Criminal Law - Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 - Section - 313 - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Sections 34, 147, 148, 149, 307, 323 & 325 - Indian Evidence Act, 1872 – Section 134 - Criminal Appeal – Conviction and sentence - FIR - informant alleged that, the accused persons, having enemy with informant family, armed with Lathi and country made pistol assaulted upon complainant and his uncle & cousin when they are sleeping at their tube-well in night, as a result of same they had sustained injuries - Evaluation of Evidence - please taken by the accused appellant that if there were three injured persons (i.e. three eye-witnesses) but the prosecution produced only two which is highly improbable - court finds that, the testimony of PW-1 & PW-2 (two eye-witnesses) has been found to be reliable and trustworthy - failure to examine the other witnesses is inconsequential - there is no legal hurdle in convicting a person on the sole testimony of a single witness, if his version is clear and reliable, for the principle that the evidence has to be weighed and no counted - the law of evidence does not require any particular number of witnesses to be examine in proof of a given fact - appellant failed to point out any illegality, infirmity or perversity in the judgment of trial court - accordingly, appeal is dismissed. 1. Prithipal Singh Vs St. of Pun., (2012) 1 SCC 10,

2. Mahendra Vs St. of M.P. (SC) Criminal Appeal No.30 of 2022 (Arising out of SLP(Crl.) No.6530 of 2018), decided on 5.01.2022

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vikram D. Chauhan, J.)

1. The present appeal is preferred against judgment and order dated 18.12.1981 passed by Vth Additional Sessions Judge, Ballia in Session Trial No.64 of 1981, convicting and sentencing the appellant-Radha Mohan Rai under Section 323 read with Section 149 of the Indian Penal Code and Section 147 of the Indian Penal Code on probation for two years while suspending the sentence.

2. The present appeal has been filed by two Appellant's, namely, Radha Mohan Rai (Appellant no.1) and Ram Kripal (Appellant no.2). During the pendency of the appeal, Ram Kripal (Appellant no.2) has died and the present appeal is abated in respect of Appellant no.2 by order dated 01.02.2010.

3. The prosecution case as per the first information report is to the effect that Madan Rai-informant had enmity with Ram Chhabila Rai regarding taking meals together. Radha Mohan is relative of Ram Chabila. About one month prior to the incident, Ram Chabila Rai wanted some passage to his house through the courtyard of the informant and the informant had promised Ram Chabila Rai for passage from the eastern corner of his house but Ram Chabila Rai did not accept the same. There was a panchayat in respect of the aforesaid dispute where the informant promised Ram Chabila Rai to give him passage through the border. Radha Mohan became annoyed and in the panchayat threatened the informant by throttling his neck and stating that he will take passage after finishing the informant. The other persons present in the panchayat intervened.

4. On 27.05.1980, informant together with his cousin Virendra Rai and uncle Munni Rai were sleeping at his tubewell in Village-Mansurpur. Three accused persons together with five-six other persons came there being armed with lathi and country made pistol. There was no electricity at the tubewell but the lantern was burning. The informant was lying awaken. The accused-appellant Radha Mohan shouted what is the delay we have got all three together kill them. On the aforesaid call, all the accused persons started beating the complainant, his uncle and cousin. As a result of the same, the uncle of the complainant and cousin was badly injured. The accused persons could be recognised in the moonlight and in the light of the lantern. The other persons could be recognised after seeing them. On his alarm, some persons of the nearby vicinity arrived there and thereafter, the accused persons left thinking that the injured have died. The family members took the three injured persons to the hospital on the same night. The uncle of the complainant and the cousin were in serious condition in the hospital and after getting himself medically examined, the complainant came to the police station to lodge the first information report. The first information report was lodged on 28.05.1980 at 8:20 AM at police Station Phephna, which is 6 miles away from the place of occurrence.

5. On the basis of the aforesaid first information report, a case under Sections 147, 148, 149, 307 I.P.C. was lodged at Police Station Phephna being Case Crime No.126 of 1980.

6. The injured persons were medically examined by Dr. Arun Kumar on 28th May, 1980 am at District Hospital, Ballia.

7. After completion of investigation, Investigating Officer has submitted chargesheet against the accused persons and charges were framed on 19th September, 1981 against the accused persons under Sections 307/149/147, 323, 149, 325/149 I.P.C.

8. All the accused persons have denied the charges levelled against them and have claimed to be tried. In support of prosecution case seven witnesses were examined.

9. P.W.1-Madan Rai has stated that he has a residential house having an area of 3-4 kita and appurtenant land. He has further stated that he has a tubewell which is three furlong from his house and tubewell is on the agricultural land. He has further stated that Munni Rai is his uncle and Virendra Rai is his cousin brother. He has stated that his uncle Munni Rai is living with him and cousin Virendra also lives in the same house. The accused persons are friendly to each other and live together. He has further stated that the incident is of 2/3 months back and there was Barkhi of uncle of Ram Chhabila Rai. In the aforesaid occasion, Ram Chhabila Rai has invited for dinner. However, his uncle was not invited and as such the witness could not go on the invitation and the aforesaid non-acceptance of the invitation has annoyed Radha Mohan and Ram Chhabila. One month prior to the incident the witness was arranging the bricks in the open field near his house when Radha Mohan and Ram Chhabila had stopped the witness from keeping the bricks as he wanted a way to his house from the aforesaid open land. With regard to the aforesaid dispute, a panchayat was held on 20th April, 1980. The witness in panchayat admitted to give way on the eastern corner of the land. However, Radha Mohan did not agree for the same. Radha Mohan in front of the panchayat caught hold the neck of the witness and abused and, thereafter, stated that he will take passage after finishing the witness. The dispute was subsided by intervention of the panchayat. On 27th May, 1980 at about 11.30 pm when the witness was at his tubewell along with his cousin Birendra and Uncle Munni Rai and were sleeping there on different cots and the lantern was burning near the tubewell and it was full moon night. The electricity was not coming on the tubewell and all the three persons were awaken. From the south, accused persons Radha Mohan, Ram Kripal and Chandrama along with 5-6 other accused persons came along with lathi and country made pistol. The witness on seeing them confronted them, then the accused Radha Mohan said to the other accused persons to kill the witness and other two persons being uncle and cousin brother as they are all together. On the aforesaid, all the accused persons started beating all of them and as a result of the same, the uncle and Birendra sustained injuries and they fell down and then accused Radha Mohan thought that they have died and as such they ran away. The accused persons have beaten the witness with lathi and the witness could identified Radha Mohan, Ram Kripal and Chandrama but did not recognize the other persons. On the distress call, accused persons ran away and the villagers came. The injured persons were serious and uncle was taken by villagers on cot and remaining injured persons were also taken to the hospital by rickshaw. The position of his uncle was serious and medical aid was provided in the hospital. In the morning, first information report was lodged, which is Ex.Ka.1. The said report was lodged at Police Station Phephna. Thereafter, the Investigating Officer went to the place of occurrence along with informant from where the blood stained soil was recovered and recovery memo was prepared and same is marked as Ex.Ka.2. He has further stated that at the place of occurrence the witness has shown the lantern to the Investigating Officer, who had seen the same and, thereafter, had given in the supurdagi of the witness and the supurdagi memo was prepared, which is Ex.Ka.3. He has further stated that the lantern is with him. However, he has not brought the same to the court.

10. P.W.2-Birendra Rai has stated that on 26th May, 1980, occurrence took place at about 11.30 pm. The sky was clear and it was a full moon night. They were sleeping near the tubewell on the cot but was away. The lantern was burning then Radha Mohan, Ram Kripal and Chandrama along with 5-6 persons came with lathi and countrymade pistol from the north side and when Madan Rai confronted them, then Radha Mohan stated to the other accused persons to kill them as they are all together and on the aforesaid, accused persons started beating with lathi. He has further stated that all the three persons were beating and as a result of beating, present witness and his uncle fell down and the accused persons thought that we have died and as such they went away. The accused persons were beating the injured for 10 minutes and after the accused persons left, villagers came, to whom the incident was narrated and injured were taken to the hospital where the uncle was admitted and Madan Rai also sustained injuries.

11. P.W.3-Sri I.B.D. Dwivedi has stated that on 5th June, 1980 he was posted at Sadar Hospital as Radiologist and on the said date he had X-rayed the skull of Munni Rai and the X-ray was marked as Ex.I. On the basis of the X-ray, he found there was a fracture in the head and the X-ray report was marked as Ex.Ka.4.

12. P.W.4-Ram Sagar Rai has stated that he knows Madan Rai, Radha Mohan and Ram Chhabila and about 1 and ½ years from today, for the bricks and right of way a panchayat was held. He was present in the aforesaid panchayat. Madan Rai wanted to construct house on the open land and as such had kept bricks on the aforesaid land. However, Radha Mohan and Chhabila were opposing the same, they wanted right of way on the middle of the land. Madan Rai agreed to give right of way on the eastern corner of the land. In the panchayat Radha Mohan caught hold the neck of Madan Rai and stated that he will crush the neck if the way was not provided in the middle of the land. The persons there however, defused the situation. After one month at about 11.30 pm, witness was at his agricultural field and he heard some noise and the same was coming from the side of the tubewell of Madan Rai. It was a full moon night. The electricity was not there. He went there and saw that Madan Rai, Munni Rai and Birendra were injured and when the said witness asked them what has happened, Madan Rai has informed that Radha Mohan, Chandrama and Ram Kripal along with 5-6 persons have come with lathi and countrymade firearm and they have beaten the aforesaid three persons and as a result of the same, they had sustained injuries. Munni Rai was taken to the hospital on cot and Madan Rai and Birendra were given support and taken to the hospital.

13. P.W.5-Dr. Arun Kumar has medically examined the injured persons and has found the following injuries:-

Injuries of Munni Rai:-

16. Appellant and other accused persons in the statement under section 313 Cr.P.C. have denied the charges and stated that they have been falsely implicated due to enmity.

17. Appellant in support of his defence has examined Chandramani as D.W.1.

18. The prosecution case is to the effect that Madan Rai had enmity with Ram Chabila Rai regarding the meals together. Radha Mohan is relative of Ram Chabila. About one month prior to the incident Ram Chabila Rai wanted passage to his house through the adjoining land of the house of the informant. Informant had promised Ram Chabila Rai to give passage from the side of his house however, Ram Chabila Rai did not agree to the same. A panchayat in this respect was also held where the informant had accepted for giving passage to Ram Chabila Rai from side of the house of informant. Radha Mohan became annoyed and in the panchayat threatened informant by throttling his neck and said that he will take passage after finishing informant. The other persons present in the panchayat intervened and since then Radha Mohan is inimical to the informant.

19. On 27th May, 1980, informant and his cousin Birendra Rai and uncle

Munni Rai were sleeping near the tube well in mauja Maisurpur. At about 11:30 PM in the night Radha Mohan Rai, Ram Kripal and Chandrama Rai along with five to six other persons armed with lathi and country made pistol came to the aforesaid place. There was no electricity at the tube well but the lantern was burning. The informant was awake. When the informant saw accused persons coming, he exclaimed, on this Radha Mohan said to the other accused persons to kill the informant and his relatives and thereafter, accused persons started beating the informant, his cousin brother and uncle Munni Rai. The accused persons inflicted grievous injuries on the uncle and cousin of the informant. Informant, his cousin and his uncle has recognised the three accused persons in the moonlight and in light of lantern. On the cry of the informant, other persons in the vicinity arrived there and thereafter, the accused persons left the cousin brother and uncle thinking them to be dead. Informant's family members took injured three persons to the hospital on the same night. The condition of the cousin brother and the uncle was serious and informant after getting medically examined came to police station to lodge the first information report. The first information report was lodged on 28th May, 1980 at 8:30 AM at Police Station- Phepna, which is 6 miles away from the place of occurrence.

20. The prosecution has examined Informant-Madan Rai as P.W.1. The aforesaid witness has supported the prosecution case. Informant is the eyewitness of the alleged incident. The prosecution has further examined Birendra Rai as P.W.2. The aforesaid witness has supported the prosecution case and has stated that on 27th May, 1980 the incident has taken place at about 11:30 PM. He has stated that it was a moonlight night. He was sleeping on cot near the tube well and was awake and towards the north his cousin brother was sitting on the platform and on the south his uncle Munni Rai was lying while he was awake. Lantern was burning near the tube well. Radha Mohan, Ram Kripal Singh and Chandrama Rai along with 5 to 6 persons came armed with lathi, country made pistol from the north. On coming of the accused persons, Madan Rai asked for the reason of the accused persons to come. On the aforesaid Radha Mohan Rai stated to other accused persons to beat the informant and his cousin and uncle. The accused persons started beating all the three persons. The witness has stated that the aforesaid persons were beating with stick. On beating the said witness his uncle fell down and the accused persons thinking that the witness and his uncle has died and they left away. On the same night, the witness and his uncle was admitted in the hospital and Madan Rai also suffered injuries.

20. The prosecution has also examined Dr. I.B.D. Dwivedi as P.W.3. The aforesaid witness has stated that on fifth of June 1980 he was posted at Ballia Sadar Hospital as radiologist. He had conducted X-ray of the skull of Munni Rai. He found fracture in the front of the head. He has further proved the x-ray report, which is marked as Ex.Ka-4.

21. The prosecution has further examined Ram Sagar Rai as P.W.4. He is stated that he knows Madan Rai, Radha Mohan and Ram Chhabila. About one and 1½ year prior to the said incident there was a panchayat held for passage and bricks. He was present in the aforesaid panchayat. Madan Rai was keeping bricks in his land for construction of the house then Radha Mohan and Ram Chhabila stated that he should remove the bricks and opened the passage. Madan Rai stated that he will need passage on the western side. In the panchayat, Radha Mohan caught hold the neck of Madan Rai and stated that he will throttle the neck if the passage not left. On the intervention of the witness and other persons, the matter was diffused. One month after the above-mentioned panchayat at about 11:30 PM witness was on his agricultural field and he heard distress call and thereafter he went towards the tube well of Madan Rai where lantern was burning. Madan Rai, Munni Rai and Birendra were injured. On query being made, it was informed by them that Radha Mohan, Ram Chhabila and other persons who were armed with stick and country made pistol have beaten the three persons with stick and as a result of the same, injuries have been sustained.

22. The prosecution in support of the prosecution case has further examined Dr. Arun Kumar as P.W.5. He submitted that on 28th May, 1980 at about 1:45 PM he was posted at District Hospital, Ballia. He has further stated that he had examined Munni Rai alias Ganesh Rai on the said date and had found injuries. He has also examined Birendra Rai who has also sustained injuries. He has further stated that on the same day he had also examined Madan Rai and had found injuries. He has further stated that he had prepared the injury report of Munni Rai, Madan Rai and Birendra and same was marked as Ex.Ka.5, Ex.Ka.6 and Ex. Ka.7.

23. The P.W.6-M.N.Pathak and Ram Paramhans Singh are the formal witness.

24. It is submitted by counsel for the appellant that the injured Munni Rai was not produced before the court and as such the case of the prosecution is highly improbable. It is submitted by counsel for the appellant that adverse inference be drawn for the non-production of the aforesaid witness has the aforesaid witness was in worse condition and was badly injured. It is to be seen that the presence of the witnesses together with the testimony of P.W.1 and P.W.2 who are the eyewitness of the alleged incident and has proved the prosecution case is sufficient to establish the prosecution case against the appellant. The testimony of P.W.1 and P.W.2 has not been shaken in the cross examination nor the counsel for the Appellant has pointed out any material contradiction which goes to the root of the prosecution case. The testimony of P.W.1 and P.W.2 has been found to be reliable and trustworthy. The aforesaid witnesses are the eyewitness of the alleged incident. The failure to examine the other witnesses is inconsequential. It is the quality of evidence and not the number of witnesses that are material. The injuries sustained by Munni Rai has been duly proved by the prosecution witness no 5.

25. In Prithipal Singh v. State of Punjab, (2012) 1 SCC 10, it was held as under :-

"49. This Court has consistently held that as a general rule the court can and may act on the testimony of a single witness provided he is wholly reliable. There is no legal impediment in convicting a person on the sole testimony of a single witness. That is the logic of Section 134 of the Evidence Act. But if there are doubts about the testimony, the court will insist on corroboration. In fact, it is not the number or the quantity, but the quality that is material. The time-honoured principle is that evidence has to be weighed and not counted. The test is whether the evidence has a ring of truth, is cogent, credible and trustworthy or otherwise. The legal system has laid emphasis on value, weight and quality of evidence, rather than on quantity, multiplicity or plurality of witnesses. It is, therefore, open to a competent court to fully and completely rely on a solitary witness and record conviction. Conversely, it may acquit the accused in spite of testimony of several witnesses if it is not satisfied about the quality of evidence."

25. There is no legal hurdle in convicting a person on the sole testimony of a single witness, if his version is clear and reliable, for the principle that the evidence has to be weighed and not counted. If the testimony of a single witness is found by the court to be entirely reliable, there is no legal impediment in recording the conviction of the accused on such proof. The law of evidence does not require any particular number of witnesses to be examined in proof of a given fact. However, faced with the testimony of a single witness, the court may classify the oral testimony into three categories, namely, (i) wholly reliable, (ii) wholly unreliable, and (iii) neither wholly reliable nor wholly unreliable. In the first two categories there may be no difficulty in accepting or discarding the testimony of the single witness. The difficulty arises in the third category of cases. The court has to be circumspect and has to look for corroboration in material particulars by reliable testimony in respect of third category.

26. The legal position is found in the statutory provision in Section 134 of the Evidence Act, 1872, which reads:

"134. Number of witnesses.--No particular number of witnesses shall in any case be required for the proof of any fact."

27. Legal system in the country does not insist on plurality of witnesses. The Evidence Act, 1872 does not mandate that there must be particular number of witnesses to record an order of conviction against the accused. Our legal system has always laid emphasis on value, weight and quality of evidence rather than on quantity, multiplicity or plurality of witnesses. It is, therefore, open to a competent court to fully and completely rely on a solitary witness and record conviction. Conversely, it may acquit the accused in spite of testimony of several witnesses, if it is not satisfied about the quality of evidence.

28. The law does not require that the prosecution must examine all the eyewitnesses cited by the prosecution. When the evidence of two eyewitnesses, PW 1 and 2 was found worthy of acceptance to prove the case, then it was not necessary for the prosecution to examine any more eyewitnesses. It is for the prosecution to decide as to how many and who should be examined as their witnesses for proving their case. Therefore, this court does not find any merit in this submission of the appellant.

29. It is further submitted by counsel for the Appellant that the only source of light at the place of alleged incident was lantern and as such it is improbable that the Appellant could have been recognised by the witnesses.

30. It is to be noted that as per the prosecution case the incident/occurrence has taken place at 11:30 PM in the night. The prosecution witnesses have stated that lantern was burning at the place of incident when the occurrence took place. Moonlight was available at the aforesaid time and the sky was clear. It is also to be noted that accused persons and the complainant and injured were known to each other and have participated in the panchayat for resolving the dispute. The trial court has recorded a finding that the complainant and victims were well-known with the accused and that there are every chances that they will be identified by their appearance and voice also. The trial court has further recorded finding that the physical assault had taken place for a long time and there was sufficient light. On the aforesaid basis, trial court has come to the conclusion that there was sufficient opportunity for the prosecution witness/victims to have identified the accused. Learned counsel for the appellant has not been able to demonstrate the perversity in the finding recorded by the trial court. The burning of lantern at the place of occurrence has been testified by the prosecution witnesses. The victim were known to the accused persons, under such circumstances the identification of the accused persons cannot be faulted and no benefit can be granted to the appellant.

31. Learned counsel for the appellant has also submitted that the dispute/motive of the alleged incident as claimed by the prosecution is the dispute with regard to passage. The nature of dispute was not of such magnitude which would have resulted in physical assault as has been claimed by the prosecution. The prosecution case rests upon the fact that the accused Radha Mohan Rai was claiming passage from the land adjoining the house of the informant. The aforesaid land belongs to informant. In respect of aforesaid dispute, a panchayat was also held between the parties where Appellant had threatened the informant of taking land after killing the informant. The matter was defused in the panchayat by intervention of other persons. Subsequently, appellant along with the other accused persons had visited the place where the informant and other injured persons were sleeping and physically assaulted as a result of the same, informant and his cousin brother and uncle also sustained injuries. The accused persons were carrying lathi and country made pistol along with them. The demand for passage by Appellant on the land of informant and when the same was not given to the satisfaction of Appellant, he has tried to force the demand using physical assault. The nature of injury sustained by the injured persons is indicative of the fact that the accused persons had physically assaulted injured including the informant which arises out of the demand for passage from the land of informant. The motive of Appellant and other accused persons can be asserted from the attending circumstances.

32. Learned counsel for the appellant submitted that Section 149 of the Indian Penal Code is not attracted as no five persons were found to be involved in the aforesaid incident. In the present case, the trial court on the basis of the evidence has sustained the conviction of the appellant under Section 323 read with Section 149 and 147 of the Indian Penal Code. Section 141 of the Indian Penal Code defines the unlawful assembly as an assembly of five or more persons, if the common object of the present composing that assembly is to commit any offence as enumerated therein. One of the essential ingredients of the unlawful assembly is that it should comprise of more than four persons. In the present case, as per the first information report, accused Radha Mohan Rai (Appellant), Ram Kripal and Chandra Rai along with five to six other persons came with stick and country made pistol at the place of occurrence at 11:30 PM in the night. The aforesaid case of prosecution of involvement of more than four persons in the alleged crime has been proved by P.W.1 and P.W.2. The charge in the present case was framed on 19th September, 1981 against three accused persons namely the Appellant, Ram Kripal and Chandrama. It has been stated by the prosecution witness/injured witness that they can identify the other persons who were part of the unlawful assembly on seeing them. Nothing has been brought on record to demolish the aforesaid prosecution case which is supported by reliable and trustworthy testimony of the P.W.1 and P.W.2. Under the aforesaid circumstances, apart from the three main accused persons there were 5 to 6 more persons who were involved in the alleged offence. The trial court by impugned judgment has acquitted Chandrama Rai and have convicted Appellant and Ram Kripal.

33. The Apex Court in the case of Mahendra v. State of M.P. (SC) Criminal Appeal No.30 of 2022 (Arising out of SLP(Crl.) No.6530 of 2018) decided on 5.1.2022 has observed as under:-

"The legal position in regard to essential ingredients of an offence referred to in Section 149 are settled. Section 149 prescribes for vicarious or constructive criminal liability for all members of an unlawful assembly where an offence is committed by any member of such an unlawful assembly in prosecution of the common object of that assembly or such as the members of that assembly knew to be likely to be committed in prosecution of that object.

It may be noted that the essential ingredients of Section 149 of Indian penal code are that the offence must have been committed by any member of an unlawful assembly , and Section 141 makes it clear that it is only where five or more persons constituted an assembly that an unlawful assembly is born, provided, of course, the other requirements of the said section as to the common object of the persons composing that assembly are satisfied. It is an essential condition of an unlawful assembly that its membership must be five or more.

At the same time, it may not be necessary that five or more persons necessarily be brought before the Court and convicted. Less than five persons may be charged under Section 149 if the prosecution case is that the persons before the Court and other numbering in all more than five composed an unlawful assembly, these others being persons not identified and unnamed."

34. It is the case of the prosecution that there are other unnamed or unidentified persons other than the one who charge-sheeted and faced trial. The appellant cannot get the benefit of acquittal of the co-accused Chandrama Rai as even excluding Chandrama Rai there were other persons were part of the unlawful assembly and such persons constitute more than four persons.

35. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submitted that the prosecution case is highly improbable on account of the fact that it is not natural to sleep in the open when the house of the injured was nearby. It is to be noted that the informant was having agricultural field nearby and tube well was also available on the agricultural field of the informant. In villages it is common to sleep near the tube well, specifically when the agricultural fields are to be irrigated. It is also common that more than one person usually sleeps on the tube well as the tube well are situated in a lonely place on the agricultural field and to ensure safety many persons sleep as a security measure. There is nothing unnatural about the conduct of informant and injured witnesses in sleeping near the tube well in the agricultural field. It is also to be noted that the incident alleged to have in the month of May 1980. The electricity was not coming in the village at the relevant time as is stated in the testimony of the eyewitness/injured witness. Under the circumstances sleeping in the agricultural field by itself would not make the prosecution case unbelievable or improbable.

36. It is further submitted that Chandrama Rai has been acquitted by the trial court. On the basis of acquittal of Chandrama Rai, it is stated that the appellant also entitled to the aforesaid benefit. The trial court has given the benefit of doubt on account of enmity to the co-accused however there is eyewitness account of the alleged incident in which the appellant has been named by the injured witness including the informant. The incident is supported by the injuries sustained by the injured witness which has been duly proved by the prosecution witness by examining the doctor who has prepared the injury report. Nothing has been brought by the defence before the trial court which denies the complicity of the Appellant in the alleged offence. The prosecution has proved its case by reliable evidence.

37. It is to be noted that the trial court in the impugned judgement has recorded finding that the offence under section 307 of the Indian Penal Code read with Section 34 of IPC, it is not established against the accused persons. The trial court has further recorded finding that the accused persons as per the prosecution case were also carrying firearm and spears however no injury was found on the body of the injured in respect of firearm and spear and, therefore, the charge under section 307 read with section 149 of the Indian Penal Code was held to be not established.

38. The trial court has further held that the offence under section 325 read with section 149 of the Indian Penal Code cannot be maintained in the facts and circumstances of the case.

39. The accused persons were known to the complainant-informant and other injured persons and there are chances that the accused person could have been identified by their appearance and voice. It is also to be noted that the physical assault is taking place for the long time and the voice of the accused person was heard and further there was source of light at the place of occurrence which was proved by the prosecution. It is further to be seen that Madan Rai, Birendra Rai and Munni Rai were the only person who had seen the occurrence and were also the victims. There was no one else who had seen the aforesaid physical assault. Munni Rai was taken to the hospital for medical examination and treatment. All the three injured witnesses have sustained injuries and the injury report has been duly proved by the prosecution. The physical assault by the Appellant on the injured witnesses including the informant has also been proved by the prosecution by testimony of P.W.1 and P.W.2 who are the eyewitness of the alleged incident. The accused person including the appellant came along with five-six persons with the common object of committing the crime/offence and as such the trial court has committed no illegality in convicting the appellant by impugned judgement.

40. Considering the overall circumstances and submission of learned counsel for the appellant, learned A.G.A. for the State and after going through the evidence and lower court record, we are unable to persuade ourselves in taking a different opinion from that of trial court. The trial court was fully justified in convicting the accused-respondent.

41. Learned counsel for the appellant failed to point out any illegality, infirmity or perversity in the judgment of the trial court.

42. The appeal lacks merit and is, accordingly, dismissed.

43. Registrar General of this Court is directed to pay an honorarium of Rs. 20,000/- to Sri Raj Kumar Sharma, learned Amicus Curiae for rendering effective assistance in the appeal.

44. Let the lower court record be transmitted back to court below along with a copy of this order.

1. The Additional Sessions Judge/ Special Judge (E.C. Act) Fatehpur convicted the convict/appellant Puttan in Sessions Trial No. 781 of 2006 arising out of Crime No. 340 of 2006, P.S.- Kotwali, District- Fatehpur under Section 302 I.P.C. and sentenced for life imprisonment and fine to a tune of Rs.2,000/- with default sentence of simple imprisonment for 6 months, feeling aggrieved of which the convict/ appellant has preferred this appeal.

2. The factual scenario of the case according to the FIR is that on 8.9.2006 at 10.30-11.00 am when the informant Sohan Lal, his brother Puttan and mother Bhagwanti Devi were present at home, accused Puttan started abusing his mother for some money matter and when the informant intervened, he assaulted his mother Bhagwanti Devi with intention of kill her by axe and she died on spot. The accused fled away. A written report Ex.Ka-3 narrating the aforesaid facts was given to police station Kotwali, Fatehpur by the informant Sohan Lal and FIR Ex.Ka-1 was lodged on 8.9.2006 and G.D. Ex.Ka-2 was also prepared. The investigation started and the Investigating Officer performed the inquest proceedings and inquest report Ex.Ka-7 and papers relating to the post mortem Ex.Ka-8, Ex.Ka-9, Ex.Ka-10 were also prepared, spot inspection was made by the I.O and site plan Ex.Ka-11 was prepared. Memo of recovery of plain and blood stained soil Ex.Ka-12 was also prepared. During the course of investigation, the accused was arrested and the murder weapon was recovered from his possession and recovery memo Ex.Ka-13 was also prepared. The site plan of the place of recovery Ex.Ka-4 was also prepared and after closing of the investigation charge sheet Ex.Ka-5 was submitted to the Court. Meanwhile on 9.9.2006 the autopsy of the body of the deceased was conducted by Dr. V.N. Srivastava, who prepared the autopsy report Ex.Ka-6 and found the following ante mortem injuries over the body of the deceased:

1. incised wound 9 cm x 1 cm brain deep, horizontally placed, 3 cm behind right ear with fracture of mastoid bone.

2. lacerated wound 6 cm x 4 cm brain deep just 4 cm above injury no.1 with fracture of under lining parietal bone of right side.

3. incised wound 10 cm x 4 cm x bone deep on right upper back horizontally placed along superior border of right scapula

3. It was opined by the doctor that the death occurred due to coma as a result of ante mortem head injury.

4. The accused appeared before the Court and the case being triable exclusively by the Sessions Court was committed to the Court of Sessions where charge under Section 302 I.P.C. was framed against the accused, who pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried.

5. The prosecution in order to prove its case has relied upon oral as well as documentary evidence.

6. In oral evidence P.W.1 Sohan Lal, the informant, P.W.2 HCP. Narendra Nath Tripathi scribe of the FIR, P.W.3 Om Prakash Gautam scribe of tehrir, P.W.4 S.H.O Nand Kumar Singh 2nd I.O, P.W.5 Dr. V.N. Srivastava the witness of autopsy, P.W.6 S.I. Naki Haidar the first I.O. and P.W.7 Ranjit Kumar Singh witness of recovery of murder weapon have been examined.

7. To support the oral evidence, documentary evidence FIR Ex.Ka-1, G.D. Ex.Ka-2, written report Ex.Ka-3, site plan of place of recovery of murder weapon Ex.Ka-4, charge sheet Ex.Ka-5, autopsy report Ex.Ka-6, inquest report Ex.Ka-7, challan nash, photo nash and letter C.M.O Ex.Ka-8, Ex.Ka-9 and Ex.Ka-10 respectively, site plan Ex.Ka-11, memo of blood stained and plain soil Ex.Ka-12 and recovery memo of murder weapon Ex.Ka-13 have been produced. The murder weapon axe was also proved as material Ex.1. The F.S.L. Report 21 A is also available on record.

8. The incriminating circumstances and evidence adduced by the prosecution were put to the accused and in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. the accused took a plea of false implication and denied the truthfulness of the entire evidence adduced against him by the prosecution.

9. Before analyzing the judgement rendered by the learned trial Court we deem it fit to have a glance upon the evidence adduced by the prosecution by way of oral testimony of the witnesses as well as the documentary evidence.

10. P.W.1 Sohan Lal, the informant is the real brother of the accused. In his deposition, he has proved the prosecution case and has made a clear narration to the fact that at the time of occurrence, accused Puttan had a quarrel with his mother/deceased on the issue of sale of land, he also abused her and when the informant intervened, he got angry and brought an axe and made several blows with the axe over the deceased, who fell down and died. The accused fled away. P.W.1 has proved the written report.

11. P.W.3 Om Prakash Gautam, who is scribe of tehrir, has made statement before the Court that the said report was written by him on the dictation of P.W.1 and has proved it as Ext. Ka 3 . he has also identified his signature over the recovery memo of the murder weapon axe, which according to him the police had recovered from the possession of the accused Puttan at the time of his arrest. He has also identified the axe material Ex.1, which was produced before him at the time of evidence in the Court.

12. P.W.2 Head Cons. Narendra Nath Tripathi has proved the Chick FIR Ex.Ka-1 and G.D. Ex.Ka-2 and has stated that the FIR was lodged on the basis of the written report given by the informant Sohan Lal.

13. P.W.5 doctor V.N. Srivastava has conducted the autopsy of the body of the deceased and has proved the autopsy report as Ex.Ka-6.

14. P.W.6 S.I. Naki Haidar is the first I.O. of the case, who has proved the proceedings of the investigation and the second I.O. P.W.4 S.H.O Nand Kumar Singh has also proved the rest proceedings of the investigation and has stated that after completion of investigation charge sheet Ex.Ka-5 was submitted by him before the Court.

15. P.W.7 Ranjit Kumar is the witness of arrest of the accused by the police and the recovery of murder weapon axe from his possession. He has proved the aforesaid facts in his deposition and has also identified his signature over the recovery memo Ex.Ka-13.

16. The trial Court after making a detailed analysis of the oral as well as documentary evidence available on record and after hearing the parties at length recorded the conviction of the accused under Section 302 I.P.C. and sentenced him accordingly.

17. The appellant has assailed the impugned judgement on various grounds.

18. The Amicus Curiae has absented himself but the appeal is vehemently objected by Shri Ram Lal Mishra, learned counsel appearing for the informant as well as by learned AGA.

19. Learned A.G.A. and the learned counsel for the informant defending the impugned judgement have submitted that there is no legal flaw or factual error in the impugned judgement. The learned trial Court has analysed the evidence on record in a proper legal manner and has reached the logical end of the matter. The appeal has no force and is liable to be dismissed.

20. Heard learned counsel for the informant, learned A.G.A. and perused the record.

21. Although, Amicus Curiae is not present to argue this appeal we feel ourselves to be duty bound to consider the various aspects of the matter in the light of the evidence on record, the relevant laws and the arguments raised by the learned A.G.A. and learned counsel for the informant as well.

Ocular Evidence -

22. At the very out set, it is to be seen whether there was any other eye-witness of the occurrence except the informant and if it was so whether it was necessary for the prosecution to produce him as an ocular witness of the occurrence.

23. From the bare perusal of the FIR it is evident that no other witness except the informant has been mentioned therein. The informant has clearly mentioned in the written report that all the family members had gone to their tube-well situated at Bhikaripur and only he along with his mother (deceased) and brother (the convict) was present at home. In his deposition as P.W.1, the informant has corroborated the prosecution version. He has proved the written report Ex. Ka. 3. While going through the testimony of P.W.1, we find that no other eye-witness of the occurrence except the informant has been mentioned therein. He has clearly proved this fact that the convict was quarrelling with the deceased, his mother, in respect of sale of land and was abusing her and when P.W.1 intervened, he angrily brought axe and made blow over his mother, who fell down and died. He has also made it clear that his father and three sisters were not at home and they had gone to the tube well for work, which is 1 km. away from his house.

24. Learned A.G.A. has submitted that since no other person was present on spot except the informant, no question arises to produce any person as eye-witness of the occurrence. It has also been submitted that if the evidence of sole witness is reliable and trustworthy, the conviction can be recorded successfully in a criminal matter on the basis thereof. In the entire evidence of P.W.1, we do not find any contradictory or exaggerated statement. His deposition is quite natural and innocent and it transpires confidence.

25. The value of the testimony of the sole eyewitness was tested by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Kusti Mallaiah Vs. State of Andhra Pradesh (2013) 12 Supreme Court Cases 680 wherein it was laid down as follows:

"23. It has been held in catena of decisions of this Court that there is no legal hurdle in convicting a person on the sole testimony of a single witness if his version is clear and reliable, for the principle is that the evidence has to be weighed and not counted. In Vadivelu Thevar v. The State of Madras AIR 1957 SC 614, it has been held that if the testimony of a singular witness is found by the court to be entirely reliable, there is no legal impediment in recording the conviction of the accused on such proof. In the said pronouncement it has been further ruled that the law of evidence does not require any particular number of witnesses to be examined in proof of a given fact. However, faced with the testimony of a single witness, the court may classify the oral testimony into three categories, namely, (i) wholly reliable, (ii) wholly unreliable, and (iii) neither wholly reliable nor wholly unreliable. In the first two categories there may be no difficulty in accepting or discarding the testimony of the single witness. The difficulty arises in the third category of cases. The court has to be circumspect and has to look for corroboration in material particulars by reliable testimony, direct or circumstantial, before acting upon the testimony of a single witness. Similar view has been expressed in Lallu Manjhi and another v. State of Jharkhand (2003) 2 SCC 401, Prithipal Singh and others v. State of Punjab and another (2012) 1 SCC 10 and Jhapsa Kabari and others v. State of Bihar (2001) 10 SCC 94.

26. The same view has been reiterated in Amar Singh Vs. State (NCT of Delhi) (2020) 19 Supreme Court Cases 165 wherein it has been held as follows:

....As a general rule the Court can and may act on the testimony of single eye witness provided he is wholly reliable. There is no legal impediment in convicting a person on the sole testimony of a single witness. That is the logic of Section 134 of the Evidence Act, 1872. But if there are doubts about the testimony Courts will insist on corroboration. It is not the number, the quantity but quality that is material. The time honoured principle is that evidence has to be weighed and not counted. On this principle stands the edifice of Section 134 of the Evidence Act. The test is whether the evidence has a ring of truth, is cogent, credible and trustworthy or otherwise (see Sunil Kumar V/s State (NCT of Delhi) (2003) 11 SCC 367).

27. In Ashok Kumar Chaudhary. Vs. State of Bihar 2008 (61) ACC 972 (SC) it has been categorically held that if the testimony of an eyewitness is otherwise found trustworthy and reliable, the same cannot be disbelieved and rejected because certain insignificant, normal or natural contradictions have been appeared into his testimony. If the inconsistencies, contradictions, exaggerations, embellishments and discrepancies in the testimony are only normal and not material in nature, then the testimony of an eyewitness has to be accepted and acted upon. Distinctions between normal discrepancies and material discrepancies are that while normal discrepancies do not corrode the credibility of a party's that the case, material discrepancies do so.

28. Since in the matter in hand the ocular version of P.W.1 is free from all embellishments, the witness falls into the category of a wholly reliable witness and as such we find no difficulty in accepting the testimony of P.W.1 as the sole witness of fact and this view also finds help from the verdict given in Lallu Manjhi and another v. State of Jharkhand (2003) 2 SCC 401.

Medical Evidence -

29. The prosecution has come forward with a clear case that the murder was caused with the blows of axe. As per FIR, the accused made several blows over the deceased by using the axe, which proved fatal for her. This fact not only finds place in the oral testimony of P.W.1 but it is also corroborated by the medical evidence. P.W.5, who has performed the autopsy of the deceased has find two incised wounds and one lacerated wound over the body of the deceased. He has opined that injury no.1and 3 might be caused on account of attack of sharp edge of axe. He has also opined that the death of the deceased might have been caused on 8.9.2006 at 10:30-

11:00 am. and that is the case of prosecution also. The death of the deceased was caused due to coma as a result of ante mortem head injuries as has been opined by the doctor P.W.5. The prosecution version in this way is corroborated by the medical evidence also. The learned trial Court has discussed these facts in the impugned judgement and has drawn the right conclusion.

F.I.R/ Tehrir -

30. The FIR of the case and the written report are also trustworthy piece of evidence. P.W.3, the scribe of the written report has proved this report and has categorically stated that on the dictation of P.W.1 he had written the tehrir and it was read over to the informant after being written. P.W.1 also does not dispute this fact and narrates the same. P.W.2, the scribe of Chick FIR has also proved the FIR and G.D. of the case as Ext. A1, A2 and no infirmity is found in the testimony of this witness. F.I.R is prompt and has been lodged about one and half hour after the occurrence.

Place of occurrence -

31. Place of occurrence is always a significant peace of evidence for the prosecution in order to prove its case successfully. P.W.1 on this point has stated that the house of the accused and of the informant himself are separate having a path in between the two. The toilet of the family is situated in the house of the accused and on the fateful time when he was coming from the toilet, the occurrence happened. The site plan Ex.Ka-11 contains the topography of the place of occurrence and the above mentioned statement of P.W.1 finds support from this aspect also. From the perusal of the site plan Ex.Ka-11, it appears that the boundary of the place of occurrence as disclosed by P.W.1. in his deposition is also almost the same as shown therein. The site plan shows a clear picture of the place of occurrence and all the relevant places have been clearly shown therein.

Motive -

32. So far as the motive of the crime is concerned, it is crystal clear from the perusal of the FIR itself that there was a dispute in between the convict and his mother in respect of sale of some land and in the course of argument over that issue the accused committed the offence alleged against him. Moreover, the learned A.G.A. and learned counsel for the informant have vehemently argued that since the present case rests upon the ocular testimony of P.W.1 there was no need to prove the motive of the case for the prosecution.

33. Reliance has been placed upon Bikau Pandey Vs. State of Bihar (2003) 12 SCC 616 wherein it has been held that when the direct evidence establishes the crime, motive is of no significance and pales into insignificance.

34. There are catena of decisions on the point that in a case based upon the eye witness account, the motive loses its significance. In Deepak Verma Vs. State of Himachal Pradesh (2011) 10 SCC 129 It has been held as under:

"...Proof of motive is not a sine qua non before a person can be held guilty of commission of crime. Motive being a matter of mind, is more often than not difficult to establish through evidence."

35. From the analysis of the evidence on record, we do not find any possibility of false implication of the accused in the present matter. Nothing on this aspect has been put to P.W.1 while cross-examining him by the defence. P.W.1 is a reliable witness and makes a clear picture of the whole occurrence in his ocular version, hence to prove the motive to commit the crime was not necessary for the prosecution. Moreover, the factum of quarrel between the deceased and the accused over some property issue has been clearly proved by PW1, which was an instant reason of the murder as per FIR.

Relevance of statement under section 313, C.r.p.c -

36. Our attention is drawn to a significant aspect of the matter. This is a case where the real brother has lodged the FIR against his brother for the murder of his own mother. From perusal of the testimony of P.W.1, we find and we are astonished as to why the real brother, son of the deceased, standing there does not even tried to save his mother from the assault of his brother but at the same time, we have also to take the statement of the accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. into account.

37. In Neel Kumar alias Anil Kumar v. State of Haryana, (2012) 5 SCC 766 Hon'ble Apex Court held as under:

"30. It is the duty of the accused to explain the incriminating circumstance proved against him while making a statement under Section 313 CrPC. Keeping silent and not furnishing any explanation for such circumstance is an additional link in the chain of circumstances to sustain the charges against him. Recovery of incriminating material at his disclosure statement duly proved is a very positive circumstance against him." (The same principle has been formulated in Aftab Ahmad Anasari v. State of Uttaranchal [(2010) 2 SCC 583 : (2010) 2 SCC (Cri) 1054 : AIR 2010 SC 773] .)

38. When we translate the aforesaid principle with its application to the facts of this case, we find that the incriminating circumstances proved against the accused have not been explained by him at all while making his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. When the evidence and incriminating circumstances were put to him he simply denied them. To answer some questions he has stated that he does not know about it or he has replied that he has nothing to say about it.

39. It has been held by the Apex Court that the statement of the accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C is not a substantive piece of evidence. It can be used for appreciating evidence led by the prosecution to accept or reject it. It is, however, not a substitute for the evidence of the prosecution. As held in [Nishi Kant Jha v. State of Bihar, (1969) 1 SCC 347] if the exculpatory part of the statement of accused is found to be false and the evidence led by the prosecution is reliable, the inculpatory part of his statement can be taken aid of to lend assurance to the evidence of the prosecution. If the prosecution evidence does not inspire confidence to sustain the conviction of the accused, the inculpatory part of his statement under Section 313 CrPC cannot be made the sole basis of his conviction.

40. In the matter in hand on the one side the prosecution has succeeded to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt on the basis of the cogent and reliable evidence whereas on the other side no explanation has been offered by the convict regarding the incriminating circumstances and evidence proved against him in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. It is also pertinent to mention here that no defence evidence has been adduced by the convict/ appellant.

41. The prosecution story also find support from the fact that the murder weapon, blood stained axe, has been recovered from the possession of the accused when he was arrested by the police. The recovery memo Ex.Ka-13 has also been proved by Ist I.O-P.W.6. P.W.3, who is the independent witness of the aforesaid recovery has also identified his signature over this memo in his deposition. It is also noteworthy that the aforesaid murder weapon axe has been produced before the P.W.3, who has proved it as material Ex.1. The place of recovery of the murder weapon has also been proved through the site plan Ex.Ka-4 by P.W.4, the second I.O.

42. The prosecution has also proved the inquest report Ex.Ka-7 wherein the Panchas have also opined that the death of the deceased seems to be caused due to the injuries inflicted over her body. The papers relating to the post mortem Ex.Ka-8, Ex.Ka-9 and Ex.Ka-10 have also been proved. The murder weapon and belongings of the deceased were sent for forensic test and FSL report Ext. Ka 14 also supports the prosecution case.

43. The trial Court has elaborately discussed the aforesaid points and has reached to the definite conclusion that the prosecution has succeeded to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt on the basis of the cogent, reliable, oral and documentary evidences and we concur with the same.

Murder or Culpable Homicide not amounting to murder -

44. However, the question which falls for our consideration is whether, on reappraisal of the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case, the conviction of the appellant under Section 302 of I.P.C. should be upheld or the conviction deserves to be converted under Section 304 Part-I or Part-II of the Indian Penal Code. It would be relevant to refer Section 299 of the Indian Penal Code, which reads as under:

"299. Culpable homicide: Whoever causes death by doing an act with the intention of causing death, or with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, or with the knowledge that he is likely by such act to cause death, commits the offence of culpable homicide."

45. The academic distinction between "murder' and "culpable homicide not amounting to murder' has always vexed the Courts. The confusion is caused, if Courts losing sight of the true scope and meaning of the terms used by the legislature in these sections, allow themselves to be drawn into minute abstractions. The safest way of approach to the interpretation and application of these provisions seems to be to keep in focus the keywords used in the various clauses of Section 299 and 300 of I.P.Code. The following comparative table will be helpful in appreciating the points of distinction between the two offences.

A person commits culpable homicide if the act by which the	Subject to certain exceptions culpable death is caused is done-	homicide is murder is the act by which the death is caused is done.

INTENTION
(a) with the intention of causing death; or	(1) with the intention of causing death; or
(b) with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death; or	(2) with the intention of causing such bodily injury as the offender knows to be likely to cause the death of the person to whom the harm is caused;
KNOWLEDGE	KNOWLEDGE
(c) with the knowledge that the act is likely to cause death.	(4) with the knowledge that the act is so immediately dangerous that it must in all probability cause death or such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, and without any excuse for incurring the risk of causing death or such injury as is mentioned above.

46. From the upshot of the aforesaid discussion, it appears that the death was caused by the accused in unison and it was a homicidal death whether the same was not premeditated or premeditated, will have to be seen. From the evidence of P.W.1 it is crystal clear that the convict had no pre-meditation to do away with his mother. The quarrel took place between the two on account of sale of some land. He had not come on spot with the axe but during the course of quarrel he rushed angrily and brought the axe and made assault over his own mother. Thus the offence was committed at the spur of the moment and it cannot said that it was a premeditated cold blooded murder. Under these circumstance, it can be concluded that though the injuries over the body of the deceased were sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to have caused death, the accused had no intention to do away with the deceased, hence the instant case falls under the Exceptions 1 and 4 to Section 300 of IPC. While considering Section 299 IPC as reproduced herein above, offence committed will fall under Section 304 Part-I as per the observations of the Apex Court in Veeran and others Vs. State of M.P. Decided, (2011) 5 SCR 300 which have to be also kept into mind.

47. On overall scrutiny of the facts and circumstances of the present case coupled with the opinion of the Medical Officer and considering the principle laid down by the Apex Court in the Case of Tukaram and Ors Vs. State of Maharashtra, reported in (2011) 4 SCC 250 and in the case of B.N. Kavatakar and Another Vs. State of Karnataka, reported in 1994 SUPP (1) SCC 304, we are of the considered opinion that the offence would be one punishable under Section 304 part-I of the IPC.

Theory of Sentencing -

48. During course of argument, learned counsel for the appellant has made an alternative prayer for reduction of the sentence and has submitted that the sentence of life imprisonment awarded to the appellant by the trial Court is very harsh. He has also submitted that the appellant is languishing in jail for the past more than 15 years. Hence a prayer has been made to reduce the sentence of the convict to 10 years.

49. In Mohd. Giasuddin Vs. State of AP, [AIR 1977 SC 1926], explaining rehabilitary & reformative aspects in sentencing it has been observed by the Supreme Court:

"Crime is a pathological aberration. The criminal can ordinarily be redeemed and the state has to rehabilitate rather than avenge. The sub-culture that leads to ante-social behaviour has to be countered not by undue cruelty but by reculturization. Therefore, the focus of interest in penology in the individual and the goal is salvaging him for the society. The infliction of harsh and savage punishment is thus a relic of past and regressive times. The human today vies sentencing as a process of reshaping a person who has deteriorated into criminality and the modern community has a primary stake in the rehabilitation of the offender as a means of a social defence. Hence a therapeutic, rather than an 'in terrorem' outlook should prevail in our criminal courts, since brutal incarceration of the person merely produces laceration of his mind. If you are to punish a man retributively, you must injure him. If you are to reform him, you must improve him and, men are not improved by injuries."

50. 'Proper Sentence' was explained in Deo Narain Mandal vs. State of UP [(2004) 7 SCC 257] by observing that Sentence should not be either excessively harsh or ridiculously low. While determining the quantum of sentence, the court should bear in mind the 'principle of proportionality'. Sentence should be based on facts of a given case. Gravity of offence, manner of commission of crime, age and sex of accused should be taken into account. Discretion of Court in awarding sentence cannot be exercised arbitrarily or whimsically.

51. In Ravada Sasikala vs. State of A.P. AIR 2017 SC 1166, the Hon'ble Supreme Court referred the judgments in Jameel vs State of UP [(2010) 12 SCC 532], Guru Basavraj vs State of Karnatak, [(2012) 8 SCC 734], Sumer Singh vs Surajbhan Singh, [(2014) 7 SCC 323], State of Punjab vs Bawa Singh, [(2015) 3 SCC 441], and Raj Bala vs State of Haryana, [(2016) 1 SCC 463] and has reiterated that, in operating the sentencing system, law should adopt corrective machinery or deterrence based on factual matrix. Facts and given circumstances in each case, nature of crime, manner in which it was planned and committed, motive for commission of crime, conduct of accused, nature of weapons used and all other attending circumstances are relevant facts which would enter into area of consideration. Further, undue sympathy in sentencing would do more harm to justice dispensations and would undermine the public confidence in the efficacy of law. It is the duty of every court to award proper sentence having regard to nature of offence and manner of its commission. The Hon'ble supreme court further said that courts must not only keep in view the right of victim of crime but also society at large. While considering imposition of appropriate punishment, the impact of crime on the society as a whole and rule of law needs to be balanced. The judicial trend in the country has been towards striking a balance between reform and punishment. The protection of society and stamping out criminal proclivity must be the object of law which can be achieved by imposing appropriate sentence on criminals and wrongdoers. Law, as a tool to maintain order and peace, should effectively meet challenges confronting the society, as society could not long endure and develop under serious threats of crime and disharmony. It is therefore, necessary to avoid undue leniency in imposition of sentence. Thus, the criminal justice jurisprudence adopted in the country is not retributive but reformative and corrective. At the same time, undue harshness should also be avoided keeping in view the reformative approach underlying in our criminal justice system.

52. Considering the facts and circumstances of the case and also keeping in view the criminal jurisprudence in our country which is reformative and corrective and not retributive, this Court considers that no accused person is incapable of being reformed and therefore, all measures should be applied to give them an opportunity of reformation in order to bring them in the social stream.

53. As discussed above, 'reformative theory of punishment' is to be adopted and for that reason, it is necessary to impose punishment keeping in view the 'doctrine of proportionality'. It appears from perusal of impugned judgment that sentence awarded by learned trial court for life term is very harsh in the light of the entirety of facts and circumstances of the case and gravity of offence. Hon'ble Apex Court, as discussed above, has held that undue harshness should be avoided taking into account the reformative approach underlying in criminal justice system.

54. Recently In Mohd. Firoz v. State of M.P., (2022) 7 SCC 443, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held like this:

61......One of the basic principles of restorative justice as developed by this Court over the years, also is to give an opportunity to the offender to repair the damage caused, and to become a socially useful individual, when he is released from the jail. The maximum punishment prescribed may not always be the determinative factor for repairing the crippled psyche of the offender.

55. In latest decision in Khokan Alias Khokhan Vishwas vs. State of Chhattisgarh, (2021) 2 Supreme Court Cases 365 where the facts were similar to this case, the Apex Court has allowed the appeal of the accused appellant. The decision of the Apex Court in the case of Anversinh v. State of Gujarat, (2021) 3 SCC 12 which was related to kidnapping from legal guardian, wherein it was established that the Court while respecting the concerns of both society and victim, propounded that the twin principle of deterrence and correction would be served by reducing the period of incarceration already undergone by the accused. In our case, this is not that gruesome murder where the accused cannot be dealt with in light of all these judgments. Judgments in Pravat Chandra Mohanty v. State of Odisha, (2021) 3 SCC 529 & Pardeshiram v. State of M.P., (2021) 3 SCC 238 will also enure for the benefit of the accused.

56. In view of the aforesaid discussions, we are of the view that appeal is liable to be partly allowed and the conviction of the appellant under Section 302 IPC is liable to be converted into conviction under Section 304 (Part-I) IPC.

57. In the facts and circumstances of the present case, while balancing the scale of retributive justice and restorative justice, we deem it appropriate to impose upon the appellant-convict the sentence of imprisonment for a period of 14 years under Section 304 Part-I instead of imprisonment for the remainder of his natural life for the offence under Section 302 I.P.C.

58. It is pertinent to mention here that the convict/accused is in jail since 16 years. We are astonished at the way that the State machinery functions as they have not even considered the case of the accused after the 14th year is over and thereby the purpose of Section 433 Cr.P.C., is frustrated which reads as follows:

"433. Power to commute sentence. The appropriate Government may, without the consent of the person sentenced, commute-

(a) a sentence of death, for any other punishment provided by the Indian Penal Code;

(b) a sentence of imprisonment for life, for imprisonment for a term not exceeding fourteen years or for fine;

(c) a sentence of rigorous imprisonment, for simple imprisonment for any term to which that person might have been sentenced, or for fine;

(d) a sentence of simple imprisonment, for fine".

59. It was brought to the notice of this Court that the convict has also a wife and three children, he is the sole earning member of the family, hence we deem it fit to substitute his punishment of life imprisonment to 14 years as it appears that he has not been even able to engage any advocate for him. This is the jail appeal pending since 2007 and very strangely after 10 years of its filing the matter has been numbered.

60. Accordingly, the appeal is partly allowed and the appellant is convicted for the offence under Section 304 Part-I I.P.C. and is sentenced to undergo 14 years of incarceration with remission. We maintain the fine amount and default sentence. The default sentence will start after 14 years, which would also now over.

61. The appellant shall be released immediately, if not, wanted any other offence.

62. We are thankful to Shri Ram Lal Mishra, counsel for the informant, Mr. Mohd. Furkan Khan, Law Clerk (Trainee), for ably assisting the Court.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.
Hon'ble Ajai Tyagi, J.)

1. A projection is made in the country that bail application of accused-persons who were in jail for more than 10 years are not being listed and not being heard in the High Court of Allahabad.

2. With lot of pain, we mention here that this is the fourth Bail application filed by the accused. The third bail application was filed after the paper book was ready. The paper book is prepared way back in the year 2018. The office report dated 11.7.2018 shows that the paper book has been prepared as per order of the Court. The case was put up for hearing. On 10.1.2020 on the request of counsel for appellants, matter was adjourned. On 29.1.2020, once again matter was adjourned because of the illness slip of counsel for appellants, thereafter, the third bail application was rejected and order application reads as follows:-

"Put up for hearing in the additional cause list on 25.2.2020.

This order has been passed in the presence of Shri Rajesh Kumar Singh, learned counsel for the appellant and Dr. S.B. Maurya, learned AGA."

3. Thereafter, again on 25.2.2020, much after the pandemic set into this country, the appellants counsels have absented themselves and Shri Harish Chandra Tiwari was appointed as amicus curie.

4. Thereafter, once again Shri Rajesh Kumar Singh has filed this bail application.

5. We are really at pains to convey to Shri Rajesh Kumar Singh that he may point out any single ground except incarceration and he has argued the bail application as he is arguing the main matter, namely, that one of the eye witnesses has not been examined. There is general rule assigned of firing. It was a petty offence. It is further submitted that only interested witnesses have been examined and it is lastly pointed out that for a period of 15 years the accused are in jail.

6. We note that not a single application was filed for getting the matter heard.

7. Today, though the matter is in the caption of cases in which appellants are in jail for more than 10 years, learned counsel for appellants is reluctant to argue the main matter, he has substituted five counsels and, thereafter, has appeared for both the accused.

8. One more aspect which requires to be mentioned in this appeal is that despite the fact that the appeal is listed for hearing, learned counsel does not permit the Court to decide the appeal and they claim only to argue bail application.

9. A situation would arise that the judgment of Saudan Singh (supra) is placed press into service in all the matters and the learned Advocate refuses to argue main matter though the paper book is ready. A latter judgment of the Apex Court in Hariom v State of UP, Petition for Special Leave to Appeal (Crl.) No.4545 of 2022 decided on 18.7.2022 will not permit us to grant bail at this juncture as this is the subsequent bail application. This tendency of filing bail application subsequently despite the fact that earlier orders for prepare all the paper book, this would only add to the pendency as after accused are enlarged on bail. Counsel are reluctant to argue the matters and statistical data of Allahabad High Court shows that matters of the year 1990 are pending where the accused are on bail, similar would become the situation in latter part if such pendency is not sough out, the pendency would enough come down. In this case counsel was requested to argue the matter even he was convey that this Court may settle with costs as no new grounds are urged but in consisted that judgment of Sudan Singh (supra) be pressed into service and his accused should be enlarged on bail. We deprecate this practice which is deprecated by the Apex Court in Hariom (supra).

10. The only change in the circumstance is change of learned Advocate and is only wanting to argue for enlargement bail and press the application for enlargement on bail on the basis of the judgment of Sudan Singh (supra).

11. In our case, learned counsel for accused after getting the bail application rejected time and again has filed this bail application, therefore, the judgment in Sudan Singh (supra) cannot be made applicable to the facts of the case. A group of matters cannot be made applicable in the facts of the case.

12. The pendency of this bail application adds to the list of pending bail application though this is subsequent bail application for enlargement on bail where no new grounds are alleged except period of incarceration.

13. The main matter could have been heard on merits today itself but the over insistence of counsel to argue the subsequent bail application shows that the counsel is only wanting to argue on bail.

14. However, learned counsel insisted that we should hear the bail application on merits. The First bail application was rejected on merits holding that there are litigations going on and the appellants had fired gunshot on the deceased and two other persons were injured equally seriously however, accused Lakhanshah was released on bail.

15. The matter is ready for final disposal despite that the counsels in these matters are not ready to make their submissions on merits assailing the conviction but instead are insisting on hearing application for enlargement on accused on bail.

16. We have no other option but to dismiss this application, we are supported our view by subsequent judgment of the Apex Court in Lav Parasher @ Chinu v. State of U.P. in Special Leave to Appeal (Crl.) No.1891 of 2022 decided on 17.05.2022 decided by larger bench, where this practice of learned Advocates only insisting for getting the bail application heard has been deprecated as follows:-

"In the normal course, we would have granted the relief of bail, especially, after the petitioner has undergone a sentence of 12 years. In the facts and circumstances of the case, where the petitioner has not shown interest in arguing the appeal, we are not inclined to interfere with the order passed by the High Court. However, taking into account the fact that the petitioner has undergone incarceration for more than 12 years, the High Court is requested to dispose of the appeal expeditiously not later than a period of 3 months from today. In case, the appeal is not disposed of within the said period, liberty is granted to the petitioner to renew his application for bail."

17. The application for enlargement of the accused on being dismissed bail, this appeal requires to be listed on 17th of August, 2022 for final hearing before the Court taking up such matters.

1. Heard Sri Rajrshi Gupta, learned counsel for the appellant and Sri Nagendra Kumar Srivastava, learned A.G.A. for the state.

2. This appeal challenges the judgment and order dated 4.10.2016 passed by learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.1, Hathras in Sessions Trial No.357 of 2014 (State vs. Raj Kumar @ Raju) arising out of Case Crime No.280 of 2014 convicting accused-appellant under Section 302 of Indian Penal Code, 1860 (hereinafter referred to as 'IPC') and sentenced the accused-appellant to undergo imprisonment for life with fine of Rs.30,000/- and in case of default of payment of fine, further to undergo imprisonment for a period of six months.

3. The genesis of the case is that the deceased was married with the accused appellant Raj Kumar three years before the occurrence. It is alleged in the FIR that the appellant/ accused and his family members were demanding Rs.2 lacs as additional dowry and when the deceased showed her inability to get the same from her parents, they harassed and subjected her to cruelty. On 20.04.2014, Rs.50,000/- as additional dowry were given to the accused persons but on 21.04.2014 the sad news of her death came. The FIR was lodged on the very same day by Satyaveer, the father of the deceased. The police moved to the scene of occurrence and prepared panchayatnama, autopsy of the dead body was performed and the post mortem revealed that the death was due to strangulation.

4. The police after recording the statements of several witnesses filed charge-sheet against the three accused persons. Being summoned the accused were committed to the court of Sessions as the offences for which the accused were charged were exclusively triable by the court of Sessions.

5. The charges were framed for commission of the offence under Section 304 B, 498 I.P.C. Read with Section 4 of D.P. Act and an alternative charge 302/34 I.P.C. was also framed against all the three accused persons, which was denied by them. They pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried.

6. The trial started and the prosecution examined a total of 10 witnesses, who are as follows:

1.	Satyavir Singh, informant/ father of the deceased	P.W.1
2.	Premwati, mother of the deceased	P.W.2
3.	Anil Kumar, cousin of the deceased	P.W.3
4.	Rajwati, aunt of the deceased	P.W.4
5.	Sukhveer, uncle of the deceased	P.W.5
6.	Dharmendra, cousin of the deceased	P.W.6
7.	Dr. R.K. Dayal, who performed the autopsy	P.W.7
8.	Satyaveer Vyaas,witness of the inquest	P.W.8
9.	Ram Veer, witness of the inquest	P.W.9
10.	C.O. Narendra Dev, second I.O.	P.W.10

7. In support of the oral evidence following documents were filed:

1.	Written Report	Ex.Ka.1
2.	Inquest Report	Ex.Ka.2
3.	Autopsy Report	Ex.Ka.3
4.	Charge Sheet	Ex.Ka.4
5.	FIR	Ex.Ka.5
6.	Site Plan	Ex.Ka.6
7.	FIR	Ex.Ka.7
8.	Recovery Memo of Bangles	Ex.Ka.8
9.	Photo Nash	Ex.Ka.9
10.	Letter to R.I.	Ex.Ka.10
11.	Letter to C.M.O.	Ex.Ka.11

8. After the evidence was over, statement of the accused persons under Section 313 Cr.P.C. was recorded and the incriminating circumstances and the evidence against them were put to them. They have taken a defence of false implication and present accused/ appellant Raj Kumar stated that the deceased committed suicide, at the time of occurrence he was not present at home and had gone for his job. When he got informed that the door has been closed by the deceased from inside, he came back, the door lock was broken by the neighbours and they saw the deceased hanging.

9. D.W.1 Prem Singh has been produced for the defence side

10. At the end of the trial and after recording the statement of the accused under section 313 of Cr.P.C., and hearing arguments on behalf of prosecution and the defence, the learned Sessions Judge convicted the appellant as mentioned above.

11. Learned counsel for the appellant has relied on the decision in Sanjay Maurya Vs. State of U.P., (2021) 02 ILR A473 and has contended that it is not proved that the offence under Section 302 is committed or any offence under Section 304B is proved against the accused. The case cannot be said to be proved under Section 302 of Indian Penal Code as the conviction by Trial Court with the aid of Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 is bad. It is further submitted that the decisions on which the trial court has placed reliance have been misread by the learned trial Judge so as to hold that accused is guilty of commission of offence under Section 302 IPC. It is further submitted that the incident even if it is believed to have occurred and culpability of accused is proved, occurred on the spur of the moment, therefore, the accused if has to be held guilty, be convicted under Section 304(1) of the I.P.C.

12. As against this Sri N.K. Srivastava, learned counsel for the State has contended that

(i) the death occurred in the matrimonial home of the deceased;

(ii) the incident occurred within 7 years of married life. The proof of death being homicidal is proved. Despite the fact that in the statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C the accused has pleaded that he is not guilty, he has not discharged the burden cast on him to rebut the proved facts against him.

13. While considering the facts we have to consider the provisions of Section 304B IPC read with Section 302 of the Indian Penal Code. Trial Court has based the conviction with the aid of Section 106 of Indian Evidence Act, 1872. The provisions of Section 106 of Indian Evidence Act, 1872 lay as follows :-

"106. Burden of proving fact especially within knowledge.--When any fact is especially within the knowledge of any person, the burden of proving that fact is upon him. Illustrations

(a) When a person does an act with some intention other than that which the character and circumstances of the act suggest, the burden of proving that intention is upon him.

(b) A is charged with travelling on a railway without a ticket. The burden of proving that he had a ticket is on him."

14. We are of the considered opinion that Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 would come into play once the prosecution has discharged its duty of proving facts as per the charge to some extent on the basis of evidence. In this case, it is desirable to look into the ingredients of Section 300 of I.P.C which read as follows:-

"300. Murder.--Except in the cases hereinafter excepted, culpable homicide is murder, if the act by which the death is caused is done with the intention of causing death, or--

(Secondly) --If it is done with the intention of causing such bodily injury as the offender knows to be likely to cause the death of the person to whom the harm is caused, or--

(Thirdly) --If it is done with the intention of causing bodily injury to any person and the bodily injury intended to be inflicted is sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death, or--

(Fourthly) --If the person committing the act knows that it is so imminently dangerous that it must, in all probability, cause death or such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, and commits such act without any excuse for incurring the risk of causing death or such injury as aforesaid. Illustrations

(a) A shoots Z with the intention of killing him. Z dies in consequence. A commits murder.

(b) A, knowing that Z is labouring under such a disease that a blow is likely to cause his death, strikes him with the intention of causing bodily injury. Z dies in consequence of the blow. A is guilty of murder, although the blow might not have been sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause the death of a person in a sound state of health. But if A, not knowing that Z is labouring under any disease, gives him such a blow as would not in the ordinary course of nature kill a person in a sound state of health, here A, although he may intend to cause bodily injury, is not guilty of murder, if he did not intend to cause death, or such bodily injury as in the ordinary course of nature would cause death.

(c) A intentionally gives Z a sword-cut or club-wound sufficient to cause the death of a man in the ordinary course of nature. Z dies in consequence. Here, A is guilty of murder, although he may not have intended to cause Z's death.

(d) A without any excuse fires a loaded cannon into a crowd of persons and kills one of them. A is guilty of murder, although he may not have had a premeditated design to kill any particular individual. Exception 1.--When culpable homicide is not murder.--Culpable homicide is not murder if the offender, whilst deprived of the power of self-control by grave and sudden provocation, causes the death of the person who gave the provocation or causes the death of any other person by mistake or accident. The above exception is subject to the following provisos:--

(First) --That the provocation is not sought or voluntarily provoked by the offender as an excuse for killing or doing harm to any person.

(Secondly) --That the provocation is not given by anything done in obedience to the law, or by a public servant in the lawful exercise of the powers of such public servant.

(Thirdly) --That the provocation is not given by anything done in the lawful exercise of the right of private defence. Explanation.--Whether the provocation was grave and sudden enough to prevent the offence from amounting to murder is a question of fact. Illustrations

(a) A, under the influence of passion excited by a provocation given by Z, intentionally kills. Y, Z's child. This is murder, in as much as the provocation was not given by the child, and the death of the child was not caused by accident or misfortune in doing an act caused by the provocation.

(b) Y gives grave and sudden provocation to A. A, on this provocation, fires a pistol at Y, neither intending nor knowing himself to be likely to kill Z, who is near him, but out of sight. A kills Z. Here A has not committed murder, but merely culpable homicide.

(c) A is lawfully arrested by Z, a bailiff. A is excited to sudden and violent passion by the arrest, and kills Z. This is murder, in as much as the provocation was given by a thing done by a public servant in the exercise of his powers.

(d) A appears as witness before Z, a Magistrate, Z says that he does not believe a word of A's deposition, and that A has perjured himself. A is moved to sudden passion by these words, and kills Z. This is murder.

(e) A attempts to pull Z's nose, Z, in the exercise of the right of private defence, lays hold of A to prevent him from doing so. A is moved to sudden and violent passion in consequence, and kills Z. This is murder, in as much as the provocation was given by a thing done in the exercise of the right of private defence.

(f) Z strikes B. B is by this provocation excited to violent rage. A, a bystander, intending to take advantage of B's rage, and to cause him to kill Z, puts a knife into B's hand for that purpose. B kills Z with the knife. Here B may have committed only culpable homicide, but A is guilty of murder. Exception 2.--Culpable homicide is not murder if the offender, in the exercise in good faith of the right of private defence of person or property, exceeds the power given to him by law and causes the death of the person against whom he is exercising such right of defence without premeditation, and without any intention of doing more harm than is necessary for the purpose of such defence. Illustration Z attempts to horsewhip A, not in such a manner as to cause grievous hurt to A. A draws out a pistol. Z persists in the assault. A believing in good faith that he can by no other means prevent himself from being horsewhipped, shoots Z dead. A has not committed murder, but only culpable homicide. Exception 3.--Culpable homicide is not murder if the offender, being a public servant or aiding a public servant acting for the advancement of public justice, exceeds the powers given to him by law, and causes death by doing an act which he, in good faith, believes to be lawful and necessary for the due discharge of his duty as such public servant and without ill-will towards the person whose death is caused. Exception 4.--Culpable homicide is not murder if it is committed without premeditation in a sudden fight in the heat of passion upon a sudden quarrel and without the offender having taken undue advantage or acted in a cruel or unusual manner. Explanation.--It is immaterial in such cases which party offers the provocation or commits the first assault. Exception 5.--Culpable homicide is not murder when the person whose death is caused, being above the age of eighteen years, suffers death or takes the risk of death with his own consent. Illustration A, by instigation, voluntarily causes, Z, a person under eighteen years of age to commit suicide. Here, on account of Z's youth, he was incapable of giving consent to his own death; A has therefore abetted murder."

15. Section 304B of IPC reads as under :

[304B. Dowry death. -- (1) Where the death of a woman is caused by any burns or bodily injury or occurs otherwise than under normal circumstances within seven years of her marriage and it is shown that soon before her death she was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry, such death shall be called "dowry death", and such husband or relative shall be deemed to have caused her death.

Explanation. For the purposes of this sub-section, "dowry" shall have the same meaning as in section 2 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 (28 of 1961).

(2) Whoever commits dowry death shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than seven years but which may extend to imprisonment for life.]"

16. The question which falls for our consideration is whether, on reappraisal of the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case, the conviction of the appellant under Section 302 of I.P.C. of the Indian Penal Code should be upheld or the conviction deserves to be converted under Section 304 Part-I or Part-II of the Indian Penal Code or under Section 304B of IPC. It would be relevant to refer to Section 299 of the Indian Penal Code, which reads as under:

"299. Culpable homicide: Whoever causes death by doing an act with the intention of causing death, or with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, or with the knowledge that he is likely by such act to cause death, commits the offence of culpable homicide."

17. The academic distinction between "murder' and "culpable homicide not amounting to murder' has always vexed the Courts. The confusion is caused, if Courts losing sight of the true scope and meaning of the terms used by the legislature in these sections, allow themselves to be drawn into minute abstractions. The safest way of approach to the interpretation and application of these provisions seems to be to keep in focus the keywords used in the various clauses of Section 299 and 300 of I.P.Code. The following comparative table will be helpful in appreciating the points of distinction between the two offences.

A person commits culpable homicide if the act by which the death is caused is done-	Subject to certain exceptions culpable homicide is murder is the act by which the death is caused is done.
	INTENTION
(a) with the intention of causing death; or	(1) with the intention of causing death; or
(b) with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death; or	(2) with the intention of causing such bodily injury as the offender knows to be likely to cause the death of the person to whom the harm is caused;
KNOWLEDGE	KNOWLEDGE
(c) with the knowledge that the act is likely to cause death.	(4) with the knowledge that the act is so immediately dangerous that it must in all probability cause death or such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, and without any excuse for incurring the risk of causing death or such injury as is mentioned above.

18. On overall scrutiny of the facts and circumstances of the present case coupled with the opinion of the Medical Officer and considering the principle laid down by the Apex Court in the Case of Tukaram and Ors Vs. State of Maharashtra, reported in (2011) 4 SCC 250 and in the case of B.N. Kavatakar and Another Vs. State of Karnataka, reported in 1994 SUPP (1) SCC 304, we are of the considered opinion that the offence would not be one punishable under Section 304 of the IPC.

19. It would be relevant for us to discuss the evidence of P.W.1, P.W.2, P.W.3, P.W.4, P.W.5 and P.W.6, who are family members of the deceased coupled with the fact that P.W.2, P.W.3,P.W.4, P.W.5 and P.W.6 did not support the prosecution and were declared hostile. However, in examination-in-chief, they have categorically mentioned that they got the deceased married to Raj Kumar three years before she died and in the marriage they gave dowry as per their financial condition, however denied the fact that the appellant and his family members were demanding any kind of dowry. P.W.1, the father of the deceased, has supported the prosecution version but his deposition is contradicted by the testimonies of P.W.2, P.W.3,P.W.4, P.W.5 and P.W.6, who are real mother and other family members of the deceased.

20. In cross-examination witnesses P.W.2, P.W.3, P.W.4, P.W.5 and P.W.6 have feigned ignorance as to how the I.O. had mentioned the fact of demand of Rs.2 lac in their statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C.

21. The trial Court has convicted the accused appellant under Section 302 I.P.C. with the aid of Section 106 of the Evidence Act. In such a case, which may be said to be rest on circumstantial evidence to prove the offence under Section 300 I.P.C. culpable homicide amounting to murder, there must be clinching evidence that it was the appellant alone, who was last seen with the deceased. The evidence on record shows that nobody has seen the accused committing the offence of strangulating the deceased. The circumstances and ingredients to be proved to bring home charge under Section 302 I.P.C. in a case based on circumstantial evidence have been reiterated in a case of State of U.P. v. Ravindra Prakash Mittal (Dr), (1992) 3 SCC 300, the Hon'ble Apex Court has held:

"20. .....There is a series of decisions of this Court so eloquently and ardently propounding the cardinal principle to be followed in cases in which the evidence is purely of circumstantial nature. We think, it is not necessary to recapitulate all those decisions except stating that the essential ingredients to prove guilt of an accused person by circumstantial evidence are:

(1) The circumstances from which the conclusion is drawn should be fully proved;

(2) the circumstances should be conclusive in nature;

(3) all the facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of guilt and inconsistent with innocence;

(4) the circumstances should, to a moral certainty, exclude the possibility of guilt of any person other than the accused."

22. It was also held in Raja v. State of Haryana, (2015) 11 SCC 43 that the Court is required to evaluate circumstantial evidence to see that chain of events has been established clearly and completely to rule out any reasonable likelihood of innocence of accused; whether chain is complete or not, would depend on facts of each case emanating from evidence and no universal yardstick should above be attempted.

23. In the light of the aforesaid legal proposition, it has to be examined whether the chain of circumstances in this case is complete and all the circumstances lead to a certain conclusion that it was the accused only who was the author of the crime and whether there was sufficient evidence on record or only on the basis of the last seen this conclusion was drawn. The death has occurred in the matrimonial home of the deceased and that is only the circumstance which was proved by the prosecution. Considering the evidence of the witnesses and also considering the medical evidence including post mortem report, there is no doubt left in our mind that it is a homicidal death. If the decision over, which the trial Court has placed reliance to have coming to the conclusion that offence under Section 302 I.P.C. is made out, whether can be made applicable to the facts of this case as examined, the answer is in negative. However, a rebuttal evidence under Section 106 of the Evidence Act is clear the facts and offence under Section 304 B could be presumed to have been made out but not an offence under Section 302 I.P.C.

24. This takes us to the question of applicability of Section 304B of I.P.C to the facts of this case.

25. To bring home charge under Section 304 B I.P.C., the ingredients to be proved are very well settled in the catena of decisions by the Apex Court and also by this Court. Section 304B I.P.C. reads as follows:

304B. Dowry death.--

(1) Where the death of a woman is caused by any burns or bodily injury or occurs otherwise than under normal circumstances within seven years of her marriage and it is shown that soon before her death she was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry, such death shall be called "dowry death", and such husband or relative shall be deemed to have caused her death. Explanation.--For the purpose of this sub-section, "dowry" shall have the same meaning as in section 2 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 (28 of 1961).

(2) Whoever commits dowry death shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than seven years but which may extend to imprisonment for life.]

26. From the above definition the following ingredients to establish the offence under Section 304B I.P.C. are as follows:

(i) the death of a woman must have been caused by burns or bodily injury or otherwise than under normal circumstances;

(ii) such death must have occurred within seven years of her marriage;

(iii) soon before her death, the woman must have been subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relatives of her husband;

(iv) such cruelty or harassment must be for, or in connection with, demand for dowry".

27. The aforesaid ingredients have been reiterated in a catena of decisions of the Hon'ble Apex Court and of this High Court also and very recently in Devendra Singh Vs. State of Uttrakhand AIR 2022 SC 2965 also.

28. However we examine the evidence of P.W.1 in totality, we find that the ingredients of offence under Section 304B I.P.C. are clearly established from his deposition. He is the unfortunate father of the young deceased lady. He has categorically stated in his statement that after the marriage of her daughter several time additional dowry was demanded from her daughter by her in-laws, who were not happy with the dowry already given to them. When his daughter informed him, he went to the accused persons and Rs.50,000/- were paid to them on 20.04.2014 and 21.04.2014 was the fateful day where the incident happened. This witness has also proved the written tehrir given to the police by him as Ex.Ka-1. In his cross examination he has also affirmed this fact that whenever he visited the matrimonial home of his daughter, he found her not happy. No material contradictions, exaggerated or inconsistent statement are found in the whole testimony of P.W.1. The theory of 'soon before' is also proved by his deposition as only one day before the fateful day the additional dowry was paid to the accused persons by him, which was demanded on 15.4.2014 as deceased herself told him on phone. In Satvir Singh And Ors. Vs. State of Punjab (2001) 8 SCC 633, it has been clarified that the expression 'soon before', here it was indicates that there must be a perceptible nexus between the infliction of dowry-related harassment and cruelty on the women and death. In Satbir Singh Vs. State of Haryana (2021) 6 SCC 1, it was held that the phrase "soon before" as appearing in Section 304-B IPC cannot be construed to mean "immediately before". The prosecution must establish existence of "proximate and live link" between the dowry death and cruelty or harassment for dowry demand by the husband or his relatives. Needless to say that all the ingredients to establish the guilt under Section 304B I.P.C. have been clearly proved by the testimony of P.W.1.

29. D.W.1 produced to prove the plea of alibi taken by the accused/appellant has been disbelieved by the learned trial Court. He has stated that it was a case of suicide but he could not make it clear as to what was the reason of suicide committed by the deceased.

30. We come to the definite conclusion that the death was homicidal death. The judgments cited by the learned counsel for the appellant namely Sanjay Maurya (supra) would permit us to uphold our finding which we conclusively hold that the offence is not under Section 302 of I.P.C. but it is culpable homicide and was dowry death. All the ingredients of dowry death viz. unnatural death of deceased by strangulation within seven years of her marriage, cruelty for demand of dowry by her husband, the theory of soon before, are proved beyond reasonable doubt on the basis of deposition of P.W.1 and also by the medical evidence. Moreover, no material lacuna in investigation appears to be committed by the I.O.

31. While coming to the conclusion that the accused is the perpetrator of the offence, whether sentence of life imprisonment and fine is adequate or the sentence requires to be modified in the facts and circumstances of this case and in the light of certain judicial pronouncements and precedents applicable in such matters. This Court would refer to the following precedents, namely, Mohd. Giasuddin Vs. State of AP, [AIR 1977 SC 1926], explaining rehabilitary & reformative aspects in sentencing it has been observed by the Supreme Court:

"Crime is a pathological aberration. The criminal can ordinarily be redeemed and the state has to rehabilitate rather than avenge. The sub-culture that leads to ante-social behaviour has to be countered not by undue cruelty but by reculturization. Therefore, the focus of interest in penology in the individual and the goal is salvaging him for the society. The infliction of harsh and savage punishment is thus a relic of past and regressive times. The human today vies sentencing as a process of reshaping a person who has deteriorated into criminality and the modern community has a primary stake in the rehabilitation of the offender as a means of a social defence. Hence a therapeutic, rather than an 'in terrorem' outlook should prevail in our criminal courts, since brutal incarceration of the person merely produces laceration of his mind. If you are to punish a man retributively, you must injure him. If you are to reform him, you must improve him and, men are not improved by injuries."

32. 'Proper Sentence' was explained in Deo Narain Mandal Vs. State of UP [(2004) 7 SCC 257] by observing that Sentence should not be either excessively harsh or ridiculously low. While determining the quantum of sentence, the court should bear in mind the 'principle of proportionality'. Sentence should be based on facts of a given case. Gravity of offence, manner of commission of crime, age and sex of accused should be taken into account. Discretion of Court in awarding sentence cannot be exercised arbitrarily or whimsically.

33. In Ravada Sasikala vs. State of A.P. AIR 2017 SC 1166, the Hon'ble Supreme Court referred the judgments in Jameel vs State of UP [(2010) 12 SCC 532], Guru Basavraj vs State of Karnatak, [(2012) 8 SCC 734], Sumer Singh vs Surajbhan Singh, [(2014) 7 SCC

323], State of Punjab vs Bawa Singh, [(2015) 3 SCC 441], and Raj Bala vs State of Haryana, [(2016) 1 SCC 463] and has reiterated that, in operating the sentencing system, law should adopt corrective machinery or deterrence based on factual matrix. Facts and given circumstances in each case, nature of crime, manner in which it was planned and committed, motive for commission of crime, conduct of accused, nature of weapons used and all other attending circumstances are relevant facts which would enter into area of consideration. Further, undue sympathy in sentencing would do more harm to justice dispensations and would undermine the public confidence in the efficacy of law. It is the duty of every court to award proper sentence having regard to nature of offence and manner of its commission. The Hon'ble Supreme Court further said that courts must not only keep in view the right of victim of crime but also society at large. While considering imposition of appropriate punishment, the impact of crime on the society as a whole and rule of law needs to be balanced. The judicial trend in the country has been towards striking a balance between reform and punishment. The protection of society and stamping out criminal proclivity must be the object of law which can be achieved by imposing appropriate sentence on criminals and wrongdoers. Law, as a tool to maintain order and peace, should effectively meet challenges confronting the society, as society could not long endure and develop under serious threats of crime and disharmony. It is therefore, necessary to avoid undue leniency in imposition of sentence. Thus, the criminal justice jurisprudence adopted in the country is not retributive but reformative and corrective. At the same time, undue harshness should also be avoided keeping in view the reformative approach underlying in our criminal justice system.

34. Keeping in view the facts and circumstances of the case and also keeping in view criminal jurisprudence in our country which is reformative and corrective and not retributive, this Court considers that no accused person is incapable of being reformed and therefore, all measures should be applied to give them an opportunity of reformation in order to bring them in the social stream.

35. Recent judgment of State of M.P Vs. Jogendra, (2022) 5 SCC 401 and ratio laid in the said judgment can be followed, however, instead of seven years period undergone of imprisonment for at least 10 years would be more than relevant in the facts and circumstances of this case.

36. Having discussed the judgment threadbare and having been considered the factual data, we have come to the conclusion that the offence committed by the accused with an aid of Section 106 of Indian Evidence Act, can be said to have been under Section 304B I.P.C. for the finding mentioned herein above.

37. By going through the evidence on record it is very clear that the act of the accused-appellant was not such which cannot be substituted by giving a lessor sentence than life imprisonment. It is submitted that the accused appellant has spent about 8 and 1/2 years of incarceration, which is the enough punishment in the facts of this case. However, we are of the considered view that the punishment in this case should be 10 years of incarceration against which a period of 8 and 1/2 years is already undergone. Accordingly, the appellant is held guilty under Section 304B I.P.C. and is sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for a period of 10 years but the fine and default sentence are maintained.

38. Accordingly, the appeal is partly allowed with the modification of the sentence and punishing section as above. Record and proceedings be sent back to the Court below forthwith.

39. A copy of this order be sent to the jail authorities for following this order and doing the needful.

40. We are thankful to Rajrshi Gupta, learned counsel for the appellant, Sri Nagendra Kumar Srivastava, learned A.G.A. and Mr. Mohd. Furkan Khan, Law Clerk (Trainee), for ably assisting the Court.

A. Civil Law - Constitution of India-Article 227-Cutting of trees from the land of plaintiff-Plaintiff claimed for compensation-defendants admitted that they had cut away the trees but denied the ownership of plaintiff-Inevitable conclusion drawn by Trial court was that the trees of defendants were existing in their land-Appellate Court has erred in interfering with the findings of the Trial court which was in favour of plaintiff-trial court rightly observed that plot no. 1136 and 1139 had been converted to plot no. 159 which was clear from the C.H. Form 41-the finding was absolutely correct that the trees of the plaintiff alone had been cut away- If there was in any manner a slip in the drafting of the plaint and plot no. 159 was not mentioned in the pleading it did not mean that the Trial court erred in considering the evidence which was produced with regard to plot no. 159-Thus, The appellate court judgment and decree is set aside.(Para 1 to 29)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Siddhartha Varma, J.)

1. A Suit being Original Suit No. 28 of 1995 was filed by the applicant against the respondents and one Jeet Singh. Relief sought was that the defendants be made to pay to the plaintiff Rs. 15,000/- as costs of the trees which were cut away by them from the plaintiff's plots nos. 1136 and 1139 which were having an area of about 14 bighas. The boundaries of the plots in question were also given in the plaint. The defendants filed their written statements denying the claim of the plaintiff saying that the plaintiffs were not the owners in possession of plots nos. 1136 and 1139 and they also denied the boundaries as were given in the plaint. However, after the framing of issues the Suit was decreed on 21.2.2006. While deciding the issue no. 1, it was categorically found that the plots nos. 1136 and 1139 were in the ownership of the plaintiff and that subsequently these plots were numbered as plot no. 159 after consolidation which fact was clear from the C.H. Form - 41 (Form which the consolidation authorities issue for showing the changed number of plots).

2. The Trial Court had also concluded that the fact that from plots nos. 1136 and 1139 (which were subsequently numbered as plot no. 159) the defendants had cut away the trees, was also clear as the khasras with regard to the old plots of the fasli year 1402, 1407 and 1410 had on them trees of Siros, Eucalyptus, Shisham and Jamun while the later khasras had no trees on them. This finding was arrived at despite the fact that the defendants had come up with a case that the trees in question were standing on their plots which were numbered as plot no.169.

3. The Trial Court had decreed the Suit despite the fact that the defendants had stated that in Khasras of 1402F to 1410F, the trees of Shisham, Siras, Jamun and Eucalyptus were there in their plot.

4. The Trial Court had found that the trees in question were definitely there on the plots of the plaintiff and had been cut away by the defendants because the defendants had admitted that they had cut away certain trees and the trees on their plot no.169 were still in existence.

5. Not satisfied by the Trial Court's decree, the respondents other than Jeet Singh who had died during the pendency of the Suit, filed an Appeal.

6. Before the appellate Court, the plaintiff filed an application (17ga) on 17.10.2006 for bringing an additional issue ("क्या विवादित पेड़ युकलिप्टुस, सिरस, खसरा न. 159 में स्थित थे")

7. The plaintiff also filed an application for amending the plaint on 17.10.2006 which was numbered as 18(ka). In it he had prayed that in paragraph no. 1 the word, "Chak" be deleted and the plaintiff be permitted to write "Purana Khasra" instead. Further prayer was made that in paragraph no. 1 itself "चकबंदी में पुराने खसरा न. 1136 व 1139 से चकबंदी तथा अन्य खसरा नम्बरों से नया खसरा न. 159 बना है" be added.

8. Still further, an application was moved on 4.11.2006 for the issuance of a survey commission.

9. On 17.10.2006, the application which is numbered as 17(ga) was rejected. Thereafter on 2.11.2006, the application no. 18(ga) was also rejected and finally on 6.11.2006 the application for survey commission being application no. 20(ga) was also rejected. Thereafter, the appeal which was filed by the respondents was decided and allowed on 4.1.2007.

10. The plaintiff-applicant has filed the instant writ petition against the order dated 17.10.2006 by which the application for framing of issues was rejected; the order dated 2.11.2006 by which the amendment application was rejected and the order dated 6.11.2006 by which the application for issuing the survey commission was rejected and also for the setting aside of the judgement and decree dated 4.1.2007 by which the Appeal was allowed.

11. No Second Appeal was filed as by the amendment of the Civil Procedure Code, no Second Appeal lay for a Suit where recovery of money was not exceeding Rs.25,000/-.

12. Learned counsel for the applicant relied upon the judgements of the Supreme Court reported in AIR 1960 SC 941 (Satyadhyan Ghosal and others vs. Smt. Deorjin Debi and another) and (2020) 7 SCC 327 (Mohd. Inam vs. Sanjay Kumar Singhal and others) and has submitted that interlocutory orders which could have been earlier challenged by means of Revision could very well be challenged before this Court while challenging the judgement and decree of the First Appeal dated 4.1.2007.

13. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submitted that if the applications (17ga), 18(ka) and 20(ga) were allowed then the confusion which was there in the mind of the Appellate Court with regard to the number of plot would have been cleared and he therefore submits that the amendment application ought to have been allowed. The survey commission would also have cleared all doubts.

14. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submitted that the Appeal was a continuation of a Suit and, therefore, the amendment application by which no admission was being withdrawn or by which no right which had accrued to the defendant was being challenged ought to have been allowed. He further submitted that since the amendment application was in a Suit which was filed prior to the amendment which was brought in the Code of Civil Procedure on 1.7.2002 the amendment application ought to have been allowed as had been held in (2009) 12 SCC 689 (Sumesh Singh vs. Phoolan Devi and others). The amendment application was thus not barred by the proviso to Order VI Rule 17 and that the same ought to have been allowed.

15. Learned counsel for the petitioner-applicant further submitted that issuance of the survey commission was also important as that would have cleared the cob-web in the mind of the Appellate Court and for this purpose, he relied upon the judgement reported in 2000 (7) JT 379 (Shreepat v. Rajendra Prasad & Ors.). He also relied upon a judgement of the Allahabad High Court reported in AIR 1975 ALLAHABAD 406 (Gajraj and others vs. Ramadhar and others).

16. Further, it is the case of the applicant-petitioner that if the case of the plaintiff was clear from the pleading which was to the effect that from plots nos. 1136 and 1139, the boundaries of which were given, then it mattered little that the changed plot no. 159 was not given in the plaint.

17. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submitted that when the C.H. Form 41 was present as an evidence before the Court then it was evident that the two plots numbered as 1136 and 1139 were converted to plot no. 159. He further submitted that the defendants always stated that plot no. 169 was their plot and on their plot trees which found place in the khasras of the years 1402 to 1410F were very much standing and in face of the admission of the defendants that they had cut away the trees it was only very evident that they had cut them away from the plaintiffs plots. Therefore, he submits that no interference ought to have been made by the Appellate Court.

18. Learned counsel for the plaintiff-applicant relied upon AIR 1987 SC 1242 (Ram Sarup Gupta(dead) by L.Rs. vs. Bishun Narain Inter College and others) and submitted that it was not desirable to place undue emphasis on form; instead he submitted that substance of pleadings should have been considered.

19. Since the learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon the paragraph no. 6 of the judgement the same is being reproduced here as under:-

"The question which falls for consideration is whether the respondents in their written statement have raised the necessary pleading that the license was irrevocable as contemplated by Section 60(b) of the Act and, if so, is there any evidence on record to support that plea. It is well settled that in the absence of pleading, evidence, if any, produced by the parties cannot be considered. It is also equally settled that no party should be permitted to travel beyond its pleading and that all necessary and material facts should be pleaded by the party in support of the case set up by it. The object and purpose of pleading is to enable the adversary party to know the case it has to meet. In order to have a fair trial it is imperative that the party should state the essential material facts so that other party may not be taken by surprise. The pleadings however should receive a liberal construction, no pedantic approach should be adopted to defeat justice on hair splitting technicalities. Sometimes, pleadings are expressed in words which may not expressly make out a case in accordance with strict interpretation of law, in such a case it is the duty of the Court to ascertain the substance of the pleadings to determine the question. It is not desirable to place undue emphasis on form, instead the substance of the pleadings should be considered. Whenever the question about lack of pleading is raised the enquiry should not be so much about the form of the pleadings, instead; the court must find out whether in substance the parties knew the case and the issues upon which they went to trial. Once it is found that in spite of deficiency in the pleadings parties knew the case and they proceeded to trial on those issues by producing evidence, in that event it would not be open to a party to raise the question of absence of pleadings in appeal. In Bhagwati Prasad v. Shri Chandramaul, (1966) 2 SCR 286 : (AIR 1966 SC 735) a Constitution Bench of this Court considering this question observed:

"If a plea is not specifically made and yet it is covered by an issue by implication, and the parties knew that the said plea was involved in the trial, then the mere fact that the plea was not expressly taken in the pleadings would not necessarily disentitle a party from relying upon if it is satisfactorily proved by evidence. The general rule no doubt is that the relief should be founded on pleadings made by the parties. But where the substantial matters relating to the title of both parties to the suit are touched, though indirectly or even obscurely in the issues, and evidence has been led about them, then the argument that a particular matter was not expressly taken in the pleadings would be purely formal and technical and cannot succeed in every case. What the Court has to consider in dealing with such an objection is : did the parties know that the matter in question was involved in the trial, and did they lead evidence about it ? If it appears that the parties did not know that the matter was in issue at the trial and one of them has had no opportunity to lead evidence in respect of it, that undoubtedly would be a different matter. To allow one party to reply upon a matter in respect of which the other party did not lead evidence and has had no opportunity to lead evidence, would introduce considerations of prejudice, and in doing justice to one party, the Court cannot do injustice to another.""

20. He further relied upon a judgement of the Supreme Court reported in 1956 SC 593 (Nagubai Ammal and others vs. B.Shama Rao and others).

21. Learned counsel for the petitioner heavily relied upon another judgement of the Supreme Court reported in AIR 1974 SC 1069 (Katikara Chintamani Dora and others v. Guatreddi Annamanaidu and others). The relevant portion of paragraph no. 55 which the learned counsel relied upon is being reproduced here as under :-

"We think, with all respect, that such an assumption was contrary to the well-established principle that in construing a pleading or a like petition, in this country, the court should not look merely to its form, or pick out from it isolated words or sentences; it must read the petition as a whole, gather the real intention of the party and reach at the substance of the matter."

22. A similar view which was taken in AIR 1977 SC 1158 (Smt. Manjushri Raha and others etc. v. B.L. Gupta and others etc.) and which was cited before me also states that "pleadings have to be interpreted not with formalistic rigour but with latitude or awareness of low legal literacy of poor people."

23. Learned counsel for the petitioner also relied upon (2013) 3 SCC 801 (Joseph Peter Sandy vs. Veronica Thomas Rajkumar and another) and submitted that lack of details in the pleadings cannot be a ground to reject a case for the reason that it can be supplemented through evidence by the parties.

24. Learned Senior Counsel appearing for the respondents Sri Anil Sharma assisted by Sri Raj Mohan Saggi, however, submitted that the Trial Court had exceeded its jurisdiction by concluding that plot no. 1136 and 1139 were now plot no. 159 despite the fact that there was no pleading. Learned counsel for the respondents relied upon 2001 JT (1) 252 (Makhan Lal Bangal v. Manas Bhunia & Ors) and submitted that there is a method by which issues have to be framed and when that is not followed the Court errs. He further relied upon a judgement of the Supreme Court reported in 2014 AIR SCW 2058 (Rajasthan State TPT Corporation and another vs. Bajranj Lal) and submitted that finding given in the absence of necessary pleadings and supporting evidence cannot be sustained in the eyes of law and he, therefore, submitted that when in the plaint there was no averment with regard to the fact that trees were standing on plot no. 159, the Appellate Court rightly allowed the Appeal and dismissed the Suit.

25. On the same issue, learned counsel for the respondents has relied upon 1998 (8) JT 39 (Saurashtra Chemicals v. Collector of Customs) and argued that in the absence of pleadings and evidence, if any, the case could not be considered by the authorities.

26. Having heard the learned counsel for the parties and having gone through the judgements which have been cited by them, this Court is of the view that the Appellate Court erred in interfering with the judgement and decree of the Trial Court. The Trial Court had conclusively given a finding that plot no. 1136 and 1139 the boundaries of which were given had been converted to plot no. 159 and this was also clear from the C.H. Form 41. If there was in any manner a slip in the drafting of the plaint and plot no. 159 was not mentioned then it did not mean that the Trial Court erred in considering the evidence which was produced with regard to plot no. 159.

27. When the issues were framed then clearly issue no. 5 was to the effect as to whether the plaintiff was the owner of the plots in question. The plots nos. 1136 and 1139 were involved in the case and C.H. Form No.41 had clearly stated that plot no. 1136 and 1139 were converted after consolidation into plot no. 159, therefore, there was absolutely no question that the defendants would be taken by surprise. In fact, the defendants while answering the plea that they had cut away the trees from the plaintiffs land had mentioned that yes they had cut away the trees but they had cut them away from their own land which was contained in plot no. 169. The natural conclusion, therefore, is that there was cutting of trees done by the defendants. What is more, the inevitable conclusion was also that as per the khasras of the defendants, the trees in their plots were still standing and, therefore, the finding was absolutely correct that the trees of the plaintiff alone had been cut away.

28. After having concluded that the Appellate Court had erred in interfering with the finding of the Trial Court, this Court is not giving any finding with regard to the fact as to whether the applications 17(ga), 18(ka) and 20(ga) were rightly or wrongly rejected. Suffice it to say that the orders by which these applications were rejected could have been challenged before this Court and the applicant petitioner if has challenged those orders, he has committed no wrong. However, since nothing would turn on whether they were rightly rejected or wrongly rejected, the impugned orders dated 17.10.2006, 2.11.2006 and 6.11.2006 are not being adjudicated upon.

29. The judgement and decree dated 4.1.2007 passed by the Additional District Judge, Court No.2, Bijnor, in Civil Appeal No. 25 of 2006 by which the first appeal was allowed deserves to be set aside and, therefore, is being set aside. The application under Article 227 of the Constitution of India is, accordingly, allowed.

A. Civil Law - Indian Trust Act, 1882-Section 34 & 1-Constitution of India, 1950-Article 227-Public religious trust-petitioner granted permission to dispose of the property of the temple for reconstruction - Trial court rightly rejected the application holding that the Act 1882 does not apply to public or private religious or charitable endowments-Petitioner's cause is noble and requires urgent relief but the remedy is not available at all in the present case.(Para 1 to 14)

The writ petition is disposed of. (E-6)

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Deepak Kumar Srivastava, learned Counsel for the petitioner and Mr. Manish Goyal, learned Senior Advocate, who on request of the Court acted as Amicus Curiae.

2. This petition under Article 227 of the Constitution arises from proceedings brought before the District Judge of Gorakhpur under Section 34 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882 (for short, 'the Act of 1882').

3. By an application under Section 34 of the Act of 1882, the petitioner, invoking the advisory jurisdiction of the Court regarding the management of trust property of the temple of Thakur Ji, has come up with a prayer for the grant of permission to dispose of the property of the temple, that is debutter, in order to apply the proceeds of the sale for restoration of the temple, that is said to be hundred years old and in a dilapidated condition.

4. The learned Additional District Judge, Court No.1, Gorakhpur, before whom the said application numbered as Civil Misc. Case No. 171 of 2020 came up, has rejected the same, holding that the Act of 1882 does not apply to public or private religious or charitable endowments.

5. It is against the said order that the unsuccessful applicant before the District Judge has petitioned this Court under Article 227 of the Constitution.

6. Since a purely legal question about the applicability of the Act of 1882 to a religious endowment or a trust, governing a temple, where thousands throng in faith was involved, this Court requested Mr. Manish Goyal to assist the Court as Amicus Curiae. Mr. Goyal readily rendered his very able assistance.

7. The applicant, Neel Prasad says that he has been the owner of a one-half share in the property shown in Schedule A to the application moved before the District Judge and has power of disposition over it. His ancestor, Rai Thakur Dayal Singh was an issueless man with inclination towards religion. He got a temple of Thakur Dwara Ji constructed and consecrated at Village Sarhari over land shown in Schedule B to the application, where members of the public in general offer prayers (Pooja-Archana). The said temple was got constructed by Rai Thakur Dayal Singh in the year 1880 and he donated for the purpose of maintenance of the said temple, as per his wish, 100 bighas (pakka) land. However, before Rai Thakur Dayal Singh could execute a deed of trust, gift or the other disposition in favour of the temple, he passed away. Therefore, his widow, Smt. Jaswant Kunwari and another Rai Devi Saran Lal executed a gift deed dated 29.04.1885, donating lands comprised in Schedule A to the application, then lying in Village Bhelam. In consequence, the name of Smt. Jaswant Kunwari was mutated out of the Government records and that of Thakur Ji Mandir, Sarhari was entered.

8. It is the petitioner's case that during the first and the second rounds of the consolidation operations, all that was the property of Thakur Ji Mandir, Sarhari, given in gift, remained His. The temple is for the benefit of public in general and has now turned 100 years old. It has fallen into disrepair and may collapse any time. It was, therefore, said that to save the temple from grave damage, it was necessary that fresh construction thereof be undertaken in keeping with Rai Thakur Dayal Singh's religious sentiments. An estimated expenditure of Rs. 16 lakhs in the enterprise was indicated, for which there were no funds with the temple. A prayer, therefore, was made that the property of the temple, that is debutter, comprising of agricultural holdings, shown in Schedule A to the application, may be permitted to be sold, the proceeds whereof would be applied for reconstruction of the temple.

9. The learned Counsel for the petitioner says that the mischief sought to be remedied is grave and emergent. Mr. Goyal, on the other hand, submits that the Act of 1882 does not apply to any kind of a religious trust, public or private.

10. Upon hearing the learned Counsel for the petitioner and Mr. Manish Goyal, the learned Amicus Curiae, this Court does find that the Act of 1882 does not apply to any kind of a religious trust. The reason is to be found in Section 1 of the Act of 1882, that reads:

"1. Short title.--This Act may be called the Indian Trusts Act, 1882:

Commencement.--and it shall come into force on the first day of March, 1882.

Local extent.-- It extends to the whole of India [except the State of Jammu and Kashmir] and the Andaman and Nicobar Islands; but the Central Government may, from time to time, by notification in the Official Gazette, extend it to [the, Andaman and Nicobar Islands] or to any part thereof.]

Savings.--But nothing herein contained affects the rules of Muhammadan law as to waqf, or the mutual relations of the members of an undivided family as determined by any customary or personal law, or applies to public or private religious or charitable endowments, or to trusts to distribute prizes taken in war among the captors; and nothing in the second Chapter of this Act applies to trusts created before the said day."

11. It is evident that the Act of 1882 does not apply at all to a public religious trust. The temple of Thakur Ji, Sarhari, which is a public religious endowment, both by the terms of dedication and the subsequent use, where thousands repose faith in Thakur Ji, would not be governed by the Act of 1882. This is precisely what the learned Additional District Judge has held, and in the opinion of this Court, rightly so. Mr. Goyal points out that the public religious endowments are governed by the Charitable and Religious Trusts Act, 1920 and certain other legislations also apply. It is true that the petitioner's cause is noble and requires urgent relief, but the remedy he has been advised to invoke, is not available at all in the present case.

12. In the circumstances, no case for interference with the impugned order is made out.

13. The petitioner will, however, be at liberty to invoke all or any such remedy/ remedies, as may be advised to secure urgent relief, unaffected by anything said in this order or the learned District Judge's order.

14. This petition is disposed of, accordingly.

List of Cases cited:

Sarla Devi Vs Pushpa Agnihotri (2008) 2 ARC 725

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. This petition under Article 227 of the Constitution is directed against the order dated 25.10.2021 passed by the Additional District Judge, Court No. 14, Kanpur Nagar in Rent Revision No. 36 of 2014, dismissing the Revision and affirming the order of vacancy dated 01.07.2014 and release dated 30.09.2014 passed by the Rent Control and Eviction Officer, Kanpur Nagar (for short, 'the RC & EO') in proceedings under Sections 12/16 of The Uttar Pradesh Urban Buildings (Regulation of Letting, Rent and Eviction) Act, 1972 (U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972) (for short, 'the Act').

2. The facts giving rise to this petition, briefly said, are that a typed written statement was presented by Smt. Shanti Devi, widow of the late Vidya Sagar, respondent no.1 to this petition, before the RC & EO, stating that she is the co-owner of House No. 74/137(1), Dhankutti, Kanpur Nagar (for short, 'the demised premises'). The demised premises, on the ground floor, has a single room with an abutting platform (Chabutra), demised to one Ganga Ram. Since Ganga Ramm has built his own house, bearing House No. 2/292, Sector H, Jankipuram, Lucknow, he has shifted to Lucknow way back in the year 1998 along with his family. The demised premises are in possession of Ganga Ram's brother, Jamuna Ram. In view of the provisions of Section 12(3) of the Act, the demised premises would be deemed vacant. The said written statement submitted to the RC & EO was supported by the statements of one Ramesh Chandra Gupta and another Gopal Chandra Mishra. The RC & EO called for a report from the Rent Control Inspector.

3. The Rent Control Inspector submitted a report to the effect that the demised premises was in the tenancy of the late Mahaveer Prasad. Ganga Ram and Jamuna Ram are his sons. Both of them are, therefore, tenants. The demised premises are situate on a plot of land, which has a room and an adjoining Chabutra. It was also reported by the Rent Control Inspector that upon both the wives of Vidya Sagar and their sons saying that Rakesh Kumar Gupta was the owner, he tendered rent to Rakesh Kumar Gupta. Since Rakesh Kumar Gupta refused to accept the tendered rent, Jamuna Ram was depositing the same in the Court of the Civil Judge (Jr. Div.), Kanpur Nagar under Section 30(1) of the Act. The Rent Control Inspector further reported that Jamuna Ram's stand was affirmed by a certain Kamla Devi and Tara Devi. The RC & EO did not accept Jamuna Ram's case that the demised premises were let out to his father and upon his demise, both his sons Ganga Ram and himself, had inherited the tenancy.

4. It was remarked by the RC & EO that Jamuna Ram had not produced any evidence to show that the then landlord, Rameshwar Prasad Verma had issued any rent receipt in favour of his father, Mahaveer Prasad. No allotment order issued by the competent Authority in favour of Mahaveer Prasad was produced either. In the opinion of the RC & EO, the absence of evidence in support of Jamuna Ram's pleaded case of an inherited tenancy from his father, the premises were liable to be declared vacant. Accordingly, vide order dated 01.07.2014, vacancy was declared. This order was followed by an order of release passed by the RC & EO on 30.09.2014.

5. Both these orders were challenged by Jamuna Ram, the present petitioner and his brother Ganga Ram together, by means of Rent Revision No. 36 of 2014, instituted before the Court of the District Judge, Kanpur Nagar. The said revision was heard and dismissed by the learned Additional District Judge, Court No.14, Kanpur Nagar vide judgment and order dated 25.04.2017.

6. Dissatisfied with the concurrent orders made by the RC & EO and the learned Additional District Judge in revision, Jamuna Ram alone preferred a petition under Article 227 of the Constitution before this Court being Matter under Article 227 No. 3725 of 2017. The said petition was allowed by an order dated 11.09.2019 with a remand to the Court of Revision on the short ground that there were various evidence produced by the tenant-petitioner mentioned in the order of the RC & EO dated 01.07.2014, but neither the RC & EO nor the Judge in Revision had considered these. It was, therefore, held to be a case of non-consideration of evidence.

7. Post remand, the matter went back to the learned Additional District Judge, Court No.14, Kanpur Nagar, who after hearing parties and perusing the record, has dismissed the Revision and once again affirmed the orders of vacancy and release dated 01.07.2014 and 30.09.2014, respectively.

8. Aggrieved, this petition under Article 227 of the Constitution has been instituted by Jamuna Ram (for short, 'the tenant').

9. Heard Mr. Zafar M. Naiyar, Senior Advocate assisted by Mr. Deepak Pandey, learned Counsel for the tenant-petitioner and Mr. Atul Dayal, Senior Advocate assisted by Mr. Vinay Kumar Gupta, learned Counsel for the landlord-respondents.

10. It is submitted by Mr. Zafar M. Naiyar, learned Senior Advocate that the ration card issued on 22.11.2015, Annexure No. 13 to the petition, the Voter Card issued on 19.12.2011, part of Annexure No. 12 to the petition, School Certificates for the years prior and subsequent to 2005, Rent Receipts issued by the landlady/ landlord, part of Annexure No. 12 to the petition, School Education Certificate starting from 1976 to 1983, Water Tax Payment Receipts and Electricity Payment Receipts, along with the statements of the tenant-petitioner recorded by the Rent Control Inspector during his inspection for the determination of vacancy, clearly indicate that the petitioner's father was a tenant in the demised premises and he died leaving behind two sons, to wit, Ganga Ram, the elder son and the tenant, the younger son. The elder brother, Ganga Ram, who is an employee of State Bank of India, holds a transferable post. He has been transferred to Lucknow and stays at his place of posting. The tenant is the other joint tenant along with Ganga Ram and is entitled to live in the premises in his own right. It is urged that the Court below has acknowledged the fact that these documents have been placed on record, but has not considered all these pieces of documentary evidence, crucial to the issue, resulting in miscarriage of justice.

11. It is argued that after the death of Mahaveer Prasad, the tenant, his younger son, stayed in the demised premises and paid rent through his elder brother, Ganga Ram. Upon refusal to receive rent by the landlord, it was deposited under Section 30 of the Act. It is also argued by the learned Senior Advocate that the fact of shifting of one of the joint tenants to any other district does not create vacancy. Even if it be accepted that Ganga Ram had moved away, the tenant's right, as a joint tenant would not be annihilated. No vacancy, therefore, can be said to arise. It is emphasized that the case that after Mahaveer Prasad's demise, his elder son Ganga Ram became the tenant, is misconceived, inasmuch as on the death of Mahaveer Prasad, the tenancy devolved upon both of his sons, including the tenant. It is argued emphatically that the earlier orders of this Court passed in Matters under Article 227 No. 3725 of 2017, have been observed in breach by the Revisional Court, who has decided, yet again, ignoring relevant and material evidence from consideration. According to the learned Senior Advocate appearing for the tenant, non-consideration of material evidence by the Judge in the Court of Revision, vitiates the order impugned.

12. Mr. Atul Dayal, learned Senior Advocate appearing on behalf of the respondent-landlords, has refuted the submissions advanced on behalf of the tenant and argued that assuming that the tenant's father, the late Mahaveer Prasad was the original tenant, the tenant would have to prove that he was residing in the demised premises at the time of his father's death in view of the provisions of Section 3(a)(1) of the Act. It is argued that there is not a solitary piece of evidence to show that the petitioner was residing in the demised premises at the time his father passed away. It is pointed out that the sale deed relating to the demised premises dated 21.06.1986, which mentions the name of the tenants, mentions Ganga Ram, but not the tenant. It is further argued that on a more pragmatic note, once it has come on record that Ganga Ram was residing in the demised premises till 1998, it is difficult to believe that the single room accommodation could have housed the two brothers and their families.

13. It is next submitted on behalf of the respondent-landlord that assuming that the tenant was a joint tenant with Ganga Ram, though evidence to the contrary is overwhelming, even then in the case of one of the two tenants acquiring another accommodation, a deemed vacancy would occur under Section 12(3) of the Act. In support of the above contention, reliance has been placed on the decision in Sarla Devi vs. Pushpa Agnihotri, 2008 (2) ARC 725.

14. This Court has considered the rival submissions advanced on behalf of both parties and perused the orders impugned as well as the records annexed.

15. About the High School Certificate and the Scholar Transfer Certificates that the tenant has relied upon, the Revisional Court has remarked that mention of the demised premises as the tenant's address there is of little consequence, because these documents are not documents, showing either allotment in the tenant's favour or his tenancy rights. These documents are based on information given to the School. This Court is of opinion that the Scholar Transfer Certificate relates to the period 1976 to 1983 and would show that while a student in the School, the tenant was residing with his father, Mahaveer Prasad, about whom there is documentary evidence that he was the recorded tenant in the demised premises. There are some other documents, such as a Ration Card dated 22.11.2005, Voter ID Card issued by the Election Commission of India in the year 1995, some water tax receipts issued by the Kanpur Nagar Nigam in the tenant's name for the year 2018, besides a caste certificate of the year 1978. The old documents, as already said, would show that the tenant did reside at some point of time with his father, when a young student. So far as the later documents, such as the Ration Card and even the Voter ID Card or the Water Tax Receipts are concerned, these documents can very well be believed to be issued on the given address, because the tenant's father was a tenant in the demised premises.

16. The question is whether the petitioner upon his father's demise, inherited the tenancy along with his brother as a joint tenant? The provisions of Section 3(a) of the Act read:

"3. Definitions.--In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires--

(a) "tenant", in relation to a building, means a person by whom its rent is payable, and on the tenant's death--

(1) in the case of a residential building, such only of his heirs as normally resided with him in the building at the time of his death;

(2) in the case of a non-residential building, his heirs;

17. It would be seen that in the case of a residential building, not all heirs of the deceased tenant are entitled to inherit the tenancy. No doubt, the petitioner is an heir of the deceased tenant, Mahaveer Prasad, being his son, like his elder brother, Ganga Ram, but as remarked by the Revisional Court, there is no direct documentary evidence, such as a rent receipt or a municipal record of assessment to indicate that the tenant was ever recorded as such. To the contrary, Ganga Ram's name finds mention in the sale deed dated 21.06.1986 as the tenant in the demised premises, but not that of the tenant. In none of the municipal assessment records, the name of Jamuna Ram finds place. No doubt, in the three quinquennial house tax assessment relating to the demised premises for the year ending 1948, the years 1948 to 1953 and the years 1968 to 1973, the name of Mahaveer Prasad alone is recorded as the tenant. It appears that Ganga Ram's name is also not there in the Municipal Record, but does find mention in the sale deed dated 21.06.1986, as already said, which is one regarding transfer of title relating to the demised premises. The rent receipts, that have been issued either by the former owner and landlord or the transferee landlord, the name of the tenant shown is Mahaveer Prasad, but not the tenant's. It is true that in the absence of succession to the tenancy being recorded in the Municipal Records or a rent receipt being there, the tenant could still have proven that he had inherited the tenancy, as he says, along with his brother, Ganga Ram. But, to do that, he would have to show that he normally resided with the last recorded tenant, Mahaveer Prasad at the time of his death. Conspicuously, the tenant has not disclosed anywhere, nor has it otherwise come on record, when Mahaveer Prasad died. The date of death becomes material for the tenant, because he would have to establish his contemporaneous ordinary residence in the demised premises at the time his father passed away in order to succeed to a residential tenancy under Section 3(a)(1) of the Act. There is absolutely no evidence about the tenant's ordinary residence with his father at the time of his father's demise.

18. There are two classes of documents filed by the tenant. One relates to the period of time when he was a student-rather a school going one. Decidedly, at that time, he would have stayed with his father. But, those do not show that he was ordinarily residing with his father when he passed away. There is no presumption in the contemporaneous world that a tenant would be living in his residential premises with all his heirs, including all his sons. There has to be evidence about it. In certain situations, it can be readily established. In others, it might require a onerous standard of proof. Here, the standard would be more onerous, because the demised premises are a one room accommodation. To establish, therefore, that the tenant lived with his father in the one room accommodation, when he passed away, along with his brother, is a matter to be established by evidence. There is no such evidence on record. As already remarked, the first step for the tenant to establish the fact was to plead and establish the date of his father's death, which is not there. The other class of documents, by which the tenant has tried to collaterally establish his residence with his father are contemporaneous documents about payment of water tax, electricity bills, ration card, all of which could be issued on the tenant's representations to the Authorities concerned. These do not show that the tenant was residing with his father when the latter passed away.

19. There is one more aspect of the matter and that is that many of these documents were sought to be brought on record before the Revisional Court through an application under Order XLI Rule 27 CPC. Amongst these documents, was the caste certificate, scholar registration, transfer certificates and a rent receipt, said to be issued in the year 1984. Some of these have been commented upon by this Court earlier in this judgment. The application to bring on record the additional evidence was rejected by the Revisional Court vide order dated 03.01.2017, but some of these documents were considered by the Revisional Court despite rejection of the said application, and, therefore, this Court has also expressed opinion with regard to them.

20. This Court also notices that along with the counter affidavit, the respondents have annexed a rent receipt, also issued in the name of Ganga Ram for the period 01.08.1987 to 13.11.1987, but there is nothing on record to show that it was on record before the Revisional Court. This Court, therefore, does not wish to comment any further about the said document. There is a very startling averment in Paragraph No. 12 of the counter affidavit, which says that a rent receipt dated 15.12.2012 issued in the tenant's name and annexed at Page No. 89 of the paper book is a forged and fabricated document. It was never placed on record before the Courts below and, therefore, not considered in any of the orders impugned. A perusal of the said receipt at Page No. 89 does show that it purports to be issued in the tenant's name by the landlord, Rakesh Kumar Gupta for the period 01.07.2012 to 30.09.2012. The rate of rent mentioned there is Rs.20/- and the total sum paid is Rs.60/-. None of the Courts below mention this document, which would have turned tables, if it were there on record before those Courts.

21. In Paragraph No. 4 of the rejoinder affidavit, where together with many other paragraphs, Paragraph No. 12 of the counter affidavit has been responded to, there is no explanation about this discordant document, which the Courts below have not mentioned. Apparently, the receipt at Page No. 89 of the paper-book relied upon by the tenant is a document of questionable character. It should not have been placed on record before this Court by the tenant. This Court disapproves the tenant's conduct in doing so.

22. In consequence of all that has been said, this Court does not find any good ground to interfere with the orders impugned.

23. This petition fails and is dismissed with costs.

24. The interim order dated 24.02.2022 passed by this Court is hereby vacated.

A. Civil Law - Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorized Occupants) Act, 1971- Petitioners are occupants of the premises as a tenant or licensee of the railways and the proceedings under the Act, 1971 were claimed to be not as per the procedure prescribed for and they appealed against the orders passed by prescribed authority- Apex Court observed in many cases that the interest of occupants should be looked into and therefore, interim order should be granted so as to not to defeat very purpose of filing the appeal-remedy of appeal which is statutory in nature can not be rendered as an empty formality- judicial approach requires that during the pendency of the appeal the operation of an order having serious civil consequences must be suspended-Nobody would doubt if unauthorized occupants are liable to be evicted but Rule of Law demands that the procedure prescribed for, must be followed.(Para 1 to 13)

The writ petitions are disposed of. (E-6)

List of Cases cited:

Mool Chand Yadav & anr. Vs Raza Buland Sugar Co. Ltd. & ors. (1983) AWC 121

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajit Kumar, J.)

1. Heard Sri Iqbal Ahmad and Sri Kishitij Shailendra, learned counsel for the respective petitioners appearing in this petition as well as in connected petitions and Sri P.N. Rai, Sri Aditya Kumar Singh, Sri Ajay Kumar Gautam, Sri Gyanendra Kumar Dwivedi, Sri Hridaya Narayan Mishra, Sri Ram Sarana, Sri Prahlad Singh, Sri Sukhdev Singh, Sri Ishwar Das, Sri Ajay Singh, Sri Arvind Singh, Sri Purnendu Kumar Singh, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra, Sri Ram Kinkar Shukla, Sri Shushil Kumar Pandey, Sri Pranat Chaudhari-I, Sri Ashish Tripathi, and Smt. Archana Srivastava, learned counsel appearing for the respective respondents in all the connected petitions.

2. All these petitions raise common question of law and facts and, therefore, they are being disposed by this common order.

3. The petitioners before this Court are occupants of the premises either as a tenant or licensee of the respondent-railways and the proceedings that have been drawn against them under the Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorized Occupants) Act, 1971 (hereinafter referred to as 'Act, 1971') were claimed to be not as per the procedure prescribed for and hence they have all appealed against the orders passed by the prescribed authority.

4. It is argued before this Court that though appellate authority, namely, District Judge, Moradabad has admitted the appeals but interim prayer for stay has been rejected on the ground that petitioners were unauthorized occupants. A legal submission has been advanced before this Court that the court of appeal was not justified in assuming their status as unauthorized occupants even before deciding the appeals. It is thus argued that holding appellants - petitioners unauthorized occupants is too harsh and amounts to frustrating the very purpose of filing the appeals.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioners have relied upon the judgment of Supreme Court in the case of Mool Chand Yadav and another v. Raza Buland Sugar Co. Ltd. and others, 1983 AWC 121.

6. Per contra, it is argued by learned counsel for the respective respondents that unauthorized occupants are said to be removed from the premises in question in compliance of the order passed by the Supreme Court passed in Special Leave Petition (Civil) Diary No (s). 19714 of 2021.

7. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and their arguments raised across the bar, I am of the view that moot question involved is as to whether the petitioners before this Court were entitled to get interim protection during the pendency of the admitted statutory appeals.

8. It is a fact admitted to the respondents Union of India and Railways that in order to get petitioners evicted from the premises in question they instituted cases under the Act, 1971.

9. The Act, 1971 itself provides for statutory remedy of appeal and hence every person if aggrieved against the order of prescribed authority is entitled to appeal against the order of eviction. The appeals being statutory one in nature have been rightly admitted for hearing, but the question remains to be considered is that if occupants get removed/ dispossessed by getting the order of eviction enforced through coercive measures pursuant to the orders which are appealed against, what purpose would be left to get the appeals heard, to wit only academic. In my considered view, this can not be the intendment of Legislature in incorporating a provision of appeal. Remedy of appeal which is statutory in nature can not be rendered as an empty formality.

10. Supreme Court has observed in so many words in the case cited (supra) that the interest of occupants should be looked into and, therefore, interim order should be granted so as to not to defeat very purpose of filing the appeal. Paragraph 4 of the order of Supreme Court runs as under:

"4. We heard Mr. S.N. Kacker, learned Counsel for the appellants, and the respondents appeared by Caveat through Mr. Manoj Swarup, Advocate. We are not inclined to examine any contention on merits at present, but we would like to notice of the emerging situation if the operation of the order under appeal is not suspended during the pendency of the appeal. If the F. A.F.O. is allowed, obviously Mool Chand Yadav would be entitled to continue in possession. Now, if the order is not suspended in order to avoid any action in contempt pending the appeal, Mool Chand would have to vacate the room and handover the possession to the respondents in obedience to the Court's order. We are in full agreement with Mr. Manoj Swarup, learned advocate for respondents, that the Court's order cannot be flouted and even a covert disrespect to Court's order cannot be tolerated. But if orders are challenged and the appeals are pending, one cannot permit a swinging pendulum continuously taking place during the pendency of the appeal, Mr. Manoj Swarup may be wholly right in submitting that there is intentional flouting of the" Court's order. We are not interdicting that finding. But judicial approach requires that during the pendency of the appeal the operation of an order having serious civil consequences must be suspended. More so when appeal is admitted. Previous history of litigation cannot be overlooked. And it is not seriously disputed that the whole of the building, Hari Bhawan, except one room in dispute is in possession of the Corporation. We accordingly suspend the operation of the order dated 6th August 1982 directing the appellants to handover the possession of the room to the respondents till the disposal of the first appeal against that order pending in the High Court of Allahabad. Mr. Manoj Swarup requests that both the earlier and later Appeals should be heard together as early as possible, We order accordingly and request the High Court if it considers proper in its own discretion to hear both the appeals as expeditiously as possible in order to avoid the continuance of the boiling situation. The appeal stands disposed of. There shall be no order as to costs."

11. Nobody would doubt if unauthorized occupants are liable to be evicted but Rule of Law demands that the procedure prescribed for, must be followed.

12. In view of the above, therefore, it would be appropriate that the admitted appeals of the defendants- petitioners are directed to be disposed of within a time bound period and until such decision, the orders of prescribed authority appealed against are put in abeyance.

13. Accordingly, all these petitions are disposed of with a direction to the appellate authority under the Act, 1971 to dispose of the pending appeals of the respective petitioners before it positively within a period of three months from today and petitioners undertake through their respective counsel to cooperate in the disposal of appeal and until such disposal, the effect and operation of the orders passed by the prescribed authority which have been appealed against, shall remain in abeyance.

The writ petition is dismissed. (E-6)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Jyotsna Sharma, J.)

1. Heard Sri Arvind Prabodh Dubey, learned counsel for the petitioner and learned AGA for the State.

2. This petition under Article 227 of the constitution has been filed with a request to set aside the order dated 24.09.2021 passed in Criminal Revision No. 143 of 2017 (Tarkeshwar Prasad and Others vs. State of U.P. and Others), Police Station-Cantt, District-Gorakhpur as well as order dated 03.03.2017 passed by the Chief Judicial Magistrate in Complaint Case No. 2861 of 2016 (Prakash vs. Tarkeshwar and Others) under Sections 419, 420, 406 IPC.

3. The facts relevant leading to this petition are as below.

A FIR Case Crime No. 1414 of 2010 was lodged against the petitioner and five other persons with the allegations that the informant-Prakash (respondent no. 2 in the present petition), and the petitioner Dalveer Singh were friendly with each other. Dalveer Singh and his associates made the respondents to believe that he will get them employed in B.S.F. On this pretext, he extorted different amounts from the respondent no. 2, his brother and several other victims (named in the FIR) and the money was deposited in Bank account of Dalveer Singh. They received a joining letter, which turned out to be forged and fabricated. When protested, he assured to return the money and asked them not to take any legal action lest he may not be in a position to return the same, however, after eliciting lot of time on different excuses, Dalveer Singh and his associates ultimately refused to return the amount. In this way, several persons including the informant were cheated of their hard earned lakhs of rupees. On the basis of this FIR, the investigation was conducted, however, the investigating officer was of the opinion that the real dispute was something else and submitted a final report. Against the final report, a protest petition was filed by the respondent no. 2-Prakash. The petition was ordered to be registered as a complaint case. The statement under Sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C., were recorded and the learned trial court passed a summoning order dated 03.03.2017 under Section 419, 420, 467, 468, 471, 406, 323, 504 and 506 IPC. This summoning order was challenged by Dalveer Singh-the petitioner and one Tarkeshwar Prasad by filing a Criminal Revision No. 143 of 2017, however, the same was dismissed by order dated 24.09.2021 and the order of the trial court was affirmed. Against the order passed by the revisional court, the petitioner has come before this Court under Article 227.

4. It is contended on behalf of the petitioner that in fact respondent no. 2 took a loan of Rs. 5,00,000/- from the petitioner and he wanted to avoid its repayment, therefore, the petitioner has been falsely implicated in this case; the revisional court without appreciating the arguments of the petitioner, dismissed the revision and affirmed the order of the trial court; the revisional court failed to see that the trial court passed the summoning order in a routine and arbitrary manner and without properly appreciating the evidence on record; the revisional court failed to appreciate the evidence collected by the investigating officer to the effect that the case of the informant was false and concocted.

5. Apart from arguing on some factual aspects of the case, two legal points have been raised. Firstly, that a protest petition cannot be treated as a complaint unless it fulfills the requirements of a complaint as defined under Section 2(d) of Cr.P.C., therefore, the order is bad in law. Secondly, that there was no list of witnesses which was must with the protest petition, therefore, the protest petition cannot be treated as a complaint and the trial court was wrong in proceeding on the basis of such complaint/protest petition.

6. It is settled law that after investigation, when a final report is submitted, the Court has several options open. Where the Court, instead of rejecting the final report, decides to proceed in the matter on the basis of protest petition treating it as a complaint, in my view, it cannot be expected from the informant that he should have foreseen such an option being adopted and he should have referred to all the facts as is required where the complainant decides to file a complaint case directly.

7. Clause (d) of Section 2 of Cr.P.C., defines the complaint as an allegation made orally or in writing to a Magistrate under this Code. No particular format of complaint has been given in the Code of Criminal Procedure. The only requirement is that the allegations should be there and such allegations should be made with a view to mobilize the authority of the Magistrate or the Court for taking action against the offenders. It may also be noticed that the complaint may be made orally also. It stands to reason that when a trial court is proceeding on a protest petition, there must be material, which is sufficient enough to enable the Court to proceed against the accused persons. There is no provision in law that at such stage the Magistrate is powerless to look into and evaluate the evidence as collected by the Investigating Officer. In certain cases, there may be good reasons prompting the Magistrate to not to proceed as police case. Some of the reasons may be that investigation is deficient as some of the evidence whether oral or documentary is not collected or if collected, is not appreciated in the right perspective by the Investigating Officer or the manner of questioning the witnesses may have been faulty and may be some other facts and circumstances, which cannot be enumerated or foreseen here. Further there may be instances where the Court agrees with the Police report whether it is a chargesheet or a final report partly and partly not. Now, the question may arise whether the Court, while deciding not to proceed as a Police case on the basis of protest petition instead decides to proceed as a complaint case albeit on the basis of same protest petition, transgresses its powers in taking notice of the evidence collected during the investigation? This fact cannot be under estimated that even if a final report is submitted by the Investigating Officer for some good or not so good reason, the spot inspection, the postmortem report, the medical examination report, the recovery of blood stained earth or blood stained clothes or weapon of offence, even the FIR or any other material collected during the investigation may be of great assistance to the Courts. It may importantly be noticed that where the Magistrate proceeds in a complaint case, he has powers to order for police investigation, if required, under Section 202 Cr.P.C. In my view, if he already has such material which could have been collected, if he chose to exercise such powers under Section 202 Cr.P.C., then how can he be expected to look sideways and ignore the material already available before him. The law cannot be interpreted in such a manner so as to thwart justice. The goal of all procedural laws is attainment of justice or at least illuminate the path to attain such a goal. A police report under Section 173(2) Cr.P.C. is within his ken, as it forms part of material on record. In my firm opinion, it can be put to good use for the purpose of summoning the accused. The Courts are concerned with substantive justice rather than with the form or technicality or procedural formalities. Obviously, on the other hand, if the material before the Court, which may include the evidence collected by the Investigating Officer and other papers are deficient in some respect or which fail to give complete picture of the case, the Court may decide not to proceed. In my opinion, if the allegations, as contained in the protest petition coupled with material on record are sufficient to enable the Court to proceed, the such course of action cannot be faulted on technical grounds.

8. Section 204(2) Cr.P.C. which deals with issuing of process in criminal case is as below:-

"No summons or warrant shall be issued against the accused under sub-section (1) until a list of the prosecution witnesses has been filed."

As far as the lack of list of witness is concerned, it is always open for the Court to call for the same and take suitable action either refusing to proceed further or passing some other appropriate order in terms of provisions of Section 204(2) Cr.P.C.The proceeding cannot be quashed on this technicality.

9. It is settled proposition of law that while exercising supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227, the High Court will not convert itself in the Court of appeal and indulge in re-appreciation or re-valuation of evidence or correct errors of formal or technical character. The High Court may decide to intervene where non-intervention may result in travesty of justice or where such refusal would result in prolongation of the litigation. The underlying policy is that the Courts should remain within their legal bounds for the sake of orderly administration of justice. The powers, for good reasons are to be exercised sparingly when the ends of justice, in the peculiar fact and circumstances of the case, so demand.

10. In view of the scope of powers, as available under Article 227 of the Constitution, no case is made out for such interference. It may be noted that as per the allegations in the FIR, not only large amount of money was siphoned out from the victim-respondent no. 2, but it was so meticulously planned that a forged order of appointment was also issued. Though, after investigation, the Investigating Officer submitted a final report, however, the Court decided to proceed as a complaint case on the basis of protest petition. It may also be noted that the petitioner has been summoned in the case after considering the oral statement recorded under Sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C. and other material on record. Defect in the format or form of the protest petition or for the reason that the list of witnesses was not submitted cannot be given importance out of proportion at this stage. If done, it will tantamount to taking too technical a view. In my opinion, no ground for interference under Article 227 is made out, hence the petition is dismissed.

11. Let copy of this order be certified to the court concerned.

(Para 10)

There was no provision in the U.P. Cooperative Societies Employees Service Regulations, 1975 for initiation of disciplinary proceedings against retired employees or for continuing disciplinary proceedings even when they started before retirement of the employee concerned. Late Ram Nazar Singh retired on 31.07.2018. At that time, there was no provision in the Cooperative Societies Employees Service Regulations, 1975 for initiation of disciplinary proceedings against retired employees. (Para 5)

B. The husband of the petitioner was on a non pensionable post and therefore, any Regulation which permits the respondents to initiate disciplinary proceedings for recovery from pension and other retrial dues of such an employee including Article 351-A of the Civil Services Regulations shall not be applicable. The Court also held that contesting respondent was entitled to interest on the amount payable to him. (Para 7, 12)

C. The disciplinary proceedings initiated is without jurisdiction - The St. of U.P., notified the XXII Amendment to the Regulations of 1975 but it provided the date of enforcement as the date of publication in the Gazette. Publication was made only on 27.08.2018 in the official Gazette. Hence, no retrospective operation can be given to the Regulations and the Registrar could not have given sanction on 09.02.2021 for initiation of disciplinary proceedings against the husband of the petitioner no. 1. (Para 11)

The amendment which was carried out in the Regulations of 1975 was notified only on 27.08.2018 and was made applicable with immediate effect. Hence no retrospective operation can be given in the case of the husband of the petitioner no. 1. The disciplinary proceedings initiated against late husband of the petitioner no. 1 is without jurisdiction as he retired on 31.07.2018 much before the amendment in the Regulation was notified with prospective effect. Present petition assails order dated 16.10.2021, passed by Chief Executive Officer, Fatehpur District Cooperative Bank Ltd., Fatehpur.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Sangeeta Chandra, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioners and Sri Jai Bahadur Singh, learned counsel who appears on behalf of the respondent nos.2 and 3.

2. This petition has been filed by the petitioners who are the widow and son of Late Ram Nazar Singh challenging the order dated 16.10.2021 passed by the Chief Executive Officer, Fatehpur District Cooperative Bank Ltd. Fatehpur and praying for direction to be issued to the respondent-Bank to release post retiral benefits of the deceased employee with admissible interest.

3. It is the case of the petitioner that they are legal heirs of late Ram Nazar Singh who retired as a Grade-II employee of Fatehpur District Cooperative Bank Ltd. Fatehpur on 31.07.2018. At the time of his retirement, he was not placed under suspension and no charge-sheet was issued to him and no disciplinary proceedings were proposed against him. On 27.08.2018, an amendment was carried out in the U.P. Cooperative Societies Employees Service Regulations, 1975 by which Regulations 85 was amended and sub-Regulations (XI) and (XII) were added by which Rules regarding disciplinary proceedings after retirement of an employee, shall be applicable for employee of Cooperative Societies as were applicable to the retired employees of the State Government and the sanction was to be obtained not from His Excellency the Governor of U.P., but from the Registrar who was the Competent Authority to initiate disciplinary proceedings against such retired employees.

4. On 02.02.2021, the respondent-Bank appointed an Inquiry Officer and on 24.02.2021, charge-sheet was served upon the husband of the petitioner no.1. He replied to the charge-sheet but the disciplinary proceedings remained pending and the husband of the petitioner no.1 died on 02.09.2021. The inquiry report was submitted much after the death of the deceased employee on 30.09.2021. No show cause notice was issued to the deceased employee regarding proposed punishment as he was not alive and the punishment order was issued on 16.10.2021 based on the resolution of the Committee of Management dated 05.10.2021 by which it was resolved to recover an amount of Rs.11,80,363/- along with interest from the retiral dues of late Ram Nazar Singh as he was found guilty of causing loss to the Society.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioners has submitted that late Ram Nazar Singh retired on 31.07.2018. At that time, there was no provision in the Cooperative Societies Employees Service Regulations, 1975 for initiation of disciplinary proceedings against retired employees. This question has been settled finally by the Supreme Court in the judgment rendered in Dev Prakash Tewari Vs. U.P. Cooperative Institutional Service Board, Lucknow and others, [(2014) 7 SCC 260] where the Supreme Court observed that there was no provision in the U.P. Cooperative Societies Employees Service Regulations, 1975 for initiation of disciplinary proceedings against retired employees or for continuing disciplinary proceedings even when they were started before retirement of the employee concerned.

6. It has also been argued by learned counsel for the petitioners that in case of late Ram Nazar Singh, no disciplinary proceedings were initiated before his retirement. The amendment in the Service Regulations came to be notified only on 27.08.2018 with immediate effect. They were not retrospective in nature. Hence they could not be made to apply to an already retired employee. The Inquiry Officer being appointed on 02.02.2021 and charge-sheet being served on 24.02.2021 was completely without jurisdiction. Although the respondents say in their counter affidavit that the Registrar the Competent Authority under the amended Regulations had issued an order granting sanction for initiation of disciplinary proceedings after retirement of late Ram Nazar Singh, a perusal of the order referred to in the counter affidavit as CA-1 dated 09.02.2021 would show that the Registrar had initially raised a doubt regarding the admissibility of initiation of disciplinary proceedings.

7. It has also been argued by learned counsel for the petitioners that the husband of the petitioner was on a non pensionable post and therefore, any Regulation which permits the respondents to initiate disciplinary proceedings for recovery from pension and other retiral dues of such an employee including Article 351-A of the Civil Services Regulations shall not be applicable. Learned counsel for the petitioners has placed reliance upon a coordinate Bench decision in Brahamand Tyagi Vs. State of UP. and others [2022 (8) ADJ 624] where the coordinate Bench had placed reliance upon a Division Bench judgment of this Court in Rajya Krishi Utpadan Mandi Parishad and another Vs. Public Services Tribunal, U.P. and others [2008 (2) ADJ 11].

8. It has been argued by Sri J.B. Singh, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the respondents that the Competent Authority for issuance of sanction for initiation of disciplinary proceedings against late Ram Nazar Singh, is the Registrar of the Cooperative Society and he had already given consent in the matter. A copy of such order passed on 09.02.2021 has been filed as Annexure-1 to the counter affidavit. Learned counsel for the respondents has referred to the amendment carried out in the U.P. Cooperative Societies Employees Service Regulations, 2018 by the XXII Amendment making applicable Article 351-A of the Civil Services Regulation to the employees of Cooperative Societies. It has also been argued by learned counsel for the respondents that the Regulations were amended on 27.08.2018 and in the said amendment, there was no bar for initiating disciplinary proceedings against the retired employees who had caused loss to the Cooperative Society.

9. Learned counsel for the petitioners in rejoinder has submitted that the amendment which was carried out in the Regulations of 1975 was notified only on 27.08.2018 and was made applicable with immediate effect. Hence no retrospective operation can be given in the case of the husband of the petitioner no.1 and the judgment rendered by the Supreme Court in the case of Dev Prakash Tewari (supra) shall squarely applly as at the time of retirement, there was no Regulation permitting such initiation of disciplinary proceedings or their continuation.

10. This Court has carefully considered the judgment rendered by the Supreme Court in Dev Prakash Tewari (supra) where the Supreme Court had followed the judgment rendered by it earlier in Bhagirathi Jena Vs. Orissa State Financial Corporation [(1999) 3 SCC 666] where it was held that in the absence of any provision in the Regulations governing the service of an employee providing for continuation of disciplinary proceedings after retirement, the respondent cannot continue the disciplinary proceedings after the employee's superannuation.

11. The State of U.P., no doubt notified the XXII Amendment to the Regulations of 1975 but it provided the date of enforcement as the date of publication in the Gazette. Publication was made only on 27.08.2018 in the official Gazette. Hence, no retrospective operation can be given to the Regulations and the Registrar could not have given sanction on 09.02.2021 for initiation of disciplinary proceedings against the husband of the petitioner no.1.

12. This Court has also considered the Division Bench judgment in the case of Rajya Krishi Utpadan Mandi Parishad (supra), while placing reliance upon the judgment rendered in Bhagirathi Jena (supra), the Division Bench observed that the post of contesting respondent being non pensionable, Article 351-A of Civil Services Regulation was not applicable. After the date of superannuation, the disciplinary proceedings could not go on in the absence of any specific provision. The Court also held that contesting respondent was entitled to interest on the amount payable to him.

13. Having considered the judgments rendered by this Court and by the Supreme Court and the facts as mentioned in the pleadings on record regarding which there is no dispute, this Court is of the considered opinion that the disciplinary proceedings initiated against late husband of the petitioner no.1 is without jurisdiction as he retired on 31.07.2018 much before the amendment in the Regulation was notified with prospective effect.

14. The proceedings initiated against late Ram Nazar Singh being without jurisdiction are liable to be quashed and are quashed. The writ petition is allowed.

15. Consequential benefits shall be available to the petitioners. Recovery of Rs.11,80,363/- from the gratuity and other services benefits of late Ram Nazar Singh, if the same has been deducted, shall be refunded to the petitioners along with 6% compound interest as had the amount been deposited in a Bank by the petitioners on its receipt in time, they would have been entitled to bank's rate of interest on such deposit.

A. Service Law – Recovery of excess payment - Recovery from Class-III and Class-IV employees much after the date of their retirement for any excess payment made to them during their course of service would be inequitable. (Para 5)

The Supreme Court in the case of St. of Haryana Vs Jagdev Singh (infra) has permitted recovery of excess payment to employees if at the time of pay fixation an undertaking was given by them that the authorities would be free to recover any excess payment made to them when discovered subsequently. (Para 8)

It is not the case of the Meerut Development Authority that any undertaking was sought from the petitioner or was given by him at the time of his initial pay fixation as far back as in 1986, when the Revenue Department's Lekhpal pay scale of Rs. 950-1,500/- was given to him, and consequently, next promotional pay scale of higher pay scale were also given to him. The excess payment if any paid to the petitioner due to the fault on the part of the Authority themselves without any misrepresentation of fraud having been played by the petitioner cannot be now recovered from him. (Para 9)

The impugned order of recovery is set aside. The already recovered amount shall be refunded to the petitioner…However, it shall be open for the respondent to give him revised pension as per the correct pay fixation by issuing revised Pension Payment Order. (Para 10, 11)

Writ petition allowed. (E-4)

Present petition assails order dated 17.05.2019, passed by Officer-in-Charge (Establishment), Meerut Development Authority, Meerut and order dated 03.06.2019, passed by Finance Controller, Officer-in-Charge (Establishment), Meerut Development Authority, Meerut.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Sangeeta Chandra, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri Rajesh Kumar Pandey, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the Respondents No. 1 to 3 and learned Standing Counsel appearing on behalf of the State Respondents No. 4 and 5.

2. This petition has been filed by the petitioner challenging the Order dated 17.05.2019 passed by the Respondents No.2 and the Order dated 03.06.2019 passed by the Respondent No.3.

3. It is the case of the petitioner that he was appointed on the post of Lekhpal on 16.10.1978 in Meerut Development Authority and after completing 36 years and 8 months of service, retired on 30.06.2015. The respondent no. 2 approved the grant of Gratuity, GPF and Leave Encashment dues to the petitioner by his order dated 29.06.2015. However, it appears that an audit team was constituted which conducted an audit of the Meerut Development Authority of the Financial Year 2013-14 and submitted an objection with regard to payment of excess salary to the petitioner on account of wrong pay fixation made by the department. On account of such audit objection, it was reported that Rs. 7,08,502/- had been paid in excess to the petitioner as salary and alowgwith allowances. The total amount paid in excess came out to be Rs. 10,43,724/-. Such audit objections were directed by the Vice Chairman, Meerut Development Authority to be examined by a Committee by his order dated 31.01.2018. The Committee also submitted a report on 16.03.2019 saying that the petitioner was appointed in the Development Authority, he could not have been given the salary of Lekhpal as admissible to the Revenue Department, and therefore, recommended the audit objections to be accepted and consequent revision in pay and allowances and final pension payment order to be made and the excess payment to be recovered from the retiral dues of the petitioner. As a result of such report being submitted on 16.03.2019, an order dated 17.05.2019 was passed by the respondent no.2 directing recovery of Rs. 10,43,724/- from the Gratuity and Leave Encashment of the petitioner. Consequently, recovery was made of Rs.8,43,025/- from the Gratuity and Leave Encashment dues of the petitioner, but Rs.02,00,699/- remained to be adjusted for which a recovery order was passed on 03.06.2019 by the Respondent No.3 directing the petitioner deposit such amount of Rs.02,00,699/- in the Meerut Development Authority or else the same may be recovered by the Meerut Development Authority by other means.

4. It has been argued by the learned counsel for the petitioner that the respondent no. 1 proceeded to fix final pension of the petitioner by making amendment in the provisional pension being granted to the petitioner and reduce the amount of pension from Rs.10,075 to Rs.7,505/- retrospectively w.e.f. 01.07.2015. The petitioner is a retired Class-III employee, who has been made to suffer by the Respondents Authority without any fault on his part by recovering the excess amount paid to him from his pension, Gratuity and other retirement dues.

5. It has been argued that the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of State of Punjab and Others Vs. Rafiq Masih, AIR 2015 Supreme Court 796 has observed that recovery from Class-III and Class-IV employees much after the date of their retirement for any excess payment made to them during their course of service would be inequitable.

6. It has also been argued by the learned counsel for the petitioner that this Court in Writ-A No. 14330 of 2019, 'Suresh Chandra vs. State of U.P. and 4 Others', relating to an identically situated Lekhpal in Meerut Development Authority had allowed the Writ Petition on 11.07.2022 by referring to the observations made by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of State of Punjab and Others Vs. Rafiq Masih (Supra), a copy of the order dated 11.07.2022 passed by the Coordinate Bench in the case of Suresh Chandra has been filed by the petitioner before this Court by way of an amendment application.

7. The Meerut Development Authority in its counter affidavit has mentioned about the audit objections and the constitution of the committee by the Vice Chairman by its order dated 17.09.2018 which committee found that the then Vice Chairman by his order dated 15.11.1994, without taking any approval from the Government had implemented the pay scale of Rs. 950-1,500/- which was a pay scale of Lekhpal of Revenue Department to Lekhpals of Meerut Development Authority actually they should have been given pay scale of Rs.825-1,200/- only. The petitioner was thereafter given promotional pay scale of Tax and Revenue Officer of the Revenue Department of Rs. 1,350-2200/- instead of promotional pay scale of Tax and Revenue Officer of the Meerut Development Authority which was only Rs.975-1,660/-. The petitioner was again granted second promotional pay scale of Naib Tehsildar of Revenue Department of Rs. 5,500-9,000/- instead of next pay scale of Rs.4,000-6,000/- as was admissible for employees of Meerut Development Authority. Such pay scales were given to the petitioner without taking sanction from the Government, therefore, the Department of Local Funds, Audit & Accounts raised an objection and recommended recovery of Rs. 07,08,502/- from the petitioner paid in excess. In consequence of the recommendations of the committee formed by the Vice Chairman and Government Order dated 20.07.2018, the Pension Payment Order of the petitioner has been revised and the amount paid in excess has been recovered from his Gratuity and Leave Encashment dues. The remaining amount is yet to be recovered, and therefore, the recovery order has been issued by the respondent no.3.

8. Learned counsel for the State Respondents has argued that the Supreme Court in the case of State of Haryana vs. Jagdev Singh 2016 (14) SCC 267 has permitted recovery of excess payment to employees if at the time of pay fixation an undertaking was given by them that the authorities would be free to recover any excess payment made to them when discovered subsequently.

9. However, it is not the case of the Meerut Development Authority that any undertaking was sought from the petitioner or was given by him at the time of his initial pay fixation as far back as in 1986, when the Revenue Department's Lekhpal pay scale of Rs 950-1,500/- was given to him, and consequently, next promotional pay scale of higher pay scale were also given to him. In view of the observations made by the Supreme Court in the case of State of Punjab and Others Vs. Rafiq Masih(White Washer) and Others, AIR 2015 Supreme Court 796 and also in the case of Thomas Daniel Vs. State of Kerala 2022 SCC Online SC 536, wherein the excess payment if any paid to the petitioner due to the fault on the part of the Authority themselves without any misrepresentation of fraud having been played by the petitioner cannot be now recovered from him.

10. The impugned order of recovery is set aside. However, it shall be open for the respondent to give him revised pension as per the correct pay fixation by issuing revised Pension Payment Order.

11. The Writ Petition is allowed to this extent. The already recovered amount shall be refunded to the petitioner within a period of two months from the date a copy of this order is produced before them.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pritinker Diwaker, J.
Hon'ble Ashutosh Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard learned Assistant Solicitor General of India assisted by Sri Krishna Agrawal, learned counsel for the petitioners and Sri Anil Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for the Respondent No.1

2. The present writ petition has been filed for quashing of the judgment and order dated 09.03.2022 passed by the Central Administrative Tribunal, Allahabad Bench, Allahabad, whereby and wherein the Tribunal has allowed the Original Application filed by the Respondent No.1 and quashed the impugned order dated 14.12.2020 bearing No.C-14011/75/2020-V & LK and held that the applicant therein/Respondent No.2 would be entitled to all consequential benefits which arise out of the quashing of the above mentioned charge-sheet.

3. Learned Assistant Solicitor General of India submitted that the Tribunal failed to consider the fact that the charge-sheet was issued in view of the gravity of the violation of the Central Board of Direct Taxes Circular while passing the order in the capacity of the Commissioner (Appeals). The learned Senior counsel contended that the act of the Respondent No.1 in the capacity of the Commissioner (Appeals) even though in his quasi-judicial capacity, clearly falls within the meaning of misconduct as construed under Central Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules, 1965, and is covered by the judgment rendered by the Apex Court in the case of Union of India Vs. K. K. Dhawan, wherein the Apex Court has held that any act or conduct either in the judicial or quasi-judicial capacity, which is contrary to the established law or rules, could invite action under the relevant disciplinary rules and the person concerned would be liable for the disciplinary action. The learned Senior Counsel further submitted that the allegation against the Respondent No.1, as mentioned in the Article of charges are serious in nature causing financial loss to the Government. The Charge No.1 of the article of charge clearly establishes that the Respondent No.1 gave the tax remission to the party in litigation contrary to the CBDT Circular which expressly prohibited giving benefit of sales promotion to the pharmaceuticals companies and further points out that so far as second article of charge is concerned, the Respondent No.1 deliberately reduced number of shares below 10% held by one Anand Sagar in the Assessment Year 2011-12 by taking additional evidence. The learned Senior Counsel submitted that the Enquiry Officer was already appointed and the right course available with the Respondent No1. was to face the enquiry and absolve himself during the course of the proceedings.

4. The learned counsel for the Respondent No.1 contended that the Central Administrative Tribunal has passed a just and legal order. He further contended that the Respondent No.1 was earlier issued charge-sheet on the basis of the same inspection report which was quashed by the Tribunal in Original Application No.1466 of 2020 (Subachan Ram Vs. Union of India & Others) vide judgment and order dated 24.12.2020. Issuing second charge-sheet on the basis of the same inspection report on the verge of the retirement is clearly malicious.

5. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

6. We find from the records that the Respondent No.1 was issued a charge memo on 09.09.2020 while serving as Principal Commissioner of Income Tax at Prayagraj, for committing misconduct as the then Commissioner of Income Tax (Appeal) - 4, Mumbai. The said charge-sheet was assailed before the Central Administrative Tribunal, Allahabad, and the Tribunal vide judgment and order dated 24.12.2020 quashed the said charge-sheet technically and allowed the original application filed by the Respondent No.1. Thereafter, before 15 days of his retirement i.e. 14.12.2020, the second charge-sheet was issued to the Respondent No.1 on the basis of the same vigilance inspection report on which the first charge-sheet was issued. The charge-sheet was assailed before the Tribunal, which allowed the original application and quashed the charge-sheet dated 14.12.2020, against which present writ petition has been filed.

7. The learned Senior Counsel, ASGI submits as under:-

(i) The Tribunal committed mistake in entertaining the original application though the same was not maintainable before the Central Administrative Tribunal, Allahabad.

(ii) The Tribunal failed to consider the ratio of the judgment of the Apex Court rendered in Union of India Vs. K. K. Dhawan reported in 1993 (2) SCC 56.

(iii) The Tribunal failed to appreciate the fact that charges leveled in the article of charges and therefore, it should have refrained from quashing the charge-sheet under judicial review.

(iv) Lastly, it is submitted that the respondent is charged for violation of Rules 3(i)(i), 3(i)(ii), 3(i)(iii), 3(i)(xviii) and 3(i)(xxi) of the Central Civil Services (Conduct) Rules, 1964. Therefore, if the conduct of the respondent could be brought within the scope of the Rules, immunity from the disciplinary action cannot be claimed.

8. In light of the above discussions, we proceed to examine the said contentions. So far as the Contention No.1, regarding maintainability of the original application is concerned, Rule-6 of the Central Administrative Tribunal (Procedure) Rules, 1987, provides for the place of filing of the original application.

"6. Place of filing applications.--

(1) An application shall ordinarily be filed by an applicant with the Registrar of the Bench within whose jurisdiction--

(i) the applicant is posted for the time being, or

(ii) the cause of action, wholly or in part, has arisen :

Provided that with the leave of the Chairman the application may be filed with the Registrar of the Principal Bench and subject to the orders under section 25, such application shall be heard and disposed of by the Bench which has jurisdiction over the matter.

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-rule (1) persons who have ceased to be in service by reason of retirement, dismissal or termination of service may at his option file an application with the Registrar of the Bench within whose jurisdiction such person is ordinarily residing at the time of filing of the application. "

9. Rule 6 of Sub Rule 2, provides that person, who has ceased to be in service by reason of retirement may at his option file and application with the Registrar of the Bench within whose jurisdiction such person is ordinarily residing at the time of filing of the application. In the instant case the Respondent No.1 is residing in District Ballia, State of U.P., within the jurisdiction of the Tribunal, and as such the contention that the original application is not maintainable, merits no consideration.

10. The second contention that the Tribunal did not consider the ratio as laid down in K.K. Dhawan's Case also merits no consideration in as much as the decision in K K. Dhawan (Supra) was taken note of by the Apex Court in the case of Zunjarrao Bhikaji Magarkar Vs. Union of India & others, decided on 06.08.1999, reported in 1997 (7) SCC 409 and the Apex Court observed as under:-

"In Union of India vs. K.K. Dhawan [(1993) 2 SCC 56) respondent was working as Income Tax Officer. A charge Memorandum was served on him that it was proposed to held an inquiry against him under Rule 14 of the Central Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules, 1965. In the statement of article of charge framed against him, it was alleged that he completed assessment of nine firms in "an irregular manner, in undue haste and apparently with a view to conferring undue favour upon the assesses concerned". An application filed by the respondent against the proposed action was allowed by the Central Administrative Tribunal and it was held that orders passed by the respondent as Income Tax Officer were quasi judicial and could not have formed the basis of disciplinary action. Charge Memorandum was, thus, set aside. The question before this Court was whether an authority enjoyed immunity from disciplinary proceedings with respect to matters decided by him in exercise of quasi judicial functions. After examining the early decisions of this Court in V.D. Trivedi vs. Union of India [(1993) 2 SCC 55]; Union of India vs. R.K. Desai [(1993) 2 SCC 49]; Union of India vs. A.N. Saxena [(1992) 3 SCC 124]and also in S. Govinda menon vs. Union of India [AIR 1967 SC 1274] this Court held as under :

"Certainly, therefore, the officer who exercises judicial or quasi judicial powers acts negligently or recklessly or in order to confer undue favour on a person is not acting as a Judge. Accordingly, the contention of the respondent has to be rejected. It is important to bear in mind that in the present case, we are not concerned with the correctness or legality of the decision of the respondent but the conduct of the respondent in discharge of his duties as an officer. The legality of the orders with reference to the nine assessments may be questioned in appeal or revision under the Act but we have no doubt in our mind that the Government is not precluded from taking the disciplinary action for violation of the Conduct Rules. Thus, we conclude that the disciplinary action can be taken in the following cases :

(i) Where the officer had acted in a manner as would reflect on his reputation for integrity or good faith or devotion to duty;

(ii) if there is prima facie material to show recklessness or misconduct in the discharge of his duty;

(iii)if he has acted in a manner which is unbecoming of a Government servant;

(iv) if he had acted negligently or that he omitted the prescribed conditions which are essential for the exercise of the statutory powers;

(v) if he had acted in order to unduly favour a party;

(vi) if he had been actuated by corrupt motive, however, small the bribe may be because Lord Coke said long ago "though the bribe may be small yet the fault is great".

The instances above catalogued are not exhaustive. however, we may add that for a mere technical violation or merely because the order is wrong and the action not falling under the above enumerated instances, disciplinary action is not warranted. Here, we may utter a word of caution. Each case will depend upon the facts and no absolute rule can be postulated."

11. Thus, it is not in dispute that the disciplinary proceedings cannot be initiated, however, for to ram an Officer with the label "doubtful integrity" as sought to be raised by the learned Assistant Solicitor General of India, as summed up in Point No.(iii) and (iv), there should be some evidence or material to reach at such a conclusion. In M. S. Bindra Vs. Union of India, reported in 1998 (7) SCC 310, the Apex Court has held as under:-

"The appellant was served with an order of compulsory retirement. His challenge to this order did not find favour with the Central Administrative Tribunal. On appeal to this Court it was observed that judicial scrutiny of any order imposing premature compulsory retirement is permissible if the order is rather arbitrary or mala fide or if it is based on no evidence. Then this Court observed as under :

"While viewing this case from the next angle for judicial scrutiny, i.e., want of evidence or material to reach such a conclusion, we may add that want of any material is almost equivalent to the next situation that from the available materials, no reasonable man would reach such a conclusion. While evaluating the materials, the authority should not altogether ignore the reputation in which the officer was held till recently. The maxim "nemo firut repente turpissimus" (no one becomes dishonest all of a sudden) is not unexceptional but still it is a salutary guideline to judge human conduct, particularly in the field of administrative law. The authorities should not keep their eyes totally closed towards the overall estimation in which the delinquent officer was held in the recent past by those who were supervising him earlier. To dunk an officer into the puddle of "doubtful integrity", it is not enough that the doubt fringes on a mere hunch. That doubt should be of such a nature as would reasonably and consciously be entertainable by a reasonable man on the given material. Mere possibility is hardly sufficient to assume that it would have happened. There must be preponderance of probability for the reasonable man to entertain doubt regarding that possibility. Only then there is justification to ram an officer with the lable "doubtful integrity".

12. Rule 3 (i) of the Central Civil Services (Conduct) Rules, 1964 states that every government servant shall at all time:-

(i) maintain absolute integrity;

(ii) maintain devotion to duty; and

(iii) do nothing which is unbecoming of a Government servant.

(iv) commit himself to and uphold the supremacy of the Constitution and democratic values;

(v) defend and uphold the sovereignty and integrity of India, the security of the State, public order, decency and morality;

(vi) maintain high ethical standards and honesty;

(vii) maintain political neutrality;

(viii) promote the principles of merit, fairness and impartiality in the discharge of duties;

(ix) maintain accountability and transparency;

(x) maintain responsiveness to the public, particularly to the weaker section;

(xi) maintain courtesy and good behaviour with the public;

(xii) take decisions solely in public interest and use or cause to use public resources efficiently, effectively and economically;

(xiii) declare any private interests relating to his public duties and take steps to resolve any conflicts in a way that protects the public interest;

(xiv) not place himself under any financial or other obligations to any individual or organisation which may influence him in the performance of his official duties;

(xv) not misuse his position as civil servant and not take decisions in order to derive financial or material benefits for himself, his family or his friends;

(xvi) make choices, take decisions and make recommendations on merit alone;

(xvii) act with fairness and impartiality and not discriminate against anyone, particularly the poor and the under-privileged sections of society;

(xviii) refrain from doing anything which is or may be contrary to any law, rules, regulations and established practices;

(xix) maintain discipline in the discharge of his duties and be liable to implement the lawful orders duly communicated to him;

(xx) maintain confidentiality in the performance of his official duties as required by any laws for the time being in force, particularly with regard to information, disclosure of which may prejudicially affect the sovereignty and integrity of India, the security of the State, strategic, scientific or economic interests of the State, friendly relation with foreign countries or lead to incitement of an offence or illegal or unlawful gain to any person;

(xxi) perform and discharge his duties with the highest degree of professionalism and dedication to the best of his abilities.

13. The substance of the charge is the acceptance of the additional evidence and judgments given by him while holding the charge in quasi-judicial nature and that too in the year 2016-17. The learned Senior Counsel is unable to point out the illegality in the finding recorded by the Administrative Tribunal under the impugned order and also do not dispute the fact that first charge-sheet was issued on 09.09.2020 and the same was quashed by the Tribunal in Original Application No.466 of 2020 and also does not dispute the fact that the decision arrived at by the Respondent No.1 while discharging his function as Commissioner of Income Tax (Appeal) - 4, Mumbai, were upheld by higher forum and also does not dispute the fact that the second charge-sheet was issued on the same inspection report on the basis of which first charge-sheet was issued.

14. We are of the opinion that issuing the second charge-sheet on the same set of facts, in itself is malicious and that too at the verge of retirement for an event which was four year old. Thus, we are not inclined to interfere in the judgment and order passed by the Tribunal allowing the original application, quashing the impugned charge-sheet and granting the Respondent No.1 all the consequential benefits. Accordingly, the writ petition fails and is, accordingly, dismissed.

15. No order as to costs.

Civil Law - The U.P. Recruitment of Dependants of Government Servants Dying in Harness -Rule 5: The death of the late mother of the petitioner- his father was already employed the St. Government - presently receiving pension from the St. Government -compassionate appointment to be given where the other spouse of the deceased is not already employed in the Central Government or the St. Government or otherwise.

Petition dismissed. (E-9)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Karunesh Singh Pawar, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and learned Standing Counsel for the respondents.

2. By this petition, the petitioner has prayed for the following relief:-

"(I) A Writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing the order dated 21.5.2022 passed by the respondent No.2 (Chief Medical Officer, Firozabad).

(II) A Writ, order or direction in the nature /of of mandamus directing the respondent No.2 to consider the claim of the petitioner under the dying-in-harness rules for the suitable post."

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the impugned order dated 21.05.2022 passed by the Chief Medical Officer, Firozabad is arbitrary. He also submits that claim of the petitioner has wrongly been denied.

4. It is further submitted that all other legal heirs of the late Sunita Devi have given their no objection certificate in favour of the petitioner.

5. Learned Standing Counsel has opposed the petition submitting that The U.P. Recruitment of Dependants of Government Servants Dying in Harness Rules, 1974 have been framed to provide immediate relief by providing employment to one member of the aggrieved family. In this case at the time of death of the mother of the petitioner, his father was already employed in the Government service and presently after retirement he is receiving the pension and therefore on this ground the representation of the petitioner has rightly been rejected.

6. Perusal of Rule 5 of The U.P. Recruitment of Dependants of Government Servants Dying in Harness Rules, 1974 shows that compassionate appointment is given one of the family member of the deceased government employee in case a government servant dies and the spouse of the deceased Government servant is not already employed under the Central Government or a State Government etc. Rule 5 of The U.P. Recruitment of Dependants of Government Servants Dying in Harness Rules, 1974 is extracted below:-

"[5. Recruitment of a member of the family of the deceased. - (1) In case a Government servant dies in harness after the commencement of these rules and the spouse of the deceased Government servant is not already employed under the Central Government or a State Government or a Corporation owned or controlled by the Central Government or a State Government, one member of his family who is not already employed under the Central Government or a State Government or a Corporation owned or controlled by the Central Government or a State Government shall, on making an application for the purposes, be given a suitable employment in Government service on a post except the post which is within the purview of the Uttar Pradesh Public Service Commission, in relaxation of the normal recruitment rules, if such person-

(i) fulfils the educational qualifications prescribed for the post,

(ii) is otherwise qualified for Government service, and

(iii) makes the application for employment within five years from the date of the death of the Government servant:

Provided that where the State Government is satisfied that the time limit fixed for making the application for employment causes undue hardship in any particular case, it may dispense with or relax the requirement as it may consider necessary for dealing with the case in a just and equitable manner.

(2) As far as possible, such an employment should be given in the same department in which the deceased Government servant was employed prior to his death.]"

7. It is admitted case of the petitioner that at the time of the death of the late mother of the petitioner, his father was already employed with the State Government. Rule 5 of The U.P. Recruitment of Dependants of Government Servants Dying in Harness Rules, 1974 shows that compassionate appointment has to be given in that circumstances where the other spouse of the deceased is not already employed in the Central Government or the State Government or otherwise. Since the father of the petitioner was already employed at the time of death of the mother of the petitioner and is presently receiving pension from the State Government, therefore, in view of the clear bar under Rule-5 of The U.P. Recruitment of Dependants of Government Servants Dying in Harness Rules, 1974, I do not find any illegality in the impugned order dated 21.05.2022.

8. Law in this regard is clear that in case a government servant dies and his dependent applies for compassionate appointment he can only be given compassionate appointment if the other spouse of the deceased government employee is not already employed with the State Government and Central Government or any other local body etc. Since in this case it is admitted between the parties that at the time of death of the mother of the petitioner, father of the petitioner was already in government service and presently he is receiving pension.

9. The objective of compassionate appointment is to provide assistance to the bereaved family of the deceased employee who has suffered shock and financial scarcity due to sudden demise of the sole bread winner of the family.

10. The compassionate appointment is an exception to the general rule of the appointment and it is based on to provide immediate sustenance and support to the family of the deceased employee for loss of the sole bread winner of the family and to overcome the sudden crises arising out of the sudden demise of the deceased employee, however, since in this case, the deceased government employee was succeeded by his/her spouse and children including the petitioner and the spouse/husband of the deceased namely Ram Singh was a government employee and presently he is receiving pension and therefore, it cannot be said that the family of the deceased is facing scarcity due to the sudden demise of the loss of bread winner of the family. The mother of the petitioner was not sole bread winner of the family, hence, I do not find any illegality in the impugned order dated 21.05.2022. The order dated 21.05.2022 has been passed in consonance of law and particularly Rule 5 of The U.P. Recruitment of Dependants of Government Servants Dying in Harness Rules, 1974.

11. The writ petition is devoid of merits and is accordingly dismissed.

Collector,Land Acquisition Anantnag & anr. Vs Mst. Kantiji & ors. (1987) AIR SC 1353

(Delivered by Hon'ble Chandra Kumar Rai, J.)

1. Heard Ms. Pratima Singh, learned counsel for the petitioner, learned standing counsel for the respondent nos. 1 to 5 and Sri Hari Narain Singh, learned counsel for respondent no.6.

2. The brief facts of the case are that petitioner belong to scheduled caste community. Petitioner's father Mewa Lal along with sixteen others, was granted lease for agriculture purpose in the year 1975 in respect to plot no.107M, area 0.256 hectare and plot no.232 M, area 0.154 hectare, the name of petitioner's father has been recorded in the revenue records, accordingly, petitioner father came in possession of disputed plot and started agriculture in the same. Petitioner was paying irrigation charges also as per provision. In the year 1994, Lekhpal submitted a report on 3.9.1994 that petitioner's father is not doing agriculture for that last two years, accordingly, recommendation was made for taking action under Rule 61, under Section 186 of the U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act. Petitioner's father filed his objection on 14.9.1994 to the proceeding initiated under Section 186 of the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act, stating that he is doing agriculture in the plot in dispute and the crops are standing in the same. The Tahasildar vide order dated 8.2.1995 affirmed the Lekhpal report, cancelled the lease of petitioner's father and vested the land in favour of Gaon Sabha. Petitioners filed Revision before the Board of Revenue under Section 333 of the U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act on 6.5.2013 against the order dated 8.2.1995, along with the stay application and prayer for condonation of delay was also made. Board of Revenue dismissed the Revision vide order dated 12.4.2016 on the ground of limitation as well as on merit and affirmed the order dated 8.2.1995. Out of 17 allottees, 9 allottees were served notice for the proceeding under Section 198 of the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act, 8 allottees had not been served notice. Additional Collector vide order dated 17.2.1995 passed the order against the lease holders, accordingly, the lease holders Mani Ram and Others filed revision before the Commissioner, Kanpur Region, Kanpur which was dismissed for non-prosecution vide order dated 12.31996 and restoration application was rejected vide order dated 19.8.1999. Against the order of the Additional Commissioner, Mani Ram and Others filed revision before the Board of Revenue which was allowed vide order dated 9.8.2004, setting aside the order dated 12.3.1996 and 19.8.1999 and matter was remanded back before the Collector to decide the dispute on merit. In pursuance of the order dated 27.8.2004, passed by the Board of Revenue, the matter was heard by the Collector concerned in Case No.88 of 2005-06 (State vs. Mani Ram) in which physical verification was made and report dated 6.9.2007 was submitted before the Collector, Kanpur Dehat. The Collector vide order dated 15.4.2010 set aside the order dated 17.2.1995, dropped the notice, issued to the lease holders, Mani Ram and Others and ordered to record the name of lease holders as bhumidhar with transferable rights, the finding has been recorded that the crops are standing in the disputed plot and the lease was executed long back about 27 years before, as such, the proceeding for cancellation of lease is wholly illegal. On the basis of the order dated 15.4.2010, the name of the lease holders has been recorded in the revenue records. Hence, this petition on behalf of petitioner in respect of his lease against the order of Board of Revenue dated 12.4.2016 and order dated 8.2.1995 passed by Tahasildar.

3. Counsel for the petitioner submitted that petitioner's father along with 16 others, belonging to scheduled caste community was granted lease for agricultural purpose in the year 1975, petitioner's father, accordingly, started cultivation in the alleged land but the present proceeding after about 20 years has been initiated against the petitioner's father under Section 186 of the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act, on the basis of the alleged report of Lekhpal that petitioner's father was not doing cultivation for the last 2 years, although petitioners' father was doing cultivation continuously in the disputed plot but under impugned order, disputed plot of the petitioner's father was vested in the Gaon Sabha and the revision filed by the petitioner has been arbitrarily dismissed by passing a cryptic order on limitation as well as on merit. It is further submitted that no physical verification was done and on the basis of the collusive report of the Lekhpal only the plot in disputed has been vested in the Gaon Sabha. He further submitted that according to the provisions contained under Section 186(5) of the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act, proceeding was liable to be dropped as petitioner's father filed objection to the notice issued to him under Section 186 of the U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act. He placed reliance upon Section 186 of the U.P. Z.A. L.R. Act which is as follows:-

" 186. Abandonment. - (1) Where a [bhumidhar with non-transferable rights] (other than a minor, lunatic or idiot) or asami has not used his holding for a purpose connected with agriculture, horticulture or animal husbandry which includes pisciculture and poultry farming for two consecutive agricultural years, [the tahsildar may, on the application of the [Gaon Sabha] or the landholder or on facts coming to his notice otherwise, issue a notice] to such [bhumidhar with non-transferable rights] or asami, as the case may be, to show cause why the holding be not treated as abandoned.

(2) The application shall contain such particulars as may be prescribed.

(3) If the tahsildar finds that the application has been duly made he shall cause to be served on the [bhumidhar with non-transferable rights] or the asami or publish in the manner prescribed a notice in the form to be prescribed requiring him to appear and show cause on a date to he fixed why the holding be not held as abandoned.

(4) If the [bhumidhar with non-transferable rights] or the asami does not appear in answer to the notice or appears but does not contest it, the tahsildar shall declare the holding as abandoned and thereupon, except provided in [Section 172], the holding shall be deemed to be vacant land[:]

[Provided that no declaration under this sub-section shall made in respect of a holding or any part thereof, if the same has been mortgaged by the [bhumidhar with non-transferable rights] under sub-section (2) of Section 153 and the mortgage has not been fully redeemed, in which case the tahsildar shall move the Collector for the realization of the loan in such manner as may be prescribed.]

[(5) If the [bhumidhar with non-transferable rights] or asami appears to contest the notice, the tehsildar shall drop the proceedings.]"

4. He further submitted that petitioner along with 16 other persons was granted lease in 1975 and the lease of similarly situated persons after the remand order passed by Board of Revenue has been maintained by the Collector vide order dated 15.4.2010 /27.8.2010 but in respect of the petitioner, the land has been vested in the Gaon Sabha on the ground that the petitioner was not doing cultivation for the last 2 years. He further submitted that there was no discrimination among the similarly situated persons as the ground for cancellation was same against all the lease holders. Counsel for the petitioner further finally submitted that the impugned order be set aside and lease granted in 1975 be affirmed. Counsel for the petitioner placed reliance upon Section 131-B of U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act which is as follows:-

"[131-B. Bhumidhar with non-transferable rights to become bhumidhar with transferable rights after ten years.

(1) Every person who was a bhumidhar with non-transferable rights immediately before the commencement of the Uttar Pradesh Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms (Amendment) Act, 1995 and had been such bhumidhar for a period of ten years or more, shall become a bhumidhar with transferable rights on such commencement.

(2) Every person who is a bhumidhar with non-transferable rights on the commencement referred to in sub-section (1), or becomes a bhumidhar with non-transferable rights after such commencement, shall become bhumidhar with transferable rights on the expiry of period of ten years from his becoming a bhumidhar with non-transferable rights.

(3) Notwithstanding anything contained in any other provision of this Act, if a person, after becoming a bhumidhar with transferable rights under sub-section (1) or sub-section (2), transfers the land by way of sale, he shall become ineligible for a lease of any land vested in Gaon Sabha or the State Government or of surplus land as defined in he Uttar Pradesh Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act, 1960.]

5. Counsel for the petitioner submitted that petitioner's father was granted lease in the year 1975, as such, due to operation of law as provided under Section 131-B of the U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act, petitioner's father became bhumidhar with transferable right of the plots in dispute.

6. On the other hand, the learned standing counsel as well as counsel for respondent no.5- Land Management Committee submitted that petitioner was not doing agricultural work on the land allotted to him, as such, the proceeding was rightly initiated against the petitioner and the land was rightly vested in the State. He further submitted that the revision filed by the petitioner against the order of the Collector was highly time barred, as such, the revision was rightly dismissed on the ground of limitation as well as on merit. They finally submitted that no interference is required against the impugned order and the writ petition is liable to be dismissed.

7. I have considered the arguments advanced by learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

8. There is no dispute about the fact that petitioner along with 16 others belonging to scheduled casts community was granted lease for agricultural purposes in the year 1975 and the proceeding under Section 186 of the U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act has been initiated after expiry of about 20 years. On the basis of the report of the Lekhpal that petitioner is not doing any cultivation work in the plot in dispute, the Tahasildar vide order dated 8.2.1995 vested the land in the Gaon Sabha. The revision filed by the petitioner against the order dated 8.2.1995 was dismissed on the ground of limitation as well as on merits. Although, in respect of the other least holders, the lease was affirmed vide order dated 15.4.2010/27.8.2010.

9. Since petitioner was granted lease in the year 1975 along with 16 others and was continuously doing cultivation work in the alleged land, as such, the vesting of land in the Gaon Sabha only on the basis of the report of Lekhpal is arbitrary. In respect of the other lease holders, the physical verification was conducted and it was found that they are cultivating in the lease land, as such, the lease under the similar circumstances executed in their favour was maintained by the Collector but in the case of the petitioner, no physical verification, etc. was done and the lease was cancelled and the land was vested in the Gaon Sabha, although in view of provisions contained under Section 186(5) of the U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act, the proceedings was liable to be dropped. After the order dated 8.2.1995 passed against the petitioner, petitioner filed revision with delay before the Board of Revenue, praying for condonation of delay (as petitioner was approaching the authorities for redressal of his grievance under advice) but Board of Revenue has dismissed the revision on the ground of delay as well as on merit, saying that order passed by the courts below is in accordance with law.

10. So far as the delay in filing revision is concerned, the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case, reported in AIR 1987 SC 1353, Collector, Land Acquisition, Anantnag and Another vs. Mst. Kantiji and Others has held that in place of deciding the dispute on technical grounds the matter should be adjudicated on merit. Paragraph no.3 of the judgment are quoted hereunder:

"The legislature has conferred the power to condone delay by enacting Section 5 of the Indian Limitation Act of 1963 in order to enable the Courts to do substantial justice to parties by disposing of matters on 'merits'. The expression "sufficient cause" employed by the legislature is adequately elastic to enable the courts to apply the law in a meaningful manner which subserves the ends of justice that being the life-purpose for the existence of the institution of Courts. It is common knowledge that this Court has been making a justifiably liberal approach in matters instituted in this Court. But the message does not appear to have percolated down to all the other Courts in the hierarchy. And such a liberal approach is adopted on principle as it is realized that:-

"Any appeal or any application, other than an application under any of the provisions of Order XXI of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 may be admitted after the prescribed period if the appellant or the applicant satisfies the court that he had sufficient cause for not preferring the appeal or making the application within such period."

1. Ordinarily a litigant does not stand to benefit by lodging an appeal late.

2. Refusing to condone delay can result in a meritorious matter being thrown out at the very threshold and cause of justice being defeated. As against this when delay is condoned the highest that can happen is that a cause would be decided on merits after hearing the parties.

3. "Every day's delay must be explained" does not mean that a pedantic approach should be made. Why not every hour's delay, every second's delay? The doctrine must be applied in a rational common sense pragmatic manner.

4. When substantial justice and technical considerations are pitted against each other, cause of substantial justice deserves to be preferred for the other side cannot claim to have vested right in injustice being done because of a non-deliberate delay.

5. There is no presumption that delay is occasioned deliberately, or on account of culpable negligence, or on account of mala fides. A litigant does not stand to benefit by resorting to delay. In fact he runs a serious risk.

6. It must be grasped that judiciary is respected not on account of its power to legalize injustice on technical grounds but because it is capable of removing injustice and is expected to do so.

Making a justice-oriented approach from this perspective, there was sufficient cause for condoning the delay in the institution of the appeal. The fact that it was the 'State' which was seeking condonation and not a private party was altogether irrelevant. The doctrine of equality before law demands that all litigants, including the State as a litigant, are accorded the same treatment and the law is administered in an even handed manner. There is no warrant for according a stepmotherly treatment when the 'State' is the applicant praying for condonation of delay. In fact experience shows that on account of an impersonal machinary (no one in charge of the matter is directly hit or hurt by the judgment sought to be subjected to appeal) and the inherited bureaucratic methodology imbued with the note-making, file pushing and passing-on-the-buck ethos, delay on its part is less difficult to understand though more difficult to approve. In any event, the State which represents the collective cause of the community, does not deserve a litigant-non-grata status. The Courts therefore have to be informed with the spirit and philosophy of the provision in the course of the interpretation of the expression "sufficient cause". So also the same approach has to be evidenced in its application to matters at hand with the end in view to do even handed justice on merits in preference to the approach which scuttles a decision on merits. Turning to the facts of the matter giving rise to the present appeal, we are satisfied that sufficient cause exists for the delay. The order of the High Court dismissing the appeal before it as time barred, is therefore set aside. Delay is condoned. And the matter is remitted to the High Court. The High Court will now dispose of the appeal on merits after affording reasonable opportunity of hearing to both the sides."

11. Although in the revision, there was delay of more than 10 years but the lease of the other lease holders has been ultimately maintained on the same ground, as such, discrimination to the petitioner will be illegal and will cause irreparable injury to the petitioner, as such, the interest of justice requires that petitioner's lease be also affirmed.

12. Another important aspect of the case is that Section 186 (5) of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act specifically provides for dropping of the proceeding under Section 186 of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act if the bhumidhar with non transferable rights or asami appears to contest the proceedings. In the present case petitioner's father appears and filed his objection even then the Tahsildar has passed the impugned order dated 8.2.1995 vesting the disputed plot in favour of Gaon Sabha. The provisions of Rule 168 & 169 of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Rules prescribes the procedure for initiation of proceeding under Section 168 of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act as well as its disposal, Rule 169 (2) of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Rules are as follows:-

"169(2) If the tenureholders does not appear in spite of service or publication of the notice as laid down in sub-rule (1), or if the tenureholder appears and does not contest the notice, the Tahsildar shall, except where the holding or any part thereof has been mortgaged under sub-section (2) of Section 153 and the mortgage has not been fully redeemed, declare the holdings as abandoned and order the annual registers to be corrected accordingly. If the tenureholder appears and contests the notice, the Tahsildar shall drop the proceedings."

13. Section 168 (5) of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act as well as Rule 169 (2) of of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Rules very specifically provides for dropping of the proceedings under Section 186 of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act but Tahsildar has passed the impugned order for vesting the land in Gaon Sabha in spite of the fact that petitioner's father appears and filed his objection to the proceeding, as such, impugned orders cannot be sustained in the eye of law.

14. Considering the entire facts and circumstances of the case, provisions of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act/Rules as well as the ratio of law laid down by the Apex Court in Land Acquisition, Anantnag and Another (supra), the impugned order dated 12.4.2016 passed by the Board of Revenue, Allahabad Bench, Allahabad and order dated 8.2.1995 passed by the Tehsildar, Kanpur Dehat are liable to be set aside and the same are hereby set aside.

15. The writ petition stands allowed and respondent no.2/Collector, Kanpur Dehat is directed to record the name of petitioner in the revenue record in respect to disputed plots within period of six weeks from the date of production of the certified copy of this order.

16. No order as to costs.

A. Civil Law - U.P. Land Revenue Act, 1901-Section 34-Since jurisdiction u/s 34 of the Act once has been exercised by trial court on the basis of evidence on record after affording opportunity of hearing to the parties as such there should be no interference against the order of trial court unless there is any error in the order but the appellate Court has illegally allowed the appeal against the order passed by trial court and remanded the matter before trial court for fresh consideration of evidence without taking into consideration the principles of merger as the order of trial court has been merged in the final order of Revisional Court by which revision filed by respondent no. 4 (daughter of deceased) has been dismissed and order of trial court has been maintained-Hence, the impugned orders are liable to set aside.(Para 1 to 15)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Chandra Kumar Rai, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Abhishek Kumar, Counsel for the petitioner, Mr. Alok Sharma, Advocate, holding brief of Mr. Ram Sajiwan Prajapati and Mr. Rama Kant Tiwari, Counsel for respondent No.3 as well as learned Standing Counsel for respondent Nos.1 and 2.

2. The brief facts of the case are that Lalla Prasad had three marriages in his life time. His first wife was Dhankali.

Contesting respondent No.3- Daljeet was born from wedlock of Lalla Prasad and Dhankali. After one year of marriage Dhankali left the house of her husband accordingly Lalla Prasad solemnized his second marriage with Gaura Devi and from the wedlock of Lalla Prasad and Gaura Devi two daughters Heerawati and Bhanwati were born, who are married. Second wife Gaura died in the life time of Lalla Prasad accordingly Lalla Prasad was married with Champa @ Chameli and from the wedlock of Lalla Prasad and Champa @ Chameli, petitioner Man Singh was born. Lalla Prasad died on 23.08.2004 and after the death of Lalla Prasad, name of petitioner and respondent No.3 were recorded by the Registrar Kanoongo vide order dated 31.03.2004 in the place of Lalla Prasad in respect to village-Sidhwa and in respect to village-Mayee report under Section 34 of U.P. Land Revenue Act was filed by respondent No.3 that his name solely be recorded in the place of deceased Lalla Prasad, the cases were consolidated and registered as Case No.333 before Tehsildar (Judicial) Mariyahoo, Jaunpur, both parties adduced oral and documentary evidence in support of their cases. Tehsildar after considering the evidences adduced by both parties in detail has held vide order dated 10.07.2007 that petitioner and respondent No.3 are sons of Lalla Prasad and rejected the mutation application filed by respondent No.3 to record his name solely in the place of Lalla Prasad, the order of Registrar Kanoogo dated 31.03.2004 was maintained. Against the order dated 10.07.2007 respondent No.4 filed Revision No.380 of 2007 before Commissioner, the petitioner and respondent No.3 were impleaded as opposite parties in the revision who have contested the proceeding of revision, respondent No.3 has prayed before Additional Commissioner that revision of respondent No.4 be allowed, the Additional Commissioner vide order dated 25.02.2011 dismissed the revision filed by respondent No.4 and maintained the order of Tehsildar dated 10.07.2007. Against the order dated 10.07.2007 respondent No.3 filed an appeal under Section 210 of U.P. Land Revenue Act before Sub Divisional officer and the pandency of the revision against the same impugned order dated 10.07.2007 was brought to the notice of appellate Court (Sub Divisional officer) but appellate court vide order dated 21.03.2013 allowed the appeal filed by respondent No.3 set aside the order dated 10.07.2007 and remanded the matter for fresh decision by Tehsildar. Petitioner challenged the appellate order dated 21.03.2013 through revision under Section 333 of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act before respondent No.1, the revision was dismissed by respondent No.1 vide order dated 03.06.2013 hence this writ petition on behalf of petitioner.

3. This Court at the time of admission after hearing counsel for the petitioner as well as respondent No.3 passed the detailed interim order dated 06.09.2013 which is as follows:

"Heard Shri Abhishek Kumar, learned counsel for the petitioner and Shri Sarwar Khan, learned counsel for respondent no.3.

Issue notice to respondent no.4 returnable at an early date. Steps within 10 days.

Shri Manoj Kumar Yadav has accepted notice on behalf of respondent no.5 and learned Standing Counsel has accepted notice on behalf of respondents No.1 and 2. Learned counsel is permitted to implead the concerned Tehsildar as Respondent No.6 on whose behalf also the learned standing counsel shall seek instructions.

An order came to be passed by the Tehsildar in relation to mutation of the holding on 10th July 2007, whereby the petitioner and respondent no. 3 Daljeet were both treated to be sons of the deceased tenure holder Lalla Prasad. Aggrieved the respondent no.3 filed an appeal contending that the petitioner is not the son of Lalla Prasad.

According to the pedigree as disclosed at page 30 of the paper book one Smt. Manbhawati, one of the daughters of late Lalla Prasad filed a revision against the order dated 10.7.2002 before the Additional Commissioner under SEction 2/9 of the 1901 Act for setting aside the order. The respondent no.3 Daljeet also contested the said revision and conceded that the order dated 10.7.2007 deserves to be set aside and he will have no objection to the same. This was obviously done because the respondent no.3 had also filed an appeal against the same order under SEction 210 of the 1901 Act which was pending before the Sub-Divisional Officer.

The revisional authority after assessing the entire evidence that had been considered by the Tehsildar recorded its own findings by reciting that the petitioner and the respondent no.3 are brothers and are sons of the same father namely Lalla Prasad. The revision was allowed on 25.2.2011.

It is, therefore, obvious that respondent no.3 was a party to the said proceedings before the learned Commissioner where this finding was recorded.

During the pendency of the appeal, this fact of the order of the Commissioner dated 25.2.2011 was brought to the notice of the Sub-Divisional Officer who was hearing the appeal filed by respondent no.3. The Sub-Divisional Officer without recording any finding with regard to the impact of the said order of the learned Commissioner has allowed the appeal and has set aside the order dated 10.7.2007 which had already been upheld by the learned Commissioner.

Shri Abhishek submits that the principles of merger would apply inasmuch as even though they are summary proceedings the order of the Tehsildar dated 10.7.2007 has already merged into the order dated 25.2.2011 of the superior authority under Section 219 of the U.P. of Land Revenue Act, 1901 namely the order of the learned Commissioner which has remained unchallenged. Shri Abhishek Kumar has relied upon three decisions to substantiate his submissions namely Paras Nath and another vs. Deputy Director of Consolidation, Varanasi and others reported in 2010 (110) RD page 595; Bihar State Govt. Secondary School Teachers Association v. Bihar Education Service Association and Ors AIR 2013 SC 487 and Bhagwati Developers Private Limited vs. Peerless General Finance Invstment Company Limited and others (2013) 5 SCC 455.

He therefore, contends that the same will have a direct impact on the proceedings of the appeal before the Sub-Divisional Officer arising out of the same impugned order, and having not considered the same which was a relevant material, the order of the Sub-Divisional Officer is perverse. He has placed reliance upon the Full Bench decision of this Court in Nanhey and anor vs.Deputy Director of Consolidation, Kanpur & others reported in 1975 AWC 1 to urge that non-consideration of relevant material amounts to perversity.

Prima facie, after having heard Shri Sarwar Khan who has taken the Court to the merits of the matter, the contention of the petitioner appears to be correct.

1. All the respondents may file counter affidavit within three weeks.

Rejoinder affidavit may be filed within a week thereafter.

List thereafter.

Until further orders of the Court, all further proceedings before the Tehsildat pursuant to the remand order dated 21.3.2013 passed by the Sub-Divisional Officer shall remain stayed."

4. Counsel for the respondent No.3 has filed his counter affidavit and the petitioner has filed rejoinder affidavit. Respondent No.4 has not put in appearance although service is sufficient upon respondent No.4 as per office report dated 11.02.2019.

5. Counsel for the petitioner submitted that trial court (Tehsildar) has decided the application under Section 34 of U.P. Land Revenue Act taking into consideration each and every evidence adduced by the parties and held that petitioner and respondent No.3 are sons of late Lalla Prasad as such the case of respondent No.3 that respondent No.3 is to recorded exclusively was rejected and the judgment of trial court was maintained in revision under Section 219 of U.P. Land Revenue Act at the instance of respondent No.4 but appellate Court has illegally entertained the appeal under Section-210 of U.P. Land Revenue Act against the order of trial Court, even allowed the appeal and remanded the matter before trial court for fresh decision which is wholly illegal on the Principles of merger. He further submitted that once revisional court exercise the jurisdiction under Section-219 of U.P. Land Revenue Act by dismissing the Revision on merit and maintaining the order of trial court dated 10.07.2007 then proceeding before appellate court against the same order of trial court dated 10.07.2007 will be barred by principle of res judicata also. He further submitted that appellate order dated 21.03.2013 is perverse. He further submitted that even on merit the appellate court can not remand the matter before trial court as trial court has already decided the proceeding under Section-34 of U.P. Land Revenue Act after considering each and every evidence on record as such impugned orders be set aside and order of trial court dated 10.07.2007 be maintained.

6. He further submitted that respondent No.1 without considering the evidence available on record dismissed the petitioner's revision. Counsel for the petitioner placed reliance upon following judgment of Apex court as well as of this court on the point of principle of merger:

(1) AIR 1970 Supreme Court 1

Shankar Ramchandra Abhyakar Vs.Krishnaji Dattatraya Bapat.

(2) AIR 2013 SC 487

Bihar State Govt Secondary School Teachers Association vs. Bihar Education Service Association and others.

(3) (2013) 5 SCC 455

Bhagwah Developers Private Limited Vs. Peerless General Finance Investment Company Limited and others.

(4) 2010 (110) RD 595

Para Nath and another vs Deputy Direction of Consolidation Varanasi and others.

On the point of perversity of judgment of appellate Court Counsel for petitioner placed reliance upon 1975 AWC. 1 Nanhey and another Vs. Deputy Director of Consolidation Kanpur and others.

On the point of maintainability of the writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India against the order passed in summary proceedings under Section 34 of U.P. Land Revenue Act, 1901 Counsel for the petitioner placed reliance upon judgment of this Court reported in 2012 (115) R.D. 187 Saumya Co-operative Housing Society Allahabad through its secretary Versus State of U.P. and others in which it is held that writ petition would be maintainable against orders which are without jurisdiction or are otherwise perverse. Para No.17 of the judgment is relevant which is as follows:

".....17. Coming to the issue of jurisdiction, suffice it to say that even in matters of mutation this Court in the case of Lal Cahan V. Board of Revenue, U.P. Lucknow and others, has held that a writ petition would be maintainable against orders which are without jurisdiction or are otherwise perverse. As would be seen presently, the present writ petition also falls within the same category inasmuch as the Sub-Divisional Magistrate, while passing the order dated 25.08.2008 has failed to record any provision which may empower him to act and proceed contrary to the directions of the collector contained in the order dated 24.10.2007."

7. On the other hand Counsel for respondent No.3 submitted that petitioner is not son of Lalla Prasad rather he is nephew of Lalla Prasad as such petitioner cannot succeed the property of Lalla Prasad. He further submitted that appeal filed by respondent No.3 has been rightly allowed by Sub Divisional officer as the evidence on record have not been properly considered by trial court. He further submitted that revision which was filed against the order of trial court was at the instance of respondent No.4 as such dismissal of the same will not come in the way of respondent No.3 who has filed appeal under Section 210 of U.P. Land Revenue Act and the same was rightly allowed and remanded before trial court for fresh consideration of evidence. He further submitted that writ petition filed by petitioner against the remand order passed by appellate Court arising out of summary proceeding under Section-34 of U.P. Land Revenue Act 1901 is not maintainable and liable to be dismissed. Counsel for the respondent No.3 placed reliance upon judgment of this Court in the Case of Smt. Kalawati Vs. the Board of Revenue and others 2022 0 Supreme (All) 281 in order to demonstrate that writ petition arising out of mutation proceeding under Section 34 of U.P. Land Revenue Act is not maintainable.

8. I have considered the argument advanced by learned counsel for the parties and perused the records.

9. There is no dispute about the fact that trial court (Tehsildar) has held that mutation application filed by respondent No.3 is liable to be rejected and the order dated 31.03.2004 passed by Revenue Inspector for recording the name of petitioner as well as respondent No.3 being sons of deceased Lalla Prasad is in accordance with law, the order of trial court was maintained in Revision although at the instance of respondent No.4 (married daughter of Lalla Prasad) but in the revision respondent No.3 also contested the revisional proceeding, the order of revisional court dated 25.02.2011 has attained finality but appellate Court in appeal filed by respondent No.3 against the same, order of trial court dated 10.07.2007 has set aside the order dated 10.07.2007 and remanded the matter vide his order dated 21.03.2013 before trial court for fresh consideration in spite of the fact brought into the notice of the appellate court that revision filed against the order of trial court has already been dismissed vide order dated 25.02.2011.

10. Since jurisdiction under Section 34 of U.P. Land Revenue Act once has been exercised by trial court on the basis of evidence on record after affording opportunity of hearing to the parties as such there should be no interference against the order of trial court unless there is any error in the order but the appellate Court has illegally allowed the appeal against the order passed by trial court under Section 34 of U.P. Land Revenue Act and remanded the matter before trial court for fresh consideration of evidence without taking into consideration the principles of merger as the order of trial court dated 10.07.2007 has been merged in the final order of Revisional Court dated 25.02.2011 by which revision filed by respondent No.4 has been dismissed and order of trial court dated 10.07.2007 has been maintained.

11. Principles of Merger has been considered by the Apex Court as well as by this Court in the cases cited by learned Counsel for the petitioner, in the case of Shankar Ram Chandra Abhyankar (Supra) the Apex Court has held as follows in paragraph Nos. 8 and 9.

"8. Even on the assumption that the order of the appellate court had not merged in the order of the single Judge who had disposed of the revision petition we are of the view that a writ petition ought not to have been entertained by the High Court when the respondent had already chosen the remedy under Section 115 of the CPC. If there are two modes of invoking the jurisdiction of the High Court and one of those modes has been chosen and exhausted it would not be a proper and sound exercise of discretion to grant relief in the other set of proceedings in respect of the same order of the subordinate court. The refusal to grant relief in such circumstances would be in consonance with the anxiety of the court to prevent abuse of process as also to respect and accord finality to its own decisions.

9. In the result the appeal is allowed and the judgment of the division bench of the High Court is hereby set aside. The appellant shall be entitled to costs in this Court."

12. In the present case although respondent No.3 has not filed revision against the order of trial court rather respondent No.4 (daughter of deceased-Lalla Prasad) filed revision and respondent No.3 as well as petitioner contested the revisional proceeding which has resulted into dismissal of revision holding that petitioner and respondent No.3 both being sons will have right and affirmed the order of trial court dated 10.07.2007 as such principle of merger will apply.

13. So far as jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India against the order of mutation Court under Section 34 of U.P. Land Revenue Act, 1901 is concerned in view of ratio of law laid down in Saumya Co-operative Housing Society (Supra) and Smt. Kalawati (Supra) in which it has been held that if the order of mutation court is without jurisdiction then interference can be made in exercise of writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. In the present case appellate order dated 21.03.2013 is without jurisdiction as the revisional court had already dismissed the revision against the order of trial court which attained finality as such appellate court had no jurisdiction to allow the appeal against the same order of trial court.

14. Since the order of trial court dated 10.07.2007 passed under Section 34 of U.P. Land Revenue Act 1901 under which petitioner and respondent No.3 were ordered to be recorded in the revenue records in the place of deceased tenure holder as such the petitioner's claim for exclusive right can be examined in the regular suit and for that relief petitioner can avail remedy of suit for declaration of his exclusive right and title in respect to disputed plots.

15. Considering the entire facts and circumstances of the case as well as ratio of law laid down by Apex Court on the principles of merger as well as of this Court on the point of perversity and jurisdiction, the impugned order dated 03.06.2013 passed by respondent No.1 and 21.03.2013 passed by respondent No.2 are liable to be set aside and are hereby set aside. The writ petition stands allowed. No order as to costs.

Mahendra Singh & Anr. ...Petitioners
Versus
Board of Revenue & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioners:
Sri Ramesh Chandra, Sri S.C. Varma

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C., Sri Amresh Singh, Sri Brijesh Kumar Verma, Sri Krishna Mohan, Sri Mohit Kumar, Sri Rajeev Misra, Sri Rajesh Kumar, Sri Rajiv Misra, Sri Shiv Nath Singh (Sr. Advocate), Sri Sher Bahadur Singh

A. Civil Law - Code of Civil Procedure, 1908- Order 47 Rule 1-U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950- Section 229-B-Review-Delay of 22 years-petitioners filed two suits u/s 229-B, which got decreed-Second review application filed by State and Gaon Sabha has been allowed after 22 years of the date of judgment of the Board of revenue-Board of revenue illegally condoned and allowed application ignoring the provisions under Order 47, Rule 1, CPC-Impugned judgment of Board of revenue is set aside.(Paras 1 to 12)

B. Under Order 47 Rule 1 CPC a judgment may be open to review inter alia if there is a mistake or an error apparent on the face of record. An error which is not self-evident and has to be detected by a process of reasoning, can hardly be said to be an error apparent on the face of the record justifying the court to exercise its power of review under Order 47 Rule 1 CPC. In exercise of the jurisdiction under Order 47 Rule 1 CPC it is not permissible for an erroneous decision to be "reheard and corrected". A review petition, it must be remembered has a limited purpose and cannot be allowed to be "an appeal in disguise."(Para 9)

The writ petition is allowed. (E-6)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Chandra Kumar Rai, J.)

1. Heard Sri Suresh Chandra Varma and Sri Ramesh Chandra, learned counsel for the petitioners, Sri Krishna Mohan, Sri Shiv Nath Singh, learned Senior Advocate and Sri Sher Bahadur Singh, learned counsel for respondent no.3- Gaon Sabha.

2. Brief facts of the case are petitioners filed two suits under Section 229B of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act on the basis of lease deed executed in their favour by the erstwhile Zamindar on 22.6.1948 in respect of Khata No.38 area 10.04 acres. Another suit was filed by Ayodhya. Suits were dismissed by the trial Court against which two appeals were filed i.e. Appeal Nos.798/312 and 398/213 (Mahendra Singh Vs. Gaon Sabha and Others). Additional Commissioner vide separate judgment dated 29.8.1984 dismissed both the appeals. Petitioner no.1 as well as father of the petitioner no.2 filed two second appeals which were numbered as Second Appeal No.3 & 4 of 1984-85. Board of Revenue vide judgment and order dated 11.7.1990 allowed both the appeals and decreed both the suits. Gaon Sabha and State of U.P. were parties to the suit under Section 229B of the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act and they had full notice and knowledge of the entire proceeding. Gaon Sabha and State of U.P. filed Restoration Application No.229 of 2009-10 (State Vs. Ayodhya Prasad and Others), learned member of Board of Revenue recorded the finding that judgment dated 11.7.1990 was not ex-parte, as such, the same should be treated as review petition and should be placed before the Division Bench of the Board of Revenue, by the same order effect and operation of the order dated 11.7.1990 has been stayed. The matter was placed before the Division Bench of the Board of Revenue and they held that matter be placed before single member as the application is not review application and it can be treated only as restoration application, accordingly, the matter was again placed before single member of the Board of Revenue. The Board of Revenue vide order dated 18.6.1996 rejected the restoration application dated 11.7.1990 filed by State and Gaon Sabha. On 19.3.2013, two review applications were filed by DGC (Revenue) which were registered as Review Application Nos.1/2012-13 and 2/2012-13. Along with review application, the application for condonation of delay and affidavit were also filed, the deponent of the affidavit filed in the support of the review application as well as delay condonation application was not pradhan of the Gaon Sabha, he was clerk of DGC (Revenue), who has filed his affidavit, review application were placed before the Division Bench of the Board of Revenue vide order dated 25.1.2013. Petitioners filed a Civil Misc. Writ Petition No.64148 of 2013 against the order of Board of Revenue dated 25.1.2013. The writ petition was disposed of by this Court vide judgment dated 25.11.2013 with direction to decide the review application within two months from the date of production of certified copy of the order. Respondent no.4, Ravindra also filed a Civil Misc. Writ Petition No.5377 of 2013 before this Court which was dismissed vide order dated 19.9.2013 with a clear finding that there is no explanation of delay of 22 years. Division Bench of the Board of Revenue vide judgment dated 15.7.2015 allowed both the review applications setting aside the order dated 11.7.1990 passed in Second Appeal Nos.3 and 4 and second appeal was restored to its original number, hence this writ petition. This Court while entertaining the writ petition at the admission stage has passed the following interim order dated 8.9.2015:

"Notice on behalf respondents- 1 and 2 has been accepted by Chief Standing Counsel, on behalf of respondent-3 has been accepted by Sri Amresh Singh as well as Sri Rajesh Kumar and on behalf of respondent-4 has been accepted by Sri Rajesh Mishra. All the respondents are granted one month's time for filing counter affidavit.

List in the week commencing 26.10.2015.

Till the next date of listing the operation of the order of Board of Revenue dated 15.07.2015 shall remain stayed and parties shall maintain status quo on the spot"

3. Learned counsel for the petitioners submitted that no sufficient cause has been shown for condonation of delay of 22 years in filing the review application against the order of Board of Revenue allowing the second appeal on merit. He further submitted that Board of Revenue has committed illegality while considering the review application taking into consideration the merit of the case also. He also submitted that none of the ground mentioned under Order 47 Rule 1 of Code of Civil Procedure was available but the Board of Revenue has allowed the highly time barred review application. He next submitted that State of U.P. and Gaon Sabha had every knowledge of the entire proceeding even they were heard by the Board of Revenue while the second appeal was allowed on merit in the year 1990, as such, the delay in filing the review application has been illegally condoned and review application has been illegally allowed by the Board of Revenue. He further submitted that Writ-B No.51377 of 2013 filed at the instance of respondent no.4 against the order dated 11.7.1990 passed by Board of Revenue was rejected vide order dated 19.9.2013. Counsel for the petitioners placed reliance upon the judgment of this Court challenged in the case of Kanpur Developement Authority Through Chairman Vs. Raksha Rani Agarwal (First Appeal Defective No.50 of 2008) dated 9.12.2015 in which the first appeal filed with delay before the High Court was dismissed on the ground of limitation, the Paragraph Nos.21 & 22 of the judgment rendered in Kanpur Development Authority (supra) are as follows:

"21.Following various earlier decisions, some of which have been referred hereinabove, includingState of Nagalandv.Lipok AO(supra) inManiben Devraj Shahv.Municipal Corporation of Brihan Mumbai,(2012) 5 SCC 157, in para 18 of the judgment, the Court said as under:

?What needs to be emphasised is that even though a liberal and justice oriented approach is required to be adopted in the exercise of power under Section 5 of the Limitation Act and other similar statutes, the Courts can neither become oblivious of the fact that the successful litigant has acquired certain rights on the basis of the judgment under challenge and a lot of time is consumed at various stages of litigation apart from the cost. What colour the expression ?sufficient cause? would get in the factual matrix of a given case would largely depend on bona fide nature of the explanation. If the Court finds that there has been no negligence on the part of the applicant and the cause shown for the delay does not lack bona fides, then it may condone the delay. If, on the other hand, the explanation given by the applicant is found to be concocted or he is thoroughly negligent in prosecuting his cause, then it would be a legitimate exercise of discretion not to condone the delay. In cases involving the State and its agencies/instrumentalities, the Court can take note of the fact that sufficient time is taken in the decision making process but no premium can be given for total lethargy or utter negligence on the part of the officers of the State and/or its agencies/instrumentalities and the applications filed by them for condonation of delay cannot be allowed as a matter of course by accepting the plea that dismissal of the matter on the ground of bar of limitation will cause injury to the public interest.?

"22.In our view, the kind of explanation rendered in the case in hand does not satisfy the observations of Apex Court that if delay has occurred for reasons which does not smack of mala fide, the Court should be reluctant to refuse condonation. On the contrary, we find that here is a case which shows a complete careless and reckless long delay on the part of applicants which has remain virtually unexplained at all. Therefore, we do not find any reason to exercise our judicial discretion exercising judiciously so as to justify condonation of delay in the present case."

4. On the other hand, counsel for the respondents submitted that the opportunity to State and Gaon Sabha was not properly afforded while deciding the second appeal vide judgment dated 11.7.1990, as such, when the State and the Gaon Sabha came to know about the same, the proceedings were initiated before the Board of Revenue. He further submitted that interest of the State and the Gaon Sabha is involved and the petitioners has get the order in respect of the State land so the judgment of Board of Revenue has been rightly reviewed by the subsequent order of the Board of Revenue. He placed reliance upon the judgments reported in AIR 1987 SC 1353 (Collector Land Acquisition, Anantnag and Others Vs. Katji and Others) & (2013) 12 SCC 649 (Esha Bhattacharjee Vs. Managing Committee of Raghunathpur Nafar Academy and Others). On the basis of aforementioned judgment of the Apex Court, counsel for the respondents submitted that liberal view should be taken in respect to the delay condonation matter and in place of rejecting the application, appeal or revision on the technical grounds, the matter should be adjudicated on merit. Counsel for the respondents further submitted that filing of Writ-B No.51377 of 2013 is the manipulation of petitioners, as such, no reliance can be placed upon the same.

5. I have considered the argument advanced by learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

6. There is no dispute about the fact that the suit under Section 229B of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act filed by the petitioners were decreed in the second appeal by the Board of Revenue vide judgment and order dated 11.7.1990 after hearing the counsel for the parties. Paragraph No.5 of the judgment of Board of Revenue will be relevant for perusal which is as follows:

"5. The learned counsel for the respondent has argued that the fact as is evident from the extracts from the Khasras and Khataunis filed by the parties, all go to show that the names of the plaintiffs have never appeared in revenue records and if some patta would have actually been executed the name of plaintiff their name must have been brought on record. The learned counsel for the respondent has further argued that evidently the land in dispute has remained recorded as Sanjar belonging to the Gaon Sabha including the revenue records pertaining to consolidation of holdings operations and there is non evidence that the plaintiffs have ever paid any land revenue for the land. In reply to the contentions of learned counsel for the appellant about the cancellation of the house the learned D.G.C. (R) has said that these contentions are irrelevant for this case nor there is any evidence for that effect."

7. Perusal of Paragraph No.5 of the judgment of Board of Revenue fully demonstrate that the judgment dated 11.7.1990 is not ex-parte against the Gaon Sabha and State. The first restoration application filed at the instance of the Gaon Sabha and State was rejected by the Board of Revenue and the second review application filed at the instance of the State and the Gaon Sabha after 22 years of the date of judgment of the Board of Revenue has been allowed, the judgment passed on merit by the Board of Revenue has been set aside. Since the Board of Revenue vide judgment dated 11.7.1990 has allowed the appeal on merit after hearing the counsel for the parties, as such, the State or Goan Sabha can challenge the judgment passed on merit by the Board of Revenue dated 11.7.1990 before the higher Court rather by way of restoration or review before the same Court even after 22 years. It is also material that respondent no.4 challenged the order dated 11.7.1990 before this Court in the year 2013 which was dismissed by this Court vide order dated 19.9.2013 although counsel for the respondents submitted that filing of Writ-B No.5377 of 2013 is the manipulation of the petitioners.

8. The Board of Revenue has arbitrarily condoned the delay in filing the review application and allowed the review application without considering the provisions contained under Order 47 Rule 1 of the Code of Civil Procedure. The provisions of Order 47 Rule 1 of the Code of Civil Procedure are as follows:

"1. Application for review of judgment?(1) Any person considering himself aggrieved?

(a) by a decree or order from which an appeal is allowed, but from which no appeal has been preferred,

(b) by a decree or order from which no appeal is allowed, or

(c) by a decision on a reference from a Court of Small Causes, and who, from the discovery of new and important matter or evidence which, after the exercise of due diligence, was not within his knowledge or could not be produced by him at the time when the decree was passed or order made, or on account of some mistake or error apparent on the face of the record, or for any other sufficient reason, desires to obtain a review of the decree passed or order made against him, may apply for a review of judgment of the Court which passed the decree or made the order.

(2) A party who is not appealing from a decree or order may apply for a review of judgment notwithstanding the pendency of an appeal by some other party except where the ground of such appeal is common to the applicant and the appellant, or when, being respondent, he can present to the Appellate Court the case on which he applies for the review.

[Explanation.?The fact that the decision on a question of law on which the judgment of the Court is based has been reversed or modified by the subsequent decision of a superior court in any other case, shall not be a ground for the review of such judgment.]"

9. The Apex Court considering the provisions of Order 47 Rule 1 of Code of Civil Procedure as adjudicated the controversy of review jurisdiction in the following cases:

1. Haryana Vs. Mohinder Singh and Others reported in JT 2002 (10) S.C. 197. Paragraph No.5 of the judgment will be relevant which is as follows:

"5. We have carefully considered the submissions of learned counsel appearing on either side. The division bench in the High Court, in our view, completely overstepped the limits of its review jurisdiction and on the face of it appears to have proceeded as though it is a rehearing of the whole petition which had been earlier finally disposed of. It has often been reiterated that the scope available for a litigant invoking the powers of review is not one more chance for rehearing of the matter already finally disposed of. The course adopted in this case by the High Court appears to be really what has been held by this Court to be not permissible. On this ground alone, without expressing any views on the merits of the claim, the order of the High Court dated 14.5.99 is set aside and the original order dated 14.5.1998 shall stand restored. While noticing some of the submissions made on merits by either side, we consider it appropriate to place on record that even the learned counsel for the appellant could not seriously dispute the position that the respondents would at any rate be entitled to be placed on the 'first higher standard pay scale' and that to this extent atleast, the respondents' claim would deserve consideration. The appeals are allowed in the above terms. No order as to costs."

2. Parsion Devi and Others Vs. Sumitr Devi and Others reported in JT 1997 (8) SC 480. Paragraph No.9 of the judgment will be relevant which is as follows:

9. Under Order 47 Rule 1 CPC a judgment may be open to review inter alia if there is a mistake or an error apparent on the face of the record. An error which is not self-evident and has to be detected by a process of reasoning, can hardly be said to be an error apparent on the face of the record justifying the court to exercise its power of review under Order 47 Rule 1 CPC. In exercise of the jurisdiction under Order 47 Rule 1 CPC it is not permissible for an erroneous decision to be "reheard and corrected". A review petition, it must be remembered has a limited purpose and cannot be allowed to be "an appeal in disguise".

10. So far as case law cited by learned counsel for the respondent are concerned, it will be relevant to mention here that liberal view can be taken by the Court under the circumstances of the case so that matter can be adjudicated on merit. In the present case second appeal has been adjudicated once on merit vide judgment dated 11.7.1990, as such, for exercising review jurisdiction after 22 years there is no question of taking liberal view by the Court, as such, case laws cited by learned counsel for the respondents are not applicable in the present controversy.

11. Considering the ratio of law laid down by the Apex Court as well as by this Court and the fact that judgment dated 11.7.1990 was passed on merit after hearing both the parties, the review jurisdiction exercised by the Board of Revenue after 22 years from the date of the judgment passed by the Board of Revenue on merit is wholly without jurisdiction and cannot be sustained in the eye of law. The impugned judgment and order dated 15.7.2015 passed by Board of Revenue, Allahabad in Review Application Nos. 1 and 2 of 2012-13 is liable to be set aside and is hereby set aside. The original order of Board of Revenue dated 11.7.1990 shall stand restored.

12. The writ petition is allowed.

13. No order as to costs.

1. प्रकरण का तथ्यात्मक प्रारूपः

(क) उप श्रमायुक्त, नोएडा, उत्तर प्रदेश ने आदेश दिनांक 31.12.2003 के द्वारा, अभिनिर्णय हेतु, श्रम न्यायालय द्वितीय, गाजियाबाद, को निम्न औद्योगिक विवाद प्रेषित किया, जो शासनादेश दिनांक 25.10.2007 के द्वारा श्रम न्यायालय, उत्तर प्रदेश, नोएडा, गौतम बुद्ध नगर को स्थानान्तरित किया गया:

"क्या सेवायोजको द्वारा अपने श्रमिक श्री मनीराम पाल पुत्र श्री सुखपाल पद चौकीदार कम हेल्पर की सेवायें दिनांक 16-03-98 से समाप्त किया जाना उचित तथा/अथवा वैधानिक है यदि हॉ अथवा नहीं तो श्रमिक अपने सेवायोजको से क्या अनुतोष प्राप्त करने का अधिकारी है और किस सीमा तक एवं अन्य किस विवरण सहित।"

(ख) श्रमिक पक्ष ने अपने लिखित कथन, दिनांक 18.02.2006, के द्वारा मुख्य रूप से कथन किया, कि वह विपक्षी के मौखिक आदेशाधीन दिनांक 02.05.1989, को वो चौकीदार-कम-हेल्पर के पद पर स्थायी रूप से नियोजित हुआ था परन्तु उसे दिनांक 16.03.1998 को मौखिक आदेशाधीन, उ०प्र० औद्योगिक अधिनियम 1947 की धारा 6-एन के अनुपालन किये बिना कार्य से पृथक/वंचित कर दिया गया। वो विपक्षी की एक वर्ष से अधिक की निरन्तर सेवा में 240 दिवस से अधिक की निरन्तर सेवा, "स्वच्छ सेवा रिकार्ड" के साथ पूर्ण कर चुका था तथा सेवा समाप्ति के बाद वो बेरोजगारी के कारण घोर आर्थिक संकट में रह रहा है।

(ग) सेवायोजक की ओर से लिखित कथन, दिनांक 11.02.2008 के द्वारा कथित किया गया कि, श्रमिक 02.05.1989 को हेल्पर कम चौकीदार के पद पर रू० 1794/- प्रतिमास वेतन पर नियोजित हुआ था, परन्तु उसका कार्य संतोषजनक नहीं रहा तथा इस संबंध में उसे चेतावनी भी दी गई थी। श्रमिक दिनांक 16.03.1998 से बिना किसी अनुमति व अपनी इच्छा से कार्य से विरत रहा। उसने सेवायोजक के पंजीकृत पत्र दिनांक 10.04.1998 का कोई उत्तर भी नहीं दिया, तदउपरांत रू० 1272/- का एक चैक, जिसका नम्बर 583690 था उसको एक पत्र दिनांक 12.06.1998 के संलग्न भेजा गया, परन्तु उसने उसको लेने से इंकार कर दिया। श्रमिक किसी बेहतर रोजगार मिलने के कारण अपनी इच्छा से सेवायोजक का रोजगार छोड़ कर चला गया था।

(घ) श्रमिक ने अपने प्रत्युत्तर में सेवायोजक के लिखित कथन को अस्वीकार किया व अपने लिखित कथन को दोहराया। इसी तरह से सेवायोजक ने अपने प्रत्युत्तर में श्रमिक के

लिखित कथन को अस्वीकार करते हुए अपने लिखित कथन को दोहराया।

(ड़) श्रम न्यायालय ने श्रमिक पक्ष द्वारा प्रस्तुत डाक घर की स्थिति आख्या को मानते हुए सेवायोजक को नोटिस तामील होना मान लिया गया तथा सेवायोजक पक्ष की अनुपस्थिति के कारण 11.12.2018 को सेवायोजक का अभिलेख दाखिल करने का अवसर समाप्त कर दिया। दिनांक 01.07.2019 को सेवायोजक का श्रमिक साक्षी से जिरह करने का तथा दिनांक 14.10.2019 को सेवायोजक का साक्ष्य का अधिकार भी समाप्त कर दिया गया।

(च) इन परिस्थितयों में आक्षेपित अवार्ड दिनांक 02.12.2019 पारित किया गया जिसके मुख्य अंश निम्न हैंः

"श्रमिक वादी का तर्क सुना गया उन्होने अपने तर्क में कहा कि वादी श्रमिक ने अपने कथन को अपने बयान एवं अभिलेखों से सिद्ध किया है। सेवायोजक ने पर्याप्त अवसर दिये जाने के बाद भी अपना कोई अभिलेखीय साक्ष्य प्रस्तुत नहीं किया है। श्रमिक ने अपने लिखित कथन एवं अभिलेखीय साक्ष्य में कहा है कि वह विपक्षी प्रतिष्ठान में दिनांक 02-05-1989 से चौकीदार कम हेल्पर के पद पर स्थायी रूप से नियोजित हुआ था और प्रतिवादी सेवायोजक ने दिनांक 16.03.1998 को नौकरी से निकाल दिया जिससे सिद्ध है कि उसने एक कलेन्डर वर्ष में 240 दिन से अधिक कार्य किया है। इस प्रकार मौखिक रूप से सेवाये समाप्त करना यू०पी०आई०डी०एक्ट की धारा 6 एन का उल्लंघन है। श्रमिक सेवा समाप्ति की तिथि से बेरोजगार रहा है। अतः उसे पूर्व पूर्ण वेतन व अन्य समस्त हित लाभों सहित सेवा में बहाल कराया जाये।

उक्त तर्क के परिप्रेक्ष्य में पत्रावली का अवलोकन किया गया जिससे स्पष्ट है कि श्रमिक ने अपने बयान एवं अभिलेखों से यह सिद्ध किया है कि वह दिनांक 02.05.1989 से दिनांक 16.03.1998 तक सेवायोजकों के यहां कार्यरत रहा है जो एक कलेन्डर वर्ष में 240 दिन से ज्यादा की अवधि है। वादी श्रमिक की दिनांक 16.03.1998 को प्रतिवादी सेवायोजक द्वारा बिना घरेलू जॉच किये व आरोप पत्र दिये सेवाये समाप्त की गई है जो अवैधानिक है। सेवायोजको को पर्याप्त अवसर दिये जाने के बावजूद भी श्रमिक के कथन के विपरीत ऐसा कोई साक्ष्य नहीं दिया है जिससे कि श्रमिक के कथन पर अविश्वास किया जाये। श्रमिक ने सेवा समाप्ति की तिथि से लगातार बेरोजगार रहा है का कथन किया है जो अन्यथा साक्ष्य के अभाव में सही माना जायेगा कि श्रमिक सेवा समाप्ति की तिथि से बेरोजगार है।

2- सेवायोजक का पक्ष

(क) श्री चन्द्र भान गुप्ता, प्रार्थी (सेवायोजक) के विद्वान अधिवक्ता ने कथन किया कि सेवायोजक को कभी भी नोटिस तामिल नहीं हुआ था और न हीं उस संदर्भ में कोई भी आदेश पत्रावली पर उपस्थित है। अगर दिनांक 08.03.2018 को भेजा गया नोटिस तामील हो गया होता, तो दिनांक 10.08.2018 या आगे किसी भी तिथि पर नोटिस तामील होने का आदेश पत्रावली पर अंकित होता। श्रमिक का पक्ष मात्र, उसके लिखित कथन पर मान लिया गया, जो गलत है। श्रमिक ने अपने पक्ष में कोई भी दस्तावेज, श्रम न्यायालय, के समक्ष उपलब्ध नहीं कराया। अतः श्रम न्यायालय का यह निष्कर्ष कि श्रमिक ने 240 दिन से अधिक कार्य एक कलेन्डर वर्ष में किया था, का आधार काल्पनिक व केवल अनुमान पर आधारित है।

(ख) श्रमिक के कथनानुसार उसको दिनांक 16.03.1998 को कार्य विरत करने का मौखिक आदेश पारित किया गया परन्तु श्रम न्यायालय को औद्योगिक विवाद 31.12.2003 को भेजा गया, अर्थात 5 वर्ष बाद, अतः इतने अधिक विलम्ब के कारण उस पर अभिनिर्णय नहीं लिया जाना चाहिये था।

(ग) वर्तमान में श्रमिक की आयु करीब 64 वर्ष है तथा उसका 1998 के उपरान्त निरन्तर बेरोगजार होने का कोई यथोचित कारण पत्रावली पर उपस्थित नहीं है। सेवा में पुनः नियुक्ति करने का आदेश पूर्ण रूप से गलत व अवैधानिक है तथा, पूर्ण बकाया वेतन देने का आदेश भी आधारहीन होने के कारण अपास्त होने योग्य है।

(घ) अधिवक्ता ने यह भी कथन किया कि पूर्ण बकाया वेतन न दे कर, उचित एक मूश्त प्रतिकर भी दिया जा सकता था। सेवायोजक के विद्वान अधिवक्ता ने न्यायालय का ध्यान उच्चतम न्यायालय के निर्णय पी.वी.के. डिस्टीलरी लिमिटेड बनाम महेन्द्र राम, (2009) 5 एस.सी.सी.705 की ओर आकर्षित करवाया, जिसके अनुसार अगर श्रम न्यायालय इस निष्कर्ष पर पहुंचता है कि सेवा नियोजक ने श्रमिक की सेवायें निरस्त नहीं करी है तो विवाद की निस्तारण की प्रक्रिया वहीं रोक देनी चाहिए। इसके अतिरिक्त पुनः नियुक्ति व पूर्ण बकाया वेतन का आदेश स्वतः नहीं हो सकता है।

3- श्रमिक का पक्ष

(क) श्री शेखर श्रीवास्तव, विद्वान अधिवक्ता ने श्रमिक का पक्ष रखा तथा कथन किया कि डाक विभाग द्वारा जारी किये गये प्रमाण पत्र से पूर्णतः विदित है कि, सेवायोजक को नोटिस तामील हो गया था तथा वो अपनी इच्छानुसार अपना पक्ष न रखने के लिए जिम्मेदार है। श्रम न्यायालय ने श्रमिक के कथन व प्रकरण के तथ्यों को ध्यान में रखते हुए विधिक रूप से अवार्ड पारित किया है, अतः उसमें किसी भी तरह से हस्तक्षेप करने का न तो कोई आधार है न ही कोई आवश्यक्ता है। अधिवक्ता ने अपने कथन को बल देने के लिए निम्न विधिक दृष्टांत को न्यायालय के समक्ष प्रस्तुत किया; महक सिंह बनाम प्रसाईडिंग आफिसर इंडस्ट्रीयल ट्रिव्यूनल, 2005 (5) ए. डब्लू.सी.5147; प्रेम बहादुर दलेला बनाम

उमेशराज बाली 2019(11) ए.डी.जे. 697; उत्तर प्रदेश शासन बनाम लेबर कोर्ट यू.पी. इलाहाबाद 2002 (4) ए. डब्लू.सी.3295; अरविन्द कुमार मिश्रा बनाम उत्तर प्रदेश शासन 2005 (5) ए. डब्लू.सी.4230; वासू इन्फ्रास्ट्रक्चर प्राइवेट लिमिटेड बनाम उत्तर प्रदेश शासन 2019 (10) ए.डी.जे. 305; डिविजन फोरेस्ट आफिसर फोरेस्ट डिपार्टमेंट बनाम डिप्टी लेबर कमिश्नर कानपुर रिजन व अन्य (रिट सी. नम्बर 12954/2018 आदेश दिनांक 10.4.2018) और कथन किया कि नोटिस तामील होने के उपरान्त भी अपना पक्ष न रखने की दशा में श्रमिक के पक्ष को ध्यान में रखते हुए निर्णय देने में कोई विधिक त्रुटि नहीं है। श्रम विवाद, श्रमिक के हितों को ध्यान में रखते हुए निर्धारित करना चाहिए। मौखिक रूप से कार्य से पृथक करना विधि विरूद्ध है। डाक विभाग द्वारा दी गई स्थिति आख्या, नोटिस तामिल होने का मान्य साक्ष्य है। अगर सेवायोजक अपना पक्ष या दस्तावेज प्रस्तुत नहीं करता है तो उसके प्रतिकूल निर्णय लिया जा सकता है।

4- विश्लेषण

(क) उपरोक्त वर्णित दोनों पक्षों के कथन व पत्रावली के सम्यक परिशीलन से यह विदित है कि डाक विभाग की स्थिति आख्या व नोटिस प्राप्त करने वाले का नाम व चल दूरभाष दर्ज होने के साक्ष्य से यह अविवादित हो जाता है, कि नोटिस सेवायोजक को तामील हो गया था। सेवायोजक ने नोटिस प्राप्त करने वाले का हस्ताक्षर विवादित नहीं किया है। सेवायोजक ने नोटिस तामील होने के बाद भी अपना पक्ष श्रम न्यायालय के समक्ष नहीं प्रस्तुत किया, अतः श्रम न्यायालय द्वारा श्रमिक का पक्ष मान लेने में कोई विधिक त्रुटि प्रतीत नहीं होती है। अतः वर्तमान प्रकरण मेंे उ० प्र० औद्योगिक अधिनियम 1947 की धारा 6 एन का उलंघन हुआ है।

(ग) इस संदर्भ में उच्चतम न्यायालय का एक नवीन निर्णय जो रणवीर सिंह बनाम एक्सीक्यूटिव इंजीनियर पी०डब्लू०डी०, 2021 एस०सी०सी० अॉनलाइन एस०सी० 670 के मामले में पारित किया गया है, जो वर्तमान प्रकरण के तथ्यों में पूर्णतः उपयुक्त है, जहाँ उत्तराखंड शासन व अन्य बनाम राजकुमार (2019) 14 एस.सी.सी. 353 का आधार लेते हुए पुनः यह निर्धारित किया गया कि ऐसे प्रकरण में जहां धारा 6 एन का उल्लघंन हो तब भी पुनः नियोक्ति व पूर्ण बकाया वेतन का आदेश स्वतः पारित नहीं हो सकता है तथा उसके स्थान पर केवल एक मुश्त उचित प्रतिकर प्रदान करने का आदेश भी एक न्यायसंगत निदान हो सकता है। इस निर्णय के प्रस्तर 6 के प्रमुख अंश निम्न हैं:

".....जैसा कि अनुचित व्यापार व्यवहार के होने का कोई निष्कर्ष नहीं है। ऐसी परिस्थितियों में हम सोचते है कि इस न्यायालय द्वारा प्रतिपादित सिद्धांत, जिसे राज कुमार (उपरोक्त) के निर्णय में संदर्भित किया गया है, जिसका हमने उल्लेख भी किया है, का पालन करना अधिक उपयुक्त होगा। दूसरे शब्दों में, हमारा निष्कर्ष यह है कि पुनर्नियुक्ति स्वतः नहीं हो सकती है, धारा 25 एफ का उल्लंघन स्थापित हो चुका है, अतः उपयुक्त प्रतिकर उचित निदान रहेगा।"

5- निष्कर्ष

(क) उपरोक्त विशलेषण के संदर्भ में यह ध्यान में रखते हुए कि श्रमिक ने सेवायोजक के साथ केवल 9 वर्ष अस्थाई सहायक के रूप में कार्य किया व 1998 से 2019, जब आवार्ड पारित हुआ व आज तक ऐसा नहीं माना जा सकता कि इन 23 वर्षों तक श्रमिक ने कोई भी कार्य या रोजगार अपने जीवन यापन के लिए नहीं किया हो या इतने ज्यादा समय तक वो पुर्ण रूप से बेरोजगार रहा हो, तथा श्रमिक की आयु वर्तमान में 64 वर्ष का होना व उपरोक्त उल्लेखित विधि का सिद्धांत कि ऐसी परिस्थिति में पुनः नियुक्ति व पूर्ण बकाया वेतन का आदेश स्वतः नहीं हो सकता है, अतः पुनः नियोक्ति व पूर्ण बकाया वेतन के आदेश के स्थान पर श्रमिक को सेवायोजक द्वारा रूपये 3 लाख एक मुश्त प्रतिकर के रूप में प्रदान करने का आदेश देना न्यायोचित व न्यायसंगत रहेगा, जो प्रार्थी (सेवायोजक) विपक्षी (श्रमिक) को इस निर्णय की तिथि से 8 सप्ताह के अन्दर उसके द्वारा सूचित बैंक खाते में अन्तरित करेगा। अतः उक्त आदेश व निर्देश दिया जाता है।

(ख) अतः वर्तमान याचिका उपरोक्त निर्देशों के साथ आंशिक रूप से स्वीकार की जाती है व आक्षेपित अवार्ड दिनांक 15.01.2021, उपरोक्त आदेश व निर्देशों के आधार पर अनुतोष का आदेश संशोधित किया जाता है।

8. Writ C No. 25471 of 2022; Nilesh Singh Vs St. of U.P. & ors. decided on 08.09.2022

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manoj Kumar Gupta, J.)

1. The petitioner is elected Chairperson of Nagar Palika Parishad, Siswan Bazar, District Maharajganj. She has challenged the notification dated 26.04.2022 issued by respondent no.1, the State Government, addressed to District Magistrates of 67 districts, directing them to initiate exercise for delimitation of wards in 151 Municipalities, which have been newly constituted or have undergone extension of municipal limits since the last general election. The list of such Municipalities is annexed alongwith the impugned notification. Nagar Palika Parishad, Siswan Bazar is at serial no.22. The petitioner has also prayed for a writ of mandamus restraining the respondents from initiating process for holding fresh election of Nagar Palika Parishad, Siswan Bazar, Maharajganj expected to be held by the end of the year - 2022 and from interfering in the functioning of the petitioner as Chairperson of Nagar Palika Parishad, Siswan Bazar until the expiry of the term of Nagar Palika on 31.03.2027 unless dissolved earlier.

2. The above reliefs have been claimed in the backdrop of following facts:

2(1). Siswan Bazar, District Maharajganj was initially notified as a Nagar Panchayat under Section 3 of the U.P. Town Areas Act, 1914 vide notification dated 3.02.1953. It comprised of 14 wards and the total population of the Nagar Panchayat as per census of India 2011 was 20963. The last election of Nagar Panchayat, Siswan Bazar was held on 12.12.2017, whereby the Chairperson and 14 Ward members were elected, followed by constitution of the Nagar Panchayat.

2(2). Later on, the State Government decided to create a new Municipal Council (Nagar Palika Parishad) in Siswan Bazar, Maharajganj by adding 22 revenue villages/ 17 Gram Panchayats in the existing Nagar Panchayat area and accordingly, issued a draft notification dated 10.12.2019. It was followed by a final notification dated 31.12.2019 issued under clause (2) of Article 243-Q of the Constitution of India read with Section 3 (2) of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916, thereby including the area mentioned in Schedule I of the notification in the transitional area of Nagar Panchayat Siswan Bazar. Additionally, the transitional area of Nagar Panchayat Siswan Bazar, Maharajganj mentioned in Schedule II of the notification was notified as a smaller urban area (Municipal Council) to be known as Municipal Council Siswan Bazar, District Maharajganj.

2(3). It led to filing of P.I.L. No.1822 of 2020 (Anoop Kumar Pathak and another Vs. State of U.P. and others) for direction (i) to the State respondents to dissolve the erstwhile Nagar Panchayat Siswan Bazar, Maharajganj; (ii) to constitute the Municipal Council and Ward Committees and (iii) to appoint administrator in Municipal Council, Siswan Bazar, District Maharajganj. The said writ petition was disposed of by order dated 8.02.2021 with direction to the District Magistrate, Maharajganj to hold election of newly created Municipal Council, Siswan Bazar, as early as possible, however not later than three months from the date of communication of the order. The operative part of the order is as follows:-

"In the case at hand evidently with the Notification dated 31.12.2019 Municipal Council, Siswan Bazar, District Maharajganj is constituted. It was the bounden duty of the District Magistrate as early as possible make preliminary arrangements for the holding of first elections*. Non holding of election for over one year reflects inaction and non performance of statutory obligation, by the District Magistrate.*

In view whereof the District Magistrate, Maharajganj is directed to hold election of newly created Municipal Council, Siswan Bazar, as early as possible, however not later than three months from the date of communication of this order."

2(4). In pursuance of the above direction, the State Government vide its communication dated 2.06.2021 addressed to District Magistrate, Maharajganj directed him to appoint administrator and to initiate process for constitution of newly created Nagar Palika Parishad, Siswan Bazar by holding the elections. The District Magistrate vide order dated 8.06.2021 issued in purported exercise of power under Section 333 of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 constituted a Committee of five persons to exercise the power and perform the duties and functions of newly created Nagar Palika Parishad until it is established.

2(5). At this stage, Smt. Ragni Devi, the elected Chairperson of Nagar Panchayat Siswan Bazar, challenged the order of State Government dated 2.06.2021 and the consequential order of the District Magistrate dated 8.06.2021 appointing Committee to manage the affairs of the newly created Nagar Palika Parishad by filing Writ-C No.13629 of 2021 (Smt. Ragni Devi Vs. State of U.P. and 3 others). The said writ petition was dismissed by order dated 9.08.2021, upholding both the orders.

2(6). Smt. Ragni Devi aggrieved by the order of this Court dated 8.02.2021 passed in the PIL and the order dated 9.08.2021 passed in her writ petition approached the Supreme Court by filing SLP No.4233 of 2021 and SLP No.13806 of 2021 respectively. Both the SLPs were dismissed by the Supreme Court by common order dated 17.9.2021. The Supreme Court, while upholding the decisions of this Court to hold first election of the newly constituted Municipal Council, again directed the authorities to: "ensure that the elections for establishing the newly constituted Municipal Council Siswan Bazar, is conducted at the earliest and, in any case, completed within two months from today and report compliance in that behalf.

The State must ensure that all logistical support is provided to the State Election Commission to ensure that the elections are conducted by adhering to appropriate Covid-19 protocol, as would be in force at the relevant time.

If there is laxity on the part of the State in ensuring completion of the elections within two months from today, the Chief Secretary of the State of Uttar Pradesh shall be personally responsible in that behalf."

2(7). On 23.9.2021, District Magistrate, Maharajganj sent a communication to the Director, Lucknow in regard to compliance of the order of Supreme Court. While making reference to the letter of State Government dated 21.9.2021 in connection with the exercise for determining the number of wards and delimitation, he was requested to complete the said exercise under intimation to him.

2(8). On 25.9.2021, the State Government issued a notification inviting objections and suggestion to the draft order relating to delimitation as stipulated under Section 11-B (2) of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916. It was followed by a final notification dated 7.12.2021, thereby dividing the Nagar Palika into 25 Wards.

2(9). On 14.02.2022, the State Election Commission, U.P. in consultation with the State Government issued notification notifying the election programme for electing the chairperson and members of Nagar Palika Parishad, Siswan Bazar. In pursuance thereof, election was held on 13.03.2022 and results were declared on 15.03.2022. The petitioner was declared elected as Chairperson of Nagar Palika Parishad, Siswan Bazar and a certificate to the said effect was issued in her favour by the Returning Officer dated 15.03.2022. On 22.03.2022, the State Election Commission notified the names of chairperson and members, who were elected. On 29.03.2022, the petitioner subscribed to oath of office. On 1.04.2022, first meeting of the newly constituted Nagar Palika was held.

2(10). On 26.04.2022, the State Government issued the impugned communication addressed to District Magistrates of 57 districts on the subject relating to delimitation of wards of the newly constituted municipalities (83 Nagar Panchayats, 2 Nagar Palika Parishads and one Nagar Nigam). The said exercise was also directed to be held in 66 municipalities that had undergone change of boundaries/ extension of areas, being 66 in number (36 Nagar Pachayats + 21 Nagar Palika Parishads + 9 Nagar Nigams). This took the tally to 151 municipalities in all. The delimitation in the above municipalities was directed to be held on basis of census of the year 2011. The proposal was to be forwarded to the State Government by 5.5.2022 in the proforma prescribed by Government Orders dated 4.04.2017 and 19.07.2017. Nagar Palika Parishad, Siswan Bazar, Maharajganj is enlisted at serial no.22 in the list annexed with the communication and where the said exercise was also to be held. The petitioner, who was elected on 13.03.2022, apprehending that the impugned communication is a step towards holding fresh election and will have the effect of curtailing her term of five years has preferred the instant petition.

3. The State respondents as well as the State Election Commission U.P. have filed separate counter affidavits. In reply, the petitioner has filed separate rejoinder affidavits.

4. One Roshan Kumar has sought impleadment, alleging that he proposes to contest the election to be held after completion of the impugned exercise relating to delimitation and is therefore interested in opposing the writ petition.

5. We have heard Sri Rakesh Pande, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Man Bahadur Singh for the petitioner, Sri Ambrish Shukla, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for respondents no.1, 3 & 4, Sri Ten Singh for the State Election Commission U.P., Sri Ashok Kumar Tiwari, for respondent no.5 i.e. Nagar Palika Parishad through its Executive Officer and Sri S.F.A. Naqvi, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Ashok Kumar Giri on behalf of the intervenor - Roshan Kumar.

6(a). Sri Rakesh Pande, learned Senior Counsel appearing on behalf of the petitioner submitted that the term of a Municipality under Article 243-U of the Constitution and Section 10-A of the U.P. Municipalities Act is five years from the date appointed for its first meeting. The first meeting of the newly constituted Nagar Palika Parishad was held on 1.04.2022 and, therefore, its five years term would expire on 31.03.2027. The impugned notification directing the District Magistrates to initiate the exercise of delimitation of wards of municipalities which were newly created/limits extended for holding fresh election, may be legal and valid where elections have not been held after the upgradation/extension of boundaries, but not in case of Nagar Palika Parishad Siswan Bazar, which was constituted as a Municipality for the first time after the election dated 13.03.2022. It was not a case of dissolution of an existing Municipality and, therefore, the tenure will be governed by clause (1) of Article 243-U and not by clause (4) which applies in case of premature dissolution on the occurrence of certain contingencies envisaged under Section 30 of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916.

6(b). The election held on 11.3.2021 was the first election of the newly constituted Municipality and its tenure of five years is sacrosanct by virtue of Article 243-U of the Constitution read with Section 10-A of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916.

6(c). In support of the above submission, he placed reliance on the decision of this Court in Ragni Devi Vs. State of U.P. and others as well as the judgement of the Supreme Court in SLP Nos.4233 of 2021 and 13806 of 2021 dated 17.09.2021, wherein this Court and the Supreme Court have held that upon creation of a new municipality i.e. Nagar Palika Parishad Siswan Bazar, the existence of predecessor municipality i.e. Nagar Panchayat, Siswan Bazar had ceased. The administrator appointed to manage the affairs of the new municipality was under mandate to hold election of newly created municipality so that the charge is handed over to it.

6(d). He further submitted that before notifying fresh election of newly constituted Nagar Palika Parishad, the exercise relating to determination of number of wards and their delimitation was duly held and this fulfilled the requirement of Section 11-A and 11-B of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 and Article 243-S of the Constitution.

6(e). He further submitted that the Election Commission harbouring under some misconception issued the election notification mistakenly using the term 'bye-election', but also simultaneously referring to Section 13-G which unequivocally relates to issuance of notifications for general elections. The term of the newly constituted Municipality is protected by constitutional mandate and cannot be shortened by wrong use of some word in the election notification. The election held in the past in which the petitioner was elected as Chairperson of the newly constituted Municipality was for all practical purposes, a general election and not a bye-election and consequently, the provisions of Article 243-U (4) cannot be pressed to curtail the constitutional guarantee.

6(f). It is also urged that there cannot be any estoppel or waiver of the rights conferred by the Constitution. Learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance on the judgment of the Supreme Court in Olga Tellis and others Vs. Bombay Municipal Corporation and others1 and a Division Bench judgment of this Court in Achhey Lal Vs. V.C. Gorakhpur University2.

7(i). Per contra, Sri Ambrish Shukla, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel submitted that the election held on 13.03.2021 was a bye-election and not a general election, as is also mentioned in the election notification issued by the State Election Commission dated 14.02.2022. According to him, the aforesaid notification when it refers to Section 13-G makes a reference to the power of State Election Commission to make provision with respect to issuing of orders generally on all matters relating to conduct of election (clause q). He also submitted that the notification is referable to Section 13-H of the U.P. Municipalities Act 1916 relating to issuance of election notification by State Election Commission in respect of bye-election.

7(ii). The emphasis was on the fact that the election in which the petitioner was elected as Chairperson was a bye-election and not a general election and consequently, clause (iv) of Article 243-U of the Constitution and Section 10-A (3) of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 will come into play and the petitioner as well as other members elected in pursuance of the aforesaid notification shall continue in office only for remainder of the period for which the dissolved Municipality would have continued under clause (1), had it not been so dissolved. He also placed reliance on the order of Supreme Court dated 23.11.2021 passed on the application of State Election Commission U.P. in SLP filed by Ragini Devi whereby the Supreme Court had extended the time prescribed earlier for holding the elections.

7(iii). He further placed reliance on provisions of Section 3-A, Section 3-B (8), Section 10-A and Section 151-A of the Representation of People Act, 1950.

7(iv). He further submitted that the petitioner does not have any cause of action to file the instant petition. According to him, what has been challenged as a notification, is in fact only a communication sent by the State Government to District Magistrates of various districts where the Municipalities have undergone upgradation/expansion of boundaries to undertake the exercise of delimitation of wards. It is not an election notification, therefore, the challenge is premature and based on mere apprehension.

8. Sri Ten Singh, learned counsel for the State Election Commission U.P. as well as Sri S.F.A. Naqvi, learned senior counsel appearing for the intervenor, adopted the arguments of Sri Ambrish Shukla, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel.

9. The questions which fall for our consideration are: -

(i) Whether the writ petition is premature, based on mere apprehension, and is liable to be dismissed in limine?

(ii) What was the effect of the notification dated 31.12.2019, issued by the Governor, in exercise of power under Article 243-Q of the Constitution, read with Section 3 of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916?

(iii) What was the status of the Municipality constituted in pursuance of the election held on 13.3.2022?

(iv) Whether the term of the newly constituted Municipality is governed by clause (1) of Article 243-U or clause (4) of Article 243-U?

(v) What would be the effect of use of word "bye election" in the election notification dated 14.2.2022, issued by State Election Commission, U.P. on the status of the newly constituted Municipality?

(vi) Whether the High Court, in exercise of power under Article 226, can grant any relief to the petitioner?

10. We first proceed to examine the plea relating to writ petition being premature and based on mere apprehension. The impugned notification dated 26.4.2021, issued by the State Government, is addressed to the District Magistrates of 57 districts wherein 151 existing municipalities have either been reconstituted or their territorial limits extended since the last general elections held in the year 2017. It directs them to initiate the exercise of determination and delimitation of wards and supply the details in prescribed format appended to the GOs dated 4.4.2017 and 19.7.2017 by the stipulated date, i.e. 5.5.2022. The said exercise was to be held on basis of the data of 2011 Census.

11. Section 11-A of the Act relates to delimitation of wards and it reads thus: -

11A. Delimitation of wards.- (1) For the purpose of election of members of a municipality every municipal area shall be divided into territorial constituencies to be known as wards in such manner that the population in each ward shall, so far as practicable, be the same throughout the municipal area.

(2) Each ward shall be represented by one member in the municipality.

12. The exercise of delimitation of wards as per the above provision is held for the purpose of holding election of members of a municipality. It is a step-in-aid towards constitution of a municipality which under Section 9 comprises of the elected Chairperson (President); elected members; ex-officio members; nominated members and Chairperson of the Committees established under Section 104 of the Act.

13. In paragraph nos. 35, 36 and 41 of the writ petition, it is specifically asserted by the petitioner that the above exercise of determination and delimitation of wards was intended to be held in the newly created, upgraded and extended Municipalities, along with other urban local bodies, whose terms are expiring by end of the year 2022. It is also asserted that the said exercise was not required to be undertaken in respect of the petitioner's municipality, the election of which was held recently on 13.3.2022, after carrying out the same exercise, i.e. determination of wards and their delimitation. In paragraph 15 and 16 of the counter affidavit filed by the State, it is asserted that the exercise relating to determination of number of wards and delimitation in respect of the petitioner's municipality is being undertaken, as its term is expiring in December, 2022 and consequently, fresh elections are to be held. Same stand has been taken by the State Election Commission, U.P. in the counter affidavit filed by it.

14. It is evidently clear that the impugned exercise for determination of wards and their delimitation in respect of Nagar Palika Parishad, Siswan Bazar, Maharajganj, was undertaken in pursuance of the impugned notification to pave way for holding of fresh elections in December, 2022, when elections of other municipalities is also scheduled to be held. As the specific case of the petitioner is that its term is upto 31.3.2027 and fresh exercise undertaken in pursuance of the impugned notification will have the effect of curtailing the duration of Municipality she is heading, she definitely has an actionable right in presenti to challenge the notification and the consequential exercise, to protect her constitutional and statutory rights. The petitioner cannot be made to wait till the notification for holding the election is published, when the stand of the respondents is clear and unambiguous in relation to the proposed election scheduled to be held in December, 2022. We thus find no force in the contention that the petition is premature, or is based on mere apprehension.

15. We now proceed to examine the issues arising in the case on merits.

16. A bird's-eye view of the relevant provisions of the Constitution, particularly Part IX-A, inserted by the Constitution (Seventy Fourth Amendment) Act, 1992, and cognate enactments which deal with Municipalities, will help in understanding and analysing the issues at hand. Part IX-A came into effect from 1.6.1993. It defines "Municipality" under Article 243-P(e), as an institution of self-government constituted under Article 243-Q.

17. Article 243-Q relates to Constitution of Municipalities and reads as follows: -

243Q. Constitution of Municipalities -

(1) There shall be constituted in every State,--

(a) a Nagar Panchayat (by whatever name called) for a transitional area, that is to say, an area in transition from a rural area to an urban area;

(b) a Municipal Council for a smaller urban area; and

(c) a Municipal Corporation for a larger urban area, in accordance with the provisions of this Part:

Provided that a Municipality under this clause may not be constituted in such urban area or part thereof as the Governor may, having regard to the size of the area and the municipal services being provided or proposed to be provided by an industrial establishment in that area and such other factors as he may deem fit, by public notification, specify to be an industrial township.

(2) In this article, "a transitional area", "a smaller urban area" or "a larger urban area" means such area as the Governor may, having regard to the population of the area, the density of the population therein, the revenue generated for local administration, the percentage of employment in non-agricultural activities, the economic importance or such other factors as he may deem fit, specify by public notification for the purposes of this Part.

18. Article 243-Q envisages three levels of Municipalities to administer (i) a transitional area, that is to say an area in transition from a rural area to an urban area, to be known as a Nagar Panchayat; (ii) a smaller urban area, to be known as a Municipal Council and (iii) a larger urban area, i.e. a Municipal Corporation. Article 243-Q(2) defines these to mean such area as the Governor may, having regard to the population of the area, the density of the population therein, the revenue generated for local administration, the percentage of employment in non-agricultural activities, the economic importance or such other factors as he may deem fit, specify by public notification for the purposes of this Part.

19. In order to carry out the mandate of the Constitution (Seventy Fourth Amendment) Act, 1992, the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 was amended. Section 3 of the Act provides for the Declaration etc. of the transitional areas and smaller urban areas and reads thus: -

3. Declaration etc. of transitional area and smaller urban area -

(1) Any area specified by the Governor in a notification under clause (2) of Article 243-Q of the Constitution with such limits as are specified therein to be a transitional area or a smaller urban area, as the case may be.

(2) The Governor may, by a subsequent notification under clause (2) of Article 243-Q of the Constitution, include or exclude any area in or from a transitional area or a smaller urban area referred to in sub-section (1), as the case may be.

(3) The notifications referred to in sub-sections (1) and (2)] shall be subject to the condition of the notification being issued after the previous publication required by Section 4 and notwithstanding anything in this section, no area which is, or is part of, a cantonment shall be declared to be a transitional area or a smaller urban area or be included therein under this section.

20. Section 3 is similar provision in the U.P. Municipal Corporation Act, 1957 and it reads thus: -

Section 3 - Declaration of larger urban area -

(1) Any area specified by the Governor in a notification under Clause (2) of Article 243-Q of the Constitution with such limits as are specified therein to be larger urban area, shall be known as a City, by such name as he may specify.

(2) Where, by a subsequent notification under Clause (2) of Article 243-Q of the Constitution the Governor includes any area in a city, such area shall thereby become subject to all notifications, rules, regulations, bye-laws, orders and directions issued or made under this or any other enactment and in force in the city at the time immediately preceding the inclusion of such area and all taxes, fees and charges imposed under this Act, shall be and continue to be levied and collected in the aforesaid area.

21. In the case at hand, the State Government by notification dated 31.12.2019, included the areas mentioned in Schedule-I of the Notification in the transitional area of Nagar Panchayat, Siswan Bazar, Maharajganj, and simultaneously upgraded Nagar Panchayat, Siswan Bazar, Maharajganj to the level of a Municipal Council, i.e. a smaller urban area comprising of territorial area mentioned in Schedule-II of the Notification. It is referable to the constitutional power vested in the Governor under Article 243-Q of the Constitution and Section 3 of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1961.

22. The aforesaid exercise was called in question by Ragini Devi, the then Chairperson of Nagar Panchayat by way of a writ petition3 before this Court, on the ground that she was elected on 1.12.2017 and the notification issued by the State Government dated 31.12.2019 had the effect of cutting short her tenure of five years. She also called in question the order passed by the State Government dated 2.6.2021 and the consequential order of the District Magistrate dated 8.6.2021, appointing a Committee to manage the affairs of newly constituted Nagar Palika Parishad. However, the challenge was repelled by this Court by its order dated 9.8.2021, holding that the exercise undertaken in pursuance of notification issued by the State Government was referable to Section 3(1) of the Act, whereunder as noted above, the Governor is vested with the power to issue notification in terms of clause (2) of Article 243-Q of the Constitution, declaring the transitional area of a Nagar Panchayat as a Municipal Council (smaller urban area) with such limits, as are specified therein. As a necessary corollary thereof, it was held that Section 333 of the Act would come into play and the Municipal Council which was newly created, would be managed by the District Magistrate, or other officer, or committee, or authority appointed by him in this behalf, until a Municipality is established, after holding of first elections thereof.

23. Section 333 of the Act is reproduced for ready reference: -

333. Exercise by District Magistrate of Municipality's power pending establishment of Municipality - When a new municipality is created under this Act, the District Magistrate, or other officer, or committee, or authority appointed by him in this behalf, may until a Municipality is established, exercise the powers and perform the duties and functions of the Municipality, and, he or it shall, for the purposes, aforesaid be deemed to be the Municipality :

Provided always that the District Magistrate or such other officer, or committee, or authority shall, as early as possible, make preliminary arrangements for the holding of first elections and generally of expediting the assumption by the Municipality of its duties when constituted.

24. The relevant part from the judgment of this Court dated 9.8.2021 in Writ Petition No. 13629 of 2021 (Smt. Ragini Devi vs. State of U.P.) is reproduced below: -

As regards Section 333-A, the same deals with the consequence of the declaration of smaller urban area with the notification issued under Section 3(1) of the Act, 1916. Section 333 of the Act, 1916 makes provision for the transitional period and confers the power on the District Magistrate, or other officer, or Committee or authority appointed by him in this behalf, to exercise the power and perform the duties & functions of the Municipality, till an elected body takes over.

25. The Supreme Court while dismissing the SLP4 filed by Ragini Devi, endorsed the finding that although the notification dated 31.12.2019 refers to Section 3(2) of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916, but as a matter of fact, thereby the area in question had been upgraded to a Municipal Council and thus, the erstwhile Nagar Panchayat had ceased to exist. The relevant observations made in this behalf by the Supreme Court are as follows: -

The argument though attractive, at the first blush, clearly overlooks the dispensation provided for under Article 243-Q of the Constitution of India. It refers to municipalities or Municipal Council areas of different types such as Nagar Panchayat, Municipal Council and Municipal Corporation, depending on the area and other factors to establish such an entity. Although, the notification refers to Section 3(2) of the Uttar Pradesh Municipalities Act, 1916 (for short, "the 1916 Act") the fact remains that the area in question has been upgraded to Municipal Council area. It is, therefore, not a case of expansion of Nagar Panchayat area as is sought to be projected by the petitioner(s).

Perhaps, keeping that in mind in another case, the High Court vide order dated 09.08.2021 in Writ Petition(C) No. 13629 of 2021 rejected the claim of the petitioner(s) therein on the finding that the Nagar Panchayat of which the petitioner(s)' claim to be elected representative had ceased to be in existence with the creation of Municipal Council (Nagar Palika Parishad) as defined in sub-Section (9-B) of Section 2 of the 1916, Act and with the creation of new municipality by virtue of the stated notification, the provision of Section 333 of the 1916 Act would follow. That view is a possible view.

26. The Supreme Court also deprecated inaction on part of the State in not holding fresh election for the newly created Municipal Council, Siswan Bazar, Maharajganj in the time frame prescribed by this Court in PIL No. 1822 of 2020. The Supreme Court issued fresh direction to the State Election Commission, U.P. to ensure holding of elections for establishing the newly constituted Municipal Council, Siswan Bazar, Maharajganj at the earliest, however not later than two months from the date of the order.

27. There are several precedents on the subject, which take the same view. We proceed to note some of those to have a better understanding of the legal implications of exercise of power under Article 243-Q of the Constitution.

28. In State of Maharashtra and Another vs. The Jalgaon Municipal Council5, Supreme Court considered the provisions of the Constitution (Seventy Fourth Amendment) Act, 1992 and held that the effect of exercise of power under Article 243-Q is that the predecessor Municipality ceases to exist. In consequence it was held that Article 243-U which guarantees a fixed duration of five years to a Municipality, cannot be applied to a case where the area of one description is converted into an area of another description and one description of Municipality is ceased by constituting another Municipality of a better description. In line with the said reasoning, it was also held that the statutory provisions do not contemplate a situation where the erstwhile Municipality would continue to exist, as it would result in anomaly and confusion. The relevant part from the judgment is reproduced below: -

21. Having heard the learned Counsel for the parties at length on this aspect we are of the opinion that the said hiatus is an unavoidable event which must take place in the process of conversion of Municipal Council into a Municipal Corporation. Reliance on Article 243-U by the learned counsel for the respondents in this context is misconceived. The use of expression 'a municipality' in sub-Article (3) of Article 243-U in the context and in the setting in which it is employed suggests and means the duration of the same type of municipality coming to an end and the same type of successor municipality taking over as a consequence of term of the previous municipality coming to an end. Article 243-U cannot be applied to a case where the area of one description is converted into an area of another description and one description of municipality is ceased by constituting another municipality of a better description. Article 243-U(3) cannot be pressed into service to base a submission on that an election to constitute a municipal corporation is required to be completed before the expiry of duration of a municipal council.

The constitution of Municipal Corporation would require notification of larger urban area and a Municipal Corporation to govern it. The area shall have to be divided into wards with the number of corporators specified and reservations made. The Corporation would need to nominate councillors. The territorial limits may need to be altered. The State Election Commission cannot conduct election without specifying numbers and boundaries of wards. New rules, bye-laws etc. shall need to be framed and municipal tax structure may need to be recast. The statutory provisions do not contemplate a situation where the same area may be called a smaller and larger area simultaneously and process of constitution of Municipal Corporation being commenced and completed though the Municipal Council continues to exist. Such an action would result in anomaly and confusion if not chaos.

29. Again, a Division Bench of this Court in Keshav Dev Kushwaha vs. State of U.P. and Others6, relying on observations made by the Supreme Court in State of Maharashtra vs. Deep Narain Chavan7, observed as follows: -

"At the outset, it must be noted that the petition in question is not one which is filed in the public interest. The petition is by an elected member of the Nagar Palika Parishad, Firozabad. Elections to the Nagar Palika Parishad were held on 26 June 2012 and the petitioner claims an indefeasible right to hold office for a period of five years. In fact, that is the basis on which prayer (iii) seeks a mandamus to the respondents not to curtail the term of the Nagar Palika Parishad and to allow the petitioner and other elected members to continue to perform their duties. Such a submission cannot be countenanced. The elected members of the Nagar Palika Parishad had, in fact, resolved on 20 October 2011 to recommend the constitution of a municipal corporation. Be that as it may, there is no merit in the plea of the petitioner that elected members of the erstwhile Nagar Palika Parishad must continue until their term of five years comes to an end. This point is no longer res integra and is governed by a decision of the Supreme Court in State of Maharashtra Vs. Deep Narayan Chavan, (2002) 10 SCC 565 where the Supreme Court, while dealing with the provisions of the Maharashtra Municipal Councils, Nagar Panchayats and Industrial Townships Act, 1965, held as follows:

".. under Section 341 of the Maharashtra Municipal Councils, Nagar Panchayats and Industrial Townships Act, 1965 when the whole of the local area comprising a municipal area ceases to be a municipal area, with effect from the date on which such local area ceases to be a municipal area, the Council constituted for such municipal area shall cease to exist or function and the Councillors of the Council shall vacate office. Article 243-U of the Constitution unequivocally indicates that every Municipality, unless sooner dissolved under any law for the time being in force, shall continue for five years from the date appointed for its first meeting and no longer. The expression "unless sooner dissolved under any law for the time being" would bring within its sweep the provisions of Section 341 of the Maharashtra Municipal Councils, Nagar Panchayats and Industrial Townships Act, 1965 and therefore the moment the Corporation is constituted in accordance with law, the elected Municipal Council would cease to function and so also the Councillors, though elected will have to vacate the office..."

30. Another Division Bench of this Court in Nagar Palika Parishad vs. State of U.P. and Others8, dealt with the issue as follows: -

"16. Apart from what is said above, Article 243U of the Constitution of India suggests and means the duration of the same type of Municipality coming to an end and the same type of successor Municipality taking over as a consequence of term of the previous Municipality coming to and end either prior to the period of 5 years or at the end of 5 years. In other words Article 243U cannot be pressed into service in a case where the area of one description is converted into an area of another description and one description of Municipality is ceased by constituting another Municipality of a better description, that is to say that where the dissolution is fair accompli and the Municipality cannot be revived as it was before, the same cannot be termed a dissolution as envisaged under Article 243U and in such an event the provisions of Article 243U are not at all violated if an Administrator is appointed under Section 8AA."

31. The same view has been taken by this Court in Smt. Mohini Sharma vs. State of U.P.9. The relevant part from the said judgment is as follows: -

"18. A bare perusal of the Section 5 of U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916, would go to show that whereby a notification referred to in sub-section (2) of Section 3 the Governor includes any area in a transitional area or smaller urban area, such area shall thereby become subject to all notifications, rules, regulations, bye-laws, orders, directions, issued or made under this or any other enactment and in force throughout the transitional area or smaller urban area, at the time immediately preceding the inclusion of the area. Thus the affairs of the same will have to be governed under the provisions of U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 and it may be true that Pradhan in question has been elected for a period of five years but once the very identity of the Gram Panchayat in question has been lost on account of inclusion of such area, then the provisions of U.P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1947, would not at all operate and same will have to be governed under the provisions of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916. Any other view would tantamount to diluting the provisions of Section 5 of U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916.

20. Article 243-E deals with duration of Panchayat, Article 243-U deals with duration of Municipalities and both the constitutional provisions share in common the expression "unless sooner dissolved under any law for the time being in force". Once Governor takes a call for constitution of municipality in exercise of authority conferred under the constitution namely Article 243-Q that specifically refers to three type of municipalities i.e. Nagar Panchayat for transitional area, a Municipal Council for a smaller urban area and Municipal Corporation for a larger urban area, the moment declaration is made under Article 243-Q read with Section 3 of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916, by the State Government, then the said municipal body would be a sovereign body having both constitutional and statutory status. As already noted in the earlier part of the judgement, the constitutional as well as statutory provisions pertaining to 'Panchayats' would go to show that object of Part IX of the Constitution was to introduce the panchayat system at grass root level and strengthen the panchayat system by giving uniform constitutional vibrant units of administration in the rural area so that there can be rapid implementation of rural development sector. Once there is complete transformation from rural area to urban area having regard to population of area, the density of population therein, the revenue generated from local administration, the percentage of employment in non-agricultural activities, the economic importance and other factors, made by the State Government, then the said area is denoted in the notification would be out from the purview of Part IX of the Constitution and the provisions of U.P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1947 and the affairs of the said area treating the same to be urban area would be covered by the provisions of Part IX A of Constitution alongwith the provisions of U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916."

32. In Nilesh Singh Vs. State of U.P. and 4 others10, the effect of issuance of notification under Article 243-Q of the Constitution was considered in the context of the provisions of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 and the U.P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1947. The Gram Pradhan of the panchayat area, which was upgraded to a Nagar Panchayat and as a consequence whereof he ceased to be in office, had challenged the notification. This Court in its judgment dated 8.09.2022 considered the constitutional scheme and repelled the plea holding as follows:-

"5. Constitution defines a 'Panchayat' under Article 243(d) as an institution of self-government constituted under Article 243-B, for the rural areas. Article 243-E mandates that every Panchyat, unless sooner dissolved under any law, for the time being in force, shall continue for five years from the date appointed for its first meeting and no longer.

6. Similarly under Section 12 of the U.P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1947, the term of the Gram Panchayat is five years. Our Constitution is a living document. The Parliament while introducing the 74th Amendment, 1992 conferring constitutional status to institutions of self-Government like Panchayats and Municipalities, was alive of the reality that urbanisation is making inroads in the rural areas. The constitutional scheme envisages constitution of a Nagar Panchayat for a transitional area that is to say, an area in transition from a rural area to an urban area; Municipal Council for a smaller urban area; and Municipal Corporation for a larger urban area.

9. Under Section 3-A(2) of the Act, every Nagar Panchayat or Municipal Council constituted under sub-section (1) is a body corporate. Thus, with the issuance of the impugned notification, an entirely new body in the name of Nagar Panchayat - Haisar Bazar has come into existence. It has a separate and distinct identity from its predecessor i.e., the Gram Panchayats whose territories have been merged in constituting the Nagar Panchayat. The provision of Article 243-E and Section 12 of the U.P. Panchayat Raj Act cannot be read in isolation but harmoniously, alongwith the other provisions of the Constitution and the Act. Under Section 333 of the Act, the District Magistrate has been invested with power to perform the functions and duties of the newly constituted Municipality until the holding of first election."

33. Having regard to the legal position enunciated above, we hold that the effect of the Notification dated 31.12.2019 was that Nagar Panchayat, Siswan Bazar, ceased to exist. The territorial limits of the erstwhile Nagar Panchayat, Siswan Bazar, was expanded by including therein 22 revenue villages/17 Gram Panchayats. A new Municipality of better description (Municipal Council), by the name Nagar Palika Parishad, Siswan Bazar, came to be constituted. This resulted in coming into being of a new entity, independent and distinct from erstwhile Nagar Panchayat. It is a body corporate in terms of Section 3-A(2) of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916. Thereafter, followed the exercise for its composition as provided by Article 243-R which reads thus: - 243R. Composition of Municipalities - (1) Save as provided in clause (2), all the seats in a Municipality shall be filled by persons chosen by direct election from the territorial constituencies in the Municipal area and for this purpose each Municipal area shall be divided into territorial constituencies to be known as wards.

(2) The Legislature of a State may, by law, provide--

(a) for the representation in a Municipality of--

(i) persons having special knowledge or experience in Municipal administration;

(ii) the members of the House of the People and the members of the Legislative Assembly of the State representing constituencies which comprise wholly or partly the Municipal area;

(iii) the members of the Council of States and the members of the Legislative Council of the State registered as electors within the Municipal area;

(iv) the Chairpersons of the Committees constituted under clause (5) of article 243S:

Provided that the persons referred to in paragraph (i) shall not have the right to vote in the meetings of the Municipality; (b) the manner of election of the Chairperson of a Municipality.

34. Article 243-R contemplates that all seats in a municipality shall be filled by persons chosen by direct election from the territorial constituencies in the municipal area and for this purpose, each municipal area shall be divided into territorial constituencies to be known as "wards". The legislature of a State may by law, provide for the representation in a municipality of persons having special knowledge or experience in municipal administration; the members of the House of People and the members of the Legislative Assembly of the State representing constituencies which comprise wholly or partly the municipal area, the members of the Council of State and the members of the Legislative Council of the State, registered as electors within the municipal area; the Chairpersons of the Committee constituted under clause (5) of Article 243-S. In order to carry out the constitutional mandate, the U.P.

Municipalities Act, 1916 was amended by U.P. Act No. 12 of 1994 and Section 9 thereof prescribes for the manner of Composition of Municipalities as follows: -

9. Composition of Municipality. - (1) A Municipality shall consist of a President, who shall be its Chairperson, and, -

(a) the elected members, whose number shall, -

(i) in the case of a Nagar Panchayat, be not less than 10, and not more than 24; and

(ii) in the case of a Municipal Council, be not less than 25 and not more than 55, as the State Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette specify;

(b) the ex-officio members, comprising all members of the House of the People and the State Legislative Assembly representing constituencies which comprise wholly or partly the municipal area;

(c) the ex-officio members, comprising all members of the Council of States and the State Legislative Council who are registered as electors within the municipal area;

(d) nominated members, who shall be nominated by the State Government, by notification in the Official Gazette, from amongst persons having special knowledge or experience in municipal administration and whose numbers shall in the case of -

(i) Nagar Panchayat, be not less than two and not more than three;

(ii) Municipal Council, be not less than three and not more than five;

(e) the Chairperson of the committees, if any, established under Section 104, if they are not members under any of the foregoing clauses :

[Provided that the persons referred to in clause (d) shall hold office during the pleasure of the State Government and they shall have the right to vote in the meetings of the Municipalities.]

Provided further that any vacancy in any category of members referred to in clauses (a) to (e) shall be no bar to the constitution or reconstitution of a municipality.

35. It is clear from the Constitutional Scheme and the statutory provisions that first step towards composition of a Municipality is to initiate exercise for holding election of the Chairperson (President) and its members. The direction of the Supreme Court and this Court to the State Election Commission, U.P. to hold elections was intended to achieve the above constitutional mandate. Indisputably, the elections of newly constituted Nagar Palika Parishad, Siswan Bazar, was held on 13.3.2022. The result of the election of twenty five ward members and Chairperson was declared on 15.3.2022. They subscribed to oath of office on 29.3.2022 and the first meeting of the newly constituted municipality was held on 1.4.2022. The above exercise aided in the composition of the Municipality in terms of Article 243-R and Section 9 of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916.

36. We now proceed to examine as to what would be the duration of the Municipality so constituted and composed. Article 243-U prescribes for the term of Municipalities and it reads thus: -

243U. Duration of Municipalities, etc. -

(1) Every Municipality, unless sooner dissolved under any law for the time being in force, shall continue for five years from the date appointed for its first meeting and no longer: Provided that a Municipality shall be given a reasonable opportunity of being heard before its dissolution.

(2) No amendment of any law for the time being in force shall have the effect of causing dissolution of a Municipality at any level, which is functioning immediately before such amendment, till the expiration of its duration specified in clause (1).

(3) An election to constitute a Municipality shall be completed,--

(a) before the expiry of its duration specified in clause (1);

(b) before the expiration of a period of six months from the date of its dissolution:

Provided that where the remainder of the period for which the dissolved Municipality would have continued is less than six months, it shall not be necessary to hold any election under this clause for constituting the Municipality for such period.

(4) A Municipality constituted upon the dissolution of a Municipality before the expiration of its duration shall continue only for the remainder of the period for which the dissolved Municipality would have continued under clause (1) had it not been so dissolved.

37. Likewise, Section 10-A of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 provides as under: -

10A. Term of municipality.- (1) Every municipality shall, unless sooner dissolved under Section 39, continue for five years from the date appointed for its first meeting and no longer.

(2) An election to constitute a municipality shall be completed, -

(a) before the expiry of its term specified in sub-section (1); or

(b) before the expiration of a period of six months from the date of its dissolution :

Provided that where the remainder of the period for which the dissolved municipality would have continued is less than six months, it shall not be necessary to hold any election under this sub-section for constituting the municipality for such period.

(3) A municipality constituted upon the dissolution of a municipality before the expiration of its duration shall continue only for the remainder of the period for which the dissolved municipality would have continued under sub-section (1), had it not been so dissolved.

(4) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in any other provision of this Act, where, due to unavoidable circumstances or in the public interest, it is not practicable to hold an election to constitute a Municipality before the expiry of its term, then until the due constitution of such Municipality, all the powers, functions and duties of the Municipality shall be exercised and performed by the District Magistrate or by a Gazetted Officer not below the rank of a Deputy Collector appointed by the District Magistrate in this behalf, and such District Magistrate or Officer shall be called the Administrator, and such Administrator shall be deemed in law to be the Municipality, the President or the Committee as the occasion may require.

38. Article 243-U(1) is a constitutional guarantee, extended to every municipality to a fixed term of five years from the date appointed for its first meeting, unless sooner dissolved under any law for the time being in force. Section 10-A(1) is pari materia with the above constitutional provision and was inserted in the statute to give effect to the constitutional mandate.

39. The contention of learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel as noted above is that Article 243-U itself draws an exception in relation to the duration of municipalities. The term of five years is subject to a municipality being dissolved under any law, as had happened in the instant case and consequently, the new municipality constituted in its place will continue only for the remainder of the period, i.e. upto December, 2022 in terms of clause (4) of Article 243-U.

40. In support of the said contention, he has placed heavy reliance on the use of word "bye-election" in the notification issued by the State Election Commission dated 14.2.2022. He further placed reliance on the order of the Supreme Court dated 23.11.2021, passed on the applications filed by the State Election Commission, seeking further time from the Supreme Court to hold the elections. It is submitted by him that the Supreme Court while extending the time limit for holding election, had approved the time frame given in para 22 of the additional affidavit filed on behalf of the State Government and wherein at Item No. 15, the election that was to be held, was described as a "bye-election".

41. Per contra, learned counsel for the petitioner, submitted that dissolution envisaged under clause (1) of Article 243-U, is that prescribed by Section 30 of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 on happening of certain contingencies and not as a result of automatic dissolution of municipality, consequent to its upgradation to a higher level, inasmuch as, it results in formation of a new and distinct entity and not the continuation of the earlier municipality. He further submitted that the constitutional protection to the duration of municipality cannot be curtailed by use of any wrong word in the election notification, particularly, when the election held in March 2022 was after undertaking exercise of delimitation and reservation of constituencies.

42. Undoubtedly, Article 243-U guarantees a fixed term of five years to every municipality. The same provision however also provides that the term of a municipality can be curtailed consequent to its dissolution "under any law for the time being in force".

43. The phrase "under any law" has been defined in Concise Law Dictionary as follows: -

Under a law: The words "under a law" signify those cases where the disqualification to stand for election is not to be found in the parliamentary statute itself but is imposed by virtue of power enabling this to be done; in other words, where it is imposed by a law made by a subordinate law making authority.

44. According to the above definition, the phrase "under any law" refers to a law made by a subordinate law making authority and not the Parliament itself. Such law is to be found in the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916. In fact, Section 10-A unequivocally clarifies the legal position in this behalf while referring to Section 30 of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 as the relevant piece of law in respect of premature dissolution of a municipality on happening of certain contingencies. Section 30 is as follows: -

30. Power of State Government to dissolve the municipality.- If at any time the State Government is satisfied that a municipality persistently makes default in the performance of duties imposed upon it by or under this Act or any other law for the time being in force or exceeds or abuses more than once its powers, it may, after having given the municipality a reasonable opportunity to show cause why such order should not be made, by order, published with the reasons therefor in the Official Gazette, dissolve the municipality.

45. Clause (4) of Article 243-U prescribes that a municipality constituted upon the dissolution of a municipality before expiration of its duration, shall continue only for remainder of the period for which the dissolved municipality would have continued under clause (1), had it not been so dissolved.

46. It is noteworthy that under Section 30, the State Government is invested with power to dissolve a Municipality on ground of persistent default on its part in performance of duties imposed upon it by or under the Act, or any other law for the time being in force, or in cases of repeated abuse of its power.

47. As the dissolution under Section 30 is based on specific charges, it has to be preceded by an opportunity of hearing. Article 243-U also refers to a dissolution of municipality which has to be preceded by an opportunity of hearing. The opportunity of hearing envisaged under the above two provisions is not the same as an opportunity provided to file objections to draft notification [Section 4(2)], before the status of a municipality is changed or its territorial limit extended in exercise of power under Article 243-Q and Section 3 of the Act. Moreover, in such cases, the municipality of one description ceases automatically upon constitution of municipality of a higher description and no separate proceeding/order is required for dissolution. This conclusively suggests that the dissolution which is spoken of in clause (1) of Article 243-U of the Constitution, is that provided under the statutory law, i.e. the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916, or other cognate enactments. Clause (4) of Article 243-U prescribes for the same eventuality, i.e. dissolution of municipality under any statutory law in force, like Section 30 in case at hand and not where the municipality had ceased to exist as a result of a municipality of higher description being constituted in its place.

48. The reliance placed by learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel on the order of the Supreme Court dated 23.11.2021 also does not hold any ground. It seems that the order was passed on the impleadment and modification applications, filed by the State Election Commission, U.P. and the State Government, in which the State Government filed an additional affidavit pointing out that before holding the election, various statutory compliances have to be made, like exercise for undertaking reservation of seats under Section 9-A, delimitation of wards and issuance of delimitation order under Section 11-A and 11-B, preparation of electoral roll for every ward and its revision as per Section 12-B and 12-G and in which, considerable time will be consumed. The affidavit also mentions that the last general election of the local bodies in the State was held in the month of November 2017 and the existing term of the local bodies is going to expire in November 2022. Therefore, it was further asserted as follows:-

"22. That in the aforesaid background for completion of various formalities as per provisions contained in the Uttar Pradesh Municipalities Act, 1916, the process for holding Election 2022 of Urban Local Bodies in the State, shall have to be commenced at least six months prior to November 2022 that is during the period of April - May 2022. As such it would be highly appropriate to hold the election of Municipal Council (Nagar Palika Parishad) Siswa Bazar alongwith proposed Municipal Body Election of year 2022.

23. It is needless to mention that in view of the above facts and circumstances of the case at least a minimum period of about 4 months is humbly sought for from this Hon'ble Court in ends of justice for completion of all the procedural formalities/requirements to comply with the provisions as contained in Section 9 to Section 13 of the Uttar Pradesh Municipalities Act, 1916 before conducting a free and fair election as directed by this Hon'ble Court vide its order dated 17.09.2021.

24. That it is most respectfully submitted that the process for delimitation exercise is under progress and for the aforesaid constituency and if the order for delimitation is finally issued then the said period of 4 months will be reduced by 15 days.

26. It is, therefore, most respectfully and humbly prayed that this Hon'ble court may very kindly be pleased to allow the instant Miscellaneous application no. 1720 of 2021, in the interest of justice and equity so that election of Municipal Council (Nagar Palika Parishad) Siswa Bazar may be smoothly conducted within a period of four months and pass any order or further orders as deemed fit and proper in the given facts and circumstances."

49. In paragraph 20 of the said affidavit, by way of illustration, a time schedule for taking various actions for holding the election was disclosed, which is as follows: -

"20. That in this connection it is relevant to mention here that for the purpose of compliance of the aforesaid Statutory Provisions as contained in the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916, the procedure to be followed is a very time consuming process. To illustrate the time Schedule for various actions is shown in column 3 of the following chart: -

S. No.	Action	Requires Time
1.	To issue direction for determination/D-Limitation of various wards constituting the local body.	30 days
2.	To issue direction to the Director of a Local Body/District Magistrates, to submit a proposal for determining the number of wards.
3.	To issue a provisional notification notifying the proposed no. of wards and D-Limitation of wards, for inviting objection to it.
4.	The District Magistrate to get the aforesaid provisional notification published in the local newspaper for inviting objection to it.
5.	The District Magistrate to forward the objections received against the provisional notification alongwith its comments/recommendations.
6.	The State Govt. to scrutinize and finalize the objection received from the District Magistrate.
7.	The State Govt. to issue final notification notifying the number and D-Limitation of wards as finalized
8.	The State Election Commission to prepare final revised Electoral list.	For all the aforesaid work 20 days are requried.
9.	After the issuance of final notification, notifying the number and D-Limitation of wards by the State Govt., the District Magistrate to collect, after conducting the Rapid Survey, Figures regarding population of backward classes and to	10 days forward such figures to the State Govt.

10.	The State Govt. to issue direction to the Director local bodies/District Magistrate for providing the details of "Reserved Wards" and "Reserved Chairman of a local body".	For the work mentioned from Serial No. 10 to 14, a total of 30 days are required.
11.	The State Govt. to notifying a provisional notification notifying details of the "Reserved Wards" and "Reserved Chairman of a Ward" for objections if any to its.
12.	The Director local body/District Magistrate to publish the provisional notification notifying the "Reserved Wards" and then "Reserved Chairman of a local body" for inviting objections to it if any.
13.	The State Govt. to direct D.M. to forward objections received against the provisional notification alongwith its comments/ Recommendations.
14.	The State Govt. after scrutinizing and finalized the objections received through the District Magistrate to notify final notification of "Reserved Wards" and Reserved Chairman of a local body".
15.	Holding of By-Elections by the State Election Commission after issuing Notification.	For the work mentioned from Serial No. 15 to 24, a total of 30 days are required.
16.	The State Election Commission to issue notification for holding Elections.
17.	The District Magistrate/Election Officer to issue Public Notice.
18.	The Returning Officer to issue Public Notice
19.	To purchase and submit Nomination forms.
20.	The Scrutiny of nomination form
21.	Withdrawal of a candidature by a contestant.
22.	Allotment of Symbol
23.	To hold Election
24.	To hold counting

50. The Supreme Court deprecated inaction on part of the State Authorities in conducting the election within time prescribed as per order dated 17.9.2021, but having regard to the prayer of the respondents and various statutory compliances that were to be made, extended the time limit, observing thus: -

"We direct all concerned to ensure that the elections are conducted in conformity with the schedule noted herein above and that the time frame for giving effect to the said schedule commences from today.

No request for further extension on any ground will be countenanced hereafter.

We may note that we are not impressed by the submissions made by the State Election Commission as well as the State Government that to avoid duplication to election process, the subject election may be allowed to be conducted along with elections of other corporations/councils in November, 2022, or for that matter, when the Assembly elections are due in March, 2022. Instead, we direct the State Election Commission and all the duty holders to ensure that the election to the subject Municipal Council/Nagar Palika Parishad is completed as per the time schedule, referred to above, and the period therefor commences from today, as aforesaid."

51. It is apparent from the order of the Supreme Court that it specifically repelled the request made by the State Government and State Election Commission, U.P. to hold election of Nagar Palika Parishad, Siswan Bazar, Maharajganj, along with the election of other Corporations/Councils in November 2022, but rather directed them to hold election as per above time frame. The time schedule given by the State Government in para 22 of its additional affidavit was noted in the order in context of its plea that four month period was required to make the statutory compliances. While doing so, the Supreme Court had not made any adjudication regarding nature of election to be held viz - general election or bye-election, nor any such controversy was ever raised before it. On the other hand, the additional affidavit of the State Government when read as a whole, was intended towards seeking permission to hold general election of the newly constituted Municipal Council, Siswan Bazar, Maharajganj, along with other urban local bodies scheduled in November 2022, or in alternative within four months after completing the formalities as per the time schedule given in para 20 of the affidavit. Consequently, the submission of learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel does not merit acceptance.

52. After the dissolution of Nagar Panchayat and constitution of Municipal Council, Siswan Bazar, Maharajganj, the State Government was required to notify general election for establishing the municipality in terms of Section 333 of the Act. This Court while deciding PIL No. 1822 of 2022, by order dated 8.2.2021, had also issued a direction to District Magistrate to make arrangements for the holding of first elections. It was upheld by the Supreme Court, consequent upon dismissal of SLP filed by Ragini Devi, coupled with fresh direction "to ensure that the elections for establishing the newly constituted Municipal Council, Siswan Bazar, Maharajganj, is conducted at the earliest". The State Government was thus required to notify general elections for constitution of Nagar Palika Parishad in the newly constituted Municipal Council. The said exercise was to be done by the State under Section 13-A, in consultation with the State Election Commission. As a new municipality was being constituted for the first time, it ought to have been given its full term of five years. However, the State Election Commission under some misconception, notified bye-election, while referring to its power under Section 43-C and Section 13-G of the Act. This would mean that the term of the newly elected municipality would be only for the remainder of the term of the erstwhile municipality. It was contrary to the mandate of Article 243-U(1). The election notification has to be read and interpreted in line with the constitutional ethos, or else, it would result in complete annihilation of the safeguards provided under the Constitution.

53. Section 13-H on which reliance has been placed by learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel also has no application to the facts of the instant case. It empowers the State Election Commission to fill up seat of a member when it falls vacant, or is declared vacant, or his election is declared void. In such an eventuality, the bye-election of the ward concerned is held, as would be evident from plain reading of sub-section (1) of Section 13-H, which is reproduced below:-

"13-H. Bye-elections--(1) Subject to the provisions of sub-section (2) of Section 13-I, when the seat of a member, elected to a Municipality becomes vacant or is declared vacant or his election is declared void, the State Election Commission shall in consultation with the State Government by a notification in the Official Gazette, call upon the ward concerned to elect a person for the purpose of filling the vacancy caused before such date as may be specified in the notification and the provisions of this Act and of the Rules and Orders made thereunder, shall apply, as far as may be, in relation to the election of member to fill such vacancy."

54. Likewise, the submissions made by learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel placing reliance on certain provisions of the Representation of People Act, 1951 also has no relevance to the issue involved, therefore, there is no need of a detailed discussion of the said provisions.

55. It is noteworthy that both general election and bye-election is held on basis of adult suffrage. The basic difference between a general election and a bye-election lies in the procedure followed in holding such election. A general election is generally preceded by reservation of seats (Article 243 -T of the Constitution and Section 9-A); delimitation of wards (Section 11-A and 11-B); preparation and revision of electoral rolls (Section 12-B and 12-G), whereas the aforesaid exercise may or may not be done before holding a bye-election.

56. In the case at hand, all the above exercises were duly undertaken. This is evident from the illustrative chart supplied by the State Government through its additional affidavit filed before the Supreme Court in the matter of *Ragini Devi*11. It reveals that the State Government took 30 days time for completing the exercise of delimitation of wards, 20 days time for finalizing the electoral list, 30 days time for completing the exercise relating to reservation of seats. How reservation was applied to the seat of Chairperson and Members is available on the official website "http://sec.up.nic.in' of the State Election Commission, U.P. and being in public domain, we take judicial notice of the same.

57. Fundamentally, we find that all steps, which are required to be taken under law, had been followed while holding the election in question. In the ultimate analysis, we find no qualitative difference in the election that had been held except the use of terminology "bye-election' in the election notification. Otherwise, the election satisfied all the requirements of law.

58. Once we find that the election held on 13.3.2022 was after making all statutory compliances as were required under law for holding a general election, we have no hesitation in declaring that the duration of the Municipality i.e. Nagar Palika Parishad, Siswan Bazar, Maharajganj elected on 13.3.2022 would be five years from the date of its first meeting in terms of Article 243-U read with Section 10-A of the Act of the U.P. Municipalities Act. The present Municipality is entitled to run its full duration of five years from the date of its first meeting. The stand of the State respondents that its term would expire in November, 2022 and therefore, exercise for holding general election of the Municipality is being taken to constitute a new Municipality in its place, cannot be countenanced, being in teeth of the constitutional mandate.

59. It would not have been possible for us to give the above relief, had the election been conducted without the exercise of delimitation, preparation of electoral roll and application of the reservation roaster.

60. In consequence, we allow the writ petition and quash the impugned notification/communication dated 26.4.2022 in so far as it relates to Nagar Palika Parishad, Siswan Bazar, Maharajganj enlisted at serial no.22 in the list annexed with the notification and restrain the respondents from holding fresh elections of Nagar Palika Parishad, Siswan Bazar, Maharajganj until it completes its full duration of five years from the date of its first meeting unless dissolved earlier in accordance with law.

61. No order as to costs.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajit Kumar, J.)

1. Heard Sri K.K. Tiwari and Sri Vimlendra Kumar Upadhyay, learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri J.N. Yadav and Sri B.L. Yadav, learned counsel for the lease holder- private respondent No. 8, Sri Bhupendra Kumar Tripathi, learned counsel for the Gaon Sabha and Sri Abhishek Shukla, learned Standing Counsel for the State respondents.

2. The petitioner before this Court has been a complainant in respect of grant of residential leases to various villagers way back in the year 1973.

3. The petitioner vide paragraph 8 to the writ petition has taken specific plea that petitioner's father was one of the eligible persons for the purposes of allotment of the residential lease upon the land which was reserved for persons belonging to the scheduled caste, however, there are certain backward class persons who have been wholly illegally granted lease. In paragraph 8 to the writ petition it has been averred that the petitioner being harijan is entitled to have lease of the land in question. It is argued that grant of residential lease belonging to other backward caste (OBC) was an act of fraud and, therefore, the complaint even if made after lapse of 46 years, it was sufficient enough for exercise of suo motu power under Section 198(4) of the erstwhile U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act, 1950 or the provisions contained under Section 66 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006.

4. During the course of the argument, learned counsel for the petitioner admitted that father of the petitioner got a small house constructed upon such land and the grievance is that people belonging to the OBC category are interfering with the possession of the petitioner who is now living in that house.

5. Per contra, it is argued by learned counsel appearing for the contesting private respondents, learned counsel appearing for the Gaon Sabha and learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel that no proceedings could be instituted after lapse of 46 years in respect of the leases granted way back in the year 1973 as the allottees have come to be settled upon the land by raising constructions of their respective houses inasmuch as petitioner was not even born in the year 1973 what to say about his being major to set up any claim of eligibility. It is also argued that nowhere it has come in the pleadings nor, in the complaint that father of the petitioner had ever put up his claim for grant of lease or made any complaint against alleged illegal allotment of residential lease. It is also argued that other complainant Rajendra Babu has never approached the Court.

6. Having heard learned counsel for the respective parties and their arguments raised across the bar and having perused the complaint made by the petitioner as well as the pleadings raised in the writ petition, I find that the sole ground taken is that the land could not have been allotted to certain persons who did belong to other backward caste. The petitioner who has approached this Court was admittedly born after the year 1973 when the allotment took place and, therefore, the respondents are justified in submitting that the petitioner could not have raised any objection to the allotment proceedings.

7. As far as the father of the petitioner is concerned, the respondents are justified in their argument that nowhere it has come that father of the petitioner ever filed complaint or pursued any matter with the authority. I also find that in the entire pleadings raised before this Court and in the complaint made before the authority concerned, no plea has been taken that father of the petitioner ever set up any claim for allotment, rather I find that during the course of argument the petitioner's counsel admitted that father of the petitioner had raised certain constructions over the abadi land which was reserved for the persons belonging to the scheduled caste.

8. The question of consideration of prayer of petitioner for holding the leases to be illegal after a lapse of nearly 46 years seems to bring about a lost situation alive as if raised at the time of allotment to reopen an issue whereas much water has already flown under the bridge ever since the initial allotment take place made in the year 1973. The parties must have settled themselves upon the land and except for five OBC persons the allotment is not being questioned in respect of other persons who belonged to scheduled caste. The exercise of suo motu power in matters of allotment even if there are certain irregularities should not be opened after a long long delay upon a complaint and this aspect has come to be examined by the Court in a number of cases in the past.

9. This Court and the Supreme Court in various of their decisions have held that even for the purposes of exercise of suo motu power upon a complaint being made in that behalf, the old and settled issues cannot be permitted to be reopened, more especially when complainant could not have set up any claim at the time of allotment.

10. In the case of Pyare Lal and others v. Deputy Director of Consolidation, Mainpuri Camp at Etah and others; 200598 RD 106, the Court vide paragraph 10 has held thus:

"10. In the present case, the petitioners Nos. 1 and 2 are challenging the allotment made by Gaon Sabha in favour of respondent nos. 5 and 6. However, they can only be covered under the definition of aggrieved person if they are able to demonstrate that the decision of Gaon Sabha to allot land in favour of respondent nos. 5 and 6 wrongfully deprived them of their right of allotment of the said land or they had any title in the said land. Section 198 of the Act prescribes the order of preference to be observed while making allotment of land. Unless, petitioners nos. 1 and 2 demonstrate that they were applicants for allotment and higher in order of preference than respondent nos. 5 and 6 and had better claim for allotment than respondents nos. 5 and 6 and have been wrongfully and illegally deprived of their such rights, they cannot be said to be aggrieved persons. There is not even a whisper in the pleadings that the petitioners were also applicants for allotment of the land and were higher in preference than respondents nos. 5 and 6. In the absence of any such pleadings petitioner nos. 1 and 2 cannot be said to be aggrieved persons so as to maintain the proceedings for cancellation of the allotment made in favour of respondent nos. 5 and 6 and as such the writ petition filed by them is not maintainable."

11. In the case of Ramker Chauhan v. Commissioner, Azamgarh and others; 2012 (8) ADJ 713, the Court vide paragraph 4 has held thus:

"4. The power to initiate proceedings for cancellation of the land is provided under Section 198(4) of the Act. As per this Section, the Collector on his own motion or on an application of any person aggrieved by an allotment of land, may cancel the said allotment if he is satisfied that the same is irregular. Sub section (5) of Section 198 provides that no order for cancellation of an allotment or lease shall be made under sub-section (4), unless a notice to show cause is served on the person in whose favour the allotment or lease was made or on his legal representatives. Clause (b) of Section 198 (6) provides that every notice to show cause mentioned in sub-section (5) may be issued in the case of an allotment of land made on or after November 10, 1980, before the expiry of a period of five years from the date of such allotment or lease or up to November 10, 1987, which ever be later.

Thus, it nowhere emerges from sub section (6) of Section 198 that any exception is provided in respect of allotments which have been made in violation of the statute. The very nature of the power exercised by the Collector under Section 198(4) is to seek cancellation of those allotment which have either been obtained irregularly or illegally. No proceeding can be initiated beyond the period of limitation as provided under the statute irrespective of the fact whether the said allotment is irregular or illegal."

12. In the case of Jitendra Kumar @ Gopal v. State of U.P. and others; 2018 0 Supreme (All) 822, the Court vide paragraph 7 has held thus:

"7. Having heard the learned counsel for the parties, I am of the view that the impugned orders cannot be sustained. First of all, the notice was barred by limitation. Secondly, the petitioner by an order of the State had been declared a bhumidhar with transferable rights and the cancellation of the patta was of no consequence and thirdly the ground taken for the cancellation of the patta was also not in existence. If the period of limitation as is prescribed under the Act of 1950 expires then no notice can be issued even if there are irregularities in the patta. Further even if a suo motu notice is to be issued by the Collector then also the question of limitation would arise and notices have to be issued well within the time prescribed by the 1950 Act."

13. In the case of Yadram and others v. State of U.P. and others; 2019 0 Supreme (All) 2712, the Court vide paragraph held thus:

"5. Having heard learned counsel for the petitioners, learned Standing Counsel and the learned counsel for the Gaon Sabha, I am of the view that an application for cancellation of patta could be filed only within three years of the grant of the same as has been held by this Court in Writ-C No.22369 of 2009 (Saroj Devi Vs. State of U.P. & Ors.) decided on 19.4.2019. Further, I hold that even if the application was filed, as has been alleged to have been filed, on 18.12.1992, the same could not be acted upon after notices were issued in the year 2006 as has been held by this Court in Suresh Giri & Ors. Vs. Board of Revenue, Allahabad & Ors.2. Limitation is a question of jurisdiction and it can be raised at any point of time as has been held by the Supreme Court in Foreshore Cooperative Housing Society Limited Vs. Praveen D. Desai (Dead) through Legal Representatives and others 2015 (128) rd 227 (SC)."

(emphasis added)

14. Again in recent judgment of Chhidda and others v. State of U.P. and others; 2019 0 Supreme (All) 1085, the Court considered various aspects of the matter in relation to the power of Collector under Section 198(4) of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act, 1950 and the limitations prescribed under Section 198(6) of U.P.Z.A. &L.R. Act, 1950, the Court vide paragraph 15 has held thus:

"15. The said argument does not merits acceptance for the sole reason that the land in question has to be set apart for public purposes under the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act. In the present case there is specific argument and document on record to establish that the consolidation of holdings proceedings pertaining to the land in question were never finalized and were dropped mid away and thus, it cannot be held that any bar as provided under Section 132 of the Act was triggered relating to the land in question. I am also not impressed with the arguments that in the cases which are covered by Section 132 of the Act, no limitation would apply. In this regard, it is relevant to mention that the Hon'ble Supreme Court has categorically held that where no limitation is prescribed action should be taken within a reasonable time, in the present case the proceedings were initiated after about 16 years which can never be termed as a reasonable period. The relevant observation of the Supreme Court in the case of Joint Collector Ranga Reddy District and another Vs. D. Narsing Rao and others, 2015 3 SCC 695 and held as under:

"25. The legal position is fairly well-settled by a long line of decisions of this Court which have laid down that even when there is no period of limitation prescribed for the exercise of any power, revisional or otherwise, such power must be exercised within a reasonable period. This is so even in cases where allegations of fraud have necessitated the exercise of any corrective power. We may briefly refer to some of the decisions only to bring home the point that the absence of a stipulated period of limitation makes little or no difference in so far as the exercise of the power is concerned which ought to be permissible only when the power is invoked within a reasonable period.

31. To sum up, delayed exercise of revisional jurisdiction is frowned upon because if actions or transactions were to remain forever open to challenge, it will mean avoidable and endless uncertainty in human affairs, which is not the policy of law. Because, even when there is no period of limitation prescribed for exercise of such powers, the intervening delay, may have led to creation of third party rights, that cannot be trampled by a belated exercise of a discretionary power especially when no cogent explanation for the delay is in sight. Rule of law it is said must run closely with the rule of life. Even in cases where the orders sought to be revised are fraudulent, the exercise of power must be within a reasonable period of the discovery of fraud. Simply describing an act or transaction to be fraudulent will not extend the time for its correction to infinity; for otherwise the exercise of revisional power would itself be tantamount to a fraud upon the statute that vests such power in an authority.

32. In the case at hand, while the entry sought to be corrected is described as fraudulent, there is nothing in the notice impugned before the High Court as to when was the alleged fraud discovered by the State. A specific statement in that regard was essential for it was a jurisdictional fact, which ought to be clearly asserted in the notice issued to the respondents. The attempt of the appellant-State to demonstrate that the notice was issued within a reasonable period of the discovery of the alleged fraud is, therefore, futile. At any rate, when the Government allowed the land in question for housing sites to be given to Government employees in the year 1991, it must be presumed to have known about the record and the revenue entries concerning the parcel of land made in the ordinary course of official business. In as much as, the notice was issued as late as on 31st December, 2004, it was delayed by nearly 13 years. No explanation has been offered even for this delay assuming that the same ought to be counted only from the year 1991. Judged from any angle the notice seeking to reverse the entries made half a century ago, was clearly beyond reasonable time and was rightly quashed."

15. Thus principle has been discussed that the law of limitation has been provided in the Statute also gives accrual to the rights of other side. Metaphorically, it is true that a deep-rooted tree should ordinarily not be uprooted because the roots are so embedded inside the earth that it may have a very devastating impact on the nature's ecosystem whereas the new plants can be replanted anywhere. Similarly here also, if today the controversy regarding allotment which is already settled is reopened after lapse of more than 4 decades it will cause more damage to public interest than to serve it. So even on this count also, this Court will be reluctant in reopening an issue of allotment of the year 1973.

16. Besides above, the petitioner being a complainant must have a right on the date of allotment in question. In the year 1973, the complainant was not born and, therefore, he could not have maintained any right to get allotment of land as residential lease. Canvassing for right of father, who himself was not vigilant as he never set up any claim of his own, cannot be permitted and no such complaint at the instance of son be entertained after a lapse of four decades.

17. In such above view of the matter, therefore, I decline to interfere in the matter.

18. It is, however, open for the petitioner to apply for residential lease if Gaon Sabha proposes to do in future. Insofar as the petitioner's right to continue in a house constructed upon such land without there being any interference of third party is continued the petitioner always enjoys liberty to apply for a common law remedy.

19. Writ petition lacks merit and is, accordingly, dismissed.

A. Civil Law - Arms Act, 1959 – Section 17(3) – Cancellation of arm licence – Pendency of criminal cases and enmity with other persons, how far permissible as the ground – No finding was recorded by DM that it was necessary for the security of the public peace or for public safety to revoke the licence – Effect – Duty of the cancelling authority, how can be discharged – Held, the mere existence of enmity between a licensee & anr. person would not establish the 'necessary' connection with security of the public peace or public safety – There should be some evidence of the provocative utterances of the licensee or of his suspicious movements or of his criminal designs and conspiracy in reinforcement of the evidence of enmity – The cancellation of a licence destroys a valuable privilege of a free citizen of a free country – The District Magistrate and the Commissioner ought to fairly consider the facts and circumstances of each case and should also bear in mind the provisions of Section 17 – The law does not give them a free hand. (Para 12 and 13)

5. Ram Singh Vs St. of U.P. & ors. decided on 28.03.2019

(Delivered by Hon'ble Prakash Padia, J.)

1. Heard Shri Ajay Kumar, Advocate, holding brief of Shri P. S. Yadav, learned counsel for the petitioner, Shri Vijay Shankar along-with Shri A. P. Tripathi, learned Standing Counsel for the respondent-State.

2. By means of present petition, petitioner is seeking for quashing of the order dated 05.04.2021 passed by the respondent no.2-District Magistrate, Fatehpur in Case No.00743 of 2021 under Section 17(3) of the Arms Act (State Vs. Suresh Singh Yadav) and order dated 14.07.2021 passed in Appeal No.00425/2021 under Section 18 of the Arms Act by the respondent no.3 namely Commissioner, Prayagraj Division, Prayagraj, P.S. Hathgaon, District Fatehpur.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that only ground for cancellation of armed license no.2579/DM (F)/Police Station Hathgaon, District Fatehpur NP Bore Rifle No.AB02-8281 is that three criminal cases has been registered against the petitioner namely Case Crime No.236 of 2017, under Section 3/7 Essential Commodity Act, 1955 and Case Crime No.237 of 2017, under Section 3/25 Arms Act and N.C.R.No.21 of 2018, under Section 323, 504 IPC. He further submits that there is no material on record to show that armed license granted to the petitioner has been misused or there is any danger to public safety except the allegations that criminal cases are pending against him. It is further argued that license can only be cancelled only to reasons assigned to Section (3) of Section 17 of the Arms Act, 1959.

4. In support of his submissions, learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance on the judgments passed by this Court in the cases of Ram Murti Madhukar vs. District Magistrate, Sitapur [1998 (16) LCD-905], Ram Karpal Singh vs. Commissioner, Devi Patan Mandal, Gonda and Ors. [2006 (24) LCD 114] and Ram Prasad vs. Commissioner and Ors. decided on 07.02.2020 in Writ-C No. 56378 of 2006, wherein it has been held that mere pendency of criminal case or apprehension of misuse of arms are not sufficient grounds for passing the order of suspension or revocation of licence under Section 17 of the Act.

5. Per contra learned Standing Counsel submits that since the petitioner is having three criminal cases registered against him, public peace and safety are in danger, therefore, the order has rightly been passed cancelling the fire arms license of the petitioner.

6. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

7. In the case of Ram Murti Madhukar (supra), this Court has held in paragraph no. 8 as under :-

"(8) It is also well settled in law that mere pendency of criminal case or apprehension of abuse of Arms Act, are not sufficient ground for passing of the order of suspension or revocation of licence under Section 17 of the Act. A reference in this regard may be made to the decisions of this Court in Ganesh Chandra Bhatt v. D. M. Almora, AIR 1993 All 291"

8. In the case of Ram Karpal Singh (supra), this Court has held as following in paragraph nos. 6 and 7, which are being reproduced hereunder:-

"6, Learned counsel for the petitioner had relied upon the two judgments of this Court reported in 2002 ACC; Habib v. State of U.P.

7. Para 3 of the said judgment is reproduced as under:

"Para 3: The question as to whether mere involvement in a criminal case or pendency of a criminal case can be a ground for revocation of the license under Arrns Act, has been deal with by a Division Bench in this Court reported in Sheo Prasad Misra v. The District Magistrate, Basti and others, wherein the Division Bench relying upon the earlier decision reported in Mai Uddin v. Commissioner, Allahabad, found that mere involvement in criminal case cannot be in any way affect the public security or public interest and the order canceling or revoking the .licence of fire arm has been set aside. The present impugned order also suffers from the same infirmity as was pointed out by the Division Bench in the above mentioned cases. I am in full agreement with the view taken by the Division Bench that these orders cannot be sustained and deserve to be quashed and are hereby quashed."

9. This Court in the case of Ram Prasad (supra) has held as under. Relevant paragraphs of the said judgments i.e. 16,19,22,23,24,25,28,32 and 36 are being quoted hereunder:-

"16. The matter which requires consideration is, whether on the ground of pendency of the criminal case the petitioner's fire arm licence could be cancelled and his appeal could be dismissed, notwithstanding his acquittal on 17.1.2003. It also requires consideration if the ground in the impugned orders that if the petitioner's fire arm licence remain with the petitioner, it would not be in the public interest and public security, are justified for cancellation and based on substantial material."

19. In Masiuddin Vs. Commissioner, Allahabad Division, Allahabad and another reported in 1972 A.L.J. 573 this Court held in paragraph Nos. 4 and 7 as under:

"4. After a license is granted, the right to hold the license and possess a gun is a valuable individual right in a free country. The security of public peace and public safety is a valuable social interest. Section 17 shows that Parliament had decided that neither of the two valuable interests should unduly impinge on the other Section 17 seeks to establish a fair equilibrium between the two contending interests. It says: Hear the licensee first; and then cancel the license "if necessary for the security of the public peace or for public safety". True, there is no express provision for hearing. But the nature of the right affected, the language of Sec. 17, the grounds for cancellation, the requirement of a reasoned order and the right of appeal plainly implicate a fair hearing procedure. Jai Narain Rai v. District Magistrate, Azamgarh. While cancelling a licence, the District Magistrate acts as a quasi-judicial authority.

7. A license may be cancelled, inter alia on the ground that it is "necessary for the security of the public peace or for public safety" to do so. The District Magistrate has not recorded a finding that it was necessary for the security of the public peace or for public safety to revoke the license. The mere existence of enmity between a licensee and another person would not establish the "necessary' connection with security of public peace or public safety. There should be something more than mere enmity. There should be some evidence of the provocative utterances of the licensee or of his suspicious movements or of his criminal designs and conspiracy in reinforcement of the evidence of enmity. It is not possible to give an exhaustive list of facts and circumstances from which an inference of threat to public security or public peace may be deduced. The District Magistrate will have to take a decision on the facts of each case. But in the instant case there is nothing in his order to indicate that it was necessary for the security of the public peace or for public safety to cancel the license of the petitioner. Mere enmity is not sufficient."

22. In Chhanga Prasad Sahu Vs. State of U.P. and others reported in 1984 AWC 145 (FB), after noticing the provisions of Section 17 (3) of the Arms Act the Full Bench in paragraph 5 held as follows:

"A perusal of abovementioned provisions indicates that the licensing authority has been given the power to suspend or revoe an arms licence only if any of the conditions mentioned in sub-clauses (a) to (e) of sub-section (3) of Section 17 of Act exists." sub section (5) of Section 17 makes it obligatory upon the licensing authority to, while passing the order revoking/suspending an arms licence, record in writing the reasons therefore and to, on demand, furnish a brief statement thereof to the holder of the license unless it considers that it will not be in the public interest to do so."

In paragraph-9 it has been emphasised as under:-

"it is true that in order to revoke/suspend an arms licence, the licensing authority has necessarily to come to the conclusion that the facts justifying revocation/suspension of licence mentioned in grounds (a) to (e) of section 17 exist"

23. In Ilam Singh v. Commissioner, Meerut Division and others [1987 ALL. L.J. 416] this Court held that under Section 17(3) (b) the licencing authority may suspend or revoke a licence if it becomes necessary for the security of public peace or public safety. In this case no report was lodged against the licensee indicating that he had used the gun in the incident which led to the breach of public peace or public safety. It was held that there must be some positive incident in which the petitioner participated and used his gun which led to breach of public peace or public safety and in the absence of the use of the gun by the licencee against the security of public peace or public safety the licence of the gun could not be suspended or revoked. The relevant paragraphs 4 and 5 of the judgment in Ilam Singh (supra) are being reproduced as under:

"4. Having heard the learned counsel for the petitioner I am of the view that the submissions raised by the learned counsel for the petitioner cannot be said to be without substance. Section 17(3) (b) of the Arms Act enacts that licensing authority may by order in writing suspend a licence or revoke the same if it becomes necessary for the security of public peace or the public safety. When once a person has been granted a licence and he acquires a gun, it becomes one of his properties. In the present case no incident of breach of security of the public peace or public sfety at the behest of the petitioner has been pointed out. Even no report was lodged against the petitioner indicating that he used his gun in the incident which led to the breach of public peace or public safety. Even though some reports might have been lodged but that could not be said to be a sufficient reason to cancel the licence."

5. There must be some positive incident in which the petitioner participated and used his gun which led to the breach of the public peace or public safety. In the absence of the use of the gun by the petitioner against the security of public peace or public safety the licence of the gun of the petitioner was not liable either to be suspended or revoked. The licensing authority as well as the Commissioner committed errors on the face of the record in cancelling the licence of the gun held by the petitioner in utter disregard of the provisions of Section 17 (3) (b) of the Arms Act. In view of these facts the impugned orders cannot be sustained and deserves to be quashed."

24. In Habib v. State of U.P. and others [2002 (44) ACC 783] this Court held that mere involvement in a criminal case cannot in any way affect the public security or public interest and the order cancelling or revoking licence of fire arm was not justified. Paragraph 3 of this judgment reads as under:

"3. The question as to whether mere involvement in a criminal case or pendency of a criminal case can be a ground for revocation of the licence under Arms Act, has been dealt with by a Division Bench of this court reported in Sheo Prasad Misra Vs. The District Magistrate, Basti and others, wherein the Division Bench relying upon the earlier decision reported in Masi Uddin v. Commissioner, Allahabad, found that mere involvement in criminal case cannot in any way affect the public security or public interest and the order cancelling or revoking the licence of fire arm has been set aside."

25. In Satish Singh v. District Magistrate, Sultanpur 2009 (4) ADJ 33 (LB), this Court elaborately explained what is detrimental to the security of the public peace or public safety and held that mere involvement in criminal case cannot in any way affect the public security or public interest. Paragraphs 6 and 7 of Satish Singh case (supra) are being reproduced as under:

"6. A plain reading of section 17 indicates that the arms licence can be cancelled or suspended on the ground that the licensing authority deems it necessary for security of the public peace or the public safety. In the present case, while passing the impugned order, neither the District Magistrate nor the appellate authority has recorded the finding as to how and under what circumstance, the possession of arms licence by the petitioner, is detrimental to the public peace or the public security and safety. Merely because criminal case is pending more so, does not seem to attract the provisions of section 17 of the Arms Act. To attract the provisions of section 17 of the Arms Act with regard to public peace, security and safety it shall always be incumbent on the authorities to record a finding that how, under what circumstances and what manner, the possession of arms licence shall be detrimental to public peace, safety and security. In absence of such finding merely on the ground that a criminal case is pending without any mitigating circumstances with regard to endanger of public peace, safety and security, the provisions contained under Section 17 of the Arms Act, shall not satisfy.

7. Needless to say that right to life and liberty are guaranteed under Article 21 of the Constitution of India and the arms licences are granted for personal safety and security after due inquiry by the authorities in accordance with the provisions contained in Arms Act, 1959. The provisions of section 17 of the Arms Act with regard to suspension or cancellation of arms licence cannot be invoked lightly in an arbitrary manner. The provisions contained under Section 17 of the Arms Act should be construed strictly and not liberally. The conditions provided therein, should be satisfied by the authorities before proceeding ahead to cancel or suspend an arms licence. We may take notice of the fact that any reason whatsoever, the crime rate is raising day by day. The Government is not in a position to provide security to each and every person individually. Right to possess arms is statutory right but right to life and liberty is fundamental guaranteed by Article 21 of the Constitution of India. Corollary to it, it is citizen's right to possess firearms for their personal safety to save their family from miscreants. It is often said that ordinarily in a civilised society, only civilised persons require arms licence for their safety and security and not the criminals. Of course, in case the government feels that arms licence are abused for oblique motive or criminal activities, then appropriate measures may be adopted to check such mal-practice. But arms licence should not be suspended in a routine manner mechanically, without application of mind and keeping in view the letter and spirit of Section 17 of the Arms Act."

28. In Thakur Prasad Vs. State of U.P. and others reported 2013(31) LCD 1460 (LB) this Court after referring to the earlier pronouncements in the case of Ram Murli Madhukar Vs. District Magistrate, Sitapur [1998 (16) LCD 905] and Habib Vs. State of U.P., 2002 ACC 783, held in paragraphs 10 and 11 as follows:

"10. "Public peace" or "public safety" do not mean ordinary disturbance of law and order public safety means safety of the public at large and not safety of few persons only and before passing of the order of cancellation of arm license as per Section 17 (3) of the Act the Licensing Authority is under an obligation to apply his mind to the question as to whether there was eminent danger to public peace and safety involved in the case in view of the judgment given by this court in the case of Ram Murli Madhukar v. District Magistrate, Sitapur [1998 916) LCD 905], wherein it has been held that license can not be suspended or revoked on the ground of public interest (Jan-hit) merely on the registration of an F.I.R. and pendency of a criminal case."

11. Further, this Court in the case of Habib v. State of U.P. 2002 ACC 783 held as under:

"The question as to whether mere Involvement in a criminal case or pendency of a criminal case can be a ground for revocation of the licence under Arms Act, has been dealt with by a Division Bench of this Court in Sheo prasad Misra Vs. District Magistrate, Basti and Others, 1978 AWC 122, wherein the Division Bench relying upon the earlier decision in Masi Uddin Vs. Commissioner, Allahabad, 1972 ALJ 573, found that mere involvement in criminal case cannot, in any way, affect the public security or public interest and the order cancelling or revoking the licence of fire arm has been set aside. The present impugned orders also suffer from the same infirmity as was pointed out by the Division Bench in the above mentioned cases. I am in full agreement with the view taken by the Division Bench that these orders cannot be sustained and deserves to be quashed and are hereby quashed.

There is yet another reason that during the pendency of the present writ petition, the petitioner has been acquitted from the aforesaid criminal case and at present there is neither any case pending, nor any conviction has been attributed to the petitioner, as is evident from Annexure SA-I and II to the supplementary affidavit filed by the petitioner. In this view of the matter, the petitioner is entitled to have the fire-arm licence."

32. In Ghanshyam Gupta v. State of U.P. and others [2016 (34) LCD 3035] this Court has again held that the necessary ingredients to invoke jurisdiction of the licencing authority in terms of Section 17 were clearly lacking and no finding had been returned on the basis of materials produced in that regard by the licencing authority, which must justify passing of the order of cancellation. Paragraph 9 of the said judgment is being quoted as under:

"9. In a recent decision of Lucknow Bench of this court in Surya Narain Mishra v. Stae of U.P. and others, reported in 2015 (7) ADJ 510, similar view has been taken by this Court relying upon subsequent decisions. Para-14 of the judgment is reproduced:

"14. In the case of Raj Kumar Verma v. State of U.P., 2013 (80) ACC 231 this court in paragraph No.3 held as under:-

"The ground for issue of show-cause notice, suspension and ultimately cancellation of the licence is that one and precisely one criminal case was registered against the petitioner. The District Magistrate has also held that the petitioner has been enlarged on bail. He has gone further to observe that if the licence remained intact, the petitioner, may disturb public peace and tranquility. The same findings have been given by the Commissioner, Unmindful of the fact that this Court is repeating the law of the land, but the deaf ears of the administrative officers do not ready to succumb the law of the land. The settled law is that mere involvement in a criminal case without any finding that involvement in such criminal case shall be detrimental to public peace and tranqulity shall not create the ground for the cancellation of Armed Licence. In Ram Suchi v. Commissioner, Devipatan Division reported in 2004 (22) LCD 1643, it was held that this law was relied upon in Balram Singh Vs. Satate of U.P. 2006 (24) LCD 1359. Mere apprehension without substance is simply an opinion which has no legs to stand. Personal whims are not allowed to be reflected while acting as a public servant.

36. In the present case the petitioner's licence was cancelled by the District Magistrate on the ground of pendency of criminal case against him. The petitioner was later on acquitted of the criminal case by order dated 17.1.2003. A perusal of the order of acquittal does not show the use of fire arm. After acquittal the very basis of the order of cancellation vanished. The finding of the District Magistrate as affirmed by the Commissioner, that it was not in the interest of public peace and the public security that the licence remained with the petitioner/licencee, is not based on any evidence/material, except the police reports which in their turn were in view of the pendency of the criminal case against the petitioner. On mere apprehension expressed in the impugned orders that the petitioner would misuse the fire arm and would extend threat to the persons of the weaker section of the society, the arm licence could not be cancelled."

10. This Court in the case of Jay Bhagwan Kanodia Vs. The Commissioner and another decided on 26.07.2012 and Ram Singh Vs. State of U.P. and others decided on 28.03.2019 has held that fire arms licence can only be cancelled if it falls within sub Section (3) of Section 17 of the Act.

11. The provision of Sub-section (3) of Section 17 of the Arms Act provides various conditions for variation/cancellation or suspension of the arms licence, which is reproduced as under:-

"17.Variation, suspension and revocation of licences-

3.The licensing authority may by order in writing suspend a licence for such period as it thinks fit or revoke a licence-

(a) if the licensing authority is satisfied that the holder of the licence is prohibited by this Act or by any other law for the time being in force, from acquiring, having in his possession or carrying any arms or ammunition, or is of unsound mind, or is for any reason unfit for a licence under this Act ; or

(b) if the licensing authority deems it necessary for the security of the public peace or for public safety to suspend or revoke the licence; or

(c)if the licence was obtained by the suppression of material information or on the basis of wrong information provided by the holder of the licence or any other person on his behalf at the time of applying for it;or

(d) if any of the conditions of the licence has been contravened; or

(e) if the holder of the licence has failed to comply with a notice under sub-section (1) requiring him to deliver-up the licence."

12. A licence may be cancelled, inter alia on the ground that it is "necessary for the security of the public peace or for public safety' to do so. The District Magistrate has not recorded a finding that it was necessary for the security of the public peace or for public safety to revoke the licence. The mere existence of enmity between a licensee and another person would not establish the "necessary" connection with security of the public peace or public safety. There should be something more than mere enmity. There should be some evidence of the provocative utterances of the licensee or of his suspicious movements or of his criminal designs and conspiracy in reinforcement of the evidence of enmity. It is not possible to give an exhaustive list of facts and circumstances from which an inference of threat to public security or public peace may be deduced. The District Magistrate will have to take a decision on the facts of each case. But in the instant case there 'is nothing in his order to indicate that it was necessary for the security of the public peace or for public safety to cancel the licence of the petitioner. Mere enmity is not sufficient.

13. The Commissioner did not take into consideration the provisions of Section 17 at all. His order gives an impression of having been made in a mechanical manner. The cancellation of a licence destroys a valuable privilege of a free citizen of a free country. The District Magistrate and the Commissioner ought to fairly consider the facts and circumstances of each case and should also bear in mind the provisions of Section 17 The law does not give them a free hand.

14. The petition is allowed. The orders of the Commissioner and the District Magistrate cancelling the petitioner's licence are quashed. The petitioner shall get costs.

A. UP Municipalities Act, 1916 – Section 48 – Removal of President of Nagar Palika Parishad – Charges of wrongful withdrawal of public fund – No enquiry was held – Effect – Principle of natural justice, how far relevance – Ravi Yashwant Bhoir's case relied upon – Removal of a duly elected member/president of Municipal Council on basis of proved misconduct, is a proceeding quasi-judicial in nature. Therefore, the principles of natural justice are required to be given full play – Removal of elected person casts stigma upon him and takes away his valuable statutory rights. The result of his removal is that not only he, but his electoral college is also deprived of the representation by him – Held, once the petitioner had specifically denied the charges and prayed for proper inquiry being held, it was incumbent upon the respondents to provide all documentary evidence, hold oral inquiry giving full opportunity to the petitioner to cross-examine the complainant and other witnesses. However, that was not done – The petitioner has been removed in a casual manner, without holding proper inquiry, which could pass the test of fairness. (Para 21, 22, 47 and 48)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manoj Kumar Gupta, J.
Hon'ble Jayant Banerji, J.)

1. The petitioner has challenged her removal from the post of President, Nagar Palika Parishad, Nawabganj, Bareilly by the order of respondent no. 1, i.e. Principal Secretary, Nagar Vikas, U.P. Lucknow dated 10.5.2022 and the report of District Magistrate, Bareilly dated 6.1.2022. She has also prayed for a writ of mandamus commanding the respondents to permit her to discharge her duties as President of the Nagar Palika Parishad, Nawabganj, Bareilly.

2. The petitioner was elected as President of Nagar Palika Parishad, Nawabganj, Bareilly on 1.12.2017. A show cause notice dated 17.7.2019 was issued to her by respondent no. 1, seeking her explanation in relation to alleged wrongful withdrawal of a sum of Rs. 47,31,035/-, out of Rs. 52,40,554/-, from the funds provided by the State Finance Commission Grants. It was alleged that at the relevant time, no Executive Officer was working in the Nagar Palika and therefore, the withdrawal of the amount, amounts to a financial irregularity. It was also alleged that as a result, the safai karmees could not get their salary during Holi festival. The petitioner was called upon to reply to the said notice within seven days, along with the evidence, otherwise, proceedings for her removal would be initiated. The petitioner replied to the said notice on 27.07.2019 stating that the amount was used towards payment of arrears of salary to the employees of the Municipality and the development works executed by different firms. All the payments were made by account payee cheques. At the relevant time, Gulshan Kumar Suri was working as Executive Officer and the payments were made under the joint signatures of the petitioner and the said Executive Officer. The petitioner annexed the bank statements to prove her contention.

3. On 17.8.2019, the District Magistrate sent a communication to the State Government, mentioning various charges of misconduct on part of the petitioner and recommended for seizing her financial and administrative powers. On 18.8.2019, a show cause notice was issued to the petitioner by respondent no. 1, requiring her to submit her explanation within seven days, failing which, proceedings under Section 48(2) of the Act would be initiated against her. By same notice, respondent no. 1, exercising power under the proviso to sub-section (2) of Section 48 ceased the financial and administrative powers of the petitioner.

4. The petitioner challenged the show cause notice/order seizing her financial and administrative powers by filing a writ petition1 before this Court. An interim order was passed in the said writ petition on 24.9.2019, staying the operation of the order dated 18.8.2019, seizing the administrative and financial powers of the petitioner, while permitting enquiry in relation to removal to be concluded without being influenced by the pendency of the writ petition.

5. On 9.09.2019, the petitioner submitted a detailed reply to the show cause notice dated 18.08.2019 and categorically denied the charges levelled against her. The receipt of reply of the petitioner dated 9.09.2019 (19.09.2019) to the show cause notice dated 17.7.2019 is admitted. In reply to the first charge, the petitioner reiterated the stand taken by her in her reply dated 17.7.2019.

6. In respect of the second charge, the petitioner took a specific stand that keeping in mind the G.O. dated 12.7.2010, the payments were made on priority basis to the regular and contractual employees by issuing cheques on 31.12.2018. Cheques were encashed by the payee as per their convenience, in some case in the month of February, 2019. The petitioner stated that she had supplied salary details along with her previous reply. However, no enquiry was held on the said issue. The petitioner also specifically denied the charge that the salary of employees was diverted to contractors. She also stated that one regular employee Sant Ram retired on 31.12.2018 and an account payee cheque was issued to clear his back wages, etc. The said cheque was encashed in 2019 from the grant received from the State Finance Commission. The petitioner admitted that a payment of Rs. 6,03,540/- was made to the contractors under joint signatures on 31.12.2018, which were encashed in 2019. According to the petitioner, these payments were in respect of urgent works got done in the past through the contractors. It was also contended by the petitioner that had these payments not been made, the functioning of the Municipality would have become difficult.

7. The petitioner also stated that salary of the employees in the month of March, 2019 on the occasion of Holi, could not be paid, as at that time, no executive officer was posted in the Municipality, under whose joint signature, payment of salaries was possible. The petitioner also specifically denied the charge that signatures on the cheques were ante-dated. She contended that the mere fact that in some cases, cheques were encashed by the payee in January and February, 2019 would not mean that the cheques were ante-dated.

8. In reply to Charge No.3, the petitioner stated that even before she took over charge as Chairman, the Government Scheme relating to disbursement of funds to the beneficiaries under the Swachh Bharat Mission was in the hands of Senior Clerk Achal Sharma and Computer Operator Anuj Kumar. They did not inform the petitioner that the second installment of Rs. 4,000/- was due and was to be transferred in the bank accounts of the beneficiaries. They also never presented the cheques for payment to the beneficiaries. The petitioner claimed that on the other hand, the town was reeling under the threat of communicable diseases and household wastes were dumped openly everywhere. To bring the conditions under control, the petitioner permitted purchase of cleaning equipments, chemical spray, tankers, dustbins, fogging machines, sewage cleaning machines, portable toilets, LED lights and the same was done according to established procedures. The petitioner was never made aware regarding the fund from which purchases and payments through cheques were made.

9. She also claimed that later when she was informed about the Swachh Bharat Scheme, she personally inspected the work got done through the contractor and found the same to be completely unsatisfactory and substandard and therefore, 50% of the bill amount was withheld with direction to the contractors to complete the work according to prescribed norms. She also alleged that she went to Lucknow and informed the Principal Secretary, Urban Development, about the said fact.

10. In respect of Charge No.4, that the husband of the petitioner misbehaved with Balbir Singh, Executive Officer, the petitioner specifically denied the same. She also refuted the allegation that he was ever pressurized to make any payment against Rules. She also specifically stated that all records of the Municipalities were kept in Nagar Palika Parishad and there was no hurdle in Government work. As regards issue relating to appointment of Mohammad Arshad, she submitted that the matter was pending before this court, as such, she was not in position to give any reply to the same. She also specifically denied the charge that her husband had any altercation with Mahinder Pal. She alleged that the charge in this regard is actuated by political vendetta. She requested for copies of documents and opportunity of hearing.

11. On 6.1.2020, a report was submitted by the District Magistrate to the State Government in respect of four charges levelled against her by means of show cause notice dated 18.8.2019. The petitioner was again issued a show cause notice by the State Government on 14.5.2020 in respect of four charges. The case of the petitioner is that she once again submitted detailed reply to the show cause notice dated 14.5.2020 on 12.3.2021 and denied the allegations made therein, against her.

12. On 23.07.2020, the petitioner submitted an application before the State Government, stating that the report of District Magistrate dated 6.1.2020 was ex-parte and the procedure adopted by him was completely illegal and arbitrary. The petitioner prayed for an opportunity to cross examine the Additional City Magistrate, the then Executive Officer Balbir Singh, the observer, Swachh Bharat Mission, IVth Class Employee Mahender Pal, the complainant and certain other persons.

13. The case of the petitioner is that the State Government did not appoint any enquiry officer to hold oral enquiry. She requested the State Government to provide her with the relevant documents on which charges were based. However, without considering the application and the reply submitted by the petitioner and also without holding any enquiry, the Principal Secretary, Nagar Vikas, U.P. Lucknow, proceeded to pass the impugned order dated 10.5.2022, removing the petitioner from the post of President of the Municipality in purported exercise of powers conferred by Section 48(2) of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916. According to the impugned order, all four charges were found proved against the petitioner.

14. Sri Shashi Nandan, learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner submitted that the petitioner had been removed unceremoniously, without holding any proper enquiry. The petitioner is the Head of a Local Self-Government. She could not have been removed without holding a full-fledged enquiry. The alleged enquiry held in the instant case was a mere eyewash. The petitioner was not provided with the documents and evidences on which charges were based, despite repeated requests. She was also not given proper opportunity of hearing. Request for cross-examination was ignored in a casual manner. In case of enquiry in relation to removal of an elected representative, it should be more elaborate and thorough than the one required to be held in case of removal of a government employee. Standard of proof has to be more stringent than in case of a departmental enquiry against a government servant. In support of his submission, he placed reliance on the judgment of the Supreme Court in Ravi Yashwant Bhoir vs. District Collector, Raigad and Others2.

15. He also submitted that the proceedings started with issuance of notice dated 17.7.2019. It contained only one charge in relation to alleged withdrawal of amount from the bank from the funds provided by the State Finance Commission.

The said amount was alleged to have been withdrawn at a time when no executive officer was posted. However, the order of removal is based on four charges and this ex facie amounts to violation of the principles of natural justice.

16. He further submitted that Section 48(2) of the Act itself contemplates that after considering the explanation of the President, the State Government should hold such enquiry as it would consider necessary. In the instant case, since the charges were specifically denied and the petitioner sought opportunity to cross examine various witnesses on whose version the charges were founded, it was incumbent upon the respondents to have held oral enquiry, but which was not done in the instant case. The respondents adopted a procedure which was completely inconsistent with the principles of natural justice and therefore, the entire proceedings stand vitiated. In this regard, reliance was placed on a Division Bench judgment of this Court in Sanjeev Agrawal vs. State of U.P. and Others3.

17. It is also contended that the respondents merely relied on the report submitted by the District Magistrate dated 6.1.2020, in holding the petitioner guilty of the charges. The State Government did not apply its mind to the replies submitted by the petitioner, nor discussed any evidence. Therefore, the impugned order is a result of non-application of mind and in clear breach of principles of natural justice. The State Government had not given any independent findings. It is submitted that any conclusion arrived at without giving reasons is ex facie illegal and in derogation of the principles of natural justice.

18. Countering the submissions, Shri Neeraj Tripathi, learned Additional Advocate General, appearing for the State, submitted that the petitioner was given repeated show cause notices and fullest opportunity of hearing. The State Government also held proper enquiry through the District Magistrate. He submitted his reports from time to time and which were rightly relied upon in passing the impugned order. The impugned order itself reveals that several dates were fixed for personal hearing, but the petitioner did not avail the opportunity. The contention that the petitioner was charge sheeted only on basis of one charge while the impugned order is based on four charges is not correct. Initially, the show cause notice dated 17.7.2019 was based on a single charge. Another notice was issued on 18.8.2019, calling for the explanation of the petitioner. The said notice was based on all the four charges. The petitioner's financial and administrative powers were ceased thereby and she was given seven days time to submit her explanation to the charges mentioned in the said notice. By the said notice, the petitioner was clearly informed that in case she does not submit her reply within seven days, proceedings under Section 48(2) would be taken to its logical conclusion. He further submitted that the replies dated 12.3.2020, 14.8.2020 and 15.6.2021 were never received. According to him, the impugned order takes into consideration every aspect of the matter and as the charges against the petitioner relates to financial irregularities, this Court should decline to interfere in the matter.

19. Since a factual controversy relating to receipt of various replies said to have been submitted by the petitioner was raised, therefore, we required the respondents to produce the original records before us. In compliance of the same, the original records were placed before us and wherein we found that the replies of the petitioner dated 12.3.2021, 14.8.2020 and 15.6.2020 were missing. Consequently, we directed the State respondent to hold an enquiry in this regard, inasmuch as, those replies were allegedly sent by registered post/speed post on the correct address. The petitioner claimed benefit of Section 27 of the U.P. General Clause Act and Section 114 of the Evidence Act. In pursuance of our order dated 12.09.2022, respondent no. 1 held an enquiry and according to the enquiry report, the alleged replies were not received. Although there is presumption of service when the document is sent by registered post/speed post at the correct address, but we find that apart from these replies, there are other detailed replies which were admittedly received by the respondents. These replies were also in relation to the same charges and cover the entire defence of the petitioner. Therefore, instead of going into the above factual dispute, we proceed in the matter by considering only the replies that were admittedly received by the respondents.

20. We first proceed to analyse the nature of the enquiry that was required to be held in the instant case. The petitioner was the elected President of Nagar Palika Parishad, Nawabganj, a 'Municipality' within the meaning of clause (e) of Article 243P of the Constitution. It is a unit of local self government. It has been accorded constitutional status with the insertion of Part IX-A in the Constitution by the Constitution (Seventy Fourth Amendment) Act, 1992 w.e.f. 01.06.1993. The Statement of Objects and Reasons as was published in the Gazette on 16.09.1991 when the Bill was introduced is as under:-

1. In many States local bodies have become weak and ineffective on account of a variety of reasons, including the failure to hold regular elections, prolonged supersessions and inadequate devolution of powers and functions. As a result, Urban Local Bodies are not able to perform effectively as vibrant democratic units of self-government.

2. Having regard to these inadequacies, it is considered necessary that provisions relating to Urban Local Bodies are incorporated in the Constitution particularly for-

(i) putting on a firmer footing the relationship between the State Government and the Urban Local Bodies with respect to-

(a) the functions and taxation powers; and

(b) arrangements for revenue sharing;

(ii) Ensuring regular conduct of elections;

(iii) ensuring timely elections in the case of supersession; and

(iv) providing adequate representation for the weaker sections like Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes and women.

3. Accordingly, it is proposed to add a new part relating to the Urban Local Bodies in the Constitution to provide for-

(a) constitution of three types of Municipalities:

(i) Nagar Panchayats for areas in transition from a rural area to urban area;

(ii) Municipal Councils for smaller urban areas;

(iii) Municipal Corporations for larger urban areas. The broad criteria for specifying the said areas is being provided in the proposed article 243-0;

(b) composition of Municipalities, which will be decided by the Legislature of a State, having the following features:

(i) persons to be chosen by direct election;

(ii) representation of Chairpersons of Committees, if any, at ward or other levels in the Municipalities;

(iii) representation of persons having special knowledge or experience of Municipal Administration in Municipalities (without voting rights);

(c) election of Chairpersons of a Municipality in the manner specified in the State law;

(d) constitution of Committees at ward level or other level or levels within the territorial area of a Municipality as may be provided in the State law;

(e) reservation of seats in every Municipality-

(i) for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes in proportion to their population of which not less than one-third shall be for women;

(ii) for women which shall not less than one-third of the total number of seats;

(iii) in favour of backward class of citizens if so provided by the Legislature of the State;

(iv) for Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes and women in the office of Chairpersons as may be specified in the State law;

(f) fixed tenure of 5 years for the Municipality and re-election within six months of end of tenure. If a Municipality is dissolved before expiration of its duration, elections to be held within a period of six months of its dissolution;

(g) devolution by the State Legislature of powers and responsibilities upon the Municipalities with respect to preparation of plans for economic development and social justice, and for the implementation of development schemes as may be required to enable them to function as institutions of self-government;

(h) levy of taxes and duties by Municipalities, assigning of such taxes and duties to Municipalities by State Governments and for making grants-in-aid by the State to the Municipalities as may be provided in the State law;

21. In Ravi Yashwant Bhoir (supra), the Supreme Court held that removal of a duly elected member/president of Municipal Council on basis of proved misconduct, is a proceeding quasi-judicial in nature. Therefore, the principles of natural justice are required to be given full play and a proper opportunity of placing the defence is a must. It was also held that an elected official of a local self government holds a much higher pedestal as compared to a government servant. If a government servant cannot be removed without a full-fledged enquiry, there is no gainsaying that in case of an elected representative, holding of full-fledged enquiry is imperative in law. A more stringent procedure and standard of proof is required-

30. There can also be no quarrel with the settled legal proposition that removal of a duly elected Member on the basis of proved misconduct is a quasi-judicial proceeding in nature. (Vide: Indian National Congress (I) v. Institute of Social Welfare & Ors., AIR 2002 SC 2158). This view stands further fortified by the Constitution Bench judgments of this Court in Bachhitar Singh v. State of Punjab & Anr., AIR 1963 SC 395 and Union of India v. H.C. Goel, AIR 1964 SC 364. Therefore, the principles of natural justice are required to be given full play and strict compliance should be ensured, even in the absence of any provision providing for the same. Principles of natural justice require a fair opportunity of defence to such an elected office bearer.

31. Undoubtedly, any elected official in local self-government has to be put on a higher pedestal as against a government servant. If a temporary government employee cannot be removed on the ground of misconduct without holding a full fledged inquiry, it is difficult to imagine how an elected office bearer can be removed without holding a full fledged inquiry.

32. In service jurisprudence, minor punishment is permissible to be imposed while holding the inquiry as per the procedure prescribed for it but for removal, termination or reduction in rank, a full fledged inquiry is required otherwise it will be violative of the provisions of Article 311 of the Constitution of India. The case is to be understood in an entirely different context as compared to the government employees, for the reason, that for the removal of the elected officials, a more stringent procedure and standard of proof is required.

22. The Supreme Court also held that removal of elected person casts stigma upon him and takes away his valuable statutory rights. The result of his removal is that not only he, but his electoral college is also deprived of the representation by him. Moreover, he also stands disqualified to contest the election for a stipulated period.

23. In the instant case, the petitioner, who is President of Municipality, would stand disqualified from contesting a re-election as President or Member for a period of five years from the date of her removal in view of Section 48 (4) of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 [the removal being under clause (a) and sub-clause (vi), (vii) and clause (b) of sub-section (2) of Section 48].

24. Sub-section (2-A) of Section 48 contemplates making of such inquiry as may be considered necessary by the State Government after considering the explanation that may be offered by the President. An order of removal should be in writing and contain reasons for removal of the President from office. The said provision is quoted below for convenience of reference:-

(2-A) After considering any explanation that may be offered by the President and making such enquiry as it may consider necessary, the State Government may, for reasons to be recorded in writing, remove the President from his office.

25. In Sanjeev Agrawal Vs. State of U.P. and others4 it was contended that sub-section (2-A) of Section 48 was deleted by subsequent amendments and is no more part of the statute. Therefore, no inquiry as per the said provision is required to be held. The argument was repelled after considering the amendments made to Section 48 from time to time. The Court relied on another Division Bench judgement of this Court in Girish Chandra Srivastava vs. State of U.P. and others5 in holding that the said provision continue to exist and that there was error in numbering the sections while making subsequent amendments. It was concluded that the inquiry under Section 48 (2-A) is mandatory, although its nature and scope will depend on fact of each case. The relevant part of the said judgement is quoted in extenso:-

Section 48(2-A) of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 contemplates that after considering any explanation that may be offered by the President and making such enquiry as it may consider necessary, the State Government may, for reasons to be recorded in writing, remove the President from his office.

By U.P. Act No.VI of 2004 another sub-section (2-A) was added, which is to the following effect:-

"In Section 48 of the Uttar Pradesh Municipalities Act, 1916, after sub-section (2) the following sub-section shall be inserted namely: "(2A) where in an inquiry held by such person and in such manner as may be prescribed, if a President or a Vice President is prima-facie found to be guilty on any of the grounds referred to in sub-section (2), he shall cease to exercise, perform and discharge the financial and administrative powers, function and duties of the President or the Vice-President, as the case may be, which shall, until he is exonerated of the charges mentioned in the show cause notice issued to him under sub-section (2), be exercised and performed by the District Magistrate or by any other nominated by him not below the rank of the Deputy Collector."

By U.P. Act No.II of 2005, Section 48 was again amended which amendment was deemed to have come into force with effect from 27th February, 2004 which was the date on which U.P. Act No.VI of 2004 was published in the gazette. In sub-section (2) of Section 48, a proviso was inserted, which is to the following effect:-

"Provided that where the State Government has reason to believe that the allegations do not appear to be groundless and the President is prima facie guilty on any of the grounds of this sub-section resulting in the issuance of the show cause notice and proceedings under this sub-section he shall, from the date of issuance of the show cause notice containing charges, cease to exercise, perform and discharge the financial and administrative powers, functions and duties of the President until he is exonerated of the charges mentioned in the show cause notice issued to him under this sub-section and finalization of the proceedings under sub-section (2A) and the said powers, functions and duties of the President during the period of such ceasing, shall be exercised, performed and discharged by the District Magistrate or an officer nominated by him not below the rank of Deputy Collector."

Sub-section (2-A) of Section 48 as inserted on 27th February, 2004 by the Uttar Pradesh Municipalities (Amendment) Act, 2004 (U.P. Act No.VI of 2004) was omitted.

11. The submission of Sri Shashi Nandan, learned Senior Advocate, that after deletion of Section 48(2-A) now there is no provision for holding an inquiry by the State Government needs to be considered first.

12. Sub-Section (2-A) of Section 48 which was inserted by U.P. Act No.XXVI of 1964 was to the following effect, "After considering any explanation that may be offered by the President and making such enquiry as it may consider necessary, the State Government may, for reasons to be recorded in writing, remove the President from his office.". The above sub-section (2-A) of Section 48 has not been deleted by any subsequent amendment. What has been deleted by U.P. Act No.II of 2005 was sub-section (2-A) which was inserted by U.P. Act No.VI of 2004 wherein it was provided that where in an inquiry held, if a President or a Vice-President is prima-facie found to be guilty, he shall cease to exercise, perform and discharge the financial and administrative powers, functions and duties of the President or a Vice-President until he is exonerated of the charges. Sub-Section (2-A), which was inserted by U.P. Act

No.XXVI of 1964 was an entirely different provision from one which has been inserted by U.P. Act No.VI of 2004. Sub-section (2-A) of Section 48 which was inserted by U.P. Act No.VI of 2004 was with regard to cessation of financial and administrative powers of the President. The State legislature being not satisfied with the scheme of sub-section (2-A) of Section 48 as introduced by U.P. Act No.VI of 2004 came up to the same effect regarding cessation of financial and administrative powers by inserting a proviso after Section 48(2) which proviso contains more drastic provision regarding cessation of financial and administrative powers and when proviso was inserted by U.P. Act No.II of 2005, the earlier sub-section (2-A) providing for cessation of financial and administrative powers was omitted. Thus Section 48(2-A) as was inserted by U.P. Act No.XXVI of 1964 still continues in the statute which obliges the State Government to consider the explanation and to hold an inquiry in the matter.

13. A Division Bench of this Court in the case of Girish Chandra Srivastava vs. State of U.P. and others reported in 2007 AWC-6-6051, after considering the provisions of Section 48 as amended from time to time, has taken the same view which we have taken above. Following was laid down by the Division Bench in paragraph 20 of the said judgment:-

"20. In view of the aforesaid decisions, we are of the considered opinion that insertion of sub-section (2A) in Section 48 of the Act after sub-section (2) by U.P. Act No.6 of 2004, does not, in any manner, either omit or substitute the earlier sub-section (2A) of Section 48 of the Act which was inserted by U.P. Act No.27 of 1964 and the State Legislature appears to have committed a mistake in numbering the sub-section that was added by U.P. Act No.6 of 2004. However, the mistake that had occurred stood removed by the subsequent amendment made by the State Legislature in Section 48 by U.P. Act No.2 of 2005 as sub-section (2A) that was inserted in Section 48 of the Act by U.P. Act No.6 of 2004 was omitted with effect from 27.2.2004."

Thus according to scheme of Section 48 of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 after issuance of show cause notice under Section 48(2), the State Government is obliged to consider the explanation and also to hold such inquiry as it may deem necessary.

26. What is nature and scope of inquiry which is required to be held under Section 48 was considered by this Court in Umesh Baijal and others Vs. State of U.P. and another6. It has been held that there could be cases where the charges are admitted and in which event, it would not be necessary to hold a regular inquiry and examine witnesses etc. There may be cases where the allegations are based on complaint made by certain persons. In such cases, if the State intends to rely on affidavit filed by the complainant, it has to give opportunity of hearing to the Chairperson to cross-examine the complainant. In a given case, the allegations may be of a very serious nature and which have to be proved by documentary as well as oral evidence and in such cases, full fledged inquiry would be required, as merely calling for explanation and considering the same would not meet the requirements of law. The relevant paragraphs from the said judgment are as follows:-

provisions, it would have a very serious repercussion and consequence not only on the Chairman but also on the constituency, which he represented because he is being removed from the membership also, therefore, it cannot be permissible in law to remove him without complying with the requirement of law, as required under the facts and circumstances of a particular case. Sub-section (2A) of Section 48 of the Act, 1916 provides for a procedure of removal stipulating that after considering any explanation that may be offered by the President and making such enquiry as it may consider necessary, the State Government may, for reasons to be recorded in writing, remove him. The law does not permit or give unfettered powers to the State Government for passing an order of removal of the Chairman merely after considering his explanation to the show cause. It would depend upon the facts of each case as to whether an enquiry is required. There may be a case of admission by the President himself or the case against him is of such a nature for which he can furnish no explanation or the facts of a case are so admitted or admittedly such that no explanation is required at all, in such eventuality, it will not be necessary to hold a regular enquiry and examine the witnesses etc. giving an opportunity of cross-examination of the witness. There may be a case where the State is considering the affidavits filed by certain persons complaining against the misconduct of the Chairman, if State wants to take into consideration the said affidavits and in his explanation the Chairman denies the allegations, the affidavit cannot be relied upon without giving an opportunity to the Chairman to cross-examine the deponents, as required under the provisions of Order XIX, Rule 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure, for the reason that the Code itself is nothing but codification of the principles of natural justice. The provisions of Order XIX, Rule 2 of the Code become mandatory.

39. Thus, in view of the above, it cannot be held that in each and every case, non-observance of principles of natural justice would vitiate the order. It has to be understood in the context and facts-situation of each case and requirement of statutory Rules applicable therein. However, in a given case, if the allegations are of a, serious nature and has to be proved on a documentary as well as on oral evidence, it is desirable to have a fulfledged enquiry for the reason that removal only on asking the explanation and consideration thereof, would not be sufficient to meet the requirement of law unless the facts are admitted or undeniable. It is not possible to lay down any strait-jacket formula as in what cases the fulfledged enquiry is to be held and in what cases removal is permissible on asking office bearers to furnish the explanation to the charges. It will depend on the facts of an individual case."

27. In Sanjeev Agrawal (supra), after considering the Division Bench judgment in Umesh Baijal and another Division Bench judgement in Shamim Ahmad (Dr.) Vs. State of U.P. and another7, it was concluded as follows:-

10. Thus, in our view, it is clear that once an explanation is submitted by the President denying the charges, it is incumbent upon the State Government to make "such enquiry as it may consider necessary" before passing an order of removal. The word "inquiry" contemplates investigation. Therefore, where the President denies the charges and offers his explanation, the State Government is required to consider his explanation. If the State Government is satisfied with the explanation offered by the President, in that case, nothing further is required to be done other than passing a consequential order dropping the proceedings. However, if the State Government is not satisfied with the explanation, in that case, the State Government is required to enquire into the matter by holding a full-fledged enquiry.

28. In Ravi Yashwant Bhoir Vs. District Collector, Raigad and others, the Supreme Court also considered the issue as to whether recording of reasons is mandatory while passing an order of removal. The Supreme Court placed reliance on its previous judgements in case of Krishna Swami Vs. Union of India8, Sant Lal Gupta Vs. Modern Coop. Group Housing Society Ltd9 and thereafter concluded by holding as follows:-

46. The emphasis on recording reason is that if the decision reveals the `inscrutable face of the sphinx', it can be its silence, render it virtually impossible for the courts to perform their appellate function or exercise the power of judicial review in adjudging the validity of the decision. Right to reason is an indispensable part of a sound judicial system, reasons at least sufficient to indicate an application of mind of the authority before the court. Another rationale is that the affected party can know why the decision has gone against him. One of the salutary requirements of natural justice is spelling out reasons for the order made. In other words, a speaking out, the inscrutable face of the sphinx is ordinarily incongruous with a judicial or quasi-judicial performance.

29. The quotation from Krishna Swami (supra) relied upon in the said judgment reads thus:-

"Reasons are the links between the material, the foundation for their erection and the actual conclusions. They would also demonstrate how the mind of the maker was activated and actuated and their rational nexus and synthesis with the facts considered and the conclusions reached. Lest it would be arbitrary, unfair and unjust, violating Article 14 or unfair procedure offending Article 21."

30. In Sant Lal Gupta (supra), it was held as follows:-

"27. It is a settled legal proposition that not only administrative but also judicial order must be supported by reasons, recorded in it. Thus, while deciding an issue, the Court is bound to give reasons for its conclusion. It is the duty and obligation on the part of the Court to record reasons while disposing of the case. The hallmark of order and exercise of judicial power by a judicial forum is for the forum to disclose its reasons by itself and giving of reasons has always been insisted upon as one of the fundamentals of sound administration of the justice - delivery system, to make it known that there had been proper and due application of mind to the issue before the Court and also as an essential requisite of the principles of natural justice.

"3. The giving of reasons for a decision is an essential attribute of judicial and judicious disposal of a matter before Courts, and which is the only indication to know about the manner and quality of exercise undertaken, as also the fact that the Court concerned had really applied its mind."

The reason is the heartbeat of every conclusion. It introduces clarity in an order and without the same, the order becomes lifeless. Reasons substitute subjectivity with objectivity. The absence of reasons renders an order indefensible/unsustainable particularly when the order is subject to further challenge before a higher forum. Recording of reasons is principle of natural justice and every judicial order must be supported by reasons recorded in writing. It ensures transparency and fairness in decision making. The person who is adversely affected must know why his application has been rejected."

31. The consistent judicial opinion thus is that recording of reasons in writing is not merely an attribute of the principles of natural justice but also essence of transparency and fairness in decision making process. It has been held to be a hallmark of sound and objective exercise of power. An order bereft of reasons violates Article 14 and 21 of the Constitution.

32. We now proceed to examine the contention of learned counsel for the parties in the light of the law discussed above.

33. In the instant case, the respondents initially issued a notice dated 17.07.2019 mentioning that it is in receipt of report of District Magistrate and Commissioner, Bareilly Region, Bareilly that the petitioner had misused funds under the head 'State Finance Commission'. To be precise, it was alleged that the petitioner had distributed Rs.47,31,035/- out of Rs.52,40,544/- from the State Finance Commission head. At the relevant time, no Executive Officer was posted in the Municipality. As a result thereof, the cleaning staff of the Municipality could not be paid their salary during the Holi festival. The petitioner was called upon to submit her explanation within seven days, failing which, proceedings under Section 48 would be initiated against her. The petitioner responded to the said notice by submitting her explanation on 17/27.7.2019 in which she categorically refuted the allegations and specifically raised the issue that the show cause notice was issued to her on basis of false complaint made by the candidate who had lost the election i.e. Smt. Prem Lata Rathor. She emphatically denied the charge and pleaded that the amount was spent in payment of salary/stipend of daily-wagers and safai karmis. All the payments were made by account payee cheques under joint signatures of the petitioner and Gulshan Kumar Suri, the Executive Officer posted at the relevant time. She also pleaded that all the aforesaid cheques were drawn on 31.12.2018, but were encashed by the payees in the months of January and February, 2019 as per their convenience. It was followed by another show cause notice dated 18.08.2019 which contained three more charges, as noted in foregoing part of the instant order. The petitioner was called upon to offer her explanation within seven days, failing which, further proceedings on merits will be undertaken under Section 48 (2) of the Act. Simultaneously, the financial and administrative powers of the petitioner were also ceased in exercise of powers under the proviso to Section 48 (2). The petitioner feeling aggrieved thereby filed a writ petition before this Court wherein this Court vide its order dated 24.09.2019 stayed part of the order ceasing administrative and financial powers, but permitted the respondents to conclude the inquiry in accordance with law.

34. The petitioner submitted a detailed reply on 09.09.2019 (19.09.2019). Therein, she specifically refuted all the four charges and offered detailed explanation to each charge. Therein, she also raised a specific plea that she was not provided with the report of A.D.M. dated 17.8.2019 which formed the basis for issuing show cause notice dated 18.08.2019. She further pleaded that the respondents had illegally relied on the report of the A.D.M., Bareilly dated 17.08.2019 in issuing the notice dated 18.08.2019 without first seeking her explanation in response thereto. The petitioner sought to impress upon the respondents that they were proceeding in violation of principles of natural justice and the adverse material which formed the basis for issuing show cause notice (inquiry report and documentary evidence) was not provided to her. She again requested for the same being made available to her.

35. It seems that the explanation of the petitioner was forwarded by the State Government by its covering letter dated 18.08.2019 to the District Magistrate for submitting his comments. As a follow up, the District Magistrate submitted his comments dated 6.01.2020 to the State Government.

36. On 14.05.2020 the State Government issued another show cause notice to the petitioner in context of the comments submitted by the District Magistrate on 6.01.2020. The petitioner was asked to submit her explanation once again within seven days.

37. On 15.06.2020 the petitioner submitted an application and requested for oral hearing. On 27.07.2020 the petitioner submitted an application specifying therein the documents to be provided to her in respect of each charge.

38. On 10.5.2022 the respondents passed the impugned order. It recites that on 14.05.2020 the petitioner was issued a notice stating that on account of lock-down as a result of Covid 19 protocol in place at the relevant time, personal hearing was not possible, therefore, she was directed to submit her written reply within seven days, but the petitioner did not submit any written reply. The order further mentions various dates fixed for personal hearing subsequently and that the petitioner did not avail the said opportunity. Para 2 of the order mentions that the report submitted by the District Magistrate dated 6.01.2020, after examining the response of the petitioner, holds the petitioner guilty of various charges and thereafter the extract from the report of the District Magistrate is quoted in the impugned order. Para 3 of the order mentions that all the charges levelled against the petitioner are found proved and established in view of the report of the District Magistrate and the Additional Report (comments submitted after examining the reply of the petitioner). She has been found guilty of the grounds mentioned in clause (a) and sub-clauses (vi), (vii), (x) and (xi) of clause (b) of sub-section (2) of Section 48 of the Act and accordingly, her removal has been ordered.

39. It is clear from the facts noted above that initially the notice dated 17.07.2019 issued to the petitioner seeking her explanation contained only one charge. However, notice dated 18.08.2019 contained three more charges and the explanation of the petitioner was duly called for in response to the said notice. As such, we find no force in the submission of learned counsel for the petitioner that the order of removal is based on additional charges, in relation to which the petitioner was not called upon to show cause.

40. We now proceed to examine the plea as to whether the impugned order is violative of principles of natural justice, as proper enquiry was not held and also bad in law, as the State Government had failed to record any independent finding of its own in relation to the charges framed against the petitioner.

41. The impugned order, as noted above, merely relies on the report of the District Magistrate and the Additional Report submitted in response to the reply of the petitioner to the show cause notice. The State Government in the entire order has not recorded any independent reasoning in arriving at the conclusion that the grounds stipulated under Section 48 (2) are made out against the petitioner. As discussed above, giving of reasons was imperative as reasons are link between the material, the foundation for their erection and the actual conclusion. Sans reasons, this Court is unable to uphold the decision as well as the decision making process.

42. The receipt of application dated 23.7.2020 to cross-examine the witnesses is admitted to the respondents. Therein, the petitioner after giving detailed explanation to different charges and specifying reasons, requested for opportunity to cross examine various persons in relation to whom, or on basis of whose version, the charges were being pressed against her. She reiterated the request made by her in her previous reply for being provided with complete set of documents and evidences in support of the charges and for being provided proper opportunity of hearing and for setting aside the ex-parte report of the District Magistrate dated 6.1.2020.

43. The petitioner by her application dated 10.8.2020, receipt of which is admitted to the respondents, demanded large number of documents.

44. It is evident from the stand taken in the counter affidavit that after receipt of replies from the petitioner, respondent no. 1 called for comments from the District Magistrate. The specific case of the petitioner is that the District Magistrate never held any enquiry, nor gave her any opportunity of hearing and submitted his report behind the back of the petitioner.

45. The report of the District Magistrate and the Additional Report submitted after examining the reply of the petitioner were only in form of an opinion which could have been considered by the State Government alongwith the defence of the petitioner and the evidence submitted by her. It was not a gospel truth nor final word. The same is not a substitute to the statutory requirement of recordal of reasons in writing by the State Government while passing an order of removal of the President in view of Section 48 (2-A) of the Act. On this ground alone, the impugned order is rendered vulnerable and is liable to be quashed.

46. We have already noted that the petitioner denied all the four charges. It is noteworthy that charge no.4 particularly related to the letters written on 8.08.2019 and 13.8.2019 by the then Executive Officer Balveer Singh in relation to pressure allegedly exerted upon him by the petitioner and her husband to facilitate certain payments. The said charge also related to certain other complaints received against the petitioner from different quarters in relation to alleged mis-behavour on part of her husband. The petitioner in general and particularly in reference to charge no.4 requested for opportunity to cross-examine the then Executive Officer Balveer Singh Yadav and certain other persons. On 27.07.2020 she demanded various documents which formed basis for levelling the charges. The charges related to alleged misuse of funds; ante dating of cheques; alleged illegal payments to certain contractors in violation of the provisions of certain Government instructions; alleged diversion of funds.

47. Once the petitioner had specifically denied the charges and prayed for proper inquiry being held, it was incumbent upon the respondents to provide all documentary evidence, hold oral inquiry giving full opportunity to the petitioner to cross-examine the complainant and other witnesses. However, that was not done. The respondents rather adopted a peculiar procedure. After receipt of explanation of the petitioner dated 17.07.2019, they called for comments from the District Magistrate. Thereafter when the petitioner submitted another detailed reply dated 19.09.2019, once again comments are called from the District Magistrate. The State Government without holding any enquiry, merely on basis of comments submitted by the District Magistrate, proceeded to pass the impugned order for the reason that the petitioner had not submitted any reply in response to notice dated 14.05.2020 which was issued as a substitute to personal hearing on account of Covid 19 protocol being in force at the relevant time. The rebuttal of the petitioner to the charges was already there in shape of the reply dated 17.07.2019 and 9.09.2019 and therefore, there was no need of reiterating the stand once again in response to notice dated 14.05.2020. The issuance of repeated show cause notices and calling for explanations cannot be a substitute to the oral inquiry which in the facts and circumstances of the instant case was necessary to comply with the principles of natural justice as well as the requirements of statute itself.

48. We find considerable force in the submission of learned counsel for the petitioner that the petitioner, who was head of a Municipality, has been removed in a casual manner, without holding proper inquiry, which could pass the test of fairness.

49. In consequence, the writ petition succeeds and is allowed in part. The impugned order is quashed leaving it open to the State respondents to proceed in the matter afresh in the light of the observations made in the foregoing paragraphs of this order.

50. No order as to costs.

Writ petition allowed in part. (E-1)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manoj Kumar Gupta, J.)

1. The petitioners are elected Pradhans of Gram Panchayat Bhaiswali, Sansaarpur, Sidhwapaar, Kodhari, Bailey and Kalyanpur. They have called in question notifications dated 12.12.2020, 22.7.2022 and 10.8.2022 (all issued by respondent no. 2).

2. The notification dated 12.12.2020 was a draft of a proposal intended to be issued by the Governor in exercise of powers under clause (2) of Article 243Q of the Constitution of India, read with sub-section (2) of Section 3 of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 and in partial modification of previous notification dated 16th March, 1875 and other notifications issued in this behalf for inclusion of ten villages in the transitional area of Nagar Panchayat, Badahalganj, Gorakhpur. The draft proposal was notified in order to ensure compliance of Section 4 of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 which is as follows: -

"4. Preliminary procedure to issue notification. - (1) Before the issue of a notification referred to in Section 3, the Governor shall publish in the Official Gazette and in a paper approved by it for purposes of publication of public notices, published in the district or, if there is no such paper in the district, in the division in which the local area covered by the notification is situate and cause to be affixed at the office of the District Magistrate and at one or more conspicuous places within or adjacent to the local area concerned a draft in Hindi or the proposed notification along with a notice stating that the draft will be taken into consideration on the expiry of the period as may be stated in the notice.

(2) The Governor shall, before issuing the notification consider any objection or suggestion in writing which it receives from any person, in respect of the draft within the period stated."

3. Section 3 of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916, which is also relevant for deciding the controversy, reads as follows: -

"3. Declaration etc. of transitional area and smaller urban area. - (1) Any area specified by the Governor in a notification under clause (2) of Article 243-Q of the Constitution with such limits as are specified therein to be a transitional area or a smaller urban area, as the case may be.

(2) The Governor may, by a subsequent notification under clause (2) of Article 243-Q of the Constitution, include or exclude any area in or from a transitional area or a smaller urban area referred to in sub-section (1), as the case may be.

(3) The notifications referred to in sub-sections (1) and (2) shall be subject to the condition of the notification being issued after the previous publication required by Section 4 and notwithstanding anything in this section, no area which is,

or is part of, a cantonment shall be declared to be a transitional area or a smaller urban area or be included therein under this section.

4. Article 243Q of the Constitution which confers power to the Governor to include or exclude any area, as well as power to constitute a Nagar Panchayat, a Municipal Council, or a Municipal Corporation, reads thus: -

"243Q. Constitution of Municipalities. --

(1) There shall be constituted in every State,--

(a) a Nagar Panchayat by whatever name called for a transitional area, that is to say, an area in transition from a rural area to an urban area.

(b) a Municipal Council for a smaller urban area; and

(c) a Municipal Corporation for a larger urban area, in accordance with the provisions of this Part:

Provided that a Municipality under this clause may not be constituted in such urban area or part thereof as the Governor may, having regard to the size of tile area and the municipal services being provided or proposed to be provided by an industrial establishment in that area and such other factors as he may deem fit, by public notification, specify to be an industrial township.

(2) In this article, 'a transitional area', 'a smaller urban area' or 'a larger urban area' means such area as the Governor may, having regard to the population of the area, the density of the population therein, the revenue generated for local administration, the percentage of employment in non-agricultural activities, the economic importance or such other factors as he may deem fit, specify by public notification for the purposes of this Part."

5. The Notification dated 22.7.2022 has been issued in exercise of power under clause (2) of Article 243Q of the Constitution of India, read with sub-section (2) of Section 3 of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916. This, provision, as would be clear from a bare perusal, confers power in the Governor to issue a subsequent notification under clause (2) of Article 243Q of the Constitution of India, thereby including or excluding any area, in or from a transitional area, or a smaller urban area. The notification gives final shape to the draft notification, thereby concretizing the proposal for inclusion of ten villages in the transitional area of Nagar Panchayat, Badahalganj, District Gorakhpur.

6. The third notification, which has been called in question, is dated 10.8.2022 and it has been issued in exercise of power under sub-section (2) of Section 3 of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916, read with clause (2) of Section 243Q of the Constitution. It seeks to supersede the earlier notification dated 22.07.2022 on the ground that there was typographical error in the areas specified in the Schedule to the said notification. It now seeks to include seven more villages, which were not part of draft notification under Section 4, but have been notified for the first time. These villages are Garthauli, Sansaarpur, Baswanpur, Mishrauli, Sidhawapaar, Kuraon and Mahulia Khajuha.

7. The case of the petitioners is that under the Act, before including or excluding any area in a transitional area, or a smaller urban area, in exercise of power under Article 243Q, read with Section 3 of the Act, the proposal has to be notified in terms of Section 4, inviting suggestions and objections and after considering which, final notification is to be issued. This pre-supposes that the area, as notified in the proposal, cannot be increased, while issuing the final notification, otherwise, it will defeat the provision of Section 4 of the Act.

8. Having regard to the said submission, we passed the following order on 21.9.2022: -

"One of the contention is that as many as 7 villages which have now been notified under Section 3 of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 for being included in the transitional area of Nagar Panchayat Badahalganj, Gorakhpur were not part of the notification issued under Section 4 of the Act. Consequently, the final notification is bad in law.

Sri Manish Kumar, learned standing counsel appearing for the respondents seeks time to obtain instructions.

As prayed, put up tomorrow as fresh."

9. On matter being taken up today, Sri Rajiv Gupta, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel, appearing for the State, on basis of instructions received by him, submitted that seven villages have been included in the final notification, on basis of objections and suggestions received in pursuance of the preliminary notification under Section 3 of the Act. He further submitted that there was typographical error in the notification dated 22.07.2022, which has now been corrected by issuing notification dated 10.08.2022.

10. Learned counsel for the petitioners submitted that the same is not permissible, as it will render Section 4 of the Act redundant.

11. We find considerable force in the submission of learned counsel for the petitioners. The Governor while being invested with power to include or exclude any area in a transitional area, or a smaller urban area, in exercise of power under clause (2) of Article 243Q of the Constitution, read with Section 3 of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916, has to follow the procedure prescribed under Section 4, which mandates that before issuance of notification under Section 3, a draft proposal has to be published in the manner provided under Section 4, so as to apprise the general public of the inclusions/exclusions and if any person has any objection, he may file objection/suggestion. Sub-section (2) of Section 4 enjoins upon the Governor to consider the objection or suggestion received in writing from any person in respect of the draft proposal within the period stated. Sub-section (3) of Section 3 explicitly and unequivocally prescribes that 'the notifications referred to in sub-section (1) and (2) shall be subject to the condition of the notification being issued after the previous publication required by Section 4....."

12. It is implicit in the statutory provision that while issuing a final notification, the area as originally proposed to be included in the transitional area, cannot be increased in such a manner, so as to change the entire complexion and character of the preliminary notification. The object of Section 4 is to provide opportunity to the general public which would include the petitioners herein, to file objections against the proposal. The Governor exercises power under Article

243Q having regard to the factors laid down under clause (2), i.e., population of the area, the density of the population therein, the revenue generated for local administration, the percentage of employment in non-agricultural activities, the economic importance or such other factor as he may deem fit. The objection could be on any of the above aspects, apart from inclusion/exclusion. This is an invaluable right conferred in the general public with avowed object of strengthening their hands in all facets of local self governance. In the absence of these villages being part of the proposal notified under Section 4, the right to file objection has been rendered illusory making Section 4 of the Act redundant. It amounts to notifying seven villages in the transitional area without there being any previous publication, as required by Section 4. What cannot be done directly cannot be done indirectly. It is nothing but colourable exercise of power.

13. Sri Rajiv Gupta, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel, submitted that objections were invited from the general public in respect of the proposal for inclusion of seven additional villages. However, we find no such material on record. The constitutional scheme and the provisions of the Act lays down the manner in which objections/suggestions are to be invited and for such purpose, a notification under Section 4 of the Act is required to be issued. This notification is annexure 1 dated 12.12.2020 but it does not make any proposal for inclusion of the seven villages in question. As such, we find no force in the submission of Sri Rajiv Gupta.

14. In view of what has been stated above, we are of the considered opinion that the final notification dated 10.8.2022, in so far as it includes the villages Garthauli, Sansaarpur, Basawanpur, Mishrauli, Kuraon and Mahulia Khajuha, is illegal and unconstitutional and it is quashed to that extent.

15. Although, notifications dated 12.12.2022 and 22.07.2022 are also under challenge, but no argument has been advanced in respect thereto. Consequently, the challenge to these notifications fail.

16. As a result, the petition is allowed in part.

17. No order as to costs.

Hon'ble Shiv Shanker Prasad, J.)

1. Heard Sri Dinesh Kumar Yadav, learned counsel for the appellant, Sri Ajay Kumar Pandey, learned counsel for accused respondents and learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. As per the death certificate annexed as Annexure No.1 to the affidavit filed in support of the impleadment application the appellant-Raj Narayan Singh son of Late Hardutt died on 20.12.2018. By this application, the son of the deceased appellant namely Yashwant Singh is seeking impleadment as appellant in place of Raj Narayan Singh to prosecute the present criminal appeal. The affidavit filed in support of the present impleadment application was sworned by him on 18.11.2019 and the present application was filed on 17.01.2020. In effect this is an application for substitution of Yashwant Singh son of Late Raj Narayan Singh, who was appellant in the present appeal. Obviously, this application was not filed immediately after death of the appellant.

3. At this stage, it would be relevant to take note of Sections 372 and 394 Cr.P.C. which are quoted as under:-

"Section 372:- No appeal to lie, unless otherwise provided. No appeal shall lie from any judgment or order of a Criminal Court except as provided for by this Code or any other law for the time being in force.

Section 394:- Abatement of appeals.

(1) Every appeal under section 377 or section 378 shall finally abate on the death of the accused.

(2) Every other appeal under this Chapter (except an appeal from a sentence of fine) shall finally abate on the death of the appellant: Provided that where the appeal is against a conviction and sentence of death or of imprisonment, and the appellant dies during the pendency of the appeal, any of his near relatives may, within thirty days of the death of the appellant, apply to the Appellate Court for leave to continue the appeal; and if leave is granted, the appeal shall not abate."

4. A coordinate Bench (of which one of us was a member) of this Court has considered the 'proviso' to Section 372 Cr.P.C. as well as provisions of Section 394 Cr.P.C. in detail in the judgement of Prithvi Singh Vs. State of U.P. and Ors. 2022 (8) ADJ 29 (DB), wherein it was held that the appeal filed under 'proviso' to Section 372 Cr.P.C. would stand abated in case of death of appellant

5. In Prithvi Singh (Supra) in para 5 this Court has taken into account the relevant provisions of Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, its relevant amendment by Act No. 26 of 1955, Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 with its statements of objects and reasons, relevant provisions including Amendment Act 5 of 2009 whereby 'Proviso' to Section 372 Cr.P.C. was added.

6. The law on the Section 417 Cr.P.C., 1898, judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Khedu Mohton and Ors. Vs. State of Bihar; 1971 AIR 66 SC, subsequent judgements of various High Courts on Section 372 (with proviso) i.e. after 2009 Amendment have been considered in Prithvi Singh (Supra). Para 29, 30, 31, 32, 34, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 46 and 48 of the aforesaid judgment are quoted as under:-

"29. It is, therefore, clear that as per the golden rule of interpretation, this "proviso' is a substantive enactment and it is not merely excepting something out of, or qualifying what was excepting or goes before. Therefore, by adding the "proviso' in Section 372 of Cr.P.C. 1973 by this amendment, a right has been created in favour of the victim.

30. At this stage, it would be appropriate to take note of the definition of "victim' as inserted by the Code of Criminal Procedure (Amendment) Act, 2008 (Act 5 of 2009) by adding sub-section (wa) in Section 2, which provides that "victim" means "a person who has suffered any loss or injury caused by reason of the act or omission for which the accused person has been charged and the expression "victim" includes his or her guardian or legal heir'.

31. It is also a settled law, as interpreted by the Supreme Court and various High Courts, that victim does not include each and every person or merely an informant, who has lodged a first information report and the term "victim' has to be interpreted as per the definition noted above. We need not go deep into the same. Therefore, from a perusal of the scheme of the right to appeal against acquittal, as reflected from a reading of the above noted provisions, it is clear that initially the right to appeal was exclusively with the State Government and it was not available even to the complainant, even if a public servant was a complainant, leave alone a private individual or any other agency.

32. As has already been noticed, Section 417 of Cr.P.C. 1898 provided for appeal on behalf of the government in cases of acquittal and no other person was authorized to file appeal and that this provision has undergone a major change in Cr.P.C. 1973, Section 378 whereof provides for appeal in cases of acquittal. The term local government has been substituted with several individual agencies to which we are not concerned, however, this is to be noted that even the right of a public servant to file appeal, who is a complainant, has been made limited to be exercised within six months and private complainant can come forward with an application for grant of special leave to appeal from the order of acquittal, which has been limited to sixty days only. Therefore, clearly, the legislature was always conscious of the extent to which the right to appeal is to be provided to different agencies, where they appear in a different capacities.

34. Now coming to the provisions regarding abatement of appeals, we may note that vide Section 431 of Cr.P.C. it was provided that every appeal under Section 417 (appeal on behalf of government in case of acquittal) shall finally abate on the death of the accused and every other appeal under this Chapter (except an appeal from a sentence of fine) shall finally abate on the death of the appellant. This provision has also undergone a substantial change in Cr.P.C. 1973. Sub-section (1) of Section 394 of Cr.P.C. 1973 provides that every appeal under Section 377 or Section 388 shall finally abate on the death of the accused.

37. The second part of Section 431 of Cr.P.C. 1898, broadly speaking, has now been changed as significantly a "proviso' has been added in sub-section (2) and an explanation has also been added to the entire Section 394 of Cr.P.C. 1973. We may take note of the "proviso' to Section 394 Cr.P.C. once again, which provides that "where the appeal is against a conviction and sentence of death or of imprisonment, and the appellant dies during the pendency of the appeal, any of his near relatives may, within thirty days of the death of the appellant, apply to the Appellate Court for leave to continue the appeal; and if leave is granted, the appeal shall not abate'. The explanation to Section 394 provides that in this section "near relative' means a parent, spouse, lineal descendant, brother or sister. In the "proviso' added to sub-section (2) in Section 394 of Cr.P.C. 1973 it is important to note that it is in respect of an appeal against conviction and sentence of death or of imprisonment and not in respect of an appeal against acquittal. It further provides that if the appellant dies during the pendency of the appeal, any of his near relatives may, within thirty days from the death of the appellant, apply to the appellate court for leave to continue the appeal and if leave is granted, the appeal shall not abate. Thus, clearly this proviso to sub-section (2) of Section 394 Cr.P.C. 1973, is only in respect of appeal against conviction and sentence of death or of imprisonment and only near relatives as provided in the explanation, may apply for leave to continue the appeal within thirty days from the death of the appellant, and if leave is granted, the appeal shall not abate. Why this provision was added has been taken note of by the Supreme Court in Jugal Kishore Khetawat vs. State of West Bengal (2011) 11 SCC 502 wherein it was held that this is to provide a machinery whereby the children or the members of the family of a convicted person who dies during the appeal, could challenge the conviction and get rid of the odium attaching to the family due to such conviction. Paragraph 7 of the aforesaid judgment is quoted as under:-

"7. Such a proviso has been added in the following circumstances: An amendment to Section 431 was suggested in the Bill introduced in the Parliament by a private Member, Shri K.V. Raghunatha Reddy. The main object of the amendment was to provide a machinery whereby the children or the members of the family of a convicted person who dies during the appeal could challenge the conviction and get rid of the odium attaching to the family as a result of the conviction. The Law Commission of India by its Forty-First Report (September 1969, Vol. I, pp. 279-81) found the proposed amendment "eminently sound" and recommended that the amendment be made with certain modifications. Accordingly Section 394 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 has made the said proviso."

38. Now, insofar as the appeal filed against acquittal by the victim under Section 372 of Cr.P.C. 1973 is concerned, it would be covered by the plain words of sub-section (2) of Section 394 Cr.P.C. 1973, which provides that every other appeal under this Chapter (except an appeal from sentence of fine) shall finally abate on the death of the appellant. In sub-section (2) an exception has been carved out in respect of an appeal from a sentence of fine, obviously for the reason that it involves monetary reasons to the benefit of the victim.

39. As already noticed, a substantive right to prefer an appeal against acquittal was added by the amending Act No. 5 of 2009 by adding a "proviso' to Section 372 of Cr.P.C. 1973. However, significantly, no amendment was made in Section 394 Cr.P.C. 1973, which provides for abatement of appeals.

40. As already noticed, the golden rule of interpretation is that if the meaning of words of a statute are plain, effect must be given irrespective of the consequences. We may refer to the judgments of the Supreme Court in cases of Nelson Motis (supra), Kanailal Sur (supra), Vijay Anand Maharaj (supra), Gwalior Rayan Silk (supra), Raghunath Rai Bareja (supra).

41. In the light of Shah Bhojraj (supra) and Khedu Mohton (supra) it may be argued that once an appeal against acquittal is entertained by the High Court, it becomes the duty of the High Court to decide the same irrespective of the fact that the appellant either does not choose to prosecute it or is unable to prosecute it for one reason or the other. In Motiram Ghelabhai (supra) and Sundaram Pillai (supra), the Supreme Court laid down that the "proviso' added to Section 372 Cr.P.C. 1973 is a fresh enactment giving a substantive right to file appeal against acquittal to the victim [as defined in Section 2 (wa)], which was added by the same amending act, being Act No. 5 of 2009.

42. As observed in P. Laxmi Devi (supra) and Super Cassettes Industries (supra) it is a settled law that the right to file an appeal is a statutory right and it can be circumscribed by condition / conditions of the statute granting it. In this view of the settled law, it is extremely important to note that at the time when the judgment in Khedu Mohton (supra) was passed by the Supreme Court, the proviso to Section 372 of Cr.P.C. 1973 was not in existence and in Cr.P.C. 1973 provision of abatement of appeals was substantially changed in comparison to Section 431 Cr.P.C. 1898.

43. In an appeal against conviction, the right of near relatives to get themselves substituted within a limited period was protected so that they may come forward to prosecute the appeal for the purpose of removing the stigma on the family. However, no such right of a victim was protected. No right to substitute the victim has been granted under Section 394 Cr.P.C. 1973. It is also pertinent to note that sub-section (2) of Section 394 Cr.P.C. 1973 provides that every other appeal shall abate on the death of the appellant.

46. This clearly indicates that the Supreme Court has also held that the right to file appeal under Section 372 Cr.P.C. 1973, as added by proviso by amending Act No. 5 of 2009, is different from the right to file appeal in case of acquittal as provided under Section 378 Cr.P.C. 1973. A clear distinction, therefore, has been noted by the Supreme Court between Section 372 Cr.P.C. 1973 and Section 378 Cr.P.C. 1973. It may also be noticed that there is also a difference in the definition of "victim' as provided under Section 2(wa) of Cr.P.C. 1973 and of the word "complainant' as defined under Section 2(d) of Cr.P.C. 1973.

47. It is, therefore, clear that in view of the amended provision of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the judgment of the Supreme Court in case of Khedu Mohton (supra) would not be applicable now and is, thus, clearly distinguishable.

48. There is yet another aspect of the matter. Insofar as the rules of interpretation are concerned, there is a rule which provides that "regard to consequences' are also be taken into consideration while interpreting any statutory provision. However, as already noticed in the preceding paragraphs, this rule has no application when the words are acceptable to only one meaning and no alternate consideration is reasonably open. There can be no dispute that the provisions of sub-section (2) of Section 394 Cr.P.C. 1973 are absolutely plain in their language and must be given effect to irrespective of the consequences. Therefore, the view that in case the appeal filed by the victim is not abated on the death of the appellant, the consequences may be serious, would not be applicable in the present case."

7. There is yet another aspect of the matter. The concept of substitution and impleadment is foreign to the criminal law. Appeal is the creation of statute. General provisions of appeal in criminal law are governed by the Code of Criminal Procedure. In Civil Law provisions of Code of Civil Procedure are applicable which also provides for substitution as well as for impleadment. However, there are no such provisions in the Criminal Procedure Code. Regarding the issue involved herein the only exception that may be noted in Section 394 (2) proviso and Explanation to the Section, which, as already considered in Prithvi Singh (Supra), does not cover appeal against acquittal.

8. Therefore, we find that the appellant cannot be substituted by his son even by filing an application filed as 'impleadment' application as done in the present appeal, or say that even if, the application has been filed as 'impleadment' application and not as 'substitution' application. In other words, neither substitution application, nor impleadment application would be maintainable in case of death of the appellant in appeal against acquittal filed under Section 372 Cr.P.C.

9. In Prithvi Singh (Supra) it was also considered that as provided by Section 394 Cr.P.C. even in a case of appeal against conviction only a limited right has been given for the purpose of filing substitution which too could have been filed only within 30 days and not beyond that. Whereas this is an appeal against acquittal wherein the aforesaid provision is not at all attracted.

10. While considering the judgement of Prithvi Singh (supra), we have rejected one substitution application filed under similar circumstance in Criminal Misc. Application U/S 372 Cr.P.C. (Leave to Appeal) No. 15 of 2017 (Jai Prasad Singh Vs. State of U.P. and Ors.) as not maintainable. Consequently, the delay condonation application filed in support of the substitution application was also rejected and the appeal was dismissed as abated.

11. Accordingly, the impleadment application filed by son of the deceased appellant stands rejected as not maintainable.

In Appeal

1. Since the appellant in the present case had died consequently, for the discussions made herein above, the appeal stands dismissed as abated.

(A) INTRODUCTION

1. Appellants, Haji Mohboob Ahmad and Syed Akhlaq Ahmad, claiming themselves to be victim, have filed the instant criminal appeal under Section 372 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (hereinafter referred to as ''Cr.P.C.'), challenging the judgment and order dated 30.09.2020 passed by the Special Judge (Ayodhya Matter), Lucknow in Sessions Trial No. 344 of 1994 : State Vs. Pawan Kumar Pandey and others arising out of Case Crime No. 197 of 1992 and Sessions Trial No. 423 of 2017 : State Vs. Lal Krishna Advani and others, (R.C. 8 (s)/92-S.I.U-V/S.I.C.-II, R.C. No. 1 (S)/93-S.I.C.-IV and R.C. No.2 (S)/93 along with 48 (S)/93, under Sections 147, 149, 120-B, 114 read with Section 153A, 153B, 505, 295, 295A, 395, 332/338, 201 and 505 (1) (b) of the Indian Penal Code (in short, "IPC'), whereby accused persons were acquitted.

(B) FACTUAL MATRIX

2. On 6th December, 1992, the disputed structure, popularly known as "Ram Janam Bhoomi/Babri Masjid" at Ayodhya was demolished by a group of persons. Consequent upon demolition of the aforesaid structure, two cases were registered on the same day i.e. (i) Crime No. 197/1992 under Sections 395, 397, 332, 337, 238, 295, 297, 153A IPC was registered by the police of Police Station Ram Janam Bhoomi, District Faizabad, against unnamed Kar Sevaks; and (ii) Crime No. 198 of 1992 was also registered by the police of Police Station Ram Janam Bhoomi District Faizabad wherein eight persons were implicated as accused under Sections 153A, 153B, 505, 147, 149 IPC. In the aforesaid cases, there were allegations of widespread commission of robbery, rioting and mischief and other minor offences by different groups of persons against the media and 47 crimes were also registered for offences punishable under Sections 392, 394, 395, 147, 427, 336, etc. The investigation of the crime registered as Case Crime No. 197 of 92 was entrusted to the Central Bureau of Investigation (C.B.I.) on 13.12.1992, upon which the CBI re-registered the case as R.C. No. 8(S)/92-SIU.V-New Delhi. However, the investigation of Case Crime No. 198 of 92 was taken over by CBCID of the State of Uttar Pradesh on 10.12.1992. On 16.12.1992, the State of Uttar Pradesh, in consultation with this Court, established a Special Court of Judicial Magistrate First Class with its place of sitting at Lalitpur, to try the case relating to Crime No. 198/1992. The CB CID of the State filed the final report under Section 173 of the Cr.P.C. After that, Crime No. 198 of 1992 had been registered against all eight accused persons named in the First Information Report, for the offences under Sections 153A, 153B, 505, 147 and 149 IPC. Thereafter, the Special Judicial Magistrate at Lalitpur took cognizance of the case on 1.3.1993.

By Notification dated 8.7.1993, the State Government, after consultation with the High Court, shifted the place of sitting of the Court of Special Judicial Magistrate from Lalitpur to Rae Barelli. By Notification dated 26.8.1993, the Government of India, with the consent of the Government of Uttar Pradesh entrusted the investigation of Crime No. 198/92 and cases arising from same facts/transaction to the CBI. The CBI re- registered the Crime No. 198/92 as R.C. 1(s)/93 and the other 47 related cases as R.C. Nos. 2(s)/93 to 48(s)/93.

On 8.9.1993, the Government of Uttar Pradesh, in consultation with this Court, issued a Notification establishing a Special Court of Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate at Lucknow, for trial of cases arising out of demolition of the disputed structure at Ayodhya, investigated by CBI.

In the meanwhile, on 07.12.1992, appellant no.1-Haji Mahboob Ahmad had lodged separate F.I.R., bearing Case Crime No. 201 of 1992, at police station Ram Janam Bhoomi, district Faizabad alleging therein that his house and other minority communities were looted and burnt by the lakhs of Kar Sewak gathered in Ayodhya on 06.12.1992. Appellant no.2-Syed Akhlaq Ahmad had also lodged separate F.I.R., bearing Case Crime No. 216 of 1992, in police station Ram Janam Bhoomi, district Faizabad, alleging that his house and other minority communities were looted and burnt by the lakhs of Kar Sewak gathered in Ayodhya on 06.12.1992. The investigation of the aforesaid cases filed by the appellants were conducted and after due investigation, the Investigating Officer had filed charge-sheet against the accused persons in Case Crime No. 201 of 1992, whereas in Case Crime No. 216A of 1992 filed by the appellant no.2, final report was submitted on 28.04.1993. Thereafter, Case Crime No. 201 of 1992 was committed to the Court of Sessions, Faizabad vide Sessions Trial No. 681 of 1994, wherein charges were framed against the accused persons under Sections 395, 397, 436 I.P.C. and the trial of the same was commenced and ultimately, the trial Court, after hearing the parties and going through the evidence on record, acquitted the accused persons by means of the judgment and order dated 02.02.1998, which attained finality as the same has not been challenged by the appellant no.1 till date.

However, charge-sheet was filed by the C.B.I. in Case Crime No. 197 of 1992 and 198 of 1992. After that both these cases were committed to the Court of Sessions vide Sessions Trial Nos. 344 of 1994, 344 (B) of 1994, 423 of 2017, 496 of 2019 and 818 of 2020, wherein apart from other witnesses, appellants were also examined as P.W.10 and P.W.53, respectively.

During pendency of the aforesaid Sessions Trial Nos. 344 of 1994, 344 (B) of 1994, 423 of 2017, 496 of 2019 and 818 of 2020, appellants had filed application under Section 2 (wa) and Section 24 (8) of the Cr.P.C. on 21.08.2020, which was rejected by the trial Court vide order dated 25.08.2020 and the same attained finality as the same has not been challenged by the appellants further before any superior Court. After that the trial Court, after hearing the parties and going through the evidence on record, has passed the impugned judgment and order dated 30.09.2020, acquitting the accused persons from the charges levelled against them.

Feeling aggrieved by the acquittal of the accused persons by the impugned judgment and order dated 30.09.2020, the appellants have approached this Court by filing criminal revision no. 26 of 2021, which, on the request of appellants' Counsel, directed the office to treat it as an appeal filed under Section 372 Cr.P.C. and allot regular number vide order dated 18.07.2022 passed by the learned Single Judge.

In pursuance of the aforesaid order dated 18.07.2022, the office has treated the aforesaid criminal revision as an appeal filed under Section 372 of the Cr.P.C. and allotted number as Criminal Appeal U/s 372 Cr.P.C. No. 79 of 2022.

3. Heard Shri Syed Farman Naqvi, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Shri Najam Zafar, Mohammad Amit Naqvi, Shri Munwar Hussain, appearing on behalf of the appellants, Shri Arunendra, learned Additional Government Advocate appearing on behalf of respondent no.1/State, Shri Shiv P. Shukla, learned Counsel appearing on behalf of respondent no.2/C.B.I. and Shri Raghvendra Singh, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Shri Abhishek Singh, appearing on behalf of the respondent no.28, on the question of locus of the appellants to maintain the instant appeal.

(C) PRELIMINARY OBJECTION ON BEHALF OF THE RESPONDENTS

4. At the outset, Shri Shiv P. Shukla, learned Counsel for the respondent no.2/C.B.I. has raised a preliminary objection regarding the locus of the appellants to maintain the instant appeal and argued that on 06.12.1992, two F.I.Rs. were registered i.e. (i) F.I.R. No. 197 of 1992 against lakhs of unknown Kar Sewaks ; and (ii) F.I.R. No. 198 of 1992 against eight accused persons, relating to demolition of disputed structure at Ayodhya in police station Ramjanam Bhoomi, District Faizabad. Subsequently, 47 other cases relating to assault on media persons were also registered in police station Ramjanam Bhoomi, District Faizabad. He argued that the investigation of Case Crime No. 197 of 1992, Case Crime No. 198 of 1992 and 47 other cases were entrusted to the C.B.I. by the State of U.P. After completion of investigation, composite charge-sheet was filed against 49 accused persons for their complicity in the commission of various offences. The trial Court, after hearing the parties and going through the evidence on record, had passed the impugned judgment and order dated 30.09.2020, acquitting all the accused persons facing trial. He argued that appellants are only the prosecution witnesses in the Sessions Trial arising out of Case Crime No. 197 of 1992 and Case Crime No. 198 of 1992 and their depositions were recorded in the trial Court in the aforesaid Sessions Trial. His submission is that the appellants are neither complainants nor victims, therefore, they have no locus standi to challenge the impugned judgment and order dated 30.09.2020, hence the instant appeal is liable to be dismissed on this ground alone.

5. Learned Additional Government Advocate for the State/ respondent no.1 has adopted the aforesaid arguments of the learned Counsel for the C.B.I and in addition, he argued that separate F.I.R., bearing Case Crime No. 201 of 1992, under Sections 395, 397 and 436 I.P.C. was lodged by the appellant no.1 in police station Ramjanam Bhoomi, district Faizabad, whereas appellant no.2 had lodged separate F.I.R., bearing Case Crime No. 216A of 1992, under Sections 395, 436, 295, 297 and 153A I.P.C. at Police Station Ramjanam Bhoomi, district Lucknow. The investigation of the aforesaid cases were conducted and after due investigation, as no incriminating material was found against the accused persons in Case Crime No. 216A of 1992 lodged by the appellant no.2, hence the Investigating Officer had filed final report on 28.04.1993, whereas in Case Crime No.

201 of 1992 lodged by the appellant no.1, charge-sheet was filed against the accused persons and it was committed to the Court of Sessions vide Sessions Trial No. 681 of 1994. The trial Court, after hearing the parties and going through the evidence on record, acquitted the accused persons vide judgment and order dated 02.02.1998. He argued that both i.e. final report dated 24.04.1993 filed in the case lodged by the appellant no.2 and the judgment and order dated 02.02.1998 filed in the case lodged by the appellant no.1 had attained finality as the same were not challenged by the appellants before any superior Court. Hence the appellants have no locus to maintain the instant appeal.

6. Shri Raghvendra Singh, learned Senior Advocate appearing on behalf of respondent no.28 has also raised a preliminary objection regarding the locus of the appellants to maintain the instant appeal and has argued that in view of Section 372 of the Cr.P.C., no appeal shall lie from a judgment or order passed by a criminal Court except as provided by the Cr.P.C. or by any other law which authorises an appeal. Proviso to Section 372 of the Cr.P.C. gives a limited right to the victim to file an appeal in the High Court against any order of a criminal Court acquitting the accused or convicting them for a lesser offence or the imposition of inadequate compensation. He argued that the appellants are only the prosecution witnesses and they have no concern with the subject matter of the trial of the instant case as neither they are complainants of the case nor the injured persons nor charges as alleged by the appellants were framed in the instant case, therefore, appellants have no locus to challenge the acquittal of the accused persons from the charges levelled against them by preferring the instant appeal under Section 372 of the Cr.P.C.

7. Shri Raghvendra Singh has further placed before us the judgment of the Apex Court in State (through Central Bureau of Investigation) Vs. Kalyan Singh (Former Chief Minister of Uttar Pradesh) and others : (2017) 7 SCC 444 and argued that in State (through Central Bureau of Investigation) Vs. Kalyan Singh (Former Chief Minister of Uttar Pradesh) and others (Supra), notifications issued by the State Government for transfer of cases to the Special Court, Lucknow by clubbing all 49 FIRs including F.I.R. No. 198 of 1992 were challenged by the appellants also by filing Special Leave to Appeal (Criminal) No. 2705 of 2015, wherein the appellants' Counsel was permitted to argue the matter treating them as an intervenor only on questions of law. His submission is that during the course of challenge of notifications in the aforesaid case, the Apex Court had only heard the appellants as intervenors and the appellants were not treated as "victim' of the case, therefore, the appellants' claim that they are the "victims' of the instant case, has no substance.

8. It has further been stated by Sri Raghvendra Singh that on 07.12.1992, appellant no.1-Haji Maboob Ahmad had filed a written report, alleging therein that lakhs of Kar Sewak gathered at Ayodhya, while entering into the houses of minority communities, burnt and looted their houses including the house of appellants. On the basis of the aforesaid written report, Case Crime No. 201 of 1992 was registered. Thereafter, after due investigation, chargesheet dated 15.05.1993 was filed before the Court concerned. After that the case was committed to the Court of Sessions vide Sessions Trial No. 681 of 1994 : State Vs. Lutawan and others, where charges under Section 395, 397, 436 I.P.C. were framed against the accused persons. The Additional District & Sessions Judge, Faizabad, after hearing the parties and going through the evidence on record including the statement of P.W.1-Hazi Mahboob (complainant/appellant no.1 herein) as well as the statement of the accused persons recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C., acquitted the accused persons vide judgment and order dated 02.02.1998. This judgment and order dated 02.02.1998 was not challenged by the appellant no.1 before the superior Courts and kept mum/silent for about 22 years, however, all of a sudden, appellants woke up from deep slumber on 21.08.2020 and filed an application under Section 2 (wa) and Section 24 (8) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 before the Special Judge (Ayodhya Matter), Lucknow in Sessions Trial Nos. 344/1994 and 423 of 2017, which was rejected by a common order dated 25.08.2020, however, again the same was not challenged by the appellants before the superior Court. Thereafter, impugned order dated 30.09.2020 was passed. He argued that after about four months, the appellants have filed the instant appeal, challenging the judgment and order dated 30.09.2020. His submission is that order dated 02.02.1998 passed in Sessions Trial No. 681 of 1994 in connection with the separate F.I.R. i.e. F.I.R. No. 201 of 1992 lodged by the appellant no.1 himself and the order dated 25.08.2020 passed in Sessions Trial no. 344 of 1994 and 423 of 2017 in connection with the application preferred by the appellants under Section 2 (wa) and Section 24 (8) of the Cr.P.C. have attained finality, therefore, the same can be regarded as res judicata in view of the dictum of the Apex Court in State (through Central Bureau of Investigation) Vs. Kalyan Singh (Former Chief Minister of Uttar Pradesh) and others (Supra). Hence, on this count also, appellants have no locus to maintain the instant appeal.

(D) RESPONSE TO THE PRELIMINARY OBJECTION ON BEHALF OF THE APPELLANTS.

9. Per contra, Shri Syed Farman Naqvi, learned Senior Advocate appearing on behalf of the appellants argued that Case Crime No. 201 of 1992 was lodged by the appellant no.1-Haji Mahboob Ahmed in district Faizabad, whereas appellant no.2-Syed Akhlaq Ahmad had filed Case Crime No. 216 of 1992 in relation to the burning of his house and looting his house-holds. In Case Crime Nos. 201 of 1992 lodged by the appellant no.1, investigation was concluded and charge-sheet was filed against the accused persons, however, the trial Court acquitted the accused persons by means of order dated 02.02.1998, whereas in Case Crime No. 216A of 1992 lodged by the appellant no.2 after investigation, a final report was submitted in the competent Court on 28.04.1993. He argued that in the instant case, the prosecution had examined appellant no.1-Haji Mahboob Ahmad as P.W.10 and appellant no.2-Syed Akhlaq Ahmad as P.W.53 and both of them along with other witnesses have categorically stated before the trial Court in the statements about all the facts, occurrence and their personal losses, but the trial Court erred in not considering the statements made by them and erroneously acquitted the accused persons by means of the impugned judgment and order dated 30.09.2020. He argued that neither the State Agency nor the C.B.I. has investigated the F.I.R. lodged by the appellants in a right perspective nor the State Agency or the C.B.I. has gone through the statements of the appellants recorded in the instant case as P.W.10 and P.W.53 before the trial Court nor the prosecution had placed the matter before the trial Court in right perspective, on account of which, the accused were acquitted by the trial Court. He argued that as per Section 2 (wa) of Cr.P.C. and Section 25 (8) of Cr.P.C., the appellants are the victims and as such, they have locus to challenge the impugned judgment and order passed by the trial Court.

10. Shri Naqvi has drawn our attention to the order dated 25.08.2020 passed in Sessions Trial Nos. 344 of 1994, 423 of 20017, 796 of 2019 and 818 of 2020 and argued that before passing the impugned judgment, the appellants had filed an application before the trial Court to permit them to advance oral arguments at the time of arguments as the appellants are the victims but the trial Court rejected the same vide order dated 25.08.2020. Thereafter, the appellants have collected the documents for challenging the order dated 25.08.2020 but in the meanwhile, the impugned order dated 30.09.2020 has been passed and as such, appellants did not challenge the order dated 25.08.2020, rejecting the applications filed by them under Section 2 (wa) and 25 (8) of the Cr.P.C.

11. Shri Naqvi has invited our attention to the judgment and order dated 06.07.2005 (Annexure No. RA-5) passed by the learned Single Judge of this Court in Criminal Revision No. 482 of 2003 : Dr. Murli Manohar Joshi Vs. State of U.P. and connected Criminal Revision No. 492 of 2003 : Ashok Singhal and Acharya Giriraj Kishore Vs. State of U.P., Criminal Revision No. 493 of 2003 : Miss Uma Bharti Vs. State of U.P., Criminal Revision No. 494 of 2003 : Vinay Katiyar Vs. State of U.P., Criminal Revision No. 495 of 2003 : Vishnu Hari Dalmia and Sadhvi Ritambhara Vs. State of U.P. and Criminal Revision No. 619 of 2003 : Haji Mahboob Ahmad and Mohammad Siddiq alias Hatiz Mohammad Siddiq Vs. State of U.P. and others and argued that in the aforesaid criminal revisions, the order dated 19.09.2003 passed by the Special Judicial Magistrate, Raebareli in Criminal Case No. 768 of 2003 : State Vs. Lal Krishna Advani and others, whereby direction was issued to frame charge against Dr. Murli Manohar Joshi, Ashok Singhal, Vishnu Hari Dalmia, Acharya Giriraj Kishore, Miss Uma Bharti and Sadhvi Ritambhara under Sections 147, 149, 153-A, 153-B and 505 I.P.C. and discharged Shri Lal Krishna Advani of these charges, were challenged. He argued that by means of the judgment and order dated 06.07.2005, the learned Single Judge of this Court had also considered the arguments of the accused persons/ revisionists with regard to the maintainability of Criminal Revision No. 619 of 2013 filed by the private persons i.e. appellant no.1 herein and one Mohammad Siddiq alias Hafiz Mohammad Siddiq. The learned Single Judge, after great discussion on the point of the maintainability of the criminal revision filed by the appellant no.1 and one another, had opined that the criminal revision filed by the appellant no.1 is maintainable and accordingly the same was admitted. In these backdrops, his submission is that once earlier the revision filed by the appellant no.1 was declared as maintainable and his revision was admitted, therefore, the appellants in the present case also have locus to challenge the impugned judgment and order passed by the trial Court.

12. In support of his submission, learned Senior Counsel has relied upon the judgments of the Apex Court in Sukhdev Singh Vs. State of Punjab : 1982 (2) SCC 439; Balraj Vs. State of U.P. : 1994 (4) SCC 29; Giani Ram Vs. State of Haryana and others : AIR 1995 SC 2452; Baldev Singh and another Vs. State of Punjab : AIR 1996 SC 372; Shri Bodhisattwa Gautam Vs. Miss. Subhra Chakraborty : AIR 1996 SC 922; Rudul Sah Vs. State of Bihar and another : AIR 1983 SC 1086; SAHELI, a Women's Resources Centre through Ms. Nalini Bhanot and others Vs. Commissioner of Police, Delhi and others : AIR 1990 SC 513; Ashok K. Johri Vs. State of U.P. : AIR 1997 SC 610; and Zahira Habibulla H. Sheikh and another Vs. State of Gujarat and others : (2004) 4 SCC 158.

13. At this stage, so far as the plea of the appellants that since in earlier revision filed by the appellants, the revision filed by the appellant no.1 and one another was declared as maintainable and the same was admitted by the learned Single Judge of this Court by means of the order dated 06.07.2005, is concerned, Shri Raghvendra Singh, learned Senior Advocate, appearing on behalf of the respondent no.28 argued that while passing the order dated 06.07.2005, the learned Single Judge had not observed that the revisionists (appellant no.1 herein and another revisionist) are the "victims' of the case, therefore, the appellants' plea in this regard has no substance and is liable to be rejected.

(E) ANALYSIS

14. We have examined the rival contentions of the learned Counsel for the parties and gone through the impugned judgment as well as material brought on record on the preliminary question raised before this Court regarding the locus of the appellants to maintain the instant appeal under Section 372 Cr.P.C.

15. Before we proceed further, it would be apt to note that word 'victim' is defined in Section 2(wa) of the Cr.P.C., which was introduced vide the Cr.P.C. (Amendment) Act, 2008 w.e.f. 31.12.2009 and the same reads as under :-

"victim" means a person who has suffered any loss or injury caused by reason of the act or omission for which the accused person has been charged and the expression "victim" includes his or her guardian or legal heir;

16. The meaning and purport of the aforesaid word "victim' has been considered by a Full Bench of this Court in the case of Manoj Kumar Singh v. State of U.P. & ors. : 2016 (97) ACC 861, wherein it has been held that

"70. From the discussions that have been made above, it is clear that the proviso of section 372 is an exception to the general law and same confers on a victim a right to appeal against acquittal, which is subject to the grant of leave by the Court. The first part of the definition of "victim' as given under section 2(wa) (i.e. "Victim" means a person who has suffered any loss or injury caused by reason of the act or omission for which the accused person has been charged), is required to be construed in its literal sense and no liberal interpretation is required. Accordingly, only such person would be treated as "victim', who is the subject-matter of trial being direct sufferer of crime in terms of loss or injury caused to his own body, mind, reputation and property and such loss or injury is one of the ingredient of the offence for which the accused person has been charged and, therefore, any other person cannot be accepted as victim within the first part of section 2 (wa) for the purposes of maintaining appeal. The second part that is "includes his or her guardian and Legal Heir" would come into play when the actual sufferer is absent or suffers disability.

71. In other words, victim means the actual sufferer of offence (receiver of harm caused by the alleged offence) and no person other than actual receiver of harm can be treated as victim of offence, so as to provide him/her right to prefer appeal under the proviso of section 372, though, in his or her absence or disability, his "legal heir" or "guardian" would qualify as victim and have a right to appeal. A person who claims himself to be "guardian' or "legal heir' of actual victim (direct sufferer), would be able to maintain appeal provided he establishes his claim as such before the Court in his application by disclosing his particulars; relationship with the direct sufferer; and the grounds on which such claim of being "legal heir" or "guardian" is based. In the light of the discussion made above, the ratio of Division Bench of this Court in the case of Edal Singh (supra) is in tune with the definition of "victim' as provided under section 2(wa) of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The reference is answered accordingly.

72. Let the order as well as the record be placed before appropriate Bench dealing with the "Leave to Appeal" application." (emphasis supplied)

17. It is true that the right to appeal against the acquittal of the accused is not a mere matter of procedure but is a substantive right of the "victim'.

18. However, in the instant case, the question is whether the appellants are the victims of the case or not and they have locus to file the instant appeal under Section 372 Cr.P.C. or not.

19. The contention of the appellants is that the prosecution had examined them as P.W.10 and P.W.53, respectively, in the instant case and they had narrated all the facts, occurrence and their personal losses in their depositions before the trial Court, but even then the trial Court had erroneously acquitted the accused persons without considering the depositions of the appellants by means of the impugned judgment, therefore, the appellants being victims have every right/locus to challenge the impugned judgment and order by filing the instant appeal under Section 372 Cr.P.C.

20. To counteract the aforesaid contention of the appellants, it has been pleaded by the respondents that the appellants are only the prosecution witnesses of the case and while passing the impugned judgment and order, the trial Court had tested their depositions to the other evidences available on record and if the trial Court found the appellants' depositions were not trustworthy or reliable while considering the other evidences on record, it cannot be presumed that the appellants are the victims. They contended that allegations so levelled by the appellants were not the subject matter of the trial but the allegations of the appellants that their houses were burnt and their house-holds were looted by the unknown Kar Sewaks assembled in Ayodhya on 06.12.1992 were tested by the trial Court in a separate sessions trial i.e. Sessions Trial No. 681 of 1994 arising out of Case Crime No. 201 of 1992 filed by the appellant no.1, wherein the trial Court, vide judgment and order dated 02.02.1998, acquitted the accused persons, however, the said judgment and order dated 02.02.1998 has not been challenged by the appellants till date. Moreso, application filed by the appellants under Section 2(wa) and 24 (8) Cr.P.C., during the pendency of Sessions Trial No. 344 of 1994 and 423 of 1994 arising out of Case Crime No. 197 of 1992 and 198 of 1992, respectively, before the trial Court, was also rejected by the trial Court vide order dated 25.08.2020, which has also attained finality as the same has not been challenged before any superior Court till date. Thus, the orders dated 02.02.1998 and 25.08.2020 can be regarded as res judicata and the instant appeal is liable to be dismissed on the ground of lack of locus of the appellants to file the instant appeal.

21. Undisputed facts are that impugned judgment and order has been passed by the trial Court on the charges framed in Sessions Trial Nos. 344 of 1994, 344-B of 1994, 423 of 2017, 796 of 2019 and 818 of 2020. Appellants' allegations of burning their houses and looting house-hold articles by unknown Kar Sewaks assembled in the year 1992 were not tested/ examined by the trial Court in the impugned judgment and order but the appellants for the aforesaid allegations had filed separate F.I.Rs., bearing Case Crime No. 201 of 1992, under Sections 395, 397, 436 I.P.C. and Case Crime No. 216A of 1992, under Sections 395, 436, 295, 297 and 153A IPC in police station Ram Janam Bhoomi, district Faizabad, respectively. In Case Crime No. 216A of 1992, the Investigating Officer, after due investigation, had filed final report on 28.04.1993, whereas allegations made in Case Crime No. 201 of 1992 was tried by the trial Court in Sessions Trial No. 681 of 1994 and vide judgment and order dated 02.02.1998, the trial Court acquitted the accused persons. Both i.e. final report dated 28.04.1993 submitted against the accused persons and the order of acquittal dated 02.02.1998, have not been challenged by the appellants in any superior Courts and the same attained finality. However, the prosecution had examined the appellants in Sessions Trial Nos. 344 of 1994, 344-B of 1994, 423 of 2017, 796 of 2019 and 818 of 2020 as P.W.10 and P.W.53. During pendency of these sessions trials and after recording their depositions therein, appellants had filed application under Section 2(wa) and Section 24 (8) of the Cr.P.C. on 21.08.2020 before the Special Judge (Ayodhya Matter), Lucknow, who, vide judgment and order dated 25.08.2020, rejected the aforesaid application. The appellants did not challenge the order dated 25.08.2020 (supra). Thereafter, the trial Court has passed the judgment and order dated 30.09.2020, which is impugned in the instant appeal, acquitting the accused persons from all the charges levelled against them. Now, the appellants have filed the instant appeal.

22. From the aforesaid undisputed facts and circumstances of the case, it is quite apparent that accused persons were tried by the trial Court in Sessions Trial Nos. 344 of 1994, 344-B of 1994, 423 of 2017, 796 of 2019 and 818 of 2020 for the F.I.R. lodged by the police of Police Station Ramjanam Bhoomi in Case Crime No. 197 of 1992 and 198 of 1992 and the allegations so made by the appellants were not the part of the charges upon which the accused persons were tried by the trial Court and the impugned judgment and order dated 30.09.2020 was passed, rather the allegations so made by the appellant no.1 herein were tried in a separate Sessions Trial No. 681 of 1994 arising out of the F.I.R. lodged by him i.e. Case Crime No. 201 of 1992, under Sections 395, 397, 436 I.P.C., in which accused persons were acquitted by means of the judgment and order dated 02.02.1998, whereas in the F.I.R. i.e. Case Crime No. 216 A of 1992 lodged by the appellant no.2, final report was submitted on 28.04.1993. Therefore, in view of the judgment of the Full Bench of this Court in Manoj Kumar Singh Vs. State of U.P. (supra), the appellants herein cannot be treated as "victims' of the instant case. Thus, this Court is of the considered view that the appellants have no locus to challenge the impugned judgment and order dated 30.09.2020 passed by the trial Court.

23. At this juncture, it would also be apt to note that as stated hereinabove, judgment and order dated 02.02.1998 passed in Sessions Trial No. 681 of 1994 arising out of Case Crime No. 201 of 1992 lodged by the appellant no.1 and final report dated 28.04.1993 filed in Case Crime No. 216A of 1992 lodged by appellant no.2, have attained finality, therefore, this Court is of the view that both the orders dated 02.02.1998 and 28.04.1993 can be regarded as res judicata in view of the judgment of the Apex Court in State Vs. Kalyan Singh and others (supra).

24. So far as the plea of the appellants that since Criminal Revision No. 619 of 2003 was admitted by the learned Single Judge by means of order dated 06.07.2005, hence they can challenge the impugned judgment and order passed by the trial Court is concerned, it transpires from perusal of the order dated 06.07.2005 passed by the learned Single Judge that four points for adjudication of the issue of revision were framed and considered by the learned Single Judge, out of which point no.1 was that "whether Criminal Revision No. 619 of 2003 filed by Haji Mahboob Ahmad and Mohammad Siddiq alias Hafiz Mohammad Siddiq, both private persons, is maintainable' and while considering it, the learned Single Judge exercised the suo moto revisional powers as enshrined in him on the strength of the various dictum of the Apex Court, however, in nowhere while considering point no.1, the learned Single Judge had opined that the revisionists are the victims, hence the revision is maintainable. Thus, this Court is of the view that arguments of the learned Senior Counsel appearing on behalf of the appellants in this regard have no force and are, accordingly, rejected.

25. The judgments relied upon by the learned Senior Counsel appearing on behalf of the appellants are distinguishable from the facts and circumstances of the present case.

(F) CONCLUSION

26. Considering the facts and circumstances of the case and also taking into consideration the dictum of the Full Bench of this Court in Manoj Kumar Singh (supra), this Court is of the view that the appellants cannot be treated as "victims', therefore, they have no locus to maintain the instant appeal.

27. In view of the foregoing discussion, this Court is of the opinion that the instant criminal appeal filed on behalf of the appellants under Section 372 Cr.P.C., under the facts and circumstances of the case, is liable to be dismissed on the ground of non-availability of the locus of the appellants to challenge the impugned judgment and order dated 30.09.2020 passed by the trial Court, hence the same is, accordingly, dismissed.

1. Heard Shri Ram Kumar Pal, learned counsel for the appellant and Shri Kailash Prakash Pathak, learned AGA representing the State and also perused the record.

2. Present criminal appeal has been filed challenging the judgement and order of acquittal dated 15.10.2018 passed by learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.2/Special Judge, SC/ST Act, Kanpur Nagar in Session Trial No.601 of 2003 (State vs. Kulveer Singh), arising out of Case Crime No.77/2000, under Sections 302, 201 I.P.C. and Section 3(2)(5) of SC/ST Act, P.S. Naubasta, District Kanpur Nagar by which the learned trial Judge has acquitted the accused-respondents Kulveer Singh and Vasudev from the charges of Sections 302, 201 I.P.C. and Section 3(2)(5) of SC/ST Act.

3. Before coming to the merits of the case, it is imperative to give brief facts of the case which have given rise to the present appeal.

PROSECUTION STORY :

4. Sum and substance of prosecution case mentioned in the F.I.R., which is based on conjectures, surmises and self-belief, that accused-respondents have committed this offence against the husband of the informant. Though from the F.I.R. it is clear that this is not a case of direct evidence but the deceased was missing since 07.01.2000 and his dead body was recovered on 22.01.2020 in a drain near Hamirpur Road Daskuwa. After getting this information, the informant reached to that place and identified the dead body. In the F.I.R. it has been mentioned that the informant has firm faith that the author of the offence are Kulveer, Kayamuddin and Vasudev are the real culprits. They used to snatch away the money from the deceased. It is also born out from the record that the deceased has taken Rs.5000/- as loan from the accused-respondents and they were insisting to repay that amount and on this score the present F.I.R. was lodged. The date and time of lodging of the F.I.R. is 25.01.2000 at 14.20 hours and it was registered as Case Crime No.77/2000, u/s 302/201 I.P.C. at Police Station Naubasta, Kanpur Nagar.

5. Inquest report was prepared on 22.01.2000. From the dead body, a pass-book of Punjab Sindh Bank and a spectacles were recovered. Thereafter the autopsy of the dead body was conducted on 23.01.2000 at around 01.30 P.M. by Dr. Satish Chandra, K.P.M. Hospital, who found three injuries over the deceased, viz, (i) bruise contusion with swelling over the left ear in front of the neck, (ii) bruise contusion in front of the neck and (iii) bruise contusion in front of the chest and just below the injury no.(ii). Brain was found congested and heart was empty. Doctor has opined that expected time of occurrence is about one week back from the said recovery, by strangulating the neck of the deceased.

6. After holding in-depth probe into the matter, whereby the police has recorded statements of as many as 10 witnesses, charge sheet has been submitted by the police on 27.07.2001 against accused Kulveer Singh, Vasudev and Kayum @ Kayamuddin u/s 302, 201 I.P.C. and Section 3(2)5 of SC/ST Act. Since all the offences are triable by the sessions, therefore, matter was committed to the session court for trial. Curiously enough the charges were also framed under the same sections against the accused-respondents.

7. In order to establish the case, prosecution has produced as many as 11 witnesses in the court for examination, namely; (i) Smt. Munni Devi, wife of the deceased and informant of the case as PW-1, (ii) Sachin Kumar as P.W.-2, (iii) Sushma as P.W.-3, (iv) Smt. Meena as P.W.-4, (v) Dr. Satish Chandra as P.W.-5, (vi) Head constable 143 Mauji Lal Mishra as P.W.-6, (vii) P.C. Mishra, Investigating Officer as P.W.-7, (viii) Shyamakant Tripathi, Investigating Officer as P.W.-8, (ix) B.N. Chaturvedi, Investigating Officer as P.W.-9, (x) Balvir Singh Chandel as P.W.-10 and (xi) H.C.1020 Mahavir Singh- P.W.-11.

8. In addition to this, prosecution has produced 10 documents which were exhibited during the trial as under :

(i) Tehrir as Ex. Ka-1, (ii) Letter sent by the deceased Ramesh Kumar to Senior Electricity Divisional Engineer as Ex. Ka-2, (iii) Postmortem report as as Ex. Ka-3, (iv) Chik F.I.R. as Ex. Ka-4, (v) Copy of G.d. as Ex. Ka-5, (vi) Report regarding destroyed G.D. as Ex. Ka-6, (vii) Site Plan as Ex. Ka-7, (viii) Charge sheet as Ex. Ka-8 (ix) Panchayatnama as Ex. Ka-9 and (x) Recovery of Pass Book and Spectacles as Ex. Ka-10.

9. Learned Trial Judge after recording the statements of all witnesses and looking into the matter, eventually landed to the conclusion that the prosecution has miserably failed to establish own case or involvement of accused persons beyond any iota of doubt and consequently giving the benefit of doubt exonerated the accused persons from the charges u/s 302, 201 I.P.C. and Section 3(2)5 of SC/ST Act.

TESTIMONY OF WITNESSES

10. The Court has got occasion to peruse and analyze the testimonies of these witnesses of facts. It is necessary to have a fleeting glance on the relevant testimonies recorded during trial.

11. In order to establish the case, prosecution produced four witnesses of fact, namely Smt. Munni Devi, informant of the case who has been examined as P.W.-1, Sachin Kumar as P.W.-2, Sushma as P.W.-3 and Smt. Meena as P.W.-4. From perusal of testimony of Smt. Munni Devi (P.W.-1) indicates that she in her testimony states that her husband was working as Fitter in Electric Loco-shed Anwarganj and Kulveer Singh, Kayamuddin and Vasdev used to snatch money from him when he used to receive his salary. Not only this, her husband has taken Rs.5000/- as loan from Kulveer Singh and these persons were insisting to repay the entire loan amount. They have overpowered the deceased and wanted to have his signature over the pay slip. On 7.1.2000 her husband went to attend the duty and since then his whereabouts was not known. She along with her son kept on searching her husband without complaining to any authority. A tangent expression was made on 14.01.2000 that her husband came along with Kayamuddin and Kulveer to C.H.O. Cooperative Bank, Govind Nagar and it was given to understand that thereafter her husband was disappeared. Eventually on 22.01.2000 the informant got an information that a dead body was lying in an abundant condition near Dasu Kuwa (Naubasta) and was taken to the mortuary. At mortuary she identified the dead body as her husband. She further states that she has all reasons to believe that on account of loan amount Kulveer, Kayamuddin and Vasdev have jointly assassinated her husband, of which on 25.01.2000 F.I.R. was registered. She also states in her testimony that all three persons used to visit the place of her husband quite frequently and all of them have very congenial relationship. Under circumstances, a million dollar question arises as to why since 7.01.2000 to 22.01.2000 no action was taken by the informant. P.W.-2 Sachin almost reiterated the prosecution version toing the line of P.W.-1, except that he too has seen the deceased while going from Kath Ka Pul on 7.1.2000. P.W.-3 Smt. Sushma and P.W.-4 Smt. Meena more or less have supported the prosecution story.

12. After assessing the entire gamut of the facts and circumstances, learned Trial Judge has arrived at the conclusion that there is no material on record to persuade him to convict the named accused persons for the charges framed against them. It was found that sum and substance of entire case hinges upon the broken links of circumstantial evidence and unit of the circumstances is not complete so as to hold the accused persons guilty, beyond any iota of doubt. He found that there is no tangible last seen evidence and the doctor, who conducted the autopsy on 23.1.2000, has opined that duration of death of the deceased is one week back that too do not corroborate the time and date of the incident. After evaluating and analyzing the entire circumstances and the material on record, the court below found that standard norms established for assessing the circumstances have not been achieved by the prosecution and the court below, therefore, has exonerated the accused-respondents from the charges u/s 302, 201 I.P.C. and Section 3(2)5 of SC/ST Act.

13. Our criminal justice dispensation system is solely dependent upon the testimonies of witnesses and when from the above mentioned testimonies it clearly comes out that none of the prosecution witnesses have proved the prosecution case beyond all reasonable doubt, then the conclusion arrived at by learned Trial Judge seems to be the more probable conclusion.

14. However, learned counsel for the appellant has tried to assail the impugned judgement by making a mention that learned trial Judge has not properly appreciated the evidence produced by the prosecution and decided the case on conjectures and surmises. He further submits that learned Trial Judge has grossly erred in disbelieving the testimony of prosecution witnesses and has given an undue importance to the version of defence. Learned Trial Judge has also not weighed and assess the prosecution witnesses in proper and perspective manner and erroneously has acquitted the accused-respondents.

LEGAL DISCUSSION :

15. The Court has got occasion to lay its hands on the latest judgements relating to scope and ambit of Sections 378 and 386 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, which speak about appeal against acquittal.

16. In the case of Rajesh Prasad vs. State of Bihar and another, (2022) 3 SCC 471, while thrashing the earlier judgements, the Hon'ble Apex Court has held as under :

"24. In Shivaji Sahabrao Bobade vs. State of Maharashtra, (1973) 2 SCC 793, Krishna Iyer, J., observed as follows:

"6. ?.. In short, our jurisprudential enthusiasm for presumed innocence must be moderated by the pragmatic need to make criminal justice potent and realistic. A balance has to be struck between chasing chance possibilities as good enough to set the delinquent free and chopping the logic of preponderant probability to punish marginal innocents."

25. This Court in Ramesh Babulal Doshi v. State of Gujarat, (1996) 9 SCC 225, spoke about the approach of the appellate court while considering an appeal against an order acquitting the accused and stated as follows:

"7. ?.. While sitting in judgment over an acquittal the appellate court is first required to seek an answer to the question whether the findings of the trial court are palpably wrong, manifestly erroneous or demonstrably unsustainable. If the appellate court answers the above question in the negative the order of acquittal is not to be disturbed. Conversely, if the appellate court holds, for reasons to be recorded, that the order of acquittal cannot at all be sustained in view of any of the above infirmities it can then and then only reappraise the evidence to arrive at its own conclusions."

The object and the purpose of the aforesaid approach is to ensure that there is no miscarriage of justice. In another words, there should not be an acquittal of the guilty or a conviction of an innocent person.

29. After referring to a catena of judgments, this Court culled out the following general principles regarding the powers of the appellate court while dealing with an appeal against an order of acquittal in the following words: (Chandrappa vs. State of Karnataka (2007) 4 SCC 415) :

"42. From the above decisions, in our considered view, the following general principles regarding powers of the appellate court while dealing with an appeal against an order of acquittal emerge:

(1) An appellate court has full power to review, reappreciate and reconsider the evidence upon which the order of acquittal is founded.

(2) The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 puts no limitation, restriction or condition on exercise of such power and an appellate court on the evidence before it may reach its own conclusion, both on questions of fact and of law.

(3) Various expressions, such as, "substantial and compelling reasons", "good and sufficient grounds", "very strong circumstances", "distorted conclusions", "glaring mistakes", etc. are not intended to curtail extensive powers of an appellate court in an appeal against acquittal. Such phraseologies are more in the nature of "flourishes of language" to emphasise the reluctance of an appellate court to interfere with acquittal than to curtail the power of the court to review the evidence and to come to its own conclusion.

(4) An appellate court, however, must bear in mind that in case of acquittal, there is double presumption in favour of the accused. Firstly, the presumption of innocence is available to him under the fundamental principle of criminal jurisprudence that every person shall be presumed to be innocent unless he is proved guilty by a competent court of law. Secondly, the accused having secured his acquittal, the presumption of his innocence is further reinforced, reaffirmed and strengthened by the trial court.

(5) If two reasonable conclusions are possible on the basis of the evidence on record, the appellate court should not disturb the finding of acquittal recorded by the trial court."

17. Similarly in Bannareddy and others vs. State of Karnataka and others, (2018) 5 SCC 790, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has been pleased to discuss the scope of the High Court to interfere in an appeal against an order of acquittal passed by a Trial Court, and in paragraph-10 it has been held that :

"10. Before we proceed further to peruse the finding of the High Court, it is relevant to discuss the power and jurisdiction of the High Court while interfering in an appeal against acquittal. It is well settled principle of law that the High Court should not interfere in the well reasoned order of the trial court which has been arrived at after proper appreciation of the evidence. The High Court should give due regard to the findings and the conclusions reached by the trial court unless strong and compelling reasons exist in the evidence itself which can dislodge the findings itself. This principle has further been elucidated in the case of Sambhaji Hindurao Deshmukh and Ors. vs. State of Maharashtra, (2008) 11 SCC 186, para 13, wherein this Court observed that:

"13??The High Court will interfere in appeals against acquittals, only where the trial court makes wrong assumptions of material facts or fails to appreciate the evidence properly. If two views are reasonably possible from the evidence on record, one favouring the accused and one against the accused, the High Court is not expected to reverse the acquittal merely because it would have taken the view against the accused had it tried the case. The very fact that two views are possible makes it clear that the prosecution has not proved the guilt of the accused beyond reasonable doubt and consequently the accused is entitled to benefit of doubt."

18. In the same chain the Hon'ble Apex Court in Jayamma and another vs. State of Karnataka, (2021) 6 SCC 213, has considered the law on the issue involved and observed thus :

"23. The other important reason to depart from the High Court's view re. conviction of the appellants is that the power of scrutiny exercisable by the High Court under Section 378, CrPC should not be routinely invoked where the view formed by the trial court was a 'possible view'. The judgment of the trial court cannot be set aside merely because the High Court finds its own view more probable, save where the judgment of the trial court suffers from perversity or the conclusions drawn by it were impossible if there was a correct reading and analysis of the evidence on record. To say it differently, unless the High Court finds that there is complete misreading of the material evidence which has led to miscarriage of justice, the view taken by the trial court which can also possibly be a correct view, need not be interfered with. This self-restraint doctrine, of course, does not denude the High Court of its powers to re-appreciate the evidence, including in an appeal against acquittal and arrive at a different firm finding of fact."

19. After overall assessment of the circumstances and perusing the entire material on record we find that, there was no eye-witness of the alleged incident. This case is based purely on circumstantial evidence and though the conviction can be based on circumstantial evidence alone but for that prosecution has to establish complete chain of circumstances, which consistently points towards guilt of the accused and accused alone. After assessing the entirely of circumstances, it cannot be said firmly that accused persons are involve in the commission of offence. It is the duty of the prosecution to firmly and cogently establish the incriminating circumstances against the accused persons and from those incriminating circumstances inference of guilt of the accused could be conclusively drawn. If all the incriminating circumstances against the accused persons are taken into consideration they should be so complete that within all probability they should point towards the guilt of the accused persons, then only such circumstances may be relied upon. At this juncture it would be imperative to make a reference to the decision of the Apex Court in the case of Sharad Birdhichand Sarda Vs. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1984 SC 1622, wherein the Apex Court has expatiated upon the aspect of circumstantial evidence and set forth certain guidelines in that regard, which are as under:

"152. A close analysis of this decision would show that the following conditions must be fulfilled before a case against an accused can be said to be fully established:

(1) the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should be fully established. It may be noted here that this Court indicated that the circumstances concerned 'must or should' and not 'may be' established. There is not only a grammatical but a legal distinction between 'may be proved' and 'must be or should be proved as was held by this Court in Shivaji Sahebrao Bobade V State of Maharashtra 1973 CriLJ 1783 where the following observations were made:

certainly, it is a primary principle that the accused must be and not merely may be guilty before a Court can convict, and the mental distance between 'may be' and 'must be' is long and divides vague conjectures from sure conclusions.

(2) the facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused, that is to say, they should not be explainable on any other hypothesis except that the accused is guilty.

(3) the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency

(4) they should exclude every possible hypothesis except the one to be proved, and

(5) there must be a chain of evidence so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability the act must have been done by the accused.

153. These five golden principles, if we may say so, constitute the panchsheel of the proof of a case based on circumstantial evidence".

20. After considering the aforesaid law laid down by the Apex Court on circumstantial evidence, it emerges that conviction can be based solely on the basis of circumstantial evidence where the circumstances are fully established and the chain of circumstances is conclusively complete and the cumulative effect of all the circumstances is such which shows that only and only the accused is found guilty of committing the offence. After perusal of the evidence of the prosecution witnesses we are of the opinion that the prosecution has failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt and also failed to prove the evidence regarding the factum of the deceased having been last seen in the company of accused persons. In the cases of direct evidence the motive aspect pales into complete insignificance but in the cases of circumstantial evidence it serves as one of the circumstances to be reckoned against the accused in proof of the guilt. In the present case the prosecution has tried to show during the course of trial that there was a demand of repayment of loan amount on behalf of accused persons and in that connection some hot-talk and scuffle between the accused persons and the deceased also took place but as we have seen during analysis of evidence that this aspect of the case also could not be satisfactorily proved by prosecution. We therefore are of the opinion that the prosecution has utterly failed to prove the guilt of accused persons in commission of charged crime.

21. We, therefore, find that the court below has taken a plausible and possible view of the matter on appreciation of entire evidence on record, which cannot be substituted by this Court by taking a different view as per the law discussed above. We also do not find that the findings recorded by the trial court are palpably wrong, manifestly erroneous or demonstrably unsustainable, therefore, the present appeal is DISMISSED.

3. Accused appellants-Anwar Painter and Gulsher have also been sentenced under Section 4/25 Arms Act with one year each rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs.5,000/- each and in default of payment of fine both have to further undergo 6 months each, simple imprisonment. All the sentences are directed to run concurrently.

4. Prosecution case in brief is that the informant, Smt. Salma presented an F.I.R. Paper No. Exhibit No. Ka-1 to D.I.G., Agra on 08.01.2010 and on its movement, F.I.R. Chik No.8 of 2010 case at Crime No.35 of 2010 on 16.01.2010 at 12:30 p.m., Police Station Sikandra, District Agra, was registered. The facts in the F.I.R., Exhibit No. Ka-1, unfolds that informant's daughter Ashma was married with Sonu, five years before, in which dowry was given and Rupees two lakhs were spent. After marriage, her son-in-law, Sonu, father-in-law- Anwar Painter, mother-in-law-Baby, Sister-in-law (Anjum) wife of Nazim, resident of Haryana, Chauka, and Smt. Sarbery, wife of elder brother of father-in-law (Anwar), Afsar, Anwar, resident of Ghad Teli Pada, Sarai Khawaja Police Station-Shahganj, District Agra and also Smt. Aato wife of Ali Husain resident of Mehrav Ka Nagla Teli Pada, (near Sarai Khwaja), Police Station Shahganj, District-Agra, would taunt her daughter that sufficient amount of dowry has not been given by her parents and constantly demanded motor cycle as additional dowry.

5. Informant had also presented an earlier application in the Year 2006 to S.S.P. Agra, and thereupon, police sent her daughter with Sonu but all the accused persisted to torture her mentally and physically on account of non-fulfilment of additional demand for dowry, they also threatened that if their demand was not fulfilled, she will be killed; she was trying to meet her daughter in her matrimonial house since last one month but none was found there; she met Sarvari and Afser and enquired about her daughter; they told her that after killing her daughter, Sonu, Anwar, Anju, Baby have left their houses; she approached police station to lodge the F.I.R. but that was not lodged there.

6. Upon receiving the investigation, I.O. along with police team arrested accused-Anwar Painter and Gulsher on 30.03.2010; in the hope of recovery of assault weapon in the house of Anwar, in the presence of the witnesses Maharaj, Mammu Khan, accused Anwar took them to the room of this house and at his pointing out weapon of offence (chhuri) from beneath the bed, was recovered, whereas, at the instance of coaccused (Gulsher) a chhuri (knive) from beneath the bed was also recovered; both the accused in the presence of the witnesses confessed that by means of the recovered weapons, they had killed Sonu. The details of the aforementioned recovered weapons has also been described in the memo of recovery, Exhibit Ka-2.

7. The Investigating Officer also on 08.04.2010, got recovered the dead bodies of Sonu, Ashma and Choti from under the gutter and memo of recovery of the bodies Paper No. Ka.32 was prepared.

8. During investigation, Sections 304-B, 302 and 201 I.P.C. were added and also in the light of the recovery of churi (knife), Case at Crime No.172/2010 under Section 4/25 Arms Act against Anwar and another Case Crime No. 173 of 2010 under Section 4/5 Arms Act, against coaccused- Gulsher, were registered on 30.03.2010 at 19:00 (7:00 p.m.); substance of these F.I.R.s was also entered in the G.D. Nos. 37 & 38 at 7:00 p.m.; investigation was also handed over to another Sub-Inspector. The Investigation Officer inspected the place of recovery of weapons and prepared the site plan.

9. The Inquest Report of Smt. Ashma Exhibit No. Ka-8, Choti, Exhibit No. Ka-3 and Sonu Exhibit No. Ka-3 respectively were prepared by the Investigating Officer. Doctors who conducted the autopsy over the dead bodies of the deceased also have prepared autopsy reports which shall be discussed later.

10. The Investigating Officer, during course of the investigation, recorded the statements of informant, witnesses and accused under Sections 161 of Cr.P.C. and the evidence for offences under Sections 498- A, 302, 201, 304-B I.P.C. & Section ¾ of Dowry Prohibition Act, under Section 173 (3)(b) of Cr.P.C. against the accused Anwar Painter, Smt. Baby and Gulsher with regard to Crime No.35 of 2010 charge sheet was forwarded to the court concerned.

11. In Case Crime Nos.172/2010 & 173/2010 pertaining to Section 4/25 Arms Act, charge sheets were also forwarded against accused to the court of learned Magistrate concerned wherefrom, after completing the formalities, these criminal cases were committed to the District Court of Sessions where case pertaining to Case Crime No.35 of 2010 was registered as S.T. No.677 of 2010 whereas S.T. No.670 of 2010, 678/2010 & 689/2010 were registered in connection with Crime No.172/2010 and 173/2010 respectively.

12. The learned trial court vide order dated 15.09.2010 framed charges against the accused Anwar Painter, Smt. Baby & Gulsher for offences under Sections 498-A, 304-B read with Section 34, Section 302 read with Section 34 and Section 301 of I.P.C. and also under Section ¾ Dowry Prohibition Act and also charge under Section 4/25 Arms Act against both accused were framed. Accused denied the charges and claim trial.

13. Prosecution in order to prove its case, examined P.W.-1-Smt. Salma, happens to be informant and witnesses P.W.-2-Krishna Nandan Tiwari (Sub-Inspector), P.W.3- Mammu Khan, P.W.4-Mool Chandra Mutaina (Sub-Inspector), P.W.5-Dr. A.K.Upadhayay, P.W.6-Desh Raj Mutaina, P.W.7.-Shayam Bahadur Mutaina (C.P.), P.W.8- Yashpal Singh (Sub-Inspector), P.W.9-Dr. A.K. Mishra, P.W.10-Ashok Kumar (S.S.P.), P.W.11.Aseem Chaudhari (Investigation Officer).

14. Accused in their statements recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. have claimed that evidence of P.W.1, Smt. Salma is false and is the result of their enmity with her.

15. Co-accused Gulsher has also stated in his statement that chhuri (knife) was not recovered at his behest, he has no connection with the alleged incident; he has been falsely implicated in this case merely because of having acquaintance with family members of Sonu. He further stated that on account of the compromise, he has been falsely roped in this case.

16. Accused/applicant- Anwar Painter has also denied the recovery of the dead bodies of the deceased on 16.11.2012. He further said that a year before the incident, he with his wife in the search of work of labour had left his house for his matrimonial house in the State of Bihar. He has also stated that the deceased wife of his son was of bad character; she wanted to gift his house to her parents; many strangers would come to meet her and he tried to stop them to visit his house; thereafter, some of the strangers had done his daughter-in-law to death; bodies of the deceased were not hidden by him. On behalf of the accused, witness D.W.1, Amit Chauhan was examined.

17. By the instant criminal appeal, the impugned judgement and order dated 08.02.2013, is being challenged on the ground that without cogent evidence on record, illegal order has been passed and despite the inconsistencies and contradictions in the testimonies of the witnesses, on false appreciation, surmises and wrong presumption, the impugned judgment and order in connection with S.T. No.677 of 2010 in Case Crime No.35 of 2010, under Sections 302/34, 201 I.P.C. and S.T. Nos.678 and 679 of 2010, under Sections 4/25 Arms Act, against them has been passed; the learned trial court has committed gross error in the eyes of law and also against the principle of justice.

18. Accused/applicants inter-alia, have also challenged the impugned judgment and order by saying that there is no direct, indirect or circumstantial evidence against them; the prosecution case is based on the basis of false, fabricated and unlawful evidence hence, the impugned judgment and order dated 08.02.2013, is not sustainable in the eye of law and present criminal appeal deserves to be allowed and the impugned judgment and order be accordingly set aside.

19. The learned trial court vide judgment and order dated 04.02.2013 acquitted accused Smt. Baby under Sections 498-A, 304-B read with Section 34, Section 302 read with Section 34 I.P.C. and also under Section ¾ Dowry Prohibition Act.

21. The learned trial Court has also acquitted accused Anwar Painter from the charges under Sections 498-A, 304-B read with Section 34 and Section ¾ Dowry Prohibition Act. Hence this appeal has been preferred by accused Anwar Painter and Gulsher against impugned judgment and order against their conviction and sentence for offences under Sections 302/34 & 201 I.P.C. & Section 4/25 Arms Act.

22. P.W.1, Smt. Salma, informant in her oral evidence has proved F.I.R. as Exhibit.Ka.1.

23. P.W.1 Smt. Salma, in her chief examination deposes that she had married her daughter (Aashma) five years ago with Sonu and had given dowry as per her financial capacity; about Rs.2 lakhs was spent in the marriage; after marriage, Sonu (husband), Anwar Painer (father-in-law), Smt. Baby (mother-in-law), Anju (sister-in-law/nand) Smt. Sarbery (wife of elder brother of Anwar Painter), were not satisfied with dowry and consistently demanded motor cycle as an additional dowry and subjected her daughter to torture and also would beat her; she had made a complaint to S.S.P., Agra in the Year 2006, but during Mediation and Conciliation, her daughter was persuaded by her husband to go with him, however thereafter, it is alleged that they again tortured and threatened her (Smt. Salma); threatening, her daughter would be done to death, if their demand of motorcycle is not met; she went to meet her daughter at her matrimonial house, but she did not find her; on inquiry from the neighbours, she came to know that ten days ago, after locking the house, they with Aashma had left their house; later on she came to know that they are living somewhere in the State of Bihar. On arrest from Bihar, accused Anwar Painter and Smt. Baby confessed that her daughter, sonin- law, Sonu and grand daughter (Saleem Fatima) aged about one and half years before were killed by them; Gulsher, who is friend of Anwar Painter, was also involved in the commission of the incident; all the accused also confessed that they have killed all the three aforementioned persons and their dead bodies have been hidden in the gutter of the inlaws house.

24. P.W.1 Smt. Salma, in her cross examination, has stated that in the F.I.R., it was mentioned that Gulsher was not involved in the incident; therefore, she has not nominated Gulsher in the F.I.R. She deposed that her daughter was disable; house of Gulsher is situated adjacent to the house of Anwar Painter.

25. P.W.1 also deposed that her statement, by Sub-Inspector, was recorded in which she did not tell him that family members of Sonu would beat her daughter; she also admits that she has not witnessed Gulsher killing her son-in-law, grand daughter. She states that Smt. Baby had told her that after killing the deceased their body were thrown in the gutter; she has also admitted that she did not see accused Gulsher to hide the knife; she did not receive any phone call from Bihar; brother of Anwar Painter had told her that Anwar, Baby had absconded to Bihar. As such P.W.1 Smt. Salma, admits in her deposition that she had not witnessed the accused killing Sonu, Aashma and her grand daughter.

26. She has deposed that Daroga Ji (I.O.), had called her from Bihar; some Army men had asked her to reach over there, because all the possibilities indicated that Ashma, Sonu, Baby & Anwar Chotu have been killed; she also admits that Daroga Ji, (Investigating Officer) had not enquired about Anwar and Gulsher in her presence; and (chhuri)/knife was not got recovered from Gulsher; she has also not acknowledged that dispute existed between Gulsher and Anwar Painter; she has also denied the suggestion put to her on behalf of accused Gulsher that it would be wrong to say that he had not killed Aashma, Chotu and Sonu and she has falsely implicated him.

27. It transpires from the above, deposition of P.W.1. Smt. Salma that she has not seen the accused killing Sonu, Smt. Aashma and daughter-inlaw; her admission in her ocular evidence that she did not witness the recovery of alleged chhuri (knife) on the pointing out of Gulsher; her deposition about the demand of motorcycle as an additional dowry by the accused and on account of non-fulfilment of the demand, her daughter was subjected to mental and physical torture, has not been found credible , corroborative and trustworthy. The learned trial court for want of cogent evidence on record pertaining to offences u/s 498-A, 304-B of I.P.C. & ¾ Anti Dowry Prohibition Act has not held accused (Anwar Painter and his wife Baby) guilty, thus, has acquitted them from the charges under above mentioned offences.

28. P.W.1 Smt. Salma, in her cross examination has deposed that Anwar Painter had solemnised second marriage and out of that wedlock, they have five children and he also solemnised his third marriage and out of that marriage, he has one child. Next, she has stated that Anwar

Painter has total five children; she has denied the suggestion put to her that three months after marriage her daughter delivered a baby; accused did not make complaint to her or any one about her bad character of her daughter; she has also denied in her deposition that due to alleged bad character of her daughter, strangers would visit her and Sonu had ever raised any objection; she has also denied that in view of visits by strangers, accused Anwar and his wife had left their house for Bihar; she also admits that part of the incident occurred at the house of Anwar Painter situated at P.P.,Nagar, Police Station Sikandra. As such, Smt. Salma, has also admitted in her statement that no part of the incident was witnessed by her; her testimony with regard to the murder of daughter or son-in-law by the accused is based on hearsay; and also her admission in her cross examination to the effect that after three and half months police arrested Anwar Painter and Smt. Baby from Bihar and was brought them to Agra; Smt. Baby had told the police in Bihar that dead bodies of Aashma, Sonu and their baby aged about 1 ½ half year, after their murder were thrown in the gutter and also in her deposition, in the examination-in-chief, she has stated that accused have killed her daughter, son-in-law and grand daughter and they had hidden their dead bodies in the gutter, and on the pointing out of the accused, all the three bodies were recovered, this testimony is not only self contradictory but also inconsistent with prosecution story; Memo, Exhibit-ka.32 pertaining to the recovery of the dead bodies of the deceased and in this connection, video cassette and C.D. which were allegedly made on the date of the recovery i.e., 30.03.2010, by the Investigating Officer, does not bear either the signature or thumb impression of informant P.W.1, Smt. Salma, therefore, it is clear that recovery of the dead bodies from under the gutter of the house owned by Anwar Painter was not witnessed by her.

29. P.W.4, Nandan Tiwari, deposes in his examination-in-chief that on 30.03.2010 at 12:55, along with police team (Officer in-charge) of the police station, S.I., and other police personnel along with accused Anwar Painter and Gulsher had visited and inspected the house of accused Anwar Painter; At their instance, accused Anwar Painter and Gulsher, got retrieved the decomposed bodies out of gutter in his (Anwar Painter) house of Sonu, daughter-in-law(Aashma) and grand daughter; At the place of the recovery, A.C.M.-II was also present; all three dead bodies were separately sealed in cloth.

30. P.W.2, Krishna Nandan Tiwari, has also stated that accused Anwar Painter and Gulsher respectively had got recovered chhura (knife) from beneath the bed of room; and both accused had in their disclosure statement confessed that by these knives, they had killed the deceased.

31. P.W.2, Krishna Nandan Tiwari, Sub-Inspector, admits in his cross examination that the memo of recovery does not bear the signature of local witnesses; he also further admits that on 30.03.2010 at 12:55, relevant papers on the record having been prepared on the dictation of A.C.J.M. -II.

32. P.W.2, Krishna Nandan Tiwari, Sub-Inspector, has not been cross examined about his deposition in his examination-in-chief regarding the recovery of decomposed dead bodies of Sonu, Aashma and their daughter on the pointing out of accused Anwar Painter and Gulsher from under the safety tank/gutter and two knives from underneath the bed and this witness has also not been confronted in his cross-examination regarding his deposition that both the accused i.e., Anwar Painter and Gulsher, after recovery of all the dead bodies of the deceased and each knife on their pointing out from the house of accused Anwar Painter and their disclosure statement that they had hidden the dead bodies of the deceased and knives, whereby they killed deceased.

33. P.W.2, Krishna Nandan Tiwari, Sub-Inspector, has proved memo of recovery of two knives Exhibit.Ka.2.; P.W.3, Mammu Khan, in his statement has supported P.W.2 Krishna Nandan Tiwari, Sub-Inspector to the effect that the recovery of dead bodies of deceased and each knief on the pointing out of the accused Anwar Painter and Gulsher were got recovered from separate places from the house of accused Anwar Painter and memo of recovery Exhibit-ka.2 on 30.03.2010 was having been prepared and signed by him and also by other witnesses.

34. P.W.3. states in his examination-in-chief that in his presence, at the instance of both the accused, dead bodies of Sonu, Smt. Aashma and Baby Choti were having been retrieved from the gutter of the house of Anwar Painter and on the pointing out of both the accused, two knives were also having been recovered from beneath the bed in the room, and both the accused had confessed that, they had assaulted the deceased with knives and killed them. Witness, P.W.3, Mammu Khan, is a relative of accused Anwar Painter and Smt. Aashma was his daughter who was married to Sonu s/o Anwar Painter; accused were known to him. He further deposes that at the place situated 10 Km away from the house of Anwar Painter on a call Gulsher had reached at the house of Anwar Painter on the date of recovery of dead bodies and weapons of crime.

35. In the presence of P.W.3, Mammu Khan, before the trial court, two pack of sealed cloth were broke open and out of these, two knives (chhuriya) were emerged and to see these knives (chhure), P.W.3,Mammu Khan, identified them and deposed that these weapons were having been recovered at the instance both the accused; the same had been sealed in his presence by Sub-Inspector and in this connection, memo of recovery of the weapons by Sub-Inspector was having been prepared and he had signed the memo; he during his deposition also identified his signature thereon and as such, knife (chhuri) as material Exhibit-ka.3 was marked and he in his statement has also described it in details.

36. P.W.3, Mammu Khan, also corroborates statement of P.W.1, Smt. Salma who has stated that Anwar Painter has married thrice; he denies the suggestion that it would be wrong to say his daughter was of bad character; he also denies that after marriage of his daughter, she had delivered a child within a span of three months; he also refuted that old lover of Aashma would often visit her house and P.W.-3 Mammu Khan, also refuses that Salma's son-in-law Sonu and Aashma would often quarrel with each other; he also denies that dead bodies of the deceased were beyond identification or dead bodies of the deceased had not got recovered in his presence; he also states in his deposition that knives also having been recovered in his presence and the weapons were not planted by the police.

37. P.W.3 also deposes that he has seen the house of Anwar Painter before the incident; once he had gone there; he further says in his evidence that he knows the difference between the chhuri and chaku; two knives (chhuriya) during his deposition in the trial court were laid before him and he has categorically said in his deposition that the assault weapons placed before him were churies not knives.

38. The testimony of P.W.3, Mammu Khan reflects that he was present on the date of the recovery of dead bodies of the deceased and churies (knives) from the house of Anwar Painter were recovered and he has also identified his signature on memo of recovery of assault weapon; in his statement he also has denied that being relative of deceased, he has adduced evidence. In his deposition there is minor inconsistency with prosecution story because he has stated in his statement that chhuri and knife are not same and one.

39. P.W.-3 in his cross-examination says that he knows that Baby was the third wife of Anwar Paniter. The suggestion put on behalf of accused, P.W.3 Mammu Khan has denied that the bodies of the deceased had not been recovered in his presence; he admits that bodies of the deceased had decomposed, however, they were identifiable. He also denies the suggestion put by the learned counsel that both chhuries were planted by police; he also denies that he is deposing against the accused because Anwar Painter is his friend.

40. The investigation of the instant case was entrusted to I.O. on 17.01.2010 and he had recorded the statement of Smt. Salma, and at her instance, he had prepared the site plan of the alleged incident in his writing; he had also recorded the statements of Ashok Rajendera and Rahman during the investigation and had come to know that informant and accused Anwar Paniter and Baby with their family members were living somewhere in Bhaglpur in the State of Bihar; he admits in his cross-examination that on his visit to the house of Anwar Painter, it was found locked and he had not broken the lock.

41. Another I.O. P.W.-4 Mool Chandra Mutaina, S.I. in his examination-in-chief says that on information received from the informer, he along with police force reached at Bijli ghar (Electricity House) which was being built at Fatehpur; Anwar Paniter, who was a labour, was apprehended from there; he was brought back to police station and he had confessed that he with his wife and other associate Gulsher had killed his son, daughter-in-law (wife of his son), grand-daughter and they had thrown their dead-bodies into the gutter of his house.

42. On the strength of statement of co-accued Anwar Painter, name of his associate, namely, Gulsher surfaced during investigation.

43. P.W.-6 Desh Raj Mutaina, I.O. further states that after confession of the accused, they went to the house of Anwar Painter to recover the deadbodies of the deceased and also the assault weapons; in respect of the alleged incident, he had intimated the Additional District Magistrate-II, Sri D.P. Singh and S.P. City Sri L. Kumar and Media persons and they also reached there; both the accused namely- Anwar Painter and Gulsher, in the presence of Magistrate had made their confession that they had killed three persons and their dead-bodies were hidden in the gutter, and on their pointing out all three dead bodies were retrieved from the gutter. Magistrate had conducted the inquest over the bodies of the deceased and after preparing the inquest reports, the dead-bodies of the deceased were forwarded with the copies of inquest reports and other relevant documents to mortuary for post-mortem to ascertain the reason of their death. P.W. 6- during his testimony has identified the memo and on its proof, the same has been marked as Ex. Ka-2. He also says that on the basis of collected evidence Section 302 of IPC was added.

44. P.W.-6 (I.O.) in his cross-examination says that crime weapons were not placed before him; the arrest of both the accused was entered into G.D. No.24 time 12:30 dated 30.03.2010. He also states in his crossexamination that the copy of the recovery memos was not given to the accused-persons, but had got signed by them. This witness denies that alleged recovery was not made on the pointing out of both the accused and falsely have been planted.

45. P.W.-11 Aseem Chaudhari (C.O.) states in his examination-in-chief that on 02.04.2010 he was posted as Circle Officer at Police Station- Hari Parwat and in the remaining investigation pertaining to Crime No. 35 of 2010, under Sections 498-A, 304B, 302 and 201 of IPC and Section 3/4 of D.P. Act; he was partly involved and statements of witnesses Prayag Singh and Bheekam Singh, were recorded; At the instance of witness Prayag Singh, he had inspected the place of occurrence and in his writing and signature had prepared a site plan which is on record and he has also identified the said site plan. The same was marked as Ex. Ka 30. He has also deposed that he had recorded the statements of other witnesses and on the basis of collection of ample evidence against accused- Anwar Painter, Gulsher and another, he submitted the challan in his writing and signature to the court concerned.

46. P.W.-11 Aseem Chaudhari (C.O) in his cross-examination reiterates that at the instance of witness Prayag Singh, he has prepared the site plan and also recorded the statements of Bheekam Singh, Raju, Rajpal and others but none of the witnesses claimed to have witnessed the commission of incident. He has also given details of the dead-bodies, the place of the occurrence and says that he had also recorded the statement of informant Salma on 20.04.2010. He further states that he had not met Anwar Painter and Gulsher. He states that he had recorded the statements of witnesses and admits that the recovery of assault weapons and deadbodies of the deceased were not made in his presence. He further admits that the statements of the neighbor of accused Gulsher were not recorded by him. Next he denies the suggestion to the effect that he did not make any investigation and the said papers were having been prepared in his office.

47. P.W.-1, Smt. Salma about the allegation in her written F.I.R. dated 08.01.2010 Exhibit-ka.1 has deposed that since one month, she was visiting the residence of her son-in-law Sonu but did not find any one; neighbours apprised her that inmates of the house had left their house at unknown place, although, she also inquired from Smt. Sarvari and Attu, elder brother of father-in-law of her daughter. She also met Anwar to know whereabout of her daughter who told her that he along with others had killed her and Sonu.

49. D.W.-1, in his examination-in-chief, deposed that Anwar Painter and his wife Baby in the Year 2009 had left their house in District-Agra for Bahagalpur in Bihar. Statement of D.W.-1 Amit Chauhan was recorded in the trial court on 18.01.2013. Thus, evidence of D.W.1, Amit Chauhan lends credence to statements of accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. that Anwar Painter with his family had left his house in the Agra district for his matrimonial house to earn livelihood. Admittedly, he is a labour and poor man. There is no evidence on record to show the exact time of departure of the Anwar family for Bihar, but since retrieved bodies by the time of their recovery had decomposed, it appears that substantial period of time had passed. But, it has no adverse bearing on the merits of this case.

50. From the condition of the highly decomposed bodies, P.W.9, Dr. A.K. Mishra, has opined in his examination-in-chief that death of deceased Sonu was caused approximately three months before the post mortem which was conducted on 01.04.2010.

51. P.W.5, Dr. A.K. Upadhaya, who has also conducted autopsy on the bodies of the deceased Smt. Aashma & Baby Choti has not deposed about the approximate time of their death but it appears that all three deceased Sonu, Smt. Aashma and Baby Choti were killed in one incident.

52. It also emerges that all the bodies, at the instance of accused Anwar Painter and Gulsher and two knives were recovered from gutter and from beneath of the bed in the room of the house owned by accused Anwar Painter on 30.03.2010.

53. P.W.3- Mammu Khan has deposed in his chief examination that on the pointing out of accused Anwar Painter and Gulsher chhuri/chhura each was recovered. This witness in his cross-examination done on behalf of co-accused Gulsher has also repeated his evidence with regard to the recovery of two chhuri.

54. P.W.7 Shayam Bahadur Mutaina has stated in his examination done on behalf of Anwar Painter that recovered weapons of crime were brought and got received to him in each sealed bag; there was separate knife (chhura). He has also stated that there is difference between chhura and knife but in the recovery of memo, knives (chhura) were having been noted.

55. It emerges from the evidence P.W.3-Mammu Khan that there is consistent evidence in respect of the recovery chhura each at the instance accused Anwar Painter and Gulsher. Before the learned trial court, it was contended on behalf of accused that there is contradictory evidence with regard to weapon of offence because on the one hand; chhuri each is stated to have been recovered; On the other hand, there is evidence on record to the effect that chhuri as well as knife on the pointing out of both the accused were having been recovered. In our opinion, there is evidence on record that chhura each was having been recovered at the instance of Anwar Painter and Gulsher. On the face value of contention put forth by the learned counsel before the learned trial court is accepted even then the evidence pertaining to the recovery of weapons, minor difference is found but all evidence has to be read in totality, as such, recovery of chhura each on the pointing out of accused Gulsher and Anwar Painter has been successfully proved by the prosecution.

56. D.W.2, Krishna Nandan Tiwari, S.I., I.O. has deposed that upon recovery of the bodies of deceased, he had prepared in his writing inquest reports and three bodies of the deceased were sealed separately in the pieces of cloth and the other related papers in this respect were also having been prepared.

57. P.W.2, Krishna Kant Tiwari, has admitted in his cross examination that inquest reports and other related papers were prepared at the dictation of A.C.M.-II, who also was present there at the time of panchayatnama of bodies of the deceased. He also admits that he was familiar with the writing and signature of A.C.M., D.V. Singh, because they were posted in the same District Agra and in the discharge of his official duty, he would off and on met him.

58. P.W.,3 Mammu Khan deposed in his statement about the inquest reports of having been prepared in his presence by police. The learned trail court in the impugned judgement and order has discussed in detail evidence of P.W.1-Smt. Salma, P.W.-2, Krishna Nandan Tiwari, P.W.11 Assem Chaudhari, I.O., and has also thoroughly evaluated all the evidence, including D.W.1 Amit Chauhan on record.

59. The learned trial court Judge has rightly opined that in view of the facts and circumstances of the instant case, time of death of all the three deceased cannot be ascertained. The learned lower court has also opined on the strength of the evidence on record that offences under Sections498-A, 304-B read with Section 34 I.P.C. and Section ¾ Dowry Prohibition Act, against Smt. Baby and also offences under Sections 498- A, 304-B read with 34 I.P.C. and Section ¾ Dowry Prohibition Act, against Anwar Painter, his wife Smt. Baby and Gulsher were not proved hence, their acquittal has been recorded.

60. The learned trial court has also placed reliance on the testimonies of prosecution witnesses with regard to disclosure statement of accused Anwar Painter and Gulsher and at their instance, recovery of all the dead bodies of the three deceased and also recovery of assault weapon from the house of Anwar Painter.

61. It has also come in the evidence that Anwar Painter and his wife had left their house for Bhagalpur after locking the gate of their house from outside.

62. The learned trial court has dwelt on the evidence of D.W. 1- Amit Chauhan and also his evidence regarding the alleged bad character of Smt. Aashma. The accused have taken defence that since Smt. Aashma was of a bad character, several people would visit her and any of such persons could have killed Sonu, Smt. Aashma and Baby Choti, but in this respect, there is only the evidence of D.W.1- Amit Chauhan, he lives near Anwar Painter, therefore, he knows them, however,

D.W.1-Amit Chauhan has not stated that he would regularly visit their house; he has also not shed light on the fact that accused would share their house hold affairs with him; D.W.1 also claims friendship with the accused. There is no iota of evidence on record that Sonu had any quarrel in his life time with his wife Smt. Aashma regarding her alleged bad character or alleged delivery of baby within a span of three months after her marriage with him. As such statement of P.W.1, Salma is inconsistent and contradictory hence it needs corroboration with regard to offences under Section 302/34.

63. Since, the dead bodies of the deceased were recovered at the instance of accused Anwar Painter and Gulsher from the gutter in the house owned by Anwar Painter and Anwar Painter with his family was living therein, therefore, presumption under Section 106 of the Evidence Act would be drawn against Anwar. It is incumbent upon accused Anwar to rebut the presumption; accused has taken the defence on many grounds but these pleas have not succeeded to render the evidence adduced by the prosecution improbable.

64. Admittedly, prosecution case is that the appellant-co-accused Gulsher is neither member or relative of the family of appellant/accused Anwar Painter; he is said to be friend of Anwar Painter; P.W.-1-Smt. Salma, had admitted in her ocular evidence that since marriage and until the death of the deceased she had only once visited the matrimonial house of her daughter; she was not having opportunity to see for herself about the nature of relationship of Gulsher with co-accused/co-appellant. P.W.-1 Salma, has admitted in her statement that prior to instant incident quarrel pertaining to the demand of dowry between her daughter and her husband and members of his family had picked up and in that connection she had moved her complaint to S.S.P. Agra, who had forwarded her complaint to the Mediation and Conciliation Centre, wherein her daughter was persuaded to go with her husband, thus, her daughter had gone with her husband Sonu to her matrimonial house; she also states in her ocular evidence that compromise between her daughter and Sonu was amicably arrived at between them.

65. Appellant/accused Gulsher, in his statement recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. has denied to have caused the incident and on his behalf it was also contended that the alleged recovery of chhuri / knife was planted on him. He further says in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. that he had facilitated to broker compromise between Sonu and his wife and for that reason he has been falsely roped in this case.

66. It is also an admitted case of the prosecution that no witness has stated to have witnessed the appellant/accused Gulsher visiting the matrimonial house of the deceased, therefore, there is no evidence regarding his visit prior or at the time of alleged occurrence to the house of Anwar Painter.

67. It is also admitted to the prosecution that Anwar Painter on his arrest had named appellant/accused Gulsher, in commission of the alleged incident. As such, during investigation, name of appellant Gulsher appeared on the statement of co-accused Anwar Painter. Appellant/accused Anwar Painter has himself denied his involvement in the alleged incident. Evidence of the co-accused without corroboration is of a weak kind.

68. We have seen from the above discussion that Anwar Painter with his wife, who has been acquitted from the charges levelled against her, were brought from Bihar to the house of Anwar Painter.

69. On the statement of co-accused Anwar Painter, co-appellant/coaccused Gulsher, was apprehended by the Investigating Officer. However, prosecution has adduced consistent and reliable evidence against coappellant/ co-accused Gulsher, in connection with the recovery of chhuri/ knife on his pointing out from beneath of cot in the house owned by Anwar Painter.

70. There is also reliable evidence on record against Gulsher that on his, as well as, Anwar Painter's pointing out three decomposed bodies of the deceased were retrieved from the gutter in the house of Anwar Painter.

71. Learned counsel for the defence submitted that if recovery of chhuri/ knife and decomposed bodies of the deceased is accepted on its face value to have been made at the instance of Gulsher but no such presumption against him can be made that he had killed the deceased and thereafter, he had dumped the bodies of deceased down the gutter because he was not member/relative of Anwar Painter, and was also not a friend of Anwar Painter. He was just having acquaintance with Anwar Painter.

72. There is no reliable evidence on the record that Gulsher would visit the matrimonial house of the deceased Smt. Ashma and had no direct or indirect role pertaining to the incident. He has been implicated merely because of his role in the compromise arrived at between Sonu and his wife, further, it is argued that there is no cogent and reliable evidence about his involvement in the incident and he has been implicated merely on the basis of suspicion which is inconsequential under law.

73. Hon'ble Apex Court in Shahaja @ Shahajan Ismail Mohd. Shaikh Vs. State of Maharashtra; 2022 Live Law (SC) 596 has outlined the conditions necessary for applicability of Section 27 of the Evidence Act:

"that the appellant stated before the panch witnesses to the effect that "I will show you the weapon concealed adjacent the shoe shop at Parle". This statement does not suggest that the appellant indicated anything about his involvement in the concealment of the weapon. Mere discovery cannot be interpreted as sufficient to infer authorship of concealment by the person who discovered the weapon. He could have derived knowledge of the existence of that weapon at the place through some other source also. He might have even seen somebody concealing the weapon, and, therefore, it cannot be presumed or inferred that because a person discovered the weapon, he was the person who had concealed it, least it can be presumed that he used it. Therefore, even if discovery by the appellant is accepted, what emerges from the substantive evidence as regards the discovery of weapon is that the appellant disclosed that he would show the weapon used in the commission of offence."

74. In the present case there is evidence on record that accused Anwar Painter had disclosed to the Investigating Officer that he along with Gulsher had killed the deceased and bodies of the deceased were concealed down the gutter, in the house of Anwar Painter and Gulsher also along with Anwar Painter got retrieved the bodies of the deceased out of the gutter and also at his instance concealed weapon, chhuri/ knife was recovered from beneath the cot/bed lying in the room of house owned by Anwar Painter.

75. Gusher has denied in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C to have made disclosure statement to the investigating officer. Even if, it is accepted, that after his arrest, he had made discloser statement, to the arresting police officer, in the event of his denial before the Court such disclosure statement cannot be relied and accepted.

76. In view of above referred judicial pronouncement, Shahaja @ Shahajan Ismail Mohd. Shaikh Vs. State of Maharashtra; merely, on the strength of the discovery of the dead bodies and chhuri/knife at the pointing out of Gulsher it cannot be suggested that he had done any act of concealment of the weapon of offence and for bodies, and it is not sufficient to infer authorship of concealment by Gulsher, who got discovered assault weapon and dead bodies of the deceased.

77. It cannot be ruled out that he could have acquired knowledge of the existence of the weapon and concealment of the dead bodies in the gutter of the house owned by the Anwar Painter through some other source also, therefore, it cannot be presumed that appellant/accused Gulsher was also the person who had concealed the dead bodies, as well as, the assault weapon, therefore, merely on the basis of the said recovery of the dead bodies and assault weapon, at his instance, it cannot be made a sole basis to presume that he had also participated in the commission of the incident and had concealed the dead bodies of the deceased along with Anwar Painter in the gutter of the house and chhuri/knife beneath the cot. Further it cannot be presumed that he had used the recovered weapon chhuri/ knife to kill the deceased.

78. Hon'ble Supreme Court in Hanumant vs The State Of Madhya Pradesh, reported in 1975 AIR 1083, has held that ;

"In dealing with circumstantial evidence the rules specially applicable to such evidence must be borne in mind. In such cases there is always the danger that conjecture or suspicion may take the place of legal proof and therefore it is right to recall the warning addressed by Baron Alderson to the jury in Reg v. Hodge (1) where he said :--

"The mind was apt to take a pleasure in adapting circumstances to one another, and even in straining them a little, if need be, to force them to form parts of one connected whole; and the more ingenious the mind of the individual, the more likely was it, considering such matters, to over- reach and mislead itself, to supply some little link that 'is wanting, to take for granted some fact consistent with its previous theories and necessary to render them complete."

It is well to remember that in cases where the evidence is of a circumstantial nature, the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should in the first instance be fully established, and all the facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused. Again, the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency and they should be such as to exclude every hypothesis but the one proposed to be proved."

79. Hon'ble Supreme Court in Jaharlal Das vs State Of Orissa, reported in 1991 AIR 1388 has held that ;

"It may not be necessary to refer to other decisions of this Court except to bear in mind a caution that in cases depending largely upon circumstantial evidence there is always a danger that the conjecture or suspicion may take the place of legal proof and such suspicion however so strong cannot be allowed to take the place of proof. The Court has to be watchful and ensure that conjectures and suspicions do not take the place of legal proof. The Court must satisfy that the various circumstances in the chain of evidence should be established clearly and that the completed chain must be such as to rule out a reasonable likelihood of the innocence of the accused. Bearing these principles in mind we shall now consider the reasoning of the courts below in coming to the conclusion that the accused along has committed the offence."

80. Having regard to the facts and circumstances of the case, and for reasons stated herein above, we find that there is no cogent and clinching evidence against Gulsher to hold him guilty.

81. Resultantly, the impugned judgment and order dated 08.02.2003, passed by the learned Additional Sessions judge, Court No. 1, Agra in Sessions Trial No.677 of 2010, arising out of Case Crime No.35 of 2010 (State of U.P. Vs. Mohd. Anwar Painter and another), under Sections 302 read with Section 34 I.P.C.; S.T. Nos.678 & 679 of 2010, under Sections 4/25 Arms Act in Case Crime No.172 of 2010 (State of U.P. Vs. Anwar Painter) and S.T. No.679 of 2010 (State of U.P. Vs. Gulsher); S.T. No.173 of 2010, under Section 4/25 Arms Act, Police Station -Sikandra, District- Agra, convicting the appellant/accused Gulsher is hereby set aside, whereas, the impugned judgment and order dated 04.02.2013 and 08.02.2013 convicting and sentencing the appellant/ accused Anwar Painter is upheld.

82. Hence the appeal is allowed in part, insofar, it relates to appellant Gulsher. The appeal of Anwar Painter is, accordingly, dismissed.

83. Appellant/accused Gulsher, if detained in judicial custody be set at liberty forthwith, if not required in any other case.

84. The mandate of Section 437A of Cr.P.C. to be complied.

85. Let a copy of this judgment along with lower court's record be sent back to the court concerned for immediate compliance.

86. Since the appellants/accused-Anwar Painter and Gulsher are detained in jail as none of them has been enlarged on bail therefore, office is directed to inform the appellants/accused through Jail Superintendent/ District Jail/ Central Jail concerned along with copy of this judgment for information and necessary action.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ashwani Kumar Mishra, J.)

1. This jail appeal has been instituted by the accused Somwati (since deceased) and her alleged paramour Kallu, who have been convicted vide judgment and order dated 27.9.2008, passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.1, Kanpur Dehat, in Sessions Trial No.452 of 2007 and sentenced to life imprisonment under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC, arising out of Case Crime No.223 of 2007, at Police Station Sajeti, District Kanpur Dehat.

2. The prosecution case proceeds on a written information of the Village Chowkidar, who while going to his field on 14.8.2007 at about 8.30 a.m. saw that number of villagers had gathered in front of the house of late Nanku, and when he reached there he found various villagers including Shivnandan son of Baddu, Ravindra son of Virendra Sachan, Vijay Kumar son of Ramaee, Shivram Babu son of Vidhalal, Jagroop son of Parson etc. In the hutment he found the dead body of two sons of late Nanku namely Ramchandra and Veeru. The villagers were asking their mother Somwati and her second husband Kallu as to how the incident occurred. Initially they avoided the question but later confessed that Kallu wanted to purchase a tractor for which he had to take loan by pledging agricultural land. The land, however, was in the name of the two deceased Ramchandra and Veeru, and therefore a conspiracy was hatched between them and tractor agent Jairaj Prajapati son of Ram Gopal about three days back that in the event the two sons of accused Somwati die then their land will come in the name of accused Somwati and the loan would be easily arranged. On 13.8.2007 Jairaj met the accused, who got a dozen Banana at Ghatampur. Jairaj took the Banana aside and mixed some poisonous substance and gave the poisoned Banana to the accused with the instructions that the accused may not eat it and only give it to the two sons so that they die. Jairaj further said that in the evening he will come to verify about the development and that the Banana be given to the boys at about 6.00 O'clock. The two deceased accordingly were given the poisoned Banana who consumed it and fell unconscious. Jairaj is stated to have come and after seeing the boys stated that now their work would be done and later on account of administering poisonous substance the two boys died. In the morning the information spread about death of the two brothers and the dead bodies were found lying in the hutment. Various villagers were present and that the offence has been committed by Somwati, Kallu and tractor agent Jairaj. On the basis of such information Case Crime No.146 of 2007 was registered at Police Station Sajeti, Sub-district Ghatampur, District Kanpur Nagar. The FIR was registered at 10.20 am on 14.8.2007 and the time of occurrence of crime was mentioned as the night intervening 13/14.8.2007. The police proceeded in the matter and recovered peel of Banana, which is marked as Exhibit Ka-18.

3. The inquest followed in which the witnesses observed that the deceased have been done to death by administering poison to them by their step-father and therefore the postmortem be conducted. The bodies were sealed and sent to mortuary where their postmortem was conducted at 1.45 pm on 15.8.2007. The autopsy surgeon was of the view that death had occurred about one day prior to the postmortem and the cause of death could not be ascertained. Viscera was also preserved and later it was revealed that the cause of death was administering of poison (Aluminum Phosphide) for both the deceased. Report of Forensic Science Laboratory has been exhibited as Ka-21 and Ka-22. The investigation proceeded in the matter and ultimately a chargesheet came to be filed against the two accused Somwati and Kallu, which has been exhibited as Ka-20. The magistrate took cognizance on the chargesheet and committed the case to the court of sessions. The court of sessions charged the accused appellant of committing offence under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC vide order dated 8.1.2008. The charges were explained in Hindi to the two accused, who pleaded not guilty and demanded trial.

4. Apart from the documentary evidence produced by the prosecution in the form of F.I.R. (Exhibit Ka-4), written report (Exhibit Ka-1), postmortem report of Ramchandra (Exhibit Ka-2), postmortem report of Veeru (Exhibit Ka-3), Forensic Science Laboratory reports (Exhibit Ka-21 & Ka-22), Panchayatnama of Ramchandra (Exhibit Ka-6), Panchayatnama of Veeru (Exhibit Ka-12) and chargesheet (Exhibit Ka-20), the prosecution also adduced first informant Devicharan (PW-1). He has supported the prosecution case and in his examination-in-chief has proved the written report on the basis of which FIR itself was registered. He has identified his signatures on the written report. As none appeared for the accused an application was given for appointment of Amicus Curiae to represent the accused. PW-1, accordingly, was cross-examined by the Amicus Curiae, who stated that he is a Chowkidar for the last 20 years and has limited learning to his credit.

He has also stated that house of accused Somwati is at a distance of 200 paces from his house and that he has shown the place of occurrence to the Investigating Officer. In the cross-examination he has denied that accused Somwati admitted administering of poison to the deceased in his presence. He, however, admitted that being the village chowkidar his signatures were obtained by the Investigating Officer.

5. PW-2 is Ravindra Sachan. He had scribed the written report on the instruction of PW-1 and has stated that report was written by him on the instructions of PW-1. He has stated that the information with regard to death of the two sons of late Nanku was received at 8.00 am in the morning and the police reached at about 12 O'clock in the afternoon. It is stated that after about 10 minutes of receiving the information of death he came to the house of the accused and found 100 persons standing in front of the house, who were enquiring about the cause of death. He has stated that accused Kallu has been living with Somwati for the last two years and while age of the elder son of Somwati was 15 years, the other son was about 13-14 years. Various persons made queries about the cause of death and the accused narrated the story every time before them. It is stated that village chowkidar was present when he arrived at the place of occurrence. He has denied the suggestion that Somwati and Kallu had not made any confession in his presence or he got a false report lodged.

6. Sudhir Katiyar (PW-3) is the autopsy surgeon, who has stated that a sealed body was brought to him at mortuary and that he conducted the postmortem at about 1.20 pm. He found brain, lungs, kidney, liver etc. to be congested. The cause of death was not clear, and therefore preserved the Viscera and had sent it for examination. He has stated that the death could have occurred a day prior to the conduct of postmortem. He has opined that death could have occurred in the intervening night between 13/14.8.2007. He further stated that death could have occurred due to poisoning.

7. PW-4 Gyan Sagar is the police constable, who has verified the check FIR. PW-5 Vijay is a resident of the village, who has verified the extra-judicial confession made by the accused of having killed the deceased, by administering them poison. He has denied that his statement was recorded by Investigation Officer earlier. He has, however, clearly stated that confessional statement was made by the two accused in his presence about the manner in which the deceased have been done to death. Sanjay Kumar has been produced as PW-6, who was the Station House Officer in Police Station Sajeti and has conducted the investigation in the present case. He has stated that investigation against accused Jairaj is still going on and he is absconding. He has also admitted that time in the case diary with regard to commencement of investigation or its closure has not been mentioned. He too has verified the confessional statement. In the cross-examination he has stated that none of the inquest witnesses have been shown as witness in the chargesheet and even the neighbours Vansh Lal and Ram Asare have also not been shown as a witness. He has further stated that Vijay Kumar had not given any statement that Somwati and Kallu had been asked questions by him, Shivnandan, Jagroop and Sangeeta and that no statement was given by them that Jairaj has called them to Ghatampur and had told that tractor could not be arranged as the land was in the name of the two deceased.

8. On the basis of evidence led by the prosecution the incriminating material were put to accused, who denied the accusation made against them. In reply to question no.17 the accused have stated that the villagers had poisoned their sons with an intent to grab their land and house.

9. The trial proceeded and the court of sessions on the basis of evidence led by the prosecution found the charges under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC to be proved against them beyond reasonable doubt and consequently they have been convicted and sentenced to life.

10. In the present jail appeal we appointed Sri Virendra Pratap Yadav as Amicus Curiae to argue the appeal. He has submitted that this is a case of no evidence against the accused appellant, inasmuch as the confessional statement is the sole basis for their implication, which cannot be relied upon as it was not voluntary and had been obtained by exercising pressure. It is stated that the accused have not made any confession before the court and the alleged extra-judicial confession made before the villagers or before the police cannot be read in evidence. He further submits that the prosecution case is wholly improbable, inasmuch as the mother cannot be imagined to have consented to killing of her two sons only to arrange loan for purchase of tractor in favour of her paramour. He further submits that PW-5 has clearly admitted that four bigha land was in the name of accused Somwati and in the event loan was to be arranged, she could have offered her own land and it was not necessary for her to require the land held in the name of her sons for such purposes. He further submits that the villagers/pattidars could have committed the offence, inasmuch as on account of killing of the two sons, the mother landed in jail and has ultimately died during the pendency of present appeal and their land and house is now being used by others and that her entire property has been grabbed by the distant relatives Bhoora and Jairaj. An application has also been filed before the court to this effect on 27.9.2008, which is on record. Learned Amicus Curiae further submits that in the event aluminum phosphide was mixed in Banana, which had been purchased at Ghatampur at a distance of 10 kms, the smell would be such that none would come near it nor could have been consumed by the two boys. He places reliance upon a judgment of the Supreme Court in Jaipal Vs. State of Haryana, passed in Appeal (Crl.) No. 705 of 2001, decided on 1.10.2002, in order to submit that the prosecution case about administering of poison to the deceased in Banana is wholly improbable.

11. A photocopy of the Khatauni is on record of the court below, which clearly shows that Somwati was recorded over part of the land of Khata No.709 and she has moved an application that villagers Bhoora and Jairaj Kumhar have forcible encroached upon her land and are trying to grab her property. With reference to these two documents learned Amicus Curiae submits that obvious beneficiary of the offence had neither been identified by the prosecution nor have been prosecuted and instead the victims have been made accused on account of faulty investigation. Learned Amicus submits that this is a case of circumstantial evidence in which the chain of events have not been joined by the prosecution, so as to lead to hypothesis of guilt attributed to the accused appellant and as an alternative hypothesis seems more probable i.e. the distant relatives may have committed the offence to grab the land, the conviction and sentenced of the accused based on circumstantial evidence is clearly impermissible in law.

12. Per contra, Sri Arunendra Singh, learned AGA submits that the accused appellants have rightly been convicted and sentenced in the present case, inasmuch as the extrajudicial confession made by them is proved by the statement of witnesses, who are the residents of the same village and before whom such confessions were made. He further submits that forensic report clearly shows that aluminum phosphide was present in the peel of Banana and in view of the fact that cause of death has been found to be administering of poison to the deceased, which is clearly corroborated by the testimony of the prosecution witnesses, the appeal lacks merit. He further submits that the commissioning of offence for the benefit of her paramour was otherwise possible. He also submits that the conduct of the accused also shows that the offence was committed by them, inasmuch as no attempt was made by the accused to inform the police or even attempt to save the deceased. He submits that the deceased were in the care and custody of the accused and their death could not have occurred at the spur of the moment as the process involved consumption of time during which the deceased must have expressed their pain but nothing was done to save them. He submits that in the totality of facts and circumstances of this case the implication of the accused appellant is clearly established on record and as such the appeal lacks merit.

13. We have heard learned counsel for the parties and have carefully examined the records of the present appeal as well as the original records of the court below. The material placed on record would clearly go to show that the two sons of accused Somwati were born out of her wedlock with late Nanku, who had pre-deceased his two sons. It has further come on record that co-accused Kallu was in some sort of relationship with Somwati and was living in the same house with her for last about two years. It further transpires on record that the deceased brothers were in care and custody of the accused and were living in the same house, in which the accused persons were living. It has further come on record that the two brothers have died on account of administering of poison to them and it is a case of homicidal death.

14. The motive for administering poison is the first issue that needs careful examination by this Court. As per the prosecution Kallu wanted to purchase a tractor and for such purposes he came in contact with one Jairaj, who was an Agent of the Tractor Agency at Ghatampur. Jairaj is alleged to have informed Kallu that loan for tractor cannot be arranged as the land to be mortgaged for the purpose was in the name of two brothers Ramchandra and Veeru. The further case of the prosecution is that Jairaj suggested that in the event two brothers are poisoned the land would then come in the share of accused Somwati and loan for purchase of tractor could thus be secured.

15. There is no documentary evidence brought on record to show that any application for grant of loan was ever submitted by the accused to the Tractor Agency or the Bank. The agent Jairaj, who allegedly suggested the deceased brothers to be poisoned for arranging loan, and also informed the accused that loan cannot be arranged as the land stood in the name of the two deceased, has not been produced.

Our attention has been invited to the chargesheet in which Somwati and Kallu are the only two accused against whom evidence has been collected by the prosecution upon conclusion of statutory investigation under Chapter XII of the Code of Criminal Procedure. In the chargesheet there is no narration that investigation was continuing against Jairaj or that Jairaj was absconding. Although our attention has been invited to the statement of the Investigating Officer, as per which investigation against Jairaj was continuing and he was absconding, but such bald assertion is not substantiated from the documentary evidence on record. The documentary evidence in the nature of chargesheet clearly goes contrary to the statement of Investigating Officer, inasmuch as the chargesheet was expected to contain a narration to the effect that investigation was continuing against Jairaj. The fact that no such narration is contained in the chargesheet would clearly go contrary to the prosecution case that investigation was continuing against Jairaj.

16. Presence of Jairaj for ascertaining the truth in the matter was otherwise necessary, inasmuch as the primary motive for commissioning of the offence as per prosecution is the advise of Jairaj. It is Jairaj who is said to have informed the accused that loan cannot be arranged since the land is in the name of deceased Ramchandra and Veeru.

17. At this stage, we may refer to Khatauni (record of rights), available on record, in which apart from Ramchandra and Veeru the name of Somwati is also recorded as tenure-holder over the land in question. Her share has been admitted to be half by the prosecution witness PW-5. He has further stated that the land was valued at Rs. 10,000/ to Rs. 20,000/- per bigha. The total available land in Khata No.709, held in the name of minors Ramchandra and Veeru and their mother is about 2.2530 hectare. Half of the land would thus work out to about 1.1 hectare which could be about 3 to 4 bighas. There is nothing on record to show as to what was the cost of the tractor or that how much land was required to be mortgaged for securing sufficient loan so as to purchase the tractor. There is otherwise no evidence to show that land falling in the name of Somwati was insufficient to arrange required loan warranted for purchase of tractor.

18. The prosecution case, to the contrary, is that the entire land was in the name of Ramchandra and Veeru and unless they died no land would come in the share of Somwati for being mortgaged to secure the loan. The very premise or genesis of the prosecution case, therefore, proceeds on a mistaken factual belief that no land was available with Somwati. Even otherwise, we find that no loan was applied by the accused with the Tractor Agency or with the Bank. In the event Jairaj was absconding, as is stated by the Investigating Officer, the prosecution ought to have produced any other person from the Tractor Agency to substantiate that the accused wanted to purchase a tractor or in fact had applied for loan or that such loan could not be extended to them in the absence of availability of land to be kept as mortgage. The prosecution, therefore, has failed to establish the motive for commissioning of offence on part of the appellant.

19. In the facts of the case, we also find that the accused Somwati, who is the mother of the deceased Ramchandra and Veeru has moved an application that her land has been encroached upon by villagers in her absence. This fact has to be seen in the context of the plea taken by the accused in their statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. that the villagers had poisoned their sons so as to grab their land and house. The defence of the accused to certain extent thus find corroboration from the letter of Somwati dated 27.9.2008, which is on record. It is otherwise the position in law that after death of the two sons and their mother the land would go to the male heir of late Nanku.

20. We find that the conspiracy to poison the deceased by administering them poison by mixing it in banana was also hatched by Jairaj against whom neither any chargesheet has been filed nor he appears to have been interrogated. This is a serious flaw in the prosecution case.

21. The prosecution case essentially rests upon the confessional statement made by the two accused that they administered poison to their sons for securing the loan to purchase a tractor. The confessional statement has not been made before the Court. The extra-judicial confession is stated to have been made before the police and also before the villagers namely PW-1, PW-2 and PW-5. PW-1, however, has not supported the plea of confession at the stage of trial. PW-2 and PW-5 are villagers, who may have had to gain since the land of deceased has been usurped by the villagers.

22. We also find from the testimony of prosecution witnesses that the accused had not voluntarily made any confession. PW-1 and other witnesses of fact have clearly stated that the villagers had to be tough with the accused for them to make the confessional statement. This clearly suggests that confession was under duress. PW-1 has otherwise admitted that hundreds of persons had gathered outside the house of late Nanku and the possibility of pressure/coercion cannot be ruled out in light of the statement of prosecution witnesses themselves.

23. The basis for implication of the accused appellant primarily is the extra-judicial confessional statement of the accused Somwati and Kallu that they had administered poison to the deceased. For a confession to be relevant in criminal proceedings it must be shown not to be caused by inducement, threat or promise (see: Section 24 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872).

24. Learned Amicus Curiae submits that the alleged confessional statement of accused was not voluntary, as the prosecution witnesses have specifically stated that the villagers had to be tough with the accused and only thereafter the accused made their confessional statement. Submission is that the alleged confession was, therefore, obtained by exercising coercion and cannot be said to be voluntary. Learned Amicus Curiae places reliance upon a judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of State of Haryana Vs. Jagbir Singh and another, reported in AIR 2003 SC 4377, wherein the Court observed as under in Paragraph 20:-

"20. Great emphasis was laid by the learned counsel for the State on the evidence of PW 4, the Additional CJM that the accused had admitted that the signature was his. This statement is of no assistance. The witness has admitted that the statement was made before him by the accused in the presence of the police officials. The second circumstance is the alleged extra-judicial confession before PW 10. The High Court has analysed the evidence in great detail. It is on record that the accused Jagbir was being taken to various places and at different points of time he was being pressurized to make a statement. Though the accused was claimed to have made the statement in the presence of a large number of persons, a combined reading of the evidence shows that nobody else speaks about the so-called extra-judicial confession, not even those who have been examined as PWs. Though PW 10 said that there were many persons who had heard it, no other person has stated about it. The statements of PWs 7 and 10 go to show that the accused was being interrogated by PWs and other villagers as well as his father and other relatives. Interrogation continued for about 3 days when allegedly Jagbir confessed his guilt. Though the first information report was lodged by PW 7 after knowing about the extra-judicial confession, there is no mention about this vital fact. In a given circumstance, omission to mention about the particular aspect may not render the prosecution version suspicious. But when circumstances in the present case are taken in their entirety the alleged extra-judicial confession is not believable. In order to make an extra-judicial confession a reliable evidence it has to be shown that the same was voluntary. The factual scenario as presented by the prosecution goes to show that the alleged extra-judicial confession cannot be termed to be voluntary even if it was said to have been made, as claimed. The High Court was right in discarding the alleged extra-judicial confession."

25. The evidentiary value of a extra-judicial confession came to be examined by the Supreme Court in State of Punjab Vs. Bhajan Singh and others, AIR 1975 SC 258, wherein the Court held as under in Paragraph 15:-

"15. Coming to the evidence of extra-judicial confessions, we find the same to be improbable and lacking in credence. According to Gurmej Singh and Jabarjang Singh PWs, the confessing accused came to them and blurted out confessions. They also requested these two witnesses to produce them before the police. The resume of facts given above would go to show that according to the prosecution case the murders of the three deceased persons were committed in a most heinous manner and under a veil of secrecy. Persons who commit such murders after taking precautions of secrecy are not normally likely to become garrulous after the commission of the offence and acquire a sudden proneness to blurt out what they were at pains to conceal. In any case it seems rather odd that all the three accused who had not been arrested till the morning of May 9, 1972 should be seized almost at the same time by a mood to make confession. It is significant that Surjit Singh, Charan Kaur and Jito accused had no particular relationship or connection with Gurmej Singh and Jabarjang Singh PWs. These two witnesses were also not in such a position that the abovementioned three accused would be willing to repose their confidence in them. If Surjit Singh, Charan Kaur and Jito wanted to surrender themselves before the police, we fail to understand as to why they should not themselves surrender before the police and go instead to Gurmej Singh and Jabarjang Singh and blurt out confessions before them. The evidence of extra-judicial confession in the very nature of things is a weak piece of evidence. The evidence adduced in this respect in the present case lacks plausibility and, as observed by the High Court, it does not inspire confidence."

26. Law is thus settled that extrajudicial confession by its very nature is a weak evidence and requires examination with a great deal of care and caution. When the extrajudicial confession is attended by suspicious circumstances its credibility otherwise becomes weak. As a matter of prudence the courts normally look forward to corroboration of facts independently, before such extrajudicial confession is taken note of or is relied upon to convict an accused.

27. The attending circumstances in the form of motive is not established in the facts of the case. We further find that the villagers have actually gained on account of the implication of the accused, inasmuch as, the landed property belonging to the accused Somwati has apparently been grabbed by the villagers. The villagers, therefore, were to gain by attributing confession to the accused Somwati and Kallu. The extrajudicial confession is thus not found to be corroborated from the evidence available on record.

28. The only other material which surfaces on record is the peel of banana which is recovered from the spot and has been subjected to forensic examination wherein it is found that the banana did contain aluminum phosphide and was apparently the cause of death. It has also come on record in the report of forensic laboratory, upon examination of viscera, that aluminum phosphide was present. This evidence would at best show that the deceased were poisoned and that poisoning was the cause of death. This in itself would not lead to an inference that the poisoning was done by the accused persons. Since we find that the confession on part of accused is not supported by any independent corroboration with regard to their role in poisoning the deceased the mere report of the forensic laboratory, on its own, would not constitute any basis to implicate the accused appellant.

29. In the event the confession is ignored the prosecution case rests upon the circumstantial evidence and the prosecution has not been able to show that only hypothesis available in this case points to the guilt of the accused and that no alternative hypothesis exists in the facts of the case.

30. This is a case of circumstantial evidence and the law on the point is well settled that the prosecution must prove the complete chain of events, which points the exclusive hypothesis of guilt attributed to the accused appellant. It is also the requirement of law that the prosecution must show that alternative hypothesis does not exist on facts.

31. Before proceeding with the deliberation any further it would be appropriate to refer to the law governing the case of circumstantial evidence.

32. In Sharad Birdhichand Sarda vs. State of Maharashtra reported in (1984) 4 SCC 116, the Apex Court evolved five tests to be established by the prosecution in order to prove the guilt of accused based on circumstantial evidence. Five golden principles have been enumerated in paragraph nos. 152 to 154, which are reproduced hereinafter:-

"152. Before discussing the cases relied upon by the High Court we would like to cite a few decisions on the nature, character and essential proof required in a criminal case which rests on circumstantial evidence alone. The most fundamental and basic decision of this Court is Hunumant vs. The State of Madhya Pradesh. This case has been uniformly followed and applied by this Court in a large number of later decisions uptodate, for instance, the cases of Tufail (Alias) Simmi v. State of Uttar Pradesh and Ramgopal v. Stat of Maharashtra. It may be useful to extract what Mahajan, J. has laid down in Hanumant's case (supra):

"It is well to remember that in cases where the evidence is of a circumstantial nature, the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should in the first instance be fully established and all the facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused. Again, the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency and they should be such as to exclude every hypothesis but the one proposed to be proved. In other words, there must be a chain of evidence so far complete as not to leave any reasonable ground far a conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and it must be such as to show that within all human probability the act must have been done by the accused."

153. A close analysis of this decision would show that the following conditions must be fulfilled before a case against an accused can be said to be fully established:

(1) the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should be fully established.

It may be noted here that this Court indicated that the circumstances concerned 'must or should' and not 'may be' established. There is not only a grammatical but a legal distinction between 'may be proved' and 'must be or should be proved' as was held by this Court in Shivaji Sahabrao Bobade & Anr. V. State of Maharashtra, where the following observations were made:

"Certainly, it is a primary principle that the accused must be and not merely may be guilty before a court can convict and the mental distance between 'may be' and 'must be' is long and divides vague conjectures from sure conclusions."

(2) The facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused, that is to say. they should not be explainable on any other hypothesis except that the accused is guilty, (3) the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency.

(4) they should exclude every possible hypothesis except the one to be proved, and (5) there must be a chain of evidence so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability the act must have been done by the accused.

154. These five golden principles, if we may say so, constitute the panchsheel of the proof of a case based on circumstantial evidence."

33. Judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of Sharad Birdhichand Sarda (Supra) has consistently been followed and reiterated recently by the Court in the case of Ram Niwas Vs. State of Haryana reported in 2022 SCC OnLine SC 1007.

34. When we analyse the evidence on record on the above touch stone, we come to the conclusion that the prosecution has failed to prove the guilt of the accused appellant beyond reasonable doubt. It has not been proved by the prosecution that chain of events in the present case lead only to the hypothesis of guilt on part of the accused appellant and an alternative hypothesis cannot be ruled out. The accused appellant is, therefore, clearly entitled to benefit of doubt in the matter.

35. The alternative hypothesis on behalf of accused that the relatives/villagers may have administered poison as they have ultimately succeeded in grabbing their land has been probablised. We, therefore, find that an alternative hypothesis does exist in the facts of the case. Once that be so, the conviction and sentence of accused appellants based on the circumstantial evidence would clearly be impermissible.

36. Upon the evaluation of the evidence led by the prosecution, we, therefore, come to the conclusion that the prosecution has failed to establish the guilt of the accused appellants beyond reasonable doubt on the basis of which their conviction could be recorded.

37. The court below has also erred in relying upon the confessional statement without evaluating the evidentiary value of such statement in correct legal perspective. The provisions of the Evidence Act dealing with the confessional statements of the accused have not been examined by the court below while recording the guilt of the accused appellants. The judgment and order of the court below, in such circumstances, cannot be approved of.

38. For the discussions and deliberations held above, we find that the accused appellants are clearly entitled to benefit of doubt as the prosecution has not been able to prove their guilt beyond reasonable doubt.

39. Consequently, the present jail appeal succeeds and is allowed. The judgment and order dated 27.9.2008, passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 1, Kanpur Dehat in Sessions Trial No. 452 of 2007, State vs. Somwati and another; whereby the appellants Somwati and Kallu have been convicted under section 302 r/w 34 IPC in Case Crime No.223/2007, Police Station Sajeti, District Kanpur Dehat, and sentenced to life imprisonment, is set aside. The appellant Kallu shall be released from Jail, forthwith, unless he is wanted in any other cases, subject to compliance of Section 437-A Cr.P.C. So far as accused Somwati is concerned, she has already died during pendency of the present Jail Appeal and the appeal at her instance has abated as is clear from the order dated 9.11.2022.

40. A copy of this order shall be communicated to the accused appellant in Jail through Chief Judicial Magistrate/Jail Superintendent concerned, forthwith.

41. We record our appreciation for the valuable assistance rendered by learned Amicus Curiae Mr. Virendra Pratap Yadav. He shall be entitled to his fee, which we quantify at Rs.15,000/- to be paid by the High Court Legal Services Authority.

3. (2004 vol 7 SCC 257),

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajai Tyagi, J.)

1. These two criminal appeals have been preferred by the appellants against the judgement and order dated 30.05.2018, passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.5, Badaun in S.T. No.519 of 2013 (State Vs. Rajnesh and others) arising out of Case Crime No.334 of 2012, under Sections 147, 148, 302/149 and 323/149 IPC, Police Station- Rajpura, District- Sambhal, whereby learned trial court convicted accused appellants Rajnesh and Vijay Pal under Section 302 r/w Section 34 IPC and sentenced each with life imprisonment and fine of Rs.10,000/- and six months simple imprisonment in case of default of fine. Trial court also convicted them under Section 323 r/w Section 34 IPC and sentenced each six months R.I. and fine of Rs.500/- and 15 days simple imprisonment in case of default of fine. Learned trial court acquitted all the other accused persons from all the charges framed against them and also acquitted accused appellant Vijay Pal of the charge under Section 25 of Arms Act. Both these appeals, being connected, are being decided together.

2. The brief facts of the case as culled out from the record are that a written report Ext. Ka.5 is submitted by informant Anek Pal at police station- Rajpura, District- Bhimnagar (Sambhal) with the averments that the in-laws' house of his brother Gauri Shankar is in Jethpura in the family of Ram Bhoop and the in-laws' house of accused Vijay Pal is also in the same village in the family of Kalyan. There is dispute going on between the families of in-laws of Gauri Shankar and Vijay Pal. His brother had gone to his in-laws' house for diffusing the dispute. Accused Vijay Pal and his in-laws took it as their insult and started silent enmity with them. Further averment is that that on 12.07.2012 at about 5:00 pm, the Rajnesh brother-in-law of accused Vijay Pal, Vijay Pal, Hari Shankar, Sher Pal, Raj Pal, Ram Khiladi and Mahesh, armed with weapons, came to the house of his brother Gauri Shankar and called him. His nephew Rama Shankar @ Pappu came out of the house. All the aforesaid accused persons got him and started beating with lathi and danda. On his hue and cry, his brother Gauri Shankar came out of the house then all the accused got Gauri Shankar and said to kill him. Then Rajnesh caught hold Gauri Shankar and Vijay Pal triggered a fire in the head of Gauri Shankar, who fell on the ground and died. Accused persons after seeing them fled away from the spot stating that if anybody gave the evidence he will be killed.

3. On the basis of aforesaid written report, a first information report Ext.Ka.3 was registered at Police Station- Rajpura, District- Bhimnagar as Case Crime No.334 of 2012 under Sections 147, 148, 149, 302, 323 and 506 IPC. Station Officer Lakshmi Shankar took up the investigation. Statements of witnesses were recorded u/s 161 of Cr.P.C. I.O. went to the spot and prepared site-plan. Blood stained and plain earth were collected from the spot and recovery memo was prepared. Injured Rama Shankar was taken to the hospital where his medical examination was conducted and medico legal report was prepared. Inquest proceedings of the deceased were conducted and inquest report was prepared. Post mortem was conducted on the body of the deceased and doctor prepared post mortem report. During the course of investigation, the I.O. arrested the accused Vijay Pal, on whose pointing out a country made pistol (Tamancha) was recovered from his house, in which one empty cartridge was found in the barrel and one live cartridge was also recovered. Tamancha with empty cartridge were sent to Forensic Science Laboratory and report was received stating the fact that the empty cartridge was fired by the aforesaid Tamancha.

4. After completion of investigation, charge sheet was submitted by I.O. against accused Rajnesh, Vijay Pal, Hari Shankar, Raj Pal, Ram Khiladi and Mahesh under Section 147, 148, 149, 302, 323, 506 IPC. Accused Sher Pal, being juvenile, charge sheet was submitted against him in Juvenile Justice Board. Another charge sheet was also submitted against accused Vijay Pal, under Section 25 Arms Act after obtaining sanction from the District Magistrate. The case being triable exclusively by the Court of Sessions, the Magistrate committed the case to the Court of Sessions, where the learned Sessions Judge framed charges against all the accused persons u/s 147, 148, 302 r/w Section 149 IPC and 323 r/w Section 149 of IPC. Additional charge u/s 25 Arms Act was framed against accused Vijay Pal.

5. During the course of trial, prosecution produced following witnesses:

1.	Anek Pal	PW1
2.	Rama Shankar	PW2
3.	Raju Singh	PW3
4.	Dr. A.P. Gautam	PW4
5.	Kamal Singh	PW5
6.	Dr. S.P. Singh	PW6
7.	Lakshmi Shankar	PW7
8.	Room Singh Baghel	PW8
9.	Lakshmi Shankar Sharma	PW9

6. Apart from aforesaid oral evidence, the prosecution has filed following documentary evidence, which was proved by leading the evidence:

1.	FIR	Ext. Ka-3
2.	FIR	Ext. Ka-5
3.	Written Report	Ext. Ka-1
4.	Recovery memo of Tamancha, Live & Empty Cartridge	Ext. Ka-10
5.	Recovery memo of Blood Stained & Plain Earth	Ext. Ka-9
6.	Injury Report	Ext. Ka-7
7.	P.M. Report	Ext. Ka-2
8.	Vidhi Vigyan Prayogshala Report
9.	Panchayatnama	Ext. Ka-

10.	Charge sheet	Ext. Ka-12
11.	Charge sheet	Ext. Ka-19
12.	Order of District Magistrate	Ext. Ka-20
13.	Site Plan with Index	Ext. Ka-8
14.	Site Plan with Index	Ext. Ka-11
15.	Site Plan with Index	Ext. Ka-18

7. After completion of prosecution evidence, statements of accused persons were recorded u/s 313 of Cr.P.C., in which they told that false case was made out against them and false evidence is produced. Accused persons filed one document, i.e., copy of G.D. in their defense.

8. Learned trial after hearing the arguments of both the sides acquitted all the accused persons of all the charges except appellants Rajnesh and Vijay Pal, who were convicted and sentenced u/s 302 r/w Section 34 of IPC and Section 323 r/w Section 34 of IPC. Appellant Vijay Pal was acquitted of the charge u/s 25 Arms Act also. Hence, this appeal.

9. Heard Smt. Abhilasha Singh, learned counsel for the appellants and learned AGA for the State as well as perused the record.

10. Learned counsel for the appellants first of all submitted that appellants were having no motive to commit the offence as charged by prosecution. She submitted that as per prosecution case, the in-laws' house of deceased brother Gauri Shankar and in-laws' house of Vijay Pal are in the same village, where both the family members of their in-laws were having enmity with each other. It is also a case of prosecution that Gauri Shankar had gone to his in-laws' house to diffuse the enmity but this cannot be the motive to commit a brutal murder. Learned counsel also referred the statement of PW1 Anek Pal, where he has stated in his cross-examination that there was no enmity between them and accused. Hence, there was no motive with the appellants to commit the murder of deceased Gauri Shankar. Hence, motive set up by the prosecution is absolutely unbelievable.

11. Learned counsel for the appellants submitted that prosecution case cannot be believed on this ground alone that prosecution has established the case that at the time of occurrence, appellant Rajnesh caught hold the deceased and appellant Vijay Pal triggered the fire in his head. Learned counsel submitted that in such a position, the appellant catching hold the deceased could also sustain the fire arm injuries and his life could also be in danger but he did not sustain even a small injury. Moreover, so called injured eye-witness PW2 Rama Shankar has stated that Vijay Pal fired from behind which is contrary to the post mortem report. In post mortem report it is shown in ante mortem injuries that gun shot entry wound was in the left side of the head of the deceased and exit wound was on the right side. Hence, this evidence of PW2 that fire was triggered from behind falsifies his evidence and further it also falsifies the fact that deceased was caught hold by appellant Rajnesh because when bullet exited from right side of the head it should have been hit the appellant Rajnesh also, who is said to catch hold the deceased from right side.

12. Learned counsel for the appellants further submitted that prosecution case is also falsified with the fact that although a country made pistol of .315 is said to be recovered from the house of the appellant Vijay Pal on his pointing out, which is sent to Forensic Science Laboratory, from where report was received that the empty cartridge, found in the barrel, was fired with the recovered weapon. But this recovery was found fake and trial court acquitted the appellant Vijay Pal of the charge u/s 25 of Arms Act. When this recovery of weapon was found false, the entire case comes into the dark shadow. It is also submitted that learned trial court has opined that it is not always necessary that in each case weapon is required to be recovered. If weapon is not recovered then also accused may be convicted for the offence like murder, if it is otherwise proved. Learned counsel argued that this opinion of the learned trial court may be correct but this is a case where I.O. recovers the weapon at the instance of appellant and this recovery is found fake. This fact is not properly considered by the trial court.

13. Learned counsel for the appellants vehemently submitted that prosecution has produced three witnesses of fact PW1, PW2 and PW3 and there are several contradictions in their testimony, which go to the root of the case and it is proved that no one is eye-witness. They have not seen the occurrence at all, even PW1 admits in his cross-examination that he reached to the spot after 5 minutes of the occurrence and learned trial court also did not consider him eye-witness. PW2 and PW3 were also not present on the spot, which is proved by their testimony.

14. Learned counsel for the appellants relied on the judgements of this High Court in Criminal Appeal No.1826 of 2003 (Prem and others Vs. State of U.P.) decided on 8.4.2022 and in Criminal Appeal No.429 of 1983 (Ram Subhag and another Vs. State of U.P.) decided on 09.10.2018.

15. Learned AGA opposed the submissions made by learned counsel for the appellants and contended that this is a day light occurrence and there are three eye-witnesses. There is no material contradiction in the evidence of eye-witnesses. Moreover, as per ante mortem injury in post mortem report, there is one gun shot entry wound on the left side of the face of the deceased and exit wound in the right side of the head. Prosecution case is also a case of single fire in the head of the deceased. Hence, ocular evidence is very well corroborated by the medical evidence. Learned AGA further contended that if recovery of weapon is not proved then it cannot be concluded that appellants have not committed murder of the deceased because it is not necessary to find out the weapon in each case. All the three eye-witnesses are resident of neighborhood. Hence, their presence on the spot cannot be doubted. Learned trial court has rightly convicted and sentenced both the appellants. Hence, there is no illegality in the impugned judgement which requires any interference by this Court.

16. Prosecution has set up the case that on the fateful day, both appellants Rajnesh and Vijay Pal went to the house of the deceased Gauri Shankar along with five other accused persons and called him to come out of the house. Firstly, the son of the deceased Gauri Shankar, namely, Rama Shankar came out of the house and all the accused persons started beating him by lathi and danda. On his hue and cry, the deceased Gauri Shankar came out of the house and all the accused persons started beating him and said to kill him. Then and there, appellant Rajnesh caught hold Gauri Shankar and Vijay Pal triggered a fire in his head, due to which Gauri Shankar fell on the ground and died.

17. Prosecution produced three eye-witnesses of the occurrence, namely PW1- Anek Pal, PW2- Rama Shankar and PW3- Raju Singh. PW1- Anek Pal is brother of the deceased, PW2 Rama Shankar is son of the deceased and PW3 Raju Singh is nephew of the deceased. Hence, all the three eye-witnesses are related witnesses. Evidence of interested or related witness cannot be disbelieved on the ground that they were interested or related witnesses, but their testimony should be scrutinized with great care and caution. Keeping this proposition of law in mind, we have analyzed the evidence of all the aforesaid three eye-witnesses meticulously. For the sake of analyses of evidence, we put the case in two parts. First part- beating Rama Shankar by seven named accused persons and second part- where appellant- Rajnesh caught hold the deceased and appellant- Vijay Pal fired at his head. As far as first part is concerned, as per prosecution case when Rama Shankar, son of the deceased, came out of his house, all the seven named accused persons started beating him by lathi and danda. This Rama Shankar is produced by prosecution as PW2, he has deposed in his examination-in-chief that when he came out of the house accused persons gave him beating by lathi, danda and backside of tamancha. He has deposed in his cross-examination that his father (deceased) came out of the house after 20 minutes of his coming out and during this period, accused persons were beating him. But the medical report of Rama Shankar Ext. Ka.7 shows otherwise. In this report there are only three injuries. Injury No.1 is contusion with swelling below left knee joint, injury No.2 is contusion with swelling at right knee joint and injury No.3 is complaint of pain in body. All injuries were simple in nature. Hence, there was just two injuries to Rama Shankar, which were only contusion. There should have been serveral injuries if seven persons beat one person with lathi, danda and backside of tamancha, that too for a period of 20 minutes or so. It creates doubt with regard to the presence of PW2 Rama Shankar at the place of occurrence. Now the meticulous analysis of oral testimony of PW2 goes to show that in cross-examination, he has deposed that when he reached at the place of occurrence, Anek Pal and Raju Singh (PW1 and PW3) were present there. It means that PW2 reached to the spot after PW1 Anek Pal and PW1 Anek Pal says that he went to the occurrence after 5 minutes on hearing the sound of fire and before him there were lot of people at the spot and no accused was present there. The presence of PW1 was not believed by the trial court also and it held that PW1 is not the eye-witness and if PW2 Rama Shankar reached to the spot after Anek Pal then he also cannot be held to be the eye-witness. PW2 has categorically stated that he saw Raju, Anek Pal and accused persons but Anek Pal says that he did not see any accused and reached to the spot after 5 minutes of the occurrence. Hence, the presence of PW2 has also become doubtful to the great extent at the place of occurrence. Moreover, PW2 establishes this case as it was case of two fires because he says that there was one empty cartridge lying on the spot but no such empty cartridge is recovered by the I.O. on the spot. Apart from it, if we analyze the testimony of PW2 in the light of medical evidence then also it creates doubt because PW2 has specifically stated that Rajnesh caught hold his father from the right side and appellant Vijay Pal fired from the back side but ante mortem injury No.2 in post mortem report goes to show that it was exit wound in the back side of the head of the deceased. If accused Vijay Pal would have fired from back side then there should have been entry wound in the back side of the head and not the exit wound as mentioned in post mortem report. Hence, PW2 Rama Shankar is not eye-witness and now there remains testimony of PW3 as eye-witness. At one place in cross-examination, he has deposed that when he reached to the house of deceased Gauri Shankar, no villager was there. He was alone and after that his father Anek Pal (PW1) also reached there. Further he has stated that he and his father Anek Pal (PW1) reached to the place of occurrence simultaneously. He has specifically stated that it was no so that he reached earlier than his father Anek Pal. If it was so then, as discussed above, the presence of PW1 at the place of occurrence has been found false, hence, the presence of PW3 Raju Singh is also very much doubtful and this doubt further gets strength from his statement in further cross-examination where he has deposed that he heard the sound of one fire. At that time, he was talking to his father in his house. It means that when the fire was opened to the deceased, PW3 was sitting in his house with his father and since this is case of one fire, it can safely be held that PW3 is also not the eye-witness and he has not seen the occurrence.

18. This High Court in the cases, relied on by learned counsel for the appellants, namely, Prem and others (supra) and Ram Subhag and another (supra) has held that mere consistency in the testimony of the prosecution witnesses is not the sole test of truth as even falsehood can be given an adroit appearance of truth, so that truth disappears and falsehood comes on the surface. Therefore, what the court has to look at, and assess, is whether the prosecution evidence coupled with the surrounding circumstances has a ring of truth or there arises a strong suspicion and high probability of false implication of the accused put on trial.

19. PW4 Dr. A.P. Gautam had conducted post mortem on the body of the deceased and following ante mortem injuries were found:

(ii) Fire arm exit wound size 2.5 cm x 2 cm on right side occipital region of head.

20. Hence, it was a case of one fire only and as discussed above, PW1, PW2 and PW3 are proved not to be the eye-witness of the occurrence and their testimony cannot be relied on, but the learned trial court although mentioned in the judgement the material contradictions in their testimony but based conviction of the appellants mainly on the basis of their statements made in examination-in-chief only. Presence of PW1 at the place of occurrence is not relied upon by the trail court, which is correct finding but presence of PW2 and PW3 is also not proved at the spot. There are several material contradictions in their testimony, denying their presence, which go to root of the matter and shatter the entire prosecution case. Since, the prosecution has produced three eye-witnesses and the presence of all these eye-witnesses is very much doubtful rather it is proved that they were not present at the place of occurrence and have not seen any incident as alleged by prosecution, there emerges strong suspicion and high probability of false implication of the accused-appellants on the basis of enmity between the families of in-laws of deceased and appellant Vijay Pal. False implication of appellant- Rajnesh is also due to enmity. This enmity is explained by PW2.

21. After sifting the evidence as above, we are of the considered opinion that learned trial court has fallen into grave error in believing the testimony of PW2 and PW3 because it is well proved that they were not the as eye-witness. Learned trial court has not taken into consideration that material contradictions in their testimony and these contradictions are so major that they go to the very root of the prosecution case and shatter it.

22. Hence, we are of the considered view that learned trial court did not appreciate the evidence in right perspective and misread it. Appellants- Vijay and Rajnesh are wrongly convicted by trial court under Section 302 r/w Section 34 IPC and Section 323 r/w Section 34 IPC. Hence, we upturn the finding of learned trial court convicting the appellants and the appeal is liable to be allowed.

23. Accordingly, both the appeals are allowed.

24. Impugned judgement is set aside. Conviction and sentence of both the appellants under Section 302 r/w Section 34 IPC and Section 323 r/w Section 34 IPC is hereby set aside and appellants are acquitted of the aforesaid charges.

25. The accused-appellants be released from jail forthwith if not wanted in any other case.

26. Record and proceedings be sent back to the court below.

27. In Criminal Appeal No. 2819 of 2019 Smt. Abhilasha Singh, Advocate was appointed as Amicus Curiae as learned counsel for the appellant did not appear. She will be paid Rs.15,000/- as remuneration by the High Court Legal Services Committee.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Nalin Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. This Criminal Appeal has been directed against the judgment and order dated 15.7.2015 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court, Pilibhit in Sessions Trial No. 435 of 2013 (Case Crime No. 362 of 2013), P.S. Kotwali Pilibhit, District Pilibhit convicting and sentencing the appellant under Section 302 I.P.C. for life imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 10,000/-, under Section 354-ka IPC for three years rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 5,000/- and under Section 354-gha IPC for three years rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 5,000/- with stipulation of default clause. All the sentences were directed to run concurrently.

2. Brief facts, as culled out from the record, are that a First Information Report was lodged by the informant, Zahid Khan son of Shri Puttan, resident of Veni Chaudhary, Police Station Kotwali Sadar, Pilibhit, at Police Station Kotwali Sadar, District Pilibhit with the averments that Munna, Adnan son of Dilshel Khan and Amar son of Mohd. Umar used to tease her daughter Hima by passing comments which was complained to their guardians but they did not stop their activities. On 20.5.2013, at about 8.00 p.m. when his daughter was returning from the house of her Bua in front of the gate of the house, the aforesaid Munna and others gave mobile to Hima and asked her to call to them with the said mobile but Hima did not accept the mobile, due to which being angry they tried to drag her. Angreed with Hima's protest, the aforesaid Munna and others sprinkled kerosene on her and set her ablaze. Hearing her cry, Shahid, son of the informant and Gudia, wife of Afaq and the local residents reached there and on their exhortation, the aforesaid Munna and others ran away. Information about the incident was given at Police Station Kotwali at 9.30 p.m. and the injured was hospitalized in District Hospital, Pilibhit where her dying declaration (Ext. ka-11) was recorded by the Nayab Tehsildar, Pilibhit. He also took her thumb impression over the same. Victim was conscious at the time of statement.

3. On the basis of the written report (Ext. ka-1), chik First Information Report (Ext. Ka-2) was registered at Police Station concerned on 20.5.2013 at 9.30 p.m. against Munna, Adnan and Amar at case crime no. 362 of 2013 under Sections 354-ka and 354-gha and 307 IPC.

4. Investigation of the case proceeded. During course of investigation, the Investigating Officer recorded the statement of witnesses, prepared site plan, inquest report was prepared and post mortem was performed. During the course of instigation, the victim died. After making thorough investigation, charge sheet was submitted against the accused. Concerned Magistrate took cognizance on the charge sheet. On 19.7.2013 and 13.9.2013 respectively accused Adnan and Amar were declared juvenile in conflict with law and their files were separated and sent to Juvenile Justice Board. The learned Magistrate summoned the accused Munna and committed the case to Court of Sessions, as prima facie charges were for the sessions triable offences.

5. The charges framed were under Sections 354-ka, 354-gha, 307 IPC read with Section 34 IPC and 302 IPC read with Section 34 IPC. The accused-person pleaded not guilty and wanted to be tried. Trial started and in support of its case, prosecution examined 10 witnesses, who are as follows:

1	Zahid	PW-1 (informant) (father of the deceased)
2	Rashid	PW-2 (brother of deceased)
3	Asma Bee	PW-3 (aunt of deceased)
4	Ram Chandra Sharma	PW-4 (scribe of the F.I.R.)
5	Dr. Bhagwan Das	PW-5 (who performed the post mortem of the deceased and and gave certificate before the dying declaration of the deceased)

6	Gandhi Lal Sharma	PW-6 (who conducted the inquest of the deceased and prepared other papers)
7	Rajeev Nigam	PW-7 (Nayab Tehsildar Sadar, Pilibhit who recorded the dying declaration of the deceased)
8	Satendra Kumar Singh	PW-8 (Investigating Officer-III)
9	Rakesh Singh	PW-9 (Investigating Officer-I)
10	Anand Kumar Verma	PW-10 (Investigating Officer-II)

6. In support of oral version, following documents were filed and proved on behalf of the prosecution:

1	Written report	Ext. A-1
2	Chik F.I.R.	Ext. A-2
3	G.D. entry	Ext. A-3
4	Post mortem report	Ext. A-4
5	Inquest report	Ext. A-5
6	Challan Nash	Ext. A-6
7	Photo Nash	Ext. A-7
8	Letter to C.M.O.	Ext. A-8
9	Letter to R.I.	Ext. A-9
10	Specimen Seal	Ext A-10
11	Dying declaration	Ext. A-11
12	Charge sheet	Ext. A-12
13	Memo of clothings of deceased	Ext. A-13
14	Site plan	Ext. A-14
15	Copy G.D.	Ext. A-15
16	Certificate before recording the dying declaration	Ext. A-16
17	Certificate after recorded the dying declaration	Ext. A-17

7. Deceased was hospitalised after the occurrence. She died on the same day of the occurrence during the course of treatment.

8. The incriminating circumstances emanating from the prosecution evidence were put to the accused. In his statement recorded under Section 313 CrPC, he denied his involvement in the incident and pleaded false implication on account of enmity.

9. The accused in his defence has examined DW-1 Ishaq Ahmad, DW-2 Fahim, DW-3 Sharfuddin and DW-4 Jalil Miyan.

10. Relying upon the aforesaid evidence adduced by the prosecution, the trial court concluded that the prosecution succeeded in proving its case beyond reasonable doubt and convicted and sentenced the accused appellant accordingly.

11. The learned counsel for the appellant assailing the findings of the trial court recorded in the impugned judgment argued that the impugned judgment is a product of surmises and and conjectures. The trial court did not appreciate the evidence on record in a legal and proper manner and the findings are contrary to law. The impugned judgment does not appear to be fair and just conclusion of the episode which invites interference of the appellate court and deserves to be set-aside. It has also been submitted that the sentence imposed by the trial court is too severe and the accused appellant invites indulgence of the appellate court to acquit him. The dying declaration, which also formed basis of conviction, is also not legally reliable. On the aforesaid grounds it has been prayed that the accused appellant be acquitted by allowing the present appeal.

12. Per contra, learned AGA appearing for the State has contended that there is no legal or factual error in the impugned judgment and it is a result of proper appreciation of facts and evidence on record and the dying declaration is also a reliable and cogent piece of evidence. On the aforesaid grounds, dismissal of the present appeal was prayed for.

13. Heard Shri Mahesh Prasad Yadav, learned counsel for the appellant and Shri N.K. Srivastava, learned AGA for the State.

14. At the very outset, the fact which draws our attention is that the present case rests upon the eye witness account. The facts of the case find support from oral evidence as well as the dying declaration of the deceased. It is found in the F.I.R. itself and also in the oral testimonies of PW-1, father of the deceased and PW-2, brother of the deceased, that earlier from the occurrence the named accused persons including the present appellant used to passing comments upon the deceased and their mischief was complained of by the informant to their family members also. As per the F.I.R. version at the time of occurrence the appellant alongwith other two co-accused whose trial was separated and sent to the Juvenile Justice Board, tried to give mobile phone to the deceased forcibly but she refused to take it being angry of which they tried to drag her and in the course of this incident they poured kerosene oil upon the deceased and set her ablaze.

15. PW-2, the brother of the deceased, has categorically stated in his evidence that when on cry of his sister he reached the spot, he saw the appellant Munna and other co-accused Adnan and Amar surrounding his sister. Co-accused Adnan and Amar poured kerosene oil over his sister and present appellant Munna set her ablaze. At the time of occurrence his father Zahid, mother Shamshadi Begum and other neighbourers came over there. Hima ran towards the house and laid on a cot. They took her to the hospital but after some time she died. The accused fled away from the scene of occurrence. This statement finds support from the statement of PW-1, informant, who has also categorically confirmed the role of present appellant in the occurrence. PW-1 and PW-2 both have stated that the present appellant and other co-accused used to tease the deceased and when she protested on the fateful day she was set ablaze by them. The informant has also proved the written report as Ext. A-1.

16. PW-3, Smt. Asma Bee, who is a native of the same vicinity, has also corroborated the prosecution version and has stated that when on the cry of Hima she reached the spot, she saw her burning and Munna, Adnan and Amar running away from there. PW-1 and PW-2 have also stated that when Hima laid on the cot after the occurrence she had told that Amar, Adnan and Munna had set her ablaze and they used to tease her.

17. There is nothing in the cross-examination of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 which can be termed as inconsistent or untrustworthy statement.

18. It has been contended by the learned counsel for the appellant that there is no independent witness of the incident and all the aforesaid three witnesses are the family members of the deceased, which makes the prosecution story suspicious.

19. We do not find ourselves in agreement with the aforesaid plea taken by the learned counsel for the appellant. The legal position in respect of a relative witness has been made clear in a catena of decisions by the Hon'ble Apex Court and by this Court also. It is well settled that the testimony of a witness in a criminal trial cannot be discarded merely because the witness is relative or family member of the victim of the offence. In such a case the Court has to adopt a careful approach in analysing the evidence of such a witness and if the testimony of the related witness is otherwise found credible the accused can be convicted on the basis of testimony of such related witness. Recently, in Surinder Kumar Vs. State of Punjab (2020) 2 SCC 563 Hon'ble Supreme Court has reiterated that merely because prosecution did not examine any independent witness, would not necessarily lead to conclusion that accused was falsely implicated. The same view has been taken in Bhagwan JagannathMarkad Vs. State of Maharastra (2016) 10 SCC 537, Dhari & Others Vs. State of U.P., AIR 2013 SC 308, Shyam Babu Vs. State of U.P., AIR 2012 SC 3311, Shyamal Ghosh Vs. State of WB, AIR 2012 SC 3539, Dayal Singh Vs. State of Uttaranchal, AIR 2012 SC 3046, Amit Vs. State of U.P., AIR 2012 SC 1433 and State of Haryana Vs. Shakuntala & Others, 2012 (77) ACC 942 (SC). In view of the aforesaid case laws and the trustworthy and cogent evidence of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 we are of the considered view that the learned trial court did not make any illegality in relying upon the testimonies of the aforesaid witnesses.

20. PW-4, Head Constable Ram Chandra Sharma, has proved the registration of F.I.R. on the basis of written report of informant Zahid Khan. He has proved the chik F.I.R. as Ext. A-2 and G.D. as Ext. A-3 and no adversity is found in his deposition. The proceedings of inquest has been proved by PW-6 S.I. Gandhi Lal Sharma who has not only proved the inquest report but also the papers sent for the post mortem i.e. challan nash, photo nash, letter to C.M.O., letter to R.I. as Ext. A-5 to Ext. A-9 and specimen seal as Ext. A-10. No unnatural statement has been made by this witness also.

21. It is pertinent to mention here the evidence of PW-5 Dr. Bhagwan Das, who has performed the autopsy of the deceased Hima. In his deposition PW-5 has proved the Autopsy Report as Ext. A-4 and the following ante mortem injuries were found by him :

"Superficial to almost deep burn injury present over body except lower abdomen and back of head. Front scalp hair burnt. Skin peeled out at places read colour of base of burn injury."

He has also opined that death was caused due to shock and mild asphyxia as a result of extensive burn injury over the body (in the ante mortem injury). He has further stated that the deceased was 95% burnt. She was brought to the emergency of the hospital in a burn and living condition and was referred to surgery and was examined on 20.5.2013 at 9.00 p.m. General condition of the patient was very bad and pulse was not being found and B.P. was very much low. It is noteworthy that the post mortem of the deceased was conducted on 21.5.2013 at 1.40 p.m. and the death occurred on 21.5.2013 at 5.30 a.m..

22. On the basis of aforesaid evidence, we reach the conclusion that the offence was committed by the present appellant with the aid of other co-accused by burning and the prosecution has successfully proved its case to this extent.

23. Furthermore, from the statement of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 it is clear that the occurrence happened on the road near the house of the informant. The topography of the place of occurrence has been clearly shown in the site plan Ext. A-14 proved by PW-9, who has stated in his deposition that on pointing out of the informant of the case he had inspected the spot and prepared the site plan. Hence, the place of occurrence is certain and we, therefore, do not find any force in the contention of the learned counsel for the appellant regarding the fixation of place of occurrence.

24. The motive of the case was also hit by the learned counsel for the appellant, who has vehemently argued that the appellant had no reason to set the deceased ablaze and there was no previous enmity between the parties. Learned AGA has opposed this plea and submitted that since the present case rests upon the evidence of eye witnesses, there is no need to prove the motive of the offence for the prosecution. We also find ourselves in support of the plea taken by the learned AGA. In Bikau Pandey Vs. State of Bihar (2003) 12 SCC 616 it has been held that when the direct evidence establishes the crime, motive is of no significance and pales into insignificance. In Anil Rai Vs. State of Bihar (2001) 7 SCC 318 it has been held that enmity is a double edged weapon which can be a motive for the crime as also the ground for false implication of the accused persons.

25. There are catena of decisions on the point that in a case based upon the eye witness account, the motive loses its significance. In Deepak Verma Vs. State of Himachal Pradesh (2011) 10 SCC 129 It has been held as under:

"...Proof of motive is not a sine qua non before a person can be held guilty of commission of crime. Motive being a matter of mind, is more often than not difficult to establish through evidence."

26. Moreover, in the present case it has been fully established by the cogent and reliable evidence of PW-1 PW-2 that the accused appellant used to tease the deceased who was a young girl alongwith other co-accused persons and when they failed in their planning to give a mobile phone to her to be in regular contact with her, they set her ablaze.

27. The trial court in the impugned judgment has discussed the aforesaid points at length and has made a categorical finding that the prosecution case is fully established on the basis of cogent and reliable evidence on the aforesaid points.

28. Both sides have made their rival contentions upon the veracity of dying declaration of the deceased. PW-7 the Nayab Tehsildar, Sadar has recorded the dying declaration of the deceased on 20.5.2013. Dying-declaration was recorded by him after obtaining the certificate of mental-fitness from doctor in the hospital. After completion of dying-declaration also the said doctor has given certificate that during the course of statement, the victim remained conscious.

29. Learned counsel for the appellant has argued that dying declaration is doubtful and not corroborated by witnesses of fact, hence, it cannot be the sole basis of conviction. Legal position of dying declaration to be the sole basis of conviction is that it can be so done, if it is not tutored, made voluntarily and is wholly reliable. In this regard, Hon'ble Apex Court has summarized the law regarding dying declaration in Lakhan vs. State of Madhya Pradesh [(2010) 8 Supreme Court Cases 514], in this case, Hon'ble Apex Court held that the doctrine of dying declaration is enshrined in the legal maxim nemo moriturus praesumitur mentire, which means, "a man will not meet his Maker with a lie in his mouth". The doctrine of dying declaration is enshrined in Section 32 of Evidence Act, 1872, as an exception to the general rule contained in Section 60 of Evidence Act, which provides that oral evidence in all cases must be direct, i.e., it must be the evidence of a witness, who says he saw it. The dying declaration is, in fact, the statement of a person, who cannot be called as witness and, therefore, cannot be cross-examined. Such statements themselves are relevant facts in certain cases.

30. The law on the issue of dying declaration can be summarized to the effect that in case the court comes to the conclusion that the dying declaration is true and reliable, has been recorded by a person at a time when the deceased was fit physically and mentally to make the declaration and it has not been made under any tutoring/duress/prompting; it can be the sole basis for recording conviction. In such an eventuality no corroboration is required. It is also held by Hon'ble Apex Court in the aforesaid case of Lakhan (supra) that a dying declaration recorded by a competent Magistrate would stand on a much higher footing than the declaration recorded by officer of lower rank, for the reason that the competent Magistrate has no axe to grind against the person named in the dying declaration of the victim.

31. In the wake of aforesaid judgment of Lakhan (supra), dying declaration cannot be disbelieved, if it inspires confidence. On reliability of dying declaration and acting on it without corroboration, Hon'ble Apex Court held in Krishan vs. State of Haryana [(2013) 3 Supreme Court Cases 280] that it is not an absolute principle of law that a dying declaration cannot form the sole basis of conviction of an accused. Where the dying declaration is true and correct, the attendant circumstances show it to be reliable and it has been recorded in accordance with law, the deceased made the dying declaration of her own accord and upon due certification by the doctor with regard to the state of mind and body, then it may not be necessary for the court to look for corroboration. In such cases, the dying declaration alone can form the basis for the conviction of the accused. Hence, in order to pass the test reliability, a dying declaration has to be subjected to a very close scrutiny, keeping in view the fact that the statement has been made in the absence of the accused, who had no opportunity of testing the veracity of the statement by cross-examination. But once, the court has come to the conclusion that the dying declaration was the truthful version as to the circumstance of the death and the assailants of the victim, there is no question of further corroboration.

32. In Ramilaben Hasmukhbhai Khristi vs. State of Gujarat, [(2002) 7 SCC 56], the Hon'ble Apex Court held that under the law, dying declaration can form the sole basis of conviction, if it is free from any kind of doubt and it has been recorded in the manner as provided under the law. It may not be necessary to look for corroboration of the dying declaration. As envisaged, a dying declaration is generally to be recorded by an Executive Magistrate with the certificate of a medical doctor about the mental fitness of the declarant to make the statement. It may be in the from of question and answer and the answers be written in the words of the person making the declaration. But the court cannot be too technical and in substance if it feels convinced about the trustworthiness of the statement which may inspire confidence such a dying declaration can be acted upon without any corroboration.

33. From the above case laws, it clearly emerges that it is not an absolute principle of law that a dying declaration cannot form the sole basis of conviction of an accused when such dying declaration is true, reliable and has been recorded in accordance with established practice and principles and if it is recorded so then there cannot be any challenge regarding its correctness and authenticity.

34. In the present case, dying declaration of the deceased was recorded by Nayab Tehsildar, Sadar, Pilibhit after obtaining the certificate of medical fitness from the concerned doctor. This dying declaration was proved by him. This witness is absolutely an independent witness and has no grudge or enmity to the convict at all. In the dying declaration, the deceased did not unnecessarily involved the other family members of the accused appellants. She only attributed the role of burning to accused appellant, who were actual culprit.

35. Learned counsel for the appellant has also assailed the proceedings of the investigation and has argued hat the investigation has not been done in a proper manner and there are several lacunas in the investigation. Learned trial court has elaborately discussed the several aspects of the investigation of the case and has found that there is no material lacuna or omission in the investigation of the case and we concur with the same. Moreover, it is also to be kept in mind that even if the investigation of the case is faulty but the prosecution succeeds to prove its case on the basis of other cogent evidence on record, it makes no adverse affect over the prosecution case. In Hema Vs. State (2013) 81 ACC 1 (Supreme Court) it has been held by the Hon'ble Apex Court that any irregularity or deficiency in investigation by I.O. need not necessarily lead to rejection of the case on prosecution when it is otherwise proved. The only requirement is to use of extra caution. The defective investigation cannot be fatal to prosecution when ocular testimony is found credible and cogent. It may be reiterated at the cause of repetition that investigation in the present case does not suffer with any material irregularity which goes to the root of the prosecution case.

effect that the prosecution has not disclosed the genesis of the case in truthful manner and many material facts have been concealed. It is vehemently argued that it was not a homicidal death but the deceased committed suicide by setting her ablaze herself in the house of the informant himself. DW-1, DW-2 and DW-4 have been examined from the defence side to prove the aforesaid facts. They have stated in their respective depositions that at the time of the occurrence they had seen the deceased in burning condition over the roof of Zahid, the informant. They went over there and found that Hima was lying on the bed in burning condition and they had brought her away to the hospital. They have also stated that at the time of occurrence there was a power cut in the vicinity and they live nearby the house of the accused. DW-3 has also been examined to prove the factum of power cut at the time of occurrence. He is an employee of Electricity Division, Pilibhit and on the basis of official register he has proved this fact that on 20.5.2013 there was a shut-down in mohalla Beni Chaudhary from 8.05 p.m. to 8.35 p.m..

37. Learned AGA has vehemently opposed the aforesaid plea taken by the learned counsel for the appellant and contended that the parties were known to each other as they lived in the same vicinity which is called mohalla Beni Chaudhary, Pilibhit. Even if it is presumed that there was power cut at the time of occurrence, it cannot be said that the accused and his friends could not be identified by the prosecution witnesses of fact. Moreover, deceased was seen in burning condition by PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 and in the light of the fire itself they could easily be identified by the witnesses. Hence, the evidence of DW-3 is of no help to the convict / appellant. The attention of this Court was also drawn by the learned AGA to the fact that DW-1 has stated in his evidence that the inquest proceedings were performed before him and he had made signature over the inquest report but he has admitted that at the time of inquest he did not disclose this fact to the police that it was a suicidal case. This omission makes his deposition unreliable. Likewise, testimony of DW-2 is also not reliable. In his cross-examination he has stated that whatsoever he has stated in his examination-in-chief he had informed to the police. It is noteworthy that there is nothing on record in writing regarding this fact. So far as the testimony of DW-4 is concerned, he has not seen the occurrence and has only seen the deceased crying and burning.

38. Learned trial court has discussed the defence evidence, above mentioned, at length and found it not reliable and we concur with the same.

39. Considering the evidence of the witnesses, the medical evidence including post mortem report and also considering the dying declaration, there is no doubt left in our mind about the guilt of the present appellant.

40. However, the question which falls for our consideration is whether, on reappraisal of the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case, the conviction of the appellant under Section 302 of I.P.C. of the Indian Penal Code should be upheld or the conviction deserves to be converted under Section 304 Part-I or Part-II of the Indian Penal Code. It would be relevant to refer Section 299 of the Indian Penal Code, which read as under:

"299. Culpable homicide: Whoever causes death by doing an act with the intention of causing death, or with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, or with the knowledge that he is likely by such act to cause death, commits the offence of culpable homicide."

41. The academic distinction between "murder' and "culpable homicide not amounting to murder' has always vexed the Courts. The confusion is caused, if Courts losing sight of the true scope and meaning of the terms used by the legislature in these sections, allow themselves to be drawn into minute abstractions. The safest way of approach to the interpretation and application of these provisions seems to be to keep in focus the keywords used in the various clauses of Section 299 and 300 of I.P.Code. The following comparative table will be helpful in appreciating the points of distinction between the two offences.

Section 299	Section 300
A person commits culpable homicide if the act by which the death is caused is done-	Subject to certain exceptions culpable homicide is murder is the act by which the death is caused is done.
INTENTION
(a) with the intention of causing death; or	(1) with the intention of causing death; or
(b) with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death; or	(2) with the intention of causing such bodily injury as the offender knows to be likely to cause the death of the person to whom the harm is caused;
KNOWLEDGE	KNOWLEDGE
(c) with the knowledge that the act is likely to cause death.	(4) with the knowledge that the act is so immediately dangerous that it must in all probability cause death or such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, and without any excuse for incurring the risk of causing death or such injury as is mentioned above.

42. On overall scrutiny of the facts and circumstances of the present case coupled with the opinion of the Medical Officer and considering the principle laid down by the Apex Court in the Case of Tukaram and Ors Vs. State of Maharashtra, reported in (2011) 4 SCC 250 and in the case of B.N. Kavatakar and Another Vs. State of Karnataka, reported in 1994 SUPP (1) SCC 304, we are of the considered opinion that the offence would be one punishable under Section 304 part-I of the IPC.

43. From the upshot of the aforesaid discussions, it appears that the death caused by the accused was not premeditated, accused had no intention to cause death of deceased, the injuries were though sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to have caused death, accused had no intention to do away with deceased, hence the instant case falls under the Exceptions 1 and 4 to Section 300 of IPC. While considering Section 299 as reproduced herein above offence committed will fall under Section 304 Part-I as per the observations of the Apex Court in Veeran and others Vs. State of M.P. Decided, (2011) 5 SCR 300 which have to be also kept in mind.

44. In latest decision in Khokan Alias Khokhan Vishwas vs. State of Chhattisgarh, (2021) 2 Supreme Court Cases 365 where the facts were similar to this case, the Apex Court has allowed the appeal of the accused appellant. The decision of the Apex Court in the case of Anversinh v. State of Gujarat, (2021) 3 SCC 12 which was related to kidnapping from legal guardian, wherein it was established that the Court while respecting the concerns of both society and victim, propounded that the twin principle of deterrence and correction would be served by reducing the period of incarceration already undergone by the accused. In our case, this is not that gruesome murder where the accused cannot be dealt with in light of all these judgments. Judgments in Pravat Chandra Mohanty v. State of Odisha, (2021) 3 SCC 529 & Pardeshiram v. State of M.P., (2021) 3 SCC 238 will also enure for the benefit of the accused.

45. In view of the aforesaid discussions, we are of the view that appeal is liable be partly allowed and the conviction of the appellant under Section 302 IPC is liable to be converted into conviction under Section 304 (Part-I) IPC.

46. Accordingly, appeal is partly allowed and the appellant is convicted for the offence under Section 304 (Part-I) IPC and is sentenced to undergo ten years of incarceration with remission. We maintain the fine amount and default sentence, which will start if fine is not deposited after ten years with remission.

47. Record and proceedings be sent back to the Court below forthwith.

48. This Court is thankful to learned Advocates and Mr. Mohd. Furkan Khan, Law Clerk (Trainee) of this Court for ably assisting the Court.

Appeal allowed. (E-11)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajai Tyagi, J.)

1. This appeal has been preferred against the judgment and order dated 11.09.2008, passed by the learned Sessions Judge, Hamirpur, in Session Trail No.158 of 2002 State vs. Shiv Kishore Tiwari @ Rajju Tiwari arising out of Case Crime No.62 of 2002 under Section 302 IPC, Police Station- Maudaha, District- Hamirpur, whereby the appelant is convicted and sentenced for the offence under Section 302 IPC for life imprisonment with a fine of Rs.10,000/- and in defalut of payment of fine, further R.I. for one year.

2. The brief facts of the case as culled out from the record are that a written report was submitted on 01.04.2002 by informant Ashok Kumar Tiwari at Police Station- Maudaha, District- Hamirpur with the averment that on 31.03.2002 at about 9:30 pm the neighbour of the informant Shiv Kishore @ Rajju son of Swamidin Tiwari was calling names and abusing standing at the door of his house. Vedmani Diwedi, his mother Smt. Sushila Diwedi and Ashutosh Diwedi told him not to abuse and asked to go inside the house. On this, Rajju went inside the house but after some time he again started abusing from his courtyard. On this informant, his mother Smt. Meera Devi and wife Suman Lata went on the roof of their house where bulb was lighting. At that point of time, Rajju triggered one fire from the courtyard with the gun in his hand. The uncle of the informant Shri Krishan Kumar @ Munni aged about 35 years was sleeping on his roof, he wake up and asked Rajju not to abuse and fire. Grandmother of the informant Smt. Shiv Kali who used to reside with aforesaid Munni was also standing there. When uncle of informant Shri Krishan Kumar stopped Rajju from abusing, Rajju went on Atari and triggered fire from there which hit the right temple of Krishan Kumar @ Munni who fell down and died on the spot.

3. On the basis of above report, a criminal case was registered at Police Station- Maudaha, District- Hamirpur as Crime No.62 of 2002, under Section 302 IPC and investigation was started. During the course of investigation, the I.O. recorded the statements of witnesses u/s 161 Cr.P.C., visted the spot and prepared site-plan. At the time of visiting the spot, I.O. found one empty cartridge from the place of occurrence and its recovery memo was prepared. I.O. also collected blood stained and plain earth from the spot. The inquest proceedings were conducted and inquest report was prepared. The dead body of the deceased was sent for post mortem, where post mortem was conducted by the doctor and post mortem report has prepared. During the course of investigation, accused-appellant Shiv Kishore @ Rajju Tiwari was arrested and on his pointing out a single barrel gun was recovered from his house. Its recovery memo was also prepared. Recovered gun and empty cartridge were sent to Forensic Science Laboratory for seeking the report. The aforesaid report was received.

4. After completion of investigation, investigating officer submitted charge sheet against the appellant- Shiv Kishore @ Rajju Tiwari under Section 302 IPC.

5. The case, being triable exclusively by the Court of Sessions, was committed by Magistrate to Court of Sessions. Learned trial court framed charge against the appellant under Section 302 of IPC. The appellant denied the charge and claimed to be tried.

6. Prosecution examined following witnesses:

1.	Ashok Kumar Tiwari	PW1
2.	Smt. Meera Devi	PW2
3.	Dr. Pushkar Anand	PW3
4.	Ram Autar Yadav	PW4
5.	Ram Prakash Bajpey	PW5

7. Apart from aforesaid witnesses, prosecution submitted following documentary evidence, which was proved by leading the evidence:

1.	FIR	Ex.ka.3
2.	Written Report	Ex.ka.1
3.	Recovery Memo of Empty Cartridge	Ex.ka.11
4.	Recovery Memo of Blood Stained & Plain Sand-Cement	Ex.ka.12
5.	Recovery memo of cot, mattress, quilt, mosquito net and bamboo sticks	Ex.ka.13
6.	Recovery memo of gun	Ex.ka.14
7.	P.M. Report	Ex.ka.2
8.	Report of Vidhi Vigyan Proyogshala	Ex.ka.17
9.	Report of Vidhi Vigyan Proyogshala	Ex.ka.18
10.	Panchayatnama	Ex.ka.5
11.	Charge sheet	Ex.ka.16
12.	Site plan with Index	Ex.ka.10
13.	Site plan with Index	Ex.ka.15

8. After completing the prosecution evidence, statement of appellant was recorded u/s 313 Cr.P.C., in which he denied the evidence against him and said that there was family dispute regarding partition. Hence, he was falsely implicated by the informant. No evidence was adduced by the appellant in his defense. After hearing arguments of both sides the learned Sessions Judge convicted the appellant u/s 302 of IPC and sentenced for life imprisonment and fine for Rs.10,000/-. Hence, this appeal.

9. Heard learned counsel for the appellant, Shri Vikas Goswami, learned AGA appearing on behalf of the State and perused the record.

10. Learned counsel for the appellant submitted that impugned judgement is absolutely illegal and arbitrary. Prosecution has failed to prove the charge beyond reasonable doubt. It is further submitted that the FIR was lodged on the next day of the occurrence and the delay is not explained by the prosecution witnesses. PW1 and PW2 are the only two witnesses of fact, who are interested witnesses. No independent witness is produced by the prosecution. PW1 and PW2 are not eye-witnesses. As per their evidence, they reached to the place of occurrence after sometimes of the incident. Moreover, the place from where they said to witness the occurrence is the roof, while as per the prosecution evidence, accused fired from his courtyard and since there are high walls around the roof, it was not possible from there to witness the courtyard of the house of the accused.

11. Learned counsel for the appellant next submitted that there is no motive because it is not mentioned in the first information report to whom the accused was abusing and further the witnesses of fact have deposed that he was not abusing to any particular person. Hence, there was no reason for him to kill the deceased when even he was not abusing him. Learned counsel pointed out that as per the averment of first information report, the occurrence took place at 9:30 pm while PW1, who himself is the informant, has deposed in examination-in-chief that occurrence took place at 7:00 pm. Hence, there is material contradiction between the timing of alleged incident.

12. It is vehemently submitted by learned counsel for the appellant that a gun is said to be recovered from the house of the appellant on his pointing out and one empty cartridge was recovered from the spot. Gun and cartridge were sent to Forensic Science Laboratory from where the report was received and this report says that recovered empty cartridge was not fired by the said gun. Hence, entire prosecution case is shattered. Appellant has been falsely implicated due to previous enmity between the parties on account of family partition. Learned trial Judge has not appreciated the evidence as per legal principles and misread the evidence on record. The appellant was wrongly convicted and sentenced. Hence, the appeal be allowed.

13. Learned AGA opposed the submissions made by learned counsel for the appellant and contended that PW1 and PW2 reside in the neighbourhood of the appellant. Hence, their presence on the spot cannot be doubted. Both these witnesses are eye-witnesses and have supported the prosecution case in their testimony. With regard to the report of Forensic Science Laboratory, learned AGA submitted that ocular evidence shall be given preference to the report of the ballistic expert. The gun was recovered from inside the house of the appellant on his pointing out. It is next submitted by learned AGA that ante mortem injury in post mortem was corroborated the prosecution version. As per prosecution witnesses, fire was triggered from the distance of 2-2½ feet and blackening and tattooing was present around entry wound, which also corroborates the testimony of eye-witnesses. Hence, the learned trial Judge has rightly convicted and sentenced the appellant and there is no illegality or infirmity in the impugned judgement, which requires any interference by this Court.

14. Learned counsel for the appellant has raised the issue of delay in lodging the FIR. The occurrence is said to have taken place at 9:30 pm on 31.03.2002 and first information report was lodged on the next day at 10:00 am while the distance to the police station from the place of occurrence was 9 kms. Although, the informant has stated in his testimony as PW1 that due to fear of the appellant and want of means of travelling at night, the FIR could not be lodged just after the occurrence. Delay in lodging the FIR in every case is not fatal to the prosecution case. It shall be analysed along with other evidence on record. It is relevant to note that time of occurrence is specifically told in FIR, which is 9:30 pm while the informant Ashok Kumar Tiwari has deposed in his cross-examination as PW1 that the occurrence took place at 7:00 pm. There is much difference between 7:00 pm and 9:30 pm. This is material contradiction in fixing the time of occurrence.

15. The prosecution has produced two witnesses of fact, namely, PW1 Ashok Kumar Tiwari and PW2 Smt. Meera Devi. Both are said to be eye-witness and they are son and mother respectively. PW2 Meera Devi has categorically deposed in her cross-examination that "मै फायर लगने के तुरंत १० मिनट बाद गयी थी, मेरे साथ अशोक लड़का गया था तथा पड़ोस के तमाम लोग आ गए थे". It is important to note that she has stated that she went to the spot after 10 minutes of the occurrence and her son Ashok was also with her. This Ashok is PW1. Hence, it can be safely held that PW1 and PW2 both reached to the spot after 10 minutes of the occurrence. Hence, they both are not eye-witnesses. This above statements of PW2 is also confirmed by the testimony of PW1 Ashok Kumar, who states in his cross-examination that he went to the dead body of his uncle after 15-20 minutes of fire because for reaching to the spot, firstly he had to come out from main door of his house and then entered the house of the deceased from his main door. It is also stated by him that he did not go alone. When other people came there, he went near the dead body with them. It is admitted fact that the PW1 and deceased were neighbours. Hence, it cannot be believed that it would take 15-20 minutes to reach the house of adjoining neighbour. This statement of PW1 also suggests that he did not witness the occurrence as stated by her mother PW2 Meera Devi. Learned trial Judge does not appreciate this evidence in right perspective. In our considered opinion, PW1 and PW2 are not eye-witnesses and no other witness of fact is produced by the prosecution.

16. As per prosecution case, there were two fires by the appellant, but only one empty cartridge was recovered from the spot. Learned AGA has contended that the second empty cartridge is fallen on the ground if it is taken out from the barrel. In this regard, in our opinion, if second cartridge was not taken out from the barrel then it could have been found in the barrel when gun was recovered but as per recovery memo no empty cartridge was found in the barrel of the gun. Besides it, ballistic report is very much relevant in this case. As per prosecution case, the empty cartridge, which was found on the spot and the gun which was recovered from the house of the appellant were sent to Forensic Science Laboratory for having ballistic report. Such report is received by the court, in which ballistic expert has stated that empty cartridge was not fired by the recovered gun. Hence, it is crystal clear that the recovered empty cartridge was not fired from the gun, which is said to be recovered at the pointing out of the accused. On this score, the prosecution case is shattered and in this way clinching evidence is in favour of the accused. Learned trial Judge has opined that there was no contradiction between the evidence of PW1 and PW2. While, as discussed above, there are several material contradictions in their evidence, which go to the root of the case. Though both are proved not to be the eye-witness of the occurrence. Report of ballistic expert is not in favour of the prosecution. Hence, we are unable to subscribe the finding of the fact that fire was triggered by the accused-appellant to do away with the deceased. In criminal jurisprudence prosecution has to prove the guilt of the accused beyond all reasonable doubt, which is not done in this case. Though, we have held that death was homicidal death but prosecution has failed to prove the charge against the accused beyond reasonable doubt and benefit of doubt is granted to the appellant. Hence, appeal is liable to the allowed.

17. Accordingly, the appeal is allowed.

18. Accused-appellant is acquitted of the charge framed against him u/s 302 of IPC. The fine of amount be refunded if it is already deposited by the appellant.

19. The accused-appellant be released from jail forthwith if not wanted in any other case.

20. Record and proceedings be sent back to the court below.

1. Heard Sri Yogesh Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for the appellant and Sri Nagendra Srivastava, learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. Present criminal appeal challenges judgment and order dated 22.11.2017 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge (Fast Track Court No.2), Firozabad in Sessions Trial No. 728 of 2011 whereby the learned Additional Sessions Judge has convicted and sentenced the accused-appellant, Balveer Singh, under Section 498A of IPC for two year imprisonment along with fine of Rs.3,000/- (default sentence : two months), under Section 302 of IPC for life imprisonment with fine of Rs.10,000/- (default sentence : six months) and under Section 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 for two years' imprisonment with fine of Rs.3000/-, in case of default in payment of fine further to undergo two months' simple imprisonment. All the sentences were directed to run concurrently.

3. Facts as culled out from the record are that the deceased was married with the accused-appellant before six years of the incident as per Hindu rites and rituals. There were three children born out of their wedlock. Immediately after the marriage, she was subjected to cruelty and there was demand of dowry. Several times there were settlements but the demand of dowry continued. On the day before the incident occurred i.e. 3.5.2011, the deceased was beaten and was threatened with dire consequences. In the morning, she was set ablaze. When she was set ablaze, she ran towards the locality. The neighbors doused the the fire and got the deceased admitted in S.N.M. Hospital, Firozabad from where, she was referred to Agra. On 9.5.2011, she was brought to AIIMS, Delhi. Her burn injuries ultimately turned into septicemia and she breathed her last.

4. On the basis of the complaint made by informant, father of the deceased, alleging the above incident, the First Information Report being Case Crime No. 196 of 2011 under Sections 498A, 304B, 307, 504, 506 of IPC and Section 3/4 of D.P. Act was lodged at P.S. South, District Firozabad was registered and the criminal machinery moved into motion. On

4.5.2011, the Dying Declaration was recorded. On inquiry being conducted and the investigation getting over, the charge-sheet was filed in the Court of Chief Judicial Magistrate against all the accused who were named in the F.I.R. except accused-Jhamman, who died during investigation. The matter was committed to the Court of Session as it was triable by Court of Session.

5. The learned Sessions Judge has framed the charges against the accused, Ramnath, Smt. Shanti Devi and accused-appellant, Balveer Singh under Sections 498A, 304B read with Section 34 of IPC and Section 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act and additional charge under Section 302 of IPC was framed against accused-appellant, Balveer Singh.

6. On being summoned, the accused-persons pleaded not guilty and wanted to be tried.

7. The Trial started and the prosecution examined 11 witnesses who are as follows:

1	Kishori Lal	PW1
2	Somwati	PW2
3	Munni Devi	PW3
4	Guddi	PW
5	Bhuri Singh	PW5
6	Praveen Kumar	PW6
7	Anurag Darshan	PW7
8	Dr. Ravi Prakash Sachan	PW8
9	N. Ram	PW9
10	Sanjay Dubey	PW 10

8. In support of ocular version following documents were filed and proved:

1	F.I.R.	Ex.Ka.12
2	Written Report	Ex.Ka.1
3	Dying Declaration	Ex. Ka.5
4	Postmortem Report	Ex.Ka.4
5	Panchayatnama	Ex.Ka.6
6	Charge-sheet	Ex. Ka.3
8	Site Plan	Ex.Ka.2

9. After the evidence of prosecution was over, Bhudev Singh was examined as C.W. 1 and the accused also led evidence and examined, Balvir Singh, D.W.1, Ram Nath, D.W.2, & Premraj, D.W.3.

10. At the end of the trial and after recording the statements of the accused under section 313 of Cr.P.C., and hearing arguments on behalf of prosecution and the defence, the learned Sessions Judge acquitted the accused Ramnath and Shanti Devi and convicted the accused-appellant as mentioned above.

11. It is submitted by learned counsel for the appellant that the incident occurred on the spur of moment and the accused had not premeditated to do away with the deceased and the death occurred after few days. The cause of death according to doctor who conducted the postmortem of deceased was septicemia.

12. It is further submitted by learned counsel for the appellant that conviction under Section 302 IPC is not made out as no overt act as per Section 300 IPC is made out. On the same set of evidence with which the other co-accused has been acquitted, same requires to be done in case of accused-appellant also. In alternative, it is submitted that at the most, the death can be homicidal death not amounting to murder and punishable under Section 304 II or Section 304 I of I.P.C. If the Court decides that the accused is guilty under Section 302 of IPC, then the accused may be granted fixed term punishment of incarceration as the death is not a gruesome act on part of accused.

13. Learned counsel for the State has submitted that though it is septicemic death, the dying declaration and evidence of prosecution witnesses will not permit this Court to show any leniency in the matter. It is further submitted by learned A.G.A. that ingredients of Section 300 of IPC are rightly held to be made out by the learned Sessions Judge who has applied the law to the facts in case.

14. Before we begin our discussion sifting the testimony of witnesses, perusal of the Dying Declaration of the deceased, Ex. Ka.5, would be very relevant which is as under:

"बयान श्रीमती सुषमा देवी w/o श्री बलवीर सिंह निवासी हुमायूंपुर थाना दक्षिण जनपद फिरोजाबाद उम्र 25 वर्ष पेशा चूड़ी मजदूरी जाति राठौर

बयान किया है कि घटना दिनांक 3.5.2011 की सुबह 6:00 बजे की है । मेरी दो बहनों की शादी थी दिनांक 30.4.2011 को शादी थी । मेरे पति ने कहा कि जा रही हो उसी तरह वापस आ जाना मैं अपने पिता के घर से आने में लेट हो गई तो दिनांक 2.5.2011 को रात्रि में मेरे पति बलबीर ने मुझे मारा पीटा । गर्दन दबा दी । फिर ड्यूटी चले गए और कह गए कि तुम मर जाना मैं वापस आए तब तक । सुबह आए तो मैं सो रही थी । कहने लगे तू अभी मरी नहीं है । मैंने कहा कि मैंने कोई बुरा काम नहीं किया है सो मर जाऊं। बलबीर मेरे पति ने कहा कि आज मैं तेरी कहानी खत्म कर दूंगा। फिर इनके द्वारा कमरे से साइकिल निकाली साइकिल गली में खड़ी कर आए। अंदर मेरे ऊपर मिट्टी का तेल डालकर पीछे से पेटीकोट में आग लगाकर भाग गए। यह मेरे पति बलवीर ने किया था। आग लगी हुई मैं अपनी बहन कांति w/o राम रामविलास के घर भागी उन्हीं लोगों ने आग बुझाई। मौ0 के लोग आगरा ले गए । अब यहां लाकर इलाज करा रहे हैं । बयान सुनकर तस्दीक किया।"

15. This shows that there was altercation between husband and wife. The husband namely appellant-herein set her ablaze in the Dying Declaration, we do not find any semblance of demanding any kind of dowry for invoking Section 498A of IPC which reads as follows:

"498A. Husband or relative of husband of a woman subjecting her to cruelty.--Whoever, being the husband or the relative of the husband of a woman, subjects such woman to cruelty shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years and shall also be liable to fine. Explanation.--For the purpose of this section, "cruelty" means--

(a) any wilful conduct which is of such a nature as is likely to drive the woman to commit suicide or to cause grave injury or danger to life, limb or health (whether mental or physical) of the woman; or

(b) harassment of the woman where such harassment is with a view to coercing her or any person related to her to meet any unlawful demand for any property or valuable security or is on account of failure by her or any person related to her to meet such demand.]"

16. On perusal of Section 498A of IPC, it is evident that for invoking Section 498A of IPC, demand of dowry, prior to occurrence is must and in our case that is missing. Therefore, conviction under Section 498A of IPC read with Section 4/5 of Dowry Prohibition Act, even without going by the evidence of the witnesses, cannot stand scrutiny as none of the witnesses were present when the incident occurred. The incident occurred in the four corners of the house of the appellant but it cannot be said that there was any demand of dowry, hence, we cannot subscribe to the view taken by the learned Trial Judge.

17. This takes us to the factum whether the Dying Declaration can be relied upon or not?

18. In light of the decision in Govindappa and others Versus State of Karnataka, (2010) 6 SCC 533 and the latest decision of the Apex Court in Uttam v. State of Maharashtra, (2022) 8 SCC 576, there is no reason for us not to accept the dying declaration and its evidentiary value under Section 32 of Evidence Act, 1872. In the present case the Dying Declaration is truthful and can be acted upon in view of the settled legal position.

19. This takes us to the factum of death of the deceased. The evidence of P.W.8 is very material for our purpose. P.W., Dr. Ravi Prakash Sachan, had performed postmortem on the dead body and had opined that death was due to septicemia. The deceased died on 19.5.2011. It was a homicidal death. The Dying Declaration has been proved by P.W.6 & P.W.7 and they have withstood the cross examination. We are not discussing their evidence in detail as we are convinced that the finding of facts as far as homicidal death is concerned is proved and we concur with the finding of trial court on that point. The decisions in Hansraj vs. State of Punjab, AIR 2000 SC 2324 and Sher Singh vs. State of Haryana, 2015 (88) ACC 288 (SC) which the learned Sessions Judge has relied upon, we also rely on the same.

20. The death was due to burn injuries which had turned into septicemic death.

21. This takes us to the next question whether it was a perpetrated murder or would it fall within any of the exceptions to Section 300 of IPC?

22. It would be relevant to refer to Section 299 of the Indian Penal Code, which reads as under:

"299. Culpable homicide*: Whoever causes death by doing an act with the intention of causing death, or with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, or with the knowledge that he is likely by such act to cause death, commits the offence of culpable homicide."*

23. The academic distinction between "murder' and "culpable homicide not amounting to murder' has always vexed the Courts. The confusion is caused, if Courts loose sight of the true scope and meaning of the terms used by the legislature in these sections, and allow themselves to be drawn into minute abstractions. The safest way of approach to the interpretation and application of these provisions seems to be is to keep in focus the keywords used in the various clauses of Section 299 and 300 of I.P.Code. The following comparative table will be helpful in appreciating the points of distinction between the two offences.

A person commits culpable homicide if the act by which the death is caused is done-	Subject to certain exceptions culpable homicide is murder if the act by which the death is caused is done.
INTENTION
(a) with the intention of causing death; or	(1) with the intention of causing death; or
(b) with the	(2) with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death; or	intention of causing such bodily injury as the offender knows to be likely to cause the death of the person to whom the harm is caused;

KNOWLEDGE	KNOWLEDGE
(c) with the knowledge that the act is likely to cause death.	(4) with the knowledge that the act is so immediately dangerous that it must in all probability cause death or such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, and without any excuse for incurring the risk of causing death or such injury as is mentioned above.

24. We can safely rely upon the decision of the Gujarat High court in Criminal Appeal No.83 of 2008 (Gautam Manubhai Makwana Vs. State of Gujarat) decided on 11.9.2013 wherein the Court held as under:

"12. In fact, in the case of Krishan vs. State of Haryana reported in (2013) 3 SCC 280, the Apex Court has held that it is not an absolute principle of law that a dying declaration cannot form the sole basis of conviction of an accused. Where the dying declaration is true and correct, the attendant circumstances show it to be reliable and it has been recorded in accordance with law, the deceased made the dying declaration of her own accord and upon due certification by the doctor with regard to the state of mind and body, then it may not be necessary for the court to look for corroboration. In such cases, the dying declaration alone can form the basis for the conviction of the accused. But where the dying declaration itself is attended by suspicious circumstances, has not been recorded in accordance with law and settled procedures and practices, then, it may be necessary for the court to look for corroboration of the same.

13. However, the complaint given by the deceased and the dying declaration recorded by the Executive Magistrate and the history before the doctor is consistent and seems to be trustworthy. The same is also duly corroborated with the evidence of witnesses and the medical reports as well as panchnama and it is clear that the deceased died a homicidal death due to the act of the appellants in pouring kerosene and setting him ablaze. We do find that the dying declaration is trust worthy.

14. However, we have also not lost sight of the fact that the deceased had died after a month of treatment. From the medical reports, it is clear that the deceased suffered from Septicemia which happened due to extensive burns.

15. In the case of the B.N. Kavatakar and another (supra), the Apex Court in a similar case of septicemia where the deceased therein had died in the hospital after five days of the occurrence of the incident in question, converted the conviction under section 302 to under section 326 and modified the sentence accordingly.

15.1 Similarly, in the case of Maniben (supra), the Apex Court has observed as under:

"18. The deceased was admitted in the hospital with about 60% burn injuries and during the course of treatment developed septicemia, which was the main cause of death of the deceased. It is, therefore, established that during the aforesaid period of 8 days the injuries aggravated and worsened to the extent that it led to ripening of the injuries and the deceased died due to poisonous effect of the injuries.

19. It is established from the dying declaration of the deceased that she was living separately from her mother-in-law, the appellant herein, for many years and that on the day in question she had a quarrel with the appellant at her house. It is also clear from the evidence on record that immediately after the quarrel she along with her daughter came to fetch water and when she was returning, the appellant came and threw a burning tonsil on the clothes of the deceased. Since the deceased was wearing a terylene cloth at that relevant point of time, it aggravated the fire which caused the burn injuries.

20. There is also evidence on record to prove and establish that the action of the appellant to throw the burning tonsil was preceded by a quarrel between the deceased and the appellant. From the aforesaid evidence on record it cannot be said that the appellant had the intention that such action on her part would cause the death or such bodily injury to the deceased, which was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause the death of the deceased. Therefore, in our considered opinion, the case cannot be said to be covered under clause (4) of Section 300 of IPC. We are, however, of the considered opinion that the case of the appellant is covered under Section 304 Part II of IPC."

16. In the present case, we have come to the irresistible conclusion that the role of the appellants is clear from the dying declaration and other records. However, the point which has also weighed with this court are that the deceased had survived for around 30 days in the hospital and that his condition worsened after around 5 days and ultimately died of septicemia. In fact he had sustained about 35% burns. In that view of the matter, we are of the opinion that the conviction of the appellants under section 302 of Indian Penal Code is required to be converted to that under section 304(I) of Indian Penal Code and in view of the same appeal is partly allowed.

17. The conviction of the appellants - original accused under Section 302 of Indian Penal Code vide judgment and order dated 19.12.2007 arising from Sessions Case No. 149 of 2007 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court No. 6, Ahmedabad is converted to conviction under Section 304 (Part I) of Indian Penal Code. However, the conviction of the appellants - original accused under section 452 of Indian Penal Code is upheld. The appellants - original accused are ordered to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of ten years and fine of Rs. 5000/- each in default rigorous imprisonment for six months under section 304 (Part I) of Indian Penal Code instead of life imprisonment and sentence in default of fine as awarded by the trial court under section 302 IPC. The sentence imposed in default of fine under section 452 IPC is also reduced to two months. Accordingly, the appellants are ordered to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of ten years and fine of Rs. 5000/-, in default, rigorous imprisonment for six months for offence punishable under section 304(I) of Indian Penal Code and rigorous imprisonment for a period of five years and fine of Rs. 2,000/-, in default, rigorous imprisonment for two months for offence punishable under section 452 of Indian Penal Code. Both sentences shall run concurrently. The judgement and order dated 19.12.2007 is modified accordingly. The period of sentence already undergone shall be considered for remission of sentence qua appellants - original accused. R & P to be sent back to the trial court forthwith."

25. In latest decision in Khokan@ Khokhan Vishwas v. State of Chattisgarh, 2021 LawSuit (SC) 80, where the facts were similar to this case, the Apex Court has allowed the appeal of the accused appellant and altered the sentence. The decision of the Apex Court in the case of Anversinh v. State of Gujarat, (2021) 3 SCC 12 which was related to kidnapping from legal guardian, wherein it was established that the Court while respecting the concerns of both society and victim, propounded that the twin principle of deterrence and correction would be served by reducing the period of incarceration already undergone by the accused. In our case, this is not that gruesome a matter where the accused cannot be granted benefit in light of judgments relating to leniency in sentencing. Decisions in Pravat Chandra Mohanty v. State of Odisha, (2021) 3 SCC 529 & Pardeshiram v. State of M.P., (2021) 3 SCC 238 will also enure for the benefit of the accused.

26. On overall scrutiny of the facts and circumstances of the present case coupled with the opinion of the Medical Officer and considering the principle laid down by the Apex Court in the Case of Tukaram and Ors Vs. State of Maharashtra, reported in (2011) 4 SCC 250 and in the case of B.N. Kavatakar and Another Vs. State of Karnataka, reported in 1994 SUPP (1) SCC 304, we are of the considered opinion that it was a case of homicidal death not amounting to murder.

27. From the upshot of the aforesaid discussion, it appears that the death caused by the accused was not premeditated, accused though had knowledge and intention that their act would cause bodily harm to the deceased but did not want to do away with the deceased. Hence the instant case falls under the Exceptions 1 and 4 to Section 300 of IPC. While considering Section 299 as reproduced herein above offence committed will fall under Section 304 Part-I as per the observations of the Apex Court in Veeran and others Vs. State of M.P. Decided, (2011) 5 SCR 300 which have to be also kept in mind.

28. We come to the definite conclusion that the death was not premeditated. The precedents discussed by us would permit us to uphold our finding which we conclusively hold that the offence is not punishable under Section 302 of I.P.C. but is culpable homicide not amounting to murder, punishable U/s 304 (Part I) of I.P.C.

29. While coming to the conclusion that the accused is the perpetrator of the offence, whether sentence of life imprisonment and fine is adequate or the sentence requires to be modified in the facts and circumstances of this case and in the light of certain judicial pronouncements and precedents applicable in such matters. This Court would refer to the following precedents, namely, Mohd. Giasuddin Vs. State of AP, [AIR 1977 SC 1926], explaining rehabilitary & reformative aspects in sentencing it has been observed by the Supreme Court:

"Crime is a pathological aberration. The criminal can ordinarily be redeemed and the state has to rehabilitate rather than avenge. The sub-culture that leads to ante-social behaviour has to be countered not by undue cruelty but by reculturization. Therefore, the focus of interest in penology in the individual and the goal is salvaging him for the society. The infliction of harsh and savage punishment is thus a relic of past and regressive times. The human today vies sentencing as a process of reshaping a person who has deteriorated into criminality and the modern community has a primary stake in the rehabilitation of the offender as a means of a social defence. Hence a therapeutic, rather than an 'in terrorem' outlook should prevail in our criminal courts, since brutal incarceration of the person merely produces laceration of his mind. If you are to punish a man retributively, you must injure him. If you are to reform him, you must improve him and, men are not improved by injuries."

30. 'Proper Sentence' was explained in Deo Narain Mandal Vs. State of UP [(2004) 7 SCC 257] by observing that Sentence should not be either excessively harsh or ridiculously low. While determining the quantum of sentence, the court should bear in mind the 'principle of proportionality'. Sentence should be based on facts of a given case. Gravity of offence, manner of commission of crime, age and sex of accused should be taken into account. Discretion of Court in awarding sentence cannot be exercised arbitrarily or whimsically.

31. In Ravada Sasikala vs. State of A.P. AIR 2017 SC 1166, the Hon'ble Supreme Court referred the judgments in Jameel vs State of UP [(2010) 12 SCC 532], Guru Basavraj vs State of Karnatak, [(2012) 8 SCC 734], Sumer Singh vs Surajbhan Singh, [(2014) 7 SCC 323], State of Punjab vs Bawa Singh, [(2015) 3 SCC 441], and Raj Bala vs State of Haryana, [(2016) 1 SCC 463] and has reiterated that, in operating the sentencing system, law should adopt corrective machinery or deterrence based on factual matrix. Facts and given circumstances in each case, nature of crime, manner in which it was planned and committed, motive for commission of crime, conduct of accused, nature of weapons used and all other attending circumstances are relevant facts which would enter into area of consideration. Further, undue sympathy in sentencing would do more harm to justice dispensations and would undermine the public confidence in the efficacy of law. It is the duty of every court to award proper sentence having regard to nature of offence and manner of its commission. The Hon'ble Supreme Court further said that courts must not only keep in view the right of victim of crime but also society at large. While considering imposition of appropriate punishment, the impact of crime on the society as a whole and rule of law needs to be balanced. The judicial trend in the country has been towards striking a balance between reform and punishment. The protection of society and stamping out criminal proclivity must be the object of law which can be achieved by imposing appropriate sentence on criminals and wrongdoers. Law, as a tool to maintain order and peace, should effectively meet challenges confronting the society, as society could not long endure and develop under serious threats of crime and disharmony. It is therefore, necessary to avoid undue leniency in imposition of sentence. Thus, the criminal justice jurisprudence adopted in the country is not retributive but reformative and corrective. At the same time, undue harshness should also be avoided keeping in view the reformative approach underlying in our criminal justice system.

32. Recent judgment of State of M.P Vs. Jogendra, (2022) 5 SCC 401 and ratio laid in the said judgment can be followed, however, instead of seven years period undergone of imprisonment for at least 10 years would be more than relevant in the facts and circumstances of this case.

33. Therefore, accused-appellant is convicted for the offence punishable under Section 304 (Part I) of IPC and sentenced to 10 years' rigorous imprisonment. The fine and default sentence are maintained.

34. In view of the above, this appeal is partly allowed. The judgment and order impugned shall stand modified to the aforesaid extent. Record and proceedings be sent back to the Court below forthwith.

Civil Law - Motor Accident Claim - Compensation - Income - if the Income Tax Returns are there, they are the proof of the income of the deceased/injured - income of the deceased would be as per the Income Tax Returns for the Assessment Year 2006-07, namely, Rs.1,62,500/- per year - Tribunal erroneously disbelieved the Income Tax Return as it came to the conclusion that chalan of paying the tax was not filed - Tribunal's stance contradicts a beneficial legislative provision and is untenable - Tribunal did not award any compensation for future prospects hence Court granted addition of 40% towards future loss of income of the deceased as the deceased was below 40 years of age and was having his own business - deceased was survived by his widow and a minor son, hence, deduction towards personal expenses of the deceased would be 1/3rd & Multiplier would be 17 - court granted Rs.70,000/- towards non pecuniary damages on which the claimants shall also be entitled to 10% rise in every three years - interest at the rate of 7.5% from the date of filing of the claim petition till the amount is deposited. (Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.
Hon'ble Ajai Tyagi, J.)

1. Heard Sri Hitesh Pachori, learned counsel for the appellants, Sri Anuj Srivastava, learned counsel for the respondent and perused the record.

2. This appeal, at the behest of the claimants, challenges the judgment and award dated 17.7.2010 passed by Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/Additional District Judge, Court No.11, Agra (hereinafter referred to as 'Tribunal') in Claim Petition No. 260 of 2007 awarding a sum of Rs.4,52,000/- to the claimants as compensation for the death of their sole bread winner with interest at the rate of 6%.

3. The accident is not in dispute. The Insurance Company has not challenged the liability imposed on them. The only issue to be decided is the quantum of compensation awarded.

4. It is submitted by learned counsel for the appellant that the deceased was 29 years of age at the time of accident and was having his own business namely he was the owner of M/s Sheetal Drugs Distribution. The Tribunal has considered the income of deceased to be Rs.36,000/- per annum, deducted 1/3 towards personal expenses, considered the dependency as Rs. 24,000/- per annum, granted multiplier of 17 and added Rs. 44,500/- towards non pecuniary damages.

5. Learned counsel for the appellant has taken us through the record and we are satisfied that the documentary evidence has been brushed aside by the learned Tribunal without assigning proper reasons. Income Tax Return in the name of the deceased for the Assessment Year 2006-07 which was on record demonstrates that the income of the deceased was Rs.1,62,500/- per year. The earlier Income Tax Return for the Assessment Year 2005-06 shows that the income of the deceased was Rs.1,10,150/-. There are documentary evidence namely Form 20 etc. This fact has been disbelieved by the Tribunal though the drug license and its photo copy has been filed. The name of the firm was Sheetal Medical Stores. The Tribunal has disbelieved the Income Tax Return as it came to the conclusion that chalan of paying the tax was not filed. The Tribunal came to the conclusion that the income was Rs.1,06,665/-, out of which, LIP was of 44,341/- and, therefore, the Tribunal has felt that income of the deceased was Rs.62,324/-. It was further concluded by the Tribunal that tax of Rs.19150/- was being paid but it was not clear as to how much amount he had invested and, therefore, the Tribunal disbelieved this fact. The Tribunal disbelieved investments made by the deceased in Bajaj Allianz and, therefore, held that in view of the judgment of Laxmi Devi & Others vs Mohammad Tabbar & Another, 2008 ACJ 01844 only Rs.3,000/- should be considered as his income. This is an error apparent on record as P.W.1 has categorically mentioned that her husband was in the business of medicine. Th license even according to Tribunal was dated 1.12.2002. This fact should have been considered by the Tribunal. The deceased was a young man of 29 years. The approach of the Tribunal is against the beneficial piece of legislation and cannot be accepted. This is an error apparent on the face of record which will have to be answered by this Court.

6. The Apex Court has time and again held that if documentary evidence to show income is not produced but if the Income Tax Returns are there, they are the proof of the income of the deceased/injured. The Tribunal has committed a grave error in relying on the judgment in Laxmi Devi & Others vs Mohammad Tabbar & Another, 2008 ACJ 01844 despite the fact that there are documentary evidence proved, the Tribunal erroneously considered his income to be Rs.100/- per day.

7. Hence, we are unable to accept the submission of Sri Anuj Srivastava, learned counsel for the respondent that the income which has been considered by the Tribunal is just and proper. The finding is absolutely perverse as Tribunal is not supposed to go by the investment of the person for starting a business but the income generated by him. The income of the deceased has been proved by the oral testimony of P.W.1 and P.W.2 and Income Tax Returns. The Tribunals are supposed to take a practical view and not pedantic view. The decision in Laxmi Devi (Supra) is applied where the income is not at all proved and where there is no semblance of any earning.

8. In view of the above, we are of the view that the income of the deceased would be as per the Income Tax Returns for the Assessment Year 2006-07, namely, Rs.1,62,500/- per year.

9. It is submitted by learned counsel for the appellants that the Tribunal has not granted any amount towards future loss of income which is required to be granted. It is further submitted by learned counsel for the appellants that the amount under non-pecuniary heads and the rate of interest awarded by the Tribunal are on the lower side and are required to be enhanced in view of the latest the decisions of the Apex Court.

10. As far as grant of future prospects are concerned, Tribunal has not granted any amount for that, therefore, we grant addition of 40% should be added towards future loss of income of the deceased as the deceased was below 40 years of age and was having his own business. We are even fortified in our view by the decision of the Apex Court in New India Assurance Company Ltd. Vs. Urmila Shukla and others, LL 2021 SC 359 & Anita Sharma v. New India Assurance Co. Ltd. (2021) 1 SCC 171. Recent decision of the Division Bench of this Court in F.A.F.O. No. 1070 of 2017 (Smt. Upasana And 4 Others v. National Insurance Company Ltd. And 2 Others) decided on 11.2.2022 will also come to the aid of the appellants herein.

11. The deceased was survived by his widow and a minor son, hence, deduction towards personal expenses of the deceased would be 1/3rd as has been done by the Tribunal. Multiplier of 17 applied by the Tribunal is just and proper. The Tribunal added Rs. 45,000/- for non pecuniary damages. We see no reason why the principle enunciated by the Apex Court in National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Pranay Sethi and others, 2017 LawSuit (SC) 1093 should not be made applicable wherein the Apex Court has granted Rs.70,000/- towards non pecuniary damages. We grant Rs.70,000/- towards non pecuniary damages on which the claimants shall also be entitled to 10% rise in every three years as held by the Apex Court in Pranay Sethi (Supra) and, therefore, we make the figure to Rs. 1,00,000/- for non pecuniary damages.

i. Annual Income: Rs.1,62,500/-

ii. Percentage towards future prospects : 40% namely Rs.65,000/-

iii. Total income : Rs.1,62,500 + 65,000 = Rs.2,27,500/-

iv. Income after deduction of 1/3rd : Rs.1,51,670/- (rounded figure)

v. Multiplier applicable : 17

vi. Loss of dependency: Rs.1,51,670 x 17 = Rs.25,78,390/-

vii. Amount under non pecuniary heads : Rs.1,00,000/- viii. Total compensation : Rs.25,78,390/-

13. As far as issue of rate of int has held as under :

"13. The aforesaid features equally apply to the contentions urged on behalf of the claimterest is concerned, it should be 7.5% in view of the latest decision of the Apex Court in National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Mannat Johal and Others, 2019 (2) T.A.C. 705 (S.C.) wherein the Apex Courants asn to allow the interest in this matter at any rate higher than regards the rate of interest. The Tribunal had awarded interest at the rate of 12% p.a. but the same had been too high a rate in comparison to what is ordinarily envisaged in these matters. The High Court, after making a substantial enhancement in the award amount, modified the interest component at a reasonable rate of 7.5% p.a. and we find no reasothat allowed by High Court."

14. No other grounds are urged orally when the matter was heard.

15. In view of the above, the appeal is partly allowed. Judgment and decree passed by the Tribunal shall stand modified to the aforesaid extent. The respondent-Insurance Company shall deposit the amount within a period of 12 weeks from today with interest at the rate of 7.5% from the date of filing of the claim petition till the amount is deposited. The amount already deposited be deducted from the amount to be deposited.

16. On depositing the amount in the Registry of Tribunal, Registry is directed to first deduct the amount of deficit court fees, if any. Considering the ratio laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of A.V. Padma V/s. Venugopal, Reported in 2012 (1) GLH (SC), 442, the order of investment be passed by Tribunal.

17. In view of the ratio laid down by Hon'ble Gujarat High Court, in the case of Smt. Hansaguri P. Ladhani v/s The Oriental Insurance Company Ltd., reported in 2007(2) GLH 291, total amount of interest, accrued on the principal amount of compensation is to be apportioned on financial year to financial year basis and if the interest payable to claimant for any financial year exceeds Rs.50,000/-, insurance company/owner is/are entitled to deduct appropriate amount under the head of 'Tax Deducted at Source' as provided u/s 194A (3) (ix) of the Income Tax Act, 1961 and if the amount of interest does not exceeds Rs.50,000/- in any financial year, registry of this Tribunal is directed to allow the claimant to withdraw the amount without producing the certificate from the concerned Income- Tax Authority. The aforesaid view has been reiterated by this High Court in Review Application No.1 of 2020 in First Appeal From Order No.23 of 2001 (Smt. Sudesna and others Vs. Hari Singh and another) while disbursing the amount.

18. Fresh Award be drawn accordingly in the above petition by the tribunal as per the modification made herein. The Tribunals in the State shall follow the direction of this Court as herein aforementioned as far as disbursement is concerned, it should look into the condition of the litigant and the pendency of the matter and judgment of A.V. Padma (supra). The same is to be applied looking to the facts of each case.

19. This Court is thankful to both the counsels for getting this old matter decided.

Civil Law - Specific Relief Act, 1963 - Section 31 - Suit for cancellation of Sale deed – Evidence Act, S. 101 - Burden of proof - The expression " burden of proof " means one of two things (1) that a party has to prove an allegation before it is entitled to a judgment in its favour, or (2) that the one or the other of the two contending parties has to introduce evidence on a contested issue - The questionof onus is material only where the party on which it is placed would eventually lose if it failed to discharge the same - Where issuesare, however,joined, evidence is led and such evidence can be weighed in order to determine the issues, the question of burden becomes academic - Where evidence has been led by the contesting parties on the question in issue, abstract considerations of onus are out of place; truth or otherwise of the case must always be adjudged on the evidence led by the parties (Para 11, 12)

Plaintiff filed a suit seeking to cancel a sale deed, alleging that due to his dependency on the defendants' father, who had influence over him, and his illness, the sale deed was fraudulently executed in favor of the defendant - Trial Court put the burden on the plaintiff of proving that the plaintiff was ill on the relevant date and had put the burden of proving that consideration had passed from the defendants to the plaintiff on the defendants - Plaintiff failed to produce treating doctors - trial court found he was not ill -First appellate court reversed this decision, putting the burden on the defendants to prove no fraud or misrepresentation due to their dominant position - Held - trial court rightly placed the burden on the plaintiff & that the first appellate court wrongly shifted the burden - First appellate court's decision was set aside and the suit was dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Siddhartha Varma, J.)

1. This second appeal has been filed by the defendant against the judgement and decree of the First Appellate Court dated 17.12.1994 by which the First Appeal of the plaintiff was allowed and the Suit of the plaintiff which was earlier dismissed by the Trial Court on 5.3.1992 was decreed. The plaintiff - Sarvajeet - (the respondent here) had filed a suit being Original Suit No. 445 of 1989 for the relief that the sale deed dated 27.9.1988 be cancelled. The Suit was based on the fact that the plaintiff was an elderly person and was dependent on the father of the defendants in whom the plaintiff had confidence and who had, therefore, the capacity to influence the decision taking capacity of the plaintiff.

2. The plaintiff further had taken a case that on the date when the sale deed was executed i.e. on 27.9.1988, the plaintiff who was suffering from cataract had acute fever and had gone to the office of the Registrar at Tehsil Sagari on the pretext that Kishori the father of the defendants would get him treated by a good doctor. It has been alleged in the plaint that instead of getting the plaintiff treated, the father of the defendants fraudulently got executed the sale deed on 27.9.1988 in favour of the defendants. The defendants in their written statements, however, took a case that the plaintiff had executed the sale deed in question with his free mind and will and on the date when he executed the sale deed, he was in sound mental condition. Further, they stated that the sale deed was executed for a proper consideration. At the Registrar Office, the plaintiff had been informed about the contents of the document and the document which he was going to put his signature on. He had understood the contents of the document and after taking full consideration he had executed the sale deed. The Trial Court had put the burden on the plaintiff of proving that the plaintiff was ill on the relevant date and had put the burden of proving that consideration had passed from the defendants to the plaintiff on the defendants. The Trial Court found the oral evidence of P.W. - 1 Ram Nagina as a heresy evidence as his evidence regarding his knowledge of the illness of the plaintiff, Sarvajeet, was through the father of the defendants himself. Further the Trial Court analysed the testimony of the plaintiff to see to his physical and mental status and went through the evidence which was brought before the Court. The plaintiff had stated in his examination in chief that, to begin with, he had got himself treated by one Dr. Tirathram and when he did not get any benefit out of his treatment he had changed the Doctor and had started taking treatment of one Doctor Yadava. When he did not get any relief from their treatment and when the defendant's father, in whom the plaintiff had full confidence and faith, suggested that he showed himself to the Doctor at Sagari, the plaintiff had readily agreed. The plaintiff had not brought in the witness box the Doctors who had treated him. However, he produced the prescriptions which were again not proved by the Doctor who had prescribed them. However, since the plaintiff had produced those prescriptions they were considered in evidence and it was found that when on the first occasion the plaintiff was given the medicines on 16.9.1988 then they were prescribed for a period of five days. Thereafter on 20.9.1988, the medicines were slightly changed and they were prescribed for three days more. On 23.9.1988, the temperature and pulse recorded by the Doctor were normal. Therefore, it has been concluded by the Trial Court that three days after 23.9.1988, the plaintiff's physical condition was absolutely normal. There is no evidence on record, it has been stated by the Trial Court, to prove that the condition of the plaintiff deteriorated thereafter. The Trial Court also took into consideration certain facts about the family of the plaintiff which were brought on record by the defendants and was not denied by the plaintiff.

3. It was brought on record that the plaintiff had six brothers and they were all living in the neighbourhood. However, none of them appeared in the witness box to corroborate the case of the plaintiff that he was seriously ill on the date when the sale deed was executed.

4. It was also brought on record that Katuwaru, who was the son of another brother of the plaintiff, namely, Ramhit, was much loved by the plaintiff but he also never came to the witness box. The plaintiff' s love for katuwaru was to the extent that the plaintiff had got his name engraved on the top of the disputed house. The defendants had brought on record the fact that Katuwaru, the nephew of the plaintiff who was to definitely lose on account of the execution of the sale deed dated 27.9.1998 never opposed the sale deed or appeared in the witness box for the plaintiff.

5. So far as the case of the plaintiff with regard to the averment in the plaint that the plaintiff had sufficient money and he did not require the money from the sale, the Trial Court had dealt with all the evidence which was there with regard to the money being there in the account of the plaintiff. The Trial Court had found that the plaintiff had deposited in a fixed deposit Rs. 25,000/- in a Cooperative Bank at Kaptanganj on 1.10.1988. When asked as to from where this amount had come, the plaintiff had stated in his examination in chief that he had withdrawn this amount of Rs. 25,000/- from various other bank accounts. However, when asked to prove as to from which bank account the plaintiff had withdrawn Rs. 25,000/-, the plaintiff filed details of three accounts:-

I. The pass-book of Cooperative Bank Azamgarh, which account was opened on 21.9.1989. This therefore was opened after the sale had taken place.

II. The pass-book of Union Bank of India opened in 1974 and that acount revealed that the plaintiff in the year 1979 had a last closing balance of Rs. 480.05/-.

III. The another pass-book of Union Bank of India of the Month of September, 1988 showed the closing balance amount of Rs. 825.70. Thus the Trial Court concluded that Rs. 25,000/- which the plaintiff had deposited in the fixed deposit on 1.10.1988 came from nowhere else but from the sale consideration which he had got on 27.9.1988.

6. So far as the source of money which the defendants had got for the payment to the plaintiff, the defendants had explained that when their mother had died their father had got as compensation Rs. 14,000/- and this had swelled to Rs. 20,000/- and from this amount they had paid to the plaintiff the consideration money for the sale deed. The Trial Court thereafter dismissed the Suit. The First Appellate Court as stated earlier reversed the findings of the Trial Court and on

17.12.1994 and allowed the First Appeal of the plaintiff chiefly on the ground that the defendants ought to have proven that there was no fraud or misrepresentation on their part as they were in a dominating position and the plaintiff was having faith over the defendants and, therefore, it was for them to prove the correctness of the transaction.

7. The Second Appeal was admitted on the following substantial question of law on 4.8.2009 which is being reproduced here as under:-

"Whether the benefits available to a pardanashin lady can be extended to a person who is illiterate and is engaged in business activities"

8. Learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that when the plaintiff was such a person who was always actively employed in a business, though at the time of the sale deed he was not into active business; was having three bank accounts and was in a position to visit doctors independently could not be compared to a Pardanashin Lady.

9. Learned counsel for the appellant further submitted that even though the plaintiff was living with the defendants after he was not doing his business it did not mean that he depended on the defendant's father in such a manner that the latter could influence his thinking. The plaintiff was an independent person and had an identity of his own and though he was having his food etc. with the father of the defendants he always wanted an independent source of income through bank interest and, therefore, he had invested the consideration amount in a fixed deposit. There was no fiduciary relationship between the plaintiff and the father of the defendants. They relied upon AIR 1982 Allahabad 376 (Daya Shankar vs. Smt. Bachi and others) to bolster their arguments.

10. Further, the counsel for the appellant submitted that when the evidence had been led from the side of the plaintiff and the defendant and there was sufficient evidence on record for the Court to conclude as to whether the plaintiff was ill ; whether there was any undue influence from the side of the defendants and whether consideration was properly paid then the question as to on whom there was the burden to prove that the plaintiff was ill or not on the date of the execution of the sale deed lost all importance.

11. Learned counsel for the appellants relied upon AIR 1960 SC 100 (Narayan Bhagwantrao Gosavi Balajiwale vs. Gopal Vinayak Gosavi and others) and specifically relied upon paragraph no. 10 of the judgement. The relevant portion of which is being reproduced here as under:

"The expression "burden of proof" really means two different things. It means sometimes that a party is required to prove an allegation before judgment can be given in its favour; it also means that on a contested issue one of the two contending parties has to introduce evidence. Whichever way one looks, the question is really academic in the present case, because both parties have introduced their evidence on the question of the nature of the deity and the properties and have sought to establish their own part of the case. The two Courts below have not decided the case on the abstract question of burden of proof; nor could the suit be decided in such a way. The burden of proof is of importance only where by reason of not discharging the burden which was put upon it, a party must eventually fail. Where, however, parties have joined issue and have led evidence and the conflicting evidence can be weighed to determine which way the issue can be decided, the abstract question of burden of proof becomes academic."

12. The relevant portion of the paragraph 11 of AIR 1964 SC 880 (Kalwa Devadattam and others(in both the appeals) vs. 1. Union of India and others (In C.A. No. 641 of 1961) 2. Kamaji Saremal, Firm and others(In C.A. No. 642 of 1961) which was relied upon by the appellant is also being reproduced here as under:

"The question of onus probandi is certainly important in the early stages of a case. It may also assume importance where no evidence at all is led on the question in dispute by either side; in such a contingency the party on whom the onus lies to prove a certain fact must fail. Where however evidence has been led by the contesting parties on the question in issue, abstract considerations of onus are out of place; truth or otherwise of the case must always be adjudged on the evidence led by the parties."

13. Learned counsel for the appellants further argued that whether the transaction could be said to be vitiated on the ground of undue influence when the plaintiff himself had brought on record all evidence which definitely went against him then the question of law as had been framed by the Court should be answered in favour of the appellants.

14. Learned counsel for the plaintiff-respondent Sri M.S. Chauhan, however, argued that the grounds as had been raised in the appeal did not raise any substantial question of law and, therefore, the Second Appeal should be dismissed. He further submitted that the Trial Court had erroneously shifted the burden of proving that there was illness of the plaintiff on the plaintiff. He also submitted that burden of proving that undue influence was exercised on the plaintiff was wrongly put on the defendants. Learned counsel for the plaintiff-respondent further submitted that the first appellate court had rightly concluded that when the defendants did not prove that there was no misrepresentation or fraud then the case of the plaintiff had to be believed and the suit ought to be decreed.

15. Having heard the learned counsel for the defendants/appellants Sri Rahul Sripat learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Saurabh Patel and Sri Ishir Sripat and Sri M.S. Chauhan, the learned counsel for the respondent, the Court is of the view that the Second Appeal deserves to be allowed. The Trial Court when had looked into the evidence on record which had been brought by the plaintiff with regard to the fact that the plaintiff was ill and undue influence was exercised by the defendant then it evaluated all the evidence in its correct perspective and had found that the plaintiff was not in any manner ill on the date of the execution of the sale deed. The Court further finds that when the plaintiff was not unwell; he could think properly and had earlier carried on his own business then even if the plaintiff was living with the defendants it could not be said that any undue influence could have been exercised on the plaintiff. What is more, the Trial Court had rightly put the burden of proving whether the plaintiff was ill or not on the plaintiff and the plaintiff definitely could not prove that the plaintiff was in any manner ill on the date of the execution of the sale deed. The Doctors who had given the prescriptions were never produced. The prescriptions themselves told a story which was different from the case which the plaintiff was taking and also the Trial Court rightly concluded from the facts which the defendants had brought on record and had not been denied by the plaintiff that none of the other brothers of the plaintiff had come in the witness box to allege that the defendants' father had exercised undue influence. Even the nephew who was much loved by the plaintiff and whose name found place on the top of the house never came in the witness box. What is more the Court finds that, in fact, the plaintiff has not been able to prove as to from where the amount which he had deposited in the fixed deposit was earned by him. This also shows that the plaintiffs had taken the consideration and had also converted the consideration money into a fixed deposit. It appears that the plaintiff had filed a suit as an afterthought.

16. Under such circumstances, it is abundantly proved that the First Appellate Court wrongly shifted the burden on the defendants to prove that the plaintiff was not under any undue influence of the defendant's father. All the evidence which was there before the Trial Court was correctly analysed in a balanced manner by it. The First Appellate Court wrongly shifted the burden on the defendants. The Second Appeal, therefore, is allowed. The judgement and decree of the First Appellate Court dated 17.12.1994 passed by the VIth Additional District Judge, Azamgarh, is set aside. The Suit stands dismissed.

A. Civil Law - Code of Civil Procedure,1908 - Order VII Rule 3 C.P.C. - Identity of Property - Order XXVI Rule 9 C.P.C., Commissions to make local investigations - Transfer of Property Act, 1872 - Section 118 - Exchange - Plaintiff established that he had given his plot no.2573/1 measuring 11 decimals in exchange of plot no.2143 which was subsequently converted to plot no.2826/10 and then later on to 2826/11, at the time of consolidation and, therefore, he had a right over the same - As per section 118 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1872 there was a proper exchange of plot no.2573/1 (of the plaintiff) with plot no.2143 (of Ganga and Harivansh) and since at the time when the exchange had taken place i.e. in the year 1950, the plots were valued not more than Rs.100/-, there was no requirement of a written document - Lower appellate Court committed no error in law in not getting the plot in dispute demarcated by preparing a survey map and not getting the identity of the plots established - Court found that in fact there was no dispute with regard to plot no.2826 as the document 23-Ga definitely showed that plot no.2826/10, now numbered as 2826/11, had gone to the plaintiff after an exchange with the plaintiff's plot no.2573/1 then there was absolutely no dispute with regard to the identity of the plot - the only dispute which the defendants were raising was that the plot no.2826/11 was earlier plot no.2143/1 and this the defendant/ appellant could not prove (Para 10)

B. Civil Law - U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939 - Section 53 - Exchange of land for consolidation of cultivated area - As per the provisions of section 53 of the U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939, an agricultural land could be exchanged by an agricultural land - In the instant case, the Court found that earlier the land i.e. plot no.2573/1 though was entered as abadi, it was subsequently, by the order of the Consolidation Court, changed into agricultural land therefore there was no infringement of any provision of the U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939 (Para 11)

Dismissed. (E-5)

List of Cases cited:

1. Harnam Singh Vs Bhikimbar Singh & ors. reported in AIR 1980 Allahabad 50

(Delivered by Hon'ble Siddhartha Varma, J.)

1. This Second Appeal has been filed against the judgment and decree dated 20.1.1983 passed by the Civil Judge, First, Gorakhpur in Civil Appeal No.200 of 1982.

2. The plaintiff aggrieved by the disturbance which was being caused by the defendant in his plot no.2826/11, had filed a suit being Original Suit No.53 of 1978. When the suit was dismissed, the First Appeal being Appeal No.200 of 1982 was filed. When the First Appeal was allowed, the defendants filed the instant Second Appeal.

3. Plaintiff's case was that he was in possession over 11 decimals of plot no.2826/11 which he had got in exchange from Ganga and Harivansh after he had surrendered his plot no.2573/1 to them. In effect, the case was that the plaintiff had got plot no.2826/11 (earlier 2826/10) in exchange of his plot no.2573/1. Both the plots were having areas of 11 decimals. This exchange, as per the plaintiff, had taken place in the year 1950. When on 13.4.1976, the defendants had without any authority encroached upon the land of the plaintiff, he had on various occasions written to the police and when nothing happened, the plaintiff filed the suit.

4. The plaintiff's suit was dismissed on the ground that the Trial Court found that the plaintiff had not been able to prove his case. However, the First Appellate Court had decreed the suit on the ground that the plaintiff had been able to establish that he had given his plot no.2573/1 measuring 11 decimals in exchange of plot no.2143 which was subsequently converted to plot no.2826/10 and then later on to 2826/11 and, therefore, he had a right over the same. The First Appellate Court had also found that the defendants could not prove their case as they were in effect mentioning about a plot being plot no.2143/1 which was theirs and which in no manner was the same as plot no.2143.

5. The Appellate Court had formulated three questions which were to the following effect and were to be answered by it :-

(1) Was the plaintiff bhumidhar of the plot in question ?

(2) Was the plaintiff entitled for any damages ?

(3) Whether the suit was barred by limitation ?

6. With regard to the first question, the First Appellate Court had, after dealing with all the relevant evidence before it come to a conclusion that plot no.2573/1 which belonged to the plaintiff was in fact given in exchange of plot no.2143 to Ganga and Harivansh. While arriving at this finding, the First Appellate Court had concluded on the basis of various evidence. It had found that earlier the plaintiff was the owner of plot no.2573/1 area 11 decimals. This plot, according to the First Appellate Court, was an agricultural plot and it was exchanged by plot 2143 area 11 decimals which was subsequently numbered as 2826/10 and later on was numbered as 2826/11 at the time of consolidation. It was shown that this plot had abadi but upon objections being made by Ganga and Harivansh, it was again recorded as agricultural.

7. The First Appellate Court, while dealing with the case of the defendants, had categorically held that the defendant when was mentioning about the plot, being plot no.2143/1 which in the year 1905 was divided into sub-plots numbered as 112 to 117 as being of the defendant then he was mentioning about a totally different plot. The First Appellate Court categorically held that plot no.2143/1 was never numbered as 2826/10. It has stated that the "Fard Mutabik" (exchange form) which was numbered as Paper No.68-Ga, had no mention about plot no.2143/1. The First Appellate Court also found that the defendants had no right because they had althrough stated that they were always in possession over plot no.2143/1 and that they had also by means of a sale deed purchased the same on 17.12.1977 from Ganga and Harivansh. The First Appellate Court also concluded that when the defendants althrough were in possession over the plot in question then what was the necessity of purchasing the same on 17.12.1977. The First Appellate Court, therefore, concluded that as per section 118 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1872 there was a proper exchange of plot no.2573/1 (of the plaintiff) with plot no.2143 (of Ganga and Harivansh) and since at the time when the exchange had taken place i.e. in the year 1950, the plots were valued not more than Rs.100/-, there was no requirement of a written document. It had also found that a zamindar was not barred by the requirements of the U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939.

8. While dealing with the defendants' case with regard to the document no.58-Ga, which was placed on record as evidence and which was the khatauni for the years 1333 Fasli and 1334 Fasli, it held that the document only evidenced that the Zamindar of the village was Ram Chandra Tiwari. The First Appellate Court had concluded that in 1950, when the exchange had taken place as per the document which was numbered as 23-Ga, it was clear that Ganga and Harivansh were owners of plot no.2573/1 whereas the plaintiffs were entered over plot no.2826/10. It has also been found that on this paper the factum of transfer is mentioned. With regard to document nos.36-Ga and 37-Ga which the defendants had placed on record, the Court categorically had given a finding that they were with regard to plot no.2143/1 and the defendant could not get any advantage from this paper. The Court below also had concluded that since the plaintiff and defendants were not at quarrel with regard to the fact that the land in question was not numbered as 2143/1, there was no question of getting any survey done. It further concluded that since the defendants were althrough wanting to establish that plot no.2826/11 was a plot which had got converted from plot no.2143/1 and this fact the defendants could not establish, the defendants had no case.

9. Assailing the judgment and decree of the First Appellate Court, Sri Ashok Kumar Shukla, learned counsel for the appellant/defendant argued on the three questions of law which are as follows and which were formulated at the time of admission :-

1. whether the lower appellate Court had erred in law in not getting the plot in dispute demarcated by preparing a survey map and not getting the identity of the plots established as is a requirement under Order VII Rule 3 C.P.C. and under Order XXVI Rule 9 C.P.C.?

2. whether the exchange in favour of the plaintiff was legal ?

3. whether the land in dispute was a land appurtenant to the house of the defendant ?

10. Learned counsel for the appellant vehemently argued that when there was a question involved as to whether plot no.2826/11 was originally plot no.2143 and the defendants were coming up with various documents that the plot n o.2826/11 was earlier plot no.2143/1 which had been partitioned into plot nos.112 to 117, then survey ought to have been done. He relied upon a judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of Sreepat vs. Rajendra Prasad & Ors. reported in JT 2000 (7) SC 379 and submitted that when there was a dispute with regard to the identity with regard to a plot then a survey was a must. Since upon a bare perusal of the order of the First Appellate Court this Court finds that in fact there was no dispute with regard to plot no.2826 as the document 23-Ga definitely showed that plot no.2826/10, now numbered as 2826/11, had gone to the plaintiff after an exchange with the plaintiff's plot no.2573/1 then there was absolutely no dispute with regard to the identity of the plot. In fact the only dispute which the defendants were raising was that the plot no.2826/11 was earlier plot no.2143/1 and this the defendant-appellant could not prove. The document which they had relied upon i.e. paper no.68-Ga had not mentioned about the plot no.2143 at all. Hence, the Court finds that there was no error committed by the First Appellate Court in not getting a survey conducted.

11. With regard to the second question as to whether the exchange in favour of the plaintiff was legal, the Court finds that as per the provisions of section 53 of the U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939, an agricultural land could have been exchanged by an agricultural land. However, in the instant case, the Court finds that earlier the land i.e. plot no.2573/1 though was entered as abadi, it was subsequently, by the order of the Consolidation Court, changed into agricultural land and, therefore, it can safely be said that there was no infringement of any provision of the U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939.

12. With regard to the third issue as to whether the disputed land was a land appurtenant to the house of the defendant-appellant, though learned counsel for the appellant relied upon Harnam Singh vs. Bhikimbar Singh & Ors. reported in AIR 1980 Allahabad 50, the Court finds that this judgment would not be of any help to him as the defendant-appellant had tried to establish that the land appurtenant was plot no.2143/1 while here the land in question was plot no.2143 (later 2826/11).

13. Learned counsel for the respondents, however, stated that the substantial questions of law are not required to be dealt with as the appeal is concluded by findings of fact.

14. Under such circumstances, no substantial question of law arises for being answered in the instant Second Appeal. However, if the defendant-appellant is of the view that his plot no.2143/1 ought to be demarcated, then he shall always be at a liberty to get the plot no.2143/1 demarcated and identified.

15. The Court finds that there is no merit in this second appeal. It is, accordingly, dismissed.

State of U.P. ...Appellant
Versus

Counsel for the Appellant:
Sri Shiv Kumar Pal, Sri S.A. Murtza, A.G.A.

Counsel for the Respondent:

Criminal Law - The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 378 (3) - Appeal in case of acquittal - No appeal under S. 378 (1) or S. 378 (2) shall be entertained except with the leave of the High Court - S. 384, Summary dismissal of appeal - Before dismissing an appeal under S. 384 CrPC, the Court may call for the record of the case - Held - It is not mandatory for the High Court to summon the lower court record, first, in every case, before deciding the application for the grant of leave, filed by the State, to institute an appeal under Section 378(3) of the Cr.P.C. - Right of the appellate court to summon the lower court record in an appropriate matter always subsists - It is within the purview of the High Court to determine, based on the facts and circumstances of each case, whether the application for grant of leave necessitates the perusal of the lower court records or not -It is not necessary for this Court to routinely call for the lower court records for consideration of applications under Section 378(3) of the Cr.P.C. in every case (Para 16) (E-5)

List of Cases cited:

1. St. of Mah. Vs Sujay Mangesh Poyarekar (2008) 9 SCC 475

2. St.of U. P. Vs Anil Kumar @ Badka & ors. (2018) 9 SCC 492

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ashwani Kumar Mishra, J. & Hon'ble Shiv Shanker Prasad, J.)

1. A short but interesting question arises in this appeal as to whether this Court, while exercising its power to grant leave to the State to institute appeal under sub-section 3 of Section 378 Cr.P.C. is required to summon the lower court record, first, before proceeding to consider the prayer made for grant of leave?

2. Section 378 Cr.P.C. provides for filing of appeal in case of acquittal by the State. Sub-section 3 of Section 378 Cr.P.C. contemplates for grant of leave for entertainment of such appeal. Sub-section 3 of Section 378 Cr.P.C. reads as under: -

"3. No appeal under Sub-Section (1) or Sub-Section (2) shall be entertained except with the leave of the High Court."

3. It is urged by Sri S. A. Murtza, learned A.G.A. for the State that the State cannot be treated differently in the matter of filing of appeal vis-a-vis the victim and since the requirement of seeking leave under Section 372 Cr.P.C. stands dispensed with by virtue of proviso added to Section 372 Cr.P.C., conferring right upon a victim to prefer appeal against the order of acquittal or convicting the accused for a lesser offence or imposing inadequate compensation, as such the State being repository of the interest of society at large must be treated at par with the victim. It is also submitted that though the Code of Criminal Procedure provides for summary dismissal of appeal yet sub-section 2 of Section 384 Cr.P.C. nevertheless provides that before dismissing an appeal, summarily, the Court may call for record of the case. Sub-section 2 of Section 384 Cr.P.C. relied upon by learned A.G.A. is extracted hereinafter:-

"(2) Before dismissing an appeal under this section, the Court may call for the record of the case."

4. It is urged that appeal is a creature of statute and Chapter XXIX of the Code provides for the procedure to be followed for its adjudication, therefore, it would be necessary for this Court to summon the lower court record first before examining the question of grant of leave. It is also urged that the refusal to grant leave results in affirmance of the order impugned in the appeal as such the decision affects the victim as his right of appeal would be adversely affected. Attention of the Court has been invited to the judgment of the Supreme Court in State of Maharastra Vs. Sujay Mangesh Poyarekar (2008) 9 SCC 475, wherein the Supreme Court observed as under in paragraph Nos. 19 to 21:-

"19. So far as an application for leave to appeal by the State is concerned, the High Court rejected it without considering the evidence of the prosecution. In the impugned order, the High Court noted that it had heard the learned Assistant Public Prosecutor. It went on to state that none of the injuries sustained by the victim was `fatal'. According to the High Court, the cause behind the assault was that the complainant-advocate was teasing the wife of the accused, who was also working in the Court.

20. It then proceeded to observe;

"The trial Court has appreciated the evidence properly and has also taken into consideration the number of complaints filed against the said advocate complainant including the apology tendered by the complainant to the President, Bar Association, Dahanu and the action taken by the Bar Council. The trial Court found inherent improbabilities in the case of the complainant and therefore acquitted the accused. The judgment of the trial Court cannot be said to be perverse. No interference is called for. Application rejected".

21. Now, Section 378 of the Code provides for filing of appeal by the State in case of acquittal. Sub-section (3) declares that no appeal "shall be entertained except with the leave of the High Court". It is, therefore, necessary for the State where it is aggrieved by an order of acquittal recorded by a Court of Session to file an application for leave to appeal as required by sub-section (3) of Section 378 of the Code. It is also true that an appeal can be registered and heard on merits by the High Court only after the High Court grants leave by allowing the application filed under sub-section (3) of Section 378 of the Code.

5. The judgment in Sujay Mangesh Poyarekar (Supra) has been followed by the Supreme Court in State of Uttar Pradesh Vs. Anil Kumar @ Badka and Others (2018) 9 SCC 492, wherein the Supreme Court observed as under in paragraph No. 5 and 11:-

"5. The State of U.P., fet aggrieved by the respondent' acquittal, filed an application for leave to appeal before the High Court under Section 378(3) of the Code. By the impugned order the High Court declined to grant leave and accordingly rejected the application made by the State. It is against this order, the State has filed this appeal by way of special leave petition in this Court.

11. We are constrained to observe that the High Court grossly erred in passing the impugned order without assigning any reason. In our considered opinion, it was a clear case of total non-application of mind to the case by the learned Judges because the order impugned neither sets out the facts nor the submissions of the parties nor the findings and nor the reasons as to why the leave to file appeal is declined to the appellant. We, therefore, disapprove the casual approach of the High Court in deciding the application which, in our view, is against the law laid down by this Court in State of Maharashtra Vs. Sujay Mangesh Poyarekar."

6. Learned State Counsel has also referred to the judgment of the Supreme Court in Mallikarjun Kodagali Vs. State of Karnataka and Others (2019) 2 SCC 752, wherein the Supreme Court examined the scope of Section 372 and observed as under in paragraph Nos. 75 and 76:-

" 75. Under the circumstances, on the basis of the plain language of the law and also as interpreted by several High Courts and in addition the resolution of the General Assembly of the United Nations, it is quite clear to us that a victim as defined in Section 2(wa)of the Cr.P.C. would be entitled to file an appeal before the Court to which an appeal ordinarily lies against the order of conviction. It must follow from this that the appeal filed by Kodagali before the High Court was maintainable and ought to have been considered on its own merits.

76. As far as the question of the grant of special leave is concerned, once again, we need not be overwhelmed by submissions made at the Bar. The language of the proviso to Section 372 of the Cr.P.C. is quite clear, particularly when it is contrasted with the language of Section 378(4) of the Cr.P.C. The text of this provision is quite clear and it is confined to an order of acquittal passed in a case instituted upon a complaint. The word "complaint' has been defined in Section 2(d) of the Cr.P.C. and refers to any allegation made orally or in writing to a Magistrate. This has nothing to do with the lodging or the registration of an FIR, and therefore it is not at all necessary to consider the effect of a victim being the complainant as far as the proviso to Section 372 of the Cr.P.C. is concerned."

7. Section 384 of the Code provides for summary disposal of appeal and is reproduced hereinafter: -

"384. Summary dismissal of appeal.

(1) If upon examining the petition of appeal and copy of the judgment received under section 382 or section 383, the Appellate Court considers that there is no sufficient ground for interfering, it may dismiss the appeal summarily: Provided that-

(a) no appeal presented under section 382 shall be dismissed unless the appellant or his pleader has had a reasonable opportunity of being heard in support of the same;

(b) no appeal presented under section 383 shall be dismissed except after giving the appellant a reasonable opportunity of being heard in support of the same, unless the Appellate Court considers that the appeal is frivolous or that the production of the accused in custody before the Court would involve such inconvenience as would be disproportionate in the circumstances of the case;

(c) no appeal presented under section 383 shall be dismissed summarily until the period allowed for preferring such appeal has expired.

(2) Before dismissing an appeal under this section, the Court may call for the record of the case.

(3) Where the Appellate Court dismissing an appeal under this section is a Court of Session or of the Chief Judicial Magistrate, it shall record its reasons for doing so.

(4) Where an appeal presented under section 383 has been dismissed summarily under this section and the Appellate Court finds that another petition of appeal duly presented under section 382 on behalf of the same appellant has not been considered by it, that Court may, notwithstanding anything contained in section 393, if satisfied that it is necessary in the interests of justice so to do, hear and dispose of such appeal in accordance with law."

8. So far as Section 384 of the Code is concerned it confers power upon the appellate court to dismiss an appeal summarily. The language employed by the Statute in sub-section (1) is that upon examining the petition of appeal and copy of the judgment received under Section 382 or Section 383 the appellate court considers that there is no sufficient ground for interfering it may dismiss the appeal, summarily. The proviso to sub-section 1 only provides that before such dismissal the appellant or his pleader would be given a reasonable opportunity of being heard in support of such petition. Similarly in respect of an appeal preferred under Section 383 Cr.P.C. the dismissal shall be after giving the appellant a reasonable opportunity of being heard unless the appellate court considers that appeal is frivolous or that the production of the accused in custody before the Court would involve such inconvenience as would be disproportionate in the circumstances of the case.

9. Sub-section 2 of Section 384 Cr.P.C. then provides that before summarily dismissing an appeal under Section 383 Cr.P.C. the appellate court may call for record of the case. The cojoint reading of sub-section 1 and 2 of Section 384 Cr.P.C. clearly conveys that the appellate court upon examining the petition of appeal and copy of the judgment received under Section 382 or 383 can summarily dismiss the appeal, if it considers that there is no sufficient ground for interference. The specification of the material to be relied upon in sub-section (1) for the purposes of considering the appeal for summay dismissal denotes the legislative intent that the only material which is required for consideration by the appellate authority is the petition of appeal and the copy of the judgment. Sub-section (2) only enables the appellate court to call for the records of the case even before it proceeds to summarily dismiss the appeal.

The Code vests discretion with the appellate court to summon the lower court record before summarily dismissing the appeal, or not. This discretion is to be exercised by the appellate court depending upon the requirement of lower court record for formation of opinion whether sufficient ground exists for interference in appeal.

10. The provision has been considered by the Supreme Court in Hanumat Das Vs. Vinay Kumar AIR 1982 SC 1052, wherein their Lordship observed that non summoning of lower court record in appeal against conviction is not fatal.

11. The use of expression 'may' in sub-section (2) clearly suggests that the power to summon the record is only an enabling provision and is not to be read as shall as is suggested by the learned counsel.

12. Before proceeding to examine the contention raised we would like to refer to the judgment of the Supreme Court cited at the Bar. In Sujay Mangesh Poyarekar (Supra) while considering the scope of sub-section 3 of Section 378 the Court observed that the High Court while exercising the power to grant or refuse leave must apply its mind and consider where a prima facie case has been made out or arguable points have been raised and not whether the order of acquittal would or would not be set aside. In paragraph 21 the Court clearly observed that every petition seeking leave to prefer an appeal is not required to be allowed by the appellate court nor that every appeal filed has to be admitted. The two observations are a clear pointer to the legislative intendment. Every appeal is not required to be admitted inasmuch as leave must not necessarily be granted in every matter and the exercise of power in that regard is dependent upon a prima facie assessment of the material placed before the Court so as to ascertain whether the appeal raises arguable points or not.

13. The object of incorporating provision for grant of leave has a purpose to subserve. It is not that in every matter the State is expected or required to file an appeal and even if such an appeal is routinely filed, the Court is not required to entertain every such appeal as a matter of course. The purpose of grant of leave by the High Court is that a prima facie assessment would be required to determine whether the appeal raises arguable points or not. The reason for grant or refusal to leave must be reflected from the order passed by the High Court. The Supreme Court has clearly disapproved the practice of rejection of prayer for grant of leave to file appeal by passing orders which do not reflect proper application of mind by the appellate court within the scope of powers to be exercised.

14. The observations of the Supreme Court, relied upon by the State Counsel, would not lead to an inference that just because the victim has a right of appeal as such the State must also be recognized as having right to prefer appeal against any order of acquittal or conviction for a lesser offence or imposing inadequate compensation.

15. The purpose of grant of leave is merely to embark upon a prima facie assessment so as to decide which of the matters would require examination by the appellate court. The refusal to grant leave would not mean that the order of acquittal merges in the order of the High Court. The right of the victim to file an appeal by virtue of proviso to section 372 Cr.P.C. would, therefore, not be adversely affected by the refusal to grant leave under Section 378(3) Cr.P.C. by the High Court. The right of the victim to file an appeal in terms of proviso to Section 372 Cr.P.C. would thus stand unhindered. The above interpretation would subserve the object of provision for grant of leave to the State to file an appeal against the order of acquittal while maintaining the right of a victim to prefer an appeal under Section 372 Cr.P.C.

16. The up shot of the above deliberation is that it is not mandatory for the High Court to summon the lower court record in every case before deciding the application for grant of leave under Section 378(3) Cr.P.C. We hasten to add that the right of the appellate court to summon the lower court record in an appropriate matter always subsists. It is for the High Court to decide on the basis of facts and circumstances of each case whether the application for grant of leave requires the perusal of the lower court records or not? We, therefore, hold that it is not necessary for this Court to call for the lower court records for consideration of application under Section 378(3) Cr.P.C., in every case or as a matter of routine.

17. As prayed by Sri S.A. Murtaza, learned A.G.A., put up this case, once again, on 29.09.2022 for consideration of application by the State filed under Section 378(3) Cr.P.C.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vikas Budhwar, J.)

1. The question which arises and falls for consideration before this Court in the present proceeding is with regard to the extent of judicial intervention in matters, where admittedly, parties are litigating their rights under the common law before the competent Civil Courts."

2. To begin with, one Smt. Suman Singh had instituted Writ-C No. 12310 of 2022, Suman Singh vs. District Magistrate, Varanasi and 7 others (hereinafter referred to as the leading petition) before this Court seeking following reliefs: -

"I. To issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the respondents to restore the possession of petitioner over her plot No. 446 area 2250 square feet situated at Village Susuwahi, Tehsil Sadar, District Varanasi from which petitioner was dispossessed illegally by the state authorities with connivance of private respondents.

II. To issue any other writ, order or direction which this Hon'ble Court may deem fit and proper in the facts and circumstances of the case.

III. To award the cost of petition in favour of the petitioner."

3. Perusal of the relief as sought in the above noted writ petition will clearly reveal that the petitioner herein had sought writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the respondents including Smt. Manju Devi w/o Shri Gopal Prasad, Smt. Sunita Devi w/o Lalji Gupta and Sri Gopi Chandra Gupta son of Late Dukhnti Sav, to restore the possession over the plot no.446 are 2250 sq. ft. situate at village Susuwhi, Tahsil Sadar, District Varanasi, from which the petitioner claims to be dispossessed illegally by the State authorities in connivance with the private respondents.

4. So far as Writ-C No. 24798 of 2022 (hereinafter referred to as the 'connected petition') is concerned, the same has been instituted by Smt. Manju Devi w/o Shri Gopal Prasad, Smt. Sunita Devi w/o Lalji Gupta, Smt. Lali Devi w/o Gopichand Gupta and Gopi Chandra Gupta son of Late Dukhnti Sav, in which besides the State and its functionaries, the petitioner in Writ-C No. 12310 of 2022, Suman Singh vs. District Magistrate, Varanasi and 7 others (hereinafter referred to as to as 'the leading petition') has been arrayed as Respondent no.5 seeking the following reliefs: -

"I. Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing exparte order dated 13.08.2022 passed by respondent no. 3 along with memo of delivery of possession dated 16.08.2022 (Annexure 1 to the petition).

II. Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of Mandamus directing respondents-authorities to restore back possession of petitioners over their property being Arazi No. 446 M area 4080 sq. ft., situate in Mauza Susuwahi, Pargana Dehat Amanat, Tehsil and District Varanasi, by directing respondents-authorities to maintain statusquo ante by restoring status of the property of petitioners as stood prior to 16.08.2022 or as existed on 10.08.2022 when the order dated 10.08.2022 was passed by Hon'ble Court in Writ Petition No. 12310 of 2022.

III. Issue an appropriate writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing respondents to pay compensation to the tune of Rs. 10 lakhs towards the mental, physical agony and distress suffered by the petitioner due to wrongful and illegal dispossession of the petitioner from his own property and towards raising of constructions over the property of petitioners by the respondent no. 5.

IV. Issue writ of mandamus, order or direction with this Hon'ble Court deems fit and proper in the facts and circumstances of the case.

V. Award the cost of the writ petition to the petitioners."

5. A close scrutiny of the relief as sought in the connected petition would go to show that writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari has been sought for quashing ex-parte order dated 13.8.2022 passed by Respondent no.3 (S.D.M. Sadar, District Varanasi) along with the memo of delivery of possession dated 16.8.2022, whereby the private respondent in the connected petition being the petitioner in the leading petition Suman Singh has been handed over the portion, which is owned and possessed by the petitioner in the connected petition, which even in fact is in complete defiance of the interim injunction so passed in the suit so instituted by the petitioners in the connected petition. Further relief has been sought for directing the State respondents to restore back the possession of the petitioner over their property being Arazi no.446 M area 4080 sq. ft., situate in Mauza Susuwahi, Pargana Dehat Amanat, Tehsil and District Varanasi while restoring status quo ante by restoring status of the property of petitioners as it stood prior to 16.08.2022 or as it existed on 10.08.2022 when the order dated 10.08.2022 was passed by Hon'ble Court in the leading petition and to further compensate the petitioners while paying compensation to the tune of Rs.10 lakhs.

6. Factual matrix of the case as worded in the leading and connected petitions are to the extent that Suman Singh w/o Jai Shankar (hereinafter referred to as petitioner in leading petition) claims to have purchased land being plot no. 446 area 2250 sq. ft. situate at Village-Susuwahi, Tahsil Sadar, District Varanasi by virtue of three separate sale deeds dated 29.5.2013, 9.7.2013 and 19.10.2013.

7. The petitioner in the leading petition further claims that consequent to the execution of the above noted three sale deeds, she was put in possession of the aforesaid plot of land being plot no. 446 area 2250 sq. ft. and she was continuing with enjoyment of the said piece of land. According to the petitioner in the leading writ petition, the respondents no. 4, 5 and 6 being Smt. Manju Devi w/o Gopal Prasad, Smt. Sunita Devi w/o Lalji Gupta, Smt.

Lali Devi w/o Sri Gopichand Gupta by virtue of the sale deed dated 26.9.2014 purchased a part of the plot no.446 situate at Village- Susuwahi, Tahsil Sadar, District Varanasi admeasuring 2040 sq. ft.

8. Smt. Suman Singh, petitioner in the leading writ petition alleges that the respondents no. 4, 5 and 6 in the leading writ petition started interfering in the peaceful possession of the plot no. 446 (area 2250 sq. ft.) so owned by the petitioner, which compelled the petitioner Suman Singh to institute Original Suit No. 317 of 2018 before the Court of Civil Judge (Junior Division), Hawali, Varanasi titled as Smt. Suman Singh vs. Manju Devi and 2 others seeking relief of permanent injunction to restrain the defendants therein and the private respondents in the leading petition not to illegally dispossess the petitioner from the plot in question and to interfere in the peaceful possession of the property owned by the petitioner.

9. Records reveal that on 6.3.2018, the paper no. 6-C purported to be an application under Order 39 Rule 1 and 2 of CPC came to be decided by the Court of Civil Judge (Junior Division) Hawali, Varanasi in O.S. No. 317 of 2018, Smt. Suman Singh vs. Manju Devi and others, whereby temporary injunction was granted in favour of the petitioner in the leading writ petition restraining the defendant therein and the private respondents in the leading writ petition not to create any obstacles and hindrances over the possession of the petitioner herein till the next date of listing.

10. Pleadings further reveal that the private respondents in the leading writ petition being Smt. Manju Devi w/o Sri Gopal Prasad, Smt. Sunita Devi w/o Laljij Gupta and Smt. Lali Devi w/o Sri Gopichand Gupta instituted proceeding being O.S. No.7 of 2019 before the Court of Civil Judge (Senior Division), Varanasi (Smt. Manju Devi and 2 others vs. Smt. Suman Singh seeking relief of permanent injunction restraining the petitioner in the leading writ petition from interfering in the peaceful possession over the property, which is claimed to have been purchased by them being plot no. 446 (area 4080 sq. ft.) by virtue of sale deeds, which were two in number, dated 26.9.2015 each of 2040 sq. ft. In the said suit, an application under Order 39 Rules 1 and 2 seeking temporary injunction was also filed, in which on 3.1.2019 the Court of Civil Judge (Senior Division), Varanasi granted an ex-parte interim injunction restraining the petitioner in the leading writ petition and defendant in the suit from creating any obstacle / hindrance and restraining them from illegally encroaching and taking possession thereof.

11. On 19.1.2019, it appears that respondent no.4 in the leading writ petition being Smt Manju Devi w/o Sri Gopal Prasad preferred an application before respondent no.3 being Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Sadar, District Varanasi seeking measurement of the plot no.446 admeasuring 2040 sq. ft. situate at Village-Susuwahi, Tahsil Sadar, District Varanasi. On the said application, report was sought and the Revenue Inspector, Chitaipur, Tahsil Sadar, Varanasi submitted its report before the Lekhpal, wherein it was recited that physical inspection had been conducted and it was found that the Arazi No. 446 (area 2040 sq. ft.) is owned by the applicant Smt. Manju Devi and so far as measurement etc. is concerned, same can be done under Section 24 of the under U.P. Revenue Code, 2006.

12. Taking clue from the same, it appears that respondent no.6 in the leading writ petition being Smt. Lali Devi w/o Sri Gopichand Gupta preferred proceedings under Section 24 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 for demarcation, which came to be decided in the proceedings in Case No. 17462 of 2019, Lali Devi Vs. State, wherein proceeding for demarcation under Section 24 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 was forestalled on the ground that the parties had subjected themselves before the Civil Court under Common Law by filing their respective suits. Thereafter respondent no.7 being Gopi Chand Gupta husband of respondent no.6 Lali Devi in the leading petition preferred an application before respondent no.3/ Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Sadar, District Varanasi on 11.7.2020, wherein he has alleged that though they permanently reside in Bihar, however, on 20.6.2020 in the night, the husband of the petitioner herein in the leading writ petition being Jai Shankar got uprooted the gate and even in fact encroached upon the land while committing illegal acts despite the pendency of the civil suits by both the fractions and thus request was made that a suitable direction be issued to the Police Station - Lanka and Chowki Chitaipur to grant protection for undertaking construction activities and the other party be restrained from interfering in any manner whatsoever. The said application is on record as Annexure-8 at page-60 of the paper-book. On the said application, on 23.7.2020, the SDM, Varanasi submitted his report before the District Magistrate, Varanasi dated 23.7.2020 mentioning therein that the parties in question had purchased their respective pieces of plots through sale deeds and civil suit was pending before the Civil Court and a first information report had also been lodged against Jai Shankar and his wife Suman Singh being FIR No. 402 of 2020, under Sections 447, 323, 504, 506 and 427 IPC and was pending along with other criminal cases.

13. It appears from the record that respondent no.1 being the District Magistrate, Varanasi on 30.7.2020 issued a letter under his signatures addressed to SSP, Varanasi reciting the fact that criminal case was pending against the petitioner and her husband in the leading writ petition as referred to above and preventive action be taken to maintain peace and harmony.

14. On 31.8.2020, respondent no.7, Gopi Chandra Gupta son of Dukhanti Sav preferred an application before Respondent no.1/ District Magistrate, Varanasi for providing Police Force and a Team of Revenue Officers in order to remove illegal possession over the plot, which had been illegally encroached upon by the petitioner in the leading writ petition. A copy of the application dated 31.1.2020 is annexed as Annexure-11 at page 69. On the said application, the respondent no.2 being A.D.M, District Varanasi issued a communication addressed to respondent no.3 / S.D.M., Sadar, Varanasi for taking necessary action as per law.

15. Record reveals that on the basis of the application so preferred on 31.8.2020 by Sri Gopi Chandra Gupta (respondent no.7 in the leading writ petition) a communication was sent on 3.9.2020 under the signature of Respondent no.2 (Additional District Magistrate (City), Varanasi) addressed to the Respondent no.3 / S.D.M, Sadar, Varanasi. It appears that on 25.9.2020, the Revenue Inspector, Chitaipur, Sadar, Varanasi tendered his report. Thereafter an order was passed on 19.10.2020, pursuant whereto, the possession of the petitioner over the land so owned and possessed by the petitioner was disturbed and the petitioner in the leading writ petition was dispossessed by the Police officials on 7.11.2021 and the said fact found its presence in D.G. No. 067 dated 7.11.2021, copy whereof is annexed as Annexure-13-A at page 82/83 of the paper-book.

16. The petitioner being aggrieved against her dispossession from the property in question preferred a representation on 9.11.2020 before the District Magistrate, Varanasi/ respondent no.1 and alleging non-cooperation from it, she approached the Commissioner, Varanasi Region, Varanasi on 9.11.2020. Records reveal that on 11.11.2020. The Commissioner, Varanasi Region, Varanasi sent a communication to District Magistrate, Varanasi for taking appropriate action.

17. Alleging dispossession and consequent harassment, the petitioner has filed the leading writ petition.

18. On 14.7.2022, this Court proceeded to pass the following order: -

"Supplementary affidavit filed today is taken on record.

Indisputably, two civil suits are pending between the petitioner and private respondents in respect of plot no. 446. One of the suit was filed by the petitioner against the private respondents wherein an order of ad interim temporary injunction is operating in favour of the petitioner, against the private respondents. Another suit bearing no. 7 of 2019 is pending at the behest of private respondents against the petitioner in which also there is an interim injunction order in their favour.

It seems that while the suits remain pending, private respondent no. 7 filed an application before the administrative authorities alleging violation of injunction order passed in his suit by the petitioner. It was alleged that the petitioner had taken possession of his property in defiance of the injunction order. The prayer made in the application was for ensuring removal of unauthorized possession of the petitioner. On the said application, the Naib Tehsildar made an endorsement that the application was in respect of the grievance of the private respondents relating to a dispute of possession of the subject land. There is another endorsement calling for certain report and then an order by Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Sadar, Varanasi dated 12.10.2020 directing for constitution of a revenue team under Naib Tehsildar with further direction to the police to take action in the matter. The GD entry of 7.11.2020 shows that in pursuance of the direction of Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Sadar the police acting in an adjudicatory role in respect of dispute relating to possession between the parties dispossessed the petitioner thereby seeking to restore status quo ante.

It is vehemently contended by learned counsel for the petitioner that the administrative authorities as well as the police had no jurisdiction in the matter particularly, when the dispute was pending before the civil court.

We find considerable force in the submission of learned counsel for the petitioner. Prima facie, we find that the Sub-Divisional Magistrate who has directed the police force to intervene in the matter and under which direction, the police had dispossessed the petitioner, amounts to a gross abuse of the administrative powers. There is no order of the civil court holding that there was breach of injunction order nor any direction for restoring status quo ante.

We call upon respondent no.3 to remain present in the Court along with entire record and explain by filing his affidavit that under which provision of law he had directed the police to intervene in the matter in absence of any duly constituted proceeding before him, ignoring the fact that the dispute between the parties was pending before the civil court.

We may observe that the only role of the administrative authorities could be in relation to maintenance of law and order as also rightly directed by the District Magistrate in the first instance when the application was put up before him but we find that respondent no.3 has exceeded his authority in issuing the impugned direction and getting the petitioner dispossessed.

Meanwhile, we leave it open to respondent no.3, to revisit the matter and take remedial steps, if he deems fit and proper and in which event his personal appearance will remain dispensed with and an affidavit filed to the above effect will suffice.

List as fresh on 21st July, 2022.

Sri Dilip Kesarwani, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel will communicate the instant order to respondent no.3 for necessary compliance."

19. An affidavit was filed on behalf of Respondent no.3 being S.D.M, Sadar, District Varanasi (present incumbent), wherein the Respondent no.3 in the leading writ petition had come up with a stand that she had joined the post in question on 1.7.2022 and the order was passed by the predecessor and thus the deponent therein had sought time to revisit the matter in compliance of the above noted order.

20. However, on 21.7.2022, this Court proceeded to pass the following order:

"Sri Sudarshan Singh has entered appearance on behalf of respondents no.4 to 7.

An application supported by affidavit of the incumbent on the post of S.D.M., Sadar, Varanasi has been filed stating that she joined the post on 1.07.2022. The action impugned was taken by her predecessor in office. She has prayed for two weeks further time to revisit the matter.

By our previous order dated 14.07.2022, we had directed respondent no.3 to remain present in the Court alongwith entire record and explain by filing his affidavit that under which provision of law, he had directed the police to intervene in a civil dispute between the parties.

The present incumbent informs the Court that the earlier order was passed by Sri Pramod Kumar Pandey, who is now posted as S.D.M., Lucknow. We direct the District Magistrate, Lucknow to serve a copy of the instant order as well as previous order of this Court dated 14.07.2022 upon Sri Pramod Kumar Pandey so that the orders are duly complied with. The said officer shall file his personal affidavit in compliance of our previous order dated 14.07.2022 and will remain present in Court on the next date.

The present incumbent will file her personal affidavit disclosing therein the decision taken by her in the meantime.

Registrar (Compliance) shall communicate the instant order as well as previous order dated 14.07.2022 to the District Magistrate, Lucknow for the purpose of serving these orders upon Sri Pramod Kumar Pandey posted as S.D.M. in District Lucknow.

List as fresh on 10.08.2022."

21. A personal affidavit was filed on behalf of the SDM, Varanasi / Respondent no.3 (present incumbent) manning the post in question. In the personal affidavit, in paragraphs- 5 to 8, the following averments were made: -

"5. That the deponent in compliance of the order dated 14.07.2022 and 21.07.2022 passed by this Hon'ble Court issued office order dated 01.08.2022 for spot enquiry/ verification in respect of the petitioner Smt. Suman Singh W/o Jaishankar Singh, constituting the team of the Revenue Officers mentioned therein along with the deponent, informing the both parties for spot enquiry/ verification fixing 03.08.2022 at 10 AM and also informed the S.O., Chitaipur, Varanasi to be present on the spot. Copy of the order dated 01.08.2022 passed by the Respondent No.3, is being annexed herewith and is marked as Annexure A-1 to this affidavit.

6. That the notices of the said spot enquiry/verification was duly served to the petitioner, Suman Singh W/o Shri Jaishankar, who refused to take notice thereof on 01.08.2022 and the Notice to Smt. Lali Devi W/o Gopichand Gupta was also informed through telephone and informed to her Karinda at spot, the copies of the said service of the Notices/information dated 01.08.2022 are annexed collectively as Annexure No.A-2 to this affidavit.

7. That the deponent reached at the spot in question on 03.08.2022 along with the Revenue Team with the Police Team and make enquiry/verification of the facts at spot Arazi Plot no. 446, Village-Susuwahi, Pargana-Dehat Amanat, Tahsil-Sadar, District-Varanasi and the spot inspection/ measurement was conducted in the presence of the petitioner and the representative of other respondents no. 4 to 6 namely, Gopichandra and in presence of the Revenue Team referred to above and the Police Team, PS-Chitaipur, Varanasi. The content of the spot inquiry report reveals the following facts:

(a) That as per the record the petitioner Smt. Suman Singh W/o Shri Jaishanker purchased land in Arazi no. 446, area-2250 sq. ft. i.e. 209.10 meter through three different sale deeds each of 750 sq. ft. through Sale Deeds dated 29.05.2013 09.07.2013 and 19.10.2013 from the Vendors thereof. The copy of the aforesaid sale deeds are annexed as Annexure Nos.A-3, A-4 & A-5 to this affidavit.

(b) That similarly the Respondents no. 4, 5 & 6 Smt. Manju Devi, Sunita Devi and Smt. Lali Devi also purchased the land forming S.M. Plot no. 446, area-4080 sq. ft. (379.18 sq. mtr.) situate at Village-Susuwahi, Pargana-Dehat Amanat, Tahsil-Sadar, District-Varanasi, through two different registered sale deeds dated 26.09.2015 each of area-2040 sq ft. i.e. 189.59) sq. mtrs. from the Vendors thereof. The copies of the said sale deeds dated 26.09.2014, are annexed as Annexure No.A-6 & A-7 to this affidavit.

(c) That according to the boundaries mentioned in the said sale deeds, towards the south of the land of petitioner Suman Singh, there is pucca Road (Rasta) and towards east, there is proposed Kachcha Rasta and towards North the land of Respondent nos. 4 to 6 are lying. The sketch Plan of the spot has been prepared at the spot showing the land (A), (B) and (C) along with the constructions.

(d) That it was found on spot enquiry, that the petitioner Smt. Suman Singh, was found in possession of the Plot no 446, area 2321.90 sq. ft. (215.71 Sq. Mtr.) along with the constructions made by her at the said land, whereas her area of the sale deed is total 2250 sq. ft. (209.03 Sq. Mtr.) only which is marked as (A) in the Sketch Plan of the spot enquiry/verification.

(e) That there is land area (610.41 sq. ft. lying towards North adjacent of the land of the Petitioner Smt. Suman Singh, marked with 'B' in the Sketch Plan.

(f) That towards the North of the said vacant land marked with 'B' the land of the Respondents no 4 to 6 along with Boundaries area-3373.59 sq ft. are lying which is marked with 'C' in the Sketch Plan.

(g) That according to the spot enquiry/ verification it has been found that the petitioner Smt. Suman Singh, who has purchased only 2250 sq. ft. (209.03 Sq. Mtr.) but she is in possession over 2321.09 sq. ft. (215.71 Sq. Mtr.) over which she has constructed multi-storied building along with Sahan and towards North of the said multi-storied building the land area 610.41 sq. ft. is lying vacant and towards North of the said land the Respondent Nos. 4 to 6 are in possession over 3373.59 sq.ft. whereas their purchased area is 4080 sq. ft.

(h) That the Petitioner and the Respondents no. 4 to 6 have approached to the Civil Court of competent jurisdiction and they have been granted interim injunctions orders with respect to their respective area of the land vice versa, which is mentioned in the spot inspection Report.

Copies of the injunction orders have already been annexed as Annexure No.2 and 4 to Writ Petition.

The copy of the spot enquiry/verification dated 03.08.2022 is annexed as Annexure No.A-8 to this affidavit.

8. That it is respectfully stated that from the perusal of the interim injunction passed by the Civil Court dated 06.03.2018 in the Suit No.317 of 2018 filed by the petitioner it is evident that the interim injunction was with respect to area of 209.10 sq. mtr., out of the total area of the Arazi No.446 as mentioned in the plaint. Apart from the aforesaid purchased land there is land area 610.41 sq. ft. lying vacant towards North adjacent of the land of the Petitioner Smt. Suman Singh, marked with 'B' in the Sketch Plan. The petitioner is still in possession of the total area of the land in respect of which the interim injunction was granted by the Civil Court. Therefore, there is no violation of the order dated 06.03.2018 passed by the Civil Court in Suit No.317 of 2018. Under the aforesaid circumstances no further action is required by the deponent as remedial measure with regard to the land of the petitioner."

22. On 10.8.2022, the following orders were passed: -

"Sri Ajay Kumar Singh, Advocate has filed his vakalatnama on behalf of respondents no.4 to 7. The same is taken on record.

The earlier incumbent on the post of Sub-Divisional Magistrate on whose direction the petitioner was allegedly dispossessed has filed his personal affidavit. Another affidavit has been filed on behalf of the present incumbent on the said post. Both the affidavits are taken on record.

Sri M.C. Chaturvedi, learned Additional Advocate General on behalf of State Respondents prays for and is granted a week further time to file appropriate affidavits. Accordingly, the matter is adjourned for a week.

List as fresh on 18.8.2022.

In the meantime, respondent no.3 will file a better affidavit.

When the case is listed next, name of Sri Ajay Kumar Singh shall be shown in the cause list as counsel for the respondents."

23. Thereafter in compliance of the order dated 10.8.2022 passed by this Court, the earlier incumbent, who was holding the post of SDM, Sadar, Varanasi submitted a personal affidavit dated 18.8.2022 followed by an affidavit filed on behalf of the present incumbent holding the post of SDM, Sadar, Varanasi, wherein in paragraphs 3 and 4, the following have been averred: -

"3. That it is respectfully stated that in compliance of the order dated 14.07.2022 as well as order dated 21.07.2022 passed by this Hon'bie Court the deponent revisited the matter and passed order dated 13.08.2022 directing the petitioner as well as Respondent No.4 to 6 to restore the status with regard to possession as was existing on 31.08.2020. Copy of order dated 13.08.2022 passed by the deponent, is being annexed herewith and is marked as Annexure A-1 to this affidavit.

4. That the aforesaid order passed by the deponent was duly complied with and the possession of the petitioner was restored on 16.08.2022 in the presence of the Revenue Team. The proceeding of restoration of possession has been duly signed by the petitioner. Copy of the aforesaid proceeding dated 16.08.2022, is being annexed herewith and is marked as Annexure A-2 to this affidavit."

24. As per the affidavit dated 18.8.2022 of Respondent no. 3/ S.D.M., Sadar, Varanasi, a stand has been taken that Respondent no.3 has revisited the matter while passing the order dated 13.8.2022 directing the petitioner herein and the respondent nos. 4 and 6 in the leading petition to restore status quo ante with regard to the possession as existed on 31.8.2020 and the parties were also put to liberty to get their individual rights decided under Common Law in the pending suits. Further, it has also been narrated that on spot inquiry, it was found that the petitioner in the leading petition, Smt. Suman Singh was found in possession of plot no. 446 (area 2321.90 sq. ft.) along with constructions made by her, whereas her area of sale deed is total 2250 sq. ft. (209.10 sq. meter) and thus she was in possession of excess land.

25. We have heard Shri Abhishek Kumar, learned counsel for the petitioner in the leading petition and for Respondent no.5 in the connected writ petition, Sri M.C. Chaturvedi, learned Addl. Advocate General assisted by Ms. Akanksha Sharma, Advocate for State-respondent as well as Sri Ajay Kumar Singh along with Shri Tejas Singh appearing for Respondents no. 4 to 7 in the leading petition and petitioners in the connected writ petition.

26. Since the parties in question are represented through their counsel and they have given their consent for disposal of the writ petition at the admission stage on the basis of the affidavits so exchanged between them, thus this Court is proceedings to finally decide the issue in question.

27. Undisputedly the petitioner in leading writ petition claims to be the owner of the land admeasuring 225.06 sq. mt. being plot no. 446 situate at Village Sushwahi, Tehsil Sadar, District Varanasi by virtue of three separate sale deeds dated 29.5.2013, 9.7.2013 and 19.10.2015 for an area of 750 sq. ft. each. Similarly, so far as respondent nos. 4 and 6 in the leading writ petition are concerned, they claim to have been in possession and recorded title holders of an area of 4080 sq. ft. of the aforesaid Arazi/ plot of land by virtue of two registered sale deeds dated 26.9.2015.

28. It is not under dispute that the petitioner in the leading writ petition being Suman Singh had instituted Original Suit no.317 of 2018 before the Court of Civil Judge (Senior Division), Varanasi, Smt. Suman Singh vs. Smt. Manju Devi and 2 others, in which she had obtained the interim injunction dated 06.3.2018, so much so, respondent nos. 4 to 6 in the leading writ petition had also instituted O.S. No.7 of 2019 before the Court of Civil Judge (Senior Division), Varanasi, Smt. Manju Devi and 2 others vs. Smt. Suman Singh, in which injunction had been granted on 3.1.2019 by Civil Judge (Senior Division), Varanasi.

29. As per the pleadings so set forth in both the writ petitions, it is explicitly clear that both the parties are litigating their rights before the competent court of law and as per their own saying they are possessed with injunction orders in their respective suits. Notably as discussed above at first instance, Respondent no.4 in the leading petition and petitioner no.1 in the connected writ petition sought administrative intervention before Respondent no.3 for measurement of her plot on 19.1.2019 and on 29.1.2019, Respondent no.3 informed Respondent no.4 in the leading petition and the petitioner in the connected writ petition that she should undertake proceedings for demarcation under Section 24 of the U.P. Revenue Code. Thereafter Respondent no.6 in the leading writ petition and petitioner no.3 in the connected writ petition took recourse to demarcation, however Respondent no.3 forestalled the claim for demarcation vide order dated 22.6.2022 on the ground that the matter was pending before the competent civil court and thus it was not possible to conduct the demarcation. Being unsuccessful on two occasions, Respondent no.7 in the leading writ petition, who happens to be the husband of Respondent no.6 proceeded to make an application before Respondent no.3 on 11.7.2020 with regard to grant of security to raise construction, as according to him the gates had been uprooted and encroachment had been made by the petitioners in the leading writ petition. Sub-Divisional Magistrate on the basis of the application so preferred by Respondent no.7 in the leading writ petition directed the Tahsil Authorities to submit a report and on 23.7.2020, Tehsil Authorities tendered their comments and a letter was thereafter issued by Respondent no.3 which was addressed to Respondent no.1. In the meantime, on 30.7.2020 Respondent no.1 requested the SSP, Varanasi to take preventive action against the petitioner in the leading petition, in case they had occupied and raised construction over the land owned by others. Being not satisfied with the above noted actions, the respondent no.7 again preferred an application before Respondent no.3 with a request to provide police force and a team of police officials to remove illegal possession over the land so claimed to be possessed by Respondents no. 4 to 7. Thereafter proceedings were drawn and it is being alleged that the possession of the land in question, which is claimed to be possessed by the petitioner in the leading writ petition stands delivered to the respondents. The other side of the story which is being sought to be erected by Respondent no.4 to 7 in the leading writ petition and petitioners no. 1 to 4 in the connected petition is that now in the garb of the orders passed by this Court on 14.7.2021 and 21.7.2021, the possession of the land in question was being taken away from them and was being handed over to the petitioners in the leading writ petition, putting them in possession over land which was in excess of their ownership.

30. Sri Abhishek Kumar, learned counsel for the petitioner in the leading writ petition and Respondent no.5 in the connected petition has sought to argue that the taking over of the possession on 7.11.2020 by the district administration pursuant to the application so preferred by the private respondents in the leading writ petition was without any authority of law, as once the matter itself was engaging the attention of the Civil Court in appropriate proceedings by way of suits and injunction orders were operating, then the District Administration could not have intervened in between and played an adjudicatory role. To elaborate his submission, Sri Abhishek Kumar argued that the district administration was well aware about the factum of the institution of the suit, pendency and operation of injunction orders and thus while taking resort to the proceedings of handing over the possession not only the orders of the Civil Courts were circumvented, but the administrative authorities interfered with and obstructed judicial proceedings.

31. According to Sri Abhishek Kumar, pursuant to the orders passed by this Court on 14.7.2021 and 21.7.2021, now possession had been delivered to the petitioner while passing the orders dated 13.8.2022 and 16.8.2022 and as per his instructions, the petitioner in the leading writ petition and Respondent no.5 in the connected writ petition had neither encroached nor was in possession of even a single inch of land in excess, which was claimed to be possessed by Respondents no. 4 to 7 in the leading writ petition and petitioner in the connected writ petition.

32. Sri Ajay Singh assisted by Sri Tejas Singh who appears for Respondents no. 4 to 7 in the leading writ petition and petitioners in the connected petition have argued that the writ petition so framed and instituted by the petitioner herein is not maintainable as once, admittedly, civil suits are pending inter se between the parties and injunction orders are operating, then the proper recourse for the petitioner herein was to move an appropriate application in the pending suit either by way of amendment or impleadment in that regard.

33. Sri Singh has further argued that in the guise of the orders dated 14.7.2021 and 21.7.2021 passed by this Court, now the State authorities have dispossessed Respondents no. 4 to 7 in the leading petition and the petitioners in the connected petition, while handing over the possession of the entire land so owned by them to the petitioner in the leading petition. He thus seeks not only quashing of the order dated 13.8.2022 passed by Respondent no.3 followed by delivery of possession but also seeks compensation to the tune of Rs.10 lakhs for illegal dispossession.

34. Sri M.C. Chaturvedi, learned Addl. Advocate General assisted by Ms. Akanksha Sharma has argued that consequent to the passing of order dated 14.7.2021 and 21.7.2021, possession had been delivered back to the petitioner in the leading petition as appropriate orders had been passed on 13.8.2022 and as per his instructions the petitioner in the leading petition was possessing excess land. However, now the parties in question had been directed to get their rights adjudicated in the Civil Courts.

35. This Court is conscious of the fact that in the past also contingencies had arisen wherein despite pendency of suits before the Civil Courts and operation of injunction orders at the instance of private parties in relation to a private party, the District Administration intervened in the matter. Taking serious note of the same in Writ-C No. 4362 of 2014, Sayeed Khan vs. State of U.P, certain directions were issued on 3.11.2014 and 1.12.2014, and the State Government therefore proceeded to issue a Government Order dated 1.12.2014 clearly restraining the administrative authorities in interfering or adjudicating matters, which were within the domain of the civil courts. The Government Order dated 10.9.2014 is quoted hereinunder: -

Additional City Magistrate in his Affidavit has referred to the Government Orders dated 15.5.2012, 30.4.2013 and 7.6.2014 as the source of power for entering into the dispute between two private. persons in respect of immovable property and in interpreting the interim order passed by the Civil Court.

Prima facie, we are of the opinion that such reading of the Government Order by the Additional City Magistrate is wholly perverse. A Government Order deals with the removal of difficulties of citizens of this country, which they face in the matter of getting their work done in various government Organizations/Departments of Uttar Pradesh. These Government Orders do not authorize any authority of the state to enter into any private dispute of two persons.

Learned Standing Counsel is directed to obtain instructions from Chief Secretary, Government of U.P., as to whether the Additional City Magistrate in the garb of Government Orders referred to above is permitted to enter into private disputes during the "Janata Darshan" etc. or not."

36. Ultimately, this Court in the case of Sayeed Khan (supra), took notice of the Government Order. The order dated 3.12.2014 passed in Writ Petition No.43627 of 2014 is quoted hereinunder: -

"List again with the name of Shri Anil Tiwari, counsel for respondent no.5.

Shri A. K. Goel, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel has produced the copy of the government order dated 1.12.2014 issued by the Chief Secretary of the State whereby it has been provided that in the matters pertaining to immovable property between private persons where dispute is pending before the competent Civil Court/High Court and other Courts, the Administrative Authorities like the District Magistrates and Senior Superintendents of Police should act within their authority and within the four corners of the law. It has been explained that in such matters only competent Courts have jurisdiction to pass orders. But, this order will not be applicable qua the government and public properties. A copy of the government order dated 1.12.2014 is kept on record.

In view of the order of the State Government referred to above, the Additional City Magistrate shall revisit his order dated 26.4.2014 and do the needful.

List the matter in the 2nd week of January 2015."

37. Entire gamut of the argument of the counsel for the petitioner as well as for the respondents centres around illegal action of the State and its instrumentalilties in taking possession of the land, which is claimed to be owned by it at first instance by the petitioner in the leading petition and at the second instance, the Respondent no.4 to 6 in the leading writ petition, wherein now it is being sought to be alleged that the possession, which has been handed over by virtue of the order dated 13.8.2022 and the possession memo dated 16.8.2022 to the petitioner in the leading petition is in excess of the land claimed to be owned by them.

38. This Court finds that once the parties themselves have taken the recourse to remedy under the Common Law while instituting appropriate suits before the competent court of law and have obtained injunctions, then it is for them to get their rights adjudicated while filing appropriate application under the relevant Code in the pending suit.

39. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Mohan Pandey and another vs. Usha Rani Rajgaria (SMT) and others, reported in (1992) 4 SCC 161 in paragraph 63, the following was observed: -

"It has repeatedly been held by this court as also by various High Courts that a regular suit is the appropriate remedy for settlement of disputes relating to property rights between private persons and that the remedy under Article 226 of the Constitution shall not be available except where violation of some statutory duty on the part of a statutory authority is alleged. And in such a case, the court will issue appropriate direction to the authority concerned. If the grievance of the respondent is against the initiation of criminal proceedings, and the orders passed and steps taken thereon, she must avail of the remedy under the general law constitutional jurisdiction to be used for deciding disputes, for which remedies, under the general law, civil or criminal, are available. It is not intended to replace the ordinary remedies by way of a suit or application available to a litigant. The jurisdiction is special and extra-ordinary and should not be exercised casually or lightly. We, therefore, hold that the High Court was in error in issuing the impugned direction against the appellants by their judgement under appeal."

40. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Swetambar Sthanakwasi Jain Samiti and another vs. Alleged Committee of Management Sri R.J.I. College, Agra and others, reported in (1996) 3 SCC 11 in paragraph 8, the following was observed: -

"We are of the view that the High Court not only fell into patent error but also exceeded its jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. Though the jurisdiction or the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution is not confined to issuing the prerogative writs, there is a consensus of opinion that the High Court will not permit this extraordinary jurisdiction to be converted into a civil court under the ordinary law. When a suit is pending between the two parties the interim and miscellaneous orders passed by the trial court - against which the remedy of appeal or revision is available - cannot be challenged by way of a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. Where the civil court has the jurisdiction to try a suit, the High Court cannot convert itself into an appellate or revisional court and interfere with the interim/miscellaneous orders of the civil court. The writ jurisdiction is meant for doing justice between the parties where it cannot be done in any other forum."

41. Yet the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Roshina T. vs. Abdul Ajeez K.T. and others, (2019) 2 SCC 329 in paragraphs 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18 and 19, has held as under: -

"9. In our considered opinion, the writ petition filed by Respondent 1 under Articles 226/227 of the Constitution of India against the appellant before the High Court for grant of relief of restoration of the possession of the flat in question was not maintainable and the same ought to have been dismissed in limine as being not maintainable. In other words, the High Court ought to have declined to entertain the writ petition in exercise of extraordinary jurisdiction under Articles 226/227 of the Constitution for grant of reliefs claimed therein. e 10. It is not in dispute that the reliefs for which the writ petition was filed by Respondent 1 herein against the appellant pertained to possession of the flat. It is also not in dispute that one Civil Suit No. 807 of 2014 between the appellant and Respondent 1 in relation to the flat in question for grant of injunction was pending in the Court of Munsif at Kozhikode. It is also not in dispute that the appellant and Respondent

1 are private individuals and both are claiming their rights of ownership and possession over the flat in question on various factual grounds.

11. In the light of such background facts arising in the case, we are of the considered opinion that the filing of the writ petition by Respondent 1 herein against the appellant herein under Articles 226/227 of the Constitution of India in the High Court, out of which this appeal arises, was wholly misconceived.

12. The question as to who is the owner of the flat in question, whether Respondent 1 was/is in possession of the flat and, if so, from which date, how and in what circumstances, he claimed to be in its possession, whether his possession could be regarded as legal or not qua its real owner, etc. were some of the material questions which arose for consideration in the writ petition.

13. These questions, in our view, were pure questions of fact and could be answered one way or the other only by the civil court in a properly constituted civil suit and on the basis of the evidence adduced by the parties but not in a writ petition filed under Article 226 of the Constitution by the High Court.

14. It has been consistently held by this Court that a regular suit is the appropriate remedy for settlement of the disputes relating to property rights between the private persons. The remedy under Article 226 of the Constitution shall not be available except where violation of some statutory duty on the part of statutory authority is alleged. In such cases, the Court has jurisdiction to issue appropriate directions to the authority concerned. It is held that the High Court cannot allow its constitutional jurisdiction to be used for deciding disputes, for which remedies under the general law, civil or criminal are available. This Court has held that it is not intended to replace the ordinary remedies by way of a civil suit or application available to an aggrieved person. The jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution being special and extraordinary, it should not be exercised casually or lightly on mere asking by the litigant.

15. In our view, the writ petition to claim such relief was not, therefore, legally permissible. It, therefore, deserved dismissal in limine on the ground of availability of an alternative remedy of filing a civil suit by Respondent 1 (writ petitioner) in the civil court.

16. We cannot, therefore, concur with the reasoning and the conclusion arrived at by the High Court when it unnecessarily went into all the questions of fact arising in the case on the basis of factual pleadings in detail (43 pages) and recorded a factual finding that it was Respondent 1 (writ petitioner) who was in possession of the flat and, therefore, he be restored with his possession of the flat by the appellant.

17. In our opinion, the High Court, therefore, while so directing exceeded its extraordinary jurisdiction conferred under Article 226 of the Constitution. Indeed, the High Court in granting such relief, had virtually converted the writ petition into a civil suit and itself to a civil court. In our view, it was not permissible.

18. The learned counsel for Respondent 1, however, strenuously urged that the impugned order[1] does not call for any interference because the High Court has proceeded to decide the writ petition on admitted facts.

19. We do not agree with the submissions of the learned counsel for Respondent 1 for the reasons that first there did exist a dispute between the appellant and Respondent 1 as to who was in possession of the flat in question at the relevant time; second, a dispute regarding possession of the said flat between the two private individuals could be decided only by the civil court in civil suit or by the criminal court in Section 145 CrPC proceedings but not in the writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution."

42. Moreso, this Court finds that under Article 226 of the Constitution of India disputed questions cannot be gone into, particularly in view of the fact that though one fraction is coming up with a stand that its land has been encroached upon by other fraction, but the other fraction is disputing the same. Meaning thereby the disputed questions of fact arise, which are in fact of complex nature, which require determination through oral and documentary evidence, which is not permissible in writ jurisdiction.

43. In the case of Punjab National Bank and others vs. Atmanand Singh, reported in (2020) 5 SCC 256 in paragraphs 22, 23, 24 and 25, the Hon'ble Apex Court has held as under: -

"22. We restate the above position that when the petition raises questions of fact of complex nature, such as in the present case, which may for their determination require oral and documentary evidence to be produced and proved by the concerned party and also because the relief sought is merely for ordering a refund of money, the High Court should be loath in entertaining such writ petition and instead must relegate the parties to remedy of a civil suit. Had it been a case where material facts referred to in the writ petition are admitted facts or indisputable facts, the High Court may be justified in examining the claim of the writ petitioner on its own merits in accordance with law.

23. In the next reported decision relied upon by the respondent No. 1 in Babubhai (supra), no doubt this Court opined that if need be, it would be open to the High Court to cross-examine the affiants. We may usefully refer to paragraph 10 of the said decision, which reads thus: - (SCC pp.715-16)

"10. It is not necessary for this case to express an opinion on the point as to whether the various provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure apply to petitions under Article 226 of the Constitution. Section 141 of the Code, to which reference has been made, makes it clear that the provisions of the Code in regard to suits shall be followed in all proceedings in any court of civil jurisdiction as far as it can be made applicable. The words "as far as it can be made applicable" make it clear that, in applying the various provisions of the Code to proceedings other than those of a suit, the court must take into account the nature of those proceedings and the relief sought. The object of Article 226 is to provide a quick and inexpensive remedy to aggrieved parties. Power has consequently been vested in the High Courts to issue to any person or authority, including in appropriate cases any government, within the jurisdiction of the High Court, orders or writs, including writs in the nature of habeas corpus, mandamus, prohibition, quo warranto and certiorari. It is plain that if the procedure of a suit had also to be adhered to in the case of writ petitions, the entire purpose of having a quick and inexpensive remedy would be defeated. A writ petition under Article 226, it needs to be emphasised, is essentially different from a suit and it would be incorrect to assimilate and incorporate the procedure of a suit into the proceedings of a petition under Article 226. The High Court is not deprived of its jurisdiction to entertain a petition under Article 226 merely because in considering the petitioner's right of relief, questions of fact may fall to be determined. In a petition under Article 226 the High Court has jurisdiction to try issues both of fact and law. Exercise of the jurisdiction is no doubt discretionary, but the discretion must be exercised on sound judicial principles. When the petition raises complex questions of fact, which may for their determination require oral evidence to be taken, and on that account the High Court is of the view that the dispute should not appropriately be tried in a writ petition, the High Court may decline to try a petition (see Gunwant Kaur v. Bhatinda Municipality [(1969) 3 SCC 769]. If, however, on consideration of the nature of the controversy, the High Court decides, as in the present case, that it should go into a disputed question of fact and the discretion exercised by the High Court appears to be sound and in conformity with judicial principles, this Court would not interfere in appeal with the order made by the High Court in this respect."

This decision has noticed Smt. Gunwant Kaur (supra), which had unmistakably held that when the petition raises complex questions of facts, the High Court may decline to try a petition. It is further observed that if on consideration of the nature of the controversy, the High Court decides to go into the disputed questions of fact, it would be free to do so on sound judicial principles. Despite the factual matrix in the present case, the High Court not only ventured to entertain the writ petition, but dealt with the same in a casual manner without adjudicating the disputed questions of fact by taking into account all aspects of the matter. The manner in which the Court disposed of the writ petition, by no stretch of imagination, can qualify the test of discretion having been exercised on sound judicial principles.

24. In Hyderabad Commercials (supra), on which reliance has been placed, it is clear from paragraph 4 of the said decision that the Bank had admitted its mistake and liability, but took a specious plea about the manner in which the transfer was effected. On that stand, the Court proceeded to grant relief to the appellant therein, the account holder. In the present case, however, the concerned officials of the Bank have denied of being party to the stated agreement and have expressly asserted that the said document is forged and fabricated. It is neither a case of admitted liability nor to proceed against the appellant Bank on the basis of indisputable facts.

25. Even the decision in ABL International Ltd. (supra) will be of no avail to the respondent No. 1. This decision has referred to all the earlier decisions and in paragraph 28, the Court observed as follows:-

"28. However, while entertaining an objection as to the maintainability of a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, the court should bear in mind the fact that the power to issue prerogative writs under Article 226 of the Constitution is plenary in nature and is not limited by any other provisions of the Constitution. The High Court having regard to the facts of the case, has a discretion to entertain or not to entertain a writ petition. The Court has imposed upon itself certain restrictions in the exercise of this power. (See Whirlpool Corpn. v. Registrar of Trade Marks [(1998) 8 SCC

1]) And this plenary right of the High Court to issue a prerogative writ will not normally be exercised by the Court to the exclusion of other available remedies unless such action of the State or its instrumentality is arbitrary and unreasonable so as to violate the constitutional mandate of Article 14 or for other valid and legitimate reasons, for which the Court thinks it necessary to exercise the said jurisdiction."

44. Applying the principles of law, so culled out in the above noted decision, inescapable conclusion stands drawn that once the parties are claiming their right before the Civil Court while taking recourse to the remedies as available under law then proceedings under Article 226 of the Constitution of India are not maintainable, as the only recourse open to the aggrieved party is to approach the civil court in the pending suit for redressal of its grievances.

45. Nonetheless, there is an additional factor, which needs to be noticed at this stage which is relatable to the fact that the question as to who is in the possession and as to what is the extent a matter is to be decided. This obviously presupposes necessary exercise which is to be undertaken while recording finding with respect to not only the three golden principles being prima facie case, balance of convenience and irreparable loss, but also with regard to the factual possession, which exists on the site in order to determine as to which of the parties either plaintiff or defendant is in possession. The aforesaid aspect of the matter was noticed by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Kishore Kumar Khaitan and another vs. Praveen Kumar Singh, reported in (2006) 3 SCC 312, wherein in paragraphs 4, 5 and 10, the Hon'ble Apex Court as observed as under: -

"4. It is the case of the plaintiff that the suit property was leased to him by the first defendant on 17.4.1998 and that the transaction was evidenced by writing in the letter-head of Khaitan Paper Machine Limited owned by the first defendant. According to the plaintiff, there was an earlier litigation between the first defendant and one Shivanand Mishra, Shivanand Mishra claiming a tenancy over a portion of the present suit premises and at the instance of the present plaintiff, that suit was compromised, as part of the compromise a sum of Rs.2 lakhs was paid to Shivanand Mishra and Shivanand Mishra gave up his claim of tenancy. According to the plaintiff, the said sum of Rs.2 lakhs which was paid to Shivanand Mishra was advanced by him to the first defendant and it was in consideration of the same and the help rendered by the plaintiff in the matter of settling the dispute with Shivanand Mishra, that the first defendant agreed to handover possession of the suit premises to the plaintiff immediately after recovering possession from Shivanand Mishra and it was in furtherance of the promise that the tenancy agreement was executed on 17.4.1998. Thus, the plaintiff claimed that he had been put in possession of the suit property as a tenant. In derogation of the tenancy thus created in his favour, the defendants were attempting to dispossess the plaintiff forcibly and it was in that situation that the plaintiff was filing the suit for a declaration of his tenancy rights over the suit property and for a perpetual injunction restraining the defendants from interfering with his possession as a tenant. As already noticed, though the plaintiff filed an application under Order XXXIX Rules 1 and 2 of the Code for an interim injunction restraining the defendants from interfering with his possession, the trial court did not pass an ad interim order of injunction, but only issued notices to the defendants calling upon them to show cause why the prayer for injunction shall not be granted. It is against this refusal of ad interim injunction ex parte, that the plaintiff filed the appeal before the District Court in which, on 19.6.1998, the Additional District Judge passed an ad interim ex parte order directing both the parties to maintain status quo.

5. It is necessary to notice at this stage that in an original suit of this nature, it was not appropriate for the Additional District Judge to pass an order directing the parties to maintain status quo, without indicating what the status quo was. If he was satisfied that the appellant before him had made out a prima facie case for an ad interim ex parte injunction and the balance of convenience justified the grant of such an injunction, it was for him to have passed such an order of injunction. But simply directing the parties to maintain status quo without indicating what the status quo was, is not an order that should be passed at the initial stage of a litigation, especially when one court had found no reason to grant an ex parte order of injunction and the appellate court was dealing with only the limited question whether an ad interim order of injunction should or should not have been granted by the trial court, since the appeal was only against the refusal of an ad interim ex parte order of injunction and the main application for injunction pending suit, was still pending before the trial court itself. Therefore, we are prima facie of the view that the Additional District Judge ought not to have passed an equivocal order like the one passed in the circumstances of the case. But of course, that aspect has relevance only to the extent that before ordering an interim mandatory injunction or refusing it, the court has first to consider whether the plaintiff has proved that he was in possession on the date of suit and on the date of the order and he had been dispossessed the next day. Unless a clear prima facie finding that the plaintiff was in possession on those dates is entered, an order for interim mandatory injunction could not have been passed and any such order passed would be one without jurisdiction.

10. It is seen that after the remand, the parties produced some evidence. The Additional District Court set out the arguments on the side of both the parties. Then it referred to certain decisions cited by the parties. It observed that there was at least some prima facie foundation in the claim of the plaintiff that the tenancy agreement was executed by defendant No.1 and whether it was concocted out of a signed blank letter head and whether it had legal force could only be decided in the suit. It did not discuss the oral evidence that was taken pursuant to the order of remand and merely stated that it has perused the evidence. After referring to some cash memos and money receipts produced by the plaintiff, it held that they prima facie showed that the plaintiff was in possession. Then it abruptly observed that at least prima facie it is proved that the plaintiff was in possession of the suit property on 19.6.1998, the date of the passing of the order of status quo. It stated that as such his possession must be restored and it was a fit case where the court should invoke its inherent jurisdiction to order restoration of possession."

46. The above noted judgment itself clearly mandates that the courts while granting temporary injunction under Order 39 Rules 1 and 2 of CPC are not only to adhere to the commonly known legal principles of prima facie case, balance of convenience and irreparable loss, but also to take note of the fact that while directing maintenance of status quo, finding should be recorded as to what would be the status quo while also reciting and recording the satisfaction that too prima facie with relation to the basis as well as the factors, which entitled the plaintiff to be bestowed with the benefit of the status quo. To put it otherwise, simplicitor status quo is not permissible in law, however, not only satisfaction is to be attached while granting status quo, basis has also to be indicated.

47. Now, a question arises whether in the present proceedings, adjudication can be done with relation to disputed question of facts involved when one party asserts that the other party is in excess of the possession of the land vis-a-vis the area earmarked in the sale deed and the other party is claiming that it has not encroached upon the land and constructions of the other party. Allegations also find their presence that the State and its functionaries have delivered excess possession. In the opinion of the Court, writ jurisdiction is not the appropriate remedy for resolving the said disputes as the parties can assert their claim in the pending suits.

48. In view of the provisions contained under Order 1 Rule 10 of the C.P.C. 1908, it is always open to respondent nos. 4 and 7 in the leading writ petition and the plaintiff in the Original Suit No. 7 of 2009 to file appropriate application for not only impleading the State and instrumentalities but also preferring appropriate application under Order 6 Rule 17 of C.P.C. for amending plaint while seeking relief of recovery of possession of their claimed land/premises. As a matter of fact, the plantiff is the dominus litis of the suit.

49. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Ramesh Hirachand Kundanwal Vs. Municipal Corporation Greater Bombay and others reported in (1992) 2 SCC 524 in paragraphs 5, 6, 7 and 8, observed as under:

"It was argued that the Court cannot direct addition of parties against the wishes of the plaintiff who cannot be compelled to proceed against a person against whom he does not claim any relief. Plaintiff is no doubt dominus litis and is not bound to sue every possible adverse claimant in the same suit. He may choose to implead only those persons as defendants against whom he wishes to proceed though under Order I Rule 3, to avoid multiplicity of suit and needless expenses, all persons against whom the right to relief is alleged to exist may be joined as defendants. However, the Court may at any stage of the suit direct addition of parties. A party can be joined as defendent even though the plaintiff does not think that he has any cause of action against him. Rule 10 specifically provides that it is open to the Court to add at any stage of the suit a necessary party or a person whose presence before the Court may be necessary in order to enable the Court to effectually and completely adjudicate upon and settle all the questions involved in the suit.

Sub-rule(2) of Rule 10 gives a wide discretion to the Court to meet every case of defect of parties and is not affected by the inaction of the plaintiff to bring the necessary parties on record. The question of impleadment of a party has to be decided on the touch stone of Order I Rule 10 which provides that only a necessary or a proper party may be added. A necessary party is one without whom no order can be made effectively. A proper party is one in whose absence an effective order can be made but whose presence is necessary for a complete and final decision on the question involved in the proceeding. The addition of parties is generally not a question of initial jurisdiction of the Court but of a judicial discretion which has to be exercised in view of all the facts and circumstances of a particular case.

The respondents do not seriously dispute the position that the second respondent is not a necessary party to the suit in the sense that without their presence an effective order cannot be passed. However, they support the view that respondent No. 2 is a proper party whose presence is necessary for a complete adjudication on the controversy. In the light of the clear language of the Rule, it is not open to the appellant to contend that a person cannot be added as defendant even in a case where his presence is necessary to enable the Court to decide the matter effectively.

The case really turns on the true construction of the Rule in particular the meaning of the words "whose presence before the Court may be necessary in order to enable the Court effectually and completely to adjudicate upon and settle all the questions involved in the suit." The Court is empowered to join a person whose presence is necessary for the prescribed purpose and cannot under the Rule direct the addition of a person whose presence is not necessary for that purpose. If the intervener has a cause of action against the plaintiff relating to the subject-matter of the existing action, the Court has power to join intervener so as to give effect to the primary object of the order which is to avoid multiplicity of actions."

50. Recently in Civil Appeal No. 5522 to 5523 of 2019, Gurmit Singh Bhatia Vs. Kiran Kant Robinson and others decided on 17.07.2019, the Hon'ble Apex Court in paragarph 5.2, Page 8 has observed as under:

"5.2 An identical question came to be considered before this Court in the case of Kasturi (supra) and applying the principle that the plaintiff is the dominus litis, in the similar facts and circumstances of the case, this Court observed and held that the question of jurisdiction of the court to invoke Order 1 Rule 10 CPC to add a party who is not made a party in the suit by the plaintiff shall not arise unless a party proposed to be added has direct and legal interest in the controversy involved in the suit. It is further observed and held by this Court that two tests are to be satisfied for determining the question who is a necessary party. The tests are - (1) there must be a right to some relief against such party in respect of the controversies involved in the proceedings; (2) no effective decree can be passed in the absence of such party. It is further observed and held that in a suit for specific performance the first test can be formulated is, to determine whether a party is a necessary party there must be a right to the same relief against the party claiming to be a necessary party, relating to the same subject matter involved in the proceedings for specific performance of contract to sell. It is further observed and held by this Court that in a suit for specific performance of the contract, a proper party is a party whose presence is necessary to adjudicate the controversy involved in the suit. It is further observed and held that the parties claiming an independent title and possession adverse to the title of the vendor and not on the basis of the contract, are not proper parties and if such party is impleaded in the suit, the scope of the suit for specific performance shall be enlarged to a suit for title and possession, which is impermissible. It is further observed and held that a third party or a stranger cannot be added in a suit for specific performance, merely in order to find out who is in possession of the contracted property or to avoid multiplicity of the suits. It is further observed and held by this Court that a third party or a stranger to a contract cannot be added so as to convert a suit of one character into a suit of different character. In paragraphs 15 and 16, this Court observed and held as under:

"15. As discussed hereinearlier, whether Respondents 1 and 4 to 11 were proper parties or not, the governing principle for deciding the question would be that the presence of Respondents 1 and 4 to 11 before the court would be necessary to enable it effectually and completely to adjudicate upon and settle all the questions involved in the suit. As noted hereinearlier, in a suit for specific performance of a contract for sale, the issue to be decided is the enforceability of the contract entered into between the appellant and Respondents 2 and 3 and whether contract was executed by the appellant and Respondents 2 and 3 for sale of the contracted property, whether the plaintiffs were ready and willing to perform their part of the contract and whether the appellant is entitled to a decree for specific performance of a contract for sale against Respondents 2 and 3. It is an admitted position that Respondents 1 and 4 to 11 did not seek their addition in the suit on the strength of the contract in respect of which the suit for specific performance of the contract for sale has been filed.

Admittedly, they based their claim on independent title and possession of the contracted property. It is, therefore, obvious as noted hereinearlier that in the event, Respondents 1 and 4 to 11 are added or impleaded in the suit, the scope of the suit for specific performance of the contract for sale shall be enlarged from the suit for specific performance to a suit for title and possession which is not permissible in law. In the case of Vijay Pratap v. Sambhu Saran Sinha [(1996) 10 SCC 53] this Court had taken the same view which is being taken by us in this judgment as discussed above. This Court in that decision clearly held that to decide the right, title and interest in the suit property of the stranger to the contract is beyond the scope of the suit for specific performance of the contract and the same cannot be turned into a regular title suit. Therefore, in our view, a third party or a stranger to the contract cannot be added so as to convert a suit of one character into a suit of different character. As discussed above, in the event any decree is passed against Respondents 2 and 3 and in favour of the appellant for specific performance of the contract for sale in respect of the contracted property, the decree that would be passed in the said suit, obviously, cannot bind Respondents 1 and 4 to 11. It may also be observed that in the event, the appellant obtains a decree for specific performance of the contracted property against Respondents 2 and 3, then, the Court shall direct execution of deed of sale in favour of the appellant in the event Respondents 2 and 3 refusing to execute the deed of sale and to obtain possession of the contracted property he has to put the decree in execution. As noted hereinearlier, since Respondents 1 and 4 to 11 were not parties in the suit for specific performance of a contract for sale of the contracted property, a decree passed in such a suit shall not bind them and in that case, Respondents 1 and 4 to 11 would be at liberty either to obstruct execution in order to protect their possession by taking recourse to the relevant provisions of CPC, if they are available to them, or to file an independent suit for declaration of title and possession against the appellant or Respondent 3. On the other hand, if the decree is passed in favour of the appellant and sale deed is executed, the stranger to the contract being Respondents 1 and 4 to 11 have to be sued for taking possession if they are in possession of the decretal property.

16. That apart, from a plain reading of the expression used in sub-rule (2) Order 1 Rule 10 CPC "all the questions involved in the suit" it is abundantly clear that the legislature clearly meant that the controversies raised as between the parties to the litigation must be gone into only, that is to say, controversies with regard to the right which is set up and the relief claimed on one side and denied on the other and not the controversies which may arise between the plaintiff- appellant and the defendants inter se or questions between the parties to the suit and a third party. In our view, therefore, the court cannot allow adjudication of collateral matters so as to convert a suit for specific performance of contract for sale into a complicated suit for title between the plaintiff -appellant on one hand and Respondents 2 and 3 and Respondents 1 and 4 to 11 on the other. This addition, if allowed, would lead to a complicated litigation by which the trial and decision of serious questions which are totally outside the scope of the suit would have to be gone into. As the decree of a suit for specific performance of the contract for sale, if passed, cannot, at all, affect the right, title and interest of Respondents 1 and 4 to 11 in respect of the contracted property and in view of the detailed discussion made hereinearlier, Respondents 1 and 4 to 11 would not, at all, be necessary to be added in the instant suit for specific performance of the contract for sale."

That thereafter, after observing and holding as above, this Court further observed that in view of the principle that the plaintiff who has filed a suit for specific performance of the contract to sell is the dominus litis, he cannot be forced to add parties against whom, he does not want to fight unless it is a compulsion of the rule of law. In the aforesaid decision in the case of Kasturi(supra), it was contended on behalf of the third parties that they are in possession of the suit property on the basis of their independent title to the same and as the plaintiff had also claimed the relief of possession in the plaint and the issue with regard to possession is common to the parties including the third parties, and therefore, the same can be settled in the suit itself. It was further submitted on behalf of the third parties that to avoid the multiplicity of the suits, it would be appropriate to join them as party defendants. This Court did not accept the aforesaid submission by observing that merely in order to find out who is in possession of the contracted property, a third party or a stranger to the contract cannot be added in a suit for specific performance of the contract to sell because they are not necessary parties as there was no semblance of right to some relief against the party to the contract. It is further observed and held that in a suit for specific performance of the contract to sell the lis between the vendor and the persons in whose favour agreement to sell is executed shall only be gone into and it is also not open to the Court to decide whether any other parties have acquired any title and possession of the contracted property. It is further observed and held by this Court in the aforesaid decision that if the plaintiff who has filed a suit for specific performance of the contract to sell, even after receiving the notice of claim of title and possession by other persons (not parties to the suit and even not parties to the agreement to sell for which a decree for specific performance is sought) does not want to join them in the pending suit, it is always done at the risk of the plaintiff because he cannot be forced to join the third parties as party -defendants in such suit. The aforesaid observations are made by this Court considering the principle that plaintiff is the dominus litis and cannot be forced to add parties against whom he does not want to fight unless there is a compulsion of the rule of law. Therefore, considering the decision of this Court in the case of Kasturi (supra), the appellant cannot be impleaded as a defendant in the suit filed by the original plaintiffs for specific performance of the contract between the original plaintiffs and original defendant no.1 and in a suit for specific performance of the contract to which the appellant is not a party and that too against the wish of the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs cannot be forced to add party against whom he does not want to fight. If he does so, in that case, it will be at the risk of the plaintiffs."

51. In view of the aforesaid legal proposition, it is explicitly clear that respondent nos. 4 to 7 being the plaintiffs in Original Suit No. 7 of 2019 are dominus litis and it is always open for them to make appropriate application to implead State and its instrumentalities against whom cause of action has arisen, coupled with the fact that there action tantamounted to legal injury but also to file appropriate application seeking amendment in plaint and in the reliefs in that regard.

52. Cumulatively analyzing the present case from four corners of law, this Court finds that the present proceedings which is being sought to be invoked for the direction to grant relief in toto cannot be proceeded with in the factual backdrop of the fact that the parties being the petitioner and the respondents are themselves litigating their legal right before the competent court of law while drawing proceeding in civil suit and the proceedings admittedly are pending before the competent Civil Court. The injuctions being operative and on top of it serious disputed questions of fact are involved which not only requires deeper scrutiny into factual aspects but also requires recording of oral and documentary evidence which in the present proceedings is not permissible in view of the contested claim of the parties.

53. Accordingly, both the writ petitions are dismissed at the stage leaving it open to the parties to get their rights adjudicated in the respective suit so preferred by them, while preferring appropriate applications for impleadment of the parties and seeking amendment in the plaint or in the written statement as the case may be as per law. This Court has no reason to disbelieve that in case the parties prefer impleadment application in consonance with Order 1 Rule 10 of CPC and amendment under Order 6 Rule 17 of CPC for amending their pleadings, then the same shall be decided with utmost expedition, obviously subject to the roaster so maintained by the court below and subject to any legal impediment.

55. Passing of the order today may not be construed to an expression that this Court has gone into the merit of the lis, as it is always open for the competent court of law to decide the matter without being influenced or obsessed by any of the observations made hereinabove.

THE HON'BLE AJIT KUMAR, J.

Writ-C No. 25139 of 2022

Arun Mishra ...Petitioner
Versus
C.I.C., New Delhi & Anr. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Sri Arun Mishra

Counsel for the Respondents:
Sri Ashish Mishra, Sri Chandan Sharma

A. Allahabad High Court Rules, 1952 – Ch. XXII, R. 1 – Allahabad High Court (Right to Information) Rules, 2006 – Right to information – Information regarding procedure of listing as fresh case was sought – Two cases in respect of which information was sought for, were never directed to be listed as fresh after they were first listed on board as fresh – No status-information from the website was obtained – Effect – Held, Orders of this Court are available on the official website of the High Court which can be obtained by any person by having access to the Court's official website – Rules do provide answer to the query made by the petitioner – High Court and Appellate Authority rightly rejected the application for information. (Para 26, 27 and 28)

B. Duty of the Advocate – Procedure as provided under the Rules, duty to know it – In the absence of knowledge, seeking of the information under RTI Act – Permissibility – Held, it should be duty of the every advocate of the court concerned to know procedure of presenting cases and getting cases listed on board as rules of such Court provide for. It can only be termed as unfortunate that a lawyer himself would not go through the rules and would find it more convenient to seek information under Right to Information Act, 2005 for no justifiable reason. (Para 27)

Writ petition dismissed. (E-1)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajit Kumar, J.)

1. Heard Sri Arun Mishra, the petitioner in person, Sri Chandan Sharma, learned counsel appearing for respondent no. 2.

2. The petitioner before this Court claims to be a practising Advocate of this Court had presented writ petition in the category of Writ-C before registry of this Court to be placed on board before a bench concerned as a fresh case, about 4 and half years ago. The registry allotted category and number to the petition as Writ C No. 59649 of 2017 with party name Arun Mishra as petitioner and State of U.P. and one more authority as respondents. This petition was presented through counsel Mr. Mahabir Yadav and the matter was placed on board before Division Bench of this Court as fresh on 15.12.2017 and after recording a short order, this matter was directed to come up for hearing on 19th January, 2018. The order passed by Division Bench on 15.12.2017 runs as under:-

"Mr. D.S. Yadav, learned counsel holding for Mr. Mahabir Yadav, learned counsel for the petitioner, seeks short adjournment. Mr. N.I. Jafri, learned counsel submits that a caveat filed by him on behalf of respondent No.2 has been wrongly reported, though it was filed in some other case. In the circumstances, the Registry is directed to delete his name as Advocate for respondent No. 2. His caveat is restored to file.

Petition to come up for hearing on 19.1.2018. "

3. The petitioner seems to have presented another petition with the registry in the category of Public Interest Litigation to be presented before Division Bench as per roster provided. The registry allotted code/ category and number to the writ petition as Public Interest Litigation 'PIL' No. 940 of 2019 with party name Arun Mishra as petitioner v. State of U.P. and Other four authorities as respondents. This petition was also presented through Counsel Sri Mahabir Yadav. This matter came up before Division Bench on 26.4.2019 as fresh and giving time to the learned Standing Counsel to have instructions in the matter, it was fixed 3rd May, 2019. The order passed by Division Bench dated 26.4.2019 runs as under:

"As requested, put up this matter on 3.5.2019 to enable learned Standing Counsel to seek instructions."

4. This matter bearing Writ-C No. 59649 of 2017 as per status report of the case provided under Chapter VIII Rule 30 of the Allahabad High Court Rules, 1952 (hereinafter referred to as Rules of the Court) shows that matter was listed on 19th January, 2018 and was passed over. Similarly, status report in respect of Public Interest Litigation No. 940 of 2019 shows that the matter was listed for orders on 3rd May, 2019 and then 23rd March, 2021, but was passed over. Both the matters have not been listed thereafter. Since the matters were not listed thereafter as fresh matters, the petitioner according to the averments made in the writ petition tried to get them listed as fresh, but could not succeed nor, was he able to know the listing rules and so he moved an application under Right to Information Act, 2005 read with Allahabad High Court (Right to Information) Rules, 2006 and two questions were made by him of which he needed reply :

"Question No. 1:- Procedure/rule to list (as fresh) the WPIL no. 940/2019 and writ petition no. (c) 59649/17 for hearing of Hon'ble High Court, Allahabad.

Question No. 2:- Number of cause list procured on 02.08.2019 to be distributed to Advocates by this Hon'ble High Court."

5. Petitioner was furnished with information as per the Allahabad High Court (Right to Information) Rules, 2006 in respect of question no. 1 that desired information could not be provided as it was enumerated in detail in Allahabad High Court Rules, 1952. It was further replied that the information sought by the applicant was not covered under the definition of "Information' as provided under Section 2(f) of the Right to Information Act, 2005. The petitioner/applicant was further suggested to visit official website to get further information regarding question no. 2. A detail reply given to the petitioner is reproduced as under:

"The applicant be requested to deposit the requisite fee (in the form of Demand Draft) as provided under Rule 3 and Amended Rule 4 of the Allahabad High Court (Right to Information) Rules, 2006 are stated as under:-

Rule 3: Every application shall be made for one particular item of information only.

Rule 4: Each application shall be accompanied by cash or draft or pay order drawn in favour of the Registrar General, High Court, Allahabad, or District Judge of the concerned District Court as the case might be, at the following rules:

(i) Rs. 250/- if the requested information is related to tenders documents/bids/quotations/business contract or requested information is in the form of diskettes, floppies, tapes, video cassettes or in any other electronic mode or through printouts where such information is store in any electronic form.

(ii) Rs. 50/- if information is obtained other than (I) above."

6. The petitioner/applicant not satisfied with reply furnished to him under Right to Information Act, preferred appeal before the Central Information Commission and after conducting hearing in the matter and noting down written submission furnished to it by Registrar of the High Court of the Commission took following decision.

" On analysis of the facts of the case, it is noted that there is no legal infirmity in the reply furnished by the Respondent because information about general listing is available in public domain viz. The Allahabad High Court Rules. The RTI Act does not cast any obligation on the public officials to interpret the information available in public domain and provide customized replies to the information seeker. In the event the Appellant seeks information to get his matter listed, he must approach the concerned Registry to obtain case specific information, outside the purview of the RTI Act. Thus where there is an alternate efficacious established process of law available for seeking such information, public officials of the High Court cannot be compelled to answer such queries under the RTI Act. No further action is deemed necessary in this case.

The appeal is disposed of accordingly."

7. The petitioner who has appeared in person has challenged the decision of the appellate authority dated 28th September, 2021, basically relating to reply given to question no. 1. The petitioner submits before this Court that as far as reply to question no. 2 is concerned, he is not aggrieved. With regard to question no. 1 he submits that correct and true reply/information has not been furnished by the authority and even appellate authority failed to appreciate it and therefore, the authorities, were not justified in just referring to the rules. According to him High Court Rules do not provide for any procedure for listing of fresh matters as query was made, inasmuch as on the official website of the High Court, there is no such information available which may have helped the petitioner /applicant in getting the correct information about listing procedure of fresh cases of the High Court and hence he submits that the order needed to be set aside directing Information Officer of the High Court to furnish true and correct information qua query made by him in respect of listing of fresh cases which are filed/presented before registry of this Court.

8. Per contra, Sri Chandan Sharma, learned counsel appearing for respondent no. 2, namely Central Public Information Officer, High Court of Judicature at Allahabad, submits that Allahabad High Court Rules, 1952 contain necessary rules of procedure for presentation of fresh matters with the registry and then before this Court as per roster assigned to the benches by the Chief Justice and, therefore, it cannot be said that the High Court Rules are silent about the same. He further submits that as far as fresh matters are concerned when they are laid before the concerned bench by the registry and if they are taken up and orders are passed then status to the cases gets assigned as per orders passed. If the concerned bench directs a particular case to continue as fresh, then such a matter is listed as fresh and if no such order is passed there is simple direction to list a case whether for order or admission or hearing then such a case would get the category of listed matters to be listed on the date fixed or as per routine. He further explains that once the matter has gone on the list, which is called as "Cause List' published under the authority of Hon'ble the Chief Justice, then such matters come on the date fixed by the Court and in the event date is not fixed in a particular matter then matter would be listed in ordinary course of listing.

9. He next submits that in order to bring out a case from ordinary course of listing, the petitioner or for that matter respondent in a case has every right to move a miscellaneous application before the bench concerned which has the roster of a particular category of cases for listing matter out of turn and direction issued by Court then matter is listed accordingly. Once the Court passes judicial order of listing of case on the cause list of this Court on a particular day or date then such case is listed on that day or date.

10. It is argued by learned counsel appearing for the High Court that there is a computer generated status information system developed in the High Court and under Chapter VIII Rule 30 of the Rules of the High Court, any person who is a party to the petition or a counsel can obtain such information by depositing the requisite fee and then computer generated slip giving correct status of the case whether fresh or listed matter in detail. However, it is argued, summary details are also available on official website of the High Court of each cases which can be obtained by any person having access to the official website of the High Court. He further submits that there is nothing confidential about status of a case whether it is a fresh or a listed matter.

11. It is also argued by learned counsel appearing for the High Court that petitioner before this Court has nowhere stated in the entire writ petition that he ever applied to get status of his cases in respect of which he had a complaint that cases were not being listed on board as fresh. He further submits that orders dated 15.12.2017 passed in Writ C No. 59649 of 2017 and order dated 26th April, 2019 passed in Public Interest Litigation 'PIL' no. 940 of 2019 go on to show that these matters were never directed to be listed as fresh matters and in such view of the matter these matters could not be listed as fresh, therefore, query made by the petitioner in respect of these two cases taking them as fresh was absolutely misplaced. However, in defence of the reply given to the petitioner/ applicant, he submits that Rules of the High Court since provided for every such information in detail as to how the matter to be presented before the registry to be placed before the Court and how the application can be filed to get the case listed otherwise in ordinary listing, no further information was required to be given to the petitioner and, therefore, information furnished by the High Court was sufficient and so the order passed by the appellate authority and reason assigned therein cannot be faulted with.

12. Having heard learned counsel for the respective parties and their arguments raised across the bar and having gone through the pleadings made in the writ petition, information furnished to the petitioner/applicant by the Central Public Information Officer of the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad dated 07th September, 2019, the order of the appellate authority qua decision made therein two points clearly emerge for consideration:

1. Whether petitioners' two cases in respect of which he wanted to have information regarding listing of fresh cases, information sought for was correct one and relevant to his complaint ?

2. whether rules of the Court are themselves sufficient being codified rules as they provided for detail procedures for the cases to be listed on board and no specific information was needed additionally to be furnished.

In so far as first point is concerned, from the perusal of the two orders that have been quoted hereinabove in this judgment it clearly transpires that these two cases were never directed to be listed as fresh matters. Once it is a fact admitted on record that these two cases were never directed to be listed as fresh, it was out of question to list those cases as fresh on board.

13. The only issue arises how the matter to be listed. The status shows that the matters were initially listed on 19th January, 2018 and 3rd May, 2019 respectively. Public Interest Litigation Writ Petition was further listed for admission 23rd March, 2021, it appears in its ordinary course by roster but thereafter case was not listed. Now question, therefore, is, what petitioner would be doing if these cases were not on board before the concerned bench.

14. Sri Chandan Sharma has relied upon Chapter VI Rule 6 of the High Court Rules, 1952 which provides for cause list to be proposed.

15. Before coming to the above, I would first refer to Rule 5 as follows:

"Subject to the directions of the Chief Justice, the Registrar shall cause to be published from time to time a list of all cases ready and likely to be put up for hearing."

16. Now Rule 6 provides as follows:

"the Registrar shall, subject to such directions as the Chief Justice may give from time to time, cause to be prepared a cause list for each day on which the Court sits containing lists of cases which may be heard by the different Benches of the Court. The List shall also state the hour at which and the room in which each Bench shall sit."

17. Chapter VI Rule 8 provides thus:

" Case in which a date is fixed- A case in which a date has been fixed for hearing shall, so far as possible, be placed in the Cause List immediately after miscellaneous and part-heard case."

18. Chapter VIII Rule 33 provides for list of cases out of turn Chapter VIII Rule 33 of the High Court Rules, 1952 is reproduced hereunder:

"Certain applications to be laid before Chief Justice for orders.- An application for the expediting of the hearing of a case or for listing a case out of turn or for the removal of a case to be tried and determined by the Court under Rule 4 or for the withdrawal of a case under Art. 228 of the Constitution shall be laid before the Chief Justice in respect of any other Judge or a Bench nominated by the Chief Justice in respect of any case or class of cases] for orders."

19. The provisions that are quoted hereinabove go on to indicate that in general rules provide for preparation of cause list in which cases are listed on board before particular benches. Interpretation would be that registry would be listing a case ordinarily when it is ready may be for order or admission or hearing and then as per roster under Rule 6. Rule 8 provides listing of those cases also in which date has been fixed. Chapter VIII Rule 33 of the Rules of the High Court, 1952 since provides for listing of hearing cases out of turn then those cases shall also be listed in the cause list in the event orders are passed by the concerned respective benches on application being moved in that behalf for hearing of such cases. Rules also provide for adjournment of cases on applications or otherwise on mention.

20. Having gone through these rules which lay down comprehensive and exhaustive procedure for listing of matters other than fresh, I find that sufficient guidelines are there for registry to list cases on board and it cannot be said that rules are silent and therefore, information furnished by an information officer of the High Court and decision taken by the appellate authority cannot be said to be sufficient as they referred to rules of the Court for necessary information. As the Rules of the Court are in public domain, therefore, such information shall be taken to be in public domain. Under the circumstances, such information is not required to be especially additionally furnished.

21. In so far as fresh matters are concerned, although question made by the petitioner applicant were misplaced as two cases in respect of which information was sought for those cases were never directed to be listed as fresh after they were first listed on board as fresh before the bench concerned, however, I proceed to deal with this aspect also in the larger interest of litigants and lawyers.

22. Extract of provisions as contained under Rule 1 of Chapter XXII relevant to the controversy is reproduced as under:

"1. Application :- (1) An application for a direction or order or writ under Article 226 B [and Article 227] of the Constitution other than a writ in the nature of habeas corpus shall be made to the Division Bench appointed to receive applications or, on any day on which no such Bench is sitting, to the Judge appointed to receive applications in civil matters. In the latter event the Judge shall direct that the application be laid before a Division Bench for orders:

Provided that an application under Article 226 C[and Article 227] of the Constitution questioning a judgment, decree or order made or purported to be made by revenue Courts including the Board of Revenue arising out of any proceeding under the United Provinces Land Revenue Act, 1901, or the U.P. Tenancy Act 1939, or the Uttar Pradesh Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950, or the Uttar Pradesh Urban Areas Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1956, or the Jaunsar Bawar Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1956, or the Kumaun and Uttar Khand Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1960, or any order or judgment of any authority constituted under the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953 including the Director of Consolidation, shall be presented to a Judge sitting alone and appointed to receive such applications and those already presented to the Division Bench shall be heard by a Single Judge. "

23. A bare reading of the aforesaid provisions as quoted hereinabove, makes it quite explicit that once a matter is presented with registry and relates to a petition under Article 226 of the Constitution , it will be placed before a bench concerned if it is available. Now once matter is placed on board before a bench concerned as fresh, immediately or in cases if daily a bench is available so naturally such a case will be first presented before concerned bench captioned as "Fresh Cases'. However, I must hasten to add that since Rule 6 of Chapter VIII, directs for listing of matter subject to direction of Chief Justice, if any, the Chief Justice has this discretionary power to assign the matter presented before the registry to be placed on board, on different dates as well, looking to the burden of work. It is for the concerned bench to further direct thereafter that a case/ cases to be listed as fresh on a particular date or to be taken upotherwise in general cause list on a date fixed or it can also direct case or cases to be listed after lapse of some time. Left over matters, which could not be heard do continue as fresh cases on board for want of specific orders.

24. Similarly again the procedure relating for presentation of appeals and applications and other matters have been prescribed under Chapter XI of the Rules of the Court. These appeals and applications are presented before the Court for admission so procedure is same that they are to be presented in the category of fresh cases, when they are presented and placed on board and when they are further directed to be listed their status will be governed by the order that may be passed by Court concerned. The defective appeals are also listed similarly. In so far original jurisdiction of the Court to try the suit is concerned that is prescribed for under Chapter XV.

25. The suit once filed is heard by a particular bench which is notified for the said purpose by the Chief Justice. Elections petitions are presented before the Registrar under Chapter XV-A of the Rules of the Court, upon representation before the Registrar, election petitioners are registered and numbered and are tried by the bench which is assigned by Chief justice to try such election petition. Similarly the procedure is prescribed for the appeal and application in criminal jurisdiction of the Court under Chapter XVII. First case is filed before the registry and registry places them on board before the Court concerned, which is assigned to it whehter criminal appeals, or revisions and/or applications. Thus a very exhaustive and detailed procedure has been prescribed for hearing of jail appeals.

26. Orders of this Court are available on the official website of the High Court which can be obtained by any person by having access to the Court's official website.

27. In view of above therefore, rules do provide answer to the query made by the petitioner applicant and petitioner applicant having admittedly not studied the rules even though he is a learned Advocate of this Court and he having not obtained status information of the cases concerned as per procedure prescribed, is himself to be blamed. It should be duty of the every advocate of the court concerned to know procedure of presenting cases and getting cases listed on board as rules of such Court provide for. It can only be termed as unfortunate that a lawyer himself would not go through the rules and would find it more convenient to seek information under Right to Information Act, 2005 for no justifiable reason.

28. In view of above and as I have already held that reply by the High Court was justified one and that appellate authority rightly rejected the appeal holding that Rules of the High Court provide such informations, I do not find any force in the present petition and accordingly dismiss the same.

2. Shri Ram & anr. Vs Ist A.D.J. & ors. 2001 (3) SCC 24

3. Pyarelal Vs Shubhendra Pilania (Minor) & ors. 2019 (3) SCC 692

(Delivered by Hon'ble Saral Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Anshu Chaudhary, learned counsel for the petitioners and Sri Aditya Kumar Tripathi, learned counsel for the respondent.

2. The petitioners by means of the present writ petition have assailed the order dated 21.08.1999 passed by the Civil Judge (Senior Division), Etawah in Original Suit No.12 of 1981 (Krishna Lal Dixit Vs. Zila Parishad, Etawah and Others) whereby application 156Ga of the petitioner to abate the suit was rejected, and order dated 24.07.2003 passed by the Additional District Judge, Court No.4, Etawah rejecting the revision of the petitioner.

3. The plaintiff/respondent instituted a suit bearing Original Suit No.12 of 1981 praying for a decree of cancellation of document dated 27.08.1951 and sale deed dated 30.09.1957. The suit was instituted on the ground that the property in dispute was owned by one Sukhi Lal and petitioner was adopted son of Sukhi Lal. It is pleaded that late Sukhi Lal had instituted a suit against plaintiff/respondent before the court of Munsif, Etawah which was dismissed, and the adoption deed of the plaintiff/respondent was held valid. The appeal preferred by late Sukhi Lal against the judgement and decree declaring the adoption deed valid was also dismissed.

4. It is further pleaded that the document dated 27.08.1951 was never executed by late Sukhi Lal and sale deed dated 30.09.1957 was also not executed by late Sukhi Lal in favour of petitioner/defendant. In paragraph 8 of the plaint, it was specifically pleaded that petitioners/defendants got their names recorded in the revenue records by playing fraud whereas they have no concern with the property in dispute and were not entitled to get their names recorded in the revenue record. In paragraph 9 of the plaint, plaintiff/respondent further pleaded that on inquiry it was found that petitioner/defendant got the document dated 30.09.1957 executed by playing fraud. It was further pleaded that no document was executed by late Sukhi Lal on 30.09.1957 and said document is forged and fabricated and was not signed by Sukhi Lal nor he had put any impression of thumb on that document.

5. The suit was contested by petitioners/defendant denying the averments made in the plaint.

6. The petitioners/defendants filed an application 156Ga alleging therein that as the village Umri, Pargana Auraiya, District Etawah in which property in dispute is situated was under consolidation operation, therefore, suit is liable to be abated under Section 5(2)(a) of the U.P. Consolidation and Holdings Act, 1953 (hereinafter referred to as 'Act, 1953') as after the notification under Section 4 of the U.P. Act, 1953 consolidation court is empowered to declare the sale deed void.

7. The aforesaid application was contested by the plaintiff/respondent by filing objection contending inter-alia that after publication of notification under Section 5(2) of the Act, 1953, the suit was instituted. The plaintiff/respondent has stated in the plaint that the documents in question are voidable, and therefore, suit before the court of Civil Judge is maintainable.

8. The trial court vide order dated 21.08.1999 accepted the objection of plaintiff/respondent in holding that documents in question are voidable in nature and held that till the said documents are set aside, the character of these documents would be voidable.

9. A revision preferred by the petitioners/defendant against the order dated 21.08.1999 was rejected by the revision court vide judgement dated 24.07.2003, who affirmed the finding of the trial court.

10. Challenging the aforesaid orders, learned counsel for the petitioners has contended that both the courts below have erred in law in holding that as it was a specific case of the plaintiff/respondent that late Sukhi Lal had not executed the document dated 27.08.1951 and sale deed dated 30.09.1957 nor he had put any impression on the said documents, and petitioner got those documents executed by producing an impostor, therefore, documents are forged and once consolidation operation had started in the area, where property in dispute is situated, the suit for cancellation of sale deed is cognizable by consolidation court and not by civil court. In support of his contention, he has paced reliance upon the judgement of Apex Court in the case of Smt. Dulari Devi Vs. Janardhan Singh and Others passed in Civil Appeal No.2998 of 1980 wherein the Apex Court has laid down distinction between void and voidable documents.

11. He has further contended that in paragraph 8 of the plaint, it has been specifically stated that petitioner/defendant's name is recorded in the revenue record, and therefore, plaintiff/respondent has to pray for declaration of title and thus, civil court has no jurisdiction to try the suit. In support of this contention, he has placed reliance upon the judgements of Apex Court in the cases of Shri Ram and Another Vs. Ist Additional District Judge and Others 2001 (3) SCC 24 and Pyarelal Vs. Shubhendra Pilania (Minor) through Natural Guardian (Father) Shri Pradeep Kumar Pilania and Others 2019 (3) SCC 692.

12. Rebutting the aforesaid contentions, learned counsel for the respondents has contended that the sale deed is a voidable document and as in the instant case, there was fraudulent misrepresentation, therefore, the document would fall in the category of voidable documents and shall remain in force till it is set aside, and such document can only be cancelled by competent civil court, therefore, suit is maintainable. He has further contended that consolidation operation in the area is over, and therefore, suit for cancellation of sale deed would lie before the competent civil court.

13. I have considered the rival submissions of the parties and perused the record.

14. To ascertain the question in the present case as to the nature of document whether the document is void or voidable document, it would be apposite to reproduce paragraphs 8, 9, 10 & 11 of the plaint:-

"8. यह कि वादी को यह भी मालूम हुआ कि चकबन्दी के दौरान प्रतिवादी गण ने वसाजिश चकबन्दी अधिकारी फर्जी नाम अपना चढ़वाया है और दौरान चकबन्दी, प्रतिवादीगण को अपना नाम चढ़वाने का कोई हक नही था और चकबन्दी आफिसर को कोई अख्यार डि० बोर्ड का नाम चढ़ाने का नही था जुम्ला कार्यवाही व हुक्म बावत नाम दर्ज होने कतई अवैधानिक व विथआउट ज्यूरिस्डिक्शन है और कानूनन कमफरटेबिल इन लॉ नही है और मालूम होता है कि डि० बोर्ड इटावा के कर्मचारियो ने दौरान चकबंदी धोखा देकर व साजिश चकबन्दी अधिकारी उपरोक्त डि० बोर्ड का नाम फर्जी दर्ज करवाया है उन इन्द्राजात का कोई फायदा प्रतिवादीगण नही उठा सकते हैं और उपरोक्त इन्द्राजात वादी पर काबिज पाबन्दी नही है और जुम्ला इन्द्राजात कतई ज्यूरिकेशन है और धोखा व मिसरिप्रेजेन्टेशन पर मवनीय है कोई भी नोटिस वगैरह भी चकबन्दी के दौरान वादी या सोखी लाल के नाम जारी नही हुये और न विपक्षी व सोखी लाल कोई नोटिस जारी हुयी और न किसी नोटिस की कोई तामील हुयी। और न एतराज का मौका कोई दिया गया व नीज अदालत चकबन्दी अधिकारी को

15. Reading of the aforesaid paragraphs discloses that it was a specific case of the plaintiff/respondent that late

Sukhi Lal had not executed the document dated 27.08.1951 and sale deed dated 30.09.1957 in favour of petitioner and petitioner/defendant got the aforesaid documents executed by producing some impostor. It is specifically pleaded in the aforesaid paragraphs, extracted above, that the document dated 27.08.1951 is forged and it was never executed by late Sukhi Lal. Similar averment has been made by the plaintiff/respondent in respect to sale deed dated 30.09.1957 in paragraph 11 of the plaint, extracted above.

16. Now, whether the character of the aforesaid documents is void or voidable, in this regard, it would be apt to reproduce the relevant extract of the judgement of the Apex Court in the case of Smt. Dulari Devi (supra):-

"In Gorakh Nath Dube, (supra), this Court held that the object of the relevant provision of the Act was to remove from the jurisdiction of any civil court or revenue court all disputes which could be decided by the competent authority under the Act during the consolidation proceedings. Questions relating to the validity of a sale-deed or a gift deed and the like had to be examined in proceedings before the statutory authorities. The Court, however, drew a distinction between void and voidable documents and said a voidable document was one which remained in force until set aside, and such a document could be set aside only by a competent civil court, and a suit for that purpose would, therefore, be maintainable. On the other hand, a claim that a transaction was void was a matter which could be adjudicated upon by the consolidation courts. This is what this Court stated:

"We think that a distinction can be made between cases where a document is wholly or partially invalid so that it can be disregarded by any court or authority and one where it has to be actually set aside before it can cease to have legal effect. An alienation made in excess of power to transfer would be, to the extent of the excess of power, invalid. An adjudication on the effect of such a purported alienation would be necessarily implied in the decision of a dispute involving conflicting claims to rights or interests in land which are the subject matter of consolidation proceedings. The existence and quantum of rights claimed or denied will have to be declared by the consolidation authorities which would be deemed to be invested with jurisdiction, by the necessary implication of their statutory powers to adjudicate upon such rights and interests in land, to declare such documents effective or ineffective, but, where there is a document the legal effect of which can only be taken away by setting it aside or its cancellation, it could be urged that the consolidation authorities have no power to cancel the deed, and, therefore, it must be held to be binding on them so long as it is not cancelled by a court having the power to cancel it. In the case before us, the plaintiffs claim is that the sale of his half share by his uncle was invalid, inoperative, and void. Such a claim could be adjudicated upon by consolidation courts."

In Ningawwa v. Byrappa & three others., (supra), this Court referred to the well-established principle that a contract or other transaction induced or tendered by fraud is not void, but only voidable at the option of the party defrauded. The transaction remains valid until it was avoided. This Court then said:

"The legal position will be different if there is a fraudulent misrepresentation not merely as to the contents of the document but as to its character. The authorities make a clear distinction between fraudulent misrepresentation as to the character of the document and fraudulent misrepresentation as to the contents thereof. With reference to the form- er, it has been held that the transaction is void, while in the case of the latter, it is merely voidable. In Foster v. Mackinon, 1869 (4) C.P. 704, the action was by the endorsee of a bill of exchange. The defendant pleaded that he endorsed the bill on a fraudulent representation by the acceptor that he was signing a guarantee. In holding that such a plea was admissible, the Court observed:

"It (signature) is invalid not merely on the ground of fraud, where fraud exists, but on the ground that the mind of the signer did not accompany the signature; in other words, that he never intended to sign, and therefore in contemplation of law never did sign, the contract to which his name is appended ..... The defendant never intended to sign that contract or any such contract. He never intended to put his name to any instrument that then was or thereafter might become negotiable. He was deceived, not merely as to the legal effect, but as to the 'actual contents' of the instrument."

From the facts narrated above, about which, as stated earlier, there is no dispute, it is clear that this is a case where the plaintiff appellant was totally ignorant of the mischief played upon her. She honestly believed that the instrument which she executed and got registered was a gift deed in favour of her daughter. She believed that the thumb impressions taken from her were in respect of that single document. She did not know that she executed two documents, one of which alone was the gift deed, but the other was a sale of the property in favour of all the defendants. This was, therefore, a case of fraudulent misrepresentation as to the character of the document executed by her and not merely as to its contents or as to its legal effect. The plaintiff-appellant never intended to sign what she did sign. She never intended to enter into the contract to which she unknowingly became a party. Her mind did not accompany her thumb impressions. This is a case that falls within the principle enunciated in Ningawwa v. Byrappa & three others (supra) and it was, therefore, a totally void transaction. Accordingly, as stated in Gorakh Nath Dube (supra), the suit is not maintainable by reason of the bar contained in the Act.

The High Court has, in our view, rightly held that the remedy of the plaintiff lies in the proceedings pending before the consolidation authorities and it is open to the parties to approach them for appropriate relief. In the circumstances, we see no merit in this appeal. It is, accordingly, dismissed, but we make no order as to costs."

17. In the aforesaid case, the Apex Court has drawn a distinction between void and voidable documents and has held that where there is fraudulent misrepresentation as to the character of a document executed by a person, it would be a void document, but in case where there is fraudulent misrepresentation as to the contents of the document, the character of a document is voidable.

18. Applying the aforesaid principles in the instant case, it is evident from the pleadings in the plaint, extracted above, that the case of the plaintiff/respondent is that the documents in question were never executed by late Sukhi Lal nor any impression was put by him on these documents, therefore, clearly the said documents are void documents as in the instant case there was fraudulent misrepresentation as to the character of the document and not to the contents thereof, therefore, in the opinion of the Court, both the courts below have erroneously held that documents in question are voidable document and are not void document.

19. The record of the case also reveals that though on the date of institution of suit, the area was not under the consolidation operation, but same was brought under consolidation operation by publication of notification under Section 4 of the Act, 1953 on 01.10.1983 and consolidation operation in the area was over on 03.10.2009, therefore, since during pendency of suit, consolidation operation had commenced in the area, the suit ought to have been abated by the court below as the relief prayed for in the instant suit could be granted only by consolidation court.

20. Now in the instant case, another question cropped up as to when consolidation operation has ended in the area after publication of notification under Section 5(2)(a) of the Act, 1953 on 30.09.2009, whether petitioner is entitled to any relief, and whether the suit is cognizable by civil court. In this regard, it would be relevant to peruse the paragraph 8 of the plaint, extracted above, wherein it is a admitted case of the plaintiff/respondent that names of the petitioner/defendant have been recorded in the revenue records. In such view of the fact, learned counsel for the petitioner has urged that the suit is not cognizable by civil court and is cognizable by revenue court.

21. This Court finds merit in the aforesaid submission of learned counsel for the petitioner in view of the judgements of Apex Court in the cases of Shri Ram and Another (supra) and Pyarelal (supra). It would be apt to refer paragraph 7 of the judgement of Apex Court in the case of Shri Ram and Another (supra) which is reproduced herein below:-

"7. On analysis of the decisions cited above, we are of the opinion that where a recorded tenure-holder having a prima facie title and in possession files suit in the civil court for cancellation of sale deed having obtained on the ground of fraud or impersonation cannot be directed to file a suit for declaration in the revenue court reason being that in such a case, prima facie, the title of the recorded tenure holder is not under cloud. He does not require declaration of his title to the land. The position would be different where a person not being a recorded tenure-holder seeks cancellation of sale deed by filing a suit in the civil court on the ground of fraud or impersonation. There necessarily the plaintiff is required to seek a declaration of his title and, therefore, he may be directed to approach the revenue court, as the sale deed being void has to be ignored for giving him relief for declaration and possession."

22. The judgement of Apex Court in the case of Shri Ram and Another (supra) has been followed by the Apex Court in the case of Pyarelal (supra) wherein Apex Court placing reliance upon a case arising out Section 207 read with Section 256 of the Rajasthan Tenancy Act has held that suit is cognizable by revenue court. Paragraphs 24 to 26 of the said judgement are being reproduced herein below:-

"24. In Shri Ram v. Addl. District Judge, (2001) 3 SCC 24, a suit was filed before the civil court for the cancellation of a sale deed of an agricultural land on the grounds of fraud and impersonation. The defendant contended that the suit is barred by Section 331 of the Uttar Pradesh Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 which reads thus:

"331. Cognizance of suits etc. under this Act. - (1) Except as provided by or under this Act, no court other than a court mentioned in Column 4 of Schedule II shall, notwithstanding anything contained in the Civil Procedure Code, 1908 (V of 1908), take cognizance of any suit, application, or proceedings mentioned in Column 3 thereof or of a suit, application or proceedings based on a cause of action in respect of which any relief could be obtained by means of any such suit or application:

Explanation.- If the cause of action is one in respect of which relief may be granted by the Revenue Court, it is immaterial that the relief asked for from the civil court may not be incidental to that which the Revenue Court would have granted.

25. The question before this Court was whether a recorded tenure-holder having prima facie title in his favour and in possession was required to file a suit in the Revenue Court, or where the civil court had jurisdiction to entertain and decide the suit seeking relief of cancellation of a void document. Upholding the jurisdiction of civil court to try the suit, a two-Judge Bench of this Court differentiated between a recorded tenure holder, and an unrecorded tenure holder with the following observations:

7. ...we are of the opinion that where a recorded tenure holder having a prima facie title and in possession files suit in the civil court for cancellation of sale deed having been obtained on the ground of fraud or impersonation cannot be directed to file a suit for declaration in the Revenue Court, the reason being that in such a case, prima facie, the title of the recorded tenure holder is not under cloud. He does not require declaration of his title to the land. The position would be different where a person not being a recorded tenure holder seeks cancellation of sale deed by filing a suit in the civil court on the ground of fraud or impersonation. There necessarily the plaintiff is required to seek a declaration of his title and, therefore, he may be directed to approach the Revenue Court, as the sale deed being void has to be ignored for giving him relief for declaration and possession.

26. Though the above principles emerge in the context of the bar under Section 331 of the Uttar Pradesh Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950, the logic of the judgment extends to the bar under Section 207 read with Section 256 of the of the Tenancy Act. A recorded khatedar stands on a different footing compared to a claimant seeking a decree of their khatedari rights. A claimant seeking a decree of khatedari rights is barred from filing a suit in the civil court prior to their khatedari right being decreed by a Revenue Court when the relief sought for by the civil court includes a determination of khatedari rights."

23. As in view of the categorical averment made in paragraph 8 of the plaint, name of the petitioner/defendant have been recorded in the revenue record, therefore, the suit is not cognizable by civil court and is cognizable by revenue court.

24. In such view of the fact, the impugned orders dated 21.08.1999 and 24.07.2003 are not sustainable in law and are hereby, set aside. The writ petition is allowed with no order as to costs.

25. It is open to the plaintiff/ respondent to file suit for the relief claimed, if so, advised, before the revenue court.

1. This petition under Article 227 of the Constitution is directed against an order of the Presiding Officer, Commercial Court, Jhansi dated 28.09.2021, to the extent it directs return of Arbitration Misc. Case No. 52 of 2021 and Arbitration Misc. Case No. 2 of 2021, under Section 34 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996, for presentation to the proper Court.

2. It is common ground between parties that the petitioners' land comprised in a part of Arazi No. 73 of Village Raimalpura, Tehsil Kulpahar, District Mahoba, was acquired by the Central Government for widening of National Highway No. 76 from 89.600 kms. to 133.520 kms. The petitioners' land in Arazi No. 73 aforesaid, which shall hereinafter be called "the land in question' was acquired through a Notification No. 2345 dated 18.08.2017, issued and published by the Central Government under Section 3(2) of the National Highways Act, 1956 (for short, "the Act of 1956'). The notification last mentioned was followed by Notification No. 3378 dated 08.12.2017, published in the Gazette Extraordinary dated 08.12.2017 of the Government of India. Under the said notifications, a total 0.7507 hectare of land was acquired in Village Raimalpura, out of which 0.6587 hectare was found to be agricultural land, while the balance 0.0920 hectare was determined as State land. The land in question is part of the aforesaid total area of land acquired in Village Raimalpura.

3. A notification was published in two local newspapers i.e. Dainik Jagran and Times of India dated 22.12.2017, asking persons affected to produce their claims for compensation under Section 3G of the Act of 1956. The first petitioner laid claim to the land in question supported by necessary evidence before the Competent Authority under Section 3G. The Competent Authority/ Special Land Acquisition Officer, Banda passed an award dated 07.07.2018, assessing compensation for the entire land acquired in Village Raimalpura, including the land in question, on the basis that it is agricultural land. Compensation was determined, treating the land to be agricultural.

4. The petitioners, aggrieved by the award passed by the Competent Authority dated 07.07.2018, moved the Statutory Arbitrator, appointed by the Central Government under Section 3G(5) of the Act of 1956, seeking enhancement of the compensation awarded. The Statutory Arbitrator, appointed in terms of a notification dated 30.07.2020 issued by the Government of India for acquisitions made in District Mahoba, was notified to be the District Magistrate, Mahoba. The Statutory Arbitrator dealt with all objections relating to the entire land in Village Raimalpura, admeasuring 0.6587 hectare, that was found to be bhumidhari.

5. The petitioners' case relating to a higher rate compensation for the land in question was also dealt with together with those of others, who had approached the Statutory Arbitrator. The Statutory Arbitrator did not accept the petitioners' contention, as he did not for other land similarly situate that the land in question was residential in character and ought to be compensated for its acquisition at residential rates. It was held to be agricultural. In agreement with the Competent Authority, the Statutory Arbitrator/ District Magistrate, Mahoba upheld the Competent Authority's award dated 07.07.2018 by his arbitral award dated 10.12.2020 passed in Case No. 00333 of 2020.

6. The petitioners, like others, aggrieved by the Statutory Arbitrator's award, moved the Commercial Court, Jhansi under Section 34 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 (for short, "the Act of 1996') with a prayer to set aside the Statutory Arbitrator's award.

7. All the applications by landholders of acquired land in Village Raimalpura, who were aggrieved by the Statutory Arbitrator's award dated 10.12.2020, were consolidated and heard together with Arbitration Misc. Case No. 51 of 2021 being treated as the leading case. The petitioners' cases are Arbitration Misc. Case Nos. 52 of 2021 and 2 of 2021.

8. The Commercial Court, Jhansi held that the Statutory Arbitrator's award could not be questioned under Section 34 of the Act of 1996 and the petitioners' remedy was to seek a reference under Section 67 of the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 (for short, "the Act of 2013') to the Land Acquisition and Rehabilitation and Resettlement Authority, constituted under Section 51 of the Act of 2013. Accordingly, the Presiding Officer, Commercial Court, Jhansi directed return of the applications under Section 34 of the Act of 1996 under Order VII Rule 10 CPC for presentation to the proper Court. It was further directed that in case steps were not taken to take back the applications, the applications would stand rejected under Order VII Rule 11 (d) CPC.

9. It is this order of the Presiding Officer, Commercial Court, Jhansi that the petitioners have impugned in the present petition.

10. Heard Mr. Nand Kishor Mishra, learned Counsel for the petitioners, Mr. Pranjal Mehrotra, learned Counsel appearing on behalf National Highway Authority of India, respondent no.5, Mr. Jai Krishna Narain Sharma, learned Central Government Counsel appearing on behalf of the Union of India and Mr. Sanjay Kumar Singh, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for respondent nos.2, 3 and 4.

11. The moot point involved in this case is whether the award of the Statutory Arbitrator passed under Section 3G(5) of the Act of 1956 can be questioned through an application under Section 34 of the Act of 1996? If yes, before which Court or Tribunal?

12. The provisions of Section 3G of the Act of 1956 read:

3G. Determination of amount payable as compensation.-(1) Where any land is acquired under this Act, there shall be paid an amount which shall be determined by an order of the competent authority.

(2) Where the right of user or any right in the nature of an easement on, any land is acquired under this Act, there shall be paid an amount to the owner and any other person whose right of enjoyment in that land has been affected in any manner whatsoever by reason of such acquisition an amount calculated at ten per cent, of the amount determined under sub-section (1), for that land.

(3) Before proceeding to determine the amount under sub-section (1) or sub-section (2), the competent authority shall give a public notice published in two local newspapers, one of which will be in a vernacular language inviting claims from all persons interested in the land to be acquired.

(4) Such notice shall state the particulars of the land and shall require all persons interested in such land to appear in person or by an agent or by a legal practitioner referred to in sub-section (2) of section 3C, before the competent authority, at a time and place and to state the nature of their respective interest in such land.

(5) If the amount determined by the competent authority under sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) is not acceptable to either of the parties, the amount shall, on an application by either of the parties, be determined by the arbitrator to be appointed by the Central Government.

(6) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the provisions of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 (26 of 1996) shall apply to every arbitration under this Act.

(7) The competent authority or the arbitrator while determining the amount under sub-section (1) or sub-section (5), as the case may be, shall take into consideration-

(a) the market value of the land on the date of publication of the notification under section 3A;

(b) the damage, if any, sustained by the person interested at the time of taking possession of the land, by reason of the severing of such land from other land;

(c) the damage, if any, sustained by the person interested at the time of taking possession of the land, by reason of the acquisition injuriously affecting his other immovable property in any manner, or his earnings;

(d) if, in consequences of the acquisition of the land, the person interested is compelled to change his residence or place of business, the reasonable expenses, if any, incidental to such change.

13. Upon hearing the learned Counsel for parties and perusing the impugned judgment, this Court finds that the Presiding Officer, Commercial Court may not be wrong in saying that he does not have the jurisdiction to entertain the application under Section 34 of the Act of 1996, but he is certainly wrong in thinking that the award of the Statutory Arbitrator under Section 3G(5) of the Act of 1956 cannot be challenged by an application under Section 34 of the Act, last mentioned. Sub-Section (6) of Section 3G clearly mentions that subject to the provisions of the Act of 1956, the provisions of the Act of 1996 shall apply to every arbitration under the former Act. There is nothing in the scheme of Section 3G of the Act of 1956 to exclude the application of Section 34 vis-à-vis the award of the Statutory Arbitrator, passed under Section 3G(5) of the Act of 1956. An award by the Statutory Arbitrator may be questioned before the Court of competent jurisdiction under Section 34 of the Act of 1996, like any other award by an Arbitrator.

14. This Court is of opinion that the Commercial Court was misled by the application of the provisions of the Act of 2013 relating to determination of compensation in accordance with the First Schedule, rehabilitation and resettlement in accordance with the Second Schedule and infrastructure amenities in accordance with the Third Schedule to acquisitions made under the Act of 1956, by including it in the Fourth Schedule to the Act of 2013. The said provisions of the Act of 2013 have been made applicable to acquisitions under the Act of 1956 by the Central Government issuing an order in exercise of powers under sub-Section (1) of Section 113 of the Act of 2013.

15. The provisions of the Act of 2013 have been made applicable to acquisitions under the Act of 1956 for the limited purpose of calculation of compensation and entitlement to solatium, interest etc. in order to place land oustees under both the statutes at par. It is not that the entire procedure, including remedies for determination and assailing the quantum of compensation awarded under the Act of 1956, have been subsumed by the Act of 2013 by the limited extension of certain benefits under the Act of 2013 to acquisitions made under the Act of 1956. The provisions of reference to the Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Authority under the Act of 2013 for the purpose of seeking enhancement of compensation awarded available to a land oustee, would not be available to a land oustee, whose land is acquired under the Act of 1956. His remedies are confined to the four corners of Section 3G of the Act of 1956.

16. This is the clear import of the holding of their Lordships of the Supreme Court, to the understanding of this Court, in Union of India and another v. Tarsem Singh and others, (2019) 9 SCC 304. In Tarsem Singh (supra), it has been held:

13. The First Schedule to the said Act provides that solatium equivalent to 100% of the market value multiplied by various factors, depending on whether the land is situated in a rural or urban area, constitutes minimum compensation package to be given to those whose land is acquired. The Fourth Schedule to this Act, to be read along with Section 105, expressly includes under Item 7, the National Highways Act, 1956. In Item 9, this Schedule also includes the Requisitioning and Acquisition of Immovable Property Act, 1952. By a Notification dated 28-8-2015 issued under Section 105 read with Section 113 of the 2013 Act, it is provided that the 2013 Act compensation provisions will apply to acquisitions that take place under the National Highways Act. The result is that both before the 1997 Amendment Act and after the coming into force of the 2013 Act, solatium and interest is payable to landowners whose property is compulsorily acquired for purposes of National Highways. This is one other very important circumstance to be borne in mind when judging the constitutional validity of the 1997 Amendment Act for the interregnum period from 1997 to 2015.

48. It is thus clear that the Ordinance as well as the notification have applied the principle contained in Nagpur Improvement Trust [Nagpur Improvement Trust v. Vithal Rao, (1973) 1 SCC 500] , as the Central Government has considered it necessary to extend the benefits available to landowners generally under the 2013 Act to similarly placed landowners whose lands are acquired under the 13 enactments specified in the Fourth Schedule, the National Highways Act being one of the aforesaid enactments. This being the case, it is clear that the Government has itself accepted that the principle of Nagpur Improvement Trust [Nagpur Improvement Trust v. Vithal Rao, (1973) 1 SCC 500] would apply to acquisitions which take place under the National Highways Act, and that solatium and interest would be payable under the 2013 Act to persons whose lands are acquired for the purpose of National Highways as they are similarly placed to those landowners whose lands have been acquired for other public purposes under the 2013 Act. This being the case, it is clear that even the Government is of the view that it is not possible to discriminate between landowners covered by the 2013 Act and landowners covered by the National Highways Act, when it comes to compensation to be paid for lands acquired under either of the enactments. The judgments delivered under the 1952 Act as well as the Defence of India Act, 1971, may, therefore, require a re-look in the light of this development. [The Defence of India Act, 1971, was a temporary statute which remained in force only during the period of operation of a proclamation of emergency and for a period of six months thereafter -- vide Section 1(3) of the Act. As this Act has since expired, it is not included in the Fourth Schedule of the 2013 Act.] In any case, as has been pointed out hereinabove, Chajju Ram [Union of India v. Chajju Ram, (2003) 5 SCC 568] , has been referred to a larger Bench. In this view of the matter, we are of the view that the view of the Punjab and Haryana High Court [Union of India v. Tarsem Singh, 2018 SCC OnLine P&H 6036] , [Jang Bahadur v. Union of India, 2018 SCC OnLine P&H 6034] , [Union of India v. Abhinav Cotspin Ltd., 2016 SCC OnLine P&H 19319] is correct, whereas the view of the Rajasthan High Court [Banshilal Samariya v. Union of India, 2005 SCC OnLine Raj 572 : 2005-06 Supp RLW 559] is not correct.

52. There is no doubt that the learned Solicitor General, in the aforesaid two orders, has conceded the issue raised in these cases. This assumes importance in view of the plea of Shri Divan that the impugned judgments should be set aside on the ground that when the arbitral awards did not provide for solatium or interest, no Section 34 petition having been filed by the landowners on this score, the Division Bench judgments that are impugned before us ought not to have allowed solatium and/or interest. Ordinarily, we would have acceded to this plea, but given the fact that the Government itself is of the view that solatium and interest should be granted even in cases that arise between 1997 and 2015, in the interest of justice we decline to interfere with such orders, given our discretionary jurisdiction under Article 136 of the Constitution of India. We therefore declare that the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act relating to solatium and interest contained in Sections 23(1-A) and (2) and interest payable in terms of Section 28 proviso will apply to acquisitions made under the National Highways Act. Consequently, the provision of Section 3-J is, to this extent, violative of Article 14 of the Constitution of India and, therefore, declared to be unconstitutional. Accordingly, appeal arising out of SLP (C) No. 9599 of 2019 is dismissed.

17. From a reading of the principles extensively laid down in Tarsem Singh, it is evident that what has been made applicable by the Central Government through their order dated 28.08.2015, quoted in extenso in Paragraph No. 47 of the report in Tarsem Singh, is a limited application of the provisions of the Act of 2013 relating to determination of compensation, rehabilitation and resettlement and extension of infrastructure amenities. It is not a complete supplant of the provisions of the Act of 1956 by those of the Act of 2013. The Commercial Court has, in our opinion, therefore, completely gone wrong in holding that the remedy against the award passed by the Statutory Arbitrator under the Act of 1956 would not be an application under Section 34 of the Act of 1996, but a reference to the Authority constituted under Section 51 of the Act of 2013. It is held, accordingly.

18. There is another aspect of the matter. And, that is, what would be the forum before which the application under Section 34 of the Act of 1996 would lie. The petitioners thought that since it is an arbitration application, they should go to the Commercial Court, instead of the Principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction in the district. This issue fell for consideration before the Uttarakhand High in Richa Bisht v. Union of India, AIROnline 2020 UTR 478. It was held in Richa Bisht (supra):

13.From the scheme of the Act, it is apparent that only a commercial dispute can be tried by a commercial Court. For a dispute to qualify as commercial dispute, it must fall within one of the clauses of Section 2 (i) (c) of the Commercial Courts Act, 2015. A dispute will not become a commercial dispute merely because it is an arbitration matter and has been dealt with separately under Sections 10 and 15(2) of the said Act.

14.Every application filed under Section 34 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act cannot be transferred to the commercial Court under Section 15(2) of the Commercial Courts Act, 2015 and only such applications will be required to be transferred, which are relating to a commercial dispute of a specified value.

15.The dispute, which petitioners raised before learned District Judge does not fall under any clause of 8 Section 2 (1) (c) of the Act, which defines 'commercial disputes'.

16. Clause (xxii) of Section 2 (1) (c) enables the Central Government to include any other dispute in the definition of 'commercial dispute' by notification.

17. On 03.03.2020, Mr. Manoj Kumar, learned Central Government Standing Counsel was asked to get instructions whether the Central Government has issued any notification, as contemplated under Section 2(1) (c) (xxii) of the Commercial Courts Act, 2015. He was further asked to get definite instruction as to whether the dispute arising out of land acquisition for the purpose of construction of highway has been treated as commercial dispute by any notification issued by the Central Government under Section 2(1) (c) (xxii) of the Act.

18. Today, Mr. Manoj Kumar, learned Central Government Standing Counsel, on instructions, submitted that no such notification has been issued by the Central Government under Section 2(1) (c) (xxii) of the aforesaid Act.

19. It is nobody's case that petitioners are into real estate business. Learned counsel appearing for respondent no. 2 fairly concedes that petitioners are not doing trade or business in immovable property. It is an admitted position that the property belonging to the petitioners were compulsorily acquired under the provisions of National Highways Act, 1956, therefore, Clause-vii of Section 2(1) (c) of the Commercial Courts Act, 2015 also cannot be pressed into service for treating 9 the dispute raised by the petitioners before the District Judge, as commercial dispute.

20. In view of the aforesaid discussion, this Court has no hesitation in holding that the dispute raised by the petitioners before the learned District Judge is not a 'commercial dispute', therefore, learned District Judge erred in transferring the application filed by the petitioners under Section 34 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act to the Commercial Court, Dehradun.

19. The principles in Richa Bisht are squarely applicable to the facts here, because the petitioners' land has been acquired for the purpose of a National Highway. It is by no means a 'commercial dispute' within the meaning of Section 2(1)(c) of the Commercial Courts Act, 2015. For the said reason, the application under Section 34 of the Act of 1996 would not be maintainable before the Commercial Court. Thus, for reasons very different from those that have weighed with the Commercial Court in passing the order impugned, this Court concurs in the conclusions reached. It is made clear that upon return of the application under Section 34 of the Act of 1996 to the petitioners, it would be open to them, subject of course to the law of limitation, to institute proceedings, if so advised, before the Court of competent jurisdiction, entitled to hear an application under Section 34 of the Act of 1996.

20. Subject to the above clarifications, this petition is dismissed. There shall be no order as to costs.

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. Heard Mr. S.K. Srivastava, learned Counsel for the petitioner and Mr. Prakhar Tandon, Advocate appearing on behalf of plaintiff-respondents.

2. The petitioner is a tenant and the defendant in S.C.C. Suit No. 350 of 2018, pending before the Judge, Small Cause Court, Kanpur Nagar.

3. On an application made by the respondent-landlord under Order XV Rule 5 of the Code of Civil Procedure (for short, 'the CPC'), the learned Judge, Small Cause Court has ordered the petitioner's defence to be struck off on the ground of failure to regularly deposit rent, month by month, with the Trial Court. The order was challenged in a revision preferred to the District Judge of Kanpur Nagar, being Civil Revision No. 91 of 2021. The said revision was heard and dismissed by the Additional District Judge, Court No. 16, Kanpur Nagar.

4. Accordingly, the petitioner has instituted this petition under Article 227, asking this Court to set aside the two orders dated 08.02.2021 and 09.09.2021 passed by the Courts below and restore his defence.

5. The facts of this case, relevant for the purpose of this petition, show that there is no issue about compliance with the first part of Rule 5 of Order XV CPC, which requires deposit to be made on the first date of hearing. What had led to the petitioner's defence being struck off, is non-compliance with the part that requires monthly rent to be deposited regularly with the Court, where the suit is pending, within 7 days of the date of its accrual. Here, the petitioner claims to be depositing rent under Section 30(1) of The Uttar Pradesh Urban Buildings (Regulation of Letting, Rent and Eviction) Act, 1972 (U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972) (for short, 'the Act') in the Court of the Civil Judge (Jr. Div.), Kanpur Nagar vide Misc. Case No. 425/70/2018. Summons of the suit were received by the petitioner's wife, Kiran on 13.12.2019. On 08.03.2019, Mr. Sushil Kumar Srivastava, Advocate, instructed by the petitioner, Gangu, put in appearance on his behalf in the suit and obtained necessary copies of the plaint etc. On the 8th April, 2019, a written statement was filed on behalf of the petitioner. Thus, the petitioner put in appearance on 8th April, 2019 and filed his written statement on 8th April, 2019. Surprisingly, however, the petitioner continued to deposit monthly rent in the Court of the Civil Judge (Jr. Div.) under Section 30 (1) of the Act for the months of April, 2019 to November, 2020, and that too, in lump sum for two months at a time. The first deposit of monthly rent in the Court, where the suit is pending, was made on 1st February, 2021. It was for the months of December, 2020 and January, 2021.

6. It is submitted by Mr. S.K. Srivastava, learned Counsel for the petitioner that the petitioner contested the suit through his Counsel and was not aware of the requirements of the law regarding deposit under Order XV Rule 5 CPC. He acted as per advice of the learned Counsel and deposited rent under Section 30 of the Act, which he did regularly. It is submitted that on account of lack of awareness of the law, he cannot be deprived of his valuable right, as valuable as his defence in an eviction suit. Reliance has been placed by the learned Counsel upon the decision of this Court in Kedar Nath v. Waqf Sheikh Abdullah Charitable Madursa and others, 2015 SCC OnLine All 7172.

10. In Pramod Mehrotra and others Versus Ram Shankar Chaurasia and others, 2007(3) ARC 77, where the amount was deposited with some delay, this Court relying upon Bimal Chand Jain (supra), held that discretion should be exercised not to strike off the defence where the entire amount has been paid with some delay.

11. Again in Sudhir Kumar Gupta Versus Dr. S.K. Raj and another, 1998 (1) ARC 545, the Court observed that the purpose of enacting the provision Rule 5 Order XV was not to give a lever to the landlord to get a tenant punished for insignificant lapses. The purpose was merely to ensure that the dues of the landlord are properly secured and he can get his rent regularly even though the litigation may continue.

12. In Pyare Lal Versus Distrit Judge, Lucknow and others, 2010(2) ARC 260 wherein, the Court allowed the deposit of rent upon imposing cost.

13. In Dr. Ram Prakash Mishra Versus Additional District Judge, Etah and another, 1999 (1) AWC 715, it was observed that the question whether the deposit is valid or not is relevant for determining the question whether the tenant could be held to be defaulter or not in the eye of law, but so far as Order XV, Rule 5 C.P.C. is concerned, the only requirement is that the tenant has to deposit the entire amount on or before the first hearing of the suit. If the deposit has been made under section 30 of Act 13 of 1972 then it will ensure to the benefit of the tenant.

14. The provisions of Order XV Rule 5 is discretionary, the court is not bound to strike off the defence in every case of mere technical or bonafide default. The provision should not be interpreted in such a way that the tenant should be trapped to be evicted. (Refer-Vinod Chandra Kala Versus Premier Precisions Tools Manufacturing (P). Ltd., 1996(1) ARC 62; Bhawani Vastrya Bhandan Versus Smt. Sahodra Devi,1996(2) ARC 406).

7. A Division Bench of this Court in Haider Abbas v. Additional District Judge and others, 2006 (1) ADJ 197 (All) (DB), held:

23. The aforesaid decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Atma Ram (supra) emphasizes that if the tenant wishes to take advantage of the beneficial provisions of the Rent Control Act, he must strictly comply with the requirements and if any condition precedent is required to be fulfilled before the benefit can be claimed, the tenant must strictly comply with that condition failing which he cannot take advantage of the benefit conferred by such a provision. It has further been emphasised that the rent must be deposited in the Court where it is required to be deposited under the Act and if it is deposited somewhere else, it shall not be treated as a valid payment/tender of the rent and consequently the tenant must be held to be in default.

24. In view of the aforesaid principles of law enunciated by the Supreme Court in the aforesaid case of Atma Ram (supra), it has to be held that the tenant must comply with the requirements of Order XV, Rule 5, CPC and make the deposits strictly in accordance with the procedure contained therein. A deposit which is not made in consonance with the aforesaid Rule cannot enure to the benefit of the tenant and, therefore, only that amount can be deducted from the "monthly amount" required to be deposited by the tenant during the pendency of the suit which is specifically mentioned in Explanation 3 to Rule 5 (1) of Order XV, CPC.

25. It, therefore, follows that the amount due to be deposited by the tenant throughout the continuation of the suit has to be deposited in the Court where the suit is filed otherwise the Court may strike off the defence of the tenant since the deposits made by the tenant under Section 30 (1) of the Act after the first hearing of the suit cannot be taken into consideration.

8. Again, in a later decision of this Court in Om Prakash Gupta v. District Judge, Mainpuri and another, 2019 (3) AWC 2543, it has been held:

13. The Division Bench placed reliance on the judgment of Supreme Court in Atma Ram (supra) in holding that if the tenant desires to take advantage of a beneficial provision under the Rent Control Act, he must strictly comply with the requirements thereof. If any condition precedent is required to be fulfilled before the benefit can be claimed, the tenant must strictly comply with that condition, failing which he cannot take advantage of the benefit conferred by the said provision. Accordingly, it was held that a deposit made not in consonance with the statutory provision would not enure to the benefit of the tenant. The monthly amount required to be deposited by the tenant during pendency of the suit has to be deposited in the court where the suit is filed and not in any other Court or proceedings. It has been concluded by holding that deposit of monthly rent under Section 30 of the Act, after receipt of summons of the suit is contrary to the requirements of Order 15 Rule 5 CPC and would therefore not enure to the benefit of the tenant :-

"The aforesaid decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Atma Ram (supra) emphasizes that if the tenant wishes to take advantage of the beneficial provisions of the Rent Control Act, he must strictly comply with the requirements and if any condition precedent is required to be fulfilled before the benefit can be claimed, the tenant must strictly comply with that condition failing which he cannot take advantage of the benefit conferred by such a provision. It has further been emphasised that the rent must be deposited in the Court where it is required to be deposited under the Act and if it is deposited somewhere else, it shall not be treated as a valid payment/tender of the rent and consequently the tenant must be held to be in default. In view of the aforesaid principles of law enunciated by the Supreme Court in the aforesaid case of Atma Ram (supra), it has to be held that the tenant must comply with the requirements of Order XV Rule 5 CPC and make the deposits strictly in accordance with the procedure contained therein. A deposit which is not made in consonance with the aforesaid Rule cannot enure to the benefit of the tenant and, therefore, only that amount can be deducted from the "monthly amount" required to be deposited by the tenant during the pendency of the suit which is specifically mentioned in Explanation 3 to Rule 5 (1) of Order XV CPC. It, therefore, follows that the amount due to be deposited by the tenant throughout the continuation of the suit has to be deposited in the Court where the suit is filed otherwise the Court may strike off the defence of the tenant since the deposits made by the tenant under Section 30 (1) of the Act after the first hearing of the suit cannot be taken into consideration.

.....We, therefore, upon an analysis of the provisions of Rule 5 (1) of Order XV CPC, hold that while depositing the amount at or before the first hearing of the suit, the tenant can deduct the amount deposited under Section 30 of the Act but the deposits of the monthly amount thereafter throughout the continuation of the suit must be made in the Court where the suit is filed for eviction and recovery of rent or compensation for use and occupation and the amount, if any, deposited under Section 30 of the Act cannot be deducted." (emphasis supplied)

9. Similar view has been expressed in Sunil Kumar and others v. Kapoor Chandra Agarwal Dharamshala Trust, 2019 (10) ADJ 682.

10. There is absolutely no justification here for the petitioner to have deposited rent for months together before the Court exercising jurisdiction under Section 30 of the Act, after he had put in appearance in the suit and filed his written statement. The monthly rent had to be deposited in the Court, where the suit was pending in accordance with the provisions of Order XV Rule 5 CPC, within a week of accrual of rent every month. This having not been done, the petitioner's defence has been rightly struck off.

11. This Court is of opinion that no case for interference under Article 227 of the Constitution is made out.

12. This petition is, accordingly, dismissed.

13. The interim stay order dated 25.04.2022 is hereby vacated.

The writ petition is dismissed. (E-6)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Jyotsna Sharma, J.)

1. Heard Sri Vijay Tripathi, learned counsel for the petitioner and learned AGA for the State.

2. This petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India has been filed challenging the order passed in Criminal Revision No. 89 of 2021 dated 17.08.2022 whereby the order passed by the trial court dated 04.10.2021 was affirmed and the revision was dismissed.

3. The facts relevant giving rise to this petition are as below:-

An application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. was moved on behalf of the present petitioner-Indrapal Singh before the Court of Judicial Magistrate with the allegations that in the local elections conducted for the election of Block Pramukh, Ferozabad, the opposite side used forged ballot papers; some of the ballot papers were put with forged signatures of the voters; 7 ballot papers were not found valid because of the tactics adopted by the opposite side; the collusion of the government officials, manning the elections; some of the voters were turned out forcibly for preventing them from voting; some of the persons were allowed to vote, who were actually not the voters; on some of the ballot papers, interpolation were done, so that they may be declared invalid; all this happened in collusion with government officials who are opposite side. In a nut shell, it is alleged that the malpractice of such nature were adopted by the opposite party nos. 1 to 10, that tilted the result in favor of his opponent, therefore, a case may be registered against them and be investigated upon.

4. On this application, the applicant was heard by the trial court and the application was dismissed. Two of the grounds mentioned by the trial court are that as the applicant had statutory remedy to challenge the election by filing election petition under Section 12-C of the U.P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1947 read with U.P. Kshettra Panchayats (Election of Pramukhs and Up-Pramukhs and Settlement of Election Disputes) Rules, 1994, hence, the application is not maintainable. Besides the above, the trial court relied on the Article 243(o)(b)of the Constitution of India which said that election to any panchayat shall not be called in question except by an election petition presented to such authority and in such manner as is provided for by or under any law made by legislature of the State. After referring to the above, the learned trial court took notice of the Rule Nos. 35 to 49 of U.P. Kshettra Panchayats (Election of Pramukhs and Up-Pramukhs and Settlement of Election Disputes) Rules, 1994 wherein provisions have been made to challenge the validity of elections of Block Pramukhs/Up-Pramukhs. In the revision, the revisional court concurred with the observations of the learned trial court and finding no error in the impugned order dismissed the same on 17.08.2022. The aforesaid orders have been challenged before this Court now with a prayer to quash them.

5. The U.P. Kshettra Panchayat and Zila Panchayat Adhiniyam, 1961 is an enactment, which was enacted for ensuring proper municipal governance in rural areas, decentralization of Governmental functions as well as to co-relate the powers and functions of Gram Sabha under United Provinces Panchayat Raj Act, 1947 with U.P. Kshettra Panchayat and Zila Panchayat. As far as question relating to lawful election of members of Kshettra Panchayat is concerned, Section 14(2) is as below:-

"If any question arises as to whether a person has been lawfully chosen a member of a Kshettra Panchayat or has ceased to remain eligible to be such member the question shall be referred in the manner prescribed to the Judge, whose decision shall be final and binding."

The same Act provides for some provisions under Section 264-B(1) and (2) relevant for the subject as below:-

"(1) The election to the office of an Adhyaksha, Upadhyaksha or a member of a Zila Panchayat and Pramukh, Up-Pramukh or a member of Kshettra Panchayat shall be held by secret ballot in the manner provided by rules which shall also provide for resolution of doubts and disputes relating to the election of such Adhyaksha, Upadhyaksha, Pramukh and Up-Pramukh.
(2) The superintendence, direction and control of the conduct of election of the office of an Adhyaksha, Upadhyaksha or a member of a Zila Panchayat and of a Pramukh, Up-Pramukh or a member of a Kshettra Panchayat shall vest in the State Election Commission."

In exercise of powers under Section 237 read with Section 264-B of the U.P. Kshettra Panchayat and Zila Panchayat Adhiniyam, 1961, the rules have been framed relating to matter of election of Pramukhs and Up-Pramukhs which is the U.P. Kshettra Panchayats (Election of Pramukhs and Up-Pramukhs and Settlement of Election Disputes) Rules, 1994. These rules elaborately provide for conduct of election of Up-Pramukhs in Chapter 3 of the Rules. The Rules of 1994, as aforesaid also provides for elaborate procedures with regard to disputes of election of Pramukhs and Up-Pramukhs in Chapter 4. Rule 35 says that an election petition calling in question the election of Pramukhs and Up-Pramukhs may be presented to the judge at any time within 30 days from the date of declaration of the result under Rule 14 or Rule 29, as the case may be. The petitioner may claim that the election of the winning candidate was void. The judge has been empowered to exercise powers as provided in Civil Procedure Code, 1990 and to grant relief in terms of Rule 43 of the Rules of 1994. In my opinion, the provisions of the Act read with Rules of 1994 clearly indicate that the matter of election has been comprehensively dealt with by the legislature in the relevant provisions.

6. I perused the papers on record in the light of the submissions of the petitioner. The grievance of the petitioner is that despite raising a complaint to the higher authority of use of malpractices committed at the election in collusion with the government officials (who happen to be respondent nos. 2 to 8 in the present petition) and private persons (who happen to be respondent nos. 9 to 11 in the present petition), no steps were taken at the relevant point of time to stop them; the petitioner secured 49 votes as against 59 votes secured by the elected candidate while 7 were declared invalid because of the malpractices and tactics adopted by the petitioners, hence, a FIR be lodged against them and order of the revisional court as well as the order of the trial court be quashed.

7. If an application moved under Section 156(3) is studied, it clearly shows that the applicant is aggrieved by tilting of the result against him because of alleged unfair practice adopted during the elections. The remedy available to the applicant-revisionist is thus filing of election petition. In may view, an attempt has been made to give criminal color, to essentially a civil dispute which could have been remedied by seeking appropriate remedy under the provisions of the U.P. Kshettra Panchayat and Zila Panchayat Adhiniyam, 1961 read with the U.P. Kshettra Panchayats (Election of Pramukhs and Up-Pramukhs and Settlement of Election Disputes) Rules, 1994.

8. The Apex Court has observed in number of cases that the power conferred under Article 227 of the Constitution casts a duty on the High Court to keep the inferior Courts and Tribunals within the bounds of their authority and to see that they do what their duty requires and that they do it in a legal manner. It has been observed by the courts many times that where there is grave dereliction of duty and flagrant abuse of fundamental principles of law or justice and where grave injustice would be done, then, in such a situation, the Court must interfere in pursuance to the power conferred under Articles 226/227 of the Constitution of India.

9. I do not find any ground to interfere in the impugned orders in exercise of powers to this Court under Article 227 of the Constitution. The impugned orders are speaking, reasoned and within the boundaries of the law.

10. The petition is, accordingly, dismissed.

A. PIL-Constitution of India, 1950-Article 226-Electricity Act, 2003-Sections 62(1) r/w 86(1)(a) read with Regulation 6 of U.P. Electricity Regulatory Commission (Conduct of Business) Regulations, 2004-no evidence to show proceedings relating to determination of power tariff are vitiated-petitioner has nowhere stated as to what according to it should be the capital cost of the projects of respondent no. 4 for the purpose of determination of tariff-the representation made by the petitioner to the Regulatory Commission nowhere has it been stated or disclosed as to what should be taken to be the capital cost of the projects-if the petitioner had any objection, he must have participated in the public hearing before the Regulatory Commission and filed its objection-Instead of participating in the public hearing and making its objections, the petitioner straightaway filed the PIL- Mr. Mohit Goyal was neither appointed by the Power Corporation as consultant to present its objection before the Commission nor was he ever engaged by the Power Corporation for the said purpose- the petitioner failed to establish the allegations made in this PIL in respect of the process of determination of tariff being vitiated on account of the vice of conflict of interest as as alleged against Mr. Mohit Goyal.(Para 1 to 68)

Heard Sri S.C.Misra, Senior Advocate assisted by Ms Pushpila Bisht and Sri Gagan Katyayan, learned for the petitioner, learned Standing Counsel representing the State-respondent no.1, Sri J.N.Mathur, Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Sanjay Singh, learned counsel for respondent no.2-U.P. Electricity Regulatory Commission (hereinafter referred to as "Regulatory Commission") and Dr. L.P.Misra with Sri Neerav Chitravanshi, learned counsel representing respondent no.3-U.P. Power Corporation Limited (hereinafter referred to as "Power Corporation"). We have perused the record available before us on this petition.

Prayers in the writ petition

2. By instituting proceedings of this Public Interest Litigation (PIL) under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, the petitioner, which is a Non Governmental Organization, has prayed that an appropriate writ or direction may be issued to respondent no.2-Regulatory Commission restraining it from going ahead with determination of final tariff for respondent no.4- Lalitpur Power Generation Company Limited (hereinafter referred to as "Generating Company") pursuant to public notice dated 23.11.2021. The other prayer made by the petitioner is that an appropriate writ or order or direction may also be issued to institute an independent investigation into the alleged collusion/conflict of interest in final tariff fixation of the Generating Company's 1980 MW (3x660MW) Thermal Power Project at Badagaon, District Lalitpur. The petitioner-foundation has also prayed that detail guidelines may also be issued by this Court to ensure thorough scrutiny of private/public bodies taking part in power tariff determination process.

Facts of the case as culled from the pleadings available on record and the submissions made by learned counsel representing the respective parties

3. (a) A Power Purchase Agreements were entered into between the Power Corporation and the Generating Company for sale of 100% saleble power generated by the Generating Company to the Power Corporation at a price to be determined by the Regulatory Commission on 15.06.2021.

(b) On 25.03.2019 the Generating Company filed a petition which was registered as Petition No.1431 of 2019 before the Regulatory Commission under Section 62 read with Section 86 (1) (a) of the Electricity Act, 2003 read with Regulation 6 of U.P. Electricity Regulatory Commission (Conduct of Business) Regulations, 2004. The said petition was filed by the Generating Company with a prayer to approve the final tariff for the applicable capacity of the Generating Company from respective Dates of Commercial Operation in relation to three units of the Power Projects of the Generating Company till 31.03.2019. Another relief sought was for ceiling capital cost of Rs.17,760.95 crores. The Generating Company also made certain prayers regarding additional capital expenditure beyond the Dates of Commercial Operation, recovery of taxes, duties, cess, levies and other charges and costs and expenses and also in relation to reimbursement of certain bank charges towards bank guarantees for availing certain benefits under the power policy.

(c) For the purposes of appointment of Designated Independent Agency (hereinafter referred to as "DIA") for conducting the prudence check and verification of capital cost of the Power Project of the Generating Company, after inviting bids, the respondent no.5-M/s Aquagreen Engineering Management Private Limited in consortium with respondent no.6-Bhushan Rastogi and Associates was appointed the DIA by the Regulatory Commission. The respondent no.5 in consortium with respondent no.6 functioning as DIA submitted its report regarding prudence check and verification of capital cost of the Power Project of the Generating Company on 29.10.2021 and recommended disallowance of Rs.592 crores as capital cost.

(d) On 23.11.2021 a notice was published by the Regulatory Commission intimating the general public that DIA had submitted its report to the Regulatory Commission on 29.10.2021 and that public hearing in this regard is scheduled on 17.01.2022. By the said notice, the Regulatory Commission required all the stakeholders to submit their comments/objections by 15.01.2022. On 17.01.2022 public hearing was held in which Power Corporation submitted its objections claiming dis-allowance of Rs. 5316.55 crores towards the capital cost as claimed by the Generating Company.

(e) It is said that on the basis of public hearing held on 17.01.2022, an order was passed by the Regulatory Commission on 24.01.2022 and according to the petitioner one Mr. Mohit Goyal is shown in the said order to have participated as Consultant of the Power Corporation, though participation of Mr Goyal as Consultant of the Power Corporation in the public hearing held on 17.01.2022 has been denied by the Regulatory Commission as also by the Power Corporation in their respective affidavits filed in reply to the writ petition. The order dated 24.01.2022 passed by the Regulatory Commission makes a mention that the Power Corporation, one Mr Awdhesh Verma, Adhyaksh, U.P. Rajya Vidyut Upbhokta Parishad and Sri Rama Shanker Awasthi, a consumer representative have submitted their comments and further that the Power Corporation submitted dis-allowance to the tune of Rs.4,643 crores to the capital cost. On 10.03.2022, the Regulatory Commission made the final determination of capital cost. Vide order dated 10.03.2022, the Commission thus finally approved the capital cost of Rs.12,727.45 crores as against the capital cost of Rs.16,574.73 crores as was claimed by the Generating Company. The Regulatory Commission thus determined the final capital cost of Rs.12,727.45 crores after prudence check and verification and also considering the comments/objections raised by the various stakeholders including the Power Corporation. The final approval of the capital cost of Rs.12,727.45 crores as against the amount of Rs.16,574.73 crores as claimed by the Generating Company has resulted in dis-allowance of an amount of Rs.3,847.28 crores. It is to be further noticed that approval of the final capital cost of the Power Projects of the Generating Company at Lalitpur as Rs.12727.45 crores is said to be less than the provisionally approved capital cost of Rs.14,269 crores which was determined by means of the order dated 07.03.2018 passed by the Regulatory Commission.

(f) The Regulatory Commission after fixing the final capital cost of the Projects of the Generating Company has directed the Generating Company to file amended tariff petition for fixation of final tariff. Thus, final tariff is to be fixed which, as asserted by the Regulatory Commission, is bound to be at lower rate as compared to the provisional tariff for the reason that the final capital cost approved by the Regulatory Commission by means of the order dated 10.03.2022 is less than the capital cost which was taken into account for approving the provisional tariff. The capital cost considered by the Regulatory Commission for approving the provisional tariff was Rs.13,555 crores whereas the final capital cost approved by the Regulatory Commission is Rs.12,727.45 crores.

(g) It is also on record that the Generating Company has not filed the amended tariff petition as directed by the Regulatory Commission by means of its order dated 10.03.2022; rather against the said order an appeal under Section 111 of Electricity Act 2003 has been prepared which is said to be pending consideration before the appellate authority.

(h) It is this process of approval of the final capital cost of the Power Projects of the Generating Company which has been assailed in the writ petition by stating that the process is sham and farce for the reason that it is vitiated by and suffers from conflict of interest inasmuch as Mr Mohit Goyal is a Managing partner of respondent no.6-Bhushan Rastogi and Associates which is the part of consortium led by respondent no.5-M/s Aquagreen Engineering Management Private Limited which was appointed as DIA and it is the same Mr. Mohit Goyal who participated as Consultant of the Power Corporation in the public hearing held on 17.01.2022 wherein objections were filed by the Power Corporation against not only the capital cost as claimed by the Generating Company but also against the recommendations made by the DIA. It is thus the case of the petitioner that Mr Mohit Goyal having participated in the submission and preparation of the recommendations made by the DIA could not be part of the team of Consultants of the Power Corporation which participated in the public hearing and submitted his objections in respect of dis-allowance of capital cost as recommended by the DIA.

Case as set up by the petitioner-Foundation

4. The petitioner-foundation has asserted that the instant petition has been filed in larger public interest as the serious conflict of interest, as narrated above, in relation to participation of Mr. Mohit Goyal in the public hearing as Consultant of the Power Corporation renders the entire process of determination of capital cost of the Project of the Generating Company a sham and in fact it will ultimately result in increase of the electricity tariff which will have to be borne by the consumers at large. The petitioner has stated that it is a Non Governmental Organization and has been taking up various social welfare causes like providing basic health in rural areas and is concerned about current state of affairs in the power industry, hence the instant public interest petition has been filed by it. The petitioner has also asserted and declared in the writ petition that the petition has been preferred purely in public interest and that the petitioner does not have any personal interest direct and indirect. The petitioner further states that it is not guided by any self gain or for a gain of any other person or institution or body and further that in filing the petition, there is no motive other than the public interest. It has also been asserted and declared that outcome of the instant petition will not lead to any undue gain either to the petitioner or to anyone else associated with it and also that it will not result of any undue loss to any person or body of the persons or even to the State.

5. It has been submitted by the petitioner that in the public hearing held by the Regulatory Commission on 17.01.2022, the Power Corporation presented its objection to the DIA's report. Further assertion is that Mr. Mohit Goyal is the Managing partner of M/s Bhushan Rastogi and Associates which is involved in preparation of DIA's report. The petitioner further asserts that Mr. Mohit Goyal was present as Consultant of the Power Corporation to submit objections on behalf of the Power Corporation to the report prepared by his own firm, namely, M/s Bhushan Rastogi and Associates. It has been stated that the respondent no.5,namely, Aquagreen Engineering Management Pvt Ltd in consortium with M/s Bhushan Rastogi and Associates was appointed by the Regulatory Commission as DIA for submitting its report on the basis of prudence check and verification of the capital cost of the Projects of the Generating Company. The petitioner has further stated that it is the same Mr. Mohit Goyal, who after being part of the process of preparation of the DIA' s report participated in the public hearing as Consultant of the Power Corporation which submitted its objections to the report prepared by the DIA.

6. The apprehension expressed in the writ petition is that DIA's report recommended dis-allowance of Rs.592 crores for the capital cost of the project whereas the Power Corporation in its objection allegedly prepared with the assistance of Mr. Mohit Goyal has recommended dis-allowance of Rs.5,316.55 crores which in the understanding of the petitioner in all probability is likely to be rejected. Submission, thus, is that such rejection consequently would lead to higher public tariff undue burden of which is to be thus borne by the general public.

7. In support of his submissions that Mr Mohit Goyal participated as Consultant of the Power Corporation in public hearing held on 17.01.2022, reliance has been placed on the order dated 24.01.2022 passed by the Regulatory Commission which is based on the public hearing held on 17.01.2022 wherein Mr Mohit Goyal has been shown to be present as Consultant of the Power Corporation.

8. Reliance has also been placed by the petitioner on the Linkedin profile wherein Mr. Mohit Goyal has been shown to be the Managing partner of the respondent no.6- M/s Bhushan Rastogi and Associates. He is also shown as a partner of another entity namely, M/s Mercados EMI.

9. It has thus been argued by Sri S.C.Misra, learned Senior Advocate that on account of involvement of Mr Mohit Goyal both with the DIA and the Power Corporation makes the entire exercise of determination of power tariff farcical on account of serious conflict of interest. It has been argued further that tariff fixation exercise undertaken by the Regulatory Commission is thus sham for the reason that the same party is involved on behalf of the DIA as also on behalf of the Power Corporation. The conflict of interest argument has, thus, been raised by the petitioner stating that once the Power Corporation has to file objection to the DIA's report, any involvement of any person connected or concerned with DIA with the Power Corporation leads to conflict of interest which ultimately affects the transparency in the process resulting in ultimate loss to the public at large who would be required to consume electricity on higher rates of the power tariff.

10. In an affidavit filed by the petitioner in support of the miscellaneous application dated 10.03.2022, it has also been asserted that Mr. Bhushan Rastogi is a Chartered Accountant and was working with Mr Mohit Goyal as Vice President (Operations) in Mohit Goyal's Company, namely, Percept 360 Degrees Consulting Limited and that M/s Bhushan Rastogi and Associates was blacklisting by the Regulatory Commission in respect of some proceedings for determination of power tariff in the year 2013-2014. It has also been stated that Mr Mohit Goyal and M/s Bhushan Rastogi and Associates have made deep and pervasive inroads in the Power Corporation and in fact they have been working and acting for the benefit of Generating Companies such as the respondent no.4- M/s Lalitpur Power Generation Company Limited.

11. The case thus put forth by the petitioner is based on argument relating to conflict of interest, as observed above, and also based on the alleged fact that the Company with which Mr. Mohit Goyal has been associated, was blacklisted by the Regulatory Commission.

12. In the light of assertion of these facts, it has thus been argued by learned Senior Advocate, Sri S.C.Misra representing the petitioner that the process of fixation of tariff, especially, the process relating to approval of final capital cost of the projects of the Generating Company as against what was projected and claimed by it is vitiated and if this process is allowed to continue, it will lead to harm the public interest inasmuch as ultimately such process would result in fixation of higher power tariff to be borne by the consumers in general. In this view, the prayer is that the Regulatory Commission be directed not to go ahead with determination of final tariff for the Generating Company and further to direct an independent investigation into the alleged collusion/conflict of interest in respect of final tariff fixation of Thermal Power Project in question.

Case put forth by the respondent no.2-Regulatory Commission in reply to the petitioner's case.

13. Sri Jaideep Narain Mathur, learned Senior Advocate representing the respondent no.2- Regulatory Commission has questioned the very maintainability of the writ petition by stating that the petition does not espouse any cause of the general public; rather it has been filed, in the garb of public interest litigation, to stall the proceedings before the Regulatory Commission for approval of final tariff of the Thermal Power Project of the Generating Company. It has further been stated by Sri Jaideep Narain Mathur, as stated in the affidavit filed in reply by the Regulatory Commission, that by means of the order passed on 05.07.2019 in the Petition No.1431 of 2019, the Regulatory Commission decided to appoint a Designated Independent Agency (DIA) on Quality and Cost based Selection (QCBS) basis. In the said process, the respondent no.5 was selected and appointed as Lead Partner in consortium with respondent no.6 as DIA for carrying out the prudence check and verification of capital cost of the project in question. It has also been stated that draft report was submitted by the DIA in the month of June, 2021 and during this presentation of the draft report several queries were raised by the Commission and certain information/clarifications were also sought from the DIA. It has further been submitted on behalf of the respondent no.2-Regulatory Commission that the DIA submitted its final report on 29.10.2021 which included reply to the queries made by the Commission on 13.08.2021. The Commission further states in the affidavit filed in reply that DIA recommended the final capital cost of the project as Rs. 15,982.52 crores and accordingly final report was made public and public notice was issued inviting comments of all the stakeholders in the public hearing which was scheduled on 17.01.2022. The Regulatory Commission in its reply has submitted that in the public hearing held on 17.01.2022 counsel and officials of the Generating Company, counsel and officials of the Power Corporation, Sri Rama Shanker Awasthi, Consumer Representative, Sri Avdhesh Verma, Adhyaksh, U.P. Rajya Vidyut Upbhokta Parishad and Sri Navin Singh from Aquagreen Projects were present. It is also stated in the affidavit filed by the Regulatory Commission that the public hearing was held through Video Conferencing and that in the said public hearing, Mr Mohit Goyal had also joined on Video Conferencing for the reason that it was an open public hearing. The affidavit further states that Mr. Mohit Goyal did not participate in the public hearing and further that the affidavit filed by the Power Corporation adequately explains the presence of Mr Goyal on its behalf. It has also been asserted in the affidavit that Mr. Mohit Goyal had not been involved on behalf of the Power Corporation in the whole process of approval of tariff for the Generating Company.

14. Sri J.N.Mathur, learned Senior Advocate has also pointed out that the petitioner though has filed this petition, however it was not present during the course of public hearing. The assertion is that if the petitioner had any genuine concerns, it was always open to it to have participated in public hearing and file objections which it desired to raise. Sri Mathur has, thus, argued that the petitioner having not participated in the public hearing and having not raised any objection before the Regulatory Commission cannot be said to have filed this petition with bonafide intentions. It has also been stated that the only intention of the petitioner is to stall the process of approval of tariff and such an attempt by the petitioner cannot be said to be in public interest for the reason that any delay if caused in approval of tariff by the Regulatory Commission may result in burdening the electricity consumers of the State with higher cost of electricity.

15. On behalf of the Regulatory Commission, it has also been stated and argued that the capital cost as claimed and projected by the Generating Company was 16,574.73 crores whereas the DIA had recommended dis-allowance of Rs.581.40 crores. Further submissions in this regard is that the Power Corporation submitted its objection to the capital cost claiming dis-allowance of Rs.5,316.55 crores.

16. It has further been pointed out by the Regulatory Commission that the petitioner did not place any objection on record of this petition as to what should be the quantum of dis-allowance. It has also been stated that the petitioner has not made any objections as to the quantum of dis-allowance or what exactly should be the capital cost of the project in question even in its representation dated 26.02.2022, which has been sent to the Regulatory Commission by registered post on 28.02.2022 and was received in the Commission on 03.03.2022. Further submission made on behalf of the Commission that the case put forth by the petitioner is based on an assumption that Power Corporation has recommended dis-allowance of Rs.5,316.55 crores as against the capital cost of Rs.16,574.73 crores claimed by the Generating Company, which is likely to be rejected and hence such rejection will result in higher power tariff.

17. Pointing out to the fact as recorded in the order dated 10.03.2022 passed by the Regulatory Commission whereby the Commission has finally approved capital cost to the tune of Rs.12,727.45 crores after prudence check and considering the objections made by various stakeholders, it has been argued that dis-allowance to the tune of Rs.3,847.28 crores has been approved by the Commission. In these facts, submission is that the very assumption on the basis of which the writ petition has been filed falls to ground and accordingly the writ petition is liable to be dismissed for the reason that final capital cost as determined by the Regulatory Commission of Rs.12727.45 is even less than the provisionally approved capital cost of Rs.14,269 crores.

18. Sri Mathur, learned counsel representing the Regulatory Commission has also stated that in the facts and the circumstances of the present case, it cannot be ruled out that the present petition has been filed as a camouflage describing itself to be public interest litigation to linger on the proceedings of approval of the final power tariff with a view to extend undue benefit to the Generating Company as against the public interest.

19. It has also been urged by the Regulatory Commission that against the order dated 10.03.2022, the Generating Company did not file amended tariff petition; rather it has challenged the said order by filing an appeal under Section 111 of the Electricity Act and since the Generating Company itself has availed the remedy of appeal before the appellate authority, present petition is nothing but an abuse of the process of the Court.

20. Regarding blacklisting, it has been stated on behalf of the Regulatory Commission that in relation to M/s Bhushan Rastogi and Associates and in respect of tariff determination for the financial year 2012-13, the Regulatory Commission had passed an order on 03.11.2015 whereby monetary compensation was directed to be paid by the firm to the tune of Rs.2,50,000/- which was deducted from its balance payment. It has also been stated that by means of the order dated 4/5.12.2014, respondent no.6-M/s Bhushan Rastogi and Associates was barred from participating in any future activity with the Regulatory Commission for a period of two years and as such blacklisting was for two years from the date of the said order. Further submission in this regard is that the respondent no.6 filed Writ Petition No.12395 (M/B) of 2014 before this Court which was disposed of by means of the order dated 16.12.2014 with the direction to the Regulatory Commission to treat the order dated 04/05.12.2014 as a show cause notice requiring the respondent no.6 to file response and thereafter the Commission was required to pass fresh order after affording opportunity of hearing to the respondent no.6. Submission further is that in deference to the said order dated 16.12.2014 passed by this Court and after considering the reply of respondent no.6, the Regulatory Commission recalled the order of blacklisting, however, maintained the order of monetary compensation of Rs.2,50,000/-.

21. Stating the aforesaid facts, it has been submitted by learned counsel representing the Regulatory Commission that the writ petition deserves to be dismissed as there is nothing on record which establishes participation of Mr Mohit Goyal in preparation and submission of the objections on behalf of the Power Corporation to the capital cost of the project in question as claimed by the Generating Company during the process of determination of capital cost. Submitting that the ground based on the alleged blacklisting of respondent no.6 is also not available to the petitioner in the facts as narrated above, Sri Mathur has thus prayed that the instant petition may be dismissed.

Case as submitted in reply to the petitioner by the respondent no.3-Power Corporation

22. In reply to the submissions made by learned counsel for petitioner-foundation, it has been stated on behalf of Power Corporation that the very basic premise of the writ petition regarding process of determination of tariff is based on assumptions and unfounded facts. It has also been argued by Dr. L.P. Misra representing the Power Corporation that the correct facts of the case would reveal that Mr Mohit Goyal was not engaged neither was he involved in the process of either preparation or presentation of objection on behalf of the Power Corporation to the capital cost claimed by the Generating Company and also to the report submitted by the DIA. He has further stated that the petitioner does not have any locus standi to file the present petition in the nature of public interest litigation for the reason that even as per its own averment the petitoner-foundation does not have any concern with the issue relating to electricity generation or its transmission or other functions related to electricity. It has also been stated that such functions are not within the domain of the objects and purpose of the petitioner-NGO. Dr. Misra has further argued that the instant petition appears to be a proxy petition on behalf of respondent no.4 and against the interest of public whereby an attempt has been made to stall the process of determination of final tariff of electricity so that the objections filed by the Power Corporation against the report of DIA in respect of capital cost as claimed by the respondent no.4 may not be considered. In the submission of learned counsel representing the Power Corporation the instant petition is vexatious and is thus liable to be dismissed with exemplary cost.

23. In reply to the merit of assertions made on behalf of the petitioner, it has been submitted by the Power Corporation that on issuance of public notice dated 23.11.2021 scheduling the public hearing on 17.01.2022 the Power Corporation constituted a Committee on 30.12.2021 for the purposes of going through the report submitted by the DIA and then to finalize the comments to be presented before the Regulatory Commission and submitted its objection on the DIA prudence check and verification report regarding capital cost as claimed by the Generating Company. The Committee constituted for the said purpose comprised of (i) Director (Corporate Planning) UPPCL, (ii) Senior Adviser to Chairman of the Power Corporation, (iii) Senior Adviser to Managing Director, U.P. Rajya Vidyut Utpadan Nigam Limited and (iv) Chief Engineer (PPA) of the Power Corporation.

24. Learned counsel for Power Corporation has taken us to the order dated 30.12.2021 constituting the Committee of five members wherein it has clearly been stated that the Committee constituted in reference to the public hearing notice dated 23.11.2021 shall go through the DIA's report and then finalize the comments given to the Regulatory Commission.

25. Further submission made on behalf of the Power Corporation is that the comments/report provided by the aforesaid Committee was shared and discussed with the counsel of Power Corporation, namely, M/s Shardul Amarchand Mangaldas & Company to prepare the reply on affidavit. It is also stated that M/s Shardul Amarchand Mangaldas & Company was engaged by the Power Corporation by means of the order dated 17.06.2019 as counsel for Corporation for preparation of application/reply/counter affidavit/counter reply/rejoinder etc. and for appearance before the Regulatory Commission for effective pleadings on behalf of the Power Corporation in respect of the petition filed by the Generating Company for determination of tariff. It is also stated by the Power Corporation that with the help of M/s Shardul Amarchand Mangaldas & Company the Power Corporation filed its comments/objections before the Regulatory Commission on 13.01.2022 on affidavit against the DIA report and in its objections the Power Corporation proposed deduction of Rs.4,642.32 crores from the capital cost as claimed by the Generating Company. Further submission is that hearing was conducted by the Regulatory Commission through Video Conferencing on 17.01.2022 and a team of legal counsel of Power Corporation, namely, M/s Shardul Amarchand Mangaldas & Company participated in the hearing on behalf of the Power Corporation and presented its objections. The team of counsel which represented the Power Corporation in the public hearing comprised of Sri Ashish Gupta, counsel UPPCL, Sri Shashwat Kumar, counsel UPPCL, Sri Rahul Chouhan, counsel UPPCL, Sri Satya Jha, counsel UPPCL and Sri Amitanshu Saxena, counsel UPPCL.

26. It has also been stated that the Committee constituted by means of the order dated 30.12.2021 further analyzed the DIA report and recommended the total dis-allowance of Rs.5,316.55 crores as against the capital cost claimed by the Generating Company and accordingly, this additional report was shared and discussed with the counsel of the Power Corporation and thereafter the additional report was also submitted in consultation/help of the M/s Shardul Amarchand Mangaldas & Company before the Regulatory Commission on 25.01.2022.

27. On behalf of the Power Corporation the submission thus is that the apprehension of the petitioner regarding conflict of interest referring to involvement of Mr Mohit Goyal as Consultant of the Power Corporation is misconceived and without any basis. It has further been stated that the Company known as "M/s Mercados Energy Markets India Private Limited' was appointed for providing regulatory support services in various public sector companies in the State of U.P. working in the field of energy by means of the order dated 17.04.2021.

28. It has been contended that one of the works under the regulatory support services is to attend public hearing on the petitions of the Generating Companies/stakeholders for determination of tariff. Sri Misra has further stated that merely because Mr Mohit Goyal, who is a Chartered Accountant and a Managing Partner of respondent no.6-M/s Bhushan Rastogi and Associates, there cannot be any legal presumption that the consortium as chosen by the Regulatory Commission through tender process shall not be working honestly, with integrity and transparently in discharge of its professional obligations. It has also been argued that scope of work assigned to M/s Mercados Energy Markets India Private Limited is to attend the public hearings before the Power Corporation and Mr Mohit Goyal is a team member of said Company and as such he might be present during the hearing before the Regulatory Commission on 17.01.2022 through Video Conferencing not particularly in respect of the present matter but in general as part of assignment to the Company appointed as Consultant. It has categorically been stated by the Power Corporation in the reply filed to the writ petition that Mr Mohit Goyal was neither consulted in the matter of preparation of objections filed before the Regulatory Commission against the report of the DIA on behalf of the Power Corporation nor has he ever represented the Power Corporation in respect of the matter in issue before any authority including the Regulatory Commission.

29. Contention of the Power Corporation further is that it is on the objections of the Power Corporation that a huge deduction of more than Rs.3000 crores towards the capital cost of the project as claimed by the Generating Company was allowed by the Regulatory Commission.

30. It has thus been argued that since final determination of the capital cost has already been made by the Regulatory Commission by means of the order dated 10.03.2022, hence the apprehension of the petitioner is incorrect and further that the writ petition itself has been rendered infructuous.

31. Submission further is that the apprehension in the mind of the petitioner also falls to ground for the reason that the DIA had recommended dis-allowance of an amount of only Rs.592 crores whereas the dis-allowance as claimed by the Power Corporation was to the tune of Rs.5,316.55 crores as a result of which, the Regulatory Commission has determined the capital cost as Rs.12,727.45 crores which is less by an amount of Rs.3,022.30 crores as against the amount claimed by the Generating Company. This fact, according to the submission made on behalf of the Power Corporation, is indicative of the fact that the present petition has not been filed with bonafide intentions; rather it is a proxy petition on behalf of the Generating Company.

32. Another issue raised by learned counsel for the Power Corporation is that against the order of final determination of capital cost of the project in question made by the Regulatory Commission by means of the order dated 10.03.2022, a remedy under Section 111 of the Electricity Act, 2003 before the appellate tribunal is available and hence this petition need not be entertained.

33. Emphasizing on these submissions, it has been urged by learned counsel representing the Power Corporation that the instant petition is neither maintainable at the behest of the petitioner-foundation nor does it stand on merits and hence is liable to be dismissed.

Issues which fall for consideration of the Court

34. On the basis of the pleadings available on record as also the submission made by learned counsel representing the parties, the following issues emerge for our consideration.

(a) As to whether the instant petition as public interest litigation is maintainable at the behest of the petitioner-foundation,

(b) As to whether the process of determination of power tariff in respect of the project in question is vitiated on account of conflict of interest as argued by the petitioner because of alleged involvement of Mr Mohit Goyal as Consultant in preparation and presentation of objection on behalf of the Power Corporation filed before the Regulatory Commission to the report submitted by the DIA and also to the capital cost as claimed by the Generating Company, in the background of the fact that he is a Managing Partner of the respondent no.6-M/s Bhushan Rastogi and Associates which in consortium with respondent no.5 was appointed as DIA.

Consideration of the issues and findings of the Court

35. First of all, we will consider the submissions made by learned counsel representing the respective parties as regards the maintainability of the writ petition as Public Interest Litigation at the behest of the petitioner-foundation.

36. The superior courts in our country while exercising jurisdiction under Articles 32 and 226 of the Constitution of India have evolved unquestionably a laudable jurisprudence in public interest and has contributed immensely to the development of public interest litigation as a means to protect the legal and constitutional rights of the public in general leaving far behind the rigid principle of locus.

37. However, in the process of evolution of public interest litigation as an instrument to protect the basic human and fundamental rights as also other legal rights of the public at large, the Courts in India have been putting words of caution from time to time in the wake of its frequently noticed misuse. It has been found by

Hon'ble Supreme Court on more than one occasion that many a times the purity of the forum of public interest litigation is misused and PILs do not espouse any public cause; rather such proceedings are used to farther sometimes personal interest and also to serve interest of some unseen other interested party in the litigation.

38. About the word of caution in entertaining the public interest litigation, we would like to refer to the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Dattaraj Nathuji Thaware vs State of Maharashtra and others, (2005) 1 SCC 590. Cautioning the Courts while entertaining a public interest litigation, Hon'ble Supreme Court observed that public interest litigation has to be used with great care and circumspection and that the judiciary has to be extremely careful to see that behind the beautiful veil of public interest an ugly private malice, vested interest and/or publicity seeking is not lurking. Para 12 of the said judgment is extracted hereunder:-

"12. Public interest litigation is a weapon which has to be used with great care and circumspection and the judiciary has to be extremely careful to see that behind the beautiful veil of public interest, an ugly private malice, vested interest and/or publicity-seeking is not lurking. It is to be used as an effective weapon in the armoury of law for delivering social justice to citizens. The attractive brand name of public interest litigation should not be used for suspicious products of mischief. It should be aimed at redressal of genuine public wrong or public injury and not be publicity-oriented or founded on personal vendetta. As indicated above, court must be careful to see that a body of persons or member of the public, who approaches the court is acting bona fide and not for personal gain or private motive or political motivation or other oblique considerations. The court must not allow its process to be abused for oblique considerations by masked phantoms who monitor at times from behind. Some persons with vested interest indulge in the pastime of meddling with judicial process either by force of habit or from improper motives, and try to bargain for a good deal as well as to enrich themselves. Often they are actuated by a desire to win notoriety or cheap popularity. The petitions of such busybodies deserve to be thrown out by rejection at the threshold, and in appropriate cases with exemplary costs."

39. In the said case, Hon'ble Supreme Court further laid down that a Court has to be satisfied about the credentials of the person approaching the Court, the prima facie correctness of the information given by the petitioner and the information being not vauge and indefinite. Hon'ble Supreme Court further observed in the said judgment that the courts must do justice by promotion of good faith and prevent the law from crafty invasions. Paragraph 15 of the said judgment is reproduced herein:-

"15.Courts must do justice by promotion of good faith, and prevent law from crafty invasions. Courts must maintain the social balance by interfering where necessary for the sake of justice and refuse to interfere where it is against the social interest and public good. (SeeState of Maharashtrav.Prabhu[(1994) 2 SCC 481 : 1994 SCC (L&S) 676 : (1994) 27 ATC 116] andA.P. State Financial Corpn.v.GAR Re-Rolling Mills[(1994) 2 SCC 647 : AIR 1994 SC 2151] .) No litigant has a right to unlimited draught on the court time and public money in order to get his affairs settled in the manner as he wishes. Easy access to justice should not be misused as a licence to file misconceived and frivolous petitions. [SeeBuddhi Kota Subbarao (Dr.)v.K. Parasaran[(1996) 5 SCC 530 : 1996 SCC (Cri) 1038 : JT (1996) 7 SC 235] .] Today people rush to courts to file cases in profusion under this attractive name of public interest. They must inspire confidence in courts and among the public."

40. In the case of R & M Trust vs. Koramangala Residents Vigilance Group and others (2005) 3 SCC 91, Hon'ble Supreme Court again observed that though the public interest litigation is undoubtedly a very useful handle for redressing the grievances of the people but unfortunately lately it has been abused by some interested persons. The Court further observed that the Courts should be very very slow in entertaining petitions allegedly filed in public interest as this jurisdiction is meant for the purpose of coming to the rescue of the downtrodden and not for the purpose of serving private ends. Paragraph 24 of the judgment in the case of R & M Trust (supra) runs as under:-

"24. Public interest litigation is no doubt a very useful handle for redressing the grievances of the people but unfortunately lately it has been abused by some interested persons and it has brought a very bad name. Courts should be very very slow in entertaining petitions involving public interest : in very rare cases where the public at large stand to suffer. This jurisdiction is meant for the purpose of coming to the rescue of the downtrodden and not for the purpose of serving private ends. It has now become common for unscrupulous people to serve their private ends and jeopardise the rights of innocent people so as to wreak vengeance for their personal ends. This has become very handy to the developers and in matters of public contracts. In order to serve their professional rivalry they utilise the service of the innocent people or organisation in filing public interest litigation. The courts are sometimes persuaded to issue certain directions without understanding the implications and giving a handle in the hands of the authorities to misuse it. Therefore, the courts should not exercise this jurisdiction lightly but should exercise in very rare and few cases involving public interest of a large number of people who cannot afford litigation and are made to suffer at the hands of the authorities. The parameters have already been laid down in a decision of this Court in the case ofBalco Employees' Union (Regd.)v.Union of India[(2002) 2 SCC 333] wherein this Court has issued guidelines as to what kind of public interest litigation should be entertained and all the previous cases were reviewed by this Court. It was observed as under : (SCC pp. 376-77, paras 77-80)

"77. Public interest litigation, or PIL as it is more commonly known, entered the Indian judicial process in 1970. It will not be incorrect to say that it is primarily the judges who have innovated this type of litigation as there was a dire need for it. At that stage, it was intended to vindicate public interest where fundamental and other rights of the people who were poor, ignorant or in socially or economically disadvantageous position and were unable to seek legal redress were required to be espoused. PIL was not meant to be adversarial in nature and was to be a cooperative and collaborative effort of the parties and the court so as to secure justice for the poor and the weaker sections of the community who were not in a position to protect their own interests. Public interest litigation was intended to mean nothing more than what words themselves said viz. "litigation in the interest of the public'.

78. While PIL initially was invoked mostly in cases connected with the relief to the people and the weaker sections of the society and in areas where there was violation of human rights under Article 21, but with the passage of time, petitions have been entertained in other spheres, Prof. S.B. Sathe has summarised the extent of the jurisdiction which has now been exercised in the following words:

"PIL may, therefore, be described as satisfying one or more of the following parameters. These are not exclusive but merely descriptive:

-- Where the concerns underlying a petition are not individualist but are shared widely by a large number of people (bonded labour, undertrial prisoners, prison inmates). -- Where the affected persons belong to the disadvantaged sections of society (women, children, bonded labour, unorganised labour etc.).

-- Where judicial law-making is necessary to avoid exploitation (inter-country adoption, the education of the children of prostitutes).

-- Where judicial intervention is necessary for the protection of the sanctity of democratic institutions (independence of the judiciary, existence of grievances redressal forums).

--Where administrative decisions related to development are harmful to the environment and jeopardise people's right to natural resources such as air or water.'

79. There is, in recent years, a feeling which is not without any foundation that public interest litigation is now tending to become publicity interest litigation or private interest litigation and has a tendency to be counterproductive.

80. PIL is not a pill or a panacea for all wrongs. It was essentially meant to protect basic human rights of the weak and the disadvantaged and was a procedure which was innovated where a public-spirited person files a petition in effect on behalf of such persons who on account of poverty, helplessness or economic and social disabilities could not approach the court for relief. There have been in recent times, increasingly instances of abuse of PIL. Therefore, there is a need to re-emphasise the parameters within which PIL can be resorted to by a petitioner and entertained by the court. This aspect has come up for consideration before this Court and all we need to do is to recapitulate and re-emphasise the same."

41. To put forward the legal proposition that even private interest can also be treated as public interest, learned Senior Advocate Sri S.C.Mishra representing the petitioner has relied upon the following cases, (1) Shivajirao Nilangekar Patil vs. Mahesh Madhav Gosavi (Dr.) and others, (1987) 1 SCC 227, (2) Indian Banks' Association Bombay and others vs. Devkala Consultancy Service and others, (2004) 11 SCC 1, and (3) Akhil Bhartiya Upbhokta Congress vs. State of M.P. (2011) 5 SCC 29.

42. Sri Mishra has also relied upon the case of Vishwanath Chaturvedi (3) vs. Union of India and others, reported in (2007) 4 SCC 380 for buttressing his argument on behalf of the petitioner that if the petitioner shows failure of public duty, the Court would be in error in dismissing the public interest litigation.

43. When we peruse the judgments cited by learned Senior Advocate Sri S.C.Mishra in the cases of Shivajirao

Nilangekar Patil (supra), Indian Banks' Association Bombay and others (supra) and Akhil Bhartiya Upbhokta Congress (supra), what we find is that Hon'ble Supreme Court in the said cases has observed that in the given facts and circumstances of the case, a private litigation may assume the character of public interest litigation when some material is brought to the notice of the Court to farther the public interest. Hon'ble Supreme Court has also held in the case of Indian Banks' Association Bombay and others (supra) that in appropriate case where the petitioner might have moved a court in his private interest and for redressal of his personal grievances, the Court in furtherance of public interest may treat it as necessary to enquire the state of affairs of the subject of litigation in the interest of justice and thus a private interest can also be treated as public interest case. The judgment in the case of Shivajirao Nilangekar Patil (supra) has been relied upon by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Akhil Bhartiya Upbhokta Congress (supra) wherein it has been observed that even if a person files a writ petition for vindication of his private interest but raises question of public importance involving exercise of power by men in authority then it becomes the duty of the Court to enquire into such a matter.

44. So far as the aforesaid proposition as approved by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the cases of Shivajirao Nilangekar Patil (supra), Indian Banks' Association Bombay and others (supra) and Akhil Bhartiya Upbhokta Congress (supra) is concerned, there cannot be any quarrel to such legal proposition, however the said judgments do not have any application to the facts of the present case for the reason that the instant petition has not been filed initially for vindication of any personal interest or grievance of the petitioner-foundation. The petition rather has been filed alleging that in case the process of determination of final tariff is allowed to go on, the same being vitiated, will result in increased power tariff, burden of which will have to be borne by the consumers of electricity i.e. public in general.

45. We may also refer to yet another judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of State of Uttaranchal vs. Balwant Singh Chaufal and others, (2010) 3 SCC 402, wherein the Hon'ble Supreme Court tracing the history of development of public interest litigation and also noticing its possible misuse has issued certain directions in order to preserve the purity and sanctity of public interest litigation. The said directions can be found in paragraph 181 of the report which is extracted herein below:-

"181. We have carefully considered the facts of the present case. We have also examined the law declared by this Court and other courts in a number of judgments. In order to preserve the purity and sanctity of the PIL, it has become imperative to issue the following directions:

(1) The Courts must encourage genuine and bona fide PIL and effectively discourage and curb the PIL filed for extraneous considerations.

(2) Instead of every individual Judge devising his own procedure for dealing with the public interest litigation, it would be appropriate for each High Court to properly formulate rules for encouraging the genuine PIL and discouraging the PIL filed with oblique motives. Consequently, we request that the High Courts who have not yet framed the rules, should frame the rules within three months. The Registrar

General of each High Court is directed to ensure that a copy of the rules prepared by the High Court is sent to the Secretary General of this Court immediately thereafter.

(3) The Courts should prima facie verify the credentials of the petitioner before entertaining a PIL.

(4) The Courts should be prima facie satisfied regarding the correctness of the contents of the petition before entertaining a PIL.

(5) The Courts should be fully satisfied that substantial public interest is involved before entertaining the petition.

(6) The Courts should ensure that the petition which involves larger public interest, gravity and urgency must be given priority over other petitions.

(7) The Courts before entertaining the PIL should ensure that the PIL is aimed at redressal of genuine public harm or public injury. The Court should also ensure that there is no personal gain, private motive or oblique motive behind filing the public interest litigation.

(8) The Courts should also ensure that the petitions filed by busybodies for extraneous and ulterior motives must be discouraged by imposing exemplary costs or by adopting similar novel methods to curb frivolous petitions and the petitions filed for extraneous considerations."

46. One of the observations made by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Balwant Singh Chaufal and others (supra) is that it would be appropriate for each High Court to properly formulate the rules for encouraging the genuine PILs and discouraging the PILs filed with oblique motives. It is in the light of the said observations made in para 181 (2) in the case of Balwant Singh Chaufal and others (supra) that Rule 3A in Chapter XXII in the Allahabad High Court Rules has been inserted which requires the person approaching this Court in a public interest litigation to make certain declaration.

47. Thus, from the aforesaid discussion, it is more than clear that the Courts in India have been encouraging the genuine PILs, however, they are also expected to exercise cautioned about the misuse of the PILs being filed with oblique and malafide purposes.

48. As to whether the instant public interest litigation needs to be entertained in light of the aforesaid principles laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court as also in the case of Vishwanath Chaturvedi (3) (supra), thus, needs to be considered by this Court. In the case of Vishwanath Chaturvedi (3) (supra), the Hon'ble Supreme Court has laid down the principle that a public interest litigation filed by a political opponent can be entertained. Thus, the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the matter of PIL has been pleased to further relax the rule of locus, however while doing so the Hon'ble Supreme Court has laid down a test for entertaining a public interest litigation. In the case of Vishwanath Chaturvedi (supra), it has been held by Hon'ble Supreme Court that the ultimate test to entertain a writ petition is as to whether the allegations contained in public interest petition have any substance. Thus, the test to entertain public interest litigation at the behest of a party-petitioner, who does not have any direct grievance with the subject matter of the petition is as to whether allegations contained in such a PIL need some kind of inquiry/investigation by the Court entertaining the petition.

49. On examination of the allegations in the writ petition if the same are found to be correct, it may result in increase of the power tariff which ultimately may affect the consumers of electricity i.e. the public in general. However, the primary scrutiny by the Court for entertaining a public interest litigation for the purposes of deciding its maintainability has to be confined to the nature of allegations and not to the veracity and correctness or otherwise of such allegations.

50. On consideration of the allegations made by the petitioner in this case, what we find is that the allegations relate to conflict of interest on account of alleged participation of the same person in preparation of the report by the DIA as also in preparation and putting forth the objection to the same DIA report before the Regulatory Commission on behalf of the Power Corporation.

51. Accordingly, having regard to the nature of allegations (without commenting, at this juncture, their veracity or correctness), we are of the opinion that the instant petition is maintainable at the behest of the petitioner-foundation.

52. Coming to the basis and grounds raised in this petition by the petitioner that the process of determination of power tariff in respect of the project of respondent no.4, is erroneous on account of the fact that the process suffers from the vice of conflict of interest, what this Court needs to determine is as to whether in the facts of the case, there is any conflict of interest which vitiates the process.

53. Submission made on behalf of the petitioner in this regard is that Mr Mohit Goyal who is a partner of respondent no.6, was appointed as DIA in consortium with respondent no.5 and as such Mr Mohit Goyal has sufficient interest in the matter for the reason that it is this consortium which acting as DIA had submitted its prudence check and verification report regarding the capital cost as claimed by the respondent no.4.

54. Contention is that Mr Mohit Goyal having participated in the preparation of DIA report as partner of respondent no.6-M/s Bhushan Rastogi & Associates, could not have been permitted to act as Consultant of the Power Corporation while preparing and presenting its objection to the DIA report in the public hearing held by the Regulatory Commission.

55. It is not in dispute that Mr Mohit Goyal is a partner of respondent no.6-Bhushan Rastogi & Associates. It is also not in dispute that respondent no.5 in consortium with respondent no.6 was appointed as DIA. Thus, the possibility of Mr Mohit Goyal as a partner of respondent no.6 cannot be ruled out in preparation of report submitted by the DIA before the Regulatory Commission, if it is established on the basis of pleadings available on record.

56. However, so far as participation of same Mr Mohit Goyal as Consultant in preparation and presentation of objection to the DIA report and also to the claim of respondent no.4 in respect of capital cost, it needs to be ascertained on the basis of pleadings available on record. The petitioner has strongly relied upon the order dated 24.01.2022 passed by the Regulatory Commission which is based on the public hearing dated 17.01.2022 wherein Mr Mohit Goyal has been shown to be present as Consultant of the Power Corporation.

57. On the other hand, the affidavit filed by the Power Corporation categorically states that services of Mr

Mohit Goyal were never hired as Consultant in the present matter. The affidavit filed by the Power Corporation rather states that on issuance of notice for public hearing, a Committee comprising of four persons which included the Director (Corporate Planning), UPPCL and other members from the Power Corporation and U.P. Rajya Vidyut Utpadan Nigam Limited was constituted to go through the DIA report and then finalize the comments to be submitted to the Regulatory Commission. The Committee was constituted by the Chairman of the Power Corporation by means of an order dated 30.12.2021 which clearly directed the Committee to go through the DIA report and then finalize the comments to be furnished to the Regulatory Commission. In the affidavit, certain other documents have been brought on record by the Power Corporation, according to which M/s Shardul Amarchand Mangaldas & Company was engaged by the Power Corporation way back on 17.06.2019 for preparation of pleadings to be filed before the Regulatory Commission and also for appearance before the said Commission on behalf of the Power Corporation in respect of the petition filed by respondent no.4 for determination of power tariff. The documents filed by the Power Corporation also show that on 17.01.2020 a team of legal counsel from M/s. Shardul Amarchand Mangaldas & Company comprising of five counsel were present before the public hearing and it is this team that presented the objections to DIA report. It is also to be noticed that even the additional objections recommending total dis-allowance of Rs.5,316.55 crores from the capital cost as claimed by the respondent no.4 was shared and discussed with M/s. Shardul Amarchand Mangaldas & Company and it was accordingly submitted before the Regulatory Commission by the counsel representing the Power Corporation.

58. The categorical submission on behalf of the Power Corporation in the affidavit filed in reply to the petition is that Mr Mohit Goyal was neither consulted in the matter of preparation of objections filed before the Regulatory Commission against the report of DIA nor did he represent the Power Corporation before any authority including the Regulatory Commission.

59. From the documents available on record, especially, the affidavit in reply filed by the Power Corporation to the averments made in the writ petition, what is clear is that the Power Corporation had constituted a team of four high level officers all working in the Power Corporation/U.P. Rajya Vidyut Utpadan Nigam Limited for the purposes of studying the DIA report and preparing the comments. The Power Corporation had also appointed M/s. Shardul Amarchand Mangaldas & Company as its Consultant for preparation of pleadings to be filed before the Regulatory Commission which will include objections to the DIA report. It appears to us that objections and pleadings in respect of DIA on behalf of the Power Corporation were prepared and filed by the team constituted by the Chairman of the Power Corporation by means of the order dated 30.12.2021 in consultation with M/s. Shardul Amarchand Mangaldas & Company.

60. Even the affidavit filed in reply to the writ petition by the Regulatory Commission categorically states that the public hearing was held through Video Conferencing and in the said hearing though Mr Mohit Goyal joined on Video Conferencing, since it is an open public hearing, however he did not participate in the public hearing on behalf of the Power Corporation.

61. What thus is clear is that Mr Mohit Goyal might have been present during the course of public hearing before the Regulatory Commission on Video Conferencing, however, he does not seem to have participated in the said hearing on behalf of the Power Corporation. Objections to the DIA report as also to the capital cost as claimed by the respondent no.4 were prepared by the Committee constituted for the said purpose by the Chairman of the Power Corporation in consultation with the M/s Shardul Amarchand Mangaldas & Company.

62. Merely because in the order dated 24.01.2022 Mr Mohit Goyal is shown to be present would not necessarily mean that he had participated in the public hearing on behalf of the Power Corporation. There is a categorical and emphatic denial by the Regulatory Commission of any participation of Mr. Goyal in the public hearing. Mere presence through Video Conferencing during the course of public hearing would thus not necessarily lead to an indefeasible conclusion that Mr Mohit Goyal had participated on behalf of the Power Corporation in the public hearing.

63. As already observed and found above, objections to the DIA's report as also to the capital cost as claimed by the respondent no.4 were prepared by the Committee constituted by the Chairman of the Power Corporation in consultation with the Law Consultants as aforesaid and hence we do not find any material on record of this case to infer that Mr Mohit Goyal had played any role in preparation of the objections to the DIA report and to the claim of capital cost put forth by the respondent no.4 i.e. the Generating Company.

64. Having regard to the material available on record before us on this case and in view of the aforesaid discussions, we do not find ourselves in agreement with learned counsel for petitioner that the proceedings relating to determination of power tariff are vitiated because of the vice of conflict of interest on account of alleged participation of Mr Mohit Goyal in the public hearing as Consultant of the Power Corporation before the Regulatory Commission. We also notice that the petitioner in the entire writ petition has nowhere stated as to what according to it should be the capital cost of the projects of respondent no.4 for the purposes of determination of tariff. Even in the representation made by the petitioner to the Regulatory Commission nowhere has it been stated or disclosed by the petitioner as to what should be taken to be the capital cost of the projects of the respondent no.4 for the purposes of determination of power tariff in question.

65. Nothing has been shown to us which indicate that the petitioner ever participated in the public hearing pursuant to the notice issued for the said purpose by the Regulatory Commission, dated 23.11.2021. If in respect of quantum or amount of the capital cost as either claimed by respondent no.4 for its project or as recommended by the DIA, the petitioner had any objection, it would have been more appropriate for the petitioner to have participated in the public hearing before the Regulatory Commission and filed its objection. The Electricity Regulatory Commission is a statutory body and there cannot be any presumption that in case the petitioner would have raised the objections regarding the capital cost as claimed by the respondent no.4 or it would have filed objection to the DIA report, the same would not have been considered. However, instead of participating in the public hearing and making its objections, the petitioner straightaway filed this public interest petition.

66. There is yet another reason why this Court need not interfere in this petition despite having held this public interest petition to be maintainable and the reason is that by means of the order dated 10.03.2022 the Regulatory Commission has finally approved the capital cost after prudence check and verification and considering the objections raised by the various stakeholders which has resulted in dis-allowance of certain amount from the capital cost claimed by the respondent no.4. Against the order dated 10.03.2022 passed by the Regulatory Commission, the respondent no.4 has preferred a statutory appeal under Section 111 of the Electricity Act, which is said to be pending.

67. As regards the blacklisting of respondent no.6 by the Regulatory Commission in the year 2013-14, we may only observe that pursuant to the order dated 16.12.2014 passed by this Court in Writ Petition No.12395 (M/S) of 2014 the matter was reconsidered and the order of blacklisting was recalled while maintaining the order of monetary compensation against respondent no.6. This assertion made by the petitioner loses its significance in view of the findings recorded by us above that Mr Mohit Goyal was neither appointed by the Power Corporation as Consultant to present its objections before the Electricity Regulatory Commission nor was he ever engaged by the Power Corporation for the said purpose.

68. From what has been noticed and found hereinabove, we are of the opinion that the petitioner has not been able to establish the allegations made in the writ petition in respect of the process of determination of tariff being vitiated on account of the vice of conflict of interest as alleged against Mr Mohit Goyal. In respect of this issue, we thus conclude accordingly.

Order

69. For all the reasons given above, we find that the writ petition lacks merit which is hereby dismissed.

70. However, there will be no order as to cost.

A. Service Law – Absorption - In the light of the Circular dated 28.3.2001 which refers to the GO dated 7.5.1999, it is found that the Circular and the GO presupposes the existence of a post. As per the GO dated 7.5.1999 the post is to be identified and the reservation applied. In the event any post remains unfilled, the same is permitted to be carried over to the next selection. Admittedly, the post of Cane Weaver/Chair Weaver has been created on 30.1.2015 under orders of His Excellency the Governor of the St. of U.P. and the petitioner/respondent has been appointed on 11.2.2015. The post of Cane Weaver/Chair Weaver has thus come in existence only in the year 2015 pursuant to the proposal envisaged under the GO dated 7.5.1999 and 28.3.2001. In such view of the matter, the learned Single Judge fell in error in directing that the petitioner shall be considered to be absorbed from the date of issuance of the order dated 28.3.2001 and shall be entitled to all the benefits admissible to a regular employee and the order of the learned Single Judge is liable to be modified. (Para 8)

Inpugned order is modified and directions are issued that the petitioner shall be considered to be absorbed from the date of his appointment i.e. 11.2.2015 and shall be entitled to all the benefits admissible to a regular employee. (Para 9)

Special appeal allowed. (E-4)

Precedent followed:

1. U.O.I. & anr. Vs National Federation of the Blind & ors., (2013) 10 SCC 772 (Para 6)

Present special appeal assails judgment and order dated 19.02.2020, passed by learned Single Judge in Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 70254 of 2011.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pritinker Diwaker, J. & Hon'ble Ashutosh Srivastava, J.)

1. This intra court appeal has been filed questioning the judgment and order dated 19.2.2020 passed by the learned Single Judge in Writ-A No. 70245 of 2011 (Ram Rekha versus Principal Secretary Revenue, State of U.P. and others) whereby the writ petition has been allowed and at the same time, it has been held that the petitioner/respondent shall be considered to be absorbed from the date of issuance of the order No. 598/65/1-2001-W(4)/97 dated 28.3.2001 and shall be entitled to all the benefits admissible to a regular employee.

2. The record reveals that the writ petition giving rise to the present intra-court appeal was filed seeking issuance of a writ of mandamus commanding the respondents to create a post of Cane Weaver in District Mau in compliance of the Circular dated 28.3.2001 and provide regular appointment to the petitioner thereof and to pay him regular salary.

3. It was alleged in the writ petition that the petitioner/respondent is a 100% visually handicapped person, which has been duly certified by a certificate dated 26.6.1990 issued by the Chief Medical Officer, Faizabad, U.P., in terms of Government Order dated 7.4.1981. The petitioner has undergone training of Cane Weaver and has been issued Apprentice Cane Weaver Certificate. The petitioner was initially engaged on 5.5.1995 for one month for repairing chairs through cane weaving in the office of the District Magistrate, Mau on daily wages of Rs.35/- per day, which engagement was continued from time to time under the orders of the District Magistrate up to the year 2011. It was asserted in the writ petition that a policy decision have been taken vide Government Order dated 7.5.1999 for absorption of handicapped persons on the posts of identified Group 'C' and 'D'. A Circular dated 28.3.2001 was also issued in which it was mentioned that if the post identified for being filled up by a handicapped person could not be filled, the vacancy would be carried over to the next selection. It was also stated in the writ petition that pursuant to the Government

Order dated 7.5.1999, the post of Cane Weaver was identified for reservation of visually handicapped persons and in case, any handicapped person could not be selected or appointed on the vacancy reserved for visually handicapped person, then one vacancy would be kept aside for being filled up on priority basis by a visually handicapped person. Since, the petitioner was continuing on the post of Cane Weaver, he approached the Principal Secretary (Revenue) by way of representation in the year 2001 seeking regularization of his services. However, the regularization was declined on the ground that there was no post available. The petitioner thereafter made various other representations seeking regularization, but all efforts were in vain as the relief of regularization was refused on the ground that no post of Cane Weaver was created by the Government.

4. The writ petition of the petitioner/respondent was entertained and a detailed interim order was passed on 5.5.2014. In compliance whereof, the District Magistrate, Mau is stated to have written to the Government for creation of post and at the same time as a measure of compliance, the petitioner was directed to be engaged on minimum of pay scale for a period of one month subject to the final orders passed in the writ petition. It appears that the efforts of the petitioner bore some fruits and the Principal Secretary (Revenue) issued a Government Order dated 30.1.2015 mentioning therein that His Excellency the Governor of State of U.P., had approved of a creation of post of Class IV for the office of the Collectorate, Mau in the pay scale of Rs.5,200-20,200 with the Grade Pay of Rs.1800/- and that on the said newly created post, the petitioner will be absorbed.

5. By a second order dated 11.2.2015, the petitioner/ respondent was appointed on purely temporary post, subject to final orders passed in the writ petition filed by the petitioner.

6. The learned Single Judge by order impugned has proceeded to allow the writ petition observing that there was no denial of the district authorities or even by the Department of Revenue of the petitioner being 100% visually handicapped person or that he had been working as Cane Weaver with effect from 1995 @ Rs.35/- on daily wages. There was also no denial of the policy decision taken by the Government by issuance of Government Order dated 7.5.1999 for reserving the post of visually handicapped persons in Group 'C' and 'D' services of the State and also of the Government Order dated 28.3.2001 and proposal to create a post of Cane Weaver/Chair Weaver and for its identification as a post reserved for visually handicapped person. The learned Single Judge while allowing the writ petition has also noted the fact that the case of the petitioner/respondent was unique in the sense that although the policy decision was taken and identification of the post meant for visually handicapped person of Cane Weaver was done by the Government, but no further action was taken to implement the said policy decision taken under Government Orders dated 7.5.1999 and 28.3.2001. The learned Single Judge in terms of the ratio of the decision of the Apex Court in the case of Union of India and another versus National Federation of the Blind and others, (2013) 10 SCC 772 proceeded to direct the respondent to continue with the post created for District Mau by the order dated 30.01.2015 of His Excellency the Governor of the State of U.P. and issued the impugned directions.

7. Smt. Subhash Rathi, learned counsel for the appellant while assailing the order of the learned Single Judge submits that the learned Single Judge fell in error in directing the petitioner to be absorbed from the date of issuance of the order dated 28.3.2001 inasmuch as the post in question came to be created only under orders of His Excellency the Governor of the State of U.P., dated 30.1.2015. According to her, since the post was not available on 28.3.2001, as it was created only on 30.1.2015 against which the petitioner/respondent was appointed on 11.2.2015, the services of the petitioner could not be regularized from 28.3.2001 along with all service benefits and in such view of the matter, the order of the learned Single Judge is liable to be set side or suitably modified.

8. In the opinion of the Court, the submission advanced by Smt. Rathi on behalf of the appellants has substance. Testing the submissions in the light of the Circular dated 28.3.2001 which refers to the Government Order dated 7.5.1999 filed as Annexure-12 to the writ petition, we find that the Circular and the Government Order presupposes the existence of a post. As per the Government Order dated 7.5.1999 the post is to be identified and the reservation applied. In the event any post remains unfilled, the same is permitted to be carried over to the next selection. Admittedly, the post of Cane Weaver/Chair Weaver has been created on 30.1.2015 under orders of His Excellency the Governor of the State of U.P. and the petitioner/respondent has been appointed on 11.2.2015. The post of Cane Weaver/Chair Weaver has thus come in existence only in the year 2015 pursuant to the proposal envisaged under the Government Order dated 7.5.1999 and 28.3.2001. In such view of the matter, we are of the opinion that the learned Single Judge fell in error in directing that the petitioner shall be considered to be absorbed from the date of issuance of the order dated 28.3.2001 and shall be entitled to all the benefits admissible to a regular employee and the order of the learned Single Judge is liable to be modified.

9. Accordingly, we modify the order impugned and direct that the petitioner shall be considered to be absorbed from the date of his appointment i.e. 11.2.2015 and shall be entitled to all the benefits admissible to a regular employee. The intra court appeal is allowed to the extent indicated above.

Present petition assails orders dated 07.09.2019 and 22.09.2021, passed by Managing Director, U.P. St. Agro Industrial Corporation Ltd., Lucknow.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Sangeeta Chandra, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and Shri Shri Kant Shukla, learned counsel for the respondent nos. 2 to 4.

2. This petition has been filed challenging the order dated 07.09.2019 passed by the respondent no. 2 and also the order dated 22.09.2021 passed by the respondent no. 2, in so far as it relates to the petitioner. He has also prayed for a writ of mandamus to the respondents to produce the record of the 146th meeting of the Board of Directors dated 30.03.2000 and set aside the ban imposed on compassionate appointment and to direct the respondents to consider the case of the petitioner for compassionate appointment under Dying in Harness Rules, 1974.

3. It has been argued by the learned counsel for the petitioner that father of the petitioner late Mohar Singh died in harness while working on the post of Sales Officer in Maudaha, Chitrakoot Dham, Division Banda on 27.05.2019. The petitioner is post graduate from Rohilkhand University and is also Diploma holder in Software Technical from Private Institute. He being eligible for appointment on compassionate ground had filed an application for the same on 19.06.2019. In the said application, the financial hardships being faced by the petitioner and also his family members is mentioned. After completing all formalities for compassionate appointment, when no decision was taken thereon, the mother of the petitioner filed Writ Petition No. 17923 of 2019 which was disposed of by this Court on 16.11.2019 directing the mother of the petitioner to file a representation which should be decided by the authorities concerned by means of a reasoned and speaking order. The mother of the petitioner Smt. Savitri Devi thereafter made a fresh representation and when no heed was paid, she filed a Contempt Application No. 3130 of 2021. After such Contempt Application was filed, the case of the petitioner had been rejected by the order dated 22.09.2021 saying that in terms of Government Order dated 22.01.2000, the scheme for compassionate appointment is not applicable to U.P. State of Agro Industrial Corporation.

4. It has been submitted by the learned counsel for the petitioner that in pursuance of Government Order dated 22.01.2000 some meeting was held by the Board of Directors on 30.03.2000 details of which have not been given to the petitioner, despite his repeated requests.

5. Shri S.K. Shukla, learned counsel for the respondents has relied upon his counter affidavit, wherein it has been stated that by means of Government Order issued by the Competent Authority dated 22.01.2000, the Scheme for compassionate appointment was withdrawn in so far as the U.P. State Agro Industrial Corporation was concerned it was running into huge losses.

6. In pursuance of such Government Order, the Board of Directors in their 146th meeting held on 30.03.2000 by Agenda No. 6 decided to do away with the Scheme of compassionate appointment.

7. The counsel for the respondents also placed reliance upon by orders passed by this Court in Writ A No. 8009 of 2008 (Pankaj Singh versus State of U.P. and others) and in Writ A No. 70690 of 2006 (Gaurav Singh Chauhan versus State of U.P. and Others) decided on 21.12.2012 and 08.01.2013 respectively, wherein the Court took note of the Government Order dated 22.01.2000 and the consequential Resolution of the Board dated 30.03.2000.

8. The counsel for the petitioner on the other hand has opposed such submissions. According to him, the petitioner's father died on 24.02.1999 and therefore, the Government Order dated 22.01.2000 shall not have retrospective operation.

9. Having considered the submissions made by the counsel for the parties at bar, this Court has to consider the question as to "whether sitting in extra ordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India this Court can force the respondents to act against the law; or issue a writ of mandamus to grant appointment to the petitioner on compassionate ground in the absence of any scheme for such compassionate appointment being prevalent case of the respondents?"

10. The SC in the case of Life Insurance Corporation vs. Asha Ramchandra Ambekar 1994 (2) SCC 718 has held that courts cannot order appointment on compassionate grounds dehors the provisions of the statutory regulations and instructions and that hardship of a candidate does not entitle him to compassionate appointment dehors the Statutory Provisions. Also, it is settled law that norms prevailing on the date of consideration of the appointment would be the basis of considering claim for compassionate appointment.

11. Such law has been reiterated by the SC in N.C. Santhosh versus State of Karnataka 2020 (7) SCC 617.

12. This Court in Writ A No. 3954 of 2011 (Gajendra Singh versus State of U.P. and Others) and in *Writ Petition No. 54673 of 2005 (Prem Pal versus State of U.P. and others) as also in the case of Pankaj Singh (Supra) and Gaurav Sngh Chauhan (Supra) has considered the provisions of Government Order dated 22.01.2000 which was issued withdrawing the scheme of Compassionate Appointment on the ground of financial hardship faced by the U.P. State Agro Industrial Corporation. The Court has also considered the Resolution passed in the 146th meeting of Board of Directors. The Court came to the conclusion that in the absence of any scheme for compassionate appointment no mandamus can be issued to the U.P. State Agro Industrial Corporation to grant compassionate appointment to the writ petitioners therein.

13. This Court in Special Appeal No. 1737 of 2011 (Jagdish Kumar versus State of U.P. and Others) has also held that Dying in Harness Rules, 1974 are not applicable to the U.P. State Agro Industrial Corporation.

14. This Court is of the considered opinion that extra ordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India cannot be exercised by this Court directing the respondents to give compassionate appointment to the petitioner in the absence of any scheme prevalent in the respondents Corporation.

15. The writ petition stands dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Sangeeta Chandra, J.)

1. Heard Sri H.R. Mishra, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Chandra Bhan Gupta, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Jai Bahadur Singh, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the respondent nos.2 to 4 and the learned Standing Counsel appearing on behalf of the respondent nos.1 and 5.

2. This petition has been filed praying for a direction to be issued to the respondent no. 3, Secretary and Chief Executive Officer, District Cooperative Bank Limited, Fatehpur to make payment of salary to the petitioner as per order dated 23.10.2021 passed by the Deputy Commissioner and Deputy Registrar (Cooperative), Prayagraj Division, Prayagraj along with admissible interest thereon.

3. It is the case of the petitioner that he was posted as Branch Manager in District Cooperative Bank Ltd., Fatehpur (hereinafter referred to as "the Bank'). He was placed under suspension on 28.03.2017. The petitioner filed a writ petition, namely, Writ A No.9280 of 2020 for reinstatement and revocation of suspension order and conclusion of the disciplinary proceedings which had been going on for a long time. The Court finally disposed of the petition on 04.11.2020 by referring to Regulation 85(x) of U.P. Co-operative Societies Employees' Service Regulations, 1975 (hereinafter referred to as "the Regulations, 1975') that no employee shall ordinarily remain under suspension for more than 6 months except when suspension is made on a criminal charge on the direction of the competent Court; by observing that appropriate orders be passed by the competent Authority to conclude the matter of disciplinary proceedings within a period of 30 days from the date of order, failing which, the order of suspension shall stand revoked and the petitioner would be entitled to reinstatement and payment of salary.

4. In pursuance of the said order passed by this Court on 04.11.2020, the Committee of Management by its order dated 25.11.2020, had taken a decision to conclude the disciplinary proceedings and to reinstate the petitioner treating his suspension period as period spent on duty with a punishment of stoppage of 3 increments with cumulative effect. No salary/subsistence allowance was to be paid to the petitioner for the period in which he remained suspended. In pursuance of the decision of the Committee of Management dated 25.11.2020, the responded no.3 passed an order on 15.12.2020 and the petitioner joined his services. He however was retired on 31.01.2021. In pursuance of the impugned order, the petitioner was suffering financially and therefore, he filed Writ A No.853 of 2021 challenging the order dated 15.12.2020 and prayed for payment of salary during the suspension period. This Court disposed of the writ petition on 25.01.2021 on the grounds of remedy of filing an appeal under Regulation 86 of the Regulations, 1975. The Court also directed that in the event, the petitioner preferred an appeal before the appropriate forum, the same would be entertained on merits and dealt with in accordance with law, expeditiously.

5. After that order, the petitioner preferred an appeal. A copy of which has been filed as Annexure-1 to the supplementary affidavit filed by the petitioner on 03.11.2022. The said appeal was preferred to the Joint Commissioner and Joint Registrar Cooperative, Prayagraj Mandal wherein the petitioner prayed that he may be given his balance emoluments as the period of suspension has already been treated by the employer to be period spent on duty and the disciplinary proceedings have concluded with no punishment. According to Sub-clause 7(a) of Regulation No. 85 of the Regulations, 1975, service rules as applicable to the State Government employees would be applicable to employees of Cooperative Society and under the U.P. Government Servant Service Rules and Financial Handbook, subsistence allowance at 75% of the basic salary is payable to an employee who remained under suspension beyond 6 months. In the case of the petitioner, he had remained under suspension for 3 years but was only paid half of basic salary as subsistence allowance. He ought to have been paid 75% i.e. 3/4 of the basic salary from the date of lapse of 6 months from the date of his suspension instead the Appointing Authority had directed withholding of all allowances and balance of salary during the period the petitioner remained under suspension. The appeal was decided by Deputy Registrar and Deputy Commissioner Cooperative, Prayagraj Mandal by order dated 23.10.2021. A copy of such order has been filed as Annexure-4 to the writ petition. The Appellate Authority set aside the order dated 15.12.2020 passed by the respondent no.3. The petitioner was reinstated and he retired on 31.01.2021. However his retiral dues as well as his salary adjusting his subsistence allowance that were already paid to him, was not being given and therefore, the petitioner filed the instant petition.

6. When the matter was taken up earlier by this Court, Sri Jai Bahadur Singh, learned counsel had appeared and this Court had passed a detailed order on 08.07.2022 which is being quoted hereinbelow:-

"Learned counsel for the petitioner is permitted to implead the Deputy Commissioner & Deputy Registrar Co-operative, U.P. Prayagraj, Division, Prayagraj as respondent no. 5 during the course of day.

Heard learned counsel for the petitioner, learned Standing Counsel for the respondent no. 1 and Sri Jai Bahadur Singh, learned counsel for the respondent nos. 2 to 5.

Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that earlier petitioner was working as Branch Manager in District Co-operative Bank Limited, Fatehpur. Thereafter, inquiry has been initiated against the petitioner and punishment of stopping three increments have been awarded to the petitioner vide order dated 15.12.2020 . Against which, petitioner has approached this Court by filing Writ- A No. 853 of 2021, which was dismissed vide order dated 25.1.2021 on the ground of alternative remedy to file appeal. Accordingly, petitioner has preferred appeal before the Deputy Commissioner and Deputy Registrar Co-operative, U.P. Prayagraj, Division, Prayagraj-respondent no.5 in which respondent no.2 has appeared and ultimately appeal was decided in favour of him rejecting the penalty so earlier imposed upon him vide order dated 23.10.2021. He next submitted that the said order was never challenged before any Court of law. Further, respondent no.3 is not complying the order dated 23.10.2021.

Sri Jai Bahadur Singh, learned counsel for the respondent nos. 2 to 5 could not dispute the argument of learned counsel for the petitioner, but submitted that order is without jurisdiction, therefore, same may not be complied with.

Learned counsel for the petitioner in his rejoinder argument submitted that objection so taken before this Court has never been raised by the respondent-Bank before the Appellate Authority and also not challenge the said order before any Court of law, therefore, he cannot be given any liberty to raise this objection. Once order has not been challenged before any Competent Court, that has attained finality and respondents are bound to comply the same.

Under such facts and circumstances, let an interim mandamus be issued to respondent no.3 to comply the order dated 23.10.2021 within six weeks or show cause by filing affidavit within the same time.

Put up this case as fresh on 22.8.2022."

7. In compliance of the order passed by this Court, a short counter affidavit was filed by Sri Jai Bahadur Singh raising certain objections to the jurisdiction of the Deputy Registrar and Deputy Commissioner (Cooperative), Prayagraj Mandal to decide the appeal. The matter thereafter was taken up on 19.09.2022. This Court noted the arguments made on the basis of said short counter affidavit by Sri Jai Bahadur Singh that order dated 23.10.2021 was without jurisdiction. The petitioner should have approached the UP Cooperative Societies Service Institutional Board (hereinafter referred to as "the Board') against order of punishment but he had approached an incompetent Authority that is the respondent no.5, who without jurisdiction passed the order dated 23.10.2021. When the order dated 23.10.2021 was placed before the District Administrative Committee, it had again passed a resolution on 25.04.2022 affirming its earlier resolution dated 25.11.2020 which had resolved that the suspension period shall be treated as period spent on duty but without payment of any other allowance except for subsistence allowance to the petitioner.

8. When the matter was taken up today before this Court, Sri Jai Bahadur Singh has pointed out the Regulation No. 84 of the Regulations, 1975 which relates to penalty. Regulation No.84 is being quoted hereinbelow:-

"84. Penalties.- (i) Without prejudice to the provisions contained in any other regulation, an employee who commits a breach of duty enjoined upon him or has been convicted for criminal offence or an offence under section 103 of the Act or does anything prohibited by these regulations shall be liable to be punished by any one of the following penalties: -

(a) censure,

(b) with holding of increment,

(c) fine on an employee of Category IV (peon, chaukidar, etc.).

(d) recovery from pay or security deposit to compensate in whole or in part for any pecuniary loss caused to the co-operative society by the employee's conduct,

(e) reduction in rank or grades held substantively by the employee,

(f) removal from service, or

(g) dismissal from service.

(2) Copy of order of the punishment shall invariably be given to the employee concerned and entry to this effect shall be made in the service record of the employee.

(3) No penalty except censure shall be imposed unless a show cause notice has been given to the employee and he has either failed to reply within the specified time or his reply has been found to be unsatisfactory by the punishing authority.

(4) (a) The charge-sheeted employee shall be awarded punishment by the appropriate authority according to the seriousness of the offence:

Provided that no penalty under sub-clause (e), (f) or (g) of clause (i) shall be imposed without recourse to disciplinary proceedings.

(b) No employee shall be removed or dismissed by an authority other than by which he was appointed unless the appointing authority has made prior delegation of such authority to such other person or authority in writing.

(5) The appointing authority or person authorised by him while passing orders for stoppage of increments shall state the period for which it is stopped and whether it shall have effect of postponing future increments or promotion."

9. It has been argued that penalties given in clauses (a) to (d) of the Regulation No.84(1), the appeal is maintainable before the Board as they come under minor penalty. Clauses (e) to (g) relate to reduction of rank or grade, removal from service or dismissal from service, no appeal is provided under the Regulation, major penalties having being provided subject to approval of the Board, no appeal can be made to any of the officers and perhaps extraordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution alone can be availed of by the aggrieved person.

10. Sri Jai Bahadur Singh, learned counsel says that since stoppage of an increment is a minor penalty, appeal should have been preferred by the petitioner to the Board which was not done by the petitioner. He approached the Deputy Registrar/ Joint Registrar (Cooperative) in appeal. He has referred to a judgement rendered by a Coordinate bench of this Court in Committee of Management, Krishna Sahkari Awas Samiti Limited and others Vs. State of U.P. and others [2022 (3) ADJ 110] wherein it had been argued by learned counsel for the petitioner-Committee of Management that the order passed by the Joint Secretary Cooperative under Section 98(n) of the U.P. Co-operative Societies Act, 1965 (hereinafter referred to as "the 1965, Act') as Appellate Authority was without jurisdiction. Failure to raise the issue of jurisdiction at the stage of appeal by the Committee of Management, did not preclude the petitioner from canvassing the same before the Court as the issue of jurisdiction goes to the root of the matter. This Court had considered the Section 98(n) of the Act, 1965 and found that the order which was appealed, did not fall within the ambit of Section 98(n) of the Act, 1965 and therefore, the Appellate Authority could not annul any resolution nor cancel any order passed by the Committee of Management. Appeal being creature of the statute scope of the Appellate jurisdiction is defined and circumscribed by the statute. The Appellate Authority could not go beyond the statutory mandate of Section 98(n) of the Act, 1965. The Court observed that consent of parties would not confer the jurisdiction of appeal where none had been vested by law. Similarly, failure to raise the objection in regard to the jurisdiction to entertain the appeal, will not cure the defect of inherent lack of jurisdiction and such plea can be raised at any stage and also in collateral proceedings.

11. The Supreme Court's judgement in Kiran Singh and others Vs. Chaman Paswan and others [(1955) 1 SCR 117] as reiterated in Hindustan Zinc Limited Vs. Ajmer Vidyut Vitran Nigam Limited [(2019) 17 SCC 82] was quoted by the coordinate Bench as also the judgement rendered in Zuari Cement Limited Vs. Regional Director, Employees' State Insurance Corporation, Hyderabad and others [(2015) 7 SCC 690].

12. Learned counsel for petitioner has referred a Division Bench judgement of this Court in Nand Kishor Vs. State of U.P. and others (Civil Misc. Writ Petition No.43584 of 2007 decided on 14.09.2007) wherein this Court was considered an order of punishment passed by the Managing Director which the writ petitioner Nand Kishor had challenged in appeal under Regulation No.86 of the Regulation, 1975. The appeal was dismissed by the Chairman. The petitioner approached the Registrar challenging the orders of the Managing Director as well as the Chairman under Section 128 of the Act, 1965. The appeal was rejected by the Joint Registrar as not being maintainable. The writ petitioner had argued before this Court that the appeal was maintainable under Section 128 of the Act, 1965 as the Board constituted under Section 122 of the Act, 1965 had framed the Regulations of 1975 and appeal to the Chairman against the order of Managing Director had been provided for. After decision in the appeal by the Chairman, in exercise of powers under Regulation No.86 of the Regulations, 1975, such order could be challenged under Section 128 of the Act, 1965 as the Act contemplates that all orders passed by the Cooperative Societies, can be cancelled in the cases provided for under the section by the Registrar. The Court observed that remedy under Section 128 of the Act, 1965 is available to an employee who is aggrieved by the order of Chairman passed in appeal as the power conferred upon the Registrar under Section 128 of the Act i.e. parent legislation is not diluted in any manner by the Regulations, 1975 framed by the Board which are in nature of subordinate legislation as reference may also be had to the definition of "Officer' as contained in Section 2-O of the Act which refers to the Chairman of the Board. The appeal/application made by the petitioner under Section 128 of the Act, 1965 was legally maintainable. The Court referred to another Division Bench judgement rendered in Ram Nath Pandey Vs. Zila Sahkari Bank Ltd. Basti and others (Writ Petition No.16188 of 2002, decided on 03.10.2002) reiterated the position.

13. It has been argued by learned counsel for the petitioner that even if an order was passed by the Secretory/ Chief Executive Officer in compliance of the resolution passed by the Board as in the case of the petitioner, remedy would still alive under Section 128 before the Registrar/Joint Registrar/Deputy Registrar. Hence the appeal filed by the petitioner was maintainable.

14. This Court is not convinced as in the case of the petitioner, the punishment was determined by the Committee of Management and consequential order alone was passed by the Secretary/Chief Executive Officer of the Cooperative Society.

15. This Court has now to consider whether the order passed on 15.12.2020 concluding the disciplinary proceedings of the petitioner by observing that the suspension period shall be treated as period spent on duty without any other allowance being payable to the petitioner except subsistence allowance for the said period and also imposing punishment of withholding of 3 annual increments was a major or minor penalty.

16. It is the case of the respondent that it was a minor penalty and the petitioner ought to have approached the Board under Regulation No.86 which provides that order imposing penalty under Sub-clause (a) to (d) of Clause 1 of Regulation No.84 shall be appealable to the Authorities as mentioned in Appendix D and Appendix D mentions first appeal to be made to the Committee of Management or any other officer authorized by the Committee of Management and in case the Committee of Management has passed the order of punishment, appeal shall file to the Board i.e. Cooperative Societies Service Institutional Board.

17. It is the case of the respondent that the petitioner should have approached the Cooperative Societies Service Institutional Board as the order passed under Regulation No.84 was only for withholding of increments.

18. Learned counsel for the petitioner has argued that in case of the petitioner, withholding of 3 annual increments was with future effect and that would amount to a major penalty when no appeal would lie to the Board and in case where no appeal shall lie to the Board, Section 128 would come into play and the Registrar can be approached.

19. Since the punishment order had directed withholding of 3 annual increments would have fallen due only with effect from July of the year 2021, the punishment that was imposed, was a minor penalty and the petitioner ought to have approached the Board. This Court finds that since withholding of increments is a punishment mentioned under Sub-clause (b) of Regulation No. 84, it is a minor penalty and the petitioner should have approached the Board. He wrongly filed an appeal before the Registrar/Joint Registrar/Deputy Registrar. The appeal filed by the petitioner on 06.02.2021 shall be treated as non-est.

20. The writ petition is disposed of with a liberty to the petitioner to file an appeal before the Cooperative Societies Service Institutional Board against the resolution dated 25.11.2020 and the resolution dated 25.04.2022. If an appeal is preferred before the Board by the petitioner within a period of three weeks from today, it shall be considered on its merits and in accordance with law as expeditiously as possible, within a period of three months from the date a copy of the appeal and a copy of this order is produced before it.

21. A copy of the resolution dated 25.11.2020 and a copy of the resolution dated 25.04.2022 shall be served upon the petitioner within a week from its application made in this regard by the respondent no.3.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Chandra Kumar Rai, J.)

1. Heard Sri R.C. Singh, the learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Yogesh Kumar Singh, for the petitioners and Sri Nipun Singh, counsel for respondent nos. 12 to 22.

2. The brief facts of the case are that land pertaining of Khasara plot No.2695 area 1-1-0, Khasara Plot No.5613 area 0-18-0, Khasara Plot No. 5649 m. area-0-4-10, Kashara Plot No.5651 area 0-12-0, Khasara Plot No.5652 area 0-03-0 Khasar Plot No.5648 area 0-12-0, Khasara Plot No.5649 area 0-1-0 Khasra Plot No.5650 area 010-0, total area 4-2-0 situated at Kasba-Kandhala, Nagar Palika-Kandhala, Pargana-Kandhala, Tehsil-Kairana, District-Muzaffar Nagar (Now Shamli) belong to one Shree Ram. Land belonging to Shri Ram was also situated in village-Aldi. After death of Shree Ram names of his two sons Kishan Swarup and Surendra Swaroop were substituted and name of KishanSwaroop and Surendra Swaroop were recorded in respect to the land situated in village-Kandhala and Aldi during consolidation operation having ½ share each but later on the name of Kishan Swaroop (grand father of petitioners) was expunged from the land in dispute on the basis of decree dated 14.11.1953 accordingly petitioners' father as well as petitioners filed a suit under Section 229-B of U.P.Z.A.&L.R. Act for declaring their share in the property in dispute on the ground that land in dispute is Sir Khud Kast ancestral property of plaintiffs as such they are entitled for the share. Defendants filed their written statement and contested the suit. Trial Court framed the issues and parties adduced evidences in support of their cases but trial court dismissed the plaintiff's suit vide judgment and order dated 23.03.2005. Against the judgment dated 23.03.2005 passed by trial court petitioners filed an appeal before Commissioner which was heard and dismissed by Additional Commissioner vide judgment dated 29.09.2007. Petitioners challenged the judgment dated 29.09.2007 before Board of Revenue through Second-Appeal which was dismissed vide judgment dated 08.10.2012 hence this writ petition.

3. Civil Suit No.44 of 1953 Surendra Prakash vs. Sri Kishan Swaroop was decided by order dated 14.11.1953 on the basis of alleged consent of the parties. The proceeding initiated by contesting respondents in the year 1964 under Section 33/39 of U.P. Land Revenue Act on the basis of the decree of civil Court was rejected by order dated 30.05.1964 holding that amaldaramad cannot be made on the basis of civil Courts decree dated 14.11.1953.

4. This petition was entertained on 07.01.2013 and following interim order was passed:

"Heard learned counsel for the petitioners and Shri S.C. Verma, who has put in appearance on behalf of respondent no. 4. He prays for and is allowed six weeks' time to file counter affidavit.

Issue notice to respondent nos. 5 to 10, who may also file counter affidavit.

Petitioners shall take steps for service of notice on the respondents by registered post within one week. Office shall issue notices returnable at an early date.

List after service of notice on respondent nos. 5 to 10.

Considering the facts and circumstances, until further orders of this Court, parties to the writ petition are directed to maintain status quo with respect to nature and possession over the land in dispute as it exists today. Both the parties are further restrained from alienating, transferring or changing the nature of the land in dispute in any manner."

5. In pursuance of the order of this Court dated 07.01.2013 contesting respondents have filed their counter affidavit along with an application for vacation of interim order. Petitioners have filed their rejoinder affidavit also.

6. Counsel for the petitioners submitted that no right was claimed before the Consolidation Court on the basis of the judgment of Civil Court date 14.11.1953 accordingly separate chaks were carved out in the name of Kishan Swaroop and Surendra Swaroop and final record under Section-27 of the U.P.C.H. Act was also prepared but courts below have filed to consider this question and dismissed the plaintiff's suit under Section 229-B of U.P.Z.A. & L. R. Act only on the basis of civil Court judgment dated 14.11.1953 which is inexecutable. He further submitted that even the application filed by contesting respondents under section 33/39 of U.P. Land Revenue act in the year 1964 to correct the revenue entry on the basis of civil court judgment dated 14.11.1953 was rejected. He further submitted that implementation of civil Court judgment after conclusion of consolidation proceeding is not permissible in view of law laid down by Apex Court as well as by this Court in the following judgment:

(I) A.I.R. 1977 S.C 1226
Pyare Lal Vs. Hori Lal
(II) 2004 (96) R.D. 530
Babu Ali (D) through L.Rs. And others vs. Dukkhi and others
(III) 2011 (5) A.D.J. 330
Hori Lal and another vs. Additional District Judge Agra and others

7. Counsel for the petitioners further submitted that final decree in pursuance of the judgment dated 14.11.1953 has not been prepared as such the judgment dated 14.11.1953 could not be implemented although final decree if any would abate on account of Consolidation operation. On this point Counsel for the petitioners placed reliance upon the judgment of Apex court reported in A.I.R. 1995 Supreme Court 2493 Mool Chand and others Vs. Deputy Director of Consolidation and others.

8. Counsel for the petitioners further submitted that courts below have illegally dismissed the suit for declaration filed by petitioners under Section 229-B of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act on this basis of void judgment and decree of civil court.

9. He further submitted that claim of co-tenancy is not barred nor any limitation has been prescribed for filing suit under Section 229-B of U .P.Z.A. & L.R. Act. Counsel for the petitioners placed reliance upon following judgment of this Court with respect to co-tenancy and limitation for filing suit under Section 229-B of U.P.Z.A. & L. R. Act.

(I) 2017 (6) ADJ 356 (DB)
Ram Briksha and another vs. Deputy Director of Consolidation and others.
(II) 2005 (99) RD 529
Pan Kumari vs. Board of Revenue U.P. Allahabad.

10. Counsel for the petitioners submitted that writ petition be allowed and matter be remanded before trial court for fresh adjudication of suit under section-229-B of U.P.Z.A.& L.R. Act on merit.

11. On the other hand, Counsel for the contesting respondent submitted that judgment and decree of Civil Court dated 14.11.1953 was a consent decree and the land was out of consolidation as such there was no bar of section-49 of U.P.C.H. Act for the contesting respondents rather the bar of Section-49 of U.P.C.H. Act will be for the petitioner in instituting present suit under Section-229-B of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act by the petitioners. He further submitted that consent decree operates as estoppel and binding unless set aside. He further submitted that proper course available to the petitioners to approach same court seeking recall of the order if the compromise or consent is the result of fraud or undue influence. Counsel for the respondent placed reliance upon the following judgments on the point of consent decree, compromise and remedy available to the party concern against the consent decree or compromise:

(I). R. Rajannnna v. S.R. Venkataswamy, (2014) 15 SCC 471

(II) Pulavarthi Venkata Subba Rao and others Vs. Valluri Jagannadha Rao and others AIR 1967 SC 591

(III) Sailendra Narayan Vs. State of Orissa, reported in AIR 1956 S.C. 346

(IV) Habib Milan Vs. M Ahmad, reported in AIR 1974 A.P. 303

(V) Byram Pestonji Ganwala Vs. Union of India, reported in (1992) 1 SCC 31

(VI) Jadu Gopal Chkravarty (dead) by his Lrs. Vs. Pannalal Bhowmick and ors, reported in (1978) 3 SCC 215

(VII) Katikara Chintamani Dora Vs. Gautreddi Annamanaidu, reported in AIR 1974 SC 1069

(VIII) Pushpa Devi Bhagat (dead) through L.R. Sadhna Rai, (Smt.) Vs. Rajinder Singh and others reported in (2006) 5 SCC 566

12. Counsel for the respondents further submitted that in rural ceiling matter the judgment and decree of Civil Court dated 14.11.1953 was relied upon and the same was accepted by the Court while allowing the appeal of contesting respondents against the state in declaration of surplus land. He further submitted that no interference is required against the impugned judgment and the writ petition filed by the petitioners is liable to be dismissed.

13. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and perused the records.

14. There is no dispute about the fact that petitioners and contesting respondents descended from common ancestor shree Ram. During consolidation operation Kishan Swaroop (ancestor of petitioners) and Surendra Swaroop (ancestor of contesting respondents) were allotted separate chak of ½ share. So far as decree of Civil Court dated 14.11.1953 is concerned petitioners' version is that the same is fraudulent and never acted upon while the version of contesting respondents is that the decree of civil Court unless recalled or set aside cannot be ignored. The proceeding initiated under Section 33/39 of U.P. Land Revenue Act to give effect the decree of Civil Court dated 14.11.1953 in the revenue record was rejected vide order dated 30.05.1964 however subsequently, the revenue entry were corrected, hence present suit under Section 229-B of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act at the instance of the petitioners as well as their father which has been dismissed by all the three courts on the ground of Civil Court Judgment and decree dated 14.11.1953.

15. Since the judgment and decree of the civil Court dated 14.11.1953 alleged to be passed between the parties is the main ground on which the suit filed by the petitioners' father under Section 229-B of U.P.Z.A.& L.R. Act has been dismissed, as such first of all Court will examine the judgment of Civil Court passed on 14.11.1953 which is as follows:

"This is a suit done a mere declaration that the plaintiff is the owner of the property given in the schedule by means of the parties. The defendants who are the other co-sharers in the property have admitted the right of the plaintiff and the plaintiff has given his consent. So the court has to grant the declaration sought. But before parting with the case I would like to point out that such suits are filed with the sole object of saving stamp duty and registration for which have been payable on a deed of partition. Such a device is hardly desirable.

Order

The suit is decreed and parties shall bear their own costs. Copy of the judgment may be sent to the Inspector of Stamps and Registration Meerut circle for information."

16. Perusal of judgment of Civil Court dated 14.11.1953 reveals that suit was filed by ancestor of contesting respondents for declaration and by 9 lines order suit has been decreed on the alleged admission of defendant. It is also mentioned in the order that sole object of the suit is to save stamp duty and registration fee which would have been payable on a deed of partition such a device is hardly desirable the copy of the judgment was ordered to be sent before inspector of stamp and registration, Meerut circle but there is nothing on record, whether it was sent before inspector of stamp or not.

17. Contesting respondents have not taken steps for implementation after getting the judgment of civil court dated 14.11.1953. In the year 1964 proceeding under Section 33/39 of U.P. Land Revenue Act 1901 was initiated by the contesting respondents for expunging the name of ancestor of petitioners on the basis of civil Court judgment dated 14.11.1953, the S.D.O. vide order dated 30.05.1964 dismissed the application on the ground that amaldaramad of decree dated 14.11.1953 was neither claimed nor made in village-Aldi and Kandhala during consolidation operation.

18. It is pertinent to mention that village Kandhala and Aldi were brought under Consolidation operation some times in the year 1958 and no objection was filed by anybody claiming right or title on the basis of the judgment of civil Court dated 14.11.1953. Petitioners and contesting respondents were allotted separate chak of 1/2 share in respect to both the villages, the revenue entry in the form of C.H. 23 (part--1) have been annexed as annexure No.10 to the writ petition to demonstrate the aforementioned facts.

19. These facts fully proves that judgment of Civil Court dated 14.11.1953 has not been acted upon as such the same cannot be relied upon by the revenue Court to dismiss the suit of the plaintiff-petitioners under Section 229-B of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act. The suit under Section 229-B of U.P.Z.A.& L.R. Act are special type of suit which is to be decided in accordance with law as well as the suit for co-tenancy can not be rejected or dismissed ordinarily as held by this Court in Ram Briksha (supra). Para No.36, 37, 38 and 39 of the judgment rendered in Ram Briksha (supra) will be relevant which are as follows:-

"36. On these parameters, the issues that have been raised before us are being considered and in our considered opinion rights of the parties in a holding cannot be permitted to be defeated merely because they have not at all participated in consolidation proceedings and as to whether the bar of Section 49 of U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953 would be attracted or not would essentially be a question of fact that can be answered on the basis of evidence adduced and to the said bar in question exceptions have to be carved out wherein suit in question would be not barred and Section 49 of U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953 would not come into play where from the series of documents and circumstances it is reflected that planned fraud has been made to delete the plaintiffs name from the revenue records. From the record of the consolidations, it is clearly reflected that neither the incumbent, who has proceeded to get his name recorded nor consolidation authorities have proceeded to discharge their duties faithfully in consonance with the provisions of U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act wherein the consolidation authorities are empowered to ascertain the share of each owner if there be more owners than one and in case such an exercise has not been undertaken, then it would be a case of legal malice and it cannot be ipso facto presumed that there has been ouster from the property in question and in such a situation an incumbent, who claims his right in the property in question has got every right to regain his property based on title for the reason that the right has been sought to be defeated based on fraud and manipulation.

The provisions of Section 49 of U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953 in such backdrop would not at all be attracted and the suit in question would not at all be prima facie barred where suit in question is filed for possession of the suit property based on property interest. The reference is answered as follows:

Issue No.I

37. Whether use of words "could or ought to have been taken" in latter part of Section 49 of the Act, compulsorily forces the co-sharers, who are living jointly, peacefully and have no grievance against their father/brother/co-sharer, whose name is recorded in representative capacity, or they were willing to live jointly, due to situation of their family, i.e. (father and minor son), (mother and minor son), (brother and minor brother) and (some co-sharer was student and had gone abroad for study and fully depends upon other co-sharers) etc., to file an objection under Section 9 of the Act for separation of his share?

A. Because of the words "could or ought to have been taken" in latter part of Section 49 of the Act, same does not compulsorily forces the co-sharers, who are living jointly, peacefully and have no grievance against their father/brother/co-sharer whose name is recorded in representative capacity or they were willing to live jointly due to situation of their family and who have not filed an objection under Section 49 of the Act for separation of their share inasmuch as under the provisions of U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953, it is the statutory obligation cast upon the authorities and the incumbent, who has been holding the property in question in the representative capacity to get the records corrected and in case in designed manner the obligation in question has not been discharged by Consolidation Authorities as well as by the incumbent holding the property in the representative capacity, then in such a situation Section 49 of the Act would not at all be attracted and such situation would be covered under the contingency of planned fraud to drop the name of other co-sharers from the revenue records.

Issue No.II

38. Whether by operation of law, the parties can be thrown into litigation against their will/need and by not raising claim to land or partition and separation of the chak their right to property can be taken away in spite of protection available under Article 19 (1) (f) and now Article 300-A of the Constitution?

A. The answer is that a party cannot be thrown in litigation against their will/need and by not raising claim to land of partition and separation of chak, their rights to property cannot be taken away under the protection provided for under Article 19(1)(f)/Article 300-A of the Constitution of India.

Issue No.III

39. Whether, in spite of well settled legal principle in respect of joint property, right of a co-sharer will come to an end under Section 49 of the Act, on the notification under Section 52, due to not claiming partition of his share and separate chak in his name, although, there had been no ouster from joint property?

A. The rights of the co-sharers will not at all come to an end under Section 49 of the Act, on the notification under Section 52 due to not claiming partition of his share and separate chak in his name and till there is no ouster from the joint property his right in the property will continue to exist.

The reference is accordingly answered. The Writ Petition alongwith connected matters shall now be placed before the appropriate Bench according to roster for disposal in light of this judgement."

20. On the point of maintainability of suit under Section 229-B of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act on the point of limitation etc. the judgment rendered in Pan Kumari (Supra) will be relevant, paragraph No.6 of the judgment will be relevant which is as follows:

"6. Sri R.C. Singh submits that the suit under Section 229-B was barred by limitation. In support of this contention he relies upon Section 341 of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, which provides that the Limitation Act would be applicable to proceedings under the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act and limitation in a suit for declaration would be governed by Article 137 of Schedule 1 of the Limiataion Act as there is no period prescribed for such a suit under the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act. Section 341 itself provides that the provisions of certain Acts including the Limitation Act shall apply to the proceedings under the U.P. Z.A. & L. R. Act unless otherwise provided in the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act. Rule 338 of the U.P.Z.A. and L.R. Rules provides that the suits, applications and Ors. proceedings specified in Appendix III shall be instituted within the time specified therein for them respectively. Recourse to the provisions of the Limitation Act would be available only if there is no provision under Rules in respect of the period of limitation for the different classes of suits or proceedings mentioned therein. In Appendix III the period of limitation provided for different classes of suits has been given. As regards suits under Section 229-B column 4, which prescribes the period of limitation for different classes of suit says "none". It would therefore be treated that there is no limitation for filing a suit under Section 229-B. Section 9 of the Civil Procedure Code provides that all suits of civil nature shall be instituted in the civil court except those, which have been accepted. A suit under Section 229-B falls within the excepted category and such suits even though they involve declaration are suits of a special character. Article 137 of the Limitation Act relied upon by Sri Singh in any case is applicable only to applications and not to suits and therefore has no play. When the rule making authority has provided different periods of limitation for different classes of suits it would be treated that provisions prescribing period of limitation in the Limitation Act would not be applicable to suits under the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act. Section 189 U.P.Z.A. & L. R. Act sets out the circumstances in which the interest of a bhumidar is extinguished. Clauses (a) (aa) and (b) relate to cases where the bhumidar dies leaving no heir, or where he has let out his holding in contravention of the provisions of the Act or where the land is acquired. Sub-section (C) of Section 189 provides that where a bhumidar has lost possession the bhumidari right would extinguish when the right to recover possession is lost. In Ram Naresh Vs. Board of Revenue 1985 R.D. 444 relied upon by Sri R. C. Singh it was held that the provisions of Section 27 of the Limitation Act would be attracted to suits instituted under Section 229-B. Section 27 provides that on the determination of the period limited for instituting a suit for possession the right to such property shall be extinguished. The rule is an exception to the general rule that limitation bars the remedy but does not extinguish the right. If however a person is in possession his right can not be extinguished unless the case is covered by Clauses (a) (aa) and (b) of Sectiion 189. He can therefore seek a declaration of his right at any point of time. If a person has been dispossessed he would have to institute a suit under Section 209 U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act. Appendix III provides the period for limitation for filing a suit under Section 209. It would follow therefore that a suit under Section 229-B would be barred by limitation the bhumidar is out of possession and his right to file a suit under Section 209 is barred by limitation. The finding of fact recorded on the question of possession is that the plaintiffs have established their continuous possession over the disputed land. The finding is not shown to be vitiated by any error. As the rights of the plaintiff were never extinguished no question of limitation arises. For the reasons given above the writ petition lacks merit and is dismissed."

21. So far as the argument advanced by learned counsel for the contesting respondents as well as case law cited by him are concerned to the effect that unless judgment and decree of Civil Court dated 14.11.1953 is recalled/set aside, revenue court cannot ignore the same cannot be accepted as the decree of civil Court dated 14.11.1953 has not been given effect to even during consolidation operation as such the petitioners' suit under Section 229-B of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act cannot be dismissed on the ground of Civil Court judgment dated 14.11.1953. The first appellate Court moved one step ahead and made out a third case that no evidence was produced before the trial court that shri Ram was common ancestor of the parties while there was no dispute at all that Shri Ram was common ancestor of the parties and there was evidence to that effect before the trial court as well as before this Hon'ble Court the IInd Supplementary affidavit dated 21.09.2022 filed by petitioners contain the fact as well as evidences which were filed before trial court.

22. Second Appellate Court has also failed to exercise the IInd Appellate Court jurisdiction and only on the ground of judgment of Civil court dated 14.11.1953 dismissed the second appeal.

23. Considering the entire facts and circumstances as well as case law mentioned above the impugned judgment and decree dated 23.02.2005 passed by respondent No.3, judgment dated 29.09.2007 passed by respondent No.2 and judgment dated 08.10.2012 passed by respondent No.1 are manifestly erroneous and are liable to be set aside, the same are hereby set aside.

24. The writ petition is allowed and matter is remanded back before trial court to decide the suit filed by petitioners under Section 229-B of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act on merit afresh after affording proper opportunity of hearing to the parties expeditiously preferably within a period of six months from the date of production of certified copy of this order. Since petitioners were granted interim-order during pendency of the writ petition before this Court, even during pendency of the First Appeal and Second Appeal interim order was granted by courts below as such it is directed that parties shall maintain status quo with respect to nature and possession of the land in dispute and no third parties interest be created in respect to property in dispute.

25. No orders as to costs.

Shri Adityanath ...Respondent

Counsel for the Petitioner:
In Person

Counsel for the Respondents:

A. Constitution of India – Article 226 – Writ – Principle of res judicata – Applicability – Earlier writ petition was withdrawn – No liberty was given to file fresh writ petition – Effect – Held, the principles of res judicata are applicable to writ petitions in the case – However, High court without testing the writ petition on the premise of res-judicata, granted the concession of considering the writ petition on merit. (Para 5)

B. Constitution of India – Article 164(4) – Representation of People Act, 1951 – Section 80 – Conduct of Election Rules, 1961 – R. 4A – Challenge to the continuance of Yogi Adityanath as the Chief Minister of Uttar Pradesh – No election petition was filed – Election of the respondent was not found improper by any competent authority – Effect – Held, the petitioner under the garb of the writ petition is actually seeking to challenge the election of the Respondent from Gorakhpur Urban Legislative Assembly – The Petitioner by filing the writ petition is trying to do something indirectly which the law prohibits him to do directly. (Para 7 and 8)

C. Constitution of India – Article 226 – Writ – Locus Standi of the petitioner – Petitioner was not registered elector in the Gorakhpur Urban Legislative Assembly – Effect – Held, the petitioner does not have any locus for filing the present writ petition – Case of Tej Bahadur Vs Narendra Modi relied upon. (Para 10)

D. Access to Justice – Misuse – Filing of frivolous petition – Permissibility – Held, no litigant has a right to unLtd. draught on the court time and public money in order to get his affairs settled in a manner as he wishes. Easy access to justice should not be misused as a licence to file misconceived and frivolous petitions – Dr. B.K. Subbarao's case relied upon. (Para 11)

E. Constitution of India – Article 226 – Writ – Quo Warranto – Scope – Writ of quo warranto can be issued only where an appointment has not been made in accordance with the law. (Para 12)

9. Bharati Reddy Vs St. of Karn.; (2018) 6 SCC 162

(Delivered by Hon'ble Attau Rahman Masoodi, J. & Hon'ble Om Prakash Shukla, J.)

1. The petitioner-in-person seeks liberty to correct the name of the respondent as Ajay Mohan Singh Bisht for and in place of Yogi Adityanath, the sole respondent in the present writ petition. We permit the petitioner to correct the particulars of respondent during the course of the day.

2. The prayer made in the writ petition reads as under:-

(i) Issue a writ quo warranto to the respondent very kindly questioning his continuance as Chief Minister of State of Uttar Pradesh with effect from 25.09.2022.

(ii) To pass any other appropriate order as the circumstances of the case may require; and

(iii) To allow the writ petition.

3. Apparently, the Petitioner at Para 19 of the Writ Petition has admitted that he is neither an Elector nor a candidate at the election of 322- Gorakhpur Urban Legislative Assembly constituency, from which the Respondent stands elected. It is also available from the Writ Petition that the present petition has come to be filed on the ground that (a) the respondent is a usurper of office of Chief Minister of State of Uttar Pradesh with effect from 25.09.2022 and (b) Allegedly the Respondent was not qualified to contest the election for the current legislative assembly of State of Uttar Pradesh due to violation of provisions of Rule 4 A of the Conduct of Election Rules, 1961. Thus, in a nut-shell, it has been prayed by the Petitioner for issuance of Writ of Quo Warranto against the Respondent for his continuation as Chief Minister of State of Uttar Pradesh with effect from 25.09.2022. The petitioner has also relied upon a judgment passed by the Kerala High Court in the case of Shaiju J. Kooran & Etc. V/s State Election Commission, Thirunanvanthapuram and Ors. (AIR 2003 Kerala 246), wherein election as municipal councillors and panchayat member under the Kerala Municipality Act was under challenge.

4. This court having given a thoughtful consideration to the issue in hand, finds the present petition to be very amusing. The petitioner seems to be in a spree of filing this kind of petition as admittedly, an identical petition praying inter-alia for the same relief vide W.P (C) no. 5627 of 2022, was dismissed as withdrawn. It would be interesting to note the final order dated 29.08.2022 passed by a coordinate division bench of this Court, which inter-alia says:

"Heard the Petitioner appeared in person and learned Advocate General for the respondents - State.

After arguing at some length, learned counsel for the petitioner states that he may be permitted to withdraw the writ petition.

Accordingly, the writ petition is dismissed as withdrawn."

5. Apparently, no leave nor any liberty had been sought by the Petitioner to file the present Writ Petition. A constitutional Bench of the Hon'ble Supreme Court way back in the year 1990 has held that the principles of res judicata are applicable to writ petitions in the case of Direct recruit class II engineering officers Association V/s State of Maharashtra, (1990) 2 SCC 715, however this court without testing the present writ petition on the premise of res-judicata, grants the concession of considering the present writ petition.

6. Section 80 of the Representation of People's Act, 1951 inter- alia states that no election shall be called in question except by an Election Petition presented in accordance with the provisions of this part. Essentially, the sum & substance of the relief being sought by the Petitioner is on the basis of an attack to the alleged affidavit filed by the Respondent in terms of the provisions of Rule 4 A of the Conduct of Election Rules, 1961. It is the case of the petitioner that since the said affidavit was not as per the provisions of the said rules, the election of the respondent as a Member of the Legislative Assembly was not legal and consequently, even if, the respondent had been appointed as a Chief Minister of the state of Uttar Pradesh, his continuation cannot be confirmed as per law in view of Article 164(4) of the Constitution of India, which prescribes that a Minister who for any period of six consecutive months is not a member of the Legislature of the State shall at the expiration of that period cease to be a Minister.

7. In the first blush, the argument of the petitioner seems to be very attractive, but on a deep enquiry it is apparent that the petitioner is drawing the aforesaid analogy by presuming that the election of the Respondent is not proper. The petitioner besides drawing attention of this court to the Affidavit filed by the respondent in terms of Rule 4A of the Conduct of Election Rules, 1961 has not been able to show a single document which would show that the election of the respondent has been found by any competent authority to be not proper. Having said so, this court finds that the Petitioner under the garb of the present petition is actually seeking to challenge the election of the Respondent from 322 - Gorakhpur Urban Legislative Assembly.

8. However, this court finds that the said challenge to the election can be made only by filing an Election Petition before this court as per the conditions provided in the Representation of Peoples Act, 1951. Any challenge to an election is a statutory right and is available to a person as has been prescribed under the statute only. The Petitioner has for obvious reasons not filed the Election Petition in the present case & has chosen to file the present Writ Petition which is not permissible under the statute. In fact the Petitioner by filing the present Writ Petition is trying to do something indirectly which the law prohibits him to do directly. The principle that "if a statute requires a thing to be done in a particular manner, it should be done in that manner or not at all" articulated in Nazir Ahmed vs. Emperor (1936) SCC Online PC 41, has found wide spread acceptance & has also been reiterated by the Hon'ble Supreme Court recently in the judgment of Municipal Corporation of Greater Mumbai vs. Abhilash Lal & Ors. (2020) 13 SCC 234.

9. Further, the Petitioner claims that the provisions of Article 329 of the Constitution of India and Section 80 of the Act are not applicable herein as no Election Petition could have been filed, if at all, preferred by the Petitioner questioning the election of the Respondent on the grounds mentioned in the present Writ Petition. First and foremost as already held that the relief being sought by the Petitioner could have been granted in Election Petition only, however this court finds that the Hon'ble Supreme Court in case of Krishna Ballabh Prasad Singh vs. Sub - Divisional Officer Hilsa- Cum- Returning Officer & Ors. (1985) 4 SCC 194 has held that the process of Election comes to an end after the declaration in Form 21-C was made and the consequential formalities were completed, the bar of clause D of Article 329 of the Constitution of India came into operation thereafter and an Election Petition alone was maintainable thus the Hon'ble Supreme Court held in that case that the Writ Petition cannot be entertained. Thus, the reliance placed by the petitioner in the Shaiju J. Kooran case as mentioned supra is misplaced. This court finds it profitable to quote the observation made by the Hon'ble Supreme Court relating to the filing of the Petition under section 226 of the Constitution of India inter-alia challenging the election to the state legislature which has been sought to be similarly done in the present case. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case reported as Indrajit Barua and ors. vs. Election Commission of India and ors. (1985) 4 SCC 722 at Para 6, has held inter-alia:

"These are clear authorities - and the position has never been assailed - in support of the position that an election can be challenged only in the manner prescribed by the Act. In this view of the matter, we had concluded that writ petitions under Article 226 challenging the election to the state legislature were not maintainable and election petition under section 81 of the Act had to be filed in the High Court. The act does not contemplate a challenge to the election to the Legislature as a whole and the scheme of the Act is clear. Election of each of the retuned candidates has to be challenged by filing of a separate election petition. The proceedings under the act are quite strict and clear provisions have been made as to how an election petition has to be filed and who should be parties to such election petition. As we have already observed, when election to a legislature is held it is not one election but there are as many elections as the Legislature has members. The challenge to the elections to the Assam Legislative Assembly by filing petitions under Article 226 of the Constitution was, therefore, not tenable in law."

10. The present petition is also liable to be rejected in as much as the Petitioner does not have any locus for filing the present petition. As to who can prefer an Election Petition, section 81 of the Representation of People Act, 1950 provides that an Election Petition may be presented by (a) any elector or; (b) any candidate at such election. Further the explanation to section 81 provides that an elector means a person who was entitled to vote at the election to which the Election Petition relates. In the present case, the Petitioner has admitted that he is not an elector registered in the 322 - Gorakhpur Urban Legislative Assembly. Therefore, this court finds that the petitioner does not have any locus for filing the present writ petition as has also been held in the case of Tej Bahadur vs. Narendra Modi (2020) SCC Online SC 951, wherein the Hon'ble Apex court held that the locus for filing an Election Petition depends entirely on the question whether a particular person is an elector of the constituency or is a candidate or can claim to be a duly nominated candidate. The Petitioner fails to fall in any of the category to make the present petition maintainable.

11. The courts have also from time to time held that no litigant has a right to unlimited draught on the court time and public money in order to get his affairs settled in a manner as he wishes. Easy access to justice should not be misused as a licence to file misconceived and frivolous petitions. (See Dr. B.K. Subbarao vs. Mr. K. Parasaran, (1996 (7) JT 265) as is being sought to be done in the present case. The court cannot be oblivious to the fact that today people rush to Courts to file cases in profusion under this attractive name of public interest.

12. Further, the petitioner has failed to show from records as to how the appointment or the continuation of the respondent in the Chief Minister post is not in accordance with law. Recently the bench of HMJ D.Y Chandrachud & HMJ Hima Kohli in the case of "State of West Bengal Vs Anindya Sundar Das" ....., while referring to various judgments including Bharati Reddy v. State of Karnataka (2018) 6 SCC 162, observed that the issue is no longer res integra relating to the settled position that the writ of quo warranto can be issued only where an appointment has not been made in accordance with the law.

13. For all the aforesaid reason the present petition is dismissed, however since valuable time has been spent by this court on atleast two occasions, therefore this court finds it appropriate to impose an exemplary cost of Rs. 11,000/- on the petitioner, which shall be paid to State legal Services Authority Within four weeks from today.

Writ-C No. 23474 of 2016

Badri Vishal Tiwari ...Petitioner

State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Gaurav Mehrotra, Kunal Chandra Agrawal

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C.

A. Civil Law - Indian Stamp Act, 1899 – Section 47-A – UP Stamp (Valuation of Property) Rules, 1997 – Rule 7(5) – Stamp deficiency – Inquiry – Scope – Solely the ex-parte report relied upon in passing the impugned order, how far is permissible – No information from any public officer was called by the Collector – No other record or evidence was examined – Effect – Held, it is after considering the representations of the parties and examining the records and other evidences that the Collector is to determine the value of the subject matter of the instrument and the duty payable – No inquiry having been conducted by the competent authority prior to passing the impugned order, the order would be vitiated on this ground also. (Para 16, 18 and 21)

B. Stamp deficiency – Penalty, when can be imposed – Concealment of relevant fact – Relevancy – Gyan Prakash's case relied upon – Sine qua non for imposition of penalty is a finding to be recorded by the competent authority based on relevant materials that the purchaser or the person liable to pay stamp duty had concealed relevant facts in execution of the sale deed – No finding on the concealment of relevant fact – Held, the impugned order does not indicate nor records any finding by the competent authority that the purchaser had concealed relevant facts in execution of the sale deed and had the intention to evade the payment of stamp duty. As such on this ground alone the imposition of penalty on the petitioner cannot be said to be legally sustainable in the eyes of law. (Para 22 and 23)

3. Gyan Prakash Vs St. of U.P. & ors.; 2019 (143) RD 185

(Delivered by Hon'ble Abdul Moin, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and learned Standing Counsel for the respondents no. 1 to 4.

2. The instant petition has been filed praying for the following main reliefs:

"(i) issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of Certiorari quashing the impugned order dated 15.04.2005 passed by Respondent No. 3 and annexed as Annexure No.1 to the instant Writ Petition.

(ii) issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of Certiorari quashing the impugned order dated 26.02.2014 passed by the Respondent No. 2 and annexed as Annexure No. 2 to the instant Writ Petition.

(iii) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the respondents to refund the amount of Rs 1,64,675/- deposited by the petitioiner on 27.07.2005 through Treasury Challan-209(1) along with 12% compound interest from 27.04.2005 till the date of actual payment.

(iv) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the respondents not to proceed with recovery in pursuance of the aforesaid impugned order dated 26.02.2014 (as contained in Annexure-2 to this Writ Petition) or the impugned Order dated 15.04.2005 (as contained in Annexure-1 to this Writ Petition) and not to issue any consequential recovery notice/citation/certificate with respect to the land bearing Gata No. 81, Area:0.240 ½ Hectare, situated at Village Sohramau, Pargana Gausinda Parsanad, Tehsil Hasanganj, District Unnao."

3. The case set forth by the petitioner is that a plot of land was purchased by him through a registered sale deed on 10.09.2004. The land was registered as agricultural land in the revenue records and consequently stamp duty at agricultural rates was paid. The petitioner claims to have received a show cause notice from the respondent no. 3 alleging evasion of stamp duty under the provisions of Section 47A of the Indian Stamp Act, 1899 (hereinafter referred to as the Act, 1899). It is contended that the proceedings were initiated against the petitioner on the basis of a report dated 04.10.2004 submitted by the Sub-Registrar, Hasanganj District Unnao, a copy of which is annexure 3 to the petition. The petitioner claims to have filed his reply to the show cause notice on 15.03.2005, a copy of which is annexure 7 to the petition, and the respondents no. 3 passed an order dated 15.04.2005, a copy of which is annexure 1 to the petition, whereby the petitioner had been required to pay a stamp duty of Rs 3,29,350/- alongwith penalty and interest. The penalty imposed upon the petitioner is Rs 1,64,675/-.

4. Being aggrieved the petitioner filed an appeal which has been rejected vide the order dated 26.02.2014, a copy of which is annexure 2 to the petition. Being aggrieved with both the orders, the instant petition has been filed.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner contends that a perusal of the impugned order dated 15.04.2005 would indicate that the basis of the impugned order is the ex-parte report dated 04.10.2004 which had been submitted by the Sub-Registrar Hasanganj, District Unnao. It is contented that although the petitioner while filing his reply has indicated in paragraph 7 that on legal advice the trees standing on the plot in question could not be valued yet by no stretch of imagination can the same be said to be acceptance of the ex-parte report dated 04.10.2004.

6. He contends that the authority concerned while passing the impugned order dated 04.10.2004 has placed reliance on the said report and has not given any finding with respect to his own assessment while passing the order impugned by which the petitioner has been found to have paid less stamp duty and requiring the petitioner to pay stamp duty at the rates as indicated in the impugned order. He also contends that this aspect of the matter has not been considered by the appellate authority while rejecting the appeal filed by the petitioner.

7. Elaborating his argument learned counsel for the petitioner argues that though it is not mandatory for the competent authority to call for any information or record from any public office or for that matter any report while passing the order under the provisions of the Act, 1899 yet Rule 7(5) of the U.P. Stamp (Valuation of Property) Rules, 1997 (hereinafter referred to as the Rules 1997) specifically provides that an order is to be passed on the basis of an "inquiry' by the competent authority.

8. He contends that a perusal of the impugned order dated 15.04.2005 would indicate that no "inquiry' has been held as provided under the provisions of Rule 7(5) of the Rules 1997 and the sole basis of the order is the ex-parte report dated 04.10.2004 with which the petitioner was never confronted at any stage nor the said inspection was made in the presence of the petitioner.

9. Placing reliance on the judgement of this Court in the case of Surendra Singh and another vs State of U.P. and others reported in 2009 (27) LCD 442 wherein this Court had placed reliance on an earlier judgement of this Court in the case of Ram Khelawan @ Bachcha vs State of U.P. and another reported in 2005 All CJ 1899 U.P. to hold that though the report may be a relevant factor for initiation of proceedings under Section 47A of the Act, but it cannot be relied upon to pass an order under the aforesaid section in as much as the said report cannot form itself the basis of the order passed under Section 47A of the Act. He thus contends that keeping in view the law laid down by this Court in the case of Surendra Singh (supra) the impugned order merits to be quashed on this ground alone.

10. So far as the penalty imposed by means of the impugned order dated 15.04.2005 is concerned, reliance has been placed on the judgement of this Court in the case of Gyan Prakash vs State of U.P. and others reported in 2019 (143) RD 185 to contend that this Court has held that the sine qua non for imposition of penalty is the finding of the authority concerned of a deliberate attempt on the part of the purchaser or the person liable for payment of stamp duty, to have concealed the relevant facts in execution of the sale deed and the intention to evade payment of stamp duty. He contends that a perusal of the impugned order would indicate that no such findings have been arrived at by the competent authority while imposing the penalty and as such on this ground alone the imposition of penalty imposed upon the petitioner merits to be set aside.

11. On the other hand, learned Standing Counsel on the basis of the averments contained in the counter affidavit argues that a perusal of the reply that had been filed by the petitioner to the show cause notice would itself indicate that the petitioner had admitted the report and as such the authority concerned had no option but to place reliance on the report dated 04.10.2004 while passing the impugned order. He thus contends that as no objections were filed to the said report as such it cannot be said that the report was wrong and that the order impugned reflects non-application of mind and has not considered other material that might have been on record and as such there was no requirement of holding of any further "inquiry' as specified in Rule 7(5) of the Rules 1997.

12. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

13. From the arguments raised by learned counsel for the parties and from perusal of record it emerges that the land was purchased by the petitioner by means of a registered sale deed dated 10.09.2004. Proceedings were initiated against the petitioners under the provisions of the Act 1899 on the basis of a report dated 04.10.2004 which had been submitted by the authority which occasioned issuance of a show cause notice by the authority competent calling upon the petitioner to file his reply. The petitioner filed his reply in which he admitted that on account of legal advice the trees which were existing over the land could not be indicated. The authority concerned proceeded to pass the impugned order dated 15.04.2005 solely placing reliance over the report dated 04.10.2004 which was the basis of the initiation of the proceedings under the provisions of the Act 1899.

14. Perusal of the impugned order would indicate that no other material has been considered by the authority while passing the impugned order finding the petitioner to have paid less stamp duty and requiring the petitioner to pay the Stamp

Duty at a particular amount and also imposing penalty thereupon.

15. This Court in the case of Surendra Singh (supra) has held that a report on the basis of which proceedings was initiated against the provisions of the Act 1899 may be relevant for initiation of proceedings but it cannot be relied upon to pass an order under the said Section in as much as the said report cannot itself form basis of the order passed under Section 47A of the Act. For the sake of convenience, the relevant observation of this Court in the case of Surendra Singh (supra) are reproduced below:

"13. None of the authorities below besides the report of the Sub-Registrar has referred any other material in support of their orders. In Ram Khelawan @ Bachha v. State of U.P. through Collector, Hamirpur and another, 2005 (98) RD 511, it has been held that the report of the Tehsildar may be a relevant factor for initiation of the proceedings under Section 47A of the Act, but it cannot be relied upon to pass an order under the aforesaid section. In other words, the said report cannot form itself basis of the order passed under Section 47A of the Act. In the case of Vijai Kumar v. Commissioner, Meerut Division, Meerut, 2008 (7) ADJ 293 (para 17), the ambit and scope of Section 47A of the Act has been considered with some depth. Taking into consideration the Division Bench judgment of this Court in Kaka Singh v. Additional Collector and District Magistrate (Finance and Revenue), 1986 ALJ 49; Kishore Chandra Agrawal v. State of U.P. and others, 2008 (104) RD 253 and various other cases it has been held that under Section 47A(3) of the Act, the burden lay upon the Collector to prove that the market value is more than minimum as prescribed by the Collector under the Rules. The report of the Sub-Registrar and Tehsildar itself is not sufficient to discharge that burden."

16. Accordingly, when the impugned order dated 15.04.2005 is seen in the context of the law laid down by this Court in the case of Surendra Singh (Supra) what the Court finds is that the impugned order does not indicate about any other material having been considered by the authority concerned rather the very basis of the order impugned is the report dated 04.10.2004 which obviously cannot be relied upon while passing the impugned order.

17. At this stage the Court may also consider the provisions of Section 7(5) of the Rules 1997 which requires the competent authority to pass an order after making of an "inquiry' as specified under Rule 7 of the Rules 1997. For the sake of convenience Rule 7 of the Rules 1997 is quoted below:

"Rule 7. Procedure on receipt of a reference or when suo motu action is proposed under Section 47-A--

(1) On receipt of a reference or where action is proposed to be taken suo motu under Section 47-A, the Collector shall issue notice to parties to the instrument to show cause within thirty days of the receipt of such notice as to why the market value of the property set forth in the instrument and the duty payable thereon be not determined by him.

(2) The Collector may admit oral or documentary evidence, if any, produced by the parties to the instrument and call for and examine the original instrument to satisfy himself as to the correctness of the market value of the subject-matter of the instrument and for determining the duty payable thereon.

(3) The Collector may:

(a) call for any information or record from any public office, officer or authority under the government or local authority;

(b) examine and record the statement of any public officer or authority under the Government or local authority;

(c) inspect the property after due notice to the parties to the instrument.

(4) After considering the representation of the parties, if any, and examining the records and other evidence, the Collector shall determine the market value of the subject matter of the instrument and the duty payable thereon.

(5) If, as a result of such inquiry, the market value is found to be fully and truly set forth and the instrument duly stamped according to such value, it shall be returned to the person who made the reference with a certificate to that effect. A copy of such certificate shall also be sent to the Registering officer concerned.

(6) If, as a result of such inquiry, the market value is found to be undervalued and not duly stamped, necessary action shall be taken in respect of it according to relevant provisions of the Act."

18. From a perusal of Rule 7 of the Rules 1997 it emerges that on receipt of reference or where action is proposed to be taken suo motu under Section 47A, the Collector shall issue a notice to the parties requiring them to show cause as to why the market value of the property set forth in the instrument and the duty payable thereon be not determined by him. The Collector may admit oral or documentary evidence, if any, produced by the parties to the instrument and may also call for and examine the original instrument to satisfy himself regarding the correctness of the market value of the subject matter of the instrument for determining the duty payable. The Collector may also call for information or records from any public office, officer or authority or examine and record the statement of any public officer or authority and inspect the property. It is after considering the representations of the parties and examining the records and other evidences that the Collector is to determine the value of the subject matter of the instrument and the duty payable.

19. Subsequently, if as a result of such "inquiry' as aforesaid, the market value is found to be correct then no action is required but if the instrument is found to be undervalued then necessary action has to be taken under the relevant provisions of the Act.

20. The word "inquiry' has been defined in Blacks Law Dictionary as under:

"A request for information, either procedural or substantive."

From a perusal of the definition clause as given in the Blacks Law Dictionary it emerges that an "inquiry' is a request for information either procedural or substantive.

21. In the instant case the entire action under the provisions of the Act 1899 has been initiated on the basis of the report dated 04.10.2004. The perusal of the impugned order dated 15.04.2005 would indicate that the Collector has not called for any information from any public office, has not examined and recorded the statement of any public officer and inspected the property after due notice to the parties. No other records or evidence have been examined by the competent authority as would be apparent from the perusal of the impugned order. Thus, it is apparent that no "inquiry' as stipulated in Sub Rule (5) of the Rule (7) of the Rules 1997 has been held by the competent authority prior to passing the impugned order dated 15.04.2005 rather, as already indicated above, the basis of the impugned order is simply the ex-parte report dated 04.10.2004 which, as per the law laid down by this Court in the case of Surendra Singh (supra), could not have been considered. Thus, this Court is constrained to hold that no inquiry having been conducted by the competent authority prior to passing the impugned order dated 15.04.2005, the order would be vitiated on this ground also.

22. So far as the imposition of penalty by means of the impugned order dated 15.04.2005 is concerned, this Court in the case of Gyan Prakash (supra) has held that the sine qua non for imposition of penalty is a finding to be recorded by the competent authority based on relevant materials that the purchaser or the person liable to pay stamp duty had concealed relevant facts in execution of the sale deed and had the intention to evade payment of stamp duty. For the sake of convenience, the relevant paragraphs of the judgement in the case of Gyan Prakash (supra) are reproduced below.

"38. The next aspect of the matter is the legality of the penalty which has been imposed upon the petitioner of Rs.50,000/-. In this regard, suffice would be to refer the judgment of this Court in the case of Varun Gopal vs State of U.P. and others 2015 (2) ADJ 311, wherein this Court has held as under:-

"29. Penalty can be imposed, if there is an attempt to evade stamp duty. Penalty presupposes culpability and an intention to conceal or to play fraud with authorities. Before imposing penalty, authorities must record finding based on relevant material that the purchaser or the person liable to pay stamp duty had concealed relevant facts in execution of sale deed and had intention to evade payment of stamp duty. (Asha Kapoor (Smt.) v. Additional Collector (Finance and Revenue), Ghaziabad16)."

39. Likewise this Court in the case of Smt. Sonia Jindal vs State of U.P. and others, in Writ C No.20357 of 2011 decided on 07.04.2011 has held as under:-

"There is no dispute with regard to power of the authorities under the Stamp Act to impose penalty to the extent of four times the deficiency in stamp duty. However, the question is as to what is the criteria for imposing penalty.

The purpose for imposing penalty in exercise of power under Section 47-A (4) of the Act is to dissuade persons from deliberately under valuing the instrument and from payment of insufficient stamp duty. The purpose is not to make good the loss caused due to non-payment/delay in payment of proper court fees, as the loss so caused to the exchequer has been taken ample care under Section 47-A (4-A) by requiring the person concern to pay simple interest @ 1.5% per month on the deficient stamp duty.

In the instant case, the petitioner is one time petty purchaser of immovable property and is not in business of real estate. She is not a property dealer and is not regularly purchasing or selling immovable properties. Thus, imposition of penalty upon her may not act as a deterrent to her as she is not likely to enter into any such transaction in future.

The authorities below have not recorded any finding that the petitioner has deliberately not set-forth the market value of the property in the instrument and knowingly under valued the instrument to avoid payment of proper stamp duty. Merely for the reason that the stamp duty paid by her is found to be deficient can not by itself be a ground for imposing penalty, particularly, in the absence of any finding that there was intention to evade proper stamp duty.

Moreover, the power to impose penalty of an amount not exceeding four time the amount of the proper duty or the deficiency portion thereof is dependent upon the judicial discretion and can not be exercised in an arbitrary fashion. The authorities below have not assigned any reason for imposing penalty equivalent to the deficiency portion of the stamp duty. Therefore it can not be said to have been acted judicially.

In view of the above, the imposition of penalty can not be sustained."

40. From the aforesaid judgments, it clearly comes out that the sine qua non for imposition of the penalty is a finding to be recorded by the Collector based on the relevant material that the purchaser or the person liable to pay stamp duty had concealed the relevant facts in execution of the sale deed and had the intention to evade payment of the stamp duty.

41. In the instant case, a perusal of the impugned order dated 02.01.2015 indicates that no facts have been concealed by the petitioner while executing the sale deed. The fact of land being situated adjacent to national highway and a running petrol pump have duly been disclosed in the sale deed. Admittedly, the stamp duty has been affixed/paid at the agricultural rate for the said piece of land. In the entire order, there is no finding by the Collector as to how the petitioner concealed the relevant facts in execution of the sale deed and consequently in the absence of any such finding the imposition of penalty could not validly have been imposed and as such the imposition of penalty of Rs.50,000/- through the order dated 02.01.2015 is liable to be set-aside and accordingly is set-aside."

23. From a perusal of the impugned order dated 15.04.2005 it clearly emerges that the impugned order does not indicate nor records any finding by the competent authority that the purchaser had concealed relevant facts in execution of the sale deed and had the intention to evade the payment of stamp duty. As such on this ground alone the imposition of penalty on the petitioner cannot be said to be legally sustainable in the eyes of law and as such the impugned order merits to be set aside.

24. The aforesaid aspects of the matter have also not been considered by the appellate authority while dismissing the appeal of the petitioner vide the impugned order dated 26.02.2014.

25. Keeping in view the aforesaid discussions the petition deserves to be allowed and is allowed. The impugned orders dated 15.04.2005 and 26.02.14, copies of which are annexures 1 and 2 to the petition, are set aside.

26. The matter is remitted to the competent authority for passing of a fresh order in accordance with law after hearing all the parties concerned within a period of 6 months from the date of receipt of certified copy of this order.

27. Consequences to follow.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajai Tyagi, J.)

1. This application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. has been moved by applicants, namely, Ritu

Yadav, Sunil @ Guddu, Sachin @ Chhotu and Kamlesh Kumar challenging the charge sheet No.01 dated 18.01.2022 arising out of Case Crime No.419 of 2021, under Section 306 IPC, Police Station- Jaswant Nagar, District- Etawah and cognizance order passed by Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No.2, Etawah dated 15.02.2022 and entire proceedings of this case.

2. The brief facts giving rise to the aforesaid application are that a first information report was lodged at police station- Jaswant Nagar, District- Etawah on 03.10.2021 by opposite party No.2 Munni Devi with the averments that the marriage of his son Rahul Yadav was solemnized with Ritu Yadav in the year 2010. Ritu Yadav lived happily with her son only for some period. After that she started torturing her son. On 10.08.2021 Ritu Yadav, Sanjay @ Guddu, Sachin @ Chhotu, both son of Keshav Dayal and Kamlesh maternal uncle of Ritu Yadav tortured her son and scuffled with him. Aggrieved with the torture at the hands of the aforesaid persons her son Rahul Yadav has committed suicide on 24.08.2021 at about 11:00 am. During the course of investigation, a suicide note was recovered by investigating officer allegedly written by the deceased Rahul Yadav, which is enclosed as Annexure No.9. I.O. recorded the statements of witnesses under Section 161 Cr.P.C., inquest report was prepared and post mortem was conducted on the body of the deceased and post mortem report was prepared, in which ligature mark of 20cm x 01.5 cm size on the neck, above thyroid cartilage was shown as ante mortem injury. Cause of death was mentioned as asphyxia due to hanging.

3. After completion of investigation, investigating officer reached to the conclusion that the deceased had committed suicide and I.O. submitted charge sheet against all the applicants, namely, Ritu Yadav, Sunil @ Guddu, Sachin @ Chhotu and Kamlesh for the offence under Section 306 IPC. Learned Magistrate concerned took the cognizance on the aforesaid charge sheet on 15.02.2022 and summoned all the four accused persons for trial under Section 306 IPC. Aggrieved with submission of charge sheet and cognizance order, applicants moved this application under Section 482 Cr.P.C.

4. Heard Shri Puneet Bhadauria, learned counsel for the applicants, Shri Ram Ashish Pandey, learned counsel for opposite party No.2, Shri Mthilesh Kumar, learned AGA and carefully perused the record.

5. At the outset, learned counsel for the applicants submitted that applicant No.1 Ritu Yadav is wife of deceased Rahul Yadav, who has committed suicide, applicant Nos.2 and 3 are brothers of applicant No.1 and applicant No.4 is maternal uncle of applicant No.1 and no offence under Section 306 IPC is made out against any of the applicants. It is further submitted that after the death of deceased Rahul Yadav, his real brother Nishu Kumar son of Suresh Kumar informed the police of P.S. Jaswant Nagar, District- Etawah and his information was entered in G.D. of police station, which is annexed as Annexure No.3. Learned counsel for the applicants submitted that in aforesaid information, which is entered in G.D. on 24.08.2021 at 21:31, it is nowhere informed by Nishu Kumar that any of the applicants was responsible for the death of deceased and it is also specifically informed that wife of deceased had gone to house of her brothers in Delhi with children on 22.08.2021 on the eve of Raksha Bandan festival and his brother was alone in the house. Learned counsel for the applicants vehemently submitted that the information provided by brother of deceased itself shows that at the time of alleged occurrence of suicide, applicants were not with him and wife of deceased had already gone to her brother's place in Delhi before two day. Hence, there was no reason or occasion on the part of the applicants to make any sort of abetment for compelling him to commit suicide. It is also submitted that the marriage of applicant No.1 and deceased was solemnized in the year 2011. Hence, the occurrence took place after 10 years of marriage.

6. Learned counsel for the applicants also submitted that as per averments of first information report, altercation of the deceased with applicants had taken place on 10.08.2021 while the death of the deceased occurred on 24.08.2021 i.e. after 14 days of the said altercation and first information report by mother of the deceased opposite party No.2 was lodged at police station on 03.10.2021 i.e. after nearly one and half months. This delay in lodging the FIR is nowhere explained by the prosecution.

7. Learned counsel for the applicants next submitted that in fact after the death of the deceased, his wife applicant No.1 on 22.09.2021 moved an application (Annexure No.4) against opposite party No.2 mother of the deceased and Nishu brother of the deceased under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. for lodging FIR against them. On that application, learned court below called for report. Police submitted report on 28.09.2021 (Annexure No.5), in which it is specifically stated that after indepth inquiry, no evidence of abetment to commit suicide is surfaced. Consequently, the application moved by applicant No.1 u/s 156(3) Cr.P.C. was rejected vide order dated 06.10.2021 (Annexure No.6). Learned counsel for the applicants emphatically submitted that after rejection of aforesaid application u/s 156(3) Cr.P.C., first information report was lodged by opposite party No.2 to save skin of herself and her family and on the basis of false incident dated 10.08.2021, showing in FIR, all the applicants were implicated falsely.

8. Learned counsel for the applicants further submitted that first of all the brother of deceased Nishu Kumar did not disclose any fact with regard to the abetment on the part of the applicants, when he provided information of death of his brother to the police station, which is entered in G.D. Moreover, if for the sake of argument, the averments made in FIR are taken as true even then no case under Section 306 IPC is made. In the FIR a false incident of altercation between deceased Rahul Yadav and applicants is said to have taken place on 10.08.2021 and alleged suicide of Rahul Yadav was committed on 24.08.2021. There is nothing on record that in the interregnum period of 14 days any act of abetment is committed by any of the applicants. Apart from it, the information provided by Nishu Kumar to police station (Annexure No.3) goes to show that before two days of the death of the deceased, his wife had gone to Delhi with children on the occasion of festival of Raksha Bandan. Hence, it is admitted fact that at the time of death on 24.08.2021, none of the applicants was with the deceased.

9. Learned counsel for the applicants also submitted that a suicide note is left by the deceased, which is enclosed as Annexure No.9. Entry of suicide note is made in case diary. In entire suicide note, none of the applicants is made responsible by the deceased. There is nothing in the suicide note to suggest that applicants were responsible for commission of suicide. Hence, on the basis of suicide note, no offence is made out against the applicants u/s 306 IPC and I.O. also has written in case diary (Annexure No.12) that nobody was held responsible by Rahul Yadav in his suicide note and nothing is written about his wife. Even then, the investigating officer submitted charge sheet against all the applicants u/s 306 IPC, which is result of poor investigation and it is abuse of process of law.

10. Learned counsel for the applicants lastly made legal argument that suicide was committed after 14 days of alleged occurrence in FIR dated 10.08.2021. Hence, there was no proximity of time and live link between the alleged occurrence within interregnum period of 14 days and there was no positive act on the part of the applicants, which can be termed as abetment. Apart from it, since it is admitted fact of prosecution that on 24.08.2021 applicant No.1 had gone to Delhi and was not with her husband, there cannot be any instigating act on the part of his wife. Hence, learned Magistrate had also taken cognizance without considering the aforesaid position of law. Hence, the submission of the charge sheet by investigating officer and impugned cognizance order passed by learned Magistrate are bad in the eye of law and liable to be quashed.

11. Learned counsel for the applicants relied on following judgements:-

(i) Geo Varghese Vs. State of Rajasthan and another, delivered by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Criminal Appeal No.1164 of 2021(arising out of S.L.P. (Crl.) No.4512 of 2019);

(ii) Arnab Manoranjan Goswami Vs. State of Maharashtra and others, (2021) 2 SCC 427;

(iii) Vaijnath Kondiba Khandke Vs. State of Maharashtra and another (2018) 7 SCC 433;

(iv) State of West Bengal Vs. Indrajit Kundu and others (2019) 10 Supreme Court Cases 188;

(v) S S Chheena Vs. Vijay Kumar Mahajan and another 2010 (12) SCC 190;

(vi) Ramesh Kumar Vs. State of Chhattisgarh, (2001) 9 SCC 618.

12. It is submitted by learned counsel for the applicants that in the aforesaid pronouncements, it is held that if there is harassment then mere harassment does not come within the purview of instigation. Learned counsel for the applicants submitted that for instigation, ingredients of Section 107 IPC should be there. In this present case, suicide of deceased had taken place after 14 days of the alleged occurrence dated 10.08.2021 in FIR and it is admitted fact on the day of suicide applicants were not there with the deceased, hence, there was no positive action on the part of the applicants, which is proximate to the time of the occurrence and ingredients of Section 107 IPC are not there.

13. Learned counsel for opposite party No.2 and learned AGA Shri Mithlesh Kumar submitted that although in suicide note (Annexure No.9) the deceased has not openly made responsible to any person by name for his death but in the background, it was mainly illicit relationship of his wife applicant No.1. Learned counsel for opposite party No.2 in this regard invited the attention of this Court towards a note written by deceased Rahul Yadav approximately before two years of his death, which is filed by way of counter affidavit by opposite party No.2 as Annexure No.CA-2 and is part of case diary. It is clearly mentioned in this aforesaid note that his wife was having illicit relationship and she was not a lady of good character. Due to which the deceased was perturbed and that was a real abetment due to which, ultimately the deceased committed suicide. Learned counsel argued that it is not necessary that the act of abetment should be a single act, it may be a series of acts or it may be continuous abetment as in this case as the wife of deceased applicant No.1 was in illicit relationship that can be a continuous abetment for any husband. Hence, investigating officer has rightly submitted the charge sheet and learned court below has rightly taken cognizance and summoned the applicants for trial for the offence under Section 306 IPC. Learned counsel for opposite party No.2 and learned AGA submitted that at the stage of taking cognizance of the offence on submission of charge sheet, the court has to see whether any prima facie offence is made out against the accused or not and only prima facie offence is to be seen and the defence of accused is not to be considered at the stage of cognizance. Hence, there is no illegality or infirmity in the submission of the charge sheet and impugned order taking cognizance, which calls for any interference by this Court.

14. Section 306 of IPC makes abetment of suicide a criminal offence and prescribes punishment for the same. Abetment is defined under Section 107 of IPC which reads as under :-

"107. Abetment of a thing - A person abets the doing of a thing, who-

First.--Instigates any person to do that thing; or

Secondly.--Engages with one or more other person or persons in any conspiracy for the doing of that thing, if an act or illegal omission takes place in pursuance of that conspiracy, and in order to the doing of that thing; or Thirdly.--Intentionally aids, by any act or illegal omission, the doing of that thing.

Explanation 1.--A person who, by wilful misrepresentation, or by wilful concealment of a material fact which he is bound to disclose, voluntarily causes or procures, or attempts to cause or procure, a thing to be done, is said to instigate the doing of that thing. Explanation 2.--Whoever either prior to or at the time of the commission of an act, does anything in order to facilitate the commission of that act, and thereby facilitates the commission thereof, is said to aid the doing of that act."

15. The scope and ambit of Section 107 IPC and its co-relation with Section 306 IPC has been discussed repeatedly by Apex Court. In the case of S.S.Cheena Vs. Vijay Kumar Mahajan and Anr., it was observed as under:-

"Abetment involves a mental process of instigating a person or intentionally aiding a person in doing of a thing. Without a positive act on the part of the accused to instigate or aid in committing suicide, conviction cannot be sustained. The intention of the legislature and the ratio of the cases decided by the Supreme Court is clear that in order to convict a person under Section 306 IPC there has to be a clear mens rea to commit the offence. It also requires an active act or direct act which led the deceased to commit suicide seeing no option and that act must have been intended to push the deceased into such a position that he committed suicide."

16. In a recent pronouncement, a two-Judge Bench of the Apex Court in the case of Arnab Manoranjan Goswami Vs. State of Maharashtra & Ors. 3, while considering the co-relation of Section 107 IPC with Section 306 IPC has observed as under :-

*"47. The above decision thus arose in a situation where the High Court had declined to entertain a petition for quashing an FIR under Section 482 of the 14 (2014) 4 SCC 453 PART I 33 Cr.P.C. However, it nonetheless directed the investigating agency not to arrest the accused during the pendency of the investigation. This was held to be impermissible by this Court. On the other hand, this Court clarified that the High Court if it thinks fit, having regard to the parameters for quashing and the self restraint imposed by law, has the jurisdiction to quash the investigation —and may pass appropriate interim orders as thought apposite in law. Clearly therefore, the High Court in the present case has misdirected itself in declining to enquire prima facie on a petition for quashing whether the parameters in the exercise of that jurisdiction have been duly established and if so whether a case for the grant of interim bail has been made out. The settled principles which have been consistently reiterated since the judgment of this Court in State of Haryana Vs. Bhajan Lal (Bhajan Lal) include a situation where the allegations made in the FIR or the complaint, even if they are taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety, do not prima facie constitute any offence or make out a case against the accused. This legal position was recently*reiterated in a decision by a two-judge Bench of this Court in Kamal Shivaji Pokarnekar vs. State of Maharashtra.

48. The striking aspect of the impugned judgment of the High Court spanning over fifty-six pages is the absence of any evaluation even prima facie of the most basic issue. The High Court, in other words, failed to apply its mind to a 15 1992 Supp. 1 SCC 335 16 (2019) 14 SCC 350 PART I 34 fundamental issue which needed to be considered while dealing with a petition for quashing under Article 226 of the Constitution or Section 482 of the CrPC. The High Court, by its judgment dated 9 November 2020, has instead allowed the petition for quashing to stand over for hearing a month later, and therefore declined to allow the appellant''s prayer for interim bail and relegated him to the remedy under Section 439 of the CrPC. In the meantime, liberty has been the casualty. The High Court having failed to evaluate prima facie whether the allegations in the FIR, taken as they stand, bring the case within the fold of Section 306 read with Section 34 of the IPC, this Court is now called upon to perform the task."

17. At this stage, this Court may also refer to another recent judgment of a two-Judge Bench of the Apex Court in the case of Ude Singh & Ors. Vs. State of Haryana on 25th July, 2019 passed in Crl. Appeal No.233 of 2010, which elucidated on the essential ingredients of the offence under Section 306 IPC in the following words:-

"16. In cases of alleged abetment of suicide, there must be a proof of direct or indirect act/s of incitement to the commission of suicide. It could hardly be disputed that the question of cause of a suicide, particularly in the context of an offence of abetment of suicide, remains a vexed one, involving multifaceted and complex attributes of human behaviour and responses/reactions. In the case of accusation for abetment of suicide, the Court would be looking for cogent and convincing proof of the act/s of incitement to the commission of suicide. In the case of suicide, mere allegation of harassment of the deceased by another person would not suffice unless there be such action on the part of the accused which compels the person to commit suicide; and such an offending action ought to be proximate to the time of occurrence. Whether a person has abetted in the commission of suicide by another or not, could only be gathered from the facts and circumstances of each case.

16.1. For the purpose of finding out if a person has abetted commission of suicide by another; the consideration would be if the accused is guilty of the act of instigation of the act of suicide. As explained and reiterated by this Court in the decisions above-referred, instigation means to goad, urge forward, provoke, incite or encourage to do an act. If the persons who committed suicide had been hypersensitive and the action of accused is otherwise not ordinarily expected to induce a similarly circumstanced person to commit suicide, it may not be safe to hold the accused guilty of abetment of suicide. But, on the other hand, if the accused by his acts and by his continuous course of conduct creates a situation which leads the deceased perceiving no other option except to commit suicide, the case may fall within the four-corners of Section 306 IPC. If the accused plays an active role in tarnishing the self-esteem and self-respect of the victim, which eventually draws the victim to commit suicide, the accused may be held guilty of abetment of suicide. The question of mens rea on the part of the accused in such cases would be examined with reference to the actual acts and deeds of the accused and if the acts and deeds are only of such nature where the accused intended nothing more than harassment or snap show of anger, a particular case may fall short of the offence of abetment of suicide. However, if the accused kept on irritating or annoying the deceased by words or deeds until the deceased reacted or was provoked, a particular case may be that of abetment of suicide. Such being the matter of delicate analysis of human behaviour, each case is required to be examined on its own facts, while taking note of all the surrounding factors having bearing on the actions and psyche of the accused and the deceased."

18. In the backdrop of the circumstances and material on record of this case, the role of applicant No.1 (wife of the deceased) and applicant Nos.2, 3 and 4 (brothers and maternal uncle of applicant No.1) are distinguishable. Although the deceased has not named any person in suicide note to be held responsible for his act of suicide, yet it is logical to read the contention of suicide note in the light of writing notes by deceased, as filed by opposite party No.2 as Annexure No.CA-2 in his counter affidavit, which suggests that according to the deceased, his wife applicant No.1 was in some illicit relationship and this fact made him perturbed and ultimately led to commission of suicide. Hence, as a matter of fact, she had actively facilitated in the commission of suicide. What is required to constitute abetment of suicide under Section 306 IPC is that there must be an allegation of either direct or indirect act of incitement to the commission of offence of suicide. It is not always necessary that "a single act' should constitute abetment. Abetment may be continuous by the conduct of abettor as seems in the case in hand. Every case should be examined on its own facts and circumstances and keeping in consideration the surroundings circumstances, which may have bearing on the alleged action of the accused and the pysche of the accused.

19. If this Court goes by the contents of suicide note in the light of note writings of deceased (Annexure No.CA-2) then it can be transpired that there was question of chastity of applicant No.1, which was hovering in the mind of the deceased and caused abetment continuously increasing with the passage of time. This Court is not agreeable with the argument advanced by the learned counsel for the applicants that no person is named in suicide note who can be held responsible for his death. Because whatever written in the suicide note depends upon the mental state of the person at the time of commission of suicide. Circumstances in the backdrop of the suicide note are subject to evidence which shall be led by the prosecution during the trial. Doors of evidence cannot be shut and opportunity of evidence leading to the circumstances of the death of the deceased should not be closed at the outset as in the case in hand where the contents of suicide notes and note writings of deceased, as discussed above, indicate that deceased had in so many words allegated applicant No.1, for his act to commit suicide. Hence, in the cases on which applicants have relied upon do not apply to the facts of this case at this stage because prosecution has yet to get opportunity to lead evidence.

20. Hon'ble Apex Court in Criminal Appeal No.840 of 2022 with Criminal Appeal No.841 of 2022 State of Uttar Pradesh and another Vs. Akhil Sharda and and others has recently held that at the stage of deciding the application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. mini trial is not permissible. Hence, the aforesaid legal position does not permit this court to quash the charge sheet, cognizance order and proceedings of this case against applicant No.1, who is wife of the deceased.

21. As far as the applicant No.2, 3 and 4 are concerned, this is admitted fact that applicant No.2 and 3 are brothers of applicant No.1 and applicant No.4 is her maternal uncle. With regard to applicant Nos.2, 3 and 4, there is no evidence on record which can show their involvement in the act of abetment. Combined perusal of the suicide note and note writings of deceased (Annexure No.CA-2) nowhere suggests that applicant No.2, 3 and 4 committed any act, either explicit or implicit, which can come within the purview of definition of abetment as contemplated under Section 107 IPC. If there is allegation in note writings of deceased against brothers of applicant No.1 that they had beaten the deceased or allegation by opposite party No.2 in FIR that on 10.08.2021, applicant Nos.2, 3 and 4 misbehaved and scuffled with the deceased, it cannot be said to be an act of abetment for committing suicide. Hence, there is no iota of evidence against applicant Nos.2, 3 and 4 even learned counsel for opposite party No.2 could not point out any explicit or implicit role of applicant Nos.2, 3 and 4 towards abetment.

22. The following observations made by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of State of Karnataka Vs. L. Muniswamy & Ors. may be relevant to note at this stage:-

"The whole some power under Section 482 CrPC entitles the High Court to quash a proceeding when it comes to the conclusion that allowing the proceeding to continue would be an abuse of the process of the Court or that the ends of justice require that the proceeding ought to be quashed. The High Courts have been invested with inherent power, both in civil and criminal matters, to achieve a salutary public purposes. A Court proceeding ought not to be permitted to degenerate into a weapon of harassment or persecution. The Court observed in this case that ends of justice are higher than the ends of mere law though justice must be administered according to laws made by the legislature."

23. In the case of M/s.Zandu Pharmaceutical Works Ltd. & Ors. Vs. Mohd. Sharaful Haque & Anr., Apex Court observed as under :-

"It would be an abuse of process of the court to allow any action which would result in injustice and prevent promotion of justice. In exercise of the powers court would be justified to quash any proceeding if it finds that initiation/continuance of it amounts to abuse of the process of court or quashing of these proceedings would otherwise serve the ends of justice. When no offence is disclosed by the complaint, the court may examine the question of fact. When a complaint is sought to be quashed, it is permissible to look into the materials to assess what the complainant has alleged and whether any offence is made out even if the allegations are accepted in toto."

24. Again in Madhavrao Jiwajirao Scindia & Anr. Vs. Sambhajirao Chandrojirao Angre & Ors., Hon'ble Apex Court observed in paragraph 7 as under :-

"7. The legal position is well-settled that when a prosecution at the initial stage is asked to be quashed, the test to be applied by the court is as to whether the uncontroverted allegations as made prima facie establish the offence. It is also for the court to take into consideration any special features which appear in a particular case to consider whether it is expedient and in the interest of justice to permit a prosecution to continue. This is so on the basis that the court cannot be utilised for any oblique purpose and where in the opinion of the court chances of an ultimate conviction is bleak and, therefore, no useful purpose is likely to be served by allowing a criminal prosecution to continue, the court may while taking into consideration the special facts of a case also quash the proceeding even though it may be at a preliminary stage."

25. Hence, in the absence of any specific allegation and material of definite nature, it would be travesty of justice to ask applicant Nos.2, 3 and 4 to face the trial. In the absence of any material or even prima facie in the FIR, statements of witnesses recorded during investigation, pointing out any such circumstances showing any such act or intention that applicant Nos.2, 3 and 4 intended to bring about the suicide of deceased Rahul Yadav, it would be absurd to even think that applicant Nos.2, 3 and 4 had any intention to place the deceased in such circumstances due to which he committed suicide.

26. In the light of above discussion, this Court finds no ground to continue the proceedings of this case against applicant Nos.2, 3 and 4 and put them on trial when no offence under Section 306 IPC is disclosed against them. Hence, no useful purpose is likely to be served by allowing the criminal prosecution against them.

27. Hence, the charge sheet, impugned cognizance and summoning order and entire proceedings in pursuance thereof are hereby quashed only against the applicant No.2 Sunil @ Guddu Son of Keshav Dayal, Applicant No.3 Sachin @ Chhotu son of Keshav Dayal and Applicant No.4 Kamlesh Kumar son of Lal Singh Yadav.

28. Accordingly, this application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. is rejected to the extent of applicant No.1 Ritu Yadav and partly allowed with regard to Applicant No.2 Sunil, Applicant No.3 Sachin @ Chhotu and applicant No.4 Kamlesh Yadav.

3. Vineet Kumar Vs St. of U.P. ,2017(5) ADJ 438 (SC)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sameer Jain, J.)

1. Case called out in the revised list. None is present on behalf of the opposite party No. 2 even in the revised call.

2. Heard Sri Sumit Goyal, learned counsel for the applicants; Sri M.P.S. Gaur, learned AGA for the State-respondent and perused the record of the case.

3. The present Application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. was filed by the applicants for quashing the charge sheet and proceedings of Case No. 2507 of 2008 under Section 504 IPC, P.S. Barra, District Kanpur Nagar arising out of case crime No. 287 of 2007 pending before ACMM-Ist, Kanpur Nagar.

4. As per prosecution case, on 29.6.2007 FIR of the present case was lodged under Sections 452, 323, 504, 506 IPC at P.S. Barra, District Kanpur Nagar with the allegation that on 19.4.2006 at about 8 am in the morning, applicants entered in the house of opposite party No. 2 and started beating him and when neighbours intervened then they went back to their home after abusing and threatening him. After investigation, charge sheet against the applicants was filed only under Section 504 IPC. Learned Magistrate took cognizance on 2.5.2008 and issued summons to the applicants.

5. Learned counsel for the applicants contended that although initially FIR of the present case was lodged against the applicants under Sections 452, 323, 504, 506 IPC and during investigation, allegation in respect of Sections 452, 323, 506 IPC were found false and charge sheet against the applicants was submitted only under Section 504 IPC and, therefore, this fact clearly suggests that the FIR of the instant case was lodged against the applicants with malafide intention on false facts and without proper investigation, Investigating Officer submitted charge sheet against the applicants. He further contended that Section 504 IPC is non-cognizable offence, therefore, as per the explanation to Section 2(d) of Criminal Procedure Code, a charge sheet under Section 504 IPC could not be filed and neither cognizance could be taken on such charge sheet.

6. Learned counsel for the applicants further submitted that earlier on 19.4.2006, FIR was lodged by applicant No. 1 against the opposite party No. 2 and his family members under Sections 306, 504, 506 IPC in respect of death of his daughter and in this case opposite party No. 2 is facing trial. He next contended that earlier opposite party No. 2 also moved an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. against the applicants in respect of the death of his own daughter of applicant No. 1, which was rejected on 11.6.2007 and after rejection of application moved under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C., opposite party No. 2 after two weeks filed FIR of the present case, on false facts.

7. Learned counsel for the applicants lastly argued that as per prosecution version, the present incident took place on 19.4.2006 while the FIR was lodged on 29.6.2007, thus, there is an inordinate delay of more than one year in lodging the FIR of the present case, therefore, on this ground alone, the impugned charge sheet as well as proceedings pending against the applicants, is liable to be quashed.

8. Per contra, learned AGA contended that prima facie FIR and the evidence collected by Investigating Officer during the course of investigation discloses offence under Section 504 IPC, therefore, neither charge sheet nor proceedings pending against the applicants should be quashed. He further contended that the charge sheet filed under Section 504 IPC can very well be treated as a complaint according to the explanation of Section 2(d) of Criminal Procedure Code and, therefore, taking cognizance on the charge sheet can very well be rectified by learned Magistrate. Learned AGA further submitted that merely on the ground of malafide intention a criminal proceeding cannot be quashed and neither delay in lodging the FIR is very material at this stage and, therefore, present application is devoid of merit and is liable to be dismissed.

9. I have given anxious consideration on the rival contentions advanced by learned counsel for the parties and perused the record of the case.

10. The scope of Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been very elaborately discussed by Hon'ble Supreme Court in case of State of Haryana and others Vs. Bhajan Lal and others reported in [1992 Supp (1) SCC 335] and in paragraph 102 enumearated 7 categories of the cases where power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. can be exercised which is quoted as follows:-

"102. In the backdrop of the interpretation of the various relevant provisions of the Code under Chapter XIV and of the principles of law enunciated by this Court in a series of decisions relating to the exercise of the extraordinary power under Article 226 or the inherent powers under Section 482 of the Code which we have extracted and reproduced above, we give the following categories of cases by way of illustration wherein such power could be exercised either to prevent abuse of the process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice, though it may not be possible to lay down any precise, clearly defined and sufficiently channelised and inflexible guidelines or rigid formulae and to give an exhaustive list of myriad kinds of cases wherein such power should be exercised.

(1) Where the allegations made in the first information report or the complaint, even if they are taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety do not prima facie constitute any offence or make out a case against the accused.

(2) Where the allegations in the first information report and other materials, if any, accompanying the FIR do not disclose a cognizable offence, justifying an investigation by police officers under Section 156 (1) of the Code except under an order of a Magistrate within the purview of Section 155 (2) of the Code.

(3) Where the uncontroverted allegations made in the FIR or complaint and the evidence collected in support of the same do not disclose the commission of any offence and make out a case against the accused.

(4) Where, the allegations in the FIR do not constitute a cognizable offence but constitute only a non-cognizable offence, no investigation is permitted by a police officer without an order of a Magistrate as contemplated under Section 155 (2) of the Code.

(5) Where the allegations made in the FIR or complaint are so absurd and inherently improbable on the basis of which no prudent person can ever reach a just conclusion that there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused.

(6) Where there is an express legal bar engrafted in any of the provisions of the Code or the concerned Act (under which a criminal proceeding is instituted) to the institution and continuance of the proceedings and/or where there is a specific provision in the Code or the concerned Act, providing efficacious redress for the grievance of the aggrieved party.

(7) Where a criminal proceeding is manifestly attended with mala fide and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge."

11. Very recently three Judge Bench of the Hon'ble Apex Court in M/s. Neeharika Inrastructure Pvt. Ltd. Vs. State of Maharashtra and others reported in [AIR 2021 Supreme Court 1918] also discussed the scope of Section 482 Cr.P.C. and Article 226 of Constitution of India in very detail manner and in paragraph-23 arrived at final conclusion as under:

i) Police has the statutory right and duty under the relevant provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure contained in Chapter XIV of the Code to investigate into a cognizable offence;

ii) Courts would not thwart any investigation into the cognizable offences;

iii) It is only in cases where no cognizable offence or offence of any kind is disclosed in the first information report that the Court will not permit an investigation to go on;

iv) The power of quashing should be exercised sparingly with circumspection, as it has been observed, in the "rarest of rare cases (not to be confused with the formation in the context of death penalty).

v) While examining an FIR/complaint, quashing of which is sought, the court cannot embark upon an enquiry as to the reliability or genuineness or otherwise of the allegations made in the FIR/complaint;

vi) Criminal proceedings ought not to be scuttled at the initial stage;

vii) Quashing of a complaint/FIR should be an exception rather than an ordinary rule;

viii) Ordinarily, the courts are barred from usurping the jurisdiction of the police, since the two organs of the State operate in two specific spheres of activities and one ought not to tread over the other sphere;

ix) The functions of the judiciary and the police are complementary, not overlapping;

x) Save in exceptional cases where non-interference would result in miscarriage of justice, the Court and the judicial process should not interfere at the stage of investigation of offences;

xi) Extraordinary and inherent powers of the Court do not confer an arbitrary jurisdiction on the Court to act according to its whims or caprice;

xii) The first information report is not an encyclopedia which must disclose all facts and details relating to the offence reported. Therefore, when the investigation by the police is in progress, the court should not go into the merits of the allegations in the FIR. Police must be permitted to complete the investigation. It would be premature to pronounce the conclusion based on hazy facts that the complaint/FIR does not deserve to be investigated or that it amounts to abuse of process of law. After investigation, if the investigating officer finds that there is no substance in the application made by the complainant, the investigating officer may file an appropriate report/summary before the learned Magistrate which may be considered by the learned Magistrate in accordance with the known procedure; xiii) The power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is very wide, but conferment of wide power requires the court to be more cautious. It casts an onerous and more diligent duty on the court;

xiv) However, at the same time, the court, if it thinks fit, regard being had to the parameters of quashing and the self-restraint imposed by law, more particularly the parameters laid down by this Court in the cases of R.P. Kapur (supra) and Bhajan Lal (supra), has the jurisdiction to quash the FIR/complaint;

xv) When a prayer for quashing the FIR is made by the alleged accused and the court when it exercises the power under Section 482 Cr.P.C., only has to consider whether the allegations in the FIR disclose commission of a cognizable offence or not. The court is not required to consider on merits whether or not the merits of the allegations make out a cognizable offence and the court has to permit the investigating agency/police to investigate the allegations in the FIR;

xvi) The aforesaid parameters would be applicable and/or the aforesaid aspects are required to be considered by the High Court while passing an interim order in a quashing petition in exercise of powers under Section 482 Cr.P.C. and/or under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. However, an interim order of stay of investigation during the pendency of the quashing petition can be passed with circumspection. Such an interim order should not require to be passed routinely, casually and/or mechanically. Normally, when the investigation is in progress and the facts are hazy and the entire evidence/material is not before the High Court, the High Court should restrain itself from passing the interim order of not to arrest or "no coercive steps to be adopted" and the accused should be relegated to apply for anticipatory bail under Section 438 Cr.P.C. before the competent court. The High Court shall not and as such is not justified in passing the order of not to arrest and/or "no coercive steps" either during the investigation or till the investigation is completed and/or till the final report/chargesheet is filed under Section 173 Cr.P.C., while dismissing/disposing of the quashing petition under Section 482 Cr.P.C. and/or under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. xvii) Even in a case where the High Court is prima facie of the opinion that an exceptional case is made out for grant of interim stay of further investigation, after considering the broad parameters while exercising the powers under Section 482 Cr.P.C. and/or under Article 226 of the Constitution of India referred to hereinabove, the High Court has to give brief reasons why such an interim order is warranted and/or is required to be passed so that it can demonstrate the application of mind by the Court and the higher forum can consider what was weighed with the High Court while passing such an interim order.

xviii) Whenever an interim order is passed by the High Court of "no coercive steps to be adopted" within the aforesaid parameters, the High Court must clarify what does it mean by "no coercive steps to be adopted" as the term "no coercive steps to be adopted" can be said to be too vague and/or broad which can be misunderstood and/or misapplied.

12. As per the judgement of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Bhajan Lal (supra), seven categories have been narrated on the basis of which a proceeding under Section 482 Cr.P.C. can be quashed. As per category No. 7, a criminal proceeding which is manifestly attended with mala fide and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge then it can very well be quashed. These seven categories described in the case of Bhajan Lal (supra) have been approved by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of M/s Neeharika Infrastructure (supra) in Conclusion No. XIV.

13. Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Vineet Kumar versus State of U.P. reported in [2017(5) ADJ 438 (SC)] while quashing the entire criminal proceedings on the basis of category No. 7 enumerated in the case of Bhajan Lal (supra) observed in paragraph No.-39 as follows:-

39. Inherent power given to the High Court under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is with the purpose and object of advancement of justice. In case solemn process of Court is sought to be abused by a person with some oblique motive, the Court has to thwart the attempt at the very threshold. The Court cannot permit a prosecution to go on if the case falls in one of the Categories as illustratively enumerated by this Court in State of Haryana V. Bhajan Lal. Judicial process is a solemn proceeding which cannot be allowed to be converted into an instrument of operation or harassment. When there are material to indicate that a criminal proceeding is manifestly attended with mala fide and proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive, the High Court will not hesitate in exercise of its jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. to quash the proceeding under Category 7 as enumerated in State of Haryana Vs. Bhajan Lal, which is to the following effect:

"(7) Where a criminal proceeding is manifestly attended with mala fide and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge."

14. Therefore, it is very well settled that criminal proceedings maliciously instituted with ulterior motives can be quashed by this Court while exercising the power under Section 482 Cr.P.C.

15. In the present case, a FIR was lodged by the applicant No. 1 against the opposite party No. 2 and his family members regarding death of his daughter and for which opposite party No. 2 is facing trial and further on 11.6.2007, application moved by him against the applicants under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. was dismissed. Thus, it is apparent that O.P. No. 2 wanted to save his skin from the case registered by applicant No. 1 against him and his family members u/s 306 IPC in respect of the death of the daughter of applicant No. 1 and also wanted to drag applicants in that case and he with malafide intention and ulterior motive after more than one year, lodged the FIR of the present case. Therefore, on the ground of malicious prosecution, present application in view of category No. 7 of Bhajan Lal (supra) can succeed.

16. Further as per prosecution, applicants entered in the house of opposite party No. 2 and started beating him and on the intervention, they returned back and while returning, they abused and threatened him too. But during investigation, allegation in respect of house trespass and beating as well as of threatening was found false. Thus, in my considered view when during investigation, genesis of occurrence was found false then ancillary incident cannot stand alone. Therefore, chargesheet filed only u/s 504 IPC and proceeding against applicants in pursuance of that chargesheet is bad.

17. In the result, the present application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. is allowed and the impugned charge sheet as well as proceedings in Case No. 2507 of 2008 under Section 504 IPC, P.S. Barra, District Kanpur Nagar arising out of case crime No. 287 of 2007 pending before ACMM-Ist, Kanpur Nagar, is hereby quashed.

5. Learned counsel for the applicants submitted that as charge-sheet in the present matter was submitted under Sections 352, 323, 504 IPC and all the offences are non-cognizable, therefore, in view of explanation to Section 2(d) Cr.P.C. cognizance order dated 06.01.2021 passed by the court below is bad. He further submitted that as per explanation to Section 2(d) Cr.P.C. if after investigation charge-sheet was submitted in respect to the non-cognizable offences then charge-sheet must be deemed to be a complaint and the police officer, who conducted the investigation shall be deemed to the complainant of the case, therefore, in such matters, proceeding can only be initiated as a complaint case but in the present matter the court did not treat the charge-sheet as a complaint and court below in routine manner took the cognizance on the charge-sheet and issued summons to the applicants, therefore, cognizance order dated 06.01.2021 is illegal.

6. Learned counsel for the applicants further submitted that the entire allegation made against the applicants in the NCR and in the statements of the witnesses are totally false and baseless and in fact applicants neither made any assault nor caused any injury. He further submitted that a dispute in respect of property is pending between the parties and in this regard a civil suit is also pending and only due to this reason opposite party no.2 implicated the applicants in the present matter, therefore, from this angle too charge-sheet filed against the applicants is bad.

7. Per contra, learned AGA and learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 submitted that there is no illegality in the summoning order dated 06.01.2021 as after perusing the entire documents available on record, court below took the cognizance and issued summons to the applicants and even if there is any irregularity in taking the cognizance then it does not vitiate the proceedings pending against the applicants. Learned AGA further submitted that from the perusal of the NCR and statements of witnesses including injured witnesses, the complicity of applicants reveals in the present matter and prima facie offences under Section 352, 323, 504 IPC are made out against them and there is also injury report of the injured on record thus there is no illegality in the charge-sheet submitted against the applicants. He further submitted that defence taken by the applicants cannot be appreciated at this stage.

8. I have heard counsel for the parties and perused the record of the case.

9. From the record, it reflects that on 15.05.2020 opposite party no.2 lodged a NCR under Sections 352, 323, 504 IPC against the applicants and after the order of Magistrate concerned passed under Section 155(2) Cr.P.C. investigation was conducted and charge-sheet was submitted against the applicants on 09.12.2020.

10. From the perusal of the charge-sheet dated 09.12.2020 it appears that it was filed against the applicants under Sections 352, 323, 504 IPC. Record further suggests that on the charge-sheet dated 09.12.2020, court below after perusing the case diary and other documents on record, on 06.01.2021 took the cognizance and issued summons to the applicants.

11. The charge-sheet of the present matter was submitted under Sections 352, 323, 504 IPC, thus it discloses commission of non-cognizable offences.

12. From the perusal of the cognizance and summoning order dated 06.01.2021 it reflects that court below on the basis of charge-sheet dated 09.12.2020 took the cognizance and did not treat the charge-sheet as complaint, therefore, question arises in view of explanation to Section 2(d) Cr.P.C. whether cognizance taken by the court below is in accordance with law.

13. Section 2(d) Cr.P.C. defines the complaint and its explanation prescribed the procedure if after investigation, charge-sheet discloses commission of non cognizable offences.

14. Section 2(d) Cr.P.C. runs as follows:-

"2 (d) complaint" means any allegation made orally or in writing to a Magistrate, with a view to his taking action under this Code, that some person, whether known or unknown, has committed an offence, but does not include a police report.

Explanation.- A report made by a police officer in a case which discloses, after investigation, the commission of a non- cognizable offence shall be deemed to be a complaint; and the police officer by whom such report is made shall be deemed to be the complainant;"

15. From the perusal of the explanation of Section 2(d) Cr.P.C., it is apparent that if after investigation it reveals that only non cognizable offences disclose and thereafter in non cognizable offences a report is submitted under Section 173(2) Cr.P.C. then the court shall treat the charge-sheet as a complaint and the police officer who filed the report under Section 173(2) Cr.P.C. shall be deemed to be the complainant of the case.

16. Therefore, from the perusal of the explanation to Section 2(d) Cr.P.C. it is undoubtedly clear that it relates to investigation with regard to cognizable offences, in which, Investigating Officer is having power to investigate the matter and it does not relate to investigation with regard to non cognizable offences, in which, investigation can only be carried after the order passed by the Magistrate under Section 155(2) Cr.P.C. Therefore, if the FIR is registered and after investigation, it appears that only non cognizable offences disclose and charge-sheet is filed only with regard to non-cognizable offences then explanation to Section 2(d) Cr.P.C. attracts and in such cases the court below shall deem the charge-sheet as a complaint and police officer, who submitted the charge-sheet will be deemed complainant but in cases where no FIR is lodged and only non cognizable report is registered and by the order of the Magistrate passed under Section 155(2) Cr.P.C. investigation is conducted and charge-sheet is submitted in respect of non cognizable offences then explanation to Section 2(d) Cr.P.C. does not attract and in such cases Magistrate will adopt the general procedure of taking cognizance and after taking cognizance on the charge-sheet may proceed further and in such cases there is no need to treat the charge-sheet as complaint in view of explanation to section 2(d) Cr.P.C.

17. The Apex Court in the case of Keshav Lal Thakur Vs. State of Bihar (1996) 11 SCC 557 observed in paragraph no.3 en passant:-

"We need not go into the question whether in the facts of the instant case the above view of the High Court is proper or not for the impugned proceeding has got to be quashed as neither the police was entitled to investigate into the offence in question nor the Chief Judicial Magistrate to take cognizance upon the report submitted on completion of such investigation. On the own showing of the police, the offence under Section 31 of the Act is non cognizable and therefore the police could not have registered a case for such an offence under Section 154 Cr. P.C. of course, the police is entitled to investigate into a non-cognizable offence pursuant to an order of a competent Magistrate under Section 155 (2) Cr. P.C. but, admittedly, no such order was passed in the instant case. That necessarily means, that neither the police could investigate into the offence in question nor submit a report on which the question of taking cognizance could have arisen. While on this point, it may be mentioned that in view of the proviso to Section 2 (d) Cr. P.C., which defines 'complaint', the police is entitled to submit, after investigation, a report relating to a non-cognizable offence in which case such a report is to be treated as a 'complaint' of the police officer concerned, but that explanation will not be available to the prosecution here as that related to a case where the police initiates investigation into a cognizable offence - unlike the present one - but ultimately finds that only a non-cognizable offence has been made out."

18. Thus, in view of Keshav Lal Thakur (supra) the explanation to Section 2(d) Cr.P.C. will be applicable only to those cases, in which, investigation was commenced for cognizable offences.

19. In case at hand, admittedly non cognizable report was lodged under Sections 352, 323, 504 IPC and after the order of the Magistrate passed under Section 155(2) Cr.P.C. investigation was conducted and charge-sheet was submitted under Section 352, 323, 504 IPC and charge-sheet discloses commission of non cognizable offences, therefore, in present matter explanation to Section 2(d) Cr.P.C. does not attract and in such matters Magistrate can take the cognizance on the basis of charge-sheet itself.

20. Therefore, from the above discussion, I find no illegality in the cognizance order dated 06.01.2021 passed by the court below.

21. Further, from the perusal of record it reflects that prima facie offence under Sections 352, 323, 504 IPC are made out against the applicants, therefore, on the account of enmity pending between the parties proceeding pending against the applicants cannot be quashed as enmity is double edged weapon.

22. Therefore, from the discussion made above, I find no merit in the arguments advanced by learned counsel for the applicants.

23. Accordingly, the instant application is dismissed.

5. Ranjit Vs St. of U.P. & anr. , Application U/s 482 No. 47282 of 2019

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Mr. C.L. Pandey, Senior Advocate assisted by Mr. Durlabh Kumar Pandey, learned counsel for the applicants and Mr. Amit Singh Chauhan, learned AGA for the State and perused the records.

2. The present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed to quash the summoning order dated 31.03.2021 as well as the entire proceedings of Complaint Case No.5442 of 2020 (Sanjit Mishra Vs. M/s Shriram Balaji Traders), under Section 138 of Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881, pending in the Court of the Additional Civil Judge (J.D.)/ Judicial Magistrate, Jhansi.

3. Brief facts of the case are that the opposite party no.2 filed a complaint under Section 138 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act') against the applicant with the allegation that the applicant having good relations with opposite party no.2, borrowed an amount of Rs. 4 lacs from the opposite party no.2 and to discharge his liability gave a cheque bearing No.264555 of State Bank of India, Branch Mandi Samiti, Jhansi of his firm M/s Shriram Balaji Traders having its account No.MCA 32292826933 dated 28.02.2020. The aforesaid cheque was presented before the District Cooperative Bank, Branch Manikchowk, Jhansi for encashment, however, the same was returned on 04.03.2020 without payment with a remark "other reasons". Thereafter, the opposite party no. 2 approached the applicant informing about the return of the check without payment and requested him to pay the amount as taken by him, on which, assurance was given by the applicant that he would contact the bank, after which, the opposite party no.2 may present the cheque for encashment. On the aforesaid verbal assurance, the cheque was presented for the second time on 07.02.2020 before the District Cooperative Bank, Branck Manikchowk, Jhansi for encashment, however, the same was returned on 09.03.2020 without payment. Thereafter, on 18.03.2020, a legal notice was sent to the applicant through advocate by registered post. Thereafter, as there was lockdown from 24.03.2020, therefore, the opposite party no.2 could not receive the information of postal details. After the lockdown was over, on 29.05.2020, the opposite party no.2 sent a letter to the senior postal superintendent, Jhansi enquiring about the service of notice and he was informed that the aforesaid notice has been served at the address mentioned on 19.03.2020. Thereafter, after the notice neither any amount was paid nor reply was submitted by the applicant, therefore, the present compliant has been filed on 18.06.2020. Subsequently, the learned Magistrate after recording the statement under Sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C. summoned the applicant vide order dated 31.03.2021, under Section 138 of the Act.

4. Learned counsel for the applicants submits that the applicant no.2 had good relations with the opposite party no.2 and the opposite party no.2 was interested to purchase a portion of residential house of the mother of applicant no.2. In this regard, a registered agreement for sale was entered between the opposite party no.2 and mother of applicant no.2 on 08.10.2013. A sale deed was to be executed by the mother of applicant no.2 in favour of opposite party no.2 within a period of two years after payment of the consideration as agreed. As only Rs. 1,00,000/- was paid and rest of the amount could not be paid, therefore, by mutual understanding between the parties another registered agreement was executed between them on 07.10.2015. The opposite party no.2 did not pay the amount as agreed within the stipulated period, therefore, the present case has been instituted with mala fide intentions, in order to extract money from the opposite party no.2.

5. Learned counsel for the applicants further submits that as the opposite party no.2 used to come at the applicants' place, a signed cheque was stolen from his drawer and the same has been used for filing the present case under Section 138 of N.I. Act, therefore, no proceedings under the relevant section of the Act is made out against the applicant. He further submits that the complaint does not mention the details as to how the opposite party no.2 managed Rs.4 lacs, to be given to the applicant. He further submits that though, the opposite party no. 2 has sent a notice dated 18.03.2020, but the service of notice has not been effected and, therefore, the complaint which has been filed on 18.06.2020, is not maintainable as the time period of 15 days cannot be calculated as to when the notice has been given to opposite party no. 2. Under the circumstances, pre-condition as contained under Section 138 N.I. Act has remained uncomplied with and, therefore according to him, proceedings are clearly not maintainable under the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881. He further submits that there is no specific averment as to how the notice has been served upon the applicants, however, the summoning order has been passed in a mechanical manner without mentioned the mode/manner of service of notice. Hence, the same is liable to be quashed.

6. On the other hand, Mr. Amit Singh Chauhan, learned AGA for the State, submitted that it is not necessary to mention in the complaint that notice of demand was served on the accused on any given date. He further submits that once it is mentioned in the complaint that notice was dispatched under the registered cover, on the address of the accused which has not been stated to be incorrect, there would be a presumption in law with regard to service of notice. The summoning order passed by the concerned Magistrate is legal and just in the eyes of the law and at this stage, only a prima facie case is to be seen and the complaint cannot be thrown at the threshold.

7. So far as the other submission as raised by learned counsel for the applicant regarding stolen cheque, learned AGA submits that if the cheque was stolen, the applicant should have given information for the same to the Bank and also lodged an FIR regarding loss of the check. However, there is nothing on record to show that the cheque was stolen. Therefore, the learned Magistrate concerned has not committed any illegality in summoning the applicant. On the cumulative strength of the aforesaid, learned AGA for the State submits that the present application is liable to be dismissed.

8. I have carefully considered the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties and have also gone through the material available on record.

9. Before proceeding to consider the respective submissions of learned counsel for the parties, it is useful to extract the provisions of Section 138 of the Act, which is as under:-

"138. Dishonor of cheque for insufficiency, etc., of funds in the accounts:-

Where any cheque drawn by a person on an account maintained by him with a banker for payment of any amount of money to another person from out of that account for the discharge, in whole or in part, of any debt or other liability, is returned by the bank unpaid, either because of the amount of money standing to the credit of that account is insufficient to honor the cheque or that it exceeds the amount arranged to be paid from that account by an agreement made with that bank, such person shall be deemed to have committed an offence and shall without prejudice to any other provisions of this Act, be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one year, or with fine which may extend to twice the amount of the cheque, or with both:

PROVIDED that nothing contained in this section shall apply unless-

(a) the cheque has been presented to the bank within a period of six months from the date on which it is drawn or within the period of its validity, whichever is earlier.

(b) the payee or the holder in due course of the cheque, as the case may be, makes a demand for the payment of the said amount of money by giving a notice, in writing, to the drawer of the cheque, within fifteen days of the receipt of information by him from the bank regarding the return of the cheque as unpaid, and

(c) the drawer of such cheque fails to make the payment of the said amount of money to the payee or, as the case may be, to the holder in due course of the cheque, within fifteen days of the receipt of the said notice.

Explanation: For the purpose of this section, "debt or other liability" means a legally enforceable debt or other liability."

10. The aforesaid section deals with a cheque drawn by a person "for the discharge, in whole or in part, of any debt or other liability." The section does not say that the cheque should have been drawn for the discharge of any debt or other liability of the drawer towards the payee. Thus in complaint under Section 138 of N.I. Act, the Court has to presume that the cheque had been issued for a debt or liability. This presumption is rebuttable. However, the burden of proving that a cheque had not been issued for a debt or liability is on the accused. The applicant being holder of cheque and the signature appended on the cheque having not been denied by the Bank, presumption shall be drawn that cheque was issued for the discharge of any debt or other liability. The presumption under Section 139 is a rebuttable presumption. Before this Court refers to various judgments of the Apex Court considering Sections 118 and 139, it is relevant to notice the general principles pertaining to burden of proof on an accused especially in a case where some statutory presumption regarding guilt of the accused has to be drawn.

11. A Three Judges' Bench of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of C.C. Alavi Haji Vs. Palapetty Muhammed and Another, reported in (2007) 6 SCC 555, has held as under:-

"14.Section 27 gives rise to a presumption that service of notice has been effected when it is sent to the correct address by registered post. In view of the said presumption, when stating that a notice has been sent by registered post to the address of the drawer, it is unnecessary to further aver in the complaint that in spite of the return of the notice unserved, it is deemed to have been served or that the addressee is deemed to have knowledge of the notice. Unless and until the contrary is proved by the addressee, service of notice is deemed to have been effected at the time at which the letter would have been delivered in the ordinary course of business. This Court has already held that when a notice is sent by registered post and is returned with a postal endorsement refused or not available in the house or house locked or shop closed or addressee not in station, due service has to be presumed. [Vide Jagdish

Singh Vs. Natthu Singh,3 [AIR 1992 SC 1604]; State of M.P. Vs. Hiralal & Ors.,4 [(1996) 7 SCC 523] and V.Raja Kumari Vs. P.Subbarama Naidu & Anr.,5 [(2004) 8 SCC 774]. It is, therefore, manifest that in view of the presumption available under Section 27 of the Act, it is not necessary to aver in the complaint under Section 138 of the Act that service of notice was evaded by the accused or that the accused had a role to play in the return of the notice unserved.

17.It is also to be borne in mind that the requirement of giving of notice is a clear departure from the rule of criminal law, where there is no stipulation of giving of a notice before filing a complaint. Any drawer who claims that he did not receive the notice sent by post, can, within 15 days of receipt of summons from the court in respect of the complaint under Section 138 of the Act, make payment of the cheque amount and submit to the Court that he had made payment within 15 days of receipt of summons (by receiving a copy of complaint with the summons) and, therefore, the complaint is liable to be rejected. A person who does not pay within 15 days of receipt of the summons from the Court along with the copy of the complaint under Section 138 of the Act, cannot obviously contend that there was no proper service of notice as required under Section 138, by ignoring statutory presumption to the contrary under Section 27 of the G.C. Act and Section 114 of the Evidence Act. In our view, any other interpretation of the proviso would defeat the very object of the legislation. As observed in Bhaskaran case, if the "giving of notice" in the context of Clause (b) of the proviso was the same as the "receipt of notice" a trickster cheque drawer would get the premium to avoid receiving the notice by adopting different strategies and escape from legal consequences of Section 138 of the Act."

12. It is not necessary to aver in the complaint that in spite of the return of the notice unserved, it is deemed to have been served or that the addressee is deemed to have knowledge of the notice. Unless and until the contrary is proved by the addressee, the service of notice is deemed to have been effected at the time, at which the letter would have been delivered in the ordinary course of business. In the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Ajeet Seeds Ltd. vs. K. Gopala Krishnaiah, reported in 2014 12 SCC 685, the Apex Court has held that absence of averments in the complaint about service of notice upon the accused is the matter of evidence. The paragraph nos. 11 and 12 of the said judgement are reproduced herein below:-

"10. It is thus clear that Section 114 of the Evidence Act enables the Court to presume that in the common course of natural events, the communication would have been delivered at the address of the addressee. Section 27 of the GC Act gives rise to a presumption that service of notice has been effected when it is sent to the correct address by registered post. It is not necessary to aver in the complaint that in spite of the return of the notice unserved, it is deemed to have been served or that the addressee is deemed to have knowledge of the notice. Unless and until the contrary is proved by the addressee, service of notice is deemed to have been effected at the time at which the letter would have been delivered in the ordinary course of business.

11. Applying the above conclusions to the facts of this case, it must be held that the High Court clearly erred in quashing the complaint on the ground that there was no recital in the complaint that the notice under Section 138 of the NI Act was served upon the accused. The High Court also erred in quashing the complaint on the ground that there was no proof either that the notice was served or it was returned unserved/unclaimed. That is a matter of evidence. We must mention that in C.C. Alavi Haji, this Court did not deviate from the view taken in Vinod Shivappa, but reiterated the view expressed therein with certain clarification. We have already quoted the relevant paragraphs from Vinod Shivappa where this Court has held that service of notice is a matter of evidence and proof and it would be premature at the stage of issuance of process to move the High Court for quashing of the proceeding under Section 482 of the Cr.P.C. These observations are squarely attracted to the present case. The High Court's reliance on an order passed by a two-Judge Bench in Shakti Travel & Tours is misplaced. The order in Shakti Travel & Tours does not give any idea about the factual matrix of that case. It does not advert to rival submissions. It cannot be said therefore that it lays down any law. In any case in C.C. Alavi Haji, to which we have made a reference, the three-Judge Bench has conclusively decided the issue. In our opinion, the judgment of the two-Judge Bench in Shakti Travel & Tours does not hold the field any more."

13. Further the Apex Court in Bharat Barrel & Drum Manufacturing Company Vs. Amin Chand Pyarelal, reported in (1999) 3 SCC 35 had considered Section 118(a) of the Act and held that once execution of the promissory note is admitted, the presumption under Section 118(a) would arise that it is supported by a consideration. Such a presumption is rebuttable and defendant can prove the non-existence of a consideration by raising a probable defence. In paragraph No.12 following has been laid down:-

"12. Upon consideration of various judgments as noted hereinabove, the position of law which emerges is that once execution of the promissory note is admitted, the presumption under Section 118(a) would arise that it is supported by a consideration. Such a presumption is rebuttable. The defendant can prove the non-existence of a consideration by raising a probable defence. If the defendant is proved to have discharged the initial onus of proof showing that the existence of consideration was improbable or doubtful or the same was illegal, the onus would shift to the plaintiff who will be obliged to prove it as a matter of fact and upon its failure to prove would disentitle him to the grant of relief on the basis of the negotiable instrument. The burden upon the defendant of proving the non-existence of the consideration can be either direct or by bringing on record the preponderance of probabilities by reference to the circumstances upon which he relies. In such an event, the plaintiff is entitled under law to rely upon all the evidence led in the case including that of the plaintiff as well. In case, where the defendant fails to discharge the initial onus of proof by showing the non-existence of the consideration, the plaintiff would invariably be held entitled to the benefit of presumption arising under Section 118(a) in his favour. The court may not insist upon the defendant to disprove the existence of consideration by leading direct evidence as the existence of negative evidence is neither possible nor contemplated and even if led, is to be seen with a doubt. The bare denial of the passing of the consideration apparently does not appear to be any defence. Something which is probable has to be brought on record for getting the benefit of shifting the onus of proving to the plaintiff. To disprove the presumption, the defendant has to bring on record such facts and circumstances upon consideration of which the court may either believe that the consideration did not exist or its non-existence was so probable that a prudent man would, under the circumstances of the case, shall act upon the plea that it did not exist....."

14. In its latest judgment, the Apex Court in the case of Basalingappa Vs. Mudibasappa reported in (2019) 5 SCC 418, specifically in paragraph nos. -23 and 24 has noticed as follows:-

"27. Section 139 of the Act is an example of a reverse onus clause that has been included in furtherance of the legislative objective of improving the credibility of negotiable instruments. While Section 138 of the Act specifies a strong criminal remedy in relation to the dishonour of cheques, the rebuttable presumption under Section 139 is a device to prevent undue delay in the course of litigation. However, it must be remembered that the offence made punishable by Section 138 can be better described as a regulatory offence since the bouncing of a cheque is largely in the nature of a civil wrong whose impact is usually confined to the private parties involved in commercial transactions. In such a scenario, the test of proportionality should guide the construction and interpretation of reverse onus clauses and the defendant-accused cannot be expected to discharge an unduly high standard of proof."

23. No evidence was led by the accused. The defence taken in the reply to the notice that cheque was stolen having been rejected by the two courts below, we do not see any basis for the High Court coming to the conclusion that the accused has been successful in creating doubt in the mind of the Court with regard to the existence of the debt or liability. How the presumption under Section 139 can be rebutted on the evidence of PW 1, himself has not been explained by the High Court.

24. The above Kishan Rao case was a case where this Court did not find the defence raised by the accused probable. The only defence raised was that cheque was stolen having been rejected by the trial court and no contrary opinion having been expressed by the High Court, this Court reversed the judgment of the High Court restoring the conviction. The respondent cannot take any benefit of the said judgment, which was on its own facts." (Emphasis added)

15. The matter regarding stolen cheque has already been dealt by this Court in the case of Ranjit vs. State of U.P. and another decided on 31.01.2020 passed in Application U/s 482 No. 47282 of 2019.

16. In view of the settled legal position, as noticed above, it is clear that the complaint cannot be thrown at the threshold even if it does not make a specific averment with regard to service of notice on the drawer on a given date. In the complaint itself, it has been mentioned about the letter of the senior postal superintendent, Jhansi, which goes to show that the notice has been served at the address mentioned on 19.03.2020, therefore, it cannot be said that the notice has not been served. The factum of disputed service of notice requires adjudication on the basis of evidence and the same can only be done and appreciated by the trial court.

17. As regards the submission made by learned counsel for the applicants regarding the facts that the cheque was stolen, the Court is of the opinion that if the cheque was stolen, the applicant should have given information for the same to the Bank and also lodged an FIR regarding loss of the check. However, there is nothing on record to show that the cheque was stolen and the information regarding missing of cheque was also not given to the bank. However, after nearly one year, on 18.03.2022, when opposite party no.2 came to know about the said complaint under Section 138 of N.I. Act, he sent a letter to the bank regarding missing of check book, but neither the details of check has been mentioned nor any complaint has been made regarding the same earlier. All the submissions made by learned counsel for the applicant is disputed questions of fact. Therefore, when the facts have to be established by way of evidence, this Court while exercising the powers under section 482 of Cr.P.C., cannot interfere with such proceedings. Hence, no grounds are made out for quashing of the proceedings under section 138 of the Negotiable Instruments Act.

18. On the basis of discussions made herein above, this Court finds that there is no illegality or infirmity in the summoning order dated 31.03.2021 passed by the concerned court below. Therefore, no interference is required at this stage.

19. In view of the aforesaid, the application is, accordingly, dismissed.

(A) Criminal Law - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Section 498-A - Dowry Prohibition Act,1961 - Section 3/4 - The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 482 - Inherent power, Section 204(2) - No summons or warrant shall be issued against the accused under sub-section (1) until a list of the prosecution witnesses has been filed - mere non-compliance of the provisions of Section 204(2) Cr.P.C. would not vitiate further proceedings unless and until prejudice is caused or likely to be caused by not following the provisions. (Para -11,21)

Applicants summoned under Section 204(1) Cr.P.C. - summons issued without filing list of prosecution witnesses by opposite party no.2 (complainant) - trial of case at initial stage - till date applicants could not appear before court - pursuant to summoning order passed against them - if list of prosecution witnesses would be provided by opposite party no.2 (complainant) - on their appearance before court - it cannot be said, it would cause prejudice to them. (Para - 10,22)

(C) Words and phrases - word 'may' or 'shall' - mere use of word "may" or "shall" is not conclusive - it has to be decided according to the object and scheme of the Act and the contest and back ground against which the word has been used.(Para - 15)

HELD:-By non filing the list of witnesses by opposite party no.2 does not cause any prejudice to the applicants. Therefore, on the basis of non-compliance of Section 204 (2) Cr.P.C. neither proceedings pending against the applicants can be vitiated nor summoning order can be quashed. (Para -23)

3. Rosy & anr. Vs St. of Kerela, 2000 (2) SCC 230

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sameer Jain, J.)

1. Heard Sri Ratnesh Kumar Jaiswal, learned counsel for the applicants and Dr. S.B.Maurya, learned AGA-I, for the State.

2. The instant application has been moved on behalf of the applicants with the prayer to quash the entire criminal proceedings of Complaint Case No. 4 of 2019, under Section 498-A IPC and Section 3/4 Dowry Prohibition Act, pending in the court of Additional Civil Judge (Junior Division) Court No.5, Mirzapur as well as summoning order dated 30.9.2021.

3. The brief facts of the case for the purposes of present application are that opposite party no.2 is the wife of applicant no.3 and applicant no.1 is her father-in-law while applicant no.2 is her cousin father-in-law. Opposite party no.2 moved an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. against the applicants on 11.10.2018 which was treated by the court below as a criminal complaint and after recording the statement of opposite party no.2 under Section 200 Cr.P.C. and her witnesses under Section 202 Cr.P.C. summons were issued against the applicants on 30.9.2021 under Section 498-A IPC and Section 3/4 Dowry Prohibition Act.

4. Learned counsel for the applicants submitted that he is pressing the instant application on the sole ground that without compliance of mandatory provisions of Section 204 (2) Cr.P.C. summons were issued against the applicants, therefore, summoning order dated 30.9.2021 is bad.

5. He draws the attention of the Court on the order sheet of the case which is annexed as Annexure-5 to the affidavit filed in support of the present application and submitted that the summoning order against the applicants was passed on 30.9.2021 and a week time was given to opposite party no.2 to provide the list of her witnesses. He further submitted that the order sheet dated 27.10.2021 shows that 26.11.2021 was the next date fixed and it was asked to opposite party no.2 to do pairvi, i.e., to provide the list of her witnesses and similar order was passed on 26.11.2021 and thereafter order sheet dated 16.12.2021, 14.2.2022 and 5.4.2022 shows that opposite party no.2 did not do any pairvi in this regard but in spite of that summons were issued and on 5.4.2022 bailable warrants were also issued against the applicants.

6. Learned counsel for the applicants next submitted that as per Section 204 (2) Cr.P.C. no summons or warrants shall be issued against the accused under section 204(1) Cr.P.C. until a list of prosecution witnesses has been filed and, therefore, he submitted that provisions of Section 204(2) Cr.P.C. is mandatory and no summons could be issued to applicants unless opposite party no.2 filed the list of her witnesses and, therefore, the entire proceedings as well as summoning order passed against the applicants is bad.

7. Per contra, learned AGA submitted that there is no illegality in the summoning order issued against the applicants as provisions of Section 204 (2) Cr.P.C. is directory in nature and if the court below without complying the same issued summons to the accused persons, then it does not vitiate the proceedings. He further submitted that the list of witnesses at any time can be provided by opposite party no.2, the complainant,.

8. Learned AGA further submitted that applicants cannot said that due to non providing the list of witnesses by opposite party no.2 great prejudice would cause to them and, therefore, the instant application is liable to be dismissed.

9. I have heard learned counsel for both the parties and perused the record of the case.

10. Admittedly, applicants were summoned under Section 204(1) Cr.P.C., under Section 498-A IPC and Section 3/4 Dowry Prohibition Act although, it appears that summons were issued to them without filing the list of prosecution witnesses by opposite party no.2, the complainant. Therefore, the question arises whether on this ground proceedings pending against the applicants can be vitiated and summoning order would become illegal.

11. Section 204 Cr.P.C. deals with the issue of process and runs as follows:

"(1) If in the opinion of a Magistrate taking cognizance of an offence there is sufficient ground for proceeding, and the case appears to be-

(a) A summons-case, he shall issue his summons for the attendance of the accused, or

(b) A warrant-case, he may issue a warrant, or, if he thinks fit, a summons, for causing the accused to be brought or to appear at a certain time before such Magistrate or (if he has no jurisdiction himself) some other Magistrate having jurisdiction.

(2) No summons or warrant shall be issued against the accused under sub-section (1) until a list of the prosecution witnesses has been filed.

(3) In a proceeding instituted upon a complaint made in writing, every summons or warrant issued under sub-section (1) shall be accompanied by a copy of such complaint.

(4) When by any law for the time being in force any process-fees or other fees are payable, no process shall be issued until the fees are paid and, if such fees are not paid within a reasonable time, the Magistrate may dismiss the complaint.

(5) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect the provisions of section 87."

12. As per Section 204 (2) Cr.P.C. unless a list of prosecution witnesses has been filed, no summons or warrants shall be issued against the accused under Section 204 (1) Cr.P.C.

13. Although, in Section 204 (2) Cr.P.C. the word"shall" is used but it does not mean that whenever there is a word"shall" has been used under any Act in respect of a provision then the provision will be mandatory one.

14. The Apex Court in the case of Bachanan Devi and another Vs. Nagar Nigam, Gorakhpur and another reported in 2008 (12) SCC 372 observed as:

"14. ".....Mere use of word 'may' or 'shall' is not conclusive. The question whether a particular provision of a statute is directory or mandatory cannot be resolved by laying down any general rule of universal application. Such controversy has to be decided by ascertaining the intention of the Legislature and not by looking at the language in which the provision is clothed. And for finding out the legislative intent, the Court must examine the scheme of the Act, purpose and object underlying the provision, consequences likely to ensue or inconvenience likely to result if the provision is read one way or the other and many more considerations relevant to the issue."

15. The Apex Court in the case of Dilip Kumar Basu Vs. State of W.B. and others reported in 2015 (8) SCC 744 again observed that mere use of word "may" or "shall" is not conclusive and it has to be decided according to the object and scheme of the Act and the contest and back ground against which the word has been used.

16. Therefore, from the above judgments of the Apex Court, it is apparent that on the basis of mere word "may" or "shall", it cannot be conclusively held that "may" means directory and "shall" denotes mandatory provision rather it depends upon various factors, namely, object and scheme of the Act, the context and background against which the word "may" and "shall" has used and purpose and advantageous sought to be achieved by using these words.

17. No doubt, in Section 204(2) Cr.P.C. the word "shall" has been used by legislature but whether word 'shall' used in section 204(2) Cr.P.C. is mandatory or directory it can be decided only after considering the legislative intent coupled with the fact that whether any prejudice was caused to the accused by its violation. If any prejudice can be caused to accused by violation of section 204(2) Cr.P.C. then the provision is mandatory.

18. The legislative intent behind the provision of section 204(2) Cr.P.C. is only to provide the list of witnesses to the accused so as he can effectively defend himself during trial and this requirement can very well be fulfilled by the complainant at the time of appearance of accused before the trial court pursuant to the summons issued to him. Therefore, from the legislative intent provision of Section 204(2) Cr.P.C. appears to be non-mandatory.

19. Further, as complainant can provide the list of the witnesses to the accused at the time of his appearance before the trial court, therefore, it can not be said that non-compliance of the provisions of Section 204(2) Cr.P.C. causes prejudice to him as after obtaining the list of witnesses from complainant accused can effectively defend himself during trial. Therefore, from this angle too provision of Section 204(2) Cr.P.C. appears to be directory in nature.

20. The Apex Court in the case of Rosy and another Vs. State of Kerela, reported in 2000 (2) SCC 230 in para-20 deduced certain principles with regard to Sections 200, 202 and 204 Cr.P.C. as under:

"20. Hence, what emerges from the above discussion is :

I. (a) Under Section 200 Magistrate has jurisdiction to take cognizance of an offence oa the complaint after examining upon oath the complainant and the witnesses present;

(b) When the complaint is made in writing by a public servant acting or purporting to act in discharge of his official duties, the Magistrate need not examine the complainant and the witnesses.

(c) In such case Court may issue process or dismiss the complaint.

II. (a) The Magistrate instead of following the procedure stated above may, if he thinks fit, postpone the issue of process and hold inquiry for the purpose of deciding whether or not there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the person ac-cused. Such inquiry can be held by him or by the police officer or by other person authorised by him.

(b) However, where it appears to the Magistrate that the offence complained of is triable exclusively by the court of Sessions, the direction of investigation by the police officer is not permissible and he is required to hold inquiry by himself. During that inquiry he may decide to examine the witnesses on oath. At that stage, proviso further gives mandatory directions that he shall call upon the complainant to produce all his witnesses and examine them on oath. The reason obviously is that in a private complaint, which is required to be committed to the Sessions Court for trial, it would safeguard the interest of the accused and he would not be taken by surprise at the time of trial and it would reveal the version of the witnesses whose list is required to be filed by complainant under Section 204 (2) before issuance of the process,

(c) The irregularity or non-compliance thereof would not vitiate the further proceeding in all cases. A person complaining of such irregularity should raise objection at the earliest stage and he should point out how prejudice is caused or is likely to be caused by not following the proviso. if he fails to raise such objection at the earliest stage. he is precluded from raising such objection later."

21. From the perusal of the above judgment of the Apex Court it is undoubtedly clear that mere non-compliance of the provisions of Section 204(2) Cr.P.C. would not vitiate further proceedings unless and until prejudice is caused or likely to be caused by not following the provisions.

22. Admittedly, the trial of the case is at initial stage and even till date applicants could not appear before the court concerned pursuant to the summoning order passed against them and therefore, if list of prosecution witnesses would be provided by opposite party no.2, the complainant, on their appearance before the court concerned then from any corner it cannot be said, it would cause prejudice to them.

23. As already observed, provision of Section 204(2) Cr.P.C. is directory in nature and by non filing the list of witnesses by opposite party no.2 does not cause any prejudice to the applicants, therefore, on the basis of non-compliance of Section 204 (2) Cr.P.C. neither proceedings pending against the applicants can be vitiated nor summoning order can be quashed.

24. A Single Bench of this Court in Criminal Revision No. 2379 of 2018 in the case of Surendra Kumar Tiwari Vs. State of U.P. and another, decided on 10.8.2018 also discussed the issue in detail and in paragraph-9 observed as under:

"9. This court finds itself fully in agreement with the view taken by the Bombay High Court in the above-mentioned Pramila Mahesh Shah's case in respect of the provision of Section 204 (2) and (3), that these are the provisions which are directory in nature and that the court would have to see whether breach of these provisions would cause any prejudice, which is required to be adjudged on the basis of the stage of proceedings in a particular case. At the initial stage if it is found that the accused has been summoned without providing him a copy of complaint and list of witnesses being relied upon by the complainant, the same can be directed to be provided to him within a reasonable time by the complainant as soon as the accused appears before court and that merely because the list of witnesses and a copy of complaint have not been provided as mentioned in the above provisions would by itself not vitiate the proceedings depending upon the stage of the proceedings..... "

25. Therefore, from the above discussions, I find no merit in the argument advanced by learned counsel for the applicants and the instant application is, accordingly, dismissed.

26. However, it would be appropriate to direct the trial court to provide a list of witnesses within a period of four weeks from the date of passing this order so as to applicants may contest the matter on merits.

1. Heard Sri Ashwani Kumar Mishra, learned counsel for the applicant, Mr. Gyan Prakash Dwivedi, learned counsel for the opposite party No.2 and and Sri M.P.S. Gaur, learned AGA for the State.

2. The present Application U/S 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed with a prayer to quash the charge sheet No.484 of 2020 dated 29.09.2020 as well as summoning and cognizance order dated 30.07.2021 passed by the learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate-IV, Allahabad filed in Criminal Case No.322 of 2011 (State of U.P. Vs. Amit Kumar and others) arising out of Case Crime No.828 of 2019, under Sections 498-A and 323 of IPC and 3/4 of D.P. Act, Police Station-Dhoomanganj, District-Prayagraj, in view of the compromise dated 08.07.2022 executed between both the parties.

3. The brief facts of the case are opposite party No.2 (wife) had lodged an F.I.R. on 07.08.2019 under Sections 498-A, 323 IPC and Section 3/4 of D.P. Act against the applicants (Husband and his family members) alleging that marriage of applicant and opposite party No.2 was solemnized in the year 2015 with Hindu rites and rituals. From the wedlock of applicant No.1 and opposite party No.2, one baby girl was born, who is living with opposite party No.2 and the present applicant no.1. The applicants have not been satisfied with the dowry and they started beating and harassing her for non-fulfillment of additional demand of dowry. Due to refusal of demand of dowry by the opposite party No.2, applicants have beaten her, as a result, opposite party No.2 has received injuries on her body. The investigating officer after investigation has submitted charge sheet No.1 dated 29.09.2021 before the Court and the cognizance was accordingly taken on 30.07.2021. In the meanwhile, due to intervention of the relatives and well wishers of the family, opposite party No.2 and applicants have entered into compromise on 08.07.2022 outside the Court and started to live together as husband and wife along with their baby girl having no grievance with each other. The applicants have filed present Application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. to quash the charge sheet dated 29.09.2020, on the basis of compromise dated 08.07.2022. On the matter being taken up on 31.08.2022, the Court has proceeded to pass the following order:-

"Counter affidavit filed today is taken on record. Office is directed to register the same.

Heard Sri Ashwani Kumar Mishra, learned counsel for the applicants, Sri Gyan Prakash Dwivedi, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 and Sri Pankaj Srivastava, learned AGA for the State.

Learned counsel for the parties submit that the matrimonial dispute between applicant no.1 and opposite party no.2 has been settled amicably and they have decided to stay together as husband and wife.

In view of the above, let applicant no.1 and opposite party no.2 be present before this Court on the next date fixed.

Put up, as fresh, on 19.09.2022.

Till the next date of listing, no coercive action shall be taken against the applicants in Criminal Case No. 322 of 2011 arising out of Case Crime No. 828 of 2019 under sections 498-A, 323 I.P.C. and 3/4 D.P. Act, Police Station Dhoomanganj, District Prayagraj.

Learned counsel for the parties shall inform their respective clients about this order."

4. Learned counsel for the applicants submitted that proceeding of Criminal case under Sections 498-A, 323 IPC and Section 3/4 of D.P. Act be quashed as parties to dispute have entered into compromise which is evident from the compromise deed dated 08.07.2022 and which is on the record of the court below, a copy of which has been annexed as Annexure-4 to the instant application. He further submitted that applicant No.1 and opposite party No.2 along with their baby girl are living together. He further submitted that earlier opposite party no.2 had filed the application under Section 125 Cr.P.C. and complaint case No.1777 of 2019, under Section 12 of Domestic Violence Act, but due to compromise, opposite party no.2 had withdrawn the aforesaid cases; copies of the orders have been annexed as Annexue-5 to the present application. He further submitted that, in para-5 of his counter affidavit, learned Counsel for the opposite party No.2 has specifically stated that opposite party No.2 and applicant No.1 are peacefully living together as husband and wife having no grievance to each other and, as such, no useful purpose will be served to drag present proceeding further.

5. In support of his submissions, learned counsel for the applicants has placed reliance upon the following judgments, which reads as under:-

(1) B.S. Joshi & Ors vs State of Haryana & Anr. decided on 13 March, 2003 in Appeal (crl.) No.383 of 2003.

(2) Dr. Mohd. Ibrahim and others Vs. State of U.P. and others (2022) Law Suit (Alld) 104;

(3) Gian Singh Vs. State of Punjab and another (2012) 10 Supreme Court Cases 303;

(4) Narinder Singh and others Vs. State of Punjab and other (2014) 6 Supreme court cases 466 and

(5) State of Madhya Pradesh Vs. Laxmi Narayan and others (2019) 5 Supreme court cases 688.

6. In compliance of the order dated 31.08.2022, passed by a co-ordinate Bench of this Court, Mr. Amit Kumar Yadav (applicant no.1) and Smt. Mona Yadav (opposite party no.2) are present today before this Court, who are identified by Sri Gyan Prakash Dwivedi, learned counsel for the opposite party no.2.

7. On a query being made by the Court, Mr. Amit Kumar Yadav, applicant no.1 and Smt. Mona Yadav, opposite party no.2 have jointly stated that they are living peacefully together as husband and wife and giving this statement of their own free will and without any pressure.

8. Considered the submissions of learned counsel for the parties. On the point of compromise between the parties in criminal cases following case law will be relevant:

(i) B.S. Joshi & Ors vs State of Haryana & Anr. decided on 13 March, 2003 in Appeal (crl.) No.383 of 2003.

(ii) Gian Singh vs.State of Punjab and another (2012) 10 Supreme Court Cases 303

(iii) Narinder Singh and others Vs.State of Punjab and other (2014) 6 Supreme court cases 466

(iv) State of Madhya Pradesh vs. Laxmi Narayan and others (2019) 5 Supreme court cases 688.

9. In the case of B.S. Joshi (Supra) Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as follows:

"There is no doubt that the object of introducing Chapter XX-A containing Section 498A in the Indian Penal Code was to prevent the torture to a woman by her husband or by relatives of her husband. Section 498A was added with a view to punishing a husband and his relatives who harass or torture the wife to coerce her or her relatives to satisfy unlawful demands of dowry. The hyper-technical view would be counter productive and would act against interests of women and against the object for which this provision was added. There is every likelihood that non-exercise of inherent power to quash the proceedings to meet the ends of justice would prevent women from settling earlier. That is not the object of Chapter XXA of Indian Penal Code.

In view of the above discussion, we hold that the High Court in exercise of its inherent powers can quash criminal proceedings or FIR or complaint and Section 320 of the Code does not limit or affect the powers under Section 482 of the Code."

10. In the case of Gian Singh (Supra) Hon'ble Supreme Court has held in para No.61 and 62 as follows:

"61. The position that emerges from the above discussion can be summarized thus: the power of the High Court in quashing a criminal proceeding or FIR or complaint in exercise of its inherent jurisdiction is distinct and different from the power given to a criminal court for compounding the offences under Section 320 of the Code. Inherent power is of wide plenitude with no statutory limitation but it has to be exercised in accord with the guideline engrafted in such power viz.: (i) to secure the ends of justice, or (ii) to prevent abuse of the process of any court. In what cases power to quash the criminal proceeding or complaint or FIR may be exercised where the offender and the victim have settled their dispute would depend on the facts and circumstances of each case and no category can be prescribed. However, before exercise of such power, the High Court must have due regard to the nature and gravity of the crime. Heinous and serious offences of mental depravity or offences like murder, rape, dacoity, etc. cannot be fittingly quashed even though the victim or victim's family and the offender have settled the dispute. Such offences are not private in nature and have a serious impact on society. Similarly, any compromise between thee a victim and the offender in relation to the offences under special statutes like the Prevention of Corruption Act or the offences committed by public servants while working in that capacity, etc.; cannot provide for any basis for quashing criminal proceedings involving such offences. But the criminal cases having overwhelmingly and predominatingly civil flavour stand on a different footing for the purposes of quashing, particularly the offences arising from commercial, financial, mercantile, civil, partnership or such like transactions or the offences arising out of matrimony relating to dowry, etc. or the family disputes where the wrong is basically private or personal in nature and the parties have resolved their entire dispute. In this category of cases, the High Court may quash the criminal proceedings if in its view, because of the compromise between the offender and the victim, the possibility of conviction is remote and bleak and continuation of the criminal case would put the accused to great oppression and prejudice and extreme injustice would be caused to him by not quashing the criminal case despite full and complete settlement and compromise with the victim. In other words, the High Court must consider whether it would be unfair or contrary to the interest of justice to continue with the criminal proceeding or continuation of the criminal proceeding would tantamount to abuse of process of law despite settlement and compromise between the victim and the wrongdoer and whether to secure the ends of justice, it is appropriate that the criminal case is put to an end and if the answer to the above question(s) is in the affirmative, the High Court shall be well within its jurisdiction to quash the criminal proceeding.

62. In view of the above, it cannot be said that B.S. Joshi ,Nikhil Merchants and Manoj Sharma were not correctly decided. We answer the reference accordingly. Let these matters be now listed before the Bench(es) Concerned."

In the Case of Narinder Singh (supra) Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as follows in para No.29:

29. In view of the aforesaid discussion, we sum up and lay down the following principles by which the High Court would be guided in giving adequate treatment to the settlement between the parties and exercising its power under Section 482 of the Code while accepting the settlement and quashing the proceedings or refusing to accept the settlement with direction to continue with the criminal proceedings:

29.1. Power conferred under Section 482 of the Code is to be distinguished from the power which lies in the Court to compound the offences under Section 320 of the Code. No doubt, under Section 482 of the Code, the High Court has inherent power to quash the criminal proceedings even in those cases which are not compoundable, where the parties have settled the matter between themselves. However, this power is to be exercised sparingly and with caution.

29.2. When the parties have reached the settlement and on that basis petition for quashing the criminal proceedings is filed, the guiding factor in a such cases would be to secure: (i) ends of justice, or (ii) to prevent abuse of the process of any court. While exercising the power the High Court is to form an opinion on either of the aforesaid two objectives.

29.3. Such a power is not to be exercised in those prosecutions which involve heinous and serious offences of mental depravity or offences like murder, rape, dacoity, etc. Such offences are not private in nature and have a serious impact on society. Similarly, for the offences alleged to have been committed under special statute like the Prevention of Corruption Act or the offences committed by public servants while working in that capacity are not to be quashed merely on the basis of compromise between the victim and the offender.

29.4. On the other hand, those criminal cases having overwhelmingly and predominantly civil character, particularly those arising out of commercial transactions or arising out of matrimonial relationship or family disputes should be quashed when the parties have resolved their entire disputes among themselves.

29.5. While exercising its powers, the High Court is to examine as to whether the possibility of conviction is remote and bleak and continuation of criminal cases would put the accused to great oppression and prejudice and extreme injustice would be caused to him by not quashing the criminal cases.

29.6. Offences under Section 307 IPC would fall in the category of heinous and serious offences and therefore are to be generally treated as crime against the society and not against the individual alone. However, the High Court would not rest its decision merely because there is a mention of Section 307 IPC in the FIR or the charge is framed under this provision. It would be open to the High Court to examine as to whether incorporation of Section 307 IPC is there for the sake of it or the prosecution has collected sufficient evidence, which if proved, would lead to proving the charge under Section 307 IPC. For this purpose, it would be open to the High Court to go by the nature of injury sustained, whether such injury is inflicted on the vital/delicate parts of the body, nature of weapons used, etc. Medical report in respect of injuries suffered by the victim can generally be the guiding factor. On the basis of this prima facie analysis, the High Court can examine as to whether there is a strong possibility of conviction or the chances of conviction are remote and bleak. In the former case it can refuse to accept the Settlement and quash the criminal proceedings whereas in the latter case it would be permissible for the High Court to accept the plea compounding the offence based on complete settlement between the parties. At this stage, the Court can also be swayed by the fact that the settlement between the parties is going to result in harmony between them which may improve their future relationship.

29.7. While deciding whether to exercise its power under Section 482 of the Code or not, timings of settlement play a crucial role. Those cases where the settlement is arrived at immediately after the alleged commission of offence and the matter is still under investigation, the High Court may be liberal in accepting the settlement to quash the criminal proceedings/investigation. It is because of the reason that at this stage the investigation is still on and even the charge-sheet has not been filed. Likewise, those cases where the charge is framed but the evidence is yet to start or the evidence is still at infancy stage, the High Court can show benevolence in exercising its powers favourably, but after prima facie assessment of the circumstances/material mentioned above. On the other hand, where the prosecution evidence is almost complete or after the conclusion of the evidence the matter is at the stage of argument, normally the High Court should refrain from exercising its power under Section 482 of the Code, as in such cases the trial court would be in a position to decide the case finally on merits and to come to a conclusion as to whether the offence under Section 307 IPC is committed or not a Similarly, in those cases where the conviction is already recorded by the trial court and the matter is at the appellate stage before the High Court, mere compromise between the parties would not be a ground to accept the same resulting in acquittal of the offender who has already been convicted by the trial court. Here charge is proved under Section 307 IPC and conviction is already recorded of a heinous crime and, therefore, there is no question of sparing a convict found guilty of such a crime."

In the case of State of Madhya Pradesh Vs. Laxmi Narayan (Supra) held as follows in para No. 15.1 to 15.4:

"15.1 That the power conferred under Section 482 of the Code to quash the criminal proceedings for the non-compoundable offences under Section 320 of the Code can be exercised having overwhelmingly and predominantly the civil character, particularly those arising out of commercial transactions or arising out of matrimonial relationship or family disputes and when the parties have resolved the entire dispute amongst themselves;

15.2. Such power is not to be exercised in those prosecutions which involved heinous and serious offences of mental depravity or offences like murder, rape, dacoity, etc. Such offences are not private in nature and have a serious impact on society;

15.3 Similarly, such power is not to be exercised for the offences under the special statutes like Prevention of Corruption Act or the offences committed by public servants while working in that capacity are not to be quashed merely on the basis of compromise between the victim and the offender;

15.4 Offences under Section 307 IPC and the Arms Act etc. rwould fall in the category of heinous and serious offences and therefore are to be treated as crime against the society and not against the individual alone, and therefore, the criminal proceedings for the offence under Section 307 IPC and/or the Arms Act etc. which have a serious impact on the society cannot be quashed in exercise of powers under Section 482 of the Code, on the ground that the parties have resolved their entire dispute amongst themselves. However, the High Court would not rest its decision merely because there is a mention of Section 307 IPC in the FIR or the charge is framed under this provision. It would be open to the High Court to examine as to whether incorporation of Section 307 IPC is there for the sake of it or the prosecution has collected sufficient evidence, which if proved, would lead to framing the charge under Section 307 IPC. For this purpose, it would be open to the High Court to go by the nature of injury sustained, whether such injury is inflicted on the vital/delegate parts of the body, nature of weapons used etc. However, such an exercise by the High Court would be permissible only after the evidence is collected after investigation and the charge sheet is filed/charge is framed and/or during the trial. Such exercise is not permissible when the matter is still under investigation. Therefore, the ultimate conclusion in paragraphs 29.6 and 29.7 of the decision of this Court in the case of Narinder Singh (supra) should be read harmoniously and to be read as a whole and in the circumstances stated hereinabove"

11. Learned Counsel for both the parties are present before this Court and submitted that the charge sheet including the proceedings of the case be quashed on the basis of compromise entered into the parties.

12. Learned A.G.A. has no objection as parties to the dispute relating to matrimonial mater have entered into compromise.

13. Considering the facts of the present case as well as the principle of law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court as mentioned above, matrimonial dispute between the husband and wife should be a quashed when the parties have resolved their entire dispute amongst themself through compromise. There is another aspect of the case that F.I.R. has been lodged under Sections 498-A, 323 IPC and 3/4 D.P. Act, which will come under category specified in para No.29.4 laid down by Hon'ble Apex Court in Narinder Singh (supra) and in category specified in para No.15.1 laid down by Apex Court in State of Madhya Pradesh vs. Laxmi Narayan and others (supra) regarding which proceedings relating to matrimonial dispute can be quashed in exercise of power under Section-482 Cr.P.C.

14. As parties have reached/arrived at compromise/settlement, and the same has also been verified by their being appeared in person in the Court so the conviction of opposite party is remote and bleak and continuation of criminal cases would put the accused to great oppression and prejudice and extreme injustice would be caused to him by not quashing the criminal cases.

15. In view of the discussions made above, it would be unnecessary to drag these proceeding, as continuation of the criminal proceeding despite settlement and compromise would amount to abuse of process of law accordingly, the instant application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is allowed on the basis of compromise dated 08.07.2022.

16. The proceeding of charge sheet No.484 of 2020 dated 29.09.2020 as well as summoning and cognizance order dated 30.07.2021 passed by the learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate-IV, Allahabad filed in Criminal Case No.322 of 2011 (State of U.P. Vs. Amit Kumar and others) arising out of Case Crime No.828 of 2019, under Sections 498-A and 323 of IPC and 3/4 of D.P. Act, Police Station-Dhoomanganj, District-Prayagraj including the entire proceedings of the case are hereby quashed.

Criminal Misc. Correction Application No.02 of 2022:-

1. Heard learned counsel for the parties.

2. The judgment and order dated 19.09.2022 will stand corrected as follows:-

3. In the 6th line of second paragraph and 5th line of 16th paragraph of the order dated 19.09.2022 in place of '2011' shall be read as "2021".

4. Accordingly, the correction application is allowed.

Vinubhai Haribhai Malaviya & ors. Vs St. of U.P. & anr. , 2020 (3) SCC 228

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Gautam Chowdhary, J.)

1. Heard Sri Sikandar B. Kochar, learned counsel for the applicant, Sri Rajeshwar Singh and Sri J.P.S.Chauhan, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the material on record.

2. The present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed for quashing the order dated 28.07.2022 passed by learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bulandshahr in Criminal Case No. 5259 of 2020 (State Vs. Dr. Parvez Alam) arising out of Case Crime No. 0228 of 2020 under Sections 420, 409 I.P.C. Police Station Shikarpur, District Bulandshahr, whereby the application for further investigation of the matter on the basis of documents adduced by the applicant, has been rejected.

3. Brief facts of the case are that the applicant was the Manager of National Inter College, Shikarpur, District Bulandshahr w.e.f November 2017 till 2020, which institution is an aided institution upto High School and is unaided institution with respect to Class XI and XII. Initially a complaint was made by the opposite party no.2 against the applicant, in which, after enquiry, the applicant was found guilty for the charges pertaining to the cheating, criminal breach of trust and misuse of the college land, vide enquiry report dated 05.05.2020. On the basis of that enquiry report, the opposite party no.2 lodged a first information report dated 27.05.2020 against the applicant in Case Crime No. 0228 of 2020 under Sections 409, 420 I.P.C. The matter was entrusted for investigation which culminated in submission of charge sheet dated 15.10.2020, upon which cognizance was taken on 17.10.2020 and during the course of trial, the applicant moved an application for further investigation into the matter on the basis of documents adduced by him, however said application has been rejected vide order impugned dated 28.07.2022. It is this order, which is under challenge before this Court.

4. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that on the complaint filed by the opposite party no.2 the District Inspector of Schools, Bulandshahr conducted an enquiry, in which the applicant was found guilty, thereafter the matter was referred to the Joint Director (Education) Meerut, Zone, who issued a show cause notice to the applicant, which was specifically replied by the applicant and after considering the reply of the applicant, the Joint Director (Education), exonerated the applicant from the charges levelled against him. It is further contended that when the applicant was discharged from the charges levelled against him, the applicant moved an application before the Senior Superintendent of Police, Bulandshahr as well as before the Investigating Officer of the Case Crime No. 0228 of 2020 to investigate the matter after considering the documents furnished by him, however the same was not considered during the investigation and charge sheet dated 15.10.2020 was submitted against the applicant under Section 409, 420 I.P.C. He further submits that the learned Magistrate while taking cognizance, failed to consider the factual and legal aspect of the matter and in a routine manner took cognizance upon the charge sheet. Thereafter, the applicant moved an application before the learned Court below to direct the Investigating Officer to further investigate the matter in light of the documents adduced by him, however the same has been illegally rejected by the learned Court below. Learned counsel has next argued that the very basis of lodging of the F.I.R. was the enquiry report dated 05.05.2020 wherein the applicant was found guilty, thereafter, the show cause notice was issued by Joint Director of Education, Meerut Zone, Meerut, which was replied by the applicant and after considering the reply, the applicant was exonerated from the charges levelled against him and therefore the basis for lodging of the FIR does not survive any more. The learned Magistrate ought to have considered the documents sought to be relied upon by the applicant so that justice may be done, therefore the impugned order is illegal, arbitrary and is liable to be quashed by this Court.

5. On the other hand, learned A.G.A. submits that after framing of charges against the applicant, the applicant moved an application only to linger on the trial, and thus the learned Court below has rightly rejected the application vide order impugned, which order is perfectly legal, just and proper and thus the same calls for no interference by this Court.

6. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the matter of Vinubhai Haribhai Malaviya and others Vs. State of U.P. and another reported in 2020 (3) SCC 228 has held that all powers necessary, which may also be incidental or implied, are available to the Magistrate to ensure a proper investigation in the matter in the sense of a fair and just investigation by the police, which power includes ordering of further investigation after submission of police report under Section 173 (2) Cr.P.C. Relevant paragraphs of the aforesaid Judgement is quoted below:-

18. It is clear that a fair trial must kick off only after an investigation is itself fair and just. The ultimate aim of all investigation and inquiry, whether by the police or by the Magistrate, is to ensure that those who have actually committed a crime are correctly booked, and those who have not are not arraigned to stand trial. That this is the minimal procedural requirement that is the fundamental requirement of Article 21 of the Constitution of India cannot be doubted. It is the hovering omnipresence of Article 21 over the CrPC that must needs inform the interpretation of all the provisions of the CrPC, so as to ensure that Article 21 is followed both in letter and in spirit.

31. Hasanbhai Valibhai Qureshi v. State of Gujarat and Ors. (2004) 5 SCC 347 is an important judgment which deals with the necessity for further investigation being balanced with the delaying of a criminal proceeding. If there is a necessity for further investigation when fresh facts come to light, then the interest of justice is paramount and trumps the need to avoid any delay being caused to the proceeding. The Court therefore held:

"11. Coming to the question whether a further investigation is warranted, the hands of the investigating agency or the court should not be tied down on the ground that further investigation may delay the trial, as the ultimate object is to arrive at the truth.

12. Sub-section (8) of Section 173 of the Code permits further investigation, and even dehors any direction from the court as such, it is open to the police to conduct proper investigation, even after the court took cognisance of any offence on the strength of a police report earlier submitted. All the more so, if as in this case, the Head of the Police Department also was not satisfied of the propriety or the manner and nature of investigation already conducted.

13. In Ram Lal Narang v. State (Delhi Admn.) [(1979) 2 SCC 322: 1979 SCC (Cri) 479 : AIR 1979 SC 1791] it was observed by this Court that further investigation is not altogether ruled out merely because cognizance has been taken by the court. When defective investigation comes to light during course of trial, it may be cured by further investigation, if circumstances so permitted. It would ordinarily be desirable and all the more so in this case, that the police should inform the court and seek formal permission to make further investigation when fresh facts come to light instead of being silent over the matter keeping in view only the need for an early trial since an effective trial for real or actual offences found during course of proper investigation is as much relevant, desirable and necessary as an expeditious disposal of the matter by the courts. In view of the aforesaid position in law, if there is necessity for further investigation, the same can certainly be done as prescribed by law. The mere fact that there may be further delay in concluding the trial should not stand in the way of further investigation if that would help the court in arriving at the truth and do real and substantial as well as effective justice. We make it clear that we have not expressed any final opinion on the merits of the case."

42. There is no good reason given by the Court in these decisions as to why a Magistrate's powers to order further investigation would suddenly cease upon process being issued, and an accused appearing before the Magistrate, while concomitantly, the power of the police to further investigate the offence continues right till the stage the trial commences. Such a view would not accord with the earlier judgments of this Court, in particular, Sakiri (supra), Samaj Parivartan Samudaya (supra), Vinay Tyagi (supra), and Hardeep Singh (supra); Hardeep Singh (supra) having clearly held that a criminal trial does not begin after cognizance is taken, but only after charges are framed. What is not given any importance at all in the recent judgments of this Court is Article 21 of the Constitution and the fact that the Article demands no less than a fair and just investigation. To say that a fair and just investigation would lead to the conclusion that the police retain the power, subject, of course, to the Magistrate's nod under Section 173(8) to further investigate an offence till charges are framed, but that the supervisory jurisdiction of the Magistrate suddenly ceases mid-way through the pre-trial proceedings, would amount to a travesty of justice, as certain cases may cry out for further investigation so that an innocent person is not wrongly arraigned as an accused or that a prima facie guilty person is not so left out. There is no warrant for such a narrow and restrictive view of the powers of the Magistrate, particularly when such powers are traceable to Section 156(3) read with Section 156(1), Section 2(h), and Section 173(8) of the CrPC, as has been noticed hereinabove, and would be available at all stages of the progress of a criminal case before the trial actually commences. It would also be in the interest of justice that this power be exercised suo motu by the Magistrate himself, depending on the facts of each case. Whether further investigation should or should not be ordered is within the discretion of the learned Magistrate who will exercise such discretion on the facts of each case and in accordance with law. If, for example, fresh facts come to light which would lead to inculpating or exculpating certain persons, arriving at the truth and doing substantial justice in a criminal case are more important than avoiding further delay being caused in concluding the criminal proceeding, as was held in Hasanbhai Valibhai Qureshi (supra). Therefore, to the extent that the judgments in Amrutbhai Shambubhai Patel (supra), Athul Rao (supra) and Bikash Ranjan Rout (supra) have held to the contrary, they stand overruled. Needless to add, Randhir Singh Rana v. State (Delhi Administration) (1997) 1 SCC 361and Reeta Nag v. State of West Bengal and Ors. (2009) 9 SCC 129 also stand overruled.

7. In the instant case, the very basis of lodging of the F.I.R. against the applicant was the enquiry conducted by the concerned District Inspector of Schools, wherein the applicant was held guilty, later on, after submission of reply by the applicant before the Joint Director of Education Meerut Zone. Meerut, the applicant was exonerated from the charges levelled against him in the meantime, charge sheet was filed against the applicant and trial commenced. During the course of trial, the applicant moved an application with a prayer for further investigation, which has been rejected vide order impugned, which order, in the opinion of the Court, is not sustainable in view of the fact that there may be further delay in concluding the trial but that should not stand in the way of further investigation if that would help the Court in arriving at the truth and do real and substantial as well as effective justice.

8. Considering the aforesaid observations of Hon'ble Apex Court as well as the facts and circumstances of the case, the impugned order is set aside. The matter is remitted to the concerned Court below to consider and decide the matter afresh in accordance with law, preferably within a period of one month from the date of production of a certified copy of the order before it.

9. Learned counsel for the applicant undertakes that the applicant shall furnish a certified copy of the order before the concerned court below within 10 days from today.

10. It is made clear that this Court has not expressed any opinion on the merits of the case.

11. The instant application is accordingly disposed of.

3. Madhavrao Jiwajirao Scindia & anr. Vs Sambhajirao Chandrojirao Angre & ors. , (1988) 1 SCC 692

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajai Tyagi, J.)

1. Both these applications required to be decided together.

2. These applications u/s 482 Cr.P.C. have been filed seeking the quashing of summoning order dated 16.03.2021 and the entire proceedings of Misc. Case No.526 of 2020 (Abhishek Singh Vs. Prabhjeet Singh and Others), arising out of Case Crime No.501 of 2018, under Sections 120-B, 420, 467, and 471 I.P.C., Police Station Sector-49 Noida, District Gautam Budh Nagar, pending in the court of Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate-II, Gautam Budh Nagar.

3. In both the applications, applicants have challenged the cognizance/summoning order dated 16.03.2021 passed by Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate-II, Gautambudh Nagar, summoning the accused Prabhjeet Singh, Hanshraj Dinkar, Arjun Sharma, Subhashish Chaudhary and Sanjay Gupta for trial for the offences under Sections 120-B, 420, 467, 468, 471 I.P.C. after rejecting the final report no.01 of 2020, filed in pursuance of F.I.R. registered as Case Crime No.501 of 2018, which was lodged by opposite party no.2 against the accused persons.

4. Brief facts of the case giving rise to these applications are that a First Information Report was lodged by opposite party no.2 against the accused persons on 12.05.2018 with the averments that opposite party no.2 and his wife Smt. Laxmi Singh are allottee of Flat No. G 801 Tower-1 situated at plot no. GH-3 Sector 4C, Vasundhra, Ghaziabad. The aforesaid flat was allotted in favour of opposite party no.2 and his wife by builder M/S VXL Realtors Pvt. Ltd. (hereinafter referred to as "Company') having its office in New Delhi by letter no. AGB 0302 dated 30.10.2012. The owner of the company, Prabhjeet Singh told the opposite party no.2 that cost of flat is Rs.57,27,500/- for which loan shall be sanctioned by Bank of Maharashtra and there would be monthly installment of Rs.41,000/- per month. It was also assured by Prabhjeet Singh that this project is not disputed, possession of flat shall be delivered within one year and he took over the responsibility for getting the loan sanctioned by the Bank of Maharashtra, Sector 51, Noida, which has apporved his project.

5. Believing the statements made by Prabhjeet Singh, opposite party no.2 agreed and aforesaid plot was allotted to him on 30.10.2012. After that on this flat, bank sanctioned the loan of Rs.40 lacs on 22.12.2012 out of which Rs.38,10,000/- was transferred into the bank account of company by the bank vide draft no.678255 dated 10.01.2013. Opposite party no.2 had paid Rs.18 lacs as margin money and started paying the monthly installment of Rs.41,000/-. On 19.01.2018 U.P. Awas Evam Vikas Parishad and District Magistrate, Ghaziabad took-over the possession of building and sealed it, which was being constructed by Prabhjeet Singh, owner of the company, in which flat of opposite party no.2 was also situated. On 03.02.2018 when opposite party no.2 enquired, the fact came in the knowledge of opposite party no.2 that building which was being constructed by Prabhjeet Singh, was in dispute before allotment of flat.

6. U.P. Awas Evam Vikas Parishad was undertaking the proceedings of recovery of dues against Prabhjeet Singh, owner of the company, hence, directors of the company have cheated the opposite party no.2 in criminal conspiracy with the Manager of the Bank of Maharashtra. They have cheated the opposite party no.2 for Rs.66,21,000/- by way of fraud, forged documents and forged legal report. It was doubted that directors of the company in connivance with bank officers have cheated him and his wife by fabricating forged documents such as legal search report, no dues certificate etc.

7. After investigation, I.O. has submitted the final report alleging that dispute between the parties is of civil nature and no criminal liability is made out. Opposite party no.2 filed protest petition against the final report and learned Magistrate after hearing the parties, rejected the final report and summoned the accused persons namely, Prabhjeet Singh, Hansraj Dinkar, Arjun Sharma, Subhashish Chaudhary and Sanjay Gupta to face the trial.

8. Mainly aggrieved with the summoning order, both the applicants have filed separate applications under Section 482 of Cr.P.C. for quashing the impugned order and the entire proceedings of the case against them.

9. Heard Mr. Amrish Sahai, learned counsel for both the applicants, Mr. Bhanu Pratap Dhakray, learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 and learned A.G.A. for the State. Perused the record.

10. First of all, learned counsel for the applicant has submitted with regard to role of applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary that applicant, Subhashish Chaudhary has been falsely implicated in the present case by opposite party no.2 and he was not involved in sanctioning the housing loan in question nor it was his job to sanction the housing loan. Housing loan has been sanctioned by Maha Retail Credit Hub, New Delhi (hereinafter referred to as "M.R.C.H.') and not by the branch of Bank of Maharashtra situated at Sector 51 Noida. Copy of sanction letter is annexed as Annexure No.3 to the application, which shows that there was no role of branch head in the process of sanctioning the housing loan. Loan file is forwarded by brach to M.R.C.H., New Delhi. After that, branch officer has no say in the process of sanctioning of loan.

11. It is also submitted that project of company, in which, opposite party no.2 and his wife booked the flat was already approved by the Bank of Maharashtra, therefore, there was no reason for appliant-Subhashish Chaudhary to verify the encumbrances on the project. It is mentioned in sanction letter that project is approved by the Bank. Apart from it, flat was allotted to opposite party no.2 by the builder on 30.10.2012, which is evident from the letter of allotment. After two months of allotment of flat, opposite party no.2 approached the bank for providing the housing loan. Opposite party no.2 approached the bank in the month of December, 2012, loan of Rs.40 lacs was sanctioned to him on 22.12.2012 by M.R.C.H. and not by the applicant, the then the manager of Bank of Maharashtra, Branch Sector 51, Noida. Opposite party no.2 himself informed the bank on 10.01.2013 the date of disbursal of loan that he had taken all the responsibility that may arise now or in future.

12. Opposite party no.2 started repaying the loan amount by monthly installment of Rs.41,000/- in terms of sanction letter. But later on, opposite party no.2 stopped the repayment of loan amount and he was issued legal notice on 05.01.2018, after that on 12.05.2018 the First Information Report was lodged by opposite party no.2 involving both the applicants, who had nothing to do with the sanctioning of housing loan.

13. It is further submitted by learned counsel for the applicant that in the meantime before lodgement of F.I.R., loan provided to opposite party no.2, became NPA and Branch Head filed recovery proceedings before the Debts Recovery Tribunal, Lucknow (in short "D.R.T., Lucknow") being Original Application No.222 of 2018 on 16.02.2018. The original application is still pending there. It is evident from Annexure No.11 that application was filed in D.R.T., Lucknow on 16.02.2018 and F.I.R. was lodged by opposite party no.2 on 12.05.2018 i.e. after three months of moving the debts recovery with the intention to stall the proceedings of recovery. It is also contended that Investigating Officer found no criminal liability during the course of investigation and found that dispute is of civil nature, hence, final report was submitted by I.O. on which protest petition was filed by opposite party no.2 and learned Magistrate rejected the final report and summoned the present applicants along with other co-accused persons for facing the trial.

14. Contention of applicant is that learned Magistrate did not apply judicial mind while summoning the applicants because applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary had no role in sanctioning the housing loan to opposite party no.2 and his wife. As far as this fact is concerned that false legal search report was prepared by Subhashish Chaudhary, no such report was prepared nor it is on record. Learned Magistrate has wrongly summoned and concluded that Subhashish Chaudhary had cheated the opposite party no.2 and he was in any conspiracy with the builder and directors of the company. There is no such evidence against the applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary and he has been implicated to exert pressure for stalling the recovery of housing loan, which is public money.

15. So far as applicant-Sanjay Kumar Gupta @ Sanjay Gupta, it is submitted by learned counsel for the applicant that it is very surprising that he is made accused in F.I.R. by opposite party no.2 and more surprising that learned Magistrate also summoned him for facing the trial because the entire process of sanctioning the loan to opposite party no.2 and his wife had taken place in the month of December, 2012 and January, 2013 while the applicant-Sanjay Gupta joined in the branch of Sector 51 Noida in the year 2017. He was posted in Meerut in the year 2012 and on 24.05.2012 he was transferred by the bank to Bhopal Region. Transfer order is annexed as Annexure No.2 to the application and on 18.06.2012 he joined the office in Bhopal, joining letter is also annexed as Annexure No.2 to the application.

16. Learned counsel for the applicant has drawn the attention of this Court to the deputation order dated 09.06.2017 (Annexure No.3) by which the applicant-Sanjay Gupta was deputed as Chief Manager in branch of Sector 51, Noida with immediate effect, hence, it is amply clear that he came in the aforesaid branch on deputation on 09.06.2017 and after that permanently posted there as Chief Manager on 28.08.2017. It is also submitted that how an officer, who has joined the branch after more than four years of sanction of loan, can be held guilty. In fact, the recovery proceedings before the D.R.T., Lucknow were filed by applicant-Sanjay Gupta, therefore, to pressurise him for stalling the recovery proceedings, he was also made an accused in F.I.R. and learned Magistrate also without application of judicial mind and ignoring the aforesaid fact of his joining the branch in the year 2017, summoned him also for trial. Hence, summoning order against both the applicants is abuse of process of law and if the criminal proceedings against them are allowed to be continued will create great hardship to the applicants without their fault and without any evidence against them, therefore, criminal proceedings against them be quashed.

17. At the very outset, learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 has submitted that true facts of the matter are not argued by learned counsel for the applicant, in fact, applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary was Bank Manager when the housing loan was sanctioned to opposite party no.2 and being the Branch Manager he was actively involved in the process of sanctioning the loan. It is also submitted that builder was in nexus with the bank, the plot on which project of company was going on, was allotted to builder by U.P. Awas Evam Vikas Parishad on 19.11.2005. Builder did not pay the entire amount to U.P. Awas Evam Vikas Parishad and dispute between them had taken place in the year 2006. Builder made default in payment, several letters were issued to him by U.P. Awas Evam Vikas Parishad for demanding the amount, which was not paid by him and ultimately, on 31.12.2012 recovery citation was issued by U.P. Awas Evam Vikas

Parishad. Copy of recovery citation is annexed as Annexure CA-1.

18. It is also submitted by learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 that applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary was Bank Manager at the time of sanction of loan to opposite party no.2 and fact of recovery proceedings against the company was very well within the knowledge of Subhashish Chaudhary but he concealed this fact from opposite party no.2 and loan was sanctioned on disputed project. Tripartite agreement was executed among the builder, borrower and Bank Manager-Subhashish Chaudhary on behalf of bank. In this tripartite agreement, there is clause no.16 which says that "flat is free from all encumbrances, charges, liens, lis pendence, attachments, trusts, prior agreements, whatsoever or howsoever". In clause 17 it is also mentioned that there is no order of attachment by the Income Tax Authorities or any other authority under any law for the time being in force nor any notice of acquisition or requisition has been received in respect of the said property.

19. The tripartite agreement was executed among the parties on 10.01.2013 while the recovery citation against the company was already issued on 31.12.2012 but this fact was concealed by Branch Manager, applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary. A false revenue report showing the property "free from all encumbrances" was prepared by applicant Subhashish Chaudhary and loan was sanctioned to opposite party no.2 for grabbing his loan amount and for having wrongful gains.

20. It is further submitted by learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 that opposite party no.2 and his wife have challenged the aforesaid recovery proceedings in D.R.T., Lucknow by way of filing counter claim being Counter Claim No.02 of 2018, which is still pending for adjudication and compensation is also demanded because applicant Subhashish Chaudhary concealed important and substantial information from opposite party no.2.

21. Applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary has put his signature on agreement, hence, he cannot withdrawn himself from the terms and conditions of the aforesaid agreement. Demand draft of loan amount was directly transferred by applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary in the account of the company without handing over the possession or sale deed of flat on which loan was sanctioned. On 31.12.2012 recovery was standing against the builder/company, hence, applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary being the signatory on agreement, is fully responsible towards the loss and hard-earned money of opposite party no.2 because agreement was forged, fabricated and it was prepared so with the conspiracy between the bank and the builder.

22. Applicant-Sanjay Gupta was manager when false recovery proceedings were initiated by the bank in D.R.T., Lucknow and no action was initiated by him against erring employees of the bank.

23. In this way, both the applicants were in criminal conspiracy with the builder and they have also cheated the opposite party no.2 with the help of false and forged documents. Investigating Officer has submitted final report, which was result of wrong and poor investigation. The dispute between the parties is not of civil nature and learned Magistrate has rightly rejected the final report and summoned both the applicants for trial along with other co-accused persons on the basis of protest petition.

24. Learned A.G.A. has submitted that there is no illegality, impropriety and incorrectness in the impugned order under challenge and also there seem to be no abuse of court's process.

25. The allegations against the applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary is that project of the company was not clear and free from all encumbrances at the time of sanction of housing loan to opposite party no.2 and this fact was well within the knowledge of applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary but this fact was not disclosed by him to opposite party no.2 and all the information regarding this fact pertaining to the recovery proceedings by U.P. Awas Evam Vikas Parishad were withheld by him. Applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary was actively involved in this crime for his personal gain and causing wrongful loss to opposite party no.2 and his wife. These allegations are levelled against the applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary on the basis of tripartite agreement among the builder, borrower and bank manager because applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary is signatory on this agreement.

26. First of all, it is to be examined by this Court whether applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary had any role in sanctioning the housing loan to opposite party no.2 and his wife. It is the case of applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary that branch manager is not sanctioning authority of housing loan and loan was sanctioned by Zonal Office of Bank of Maharashtra called as M.R.C.H., New Delhi through central processing mechanism, hence, loan in question to opposite party no.2 was also sanctioned by M.R.C.H., which is crystal clear from Annexure No.3 to the application, which is sanction letter for housing loan. This sanction letter is signed by Assistant General Manager, Assest Branch, New Delhi on behalf of M.R.C.H., meaning thereby that the applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary did not sanction the loan.

27. Now, question remains of dispute and recovery proceedings against company by U.P. Awas Evam Vikas Parishad. This is the allegation by the opposite party no.2, being the Branch Manager, applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary was having knowledge of this fact but this fact was concealed by him and agreement was executed by him with false clauses, demonstrating the project free from all encumbrances. In this regard, perusal of sanction letter goes to show that on its second page, there is column "legal search charges" in which it is mentioned N.A. (Not Applicable) and further it is mentioned "Project is approved by bank". It means that the project of the company, in which opposite party no.2 was allotted a flat, was approved by the bank, hence, when the project was already approved by the bank, the applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary was not supposed to prepare the revenue report as alleged by opposite party no.2, which is also not on the record of this Court.

28. It is alleged in para no.5 of counter affidavit that applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary, Bank Manager has prepared the false revenue report showing the property free from all encumbrances. No report is place on record, hence, it cannot be opined that applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary prepared any false revenue report, more so, it was not required on his part because the sanction letter shows that project was approved by the bank. If the project was wrongly approved by the bank then the employees/officers who were responsible for approving the project may be held responsible but not the applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary because project was already approved when he signed the tripartite agreement on behalf of the bank on the instructions of sanction letter by M.R.C.H. because documentation was directed in the aforesaid sanction letter vide condition no.7. In this way, applicant - Subhashish Chaudhary became signatory on agreement on behalf of bank because he was only executant of documents.

29. Since the project was already approved by the bank and if it was wrongly approved then also applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary cannot be held liable because there is no such evidence on record that he was in any way involved in the process of approval of the project. Criminal liability is not vicarious liability and Subhashish chaudhary cannot be held vicariously liable if some other bank officers/employees have approved the housing project wrongfully or illegally. Learned Magistrate held him liable and summoned on the basis of tripartite agreement but learned Magistrate lost sight from the fact that he was only executant of the documents on behalf of the bank under instructions of M.R.C.H., which is a central processing unit of loan.

30. Learned Magistrate also lost sight from the fact that loan was sanctioned by the aforesaid M.R.C.H. and project was already approved by the bank as per the sanction letter. Moreover, learned Magistrate has committed grave error in impugned order by holding that the recovery proceedings at the behest of U.P Awas Evam Vikas Parishad against the project was in the knowledge of bank manager and it seems that fraud has been played upon opposite party no.2 with the conspiracy. This finding of learned Magistrate is without any evidence on record.

31. As discussed above, when the project was already approved by the bank, bank manager was not supposed to make due diligence. In the conclusion of impugned order also, learned Magistrate has opined that all the accused persons have cheated the opposite party no.2 i.e. complainant of F.I.R, deliberately in connivance and conspiracy with bank employees but role of bank officers is not assessed by learned Magistrate in right perspective because he did not take into consideration, the fact that loan was sanctioned by M.R.C.H. and project was already approved by the bank.

32. At the same time, the argument of opposite party no.2 is unsustainable that loan amount was directly transferred by the bank in the account of the company without giving possession of the flat to opposite party no.2 or execution of sale deed because the amount of loan is transferred by the bank in the account of agency/authority from which the goods or property is being purchased by the borrower. Opposite party no.2 and his wife have signed the receipt for amount of loan (Annexure No.5), in which it is clearly mentioned that draft is prepared in favour of the company. There is absolutely no evidence against the applicant-Sanjay Kumar Gupta, the loan was disbursed to opposite party no.2 by the bank in the month of January, 2013, when the applicant-Sanjay Kumar Gupta was posted in Bhopal and he has joined in the concerned branch of the bank i.e .Sector 51, Noida in the year 2017 after more than four and half years of sanctioning of the loan. Office order of the bank dated 24.05.2012 (Annexure No.2) is the order of transferring him from Meerut to Bhopal and there is another office order of Bank of Maharashtra, Zonal Office Bhopal, which shows that applicant-Sanjay Kumar Gupta had reported at Zonal Office, Bhopal on 18.06.2012. Annexure No.3 goes to show that applicant-Sanjay Kumar Gupta was deputed as Chief Manager of the branch situated at Sector 51, Noida on 09.06.2017, meaning thereby, before 09.06.2017 the applicant-Sanjay Kumar Gupta was not posted in the aforesaid branch and at the time of entire process of disbursal of loan, the applicant-Sanjay Kumar Gupta was posted in Bhopal. Hence, he was not having any role in disbursal/sanction of loan amount to opposite party no.2. Learned Magistrate very strongly lost sight of this fact also.

33. Learned Magistrate has considered the statement of informant Abhishek Singh, recorded under section 161 of Cr.P.C in the impugned order but did not consider it with judicial mind. It is stated by informant in the statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C that when the project was sealed due to default in payment by the builder to U.P. Awas Evam Vikas Parishad then he (opposite party no.2) demanded loan amount back from applicant-Sanjay Kumar Gupta and applicant threatened to deposit the amount of installments. This is the only allegation made by informant against applicant-Sanjay Kumar Gupta. Applicant could not return the money as it was wrongfully demanded by opposite party no.2. According to his statement, given to I.O., bank had already transferred the loan amount in the account of the company. In such a situation, how a bank manager could return the money to the borrower, it is beyond understanding, which is highly deplorable.

34. Learned Magistrate could not even think how the applicant-Sanjay Kumar Gupta could return the money to opposite party no.2 and an officer who had joined the branch of the bank after four and half years of disbursal of loan, can be held liable for criminal prosecution. There is no iota of evidence against applicant-Sanjay Kumar Gupta also.

35. In the backdrop of facts and circumstances and evidence on record at this stage, this Court finds no mens rea on the part of both the applicants. If the tripartite agreement is signed by applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary as discussed above, it was only part of the documentation and there was no guilty intention of mind because loan was sanctioned by M.R.C.H. and project was already approved by the bank. Hence, it cannot be transpired from the record that there was any intention of applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary to cheat the opposite party no.2 and his wife. Mens rea is completely absent.

36. There is no question of mens rea against the applicant-Sanjay Kumar Gupta also because he was not posted in that branch at the time of disbursal of loan amount to opposite party no.2 and he was transferred/deputed in that branch after four and half years of disbursal of loan amount. If he has filed recovery proceedings against the opposite party no.2 in D.R.T., Lucknow, he cannot be held liable for criminal prosecution because he did it as part of his duty and the statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C given to I.O. by opposite party no.2 that he demanded his money back from applicat-Sanjay Kumar

Gupta was absolutely unfair demand which could not be met by the applicant as per the rules & regulations and procedure of the bank.

37. The following observations made by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of State of Karnataka Vs. L. Muniswamy & Ors., (1977) 2 SCC 699, may be relevant to note at this stage:-

"The whole some power under Section 482 CrPC entitles the High Court to quash a proceeding when it comes to the conclusion that allowing the proceeding to continue would be an abuse of the process of the Court or that the ends of justice require that the proceeding ought to be quashed. The High Courts have been invested with inherent power, both in civil and criminal matters, to achieve a salutary public purposes. A Court proceeding ought not to be permitted to degenerate into a weapon of harassment or persecution. The Court observed in this case that ends of justice are higher than the ends of mere law though justice must be administered according to laws made by the legislature."

38. In the case of M/s.Zandu Pharmaceutical Works Ltd. & Ors. Vs. Mohd. Sharaful Haque & Anr. (2005) 1 SCC 122, Hon'ble Apex Court observed as under :-

"It would be an abuse of process of the court to allow any action which would result in injustice and prevent promotion of justice. In exercise of the powers court would be justified to quash any proceeding if it finds that initiation/continuance of it amounts to abuse of the process of court or quashing of these proceedings would otherwise serve the ends of justice. When no offence is disclosed by the complaint, the court may examine the question of fact. When a complaint is sought to be quashed, it is permissible to look into the materials to assess what the complainant has alleged and whether any offence is made out even if the allegations are accepted in toto."

39. Again in Madhavrao Jiwajirao Scindia & Anr. Vs. Sambhajirao Chandrojirao Angre & Ors., (1988) 1 SCC 692, Hon'ble Apex Court observed in paragraph 7 as under :-

"7. The legal position is well-settled that when a prosecution at the initial stage is asked to be quashed, the test to be applied by the court is as to whether the uncontroverted allegations as made prima facie establish the offence. It is also for the court to take into consideration any special features which appear in a particular case to consider whether it is expedient and in the interest of justice to permit a prosecution to continue. This is so on the basis that the court cannot be utilised for any oblique purpose and where in the opinion of the court chances of an ultimate conviction is bleak and, therefore, no useful purpose is likely to be served by allowing a criminal prosecution to continue, the court may while taking into consideration the special facts of a case also quash the proceeding even though it may be at a preliminary stage."

40. In the absence of any material on record, even prima facie, in the F.I.R. or statement of the informant, pointing out any such circumstances, showing any such act or intention that the applicants intended to cheat the opposite party no.2 and his wife and causing financial loss to them and in the absence of any specific allegations and material of definite nature, not imaginary or inferential one, it would be travesty of justice to ask the applicants to face the trial. Bearing in mind, the factual aspect of the case delineated herein above and the legal principles enunciated by Hon'ble Apex Court cited above and on the basis of aforesaid discussion, this Court is of the considered opinion that the learned Magistrate was not justified in summoning the applicants namely, Shubhashish Chaudhary and Sanjay Kumar Gupta to face the trial for the aforesaid offences because no such offence is made out against them and to put them on trial and permitting the trial to continue against both the applicants would be an abuse of process of law. Even uncontroverted allegations of the prosecution do not constitute any offence against the applicants, who were bank officers, in which Sanjay Kumar Gupta had joined the particular branch of the bank after four and half years of the disbursal of loan amount to opposite party no.2 and his wife. Applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary had no role in sanctioning of loan and it was not required or supposed to verify the liability, if any, on the project because that project was already approved by the bank. There is nothing on record to show that applicant-Subhashish Chaudhary was in any way played any role in approval of the said project.

41. In the aforesaid circumstances of the case, it is deemed proper that in order to meet the ends of justice and avert the abuse of court's process the impugned summoning order dated 16.03.2021 cannot be sustained against the applicants and the proceedings of the aforesaid case be quashed forthwith against both the applicants and are hereby quashed.

42. Both the applications u/s 482 Cr.P.C. are allowed.

43. It is made clear that impugned summoning order dated 16.03.2021 and the entire proceedings of the aforesaid case thereof are quashed only against the applicants namely, Subhashish Chaudhary and Sanjay Kumar Gupta @ Sanjay Gupta. The observations made in this order are strictly confined to the disposal of applications u/s 482 Cr.P.C. with regard to above applicants only. Rest of the accused persons cannot take recourse of the observations made in this order in any proceedings.

44. A copy of this order be certified to the lower court forthwith.

निवेदन है कि इरफान पुत्र स्व० इमरान नि० ग्राम खेडा टाण्डा थाना अजीमनगर जनपद रामपुर ने अपना संगठित गिरोह बना रखा है। जिसका गैंग लीडर इरफान स्वयं है इस गैंग के सदस्य फहीम उर्फ फईम उपरोक्त ने अपने गिरोह के सदस्यो के साथ मिलकर महिला के बलात्कार/छेड़छाड़ जैसे अपराध कारित किये है। इस गिरोह का क्षेत्र में इतना आतंक व भय व्याप्त है कि इनके विरुद्ध कोई भी जनता का व्यक्ति न तो गवाही देने का और न ही प्रथम सूचना रिपोर्ट दर्ज कराने का साहस कर पा रहा है इस गैंग से जनता मे रोष व भय व्याप्त है। इस गिरोह द्वारा महिला के बलात्कार/छेड़छाड़ जैसे जघन्य अपराध कारित करके अपने व अपने गैंग के सदस्य के लिये भौतिक लाभ प्राप्त करने हेतु बलात्कार करना है इसका क्षेत्र में स्वतन्त्र विचरण करना जनहित में उचित नही है। अभि० गण की अपराध स्थिति गैंग चार्ट में अंकित है अभि०गण का उक्त कृत्य उ०प्र० गिरोहबन्ध एवं समाज विरोधी क्रिया कलाप निवारण अधि०1986 की धारा 3(1) के अन्तर्गत दण्डनीय अपराध है जनहित में इन अभियुक्तो के विरुद्ध कार्यवाही किया जाना आवश्यक है।

नोटः- श्रीमान जी उपरोक्त अभियुक्तो के विरुद्ध उपरोक्त मुकदमों में थाना हाजा पर पूर्व में कोई गैंगस्टर का मुकदमा पंजीकृत नही है।

अतः अनुरोध है कि गैंग चार्ट अनुमोदित करने की कृपा करें।

4. अन्वेषण के दौरान आवेदकगण/अपराधीगण से भी कई बार पूछताछ की गई जैसा की वर्तमान प्रार्थना पत्र के प्रस्तर नं० 18 मे वर्णित है।

"19.08.21

केस डायरी व अन्य प्रपत्रो के अवलोकन से विदित होता है कि अभि० गण के विरूद्ध गैंग चार्ट में अभि०गण (1) इरफान (2) फहीम उर्फ फईम के विरुद्ध मु०अ०सं० 623/19 अं०धारा 376डी/506 आई०पी०सी० व अ०सं० 964/19 अं०धारा 354/506 आई०पी०सी० में अपराध दर्ज है। अतः केस डायरी व अन्य प्रपत्रो के अवलोकन से विदित है कि अभि०गण (1) इरफान (2) फहीम उर्फ फईम के विरूद्ध धारा- 3(1) जी० एक्ट में संज्ञान लेने हेतु आधार पर्याप्त है। अतः उक्त अभियुक्तगण के विरूद्ध धारा- 3(1) जी० एक्ट में संज्ञान लिया जाता है। अभि०गण द्वारा मा० उच्च न्यायालय द्वारा पारित आदेश दिनांकित 18.01.21 व 22.02.21 प्रस्तुत किया गया है। अभि०गण अद्यतन आदेश प्रस्तुत करे। अभि०गण के विरूद्ध सम्मन दिनांक 08.09.21 के लिए जारी हो।"

6. आवेदकगण ने वर्तमान आवेदन दण्ड प्रक्रिया संहिता की धारा 482 के अंतर्गत दायर किया गया है, जिसके द्वारा उपरोक्त वर्णित आरोप पत्र दिनांक 29.07.2021 व एस.एस.टी. 46/2021 (सरकार बनाम इरफान आदि), अपराध संख्या - 350/2020, अंतर्गत धारा 3(1) गिरोहबन्द अधिनियम, थाना - अजीम नगर, जिला- रामपुर, में अपर सत्र न्यायाधीश, न्यायालय -3 रामपुर द्वारा जारी सम्मन आदेश पत्र दिनाँक 19.08.21 व समस्त कार्यवाही को निरस्त करने की प्रार्थना की है।

(ख) आवेदकगण का पक्ष

7. आवेदकगण का पक्ष उनके विद्वान अधिवक्ता श्री अमित डागा ने प्रबलता से इस न्यायालय के समक्ष रखा कि यह एक विद्वेषपूर्ण कार्यवाही है। आवेदक संख्या एक पूर्व मे गाँव का प्रधान रहा है, परन्तु हाल मे हुए चुनाव में उसको हार मिली व आवेदक संख्या दो उसका रिश्तेदार है। गिरोह सारणी में उल्लेखित दोनो मामलो की शिकायतकर्ता श्रीमती नईमा के पति तल्हा एक मदरसे मे मौलवी हैं जहां और बच्चो के साथ आवेदक संख्या 3 की भतीजी भी पढ़ती थी। वहां उसके साथ उक्त मौलवी ने छेड़छाड़ की व बलात्कार की कोशिश की, जिस पर उसके विरूद्ध एक प्रथम सूचना (अपराध सं० 84 वर्ष 2019) धारा 354 ख भा.दं.सं. व 7/8 पाक्सो अधिनियम के अन्तर्गत दर्ज हुई, जिस पर आरोप पत्र (अन्तर्गत धारा 376 AB, 506 व 5एम/6 पाक्सो अधिनियम) प्रेषित हुआ व विचारण के बाद उक्त मौलवी के विरुद्ध सत्र न्यायालय द्वारा उक्त आरोपों के सिद्ध हो जाने के फलस्वरूप निर्णय व आदेश दिनांक 14.12.2020 द्वारा 20 वर्ष का सश्रम कारावास हुआ, जिसकी अपील इस न्यायालय में लम्बित है। इस कारणवश गिरोह सारणी में उल्लेखित मामलों की

शिकायतकर्ता विद्वेष रखती है, इसलिए उनके विरूद्ध दो असत्य मुकदमे दर्ज कराये हैं। विद्वान अधिवक्ता ने कथन किया कि उन दो मामलो मे आवेदकगण को जमानत मिल गई है और आरोप पत्र दाखिल किया जा चुका है।

8. श्री अमित डागा, अधिवक्ता ने आगे निवेदन किया कि वर्तमान प्रकरण मे जाँच अधिकारी ने दोनों मामलों के शिकायतकर्ता का ब्यान दर्ज किया व कई तिथियों पर आवेदकगण से पूछताछ की और जब उनको हिरासत में लेने का भय हुआ तो उन्होने एक रिट याचिका नं० 17698/2020 इस न्यायालय के समक्ष दाखिल की, जिसमें इनके विरूद्ध उत्पीड़न कार्यवाही न करने का अंतरिम आदेश पारित हुआ जो अभी भी प्रभावी है।

9. श्री अमित डागा, अधिवक्ता ने यह भी कथन किया कि अन्वेषण के दौरान आवेदकगण के विरूद्ध कोई भी विश्वसनीय और ठोस साक्ष्य संग्रहित नहीं किये गये हैं, कि आवेदकगण ने कोई गिरोह का निर्माण कर रखा है या धारा 3(1) गिरोहबन्द अधिनियम के अन्तर्गत अपराध कारित किया है। आरोप पत्र मात्र दो आपराधिक मामले के पीडित व शिकायतकर्ता के ही साक्ष्य के ब्यान पर आधारित है। कोई भी स्वतन्त्र साक्ष्य का ब्यान लेखबद्ध नही किया गया है। उक्त अपराध का संज्ञान व आवेदकगण को सम्मन भी सत्र न्यायालय ने न्यायिक मानस से नहीं किया है। पत्रावली पर कोई भी ऐसा साक्ष्य नहीं है कि आवेदकगण ने लोक व्यवस्था को अस्त-व्यस्त किया है या किसी लाभ के उद्देश्य से समाज विरोधी क्रियाकलाप किया है या जनता में दहशत, संत्रास या आतंक फैलाया हो।

10. विद्वान अधिवक्ता ने समकक्ष न्यायालय द्वारा तेज सिंह प्रति उत्तर प्रदेश राज्य व एक अन्यः 2019 एससीसी आनलाईन एएलएल 5083 के मामले में पारित निर्णय पर भरोसा जताया जहाँ, यह निर्धारित किया गया है किः-

"XXX यह आकलन करना महत्वपूर्ण है कि अपराधी द्वारा कारित अपराध क्या अनुचित दुनियाबी, आर्थिक या भौतिक लाभ के उद्देश्य से प्रेरित और अनुबंधित है या नही। अपराध का उद्देश्य या उसका प्रयोजन निर्णायक होगा, कि गिरोहबन्द अधिनियम के प्रावधान क्या किसी वस्तुतः मामले मे अनुप्रयोग किये जाये या नही।"

"XXX जब कभी भी कोई गंभीर अपराध कारित होता है तो परिणाम स्वरूप हमेशा समाज मे किसी न किसी प्रकार का व्यवधान होता ही है वो समाज मे सामान्य व्यवधान और लोक व्यवस्था का अस्त व्यस्त होना या संत्रास अथवा आतंक का उत्पन्न होना अलग-अलग भ्रांति है। विधि एवं व्यवस्था की सामान्य समस्या को लोक व्यवस्था के व्यवधान की संवृत्ति से संयोजित नही किया जा सकता है। XXX"

(उपरोक्त अनुवाद न्यायालय द्वारा किया गया है।)

11. अन्त मे विद्वान अधिवक्ता ने कथन किया कि ऐसा कोई साक्ष्य संग्रहित नहीं किया गया है, जो आवेदकगण के विरूद्ध धारा 3(1) गिरोहबन्द अधिनियम मे वर्णित अपराध के अवयव को दर्शाता हो। अतः यह न्यायालय अपनी अन्तर्निहित शक्तियों का उपयोग करते हुए आवेदकगण के विरूद्ध दंण्डनीय कार्यवाही को निरस्त करे।

(ग) राज्य सरकार का पक्षः-

12. उपरोक्त के विपरीत, राज्य शासन का पक्ष, श्री परितोष मालवीय विद्वान अतिरिक्त शासकीय अधिवक्ता, ने पुरजोर रखा, कि आवेदकगणो द्वारा अपने क्षेत्र व आसपास में अपने कृत्यो से आतंक व रोष व्याप्त कर रखा है कि जनता इनके विरूद्ध रिपोर्ट लिखाने का साहस नहीं कर पा रही है। ये बलात्कार, छेड़छाड़ जैसे कृत्य करके अपना व गिरोह के सदस्यों को भौतिक लाभ कमाते हैं। इनकी गतिविधियों पर अंकुश लगाया जाना अति आवश्यक है, इसलिए गिरोहबन्द अधिनियम के अंतर्गत प्रथम दृष्टवा अपराध दृष्टिगोचर होता है। इनके विरूद्ध दो मुकदमा अपराध पंजीकृत हुए हैं जिनमें आरोप पत्र सामूहिक बलात्कार (धारा 376 घ) व स्त्री की लज्जा भंग (धारा 354 व 506) जैसे गंभीर अपराध में प्रेषित किया जा चुका है।

13. परितोष मालवीय, अतिरिक्त शासकीय अधिवक्ता ने यह भी कथन किया कि गिरोह सारणी मे उपरोक्त दो आपराधिक मामलों को सूचीबद्ध

किया गया है, व जाँच के दौरान उन मामलों की पीडिता का साक्ष्य भी लेख बद्ध किया गया है, कि आवेदकगण ने उसके साथ बलात्कार किया व प्रथम सूचना रिपोर्ट को वापस लेने के लिए दबाव भी डाला व लज्जा भंग भी करी और यह भी कथन किया कि इनके भय के कारण इनके विरूद्ध कोई प्रथम सूचना रिपोर्ट दर्ज कराने का साहस नहीं कर पाता है और उसने गिरोहबन्द के अन्तर्गत प्रथम सूचना रिपोर्ट के तथ्यों की पुष्टि भी की। अतः धारा 3(1) गिरोह बन्द के अवयव प्रथम दृष्टवा विद्यमान हैं तथा इस स्तर पर आपराधिक कार्यवाही को अचानक मृत्यु नही दी जा सकती है, तथा वर्तमान प्रकरण के तथ्य तेज सिंह (पूर्व मे उल्लिखित) से भिन्न है। जैसा कि वर्तमान प्रकरण में यह साक्ष्य संग्रहित है, कि आवेदकगण के कृत्यों के कारण जनता में दहशत है और उनके विरूद्ध प्रथम सूचना रिपोर्ट लिखाने से घबराते हैं और अगर कोई दर्ज कराता भी है तो उस पर उसको वापस लेने के लिए दबाव भी डालते हैं।

14. अतः इनके द्वारा बलात्कार व छेड़छाड़ के अपराध कारित करने के कारण लोक व्यवस्था का अस्त-व्यस्त करने के लिए समाज विरोधी क्रिया कलाप करते है जो भारतीय दंड संहिता के अध्याय 16 के अंतर्गत दण्डनीय अपराध है।

(घ) प्रासंगिक विधि प्रावधानः-

15. वर्तमान प्रकरण के लिये गिरोहबन्द की अधिनियम व भारतीय दण्ड संहिता की निम्न धाराओं का उल्लेख करना समीचीन रहेगाः-

(ङ) गिरोहबन्द अधिनियम की विधिः-

16. उत्तर प्रदेश गिरोहबन्द और समाज विरोधी क्रियाकलाप (निवारण) अधिनियम, 1986, एक विशिष्ट अधिनियम है, जिसको गिरोहबन्द और समाज विरोधी क्रियाकलाप को रोकने और उनका सामना करने के लिए और उनसे सम्बद्ध या अनुषांगिक विषयों के लिये विशेष उपबन्ध करने के लिए अधिनियमित किया गया है।

17. अधिनियम के शीर्षक से विदित होता है, कि यह अधिनियम गिरोहबन्द निवारण और समाज विरोधी क्रिया कलाप निवारण के लिए अधिनियमित किया गया है। इसी नाते धारा 2(ख) (परिभाषा) में "गिरोह" की परिभाषा महत्वपूर्ण हो जाती है, जो एक विस्तृत परिभाषा है, जिसमें न केवल अपराध के उद्देश्य को सम्मिलित किया गया वरन समाज विरोधी क्रिया कलाप के अंतर्गत पच्चीस भिन्न-भिन्न अधिनियम और अपराध की प्रकृति के आधार पर भी अपराध या उसके कारण होने वाले परिणाम को भी सम्मिलित किया है जो हो सकता है किसी अधिनियम मे विशिष्ट रूप से अपराध की श्रेणी मे

नही हो जैसे पूर्व मे वर्णित धारा 3(1) के (दसवें) "अन्य व्यक्तियों को साम्प्रदायिक साम्जस्य मे विघ्न डालने के लिए हिंसा करने के लिए उद्दीप्त करना;" (ग्यारहवें) "जनता में दहशत, संत्रास या आतंक फैलाना;" व (अठ्ठारहवें) "वाणिज्यिक शोषण, बंधुआ श्रम, बालश्रम, यौन शोषण, अंग हटाने तथा दुर्व्यपार, करने, भिक्षा और समान क्रिया कलापो के प्रयोजनो के मानव दुर्व्यपार।" संभवतः उपरोक्त अपराध किसी अधिनियम में परिभाषित न हों।

18. "गिरोह" को शाब्दिक अर्थ के रूप मे परिभाषित नहीं किया है, परन्तु उस शब्द का 'तात्पर्य' क्या है ऐसा वर्णित किया गया है। जैसा पी. कासिलिंगम व अन्य़ बनाम पी.एस.जी. कालेज ऑफ टेक्नोलॉजी 1995 सप्ली (2) एस.सी.सी. 348 में निर्धारित किया गया कि तात्पर्य (means) एक सख्त नियम की परिभाषा है, जिसके कारण परिभाषा में लेख बद्ध शब्दो का अर्थ परिभाषा के द्वारा दिये गये अर्थ के अलावा अन्य कोई अर्थ प्रदान नहीं किया जा सकता है, जबकि शब्द "निहित" (Include) एक व्यापकता को दर्शाता है कि और परिभाषा का व्यापक अर्थ दिया जा सकता है।

19. उच्चतम न्यायालय ने शारदा गुप्ता प्रति उत्तर प्रदेश शासन व अन्य, 2022 एससीसी ऑनलाइन एससी 514 के विधिक दृष्टांत में उल्लेख किया है कि यह विधि की सुव्यवस्थित व्यवस्था है कि अधिनियम के प्रावधान जैसे हैं, वैसे ही पढे व समझे जाने चाहिये। अगर अपराधी किसी गिरोह का सदस्य है और किसी समाज विरोधी ऐसे क्रियाकलापों में संलग्न है जो धारा 2(ख), गिरोहबन्द अधिनियम में वर्णित है जैसे हिंसा,धमकी या अभित्रास या प्रपीड़न या प्रदर्शन या अन्य प्रकार से लोक व्यवस्था अस्त-वयस्त करता है या किसी दुनियावी, भौतिक, आर्थिक या अन्य लाभ हेतु के उद्देश्य से समाज विरोधी क्रिया कलाप जो एक से पच्चीस तक वर्णित है, करता है तो, वो धारा 2(ख) के अंतर्गत गिरोहबन्द की परिभाषा के आधीन माना जायेगा व उसके विरूद्ध इस अधिनियम के अंतर्गत अभियोजन चलाया जा सकेगा। एक प्रथम सूचना रिपोर्ट/आपराधिक मुकदमा के आधार पर भी अभियोजन चलाया जा सकता है।

20. गिरोह की परिभाषा के अन्तर्गत किसी पूर्व में समाज विरोधी क्रिया कलाप की घटना की प्रथम सूचना रिपोर्ट की अनिवार्यता नहीं है न ही किसी प्रकार के गिरोह सारणी की भी अनिवार्यता है। इस अधिनियम के अंतर्गत अभी तक कोई नियमावली नही बनी है। तथ्यो के आधार पर मात्र यह निर्धारित करना है कि क्या क्रिया कलाप या कृत परिभाषा के आधीन है या नहीं। अगर धारा 2(ख) के खण्ड (ग्यारह) व (पच्चीस) को ध्यान से परखा जाये तो यह उन घटनाओं को भी आधीन करेगा जहाँ भय के कारण अपराधी के विरूद्ध कोई प्रथम सूचना रिपोर्ट दर्ज भी नहीं करा पा रहा है। अतः यह मत गलत नहीं होगा कि कतिपय परिस्थितियों में पूर्व में कोई अपराध दर्ज न भी हो तो भी गिरोहबन्द अधिनियम के आधीन अभियोजन की कार्यवाही की जा सकती है।

(च) उच्च न्यायालय की अन्तर्निहित शक्तियाँ :-

21. भारतीय दंड प्रक्रिया संहिता, की धारा 482, उच्च न्यायालय की अन्तर्निहित शक्तियों की व्यावृत्ति के प्रावधान के सम्बंध में है जो निम्न है ;-

"इस संहिता की कोई बात उच्च न्यायालय की ऐसे आदेश देने की अन्तर्निहित शक्ति को सीमित या प्रभावित करने वाली न समझी जाएगी जैसे इस संहिता के अधीन किसी आदेश को प्रभावी करने के लिए या किसी न्यायालय की कार्यवाही का दुरुपयोग निवारित करने के लिए या किसी अन्य प्रकार से न्याय के उद्देश्यों की प्राप्ति सुनिश्चित करने के लिए आवश्यक हो।"

22. उच्च न्यायालय की अंतर्निहित शक्तियों को इस संहिता के किसी प्रावधान से सीमित नहीं किया जा सकता है। यह वो अंतर्निहित शक्तियां हैं, जो इस संहिता के तहत किसी भी आदेश को प्रभावी करने के लिए, या किसी भी न्यायालय की प्रक्रिया का दुरुपयोग रोकने के लिए या अन्यथा सुरक्षित करने के लिए या न्याय के उद्देश्यों की प्राप्ति के लिए आवश्यक हों। यह शक्तियां इस संहिता के तहत उच्च न्यायालय

को प्राप्त नहीं हुई हैं, बल्कि यह शक्तियां उच्च न्यायालय में अन्तर्निहित हैं, जिसे संहिता के एक प्रावधान द्वारा घोषित मात्र किया गया है।

23. उच्चतम न्यायालय ने कई विधिक दृष्टांतों में यह प्रतिपादित किया है, कि इस असाधारण शक्तियों का दायरा तो व्यापक है, परंतु इनका उपयोग संयम एवम् सावधानीपूर्वक व दुर्लभ से भी दुर्लभ प्रकरण में ही किया जाना चाहिए। इसके उपयोग से किसी भी वैधानिक अभियोजन की आकस्मिक मृत्यु कारित नहीं की जा सकती है।

24. अन्तर्निहित शक्तियों का उपयोग करते हुए ये जाँचने के लिये की कोई प्राथमिकी किसी प्रथमदृष्ट्या संज्ञेय अपराध को प्रकट करती है या नहीं , उच्च न्यायालय ना तो किसी जाँच संस्था और ना ही अपीलीय न्यायालय की तरह कार्य कर सकता है। इन शक्तियों के अन्तर्गत किसी साक्ष्य की प्रमाणिता की जाँच भी नहीं की जा सकती है, क्योंकि, इसका क्षेत्राधिकार उस न्यायालय का है, जिसके द्वारा परीक्षण किया जा रहा है या किया जायेगा। अन्वेषण के दौरान या आरोप पत्र दायर होने पर उच्च न्यायालय इस पहलू को भी नहीं देख सकता है कि आरोपी की ओर से मामले में अपेक्षित मानसिक तत्त्व या आशय मौजूद था या उसका क्या बचाव है और न ही दंड प्रक्रिया संहिता की धारा 161 के तहत अभिलेखित बयानों का गंभीर आँकलन कर, आरम्भिक स्तर पर ही किसी परीक्षण को विफल किया जा सकता है।

25. उच्चतम न्यायालय ने बहुधा कहा है कि वो परिस्थितियॉ जिनके होने पर इन अन्तर्निहित शक्तियों का उपयोग किया जा सकता है, उसकी कोई संपूर्ण सूची तो नहीं बनायी जा सकती, परन्तु कुछ क्षेणियाँ उदाहरणार्थ निम्नलिखित है:-

क) जहां प्राथमिकी या शिकायत में लगाए गए आरोप को अगर उनके प्रत्यक्ष रुप में मान लिया जाये और संपूर्णता में भी स्वीकार किया जाये, तब भी, अभियुक्त के विरुद्ध प्रथम दृष्टया कोई अपराध नहीं बनता हो,

ख) जहां प्राथमिकी और संलग्न सामग्रियों (यदि कोई हो), एक संज्ञेय अपराध को उद्घाटित नहीं करते हैं, तथा दंड प्रक्रिया संहिता की धारा 156(1) के तहत पुलिस अधिकारियों द्वारा अन्वेषण करने का कोई औचित्य साबित न होता हो;

ग) जहां प्राथमिकी या शिकायत में लगाए गए अविवादित आरोप और उसके समर्थन में एकत्र किए गए साक्ष्यों से किसी भी अपराध के कृत्य का होना प्रकट नहीं होता है और आरोपी के विरूद्ध कोई भी प्रकरण नहीं बनता हो;

घ) जहां प्राथमिकी के आरोप संज्ञेय अपराध को उद्घाटित न होते हों व केवल गैर-संज्ञेय अपराध को उद्घाटित करते हों, जहां पुलिस अधिकारी द्वारा मजिस्ट्रेट के आदेश के बिना किसी भी जांच की अनुमति नहीं है, जैसा कि दंड प्रक्रिया संहिता की धारा 155(2) के तहत परिकल्पित है;

ङ)जहां प्राथमिकी या शिकायत में लगाए गए आरोप इतने असंगत और स्वाभाविक रूप से असंभव हैं जिनके आधार पर कोई भी विवेकशील व्यक्ति कभी भी न्यायसंगत निष्कर्ष पर नहीं पहुंच सकता है कि अभियुक्त के विरुद्ध कार्यवाही के लिए पर्याप्त आधार मौजूद हैं;

च)जहां किसी संहिता या संबंधित अधिनियम (जिसके तहत आपराधिक कार्यवाही शुरू की गई है) के किसी भी प्रावधान के तहत विधिक प्रक्रिया को प्रारम्भ करने या प्रचलित रखने पर विधिक निषेध लगाया गया हो, और/या जहां संहिता या संबंधित अधिनियम के प्रावधान, पीड़ित पक्ष की शिकायत के लिए प्रभावी प्रतिकार प्रदान करते हो।

छ) जहां आपराधिक कार्यवाही स्पष्टतः दुर्भावनापूर्ण हो और/या जहां कार्यवाही विद्वेषपूर्ण रूप से आरोपी से अधिक प्रतिशोध लेने के लिए, परोक्ष उद्देश्य से की जाती है और जिसका लक्ष्य, निजी और व्यक्तिगत शिकायत के कारण उसे अपमानित करना हो। आपराधिक शिकायत को तब भी समाप्त किया जा सकता है जब मामला अनिवार्य रूप से दीवानी प्रकृति का हो और उसे एक अपराधिक अपराध का रूप दिया गया हो और यदि कथित अपराध के तत्व, शिकायत में प्रथम दृष्टया भी उपलब्ध न हों। क्योंकि इस तरह की कार्यवाही प्रचलित रखने पर न्यायालय की प्रक्रिया का दुरुपयोग होगा।

27. आरोप सत्य है या नहीं, यह विचारण में निर्धारित किया जायेगा। केवल उन विरल मामलों को छोड़कर जहां यह स्पष्ट रुप से विदित हो जाये कि आरोप गंभीरता से विचारणीय नहीं है या कोई भी अपराध उद्घाटित नहीं करते हैं, न्यायालय, धारा 482 दं.प्र.सं. की शक्ति का उपयोग करते हुए, शिकायत के आरोप की सत्यता की जाँच नहीं करता है। (देखें: रामबीर उपाध्याय व अन्य प्रति उत्तर प्रदेश राज्य व अन्य : 2022 एस सी सी ऑनलाइन एस सी 484)

28. उपरोक्त तथ्यात्मक व विधिक पृष्ठभूमि में इस न्यायालय को यह निर्धारित करना है, कि पत्रावली पर उपलब्ध साक्ष्य, क्या आवेदकगण के विरूद्ध धारा 3(1) गिरोहबन्द अधिनियम के अंतर्गत प्रथम दृष्टवा अपराध दृष्टिगोचर करते हैं या नही तथा क्या परिस्थितियाँ ऐसी है कि अन्तर्निहित शक्ति के उपयोग का मामला बनता है, या नहीं।

29. जैसा कि पूर्व मे विश्लेषण किया गया है, कि अन्तर्निहित शक्तियों का उपयोग दुर्लभ प्रकरणों में ही किया जाना चाहिये, वो भी जब अभियुक्त के विरूद्ध प्रथम दृष्टवा कोई अपराध नहीं बनता हो। आरोप सत्य है, या असत्य है यह निर्धारित करने का कर्तव्य विचारण न्यायालय को है न कि इस न्यायालय को। धारा 482 दं.प्र.सं. मे अन्तर्निहित शक्तियों का उपयोग करते हुए आरोप की सत्यता को नहीं परखा जा सकता है जैसा पूर्व मे यह उल्लेखित किया है और अगर प्रकरण के तथ्य व पत्रावली पर साक्ष्य से प्रथम दृष्टवा धारा 3(1) गिरोहबन्द अधिनियम में वर्णित अपराध कारित होने के साक्ष्य उपलब्ध हैं तो अन्तर्निहित शक्ति का उपयोग नहीं किया जा सकता है।

30. सर्वप्रथम यह विचार करना है, कि आवेदकगणों ने क्या गिरोह जैसा धारा 2(ख), गिरोहबन्द अधिनियम मे परिभाषित है, का प्रथम दृष्टवा समूह बना रखा है, जो ऐसी समाज विरोधी कार्यकलापों में लिप्त हैं, जो भारतीय दण्ड संहिता के अध्याय- 16 के अधीन दण्डनीय अपराध है, या उनसे जनता मे दहशत या संत्रास फैला था एवं कृत कोई भौतिक या दुनियावी लाभ प्राप्त करने के उद्देश्य से किया गया है। जैसा पूर्व मे विश्लेषण किया गया है कि 'गिरोह' की परिभाषा विस्तृत व वृहद है और समाज विरोधी क्रिया कलाप के अन्तर्गत अन्य प्रकार से पच्चीस भिन्न-भिन्न अपराधों को सम्मिलित किया गया है जिसमे से (ग्यारह) जनता मे दहशत, संत्रास या आतंक फैलाना भी है। तेज सिंह (पूर्व मे उल्लेखित) मे यह अवलोकन कि "जब भी कोई गंभीर अपराध कारित होता है, तो परिणामस्वरूप हमेशा समाज मे किसी न किसी प्रकार का व्यवधान होता है" यह उक्त मामले के संदर्भ मे सही हो सकता है, परन्तु यह

समान्यीकरण करना, गिरोह बन्द अधिनियम के उद्देश्य के प्रतिकूल होगा। "लोक व्यवस्था को अस्त-व्यस्त" करना अपराध कारित होने के पश्चात उस स्थान या आस पास के वास्तविक माहौल पर आधारित होगा, जो किसी मामले के तथ्य व परिस्थितियों के मद्देनज़र होगा न ही एक घटना को एक ही दृष्टि से देखा जा सकता। शब्द 'दुनियावी', 'आर्थिक', 'भौतिक' व 'अन्य लाभ' का विस्तृत अर्थ है, जो केवल एक मामले के तथ्यों को ध्यान मे रखकर, संकुचित नहीं किया जा सकता है वो भी तब, जब विचारण नहीं हुआ हो और अन्तर्निहित शक्ति के उपयोग संदर्भित न हो। ऐसा तात्पर्य होना न केवल अनुचित है, बल्कि गिरोहबन्द अधिनियम के उद्देश्यों के प्रतिकूल भी है। अतः तेज सिंह (पूर्व मे उल्लिखित) का कोई लाभ आवेदकगण को नहीं मिल सकता है। आवेदकगण के अधिवक्ता का निवेदन कि पीडिता ने पूर्वाग्रह से ग्रसित होकर उनके विरूद्ध दो आपराधिक मामले दर्ज कराये हैं क्योंकि उसके पति के विरूद्ध आवेदकगण ने एक अपराध में मामला दर्ज कराया था, जिसमे उसे सजा भी दी गई है, इस स्तर पर विचारणीय नहीं है, क्योकि यह एक बचाव है अतः विचारण का विषय है।

31. वर्तमान प्रकरण में यह सर्वविदित है, कि आवेदकगण के विरूद्ध दो आपराधिक मामले दर्ज हैं, जिनमें अन्वेषण के उपरान्त आरोप पत्र, गंभीर अपराध कारित होने के साक्ष्य उपलब्ध होने के कारण प्रेषित किये जा चुके हैं, जिनका संज्ञान भी लिया जा चुका है। तथ्यों के अनुसार आवेदकगण ने न केवल पीडित का सामूहिक बलात्कार किया बल्कि उसके द्वारा प्रथम सूचना रिपोर्ट दर्ज कराने पर उसको धमकाया व उसकी लज्जा भंग भी करी तथा जाँच अधिकारी ने घटना स्थल के आस-पास के माहौल का अध्ययन कर साक्ष्य लेखबद्ध किया है, कि क्षेत्र में आतंक, भय व रोष व्याप्त है तथा उनके विरूद्ध प्राथमिकी दर्ज कराने का साहस कोई नहीं कर पाता है। इस आकलन को इस स्तर पर निराधार नही माना जा सकता है, वो भी तब, जब आवेदकगणो पर दो आपराधिक मुकदमे दर्ज हो रखे हैं, जो धारा 3(1) के अधीन दण्डनीय है। आवेदकगण ने बलात्कार व छेड़छाड़ जैसे कृत्य करके, लोक व्यवस्था को अस्त-व्यस्त करने व अपने गिरोह के लिए अनुचित दुनियावी व भौतिक लाभ प्राप्त करने के उद्देश्य से समाज विरोधी क्रियाकलाप किये हैं, जो भारतीय दण्ड संहिता के अध्याय-16 के अधीन दण्डनीय है तथा इस कृत्य/क्रिया कलाप के कारण जनता में भय, दहशत या संत्रास भी फैला, जो धारा 2(ख)(ग्यारह) सपठित धारा 3(1) के अधीन दण्डनीय भी है, इन परिस्थितियों में अन्तर्निहित शक्तियों का उपयोग करना आपराधिक कार्यवाही को अचानक मृत्यु पहुचाने जैसा होगा जो साधारणतया नहीं किया जा सकता है।

(ज) निष्कर्ष

32. अतः ऐसी कोई परिस्थिति नही है कि अन्तर्निहित शक्ति का प्रयोग किया जाये। आवेदन गुण दोष पर योग्य न होने के कारण निरस्त किया जाता है।

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajai Tyagi, J.)

1. This application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. is moved by applicant Rajendra Kumar against the State of U.P. being aggrieved with the order passed by Additional District and Sessions Judge, Court No.1, Ghaziabad on 02.08.2022 in S.T. No.1512 of 2005 (State vs. Manmohan and others), under Section 302 IPC, Police Station- Kotwali, District- Ghaziabad, whereby the application, moved by applicant-accused Rajendra Kumar, under Section 311 of Cr.P.C. for recalling PW1 Shiv Kumar Sharma was rejected by aforesaid trial court.

2. Heard Shri Sant Saran, Advocate appearing on behalf of Ms. Samriddhi Upadhyaya, assisted by Shri Yash Dev Upadhyaya, learned counsel for the applicant and Shri Mithilesh Kumar, Learned AGA for the State.

3. Brief facts of the case giving rise to this present application are that a first information report was lodged by Shiv Kumar Sharma against Manmohan @ Bittu, Rajendra @ Pappu and Satpal @ Santo u/s 302 r/w Section 34 IPC on 05.05.2005, in which averment was made that complainant Shiv Kumar had lent his shop to Ranjeet. Manmohan, brother of Surendra Bhola, had told him to get the shop vacated. Due to this cause persons became inimical and told him that he was with their enemies. On 5.5.2005, all the three accused with one more person came to his house to see his ailing father and after that at about 8:15 pm when they were returning, he and his brother Ashok @ Billu and Arjun Sharma went to see off them. When they reached on the road, all the three named accused with one more person dragged their country made pistols and fired at them with intention to kill. In this occurrence, the brother of complainant Ashok @ Billu sustained serious injuries and was declared dead in hospital. The scribe of the aforesaid FIR was Arjun Sharma.

4. Investigation was carried out and charge sheet was submitted by I.O. against the accused persons. Learned trial court framed charge under Section 302 r/w Section 34 IPC against all the accused persons. During trial, complainant Shiv Kumar Sharma was examined as PW1 and scribe of FIR Arjun Sharma was examined as PW2. Prosecution examined only two witnesses, namely, PW1 and PW2 as witnesses of fact and six other formal witnesses were examined. After completion of prosecution evidence, statements of accused persons were recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. Accused persons were given opportunity for their defence.

5. After that an application u/s 311 Cr.P.C. was moved on behalf of the accused Rajendra Kumar for recalling PW1 Shiv Kumar Sharma for further cross-examination. The aforesaid application under Section 311 Cr.P.C. was rejected by learned trial court vide impugned order dated 2.8.2022. Aggrieved with impugned order, applicant-accused Rajendra Kumar moved this application u/s 482 of Cr.P.C.

6. Learned counsel for the applicant submitted that learned trial court has rejected the application without application of judicial mind only on two grounds, firstly, that cross-examination of PW1 has already been done on behalf of the accused persons and secondly, that the sessions trial is very old and pending since the year 2005 and one of the oldest matter of the court. Learned counsel for the applicant submitted that application should not have been rejected on the ground that the case is very old because on this ground justice should not be buried. Learned counsel for the applicant relied on the decision of Apex Court in Criminal Appeal N0.1021 of 2022 Varsha Garg Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh and others In SLP (Crl) No.2239 of 2022. Learned counsel for the applicant further submitted that in the aforesaid Sessions trial complainant Shiv Kumar Sharma has been examined as PW1 and scribe of FIR Arjun Sharma as PW2. In his examination-in-chief PW2 Arjun Sharma supported the prosecution case but in his cross-examination he has totally retracted from his statement in examination-in-chief and has denied of being eye-witness in cross-examination by saying that he had not seen the occurrence and he had heard only the sound of firing. He has specifically deposed that he knows the accused persons by name but had not seen anyone firing due to darkness. Learned counsel for the applicant argued that in this way PW2 has not supported the prosecution case in cross-examination but the prosecution did not make any prayer to get him declared hostile. Hence, it is necessary to further cross-examine PW1 with regard to the evidence of his presence on the spot because it is deposed that he had written the report on dictation of PW1 Shiv Kumar Sharma and he had written in the report whatever was dictated to him by PW1. Hence, further cross-examination of PW1 is essential on this point.

7. Learned counsel for the applicant next submitted that PW1 Shiv Kumar Sharma has himself made self contradictory statements in his deposition. PW1 has said in examination-in-chief that he and Arjun Sharma saved their lives by hiding behind the wall but in cross-examination he had deposed that they saved their lives by hiding behind wooden Takht. Hence, clarification of contradictions is necessary and for that purpose it is essential to recall PW1 for further cross-examination.

8. Learned counsel for the applicant submitted that these aforesaid questions and circumstances could not be asked from PW1 in cross-examination because the defence counsel was of old age and due to his advance age he could not cross-examine PW1 with regard to the aforesaid contradictions in the evidence of PW1 and PW2 and that later on the learned counsel is stopped coming to the court and accused persons changed their counsel and the new advocate moved application u/s 311 Cr.P.C. in the lower court after examining the file but the application was rejected by trial only on the ground that sessions trial is very old one and PW1 has already been cross-examined at length.

9. It is also submitted by learned counsel for the applicant that FIR is also ante time but questions in this regard was not asked from PW1 in cross-examination.

10. Learned counsel for the applicant said that at the time of disposal of application u/s 311 Cr.P.C., the trial court should have considered the essentiality of evidence for just decision of the case. It is also submitted that in the land mark judgement Mohanlal Shamji Soni Vs. Union of India (1991) Supp (1) SCC 271 guidelines were mentioned by Hon'ble Apex Court with regard to the exercise of power under Section 311 Cr.P.C. and emphasis was laid down that essentiality of evidence of the person who is to be examined coupled with the need for the just decision of the case constitute the touchstone which must guide the decision of the court. Broad power u/s 311 Cr.P.C. are to be governed by the requirement of the justice but the learned trial court did not consider the concept of essentiality of evidence to arrive at the just decision of the case. Hence, the impugned order to set aside and trial court to be directed to recall PW1 for further cross-examination.

11. Learned AGA objected to the submissions made by learned counsel for the applicant and at the outset submitted that the application u/s 311 Cr.P.C., which was moved by applicant in the lower court, does not contain questions which are proposed to be asked from PW1. Learned AGA submitted that in the application u/s 311 Cr.P.C., the applicant has to disclose as to what questions he proposes to ask from the witness but no such question is mentioned in the application moved by accused-applicant in this case, which means that if application is allowed then it will be open to the applicant to cross-examine the witness on any ground which is not the intention of provision of Section 311 Cr.P.C. and it is not permitted. Moreover, it is not mentioned in application as to what new evidence has taken place after completion of evidence of PW1. Learned AGA made submissions that there are two parts in Section 311 of Cr.P.C. In first part "may" word is given which means that it is the discretion of the court that it may or may not allow the application and in second part "shall" word is given, which means that it shall be obligatory on the court to recall the witness if evidence appears to be essential to the just decision of the case. But in this case nothing is shown by the applicant in the application regarding the essentiality of evidence. Learned AGA also submitted that the judgement of the Apex Court in Rajaram Prasad Yadav Vs. State of Bihar and others reported in 2013 14 SCC 461 has narrated several guidelines for deciding the application u/s 311 Cr.P.C. and one of the guidelines is that the exercise of the said power cannot be dubbed as filling up in a lacuna in a prosecution case unless the fact and circumstances make it apparent that the exercise of the power by the court would result in causing serious prejudice to the accused, resulting in miscarriage of justice.

12. Learned AGA made further submission that change of the advocate is no ground for recalling any witness. Learned AGA relied on AG Vs. Shiv Kumar Yadav 2015 0 Supreme (SC) 875 and submitted that it is clearly held by Hon'ble Apex Court in the aforesaid judgement that mere change of the counsel cannot be ground to recall the witnesses. It is also submitted that even competency of the counsel was a subjective matter and this plea cannot easily be accepted. Learned AGA submitted that the aforesaid judgement of the Apex Court is followed recently by the High Court of Punjab and Haryana in Rajendra Trehan Vs. M/S HDFC Bank Ltd. 2022 LawSuit (P&H) 1635 and held that change of counsel is no ground for recalling of witnesses. In fact, the application u/s 311 Cr.P.C. is moved by accused-applicant to linger on the decision of the case.

13. Learned counsel for the applicant, in reply, submitted that primary factor for deciding the application u/s 311 Cr.P.C. is essentiality of evidence to arrive at to the just decision of the case and filling up the loop-holes and lacuna is merely subsidiary factor as held by Hon'ble Apex Court in Zahira Habibulla H. Sheikh Vs. State of Gujarat (2006) 3 SCC 374 and Godrej Pacific Tech. Ltd. Vs. Computer Joint India Ltd. (2008) 11 SCC 108.

14. I have carefully considered the rival submissions made by the parties as well as gone through the record.

15. The nature and scope of the powers to be exercised by the court under Section 311 Cr.P.C. was elaborately considered in the case of Rajaram Prasad Yadav v State of Bihar and another (supra) and after considering the earlier precedents, the principles to be followed by the courts with regard to exercise of powers under the said section have been explained and enumerated. It has been stated thus:-

"14. A conspicuous reading of Section 311 Cr P C would show that widest of the powers have been invested with the courts when it comes to the question of summoning a witness or to recall or re-examine any witness already examined. A reading of the provision shows that the expression "any" has been used as a prefix to "court", "inquiry", "trial", "other proceeding", "person as a witness", "person in attendance though not summoned as a witness", and "person already examined". By using the said expression "any" as a prefix to the various expressions mentioned above, it is ultimately stated that all that was required to be satisfied by the court was only in relation to such evidence that appears to the court to be essential for the just decision of the case.

Section 138 of the Evidence Act, prescribed the order of examination of a witness in the court. The order of re-examination is also prescribed calling for such a witness so desired for such re-examination. Therefore, a reading of Section 311 CrPC and Section 138 Evidence Act, insofar as it comes to the question of a criminal trial, the order of re-examination at the desire of any person under Section 138, will have to necessarily be in consonance with the prescription contained in Section 311 Cr.P.C. It is, therefore, imperative that the invocation of Section 311 Cr.P.C. and its application in a particular case can be ordered by the court, only by bearing in mind the object and purport of the said provision, namely, for achieving a just decision of the case as noted by us earlier. The power vested under the said provision is made available to any court at any stage in any inquiry or trial or other proceeding initiated under the Code for the purpose of summoning any person as a witness or for examining any person in attendance, even though not summoned as witness or to recall or re-examine any person already examined. Insofar as recalling and re-examination of any person already examined, the court must necessarily consider and ensure that such recall and re-examination of any person, appears in the view of the court to be essential for the just decision of the case. Therefore, the paramount requirement is just decision and for that purpose the essentiality of a person to be recalled and re-examined has to be ascertained. To put it differently, while such a widest power is invested with the court, it is needless to state that exercise of such power should be made judicially and also with extreme care and caution.

23. From a conspectus consideration of the above decisions, while dealing with an application under Section 311 Cr P C read along with Section 138 of the Evidence Act, we feel the following principles will have to be borne in mind by the courts:

a) Whether the court is right in thinking that the new evidence is needed by it? Whether the evidence sought to be led in under Section 311 is noted by the court for a just decision of a case?

b) The exercise of the widest discretionary power under Section 311 CrPC should ensure that the judgment should not be rendered on inchoate, inconclusive speculative presentation of facts, as thereby the ends of justice would be defeated.

c) If evidence of any witness appears to the court to be essential to the just decision of the case, it is the power of the court to summon and examine or recall and re-examine any such person.

d) The exercise of power under Section 311 Cr P C should be resorted to only with the object of finding out the truth or obtaining proper proof for such facts, which will lead to a just and correct decision of the case.

e) The exercise of the said power cannot be dubbed as filling in a lacuna in a prosecution case, unless the facts and circumstances of the case make it apparent that the exercise of power by the court would result in causing serious prejudice to the accused, resulting in miscarriage of justice.

f) The wide discretionary power should be exercised judiciously and not arbitrarily.

g) The court must satisfy itself that it was in every respect essential to examine such a witness or to recall him for further examination in order to arrive at a just decision of the case.

h) The object of Section 311 Cr P C simultaneously imposes a duty on the court to determine the truth and to render a just decision.

i) The court arrives at the conclusion that additional evidence is necessary, not because it would be impossible to pronounce the judgment without it, but because there would be a failure of justice without such evidence being considered.

j) Exigency of the situation, fair play and good sense should be the safeguard, while exercising the discretion. The court should bear in mind that no party in a trial can be foreclosed from correcting errors and that if proper evidence was not adduced or a relevant material was not brought on record due to any inadvertence, the court should be magnanimous in permitting such mistakes to be rectified.

k) The court should be conscious of the position that after all the trial is basically for the prisoners and the court should afford an opportunity to them in the fairest manner possible. In that parity of reasoning, it would be safe to err in favour of the accused getting an opportunity rather than protecting the prosecution against possible prejudice at the cost of the accused. The court should bear in mind that improper or capricious exercise of such a discretionary power, may lead to undesirable results.

l) The additional evidence must not be received as a disguise or to change the nature of the case against any of the party.

m) The power must be exercised keeping in mind that the evidence that is likely to be tendered, would be germane to the issue involved and also ensure that an opportunity of rebuttal is given to the other party.

n) The power under Section 311 Cr.P.C. must therefore, be invoked by the Court only in order to meet the ends of justice for strong and valid reasons and the same must be exercised with care, caution and circumspection. The court should bear in mind that fair trial entails the interest of the accused, the victim and the society and, therefore, the grant of fair and proper opportunities to the persons concerned, must be ensured being a constitutional goal, as well as a human right."

16. There is no doubt in the legal position that Court has to bear in mind the essentiality of evidence for just decision of the case while deciding the application u/s 311 Cr.P.C. as held by Hon'ble Apex Court in catena of judgements and also the duration of a case cannot displace the specific requirement of just decision after taking all the necessary and material evidence on record as held by Hon'ble Apex Court in Manju Devi Vs. State of Rajasthan (2019) 6 SCC 203.

17. As far as the test of essentiality of evidence is concerned, it should also be kept in mind that no prejudice is to be caused to any of the parties. I am in full agreement with the contention of learned AGA that nothing is mentioned in application u/s 311 Cr.P.C. annexed as Annexure No.6 to the affidavit as to what questions applicant proposes to ask from PW1 if opportunity of further cross-examination is granted rather it is mentioned in the aforesaid application that facts and circumstances are not be enumerated because the defense of the accused will be disclosed. It means that if opportunity is given for further cross-examination and it will be open to the applicant-accused to cross-examine the witness on any point, which may take the shape of re-trial. Moreover, in this particular case since nothing is mentioned in application u/s 311 Cr.P.C. as to on what points questions are to be asked, during the course of the argument before this Court, learned counsel for the applicant has brought forward several contradictions in the evidence of PW1 and PW2. It is also submitted by the learned counsel for the applicant that PW2, scribe of the FIR, did not support prosecution in his cross-examination and prosecution did not request to the court for declaring him hostile. It is no concern of the accused whether prosecution is getting declared any witness hostile or not. It is the consideration of prosecution only. Learned counsel for the applicant has submitted that several self-contradictory statements have emerged in the evidence of PW1 on which questions are to be asked in further cross-examination. It is also submitted that questions are also to be asked with regard to the presence of PW2 at the scene of the occurrence when PW2 has denied the prosecution case in his cross-examination. In my opinion, all these aforesaid proposed questions or points are argumentative questions and points, which come in the category of loop-holes. Hence, the aid of Section 311 of Cr.P.C. cannot be given to the accused to fill up the loop-holes. The proposed points or questions, as told to this Court during the course of argument, do not come in the purview of essentiality of evidence. An application u/s 311 Cr.P.C. must not be allowed only to fill up the lacuna in prosecution case, or of the defense. Unfair advantage should not be given to any of the parties and the additional evidence must not be received as a disguise for re-trial as it would be if the application u/s 311 Cr.P.C. in this case is allowed. The Court has to bear in mind that opportunity of fair trial should be given to the accused, but it should also be kept in mind that the interest of victim also should not be prejudiced.

18. Learned counsel for the applicant has vehemently submitted and emphasized that all the questions and circumstances could not be put to PW1 in cross-examination because of the advance age of the counsel of the applicant-accused and application u/s 311 Cr.P.C. was moved by the new counsel. In this way, the competency of earlier counsel is also questioned by new counsel. The accused-applicant had appointed the advocate of his choice, who was given due and fair opportunity and thorough cross-examination of PW1 was conducted by him on various dates, way back in the year 2006 and 2007. No finding could be recorded that earlier advocate appointed by the accused-applicant was incompetent. Hence, in these circumstances mere change of advocate cannot be a ground to recall the witnesses. Needless to say that the powers of judicial supretendence under Article 227 of the Constitution of India and under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has to be exercised sparingly when there is apparent error or gross injustice in view taken by the subordinate courts. In the present case fair opportunity was granted to the accused and opportunity cannot be given to meet out the loop-holes in evidence by way of Section 311 Cr.P.C., which may cause prejudice to either of the parties.

19. In view of above discussion, this Court does not find any error in the impugned order and is not inclined to interefere with.

20. Accordingly, the application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. is dismissed.

21. It is made clear that observations made in this order shall be confined to the disposal of the aforesaid application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. only.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Saral Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri A.K. Goyal, learned counsel for the revisionist/ defendant and Sri Siddharth Srivastava, learned counsel for plaintiff/respondent no.1.

2. The plaintiff/respondent no.1 instituted a suit for cancellation of sale deed dated 30.03.2009 executed by defendant/respondent no.1 in favour of defendant/respondent no.3. The suit was instituted on the ground that the plaintiff/ respondent no.1 is the owner of the property in dispute and sale deed has been illegally executed by the defendant/ respondent no.1 in favour of defendant/ respondent no.3.

3. In the suit, an application under Order 7 Rule 11 C.P.C. was filed by the revisionist/defendant no.1 contending inter-alia that the suit is barred as the sale deed has been executed under Section 13 (2) of the Securitisation and Reconstruction of Financial Assets and Enforcement of Security Interest Act, 2002 (hereinafter referred to as 'SECURITISATION ACT, 2002') and a case for cancellation of sale deed is registered as Case No.67 of 2008 is pending before the Debt Recovery Tribunal.

4. The trial Court by order dated 01.09.2021 rejected the said application holding that the question whether the suit is barred is mixed question of fact and law, therefore, prima facie it appears that the power under Order 7 Rule 11 is not to be exercised in such a case.

5. After the pleadings have been exchanged, the trial Court framed as many as 12 issues. After framing of issues, the revisionist/defendant filed an application No.103Ga praying therein that the Issue Nos. 6, 7 & 10 of the suit may be decided as preliminary issues. The issues Nos. 6, 7 & 10 reads as under:-

"6. क्या वाद आवश्यक पक्षकारों के न बनाये जाने से दूषित है?

7. क्या वाद धारा 10 सी०पी०सी० के अंतर्गत स्टे होने योग्य है?

10.क्या इस न्यायालय को वाद की सुनवाई का क्षेत्राधिकार प्राप्त है?"

6. The trial Court found that the necessary party has been impleaded by the defendant/respondent no.1 and the original suit Nos.539 of 2009 & 510 of 2009 have been clubbed. So far as the question of jurisdiction framed as Issue No.10 is concerned, it is a mixed question of fact and law and can be decided with other issues. The trial Court further recorded that the application has been filed to delay the proceeding as on the last four dates the defendant/revisionist has sought time to cross-examine PW1, and thereafter the said application 103Ga was filed.

7. Challenging the aforesaid order, learned counsel for the revisionist has contended that once the question of jurisdiction arises and suit is exclusively barred by Section 34 of the SECURITISATION ACT, 2002, it is incumbent upon the trial Court under Order 14 Rule 2 C.P.C. to decide the question of jurisdiction first so that the proceedings may not prolong unnecessarily and the revisionist may not suffer harassment.

8. It is contended that from the reading of Section 34 of the SECURITISATION ACT, 2002, it is evident that suit is exclusively barred and as no question of fact is involved and only question of jurisdiction is involved, therefore, the trial Court ought to have decided the Issue No.10 as preliminary issue. He submits that provision under Order 14 Rule 2 C.P.C. which provides for decision of issue on jurisdiction is mandatory and the Court below has to follow the said provision and decide the said issue first as preliminary issue.

9. In support of his argument, he has placed reliance in the case of Manager, Bettiah Estate Vs. Bhagwati Saran Singh and other, 1992 (2) AWC 1233 & Mrs. Shahnaz Husain and Other Vs. Mohd. Yunus & Other, 1993 (1) ACJ 216 & Smt. Subhash Bhalla and another Vs. Smt. Jai Devi and another, 2008 All. C.J.773.

10. Per contra, learned counsel for the plaintiff/respondent contends that almost on identical plea, an application under Order 7 Rule 11 C.P.C. was filed wherein it was alleged that as the sale deed has been executed under Section 13(2) of the SECURITISATION ACT, 2002, therefore, the suit is barred. He submits that while deciding the application under Order 7 Rule 11 C.P.C. the trial Court has returned a specific finding that the question of jurisdiction involved in the case is a mixed question of fact and law and cannot be looked into at this stage. He submits that the finding returned by the Court below on application under Order 7 Rule 11 Cr.P.C. is binding and as the question of jurisdiction involved in the instant case is a mixed question of fact and law, therefore, the same cannot be decided as a preliminary issue and can be decided only after the parties lead evidence.

11. It is further contended that provision under Order 14 Rule 2 C.P.C. is only directory and not mandatory and the trial Court is at discretion given in the facts of the case to decide the said issue as preliminary issue or with other issues. In support of his contention, he has placed reliance upon the case reported in 2010 (78) ALR 755, Dhampur Sugar Mills Ltd. and another Vs. Rajeev Sinha.

12. Having considered the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

13. It transpires from the record that the suit has been instituted by the plaintiff/respondent no.1 for cancellation of sale deed dated 30.03.2009 on the ground that he is the exclusive owner of the property in question. In the said suit, an application under Order 7 Rule 11 C.P.C. was filed contending inter alia that as the sale deed had been executed under Section 13(2) of the SECURITISATION ACT, 2002, therefore, the suit before the trial Court is not maintainable and is barred .

14. The trial Court recorded a finding that whether the suit is barred, is a mixed question of fact and law in the instant case and accordingly, it refused to reject the plaint under Order 7 Rule 11 C.P.C. The order of the trial Court dated 01.09.2021 rejecting the application under Order 7 Rule 11 has not been assailed by the revisionist and has attained finality.

15. After the pleadings have been exchanged, the issues have been framed.

16. Learned counsel for the revisionist has urged the contention only as regards the Issue No.10. He submits that the trial Court while rejecting the application of the revisionist to decide the Issue No.10 as preliminary issue recorded a specific finding that it is a mixed question of fact and law and has relied upon the order of the trial Court dated 01.09.2021 whereby the trial Court has refused to entertain the application under Order 7 Rule 11 on the same ground. The trial Court further noticed that application 103Ga has been filed only to delay the proceedings as on previous four dates defendant/revisionist has sought time to cross-examine the PW1 and instead of cross-examining the PW1, an application to decide the preliminary Issue No.10 was filed.

17. Perusal of Order 14 Rule 2 C.P.C. indicates that it is only when the question of jurisdiction is exclusively involved which does not require any investigation of fact and the same can be decided on the basis of pleadings without any evidence, the trial Court can decide the said issue as preliminary issue. The object of incorporating such provision is manifest that if suit can be concluded on the basis of one issue, the parties should not be harassed in protracted and prolong litigation.

18. In the instant case, the finding returned by the trial Court while rejecting the application is that the issue involved is a mixed question of fact and law which requires appreciation of evidence in support of the pleadings on record. This Court finds that the trial Court has not committed any jurisdictional error in dismissing the said application.

19. This Court also in the case of 2010 (78) ALR 755 in Para-4 has held that jurisdiction vested under Order 14 Rule 2 C.P.C. is discretionary and not mandatory. Para-4 of the said judgement reproduced herein-below:-

"4. The short question for determination of this revision is whether the impugned order suffers from jurisdictional error and can be interfered with in this revision. In order to reach to the right conclusion, it is necessary to go through the provisions of Order XIV Rule 2 C.P.C. and as amended vide Code of Civil Procedure Amendment Act, 1976 w.e.f. 1.12.1977, which reads as under:

" Rule-2. Court to pronounce judgment on all issues (1) Notwithstanding that a case may be disposed of on a preliminary issue, the Court shall, subject to the provisions of sub-rule (2) pronounce judgment on all issues.

(2).Where issues both of law and of fact arise in the same suit, and the Court is of opinion that the case or any part thereof may be disposed of on an issue of law only, it may try that issue first if that issue relates to-

"(a) the jurisdiction of the Court, or

(b) a bar to the suit created by any law for the time being in force, and for that purpose may, if it thinks fit, postpone the settlement of the other issues until after that issue has been determined, and may deal with the suit in accordance with the decision on that issue."

It reveals from the perusal of the Order XXIV Rule 2 C.P.C., quoted above that it is within the discretion of the court to decide which issue he should decide as preliminary issue and it is not mandatory for the court to decide the issue of jurisdiction or issue relating to maintainability of the suit as preliminary issue.

Sub-rule (1) of Rule 2 mandates the Court that notwithstanding that a case may be disposed of on preliminary issue, the Court shall, subject to the provisions of Sub-rule (2), pronounce judgment on all issues. Order XXIV, Rule 2 of the C.P.C. was amended vide CPC (Amendment) Act, 1976 w.e.f. 1.2.1977 making it discretionary for the Court to decide the preliminary issues after taking evidence along with other issues. Thus, the intention of Legislature is clear that instead of prolonging the suit by first deciding a preliminary issue and thereafter deciding other issues be avoided, as far as possible. If all the issues are decided at a time that may avoid unnecessary delay and multiplicity of the proceedings in relation to the deciding the preliminary issue. "

20. Now, paras-9,10, 11, & 12 of Manager, Bettiah Estate (supra) on which reliance has been placed by the learned counsel for the revisionist are being reproduced herein-below:-

"9. From the perusal of the amended provision of Rule 2 it will be clearly seen that now there are only two categories of issues which can be decided as preliminary issues.

Those issues of law as relate to (a) jurisdiction, of the Court or (b) to the bar to the suit created by any law for the time being in force. Apart from the above no other issue can now be decided as preliminary, a fortiori no issue of fact or a mixed issue of fact and law can be, decided as preliminary issue and consequently such issues must be left to be decided along with the rest of the issues. The object of this obviously is avoidance of piecemeal trial and abridging protracted litigation.

10. On comparison of the earlier rule and the present one will indicate that previously the categorisation was between issue of law and fact only and it was mandatory for the court to decide all issues of law in the first instance. On the contrary under the amended rule the mandate to the Court is to pronounce the judgment on all the issues raised subject to the provision of sub-rule (2), notwithstanding the fact that the disposal of one preliminary issue may result in the disposal of the whole suit. The only exception carved out by sub-rule (2) is to confer discretion upon the Court that it may dispose of an issue of law as a preliminary issue if, in its opinion, it can dispose of the whole suit subject to further limitation that the issue of law must either be as to the jurisdiction of the Court or as to the bar of any law to the suit. The use of expression "on issue of law only" has its own significance which cannot be ignored. Amended provision has thus drastically changed the earlier notion that all issues of law have to be disposed of at the initial stage before the trial. Now the Courts power to dispose of an issue of law as preliminary issue has been considerably restricted.

11. The rule however, does not give any arbitrary or unbridled power to the Court. The discretion in this regard has to be exercised in a judicious manner. In fact the discretion to try a preliminary issue of law relating to jurisdiction or bar to the suit should be exercised only when it is so clear that the decision will dispose of the suit finally and once for all without the necessity of recording any evidence. If there be any necessity to refer to any authority on the question it will suffice to mention AIR 1980 Delhi, 122, Oriental Travels Pvt. Ltd. v. State Transport Authority and AIR 1979 MP 153.

12. To sum up the legal position appears to us to be as under:

Only an issue of law can be decided as a preliminary only where it is such that its decision does not necessitate investigation into facts and it relates either to the jurisdiction of the Court or to the suit being barred under any prevailing law, and that, in the opinion of the court the decision of the issue will, result in the decision of the whole or a part of the suit. The discretion in this regard must always be exercised on the basis of sound judicial principles. It may however, be made clear that even if an issue of law can be decided as a preliminary issue as aforesaid the Court is not always bound to decide it as a preliminary issue and can in its discretion, postpone its decision also along with other issues whether of law or fact. The whole purpose behind the amended provision is to restrict piecemeal decision and unnecessary multi-tier appeals at intermediate stages on preliminary issue alone and thus avoid procrastination of litigation. The new provision justly aims at abridging the proceeding in the suit rather than permitting prolongation thereof."

21. Reading of para-12 of the above judgement discloses that the Division Bench has categorically held that the issue of law can be decided as a preliminary issue only where it is such that a decision does not necessitate investigation into facts and it relates either to jurisdiction of the Court or to the suit being barred under any prevailing law. The said observation in the judgement supports the contention of the plaintiff/respondent no.1 and, thus, the said judgement does not come in the aid of the revisionist as the trial Court in the instant case is of the opinion that question of jurisdiction in the instant case is a mixed question of fact and law.

22. The another judgement, i.e., Mrs. Shahnaz Husain (supra) relied upon by the learned counsel for the revisionist is also of no help to the revisionist as in the said case also this Court had held that the plea regarding jurisdiction should be decided as preliminary issue. In the instant case, such proposition of law does not apply in view of the finding returned by the trial Court.

23. So far as the third judgement, i.e., Smt. Subhash Bhalla (supra) relied upon by the learned counsel for the revisionist is concerned, the same is also not applicable in the facts of the present case as in the said case, the Court was considering the scope of Order 7 Rule 11 C.P.C. and Order 14 Rule 2 (2) C.P.C.

24. Thus, for the reasons given above, this Court finds that the revision lacks merit. It is accordingly, dismissed with no order as to costs.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Saurabh Shyam Shamshery, J.)

1. Dispute in the present case is arising out of a Committee of Management of Sushila Jaswant Rai Maternity Hospital, Meerut under Jaswant Rai Churamani Trust Society. Undisputedly, the applicant was appointed by a resolution of society dated 02.10.2001 as a Chairman of said hospital and she remained on the said post till 15.02.2019, thereafter, one Rajiv Kumar Gupta was appointed as a Chairman of the said hospital.

2. It is a case of complainant (one of trustee/chairman of the Trust) that said new committee came to know in July, 2020 that applicant in connivance with other accused persons prepared a lease deed by misrepresenting herself to be a trustee of said hospital and executed in favour of Shreya Medicare Private Ltd. through its Director Mridul Sharma w/o Dr. Malay Sharma and handed over major part of hospital to them and thereby caused unlawful loss to society and to hospital and unlawful gain in favour of accused persons.

3. In these circumstances, an F.I.R. was lodged by complainant against the applicant and other accused persons on 07.10.2020 bearing Case Crime No. 676 of 2020 under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471 at Police Station- Civil Lines, District- Meerut. The Investigating Officer conducted investigation and recorded statements of witnesses and came to a conclusion that there were sufficient evidence against applicant and other accused persons for committing offence under Section 420, 406 I.P.C. by applicant and offence under Section 420, 406, 120-B I.P.C. by other accused persons, viz., Mridul Sharma and Dr. Malay Sharma, and a charge sheet was filed, whereof cognizance was taken and summons were issued to applicant and other accused persons. The applicant is aggrieved by above referred criminal proceedings, charge sheet and its cognizance and therefore she is before this Court.

4. Sri Dileep Kumar Pandey, learned counsel for applicant submitted that she is an old lady, who has served as a Chairman of hospital for a long period and acted only for benefit of hospital and trust. She became a trustee as per resolution dated 13.08.1995 and in furtherance of later resolution dated 01.10.2001, she was looking after the affairs of hospital also. Therefore, the applicant has not made any misrepresentation while executing the lease deed. The F.I.R. was filed after six years and there was no explanation for such huge delay. The purpose of lease deed was to meet out day to day expenses of hospital and therefore the purpose was for benefit of hospital and society. There was no wrongful gain to applicant or other accused or wrongful loss to hospital.

5. Learned counsel also pointed out that in the lease deed, it was also specifically mentioned that applicant was Chairman of Management of Committee of hospital at the relevant time, therefore, the applicant has not misappropriated any property nor by cheating and dishonestly, induced any person to deliver any property.

6. Learned counsel also submitted that offence under Sections 406 and 420 I.P.C. cannot go together being an antihesis.

7. The applicant has also lodged an F.I.R. against one Rajiv Gupta and others of complainant side alleging that they have manufactured fictitious documents and forged her signature and present criminal proceedings were counterblast to it. The applicant is presently 90 years old and is suffering from cancer and other old age ailments.

8. The above submissions are vehemently opposed by Sri Srijan Pandey holding brief of Sri Swetashwa Agarwal, learned counsel for opposite party No.2 that during the period of applicant, being Chairman of hospital, not only the lease was executed on throw away price but huge money was also siphoned and for that a separate F.I.R. was lodged on 17.11.2021 against applicant and other accused persons under Section 409 I.P.C.

9. He further submitted that by way of lease, the applicant and other accused persons wanted to encroach upon the property of hospital in order provide monetary benefit to other and to cause loss to the hospital as well as to the society. The hospital is situated in a posh area of Meerut city and monthly rent of Rs. 20,000/- was on very low side. Investigation has already been conducted and there are sufficient evidence that applicant along with other accused person has committed offences under Sections 420, 406 I.P.C. and ingredients thereof are prima facie made out.

10. Heard learned counsel for parties and perused the record.

11. Law on inherent powers of the High Court under Section 482 Criminal Procedure Code 1973 is as under :-

"(I) "Inherent Power" of the High Court under Section 482 Cr.P.C., an extraordinary power is with purpose and object of advancement of justice, which is to be exercised "to give effect to any order under the Cr.P.C.", or "to prevent abuse of process of any Court", or "to secure ends of justice", making arena of the power very wide, yet it is to be exercised sparingly, with great care and with circumspection, that too in the rarest of rare case.

(II) It is no more res integra that exercise of inherent power could be invoked to even quash a criminal proceeding/First Information Report/complaint /chargesheet, but only when allegation made therein does not constitute ingredients of the offence/offences and /or are frivolous and vexatious on their face, without looking into defence evidence, however such power should not be exercised to stifle or cause sudden death of any legitimate prosecution. Inherent power does not empower the High Court to assume role of a trial court and to embark upon an enquiry as to reliability of evidence and sustainability of accusation, specifically in a case where the entire facts are incomplete and hazy. Similarly quashing of criminal proceedings by assessing the statements under section 161 Cr.P.C. at initial stage is nothing but scuttling a full fledged trial.

(III) There can not be any straight jacket formula for regulating the inherent power of this Court, however the Supreme Court has summarised and illustrated some categories in which this power could be exercised in catena of judgments. Some of them are State of Haryana Vs Bhajan Lal : 1992 Supp (1) SCC 335, Zandu Pharmaceutical Works Ltd Vs Mohd Sharaful Haque: (2005) 1 SCC 122, Ahmed Ali Quarashi and Anr Versus The State of Uttar Pradesh : 2020 SCC Online SC 107, Joseph Salvaraja A v. State of Gujarat (2011) 7 SCC 59, Sushil Sethi and another Vs The State of Arunachal Pradesh and others (2020) 3 SCC, 240, Priti Saraf and Anr Vs State of NCT of Delhi and Anr : 2021 SCC Online SC 206*. Some categories/ circumstances as illustrations but not exhaustive are : allegations made in FIR / complaint, if are taken at their face value and accepted do not prima facie constitute any offence or are so absurd and inherently improbable to make out any case or no cognizable offence is disclosed against the accused, criminal proceedings is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive and with a view to spite the accused due to private and personal grudge, or where there is a specific legal bar engrafted in any of the provisions of the Code or in the concerned Act to the institution and continuance of the proceedings or when dispute between the parties constitute only a civil wrong and not a criminal wrong, further Courts would not permit a person to be harassed although no case for taking cognizance of the offence has been made out.*

(IV) In Sau. Kamal Shivaji Pokarnekar v. The State of Maharashtra : (2019) 14 SCC 350, the Apex Court has laid emphasis on the principles laid down in two of its previous judgements namely, State of Karnataka v. M. Devendrappa : 2015 (3) SCC 424 and Indian Oil Corporation v. NEPC India Ltd. & Ors.: (2006)6 SCC 736 and held that quashing of criminal proceedings is called for only when the complaint does not disclose any offence, or the complaint is frivolous, vexatious, or oppressive and further clarified that defences available during a trial and facts/aspects whose establishment during the trial may lead to acquittal cannot form the basis of quashing a criminal complaint. The criminal complaints cannot be quashed only on the ground that the allegations made therein appear to be of a civil nature, if the ingredients of the alleged offence are prima facie made out in the complaint.

(V) The Supreme Court in M/s Neeharika Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd Versus State of Maharashtra and Others : (2020) 10 SCC 118*, has categorically held that High Court is not justified in passing the order of not to arrest and or no coercive steps either during the investigation or till the final report/ charge sheet is filed under Section 173 Cr.P.C., while dismissing/disposing petition under Section 482Cr.P.C. and/or under Article 226 of the Constitution and even in exceptional cases where High Court is of the opinion that a prima facie case is made out for stay of further investigation,such order has to be with brief reasons, though such orders should not be passed routinely, casually and/or mechanically.*

(VI) Whether the allegations are true or untrue, would have to be decided in the trial. In exercise of power under Section 482 of the Cr.P.C., the Court does not examine the correctness of the allegations in a complaint except in exceptionally rare cases where it is patently clear that the allegations are frivolous or do not disclose any offence. (see Ramveer Upadhyay & Anr. versus State of U.P. & Anr. 2022 SCC Online SC 484*)*

(VII) A careful reading of the complaint, the gist of which we have extracted above would show that none of the ingredients of any of the offences complained against the appellants are made out. Even if all the averments contained in the complaint are taken to be true, they do not make out any of the offences alleged against the appellants. Therefore, we do not know how an FIR was registered and a charge-sheet was also filed.....It is too late in the day to seek support from any precedents, for the proposition that if no offence is made out by a careful reading of the complaint, the complaint deserves to be quashed. (See, Wyeth Limited & others vs, State of Bihar & another, Criminal Appeal No.1224 of 2022 (Special Leave Petition (Crl.) No.10730 OF 2018), decided on 11th August, 2022)."

12. The Supreme Court in the case of Vijay Kumar Ghai and others vs. State of West Bengal and others, (2022) 7 SCC 124 has interpreted Sections 405, 406, 415 and 420 I.P.C. Relevant paragraphs of the judgment are quoted hereinbelow :-

"27. Section 405 of IPC defines "Criminal Breach of Trust" which reads as under: -

"405. Criminal breach of trust.-- Whoever, being in any manner entrusted with property, or with any dominion over property, dishonestly misappropriates or converts to his own use that property, or dishonestly uses or disposes of that property in violation of any direction of law prescribing the mode in which such trust is to be discharged, or of any legal contract, express or implied, which he has made touching the discharge of such trust, or wilfully suffers any other person so to do, commits "criminal breach of trust".

The essential ingredients of the offense of criminal breach of trust are:-

(1) The accused must be entrusted with the property or with dominion over it,

(2) The person so entrusted must use that property, or;

(3) The accused must dishonestly use or dispose of that property or wilfully suffer any other person to do so in violation,

(a) of any direction of law prescribing the mode in which such trust is to be discharged, or;

(b) of any legal contract made touching the discharge of such trust.

28. "Entrustment" of property under Section 405 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 is pivotal to constitute an offence under this. The words used are, "in any manner entrusted with property'. So, it extends to entrustments of all kinds whether to clerks, servants, business partners or other persons, provided they are holding a position of "trust'. A person who dishonestly misappropriates property entrusted to them contrary to the terms of an obligation imposed is liable for a criminal breach of trust and is punished under Section 406 of the Penal Code.

29. The definition in the section does not restrict the property to movables or immoveable alone. This Court in R K Dalmia vs Delhi Administration, (1963) 1 SCR 253 held that the word "property' is used in the Code in a much wider sense than the expression "moveable property'. There is no good reason to restrict the meaning of the word "property' to moveable property only when it is used without any qualification in Section 405.

30. In Sudhir Shantilal Mehta Vs. CBI, (2009) 8 SCC 1 it was observed that the act of criminal breach of trust would, Interalia mean using or disposing of the property by a person who is entrusted with or has otherwise dominion thereover. Such an act must not only be done dishonestly but also in violation of any direction of law or any contract express or implied relating to carrying out the trust.

31. Section 415 of IPC define cheating which reads as under: -

"415. Cheating. --Whoever, by deceiving any person, fraudulently or dishonestly induces the person so deceived to deliver any property to any person, or to consent that any person shall retain any property, or intentionally induces the person so deceived to do or omit to do anything which he would not do or omit if he were not so deceived, and which act or omission causes or is likely to cause damage or harm to that person in body, mind, reputation or property, is said to "cheat"."

The essential ingredients of the offense of cheating are:

1. Deception of any person

2. (a) Fraudulently or dishonestly inducing that person-

(i) to deliver any property to any person: or

(ii) to consent that any person shall retain any property;or

(b) intentionally inducing that person to do or omit to do anything which he would not do or omit if he were no so deceived, and which act or omission causes or is likely to cause damage or harm to that person in body,mind,reputation or property.

32. A fraudulent or dishonest inducement is an essential ingredient of the offence. A person who dishonestly induces another person to deliver any property is liable for the offence of cheating.

33. Section 420 IPC defines cheating and dishonestly inducing delivery of property which reads as under: -

"420. Cheating and dishonestly inducing delivery of property. --Whoever cheats and thereby dishonestly induces the person deceived to deliver any property to any person, or to make, alter or destroy the whole or any part of a valuable security, or anything which is signed or sealed, and which is capable of being converted into a valuable security, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to seven years, and shall also be liable to fine."

34. Section 420 IPC is a serious form of cheating that includes inducement (to lead or move someone to happen) in terms of delivery of property as well as valuable securities. This section is also applicable to matters where the destruction of the property is caused by the way of cheating or inducement. Punishment for cheating is provided under this section which may extend to 7 years and also makes the person liable to fine.

35. To establish the offence of Cheating in inducing the delivery of property, the following ingredients need to be proved:- 1. The representation made by the person was false 2. The accused had prior knowledge that the representation he made was false. 3. The accused made false representation with dishonest intention in order to deceive the person to whom it was made. 4. The act where the accused induced the person to deliver the property or to perform or to abstain from any act which the person would have not done or had otherwise committed.

36. As observed and held by this Court in the case of Prof. R.K. Vijayasarathy & Anr. Vs. Sudha Seetharam & Anr., (2019) 16 SCC 739 the ingredients to constitute an offence under Section 420 are as follows:-

i) a person must commit the offence of cheating under Section 415; and

ii) the person cheated must be dishonestly induced to;

a) deliver property to any person; or

b) make, alter or destroy valuable security or anything signed or sealed and capable of being converted into valuable security. Thus, cheating is an essential ingredient for an act to constitute an offence under Section 420 IPC."(emphasis supplied)

13. The Court now proceeds to deal with rival submissions. The first submission of learned counsel for applicant was that there was a delay of six years in lodging an F.I.R., therefore, it was an afterthought only to harass the applicant. No doubt that there was a delay of six years in lodging of F.I.R., however, as stated by counsel for opposite party No.2 that new Management Committee took over in the year 2019 and after going through the documents it was revealed that the lease deed was made by misrepresentation. Otherwise also, only on the ground that there was a delay in lodging of first information report, entire criminal proceedings could not be set aside ignoring the contents of F.I.R. and investigation thereof.

14. Now, the Court further proceeds to consider whether prima facie ingredients of Section 405 I.P.C. are made out or not. As referred above that ingredients of offence of criminal breach of trust are entrustment with property and thereafter dishonestly disposal of said property. Undisputedly, the applicant was a Chairman of the hospital, therefore, she along with other members of Management Committee, made an entrustment of the trust's property. Therefore, disposal of said property with dishonest intention was in violation of conditions express or implead carrying out the trust, management of hospital, when she was not authorized to execute a lease, therefore, it was in violation of express term of carrying out the trust and definitely, therefore, it would fall under the offence of criminal breach of trust.

15. There are allegations against applicant that she dishonestly executed a lease in favour of other accused only to usurp the property and to cause unlawful loss to the hospital and unlawful gain to other accused persons and the allegations were found to be true after investigation and now charge sheet has been filed. Therefore, ingredients of Sections 405 I.P.C. are prima facie made out.

16. Lastly, the Court has to see whether ingredients of Section 420 I.P.C.(cheating and dishonestly inducing delivery of property) are made out or not. During investigation, it has come that the applicant was not authorized to execute a lease, however, she misrepresented herself to be a trustee of hospital whereas admittedly she was a Chairman of the hospital at the relevant point of time and the lease deed was executed at throw away price without any termination clause and as such it was wrongful loss to the society and therefore, prima facie ingredients of cheating and dishonesty are present and as such offence under Section 420 I.P.C. is also prima facie made out.

17. As discussed above, when on the basis of evidence on record, prima facie a case is made out and ingredients thereof are present, this Court cannot exercise inherent powers which will cause sudden death of criminal proceedings. The facts and circumstances of present case, therefore, do not fall under category that " allegations are frivolous' or "do not disclose any offence' and therefore, it does not fall under "exceptionally rare cases' wherein exercise of inherent powers is warranted.

18. In view of above consideration and analysis, I do not find any ground to quash the criminal proceedings against the applicant and as such this application is rejected.

1. Present petition under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed for quashing of the prosecution of the petitioner in Criminal Case No.117 of 2015, State through C.B.I. versus Shashi Mohan and Anr under Section 120-B IPC, and Sections 7, 13(2) read with 13 (1)(d) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988 (hereinafter referred to as "PC Act") pending before Special Judge, C.B.I., Court No.4, Lucknow.

Further prayer has been made for keeping the execution of the non-bailable warrant in abeyance till disposal of the present petition.

2. The petitioner had approached this Court earlier in a petition filed under Section 482 Cr.P.C. being petition No.116 of 2018 with the following prayers:-

"Wherefore, it is most respectfully prayed that this Hon'ble Court may kindly be pleased to pass an appropriate order for keeping the execution of non bailable warrant in abeyance till the disposal of the pending Application for dropping of petitioner's prosecution/discharge on the ground of invalid and illegal Sanction for Prosecution, so as to meet the ends of justice.

and/or this Hon'ble Court may further be pleased to pass any other order or orders which this Hon'ble Court may deem fit & proper in the interest of justice."

3. The said petition was disposed of by this Court vide order dated 12.01.2018 which reads as under:-

"Heard learned counsel for the applicants and learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

The present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed to keep the execution and operation of the Non Bailable Warrants issued on 03.01.2018 against the applicant in Criminal Case No.117/2015 (State through C.B.I V.s Shashi Mohan and another) under Section 120-B I.P.C and Section 7 & 13 (2) read with 13(1)(d) Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988

Learned counsel for the applicant informed to this Court that said matter is listed on 24.01.2018 at learned Special Judge, C.B.I, Court No.4. Applicant is directed to appear before learned Special Judge, C.B.I, Court No. 4, Lucknow on the date fixed and till then Non Bailable Warrant dated 03.01.2018 is kept in abeyance.

With the aforesaid directions, this application is finally disposed of."

4. The petitioner was posted as Chief Executive Officer at Cantonment Board, Fatehgarh on 4th August, 2014. The instant case, RC0062015A0009 was registered by C.B.I./A.C.B., Lucknow on 9th May, 2015 against Shashi Mohan, Ward Member, Fatehgarh Cantonment Board, District Farrukhabad under Section 7 of the PC Act on the basis of complaint received from one Haider Ali working as Contractor with M/S Dilip Kumar. In the complaint, it was alleged that accused, Shashi Mohan had demanded an illegal gratification/commission/bribe of Rs.1,56,000/- from the complainant on behalf of the petitioner to process the payment for the work done by the contractor which was allotted to the contractor on 28.08.2014 in pursuance to the tendering process.

5. The complaint was marked to Mr. S.N. Srivastava. Inspector, C.B.I./A.C.B., Lucknow for verification which was discreetly verified on 9th May, 2015 in presence of independent witness, Ajit Kumar working as Office Superintendent, Office of ADEN, North Eastern Railway, Fatehgarh. During verification, the conversion held between the complainant and suspected person, Shashi Mohan was recorded in Digital Voice Recorder, transferred in CDs and marked as Q-1, which would disclose the demand of bribe by the accused, Shashi Mohan.

6. During verification of the complaint, verification memo of the verification proceedings and transcript of incriminating portion of the accused recorded was prepared mentioning that the accused, Shashi Mohan demanded bribe from the complainant of Rs.1,56,000/- on behalf of the petitioner. An additional demand of Rs.60,000/- was also made at the rate of Rs.20,000/- each on behalf of the three i.e. Shashi Mohan, Anwar Jamal whose wife Ms. Shama was a Ward Member and Shiv Kumar, whose daughter Ms Avanthi was also Ward Member.

7. On 10th May, 2015 a team comprising nine C.B.I. Officials and two independent witnesses namely, Ajit Kumar and Dharampal both from Indian Railways, the complainant and Mohd. Shakeel Qureshi, employee of the complainant assembled in Suit No.1, Officers Rest House, North Eastern Railway, Fatehgarh District Farrukhabad on 10th May, 2015 at 8:30 AM. Purpose of assembly was explained to all present and written complaint dated 7th May, 2015 of Haider Ali in Hindi version was shown and read over to all. The complainant, Haider Ali acknowledged that the said complaint was in his handwriting and bore his signatures. Verification memo disclosing the demand of bribe by the accused, Shashi Mohan was also shown to all and every members of the team confirmed that there was demand of bribe by accused, Shashi Mohan.

8. A practical demonstration regarding use of Phenolphthalein powder and its reaction with the solution of Sodium Carbonate and water was shown before all present including the witnesses and they were explained the chemical reaction of Phenolphthalein powder with the solution to Sodium Carbonate.

9. The complainant could arrange Rs.2,00,000/- against demanded bribe amount of Rs.2,16,000/- by the accused, Shashi Mohan. Details like denomination, G.C. notes, number etc., of the aforesaid bribe amount of Rs.2,00,000/- produced by the complainant was mentioned in pre-trap memorandum dated 10th May, 2015. Phenolphthalein powder on the G.C. notes amounting to Rs.2,00,000/- was applied. Personal search of the complainant was conducted, and he was not allowed to keep anything except his handkerchief, mobile phone. Two wads of Phenolphthalein treated G.C. notes of denomination 500 amounting to Rs.1,00,000/- were kept in the right side pant pocket of the complainant while rest two wads of the Phenolphthalein treated G.C. notes of denomination 500 amounting to Rs.1,00,000/- were kept in the left side pant pocket of the complainant. He was specifically instructed not to touch the said Phenolphthalein treated G.C. notes of Rs.2,00,000/- until demanded by accused, Shashi Mohan.

10. Witness, Ajit Kumar was directed to act as shadow witness. Haider Ali disclosed that accused, Shashi Mohan does not talk freely in front of strangers. Accordingly, it was directed that Mohd. Shakeel Qureshi would accompany Haider Ali for meeting accused-Shashi Mohan. Witness, Ajit Singh would follow them discreetly keeping a visible distance and to position himself as such that he could see the transaction and overhear the conversion as far as practically possible.

11. After completion of pre-trap proceedings at about 11:00 Hours on 10th May, 2015, the aforesaid C.B.I. team along with both the independent witnesses and the complainant, Haider Ali, Mohd. Shakeel Qureshi left the Suit No.1, Officers Rest House, North Eastern Railway, Fatehgarh, for residence of Shashi Mohan at Kasim Bagh, Cantonment, Fatehgarh. Bribe amount of Rs.2,00,000/- was handed over to Shashi Mohan at around 11:15-16 A.M. on 10.5.2015, and after receiving signal from Haider Ali and the complainant, all other team members including two witnesses rushed towards the car of the complainant, where the complainant-Haider Ali and accused-Shashi Mohan were present. Haider Ali and Mohd. Shakeel Quereshi pointed towards persons sitting in the back seat of the car who was busy in counting the notes who was identified as Shashi Mohan, Ward Member, Ward No.2 Cantonment Board, Fatehgarh who demanded and accepted bribe from Hyder Ali.

12. The accused-Shashi Mohan disclosed that he demanded and accepted the bribe amount on behalf of the petitioner who was posted as Chief Executive Officer of Fatehgarh Cantonment, Anwar Jamal whose wife was a Ward Member and Shiv Kumar, whose daughter was also a Ward Member and himself. He further told that out of Rs.2,16,000/- demanded by him Rs.1,56,000/- were accepted by him on the instance of the petitioner for onward transfer to him and rest Rs.60,000/- was to be distributed among Anwar Jamal, Shiv Kumar and himself. He also disclosed that earlier also he collected bribe for the petitioner from other contractors and had transferred it to him.

13. On being directed, Shashi Mohan made a call at Mobile No.9838919102 to the petitioner from his Mobile No.9450008078 at about 12:28 P.M. Speaker of the phone of accused-Shashi Mohan was switched on, and his conversation with the petitioner over phone was heard by all and was also recorded in blank Digital Voice Recorder. In that conversation, the petitioner initially acknowledged the words communicated to him by accused-Shashi Mohan regarding his acceptance of Rs.1,56,000/- at the rate of 6% on his behalf from Haider Ali. Later, he directed him to meet him in the office and not to talk to him over phone. Thereafter, the recorded conversation was transferred into a blank CD in presence of independent witnesses and the same was sealed, marked as Q-3 and signed by the independent witnesses. This conversation was also transferred in another CD which was marked as investigation copy Q-3 for investigation purposes.

14. Recovered amount of Rs.2,00,000/- from accused-Shashi Mohan which was handed over by the complainant, was sealed under the signature of both the independent witnesses. Hand wash of right and left hand of accused-Shashi Mohan was obtained with Sodium Carbonate water, which turned pink, sealed in two separate clean glass bottles marked LHW and RHW. In the same manner, right hand wash of the complainant was sealed in another clean glass bottle marked as CRHW.

15. Office of the petitioner was searched and file pertaining to the tender of M/S Dilip Kumar was seized in presence of witnesses.

16. Personal search of the accused-petitioner was made, and he was arrested. Search on residential premises of accused-Shashi Mohan was also carried out. Specimen voice of the accused-Shashi Mohan was obtained with his consent after being explained its purpose in presence of independent witnesses. Said recording was also transferred in Blank CD and marked as S-1, sealed and signed by all persons including independent witnesses. Specimen voice of the petitioner was also obtained as Exh.S-2. Compact disks having sample voice were sent to Central Forensic Science Laboratory, New Delhi for expert opinion and same had been received.

17. The allegation is that conversation between accused-Shashi Mohan and the petitioner would disclose that he had accepted the bribe of Rs.1,56,000/- on behalf of the petitioner. C.F.S.L. report confirmed involvement of the accused in demanding and accepting the bribe. C.B.I. after conducing the investigation filed charge-sheet under Sections 120B IPC, 7/13(2), 13(1)(d) PC Act against the accused-Shashi Mohan and the petitioner.

18. Despite the order dated 12.01.2018 passed by this Court in earlier petition filed under Section 482 Cr.P.C. No.116 of 2018 directing the petitioner to appear before the trial court on 24.01.2018 and till then the Non Bailable Warrant dated 03.01.2018 was kept in abeyance, the petitioner did not appear on 24.01.2018, but thereafter on 30.01.2018, filed another application challenging the validity of the sanction order for prosecuting him. It is alleged that the petitioner has submitted false residential address and to evade process of law. It was found that he was not residing at his native place. Though the petitioner was not mentioned in the F.I.R. verification memo and Pre-Trap Memorandum, his role emerged during the course of investigation as co-accused. Allegedly, Shashi Mohan demanded and accepted bribe from the complainant on behalf of the petitioner in furtherance of criminal conspiracy amongst themselves.

19. Heard Mr.Nandit Srivastava, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Mr.Pranjal Krishna and Mr. Anurag Singh, learned counsel appearing for the C.B.I.

20. Main contention of Mr.Nandit Srivastava, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Mr. Pranjal Krishna, learned counsel for the petitioner is that earlier the competent authority had refused sanction for prosecution against the petitioner. This recommendation was forwarded to the Ministry of Defence. The denial of sanction was after considering the material placed before the competent authority i.e. D.G.D.E., and there was no fresh material before the competent authority to issue fresh impugned sanction order dated 17th August, 2016 (Annexure-8), which is evident from the communication issued by Director, Vigilance, Ministry of Defence, Government of India on 10th February, 2016 (Annexure-5).

21. It has been further submitted by learned Senior Advocate that second sanction order for prosecuting the petitioner on the same material is not legally sustainable under the law without there being any material/evidence before the competent authority. He, therefore, has submitted that second sanction order dated 17.08.2016 is void ab initio, and thereby rendering all the proceedings including taking cognizance and summoning the petitioner null and void being without jurisdiction as jurisdiction goes to the root of the matter.

22. In support of the aforesaid contention, learned Senior Advocate has placed reliance on the judgment in the case of State of Himanchal Pradesh vs Nishant Sareen (2010) 14 SCC 527.

23. Learned Senior Advocate has further submitted that issue of validity of the prosecution sanction goes to the roots of the jurisdiction of the Court under the PC Act, and if the prosecution sanction is not valid all the proceedings are void ab initio. In support of this submission learned Senior Advocate has placed reliance on the judgment in the case of R.S. Nayak vs A.R.Antulay: (1984) 2 SCC 183.

24. The question of validity of prosecution sanction can be raised at any stage and, therefore, the petitioner had raised this issue before the learned Special Judge, CBI. However, learned Judge had proceeded to take cognizance for offence against the petitioner. In support of the aforesaid contention, he has placed reliance on the judgment in the case of Suresh Kumar Bhikham vs Pradeep Ajay Bhushan Jain (1988) 1 SCC 205 to submit that question of sanction can be considered at any stage of proceedings, and same view has been reiterated in the case of Nanjappa vs State of Karnataka: (2015) 4 SCC 186 wherein it has been held that question regarding validity of sanction to prosecute under Section 19 of the PC Act can be raised at any stage of proceedings.

25. The competence of the Court trying the accused depends upon the existence of a valid sanction, and if the Court finds that the sanction is invalid, the accused can get discharged. However, the competent authority may grant a fresh sanction for prosecution in accordance with law. If the trial court proceeds despite the invalidly attached to the sanction order, proceedings would be non est in the eyes of the law. However, the same shall not forbid the trial of the accused after grant of valid sanction for prosecution.

26. Further, ground to challenge the sanction order is that Director General Defence State is not the authority competent to remove the petitioner from his office, and the petitioner was appointed by his Excellency, Hon'ble the President. Since the impugned sanction order has not been issued by the Ministry of Defence, which is competent authority, therefore, sanction order is not valid and liable to be quashed.

27. Mr.Anurag Singh, learned counsel appearing for the C.B.I. opposing the petition has submitted that entire submissions made on behalf of the petitioner by the learned Senior Advocate are wholly misconceived and based on incorrect and wrong premises. He has submitted that communication dated 10th February, 2016 (Annexure-5) is not refusal of sanction to prosecute the petitioner by the competent authority but on the recommendation of the competent authority to not issue sanction for prosecution against the petitioner, matter was referred to the Central Vigilance Commission for consideration and concurrence by the Ministry of Defence which is evident from the communication itself.

28. Mr. Anurag Singh, learned counsel appearing for the C.B.I. has further submitted that as per the office memorandum dated 06.11.2006 issued by the Ministry of Personnel, Public Grievance & Pensions, Department of Personnel and Training, Government of India, Order 399/33/2006-AVD-III in cases investigated by the Central Bureau of Investigation against any public servant who is not removable from his office except with the sanction of the President, the C.B.I. forwards its final report of investigation to the C.V.C. and also simultaneously endorses a copy of the report to the administrative Ministry/Department concerned, the competent authority shall within three weeks is required to formulate its tentative view regarding the action to be taken and seek the advice of the C.V.C. in the matter.

29. The C.V.C., thereafter, would tender its advice within ten days to the concerned administrative Ministry/Department, which shall finalize its view in the matter within a week and issue orders for sanction for prosecution accordingly. If the C.V.C. on reconsideration advices, for grant of sanction, the concerned Ministry/Department will issue the requisite orders immediately. However, if the concerned Ministry/Department proposes not to accept the reconsidered advice of the C.V.C., the case will be referred to the Department of Personnel and Training for a final decision.

30. In cases in which an authority other than the President is competent to sanction prosecution, and that authority does not propose to accord such sanction, it is required to report the case to the Central Vigilance Commission and take further action after considering the Central Vigilance Commission's advice. If the Central Vigilance Commission advises grant of sanction for prosecution but the Ministry /Department concerned proposes not to accept such advice, the case should be referred to this DOPT for a final decision.

31. Mr.Anurag Singh, learned counsel appearing for the C.B.I. has drawn attention to the amendment made in the Government of India (Allocation of Business) Rules, 1961 on 30th, September, 1986 which provide for authorities competent to grant sanction from prosecution of public servant. According to amended rules in case of a government servant sanction for prosecution for an offence is required to be accorded by the Department which is the Cadre Controlling authority for the service of which he is a member, and in any other case, by the Department in which he was working at the time of commission of the alleged offence. It is further provided that notwithstanding anything contained in the Rule, the President may, by general or special order, direct that in any case or class of cases the sanction shall be accorded by the Department of Personnel and Training.

32. Mr.Anurag Singh, learned counsel appearing for the C.B.I. has further submitted that there is no order earlier than the order dated 17th August, 2016 for refusing or accepting sanction for prosecution of the petitioner. Internal communication dated 10the February, 2016 cannot be read to be as refusal of sanction by the competent authority for prosecuting the petitioner.

33. It has been further submitted by Mr.Anurag Singh, learned counsel that when the communication dated 10th February, 2016 was addressed at that time C.F.S.L. Report regarding voice samples and conversation between accused, Shashi Mohan and the complainant and the petitioner was not received. After the C.F.S.L. report had been received, entire material was reconsidered including C.F.S.L. report and the competent authority has granted sanction, which is legal, valid, just and proper.

34. It has been further submitted that there is no substance in the arguments of learned Senior Advocate that Director General of Defence State was not a competent authority for granting or denying the sanction inasmuch as from the communication dated 10th February, 2016 it is clear that D.G.D.E. is a competent authority for granting or refusing sanction for prosecution of the petitioner and on the said communication the petitioner has placed great reliance on his submission.

35. It has been further submitted that D.G.D.E. is the competent authority to remove the petitioner from service by virtue of powers delegated to D.G.D.E. under Rule 12 of CCS (CCA) Rules, 1967 read with Recruitment Rules and, therefore, the sanction order dated 17th August, 2016 has been issued by the competent authority. It has been further submitted that the petition has no merit and substance and is liable to be dismissed.

36. I have considered the submissions of Mr.Nandit Srivastava, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Mr.Pranjal Krishna and Mr. Anurag Singh, learned counsel appearing for the C.B.I.

37. Sum and substance of the arguments of learned Senior Advocate is that once sanction for prosecution of the petitioner was refused by the competent authority after considering the material placed by the C.B.I., which is evident from the order/communication dated 10th February, 2016, no fresh sanction on the same material could have been granted by the competent authority and even otherwise Director General of Defence State is not competent authority to grant or refuse the sanction. As the sanction is not a valid sanction, order of cognizance and further proceedings against the petitioner undertaken by Special Judge are void and illegal.

New Delhi, the 10th February, 2016

Subject: Request for grant of prosecution sanction-CBI Case No.RC0062015A0009/3301 dated 16.09.2015 against Shri Shashi Mohan, Ward member and vice president of Fatehgarh Cantonment Boards and others.

This has reference to DGDE note no.109/COMF/FATEHGARH/CB/VIG/DE dated 28.08.2015 and 02.12.2016 whereby it has recommended prosecution sanction against Shri Shashi Mohan, Ward Member but denied the same against Shri MPR Tripathi, CEO Fatehgarh.

2. The matter has been examined in the Ministry and the competent authority has decided to grant prosecution sanction against Shri Shashi Mohan ward member and Vice President of Fatehgarh Cantonment Board.

3. The matter has been considered in respect of Shri MPR Tripathi, CEO and keeping in view the following facts:-

(i) Though the complainant has mentioned in the complaint that Shri Tripahti has been demanding a bribe of Rs.1.56 Lakh, it appears that no verification regarding the demand made by Shri Tripathi has been done by the CBI. It is only Shri Shashi Mohan who has mentioned during the verification of the complaint that Shri Tripathi has asked for that money.

(ii) No evidence has been furnished by the CBI that any bribe has been demanded by Shri Tripathi from Shri Haider Ali.

(iii) Nothing incriminating was found in the searches carried out by CBI soon after the trap in the office and residential premises of Shri Tripahti.

(iv) The only evidence against Shri Tripathi is an audio CD containing a short conversation between Shri Shashi Mohan and Shri Tripathi which does not appear to be conclusive.

It appears that there is no direct evidence against Shri Tripathi nor there is any evidence to suggest that he demanded money from Shri Haider Ali. No verification of the complaint by Shri Haider Ali against Shri Tripathi was done by CBI. In view of this, the competent authority has approved that there does not seem to be enough evidence available on record for grant of prosecution sanction against Shri Tripathi. Accordingly, in pursuance of Rule 11.2 Chap, VIII of Vigilance Manual, the case is being forwarded to the CVC for consideration and concurrence.

4. Further, DGDE is requested to issue necessary orders denying Prosecution sanction for Shri MPR Tripathi, CEO being the competent authority under intimation to this Ministry.

39. It is no longer res integra that valid sanction by the competent authority under Section 19 of the PC Act is sine qua non for taking cognizance for an offence against a public servant. If the sanction is held to be invalid, entire proceeding undertaken by the trial court would be void.

40. The Supreme Court in the case of R.S. Nayak (supra) in para 19 on this issue has held as under:-

"19. Section 6 bars the court from taking cognizance of the offences therein enumerated alleged to have been committed by a public servant except with the previous sanction of the competent authority empowered to grant the requisite sanction. Section 8 of 1952 Act prescribes procedure and powers of Special Judge empowered to try offences set out in Section 6 of 1947 Act. Construction of Section 8 has been a subject to vigorous debate in the cognate appeal. In this appeal we will proceed on the assumption that a Special Judge can take cognizance of offences he is competent to try on a private complaint. Section 6 creates a bar to the court from taking cognizance of offences therein enumerated except with the previous sanction of the authority set out in clauses (a), (b) and (c) of sub-section (1). The object underlying such provision was to save the public servant from the harassment of frivolous or unsubstantiated allegations. The policy underlying Section 6 and similar sections, is that there should not be unnecessary harassment of public servant. (See C.R. Bansi v. State of Maharashtra [(1970) 3 SCC 537 : 1971 SCC (Cri) 143 : AIR 1971 SC 786 : (1971) 3 SCR 236] .) Existence thus of a valid sanction is a prerequisite to the taking of cognizance of the enumerated offences alleged to have been committed by a public servant. The bar is to the taking of cognizance of offence by the court. Therefore, when the court is called upon to take cognizance of such offences, it must enquire whether there is a valid sanction to prosecute the public servant for the offence alleged to have been committed by him as public servant. Undoubtedly, the accused must be a public servant when he is alleged to have committed the offence of which he is accused because Sections 161, 164, 165 IPC and Section 5(2) of the 1947 Act clearly spell out that the offences therein defined can be committed by a public servant. If it is contemplated to prosecute public servant who has committed such offences, when the court is called upon to take cognizance of the offence, a sanction ought to be available otherwise the court would have no jurisdiction to take cognizance of the offence. A trial without a valid sanction where one is necessary under Section 6 has been held to be a trial without jurisdiction by the court. (See R.R. Chari v. State of U.P. [AIR 1962 SC 1573 : (1963) 1 SCR 121 : (1962) 2 Cri LJ 510] and S.N. Bose v. State of Bihar [AIR 1968 SC 1292 : (1968) 3 SCR 563 : 1968 Cri LJ 1484] .) In Mohd. Iqbal Ahmad v. State of A.P. [(1979) 4 SCC 172 : 1979 SCC (Cri) 926 : AIR 1979 SC 677 : (1979) 2 SCR 1007] it was held that a trial without a sanction renders the proceedings ab initio void. But the terminus a quo for a valid sanction is the time when the court is called upon to take cognizance of the offence. If therefore, when the offence is alleged to have been committed, the accused was a public servant but by the time the court is called upon to take cognizance of the offence committed by him as public servant, he has ceased to be a public servant, no sanction would be necessary for taking cognizance of the offence against him. This approach is in accord with the policy underlying Section 6 in that a public servant is not to be exposed to harassment of a frivolous or speculative prosecution. If he has ceased to be a public servant in the meantime, this vital consideration ceases to exist. As a necessary corollary, if the accused has ceased to be a public servant at the time when the court is called upon to take cognizance of the offence alleged to have been committed by him as public servant, Section 6 is not attracted. This aspect is no more res integra. In S.A. Venkataraman v. State [AIR 1958 SC 107, 112 : (1958) SCR 1040 : 1958 Cri LJ 254] this Court held as under:

"In our opinion, in giving effect to the ordinary meaning of the words used in Section 6 of the Act, the conclusion is inevitable that at the time a court is asked to take cognizance not only the offence must have been committed by a public servant but the person accused is still a public servant removable from his office by a competent authority before the provisions of Section 6 can apply. In the present appeals, admittedly, the appellants had ceased to be public servants at the time the court took cognizance of the offences alleged to have been committed by them as public servants. Accordingly, the provisions of Section 6 of the Act did not apply and the prosecution against them was not vitiated by the lack of a previous sanction by a competent authority."

And this view has been consistently followed in C.R. Bansi case [(1970) 3 SCC 537 : 1971 SCC (Cri) 143 : AIR 1971 SC 786 : (1971) 3 SCR 236] and K.S. Dharmadatan v. Central Government [(1979) 4 SCC 204 : 1979 SCC (Cri) 958 : (1979) 3 SCR 832 : 1979 Cri LJ 1127] . It therefore appears well-settled that the relevant date with reference to which a valid sanction is sine qua non for taking cognizance of an offence committed by a public servant as required by Section 6 is the date on which the court is called upon to take cognizance of the offence of which he is accused."

41. Further, in the case of Nanjappa vs State of Karnataka: (2015) 14 SCC 186 in para 22 it has been further reiterated that Section 19 of the PC Act forbids taking of cognizance by the Court against public servant except with the previous sanction of a competent authority to grant such sanction in terms of Cause (a), (b) and (c) of Section 19(1) of PC Act.

It would be apt to extract para 22 of the said judgment:-

"22. The legal position regarding the importance of sanction under Section 19 of the Prevention of Corruption Act is thus much too clear to admit equivocation. The statute forbids taking of cognizance by the court against a public servant except with the previous sanction of an authority competent to grant such sanction in terms of clauses (a), (b) and (c) to Section 19(1). The question regarding validity of such sanction can be raised at any stage of the proceedings. The competence of the court trying the accused so much depends upon the existence of a valid sanction. In case the sanction is found to be invalid the court can discharge the accused relegating the parties to a stage where the competent authority may grant a fresh sanction for the prosecution in accordance with law. If the trial court proceeds, despite the invalidity attached to the sanction order, the same shall be deemed to be non est in the eyes of law and shall not forbid a second trial for the same offences, upon grant of a valid sanction for such prosecution."

42. It is also settled that sanction accorded by an authority not competent to accord sanction can be without jurisdiction and nullity as held in the case of State Inspector of Police vs Surya Sankaran Karri, 2006 Cri.L.J. 4598.

43. Section 19 of the PC Act reads as under:-

"19. Previous sanction necessary for prosecution.--
(1) No court shall take cognizance of an offence punishable under sections 7, 10, 11, 13 and 15 alleged to have been committed by a public servant, except with the previous sanction,--

(a) in the case of a person who is employed in connection with the affairs of the Union and is not removable from his office save by or with the sanction of the Central Government, of that Government;

(b) in the case of a person who is employed in connection with the affairs of a State and is not removable from his office save by or with the sanction of the State Government, of that Government;

(c) in the case of any other person, of the authority competent to remove him from his office.

(2)Where for any reason whatsoever any doubt arises as to whether the previous sanction as required under sub-section (1) should be given by the Central Government or the State Government or any other authority, such sanction shall be given by that Government or authority which would have been competent to remove the public servant from his office at the time when the offence was alleged to have been committed.

(3) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974),--

(a) no finding, sentence or order passed by a special Judge shall be reversed or altered by a court in appeal, confirmation or revision on the ground of the absence of, or any error, omission or irregularity in, the sanction required under sub-section (1), unless in the opinion of that court, a failure of justice has in fact been occasioned thereby;

(b) no court shall stay the proceedings under this Act on the ground of any error, omission or irregularity in the sanction granted by the authority, unless it is satisfied that such error, omission or irregularity has resulted in a failure of justice;

(c) no court shall stay the proceedings under this Act on any other ground and no court shall exercise the powers of revision in relation to any interlocutory order passed in any inquiry, trial, appeal or other proceedings.

4. In determining under sub-section (3) whether the absence of, or any error, omission or irregularity in, such sanction has occasioned or resulted in a failure of justice the court shall have regard to the fact whether the objection could and should have been raised at any earlier stage in the proceedings. Explanation.-- For the purposes of this section,--

(a) error includes competency of the authority to grant sanction;

(b) a sanction required for prosecution includes reference to any requirement that the prosecution shall be at the instance of a specified authority or with the sanction of a specified person or any requirement of a similar nature."

44. The Supreme Court in the case of Prakash Singh Badal & Anr vs State of Punjab & Ors: (2007) 1 SCC 1, while considering intent and scope of Sub-sections 3 and 4 of Section 19 of the PC Act held that error, omission or irregularity in sanction would not be fatal unless it has resulted in failure of justice. Section 19 (1) is a matter of procedure and does not go to the root of jurisdiction.

Para 29 of the aforesaid judgment would read as under:-

"29. The effect of sub-sections (3) and (4) of Section 19 of the Act are of considerable significance. In sub-section (3) the stress is on "failure of justice" and that too "in the opinion of the court". In sub-section (4), the stress is on raising the plea at the appropriate time. Significantly, the "failure of justice" is relatable to error, omission or irregularity in the sanction. Therefore, mere error, omission or irregularity in sanction is (sic not) considered fatal unless it has resulted in failure of justice or has been occasioned thereby. Section 19(1) is a matter of procedure and does not go to the root of jurisdiction as observed in para 95 of Narasimha Rao case [(1998) 4 SCC 626 : 1998 SCC (Cri) 1108] . Sub-section (3)(c) of Section 19 reduces the rigour of prohibition. In Section 6(2) of the old Act [Section 19(2) of the Act] question relates to doubt about authority to grant sanction and not whether sanction is necessary."

45. In the said judgment, it has been further held that requirement under Section 19 is that incriminating material should be placed before sanctioning authority in order to apply his mind and take a decision for grant of sanction whether there is an application of mind or not, would depend on facts and circumstances of each case. There is a distinction between absence of sanction and the alleged invalidity on account of non-application of mind. The former question can be agitated at the threshold but the latter is a question which has to be raised during trial.

Paras 47 and 48 of the aforesaid judgment in Prakash Singh Badal's case (supra) would read as under:-

"47. The sanctioning authority is not required to separately specify each of the offences against the accused public servant. This is required to be done at the stage of framing of charge. Law requires that before the sanctioning authority materials must be placed so that the sanctioning authority can apply his mind and take a decision. Whether there is an application of mind or not would depend on the facts and circumstances of each case and there cannot be any generalised guidelines in that regard.

48. The sanction in the instant case related to the offences relatable to the Act. There is a distinction between the absence of sanction and the alleged invalidity on account of non-application of mind. The former question can be agitated at the threshold but the latter is a question which has to be raised during trial."

46. Sanction order can be challenged on several grounds such as non availability of the matter before sanctioning authority or bias of the sanctioning authority or the order of sanction having been passed by an authority etc. The Supreme Court in the case of Dinesh Kumar v Airport Authority of India (2012) 1 SCC 532 has held that all such grounds of invalidity or illegality of sanction would fall in the category on sanction being invalid on account of non application of mind and can always be raised in the course of trial. Para 9 to 11 of the aforesaid judgment which are relevant are extracted hereunder:-

"9. While drawing a distinction between the absence of sanction and invalidity of the sanction, this Court in Parkash Singh Badal [(2007) 1 SCC 1 : (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 193] expressed in no uncertain terms that the question of absence of sanction could be raised at the inception and threshold by an aggrieved person. However, where sanction order exists, but its legality and validity is put in question, such issue has to be raised in the course of trial. Of course, in Parkash Singh Badal [(2007) 1 SCC 1 : (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 193] , this Court referred to invalidity of sanction on account of non-application of mind.

10. In our view, invalidity of sanction where sanction order exists, can be raised on diverse grounds like non-availability of material before the sanctioning authority or bias of the sanctioning authority or the order of sanction having been passed by an authority not authorised or competent to grant such sanction. The above grounds are only illustrative and not exhaustive. All such grounds of invalidity or illegality of sanction would fall in the same category like the ground of invalidity of sanction on account of non-application of mind--a category carved out by this Court in Parkash Singh Badal [(2007) 1 SCC 1 : (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 193] , the challenge to which can always be raised in the course of trial.

11. In a later decision, in Ameerjan [(2007) 11 SCC 273 : (2008) 1 SCC (Cri) 130] , this Court had an occasion to consider the earlier decisions of this Court including the decision in Parkash Singh Badal [(2007) 1 SCC 1 : (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 193] . Ameerjan [(2007) 11 SCC 273 : (2008) 1 SCC (Cri) 130] was a case where the trial Judge, on consideration of the entire evidence including the evidence of the sanctioning authority, held that the accused Ameerjan was guilty of commission of offences punishable under Sections 7 and 13(1)(d) read with Section 13(2) of the PC Act. However, the High Court overturned the judgment of the trial court and held that the order of sanction was illegal and the judgment of conviction could not be sustained."

47. In the recent judgment in the case of Central Bureau of Investigation vs Pramila Virendra Kumar Agarwal & Anr : (2019) SCC OnLine SC 1265, the Supreme Court has reiterated that validity of sanction for prosecution could be considered only during the trial. Para 11 of the said judgment is extracted hereunder:-

"11. Further the issue relating to validity of the sanction for prosecution could have been considered only during trial since essentially the conclusion reached by the High Court is with regard to the defective sanction since according to the High Court, the procedure of providing opportunity for explanation was not followed which will result in the sanction being defective. In that regard, the decision in Dinesh Kumar v. Airport Authority of India [Dinesh Kumar v. Airport Authority of India, (2012) 1 SCC 532 : (2012) 1 SCC (Cri) 509 : (2012) 2 SCC (L&S) 532] relied upon by the learned Additional Solicitor General would be relevant since it is held therein that there is a distinction between the absence of sanction and the alleged invalidity on account of non-application of mind. The absence of sanction no doubt can be agitated at the threshold but the invalidity of the sanction is to be raised during the trial. In the instant facts, admittedly there is a sanction though the accused seek to pick holes in the manner the sanction has been granted and to claim that the same is defective which is a matter to be considered in the trial."

48. Grant or refusal to grant sanction is a statutory power. That power once exercised can be reviewed but the review cannot be on the same material or reconsideration of the decision for grant or refusal the sanction cannot be made on the same material. A change of opinion per se on the same material cannot be a ground for reviewing or reconsidering the earlier order refusing to grant sanction but in a case where fresh material has been collected by the investigating agency subsequent to the earlier order and placed before the sanctioning authority and on that basis, the mater is reconsidered by the sanctioning authority and in the light of the fresh materials an opinion is formed that sanction to prosecute the public servant may be granted, such an order would not be an invalid order. The Supreme Court in the case of State of Himanchal Pradesh vs Nishant Sareen (2010) 14 SCC 527 in para 12 and 13 has held as under:-

"12. It is true that the Government in the matter of grant or refusal to grant sanction exercises statutory power and that would not mean that power once exercised cannot be exercised again or at a subsequent stage in the absence of express power of review in no circumstance whatsoever. The power of review, however, is not unbridled or unrestricted. It seems to us a sound principle to follow that once the statutory power under Section 19 of the 1988 Act or Section 197 of the Code has been exercised by the Government or the competent authority, as the case may be, it is not permissible for the sanctioning authority to review or reconsider the matter on the same materials again. It is so because unrestricted power of review may not bring finality to such exercise and on change of the Government or change of the person authorised to exercise power of sanction, the matter concerning sanction may be reopened by such authority for the reasons best known to it and a different order may be passed. The opinion on the same materials, thus, may keep on changing and there may not be any end to such statutory exercise.

13. In our opinion, a change of opinion per se on the same materials cannot be a ground for reviewing or reconsidering the earlier order refusing to grant sanction. However, in a case where fresh materials have been collected by the investigating agency subsequent to the earlier order and placed before the sanctioning authority and on that basis, the matter is reconsidered by the sanctioning authority and in light of the fresh materials an opinion is formed that sanction to prosecute the public servant may be granted, there may not be any impediment to adopt such a course."

49. The questions which fall for consideration are that;

(i) Whether there was an order passed by the competent authority refusing grant of sanction for prosecution of the petitioner, and such an order was communicated to the C.B.I.?

(ii) Whether the order dated 17th August, 2016 is a second order by the competent authority whereby the sanction for prosecution of the petitioner was accorded and same was based on the same material which was placed before the competent authority earlier?; and

(iii) Whether the order dated 17th August, 2016 granting sanction for prosecution of the petitioner would amount to non application of mind and, therefore, is invalid ?

50. Mr.Nandit Srivastava, learned Senior Advocate has not disputed that except for the order/communication dated 10th February, 2016 there is no order of refusal of sanction by the competent authority for prosecuting the petitioner. The aforesaid communication has been extracted hereinabove. Perusal of the said communication would disclose that it was an internal communication between the Director General of Defence Estate,

Ministry of Defence and Central Vigilance Commission. In pursuance to the said communication neither a separate order was passed/issued by the competent authority nor the same was communicated to the C.B.I. refusing to grant sanction for prosecution of the petitioner. Said communication cannot be construed as order refusing sanction for prosecution of the petitioner.

51. Order dated 17th February, 2016 is the only order which was communicated to the C.B.I. and on the basis of said order cognizance has been taken by the Special Court and process had been issued against the petitioner. The judgment relied on by the learned Senior Advocate in the case of Nishant Sareen (supra) is not applicable to the facts and circumstances of the present case inasmuch as there is only one sanction order and the earlier communication on which the petitioner has heavily relied on is merely a tentative view and a departmental noting and same cannot be held to be an order.

52. Business of the Government is a complicated one and has necessarily to be conducted through the Agency of a large number of officials and authorities. Notings/communications are not the decision unless a final order is drawn up regarding granting or refusing sanction. Internal communication/noting cannot be deemed to be the orders refusing or granting sanction as held in the case of Bachhittar Singh vs State of Punjab & Anr AIR 1963 SC 395.

53. The Supreme Court in the case of Sethi Auto Service Station & Anr vs Delhi Development Authority & Ors: (2009) 1 SCC 180 has held that a noting by an officer is an expression of his viewpoint on the subject. It is no more than an opinion by an officer for internal use and consideration. Internal notings are not meant for outside exposure. Internal notings on communication do not culminate into executable order. Para 14 and 15 of the said judgment which are relevant are extracted hereunder:-

"14. It is trite to state that notings in a departmental file do not have the sanction of law to be an effective order. A noting by an officer is an expression of his viewpoint on the subject. It is no more than an opinion by an officer for internal use and consideration of the other officials of the department and for the benefit of the final decision-making authority. Needless to add that internal notings are not meant for outside exposure. Notings in the file culminate into an executable order, affecting the rights of the parties, only when it reaches the final decision-making authority in the department, gets his approval and the final order is communicated to the person concerned.

15. In Bachhittar Singh v. State of Punjab [AIR 1963 SC 395 : 1962 Supp (3) SCR 713] , a Constitution Bench of this Court had the occasion to consider the effect of an order passed by a Minister on a file, which order was not communicated to the person concerned. Referring to Article 166(1) of the Constitution, the Court held that order of the Minister could not amount to an order by the State Government unless it was expressed in the name of the Rajpramukh, as required by the said article and was then communicated to the party concerned. The Court observed that business of State is a complicated one and has necessarily to be conducted through the agency of a large number of officials and authorities. Before an action is taken by the authority concerned in the name of the Rajpramukh, which formality is a constitutional necessity, nothing done would amount to an order creating rights or casting liabilities to third parties. It is possible, observed the Court, that after expressing one opinion about a particular matter at a particular stage a Minister or the Council of Ministers may express quite a different opinion which may be opposed to the earlier opinion. In such cases, which of the two opinions can be regarded as the "order" of the State Government? It was held that opinion becomes a decision of the Government only when it is communicated to the person concerned."

54. In the case of Vivek Batra vs Union of India & Ors : (2017) 1 SCC 69 wherein it was argued that earlier Finance Minister had referred the matter back to the Central Vigilance Commission for sanction of the prosecution of the petitioner in said case and, therefore, sanction for prosecution stood declined and grant of sanction by the successor Finance Minister would not be a valid sanction for prosecution, held that as no final order refusing sanction was issued, subsequent sanction by the new Finance Minister would not be invalid only for the reason that in administrative notings different authorities had opined differently before the competent authority took the decision in the matter. In the said judgment reliance has been placed in the case of Jasbir Singh Chhabra vs State of Punjab : (2010) 4 SCC 192 and Sethi Auto Service Station (supra).

55. In view of the aforesaid law, the Court is of the firm view that the communication dated 10th February, 2016 is not a final order refusing sanction for prosecution of the petitioner. There is only one order i.e. order dated 17th August, 2016 granting sanction. Communication dated 10th February, 2016 is internal correspondence and not an order, therefore, the petitioner cannot take advantage of the said communication to say that earlier competent authority had refused sanction for prosecution of the petitioner. Order dated 17th August, 2016 is not a second order but is the only order of sanction for prosecution of the petitioner.

56. Even otherwise order of sanctioning prosecution of the petitioner dated 17th August, 2016 would disclose application of mind by the authorities on the facts and material placed before it. When the tentative opinion was formed which is evident from the communication dated 10th February, 2016 at that time opinion of C.F.S.L. report about voice sample, communication between the petitioner and co-accused etc., was not on record. C.B.I. after obtaining C.F.S.L. report has placed the same before the competent authority and the competent authority thereafter issued order dated 17th August, 2016. Therefore, it cannot be said that the order dated 17th August, 2016 has been issued without application of mind or there has been non application of mind as has been submitted by learned Senior Advocate.

57. The petitioner has been delaying the trial proceedings on one pretext or the other. Earlier he has been granted an interim order by this Court vide order dated 8th February, 2018.

58. In view of the aforesaid, this Court does not find any substance in the petition which is hereby dismissed.

59. Interim order, if any, stands vacated.

60. The petitioner is granted time till 21.11.2022 to appear before the trial court and apply for regular bail. In case the petitioner appears and applies for regular bail, his bail application shall be considered expeditiously in accordance with law.

2. Sadhvi Ritumbhara Vs St. of M.P., 1996 SCC OnLine MP 261

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajai Kumar Srivastava-I)

1. Heard Sri Shailendra Singh Rajawat, learned counsel for the applicant, Sri Rajesh Kumar Singh along with Sri Alok Saran, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the entire record.

2. The instant application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed by the applicant for challenging the impugned order dated 09.09.2022 passed by the learned Additional District & Sessions Judge/ Special Judge (POCSO Act), Court No.11, Lakhimpur Kheri rejecting the application submitted by the applicant under Sections 231(2), 207 Cr.P.C. in Special Sessions Trial No.164 of 2019 arising out of Case Crime No.705 of 2018, under Sections 307, 302 I.P.C., Police Station Mohammadi, District Lakhimpur Kheri.

3. Learned counsel for the applicant has submitted that the C.D. regarding alleged information given by the first informant to the Investigating Officer, Ex. SA-2 is not admissible in evidence as no certificate as required by Section 65B(4) of Indian Evidence Act has been furnished.

4. Learned counsel for the applicant has further submitted that the object behind incorporation of Section 207 Cr.P.C. is to enable the accused to defend himself properly and it is achieved only by supplying of vital documents like police report, statements of witnesses during investigation, confession etc. to the accused so that he may have notice of the charge, he is to meet and cross-examining the witnesses.

5. His next submission is that the idea behind supply of copies to the accused is, thus, to put him to a notice of what he has to meet at the inquiry or trial.

6. Learned counsel for the applicant has also submitted that the documents in terms of Sections 207 and 208 Cr.P.C. are supplied to make the accused aware of the materials which are sought to be utilized against him. The object is to enable the accused to defend himself properly.

7. His further submission is that "any other document" mentioned in clause (v) of the Section 207 Cr.P.C. includes electronic document such as C.D./ pen drive etc. which, in the instant case, learned trial court did not supply to the present applicant causing failure of justice to him. The learned Magistrate is duty bound to furnish such document to the applicant under Section 207 Cr.P.C. without any delay.

8. Learned counsel for the applicant has concluded his submission by submitting that the learned trial court below has erred in not supplying copy of C.D. without any just cause, which has caused failure of justice to the applicant. The applicant will not be able to defend himself properly and it would, thus, amount to denial of his right to defend properly.

9. Per contra, learned A.G.A. have vehemently the opposed the prayer by submitting that the learned trial court has rightly refused supply of CD. The accused/ applicant has knowledge of this fact and, therefore, it cannot be said that his right to defend himself properly is defeated in any manner by non-supplying of such electronic document.

10. His further submission is that it is a deliberate move on the part of present applicant to delay the proceeding. Therefore, no interference by this Court in exercise of its jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is required at this stage.

11. Having heard the learned counsel for the applicant, learned A.G.A. for the State and upon perusal of record, it appears that the first information report bearing No.0705 of 2018, under Section 307 I.P.C., Police Station Mohammadi, District Lakhimpur Kheri came to be lodged against the present applicant. The applicant was named in the aforesaid first information report. Upon conclusion of investigation, a charge sheet came to be filed against the the present applicant for the offences under Sections 307 and 302 I.P.C. Thereafter, it appears that an application dated 03.09.2022 came to be moved by the accused/ applicant under Section 231(2) read with Section 207 Cr.P.C. whereby the main prayer of the applicant was to provide him cloned copy of C.D. which, according to statement of Inspector Ram Singh Yadav PW-7, was recorded in the mobile phone by this witness when the injured/ deceased informed him that he was shot by the accused persons. This application came to be rejected vide impugned order dated 09.09.2022 passed by the learned Additional District & Sessions Judge/ Special Judge (POCSO Act), Court No.11, Lakhimpur Kheri, on the ground that the copies of prosecution papers under Section 207 Cr.P.C. came to be supplied to the accused persons on 28.03.2019. This fact finds mentioned in the order sheet dated 28.03.2019. The case pertains to the year 2018 and is old. The C.D. has been kept in a sealed cover and has been exhibited as Ex. Ka-SA2. The learned trial court has refused to give its copy on the ground that If it is cloned, the data may get deleted and may also be tempered with causing disappearance of important evidence. Therefore, the learned trial court rejected the application dated 03.09.2022.

12. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in P. Gopalkrishnan alias Dileep vs. State of Kerala and another reported in (2020) 9 SCC 161 in paras-17, 18, 21, 26, 30, 38 and 47 has held as under:-

"17. On receipt of the police report and the accompanying statements and documents by virtue of Section 207 of the 1973 Code, the Magistrate is then obliged to furnish copies of each of the statements and documents to the accused. Section 207 reads thus:

"207. Supply to the accused of copy of police report and other documents.--In any case where the proceeding has been instituted on a police report, the Magistrate shall without delay furnish to the accused, free of cost, a copy of each of the following--

(i) the police report;

(ii) the first information report recorded under Section 154;

(iii) the statements recorded under sub-section (3) of Section 161 of all persons whom the prosecution proposes to examine as its witnesses, excluding therefrom any part in regard to which a request for such exclusion has been made by the police officer under sub-section (6) of Section 173;

(iv) the confessions and statements, if any, recorded under Section 164;

(v) any other document or relevant extract thereof forwarded to the Magistrate with the police report under sub-section (5) of Section 173:

Provided that the Magistrate may, after perusing any such part of a statement as is referred to in clause (iii) and considering the reasons given by the police officer for the request, direct that a copy of that part of the statement or of such portion thereof as the Magistrate thinks proper, shall be furnished to the accused:

Provided further that if the Magistrate is satisfied that any document referred to in clause (v) is voluminous, he shall, instead of furnishing the accused with a copy thereof, direct that he will only be allowed to inspect it either personally or through pleader in Court."

As regards the statements, the first proviso enables the Magistrate to withhold any part thereof referred to in clause (iii), from the accused on being satisfied with the note and the reasons specified by the investigating officer as predicated in sub-section (6) of Section 173. However, when it comes to furnishing of documents submitted by the investigating officer along with police report, the Magistrate can withhold only such document referred to in clause (v), which in his opinion, is "voluminous". In that case, the accused can be permitted to take inspection of the document concerned either personally or through his pleader in Court. In other words, Section 207 of the 1973 Code does not empower the Magistrate to withhold any "document" submitted by the investigating officer along with the police report except when it is voluminous. A fortiori, it necessarily follows that even if the investigating officer appends his note in respect of any particular document, that will be of no avail as his power is limited to do so only in respect of "statements" referred to in sub-section (6) of Section 173 of the 1973 Code.

18. Be that as it may, the Magistrate's duty under Section 207 at this stage is in the nature of administrative work, whereby he is required to ensure full compliance of the section. We may usefully advert to the dictum in Hardeep Singh v. State of Punjab [Hardeep Singh v. State of Punjab, (2014) 3 SCC 92 : (2014) 2 SCC (Cri) 86] wherein it was held that : (SCC p. 123, para 47)

"47. Since after the filing of the charge-sheet, the court reaches the stage of inquiry and as soon as the court frames the charges, the trial commences, and therefore, the power under Section 319(1) CrPC can be exercised at any time after the charge-sheet is filed and before the pronouncement of judgment, except during the stage of Sections 207/208 CrPC, committal, etc. which is only a pre-trial stage, intended to put the process into motion. This stage cannot be said to be a judicial step in the true sense for it only requires an application of mind rather than a judicial application of mind. At this pre-trial stage, the Magistrate is required to perform acts in the nature of administrative work rather than judicial such as ensuring compliance with Sections 207 and 208 CrPC, and committing the matter if it is exclusively triable by the Sessions Court."

21. Be that as it may, furnishing of documents to the accused under Section 207 of the 1973 Code is a facet of right of the accused to a fair trial enshrined in Article 21 of the Constitution. In Manu Sharma v. State (NCT of Delhi) [Manu Sharma v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2010) 6 SCC 1 : (2010) 2 SCC (Cri) 1385] , this Court expounded thus : (SCC pp. 85-86, paras 218-21)

"218. The liberty of an accused cannot be interfered with except under due process of law. The expression "due process of law" shall deem to include fairness in trial. The court (sic Code) gives a right to the accused to receive all documents and statements as well as to move an application for production of any record or witness in support of his case. This constitutional mandate and statutory rights given to the accused place an implied obligation upon the prosecution (prosecution and the Prosecutor) to make fair disclosure. The concept of fair disclosure would take in its ambit furnishing of a document which the prosecution relies upon whether filed in court or not. That document should essentially be furnished to the accused and even in the cases where during investigation a document is bona fide obtained by the investigating agency and in the opinion of the Prosecutor is relevant and would help in arriving at the truth, that document should also be disclosed to the accused.

219. The role and obligation of the Prosecutor particularly in relation to disclosure cannot be equated under our law to that prevalent under the English system as aforereferred to. But at the same time, the demand for a fair trial cannot be ignored. It may be of different consequences where a document which has been obtained suspiciously, fraudulently or by causing undue advantage to the accused during investigation such document could be denied in the discretion of the Prosecutor to the accused whether the prosecution relies or not upon such documents, however in other cases the obligation to disclose would be more certain. As already noticed the provisions of Section 207 have a material bearing on this subject and make an interesting reading. This provision not only require or mandate that the court without delay and free of cost should furnish to the accused copies of the police report, first information report, statements, confessional statements of the persons recorded under Section 161 whom the prosecution wishes to examine as witnesses, of course, excluding any part of a statement or document as contemplated under Section 173(6) of the Code, any other document or relevant extract thereof which has been submitted to the Magistrate by the police under sub-section (5) of Section 173. In contradistinction to the provisions of Section 173, where the legislature has used the expression 'documents on which the prosecution relies' are not used under Section 207 of the Code. Therefore, the provisions of Section 207 of the Code will have to be given liberal and relevant meaning so as to achieve its object. Not only this, the documents submitted to the Magistrate along with the report under Section 173(5) would deem to include the documents which have to be sent to the Magistrate during the course of investigation as per the requirement of Section 170(2) of the Code.

220. The right of the accused with regard to disclosure of documents is a limited right but is codified and is the very foundation of a fair investigation and trial. On such matters, the accused cannot claim an indefeasible legal right to claim every document of the police file or even the portions which are permitted to be excluded from the documents annexed to the report under Section 173(2) as per orders of the court. But certain rights of the accused flow both from the codified law as well as from equitable concepts of the constitutional jurisdiction, as substantial variation to such procedure would frustrate the very basis of a fair trial. To claim documents within the purview of scope of Sections 207, 243 read with the provisions of Section 173 in its entirety and power of the court under Section 91 of the Code to summon documents signifies and provides precepts which will govern the right of the accused to claim copies of the statement and documents which the prosecution has collected during investigation and upon which they rely.

221. It will be difficult for the court to say that the accused has no right to claim copies of the documents or request the court for production of a document which is part of the general diary subject to satisfying the basic ingredients of law stated therein. A document which has been obtained bona fide and has bearing on the case of the prosecution and in the opinion of the Public Prosecutor, the same should be disclosed to the accused in the interest of justice and fair investigation and trial should be furnished to the accused. Then that document should be disclosed to the accused giving him chance of fair defence, particularly when non-production or disclosure of such a document would affect administration of criminal justice and the defence of the accused prejudicially."

26. It can be safely deduced from the aforementioned expositions that the basis of classifying article as a "document" depends upon the information which is inscribed and not on where it is inscribed. It may be useful to advert to the exposition of this Court holding that tape records of speeches [Tukaram S. Dighole v. Manikrao

Shivaji Kokate, (2010) 4 SCC 329 : (2010) 2 SCC (Civ) 112 : (2010) 2 SCC (Cri) 826] and audio/video cassettes [Ziyauddin Burhanuddin Bukhari v. Brijmohan Ramdass Mehra, (1976) 2 SCC 17] including compact disc [Shamsher Singh Verma v. State of Haryana, (2016) 15 SCC 485 : (2016) 4 SCC (Cri) 683] were "documents" under Section 3 of the 1872 Act, which stand on no different footing than photographs and are held admissible in evidence. It is by now well established that the electronic record produced for the inspection of the court is documentary evidence under Section 3 of the 1872 Act [Anvar P.V. v. P.K. Basheer, (2014) 10 SCC 473 : (2015) 1 SCC (Civ) 27 : (2015) 1 SCC (Cri) 24 : (2015) 1 SCC (L&S) 108] .

30. Having noticed the above definitions, we may now turn to definitions of expressions "document" and "evidence" in Section 3 of the 1872 Act being the interpretation clause. The same reads thus:

"3. Interpretation clause.-- * ***

"Document".--"Document" means any matter expressed or described upon any substance by means of letters, figures or marks, or by more than one of those means, intended to be used, or which may be used, for the purpose of recording that matter.

"Evidence".--"Evidence" means and includes--*

(1) all statements which the court permits or requires to be made before it by witnesses, in relation to matters of fact under inquiry; such statements are called oral evidence;

(2) all documents including electronic records produced for the inspection of the court, such documents are called documentary evidence."

On a bare reading of the definition of "evidence", it clearly takes within its fold documentary evidence to mean and include all documents including electronic records produced for the inspection of the court. Although, we need not dilate on the question of admissibility of the contents of the memory card/pen-drive, the same will have to be answered on the basis of Section 65-B of the 1872 Act. The same reads thus:

"65-B. Admissibility of electronic records.--(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, any information contained in an electronic record which is printed on a paper, stored, recorded or copied in optical or magnetic media produced by a computer (hereinafter referred to as the computer output) shall be deemed to be also a document, if the conditions mentioned in this section are satisfied in relation to the information and computer in question and shall be admissible in any proceedings, without further proof or production of the original, as evidence of any contents of the original or of any fact stated therein of which direct evidence would be admissible.*

(2) The conditions referred to in sub-section (1) in respect of a computer output shall be the following, namely--

(a) the computer output containing the information was produced by the computer during the period over which the computer was used regularly to store or process information for the purposes of any activities regularly carried on over that period by the person having lawful control over the use of the computer;

(b) during the said period, information of the kind contained in the electronic record or of the kind from which the information so contained is derived was regularly fed into the computer in the ordinary course of the said activities;

(c) throughout the material part of the said period, the computer was operating properly or, if not, then in respect of any period in which it was not operating properly or was out of operation during that part of the period, was not such as to affect the electronic record or the accuracy of its contents; and

(d) the information contained in the electronic record reproduces or is derived from such information fed into the computer in the ordinary course of the said activities.

(3) Where over any period, the function of storing or processing information for the purposes of any activities regularly carried on over that period as mentioned in clause (a) of sub-section (2) was regularly performed by computers, whether--

(a) by a combination of computers operating over that period; or

(b) by different computers operating in succession over that period; or

(c) by different combinations of computers operating in succession over that period; or

(d) in any other manner involving the successive operation over that period, in whatever order, of one or more computers and one or more combinations of computers, all the computers used for that purpose during that period shall be treated for the purposes of this section as constituting a single computer; and references in this section to a computer shall be construed accordingly.

(4) In any proceedings where it is desired to give a statement in evidence by virtue of this section, a certificate doing any of the following things, that is to say--

(a) identifying the electronic record containing the statement and describing the manner in which it was produced;

(b) giving such particulars of any device involved in the production of that electronic record as may be appropriate for the purpose of showing that the electronic record was produced by a computer;

(c) dealing with any of the matters to which the conditions mentioned in sub-section (2) relate, and purporting to be signed by a person occupying a responsible official position in relation to the operation of the relevant device or the management of the relevant activities (whichever is appropriate) shall be evidence of any matter stated in the certificate; and for the purposes of this sub-section it shall be sufficient for a matter to be stated to the best of the knowledge and belief of the person stating it

(5) For the purposes of this section-

(a) information shall be taken to be supplied to a computer if it is supplied thereto in any appropriate form and whether it is so supplied directly or (with or without human intervention) by means of any appropriate equipment;

(b) whether in the course of activities carried on by any official, information is supplied with a view to its being stored or processed for the purposes of those activities by a computer operated otherwise than in the course of those activities, that information, if duly supplied to that computer, shall be taken to be supplied to it in the course of those activities;

(c) a computer output shall be taken to have been produced by a computer whether it was produced by it directly or (with or without human intervention) by means of any appropriate equipment.

Explanation.--For the purposes of this section any reference to information being derived from other information shall be a reference to its being derived therefrom by calculation, comparison or any other process."

This provision is reiteration of the legal position that any information contained in an electronic record which is printed on a paper, stored, recorded or copied in optical or magnetic media produced by a computer shall be deemed to be a "document" and shall be admissible in evidence subject to satisfying other requirements of the said provision.

38. It is crystal clear that all documents including "electronic record" produced for the inspection of the court along with the police report and which prosecution proposes to use against the accused must be furnished to the accused as per the mandate of Section 207 of the 1973 Code. The concomitant is that the contents of the memory card/pen-drive must be furnished to the accused, which can be done in the form of cloned copy of the memory card/pen-drive. It is cardinal that a person tried for such a serious offence should be furnished with all the material and evidence in advance, on which the prosecution proposes to rely against him during the trial. Any other view would not only impinge upon the statutory mandate contained in the 1973 Code, but also the right of an accused to a fair trial enshrined in Article 21 of the Constitution of India.

47. We are conscious of the fact that Section 207 of the 1973 Code permits withholding of document(s) by the Magistrate only if it is voluminous and for no other reason. If it is an "electronic record", certainly the ground predicated in the second proviso in Section 207, of being voluminous, ordinarily, cannot be invoked and will be unavailable. We are also conscious of the dictum in Supt. & Remembrancer of Legal Affairs v. Satyen Bhowmick [Supt. & Remembrancer of Legal Affairs v. Satyen Bhowmick, (1981) 2 SCC 109 : 1981 SCC (Cri) 342] , wherein this Court has restated the cardinal principle that the accused is entitled to have copies of the statements and documents accompanying the police report, which the prosecution may use against him during the trial."

13. Adverting to the facts of this case, admittedly, the CD in which alleged statement of injured/ deceased is contained in the form of Ex. SA-2 stands exhibited during the course of evidence. So far as the contention that the said C.D. is not admissible in evidence because no certificate as required by Section 65B(4) of Indian Evidence Act is appended is concerned, the same can be seen and adjudicated by the learned court below itself at appropriate stage.

14. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in para-50 of P. Gopalkrishnan's case (supra), has held as under:-

"50. In conclusion, we hold that the contents of the memory card/pen-drive being electronic record must be regarded as a document. If the prosecution is relying on the same, ordinarily, the accused must be given a cloned copy thereof to enable him/her to present an effective defence during the trial. However, in cases involving issues such as of privacy of the complainant/witness or his/her identity, the Court may be justified in providing only inspection thereof to the accused and his/her lawyer or expert for presenting effective defence during the trial. The court may issue suitable directions to balance the interests of both sides." (emphasis supplied)

15. Therefore, in view of law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in P. Gopalkrishnan's case (supra), it is clear that a C.D. is also an electronic document. Therefore, a copy of the same ought to be supplied to the accused under Section 207 Cr.P.C. The supply of any such electronic document could be denied only in the exceptional case specified in para-50 of P. Gopalkrishnan's case (supra) itself.

16. It appears that the learned trial court has denied the applicant the copy of C.D. on the ground that the process of cloning may lead to deletion of data or may also lead to tempering with the same which is hypothetical and without any basis. Therefore, the same cannot be sustained particularly keeping in view the fact that the object behind incorporation of Section 207 Cr.P.C. is to enable the accused to defend himself properly which is achieved by supplying of vital documents only

17. In Sadhvi Ritumbhara v. State of M.P., 1996 SCC OnLine MP 261, High Court of Madhya Pradesh, while deciding a criminal revision has held that a copy of alleged audio/video cassettes containing alleged objectionable speech is necessary to be given to accused.

18. In view of the aforesaid discussion, the impugned order dated 09.09.2022 passed by the learned Additional District & Sessions Judge/ Special Judge (POCSO Act), Court No.11, Lakhimpur Kheri, insofar as it declines the supply of copy of CD to the applicant is not sustainable and deserves to be quashed to that extent only.

19. Accordingly, the application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. stands allowed to the extent indicated above.

20. The learned trial court is directed to dispose of the application dated 03.09.2022 afresh by passing a reasoned and speaking order in strict accordance with law expeditiously particularly keeping in view the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in P. Gopalkrishnan's case (supra).

2. P.K. Choudhary Vs Commander, 48 BRTF (GREF), (2008) 13 SCC 229

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shree Prakash Singh, J.)

1. Heard Amrendra Nath Tripathi, learned counsel for the applicant, Sri Prabhat Kumar assisted by Sri Vimal Shukla, learned counsel for the opposite party no.2, Sri Aniruddha Kumar Singh, learned A.G.A.-I for the State, and perused the record.

2. Instant application has been filed by the applicant, assailing the order dated 30.6.2016 passed by the Additional District and Sessions Judge, Court No.1, District Balrampur in Criminal Revision No. 36 of 2015. He has further challenged the entire proceeding of Complaint Case No.860 of 2014 pending before the Judicial Magistrate-I, District Balrampur.

3. Factual matrix of the case is that the respondent no.2 had filed an application under Section 156 (3) of the Cr.P.C. before the Judicial Magistrate-I, District Balrampur. The respondent no.2 levelled allegation therein that the applicant executed registered agreement to sale on 27th of September 2013 with respect to Gata No.465 having area 0.202 hectare and Gata No.628 having an area 0.142 hectare situated at Village Mathura, Police Stateion Lalia, District Balrampur. The respondent no.2 has further made allegation that the sale consideration was fixed as Rs.2,40,000/- out of which Rs.2,00,000/- was allegedly given in cash at the time of execution of the said agreement and the remaining amount was allegedly agreed to be paid at the time of execution of the sale deed. The allegation is that after the aforesaid agreement, the said plot was soled out to Ms. Shaheena and Mr. Kamruddin. Further allegation is that when the complainant/revisionist went to the house of the applicant on 10th of April 2014, the applicant, who was sitting with the other accused persons, started abusing and beating her.

4. Vide order dated 22nd of May 2014, the Magistrate treated the aforesaid application as a complaint case and listed it for recording the statement of respondent no.2 under Section 200 of the Cr.P.C. The opposite party no.2 got her statement recorded under Section 200 of the Cr.P.C. Further the statements of other two witnesses were recorded under Section 202 of the Cr.P.C. by the Magistrate.

5. After recording the statement of the complainant as well as the witnesses, the Judicial Magistrate-I, vide his order dated 25th of July 2014, issued process under Section 204 of the Cr.P.C. and summoned the applicant under Sections 323, 504, 506 of the Indian Penal Code. A categorical finding was also recorded by the Magistrate that as per the version of the complaint and the statements made under Sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C., the case is made out only under Sections 323, 504 and 506 I.P.C. and so far as the allegation with regard to breach of the agreement and execution of the sale deed is concerned, the same was a civil dispute and no criminal offence is made out in that regard.

6. Being aggrieved by the summoning order dated 25th of July 2014, the opposite party no.2 filed a criminal revision before the learned Additional District and Sessions Judge, Court No.1, District Balrampur, which was registered as Criminal Revision No.36 of 2015. The revision was time barred as that was instituted about delay of nine months but the revisional court entertained and allowed the revision, vide order dated 30th of June of 2016 without condoning the delay in filing the said revision and remanded the matter back for fresh adjudication by the Magistrate concerned.

7. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that the revisional court has passed the order on 30th of June 2016, in most mechanical manner and, while passing the aforesaid order, no finding was recorded with regard to incorrectness or unlawfulness of the order passed by the Magistrate. He also added that the application submitted by the respondent no.2 under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. which was registered as a complaint case, is an abuse of process of law. He added that no offence is made out against the applicant.

8. Adding his arguments, he submits that in fact the applicant had already instituted a suit being Civil Original Suit No. 297 of 2014 for cancellation of the agreement to sale dated 27.9.2013 before the Civil Judge (Junior Division), Balrampur. The opposite party no.2 had also filed a suit being Civil Original Suit No. 244 of 2014, for cancellation of sale deed executed on 9th of April 2014 in favour of the other accused, namely, Ms. Saheena, before the Civil Judge (Junior Division), Balrampur. Both the suits are still pending consideration.

9. Referring the aforesaid argumetns, he submits that in fact the dispute between the parties is purely of civil nature and prima facie, no offence is made out against the applicant. He further added that Hon'ble Apex Court and the Hon'ble High Courts have held that if the dispute is of civil nature then criminal proceeding is nothing but an abuse of process of law. He submits that since the land in question belongs to the applicant and he had duly executed the sale deed, as such, no question arises with regard to committing cheat or fraud by the applicant and, as such, the finding recorded by the revisional court is perverse and assails illegality.

10. In support of his contentions, learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance on the Judgment of this Court rendered in the case of State of U.P. Vs. Gauri Shanker and others, (1992) 29 ACC 523, and referred paras 10 & 11 of the Judgment, which are being quoted hereunder:-

"10. As pointed out by the Privy Council in Krishna Swami v. Ramaswami, AIR 1917 PC 179, normally the question of limitation affecting the competence of appeal or revision should be determined at the stage of admission. Similarly in Sundarbai v. Collector of Belgaon, AIR 1918 PC 135 it was observed by the Privy Council that where the memorandum of appeal or revision was presented beyond the prescribed limitation, the proper order which a Judge should pass was let the notices go to the respondents. In the present case if the delay has been condoned on the date of admission or presentation, by the Division Bench and the opposite parties raise the objection about the delay, subsequently it is proper that the party may be heard. In case there was no justification for condonation of delay the application be rejected and in that event, even though that veiw appears to be not quite consistent with the settled principles, the order admitting the appeal or revision could be recalled also. But in the present case we are satisfied that the delay has been satisfactorily explained by the State of U.P. and even if on the date of admission delay was condoned without issuing notices, there was no material illegality or irregularity.

11. Matter can be reviewed from another angle. The result of refusing to condone the delay would result in a meritorious matter being thrown out at the very threshold and thereby the cause of justice would be frustrated. As compared to this asssuming the delay is condoned, the maximum that can happen is that a cause would be decided on merits after hearing the parties. In the present revision also by condoning the delay, no injustice was caused to the opposite parties and now when present application was moved, cause for delay has been scrutinised and we are satisfied that it has been correctly condoned. By condoning delay, substantial justice is done. In such matters of considerable Imagnitude, Courts need not be technical. In view of the premises aforesaid we are of the considered opinion that the expression sufficient cause under S. 5 of Limitation Act has to be scrutinised in a justice oriented manner and narrow pedantic approach need not be made. Explanation of each day's delay is not a correct formula in every case. In the present case, delay was explained satisfactorily on behalf of State and it was correctly condoned on the date of admission. Even though better course to be adopted could have been to issue notice to the opposite parties (present applicant) to show cause as to why not the delay be condoned but as the revision was essentially under the Revisionary jurisdiction of the Court which was somewhat similar to inherent jurisdiction which could be exercised even suo motu, even if delay was condoned on the date of admission itself without issuing notices to the opposite parties, we now after hearing opposite parties on the point of condonation of delay are of the view that the delay has correctly been condoned by the Division Bench conseuquently we refrain from recalling the order passed by the Division Bench condoning delay, admitting the revision and issuing process to the opposite parties (present applicant) and accordingly the application moved on behalf of opposite parties to recall the order passed by Division Bench condoning delay, admitting revision and issuing process to the oppoxsite parites is rejected."

11. Learned counsel for the applicant further placed reliance upon the Judgment of the Apex Court rendered in the case of P.K. Choudhary Vs. Commander, 48 BRTF (GREF), (2008) 13 SCC 229 and referred paras 10 and 11 thereof, which are being quoted hereunder:-

"10. The learned Judicial Magistrate did not apply his mind on the said averments. It did not issue any notice upon the appellant to show cause as to why the delay shall not be condoned. Before condoning the delay the appellant was not heard. In State of Maharashtra v. Sharadchandra Vinayak Dongre (1995) 1 SCC 42, this Court held: (SCC p.44, para 5)

" 5. In our view, the High Court was perfectly justified in holding that the delay, if any, for launching the prosecution, could not have been condoned without notice to the respondents and behind their back and without recording any reasons for condonation of the delay. However, having come to that conclusion, it would have been appropriate for the High Court, without going into the merits of the case to have remitted the case to the trial court, with a direction to decide the application for condonation of delay afresh after hearing both sides. The High Court however, did not adopt that course and proceeded further to hold that the trial court could not have taken congnizanc of the offence in view of the application filed by the prosecution seeking permission of the Court to file a "supplementary charge-sheet' on the basis of an "incomplete charge-sheet' and quashed the order of the CJM dated 21.11.1986 on this ground also. This view of the High Court, in the facts and circumstances of the case is patently erroneous."

11. In view of the aforesaid decision, there cannot be any doubt whatsoever that the appellant was entitled to get an opportunity of being heard before the delay could be condoned."

12. Further contention is that the revisional court has erred while passing the order dated 30.6.2016, as the direction has been given to the parties of the revision to appear before the court of Magistrate, meaning thereby the present applicant has also to appear though the Magistrate has still not applied his mind on the fact that whether any case is made out under Section 419, 420, 467, 468, and 471 of the I.P.C.

13. Thus, submissions are that since the order passed by the learned Magistrate issuing summons against the applicant was assailed before the learned revisional court with the delay of about nine months, as such, the revision court was to issue notice to the applicant and the opportunity of hearing should have been afforded to him. He submits that the revisional court neither took care of the delay and latches in filing the revision nor afforded opportunity of hearing to the applicant and, as such, the order of the revisional court assails illegality and infirmity and is liable to be set aside.

14. On the other hand, learned counsel for the State has very vehemently opposed the contention aforesaid and submits that in fact the applicant cannot be said to be prospective accused as the order dated 25th July 2014 passed by the learned Magistrate has been set aside by the Additional Sessions Judge in Revision No.36 of 2015, vide order dated 30th June 2016. He further submitted that since no process is in existence against the present applicant, as such, he is not a prospective accused and, in such view of the matter, the applicant has no locus to assail, the order passed by the revisional court.

15. Sri Prabhat Kumar, learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2 has controverted the contention of the counsel for the applicant and submitted that it is wrong to say that the opposite party no.2 while filing the revision did not file the application for condonation of delay under Section 5 of the Limitation Act 1963. In support of his contention, he has drawn attention of this Court towards the counter affidavit dated 15th July 2021 and has referred page 7, i.e., the application for condonation of delay appended with the counter affidavit. He further added that the applicant had taken the plea before the learned Magistrate as well as the revisional court regarding the nature of the dispute but both the courts have rejected the same on the ground that the civil and criminal proceedings may run simulataneously if there are allegations disclosing the commencement of congnizable offence.

16. Adding his argument, he has submitted that under the revisional jurisdiction suo motu cognizance can be taken by the revisional court and, as such, the issue with regard to the limitation will not attract in this matter. In the instant matter, there is a prima facie case made out against the applicant under Sections 419, 420, 467, 468, 471 of the I.P.C.

17. He further submits that in the aforesaid circumstance, as per the settled proposition of law, the issue of limitation would not attract in this matter. Furthermore, the respondent had submitted the application for condonation of delay along with the revision before the revisional court and, as such, there is no illegality or infirmity in the order passed by the revisional court.

18. In rejoinder to the arguements, learned counsel appearing for the applicant submits that in fact the summon was issued, vide order dated 25th of July 2014 and as soon as the summon was issued, the applicant's case comes under the purview of prospective accused. He further added that the revisional court has recorded finding which is against the applicant. He submits that revisional court did not consider the fact that the civil suits are pending between the parties and further the land in question, which was transferrred through a registered sale deed, is of the present applicant. As such, there can be no charge with regard to cheat or forgery. The order of the revisional court indicates that as if the applicant is also to be prosecuted under Section 420, 467, 468, 471 and 406 of I.P.C. He submits that, in such view of the matter, the applicant is required to be heard before the revisional court and the order passed by the revisional court is required to be tested on the pretext of its illegality and perversity.

19. I have considered the rival submissions made by learned counsel for the parties and have also gone through the records available before this Court. The issue, which emerges for consideration before this Court, is that while exercising power under Chapter XXX of Cr.P.C., can the revisional Court proceed without condoning the delay of such revision and further without reducing the reasons in writing?

20. As per provision 131 of the Schedule of Limitation Act, 1963, the period of ninety days is the limitation for filing of any revision under the Criminal Procedure Code wherein the decree or order or sentence is sought to be revised. The point 131 of the Schedule of Limitation Act 1963 is quoted hereinunder:-

Description of applications	Period of Limitation	Time from which period begins to run

131.	To any court for the exercise of its powers of revision under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908), or the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898 (5 of 1898).	Ninety days	The date of the decree or order or sentence sought to be revised.

21. From bare perusal of aforequoted provision, it is evident that for filing revision, there is 90 days' limitation period from the date of decree or order or sentence, which is sought to be revised. This Court is of the considered view that there is no deeming provision for condonation of delay and delay could be condoned only when it is pleaded and prayed by the person concerned or the court taking cognizance of the relevant provision of Limitation Act 1963, decides the issue.

22. So far as the contention of the learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 with respect to the fact that since the revisional court can exercise the revisional power suo motu and, therefore, in such conditions, the application for condonation of delay or condoning the delay is not mandatory provision. When this Court examined this contention, it is evident that suo motu cognizance does not mean that the court is at liberty to ignore the statutory provision and settled proposition of law. It is well settled law that if a statute provides a specific mode or action of law, the same has to be followed in the manner prescribed.

23. This Court is also not unmindful that the criminal law is strict law and, there are far-reaching and serious consequences of the same. This Court finds that there is specific provision with respect to limitation for filing of revision against decree or order or sentence and, thus, the same cannot be overlooked while entertaining any revision or passing any order thereon. So far as revision is concerned, prior to deciding the issue of delay and laches, the issuance of notice may not be a compulsory requirement.

24. In the instant matter with respect to the application for condonation of delay in filing the revision, it is an admitted fact that there was delay of nine months but there is no single whisper in all over the finding or order passed by the revisional court, which is impugned with this application.

25. When this Court further examined the revisional order dated 30.6.2016, it is overt that learned revisional court while remitting back the matter, has erroneously directed the applicant to appear before the court of Magistrate though the order passed by the Magistrate dated 25.7.2014 was set aside. After setting aside the order dated 25.7.2014, the present applicant is neither accused nor prospective accused and, as such, he could not have directed to appear before the Magistrate unless any process is issued and, thus, this Court is of considered opinion that the order dated 30.6.2016 passed by the revisional court is erroneous, unlawful and against the settled proposition of law.

26. In view of the aforesaid submissions and discussions, the order dted

30th June 2016 passed by the Additional District and Sessions Judge is hereby set aside. The matter is remitted back to the revisional court for hearing the matter afresh, in the light of the observations made hereinabove.

27. Instant application is allowed accordingly.

4. Sharad Birdhi Chand Sarda Vs St.of Mah. (1984) 4 SCC 116

(Delivered by Hon'ble Syed Waiz Mian, J.)

1. By means of this Government Appeal, on behalf of the State, challenge has been made to the validity and legality of judgment and order of acquittal dated 11.11.2020, having been passed by the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court, Bareilly, in connection with Session trial No. 275 of 2017, State vs. Nanhe Lal and another, arising out of Case Crime No. 89 of 2017, under Sections-302, 376, 394 and 411 I.P.C., Police Station-Bhamora, District-Bareilly.

2. Heard Shri Vikas Goswami learned A.G.A. and perused the record.

3. Brief facts emerge from the the First Information Report are that the complainant presented a written complaint at the concerned police Station, stating therein that he had solemnized marriage of his daughter with one Morpal and thereafter, on the occasion of festival of Holi she was present at her parental house on 15.03.2017; she went to the house of accused respondent to watch television but she did not return till the evening; search was made but she could not be traced out; on 16.03.2017, at about 7 a.m. dead body of daughter of informant was found in a wheat field near river.

4. On presentation of the application of complainant/informant a criminal case being Case Crime No. 89 of 2017, under Sections-302, 376, 394, and 411 I.P.C. Police StationBhamaura, District-Bareilly, came to be registered against one Nanhe Lal and his wife Smt. Nisha Devi.

5. Upon investigation, statements of informant, constable and another were recorded on 17.03.2017. In charge, Sub Inspector Ajab Singh, with police team, was patrolling in search of the accused. On reaching Devchara, they got information from the police informer that accused, who had killed the deceased, are standing at Devchara square; believing the information, I.O. Ajab Singh, along with his police team, reached at the place where accused persons were standing; upon inquiry one told his name as Nand Lal and another Nisha Devi, R/o Village Sirohi, Police StationBhamaura, District-Bareilly; they told that a criminal case, against them, is registered, at the police station. With regard to the occurrence it was apprised by the informant that his daughter went to watch T.V. at their house; accused admitted that Sunita d/o Veerpal, who lives in their neighbour, had come to their house to watch T.V.; she was wearing golden earrings (kundals) in her ears and one locket on her neck; they out of greed, murdered the deceased by strangulation by her Dupatta and snatched jewellery from her and kept them in the Almirah placed in the room; they had thrown her dead body in the wheat field on 15.03.2017 at around 12 at night; to save them, they offered the Investigating Officer and Police Team that they can get recovered the jewellery wore by the deceased; Investigating Officer and police team were brought by both the accused to their house and they opened the room in their house and the Almirah and the jewellery was got recovered from there; the recovered articles were identified by the Rajendra and Rajdulari and these articles were sealed on the spot, in the presence of the accused as well as witnesses; memo of recovery of articles was written and it was signed by all the witnesses, accused, investigating Officer and police constable etc, accompanying the investigating officer.

6. Inquest of the dead body of the deceased was conducted by the Sub Inspector, in the presence of Panchan and he prepared an inquest report, Exhibit-Ka-3, to ascertain the real cause of death of the deceased, dead body along with necessary papers were forwarded for conducting the autopsy on the dead body to District Mortuary, wherein, autopsy was conducted, and an autopsy report, Exhibit-Ka-9 by the Doctor was prepared. In this autopsy report the details have been recorded and the cause of death of the deceased has been opined as Asphyxia due to strangulation.

7. During investigation, the investigating officer has recorded the statements of rest of witnesses and accused under Section 161 Cr.P.C.; during investigation clothes wore by the deceased and her other belongings were also taken so that scientific examination can be done and the same were forwarded to Joint Director Forensic Scientific Laboratory, Moradabad, and the office of Joint Director, Forensic Science Laboratory, has sent examination report dated 17.06.2017 (Exhibit-Ka-17) to C.O. Aonla (Bareilly) which is on record.

8. On the strength of incriminating evidence collected by the Investigating Officer, the investigating officer forwarded a police report for offences punishable under Sections 302, 376, 394 and 411 I.P.C. against the accused Nanhe Lal and Nisha Devi to the Court concerned.

9. Learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bareilly, upon taking cognizance in exercise of powers enshrined under Sections-190 (1) Cr.P.C. has found ample evidence under aforementioned offences against both accused and thus took cognizance and summoned the accused. After completing the formalities, the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, vide order dated 11.08.2017 committed the criminal case which came to be registered as criminal case No. 275 of 2017 to the Court of District District and Sessions Judge, Bareilly, for necessary action.

10. In the Court of District and Sessions Judge, the said case was registered as S.T. No. 275 of 2017, which was transferred to Additional Sessions Judge, Fast Tack Court, and vide order dated 21.09.2017, charges for offences under Sections 302/34, 376, 394 and 411 I.P.C. against both the accused were framed the charges for offences under Sections 302/34, 376, 394 and 411 I.P.C. against both the accused, they denied the charges and claimed trial, hence their trial commenced.

11. In order to prove charges against the respondents, under above sections of I.P.C. the witnesses P.W.-1 Veerpal, informant who approved his written First Information Report, P.W.-2 Rajdulari, P.W.-3 Rajendra, inquest report, as exhibit Ka1-2, P.W.-5, Tejpal, also proved inquest report and also identified his signature thereon and P.W.6 Yaduveer Singh, who proved First Information Report Chik as Exhibit Ka-4 and G.D. Exhibit Ka-Kha-Ka 5, respectively, were examined

12. Thereafter, accused admitted the genuineness of prosecution papers, however, vide Court order dated 11.09.2020 C.W. 1, Sub Inspector-Ajab Singh, was summoned, who proved site plan of place of occurrence and memo of recovery of articles as Exhibit Ka-7, Exhibit-Ka-8, inquest report Exhibit-Ka 3, Foresnsic Science Laboratory report, Exhibit Ka-17, two gold earrings as material ExhibitKa-1, locket as material, Exhibit-Ka 2. Further, the accused also admitted the genuineness of the police report and other police papers as Exhibit Ka-6, to Exhibit Ka-16.

13. After closure of evidence, on behalf of the prosecution, statements of accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. were recorded.

14. Accused Nanhe Lal and Smt. Nisha Devi stated that the evidence of P.W.-1, and recovery memo and evidence of P.W.-4, P.W. 5 are false. They further stated that the recovered articles and other belongings of the deceased were planted on account of enmity of political rivalry and they have been falsely implicated in this case and they declined to adduce any evidence in their defence.

15. Learned Additional Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court, Bareilly, vide judgment and order dated 11.11.2020 did not find sufficient evidence against the accused and extended the benefit of doubt to the accused and accordingly, acquitted them from the charges under aforementioned offences.

16. Feeling aggrieved by the judgment and order dated 11.11.2020, rendered by learned Additional Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court, Bareilly, instant Government Appeal on behalf of the State of U.P. has been preferred challenging the impugned judgment and order on the grounds that the accused respondents have committed offences of murder, rape and robbery and also stated that the robbed gold articles were recovered at the instance of accused from the Almirah kept in the room of their house and the same were handed over to the Investigating Officer and police personnel in the presence of the witnesses; learned lower Court has not properly appreciated the evidence on record and the impugned judgment and order is based on conjuncture and surmises; the trial Court despite cogent and clinching evidence against the accused has committed gross illegality and perversity by acquitting the accused, thus, the impugned judgment and order is erroneous in the eyes of law and not sustainable, therefore, it is urged that the impugned judgment and order dated 11.11.2020 be set aside and respondent/accused convicted and sentenced in accordance with law.

Analysis

17. P.W.-1 Veerpal, in his examination in chief recorded on 09.11.2017 has stated that his daughter was married to one Morpal and she had come to his house to celebrate the festival of Holi; she had gone to the house of his neighbour Nanhe Lal at about 1.00 p.m. to watch T.V. but till evening she did not return, whereupon, he searched her daughter but she could not be traced out; on the following day at about 7 O clock, her dead body was found in the wheat field near canal which flows in the western side of the village. Under suspicion, that his neighbour Nanhe Lal and his wife had murdered her daughter, he presented a written First Information Report at the concerned police station.

18. P.W.-1, Veerpal states that he has not found jewellery, which was wore by the deceased, on her dead body. In his remaining examination in chief, P.W.-1 Veerpal, was recorded before the learned Court below on 17.04.2019, wherein, he had stated that the recovered jewellery articles were not before him.

19. P.W.-1, Veerpal, in his cross examination which was on 09.11.2017 has deposed that house of the accused is opposite to his house and they enjoy good relation with them; they also exchange visits to their houses; he has not seen her daughter to have gone to house of Nanhe Lal to watch Television. On his dictation one Raj Kumar had written his First Information Report and Partibandi prior to the alleged incident was existing between Nanhe Lal and Rajkumar.

20. P.W.-1 Veerpal, next states that scribe Rajkumar is a home guard, and was posted in Police Station-Bhamora; Rajkumar, had said to him that he will write his First Information Report; he, does not know as to what is written in the First Information Report; in the First Information Report he did not read that the murder of his daughter had taken place in his presence; he had not told Rajkumar to nominate accused Nanhe Lal and Smt. Nisha Devi; accused cannot murder his daughter; his previous statement in the Court was given due to fear of police and the statement he is giving today is true because it is not the result of any fear.

21. P.W.-1-Veerpal, who has got the First Information Report written by Rajkumar has not mentioned in the First Information Report that his daughter, in his presence on 15.03.2017 at around 1 p.m., had gone from his house, to watch television, to the house of accused Nanhe Lal; he has also not stated in his examination in chief that his daughter had gone to the house of the accused in his presence and in this connection he has specifically deposed that he merely on the basis of suspicion had named both the accused in the First Information Report; he in his cross examination has categorically denied the involvement/ complicity of both the accused in the murder of his daughter and he has deposed that accused are friendly to him and enjoys good relations with them. He has said that he can not even imagine that accused can kill his daughter. P.W.-1 Veerpal has also admitted that out of enmity existing between Raj Kumar and accused Nanhe Lal, prior to alleged incident, Rajkumar at his own has noted the name of both accused. P.W.-1 Veerpal has not cast doubt upon accused about their complicity in the alleged incident.

22. P.W.-1 Veerpal, in his entire testimony has not deposed to have seen the commission of the incident.

23. P.W.-2, Rajdulari, who is wife of P.W.-1, Veerpal and mother of the deceased states in her examination in chief that she has not seen her daughter going to the house of accused to watch Television; they had tried to search and trace out their daughter as she had not returned to their house till evening; on the following day her dead body was found in the wheat field. She also has candidly denied in her deposition that accused had killed her daughter by strangulation.

24. P.W.-2 Rajdulari, on being declared hostile was on the request of the prosecution put to cross examination, wherein, she has specifically denied that her daughter had gone to the house of accused to watch Television; however, she admits that she had not seen her daughter while she had gone out of their house; she also expresses her ignorance as to who had called her daughter but she unequivocally deposes that accused had not called her daughter.

25. P.W.-5 Rajendra, also feigns ignorance in his statement by saying daughter of his brother Veerpal had gone to the house of the accused to watch Television because on that date, he was out of the village and when he had returned on the next day he had came to know about the dead body of victim was lying in the wheat field. He also deposes that it is true that his brother on the basis of suspicion has registered the case against both accused.

26. P.W.-4 Rajkumar in his examination in chief has also stated that his house is situated at a distance from the house of Veerpal; On 16.08.2017 dead body of the deceased was found in the wheat filed.

27. Like P.W.-3 Rajendra, P.W.-4-Rajkumar, as well has turned hostile and they were also cross examined on behalf of the prosecution but in their cross examination too, they have not supported the prosecution story against the accused.

28. P.W.-1-Veerpal, in his examination in chief, has deposed that on the pointing out of the Nanhe Lal and Smt. Nisha Devi, earrings (Kundal), which the deceased had wore on the date of occurrence and one locket was also recovered from the Almirah in the room of their house in the presence of Rajendra and his wife Rajdulari and in this respect both accused had confessed to have called his daughter and they had also confessed that they had got recovered the articles they had snatched from the deceased Daroga Ji had prepared a memo of recovery, which was not only witnessed by him but other police personnel accompanied Daroga Ji were also present.

29. P.W.-1 Veerpal, had also stated that the memo of recovery, paper No. 6Ka/A was prepared in his presence and after being readover he had signed the said paper. He also next states that the recovered jewellery was also taken by Daroga Ji, in his possession and the same was sealed at the place of recovery.

30. Due to paucity of time complete statement of P.W.-1 Veerpal could have not been recorded on 09.11.2017, therefore, for remaining statement he was again examined on 17.04.2019 and in his cross examination he contradicted his aforementioned statement given in his examination in chief by saying that on the pointing out of accused Nanhe Lal and Smt. Nisha Devi no recovery of jewellery, belongings of his daughter, was made in his presence; nor Daroga Ji had prepared recovery memo in his, or his wife, or in presence of his brother; Daroga Ji had taken their signatures and thumb impression on a plain paper.

31. He also denies that the recovered articles were sealed in his presence. He also expresses his ignorance as to how the memo of recovery came to be written, as such, P.W.-1, Veerpal, with regard to alleged recovery of jewellery and, belongings of the deceased, has given contradictory and inconsistent statement.

32. P.W.-2 Rajdulari, P.W.-3 Rajendra and P.W.-4 Rajkumar, have also made somersault over their statements stated to have been recorded by the Investigating Officer, during investigation and have stated that Daroga Ji, during investigation, did not record their statements and no recovery of jewellery etc. was made in their presence by Daroga ji, on the pointing out of the accused. These witnesses have also claimed in their ocular evidence that their signatures/ thumb impression were having been taken by Daroga Ji on a plain paper and they also deny the memo of recovery to have been written in their presence by Daroga Ji.

33. It transpires from the analysis and scrutiny of the ocular evidence of P.W.-1 to P.W.-5 that none of them have admitted to have seen the deceased, to have gone in their presence, to the house of accused to watch T.V. and have also denied that the deceased was strangulated or killed by the accused. All witnesses of facts have also categorically denied the complicity of the accused in alleged incident.

34. All the witnesses have also admitted in their ocular evidence that they are on good terms with accused.

35. Hon'ble Apex Court has observed consistently that in a criminal case based on the strength of circumstantial evidence, chain of circumstances must be complete and on completion of such chain only one conclusion can be drawn that it is only the accused who had committed the crime.

36. In Suraj Singh vs. State of U.P., reported in 2008 (11) SCR 286 the Hon'ble Apex Court has held as follows:

"The evidence must be tested for its inherent consistency and the inherent probability of the story; consistency with the account of other witnesses held to be creditworthy; consistency with the undisputed facts, the "credit" of the witnesses; their performance in the witness box; their power of observation etc. Then the probative value of such evidence becomes eligible to be put into the scales for a cumulative evaluation."

37. In C. Magesh & Ors.v/s State of Karnataka, Criminal Appeal Nos. 1028-1029 OF 2008, decided On 30 April 2010, the Apex Court has held as under:

"In a criminal trial, evidence of the eye witness requires a careful assessment and must be evaluated for its creditability. Since the fundamental aspect of criminal jurisprudence rests upon the stated principle that "no man is guilty until proven so", hence utmost caution is required to be exercised in dealing with situations where there are multiple testimonies and equally large number of witnesses testifying before the court. There must be a string that should join the evidence of all the witnesses and thereby satisfying the test of consistency in evidence amongst all the witnesses."

38. Section 27 of the Evidence Act laws down as follows:

"When any fact is deposed to as discovered in consequence of information received from a person accused of any offence, in the custody of police officer, so much of such information, whether it amounts to a confession or not, as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered, may be proved."

39. Hon'ble Apex Court in Silash Singh Kurid vs. The State, reported in 2018 Cr.L.J. 3944 had held that;

"Where no eye witness is available in a murder case and the case is only based on circumstantial evidence, recovery of weapon and evidence on the basis of disclosure of the accused alone would not automatically lead the conclusion that offence was also committed by the accused. Ho'ble Supreme Court further held that in fact burden lies on the prosecution to establish close link between the discovery of the material objects and its use in the commission of offence and what is admissible under Section 27 of the Evidence Act is the information leading to discovery and not any opinion formed on it by the prosecution."

40. Present case rests upon the circumstantial evidence. In the case of Sharad Birdhi Chand Sarda vs. State of Maharasthra (1984) 4 SCC 116, in paragrah 153, Hon'ble Apex Court has laid down five golden principles (Panchsheel). Para 153 is reproduced as follows:

"A close analysis of this decision would show that the following conditions must be fulfilled before a case against an accused can be said to be fully established:

(1) the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should be fully established.

It may be noted here that this Court indicated that the circumstances concerned 'must or should' and not 'may be' established. There is not only a grammatical but a legal distinction between 'may be proved' and 'must be or should be proved' as was held by this Court in Shivaji Sahabrao Bobade & Anr. v. State of Maharashtra where the following observations were made:

"Certainly, it is a primary principle that the accused must be and not merely may be guilty before a court can convict and the mental distance between 'may be' and 'must be' is long and divides vague conjectures from sure conclusions."

(2) The facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused, that is to say. they should not be explainable on any other hypothesis except that the accused is guilty.

(3) the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency.

(4) they should exclude every possible hypothesis except the one to be proved, and

(5) there must be a chain of evidence so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability the act must have been done by the accused."

41. C.W.-1, Ajab Singh, Investigating Officer, deposed in support of the memo of recovery but that does not find corroboration from any witness of fact, on the contrary P.W-1 to P.W.-4 have categorically denied the alleged recovery of belonging of the deceased from the Alimarh in the room of the house of the accused. They have also deposed that their signatures, thumb impression were taken by Daroga Ji on plain paper, therefore, it is not safe and expedient in the interest of justice to place reliance upon the testimony of C.W.-1 to the extent that conviction of the accused for offences under afore stated sections could be held.

42. P.W.-1 to P.W.-4, in their cross examinations have said that it would be wrong to suggest that they are not supporting the prosecution case on account of any compromise having been arrived at between them and accused.

43. P.W.-6, H.M. 474 Yaduvir Singh, has proved First Information Report Chik and copy of GD as Exhibit Ka-4 and Ka-5 thus only the First Information Report Chik and G.D. stand proved, however, the deposition of this witness does not help to prove charges against the accused.

44. This case rests on circumstantial evidence; no witness has come forward to depose that she or he had seen the deceased going to the house of the accused-respondent to watch Television. Even P.W.-1, Veerpal, on whose instance First Information Report came to be lodged and crime was investigated has turned hostile and he has not supported the allegations in this respect contained in his written First Information Report. P.W.-2 Rajdulari w/o P.W.-1 has also turned hostile. It has also emerged from the above discussion that independent witnesses have also turned hostile and these witnesses in their cross examination have not stated any thing which may support the prosecution story. Even the witnesses, stated to have seen the alleged recovery of jewellery, said to have been worn by the deceased have not supported the prosecution story. However, the recovery memo, prepared by the Investigating Officer who stated that the alleged recovery was made, at the instance of the accused, from the Almirah in a room owned by accused. P.W.-1 is an interested witness of fact, has not supported his evidence, declared hostile, therefore, alleged recovery of articles from the Almirah of the accused is also not proved.

45. In the light of foregoing discussion, we are of the opinion that learned trial Court has held and recorded the findings on considering each and every aspect of the case, both factual, as well as, legal. In this case, there is no worthy evidence which may connect the accused with the commission of crime except the testimony of CW-1 Ajab Sigh, I.O., thus, we find that the impugned judgment and order dated 11.11.2020, passed by the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court, Bareilly, in connection with Session trial No. 275 of 2017, is not erroneous or perverse and we also find that the same is sustainable in the eyes of law.

46. Accordingly, the judgment and order dated 11.11.2020, passed by the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court, Bareilly, in Session trial No. 275 of 2017, State vs. Nanhe Lal and another, arising out of Case Crime No. 89 of 2017, under Sections-302, 376, 394 and 411 I.P.C., Police Station-Bhamora, District-Bareilly is affirmed and upheld.

47. In the result the instant appeal is dismissed.

48. Registry to return the record to the Court below along with this order.

Counsel for the Appellant:
G.A.

Counsel for the Respondent:

Criminal Law - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Sections 342 & 376 - Protection of Children From Sexual Offences Act, 2012 - Sections 3 & 4 - Government Appeal, against the order of acquittal - First Information Report, under Sections 342 & 376 I.P.C. - Sections 3 & 4 POCSO Act - PW -2 victim, in her cross examination, stated that she has given her statement under the pressure of her uncle Bhole, who is younger brother of her father, as she had apprehension if she did not give that statement she would be subjected to harassment - Her uncle had also exerted pressure upon her father also - P.W.4-Dr.Isha Soni, deposed in her cross examination that victim on one hand was saying that rape was committed upon her but on the other hand she was contradicting herself by saying that no rape was committed upon her - victim's Hymen was also found intact - accused/respondent stated in his statement u/s 313 Cr.P.C. that prior to alleged incident dispute with regard to payment was existing and thus he has been falsely implicated in this case - doubt is created regarding the authenticity of the prosecution case against the accused/respondent - no worthy evidence on record to prove the charges against the accused - learned trial Court rightly appreciated the facts and circumstances of the case, no illegality or material irregularity in the impugned judgment and order and the same is sustainable in eyes of law as it does not suffers from perversity. (Para 36, 37, 38, 39)

Dismissed. (E-5)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Syed Waiz Mian, J.)

1. By means of this Criminal Misc. Leave Application, on behalf of the State, leave for filing Government Appeal, against the impugned judgment and order of acquittal of accused/respondent Firoz, dated 06.05.2019, passed by the Special Court (POCSO Act, 2012)/ VIIIth Additional Sessions Judge, Meerut, arising out of Criminal Case No. 498 of 2016, State vs. Firoz, is being sought.

2. Heard Shri Om Prakash Mishra, Learned A.G.A. for the State.

3. In brief, the prosecution story is that informant, Rajendra, informed that 3-4 days earlier his wife had gone to Sisauli. His three children, were present in his house; on 12.10.2016, her daughter Sangeeta, aged about 17 years, at about 10 p.m. had gone to drink water at the tap installed out side his house; all of a sudden accused/ respondent, having knife in his hand, came behind her and trapped her mouth and brought her in vacant room of his house, where he committed rape upon her; she informed the informant telephonically; when he come back, she narrated the entire story to him, whereafter he lodged an First Information Report, registered as Case Crime No. 267 of 2016, under Sections-342, 376 I.P.C. and Section ¾ of Protection of Children From Sexual Offences Act, 2012, at Police Station-Rohta, District-Meerut.

4. Upon entrustment, the investigating officer took over charge of the investigation and recorded the statements of the informant, accused, and of victim under Section 161; statement of victim was also got recorded under Section 164 Cr.P.C.; he also prepared site plan of the alleged place of occurrence; during investigation, the victim was put to medical examination, not only to ascertain her age but also to ascertain any mark of injury on her person and status of alleged rape.

5. Upon collecting the incriminating evidence against the accused/respondent, for offences under Sections 342, 376 I.P.C. and Section ¾ of Protection of Children From Sexual Offences Act, 2012, Investigating Officer forwarded the charge sheet under Section 173 (2) Cr.P.C. to the Court concerned. Upon receiving the charge sheet and other material, learned Court below in exercise of powers enshrined under Section 190 (2) Cr.P.C., took cognizance of the aforestated offences against the accused/respondent and accordingly summoned him.

6. Learned trial Court vide order dated 15.01.2018 charged the accused and the same were explained and read over to him; he denied the charges and claimed trial.

7. Prosecution to prove it's case, examined informant-P.W.-1 Rajendra, P.W.-2 victim-Sangeeta, P.W.3-Smt. Nirmala w/o Rajendra, P.W.-4-Dr. Isha Soni, P.W.-5 Dr. Sangeeta, P.W.6-Head Constable Police-Deepa Sharma, P.W.-7 Bhole, victim's uncle and P.W.8-investigating officer, Sub Inspector-Rajendra Singh.

8. Statements under Section 313 of Cr.P.C. of accused/respondent was also recorded. He in his statement said that the evidence of P.W.-1, P.W.-4, was false and statement of P.W.-3 victim was given under the pressure of her uncle Bhole and the victim told about the occurrence to Doctor was also under the pressure of her uncle. He has also said that he has been falsely implicated in this case upon pressure exerted by Bhole because prior to the present case a dispute regarding transaction of money was existing between him and Bhole and due to pre-existing enmity he has been falsely implicated in this case by Rajendra, brother of Bhole. He claims that he is innocent and he denied his complicity in the crime; he declined to adduce evidence in his defence.

9. Upon hearing the submissions on behalf of the parties, and scanning the records, learned trial Court found that the prosecution has failed to prove the charges under Section 342, 376 and ¾ of Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act, thus, trial Court did not find the accused guilty under the aforesaid sections and consequently, acquitted him.

10. On behalf of the State, leave to file Government Appeal, under Section 308 (3) Cr.P.C. is being sought on the ground that the learned trial Court has not properly appreciated the evidence adduced by the prosecution and merely on the strength of conjectures and surmises and also on basis of minor contradictions Court has recorded finding of acquittal of the accused, whereas, there is clinching evidence specifically of P.W.-7 Bhole, on record but the same has not been relied upon.

11. Learned Court below has not made proper appraisal of evidence on record and by acquitting the accused from charges under aforementioned sections, learned trial Court has grossly erred in law and hence the impugned judgment and order is not sustainable and the same deserves to be set aside by this Court and accordingly, the leave to file Government Appeal against the impugned judgment and order be granted.

12. Heard learned A.G.A. at length and perused the record.

13. At the time of alleged commission of occurrence of incident, P.W.-1 Rajendra, P.W.-7-Bhole and P.W.-3 Smt. Nirmala, were not present and in the First Information Report it is averred that at the time of instant occurrence, wife of the informant Rajendra, was staying at Sisauli, at the house of her sister. It is also not alleged in the First Information Report that the informant himself was present at his house; he has simply averred in the application Exhibit-Ka-1, that at the time of the alleged occurrence his three sons and two daughters, were present at his house. It is also alleged in the First Information Report that his daughter/ victim had apprised him about the incident telephonically, thus, the First Information Report, Exhibit-Ka-1, is based on the information allegedly, given by his daughter upon returning to his home. First Information Report, as well as, the statements of the P.W.-1- Rajendra, P.W.-3 Nirmala and P.W.-7 Bhole, who happens to be uncle of the victim are indirect evidence under the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act, need to be corroborated from the direct evidence. Direct evidence is the best evidence and obviously such evidence can form the basis of conviction of the accused, because, under law number of witnesses to prove the charge is not essential, therefore, at the outset, it is necessary to consider the deposition of victim-P.W.-2.

14. P.W.-2 victim, during investigation, has got recorded her statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. by Rima Chauhan, Sub Inspector and under Section 164 Cr.P.C. was recorded by the Magistrate concerned.

15. P.W.-5, Dr. Sangeeta Gupta, is said to have conducted the medical examination, prepared the medical report of victim and also recorded the statement of the victim during her medical examination. In the statement she has stated that on 13.10.2016 she was posted as Senior Consultant in the District Women Hospital and on that date victim was brought by the lady constable for her medical examination in connection with the present case; the victim had told her that she is 17 years old and she has done medical examination of the victim with the consent of the victim as well as his uncle Bhole.

16. P.W.-5, Dr. Sangeeta Gupta, further states that at the time of medical examination she had recorded the statement of the victim to the effect that the victim had told her that on 12.10.2016, at around 10 to 10:30 p.m. Firoz had not committed the incident with her; therefore no internal or external mark of injury was found on her person; she had changed her clothes; there was cut mark on her middle finger.

17. P.W.-5-Dr. Sangeeta Gupta, in her cross examination has admitted that the victim in her statement has not told her that Firoz has committed rape upon her.

18. It is recorded by P.W.-5-Dr. Sangeeta Gupta, in the statement of the victim that she at 10 p.m. went to drink water from the tap installed out side of her house; all of sudden, Firoz came from behind and trapped her mouth and brought her in the vacant room of his house and attempted to rape her; accused from his one hand was searching something in the Almirah; she got the opportunity and rescued herself and rushed back to her house.

19. In the aforesaid statement of the victim, said to have been recorded by P.W.-5, Dr. Sangeeta Gupta, it is not noted that at the time of alleged incident the accused was brandishing knife in his hand. P.W.-5 Dr. Sangeeta Gupta, has also admitted in her cross examination that with regard to alleged rape, victim did not tell her that accused had committed rape upon her.

20. P.W.-5, Dr. Sangeeta Gupta has also deposed that no sign of force being applied was found at the time of medical examination of the victim, however, she has opined that in such a scenario the sexual violence cannot be ruled out.

21. P.W.-2, victim, has stated in her examination in chief before the learned trial Court that on 12.10.2006, at around 10-10:30 p.m. when she went to drink water at the water tap installed outside of her house, Firoz appeared there; trapped her mouth and forcefully brought her to his house and committed rape upon her. She also admits that she had narrated the entire incident to her parents, who went to the house of the accused/respondent but he fled from there. She admits that she had also told to Daroga Ji about the incident and also got her statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. recorded. As such P.W.-2, victim, has supported the averments in the First Information Report and also the testimony of P.W.-1 Rajendra, P.W.-3 Smt. Nirmala and P.W.4 and P.W.-7 Bhole. However, in the same breath P.W.-2 victim, in her cross examination, has stated that she has given her statement under the pressure of her uncle Bhole, who is younger brother of her father; Her uncle had also exerted pressure, not only upon her, but also on her father. The aforestated statement has been given by her under fear of her uncle; She had also given her statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. under the pressure of her uncle Bhole as she had apprehension if she did not give that statement she would be subjected to harassment.

22. It is evident from her deposition, that in her cross examination, she has not supported the prosecution case. In her examination in chief she has also admitted that the previous statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. was also given under duress.

23. Since statement of P.W.-2 victim has been recorded on oath before the learned trial Court therefore, it has to be treated as voluntarily one.

24. P.W.-2, victim, in her cross examination has also stated that Firoz has not committed rape upon her; she also contradicts her statements given under Section 164 Cr.P.C. by saying that accused respondent had not trapped her mouth, nor he took her to the room in his house; at the time of alleged incident she was 19 years of age and on the date of examination she was aged about 21 years.

25. P.W.-2, victim, has not stated in her examination in chief that accused/respondent had made an attempt to rape her, nor in this respect she has stated in her cross examination therefore, the evidence of P.W.-5 Dr. Sangeeta Gupta, that the victim had told her that Firoz had made an attempt to rape victim is not corroborated by herself, nor in the First Information Report there is averment that Firoz made an attempt to rape the victim.

26. P.W.-2 victim, has also deposed in her cross examination that statement to Daroga Ji was also given by her, under the duress of her uncle Bhole.

27. The statement of witness, under law is required to be read as a whole. Incident is said to have occurred with the victim by accused; first information report was not lodged by her at the police station, nor, informant- P.W.-1, Rajendra, P.W.-3 Nirmala and P.W.-7 Bhole, were present at the time of incident, whereas, P.W.-7, Bhole in his examination in chief has stated that the victim is her niece and on 12.10.2016, at around 10 p.m. he was present at his house; he heard scream of her niece, who lives nearby and on hearing her shout, he came out of his house and saw her niece was weeping; on interrogation, she had narrated the entire incident to him.

28. P.W.-2 victim, has not stated in her deposition that her uncle Bhole had come on the scene of occurrence and she had narrated the incident to him. Thus, statement of P.W.-7 Bhole, in this connection is not corroborated by P.W.-2 victim.

29. P.W.-1, informant, P.W.-3 Smt. Nirmala, P.W.-7 Bhole, have stated in their respective testimony that at the time of incident accused/respondent Firoz was having knife, but victim has not stated in her statement that accused/respondent Firoz, at the time of alleged incident was wielding knife in his hand, thus, the statements of P.W.-1 Rajendra, P.W.-3 Nirmala and P.W.-7, Bhole, do not find support from the deposition of P.W.-2, victim, and being uncorroborated it in not worthy of reliance.

30. Since, P.W.-2 victim has supported the prosecution case in her examination in chief but has also candidly stated that her previous statements under Sections 161 as well as 164 Cr.P.C. and her examination in chief, were the result of pressure exerted by her uncle Bhole upon her.

31. P.W.-2 victim, admitted in her deposition that she is literate and she also discloses in her statement that at the time of alleged incident she was aged about 19 years. In the First Information Report the age of the victim is mentioned 17 years. P.W.-1 Rajendra, P.W.-3 Nirmala and P.W.-7 Bhole, has not mentioned the age of the victim in their statements. There is no documentary evidence on the record about the age of the victim. The evidence of P.W.-2 victim with regard to her age, was 19 years, at the time of alleged incident. Her deposition, has not been challenged, therefore, it appears that her statement with regard to her age, at the time of alleged incident is admitted to the prosecution.

32. P.W.-4 Dr. Isha Soni, had also carried out the medical examination of the victim in connection with the instant case on 15.10.2016, during her posting at PHC Mahila Hospital, Meerut. She states in her examination in chief that she had found victim's hymen intact. She has also proved medical report as Exhibit-Ka-3. It is also admitted to P.W.-4 Dr. Isha Soni that at the time of medical examination of the victim, she well known that she was doing medical examination of the victim second time.

33. In medical jurisprudence it is generally presumed that in case of rape of a young woman her hymen is torned. In the instant case P.W.-2 victim has stated that no rape was committed upon her. She refuses that physical violence had been caused to her by the accused. No mark of injury or violence was noted by the Doctors during her medical examination.

34. P.W.4-Dr.Isha Soni, has also deposed in her cross examination that victim was blowing hot and cold; on one hand she was saying that rape was committed upon her but on the other hand she was contradicting herself by saying that no rape was committed upon her. Therefore, self contradictory statement of victim was recorded to P.W.-4 Dr. Isha Soni, it appears that the victim was under pressure of her uncle Bhole; victim's Hymen was also found intact. It appears from above discussion that no rape was committed by the accused/respondent upon the victim P.W.-2.

35. Finding returned by the trial Court in the impugned judgment and order dated 06.05.2019, in para 32, is extracted below;

"प्रस्तुत प्रकरण में पी०डब्लू० 1 एवं पी०डब्लू० 3 तथा पी०डब्लू7 भोले के द्वारा घटना की जानकारी पीड़िता से होना कहते हुए यह कहा गया है की घटना दिनांक 12.10.16 की रात्रि करीब 10 बजे की है। इसका उल्लेख इस स्तर पर इसलिये किया जा रहा है की उपरोक्त चारों साक्षी पी०डब्लू० 1 लगायत 3 एवं पी०डब्लू० 7 में से कोई भी साक्षी घटना का चश्मदीद साक्षी नहीं है और उनके द्वारा स्वयं को घटना की जानकारी पीड़िता के माध्यम से होने की बात कही गयी है। जहां तक पीड़िता का प्रश्न है तो पीड़िता ने अपनी जिरह दिनांक 10.07.18 पृष्ठ सं० 2 एवं 3 पर स्पष्ट रूप से घटना से इन्कार करते हुए यह कहा गया है की फिरोज ने मेरे साथ कोई गलत काम (बलात्कार) नहीं किया । धारा 164 एवं 161 द ० प्र०सं० तथा न्यायालय में दिए गये बयानों के बारे में यह कहा गया है की उक्त बयान अपने चाचा भोले के दबाव में दिया गया था। मुलजिम फिरोज ने मेरे साथ कोई गलत काम नहीं किया । यह कहना गलत है की मुलजिम फिरोज मेरा मुँह दबाकर अपने कमरे मे ले गया हो। फिरोज ने कपडे उतारे और न मुँह में कपडा ठूसा ।

जिस समय यह मुक़दमा लिखाया गया था उस वक्त मेरी उम्र 19 वर्ष थी अब 21 वर्ष है। धारा 164 द ० प्र०सं० का पूरा बयान पढ़ने के बाद कहा गया है की इसमें जो बाते लिखी हैं वे सब गलत है। मेरा पुलिस वाले दरोगा सहित थाने पर जो बयान हुआ था वह भी मैने चाचा भोले के दबाव में दिया था। साक्षी सं० 4 डॉ० ईसा सोनी के द्वारा भी मेडिकल परीक्षण किया गया है और मेडिकल परीक्षण करने के उपरान्त यह कहा गया है की पीड़िता का हाईमन इन्टैक्ट था और उक्त द्वितीय मेडिकल परीक्षण दिनांक 15.10.16 को हुआ है और प्रथम मेडिकल परीक्षण डॉ० संगीता गुप्ता के द्वारा दिनांक 13.10.16 को किया गया था और उनके द्वारा भी यह कहा गया है की शरीर पर कोई बाहरी या अंदरूनी चोट नहीं थी। वह कपडे बदल चुकी थी , नहा चुकी थी। डॉक्टरी मुआयना के खाना सं० 15 अ में पीड़िता के बताये हुए कथन लिखे है। बलात्कार होना नहीं बताया था। साक्षी सं० 4 ने भी कहा है की पीड़िता बार बार कह रही थी की उसके साथ बलात्कार हुआ है फिर कह रही थी की नहीं हुआ। कहने का तात्पर्य है की दिनांक 12.10.16 को रात्रि 10 बजे घटना घटित हुई है और दिनांक 13.10.16 को पीड़िता का चिकित्सीय परीक्षण 03.00 बजे दिन में हुआ है। उस समय उसके शरीर पर कोई बाह्य या अंदरूनी चोट नहीं पायी गयी थी। दिनांक 15.10.16 को दोबारा मेडिकल परीक्षण हुआ है, उसमें भी हाईमन इन्टैक्ट था। सामान्यतः यदि किसी के साथ शारीरिक संसर्ग कारित किया जाता है तो हाईमन के फटने की सम्भाव्यता अत्यधिक रहती है। प्रस्तुत प्रकरण में यदि अभियुक्त फिरोज द्वारा जबरदस्ती पीड़िता के साथ दुष्कर्म किया गया होता तो हाईमन इन्टैक्ट नहीं होता वरन् फटा हुआ पाया जाता। साथ ही पीड़िता स्वयं ने भी न्यायालय में किये गये बयान में यह कहा है की मुलजिम फिरोज ने घटना की तिथि व समय पर उसके साथ किसी प्रकार कोई गलत काम नहीं किया न ही मुंह में कपडा ठूँसा। अन्य साक्षीगण के द्वारा भी यह कहा गया है की उन्हें घटना के बारे में पीड़िता ने बताया था। यदि पीड़िता स्वयं न्यायालय में घटना कारित होने से इंकार कर रही है तो किस प्रकार उन लोगों को घटना की जानकारी और सत्यता का ज्ञान हुआ, यह सन्देहास्प्रद प्रतीत होता है।"

36. The accused/respondent has stated in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. that prior to alleged incident dispute with regard to payment was existing and thus he has been falsely implicated in this case.

37. Since victim, P.W.-2 has herself admitted that pressure was exerted by her uncle, to give evidence of alleged rape against the accused/respondent, it lends credence to the above referred statement of the accused.

38. In the backdrop of above analysis of evidence on record, doubt is created regarding the authenticity of the prosecution case against the accused/respondent. We find no worthy evidence on record to prove the charges against the accused.

39. From the above discussion, it is concluded that the learned trial Court has rightly appreciated the facts and circumstances of the case, as well as the evidence on record hence we do not find any illegality or material irregularity in the impugned judgment and order and the same is sustainable in eyes of law as it does not suffers from perversity.

40. Thus, leave to appeal is refused and in consequence the appeal stands rejected.

41. Registry to return the record to the Court below along with this order.

W. 1 has given details of dowry in her ocular evidence - leave to appeal refused - government appeal dismissed (Para 17, 18)

Dismissed. (E-5)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Syed Waiz Mian, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the parties.

2. This government appeal has been preferred against the judgement and order dated 30.5.2019, passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court No. 1, (Crimes against Women), Aligarh in Sessions Trial No. 246/2016, arising out of Case Crime No. 296/2014, P. S.-Madrak, district-Aligarh, whereby, he has acquitted the accused-respondents of the charges under Sections-498A, 506, 323, 376 and 406 I. P. C. and Sections-3/4 of D. P. Act.

3. The prosecution story in brief runs as under:

It is admitted fact that the informant was wedded on 30.4.2011 with Manoj and in that marriage her parents had spent around six lacs rupees in dowry expenses etc.; her husband Manoj, on 30.5.2013 died leaving behind their daughter, aged about one year and four months.

4. P. W. 1 in her ocular evidence has stated that on presentation of her application dated 1.11.2014 under Section 156 (3) Cr. P. C. in which the alleged incident was stated to have occurred in the month of June, 2014 present case being Case Crime No. 296 of 2014, under Sections- 498A, 506 I.P.C. and Sections-3/4 of D. P. Act, was registered at concerned police station and during her deposition she identified her application under Section 156 (3) Cr. P. C. and also admitted her signature thereon, as such, this application was marked as Ext. Ka 1.

5. P. W. 1 in her examination-in-chief has deposed that her parents had spent about six lacks rupees in her marriage; some dowry was also given to her husband and in-laws but after marriage, they were not happy with the dowry; She with her daughter continued to live in her in-laws house; After death of her husband, Satpal, who happens to be her brother-in-law (dewar) had proposed her to marry with him and also said that he wants to lead his life with her but in-laws would taunt her that she wants to live as wife of Satpal (dewar) and both in-laws would send their son Satpal into her room and he forcibly made physical relations with her and continued her sexual harassment including rape upon her for many years till she lived there; she asked Satpal to fulfil his promise to marry her as he committed rape upon her continuously but on one or other pretext, he did not marry her; in the month of June, 2014 in the presence of her in-laws, Satpal (dewar), Yashoda sister-in-laws Neelam, Nihala and Divya, she demanded Satpal to marry her because by making false promise to marry her, he had raped her for months together, to which Nanad Divya intervened and said that marriage with Satpal is possible if she from her parents brings six-seven lacs rupees. She was also beaten and asked her to turn out from the house but she refused to leave her matrimonial house due to discord; She was forced to sit in the car and was left in the lurch out of the village. In this backdrop, she lodged F. I. R. against accused.

6. P. W. 1 informant in her entire deposition has not uttered a single word of any demand of dowry from her or any member of her family. P. W. 1 informant in her cross examination has stated that her daughter was born after one year of the marriage; she with her husband was living happily and she stayed in her matrimonial house; after three months of the death of her husband, her father and other members of family were called by the in-laws to their house and she had left her matrimonial home happily. Next she deposed that after lapse of 5-6 months, she was happily sent to her parental house and after passage of ten days in her parental house, her dewar Satpal came to take her to in-laws house; since she was ill therefore, her father took her to her matrimonial house thereafter.

7. P. W. 1 informant in her cross examination has admitted that after the death of her husband she stayed back for about 5-6 months in her matrimonial home and she was happy with the behaviour of her in-laws and other members of her family. She has not stated in her cross examination that demand of dowry was made by any member of her husband's family or any article or cash as additional dowry until the death of her husband; even she has admitted that after 5-6 months of the death of her husband she stayed in her matrimonial house happily. As such, she has not specifically stated that demand of additional dowry was made by her in-laws or any member of their family.

8. P. W. 2 Prithvi Singh who is father of the informant P. W. 1, has stated in the examination-in-chief that after the marriage of her daughter with Manoj her in-laws, nanad Neelam, Nihala and Divya, father-in-law Babu Ram demanded two lacs and fifty thousand rupees as additional dowry and on its non-fulfilment, her daughter had told him that she was subjected to harassment; he had tried to persuade the aforementioned persons but they did not budge.

9. P. W. 2 also has supported the statement of P. W. 1 informant that inlaws of her daughter had promised that they shall marry their son Satpal with her after consultation with the family members; Satpal kept her daughter as his wife; on the demand to marry her, Satpal refused and all the members of the family of deceased Manoj said that the marriage could be solemnized if in the marriage 6-7 lacs rupees are spent; Before three and half years from the date of his deposition in the trial court, family members of her husband left her daughter and grand daughter outside the village. As such, P. W. 2 in his examination-in-chief has corroborated the statement of his daughter P. W. 1.

10. Accused in their defence have stated that informant and her parents were exerting pressure to give them half of their land to which, they did not agree, hence, they have been falsely implicated in the present case. P. W. 1 informant in her cross-examination has admitted that she had moved an application with regard to the incident at Mahila Thana one month before filing application under Section 156 (3) Cr. P. C. and in the context of that application she had not told the Inspector about commission of rape upon her by Satpal (dewar). She further states that she has not told to Daroga about rape because she wanted to save her in laws. She has further admitted that at Mahila thana she had given her statement on 12.7.2014 and in her statement she had not told to Daroga that her in-laws and other family members (sasural wale) had made any demand for additional dowry or in the garb of proposal to marry with Satpal, he had committed rape upon her. The complaint made by P. W. 1 is on record as paper no. 18.

11. P. W. 1 informant has also admitted to have recorded her statement under Section 164 Cr. P. C. and relevant portion of the statement during her examination in the trial Court was read over to her and in her reply she admitted that in that statement it is not written that in-laws or members of their family made any demand for additional dowry. She also admits in her statement under Section 164 Cr. P. C. that it is also not mentioned that who used to send Satpal into her room. P. W. 2 Prithvi Singh in his examination-inchief has stated that in-laws and other family members made constant demand for two lacs and fifty thousand as an additional dowry and on its nonfulfillment her daughter was subjected to physical torture. On the other hand, in the application Ext. Ka 1 and also P. W. 1 informant in her examination-inchief has said that her in-laws and their family members used to make demand of 6-7 lacs rupees as an additional dowry.

12. P. W. 2 has admitted that within a year after her daughter's marriage with Manoj no demand for additional dowry was made . Her daughter had not made any such complaint in this regard. He also admits that before presenting application under Section 156 (3) Cr. P. C. an application by her daughter at the Mahila police station was presented and in that application it is not noted that demand of any dowry was made from him or from her daughter by inlaws or any member of her family.

13. P. W. 2 in his cross-examination has feigned ignorance that in the complaint made to Mahila police station it was not written that demand of any dowry was made and for non-fulfilment of demand of dowry her daughter would be beaten and her dewar, Satpal had committed rape upon her daughter. Further, he has also pleaded ignorance about the presentation of the complaint at the police station by saying that he does not remember it. Again he has pleaded ignorance about the application for compromise by her daughter was presented.

14. P. W. 2 has admitted in his cross-examination that panchayat was convened but compromise could not have been arrived at between them. After the panchayat he had said that half of the land should be given to his daughter but father-in-law of his daughter did not agree to give half of his land to his daughter. She also admits that on refusal her father-in-law has said that he will keep his daughter and grand daughter and he will take care of their expenses. He also admits in his deposition that he had also proposed to her father-in-law that if he is not ready to give her share, he should marry his son with his daughter. He has also stated that her father-in-law had spurned his proposal with regard to marriage saying since informant (his daughter-in-law) is the sister-in-law (bhabhi) of his son, therefore, he cannot marry his son with his bhabhi.

15. It is evident from the evidence of P. W. 1 and P. W. 2 that not only their statements with regard to the alleged rape and demand of additional dowry are inconsistent with each other but also self contradictory because if rape was continuously committed by Satpal and demand of additional dowry was made, then such allegations should have been mentioned in the complaint of P. W. 1, informant, which was admittedly presented at Mahila police station before the application under Section 156 (3) Cr. P. C. was filed, it appears that such allegations have been made in the application Ext. Ka 1 later on, which are result of afterthought and improvement.

16. There is also contradictory evidence of P. W. 1, informant and P. W. 2 to the effect that informant was forced by her in-laws to enter into physical relationship with Satpal and also about the averment that her in-laws had promised her to marry their son Satpal with her and on such assurance, she got ready to have physical relationship with him.

17. It appears from the above discussion that after the death of Manoj, P. W. 1 informant lived for a considerable time in her matrimonial house and no demand of any dowry was made nor rape was committed upon her. Evidence regarding such allegations is admitted to have been levelled on the strength of refusal by co-accused Bhagwan Das to give half of land to the informant, P. W. 1. In previous complaint by informant P. W. 1 given at Mahila police station it was also not mentioned that after the marriage her in laws and other members of their family had started to make demand for additional dowry and on non-fulfilment of demand she was subjected to torture or was constantly beaten, therefore, such evidence of the informant and P. W. 2 is an afterthought which cannot be relied upon in view of the provisions of Evidence Act. P. W. 1 informant and P. W. 2 have also not deposed with regard to the allegations of abuse and threat.

18. In the application Ext. Ka 1 details of dowry has not been given nor P. W. 1 and P. W. 2 have given details of dowry in their ocular evidence.

19. Rest of the witnesses are formal in nature and thus have proved FIR chik, copy of G. D., site plan and charge-sheet charges cannot be proved unless there is cogent and trustworthy ocular evidence of witnesses of facts.

20. Learned trial court has evaluated the evidence on record in detail and has fond that there are material contradictions in the deposition of informant and P. W. 2 and there is no cogent evidence on record to prove the charges for offences under Sections 498A, 323, 506, 376 and 406 I. P. C. and Sections-3/4 of D. P. Act.

21. It is incumbent upon the prosecution to prove the charges against the accused-respondent beyond reasonable doubt, which it has miserably failed.

22. We are not in agreement with the contentions raised on behalf of the State-appellant that by the impugned judgement and order trial court has not properly appreciated the evidence on record or the impugned judgement and order is perverse and erroneous in the eyes of law and is not sustainable.

23. Hence, the trial court has not erred in law by acquitting the respondents, therefore, impugned judgement and order is liable to be upheld and is accordingly upheld.

24. The leave to appeal is refused; consequently, the instant government appeal is dismissed.

25. Record of lower court along with certified copy of this order be sent to the court concerned forthwith for necessary action.

A. Civil Law – Concealment of Material Facts - An applicant who does not come with candid facts and "clean breast" cannot hold a writ of the court with "soiled hands". Suppression or concealment of material facts is not an advocacy. It is a jugglery, manipulation, maneuvering or misrepresentation, which has no place in equitable and prerogative jurisdiction. If the applicant does not disclose all the material facts fairly and truly but states them in a distorted manner and misleads the court, the court has inherent power in order to protect itself and to prevent an abuse of its process to discharge the rule nisi and refuse to proceed further with the examination of the case on merits. If the court does not reject the petition on that ground, the court would be failing in its duty. In fact, such an applicant requires to be dealt with for contempt of court for abusing the process of the court. (Para 17)

B. Anyone who takes recourse to method of suppression in a court of law, is, in actuality, playing fraud with the court, and the maxim suppressio veri, expression faisi, i.e., suppression of the truth is equivalent to the expression of falsehood, gets attracted. (Para 7)

In the present case, sole argument raised by the appellant is that the writ petition was filed by the respondents concealing material facts regarding number of cases filed by respondent no. 5-the writ petitioner claiming the same relief which had travelled up to the Hon'ble Supreme Court. Some of the writ petitions filed subsequently were dismissed by this Court. (Para 2)

The only detail furnished by respondent no. 5 is regarding civil suit filed by present appellant in the year 2008. Only copy of the order passed by the trial court has been annexed and no any other order passed in the aforesaid civil suit. None of the order passed subsequently by the trial court was annexed. No details were furnished regarding filing of writ petitions, which were either decided or pending in this Court. (Para 3, 4)

The present appeal deserves to be allowed and the order passed by learned Single Judge deserves to be set aside on this ground alone that there was gross concealment of material facts from the Court. Considering the fact that material facts have been concealed by the writ-petitioners while filing the writ petition, the present appeal is allowed. The impugned order passed by learned Single Judge dated June 23, 2020 is set aside. (Para 5, 9)

Special appeal allowed. (E-4)

Precedent followed:

1. In abhyudya Sanstha Vs U.O.I., (2011) 6 SCC 145 (Para 6)

2. Moti Lal Songara Vs Prem Prakash @ Pappu & anr., (2013) 9 SCC 199 (Para 7)

3. ABCD Vs U.O.I. & ors., (2020) 2 SCC 52 (Para 8)

Present special appeal assails judgment and order dated 23.06.2020, passed by Hon'ble Mr. Justice Mahesh Chandra Tripathi, J. in Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 10218 of 2020.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajesh Bindal, C.J.
&
Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. Order dated June 23, 2020 passed by learned Single Judge has been impugned by filing the present intra-court appeal.

2. Sole argument raised by learned counsel for the appellant is that the writ petition was filed by the respondents concealing material facts regarding number of cases filed by respondent no. 5-the writ petitioner claiming the same relief which had travelled upto the Hon'ble Supreme Court. Some of the writ petitions filed subsequently were dismissed by this Court, the details thereof furnished by learned counsel for the appellant are as under:-

"I. Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 34874 of 2009
II. Special Appeal No. 864 of 2010
III. Special Appeal No. 1956 of 2011
IV. Special Appeal No. 1911 of 2011
V. Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 42424 of 2014
VI. Original Suit No. 26 of 2015.
VII. Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 47483 of 2014
VIII Special Leave to Appeal 3589 of 2018
IX. Writ-C No. 31196 of 2019
X. Special Appeal (Defective) No. 1175 of 2020"

3. Learned counsel for the respondent no. 5 tried to explain the facts stated in the writ petition. However, the only detail furnished therein is regarding civil suit filed by present appellant in the year 2008. Only copy of the order passed by the trial court has been annexed and no any other order passed in the aforesaid civil suit.

4. None of the order passed subsequently by the trial court was annexed. No details were furnished regarding filing of writ petitions, which were either decided or pending in this Court.

5. After hearing the arguments, in our opinion, the present appeal deserves to be allowed and the order passed by learned Single Judge set aside only on the ground that there was gross concealment of material facts from the Court when the writ petition was filed. As to how a litigant who conceals material facts from the Court, has to be dealt with, has been gone through by Hon'ble the Supreme Court time and again and the consistent opinion is that he is not entitled even to be heard on merits.

6. In Abhyudya Sanstha Vs. Union of India (2011) 6 SCC 145, Hon'ble the Supreme Court, while declining relief to the petitioners therein, who did not approach the court with clean hands, opined as under:

"18. ... In our view, the appellants deserve to be non suited because they have not approached the Court with clean hands. The plea of inadvertent mistake put forward by the learned senior counsel for the appellants and their submission that the Court may take lenient view and order regularisation of the admissions already made sounds attractive but does not merit acceptance. Each of the appellants consciously made a statement that it had been granted recognition by the NCTE, which necessarily implies that recognition was granted in terms of Section 14 of the Act read with Regulations 7 and 8 of the 2007 Regulations. Those managing the affairs of the appellants do not belong to the category of innocent, illiterate/uneducated persons, who are not conversant with the relevant statutory provisions and the court process. The very fact that each of the appellants had submitted LPASW No. 82/2019 Page 7 application in terms of Regulation 7 and made itself available for inspection by the team constituted by WRC, Bhopal shows that they were fully aware of the fact that they can get recognition only after fulfilling the conditions specified in the Act and the Regulations and that WRC, Bhopal had not granted recognition to them. Notwithstanding this, they made bold statement that they had been granted recognition by the competent authority and thereby succeeded in persuading this Court to entertain the special leave petitions and pass interim orders. The minimum, which can be said about the appellants is that they have not approached the Court with clean hands and succeeded in polluting the stream of justice by making patently false statement. Therefore, they are not entitled to relief under Article 136 of the Constitution. This view finds support from plethora of precedents.

19. In Hari Narain v. Badri Das AIR 1963 SC 1558, G. Narayanaswamy Reddy v. Govt. of Karnataka (1991) 3 SCC 261 and large number of other cases, this Court denied relief to the petitioner/appellant on the ground that he had not approached the Court with clean hands. In Hari Narain v. Badri Das (supra), the Court revoked the leave granted to the appellant and observed:

"It is of utmost importance that in making material statements and setting forth grounds in applications for special leave made under Article 136 of the Constitution, care must be taken not to make any statements which are inaccurate, untrue or misleading. In dealing with applications for special leave, the Court naturally takes statements of fact and grounds of fact contained in the petitions at their face value and it LPASW No. 82/2019 Page 8 would be unfair to betray the confidence of the Court by making statements which are untrue and misleading. Thus, if at the hearing of the appeal the Supreme Court is satisfied that the material statements made by the appellant in his application for special leave are inaccurate and misleading, and the respondent is entitled to contend that the appellant may have obtained special leave from the Supreme Court on the strength of what he characterises as misrepresentations of facts contained in the petition for special leave, the Supreme Court may come to the conclusion that in such a case special leave granted to the appellant ought to be revoked."

20. In G. Narayanaswamy Reddy v. Govt. of Karnataka's case (supra), the Court while noticing the fact regarding the stay order passed by the High Court which prevented passing of the award by the Land Acquisition Officer within the prescribed time period was concealed and in the aforesaid context, it observed that :

"2. ... Curiously enough, there is no reference in the special leave petitions to any of the stay orders and we came to know about these orders only when the respondents appeared in response to the notice and filed their counter- affidavit. In our view, the said interim orders have a direct bearing on the question raised and the non-disclosure of the same certainly amounts to suppression of material facts. On this ground alone, the special leave petitions are liable to be rejected. It is well settled in law that the relief under Article 136 of the Constitution is discretionary and a petitioner who approaches this Court for such relief must come with frank and full disclosure of facts. If he fails to do so and suppresses material facts, his application is liable to be dismissed. We accordingly dismiss the special leave petitions."

21. In Dalip Singh v. State of U.P. (2010) 2 SCC 114, Hon'ble the Supreme Court noticed the progressive decline in the values of life and observed:

"1. For many centuries Indian society cherished two basic values of life i.e. "satya" (truth) and "ahinsa" (non-violence). Mahavir, Gautam Buddha and Mahatma Gandhi guided the people to ingrain these values in their daily life. Truth constituted an integral part of the justice- delivery system which was in vogue in the pre-Independence era and the people used to feel proud to tell truth in the courts irrespective of the consequences. However, post-Independence period has seen drastic changes in our value system. The materialism has overshadowed the old ethos and the quest for personal gain has become so intense that those involved in litigation do not hesitate to take shelter of falsehood, misrepresentation and suppression of facts in the court proceedings.

2. In the last 40 years, a new creed of litigants has cropped up. Those who belong to this creed do not have any respect for truth. They shamelessly resort to falsehood and unethical means for achieving their goals. In order to meet the challenge posed by this new creed of litigants, the courts have, from time to time, evolved new rules and it is now well established that a litigant, who attempts to pollute the stream of justice or who touches the pure fountain of justice with tainted hands, is not entitled to any relief, interim or final." (emphasis supplied)

7. In Moti Lal Songara Vs. Prem Prakash @ Pappu and another (2013) 9 SCC 199, Hon'ble the Supreme Court, considering the issue regarding concealment of facts before the Court, while observing that "court is not a laboratory where children come to play", opined as under:

"19. The second limb of the submission is whether in the obtaining factual matrix, the order passed by the High Court discharging the accused-respondent is justified in law. We have clearly stated that though the respondent was fully aware about the fact that charges had been framed against him by the learned trial Judge, yet he did not bring the same to the notice of the revisional court hearing the revision against the order taking cognizance. It is a clear case of suppression. It was within the special knowledge of the accused. Any one who takes recourse to method of suppression in a court of law, is, in actuality, playing fraud with the court, and the maxim supressio veri, expression faisi , i.e., suppression of the truth is equivalent to the expression of falsehood, gets attracted. We are compelled to say so as there has been a calculated concealment of the fact before the revisional court. It can be stated with certitude that the accused- respondent tried to gain advantage by such factual suppression. The fraudulent intention is writ large. In fact, he has shown his courage of ignorance and tried to play possum.

20. The High Court, as we have seen, applied the principle "when infrastructure collapses, the superstructure is bound to collapse". However, as the order has been obtained by practising fraud and suppressing material fact before a court of law to gain advantage, the said order cannot be allowed to stand."

8. In ABCD Vs. Union of India and others (2020) 2 SCC 52, Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the matter where material facts had been concealed, while issuing notice to the petitioner therein, exercising its suo-motu contempt power, observed as under :

"15. Making a false statement on oath is an offence punishable under Section 181 of the IPC while furnishing false information with intent to cause public servant to use his lawful power to the injury of another person is punishable under Section 182 of the IPC. These offences by virtue of Section 195(1)(a)(i) of the Code can be taken cognizance of by any court only upon a proper complaint in writing as stated in said Section. In respect of matters coming under Section 195(1)(b)(i) of the Code, in Pushpadevi M. Jatia v. M.L. Wadhawan etc., (1987) 3 SCC 367 prosecution was directed to be launched after prima facie satisfaction was recorded by this Court.

16. It has also been laid down by this Court in Chandra Shashi v. Anil Kumar Verma (1995) 1 SCC 421 that a person who makes an attempt to deceive the court, interferes with the administration of justice and can be held guilty of contempt of court. In that case a husband who had filed a fabricated document to oppose the prayer of his wife seeking transfer of matrimonial proceedings was found guilty of contempt of court and sentenced to two weeks imprisonment. It was observed as under:

"1. The stream of administration of justice has to remain unpolluted so that purity of court's atmosphere may give vitality to all the organs of the State. Polluters of judicial firmament are, therefore, required to be well taken care of to maintain the sublimity of court's environment; so also to enable it to administer justice fairly and to the satisfaction of all concerned.

2. Anyone who takes recourse to fraud, deflects the course of judicial proceedings; or if anything is done with oblique motive, the same interferes with the administration of justice. Such persons are required to be properly dealt with, not only to punish them for the wrong done, but also to deter others from indulging in similar acts which shake the faith of people in the system of administration of justice.

14. The legal position thus is that if the publication be with intent to deceive the court or one made with an intention to defraud, the same would be contempt, as it would interfere with administration of justice. It would, in any case, tend to interfere with the same. This would definitely be so if a fabricated document is filed with the aforesaid mens rea. In the case at hand the fabricated document was apparently to deceive the court; the intention to defraud is writ large. Anil Kumar is, therefore, guilty of contempt."

17. In K.D. Sharma Vs. Steel Authority of India Limited and others (2008) 12 SCC 481 it was observed:

"39. If the primary object as highlighted in Kensington Income Tax Commrs., (1917) 1 KB 486 : 86 LJKB 257 : 116 LT 136 (CA) is kept in mind, an applicant who does not come with candid facts and "clean breast" cannot hold a writ of the court with "soiled hands". Suppression or concealment of material facts is not an advocacy. It is a jugglery, manipulation, manoeuvring or misrepresentation, which has no place in equitable and prerogative jurisdiction. If the applicant does not disclose all the material facts fairly and truly but states them in a distorted manner and misleads the court, the court has inherent power in order to protect itself and to prevent an abuse of its process to discharge the rule nisi and refuse to proceed further with the examination of the case on merits. If the court does not reject the petition on that ground, the court would be failing in its duty. In fact, such an applicant requires to be dealt with for contempt of court for abusing the process of the court."

18. In Dhananjay Sharma Vs. State of Haryana and others (1995) 3 SCC 757 filing of a false affidavit was the basis for initiation of action in contempt jurisdiction and the concerned persons were punished.

9. In view of above exposition of law and considering the fact that material facts have been concealed by the writ-petitioners while filing the writ petition, the present appeal is allowed. The impugned order passed by learned Single dated June 23, 2020 is set aside subject to cost of ₹ 1,00,000/-, out of which ₹ 50,000/- shall be paid by respondent no. 5 to the appellant whereas ₹ 50,000/- shall be deposited with the Mediation Centre. Costs shall be paid and deposited within a period of one month from today and compliance report submitted in Registry.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION
CIVIL SIDE
DATED: ALLAHABAD 26.09.2022

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE MRS. SUNITA AGARWAL, J.
THE HON'BLE VIKRAM D. CHAUHAN, J.

Special Appeal No. 1056 of 2018

Chandra Prakash Singh
...Appellant/Petitioner
Versus
District Inspector of Schools, Kushinagar & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Appellant:
Sri Ramesh Chandra Dwivedi, Sri Dinesh Kumar Singh

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C.

A. Service Law – Appointment - Payment of Salary - U.P. Intermediate Education Act, 1921 - The Uttar Pradesh High School and Intermediate College (Payment of Salaries of the Teachers and Other Workers) Act, 1971 - U.P. Secondary Education Services Commission (Removal of Difficulties) (Second) Order, 1981 - In the matter of intra-court appeal arising out of writ proceedings, the Division Bench needs to consider the appeal on merits by deciding the correctness of the judgment of the learned Single Judge instead of remitting the matter to the learned Single Judge. (Para 5)

B. Merits of the present case - The petitioner claims that he was appointed in L.T. Grade after promotion of Shri Shambhu Sharan Singh from C.T. Grade to L.T. Grade. C.T. Grade was a lower grade and in case, it is accepted for a moment that the promotion of Shri Shambhu Sharan Singh from C.T. Grade to L.T. Grade was approved by the order dated 10.9.1999, which is appended as Annexure '11' to the writ petition, vacancy, if any, would have arisen in C.T. Grade and not in L.T. Grade. The appointment of the petitioner could not be made in L.T. grade on account of promotion of the said incumbent in L.T. grade. (Para 20, 21)

Whether the promotion or merger of Shri Shambhu Sharan Singh in L.T. Grade was approved or disapproved, in both eventuality, no post in L.T. Grade became vacant. Meaning thereby, that in case, the promotion/merger of Shri Shambhu Sharan Singh in L.T. Grade was not approved, he would have continued as C.T. Grade teacher, till he would have fulfilled the requirement of merger/promotion in L.T. Grade. (Para 23, 24)

In case his promotion/merger in L.T. Grade was approved, no vacancy would have occurred, the reason being that the C.T. Grade was a dying cadre and further recruitment in the said grade was banned. An incumbent working in C.T. Grade at the time of the issuance of the GO dated 19.2.1991 was entitled to be merged in L.T. Grade on completion of two conditions, i.e. ten years of satisfactory service on 1.1.1986 and possessing the qualification of being a trained graduate. Those who did not complete ten years of satisfactory service as on 1.1.1986 were merged later as Assistant Teacher in L.T. Grade as soon as they completed ten years of service and there occurred vacancy in L.T. Grade in promotion quota. (Para 25)

The contention of the petitioner that he was appointed against a short term vacancy of L.T. Grade after following due procedure under the Act is found misconceived. As there was no vacancy, there was no occasion for the Committee of Management to notify the same or to make selection. The entire process of selection of the petitioner/appellant as Assistant Teacher, L.T. Grade adopted by the Committee of Management of the institution is absolutely illegal. The appointment of the petitioner is held to be void ab initio. (Para 27)

Writ petition dismissed. Special Appeal dismissed. (E-4)

Precedent followed:

1. Roma Sonkar Vs Madhya Pradesh State Public Service Commission & anr., 2018 (17) SCC 106 (Para 5)

2. Radha Raizada & ors. Vs Committee of Management, Vidyawati Darbari Girl's Inter College & ors., 1994 (3) UPLBEC 1551 (Para 13)

Present special appeal challenges judgment and order dated 10.08.2018, passed by Hon'ble Mr. Justice Sudhir Agarwal, J. in Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 30395 of 2021.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Sunita Agarwal, .J.
&
Hon'ble Vikram D. Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Sri Dinesh Kumar Singh learned counsel for the appellant and Sri Ram Ratan Dev Vanshi learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondent.

2. The present special appeal is preferred challenging the judgment and order dated 10th August, 2018 passed by the learned Single Judge in Writ-A No. 30395 of 2001 (Chandra Prakash Singh Vs. District Inspector of Schools And others).

3. The said order dated 10th August, 2018 was passed in the absence of the counsel for the Appellant-Petitioner in the writ proceedings and the learned Single Judge after going through the pleadings and the relief sought has simply recorded a finding that the Appellant-Petitioner has not been able to make out a case so as to justify interference of this Court by granting relief. No finding, however, has been returned on the merits of the claim of the petitioner/appellant herein.

4. The primary challenge to the order dated 10th August, 2018 is to the effect that the order has been passed ex parte and the conclusion drawn by the learned Single Judge is unsustainable in law. It is also submitted by the learned counsel for the Appellant-Petitioner that the Appellant was validly appointed on the post of Assistant Teacher in L.T. Grade in the institution in question and has been denied the payment of salary on account of illegal order passed by the respondent authority which was subject matter of challenge in the Writ Petition No. 30395 of 2001 against which the present special appeal has been preferred. The learned Single Judge has not adjudicated the claim of the petitioner.

5. The present special appeal is an intra-court appeal from a Single Bench of this Court to a Division Bench of this Court and the purpose of providing special appeal against an order of learned Single Judge is to provide another tier of screening by the Division Bench and the same would not mean that the learned Single Judge is subordinate to the Division Bench although the learned Single Judge under law of precedent and principle of finality attached to the orders of Appellate Court, is bound by the order passed by the Appellate Court. While considering the powers of a Division Bench while deciding intra-court appeal, the Hon'ble Apex Court in Roma Sonkar Vs. Madhya Pradesh State Public Service Commission and another has held that in the matter of intra-court appeal arising out of writ proceedings, the Division Bench needs to consider the appeal on merits by deciding the correctness of the judgment of the learned Single Judge instead of remitting the matter to the learned Single Judge. In this reference, paragraph no. 3 of the judgment of the Apex Court as aforesaid of the Apex Court is quoted hereinbelow :-

"3. We have very serious reservations whether the Division Bench in an intra-court appeal could have remitted a writ petition in the matter of moulding the relief. It is the exercise of jurisdiction of the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. The learned Single Judge as well as the Division Bench exercised the same jurisdiction. Only to avoid inconvenience to the litigants, another tier of screening by the Division Bench is provided in terms of the power of the High Court but that does not mean that the Single Judge is subordinate to the Division Bench. Being a writ proceeding, the Division Bench was called upon, in the intra-court appeal, primarily and mostly to consider the correctness or otherwise of the view taken by the learned Single Judge. Hence, in our view, the Division Bench needs to consider the appeal(s) on merits by deciding on the correctness of the judgment of the learned Single Judge, instead of remitting the matter to the learned Single Judge."

6. Learned counsel for the Appellant as well as learned Standing Counsel for the Respondents have consented to advance arguments on the merits of the dispute as the writ petition as well as the counter affidavit have been filed along with the memo of appeal and, according to the learned counsel for the parties, all the pleadings are on record and the matter can be adjudged on the merits itself. It is to be noted that the dispute in the present case started in the year 1997 and, thereafter, the matter has been relegated to the respondent authorities for decision afresh on more than one occasion. However, the dispute has not been settled and under the circumstances when the litigant has travelled for more than two decades without the controversy being set at rest by judicial determination, it would be appropriate that the matter be considered on the merits of the dispute, specifically when both the parties have advanced argument on the merits.

7. Learned counsel for the Appellant-Petitioner submits that there is an education institution in the name of Mahatama Gandhi Inter College, Sakhawania, Kushinagar (for brevity hereinafter referred to as "institution') which is recognised under the provisions of U.P. Intermediate Education Act, 1921 and the provisions of U.P. Act No. 24 of 1971 are applicable to the said institution being an aided institution. On 1st December, 1996, a short term vacancy of teacher arose in the aforesaid institution on account of adhoc promotion of Sri Shambhu Sharan Singh to the next higher post in the L.T. Grade. The intimation about the vacancy was sent to the District Inspector of Schools and the vacancy was also notified on the notice board of the institution. The vacancy was later advertised in the newspaper "Aaj' on 11th December, 1996 and in another local newspaper "Watchkara'. It is further submitted that in pursuance to the abovementioned advertisement, the Appellant-Petitioner being qualified applied against the advertised vacancy. The selection committee was constituted under the provisions of the U.P. Secondary Education Services Commission (Removal of Difficulties) (Second) Order, 1981 (hereinafter referred to as "the Order, 1981"). Interview was conducted and the Appellant-Petitioner having obtained highest quality point marks amongst the candidates who had applied against the aforesaid vacancy, had been recommended by the selection committee for appointment as Assistant Teacher in L.T. Grade on ad-hoc basis. On the basis of the recommendation made by the aforesaid selection committee, the Committee of Management in its meeting held on 30th December, 1996 had resolved to appoint the Appellant-Petitioner as Assistant Teacher in L.T. Grade on ad-hoc basis.

8. The papers with regard to the appointment of the Appellant-Petitioner along with the resolution of the Committee of Management were forwarded by the Manager of the institution to the District Inspector of Schools for his prior approval/financial sanction. When no response was received, the Committee of Management of the institution issued a formal letter of appointment on 15th January, 1997 to the Appellant-Petitioner and the Appellant-Petitioner in pursuance to the aforesaid letter of appointment joined his duty as Assistant Teacher in L.T. Grade in the institution on 16th January, 1997. The District Inspector of Schools vide order dated 28th July, 1997 refused to grant the financial approval to the appointment of the Appellant-Petitioner. The aforesaid refusal to grant approval to the appointment of the Appellant-Petitioner by the District Inspector of Schools was on account of the fact that the Committee of Management was not having power of appointment at that point of time and as such, the appointment, as per the District Inspector of Schools, was illegal.

9. The Appellant-Petitioner being aggrieved by the abovementioned order dated 28th July, 1997 preferred Writ Petition No. 32449 of 1997 before this Court. The aforesaid writ petition was finally disposed of by the judgment and order dated 26th September, 1997 with the direction to the respondent - District Inspector of Schools to examine the matter whether there was any short term vacancy as it was not clear whether the post on which the Appellant-Petitioner was working was converted from C.T. Grade to L.T. Grade or it was a vacancy on the post which had fallen vacant or it was a short term vacancy. It was further directed that the District Inspector of Schools shall examine whether the Committee of Management had followed the procedure prescribed for the appointment.

10. Thereafter, the Appellant-Petitioner made a representation to the District Inspector of Schools along with the certified copy of the judgment and order dated 26th September, 1997 passed by this Court. The District Inspector of Schools in pursuance to the abovementioned order dated 26th September, 1997 has proceeded to pass the order dated 2nd October, 2000 granting financial approval to the appointment of the Appellant-Petitioner as Assistant Teacher in L.T. Grade. A perusal of the above-mentioned order dated 2nd October, 2000 passed by the District Inspector of Schools would show that the aforesaid approval had been granted in compliance of the order dated 26th September, 1997 passed by this Court.

11. It is submitted that the said officer who was posted as District Inspector of Schools, Kushinagar was transferred in October, 2000 and, thereafter, the new incumbent had taken charge of the post of District Inspector of Schools, Kushinagar. The new District Inspector of Schools, Kushinagar by the order dated 9th November, 2000 had stopped the salary of the Appellant-Petitioner and further directed the Manager of the institution to show cause as to why action be not taken under the provisions of U.P. Intermediate Education Act, 1921. A bare perusal of the order dated 9th November, 2000 of the District Inspector of Schools would demonstrate that the aforesaid order had been passed on the basis of the report of the enquiry committee constituted by the District Magistrate, Kushinagar wherein appointment of five Assistant Teachers in the institution had been found to be irregular and the name of the Appellant-Petitioner figured in the said list of teachers irregularly appointed.

12. The Appellant-Petitioner being aggrieved by the abovementioned order dated 9th November, 2000 passed by the District Inspector of Schools preferred Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 5925 of 2001 before this Court. The aforesaid writ petition was finally decided by the judgment dated 16th February, 2001 and the order dated 9th November, 2000 in so far it relates to the Appellant-Petitioner was set aside and it was directed by this Court that the copy of the enquiry report conducted by the District Magistrate shall be supplied to the Appellant-Petitioner and, thereafter, a fresh reasoned and speaking order shall be passed after giving opportunity of hearing to the Appellant-Petitioner and the Committee of Management of the institution.

13. In pursuance of the order dated 9.11.2000 passed by this Court, the District Inspector of Schools on 13th July, 2001 had passed an order recalling the earlier order dated 2nd October, 2000 according financial approval to the appointment of the Appellant-Petitioner and holding that the appointment of the Appellant-Petitioner was without any post and as such was irregular and illegal. The finding recorded by the District Inspector of Schools in the order dated 13th July, 2001 is to the effect that the Appellant-Petitioner was appointed on account of the vacancy created by ad-hoc promotion of one Sri Shambhu Sharan Singh on the post of L.T. Grade whereas the promotion of Sri Shambhu Sharan Singh was not accorded financial approval by the District Inspector of Schools and as such no vacancy was created. The order dated 13th July, 2001 further records that the vacancy in question was not advertised in widely circulated newspaper as per the Full Bench decision of this Court in the case of Radha Raizada and others Vs. Committee of Management, Vidyawati Darbari Girl's Inter College and others.

14. The Appellant-Petitioner being aggrieved by the order dated 13th July, 2001 preferred Writ-A No. 30395 of 2001 before this Court. The aforesaid writ petition was finally dismissed by means of the judgment and order dated 10th August, 2018, which is subject matter of challenge in the instant Special Appeal.

15. It is submitted on behalf of the counsel for the Appellant-Petitioner that while passing the order dated 13th July, 2001, the District Inspector of schools has incorrectly recorded that the financial approval to the promotion of Shambu Sharan Singh had not been granted and, therefore, no post of Assistant Teacher fell vacant. The counsel for the Appellant submits that by the order dated 10th September, 1999, financial approval was granted to the promotion of Shambu Sharan Singh and after the promotion of Shambu Sharan Singh on the post of Assistant Teacher, the post of Assistant Teacher in L.T. Grade fell vacant.

16. Learned standing Counsel appearing on behalf of the respondents submits that the District Inspector of Schools has rightly rejected the claim of the Appellant-Petitioner. It is submitted that the then District Inspector of Schools, Kushinagar Shri Kripa Lal Vishwakarma committed gross irregularity in making appointment during his tenure and complaints with regard to illegal appointment of teachers were received by the Government and the District Magistrate. As a result of those complaints, the charge of the office of the District Inspector of Schools was handed over to Shri Gyan Prakash Singh and the aforesaid incumbent to the office of District Inspector of Schools had informed the District Magistrate about the irregularities committed by the earlier District Inspector of Schools.

On the aforesaid basis, by the order dated 13th October, 2000 the District Magistrate, Kushinagar constituted a committee for enquiry into the allegations of irregularity in the appointment of teachers by Shri Kripa Lal Vishwakarma. The aforesaid enquiry committee on the basis of the records available prima facie came to the conclusion that Shri Kripa Lal Vishwakarma, the erstwhile District Inspector of schools, made illegal/irregular appointments in 29 institutions during his tenure. The aforesaid enquiry committee also found that the appointment of the Appellant-Petitioner was also not in accordance with Law. The list of irregular appointments made by Shri Kripa Lal Vishwakarma while he was the District Inspector of Schools, Kushinagar was also forwarded by the District Inspector of Schools to the District Magistrate by his Communication dated 8th November, 2000.

It is further submitted that on account of the Government Order dated 24th June, 1993, the Committee of Management was not authorised to make appointment. It is submitted that the order of financial approval dated 10th September, 1999 (as claimed by Appellant-Petitioner) in respect of Shambhu Sharan Singh has not been brought on record by the Appellant-Petitioner and that no financial approval was granted to Shri Sambhu Sharan Singh.

He further submits that the advertisement in respect of the post in question was said to have been made on 11th December, 1996 in respect of a short term vacancy that arose on 1st December, 1996 on adhoc promotion of Shri Shambhu Sharan Singh to the next higher post in L.T. Grade and according to the Appellant-Petitioner, the promotion of Shri Shambhu Sharan Singh to next higher grade was approved on 10th September, 1999 and as such there was no occasion to conduct selection proceedings and issue advertisement in the year 1996 when there was no short-term vacancy.

17. Having heard learned counsels for the parties and perused the record. We may note that the claim of the petitioner/appellant in the writ petition is that he was appointed against a short term vacancy which arose on 1.12.1996 on account of adhoc promotion of the incumbent Shri Shambhu Sharan Singh to LT Grade. The contention is that the said vacancy was notified to the District Inspector of Schools and was also notified on the Notice Board of the institution. The vacancy was also advertised in two daily newspapers of wide circulation and on the interview taken by the Selection Committee constituted under the provisions of the U.P. Secondary Education Services Commission (Removal of Difficulties) (Second) Order, 1981, the petitioner was recommended against the post having attained highest quality point marks amongst other candidates. The Committee of Management in its meeting held on 30.12.1996, accepting the recommendation of the Selection Committee, resolved to appoint the petitioner as Assistant Teacher in L.T. Grade on adhoc basis. The papers relating to appointment of the petitioner alongwith the resolution of the Committee of Management were forwarded to the District Inspector of Schools by the Manager of the institution on 31.12.1996 and were received in the office of the District Inspector of Schools on 3.1.1997. The Manager of the institution requested the District Inspector of Schools to accord financial approval of the adhoc appointment made by the Committee of Management. However, the District Inspector of Schools did not communicate its decision regarding disapproval or approval of the appointment made by the Committee within the stipulated period. As no communication was received from the office of the District Inspector of Schools, taking it to be a case of deemed approval, formal letter of appointment was issued to the petitioner on 15.1.1997 and he had joined his duty on 16.1.1997 as Assistant Teacher in L.T. Grade.

18. In this factual background, we may take note of the communication dated 10.9.1999 appended as Annexure "11' of the writ petition (page "86' of the paper book). The said letter was issued from the office of the District Inspector of Schools, Kushinagar and is addressed to the Manager of the institution concerned. The said letter is in relation to the approval of promotion of Shri Shambhu Sharan Singh from C.T. Grade to L.T. Grade. This letter shows that Shri Shambhu Sharan Singh was working in C.T. Grade and the proposal for his promotion to L.T. Grade against 50% quota for promotion was made by the Committee of Management on 2.12.1996.

19. This approval letter has been appended with the writ petition and is relied by the petitioner to assert that the observation in the order impugned that the approval was not granted to the promotion of Shri Shambhu Sharan Singh was incorrect. The order impugned is dated 30.7.2001 which records that the appointment of the petitioner had been made in L.T. Grade against the vacancy on account of promotion of Shri Shambhu Sharan Singh in L.T. Grade on 1.12.1996, whereas no approval of the promotion of Shri Shambhu Sharan Singh was granted by the District Inspector of Schools. Resultantly, no post became vacant.

20. In view of these facts, at the outset, it may be noted that the petitioner claims that he was appointed in L.T. Grade after promotion of Shri Shambhu Sharan Singh from C.T. Grade to L.T. Grade.

21. Admittedly, C.T. Grade was a lower grade and in case, it is accepted for a moment that the promotion of Shri Shambhu Sharan Singh from C.T. Grade to L.T. Grade was approved by the order dated 10.9.1999, which is appended as Annexure "11' to the writ petition, vacancy, if any, would have arisen in C.T. Grade and not in L.T. Grade. The appointment of the petitioner could not be made in L.T. grade on account of promotion of the said incumbent in L.T. grade.

Further, C.T. Grade was declared a dying cadre in pursuance of the recommendations made by the Pay Revision Committee, 1989 by the Government Order No. 3299/15.7.1989-1(136)/89 dated 11.8.1989 for the private higher secondary schools. Further clarifications were issued on 4.9.1990 and by the Government Order dated 19.2.1991, C.T. Grade was declared a dying cadre in government higher secondary schools and Intermediate colleges. It was directed that in future, no post in C.T. Grade shall be created, as the C.T. Grade had been declared a dying cadre and further recruitment in that grade was banned. By the Government Order dated 9.1.1992, it was declared that consequent to the C.T. Grade being declared as dying cadre, all such C.T. Grade teachers, who have completed ten years of satisfactory service and subject to their being trained graduates, shall be merged as L.T. Grade teachers. Meaning thereby that if a C.T. Grade teacher had already completed ten years of satisfactory service, he would be merged as L.T. Grade, and the cut-off date fixed was 1.1.1986. For those who did not complete ten years of satisfactory service on

1.1.1986, it was directed that they would be merged as Assistant Teacher (L.T. Grade) as soon as they complete ten years of satisfactory service.

22. It seems from the order of the District Inspector of Schools dated 10.9.1999 that the incumbent working in C.T. Grade namely Shri Shambhu Sharan Singh was merged in L.T. Grade against the post available in promotion quota. A further perusal of the order impugned dated 3.7.2001 indicates that the said proposal of promotion/merger of Shri Shambhu Sharan Singh was approved.

23. Be that as it may, whether the promotion or merger of Shri Shambhu Sharan Singh in L.T. Grade was approved or disapproved, in both eventuality, no post in L.T. Grade became vacant.

24. Meaning thereby that in case the promotion/merger of Shri Shambhu Sharan Singh in L.T. Grade was not approved, he would continue as C.T. Grade teacher till he would have fulfilled the requirement of merger/promotion in L.T. Grade.

25. On the other side, in case his promotion/merger in C.T. Grade was approved, there would occur no vacancy, the reason being that the C.T. Grade was a dying cadre and further recruitment in the said grade was banned. An incumbent working in C.T. Grade at the time of the issuance of the Government Order dated 19.2.1991 was entitled to be merged in L.T. Grade on completion of two conditions, i.e. ten years of satisfactory service on 1.1.1986 and possessing the qualification of being a trained graduates. Those who did not complete ten years of satisfactory service as on 1.1.1986 were merged later as Assistant Teacher in L.T. Grade as soon as they completed ten years of service and there occur vacancy in L.T. Grade in promotion quota.

26. In view of the above, the statement in the order impugned dated 3.7.2001 that there was no vacancy on account of promotion of Shri Shambhu Sharan Singh is found to be correct. Though the said order is not happily worded but the crux of the matter is that there occur no vacancy in L.T. Grade, against which the petitioner could have been appointed, terming it as appointment against a short term vacancy.

27. In view of the above discussion, on the merits of the case, the contention of the learned counsel for the petitioner that the petitioner was appointed against a short-term vacancy of L.T. Grade after following due procedure under the Act is found misconceived. As there was no vacancy, there was no occasion for the Committee of Management to notify the same or to make selection. The entire process of selection of the petitioner/appellant as Assistant Teacher, L.T. Grade adopted by the Committee of Management of the institution is absolutely illegal. The appointment of the petitioner is held to be void ab initio.

The writ petition is, accordingly, dismissed being devoid of merits.

In the result, the appeal stands dismissed.

A. Service Law – Compassionate Appointment - For all the government vacancies equal opportunity should be provided to all aspirants as mandated u/Article 14 and 16 of the Constitution. However, appointment on compassionate ground offered to a dependent of a deceased employee is an exception to the said norms. The compassionate ground is a concession and not a right. (Para 10)

Compassionate appointment is an exception to the general rule of appointment in the public services and is in favour of the dependents of a deceased dying in harness and leaving his family in penury and without any means of livelihood, and in such cases, out of pure humanitarian consideration taking into consideration the fact that unless some source of livelihood is provided, the family would not be able to make both ends meet, a provision is made in the rules to provide gainful employment to one of the dependants of the deceased who may be eligible for such employment. The whole object of granting compassionate employment is, thus, to enable the family to tide over the sudden crisis. The object is not to give such family a post much less a post held by the deceased. (Para 12)

In the writ petition the petitioner has not made any averment that the family of the petitioner which comprises of his father and himself has not been able to tide over the financial crisis resulting from the death of his mother in the year 2011. No averments have been made regarding the financial status of the family and himself. The petitioner has filed an affidavit of himself and his father stating that the father is 63 years of age and does farming and the petitioner is not employed in any government job. The petitioner is now 40 years of age. It is too late in the day to consider the case of the petitioner for compassionate appointment. (Para 8)

This Court is not inclined to interfere with the impugned order denying the petitioner compassionate appointment on the death of the mother of the petitioner who died-in-harness in the year 2011. If the appointment of the petitioner on compassionate grounds is now considered after 11 years of the death of the deceased employee, it would be against the very object and purpose for which appointment on compassionate grounds is provided. (Para 13)

Writ petition dismissed. (E-4)

Present petition assails order dated 08.07.2021, passed by Secretary, U.P. Basic Education Board, complying with order of this Court dated 03.09.2020, which directed respondent to consider petitioner's grievance. Prayer has also been made for compassionate appointment on a suitable post.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ashutosh Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Seemant Singh, learned counsel for the petitioner, learned Standing Counsel for the State-Respondent No.1 and Sri Prem Prakash Yadav, learned counsel for the Respondent Nos.2, 3 & 4.

2. By means of the present writ petition, the petitioner has prayed for issuance of a writ of certiorari quashing the impugned order dated 08.07.2021 passed by the Respondent No.2, Secretary, U.P. Basic Education Board, whereby the claim of the petitioner for compassionate appointment on a suitable post and according to his qualification has been rejected. A further prayer for mandamus commanding the respondents to grant compassionate appointment to the petitioner on the basis of the application dated 26.11.2011 and 10/14.11.2016 on a suitable post according to his qualification has also been made.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the mother of the petitioner was appointed as Assistant Teacher in Upper Primary School, Mustafabad, Block Jaleelpur, District Bijnor on 18.09.1997 and died-in-harness on 16.11.2011. After the death of his mother, the petitioner possessing a B.Sc. Degree, filed an application dated 26.11.2011 seeking compassionate appointment on the post of Assistant Teacher before the Respondent No.4, Block Education Officer, Jaleelpur, District Jaunpur. The application of the petitioner was forwarded to the Respondent No.3, District Basic Education Officer. The petitioner again filed another application dated 10.11.2016 before the Respondent No.3, Block Education Officer. Vide letter dated 13.12.2016 the Respondent No.2, District Basic Education Officer, informed the petitioner that his second application dated 13.12.2016 is being returned, treating the same to be time barred. By the said letter, the petitioner was required to complete all the formalities and submit an application seeking compassionate appointment on a post according to his qualification through proper channel. In pursuance of the letter dated 13.12.2016, the petitioner submitted his application dated 28.07.2017, which was duly received by the Respondent No.4. When no heed was paid on the application of the petitioner seeking compassionate appointment, the petitioner preferred Writ (A) No.6802 of 2020, which was disposed of vide order dated 03.09.2020 with a direction to the Respondent No.2, to consider the petitioner's grievance and pass appropriate speaking order within a period of two months. When the order dated 03.09.2020 was not complied with the petitioner filed Contempt Application (Civil) No.4588 of 2021, which was also disposed of vide order dated 26.10.2021 directing the opposite party to consider the case of the petitioner and comply with the order passed in Writ (A) No.6802 of 2020 within six weeks. In pursuance of the order passed by Writ Court and Contempt Court, the Respondent No.2, vide his order dated 08.07.2021 considered the representation dated 10.09.2020 filed by the petitioner and rejected his claim for compassionate appointment. Being aggrieved withe the aforesaid order, the petitioner has approached this Court by way of the present writ petition.

4. On instructions, Sri Prem Prakash Yadav, learned counsel appearing for the Respondent Nos.2, 3 & 4 submits at the time of filing of first application seeking compassionate appointment the petitioner did not possess the requisite educational qualification to be appointed as Assistant Teacher, therefore, his application was rejected by the District Basic Education Officer. After five years, the petitioner again filed application dated 25.11.2016. Vide letter dated 13.12.2016 the petitioner was directed to file proper application for compassionate appointment on a prescribed format. After the letter dated 13.12.2016 issued by the respondent authority, the petitioner failed to file proper application on a prescribed format for about four years. The petitioner again on 12.06.2020 filed application seeking compassionate appointment, which is highly belated as such the appointment of the petitioner has rightly been rejected by the respondent authorities.

5. I have heard learned counsel for the petitioner, learned Standing Counsel representing the State Respondents and Sri Prem Prakash Yadav, learned counsel representing the Respondent Nos.2, 3 & 4 and have perused the record.

6. On the perusal of the record, it is borne out that the mother of the petitioner who was employed as Assistant Teacher died in harness on 16.11.2011. The petitioner vide application dated 26.11.2011 made an application seeking compassionate appointment on the post of Assistant Teacher. The said application was turned down on the ground that the petitioner did not possess the requisite educational/essential qualification prescribed for appointment as Assistant Teacher. The petitioner did not pursue his application further and after nearly 5 years filed another application dated 10.11.2016 seeking compassionate appointment on suitable post as per qualification. This application bears the date of receipt as 25.11.2016 which has been interpreted to read 15.11.2016. The application was treated to have been filed beyond 5 years of the death of the employee and as such was forwarded to the Secretary, U.P. Basic Shiksha Parishad, Prayagraj, as he was the Competent Authority to consider the case of the petitioner for compassionate appointment. When nothing was done by the Secretary, U.P. Basic Education the petitioner filed Writ (A) No.6802 of 2020 which was disposed of vide order dated 03.09.2020 directing the Secretary, Basic Shiksha Parishad to consider the petitioner's grievance within two months through a speaking order. While disposing of the writ petition, this Court noticed that the petitioner at the relevant time was 39 year and at the time of the death of his mother was 30 years and in such view of the matter the Secretary while considering the claim was required to look into the eligibility of the petitioner for compassionate appointment and also advert to the status of the petitioner's father at the time of the death of the mother of the petitioner and whether the family was in dire financial crisis or there was availability of alternative source of bred and butter as compassionate appointment cannot be a source of backdoor entry and the only purpose is to mitigate the undue hardship caused to the family due to the death of the bread earner.

7. A perusal of the impugned order dated 08.07.2021 passed by the Secretary, Basic Shiksha Parishad, Prayagraj, reveals that the Secretary has not at all adhered to the directions of this Court dated 03.09.2020 passed in Writ (A) No.6820 of 2020 in as much as there is no discussion or finding recorded on the financial status of the family, whether the father of the petitioner was in employment or not and the claim has been rejected simply on the ground that it was not filed on proper format and was not liable to be entertained in terms of Clause 8 of the Government Order dated 04.09.2000.

8. In the writ petition the petitioner has not made any averment that the family of the petitioner which comprises of his father and himself have not been able to tide over the financial crisis resulting from the death of his mother in the year 2011. No averments have been made regarding the financial status of the family and himself. The petitioner has filed an affidavit of himself and his father as Annexure No.4 to the writ petition stating that the father is 63 years of age and does farming and the petitioner is not employed in any government job. The petitioner is now 40 years of age. This Court in normal circumstances would have remanded the matter back to the Secretary, Basic Shiksha Parishad, Prayagraj, for decision afresh strictly in terms of the order dated 03.09.2020 passed in Writ (A) No.6820 of 2020. However, considering the age of the writ petitioner the Court is of the opinion that it is too late in the day to consider the case of the petitioner for compassionate appointment.

9. The Apex Court in a recent decision dated 30.09.2022 passed in Civil Appeal No.6958 of 2022 (Fertilizers and Chemicals Travancore Ltd. & others Vs. Anusree K. B.) while dealing with a case of compassionate appointment after 24 years from the death of the deceased employee, considering the law laid down in the case of Director of Treasuries in Karnataka and Another Vs. V. Somyashree, (2021 SCC online SC 704) after referring to the decision rendered in N. C. Santhosh Vs. State of Karnataka (2020) 7 SCC 617, summarized the principles governing the grant of appointment on compassionate grounds as under:-

"(i) that the compassionate appointment is an exception to the general rule;

(ii) that no aspirant has a right to compassionate appointment;

(iii) the appointment to any public post in the service of the State has to be made on the basis of the principle in accordance with Articles 14 and 16 of the Constitution of India;

(iv) appointment on compassionate ground can be made only on fulfilling the norms laid down by the State's policy and/or satisfaction of the eligibility criteria as per the policy;

(v) the norms prevailing on the date of the consideration of the application should be the basis for consideration of claim for compassionate appointment."

10. The Apex Court went on to observe that "as per the law laid down by this Court in catena of decisions on the appointment on compassionate ground for all the government vacancies equal opportunity should be provided to all aspirants as mandated under Article 14 and 16 of the Constitution. However, appointment on compassionate ground offered to a dependent of a deceased employee is an exception to the said norms. The compassionate ground is a concession and not a right.

11. Then again in the case of State of Himachal Pradesh and Anr. Vs. Shashi Kumar reported in (2019) 3 SCC 653, the Apex Court had the occasion to consider the object and purpose of appointment on compassionate ground and considered the decision in the case of Govind Prakash Verma Vs. LIC, reported in (2005) 10 SCC 289, particularly in paras 21 and 26, which are being reproduced hereunder :-

"21. The decision in Govind Prakash Verma [Govind Prakash Verma v. LIC, (2005) 10 SCC 289, has been considered subsequently in several decisions. But, before we advert to those decisions, it is necessary to note that the nature of compassionate appointment had been considered by this Court in Umesh Kumar Nagpal v. State of Haryana [Umesh Kumar Nagpal v. State of Haryana, (1994) 4 SCC 138]. The principles which have been laid down in Umesh Kumar Nagpal [Umesh Kumar Nagpal v. State of Haryana, (1994) 4 SCC 138] have been subsequently followed in a consistent line of precedents in this Court. These principles are encapsulated in the following extract: (Umesh Kumar Nagpal case [Umesh Kumar Nagpal v. State of Haryana, (1994) 4 SCC 138], SCC pp. 139-40, para 2) "2. ... As a rule, appointments in the public services should be made strictly on the basis of open invitation of applications and merit. No other mode of appointment nor any other consideration is permissible. Neither the Governments nor the public authorities are at liberty to follow any other procedure or relax the qualifications laid down by the rules for the post. However, to this general rule which is to be followed strictly in every case, there are some exceptions carved out in the interests of justice and to meet certain contingencies. One such exception is in favour of the dependants of an employee dying in harness and leaving his family in penury and without any means of livelihood. In such cases, out of pure humanitarian consideration taking into consideration the fact that unless some source of livelihood is provided, the family would not be able to make both ends meet, a provision is made in the rules to provide gainful employment to one of the dependants of the deceased who may be eligible for such employment. The whole object of granting compassionate employment is thus to enable the family to tide over the sudden crisis. The object is not to give a member of such family a post much less a post for post held by the deceased. What is further, mere death of an employee in harness does not entitle his family to such source of livelihood. The Government or the public authority concerned has to examine the financial condition of the family of the deceased, and it is only if it is satisfied, that but for the provision of employment, the family will not be able to meet the crisis that a job is to be offered to the eligible member of the family. The posts in Classes III and IV are the lowest posts in non- manual and manual categories and hence they alone can be offered on compassionate grounds, the object being to relieve the family, of the financial destitution and to help it get over the emergency. The provision of employment in such lowest posts by making an exception to the rule is justifiable and valid since it is not discriminatory. The favourable treatment given to such dependant of the deceased employee in such posts has a rational nexus with the object sought to be achieved viz. relief against destitution. No other posts are expected or required to be given by the public authorities for the purpose. It must be remembered in this connection that as against the destitute family of the deceased there are millions of other families which are equally, if not more destitute. The exception to the rule made in favour of the family of the deceased employee is in consideration of the services rendered by him and the legitimate expectations, and the change in the status and affairs, of the family engendered by the erstwhile employment which are suddenly upturned."

26. The judgment of a Bench of two Judges in Mumtaz Yunus Mulani v. State of Maharashtra [(2008) 11 SCC 384] has adopted the principle that appointment on compassionate grounds is not a source of recruitment, but a means to enable the family of the deceased to get over a sudden financial crisis. The financial position of the family would need to be evaluated on the basis of the provisions contained in the scheme. The decision in Govind Prakash Verma [Govind Prakash Verma v. LIC, (2005) 10 SCC 289 : 2005 SCC (L&S) 590] has been duly considered, but the Court observed that it did not appear that the earlier binding precedents of this Court have been taken note of in that case."

12. The Apex Court thus observed:-

"Thus as per the law laid down by this Court in the aforesaid decisions, compassionate appointment is an exception to the general rule of appointment in the public services and is in favour of the dependents of a deceased dying in harness and leaving his family in penury and without any means of livelihood, and in such cases, out of pure humanitarian consideration taking into consideration the fact that unless some source of livelihood is provided, the family would not be able to make both ends meet, a provision is made in the rules to provide gainful employment to one of the dependants of the deceased who may be eligible for such employment. The whole object of granting compassionate employment is, thus, to enable the family to tide over the sudden crisis. The object is not to give such family a post much less a post held by the deceased."

13. Applying the law laid down by the Apex Court in the aforesaid decisions to the facts and circumstances of the present case and considering the observations made in the aforesaid decisions and the object and purpose for which the appointment on compassionate ground is provided, the Court is not inclined to interfere with the impugned order denying the petitioner compassionate appointment on the death of the mother of the petitioner who died-in-harness in the year 2011. If the appointment of the petitioner on compassionate grounds is now considered after 11 years of the death of the deceased employee, it would be against the very object and purpose for which appointment on compassionate grounds is provided.

14. The writ petition fails and is, accordingly, dismissed.

THE HON'BLE NEERAJ TIWARI, J.

Writ-A No. 15413 of 2022

Vaishali Dwivedi ...Petitioner
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Sri Ratnakar Udadhyay, Sri R.K. Ojha (Sr. Advocate)

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C., Sri M.N. Singh

A. Service Law – Selection – Correction in application form - Once the petitioner has not proceeded to comply with the instruction and committed error, is not entitled for any relief. Once the Commission is not at fault and action of Commission is not arbitrary, there is no occasion for this Court to interfere in such matter by permitting the candidate to appear in the Main Examination, who has admittedly not followed the instruction so given in advertisement. (Para 16, 18)

In the present case, it is clear that petitioner had the opportunity to correct her application form including category, but she did not avail the same. Further, paragraph 14(2) of advertisement is very specific in nature, which clearly says that on submission of false/misleading information, the candidature will be cancelled and undisputedly, information so provided by the petitioner in her application form is false. (Para 11)

In paragraph 4 & 14(2) of the advertisement dated 16.3.2022, it is clearly mentioned that in case of any mistake while filling up the online application form, candidates may correct the same within the last date of submission of form. Para 14(2) of the said advertisement clearly provides that in case change of category, no application for error correction/modification shall be acceptable. (Para 7, 10, 19)

Once the instructions are mentioned in the advertisement, it is required on the part of candidate to follow the same. In case of failure for any reason on the part of candidates, cannot be a ground to grant any relief. In fact, interference at this stage by the Court would be opening of the Pandora's Box, which may derail the complete examination process causing irreparable loss to the candidates, who have followed terms and conditions of advertisement, while submitting the application form. (Para 18)

B. It is undisputed that petitioner has not challenged the notice dated 22.4.2022 (which permitted the candidates to remove the deficiency w.r.t. photographs and signatures) before the Court, therefore, he cannot be given any benefit as claimed by her. It is within the domain of Commission to grant relaxation, which shall attain finality, if not challenged by the aggrieved person. (Para 13)

Petitioner argues that the action of Commission permitting the candidates to remove the deficiency w.r.t. photographs and signatures vide notice dated 22.4.2022, is arbitrary as once the candidates have been granted an opportunity to remove the deficiencies, that should have been granted for all deficiencies and should not be confined only for two. Therefore, it is required on the part of Commission to accept her request and change her candidature from SC category to General category. (Para 5)

C. There is no dispute between the parties that benefit of reservation is given only at the stage of final result prepared after interview. Result of Preliminary and Main Examinations of all candidates are declared only under the category, which is mentioned by the candidates. (Para 12)

The argument of the petitioner that once she has informed that she does not belong to SC category, her result should have been reconsidered and in case, she has obtained more marks than the minimum cutoff marks fixed for General Category, her result should have been declared under the category of General Candidates, has no force. (Para 5, 12)

D. The petitioner cannot be permitted to derail the entire recruitment process as she chose to wait for the last date. (Para 17)

Petitioner submits that she has filled up her form on the last date, therefore, she could not avail the facility (modification/correction in application form as prescribed) so provided under the para 4 of the advertisement. (Para 5, 10)

Writ petition dismissed. (E-4)

1. Prashant Kumar Dwivedi & another Vs State of U.P. & ors., Writ-A No. 5383 of 2020, decided on 28.08.2020 (Para 6, 14)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Neeraj Tiwari, J.)

1. Heard Sri R.K. Ojha, Senior Advocate holding brief of Sri Ratnakar Upadhyay, learned counsel for the petitioner and learned Standing Counsel for the respondent no.1 and Sri M.N. Singh, learned counsel for the respondent nos. 2 & 3.

2. As the facts of the case are undisputed, therefore, with the consent of parties, writ petition is decided at this stage without calling for the counter affidavit.

3. Present petition has been filed with the following prayers:-

"(i) A writ order or directing in the nature of mandamus commanding the respondent-authorities of the U.P. Public Service Commission, Prayagraj to permit the petitioner to make necessary correcting in the application form as General Category (UR) in place of SC category."

(ii) A writ, order or directing in the nature of mandamus commanding the respondent-authorities of the U.P. Public Service Commission, Prayagraj to issue admit card in favour of the petitioner for appearing in the mains combined State/Upper Subordinate Services Examination, 2022 which is going to be held on 27.9.2022."

4. Learned Senior Counsel submitted that U.P. Public Service Commission, Prayagraj (hereinafter referred to as Commission) has issued advertisement on 16.3.2022 inviting the application form for selection on the different posts of State Services by conducting Combined State/Upper Subordinate Services Examination, 2022 (hereinafter referred to as Examination, 2022). Pursuant to that, petitioner has filled up the application form. Examination, 2022 is having three phases i.e., Preliminary Examination, Main Examination & Interview He next submitted that petitioner belongs to General Category, but by mistake she filled up her form under the SC category and also appeared in the said examination. She was declared successful in the Preliminary Examination under SC category though she obtained more marks than the minimum cutoff marks for the General Category Candidate. He further submitted that after knowing about her mistake, she has written application to the Commission to correct her category from SC category to General category, but the same was not considered by the Commission and her candidature was rejected.

5. Learned Senior Counsel submitted that he is assailing the action of Commission on two grounds. Firstly, Commission has published notice dated 22.4.2022 permitting the candidates to remove the deficiency with regard to photographs and signatures, if any. He next submitted that action of Commission is arbitrary as once the candidates have been granted an opportunity to remove the deficiencies, that should have been granted for all deficiencies and should not be confined only for two. Therefore, it is required on the part of Commission to accept her request and change her candidature from SC category to General category. Secondly, he submitted that once the petitioner has informed that she does not belong to SC category, her result should have been reconsidered and in case, she has obtained more marks than the minimum cutoff marks fixed for General Category, her result should have been declared under the category of General Candidates. He also submitted that petitioner has filled up his form on the last date, therefore, she could not avail the facility so provided under the para 4 of the advertisement. He lastly submitted that by the change of category, he will not be benefited in any way, therefore, her mistake has to be taken bonafide and action taken by the Commission is bad. Petitioner may be permitted to appear in the Main Examination.

6. In support of his contention, he has placed reliance upon the of judgment of this Court in the case of Prashant Kumar Dwivedi & another vs. State of U.P. and others passed in Writ-A No. 5383 of 2020 decided on 28.8.2020.

7. Per contra Mr. M.N. Singh, learned counsel for the Commission vehemently opposed the submission of learned counsel for the petitioner and submitted that in paragraph 4 & 14(2) of the advertisement dated 16.3.2022, it is clearly mentioned that in case of any mistake while filling up the online application form, candidates may correct the same within the last date of submission of form. He next submitted that paragraph 14(2) of the said advertisement clearly provides that in case change of category, no application for error correction/modification shall be acceptable. It also says that on submission of false/misleading information, the candidature will be cancelled.

8. Learned counsel for the Commission further submitted that notice dated 22.4.2022 is very much clear, which permits only for removal of deficiency with regard to photograph and signatures. In case, petitioner is aggrieved with the same, it is required on her part to challenge the same, which has never been challenged, therefore, she cannot be given any benefit as argued by the learned counsel for the petitioner. So far as second submission of learned counsel for the petitioner is concerned, he submitted that as per policy decision of Commission, benefit of reservation is extended only at the stage of preparation of final result. He further clarified that result of Preliminary and Main Examinations are declared under the category mentioned by the Candidates in its application form and verification of record is only done at the time of appearance in interview. Therefore, in light of para 4 & 14(2) of the advertisement dated 16.3.2022, category of petitioner cannot be changed and further his candidature has rightly been rejected. In support of his contention, he has placed reliance upon the series of judgments of this Court in the cases of Santosh Kumar Pandey vs. State of U.P. and others passed in Writ-A No. 66487 of 2015 decided on 22.12.2015, Prabhakar Mani Tripathi Vs. State of U.P. and others passed in Writ-A No. 17824 of 2019 decided on 21.11.2019 and Km. Priyanka Chaturvedy vs. State of U.P. and others passed in Writ-A No. 485 of 2022 decided on 21.3.2022.

9. I have considered the rival submissions advanced by the learned counsel for the parties and perused the advertisement as well as judgments relied by the learned counsel for the parties.

10. Facts of the case are undisputed by the parties. Paragraph 4 & 14(2) of the advertisement dated 16.3.2022 is having provision to deal with such controversy, which is subject matter before this Court and same is quoted hereinbelow:-

"4. Modify Submitted Application: If a candidate comes to know about any error/errors in the submitted application form except in name of the examination and type of recruitment, Registered Mobile Number, E-mail ID, Aadhaar Number and such cases where prescribed fee for modified category is higher (In case of error in these entries, candidate may submit new online application with prescribed fee only as previously deposited fee will neither be adjusted nor refunded.) He/she will be given only one opportunity to modify it/them according to the following procedure before the last date of the submission of application form..... "

(2) The claim of category, subcategory, domicile, gender, date of birth, name and address will be valid only till the last date of online application. In this regard no application for error correction/modification shall be acceptable. Incomplete application form shall be summarilly rejected and no correspondence shall be entertained in this regard. On submission of false/misleading information, the candidature will be cancelled."

11. From perusal of the same, it is apparently clear that she was having opportunity to correct her application form including category, but she has not availed the same. Further, paragraph 14(2) of said advertisement is very specific in nature, which clearly says that on submission of false/misleading information, the candidature will be cancelled and undisputedly, information so provided by the petitioner in her application form is false.

12. So far as second argument of learned counsel for the petitioner about the controverting of category from SC category to General category on the basis of marks obtained in Preliminary Examination is concerned, that is also having no force. There is no dispute between the parties that benefit of reservation is given only at the stage of final result prepared after interview. Result of Preliminary and Main Examinations of all candidates are declared only under the category, which is mentioned by the candidates.

13. Further, it is undisputed that petitioner has not challenged the notice dated 22.4.2022 before the Court, therefore, he cannot be given any benefit as claimed by her. It is within the domain of Commission to grant relaxation, which shall attain finality, if not challenged by the aggrieved person.

14. I have perused the judgment of this Court in the matter of Prashant Kumar Dwivedi (supra) so relied by the learned counsel for the petitioner. From perusal of the same, it is clear that controversy in the said judgment is entirely different on facts. In that case, candidates are required to submit certificates duly countersigned by the Principal/Manager/Registrar and Joint Director of Education of the Mandal concerned and those certificates submitted by the petitioners were not countersigned by the authorities. Commission has granted extra time to such candidates to file certificate duly countersigned by the authorities mentioned hereinabove. The action of Commission was under challenged and ultimately Court has dismissed the writ petition, therefore, this judgment will not help the petitioner in the present case.

15. I have also perused the judgment of this Court in the case of Prabhakar Mani Tripathi (Supra) relied by the learned counsel for the Commission. In the said judgment, the very same dispute was in question about the change of category and Court after considering the facts of the case, dismissed the writ petition vide order dated 21.11.2019. The said judgment is being quoted hereinbelow:-

"Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Shikhar Tandon holding brief of Sri Avneesh Tripathi, learned counsel for the U.P.Public Service Commission.

Petitioner is before this Court with a request to issue a mandamus commanding the respondents to consider the petitioner as physically handicapped category and rectify the petitioner's mistake in the column-16 and 16.3 in online form bearing Registration No. 30421315447 for the Review Officer/Assistant Review Officer(General and Special Recruitment) Examination 2017.

At the very outset, an objection has been raised by Sri Tandon that so far as the advertisement dated 30.12.2017 issued by the U.P.P.S.C., the same was unambiguous and categorical and has placed reliance upon para 14 sub clause (2), which is reproduced herein below.

"No change in category, sub-category, Date of Birth etc. is permissible after the receipt of application form in the office of the Commission. In this regard no application for error correction/modification shall be acceptable."

In this backdrop, initially on the basis of the said instructions, the petitioner has downloaded the form, filled up the same and thereafter submitted in the office of the Commission. He has again downloaded the admit card for appearing in the preliminary examination and only thereafter, the present application for correction/modification in application form has been pressed. Once, the categorical instructions were given as aforementioned, in such situation, as per terms and conditions of the advertisement, it is impermissible that thereafter, the petitioner can apply for correction in the application form.

Once an objection is being raised, the Court has proceeded to examine the record in question as well as advertisement dated 30.12.2017. Bare perusal of the advertisement especially para 14 (2), this Court is of the view once the petitioner has undergone with aforesaid process, thereafter, as per instruction, he cannot avail the relief as has been asked for and as such, the Court declines to interfere under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

The writ petition lacks merit and is accordingly dismissed."

16. This Court in the matter of Santosh Kumar Pandey (Supra) has taken firm view that once the petitioner has not proceeded to comply with the instruction and committed error, is not entitled for any relief and dismissed the writ petition Relevant paragraph of the said judgement are quoted below:-

"To see and ensure that identity of candidate is not reflected from the Answer Sheet and there is zero humane interference, important instructions have been issued with clear cut mention that in case there is an error, following consequences would ensue. Once instructions in question are coupled with consequences, then such instructions necessarily will have to be accepted as of being mandatory in character.

Once such is the factual situation and the law on the subject is clear that instructions in question have to be interpreted in the context of object for which it has been framed and here, in this era of computerization, once petitioner has proceeded not to comply with the instructions and has committed error not at one place but at two places in the OMR sheet and same mistake has been repeated in attendance-sheet, then he has to blame himself and same cannot be dubbed as humane error.

Consequently, in the facts of the case, in case any directive is given to U.P. Public Service Commission to undertake such an exercise as has been prayed by the petitioner, then it would not only open flood gate, same would make way for humane intervention and give chance of manipulation and manoeuvring in the fool proof scheme prepared by U.P. Public Service Commission and any interference by us would tantamount to creating a fresh forum i.e. not provided for.

Writ petition is dismissed accordingly."

17. I have also perused the judgment of this Court in the case of Km. Priyanka Chaturvedi (supra). The said judgment was placed by the learned counsel for the Commission in reply to submission made by the learned counsel for the petitioner about the submission of application form on the last date. Court has considered this view and reject the same. Relevant paragraph of the said judgement is quoted hereinbelow:-

"The petitioner has sufficient opportunity to go about the exercise of uploading his application form for Main Examination of P.C.S.-2021. He took risk of waiting for the last date and by some misfortune, could not do so on account of vagaries of the internet, which the petitioner has alleged in the writ petition. Even otherwise, the grounds for passing the impugned order by U.P. Public Service Commission has not been denied by the petitioner in her amendment application. Further, the petitioner cannot be permitted to derail the entire recruitment process as she chose to wait for the last date.

In this view of the matter, this Court is of the opinion that the petitioner is not entitled for any relief."

18. In light of such factual position as well as law pronounced by the Courts on different occasions, this Court is of the firm view that once the instructions are mentioned in the advertisement, it is required on the part of candidate to follow the same. In case of failure for any reason on the part of candidates, cannot be a ground to grant any relief. In fact, interference at this stage by the Court would be opening of the Pandora's Box, which may derail the complete examination process causing irreparable loss to the candidates, who have followed terms and conditions of advertisement, while submitting the application form. Once the Commission is not at fault and action of Commission is not arbitrary, there is no occasion for this Court to interfere in such matter by permitting the candidate to appear in the Main Examination, who has admittedly not followed the instruction so given in advertisement.

19. So far as present case is concerned, petitioner, though having full opportunity, has not followed the instruction given in the advertisement dated 16.3.2022 to correct his category from SC to General, therefore, she is not entitled for any relief and her candidature has rightly been rejected.

20. In view of above facts mentioned hereinabove as well as law laid by this Court, the writ petition lacks merit and is, accordingly, dismissed. No order as to costs.

ORIGINAL JURISDICTION
CIVIL SIDE

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE MRS. SANGEETA CHANDRA, J.

Writ - A No. 13744 of 2021

Subhramaniyam ...Petitioner
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Sri Abhiuday Mehrotra, Sri Shailendra, Sr. Advocate

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C., Sri Ved Byas Mishra, Sri Mani Shanker Mishra

A. Service Law – Retirement – Change in Date of Birth - Class-IV Employees Service Rules, 1975 - Indian Majority Act - Just as an employee cannot be permitted to get his date of birth changed at the fag end of his service, the same rule would apply to the employer also and the date of birth could not have been changed without due inquiry and show cause notice to the petitioner. The employer cannot of its own ignore the High School Certificate which had been duly verified by the U.P. Board only on the basis of incorrect date of birth mentioned in the service records. (Para 14, 21)

Once the date of birth is entered into the service record as per the educational certificate, and accepted by the employee, the same cannot be changed. In the case of the petitioner no request for change of date of birth in the service records was made by the petitioner. It was the respondents themselves who had issued notice of retirement and thereafter, the petitioner made a representation that his High School Certificate was already available with the Respondent Corporation as he had submitted the same in 1997 at the time of his promotion. (Para 19)

There is a clear mention by the petitioner in writ petition that he had submitted his educational certificate in 1991 after getting a copy of High School Certificate by him on 21.03.1991. Only thereafter he was promoted in 1991 as a Class-III employee. However such a statement in the writ petition has not been denied in the counter affidavit of the respondents. It was the duty of the respondents to correct the date of birth of the petitioner, if it had been wrongly recorded in his service record earlier, after he submitted his High School Certificate to them in 1991, and at the time of his promotion 1997 as a Class-III employee. It is not as if the petitioner had passed High School after he had joined service. In fact he had passed High School in 1980 and he entered service in May, 1982. So it cannot said that he deliberately mentioned a wrong date of birth at the time of filling up of his High School Form for the examination. (Para 20)

B. If the writ petitioner was admitted into service below age, both parties were equally guilty; no misrepresentation of the writ petitioner is on record. The service that was rendered by the writ petitioner while still under age, was paid for by the appellant, and no more. The breach of rules on both sides cannot make the writ petitioner get born earlier. (Para 15)

Editor's note: In the present case, though the Hon'ble Court while exercising an equitable discretion has allowed the change in DOB following the observations in Sayta Narain (Driver) (infra) but did not follow observations regarding salary and refused the arrears of salary for the period the petitioner was not in service. (Refer Para 15)

The notice of retirement dated 28.05.2021 is set aside. The petitioner having already retired on 30.09.2021 and having not worked for more than a year cannot be given arrears of salary on the principle of 'no work no pay'. The petitioner shall be allowed to work up to 30.11.2024 treating his date of birth as 06.11.1964 giving him continuity of service and annual increments and pay fixation accordingly. The appropriate order for joining of the petitioner at his previous place of posting shall be passed by the Managing Director, the respondent no. 2 within four weeks from the date of receipt of copy of this Order. Present petition assails the notice of retirement dated 28.05.2021 communicating to him the date of his retirement as 30.09.2021, treating his DOB as 04.09.1961.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Sangeeta Chandra, J.)

(Oral)

1. Heard Sri Shailendra, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Abhiuday Mehrotra, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Mani Shanker Mishra, Advocate holding brief of Sri Ved Byas Mishra, learned counsel for the respondents.

2. The petitioner has challenged the notice of retirement dated 28.05.2021 communicating to him the date of his retirement as 30.09.2021, treating his date of birth as 04.09.1961.

3. It is the case of the petitioner that he was initially engaged as a daily wage employee/Peon at the Ghaziabad Office of U.P Scheduled Caste Finance and Development Corporation Limited. Later on, his appointment was made regular as per the Class-IV Employees Service Rules, 1975. At the time of his entry into service his date of birth was recorded as 04.09.1961. However, the petitioner had passed his High School in the year 1980 and when he was appointed in the year 1982, he did not posses the pass certificate, he only possesed the mark sheet of having passed High School. He received his High School pass certificate on 21.03.1991 which showed his date of birth as 06.11.1964. The petitioner was subsequently promoted as a Class-III employee on 30.08.1997 and at the time of his promotion he submitted a copy of his High School Certificate which he had received from the U.P. High School and Intermediate Education Board in the year 1991.

4. There being an apparent discrepancy in the date of birth mentioned in his Original Service Book and in his High School passed certificate. A letter was issued on 15.10.2020 from the Head Office at Lucknow to the District Unit, Ghaziabad regarding verification of age and correct date of birth of the petitioner to which the District Unit replied on 06.11.2010. Subsequently, the Service Book of the petitioner was also sent by the District Unit of the Corporation to the Head Office on 07.01.2021. The Head Office at Lucknow issued a letter to the U.P. Board of High School and Intermediate Education to verify the High School pass certificate of the petitioner and the date of birth mentioned therein through a letter dated 01.03.2021. The Intermediate Education Board sent a copy of the report of the Principal of the Institution where the petitioner had studied and also a copy of their own records on 29.06.2021 saying that as per their records, the petitioner's date of birth is mentioned as 06.11.1964. A copy of the letter sent by the Secretary of Madhyamik Shiksha Parishad U. P., Allahabad has been filed as Annexure-10 to the petition. The report submitted by the Chitrakoot Inter College, Moradabad dated 25.05.2021 has also been annexed as Annexure-09 to the petition.

5. After verification of date of birth from the Board as well as the from the institution in which the petitioner had studied, all of sudden a notice has been issued to the petitioner on 28.05.2021 communicating date of retirement of the petitioner as 30.09.2021. Subsequently, the petitioner received a notice/letter dated 14.07.2021 from the Head Office at Lucknow asking for original High School and Intermediate Certificate, Addhar Card, PAN Card which were sent by the District Office to the Managing Director. The petitioner also represented the matter before the Managing Director at the Head Office at Lucknow through proper channel i.e. through the District Manager wherein he submitted that he had passed his High School before his appointment in the year 1980 i.e. much before his appointment in 1982 and his date of birth was mentioned as 06.11.1964. The date of birth mentioned in his service record was incorrect and he should be allowed to work till 30.11.2024. However, nothing was done in the matter.

6. It has been argued by the learned counsel appearing for the petitioner that there are two Government Orders dated 23.08.1965 and 19.01.1976 with regard to the date of superannuation of the employees, and it has been clearly mentioned therein that the same can only be decided on the basis of High School Certificate. Copies of the said Government Orders have been filed as Annexure-16 and 17 to the writ petition.

7. It has been fairly admitted by the learned counsel for the petitioner that in the absence of an interim order passed in this case, the petitioner was retired on 30.09.2021 by the respondents. However, it has also been stated that if this Court is pleased to find that injustice has been done to the petitioner it can direct the respondents to treat the date of retirement of the petitioner as 30.11.2024 and allow him to work till 30.11.2024 treating him to be wrongly retired on 30.09.2021.

8. In the counter affidavit filed by the respondent Corporation the contents of the writ petition in so far as they relate to the date of passing of High School by the petitioner in 1980, the date of appointment of the petitioner in 1982 and his promotion in 1997 and the verification of his High School Certificate from the U. P. Board of High School and Intermediate Education and the substance of the Government Order dated 23.08.1965 and 19.01.1976 have not been denied. However, the respondents have denied the date of birth of the petitioner as according to them, the petitioner at the time of entry into service had declared his the date of birth as 06.09.1961.

9. It has been stated that the petitioner was appointed initially on daily wage basis in the District Office at Ghaziabad on 10.03.1981, thereafter, he was appointed as regular Peon in 1982 and promoted temporarily on Class-III post as Assistant Grade-III/Vasuli Sahayak by an Order dated 13.08.1997. At the time of his initial appointment, the petitioner had mentioned his date of birth as 04.09.1961 and the same was recorded not only in his service book, but also in his Employees Provident Fund Scheme Form on which entry was made by the petitioner himself and not by the respondents. All through his service tenure, the petitioner was aware that his date of birth as being mentioned in the service record was 04.09.1961 and that he was due to retire in 30.09.2021, it is only after issuance of the retirement notice to the petitioner in May, 2021 that a dispute had been created by the petitioner at the fag end of his service career, it is impermissible in view of the law settled by the Supreme Court. The counsel for the respondent Corporation has pointed out a copy of the application initially submitted by the petitioner for his appointment as a Class-IV employee which has been filed as CA-01 to the counter affidavit. In the said application the petitioner has mentioned that he had passed High School and that he was 19 years old and that he had earlier worked on daily wage basis in the office and that he had come to know that the District Office had a vacancy of Class-IV employee for which he may be considered for appointment. His case was strongly recommended and forwarded to the Managing Director of the Corporation at Lucknow by the District Manager on 25.04.1982. In the letter dated 25.04.1982 sent by the District Manager to the Managing Director Corporation mention has also been made of the fact that after permission was granted on 30.07.1981 to initiate the process for selection of Class-IV employees in existing vacancies names were invited from the Employment Exchange, Moradabad. Fourteen names were sent by the Employment Exchange and one application of the petitioner was received by hand in the office straightway making a number of applicants as fifteen and that interview was held on 27.03.1982 and that the petitioner was found most suitable as he was already High School pass and had worked for sometime on daily wage basis in the office and he knew the work that had to be performed in the office. The letter dated 22.05.1982 sent by the Managing Director of the Corporation to the District Manager giving permission for appointment of the petitioner as Regular Class-IV Employee/Messenger in the pay scale of Rs.165-250/-, had also asked the District Manager to send the educational certificates of the petitioner, his Caste Certificate, his certificate regarding his Marital Status and Certificate of Medical Fitness. A copy of letter dated 22.05.1982 has been filed at page 13 of the counter affidavit.

10. It has been argued by the learned counsel for the respondent Corporation that in all the records of the Corporation the petitioner's date of birth has been mentioned clearly. Such records are shown periodically to the employees and they also sign on such papers circulated. No where did the petitioner ever challenge his date of birth as having been wrongly mentioned as 04.09.1961 and the reason for keeping quiet in the matter was that had the petitioner claimed that he was born on 06.11.1964 and not on 04.09.1961, then he would have been ineligible to be appointed as a Class-IV employee as the minimum age required for such post is completion of 18 years as per the Class-IV Employees Service Rules of the State Government, which the petitioner himself has filed as Annexure-02 to the writ petition. The petitioner had through out concealed his actual date of birth and at the fag end of his service tenure he had submitted his High School Certificate showing his date of birth as 06.11.1964.

11. Sri Shailendra, on the other hand, has pointed out that it is not as if the petitioner had submitted his High School Certificate showing his date of birth as 06.11.1964 only after receipt of retirement notice but the High School Certificate of the petitioner was asked for from the District Office by the Head Office at Lucknow initially in 1982, and thereafter, also at the time of his promotion as Class-III employee in 1997. All along the employers had notice of the petitioner having passed his High School in 1982 and that his recorded date of birth was 06.11.1964. In fact a verification of his date of birth and other details as mentioned in the High School Pass Certificate issued to the petitioner in March, 1991 was also got made by the Respondent Corporation from the Principal of the institution in which he had studied and also from the U.P. Board of High School and Intermediate Education.

12. It has been argued that only because of oversight the petitioner did not try and get corrected his date of birth in his original service records which continued to mention his date of birth as 04.09.1961.

13. Learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance upon three judgements of this Court namely:-

(i) Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 38194 of 2000, ' Raj Narain Malviya Vs. Zila Panchayat, Sant Ravi Das Nagar & Another, decided on 06.09.2005,

(ii) Shiv Charan Vs. Executive Officer, Nagar Palika Parishad, Lalitpur and Another 2006 (6) ADJ 310,

(iii) U.P. Power Corporation Ltd. and Another Vs. Satya Narain (Driver) and Another 2005 (2) ESC 1246 (Allahabad) (DB),

14. It has been submitted on the basis of two judgements of this Court rendered by the Co-ordinate Benches and also one by the Division Bench in the case of Sayta Narain (Driver) (Supra) that just as an employee cannot be permitted to get his date of birth changed at the fag end of his service, the same rule would apply to the employer also and the date of birth could not have been changed without due inquiry and show cause notice to the petitioner.

15. Learned counsel for the petitioner has referred to the observations made by the Division Bench in Sayta Narain (Driver) (Supra) where a similar argument was raised by the appellant Uttar Pradesh Power Corporation before the Division Bench that on the basis of recorded date of birth, the entry into service of the writ petitioner was illegal as he would have joined service at the age of 15 years only whereas the minimum age requirement was

22 years and Indian Mejority Act required that he be at least 18 years when he entered service. It had also been argued that by the impugned order passed by the Writ Court directing the appellants to consider the writ petitioner as having retired on 30.09.2004, the respondent writ petitioner would be getting the benefit of nine months of salary without working. The appellants had cited several judgements before the Division Bench and the Division Bench had observed that the Court ought to exercise an equitable discretion in the matters and to judge whether it is fit and proper case for entering into the factual dispute. The Court observed that if the facts are correctly appreciated the law looks after itself. The Court observed in the paragraphs 9 & 10 as follows:-

"9. .....If the writ petitioner was admitted into service below age, both parties were equally guilty; no misrepresentation of the writ petitioner is on record. The service that was rendered by the writ petitioner while still under age, was paid for by the appellant, and no more. The breach of rules on both sides cannot make the writ petitioner get born earlier.

10. So far as the end period of the service is concerned, and the direction for payment of nine month's salary, even for this time there is nothing on record to show that the writ petitioner was not willing to work; he was prevented from working. If he was prevented from working unjustly, the writ petitioner cannot be made to suffer for the wrong of another....."

16. Learned counsel for the respondent Corporation has placed reliance upon the judgement rendered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the Case of Karnataka Rural Infrastructure Development Limited Vs. T. P. Nataraja & Others 2021 Legal Eagle (SC) 535 where the High Court had allowed the writ petition and set aside the order of the dismissal of Suit by the Trial Court rejecting the plaint of the original plaintiff for declaring the date of birth of the employee as 24.01.1961. The High Court had directed the appellants to reconsider the representation of the original writ petitioner with respect to change of date of birth.

17. The Supreme Court was considering several civil appeals arising in similar matters where the original dates of birth recorded in the service books were sought to be changed at the fag end of the service tenure of the employees concerned. The appellant Karnataka Rural Infrastructure Development Limited had adopted the Karnataka State Servants (Determination of Age) Act, 1974 by a Resolution dated 17.05.1991, and therefore, the Rule which provided for request for change of date of birth in service record had to be made within a period of three years from the date of joining or within one year from the date of commencement of the Act of 1974 or from the date of its adoption by the appellant which was held to be mandatory.

18. The Supreme Court preferred to several of its judgements passed in earlier matters which were considered as binding precedents and quoted from Home Department Vs. R. Kirubakaran, 1994 Supp (1) SCC 155; State of M.P. Vs. Premlal Shrivas, (2011) 9 SCC 664; Life Insurance Corporation of India & Others Vs. R. Basavaraju (2016) 15 SCC 781; U. P. Madhyamik Shiksha Parishad Vs. Raj Kumar Agnihotri [(2005) 11 SCC 465 and State of Uttaranchal Vs. Pitamber Dutt Semwal [(2005) 11 SCC 477 , to observe that any direction for correction of date of birth of a public servant by the Tribunal or the High Court should be issued only after great circumspection and careful inquiry as such a direction for correction of date of birth of public servant concerned has a chain reaction, in as much as others waiting for years, for their respective promotions are affected in this process. The date of birth as recorded in the service book at the time of entry into government service cannot be sought to be changed by a Government Servant after lapse of a long time of his induction into service particularly beyond the time fixed by his employer, and at the fag end of the service career.

19. However, this Court find from a perusal of the judgement rendered by the Supreme Court in the case of Karnataka Rural Infrastructure Development Limited (Supra) that the Supreme Court has repeatedly reiterated that once the date of birth is entered into the service record as per the educational certificate, and accepted by the employee, the same cannot be changed. In the case of the petitioner no request for change of date of birth in the service records was made by the petitioner. It was the respondents themselves who had issued notice of retirement and thereafter, the petitioner made a representation that his High School Certificate was already available with the Respondent Corporation as he had submitted the same in 1997 at the time of his promotion. The said High School Certificate was also got verified by the Corporation from the U. P. Board of High School and Intermediate Education and a favourable report was submitted on 29.06.2021 by the Board. As per the Rules date of birth of any employee has to be first determined on the basis of educational certificates submitted by such employee. In case no educational certificate is available then the Chief Medical Superintendent's Report regarding approximate age of the employee shall be looked into to determine his date of birth. In the case of the petitioner although he had stated in his application for appointment as Class-IV employee in 1982 that he was born on 04.09.1961, (may be for the purpose of getting the employment as he knew he would be otherwise under age, if he showed his date of birth as 06.11.1964), that fact would not detract from the principle as laid down by the Supreme Court in its various judgements that date of birth of an employee cannot be sought to be changed at the fag end of his service career.

20. This Court has noticed that in the writ petition there is a clear mention by the petitioner in paragraph -07 that he had submitted his educational certificate in 1991 after getting a copy of High School Certificate by him on 21.03.1991. Only thereafter he was promoted in 1991 as a Class-III employee. However such a statement in the writ petition has not been denied in paragraph - 08 of the counter affidavit of the respondents. It was the duty of the respondents to correct the date of birth of the petitioner, if it had been wrongly recorded in his service record earlier, after he submitted his High School Certificate to them in 1991, and at the time of his promotion 1997 as a Class-III employee. It is not as if the petitioner had passed High School after he had joined service. In fact he had passed High School in 1980 and he entered service in May, 1982. So it cannot said that he deliberately mentioned a wrong date of birth at the time of filling up of his High School Form for the examination.

21. This Court finds that just as an employee cannot claim to get his date of birth changed at the fag end of his service tenure, the same principle would apply to the Employers as well. The employer cannot of its own ignore the High School Certificate which had been duly verified by the U.P. Board only on the basis of incorrect date of birth mentioned in the service records.

22. The notice of retirement dated 28.05.2021 is set aside. The petitioner having already retired on 30.09.2021 and having not worked for more than a year cannot be given arrears of salary on the principle of 'no work no pay'. The petitioner shall be allowed to work up to 30.11.2024 treating his date of birth as 06.11.1964 giving him continuity of service and annual increments and pay fixation accordingly. The appropriate order for joining of the petitioner at his previous place of posting shall be passed by the Managing Director, the respondent no. 2 within four weeks from the date of receipt of copy of this Order.

23. The writ petition stands allowed.

Special Appeal (D) No. 255 of 2022

Zuhair Bin Saghir ...Appellant
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Appellant:
Asit Srivastava, Akhilesh Kumar Kalra

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C.

A. Service Law – Institution of Open Vigilance Enquiry - U.P. Vigilance Establishment Act, 1965 - No doubt, the very purpose of issuance of the Government Orders is to safeguard the interest of the government officers from unnecessary harassment and curb the tendency of making frivolous and anonymous complaints against the government servants, however, so far as the institution of open vigilance enquiry is concerned, the procedure, is to be governed by the provisions contained in the Vigilance Manual in light of the provisions of U.P. Vigilance Establishment Act, 1965. (Para 27)

Learned Single Judge after considering the purpose and purport of the various Government Orders has referred to certain judgments of Hon'ble SC laying down the test for determination of a particular provision being mandatory or directory and has held the Government Orders to be directory. (Para 26)

The facts make it clear that apart from the preliminary enquiry conducted by the Senior Superintendent of Police, Moradabad, the Vigilance Establishment under the provisions of Vigilance Manual and also in terms of the provisions contained in U.P. Vigilance Establishment Act, 1965 conducted an open vigilance enquiry which was considered by the State Government at the appropriate level and accordingly a decision was taken to launch criminal prosecution into the allegations against the appellant-petitioner. (Para 23, 24)

Much emphasis has been laid by the appellant-petitioner on the GO dated 14.04.1981, which provides that in case any complaint is received against the employee or the officer, the enquiry should be conducted by an officer at least two rank higher than the officer against whom complaint is made, however, while doing so it should be kept in mind that the rank of the enquiry officer should be below the rank of punishing authority. The said GO, will have application in case any fact finding enquiry results into the institution of any departmental proceeding. The GO, dated 14.04.1981 will have no application so far as the open vigilance enquiry is concerned. (Para 34)

B. Material is significant for instituting the open vigilance enquiry, and not the source from where such material is received by the State Government. (Para 28)

The basis for conducting open vigilance enquiry in terms of the provisions contained in Vigilance Manual and also in terms of the statutory provisions contained in U.P. Vigilance Establishment Act, 1965 is the availability of some material before the State Government warranting such an open vigilance enquiry which would suffice and not the source of material in respect of allegations of misconduct or corruption or any other charge against the employee or officer concerned. (Para 25)

There may be various sources of collecting and gathering relevant material on the basis of which the State Government forms an opinion whether to institute open vigilance enquiry or to institute departmental proceedings or to draw both these proceedings into the allegations available against the appellant-petitioner. The report of the fact finding enquiry is one such source. Another source may be some complaint. There may be various other sources from where the State Government may gather relevant material. However, availability of such material before the State Government is important and not as to whether such material has been received on the basis of some complaint or through fact finding enquiry or from any other source. (Para 29)

C. It is well settled, concern of the Court while exercising its jurisdiction u/Article 226 of the Constitution of India i.e. while exercising the powers of judicial review is not the decision; rather the decision making process. (Para 31)

So far as the factual aspects are concerned, it is primarily preserve of the executive and administrative authorities and unless and until there is any perversity in findings of fact arrived at by the authority concerned, any interference by this Court in exercise of its power of judicial review will be impermissible. (Para 32)

Special appeal dismissed. (E-4)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Devendra Kumar Upadhyaya, J. & Hon'ble Saurabh Srivastava, J.)

(C.M.Application No. 1 of 2022)

1. Having heard the learned counsel for the appellant-petitioner, learned State Counsel and having gone through the averments made in the application seeking condonation of delay, we find that the delay in filing this Special Appeal has sufficiently been explained.

2. Accordingly, application is allowed and the delay in preferring the Special Appeal is hereby condoned.

(Oder on memo of Appeal)

3. Heard the learned counsel for the appellant-petitioner and learned counsel representing the State-respondents.

4. We have also perused the record available on this Special Appeal.

5. By instituting the proceedings of this intra-court appeal under Chapter VIII Rule 5 of the Rules of the Court, the appellant-petitioner has questioned the order dated 18.05.2022, passed by the learned Single Judge in Writ-A No.2894 of 2022, whereby the said writ petition has been dismissed.

6. At this juncture itself, we may note that by instituting Writ-A No.2894 of 2022, the appellant-petitioner had challenged the validity of the order dated 16.03.2022, passed by the State Government in the Vigilance Department whereby the representation made by the appellant-petitioner, dated 16.08.2021 pursuant to an order passed by this Court on 08.01.2020 in an earlier Writ Petition No.32018(MB) of 2019, was rejected. The prayer made in the said representation dated 16.08.2022, which has been rejected by the State Government by means of order dated 16.03.2022, was that the open vigilance enquiry conducted against him by the Vigilance Establishment and consequently the decision to initiate the criminal proceedings against him be set aside.

7. The State Government considered the said representation in compliance of the order dated 08.01.2020 passed by this Court in Writ Petition No.32018(MB) of 2019 and rejected the same. It is this order, as observed above, which was challenged by the appellant-petitioner before the learned Single Judge.

8. Before delving into the submissions made by the learned counsel for the respective parties, we may note that one complaint against the appellant-petitioner was made while he was posted as District Magistrate, Moradabad. The preliminary enquiry into the said complaint was conducted by the Senior Superintendent of Police, Moradabad which was made available to the State Government, vide his letter dated 27.04.2017. In the said enquiry report, dated 27.04.2017 submitted by the Senior Superintendent of Police, Moradabad, a recommendation was made to get an open enquiry conducted and accordingly direction was issued to the U.P. Vigilance Establishment for conducting an open enquiry. The U.P. Vigilance Establishment, having been so directed, conducted the open enquiry into the allegations against the appellant-petitioner and submitted its report on 11.05.2018 which was considered and accordingly, Vigilance Establishment recommended for instituting a criminal case against the appellant-petitioner and its investigation.

9. The recommendation made by the U.P. Vigilance Establishment was considered and accordingly the State Government at the appropriate level took a decision on 17.07.2018 for criminal investigation into the allegations against the appellant-petitioner.

10. The appellant-petitioner before filing Writ-A No.2894 of 2022 had instituted a writ petition bearing No.32018 of 2019(MB) before this Court with the prayer for quashing the open enquiry report conducted by the Vigilance Establishment. Further prayer made by the appellant-petitioner in the said writ petition was that the State Government may be directed not to initiate criminal prosecution/proceeding against him on the basis of the said open vigilance enquiry conducted on the complaint made by the complainant-Dushyant Raj Chaudhary. It was further prayed in the said writ petition that direction be issued to the State Government to first comply with the provisions of the Government Orders dated 09.05.1997, 01.08.1997 and 24.05.2012 and only then to entertain the complaint and proceed accordingly in terms of the alleged mandatory provisions contained in the Government Order dated 24.05.2012.

11. We may notice that the primary submission made by the learned counsel for the appellant-petitioner in the said writ petition was that the complaint against him has been enquired into in derogation of the provisions contained in various Government Orders mentioned above and as such on the basis of such enquiry, neither any open vigilance enquiry could have been ordered nor any criminal prosecution could be ordered against him.

12. The aforesaid writ petition was finally disposed of by this Court by means of judgment and order dated 08.01.2020, whereby the Court had directed that the appellant-petitioner shall move a detailed representation before the Chief Secretary of the State of U.P. taking his defence and the objections against the complaint and in case any such representation is moved by the appellant-petitioner, the Chief Secretary shall examine the same and pass appropriate speaking order after considering the submissions which may be made in the representation. The Court in its order dated 08.01.2020 had also provided that the State authorities shall not proceed against the appellant-petitioner till the representation is decided.

13. In pursuance of the said order dated 08.01.2020, the appellant-petitioner submitted his representation on 16.08.2021 and the Chief Secretary of the State Government decided his representation by order dated 16.03.2022, which, as observed above, was challenged by the appellant-petitioner before the learned Single Judge in Writ-A No. 2894 of 2022.

14. The learned Single Judge after considering the case of the respective parties has dismissed the said writ petition by means of order dated 18.05.2022 which is under appeal before us.

15. As has been the case of the appellant-petitioner earlier, the primary submission of learned counsel for the appellant-petitioner is that the complaint made by the complainant against the appellant-petitioner ought to have been dealt with by the State authorities by following the provisions contained in the Government Orders, which have been referred to herein above. It has, thus, been argued that the said Government Orders being mandatory could not have been defied by the State authorities and any deviation from the said Government Orders not only vitiates the entire action initiated against the appellant-petitioner but the same also seriously prejudices him.

16. Learned counsel for the appellant-petitioner has also urged that the Chief Secretary while deciding the representation preferred by the appellant-petitioner pursuant to the order of this Court, dated 08.01.2020 has not given his own views or findings; rather he has reiterated what ever had happened earlier and as such the order passed by the Chief Secretary which was under challenge before the learned Single Judge cannot be said to be a reasoned order which was to be passed by him in pursuance of the direction issued by this Court by means of its order dated 08.01.2020.

17. It has also been argued on behalf of the appellant-petitioner that it is the admitted case of the parties that the complaint made by the complainant against the appellant-petitioner was not accompanied by an affidavit and as such in this view of the matter either the State authorities ought to have insisted for filing of affidavit by the complainant or the complaint would not have proceeded further in absence of the affidavit, which is a mandatory requirement in terms of the Government Orders referred to herein above for enquiring into any complaint against the State Government officers, specially against Class-I officers.

18. Further submission of learned counsel for the appellant-petitioner is that certain findings were recorded by this Court in its order dated 08.01.2020 which have clearly been ignored by the Chief Secretary while passing the order dated 16.03.2022 and all these aspects of the matter have clearly not been taken into account by the learned Single Judge while dismissing the writ petition instituted by the appellant-petitioner. Accordingly, submission is that the order passed by the learned Single Judge is not sustainable.

19. Impeaching the findings recorded by the learned Single Judge to the effect that the Government Orders relied upon by the appellant-petitioner are not mandatory, it has been submitted by the learned counsel representing the appellant-petitioner that considering the purport and purpose of the said Government Orders, the provisions contained therein are mandatory and the purpose is not to cause any prejudice to the government officer against whom such unsubstantiated complaint, not even supported by an affidavit, is received. To fortify his submission, learned counsel for the appellant-petitioner relies upon a judgment dated 03.01.2012, passed by this Court in Writ Petition No. 4372(SS) of 2011; Kumdesh Kumar Sharma Vs. State of U.P. and others, which provides that various Government Orders issued from time to time in relation to dealing with the complaints are to be strictly followed as the purpose of such Government Orders is not only to safeguard the government officers from unnecessary harassment but also to curb the tendency of making frivolous and anonymous complaints against the government servants.

20. On the basis of aforesaid submissions, it has been prayed that the order under appeal herein passed by the learned Single Judge be set aside and the matter be remitted to the learned Single Judge for decision afresh.

21. Learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel, Sri Amitabh Rai representing the State-respondents has vehemently opposed the Special Appeal by asserting firstly that the Government Orders being relied upon by the appellant-petitioner do not contain any mandatory provisions; rather the provisions therein are directory and in certain circumstances deviation from such provisions is permissible for the State Government which has to be always vigilant over the conduct of its officers, specially in a case of complaint relating to serious of charges and corruption etc. Sri Rai has secondly submitted that so far as open vigilance enquiry is concerned, the same is conducted in terms of the provisions contained in the Vigilance Mannual of the State Government and keeping in view the provisions of U.P. Vigilance Establishment Act, 1965 which is a State Legislation enacted for the purposes of enquiring into the misconduct and other such allegations from the vigilance angle. He has, thus, argued that in case of any open vigilance enquiry by the Vigilance Establishment, the Government Orders being referred to by the appellant-petitioner will have no application and such vigilance enquiry is to be conducted independent of the provisions contained in the Government Orders. According to Sri Rai, learned State Counsel, the procedure as per the Vigilance Mannual which is in vogue in the State of U.P. is that on receiving any complaint or on any fact coming to the notice of the State Government otherwise, an open vigilance enquiry can be ordered and report of such open vigilance enquiry is considered by the Vigilance Department in consultation with the Administrative Department and there upon at the competent level of the State Government a decision is taken either to institute departmental proceedings or to institute criminal prosecution or both. His submission, thus, is that so far as the vigilance enquiry is concerned, the Government Orders relied upon by the appellant-petitioner do not have any application. The submission, thus, is that the learned Single Judge has considered all these aspects of the matter and has come to the conclusion that there is no irregularity or illegality in the order dated 16.03.2022, passed by the Chief Secretary and hence, this Special Appeal is liable to be dismissed at its threshold.

22. We have given our thoughtful consideration to the rival submissions made by the learned counsel representing the respective parties.

23. The facts, as noticed above, make it clear that apart from the preliminary enquiry conducted by the Senior Superintendent of Police, Moradabad, the Vigilance Establishment under the provisions of Vigilance Mannual and also in terms of the provisions contained in U.P. Vigilance Establishment Act, 1965 conducted an open vigilance enquiry which was considered by the State Government at the appropriate level and accordingly a decision was taken to launch criminal prosecution into the allegations against the appellant-petitioner.

24. It is not in dispute that apart from the fact finding enquiry conducted by the Senior Superintendent of Police, Moradabad, another fact finding enquiry was conducted by a Committee constituted by the Commissioner, Moradabad Division. However, these are not the only two fact finding enquiries on the basis of which the decision to institute criminal prosecution against the appellant-petitioner has been taken, the basis of such decision rather is the open vigilance enquiry conducted by the Vigilance Establishment.

25. We are of the opinion that basis for conducting open vigilance enquiry in terms of the provisions contained in Vigilance Mannual and also in terms of the statutory provisions contained in U.P. Vigilance Establishment Act, 1965 is the availability of some material before the State Government warranting such an open vigilance enquiry which would suffice and not the source of material in respect of allegations of misconduct or corruption or any other charge against the employee or officer concerned.

26. So far as the emphasis laid by the learned counsel for the appellant-petitioner on the Government Orders referred to herein above, is concerned, we are in agreement with the findings recorded by the learned Single Judge in the order which is under appeal before us. Learned Single Judge after considering the purpose and purport of the various Government Orders has referred to certain judgments of Hon'ble Supreme Court laying down the test for determination of a particular provision being mandatory or directory and has held the Government Orders to be directory.

27. No doubt, the very purpose of issuance of the Government Orders being relied upon by the appellant-petitioner is to safeguard the interest of the government officers from unnecessary harassment and curb the tendency of making frivolous and anonymous complaints against the government servants as laid down by this Court in the case of Kumdesh Kumar Sharma (supra), however, so far as the institution of open vigilance enquiry is concerned, the procedure, in our opinion, is to be governed by the provisions contained in the Vigilance Mannual in light of the provisions of U.P. Vigilance Establishment Act, 1965.

28. As observed above, we may emphasize that for instituting the open vigilance enquiry, it is the material which is significant and not the source from where such material is received by the State Government.

29. There may be various sources of collecting and gathering relevant material on the basis of which the State Government forms an opinion whether to institute open vigilance enquiry or to institute departmental proceedings or to draw both these proceedings into the allegations available against the appellant-petitioner. The report of the fact finding enquiry is one such source. Another source may be some complaint. There may be various other sources from where the State Government may gather relevant material. However, availability of such material before the State Government is important and not as to whether such material has been received on the basis of some complaint or through fact finding enquiry or from any other source.

30. Learned counsel for the appellant-petitioner has made an attempt to take us to the factual aspects of the matter by referring to the extract of the representation dated 16.08.2021 made by the appellant-petitioner which has been reproduced in the order dated 16.03.2022 and the finding recorded by the Chief Secretary thereon.

31. As is well settled, concern of the Court while exercising its jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India i.e. while exercising the powers of judicial review is not the decision; rather the decision making process.

32. So far as the factual aspects are concerned, it is primarily preserve of the executive and administrative authorities and unless and until there is any perversity in findings of fact arrived at by the authority concerned, any interference by this Court in exercise of its power of judicial review will be impermissible.

33. As regards the submission of learned counsel appearing for the appellant-petitioner that this Court in its order dated 08.01.2020 passed in earlier writ petition filed by the appellant-petitioner that the vigilance enquiry has been conducted without adhering to the provisions contained in the Government Orders, is concerned, we may only opine that said findings contained in the order dated 08.01.2020 will loose its impact in this case for the reason that the open vigilance enquiry is to be regulated primarily by the provisions contained in the Vigilance Mannual and not in terms of the procedure as given in the Government Orders. Further, the order dated 08.01.2020 had directed the Chief Secretary to consider all the aspects in the matter which have been considered by him while passing the order dated 16.03.2022.

34. Much emphasis has been laid by the learned counsel representing the appellant-petitioner on the Government Order dated 14.04.1981, which provides that in case any complaint is received against the employee or the officer, the enquiry should be conducted by an officer at least two rank higher than the officer against whom complaint is made, however, while doing so it should be kept in mind that the rank of the enquiry officer should be below the rank of punishing authority. The said Government Order, in our opinion, will have application in case any fact finding enquiry results into the institution of any departmental proceeding. The Government Order, dated 14.04.1981 will have no application so far as the open vigilance enquiry is concerned for the reasons which have been elaborated above.

35. In view of the discussions made and the reasons given above, in our considered opinion, the order dated 18.05.2022, passed by the learned Single Judge in Writ-A No. 2894 of 2022 does not warrant any interference by this Court in this Special Appeal. The Special Appeal is, thus, hereby dismissed.

Vinod Kumar ...Appellant
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Appellant:
Sri Babu Ram Yadav, Sri Salil Krishna

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C.

A. Civil Law – Nature, Scope and Ambit of Power of review - Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 - Order XLVII, Rule 1 - The settled law is that power of review is available only when there is an error apparent on the face of the record and not on erroneous decision. If the parties aggrieved by the judgment on the ground that it is erroneous, remedy is only questioning the said order in appeal. The power of review u/Order XLVII, rule 1, CPC may be opened inter alia, only if there is a mistake or an error apparent on the face of the record, the said power cannot be exercised as is not permissible for an erroneous decision to be "reheard and corrected." A review petition has a limited purpose and cannot be allowed to be 'an appeal in disguise'. (Para 5, 7, 9)

It is well settled that the review proceedings are not by way of an appeal and have to be strictly confined to the scope and ambit of Order 47 Rule 1 CPC. The power of review cannot be confused with appellate power which enables a superior court to correct all errors committed by a subordinate court. It is not rehearing of an original matter. A repetition of old and overruled argument is not enough to reopen concluded adjudications. (Para 5, 6)

B. The error has to be self-evident and is not to be found out by a process of reasoning. An error apparent on the face of the record for acquiring jurisdiction to review must be such an error which may strike one on a mere looking at the record and would not require any long drawn process of reasoning. (Para 5, 7)

C. The parties are not entitled to challenge the impugned judgment in the guise that an alternative view is possible under the review jurisdiction. An order or decision or judgment cannot be corrected merely because it is erroneous in law or on the ground that a different view could have been taken by the court/tribunal on a point of fact or law. In any case, while exercising the power of review, the court/tribunal concerned cannot sit in appeal over its judgment/decision. (Para 5, 6)

In the present case, the applicant is seeking review of the order passed in special appeal on the grounds that had already been taken before this court and is in fact seeking review on merits. A bare glance over the quoted grounds taken in the special appeal and in the review application would clearly reflect that in fact applicant is seeking rehearing of the appeal, which according to him was dismissed by an erroneous judgment. (Para 11, 14)

The present review application does not fall within the parameters of the Order XLVII, rule 1 C.P.C. (Para 16)

Review application rejected. (E-4)

Re: Civil Misc. Review Application No.2 of 2019

1. Heard Sri Babu Ram Yadav, learned counsel for the applicant at length.

2. Present review application has been filed seeking review of the order dated 18.10.2019 whereby special appeal filed against the reasoned judgment of Writ Court dated 18.09.2019 was dismissed on merits.

3. Before proceeding further it would be appropriate to take note of Order XLVII, Rule 1 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (hereinafter referred to as the CPC) as well as scope of review as per settled law.

4. For ready reference Order XLVII, Rule 1 CPC is quoted as under:-

"1. Application for review of judgment.- (1) Any person considering himself aggrieved-

(a) by a decree or order from which an appeal is allowed, but from which no appeal has been preferred,

(b) by a decree or order from which no appeal is allowed, or

(c) by a decision on a reference from a Court of Small Causes, and who, from the discovery of new and important matter or evidence which, after the exercise of due diligence was not within his knowledge or could not be produced by him at the time when the decree was passed or order made, or on account of some mistake or error apparent on the face of the record of for any other sufficient reason, desires to obtain a review of the decree passed or order made against him, may apply for a review of judgment to the Court which passed the decree or made the order.

(2) A party who is not appealing from a decree or order may apply for a review of judgment notwithstanding the pendency of an appeal by some other party except where the ground of such appeal is common to the applicant and the appellant, or when, being respondent, he can present to the Appellate Court the case on which he applies for the review.

[Explanation.- The fact that the decision on a question of law on which the judgment of the Court is based has been reversed or modified by the subsequent decision of a superior Court in any other case, shall not be a ground for the review of such judgment.]"

5. In Shri Ram Sahu (Dead) Through LRS and Others vs. Vinod Kumar Rawat and Others, 2020 SCC Online SC 896, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has considered the law on the scope of review in detail, relevant paragraphs whereof are quoted as under:-

"26. In the case of Haridas Das vs. Usha Rani Banik (Smt.), (2006) 4 SCC 78 while considering the scope and ambit of Section 114 CPC read with Order 47 Rule 1 CPC it is observed and held in paragraph 14 to 18 as under:

"14. In Meera Bhanja v. Nirmala Kumari Choudhury, (1995) 1 SCC 170 it was held that:

"8. It is well settled that the review proceedings are not by way of an appeal and have to be strictly confined to the scope and ambit of Order 47 Rule 1 CPC. In connection with the limitation of the powers of the court under Order 47 Rule 1, while dealing with similar jurisdiction available to the High Court while seeking to review the orders under Article 226 of the Constitution, this Court, in Aribam Tuleshwar Sharma v. Aribam Pishak Sharma, (1979) 4 SCC 389 speaking through Chinnappa Reddy, J. has made the following pertinent observations:

"It is true there is nothing in Article 226 of the Constitution to preclude the High Court from exercising the power of review which inheres in every court of plenary jurisdiction to prevent miscarriage of justice or to correct grave and palpable errors committed by it. But, there are definitive limits to the exercise of the power of review. The power of review may be exercised on the discovery of new and important matter or evidence which, after the exercise of due diligence was not within the knowledge of the person seeking the review or could not be produced by him at the time when the order was made; it may be exercised where some mistake or error apparent on the face of the record is found, it may also be exercised on any analogous ground. But, it may not be exercised on the ground that the decision was erroneous on merits. That would be the province of a court of appeal. A power of review is not to be confused with appellate power which may enable an appellate court to correct all manner of errors committed by the subordinate court.' "

15. A perusal of Order 47 Rule 1 shows that review of a judgment or an order could be sought: (a) from the discovery of new and important matters or evidence which after the exercise of due diligence was not within the knowledge of the applicant; (b) such important matter or evidence could not be produced by the applicant at the time when the decree was passed or order made; and (c) on account of some mistake or error apparent on the face of the record or any other sufficient reason.

16. In Aribam Tuleshwar Sharma v. Aribam Pishak Sharma, AIR 1979 SC 1047, this Court held that there are definite limits to the exercise of power of review. In that case, an application under Order 47 Rule 1 read with Section 151 of the Code was filed which was allowed and the order passed by the Judicial Commissioner was set aside and the writ petition was dismissed. On an appeal to this Court it was held as under: (SCC p. 390, para 3)

"It is true as observed by this Court in Shivdeo Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1963 SC 1909 there is nothing in Article 226 of the Constitution to preclude a High Court from exercising the power of review which inheres in every court of plenary jurisdiction to prevent miscarriage of justice or to correct grave and palpable errors committed by it. But, there are definitive limits to the exercise of the power of review. The power of review may be exercised on the discovery of new and important matter or evidence which, after the exercise of due diligence was not within the knowledge of the person seeking the review or could not be produced by him at the time when the order was made; it may be exercised where some mistake or error apparent on the face of the record is found; it may also be exercised on any analogous ground. But, it may not be exercised on the ground that the decision was erroneous on merits. That would be the province of a court of appeal. A power of review is not to be confused with appellate powers which may enable an appellate court to correct all manner of errors committed by the subordinate court."

17. The judgment in Aribam case has been followed in Meera Bhanja. In that case, it has been reiterated that an error apparent on the face of the record for acquiring jurisdiction to review must be such an error which may strike one on a mere looking at the record and would not require any longdrawn process of reasoning. The following observations in connection with an error apparent on the face of the record in Satyanarayan Laxminarayan Hegde v. Millikarjun Bhavanappa Tirumale, AIR 1960 SC 137 were also noted:

"An error which has to be established by a longdrawn process of reasoning on points where there may conceivably be two opinions can hardly be said to be an error apparent on the face of the record. Where an alleged error is far from selfevident and if it can be established, it has to be established, by lengthy and complicated arguments, such an error cannot be cured by a writ of certiorari according to the rule governing the powers of the superior court to issue such a writ."

18. It is also pertinent to mention the observations of this Court in Parsion Devi v. Sumitri Devi, (1997) 8 SCC. Relying upon the judgments in Aribam and Meera Bhanja it was observed as under:

"9. Under Order 47 Rule 1 CPC a judgment may be open to review inter alia if there is a mistake or an error apparent on the face of the record. An error which is not selfevident and has to be detected by a process of reasoning, can hardly be said to be an error apparent on the face of the record justifying the court to exercise its power of review under Order 47 Rule 1 CPC. In exercise of the jurisdiction under Order 47 Rule 1 CPC it is not permissible for an erroneous decision to be "reheard and corrected'. A review petition, it must be remembered has a limited purpose and cannot be allowed to be "an appeal in disguise'."

27. In the case of Lily Thomas vs. Union of India, (2000) 6 SC 224, it is observed and held that the power of review can be exercised for correction of a mistake but not to substitute a view. Such powers can be exercised within the limits of the statute dealing with the exercise of power.

28. It is further observed in the said decision that the words "any other sufficient reason" appearing in Order 47 Rule 1 CPC must mean "a reason sufficient on grounds at least analogous to those specified in the rule" as was held in Chhajju Ram vs. Neki, AIR 1922 PC 112 and approved by this Court in Moran Mar Basselios Catholicos vs Most Rev. Mar Poulose Athanasius, AIR 1954 SC 526.

29. In the case of Inderchand Jain vs. Motilal, (2009) 14 SCC 663 in paragraphs 7 to 11 it is observed and held as under:

7. Section 114 of the Code of Civil Procedure (for short "the Code") provides for a substantive power of review by a civil court and consequently by the appellate courts. The words "subject as aforesaid" occurring in Section 114 of the Code mean subject to such conditions and limitations as may be prescribed as appearing in Section 113 thereof and for the said purpose, the procedural conditions contained in Order 47 of the Code must be taken into consideration. Section 114 of the Code although does not prescribe any limitation on the power of the court but such limitations have been provided for in Order 47 of the Code; Rule 1 whereof reads as under:

"17. The power of a civil court to review its judgment/decision is traceable in Section 114 CPC. The grounds on which review can be sought are enumerated in Order 47 Rule 1 CPC, which reads as under:

"1. Application for review of judgment.--(1) Any person considering himself aggrieved--

(a) by a decree or order from which an appeal is allowed, but from which no appeal has been preferred,

(b) by a decree or order from which no appeal is allowed, or

(c) by a decision on a reference from a Court of Small Causes, and who, from the discovery of new and important matter or evidence which, after the exercise of due diligence, was not within his knowledge or could not be produced by him at the time when the decree was passed or order made, or on account of some mistake or error apparent on the face of the record, or for any other sufficient reason, desires to obtain a review of the decree passed or order made against him, may apply for a review of judgment of the court which passed the decree or made the order.' "

8. An application for review would lie inter alia when the order suffers from an error apparent on the face of the record and permitting the same to continue would lead to failure of justice. In Rajendra Kumar v. Rambai this Court held: (SCC p. 514, para 6)

*"6. The limitations on exercise of the power of review are well settled. The first and foremost requirement of entertaining a review petition is that the order, review of which is sought, suffers from any error apparent on the face of the order and permitting the order to stand will lead to failure of justice. In the absence of any such error, fin*ality attached to the judgment/order cannot be disturbed."

9. The power of review can also be exercised by the court in the event discovery of new and important matter or evidence takes place which despite exercise of due diligence was not within the knowledge of the applicant or could not be produced by him at the time when the order was made. An application for review would also lie if the order has been passed on account of some mistake. Furthermore, an application for review shall also lie for any other sufficient reason.

10. It is beyond any doubt or dispute that the review court does not sit in appeal over its own order. A rehearing of the matter is impermissible in law. It constitutes an exception to the general rule that once a judgment is signed or pronounced, it should not be altered. It is also trite that exercise of inherent jurisdiction is not invoked for reviewing any order.

11. Review is not appeal in disguise. In Lily Thomas v. Union of India this Court held: (SCC p. 251, para 56)

"56. It follows, therefore, that the power of review can be exercised for correction of a mistake but not to substitute a view. Such powers can be exercised within the limits of the statute dealing with the exercise of power. The review cannot be treated like an appeal in disguise."

30. The dictionary meaning of the word "review" is "the act of looking, offer something again with a view to correction or improvement". It cannot be denied that the review is the creation of a statute. In the case of Patel Narshi Thakershi vs. Pradyumansinghji Arjunsinghji, (1971) 3 SCC 844, this Court has held that the power of review is not an inherent power. It must be conferred by law either specifically or by necessary implication. The review is also not an appeal in disguise.

31. What can be said to be an error apparent on the face of the proceedings has been dealt with and considered by this Court in the case of T.C. Basappa vs. T.Nagappa, AIR 1954 SC 440. It is held that such an error is an error which is a patent error and not a mere wrong decision. In the case of Hari Vishnu Kamath vs. Ahmad Ishaque, AIR 1955 SC 233, it is observed as under:

"It is essential that it should be something more than a mere error; it must be one which must be manifest on the face of the record. The real difficulty with reference to this matter, however, is not so much in the statement of the principle as in its application to the facts of a particular case. When does an error cease to be mere error, and become an error apparent on the face of the record? Learned counsel on either side were unable to suggest any clearcut rule by which the boundary between the two classes of errors could be demarcated."

32. In the case of Parsion Devi vs. Sumitri Devi, (Supra) in paragraph 7 to 9 it is observed and held as under:

7. It is well settled that review proceedings have to be strictly confined to the ambit and scope of Order 47 Rule 1 CPC. In Thungabhadra Industries Ltd. v. Govt. of A.P., AIR 1964 SC 1372 this Court opined:

"What, however, we are now concerned with is whether the statement in the order of September 1959 that the case did not involve any substantial question of law is an "error apparent on the face of the record'). The fact that on the earlier occasion the Court held on an identical state of facts that a substantial question of law arose would not per se be conclusive, for the earlier order itself might be erroneous. Similarly, even if the statement was wrong, it would not follow that it was an "error apparent on the face of the record', for there is a distinction which is real, though it might not always be capable of exposition, between a mere erroneous decision and a decision which could be characterised as vitiated by "error apparent'. A review is by no means an appeal in disguise whereby an erroneous decision is reheard and corrected, but lies only for patent error."

8. Again, in Meera Bhanja v. Nirmala Kumari Choudhury, (1995) 1 SCC 170 while quoting with approval a passage from Aribam Tuleshwar Sharma v. Aribam Pishak Sharma (supra) this Court once again held that review proceedings are not by way of an appeal and have to be strictly confined to the scope and ambit of Order 47 Rule 1 CPC.

9. Under Order 47 Rule 1 CPC a judgment may be open to review inter alia if there is a mistake or an error apparent on the face of the record. An error which is not selfevident and has to be detected by a process of reasoning, can hardly be said to be an error apparent on the face of the record justifying the court to exercise its power of review under Order 47 Rule 1 CPC. In exercise of the jurisdiction under Order 47 Rule 1 CPC it is not permissible for an erroneous decision to be "reheard and corrected". A review petition, it must be remembered has a limited purpose and cannot be allowed to be "an appeal in disguise".

33. In the case of State of West Bengal and Others vs. Kamal Sengupta and Anr., (2008) 8 SCC 612, this Court had an occasion to consider what can be said to be "mistake or error apparent on the face of record". In para 22 to 35 it is observed and held as under:

"22. The term "mistake or error apparent" by its very connotation signifies an error which is evident per se from the record of the case and does not require detailed examination, scrutiny and elucidation either of the facts or the legal position. If an error is not selfevident and detection thereof requires long debate and process of reasoning, it cannot be treated as an error apparent on the face of the record for the purpose of Order 47 Rule 1 CPC or Section 22(3)(f) of the Act. To put it differently an order or decision or judgment cannot be corrected merely because it is erroneous in law or on the ground that a different view could have been taken by the court/tribunal on a point of fact or law. In any case, while exercising the power of review, the court/tribunal concerned cannot sit in appeal over its judgment/decision.

23. We may now notice some of the judicial precedents in which Section 114 read with Order 47 Rule 1 CPC and/or Section 22(3)(f) of the Act have been interpreted and limitations on the power of the civil court/tribunal to review its judgment/decision have been identified.

24. In Rajah Kotagiri Venkata Subbamma Rao v. Rajah Vellanki Venkatrama Rao (18991900) 27 IA 197 the Privy Council interpreted Sections 206 and 623 of the Civil Procedure Code and observed: (IA p.205)

"... Section 623 enables any of the parties to apply for a review of any decree on the discovery of new and important matter and evidence, which was not within his knowledge, or could not be produced by him at the time the decree was passed, or on account of some mistake or error apparent on the face of the record, or for any other sufficient reason. It is not necessary to decide in this case whether the latter words should be confined to reasons strictly ejusdem generic with those enumerated, as was held in Roy Meghraj v. Beejoy Gobind Burral, ILR (1875) 1 Cal 197. In the opinion of Their Lordships, the ground of amendment must at any rate be something which existed at the date of the decree, and the section does not authorise the review of a decree which was right when it was made on the ground of the happening of some subsequent event."

(emphasis added)

25.In Hari Sankar Pal v. Anath Nath Mitter, 1949 FCR 36 a five-judge Bench of the Federal Court while considering the question whether the Calcutta High Court was justified in not granting relief to non-appealing party, whose position was similar to that of the successful appellant, held: (FCR p. 48)

"That a decision is erroneous in law is certainly no ground for ordering review. If the court has decided a point and decided it erroneously, the error could not be one apparent on the face of the record or even analogous to it. When, however, the court disposes of a case without adverting to or applying its mind to a provision of law which gives it jurisdiction to act in a particular way, that may amount to an error analogous to one apparent on the face of the record sufficient to bring the case within the purview of Order 47 Rule 1, Civil Procedure Code."

26. In Moran Mar Basselios Catholicos v. Mar Poulose Athanasius (supra) this Court interpreted the provisions contained in the Travancore Code of Civil Procedure which are analogous to Order 47 Rule 1 and observed:

"32. ... Under the provisions in the Travancore Code of Civil Procedure which is similar in terms to Order 47 Rule 1 of our Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, the court of review has only a limited jurisdiction circumscribed by the definitive limits fixed by the language used therein.

It may allow a review on three specified grounds, namely,

(i) discovery of new and important matter or evidence which, after the exercise of due diligence, was not within the applicant's knowledge or could not be produced by him at the time when the decree was passed, (ii) mistake or error apparent on the face of the record and (iii) for any other sufficient reason.

It has been held by the Judicial Committee that the words "any other sufficient reason' must mean "a reason sufficient on grounds, least analogous to those specified in the rule'."

27. In Thungabhadra Industries Ltd. v. Govt. of A.P. (supra) it was held that a review is by no means an appeal in disguise whereof an erroneous decision can be corrected.

28. In Parsion Devi v. Sumitri Devi (Supra) it was held as under: (SCC p. 716) "Under Order 47 Rule 1 CPC a judgment may be open to review inter alia if there is a mistake or an error apparent on the face of the record. An error which is not selfevident and has to be detected by a process of reasoning, can hardly be said to be an error apparent on the face of the record justifying the court to exercise its power of review under Order 47 Rule 1 CPC. In exercise of the jurisdiction under Order 47 Rule 1 CPC it is not permissible for an erroneous decision to be "reheard and corrected'. There is a clear distinction between an erroneous decision and an error apparent on the face of the record. While the first can be corrected by the higher forum, the latter only can be corrected by exercise of the review jurisdiction. A review petition has a limited purpose and cannot be allowed to be "an appeal in disguise'."

29. In Haridas Das v. Usha Rani Banik, (supra) this Court made a reference to the Explanation added to Order 47 by the Code of Civil Procedure (Amendment) Act, 1976 and held:

"13. In order to appreciate the scope of a review, Section 114 CPC has to be read, but this section does not even adumbrate the ambit of interference expected of the court since it merely states that it "may make such order thereon as it thinks fit'. The parameters are prescribed in Order 47 CPC and for the purposes of this lis, permit the defendant to press for a rehearing "on account of some mistake or error apparent on the face of the records or for any other sufficient reason'. The former part of the rule deals with a situation attributable to the applicant, and the latter to a jural action which is manifestly incorrect or on which two conclusions are not possible. Neither of them postulate a rehearing of the dispute because a party had not highlighted all the aspects of the case or could perhaps have argued them more forcefully and/or cited binding precedents to the court and thereby enjoyed a favourable verdict. This is amply evident from the Explanation to Rule 1 of Order 47 which states that the fact that the decision on a question of law on which the judgment of the court is based has been reversed or modified by the subsequent decision of a superior court in any other case, shall not be a ground for the review of such judgment. Where the order in question is appealable the aggrieved party has adequate and efficacious remedy and the court should exercise the power to review its order with the greatest circumspection."

`30. In Aribam Tuleshwar Sharma v. Aribam Pishak Sharma (Supra) this Court considered the scope of the High Courts' power to review an order passed under Article 226 of the Constitution, referred to an earlier decision in Shivdeo Singh v. State of Punjab (Supra) and observed: (Aribam Tuleshwar case (Supra), SCC p. 390, para 3)

"3. ... It is true as observed by this Court in Shivdeo Singh v. State of Punjab (Supra), there is nothing in Article 226 of the Constitution to preclude a High Court from exercising the power of review which inheres in every court of plenary jurisdiction to prevent miscarriage of justice or to correct grave and palpable errors committed by it. But, there are definitive limits to the exercise of the power of review. The power of review may be exercised on the discovery of new and important matter or evidence which, after the exercise of due diligence was not within the knowledge of the person seeking the review or could not be produced by him at the time when the order was made; it may be exercised where some mistake or error apparent on the face of the record is found; it may also be exercised on any analogous ground. But, it may not be exercised on the ground that the decision was erroneous on merits. That would be the province of a court of appeal. A power of review is not to be confused with appellate powers which may enable an appellate court to correct all manner of errors committed by the subordinate court."

`31. In K. Ajit Babu v. Union of India, (1997) 6 SCC 473, it was held that even though Order 47 Rule 1 is strictly not applicable to the tribunals, the principles contained therein have to be extended to them, else there would be no limitation on the power of review and there would be no certainty or finality of a decision. A slightly different view was expressed in Gopabandhu Biswal v. Krishna Chandra Mohanty, (1998) 4 SCC 447). In that case it was held that the power of review granted to the tribunals is similar to the power of a civil court under Order 47 Rule 1.

32. In Ajit Kumar Rath v. State of Orissa, (1999) 9 SCC 596, this Court reiterated that power of review vested in the Tribunal is similar to the one conferred upon a civil court and held: (SCC p. 608, paras 3031)

"30. The provisions extracted above indicate that the power of review available to the Tribunal is the same as has been given to a court under Section 114 read with Order 47 CPC. The power is not absolute and is hedged in by the restrictions indicated in Order 47. The power can be exercised on the application of a person on the discovery of new and important matter or evidence which, after the exercise of due diligence, was not within his knowledge or could not be produced by him at the time when the order was made. The power can also be exercised on account of some mistake or error apparent on the face of the record or for any other sufficient reason. A review cannot be claimed or asked for merely for a fresh hearing or arguments or correction of an erroneous view taken earlier, that is to say, the power of review can be exercised only for correction of a patent error of law or fact which stares in the face without any elaborate argument being needed for establishing it. It may be pointed out that the expression "any other sufficient reason' used in Order 47 Rule 1 means a reason sufficiently analogous to those specified in the Rule.

31. Any other attempt, except an attempt to correct an apparent error or an attempt not based on any ground set out in Order 47, would amount to an abuse of the liberty given to the Tribunal under the Act to review its judgment."

33. In State of Haryana v. M.P. Mohla, (2007) 1 SCC 457 this Court held as under: (SCC pp. 46566, para 27)

"27. A review petition filed by the appellants herein was not maintainable. There was no error apparent on the face of the record. The effect of a judgment may have to be considered afresh in a separate proceeding having regard to the subsequent cause of action which might have arisen but the same by itself may not be a ground for filing an application for review."

34. In Gopal Singh v. State Cadre Forest Officers' Assn., (2007) 9 SCC 369 this Court held that after rejecting the original application filed by the appellant, there was no justification for the Tribunal to review its order and allow the revision of the appellant. Some of the observations made in that judgment are extracted below: (SCC p. 387, para 40)

"40. The learned counsel for the State also pointed out that there was no necessity whatsoever on the part of the Tribunal to review its own judgment. Even after the microscopic examination of the judgment of the Tribunal we could not find a single reason in the whole judgment as to how the review was justified and for what reasons. No apparent error on the face of the record was pointed, nor was it discussed. Thereby the Tribunal sat as an appellate authority over its own judgment. This was completely impermissible and we agree with the High Court (Sinha, J.) that the Tribunal has travelled out of its jurisdiction to write a second order in the name of reviewing its own judgment. In fact the learned counsel for the appellant did not address us on this very vital aspect."

35. The principles which can be culled out from the abovenoted judgments are:

(i) The power of the Tribunal to review its order/decision under Section 22(3)(f) of the Act is akin/analogous to the power of a civil court under Section 114 read with Order 47 Rule 1 CPC.

(ii) The Tribunal can review its decision on either of the grounds enumerated in Order 47 Rule 1 and not otherwise.

(iii) The expression "any other sufficient reason" appearing in Order 47 Rule 1 has to be interpreted in the light of other specified grounds.

(iv) An error which is not selfevident and which can be discovered by a long process of reasoning, cannot be treated as an error apparent on the face of record justifying exercise of power under Section 22(3)(f).

(v) An erroneous order/decision cannot be corrected in the guise of exercise of power of review.

(vi) A decision/order cannot be reviewed under Section 22(3)(f) on the basis of subsequent decision/judgment of a coordinate or larger Bench of the tribunal or of a superior court.

(vii) While considering an application for review, the tribunal must confine its adjudication with reference to material which was available at the time of initial decision. The happening of some subsequent event or development cannot be taken note of for declaring the initial order/decision as vitiated by an error apparent.

(viii) Mere discovery of new or important matter or evidence is not sufficient ground for review. The party seeking review has also to show that such matter or evidence was not within its knowledge and even after the exercise of due diligence, the same could not be produced before the court/tribunal earlier."

34. To appreciate the scope of review, it would be proper for this Court to discuss the object and ambit of Section 114 CPC as the same is a substantive provision for review when a person considering himself aggrieved either by a decree or by an order of Court from which appeal is allowed but no appeal is preferred or where there is no provision for appeal against an order and decree, may apply for review of the decree or order as the case may be in the Court, which may order or pass the decree. From the bare reading of Section 114 CPC, it appears that the said substantive power of review under Section 114 CPC has not laid down any condition as the condition precedent in exercise of power of review nor the said Section imposed any prohibition on the Court for exercising its power to review its decision. However, an order can be reviewed by a Court only on the prescribed grounds mentioned in Order 47 Rule 1 CPC, which has been elaborately discussed hereinabove. An application for review is more restricted than that of an appeal and the Court of review has limited jurisdiction as to the definite limit mentioned in Order 47 Rule 1 CPC itself. The powers of review cannot be exercised as an inherent power nor can an appellate power can be exercised in the guise of power of review."

6. In Kamlesh Verma vs. Mayawati and Others, (2013) 8 SCC 320, the Hon'ble Apex Court in paragraphs 17 to 20 has held as under:

*"17. In a review petition, it is not open to the Court to reappreciate the evidence and reach a different conclusion, even if that is possible. Conclusion arrived at on appreciation of evidence cannot be assailed in a review petition unless it is shown that there is an error apparent on the face of the record or for some reason akin thereto. This Court in Kerala SEB v. Hitech Electrothermics & Hydropower Ltd. (2005) 6 SCC 651 held as under: (SCC p. 656, para 10)

"10. ... In a review petition it is not open to this Court to reappreciate the evidence and reach a different conclusion, even if that is possible. The learned counsel for the Board at best sought to impress us that the correspondence exchanged between the parties did not support the conclusion reached by this Court. We are afraid such a submission cannot be permitted to be advanced in a review petition. The appreciation of evidence on record is fully within the domain of the appellate court. If on appreciation of the evidence produced, the court records a finding of fact and reaches a conclusion, that conclusion cannot be assailed in a review petition unless it is shown that there is an error apparent on the face of the record or for some reason akin thereto. It has not been contended before us that there is any error apparent on the face of the record. To permit the review petitioner to argue on a question of appreciation of evidence would amount to converting a review petition into an appeal in disguise."

18. Review is not rehearing of an original matter. The power of review cannot be confused with appellate power which enables a superior court to correct all errors committed by a subordinate court. A repetition of old and overruled argument is not enough to reopen concluded adjudications. This Court in Jain Studios Ltd. v. Shin Satellite Public Co. Ltd. (2006) 5 SCC 501, held as under: (SCC pp. 504-505, paras 11-12)

"11. So far as the grievance of the applicant on merits is concerned, the learned counsel for the opponent is right in submitting that virtually the applicant seeks the same relief which had been sought at the time of arguing the main matter and had been negatived. Once such a prayer had been refused, no review petition would lie which would convert rehearing of the original matter. It is settled law that the power of review cannot be confused with appellate power which enables a superior court to correct all errors committed by a subordinate court. It is not rehearing of an original matter. A repetition of old and overruled argument is not enough to reopen concluded adjudications. The power of review can be exercised with extreme care, caution and circumspection and only in exceptional cases.

12. When a prayer to appoint an arbitrator by the applicant herein had been made at the time when the arbitration petition was heard and was rejected, the same relief cannot be sought by an indirect method by filing a review petition. Such petition, in my opinion, is in the nature of "second innings' which is impermissible and unwarranted and cannot be granted."

19. Review proceedings are not by way of an appeal and have to be strictly confined to the scope and ambit of Order 47 Rule 1 CPC. In review jurisdiction, mere disagreement with the view of the judgment cannot be the ground for invoking the same. As long as the point is already dealt with and answered, the parties are not entitled to challenge the impugned judgment in the guise that an alternative view is possible under the review jurisdiction.

Summary of the principles

20. Thus, in view of the above, the following grounds of review are maintainable as stipulated by the statute:

20.1 When the review will be maintainable:

(i) Discovery of new and important matter or evidence which, after the exercise of due diligence, was not within knowledge of the petitioner or could not be produced by him;

(ii) Mistake or error apparent on the face of the record;

(iii) Any other sufficient reason.

*The words "any other sufficient reason" have been interpreted in Chhajju Ram v. Neki (1921-22) 49 IA 144 , (1922)

16 LW 37 , AIR 1922 PC 112 and approved by this Court in Moran Mar Basselios Catholicos v. Most Rev. Mar Poulose Athanasius AIR 1954 SC 526 , (1955) 1 SCR 520 to mean "a reason sufficient on grounds at least analogous to those specified in the rule". The same principles have been reiterated in Union of India v. Sandur Manganese & Iron Ores Ltd. (2013) 8 SCC 337 , JT (2013) 8 SC 275

20.2 When the review will not be maintainable:

(i) A repetition of old and overruled argument is not enough to reopen concluded adjudications.

(ii) Minor mistakes of inconsequential import.

(iii) Review proceedings cannot be equated with the original hearing of the case.

(iv) Review is not maintainable unless the material error, manifest on the face of the order, undermines its soundness or results in miscarriage of justice.

(v) A review is by no means an appeal in disguise whereby an erroneous decision is reheard and corrected but lies only for patent error.

(vi) The mere possibility of two views on the subject cannot be a ground for review.

(vii) The error apparent on the face of the record should not be an error which has to be fished out and searched.

(viii) The appreciation of evidence on record is fully within the domain of the appellate court, it cannot be permitted to be advanced in the review petition.

(ix) Review is not maintainable when the same relief sought at the time of arguing the main matter had been negatived."

7. In Sasi (Dead) Through Legal Representative vs. Arvindakshan Nair and Others, (2017) 4 SCC 692 the Hon'ble Supreme Court in paragraphs 6 to 9 has held as under:

"6. The grounds enumerated therein are specific. The principles for interference in exercise of review jurisdiction are well settled. The Court passing the order is entitled to review the order, if any of the grounds specified in the aforesaid provision are satisfied.

7. In Thungabhadra Industries Ltd. v. State of A.P Thungabhadra Industries Ltd. v. State of A.P, AIR 1964 SC 1372, the Court while dealing with the scope of review had opined: (AIR p. 1377, para 11)

"11. What, however, we are now concerned with is whether the statement in the order of September 1959 that the case did not involve any substantial question of law is an "error apparent on the face of the record". The fact that on the earlier occasion the Court held on an identical state of facts that a substantial question of law arose would not per se be conclusive, for the earlier order itself might be erroneous. Similarly, even if the statement was wrong, it would not follow that it was an "error apparent on the face of the record", for there is a distinction which is real, though it might not always be capable of exposition, between a mere erroneous decision and a decision which could be characterised as vitiated by "error apparent". A review is by no means an appeal in disguise whereby an erroneous decision is reheard and corrected, but lies only for patent error."

8. In Parsion Devi v. Sumitri Devi Parsion Devi v. Sumitri Devi, 1997 8 SCC 715, the Court after referring to Thungabhadra Industries Ltd., Meera Bhanja (Smt) v. Nirmala Kumari Choudhury (Smt). Meera Bhanja (Smt) v. Nirmala Kumari Choudhury (Smt)., 1995 1

SCC 170 and Aribam Tuleshwar Sharma v. Aribam Pishak Sharma Aribam Tuleshwar Sharma v. Aribam Pishak Sharma, 1979 4 SCC 389, held thus: (Parsion Devi case, SCC p. 719, para 9)

"9. Under Order 47 Rule 1 CPC, *a judgment may be open to review inter alia if there is a mistake or an error apparent on the face of the record. An error which is not self-evident and has to be detected by a process of reasoning, can hardly be said to be an error apparent on the face of the record justifying the court to exercise its power of review under O*rder 47 Rule 1 CPC. In exercise of the jurisdiction under Order 47 Rule 1 CPC it is not permissible for an erroneous decision to be "reheard and corrected". A review petition, it must be remembered, has a limited purpose and cannot be allowed to be "an appeal in disguise"."

9. The aforesaid authorities clearly spell out the nature, scope and ambit of power to be exercised. The error has to be self-evident and is not to be found out by a process of reasoning. We have adverted to the aforesaid aspects only to highlight the nature of review proceedings."

(Emphasis supplied)

8. The judgment of Haridas v. Usha Rani Banik, AIR 2006 SC 1634, has already taken note of in the judgment of Shri Ram Sahu (supra).

9. Therefore, the settled law is that power of review is available only when there is an error apparent on the face of the record and not on erroneous decision. If the parties aggrieved by the judgment on the ground that it is erroneous, remedy is only questioning the said order in appeal. The power of review under Order XLVII, rule 1, CPC may be opened inter alia, only if there is a mistake or an error apparent on the face of the record, the said power cannot be exercised as is not permissible for an erroneous decision to be "reheard and corrected." A review application also cannot be allowed to be "an appeal in disguise".

10. Same view was also expressed by a co-ordinate Bench of this Court while dealing with review application filed in the Writ Petition in the case T.P. Singh vs. Registrar/Assistant Registrar Firms and Another, 2018 (4) ADJ 782.

11. We find that the learned counsel for the applicant is seeking review of the order passed in special appeal on the grounds that had already been taken before this court and is in fact seeking review on merits.

12. Learned counsel for the applicant has taken grounds D, E and F for review of the order of this Court, which are quoted as under:

"D. Because, the Hon'ble Supreme Court as well as the Hon'ble Madras High Court considered grievance of the identically situation candidates for granting notional increment after retirement of employee. Hence the applicant/appellant is also entitled for getting lost notional increment just after his retirement for the purpose of pensionary benefits according to law laid down in the case of P. Ayyamperumall vs. Registrar Central Administrative Tribunal Madras Bench which has been confirmed by order dated 23.07.2018 passed by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Special Leave Petition (Civil) diary No.(s) 22283 of 2018 (Union of India and others vs. P. Ayyamperumal).

E. Because, the benefit of last notional increment was ordered by the Hon'ble High Curt as well as Hon'ble Supreme Court after more than four years from his retirement to P. Ayyamperumal, therefore the appellant also is entitled for getting the notional increment after his retirement.

F. Because, P. Ayyamperumal was retired on 30.06.2013 and the notional increment was ordered to him from 01.07.2013 after his retirement and after ending the relationship of master and servant by the Hon'ble Supreme Court as well as Hon'ble Madras High Court in the case of P.Ayyamperumal. Hence the appellant is also entitled for getting the benefit of last notional increment after his retirement on 30.06.2015 which fail due on 01.07.2015."

13. For ready reference, grounds B and E of the memo of Special Appeal are quoted as under:-

"B. Because, the petitioner is entitled for getting the last notional increment for the purpose of pensionery benefits in pursuance of law laid by the Hon'ble Madras High Court as well as Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of P. Ayyamperumal vs. The Registrar, Central Administrative Tribunal and Others but the claim of the petitioner had been rejected illegally and arbitrarily by the respondent by making wrong interpretation of law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court.

E. Because, just after getting knowledge of the above said order dated 15.09.2017 and 23.07.2015, petitioner/appellant without making any delay moved his representation dated 29.10.2018 before the appropriate authority and claimed his annual increment due on 01 July, 2015 in pursuance of law laid down in the P. Ayyamperumal case (supra) within three months."

14. A bare glance over the quoted grounds taken in the special appeal and in the review application would clear reflects that in fact applicant is seeking rehearing of the appeal, which according to him was dismissed by an erroneous judgment.

15. Admittedly, all such grounds were available to the petitioner before the Writ Court as well as before the Special Appellate Court.

16. We do not find that the present review application falls within the parameters of the Order XLVII, rule 1 C.P.C. and we are not satisfied with the argument advanced by the learned counsel for the applicant particularly on the strength of grounds D, E and F, which, admittedly, had already been taken before the Bench of which one of us (Justice Ajay Bhanot) was a member, review whereof is being sought.

17. Review application, accordingly, stands rejected.

THE HON'BLE SAUMITRA DAYAL SINGH, J.

Writ-A No. 9256 of 2021

Devendra Kumar Sharma ...Petitioner
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Sri Santosh Kumar Shukla

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C.

A. Service Law – Transfer – Government Order dated 18.04.2018 - Clause 3, 4(4), 5, 10 - To allow the respondents to transfer a teacher serving satisfactorily on a post only to accommodate a person seeking transfer on that post would be to permit uncontrolled arbitrariness and whimsical action to the administrative authorities. That itself is sufficient to annul the transfer of the petitioner. (Para 13)

Perusal of the GO dated 18.04.2018 reveals, it provides for mechanism to transfer teachers on their own request, only. It does not contain a general policy statement to enable transfer of teachers, on administrative considerations or generally. Even to transfer teachers on their own request, applications could be made to seek transfer to a post mentioned in the list of vacant posts only (available at various institutions at different districts), as notified and uploaded on the related website in terms of Clause 4(4) of the GO dated 18.04.2018. By virtue of Clause 4(5) of that GO, the desirous could apply for transfer only against such notified vacant posts, and no other. No disclosure has been made in the counter affidavit as to the then existing vacancy position at different institutions at different districts, against which one teacher, Smt. Pooja Tyagi may have applied, to be transferred. (Para 6)

Undisputedly, the post of Assistant Teacher (Mathematics) at Government Inter College, Nandgram, Ghaziabad was never vacant. The petitioner was serving at that institution from before. He had not applied for transfer. (Para 7)

In absence of any clause under the government policy allowing for transfer to be made generally, the discretion of the administrative authority to give preference to the said Smt. Pooja Tyagi, could not be exercised to dislodge the petitioner from the post on which he was working satisfactorily. No complaint or objection exists as to the working of the petitioner as Assistant Teacher (Mathematics) at Government Inter College, Nandgram, Ghaziabad. (Para 12)

B. This action (of transfer) if permitted would amount to a penalty imposed on the teacher dislodged from his settled place of posting, for no fault; without sanction of law and without initiating any disciplinary proceeding. (Para 13)

Consequently, the transfer orders dated 13.07.2021 (Nandgram to Tyodi) and 03.09.2021 (Tyodi, Ghaziabad to Anooppur, Dibai, Hapur) in so far as they seek to transfer out the petitioner from the Government Inter College, Nandgram, Ghaziabad are wholly conflicted to law. They are wholly unsustainable. Accordingly, the transfer orders are quashed. (Para 14)

Writ petition allowed. (E-4)

Present petition assails transfer order dated 13.07.2021, whereby the petitioner, who was then working as Assistant Teacher (Mathematics) at Government Inter College, Nandgram, Ghaziabad, was transferred intra-district, to Government Inter College, Tyodi, Ghaziabad.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Saumitra Dayal Singh, J.)

1. Heard Shri Santosh Kumar Shukla, learned counsel for the petitioner and learned Standing Counsel for the State.

2. Originally, the present petition was filed to challenge the transfer order dated 13.07.2021 whereby the petitioner, who was then working as Assistant Teacher (Mathematics) at Government Inter College, Nandgram, Ghaziabad, was transferred intra-district, to Government Inter College, Tyodi, Ghaziabad.

3. Perusal of the aforesaid order reveals, it provided for a solitary transfer of the petitioner. There was no other or corresponding transfer contemplated or disclosed therein. Upon the petition being entertained, vide order dated 20.09.2021, it was provided, the petitioner may not be relieved unless he has already been relieved. As a fact, the petitioner came to be relieved.

4. On 03.09.2021, another transfer order came to be passed whereby the petitioner was transferred, this time inter-district, from Government Inter College, Tyodi, Ghaziabad to Government Inter College Anooppur, Dibai, Hapur. Accordingly, the petitioner sought amendment to the writ petition. It was allowed. Order dated 03.09.2021 (annexed to the C.M. Amendment Application No. 2 of 2021), also speaks of a single transfer - of the petitioner, from Government Inter College, Tyodi, Ghaziabad to Government Inter College Anooppur, Dibai, Hapur.

5. The counter affidavit reveals, the transfer of the petitioner was not occasioned by any request of the petitioner. Rather, the initial transfer was made under the 4% Minister's quota contemplated under Clause 10 of the Government Order dated 18.04.2018, as made applicable to the academic session 2021-22. That discretion was exercised solely to accommodate one Smt. Pooja Tyagi at Government Inter College, Nandgram, Ghaziabad. She was earlier working as an Assistant Teacher at Government Higher Secondary School, Salempur Gurjar, Gautam Budh Nagar. Then, the second transfer order was occasioned on part acceptance of the objection of the petitioner being found true i.e., there did not exist any vacant post of Assistant Teacher (Mathematics) at Government Inter College, Tyodi, Ghaziabad. No other reason has been disclosed.

6. As to legality of the action/transfer order, perusal of the Government Order dated 18.04.2018 reveals, it provides for mechanism to transfer teachers on their own request, only. It does not contain a general policy statement to enable transfer of teachers, on administrative considerations or generally. Even to transfer teachers on their own request, applications could be made to seek transfer to a post mentioned in the list of vacant posts only (available at various institutions at different districts), as notified and uploaded on the related website in terms of Clause 4(4) of the Government Order dated 18.04.2018. By virtue of Clause 4(5) of that Government Order, the desirous could apply for transfer only against such notified vacant posts, and no other. No disclosure has been made in the counter affidavit as to the then existing vacancy position at different institutions at different districts, against which the said Smt. Pooja Tyagi may have applied, to be transferred.

7. Suffice to note, undisputedly, the post of Assistant Teacher (Mathematics) at Government Inter College, Nandgram, Ghaziabad was never vacant. The petitioner was serving at that institution from before. He had not applied for transfer. Second feature of that transfer policy is ? inter-se preference to be given in consideration to be made on all transfer applications. In that four categories of applicants were specified in Clauses 3 (i), (ii), (iii) and (iv) of the Government Order dated 18.04.2018. They were entitled to preferential consideration.

8. Prima facie, Smt. Pooja Tyagi does not appear to qualify for preferential consideration under any of those categories. While she had claimed death of both her parents and had further claimed ill-health of her mother-in-law, those facts/circumstances were not included under any of the above noted clauses to grant preference to consider her transfer application, irrespective of her seniority position. At the same time, it may be recorded, that issue would remain relevant and material for consideration of the claim set up by Smt. Pooja Tyagi. Inasmuch as the petitioner is not aggrieved by the transfer sought by Smt. Pooja Tyagi from Government Higher Secondary School, Salempur Gurjar, Gautam Budh Nagar, no binding observation is being made with respect to that.

9. For the present purpose, Clause 5 of the Government Order dated 18.04.2018 allowed for exercise of choice of five institution/s to which an applicant may seek transfer to. In view of the Clause 4(4) of that Government Order providing for notification of vacant posts at different institutions, in different districts read with the further stipulation of "pradarshit riktiyon" contained in Clause 4(5) thereof, such choice could have been exercised by an applicant and acted upon by the respondents only with respect to such notified vacant post/s only and not against any post/s that was/were occupied or filled up or which may not have been notified as a vacant post.

10. Looked in that light, Clause 10 of the Government Order dated 18.04.2018 reads as below:

"जनहित में संवर्ग के प्रतिशत की सीमा तक माननीय विभागीय मंत्री जी द्वारा किसी शिक्षक / शिक्षिका को अनुरोध के आवेदनों पर स्थानान्तरित किये जाने के आदेश दिए जा सकेंगे।"

11. In view of the above, the discretion given to the administrative authority under the above noted Clause 10 of the Government Order is not an exception to the general policy but an aid to the same. That discretion could be exercised to transfer Smt. Pooja Tyagi to a notified vacant post in preference over other applicants, though she may not have been entitled to any preferential consideration under any of the four categories of Clause 3 of the Government Order dated 18.04.2018 and though she may have stood lower in seniority and therefore preference, for consideration of transfer, first.

12. In absence of any clause under the government policy allowing for transfer to be made generally, the discretion of the administrative authority to give preference to Smt. Pooja Tyagi, could not be exercised to dislodge the petitioner from the post on which he was working satisfactorily. No complaint or objection exists as to the working of the petitioner as Assistant Teacher (Mathematics) at Government Inter College, Nandgram, Ghaziabad. The petitioner never applied or consented to be transferred out from that institution. Therefore, the action taken to transfer the petitioner to accommodate Smt. Pooja Tyagi, is unauthorised and impermissible in law.

13. To allow the respondents to transfer a teacher serving satisfactorily on a post only to accommodate a person seeking transfer on that post would be to permit uncontrolled arbitrariness and whimsical action to the administrative authorities. That itself is sufficient to annul the transfer of the petitioner. Second, that action if permitted would amount to a penalty imposed on the teacher dislodged from his settled place of posting, for no fault; without sanction of law and without initiating any disciplinary proceeding.

Third, apparently, the respondents are themselves of that view, in as much as they did not seek to transfer the Assistant Teacher (Mathematics) at Government Inter College, Tyodi, Ghaziabad, to accommodate the petitioner. Rather they have transferred the petitioner to such post that was lying vacant at Government Inter College Anooppur, Dibai, Hapur. Yet, that very principle was violated while displacing the petitioner from Government Inter College, Nandgram, Ghaziabad, in the first place. That is the extent of whimsical exercise if not abuse of discretion.

14. Consequently, the transfer orders dated 13.07.2021 and 03.09.2021 in so far as they seek to transfer out the petitioner from the Government Inter College, Nandgram, Ghaziabad are wholly conflicted to law. They are wholly unsustainable. Accordingly, the transfer orders dated 13.07.2021 and 03.09.2021 transferring the petitioner from Government Inter College, Nandgram, Ghaziabad, to Government Inter College, Tyodi, Ghaziabad and from Government Inter College, Tyodi, Ghaziabad to Government Inter College Anooppur, Dibai, Hapur are quashed.

15. The petitioner be allowed to re-join the Government Inter College, Nandgram, Ghaziabad forthwith, without prejudice to the rights of Smt. Pooja Tyagi to transfer under the Government Order dated 18.04.2018. That request may be reconsidered afresh, in accordance with law, considering the observations made above. That exercise be completed within a one month from today, against prior notice to her in that regard. Meanwhile, she may continue to render service at Government Inter College, Nandgram, Ghaziabad, along with the petitioner.

16. Since the petitioner has been wholly wronged, for no fault, and has been forced to litigate, he is also found entitled to costs that are assessed at Rs. 10,000/- per month, for the period when the petitioner could not work at Government Inter College, Nandgram, Ghaziabad. Let costs be paid out by the first respondent within one month from today.

17. The petition stands allowed with costs as above.

Writ A No. 6422 of 2021

Yogendra Singh Yadav ...Petitioner
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Sri Pratik Chandra, Sr. Advocate, Sri Ashok Khare

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C., Sri Purnendu Kumar Singh

A. Service Law – Promotion - Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988: Section 13(1)(C), 13(1)(D), 13(2) - Promotion etc. cannot be withheld merely because some disciplinary/criminal proceedings are proposed to be initiated against the employee concerned.

Disciplinary proceedings can be said to be pending only when charge sheet is issued to the delinquent employee. Criminal proceedings can be said to be pending only when charge sheet is submitted by the Investigating Officer before the competent trial court. (Para 5, 12)

B. The pendency of preliminary investigation prior to that stage will not be sufficient to enable the authority to adopt the Sealed Cover Procedure. (Para 11)

Either the employee concerned should be suspended, or Charge Sheet in disciplinary proceedings should have been issued to him, or charge sheet in Criminal Case should have been filed before the competent trial court before Sealed Cover Procedure could have been adopted. (Para 13)

In the present case, till date only investigation is being carried out by the Investigation Officer. No charge sheet has been submitted before the competent trial court. Therefore, it could not be said that any criminal proceedings are pending against the petitioner and the Order impugned has been passed on misconceived grounds. It is not disputed by the respondent that no disciplinary/departmental proceedings were initiated on the basis of alleged irregularities in the implementation of Rajiv Gandhi Rural Electrification Scheme. No charge sheet in any departmental proceeding has been served upon the petitioner. Therefore, the two requisite conditions for putting the petitioners case under Sealed Cover Procedure as per the GO dated 28.05.1997 are non-existent in so far as the petitioner is concerned. The petitioner has not been suspended at any point of time and he was working as Junior Engineer. (Para 5)

In the case of the petitioner, till the date of filing of the counter affidavit in September, 2021, Charge Sheet had not been filed by the Investigating Officer/Vigilance Officer before the competent trial court, hence, the orders impugned are set aside. (Para 14)

Writ petition allowed. (E-4)

Precedent followed:

1. U.O.I. & ors. Vs K.V. Janki Raman, 1991 (4) SCC 109 (Para 5, 13)

2. U.O.I. Vs Sangam Keshari Nayak, 2007 (6) SCC 704 (Para 12)

3. Harsh Kumar Sharma Vs St. of Pun., 2017 (4) SCC 366 (Para 12)

Present petition challenges order dated 04.02.2021 and also the consequential order dated 27.02.2021, passed by Managing Director, U.P. Power Corporation Limited, Shakti Bhawan, Lucknow with a further prayer that the respondents be directed not to interfere in the working of the petitioner as Assistant Engineer (Electricity Distribution Sub Division) Banda Rural, District-Banda and not to adopt Sealed Cover Procedure in respect of promotion of the petitioner as Assistant Engineer in the Department.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Sangeeta Chandra, J.)

1. Heard Sri Ashok Khare, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Pratik Chandra and Sri Purnendu Kumar Singh, learned counsel Singh appearing for the Respondent Nos. 2 to 5.

2. This petition has been filed by the petitioner challenging the order dated 04.02.2021 passed by the Respondent No. 2 and also the consequential order dated 27.02.2021 passed by the Respondent No. 2 with a further prayer that the respondents be directed not to interfere in the working of the petitioner as Assistant Engineer (Electricity Distribution Sub Division) Banda Rural, District-Banda and not to adopt Sealed Cover Procedure in respect of promotion of the petitioner as Assistant Engineer in the Department.

3. It is the case of the petitioner that he was appointed as a Junior Engineer initially on Ad hoc basis in 2007, and thereafter, confirmed on the post in question and was transferred from place to place. Lastly he was working in the office of the Executive Engineer Electricity Distribution Division, Kanpur Dehat. A dispute arose with regard to implementation of Rajiv Gandhi Gramin Vidyutikaran Yojna 2005-2006 and the petitioner was directed by the Superintending Engineer to appear before the Inspector in-charge of Vigilance Inquiry, Sri Ajit Kumar on 29.11.2018 at Jhansi to get his statement recorded. The petitioner then came to know that a First Information Report was lodged under section 409, 420, 120-B and Section 13 (1)(C), 13(1)(D), 13 (2) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988 at PS- Navabagh, District Jhansi on 05.07.2019 against 9 persons including the petitioner in respect of irregularities pertaining to implementation of Rajiv Gandhi Rural Electrification Scheme as aforesaid. While the investigation was pending, proceedings for promotion were undertaken by the department and eligibility list was issued, the petitioner's name was included in the said eligibility list. A direction was issued by the Headquarter to provide information about pendency of any disciplinary/ criminal proceedings or issuance of charge sheet if any in either of such proceedings against the officers whose name were mentioned in the eligibility list. No information was sent in so far as the petitioner was concerned. The petitioner was considered by the DPC and his name appeared in the list of selected candidates for the post of Assistant Engineer under the 40% promotion quota as evident from the order issued by the Managing Director, UPPCL on 26.10.2019. The petitioner joined as Assistant Engineer, Electricity Distribution Division, Jhinjak, Kanpur Dehat on 30.10.2019, and thereafter was directed to join the office of the Chief Engineer, Electricity Distribution Zone, Banda. The petitioner was also sent for training on 17.01.2020, and he completed his training and was directed to join at Electricity Distribution Division, Karvi-2, District Chitrakoot. The petitioner joined as Sub Divisional Officer, EDD Sub Division, Karvi-2, District Chitrakoot and was later on transferred to Electricity Distribution Sub Division, Banda Rural where he joined on 23.08.2020. The Respondent No. 2 has proceeded to pass an impugned order dated 04.02.2021 cancelling his earlier order of promotion dated 26.10.2019 and has further directed that the case of the petitioner shall be deemed to have been put under sealed cover as per the provisions of the Government Order dated 28.05.1997. Consequent to this order the petitioner has been reverted to his substantive post of Junior Engineer and the Respondent No.3 the Accounts Officer, UP Power Corporation Limited has further directed for payment of salary of the post of Junior Engineer to the petitioner, the salary that the petitioner was getting before his promotion The petitioner has joined in pursuance of the impugned order and is getting salary of Junior Engineer.

4. It has been argued by the learner Counsel appearing for the petitioner that the impugned order has been passed without giving any opportunity of hearing to the petitioner. As per clause 11 of the Government Order dated 28.05.1997, if Departmental Promotion Committee recommends the name of an employee, but before the implementation of the order of promotion, any relevant fact comes to the knowledge of the authorities, which relevant fact would have resulted in placing the case of the employee concerned under sealed cover, then the order of promotion shall not be given effect, to and the Recommendation of the DPC shall be treated to have been placed under Sealed Cover. Since the petitioner was already promoted and then the report regarding Open Vigilance Inquiry in terms of Government Order Dated 05.07.2019 came to light, his case was not covered under Clause 11 of the Government Order dated 28.05.1997. It is not as if the petitioner was made an accused in the criminal FIR lodged against him without the knowledge of the respondent authorities. The respondent authorities including the Superintending Engineer had knowledge of Open Vigilance Inquiry and had also directed the petitioner to appear before the Vigilance Officer concerned on 27.08.2020 for recording his statement.

5. It has also been argued by Shri Ashok Khare, learned Senior Advocate that till date only investigation is being carried out by the Investigation Officer. No charge sheet has been submitted before the competent trial court. Therefore, it could not be said that any criminal proceedings are pending against the petitioner and the Order impugned has been passed on misconceived grounds. It is not disputed by the respondent that no disciplinary/departmental proceedings were initiated on the basis of alleged irregularities in the implementation of Rajiv Gandhi Rural Electrification Scheme. No charge sheet in any departmental proceeding has been served upon the petitioner. Therefore, the two requisite conditions for putting the petitioners case under Sealed Cover Procedure as per the Government Order dated 28.05.1997 are non-existent in so far as the petitioner is concerned. The petitioner has not been suspended at any point of time and he was working as Junior Engineer. The counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance upon the judgement rendered in the case of Union of India and Others Vs. K.V. Janki Raman 1991 (4) SCC 109 , wherein it has been held that promotion etc. cannot be withheld merely because some disciplinary/ criminal proceedings are proposed to be initiated against the employee concerned. Disciplinary proceedings can be said to be pending only when charge sheet is issued to the delinquent employee. Criminal proceedings can be said to be pending only when charge sheet is submitted by the Investigating Officer before the competent trial court.

6. Learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner has also pointed out Clause 10 of the Government Order dated 28.05.1997 wherein it has been stated that in case of prolonged pendency of disciplinary proceedings/ criminal proceedings, the case of the employee concerned can be considered for grant of Ad Hoc promotion by the Departmental Promotion Committee.

7. Sri Purnendu Kumar Singh, on the basis of counter affidavit filed by the respondents, says that financial embezzlement to the tune of Rupees 1,600/- crores was found in the implementation of Rajiv Gandhi Rural Electrification Scheme in 14 Districts of Uttar Pradesh including Banda where the petitioner was posted. Initially an Inquiry was held by the Vigilance Cell of the Corporation but taking into account the seriousness of the matter the Special Secretary, Department of Energy, Government of U.P. by his letter No. 1263 dated 15.06.2015 has informed the Corporation that the matter has been taken up for Open Vigilance Inquiry by the UP Vigilance Establishment and has directed the Corporation to provide all necessary help for the proper conduct on the Vigilance Inquiry. The Deputy Secretary, Department of Energy, Government of UP has also by his letter No. Janch-17/24-P-2-2019-Satarkta (15)/2012 dated 19.06.2019 has informed that the petitioner is one of the accused and has been found prima facie guilty of financial embezzlement.

8. It has also been submitted by Sri Purnendu Kumar Singh that the Office Memorandum No.1849 issued by the Power Corporation dated 08.10.1997 has adopted the Sealed Cover Procedure as given in the Government Order dated 28.05.1997 and it was only because of misinformation that the petitioner had been promoted and therefore the impugned order has been passed cancelling his promotion and treating the recommendations of the DPC to be kept in Sealed Cover in so far as the petitioner is concerned.

9. It has, however, not been disputed by Sri Purnendu Kumar Singh that the counter affidavit does not say whether the Investigating Officer in pursuance of the Vigilance Inquiry has filed a charge sheet against the petitioner in the competent trial court. He says that the counter affidavit was filed by the respondents in the month of September 2021 and one year has lapsed, therefore, he does not know the current situation.

10. This court feels that if and when charge sheet is filed before the competent trial court, the provisions of Government Order dated 28..05.1997 would become applicable and not before that. The prerequisites for placing the case of the petitioner under sealed cover did not exist at the time of issuance of the impugned order dated 04.02.2021 as per law settled by the Supreme Court in the case of Union of India and Ohers versus K.V. Janki Raman. In the said case, the Supreme Court was considering a Government Order issued by the Government of India, Department of Personnel and Training dated 30.01.1982 where Sealed Cover Procedure was proposed to be adopted in the case of officers who are under suspension, or against whom disciplinary proceedings are pending for a long time, or a decision had been taken by the Competent Authority to initiate the disciplinary proceedings, or against whom prosecution had been launched in a Court of Law, or sanction for prosecution had been issued at the appropriate time when the DPC was being held. It was also provided in the said Government Order that after the findings are kept in sealed cover, in any subsequent DPC held thereafter, if the employee still facing disciplinary/ criminal proceedings, his case shall be considered again and the DPC shall record its finding and keep the same also in sealed cover. The Government Order dated 30.01.1982 was further modified by Government Order dated 12.01.1988, and a further guideline was issued that the same Sealed Cover Procedure was to be applied where the Government Servant is recommended for promotion by the DPC, but before he is actually promoted he is either placed under suspension or disciplinary proceedings are initiated against him or decision has been taken to initiate proceedings or criminal prosecution is launched or sanction for such prosecution has been issued, or decision to afford such sanction is taken.

11. The Supreme Court considered the question as to when for the purpose of Sealed Cover Procedure, the disciplinary / criminal proceedings can be said to have commenced, and the Court observed that it is only when Charge Memo is issued in disciplinary proceedings or a Charge Sheet is filed in a Criminal Court it could be said that disciplinary proceedings / criminal proceedings are pending against the employee concerned. The pendency of preliminary investigation prior to that stage will not be sufficient to enable the authority to adopt the Sealed Cover Procedure. The Court also considered the contentions raised by the Counsel for the appellant (Union of India) that where there are serious allegations it takes time to collect necessary evidence and to prepare and issue a Charge Memo/ Charge Sheet and it would not be in the interest of purity of Administration to award the employee with the promotion, increment etc., but observed that such argument did not impress their Lordships. It was observed as follows:-

".....The acceptance of this contention would result in injustice to the employees in many cases. As has been the experience so far, the preliminary Investigations take an inordinately long time and particularly when they are initiated at the instance of the interested persons, they are kept pending deliberately. Many times they never result in the issue of any charge-memo/charge-sheet. If the allegations are serious and the authorities are keen in investigating them, ordinarily it should not take much time to collect the relevant evidence and finalise the charges. What is further, if the charges are that serious, the authorities have the power to suspend the employees under the relevant rules, and the suspension by itself permits a resort to the sealed cover procedure. The authorities thus are not without a remedy....."

12. The judgement of the Supreme Court in K. V. Janki Raman(Supra) has been reinstated in Union of India Vs. Sangram Keshari Nayak 2007(6) SCC 704 and Harsh Kumar Sharma Vs. State of Punjab, 2017 (4) SCC 366, where the Supreme Court has again held that only after charge sheet is filed, criminal proceedings can be said to be pending.

13. It is evident from the observations made by the Supreme Court in the case of K.V. Janki Raman(Supra) that either the employee concerned should be suspended, or Charge Sheet in disciplinary proceedings should have been issued to him, or charge sheet in Criminal Case should have been filed before the competent trial court before Sealed Cover Procedure could have been adopted.

14. In the case of the petitioner, till the date of filing of the counter affidavit in September, 2021, Charge Sheet had not been filed by the Investigating Officer / Vigilance Officer before the competent trial court, hence, the orders impugned are set aside.

15. Let consequential orders be passed by the Respondent No.2 within a period of six weeks from the date a copy of this order is produced before him.

16. The Writ Petition stands allowed.

First Appeal No. 20 of 2007

Smt. Gayatri Mohapatra @ Smt. Gayatri Devi ...Defendant-Appellant
Versus
Ashit Kumar Panda ...Plaintiff-Respondent

Counsel for the Appellant:

Sri M.D. Singh Shekhar, Sri R.D. Tiwari, Sri Vaibhav Goswami

Counsel for the Respondent:
Sri K.M. Mishra, Sri A.K. Singh, Sri A.K. Rai. Sri H.R. Mishra, Sri V.K. Singh

A. Civil Law - Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 - Section 13(1)(i-b) - Divorce - Desertion - husband or wife would be entitled for a dissolution of marriage by the decree of divorce if the other parties had deserted the parties seeking the divorce for a continuous period of not less than two years immediately preceding the presentation of the petition - desertion, in its essence, means the intentional permanent forsaking and abandonment of one spouse by the other without that other's consent, and without reasonable cause - Court can draw an inference from the proven facts and circumstances that the deserting spouse had the intention to bring cohabitation permanently to an end, without the consent of the deserted spouse - For the deserted spouse, it was required to be proved that the act of desertion was without his consent and there was no such conduct of the deserted spouse giving reasonable cause to the spouse (deserting spouses) for leaving the matrimonial home to form the necessary intention to bring cohabitation permanently to an end – It is an unilateral act of the deserting spouse, without the consent of his/her partner and in absence of any conduct of the deserted spouse which may have lead to the act of the deserting spouse. (Para 47, 51

B. Civil Law - Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, Section 13(1)(i-b) - Divorce - Desertion - Evidence on record insufficient, to come to a conclusion even on probability that the wife deserted her husband, with the intention to bring the matrimonial relationship to an end - Rather the wife after leaving her matrimonial home on 23.11.2011 on account of the act of the husband to throw her out of the house, made efforts to resolve the matter - She even went to the house of her parents-in-law to reside there for three days in the absence of the respondent, in order to persuade them to bring the dispute to an end - She filed restitution petition, participated in the mediation proceeding showing her willingness to live with her husband - the admission of the husband that he never went to Meerut to bring back his wife after 23.11.2011 and before filing of the divorce suit, i.e. for a period of two years, gave a clear indication of the fact that the husband never wanted to patch up with his wife and his version that the wife had left her matrimonial home on her own volition, is unbelievable - family court wrongly concluded that since the wife had admitted that she was living separately from her husband from 21.11.2011, the period of two years of desertion stood proved - Mere act of withdrawal of the wife from her matrimonial home at the Air Force station, Ambala and the factum of separation of the wife for a period of two years from her husband when she was making efforts to pacify her husband with the help of the family in order to bring matrimonial harmony cannot lead to the conclusion that the wife had no intention to lead a normal married life with the husband or her act of leaving her matrimonial home was in absence of any conduct of the husband giving the wife a reasonable cause to form the necessary intention aforesaid (Para 60)

C. Civil Law - Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, Section 13(i)/(i-a) - Mental Cruelty / Physical Cruelty - Criminal case lodged by the wife cannot be a reason to grant divorce on the ground of cruelty and the Family Court acted illegally in holding that even filing of the application for maintenance under Section 125 Cr.P.C. by the wife would come within the meaning of cruelty - Family court was swayed away by the fact that the husband was a Fighter Pilot and any kind of mental disturbance caused to him would come in the way of the dedicated services of the Nation, having lost sight of the fact that the husband cannot take benefit of his own wrong by his mere position in service - Once he had wronged his wife by not treating her well and not trying to patch up the marital discord by acting wisely in his complete matrimonial life, no indulgence can be given to the husband for the sole fact of being posted as a fighter pilot in the Indian Air Force - Conclusion drawn by the family court that the acts of wife had resulted in an act of 'cruelty' caused upon her husband contrary to the evidence on record - Findings returned by the family court on issue of Cruelty in favour of the husband set aside (Para 96)

D. Civil Law - Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, Section 13(i-b) - Divorce - "irretrievable breakdown of marriage" - High Court concluded that the matrimonial bond between the parties was beyond repair - wife 35 years of age and the husband about 39 years – Court of the view if at that juncture of their life, they are not given a second chance and are forced to live together, their lives may become miserable - matrimonial dispute which has assumed that proportion on trivial issues, seems to be beyond repairs on account of bitterness created by the acts of both the husband and the wife and their family members - parties being well educated persons if free from the matrimonial bond, may look forward to settle in their life in a better and positive way which may make them happy individuals and their lives would be constructive to our society - In the compelling circumstances of the present case, in order to give a chance to the parties to settle themselves and be relieved of a marriage which is dead, court dissolved the marriage between the parties - Regard being had to the social status and strata of the parties especially the husband, the aspirations of the wife to lead the life of the wife of an Air Force Officer, court provided a sum of Rs.1 Crore (One Crore) as permanent alimony to wife, excluding the amount already paid to the appellant wife towards interim maintenance. Facts

2. Briefly stated facts of the present case are that defendant - appellant/wife married with the plaintiff - respondent/husband on 10.06.1990 as per Hindu rites and rituals. Plaintiff - respondent is an I.P.S. Officer while the defendant - appellant is a Doctor holding M.B.B.S. Degree. The father of the plaintiff - respondent was in service of the Steel Authority of India, Raurkela while father of the defendant - appellant was Additional Director General of Police, Orissa and her mother has promoted a company known as JBS Capacitors Pvt. Ltd., Bhubaneshwar. Initially, the defendant - appellant joined the service in Health Department, Aligarh, but after three or four months she left it. She became Director in the aforesaid Company promoted by her mother. Son, namely, Aparajita Issan Narayan was born on 05.06.1991 from the wedlock of the plaintiff and the defendant at SCB Medical College, Cuttack.

3. It appears that dispute between the plaintiff and the defendant arose even before their son was born which led to various incidents. Ultimately the plaintiff - respondent filed case No.260 of 2000 (Ashit Kumar Panda Vs. Smt. Gayatri Devi) under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, in the Court of Principal Judge Family Court, Meerut, for divorce. In the plaint, amongst other allegations; the plaintiff - respondent has alleged in paras 5, 9, 10, 11, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18 and 19 as under:

"5. यह कि पैटीशनर व विपक्षी के परिवारो मे आचार व विचारो को असमानता होने के कारण भी विपक्षी एवं उसके पिता पैटीशनर एवं उसके परिवार को अपने अनुचित प्रभाव का लाभ उठाकर तरह तरह से तंग व परेशान करते रहे है। जिससे पैटीशनर अपने दाम्पत्य जीवन के सुख से वंचित हो गया है।

9. यह कि विपक्षी के पिता ने पैटीशनर के पिता को तंग व परेशान करने की गरज से दिनांक 30.12.91 को गुण्डे भेजकर हमला करवाया। जिसकी रिपोर्ट पैटीशनर के पिता ने सैक्टर-3 राउरकेला के थाने मे पंजीकृत करायी थी।

10. यह कि विपक्षी ने पैटीशनर के पुत्र के नामकरण की रस्म भी कटक मे अपने पिता के घर पर सम्पन्न करायी जिसमे विपक्षी पैटीशनर अथवा उसके माता पिता को इस सम्बन्ध मे कोई सूचना नही दी।

11. यह कि विपक्षी के पिता ने सन् 1991 के आखिर मे पैटीशनर के पिता के खिलाफ सी०बी०आई० मे मेल जोल होने के कारण झूँठे मुकदमे कायम कराने के लिये दबाव बनाया, उस समय एस०पी० सी०बी०आई० भुवनेश्वर श्री प्रकाश मिश्रा तैनात थे। जिन्होने कोई सबूत न पाते हुए पैटीशनर के पिता जी के खिलाफ कोई कार्यवाही नही करी थी।

14. यह कि विपक्षी ने वर्ष 1991 मे जब पैटीशनर की तैनाती बतौर ए०एस०पी० थी। तब कर्फ्यू के दौरान विपक्षी पैटीशनर के पास आयी और एक रात रूककर पैटीशनर पर दबाव दिया कि पैटीशनर उसे वापिस उसके पिता के घर पर छोडकर आये, पैटीशनर ने बामुश्किल छुट्टी लेकर विपक्षी को उसके पिता के घर पर छोड़कर आया।

15. यह कि पैटीशनर अब मेरठ मे पुलिस ट्रेनिंग सेन्टर हापुड़ रोड मेरठ मे तैनात है दिनांक 17.12.99 को विपक्षी ने पैटीशनर के मकान से समस्त सामान डबल बेड, अलमारी , फ्रीज , कूलर आदि को ट्रक मे भरवाकर अपने साथ दिल्ली स्थित मकान ग्रेटर कैलाश मे ले गयी, ट्रक के साथ सामान चढवाने व उतरवाने मे कविन्द्र गौतम हैड. कांस्टेबिल, तालेवर सिंह, स्टैनो नेपाल सिंह, सी०एल०डी० राजन सिंह व वीर सिंह फोलोवर ट्रक के साथ मे गये थे व पडौसी अनन्त अग्रवाल पुत्र विनय अग्रवाल मकान सं० एल०-948 ने विपक्षी को सामान ट्रक मे भरते व ले जाते हुए देखा है।

16. यह कि उपरोक्त परिस्थितियो मे पैटीशनर का विपक्षी के साथ साथ रहना नामुमकिन है। पैटिशनर व विपक्षी के साथ रहने पर किसी भी समय कोई भी दर्घटना घटित हो सकती है।

*17. यह कि विपक्षी ने पैटीशनर तथा उसके माता पिता को परेशान एवं बेईज्जती करने की नियत से दिनांक 27.03.2000 को महिला थाने, सदर लखनऊ मे एक रिपोर्ट क्राईम नं० 17/2000 पर अ०धारा 498ए, 323, 506 आई०पी०सी० व ¾ दहेज एक्ट दर्ज करायी जिसमे विपक्षी ने पैटीशनर एवं माता पिता पर झूँठे बेबुनियाद आरोप लगाये। इस तथाकथित रिपोर्ट मे विपक्षी ने पैटीशनर पर चरित्र हीनता का आरोप भी लगाया जो कि सर्वथा गलत बेबुनियाद एवं कपोल कल्पित है। विपक्षी की इस रिपोर्ट से पैटिशनर एवं उसके परिवार की समाज मे बहुत ही बेइज्जती हुयी है एवं पैटीशनर तथा उसके परिवार को मानसिक आघात भी पहुचा है। इस घटना से पैटीशनर को इतना कष्ट हुआ कि अब पैटीशनर का विपक्षी के साथ रहना कतई सम्भव नही है और विपक्षी का यह कृत्य पैटीशनर के प्रति मानसिक क्रूरता पूर्ण है।

18. यह कि विपक्षी को पैटीशनर तथा उसके परिवार के विरूद्ध झूँठी रिपोर्ट लिखाकर भविष्य मे पैटीशनर के दाम्पत्य जीवन की एक मात्र आशा को भी समाप्त कर दिया है। अब पैटीशनर एवं विपक्षी का एक साथ रहकर दाम्पत्य जीवन यापन करना नामुमकिन है अतः उपरोक्त पैटीशन प्रस्तुत करने की आवश्यकता पैदा हुयी है।

19. यह कि वाद का कारण दिनांक 10.06.90 मे विपक्षी के साथ विवाह होने उसके उपरान्त दिनांक 13.12.99 मे मेरठ से पैटीशनर के निवास से समस्त घर का सामान ले जाना एवं उसके बाद दिनांक 27.03.2000 को विपक्षी के द्वारा पैटीशनर पर चरित्र हीनता व उत्पीडन के झूठे आरोप लगाकर झूठी रिपोर्ट दर्ज कराई एवं पैटीशनर एवं विपक्षी का मेरठ शहर मे अन्तिम समय पर एक साथ निवास करने के कारण माननीय न्यायालय के क्षेत्राधिकार में आता है। माननीय न्यायालय को उक्त वाद को सुनने एवं निस्तारण करने का पूर्णतया अधिकार है।"

4. The defendant - appellant filed written statement in which she denied allegations. The plaintiff - respondent filed examination in chief. In his examination-in-chief he affirmed the plaint version. He produced himself in evidence for cross - examination and was cross examined by the defendant - appellant. The plaintiff - respondent also produced in evidence Sri Golak Bihari Panda (PW 2), who is his father. In his evidence on the point of cruelty the PW 2, has stated as under :-

"8. यह कि मै शपथपूर्वक कथन करता हूँ कि उक्त दिनांक- 12.06.1990 से लेकर दिनांक- 14.06.1990 की तीन दिन की अवधि मे श्रीमती गायत्री ने अनेको बार शपथकर्ता एवं उसके परिवारजन को यह ताना दिया कि तुम्हारे घर का स्टैण्डर्ड बहुत खराब है और आशीत कुमार का वेतन भी बहुत कम है इतने से कही अधिक तो हम अपने कर्मचारियों को बांट देते है। ऐसी स्थिति में उसका ससुराल मे रहना किसी भी हाल मे सम्भव नही है ऐसे ताने सुनकर शपथकर्ता एवं उसकी पत्नी एवं उसके पुत्र को बड़ा ही मानसिक कष्ट पहुँचा शपथकर्ता के पड़ोस मे भी शपथकर्ता की छवि अत्यन्त खराब हो गयी।

9. यह कि मै शपथपूर्वक बयान करता हूँ कि शपथकर्ता की पुत्र बधू श्रीमती गायत्री एम०बी०बी०एस० डाक्टर है और उसके पिता उडीसा पुलिस के सेवानिवृत्त एस०डी०जी०पी० है। श्रीमती गायत्री अपनी माता जी की कम्पनी जे०बी०एस०केपीसिटेस प्राईवेट लिमिटेड़ भुवनेश्वर स्थित कम्पनी डायरेक्टर भी है। और श्रीमती गायत्री उक्त कम्पनी के समस्त कामकाज की देखभाल करती है उक्त कम्पनी कम्प्यूटर के पार्टस बनाने का कार्य करती है। विवाह के पश्चात श्रीमती गायत्री अधिकतर समय अपने मायके मे ही रही है।

10. यह कि मै शपथपूर्वक बयान करता हू कि रेस्पोण्डेन्ट के अधिकतर समय अपने मायके मे रहने से एवं क्रूरता पूर्ण व्यवहार के कारण शपथकर्ता का पुत्र दाम्पत्य सुख से वंचित हो गया है और वह बड़े ही मानसिक कष्टो मे अपना जीवन गुजार रहा है।

11. यह कि मै शपथपूर्वक बयान करता हू कि रेस्पोन्डेण्ट श्रीमती गायत्री को अपने मायके मे ही रहते हुए एक पुत्र अपराजित ईशान नारायण का जन्म दिनांक-05.06.1991 को हुआ था और जन्म से लेकर आज तक उस पुत्र को पेटिसपर की इच्छा के विरूद्ध रेस्पोण्डेन्ट ने अपने मायके मे ही रखा हुआ है और उसकी पढाई लिखाई भी वही चल रही है रेस्पोण्डेन्ट

ने शपथकर्ता एवं उसकी पत्नी को आज तक अपने एक मात्रा पोते का मुंह भी देखने नही दिया है जिसका इतना भारी दुख शपथकर्ता एवं उसकी पत्नी को है जिसके शब्दो मे स्पष्ट करना सम्भव नही है।

12. यह कि मै शपथपूर्वक कथन करता हूँ कि समस्त भारत मे हिन्दू जाति मे यह परम्परा है कि पुत्र या पौत्र का नामकरण एवं जनेऊ संस्कार उसके पिता के घर मे सम्पन्न होता है जिसमे परिवार के सभी इष्ट मित्र एवं रिश्तेदार शामिल होकर खुशी मनाते है। परन्तु रेस्पोण्डेन्ट की क्रूरता की तब सीमा समाप्त हो गयी जब रेस्पोण्डेन्ट ने शपथकर्ता एवं उसके परिवारजनो को वगैर कोई सूचना दिये शपथकर्ता के पौत्र का जनेऊ संस्कार भी अपने मायके मे ही मना लिया। ऐसी स्थिति मे शपथकर्ता अपने पौत्र का संस्कार पूर्ण करने एवं उसको अपनी गांद मे खिलाकर उसकी मीठी-मीठी बाते सुनने से पूर्णरूप से वंचित हो गया तथा पैटिसनर आशीत कुमार जो उक्त बच्चे का प्राकृतिक पिता है वह रेस्पोण्डेन्ट के उक्त क्रूरता पूर्ण व्यवहार से पितृ सुख व दाम्पत्य सुख से भी वंचित हो गया है।

13. यह कि मै शपथपूर्वक बयान करता हूँ कि रेस्पोण्डेन्ट के पिता ने शपथकर्ता को परेशान करने की नीयत से दिनांक 30.12.1991 को गुण्डे भेजकर शपथकर्ता पर हमला भी करवाया था जिसकी रिपोर्ट शपथकर्ता ने सेक्टर-3 राउरकेला के थाने मे पंजीकृत करायी थी। इसके अतिरिक्त दिसम्बर 1991 मे ही रेस्पोण्डेन्ट के पिता ने सी०बी०आई०द्ध के जान पहचान होने के कारण शपथकर्ता को झूठी कार्यवाही मे फंसाने के लिए प्रयास किया था उस समय एस०पी०सी०बी०आई० भुवनेश्वर श्री प्रकाश मिश्रा तैनात थे जिन्होने कोई सबूत न पाते हुये शपथकर्ता के विरूद्ध कोई कार्यवाही नही की थी।

14. यह कि मै शपथपूर्वक कथन करता हूँ कि शपथकर्ता का पुत्र आशीत कुमार जब वर्ष 1999 मे मेरई मे तैनात था तब वह गम्भीर रूप से मुंह के कैन्सर से बीमार हो गया था तब रेस्पोण्डेन्ट को उसकी पूर्ण देखभाल करनी चाहिए थी परन्तु रेस्पोण्डेन्ट ने उसकी देखभाल करने के स्थान पर उससे लड़ाई झगड़ा किया और घर का समस्त घरेलू सामान जैसे डबल बेड, अलमारी, फ्रीज, कूलर आदि ट्रक मे भरवाकर दिनांक 17.12.1999 को अपने साथ दिल्ली स्थित मकान ग्रेटर कैलाश मे ले गयी थी ट्रक मे सामान भरवाने मे कविन्द्र गौतम हैड कान्स०, तालेवर सिंह, स्टैनो नेपाल सिंह, सी०एल०डी० राजन सिंह व वीर सिंह फालोवर ट्रक मे सामान भरवाकर दिल्ली साथ गये थे इनके अतिरिक्त पडोसी अनन्त अग्रवाल पुत्र श्री विनय अग्रवाल निवासी एल० 948 शास्त्री नगर मेरठ जिनकी पुलिस ट्रेनिंग सेण्टर हापुड रोड मेरठ शहर के पास पी०सी०ओ० की दुकान थी ने भी रेस्पोण्डेन्ट को ट्रक मे सामान भरवाते व ले जाते हुए देखा था।

15. यह कि मै शपथपूर्वक कथन करता हूँ कि रेस्पोण्डेन्ट ने बिना कारण तंग व परेशान करने व बेईज्जती करने की नीयत से पैटिशनर एवं शपथकर्ता एवं शपथकर्ता की पत्नी के नाम एक झूठी रिपोर्ट दिनांक- 27.03.2000 को महिला थाना सदर लखनऊ मे अन्तर्गत धारा - 498ए०/323/506 आई०पी०सी० व ¾ दहेज एक्ट की दर्ज करायी थी जिसमें रेस्पोण्डेन्ट ने शपथकर्ता एवं उसके परिवारजनो पर झूंठे, बेबुनियाद, आरोप लगाये थे। उक्त रिपोर्ट मे रस्पोण्डेन्ट ने अपने पति के विरूद्ध चरित्रहीनता का झूठा आरोप भी लगाया जो रेस्पोण्डेन्ट की क्रूरता को स्पष्ट करता है। ऐसी स्थिति में पेटिशनर व रेस्पोण्डेन्ट का साथ सात पति पत्नी के रूप मे रहना सम्भव नही रहा है।"

5. The plaintiff - respondent also filed additional affidavit in evidence in which he further narrated certain facts in paras 5 and 6 to support mental cruelty by the defendant - appellant.

6. P.W. 1 and P.W. 2 both were cross examined by the defendant - appellant on various dates.

7. In evidence, copies of First Information Report dated 27.03.2005 lodged by the defendant - appellant and various other evidence were also filed by the plaintiff - respondent. However, despite specific allegation of mental cruelty on various grounds including lodging of the false First Information Report against the plaintiff - respondent and his family members, the evidence led in this regard by him could not be disproved by the defendant - appellant. Despite specific allegations of lodging false first information report, the defendant - appellant/wife has chosen not to lead even her oral evidence. Considering the facts and evidences on record, the Principal Judge Family Court, Meerut decreed the suit by judgement dated 16.12.2006 dissolving the marriage.

8. Aggrieved with the aforesaid judgement and decree, the defendant - appellant has filed the present appeal.

9. Perusal of the order sheet of the aforesaid appeal shows that this Court made serious efforts for amicable settlement between the parties but it failed. In this regard, it would be appropriate to reproduce the order dated 03.04.2014 as under :

"In pursuance of the order dated 24.02.2014, both the parties along with their counsel are present.

We talked to them individually and in presence of each other alongwith their counsel. We are sorry to record that all our efforts for amicable settlement between the parties have failed. Thus there is no option left but to place the appeal for adjudication on merits.

List the appeal in its turn."

Submissions of the defendant-appellant

10. (i) The plaintiff-respondent has not taken any ground of cruelty in the plaint. Therefore, the impugned judgment and decree granted by the Court below on the ground of cruelty and dissolving the marriage, is illegal.

(ii) The averments made in para no.15 of the plaint does not amount to cruelty.

(iii) The impugned order for dissolving the marriage under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 has been passed without affording opportunity of hearing to the defendant-appellant.

(iv) The application 20-Ga for summoning several police officers and staff in evidence was illegally rejected by the Court by order dated 21.11.2006.

(v) Not adding the sur-name "Panda" by the defendant-appellant, with her name or with the name of her son, does not amount to cruelty.

(vi) Even if the defendant-appellant has not filed her oral evidence yet it shall make no difference inasmuch as the PWs 1 and 2 were examined by the defendant.

Submissions of the plaintiff-respondent

11. (i) The cruelty has been well proved by the plaintiff-respondent and finding recorded in this regard in the impugned judgement are based on consideration of relevant evidences on record.

(ii) The plaintiff-respondent and the defendant-appellant are undisputedly living separately since 1999 and thus, more than 23 years have passed and they are not ready to live together. Therefore, in any view of the matter, the parties cannot be directed to live together. There is irretrievable break down and the tie of marriage cannot be restored. The decree of divorce itself was passed on 16.12.2006 and thus, about 16 years have already passed from the date of decree of divorce. Reliance is placed upon the judgment of Supreme Court dated 13.09.2021 in Civil Appeal Nos.4984-4985 of 2021, (Sivasankaran versus Santhimeenal).

(iii) In any view of the matter, no order for the parties to live together, should be passed on facts of the present case.

Reliance is placed upon the judgment of Supreme Court in the case of Naveen Kohli versus Neelu Kohli, (2006) 4 SCC 558.

Discussion and Findings

12. Brief facts of the case and the submissions of learned counsels for the parties as noted above clearly shows that the grounds for divorce taken by the plaintiff - respondent was mainly "mental cruelty". The parties have also led their evidences in this regard. It has been admitted by the learned counsel for the defendant - appellant and also as reflected from his submission No.(vi) noted above, that although the plaintiff - respondents led the oral evidence of PW - 1 and PW -2 and were crossed examined at length by the defendant - appellant but the defendant - appellant has not led any oral evidence. She has also not even filed copies of the order/judgments of trial Court in criminal cases lodged by her against the plaintiff - respondent and his family members. The plaintiff - respondent has led evidences to prove that the first information report lodged by the defendant - appellant, were based on false allegations. The defendant - appellant has not led any evidence to disprove it or to prove that the first information report lodged by her were not based on false allegation. She has not even led her oral evidence. The court below has considered the evidence on record and framed five issues out of which the issue Nos. 1 and 5 were crucial for decision on the question of divorce which are reproduced below :

"1- क्या प्रतिवादिनी ने वादी के साथ क्रूरता का व्यवहार किया है? यदि हां तो इसका प्रभाव?

5- क्या वादी के पिता द्वारा पक्षकारो के वैवाहिक जीवन मे अनावश्यक हस्तक्षेप करना व वादी के द्वारा अपने पिता के प्रभाव मे अपने वैवाहिक जीवन मे अपने दायित्वो का सही प्रकार पालन न करने के कारण प्रतिवादिनी को दाम्पत्य जीवन निर्वाह करने मे अस्मर्थ किया गया जैसा कि प्रतिवाद पत्र मे कहा गया है। यदि हां तो इसका प्रभाव?"

13. The issue nos. 1 and 5 aforequoted were collectively decided by the court below. The issue no. 1 was decided in affirmative in favour of the plaintiff. The conclusion was recorded as under :

"उपरोक्त समीक्षा के आधार पर मै इस निष्कर्ष पर पहुंचा हूँ कि याची के साथ विपक्षी द्वारा क्रूरतापूर्ण व्यवहार किया गया है और याची के माता पिता द्वारा याची और विपक्षी के परिवारिक जीवन मे कोई अनुचित हस्तक्षेप नही किया गया है तदानुसार यह वाद बिन्दु सं० -1 सकारात्मक रूप मे एवं वाद बिन्दु संख्या-5 नकारात्मक रूप से याची के पक्ष मे निर्णित किया जाता है। "

14. The aforesaid conclusion in the impugned judgment is based on the findings recorded by the court below, briefly as under :

(i) The plaintiff - husband has made allegations that the defendant - wife expressed her unwillingness to live with the plaintiff by alleging and insulting him that the standard of living of his and his family members is low and the salary of the plaintiff is so low that more than his salary, her parents used to distribute salary to their employees. To prove this allegation, the plaintiff - husband has filed affidavit 61 Ka, an additional affidavit 104 ka and PW 2 filed affidavit 62 Ka and additional affidavit 105 Ka supporting the plaintiff's contention but the defendant - wife neither submitted any reply to the aforesaid evidences nor produce her evidence and also could not prove the papers filed by her by list 8 Ga.

(ii) The defendant wife firstly joined service as physician in Uttar Pradesh Health Department, Aligarh, but left the service for reason that infact she was having more interest in the business of her mother. The plaintiff -respondent filed habeas corpus Writ Petition No.22262 of 2001 (paper No.44 Ga) for custody of his son Aparajit Ishan Narayan, in which the father of the defendant - appellant filed an affidavit stating that he has better resources for protection of future of the aforesaid son and the plaintiff - respondent has not extended any affection or protection to the aforesaid child.

(iii) The PW - 1 has filed photographs 112 ka dated 19.8.1993, 43 Ka dated 06.09.1995, 114 Ka of the year 1993 and 115 Ka of the year 1995 to prove that the allegation of the defendant - appellant that the aforesaid child never remained with the plaintiff and his family members is incorrect. The aforesaid photographs were not denied by the defendant - appellant/wife.

(iv) On 17.12.1999, the defendant wife has left her matrimonial house and went to her parents home.

(v) The defendant - wife has alleged that the plaintiff husband has demanded in dowry Rs.5,00,000/- and a car and on non fulfilment of the dowry demand she was beaten by the plaintiff and for that reason she lodged crime case No.17/2000 under Section 498 A, 323, 506 I.P.C. and ¾ Dowry Prohibition Act on P.S. Mahila Thana Sadar, Lucknow on 27.03.2000 but she has not filed even copy of the FIR. The plaintiff - husband has filed photo copy of the aforesaid FIR and other papers 45 Ga, 78 Ga and 80 Ga which show that the aforesaid case crime registered as case no.210 of 2002 and is pending in the Court of 3rd Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Lucknow and as such no comment can be made on it.

(vi) The defendant - wife has made allegation that the plaintiff - husband is indulged in adultery with a lady Rita Rai. The plaintiff - husband has denied the allegation and got recorded his oral evidence in this regard as PW 1 and his denial was also supported by PW -2 in his evidence, but the defendant - wife has not produced any evidence. Thus, the plaintiff - husband has been able to prove that the allegation of his being characterless, made by the defendant - wife, is false. Allegations made by the defendant - wife against the parents of the plaintiff - husband were found to be incorrect.

(vii) The defendant - wife has made false complaints 78 Ga against the plaintiff - husband to his higher officers and the Director General of Police Uttar Pradesh, but she could not lead any evidence to prove the allegations.

15. So far as the submissions Nos. (i), (ii) and (v) of learned counsel for the defendant - appellant is concerned, we find that the averments made by plaintiff in paras 5, 9, 10, 11, 17 and 19 of the plaint clearly discloses the ground of cruelty.

16. So far as the submission No. (iii) made by learned counsel for the defendant - appellant that the impugned judgement for dissolving the marriage under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 (hereinafter referred to as "the Act 1955") has been passed without affording an opportunity of hearing to the defendant - appellant, is incorrect. Perusal of the impugned judgment shows that the defendant - appellant has appeared in the aforesaid case before the court below and not only filed her written statement but also cross examined PW - 1 and PW - 2 at length. Thus, the submission of learned counsel for the defendant - appellant that no opportunity of hearing was afforded to the defendant - appellant, is totally incorrect.

17. So far as the submission No. (iv) is concerned, we find that the defendant - appellant has not taken any such specific grounds in the grounds of appeal.

Cruelty

18. The word "cruelty" has not been defined in the Act, 1955. It has been used in Section 13(i) (i-a) of the Act 1955 in the context of human conduct or behaviour in relation to or in respect to matrimonial duties or obligations. It is a course of conduct of one which is adversely affecting the other. The cruelty may be mental or physical. It may be intentional or unintentional. If it is physical, it is question of fact and degree. If it is mental, the inquiry must begin as to the nature of cruel treatment and then as to the impact of such treatment on the mind of the spouse as to whether it caused reasonable apprehension that it would be harmful or injurious to live with the other. It is a matter of inference to be drawn by considering the nature of the conduct and its effect on the complaining spouse. These principles find mention in the law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Shobha Rani Vs. Madhukar Reddi (1988) 1 SCC 105 (paras 4, 5, 6, 7 and 18).

19. Expressing similar view as aforesaid and following the decision in the case of Shobha Rani (supra), Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of V. Bhagat v D. Bhagat (1994) 1 SCC 337 (para 16) broadly defined mental cruelty, as under :

16. Mental cruelty in Section 13(1)(i-a) can broadly be defined as that conduct which inflicts upon the other party such mental pain and suffering as would make it not possible for that party to live with the other. In other words, mental cruelty must be of such a nature that the parties cannot reasonably be expected to live together. The situation must be such that the wronged party cannot reasonably be asked to put up with such conduct and continue to live with the other party. It is not necessary to prove that the mental cruelty is such as to cause injury to the health of the petitioner. While arriving at such conclusion, regard must be had to the social status, educational level of the parties, the society they move in, the possibility or otherwise of the parties ever living together in case they are already living apart and all other relevant facts and circumstances which it is neither possible nor desirable to set out exhaustively. What is cruelty in one case may not amount to cruelty in another case. It is a matter to be determined in each case having regard to the facts and circumstances of that case. If it is a case of accusations and allegations, regard must also be had to the context in which they were made.

20. In the aforesaid judgement in the case of V. Bhagat (supra) (paras 18 & 19) Hon'ble Supreme Court has referred to its earlier judgment in the case of Chanderkala Trivedi Vs. Dr S.P. Trivedi (1993) 4 SCC 232 (paras 2 & 3), which appears to be relevant for the purposes of controversy involved in the present appeal.

21. Paras 18 and 19 of the judgement in the case of V. Bhagat (supra) is reproduced below :

18. In Chanderkala Trivedi v. Dr S.P. Trivedi [(1993) 4 SCC 232 : 1993 SCC (Cri) 1154 : (1993) 3 Scale 541] the husband sued for divorce on the ground of cruelty by wife. The wife filed a written statement wherein she attributed adultery to the husband. In reply thereto the husband put forward another allegation against the wife that she was having undesirable association with young boys. Considering the mutual allegations, R.M. Sahai, J. speaking for Division Bench, observed: (SCC p. 233, para 2)

"Whether the allegation of the husband that she was in the habit of associating with young boys and the findings recorded by the three courts are correct or not but what is certain is that once such allegations are made by the husband and wife as have been made in this case then it is obvious that the marriage of the two cannot in any circumstance be continued any further. The marriage appears to be practically dead as from cruelty alleged by the husband it has turned out to be at least intimacy of the husband with a lady doctor and unbecoming conduct of a Hindu wife."

19. It was argued on behalf of the husband that the wife has failed to establish the charge of adultery levelled against him and that the charge of adultery must be proved beyond reasonable doubt. Dealing with the argument, the learned Judge observed: (SCC pp. 233-34, para 3)

"But we do not propose to examine it as we are satisfied that the marriage is dead and the findings of fact cannot be set aside by this Court except that the appeal can be sent back to the Division Bench to decide it again which would mean another exercise in futility leading to tortuous litigation and continued agony of the parties."

22. In the case of Savitri Pandey v. Prem Chandra Pandey, (2002) 2 SCC 73 Hon'ble Supreme Court has explained the word "cruelty" and "desertion" used in Section 13(1)(i) (i-a) of the Act, 1955 as under :

"6. Treating the petitioner with cruelty is a ground for divorce under Section 13(1)(i-a) of the Act. Cruelty has not been defined under the Act but in relation to matrimonial matters it is contemplated as a conduct of such type which endangers the living of the petitioner with the respondent. Cruelty consists of acts which are dangerous to life, limb or health. Cruelty for the purpose of the Act means where one spouse has so treated the other and manifested such feelings towards her or him as to have inflicted bodily injury, or to have caused reasonable apprehension of bodily injury, suffering or to have injured health. Cruelty may be physical or mental. Mental cruelty is the conduct of other spouse which causes mental suffering or fear to the matrimonial life of the other. "Cruelty", therefore, postulates a treatment of the petitioner with such cruelty as to cause a reasonable apprehension in his or her mind that it would be harmful or injurious for the petitioner to live with the other party. Cruelty, however, has to be distinguished from the ordinary wear and tear of family life. It cannot be decided on the basis of the sensitivity of the petitioner and has to be adjudged on the basis of the course of conduct which would, in general, be dangerous for a spouse to live with the other. In the instant case both the trial court as well as the High Court have found on facts that the wife had failed to prove the allegations of cruelty attributed to the respondent. Concurrent findings of fact arrived at by the courts cannot be disturbed by this Court in exercise of powers under Article 136 of the Constitution of India. Otherwise also the averments made in the petition and the evidence led in support thereof clearly show that the allegations, even if held to have been proved, would only show the sensitivity of the appellant with respect to the conduct of the respondent which cannot be termed more than ordinary wear and tear of the family life.

8."Desertion", for the purpose of seeking divorce under the Act, means the intentional permanent forsaking and abandonment of one spouse by the other without that other's consent and without reasonable cause. In other words it is a total repudiation of the obligations of marriage. Desertion is not the withdrawal from a place but from a state of things. Desertion, therefore, means withdrawing from the matrimonial obligations i.e. not permitting or allowing and facilitating the cohabitation between the parties. The proof of desertion has to be considered by taking into consideration the concept of marriage which in law legalises the sexual relationship between man and woman in the society for the perpetuation of race, permitting lawful indulgence in passion to prevent licentiousness and for procreation of children. Desertion is not a single act complete in itself, it is a continuous course of conduct to be determined under the facts and circumstances of each case. After referring to a host of authorities and the views of various authors, this Court in Bipinchandra Jaisinghbai Shah v. Prabhavati [AIR 1957 SC 176] held that if a spouse abandons the other in a state of temporary passion, for example, anger or disgust without intending permanently to cease cohabitation, it will not amount to desertion. It further held : (AIR pp. 183-84, para 10)

"For the offence of desertion, so far as the deserting spouse is concerned, two essential conditions must be there, namely (1) the factum of separation, and (2) the intention to bring cohabitation permanently to an end (animus deserendi). Similarly two elements are essential so far as the deserted spouse is concerned : (1) the absence of consent, and (2) absence of conduct giving reasonable cause to the spouse leaving the matrimonial home to form the necessary intention aforesaid. The petitioner for divorce bears the burden of proving those elements in the two spouses respectively. Here a difference between the English law and the law as enacted by the Bombay Legislature may be pointed out. Whereas under the English law those essential conditions must continue throughout the course of the three years immediately preceding the institution of the suit for divorce, under the Act, the period is four years without specifying that it should immediately precede the commencement of proceedings for divorce. Whether the omission of the last clause has any practical result need not detain us, as it does not call for decision in the present case. Desertion is a matter of inference to be drawn from the facts and circumstances of each case. The inference may be drawn from certain facts which may not in another case be capable of leading to the same inference; that is to say, the facts have to be viewed as to the purpose which is revealed by those acts or by conduct and expression of intention, both anterior and subsequent to the actual acts of separation. If, in fact, there has been a separation, the essential question always is whether that act could be attributable to an animus deserendi. The offence of desertion commences when the fact of separation and the animus deserendi coexist. But it is not necessary that they should commence at the same time. The de facto separation may have commenced without the necessary animus or it may be that the separation and the animus deserendi coincide in point of time; for example, when the separating spouse abandons the marital home with the intention, express or implied, of bringing cohabitation permanently to a close. The law in England has prescribed a three years' period and the Bombay Act prescribed a period of four years as a continuous period during which the two elements must subsist. Hence, if a deserting spouse takes advantage of the locus poenitentiae thus provided by law and decide to come back to the deserted spouse by a bona fide offer of resuming the matrimonial home with all the implications of marital life, before the statutory period is out or even after the lapse of that period, unless proceedings for divorce have been commenced, desertion comes to an end and if the deserted spouse unreasonably refuses the offer, the latter may be in desertion and not the former. Hence it is necessary that during all the period that there has been a desertion, the deserted spouse must affirm the marriage and be ready and willing to resume married life on such conditions as may be reasonable. It is also well settled that in proceedings for divorce the plaintiff must prove the offence of desertion, like and other matrimonial offence, beyond all reasonable doubt. Hence, though corroboration is not required as an absolute rule of law the courts insist upon corroborative evidence, unless its absence is accounted for to the satisfaction of the court."

9. Following the decision in Bipinchandra case [AIR 1957 SC 176] this Court again reiterated the legal position in Lachman Utamchand Kirpalani v. Meena [AIR 1964 SC 40] by holding that in its essence desertion means the intentional permanent forsakingand abandonment of one spouse by the other without that other's consent, and without reasonable cause. For the offence of desertion so far as the deserting spouse is concerned, two essential conditions must be there (1) the factum of separation, and (2) the intention to bring cohabitation permanently to an end (animus deserendi). Similarly two elements are essential so far as the deserted spouse is concerned : (1) the absence of consent, and (2) absence of conduct giving reasonable cause to the spouse leaving the matrimonial home to form the necessary intention aforesaid. For holding desertion as proved the inference may be drawn from certain facts which may not in another case be capable of leading to the same inference; that is to say the facts have to be viewed as to the purpose which is revealed by those acts or by conduct and expression of intention, both anterior and subsequent to the actual acts of separation.

10. To prove desertion in matrimonial matter it is not always necessary that one of the spouses should have left the company of the other as desertion could be proved while living under the same roof. Desertion cannot be equated with separate living by the parties to the marriage. Desertion may also be constructive which can be inferred from the attending circumstances*. It has always to be kept in mind that the question of* desertion is a matter of inference to be drawn from the facts and circumstances of each case.

11. There is another aspect of the matter which disentitles the appellant from seeking the relief of divorce on the ground of desertion in this case. As desertion in matrimonial cases means the withdrawal of one party from a state of things i.e. the marital status of the party, no party to the marriage can be permitted to allege desertion unless he or she admits that after the formal ceremonies of the marriage, the parties had recognised and discharged the common obligation of the married life which essentially requires the cohabitation between the parties for the purpose of consummating the marriage. Cohabitation by the parties is an essential of a valid marriage as the object of the marriage is to further the perpetuation of the race by permitting lawful indulgence in passions for procreation of children. In other words, there can be no desertion without previous cohabitation by the parties*. The basis for this theory is built upon the recognised position of law in matrimonial matters that no one can desert who does not actively or wilfully bring to an end the existing state of cohabitation. However, such a rule is subject to just exceptions which may be found in a case on the ground of mental or physical incapacity or other peculiar circumstances of the case. However,* the party seeking divorce on the ground of desertion is required to show that he or she was not taking the advantage of his or her own wrong*. In the instant case the appellant herself pleaded that there had not been cohabitation between the parties after the marriage. She neither assigned any reason nor attributed the non-resumption of cohabitation to the respondent. From the pleadings and evidence led in the case, it is apparent that the appellant did not permit the respondent to have cohabitation for consummating the marriage. In the absence of cohabitation between the parties, a particular state of matrimonial position was never permitted by the appellant to come into existence. In the present case, in the absence of cohabitation and consummation of marriage, the appellant was disentitled to claim divorce on the ground of desertion.*

12. No evidence was led by the appellant to show that she was forced to leave the company of the respondent or that she was thrown away from the matrimonial home or that she was forced to live separately and that the respondent had intended animus deserendi. There is nothing on record to hold that the respondent had ever declared to bring the marriage to an end or refused to have cohabitation with the appellant. As a matter of fact the appellant is proved to have abandoned the matrimonial home and declined to cohabit with the respondent thus forbearing to perform the matrimonial obligation.

23. In recent decision in the case of Devanand Tamuli Vs. Kakumoni Kataky (2022) 5 SCC 459 (paras 7 to 12) Hon'ble Supreme Court explained the principles of desertion and interpreted the word "desertion" to mean intentional abandonment of one spouse by the other without the consent of other and without a reasonable cause.

24. In the case of Parveen Mehta v. Inderjit Mehta, (2002) 5 SCC 706 (para 21) Hon'ble Supreme Court further interpreted the words "mental cruelty" and held as under :

"21. Cruelty for the purpose of Section 13(1)(i-a) is to be taken as a behaviour by one spouse towards the other, which causes reasonable apprehension in the mind of the latter that it is not safe for him or her to continue the matrimonial relationship with the other. Mental cruelty is a state of mind and feeling with one of the spouses due to the behaviour or behavioural pattern by the other. Unlike the case of physical cruelty, mental cruelty is difficult to establish by direct evidence. It is necessarily a matter of inference to be drawn from the facts and circumstances of the case*. A feeling of anguish, disappointment and frustration in one spouse caused by the conduct of the other can only be appreciated on assessing the* attending facts and circumstances in which the two partners of matrimonial life have been living. The inference has to be drawn from the attending facts and circumstances taken cumulatively. In case of mental cruelty it will not be a correct approach to take an instance of misbehaviour in isolation and then pose the question whether such behaviour is sufficient by itself to cause mental cruelty. The approach should be to take the cumulative effect of the facts and circumstances emerging from the evidence on record and then draw a fair inference whether the petitioner in the divorce petition has been subjected to mental cruelty due to conduct of the other."

25. In the case of Vishwanath Agrawal v. Sarla Vishwanath Agrawal, (2012) 7 SCC 288 (paras 22 to 33) Hon'ble Supreme Court again referred to its various earlier judgements interpreted the word "cruelty" and held as under :

"22. The expression "cruelty" has an inseparable nexus with human conduct or human behaviour. It is always dependent upon the social strata or the milieu to which the parties belong, their ways of life, relationship, temperaments and emotions that have been conditioned by their social status.

23. In Sirajmohmedkhan Janmohamadkhan v. Hafizunnisa Yasinkhan [(1981) 4 SCC 250 : 1981 SCC (Cri) 829] , a two-Judge Bench approved the concept of legal cruelty as expounded in Pancho v. Ram Prasad [AIR 1956 All 41] wherein it was stated thus: (Pancho case [AIR 1956 All 41] , AIR p. 43, para 3)

"3. ... Conception of legal cruelty undergoes changes according to the changes and advancement of social concept and standards of living. With the advancement of our social conceptions, this feature has obtained legislative recognition that a second marriage is a sufficient ground for separate residence and separate maintenance. Moreover, to establish legal cruelty, it is not necessary that physical violence should be used.

Continuous ill-treatment, cessation of marital intercourse, studied neglect, indifference on the part of the husband, and an assertion on the part of the husband that the wife is unchaste are all factors which may undermine the health of a wife."

It is apt to note here that the said observations were made while dealing with the Hindu Married Women's Right to Separate Residence and Maintenance Act (19 of 1946). This Court, after reproducing the passage, has observed that the learned Judge has put his finger on the correct aspect and object of mental cruelty.

24. In Shobha Rani v. Madhukar Reddi [(1988) 1 SCC 105 : 1988 SCC (Cri) 60] , while dealing with "cruelty" under Section 13(1)(i-a) of the Act, this Court observed that the said provision does not define "cruelty" and the same could not be defined. "Cruelty" may be mental or physical, intentional or unintentional. If it is physical, the court will have no problem to determine it. It is a question of fact and degree. If it is mental, the problem presents difficulty. Thereafter, the Bench proceeded to state as follows: (SCC p. 108, para 4)

"4. ... First, the enquiry must begin as to the nature of the cruel treatment. Second, the impact of such treatment on the mind of the spouse. Whether it caused reasonable apprehension that it would be harmful or injurious to live with the other. Ultimately, it is a matter of inference to be drawn by taking into account the nature of the conduct and its effect on the complaining spouse. There may, however, be cases where the conduct complained of itself is bad enough and per se unlawful or illegal. Then the impact or the injurious effect on the other spouse need not be enquired into or considered. In such cases, the cruelty will be established if the conduct itself is proved or admitted."

25. After so stating, this Court observed in Shobha Rani case [(1988) 1 SCC 105 : 1988 SCC (Cri) 60] about the marked change in life in modern times and the sea change in matrimonial duties and responsibilities. It has been observed that: (SCC p. 108, para 5)

"5. ... when a spouse makes a complaint about the treatment of cruelty by the partner in life or relations, the court should not search for standard in life. A set of facts stigmatised as cruelty in one case may not be so in another case. The cruelty alleged may largely depend upon the type of life the parties are accustomed to or their economic and social conditions. It may also depend upon their culture and human values to which they attach importance."

26. Their Lordships in Shobha Rani case [(1988) 1 SCC 105 : 1988 SCC (Cri) 60] referred to the observations made in Sheldon v. Sheldon [1966 P 62 : (1966) 2 WLR 993 : (1966) 2 All ER 257 (CA)] wherein Lord Denning stated, "the categories of cruelty are not closed". Thereafter, the Bench proceeded to state thus: (Shobha Rani case [(1988) 1 SCC 105 : 1988 SCC (Cri) 60] , SCC p. 109, paras 5-6)

"5. ... Each case may be different. We deal with the conduct of human beings who are not generally similar. Among the human beings there is no limit to the kind of conduct which may constitute cruelty. New type of cruelty may crop up in any case depending upon the human behaviour, capacity or incapability to tolerate the conduct complained of. Such is the wonderful (sic) realm of cruelty.

6. These preliminary observations are intended to emphasise that the court in matrimonial cases is not concerned with ideals in family life. The court has only to understand the spouses concerned as nature made them, and consider their particular grievance. As Lord Reid observed in Gollins v. Gollins [1964 AC 644 : (1963) 3 WLR 176 : (1963) 2 All ER 966 (HL)] : (All ER p. 972 G-H)

"... In matrimonial affairs we are not dealing with objective standards, it is not a matrimonial offence to fall below the standard of the reasonable man (or the reasonable woman). We are dealing with this man or this woman.'"

(emphasis in original)

27. In V. Bhagat v. D. Bhagat [(1994) 1 SCC 337] , a two-Judge Bench referred to the amendment that had taken place in Sections 10 and 13(1)(i-a) after the (Hindu) Marriage Laws (Amendment) Act, 1976 and proceeded to hold that the earlier requirement that such cruelty has caused a reasonable apprehension in the mind of a spouse that it would be harmful or injurious for him/her to live with the other one is no longer the requirement. Thereafter, this Court proceeded to deal with what constitutes mental cruelty as contemplated in Section 13(1)(i-a) and observed that mental cruelty in the said provision can broadly be defined as that conduct which inflicts upon the other party such mental pain and suffering as would make it not possible for that party to live with the other. To put it differently, mental cruelty must be of such a nature that the parties cannot reasonably be expected to live together. The situation must be such that the wronged party cannot reasonably be asked to put up with such conduct and continue to live with the other party. It was further observed, while arriving at such conclusion, that regard must be had to the social status, educational level of the parties, the society they move in, the possibility or otherwise of the parties ever living together in case they are already living apart and all other relevant facts and circumstances*. What is cruelty in one case may not amount to cruelty in another case and it has to be determined in each case keeping in view the facts and circumstances of that case. That apart, the accusations and allegations have to be scrutinised in the context in which they are made. Be it noted, in the said case, this Court quoted extensively from the allegations made in the written statement and the evidence brought on record and came to hold that the said allegations and counter-allegations were not in the realm of ordinary plea of defence and did amount to mental cruelty.*

28. In Parveen Mehta v. Inderjit Mehta [(2002) 5 SCC 706 : AIR 2002 SC 2582] , it has been held that mental cruelty is a state of mind and feeling with one of the spouses due to behaviour or behavioural pattern by the other. Mental cruelty cannot be established by direct evidence and it is necessarily a matter of inference to be drawn from the facts and circumstances of the case. "A feeling of anguish, disappointment and frustration in one spouse caused by the conduct of the other can only be appreciated on assessing the attending facts and circumstances in which the two partners of matrimonial life have been living." (Parveen Mehta case [(2002) 5 SCC 706 : AIR 2002 SC 2582] , SCC p. 716, para 21) The facts and circumstances are to be assessed emerging from the evidence on record and thereafter, a fair inference has to be drawn whether the petitioner in the divorce petition has been subjected to mental cruelty due to the conduct of the other.

29. In Vijaykumar Ramchandra Bhate v. Neela Vijaykumar Bhate [(2003) 6 SCC 334 : AIR 2003 SC 2462] , it has been opined that a conscious and deliberate statement levelled with pungency and that too placed on record, through the written statement, cannot be so lightly ignored or brushed aside.

30. In A. Jayachandra v. Aneel Kaur [(2005) 2 SCC 22] , it has been ruled that the question of mental cruelty has to be considered in the light of the norms of marital ties of the particular society to which the parties belong, their social values, status and environment in which they live. If from the conduct of the spouse, it is established and/or an inference can legitimately be drawn that the treatment of the spouse is such that it causes an apprehension in the mind of the other spouse about his or her mental welfare, then the same would amount to cruelty. While dealing with the concept of mental cruelty, enquiry must begin as to the nature of cruel treatment and the impact of such treatment on the mind of the spouse. It has to be seen whether the conduct is such that no reasonable person would tolerate it.

31. In Vinita Saxena v. Pankaj Pandit [(2006) 3 SCC 778] , it has been ruled that as to what constitutes mental cruelty for the purposes of Section 13(1)(i-a) will not depend upon the numerical count of such incident or only on the continuous course of such conduct but one has to really go by the intensity, gravity and stigmatic impact of it when meted out even once and the deleterious effect of it on the mental attitude necessary for maintaining a conducive matrimonial home.

32. In Samar Ghosh v. Jaya Ghosh [(2007) 4 SCC 511] , this Court, after surveying the previous decisions and referring to the concept of cruelty, which includes mental cruelty, in English, American, Canadian and Australian cases, has observed that: (SCC pp. 545-46, paras 99-100)

*"99. ... The human mind is extremely complex and human behaviour is equally complicated. Similarly human ingenuity has no bound, therefore, to assimilate the entire human behaviour in one definition is almost impossible. What is cruelty in one case may not amount to cruelty in the other case. The concept of cruelty differs from person to person depending upon his upbringing, level of sensitivity, educational, family and cultural background, financial position, social status, customs, traditions, religious beliefs, human values and their value system.

100. Apart from this, the concept of mental cruelty cannot remain static; it is bound to change with the passage of time, impact of modern culture through print and electronic media and value system, etc. etc. What may be mental cruelty now may not remain a mental cruelty after a passage of time or vice versa. There can never be any straitjacket formula or fixed parameters for determining mental cruelty in matrimonial matters. The prudent and appropriate way to adjudicate the case would be to evaluate it on its peculiar facts and circumstances...."

33. In Suman Kapur v. Sudhir Kapur [(2009) 1 SCC 422 : (2009) 1 SCC (Civ) 204 : AIR 2009 SC 589] , after referring to various decisions in the field, this Court took note of the fact that the wife had neglected to carry out the matrimonial obligations and further, during the pendency of the mediation proceeding, had sent a notice to the husband through her advocate alleging that he had another wife in USA whose identity was concealed. The said allegation was based on the fact that in his income tax return, the husband mentioned the "Social Security Number" of his wife which did not belong to the wife, but to an American lady. The husband offered an explanation that it was merely a typographical error and nothing else. The High Court had observed that taking undue advantage of the error in the "Social Security Number", the wife had gone to the extent of making serious allegation that the husband had married an American woman whose "Social Security Number" was wrongly typed in the income tax return of the husband. This fact also weighed with this Court and was treated that the entire conduct of the wife did tantamount to mental cruelty."

Instances of cruelty

26. The word cruelty has not been defined under the Act 1955. In the case of Samar Ghosh v. Jaya Ghosh, (2007) 4 SCC 511 (para 101) Hon'ble Supreme Court has given certain illustrations. Some instances of human behaviour which may be relevant in dealing with the case of "mental cruelty", and held as under :

"101. No uniform standard can ever be laid down for guidance, yet we deem it appropriate to enumerate some instances of human behaviour which may be relevant in dealing with the cases of "mental cruelty". The instances indicated in the succeeding paragraphs are only illustrative and not exhaustive:

(i) On consideration of complete matrimonial life of the parties, acute mental pain, agony and suffering as would not make possible for the parties to live with each other could come within the broad parameters of mental cruelty.

(ii) On comprehensive appraisal of the entire matrimonial life of the parties, it becomes abundantly clear that situation is such that the wronged party cannot reasonably be asked to put up with such conduct and continue to live with other party.

(iii) Mere coldness or lack of affection cannot amount to cruelty, frequent rudeness of language, petulance of manner, indifference and neglect may reach such a degree that it makes the married life for the other spouse absolutely intolerable.

(iv) Mental cruelty is a state of mind. The feeling of deep anguish, disappointment, frustration in one spouse caused by the conduct of other for a long time may lead to mental cruelty.

(v) A sustained course of abusive and humiliating treatment calculated to torture, discommode or render miserable life of the spouse.

(vi) Sustained unjustifiable conduct and behaviour of one spouse actually affecting physical and mental health of the other spouse. The treatment complained of and the resultant danger or apprehension must be very grave, substantial and weighty.

(vii) Sustained reprehensible conduct, studied neglect, indifference or total departure from the normal standard of conjugal kindness causing injury to mental health or deriving sadistic pleasure can also amount to mental cruelty.

(viii) The conduct must be much more than jealousy, selfishness, possessiveness, which causes unhappiness and dissatisfaction and emotional upset may not be a ground for grant of divorce on the ground of mental cruelty.

(ix) Mere trivial irritations, quarrels, normal wear and tear of the married life which happens in day-to-day life would not be adequate for grant of divorce on the ground of mental cruelty.

(x) The married life should be reviewed as a whole and a few isolated instances over a period of years will not amount to cruelty. The ill conduct must be persistent for a fairly lengthy period, where the relationship has deteriorated to an extent that because of the acts and behaviour of a spouse, the wronged party finds it extremely difficult to live with the other party any longer, may amount to mental cruelty.

(xi) If a husband submits himself for an operation of sterilisation without medical reasons and without the consent or knowledge of his wife and similarly, if the wife undergoes vasectomy or abortion without medical reason or without the consent or knowledge of her husband, such an act of the spouse may lead to mental cruelty.

(xii) Unilateral decision of refusal to have intercourse for considerable period without there being any physical incapacity or valid reason may amount to mental cruelty.

(xiii) Unilateral decision of either husband or wife after marriage not to have child from the marriage may amount to cruelty.

(xiv) Where there has been a long period of continuous separation, it may fairly be concluded that the matrimonial bond is beyond repair. The marriage becomes a fiction though supported by a legal tie. By refusing to sever that tie, the law in such cases, does not serve the sanctity of marriage; on the contrary, it shows scant regard for the feelings and emotions of the parties. In such like situations, it may lead to mental cruelty."

27. The aforementioned illustrations given in the case of Samar Ghosh (supra) have been reiterated by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of K. Srinivas Rao v. D.A. Deepa, (2013) 5 SCC 226 (para 10) and after referring to various judgments observed/held as under (paras 12 to 16) :

12. It is pertinent to note that in Samar Ghosh case [(2007) 4 SCC 511] the husband and wife had lived separately for more than sixteen-and-a-half years. This fact was taken into consideration along with other facts as leading to the conclusion that matrimonial bond had been ruptured beyond repair because of the mental cruelty caused by the wife. Similar view was taken in Naveen Kohli [(2006) 4 SCC 558] .

13. In V. Bhagat v. D. Bhagat [(1994) 1 SCC 337] in the divorce petition filed by the husband the wife filed written statement stating that the husband was suffering from mental hallucination, that his was a morbid mind for which he needs expert psychiatric treatment and that he was suffering from "paranoid disorder". In cross-examination her counsel put several questions to the husband suggesting that several members of his family including his grandfather were lunatics. This Court held that these assertions cannot but constitute mental cruelty of such a nature that the husband cannot be asked to live with the wife thereafter. Such pleadings and questions, it was held, are bound to cause immense mental pain and anguish to the husband.

14. In Vijaykumar Bhate [(2003) 6 SCC 334] disgusting accusations of unchastity and indecent familiarity with a neighbour were made in the written statement. This Court held that the allegations are of such quality, magnitude and consequence as to cause mental pain, agony and suffering amounting to the reformulated concept of cruelty in matrimonial law causing profound and lasting disruption and driving the wife to feel deeply hurt and reasonably apprehend that it would be dangerous to live with her husband.

15. In Naveen Kohli [(2006) 4 SCC 558] the respondent wife got an advertisement issued in a national newspaper that her husband was her employee. She got another news item issued cautioning his business associates to avoid dealing with him. This was treated as causing mental cruelty to the husband. In Naveen Kohli [(2006) 4 SCC 558] the wife had filed several complaints and cases against the husband. This Court viewed her conduct as a conduct causing mental cruelty and observed that: (SCC p. 582, para 82)

"82. ... The findings of the High Court that these proceedings could not be taken to be such which may warrant annulment of marriage, is wholly unsustainable."

16. Thus, to the instances illustrative of mental cruelty noted in Samar Ghosh [(2007) 4 SCC 511] , we could add a few more. Making unfounded indecent defamatory allegations against the spouse or his or her relatives in the pleadings, filing of complaints or issuing notices or news items which may have adverse impact on the business prospect or the job of the spouse and filing repeated false complaints and cases in the court against the spouse would, in the facts of a case, amount to causing mental cruelty to the other spouse.

28. In the case of Ravi Kumar v. Julmidevi, (2010) 4 SCC 476 (para 19) Hon'ble Supreme Court while observing that "cruelty" in matrimonial behaviour defies any definition and its categories can never be closed and whether the husband is cruel to his wife or the wife is cruel to her husband has to be ascertained and judged by taking into account the entire facts and circumstances of the given case and not by any pre-determined rigid formula, held as under :

"19. It may be true that there is no definition of cruelty under the said Act. Actually such a definition is not possible. In matrimonial relationship, cruelty would obviously mean absence of mutual respect and understanding between the spouses which embitters the relationship and often leads to various outbursts of behaviour which can be termed as cruelty. Sometime cruelty in a matrimonial relationship may take the form of violence, sometime it may take a different form. At times, it may be just an attitude or an approach. Silence in some situations may amount to cruelty".

29. In the case of A. Jayachandra v. Aneel Kaur, (2005) 2 SCC 22, (para 13 & 14) Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under :

"13. The court dealing with the petition for divorce on the ground of cruelty has to bear in mind that the problems before it are those of human beings and the psychological changes in a spouse's conduct have to be borne in mind before disposing of the petition for divorce. However insignificant or trifling, such conduct may cause pain in the mind of another. But before the conduct can be called cruelty, it must touch a certain pitch of severity. It is for the court to weigh the gravity. It has to be seen whether the conduct was such that no reasonable person would tolerate it. It has to be considered whether the complainant should be called upon to endure as a part of normal human life. Every matrimonial conduct, which may cause annoyance to the other, may not amount to cruelty. Mere trivial irritations, quarrels between spouses, which happen in day-to-day married life, may also not amount to cruelty. Cruelty in matrimonial life may be of unfounded variety, which can be subtle or brutal. It may be words, gestures or by mere silence, violent or non-violent.

14. The foundation of a sound marriage is tolerance, adjustment and respecting one another. Tolerance to each other's fault to a certain bearable extent has to be inherent in every marriage. Petty quibbles, trifling differences should not be exaggerated and magnified to destroy what is said to have been made in heaven. All quarrels must be weighed from that point of view in determining what constitutes cruelty in each particular case and as noted above, always keeping in view the physical and mental conditions of the parties, their character and social status. A too technical and hypersensitive approach would be counterproductive to the institution of marriage. The courts do not have to deal with ideal husbands and ideal wives. It has to deal with a particular man and woman before it. The ideal couple or a mere ideal one will probably have no occasion to go to Matrimonial Court. [See N.G. Dastane (Dr.) v. S. Dastane [(1975) 2 SCC 326 : AIR 1975 SC 1534]"

30. In the case of Mangayakarasi Vs. M Yuvaraj (2020) 3 SCC 786 (para 14), Hon'ble Supreme Court observed that unsubstantiated allegation of dowry demand or such other allegation made by the wife against the husband and his family members which exposed them to criminal litigation and ultimately it is found that such allegation is unwarranted and without basis and if that act of the wife itself forms the basis for the husband to allege that mental cruelty has been inflicted on him, certainly, in such circumstance, if a petition for dissolution of marriage is filed on that ground and evidence is tendered before the original court to allege mental cruelty it could well be appreciated for the purpose of dissolving the marriage on that ground.

Irretrievable Breakdown of the Marriage

31. In the case of Naveen Kohli v. Neelu Kohli, (2006) 4 SCC 558 (paras 66 and 91), Hon'ble Supreme Court observed irretrievable breakdown of marriage as a ground for divorce and held as under :

*"Irretrievable breakdown of marriage

66. Irretrievable breakdown of marriage is not a ground for divorce under the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955. Because of the change of circumstances and for covering a large number of cases where the marriages are virtually dead and unless this concept is pressed into service, the divorce cannot be granted. Ultimately, it is for the legislature whether to include irretrievable breakdown of marriage as a ground of divorce or not but in our considered opinion the legislature must consider irretrievable breakdown of marriage as a ground for grant of divorce under the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955.

91. Before we part with this case, on consideration of the totality of facts, this Court would like to recommend the Union of India to seriously consider bringing an amendment in the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 to incorporate irretrievable breakdown of marriage as a ground for the grant of divorce. A copy of this judgment be sent to the Secretary, Ministry of Law and Justice, Department of Legal Affairs, Government of India for taking appropriate steps."

32. Three judges Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case Samar Ghosh v. Jaya Ghosh, (2007) 4 SCC 511 (paras 90 to 95) referred and relied upon 71st report of law commission of India which briefly dealt with concept of Irretrievable breakdown of marriage and held as under:

"90. We have examined and referred to the cases from the various countries. We find strong basic similarity in adjudication of cases relating to mental cruelty in matrimonial matters. Now, we deem it appropriate to deal with the 71st Report of the Law Commission of India on "Irretrievable Breakdown of Marriage".

91. The 71st Report of the Law Commission of India briefly dealt with the concept of irretrievable breakdown of marriage. This report was submitted to the Government on 7-4-1978. In this report, it is mentioned that during last 20 years or so, and now it would be around 50 years, a very important question has engaged the attention of lawyers, social scientists and men of affairs, should the grant of divorce be based on the fault of the party, or should it be based on the breakdown of the marriage? The former is known as the matrimonial offence theory or fault theory. The latter has come to be known as the breakdown theory. It would be relevant to recapitulate recommendation of the said Report.

92. In the Report, it is mentioned that the germ of the breakdown theory, so far as Commonwealth countries are concerned, may be found in the legislative and judicial developments during a much earlier period. The (New Zealand) Divorce and Matrimonial Causes Amendment Act, 1920, included for the first time the provision that a separation agreement for three years or more was a ground for making a petition to the court for divorce and the court was given a discretion (without guidelines) whether to grant the divorce or not. The discretion conferred by this statute was exercised in a case Lodder v. Lodder [1921 NZLR 786] . Salmond, J., in a passage which has now become classic, enunciated the breakdown principle in these words:

"The legislature must, I think, be taken to have intended that separation for three years is to be accepted by this Court, as prima facie a good ground for divorce. When the matrimonial relation has for that period ceased to exist de facto, it should, unless there are special reasons to the contrary, cease to exist de jure also. In general, it is not in the interests of the parties or in the interest of the public that a man and woman should remain bound together as husband and wife in law when for a lengthy period they have ceased to be such in fact. In the case of such a separation the essential purposes of marriage have been frustrated, and its further continuance is in general not merely useless but mischievous."

93. In the said Report, it is mentioned that restricting the ground of divorce to a particular offence or matrimonial disability, causes injustice in those cases where the situation is such that although none of the parties is at fault, or the fault is of such a nature that the parties to the marriage do not want to divulge it, yet such a situation has arisen in which the marriage cannot survive. The marriage has all the external appearances of marriage, but none in reality. As is often put pithily, the marriage is merely a shell out of which the substance is gone. In such circumstances, it is stated, there is hardly any utility in maintaining the marriage as a facade, when the emotional and other bonds which are of the essence of marriage have disappeared.

94. It is also mentioned in the Report that in case the marriage has ceased to exist in substance and in reality, there is no reason for denying divorce*, then the parties alone can decide whether their mutual relationship provides the fulfilment which they seek.* Divorce should be seen as a solution and an escape route out of a difficult situation. Such divorce is unconcerned with the wrongs of the past, but is concerned with bringing the parties and the children to terms with the new situation and developments by working out the most satisfactory basis upon which they may regulate their relationship in the changed circumstances.

95. Once the parties have separated and the separation has continued for a sufficient length of time and one of them has presented a petition for divorce, it can well be presumed that the marriage has broken down. The court, no doubt, should seriously make an endeavour to reconcile the parties; yet, if it is found that the breakdown is irreparable, then divorce should not be withheld. The consequences of preservation in law of the unworkable marriage which has long ceased to be effective are bound to be a source of greater misery for the parties."

33. In recent judgement in the case of Munish Kakkar v. Nidhi Kakkar, (2020) 14 SCC 657, relying upon the judgement in the case of S. Srinivas Kumar Vs. R. Shametha (2019) 9 SCC 409 Hon'ble Supreme Court granted the decree of divorce on the ground of irretrievable breakdown of marriage in exercise of its extra ordinary power under Article 142 of the Constitution of India and specifically clarified that it is only this Court i.e. the Supreme Court which can do so in exercise of powers under Article 142 of the Constitution of India. Para 19 of the judgement is reproduced below :

"19. We may note that in a recent judgment of this Court, in R. Srinivas Kumar v. R. Shametha [R. Srinivas Kumar v. R. Shametha, (2019) 9 SCC 409 : (2019) 4 SCC (Civ) 522] , to which one of us (Sanjay Kishan Kaul, J.) is a party, divorce was granted on the ground of irretrievable breakdown of marriage, after examining various judicial pronouncements. It has been noted that such powers are exercised not in routine, but in rare cases, in view of the absence of legislation in this behalf, where it is found that a marriage is totally unworkable, emotionally dead, beyond salvage and has broken down irretrievably. That was a case where parties had been living apart for the last twenty-two (22) years and a re-union was found to be impossible. We are conscious of the fact that this Court has also extended caution from time to time on this aspect, apart from noticing that it is only this Court which can do so, in exercise of its powers under Article 142 of the Constitution of India. If parties agree, they can always go back to the trial court for a motion by mutual consent, or this Court has exercised jurisdiction at times to put the matter at rest quickly. But that has not been the only circumstance in which a decree of divorce has been granted by this Court. In numerous cases, where a marriage is found to be a dead letter, the Court has exercised its extraordinary power under Article 142 of the Constitution of India to bring an end to it."

(Emphasis supplied by us)

34. In the case of Neha Tyagi Vs. Deepak Tyagi (2022) 3 SCC 86, Hon'ble Supreme Court, exercising the powers under Article 142 of the Constitution of India; did not interfere with the dissolution of marriage on account of irretrievable breakdown of marriage.

35. Thus, the principles of law for divorce under Section 13 of the Act, 1955, on the ground of cruelty, desertion or irretrievable breakdown of marriage, may be briefly summarised as under :

(i) The foundation of a sound marriage is tolerance, adjustment and respecting one another. Tolerance to each other's fault to a certain bearable extent has to be inherent in every marriage. Petty quibbles, trifling differences should not be exaggerated and magnified to destroy married life. Too technical and hypersensitive approach in matrimonial matters would be counterproductive to the institution of marriage. Therefore, approach should be to make effort to reconcile differences as far as possible.

(ii) The word "cruelty" has not been defined in the Act, 1955. It has been used in Section 13(i)/(i-a) of the Act 1955 in the context of human conduct or behaviour in relation to or in respect to matrimonial duties or obligations. It is a course of conduct of one which is adversely affecting the other. The cruelty may be mental or physical. It may be intentional or unintentional. If it is physical, it is question of fact and degree. If it is mental, the inquiry must begin as to the nature of cruel treatment and then as to the impact of such treatment on the mind of the spouse as to whether it caused reasonable apprehension that it would be harmful or injurious to live with the other. It is a matter of inference to be drawn by considering the nature of the conduct and its effect on the complaining spouse.

(iii) The human mind is extremely complex and human behaviour is equally complicated. Similarly human ingenuity has no bound, therefore, to assimilate the entire human behaviour in one definition is almost impossible. What is cruelty in one case may not amount to cruelty in the other case. The concept of cruelty differs from person to person depending upon his upbringing, level of sensitivity, educational, family and cultural background, financial position, social status, customs, traditions, religious beliefs, human values and their value system. Concept of mental cruelty cannot remain static; it is bound to change with the passage of time, impact of modern culture through print and electronic media and value system, etc. etc. What may be mental cruelty now may not remain a mental cruelty after a passage of time or vice versa.

(vii) Instances of cruelty given by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Samar Ghosh (supra) and K. Srinivas Rao (supra) are not exhaustive but illustrative which have been reproduced in para 26 above.

*(iv)*Mental cruelty is the conduct of other spouse which causes mental suffering or fear to the matrimonial life of the other. "Cruelty", therefore, postulates a treatment of the petitioner with such cruelty as to cause a reasonable apprehension in his or her mind that it would be harmful or injurious for the petitioner to live with the other party. Cruelty, however, has to be distinguished from the ordinary wear and tear of family life.

(v) What is cruelty in one case may not amount to cruelty in another case. Unlike the case of physical cruelty, mental cruelty is difficult to be established by direct evidence. It is necessarily a matter of inference to be drawn from the facts and circumstances of the case. The approach should be to take the cumulative effect of the facts and circumstances emerging from the evidence on record and then draw a fair inference whether the petitioner in the divorce petition has been subjected to mental cruelty due to conduct of the other.

(vi) First*, the enquiry must begin as to the nature of the cruel treatment.* Second*, the impact of such treatment on the mind of the spouse, Whether it caused reasonable apprehension that it would be harmful or injurious to live with the other. There may, however, be cases where the conduct complained of itself is bad enough and per se unlawful or illegal. Then the impact or the injurious effect on the other spouse need not be enquired into or considered. In such cases, the cruelty will be established if the conduct itself is proved or admitted.*

(viii) In the case of K. Srinivas Rao (supra) another instance of mental cruelty was added stating that making unfounded indecent defamatory allegations against the spouse or his or her relatives in the pleadings, filing of complaints or issuing notices or news items which may have adverse impact on the business prospect or the job of the spouse and filing repeated false complaints and cases in the court against the spouse would, in the facts of a case, amount to causing mental cruelty to the other spouse.

(ix) In Mangayakarasi (supra) Hon'ble Supreme Court further explained the scope of cruelty stating that unsubstantiated allegation of dowry demand or such other allegation made by the wife against the husband and his family members which exposed them to criminal litigation and ultimately it is found that such allegation is unwarranted and without basis and if that act of the wife itself forms the basis for the husband to allege that mental cruelty has been inflicted on him, certainly, in such circumstance, if a petition for dissolution of marriage is filed on that ground and evidence is tendered before the original court to allege mental cruelty it could well be appreciated for the purpose of dissolving the marriage on that ground.

(xi) "Desertion", for the purpose of seeking divorce under the Act,1955, means the intentional permanent forsaking and abandonment of one spouse by the other without that other's consent and without reasonable cause. In other words it is a total repudiation of the obligations of marriage. Desertion is not the withdrawal from a place but from a state of things. Desertion, therefore, means withdrawing from the matrimonial obligations i.e. not permitting or allowing and facilitating the cohabitation between the parties. The proof of desertion has to be considered by taking into consideration the concept of marriage which in law legalises the sexual relationship between man and woman in the society for the perpetuation of race, permitting lawful indulgence in passion to prevent licentiousness and for procreation of children. Desertion is not a single act complete in itself, it is a continuous course of conduct to be determined under the facts and circumstances of each case. If a spouse abandons the other in a state of temporary passion, for example, anger or disgust without intending permanently to cease cohabitation, it will not amount to desertion. Two elements are essential so far as the deserted spouse is concerned : (1) the absence of consent, and (2) absence of conduct giving reasonable cause to the spouse leaving the matrimonial home to form the necessary intention aforesaid. The offence of desertion commences when the fact of separation and the animus deserendi coexist. But it is not necessary that they should commence at the same time.

(xii) Irretrievable breakdown of marriage is not a ground for divorce under the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955. Because of the change of circumstances and for covering a large number of cases where the marriages are virtually dead and unless this concept is pressed into service, the divorce cannot be granted. Once the parties have separated and the separation has continued for a sufficient length of time and one of them has presented a petition for divorce, it can well be presumed that the marriage has broken down. The court, no doubt, should seriously make an endeavour to reconcile the parties; yet, if it is found that the breakdown is irreparable, then divorce should not be withheld. The consequences of preservation in law of the unworkable marriage which has long ceased to be effective are bound to be a source of greater misery for the parties. The power to dissolve marriage on the ground of irretrievable breakdown is exercised in rare cases, and not in routine, in the absence of legislation in this behalf. In a recent judgment in Munish Kakkar (supra), it has been held that it is only the Supreme Court which can dissolve marriage on the ground of irretrievable breakdown, in exercise of its power under Article 142 of the Constitution of India, where it is found that a marriage is totally unworkable, emotionally dead, beyond salvage and has broken down irretrievably.

(xiii) Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Naveen Kohli (supra) has recommended to the Union of India to seriously consider bringing an amendment in the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 to incorporate irretrievable breakdown of marriage as a ground for the grant of divorce and a copy of the said judgement was sent to the Secretary, Ministry of law and justice department of legal affairs Government of India for taking appropriate steps. In the case of Samar Ghosh (supra) Hon'ble Supreme Court referred to 71st report of Law Commission of India submitted to Government of India on 7-4-1978 in which it was mentioned that in case the marriage has ceased to exist in substance and in reality there is no reason for denying divorce. Nothing has been brought on record to indicate the steps, if any, taken by the Union of India either with respect to 71st report of Law commission of India or pursuant to the recommendation of Hon'ble Supreme Court in para 91 of the judgement in the case of Naveen Kohli (supra). Therefore, we remind the Union of India the recommendation made by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Naveen Kohli (supra) and the 71st report of the Law Commission of India dated 7-4-1978 and request to consider it.

36. We find from the facts noted in paras 2 to 9, the discussion in paras 12 to 17 and principle summarised in para 35 above that the plaintiff - respondent has proved mental cruelty by the defendant - appellant, before the Court below. Instances of making false complaints by the defendant appellant against the plaintiff - respondent to higher authorities, making wild allegations against the parents of the plaintiff - respondent, unproved allegation of indulgence of the plaintiff in adultery and damaging their reputation in the society, etc. leaves no manner of doubt that the court below has not committed any illegality in the impugned judgment to hold commission of mental cruelty by the defendant - appellant to the plaintiff - respondent. The impugned judgement of the court below is based on consideration of evidences on record. Thus, the impugned judgement does not suffer from any illegality.

37. For all the reasons aforestated, we do not find any merit in this appeal. The impugned judgment of the court below does not suffer from any illegality. Consequently, the appeal is dismissed. Pending applications, if any, stand disposed of.

38. Let a copy of this judgement be sent by the Registrar General of this Court to the Secretary, Ministry of Law and Justice, Department of Legal Affairs, Government of India to remind the Union of India in the light of the judgements referred in paragraphs 31, 32 and 35(xiii) above.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION
CIVIL SIDE

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE J.J. MUNIR, J.

Second Appeal No. 447 of 1986

Siddiq Ahmad & Ors.
...Defendants-Appellants
Versus
Shaukat Ali & Ors.
...Defendants-Respondents

Counsel for the Appellants:
Dr. Vinod Kumar Rai, Dr. Vinod Kumar Rai

Counsel for the Respondents:
Sri D.C. Srivastava, Sri A.K. Srivastava, Sri Amit Khanna, Sri Jugal Kishori Khanna, Sri Kameshwar Rao, Sri Mahendra Narain Singh, Sri Pankaj Mishra, Sri S.K. Srivastava, Sri S.P. Lal, Sri Sanjay Kumar Singh, Sri Shrawan Kumar Pandey, Sri Vinod Kumar Singh

Muslim Law - Inheritance - law of inheritance applicable to Sunni Muslims governed by the Hanafi School - Mulla's Principles of Mahomedan Law, Ss 28, 63 - according to Mulla's Principles of Mahomedan Law, there is exclusion of the full sister's share in the presence of a son, how low soever (Para 49)

Late Khoob Ali was the owner of the suit property - After his death, his daughters, Nasiban and Bashiran were recorded - Smt. Bashiran passed away leaving behind her, her husband Shaukat Ali, the plaintiff and son Rasheed, defendant no.2 - Partition Suit was instituted by Shaukat Ali, arraying Nasiban Bibi as defendant no.1 and Rasheed @ Kallu, Shaukat Ali's son as the second defendant - Nasiban and Bashiran, the two sisters, daughters of Khoob Ali, were held entitled to inherit a half share each in the suit property - plaintiff being Bashiran's husband, who survived her, was held entitled to Bashiran's half share, along with the parties' son, defendant no.2 - Suit was decreed for a half share in favour of the plaintiff and defendant no.2 - In Second Appeal by Nasiban/ defendant no.1 it was argued that Courts below have erred in dividing the entire half share in the suit property that Bashiran inherited from her father, between her husband, the plaintiff and son, defendant no.2 - Nasiban's share, upon Bashiran's demise, has been completely ignored - It was argued that since Smt. Nasiban was the lone full sister of Bashiran, upon the latter's death, she would inherit a half share in Bashiran's estate along with the other two heirs, that is to say, Bashiran's husband and son - Held - A sister, notwithstanding her position as a sharer, is excluded by a son, son's son how low soever and father or true grandfather - according to Mulla's Principles of Mahomedan Law, there is exclusion of the full sister's share in the presence of a son, how low soever- In the present case, the deceased Bashiran left behind her a son, besides her husband - son's presence would, therefore, exclude the right of the sister to inherit as a sharer to the extent of a one-half share by virtue of being the lone sister of Bashiran - therefore, the half share that Bashiran inherited from her father, Khoob Ali would be shared between her husband, Shaukat Ali and their son, Rasheed @ Kallu (Para 42, 45, 46, 46)

Dismissed. (E-5)

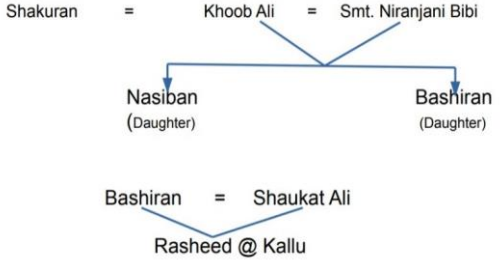
(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. This is a defendant's second appeal, arising out of a preliminary decree passed in a suit for partition.

2. Original Suit No. 22 of 1976 was instituted by Shaukat Ali, arraying Nasiban Bibi as defendant no.1 and Rasheed @ Kallu, Shaukat Ali's son as the second defendant. Jogendra Nath @ Lahiri and Lallu were arrayed as defendant nos. 3 and 4 to the suit and Jamir Ahmad @ Jhamman Driver as the fifth defendant.

3. Shaukat Ali sought partition of the four houses, shown in Schedule A to the plaint. The relief of partition is confined to Shaukat Ali, defendant nos. 1 and 2. The other three defendants have been impleaded for reasons that shall be shortly indicated. The four houses set out in Schedule A to the plaint shall hereinafter be referred to as "the suit property'.

4. The plaintiff pleaded a pedigree to indicate the relationship between himself and defendant nos. 1 and 2. The said pedigree, set out in Paragraph No.1 of the plaint, is detailed below:



5. The plaintiff asserted a case that the suit property, comprising four houses together with a courtyard, is located at

Town Area Robertsganj, District Mirzapur (now District Sonbhadra). The late Khoob Ali was the owner in possession of the suit property until his demise. After his death, his widow Smt. Niranjani Bibi was recorded in the Municipal Records as the owner. After Niranjani's demise, the names of Smt. Shakuran, the other widow of Khoob Ali, besides that of his daughters, Nasiban and Bashiran were recorded. It is asserted that Shakuran, Smt. Nasiban and Smt. Bashiran - all three were recorded as owners in possession of the suit property after Smt. Niranjani. Smt. Bashiran passed away leaving behind her, her husband Shaukat Ali, the plaintiff and son Rasheed, defendant no.2, as heirs and LRs, entitled to inherit.

6. It is the plaintiff's case that by succession, he and defendant no.2, the plaintiff's son, together have a half share in the suit property, whereas defendant no.1, Smt. Nasiban has the other half. Specifying the shares further, it is the plaintiff's case that a one-fourth share is held by him, one half by defendant no.1 and the remainder one-fourth by defendant no.2, and all parties are in possession of the suit property, in accordance with their shares. It is the plaintiff's case that defendant no.1, Nasiban, out of the houses, comprising the suit property, has sold off two, all by herself, vide registered sale deeds dated 25.01.1969 and 29.11.1971, in favour of Jogendra Nath @ Lahiri and Lallu, defendant nos. 3 and 4 to the suit, in that order.

7. It is also the plaintiff's case that the vendees have been put in possession of the two houses, sold to them through the sale deeds aforesaid by defendant no.1, and these two houses are detailed in Schedule B to the plaint. It is asserted by the plaintiff that notwithstanding the execution of the two sale deeds under reference by defendant no.1 in favour of defendant nos. 3 and 4, the two houses sold by defendant no. 1 exclusively, are also owned by the plaintiff and defendant no.2 together, to the extent of a half share, or a one-fourth share for each of them. The plaintiff has asserted that he repeatedly expressed his wish with defendant no. 1 that he wanted her to partition the suit property, but she remained elusive. This gave rise to the cause of action necessitating the suit for partition.

8. It is the plaintiff's further case that in a part of the houses comprised in Schedule B, defendant no. 5, Jamir Ahmad stays as a tenant of the plaintiff's. Accordingly, Jamir Ahmad has been impleaded as defendant no. 5 (proforma), in order to avoid any legal objection as to non-joinder, though no relief has been claimed against him. The plaintiff claimed a decree for partition by metes and bounds, praying that the Court may partition the suit property, set out in Schedule A to the plaint, granting him a one-fourth share, to defendant no. 1 a half share, and to defendant no. 2 a one-fourth share. It was alternatively prayed that if for some reason, it be not possible to partition the suit property according to the shares claimed, the plaintiff and defendant no.2 be given their entire half share together, in the remainder of the two houses (not sold) by defendant no. 1.

9. The suit was contested by defendant no. 1, Smt. Nasiban Bibi, who put in her written statement dated 07.04.1977. She denied the plaint allegations generally and in her additional pleas, propounded a pedigree indicating the relationship of parties, very different from that pleaded by the plaintiff. The pedigree pleaded by defendant no. 1, set out in Paragraph No. 13 of her written statement, is depicted below:

10. There is no quarrel at the instance of the first defendant to the extent that the suit property was self-acquired property of the late Khoob Ali and that during his lifetime, he remained its exclusive owner in possession. But, beyond this commonality of stance, there is a sharp digression of stand between parties about their relationship and the way the suit property devolved, including the parties' share(s) therein. According to Smt. Nasiban, defendant no. 1, Khoob Ali's first wife was Smt. Gujrati Bibi. Smt. Nasiban was born of the wedlock of Khoob Ali and Smt. Gujrati Bibi. After Smt. Gujrati Bibi passed away, Khoob Ali married a second time. His second wife was Smt Niranjani Bibi, the widow of one Wazir Khan. Smt. Niranjani Bibi brought along with her, her daughter Bashiran, then a young child, begotten of Niranjani's first husband, Wazir Khan. Smt. Bashiran is not Khoob Ali's daughter. Smt. Niranjani was never blessed with a child during wedlock with Khoob Ali. Smt. Niranjani Bibi passed away during the lifetime of Khoob Ali and he married a third time. His third wife was Shakuran Bibi.

11. It is the first defendant's case that soon after, Khoob Ali passed away, Shakuran Bibi contracted a second marriage and went away. It is also pleaded by the first defendant that Bashiran Bibi was married to the plaintiff, while still a minor. Smt. Bashiran Bibi, within a year of her marriage, suffered injury by fire and died in the year 1958. No child was born of the wedlock between the plaintiff, Shaukat Ali and Smt. Bashiran Bibi. After Bashiran Bibi's demise, the plaintiff married a woman from Varanasi. The second defendant, Rasheed @ Kallu was born of the woman from Varanasi, whom the plaintiff married after Smt. Bashiran Bibi's demise. It is, thus, the first defendant's case that the second defendant is not at all Bashiran Bibi's son and the plaintiff. It was pleaded falsely, to assert the second defendant to be so. There are then some pleas raised about the boundaries of the suit property being incorrect. But, that is not very material to the present suit.

12. The first defendant, on the basis of whatever has been recapitulated hereinabove for her pleaded case, asserted that the plaintiff and defendant no.2 are not entitled to claim any share in the suit property.

13. The next material part of the first defendant's case is her assertion that in the house tax assessment records of the Town Area Committee, Bashiran Bibi's name had been incorrectly mutated, which did not bind the first defendant at all. It is also said that after Bashiran Bibi's demise, the plaintiff made an application to the Town Area Committee, Robertsganj, seeking mutation in place of Smt. Bashiran Bibi, on the basis of a Will left by her. The plaintiff's application for mutation, as aforesaid, was rejected on 16.02.1960. The plaintiff did not take any steps consequent upon the aforesaid rejection of his claim by the Town Area Committee. The plaintiff also did not lay any further claim to the suit property, but now has brought the present suit on the basis of a false case, that is contrary to facts and events, besides being the result of ill-advice, motivated by persons, hostile to the first defendant. It is also asserted that over Houses nos. 1 and 2, detailed in Paragraph No. 18 of the written statement, the first defendant always exercised her dominion and right of ownership, and as the owner thereof, transferred these houses to Jogendra Nath @ Lahiri, defendant no. 3 and Lallu, defendant no. 4, through sale deeds. In the remainder of the two houses, bearing nos. 3 and 4, shown in Paragraph No. 18 of the written statement, defendant no. 5 was a tenant in one i.e. House no. 3 and in House no. 4, the first defendant resides herself. It is asserted that the plaintiff had no control or dominion, much less possession, over the suit property at any time whatsoever.

14. Almost identical but separate written statements were put in on behalf of defendant nos. 3 and 4, Jogendra Nath @ Lahiri son of Daya Ram and Lallu son of Mohan, respectively.

15. In the written statement filed on behalf of defendant no. 3, Jogendra Nath @ Lahiri, apart from supporting the stand of the first defendant, it has been pleaded that defendant no. 3 is a bona fide purchaser for value without notice. He has purchased House No. 1, shown in Schedule B to the plaint. Likewise is the stand of the fourth defendant, Lallu.

16. On the pleadings of parties, the following issues were struck (translated into English from Hindi):

(1) Whether the plaintiff is entitled to a share of 1/2 in the disputed house?

(2) Whether the suit is undervalued and the court-fee paid insufficient?

(3) Whether the plaintiff has a right to sue?

(4) Whether the suit is barred by estoppel and acquiescence?

(5) Whether defendant nos. 3 and 4 are bona fide purchasers for value?

(6) Whether the suit is barred by limitation?

(7) To what relief, if any, is the plaintiff entitled?

17. The learned Civil Judge tried the suit and decreed it for a half share in favour of the plaintiff and defendant no.2 vide judgment and decree dated 30.08.1982.

18. Aggrieved by the said decree, Nasiban Bibi preferred Civil Appeal No. 113 of 1982 to the District Judge of Mirzapur, praying that the Trial Court's decree be set aside and the suit dismissed. The said appeal came up for hearing, upon assignment, before the Third Additional District Judge, Mirzapur on 15.11.1985. The learned Additional District Judge dismissed the appeal, but with a modification of the decree, indicated in the judgment (not the operative order) that in the final decree to be prepared, the plaintiff's share and that of defendant no. 2 should not be mixed up. The fact as to why the aforesaid modification was made to the Trial Court's decree and whether it was in accordance with the shares of parties determined by the Courts below, bearing in mind the distinct stages of the passing of a preliminary decree and preparation of the final decree would be dealt with a little later in this judgment.

19. Aggrieved by the decree passed by the Lower Appellate Court, the heirs and LRs of Smt. Nasiban, who died pending appeal and substituted before the Lower Appellate Court, have moved this Court, invoking our jurisdiction under Section 100 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (for short, "CPC').

20. The heirs and LRs of Smt. Nasiban shall hereinafter be jointly referred to as 'the appellants'. However, any reference to Smt. Nasiban, would either be as defendant no.1 or by name. Shaukat Ali, the plaintiff to the suit and respondent no.1 to this appeal, died pending the present appeal and his heirs and LRs, to wit, Suggan wife of Shaukat Ali, Anwar, Jamshed and Parvez sons of Shaukat Ali, were substituted as respondent nos.1/1, 1/2, 1/3 and 1/4 in that order. Hereinafter, any reference to Shaukat Ali, would either be by name or as "the plaintiff'. Any reference to his heirs would be by their number in the array.

21. This appeal was admitted to hearing vide order dated 28.04.2017 on the following substantial question of law:

"Whether the courts below applied the correct principle of law while dividing the share between Shaukat Ali, the plaintiff, husband of the Bashiran Bibi and Nasiban Bibi -the defendant- who is the sister of Bashiran Bibi?"

22. The appeal was heard on the aforesaid question and it must be remarked at the outset that the question postulates not only the determination of the plaintiff's entitlement to a share in the suit property claimed, but also includes within the half share that the plaintiff claims, the one-fourth that the plaintiff says, belongs to defendant no.2.

23. Heard Dr. Vinod Kumar Rai, learned Counsel for the appellants, Mr. Amit Khanna, learned Counsel appearing on behalf of respondent No.1/1, Mr. Sanjay Kumar Singh and Mr. Shrawan Kumar Pandey, learned Counsel appearing for respondent No.8. No one appeared on behalf of the other respondents.

24. The Trial Court decided Issue No. 1 as the most substantial issue between parties, which relates to the plaintiff's claimed share in the suit property. In deciding that issue, the Trial Court went into the question as to whether Smt. Bashiran and Smt. Nasiban were sisters, born to the same parents. This question arose in the context of the defendant's plea that Smt. Nasiban was Khoob Ali's daughter, begotten of his wife, Smt. Gujrati Bibi, whereas Smt. Bashiran was a stranger to Khoob Ali's family, who had come to that household along with her mother, Smt. Niranjani Bibi, when Khoob Ali married a second time. Smt. Bashiran has been claimed to be the daughter of Smt. Niranjani Bibi, begotten of her first husband, Wazir Khan, who passed away, leaving her behind as his widow. The Trial Court opined that since it was a case set up by defendant no.1 that Bashiran was not Khoob Ali's daughter, burden lay upon her to prove the fact.

25. The evidence that the Trial Court considered, was the registered sale deed dated 25.01.1969 executed by Nasiban in favour of defendant no. 3, where she has acknowledged Bashiran to be her sister and the daughter of Khoob Ali, who was married to Shaukat Ali, the plaintiff. In the opinion of the Trial Court, this recital in the sale deed was made at a time when there were no hostilities between parties. This recital in the sale deed has been regarded as an admission on Nasiban's part by the Trial Judge. It has further been opined that Nasiban never entered the witness-box to prove her case that Bashiran was not Khoob Ali's daughter, or her sister, or to explain her admission in the sale deed.

26. The Trial Court has also concluded against defendant no.1 on the premise that since she avoided entering the witness-box, a presumption of fact would arise against her under Section 114 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 to the effect that if she did, and faced cross-examination, her testimony might have gone against her. The Trial Judge has also looked into the Khasra-Abadi relating to Town Area Robertsganj, District Mirzapur for the year 1940-41, Ex. 8, which shows that on 10th January, 1947 in place of Niranjani Bibi, the names of defendant no. 1, Smt. Nasiban, Smt. Bashiran, a minor at that time and Smt. Shakuran, Khoob Ali's widow, were mutated in the Town Area Records by succession over the suit property.

27. There are then remarks that there are no reasons to disbelieve this cogent record of rights. The Trial Judge has also observed that defendant no.1 says that she is the sole heir and LR of Khoob Ali, but the circumstance that upon Smt. Niranjani's death, who had been mutated in place of Khoob Ali, the plaintiff's wife, Bashiran, defendant no.1, Smt. Nasiban and Khoob Ali's third wife, Shakuran, who survived him, were all mutated in the record of rights by succession, does not support Smt. Nasiban's case. On these facts and circumstances, the Trial Court has inferred that both Bashiran and Nasiban are daughters of Khoob Ali, who would inherit his property. Khoob Ali's third wife went away after his demise and her civil death has been presumed by the Trial Court, because she never came back again or claimed a right.

28. Nasiban and Bashiran, the two sisters, daughters of Khoob Ali, were held entitled to inherit a half share each in the suit property. The plaintiff being admittedly Bashiran's husband, who survived her, was held entitled to Bashiran's half share, along with the parties' son, defendant no.2. Nothing was said by the Trial Court about the issue, that was also raised by defendant no. 1, that the second defendant, Rasheed was not Bashiran's son, but born to the plaintiff after Bashiran's death from a subsequent marriage to a woman from Varanasi. There is no finding recorded by the Trial Court on the said question. The Trial Court has also opined that the testimony of Nasiban's husband, who entered the witness-box in support of the case that she pleaded, is not reliable. He is a partisan witness and his evidence not dependable. To the contrary, the plaintiff, Shaukat Ali's case is well established by documentary evidence on record and the circumstances. The Trial Court, therefore, passed a decree for a half share in the suit property in favour of the plaintiff and defendant no.2.

29. The Lower Appellate Court in its concurring opinion has more or less drawn the same conclusions on the totality of evidence on record as the Trial Court. It has been opined that defendant no. 1, Smt. Nasiban, upon whom burden lay to prove the case that Bashiran was not Khoob Ali's daughter, had not led any evidence on the point. The documentary and oral evidence on the other hand, besides circumstances which include the sale deed executed by Smt. Nasiban, the mutation made in the Khasra Abadi relating to the year 1940-41, Ex. 8, under orders of the Town Magistrate dated 10.01.1947 in favour of Smt. Bashiran, after the death of Smt. Niranjani Bibi, in their totality have been held to support the plaintiff's case that his wife, Smt. Bashiran was Smt. Nasiban's sister and daughter of Khoob Ali. The two sisters, therefore, inherited the suit property from Khoob Ali. The plaintiff inherited his wife's share, which is a one-half along with defendant no.2, the parties' son. The Lower Appellate Court also examined that part of defendant no.1's case, where it was said that defendant no. 2, to wit, Rasheed @ Kallu, was not Bashiran's son, but born to the plaintiff, Shaukat Ali of another woman, whom he married after Bashiran's demise. On this point, the Lower Appellate Court has opined that the burden of proving the fact, that defendant no.2 was born of a later marriage contracted by Shaukat Ali, lay upon Smt. Nasiban Bibi.

30. It is recorded by the Lower Appellate Court that the evidence offered on this point is that of Tasadduq, DW-1, who happens to be the Nasiban Bibi's husband. On the other hand, the plaintiff, Shaukat Ali, who, without doubt, is the second defendant's father, has said on oath that the said defendant was born to him and Smt. Bashiran Bibi. The Lower Appellate Court has remarked that normally the evidence of the father about the mother of his child has to be given preference and may be disbelieved, if there is some cogent and convincing evidence to the contrary. The Lower Appellate Court has refused to disbelieve the plaintiff on this point and has rather disbelieved Tasadduq, Nasiban's husband, saying that he is an interested witness. The Lower Appellate Court has, about the shares of parties, held that the plaintiff would have a one-fourth share and defendant no.2 a one-fourth share, which the defendant no.2 would be entitled to claim on payment of court-fee at the time of preparation of the final decree. Likewise, defendant no.1, Smt. Nasiban, represented by her LRs, the appellants would be entitled to her half share, which too, they can get partitioned in the final decree to be passed.

31. There is remark by the Lower Appellate Court that defendant no.1, who was in appeal before him, objected to the decree on the ground that the plaintiff could claim a share for himself and not defendant no. 2. This objection has been disposed of by saying that in a partition suit, the Court has to determine and declare the share of every co-sharer. Once the preliminary decree is passed, it is open to all the co-shares to apply for the preparation of a final decree, relating to their share, upon payment of the requisite court-fee. It is on the basis of these remarks that the Lower Appellate Court has directed that it is desirable that the final decree be drawn in favour of the plaintiff with regard to his share alone and the second defendant's share should not be mixed up with the plaintiff for the purpose of preparation of the final decree.

32. At the hearing of this appeal, it has been submitted that the Courts below have perversely concluded about the relationship of parties. It is urged on behalf of the appellants that neither is Smt. Bashiran a sister of Smt. Nasiban, as the evidence would show, nor Rasheed @ Kallu, defendant no.2, Bashiran's son. This Court finds that the Courts below, on these matters, have taken a reasonable view of the evidence on record. The findings recorded by the Courts below that Bashiran is Nasiban's sister and defendant no.2, Rasheed @ Kallu is Bashiran's son are based on evidence, from which plausible conclusions have been drawn. There is no reason for this Court to permit a re-agitation of the said issue now. No substantial question of law on the said issue has been framed for the said reason, and this Court, at the hearing, has not been successfully persuaded by the learned Counsel for the appellants to frame any additional substantial question of law, that may permit scrutiny of the findings hereinabove referred, concurrently recorded by the two Courts below.

33. Now, the substantial question of law, on which this appeal has been admitted to hearing, is whether the Courts below have applied the correct principle of law while dividing shares between the plaintiff, Shaukat Ali, Smt. Bashiran's husband and defendant no.1, Smt. Nasiban, Bashiran's sister. It goes without saying that the substantial question of law would take within its fold the principle applied to allocate a share in the suit property to the second defendant, Rasheed @ Kallu. There is no quarrel between parties that the principles that would govern the inter se allocation of shares, would be the Mahomedan Law, an uncodified law, governing Muslims, immediately before commencement of the Constitution. The principles continue to apply so long as a competent legislature does not legislate on the subject. The principles of Mahomedan Law, governing inheritance, have not so far, received attention of the legislature and continue to apply as an uncodified body of rules, found in various sources. These have been recognized and expounded over time by Courts, including learned Commentators on the subject.

34. Dr. Vinod Kumar Rai, learned Counsel for the appellants submits that the Courts below have committed a manifest error of law in determining the share of defendant no.1, Smt. Nasiban while passing the preliminary decree for partition. It is his vehement submission that whereas partition that has to be ordered in the suit is about the property left behind by Khoob Ali, the succession, that is involved here, is about the heirs of the deceased Bashiran alone. The issue about devolution of Khoob Ali's estate is no longer open in view of the findings of fact recorded by the two Courts below. It is Dr. Rai's submission that this Court has to determine on the basis that out of Khoob Ali's estate, a half share each has gone to Smt. Bashiran and Smt. Nasiban, and upon Smt. Bashiran's demise, who would be her heirs, entitled to inherit and in what share each. The learned Counsel for the appellants, therefore, says that the half share of Smt. Nasiban stays intact with her in the hands of her heirs, that is to say, the appellants before this Court, whereas the half share in the suit property, that already vests in Smt. Bashiran, is to be regarded as unity wherein Nasiban would receive a share as an heir of her sister, Smt. Bashiran along with the plaintiff, Shaukat Ali, her sister's husband and defendant no.2, Bashiran's son. It is argued that the Courts below have erred in dividing the entire half share in the suit property that Bashiran inherited from her father, between her husband, the plaintiff and son, defendant no.2. Nasiban's share, upon Bashiran's demise, has been completely ignored from consideration by the Courts below, vitiating the decree passed by them.

35. In aid of his submissions, Dr. Vinod Kumar Rai has relied upon principles, governing allocations of shares of a Muslim intestate, amongst his/ her heirs, enunciated in the celebrated Treaties on Mahomedan Law, The Principles of Mahomedan Law by Sir D.F. Mulla, Nineteenth Edition by M. Hidayatullah and Arshad Hidayatullah. Learned Counsel for the appellants has drawn the Court's attention to the three types of heirs of a Muslim intestate, that is to say, the Sharers, who are twelve in number, the Residuaries and the Distant Kindred. A reference would be made to the three classes of heirs during the course of this judgment. It is submitted by the learned Counsel for the appellants that the position of Sharers amongst the three classes of heirs is the most superior and they have to be allotted their specified share. He has referred to Section 63 of Mulla's Principles of Mahomedan Law, which reads:

"63. Sharers.- After payment of funeral expenses, debts, and legacies, the first step in the distribution of the estate, of a deceased Mahomedan is to ascertain which of the surviving relations belong to the class of sharers, and which again of these are entitled to a share of the inheritance, and, after this is done, to proceed to assign their respective shares to such of the sharers as are, under the circumstances of the case, entitled to succeed to a share. The first column in the accompanying table (p. 48A) contains a list of Sharers; the second column specifies the normal share of each sharer; the third column specifies : the conditions which determine the right of each sharer to a share, and the fourth column sets out the shares as varied by special circumstances.

Illustrations

Note.-- The italics in the following and other illustrations in this chapter indicate the surviving relations. It will be observed that the sum total of the shares in all the following illustrations equals unity i.e. exhausts the inheritance:--

FATHER, HUSBAND AND WIFE

(a) Father .. .. 1/6 (as sharer, because there are daughters)

Father's father .. .. .. (excluded by father)

Mother .. .. 1/6 (because there are daughters)

Mother's mother .. .. .. (excluded by mother)

Two daughters 2/3

Son's daughter .. .. .. (excluded by daughters)

(b) Husband 1/2

Father .. .. 1/2 (as residuary)

(c) Four widows .. .. 1/4 (each taking 1/16)

Father .. .. 3/4 (as residuary)"

36. The learned Counsel for the appellants has further invited the Court's attention to the Table at Page 48A of Mulla's Principles of Mahomedan Law, to indicate the list of shares and further show that a full sister is mentioned as a sharer at serial no. 11 of the Table. It is submitted that the normal share of the sister is a one-half and two-third, if there are two or more sisters, who inherit collectively. The submission is that since Smt. Nasiban was the lone full sister of Bashiran, upon the latter's death, she would inherit a half share in Bashiran's estate along with the other two heirs, that is to say, Bashiran's husband and son. It is mooted that out of the suit property, of which partition has to be effected, Smt. Nasiban would be entitled to her half share, inherited from her father like Smt. Bashiran, to which has to be added another share from Smt. Bashran's estate, upon the latter's demise intestate. Smt. Bashiran's husband and son would be entitled to receive a one-fourth share each out of Smt. Bashiran's estate; not out of the entire suit property left behind by Khoob Ali.

37. Going by the aforesaid division of the suit property, that is to say, the property left behind by Khoob Ali, treating it as unity, according to the learned Counsel for the appellants, Smt. Nasiban would be entitled to total share of three-fourth, whereas a share of one-eighth each in the suit property would go to the plaintiff and defendant no.2, respectively.

38. Mr. Amit Khanna, learned Counsel appearing on behalf of respondent no.1/1, Suggan wife of Shaukat Ali submits that in the presence of the deceased Bashiran's son, Kallu, her sister would not be entitled to any share, as she stands excluded by a reputed principle in this behalf. And, that is the presence of the son.

39. We have considered the rival submissions of the learned Counsel for the parties and perused the record.

40. According to the Mulla's Principles of Mahomedan Law vide Section 61, the three classes of heirs of a Mahomedan intestate are spelt out thus:

"61. Classes of heirs.- There are three classes of heirs, namely, (1) Sharers, (2) Residuaries, and (3) Distant Kindred:

(1) "Sharers" are those who are entitled to a prescribed share of the inheritance;

(2) "Residuaries" are those who take no prescribed share, but succeed to the "residue" after the claims of the sharers are satisfied;

(3) "Distant Kindred" are all those relations by blood who are neither Sharers nor Residuaries."

41. So far as Smt. Nasiban's entitlement to a share in the late Bashiran's estate is concerned, no doubt she is a sharer. In ''Outlines of Muhammadan Law' by Asaf A.A. Fyzee, the entitlement of the full sister to her share has been enunciated at Page 328 thus:

"(9) Full sister, (10) Consanguine sister

The full sister is not a primary heir; she is excluded by son, son's son hls, and father or true grandfather. It is to be noticed that male agnates in the descending and the ascending lines exclude her as a collateral. With the full brother and in certain cases with the daughter, she becomes a residuary.

The consanguine sister is excluded by a full brother or two full sisters, and by all the four relations who exclude a full sister. With the consanguine brother the consanguine sister becomes a residuary. With a single full sister she takes a specified share.

The full sister or consanguine sister co-existing with full brother or consanguine brother, respectively, inherit collectively as agnatic heirs, the brother taking a double share. But if there were two full sisters, the consanguine sister would be excluded.

Illustrations

(a) husband, sister: H 1/2; Si ½

(b) husband, two sisters: H 1/2; Si's 2/3 (divided equally)

(c) full sister, consanguine sister: FSi 1/2; CSi 1/6 (remainder of sisters' joint share)

(d) daughter, sister: D 1/2 (as Quranic heir); Si 1/2 (as agnatic heir)

(e) two daughters, sister: Ds 2/3 (as Quranic heirs, divided equally); Si 1/3 (as aganatic heir)

(f) daughter, two sisters: D 1/2 (as Quranic heir); Si's 1/2 (as agnatic heirs, divided equally)"

(emphasis by Court)

42. A perusal of the aforesaid enunciation would show that a sister, notwithstanding her position as a sharer, is excluded by a son, son's son how low soever and father or true grandfather. The same position of the law has been enunciated in the Commentaries on Mahommedan Law by Ameer Ali (Syed) P.C., Fifth Edition 2007, Revised, Enlarged and Updated by Justice S.H.A. Raza and published by the Hind Publication House, Allahabad. In Ameer Ali's Mahommedan Law, the share of the full sister has been indicated as half at Pages 1025 and 1026 in the following words:

"10. The full sister (when only one and no son, son's how low soever, father, true grandfather, daughter, son's daughter or brother, 1/2.

When two or more and no such excluder, 2/3."

(emphasis by Court)

43. There is this further principle about a full sister inheriting as an agnate or residuary, where she inherits as a residuary in another's right as it is called. This entitlement comes to a sister or the four specified females, daughters, son's daughters, the full sister and a consanguine sister, when they co-exist with certain males. The said rule is enunciated in Amir Ali's Mahomedan Law at Page 1028 as follows:

(2) Residuaries in another's right.- The Residuaries in another's right are those females who become residuaies only when they co-exist with cerrtain males, that is, when there happen to be males of the same degree, or who, though of a lower degree, would take as such.

These are four in number, viz.-

(a) Daughters (with sons);

(b) Son's daughters (with a son's son or a male descendant still further removed in the direct line).

This applies to the daughters of all lineal male descendants however low. For example, when there is a son's son's daughter co-existing with a son's daughter, the latter takes her half (like the daughter of the deceased), and the one-sixth goes to the son's son's daughter and so on. If there are two son's daughters, the son's son's daughter will take nothing unless she has a lineal male. descendant of the same or lower degree co-existing, such as a brother or a nephew.

(c) The full sister (with her own or full brother).

(d) The sister by the same father, or, in other words, a consanguine sister (with her brother).

When the females are of the same degree as the males (or as in the case of son's daughters or the daughters of a son's son how low soever-when they co-exist with lineal male descendants though of a lower degree), each female takes half the share of a male. For example, where there are two sons and three daughters of two brothers and three sisters, each daughters or sister, as the case may be, will take one-seventh, whilst each son or brother two sevenths.

It must be remembered, however, that many males may become, in certain contingencies, residuaries, but it does not follow that in all cases their sisters would become residuaries with them. It is only when the female is a sharer herself that, instead of taking a share, she takes as a residuary when co existing with a male residuary. For example, if a man dies leaving behind him a widow, paternal uncle, and an aunt, "be the latter by the same father and mother, or by the same father only," the aunt, not being a sharer according to law, is not entitled to any share in the inheritance of her deceased nephew, and her brother (the uncle) takes the entire estate after allotment of the widow's share.

When there is one sister of the whole blood, and consanguine brothers and sisters, the full sister will take her half, and the residue will be divided among the half brothers and sisters in the proportion of two to one.

When there are several full sisters, they will take their two-thirds, and the remainder will be divided as above.

When the deceased leaves only a full sister and a consanguine sister, they take a moiety and one-sixth respectively, and the residue is divided among them pro rata.

When there are two or more full sisters and several consanguine sisters, but no (consanguine) half-brother, the full sisters take the whole, the consanguine sisters take nothing.

44. In case of a full sister, she takes as a residuary if there is a brother of full blood. This rule also finds mention in Fyzee's exposition, hereinabove extracted, but on the facts of the present case, it is not attracted, because Smt. Nasiban did not have a brother. It is a case where the deceased Bashiran was survived by a lone sister, a husband and a son. In the Table at Page 48A of Mulla's Principles of Mahomedan Law, relied upon by Dr. Vinod Kumar Rai, the position of the full sister, no doubt, is shown as a sharer at serial no. 11. In the second column, the normal share is shown in both its contingencies. In the third column, however, are mentioned the conditions, under which the normal share is inherited. In the said column, against the entry relating to a full sister, the following words occur:

When no(1) child, (2) child of a son h.l.s., (3) father (4) true grandfather, or (5) full brother.

45. Thus, according to Mulla's Principles of Mahomedan Law, there is exclusion of the full sister's share in the presence of a son, how low soever.

46. In the present case, it is undisputed that the deceased Bashiran left behind her a son, besides her husband. The son's presence would, therefore, exclude the right of the sister to inherit as a sharer to the extent of a one-half share by virtue of being the lone sister of Bashiran.

47. In the opinion of this Court, therefore, the half share that Bashiran inherited from her father, Khoob Ali would be shared between her husband, Shaukat Ali and their son, Rasheed @ Kallu.

48. Now, if the share inherited by Bashiran from her father, Khoob Ali is considered the unity, its division between her husband, Shaukat Ali and their son, Rasheed @ Kallu, would be governed by Sections 63 and 65 of Mulla's Principles of Mahomedan Law. Section 65 together with the annexed Table at Page 54A reads:

"65. Residuaries. If there are no Sharers, or if there are Sharers, but there is a residue left after satisfying their claims, the whole inheritance or the residue, as the case may be, devolves upon Residuaries in the order set forth in the annexed table (p. 54A).

TABLE OF RESIDUARIES IN ORDER OF SUCCESSION -Sunni Law

I.- DESCENDANTS:

1. SON.

Daughter takes as a residuary with the son, the son taking a double portion.

2. SON'S SON h.l.s. - the nearer in degree excluding the more remote. Two or more son's son inherit in equal shares. Son's daughter h.l.s. takcs as a residuary with an equal son's son. If there be no equal son's son, but there is a lower son's son, she takes as a residuary with him, provided she cannot inherit as a sharer [see ill. (k)]. In either case, each son's son h.l.s. takes double the share of each son's daughter h.l.s.

Note.- When the son's daughter h.I.s. becomes a residuary with a lower son's son, and there arc son's daughters h.l.s. equal in degree with the lower son's son she shares equally with them, as if they were all of the same grade [scc ill. (m)].

II.- ASCENDANTS:

3. FATHER

4. TRUE GRANDFATHER h.h.s.- the nearer in degree excluding the more remote.

III.- DESCENDANTS OF FATHER:

5. FULL BROTHER.

FULL SISTER - takes as a residuary with full brother, the brother taking a double portion.

6. FULL SISTER.- In default of full brother and the other residuaries above-named, the full sister lakes the residue if any, if there be (1) a daughter or daughters, or (2) a son's daughter or daughters h.l.s., or even if there be (3) one daughter and a son's daughter or daughters h.l.s. See Sir. pp. 24-25.

7.CONSANGUINE BROTHERS.

CONSANGUINE SISTER- takes as a residuary with consanguine brother, the brother, taking a double portion.

8. CONSANGUINE SISTER.- In default of consanguine brother and the other residuaries above-named, the consanguine sister takes the residue, if any, if there be (1) a daughter or daughters or (2) a son's daughter or daughters h.l.s. or even if there be (3) one daughter and a son's daughter or daughters h.l.s. See Sir. pp. 24-25.

9. FULL BROTHER'S SON.

10. CONSANGUINE BROTHER'S SON.

11. FULL BROTHER'S SON'S SON.

12. CONSANGUINE BROTHER'S SON'S SON.

Then come remoter male descendants of No. 11 and No. 12, that is, the son of No. 11, then the son of No. 12, then the son's son of No. 11, then the son's son of No. 12 and so on in like order.

IV.- DESCENDANTS OF TRUE GRANDFATHER h.h.s.

13. FULL PATERNAL UNCLE.

14. CONSANGUINE PATERNAL UNCLE.

15. FULL PATERNAL UNCLE'S SON.

16. CONSANGUINE PATERNAL UNCLE'S SON.

17. FULL PATERNAL UNCLE'S SON'S SON.

18. CONSANGUINE PATERNAL UNCLE'S SON'S SON.

Then come remoter male descendants of Nos. 17 and 18, in like order and manner as descendants of Nos. 11 and 12.

19. MALE DESCENDANTS OF MORE REMOTE TRUE GRANDFATHERS- in like order and manner as the deceased's paternal uncles and their sons and son's sons."

49. Section 63 and the Table at Page 48A of the Mulla's Principles of Mahomedan Law show that the husband is a sharer and receives as such the normal share of one-fourth. However, according to the contingencies enumerated in Column 4, the husband's share is enlarged to a one-half, when no child or child of son, how low soever is there. In the present case, since Bashiran left behind a son, her husband's share would be one-fourth. The son's share would be the residue of a three-fourth, as he would inherit it as a residuary in accordance with Section 65 (supra).

50. The Courts below have erred in allocating the shares of a one-half in the estate left behind by Bashiran to the plaintiff, her husband, Shaukat Ali and the other half to the parties' son, Rasheed @ Kallu. On this basis, the Courts below have determined the share of the plaintiff and defendant no.2 in the suit property (that includes the estate of defendant no.1, Smt. Nasiban) as one-fourth each. Going by the law applicable to the allocation of shares between the plaintiff and defendant no.2 in the estate left behind by Bashiran, the plaintiff would be entitled to a one-fourth share and the parties' son, defendant no.2, a three-fourth share. This share, when applied to the entire suit property, would work out for the plaintiff to a moiety of one-eighth in the suit property and for defendant no.2, Rasheed @ Kallu, a moiety of three-eighth. The balance half share in the suit property would, of course, go to Nasiban, as rightly determined by the two Courts below.

51. The Court has determined the shares of parties as done by the two Courts below according to the law of inheritance applicable to Sunni Muslims governed by the Hanafi School in view of Section 28 of the Mulla's Principles of Mahomedan Law and the comments elucidating the said Section based on judicial authority. Section 28 of the Mulla's Principles of Mahomedan Law and the comments by the learned Commentator read:

"28. Sunni sub-sects.- The Sunnis are divided into four sub-sects, namely, the Hanafis, the Malikis, the Shafeis and the Hanbalis.

The Sunni Mahomedans of India belong principally to the Hanafi School.

Presumption as to Sunnism.- The great majority of the Mahomedans of this country being Sunnis, the presumption will be that the parties to a suit or proceeding are Sunnis, unless it is shown that the parties belong to the Shia sect. But the Shia law is not foreign law. It is part of the law of the land, and so no expert evidence can be led to prove it as in the case of foreign law.

As most Sunnis are Hanafis, the presumption is that a Sunni is governed by Hanafi law.

The Wahhabis are an off-shoot of the Hanbalis. Considerable groups of Mahomedans in the South of India, such as Kerala and Malabar, are Shafeis."

52. Now, the question is that for this error in working out the inter se share between the plaintiff and defendant no.2, should this Court interfere and vary the decree? We do not think so. No doubt, this Court is empowered under the provisions of Order XLI Rule 33 CPC to pass any order or decree, which ought to be passed, notwithstanding that all or any of the respondents or parties may not have filed an appeal or objection. The said power of the Appellate Court, in our opinion, ought not to be exercised in this appeal to vary the shares between the plaintiff and defendant no.2, because there has not been the slightest issue between them from the Court of instance to this Court. The plaintiff and defendant no.2 have never raised any grievance about the shares allocated to them inter se by the Courts below. No arguments have been addressed on the said issue before this Court by the learned Counsel appearing for the parties.

53. The contention in this appeal has been about the inter se share in the suit property between the plaintiff and defendant no.2 on one hand and defendant no.1, Smt. Nasiban on the other. The preliminary decree has rightly determined the share inter se the plaintiff and defendant no.2 on one hand and defendant no.1, Smt. Nasiban on the other, in the suit property. The error in the shares inter se the plaintiff and defendant no.2, for the reason indicated, is nowhere subject matter of the present appeal and in any case, ought not to be the basis for varying the preliminary decree passed by the Courts below.

54. At this stage, reference may be made to the modification of the Trial Court's decree that the Lower Appellate Court has directed by saying that a final decree ought to be prepared in regard to the plaintiff's share alone and the share of defendant no.2 should not be mixed up with the plaintiff's, for the purpose of preparation of the final decree. In a suit for partition, the preliminary decree declares the inter se shares of parties in the suit property and nothing more. A final decree is to be prepared on an application of parties, whose shares have been declared after hearing the other parties, where the partition of property as per shares declared, is to be made by metes and bounds and specific possession delivered.

55. The direction of the Lower Appellate Court, therefore, that the plaintiff's share should not be mixed up with the defendants at the time of preparation of the final decree is superfluous in the sense that it states only the obvious. To the understanding of the Court, what the Lower Appellate Court has called a modification to the decree is no more than a remark or observation without any change, modification or variation of the Trial Court's decree and this observation came from the Lower Appellate Court in the face of an objection on behalf of defendant no.1 on the ground that the plaintiff could claim a share for himself and not defendant no.2. The objection itself was misplaced, because in the preliminary decree the entire suit property has to be partitioned, declaring the share of each co-sharer.

56. The substantial question of law framed in this appeal is answered in the terms that the share in the suit property between the plaintiff and defendant no.2 on one hand, and defendant no.1 on the other, has been rightly determined to the extent of one-half each; there is an error in allocating the shares inter se the plaintiff and defendant no.2 as one-fourth each, whereas it ought to be one-eighth and three-eighth in the suit property.

57. For the reasons indicated hereinabove, this Court does not find any good ground to interfere with the impugned decree. The appeal is dismissed with costs throughout payable by the heirs and LRs of defendant no.1 to the heirs and LRs of the plaintiff.

58. Let a decree be drawn up, accordingly.

A. GENESIS OF PRESENT WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS

1. Corpus, a seven years old boy, has approached this Court through his mother, Smt. Ashi Verma, alleging that Corpus was kidnapped by her husband, Gaurav Verma (Respondent-3) on 02.06.2022 taking advantage of good gesture shown by mother of Corpus to allow him to meet with Corpus. Respondents-4 and 5 are father and mother of Respondent-3, who are supporting her husband and they have misbehaved with her when she alongwith Police personnel went to their place to recover the Corpus. Hence, to recover the Corpus, present Habeas Corpus Petition is filed.

B. COURT'S INTERACTION WITH CORPUS

2. The Corpus is presently staying with his father who appeared before this Court on 16.09.2022 when this Court has interacted with him and brief of the same is mentioned in the order dated 16.09.2022, when after hearing counsel for parties judgment was reserved. For reference the relevant part of said order is mentioned hereinafter:

"1. The Corpus (a 7 years old boy) appeared before this Court alongwith his father. The Court itself interacts with boy in a very cordial atmosphere. The boy is in joyable mood and enjoying Court proceedings for past an hour and responds to informal interaction in very respectful manner. He answers wisely to some general knowledge questions. The boy has no complaint with his father, though he has some minor issues with his mother and conversation ends with mature observation by Corpus that he wants to live happily alongwith his mother and father, both and agreed to a suggestion of the Court that he will hold hands of his Mummy and Papa to live happily together as a family."

C. INTER-PARENTAL CONFLICTS; ITS' EFFECT ON CHILDREN

3. "Inter-Parental Conflict and Children's Psychological Development" are now also termed as "Child Affected by Relationship Distress". It remained an important subject for research scholars and various research papers are available on research related website which have considered "loyalty conflict", "parental alienation" etc. Few of them alongwith their conclusion/observation are referred hereinafter:

I. IRE JOURNALS (ISSN 2456-8880); December, 2021: Effects of Inter-Parental Conflict on Children's Social Well-Being and the Mediation Role of Parenting Behaviour-Author Stephanie Hess-In this paper the author after research come to the conclusion "study overall provides empirical evidence for the negative impact of inter-parental conflict on children's social well-being through a cascade of negative behavior within the family environment that spills over to the school environment. Children of parents who have frequent inter-parental conflicts perceive their mothers and fathers to be less warm and to communicate more negatively, which, in turn, leads to more peer problems and less pro-social behaviour in those children."

II. The Journal for Child Psychology and Psychiatry, Volume 59, Issue 4, Page 374-402: Annual Research Review: Inter-parental Conflict and Youth Psychopathology: An Evidence Review and Practice Focused Update; Authors Gordon T. Harold, Ruth Sellers: The Authors after study observed, "review highlights that frequent, intense, poorly resolved, and child-related inter-parental conflict adversely affects long-term emotional, behavioural, social, academic development, and future intergenerational/interpersonal relationship behaviours for youth."

III. International Journal of Scientific Engineering and Research (IJSER), Volume 7, Issue 3, March 2016: Effect of Parent's Conflict on Children: Author Khoolud Alamoudi-The conclusion of paper is that, "in conclusion, parents' conflicts damage children in many aspects, three of which are physical, psychological, and psychical effects. The impact of parents' conflicts could follow children until they grow up."

D. RIVAL SUBMISSIONS

4. Sri Sarvesh, learned counsel for petitioner and Sri Mahesh Narain Singh, Advocate for Respondents-3 to 5, have vehemently presented the case of their parties. There were submissions and counter submissions as well as allegations and counter allegations. The conflict between parties are like head on confrontation.

5. Learned counsel for petitioner submitted that father and mother of Corpus got married on 08.02.2010 and two sons were born out of their wedlock. Elder son is Corpus, who is seven years old and younger one is presently residing with mother. It is the case of mother that she was tortured for many years and even an attempt to murder was also made when she was thrown away from a running train. In this regard she has lodged an FIR under Sections 498A, 323, 504, 307 IPC. The Corpus was abducted and tortured. He was forced to work at hotel of his father. The family members of husband have assaulted her when she went alongwith Police personnel to recover the Corpus. The mother has also lodged FIR against her husband and family members for attempt to murder, however, it is alleged that Police personnel, under force and influence of opposite parties, have lodged FIR only under Sections 323, 504, 506 IPC, despite she has suffered injuries which were mentioned in medical examination report. She has also filed a criminal case under Section 125 Cr.P.C. for maintenance. Learned counsel further submitted that mother of Corpus was forced to sign papers of compromise, on the basis of which police submitted final report and case filed under Section 125 Cr.P.C. was also withdrawn. In support of allegations mother has made statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C., however, under the garb of compromise final report was submitted. Learned counsel has also placed reliance on certain photographs that father-in-law of petitioner had not only assaulted her but also touched her inappropriately and that the Corpus was very happy with the company of his mother, however, father has abducted him and, therefore, Corpus shall be returned back to her mother. It is also contended that the Corpus has been withdrawn from a very good school, i.e., St. Mery's Convent School and now he has been admitted in a sub-standard school.

6. Sri Mahesh Narain Singh, learned counsel for Respondents-3 to 5, has vehemently opposed the above submissions and placed counter allegation that Corpus was tortured and he was not happy with his mother, therefore, on his own sweet will he accompanied his father and presently residing happily. Compromise was entered with open eyes by parties and the mother tried to execute the same by Police personnel which was not permissible. There are video clippings to show that she was hale and hearty when she was recovered at Gwalior Railway Station. He denied the allegation of attempt to murder of the mother of Corpus. There are video clippings to show that mother and her parents were aggressor and tried to take the Corpus forcefully against his will. The Corpus is in a legal company of his father, therefore, this habeas corpus petition is not maintainable and further the mother has not lodged any FIR that her son was kidnapped.

E. LAW ON WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS

7. "Habeas Corpus" is a Latin word which literary means "to have the body of". The High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution can issue a writ of habeas corpus to a person who has detained another person, to produce the later body before it. The scope of writ of habeas corpus of a minor from the custody of mother as well as from father has been discussed in various judgments passed by this Court as well as Supreme Court and some of them are mentioned hereinafter:

I. Rohit Thammana Gowda vs. State of Karnataka and others, 2022 SCC OnLine SC 937:

"8. At the outset we may state that in a matter involving the question of custody of a child it has to be borne in mind that the question "what is the wish/desire of the child' is different and distinct from the question "what would be in the best interest of the child'. Certainly, the wish/desire of the child can be ascertained through interaction but then, the question as to ''what would be in the best interest of the child' is a matter to be decided by the court taking into account all the relevant circumstances. When couples are at loggerheads and wanted to part their ways as parthian shot they may level extreme allegations against each other so as to depict the other unworthy to have the custody of the child. In the circumstances, we are of the view that for considering the claim for custody of a minor child, unless very serious, proven conduct which should make one of them unworthy to claim for custody of the child concerned, the question can and shall be decided solely looking into the question as to, "what would be the best interest of the child concerned'. In other words, welfare of the child should be the paramount consideration. In that view of the matter we think it absolutely unnecessary to discuss and deal with all the contentions and allegations in their respective pleadings and affidavits." (Emphasis supplied)

II. Tejaswini Gaud and others vs. Shekhar Jagdish Prasad Tewari and others, (2019) 7 SCC 42:

"19. Habeas corpus proceedings is not to justify or examine the legality of the custody. Habeas corpus proceedings is a medium through which the custody of the child is addressed to the discretion of the court. Habeas corpus is a prerogative writ which is an extraordinary remedy and the writ is issued where in the circumstances of the particular case, ordinary remedy provided by the law is either not available or is ineffective; otherwise a writ will not be issued. In child custody matters, the power of the High Court in granting the writ is qualified only in cases where the detention of a minor by a person who is not entitled to his legal custody. In view of the pronouncement on the issue in question by the Supreme Court and the High Courts, in our view, in child custody matters, the writ of habeas corpus is maintainable where it is proved that the detention of a minor child by a parent or others was illegal and without any authority of law.

20. In child custody matters, the ordinary remedy lies only under the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act or the Guardians and Wards Act as the case may be. In cases arising out of the proceedings under the Guardians and Wards Act, the jurisdiction of the court is determined by whether the minor ordinarily resides within the area on which the court exercises such jurisdiction. There are significant differences between the enquiry under the Guardians and Wards Act and the exercise of powers by a writ court which is of summary in nature. What is important is the welfare of the child. In the writ court, rights are determined only on the basis of affidavits. Where the court is of the view that a detailed enquiry is required, the court may decline to exercise the extraordinary jurisdiction and direct the parties to approach the civil court. It is only in exceptional cases, the rights of the parties to the custody of the minor will be determined in exercise of extraordinary jurisdiction on a petition for habeas corpus."

"26. The court while deciding the child custody cases is not bound by the mere legal right of the parent or guardian. Though the provisions of the special statutes govern the rights of the parents or guardians, but the welfare of the minor is the supreme consideration in cases concerning custody of the minor child. The paramount consideration for the court ought to be child interest and welfare of the child.

27. After referring to number of judgments and observing that while dealing with child custody cases, the paramount consideration should be the welfare of the child and due weight should be given to child's ordinary comfort, contentment, health, education, intellectual development and favourable surroundings, in Nil Ratan Kundu, it was held as under:-

"49. In Goverdhan Lal v. Gajendra Kumar, AIR 2002 Raj 148 the High Court observed that it is true that the father is a natural guardian of a minor child and therefore has a preferential right to claim the custody of his son, but in matters concerning the custody of a minor child, the paramount consideration is the welfare of the minor and not the legal right of a particular party. Section 6 of the 1956 Act cannot supersede the dominant consideration as to what is conducive to the welfare of the minor child. It was also observed that keeping in mind the welfare of the child as the sole consideration, it would be proper to find out the wishes of the child as to with whom he or she wants to live.

50. Again, in M.K. Hari Govindan v. A.R. Rajaram, AIR 2003 Mad 315 the Court held that custody cases cannot be decided on documents, oral evidence or precedents without reference to "human touch". The human touch is the primary one for the welfare of the minor since the other materials may be created either by the parties themselves or on the advice of counsel to suit their convenience.

51. In Kamla Devi v. State of H.P. AIR 1987 HP 34 the Court observed:

"13. ... the Court while deciding child custody cases in its inherent and general jurisdiction is not bound by the mere legal right of the parent or guardian. Though the provisions of the special statutes which govern the rights of the parents or guardians may be taken into consideration, there is nothing which can stand in the way of the Court exercising its parens patriae jurisdiction arising in such cases giving due weight to the circumstances such as a child's ordinary comfort, contentment, intellectual, moral and physical development, his health, education and general maintenance and the favourable surroundings. These cases have to be decided ultimately on the Court's view of the best interests of the child whose welfare requires that he be in custody of one parent or the other."

52. In our judgment, the law relating to custody of a child is fairly well settled and it is this: in deciding a difficult and complex question as to the custody of a minor, a court of law should keep in mind the relevant statutes and the rights flowing therefrom. But such cases cannot be decided solely by interpreting legal provisions. It is a human problem and is required to be solved with human touch. A court while dealing with custody cases, is neither bound by statutes nor by strict rules of evidence or procedure nor by precedents. In selecting proper guardian of a minor, the paramount consideration should be the welfare and well-being of the child. In selecting a guardian, the court is exercising parens patriae jurisdiction and is expected, nay bound, to give due weight to a child's ordinary comfort, contentment, health, education, intellectual development and favourable surroundings. But over and above physical comforts, moral and ethical values cannot be ignored. *They are equally, or we may say, even more important, essential and indispensable considerations. If the minor is old enough to form an intelligent preference or judgment, the court must consider such preference as well, though the final decision should rest with the court as to what is conducive to the welfare of the minor." III. Nil Ratan Kundu vs. Abhijit Kundu, (2008) 9 SCC 413 (relied by counsel for petitioner):

"52. In our judgment, the law relating to custody of a child is fairly well-settled and it is this. In deciding a difficult and complex question as to custody of minor, a Court of law should keep in mind relevant statutes and the rights flowing therefrom. But such cases cannot be decided solely by interpreting legal provisions. It is a humane problem and is required to be solved with human touch. A Court while dealing with custody cases, is neither bound by statutes nor by strict rules of evidence or procedure nor by precedents. In selecting proper guardian of a minor, the paramount consideration should be the welfare and well-being of the child. In selecting a guardian, the Court is exercising parens patriae jurisdiction and is expected, nay bound, to give due weight to a child's ordinary comfort, contentment, health, education, intellectual development and favourable surroundings. But over and above physical comforts, moral and ethical values cannot be ignored. They are equally, or we may say, even more important, essential and indispensable considerations. If the minor is old enough to form an intelligent preference or judgment, the Court must consider such preference as well, though the final decision should rest with the Court as to what is conducive to the welfare of the minor."

"57. In our opinion, in such cases, it is not the `negative test' that the father is not `unfit' or disqualified to have custody of his son/daughter is relevant but the `positive test' that such custody would be in the welfare of the minor which is material and it is on that basis that the Court should exercise the power to grant or refuse custody of minor in favour of father, mother or any other guardian.

58. Though this Court in Rosy Jacob held that children are not mere chattels nor toys, the trial Court directed handing over custody of Antariksh `immediately' by removing him from the custody of his maternal grand-parents. Similarly, the High Court, which had stayed the order of the trial Court during the pendency of appeal ordered handing over Antariksh to his father within twenty four hours positively. We may only state that a child is not `property' or `commodity'. To repeat, issues relating to custody of minors and tender-aged children have to be handled with love, affection, sentiments and by applying human touch to the problem."

IV. Anjali Kapoor vs. Rajiv Baijal, (2009) 7 SCC 322 (relied by counsel for Respondents-3 to 5):

"16. In American Jurisprudence, 2nd Edn., Vol. 39, it is stated that:

"....An application by a parent, through the medium of a habeas corpus proceeding, for custody of a child is addressed to the discretion of the court, and custody may be withheld from the parent where it is made clearly to appear that by reason of unfitness for the trust or of other sufficient causes the permanent interests of the child would be sacrificed by a change of custody. In determining whether it will be for the best interest of a child to award its custody to the father or mother, the Court may properly consult the child, if it has sufficient judgment."

"22. Bearing these factors in mind, we proceed to consider as to who is fit and proper to be the guardian of the minor child Anagh in the facts and circumstances of this case. In the present case, the appellant is taking care of Anagh, since her birth when she had to go through intensive care in the hospital till today. The photographs produced by her along with the petition, which is not disputed by the other side would clearly demonstrate, the amount of care, affection and the love that the grandmother has for the child having lost only daughter in a tragic circumstances. She wants to see her daughter's image in her grand child. She has bestowed her attention throughout for the welfare of reminiscent of her only daughter, that is the minor child which is being dragged from one end to another on the so called perception of judicial precedents and the language employed by the legislatures on the right of natural guardian for the custody of minor child."

"26. Ordinarily, under the Guardian and Wards Act, the natural guardians of the child have the right to the custody of the child, but that right is not absolute and the Courts are expected to give paramount consideration to the welfare of the minor child. The child has remained with the appellant/grandmother for a long time and is growing up well in an atmosphere which is conducive to its growth. It may not be proper at this stage for diverting the environment to which the child is used to. *Therefore, it is desirable to allow the appellant to retain the custody of the child." V. Athar Hussain vs. Syed Siraj Ahmed and others, (2010) 2 SCC 654 (relied by counsel for Respondents-3 to 5):

"31. We are mindful of the fact that, as far as the matter of guardianship is concerned, the prima facie case lies in favour of the father as under Section 19 of the GWC Act, unless the father is not fit to be a guardian, the Court has no jurisdiction to appoint another guardian. It is also true that the respondents, despite the voluminous allegations leveled against the appellant have not been able to prove that he is not fit to take care of the minor children, nor has the Family Court or the High Court found him so. However, the question of custody is different from the question of guardianship. Father can continue to be the natural guardian of the children; however, the considerations pertaining to the welfare of the child may indicate lawful custody with another friend or relative as serving his/her interest better.

32. In Rosy Jacob v. Jacob A. Chakramakkal, (1973) 3 S.C.R. 918, keeping in mind the distinction between right to be appointed as a Guardian and the right to claim custody of the minor child, this Court held so in the following oft-quoted words:

"Merely because the father loves his children and is not shown to be otherwise undesirable cannot necessarily lead to the conclusion that the welfare of the children would be better promoted by granting their custody to him as against the wife who may also be equally affectionate towards her children and otherwise equally free from blemish, and, who, in addition, because of her profession and financial resources, may be in a position to guarantee better health, education and maintenance for them."

"35. Keeping in mind the paramount consideration of welfare of the children, we are not inclined to disturb their custody which currently rests with their maternal relatives as the scope of this order is limited to determining with which of the contesting parties the minors should stay till the disposal of the application for guardianship."

"42. In our opinion, as far as the question of custody is concerned, in the light of the aforementioned decisions, the personal law governing the minor girl dictates her maternal relatives, especially her maternal aunt, shall be given preference. To the extent that we are concerned with the question of interim custody, we see no reason to override this rule of Mohammedan Law and, hence, a prima facie case is found in favour of the respondents. Further, the balance of convenience lies in favour of granting custody to the maternal grandfather, aunt and uncle.

43. A plethora of decisions of this Court endorse the proposition that in matters of custody of children, their welfare shall be the focal point. Once we shift the focus from the rights of the contesting relatives to the welfare of the minor children, the considerations in determining the question of balance of convenience also differ. We take note of the fact that respondent no.3, on record, has stated that she has no intention to get married and her plea that she had resigned from her job as a technical writer to take care of the children remains uncontroverted. We are, hence, convinced that the respondents will be in a position to provide sufficient love and care for the children until the disposal of the guardianship application.

44. The second marriage of the appellant, though a factor that cannot disentitle him to the custody of the children, yet is an important factor to be taken into account. It may not be appropriate on our part to place the children in a predicament where they have to adjust with their step-mother, with whom admittedly they had not spent much time as the marriage took place only in March, 2007, when the ultimate outcome of the guardianship proceedings is still uncertain.

45. The learned counsel for the appellant placed reliance on the case of Bal Krishna Pandey v. Sanjeev Bajpayee AIR 2004 UTR 1 wherein the maternal grandfather of the minor contested with the father of the minor for custody of a girl aged about 12 years. The Uttranchal High court in that case gave the custody of minor to the father rejecting the contention of grandfather (appellant) that the father (respondent) after his remarriage will not be in a position to give fair treatment to the minor. However, in that case, the second wife of the father had been medically proven as unable to conceive. Hence, the question of a possible conflict between her affection for the children whose custody was in dispute and the children she might bear from the father did not arise. In the case before us, the situation is not the same and the possibility of such conflict does have a bearing upon the welfare of the children."

VI. Syed Saleemuddin vs. Dr. Rukhsana, (2001) 5 SCC 247 (relied by counsel for Respondents-3 to 5):

"9. A Constitution Bench of this Court in the case of Kanu Sanyal vs. District Magistrate, Darjeeling and others (1973 (2) SCC 674) dealing with the nature and scope of a writ of Habeas Corpus observed :

"It will be seen from this brief history of habeas corpus that it is essentially a procedural writ. It deals with the machinery of justice, not the substantive law. The object of the writ is to secure release of a person who is illegally restrained of his liberty. The writ is, no doubt, a command addressed to a person who is alleged to have another person unlawfully in his custody requiring him to bring the body of such person before the Court, but the production of the body of the person detailed is directed in order that the circumstances of his detention may be inquired into, or to put it differently, in order that appropriate judgment be rendered on judicial enquiry into the alleged unlawful restraint. The form of the writ employed is We command you that you have in the Kings Bench Division of our High Court of Justice immediately after the receipt of this our writ, the body of A.B. being taken and detained under your custody together with the day and cause of his being taken and detained to undergo and receive all and singular such matters and things as our court shall then and there consider of concerning him in this behalf. The italicized words show that the writ is primarily designed to give a person restrained of his liberty a speedy and effective remedy for having the legality of his detention enquired into and determined and if the detention is found to be unlawful, having himself discharged and freed from such restraint. The most characteristic element of the writ is its peremptoriness and, as pointed out by Lord Halsbury, L.C. in Cox v. Hakes (supra), the essential and leading theory of the whole procedure is the immediate determination of the right to the applicants freedom and his release, if the detention is found to be unlawful. That is the primary purpose of the writ; that is its substance and end."

10. This Court in the case of Gohar Begam v. Suggi Alias Nazma Begam and others (1960(1) SCR 597) dealt with a petition for writ of Habeas Corpus for recovery of a illegitimate female infant of an unmarried Sunni Muslim mother, took note of the position under the Mohammedan Law that the mother of an illegitimate female infant is entitled to its custody and the refusal to restore such a child to the custody of its mother would result in an illegal detention of the child within the meaning of Section 491 of the Criminal Procedure Code. This Court held that the dispute as to the paternity of the child is irrelevant for the purpose of the application and the Supreme Court will interfere with the discretionary powers of the High Court if the discretion was not judicially exercised. This Court further held that in issuing writs of Habeas Corpus the Court have power in the case of an infant to direct its custody to be placed with a certain person.

11. From the principles laid down in the aforementioned cases it is clear that in an application seeking a writ of Habeas Corpus for custody of minor children the principal consideration for the Court is to ascertain whether the custody of the children can be said to be unlawful or illegal and whether the welfare of the children requires that present custody should be changed and the children should be left in care and custody of somebody else. The principle is well settled that in a matter of custody of a child the welfare of the child is of paramount consideration of the Court. Unfortunately, the Judgment of the High Court does not show that the Court has paid any attention to these important and relevant questions. The High Court has not considered whether the
