm x cranial cavity deep left mastoid region, just behind left ear. Margins inverted, lacerated, ecchymosed, mostoid; blackening and tattooing present around the wound in an area of 12 cm x 10.00 cm.

(II) Multiple pellets wound of entry 12 in number, dorso- medial aspect of right forearm in the area of 13.0 cm x 9.0 cm measuring 0.5 cm x 0.3 cm to 0.3 cm x 0.2 cm skin and muscle deep.

(III) Multiple pellet wounds of entry 20 in number, posterior lateral aspect of right buttock in area of 18.0 cm x 14.0 cm measuring from 1.0 cm x 0.3 cm to 0.3 cm x 0.2 cm, muscle to skin deep.

17. In the internal examination, left parietal bone and occipital bone were found broken, brain-lacerated, base of scalp was also broken, spinal cord not opened, heart empty, stomach contained 200 gm semi digested foot. The doctor has proved the post-mortem report as Ext. Ka-23 and has stated that the deceased must have died because of shock and haemorrhage, which must have resulted due to ante mortem injuries. From the body of the deceased, one wad, two ticklies and 26 pellets from scalp, 5 pellets from right arm from the skin and 7 small pellets from right buttock were recovered, which were sealed. One blouse, one sari, one peti-coat, one rudrakhsh mala of deceased were sealed and handed over to the constable. The doctor has also stated that the deceased must have died on 3.8.1993 at 1:30 PM and the injuries caused by firearms found on her body were sufficient to cause death.

18. PW-8 SI Jaipal Singh Yadav prepared inquest report and other papers necessary for sending the dead body for post-mortem. A live cartridge, empty cartridge and slippers, blood stained and plain earth, two empty cartridges and one live cartridge were taken into custody and memos were prepared on the dictation of SO. On all the memos, SO signed. The witness has further stated that in relation to the offence under Section 25 Arms Act, he recorded the statement of SO A.K. Kulsheshtra and statements of accused persons and other witnesses, prepared site plan of place of recovery, which is Ext. Ka-24 and Ext. Ka-25 and after getting sanction for prosecution, charge sheet was submitted against both the accused persons for the offence under Section 25 of the Arms Act, which is Ext. Ka-28 and Ext. Ka-29. The sanction order is Ext. Ka-26 and Ext. Ka-27.

19. The defence has examined DW-1 Sri Ravindra Kumar, Advocate who stated that he is a practising lawyer and he knew Ram Lakhan who came to him for preparing an affidavit, which was got prepared and sworn by oath Commissioner after reading over to Ram Lakhan on which he put his signature. In the cross-examination, he has stated that he has been lawyer of Ram Lakhan and he does not know Ram Prakash and Chhavi Nath. He has denied that he prepared false affidavit for him.

20. DW-2 Krishan Pal has also been examined by defence, who has stated that he knew the accused persons. He also knew the deceased Beti Devi, who belonged to his village. She had three sons and two daughters and the eldest son is Ram Naresh (accused), thereafter, Ram Pratap and then youngest one Ram Lakhan, who is the witness in this case. Daughters are Sudha Devi (witness & informant) and Suman. Suman has been married with his nephew. Three years before, Beti Devi was killed in the noon at 12:00 PM. He was sitting on his door towards road side and some boys rushed crying that the mother of Ram Naresh has been killed by someone. The dead body of Beti Devi was found in the field of Antu. He tried to trace out the sons of Beti Devi, but the two sons had gone to Fatehgarh. They were informed by him. Sudha Devi, Ram Pratap, Ram Lakhan and Shamsher came there after 3:00 PM. The chaukidar was sent to lodge report about the incident to the police station. After sometimes, the SO came there. Inquest report was prepared on which he is also a witness.

21. From the perusal of the evidence on record, it appears that PW-3 Sudha Devi and PW-5 Ramlakhan both are daughter and son of the deceased. PW-3 started living with her mother after death of her husband and at the time of incident, both were accompanying the deceased and were going to Salempur to a doctor for taking medicine for the deceased. In the fact and circumstances, their being together and presence at the time of incident is natural. Both have stated that the accused persons fired on deceased by their country made pistol, injured her and caused her death. Defence has examined DW-2 to show that they were not with the deceased and someone killed the deceased at about 12 PM in the noon and he heard some boys were crying that she had been killed and her body was found in the field of Antu. Her sons had gone to Fatehpur and after 3 PM, Sudha and her brothers reached there. Apparently, DW-2 is not eyewitness nor he has been able to state about or identify any of the boys he heard crying. It is also established that the dead body was found in the field of Antu which supports the case of prosecution to the extent that the incident took place somewhere around the field of Antu. Before the IO, he gave statement that in the afternoon the news spread that Beti

Devi has been killed by Ram Naresh and Kamal, but when controverted by prosecution, he has denied this. Remaining statement given under section 161 has been admitted by him which includes the recovery of slipper of deceased and cartridges from the spot. He has stated that he sent the Village Chaukidar to Police Station to lodge FIR. If it was so, the Village Chaukidar was the right person to prove this fact. But, he has not been examined by the defence. On the other side, it has been proved by the informant that she lodged the FIR by giving written report in the Police Station. In absence of any cogent and clinching evidence, the version of DW-2, to the extent it contradicts prosecution version, cannot be believed. Clearly, he has made improvement to shift the time of incident from 1.30 PM to around 12 PM. Moreover, the difference he has tried to create in the timing is just of one hour and 15 to 30 minutes which is not relevant in view of the ocular testimony supported by medical evidence establishing the time of incident alleged by prosecution.

22. The learned counsel to the accused-appellant has challenged the credibility of fact witnesses on the basis of their being related witness, certain contradiction and improvement and lack of any motive for the commission of offence. He has submitted that no independent witness has been examined and both the fact witnesses are relatives and highly interested witnesses and on their evidence no reliance could be placed by the learned trial court. It is admitted fact that both the fact witnesses are brother and sister and the deceased has been their mother. But, it can hardly make a difference as the prosecution case is that at the time of incident, there was none on the place of occurrence except these witness who were accompanying their mother and they were going to the doctor in relation to the ailment of the deceased.

23. The law in respect of the testimony of related witnesses has been time and again reiterated by the Supreme Court that the testimony of related witnesses cannot be discarded merely on the basis of relationship. The only requirement is that the testimony of such witness should be scrutinized cautiously and carefully. In Dalip Singh v State of Punjab (1954) SCR 145, while rejecting the argument that witnesses who are close-relatives of the victim should not be relied upon, the Court held as under:

"A witness is normally to be considered independent unless he or she springs from sources which are likely to be tainted and that usually means unless the witness has cause, such as enmity against the accused, to wish to implicate him falsely. Ordinarily, a close relative would be the last to screen the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent person. It is true, when feelings run high and there is personal cause for enmity, that there is a tendency to drag in an innocent person against whom a witness has a grudge along with the guilty, but foundation must be laid for such a criticism and the mere fact of relationship far from being a foundation is often a sure guarantee of truth. However, we are not attempting any sweeping generalisation. Each case must be judged on its own facts. Our observations are only made to combat what is so often put forward in cases before us as a general rule of prudence. There is no such general rule. Each case must be limited to and be governed by its own facts."

24. In Masalti v State of UP AIR 1965 SC 202, the Supreme Court observed:

"But it would, we think, be unreasonable to contend that evidence given by witnesses should be discarded only on the ground that it is evidence of partisan or interested witnesses. ... The mechanical rejection of such evidence on the sole ground that it is partisan would invariably lead to failure of justice."

25. The Supreme Court has also taken the view that related witness does not necessarily mean or is equivalent to an interested witness. A witness may be called interested only when he or she derives some benefit from the result of litigation; a decree in a civil case, or in seeing a person punished in a criminal trial. In Darya Singh v State of Punjab, AIR 1965 SC 328, followed by State of UP v Kishanpal (2008) 16 SCC 73, the Court held as under:

"On principle, however, it is difficult to accept the plea that if a witness is shown to be a relative of the deceased and it is also shown that he shared the hostility of the victim towards the assailant, his evidence can never be accepted unless it is corroborated on material particulars."

26. Again, in Appa v State of Gujarat, AIR 1988 SC 698, the Court has observed:

"Experience reminds us that civilized people are generally insensitive when crime is committed even in their presence. They withdraw from both, victim and vigilant. They keep themselves away from the Court. They take crime as a civil dispute. This kind of apathy of general public is indeed unfortunate but it is everywhere whether in village life or town and city. One cannot ignore this handicap. Evidence of witnesses has to be appreciated keeping in view such ground realities. Therefore, the Court instead of doubting the prosecution case where no independent witness has been examined must consider the broad spectrum of the prosecution version and then search for the nugget of truth with due regard to probability, if any suggested by the accused."

27. Similar view has been taken in State of AP v S. Rayappa (2006) 4 SCC 512, where the court observed that it is now almost a fashion that public is reluctant to appear and depose before the court especially in criminal cases and the cases for that reason itself are dragged for years and years. The Court stated the principle as follows:

" ....by now, it is a well-established principle of law that testimony of a witness otherwise inspiring confidence cannot be discarded on the ground that he being a relation of the deceased is an interested witness. A close relative who is a very natural witness cannot be termed as interested witness. The term interested postulates that the person concerned must have some direct interest in seeing the accused person being convicted somehow or the other either because of animosity or some other reasons."

28. Further, in Pulicherla Nagaraju @ Nagaraja Reddy v State of AP (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 500, the Supreme Court has held as under:

"In this case, we find that the trial court had rejected the evidence of PW1 and PW2 merely because they were interested witnesses being the brother and father of the deceased. But it is well settled that evidence of a witness cannot be discarded merely on the ground that he is either partisan or interested or closely related to the deceased, if it is otherwise, found to be trustworthy and credible. It only requires scrutiny with more care and caution, so that neither the guilty escape nor the innocent wrongly convicted. If on such careful scrutiny, the evidence is found to be reliable and probable, it can be acted upon. If it is found to be improbable or suspicious, it ought to be rejected. Where the witness has a motive to falsely implicate the accused, his testimony should have corroboration in regard to material particulars before it is accepted."

29. Similarly, in Satbir Singh v State of UP, (2009) 13 SCC 790, the Court has held as under:-

"It is now a well-settled principle of law that only because the witnesses are not independent ones may not by itself be a ground to discard the prosecution case. If the prosecution case has been supported by the witnesses and no cogent reason has been shown to discredit their statements, a judgment of conviction can certainly be based thereupon....."

30. In M.C. Ali v State of Kerala AIR 2010 SC 1639; and Himanshu v State (NCT of Delhis, (2011) 2 SCC 36, Bhajan Singh and others v State of Haryana; (2011) 7 SCC 421, it was laid down that evidence of a related witness can be relied upon provided it is trustworthy. Again, in Jayabalan v U.T. of Pondicherry, 2010(68) ACC 308 (SC), the Supreme Court has made following observation:

"We are of the considered view that in cases where the court is called upon to deal with the evidence of the interested witnesses, the approach of the court, while appreciating the evidence of such witnesses must not be pedantic. The court must be cautious in appreciating and accepting the evidence given by the interested witnesses but the court must not be suspicious of such evidence. The primary endeavour of the court must be to look for consistency. The evidence of a witness cannot be ignored or thrown out solely because it comes from the mouth of a person who is closely related to the victim."

31. Dharnidhar v State of UP, (2010) 7 SCC 759 referred the above observation of Jaya Balan (supra) and held that there is no hard and fast rule that family members can never be true witnesses to the occurrence and that they will always depose falsely before the Court. It will always depend upon the facts and circumstances of a given case. Similar view has been taken in Ram Bharosey v State of UP AIR 2010 SC 917, where the Court stated that a close relative of the deceased does not become an interested witness. An interested witness is one who is interested in securing the conviction of a person out of vengeance or enmity or due to disputes and deposes before the Court only with that intention and not to further the cause of justice.

32. Again, in Balraje @ Trimbak v State of Maharashtra, (2010) 6 SCC 673, it has been held that when the eye-witnesses are stated to be interested and inimically deposed against the accused, it would not be proper to conclude that they would shield the real culprit and rope in innocent person. The truth or otherwise of the evidence has to be weighed pragmatically. The Court would be required to analyze the evidence of related witnesses and those witnesses who are inimical towards the accused. But if after careful analysis and scrutiny of their evidence, the version given by the witnesses appears to be clear, cogent and credible, there is no reason to discard the same.

33. Subsequently, in Jalpat Rai v State of Haryana AIR 2011 SC 2719 and Waman v State of Maharashtra AIR 2011 SC 3327, it was observed that the over-insistence on witnesses having no relation with the victims often results in criminal justice going away. The testimony of a witness in a criminal trial cannot be discarded merely because the witness is a relative or family member of the victim of the offence. This view has been reiterated in Shyam Babu v State of UP, AIR 2012 SC 3311, Dhari & Others v State of UP, AIR 2013 SC 308 and Bhagwan Jagannath Markad (supra). Recently, in Ganapathi v State of Tamilnadu, AIR 2018 SC 1635, the Court found no force in the argument that the conviction based on the evidence of family members in a murder trial is not sustainable. In Rupinder Singh Sandhu v State of Punjab, (2018) 16 SCC 475, it has been reiterated by the Supreme Court that relationship by itself will not render the witness untrustworthy. The Supreme Court laid down as below:

*"Relationship is not a factor to affect credibility of a witness. It is more often than not that a relation would not conceal the actual culprit and make allegations against an innocent person. Foundation has to be laid if plea of false implication is made. In such cases, the court has to adopt a careful approach and analyse evidence to find out whether it is cogent and credible. ..... A witness is normally to be considered independent unless he or she springs from sources which are likely to be tainted and that usually means unless the witness has cause, such as enmity against the accused, to wish to implicate him falsely. Ordinarily, a close relative would be the last to screen the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent person. It is true, when feelings run high and there is personal cause for enmity, that there is a tendency to drag in an innocent person against whom a witness has a grudge along with the guilty, but foundation must be laid for such a criticism and the mere fact of re*lationship far from being a foundation is often a sure guarantee of truth."

34. Recently, in Shio Shanker Dubey v State of Bihar AIR 2019 SC 2275, the Supreme Court has reiterated the law as under:

"..... a close relative cannot be characterized as an "interested" witness. He is a "natural" witness. His evidence, however, must be scrutinized carefully. If on such scrutiny, his evidence is found to be intrinsically reliable, inherently probable and wholly trustworthy, conviction can be based on the "sole" testimony of such witness. Close relationship of witness with deceased or victim is no ground to reject his evidence. On the contrary, close relative of the deceased would normally be most reluctant to spare the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent one."

35. Thus, in view of aforementioned decisions of the Supreme Court, it is settled position of law that the statements of the interested witnesses can be safely relied upon by the court in support of the prosecution story. But this needs to be done with care and to ensure that the administration of criminal justice is not undermined by the persons who are closely related to the deceased and inimical with the accused. When their statements find corroboration by other evidence, expert evidence and the circumstances of the case clearly depict completion of the chain of evidence pointing out to the guilt of the accused, then there is no reason as to why the statement of so-called 'interested witnesses' cannot be relied upon by the Court. It would be hard to believe that the close relatives shall leave the real culprit and shall implicate innocent persons falsely simply because they have enmity with the accused persons. There is no rule to the effect that the evidence of related or partisan witness is not acceptable. Association or relation does not render the evidence false and partisanship is no ground to reject the testimony given on oath.

36. So far as non-examination of the independent witness is concerned, the option lies with the prosecution to examine as many witness as is required to be examined to prove the charge. Moreover, no other witness has been alleged to be present on spot at the time of incident and therefore, there was no question of examining any other witness. Moreover, it is not the quantity, rather quality of the evidence which is decisive in arriving at the right conclusion.

36. Certain contradictions, discrepancies and improvements have been mentioned in the statements of fact witnesses. PW-3 has stated that they were going to Dr. Ramprasad of salempur where her mother used to go for injection. She has said that her mother was patient of tuberculosis and on the previous night, because of cough (khansi), blood came out from her mouth. She has also stated that when accused obstructed and gave threatening to her mother and she ran towards Salempur, accused Ram Naresh shot fire at her which hit her on her right buttock. The submission of the learned counsel is that the name of the doctor where the deceased was going or any thing stated above in italics has not been mentioned in the FIR nor in the statement given to IO. The defence has also pointed out discrepancy on the point that the fire was shot while she was running away. PW-5 Ram Lakhan who has been examined as eyewitness has also narrated the whole incident in the similar way. Both the witnesses have stated that when both the accused persons came out in front of the deceased and threatened her, the deceased tried to run away towards Salempur and she sustained the first shot in the process and the other two shots were fired by them from close range when she fell down. Both the witnesses have stated that the deceased sustained three firearm injuries one while running and the other two when she could not run and fell down. They have also stated that her slippers were left at the place where she sustained the first fire.

37. On facts, we find that the contradiction, discrepancy or improvement mentioned above are not in respect of time, place, date and manner of the commission of offence. It needs to be mentioned that where own mother is victim of deadly assault and the eyewitnesses were son and daughter of the deceased, in such a situation, the witnesses are not supposed to be perfectionist to give the exact account of the incident and narrate every aspect related thereto in a uniform way. Some sort of contradiction, improvement and embellishment is bound to occur in the statement. As laid down in State of UP v Naresh; 2011 (75) ACC 215) (SC), in all criminal cases, normal discrepancies are bound to occur in the depositions of witnesses due to normal errors of observation, namely, errors of memory due to lapse of time or due to mental disposition such as shock and horror at the time of occurrence. Minor contradictions, inconsistencies, embellishments or improvements on trivial matters which do not affect the core of the prosecution case, should not be made a ground on which the evidence can be rejected in its entirety. The Court has to form its opinion about the credibility of the witness and record a finding as to whether his deposition inspires confidence.

38. In Gosu Jayarami Reddy and another v State of Andhra Pradesh; (2011) 3 SCC(Cri) 630, it was observed that Courts need to be realistic in their expectation from the witnesses and go by what would be reasonable based on ordinary human conduct with ordinary human frailties of memory and power to register events and their details. A witness who is terrorized by the brutality of the attack cannot be disbelieved only because in his description of who hit the deceased and on what part of the body, there is some mix-up or confusion.

39. Further, in Parsu Ram Pandey v/s State of Bihar AIR 2004 SC 5068, Shivappa v State of Karnataka; AIR 2682, Ramchandaran v/s State of Kerala AIR 2011 SC 3581, it was held that minor discrepancies or some improvements would not justify rejection of the testimonies of the eye-witnesses, if they are otherwise reliable. Some discrepancies are bound to occur because of the sociological background of the witnesses as also the time gap between the date of occurrence and the date on which they give their depositions in Court. In Mukesh v State for NCT of Delhi, AIR 2017 SC 2161 and Bhagwan Jagannath Markad v State of Maharashtra, (2016) 10 SCC 53, it was reiterated that minor contradictions in the testimonies of the prosecution witness are bound to be there and in fact they go to support the truthfulness of the witnesses. In view of the above, we are of the view that there is nothing in the deposition of the eye-witnesses on the basis of which their evidence can be discarded. We do not find any contradiction discrepancy or improvement in the statement of the witness and there is consistency so far as narration of the criminal incident.

40. So far as the second limb of argument is concerned, we do not find it at all necessary that all the facts are required to be mentioned in the FIR. The purpose of FIR is to give information about commission of offence and it is not necessary to give every minute detail. In Jarnail Singh v State of Punjab, 2009 (6) Supreme 526, Bhagwan Jagannath Markad v State of Maharashtra, (2016) 10 SCC 537 and Ramji Singh v State of UP, 2019 (4) Crimes 585 (SC), it has been held that the FIR is not the encyclopedia of all the facts relating to crime. The only requirement is that at the time of lodging FIR, the informant should state all those facts which normally strike to mind and help in assessing the gravity of the crime or identity of the culprit briefly. In our view, a detail description and sequence of incident constituting the offence is not at all required to be mentioned in the FIR.

41. The learned counsel to the accused-appellant has also submitted that the presence of PW-5 is highly doubtful as he had sworn an affidavit and this fact has been stated by DW-1

Ravendra Kumar Misra Advocate, a lawyer who got the affidavit prepared, that Ram Lakhan put his signature thereon. The affidavit has been proved as Ext. Kha-1 and it has been stated therein that on 3.8.1993 at about 1 PM, his mother had left to go to Salempur to her relative Pratap Bhan and when she reached near Salempur, someone killed her by firing. The people passing through came and informed him about it. He and Sudha rushed there and and saw their mother lying dead. There is a case pending in the court between the deceased and Ram Nnaresh in which he, his sister Sudha and Ram Prtap are also parties. On this basis, they suspected that accused persons killed the deceased and lodged FIR. The learned counsel has pointed out that PW-5 was examined and he has stated that the affidavit bears his photograph and signature. But, he has explained it by saying that on the saying of Chhavinath, brother in law of Ram Prtap, that it is so required in respect of the money of his father's provident fund, he signed on blank papers and he did not go to court nor he was produced before any oath commissioner. The explanation given by the witness appears to be convincing looking to his age as he was about 15 years in age when he sworn the affidavit and definitely, there was a dispute with regards to the money of provident fund of his father. It also looks strange that DW-1 has stated that he knew witness Ram Lakhan from the last three years when he prepared the affidavit. Knowing an eleven twelve years boy does not look natural. The Oath Commissioner has not been examined who could have been best person to state about it. In addition to it, it needs mention that in criminal trial, evidence cannot be given on affidavit or by filing an affidavit.

42. In Munir Ahmad v State of Rajasthan, AIR 1989 SC 705, it has been held that in the case of a living person, evidence in judicial proceedings must be tendered by calling the witness. Testimony of such witness cannot be substituted by an affidavit unless the law permits so as u/s 295 and S. 407(3) CrPC or the court expressly allows it. The Supreme Court has deprecated getting affidavit of witnesses in advance in Rachapalli Abbulu v State of AP, AIR 2002 SC 1805 and has held that practice of getting affidavits of witnesses in advance is an attempt aimed at dissuading witnesses from speaking the truth before the court. The Supreme Court has laid down that such interference in criminal justice should not be encouraged and should be viewed seriously. In Smt. Sudha Devi v M.P. Narayanan, AIR 1988 SC 1381 and Ayaaubkhan v State of Maharashtra, AIR 2013 SC 58, it has been held that affidavits have got no evidentiary value as the affidavits are not included in the definition of "evidence" in S. 3 of the Evidence Act and can be used as evidence only if for sufficient reasons court passes an order like the one under O.19, Rule 1 & 2 of the CPC. Therefore, in view of the discussion above, we are of the view that the said affidavit is not significant and on that basis the evidence of PW-5 cannot be rejected.

43. The next submission is about motive and it has been argued that the accused persons did not have motive or adequate motive sufficient to cause the death of own mother. The defence case has been that some unknown person killed the deceased and out of enmity, the accused persons have been falsely implicated. It has been already discussed above that the defence theory that the witnesses did not see the criminal incident as they were not present there, is not convincing. It is a case of broad day murder and the two eye-witnesses were none other but the daughter and son of deceased who were accompanying the deceased and going to the doctor as the deceased was suffering from tuberculosis. Thus, the prosecution case is based on direct evidence and the settled law is that motive goes to the back seat in such cases.

44. In a number of decisions, like Abu Thakir v State AIR 2010 SC 2119, State of UP v Nawab Singh AIR 2010 SC 3638, Bipin Kumar Mondal v State of West Bengal 2005 SCC (Criminal) 33, Shivraj Bapuray Jadhav v State of Karnataka (2003) 6 SCC 392, Thaman Kumar v State of Union Territory of Chandigarh (2003) 6 SCC 380, State of HP v Jeet Singh; (1999) 4 SCC 370, it has been repeatedly held by the Supreme Court that motive is not a sine qua non for the commission of a crime. Moreover, it takes a back seat in a case of direct ocular account of the commission of the offence by a particular person. In a case of direct evidence the element of motive does not play such an important role so as to cast any doubt on the credibility of the prosecution witnesses even if there be any doubt raised in this regard. If the eye-witnesses are trustworthy, the motive attributed for the commission of crime may not be of much relevance. Failure to prove motive or absence of evidence on the point of motive would not be fatal to the prosecution case when the other reliable evidence available on record unerringly establishes the guilt of the accused.

45. We find that the Supreme Court has reiterated the aforesaid view in various decisions, such as Gopi Ram v St. Of UP, 2006 (55) ACC 673 SC, R.R. Reddy v State of AP, AIR 2006 SC 1656, Sucha Singh v State of Punjab; AIR 2003 SC 1471, State of Rajasthan v Arjun Singh AIR 2011 SC 3380, Varun Chaudhry v State of Rajasthan AIR 2011 SC 72. In the recent judgment of Saddik Vs. State of Gujarat, (2016) 10 SCC 663, it has been held that the prosecution case could not be denied on the ground of alleged absence or insufficiency of motive. Motive is insignificant in cases of direct evidence of eyewitnesses. Failure to prove motive or absence of evidence on the point of motive would not be fatal to the prosecution case when the other reliable, truthful and acceptable evidence is available on record sufficient to establish the guilty of accused persons.

46. We are of the view that when there is sufficient direct evidence regarding the commission of offence, the question of motive should go away from the mind of the Court. Motive is a double edged weapon and the key question for consideration in cases based on direct evidence remains whether the prosecution has convincingly and satisfactorily established the guilt of all or any of the accused beyond reasonable doubt by adducing reliable and cogent evidence. As such, the proof of the existence of a motive is not necessary for a conviction for any offence. If the eye-witnesses are trustworthy, the motive attributed for the commission of crime may not be of much relevance. Failure to prove motive or absence of evidence on the point of motive would not be fatal to the prosecution case when the other reliable evidence available on record establishes the guilt of the accused.

47. In the case in hand, evidence shows that motive in terms of enmity has been alleged by the defence side. In addition to it, the prosecution witnesses have stated that the relationship of accused Ram Naresh with his mother was very strained and he used to live in the same house separately. The property dispute was there as after the death of her husband, the deceased inherited the property and also the amount of provident fund. PW-1 has stated that prior to this incident, accused Ram Naresh committed marpeet with her mother in which she was also injured and FIR was lodged in relation thereto for the offence under section 325 IPC and the case is still pending. She has also stated that the accused also lodged a false cross case. This all goes to show that the relationship of the accused was very strained with deceased and civil and criminal case were pending in court. Therefore, motive has been alleged and proved by prosecution. So far as accused Kamal is concerned, it is admitted and proved that he is Samdhi of accused Ram Naresh as his daughter is married with son of accused Kamal and it is no strange if he joined hands for commission of the offence.

48. As pointed out above, both the eyewitnesses are daughter and son of the deceased and the deceased was sick and suffering from tuberculosis. If both were going to doctor with deceased, their presence on spot at the time of incident is quite natural. The incident took place in the day light and there is no possibility of mistake in identifying the accused persons, more so because the accused persons were well known to them. Both the witness have stated that their mother sustained three firearm injuries which was caused by the accused persons and their mother died on spot immediately. The medical report also supports this fact. PW-7 Dr. S.B.Singh, while conducting post-mortem, found on the dead body three firearm entry wounds which are just behind left ear, multiple pellets wound, 12 and 20 in number, on dorso-medial aspect of right forearm and posterior lateral aspect of right buttock. In the opinion of doctor, the injuries were caused by country made pistol and injury no.1 was caused from a very close range as blackening and tattooing was present and other two injuries were from a little distance. Left parietal bone and occipital bone were found broken, brain-lacerated, base of scalp was also broken. The eye-witnesses have stated that the deceased died immediately on spot and the doctor has also expressed the view that the death must have taken place on 3.8.1993 at 1.30 PM and it not only corroborates the time of death but also shows that the injuries were sufficient to cause instant death. The discrepancy tried to have been created by the defence with regards to number of firing is based on imagination and has no base whatsoever.

49. In the FIR, place of occurrence has been alleged to be the pagdandi of the field of Antu towards Salempur which comes just after crossing pakka road when the two accused persons came out from the hedge and committed the offence. Ext. Ka-13 is the site map prepared and proved by IO in which the place of occurrence has been shown as alleged in the FIR and stated by the eye-witnesses. In the site map, the place where dead body was found, from where blood stained and plain earth was picked, place near the dead body where live cartridge was found, place of two empty cartridges, place of slippers of the deceased and one live cartridge, place from where accused persons started firing, hedge where they were hidden, the pathway used by them, way to the house of deceased, way by which both the witnesses turned back and fled, way the deceased tried to escape, pagdandi and mend of the field has been shown. The distance between the place of slippers and dead body of the deceased was about 115 steps. PW-1 and PW-5 have also stated the place of occurrence to be near Antu's field and pagdandi and the same is also established by defence version and the statement of DW-1. On the same day, inquest report was prepared and the officer has mentioned and proved that the dead body was found in the field of Antu. Thus, we find that the place of occurrence has been fully established. It is pertinent to mention that the inquest report has been prepared and dead body has been sealed after appointing 5 punch witnesses including DW-2 and it has been specifically contained therein that the deceased died because of firearm injuries. Ext. Ka-10 is the memo of recovery of slippers of the deceased and on the left slipper, blood stains were found. Similarly, Ext. Ka-11 is the memo of blood stained and plain earth which was lifted from the place of occurrence and Ext. Ka-12 is the memo of live and empty cartridges recovered from the spot. All these memos have been duly proved by prosecution witnesses and they also corroborate the prosecution version.

50. Both the accused persons made confessional statement regarding commission of the offence by them by country made pistols and on their pointing, in the presence of witnesses got two country made pistol, one of accused Ram Naresh and other of accused Kamal, recovered from the house of accused Ram Naresh which were concealed in a dig. They admitted that by the pistols so recovered, they killed the deceased on the fateful day. Both the pistols were sealed and were produced in evidence during trial. The memo of recovery is Ext. Ka-16 which has been proved by the witnesses thereto. The learned trial court has convicted both the accused persons for the offence under section 25 the Arms Act. Thus, the prosecution version is also supported by the fact of discovery of two pistols on the pointing of both the accused persons.

51. The submission of the learned counsel is that the recovery was planted by police and false. The confession cannot be relied upon since made to the police. Since, the accused-appellants have also challenged the conviction under section 25 of the Arms Act, we are required to examine the legality of impugned judgement in respect thereof.

52. We find on record that on the basis of recovery memo of pistols, offence under section 25 of the Arms Act was registered against accused persons as they could not show license for keeping the same and chick was prepared. The offence was investigated, site map was prepared, statement of witnesses recorded and charge sheet was submitted by police against them. The prosecution witnesses have proved the recovery and the accused persons have been also convicted and awarded sentence for the same.

53. The recovery memo of two pistols shows that the accused persons, in custody, made confessional statement and took the police to the house of accused Ram Naresh and after removing a stone tile inside the house, both the accused persons dig out the country made pistol kept in polythene and stated that by those pistols they killed the deceased. PW-1 SI A.K. Kulshresth has stated that both the accused gave statement that the pistols by which they killed Beti Devi are hidden by them in the house of Ram Naresh and they can get the same recovered. Their statement was noted down in the case dairy by him and extract thereof certified by the witness was filed and proved by him as Ext. Ka-14 and Ka-15. Thereafter, he took the accused persons on remand by order of the court and on 29.3.1993, he took them to their village. All the police personnel and witnesses were mutually searched to ensure that there is nothing incriminatory with them and thereafter, the accused persons voluntarily dig out the pistols used for the commission of the offence. The pistols were sealed and memo (Ext. Ka-16) was prepared and the signatures of accused persons and witnesses were obtained after reading and explaining the same. GD report no. 15 (Ext. Ka-17) of 10.20 AM of the same date is of departure of the witness and accused persons from the Police Station. Site map of recovery (Ext. Ka-18) was prepared by the witness and sealed pistols were deposited in the Police Station and on the basis of memo of recovery, offence under section 25 of the Arms Act was registered against both the accused persons and chick (Ext. Ka-19) was prepared and an entry was made in the GD no. 26 (Ext. Ka-20). The witness has also proved the recovered pistols as Material Ext. 6 and 7. the evidence of PW-1 finds full support from the statement of PW-2 CP Kamlesh Babu who is another witness of recovery. Both the witnesses have been cross-examined by defence, but, nothing has come out on the basis of which they could be disbelieved. We find that both the witnesses have proved the recovery of those pistols which were used in the murder of deceased and for keeping the same, the accused persons could not show any licence and as such the learned trial court rightly held both the accused persons guilty for the offence under section 25 of the Arms Act.

54. The law with regards to admissibility and evidentiary value of discovery of material fact and incriminatory articles under section 27 of the Evidence Act has been variously explained and reiterated by the Supreme Court. In Suresh Chandra Bahri Vs. State of Bihar, AIR 1994 SC 2420, it has been laid down that where the accused had made confessional disclosure statement under section 27 of the Evidence Act to the police officer during investigation and on the basis thereof, incriminatory articles were found and seized and the evidence showed that the articles belonged to the deceased, it has been held by the Supreme Court that the disclosure statement can be said to be true and also worthy of credence. Non recording of disclosure statement and non-examination of public witness as regards to the said recovery would be of no consequence.

55. It has been held in Bodh Raj Vs. State of J & K, AIR 2002 SC 3164 that section 27 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 is like an exception to Sections 25 to 26 of the Evidence Act and a confessional statement made in police custody leading to discovery of fact has been made admissible in evidence against the accused. The prohibition on admissibility of confessional statement reflects the fear of the Legislature that a person under police influence might be induced to confess because of undue pressure. The statement which is admissible under Section 27 is the one which is the information leading to discovery. The information might be confessional in nature but if it results in discovery of a fact, it becomes a reliable information. But the information permitted to be admitted in evidence is confined to that portion of the information which 'distinctly relates to the fact thereby discovered.'

56. In Geejaganda Somaiah, T.N. v. State of Karnataka AIR 2007 SC 1355, it has been laid down that what is important is the information provided by the accused, which leads to the discovery of the fact, which is connected with the particular crime, provided that the accused is in custody. It is of no consequence that the information amounts to a confession which will not be allowed to be proved by the prosecution. But if a relevant fact is discovered in consequence of such information it furnishes assurance regarding the truth of such information. It is such information as relates to the fact thereby discovered is declared to be relevant and is allowed to be proved by the prosecution.

57. In Sandeep Vs. State of UP, (2012) 6 SCC 107 and Mukesh Vs. State for NCT of Delhi & Others, AIR 2017 SC 2161, it was further laid down that if anything or weapons etc. are recovered at the instance of the accused only in the presence of police party and there is no public witness to such recovery or recovery memo, the testimony of the police personnel proving the recovery and the recovery memo cannot be disbelieved merely because there was no witness to the recovery proceedings or recovery memo from the public particularly when no witness from public could be found by the police party despite their efforts at the time of recovery. Seizure memo need not be attested by any independent witness and the evidence of police officer regarding recovery at the instance of the accused should ordinarily be believed. The ground realities cannot be lost sight of that even in normal circumstances, members of public are very reluctant to accompany a police party which is going to arrest a criminal or is embarking upon search of some premises.

58. In Navneethakrishnan v State, AIR 2018 SC 2027, the SC observed-

"The exception postulated under section 27 of the Evidence Act is applicable only if the confessional statement leads to the discovery of some new fact. The relevance under the exception postulated by exception postulated by section 27 aforesaid, is limited "..... as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered.... ." The rationale behind section 27 of the Evidence Act is, that the facts in question should have remained unknown but for the disclosure of the same by the accused. The discovery of facts itself, therefore, substantiates the truth of the confessional statement. And since it is truth that a court must endeavour to search, section 27 aforesaid has been incorporated as an exception to the mandate contained in sections 25 and 26 of the Evidence Act."

59. It has been submitted by the learned counsel for the accused-appellants that the two public witnesses namely, Chhabi Nath and Mahesh have not been examined by the prosecution. It has been also submitted that these public witnesses gave affidavit during investigation in favour of accused persons. If it was so, in our view, it is in itself a good justification for not producing them during trial. So far as the argument that the public witnesses were not examined and they gave affidavit denying such recovery in their presence, the same will not adversely impact the prosecution version nor the recovery would become tainted. The learned trial court has taken the view that even if it was so, the police witnesses have proved the recovery. The Supreme Court in Nathu Singh v State of MP, 1974 Cri. L J 11, their testimony cannot be discarded for the reason that they are police witnesses and it has not been shown that the police had some enmity with accused. Further judgements such as Pramod Kumar Vs. State (GNCT) of Delhi, AIR 2013 SC 3344 and Govindaraju alias Govinda Vs. State of Shri Ramapuram P.S., AIR 2012

SC 1292 also affirm this view in which it has been held that the testimony of police personnel should be treated in the same manner as testimony of any other witness. There is no principle of law that without corroboration by independent witnesses, the testimony of police personnel cannot be relied on. The presumption that a person acts honestly applies as much in favour of a police personnel as of other persons and it is not a proper judicial approach to distrust and suspect them without good reasons. As a rule it cannot be stated that Police Officer can or cannot be sole eye witness in criminal case. Statement of Police Officer can be relied upon and even form basis of conviction when it is reliable, trustworthy and preferably corroborated by other evidence on record. Experience shows that local people to avoid enmity and bad relation are often reluctant in

60. We are of the view that there is no error or perversity in the approach of the learned trial court. This instant case is based on direct evidence and the eyewitnesses saw the accused using pistol for causing deadly assault by firing and the recovery has been made from the house of accused. So far as his affidavit is concerned which was given by him during investigation denying such recovery is no evidence as the witness has denied the same and has stated that his statement before the court is correct, and also in view of judgement of the Supreme Court in Ayaaubkhan v State of Maharashtra, AIR 2013 SC 58, where it has been held that affidavits have got no evidentiary value as the affidavits are not included in the definition of "evidence" in S. 3 of the Evidence Act.

61. We are of the view that seizure memo need not be attested in all cases by any independent witness and the evidence of police officer regarding recovery at the instance of the accused should ordinarily be believed. The ground realities cannot be lost sight of that even in normal circumstances, members of public are very reluctant to accompany a police party which is going to arrest a criminal or is embarking upon search of some premises. There is no such rule that the police as witness of recovery cannot be believed. We get added strength to take this view on the basis of the judgement of the Supreme Court discussed above. There appears to be no error in the impugned conviction of both the accused persons for the offence under section 25 of the Arms Act as the recovery of the two pistols has been proved by the trustworthy evidence of two police witnesses of recovery and the accused persons were not able to show licence for keeping the same.

62. It has also been argued that there is no evidence to link the recovered pistols with the offence and the same has not been sent for chemical examination. Moreover, the blood stained earth and clothings of deceased have also not been sent for chemical examination. Even if it is so, this lapse is attributable to irregularity or deficiency in investigation and in C. Muniappan Vs. State of TN, 2010 (6) SCJ 822, Hema Vs. State, 2013 (81) ACC 1 (SC), State of Karnataka Vs. Suvarnamma, (2015) 1 SCC 323 and Khem Ram Vs. State of Himachal Pradesh, (2018) 1 SCC 202, it has been held that the lapses in investigation need not necessarily lead to rejection of the case of prosecution when it is otherwise proved. The only requirement is use of extra caution in evaluation of evidence. A defective investigation cannot be fatal to prosecution where ocular testimony is found credible and cogent.

63. In Rahul Mishra Vs. State of Uttarakhand, AIR 2015 SC 3043 and

V.K. Mishra Vs. State of Uttarakhand, (2015) 9 SCC 588 it has been remarked by the Supreme Court that the investigating officer is not obliged to anticipate all possible defences and investigate in that angle. In any event, any omission on the part of the investigating officer cannot go against the prosecution. Interest of justice demands that such acts or omission of the investigating officer should not be taken in favour of the accused or otherwise it would amount to placing a premium upon such omissions. In Dhanaj Singh Vs. State of Punjab, (2004) 3 SCC 654, Sheo Shankar Singh Vs. State of Jharkhand, 2011 CrLJ 2139(SC) and Maqbool Vs. State of A.P., AIR 2011 SC 184. the Supreme Court has more specifically laid down that non sending of blood stained earth and clothes of the deceased or injured to chemical examiner for chemical examination is not fatal to the case of the prosecution if the ocular testimony is found credible and cogent. Similarly, in Maqbool Vs. State of A.P., AIR 2011 SC 184 State of Punjab Vs. Hakam Singh, 2005(7) SCC 408 and Dhanaj Singh Vs. State of Punjab, (2004) 3 SCC 654, it has been held that non sending of weapons of assault, cartridges and pellets to ballistic experts for examination would not be fatal to the case of the prosecution if the ocular testimony is found credible and cogent.

64. It has been also submitted that there was no reason for accused Kamal to commit the offence as he was only a relative and he was not supposed to be involved in the family dispute of both the sides in relation to the property of the deceased. Two eyewitnesses have stated that the first fire was shot by accused Ram Naresh and when the deceased fell down, both the accused went closer to her and each of them fired by their pistol. This ocular version cannot be ruled out on the basis of hypothetical stand taken by the defence. Both the accused persons are close by virtue of the marriage of their children and accused Ram Naresh had very strained relations with the deceased and as such, there was every reason for both the accused persons to have intimacy and closeness and naturally, accused Kamal was the only well wisher of accused Ram Naresh as his relation with other members of the family were strained. Subsequently also, both surrendered together and were sent to jail. Both together caused death by firing and concealed their pistol in the house of Ram Naresh and the same was recovered on their pointing. Thus, both joined gloves together and shared the common intention for commission of the offence.

65. There is yet another argument that both the witnesses were children of deceased and were no less inimical. They were present on spot. There was occasion for the accused persons to assault and cause injury to them. But no injury was sustained by them. This makes their presence doubtful at the time of incident. This aspect has been adequately addressed by the learned trial court. There may be several reasons for it; the witnesses ran backwards; the accused might not be feeling them to be any hindrance in his goal; witness Ram Lakhan was just 14 years old; no resistance by witnesses during commission of the offence or any thing of like nature. It is not possible to read the mind of the accused why he did not assault or caused any injury to them. But, sustaining no injury is no reason to reject the ocular testimony which is consistent, trustworthy, natural and spontaneous and without any material contradiction and discrepancy. No convincing reason has been assigned by the defence why the real brother and sister will implicate the accused falsely.

66. In view of the above we find that prompt FIR has been lodged in this case; prosecution version has been supported by the account of two eyewitnesses which further finds support and corroboration by medical evidence and recovery of weapon used in the commission of the offence; alleged motive has been proved; the presence of both the eyewitnesses at the time of incident and with the deceased is natural and their evidence is credible, consistent and trustworthy on which reliance has been rightly placed by the learned trial court. Once, it was established by prosecution and defence version both that at the time date and place, the deceased was killed by firearm injury and the injury was sufficient to cause death, the limited question for determination was the role and involvement of the accused persons and that has been proved by two eyewitnesses and there is nothing on record to discard their evidence. As such, we do not find any perversity or illegality in the impugned judgement. The conviction and sentence awarded by the learned trial court is upheld. The appeal is, therefore, liable to be dismissed.

67. All the three Criminal Appeals are accordingly dismissed.

68. The accused-appellants Ram Naresh and Kamal are directed to surrender before the learned trial court forthwith where from they shall be sent to jail to undergo the sentence.

69. Amicus Curiae Shri Pradeep Kumar Mishra, Advocate shall be paid Rs. 10,000/- for his legal assistance to the Court.

70. Office is directed to send a copy of this order to the court below for communication and compliance along with lower court record.

THE HON'BLE DEVENDRA KUMAR UPADHYAYA, J.
THE HON'BLE MOHD. FAIZ ALAM KHAN, J.

Criminal Appeal No. 1431 of 2007

Sanjeev @ Sanju ...Appellant
Versus
State of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellant:
Afaq Zaki Khan, Anil Kumar Tiwari, Arun Kumar, Neeta Singh Chandel, Rishad Murtaza, Udai Pratap Singh

Counsel for the Respondent:
G.A., Saurabh Chandra

A. Evidence law- Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 8-Motive- The cases which are based on direct evidence of the witnesses should be decided on the basis of quality and probative value of the evidence of such eye witnesses.

Motive is insignificant in cases of direct evidence.

B. Evidence law- Indian Evidence Act, 1872 –Section 134 - It is not the quantity, but the quality which is material- The court can and may act on the testimony of a single witness provided he is wholly reliable– In case of doubts and suspicion the courts will insist on corroboration.

The number of witnesses is not material, rather the quality of evidence adduced by even a single witness is enough to secure conviction provided the said evidence is credible.

C. Evidence law- Indian Evidence Act, 1872 – Section 118- Natural witnesses may not be labelled as interested witnesses - Interested witnesses are those who want to derive some benefit out of the litigation/case - Court has to adopt a careful approach and analyse the evidence of such witness to find out whether he is a natural witness and whether in the facts and circumstances of the case his evidence is cogent and credible.

A witness whose presence is natural cannot be labelled as an interested witness, only because he is a related witness, since an interested witness is a person who stands to benefit from the case.

D. Any illegality either committed knowingly or unknowingly by the investigating officer will not adversely affect the case of the prosecution and in any case the fate of a criminal trial could not be left at the mercy of an erring investigating officer.

Lapses made in the course of investigation cannot benefit the accused.

E. Evidence law- Indian Evidence Act, 1872 – Section 27- Recovery of any fact under Section 27 of the Evidence Act is only one piece of evidence amongst many pieces of evidence relied on by the prosecution and if in the process of appreciation of evidence any one piece of evidence is even not found proved, the duty of the Court is to see as to whether the remaining evidence which has been found proved is of such a nature that the case of the prosecution is proved beyond reasonable doubt.

Even where the recovery of any fact under section 27 of the Evidence act is not proved due to the error or lapses of the investigating officer, the Court can always rely upon the other evidence which proves the case of the prosecution beyond any reasonable doubt.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mr. Justice Mohd. Faiz Alam Khan, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the appellant and Sri Chandra Shekhr Pandey, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

2. This criminal appeal has been filed by appellant/Sanjeev alias Sanju Yadav under Section 374 (2) of the Code of Criminal Procedure against the judgment and order dated 08.06.2007 passed by Additional Session Judge/Fast Track Court-III, Faizabad in Sessions Trial No. 73 of 2005, "State Vs. Sanjeev alias Sanju Yadav", arising out of Case Crime No. 1380 of 2004, under Section 302 of I.P.C., Police Station Kotwali Nagar, District Faizabad, whereby the appellant has been convicted under Section 302 of I.P.C. and has been sentenced for rigorous life imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 5,000/- with default clause.

3. Brief facts necessary for the disposal of this criminal appeal are that on 24.07.2004 at 21:15 hours a written application was presented to S.H.O. Kotwali, Faizabad by informant Shyam Sundar Malviya stating therein that his brother-in-law (Sala) is resident of Village Dhangada, Police Station Salempur, District Deoria. He after passing M.A. examination was living with him since 1997 and was also teaching in his school namely Surabhi Siksha Sansthan. A girl student of his school wrote a love letter to one Nirankar, resident of "Datta ka purva', P.S. Kotwali which some how came in the custody of his brother-in-law, in relation to which, his wife Smt. Girija Malviya who is the Principal of school scolded appellant Sanjeev @ Sanju Yadav and Nirankar. It was further stated that some hot talks had taken place between his brother-in-law Rakesh Kumar Dubey and Sanjeev @ Sanju Yadav and Sanjeev asked his brother-in-law to hand over the love letter to him and when his brother-in-law refused to hand over the same to Sanjeev, he threatened that his brother in law will have to pay the price for that.

It was further stated that on the basis of above enmity on 24.07.2004 at 8:00 pm. his brother-in-law Rakesh was returning to his house with two bags of "Morang' laden on his bicycle and when he reached a little ahead of the house of Surajdeen, appellant Sanjeev @ Sanju Yadav and one unknown person with him dragged his brother-in-law into the bushes and Sanjeev @ Sanju committed his murder by assaulting him with a sharp edged weapon. The incident was witnessed by many persons and the accused persons fled away from the scene of crime. There was enough moonlight and electricity light, at the time of incident.

4. On the basis of the above mentioned written application, (Exhibit-ka-1), an F.I.R. under Section 302 I.P.C. was registered against Sanjeev @ Sanju and one unknown person at Case Crime No. 1380 of 2004 at Police Station Kotwali Nagar, Faizabad and the substance of this information was entered into the G.D. Serial No.-62, (Exhibit-ka-5) at 21:15 hours on 24.07.2004. Investigation of the crime was entrusted to S.I. Ram Shiromani Singh, who at once arrived at the spot and collected the belongings of the deceased which was scattered around his dead body and prepared a memo (Exhibit-ka6). He also collected the blood stained and simple soil from the spot and kept the same in separate containers and also prepared a memo, (Exhibit-ka-7) of the same. He prepared the Site Plan, (Exhibit-ka-8) on the pointing of the informant and also prepared the Inquest Report (Exhibit-ka-9) of the dead body and also prepared necessary papers i.e. Form No.-13, Photo Lash, Chitthi R.I., Chitthi C.M.O., Sample of Seal, (Exhibit-ka-10 to 15) for the purpose of postmortem.

5. The postmortem on the dead body of deceased Rakesh Kumar Dubey was performed by P.W.-5/Dr. Chandra Shekhar Singh on 25.07.2004 at 2:30 pm. at District Hospital, Faizabad. The deceased was found to be aged about 25 years and it was opined by the doctor that his death had occurred 3/4 day before and that he was a person of average built and rigor mortis had passed away from both extremities of his body. Following injuries were found on the body of the deceased:-

(i) Injury No.1/Incised wound 18 cm. x 8 cm. x bone deep over the anterior aspect just below the mandible all around except posterior of the neck, 14 cm. left 3rd Cervical vertebra artery clean cut.

(ii) Injury No.2/Incised wound 14 cm. x 2 cm. x muscle deep over right posterior occipital region 5 cm. above the ear.

On internal examination, 3rd Cervical vertebra was found clean cut, trachea was clean cut and divided, both chambers of the heart were empty, oesophagus was clean cut and divided. 200 grams of semi-digested food was found in the stomach. Small intestine was full of fluid and gases while faecal matter and gases were found in the large intestine, gall bladder was half full, spleen and kidneys were pale, bladder was empty and the cause of death of the deceased was ascertained as shock and hemorrhage as a result of ante-mortem wounds. P.W.-4/Dr. Chandra Shekhar Singh proved to have prepared the postmortem report (Exhibit-k-3) in his hand writing and under his signatures.

6. On 25.07.2004 at about 3:00 hours, appellant Sanjeev alias Sanju was arrested and he stated to have confessed his guilt and also that he could get the weapon recovered which was used in the commission of the crime. A knife was recovered at his pointing and a memo of the same (Exhibit-ka-2) was also prepared. The investigation thereafter, was transferred to S.H.O. Ram Pal Singh., who after taking over the investigation of the case recorded the statement of the witnesses and sent the material exhibits for forensic examination and after collecting the report of the Forensic Lab (Exhibit-ka-18) submitted the charge-sheet (Exhibit-ka-19) against Sanjeev @ Sanju Yadav under Section 302 of I.P.C.

7. The case being triable by the Court of sessions was committed and charge under Section 302 of I.P.C. was framed against the appellant Sanjeev @ Sanju Yadav. He denied the charges and claimed trial.

8. The prosecution in order to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt relied on the following documentary evidences before the trial Court:-

Written application (Exhibit-ka-1), memo of arrest and recovery of knife by the appellant (Exhibit-ka-2), Postmortem Report (Exhibit-ka-3), Chick F.I.R., (Exhibit-ka-4), G.D. Qayami (Exhibit-ka-5), memo of seizing the belongings of deceased found at the place of occurrence (Exhibit-ka-6), memo of taking simple and blood stained soil from the spot (Exhibit-ka-7), Site Plan of the place of occurrence (Exhibit-ka-8), Inquest Report (Exhibit-ka-9), Chitthi C.M.O. (Exhibit-ka-10), Chitthi R.I. (Exhibit-ka-11), Photo Lash (Exhibit-ka-12), Report of Police Station to R.I. (Exhibit-ka-13), Letter to C.M.O. (Exhibit-ka-14), Sample seal (Exhibit-ka-15), Site Plan of the place of occurrence (Exhibit-ka-16), letter whereby the material was sent to forensic lab (Exhibit-ka-17), report of the forensic lab (Exhibit-ka-18), charge-Sheet (Exhibit-ka-19).

9. The prosecution also testified following witnesseses in support of its case:-

P.W.-1/Shyam Sundar Malviya (Informant/eye witness), P.W.-2/Smt. Girja Malviya, P.W.-3/Saurabh Malviya (Eye witness), P.W.-4/Gulab Chandra Malviya (Eye witness), P.W.-5/Dr. Chandra Shekhar Singh (Doctor, who conducted the postmortem), P.W.-6/Constable Lalmani Rai (Scribe of Chick F.I.R. and G.D.), P.W.-7/Ram Shiromani Singh (First Investigating Officer), P.W.-8/Ram Pal Singh (Second Investigating Officer).

10. Learned counsel for the appellant while pressing the appeal submits that the trial Court has committed manifest illegality in appreciation of prosecution evidence and has relied on inadmissible evidence and passed a judgment of conviction only on the basis of ''surmises and conjectures'.

It is further submitted that the trial Court has not taken into consideration the fact that the love letter allegedly written by the girl student to one Nirankar was never produced either before the Investigating Officer or before the trial Court and when the basis of the prosecution case was missing it was not justified for the trial Court to convict the appellant, more so when the girl who had allegedly written the love letter was also not being produced as a witness.

It is further submitted that it is not clear from the evidence on record as to whether the said love letter was written to Nirankar or to Sanjeev @ Sanju and that if the letter was written to Nirankar, how Sanjeev @ Sanju was concerned with the same. It is next submitted that all witnesses of fact and of recovery are family members and related to each other, while the independent witnesses having houses on both side of the scene of occurrence namely Surajdeen and Ram Narayan Gupta have not been produced before the trial Court as witnesses, therefore, the story of the prosecution is doubtful on this score. The recovery stated to have been effected on the pointing of the appellant is also not believable.

It is next submitted that Sanjeev @ Sanju was not studying in the school of P.W.-1/Shyam Sundar Malviya, while Nirankar was stated to be a student of that school. Therefore, the trial Court has erred in concluding that appellant was having any connection with Nirankar. The motive suggested by the prosecution is weak and has not been proved. The prosecution witnesses were not in a position to see the assailants, as there was no source of light and in site plan the Investigating Officer has also not shown any electricity pole around the scene of occurrence belying the story of the prosecution that there was an electricity pole around the spot. It has overwhelmingly been submitted that the prosecution witnesses who have claimed to have witnessed the incident are not reliable and, therefore, the appeal of the appellant be accepted and the judgment and order of the trial Court be set-aside.

11. Learned A.G.A., per contra, submits that the trial Court after meticulously appreciating the evidence available on record has came to a conclusion that the appellant has committed the offence and the finding of the trial Court is based on acceptable, reliable and truthful evidence of prosecution witnesses.

It is next submitted that the evidence of the prosecution witnesses who claimed to have seen the occurrence is reliable, trustworthy and the appellant has also recovered the weapon of assault on his pointing and there is no difference or alteration between ocular and medical evidence, rather the medical evidence supports the ocular testimony of prosecution witnesses. The motive is also proved, however, there was no need for the same as the case was based on direct evidence of the eye-witnesses. Therefore, keeping in view the facts and circumstances of the case as well as evidence available on record, no illegality appears to have been committed by the trial Court in arriving to a conclusion that the offence has been committed by the appellant. The minor irregularities committed in the investigation could not be the basis to doubt the prosecution.

12. Having heard the submissions of learned counsels for the parties, the question which arises for adjudication in this criminal appeal is as to whether the trial court has convicted the appellant on the basis of evidence available on record or the prosecution has failed to prove its case beyond all reasonable doubts.

Hon,ble Apex Court in Vadivelu Thevar Vs. State of Madras; AIR 1957 SC 614 has held as under:-

"The contention that in a murder case, the Court should insist upon plurality of witnesses, is much broadly stated."

"The Indian Legislature has not insisted on laying down any such exceptions to the general Rule recognized in Section 134 quoted above. The Section has enshrines the well recognized maxim that "Evidence has to be weighed and not counted." Our Legislature has given statutory recognition to the fact that administration of justice may be hampered if a particular number of witnesses were to be insisted upon.

"Even as the guilt of an accused person may be proved by the testimony of a single witness, the innocence of an accused person may be established on the testimony of a single witness, even though a considerable number of witnesses may be forthcoming to testify to the truth of the case for the prosecution."

"Generally speaking oral testimony in this context may be classified into three categories, namely (1) wholly reliable (2) wholly unreliable (3) neither wholly reliable nor wholly unreliable. In the first category of proof, the Court should have no difficulty in coming to its conclusion either way- it may convict or may acquit on the testimony of a single witness, if it is found to be above reproach or suspicion of interestedness, incompetence or subornation. In the second category, the Court equally has no difficulty in coming to its conclusion. It is in the third category of cases, that the Court has to be circumspect and has to look for corroboration in material particulars by reliable testimony, direct or circumstantial. There is another danger in insisting on plurality of witnesses. Irrespective of the quality of the oral evidence of a single witness, if courts were to insist on plurality of witnesses in proof of any fact, they will be indirectly encouraging subornation of witnesses. Situations may arise and do arise where only a single person is available to give evidence in support of a disputed fact. The Court naturally has to weigh carefully such a testimony and if it is satisfied that the evidence is reliable and free from all taints which tend to render oral testimony open to suspicion, it becomes its duty to act upon such testimony."

Vadivelu Thevar case (supra) has been referred to with approval in many cases thereafter and it has been held that as a general rule the court can and may act on the testimony of a single witness provided he is wholly reliable. There is no legal impediment in convicting a person on the sole testimony of a single witness. This is what the essence of Section 134 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 is. But, if there are doubts and suspicion about the testimony of such a witness, the courts will insist on corroboration. Therefore, it is not the number and the quantity, but the quality which is material. The time tested principle is that evidence has to be weighed and not counted. The test is whether the evidence has a ring of truth around it, is cogent, credible and trustworthy, or otherwise.

13. Before proceeding further, it appears necessary that a brief survey of the prosecution evidence be made so that the evidence available on record may be appreciated in an effective way, keeping in view the above legal principles.

P.W.1- Shyam Sundar Malviya, who is the brother-in-law (bahnoi) of the deceased- Rakesh has stated in his statement that a girl student of class-8th of his school wrote a love letter to Nirankar and appellant- Sanjeev @ Sanju. His wife Girja Malviya was the Principal of the school and deceased- Rakesh, was his brother-in-law who somehow got this love letter and showed it to his sister Girja Malviya and thereafter kept the same with him. On 24.07.2004 his wife, namely, Girja Malviya called Nirankar and appellant- Sanjeev and scolded them for this. Sanjeev asked Rakesh to handover the letter to him, who refused and some hot exchanges took place between them and Sanjeev threatened deceased- Rakesh of dire consequences.

He further stated that on the same day deceased- Rakesh went to took some "morang' as some repair work was going on in the house of the informant. When deceased did not return for quite some time, he went out, at about 8:00 P.M. in search of him. When he reached at the "kharanja' road, he saw in the light of electric bulb and moonlight that one unknown person dragged deceased towards bushes and Sanjeev assaulted deceased with a knife. According to this witness, Sanjeev assaulted Rakesh firstly on his ear and thereafter on his neck by which the whole neck of the deceased was cut and only a small portion of the same remained connected. Deceased- Rakesh was carrying two bags of "morang' on his bicycle and the bags were scattered on the road. This incident was witnessed by his son Saurabh Malviya and many others. Sanjeev and an unknown person fled away from the scene and thereafter they went to the police station and lodged the F.I.R. (Exhibit ka-1). He also stated that investigating officer had come on the spot and he had shown him the place of occurrence. The Investigation Officer recorded his statement and also took soil samples and bicycle of deceased in his custody.

P.W.2- Smt. Girja Malviya in her statement has stated that deceased- Rakesh was her brother, who was living with her and was teaching in her school. One of the girl student of class- 8th of her school wrote a letter to Nirankar and Sanjeev, which was taken by his brother and his brother showed that letter to her. She stated to have summoned and scolded both Nirankar as well as Sanjeev for this and there were some hot exchanges between Rakesh and Sanjeev and Sanjeev threatened her brother either to return the letter or to face the consequences. Her brother did not handover the letter to appellant- Sanjeev and due to this he was done to death by Sanjeev.

P.W.3- Saurabh Malviya is the son of P.W.1- Shyam Sundar Malviya (informant) who has stated in his statement that his maternal uncle deceased- Rakesh Kumar was teaching in the school managed by his father and mother. Corroborating the statement of P.W.1- Shyam Sundar Malviya and P.W.2- Smt. Girja Malviya, he further stated that a girl student of class- 8th wrote a letter to Sanjeev and Nirankar and the same was taken by deceased- Rakesh and he also showed this letter to his mother, namely, Smt. Girja Malviya, who in-turn scolded Sanjeev and Nirankar. Rakesh Kumar told Sanjeev that he will inform his parents about this letter on which a quarrel had taken place between them. Sanjeev was continuously persuading Rakesh to handover the letter to him while Rakesh was not handing over the letter to him and thereon Sanjeev had threatened his maternal uncle of dire consequences.

This witness has further stated that on 24.07.2004 at about 8:00 P.M., he went out of his house and when he reached at *''Kharanja'*Road' he saw that Sanjeev was standing there with an unknown person and his maternal uncle, namely, Rakesh Kumar was coming on bicycle carrying two bags of ''morang'. At that time Sanjeev assaulted Rakesh with a knife on his neck and ear. He saw the incident in the light of electric bulb and moonlight. Apart from him, his father and other persons had also witnessed the incident.

P.W.4- Gulab Chandra Malviya is stated to be a witness of the recovery of a knife on the pointing of appellant- Sanjeev @ Sanju and has proved the knife, which was also presented in the Court as Material Exhibit No.1. He also stated that a memo was also prepared pertaining to recovery of knife.

P.W.5- Dr. Chandra Shekhar Singh has conducted the post-morterm on the body of the deceased- Rakesh on 25.07.2004 at 2:30 P.M. and has proved the post-morterm report in his writing and signature as (Exhibit ka-3).

He further stated that both the injuries, i.e., Injury nos.1 and 2 on the deceased were caused by a sharp edged weapon and both these injuries may have been caused on 24.07.2004 at 8:00 P.M. Detailed description of the post-morterm report has been given in the paragraph no. 5 of this judgment .

P.W.6- Constable Lalmani has proved the Chik F.I.R. as (Exhibit ka-4) and also the G.D. Qayami as (Exhibit ka-5) in his writing and signature.

P.W.7- Sub-Inspector Ram Shiromani Singh is the first Investigating Officer of the crime, who has stated that on 24.07.2004 after taking over the investigation, he departed towards the scene of crime and after arriving at the spot took into possession the dead body of the deceased and his other belongings which were scattered there. He also stated to have prepared a memo of the same as (Exhibit ka-6). He also stated to have collected the blood stained and simple soil from the spot and also prepared a memo of the same (Exhibit ka-7). He further stated to have prepared the site plan (Exhibit ka-8) of the spot at the pointing of informant and also prepared inquest report (Exhibit ka-9) of the dead body and after preparing necessary papers forwarded the dead body for the purpose of post-morterm.

He further stated that he arrested the appellant- Sanjeev @ Sanju on the same day at about 13:00 hours, who during interrogation confessed his guilt and a knife was recovered on his pointing. A memo of the recovered knife (Exhibit ka-2) was also prepared. This witness has also proved the site plan (Exhibit ka-16) of the place from where the knife was got recovered by appellant.

P.W.8- S.H.O. Ram Pal Singh is the second Investigating Officer of the case who after recording the statement of the witnesses and having found sufficient evidence against the appellant submitted the charge-sheet (Exhibit ka-19) against him.

14. Learned counsel for the appellant submits that the motive as alleged by the prosecution has not been proved and letter which was the basis of dispute has not been produced before the Court.

A three Judges Bench Of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Molu and others Appellants v. State of Haryana AIR 1976 SUPREME COURT 2499 has opined as under :-

"11. Finally it was argued by the appellants, following the reasons given by the Sessions Judge, that there was no adequate motive for the accused to commit murder of two persons and to cause injuries to others. It is well settled that where the direct evidence regarding the assault is worthy of credence and can be believed, the question of motive becomes more or less academic. Sometimes the motive is clear and can be proved and sometimes. however, the motive is shrouded in mystery and it is very difficult to locate the same. If, however, the evidence of the eye-witnesses is credit-worthy and is believed by the Court which has placed implicit reliance on them, the question whether there is any motive or not becomes wholly irrelevant. For these reasons, therefore, we agree with the High Court that the prosecution has been able to prove the case against the appellants beyond reasonable doubt."

Hon'ble Supreme Court in Krishna Pillai Sree Kumar and another v. State of Kerala, AIR 1981 SUPREME COURT 1237 has held as under:-

"7. It is undisputed that some bad blood existed between the deceased on the one hand and the appellants on the other prior to the occurrence. The animosity may not have been very bitter but then it is too much to say that it could not possibly form a motive for the occurrence. The variation in human nature being so vast murders are known to have been actuated by much lesser motives. In any case, it is not a sine qua non for the success of the prosecution that the motive must be proved. So long as the other evidence remains convincing and is not open to reasonable doubt, a conviction may well be based on it."

In Praful Sudhakar Parab v. State of MaharashtraAIR 2016 SUPREME COURT 3107 Hon'ble Supreme Court stated as under :-

"16. One of the submissions which has been raised by the learned amicus curiae is that the prosecution failed to prove any motive. It is contended that the evidence which was led including the recovery of bunch of keys from guardroom was with a view to point out that he wanted to commit theft of the cash laying in the office but no evidence was led by the prosecution to prove that how much cash were there in the pay office. Motive for committing a crime is something which is hidden in the mind of accused and it has been held by this Court that it is an impossible task for the prosecution to prove what precisely have impelled the murderer to kill a particular person. This Court in Ravinder Kumar and another v. State of Punjab, 2001 (7) SCC 690 : (AIR 2001 SC 3570), has laid down following in paragraph 18:

"18.....It is generally an impossible task for the prosecution to prove what precisely would have impelled the murderers to kill a particular person. All that prosecution in many cases could point to is the possible mental element which could have been the cause for the murder. In this connection we deem it useful to refer to the observations of this Court in State of Himachal Pradesh v. Jeet Singh {1999 (4) SCC 370 : (AIR 1999 SC 1293)}:

"No doubt it is a sound principle to remember that every criminal act was done with a motive but its corollary is not that no criminal offence would have been committed if the prosecution has failed to prove the precise motive of the accused to commit it. When the prosecution succeeded in showing the possibility of some ire for the accused towards the victim, the inability to further put on record the manner in which such ire would have swelled up in the mind of the offender to such a degree as to impel him to commit the offence cannot be construed as a fatal weakness of the prosecution. It is almost an impossibility for the prosecution to unravel the full dimension of the mental disposition of an offender towards the person whom he offended."

Keeping in view the above referred law, we are of the considered opinion that the prosecution is not obliged to prove those facts which are either impossible for the prosecution to prove or which are locked up in the mind of the accused persons, as to what tempted them to commit the crime. Therefore, the cases which are based on direct evidence of the witnesses should be decided on the basis of quality and probative value of the evidence of such eye witnesses.

15. In the First Information Report, it was stated that deceased- Rakesh who was the brother-in-law of informant was living with informant and his wife. P.W.2- Girja Malviya, was running a school and deceased- Rakesh was teaching in the same school. It is also mentioned in the F.I.R. that a girl student of class-8th of this school wrote a love letter to Nirankar which somehow fell in the hands of deceased- Rakesh and P.W.2- Smt. Girja Malviya having seen the letter called and scolded Nirankar and Sanjeev @ Sanju. Sanjeev asked deceased- Rakesh to handover that letter to him or to face the consequences. However, deceased- Rakesh did not give the letter to appellant and on the basis of this enmity appellant along with one other person committed the murder of deceased on 24.07.2004 at 8:00 P.M. when deceased was returning home after getting two bags of "morang' on his bicycle.

P.W.1- Shyam Sundar Malviya in his statement has specifically stated that only enmity of appellant with his family was due to the love letter, which was written by a girl student of his school to Nirankar and Sanjeev. He also stated that Rakesh after showing this letter to his sister- Girja Malviya kept it with him and did not give this letter to Sanjeev and it was for this letter that Sanjeev has committed his murder. In his cross-examination, this witness has stated that he did not see the letter himself and his wife Girja Malviya told him about this letter and it was only on this basis, he has stated that the letter was written to both Sanjeev and Nirankar.

P.W.2- Smt. Girja Malviya in her statement has also corroborated the fact of writing a letter to Sanjeev and Nirankar by a girl student of class-8th of her school. She has also stated that after reading the letter she scolded Nirankar and Sanjeev and Sanjeev threatened her brother of dire consequences if the letter is not handed over to him. In her cross-examination, she has stated that she did not provide that letter to the investigating officer as her brother kept the same with him.

P.W.3- Saurabh Malviya has also stated of getting the information of this letter from her mother P.W.2- Girja Malviya and also that he himself had not seen the letter.

P.W.8- Sub-Insepctor Ram Pal Singh has also stated that no letter was given to him by anyone during investigation, however, P.W.2 Girja Malviya informed him about this letter which was written to Nirankar. He also stated that he did not record the statement of the girl student.

A perusal of the evidence of above witnesses would reveal that P.W.1- Shyam Sundar Malviya, who is the brother-in-law of the deceased- Rakesh has never seen the love letter which was written by a girl student of his school to Nirankar and Sanjeev and also that the love letter which was intercepted by deceased- Rakesh was either seen by the deceased or it was read by P.W.2- Girja Malviya, who was the Principal of the school, where the girl was studying. It has also come in the evidence that deceased- Rakesh after showing the letter to his sister, kept the same with him. So there is no evidence on record which may suggest that any letter was provided to P.W.2- Girja Malviya by deceased- Rakesh. Perusal of the memo prepared by the investigating officer of the belongings of the deceased found at the place of occurrence would also reveal that no such letter has been found either with the deceased or in his belongings which were scattered on the spot. Therefore, this possibility could not be ruled out that deceased himself had kept the letter somewhere or the same could have been taken away by the appellant after commission of the offence. It has been categorically stated by prosecution witnesses that apart from this letter, there was no enmity of any kind with the appellant and the deceased- Rakesh has done to death only due to this letter.

16. It is also pertinent to mention here that the appellant in his statement recorded under Section 313 of the Cr.P.C. has also stated that he has been falsely implicated in this case due to enmity but he has not specified as to what enmity he was having with the deceased. Instant case is based on the direct testimony of the eye-witnesses P.W.1- Shyam Sundar Malviya and P.W.3- Saurabh Malviya, who have claimed to have seen the occurrence and have also claimed to have identified the appellant in the light of the electric bulb which was lighting on the electric pole near the place of occurrence and also in the moonlight. Since the case is based on eye-witness account, hence motive is not of much significance, but in the facts and circumstances of the case, it is evident that the prosecution has been able to prove that a letter was written by a girl student of class-8th of the school to appellant and Nirankar and the same was intercepted by deceased- Rakesh. P.W.2- Girja Malviya scolded Sanjeev and Nirankar and appellant- Sanjeev thereafter threatened the deceased to handover the letter or to face the consequences. In our considered opinion, this was sufficient motive for the appellant to commit crime.

17. It has been overwhelmingly argued by learned counsel for the appellant that all the witnesses of the prosecution are related to each other and also to the deceased and, therefore, there testimony could not be believed in absence of independent witnesses.

The law with regard to the submission made by learned counsel for the appellant pertaining to the appreciation of evidence of related or interested witnesses is no more res-integra.Hon'ble Supreme Court in Gangabhavani vs. Rayapati Venkat Reddy and Ors., MANU/SC/0897/2013 has held as under :-

"11. It is a settled legal proposition that the evidence of closely related witnesses is required to be carefully scrutinised and appreciated before any conclusion is made to rest upon it, regarding the convict/accused in a given case. Thus, the evidence cannot be disbelieved merely on the ground that the witnesses are related to each other or to the deceased. In case the evidence has a ring of truth to it, is cogent, credible and trustworthy, it can, and certainly should, be relied upon.(Vide: Bhagaloo Lodh and Anr. v. State of U.P. MANU/SC/0700/2011 : AIR 2011 SC 2292; and Dhari and Ors. v. State of U.P. MANU/SC/0848/2012 : AIR 2013 SC 308).

In State of Rajasthan v. Smt. Kalki and Anr. MANU/SC/0254/1981 : AIR 1981 SC 1390, it has been held as under:

"5A. As mentioned above the High Court has declined to rely on the evidence of P.W. 1 on two grounds: (1) she was a "highly interested" witness because she "is the wife of the deceased".....For, in the circumstances of the case, she was the only and most natural witness; she was the only person present in the hut with the deceased at the time of the occurrence, and the only person who saw the occurrence. True it is she is the wife of the deceased; but she cannot be called an 'interested' witness. She is related to the deceased. 'Related' is not equivalent to 'interested. A witness may be called 'interested' only when he or she derives some benefit from the result of a litigation; in the decree in a civil case, or in seeing an accused person punished. A witness who is a natural one and is the only possible eye witness in the circumstances of a case cannot be said to be 'interested'. In the instant case P.W. 1 had no interest in protecting the real culprit, and falsely implicating the Respondents."(Emphasis added)(See also: Chakali Maddilety and Ors. v. State of A.P. MANU/SC/0609/2010 : AIR 2010 SC 3473).

In Sachchey Lal Tiwari v. State of U.P. MANU/SC/0865/2004 : AIR 2004 SC 5039, while dealing with the case, it was held as under:

"7....Murders are not committed with previous notice to witnesses; soliciting their presence. If murder is committed in a dwelling house, the inmates of the house are natural witnesses. If murder is committed in a street, only passers-by will be witnesses. Their evidence cannot be brushed aside or viewed with suspicion on the ground that they are mere 'chance witnesses'. The expression 'chance witness' is borrowed from countries where every man's home is considered his castle and everyone must have an explanation for his presence elsewhere or in another man's castle. It is quite unsuitable an expression in a country where people are less formal and more casual, at any rate in the matter explaining their presence."

In view of the above, it can safely be held that natural witnesses may not be labelled as interested witnesses. Interested witnesses are those who want to derive some benefit out of the litigation/case. In case the circumstances reveal that a witness was present on the scene of the occurrence and had witnessed the crime, his deposition cannot be discarded merely on the ground of being closely related to the victim/deceased.

In Bhagaloo Lodh and Ors. vs. State of U.P. reported in MANU/SC/0700/2011, it was held as under :-

"14. Evidence of a close relation can be relied upon provided it is trustworthy. Such evidence is required to be carefully scrutinised and appreciated before resting of conclusion to convict the accused in a given case. But where the Sessions Court properly appreciated evidence and meticulously analysed the same and the High Court re-appreciated the said evidence properly to reach the same conclusion, it is difficult for the superior court to take a view contrary to the same, unless there are reasons to disbelieve such witnesses. Thus, the evidence cannot be disbelieved merely on the ground that the witnesses are inter-related to each other or to the deceased. (Vide: M.C. Ali and Anr. v. State of Kerala MANU/SC/0247/2010 : AIR 2010 SC 1639; Myladimmal Surendran and Ors. v. State of Kerala MANU/SC/0670/2010 : AIR 2010 SC 3281; Shyam v. State of Madhya Pradesh MANU/SC/7112/2007 : (2009) 16 SCC 531; Prithi v. State of Haryana MANU/SC/0532/2010 : (2010) 8 SCC 536; Surendra Pal and Ors. v. State of U.P. and Anr. MANU/SC/0713/2010 : (2010) 9 SCC 399; and Himanshu @ Chintu v. State (NCT of Delhi) MANU/SC/0006/2011 : (2011) 2 SCC 36).

In view of the law laid down herein above, no fault can be found with the evidence recorded by the courts below accepting the evidence of closely related witnesses."

It is therefore settled that merely because witnesses are close relatives of the victim, their testimonies cannot be discarded. Relationship with deceased is not a factor that affects credibility of witness, more so, a relative would not conceal the actual culprit and make allegation against an innocent person. However, in such a case Court has to adopt a careful approach and analyse the evidence of such witness to find out whether he is a natural witness and whether in the facts and circumstances of the case his evidence is cogent and credible.

18. Perusal of record in the background of the above legal proposition would reveal that the place where the incident has happened is situated near the houses of Ram Narayan and Sooraj Deen. The incident is stated to have occurred at about 8:00 P.M. in the night. In sub-urban areas 8:00 P.M. in the night is not a time whereon the residents are usually outside, rather they remain inside their houses to relax after a full day of hard work. P.W.1-Shyam Sundar Malviya has specifically stated that when he arrived at the scene of crime no resident was there and they all came on the spot afterwards. According to him deceased- Rakesh had raised alarm twice but his second cry was very mild. According to him his house is situated towards South of "kharanja road' after five houses. He has acknowledged that houses of Sooraj Deen and Ram Narayan as well as that of Hriday Ram are also situated there. He further stated that wife of Ram Narayan Gupta seldom lived in her house and the place where deceased- Rakesh fell, is situated about 15 paces away from the house of Sooraj Deen. P.W.1- Shyam Sundar Malviya has also stated that half an hour before his departure Rakesh had gone to take "morang' and when he did not return for quite some time, he went out in search of him. P.W.3- Saurabh Malviya, who is the son of P.W.1- Shyam Sundar Malviya has stated that at the fateful time he was going to Kaushalpur to meet his friend and when he arrived at the "kharanja road' he saw the incident from in front of the house of Ram Narayan Gupta. According to P.W.1- Shyam Sundar Malviya and P.W.3- Saurabh Malviya an electric bulb was lighting at the spot and there was moonlight also.

It has also come in the evidence of prosecution witnesses that only six houses are situated between the house of informant and "kharanja road' and according to P.W.1- Shyam Sundar Malviya no one was present at that time at the scene of crime. In the facts and circumstances of the case, it is evident that the deceased on the fateful day and time had gone to take "morang' from a shop and he was returning from there, after taking two bags of "morang' on his bicycle and also that the house of appellant- Sanjeev is situated on that way by which the deceased- Rakesh was returning. It has also come in the evidence that the distance of the shop of "morang' from the house of P.W.1- Shyam Sundar Malviya is about 1/2 to 2/3 km. Therefore, what transpires from the evidence of both witnesses of fact is that the incident had occurred at 8:00 P.M. in the night and there was no person other than P.W.1- Shyam Sundar Malviya and P.W.3- Saurabh Malviya at the road where the incident had taken place. P.W.3- Saurabh Malviya has also stated that none from the house of Sooraj Deen or Ram Narayan was there at the time of incident. Therefore, this is not a case where the independent witnesses were present at the scene of crime and the prosecution has suppressed them. Rather in this case, this is a consistent case of the prosecution that deceased went out to fetch some "morang' from a place which was situated about 1/2 to 2/3 km. away from the house of informant and the path to that place passes through the front of the house of appellant and when deceased did not return, even after half an hour, P.W.1- Shyam Sundar Malviya went out of his house to search him and when he came on the road he saw the incident. P.W.3- Saurabh Malviya has specifically stated that he and his father came out of the house together though he came out to go to Kaushalpur and he has seen the incident from near the house of Ram Narayan Gupta. One more thing which fortifies the evidence of P.W.1- Shyam Sundar Malviya is that the anxiety, which was being felt by him when deceased did not return for long time, appears to be natural as the house of appellant- Sanjeev was situated on the way through which the deceased had gone to take "morang' and appellant had earlier threatened the deceased- Rakesh to face dire consequences if the letter is not returned to him.

In view of the above and having perused the evidence of the eye-witnesses P.W.1- Shyam Sundar Malviya and P.W.3- Saurabh Malviya, in our considered opinion, it is not a case where the evidence of these two reliable eye witnesses could be disbelieved for want of independent witnesses.

19. So far as the submission of learned counsel for the appellant pertaining to the fact that First Information Report of this case has been ''ante-timed' and, therefore, no reliance can be placed on such report and when the foundation of the case, in the shape of F.I.R. is doubtful the conviction could not be held, is concerned, the evidence available on record would reveal that F.I.R. of the incident was lodged on 24.07.2004 at 21:15 hours (9:15 P.M.) while incident is stated to have occurred on the same day at 20:00 hours (8:00 P.M.) and the distance of the police station from the place of occurrence has been mentioned in the Chik F.I.R. as 4 km. The date and the time of lodging the First Information Report and making of a corresponding entry in the General Diary of the police station has been sufficiently proved by P.W.6- Constable Lalmani as 9:15 P.M. on 24.07.2004. We have very carefully perused the testimony of this witness and have not found anything which may shake the reliability of this witness, so far as the date and time of lodging of First Information Report is concerned. Chik F.I.R. (Exhibit ka-4) shows that the investigation of the case was entrusted to Sri Ram Shrimoni Singh, who has also been produced as P.W.7 and has very elaborately described the steps taken by him in furtherance of the investigation of crime. In his evidence, he stated to have reached the spot and taken the belongings of deceased in his possession and also prepared a Memo (Exhibit ka-6). He also stated to have collected blood stained and simple soil from the spot and also to have prepared a memo of the same (Exhibit ka-7). He also inspected the spot and prepared the site plan (Exhibit ka-8) on the pointing of informant. He also prepared the inquest report of the body of the deceased (Exhibit ka-9) and all necessary papers for the purpose of post-morterm of the dead body. Perusal of Inquest report (Exhibit ka-9) available on record would reveal that it contains the time of lodging of First Information Report as 21:15 hours and also the manner of commission of offence, which corresponds with the manner of committing the offence stated in the F.I.R. The time of the beginning of the inquest has been shown as 22:20 hours (10:20 P.M.) and the name of the informant has also been stated as Shyam Sundar Malviya. Perusal of papers prepared for post-morterm would also reveal that in all these papers crime number and other particulars of the First Information Report have been mentioned. In our considered view, the cumulative effect of these documents would certainly be that at the time of inquest the First Information Report had come into existence and, therefore, the submission of learned counsel for the appellant with regard to the F.I.R. being ''ante-timed' is not correct.

Another submission, which has been put-forth by learned counsel for the appellant is that recovery of knife on the pointing of the appellant could not be believed in the facts and circumstances of the case. He invited our attention to the site plan (Exhibit ka-16) of the place from where the recovery of the knife has been shown. Submission is that in this site plan the name of the accused has been shown as Rakesh Kumar while in this case Rakesh Kumar is the deceased and, therefore, the recovery could not be believed.

20. We have perused the evidence of the prosecution witnesses available on record as well as judgment of the trial court. What we find is that the trial court has disbelieved the recovery of knife on the pointing of appellant on the ground that the memo of recovery (Exhibit ka-2) has been so written, as the writing in the recovery memo has become very congested towards the end of it and this belies the claim of the investigating officer that the "fard" (memo) was written at the spot. P.W.4- Gulab Chandra Malviya has stated in his statement that on 25.07.2004 investigating officer called him and when he reached there he saw that "Daroga Ji" was sitting in a jeep with appellant- Sanjeev along with other police personnel and he asked him to accompany them and thereafter a knife (chhuri) was recovered at the pointing of the appellant from a spot situated near the palm tree. It is also stated by him that some amount of dry blood was also visible on this knife. The knife so recovered has also been produced in the Court in a sealed condition. P.W.4 has also stated that "Daroga Ji" prepared a memo of recovery of the knife and after writing the memo he read over the same to him and thereafter he put his signatures on the "fard baramadgi' (Recovery Memo).

21. We have perused the "fard baramadgi' (Exhibit ka-2) in the light of the submissions of learned counsel for the appellant and observations of the trial court and we find that the last four lines of the recovery memo have been written congestly in comparison to the writing of the "fard" at the beginning or in the middle but it does not reveal that the writing in the "fard" is of such a nature which may give an impression that the last four or five lines have been subsequently added or the "fard baramadgi' has been manipulated, however, it certainly creates a little amount of doubt about the statement of the investigating officer that "fard" recovery was written at the spot. The law with regard to any illegality or to say any irregularity committed by the investigating officer during the investigation of a criminal case is well settled according to which any illegality either committed knowingly or unknowingly by the investigating officer will not adversely affect the case of the prosecution and in any case the fate of a criminal trial could not be left at the mercy of an erring investigating officer. This is based on the simple legal proposition that why should the victim or in case of murder, his family suffer for the illegality committed by the investigating officer.

22. It is to be understood that Investigating Officer knows as to how the investigation should be done. He has all the means to conduct a proper and fair investigation but some times either knowingly or unknowingly, if any irregularity or even illegality is committed by the Investigating Officer, the same could not form the basis to reject the otherwise truthful evidence of eye witnesses. Any illegality or irregularity committed by the investigating officer, where the informant or witnesses are not privy, either bonafidely or deliberately, could not be the basis to reject the testimony of truthful eye witnesses. The Criminal Justice Administration could not be left on the mercy of an erring Investigating Officer.

In State of Karnataka vs. K. Yarappa Reddy, MANU/SC/0633/1999 it has been held as under :-

"It can be a guiding principle that as investigation is not the solitary area for judicial scrutiny in a criminal trial, the conclusion of the court in the case cannot be allowed to depend solely on the probity of investigation. It is well settled that even if the investigation is illegal or even suspicious the rest of evidence must be scrutinized independently of the impact of it. Otherwise criminal trial will plummet to that level of the investigating officers ruling the roost. The Court must have predominance and pre-eminence in criminal trials over the action taken by investigating officers. Criminal justice should not he made the casualty for the wrongs committed by the investigating officers in the case. In other words, if the court is convinced that the testimony of a witness to the occurrence is true the court is free to act on it albeit investigating officer's suspicious role in the case."

In C. Muniappan v. State of T.N. [C. Muniappan v. State of T.N., (2010) 9 SCC 567 : (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 1402] , Hon'ble Supreme Court explained the law on this point in the following manner:-

"55. There may be highly defective investigation in a case. However, it is to be examined as to whether there is any lapse by the IO and whether due to such lapse any benefit should be given to the accused. The law on this issue is well settled that the defect in the investigation by itself cannot be a ground for acquittal. If primacy is given to such designed or negligent investigations or to the omissions or lapses by perfunctory investigation, the faith and confidence of the people in the criminal justice administration would be eroded. Where there has been negligence on the part of the investigating agency or omissions, etc. which resulted in defective investigation, there is a legal obligation on the part of the court to examine the prosecution evidence de hors such lapses, carefully, to find out whether the said evidence is reliable or not and to what extent it is reliable and as to whether such lapses affected the object of finding out the truth. Therefore, the investigation is not the solitary area for judicial scrutiny in a criminal trial. The conclusion of the trial in the case cannot be allowed to depend solely on the probity of investigation."

23. We are also of the considered view that recovery of any fact under Section 27 of the Evidence Act is only one piece of evidence amongst many pieces of evidence relied on by the prosecution and if in the process of appreciation of evidence any one piece of evidence is even not found proved, the duty of the Court is to see as to whether the remaining evidence which has been found proved is of such a nature that the case of the prosecution is proved beyond reasonable doubt.

In Appabhai and Ors. vs. State of Gujarat, MANU/SC/0028/1988 it was observed that :-

"A witness though wholly truthful, is liable to be overawed by the court atmosphere and the piercing cross examination made by counsel and out of nervousness mix up facts, get confused regarding sequence of events, or fill up details from imagination on the spur of the moment. The sub-conscious mind of the witness sometimes so operates on account of the fear of looking foolish or being disbelieved though the witness is giving a truthful and honest account of the occurrence witnessed by him -perhaps it is a sort of a psychological defence mechanism activated on the spur of the moment.

Discrepancies which do not go to the root of the matter and shake the basic version of the witnesses therefore cannot be annexed with undue importance. More so when the all important "probabilities-factor" echoes in favour of the version narrated by the witnesses."

Honble Apex Court long back in the matter of Bharwada Bhoginbhai Hirjibhai v State of Gujarat as reported in AIR 1983, 753, MANU/SC/0090/1983 while appreciating evidence of witnesses in the background of minor discrepancies laid down the following principles:-

"(1) By and large a witness cannot be expected to possess a photographic memory and to recall the details of an incident. It is not as if a video tape is replayed on the mental screen.

(2) Ordinarily it so happens that a witness is overtaken by events. The witness could not have anticipated the occurrence which so often has an element of surprise. The mental faculties therefore cannot be expected to be attuned to absorb the details.

(3) The powers of observation differ from person to person. What one may notice, another may not. An object or movement might emboss its image on one person's mind, whereas it might go unnoticed on the part of another.

(4) By and large people cannot accurately recall a conversation and reproduce the very words used by them or heard by them. They can only recall the main purport of the conversation. It is unrealistic to expect a witness to be a human tape recorder.

(5) In regard to exact time of an incident, or the time duration of an occurrence, usually, people make their estimates by guesswork on the spur of the moment at the time of interrogation. And one cannot expect people to make very precise or reliable estimates in such matters. Again, it depends on the time-sense of individuals which varies from person to person.

(6) Ordinarily a witness cannot be expected to recall accurately the sequence of events which take place in rapid succession or in a short time span. A witness is liable to get confused, or mixed up when interrogated later on.

(7) A witness, though wholly truthful, is liable to be overawed by the Court atmosphere and the piercing cross-examination made by counsel and out of nervousness mix up facts, get confused regarding sequence of events, or fill up details from imagination on the spur of the moment. The sub-conscious mind of the witness sometimes so operates on account of the fear of looking foolish or being disbelieved though the witness is giving a truthful and honest account of the occurrence witnessed by him - perhaps it is a sort of a psychological defence mechanism activated on the spur of the moment."

In Krishna Mochi and Ors. vs. State of Bihar, MANU/SC/0327/2002 relying on State of Rajasthan v. Smt. Kalki and Anr. MANU/SC/0254/1981 it was opined by Hon'ble Supreme Court that normal discrepancies in evidence are those which are due to normal errors of observation, normal errors of memory due to lapse of time, due to mental disposition such as shock and horror at the time of occurrence and those are always there however honest and truthful a witness may be. Material discrepancies are those which are not normal, and not expected of a normal person. Courts have to label the category to which a discrepancy may be categorized. While normal discrepancies do not corrode the credibility of a party's case, material discrepancies do so.

24. Having perused the evidence of the prosecution with care and caution, keeping in view of the submissions made by learned counsel for the appellant, we are of the considered view that the F.I.R. in the instant matter has been lodged promptly. P.W.1- Shyam Sundar Malviya, P.W.2- Smt. Girja Malviya and P.W.3- Saurabh Malviya though are closely related being husband, wife and son but their testimony appears to be natural in the facts and circumstances of the case. Their testimony could not be rejected only for the reason that no independent person was present at the scene of crime. At the cost of repetition, we would like to add that at 8:00 P.M. in sub-urban areas it is not expected that many persons would be out of their houses as it is a time to relax. Moreover, the departure of deceased- Rakesh to bring some "morang' for the repair work of the house of P.W.1- Shyam Sundar Malviya does not appear to be unnatural and when the deceased did not return for a long time, it was but natural for P.W.1- Shyam Sundar Malviya to have gone outside in search of the deceased- Rakesh, more so in the background of the fact that to get the "morang' deceased had to pass through the way whereon the house of appellant- Sanjeev was situated and he had threatened the deceased to face dire consequences in case the letter, which was written by a girl student of class- 8th, was not returned to him. Therefore, both P.W.1 and P.W.3, who went out to go to Kaushalpur, are natural witnesses of the crime and having scrutinized their testimony, we do not find any lacunae or contradictions in the same. In our considered opinion, the testimony of these two witnesses is reliable, trustworthy and could be safely relied upon. Therefore, no illegality appears to have been committed by the trial court in accepting their testimony as truthful. The ocular evidence of these two witnesses has been duly corroborated by the medical evidence available on record. We are also of the considered view that it is only the reasonable doubt, the benefit of which may be claimed by the accused persons(s) of a crime.

For the reasons aforesaid, we do not find any substance in the submissions made by learned counsel for the appellant and in our considered opinion the evidence produced by the prosecution is strong enough to prove the case of the prosecution beyond reasonable doubt.

In Gangadhar Behera and others v State of Orissa, reported in MANU/SC/0875/2002 it is held in para 18 and 19 of the report as under :-

"18. Exaggerated devotion to the rule of benefit of doubt must not nurture fanciful doubts or lingering suspicion and thereby destroy social defence. Justice cannot be made sterile on the plea that it is better to let hundred guilty escape than punish an innocent. Letting guilty escape is not doing justice according to law. [See: Gurbachan Singh v. Satpal Singh and Ors. MANU/SC/0034/1990 : 1990CriLJ562]. Prosecution is not required to meet any and every hypothesis put forward by the accused. [See State of U.P. v. Ashok Kumar Srivastava MANU/SC/0161/1992 : [1992]1SCR37]. A reasonable doubt is not an imaginary trivial or merely possible doubt, but a fair doubt based upon reason and common sense. It must grow out of the evidence in the case. If a case is proved perfectly, it is argued that it is artificial; if a case has some flaws inevitable because human beings are prone to err, it is argued that it is too imperfect. One wonders whether in the meticulous hypersensitivity to eliminate a rare innocent from being punished, many guilty persons must be allowed to escape. Proof beyond reasonable doubt is a guideline, not a fetish. [See Inder Singh and Anr. v. State (Delhi Admin.). MANU/SC/0093/1978 : 1978CriLJ766]. Vague hunches cannot take place of judicial evaluation. "A judge does not preside over a criminal trial, merely to see that no innocent man is punished. A judge also presides to see that a guilty man does not escape. Both are public duties." (Per Viscount Simon in

Stirland v. Director of Public Prosecution (1944 AC (PC) 315) quoted in State of U.P. v. Anil Singh AIR 1988 SC 1988. Doubts would be called reasonable if they are free from a zest for abstract speculation. Law cannot afford any favourite other than truth.

In matters such as this, it is appropriate to recall the observations of this Court in Shivaji Sahebrao Bobade v. State of Maharashtra MANU/SC/0167/1973 : 1973CriLJ1783 :

".....The dangers of exaggerated devotion to the rule of benefit of doubt at the expense of social defence and to the soothing sentiment that all acquittals are always good regardless of justice to the victim and the community, demand especial emphasis in the contemporary context of escalating crime and escape. The judicial instrument has a public accountability. The cherished principles or golden thread of proof beyond reasonable doubt which runs through the web of our law should not be stretched morbidly to embrace every hunch, hesitancy and degree of doubt....."

".....The evil of acquitting a guilty person light-heartedly as a learned author Glanville Williams in 'Proof of Guilt' has sapiently observed, goes much beyond the simple fact that, just one guilty person has gone unpunished. If unmerited acquittals become general, they tend to lead to a cynical disregard of the law, and this in turn leads to a public demand for harsher legal presumptions against indicated 'persons' and more severe punishment of those who are found guilty. Thus too frequent acquittals of the guilty may lead to a ferocious penal law, eventually eroding the judicial protection of the guiltiness....."

".....a miscarriage of justice may arise from the acquittal of the guilty no less than from the conviction of the innocent....."

25. In view of the reasons given herein above, we do not find any force in this appeal and the same is liable to be dismissed.

26. The appeal filed by the appellant-Sanjeev @ Sanju Yadav, is thus, dismissed and the judgment and order of the court below dated 08.06.2007 is affirmed.

27. As per record of this Court and report of office dated 07.02.2020, the appellant- Sanjeev @ Sanju Yadav is in jail. He will serve out the sentence as ordered by the trial court.

28. A copy of this judgment be immediately sent to the trial court for compliance.

1. Heard Shri Dilip Kumar and Shri V.P. Srivastava, learned Senior Advocates assisted by Shri Ram Kishore Gupta, Mukhtesh Singh, Rajan Srivastava, Advocates and Shri M.P.Yadav, learned Advocate holding brief of Shri Shiv Badan Singh; Shri Arunesh Khare and Shri Gautam Baghel, learned Advocates for appellant no. 10. Shri. L.D.Rajbhar; Shri. Sunil Kumar Tripathi, learned A.G.As have been heard for the State.

2. Two connected criminal appeal No.1498 of 2000 and 1466 of 2000 have been filed against the judgment and order dated 20.06.2000 passed by the Special Judge (E.C. Act)/Additional Sessions Judge, Hamirpur in Session Trial No.44 of 1991 and 44-A of 1991 under Section 146/148/149/302 IPC registered as Case Crime No.20-A of 1990, Police Station-Sumerpur, District Hamirpur. By the impugned judgment, the appellants-herein (12 in number) have been convicted for offence under Section 302 read with Section 149 IPC and sentenced for life imprisonment. In addition to the same, they have been convicted of the offences under Section 147 and 148 IPC and sentenced for six months imprisonment for each offence, separately. All the punishments are to run concurrently.

3. At the outset, it is informed by the learned Advocates for the appellants that the accused appellants Shiv Baran Singh son of Ranjeet Singh, Chunubad Singh son of Pran Singh and Ram Gulam son of Ranjeet Singh had died during pendency of the appeal and the appeal has been abated for them after ascertaining the factum of their death by order dated 13.09.2019.

4. The prosecution story unfolded as under:-

5. The first information report regarding four murders committed in the field near Village Mohar, Police Station Sumerpur, District Hamirpur on 11.01.1990 at about 03.30 PM, was registered at 17.30 hours (5.30 PM) on 11.01.1990 itself, on a written report filed by the Raja Bhaiya Singh son of Phool Singh resident of Village Surauli Buzurg, Police Station Sumerpur, District Hamirpur, under Section 147, 148, 149 and 302 IPC against 15 persons. After completion of the investigation, the police had submitted the charge sheet.

6. The accused persons were committed to the Sessions court on 18.01.1991. They were charge sheeted on 15.05.1992. They denied all the charges against them being false and demanded trial. The Sessions trial had commenced against 15 accused (three of them had died during the course of trial), 12 accused persons have been convicted and sentenced for life imprisonment and other punishments as well.

7. As per the first information report (written report), on 10.01.1990 first informant Raja Bhaiya Singh son of Phool Singh resident of Village Surauli Buzurg, Police Station Sumerpur, District Hamirpur had gone to Village Kiswahi alongwith Arjun Singh son of Gulab Singh, Chatrapal Singh son of Bheesam Singh both residents of Village Surauli Buzurg and Mahesh Chandra Shukla son of Shiv Narayan resident of Mundaura, Awdhesh Kumar @ Raja Nigam son of Shiv Prasad resident of Sumerpur, District Hamirpur and Sahab Singh son of Dalgajan Singh, resident of Village Swasa Haal Mukaam Kalauki Jaar. The purpose to go to Village Kishwahi was to fix marriage of Bhopat Singh son of Chatrapal Singh with the daughter of Chhiddu Singh son of Jaggu Singh resident of Village Kishwahi. It is stated in the said report that the above named persons reached the house of Chhiddu Singh son of Jaggu Singh at Village Kiswahi on 10.01.1990 and had a talk regarding settlement of marriage. In the night of 10.01.1990, they stayed in Village Kiswahi, witnessed Ramleela in the night and remained there till the afternoon on 11.01.1990.

8. At around late afternoon on 11.01.1990, they were returning to the Village Sumerpur through Village Mohar and Chhiddu Singh came to See off them till the boundaries of Village Mohar. Soon after they left Village Mohar, Chhiddu Singh requested them to relax and have 'Supari' and then go. They sat near the road to chew 'Supari' keeping their weapons on the ground. At that point of time, Ashok Kumar and Santosh Kumar sons of Kanhaiya Lal resident of Village Mohar came with 13 other persons each carrying arms in their hands. All of the accused persons were carrying weapons such as Kulhari, Farsa, Rifle, Double Barrel Gun, Lathi. Ashok and Santosh exhorted others by saying that they (other party) were saved at the instance of deceased Mahesh but no enemy should escape. While shouting "मारो सालो को", the accused persons opened fire on all of them. But the first informant, Chhiddu Singh and Sahab Singh ran from the spot and succeeded in saving their life. Whereas, four deceased persons were gheraoed by the accused persons and brutally murdered near the field from the weapons they were carrying.

9. Leaving the dead bodies of four deceased near the field, the informant reached at the police station to lodge the first information of the incident, which occurred at around 03.30 PM as noted above. On the said written report, chick FIR was prepared with the case number registered as Case Crime No.20-A of 1990 under Section 147, 148, 149 and 302 IPC. The copy of Chick FIR was given to the informant and is proved by him on record as 'Exhibit Ka-3'. The written report submitted by the first informant is proved and exhibited as "Exhibit Ka-1".

10. The prosecution had produced three eye witnesses of fact namely Raja Bhaiya Singh (the first informant), Chhiddu Singh (PW-2) and Sahab Singh (PW-4), two of them namely Chhiddu Singh and Sahab Singh, however, turned hostile. The prosecution, thus, based its entire case on the testimony of solitary eye witness Raja Bhaiya Singh.

11. Amongst formal witnesses, PW-3, PW-7, PW-9 and PW-10 were examined being postmortem doctors. P.W-5 is the officer who conducted inquest of the dead bodies. P.W-11 is the investigating officer namely Surendra Nath Yadav.

12. Apart from the above witnesses, one more witness of fact (PW-8) Ram Babu, Village Chowkidar of villages Dundhpur and Mohar had been produced by the prosecution in the witness box to prove the occurrence of the incident as reported by him in another report lodged on 11.01.1990 at about 03.40 PM. The said report is exhibited as 'Exhibit Ka-6'. Five witnesses (DW-1 to DW-5) had been produced from the defence side to prove injury reports of three accused persons namely Balram Singh son of Phool Singh, Santosh Kumar Mishra son of Kanahiya Lal and Gaya Prasad son of Jagannath. The recovery memo of one broken rifle (from the butt) belonging to accused-appellant Balram Singh son of Phool Singh handed over by him to the police had been documented as Exhibit Ka-'43'.

13. The recovery memo of SBBL gun alongwith one canvas bag containing eight cartridges (of red color and one white) alongwith a license having photograph of deceased Chatrapal Singh found near his dead body, had been documented and exhibited as 'Exhibit Ka-29'. Plain and blood stained earth collected from below the dead body of deceased Chatrapal is the recovery memo 'Exhibit Ka-30'. The memo of blood stained clothes of Chatrapal deceased is exhibit Ka-31. The memo of blood stained clothes of deceased Mahesh Shukla son of Shiv Narayan Shukla is exhibited as 'Exhibit Ka-32'. The memo of one rifle, having one used cartridge in its chamber and one empty cartridge (of brass) found near the dead body of Mahesh Shukla son of Shiv Narayan Shukla has been exhibited as 'Exhibit Ka-33'. The memo of blood stained and plain earth collected from below the dead body of deceased Mahesh Shukla is exhibited as 'Exhibit Ka-34'.

14. The memo of one SBBL gun bolted and four empty cartridges (three green color and one white plastic) recovered from besides the dead body of Awdesh Kumar @ Raja Nigam is exhibited as 'Exhibit Ka-35'. The memo of clothes of deceased Awdesh Kumar @ Raja Nigam has been exhibited as 'Exhibit Ka-36'. The memo of blood stained and plain earth collected from below the body of deceased Awdhesh Kumar @ Raja Nigam is exhibited as 'Exhibit Ka-37'.

15. The memo of blood stained clothes of deceased Arjun Singh son of Gulab Singh had been exhibited as 'Exhibit Ka-38'. The memo of plain and blood stained earth collected from below the dead body of deceased Arjun Singh has been exhibited as 'Exhibit Ka-38'. One DBBL gun with a sealing canvas (to hang it), found on the chest of deceased Arjun Singh and the memo thereof has been exhibited as 'Exhibit Ka-40'.

16. The inquest of the four dead bodies as per the reports was conducted on 12.01.990 between 07.00 AM to 04.00 PM. First inquest commenced at around 07.00 AM of the dead body of Chatrapal Singh and completed around 09.00 AM and the last one of the dead body of Arjun Singh son of Gulab Singh had commenced at around 02.00 PM and completed at around 04.00 PM. Five witnesses of four inquests reports are; (i) Kallu Singh son of Gehwar Singh resident of Dundhpur; (ii) Ram Sahai Pal son of Chhidua Gram Pradhan Dundhpur; (iii) Binda Prasad Kewat son of Tulsi resident of Dhundhpur; (iv) Shiv Narayan Kewat son of Rameshwar resident of Village Dhundhpur; (v) Moti Lal Kewat, Gram Pradhan Mohar, resident of Village Mohar, Police Station Sumerpur.

17. Charge sheet was submitted by the police against 13 accused persons as two accused Mukhiya son of Suraj Pal and Om Prakash son of Purshottam had died before commencement of trial.

18. The Sessions trial of accused Pancha Chamar son of Mahaveer was separated and registered as Session Trial No.44-A of 1991. Whereas 10 remaining accused/appellants were tried in the Sessions Trial No.44 of 1991 (State Vs. Ashok Mishra and 9 others).

19. The Criminal Appeal No.1466 of 2000, arising out of Sessions Trial No.44 of 1991 by ten appellants (three died, remaining seven accused persons/appellants) has been argued by Sri Dilip Kumar learned Senior Advocate assisted by Shri Ram Kishore Gupta; whereas the connected Appeal No.1498 of 2000 of Pancha Chamar and Jaihind Singh arising out of Sessions Trial No.44-A of 1991 (State Vs. Pancha Chamar & others) has been argued by Sri V.P. Srivastava learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Lav Srivastava. Both the appeals have been heard and are being decided together by this common judgment.

20. It is vehemently argued by learned Senior Advocates appearing for the appellants that as per the prosecution story, seven persons were surrounded and attacked by the accused persons (15 in number) in a pre-planned manner while they were sitting unaware and unarmed in the field near Village Mohar. Every accused person was armed with a deadly weapon such as Kulhari, Farsa or Gun (firearm). Four persons were murdered whereas three of them had fled from the scene. This prosecution story is unbelievable as not a single injury had been caused to any of the three prosecution witnesses who as per their own version were attacked by a mob of 15 accused persons; whereas, on the other hand, three persons on the defence side had received firearm injuries. There is no whisper nor any explanation by the prosecution of the injuries caused to three accused persons, i.e. the defence side. The injuries of three above named persons (Exhibited as Exhibit 'Kha-2, 3 & 4') have been duly proved by the defence witnesses. The FIR or the PW-1 (sole eye witness) in his deposition is completely silent regarding the injuries of the defence. The first informant examined as eye witness (PW-1) on a specific question put to him in the cross examination regarding the act of firing by four deceased, had categorically denied saying that no firing was made by any of the deceased persons and that apart from the four deceased, no other person from their side was carrying any weapon. The recovery memos of the firearms belonging to four deceased found near their dead bodies indicate that their firearms (guns) was used during the incident. Empty cartridges found on the spot and used bullets found in the chamber of the gun of one of the deceased persons, are ample evidence of the said fact. The statement of denial on the part of the prosecution witnesses PW-1, thus, makes the whole story of the prosecution doubtful. Non-explanation of the injuries of defence by the prosecution in the said scenario would go to the root of the controversy and shake the version of the prosecution regarding the genesis and the manner, i.e. why and how the murders took place. The genesis of the incident is something else and the incident has not occurred in the manner as put by the prosecution. The prosecution has, thus, not come with clean hands.

21. It is further stated that two incidents of Maar Peet and firing had occurred during the day time, before noon on 11.01.1990 itself, i.e. before seven persons (four died & three escaped) who were guests took lunch at the Village of Chhiddu Singh namely Kiswahi. The incident-in-question which occurred at around 03.30 PM was infact third incident of fighting in a row during which 'Maar Peet' and 'firing' took place between two groups. The question would be as to who was the aggressor of the crime reported by PW-1. In fact, three accused persons were attacked in their own Village by four deceased persons who were carrying firearms, consequently, in retaliation and in defence of the accused persons, a mob of Villagers attacked all of them and murdered four. The accused persons cannot be said to be guilty as they have a right to exercise their private defence.

22. The Village Chowkidar PW-8 lodged a written report exhibited as 'Exhibit Ka-6', immediately reporting the incident. The written report lodged by the Village Chowkidar (PW-8) of the incident of firing by four unknown persons was registered as Case Crime No.20 of 1990. The said report being prior in point of time to the FIR lodged by PW-1 Raja Bhaiya Singh, his report should be treated as a cross-version of the defence and, accordingly, registered by the police as Case Crime No.20-A of 1990. The version of the Village Chowkidar (PW-8) in the said report is clear that he heard a 'Shoor' (noise) at around 03.30 PM on 11.1.1990 while he was in his Village and saw firing by four persons who were unknown to him. He immediately ran to the police Station Sumerpur to report the incident and on the information given by him, the report was written by the Head Moharrir, copy of which was read over to him during his deposition before the Court and as he proved it to be the same, it was exhibited as 'Exhibit Ka-6'. In his cross examination by the defence, the Village Chowkidar stated that on the information given by him, the police personnel alongwith the Station House Officer reached the spot of the crime before he himself reached back.

23. It is, then submitted by the learned Advocates that, in fact, three accused injured persons were taken to the hospital by the police officers though admittedly none of the accused persons were arrested by the police on that day. The arrest of the accused persons made later would go to show that they were implicated falsely by the prosecution after deliberations of the first informant with others in connivance with the local police.

24. It is vehemently argued that in the above facts and circumstances, it was the duty of the prosecution to explain the injuries caused to the accused persons during the course of occurrence of the incident. There is no explanation nor a whisper from the side of the prosecution as to how injuries had been caused to three accused persons and who took the injured to the hospital and got them examined. For the reason of non-explanation of injuries of the defence, whole case of the prosecution falls. None of the accused persons can be held guilty of the alleged offence of murder of four deceased who themselves were aggressors of the crime.

25. Further, it is urged that there is no evidence of any previous enmity of the deceased persons with the accused. They were from different Villages. In fact, they were guests of the Villages Mohar and Kiswahi as they came to see a girl, daughter of a fellow villager Chhiddu Singh for marriage. There was no animus. The deceased persons were unknown to the entire Village. There is not even a suggestion of enmity of the villagers or the accused persons with Chhiddu Singh of Village Kishwahi. On the other hand, the deceased persons and first informant had criminal antecedents. The four deceased persons were armed with licensed guns which may be normal for persons living in Bundelkhand area but there is no explanation on the part of the prosecution as to what motivated the appellants to assault them. Why would the accused kill four persons who were guest in the Village?

26. Further, the version of sole eye witness PW-1 is inconsistent and highly unbelievable, in as much as, he had simply denied firing by the four deceased persons whereas the said fact has been categorically proved by P.W.-8, the prosecution witness itself and also is corroborated from the recovery memo prepared by the police of the firearms of the deceased found besides their bodies. The Star prosecution witness PW-1 is a lair. The prosecution story of the incident is, thus, completely belied by the said fact.

27. It is further contended that there is one more relevant fact which needs consideration. One of the deceased Arjun Singh was own nephew of PW-1 and it is highly improbable rather inconceivable that PW-1 had left the spot of occurrence before the inquest of dead body of his nephew was done that too to attend his duties in the school. PW-1 admitted his presence on duty on 12.01.1990 in the school at Risaipara situated at about 50 KM away from the scene of incident. His version that he left the scene of incident at about 09.00 AM to attend his duty at the school furthermore makes his conduct highly questionable. Rather for his admission of being present in the school on duty on 12.01.1990, his presence in Village Kiswahi on 10.01.1990 and 11.01.1990 accompanying four deceased persons to visit the house of Chhiddu Singh is completely ruled out. The entire prosecution story is a result of concoction by PW-1 who is a related and interested witness. Even otherwise, his own personal character and that of his immediate family as reflected in the cross-examination shows that he is a man of criminal nature and was implicated in several criminal cases prior to the incident. He cannot be said to be reliable or dependable witness and his testimony being uncreditworthy cannot be made basis to convict the accused person in the murder of four strangers. PW-1 is not a witness of any of the four inquest reports. This clearly implies that he was not present at the scene of occurrence.

28. It is further pointed out that from the inquest report, it is evident that the inquest of Chatrapal Singh commenced at about 07.00 AM and completed at about 09.00 AM. As per the version of PW-1 in examination-in-chief, his statement was recorded by the police on the spot at about 06.15 AM but the site plan was not prepared as it was dark at that point of time. PW-1 is also not the witness of the site plan. He, however, states in the cross examination that the police had first prepared the site plan on 12.01.1990 and, thereafter, they proceeded to do the inquest. His version that the site plan was of the place of the incident where the dead bodies were lying is in clear contradiction to his own statement and his presence at the scene of occurrence becomes highly doubtful.

29. Further, the version of PW-1/first informant in the first information report that the murder of four persons had occurred in a field near Village Mohar is not in-consonance with the place of occurrence as shown in the site plan prepared by the investigating officer/PW-11.

30. Thus, once it is established that the sole eye witness is a liar the creditworthiness of the entire prosecution case based on his sole testimony is completely ruled out.

31. It has been further argued that in fact, non-explanation of the injuries of the defence by the prosecution would lead to an inference that the prosecution has suppressed the genesis and origin of the occurrence and has not presented the true version. The defence version of the explanation of injuries on the persons of three accused is sufficient to create a serious doubt on the prosecution case. Reliance is placed upon the decisions of the Apex Court in Mohar Rai Vs. State of Bihar1, Laxshmi Singh & others Vs. State of Bihar2, Babu Ram & others Vs. State of Punjab3, Amar Jeet Singh Vs. State of Haryana4 & Krisne Gowda & others Vs. State of Karnataka Arhalgud Police to state that for the contradiction between the version of PW-1 and the prosecution evidence regarding the place of occurrence of the incident and the inherent improbabilities, the omission and infirmities of the prosecution case the defence version becomes highly probable. Non-explanation of injuries sustained by three accused persons at the time of occurrence in the course of altercation is a very important circumstance which would lead to an inference that the prosecution has failed to prove the case against the appellants beyond reasonable doubt.

32. Further argument is that moreover the police had not conducted proper investigation. One of the major lacuna evident from the version of the Investigation Officer is that the empty cartridges were neither collected from the scene of the occurrence nor tallied with the recovered guns/firearms of the four deceased. Though it was most necessary as the incident of firing was first reported by the Village Chowkidar/peon who has also proved his report by entering in the witness box. A reading of the report Exhibit 'Ka-6' indicates that PW-8 had rushed to the police station to report the incident when he saw firing by four unknown persons in the Village. His report being prior in point of time was registered as Case Crime No.20 of 1990. It was, therefore, incumbent upon the investigating officer to ascertain the reasons for injuries found on the persons of three accused. In a case of cross version of the incident of a crime, it becomes necessary for the investigating officer to examine the probabilities of the defence version. The entire investigation was illegally conducted in one direction oblivious of the above circumstance.

33. The learned counsel has also argued that even the version of the investigating officer (PW-11) that he had prepared the site plan in the presence of the first informant/complainant (PW-1) is in contradiction with the deposition of the complainant (PW-1). The statement of 'PW-11' that he did not go to the scene of incident soon after lodging of the report by the Village Peon registered as Case Crime No.20 of 1990 under Section 307 IPC, is an extra effort to establish the prosecution story. In fact, he did not conduct proper investigation of the case crime No.20 of 1990, which was nothing but a cross version of the incident reported by PW-1 as Case Crime No.20-A of 1990 giving a false version, having been lodged after due deliberations. The apparent lapses in the investigation also establishes that the prosecution has presented a wholly false version of the incident.

34. Above all, as stated by the learned counsel, in a case of injuries sustained by the accused persons at about the time of occurrence or in the course of altercation, it is the duty of the Court to consider the circumstances of the case so as to see whether the accused persons can legitimately exercise the right of private defence. It is not necessary for the accused to take the plea of right of private defence and to lead evidence. It would be sufficient to create a doubt in the prosecution case by establishing this plea by referring to the circumstances transpiring from the prosecution evidence itself. The question in such a case would be of assessing the true effect of the prosecution evidence and not the question of accused persons discharging any burden. As soon as the defence placed the necessary material on record for claiming the right of private defence, it becomes the duty of the Court to see as to whether the defence has a reasonable and probable version of his side of the story. The law that the burden of establishing the plea of self defence is on the accused cannot be stretched to the extent that the defence has to adduce positive evidence so as to establish its case beyond doubt. In other words, an accused is not under obligation to prove his defence beyond all reasonable doubts, rather, unlike the prosecution, it is only to create doubt about the prosecution case and the probabilities of its defence. The proof of defence by preponderance of probabilities is sufficient. Reliance is placed on the judgment of the Apex Court in V. Subramani Vs. State of Tamil Nadu6 and Anand Ramchandera Chougule Vs. Sidaraj Laxman Chougule & others to state that the firearm injuries on the persons of three accused and prompt report of firing occurred in the Village by the Village Peon (exhibit Ka-6) are material circumstances coming out of the prosecution evidence itself, which establish that the accused persons are entitled to take the right of private defence and that the defence had proved their version that four deceased persons were attacked by a mob of Villagers when they opened firing at the accused persons.

35. The defence version regarding the genesis of the incident and the reasons for altercation, in all probabilities, proved that the deceased were aggressors of the crime. The accused persons, thus, cannot be held responsible for committing homicidal death of four persons.

36. Learned AGA, on the other hand, disputing the version of the learned Advocates for the appellant submitted that instant case is not a case where plea of private defence can be pressed into service, merely because some of the accused persons have suffered firearm injuries as the presence of the injuries itself does not make it imperative to interfere with the well reasoned and well discussed judgment of the court below. From the defence version itself, it is evident that the accused persons had sustained injuries prior to the time of occurrence and not in the course of occurrence of the incident in question. The prosecution need not give explanation of the injuries sustained by the accused persons as the defence version that the firearm injuries were sustained by the accused in the course of altercation is neither reasonable nor probable from the circumstances brought on record.

37. In any case, the burden to prove the plea of legitimate exercise of self defence is on the accused persons and in absence of any proof much less cogent one, it is not possible for the Court to presume the truth of the plea of self defence. The legal position is that the Court shall presume the absence of such circumstance and it is for the accused(s) to place necessary material on record either by adducing positive evidence himself or by eliciting necessary facts from the evidence of the witnesses examined for the prosecution to establish his/their plea of the right of private defence.

38. The decisions of the Apex Court relied upon by learned counsel for the appellants do not come to the rescue of the accused persons/appellants rather support the stand of the prosecution that it was not under obligation to explain the injuries sustained by the accused persons.

39. Having heard learned counsels for the parties and perused the record, to appreciate the arguments of learned Advocates for the appellants that the accused persons have a right of self defence and to ascertain the effect of alleged non-explanation of the injuries of accused persons by the prosecution, we would like to first appreciate the prosecution and defence evidences.

40. The prosecution case commenced with the first information report lodged by PW-1 on a written report given by him after approximately two hours of the incident wherein it was stated that four deceased persons were brutally murdered by the accused persons (who were 15 in number). The accused were named in the first information report with the details of the weapons they were carrying. The murder weapons which the accused persons were carrying, as per the description in the first information report and the deposition of the PW-1, are tallying with the injuries sustained by the four deceased persons as is clear from the Medico-legal reports. The Doctors who conducted the postmortem examination of four deceased had proved their reports by entering in the witness box. Nothing material could be pointed out by the learned Senior Advocates for the appellants which would make the injuries of the deceased persons improbable from the weapon assigned to the accused persons. Learned counsel for the appellant, thus, could not dispute the ocular version of the prosecution regarding the homicidal death of the four deceased. In this regard, only submissions of learned Senior Counsel Sri V.P. Srivastava for the appellant in the connected appeal is that only one gun shot wound of entry has been found on the person of deceased Chatrapal Singh and more than one gun shot wounds were found on the person of the deceased Awdhesh Kumar @ Raja Nigam, whereas two other deceased namely Arjun Singh and Mahesh Chandra Shukla did not receive a single gun shot injury. Absence of gun shot injuries to the two deceased persons, who according to prosecution were gheraoed by the accused persons and murdered, is conspicuous and makes the prosecution story improbable to the extent that four deceased persons were cornered by the accused persons carrying firearms and then murdered. In its zeal to rope in all the accused persons in the false case of murder, the prosecution had shown firearms in the hands of the four accused persons. The injuries of the deceased do not correspond to the murder weapons assigned to the accused making the prosecution version unbelievable.

41. Dealing with the above submission, it would be relevant to note that all four deceased sustained at least 12 to 15 injuries which are "incised wound bone deep", "lacerated wound" on their head and forehead, i.e. mostly on the upper and vital parts of their bodies. "Two Gun shot wounds" of the deceased Awdhesh Kumar @ Raja Nigam are deep inside abdomenal cavity and lower part of the right thigh with blackening and tattooing present around both the wounds. "One gun shot wound" with blackening and tattooing around the wound at L-5 level 2 cm from the middle on left side of the back was on the dead body of Chatrapal Singh.

42. A perusal of the above injuries sustained by four deceased shows that they were attacked and brutally beaten in such a manner that they could not escape the scene of occurrence. The prosecution version that four deceased were gheraoed/cornered and then murdered by a group of persons who were carrying deadly weapons cannot, therefore, be said to be inconsistent to the evidence on record.

43. Further, the presence of the accused persons at the scene of occurrence has not been disputed by the learned Senior counsels nor can it be doubted in any manner. Their argument, however, is that none of the accused persons can be pinpointed in commission of murder of four persons, in as much as, three of the accused persons themselves had sustained serious gun shot injuries. The defence version is that four deceased persons had opened fire at the accused persons. Any action on the part of the appellants accused persons, therefore, was only in reaction and they cannot be convicted of the offence of committing homicidal death of four deceased.

44. To appreciate the said argument, we have to assess the probabilities of the defence version sought to be established by production of five defence witnesses (DW-1 to DW-5) to prove the injuries of three accused persons. We would also be required to examine the prosecution evidence to ascertain as to whether the probabilities of the defence version would make the prosecution story doubtful. We would also have to assess the weight of the report of the incident lodged by the Village Peon (prosecution witness PW-8), the written report of Case Crime No.20 of 1990, exhibited as 'Ka-6'. The statement of the investigating officer PW-11 is also relevant to assess as to whether the version of the Village Peon (PW-8) would lean in favour of the defence.

45. As noted above, the prosecution has given its version of the occurrence of incident that seven persons including Chhiddu Singh a resident of Village Kiswahi were attacked while they were sitting leisurely chewing Gutka (Tambaku) in a field near the border of Village Mohar. The place of occurrence of the incident being near the border of Village Mohar is established from the version of the eye witness PW-1 and the investigating officer PW-11 as also from the site plan prepared by him.

46. From a reading of exhibit 'Ka-6', the report lodged by the Village Peon registered as Case Crime No.20 of 1996, it appears to us that he had simply reported the incident of firing which was going on at about 03.00 PM near the border of the Village Mohar and Dhundhpur in discharge of his duties as Village Chowkidar of Villages Mohar and Dhundpur. His report that four persons (unnamed) were firing in the Village cannot be said to be cross version of the defence. The submission of the learned counsel for the appellants that four persons mentioned in the report of the Village Peon were in fact deceased persons as they were not known to the Village Chowkidar is only an assumption. There is no basis or reason to accept the same. Mere fact that the FIR lodged by the eye witness (PW-1) was numbered as Case Crime No. 20-A/90 would not make the report of village Peon a cross case of the defence. There is no inconsistency in the version of PW-1 (eye witness) and PW-11 (the investigating officer) regarding the FIR having been lodged by PW-1 (the eye witness) at about 05.30 PM by submitting a report of the incident in his own handwriting. The investigating officer (PW-11) stated that he went to the scene of occurrence after registration of the FIR by the eye witness (PW-1) and making entry of his movement in the General Diary; the statement of PW-1 was recorded at the place of occurrence but since there was no source of light on the spot, the inquest could commence only in the next morning at the site of occurrence itself. Two injured accused namely Santosh Kumar Mishra and Balram Singh were admitted in the Sadar Hospital, Hamirpur when they were arrested on 15.01.1990 and their statements were recorded. Rifle of one injured accused Balram Singh (in broken condition) was deposited by him in the police station and recovery memo of the same was prepared by the investigating officer. Some of the accused persons had surrendered before the Chief Judicial Magistrate whereas against others, proceedings under Section 82 and 83 Cr.P.C. had to be initiated before they were charge sheeted by the Investigating Officer. The charge sheet (exhibit Ka-'42') against one accused Jhandu Singh was submitted as 'absconder'.

47. The submissions of learned Senior Advocates for the appellants that three injured accused persons were taken to the hospital by the police who reached at the spot of crime after the report of firing was lodged by the Village Peon, is sought to be substantiated from the statement of the defence witnesses namely DW-2 and DW-3. DW-2 is the Doctor who was posted in the District Hospital, Hamirpur on the date of the incident. He states that he examined the accused injured Santosh Kumar Mishra son of Kanahiya Lal Mishra when he was brought to the hospital by the Constable CP-345 Manohar Singh, police station Sumerpur and his injury report was prepared by him. As per the injury report, a gun shot wound of entry 1 cm x 1/2 cm deep was found at the lower side of the abdomen 8 cm towards the left side of the middle and 12 cm from the naval which was kept under observation. No blackening, tattooing or ceasing of hair was present around the wound. The injured was advised X-ray of the abdomen but no supplementary report or X-ray report was entered in the medico legal register. DW-3 is the Doctor who was posted as 'E & T' surgeon in the District Hospital, Hamirpur on the date of the incident. He states that he had examined two injured accused persons namely Balram Singh and Gaya Prasad at about 05.55 PM and 06.15 PM when they were brought to the hospital by a Constable 513 Shiv Ram Singh, police station Sumerpur. The injury report of Balram Singh indicates that his palm was badly injured detaching his thumb and the said injury was caused by the firearm. The injured was admitted in the hospital under observation. Two firearm wounds of entry at the right side of the forehead and neck were found on the person of the injured Gaya Prasad. One firearm wound (abrasion) was present at the left upper arm of the injured Gaya Prasad. However, there is no indication of the time when Santosh Kumar Mishra was taken to the hospital. There is nothing on record to substantiate that three injured persons were taken to the hospital on the instruction of the Investigation Officer from the scene of occurrence, who reached the place as per own version of the defence.

48. Further, from the deposition of defence witness/DW-4, Durga son of Badlu, it is evident that some physical altercation took place at around 11.00 AM to 12.00 Noon in front of the house of the father of two accused persons namely Santosh and Ashok sons of Kanahiya Lal Mishra who was an Ex-Gram Pradhan. A careful reading of the statement of DW-5 Sabhajeet son of Chunubad (one of the accused) shows that the firearm injury to accused Santosh was caused at about 08.00 to 09.00 AM in the altercation which took place near his house in the Village Mohar, Police Station Sumerpur. In his cross examination, DW-5 states that in the incident of firing which occurred at around 08.00 to 09.00 AM, accused Santosh got injured in his stomach. The said altercation took place on a petty dispute of plucking of fresh coriander (Dhaniya) from the field of DW-4 Durga Chamar. This fact is also evident from the deposition of DW-4. Thus, as per own version of defence witnesses DW-4 and DW-5, two separate incidents had occurred one after the other in the morning on 11.01.1990; first at around 08.00-09.00 AM and second before noon between 11.00 AM to 12.00 hours, during which some injuries were caused to accused Santosh Kumar Mishra. DW-5 had categorically stated that injured Santosh Kumar Mishra was not taken to the hospital when he got injured in the incident of Maar Peet occurred before Noon but the said incident was reported to the police through the Village Peon Ram Babu on the instruction of the villagers. DW-5 further states that he did not witness the last incident of fighting (Muthbhed) which occurred in the evening at around 03.30 to 04.00 PM.

49. Further, from the version of DW-4 & 5, it can only be gathered that some altercation and incident of Maarpeet took place near the house of accused Ashok Kumar and Santosh Kumar Mishra before Noon. The presence of Chhiddu Singh, the resident of the Village Kiswahi alongwith four deceased persons at the time of the said incident though has been narrated in the statements of DW-4 & DW-5 to assert that they were aggressors of the crime, but their testimony in this regard is not consistent.

50. According to version of DW-4, the dispute commenced with the act of Chirportan & Pancha (two accused) of plucking Dhaniya (fresh Coriander) from the field of DW-4 Durga Chamar. When they were stopped by DW-4, they hurled abuses at him. DW-4 then went to the house of Kanahiya Lal Mishra father of the accused Santosh and Ashok to complain. There Chhiddu Singh was called by Chirportan who came with four deceased persons (who were guests in the Village) and they started beating DW-4. When Ashok and Santosh stopped them, they messed up with Ashok and Santosh and shot at them. The fire struck the accused Santosh in his abdomen. DW-5 states that he resides at some distance from the house of Kanahiya Lal Mishra. On hearing Shoor (noise), he went out of his house and witnessed that four accused persons were fighting with Ashok and Santosh and one of them fired at accused Santosh. After villagers intervened, they were separated but four deceased had threatened Ashok and Santosh that they would not spare him.

51. In this whole story of the defence narrated by the DW-4 & DW-5, it is evident that the incident which was reported by Village Chowkidar Ram Babu had occurred before Noon and "Exhibit Ka-6" was not the report of the incident occurred at about 3 P.M. near the border of Village Mohar and Dhundpur. In his report, the Village Chowkidar has not been reported the time of incident. It is vaguely written therein that four accused persons were firing in Village Mohar. The said report, therefore, cannot be said to be a first information report lodged by the defence side to give their version of the incident in question. Heavy reliance placed by the learned Senior Advocates on the said report to assert that the said report probalise defence story of the genesis and occurrence of the incident and four deceased persons being aggressors of the crime, is, thus, misplaced. This apart, the defence version of four deceased attacking accused Ashok and Santosh in front of their house also seem improbable. It is not understandable as to why four outsider who were guests of the Village would attack residents of the Village who were not known to them that too in front of their houses on a petty dispute with a fellow villager. There is no suggestion of any previous enmity of four deceased with Ashok and Santosh whose father was an Ex-Gram Pradhan. The defence story regarding genesis of the incident-in-question does not, therefore, seem to be probable.

52. The reason for the incidents of Maarpeet occurred in the morning though is not clear. But it is clear from the statement of DW-5, the defence witness itself, that the injuries by accused Santosh Kumar Mishra were not sustained at the time of occurrence of the incident in question or in the course of occurrence of incident at around 03.30 PM near the border of Village Mohar, during which four persons were brutally murdered. The injury report of Santosh Kumar Mishra though indicates that the injuries were fresh but the time when he was examined by the doctor DW-2 is conspicuously missing from the deposition of DW-2, who further explained in the examination-in-chief itself that the injuries might have caused eight hours prior to the examination of the injured.

53. The defence has utterly failed to prove that the injuries were sustained by the accused Santosh Kumar Mishra in the same incident. As far as the injuries of other two accused persons namely Balram Singh and Gaya Prasad are concerned, from the mere statement of DW-3 that they were taken to the hospital by a Police Constable namely Shiv Ram Singh of the Police Station Sumerpur, it cannot be accepted that they were injured during the course of altercation. The investigation officer (PW-11) clearly denied having visited the scene of occurrence soon after the report (Exhibit 'Ka-6') was lodged by the Village Chowkidar, though he categorically states that he immediately went to the place of incident after the report was lodged by PW-1 (the first informant). There is no suggestion in the cross-examination of PW-11 that three injured accused persons were taken to the hospital on his instructions being Station House Officer of the police station concerned straightway from the place of incident-in-question.

54. Moreover, the injuries of these two persons are simple in nature and not such so as to give them a right of self defence to commit murder. The Doctor DW-3 who has prepared the injury report stated that those injuries had been caused from a distance and there was probability of such injuries having been caused during an altercation. The injuries of Balram might be the result of bursting of the revolver in his hand. Noticeable is the fact here that Balram had deposited his damaged revolver to the police when he was arrested.

55. Further, from the deposition of DW-1 who proved the entries in the Medico-legal register, it is evident that three injured persons were examined during the same time period. First entry is regarding the injury report of Balram at Serial No.55 in the said register. Whereas, injury reports of Gaya Prasad & Santosh Kumar Mishra were entered at serial No.56, 57; respectively.

56. The legal position relating to non-explanation of injuries of defence and right of private defence has been placed before the Court with the aid of the decisions of the Apex Court as under:-

(i) In Mohar Rai Vs. State of Bihar, the Apex Court has considered the plea of defence as the accused Mohar Rai sustained injuries in the course of incident and the prosecution did not give any explanation to the said injuries. It was held that the failure of the prosecution to offer any explanation in that regard proved that evidence of the prosecution witness relating to the incident was not true. The injuries of the accused probabilised the plea taken by the appellant that a false case was foistered against the appellant. The Apex Court after considering the evidence led by the prosecution held that:-

".....We think that the defence of the appellants is highly probabilised by three important circumstances, namely-(i) the same was put forward immediately after the occurrence, (ii) it satisfactorily explains the injuries found on the persons, of the appellants while the prosecution evidence fails to explain those injuries,. and (iii) the prosecution evidence itself shows that Mohar Rai could not have used Ex. III and therefore his version that that weapon was thrust on him is probablised."

The accused was given benefit of doubt therein as non-explanation of injuries to the accused created doubt on the prosecution version.

(ii) In Laxshmi Singh Vs. State of Bihar considering the injuries on the person of the accused, it was observed :-

"11.....Having regard to the circumstances of the case there can be no doubt that Dasrath Singh must have received these injuries in the course of the assault, because it has not been suggested or contended that the injuries could be self-inflicted nor it is believable. In these circumstances, therefore, it was the bounden duty of the prosecution to give a reasonable explanation for the injuries sustained by the accused Dasrath Singh in the course of the occurrence. Not only the prosecution has given no explanation, but some of the witnesses have made a clear statement that they did not see any injuries on the person of the accused....."

It was observed that the eye witness could have given details regarding the assault on two deceased and the accused and yet he deliberately suppressed the injuries on the person of the accused and that was the most important circumstance to discredit the entire prosecution case. It was held therein that where one of the accused is proved to have sustained injuries in the course of the same occurrence, the non-explanation of such injuries by the prosecution is a manifest defect in the prosecution case. It shows that the origin and genesis of the occurrence had been deliberately suppressed which lead to the irresistible conclusion that the prosecution had not come out with a true version of the occurrence. It was held that the courts below had failed to appreciate the ratio of the Apex Court in Mohar Rai1.

The decision in Puran Singh Vs. State of Punjab8 and State of Gujrat Vs. Bai Fatima9 were considered therein to note as under:-

"In a situation like this when the prosecution fails to explain the injuries on the person of an accused, depending on the facts of each case, any of the three results may follow:

(1) That the accused had inflicted the injuries on the members of the prosecution party in exercise of the right of self defence.

(2) It makes the prosecution version of the occurrence doubtful and the charge against the accused cannot be held to have been proved beyond reasonable doubt.

(3) It does not affect the prosecution case at all."

It was held that in a murder case, non-explanation of the injuries sustained by the accused at about the time of occurrence or in the course of altercation is a very important circumstance from which the Court can draw the following inference:-

"(1) That the prosecution has suppressed the genesis and the origin of the occurrence and has thus not presented the true version:

(2) that the witnesses who have denied the presence of the injuries on the person of the accused are lying on a most material point and therefore their evidence is

(3) that in case there is a defence version which explains the injuries on the person of the accused it is rendered probable so as to throw doubt on the prosecution case."

It was further observed:-

"The omission on the part of the prosecution to explain the injuries on the person of the accused assumes much greater importance where the evidence consists of interested or inimical witnesses or where the defence gives a version which competes in probability with that of the prosedition one. In the instant case, when it is held, as it must be, that the appellant Dasrath Singh received serious injuries which have not been explained by the prosecution, then it will be difficult for the Court to rely on the evidence of PWs. 1 to 4 and 6 more particularly, when some of these witnesses have lied by stating that they did not see any injuries on the person of the accused. Thus neither the Sessions Judge nor the High Court appears to have given due consideration to this important lacuna or infirmity appearing in the prosecution case. We must hasten to add that as held by this Court in State of Gujarat v. Bai Fatima Criminal Appeal No. 67 of 1971 decided on March 19, 1975 : Reported in there may be cases where the non-explanation of the injuries by the prosecution may not affect the prosecution case. This principle would obviously apply to cases where the injuries sustained by the accused are minor and superficial or where the evidence is so clear and cogent, so independent and disinterested, so probable, consistent and credit-worthy, that it far outweighs the effect of the omission on the part of the prosecution to explain the injuries."

(iii) In Mitter Sen Vs. State of U.P10, considering the infirmities in the prosecution witness, the explanation offered by the prosecution to the injuries in the course of occurrence was discarded therein at its face value.

(iv) In Babu Ram & others Vs. State of Punjab11 relying on the principle laid down in Laxshmi Singh2 it was observed in paragraph Nos.18 & 19 as under:-

18. It is a well-settled law that in a murder case, the non- explanation of the injuries sustained by the accused at about the time of the occurrence or in the course of altercation is a very important circumstance from which the Court can draw the following inferences:-

1. that the prosecution has suppressed the genesis and the origin of the occurrence and has thus not presented the true version;

2. that the witnesses who have denied the presence of the injuries on the person of the accused are lying on a most material point and therefore their evidence is unreliable;

3. that in case there is a defence version which explains the injuries on the person of the accused it is rendered probable so as to throw doubt on the prosecution case. [See Lakshmi Singh v. State of Bihar; AIR 1976 SC 2263]

19. Further, it is important to point out that the omission on the part of the prosecution to explain the injuries on the person of the accused assumes much greater importance where the evidence consists of interested or inimical witnesses or where the defence gives a version which competes in probability with that of the prosecution one."

(v) In Amarjit Singh Vs. State of Haryana 2010 (6) SCC 649,4 the principles laid down in Laxshmi Singh2 (supra) have been followed to hold that the omission on the part of the prosecution to explain the injuries on the person of the accused assumes much greater importance where the defence gives a version which competes in probability with that of the prosecution one or where the evidence consists of interest or inimical witnesses.

(vi) In V. Subramani & another Vs. State of Tamil Nadu6, the principles with regard to the exercise of right of private defence has been considered by the Apex Court in the following words:-

"11.Only question which needs to be considered is the alleged exercise of right of private defence. Section 96, IPC provides that nothing is an offence which is done in the exercise of the right of private defence. The Section does not define the expression `right of private defence'. It merely indicates that nothing is an offence which is done in the exercise of such right. Whether in a particular set of circumstances, a person legitimately acted in the exercise of the right of private defence is a question of fact to be determined on the facts and circumstances of each case. No test in the abstract for determining such a question can be laid down. In determining this question of fact, the Court must consider all the surrounding circumstances. It is not necessary for the accused to plead in so many words that he acted in self-defence. If the circumstances show that the right of private defence was legitimately exercised, it is open to the Court to consider such a plea. In a given case the Court can consider it even if the accused has not taken it, if the same is available to be considered from the material on record. Under Section 105 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (in short `the Evidence Act'), the burden of proof is on the accused, who sets up the plea of self-defence, and, in the absence of proof, it is not possible for the Court to presume the truth of the plea of self-defence. The Court shall presume the absence of such circumstances. It is for the accused to place necessary material on record either by himself adducing positive evidence or by eliciting necessary facts from the witnesses examined for the prosecution. An accused taking the plea of the right of private defence is not necessarily required to call evidence; he can establish his plea by reference to circumstances transpiring from the prosecution evidence itself. The question in such a case would be a question of assessing the true effect of the prosecution evidence, and not a question of the accused discharging any burden. Where the right of private defence is pleaded, the defence must be a reasonable and probable version satisfying the Court that the harm caused by the accused was necessary for either warding off the attack or for forestalling the further reasonable apprehension from the side of the accused. The burden of establishing the plea of self-defence is on the accused and the burden stands discharged by showing preponderance of probabilities in favour of that plea on the basis of the material on record. (See Munshi Ram and Ors. v. Delhi Administration, AIR (1968) SC 702), State of Gujarat v. Bai Fatima, AIR (1975) SC 1478, State of U.P. v. Mohd. Musheer Khan, AIR (1977) SC 2226 and Mohinder Pal Jolly v. State of Punjab, AIR (1979) SC 577. Sections 100 to 101 define the extent of the right of private defence of body. If a person has a right of private defence of body under Section 97, that right extends under Section 100 to causing death if there is reasonable apprehension that death or grievous hurt would be the consequence of the assault. The oft quoted observation of this Court in Salim Zia v. State of U.P., AIR (1979) SC 391), runs as follows:

"It is true that the burden on an accused person to establish the plea of self-defence is not as onerous as the one which lies on the prosecution and that, while the prosecution is required to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt, the accused need not establish the plea to the hilt and may discharge his onus by establishing a mere preponderance of probabilities either by laying basis for that plea in the cross-examination of the prosecution witnesses or by adducing defence evidence...."

The accused need not prove the existence of the right of private defence beyond reasonable doubt. It is enough for him to show as in a civil case that the preponderance of probabilities is in favour of his plea."

It was further held in paragraph No.12 as under:-

"12. The number of injuries is not always a safe criterion for determining who the aggressor was. It cannot be stated as a universal rule that whenever the injuries are on the body of the accused persons, a presumption must necessarily be raised that the accused persons had caused injuries in exercise of the right of private defence. The defence has to further establish that the injuries so caused on the accused probabilise the version of the right of private defence. Non-explanation of the injuries sustained by the accused at about the time of occurrence or in the course of altercation is a very important circumstance. But mere non-explanation of the injuries by the prosecution may not affect the prosecution case in all cases. This principle applies to cases where the injuries sustained by the accused are minor and superficial or where the evidence is so clear and cogent, so independent and disinterested, so probable, consistent and credit-worthy, that it far outweighs the effect of the omission on the part of the prosecution to explain the injuries. [See Lakshmi Singh v. State of Bihar, AIR (1976) SC 2263]. A plea of right of private defence cannot be based on surmises and speculation. While considering whether the right of private defence is available to an accused, it is not relevant whether he may have a chance to inflict severe and mortal injury on the aggressor. In order to find whether the right of private defence is available to an accused, the entire incident must be examined with care and viewed in its proper setting. Section 97 deals with the subject matter of right of private defence. The plea of right comprises the body or property (i) of the person exercising the right; or (ii) of any other person; and the right may be exercised in the case of any offence against the body, and in the case of offences of theft, robbery, mischief or criminal trespass, and attempts at such offences in relation to property. Section 99 lays down the limits of the right of private defence. Sections 96 and 98 give a right of private defence against certain offences and acts. The right given under Sections 96 to 98 and 100 to 106 is controlled by Section 99. To claim a right of private defence extending to voluntary causing of death, the accused must show that there were circumstances giving rise to reasonable grounds for apprehending that either death or grievous hurt would be caused to him. The burden is on the accused to show that he had a right of private defence which extended to causing of death. Sections 100 and 101, IPC define the limit and extent of private defence."

(v) In a recent decision in Anand Ramchandera Chougule Vs. Sidaraj Laxman Chougule & others7 it was held in paragraph nos. 10, 11, 12 & 16 as under:-

"10. The burden lies on the prosecution to prove the allegations beyond all reasonable doubt. In contradistinction to the same, the accused has only to create a doubt about the prosecution case and the probability of its defence. An accused is not required to establish or prove his defence beyond all reasonable doubt, unlike the prosecution. If the accused takes a defence, which is not improbable and appears likely, there is material in support of such defence, the accused is not required to prove anything further. The benefit of doubt must follow unless the prosecution is able to prove its case beyond all reasonable doubt.

11. The fact that a defence may not have been taken by an accused under Section 313, Cr.P.C. again cannot absolve the prosecution from proving its case beyond all reasonable doubt. If there are materials which the prosecution is unable to answer, the weakness in the defence taken cannot become the strength of the prosecution to claim that in the circumstances it was not required to prove anything. In Sunil Kundu v. State of Jharkhand , (2013) 4 SCC 422, this Court observed:

"28...When the prosecution is not able to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt it cannot take advantage of the fact that the accused have not been able to probabilise their defence. It is well settled that the prosecution must stand or fall on its own feet. It cannot draw support from the weakness of the case of the accused, if it has not proved its case beyond reasonable doubt."
12. The fact that an F.I.R. was lodged by the accused with regard to the same occurrence, the failure of the police to explain why it was not investigated, coupled with the admitted fact that the accused were also admitted in the hospital for treatment with regard to injuries sustained in the same occurrence, but the injury report was not brought on record and suppressed by the prosecution, creates sufficient doubts which the prosecution has been unable to answer.

16. Dayal Singh (supra) is distinguishable on its own facts as it did not relate to suppression of materials with regard to the accused during the trial in addition to the failure to investigate. A defective investigation shall be completely different from no investigation at all coupled with suppression of the injury report arising out of another F.I.R with regard to the same occurrence."

57. From the careful reading of the above decisions of the Apex Court, the legal position with regard to the effect of non-explanation of injuries of the defence and the legitimate exercise of right of private defence can be culled out as under:-

(i) The injuries sustained by the accused at about the time of occurrence or in the course of altercation is a very important circumstance. The court can draw adverse inference in case of non-explanation of injuries on the body of the accused persons by the prosecution.

(ii) But mere non-explanation of the injuries by the prosecution may not affect the prosecution case in all cases. For example, Where injuries sustained by the accused are minor and superficial or where the evidence is so clear and cogent, so independent and disinterested, so probable, consistent and creditworthy, that it far outweighs the affect of the omission on the part of the prosecution to explain the injuries.

(iii) In a case where defence version which explains the injuries on the person of the accused is rendered probable, the Court can draw an inference that the prosecution has suppressed the genesis and origin of the occurrence and has, thus, not presented the true version.

(iv) It can also be concluded that the witnesses who has denied the presence of the injuries on the person of the accused are lying on a most material point and, therefore, their evidence is unreliable.

(v) Thus, the omission on the part of the prosecution to explain the injuries on the person of the accused assumes much greater importance where the defence gives a version which competes in probability with that of the prosecution one.

(vi) The reason being that where the defence has successfully proved that the injuries were sustained by the accused at the time of occurrence or in the course of altercation, it can set up the plea of self defence, i.e. to state that the accused had inflicted injuries on the member of the prosecution party in exercise of the right of self defence.

(vii) However, whether in a particular set of circumstances, a person has legitimately acted in the exercise of the right of private defence is a question of fact which is to be determined on the facts and circumstance of each case. No test in the abstract for determining such a question can be laid down by the Court.

(viii) In determining this question of fact, the Court must consider all the surrounding circumstances. If the circumstances show that the right of private defence was legitimately exercised, it is open to the Court to consider such a plea.

(ix) It is not necessary for the accused to plead in so many words that he acted in self defence. In a given case, the Court can consider it even if the accused has not taken it, if the same is available to be considered from the material on record.

(x) Under Section 105 of the Indian Evidence Act, the burden of proof is on the accused who sets up the plea of self defence and in the absence of proof, it is not possible for the Court to presume the truth of the plea of self defence. Rather the Court shall presume absence of such circumstance. It is for the accused to place necessary material on record either by adducing positive evidence himself or by eliciting the necessary facts from the witnesses examined for the prosecution. Meaning thereby, an accused taking the plea of right of private defence is not necessarily required to call the evidence; he can establish his plea by reference to the circumstances transpiring from the prosecution evidence itself.

(xi) The question in such a case would be a question on assessing the true affect of the prosecution evidence and not the question of the accused discharging any burden.

(xii) Where the right of private defence is pleaded, the defence must give a reasonable and probable version satisfying the court that the harm caused by the accused was necessary for either warding off the attack or for forestalling the further reasonable apprehension from the side of the accused.

(xiii) The burden of establishing the plea of self defence is on the accused and the burden stands discharged by showing preponderance of probabilities in favour of that plea on the basis of the material on record.

(xiv) Thus, if the accused takes the plea of self defence, he is not required to prove the allegations beyond all reasonable doubt, unlike prosecution. Rather the accused has only to create a doubt about the prosecution case and establish the probability of its defence. If the accused takes a defence which is not improbable and appears likely and there is material in support of such defence, the accused is not required to prove anything further. The benefit of doubt must go to the accused unless the prosecution is able to prove its case beyond all reasonable doubt.

58. In the light of the above legal principles, to summarise the fact of the instant case, it is to be noted that the genesis of the dispute stated by the defence was an altercation which occurred in the earlier part of the day of the occurrence of the incident in question. It is averred that the dispute commenced with plucking of fresh Coriander from the field of Durga Chamar (DW-4) which resulted in the act of beating of two accused Santosh and Ashok in front of their house by the four deceased. As the accused persons had sustained injuries in the course of altercation, the Villagers attacked them in the evening when they were crossing the border of Village Mohar.

59. In this story of the defence, we can see several missing links and the story seems improbable for the reasons:-

(i) DW-4 says that two accused Chirpotan and Pancha (resident of Village Kiswahi) were plucking Dhaniya (fresh Coriander) from his field and when he stopped them, they threw it and hurled abuses at him. He then went to the house of Ramkripal Tiwari and on his advice went to the house of Kanahiya Lal Mishra to complain. He met accused Ashok and Santosh (sons of Kanahiya Lal Mishra) there and two above named persons Chirpotan and Pancha also reached there. Chirpotan called Chhiddu who came with two other armed persons and the altercation between Ashok and Santosh and two deceased ensued.

(ii) In this story, the defence could not explain as to why Chhiddu Singh who had guests in his house would come to the house of Kanahiya Lal Mishra with armed persons to enter in an altercation on a petty dispute of plucking Coriander which was not related to him. This link in the defence story is completely missing. Why would two unknown persons beat DW-4 is not explained.

(iii) As per the defence version, accused- Santosh had sustained injuries in the altercation which occurred in front of the house of Kanahiya Lal Mishra before Noon. It is not explained as to why accused Santosh was not taken to the hospital immediately after he sustained injuries in his abdomen due to fire shot by the deceased.

(iv) No report was lodged by the defence of any of the altercations or incidents occurred during day time in which Santosh had sustained injuries.

(v) DW-5 states that the Village peon was sent by the Villagers to lodge the report to the police when Santosh got injured. However, there is no mention in the report of the Village peon regarding the injuries sustained by Santosh in the firing made by the deceased persons.

(vi) In the report of Village peon (Ex.Ka-6) only this much is mentioned that four unknown persons were fighting with the Villagers and firing was going on.

(vii) There is no suggestion to PW-1, the eye witness or PW-2 Chhiddu Singh of any previous incident having occurred during the day time wherein accused Santosh sustained injuries as per own version of the defence witnesses. The defence has no explanation of these missing links in their story.

(viii) Three accused Santosh, Balram and Gaya Prasad in their statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. though averred that the injuries on their person were caused by the deceased and, thereafter, Villagers had attacked them but none of the above accused persons had given any indication of any altercation occurred during the day time. The version of the defence about the genesis or origin of the incident, therefore, does not appear to be true.

The defence, thus, has not been able to explain or probalise their version that three accused persons had sustained injuries at the time of occurrence or in the course of incident, which occurred at around 03.30 PM near the border of Village Mohar in which four persons were brutally murdered.

It is not possible for the Court to link the injuries sustained by the accused persons on its own with the incident-in-question or assume to have been caused on account of any overt act of the deceased persons. Nothing could be elicited from the deposition of the prosecution witnesses or other prosecution evidence which would probalise the defence version or improbalise the prosecution case.

(ix) As far as the report of Village peon is concerned, as observed herein above, in our opinion at the best the said report could only be considered as an information of the incident by the PW-8 in discharge of his duties as Village peon. From the statement of PW-6, Head Moharrir, it is evident that the said report was lodged at about 16.40 hours on the oral statement of Village peon to him. A copy of the said report is exhibited as 'Exhibit Ka-6' by the Village peon who was examined as PW-8. There is no Chick report of the said information. The Head Moharir (PW-6) who stated to have lodged the said report (Ex.Ka-6) has not proved the said document nor has proved any chick report in that regard. By the mere fact that the said report was stated to have been lodged prior in point of time, it cannot be treated as a cross version or cross FIR of the defence. Moreover, from the own version of the defence witness (DW-5), it appears that the said report was lodged by the Village peon on the instruction of accused persons Santosh and Ashok.

Heavy reliance placed by the learned counsel for the appellant on the written report exhibited as 'Exhibit Ka-6' to assert it as a cross version of the defence to exercise their right of private defence is, thus, found misplaced. Adding to the above, pertinent is to note that the investigating officer had shown ignorance about having any information of the report exhibited as 'Exhibit Ka-6' being lodged prior in point of time to the incident reported by PW-1 or in his presence. Mere registering the report of PW-1 as Case Crime No.20-A of 1999 would not be sufficient to treat it a cross-case.

60. From the above discussion, it is difficult to accept that three accused persons were attacked by four deceased before they were cornered and brutally murdered near the boundaries of Village Mohar. From the circumstances brought by the defence and the prosecution evidence, it is not established that deceased were aggressors of the crime.

61. All the aforesaid circumstances brought to the notice of the Court by the defence would neither probabilise the defence story nor provide the accused to legitimately exercise a right of private defence. The defence story of genesis of the incident does not seem to be more probable so as to demolish the whole prosecution case being improbable or false. As the injuries of the accused persons did not occur in the course of the incident-in-question, the prosecution was not required to explain the said injuries.

62. Now the only question remains is to assess the weight of the prosecution evidence to see as to whether the prosecution has succeeded in proving its case beyond all reasonable doubts.

63. From a threadbare discussion of the prosecution evidence as above we find that:-

(i) The first information report is prompt having been lodged within two hours of the incident-in-question.

(ii) PW-1 lodged the first information report by giving a report in his own handwriting which was proved by him as 'Exhibit Ka-3'. The said report contains a graphic description of the accused with weapons in their hands and the manner in which the four deceased were murdered as also the place of occurrence.

(iii) PW-1 categorically stated that he was accompanying the deceased persons with two others named as Chhiddu Singh and Sahab Singh.

(iv) His version that accused Santosh exhorted other accused persons who came in a group to attack all of them saying "और अशोक व संतोष के ललकारने पर महेश साला मिल गया है, इन लोगो के बल पर बचा है मारो सालो को, जाने न पाए" and that the accused persons opened fire; four deceased persons were chased and gheraoed by them and cornered near the boundaries of the field and murdered. Their bodies were lying in a 'Gaddha' between Bandhi, in the first information report itself is corroborated from his oral deposition as also the site plan prepared by the police who reached the spot soon after lodging of the first information report.

(v) There is no inconsistency in the oral testimony of PW-1, the medical evidence and the testimony of the Investigating Officer (PW-11) as also the reports such as inquest site plan prepared by him, with regard to the injuries of the deceased and the place of occurrence The medical evidence fully corroborates with the evidence of eye witness (PW-1) with regard to the injuries sustained by the deceased.

(vi) PW-2 Chhiddu Singh though turned hostile but his narration of the incident in his examination-in-chief is same and supports the ocular testimony of PW-1. His version with the prosecution story, when read as a whole, does not demolish the prosecution case rather supports the prosecution version of PW-1 being eye witness of the incident. His deposition though has some twist and turns and he had been declared hostile for that reason by the prosecution but his testimony as a w0hole cannot be discarded.

(vii) Presence of PW-1 or he being an eye witness is being disputed by the appellants on the ground that:-

(a) Firstly, that he left the place of incident in the morning at about 09.00 AM to attend his duties in the school where he was a teacher, even before inquest of his nephew was commenced. The said act of PW-1 is highly inconceivable and disproves his present at the scene of occurrence.

(b) Secondly, PW-1 states that on 12.01.1990, the investigating officer first prepared the site plan and then inquest had commenced. The first inquest proved to have commenced at about 07.00 AM and completed at 09.00 AM. As per version of PW-1, he immediately left the scene of occurrence to attend his school duties. On the other hand, the Investigating Officer stated that he prepared the site plan in the presence of PW-1 (the first informant) after inquest was completed and soon after reaching the place of occurrence statement of PW-1 was recorded. The statement was recorded at about 06.15 A.M. There was, thus, no time left for preparation of the site plan. One of the two witnesses, therefore, is making false statement.

64. As far as the above arguments are concerned, we may note that the PW-1 categorically states that he left the place of occurrence after his statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. was recorded. He remained at the place of incident for the whole night. The first inquest of the deceased Chatrapal commenced at about 07.00 A.M. and his statement was recorded before that about 06.15 A.M. By that time, site plan was not prepared as there was dark. Then he says that he was not aware as to when site plan was prepared but it was prepared prior to the inquest. This statement of PW-1 in cross-examination even if found in contradiction to his own statement about the time of inquest and preparation of the site plan and with the statement of the Investigating Officer (PW-11), but this by itself cannot be said to be material contradiction which would go to the root of the matter.

Minor contradictions in the statement of witnesses are bound to occur because of the time gap between the incident and recording of their testimony. It cannot be said to be a serious infirmity which would prove fatal to the prosecution case.

65. Further the act of PW-1 leaving the place of incident at about 09.00 AM after his statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. was recorded and the site plan was prepared, cannot be put to scrutiny being improbable or inconceivable so as to rule out his presence at the scene of occurrence.

66. This witness categorically states that his relative Santosh Singh and his brother Gulab Singh (father of deceased Arjun Singh) had reached at the spot of occurrence before he left to attend his duties. He also states that his relative Suresh Singh dropped him to the school on his motorcycle. When he left, Chhiddu Singh was present at the scene of occurrence.

67. Thus, having carefully appreciated the testimony of PW-1 and other prosecution evidences, it is not possible for us to doubt his version or narration of the incident or his version of being eye witness and the person who gave first information of the crime promptly to the police.

68. Apart from the above, nothing could be placed from the prosecution evidence which would create any dent or doubt in the prosecution story.

69. On many occasions, the Apex Court has laid down that a conviction can be based on the evidence of a solitary eye witness if his version is reliable and trustworthy. In Veer Singh Vs. State of U.P.12, State of U.P. Vs. Satveer Singh13 and Sudip Kumar Sen Vs. State of West Bengal14, the Apex Court has held that it is the quality of evidence and not quantity which matters in a criminal trial. Section 134 of the Evidence Act does not prescribe a particular number of witnesses to prove any act. Plurality of witnesses in a criminal trial is not the legislative intent. If the testimony of the single witness is found reliable on the touchstone of credibility, accused can be convicted on the basis of the said testimony.

70. The number of the accused persons was 15 and they came together with deadly weapon and made an unlawful assembly with the common object to cause death of the deceased persons and, in fact, in prosecution of the common object, they caused death by the deadly weapons they were carrying. Therefore, by virtue of being a member of the unlawful assembly, all the accused appellants are equally liable for causing murder of four persons.

71 . So far as the alleged right of private defence is concerned, the same has not been established. The injuries sustained by the accused side appears to have been sustained much prior to the incident in hand and such that they had to take recourse to public authorities as they had time to do so. Our view is substantiated by the judgement of the Apex Court in Dinesh Singh Vs. State of U.P.15. Moreover, four persons have been killed in the incident and as held in Dinesh Singh15 right of self defence cannot be permitted to be used as retribution.

72. Having carefully appreciated all the arguments made by the learned Senior Advocates for the appellants and the prosecution evidence, we find that the prosecution has proved its version beyond all reasonable doubts. The defence, on the other hand, though took a plea of exercise of right of self defence but has utterly failed to discharge the initial burden laid on it to probalise its story or create dent or doubt on the prosecution story. The presence of accused persons at the scene of occurrence is neither disputed nor can be doubted from any of the circumstances brought before the Court. It is proved by the prosecution that all accused persons in a pre-mediated manner formed an unlawful assembly in prosecution of the common object of such assembly and being armed with deadly weapons caused death of four persons by inflicting fatal injuries in a manner that the deceased could not escape the attack.

73. All the appellants/accused persons are, thus, found guilty of the offences under Section 302 read with Sections 149 I.P.C. as also for the offences under Section 147 and 148 IPC. Their conviction under the aforesaid provisions is found justified. The sentences awarded to the accused/appellants for the offences for which they are found guilty are minimum. No infirmity is, therefore, found in the decision of the trial court. The conviction and sentence awarded to each of the accused/appellant is hereby upheld.

74. The accused persons are on bail. Their bail bonds are cancelled and sureties are discharged. They shall surrender forthwith before the concerned court and be taken into custody and sent to jail to serve their sentence.

75. Certify this judgement to the court below immediately for compliance.

76. The compliance report be submitted through the Registrar General, High Court, Allahabad.

77. Both the appeals are, accordingly, dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pradeep Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Rajesh Kumar Singh, learned Amicus Curiae appearing on behalf of appellant, Sri Ajit Ray, learned AGA for the State of UP and perused the record.

2. This Criminal Appeal has been filed against the judgment and order dated 26.08.1996, passed by Ist Additional Sessions Judge, Kanpur Nagar, in Sessions Trial No. 356 of 1994, arising out of Case Crime No. 50 of 1994, under Section 302 IPC, Police Station Bajaria, District Kanpur Nagar, whereby the accused-appellant Mahey Alam has been convicted and sentenced for life imprisonment.

3. The prosecution story in brief is that the first information report was lodged by the informant Smt. Husnu Begum, the daughter of the deceased on 19.04.1994 at about 10:15 AM in respect of the criminal incident of same day taking place at about 09:00 AM. The father of the informant namely Rafiq @ Laddoo prevented some persons including accused from playing cards/gambling at his door, whereupon the accused-appellant Mahey Alam abused Rafiq @ Laddoo and when the deceased again objected on gambling there, the accused Mahey Alam opened fire by his pistol upon the deceased Rafiq @ Laddoo which hit him on his neck. He sustained firearm injury and fell down. The informant took the injured (deceased) Rafiq @ Laddoo to UHM Hospital with the help of some local people but on the way, he died. The witnesses who saw the incident were the informant, her brother Shabab, sister Nazneen, brother-in-law Moin and one Subhan. The informant Smt. Husnu Begum lodged an oral report at Police Station Bajaria on the same day. Offence was registered against accused and chik FIR was prepared. Inquest report of the dead body was prepared, the dead body was sealed and sent for postmortem. The postmortem was conducted on 20.04.1994. The matter was investigated by the police, blood stained and plain earth was collected from the spot, the clothes of the deceased stained with blood were also taken into possession by the police and the same were sent for chemical examination. The statement of the witnesses were recorded and charge sheet was filed under Section 302 IPC against the accused-appellant. The learned trial court has framed the charge under Section 302 IPC. The accused denied the charge and claimed trial.

4. The prosecution examined as many as six witnesses in support. PW-1 is informant and eye witness Smt. Husnu Begum, PW-2 is Shabab, who is also an eye witness, PW-3 is SI Ram Niwas Sharma, who is Investigating Officer, PW-4 is SI Satyaveer Singh. who prepared the inquest report, sealed the dead body and sent the same for postmortem along with other papers, PW-5 is Constable Ram Autar, who has prepared the chik and GD and PW-6 is Dr. Devi Prasad, who has conducted the postmortem of the deceased. The witnesses have proved the incident and the oral report as Ext. Ka-1, site map as Ext. Ka-2, memo of blood stained and plain earth as Ext. Ka-3, charge sheet Ext. Ka-4 and blood stained and plain earth as material Exts. 1 and 2, inquest report Ext. Ka-5, letter to CMO, Challan and Photo dead body and sample seal as Exts Ka- 6 to 8 and postmortem report Ext. Ka-11.

5. After hearing both the prosecution and the defence, the trial court has passed the impugned judgment convicting and sentencing the accused-appellant.

6. Feeling aggrieved by the impugned judgment, the present criminal appeal has been filed by the accused-appellant and he has challenged the impugned judgment on the ground that the same is against the law and facts and against the weight of evidence on record. The sentence awarded is too severe and, therefore, the impugned judgment is liable to be set aside and the accused-appellant is entitled for acquittal.

7. Learned counsel for the appellant has argued that the first information report is delayed and reasonable explanation has not been tendered to explain the delay. The fact witnesses are highly interested and related witnesses and no independent witness has been examined. There is improvement and contradiction and embellishment in the testimony of the fact witnesses. Some unknown person killed the deceased and out of enmity, the accused was falsely implicated. Learned counsel for the appellant has further argued that PW-2 has been examined as a child witness and he should not have been relied upon.

8. On the contrary, learned AGA has submitted that two fact witnesses who were the eye witnesses of the incident were examined and they have supported the prosecution version and the same find support from the postmortem report. The learned trial court, finding the prosecution case proved beyond shadow of any doubt, has rightly convicted the accused-appellant. There is no force in the appeal and the same is liable to be dismissed.

9. In the light of rival arguments, we proceed to analyze evidence on record. Two fact witnesses have been examined by the prosecution. PW-1 Smt. Husnu Begum (informant and eye witness) has stated that 8 months before at about 09:00 AM in the morning, the boys of her locality and the accused Mahey Alam of Kafi Mohalla were gambling by playing cards on her door. They were prevented by her father Rafiq @

Laddoo, whereupon the accused-appellant started abusing him. When her father tried to stop him, the accused fired on him by his pistol which hit on his neck. He fell down and the accused fled away from there. She and her brother-in-law took Rafiq @ Laddoo to Ursala Hospital where he was found dead. She went to the police station and lodged the FIR by giving oral information about the incident. The chik was prepared and she was read over on which she put her thumb impression. She has also stated that the incident was also seen by Shabab and Moin etc. The place where her father fell after receiving gun shot injury, blood also fell down on the earth.

10. PW-2 Shabab is aged about 11 years and he has been examined as child witness after duly testing the intellectual capacity by the court. In his statement, Shabab has stated that about one year ago, at about 09:00 AM, he was playing with his father and on his door some persons of the locality and the accused Mahey Alam of Kafi Mohalla were gambling by playing cards. His father prevented them, whereupon the accused started abusing him and on being prevented from abusing, he fired on him by his pistol. The fire hit his father who fell down. The accused ran away from there. His sister Smt. Husnu Begum and brother-in-law Moin took his father to Ursala Hospital. The incident was seen by him, sister Smt. Husnu Begum and other people of the locality. The witness has identified the accused in the court who was present at the time of statement.

11. PW-3 SI Ram Niwas Sharma (Investigating Officer) has stated that on 19.04.1994, he was posted in PS Bajaria and the case was registered in his presence. He took the statement of Smt. Husnu Begum and Moin. He went to the place of occurrence. The inquest report was prepared and the dead body was sealed by SI Balbir singh Malik and the dead body was sent for postmortem. He inspected the place of occurrence and prepared the site map on the pointing of informant. He found blood stained and plain earth on the place of occurrence and the same was taken into containers and sealed. Memo thereof was prepared by him. He has further stated that he examined witnesses Subhan, Nazneen, Shabab after inspecting the place of occurrence. After completing the investigation, he submitted charge-sheet.

12. PW-4 SI Satyaveer Singh Malik proved the inquest report and other relevant papers necessary for sending the sealed dead body for postmortem.

13. PW-5 Constable Ram Autar has stated that he prepared chik FIR on the oral information given by the informant. What she said, the same was written and after hearing the same, the informant put her thumb impression. Entry was made in GD no. 22 on the same day at 10:15 AM. Special report was also sent through Constable Radhey Shyam and the same was entered in GD No. 24 of 10:40 AM on the same day.

14. PW-6 Dr. Devi Prasad has stated that on 20.04.1994, he was posted as Medical Officer and on 10:15 AM, he conducted the postmortem of the dead body of Rafiq @ Laddoo, aged about 50 years, brought in sealed condition along with necessary papers and was identified by Constable Chandra Shekhar Yadav and Constable Vinod Kumar of PS Bajariya. He has further stated that the deceased was of average height. Rigor Mortis was present in the lower limb and it has passed from the upper limbs. Postmortem staining was present on back and thigh. He found one firearm entry wound, 1 cm. x 4 cm. on the right side of neck on the lower part, 1 cm. right from mid line and 6 cm. below from the right medial angle. Blackening was present and the injury was internally bend, whereas on the exit side the wound was externally bend.

15. The doctor has stated that in the internal examination, it was found that the right charotic artery was torn. The doctor also found semi digested food in the abdomen, breath tube was torn, both the lungs were pale and both the compartments of heart was found empty. According to the doctor, the cause of death was shock and hemorrhage due to fire arm injury. He has further stated that the injury was sufficient to cause death and it was possible that the injury must have been caused on 19.04.1994 at about 09:00 AM.

16. It has been argued by the learned counsel for the appellant that there is delay in lodging FIR. It appears from record that the incident took place at about 09:00 AM on 19.04.1994 and the first information report was lodged orally on the same day at 10:15 AM. This fact has been proved by the informant PW-1 who has stated that after her father was declared dead in the hospital, she went to the police station and lodged the FIR by orally stating the whole incident to the police at about 10:15 AM. Her statement further finds support and corroboration from the statement of PW-5 Constable Ram Autar who prepared the chik FIR and made entry in the GD. The police station is three furlong away from the house of the informant and FIR has been lodged within one hour and fifteen minutes from the time of incident. The FIR shows that the deceased was first taken to the hospital and when he was declared dead by the doctor, the informant went to lodge FIR in the police station. As such, we find that there is no delay in lodging FIR. In fact, the first information report in this case has been lodged very promptly and the learned trial court has very rightly concluded that the promptness of the FIR shows that it was lodged soon after the incident without any consultation or deliberation.

17. The Investigating Officer has prepared site map of the place of occurrence, which has been proved as Ext. Ka-2 in which the place A has been shown where accused Mahey Alam was standing and from where, he shot fire on the deceased. X in circle is the place where the deceased was standing and at B, he sustained firearm injury. The presence of witnesses has been shown by single arrow, the direction has been shown by double arrow to which the accused ran away after commission of the offence. It has also been mentioned in the site map that the circle X is six steps away from the witnesses and one step away from the place where the deceased was standing. From circle X, blood stained and plain earth was taken by the Investigating Officer. The first information report also discloses the place of incident to be on the door of the informant and in their statements also, PW-1 and PW-2 have stated the same fact. Hence, we find that the place of occurrence has been fully established by the prosecution.

18. The learned counsel to the accused-appellant has challenged the credibility of fact witnesses on the basis of their being related witness, certain contradiction and improvement and lack of any motive for the commission of offence.

He has submitted that no independent witness has been examined and both the fact witnesses are relatives and highly interested witnesses and on their evidence no reliance could be placed by the learned trial court. It has been further submitted that PW-2 is a child witness and his testimony cannot be relied upon.

19. We will first examine the issue of related witness. It is admitted fact that both the fact witnesses are brother and sister and the deceased has been their father. The law in respect of the testimony of related witnesses has been time and again reiterated by the Supreme Court that the testimony of related witnesses cannot be discarded merely on the basis of relationship. The only requirement is that the testimony of such witness should be scrutinized cautiously and carefully. In Dalip Singh v State of Punjab (1954) SCR 145, while rejecting the argument that witnesses who are close-relatives of the victim should not be relied upon, the Court held as under:

"A witness is normally to be considered independent unless he or she springs from sources which are likely to be tainted and that usually means unless the witness has cause, such as enmity against the accused, to wish to implicate him falsely. Ordinarily, a close relative would be the last to screen the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent person. It is true, when feelings run high and there is personal cause for enmity, that there is a tendency to drag in an innocent person against whom a witness has a grudge along with the guilty, but foundation must be laid for such a criticism and the mere fact of relationship far from being a foundation is often a sure guarantee of truth. However, we are not attempting any sweeping generalisation. Each case must be judged on its own facts. Our observations are only made to combat what is so often put forward in cases before us as a general rule of prudence. There is no such general rule. Each case must be limited to and be governed by its own facts."

20. In Masalti v State of UP AIR 1965 SC 202, the Supreme Court observed:

"But it would, we think, be unreasonable to contend that evidence given by witnesses should be discarded only on the ground that it is evidence of partisan or interested witnesses. ... The mechanical rejection of such evidence on the sole ground that it is partisan would invariably lead to failure of justice."

21. The Supreme Court has also taken the view that related witness does not necessarily mean or is equivalent to an interested witness. A witness may be called interested only when he or she derives some benefit from the result of litigation; a decree in a civil case, or in seeing a person punished in a criminal trial. In Darya Singh v State of Punjab, AIR 1965 SC 328, followed by State of UP v Kishanpal (2008) 16 SCC 73, the Court held as under:

"On principle, however, it is difficult to accept the plea that if a witness is shown to be a relative of the deceased and it is also shown that he shared the hostility of the victim towards the assailant, his evidence can never be accepted unless it is corroborated on material particulars."

22. Again, in Appa v State of Gujarat, AIR 1988 SC 698, the Court has observed:

"Experience reminds us that civilized people are generally insensitive when crime is committed even in their presence. They withdraw from both, victim and vigilant. They keep themselves away from the Court. They take crime as a civil dispute. This kind of apathy of general public is indeed unfortunate but it is everywhere whether in village life or town and city. One cannot ignore this handicap. Evidence of witnesses has to be appreciated keeping in view such ground realities. Therefore, the Court instead of doubting the prosecution case where no independent witness has been examined must consider the broad spectrum of the prosecution version and then search for the nugget of truth with due regard to probability, if any suggested by the accused."

23. Similar view has been taken in State of AP v S. Rayappa (2006) 4 SCC 512, where the court observed that it is now almost a fashion that public is reluctant to appear and depose before the court especially in criminal cases and the cases for that reason itself are dragged for years and years. The Court stated the principle as follows:

" ....by now, it is a well-established principle of law that testimony of a witness otherwise inspiring confidence cannot be discarded on the ground that he being a relation of the deceased is an interested witness. A close relative who is a very natural witness cannot be termed as interested witness. The term interested postulates that the person concerned must have some direct interest in seeing the accused person being convicted somehow or the other either because of animosity or some other reasons."

24. Further, in Pulicherla Nagaraju @ Nagaraja Reddy v State of AP (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 500, the Supreme Court has held as under:

"In this case, we find that the trial court had rejected the evidence of PW1 and PW2 merely because they were interested witnesses being the brother and father of the deceased. But it is well settled that evidence of a witness cannot be discarded merely on the ground that he is either partisan or interested or closely related to the deceased, if it is otherwise, found to be trustworthy and credible. It only requires scrutiny with more care and caution, so that neither the guilty escape nor the innocent wrongly convicted. If on such careful scrutiny, the evidence is found to be reliable and probable, it can be acted upon. If it is found to be improbable or suspicious, it ought to be rejected. Where the witness has a motive to falsely implicate the accused, his testimony should have corroboration in regard to material particulars before it is accepted."

25. Similarly, in Satbir Singh v State of UP, (2009) 13 SCC 790, the Court has held as under:-

"It is now a well-settled principle of law that only because the witnesses are not independent ones may not by itself be a ground to discard the prosecution case. If the prosecution case has been supported by the witnesses and no cogent reason has been shown to discredit their statements, a judgment of conviction can certainly be based thereupon....."

26. In M.C. Ali v State of Kerala AIR 2010 SC 1639; and Himanshu v State (NCT of Delhis, (2011) 2 SCC 36, Bhajan Singh and others v State of Haryana; (2011) 7 SCC 421, it was laid down that evidence of a related witness can be relied upon provided it is trustworthy. Again, in Jayabalan v U.T. of Pondicherry, 2010(68) ACC 308 (SC), the Supreme Court has made following observation:

"We are of the considered view that in cases where the court is called upon to deal with the evidence of the interested witnesses, the approach of the court, while appreciating the evidence of such witnesses must not be pedantic. The court must be cautious in appreciating and accepting the evidence given by the interested witnesses but the court must not be suspicious of such evidence. The primary endeavour of the court must be to look for consistency. The evidence of a witness cannot be ignored or thrown out solely because it comes from the mouth of a person who is closely related to the victim."

27. Dharnidhar v State of UP, (2010) 7 SCC 759 referred the above observation of Jaya Balan (supra) and held that there is no hard and fast rule that family members can never be true witnesses to the occurrence and that they will always depose falsely before the Court. It will always depend upon the facts and circumstances of a given case. Similar view has been taken in Ram Bharosey v State of UP AIR 2010 SC 917, where the Court stated that a close relative of the deceased does not become an interested witness. An interested witness is one who is interested in securing the conviction of a person out of vengeance or enmity or due to disputes and deposes before the Court only with that intention and not to further the cause of justice.

28. Again, in Balraje @ Trimbak v State of Maharashtra, (2010) 6 SCC 673, it has been held that when the eye-witnesses are stated to be interested and inimically deposed against the accused, it would not be proper to conclude that they would shield the real culprit and rope in innocent person. The truth or otherwise of the evidence has to be weighed pragmatically. The Court would be required to analyze the evidence of related witnesses and those witnesses who are inimical towards the accused. But if after careful analysis and scrutiny of their evidence, the version given by the witnesses appears to be clear, cogent and credible, there is no reason to discard the same.

29. Subsequently, in Jalpat Rai v State of Haryana AIR 2011 SC 2719 and Waman v State of Maharashtra AIR 2011 SC 3327, it was observed that the over-insistence on witnesses having no relation with the victims often results in criminal justice going away. The testimony of a witness in a criminal trial cannot be discarded merely because the witness is a relative or family member of the victim of the offence. This view has been reiterated in Shyam Babu v State of UP, AIR 2012 SC 3311, Dhari & Others v State of UP, AIR 2013 SC 308 and Bhagwan Jagannath Markad (supra). Recently, in Ganapathi v State of Tamilnadu, AIR 2018 SC 1635, the Court found no force in the argument that the conviction based on the evidence of family members in a murder trial is not sustainable. In Rupinder Singh Sandhu v State of Punjab, (2018) 16 SCC 475, it has been reiterated by the Supreme Court that relationship by itself will not render the witness untrustworthy. The Supreme Court laid down as below:

"Relationship is not a factor to affect credibility of a witness. It is more often than not that a relation would not conceal the actual culprit and make allegations against an innocent person. Foundation has to be laid if plea of false implication is made. In such cases, the court has to adopt a careful approach and analyse evidence to find out whether it is cogent and credible. ..... A witness is normally to be considered independent unless he or she springs from sources which are likely to be tainted and that usually means unless the witness has cause, such as enmity against the accused, to wish to implicate him falsely. Ordinarily, a close relative would be the last to screen the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent person. It is true, when feelings run high and there is personal cause for enmity, that there is a tendency to drag in an innocent person against whom a witness has a grudge along with the guilty, but foundation must be laid for such a criticism and the mere fact of relationship far from being a foundation is often a sure guarantee of truth."

30. Recently, in Shio Shanker Dubey v State of Bihar AIR 2019 SC 2275, the Supreme Court has reiterated the law as under:

"..... a close relative cannot be characterized as an "interested" witness. He is a "natural" witness. His evidence, however, must be scrutinized carefully. If on such scrutiny, his evidence is found to be intrinsically reliable, inherently probable and wholly trustworthy, conviction can be based on the "sole" testimony of such witness. Close relationship of witness with deceased or victim is no ground to reject his evidence. On the contrary, close relative of the deceased would normally be most reluctant to spare the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent one."

31. Thus, in view of aforementioned decisions of the Supreme Court, it is settled position of law that the statements of the interested witnesses can be safely relied upon by the court in support of the prosecution story. But this needs to be done with care and to ensure that the administration of criminal justice is not undermined by the persons who are closely related to the deceased and inimical with the accused. When their statements find corroboration by other evidence, expert evidence and the circumstances of the case clearly depict completion of the chain of evidence pointing out to the guilt of the accused, then there is no reason as to why the statement of so-called 'interested witnesses' cannot be relied upon by the Court. It would be hard to believe that the close relatives shall leave the real culprit and shall implicate innocent persons falsely simply because they have enmity with the accused persons. There is no rule to the effect that the evidence of related or partisan witness is not acceptable. Association or relation does not render the evidence false and partisanship is no ground to reject the testimony given on oath.

32. In this instant case, we find after close scrutiny of the evidence of the two eye-witnesses that they have narrated the whole sequence of commission of the offence. The offence was committed on the door of their house. It was morning time and their being present on spot at the time of incident appears to be most natural. The defence theory that the witnesses did not see the criminal incident as they were not present there, is not convincing. It is a case of broad day murder and the two eye-witnesses were none other but the daughter and son of deceased and the incident took place on the door of deceased and their presence on place of occurrence is natural. There is consistency in the evidence of both the eye-witnesses without any contradiction on material point. The learned trial court has found them trustworthy and reliable and it hardly has any impact that they are related witnesses.

33. The next submission is about motive and it has been argued that the accused did not have motive or adequate motive sufficient to cause death of deceased. The prosecution case is based on direct evidence and the settled law is that motive goes to back seat in such cases. In a number of decisions, like Abu Thakir v State AIR 2010 SC 2119, State of UP v Nawab Singh AIR 2010 SC 3638, Bipin Kumar Mondal v State of West Bengal 2005 SCC (Criminal) 33, Shivraj Bapuray Jadhav v State of Karnataka (2003) 6 SCC 392, Thaman Kumar v State of Union Territory of Chandigarh (2003) 6 SCC 380, State of HP v Jeet Singh; (1999) 4 SCC 370, it has been repeatedly held by the Supreme Court that motive is not a sine qua non for the commission of a crime. Moreover, it takes a back seat in a case of direct ocular account of the commission of the offence by a particular person. In a case of direct evidence the element of motive does not play such an important role so as to cast any doubt on the credibility of the prosecution witnesses even if there be any doubt raised in this regard. If the eye-witnesses are trustworthy, the motive attributed for the commission of crime may not be of much relevance. Failure to prove motive or absence of evidence on the point of motive would not be fatal to the prosecution case when the other reliable evidence available on record unerringly establishes the guilt of the accused.

34. We find that the Supreme Court has reiterated the aforesaid view in various decisions, such as Gopi Ram v State Of UP, 2006 (55) ACC 673 SC, R.R. Reddy v State of AP, AIR 2006 SC 1656, Sucha Singh v State of Punjab; AIR 2003 SC 1471, State of Rajasthan v Arjun Singh AIR 2011 SC 3380, Varun Chaudhry v State of Rajasthan AIR 2011 SC 72. In the recent judgment of Saddik Vs. State of Gujarat, (2016) 10 SCC 663, it has been held that the prosecution case could not be disbelieved on the ground of alleged absence or insufficiency of motive. Motive is insignificant in cases of direct evidence of eyewitnesses. Failure to prove motive or absence of evidence on the point of motive would not be fatal to the prosecution case when the other reliable, truthful and acceptable evidence is available on record sufficient to establish the guilty of accused persons.

35. We are of the view that when there is sufficient direct evidence regarding the commission of offence, the question of motive should go away from the mind of the Court. Motive is a double edged weapon and the key question for consideration in cases based on direct evidence remains whether the prosecution has convincingly and satisfactorily established the guilt of the accused beyond reasonable doubt by adducing reliable and cogent evidence. As such, in case of direct evidence, the proof of the existence of a motive is not necessary for a conviction for any offence. If the eye-witnesses are trustworthy, the motive attributed for the commission of crime may not be of much relevance. Failure to prove motive or absence of evidence on the point of motive would not be fatal to the prosecution case when the other reliable evidence available on record establishes the guilt of the accused.

36. The learned counsel to the accused-appellant has submitted that PW-2 is a child witness and on the basis of his statement, conviction is not legal. He has referred to the judgment of the Supreme Court in Digamber Vaishnav v State of Chhattisgarh, (2019) 4 SCC 522, where the accused was convicted on the basis of uncorroborated testimony of a child witness who was just 9 years in age and the Court found on the basis of evidence on record that she was not an eye-witness and therefore, the judgment of conviction was set aside. Supreme Court made following observation:

"This Court has consistently held that evidence of a child witness must be evaluated carefully as the child may be swayed by what others tell him and he is an easy prey to tutoring. Therefore, the evidence of a child witness must find adequate corroboration before it can be relied upon. It is more a rule of practical wisdom than law."

37. The law referred above is not new and that view has been already expressed in various judgments of the Supreme Court. Thus we find that in Acharaparambath Pradeepan v State of Kerala, 2007(57) ACC 293 (SC), State of Karnataka v Shantappa Madivalappa, AIR 2009 SC 2144, State of U.P v Krishna Master, AIR 2010 SC 3071 and K. Venkateshwarlu Vs. State of AP, AIR 2012 SC 2955, it has been laid down that a child witness is competent to testify u/s 118, Evidence Act. Tutoring cannot be a ground to reject his evidence. A child of tender age can be allowed to testify if it has intellectual capacity to understand questions and give rational answers thereto. Trial Judge may resort to any examination of a child witness to test his capacity and intelligence as well as his understanding of the obligation of an oath. If on a careful scrutiny, the testimony of a child witness is found truthful, there can be no obstacle in the way of accepting the same and recording conviction of the accused on the basis of his testimony.

38. In Algupandi alias Alagupandian v State of Tamilnadu, (2012)10 SCC 451, the Supreme Court has laid down as follows:

"It is a settled principle of law that a child witness can be a competent witness provided statement of such witness is reliable, truthful and is corroborated by other prosecution evidence. The court in such circumstances can safely rely upon the statement of a child witness and it can form the basis for conviction as well. Further, the evidence of a child witness and credibility thereof would depend upon the circumstances of each case. The only precaution which the court should bear in mind while assessing the evidence of a child witness is that the witness must be a reliable one and his/her demeanour must be like any other competent witness and that there exists no liklihood of being tutored. There is no rule or practice that in every case the evidence of such a witness be corroborated by other evidence before a conviction can be allowed to stand but as a rule of prudence the court always finds it desirable to seek corroboration to such evidence from other reliable evidence placed on record. Further, it is not the law that if a witness is a child, his evidence shall be rejected, even if it is found reliable."

39. Again, in Gul Singh v State of MP, 2015 (88) ACC 358 (SC), the Supreme Court clearly held that the testimony of a child witness cannot be rejected unless found unreliable and tutored. Conviction on the basis of sole testimony of a child witness is permissible if evidence of such child witness is credible, truthful and corroborated. Corroboration is not must. It is under rule of prudence. In the case in hand, PW-2 Shabab is 11 years old and the learned trial court has tested his intellectual capacity and was satisfied that the witness was able to understand the questions put to him and was able to give rational answers thereto. PW-2 has stated that he saw the accused firing on his father who sustained injuries. During cross-examination, he has denied that he was tutored by his sister and he has stated whatever he had seen. We find that, irrespective of his tender age, PW-2 has narrated the incident without any material contradiction or discrepancy. It was morning time and he was playing there with his father (deceased) and as such, his presence there appears to be natural and probable. Moreover, this case is not based on sole testimony of the child witness and PW-1 is another eye-witness who has proved the prosecution version.

40. Certain contradiction and discrepancy in the statements of two fact witnesses have been pointed out. PW-1 has stated that after committing the crime, the accused and others ran away from there leaving behind the playing cards and slippers at the place of occurrence and the same was taken into possession by the police. On the other hand, PW-2 has stated that the playing cards were taken with him by the accused after commission of the offence. When the IO was cross-examined, he stated that he did not find anything as such on the spot.

41. The submission of the learned counsel for the appellant is as per FIR, at the time of incident, the accused and others were gambling by playing cards on the door of the informant and after causing the incident, the accused ran away leaving behind the playing cards there. But, the site map Ext Ka-2 reveals that the place of occurrence is not on the door of the deceased. This argument is not sustainable as it has been alleged in the first information report that the informant, her father and other family members are resident of House No. 99/153. The site map shows that the door of the House No. 99/153 opens towards the place of occurrence. It makes no difference that two houses have been shown numbered as 99/153 as both the houses open towards the place of occurrence. Further, it makes hardly any difference if the playing cards were not found there. It was an open place and this possibility cannot be ruled out that the playing cards might have been collected by someone. The houses of two fact witnesses being situated there and opening thereof towards the place of occurrence, their presence at the time of incident is quite natural and it has been stated by PW-1 during her cross-examination that at the time of incident, she was standing on the door and the quarrel was taking place between her father and the accused.

42. PW-2 Shabab has stated that the playing cards were taken away by the accused after causing the incident. He was having playing cards in one hand and by the other hand he shot fire on his father. Learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that both the fact witnesses have given contradictory statement on this point. It has further been submitted that PW-2 has made improvement by disclosing the name of Miraz, Shabir and Noore that they were also playing cards at the time of incident but this fact was not stated before the Investigating Officer. This contradiction is hardly relevant as the fact that the incident took place has been correctly narrated by the witness. It was not necessary to disclose names of the persons who were playing cards at the time of incident and by not disclosing the names of all such persons to the IO, we do not find any material improvement in the statement. The witness has stated that the fire hit on the neck of his father and he fell down. The learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that the witness has stated that he continued weeping for half an hour there and on his cry, his sister Smt. Husnu Begum and his brother-in-law came there. He has stated that on his cry, after about one hour, they came. On this basis,learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that the presence of the informant at the time of incident and she being an eye witness becomes doubtful. It should be remembered that PW-2 is a witness of a very tender age and it is always possible that such contradiction may come during cross-examination. He might not have exact calculation of timing and, therefore, he might have stated that after one hour, the informant and his brother-in-law came there. We are of the view that these contradictions are not relevant nor fatal to the prosecution version.

43. On facts, we find that the contradiction, discrepancy or improvement mentioned above are not in respect of time, place, date and manner of the commission of offence. It needs to be mentioned that where own father is victim of deadly assault and the eyewitnesses were son and daughter of the deceased, in such a situation, the witnesses are not supposed to be perfectionist to give the exact account of the incident and narrate every aspect related thereto in a uniform way. Some sort of contradiction, improvement and embellishment is bound to occur in the statement. As laid down in State of UP v Naresh, 2011 (75) ACC 215 (SC), in all criminal cases, normal discrepancies are bound to occur in the depositions of witnesses due to normal errors of observation, namely, errors of memory due to lapse of time or due to mental disposition such as shock and horror at the time of occurrence. Minor contradictions, inconsistencies, embellishments or improvements on trivial matters which do not affect the core of the prosecution case, should not be made a ground on which the evidence can be rejected in its entirety. The Court has to form its opinion about the credibility of the witness and record a finding as to whether his deposition inspires confidence.

44. In Gosu Jayarami Reddy and another v State of Andhra Pradesh; (2011) 3 SCC(Cri) 630, it was observed that Courts need to be realistic in their expectation from the witnesses and go by what would be reasonable based on ordinary human conduct with ordinary human frailties of memory and power to register events and their details. A witness who is terrorized by the brutality of the attack cannot be disbelieved only because in his description of who hit the deceased and on what part of the body, there is some mix-up or confusion.

45. Further, in Parsu Ram Pandey v/s State of Bihar AIR 2004 SC 5068, Shivappa v State of Karnataka; AIR 2682, Ramchandaran v/s State of Kerala AIR 2011 SC 3581, it was held that minor discrepancies or some improvements would not justify rejection of the testimonies of the eye-witnesses, if they are otherwise reliable. Some discrepancies are bound to occur because of the sociological background of the witnesses as also the time gap between the date of occurrence and the date on which they give their depositions in Court. In Mukesh v State for NCT of Delhi, AIR 2017 SC 2161 and Bhagwan Jagannath Markad v State of Maharashtra, (2016) 10 SCC 53, it was reiterated that minor contradictions in the testimonies of the prosecution witness are bound to be there and in fact they go to support the truthfulness of the witnesses. In view of the above, we are of the view that there is nothing in the deposition of the eye-witnesses on the basis of which their evidence can be discarded. We do not find any material contradiction discrepancy or improvement in the statement of the witness and there is consistency so far as narration of the criminal incident is concerned.

46. So far as the second limb of argument is concerned, we do not find it at all necessary that all the facts are required to be mentioned in the FIR. The purpose of FIR is to give information about commission of offence and it is not necessary to give every minute detail. In Jarnail Singh v State of Punjab, 2009 (6) Supreme 526, Bhagwan Jagannath Markad v State of Maharashtra, (2016) 10 SCC 537 and Ramji Singh v State of UP, 2019 (4) Crimes 585 (SC), it has been held that the FIR is not the encyclopedia of all the facts relating to crime. The only requirement is that at the time of lodging FIR, the informant should state all those facts which normally strike to mind and help in assessing the gravity of the crime or identity of the culprit briefly. In our view, a detail description and sequence of incident constituting the offence is not at all required to be mentioned in the FIR.

47. It has been also argued that despite the presence of independent witnesses at the time of incident, none has been examined. A reference has been taken of the FIR and statements of PW-1 and PW-2 who have stated that in addition to them and Moieen, at the time of incident, Subhan, Ramjan, Noore and Suhel were also present and were seeing the accused gambling with Sabir, Meraz and Noore. It has been submitted that none of the four persons have been examined. Three of them have not been mentioned in the FIR. Even Subhan whose name finds mention in FIR has not been examined.

48. The question is whether it is necessary for the prosecution to examine all the fact witnesses? In Nand Kumar Vs. State of Chhatisgarh, (2015) 1 SCC 776 and Bhagwan Jagannath Markad Vs. State of Maharashtra, (2016) 10 SCC 537 Explaining the provisions of Sections 231, 311 CrPC and Sections 114 & 134 of the Evidence Act, the Supreme Court had ruled that prosecution need not examine its all witnesses. Discretion lies with the prosecution whether to tender or not witness to prove its case. Adverse inference against prosecution can be drawn only if withholding of witness was with oblique motive. In Sandeep v State of UP (2012) 6 SCC 107, Kripal Singh v State of Haryana, AIR 2013 SC 286, Bhagwan Jagannath Markad v State of Maharashtra, (2016) 10 SCC 537, Sadhu Saran Singh v State of UP, (2016) 4 SCC 357 and Mukesh v State for NCT of Delhi , AIR 2017 SC 2161, it has been held that if a witness examined in the court is otherwise found reliable and trustworthy, the fact sought to be proved by that witness need not be further proved through other witnesses though there may be other witnesses available who could have been examined but were not examined. Non-examination of material witness is not a mathematical formula for discarding the weight of the testimony available on record however natural, trustworthy and convincing it may be. It is settled law that non-examination of eye-witness cannot be pressed into service like a ritualistic formula for discarding the prosecution case with a stroke of pen. Court can convict an accused on statement of sole witness even if he is relative of the deceased and non examination of independent witness would not be fatal to the case of prosecution.

49. The learned counsel for the accused-appellant has submitted that the prosecution witnesses have stated that there was no previous enmity between the accused and the deceased. A quarrel took place between the two on the point of gambling and it has been stated by both the eyewitnesses. PW-2 has stated that between accused and deceased, jhnai jhnai ho rahi thi (quarreling) as her father was preventing him from gambling on his door. PW-2 has also stated this fac. Therefore, it has been submitted that upon the heat of this quarrel and provoked by this situation, the offence was committed and the same was without intention, planning and meditation and the same is covered within the purview of culpable homicide not amounting to murder punishable under section 304 of the IPC.

50. We have given a thoughtful consideration to this argument. It is difficult to agree with this argument as there was just verbal quarrel and the deceased was opposing gambling on his door and there was no physical altercation between the two. Any family person would naturally oppose to such gambling on his door. That the accused was carrying a pistol with him on the occasion shows his criminal nature and on such small quarrel, firing by him on deceased shows the extreme culpability on his part. It is pertinent to mention that firearm injury and injury caused by explosive substance are kept on different footing from the death caused by other weapon. Causing injury by firearm on the vital part of body from close range indicates the intention to cause death and extreme culpability on the part of accused, as, the moment fire is shot, it cannot be controlled by the person and there is no concept of slow firing as the pellets will come out with the mechanically designed speed and force. In case of other cutting or stab weapon, one can claim that enough force was not applied in causing injury. Instant death was resulted by the firearm injury and in such factual situation, the culpability is assessed on the basis of weapon used and the seriousness of injury caused on the vital part of the body. We do not find any force in the argument and there is nothing wrong in the conviction of the accused for the offence of murder under section 302 IPC.

51. In view of the above we find that prompt FIR has been lodged in this case; prosecution version has been supported by the account of two eyewitnesses which further finds support and corroboration by medical evidence; the presence of both the eyewitnesses at the time of incident and with the deceased is natural and their evidence is credible, consistent and trustworthy on which reliance has been rightly placed by the learned trial court. Once, it was established by prosecution that at the time date and place, the deceased was killed by firearm injury and the injury was sufficient to cause death, the limited question for determination was the role and involvement of the accused and that has been proved by two eyewitnesses and there is nothing on record to discard their evidence. As such, we do not find any perversity or illegality in the impugned judgment. The conviction and sentence awarded by the learned trial court is upheld. The appeal is, therefore, liable to be dismissed.

52. The Criminal Appeals is accordingly dismissed.

53. The accused-appellant Mahey Alam is directed to surrender before the learned trial court forthwith from where he shall be sent to jail to undergo the sentence.

54. Office is directed to send a copy of this order to the court below for communication and compliance along with lower court record.

Criminal Law-N.D.P.S. Act - Section 8/21 - Recovery of 320 gram Morphine and arrest of accused-appellant not supported by any public witness- No legal proposition that evidence of police officers, unless supported by independent witnesses, is unworthy of acceptance- If the evidence of police officer is found acceptable, it would be an erroneous proposition that court must reject prosecution version solely on the ground that no independent witness was examined- Discrepancies, variations and contradictions in prosecution case- If the same do not go to the root of case then accused-appellant is not entitled to get benefit of the same - Police informed the accused-appellant that he has legal right to be searched before gazetted officer but he did not require so and on the consent given by accused-appellant, police searched accused-appellant, recovery of contraband was made and police prepared recovery memo thereof - Cannot be said that mandatory provision of N.D.P.S. Act has not been complied with by police. The measure of punishment should be proportionate to gravity of offence- Punishment awarded to accused-appellant by Trial Court is not excessive and is fit and proper.

A. Evidence law-Indian Evidence Act 1872- Section 3, Section 118- Only Police Officers as witnesses- No legal proposition that evidence of police officers, unless supported by independent witnesses, is unworthy of acceptance.

Where the evidence of police officers is found to be credible then the Court can rely upon the same even though no independent witnesses have been examined.

B. Indian Evidence Act,1872- Section 155- If the discrepancies, variations and contradictions in the prosecution case do not go to the root of the case, then the accused is not entitled to get benefit of the same.

C. Criminal Law-NDPS Act- Section 50- Search by police officers- Police informed the accused-appellant that he has legal right to be searched before gazetted officer but he did not require so and on the consent given by accused-appellant, police searched accused-appellant- No illegality.

Where the accused refused to get himself searched before a gazetted officer and consented to be searched by the police officers, then it cannot be said that the requirements of Section 50 of the NDPS Act have not been complied with. (Para 16, 17, 23, 28, 32)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajendra Kumar-IV, J.)

1. This criminal appeal has been directed against the judgement and order dated 19.4.2007 passed by Additional Sessions Judge (F.T.C.) No. 28, Barabanki in S.T. No. 98 of 2003 (Case No. 8 of 2003), State vs. Manoj Kumar Verma, under Section 8/21 N.B.P.S. Act, whereby trial court convicted the accused-appellant under Section 8/21 N.D.P.S. Act, sentencing him to undergo 10 years rigorous imprisonment with fine of Rs. 1,00,000/- and in default of payment of fine, he shall further undergo one year additional rigorous imprisonment.

2. Brief facts of the prosecution case which need to be noted for disposal of the present appeal which are as under :-

(i) On 9.1.2003, S.I. Narendra Pratap Singh, In-Charge out post Ganeshpur along with Constable Ram Asrey Saroj, Constable Amar Chandra Shukla, Constable Ajeet Kumar Pandey and Constable Jagat Narayan Singh were going to Ram Nagar in search of wanted accused. As police party reached near Mahadeva Gate, accused appellant has seen police party coming from Mahadeva side, he turned behind and tried to run away. On being suspected as miscreant, he was apprehended at the distance of 60-70 steps by police at around 9:30 PM. On being asked his whereabouts, he disclosed his identity as Manoj Kumar Verma son of Ram Bilas Verma, resident of Bansa, Police Station Masauli, District Barabanki and told that he has Morphine in his pocket and on account of this he ran away. Police informed the accused-appellant that he has a right to be searched before any gazetted officer whereupon he answered that he does not want to go anywhere and he took out a polythene from his right pocket of pant and handed over to police disclosing that it is Morphine. Recovered Morphine was taken into custody and it was 320 gram, which was properly sealed by police and mandatory provision of N.D.P.S. was complied with. Recovery memo Ex.Ka-3 was prepared by police party on spot.

3. On the basis of recovery memo Ex.Ka-3, Chick F.I.R. Ex.Ka-2 was registered in the police station concerned against the accused and entry was made in general diary, copy whereof is on file.

4. PW-4, S.I. Suresh Chandra Sen undertook the investigation of case, visited stop, prepared site plan Ex.Ka-6 and completing entire formalities of investigation, submitted charge sheet against the accused-appellant under Section 8/21 N.D.P.S. Act before the Court.

5. Trial Court, considering the evidence collected by Investigating Officer, framed charges against accused-appellant on 17.12.2008 under Section 8/21 N.D.P.S. Act to which accused-appellant denied, pleaded not guilty and claimed trial.

6. In order to substantiate its case, prosecution examined as many as five witnesses out of whom PW-2- Constable Amar Chandra Shukla, PW-3 S.I. Narendra Pratap are the witnesses of fact and rest PW-1 Constable Omkar Nath, PW-4 S.I. Suresh Chandra Sen and PW-5 Pawan Kumar Singh are the formal witnesses.

7. Subsequent to closure of prosecution evidence, Trial Court recorded statement of accused-appellant under Section 313 Cr.P.C. explaining all incriminating and other evidence and circumstances. In the statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C., accused denied prosecution story in toto and subsequently stated that he was arrested by police from his shop at about 9:00 PM and booked behind the Bar. Nothing has been recovered from his possession.

8. Trial court after appriciating the evidence of prosecution and hearing of both the parties, convicted and sentenced the accused-appellant as stated above.

9. I have heard Sri Santosh Kumar Srivastava, learned Amicus Curiae for the appellant and Smt. Parul Kant, learned AGA for the State at length and have gone through the record available on file with the valuable assistance of learned counsel for the parties.

10. Learned Amicus Curiae for appellant submits that the accused-appellant is innocent and has been falsely implicated in the present case by police. Nothing has been recovered from his possession. There is no public witness at the time of arrest of appellant. Mandatory provision of N.D.P.S. has not been complied with by the police and search was not made before any gazetted officer. There are several contradiction in the statement of witness produced by prosecution. Trial Court did not appreciate the entire evidence in right perspective.

11. On the other hand, learned AGA for the State submits that from the possession of accused-appellant, 320 gram Morphine has been recovered for which he has no valid lincense. He has been arrested by police on spot with contraband materials in so huge quantity. The said contraband material cannot be easily planted by police. It has been further submitted that recovery happens to be made at 9:30 PM, so it was not possible to police to take public witness. Since the accused-appellant himself denied to be searched before any gazetted officer, therefore, police did not take him before any gazetted officer but recovery was made by police in compliance of mandatory provision of N.D.P.S. Act. Prosecution has been fully successful in proving its case beyond reasonable doubt and trial court has rightly convicted and sentenced the accused-appellant.

12. Now, I may proceed to consider rival submissions of learned counsel for the parties and, briefly, evidence of prosecution and some important decisions.

13. PW-2 Constable Amar Chandra Shukla deposed that on 9.1.2003, he was posted as Constable in Police Station Ram Nagar, District Barabanki and was accompanied to S.I. Narendra Pratap Singh and other constables. When he reached near Mahadeva Gate, they saw a person coming from Mahadeva Gate. Seeing the police party, he returned behind and started running back. On being suspected as miscreant, police party apprehended him at the distance of 60-70 steps at about 9:30 P.M. On being asked his name, he disclosed his identity as Manoj Kumar Verma and told that he has Morphine with him. S.I. Narendra Pratap Singh informed the accused that he has a right to be searched before any gazetted officer and he may be taken for search but he refused to go anywhere and handed over to police a polythine of Morphine taking it out from the pocket of his pant. On the consent given by accused, search of accused was made and from his possession of 320 gram Morphin was found, for which he had no valid license. Recovery memo thereof was prepared in accordance with law. Mandatory provision of N.D.P.S. Act was complied with. Police tried for public witness but nobody was ready to be a witness. Recovery memo Ex.Ka-3 and consent letter of accused-appellant Ex.Ka-4 were prepared on spot which contained a signature of accused.

14. PW-3 S.I. Narendra Pratap Singh deposed that he along with other police officials were going to Ram Nagar in search of wanted accused, when they reached near Mahadeva Gate, accused-appellant has seen the police party coming from Mahadeva Gate, he turned behind and tried to run back. On being suspected, he was apprehended by police at the distance of 60-70 steps at around 9:30 PM. On being questioned, he disclosed his identity as Manoj Kumar Verma, resident of Bansa, Police Station Masauli, District Barabanki, who told that he has some Morphine and due to fear he was running. He (PW-3) informed the accused that he has a right to be searched before any gazetted officer but accused-appellant refused to go anywhere and he took out Morphine rapped in polythine from his right pocket of his pant for which he had no valid license. Recovered Morphine was weighd and found 320 grams. Recovered material was sealed and recovery memo thereof was prepared on spot. Signature of accused was also taken on the recovery memo Ex.Ka-4.

15. PW-2 and 3 withstood sufficient lengthy cross-examination by defence but nothing adverse material could be brought so as to disbelieve their statement.

16. Admittedly, recovery and arrest of accused-appellant is not supported by any public witness for which witnesses explained that they tried the public to be witness of incident but due to fear of evil, nobdoy came forward to be witness. It is settled that generally, no public witness comes forward to be a witness against the criminals.

17. As a matter of rule, there can be no legal proposition that evidence of police officers, unless supported by independent witnesses, is unworthy of acceptance. Non-examination of independent witness or even presence of such witness during police raid would cast an added duty on the court to adopt greater care while scrutinising the evidence of the police officers. If the evidence of police officer is found acceptable, it would be an erroneous proposition that court must reject prosecution version solely on the ground that no independent witness was examined.

18. In Pradeep Narayan Madqaonkar & others vs. State of Maharashtra 1995 (4) SCC 255, it was held:

"Indeed, the evidence of the official (police) witnesses cannot be discarded merely on the ground that they belong to the police force and are, either interested in the investigation of the prosecuting agency but prudence dictates that their evidence needs to be subjected to strict scrutiny and as far as possible corroboration of their evidence in material particulars should be sought. Their desire to see the success of the case based on their investigation, requires greater care to appreciate their testimony."

19. In Balbir Singh vs. State 1996 (11) SCC 139, the Court has repelled a similar contention based on non-examination of independent witnesses. The same legal position has been reiterated time and again by Apex Court vide Paras Ram vs. State of Haryana 1992 (4) SCC 662, Sama Alana Abdulla vs. State of Gujarat 1996 (1) SCC 427, Anil alias Andya Sadashiv Nandoskar vs. State of Maharashtra 1996 (2) SCC 589.

20. In Subhash Singh Thakurshyam vs State (Through CBI) (1997) 8 SCC 732, a Two Judge Bench of the Apex Court comprising of Hon'ble M. Mukherjee and Hon'ble K. Thomas JJ, in para 90 observed:

"....We should not forget that the time of the raid was during the odd hours when possibly no pedestrian would have been trekking on the road nor any shopkeeper remaining in his shop nor a hawker moving around on the pavements."

21. In State of U.P. v. Zakaullah 1998 Cri. L.J. 863 in para-10, it is said:

"The necessity for "independent witness" in cases involving police raid or police search is incorporated in the statute not for the purpose of helping the indicted person to bypass the evidence of those panch witnesses who have had some acquaintance with the police or officers conducting the search at some time or the other. Acquaintance with the police by itself would not destroy a man's independent outlook. In a society where police involvement is a regular phenomenon many people would get acquainted with the police. But as long as they are not dependent on the police for their living or liberty or for any other matter, it cannot be said that those are not independent persons. If the police in order to carry out official duties, have sought the help of any other person he would not forfeit his independent character by giving help to police action. The requirement to have independent witness to corroborate the evidence of the police is to be viewed from a realistic angle. Every citizen of India must be presumed to be an independent person until it is proved that he was a dependent of the police or other officials for any purpose whatsoever."

22. Referring to some of the the aforesaid decisions, Court in Girja Prasad Vs. State of M.P. (2007) 7 SCC 625 held:

"It is well-settled that credibility of witness has to be tested on the touchstone of truthfulness and trustworthiness. It is quite possible that in a given case, a Court of Law may not base conviction solely on the evidence of Complainant or a Police Official but it is not the law that police witnesses should not be relied upon and their evidence cannot be accepted unless it is corroborated in material particulars by other independent evidence. The presumption that every person acts honestly applies as much in favour of a Police Official as any other person. No infirmity attaches to the testimony of Police Officials merely because they belong to Police Force. There is no rule of law which lays down that no conviction can be recorded on the testimony of Police Officials even if such evidence is otherwise reliable and trustworthy. The rule of prudence may require more careful scrutiny of their evidence. But, if the Court is convinced that what was stated by a witness has a ring of truth, conviction can be based on such evidence." (para 25)

23. In so far as discrepancies, variations and contradictions in prosecution case are concerned, I have analysed entire evidence in consonance with submissions raised by learned counsel and find that the same do not go to the root of case and accused-appellant is not entitled to get benefit of the same.

24. When such incident takes place, one cannot expect a scripted version from witnesses to show as to what actually happened and in what manner it had happened. Such minor details normally are neither noticed nor remembered by people since they are in fury of incident and apprehensive of what may happen in future. A witness is not expected to recreate a scene as if it was shot after with a scripted version but what material thing has happened that is only noticed or remembered by people and that is stated in evidence. Court has to see whether in broad narration given by witnesses, if there is any material contradiction so as to render evidence so self contradictory as to make it untrustworthy is minor variation or such omissions which do not otherwise affect trustworthiness of evidence, which is broadly consistent in statement of witnesses, is of no legal consequence and cannot defeat prosecution.

25. In Sampath Kumar v. Inspector of Police, Krishnagiri, (2012) 4 SCC 124, Court has held that minor contradictions are bound to appear in the statements of truthful witnesses as memory sometimes plays false and sense of observation differs from person to person.

26. In Sachin Kumar Singhraha v. State of Madhya Pradesh, 2019 (8) SCC 371, Supreme Court has observed that Court will have to evaluate evidence before it keeping in mind the rustic nature of depositions of the villagers, who may not depose about exact geographical locations with mathematical precision. Discrepancies of this nature which do not go to the root of the matter do not obliterate otherwise acceptable evidence. It need not be stated that it is by now well settled that minor variations should not be taken into consideration while assessing the reliability of witness testimony and the consistency of the prosecution version as a whole.

27. We lest not forget that no prosecution case is foolproof and the same is bound to suffer from some lacuna or the other. It is only when such lacunae are on material aspects going to the root of the matter, it may have bearing on the outcome of the case, else such shortcomings are to be ignored. (See Smt. Shamim v. State of (NCT of Delhi), 2018 (10) SCC 509)

28. Evidently, recovery and arrest of accused happens suddenly at about 9:30 PM and it was winter season. Police informed the accused-appellant that he has legal right to be searched before gazetted officer but he did not require so and he had given a consent to be searched by police and on the consent given by accused-appellant, police took search of accused-appellant, recovery of contraband was made and police prepared recovery memo thereof. Thus, it cannot be said that mandatory provision of N.D.P.S. Act has not been complied with by police.

29. F.S.L. report Ex.Ka-12 reveals that on examination of sample, it was found Heroin and accused-appellant commented nothing on F.S.L. report. In statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. he simply stated that nothing has been recovered from his possession. He did not choos to adduse any defence to discedit F.S.L. report.

30. In view of facts and legal position discussed hereinabove, I find that Trial Court has rightly analyzed evidence led by prosecution and found accused guilty and convicted him for an offence punishable under Section 8/21 N.D.P.S. Act. Conviction and sentenced awarded by Trial Court is liable to be maintained and confirmed. No interference is warranted by this Court. Criminal appeal lacks merit and liable to be dismissed.

31. So far as sentencing of accused-appellant is concerned, it is always a difficult task requiring balance of various considerations. The question of awarding sentence is a matter of discretion to be exercised on consideration of circumstances aggravating and mitigating in individual cases.

32. It is settled legal position that appropriate sentence should be awarded after giving due consideration to the facts and circumstances of each case, nature of offence and the manner in which it was executed or committed. The measure of punishment should be proportionate to gravity of offence. Object of sentencing should be to protect society and to deter the criminal in achieving avowed object of law. Further, it is expected that courts would operate the sentencing system so as to impose such sentence which reflects conscience of society and sentencing process has to be stern where it should be. The Court will be failing in its duty if appropriate punishment is not awarded for a crime which has been committed not only against individual victim but also against society to which criminal and victim belong. Punishment to be awarded for a crime must not be irrelevant but it should conform to and be consistent with the atrocity and brutality which the crime has been perpetrated, enormity of crime warranting public abhorrence and it should 'respond to the society's cry for justice against the criminal'. [Vide: Sumer Singh vs. Surajbhan Singh and others, (2014) 7 SCC 323, Sham Sunder vs. Puran, (1990) 4 SCC 731, M.P. v. Saleem, (2005) 5 SCC 554, Ravji v. State of Rajasthan, (1996) 2 SCC 175].

33. Hence, applying the principles laid down in the aforesaid judgments and having regard to the totality of facts and circumstances of case, nature of offence and the manner in which it was executed or committed, I find that punishment awarded to accused-appellant by Trial Court in impugned judgment and order is not excessive and it appears fit and proper and no question arises to interfere in the matter on the point of punishment imposed upon him.

34. Appeal lacks merit and is hereby dismissed.

35. Lower Court record along with a copy of this judgment be sent immediately to Trial Court for compliance.

36. Before parting, I provide that Sri Santosh Kumar Srivastava Advocate, Amicus Curiae for accused-appellant, shall be paid counsel's fee as Rs. 10,000/- for his valuable assistance. State Government is directed to ensure payment of aforesaid fee through Legal Remembrancer, Lucknow, without any delay and, in any case, within one month from the date of receipt of copy of this judgment.

Criminal Appeal No. 1733 of 2012

Phool Chandra ...Appellant
Versus
State of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellant:
Afzaal Tariq Khan, Dinesh Kr. Sharma, Rajesh Kumar Dwivedi, S.H. Ibrahim, Saurabh Shankar Srivastav

Counsel for the Respondent:
Govt. Advocate

A. Criminal Law-Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973- Section 313 - Charge framed u/s 306 IPC but conviction u/s 302 IPC while acquittal u/s 306 IPC- Those circumstances which have not been placed before the appellant at the time of recording of his statement under Section 313 of the Cr.P.C and regarding which no opportunity has been provided to him to explain could not be used against him- Even the question and evidence pertaining to the fact that death of the deceased has been caused by appellant has not been placed before the appellant - He could not have been convicted for the offence under Section 302 I.P.C. Appellant was also charged under section 306 of the IPC. - It was amply clear to the appellant that he is being tried for offence u/s 306 of the IPC and questions pertaining to committing this offence has also been put to him at the time of recording his statement under section 313 of Cr.P.C. He could not claim any prejudice or failure of justice if he is convicted for committing the offence under section 306 I.P.C.

An accused cannot be convicted of an offence regarding which he has neither been charged nor circumstances pertaining to which have been put to him under section 313 of the Cr.Pc.but he can be convicted alternately of the offence with which he was charged with and the same would not result in any prejudice

B. Criminal law-Indian Penal Code, 1860- Section 107/ 306- A person can be said to have instigated another person, when he actively suggests or stimulates him by means of language, direct or indirect. Instigate means to urge forward or to provoke, incite or encourage to do an act. The circumstances proved that the appellant was regularly beating the deceased and before her death the appellant again assaulted the deceased with fists and kicks and which therefore, left no room for the deceased except to take the extreme step of suicide.

The necessary ingredient to bring home the charge of abetment of suicide is instigation of a person to do the act.

The appeal is partly allowed. The conviction of the appellant under Section 302 and 201 of the I.P.C. is set-aside and he is acquitted of the charges under Section 302 and 201 I.P.C. Appellant is however now convicted for committing the offence under Section 306 I.P.C.and Section 498-A ,I.P.C.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mohd. Faiz Alam Khan, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the appellant and learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

2. This criminal appeal has been filed by appellant- Phool Chandra under Section 374 (2) of the Code of Criminal Procedure against the judgment and order dated 09.11.2012 passed by Additional Session Judge, Court-8, Barabanki in Sessions Trial No.163 of 2011, "State Vs. Phool Chandra", arising out of Case Crime No.1634 of 2010, under Sections 498A, 306, 302 and 201 of I.P.C., Police Station Deva, District Barabanki, whereby the appellant has been convicted under Section 302, 201 and 498A of I.P.C. with fine stipulation.

Brief facts which are necessary for the disposal of this appeal are that a written application on 27.10.2010 was given at 4:30 P.M. at Police Station - Kotwali Deva, District - Barabanki by Smt. Pushpa Devi stating therein that her daughter Neelam was married about 11 years ago to one Phool Chandra, R/o Village - Raindua Garhi, Police Station - Deva, District - Barabanki. Her husband, mother-in-law and father-in-law used to beat her and treat her with cruelty for demand of dowry for which she had filed a criminal case, however, a compromise was filed therein and Phool Chandra took her daughter with him after three days of Holi. Since then her daughter Neelam was living in her matrimonial home. Accused persons used to beat her on the pretext that she had subjected them to the process of Court.

It was also stated that on 19.10.2010, Phool Chandra and others beat her daughter and also threatened her of dire consequences. The incident was seen by her relative Pyara Devi. On 24.10.2010 at about 11.30 A.M. Phool Chandra, Kalawati, Kandhai Lal, Sushil, Lallu and Shushma assaulted her daughter and threw her in Indira Canal and her dead body has been recovered from Police Station - Gosaiganj, Lucknow.

It was further stated in the written application by Smt. Pushpa Devi that at the time of "Maar-Peet" her sister Pyara Devi and his son Munnu tried to intervene but they were also assaulted by the accused persons. The three daughters of the deceased, namely, Prachi, Ruchi and Pooja had also seen the incident and they had also been beaten by Phool Chandra.

3. On the basis of this written information, an F.I.R. (Exhibit ka-4) was registered as Case Crime No.1634 of 2010, under Sections- 498A and 304B at Police Station- Deva, District- Barabanki against the accused persons and entry of the substance of the application was also made in the General Diary (Exhibit ka-5). Investigation of the case was entrusted to the Circle Officer City, namely, Sri Dipendra Chaudhary.

Prior to the above information made by Smt. Puspa Devi at Police Station- Deva, Barabanki, a Village Chowkidar of Charaiya Village, namely, Sardar Singh, when he was going to ease himself at Indira Canal, saw that the dead body of a woman had been trapped in the bushes and most of its part was in water. He informed the concerned police station, i.e., Gosaiganj on 27.10.2010 at about 3:10 P.M. and his information was registered in the General Diary of the police station.

4. On being informed, the dead body was identified by the mother of the deceased and inquest was done by Sub-Inspector R.P. Pandey of Police Station- Gosaiganj at about 3:50 P.M. on 27.10.2010. He also prepared Chitti C.M.O. (Exhibit ka-6), Photo laash (Exhibit ka-7), Chitti R.I. (Exhibit ka-8) and sample seal (Exhibit ka-9) for the purpose of post-morterm and also forwarded the dead body for post-morterm in the custody of Constables Paras Nath and Raj Bahadur.

5. Post-morterm on the dead body of the deceased Neelam was performed by P.W.2- Dr. Vinod Kumar Verma at District Mortuary Lucknow on 28.10.2010 at 11:10 A.M. The dead body of the deceased was found to be of average built, post-morterm staining could not be seen due to advance decomposition, skin was peeled at places, skull hair were easily detachable, maggots about 1cm. long were crawling all over face and following injuries were found on her person:-

(II) Injury No.2:- Contusion 4cm. × 3cm. on left side of occipital region.

On opening ecchymosis was found present underneath all above injuries. Linear fracture was also found present on right side of frontal bone, subdural haemetoma was present all over brain and brain was liquified. Greenish discoloration was also found present on iliac fossae.

On internal examination membranes, brain, lungs, spleen and kidneys were found congested. Left chamber of the heart was found empty while right was full. 125ml. fluid was found in stomach. In small intestine digested food and gases and in large intestine faecal matter and gases were found. Gall-bladder was found half full. Death of the deceased was stated to have occurred due to coma as a result of anti-morterm injury.

P.W.2- Dr. Vinod Kumar Verma in his evidence recorded before the trial court has stated that injury no.2 was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death and the same might have been caused on 24.10.2010 at about 11:30 A.M. He was further of the view that, as the water has not been found in the lungs, the deceased did not die of drowning. He proved post-morterm report in his writing and signatures as (Exhibit ka-1). In his cross-examination, he stated that these injuries may also be caused by hitting the stone and the time of death, written as three days in the post-morterm report, may be one day less or more.

6. The investigation of the case was eventually transferred to P.W.7- Sub-Inspector Santosh Singh, who prepared the Site Plan (Exhibit ka-10) on the pointing of informant Pushpa Devi. He also recorded the statement of Monu Kumar s/o Amarnath, Omkar s/o Ram Lakhan and Manoj Kumar and after finding sufficient evidence against appellant submitted the charge-sheet (Exhibit ka-11) against him. On the case being committed to Session Court, charges under Section 306, 498A I.P.C. and an alternative charge under Section 302 and 201 I.P.C. was framed against appellant, who denied the charges and claimed trial.

7. The prosecution in order to bring home the charges against the appellant produced following documentary evidence:-

(i) Post-morterm Report (Exhibit ka-1), (ii) Inquest Report (Exhibit ka-2), (iii) Written Application (Exhibit ka-3), (iv) Chik F.I.R. (Exhibit ka-4), (v) Copy of G.D. Qayami (Exhibit ka-5), (vi) Chitti C.M.O. (Exhibit ka-6), (vii) Photo laash (Exhibit ka-7), (viii) Chitti R.I. (Exhibit ka-8), (ix) Sample of seal (Exhibit ka-9), (x) Site Plan (Exhibit ka-10) and (xi) Charge-sheet (Exhibit ka-11).

8. Apart from the above documentary evidences, prosecution also testified following witnesses in its support:-

(I) P.W.1- Smt. Pyara Devi (informant)

(ii) P.W.2- Dr. Vinod Kumar Verma (who conducted the post-morterm)

(iii) P.W.3- Pushpa Devi (eye-witness)

(iv) P.W.4- Constable Sri Ramayan (ascribe of the F.I.R. and G.D.)

(v) P.W.5- S.I. Javed Khan (First Investigating Officer)

(vi) P.W.6- Constable Paras Nath of P.S.- Gosaiganj

(vii) P.W.7- S.I. Santosh Kumar Singh (Second Investigating Officer)

(viii) P.W.8- Chowkidar Sardar Singh (Village Chowkidar, who informed about the dead body)

9. The trial court after appreciating the evidence available on record came to the conclusion that prosecution has been able to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt pertaining to the charges under Sections 302, 201 and 498A I.P.C. and, therefore, convicted the appellant- Phool Chandra for the same. However, the trial court was of the view that the prosecution has failed to prove the charge under Section 306 I.P.C. and, therefore, acquitted the appellant of the same.

10. The appellant being aggrieved by the judgment and order of the trial court has preferred this appeal challenging his conviction and sentence.

11. Learned counsel for the appellant submits that the trial court has committed manifest error in appreciating the evidence available on record and has convicted the appellant only on the basis of "surmises' and "conjunctures' as the prosecution has miserably failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt.

It is further submitted that in the facts and circumstances of the case, P.W.1- Pyara Devi does not appear to be an eye-witness of the alleged incident as she, in her statement, has stated that she went to the house of appellant on the fateful day for the first time. Highlighting the above statement of P.W.1- Pyara Devi , it is submitted that the testimony of this witness pertaining to the fact that she witnessed Phool Chandra beating the deceased on the fateful day could not be believed and, therefore, no burden by virtue of Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act could be placed on the appellant to explain the specific facts within his knowledge.

It is also submitted that the investigating officer of the case after thorough investigation found the case of the appellant under Section 306 of the I.P.C. and the trial court, without any additional evidence placed before it, framed an alternative charge under Section 302 I.P.C. and has also convicted the appellant for the same.

It is also submitted that the case of the prosecution, as placed through its witnesses, will not travel beyond Section 306 of the I.P.C. and, therefore, the trial court has made an apparent error in convicting the appellant under Section 302 I.P.C.

It is also submitted that the settled law pertaining to the appreciation of evidence with regard to the cases based on circumstantial evidence is that all the circumstances should be proved separately, there must be a chain of circumstances and they should be so inter-connected that they will not leave any doubt in the mind of a prudent person that the offence has been committed by the accused and, in any case, the only hypothesis which may borne out of the facts, to be proved by the prosecution, should be that the crime has been committed by the accused and accused only. It has been argued that in the instant case the chain of events is broken. The principle under Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act could not be invoked against the appellant by virtue of unreliable testimony of P.W.1- Pyara Devi and, therefore, the conviction of the appellant under Section 302 I.P.C. could not be sustained and the appellant is liable to be acquitted.

12. Learned A.G.A., however, submits that P.W.1- Pyara Devi, in the facts and circumstances of the case, is a reliable witness and she had seen the appellant beating the deceased on the fateful day at 11:00 A.M. She also stated to have gone to the house of appellant and also have seen a stick in his hand and was also pushed out of his house by appellant and thereafter could not see what had happened inside the house and, thereafter, neither the deceased was found alive nor the appellant or his family members were seen at their house, as the house was found locked from outside. Learned A.G.A. has argued that the circumstances proved by the prosecution are so inter-connected that they do not leave any room to suspect that the crime has not been committed by the appellant and, therefore, the trial court has rightly convicted the appellant under Section 302, 201 and 498A of the I.P.C. and the appeal of the appellant is liable to be rejected.

13. Having perused the record of the trial court in the background of the submissions made by learned counsel for the rival parties, it will be fruitful to scrutnize the prosecution evidence available on record.

14. P.W.1- Pyara Devi is the "mausi' of the deceased- Neelam, who was living one house away from the house of Phool Chandra. She has stated that Phool Chandra and Neelam used to quarrel and fight with each other. A criminal case was also lodged by Neelam against Phool Chandra which ended in a compromise and thereafter Phool Chandra brought back Neelam and her three daughters to his house a few days after the festival of Holi. Even after that, they both were not carrying good relations and used to fight with each other. Phool Chandra had beaten Neelam on 19th of that month on which her sister (Pushpa) came to persuade Phool Chandra not to beat Neelam. However, on 24th of the same month at about 11:00 A.M. a quarrel started between them on which she went in the house of Phool Chandra and found that he was beating Neelam with fists and kicks and he also pushed her and her son out of his house and closed the door and, thereafter she informed her sister (Pushpa), who came in the night at about 8:00 P.M., but house was found locked from outside and on the next morning they came to know that Neelam has died in the canal and her dead body was found 3-4 days after the incident in Indira Canal at a place situated within the jurisdiction of Police Station-Gosaiganj, Lucknow.

15. P.W.3- Pushpa Devi is the mother of deceased- Neelam, who appears to have corroborated the evidence of P.W.1- Pyara Devi pertaining to the regular beating of her daughter by appellant- Phool Chandra and also that on 19th October, 2010 the deceased was beaten by Phool Chandra and she came to persuade him not to beat her daughter and also that on 24th October, 2010 at about 5-5:30 P.M. Pyara Devi informed her about the fact that Neelam was brutally beaten by Phool Chandra. On hearing it, she came to the village of her daughter at about 7:00 P.M. on the same day and found that there was no person present in the house of Phool Chandra, which was locked from outside. She searched her daughter everywhere and also at the bank of canal and it was after 3-4 days that she was informed that dead body of her daughter has been found at the place falling in the jurisdiction of Police Station-Gosaiganj, Lucknow and she identified the body as of Neelam.

16. P.W.2- Dr. Vinod Kumar Verma, who has conducted the post-morterm on the body of the deceased- Neelam has proved the post-morterm report (Exhibit ka-1) under his signatures and writing. The details of post-morterm report has been elaborately mentioned in para-5 of this judgment.

17. P.W.4- Constable, Sri Ramayan has proved to have written the Chik F.I.R.

(Exhibit ka-4) and also to have made a corresponding entry in the General Diary of the police station as (Exhibit ka-5).

18. P.W.5- Sub-Inspector, Javed Khan was the Chowki In-charge of Police Station- Kursi, District- Barabanki, who stated to have recorded the statement of P.W.1- Pyara Devi and converted the investigation of the case under Section 306 I.P.C.

19. P.W.6- Constable, Paras Nath Yadav is the witness, who at relevant point of time was posted at Police Station- Gosaiganj and is stated to have received the information given by Village Chowkidar Sardar Singh pertaining to the discovery of the dead body of the deceased- Neelam. He proved the inquest report (Exhibit ka-2) in the handwriting of Sub-Inspector R.P. Pandey with whom he was posted and recognized his writing and signatures. This witness has also proved the necessary papers prepared by the above mentioned Sub-Inspector R.P. Pandey for the purpose of post-morterm (Exhibit ka-6 to 9).

20. P.W.7- Sub-Inspector, Santosh Kumar Singh is the second Investigating Officer of this case, who stated to have prepared the site plan (Exhibit ka-10) on the pointing of Pushpa Devi. He after recording the statement of the witnesses and collecting other materials submitted a charge-sheet (Exhibit ka-11) against appellant under Section 306 and 498A of the I.P.C. He also stated that initially the case was registered under Section 304B and 498A I.P.C., however, during the course of investigation the same was converted under Section 306 of the I.P.C.

21. P.W.8- Chowkidar, Sardar Singh is the person, who informed the Police Station- Gosaiganj about the dead body of the deceased- Neelam found trapped in the bushes at the bank of Indira Canal. He proved the information given by him to the Police Station- Gosaiganj.

22. The law with regard to appreciation of circumstantial evidence has been clearly enunciated in the case of Hanumant v.State of Madhya Pradesh MANU/SC/0037/1952 : wherein Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as follows:

"12 ...It is well to remember that in cases where the evidence is of a circumstantial nature, the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should in the first instance be fully established, and all the facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the Accused. Again, the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency and they should be such as to exclude every hypothesis but the one proposed to be proved. In other words, there must be a chain of evidence so far complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for a conclusion consistent with the innocence of the Accused and it must be such as to show that within all human probability the act must have been done by the Accused"

23. Hon'ble Apex Court in the case Sharad Birdhichand Sarda Vs. State of Maharashtra, AIR, 1984 SC 1622 has laid down that the following conditions must be fulfilled before a case against an accused based on circumstantial evidence can be said to be fully established;

"1. the circumstances from which the conclusion of the guilt is to be drawn should be fully established. The circumstances concerned 'must or should' and not 'may be' established.

2. the facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused, that is to say, they should not be explainable on any other hypothesis except that the accused is guilty;

3. the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency;

4. they should exclude every possible hypothesis except the one to be proved, and

5.there must be a chain of evidence so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability the act must have been done by the accused."

24. In Jaharlal Das v. State of Orissa, MANU/SC/0586/1991 : (1991) 3 SCC 27, it was held that even if the offence is a shocking one, the gravity of offence cannot by itself overweigh as far as legal proof is concerned. In cases depending highly upon the circumstantial evidence, there is always a danger that the conjecture or suspicion may take the place of legal proof. The court has to be watchful and ensure that the conjecture and suspicion do not take the place of legal proof. The court must satisfy itself that various circumstances in the chain of circumstances should be established clearly and that the completed chain must be such as to rule out a reasonable likelihood of the innocence of the Accused.

It has further been held in Para 8 of the said report that in order to sustain the conviction on the basis of circumstantial evidence, the following three conditions must be satisfied:

(i) the circumstances from which an inference of guilt is sought to be drawn, must be cogently and firmly established;

(ii) those circumstances should be of a definite tendency unerringly pointing towards the guilt of the accused; and

(iii) the circumstances, taken cumulatively, should form a chain so complete that there is no escape from the conclusion that within all human probability the crime was committed by the accused and none else, and it should also be incapable of explanation on any other hypothesis than that of the guilt of the accused.

25. In Varkey Joseph v. State of Kerala, MANU/SC/0295/1993, it was held that suspicion is not the substitute for proof. There is a long distance between 'may be true' and 'must be true' and the prosecution has to travel all the way to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt.

Therefore, keeping in view the above settled legal position the law pertaining to cases based on circumstantial evidence can be summarized in following terms:

1. The circumstances relied upon by the prosecution which lead to an inference to the guilt of the accused must be proved beyond doubt;

2. The circumstances should unerringly point towards the guilt of the accused;

3. The circumstances should be linked together in such a manner that the cumulative effect of the chain formed by joining the links is so complete that it leads to only one conclusion i.e. the guilt of the accused;

4. That there should be no probability of the crime having been committed by a person other than the Accused.

26. In Trimukh Maroti Kirkan Vs State of Maharashtra reported in MANU/SC/8543/2006, Hon'ble Supreme Court has observed as under :

"10. The demand for dowry or money from the parents of the bride has shown a phenomenal increase in last few years. Cases are frequently coming before the Courts, where the husband or in-laws have gone to the extent of killing the bride if the demand is not met. These crimes are generally committed in complete secrecy inside the house and it becomes very difficult for the prosecution to lead evidence. No member of the family, even if he is a witness of the crime, would come forward to depose against another family member. The neighbours, whose evidence may be of some assistance, are generally reluctant to depose in Court as they want to keep aloof and do not want to antagonize a neighbourhood family. The parents or other family members of the bride being away from the scene of commission of crime are not in a position to give direct evidence which may inculpate the real accused except regarding the demand of money or dowry and harassment caused to the bride. But, it does not mean that a crime committed in secrecy or inside the house should go unpunished.

11. If an offence takes place inside the privacy of a house and in such circumstances where the assailants have all the opportunity to plan and commit the offence at the time and in circumstances of their choice, it will be extremely difficult for the prosecution to lead evidence to establish the guilt of the accused if the strict principle of circumstantial evidence, as noticed above, is insisted upon by the Courts. A Judge does not preside over a criminal trial merely to see that no innocent man is punished. A Judge also presides to see that a guilty man does not escape. Both are public duties. (See Stirland v. Director of Public Prosecution 1944 AC 315 quoted with approval by Arijit Pasayat, J. in State of Punjab v. Karnail Singh MANU/SC/0585/2003 : 2003CriLJ3892). The law does not enjoin a duty on the prosecution to lead evidence of such character which is almost impossible to be led or at any rate extremely difficult to be led. The duty on the prosecution is to lead such evidence which it is capable of leading, having regard to the facts and circumstances of the case. Here it is necessary to keep in mind Section 106 of the Evidence Act which says that when any fact is especially within the knowledge of any person, the burden of proving that fact is upon him.

Illustration (b) appended to this section throws some light on the content and scope of this provision and it reads:

(b) A is charged with traveling on a railway without ticket. The burden of proving that he had a ticket is on him.

Where an offence like murder is committed in secrecy inside a house, the initial burden to establish the case would undoubtedly be upon the prosecution, but the nature and amount of evidence to be led by it to establish the charge cannot be of the same degree as is required in other cases of circumstantial evidence. The burden would be of a comparatively lighter character. In view of Section 106 of the Evidence Act there will be a corresponding burden on the inmates of the house to give a cogent explanation as to how the crime was committed. The inmates of the house cannot get away by simply keeping quiet and offering no explanation on the supposed premise that the burden to establish its case lies entirely upon the prosecution and there is no duty at all on an accused to offer any explanation."

27. Perusal of evidence of prosecution witnesses in the light of above principles would reveal that P.W.1- Pyara Devi has categorically stated that she was living only one house away from the house of Phool Chandra and since their marriage Phool Chandra and Neelam were fighting with each other as a matter of routine. A litigation was also started by Neelam when she lodged a criminal case against Phool Chandra, which was ultimately settled in a compromise. She has stated that on 19th October, 2010 Phool Chandra had beaten Neelam. The quarrel between them again started on 24th October, 2010 at about 11:00 A.M. and she went there alongwith her son Munna and saw that Phool Chandra was beating Neelam with fists and kicks and, thereafter Phool Chandra pushed her and her son out of the house and, thereafter she could not see, as to what had happened inside the house. It has been categorically stated by this witness that though Phool Chandra was having a "danda' in his hand but he was not beating Neelam with the same. She stated to have informed her sister P.W.3- Pushpa, who came in the evening and, thereafter she started searching her daughter and after 3-4 days, the dead body of Neelam was found at the bank of Indira Canal.

We have also gone through the cross-examination of this witness as she appears to be the star witness of this case and have found that in her cross-examination, she has maintained her statement of residing close to the house of Phool Chandra and also that on the fateful day after hearing noise, she went to the house of Phool Chandra and attempted to save Neelam, but after being pushed out of house she did not hear anything from the house. She has also admitted that the house of her sister P.W.3- Pushpa is 6 kos away from her village. Her sister arrived at 7:00 P.M. on the same day and after hearing some noise on next day at 8:00 A.M. she started searching her daughter. Surprisingly, this witness has stated in the end of her cross-examination that she never went to the house of Neelam for persuading her or her husband to enter into compromise or not to fight. The statement of P.W.3- Pushpa Devi would reveal that she has only stated about the maltreatment given to her daughter by appellant Phool Chandra and has stated about the incident having occurred on 19th October, 2010 when she went to the house of Phool Chandra to persuade him not to beat her daughter and, thereafter on 24th October, 2010 she stated to have received a phone call from her sister P.W.1- Pyara Devi at 5-5:30 P.M. about the incident and arrived at the village at about 7:00 P.M. and in the next morning, she started searching her daughter. Significantly, in her evidence, she has stated that Indira Canal is flowing about 100 mtr. away from the house of appellant-Phool Chandra. She also proved the recovery of the dead body of the deceased-Neelam on 27.10.2010 at about 1:30 P.M. Police Station- Gosaiganj.

28. From the statement of these two witnesses of fact, it emerges that Phool Chandra and Neelam were not carrying good relations. Earlier, a criminal case was lodged by Neelam which ended in compromise and little after Holi, Phool Chandra took Neelam and his three daughters with him. Thereafter also, there were regular fights and quarrels between them and Phool Chandra used to beat Neelam on regular basis. On 19th October, 2010, there was some quarrel between them and P.W.3- Pushpa Devi was informed about the same by P.W.1- Pyara Devi and, thereafter on 24th October, 2010 at 11:00 A.M. Phool Chandra again started beating Neelam with fists and kicks. The statement of P.W.1- Pyara Devi pertaining to the fact that she went to the house of Phool Chandra appears to be reliable in the facts and circumstances of the case and she appears to be a reliable and truthful witness.

Keeping in view her statement discussed herein above, what transpires is that P.W.1- Pyara Devi on 19th and 24th October, 2010, went to the house of Phool Chandra and has witnessed the incident of quarrel and "Maar-Peet' and thereafter she informed Pushpa Devi by telephone. Therefore, the evidence of P.W.1- Pyara Devi is also reliable with regard to the fact that there was quarrel and fight in the house of Phool Chandra on 19th and 24th October, 2010 at about 11:00 A.M. and she was pushed out by appellant and thereafter she informed P.W.3- Pushpa Devi, who came at the matrimonial house of her daughter in the evening of the same day and found that neither Neelam nor Phool Chandra or any of his housemate was available and the house was locked from outside. It is also proved on record that since the occurrence of the incident at 11:00 A.M., the appellant and his relatives were not found at their home and appellant even did not try to search the deceased.

29. At this juncture, it is also pertinent to mention that P.W.2- Dr. Vinod Kumar Verma, during the course of post-morterm, has found two contusions, one on the forehead and on the back of head (occipital region) of the deceased. Beneath both these injuries, ecchymosis was present and haemetoma was also found. According to the doctor, the death of the deceased was due to coma as a result of anti-morterm injuries. Injuries were found about three days old from before the post-morterm. According to him injury no.2 found on occipital region of the deceased was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death and also that the death of the deceased might have occurred on 24th October, 2010 at about 11:30 A.M. Significantly, he did not find any water in the lungs of the deceased and, therefore, he was of the view that deceased had not died due to drowning. It was also stated by him that this injury may be caused by hitting her head on the rocks or stone.

30. From the scanning of the prosecution evidence following circumstances appear to have been proved by the prosecution:-

(i) Deceased- Neelam was married to Phool Chandra and three daughters were born out of their wedlock.

(ii) They were not carrying good relations and deceased- Neelam had also lodged a criminal case against Phool Chandra, which ended in compromise.

(iii) Six months prior to the incident, a little after Holi, Phool Chandra brought back Neelam and his three daughters to his house.

(iv) Since the return of Neelam, Phool Chandra and Neelam again started quarreling and fighting as a matter of routine and Phool Chandra used to beat Neelam on regular basis.

(v) On 19th October, 2010, there was quarrel between Neelam and Phool Chandra and P.W.3- Pushpa Devi after being informed by P.W.1- Pyara Devi came to persuade Phool Chandra not to beat her daughter again.

(vi) On 24th October, 2010 at about 11:00 A.M., there was again a quarrel and fight between Phool Chandra and Neelam and deceased- Neelam was brutally beaten by appellant and after hearing the noise, P.W.1- Pyara Devi, who resided at a very short distance, came to the house of appellant and saw the occurrence. She was pushed out of the house by appellant. Thereafter, she informed P.W.3- Pushpa Devi, who came to village in the same evening.

(vii) Since incident, neither Neelam nor appellant was found at their house and the house was locked from outside.

(viii) The dead body of the deceased- Neelam was recovered from Indira Canal on 27.10.2010 from a place falling within the jurisdiction of Police Station- Gosaiganj.

(x) As per P.W.2- Dr. Vinod Kumar Verma, the death of the deceased had happened on account of injury found on her occipital region and not from drowning and also this fatal injury may also come from jumping on some rock.

31. In normal course, all these circumstances may point towards the hypothesis that the deceased- Neelam was done to death by Phool Chandra, but keeping in view the fact that only two injuries have been found on the head of the deceased and the injury which has been found on the occipital region has been found to be fatal and was sufficient in the natural course to cause death of deceased and P.W.2- Dr. Vinod Kumar Verma has specifically stated that the injury on the occipital region of the deceased may also be caused by jumping on some rock and in that case if the deceased might have jumped in the canal and might have hit any rock, there are chances that she might have died instantly and, therefore, no water could have been found in her lungs.

32. We are conscious of the fact that we are dealing with a case based on circumstantial evidence and the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case which have been found proved are to the effect that on that fateful day when appellant was beating the deceased with fists and kicks, P.W.1- Pyara Devi went inside the house of appellant to save the deceased. However, she was pushed out of the house by appellant and, thereafter the door of the house was closed and what happened thereafter could only be in the knowledge of deceased or the appellant and there is only circumstantial evidence available beyond this point of time. But a glaring defect which has occurred during the course of trial due to the approach of trial court is that all incriminating circumstances have not been put by the trial court before the appellant at the time of recording of his statement under Section 313 of the Cr.P.C. So much so that the trial court was so negligent that even the prosecution story pertaining to the charge under Section 302 I.P.C. causing of death of deceased by the appellant has also not been put to the appellant and only evidence pertaining to the abatement of suicide by the deceased has been put by the trial court before the appellant.

33. Hon'ble Supreme Court in Raj Kumar Singh Vs. State of Rajasthan reported in MANU/SC/0468/2013 has held as under :-

"25. In a criminal trial, the purpose of examining the accused person under Section 313 Code of Criminal Procedure, is to meet the requirement of the principles of natural justice i.e. audi alteram partem. This means that the accused may be asked to furnish some explanation as regards the incriminating circumstances associated with him, and the Court must take note of such explanation.

In a case of circumstantial evidence, the same is essential to decide whether or not the chain of circumstances is complete. No matter how weak the evidence of the prosecution may be, it is the duty of the Court to examine the accused, and to seek his explanation as regards the incriminating material that has surfaced against him. The circumstances which are not put to the accused in his examination under Section 313 Code of Criminal Procedure, cannot be used against him and have to be excluded from consideration."

"31. In Dharnidhar v. State of U.P. and Ors. MANU/SC/0480/2010 : (2010) 7 SCC 759, this Court held:

The proper methodology to be adopted by the Court while recording the statement of the accused under Section 313 Code of Criminal Procedure is to invite the attention of the accused to the circumstances and substantial evidence in relation to the offence, for which he has been charged and invite his explanation. In other words, it provides an opportunity to an accused to state before the Court as to what is the truth and what is his defence, in accordance with law. It was for the accused to avail that opportunity and if he fails to do so then it is for the Court to examine the case of the prosecution on its evidence with reference to the statement made by the accused under Section 313 Code of Criminal Procedure."

"36. In view of the above, the law on the issue can be summarised to the effect that statement under Section 313 Code of Criminal Procedure is recorded to meet the requirement of the principles of natural justice as it requires that an accused may be given an opportunity to furnish explanation of the incriminating material which had come against him in the trial. However, his statement cannot be made a basis for his conviction. His answers to the questions put to him under Section 313 Code of Criminal Procedure cannot be used to fill up the gaps left by the prosecution witnesses in their depositions. Thus, the statement of the accused is not a substantive piece of evidence and therefore, it can be used only for appreciating the evidence led by the prosecution, though it cannot be a substitute for the evidence of the prosecution. In case the prosecution's evidence is not found sufficient to sustain conviction of the accused, the inculpatory part of his statement cannot be made the sole basis of his conviction. The statement under Section 313 Code of Criminal Procedure is not recorded after administering oath to the accused. Therefore, it cannot be treated as an evidence within the meaning of Section 3 of the Evidence Act, though the accused has a right if he chooses to be a witness, and once he makes that option, he can be administered oath and examined as a witness in defence as required under Section 315 Code of Criminal Procedure.

An adverse inference can be taken against the accused only and only if the incriminating material stood fully established and the accused is not able to furnish any explanation for the same. However, the accused has a right to remain silent as he cannot be forced to become witness against himself."

34. Hon'ble Supreme Court in Shivaji Sahabrao Bobade and Ors. Vs. State of Maharashtra reported in MANU /SC /0167 /1973 has held as under :-

"It is trite law, nevertheless fundamental, that the prisoner's attention should be drawn to every inculpatory material so as to enable him to explain it. This is the basic fairness of a criminal trial and failures in this area may gravely imperil the validity of the trial itself, if consequential miscarriage of justice has flowed. However, where such an omission has occurred it does not ipso facto vitiate the proceedings and prejudice occasioned by such defect must be established by the accused. In the event of evidentiary material not being put to the accused, the court must ordinarily eschew such material from consideration. It is also open to the appellate court to call upon the counsel for the accused to show what explanation the accused has as regards the circumstances established against him but not put to him and if the accused is unable to offer the appellate court any plausible or reasonable explanation of such circumstances, the court may assume that no acceptable answer exists and that even if the accused had been questioned at the proper time in the trial court he would not have been able to furnish any good ground to get out of the circumstances on which the trial court had relied for its conviction.

In such a case, the court proceeds on the footing that though a grave irregularity has occurred as regards compliance with Section 342, Cr.P.C. the omission has not been shown to have caused prejudice to the accused.

In the present case, however, the High Court, though not the trial court has relied upon the presence of blood on the pants of the blood group of the deceased. We have not been shown what explanation the accused could have offered to this chemical finding particularly when we remember that his answer to the question regarding the human blood on the blade of the knife was 'I do not know'. Counsel for the appellants could not make out any intelligent explanation and the 'blood' testimony takes the crime closer to the accused. However, we are not inclined to rely over much on this evidentiary circumstance, although we should emphasise how this inadvertence of the trial court had led to a relevant fact being argued as unavailable to the prosecution. Great care is expected of Sessions Judges who try grave cases to collect every incriminating circumstance and put it to the accused even though at the end of a long trial the Judge may be a little fagged out."

35. In the aforesaid view of the matter, we are of the considered view that those circumstances which have not been placed before the appellant and regarding which no opportunity has been provided to him to explain could not be used against him. Thus, keeping in view the fact that even the question and evidence pertaining to the fact that death of the deceased has been caused by appellant has not been placed before the appellant, he could not have been convicted for the offence under Section 302 I.P.C.

36. Now we have to consider as to what offence has been proved to have been committed by the appellant in view of the proved circumstances. The appellant was also charged under section 306 of the IPC but has been acquitted of the same as he has been convicted for alternate charge under section 302 I.P.C. by the learned trial court.

It would be appropriate, at this stage to consider the provisions of Sections 107 and 306 of I.P.C.

Sections 306 and 107 of I.P.C. reads as under :

"S.306. Abetment of suicide:- If any person commits suicide, whoever abets the commission of such suicide, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to ten years, and shall also be liable to fine.

S.107 - Abetment of a thing:- A person abets the doing of a thing, who---

First.--Instigates any person to do that thing; or Secondly.--Engages with one or more other person or persons in any conspiracy for the doing of that thing, if an act or illegal omission lakes place in pursuance of that conspiracy, and in order to the doing of that thing; or Thirdly.--Intentionally aids, by any act or illegal omission, the doing of that thing. Explanation 1.--A person who by willful misrepresentation, or by willful concealment of a material fact which he is bound to disclose, voluntarily causes or procures, or attempts to cause or procure, a thing to be done, is said to instigate the doing of that thing."

From a reading of the Clause Firstly of Section 107 of I.P.C., it is clear that a person who instigates another to do a thing, abets him to do that thing. A person is said to instigate another when he goads, provokes, incites, urges forward or encourage another to commit a crime.

37. A serious question that has arisen in this case is whether there is any material suggesting that the appellant had incited the deceased to commit suicide?

The Supreme Court in the case of Chitresh Kumar Chopra v. State (Govt. of NCT of Delhi) reported in (2009) 16 SCC 605 while dealing with the term "instigation" has held as under:

"16. ... instigation is to goad, urge forward, provoke, incite or encourage to do 'an act'. To satisfy the requirement of 'instigation', though it is not necessary that actual words must be used to that effect or what constitutes 'instigation' must necessarily and specifically be suggestive of the consequence. Yet a reasonable certainty to incite the consequence must be capable of being spelt out. Where the accused had, by his acts or omission or by a continued course of conduct, created such circumstances that the deceased was left with no other option except to commit suicide, in which case, an 'instigation' may have to be inferred. A word uttered in a fit of anger or emotion without Motilal vs. State of M.P. intending the consequences to actually follow, cannot be said to be instigation. 17. Thus, to constitute 'instigation', a person who instigates another has to provoke, incite, urge or encourage the doing of an act by the other by 'goading' or 'urging forward'. The dictionary meaning of the word 'goad' is 'a thing that stimulates someone into action; provoke to action or reaction' ... to keep irritating or annoying somebody until he reacts....".

38. The Supreme Court in the case of Praveen Pradhan Vs. State of Uttaranchal reported in (2012) 9 SCC 734 has held as under:

"17. The offence of abetment by instigation depends upon the intention of the person who abets and not upon the act which is done by the person who has abetted. The abetment may be by instigation, conspiracy or intentional aid as provided under Section 107 IPC. However, the words uttered in a fit of anger or omission without any intention cannot be termed as instigation. (Vide: State of Punjab v. Iqbal Singh ((1991) 3 SCC 1), Surender v. State of Haryana ((2006) 12 SCC 375, Kishori Lal v. State of M.P.((2007) 10 SCC 797) and Sonti Rama Krishna v. Sonti Shanti Sree ((2009) 1 SCC 554)

18. In fact, from the above discussion it is apparent that instigation has to be gathered from the circumstances of a particular case. No straitjacket formula can be laid down to find out as to whether in a particular case there has been instigation which forced the person to commit suicide. In a particular case, there may not be direct evidence in regard to instigation which may have direct nexus to suicide. Therefore, in such a case, an inference has to be drawn from the circumstances and it is to be determined whether circumstances had been such which in fact had created the situation that a person felt totally frustrated and committed suicide. More so, while dealing with an application for quashing of the proceedings, a court cannot form a firm opinion, rather a tentative view that would evoke the presumption referred to under Section 228 CrPC."

39. The Supreme Court in the case of Sanju @ Sanjay Singh Sengar Vs. State of M.P. reported in (2002) 5 SCC 371 has held as under:

"6. Section 107 IPC defines abetment to mean that a person abets the doing of a thing if he firstly, instigates any person to do that thing; or secondly, engages with one or more other person or persons in any conspiracy for the doing of that thing, if an act or illegal omission takes place in pursuance of that conspiracy, and in order to the doing of that thing; or thirdly, intentionally aids, by any act or illegal omission, the doing of that thing." Further, in para 12 of the judgment, it is held as under: "The word "instigate" denotes incitement or urging to do some drastic or inadvisable action or to stimulate or incite. Presence of mens rea, therefore, is the necessary concomitant of instigation." The Supreme Court in the case of Gangula Mohan Reddy Vs. State of A.P. reported in (2010) I SCC 750 needs mentioned here. In which Hon'ble Apex Court has held that: "abetment involves a mental process of instigating a person or intentionally aiding a person in doing of a thing - Without a positive act on part of accused to instigate or aid in committing suicide, conviction cannot be sustained - In order to convict a person under section 306 IPC, there has to be a clear mens rea to commit offence - It also requires an active act or direct act which leads deceased to commit suicide seeing no option and this act must have been intended to push deceased into such a position that he commits suicide - Also, reiterated, if it appears to Court that a victim committing suicide was hypersensitive to ordinary petulance, discord and differences in domestic life quite common to society to which victim belonged and such petulance, discord and differences were not expected to induce a similarly circumstances individual in a given society to commit suicide, conscience of Court should not be satisfied for basing a finding that accused charged of abetting suicide should be found guilty- Herein, deceased was undoubtedly hypersensitive to ordinary petulance, discord circumstances of case, none of the ingredients of offence under Section 306 made out - Hence, appellant's conviction, held unsustainable".

40. In the case of State of W.B. Vs. Ori lal Jaiswal, reported in 1994 (1) SCC 73, the Supreme Court has held as under:-

"This Court has cautioned that the Court should be extremely careful in assessing the facts and circumstances of each case and the evidence adduced in the trial for the purpose of finding whether the cruelty meted out to the victim had in fact induced her to end the life by committing suicide. If it appears to the Court that a victim committing suicide was hypersensitive to ordinary petulance, discord and differences in domestic life quite common to the society to which the victim belonged and such petulance, discord and differences were not expected to induce a similarly circumstanced individual in a given society to commit suicide, the conscience of the Court should not be satisfied for basing a finding that that accused charged of abetting the offence of suicide should be found guilty".

41. The Supreme Court in the case of Kishori Lal vs. State of M.P. reported in (2007) 10 SCC 797 has held in para 6 as under:-

"6. Section 107 IPC defines abetment of a thing. The offence of abetment is a separate and distinct offence provided in IPC. A person, abets the doing of a thing when (1) he instigates any person to do that thing; or (2) engages with one or more other persons in any conspiracy for the doing of that thing; or (3) intentionally aids, by act or illegal omission, the doing of that thing. These things are essential to complete abetment as a crime. The word "instigate" literally means to provoke, incite, urge on or bring about by persuasion to do any thing. The abetment may be by instigation, conspiracy or intentional aid, as provided in the three clauses of Section 107. Section 109 provides that if the act abetted is committed in consequence of abetment and there is no provision for the punishment of such abetment, then the offender is to be punished with the punishment provided for the original offence. "Abetted" in Section 109 Motilal vs. State of M.P. means the specific offence abetted. Therefore, the offence for the abetment of which a person is charged with the abetment is normally linked with the proved offence."

42. In the case of Amalendu Pal @ Jhantu vs. State of West Bengal reported in (2010) 1 SCC 707, the Supreme Court has held as under:-

"12. Thus, this Court has consistently taken the view that before holding an accused guilty of an offence under Section 306 IPC, the Court must scrupulously examine the facts and circumstances of the case and also assess the evidence adduced before it in order to find out whether the cruelty and harassment meted out to the victim had left the victim with no other alternative but to put an end to her life. It is also to be borne in mind that in cases of alleged abetment of suicide there must be proof of direct or indirect acts of incitement to the commission of suicide. Merely on the allegation of harassment without their being any positive action proximate to the time of occurrence on the part of the accused which led or compelled the person to commit suicide, conviction in terms of Section 306 IPC is not sustainable.

13. In order to bring a case within the purview of Section 306 IPC there must be a case of suicide and in the commission of the said offence, the person who is said to have abetted the commission of suicide must have played an active role by an act of instigation or by doing certain act to facilitate the commission of suicide. Therefore, the act of abetment by the person charged with the said offence must be proved and established by the prosecution before he could be convicted under Section 306 IPC. 14. The expression 'abetment' has been defined under Section 107 IPC which we have already extracted above. A person is Motilal vs. State of M.P. said to abet the commission of suicide when a person instigates any person to do that thing as stated in clause firstly or to do anything as stated in clauses secondly or thirdly of Section 107 IPC. Section 109 IPC provides that if the act abetted is committed pursuant to and in consequence of abetment then the offender is to be punished with the punishment provided for the original offence. Learned counsel for the respondent State, however, clearly stated before us that it would be a case where clause 'thirdly' of Section 107 IPC only would be attracted. According to him, a case of abetment of suicide is made out as provided for under Section 107 IPC.

15. In view of the aforesaid situation and position, we have examined the provision of clause thirdly which provides that a person would be held to have abetted the doing of a thing when he intentionally does or omits to do anything in order to aid the commission of that thing. The Act further gives an idea as to who would be intentionally aiding by any act of doing of that thing when in Explanation 2 it is provided as follows: "Explanation 2.- Whoever, either prior to or at the time of the commission of an act, does anything in order to facilitate the commission of that act, and thereby facilitates the commission thereof, is said to aid the doing of that act." 16. Therefore, the issue that arises for our consideration is whether any of the aforesaid clauses namely firstly alongwith explanation 1 or more particularly thirdly with Explanation 2 to Section 107 is attracted in the facts and circumstances of the present case so as to bring the present case within the purview of Section 306 IPC."

43. The Supreme Court in the case of Amit Kapur Vs. Ramesh Chander reported in (2012) 9 SCC 460 has held as under :

"35. The learned counsel appearing for the appellant has relied upon the judgment of this Court in Chitresh Kumar Chopra v. State (Govt. of NCT of Delhi) ((2009) 16 SCC 605 to contend that the offence under Section 306 read with Section 107 IPC is completely made out against the accused. It is not the stage for us to consider or evaluate or marshal the records for the purposes of determining whether the offence under these provisions has been committed or not. It is a tentative view that the Court forms on the basis of record and documents annexed therewith. No doubt that the word "instigate" used in Section 107 IPC has been explained by this Court in Ramesh Kumar v. State of Chhattisgarh ((2001) 9 SCC 618) to say that where the accused had, by his acts or omissions or by a continued course of conduct, created such circumstances that the deceased was left with no other option except to commit suicide, an instigation may have to be inferred. In other words, instigation has to be gathered from the circumstances of the case. All cases may not be of direct evidence in regard to instigation having a direct nexus to the suicide. There could be cases where the circumstances created by the accused are such that a person feels totally frustrated and finds it difficult to continue existence."

44. In the case of Ghusabhai Raisangbhai Chorasiya v. State of Gujarat, reported in (2015) 11 SCC

753, the Supreme Court has held as under :

"21. Coming to the facts of the present case, it is seen that the factum of divorce has not been believed by the learned trial Judge and the High Court. But the fact remains is that the husband and the wife had started living separately in the same house and the Motilal vs. State of M.P. deceased had told her sister that there was severance of status and she would be going to her parental home after the "Holi" festival. True it is, there is some evidence about the illicit relationship and even if the same is proven, we are of the considered opinion that cruelty, as envisaged under the first limb of Section 498-A IPC would not get attracted. It would be difficult to hold that the mental cruelty was of such a degree that it would drive the wife to commit suicide. Mere extra- marital relationship, even if proved, would be illegal and immoral, as has been said in Pinakin Mahipatray Rawal (2013) 10 SCC 48 ,but it would take a different character if the prosecution brings some evidence on record to show that the accused had conducted in such a manner to drive the wife to commit suicide. In the instant case, the accused may have been involved in an illicit relationship with Appellant 4, but in the absence of some other acceptable evidence on record that can establish such high degree of mental cruelty, the Explanation to Section 498-A IPC which includes cruelty to drive a woman to commit suicide, would not be attracted."

45. Therefore, it is clear that a person can be said to have instigated another person, when he actively suggests or stimulates him by means of language, direct or indirect. Instigate means to urge forward or to provoke, incite or encourage to do an act. If the facts of the instant case are considered in the light of the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the above mentioned cases, then it would appear that PW-1 Pyara Devi has stated in her evidence that Phool Chandra and Neelam used to quarrel and appellant used to beat her on regular basis . A criminal case was also lodged by Neelam against Phool Chandra which had ended in compromise and thereafter Phool Chandra brought back Neelam and her three daughters to his house a few days after Holi. Even after that they both were not carrying good relations and they used to fight with each other. Phool Chandra was in a habit of beating Neelam on regular basis and had also beaten her on 19th of that month, on which her sister (Pushpa) came to persuade Phool Chandra not to beat Neelam again. However, on 24th of the same month at about 11:00 A.M. a quarrel started between them and on hearing the noise, she went in the house of Phool Chandra and found that he was brutally beating Neelam with fists and kicks. When she attempted to save Neelam she along with her son was pushed out of his house by appellant and he closed the door of the house and, thereafter she informed her sister (Pushpa), who came in the night at about 8:00 P.M., but the house of Phool Chandra was found locked from outside and on the next morning they came to know that Neelam had died in the canal and her dead body was found 3-4 days after the incident in Indira Canal at a place situated within the jurisdiction of Police Station-Gosaiganj, Lucknow.

46. We have already held that keeping in view the fact that vital incrimating circumstances pertaining to commission of murder of Neelam has not been put to appellant by the trial Court and otherwise also having carefully perused the evidence adduced by the prosecution and other circumstances of the case, we are of the considered view that the prosecution has not succeeded in establishing the charge under Section 302 IPC against the appellant. But this is not the case pertaining to the charge for the offence under Section 306 I.P.C. as it was amply clear to the appellant that he is being tried for this offence and questions pertaining to committing this offence has also been put to him at the time of recording his statement under section 313 of Cr.P.C. and therefore he could not claim any prejudice or failure of justice if he is convicted for committing the offence under section 306 I.P.C. The facts and circumstances available on record particularly the evidence of P.W.1- Pyara Devi when she stated in her cross-examination that "अभियुक्त के घर ताला पड़ा था। हम लोग रात भर परेशान रहे थे। सवेरे लगभग आठ बजे खबर लगी कि नीलम खत्म हो गयी, नीलम नहर मे चली गयी।" and also the statement appearing in her cross-examination that "सुबह आठ बजे हल्ले पर मेरी बहन निकली थी और फिर उसी नहर के किनारे–किनारे तलाश किया था।" suggests that the deceased had committed suicide as she might have jumped into the canal, which flows adjacent to her matrimonial House.

47. Keeping in view the above placed statement of P.W.1- Pyara Devi, who is the star witness of this case and in view of the proved circumstances placed here in before and also keeping an eye on the fact that the trial court has committed manifest error in not placing the evidence/circumstances pertaining to causing of death of deceased before the appellant, we are of the considered view that the circumstances proved by the prosecution unerringly prove the factum that the appellant was regularly beating the deceased and on 19th October, 2010, he assaulted her where on P.W.1- Pyara Devi went to the house of appellant and persuaded him not to beat her again, however, on 24th October, 2010 appellant again assaulted the deceased with fists and kicks and which therefore, left no room for the deceased except to take the extreme step of suicide. The time of death of the deceased as ascertained by the Doctor also corroborates the fact that there is close nexus between the beating given to the deceased and time of her death and, therefore, it is proved that the appellant had abated the commission of suicide by deceased- Neelam. The proved circumstances are of such a nature that there can not be any other hypothesis except that either the deceased has been done to death by the appellant or she has committed suicide on the instigation of appellant. Keeping in view the fact that the injury found on the occipital region of the deceased may also be caused by hitting stone or rock and the Indira Canal was flowing adjacent to the matrimonial house of the deceased i.e. about 100 mtr. away and also the admission of P.W.1- Pyara Devi in her cross-examination that there was a common talk in the village that deceased had gone into the canal and also the fact that it is a case based on circumstantial evidence, we are of the considered view that the circumstances proved by the prosecution is capable of only one inference that the appellant had abated the suicide committed by the deceased.

48. Now the next question which arises for our consideration is, as to whether the appellant having been acquitted for the charge under Section 302 IPC could still be convicted under section 306 IPC. In Dalbir Singh vs. State of U.P.,

MANU/SC/0320/2004, the facts narrated are that the accused was charged under Section 302 IPC for having committed the murder of his wife Vimla and two daughters and was further charged under Section 304-B IPC for causing dowry death and also under Section 498-A IPC, the trial Court by his judgment and order dated 20.3.1997 convicted him under Section 302 IPC and sentenced him to death. He was also convicted under Section 498A I.P.C. and was sentenced to 3 years R.I. but was acquitted of the charge under Section 304B IPC. In appeal the High Court came to the conclusion that the charge under Section 302 IPC was not established and accordingly acquitted him for the said offence. The High Court also came to the conclusion that the accused was guilty under Section 306 IPC for having abetted commission of suicide by Vimla of setting herself on fire wherein her two daughters also died. But in view of the fact that no charge under Section 306 IPC was framed against the accused, the High Court, relying upon Sangarabonia Sreenu v. State of A.P. MANU/SC/0816/1997, held that the accused could not be convicted for the said offence. The High Court also noticed that a contrary view had been taken in an earlier decision in Lakhjit Singh v. State of Punjab MANU/SC/0905/1994 but choose to rely upon the later decision as the settled view of the said High Court was that if there was conflict of opinion in two decisions of Hon'ble Supreme Court rendered by benches of equal strength, it is the later decision which has to prevail. In view of conflict of opinion in two decisions of Supreme Court rendered in Lakhjit Singh and Anr. v. State of Punjab MANU/SC/0905/1994 and Sangarabonia Sreenu v. State of A.P. MANU/SC/0816/1997 the case was placed for hearing before three-Judges Bench. The Three Judges Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under :-

" 14. Here the Court proceeded to examine the question that if the accused has been charged under Section 302 IPC and the said charge is not established by evidence, would it be possible to convict him under Section 306 IPC having regard to Section 222 Cr.P.C. Sub-section (1) of Section 222 lays down that when a person is charged with an offence consisting of several particulars, a combination of some only of which constitutes a complete minor offence, and such combination is proved, but the remaining particulars are not proved, he may be convicted of the minor offence, though he was not charged with it. Sub-section (2) of the same Section lays down that when a person is charged with an offence and facts are proved which reduce it to a minor offence, he may be convicted of the minor offence, although he is not charged with it. Section 222 Cr.P.C. is in the nature of a general provision which empowers the Court to convict for a minor offence even though charge has been framed for a major offence. Illustrations (a) and (b) to the said Section also make the position clear. "

"In Lakhjit Singh (supra) though Section 464 Cr.P.C. has not been specifically referred to but the Court altered the conviction from 302 to 306 IPC having regard to the principles underlying in the said Section. In Sangaraboina Sreenu (supra) the Court completely ignored to consider the provisions of Section 464 Cr.P.C. and keeping in view Section 222 Cr.P.C. alone, the conviction of the appellant therein under Section 306 IPC was set aside.

We are, therefore, of the opinion that Sangarabonia Sreenu (supra) was not correctly decided as it purports to lay down as a principle of law that where the accused is charged under Section 302 IPC, he cannot be convicted for the offence under Section 306 IPC."

49. Hon,ble Supreme Court thus convicted the accused under Section 306 I.P.C. instead of 302 I.P.C.

50. In view of above, the appeal filed by the appellant is partly allowed. The conviction of the appellant under Section 302 and 201 of the I.P.C. is set-aside and he is acquitted of the charges under Section 302 and 201 I.P.C. Appellant is however now convicted for committing the offence under Section 306 I.P.C. The Judgment of trial Court with regard to the conviction and sentencing of appellant under Section 498A I.P.C. would remain unaltered and is hereby confirmed.

51. Having regard to the fact that the appellant has been exonerated of the charge under Section 302 and 201 I.P.C. for the reasons that certain circumstances have not been put by the trial court before the appellant at the time of recording of his statement under Section 313 of the Cr.P.C. and the remaining circumstances prove the offence under Section 306 I.P.C., we sentence the appellant to undergo rigorous imprisonment for 10 years with a fine of Rs.30,000/-. In default of payment of this fine, the appellant would undergo further imprisonment of simple nature for one year. The fine so deposited by the appellant would be distributed in equal shares amongst the children of deceased- Neelam.

52. Appellant is in jail, if he has already undergone the sentence as modified by this Court and on deposit of the fine as directed by this Court, he will immediately be released from prison if his further detention is not required in any other case.

53. Appellant would also file a personal bond with two sureties of the like amount to the satisfaction of the Chief Judicial Magistrate concerned under Section 437A of the Cr.P.C., within 15 days of his release from prison.

54. A copy of his judgment be immediately sent to the trial court for compliance.

Hon'ble Pradeep Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Shri Arvind Kumar Srivastava, learned Amicus Curiae for the appellant no. 2 Chander son of Lallu Ram, Shri L.D. Rajbhar and Shri Sunil Kumar Tripathi learned A.G.As. for the State respondent.

2. The present appeal has been filed by three appellants Bhudhar, Chander and Roopram, all sons of Lallu Ram, residents of Village Adilabad, Police Station Bisalpur, District Pilibhit against the judgment and order dated 09.08.1996 passed by the Special/Additional Sessions Judge, Pilibhit in the Sessions Trial No.173 of 1986 under Sections 147, 148, 302/149 and 323/149 I.P.C., Police Station Bisalpur, District Pilibhit.

3. At the outset, we may note that nine persons were named in the first information lodged on 20.11.1985 for their involvement in the incident-in-question, out of whom accused Ganga Ram died during trial. Out of remaining eight, five accused persons namely Bhudhar, Chander, Roopram, Munna and Moti were convicted by the trial court for the offences under Section 302 read with Section 149 and Section 323 read with Section 149 IPC and sentenced each for life imprisonment alongwith fine of Rs.5000/-; as also for six months rigorous imprisonment for the above offences. In case of default or non-payment of the fine, they have to further undergo two years rigorous imprisonment. Four accused persons namely Chander, Roopram, Munna and Moti have also been convicted under Section 147 IPC and sentenced for six months rigorous imprisonment. Accused Bhudhar has also been convicted under Section 148 IPC and sentenced for one year rigorous imprisonment. All the punishment were to run concurrently.

+ 4. However, out of five convicted accused persons, in the Connected Appeal No.1757 of 1996 two accused namely Munna and Moti had died and their appeal has been abated vide order dated 12.07.2019 by this Court. In the present appeal, the appellants Bhudhar and Roopram had died and appeal on their behalf has been abated vide order dated 19.09.2019. Thus, we are left with the challenge to the order of the conviction of only one accused person namely Chander son of Lallu Ram in the present appeal.

5. As the prosecution story unfolded, the incident in question occurred on 20.11.1985 at about 07.00 A.M. The first information report was lodged by the person namely as 'Register son of Bhikari Lal' (hereinafter referred as the 'first informant') resident of village Adlabad, Police Station Bisalpur, District Pilibhit on 20.11.1985 at about 09.30 A.M. The Chik FIR was drawn on oral statement of the first informant recorded by the Head Moharir Puran Lal posted in the Police Station Bisalpur, Pilibhit. The first informant is son of deceased Bhikari Lal. As per the averments in the first information report, some dispute regarding landed property was going on between three accused namely Bhudar, Chander and Roopram (the appellants herein who were real brothers) and their cousin Sudami Devi in Tehsil Bisalpur. In the legal proceeding, deceased Bhikari Lal was a witness from the side of Sudama Devi. The first informant states that on the previous day of the incident in the evening, an altercation took place between Bhudhar, Munna, Ram Asrey and Moti who were pressurizing the deceased not to give statement in favour of Sudama Devi. On his denial to accede to their pressure, the accused persons became inimical to the deceased. On 20.11.1985 at about 07.00 A.M., when deceased Bhikari Lal, the first informant Register and a villager namely Pusey son of Sohan were going to their fields located towards western side of the village, as soon as they reached at the field of Sadhu near the Canal, nine accused persons named above came out from the field of Moti each armed with deadly weapons and surrounded/gheraoed the victim party. Accused/appellant Chander exhorted by saying that Bhikari Lal should be taught a lesson for appearing as a witness in favour of Sudama and that he should be killed on that day. Hearing this, three persons of the victim party raised cries. Hearing their cries, Munna Lal son of deceased Bhikari Lal and their relatives namely Itwari, Sri Ram and Chotey lal ran towards the accused persons challenging them. At that point of time, the accused persons were assaulting Bhikari Lal (deceased) and Pusey with Lathi. Looking to the witnesses approaching them, Bhudhar and Ram Asrey opened fire from their guns. Deceased Bhikari Lal got hit by the fire, fell in the Canal and died on the spot. The accused persons ran away in the grove of Moti. The witnesses then took out the dead body from the Canal and kept it on the Chabutara of one Maniram. Injured Pusey was sent for treatment to the Hospital by bullock-cart. While leaving the dead body in the custody of his family members, the first informant went to the police station to lodge the report. The first informant also submitted two empty cartridges allegedly collected from the spot which were fired by the two accused persons. The Chik report drawn by the Head Moharir is endorsed with the thumb impression of the first informant and has been proved and exhibited as Exhibit Ka-'1'.

6. The prosecution produced three witnesses of fact namely (i) Register son of the deceased/first informant, (as PW-1); (ii) Munna Lal another son of deceased Bhikari Lal as PW-2 and (iii) injured Pusey as PW-3. Amongst formal witnesses, PW-4, Doctor Harish Chandra Nath had appeared in the witness box to prove the injury report. (exhibited as Exhibit 'Ka-3') prepared by him of the injuries of the witness PW-3 Pusey. Doctor P.K. Srivastava (PW-8) proved the post-mortem report and the injuries sustained by deceased Bhikari Lal.

7. PW-7 is the Investigating Officer who proved the reports such as site plan, recovery memo of the blood stained earth and plain earth, exhibited as Exhibit Ka-'10'. He states that the statements of nine accused persons were recorded on 13.12.1985. The statement of injured witness Pusey was recorded on 03.01.1986, on the date when investigation was completed and charge sheet (proved as Exhibit Ka-'17') was submitted by him. He proved the G.D. entry of Chik FIR which had been recorded as Rapat No.14 at about 09.30 A.M. on 20.11.1985, by Head Moharir Puran Lal as Exhibit Ka-'18', as Head Constable Puran Lal died before commencement of trial. About the motive narrated in the first information report, PW-7 (Investigating Officer) states that though he made an effort to get the necessary papers relating to the dispute from Sudama Devi but those papers were not provided to him till submission of the charge sheet.

8. PW-7 further states that though he did not indicate the field of Bhikari and Register in the site plan, but location of the spot of crime has been correctly indicated therein. The village Abadi was about two furlong from the site of the incident. The place mentioned as "Chabutara of Maniram" was about 1½ half furlong from the Puliya over the Canal. He admitted that he did not mention the place where accused persons had assaulted Pusey, the injured witness. He further states that statements of the eye-witnesses of the incident were recorded by him on the spot as soon as he visited the place. He denied suggestion of Bhikari Lal (deceased) and first informant (Register) being men of criminal antecedent. He denied suggestion of FIR being Ante-timed or he having not visited the scene of the crime and states that he or any other police officer did not collect any empty cartridge from the spot of crime.

9. As noted above, the Doctors PW-4 and PW-8 proved the reports prepared by them by entering in the witness box. PW-4 proved that injured Pusey was brought to the Primary Health Centre, Bisalpur and his injuries were examined at about 12.30 P.M, the injury report was prepared in his handwriting and signature, it was exhibited as Exhibit Ka-'3'. The injuries found on the person of injured witness Pusey are relevant to be noted hereunder:-

"1. Abraded contusion 12 cm x 5 cm at left side forehead including left eye upper & lower side, eye cannot be opened due to slenderness and traumatic swelling and area round the eye ball. Kept under observation and advised x-ray of left fickle, Eye ball and forehead. Blood is present at conjunctiva.

2. Abrasion 1 cm x 0.5 cm at Rt. Eyebrow in middle fresh in duration.

3. Clotted blood present at both nostrils. But no any external mark of injury seen."

10. When confronted about the nature of said injuries, PW-4 states that it was possible that injury Nos.1 and 2 could occur by the blow of Lathi.

11. PW-8, Doctor P.K. Srivastava who conducted the post-mortem proved the medico-legal report prepared by him as Exhibit Ka-'19' in his handwriting and signature. He proved the injuries found on the body of the deceased in external and internal examination as under:- .

"Lacerated wound on the right side of head 4cm X1/12 C bone deep 8 cm above the right ear.

2. Gun shot wound of entry 3C X 3C circular size on the right side of abdomen blackening, tatooing and scroching not found, 5cm. below the lower rists.

3. Multiple gun shot wound of exit in 5 cm x 15 cm area on the Rt. Side of chest just below the right clavicle."

12. The post-mortem was conducted on 21.11.1985 at about 02.00 P.M. The possible time of occurrence of the injuries could be 24 to 48 hours prior to the postmortem. The possible time of murder could be around 07.00 A.M. on 20.11.1985. Injury Nos.2 & 3 were typical of the firearm whereas injury No.1 could occur from a blunt object like Lathi. Ante-mortem injuries were sufficient to cause death. Injury No.2 which is entry wound of 3x3 c.m. probably had been caused from behind.

13. From the medico-legal report of the deceased, it is evident that deceased had sustained one injury on his head as the blow of Lathi; Injury Nos.2 & 3 found on the body of the deceased correspond to each other, which means the deceased had sustained one firearm injury. As far as the injuries of PW-3 Pusey are concerned, from the injury report, it is evident that in all probabilities they have been caused by the blow of Lathi which hit him on his forehead. His eyes contained traumatic swelling which could occur within 24 hours as per the statement of the Doctor. These injuries, however, were not fatal and are mentioned as 'simple' in the injury report.

14. It is noted that from the statements or reports of three formal witnesses nothing could be elicited or pointed out to create any doubt or dent in the prosecution story.

15. We are, thus, left with the ocular version of the witnesses of fact. The prosecution produced three witnesses (PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3) as eye witnesses of the occurrence, amongst whom PW-3 is an injured witness.

16. In his deposition before the Court, the first informant Register (PW-1) reiterated his version in the first information report. Giving vivid details of the incidents, he narrates that Bhudhar and Ram Asrey were carrying guns whereas Mohan and Bulaki had "Kaanta" in their hands, rest of the accused persons were carrying Lathi. They first assaulted deceased Bhikari and Pusey by Lathi and seeing the witnesses/villagers approaching them, Bhudhar and Ram Asrey opened fires which hit the deceased. As noted above, from the medico-legal report it is evident that only one fire hit the deceased. The statement of the first informant that two fires hit his father (deceased) before he fell down is, thus, not correct. Two empty cartridges found from the spot were allegedly handed over by this witness to the police but they were not tallied with the Gun of Ram Asrey which was allegedly recovered by police. It is, thus, difficult to accept the version of the first informant that both the accused B*Section 149 Section 149 Section 149 Section 149 Section 149 Section 149 Section 149 Section 149 Section 149 Section 149 Section 149 Section 149 Section 149 Section 149 Section 149 Section 149 Section 149 Section 149 Section 149 Section 149* hudhar and Ram Asrey had opened fire. The presence of Ram Asrey on the spot was also doubted by the trial court. With regard to other accused persons Mohan and Bulaki to whom weapons namely 'Kaanta' had been assigned, it was noted by the trial court that no corresponding injury was found. It appears that for these reasons, trial court had acquitted three accused persons namely Mohan, Bulaki and Ram Asrey of all the offences under which they were charge sheeted.

17. In the above scenario, learned counsel for the appellant vehemently argued that firstly no evidence was brought by the prosecution regarding the motive alleged in the FIR. The eye witness account of the manner of assault on the victim party is not corroborated. The injuries of the witness PW-3 may have been caused on account of falling on the ground. Five persons assailed to have attacked deceased by Lathis which they were carrying individually whereas single injury of the blunt object was found on the person of deceased. Further, the prosecution story that deceased and first informant were going to their field at about 07.00 A.M. is unbelievable, in as much as, in the internal examination of deceased, his stomach was found empty and faceal matter was present in both small and large intestine. This condition of the dead body makes the whole prosecution story untruthful about the timing of the incident. From the fact that small and large intestine both were full with faceal matter, in all probabilities death had occurred before defecation by the deceased. This situation clearly proves that the prosecution has not come with clean hands as the death had been caused during the night hours. Presence of both PW-1 and PW-2 at the scene of occurrence, thus, becomes highly doubtful. The ocular versions of PW-1 of accompanying the deceased and PW-2 of reaching on the spot of occurrence hearing the cries of PW-1, are not corroborated from the medico-legal report. The statement of PW-3, projected as injured witness, is inconsistent with other witnesses of fact as the place of occurrence is highly disputed. Moreover, the place of occurrence had not been ascertained by sending blood stained earth and plain earth for chemical examination. The act of PW-1 in bringing empty cartridges to the police station on his own substantiates the defence version about the doubt with regard to the timing and place of occurrence.

18. In the whole prosecution story there is no independent witness. Even the witnesses who allegedly reached on the spot hearing the cries of the victim party are all related to the deceased. Moreover, none of them had been produced before the Court. Further, the prosecution has not proved the genesis of the alleged unlawful assembly. Three accused persons were real brothers to whom motive has been assigned whereas other members of the accused party have no concern. The act of eyewitnesses in implicating six persons unconnected with the crime is nothing but exaggeration. False implication of fellow villagers makes the version of eyewitnesses wholly uncreditworthy. Moreso, when no injury corresponding to the weapon (Kaanta) assigned to two accused was found. Further though Lathi was assigned to five accused persons but the version of eyewitness regarding the manner of assault is difficult to believe as single blow of Lathi was sustained by deceased. The submission, thus, is that the testimony of eyewitness becomes a blatant lie and the exaggeration and embellishment in their version shake the entire prosecution case.

19. As far as PW-2 Munna Lal is concerned, it is submitted that he is a Chance witness. He has been projected by the prosecution only to give credence to the testimony of the PW-1 only with the idea to cover up the discrepancies in his testimony.

20. As regards PW-3, it is urged that he had sustained injuries somewhere else and he was brought in the story simply to make the testimony of PW-1 creditworthy. The inherent improbabilities and inconsistencies in the statement of the three eye witnesses makes their version about the timing of the incident and place of occurrence wholly unreliable. Reliance is placed on decision of the Apex Court in (Ganga Ram Sah & others Vs. State of Bihar)1 decided on 27.01.2017 and Lallu Manjhi & another Vs. State of Jharkhand2 to assert that where the weapons assigned to the accused persons, (included as member of the unlawful assembly) do not correspond to the injuries sustained by the deceased, the testimony of eye-witness becomes wholly unreliable. In that event, the Court has to look for corroboration in material particulars by reliable testimony, whether direct or the circumstantial before acting upon the testimony of the eye witnesses. And where the ocular version is inconsistent with other evidence on record, it would be dangerous to believe the prosecution version of common object of the unlawful assembly to commit murder so as to convict all accused persons of the offence of murder by taking recourse to Section 149 Cr.P.C.

21. Placing the decision of the Apex Court in Lakshmi Singh Vs. State of Bihar3 (emphasis laid on para 13 to 16), it was vehemently urged by the learned counsel for the appellant that omission on the part of the prosecution to send the blood stained and plain earth collected from the place of occurrence for chemical examination, which could have fixed situs of the assault, proves to be fatal to the prosecution case. If the defence succeeds in throwing a reasonable doubt on the prosecution case, it is sufficient to enable the Court to reject the prosecution version and, thus, to set aside the conviction. The solitary firearm injury on the person of deceased in contradiction to the statement of prosecution witnesses PW-1 & PW-2 that two accused persons namely Bhudhar and Ram Asrey had opened fires from their guns which also hit the deceased, shows the falsehood of the prosecution story. In view of the exaggerations and embellishments found in the version of the eyewitnesses P.W.-1 & PW-2, it was necessary for the prosecution to corroborate the evidence of the eye witnesses through the expert evidence of the Doctor, and since no corresponding injuries were found on the person of deceased, the prosecution was required to explain the inconsistencies. The entire genesis and origin of the occurrence put forth by the prosecution is surrounded with suspicious circumstances and negatives the truth of the prosecution case.

22. In view of the inherent improbabilities, serious omissions and infirmities in the version of the eye witnesses coupled with the fact that eye witnesses PW-1 and PW-2 are closely related to deceased being his son, there cannot be any two opinion that the prosecution has miserably failed to prove the case against the appellant beyond reasonable doubt. As the prosecution rests its story entirely on eye witness account, their version having been found uncreditworthy, the whole prosecution case falls. The trial court has committed grave error in convicting five accused persons on the shaky version of the alleged eye witnesses projected by the prosecution. Moreover, the appellant Chander herein has been assigned only the role of exhortion in the prosecution version itself. There is no evidence that he assaulted the deceased though he was assigned Lathi, he cannot be convicted of the offence of murder under Section 302 IPC by taking recourse to Section 149 IPC. The appellant Chander, therefore, is entitled to be acquitted of all the offences of murder and assault on deceased Bhikari and injured Pusey. The appeal deserves to be allowed.

23. Learned AGA, on the other hand, submits that there is direct evidence of the occurrence. The testimony of three eye witnesses is consistent and there is no apparent contradiction in their version about the occurrence of the incident. Five out of nine accused persons being members of unlawful assembly were rightly held to be guilty of same offence by taking recourse to Section 149 IPC. There is no delay in lodging of the first information report. The injuries sustained by the injured witness and deceased correspond to the weapons Lathi and firearm assigned to the accused persons. The fact that no injuries of deadly weapon "Kaanta" was found on the person of deceased or injured witness by itself does not make the prosecution story doubtful. Even the presence of a person who is a member of unlawful assembly at the spot of crime without any overt act in execution of the common object of unlawful assembly to commit murder, is sufficient to implicate him and hold him guilty of murder on the principle of vicarious liability which is fundamental principle for invocation of Section 149 Cr.P.C.. Overt act or any specific act of a member of unlawful assembly in prosecution of common object of the assembly is not necessary to be proved to hold him guilty of the crime committed by that assembly. Reliance is placed on the decision of the Apex Court in Om Prakash Vs. State of Haryana4.

24. Analyzing the testimony of eye witnesses produced by the prosecution, we find that as far as PW-2 is concerned, as per his own version, he was not present with the deceased and reached the place of incident hearing cries of the persons of the victim party. He also assigned weapons in the hands of the accused persons in the same manner as averred by PW-1. Even the exhortation made by appellant Chander has been narrated by him in the same words as stated by PW-1. The act of fire opened by Bhudhar and Ram Asrey (two accused person) is also narrated in the same language. The distance of house of PW-2 where he was present at the time can be culled out from the description given by him in the cross-examination as under:-

(i) the place of occurrence was located at the western side of the village in question;

(ii) Maniram Ka Chabutara was the first place to reach while coming to the village from the western boundaries;

(iii) the house of PW-1 and deceased was situated on the East-West road approaching the village at a distance of 20 paces from Maniram Ka Chabutara;

(iv) the incident had occurred at a distance from Maniram Ka Chabutara, near the Canal at the field of Sadhu located near the field of Natthu Lal Sharma;

(v) the accused person came to the spot from the grove of Moti adjacent to the field of Nathu Sharma located near the place of occurrence;

(vi) in between their house and the place of murder, there lies only one field of Natthu Lal Sharma which was vacant at the relevant point of time;

(vii) the place of incident was at a distance of 20 to 30 paces from their house where PW-2 was present when he heard the cries of the first informant.

25. PW-2 further states that the place of incident was visible though not clear from their house and when he heard the cries of "bachao-bachao", he was outside the house. He immediately ran to the place of occurrence and when he left the house he could see some persons at the place of incident, but could identify them only when he reached at the field of Nathhu Sharma. He further states that after leaving the house when he reached at Maniram Ka Chabutara, at about 12 paces away from the place of occurrence he could identify the accused persons and saw them assaulting deceased Bhikari Lal and injured witness Pusey. As soon as the accused persons saw him and he simultaneously looked at them, Bhudhar and Ram Asrey opened fire. By the time firing was made he had reached at the field of Nathhu Lal Sharma.

26. From the above description of PW-2, it is evident that there was no occasion for him to hear the words of exhortation allegedly made by appellant Chander as he was not present on the spot with the victim party since the beginning. His omnibus narration of the incident cannot but be said to be an effort of the prosecution to add weight to the testimony of PW-1.

27. From the careful analysis of version of PW-2, it is evident that neither he was present at the scene of occurrence since the beginning nor he could reach on the spot when accused persons started assault by Lathi.

28. Even accepting his version as true, at the most, it can be said that he had reached near the place of occurrence on hearing cries of his father and brother and witnessed the act of firing by the accused. From his statement, it can also be culled out that as soon as he reached the field of Natthu Sharma, the accused persons opened fire at his father and ran away. The site plan was prepared in the presence of this witness (PW-2) which also indicates his presence at the place marked by letter 'B' which lies in the middle of the field of Natthu Sharma, at a distance from the spot of occurrence. It is, thus, clear that PW-2 had no chance to witness the whole sequence of events since the beginning. It is evident from his version that neither he could distinctly see weapons in the hands of individual members of the accused party nor he could hear the words of exhortation allegedly spoken by appellant Chander in the beginning of the incident. The prosecution has projected this witness as an eyewitness though his version from the cross-examination is proved to be a hearsay evidence. His narration of the incident appears to be from the eyes of PW-1, his brother and not his own and he had seen only some part of the incident and not the whole. His testimony seems to be self-contradictory and uncreditworthy so as to form basis of the conviction.

29. Considering the above, we are left with the testimony of remaining two eye witnesses PW-1 and PW-3. We find that PW-1 in his deposition in the Court has reiterated his first account of the incident given in the first information report. His statement of the genesis of the incident, the manner in which it took place on the fateful day, the weapons carried by the accused party and the injuries caused to deceased is same as in the FIR. He deposed in the examination-in-chief that two empty cartridges handed over by him to the police were collected from the spot and they were fired by Bhudhar and Ram Asrey from their guns and that both fires hit his father. Single firearm wound of entry has been found on the body of deceased in addition to only one blow of Lathi on his head. The argument of the defence is that ocular version of PW-1 being in contradiction to the medical evidence it is evident that this witness is telling a lie. It cannot be assumed that another shot fired by one of the accused persons missed and as such it did not hit the deceased. It is, thus, urged that the ocular version of PW-1 is to be discarded as a whole and the defence theory that deceased was brought to death in the night hours and noone had seen the incident has to be accepted.

30. We find that the statement of PW-1 (first informant) and PW-3 regarding the incident and place of occurrence is consistent and is corroborated from other material evidence such as site plan which gives complete description and the distance of the place of occurrence from the house of deceased. Thus, it cannot be said that the place of homicidal death of Bhikari lal (deceased) was not proved. The place 'A' from where the dead body was lifted by the first informant and place 'C' where deceased was shot by the accused persons as indicated in the site plan is consistent with the testimony of eye witnesses PW-1 and PW-3.

31. Both these witnesses are found consistent in their statement that deceased was first assaulted by the accused persons by Lathi and when they saw other witnesses approaching them, fire was opened by accused Bhudhar which hit deceased who fell on the ground near canal; the accused party immediately ran away towards the field/grave of Moti. The appellant Chander herein has been assigned the role of exhortation in the following words:-

"आज भिखारी लाल को सुदामा देवी के मुक़दमे मे गवाही देने का मज़ा चखा दो और जान से मार दो"

32. PW-3, the injured witness states that when accused party was assaulting deceased Bhikari Lal, many people had reached the spot. He was also attacked by Roopram (a co-accused since deceased) by Lathi when he raised cries seeing accused persons assaulting deceased Bhikari lal. According to him, Bhudhar had opened fire on the deceased which hit him and he fell on the bank of the Canal and died on the spot. The accused persons immediately fled towards the west. The witnesses then lifted the body of deceased and kept it at the Maniram Ka Chabutara. His own injuries were examined by the Doctor. From the cross-examination of PW-3, it appears that his house was near the house of deceased. He being a neighbour and injured witness, his presence at the scene of occurrence cannot be doubted. It is difficult to accept that an injured witness would falsely implicate the accused persons leaving the real assailants, more-so when there is no suggestion of any enmity of the accused persons with the injured witness PW-3.

33. It is, thus, not possible for us to accept the hypothesis of the defence that the murder had occurred during the night hours in the absence of both PW-1 and PW-3. The presence of two eye witnesses

PW-1 and PW-3 cannot be discarded being natural at the scene of occurrence. Their statement about the assault by the accused party cannot be disbelieved.

34. Thus, from a careful analysis of the evidence produced by the prosecution, the following circumstances are emerging:-

(i) The first information report is prompt having been lodged within two and a half hours of the incident.

(ii) The homicidal death of the victim Bhikari Lal had occurred in the early morning when both PW-1 and PW-3 were accompanying him while going to their fields.

(iii) The statement of eye witnesses (PW-1 & PW-3) is consistent to the extent that accused persons had beaten deceased Bhikari Lal and injured witness PW-3 from Lathi. The injuries found on the person of deceased and PW-3 injured witnesses are also proof of the said fact.

(iv) The injuries of PW-3 were examined on the same day at about 12.30 PM and the Doctor who prepared the injury report had proved that the injuries had been caused by Lathi and are, thus, related to the weapon (Lathi) assigned to the members of accused party.

(v) Firearm injuries found on the vital part of the deceased alongwith one wound of Lathi in his head and from the narrtion of the eyewitness it is clear that the deceased was first beaten by accused persons by Lathi and later was brought to death by the single fire opened by Bhudhar (appellant No.1). There is no evidence of second shot of fire made by accused Bhudhar.

(vi) Mere fact that the injuries on the person of PW-3 are minor, it cannot be accepted that his statement is not to be given the weightage of the testimony of an injured witness. From the injuries found on the body of PW-3, atleast this much is proved that he was present on the scene of occurrence.

35. However, at the same time, we find that the prosecution has not been able to explain the following circumstances:-

(i) The allegation of firing made by another accused person Ram Asrey is not proved. No explanation has been given by the prosecution about the said part of statement of the first informant PW-1.

(ii) The recovery of gun allegedly used by Ram Asrey is disbelieved by the trial court being farce.

(iii) PW-3 Pusey did not utter a single word in his examination-in-chief regarding presence of Ram Asrey at the place of occurrence or he having fired at the deceased. He rather refused to identify Ram Asrey present in the Court and stated that he could recollect only this much that there was one more person with the accused party who was standing behind his house carrying gun of his father.

(iv) In cross-examination, Pusey PW-3 states that he heard the sound of fire while running away from the place of occurrence towards west. He then changed his version by saying that he heard the sound of fire while standing on the spot and that both fires were made by Bhudhar which hit the deceased.

(v) PW-3 Pusey was interrogated by the police after approximately three months of the incident on the day when charge sheet was submitted by the Investigating Officer. No explanation has been given by the Investigating Officer for causing delay in recording statement of the injured witness PW-3 under Section 161 Cr.P.C. His version regarding involvement of Ram Asrey and role of firing attributed to him, therefore, is unbelievable. On confrontation by the defence, this witness explained that he was interrogated by the Investigating Officer after about three months.

(vi) There is no injury corresponding to 'Kaanta' a weapon assigned to two members of the accused party and for this reason the trial court had (rightly) acquitted three accused persons doubting their presence at the scene of occurrence.

36. From the above analysis, we find that the witnesses produced by the prosecution are neither wholly reliable nor wholly unreliable. In Vadivelu Thevar Vs. The State of Madras5, the Apex Court had laid down the test to assess the quality of oral evidence led by the prosecution for proving or disproving a fact. It was held therein that :-

".....Generally speaking, oral testimony in this context may be classified into three categories, namely:

(1) Wholly reliable.

(2) Wholly unreliable.

(3) Neither wholly reliable nor wholly unreliable.

In the first category of proof, the court should have no difficulty in coming to its conclusion either way-it may convict or may acquit on the testimony of a single witness, if it is found to be above reproach or suspicion of interestedness, incompetence or subornation. In the second category, the court, equally has no difficulty in coming to its conclusion. It is in the third category of cases, that the court has to be circumspect and has to look for corroboration in material particulars by reliable testimony, direct or circumstantial....."

37. It was, thus, held in a case that where the testimony of witnesses of prosecution is neither wholly reliable nor wholly unreliable, the Court has to circumspect and has to look for corroboration in material particulars by reliable testimony before acting upon the testimony of such witnesses. It is equally settled that no rigid formula can be derived to assess the weight to be attached to the oral evidence which would be dependent upon the facts and circumstances of each case. No hard and fast rule or straitjacket formula can be laid to test the truthfulness of the statement of witnesses. In such a case, whole testimony of the eye witnesses alongwith surrounding circumstances has to be considered by the Court in order to separate grain of truth from the chaff. It would be a dangerous trend to discard the whole testimony of an eyewitness because the witness was speaking an untruth in some aspect. Witnesses tend to decorate by given embroidery in a story. One hardly came across a witness whose evidence does not contain a grain of untruth or at any rate exaggeration, embroideries or embellishment. Therefore, it has to be appraised in each case as to what extent the evidence is worthy of acceptance, and merely because in some respects the court considers the same to be insufficient for placing reliance on the testimony of a witness, it does not necessarily follow as a matter of law that it must be disregarded in all respect as well. The evidence has to be sifted with care.

38. As observed by the Apex Court in State of Rajasthan Vs. Kalki 1981 (2) SCC 752 normal discrepancies in evidence are those which are due to normal error of observations, normal errors of memory due to lapse of time, due to mental disposition such as shock and horror at the time of occurrence, and the like, as they are always be there, however honest and truthful a witness may be. Material discrepancies are those which are not normal and not expected of a normal person. Courts have to label the category to which a discrepancy may be categorized. While normal discrepancies do not corrode the credibility of a party's case, material discrepancies do so.

39. Finding us in such a situation, in the instant case while carefully scrutinizing the prosecution evidence in our effort to separate grain of truth from the chaff, we find that the accused party formed an assembly which consisted of three brothers and other villagers. They reached the place of occurrence carrying Lathi and in a pre-mediated manner in prosecution of common object of the assembly attacked the deceased by Lathi. The injured witness (PW-3) was also assaulted when he raised cries. The assembly formed by the accused persons is proved to be an unlawful assembly within the meaning of Section 141 of the Indian Penal Code. As per the eye witness (PW-1 & PW-3) account, there were nine persons who were armed with Lathis, Kaantas and guns and all of them had attacked deceased Bhikari Lal with the common object to kill him. Whereas only one injury of blow of Lathi (a blunt object) was found on the person of the deceased Bhikari lal. Injured witness PW-3 was also assaulted by Lathi when he raised cries but there was no assault on the first informant (Register). Both the witnesses PW-1 and PW-3 are also found consistent in their statement that Bhudhar opened fire when he saw other witnesses/villagers approaching them. There is single firearm wound on the person of deceased which evidently was sufficient to cause his death. The alleged second fire opened by Ram Asrey could not be proved by the prosecution. Specific role of exhortation has been assigned to the surviving appellant Chander whereas general role of assault on the victim party has been assigned to all other members of the assembly.

40. The questions, thus, have arisen before us is to ascertain as to what was the common object of the unlawful assembly and whether appellant Chander can be convicted for the offence of murder under Section 302 IPC with the aid of the provision of Section 149 IPC.

41. To reach at any conclusion, it would be apt to go through some legal pronouncements to understand the essence of words "common object" used in Section 149 IPC. It is well established principle of law that when the conviction is recorded with the aid of Section 149, relevant enquiry to be made by the Court is whether the accused was a member of an unlawful assembly and not whether he actually took active part in the crime or not. The Constitution Bench of Apex Court in Masalti Vs State of U.P.6 has stated at page No.148 as under:--

"What has to be proved against a person who is alleged to be a member of an unlawful assembly is that he was one of the persons constituting the assembly and he entertained along with the other members of the assembly the common object as defined by s.141, I.P.C. Section 142 provides that whoever, being aware of facts which render any assembly an unlawful assembly, intentionally joins that assembly, or continues in it, is said to be a member of an unlawful assembly. In other words, an assembly of five or more persons actuated by, and entertaining one or more of the common objects specified by the five clauses of Section 141, is an unlawful assembly. The crucial question to determine in such a case is whether the assembly consisted of five or more persons and whether the said persons entertained one or more of the common objects as specified by Section 141."

42. Further at page No.149 it is said:-

"In fact, Section 149 makes it clear that if an offence is committed by any member of an unlawful assembly in prosecution of the common object of that assembly, or such as the members of that assembly knew to be likely to be committed in prosecution of that object, every person who, at the time of the committing of that offence, is a member of the same assembly, is guilty of that offence; and that emphatically brings out the principle that the punishment prescribed by Section 149 is in a sense vicarious and does not always proceed on the basis that the offence has been actually committed by every member of the unlawful assembly."

43. Considering the above legal position it was considered in State of U.P. Vs. Kisan Chand & others 2004 (7) SCC 6297, that the common object of the unlawful assembly can be gathered from the nature of assembly, arms used by them and the behaviour of the assembly at or before the scene of occurrence. It is an inference to be deducted from the facts and circumstances of each case (reference para 12 of the report) (emphasis added).

44. In a subsequent decision in Dani Singh & others Vs. State of Bihar8, it is said that the emphasis in Section 149 IPC is on the common object and not on common intention. Mere presence in an unlawful assembly cannot render a person liable unless there was a common object and he was actuated by that common object and that object is one of those set out in Section 141. Where common object of an unlawful assembly is not proved, the accused persons cannot be convicted with the help of Section 149. The crucial question to determine the vicarious liability of the members of an unlawful assembly (consisted of five or more persons) is as to whether the said persons entertained one or more of the common objects, as specified in Section 141. It cannot be laid down as a general proposition of law that unless an overact is proved against a person who is alleged to be a member of unlawful assembly, it cannot be said that he is a member of unlawful assembly. The only thing required is that he should have understood that the assembly was unlawful and was likely to commit any of the acts which fall within the purview of Section 141.

45. Considering the literal meaning of the "common object" it is said:-

"11.....The word 'object' means the purpose or design and, in order to make it 'common', it must be shared by all. In other words, the object should be common to the persons, who compose the assembly, that is to say, they should all be aware of it and concur in it. A common object may be formed by express agreement after mutual consultation, but that is by no means necessary. It may be formed at any stage by all or a few members of the assembly and the other members may just join and adopt it. Once formed, it need not continue to be the same. It may be modified or altered or abandoned at any stage. The expression 'in prosecution of common object' as appearing in Section 149 have to be strictly construed as equivalent to 'in order to attain the common object'. It must be immediately connected with the common object by virtue of the nature of the object. There must be community of object and the object may exist only up to a particular stage, and not thereafter. Members of an unlawful assembly may have community of object up to certain point beyond which they may differ in their objects and the knowledge, possessed by each member of what is likely to be committed in prosecution of their common object may vary not only according to the information at his command, but also according to the extent to which he shares the community of object, and as a consequence of this the effect of Section 149, IPC may be different on different members of the same assembly.

46. While explaining further, it is observed that "common object" is different from a "common intention" as it does not require a prior concert and a common meeting of mind before the attack. It is enough if each (member of the assembly) has the same object in view and their number is five or more and that they act as an assembly to achieve that object. It is held that:-

"12.....The 'common object' of an assembly is to be ascertained from the acts and language of the members composing it, and from a consideration of all the surrounding circumstances. It may be gathered from the course of conduct adopted by the members of the assembly. What the common object of the unlawful assembly is at a particular stage of the incident is essentially a question of fact to be determined, keeping in view the nature of the assembly, the arms carried by the members, and the behaviour of the members at or near the scene of the incident. It is not necessary under law that in all cases of unlawful assembly, with an unlawful common object, the same must be translated into action or be successful. Under the Explanation to Section 141, an assembly which was not unlawful when it was assembled, may subsequently become unlawful. It is not necessary that the intention or the purpose, which is necessary to render an assembly an unlawful one comes into existence at the outset. The time of forming an unlawful intent is not material. An assembly which, at its commencement or even for some time thereafter, is lawful, may subsequently become unlawful. In other words it can develop during the course of incident at the spot eo instanti."

47. It was further explained that :-

"13. Section 149, IPC consists of two parts. The first part of the section means that the offence to be committed in prosecution of the common object must be one which is committed with a view to accomplish the common object. In order that the offence may fall within the first part, the offence must be connected immediately with the common object of the unlawful assembly of which the accused was member. Even if the offence committed is not in direct prosecution of the common object of the assembly, it may yet fall under Section 141, if it can be held that the offence was such as the members knew was likely to be committed and this is what is required in the second part of the section. The purpose for which the members of the assembly set out or desired to achieve is the object. If the object desired by all the members is the same, the knowledge that is the object which is being pursued is shared by all the members and they are in general agreement as to how it is to be achieved and that is now the common object of the assembly. An object is entertained in the human mind, and it being merely a mental attitude, no direct evidence can be available and, like intention, has generally to be gathered from the act which the person commits and the result therefrom. Though no hard and fast rule can be laid down under the circumstances from which the common object can be culled out, it may reasonably be collected from the nature of the assembly, arms it carries and behaviour at or before or after the scene of incident. The word 'knew' used in the second branch of the section implies something more than a possibility and it cannot be made to bear the sense of 'might have been known'. Positive knowledge is necessary. When an offence is committed in prosecution of the common object, it would generally be an offence which the members of the unlawful assembly knew was likely to be committed in prosecution of the common object. That, however, does not make the converse proposition true; there may be cases which would come within the second part but not within the first part. The distinction between the two parts of Section 149 cannot be ignored or obliterated. In every case it would be an issue to be determined, whether the offence committed falls within the first part or it was an offence such as the members of the assembly knew to be likely to be committed in prosecution of the common object and falls within the second part. However, there may be cases which would be within first offences committed in prosecution of the common object, but would be generally, if not always, with the second, namely, offences which the parties knew to be likely committed in the prosecution of the common object. (See Chikkarange Gowda and others v. State of Mysore"

48. The argument that since definite roles have not been assigned to the accused persons (members of the assembly) and, therefore, Section 149 is not applicable was held as untenable considering the law laid down in Masalti, Lal Ji Vs. State of U.P.9; State of U.P. Vs. Dan Singh & others10. The observations made therein have been noted in paragraph Nos.'15' & '16' in the following manner:-

"15.To similar effect is the observation in Lalji v. State of U.P. (1989 (1) SCC 437). It was observed that:

"Common object of the unlawful assembly can be gathered from the nature of the assembly, arms used by them and the behaviour of the assembly at or before the scene of occurrence. It is an inference to be deduced from the facts and circumstances of each case."

"16. In State of U.P. v. Dan Singh and Ors. (1997 (3) SCC 747) it was observed that it is not necessary for the prosecution to prove which of the members of the unlawful assembly did which or what act. Reference was made to Lalji's case (supra) where it was observed that'

"while overt act and active participation may indicate common intention of the person perpetrating the crime, the mere presence in the unlawful assembly may fasten vicariously criminal liability under Section 149".

49. We may also profitably note the distinction between 'common object' and 'common intention' drawn by the Apex Court in Chikkarange Gowda & others Vs. State of Mysore11 in paragraphs Nos.9 & 10 as under:-

"9.It is quite clear to us that on the finding of the High Court with regard to the common object of the unlawful assembly, the conviction of the appellants for an offence under Section 302 read with Section 149, Penal Code cannot be sustained. The first essential element of Section 149 is the commission of an offence by any member of an unlawful assembly ; the second essential part is that the offence must be committed in prosecution of the common object of the unlawful assembly, or must be such as the members of that assembly knew to be likely to be committed in prosecution of the common object.

In the case before us, the learned Judges of the High Court held that the common object of the unlawful assembly was merely to administer a chastisement to Putte Gowda. The learned Judges of the High Court did not hold that though the common object was to chastise Putte Gowda, the members of the unlawful assembly knew that Putte Gowda was likely to be killed in prosecution of that common object. That being the position, the conviction under Section 302 read with Section 149, Penal Code was not justified in law.

10. So far back as 1873, in Queen v. Sabed Ali 20 Suth W R (Cr) 5 (A), it was pointed out that Section 149 did not ascribe every offence which might be committed by one member of an unlawful assembly while the assembly was existing, to every other member. The section describes the offence which is to be so attributed under two alternative forms: (1) it must be either an offence committed by a member of the unlawful assembly in prosecution of the common object of that assembly ; or (2) an offence such as the members of that assembly knew to be likely to be committed in prosecution of that object.

In Barendra Kumar Ghosh v. Emperor the distinction between Sections 149 and 34, Penal Code was pointed out. It was observed that Section 149 postulated an assembly of five or more per ons having a common object, namely, one of those objects named in Section 141, and then the doing of acts by members of the assembly in prosecution of that object or such as the members knew were likely to be committed in prosecution of that object. It was pointed out that there was a difference between common object and common intention ; though the object might be common, the intention of the several members might differ. The leading feature of Section 34 is the element of participation in action, whereas membership of the assembly at the time of the committing of the offence is the important element in Section 149. The two sections have a certain resemblance and may to a certain extent overlap, but it cannot be said that both have the same meaning.

The distinction between the two sections was again explained in a recent decision of this Court. Nanak Chand v. State of Punjab, Cr App No. 132 of 1954, D/- 25-1-1955 ."

50. From the above exposition of law, it is clear that:-

(i) Though express agreement after mutual consultation to infer "common object" of the assembly of five or more persons is by no means necessary but it is incumbent on the prosecution to prove that the offence was committed in prosecution of the "common object" which should be common to all the members of the assembly and that the said offence was committed with a view to accomplish that common object.

(ii) There may be a situation where unlawful assembly may be formed at any stage by all or few members of the assembly and it need not continue to be the same. Some others members may have just joined or adopted it. It may be modified or altered or abundant at any stage.

(iii) It is possible that members of an unlawful assembly may have community of object upto a certain point beyond which they may differ in their object and the knowledge possessed by each member of what is likely to be committed in prosecution of their common object may vary not only according to the information at his command but also according to the extent to which he shares the community of object. As a consequence of this, the effect of Section 149 may be different on different members of the same assembly.

(iv) An assembly which was not unlawful when it assembled may later become unlawful. It is not necessary that the intention or the purpose, which is necessary to render an assembly an unlawful one, comes into existence at the outset. The time of forming an unlawful intent is not material.

51. We may further note that the object and motive is entertained in human minds and it being merely a mental attitude, no direct evidence can be available and, like intention, object of the assembly has to be gathered from the act which the person commits and the result therefrom. There cannot be any hard and fast rule to lay down the circumstance from which the common object can be culled out. It may reasonably be collected from the nature of the assembly, arms it carries and behavior at or before or after the scene of incident. The word 'knew' used in the second part of Section 149 implies something more than a possibility and it cannot be made to assume or presume that "it might have been known". Positive knowledge is necessary. When an offence is committed in prosecution of the common object, it would generally be an offence which the members of the unlawful assembly knew was likely to be committed in prosecution of the common object. The converse preposition, however, is not true. There may be cases which would come within the second part and not within the first part. The distinction between two parts of Section 149 cannot be ignored or obliterated. In every case, it would be an issue to be determined whether the offence committed falls within the first part or it was an offence such as the member of the assembly knew to be likely to be committed in prosecution of the common object and falls within the second part.

52. Keeping this in mind, the Apex Court in Chikkarange Gowda11 has made a distinction between first and second part of Section 149 and held that the High Court was not justified in law in conviction under Section 302 read with Section 149 IPC when it reached at the conclusion that the common object of the unlawful assembly was merely to administer a chastisement to deceased.

53. In light of the above legal position for invocation of Section 149 IPC, the crucial question before us to find out in the instant case as to whether the offence of murder was committed by accused Bhudhar in prosecution of common object of the unlawful assembly which was to kill deceased Bhikari Lal or that the act of firing was his individual act only.

54. Answer to this question is necessary to fix vicarious liability on accused-appellant Chander and convict him for the murder committed by accused Bhudhar.

55. Having analyzed the oral testimony, the whole basis of prosecution case in the surrounding circumstances noted above, we find that only this much is proved by the prosecution that accused persons came to the spot with the common object of assaulting deceased Bhikari Lal in order to teach him a lesson so that he may not enter in the witness box against them and in prosecution of their common object, they started assaulting Bhikari lal by Lathi. The deceased somehow managed to save himself and got only one blow of Lathi in his head, but his death was caused by the firing made by Bhudhar who opened the fire seeing the villagers/witnesses coming towards them. The act of Bhudhar in opening fire, in our considered opinion, seems to be his own individual act and not an act in prosecution of 'common object' of the unlawful assembly. We say so because to our minds had the accused persons formed the unlawful assembly with the common object to kill deceased Bhikari Lal, Bhudhar (who was carrying a gun) could have opened fire as soon as the accused party caught the victim party and fled the spot. It is evident that firing was opended by Bhudhar apprehending that they might be caught or attacked by the villagers who were approaching them. The act of Bhudhar appears to be spontaneous and not in furtherance of common object of the assembly.

56. We are convinced that the act of firing by Bhudhar cannot be attributed to the common object of the unlawful assembly and other members of that assembly cannot be held vicariously liable for the spontaneous act of one member of the assembly. But there cannot be a dispute that the appellant Chander was carrying Lathi which is proved from the statement of eye witnesses. The deceased was inflicted grievous injuries on his vital part (head) by the blow of Lathi. Mere fact that only one blow of Lathi was sustained by deceased, it cannot be said that the said injury cannot be attributed to the common object of the unlawful assembly. Being brother of the main assailant Bhudhar, it cannot be said that appellant Chander was not sharing the common object of the unlawful assembly to assault the deceased Bhikari Lal to teach him a lesson so that he may not appear in the witness box to depose against them.

57. Further, from the above conspectus of the facts and circumstances of the instant case, the common object of unlawful assembly can only be inferred to cause grievous injuries and not to kill the deceased. The assembly formed by five or more persons was unlawful from the beginning and they shared common object to cause grievous injuries to deceased but not to kill him and thereby committed offence punishable for "culpable homicide not amounting to murder". The act of Bhudhar in causing death of Bhikari Lal by opening fire during the course of the scuffle is found to be his own individual act and not in furtherance of common object of the unlawful assembly. The prosecution has not been able to bring any cogent evidence on record to prove that all the accused persons had shared the common object of committing murder or that they had positive knowledge that the offence of murder was likely to be committed in prosecution of that object. As the common object to kill or murder deceased is not proved and the testimony of prosecution witnesses is found doubtful in that respect, the benefit of doubt has to go in favour of the accused appellant Chander.

58. As far as the second part of Section 149 is concerned, in the totality of the facts and circumstances of the instant case, the appellant accused Chander can only be said to have shared the knowledge of common object of the unlawful assembly to cause grievous hurt to deceased. The knowledge that the act of unlawful assembly was likely to cause death of the deceased cannot be safely attributed to him.

59. In the instant case, the accused person came together armed with deadly weapons and started assaulting the deceased and another injured witness on the exhortation made by the appellant Chander. Up to that extent, the common object of the unlawful assembly to cause grievous injuries to the deceased with a view to teach him a lesson is proved by the prosecution. Beyond that point, the prosecution has not been able to bring any cogent evidence which would prove that other members of the unlawful assembly shared a common object or knowledge to kill deceased Bhikari Lal and in prosecution of that common object one of the accused Budher had opened fire from the gun carried by him.

60. We may note at the cost of repetition that deceased had sustained single blow of Lathi which may not be sufficient in ordinary course of nature to cause his death within the meaning of clause (3) of the Section 300 IPC. The appellant could be at best saddled with knowledge that the act of unlawful assembly might result in death of the person they attacked. It could not be assumed that he had knowledge that such a blow would cause death. He is, therefore, held liable for commission of the offence under Section 304 (part-II) of the IPC.

61. To the above extent, we do not agree with the conclusion drawn by the trial court. The trial court appears to have been swayed away by the motive assigned by the prosecution, to commit the crime. As far as the motive is concerned, it is well settled that motive is primarily known to the accused himself and it may not be possible for the prosecution to explain what actually prompted or excited the accused to commit a particular crime. In a case of direct evidence, motive is not of much importance. But when motive is proved it is evidence of the evil intention and is also relevant to show that the person who had the motive to commit the crime actually committed it. Significance or relevancy of motive would primarily depend upon the facts and circumstances of a given case.

62. In the instant case, even if we accept the presence of motive assigned by the prosecution to commit the crime, it would not be a factor which can be weighed in favour of the prosecution to hold that the common object of unlawful assembly was to commit murder or kill deceased Bhikari Lal. From a careful analysis of the oral testimony of prosecution witnesses we have concluded that common object of unlawful assembly was not to cause murder of deceased but to cause grievous injuries with a view to teach him a lesson not to appear in the witness box against them. Having held that we can not give much credence or undue importance to the motive assigned to the accused party so as to tilt the balance in favour of the prosecution or against accused appellant Chander so as to hold him liable for committing the offence of murder.

63. In light of the above discussion, in the totality of facts and circumstances of the instant case, we modify the judgement of the trial court to convict the accused appellant Chander being guilty of an offence under Section 304 (Part-II) IPC. In our considered opinion in the facts and circumstances of this case, the common object of unlawful assembly being one of causing grievous hurt with the deadly weapon by hitting deceased on his vital part (head), would make the appellant vicariously liable for conviction of an offence punishable under Section 304 (Part-II) IPC and a sentence of 7 years rigorous imprisonment with fine of Rs.10,000/- is to be awarded to him for the said offence. The conviction of appellant Chander for the offence under Section 147 IPC is, however, found justified. The sentence of six months rigorous imprisonment for the said offence awarded by the trial court to appellant Chander is hereby upheld. Both the above punishments are to run concurrently.

64. We are told that the appellant Chander has undergone some part of the sentence awarded to him by the courts below. He was earlier granted bail but is languishing in jail since 05.09.2019 in pursuance to the Non-bailable warrant dated 30.04.2019 issued by this Court in the present appeal. For the period of sentence undergone by appellant Chander, he is entitled to be given remission.

65. Computing the total period of the sentence undergone by appellant Chander, he be kept in the jail to serve out the remainder of sentence, if any. He shall be entitled to be released from jail only after serving out the sentence of 7 years rigorous imprisonment (maximum punishment awarded to him) and also on deposit of fine of Rs.10,000/-.

66. In case of non-deposit of fine imposed as above, the appellant Chander would be liable to serve further six months rigorous imprisonment.

67. With the above, the Appeal No.1768 of 1996 is partly allowed.

68. Certify this judgement to the court below for compliance.

69. Compliance report be submitted through the Registrar General, High Court, Allahabad.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pradeep Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri V.P. Srivastava, learned Senior Advocate, assisted by Sri Vikas Tiwari learned Advocate for the appellant, Sri V.S. Parmar and Sri Hari Om Singh learned Advocates for the complainant and Sri L.D. Rajbhar and Sri Prem Shankar Mishra learned AGA for the State-respondents.

2. This criminal appeal has been preferred against the judgment and order dated 23.10.1997, passed by District and Sessions Judge, Hamirpur, in Sessions Trial No. 299 of 1994 (State vs. Vidya Sagar Dwivedi), arising out of Case Crime No. 126 of 1994, under Sections 302/504 IPC, Police Station Kotwali, District Hamirpur, whereby the accused-appellant has been convicted and sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for life under Section 302 IPC.

3. Brief facts of the case is that the incident took place on 08.06.1994 at about 10:00 PM in the night at Village Tikrauli, Police Station Kotwali, District Hamirpur near the house of Ram Das Pal. The informant Jagjeet and the accused-appellant Vidya Sagar Dwivedi are residents of that village. On the date of incident, there was Tilak Ceremony of Tula Ram (son of informant), wherein his guests had come. His elder son namely Babu Lal (deceased) went to invite the guests for dinner who were staying in the neighbor house of Ramdas Pal and Rambharose. The informant Jagjeet and his brother Raghuveer were sitting on the Chabutara in front of their house. There was light of petromax and electricity. When Babu Lal reached to the electric pole near the house of Ram Das Pal, accused Vidya Sagar Dwivedi came with his licensee double barrel gun and said to Babu Lal using abusive language that "have you gone mad as you have not invited us in the Tilak". Saying this, the accused-appellant Vidya Sagar Dwivedi fired on Babu Lal by his licensee double barrel gun in order to cause death of Babu Lal. The fire hit Babu Lal in his armpit and he fell down. Thereafter, the informant and his brother reached there and they challenged the accused, whereupon, he ran away. The condition of Babu Lal was serious and he was immediately taken to Government Hospital, Hamirpur by a tractor. In the hospital, Babu Lal was examined and he was referred to Halat Hospital, Kanpur and from Halat Hospital, Kanpur, the injured was referred to Lucknow. On 22.06.1994 at about 08:40 PM, Babu Lal died because of the injuries caused by the accused Vidya Sagar.

4. Prior to the death of the injured, the informant Jagjeet after admitting the injured in Halat Hospital Kanpur, came back to Hamirpur on 11.06.1994 and got the written report inscribed by Kamlesh and gave the same to Kotwali, Hamirpur at 2:10 PM in the noon and on that basis, the offence was registered and chik FIR was prepared for the offence under Sections 307, 504 IPC. The Statement of Babu Lal was also recorded on 15.06.1994 in the Halat Hospital, Kanpur. On 23.06.1994, in the night at about 12:30 AM, the police prepared the inquest report of the deceased before the Panches along with the necessary letters and papers and the dead body was sealed and sent for postmortem. The postmortem was conducted in Lucknow on 24.06.19. The informant sent the death report of Babu Lal to the police through one Shyam Lal Sahu of the village and on that basis, the offence was converted under Sections 302 and 504 IPC. The Investigating Officer prepared the site map of the place of occurrence, took over possession of petromax and prepared memo thereof and delivered it back in the presence of the witnesses. The statement of Jagjeet, Ram Kishore, Prem Narayan were recorded by the Investigating Officer. Thereafter, the charge sheet was submitted against accused for the offence under Section 302 IPC. The charge was framed against the accused for the offence under Section 302 IPC who denied charge and claimed trial.

5. The prosecution examined as many as 13 witnesses in support of the prosecution case. PW-1 is Jagjeet, who is informant and eye witness. PW-2 Prem Narain, PW-3 Kamlesh, PW-4 Raghuvir are the witnesses of fact. PW-5 Tula Ram Sahu is a witness of inquest and memo of petromax delivered to police by him. PW-6 Dr. U.C. Sinha has proved the injury report of deceased. PW-7 Dr. T.N. Agarwal has conducted the postmortem of the deceased.

PW-8 SI Tulsi Ram Dohre, PW-9 SI Shri Krishna Vidyarthi, PW-10 Constable Ram Jeevan Bind, PW-11 Head Constable Ram Sanehi Pal, PW-12 Constable Brijesh Kumar Singh and PW-13 SI Tribhuwan are the formal witnesses and have proved the police papers.

6. After completion of the prosecution evidence, the statement of accused-appellant Vidya Sagar Dwivedi was recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C., wherein he has stated that the statements of the fact witnesses are false and they have given the false evidence because of group rivalry in the village and jealousy. He has also stated that in the Tilak, a ceremonial firing took place by the guests of the informant and the deceased sustained injuries and to save the guests, the informant has falsely implicated him in the present case. The defence examined Thakur Das as DW-1 in defence.

7. The learned trial court after hearing the prosecution and defence and considering the material available on record has passed the impugned judgment convicting and sentencing the accused appellant Vidya Sagar Dwivedi for the offence under Section 302 IPC.

8. Aggrieved by the impugned judgment, the accused-appellant has preferred this criminal appeal on the ground that the points which were raised by defence, were not considered by the learned trial court. The eye witnesses produced by the prosecution did not prove the case beyond shadow of doubt and the learned trial court has wrongly appreciated the evidence. It was also not considered that the accused was not having inimical relations with the accused. There was no motive for the commission of crime. The prosecution evidence is entirely different from the medical evidence and the conclusion arrived at by the learned trial court is illegal and arbitrary and the impugned judgment is liable to be quashed and the accused-appellant is entitled for acquittal.

9. Learned counsel for the accused-appellant has argued that the accused-appellant was falsely implicated in the present case and it was a case of ceremonial firing and by the firing of the relatives, the deceased sustained injuries and died. Further submission is that the incident took place on 08.06.1994 at about 10:00 PM in the night and the FIR has been lodged on 11.06.1994 at about 02:10 PM in the noon. Therefore, there is inordinate delay in lodging the FIR and the delay has not been explained by the prosecution. it has also been submitted that there is lack of adequate motive with the accused-appellant to commit the offence and all the fact witnesses who have been examined by the prosecution are relatives and closely associated with the complainant side and they gave false evidence to save their relatives. There is discrepancies and contradictions in the statements of the witnesses and on that account also, the prosecution version is doubtful.

10. On the other hand, learned AGA and the learned counsel for the complainant have submitted that the learned trial court after due appreciation of the evidence on record and finding that four eye witnesses have proved the prosecution case, convicted and sentenced the accused-appellant.

11. It appears necessary that the evidence given by the prosecution before the learned trial court may be referred in order to appreciate the legality and correctness of the findings of the learned trial court.

12. PW-1 Jagjeet is the informant and eye witness who has stated on oath that the accused Vidya Sagar Dwivedi belongs to his village. One year before, there was Tilak Ceremony of his younger son Tula Ram and the relatives from Chandpurwa had come and they stayed in the house of Ram Das and Ram Bharose. After the Tilak Ceremony, the informant and his younger brother Raghuveer were sitting on their door. Petromax and electricity lights were there. At about 10:00 PM in the night, his elder son Babu Lal went to invite the guests for dinner to the house of Ram Das Pal. Accused Vidya Sagar Dwivedi met him on the door with his double barrel licensee gun. The accused used abusive language using castist words and said Babu Lal that "have you gone mad and not invited us in the Tilak Ceremony." Thereafter, in order to kill the deceased, the accused fired on him by his gun which hit the deceased on his armpit. Babu Lal fell down. The incident was seen by the informant, his brother Raghuveer, Prem Narain and Ram Kishore in the light of electricity and petromax. Babu Lal was taken to the District Hospital, Hamirpur by tractor. His condition was serious and therefore, the informant did not go to lodge FIR. Babu Lal was taken to Halat Hospital, Kanpur, where he was put under treatment. Thereafter on 11.06.1994, he lodged FIR by getting the written report scribed by Kamlesh. The witness has further stated that because of the injuries, Babu Lal died in Lucknow Hospital. The witness has proved the written report as Ext. Ka-1.

13. PW-2 Prem Narain (eye witness) has stated that he knows Vidya Sagar (accused) who belongs to his village. One year before, on 08.06.1994, there was Tilak Ceremony of Tula Ram and the guests had come for Tilak Ceremony and they were staying in the house of Ram Das and Ram Bharose. He was attending the guests. At about 10:00 PM, in the night, Babu Lal (deceased) reached the door of Ram Das Pal to invite the guests. There was light of petromax and electricity. The accused Vidya Sagar Dwivedi came there with a double barrel licensee gun and started using abusive language saying why he did not invite him in the Tilak Ceremony and thereby insulting a "Brahmin". Thereafter, the accused fired with intention to kill Babu Lal and the fire hit him. The incident was seen by Jagjeet, Raghuveer, Ram Kishore and him. They all challenged the accused, whereupon, he fled away. Babu Lal was taken to District Hospital on tractor where from he was referred to Kanpur and from there, he was taken to Lucknow. Because of injuries, he died in Lucknow hospital.

14. PW-3 Kamlesh (inscriber of the written report) has stated that at about one year before, he had come to village Tikrauli to see his grandfather Ram Aadhar, who was seriously ill. There, guests had come for Tilak Ceremony of Tula Ram, the brother of Babu Lal. The guests were staying in the house of Ram Das. At about 10:00 PM, when Babu Lal reached on the door of Ram Das Pal. There was light of electricity and petromax. On the way, accused Vidya Sagar Dwivedi fired by his gun on Babu Lal on his stomach who sustained injury and fell down. Because of the injuries, after 14-15 days, Babu Lal died in the hospital. Babu Lal was first taken to District Hospital, Hamirpur. The FIR was lodged by Jagjeet. He scribed the report and after hearing the same, Jagjeet put his thumb impression on the report. The witness has stated that the name of the son of Ram Aadhar is Ram Prasad and he saw the incident from the house of Ram Aadhar and when Babu Lal sustained fire arm injury, he was near the house of Ram Das Pal.

15. PW-4 Raghuveer is also an eye witness. He has stated that on the date of incident, there was Tilak Ceremony of his nephew Tula Ram and for that the guests from Chandpurva had come and were staying in the house of Ram Das and Ram Bharose Sahu. He and his brother Jagjeet and other relatives were sitting on the Chabutara of his house. After the Tilak Ceremony, Babu Lal went to invite the guests for dinner. At that time, it was 10:00 PM in the night. There was electric light on the pole and patromax was also lightening. Babu Lal hardly reached to the door of Ram Das Pal, the accused Vidya Sagar Dwivedi, who was coming from the side of his house started abusing him by castist words and said, "have you gone mad and not called me, a "Brahaman," in the Tilak Ceremony." The accused was carrying a double barrel licensee gun and saying that Babu Lal had insulted a Brahamin, with the intention to kill, fired on Babu Lal. Babu Lal sustained injuries on his armpit. On hearing the sound of fire, he and his brother Jagjeet reached on the spot. The incident was seen by Prem Narain, Kamlesh and Binda also. On being challenged, accused Vidya Sagar Dwivedi ran away from there. Babu Lal was taken to District Hospital, Hamirpur by tractor, from where he was referred to Kanpur Halat Hospital. After three days, finding some improvement in the condition of the deceased, the report was lodged.

16. PW-5 Tula Ram has proved the inquest report and has stated that the inquest report was prepared before him on which he signed and thereafter the dead body was sent for postmortem. He gave two petromax to the SO as he asked for the same and the memo was prepared and he also signed on it. Thereafter the petromax was delivered back to him. At the time of evidence, petromax was placed before the trial court and the same was proved.

17. PW-6 Dr. U.C. Sinha, Surgeon, U.H.M. Hospital, Kanpur has stated that on 08.06.1994, he was posted as EMO, District Hospital, Hamirpur. In the night, at about 11:30 PM, Babu Lal Sahu aged about 25 years son of Jagjeet Sahu of village Tikrauli was brought to the hospital by Raghuveer Sahu and he was examined by him. He found following injury on the body of Babu Lal :

(1) Fire arm entry wound 2cm. x 1.5 cm. x cavity deep in stomach in oval shape on the front side and below the left ribs margin, 3 cm away from the middle line. The margin of the injury was torn and bending towards inside. There was blackening and tattooing. The nearby hairs were scorched. The injury was bleeding. X-ray was advised and the injured was admitted in the hospital.

18. The doctor has stated that the injury was fresh and was caused by fire arm which was kept under observation. The police was informed. He proved the medical report and stated that the injury was possibly caused on 08.06.1994 at 10:00 PM in the night. The injury must have been caused from the distance of 2 to 3 feet.

19. PW-7 Dr. T.N. Agarwal conducted postmortem of the dead body of Babu Lal on 23.06.1994. The dead body was sent by

SO, Police Station Cant, Lucknow. Babu Lal had died in the Command Hospital, Lucknow on 22.06.1994 at about 08:40 PM. Rigor Mortis was not found in the upper extremity and it was present in the lower extremity. Four pellets were recovered during postmortem which were put in an envelope and sealed. Following ante-mortem injuries were found on the body of deceased Babu Lal:

(1) 10 cm long wound with nine stitches on the upper left part of the abdomen.

(2) incised wound stitched internally with imprints of stitching externally 18 cm long extending from ..... to cm below ebulliences.

(3) Stitched wounds of 1.5 cm long with three stitches present on lateral aspect of chest 15 cm. below the left axilla.

(4) Five stitched wounds, 5 cm long present on lateral aspect of left side chest 8 cm below left axilla.

(6) Stitched wound with stitching of protrude intestine 3 cm in diameter present one on left side and other on right side of abdomen.

(7) septic wound 1.5 x 1.5 cm .....(not readable paper being torn)

The doctor has stated that the injuries found on the body of the deceased were sufficient to cause death.

20. PW-8 SI Tulsi Ram has stated that on 23.06.1994, he was posted as Sub Inspector, Police Station Cant. With reference to Report No. 15 of 10:30 AM of that date, he went to Command Hospital mortuary with Constable Brijest Kumar Singh for preparing the inquest report. The people and relatives of family who were present in the mortuary were made Panch witnesses of the inquest. He prepared the inquest report and sealed the dead body and prepared the other papers proved as Exts. Ka-7 to Ka-9 and sent the dead body for postmortem.

21. PW-9 IO Shri Krishna Vidyarthi has stated that on 13.06.1994, he got the investigation of the case, went to the place of occurrence on 13.06.1994 and recorded the statements of Jagjeet, Ramkishore, Prem Narain and inspected the place of occurrence. On 15.06.1994, he recorded the statement of the injured Babu Lal and of witness Reghuveer. On 22.06.1994, the accused Vidya Sagar Dwivedi had surrendered before the court. Thereafter the investigation was taken over by Sri T.P. Banaudha, SHO. He has further stated that he went to the place of occurrence but he did not get any blood there as it was a public way and the blood was already destroyed. He prepared the site map of the place of occurrence on the identification of the informant Jagjeet. The witness has also proved the chik FIR as secondary witness.

22. PW-10 Constable Ram Jeevan Bind has stated that on 11.06.1994 at about 02:10 PM in the noon, the informant Jagjeet gave a written report on the basis of which the offence was registered and chik FIR was prepared.

23. PW-11 Head Constable Ram Sanehi has proved the written report regarding the death of Babu Lal in the Hospital which was entered into the GD Report No.14 at 11:00 AM on 24.06.1994 and the offence was converted into that of Section 302 IPC.

24. PW-12 Constable Brijesh Kumar Singh has stated that he took the dead body with relevant papers and letter of CMO and delivered the same for postmortem. Thereafter he submitted postmortem report in the police station.

25. PW-13 Inspector Tribhuan has stated that in the year 1994, he was In-charge Inspector of PS Kotwali, Hamirpur. On 11.06.1994, the case was registered in his presence. Initially it was investigated by SI R.K. Vidyarthi. On 24.06.1994, the death report of Babu Lal was given by Shyam Pal Shahu and the offence was converted into Section 302 IPC. On 26.06.1994, he took over the investigation and recorded the statements of some of the witnesses, obtained the injury report of Babu Lal from Jagjeet Sahu and inner wear of the deceased and memo was prepared and was sealed before the witnesses. The clothes of the deceased were also sealed. The witness has proved the clothes and has stated that he recorded the statement of witnesses of inquest report and other witnesses and thereafter submitted charge sheet. He has been recalled and re-examined as CW-1 and he stated that on 15.06.1994, he recorded the statement of injured Babu Lal in the Halat Hospital. At that time the injured was conscious. The witness has submitted a copy of his statement which was recorded by him in the case diary and the same was proved by the witness as Ext. Ka-14.

26. After the statement recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. of the accused appellant Vidya Sagar Dwivedi, DW-1 Constable Thakur Das was was examined who proved the GD report dated 09.06.1994 which he brought and submitted on being summoned by the court.

27. The first argument of the learned counsel to the accused-appellant is that the FIR has been lodged on the fourth day from the date of incident and as such, it is grossly delayed. From the perusal of the written report on the basis of which offence has been registered and chick FIR has been prepared, we find that the incident took place on 8.6.1994 at 10 PM and the FIR has been lodged on 11.6.1994 at 2.10 PM. In the FIR, it has been stated that in the incident, Babu Lal sustained firearm injuries and his condition was critical and serious. He was taken to District Hospital, Hammirpur and finding his conditions to be serious, he was referred to Helat Hospital, Kanpur where he was kept under treatment. PW-1 informant Jagjeet has stated that he was referred to Military Hospital, Lucknow on the fourth day. He has stated that he came back on the fourth day to his village and and got the written report scribed by Kamlesh and lodged FIR by giving the report to the Police. He has stated that because the condition of Babu Lal was serious, he could not go to lodge FIR earlier. It is pertinent to mention that the injured remained in treatment and on 22.6.1994, he died during treatment. His death and his being under treatment continuously till he died further shows his serious condition after he got injured in the incident.

28. The Supreme Court has time and again expressed the view that delay in lodging FIR is not relevant if the prosecution has explained the delay by giving reasonable explanation. Thus, Marudanal Augusti v State of Kerala 1979 CAR (SC) 296 , the Supreme Court has observed:

"The entire fabric of the prosecution case would collapse if the FIR is held to be fabricated or brought into existence long after the occurrence and any number of witnesses could be added without there being anything to check the authenticity of their evidence."

29. In Meharaj Singh v State of UP (1994) 5 SCC 188, it was laid down by the Court:

"FIR in a criminal case and particularly in a murder case is a vital and valuable piece of evidence for the purpose of appreciating the evidence led at the trial. The object of insisting upon prompt lodging of the FIR is to obtain the earliest information regarding the circumstance in which the crime was committed, including the names of the actual culprits and the parts played by them, the weapons, if any, used, as also the names of the eyewitnesses, if any. Delay in lodging the FIR often results in embellishment, which is a creature of an afterthought. On account of delay, the FIR not only gets bereft of the advantage of spontaneity, danger also creeps in of the introduction of a coloured version or exaggerated story."

30. Again, in State of HP v Gian Chand (2001) 6 SCC 71 followed by Dilawar Singh v State of Delhi (2007) 12 SCC 641, the Supreme Court expressed the view as under:

"Delay sometimes affords opportunity to the complainant to make deliberation upon the complaint and to make embellishment or even make fabrications. Delay defeats the chance of the unsoiled and untarnished version of the case to be presented before the court at the earliest instance. That is why if there is delay in either coming before the police or before the court, the courts always view the allegations with suspicion and look for satisfactory explanation. If no such satisfaction is formed, the delay is treated as fatal to the prosecution case."

31. In Ashok Kumar Chaudhary v State of Bihar, 2008 (61) ACC 972 (SC) and Mukesh v State for NCT of Delhi, AIR 2017 SC 2161 and Mallikarjun v State of Karnataka, 2019 (4) Crimes 468 (SC), it has been held that in lodging of FIR, if causes are not attributable to any effort to concoct a version and the delay is satisfactorily explained by prosecution, no consequence shall be attached to mere delay in lodging FIR and the delay would not adversely affect the case of the prosecution.

32. In the case in hand, it is clear that the son of the informant sustained firearm injury and was taken to District Hospital and from there he was referred to Halat Hospital, Kanpur. In such situation, the primary consideration of the family was to first ensure best available treatment to the injured. The Supreme Court has laid down in Ravi Kumar v State of Punjab, AIR 2005 SC 1929 that the concern of the relatives of the victim of deadly assault is first to save life of the victim. PW-1 has stated that the condition of the deceased was serious and therefore, he could not go to lodge FIR. We find that in the facts and circumstances of the case, there is no delay in lodging the FIR and, for the sake of argument, if it is assumed that there is delay in lodging FIR, the prosecution has adequately and reasonably explained the delay.

33. It has been further argued by the learned counsel that the incident took place in the night at 10 PM and there was not enough light to identify the assailant. The Supreme Court has clarified the law on this point in various judgments and has laid down that a witness, who is accustomed to live in darkness, poor light or no light, and acquainted with the accused, can identify the accused even in darkness. In Kalika Tewari v State of Bihar, JT 1997(4) SC 405, the Supreme Court held,

"The visible capacity of urban people who are acclimatized to fluorescent light is not the standard to be applied to villagers whose optical potency is attuned to country made lamps. Visibility of villagers is conditioned to such lights and hence it would be quite possible for them to identify men and matters in such lights."

34. In Ram Gulam Chowdhary v State of Bihar, 2001(2) JIC 986 (SC), it was argued that it was not possible for the eye witnesses to have identified the accused persons in poor light of lantern in the night. The Supreme Court rejected the argument and remarked that "as the incident took place in village and the visibility of villagers are conditioned to such lights and it would be quite possible for the eye witnesses to identify men and matters in such light."

35. In Sheoraj Bapuray Jadhav v State of Karnataka, (2003) 6 SCC 392, in a trial u/s 302/34 IPC, accused persons were known to prosecution witnesses. Occurrence had taken place at about 11.00 PM, two days prior to the new moon day. Parties were used to live in the midst of nature and accustomed to live without light. Further, they were close relatives and living in the neighboring huts. Similarly, in State of UP v Sheo Lal, AIR 2009 SC 1912, the murder had taken place at night and the source of light was not indicated in the FIR and the accused and the eye witnesses were closely related. It has been held by the Supreme Court in both the cases that the evidence of eye witnesses cannot be discarded on the basis of non-disclosure of source of light or insufficiency of light as well-acquainted persons can be well identified in darkness. In Durbal v State of UP, 2011 CrLJ 1106 (SC) and Hari Singh v State of UP, AIR 2011 SC 360, Where the parties belonged to the same village and were well known to each other, it has been held that merely because torch not taken into possession by the IO would not mean that witnesses were not credible and conviction under Section 302 IPC was held proper.

36. In this case, it has been mentioned in FIR that there was Tilak Ceremony of the younger brother of the deceased. All the fact witnesses have stated during trial that because of the Tilak Ceremony, there was enough light all around of electric and petromax and they saw the accused causing fire on deceased by his double barrel gun by which the deceased sustained serious injury. The fact of Tilak Ceremony of the younger brother of the deceased has not been denied by the defence. On the contrary, it has been defence version that in ceremonial firing on the occasion of Tilak, the deceased sustained injury of firearm. Two petromax was taken into possession during investigation by IO and delivered back to the younger brother Tularam and it also supports the version of prosecution regarding the source and availability of light on the place of occurrence at the time of incident. We find no contradiction in the statements of fact witnesses on this point. As such, there is no force in the submission of the learned counsel to the accused-appellant.

37. Other argument is regarding presence and credibility of the eye-witnesses. The submission of the learned counsel for the accused-appellant is that out of four witnesses of fact examined by the prosecution, PW-1 Jagjit is informant who is father of deceased and PW-4 Raghuveer is his real brother and he is the only witness, besides informant, whose name finds mention in the FIR. They are related and highly interested witnesses and their testimony requires strict scrutiny before placing reliance. The name of PW-2 Prem Narain is not named in FIR whereas, PW-4 Kamlesh is scriber of written report and he belongs to other village, not mentioned in FIR as eyewitness, whose presence at the time of incident is doubtful, and in any case he is only a chance witness and cannot be relied.

38. So far as the argument in respect of related witness is concerned, in the fact and circumstances of the case, they are the most natural witnesses. They are brothers and they live together. The Tilak of the son of informant had taken place and the guest and relatives were gathered there in whose presence the incident took place. It was month of June also and the time of incident being 10 PM, it cannot be said that the people must have gone to sleep or their presence out side the house is any how unnatural.

39. The law in respect of the testimony of related witnesses has been time and again reiterated by the Supreme Court that the testimony of related witnesses cannot be discarded merely on the basis of relationship. The only requirement is that the testimony of such witness should be scrutinized cautiously and carefully. In Dalip Singh v State of Punjab (1954) SCR 145, while rejecting the argument that witnesses who are close-relatives of the victim should not be relied upon, the Court held as under:

"A witness is normally to be considered independent unless he or she springs from sources which are likely to be tainted and that usually means unless the witness has cause, such as enmity against the accused, to wish to implicate him falsely. Ordinarily, a close relative would be the last to screen the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent person. It is true, when feelings run high and there is personal cause for enmity, that there is a tendency to drag in an innocent person against whom a witness has a grudge along with the guilty, but foundation must be laid for such a criticism and the mere fact of relationship far from being a foundation is often a sure guarantee of truth. However, we are not attempting any sweeping generalisation. Each case must be judged on its own facts. Our observations are only made to combat what is so often put forward in cases before us as a general rule of prudence. There is no such general rule. Each case must be limited to and be governed by its own facts."

40. In Masalti v State of UP AIR 1965 SC 202, the Supreme Court observed:

"But it would, we think, be unreasonable to contend that evidence given by witnesses should be discarded only on the ground that it is evidence of partisan or interested witnesses. ... The mechanical rejection of such evidence on the sole ground that it is partisan would invariably lead to failure of justice."

41. The Supreme Court has also taken the view that related witness does not necessarily mean or is equivalent to an interested witness. A witness may be called interested only when he or she derives some benefit from the result of litigation; a decree in a civil case, or in seeing a person punished in a criminal trial. In Darya Singh v State of Punjab, AIR 1965 SC 328, followed by State of UP v Kishanpal (2008) 16 SCC 73, the Court held as under:

"On principle, however, it is difficult to accept the plea that if a witness is shown to be a relative of the deceased and it is also shown that he shared the hostility of the victim towards the assailant, his evidence can never be accepted unless it is corroborated on material particulars."

42. Again, in Appa v State of Gujarat, AIR 1988 SC 698, the Court has observed:

"Experience reminds us that civilized people are generally insensitive when crime is committed even in their presence. They withdraw from both, victim and vigilant. They keep themselves away from the Court. They take crime as a civil dispute. This kind of apathy of general public is indeed unfortunate but it is everywhere whether in village life or town and city. One cannot ignore this handicap. Evidence of witnesses has to be appreciated keeping in view such ground realities. Therefore, the Court instead of doubting the prosecution case where no independent witness has been examined must consider the broad spectrum of the prosecution version and then search for the nugget of truth with due regard to probability, if any suggested by the accused."

43. Similar view has been taken in State of AP v S. Rayappa (2006) 4 SCC 512, where the court observed that it is now almost a fashion that public is reluctant to appear and depose before the court especially in criminal cases and the cases for that reason itself are dragged for years and years. The Court stated the principle as follows:

" ....by now, it is a well-established principle of law that testimony of a witness otherwise inspiring confidence cannot be discarded on the ground that he being a relation of the deceased is an interested witness. A close relative who is a very natural witness cannot be termed as interested witness. The term interested postulates that the person concerned must have some direct interest in seeing the accused person being convicted somehow or the other either because of animosity or some other reasons."

44. Further, in Pulicherla Nagaraju @ Nagaraja Reddy v State of AP (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 500, the Supreme Court has held as under:

"In this case, we find that the trial court had rejected the evidence of PW1 and PW2 merely because they were interested witnesses being the brother and father of the deceased. But it is well settled that evidence of a witness cannot be discarded merely on the ground that he is either partisan or interested or closely related to the deceased, if it is otherwise, found to be trustworthy and credible. It only requires scrutiny with more care and caution, so that neither the guilty escape nor the innocent wrongly convicted. If on such careful scrutiny, the evidence is found to be reliable and probable, it can be acted upon. If it is found to be improbable or suspicious, it ought to be rejected. Where the witness has a motive to falsely implicate the accused, his testimony should have corroboration in regard to material particulars before it is accepted."

45. Similarly, in Satbir Singh v State of UP, (2009) 13 SCC 790, the Court has held as under:-

"It is now a well-settled principle of law that only because the witnesses are not independent ones may not by itself be a ground to discard the prosecution case. If the prosecution case has been supported by the witnesses and no cogent reason has been shown to discredit their statements, a judgment of conviction can certainly be based thereupon....."

46. In M.C. Ali v State of Kerala AIR 2010 SC 1639; and Himanshu v State (NCT of Delhis, (2011) 2 SCC 36, Bhajan Singh and others v State of Haryana; (2011) 7 SCC 421, it was laid down that evidence of a related witness can be relied upon provided it is trustworthy. Again, in Jayabalan v U.T. of Pondicherry, 2010(68) ACC 308 (SC), the Supreme Court has made following observation:

"We are of the considered view that in cases where the court is called upon to deal with the evidence of the interested witnesses, the approach of the court, while appreciating the evidence of such witnesses must not be pedantic. The court must be cautious in appreciating and accepting the evidence given by the interested witnesses but the court must not be suspicious of such evidence. The primary endeavour of the court must be to look for consistency. The evidence of a witness cannot be ignored or thrown out solely because it comes from the mouth of a person who is closely related to the victim."

47. Dharnidhar v State of UP, (2010) 7 SCC 759 referred the above observation of Jaya Balan (supra) and held that there is no hard and fast rule that family members can never be true witnesses to the occurrence and that they will always depose falsely before the Court. It will always depend upon the facts and circumstances of a given case. Similar view has been taken in Ram Bharosey v State of UP AIR 2010 SC 917, where the Court stated that a close relative of the deceased does not become an interested witness. An interested witness is one who is interested in securing the conviction of a person out of vengeance or enmity or due to disputes and deposes before the Court only with that intention and not to further the cause of justice.

48. Again, in Balraje @ Trimbak v State of Maharashtra, (2010) 6 SCC 673, it has been held that when the eye-witnesses are stated to be interested and inimically deposed against the accused, it would not be proper to conclude that they would shield the real culprit and rope in innocent person. The truth or otherwise of the evidence has to be weighed pragmatically. The Court would be required to analyze the evidence of related witnesses and those witnesses who are inimical towards the accused. But if after careful analysis and scrutiny of their evidence, the version given by the witnesses appears to be clear, cogent and credible, there is no reason to discard the same.

49. Subsequently, in Jalpat Rai v State of Haryana AIR 2011 SC 2719 and Waman v State of Maharashtra AIR 2011 SC 3327, it was observed that the over-insistence on witnesses having no relation with the victims often results in criminal justice going away. The testimony of a witness in a criminal trial cannot be discarded merely because the witness is a relative or family member of the victim of the offence. This view has been reiterated in Shyam Babu v State of UP, AIR 2012 SC 3311, Dhari & Others v State of UP, AIR 2013 SC 308 and Bhagwan Jagannath Markad (supra). Recently, in Ganapathi v State of Tamilnadu, AIR 2018 SC 1635, the Court found no force in the argument that the conviction based on the evidence of family members in a murder trial is not sustainable. In Rupinder Singh Sandhu v State of Punjab, (2018) 16 SCC 475, it has been reiterated by the Supreme Court that relationship by itself will not render the witness untrustworthy. The Supreme Court laid down as below:

"Relationship is not a factor to affect credibility of a witness. It is more often than not that a relation would not conceal the actual culprit and make allegations against an innocent person. Foundation has to be laid if plea of false implication is made. In such cases, the court has to adopt a careful approach and analyse evidence to find out whether it is cogent and credible. ..... A witness is normally to be considered independent unless he or she springs from sources which are likely to be tainted and that usually means unless the witness has cause, such as enmity against the accused, to wish to implicate him falsely. Ordinarily, a close relative would be the last to screen the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent person. It is true, when feelings run high and there is personal cause for enmity, that there is a tendency to drag in an innocent person against whom a witness has a grudge along with the guilty, but foundation must be laid for such a criticism and the mere fact of relationship far from being a foundation is often a sure guarantee of truth."

50. Thus, in view of aforementioned decisions of the Supreme Court, it is settled position of law that the statements of the interested witnesses can be safely relied upon by the court in support of the prosecution story. But this needs to be done with care and to ensure that the administration of criminal justice is not undermined by the persons who are closely related to the deceased and inimical with the accused. When their statements find corroboration by other evidence, expert evidence and the circumstances of the case clearly depict completion of the chain of evidence pointing out to the guilt of the accused, then there is no reason as to why the statement of so-called 'interested witnesses' cannot be relied upon by the Court. It would be hard to believe that the close relatives shall leave the real culprit and shall implicate innocent persons falsely simply because they have enmity with the accused persons.

51. So far as the non-mentioning of the other two eye-witnesses in the FIR is concerned, it makes hardly any difference. In Jarnail Singh v State of Punjab, 2009 (6) Supreme 526, Bhagwan Jagannath Markad v State of Maharashtra, (2016) 10 SCC 537 and Ramji Singh v State of UP, 2019 (4) Crimes 585 (SC), it has been held that the FIR is not the encyclopedia of all the facts relating to crime. The only requirement is that at the time of lodging FIR, the informant should state all those facts which normally strike to mind and help in assessing the gravity of the crime or identity of the culprit briefly. In Raj Kishore Jha v State of Bihar, 2003(47) ACC 1068 (SC) and Chittarlal v State of Rajasthan, (2003) 6 SCC 397, it has been laid down that mentioning of names of all witnesses in FIR or in statements u/s 161 CrPC is not a requirement of law. Such witnesses can also be examined by prosecution with the permission of the court. Non-mentioning of the name of any witness in the FIR would not justify rejection of evidence of the eye-witness.

52. PW-3 Kamlesh has been said to be chance witness as he belongs to another village Banjauli and it has been said that he was not a guest on the occasion of Tilak. In his statement, he has stated that he had gone to village Tikrauli at the time of incident to see his grandfather Ramadhar who was running sick. He has further stated that he saw the incident from the house of Ramadhar. The witness has stated that he also comes from the family of deceased and he is a cousin brother. He has denied the suggestion given to him during cross-examination that he was not present there and did not see the incident. In Ramesh v State of UP, 2010 (68) ACC 219 (SC) and Kallu v State of Haryana, AIR 2012 SC 3212, it has been laid down that it is not the rule of law that chance witness cannot be believed. The reason for a chance witness being present on the spot and his testimony requires close scrutiny and if the same is otherwise found reliable, his testimony cannot be discarded merely on the ground of his being a chance witness. Evidence of chance witness requires very cautious and close scrutiny. The witness has not been challenged from the side of defence on the point of sickness of his grandfather nor on the point that he lives in the same locality. Therefore, we find that the presence of the witness is natural. He has given vivid description of the incident in which the accused caused firearm injury to the deceased. He has also stated that he scribed the written report on the dictation of Jagjeet who after hearing the same, put his thumb impression. He has further stated that he had gone to Hospital at Hammirpur with injured and had also gone to Police Station with informant to lodge the FIR.

53. We also find that the other fact witnesses have narrated the incident in the like manner and there is no unusual contradiction, discrepancy or improvement in their evidence. They all have stated that the moment the deceased reached to the door of the house of Ram Das Pal, the accused met him, challenged him angrily for not inviting him on Tilak which was an insult of a brahmin like him and shot fire causing injury by the double barrel gun he was carrying with him. All the witnesses have stated that there was sufficient light of electricity and petromax at the place of occurrence and this fact appears to be correct in view of occasion of Tilak Ceremony of the younger brother of deceased.

54. Place of occurrence has been shown by the IO in the site map prepared by him during investigation which is Ext. Ka-10 which was prepared as pointed out by the informant and other witnesses. There is a pathway from north to south and on both sides of the pathway, houses of the inhabitants of that locality have been shown which includes the house of informant where Tilak Ceremony took place and the house of Ramdas Pal and Rambharose where the guests were staying. The informant and his brother Raghuveer and others were sitting on the chabutara shown as B which is situated in front of the house of informant and seemingly, the place of incident shown as A is visible from there and is situated at about 50 steps away and this has been also stated by PW-1 in his statement. From the house side, the deceased went towards the house of Ramdas Pal where the guests were staying, to invite them for dinner. Seeing that the deceased fell down on sustaining injury, informant and his brother rushed to the place. The IO has demonstrated appropriately the places from where the witnesses saw the accused firing on deceased and the number of houses shown on both sides and in view of Tilak Ceremony, many more persons must have seen the incident. IO has also shown the electric poll and the places where petromaxes were lighting. It has been argued from the side of defence that no pellet or blood stains were recovered from the place of occurrence which creates doubt whether such incident took place there. PW-9 SO Sri Krishna Vidyarthi (IO) who has prepared and proved site map has stated that he got the investigation on 13.6.1994 and on inspection of spot, he did not find any blood stains as more than 7 days were passed and the place of occurrence being a pathway, blood stains were destroyed. We find that the explanation given by the prosecution is convincing as on the fourth day from the date of incident, the FIR was lodged and place of occurrence being on the pathway, the blood stains must have been destroyed. All the four witnesses have proved the place of occurrence as mentioned in the site map prepared by the IO. As such, we do not find any force in the submission on this point and the place of occurrence has been fully established.

55. Certain discrepancies, improvement and contradictions have been pointed out in the statements of fact witnesses. It has been said that in the FIR, it has been written that the Tilak was to take place, but, all the witnesses have stated that Tilak Ceremony was over when the incident took place. PW-1 has been cross-examined on this point and he has stated that he does not see any difference between the two. We find that all the fact witnesses have stated that when the incident took place, the Tilak Ceremony was over and the deceased was going to invite the guests for dinner. It has been further pointed out that PW-1 has stated that when the Inspector took statement of the deceased in Kanpur Halat Hospital, the FIR was not lodged whereas, CW-1 has stated that he took the statement of deceased on 15.6.1994 in the presence of Raghuveer and the injured was conscious and on his statement, Raghuveer also signed. The FIR was lodged on 11.6.1994. The defence has not clarified during cross-examination that PW-1 stated so with reference to the statement of deceased which was recorded by CW-1. It should also be taken into consideration that the witness is rustic, illiterate villager and he may not have any idea on such technical matter. CW-1 has not been put any question regarding presence of PW-1 at the relevant time when the statement of deceased was recorded. Apparently, the statement given by PW-1 referred above in 'italics' is not correct and appears to have been given in some confusion and it cannot be given any weight as it does not go to the root of the prosecution case.

56. It has been also pointed out that PW-3 Kamlesh has stated that for lodging FIR, he, Jagjeet, his son Ramcharan and his brother Raghuveer had gone to Police Station. Whereas, PW-4 Raghuveer has stated that Jagjeet went back to Hammirpur to lodge FIR and he stayed in Kanpur Hospital. PW-1 Informant has also stated that with him, Kamlesh also went to Police Station to lodge FIR. GD report dated 11.6.1994, Ext. Ka-12, also makes mention that Jagjeet with Kamlesh came and gave written report scribed by Kamlesh on the basis of which offence was registered against accused for the offence under section 307/504 IPC. Had Raghuveer been also accompanying, the same must have found mention in the GD. We find that the statement of PW-3 Kamlesh is to that extent is incorrect and mistaken. But this mistake hardly impacts the credibility of witness.

57. It needs to be mentioned that where own son of 25 years in age who was in army and the eyewitnesses were in close relation of the victim, in such a horrendous situation, the witnesses are not supposed to be perfectionist to give the exact account of the incident and narrate every aspect related thereto in cyclostyle form. Some sort of contradiction, improvement and embellishment is bound to occur in the statement. As laid down in State of UP v Naresh; 2011 (75) ACC 215) (SC), in all criminal cases, normal discrepancies are bound to occur in the depositions of witnesses due to normal errors of observation, namely, errors of memory due to lapse of time or due to mental disposition such as shock and horror at the time of occurrence. Minor contradictions, inconsistencies, embellishments or improvements on trivial matters which do not affect the core of the prosecution case, should not be made a ground on which the evidence can be rejected in its entirety. The Court has to form its opinion about the credibility of the witness and record a finding as to whether his deposition inspires confidence.

58. In Gosu Jayarami Reddy and another v State of Andhra Pradesh; (2011) 3 SCC(Cri) 630, it was observed that Courts need to be realistic in their expectation from the witnesses and go by what would be reasonable based on ordinary human conduct with ordinary human frailties of memory and power to register events and their details. A witness who is terrorized by the brutality of the attack cannot be disbelieved only because in his description of who hit the deceased on what part of the body there is some mix-up or confusion.

59. Further, in Parsu Ram Pandey v/s State of Bihar AIR 2004 SC 5068, Shivappa v State of Karnataka; AIR 2682, Ramchandaran v/s State of Kerala AIR 2011 SC 3581, it was held that minor discrepancies or some improvements would not justify rejection of the testimonies of the eye-witnesses, if they are otherwise reliable. Some discrepancies are bound to occur because of the sociological background of the witnesses as also the time gap between the date of occurrence and the date on which they give their depositions in Court. In Mukesh v State for NCT of Delhi, AIR 2017 SC 2161 and Bhagwan Jagannath Markad v State of Maharashtra, (2016) 10 SCC 53, it was reiterated that minor contradictions in the testimonies of the prosecution witness are bound to be there and in fact they go to support the truthfulness of the witnesses. In view of the above, we are of the view that there is nothing in the deposition of the eye-witnesses on the basis of which their evidence can be discarded.

60. The learned counsel has submitted that it was specific case of defence as stated in the statement under section 313 that the deceased sustained injuries in ceremonial firing on the occasion of Tilak. PW-3 Kamlesh has stated that there was ceremonial firing on the occasion of Tilak and his statement supports the defence version. We find that the defence version in fact goes to corroborate at least the fact that the deceased sustained firearm injuries on the place, date and time of incident. Except PW-3, other witnesses of fact, PW-1, PW-2 and PW-4, have denied that any ceremonial firing took place. Even if it so happened, it is not possible to jump to a conclusion that the deceased sustained injuries in ceremonial firing, particularly when all the four eye-witnesses have categorically stated that they saw the accused firing on the deceased who sustained injuries and fell down.

61. Another submission is with regards to the credibility of the dying declaration which has been recorded by IO.

The submission of the learned counsel is that the dying declaration has been recorded by IO which is not admissible and cannot be relied upon. It has been also submitted that there is no certification of the doctor regarding mental and otherwise fitness of the of the injured at the time of giving statement to the IO. Para 115 of the Police Regulation has also not been complied with.

62. In Bijoy Das v State of West Bengal, (2008) 4 SCC 511 and Jayabalan v U.T. of Pondicherry, 2010 (68) ACC 308 (SC), it has been held that it is settled law that a dying declaration is an important piece of evidence under section 32(1) of the Evidence Act and if a dying declaration is found to be true and voluntary and is not a result of tutoring or prompting or a product of imagination then there is no need for corroboration by any witness and conviction can be recorded on its basis alone. In Narain Singh Vs. State of Haryana, (2004) 13 SCC 264, the Supreme Court explained the sanctity of dying declaration and said that a person on the verge of his death has a special sanctity as at that solemn moment a person is most unlikely to make any untrue statement. The shadow of impending death is by itself guarantee of the truth of the statement of the deceased regarding the circumstances leading to his death. The mind gets altered by most powerful ethical reasons to speak only the truth. Great solemnity and sanctity is attached to the words of a dying person because a person on the verge of death is not likely to tell lies or to concoct a case so as to implicate an innocent person.

63. In State of Gujarat Vs. Jayrajbhai Punjabhai Varu, AIR 2016 SC 3218, the Supreme Court has laid down the principle for appreciation of dying declaration and has remarked that the courts have to be extremely careful when they deal with a dying declaration as the maker thereof is not available for the cross-examination which poses a great difficulty to the accused person. A mechanical approach in relying upon a dying declaration just because it is there, is extremely dangerous. The Court has to examine a dying declaration scrupulously with a microscopic eye to find out whether the dying declaration is voluntary, truthful, made in a conscious state of mind and without being influenced by the relatives present or by the investigating agency who may be interested in the success of investigation or which may be negligent while recording the dying declaration. The Court has to weigh all the attendant circumstances and come to the independent finding whether the dying declaration was properly recorded and whether it was voluntary and truthful. Once the Court is convinced that the dying declaration is so recorded, it may be acted upon and can be made a basis of conviction.

64. In Laxman v State of Maharashtra, (2002) 6 SCC 710, a Five-Judge Bench of the Supreme Court has held that certificate by doctor as to mental fitness of the deceased is not necessary in all cases because certificate by doctor is only a rule of caution. Voluntary and truthful nature of the declaration can be established otherwise also. But it must be proved that the maker was in a position to make dying declaration and it is not a result of tutoring or imagination. Recording of dying declaration by Magistrate is not mandatory and the same can be recorded by any person. It is also not necessary that Magistrate must be present, although to provide authenticity a Magistrate is usually called. No oath is required for dying declaration. A dying declaration cannot be rejected merely because it is not recorded in question and answer form but in the narrative form. Dying declaration can be made by gestures also. If evidence shows that he/she was conscious and in stable position, dying declaration cannot be discarded because of grave injury. The Court observed:

"The justice theory regarding acceptability of a dying declaration is that such declaration is made in extremity, when the party is at the point of death and when every hope of this world is gone, when every motive to falsehood is silenced, and the man is induced by the most powerful consideration to speak only the truth. Notwithstanding the same, great caution must be exercised in considering the weight to be given to this species of evidence on account of the existence of many circumstances which may effect their truth."

65. In State of Karnataka v. Sheriff; AIR 2003 SC 1074 and Gulam Hussain v State of Delhi, AIR 2000 SC 2480, it has been held that a dying declaration can also be recorded by police personals and it cannot be discarded merely because it has been recorded by a police personnel. Evidence of state of mind can be given by witnesses who heard and saw the dying declaration being given by the injured.

66. Applying the principle of law discussed above, we find that the statement of the deceased was recorded by the IO in the hospital in this case in presence of the eye-witness PW-4 Raghuveer who signed on the statement. CW-1 who has proved the dying declaration as Ext. Ka-14 has stated that the injured was in a conscious state of mind. The dying declaration shows that the injured narrated the whole incident and stated that when he was going to invite guests for dinner after Tilak Ceremony, the accused Vidya Sagar met in front of the house of Ramdas with a double barrel gun, used abusive language and out of old enmity fired on his stomach from very close distance in order to kill him. He sustained injury. His father and uncle rushed towards him. He then became unconscious. It is established by evidence on record that the deceased remained hospitalized for treatment and died in the hospital after 14 days. The dying declaration was recored on 15.6.1994 and after 7 days, the injured died in the hospital.

67. The learned trial court has considered the statement of the deceased to be dying declaration and there appears to be no illegality in it. It has been argued that while recording the said dying declaration, the IO has not complied with the requirement of Para 115 of the Police Regulation which requires it to be recorded in presence of two respectable witnesses obtaining their signature or thumb impression and the same should be signed by the deceased also. There are two reasons that we are not inclined to attach any importance to this guideline provided in Para 115 of the Police Regulation. Firstly, it cannot have an overriding effect on statutory provisions, and secondly, it cannot be made applicable to a statement recorded by the IO under section 161 of the Criminal Procedure Code for which the signature of the witness is not required to be taken. There is yet another reason why we do not deem it necessary to attach any importance to it as in this instant case, the conviction is not based on the dying declaration and there are four eye-witnesses who have proved the prosecution version and the dying declaration also finds support from their statement. It is all about attaching the amount of importance to a dying declaration. We hold that all dying declaration recorded by any body, in any manner, may be even oral are relevant and admissible in evidence and it depends on the facts and circumstances of every case how much importance it deserves to be given. If the dying declaration is recorded by magistrate or doctor with medical certification about mental fitness of the maker, certainly, it will be relied upon to convict the accused. If the dying declaration is not duly recorded or oral, it will be considered in order to render support to the prosecution case. The evidentiary value may differ, but in no case it can be ignored unless found to be false or tutored. The learned trial court has rightly pointed out that the IO who recorded the dying declaration had no enmity with the accused and there is no reason to discard the same. We find that the dying declaration is quite in consonance with what has been stated by the eye-witnesses to prove the prosecution case during trial and therefore, the same can be validly relied upon.

68. It has been also submitted by the learned counsel to the accused-appellant that Ext. Ka-4 is injury report and on the back page thereof, brother of deceased namely, Tularam has made an endorsement in writing on the date of incident addressing the Emergency Doctor, District Hamirpur for medical examination of his brother (deceased) stating that he has sustained firearm injury during marpeet. Firstly, Tularam has been examined as PW-5 as witness of inquest. No explanation has been sought by defence from him in his cross-examination. It is not the case of defence even that the deceased sustained injury in any marpeet on the date, place and time of incident. On the contrary, the case of the defence has been that the deceased sustained injury in ceremonial firing. We have already discussed this aspect and have found that there is no evidence on record to support the defence version of ceremonial firing.
