Application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. allowed. (E-7)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dinesh Kumar Singh, J.)

1. The present petition under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed by the State impugning the order dated 15.3.2022 passed by the First Additional Sessions Judge/Special Judge, MP/MLA, Ghazipur in Session Trial No10-A of 2010, arising out of Case Crime No.1182 of 2009, under Sections 307, 506 and 120-B IPC, Police Station Mohammadabad, District Ghazipur.

2. The learned trial court vide impugned order has directed the Senior Superintendent of District Jail, Banda to grant superior class to accused-Mukhtar Ansari. The learned trial court has taken into consideration the provision of Section 287 of the Uttar Pradesh Jail Manual. However, the said Jail Manual is replaced now by the Uttar Pradesh Jail Manual, 2022 and the corresponding provisions are incorporated in Chapter-14 of the Uttar Pradesh Jail Manual, 2022.

3. Under the Uttar Pradesh Jail Manual, criminal prisoners are categorised in two classes; (1) Superior; and (2) Ordinary. Paragraph 257 of the Uttar Pradesh Jail Manual, 2022 provides for recommendation for superior class as was under Paragraph 279 of the Old Manual by the Courts.

4. For the sake of convenience, Paragraph 257 of the Uttar Pradesh Jail Manual, 2022 reads as under:-

?257. (a) In respect of criminal prisoner who is an accused before it, whether in trial, enquiry, appeal or revision and keeping in view the provisions of rule 259, the High Court may recommend to the State Government, and a Court of Session to the District Magistrate for his admission to superior class.

(b) The High Court may, pending receipt of the order of the State Government direct the Superintendent of the jail concerned to admit the prisoner provisionally to the superior class and the Superintendent of jail shall comply with such direction.?

5. Paragraph 258, corresponding Paragraph 280 of the Old Manual prescribes conditions for grant of superior class to a prisoner, which would read as under:-

?258. (1) Superior class shall not ordinarily be given to a prisoner who has been ordered to be detained under chapter VIII of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, or who has been convicted of any of the following offences-

(a) offences under Chapter V-A, VI, VII and VIII. Section 161 ; Chapters XII, XV, XVI, XVII and XVIII of the Indian Penal Code;

(b) offences under Sections 25 and 27 of the Arms Act, 1959 ;

(c) offences under the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947 ;

(d) offences under the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act, 1967 ;

(e) offences under the Control of Goonda Act, 1970;

(f) offences under the Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 1954

(g) offences of abetment of any of the offences mentioned above ;

(h) offences under Section 14 of the Foreigners Act, 1946

(i) any other offences involving violence or moral turpitude.

(j) offences against women and children.

(k) The Uttar Pradesh Gangster Act, Anti Social Activities Prevention Act, 1986.

(l) any special act dealing with terror, subversive activities or organized crime.

(2) If the District Magistrate is satisfied that the prisoners, education, character and antecedent, the nature of the offence committed and the motives thereof justifies superior class treatment to the prisoner, may, either on his own motion or as a recommendation made by the Court of Session or Magistrate under clause (a) of accord superior class ?

(a) to a prisoner not covered by sub-rule (1) and

(b) to a prisoner covered by rule (1) but in very exceptional cases.

(3) A brief note setting forth the grounds on which the superior class is accorded by the District Magistrate shall be furnished to the State Government.

(4) The State Government either on its own motion or as recommendation made by the High Court may, for reasons to be recorded in writing likewise accord superior class to a prisoner if it is satisfied that his education, character and antecedents, the nature of offence committed and the motives therefor justify the same.?

6. From perusal of Paragraph 257, it is evident that in respect of a criminal prisoner, who is an accused before the court whether in trial, enquiry, appeal or revision, the High Court may recommend to the State Government and the Court of Sessions to the District Magistrate for admission of such prisoner to a superior class. The conditions for admission of prisoner as stated above are prescribed in Paragraph 258, which specifically says that the superior class shall not be recommended ordinarily to a prisoner, who is accused of serious offences mentioned in Chapter V-A, VI, VII and VIII. Section 161 ; Chapters XII, XV, XVI, XVII and XVIII of the Indian Penal Code besides under other enactments which are mentioned in the said Section.

7. It may also be taken note of that while considering the recommendation for providing superior class to a criminal prisoner, the State Government has to take into consideration the following facts:-

- (a) Education of the criminal prisoner ;
- (b) Character ;
- (c) Criminal antecedents ;
- (d) Nature of offence(s) committed ; and
- (e) Motive for committing the offence(s).

8. Sri Ratnendu Kumar Singh, learned AGA for the petitioner-State has advanced two fold submissions in support of the preset petition. Firstly, he submits that the order passed by the learned trial court is without jurisdiction inasmuch as the Court has only recommendatory power for grant of superior class to a prisoner and the final authority to grant or refuse the superior class is vested in the State Government as the case may be. He further submits that considering the long criminal history of the accused-opposite party of heinous offences, a known gangster and the most dreaded criminal is otherwise not entitled for superior class. He, therefore, submits that the impugned order being without jurisdiction and also on merit the accused is not entitled for superior class looking at his long criminal history and he being an accused for offences under Chapter-XVI, he is not entitled for grant of superior class inasmuch Paragraph 258 bars granting of superior class to such a criminal.

9. Sri Upendra Upadhyayay, learned counsel for the opposite party is not in a position to dispute the legal position that the learned trial court has only recommendatory power, and the power ultimately vests with the State Government to grant or refuse the superior status for reasons to be recorded on consideration of relevant factors as mentioned in Paragraph 258 of the Jail Manual. He also can not deny that the accused-opposite party is facing the trial for offences under Chapter-XVI and if such a person is accused of offences under Chapter-XVI, ordinarily he should not be recommended for superior class.

10. I have considered the submissions advanced on behalf of the learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

11. The accused-opposite party is the known gangster, a dreaded criminal and bahubali. Following criminal cases have been registered against the accused-opposite party:-

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shiv Shanker Prasad, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Naveen Kumar, learned counsel for the applicant, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 and learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. This application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed on behalf of the applicant to quash the judgement and order dated 20th May, 2022 passed by the Principal Judge, Family Court, Sonbhadra, in Criminal Case No. 387 of 2019 (Shabana Bano Vs. Aliraza), under Section 125 Cr.P.C., Police Station-Dudhi, District-Sonbhadra, whereby the application made by the applicant under Section 125 Cr.P.C. has been rejected.

The case of the Applicant

3. The factual matrix of the case in hand, which has been highlighted by the applicant is that marriage of applicant and opposite party no. 2 was solemnized on 4.5.2002 in accordance with Muslim Rites and Rituals at Dudhi, Sonbhadra and in the said marriage, about Rs. 40 lacs with Indica Car were given by applicant's family members to opposite party no. 2 for fulfilment of dowry. After marriage applicant came to her matrimonial house but after few days of her marriage, the husband (opposite party no. 2) and his family members again demanded Rs. 20 lacs from applicant's family members. From the aforesaid wedlock, three female children and a male child was born. When the family members of the applicant did not fulfill the aforesaid additional demand of dowry at Rs. 20 lacs, the opposite party no. 2 and his family members kicked out the applicant from her matrimonial house on 18.11.2013 with her children and on 2.12.2013, opposite party no. 2 sent Talaqnama to applicant. Since the applicant is unskilled housewife/ lady, she is unable to earn livelihood for herself and her children, so she filed Criminal Misc. Application No. 21/2014

(Shabana Bano Versus Ali Raza)
Under Section 125 Cr.P.C. for maintaining her and her children but the said application was rejected by learned court below for want of prosecution on 1.3.2017. After rejection of the said application under Section 125 Cr.P.C., the applicant filed another application under Section 126 (2) Cr.P.C. before the Principal Judge, Family Court, Sonbhadra Being Criminal Misc. Application No. 138 of 2017, which has also been rejected/dismissed by learned Principal Judge Family Court, Sonbhadra for want of prosecution on 8th February, 2018. After that the applicant filed a fresh application under Section 125 Cr.P.C. before the Principal Judge Family Court, Sonbhadra, which has been numbered as Criminal Misc Application No. 387 of 2019 (Shabana Bano Vs. Ali Raza). This application filed by the applicant under Section 125 Cr.P.C. has again been rejected by the Family Court vide order dated 20th May, 2022 on the principle of res judicata. It is against this order that the present application has been filed.

Finding and conclusion of the Principal Judge, Family Court, Sonbhadra while passing the impugned order:

4. Before passing the impugned order, the Family Court has framed a conceptual issue whether after rejection of applications of the applicant under Sections 125 and 126 (2) Cr.P.C. for want of prosecution vide orders dated 1st March, 2017 and 8th February, 2018, fresh application under Section 125 Cr.P.C. being Criminal Misc Application No. 387 of 2019 (Shabana Bano Vs. Ali Raza) is legally maintainable or not and the applicant has the right to file a fresh application under Section - 125 of the Code of Criminal Procedure or not?

5. The Family Court has recorded in the order impugned that due to the absence of the applicant, the first application made by the applicant under Section 125 Cr.P.C. has been rejected on 01.03.2017 and the application under section 126 (2) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, has been rejected on 8th February, 2018. From the legal point of view it is apparent that all the rights have been exercised by the applicant in respect of Section-125 of the Code of Criminal Procedure before the Family Court, Sonbhadra and final decision has been taken by the Court twice. It has further been recorded that the proceedings of Section-125 of the Code of Criminal Procedure are of a semi-civil nature. The applicant got the right to apply Section 125 of the Code of Criminal Procedure under the new case after the case was rejected twice due to the absence of the applicant. In the case in question, the said conceptual question is a question of law, which is being decided on the basis of merits and demerits. The facts mentioned in the present application under Section 125

Cr.P.C. cannot be considered until the same is not legally maintainable.

6. The Principal Judge, Family Court has further recorded that the proceedings of Section-125 of the Code of Criminal Procedure are of a semi-civil nature. According to Section-36 of the Family Court Rules, 2006, an order passed under Chapter-IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure for maintenance allowance may be executed by the court by attachment of salary as provided in Section- 60 and Order - XXI of the Code of Criminal Procedure, in addition to the mode of recovery provided in sub-Section 3 of Section 125 Cr.P.C. It is also notable that the warrant for recovery of fine is also sent to the District Collector in Format No. 44 mentioned at the end of the Code of Criminal Procedure. It is also necessary to mention here that under Section-125 Cr.P.C., formal evidence can be given in affidavit. According to Order XVIII Rule-4(1) of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, the examination-in-chief shall be on affidavit. In this way, the provisions of Civil Procedure Code are also applicable in miscellaneous case under Section 125 Cr.P.C. Suit under Section-125 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is Semi-Civil Suit in nature. The Principal Judge, Family Court has further recorded that the order dated 1st March, 2017 rejecting the application of the applicant under Section 125 Cr.P.C. and the order dated 8th February, 2018 rejecting the application of the applicant under Section 126 (2) Cr.P.C. attract Section-11 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, as in both the above-mentioned miscellaneous applications i.e under Section 125 and 126 (2) Cr.P.C. and the fresh miscellaneous application under Section 125 Cr.P.C., the parties, the court and the contentious facts are the same. On the basis of such finding, the Principal Judge, Family Court has come to the conclusion that the fresh application under Section 125 Cr.P.C., being Criminal Miscellaneous Case No. 387 of 2019 is barred by the principle of res judicata embodied in Section 11 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

7. Apart from the above, the Principal Judge, Family Court has also opined that the application under Section 125 Cr.P.C. in question has been filed about one and a half years after 2018 and no explanation has been given by the applicant in her plaint for that delay and facts has also not been mentioned by the applicant. There is no legal justification to bring a new application under Section 125 Cr.P.C. before the court once her application has been rejected for seeking maintenance in Section-126 (2) of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

8. On the basis of the aforesaid findings, the Principal Judge, Family Court, Sonbhadra has held that the new application under Section 125 Cr.P.C. being Criminal Misc. Application No. 387 of 2019 (Shabana Bano Vs. Ali Raza) deserves to be dismissed as not being legally maintainable.

9. Submission of the learned counsel for the applicant

(i) It is no doubt true that the application Under Section 125 Cr.P.C. is criminal in nature but few provisions of civil procedures are applied in the case of the applicant like the principle of res judicata. However, as per the definition of res judicata, it shall only be applicable in the case when the earlier case for the same cause of action and on same ground has been finally decided/rejected. The applications of the applicant under Section 125 Cr.P.C. and 126 (2) Cr.P.C. has not been decided on merits the same has been rejected for want of prosecution.

(ii) Through opposite party no. 2, who is holding a very high post in Judiciary and also an infallible person, is presently posted as Additional District Judge, taking advantage of his influence, he is getting the applicant's applications rejected again and again..

(iii) The first application under Section 125 Cr.P.C. filed by the applicant was rejected on the ground of non appearance but applicant being innocent housewife had no knowledge about the date in her case because of non communication by her counsel.

(iv). The applicant has no source of income and she is residing alone in her parental house from 18.11.2013 and her mother and father had also died.

(v). The learned court below has committed manifest error of law in rejecting the application of the applicant under Section 125 Cr.P.C. on the ground of maintainability.

10. In support of his case, learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance upon following judgments of (i) the Apex Court in the case of Pritam Singh & Another Vs. The State of Punjab reported in AIR 1956 SC 415; (ii) the Apex Court in the case of Dawalsab Vs. Khajasab reported in 2009 0 Supreme (SC) 1239; and (iii) Punjab & Haryana High Court in the case of Manish Tandon Vs. Ankita Bhutani reported in 2017 LawSuit (P&H) 2449; (iv) the Delhi High Court in the case of Khem Chand Kataria VS. Shakuntala Devi reported in II (1983) D.M.C. 201; and the Rajasthan High Court in the case of Jagdish Chandra Vs. Hemlata & Others reported in 1986 LawSuit (Ra) 526.

On the cumulative strength of the aforesaid, learned counsel for the applicant submits that the order impugned passed by the Family Court cannot be legally sustained and is liable to be quashed.

Submissions of the learned A.G.A. for the State

11. On the other-hand, learned A.G.A. controverts the submissions made by the learned counsel for the applicant by submitting that any suit/case, which has been decided either on merits i.e. finally or otherwise, the second suit/case will not be maintainable on the principle of res judicata. In support of his plea, learned A.G.A. has placed reliance upon the judgments of (i) Patna High Court in the case of Mahanth Girjanand Bhagat & Another Vs. Bhagwan Bhagat & Others reported in 1966 SCC OnLine Pat 38; (ii) Mysore High Court Kempegowda Vs. Annegowda & Others reported in 1950 SCC OnLine Kar 42; and (iii) C. Subramanyam Vs. C. Sumathi & Another reported in 2003 (2) ALD Cri 905.

On the cumulative strength of the aforesaid, learned A.G.A. submits that there is no illegality or infirmity in the order passed by the Family Court rejecting the application of the applicant under Section 125 Cr.P.C. on the ground of res judicata, as such the present applicant has no merit and is liable to be dismissed.

12. I have heard the learned counsel for the applicant, learned A.G.A. for the State and have gone through the records of the present application including the order impugned.

Aim and Object of Proceedings under Section 125 Cr.P.C.

13. Before coming to the merits of the case set up by the parties firstly this Court comes on the aim and object of Section 125 Cr.P.C.

14. Section 125 of the Code of Criminal Procedure has been enacted to achieve a social object and the object is to prevent vagrancy and destitution and to provide speedy remedy to deserted or divorced wife, minor children and infirm parents in terms of food, clothing and shelter and minimum needs of one's life. The Supreme Court has been always of the view that maintenance to the wife is an issue of gender justice and the obligation of the husband is on a higher pedestal.

15. In the case of Danial Latifi Vs. Union of India reported in (2001) 7 SCC 740, the Apex Court has opined as follows:

"In interpreting the provisions where matrimonial relationship is involved, we have to consider the social conditions prevalent in our society. In our society, whether they belong to the majority or the minority group, what is apparent is that there exists a great disparity in the matter of economic resourcefulness between a man and a woman. Our society is male dominated both economically and socially and women are assigned, invariably, a dependant role, irrespective of the class of society to which she belongs. A woman on her marriage very often, though highly educated, gives up her all other avocations and entirely devotes herself to the welfare of the family, in particular she shares with her husband, her emotions, sentiments, mind and body, and her investment in the marriage is her entire life a sacramental sacrifice of her individual self and is far too enormous to be measured in terms of money. When a relationship of this nature breaks up, in what manner we could compensate her so far as emotional fracture or loss of investment is concerned, there can be no answer. It is a small solace to say that such a woman should be compensated in terms of money towards her livelihood and such a relief which partakes basic human rights to secure gender and social justice is universally recognised by persons belonging to all religions and it is difficult to perceive that Muslim law intends to provide a different kind of responsibility by passing on the same to those unconnected with the matrimonial life such as the heirs who were likely to inherit the property from her or the wakf boards. Such an approach appears to us to be a kind of distortion of the social facts. Solutions to such societal problems of universal magnitude pertaining to horizons of basic human rights, culture, dignity and decency of life and dictates of necessity in the pursuit of social justice should be invariably left to be decided on considerations other than religion or religious faith or beliefs or national, sectarian, racial or communal constraints. Bearing this aspect in mind, we have to interpret the provisions of the Act in question."

16. In Capt. Ramesh Chander Kaushal v. Veena Kaushal reported in AIR 1978 SC 1807, the Hon'ble Supreme Court remarked:

"The brooding presence of the Constitutional empathy for the weaker sections like women and children must inform interpretation if it has to have social relevance."

17. In the case of Chaturbhuaj vs Sita Bai reported in (2008) 2 SCC 316, the Hon'ble Supreme Court expressed the view that Section 125 Cr.P.C. is a measure of social justice and is specially enacted to protect women and children and it gives effect to fundamental rights and natural duties of a man to maintain his wife, children and parents when they are unable to maintain themselves. The Hon'ble Supreme Court observed:

"Section 125, Cr.P.C. is a measure of social justice and is specially enacted to protect women and children and as noted by this Court in Captain Ramesh Chander Kaushal v. Veena Kaushal (1978) 4 SCC 70 falls within constitutional sweep of Article 15(3) reinforced by Article 39 of the Constitution of India. It is meant to achieve a social purpose. The object is to prevent vagrancy and destitution. It provides a speedy remedy for the supply of food, clothing and shelter to the deserted wife. It gives effect to fundamental rights and natural duties of a man to maintain his wife, children and parents when they are unable to maintain themselves. The aforesaid position was highlighted in Savitaben Somabhai Bhatiya v. State of Gujarat (2005) 3 SCC 636."

18. In Shabana Bano v. Imran Khan reported in (2010) 1 SCC 666 in a petition for maintenance under Section 125, one of the objections raised by the husband was that he has already divorced the wife prior to filing of petition in accordance with Muslim Law and under the provisions of Muslim Women (Protection of Rights on Divorce) Act, 1986 she is not entitled to any maintenance after the divorce and after the expiry of the iddat period, however, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that even after the disposal of application under Section 3 of the Act, the divorced wife is entitled to claim maintenance under Section 125 beyond the iddat period and till she remarries. The same view has been followed in Shamim Bano v. Asraf Khan reported in (2014) 12 SCC 636.

19. Reiterating the same view, in Shamima Farooqui Vs. Shahid Khan reported in (2015) 5 SCC 705, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has made very following observation:

"Be it clarified that sustenance does not mean and can never allow to mean a mere survival. A woman, who is constrained to leave the marital home, should not be allowed to feel that she has fallen from grace and move hither and thither arranging for sustenance. As per law, she is entitled to lead a life in the similar manner as she would have lived in the house of her husband. And that is where the status and strata of the husband comes into play and that is where the legal obligation of the husband becomes a prominent one. As long as the wife is held entitled to grant of maintenance within the parameters of Section 125, CrPC, it has to be adequate so that she can live with dignity as she would have lived in her matrimonial home. She cannot be compelled to become a destitute or a beggar."

.....

When the woman leaves the matrimonial home, the situation is quite different. She is deprived of many a comfort. Sometimes the faith in life reduces. Sometimes, she feels she has lost the tenderest friend. There may be a feeling that her fearless courage has brought her the misfortune. At this stage, the only comfort that the law can impose is that the husband is bound to give monetary comfort. That is the only soothing legal balm, for she cannot be allowed to resign to destiny."

20. In the case of Badshah v. Sou. Urmila Badshah Godse reported in AIR 2014 SC 869, though related to standard of proof of legal marriage in a case under Section 125 of the Code, the Supreme Court made a very emphatic observation regarding the ambit and object of the law provided by Section 125 of the Code.

21. From the records of the present application as well as from the order impugned, it is an admitted position that earlier two applications filed by the applicant before the Principal Judge, Family Court, Sonbhadra have been rejected in default/for want of prosecution, meaning thereby that the same have not been finally decided i.e. on merits.

Framing of Issues

22. The legal issues born out from the records of the present application, which has also been admitted by the learned counsel for the parties are as under:

(a) Whether in the proceedings under Section 125 Cr.P.C., the provision of Section 11 of the Cr.P.C. i.e. principle of res judicata will apply or not?;

(b) Whether the principle of res judicata will apply in the case of the applicant under Section 125 Cr.P.C.?; and

(c) Whether fresh application under Section 125 Cr.P.C. filed by the applicant is maintainable or not, after her two applications under Sections 125 and 126 (2) Cr.P.C. have been rejected for want of prosecution.

Answer on Issue no. (a)

23. For examining the first issue in hand i.e. (a), it is necessary for this Court to discuss about the nature of the proceedings under Section 125 Cr.P.C. No doubt, it is a social legislation to protect the women/children/parents, who are in need of support. When such claim for maintenance is made under the personal law, the right is decided by the Civil Court, only with a view to have a speedy disposal of such claims for maintenance, having regard to the urgent need of the victims of desertion and neglect. While making such provision, the Parliament thought it fit to incorporate the provision to enable the victims to claim maintenance through the criminal court. Thus, though a petition/application under Section 125 (1) Cr.P.C. is made before the criminal court as defined under Section 6 Cr.P.C., the right that is decided by the said Court is purely civil in nature. Therefore, undoubtedly, the order made by the Magistrate under Section 125 (1) Cr.P.C. for maintenance is the culmination of such a civil right of an individual. But, Section 125 (3) of the Code empowers the Court to impose a sentence of imprisonment, in the event of failure to obey such order made under Section 125 (1) Cr.P.C. To this extent, the proceeding is criminal in nature. To put it comprehensively, a proceeding initiated under Section 125 Cr.P.C. is quasi-civil and quasi-criminal. The Apex Court has held so in several judgements. Regarding the procedure for making claim before the Court for maintenance, what is filed under Section 125 (1) Cr.P.C. is a pure and simple petition/application and not a complaint as defined in Section 2 (d) of the Code. This would again indicate that a proceeding under Section 125 Cr.P.C. is treated as a quasi-civil and quasi criminal proceeding.

24. In the case of M. Nagabhushana Vs. State of Karnataka reported in (2011) 3 SCC 408, the Apex Court has held that principle of res judicata will apply universally meaning thereby that the same shall apply to both civil and criminal proceedings in order to secure the interest of justice and multiple litigations. The observation of the Apex Court is reproduced herein-under:

"The principles of Res Judicata are of universal application as it is based on two age old principles, namely, 'interest reipublicae ut sit finis litium' which means that it is in the interest of the State that there should be an end to litigation and the other principle is 'nemo debet bis vexari, si constet curiae quod sit pro un aet eadem cause' meaning thereby that no one ought to be vexed twice in a litigation if it appears to the Court that it is for one and the same cause. This doctrine of Res Judicata is common to all civilized system of jurisprudence to the extent that a judgment after a proper trial by a Court of competent jurisdiction should be regarded as final and conclusive determination of the questions litigated and should for ever set the controversy at rest.

15. That principle of finality of litigation is based on high principle of public policy. In the absence of such a principle great oppression might result under the colour and pretence of law in as much as there will be no end of litigation and a rich and malicious litigant will succeed in infinitely vexing his opponent by repetitive suits and actions. This may compel the weaker party to relinquish his right. The doctrine of Res Judicata has been evolved to prevent such an anarchy. That is why it is perceived that the plea of Res Judicata is not a technical doctrine but a fundamental principle which sustains the Rule of Law in ensuring finality in litigation. This principle seeks to promote honesty and a fair administration of justice and to prevent abuse in the matter of accessing Court for agitating on issues which have become final between the parties."

(Emphasis supplied)

25. In view of the aforesaid, this Court is of the firm opinion that in the proceedings initiated by the application under Section 125 Cr.P.C., the provisions of Section 11 of the Code of Civil Procedure i.e. principle of res judicata will apply.

Answer on Issue nos. (b) & (c)

26. For examining the second and third issues i.e. (b) & (c), it is important for this Court to refer to Section 11 of the C.P.C. wherein the principle of res judicata has been defined, which is being quoted herein below:

"11. No Court shall try any suit or issue in which the matter directly and substantially in issue has been directly and substantially in issue in a former suit between the same parties, or between parties under whom they or any of them claim, litigating under the same title, in a Court competent to try such subsequent suit or the suit in which such issue has been subsequently raised, and has been heard and finally decided by such Court.

Explanation I.-- The expression former suit shall denote a suit which has been decided prior to a suit in question whether or not it was instituted prior thereto.

Explanation II.-- For the purposes of this section, the competence of a Court shall be determined irrespective of any provisions as to a right of appeal from the decision of such Court.

Explanation III.--The matter above referred to must in the former suit have been alleged by one party and either denied or admitted, expressly or impliedly, by the other.

Explanation IV.-- Any matter which might and ought to have been made ground of defence or attack in such former suit shall be deemed to have been a matter directly and substantially in issue in such suit.

Explanation V.-- Any relief claimed in the plaint, which is not expressly granted by the decree, shall for the purposes of this section, be deemed to have been refused.

Explanation VI.-- Where persons litigate bona fide in respect of a public right or of a private right claimed in common for themselves and others, all persons interested in such right shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to claim under the persons so litigating .

Explanation VII.-- The provisions of this section shall apply to a proceeding for the execution of a decree and references in this section to any suit, issue or former suit shall be construed as references, respectively, to a proceeding for the execution of the decree, question arising in such proceeding and a former proceeding for the execution of that decree.

Explanation VIII.-- An issue heard and finally decided by a Court of limited jurisdiction, competent to decide such issue, shall operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit, notwithstanding that such Court of limited jurisdiction was not competent to try such subsequent suit or the suit in which such issue has been subsequently raised."

27. The "principle of res judicata" literally means a "thing adjudicated" or "an issue that has been definitively settled by judicial decision". The principle operates as a bar to try the same issue once over. It aims to prevent multiplicity of proceedings and accords finality to an issue, which directly and substantially had arisen in the former suit between the same parties or their privies and was decided and has become final, so that the parties are not vexed twice over; vexatious litigation is put an end to and valuable time of the court is saved.

28. In Nagendrappa Natikar vs Neelamma, reported in AIR 2013 SC 1541, the question was whether a compromise entered into by husband and wife under Order XXIII, Rule 3 of the Code of Civil Procedure (C.P.C.) agreeing for a consolidated amount towards permanent alimony and thereby giving up any future claim for maintenance, accepted by the Court in a proceeding under Section 125 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Cr.P.C.), would preclude the wife from claiming maintenance in a suit filed under Section 18 of the Hindu Adoptions and Maintenance Act, 1956 ? In this case, after the petition was disposed of on the basis of compromise, the respondent wife filed a Misc. Application under Section 127, Cr.P.C. before the Family Court for cancellation of the earlier order and also for awarding future maintenance. While the application under Section 127, Cr.P.C. was pending, respondent wife also filed a suit before the Family Court under Section 18 of the Hindu Adoption and Maintenance Act claiming maintenance at the rate of Rs.2,000/- per month. Both the petitions were resisted by the husband stating that the parties had already reached a compromise with regard to the claim for maintenance. The question of maintainability was raised as a preliminary issue. The Family Court held by its order dated 15.9.2009 that the compromise entered into between the parties in a proceeding under Section 125, Cr.P.C. would not be bar in entertaining a suit under Section 18 of the Act. The suit was then finally heard on 30.9.2010 and the Family Court decreed the suit holding that the respondent is entitled to monthly maintenance of Rs.2,000/- per month from the defendant husband from the date of the filing of the suit. The High Court also confirmed the same.

29. Upholding the judgment of the High Court, the Hon'ble Supreme Court pointed out that Section 25 of the Contract Act provides that any agreement which is opposed to public policy is not enforceable in a Court of Law and such an agreement is void, since the object is unlawful. The Court held that 'Proceeding under Section 125, Cr.P.C. is summary in nature and intended to provide a speedy remedy to the wife and any order passed under Section 125, Cr.P.C. by compromise or otherwise cannot foreclose the remedy available to a wife under Section 18(2) of the 1956 Act' and observed:

"Section 125, Cr.P.C. is a piece of social legislation which provides for a summary and speedy relief by way of maintenance to a wife who is unable to maintain herself and her children. Section 125 is not intended to provide for a full and final determination of the status and personal rights of parties, which is in the nature of a civil proceeding, though are governed by the provisions of the Cr.P.C. and the order made under Section 125, Cr.P.C. is tentative and is subject to final determination of the rights in a civil court."

30. In Jaswant Singh Vs. Custodian of Evacuee Property reported in (2004) 3 SCC 277, the Apex Court has laid down a test for determining whether a subsequent suit is barred by res judicata:

"14....In order that a defence of res judicata may succeed it is necessary to show that not only the cause of action was the same but also that the plaintiff had an opportunity of getting the relief which he is now seeking in the former proceedings. The test is whether the claim in the subsequent suit or proceedings is in fact founded upon the same cause of action which was the foundation of the former suit or proceedings."

31. In both the cases of Nagendrappa Natikar and Jaswant Singh (Supra), the Apex Court has clarified that if the earlier suit is not decided on merits, meaning thereby that the same is decided on the basis of compromise without entering into the merits of the case and without affording opportunity of hearing to the claimant/applicant, the second suit/case for the same relief will be maintainable.

32. Similarly dealing with the same issue, the Apex Court in its latest judgment in the case of Prem Kishore & Others Vs. Brahm Prakash & Others reported in 2023 SCC OnLine SC 356, in paragraph nos. 37 and 38 has held as follows:

"37. On a perusal of the above authorities, the guiding principles for deciding an application under Order 7 Rule 11(d) of the CPC can be summarized as follows:-

(i) To reject a plaint on the ground that the suit is barred by any law, only the averments in the plaint will have to be referred to;

(ii) The defence made by the defendant in the suit must not be considered while deciding the merits of the application;

(iii) To determine whether a suit is barred by res judicata, it is necessary that (i) the 'previous suit' is decided, (ii) the issues in the subsequent suit were directly and substantially in issue in the former suit; (iii) the former suit was between the same parties or parties through whom they claim, litigating under the same title; and (iv) that these issues were adjudicated and finally decided by a court competent to try the subsequent suit; and

(iv) Since an adjudication of the plea of res judicata requires consideration of the pleadings, issues and decision in the 'previous suit', such a plea will be beyond the scope of Order 7 Rule 11 (d), where only the statements in the plaint will have to be perused.

(See: Srihari Hanumandas Totala v. Hemant Vithal Kamat. (2021) 9 SCC 99)

38. The general principle of res judicata under Section 11 of the CPC contain rules of conclusiveness of judgment, but for res judicata to apply, the matter directly and substantially in issue in the subsequent suit must be the same matter which was directly and substantially in issue in the former suit. Further, the suit should have been decided on merits and the decision should have attained finality. Where the former suit is dismissed by the trial court for want of jurisdiction, or for default of the plaintiff's appearance, or on the ground of non-joinder or mis-joinder of parties or multifariousness, or on the ground that the suit was badly framed, or on the ground of a technical mistake, or for failure on the part of the plaintiff to produce probate or letter of administration or succession certificate when the same is required by law to entitle the plaintiff to a decree, or for failure to furnish security for costs, or on the ground of improper valuation, or for failure to pay additional court fee on a plaint which was undervalued, or for want of cause of action, or on the ground that it is premature and the dismissal is confirmed in appeal (if any), the decision, not being on the merits, would not be res judicata in a subsequent suit."

33. From the deeper scrutiny of the aforesaid principle of res judicata and the commentary given by Sir Dinshah Fardunji Mulla (18th Edition-2011) on Code of Civil Procedure, this Court is of view that the principle of res judicata would apply only when a matter will be said to have been "heard and finally decided" notwithstanding that the earlier matter/case/suit was disposed off in any of the following ways:

"(i) ex parte; or

(ii) by dismissal under Order XVII, Rule 3, but not when the dismissal is under Order XVI, Rule 1 for failure to pay adjournment cost; or

(iii) by a decree on an award; or

(iv) by oath tendered under Section 8 of the Indian Oaths Act, 1873; or

(v) by dismissal owing to plaintiff's failure to adduce evidence at the hearing."

34. The principle of res judicata will have no application when the earlier matter/case/suit has not been heard and finally decided and the same has been dismissed:

- "(i) for want of jurisdiction; or
 - (ii) for default of plaintiff's appearance under Order IX, Rule 8. (But, a fresh suit on the same cause of action may be barred under Order IX, Rule 9); or
 - (iii) on the ground of non-joinder of parties, or misjoinder of parties, or multifariousness; or on the ground that the suit was badly for default of plaintiff's appearance under Order IX, Rule 8. (But, a fresh suit on the same cause of action may be barred under Order IX, Rule 9); framed," or on the ground of a technical mistake; or
 - (iv) for failure on the part of the plaintiff to produce probate or letters of administration or succession certificate when the same is required by law to entitle the plaintiff to a decree; or
 - (v) for failure to furnish security for costs under Order XXV, Rule 2; or
 - (vi) on the ground of improper valuation, or for failure to pay additional court-fee on a plaint which was undervalued; or
 - (vii) for want of a cause of action; or
 - (viii) for want of notice; or
 - (ix) on the ground that it is premature;
 - (x) as not pressed;
 - (xi) as having become infructuous;
 - (xii) as having been settled, or ended by virtue of compromise."
- "Emphasis supplied"

35. Section 11 of the Code of Civil Procedure itself provides that an issue heard and finally decided by a Court of limited jurisdiction, competent to decide such issue, shall operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit.

Conclusion

36. In view of the aforesaid, it is apparent that the principle of res judicata will only be applicable in second case/application in which the matter directly and substantially in issue has been directly and substantially in issue in the former applications {under Sections 125 and 126 (2) Cr.P.C.} between the same parties i.e. Shabana Bano and Ali Raza under which the applicant claimed maintenance allowance, in a Court competent to try such subsequent application/case in which such claim has been subsequently raised, and has been heard and finally decided by such Court, but if earlier case has not been decided finally or without merits or affording opportunity of hearing to the applicant, second case/application for the same relief i.e. maintenance allowance will be maintainable and the principle of res judicata will not apply.

37. It is an admitted position that the earlier two cases filed by the applicant under Sections 125 Cr.P.C. and 126 (2) Cr.P.C. being Criminal Misc. Application No. 21 of 2014 and Criminal Misc. Application No.138 of 2017 respectively have been rejected for want of prosecution and the same have not been finally decided after affording opportunity of hearing to the applicant. As such, this Court is of the firm opinion that even though fresh application filed by the applicant under Section 125 Cr.P.C. being Criminal Misc. Application No. 387 of 2019 filed for the same relief/cause of action but the same is maintainable as the principle of res judicata will not apply therein. Both the issues are answered accordingly.

38. Consequently, the judgement and order dated 20th May, 2022 passed by the Principal Judge, Family Court, Sonbhadra, in Criminal Case No. 387 of 2019 (Shabana Bano Vs. Aliraza), under Section 125 Cr.P.C., Police Station-Dudhi, District-Sonbhadra cannot be legally sustained and hereby set aside. Criminal Misc. Application No. 387 of 2019 (Shabana Bano Vs. Ali Raza) is restored to its original number. The Principal Judge, Family Court, Sonbhadra is directed to consider and decide the same afresh on merits, in accordance with law, by means of a reasoned and speaking order, after affording opportunity of hearing to the parties concerned, preferably within a period of six months from the date of production of a certified copy of this order, without granting any unnecessary adjournment to either of the parties, if possible on day to day basis.

39. The present application succeeds and is allowed subject to the observations made herein-above. There shall be no order as to costs.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Dr. C.P. Upadhyay, learned counsel for the applicant, Mr. Pradeep Kumar Mishra, Advocate holding brief of Mr. Harbansh Prasad Pandey, learned counsel for the informant and Mr. Amit Singh Chauhan, learned AGA for the State.

2. The present 482 Cr.P.C. application has been filed to quash the order dated 30.01.2023 passed by Additional District and Sessions Judge/Special Judge, POCSO Act, Allahabad in Special Sessions Trial No.2/2023 arising out of Case Crime No.173 of 2022, under Sections 323, 363, 328, 376Gha(Ka), 377, 504, 506 IPC and Section 5/6 POCSO Act, Police Station - Shankargarh, District - Prayagraj.

3. The brief facts as enumerated in the writ petition are as follows:-

i) an FIR was lodged on 26.06.2022 at about 19:23 hrs. by Akbar Ali under Sections 366, 504 IPC, which was registered as Case Crime No.0173 of 2022 against three persons, namely, Nazim, Hashim and Khurshid with the allegations that the informant's minor daughter, 15 years old, was enticed away by Nazim son of Samsuddin, resident of Nari Bari, Mobile No.9198997737 on 21.06.2022. Since the aforesaid date, Nazim was not available at his residence and his mobile number was also switched off. When the informant went to Nazim's house, his brother; Hashim and brother-in-law; Khurshid, used abusive words and also spoke ill about the informant's daughter. After making efforts for tracing her daughter, an application was given on which the present FIR has been lodged.

ii) during investigation, the statement of the victim u/s 161 Cr.P.C. was recorded on 25.08.2022, which finds place at C.D. Parcha No.6 (after more than two months of the FIR), wherein she herself has stated that her father's name is Akbar Ali and she is resident of Surval Chandel, Nari Bari, P.S.Shankargarh, Prayagraj. She is aged about 19 years old and for fighting with her brother and sister, she was scolded by her mother and being annoyed, she left her house on 22.06.2022 at about 01:00 o'clock and went to Ajmer Sharif. Thereafter, she talked to her sister on telephone and got to know that FIR has been lodged by her father, hence she returned back, by herself, to Prayagraj.

iii) Subsequently, the victim Nazia was medically examined on 27.08.2022 and during course of medical examination, she has stated before the doctor that the co-accused Nazim came to her house on 22.06.2022, when she was sleeping, she was made to smell some intoxicating substance due to which she fainted and after regaining her conscious, she found herself at Allahabad where a person named Asif was also present. She also stated that both the persons, i.e. Nazim and Asif, who have forcefully committed rape upon her for two days, later on, she was taken to Jammu where she was kept for two months and forcefully, physical relationship was established with her by them. The victim was dropped to Allahabad on 25.08.2022 by Nazim and three unknown persons and she was left near police station.

iv) Thereafter, the statement of the victim under Section 164 Cr.P.C. was recorded on 30.08.2022, which finds place in CD Parcha No.7, wherein she has stated that she is 15 years old. While she was sleeping at her house on 22.06.2022 in the night at about 02:00 a.m., Asif Siddiqui, resident of Nari Bari and Khurshid came there and made her smell some intoxicating substances due to which she became unconscious and after regaining conscious, she found herself at Allahabad where she was locked in a room and the aforesaid persons forcefully established physical relationship with her. Thereafter, Asif and Nazim fully aware and conscious did wrongful act with her. They, also beat and forcibly establish natural and unnatural physical relationship with the victim. She was kept for two days at Allahabad, thereafter, Nazim threatening the victim, took her to Jammu, where he committed rape upon her for two months relentlessly. She was also threatened by Nazim for her life and her father's life in case of denying to fulfill his wish. As she fell ill due to repeated forceful sexual assault, the accused-Nazim left her at Allahabad, whereafter she was taken by Niyaz

v) Subsequently, the statement of mother of victim, Gudiya (wife of the informant) recorded on 06.09.2022, which finds place in CD Parcha No.IX, wherein she has stated that her 15 years old daughter was enticed away by Asif Siddiqui son of Kamal, resident of Nai Bazar, Karma, P.S.-Ghoorpur, District-Prayagraj and Khurshid son of Abdul Razzak, resident of Badokhar, P.S.-Koraon, District-Prayagraj on 22.06.2022 at about 02:00 in the night. The victim was made to smell some intoxicating substance due to which she became unconscious and, thereafter, she was taken to Naribari market, where she was offered tea in which some intoxicating substance was mixed, after consuming which, she became unconscious. She was then taken to Allahabad where she was locked in a room and forceful physical relationship was established by Asif Siddique and Nazim, son of Samsuddin, resident of Nari Bari, P.S. Sankargarh, Prayagraj. They beat her and forcibly established natural and unnatural physical relationship with the victim. She was kept for two days in Allahabad and, thereafter, she was taken by Nazim to Jammu, where Nazim did wrongful act with her for two months, after threatening to kill her and her father, in case she does not permit him to do the wrongful act. After repeatedly being sexually exploited by Nazim, when she became ill, she was dropped by Nazim to Allahabad, from where Khurshid took her to Police Station-Sankargarh and left there. It has also been stated that all the aforesaid facts about the incident was narrated by the victim to her mother.

vi) After investigation, first charge sheet has been submitted as Charge Sheet No.188 of 2022 by the police against Khurshid only, whereas investigation continued for the other accused persons. Thereafter, the co-accused Nazim was arrested by the Police. In the meantime, the informant has approached before this Court by means of filing a criminal writ petition No.19896 of 2022 for fair and partial investigation wherein the co-ordinate bench of this court vide order dated 20.12.2022 was pleased to direct the respondents therein for expeditiously fair and partial investigation.

vii) Thereafter, the Investigating Officer requested for CDR of the aforesaid accused persons including the applicant as is evident from S.C.D. Parcha No.VI dated 16.12.2022.

viii) An application was moved by the applicant before the Investigating Officer mentioning therein that the contradictions in the statement of the victim under Section 164 Cr.P.C., the mother of the victim and all the facts about the CDR as detailed in parcha no.VI dated 16.12.2022. On the aforesaid application of the applicant, second statement of the mother of the victim was recorded on 17.12.2022, which finds place in S.C.D. Parcha no.VII, wherein the specific question was raised by the Investigating Officer regarding statement of the victim under Section 164 Cr.P.C., in which the victim has stated about Asif Siddiqui, Nari Bari, whereas the victim's mother in her statement stated that Asif Siddique son of Kamal, resident of Nari Bazar, Karma, Police Station-Ghoorpur, Prayagraj. The question, as to how the victim's mother recognized Asif and on what basis, she has stated the address as Karma, in place of Nari Bari, she has stated that she does not know Asif and she has narrated everything as has been told by her husband about Asif. She has also specifically stated that Asif is not related to her, she has given the address of Asif as told by her husband. Her husband's nephew Mohd. Akhtar resides at Nai Bazar, Karma.

ix) Subsequently, the Second charge sheet being charge sheet no.188A of 2022 dated 27.12.2022 has been submitted against Nazim and Hasim. Hence all the three accused named in the FIR has been chargesheeted. The applicant was not charge sheeted in the present case as there was no evidence against him for his involvement in the aforesaid offence.

x) After submission of the aforesaid charge sheet against all the accused named in the FIR, an application was moved by the informant before the Additional District and Sessions Judge, Prayagraj under Section 190(1)(B) CrPC for summoning the accused-applicant stating therein that on the basis of statement of the victim under Section 164 CrPC, the involvement of the applicant is clear and prima facie case is established against the applicant. The concerned Magistrate without applying his judicial mind and solely relying upon the statement of the victim under Section 164 Cr.P.C. has summoned the applicant passing a non-speaking and unreasoned order dated 30.01.2023. Hence the present case has been filed.

4. Learned counsel for the applicant has challenged the summoning order as well as the entire proceedings on the following grounds:-

i) the impugned summoning order dated 30.01.2023 has been passed without application of judicial mind, solely relying upon the statement of the victim under Section 164 Cr.P.C.

ii) from the material collected by the Investigating Officer, no prima facie case is made out against the applicant.

iii) the court concerned proceeded to summon the applicant, without appreciating the contradictions with respect to date of incident, identity of the applicant while giving his address at Nari Bari as well as change in her version, while narrating the incident.

iv) the applicant is not named in the FIR, his name does not find place in the statement of the victim under Section 161 Cr.P.C. and it is for the first time, while giving her statement before the doctor, that too as Asif, without disclosing his parentage and address his involvement in the incident has been narrated.

v) the name of the applicant is disclosed in the victim's statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. as Asif Siddiqui of Nari Bari, thus from the aforesaid, the involvement of the applicant, who is resident of Nai Bazar, Chak Ghan Shyamdas, Post-Karma, Police Station-Ghoorpur, cannot be proved.

vi) in order to falsely implicate the applicant and meet out the deficiency, first statement of the victim's mother was recorded on 06.09.2022, wherein for the first time, proper name, parentage and address of the applicant has been disclosed as told by the victim to her mother, whereas in her second statement, she stated that she does not know the applicant nor is he related to her and she has further stated that she has disclosed about the applicant as told by Akbar Ali (her husband).

vii) the involvement of the applicant is also not established in the C.D.R. details as collected by the Investigating Officer.

viii) the charge-sheet has been submitted against the persons, who are named in the FIR and the applicant has been exonerated, there being no evidence against him but on the informant's application u/s 190 (1)(b) CrPC, the applicant has been summoned, which is against settled position of law.

5. Learned counsel for the applicant further submits that while entertaining the final report as submitted against the accused persons, wherein the applicant was exonerated, there are two remedies provided to the informant, either to move protest petition for further investigating or move an application u/s 319 Cr.P.C. for summoning of the applicant after the examination of the prosecution witnesses. The concerned Magistrate has entertained the informant's application u/s 190(1)(b) Cr.P.C. and summoned the applicant without considering the aforesaid fact.

6. Learned counsel for the applicant further submits that the concerned Magistrate has summoned the applicant, without entering into genesis of the fact, evaluating the evidence, and has only relied upon the statement of the victim under section 164 Cr.P.C.

7. Learned counsel for the applicant further submits that in case, statement of the victim u/s 164 Cr.P.C. is believed in totality then the name of the accused-applicant Asif of Nari Bari, P.S.Sankargarh, Prayagraj would come into picture in place of applicant, who is resident of Nai Bazar, Karma, P.S.Ghoorpur, Prayagraj, therefore, the applicant's involvement in the aforesaid case cannot be proved.

8. He further submits that seeing the variations at different places, there is nothing on record to prove that the applicant is the person whose involvement is found in the incident and that too solely relying upon the statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. Placing relying upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Nahar Singh vs. State of U.P. reported in (2022) 5 SCC 295, he submits that Magistrate is not empowered to take cognizance on an offence on the basis of police report in terms of section 190(1)(b) Cr.P.C. and issue summons to the persons, who are not arraigned as accused in the charge sheet and only on the basis of material as collected by the investigating officer.

9. Learned counsel for the applicant, therefore, submitted that the present criminal proceedings initiated against the applicant are not only malicious but also an abuse of the process of the court of law. On the cumulative strength of the aforesaid submissions, it is submitted by learned counsel for the applicant that the proceedings of the above mentioned criminal case are liable to be quashed by this Court.

10. Per contra, learned AGA for the State as well as learned counsel for the informant submits that the contention regarding the fact that there are variations with respect to name of the applicant, who is not named in the FIR as well as regarding his address and parentage and there is no evidence in this regard to prove that the applicant is the person, who has committed the offence, it is submitted that the victim is very clear with respect to the fact that she has been sexually exploited by the applicant Asif Siddiqui about whom she has stated in her statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. as well as the statement before the doctor, hence minor contradictions cannot go to prove that the applicant is innocent. They further submits that at the stage of taking cognizance by the Magistrate as per the provisions contained in Section 190(1)(b) CrPC, the concerned Magistrate has to see as to whether prima facie case is being made out against the applicant. In the instant case, the concerned Magistrate has rightly allowed the application of the informant after considering the statement of the victim u/s 164 Cr.P.C. as well as the evidences collected by the Investigating Officer including the statements of the witnesses. They further submits that all other contentions raised by the applicants' counsel relate to disputed questions of fact.

11. Lastly, the learned A.G.A. as well as learned counsel for the informant states that the High Court may not quash the entire criminal proceedings under Section 482 Cr.P.C. at the pre-trial stage, for which he has relied upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Mohd. Allauddin Khan Vs. The State of Bihar & Others reported in 2019 0 Supreme (SC) 454, wherein the Apex Court has held that the High Court had no jurisdiction to appreciate the evidence of the proceedings under Section 482 Cr.P.C. because whether there are contradictions or/and inconsistencies in the statements of the witnesses is an essential issue relating to appreciation of evidence and the same can be gone into by the Judicial Magistrate during trial when the entire evidence is adduced by the parties. However, in the present case the said stage is yet to come. They have further relied upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Rajeev Kaurav Vs. Balasahab & Others reported in 2020 0 Supreme (SC) 143, wherein the Apex Court has held that it is no more res integra that exercise of power under Section 482 CrPC to quash a criminal proceeding is only when an allegation made in the FIR or the charge sheet constitutes the ingredients of the offence/offences alleged. Interference by the High Court under Section 482 CrPC is to prevent the abuse of process of any law or Court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice. It is settled law that the evidence produced by the accused in his defence cannot be looked into by the Court, except in very exceptional circumstances, at the initial stage of the criminal proceedings. It is trite law that the High Court cannot embark upon the appreciation of evidence while considering the petition filed under Section 482 CrPC for quashing criminal proceedings. It is clear from the law laid down by this Court that if a prima facie case is made out disclosing the ingredients of the offence alleged against the accused, the Court cannot quash a criminal proceeding.

12. On the cumulative strength of the aforesaid submissions, learned A.G.A. as well as the learned counsel for the informant states that this Court may not exercise its inherent power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. in the present case, and hence the present application is liable to be rejected.

13. I have considered the submissions made by the learned counsel for the parties and gone through the records of the present application.

14. Before proceedings further, it is apposite to give reference of Section 190 Cr.P.C., which is as under:-

"190. Cognizance of offences by Magistrates.--

(1) Subject to the provisions of this Chapter, any Magistrate of the first class, and any Magistrate of the second class specially empowered in this behalf under sub-section (2), may take cognizance of any offence--

(a) upon receiving a complaint of facts which constitute such offence;

(b) upon a police report of such facts;

(c) upon information received from any person other than a police officer, or upon his own knowledge, that such offence has been committed.

(2) The Chief Judicial Magistrate may empower any Magistrate of the second class to take cognizance under sub-section (1) of such offences as are within his competence to inquire into or try."

15. After the close scrutiny of the aforesaid Section, the Court finds that section 190(1)(b) CrPC does not lay down that a Magistrate can take cognizance of an offence only if the investigating officer gives an opinion that the investigation has made out a case against the accused. The Magistrate can ignore the conclusion arrived at by the investigating officer and independently apply his mind to the facts emerging from the investigation and take cognizance of the case, if he thinks fit, exercise his powers under Section 190(1)(b) and direct the issue of process to the accused.

16. This Court finds substance in the contention raised by the learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 as well as learned A.G.A. that prima facie case for the alleged offence is made out against the applicant. In the statement of the victim u/s 164 Cr.P.C. as well as the statement before the doctor, there is specific allegation against the applicant regarding sexually assaulting the victim.

17. As regards the first contention raised by the learned counsel for the applicant regarding the contradictions in the name of applicant, his address and parentage, the Court observed that the victim with whom such an incident has happened, is in a sense of shock and not in a state of mind to tell the details of incident in a proper manner. There are minor contradictions, which cannot be seen here. The applicant shall have ample opportunity to prove his innocence during trial as such the allegation made against him cannot be sifted at this stage. At the time of taking cognizance, the Magistrate has only to see whether prima facie there are cogent reasons for issuing the process.

18. With respect to the second submission that the Magistrate cannot summon the other accused at the time of taking cognizance, even though the material exists has no force and the same has been reiterated by the Apex Court in the case of Nahar Singh (supra) upon which learned counsel for the applicant has relied, where while discussing the divergent views of different Benches of this Court, it has been held that the question of summoning the persons, who are not arrayed as an accused in the charge-sheet or police report, cannot be determining factor for summoning such persons and does not constrict exercise of such power of the Court taking cognizance in respect of persons such categories.

19. It is not disputed by the learned counsel appearing for the parties that the Magistrate is empowered to take cognizance under Section 190(1) CrPC in either of the three contingencies namely:-

- (a) upon receiving a complaint of facts which constitute such offence;
- (b) upon a police report of such facts;

(c) upon information received from any person other than a police officer, or upon his own knowledge, that such offence has been committed.

20. The cognizance of the offence can be taken on the basis of the police reports as envisaged in Clause (b) of Section 190(1) CrPC irrespective of the opinion of the Investigating Officer that prima facie no case is made out, if the material collected and the statements of the witnesses recorded under Section 161 CrPC, in the opinion of the Magistrate, are sufficient to make out a prima facie case against the accused persons.

21. Thus the position is very clear and well settled that upon receipt of a police report under Section 173(2) a Magistrate is entitled to take cognizance of an offence under Section 190(1)(b) of the Code even if the police report is to the effect that no case is made out against the accused. The Magistrate can take into account the statements of the witnesses examined by the police during the investigation and take cognizance of the offence complained of and order the issuance of process to the accused. Section 190(1)(b) does not lay down that a Magistrate can take cognizance of an offence only if the investigating officer gives an opinion that the investigation has made out a case against the accused. The Magistrate can ignore the conclusion arrived at by the investigating officer and independently apply his mind to the facts emerging from the investigation and take cognizance of the case, if he thinks fit in exercise of his powers under Section 190(1)(b) and direct the issue of process to the accused. The Magistrate is not bound in such a situation to follow the procedure laid down in Sections 200 and 202 of the Code for taking cognizance of a case under Section 190(1)(a), though, it is open to him to act under Section 200 or Section 202 also.

22. The legal position is quite clear. Once a final report is submitted against some body and simultaneously a charge sheet is submitted against the others, if the Magistrate takes cognizance on the basis of the charge sheet and accepts the final report, a protest petition will lie and if such protest petition has all the ingredients mentioned in Section 2(d) of the Code of the Criminal Procedure, it can be treated as a complaint and proceedings of complaint case may go on involving Sections 200 and 202 CrPC. The Magistrate can then pass an order according to law. In other cases, where the charge-sheet has been submitted against few accused and others have been exonerated, the Magistrate is not bound by the conclusion of the Investigating Officer and he, after applying his judicial, mind can proceed to issue process on the de facto complainant's application.

23. This Court comes on the issue whether it is appropriate for this Court being the Highest Court to exercise its jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. to quash the charge-sheet and the proceedings at the stage when the Magistrate has merely issued process against the applicant and trial is to yet to come only on the submission made by the learned counsel for the applicant that present criminal case initiated by opposite party no.2 are not only malicious but also abuse of process of law. It is no more res integra that exercise of power under Section 482 CrPC to quash a criminal proceeding is only when an allegation made in the FIR or the charge sheet constitutes the ingredients of the offence(s) alleged. Interference by the High Court under Section 482 CrPC is to prevent the abuse of process of any law or Court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice. It is settled law that the evidence produced by the accused in his defence cannot be looked into by the Court, except in very exceptional circumstances, at the initial stage of the criminal proceedings. It is clear from the law laid down by the Apex Court that if a prima facie case is made out disclosing the ingredients of the offence alleged against the accused, the Court cannot quash a criminal proceeding.

24. In the case of State of Haryana Vs. Bhajan Lal reported in 1992 AIR 604, the Apex Court in paragraph 102 has enumerated 7 categories of the cases where power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. can be exercised by this Court, which are quoted below:-

"102. In the backdrop of the interpretation of the various relevant provisions of the Code under Chapter XIV and of the principles of law enunciated by this Court in a series of decisions relating to the exercise of the extraordinary power under Article 226 or the inherent powers under Section 482 of the Code which we have extracted and reproduced above, we give the following categories of cases by way of illustration wherein such power could be exercised either to prevent abuse of the process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice, though it may not be possible to lay down any precise, clearly defined and sufficiently channelised and inflexible guidelines or rigid formulae and to give an exhaustive list of myriad kinds of cases wherein such power should be exercised.

(1) Where the allegations made in the first information report or the complaint, even if they are taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety do not prima facie constitute any offence or make out a case against the accused.

(2) Where the allegations in the first information report and other materials, if any, accompanying the FIR do not disclose a cognizable offence, justifying an investigation by police officers under Section 156 (1) of the Code except under an order of a Magistrate within the purview of Section 155 (2) of the Code.

(3) Where the uncontroverted allegations made in the FIR or complaint and the evidence collected in support of the same do not disclose the commission of any offence and make out a case against the accused.

(4) Where, the allegations in the FIR do not constitute a cognizable offence but constitute only a non-cognizable offence, no investigation is permitted by a police officer without an order of a Magistrate as contemplated under Section 155 (2) of the Code.

(5) Where the allegations made in the FIR or complaint are so absurd and inherently improbable on the basis of which no prudent person can ever reach a just conclusion that there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused.

(6) Where there is an express legal bar engrafted in any of the provisions of the Code or the concerned Act (under which a criminal proceeding is instituted) to the institution and continuance of the proceedings and/or where there is a specific provision in the Code or the concerned Act, providing efficacious redress for the grievance of the aggrieved party.

(7) Where a criminal proceeding is manifestly attended with mala fide and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge."

25. The principles laid down by the Apex Court in the aforesaid case, have consistently been followed in the recent judgement of three-Judge Bench of the Apex Court in the case of Neeharika Infrastructure (P) Ltd. vs. State of Maharashtra reported in (2021) SCC OnLine 315 wherein it has been held that there is no denial of the fact that power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is very wide, but as observed by this Court in catena of decisions, referred to hereinabove, conferment of wide power requires the court to be more cautious and it casts an onerous and more diligent duty on the court. Therefore, in exceptional cases, when the High Court deems it fit, regard being had to the parameters of quashing and the self-restraint imposed by law, may pass appropriate interim orders, as thought apposite in law, however, the High Court has to give brief reasons which will reflect the application of mind by the court to the relevant facts.

26. It is trite law that the power of quashing criminal proceedings should be exercised with circumspection and that too, in the rarest of rare cases and it was not justified for this Court in embarking upon an enquiry as to the reliability or genuineness or otherwise of the allegations made in the Final report or the complaint. A finding on the veracity of a material relied on by the prosecution in a case where the allegations levelled by the prosecution disclose a cognizable offence, is not a consideration for the High Court while exercising its power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. This view is fortified by the decision of the Apex Court in Mahendra

K.C. v. State of Karnataka and Ors. Reported in AIR 2021 SC 5711.

27. In recent relevant judgement of the Apex Court in the case of Shafiya Khan @ Shakuntala Prajapati vs. State of U.P., reported in (2022) 4 SCC 549, it was observed as under;-

"16. It is no doubt true that the power of quashing of criminal proceedings should be exercised very sparingly and with circumspection and that too in rarest of the rare cases and it was not justified for the Court in embarking upon an enquiry as to the reliability or genuineness or otherwise of the allegations made in the FIR or the complaint and that the inherent powers do not confer any arbitrary jurisdiction on the Court to act according to its whims and fancies."

28. The Apex Court in the case of Parbatbhai Ahir Vs. State of Gujarat reported in (2017) 9 SCC 641, referring to various caases has summarized following principles to govern powers of High Court under Section 482 Cr.P.C.:-

"15 The broad principles which emerge from the precedents on the subject, may be summarised in the following propositions :

(i) Section 482 preserves the inherent powers of the High Court to prevent an abuse of the process of any court or to secure the ends of justice. The provision does not confer new powers. It only recognises and preserves powers which inhere in the High Court;

(ii) The invocation of the jurisdiction of the High Court to quash a First Information Report or a criminal proceeding on the ground that a settlement has been arrived at between the offender and the victim is not the same as the invocation of jurisdiction for the purpose of compounding an offence. While compounding an offence, the power of the court is governed by the provisions of Section 320 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973. The power to quash under Section 482 is attracted even if the offence is non-compoundable.

(iii) In forming an opinion whether a criminal proceeding or complaint should be quashed in exercise of its jurisdiction under Section 482, the High Court must evaluate whether the ends of justice would justify the exercise of the inherent power;

(iv) While the inherent power of the High Court has a wide ambit and plenitude it has to be exercised; (i) to secure the ends of justice or (ii) to prevent an abuse of the process of any court;

(v) The decision as to whether a complaint or First Information Report should be quashed on the ground that the offender and victim have settled the dispute, revolves ultimately on the facts and circumstances of each case and no exhaustive elaboration of principles can be formulated;

(vi) In the exercise of the power under Section 482 and while dealing with a plea that the dispute has been settled, the High Court must have due regard to the nature and gravity of the offence. Heinous and serious offences involving mental depravity or offences such as murder, rape and dacoity cannot appropriately be quashed though the victim or the family of the victim have settled the dispute. Such offences are, truly speaking, not private in nature but have a serious impact upon society. The decision to continue with the trial in such cases is founded on the overriding element of public interest in punishing persons for serious offences;

(vii) As distinguished from serious offences, there may be criminal cases which have an overwhelming or predominant element of a civil dispute. They stand on a distinct footing in so far as the exercise of the inherent power to quash is concerned;

(viii) Criminal cases involving offences which arise from commercial, financial, mercantile, partnership or similar transactions with an essentially civil flavour may in appropriate situations fall for quashing where parties have settled the dispute;

(ix) In such a case, the High Court may quash the criminal proceeding if in view of the compromise between the disputants, the possibility of a conviction is remote and the continuation of a criminal proceeding would cause oppression and prejudice; and

(x) There is yet an exception to the principle set out in propositions (viii) and (ix) above. Economic offences involving the financial and economic well-being of the state have implications which lie beyond the domain of a mere dispute between private disputants. The High Court would be justified in declining to quash where the offender is involved in an activity akin to a financial or economic fraud or misdemeanour. The consequences of the act complained of upon the financial or economic system will weigh in the balance."

29. In another judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Ramveer Upadhyay and Another Vs. State of UP and another reported in 2022 SCC online SC 484, it has been held as under:-

39. In our considered opinion criminal proceedings cannot be nipped in the bud by exercise of jurisdiction under Section 482 of the Cr.P.C. only because the complaint has been lodged by a political rival. It is possible that a false complaint may have been lodged at the behest of a political opponent. However, such possibility would not justify interference under Section 482 of the Cr.P.C. to quash the criminal proceedings. As observed above, the possibility of retaliation on the part of the petitioners by the acts alleged, after closure of the earlier criminal case cannot be ruled out. The allegations in the complaint constitute offence under the Atrocities Act. Whether the allegations are true or untrue, would have to be decided in the trial. In exercise of power under Section 482 of the Cr.P.C., the Court does not examine the correctness of the allegations in a complaint except in exceptionally rare cases where it is patently clear that the allegations are frivolous or do not disclose any offence. The Complaint Case No.19/2018 is not such a case which should be quashed at the inception itself without further Trial. The High Court rightly dismissed the application under Section 482 of the Cr.P.C."

30. In view of the aforesaid, this Court finds that the submissions made by the learned counsel for the applicant call for adjudication on pure disputed questions of fact which may adequately be adjudicated upon only by the trial court and while doing so even the submissions made on points of law can also be more appropriately gone into by the trial court in this case. This Court does not deem it proper, and therefore cannot be persuaded to have a pre-trial before the actual trial begins. The prayer for quashing the entire proceedings is refused as I do not see any abuse of the Court's process either.

31. In the present case, the name of the accused-applicant has come into light from the statement of the victim recorded under Section 164 Cr.P.C. While summoning the applicant, on the basis of the statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C., the Magistrate acted on the basis of an independent application filed by the de facto complainant and found that there was sufficient material before him showing complicity of the applicant in the aforesaid case although his name did not find place in the charge-sheet. Thus, for summoning persons upon taking cognizance of an offence, the Magistrate has to examine the materials available before him for coming to the conclusion that apart from those sent up by the police, some other persons are involved in the offence. These materials need not remain confined to the police report, charge sheet or the F.I.R. The statement made under Section 164 of the Code could also be considered for such purpose as has been held by the Apex Court in the case of Nahar Singh vs. The State of U.P. and Another reported in (2022) 5 SCC 295.

32. This Court, however, may clarify that whatever is said in this judgment is purely tentative and limited to the purpose of judging the worth of the prayer to quash proceedings as well as impugned orders. It is and ought not be regarded by the Trial Court as any kind of a comment or evaluation about evidence, which is yet to surface during trial. The truth of the prosecution case has to be established beyond doubt at the trial in accordance with law. However, this Court is of opinion that this is not a case, where the prosecution ought to be scuttled at the threshold in the exercise of powers under Section 482 of the Code.

33. With the aforesaid observations, the present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is, accordingly, dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Sadhna Rani
(Thakur), J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the applicants, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 and perused the record.

2. By moving this application under Section 482 Cr.P.C., the prayer is made to quash summoning order dated 25.11.2016 passed by the Upper Nyayalaya Pratham, Ghaziabad in C.C. No.70/2016 under Section 138 Negotiable Instruments Act and also to set aside order dated 22.02.2018 passed by the Additional Session Judge, Court No.15, Ghaziabad in Criminal Revision No.19 of 2017.

3. As per facts of the case, a complaint was filed by opposite party no.2 on 13.10.2016 against the applicants and six other persons with the version that opposite party no.2 was a limited Company registered under Companies Act and Vijay Kumar son of late Sri Satpal was authorized to filed complaint on behalf of the Company. The opposite party no.2 was indulged in the business of purchasing, selling and the construction of properties. Opposite party no.1 (in the complaint) M/S C.S.K. Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd. was a registered Company. Opposite parties no.2 to 6 were its Directors and officers and opposite parties no.7 to 9 were the Company's authorized representatives. Opposite party nos.2 to 9 were responsible for all the day to day business and transactions of opposite party no.1, M/S C.S.K. Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd.

4. The opposite parties (in the complaint) had assured the complainant/opposite party no.2 herein that they would make available a land to the complainant/opposite party no.2 at a reasonable price. Having faith in the opposite parties the complainant/ opposite party no.2 on 16.08.2014 paid Rs. 5,00,00,000/- to the opposite parties, which were received by the opposite parties. When as per their assurance the opposite parties could not arrange the land for the complainant/opposite party no.2 and the complainant gave them a threat of lodging FIR, then opposite parties promised to pay Rs. 7,00,00,000/- in pursuance of the principal amount of Rs. 5,00,00,000/- with interest. Opposite parties issued a cheque of Rs.1,00,00,000/- in favour of the complainant/ opposite party no.2. This Cheque No.000285 valued Rs.1,00,00,000/- dated 30.07.2016 got dishonoured despite of the assurance of opposite parties that it would get encashed. The information of which was received by the complainant/opposite party no.2 on 29.08.2016 and after due procedure, a complaint under Section 420 I.P.C. was filed by the complainant/opposite party no.2 against the nine accused persons including the Company itself.

5. After the statements under Sections 200 Cr.P.C. and 202 Cr.P.C., the trial court vide order dated 25.11.2016 summoned all the nine accused persons to face trial under Section 138 of Negotiable Instruments Act 1881. Against this order dated 25.11.2016, three of the opposite parties/ present applicants named Prashant Tyagi, Smt. Neeta Tyagi and Smt. Shweta Tyagi, filed a revision before the Sessions Court, which was rejected vide order dated 22.02.2018.

6. Feeling aggrieved by the summoning order dated 25.11.2016 and revisional court's order dated 22.02.2018, the present application has been moved by the applicants Prashant Tyagi, Smt. Neeta Tyagi and Smt. Shweta Tyagi only with the version that the applicant no.1, who was earlier the Director of M/S C.S.K. Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd. had resigned from his post on 26.09.2014, much prior to the issuance of the cheque no.000285 dated 30.07.2016 to the opposite party no.2. He has filed a certified copy of the form DIR-12 (earlier known as Form 32) to this effect. He had neither signed the cheque nor the amount was received in his bank account, thus, applicant no.1 is the ex-director in the accused Company. Applicant nos.2 and 3 are the mother and sister of the applicant no.1. They had no relation with the functioning of the accused company in any manner. They could not be the in-charge and responsible for the conduct and the business of the Company. Without any specific averment that what role they have played in the functioning and the business of the accused Company they can not be implicated for the offence under Section 138 N.I. Act. The summoning order has been passed without considering section 141 of N.I. Act, hence, the prayer is made accordingly.

7. Counter affidavit has been filed on behalf of the opposite party no.2, wherein it has been mentioned that all the applicants alongwith co-accused persons are the shareholders of the Company and belong to the one and the same family. The present applicant Prashant Tyagi is the son of Ram Sevak Tyagi, applicant no.2 Smt. Neeta Tyagi is the wife of Ram Sevak Tyagi and applicant no.3 Smt. Shweta Tyagi, is the wife of Gaurav/ daughter of Ram Sevak Tyagi and Ram Sevak, is the person who is the authorized representative of the accused company and had issued the cheque in favour of the complainant/ opposite party no.2 on 30.07.2016. When an annual general meeting was called on 30.08.2013 the shares of all the shareholders in the disputed Company were as under:-

8. Ram Sewak Tyagi was having 20000 shares, Prashant Tyagi applicant no.1 was having 25000, Smt. Neeta Tyagi was having 20000 and Smt. Shweta Tyagi was having 10000 and Ram Kishan is said to have 5000 shares, thus, all the applicants here are the shareholders of the accused Company.

9. All the applicants are the blood relatives of Ram Sevak Tyagi and Ram Kishan, is the brother-in-law of Ram Sevak, who is the master mind of the aforesaid fraud. Ram Sevak was handling the financial as well as accounts affairs of the Company alongwith other Directors and the shareholders of the Company and was acting as authorized signatory of the Company on behalf of the Directors, authorized representatives as well as other shareholders of the Company. All the applicants are the over all incharge of the day to day business of the Company. A revision of the applicants was also rejected by the trial court. Applicant no.1 is a Joint Director of the Company and still a Director of the Company and for a very short time he was not there on the Board of Directors. All the applicants looking after the day to day business/ functions of the Company and being the authorized representatives of the Company are liable for the offence, hence, cognizance has been rightly taken by the court.

10. The applicants filed a rejoinder affidavit wherein the version of the counter affidavit was denied and the version of the complaint was reiterated.

11. Learned counsel for the applicants has argued that the trial court has not gone through the Section 141 of N.I. Act, which deals with the offences by the companies. Without going through this section the impugned order cannot be said to be a complete and affective order.

12. It is further submitted that the applicant no.1 had resigned on 26.09.2014, while impugned cheque is said to have been issued on 30.07.2016. Regarding his resignation Form DIR-12 has been filed, which is a public document. Applicant nos.2 and 3 are the mere shareholders in the Company and are the ladies. Their participation cannot be said to be active in the Company and in the complaint there is bald averment that the accused nos.2 to 6 being the Directors and shareholders of the Company are responsible for the day to day business of the accused Company. Accused No.7 to 9 including applicant no.2 and 3 are the authorized representatives of the Company and thus all the accused persons including all the three applicants are responsible for all the transactions and overall business of the Company. But no particulars or the specific role of the persons, which must be explained in the complaint, has been explained. Admittedly the cheque was not issued by any of the applicants. The applicant no.2, the mother of the applicant no.1 is a senior citizen. Hence, the prayer is made accordingly.

13. While, learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 opposed the version of the learned counsel for the applicants and submitted that the applicants are the shareholders in the Company and family members of Ram Sevak, who is said to have issued the impugned cheque and being the wife, son and daughter of the person issuing cheque all the applicants must have knowledge of the works done by Ram Sevak Tyagi, accused no.7 in the complaint. As the whole fraud/ cheating has been done with the consent and connivance of the applicants, so with the help of section 141 of the N.I. Act all the applicants would be liable for the acts done by the Company. The defence of the applicants cannot be adjudicated at this stage of summoning. Liability of the applicants can only be decided after the evidence, because as per sub-section 2 of Section 141 of the Act if the offence is found to be proved committed with the consent or connivance of the applicants they shall also be liable for the same and punished accordingly. Thus for proving the offence of the applicants evidence of the parties is to be adduced and at this nascent stage the liability of the applicants cannot be fixed.

14. Placing reliance over the judgment of this Court in Smt. B Devi (Basanti Devi) Versus State of U.P., 2016 (94) ACC 90, it is argued by the learned counsel for opposite party no.2 that at the stage of summoning, defence of the accused which they may adduce subsequently cannot be seen since there was no occasion to look into such probable defence, which may come when the accused would appear and place their case before the magistrate. At the stage of issuing summons Court has to see whether a prima facie commission of offence has been shown and appropriate material has come justifying summoning of the accused persons against whom complaint has been made. The role assigned to the applicants in clear and specific words is referred in paragraph 4 of the complaint, that all the accused persons are responsible for the day to day business and functioning of the Company.

15. On the basis of this judgment, it is further argued that all the officers of the Company are responsible for the acts done in the name of Company and are sought to be made personally liable for the acts which resulted in criminal action being taken against the Company. Thus, it is claimed that all the applicants are liable to face trial under the aforesaid sections.

16. Learned counsel for the applicants drew the attention of the Court towards the judgment in Sunita Palita & Others Versus M/S Panchami Stone Qaurry, Criminal Appeal No. of 2022 [Arising out of SLP (Crl.) No.10396 of 2019], decided on 01.08.2022 and the judgment in S.M.S. Pharmaceuticals Ltd. v. Neeta Bhalla, (2005) 8 SCC 89, mentioned therein wherein para-10 the Apex Court held that-

"every person connected with the company shall not fall within the ambit of the provision. It is only those persons who were in charge of and responsible for conduct of business of the company at the time of commission of an offence, who will be liable for criminal action. It follows from this that if a director of a Company who was not in charge of and was not responsible for the conduct of the business of the company at the relevant time, will not be liable under the provision. The liability arises from being in charge of and responsible for the conduct of business of the company at the relevant time when the offence was committed and not on the basis of merely holding a designation or office in a company. Conversely, a person not holding any office or designation in a Company may be liable if he satisfies the main requirement of being in charge of and responsible for conduct of business of a Company at the relevant time. Liability depends on the role one plays in the affairs of a Company and not on designation or status."

17. The attention of the Court is further drawn towards judgment in Harshendra Kumar D. Versus Rebatilata Koley & Others, (2011) 3 Supreme Court Cases 351 wherein it was held by the Apex Court that as dishonour of the cheques through the complainant banker was subsequent to his resignation so the applicant no.1 could not be said to have any concern with the Company at that time.

18. It is further argued by the learned counsel for the applicants that mere bald averment in the complaint that the "applicants are looking after the day to day business of the Company, hence, they are liable for the offence committed" is not enough to prove the offence. This averment is devoid of any particulars.

19. In judgment Pooja Ravinder Devidasani Versus State of Maharashtra

& Anr., (2014) 16 SCC 1, the Apex Court held that to fasten vicarious liability under Section 141 of the Act on a person, at the material time that person shall have been at the helm of affairs of the Company, one who actively looks after the day-to-day activities of the Company and particularly responsible for the conduct of its business. Simply because a person is a Director of a Company.....Every person connected with the Company will not fall into the ambit of the provision.

20. Thus, it is argued that the applicant no.1 was not a Director of the Company on the date when the cheque was issued and regarding his resignation Form DIR-12 has been placed on record. Applicant nos.2 and 3 are admittedly mere shareholders in the Company. They cannot be said to actively participate in the working of the Company.

21. So far as the argument of the learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 that a defence of the applicants shall be seen at the time of arguments is concerned in this regard, the Apex Court opined in judgment Harshendra Kumar D. Versus Rebatilata Koley & Others (supra) that if on the face of the documents which are beyond suspicion or doubt - placed by the accused, the accusations against him cannot stand, it would be travesty of justice if accused is relegated to trial and he is asked to prove his defence before the trial court. In such a matter, for promotion of justice or to prevent injustice or abuse of process, the Court may look into the materials which have significant bearing on the matter at prima facie stage.

are different from the facts of the present case, wherein as per facts of that case the cheques were issued in the presence of the petitioner and other Directors, while in the present case cheques were never issued in the presence of the complainant rather till then applicant no.1 had resigned from the Company. While as per facts of the case of Smt. B Devi (Basanti Devi) Versus State of U.P. (supra) the resignation and the documents with regard to the resignation were alleged to be the forged documents, but in the case in hand resignation of applicant no.1 has not been challenged, hence, the counsel for the opposite party no.2 cannot take benefit of the judgment of this Court, in the presence of various Apex Court judgments placed above by the counsel for the applicants.

23. Thus on the basis of the discussion and the judgments placed above, it is found that applicant no.1 had resigned from the Company much prior to the issuance of the cheque in question. Admittedly, the cheque did not bear the signatures of any of the applicants. On the date of issuance of the cheque the applicants were mere the shareholders of the Company. There was no active participation of the applicants in the day to day business and transactions of the Company and in the complaint itself, it is not mentioned that as to how and in what manner the applicants were in-charge or were responsible to the accused Company for the conduct of its business. Thus, in the opinion of the Court, as on the face of the record, participation of the applicants is not found in the day to day functioning of the Company, hence, on the basis of the version that the defence would be seen at the time of evidence, it would be travesty of justice to drag the persons to face the prosecution who are no way connected with the issuance of the cheque or its being dishonour thereof.

24. On the basis of above discussion, the summoning of the applicants to face trial under Section 138 of Negotiable Instruments Act is found to be against the mandate of law laid down by the Apex Court in above mentioned judgments.

25. The summoning order dated 25.11.2016 passed by the Upper Nyayalaya Pratham, Ghaziabad and the judgment dated 22.02.2018 passed by the Additional Session Judge, Court No.15, Ghaziabad in criminal revision are quashed.

26. The application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is, hereby, allowed.

They could not be the in-charge and responsible for the conduct and the business of the Company. Without any specific averment that what role they have played in the functioning and the business of the accused Company they can not be implicated for the offence under Section 138 N.I. Act. The summoning order has been passed without considering section 141 of N.I. Act, hence, the prayer is made accordingly.

7. Counter affidavit has been filed on behalf of the opposite party no.2, wherein it has been mentioned that all the applicants alongwith co-accused persons are the shareholders of the Company and belong to the one and the same family. The present applicant Prashant Tyagi is the son of Ram Sevak Tyagi, applicant no.2 Smt. Neeta Tyagi is the wife of Ram Sevak Tyagi and applicant no.3 Smt. Shweta Tyagi, is the wife of Gaurav/ daughter of Ram Sevak Tyagi and Ram Sevak, is the person who is the authorized representative of the accused company and had issued the cheque in favour of the complainant/ opposite party no.2 on 15.07.2016. When an annual general meeting was called on 30.08.2013 the shares of all the shareholders in the disputed Company were as under:-

no.1 was having 25000, Smt. Neeta Tyagi was having 20000 and Smt. Shweta Tyagi was having 10000 and Ram Kishan is said to have 5000 shares, thus, all the applicants here are the shareholders of the accused Company.

9. All the applicants are the blood relatives of Ram Sevak Tyagi and Ram Kishan, is the brother-in-law of Ram Sevak, who is the master mind of the aforesaid fraud. Ram Sevak was handling the financial as well as accounts affairs of the Company alongwith other Directors and the shareholders of the Company and was acting as authorized signatory of the Company on behalf of the Directors, authorized representatives as well as other shareholders of the Company. All the applicants are the over all incharge of the day to day business of the Company. A revision of the applicants was also rejected by the trial court. Applicant no.1 is a Joint Director of the Company and still a Director of the Company and for a very short time he was not there on the Board of Directors. All the applicants looking after the day to day business/ functions of the Company and being the authorized representatives of the Company are liable for the offence, hence, cognizance has been rightly taken by the court.

10. The applicants filed a rejoinder affidavit wherein the version of the counter affidavit was denied and the version of the complaint was reiterated.

11. Learned counsel for the applicants has argued that the trial court has not gone through the Section 141 of N.I. Act, which deals with the offences by the companies. Without going through this section the impugned order cannot be said to be a complete and affective order.

12. It is further submitted that the applicant no.1 had resigned on 26.09.2014, while impugned cheque is said to have been issued on 15.07.2016. Regarding his resignation Form DIR-12 has been filed, which is a public document. Applicant nos.2 and 3 are the mere shareholders in the Company and are the ladies. Their participation cannot be said to be active in the Company and in the complaint there is bald averment that the accused nos.2 to 6 being the Directors and shareholders of the Company are responsible for the day to day business of the accused Company. Accused No.7 to 9 including applicant no.2 and 3 are the authorized representatives of the Company and thus all the accused persons including all the three applicants are responsible for all the transactions and overall business of the Company. But no particulars or the specific role of the persons, which must be explained in the complaint, has been explained. Admittedly the cheque was not issued by any of the applicants. The applicant no.2, the mother of the applicant no.1 is a senior citizen. Hence, the prayer is made accordingly.

13. While, learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 opposed the version of the learned counsel for the applicants and submitted that the applicants are the shareholders in the Company and family members of Ram Sevak, who is said to have issued the impugned cheque and being the wife, son and daughter of the person issuing cheque all the applicants must have knowledge of the works done by Ram Sevak Tyagi, accused no.7 in the complaint. As the whole fraud/ cheating has been done with the consent and connivance of the applicants, so with the help of section 141 of the N.I. Act all the applicants would be liable for the acts done by the Company. The defence of the applicants cannot be adjudicated at this stage of summoning. Liability of the applicants can only be decided after the evidence, because as per sub-section 2 of Section 141 of the Act if the offence is found to be proved committed with the consent or connivance of the applicants they shall also be liable for the same and punished accordingly. Thus for proving the offence of the applicants evidence of the parties is to be adduced and at this nascent stage the liability of the applicants cannot be fixed.

14. Placing reliance over the judgment of this Court in Smt. B Devi (Basanti Devi) Versus State of U.P., 2016 (94) ACC 90, it is argued by the learned counsel for opposite party no.2 that at the stage of summoning, defence of the accused which they may adduce subsequently cannot be seen since there was no occasion to look into such probable defence, which may come when the accused would appear and place their case before the magistrate. At the stage of issuing summons Court has to see whether a prima facie commission of offence has been shown and appropriate material has come justifying summoning of the accused persons against whom complaint has been made. The role assigned to the applicants in clear and specific words is referred in paragraph 4 of the complaint, that all the accused persons are responsible for the day to day business and functioning of the Company.

15. On the basis of this judgment, it is further argued that all the officers of the Company are responsible for the acts done in the name of Company and are sought to be made personally liable for the acts which resulted in criminal action being taken against the Company. Thus, it is claimed that all the applicants are liable to face trial under the aforesaid sections.

16. Learned counsel for the applicants drew the attention of the Court towards the judgment in Sunita Palita & Others Versus M/S Panchami Stone Qaurry, Criminal Appeal No. of 2022 [Arising out of SLP (Crl.) No.10396 of 2019], decided on 01.08.2022 and the judgment in S.M.S. Pharmaceuticals Ltd. v. Neeta Bhalla, (2005) 8 SCC 89, mentioned therein wherein para-10 the Apex Court held that-

"every person connected with the company shall not fall within the ambit of the provision. It is only those persons who were in charge of and responsible for conduct of business of the company at the time of commission of an offence, who will be liable for criminal action. It follows from this that if a director of a Company who was not in charge of and was not responsible for the conduct of the business of the company at the relevant time, will not be liable under the provision. The liability arises from being in charge of and responsible for the conduct of business of the company at the relevant time when the offence was committed and not on the basis of merely holding a designation or office in a company. Conversely, a person not holding any office or designation in a Company may be liable if he satisfies the main requirement of being in charge of and responsible for conduct of business of a Company at the relevant time. Liability depends on the role one plays in the affairs of a Company and not on designation or status."

17. The attention of the Court is further drawn towards judgment in Harshendra Kumar D. Versus Rebatilata Koley & Others, (2011) 3 Supreme Court Cases 351 wherein it was held by the Apex Court that as dishonour of the cheques through the complainant banker was subsequent to his resignation so the applicant no.1 could not be said to have any concern with the Company at that time.

18. It is further argued by the learned counsel for the applicants that mere bald averment in the complaint that the "applicants are looking after the day to day business of the Company, hence, they are liable for the offence committed" is not enough to prove the offence. This averment is devoid of any particulars.

19. In judgment Pooja Ravinder Devidasani Versus State of Maharashtra & Anr., (2014) 16 SCC 1, the Apex Court held that to fasten vicarious liability under Section 141 of the Act on a person, at the material time that person shall have been at the helm of affairs of the Company, one who actively looks after the day-to-day activities of the Company and particularly responsible for the conduct of its business. Simply because a person is a Director of a Company.....Every person connected with the Company will not fall into the ambit of the provision.

20. Thus, it is argued that the applicant no.1 was not a Director of the Company on the date when the cheque was issued and regarding his resignation Form DIR-12 has been placed on record. Applicant nos.2 and 3 are admittedly mere shareholders in the Company. They cannot be said to actively participate in the working of the Company.

21. So far as the argument of the learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 that a defence of the applicants shall be seen at the time of arguments is concerned in this regard, the Apex Court opined in judgment Harshendra Kumar D. Versus Rebatilata Koley & Others (supra) that if on the face of the documents which are beyond suspicion or doubt - placed by the accused, the accusations against him cannot stand, it would be travesty of justice if accused is relegated to trial and he is asked to prove his defence before the trial court. In such a matter, for promotion of justice or to prevent injustice or abuse of process, the Court may look into the materials which have significant bearing on the matter at prima facie stage.

22. If we go through the judgment in Smt. B Devi (Basanti Devi) Versus State of U.P. (supra) placed by the learned counsel for opposite party no.2, the facts of that case are different from the facts of the present case, wherein as per facts of that case the cheques were issued in the presence of the petitioner and other Directors, while in the present case cheques were never issued in the presence of the complainant rather till then applicant no.1 had resigned from the Company. While as per facts of the case of Smt. B Devi (Basanti Devi) Versus State of U.P. (supra) the resignation and the documents with regard to the resignation were alleged to be the forged documents, but in the case in hand resignation of applicant no.1 has not been challenged, hence, the counsel for the opposite party no.2 cannot take benefit of the judgment of this Court, in the presence of various Apex Court judgments placed above by the counsel for the applicants.

23. Thus on the basis of the discussion and the judgments placed above, it is found that applicant no.1 had resigned from the Company much prior to the issuance of the cheque in question. Admittedly, the cheque did not bear the signatures of any of the applicants. On the date of issuance of the cheque the applicants were mere the shareholders of the Company. There was no active participation of the applicants in the day to day business and transactions of the Company and in the complaint itself, it is not mentioned that as to how and in what manner the applicants were in-charge or were responsible to the accused Company for the conduct of its business. Thus, in the opinion of the Court, as on the face of the record, participation of the applicants is not found in the day to day functioning of the Company, hence, on the basis of the version that the defence would be seen at the time of evidence, it would be travesty of justice to drag the persons to face the prosecution who are no way connected with the issuance of the cheque or its being dishonour thereof.

24. On the basis of above discussion, the summoning of the applicants to face trial under Section 138 of Negotiable Instruments Act is found to be against the mandate of law laid down by the Apex Court in above mentioned judgments.

25. The summoning order dated 25.11.2016 passed by the Upper Nyayalaya Pratham, Ghaziabad and the judgment dated 22.02.2018 passed by the Additional Session Judge, Court No.15, Ghaziabad in criminal revision are quashed.

26. The application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is, hereby, allowed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Sadhna Rani

1. Heard learned counsel for the applicants, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 and perused the record.

2. By moving this application under Section 482 Cr.P.C., the prayer is made to quash summoning order dated 25.11.2016 passed by the Upper Nyayalaya Pratham, Ghaziabad in C.C. No.69/2016 under Section 138 Negotiable Instruments Act and also to set aside order dated 22.02.2018 passed by the Additional Session Judge, Court No.15, Ghaziabad in Criminal Revision No.17 of 2017.

3. As per facts of the case, a complaint was filed by opposite party no.2 on 13.10.2016 against the applicants and six other persons with the version that opposite party no.2 was a limited Company registered under Companies Act and Vijay Kumar son of late Sri Satpal was authorized to filed complaint on behalf of the Company. The opposite party no.2 was indulged in the business of purchasing, selling and the construction of properties. Opposite party no.1 (in the complaint) M/S C.S.K. Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd. was a registered Company. Opposite parties no.2 to 6 were its Directors and officers and opposite parties no.7 to 9 were the Company's authorized representatives. Opposite party nos.2 to 9 were responsible for all the day to day business and

4. The opposite parties (in the complaint) had assured the complainant/opposite party no.2 herein that they would make available a land to the complainant/opposite party no.2 at a reasonable price. Having faith in the opposite parties the complainant/ opposite party no.2 on 16.08.2014 paid Rs. 5,00,00,000/- to the opposite parties, which were received by the opposite parties. When as per their assurance the opposite parties could not arrange the land for the complainant/opposite party no.2 and the complainant gave them a threat of lodging FIR, then opposite parties promised to pay Rs. 7,00,00,000/- in pursuance of the principal amount of Rs. 5,00,00,000/- with interest. Opposite parties issued a cheque of Rs.1,00,00,000/- in favour of the complainant/ opposite party no.2. This Cheque No.000282 valued Rs.1,00,00,000/- dated 15.06.2016 got dishonoured despite of the assurance of opposite parties that it would get encashed. The information of which was received by the complainant/opposite party no.2 on 29.08.2016 and after due procedure, a complaint under Section 420 I.P.C. was filed by the complainant/opposite party no.2 against the nine accused persons including the Company itself.

5. After the statements under Sections 200 Cr.P.C. and 202 Cr.P.C., the trial court vide order dated 25.11.2016 summoned all the nine accused persons to face trial under Section 138 of Negotiable Instruments Act 1881. Against this order dated 25.11.2016, three of the opposite parties/ present applicants named Prashant Tyagi, Smt. Neeta Tyagi and Smt. Shweta Tyagi, filed a revision

6. Feeling aggrieved by the summoning order dated 25.11.2016 and revisional court's order dated 22.02.2018, the present application has been moved by the applicants Prashant Tyagi, Smt. Neeta Tyagi and Smt. Shweta Tyagi only with the version that the applicant no.1, who was earlier the Director of M/S C.S.K. Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd. had resigned from his post on 26.09.2014, much prior to the issuance of the cheque no.000282 dated 15.06.2016 to the opposite party no.2. He has filed a certified copy of the form DIR-12 (earlier known as Form 32) to this effect. He had neither signed the cheque nor the amount was received in his bank account, thus, applicant no.1 is the ex-director in the accused Company. Applicant nos.2 and 3 are the mother and sister of the applicant no.1. They had no relation with the functioning of the accused company in any manner. They could not be the in-charge and responsible for the conduct and the business of the Company. Without any specific averment that what role they have played in the functioning and the business of the accused Company they can not be implicated for the offence under Section 138 N.I. Act. The summoning order has been passed without considering section 141 of N.I. Act, hence, the prayer is made accordingly.

7. Counter affidavit has been filed on behalf of the opposite party no.2, wherein it has been mentioned that all the applicants alongwith co-accused persons are the shareholders of the Company and belong to the one and the same family. The present applicant Prashant Tyagi is the son of Ram

Sevak Tyagi, applicant no.2 Smt. Neeta Tyagi is the wife of Ram Sevak Tyagi and applicant no.3 Smt. Shweta Tyagi, is the wife of Gaurav/ daughter of Ram Sevak Tyagi and Ram Sevak, is the person who is the authorized representative of the accused company and had issued the cheque in favour of the complainant/ opposite party no.2 on 15.06.2016. When an annual general meeting was called on 30.08.2013 the shares of all the shareholders in the disputed Company were as under:-

8. Ram Sewak Tyagi was having 20000 shares, Prashant Tyagi applicant no.1 was having 25000, Smt. Neeta Tyagi was having 20000 and Smt. Shweta Tyagi was having 10000 and Ram Kishan is said to have 5000 shares, thus, all the applicants here are the shareholders of the accused Company.

9. All the applicants are the blood relatives of Ram Sevak Tyagi and Ram Kishan, is the brother-in-law of Ram Sevak, who is the master mind of the aforesaid fraud. Ram Sevak was handling the financial as well as accounts affairs of the Company alongwith other Directors and the shareholders of the Company and was acting as authorized signatory of the Company on behalf of the Directors, authorized representatives as well as other shareholders of the Company. All the applicants are the over all incharge of the day to day business of the Company. A revision of the applicants was also rejected by the trial court. Applicant no.1 is a Joint Director of the Company and still a Director of the Company and for a very short time he was not there on the Board of Directors. All the applicants looking after the day to day business/ functions of the Company and being the authorized representatives of the Company are liable for the offence, hence, cognizance has been rightly taken by the court.

10. The applicants filed a rejoinder affidavit wherein the version of the counter affidavit was denied and the version of the complaint was reiterated.

11. Learned counsel for the applicants has argued that the trial court has not gone through the Section 141 of N.I. Act, which deals with the offences by the companies. Without going through this section the impugned order cannot be said to be a complete and affective order.

12. It is further submitted that the applicant no.1 had resigned on 26.09.2014, while impugned cheque is said to have been issued on 15.06.2016. Regarding his resignation Form DIR-12 has been filed, which is a public document. Applicant nos.2 and 3 are the mere shareholders in the Company and are the ladies. Their participation cannot be said to be active in the Company and in the complaint there is bald averment that the accused nos.2 to 6 being the Directors and shareholders of the Company are responsible for the day to day business of the accused Company. Accused No.7 to 9 including applicant no.2 and 3 are the authorized representatives of the Company and thus all the accused persons including all the three applicants are responsible for all the transactions and overall business of the Company. But no particulars or the specific role of the persons, which must be explained in the complaint, has been explained. Admittedly the cheque was not issued by any of the applicants. The applicant no.2, the mother of the applicant no.1 is a senior citizen. Hence, the prayer is made accordingly.

13. While, learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 opposed the version of the learned counsel for the applicants and submitted that the applicants are the shareholders in the Company and family members of Ram Sevak, who is said to have issued the impugned cheque and being the wife, son and daughter of the person issuing cheque all the applicants must have knowledge of the works done by Ram Sevak Tyagi, accused no.7 in the complaint. As the whole fraud/ cheating has been done with the consent and connivance of the applicants, so with the help of section 141 of the N.I. Act all the applicants would be liable for the acts done by the Company. The defence of the applicants cannot be adjudicated at this stage of summoning. Liability of the applicants can only be decided after the evidence, because as per sub-section 2 of Section 141 of the Act if the offence is found to be proved committed with the consent or connivance of the applicants they shall also be liable for the same and punished accordingly. Thus for proving the offence of the applicants evidence of the parties is to be adduced and at this nascent stage the liability of the applicants cannot be fixed.

14. Placing reliance over the judgment of this Court in Smt. B Devi (Basanti Devi) Versus State of U.P., 2016 (94) ACC 90, it is argued by the learned counsel for opposite party no.2 that at the stage of summoning, defence of the accused which they may adduce subsequently cannot be seen since there was no occasion to look into such probable defence, which may come when the accused would appear and place their case before the magistrate. At the stage of issuing summons Court has to see whether a prima facie commission of offence has been shown and appropriate material has come justifying summoning of the accused persons against whom complaint has been made. The role assigned to the applicants in clear and specific words is referred in paragraph 4 of the complaint, that all the accused persons are responsible for the day to day business and functioning of the Company.

15. On the basis of this judgment, it is further argued that all the officers of the Company are responsible for the acts done in the name of Company and are sought to be made personally liable for the acts which resulted in criminal action being taken against the Company. Thus, it is claimed that all the applicants are liable to face trial under the aforesaid sections.

16. Learned counsel for the applicants drew the attention of the Court towards the judgment in Sunita Palita & Others Versus M/S Panchami Stone Qaurry, Criminal Appeal No. of 2022 [Arising out of SLP (Crl.) No.10396 of 2019], decided on 01.08.2022 and the judgment in S.M.S. Pharmaceuticals Ltd. v. Neeta Bhalla, (2005) 8 SCC 89, mentioned therein wherein para-10 the Apex Court held that-

"every person connected with the company shall not fall within the ambit of the provision. It is only those persons who were in charge of and responsible for conduct of business of the company at the time of commission of an offence, who will be liable for criminal action. It follows from this that if a director of a Company who was not in charge of and was not responsible for the conduct of the business of the company at the relevant time, will not be liable under the provision. The liability arises from being in charge of and responsible for the conduct of business of the company at the relevant time when the offence was committed and not on the basis of merely holding a designation or office in a company. Conversely, a person not holding any office or designation in a Company may be liable if he satisfies the main requirement of being in charge of and responsible for conduct of business of a Company at the relevant time. Liability depends on the role one plays in the affairs of a Company and not on designation or status."

17. The attention of the Court is further drawn towards judgment in Harshendra Kumar D. Versus Rebatilata Koley & Others, (2011) 3 Supreme Court Cases 351 wherein it was held by the Apex Court that as dishonour of the cheques through the complainant banker was subsequent to his resignation so the applicant no.1 could not be said to have any concern with the Company at that time.

18. It is further argued by the learned counsel for the applicants that mere bald averment in the complaint that the "applicants are looking after the day to day business of the Company, hence, they are liable for the offence committed" is not enough to prove the offence. This averment is devoid of any particulars.

19. In judgment Pooja Ravinder Devidasani Versus State of Maharashtra & Anr., (2014) 16 SCC 1, the Apex Court held that to fasten vicarious liability under Section 141 of the Act on a person, at the material time that person shall have been at the helm of affairs of the Company, one who actively looks after the day-to-day activities of the Company and particularly responsible for the conduct of its business. Simply because a person is a Director of a Company.....Every person connected with the Company will not fall into the ambit of the provision.

20. Thus, it is argued that the applicant no.1 was not a Director of the Company on the date when the cheque was issued and regarding his resignation Form DIR-12 has been placed on record. Applicant nos.2 and 3 are admittedly mere shareholders in the Company. They cannot be said to actively participate in the working of the Company.

21. So far as the argument of the learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 that a defence of the applicants shall be seen at the time of arguments is concerned in this regard, the Apex Court opined in judgment Harshendra Kumar D. Versus Rebatilata Koley & Others (supra) that if on the face of the documents which are beyond suspicion or doubt - placed by the accused, the accusations against him cannot stand, it would be travesty of justice if accused is relegated to trial and he is asked to prove his defence before the trial court. In such a matter, for promotion of justice or to prevent injustice or abuse of process, the Court may look into the materials which have significant bearing on the matter at prima facie stage.

22. If we go through the judgment in Smt. B Devi (Basanti Devi) Versus State of U.P. (supra) placed by the learned counsel for opposite party no.2, the facts of that case are different from the facts of the present case, wherein as per facts of that case the cheques were issued in the presence of the petitioner and other Directors, while in the present case cheques were never issued in the presence of the complainant rather till then applicant no.1 had resigned from the Company. While as per facts of the case of Smt. B Devi (Basanti Devi) Versus State of U.P. (supra) the resignation and the documents with regard to the resignation were alleged to be the forged documents, but in the case in hand resignation of applicant no.1 has not been challenged, hence, the counsel for the opposite party no.2 cannot take benefit of the judgment of this Court, in the presence of various Apex Court judgments placed above by the counsel for the applicants.

23. Thus on the basis of the discussion and the judgments placed above, it is found that applicant no.1 had resigned from the Company much prior to the issuance of the cheque in question. Admittedly, the cheque did not bear the signatures of any of the applicants. On the date of issuance of the cheque the applicants were mere the shareholders of the Company. There was no active participation of the applicants in the day to day business and transactions of the Company and in the complaint itself, it is not mentioned that as to how and in what manner the applicants were in-charge or were responsible to the accused Company for the conduct of its business. Thus, in the opinion of the Court, as on the face of the record, participation of the applicants is not found in the day to day functioning of the Company, hence, on the basis of the version that the defence would be seen at the time of evidence, it would be travesty of justice to drag the persons to face the prosecution who are no way connected with the issuance of the cheque or its being dishonour thereof.

24. On the basis of above discussion, the summoning of the applicants to face trial under Section 138 of Negotiable Instruments Act is found to be against the mandate of law laid down by the Apex Court in above mentioned judgments.

25. The summoning order dated 25.11.2016 passed by the Upper Nyayalaya Pratham, Ghaziabad and the judgment dated 22.02.2018 passed by the Additional Session Judge, Court No.15, Ghaziabad in criminal revision are quashed.

26. The application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is, hereby, allowed.

Counsel for the Opposite Parties:

Syed Aftab Ahmad, Mohammad Ehtesham Khan, SAA Rizvi

Civil Law – Civil Procedure Code, 1908 - Order 43 - Rule 1, (5(1), - Waqf Act, 1995 - Sections 83 & 83(9): - Civil Revision - Challenging the order - in a Waqf case - whereby tribunal rejected the Application filed by plaintiff-revisionist for grant of temporary injunction - preliminary objection - regarding maintainability of Revision u/s 83(9) of Act, 1995 by relying on various judgments - because of, impugned order is interlocutory in nature as no appeal or revision is maintainable - Court observed that, considering the aspects and importance of a provision to an enactment, it is thus evident that the judgment rendered earlier in the cases of Hafiz Abdullah & ors. and Shakil Ahmad (relied upon by the opposite party) have not considered the aspect of proviso in section 83(9) of the Act, cannot be said to be a binding precedent on that aspect - since, it is evident that, an application granting or rejecting temporary injunction would have the trapping of finality with regard to question determined by Tribunal - held, a Revision under section 83(9) of the Act, would therefore be maintainable before this Court - order on its merit accordingly - Revision is allowed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manish Mathur, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Mohd. Mansoor, learned counsel for revisionist, Mr. A. A. Rizvi, learned counsel for opposite parties no.1,2, 3 and 4 and Mr. Mohd. M.E. Khan, learned counsel for opposite party no.5.

2. Civil revision has been filed against order dated 12.12.2022 passed in Waqf Case No.113 of 2020 whereby application for grant of temporary injunction has been rejected.

3. Learned counsel for revisionist submits that although prayer has been made for quashing of order dated 31.07.2019 and 26.02.2020 passed by the U.P. Shia Central Board of Waqf, Lucknow but since the aforesaid orders are already under challenge before Waqf Tribunal, he is not pressing his relief with regard to the aforesaid orders and the revision as such

4. At the very outset, learned counsel for opposite parties have raised preliminary objection regarding maintainability of revision under section 83 (9) of the Waqf Act, 1995 to submit that the order impugned being interlocutory in nature, no appeal or revision is maintainable there against.

5. For the purposes of determination of maintainability of revision, the provisions of Section 83 (9) of the Waqf Act 1995 are required to be considered and are as follows:-

"Section 83(9) in The Waqf Act, 1995:-

(9) No appeal shall lie against any decision or order whether interim or otherwise, given or made by the Tribunal:

Provided that a High Court may, on its own motion or on the application of the Board or any person aggrieved, call for and examine the records relating to any dispute, question or other matter which has been determined by the Tribunal for the purpose of satisfying itself as to the correctness, legality or propriety of such determination and may confirm, reverse or modify such determination or pass such other order as it may think fit."

6. With regard to aforesaid, learned counsel for parties have placed reliance on various judgments rendered by Coordinate Benches of this Court which at first glance appear to be contradictory.

7. In the case of U.P. Sunni Central Board of Waqf versus Shakil Ahmad & Ors. reported in 2004 (2) AWC 1768 (LB), it has been held that a revision under section 83 (9) of the Act of 1995 would be maintainable only in case a dispute, question or other matter has been determined by the Tribunal. In the said case, revision was held not to be maintainable but subsequently in the case of Mauli Moinuddin and Ors. versus Maqbool Hasan and Ors reported in 2008 SCC Online All 193 and Shahen Shah & Ors versus Civil Judge (S.D.) Sant Kabir Nagar and Ors. reported in 2012 SCC Online All 2281 revision against grant or rejection of temporary injunction have been held to be maintainable.

8. It is a relevant fact that while considering the aspect of maintainability of revision in the judgments of Mauli Moinuddin and Ors. versus Maqbool Hasan and Ors and Shahen Shah & Ors versus Civil Judge (S.D.) Sant Kabir Nagar and Ors., the earlier judgment rendered by this Court in the case of Shakil Ahmad (supra) has not been considered.

9. It is also noticed that in another judgment rendered in the case of Hafiz Abdullah & Anr. versus Akbar Ali & Ors. reported in 2002 (5) AWC 3829 also, revision was held not to be maintainable against an interlocutory order.

10. Upon consideration of the aforesaid judgments on the point, it transpires that in the case of Hafiz Abdullah & Ors (supra) revision had been filed against an order allowing interim injunction pending decision on the application for temporary injunction, which according to learned judge was only interlocutory in nature and therefore revision was held not to be maintainable.

11. In the case of Shakil Ahmad (supra) learned judge has adverted to the fact that order impugned in the revision pertained to grant of temporary injunction which was extended from time to time. Thereafter provisions of Section 83(9) of the Waqf Act have been quoted alongwith proviso but subsequently it has been held as follows:-

"7. For the maintainability of the revision under Section 83(9), there must be an impugned order, by which any dispute, question or other matter has been determined by the Tribunal. I find that by the impugned order, the dispute between the Mutawalli and the Waqf Board has not been determined."

12. In the entire body of judgment, it appears that emphasis has been laid only on the primary provision under Section 83(9) of the Waqf Act, 1995 without adverting to the proviso contained therein and therefore it has been held that for maintainability of a revision there must be an impugned order whereby any disputed question or other matter has been determined.

13. It is thus quite evident that the order passed in Shakil Ahmad (supra) despite noticing the proviso, adverts only to the primary clause of Section 83 (9) of the Act.

14. The aforesaid aspect however has been considered in detail in judgments rendered by Coordinate Benches of this Court in the case of Mauli Moinuddin and Ors. versus Maqbool Hasan and ors. reported in 2008 SCC Online All 193 in the following manner:

"6. The other point is that revision against interim order is not maintainable. In this regard, an authority of this Court reported in 1991 AWC 620U.P. Sunni Central Board of Waqf v. Abdul Rashid and Ors. has been cited. However, in the said case, revision was directed against an order through which an earlier order had been recalled by the tribunal. Similarly, in the other authority reported in 2002 AWC 1430 Hafeez Abdulla v Akbar Ali also temporary injunction had not finally been decided by the tribunal. Last sentence of Para-6 of the said authority is quoted below:

The order is totally interlocutory and the question whether the operation of the order should be stayed or not is still to be decided by the trial court.

7. Under Section 83(9) of the Waqf Act, 1995, revision is directed against determination by the tribunal of any dispute, question or other matter. In my opinion, final disposal of temporary injunction application is such determination, which is amenable to revisional jurisdiction of the High Court under the aforesaid section."

15. In the case of Shahen Shah and others versus Civil Judge (S.D.) Sant Kabir Nagar & Ors. coordinate bench of this Court has considered the provision of Revision under section 76 of the Act of 1960 as compared to the ambit of Section 83 of the Act of 1995 and has thereafter concluded that the scope of Section 83(9) of the Act of 1995 is much wider than the provision of Revision under the Act of 1960.

16. Learned counsel for opposite parties has also adverted to judgment and order dated 13.06.2022 passed in Civil Revision No.23 of 2022 holding that the order granting interim relief is purely interlocutory order which does not suffer from any jurisdictional or legal error so as to warrant interference in exercise of revisional power under section 83 (9) of the Waqf Act 1995.

17. It appears that the aforesaid judgment does not take into account any of the judgments rendered by Coordinate benches passed prior thereto. Even otherwise the judgment does not appear to be a proposition that an interlocutory order granting interim relief would not be amenable to revisional jurisdiction of this Court but on the contrary has declined revisional interference on the ground that the order is not only purely interlocutory in nature but also does not suffer from any jurisdictional or legal error. The corollary of the aforesaid judgment may be that an interlocutory order which suffers from jurisdictional or legal error may be reviseable under section 83(9) of the Act of 1995.

18. It is thus quite evident that the earlier judgments in the cases of Hafiz Abdullah & Ors (supra) and Shakil Ahmad (supra) cannot be said to be a proposition that revision under section 83 (9) of the Waqf Act, 1995 would not be maintainable against an order allowing or rejecting an application for temporary injunction.

19. The aspect of maintainability of revision against grant or rejection of temporary injunction would be quite evident from a perusal of proviso to Section 83(9) which on first principles clearly indicates jurisdiction of a High Court to examine records relating to any dispute, question or other matter which has been determined by the Tribunal. The provision itself clearly indicates power of High Court akin to revisional jurisdiction with regard to not only any dispute but question or other matter as well which has been determined by the Tribunal. The aspect of not only a dispute but a question or other matter having been determined by the Tribunal is a relevant provision required to be understood in that perspective.

20. The question as to when the grant or rejection of an application for temporary injunction can be said to amount to a 'judgment' has been dealt with by Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the case of Shah Babulal Khimji vs. Jayaben Kania reported in AIR 1981 SC 1786 in the following manner:-

"113. Thus, under the Code of Civil Procedure, a judgment consists of the reasons and grounds for a decree passed by a court. As a judgment constitutes the reasons for the decree it follows as a matter of course that the judgment must be a formal adjudication which conclusively determines the rights of the parties with regard to all or any of the matters in controversy. The concept of a judgment as defined by the Code of Civil Procedure seems to be rather narrow and the limitations engrafted by sub-section (2) of Section 2 cannot be physically imported into the definition of the word 'judgment' as used in clause 15 of the letters patent because the letters patent has advisedly not used the terms 'order' or 'decree' anywhere. The intention, therefore, of the givers of the letters patent was that the word 'judgment' should receive a much wider and more liberal interpretation than the word 'judgment' used in the Code of Civil Procedure. At the same time, it cannot be said that any order passed by a trial Judge would amount to a judgment; otherwise there will be no end to the number of orders which would be appealable under the letters patent. It seems to us that the word 'judgment' has undoubtedly a concept of finality in a broader and not a narrower sense. In other words, a judgment can be of three kinds:-

1. A final Judgment: A judgment which decides all the questions or issues in controversy so far as the trial Judge is concerned and leaves, nothing else to be decided. This would mean that by virtue of the judgment, the suit or action brought by the plaintiff is dismissed or decreed in part or in full. Such an order passed by the trial Judge indisputably and unquestionably is a judgment within the meaning of the Letters Patent and even amounts to a decree so that an appeal would lie from such a judgment to a Division Bench.

2. A preliminary judgment: this kind of a judgment may take two forms (a)

where the trial Judge by an order dismisses the suit without going into the merits of the suit but only on a preliminary objection raised by the defendant or the party opposing on the ground that the suit is not maintainable. Here also, as the suit is finally decided one way or the other, the order passed by the trial Judge would be a judgment finally deciding the cause so far as the trial Judge is concerned and, therefore, appealable to the larger Bench, (b) Another shape which a preliminary judgment may take is that where the trial Judge passes an order after hearing the preliminary objections raised by the defendant relating to maintainability of the suit, e.g. bar of jurisdiction, resjudicata, a manifest defect in the suit, absence of notice under Section 80 and the like, and these objections are decided by the trial Judge against the defendant, the suit is not terminated but continues and has to be tried on merits but the order of the trial Judge rejecting the objections doubtless adversely affects a valuable right of the defendant who, if his objections are valid, is entitled to get the suit dismissed on preliminary grounds. Thus, such an order even though it keeps the suit alive, undoubtedly decides an important aspect of the trial which affects a vital right of the defendant and must, therefore, be construed to be a judgment so as to be appealable to a larger Bench.

3. Intermediary or interlocutory judgment: Most of the interlocutory orders which contain the quality of finality are clearly specified in clauses (a) to (w) of Order 43, Rule 1 and have already been held by us to be judgments within the meaning of the Letters Patent and, therefore, appealable. There may also be interlocutory orders which are not covered by Order 43, Rule 1 but which also possess the characteristics and trappings of finality in that, the orders may adversely affect a valuable right of the party or decide an important aspect of the trial in an ancillary proceeding. Before such an order can be a judgment the adverse effect on the party concerned must be direct and immediate rather than indirect or remote.

115. Thus, in other words every interlocutory order cannot be regarded as a judgment but only those orders would be judgments which decide matters of moment or affect vital and valuable rights of the parties and which work serious injustice to the party concerned. Similarly, orders passed by the trial Judge deciding question of admissibility or relevancy of a document also cannot be treated as judgments because the grievance on this score can be corrected by the appellate court in appeal against the final judgment."

21. The aforesaid judgment is a leading proposition of law on the point that even interlocutory orders possessing characteristics and trappings of finality or affecting valuable rights of a party or deciding important aspects of a trial in main or in an ancillary proceedings, would be 'judgment'.

22. Upon applicability of aforesaid judgment, it is evident that an application granting or rejecting temporary injunction would amount to final determination of a question referred to the Tribunal for its adjudication and since such an order would have the effect of adversely affecting one party to the dispute with regard to a valuable right with such effect being direct and immediate rather than indirect or remote, would possess the characteristics and trappings of finality so far as that question is considered. In that sense, even an application granting or rejecting temporary injunction clearly has the trappings of finality and would therefore amount to a dispute or question or other matter having been determined by the Tribunal.

23. It is also relevant to indicate that while first part of Section 83(9) of the Act pertains to non-maintainability of appeal against any decision or order whether interim or otherwise by the Tribunal but it is the proviso which indicates powers of High Court akin to revisional jurisdiction.

24. It is settled law that a proviso though required to be seen and read along with the main portion of an enactment carves out an exception to the main provision and that the ordinary and proper function of a proviso coming after a general enactment is to limit the applicability of general enactment. The concept of proviso therefore clearly is separate and distinct from the main enactment, though required to be read in the same terms, but carves out an exception to the main enactment.

25. Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the case of Union of India & Ors versus Priyankan Sharan & Anr. reported in AIR 2009 SC (Supp) 972 has held as follows with regard to a proviso :

"12. The normal function of a proviso is to except something out of the enactment or to qualify something enacted therein which but for the proviso would be within the purview of the enactment. As was stated in Mullins v. Treasurer of Survey [1880 (5) QBD 170, (referred to in Shah Bhojraj Kuverji Oil Mills and Ginning Factory v. Subhash Chandra Yograj Sinha (AIR 1961 SC 1596) and Calcutta Tramways Co. Ltd. v. Corporation of Calcutta (AIR 1965 SC 1728); when one finds a proviso to a section the natural presumption is that, but for the proviso, the enacting part of the section would have included the subject matter of the proviso. The proper function of a proviso is to except and to deal with a case which would otherwise fall within the general language of the main enactment and its effect is confined to that case. It is a qualification of the preceding enactment which is expressed in terms too general to be quite accurate. As a general rule, a proviso is added to an enactment to qualify or create an exception to what is in the enactment and ordinarily, a proviso is not interpreted as stating a general rule. "If the language of the enacting part of the statute does not contain the provisions which are said to occur in it you cannot derive these provisions by implication from a proviso." Said Lord Watson in West Derby Union v. Metropolitan Life Assurance Co. (1897 AC 647)(HL). Normally, a proviso does not travel beyond the provision to which it is a proviso. It carves out an exception to the main provision to which it has been enacted as a proviso and to no other. (See A. N. Sehgal and Ors. v. Raje Ram Sheoram & Ors. (AIR 1991 SC 1406), Tribhovandas Haribhai Tamboli v. Gujarat Revenue Tribunal and Ors. (AIR 1991 SC 1538) and Kerala State Housing Board and Ors v. Ramapriya Hotels (P) Ltd. and Ors. (1994 (5) SCC 672)."

26. Considering the aspects and importance of a proviso to an enactment, it is thus evident that the judgments rendered earlier in the cases of Hafiz Abdullah & Ors (supra) and Shakil Ahmad (supra) having not considered the aspect of proviso in section 83(9) of the Act, cannot be said to be a binding precedent on that aspect.

27. In view of discussion made hereinabove, since it is evident that an application granting or rejecting temporary injunction would have the trappings of finality with regard to question determined by Tribunal, it is held that a revision under section 83 (9) of the Act would therefore be maintainable before this Court.

28. With regard to merits of the case, learned counsel for revisionist submits that initially the property pertaining to Gata No.491 having an area of one bigha eight biswa related to creation of Waqf by the name of Waqf Qarbala Abdullapur Akbarpur. It is submitted that the aforesaid Waqf was registered with Shia Waqf Board as Waqf No.2018. Attention has been drawn to the fact that father of opposite party no.5, Syed Ameer Hasan was one of the Waqif of the deed. It is submitted that inadvertently revenue records did not reflect the correct name of Waqf which was recorded in the individual name of Mutwali and therefore a report dated 26.01.1988 was submitted for correction of the name of Waqf in the revenue records particularly indicating that vide earlier order dated 31.12.1987, the aforesaid Waqf has been wrongly entered in the revenue records as Waqf Qarbala Kabristan Shia Sadaat. It is submitted that the aforesaid report was reiterated by the subsequent report dated 30.03.2018 by the Lekhpal concerned but the actual corrections as recommended in the reports were not made and vide subsequent order dated 13.05.2022 passed by Sub Divisional Magistrate in Case No.03816 of 2018, the incorrect name of Waqf was expunged but instead of indicating the correct name, only the name of Mutwali i.e. Syed Ameer Hasan was indicated.

29. It is submitted that in the meantime, one Naseem Bano was appointed Mutwali of the Waqf, which was challenged by opposite party no.4 before the Tribunal and arising out of the said proceedings, Civil Revision No.37 of 2019 was filed before this Court in which vide order dated 08.05.2019, it was directed that no third party right including tenancy rights would be created by either of the parties. It is submitted that in the meantime vide order dated 31.07.2019, the Waqf Board modified the nature of the Waqf from Waqf ALAL- Khair to Waqf ALAL-Aulad, a fact brought to the notice of this Court, which in its order dated 07.11.2019 noticed the same and recorded the submission of learned counsel for Waqf Board that the order dated 31.07.2019 had been passed without knowledge of interim directions issued by this Court and therefore his submission that the said order would be revisited was also recorded.

30. It is submitted that in pursuance to the submissions advanced before this Court, the order dated 31.07.2019 was thereafter cancelled vide order dated 14.11.2019. In pursuance thereof, the aforesaid revision was also disposed of.

31. It is submitted that upon disposal of aforesaid civil revision, the Waqf Board vide its resolution dated 26.02.2020 again revived the earlier order dated 31.07.2019, which was challenged by the revisionist before the Waqf Board which although initially granted interim order but subsequently by means of impugned order dated 12.12.2022 has rejected application for interim injunction with time being granted for filing of written statement.

32. Learned counsel for revisionist as such submits that once it was admitted that the Waqf has been registered with the Waqf Board in a particular name, the same could not have been changed by the Board without indicating cogent reason for the same. It is submitted that reliance placed in the impugned order on the sale-deed dated 16.04.1968 allegedly in favour of father of opposite party no.5 was in itself misplaced since the father of opposite party no.5 as Waqif was well aware of the nature of Waqf being created by the Waqf deed and never set up a case of his individual rights by means of the aforesaid sale-deed, which was produced and relied upon by answering opposite party only in the year 2018.

33. Learned counsel appearing on behalf of answering opposite party no.5 has refuted submissions advanced by learned counsel for revisionist with the submission that the Waqf deed itself indicates its nature to be that of ALAL-Aulad since a narration in the Waqf deed clearly stipulates that the beneficiaries of the Waqf would be successors of initial beneficiaries and therefore the wrong name indicated in the Waqf deed is only an omission and the intention of the deed has to be seen from the aforesaid narration in the Waqf deed. It is in that context that he submits that the deed was required to be treated as ALAL-Aulad particularly in view of the sale-deed dated 16.04.1968 in favour of father of opposite party no.5.

34. It is also submitted that the impugned order has rightly recorded the fact that the aforesaid sale-deed is a registered document, which has not been challenged by any person till date and as such a presumption regarding its genuineness has been correctly drawn in terms of the Evidence Act.

35. Upon consideration of submissions advanced by learned counsel for parties and perusal of material available on record, it is an admitted fact that Waqf was created with regard to Gata No.491 having an area of one bigha, eight biswa. It is also admitted that the Waqf deed clearly indicates the name of Waqf as Waqf Qarbala Abdullapur Akbarpur. Neither of the parties are denying the execution of aforesaid Waqf deed. It is also an admitted fact that the said deed is recorded with the Board as Waqf No.2018. The report of revenue authorities also indicates the fact that the name of Waqf was wrongly recorded inadvertently in the revenue records and therefore recommendation was made for their correction. However no concrete order has been passed on the aforesaid recommendations and by means of subsequent order dated 13.05.2022 passed in Case No.3816 of 2018, while expunging the name of Waqf as Waqf Qarbala Kabristan Shia Sadaat, the name of Mutwali was recorded.

36. Upon perusal of impugned order, it does not evidence as to the material which was before the Waqf Board from which it could deduce at this stage that the Waqf deed inadvertently omitted it to be indicated as Waqf ALAL-Aulad. The aforesaid contradiction in Waqf deed is required to be proved before the Tribunal by leading of evidence and at this stage the prima facie finding recorded by the Tribunal does not appear to be supported by any evidence.

37. It also appears that Tribunal has given considerable weight to the fact that a sale-deed was executed in favour of father of opposite party no.5 on 16.04.1968 which was a registered deed and has not been challenged by any one. The said aspect also, would require corroboration and substantiation by evidence. The Tribunal as such was required to take into consideration the prima facie contradiction in the Waqf deed and the aforesaid sale-deed and at this stage, it appears to have wrongly placed heavy reliance on the aforesaid fact pertaining to the sale-deed without adverting to the fact that there did not appear to be any material on record, at the stage of grant of interim injunction by which it would be deemed that the Waqifs of the Waqf deed deliberately or by omission recorded a wrong name and purpose of Waqf.

38. In view aforesaid facts and circumstances, the order impugned dated 12.12.2022 passed by Waqf Tribunal, Lucknow in Waqf Case No.113 of 2020, being apparently against the material on record, is set aside. The aspect of validity of Waqf deed, the sale-deed and revenue entries would definitely be subject to evidence being led during course of proceeding.

39. It is observed that the narration of events and facts as indicated in the body of this order would be subject to evidence being led before the Tribunal.

40. The revision as such succeeds and is allowed. Parties to bear their own costs.

1. Instant criminal revision under Section 397/401 Cr.P.C. has been filed against judgment and order dated 20.12.2022 passed by Addl. Sessions Judge Court No. 8, Kanpur Nagar, in Criminal Appeal No. 106/2019 (Ram Ratan Vs. Vivek Kumar and Another), whereby the conviction and sentence passed by learned Metropolitan Magistrate on 28.06.2019 in Case No. 3872 of 2010 against accused appellant Ram Ratan for charge under Section 7/16 Prevention of Food Adulteration Act has been affirmed. The judgment and order of trial court dated 28.06.2019 has also been challenged.

2. The brief facts of the case relevant from present criminal appeal are that on 05.03.2010, the complainant Food Inspector working on orders of local Health Officer intercepted a milk vendor at 09:15 hours near Police Station- Bhidnu, Gathampur road, District- Kanpur Nagar, who was taking milk in his bicycle in 4 containers each having around 20 ltrs of milk, therefore he was carrying a total of 80

Its of mixed milk of cow and buffalo. The Food Inspector purchased 1500 ml milk for Rs. 36 as sample and received an acknowledgement from the vendor/ present accused. The complainant tried to enjoin local witnesses but they neither disclosed their name nor agreed to be a witness. The sample were kept in 3 dry and empty small bottles in equal amount and was duly sealed, labelled and tagged and signature of the vendor was taken on each bottle of the sample. The copies of Form 7 were prepared and one set of sample was sent for examination to Public Analyst, Lucknow through speed post. The report of Public Analyst was received in the office of Local Health Officer, Kanpur on 04.06.2010 as Test Report No. 3518 dated 17.04.2010, wherein the sample of milk was found adulterated. The complainant Food Inspector, Vivek Kumar received sanction for prosecution from the D.M., Kanpur Nagar, Sri Mukesh Meshram and filed the present complaint. In report of Public Analyst, the sample was found short of 13 percent milk fat and the sample was not found up to prescribed standard and thus, held to be adulterated. The learned Magistrate took cognizance of the offence after filing of a complaint by Food Inspector, the statement of the accused was recorded and substance of accusation was explained to him which he denied and claimed to be tried. In prosecution evidence, P.W.-1 Shri Vivek Kumar, the complaint (Food Inspector), P.W.- 2 Om Ji Srivastava, Food Clerk were examined and 8 documents were accepted during evidence. The accused had not adduced any oral evidence during trial. Learned Magistrate after considering submissions of learned counsel for the parties and on appreciation of evidence on record, observed that in present case, the sample was filled up on 05.03.2010 and cognizance of the case was taken by the Court on 17.08.2010 which is within 3 years from the date of commencement of the Act, as provided under Section 97 (4) of Food Safety and Standards Act. Therefore, in the opinion of learned Trial Court, the court was well within its jurisdiction to take cognizance of the offence under Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 2006 and on facts of the case the provisions of Food Safety and Standards Act were not applicable.

3. Learned Trial Court dispelled the submission of learned counsel for the accused that the District Magistrate granted sanction for prosecution in mechanical manner and did not perused any documents submitted along with the application for grant of sanction. The learned Trial Court also observed that District Magistrate granted sanction for prosecution after perusing the relevant documents and as well as in the light of report of Public Analyst. He found no reason to disbelieve the testimony of P.W.-1, who stated in cross-examination that accused had told him that he is milk vendor and was going to sell milk. He also dispelled proposition of the accused side that the sample was not taken in accordance with rules and there was no occasion to disbelieve the testimony of the complainant, Food Inspector only on ground that no public witness was enjoined in inspection and process of sampling on this part. The accused was served notice under Section 13(2) P.F. Act within 3 days of filing of complaint dated 17.08.2010 and notice is found lawful. There is nothing to be held that notice was sent to the accused on wrong address. Learned Trial Court, after considering evidence of P.W.1, Food Inspector and P.W.-2 Om Ji Srivastava, Food Clerk, on issuing of notice and placing reliance on documentary evidence submitted as a proof during trial, held that prosecution has been successful to prove the charge levelled against the accused beyond reasonable doubt and recorded conviction of the accused for charge under Section 7/16 P.F. Act, and sentenced him 6 months simple imprisonment and Rs. 5,000/- fine with default stipulation.

4. Feeling aggrieved by the verdict of guilt and sentencing awarded by learned Trial Court, the accused revisionist preferred criminal appeal before the Court of Sessions which was decided by Addl. Sessions Judge, Court No. 8 Kanpur Nagar by impugned judgment dated 20.12.2022 who examined the record and in the light of evidence on record and addressed legal submissions raised by learned counsel for the appellant, expressed his concurrence with finding and judgment of learned Trial Court and affirmed the impugned judgment and order passed by learned Trial Court. Present revision has been preferred by the accused against concurrent judgments of Courts below.

5. Heard learned counsel for the revisionist, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the material on record.

6. Learned counsel for the revisionist submitted that the accused is held in jail custody since passing of impugned judgment dated 20.12.2022 by Appellate/ Sessions Court, thereby he is held in jail custody for more than 4 months as a convict in the case from which present revision has arisen. The judgment and orders passed by learned Courts below are against the provisions of law and strength of evidence on record.

7. The prosecution failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt on basis of evidence adduced during trial, as no offence is made out against the revisionist under Section 16 of Prevention of Food Adulteration Act. Both the learned Courts below misappreciated the evidence on record while recording the verdict of guilt against accused revisionist and their findings are not sustainable as after commencement of Food Safety Standards Act, 2006, the Prevention of Food Adulteration Act was repealed and in present case cognizance under Section 7/16 Food Adulteration Act, was itself barred under law. Therefore, the revision is liable to the allowed and impugned orders passed by Courts deserve to be set aside.

8. Per contra, learned A.G.A. appearing for the State opposite party No. 1, submitted that there is nothing on record which may warrant interference in present criminal revision against concurrent findings of both the Courts below in which verdict of guilt has been recorded against accused appellant. The learned Trial Court has awarded minimum punishment of imprisonment pursuant under law against accused, therefore, neither the conviction nor sentence are liable to be interfered in present criminal revision.

9. Learned counsel for the revisionist cited and placed reliance of judgment Avinash Chandra Bajpai and Another Vs. State of U.P. 2019 (1) FAC 497 which is related to cognizance/ summoning order for charge under Section 7/16 P.F.A. Act, 1954 in that case sample of Chole/ Chana Masala (Bhola Indis) is alleged to have taken from the shop of the revisionist on 09.02.2011 on basis of which a complaint under Section 7/16 P.F. Act was filed against him and the learned Magistrate took cognizance of the offence on the criminal complaint filed by the Food Inspector. This Court held in that case that prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 1954 has been repealed with effect from 29.07.2010 while notification in Extraordinary Gazette of India copy at Annexure No. 2; that the Food Safety and Standards Act, 2006 has come into force with effect from 29 July, 2010 and after repeal of old Act, i.e. Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 1954, the complaint under Section 07/16 Act of Prevention of Food and Adulteration Act was not maintainable and no cognizance could have been taken by the Magistrate under the old and already repealed Act. This Court held that Magistrate has passed impugned order of cognizance without due application of mind to the facts and has acted wrongly issued process against the revisionist for an offence under non-existing Act. After enforcement of Food Safety and Standards Act, 2006; the procedure under the new Act has to be adopted against the revisionist and no cognizance of offence under the old and already repealed Act may be taken. The impugned order of cognizance was wrong and illegal and must be allowed to stand.

10. With regard to legal plea raised by the accused side consistently from Court of first instance to present revisional Court, the provisions of repeal clause of Food Safety and Standards Act are liable to be examined. The object and reason of Food Safety and Standards Act, 2006 states as "an Act to consolidate the laws relating to food and to establish the Food Safety and Standards Authority of India for laying down science based standards for articles of food and to regulate the manufacture, storage, distribution, sell and import, to ensure availability of safe and wholesome food for human consumption and for matters connected therewith or incidental thereto.

11. The different sections of the Act were brought in force on different dates. Section 97 of the Act was brought into force on 29.07.2010 vide S.O. 1855 (E dated 29.07.2010) issued by Central Government. Section 97 provides as under

97. Repeal and savings.-

(1) With effect from such date as the Central Government may appoint in this behalf, the enactment and orders specified in the Second Schedule shall stand repealed: Provided that such repeal shall not affect:-

(i) the previous operations of the enactment and orders under repeal or anything duly done or suffered thereunder; or

(iii) any penalty, forfeiture or punishment incurred in respect of any offences committed against the enactment and Orders under repeal; or

(iv) any investigation or remedy in respect of any such penalty, forfeiture or punishment, and any such investigation, legal proceedings or remedy may be instituted, continued or enforced and any such penalty, forfeiture or punishment may be imposed, as if this Act had not been passed:

(2) If there is any other law for the time being in force in any State, corresponding to this Act, the same shall upon the commencement of this Act, stand repealed and in such case, the provisions of section 6 of the General Clauses Act, 1897 (10 of 1897) shall apply as if such provisions of the State law had been repealed.

(3) Notwithstanding the repeal of the aforesaid enactment and Orders, the licences issued under any such enactment or Order, which are in force on the date of commencement of this Act, shall continue to be in force till the date of their expiry for all purposes, as if they had been issued under the provisions of this Act or the rules or regulations made thereunder.

(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, no court shall take cognizance of an offence under the repealed Act or Orders after the expiry of a period of three years from the date of the commencement of this Act.

12. In Rupesh Kumar and Another Vs. State of U.P. 2011 (2) FAC 33, applicants premises were raided on 25.04.2011 and on that date the Food Safety and Standard Act, 2006 stood enforced and as such the applicant could not be prosecuted only under the provisions of The Food Safety and Standard Act, 2006. The complaint was filed on 27.06.2011 in the P.F. Act, 1954 and summoning order was issued on 27.06.2011. This Court quashed the summoning order dated 27.06.2011 as all the proceedings in the matter were taken after enforcement of Act of 2006. This Court observed that after enforcement of Act of 2006, the applicant could be prosecuted only under the provisions of Act, 2006. While this Court quashing the summoning order passed against the accused by Trial Court granted liberty to the respondents to proceed against the revisionist under the provisions of the Act of 2006.

13. The mandate of Section 6 of the General Clauses Act is simply to leave the pending proceedings unaffected which commence under the unrepealed provisions, unless contrary intention is expressed. "Ambalal Sarabhai Enterprises Lt. Vs. Amrit Lal and Company (2001) 8 SCC 397 in Gurcharan Singh Baldev Singh Vs. Yashwant Singh A.I.R. 1992 SC 1186, Honb'le Apex Court while considering scope of Section 6 General Clauses Act 1897, which deals with effect of repeal of a Central Act or regulation held that the objective of Section 6(c) of the General Clauses Act is to ensure protection of any right or privilege acquired under the repealed Act. The only exception to it is legislative intention to the contrary. That is, the repealing Act may expressly provide or it may impliedly provide against continuance of such right, obligation or liability.

14. In the present case, P.W.1 Vivek Kumar, the complainant has proved factual aspects of the case by his evidence as P.W.1, during trial of complaint case before Court below. P.W.2, Om Ji Srivastava the Food Clerk has stated in his evidence that on 16.09.2013, Local Health Authority sent sample No. KN-2010/362/VS-7 along with report of Public Analyst to the accused, he proved receipt of registry as exhibit K-4 and LHA Form No. 13 (2) as exhibit K-9. Thus, it cannot be held in present case that the provisions of Section 13(2) of Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 1954 were not complied with. Section 13 provides as under:

13. Report of public analyst.--

(1) The public analyst shall deliver, in such form as may be prescribed, a report to the Local (Health) Authority of the result of the analysis of any article of food submitted to him for analysis. --3[(1) The public analyst shall deliver, in such form as may be prescribed, a report to the Local (Health) Authority of the result of the analysis of any article of food submitted to him for analysis."

(2) On receipt of the report of the result of the analysis under sub-section (1) to the effect that the article of food is adulterated, the Local (Health) Authority shall, after the institution of prosecution against the persons from whom the sample of the article of food was taken and the person, if any, whose name, address and other particulars have been disclosed under section 14A, forward, in such manner as may be prescribed, a copy of the report of the result of the analysis to such person or persons, as the case may be, informing such person or persons that if it is so desired, either or both of them may make an application to the court within a period of ten days from the date of receipt of the copy of the report to get the sample of the article of food kept by the Local (Health) Authority analysed by the Central Food Laboratory.

(2A) When an application is made to the court under sub-section (2), the court shall require the Local (Health) Authority to forward the part or parts of the sample kept by the said Authority and upon such requisition being made, the said Authority shall forward the part or parts of the sample to the court within a period of five days from the date of receipt of such requisition.

(2B) On receipt of the part or parts of the sample from the Local (Health) Authority under sub-section (2A), the court shall first ascertain that the mark and seal or fastening as provided in clause (b) of sub-section (1) of section 11 are intact and the signature or thumb impression, as the case may be, is not tampered with, and despatch the part or, as the case may be, one of the parts of the sample under its own seal to the Director of the Central Food Laboratory who shall thereupon send a certificate to the court in the prescribed form within one month from the date of receipt of the part of the sample specifying the result of the analysis.

(2C) Where two parts of the sample have been sent to the court and only one part of the sample has been sent by the court to the Director of the Central Food Laboratory under sub-section (2B), the court shall, as soon as practicable, return the remaining part to the Local (Health) Authority and that Authority shall destroy that part after the certificate from the Director of the Central Food Laboratory has been received by the court: Provided that where the part of the sample sent by the court to the Director of the Central Food Laboratory is lost or damaged, the court shall require the Local (Health) Authority to forward the part of the sample, if any, retained by it to the court and on receipt thereof, the court shall proceed in the manner provided in sub-section (2B).

(2D) Until the receipt of the certificate of the result of the analysis from the Director of the Central Food Laboratory, the court shall not continue with the proceedings pending before it in relation to the prosecution.

(2E) If, after considering the report, if any, of the food inspector or otherwise, the Local (Health) Authority is of the opinion that the report delivered by the public analyst under sub-section (1) is erroneous, the said Authority shall forward one of the parts of the sample kept by it to any other public analyst for analysis and if the report of the result of the analysis of that part of the sample by that other public analyst is to the effect that the article of food is adulterated, the provisions of sub-sections (2) to (2D) shall, so far as may be, apply.]

(3) The certificate issued by the Director of the Central Food Laboratory under sub-section (2B)] shall supersede the report given by the public analyst under sub-section (1).

(4) Where a certificate obtained from the Director of the Central Food Laboratory [under sub-section (2B)] is produced in any proceeding under this Act, or under sections 272 to 276 of the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860), it shall not be necessary in such proceeding to produce any part of the sample of food taken for analysis.

(5) Any document purporting to be a report signed by a public analyst, unless it has been superseded under sub-section (3), or any document purporting to be a certificate signed by the Director of the Central Food Laboratory, may be used as evidence of the facts stated therein in any proceeding under this Act or under sections 272 to 276 of the Indian

Penal Code (45 of 1860): [Provided that any document purporting to be a certificate signed by the Director of the Central Food Laboratory [not being a certificate with respect to the analysis of the part of the sample of any article of food referred to in the proviso to sub-section (1A) of section 16] shall be final and conclusive evidence of the facts stated therein.] [Explanation.--In this section, and in clause (f) of sub-section (1) of section 16, "Director of the Central Food Laboratory" shall include the officer for the time being in charge of any Food Laboratory (by whatever designation he is known) recognised by the Central Government for the purposes of this section.]

15. Therefore, on perusal of above statutory provisions, in the light of evidence of P.W.2, it appears that the accused has been given an opportunity to get the sample of article of food kept by Local Health Authority Analysed by the Central Food Laboratory, but accused failed to avail the opportunity.

16. Section 7 of the Act provides for violations which will be punishable under Section 16 of the Act. Under Section 2 [(i) "adulterant" means any material which is or could be employed for the purposes of adulteration;]

4 [(ia)] "adulterated"--an article of food shall be deemed to be adulterated--

(a) if the article sold by a vendor is not of the nature, substance or quality demanded by the purchaser and is to his prejudice, or is not of the nature, substance or quality which it purports or is represented to be;

------(m) if the quality or purity of the article falls below the prescribed standard or its constituents are present in quantities not within the prescribed limits of variability but which does not render it injurious to health: Provided that, where the quality or purity of the article, being primary food, has fallen below the prescribed standards or its constituents are present in quantities not within the prescribed limits of variability in either case, solely due to natural causes and beyond the control of human agency, then, such article shall not be deemed to be adulterated within the meaning of this sub-clause.

17. Thus, the present case falls within the purview of Section 2(m) of the Act, as the main charge in the present case against the accused is that the milk sample taken from him was found short of prescribed standards as the fat contents of milk were found 13 percent below the prescribed standard, and as the sample did not correspond to prescribed standard it was held as adulterated within meaning of Section 2(ia)(m).

18. In present case, Section 2(ia)(m) attracts which is punishable under Section 16(1) of the Act for which a minimum punishment of 6 months imprisonment, which may extend to 3 years and fine not less than Rs. 1,000/- is prescribed. In the present case, the District Magistrate has passed the sanction order for prosecution of the accused which has been proved by P.W.1. The District Magistrate has passed sanction order in discharge of his official duty and genuineness of said order is presumed.

19. So far as the argument of learned counsel that in view of repeal of Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 1954 after enactment of Food Safety and Standards Act, 2006 and assailing the cognizance order in the present case by the appellant is concerned. Section 97(1) of the Act of 2006 provides that with effect from such date as the Central Government may appoint in this behalf, the enactment and orders specified in the second schedule shall stand repealed. The date envisaged in sub-Section 1 of Section 97 has been specified as 5.08.2011 vide notification No. F.No.P-15025/41/2011-DFQC -dated 4th August, 2011, meaning thereby the Food Adulteration Act, 1954 shall stand repealed on 05.08.2011. The provisions of Section 97 (2) were itself brought into force on 29.07.2010 which deals with repeal and savings. In the present case, the date of offence is mentioned and proved as on 05.03.2010, when accused was intercepted by P.W.1 and sub-standard milk was found in his possession and complaint was filed after investigation in the case against accused for his prosecution under Section 7/16 of P.F. Act. Thus, the proceedings, sampling and inspection under repealed Act were already initiated prior to repeal of the Act which took place on 05.08.2011. Even the cognizance in the case was taken by Court below on 17.08.2010, prior to the date when the P.F. Act, stood repealed. Therefore, this argument of revisionist side can also not be countenanced that the cognizance in the case was barred under law. Even Section 97(4) of The Food Safety and Standards Act, 2006, provides as under:

(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, no court shall take cognizance of an offence under the repealed Act or Orders after the expiry of a period of three years from the date of the commencement of this Act

Section 97 seeks to repeal the enactment or orders specified in second schedule immediately with the effect from the date on which the Act is enacted and comes into force, provided that such repeal shall not affect

(i) the previous operations of the enactment and orders under repeal or anything duly done or suffered thereunder;

Or

(ii) any right, privilege, obligation or liability acquired, accrued or incurred under any of the enactment or Orders under repeal; or

(iii) any penalty, forfeiture or punishment incurred in respect of any offences committed against the enactment and Orders under repeal; or

(iv) any investigation or remedy in respect of any such penalty, forfeiture or punishment and any such investigation, legal proceedings or remedy may be instituted, continued or enforced and any such penalty, forfeiture or punishment may be imposed, as if this Act had not been passed:

(2) If there is any other law for the time being in force in any State, corresponding to this Act, the same shall upon the commencement of this Act, stand repealed and in such case, the provisions of section 6 of the General Clauses Act, 1897 (10 of 1897) shall apply as if such provisions of the State law has been repealed.

20. Thus, in view of Section 97(4) also, the cognizance in the case shall be saved as the same was taken within a period of 3 years from the date of commencement of the Act of 2006.

21. Thus, in opinion of this Court, cognizance in the case by the Court of first instance is in no manner illegal or barred under law.

22. The revision is devoid of merit and no factual or legal error or misappropriation of evidence is found on the part of learned Trial Court as well as Appellate Court while recording verdict of guilt against accused for charge levelled against him as well as in judgment of appellate court whereby the appeal was dismissed and order of Trial Court was affirmed.

23. So far as, sentence is concerned, learned counsel for the revisionist referred to the pleadings made in supplementary affidavit filed on behalf of the revisionist on 07.04.2023 and further submitted that as per report of Public Analyst, only the fat content in the sample of milk was found to be less than 13% of prescribed limit and same sample was not injurious to human health. The notice under Section 13(2) of Food Adulteration Act, was never served on revisionist/ accused, the process of sampling was not carried out in accordance with provisions of Section 7 of the Act. The revisionist is not having any prior criminal history, hence, at least his case may be treated with some leniency, so far as, sentencing is concerned, he is held in jail custody since 20.12.2022 from date of impugned judgment of Appellate Court, he may be given benefit of Section 4 of Probation of the Offenders Act, or Section 360 Cr.P.C., as the case may be. He submitted that the sentence awarded to the revisionist may be reduced to the period undergone as he has already spent substantial portion of the sentence awarded in impugned judgment.

24. Learned counsel for revisionist cited judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in Nemi Chand Vs. State of Rajasthan (2018) 17 SCC 448, in Criminal Appeal No. 214 of 2016.

25. I have gone through the judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in Nemi Chand Vs. State of Rajasthan (supra) in that case, the appellant was tried and convicted for offence under Section 7/16 P.F. Act by the Trial Court and was sentenced to undergo 6 months rigorous imprisonment as well as fine of Rs. 1,000/- and in default further rigorous imprisonment for one month. This order was challenged by the appellant by filing appeal before the Sessions Judge, which was dismissed on 11.09.1996, thereby affirming the order of the Trial Court. Hon'ble Apex Court observed that it is not in dispute that the charge against the appellant was only of sub-standardization of goods. It was observed that in judgment of this Court in T. Barai vs Henry Ah Hoe And Another 1983(1) SCC 177, this Court held that since the amendment of Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, Section 16 A was added in the P.F. Act through Central Act 34 of 1976 and it was beneficial to the accused persons, it can be applied even with respect to earlier cases as well which are pending in the Court.

26. Hon'ble Apex Court in Nemi Chand case extended the benefit of newly added Section 16(A) to accused convicted and modified his sentence to the extent that he was awarded fine of Rs. 50,000/- and the substantive sentence of 6 months imprisonment awarded to him by Trial court and affirmed by first Appellate court was quashed.

27. In present case also, although Trial Court adopted procedure of summons trial in the case for convicting and sentencing the accused, the provisions of Section 16(A) of Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 1954 cannot be lost sight which provide as under:

16A. Power of court to try cases summarily --

Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974), all offences under sub-section (1) of section 16 shall be tried in a summary way by a Judicial Magistrate of the first class specially empowered in this behalf by the State Government or by a

Metropolitan Magistrate and the provisions of sections 262 to 265 (both inclusive) of the said Code shall, as far as may be, apply to such trial:

Provided that in the case of any conviction in a summary trial under this section, it shall be lawful for the magistrate to pass a sentence of imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year:

Provided further that when at the commencement of, or in the course of, a summary trial under this section it appears to the magistrate that the nature of the case is such that a sentence of imprisonment for a term exceeding one year may have to be passed or that it is, for any other reason, undesirable to try the case summarily, the Magistrate shall after hearing the parties, record an order to that effect and thereafter recall any witness who may have been examined and proceed to hear or rehear the case in the manner provided by the said Code

28. Present offence is also punishable under Section 16(1)(a)(i). There is neither allegation that the sample in question of beverage (milk) collected from the accused, was in any manner injurious to health of its consumer. The offence is itself of technical nature as the fat content of milk was found only 13 percent below than prescribed standard. Thus, in this case also the main charge against the accused appellant was that only of sub-standardization of the beverage (milk) which was allegedly carried by him for selling on the date and time of inspection by P.W.1.

29. Therefore, in the light of judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in Nemi Chand Vs. State of Rajasthan (supra), the benefit of Section 16(A) of the Act, is liable to be extended to the revisionist, in the case which provides that all the offences under sub-Section 1 of Section 16 shall be tried in a summary way and provisions of Section 262 and 265 (both inclusive) of the said Code of Civil Procedure shall as far as may be applied to such trial. Section 262 (2) provides that in summary trials, the procedure specified in this Code for the trial of summons- case shall be followed except as hereinafter mentioned and no sentence of imprisonment for a term exceeding three months shall be passed in the case of any conviction under this Chapter.

30. As the case of accused revisionist is covered under Section 16(1) of the Act of P.F. Act, in respect of fact that Court did not adopt procedure of summary trial in the case, he deserves to be extended benefit of provisions of Section 16(A) of the Act, which was existing on the date of the offence and keeping in view the provision of Section 262(2) Cr.P.C. his substantive sentence is liable to be reduced with 3 months as provided therein.

31. In view of the above, the revision is partly allowed. The conviction recorded by trial court against revision is affirmed. The sentence imposed upon the revisionist is modified and simple 3 months imprisonment is awarded to him, however, fine of Rs. 5,000/- awarded by the Court below will remain intact. As the revisionist had already undergone this modified sentence of 3 months imprisonment, he will be released from jail custody immediately in respect of present case, if he pays the fine awarded in impugned judgment or undergoes the sentence awarded in default of payment of fine, as the case may be.

32. Let a copy of this order be sent to Trial Court concerned for compliance.

He next added that thereafter, the trial commenced and at the time of conclusion of trial, on the date of the pronouncement of the judgment, the learned trial court while invoking its jurisdiction under section 319 of Cr.P.C. has summoned the present revisionist though, there was no substantial material against the revisionist to summon him under section 319 of Cr.P.C.

5. Adding his arguments, he submits that during the course of the trial in the year only P.W.-1, P.W.-2 and P.W.-5 have named the present revisionist. He next added that in a very hurriedly manner and without recording the degree of satisfaction, the present revisionist has been summoned though, he was never involved in committing any offence and there is no material, which could show that there was more than prima facie or much stronger case is available against the revisionist.

6. In support of his submission, he has drawn attention towards judgment reported in 2023 (1) Supreme Court Cases 289 Sukhpal Singh Khaira v. State of Punjab and has referred paragraph 39(1) and added that the constitutional bench of the Apex Court while answering a reference has held that power under section 319 of Cr.P.C. is to be invoked and exercised before the pronouncement of the order of sentence, where there is a judgment of conviction of the accused. It has further been held that if the order is passed on the same day, it will have to be examined on the facts and circumstances of each case and if such, summoning order is passed either after the order of acquittal or imposing sentence in the case of conviction, the same will not be sustainable.

7. Paragraph 39 (1) is quoted herein under:-

Whether the trial court has the power under Section 319 CrPC for summoning additional accused when the trial with respect to other co-accused has ended and the judgment of conviction rendered on the same date before pronouncing the summoning order?

The power under Section 319 CrPC is to be invoked and exercised before the pronouncement of the order of sentence where there is a judgment of conviction of the accused. In the case of acquittal, the power should be exercised before the order of acquittal is pronounced. Hence, the summoning order has to precede the conclusion of trial by imposition of sentence in the case of conviction. If the order is passed on the same day, it will have to be examined on the facts and circumstances of each case and if such summoning order is passed either after the order of acquittal or imposing sentence in the case of conviction, the same will not be sustainable.

8. Referring the aforesaid, he submits that since there is no substantial evidence against the revisionist and the facts and circumstances for invoking the jurisdiction under section 319 of Cr.P.C. has not been discussed in the order impugned and therefore, the judgment and order passed dated 31.03.2023 is against the law enunciated by the Apex Court.

9. Further, submission is that the impugned order dated 31.03.2023 may be set aside to the extent of summoning the revisionist-accused under section 319 of Cr.P.C.

10. Learned counsel appearing for the State has vehemently opposed the submissions aforesaid and submits that the learned trial court has summoned the present revisionist under section 319 of Cr.P.C., after discussing in detail the facts and circumstances which itself is evident from the judgment and order dated 31.03.2023 started from internal page 22 of the judgment itself. He added that law is very clear on this point that the trial court can invoke its jurisdiction under section 319 of Cr.P.C. for summoning the accused, prior to the order of sentence, where, there is judgment of conviction of the accused. He also added that the case in hand is that the revisionist-accused has been summoned under section 319 of Cr.P.C. prior to the order of sentence. He has also drawn attention towards the constitution bench judgment in Sukhpal Singh Khaira v. State of Punjab Supra and added that while answering the reference, the Apex Court has also held that power under section 319 of Cr.P.C. can be invoked and exercised before the pronouncement of the order of sentence where, there is judgment of conviction of accused. He submits that the case aforesaid also supports the version of the prosecution.

11. Concluding his arguments, he submits that there is no perversity or unlawfulness in the judgment and order dated 31.03.2023 and therefore, no interference is warranted.

12. Having heard counsels for the parties and after perusal of material placed on record it transpires that a plea has been raised challenging the order dated 31.03.2023 that the learned trial court has erroneously invoked its jurisdiction under section 319 of Cr.P.C. while summoning the accused-revisionist. From perusal of the judgment and order, it transpires that prior to the order of sentence, the learned trial court while discussing the facts and circumstances on internal page 22 onwards of the judgment, has summoned the accused-revisionist under section 319 of Cr.P.C. The first set of argument of learned counsel for the revisionist was that on the date of the pronouncement, the trial court is not empowered to invoke its jurisdiction under section 319 of Cr.P.C. and the second set of argument is that there was no material evidence against the revisionist which could show that there was much stronger case to summon the revisionist while invoking its jurisdiction under section 319 of Cr.P.C.

13. When this Court examines the first set of argument of learned counsel for the revisionist that the learned trial court has no jurisdiction to invoke its power under section 319 of Cr.P.C., at the time of pronouncement of the judgment, it is very much evident from the law propounded by the Apex Court in case of Sukhpal Singh Khaira v. State of Punjab, which was answered in paragraph 39(I) that power under section 319 of Cr.P.C. can be invoked and exercised before the pronouncement of the order of sentence and so far as the present revisionist's case is concerned, the learned trial court has exercised its jurisdiction under section 319 of Cr.P.C., prior to the order of sentence and thus, there is no erroneousness in the impugned judgment and order.

14. So far as the second set of argument with respect to the non-

15. Resultantly, the instant revision has no merit and is hereby dismissed.

(A) Criminal Law - The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 397/401 - Revision - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Sections 323, 504 & 304 part-1 - court not permitted to sit in revision review or recall

FIR was filed by first informant – allegation - their brother was playing a match with accused - During match, an altercation occurred - attacked with a cricketing bat - causing him to die - session trial began on a chargesheet filed under Sections 302, 323, 504 IPC - session court framed a charge under Sections 302/34, 323/34, and 504 IPC - accused persons applied for a conversion of charge to Sections 323, 504, and 34 IPC- session judge concluded - prima facie offence was made out under Sections 323, 504, and 304 part-1 IPC. (Para -3)

HELD:- Trial court can alter a charge based on new evidence, but cannot re-appraise the evidence without a change in circumstances. This is not permissible under Section 362 of Cr.P.C, as it creates disorder and chaos in judicial proceedings. While good grounds may exist, it cannot be construed as a prohibition against altering charges for good reasons. (Para -8)

Revision allowed. (E-7)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Jyotsna Sharma, J.)

1. Heard Sri Lalit Kumar Shukla, learned counsel for the revisionist and Sri O.P. Mishra, learned A.G.A. for the State. None responds for respondent no. 2 despite service of notice.

2. By means of this criminal revision, a judgment and order dated 22.11.2022 passed by Additional Session Judge/Special Judge (POCSO Act), Mathura in S.C. No. 740 of 2022 (State vs. Jeetu @ Jitendra) arising out of Case Crime No. 57 of 2022, under Sections 323, 504, 304 part-1 IPC, Police Station Farah, District Mathura has been challenged.

3. The relevant facts are as below:-

An FIR naming Jeetu, Jagveer and certain others was filed by the first informant (the instant revisionist herein) alleging that his brother Manverndra was playing a match with the accused persons; during the match some altercation ensued between the two sides; the accused persons Jeetu and Jagveer attacked his brother Manvendra with a cricketing bat on his head and he later died of the injury sustained by him; the session trial began on the basis of a chargesheet admittedly filed under Sections 302, 323, 504 IPC; the learned session court framed a charge under Sections 302/34, 323/34 and 504 IPC, thereafter on the basis of an application moved on behalf of the accused persons that no offence under Section 302 IPC is made out and that the charge may be converted into one under Sections 323, 504 and 34 IPC, the learned session judge heard both the sides and came to the conclusion that prima facie offence under Section 323, 504, 304 part-1 IPC is made out and fixed the case for framing of charge under those sections only.

4. It is contended on behalf of the revisionist (first informant) that in this case, the learned trial court took cognizance under Sections 323, 504 and 302 IPC and framed charge under those sections; Thereafter on the basis of a mere application moved on behalf of accused the learned session judge altered the charge from Section 302 to 304(1) IPC.

5. Certain facts have been pointed out by the revisionist which are part of the case diary; it is contended on the basis of the statements given by certain persons that the attack was done in a well planned manner and with premeditation, hence it cannot be said that there was no intention to cause death.

6. In my view when the court decided to take cognizance for the offence under Section 302 IPC and thereafter proceeded to frame a charge under Sections 302 IPC and several other sections, it may be presumed that the competent court has perused the evidence on record and has drawn a conclusion that prima facie such and such offences are made out; admittedly neither cognizance order nor the order of framing of charge was ever challenged by any of the side before the revisional court; The charge has been altered on the basis of a simple application moved by the defence side; In my firm view, the court is not permitted to sit in revision review or recall of its own order under the garb of provisions of Section 216 that charge can be altered at any stage of the case.

7. In my opinion, at this juncture, there is no need to go into the minute details of the allegations or the evidence recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. and attending facts and circumstances of the case with regard to settle the instant controversy before this court. The moot point involved is whether the court can review or recall or set aside its own order.

8. I find substance in the contention that once charge has been framed, it shall be presumed that the learned trial court did so after going through all the evidence on record and drawing a conclusion that prima facie offence under certain sections is made out; Though the trial court has ample power to alter the charge on the basis of suitable material coming before it during the course of trial but without finding any change in circumstances or any material in between, the trial court can not re-appraise the evidence on record for drawing a different conclusion. Such a course of action is clearly not permissible by implication under the provisions of Section 362 of Cr.P.C. If such a course of action is permitted it shall create disorder and chaos in judicial proceedings and certainly shall be a cause for judicial indiscipline. It may also be noted that there may be certain good grounds for alteration of charge but the same may be considered at the proper stage after recording of evidence. In my view, the alteration of charge in this manner is not permissible in law. This may not be construed to mean that the trial court cannot exercise its powers to alter the charge for some good reason which may pop up at any subsequent stage, on the basis of any new material/evidence coming before it during the course of trial.

9. On the basis of above discussion the impugned order dated 22.11.2022 is hereby, set aside and the revision is allowed.

The learned trial court shall proceed with the case on the basis of earlier charge.

List of Cases cited:

1. Anju Garg & anr. Vs Deepak Kumar Garg, Criminal Appeal No.1693 of 2022 (arising out of SLP(Crl.) No.10353 of 2018)

2. Jagdish Jugtawat Vs Manju Lata & ors. in SLP (Criminal) No.905 of 2001

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Manohar Narayan Mishra, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the revisionist, learned AGA for the State and perused the material placed on record.

2. Instant criminal revision has been preferred against the impugned judgement order dated 21.1.2015, passed by Principal Judge, Family Court, Gorakhpur, in Misc. Case No.526 of 2011 (Vinita Maurya vs. Pradeep) under Section 125 Cr.P.C., Police Station Shahpur, District Gorakhpur whereby the opposite party Nos.2 Vinita Maurya and her two minor daughters were awarded maintenance to the tune of Rs.7000/- and 4000/- per month respectively, which is payable on 10th of each month from the date of order.

3. Feeling aggrieved by the impugned order, the revisionist, who was opposite party in said maintenance case against whom the maintenance was awarded filed present criminal revision on 13.2.2015, wherein an interim order was issued by this Court that "subject to the condition that revisionist deposits entire arrears of maintenance as awarded by the court below to be calculated @ Rs. 8000/- per month which may be due till today within a period of one month from today and continues to deposit the current monthly maintenance amount @ Rs. 8000/- by 10th of each month, no coercive action shall be taken against him during the pendency of the said revision. The said amount shall be paid to O.P. Nos. 2 to 4 after due verification by the trial court. It is made clear that in default of making payment, as directed above, the present interim order shall stand automatically vacated."

4. The factual matrix of the case relevant for present criminal revision are that the applicant No.1 (opposite party No.1 herein) had filed a maintenance case under Section 125 Cr.P.C. on behalf of her and her two minor daughters namely, Vanshika and Niharika against her husband, who is revisionist herein with averment that her marriage with opposite party was solemnized on 5.2.1998 according to the Hindu rites and rituals, in which her parents had given gifts and dowry as per their financial status. She was sent off to her matrimonial home after marriage and out of her conjugation with opposite party, two daughters were born. Her husband was working abroad at that time and used to come back home once in a year. In absence of husband of the applicant, her family members used to harass and torture her due to non-fulfilment of demand of additional dowry. The opposite party No.1 is an agriculturist and earns Rs.1 lac from his job abroad. The behaviour of opposite party No.1 also worsened towards the applicant during passage of time and he used to beat and torture her and subjected her to physical and mental cruelty for last six years and ultimately she was driven out of her matrimonial home in the year 2011. Her husband is Post Graduate and did diploma in Air Conditioning from Chandigarh. Applicant is also Graduate. She worked as an Agent in LIC in the year 2011 for some time but thereafter her agency terminated her. The amount earned by her in Agency of LIC was meagre and was not sufficient to cater her needs. The opposite party appeared and filed written statement wherein he stated that the applicant is falsely levelling charges against him, which are unfounded. The applicant misled by her parents and she was herself coercing him physically and mentally. In fact the applicant No.1 and her mother intend that parents of the opposite party leave his home in the city and shift to village, so that the applicant alongwith her mother rule her matrimonial home. The opposite party resides in his own home. In course of hearing, the statement of applicant No.1 was recorded as AW-1 and that of opposite party (present revisionist) as OPW-1, wherein, applicant supported her pleadings and she stated that her husband was working in Portugal and his annual income is Rs.5 lacs. In cross-examination, she has stated that she had never studied or taught in R.P.M., Gorakhpur. Her husband did not sent any money to her after going abroad. Her father-in-law suffered brain haemorrhage and presently she is residing in her matrimonial home. A land was purchased in Gorakhpur prior to her marriage. The house in which she is residing was constructed after her marriage. She is residing in that house alongwith her husband and parents-in-law. The expenses of the applicant and her children is not metted out by income of her husband. She is taking loans from her maternal uncle Indradeo Prashad Kushwaha since 2012. The OPW-1 stated in his evidence that he is working as a labourer in Portugal. He has filed an Encashed Certificate on 25.11.2008 as paper No.16-Kha. He had taken an insurance policy from HDFC Bank in the name of his father, which annual premium is 99999. However, that policy is now closed, as its premium was paid only for three years. He has not contracted any marriage in Portugal. When he was living in Portugal, his wife changed school of his children. Her wife is not willing to reside with his parents. His father has excluded him from his property. He is now residing with his father in his house. He also resides at same village for some time. He is not aware of the fee structure of his daughters.

5. Considering the evidence adduced during hear and appreciating the evidence in the light of pleadings of the parties, the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Gorakhpur allowed the maintenance petition of the applicants for Rs.15,000/-, which was disbursed to the tune of Rs.7,000/-, Rs.4,000/- and Rs.4,000/- amongst the applicant No.1, 2 and 3, respectively as monthly maintenance awardable to them by opposite party No.1, who is present revisionist before this Court vide impugned order dated 21.1.2015.

6. Feeling aggrieved by the impugned order, the revisionist has taken stand in present revision that he was working as a labourer in Portugal on contract basis and when he had knowledge about the fact that his family members were being harassed by his wife, he came back to his home breaking his job agreement abroad and now he is jobless and lives in his parental home doing agricultural working. He is not in a position to pay Rs.15,000/- per month as monthly maintenance to his wife and children.

7. Learned counsel for the revisionist submitted that the revisionist is presently jobless. He earns his livelihood by driving auto and doing some odd jobs. His passport has been surrendered by him in the Court with regard to criminal case. Court below vide order dated 2.11.2021, after passing of maintenance order, issued a realization warrant of Rs.553,000/- for realization of outstanding maintenance amount and on 30.6.2022, on an application of the applicant (18-Ka) realization warrant to the tune of Rs.6,30,000/- was issued against the revisionist, a copy thereof is filed with the rejoinder affidavit. In compliance of the intem order of this Court, the revisionist has deposited entire amount of arrear at the rate of Rs.8,000/- per month and has further deposited Rs.8,000/- since 27.4.2015. He had also filed a divorce petition under Section 13 of Hindu Marriage Act, against which first appeal is pending before this Court. Opposite party No.3 Niharika, the daughter of revisionist and opposite party No.1 had attained age of majority and now she is 21 years. She is not eligible for maintenance and for that reason, applicant had filed copy of the application and copy of execution petition filed by the applicant No.1 Smt. Vineeta Maurya as Annexure No.5 to the affidavit, which shows age of Vanshika as around 21 years and of Niharika as 15 years. Opposite party No.2(Vinita Maurya) also works on the post of Block Community Manager at CSC, Kushinagar and receives a salary of Rs.40,000/- per month. The revisionist has filed a copy of contract employee of CSC, Hata, Kushinagar in rejoinder affidavit, in which name of opposite party No.2 Vinita Maurya is mentioned as contract employee on the post of B.C.P.M.

8. Per contra, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the opposite party Nos.2 to 4 submitted that both the daughters of opposite party No.1 are still dependent on her and therefore, they are in need of maintenance from the revisionist. The opposite party No.2 got a job on BCPM at CSC, Hata after passing of impugned order by court below and said job terminated in August, 2022. The revisionist does not drive auto but he plies auto rickshaws. There is no infirmity, irregularity or illegality in impugned order passed by court below and same is liable to be affirmed in present revision. The court below has not accepted the plea of disinheritance taken by the revisionist from his father. The opposite party No.2 herself bears tuition fee of her children.

9. Having regard to the plea of revisionist that due to loss of job in Portugal, in lieu of want of regular employment, the revisionist is not in a position to provide maintenance ordered by the learned court below. The law is well settled in recent judgement of Apex Court dated 28.9.2022 in the case of Anju Garg and Another vs. Deepak Kumar Garg, Criminal Appeal No.1693 of 2022 (arising out of SLP(Crl.) No.10353 of 2018), whereby the high Court dismissed the revision application filed by the appellants challenging the order passed by District Judge, Family Court-1, Faridabad, Haryana in a petition under Section 125 Cr.P.C. observed in paragraph No.9 and 10 of the judgment as under:-

9) At the outset, it may be noted that Section 125 of Cr.P.C. was conceived to ameliorate the agony, anguish and financial suffering of a woman who is required to leave the matrimonial home, so that some suitable arrangements could be made to enable her to sustain herself and the children, as observed by this Court in Bhuwan Mohan Singh vs. Meena & Ors. 1. This Court in the said case, after referring to the earlier decisions, has reiterated the principle of law as to how the proceedings under Section 125 Cr.P.C have to be dealt with by the Court. It held as under:

1987 SCC (Cri) 237] the Court opined that : (SCC p. 631, para 16)

16. "... Proceedings under Section 125 [of the Code], it must be remembered, are of a summary nature and are intended to enable destitute wives and children, the latter whether they are legitimate or illegitimate, to get maintenance in a speedy manner."

8. A three-Judge Bench in Vimala (K.) v. Veeraswamy (K.) [(1991) 2 SCC 375 : 1991 SCC (Cri) 442] , while discussing about the basic purpose under Section 125 of the Code, opined that : (SCC p. 378, para 3)

3. "Section 125 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is meant to achieve a social purpose. The object is to prevent vagrancy and destitution. It provides a speedy remedy for the supply of food, clothing, and shelter to the deserted wife." 1 (2015) 6 SCC 353

9. A two-Judge Bench in Kirtikant D. Vadodaria v. State of Gujarat [(1996) 4 SCC 479 : 1996 SCC (Cri) 762] , while advertng to the dominant purpose behind Section 125 of the Code, ruled that : (SCC p. 489, para 15)

15. "... While dealing with the ambit and scope of the provision contained in Section 125 of the Code, it has to be borne in mind that the dominant and primary object is to give social justice to the woman, child and infirm parents, etc. and to prevent destitution and vagrancy by compelling those who can support those who are unable to support themselves but have a moral claim for support. The provisions in Section 125 provide a speedy remedy to those women, children and destitute parents who are in distress. The provisions in Section 125 are intended to achieve this special purpose. The dominant purpose behind the benevolent provisions contained in Section 125 clearly is that the wife, child and parents should not be left in a helpless state of distress, destitution and starvation."

10. In Chaturbhuj v. Sita Bai [(2008) 2 SCC 316 : (2008) 1 SCC (Civ) 547 : (2008) 1 SCC (Cri) 356] , reiterating the legal position the Court held : (SCC p. 320, para 6)

6. "... Section 125 CrPC is a measure of social justice and is specially enacted to protect women and children and as noted by this Court in Capt. Ramesh Chander Kaushal v. Veena Kaushal [(1978) 4 SCC 70 : 1978 SCC (Cri) 508] falls within constitutional sweep of Article 15(3) reinforced by Article 39 of the Constitution of India. It is meant to achieve a social purpose. The object is to prevent vagrancy and destitution. It provides a speedy remedy for the supply of food, clothing and shelter to the deserted wife. It gives effect to fundamental rights and natural duties of a man to maintain his wife, children and parents when they are unable to maintain themselves. The aforesaid position was highlighted in Savitaben Somabhai Bhatiya v. State of Gujarat [(2005) 3 SCC 636 : 2005 SCC (Cri) 787] ."

11. Recently in Nagendrappa Natikar v. Neelamma [(2014) 14 SCC 452 : (2015) 1 SCC (Cri) 407 : (2015) 1 SCC (Civ) 346] , it has been stated that it is a piece of social legislation which provides for a summary and speedy relief by way of maintenance to a wife who is unable to maintain herself and her children".

10) This Court had made the above observations as the Court felt that *the Family Court in the said case had conducted the proceedings without being alive to the objects and reasons, and the spirit of the provisions under Section 125 of the Code. Such an impression has also been gathered by this Court in the case on hand. The Family Court had disregarded the basic canon of law that it is the sacrosanct duty of the husband to provide financial support to the wife and to the minor children. The husband is required to earn money even by physical labour, if he is an able-bodied, and could not avoid his obligation, except on the legally permissible grounds mentioned in the statute. In *Chaturbhuj vs, Sita Bai*², it has been held that the object of maintenance proceedings is not to punish a person for his past neglect, but to prevent vagrancy and destitution of a deserted wife, by providing her food, clothing, and shelter by a speedy remedy. As settled by this Court, Section 125 Cr.P.C. is a measure of social justice and is specially enacted to protect women and children. It also falls within the Constitutional sweep of Article 15(3), reinforced by Article 39 of the Constitution of India."*

10. Hon'ble Apex Court concluded that the Court is not impressed by the submissions of learned counsel for the respondent that he had no source of income as his party business has been closed. The respondent being able bodied, he is obliged towards to earn by legitimate means and maintain his wife and the minor child.

11. Having regard to the evidence of the revisionist-wife before the Family Court and having regard to the other evidence on record, the Court has no hesitation in holding that though the respondent had sufficient source of income and was able bodied, had failed and neglected to main the applicants.

12. So far as the plea of revisionist with regard to attainment of majority by respondent No.2 Vanshika, the daughter of revisionist and respondent No.1 is concerned, a plea was taken on behalf of the revisionist that having attained majority during pendency of petition under Section 125 Cr.P.C., the respondent No.3 Vanshika is not entitled to maintenance is concerned, the provisions of Section 125 Cr.P.C. are liable to be reproduced as under:-

"125. Order for maintenance of wives, children and parents.

(1) If any person having sufficient means neglects or refuses to maintain-

(a) his wife, unable to maintain herself, or

(b) his legitimate or illegitimate minor child, whether married or not, unable to maintain itself, or

(c) his legitimate or illegitimate child (not being a married daughter) who has attained majority, where such child is, by reason of any physical or mental abnormality or injury unable to maintain itself, or

(d) his father or mother, unable to maintain himself or herself, a Magistrate of the first class may, upon proof of such neglect or refusal, order such person to make a monthly allowance for the maintenance of his wife or such child, father or mother, at such monthly rate not exceeding five hundred rupees in the whole, as such Magistrate thinks fit, and to pay the same to such person as the Magistrate may from time to time direct: Provided that the Magistrate may order the father of a minor female child referred to in clause (b) to make such allowance, until she attains her majority, if the Magistrate is satisfied that the husband of such minor female child, if married, is not possessed of sufficient means. Explanation.- For the purposes of this Chapter,-

(a) " minor" means a person who, under the provisions of the Indian Majority Act, 1875 (9 of 1875); is deemed not to have attained his majority;

(b) " wife" includes a woman who has been divorced by, or has obtained a divorce from, her husband and has not remarried.

(2) Such allowance shall be payable from the date of the order, or, if so ordered, from the date of the application for maintenance.

(3) If any person so ordered fails without sufficient cause to comply with the order, any such Magistrate may, for every breach of the order, issue a warrant for levying the amount due in the manner provided for levying fines, and may sentence such person, for the whole or any part of each month' s allowances remaining unpaid after the execution of the warrant, to imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month or until payment if sooner made: Provided that no warrant shall be issued for the recovery of any amount due under this section unless application be made to the Court to levy such amount within a period of one year from the date on which it became due: Provided further that if such person offers to maintain his wife on condition of her living with him, and she refuses to live with him, such

Magistrate may consider any grounds of refusal stated by her, and may make an order under this section notwithstanding such offer, if he is satisfied that there is just ground for so doing. Explanation.- If a husband has contracted marriage with another woman or keeps a mistress, it shall be considered to be just ground for his wife' s refusal to live with him.

(5) On proof that any wife in whose favour an order has been made under this section is living in adultery, or that without sufficient reason she refuses to live with her husband, or that they are living separately by mutual consent, the Magistrate shall cancel the order."

13. On the basis of provision of Section 125(1)(c) Cr.P.C. and explanation appended thereto, above plea has been raised on behalf of the revisionist.

14. Hon'ble Apex Court considered this matter in Jagdish Jugtawat vs. Manju Lata And Others in SLP (Criminal) No.905 of 2001 decided on 23.4.2002. In that case, respondent No.3, who was a minor, unmarried girl of appellant and his wife Manjulata, however, in course of time, she attained majority. Respondent No.1 wife of the appellant and mother of the respondent No.3 filed petition under Section 125 Cr.P.C. before Family Court claiming maintenance for herself and her two children, the family court by order dated 22.7.2000, granted maintenance at the rate of Rs.500/- per month to each of the applicants. The petitioners herein filed a revision petition before the High Court assailing the order of the family court on the ground, inter alia, that the respondent No.3 was entitled to maintenance only till she attains age of majority and not thereafter. Considering the point, learned Single Judge of the High Court accepted, the legal position that under Section 125 Cr.P.C., a minor is entitled to maintenance from her parents only till she attains majority, but decline to interfere with the order passed by the Family Court- taking the cue from Section 20(3) of the Hindu Adoptions and Maintenance Act, under which the right of maintenance is given to minor daughter till her marriage. Learned Single Judge was persuaded to maintain the order of the Family Court with a view to avoid the multiplicity of the proceedings, with observation that the Court is not inclined to interfere in the order of Family Court granting maintenance to respondent No.3 on the ground that she having attained majority would cease to have the benefit of the provisions of Section 125 Cr.P.C., though she would be entitled to claim benefits provided under the statute/personal law, as the order does not result in miscarriage of the justice, rather interfering with the order would create great inconvenience to respondent No.3 as she would be forced to file another petition under Sub-section (3) of Section 20 of the Act for further maintenance, etc. Hon'ble Apex Court affirmed the finding and observation made by the learned Single Judge of the High Court and observed that applying the principle to the facts and circumstances of the case in hand, it is manifest that the right of a minor girl for maintenance from parents after attaining majority till her marriage is recognized in Section 20(3) of the Hindu Adoptions and Maintenance Act. Therefore, no exception can be taken to the judgment/order passed by the learned Single Judge for maintaining the order passed by the Family Court which is based on a combined reading of Section 125 Cr.P.C. and Section 20(3) of the Hindu Adoptions and Maintenance Act. For the reasons aforesaid we are of the view that on facts and in the circumstances of the case, no interference with the impugned judgement order of the High Court is called for.

15. Thus, in the light of pronouncements of Hon'ble Apex Court in aforesaid cases, this Court is of the opinion that the plea raised on behalf of the revisionist that having lost his job and being devoid of any regular employment, the revisionist may not be saddled with liability to maintain his wife and children, is not tenable. In the same vein, the respondent No.3 Vanshika, the daughter of the revisionist and respondent No.2 will not be deprived of the maintenance awarded by the learned Family Court only on the ground that during pendency of proceeding, she attained majority. However, this court is not oblivious of the fact that when the maintenance was awarded by the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, vide order dated 21.1.2015, the revisionist was residing in Portugal in connection with his livelihood and thus the fact is not denied that now he has lost his job abroad and came back to the place of his parents. This is also admitted position that revisionist and private respondents are residing in the same house, said to be built by parents of revisionist. He has taken a plea that he earns livelihood by some odd jobs like driving tempo and earns in meager amount whereas according to the submissions of learned counsel for the private respondents and averments in counter affidavit filed on behalf of the private respondents, the fee structure of her dependent children has been enhanced by the course of time and they are also taking tuition by private home tutor; it is also stated therein that it would be incorrect to state that there is no earning of the revisionist and he has become jobless. The revisionist has not disclosed his real income before the court below in proceeding under Section 125 Cr.P.C. He made several defaults in payment of maintenance awarded by court below as modified by interim order passed by this Court.

16. Considering the changed circumstances related to the revisionist, which has affected his earnings as he lost his job in Portugal, this Court is of the view that the amount ordered by learned court below towards maintenance of the respondent No.2 to 4 is liable to be modified in the light of the facts and circumstances of the case. Impugned order passed by court below awarding maintenance to private respondents against present revisionist is modified to the extent mentioned as under:-

(1) The revisionist shall pay monthly maintenance allowance at the rate of Rs.5,000/- to respondent No.1 Vinita Maurya and her daughters Vanshika and Niharika at the rate of Rs.2500/- per month to each of them with effect from 1.1.2015, as and when becomes due in the manner provided by the court below under the impugned award.

(2) The arrears of maintenance will be computed in accordance with the direction No.1 as above, from 1.1.2015 and will be payable to the respondents in 10 equal and monthly installments, which will commence from the period of one month from the date of production of certified copy of this order before the court concerned.

(3) Any amount deposited by the revisionist towards the maintenance allowance payable to opposite party Nos.2 to 4 either in terms of award of learned Principal Judge, Family Court or in terms of interim order of this Court dated 25.3.2015 will be adjusted into the amount payable by the revisionist. The amount payable by the revisionist will be spread over 10 monthly installments as stated above. However, it is made clear that in the event of failure on the part of the revisionist to oblige any part of the order, coercive measures be revived from that stage and recoveries will be made in accordance with law.

17. Accordingly, the revision petition is disposed of in the manner and the maintenance awarded by the court below will stand modified to the above extent, accordingly.

18. Let a copy of this order be forwarded to court concerned for information and necessary actions.

1. Hardeep Singh Vs St. of Punj., (2014) 3 SCC 92

2. Sagar Vs St. of U.P. , (2022) 6 SCC 389

(Delivered by Hon'ble Arun Kumar Singh Deshwal, J.)

1. Heard Sri Ravikant Shukla, learned counsel for the revisionists, Sri Manvendra Singh, learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 and learned AGA for the State.

2. By way of present revision, revisionists, who are two in numbers, have challenged the order dated 04.02.2023 passed by the learned Additional Sessions Judge/Special Judge (Rape and POCSO Act), Court No.1, Fatehpur in Special Sessions Trial No.101 of 2019, by which application of first informant (father of victim) under Section 319 Cr.P.C. was allowed and revisionists were summoned under Sections-506 and 376 D IPC read with Section-7/8 of Protection of Children From Sexual Offences, Act 2012 to face the trial.

3. Contention of learned counsel for the revisionists is that for the incident dated 25.02.2019, FIR was lodged on 06.03.2019 by the father of victim under Sections-363, 366 and 506 IPC in Case Crime No.83 of 2019 at Police Station-Bindki, District-Fatehpur, making allegations that co-accused, Pawan Raidas enticed away his 13 year daughter Renu Devi and present revisionists also helped him in the aforesaid crime. During investigation, statement of victim under Section-161 Cr.P.C. and thereafter, under Section-164 Cr.P.C. was recorded but victim did not make any allegations against the present revisionists. On the contrary, she admitted that she had run away with Pawan Kumar willingly for marriage because she likes Pawan. During investigation, medical examination of victim was also conducted in which no opinion about sexual assault was given and CMO by certificate dated 04.04.2019 mentioned the age of victim Renu Devi as 19 year on the basis of radiological examination. Thereafter, police submitted charge-sheet dated 01.06.2019 against the co-accused, Pawan Raidas and involvement of revisionists was found to be false. It is also submitted that during investigation co-accused, Pawan as well as the victim Renu Devi and also the present revisionists had also approached this Hon'ble Court by way of Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.7322 of 2019 challenging the FIR of Case Crime No.83 of 2019 registered at Police Station-Bindki, District-Fatehpur. In that writ petition, the victim Renu Devi had filed an affidavit stating therein that she willingly run away with Pawan and got married with him. On the basis of aforesaid affidavit of victim Renu Devi, writ petition was disposed of by order dated 15.03.2019 granting interim protection to all the petitioners including the present revisionists from arrest till submission of chargesheet.

4. It is further submitted that all these documents were before the court below during inquiry and on the basis of the evidence available on record, charges were framed against co-accused Pawan Raidas. During trial, PW-1 (victim) had taken u-

turn and had stated that the present revisionists along with the co-accused, Pawan forced her to sit in Baleno Car and threatened that she had to get married with Pawan. Thereafter, they kept her at Maharajpur and repeatedly raped her for many days and thereafter co-accused, Pawan forced her to sign on blank paper and then brought her to this Court and thereafter, when the police raided at their house then they left the victim at Bindki, Lalauli Chauraha where the police recovered her. It was further contended that the statement of PW-1 was recorded at the instance of her father who is the first informant because aunty of revisionists, namely, Gudiya Devi had moved an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. on 13.11.2017 which was registered as complaint case no.57 of 2018 in which summoning order was also passed on 19.07.2022 summoning the father of PW-1 (Jai Karan Nishad) and thereafter charges were also framed on 19.07.2022, against the first informant, Jai Karan Nishad for the incident dated 18.09.2017 for outraging her modesty, beating and injuring her as well as her family members.

5. Learned counsel for the revisionists lastly submitted that there is no sufficient material to summon them under Section 319 Cr.P.C. on the basis of statement of PW-1 recorded before the Court on 03.11.2020 as there is not only a u-turn from her earlier statement recorded under Sections-161 and 164 Cr.P.C. but there was serious contradiction in the statement of PW-1, therefore, prayed for quashing of the impugned order.

6. On the other hand, learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 had stated that the alleged complaint filed by the aunty of revisionists was lodged subsequent to the FIR lodged by the first informant (father of victim) against the revisionists. It was further submitted that as per the school certificate as well as statement of PW-1, her date of birth is 15.01.2006. Therefore, at the time of incident, victim was minor, therefore, her statement recorded under Sections-161 and 164 Cr.P.C. has no evidentiary value.

7. Learned AGA also submitted that on the basis of statement of PW-1, there is sufficient material on record to summon the revisionists under Section-319 Cr.P.C., therefore, present revision deserves to be dismissed.

8. After hearing counsel for the parties and from perusal of record, the first question arises is whether the material available during inquiry which was collected during investigation like statement under Section-161 Cr.P.C. as well as under Section-164 Cr.P.C. and also the medical examination report as well as age determination certificate of CMO can be looked into while summoning the accused under Section 319 Cr.P.C., on the basis of statement recorded at the time of trial.

9. Second question arises is whether there is sufficient material available on the basis of statement of PW-1 during trial to summon the revisionists.

10. Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Hardeep Singh Vs State of Punjab (2014) 3 SCC 92 had observed in paragraph no.54, which is being quoted as below :

"54. In our opinion, the stage of inquiry does not contemplate any evidence in its strict legal sense, nor could the legislature have contemplated this inasmuch as the stage for evidence has not yet arrived. The only material that the court has before it is the material collected by the prosecution and the court at this stage prima facie can apply its mind to find out as to whether a person, who can be an accused, has been erroneously omitted from being arraigned or has been deliberately excluded by the prosecuting agencies. This is all the more necessary in order to ensure that the investigating and the prosecuting agencies have acted fairly in bringing before the court those persons who deserve to be tried and to prevent any person from being deliberately shielded when they ought to have been tried. This is necessary to usher faith in the judicial system whereby the court should be empowered to exercise such powers even at the stage of inquiry and it is for this reason that the legislature has consciously used separate terms, namely, inquiry or trial in Section 319 Cr.P.C."

11. From the observations of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the above case, it is clear that the material available at the time of inquiry is also the evidence for the purpose of Section-319 Cr.P.C. It is also clear that during inquiry only material that could be available is the material collected by the Investigating Officer during investigation because at that time, no other material could be brought on record but question arises relevancy of this material available during inquiry for the purpose of exercising power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. on the basis of evidence comes during trial. This question was also answered by Hon'ble Supreme Court in paragraph no.85 of Hardeep Singh Vs State of Punjab (supra), which is quoted hereinunder:

"85. In view of the discussion made and the conclusion drawn hereinabove, the answer to the aforesaid question posed is that apart from evidence recorded during trial, any material that has been received by the court after cognizance is taken and before the trial commences, can be utilised only for corroboration and to support the evidence recorded by the court to invoke the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. The 'evidence' is thus, limited to the evidence recorded during trial."

12. Therefore, for exercising power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. apart from the evidence recorded during trial, any material that has been received by the court after cognizance is taken and before the trial commences, can be utilized for corroboration and to support the evidence recorded by the court to invoke the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C.

13. The evidence is thus limited to evidence recorded during trial but same can be corroborated or supported by the evidence available during inquiry.

14. So far as second question regarding the availability of sufficient material for summoning the revisionists on the basis of statement of PW-1 recorded at the time of trial is concerned, for that purpose, Hon'ble

Supreme Court has already issued detailed guidelines in Hardeep Singh Vs State of Punjab (supra) in paragraph nos.105 and 106 which are quoted as below :

"105. Power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. is a discretionary and an extraordinary power. It is to be exercised sparingly and only in those cases where the circumstances of the case so warrant. It is not to be exercised because the Magistrate or the Sessions Judge is of the opinion that some other person may also be guilty of committing that offence. Only where strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person from the evidence led before the court that such power should be exercised and not in a casual and cavalier manner."

106. Thus, we hold that though only a prima facie case is to be established from the evidence led before the court not necessarily tested on the anvil of Cross-Examination, it requires much stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity. The test that has to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge, but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes un rebutted, would lead to conviction. In the absence of such satisfaction, the court should refrain from exercising power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. In Section 319 Cr.P.C. the purpose of providing if 'it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence' is clear from the words "for which such person could be tried together with the accused." The words used are not 'for which such person could be convicted'. There is, therefore, no scope for the Court acting under Section 319 Cr.P.C. to form any opinion as to the guilt of the accused."

15. Similarly, Hon'ble Supreme Court in Sagar Vs. State of U.P. (2022) 6 SCC 389 also observed regarding sufficiency of material as well as power under Section-319 Cr.P.C. Relevant paragraph no.9 of the said judgement is quoted as under:

"9. The Constitution Bench has given a caution that power under Section 319 of the Code is a discretionary and extraordinary power which should be exercised sparingly and only in those cases where the circumstances of the case so warrant and the crucial test as noticed above has to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge, but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes un rebutted, would lead to conviction. The learned Single Judge of the High Court has even failed to consider the basic principles laid down by this Court while invoking Section 319 of the Code, which has been considered by the learned trial Judge under its order dated 30 th January, 2018."

16. From Section 319 Cr.P.C., it is clear that power of summoning a person as accused can be exercised on the basis of material coming on record during inquiry or trial. For ready reference, Section 319 Cr.P.C. is being quoted as below:

"319. Power to proceed against other persons appearing to be guilty of offence.- (1) Where, in the course of any inquiry into, or trial of, an offence, it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence for which such person could be tried together with the accused, the Court may proceed against such person for the offence which he appears to have committed.

(2) Where such person is not attending the Court, he may be arrested or summoned, as the circumstances of the case may require, for the purpose aforesaid.

(3) Any person attending the Court, although not under arrest or upon a summons, may be detained by such Court for the purpose of the inquiry into, or trial of, the offence which he appears to have committed.

(4) Where the Court proceeds against any person under sub- section (1), then-

(a) the proceedings in respect of such person shall be commenced a fresh, and the witnesses re-heard;

(b) subject to the provisions of clause (a), the case may proceed as if such person had been an accused person when the Court took cognizance of the offence upon which the inquiry or trial was commenced."

17. The purpose of Section 319 Cr.P.C. is to impose a duty to enable the court so as to encompass any situation which the court may have to tackle while proceeding to try an offence and not allow a person who deserves to be tried to get escort free by being not arraigned in the trial instead of the possibility of his complicity which can be gathered from the document presented by the prosecution. The court is sole repository of justice and a duty is cast upon it to uphold the rule of law and, therefore, it will be inappropriate to deny the existence of such power with a court in a criminal justice system where it is not uncommon that real accused, at times, gets away by manipulating the investigating and/or the prosecuting agency. The desire to avoid trial is so strong that an accused makes effort at times to get himself absolved and even at the stage of investigation or inquiry, even though he may be connected with the commission of offence. Therefore, word evidence used in Section 319 Cr.P.C. has to be understood in its wider sense, both at the stage of trial and even at the stage of inquiry. The court, therefore, should be understood to have power to proceed against any person after summoning him on the basis of any such material as brought forth before it. The duty and obligation of the court becomes more onerous to invoke such power cautiously on such material after evidence has been led during trial.

18. Now, we come to second question whether there is sufficient material on the basis of statement of PW-1 recorded during trial to summon the revisionists under Section 319 Cr.P.C. In her statement, PW-1 admitted that she was medically examined for the purpose of any assault as well as for the purpose of determination of her age and also her statement was recorded by Magistrate but she had stated that her statement under Section-164 Cr.P.C. was recorded under the threat of co-accused, Pawan and her father, Harilal. At one stage of her statement, PW-1 has stated that, only Pawan had been residing with her in room and no other person was there but subsequently, she stated all persons had been residing with her in room. In examination-in-chief, she stated that all persons committed rape upon her repeatedly but in cross-examination, PW-1 stated that except Pawan, only revisionist no.1 committed rape upon her and no other person committed rape upon her. During trial there was only statement of PW-1 which was basis of passing the impugned order and there was no other evidence on record showing that any other person has seen the above incident as stated by PW-1. On considering the totality of statement of PW-1 as well as its corroboration with the material available at the time of inquiry i.e. statement under Sections-161 and 164 Cr.P.C., evidence is not sufficient for summoning the revisionists because as per the established law by Hon'ble Supreme Court, the test is that material must be more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charges but short of satisfaction to the extent that evidence if goes unrebutted would lead to conviction. So far as contention of counsel for opposite party no.2 that as per school leaving certificate of victim, she is minor, therefore, her statement recorded under Sections-161 and 164 Cr.P.C. is not relevant, is concerned, that is also misconceived because if this reasoning is accepted then her statement during trial as PW-1 will also cannot be treated as evidence. Even otherwise, it is established position of law that minority of a witness itself cannot be a ground to reject his/her testimony if he/she is quite mature to understand his or her testimony.

19. Therefore, in totality considering the material collected by the prosecuting agency during investigation available at the time of inquiry as well as the statement of PW-1 recorded during trial is not sufficient for summoning the revisionists as additional accused in exercise of power under Section-319 Cr.P.C. to establish the complicity of revisionists in crime.

20. In view of the facts discussed above as well as the law laid down by the Apex Court in Hardeep Singh Vs State of Punjab (supra) as well as Sagar Vs. State of U.P. (supra), the impugned order dated 04.02.2023 is set aside and the present revision is allowed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Umesh Chandra

1. Heard Mr. Ganesh, learned counsel for the revisionist and learned Additional Government Advocate. None appeared from the side of opposite party no.2 to argue the case. Perused the material available on record.

2. This criminal revision has been preferred against the order passed by opposite party no.2/Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Robertsganj, District Sonbhadra dated 02.05.2013 in Case No.39 of 2013 (Smt. Prema Devi Vs. Rajkeshwar Yadav), under Section 145 CrPC, Police Station Kone, District Sonbhadra whereby the land being Arajai nos.4, 5, 11, 15, 313, 721 722, 749, 767/1 and 267/202 total 11 gata area 1.0.912 hectare had been attached under section 146 (1) CrPC.

3. The facts in brief of the case are that on the report of Station House Officer, Police Station Kone that there was breach of peace with regard to the aforesaid plot numbers and there was essentiality of attachment of the aforesaid plots under Section 146(1) CrPC the Sub-divisional Magistrate convinced with the report of the concerned SHO attached the aforesaid plots under Section 146(1) CrPC vide order dated 02.05.2013. Before passing the impugned order, a preliminary order under Section 145(1) CrPC had also been passed by the concerned SDM. Being aggrieved from the order of the SDM, this revision petition has been preferred.

4. Facts of the case are that Prema Devi opposite party no.3 moved an application under Section 145 CrPC before the concerned SDM stating that respondent no.7, Jag Narayan (now deceased) son of Tulsi had 1/5th share in property in question which was also in his use and occupation, was, later on, purchased by Prema Devi and her name had also been mutated in the revenue records. Opposite party nos.2 to 5, 7 & 8 are the real tenure holder and respondent no.1 - Rajkeshwar is also recorded co-tenure holder after execution of sale deed from Satya Narayan and Raj Narayan son of Tulsi. Respondent nos.6 and 9 purchased the shares through sale deed from Shiv Prasad father of respondent no.8 and respondent nos.2 to 5 respectively and have become co-tenure holder. Gata no.773(ka) is a valuable property on the main pitch road of Kone to Telgudwa Road in which all the brothers and the purchasers have the share and title.

5. On the basis of money and muscle power opposite party no.1 tried to occupy the part of land adjoining to the road since month of June, 2011 after purchasing the land from two sons of Tulsi. A case for partition had also been filed by Prema Devi in which an interim stay order has also been passed but opposite party no.1 is adamant to change the nature of property in question in any manner and on the request, not to do so, he is adamant to commit offence and cause injury to her and her family members, hence if the property in question is not attached, an untoward incident might be occurred at any time.

6. The application was considered by the Sub-Divisional Magistrate and SHO, Kone, Sonbhadra was directed to send a report for attachment of the property in question under Sections 145/146 CrPC. The report was submitted by concerned SHO and thereafter, the impugned order had been passed by the SDM, which is under challenge before this Court.

7. In this revision, the Revisionist has taken ground that the police report clearly indicates that the revisionist is in possession of the property in question, hence no order for its attachment could be passed. The order under Section 145(1) CrPC and the order under Section 146(1) CrPC have been passed on the same day i.e. 02.05.2013 thus the order under Section

145(1) is wholly illegal and without jurisdiction. The impugned order is an ex parte order without awaiting the written statement. In Suit No.235 of 2011, under Section 176 of the UPZA & LR Act, order to maintain status quo has also been passed on 26.04.2011. Actually, there was no circumstance existing in which aforesaid order could be passed concluding any emergency. Both the orders are bad in law as there was also an order to maintain status quo passed by the Revenue Court in respect of the same land in between the same parties, hence the impugned order is liable to be quashed and the same be quashed.

8. Learned counsel for the applicant relied upon the judgement Ashok Kumar Vs. State of Uttarakhand and others reported in 2013 (3) SCC 366 in which it has been laid down that the Magistrate can act under Sections 145 and 146 CrPC, only when he is unable to decide as to which of the party was in possession. The property can be attached only in case of emergency as contemplated under Section 146 CrPC and mere apprehension of breach of peace cannot be ground to pass an order under Section 146 CrPC, if a suit is pending. It is for the Civil Court to decide as to who was in possession on the date of filing of the suit.

9. On behalf of the opposite party nos.1 and 2, a counter affidavit has been filed in which it has been stated that before passing of impugned order since Rajkeshwar was already in possession and the property in question had been sold to Prema Devi, therefore, a marpeet took place between the parties and for the same, two criminal cases being Case Crime No.210 of 2012, under Sections 523, 504, 506 & 325 IPC and Case Crime No.210A of 2012, under Sections 323, 504, 506 & 308 IPC were lodged by both the parties against each other in which after investigation, charge-sheet had been submitted, however a Suit No.235 of 2011, under Section 176 of the UPZA & LR Act was also pending in which parties were directed to maintain status quo over the land in question but the revisionist tried to obtain forcible possession over the same, due to which, there was apprehension of breach of peace between the parties, therefore, SHO, Kone had submitted a report before opposite party no.2 regarding apprehension of breach of peace between the parties and search proceeding under Section 146(1) CrPC was required to be undertaken.

10. Opposite party no.2 after considering the report, concluded that any untoward incident will take place between the parties, hence by order dated 02.05.2013 attached the property in question and directed the SHO to give the aforesaid property in custody of any supurdgar with condition that till date the property in question will remain under the supervision of Police Station Kone. The order passed by opposite party no.2 is just, appropriate and legal order which does not suffer from any illegality or infirmity. Hence, the application be rejected.

11. A rejoinder affidavit has been filed by the applicant denying the allegations of the counter affidavit that a Suit No.235 of 2011, under Section 176 of UPZA & LR Act about the disputed land is pending in which an order to maintain status quo has been passed by SDM, Robertsganj on 24.06.2011 and the same is still effective.

The name of the revisionist has been shown as Bhumidhar, with transferable right in the revenue record of fasli year 1427-1431. On the basis of the contention of the applicant and the rejoinder affidavit, the order dated 02.05.2013 is liable to be vacated.

12. From the above discussion, it is very much clear that about the property in question, a partition suit is pending in Revenue Court in which interim stay order to maintain status quo is also passed and is still in operation. From the records, it also transpires that no report had been transmitted by SHO, Police Station Kone to the learned SDM that there was any apprehension of breach of peace but rather the learned SDM himself directed SO, Kone after getting the report from opposite party no.3 for sending the report for taking action under Sections 145 and 146 CrPC, which is against the provisions of law. Thus, it transpires that since the superior officer had directed the SHO to send a positive report, hence the concerned report had been sent by SHO, Kone upon which SDM passed the impugned order.

13. This Court is also unable to understand that when the Revenue Court had taken cognizance of the property in question and had passed stay order, it was not open for the SDM to proceed with the matter under Sections 145 and 146 CrPC. When a Court's interim stay order was already into existence, the same could be complied with in due course of law by the Revenue Court and there was no occasion for the SDM to exercise the duty under the Code of Criminal Procedure. Though it has also come to knowledge that both the parties had lodged FIR against each other and the parties would have been enlarged on bail on certain conditions, hence it does not look any possibility of breach of peace again in the near future. It is also noteworthy that both the orders under Sections 145 & 146 CrPC have been passed simultaneously and on the same day i.e. 02.05.2013, which is against the provisions of law. It appears that the SDM had already made up the mind to pass the impugned order, hence both the orders were passed together by the learned SDM without affording opportunity to the revisionists.

14. The above findings also find support from the following judicial precedents which are as under:

(a) In Manika Shahu Vs. Dandapani Shahu, 1986 CrLJ 287, it has been held that when between the parties no partition by metes and bounds has taken place, then even when one is in possession over a land for convenience it is a possession of all co-sharers.

(b) In Suresh Kumar Vs. Vijay Kumar, 1988 CrLJ 977 Delhi, it has been held that a property which in joint possession is outside the ambit of Section 145 Cr.P.C. Magistrate can not decide the question of joint possession.

(c) In Ram Sumer Puri Vs. State of U.P., AIR 1985 SC 472, it has been held that where a civil litigation is pending for the property where the question of possession is involved, parallel proceeding in criminal Court is not justified. In such a situation the Apex Court quashed the proceeding before the Magistrate living it open to the parties to approach the Civil Court for injunction or Receiver or the like.

(d) In Iqbal Singh Vs. State of Haryana, 1985 CrLJ 1757 (P& H), it has been held that when Civil Court directs maintenance of status quo, it postulates that the Civil Court is not sure as to which party is in possession. It virtually directs that if the contention of either one of them supposedly was right then that position should be continued. In this backdrop the Magistrate can initiate proceeding to decide which party was in possession. For breach of peace he can invoke Section 107, Cr.P.C. Although he can not attach the property.

(e) In Anand Ram Vs. State of Delhi, 1986 CrLJ 2008, it has been held that when a civil suit is pending and the parties have been directed to maintain status quo, initiation of proceeding under Section 145 Cr.P.C. is improper.

(f) In Mohinder Singh Vs. Dilbagh Rai, 1977 CrLJ 1029, it has been held that in cases of dispute of possession civil court can pass three types of orders- (a) appointment of receiver; (b) granting injunction against a party; and (c) direction to maintain status quo. In first type of cases there can not be any dispute giving rise to proceeding under Section 145 Cr.P.C. In second type of cases jurisdiction of criminal court can not be restricted and if so required Magistrate may have to start a parallel proceeding but only to defend the order of civil court by not allowing the aggressor to come in violating the command of civil court. In third type of cases Magistrate may intervene but only to defend the civil court's order by maintaining status quo.

15. In view of the above discussion, this Court is of the considered conclusion that the impugned order is not liable to be sustained.

Order

16. This criminal revision is accordingly allowed and the impugned order dated 02.05.2013 passed by Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Robertsganj, District Sonbhadra in Case No.39 of 2013 (Smt. Prema Devi Vs. Rajkeshwar Yadav), under Section 146(1) CrPC is hereby quashed.

(A) Criminal Law - The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 397/401 - Revision, Section 125 - Order for maintenance of wives, children and parents - Court must assess the wife's income and determine if she can sustain herself in the husband's house - Sustenance does not mean survival, as per section 125 - Right to claim maintenance must date back to the filing of the application, as the pending maintenance proceedings are not within the applicant's control - claimant wife's employment and husband's economic resources must be considered when awarding interim maintenance, considering her income, genuine needs, and standard of life. (Para - 11,12)

Opposite party filed application under Section 125 Cr.P.C. - against her husband-revisionist - application moved under Section 18A by applicant (opposite party) - partly allowed - revisionist had been directed to pay Rs. 4,000/- as maintenance - on monthly basis to opposite party - from date of filing of application – durin. (Para -3)

HELD:- Court awarded Rs. 4,000/- as interim maintenance to the opposite party in her petition under Section 125 Cr.P.C.against the revisionist /husband. 2. Kiran Tomar & ors. Vs St. of U.P. & anr. , Criminal Appeal No. 1865 Of 2022

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Manohar Naryan Mishra, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the revisionist and learned counsel for the respondent and perused the material on record.

2. The present criminal revision is filed against the order dated 24.5.2022 passed by Principal Judge, Family Court, Rampur in Criminal Misc. Case No. 596 of 2019 (Smt. Nancy Saxena vs. Arpit Saxena) under Section 125 Cr.P.C. whereby application moved under Section 18A by the applicant (opposite party) has been partly allowed and the revisionist had been directed to pay Rs. 4,000/- as maintenance on monthly basis to opposite party Smt. Nancy Saxena from the date of filing of the application and during the pendency of application under Section 125 Cr.P.C.

3. The brief facts of the case are that the opposite party filed an application under Section 125 Cr.P.C. before the Principal Judge, Family Court against her husband- revisionist with averments that marriage of the applicant and opposite party was solemnized on 9.5.2017 as per Hindu rites and rituals at Rampur and no dowry was agreed between the parties in the marriage, however, after solemnizing marriage, opposite party and his family members started demanding dowry on pretext of purchasing a plot in Delhi and when the applicant expressed inability of her father to fulfill the demand of her husband and in-laws, they subjected her to mental and physical agony and opposite party used to make unnatural physical relation with the applicant against her will and she was ultimately turned out from her matrimonial home; she is presently residing at the place of her parents; he is not paying a single penny for her maintenance after keeping her out from his home therefore, it is prayed for providing interim maintenance from the date of filing of application, which was partly allowed on 24.5.2022 directing the revisionist to pay interim maintenance Rs. 4,000/- per month to the applicant.

4. Learned counsel for the revisionist submitted that impugned order passed by the family court is manifestly erroneous and unsustainable in the eyes of law as same was passed without considering the materials placed on record; findings recorded in the impugned order are based on misreading of facts and illegal presumption; the findings in the impugned order that as per the income tax return 2021-22 submitted by the husband, his annual income is Rs. 2,59,000/-, therefore, prima facie, he has sufficient income; it is apparent from the said income tax return 2021-22 that under Section 44AD of the Income Tax Act the annual income of the husband from his business/medical shop is Rs. 79,000/- only and the arrears of salary Rs. 1,80,000/- received by him for the services rendered earlier in the private concern has been shown under section 44ADA that is not his regular income but while passing the impugned order the family court has illegally added both said income (mentioned under 44AD and under Section 44ADA) in his regular income. In the income tax return total income has been added for the purpose of computation of income tax in that particular assessment year; it is not the regular income of the husband. In the impugned order the family court recorded the findings that the wife has been working as a teacher and receiving Rs. 13,000/- per month as her salary, therefore, it was incumbent upon the court below to assess the income of the husband and compare it to the income of the wife before granting the interim maintenance but it has wholly illegally observed, "his income is sufficient" which is misconceived and against the settled proposition of law. It is apparent from the record that monthly income of the wife is admittedly more than the income of the husband and she is able to maintain herself, therefore, she is not entitled for maintenance. There are three cases including the present one filed by the wife against the husband which are pending before the District Court, Rampur, which is too far from the district Bhopal of Madhya Pradesh and on different dates the husband comes to Bhopal to Rampur for attending the cases by expending huge amount and on those dates he keeps his medical shop closed, means he does not earn a single penny on those days, which amounts to great harassment to him.

5. He lastly submitted that due to high-handedness and untoward conduct of wife, revisionist became mentally disturbed and unfit for job and ultimately he had to resign from service; he was working as Manager in Strategic Alliance Company and Management Pvt. Ltd. where he was working at the time of marriage and now he is running a small medical shop wherein he earns Rs. 8,500/- per month which is not sufficient for his own survival and bearing cost of a number of litigations filed against him at the instance of opposite party; the amount of interim maintenance awarded by the court below is too much and excessive and is disproportionate and he is not in a position to bear the same; the opposite part is well educated and a skilled lady, who herself is in a position to maintain her and such she is not entitled for interim maintenance, therefore present revision may be allowed and the impugned order passed by the court below may be set aside.

6. Learned counsel for the respondent submitted that the impugned order has been passed on the application for interim maintenance moved by the applicant for maintenance case under Section 125 Cr.P.C.; the order passed by the court below is in the form of an interim measure, which has been passed after considering the pleadings of the parties and documentary evidence on record, finding of fact should not be disturbed or interfered in revision as there is no illegality, irregularity or perversity in the impugned order passed by the court below; the amount of interim maintenance is at lower side as applicant had sought Rs. 3500/- as interim maintenance in her application, in Misc. maintenance case under Section 125 Cr.P.C. court has awarded only Rs.4000/- as interim maintenance and same is not liable to be interfered in revision filed by the opposite party before the court below; it cannot be comprehend that the revisionist who admittedly runs medical retails shop is earning Rs. 8500/- per month only therefrom whereas this is admitted fact that he has undergone B.Pharm and some diploma also; the respondent is victim of domestic violence meted out to her by the revisionist; she was thrown out from her matrimonial home by her husband and she had to depend on her parents who cater to her needs and shelter whereas her father himself is at present jobless.

7. Learned counsel for the respondent placed reliance on the judgement of this Court in Ankur Gupta vs. State of U.P., 2021 (5) ADJ 640, wherein this Court held that monetary relief granted under Section 125 Cr.P.C. shall be adequate, fair and reasonable and consistent with the standard of living to which aggrieved person is accustomed merely because wife is capable of earning, is not sufficient ground to refuse claim of maintenance granted by the court to the minor daughters of opposite party no. 2. In Kiran Tomar and others vs. State of U.P. and another in Criminal Appeal No. 1865 of 2022 the Hon'ble Apex court in para-10 has observed as under:-

"On the first aspect, it is well-settled that income tax returns do not necessarily furnish an accurate guide of the real income. Particularly, when parties are engaged in a matrimonial conflict, there is a tendency to underestimate income. Hence, it is for the Family Court to determine on a holistic assessment of the evidence what would be the real income of the second respondent so as to enable the appellants to live in a condition commensurate with the status to which they were accustomed to during the time when they were staying together. The two children are aged 17 and 15 years, respectively, and their needs have to be duly met."

8. In present case, in income tax return 2021-22 filed by the revisionist, he has shown is annual income as Rs. 2,59,000/-, which has been taken into account by the court below while awarding the interim maintenance to the applicant/opposite party; case of the revisionist is that opposite party in her statement of assets and earnings filed in the form of affidavit in compliance of direction of Hon'ble Apex Court has stated her monthly earning as Rs. 13,000/-; according to the revisionist, the applicant works as a teacher in Whitehall Public School, Rampur.

9. In income tax return and assessment year 2021-22 revisionist has shown his income under Section 44 AD Rs. 79,000/- and income under Section 44ADA as Rs. 1,80,000/-, which is total income in that assessment year is shown as Rs. 2,59,000/-. Under Section 44AD of Income Tax Act presumptive taxation scheme for a businessman is provided whereas under Section 44 ADA the presumptive income for a professional is provided; thus even if it is assumed that income Rs. 1,80,000/- was income earned from arrears of salary received by the revisionist from her previous employment and income earned from his medical shop is shown as Rs. 79,000/- yearly, same cannot be treated as actual annual income because Section itself covers the presumptive income for a small businessman, whose turnover is less than 20 crore prior to budget of 2020; the revisionist is well qualified pharmacist and it cannot be presumed on that basis that he earns only Rs. 8,500/- per month from the shop and it cannot be treated with finality at the stage of deciding an application for interim maintenance, which is an interim measure during pendency of application under Section 125 Cr.P.C.; learned court below has awarded interim maintenance of Rs. 4,000/- to the opposite party after keeping into account the affidavit 13kha filed by the applicant in the form of assets and liability; she has also stated that her salary as teacher received from school is not her regular income. The revisionist has not filed any bank statement in support of his claim that he is a man of meager economic resources.

10. Claiming maintenance is one of the most formidable tools in the armoury of deserted wife to be able to support herself, and is thus crucial for the accomplishing goal of social justice. Courts have established caveats necessary to prevent its abuse. Certain guidelines have been setup by Hon'ble Supreme Court in its judgement in the case of Rajnesh vs. Neha, (2021) 2 SCC 324. Said criteria include the parties' status, the applicant's (in this case the wife's) needs, and the respondent's income and property, the claimant's liabilities and financial responsibilities, the parties' age and employment status, the parties' residential arrangements, the parties' minor children's maintenance, and illness or disability etc.

11. In Rajnesh (supra) it is held that if the wife is earning some income, it cannot operate as a bar from being awarded maintenance by the husband". The duty of the court is to look at the income she is earning in and of itself, and from that, determine whether or nor she is capable of sustaining herself in the manner and lifestyle to which she is accustomed to in the husband's house. Sustenance (as per the provisions of section 125) doesn't mean and cannot be allowed to mean survival. The right to claim maintenance must date back to the filing of the application since the period during which the maintenance proceedings remained pending is not within the control of the applicant.

12. Thus, employment does not clarify the claimant wife and while deciding the question of award of interim maintenance the income of claimant wife, nature of her employment, economic resources of husband, genuine needs of wife, standard of life, she was accustomed to live when she had not live company of her husband all these facts are to be kept in account.

13. Therefore, in my considered opinion, reasonable amount Rs. 4,000/- awarded to opposite party as interim maintenance in her petition under Section 125 Cr.P.C. against the revisionist /husband is not unreasonable, excessive or unfair to the revisionist. Keeping in view the amount of maintenance awarded against the revisionist and attending facts and circumstances of the case no good ground appear to interfere in the impugned order passed by the court below and revision lacks merit and is liable to be dismissed.

14. The revision is accordingly dismissed.

15. However, arrears of interim maintenance prior to passing of impugned order dated 24.5.2022 will be payable to the applicant/opposite party in the form of six equally monthly installments from the date of production of certified copy of this order before the court below provided the revisionist shall pay amount of interim maintenance on monthly basis to the opposite party. However, it is made clear that observations of this Court made therein are only for the purpose of deciding present revision and it will not be binding on court below while deciding the maintenance application on merits.

Revision disposed of. (E-7)

1. Madhu Limaye Vs The St. of Maha. , CrI. Appeal No. 81 of 1977

2. Amar Nath & ors. Vs St. of Harayana & ors. , CrI. Appeal No. 124 of 1977

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Jyotsna Sharma, J.)

1. Heard Vidya Prakash Singh, learned counsel for the revisionists and Sri O.P.

Mishra, the learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the material on record.

2. By means of this criminal revision, the revisionists no. 1, 2 & 3 have challenged the order dated 06.11.2009 passed in Criminal Appeal No. 01 of 2005, Sanjay Jain & Others Vs. State of U.P., arising out of Case Crime No. 175 of 1999, under section-498-A I.P.C. read with section 3/4 of D.P. Act, Police Station-Kavi Nagar, District Ghaziabad, by which the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Ghaziabad passed an order that it shall be presumed that one of the accused person namely, Sanjay Jain, is absconding and accordingly the appeal shall proceed.

3. Some other relevant facts are below:-

i. Sanjay Jain, Om Prakash Jain, Smt. Nisha and Smt. Shakuntala were tried for the offences under sections 498-A I.P.C. and Section 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act, Case Crime No. 175 of 1999. The trial court decided the case convicting all the accused persons for the offences under sections 498-A I.P.C. and section 3/4 of D.P. Act and sentenced them to undergo different span of imprisonment and fine.

ii. The convicts preferred an appeal. During the course of hearing of the appeal, the revisionists-Om Prakash Jain and others informed the appellate court that one of the appellants namely, Sanjay Jain (husband of the victim), has died. On this application, a report was called from the police, who submitted certain papers including death certificate from Nagar Palika Parishad and some medical papers.

The victim (wife of Sanjay Jain) filed an application no. 55-B stating therein that her husband is still alive and that forged and fake papers have been given from the side of the appellants so that the case against him is closed.

iii. The learned appellate court went through the papers filed in this regard and considered the contentions of both the sides and concluded as below:-

"इस प्रकार उपरोक्त परिस्थितियों को देखते हुए मैं इस निष्कर्ष पर पहुंचता हूँ कि पत्रावली पर उपलब्ध दस्तावेजों के आधार पर संजय जैन की मृत्यु निश्चित नहीं है और इस समय अपील की सुनवाई होनी है। ऐसी स्थिति में संजय जैन को फरार मानकर अपील का निस्तारण किया जाना न्यायोचित है।"

4. From the side of respondent no. 2, it is contended that order is purely interlocutory in nature, therefore criminal revision is not maintainable. In addition, this objection has been raised on behalf of State as well as respondent no. 2 that the instant revisionist do not have any locus standi to assail the order. The respondent no. 2 has cited judgments of the Hon'ble Supreme Court given in Madhu Limaye Vs. The State of Maharashtra in Crl. Appeal No. 81 of 1977 decided on 30.10.1977 and Amar Nath & Others Vs. State of Harayana & Others in Crl. Appeal No. 124 of 1977 decided on 29.07.1977 in this regard.

5. In reply to the above contention, it is stated on behalf of revisionists that they being the parents of Sanjay Jain have tried to bring the true facts before the court so that the appeal can proceed. They may not strictly fall in the category of aggrieved persons, however they can very well point out the mistake if any, has been committed by the trial court or the appellate court and in this view of the matter this revision cannot be thrown out at the very threshold.

6. I went through the impugned order. As far as the fact of death of one of the accused/appellant is concerned, it is a matter of inquiry and in case the court comes to a conclusion that in fact he has died the case against him may abate. There may be cases where the such fact of death is disputed and is contested. In such circumstances, the court has to proceed in a very cautious manner. If the court cannot come to any concrete conclusion, it may register a separate miscellaneous case and proceed to inquire into the facts and direct the authorities concerned to furnish evidence. The appeal cannot be left pending just because a collateral issue or a question of mere procedural importance has cropped up which may demand calling for further evidence and may require inquiry.

7. In such peculiar circumstances it was just not right for the appellate court to presume that the appellant is absconding. It would have been much better if a separate miscellaneous case is instituted to decide upon the fact of death of one of the appellant and to proceed with the appeal of the rests of the appellants. It may be made clear that if at any stage of the proceeding the court concerned finds that forged paper has been submitted before it, then it will be within its power to institute an enquiry under section 340 of Cr.P.C. or file an F.I.R. if found fit in the circumstance of matter.

8. The impugned order is set aside and the learned court below is directed to separate the case of appellant Sanjay Jain and to proceed to inquire into the fact of his death. The appeal of the rest of the appellants (the revisionists in this case) shall proceed as per law.

9. Accordingly, this revision is disposed of.

I. INTRODUCTION

1. The instant appeal arises out of an award made by the learned Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/Additional District Judge, Kanpur¹ dated 13.09.2018 in Motor Accident Claim Petition No. 994 of 2013 (Smt. Pooja Shukla and others Vs. Vinay Kumar Tiwari and others) by partly allowing the claim of the claimants.

II. Case of the claimants and respondents before the learned tribunal:

2. Briefly the case of the claimants before the learned tribunal was that the deceased died of injuries sustained in an accident which occurred on 14.08.2013, and was caused by the rash and negligent driving of the driver of JSA Loader bearing Registration No. UP 78 CN 7323. The offending vehicle was insured by the respondent no. 2-United India Insurance Company Ltd. The claimants are the dependants on the deceased Amit Shukla. The deceased was running a unit which manufactures snacks. The deceased was 30 years of age at the time of his death.

III. Compensation awarded by the learned tribunal:

3. The learned tribunal in the impugned judgement dated 13.09.2018 awarded compensation which is depicted in the tabulated form hereunder:

Sr.No.	Heads	Amount Awarded by the tribunal
1.	Monthly Income	3000
2.	Annual Income	36,000/-
3.	Future prospects	25% of 36000= 9,000/-
4.	Annual Income + Future Prospects	36000+9000=45000/-
5.	Deduction towards personal expenses	1/3 of 45000 =15000/-
6.	Annual loss of dependancy	45000-15000=30000/-
7.	Multiplier	17
8.	Total loss of dependancy	30,000x17= 5,10,000/-
9.	Conventional Heads (a) Loss of consortium (b) loss of Estate (c) Funeral Expenses	55,000
10.	Total compensation	5,10,000+55000 = 5,65,000/-
11.	Interest	7%

4. The claimants seek enhancement of compensation by means of the instant appeal.

IV. Arguments of learned counsels:

5. Shri Prakhar Tandon, learned counsel for the appellants assails the order by contending that the learned tribunal led into error by neglecting to consider the income tax returns which reflects the true income of the deceased. Secondly, the personal expenses were incorrectly deducted. The learned trial court also erred in law in awarding future prospects and conventional heads which is in teeth of the law laid by Supreme Court in New India Assurance Co. Ltd. vs. Urmila Shukla and others² and National Insurance Company Ltd. vs. Pranay Sethi and others³.

6. The deceased had four dependants. The deduction of 1/3rd made towards personal expenses made by the learned tribunal was excessive. The amount which is liable to be deduction towards personal expenses of the deceased is 1/4th. The claimants were entitled to a higher amount.

7. Shri Anubhav Sinha, learned counsel for the Insurance Company contends that the award was just and lawful. However, he fairly contends that the award of future prospects was at variance in judgment laid by the Supreme Court in Pranay Sethi (surpa). Similarly, the personal expenses could not be disputed.

V. Issues for Consideration:

8. After advancing their arguments, learned counsels for the respective parties agree that only the following question falls for consideration in the appeal:

Whether the learned tribunal while determining the compensation lawfully computed the amounts under these heads: income, future prospects, deduction, application of multiplier, conventional heads and interest?

VI. Number of dependants and deduction towards expenses:

9. The claimants-respondents claim the following persons as dependants on the deceased:

Sr . No.	Name	Age	Relation
1.	Smt. Pooja Shukla	33	Wife
2.	Smt. Madhuri Shukl	63	Mother
3.	Sri Om Prakash Shukl	68	Father
4.	Km. Shreya Shukla	13	Daughter

10. The deceased had four dependants (father, mother, wife and one minor children). The deduction of 1/3rd made towards personal expenses by the learned tribunal was excessive. The amount which is liable to be deduction towards personal expenses of the deceased is 1/4th.

11. The determination is fortified by authorities in point. While deciding the issue of deduction of personal expenses, the Supreme Court in Sarla Verma (Smt) and others Vs Delhi Transport Company and another⁴ held:

"30. Though in some cases the deduction to be made towards personal and living expenses is calculated on the basis of units indicated in Trilok Chandra [(1996) 4 SCC 362], the general practice is to apply standardised deductions. Having considered several subsequent decisions of this Court, we are of the view that where the deceased was married, the deduction towards personal and living expenses of the deceased, should be one-third (1/3rd) where the number of dependent family members is 2 to 3, one-fourth (1/4th) where the number of dependent family members is 4 to 6, and one-fifth (1/5th) where the number of dependent family members exceeds six."

12. Sarla Verma (supra) was later followed with approval in National Insurance Company Limited Vs. *Pranay Sethi and others*⁵ (See Pr. 37).

VII. Issue of computation of the compensation under various heads:

a. Salary of the deceased:

13. The learned tribunal was led into error by failing to consider the income tax returns filed by the claimants to support their claim. It is established that the deceased was a small skilled entrepreneur. He filed his income tax returns regularly. Income tax returns filed after his death was fully credible and the same was filed by the legal representatives/claimants in discharge of their obligation under Section 159 of the Income Tax Act. The relevant provision is extracted hereunder:

"Legal representatives

159. (1) Where a person dies, his legal representative shall be liable to pay any sum which the deceased would have been liable to pay if he had not died, in the like manner and to the same extent as the deceased."

14. Perusal of the income tax returns shows that such income tax returns was of credible nature and reflected true income of the deceased. The income of the deceased is quantified at Rs. 1, 95, 855/- per annum as reflected in the income tax returns.

15. Learned tribunal was erred in law by discarding the income tax returns for no good cause.

b. Future Prospects:

16. The future prospects are liable to be calculated in accordance with the Uttar Pradesh Motor Vehicles Rules, 19986. Rule 220A-3(iii) of the Rules is relevant and is reproduced hereunder:

"(3) The future prospects of a deceased, shall be added in the actual salary or minimum wages of the deceased as under:

" (i) Below 40 years of age : 50% of the salary."

17. The UP Rules, 1998 came up for consideration before the Supreme Court in New India Assurance Co. Ltd. vs. Urmila Shukla and others⁷. In Urmila Shukla (supra) upon consideration of various judgements including National Insurance Company Ltd. Vs. *Pranay Sethi and others⁸ held:

"10. The discussion on the point in Pranay Sethi was from the standpoint of arriving at "just compensation" in terms of Section 168 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988.

11. If an indicia is made available in the form of a statutory instrument which affords a favourable treatment, the decision in Pranay Sethi cannot be taken to have limited the operation of such statutory provision specially when the validity of the Rules was not put under any challenge. The prescription of 15% in cases where the deceased was in the age bracket of 50-60 years as stated in Pranay Sethi cannot be taken as maxima. In the absence of any governing principle available in the statutory regime, it was only in the form of an indication. If a statutory instrument has devised a formula which affords better or greater benefit, such statutory instrument must be allowed to operate unless the statutory instrument is otherwise found to be invalid."

18. The Rules of the Uttar Pradesh Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 were not under consideration before the Supreme Court in Pranay Sethi (supra) or Sarla Verma (Smt) and others Vs. Delhi Transport Company and another⁹. Future prospects in Pranay Sethi (supra) were determined without noticing the U.P. Rules, 1998. This fact was adverted to in Urmila Shukla (supra):

"8. It is submitted by Mr. Rao that the judgment in Pranay Sethi does not show that the attention of the Court was invited to the specific rules such as Rule 3(iii) which contemplates addition of 20% of the salary as against 15% which was stated as a measure in Pranay Sethi. In his submission, since the statutory instrument has been put in place which affords more advantageous treatment, the decision in Pranay Sethi ought not to be considered to limit the application of such statutory Rule."

19. The U.P. Rules, 1998 are statutory in nature and their operation is not stymied by Pranay Sethi (supra). The U. P. Rules, 1998 have the force of law and shall apply with full force in appropriate cases. The U.P. Rules, 1998 are more beneficial for the claimants than the provisions made in Pranay Sethi (supra) for them. The holdings in Pranay Sethi (supra) can not dilute the advantages conferred by U.P. Rules, 1998 upon the eligible beneficiaries.

20. In this wake, this Court finds that the claimants/respondents are entitled to 50% enhancement in wages under the head of future prospects as contemplated in the U.P. Rules, 1998. The necessary changes in the award shall be accordingly made.

c. Multiplier:

21. The age of the deceased was 30 years at the time of the accident. The applicable multiplier as per Sarla Verma (Smt) and others Vs. Delhi Transport Company and another¹⁰ read with Pranay Sethi (supra) is 17.

d. Calculation of Conventional Heads:

22. The amount determined under conventional heads in the impugned award is at variance with Pranay Sethi (supra). The conventional heads were fixed in Pranay Sethi (supra) by holding as under:

"54. The conventional and traditional heads, needless to say, cannot be determined on percentage basis because that would not be an acceptable criterion. Unlike determination of income, the said heads have to be quantified. Any quantification must have a reasonable foundation. There can be no dispute over the fact that price index, fall in bank interest, escalation of rates in many a field have to be noticed. The court cannot remain oblivious to the same. There has been a thumb rule in this aspect. Otherwise, there will be extreme difficulty in determination of the same and unless the thumb rule is applied, there will be immense variation lacking any kind of consistency as a consequence of which, the orders passed by the tribunals and courts are likely to be unguided. Therefore, we think it seemly to fix reasonable sums. It seems to us that reasonable figures on conventional heads, namely, loss of estate, loss of consortium and funeral expenses should be Rs. 15,000/-, Rs. 40,000/- funeral expenses should be Rs. 15,000/-, Rs. 40,000/- And Rs. 15,000/- respectively."

23. The figure under conventional heads determined in Pranay Sethi (supra) shall be applicable to the facts of this case. The award is modified accordingly.

e. Interest:

24. Interest of 7% and the manner of payment decided by the learned tribunal is just and lawful and does not call for interference.

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. This appeal under Section 173 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 (for short, 'the Act') is directed against a judgment and award of Mr. Rakesh Kumar, Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/ the Additional District Judge, Court No.7, Gorakhpur dated May the 31st, 2017 in Motor Accident Claim Petition No.145 of 2012, ordering the appellant to pay compensation to the claimant-respondent No.1 for a fatal motor accident.

2. The moot question involved in this appeal is: Whether the owner of a motor vehicle, who hands it over for repairs to a mechanic, would be liable in damages to a third party sustaining injury on account of use of the motor vehicle by the mechanic in a public place, for the purpose of carrying out repairs?

3. The facts giving rise to this appeal are these:

Indra Kumar Gupta @ Kumbhe was proceeding on his bicycle on 13.02.2012 to Khalilabad. As he reached near a pond, located ahead of the Beni Madhav Inter College, within the local limits of P.S. Bakhira, District Sant Kabir Nagar at about 1:00 o'clock in the afternoon hours, the rider of motorcycle, bearing registration No. UP-58D-4362, riding his motorcycle, at a high speed and negligently, appeared and without sounding a horn, hit the bicycle that Gupta was riding. In consequence of the impact, Gupta sustained grievous injuries. He was being conveyed for the purpose of medical aid to a hospital in Khalilabad, but died on way. These are the assertions in the claim petition instituted by Gupta's wife, Smt. Badami Devi. Badami Devi is the sole claimant arrayed in the claim petition and the respondent to this appeal. She will hereinafter be referred to as 'the claimant'.

4. It is the claimant's case that though the loss caused by the untimely demise of her husband cannot be compensated in money, but still she is entitled to compensation. The deceased is said to have been earning a sum of Rs.8000/- a month, which he expended on his family. The claimant also asserts that his untimely demise has deprived her of his company. Accordingly, the claimant has demanded in compensation a sum of Rs.18,21,000/-, as per details set forth in Column No.22 of the claim petition.

5. The owner of the offending motorcycle is one Ram Chandra Sahani, arrayed as opposite party No.1 to the claim petition. He is the second respondent to this appeal. He will hereinafter be called 'the owner'. The owner put in a written statement denying the averments in the claim petition generally. In the additional pleas, he has denied the accident involving his motorcycle on the date, time and place alleged. According to the owner, he had entrusted the offending motorcycle prior to the accident to one Ajeet Rajbhar for the purpose of service. Ajeet Rajbhar, without the permission of the owner, was operating the motorcycle, when he caused the accident. The owner had no knowledge of the accident until after the lapse of a week. It is the owner's case that since Ajeet Rajbhar (for short, 'the mechanic') was operating the motorcycle without the owner's consent, it is he, who has to bear the burden of satisfying the compensation awarded, in case the Tribunal is of opinion that it is the offending motorcycle that was involved in the accident.

6. The mechanic, who was arrayed as opposite party No.2 to the claim petition and is the appellant here, put in his separate written statement dated 13.04.2016. He generally denied the allegations in the claim petition. In the additional pleas, it is his case that on 03.02.2012 or at any other date, he was not riding the offending vehicle, but at the time when the accident is said to have happened, he held a valid and effective driving licence, bearing No. A294715KN/05. The said driving licence was issued to him on 07.07.2005 by the Transport Officer, Sant Kabir Nagar. No accident happened on 13.02.2012, because of the mechanic, rashly and negligently riding the offending motorcycle. The claimant merely for the purpose of seeking compensation has come up with this claim. The mechanic has denied his involvement in the accident.

7. On the pleadings of parties, the Tribunal framed the following issues (translated into English from Hindi):

"1. Whether on 13.02.2012 when the deceased Indra Kumar Gupta @ Kumbhe was cycling his way to Khalilabad and had reached the pond, a little ahead of Beni Madhav Inter College within the local limits of P.S. Bakhira, District Sant Kabir Nagar, at about 1:00 o'clock in the afternoon, motorcycle bearing registration No. UP-58D-4362, operated by its rider rashly and negligently and without sounding a horn, bumped into the deceased's motorcycle, which led him to sustain grievous injuries, of which he died while being conveyed to the hospital?

2. Whether on the date and time of the said accident, the rider of the said motorcycle, bearing registration No. UP-58D-4362, held a valid and effective driving licence?

3. Whether on the date and time of the accident, the said motorcycle No. UP-58D-4362 was insured with an Insurance Company?

4. Whether the claimant is entitled to any compensation, if yes, how much and from whom?"

8. On behalf of the claimant, the claimant herself entered the witness box as PW-1, besides examining another Krishna Kumar as PW-2. The owner too entered the witness box and testified as DW-1. Documentary evidence was filed on behalf of the claimant through three lists. The relevant of the evidence for the purpose of this appeal shall be referred to during the course of this judgment.

9. On Issue No.1, after considering the entire evidence on record, the Tribunal held that the offending motorcycle was being ridden by the mechanic at the time when the accident happened. The finding has been recorded after considering the testimony of PW-2, an eye-witness, besides that of the owner. It has also been taken note of that the mechanic was apprehended on the spot along with the motorcycle and taken to the police station. The mechanic's shop is located at a distance of 200 meters from the site of the accident. The owner has said in his examination-in-chief that he had forbidden the mechanic from riding his motorcycle in his absence or doing a trial run, but in his cross-examination the owner has said that he had not given any written instructions to the mechanic not to operate the motorcycle in his absence or to do a trial. The Tribunal has taken note of the fact that the owner had informed the Police about the mechanic causing the accident, while operating the offending motorcycle, and further that the Police in the relative criminal case have charge-sheeted the mechanic. It was, thus, held by the Tribunal that the offending motorcycle, on the date of the accident, caused it while being operated by the mechanic, and in the said accident, Gupta sustained injuries leading to his death.

10. On Issue No.2, the Tribunal has returned a finding that on the date of the accident, the mechanic held a valid and effective driving licence. So far as Issue No.3 is concerned, the finding returned is that on the date and time of the accident, the offending motorcycle was not insured.

11. The most crucial findings are those on Issue No.4. Here, apart from liquidating the quantum of compensation to which the claimant has been found entitled, the Tribunal has also decided the question as to who, amongst the owner and the mechanic, would be liable to make it good. The Tribunal has opined that since the mechanic had been forbidden from operating the vehicle by the owner in his absence, it is evident that the accident happened when the mechanic was using it for some work of his own. Therefore, the liability to make good the compensation awarded would fall on the mechanic's shoulder; not the owner's.

12. With these remarks, the Tribunal decreed the claim petition, awarding compensation in the sum of Rs.1,88,000/- with 6% interest from the date of institution of the claim petition. The liability to pay compensation was placed exclusively on the mechanic's shoulders. The owner was relieved of the liability.

13. Aggrieved, the mechanic has preferred the instant appeal, asking the liability to be shifted to the owner. It is in this context that the question set forth in the opening part of this judgment has arisen.

14. Heard Mr. Aditya Singh Parihar, Advocate holding brief of Mr. Ramesh Chandra Pathak, learned Counsel for the mechanic and Mr. Manish Kumar Pandey, Advocate holding brief of Mr. Vijay Kumar Dubey, learned Counsel for the owner. No one appears on behalf of the claimant.

15. It is argued by Mr. Aditya Singh Parihar, learned Counsel for the mechanic, limiting his submissions to a criticism of that part of the Tribunal's findings on Issue No.4, where it has been held as to who would be liable to pay the compensation awarded, that the Tribunal has gone utterly wrong in holding that the mechanic is liable. It is argued with much emphasis that the Tribunal has failed to consider that at the time when the accident happened, the mechanic was test-driving the offending motorcycle, which was part of the contract of bailment, that is to say, service of the offending motorcycle, under which he had custody of it given by the owner. It is also argued that the remark of the Tribunal that the mechanic was operating the offending motorcycle for his own use is bereft of any evidence. It is argued that the fact that the accident took place at a site, located around 200 meters from the mechanic's shop, fortifies circumstantially, the mechanic's stand that he was test-driving the offending motorcycle. Mr. Aditya Singh Parihar has then submitted that the liability to make good the compensation under the Act would be that of the registered owner of the offending motorcycle. In support of his contentions, he has placed reliance upon the decision of the Supreme Court in Naveen Kumar v. Vijay Kumar and others, (2018) 3 SCC 1, where it has been held:

"13. The consistent thread of reasoning which emerges from the above decisions is that in view of the definition of the expression "owner" in Section 2(30), it is the person in whose name the motor vehicle stands registered who, for the purposes of the Act, would be treated as the "owner". However, where a person is a minor, the guardian of the minor would be treated as the owner. Where a motor vehicle is subject to an agreement of hire purchase, lease or hypothecation, the person in possession of the vehicle under that agreement is treated as the owner. In a situation such as the present where the registered owner has purported to transfer the vehicle but continues to be reflected in the records of the Registering Authority as the owner of the vehicle, he would not stand absolved of liability. Parliament has consciously introduced the definition of the expression "owner" in Section 2(30), making a departure from the provisions of Section 2(19) in the earlier 1939 Act. The principle underlying the provisions of Section 2(30) is that the victim of a motor accident or, in the case of a death, the legal heirs of the deceased victim should not be left in a state of uncertainty. A claimant for compensation ought not to be burdened with following a trail of successive transfers, which are not registered with the Registering Authority. To hold otherwise would be to defeat the salutary object and purpose of the Act. Hence, the interpretation to be placed must facilitate the fulfilment of the object of the law. In the present case, the first respondent was the "owner" of the vehicle involved in the accident within the meaning of Section 2(30). The liability to pay compensation stands fastened upon him. Admittedly, the vehicle was uninsured. The High Court has proceeded upon a misconstruction of the judgments of this Court in Reshma [HDFC

Bank Ltd. v. Reshma, (2015) 3 SCC 679 : (2015) 2 SCC (Civ) 379 : (2015) 2 SCC (Cri) 408] and Purnya Kala Devi [Purnya Kala Devi v. State of Assam, (2014) 14 SCC 142 : (2015) 1 SCC (Civ) 251 : (2015) 1 SCC (Cri) 304].

14. The submission of the petitioner is that a failure to intimate the transfer will only result in a fine under Section 50(3) but will not invalidate the transfer of the vehicle. In T.V. Jose [T.V. Jose v. Chacko P.M., (2001) 8 SCC 748 : 2002 SCC (Cri) 94], this Court observed that there can be transfer of title by payment of consideration and delivery of the car. But for the purposes of the Act, the person whose name is reflected in the records of the Registering Authority is the owner. The owner within the meaning of Section 2(30) is liable to compensate. The mandate of the law must be fulfilled."

16. Mr. Manish Kumar Pandey, learned Counsel appearing for the owner, on the other hand, submits that the owner entered the witness box as DW-1 and has specifically said in his testimony that he had not prohibited the mechanic to drive the offending motorcycle after repairs in writing, but had verbally instructed him not to use the motorcycle in his absence. It is argued that the mechanic has not taken a plea in the written statement that he was test-driving the offending motorcycle after repairs. Rather, he has said that he never caused the accident, a fact which has been established to be incorrect. It is not clear, according to Mr. Pandey, that the mechanic was driving the offending motorcycle after repairing it or before he had carried out the repairs. It is also not clear if indeed he was using it for his own purpose. It is emphatically submitted that the plea that the mechanic was test-driving the motorcycle has not been raised before the Tribunal specifically and, therefore, cannot be canvassed before this Court for the first time. If the said plea were to be accepted, it would be based on mere conjecture, without any pleading or material.

17. It is submitted by the learned Counsel for the owner that the mechanic has not entered the witness box and testified before the Tribunal. He has not produced any witnesses either to contradict the owner's stand. It is urged that the since the mechanic has not rebutted the owner's case in his pleading or in the witness-box in any manner, the owner's testimony remains unrebutted. It is on the aforesaid premise of pleadings and evidence that the Tribunal has rightfully held that the mechanic was riding the offending motorcycle on the date and time of the accident without the owner's permission. He submits that the owner under the circumstances cannot be held vicariously liable for the mechanic's tort in causing death of the claimant's husband.

18. The learned Counsel for the owner has placed reliance upon the decision of the Supreme Court in Sitaram Motilal Kalal v. Santanuprasad Jaishankar Bhatt, AIR 1966 SC 1697; Minu B. Mehta and another v. Balkrishna Ramchandra Nayan and another, (1977) 2 SCC 441; and, Pushpabai Purshottam Udeshi and others v. Ranjit Ginning & Pressing Co. (P) Ltd. and another, (1977) 2 SCC 745. It is urged on the foot of these authorities by Mr. Manish Kumar Pandey that the master would be vicariously liable for the accident or negligence of his servant or driver, if the driver is acting or driving the vehicle in the course of employment of his master, and for the purpose of some work of his master's. But, the master would not be liable if the servant or driver at the time of the accident, is not acting or driving during course of employment, but doing something for himself. Here, it is submitted that on the evidence, there is nothing to show that the mechanic was riding the motorcycle for a purpose of the owner's. It was, thus, in operation of the vehicle beyond the limited scope of his authority, and, in fact contrary to the instructions of the owners that the accident occurred.

19. It is next submitted that the ratio of the decision in Naveen Kumar (supra), that has been relied upon by Mr. Aditya Singh Parihar to say that it is always the registered owner of the offending motorcycle, who would be liable, is a principle laid down in a completely different context. He submits that the principle has been laid down in the context of transfer of a vehicle with delivery of possession to the transferee, where the transfer is not recorded under the Act. It is in those cases that it has been laid down that notwithstanding the purchaser of the vehicle, who has not yet become its registered owner causing an accident, the liability to make good the compensation awarded would still be of the registered owner; not the unregistered transferee.

20. This Court has keenly considered the submissions advanced on both sides and perused the record.

21. The evidence in this case shows that there is no cavil between parties that the offending motorcycle was entrusted by the owner to the mechanic for the purpose of carrying out routine maintenance service. Somewhere, it has been suggested as repairs too. That is not very clear, but would not make much difference because routine maintenance service of every motor vehicle may always involve some repair job. The parties are sharply at issue on the evidence adduced about the fact, if the owner had forbidden the mechanic from operating or riding the offending motorcycle in his absence. In his examination-in-chief, the owner has taken a stand that he forbade the mechanic from operating it in his absence. But, in his cross-examination, the owner has conceded that he did not forbid the mechanic from doing so in writing.

22. It must be said that it is necessary to answer the question involved in this case as to what is the nature of relationship under the law between the owner of a motor vehicle, who entrusts it to a mechanic for service or repair. Is it that of a master and servant, a principal and agent or a bailor and bailee?

23. There are decisions, which have regarded the relationship between the owner of a motor vehicle and a mechanic entrusted for repairs etc. as that of a master and servant or principal and agent, and some that have considered it to be of a bailor and bailee.

24. In our opinion, these decisions must be referred to in order to find out, if at all a mechanic entrusted with the repairs of a motor vehicle, can be regarded as standing in the relationship of a servant to the master, who is the owner. If by any means that were the correct position of the law, the entire body of the law regarding the vicarious liability of master for the act of his servant, vis-a-vis third parties might apply to the owner, provided the servant was acting in the course of his employment and in accordance with the directions of the master. In that event, in the present case, the instructions issued by the owner to the mechanic that he has shown in his evidence to be one forbidding the mechanic from riding his motorcycle in his absence, would be very relevant. By contrast, if the mechanic is indeed a bailee, he would be an independent contractor, not holding the vehicle subject to directions of the owner. He would, of course, have his duties as a bailee to safeguard the interest of the bailor ex contractu.

25. Under the law of torts a bailee, as would be presently shown, is answerable to third parties for his tortious act while holding the goods or a chattel under bailment, which here is the motor vehicle. The position under the principles governing torts might, however, be slightly different even in the context of a bailee, holding a motor vehicle under bailment because of the provisions of the Act. Nevertheless, it has to be determined whether a mechanic holds the vehicle on behalf of the owner for repairs as his servant or agent or as a bailee; and if he does in fact hold it as a bailee, would the owner be answerable for his tortious acts vis-a-vis third parties under the tort principles, or the statute, that is to say, the Act make the owner liable for the bailee's acts vis-a-vis third parties.

26. K. Anandan v. Ammalu Gomathi and another, AIR 1988 Ker 117 was a case where the owner, who had entrusted his scooter for repairs to a mechanic and who injured a third party by his negligence, was held liable for the mechanic's tort on the principle of master and servant. In K. Anandan (supra), it was held:

"4. It is the case of the first respondent that he entrusted the scooter to the workshop for repairs and never authorised the second respondent to use it on the road and hence he cannot be made

liable for the compensation claimed by the applicant. The question that has to be considered is as to whether the first respondent can be absolved of his liability on the score that the second respondent was not an employee under him. Even according to the first respondent, the vehicle was entrusted to the workshop and the accident occurred while the second respondent took the vehicle on the road for test after repairs.

Thus it can be seen that the owner of the Vehicle (first respondent) had entrusted the vehicle to the workshop and the second respondent, a mechanic of the workshop used the vehicle on the road and it was then that the accident occurred. Counsel for the applicant submitted that as the accident occurred when the second respondent used the vehicle on the road for test after repairs the first respondent cannot disclaim his tortious liability. There is no evidence that the first respondent instructed the workshop owner not to allow the driving of the vehicle for test after the repairs.

5. When a vehicle is entrusted to a workshop for repairs it is only reasonable to infer permission to take it for test driving as part of the work. It is for the first respondent to prove that the act of driving of the vehicle by the employee of the workshop owner was in excess of his authority. It is settled law that the burden is on the owner of the vehicle to prove that he did not authorise the person concerned to drive the vehicle. It is useful to refer to the decision reported in Sitaram v. Santanuprasad, AIR 1966 SC 1697 where it is held as follows:

"A master is vicariously liable for the acts of his servant acting in the course of his employment. Unless the act is done in the course of employment, the servant's act does not make the employer liable. In other words, for the master's liability to arise, the act must be a wrongful act authorised by the master or a wrongful and unauthorised mode of doing some act authorised by the master. The driver of a car taking the car on the master's business makes him vicariously liable if he commits an accident. But it is equally well settled that if the servant, at the time of the accident, is not acting within the course of his employment but is doing something for himself the master is not liable. There is a presumption that a vehicle is driven on the master's business and by his authorised agent or servant but the presumption can be met."

As the second respondent used the scooter on the road the presumption unless rebutted is to the effect that he used it with the authority of the first respondent. As the vehicle was entrusted for repairs to the workshop there was every likelihood of it to have been tested after repairs. Such a possibility cannot be ruled out. It is not possible to hold that the second respondent used the vehicle on the road for a purpose other than testing after repairs. If there is evidence to the contrary first respondent cannot at all be held liable. As there is always a presumption that the machanic drove the vehicle on master's business with due authorization it is futile to contend that the first respondent cannot be saddled with vicarious liability.

6. 1978 Acc CJ 53 (Punj and Har), (Tara Singh v. Mangala Singh) is a case where the vehicle was given for repairs by the owner. An unlicenced worker drove the truck and caused accident. It was held in that decision that as the vehicle was driven by the worker of the workshop it should be deemed to have been driven in the course of employment. In Gopalakrishnan Embrantdiri v. Krishnankutty, 1966 Acc CJ 262 this Court had occasion to consider a case where a vehicle given for repairs was driven by the mechanic and caused accident. In that decision it was held that the act of driving the vehicle was incidental to his job and as it was within the scope of his employment the employer had to answer for its consequences. Savitri Kumari Das v. State of Orissa, 1976 Acc CJ 341 is also a similar case, where the vehicle was given for repairs and the accident occurred when the mechanic took the vehicle for a test drive. As he drove the vehicle in a rash and negligent manner and knocked down a person, the owner was held vicariously liable. As it was necessary to have a test drive after the repair of the vehicle and as this was done for the owner's benefit the liability of the owner can never be a matter in dispute. In Pritam Kaur v. Dal Singh, 1977 Acc CJ 326 (Punj and Har) it has been held as follows:

"It is settled law that if a person is found to be driving the vehicle he shall be presumed to be so doing with the lawful authority of its owner and if the owner alleges that he had not authorised that person for driving of his vehicle then the onus is on him."

As the first respondent does not have a specific case that the vehicle was unauthorisedly used by the second respondent he cannot be heard to say that he is not in any way liable for the claim. As the onus is upon the first respondent to establish that he did not authorise the second respondent to drive the vehicle and as that onus has not been discharged it is futile to contend that liability has been wrongly fastened upon him by the Tribunal.

7. Thus the settled legal position is that there is a presumption that the vehicle is driven on the master's business. Of course it could be repelled by adducing evidence. So long as that has not been done the presumption cannot be brushed aside. In (1977) 3 SCR 372 : (AIR 1977 SC 1735), (Pushpabai v. Ranjit Ginning Co.) it is stated as follows (at p. 1744 of AIR):

"Before we conclude, we would like to point out that the recent trend in law is to make the master liable for acts which do not strictly fall within the term "in the course of the employment" as ordinarily understood. We have referred to Sitaram Motilal Kalal v. Santanuprasad Jaishankar Bhat, (AIR 1966 SC 1697) where this Court accepted the law laid down by Lord Denning in Ormrod v. Crosville Motor Services Ltd., (1953 (2) All ER 753) that the owner is not only liable for the negligence of the driver if that driver is his servant acting in the course of his employment but also when the driver is, with the owner's consent, driving the car on the owner's business or for the owner's purposes. This extension has been accepted by this Court".

The indubitable position is that the owner is liable for the negligence of his driver not only if he acted in the course of his employment but also if he drove the vehicle with his tacit or implied consent for his business or other purposes."

27. In Ramu Tolaram v. Amichand Hansraj Gupta and others, AIR 1988 Bom 304, the issue arose in the context of a motor vehicle handed over to a garage for repairs. After the repairs were over and the car was parked in the garage with the keys being handed over to an independent auto electrician, who worked for the garage and resided there. Some unknown person drove the car out and hit four persons, one of whom died. The question was whether the owners of the garage, who were three partners, or the owner of the motor vehicle could be held vicariously liable for the injuries caused to third parties. In the context of the aforesaid facts, it was held in Ramu Tolaram (supra):

"Mr. Mhamane may be right on this point. But what the learned Advocate has lost sight of is that even assuming that the Company was not liable for the negligence of respondents Nos. 2 to 4, actual or vicarious, it would be answerable for the liability of respondent No. 1, the owner of the car, and it is here that the Court must pause to consider as to whether respondent No. 1 was not liable vicariously for the acts of omission of respondents Nos. 2 to 4. It may be that respondent No. 1 will not be liable vicariously for the loss caused by the un-identified driver, because respondent No. 1 was not having the control of the car at that time, the control having been transferred by respondent No. 1 lawfully to respondents Nos. 2 to 4. When the car is given by the owner of the vehicle to the garage for repairs, the control of the car certainly stands transferred to the owner of the garage. But the point is that in such a case the owner of the garage is constituted by the owner of the car as his agent. Everything done or omitted to be done by the agent will be something for which the principal will be vicariously liable. It is the principal's liability' for the acts done or omitted to be done by the agent. I gave an illustration to Mr. Mhamane. The owner of the garage makes various purchases for the purpose of the repairs of the car. The owner of the car has to pay for those purchases. This could be so only because the owner of the garage is the agent of the owner of the car and the purchases made by the former are as the agent of the latter. If the doctrine of agency extends to this situation, there is no reason why it should not extend to other situation where the car is allowed by the agent to go out of the garage berserk. The liability of the agent will have to be vicariously fastened even upon the principal in such a case.

(iv) Mr. Mhamane relied upon the judgment of a learned Single Judge of this Court reported in 1984, Maharashtra LJ, page 456 (V.J. Acharya v. Ratilal Fulchand Shah) firstly in support of the proposition that the owner of the garage is certainly liable for the damage caused to any person by the car while the same is in the custody of the owner of the garage and secondly in support of his contention that the owner of the vehicle can in no case, be liable for the acts or omissions of the owner of the garage once the control of the car is transferred by the owner of the car to the owner of the garage.

The facts of the case were as follows:--

A Car got stalled up on the road and hence the car owner went to the garage and told the owner about the complaint. Hearing the nature of the complaint the garage owner asked his mechanic to accompany the car owner to the place where the car was parked. The mechanic had no driving license. But all the same, he drove the car to the garage and that too negligently, thus knocking down the claimant. The Tribunal awarded damages both against the owner of the garage as also the owner of the vehicle. A learned Single Judge of this Court held that whether the mechanic was authorised by the owner to drive the car or not, the vicarious liability for the negligence on the part of his employees was complete. However, the Court further held that the mechanic was not the agent of the owner of the Car. It was, therefore, held that the penalty for the negligence on the part of the mechanic could not be visited upon the car owner.

(v) So far as the 1st proposition is concerned, I am in full agreement with the same. But so far as the present case is concerned, the state of record is even more seakes out the car for the owner. Quite often he also drives the car out for the sake of the owner. Kisanlal was not an ordinary aing license. In the instant case, the evidence of the 2nd respondent that Kisanlal had no authority to drive the car is just incredible and, further, in view of the fact that the 2nd respondent has kept a very eloquent mum about the identity of the person driving the car at the particular time reflects upon his evidence in this behalf.

But the above judgment is no authority for the question as to whether the owner of the garage was the agent of the owner of the car or not. The perusal of the judgment shows that what was argued before the Court was as to whether the mechanic having no license to drive the car and who all the same drove the car negligently was the agent of the owner of the car or not. With respect, I am in full agreement with the view taken by the learned Single Judge that the mechanic driver could not be considered to be the agent of the owner as such directly. But the point is that when the car is given by the car owner to the owner of the garage for repairs, the owner of the garage is constituted an agent of the owner of the car for various purposes and while doing that work the owner of the garage is required to drive the car in and out of the garage, either himself or through his own agent. No doubt such owner of the garage is an independent contractor. But even an independent contractor is an agent of the principal by whom the contract is entrusted. I may mention here that this aspect of the vicarious liability of the owner of the car was not urged before this Court when the appeal was decided by this Court. What was urged was that the mechanic was directly the agent of the car owner, not that the owner of the garage was the agent of the car owner. In the present case, I have held that the owner of the garage is liable for the negligence of the driver in question. Once we go a step further and hold that the owner of the garage was the agent of the owner of the car, the principal viz. the owner of the car, must be held exposed to the vicarious liability. Since this point was not even urged before this Court and since this Court had no occasion to consider this aspect of the question in the judgment reported in 1984 MLJ page 456, that judgment cannot be relied upon by Mr. Mhamane as an authority on the question as to whether the garage owner was the agent of the car owner or not....."

28. In Ramu Tolaram, the Court held the owner liable by constituting the garage owners his agents. The doctrine of agency was invoked, making the principal liable for the act of the agent in discharge of the principal's assignment.

29. Thus, whereas in K. Anandan, it has been held that a mechanic entrusted with a car by the owner for its repair, stands in the relationship of the owner's servant, in Ramu Tolaram the owner of a garage entrusted by the owner of a car for its repair has been held to be his agent.

30. This Court must notice the three decisions, relied upon by the learned Counsel for the mechanic to assert that the owner and the mechanic stand in the relationship of the master and servant, so as to render the master liable to third parties in compensation for injuries sustained on account of acts done by the mechanic, during the course of employment. The decision of the Supreme Court in Sitaram

Motilal Kalal (supra), relied on behalf of the owner, is an exposition of the law in the context of the vicarious liability of the owner for acts done by a servant, during the course of employment and about the effect on that liability, if the servant were to act without the course of employment, where he causes injury to third parties. There are also remarks in the said decision about liability of the principal, if the agent injures a third party while acting for the principal, but beyond the scope of his agency. The question in that case also had arisen in the context of use of a motor vehicle. The two other decisions are likewise, ones rendered in the context of the vicarious liability of the master for the tortious acts of his servant, vis-a-vis third parties.

31. None of these decisions were rendered in the context of the tortious acts of a mechanic or a garage owner, who held the motor vehicle for repairs on the owner's behalf and caused an accident during that period. It is for this reason that the said decisions, though laying down principles of profound guidance vis-a-vis the liability of the master for the acts of his servant, may not be of much relevance on the point whether a mechanic stands in the position of a servant or agent of the vehicle owner, when entrusted with custody of the vehicle for repairs.

32. Here, the point that arises may be similar or draw some analogy from the law that applies to masters and servants, principals and agents, but the relationship between the owner and a mechanic is different. The entrustment by the owner of his vehicle to the mechanic is what is known to the law of contract as bailment. The owner is the bailor and the mechanic, the bailee. What is the scope of the authority of the bailee while handling bailed goods or movables entrusted to him, has been the subject matter of judicial exposition. Bailment is defined under Section 148 of the Indian Contract Act. Section 148 reads:

"148. A "bailment" is the delivery of goods by one person to another for some purpose, upon a contract that they shall, when the purpose is accomplished, be returned or otherwise disposed of according to the directions of the person delivering them. The person delivering the goods is called the "bailor". The person to whom they are delivered is called, the "bailee".

Explanation.--If a person already in possession of the goods of another contracts to hold them as a bailee, he thereby becomes the bailee, and the owner becomes the bailor of such goods, although they may not have been delivered by way of bailment."

33. A mechanic, to whom a motor vehicle of any kind is delivered for service or repairs, certainly holds it as bailee, because the essentials of bailment are all present. The mechanic is entrusted the custody of the motor vehicle for the purpose of carrying out repairs etc. When the said purpose is accomplished, the mechanic is under an obligation to return the motor vehicle to the owner, the purpose of delivery thereof to the mechanic being accomplished.

34. In the context of a motor vehicle, the rights of a mechanic as a bailee thereof and how a tort committed by him, if he uses the motor vehicle held on bailment, vis-a-vis a third party would make the owner liable to the wronged third party, was the subject matter of consideration before a Division Bench of Kerala High Court in The Motor and General Finance

(India) Ltd. v. Mary Mony and Other, 1990 SCC OnLine Ker 229. In Mary Mony (supra), what had happened was that, a bus used as a stage carriage was handed over for repairs by its owner to the Motor and General Finance (India) Ltd., who were engaged in the business of repair and service of motor vehicles. The vehicle was in the appellant's garage for servicing, that was still being carried out by workers engaged by the appellant. The claimant's husband, who was the owner of the bus, was also in the garage. One of the workers, who took the driver's seat, started the engine, leading the bus to reverse and hit a compound wall of the garage. This led the claimant's husband to be crushed between the bus and the garage wall. He was seriously injured and rushed to medical aid. A surgery was performed, but the operation was unsuccessful. The claimant's husband succumbed to his injuries. In this case, the bailee was the Motor and General Finance (India) Ltd., the appellant before the Kerala High Court and the tort was committed by one of their servants, vis-a-vis the bailor himself, while the motor vehicle was held by them for service and repairs under a contract of bailment. The principles that have been laid down in the decision is with regard to the bailee's liability to third parties arising out of the use of the bailed goods by the bailee himself, or one of his servants while executing the bailment, notwithstanding the fact that the third party was in fact the owner. It seems from a reading of the decision that the motor vehicle being in the possession of the bailee under the contract of bailment, the injury sustained by the owner was dealt with as an injury to a third party regarding the bailee as the owner for that limited period of time.

35. Expositing the law regarding the liability of the bailee of the bailed goods, that it to say, the vehicle there to a injured third party or his heirs, Varghese Kalliath, J. speaking for the Bench, extensively reviewed the law on the subject, observing:

"9. Admittedly, the vehicle was in the custody of the appellant and that custody was that of a bailee. Section 148 of the Indian Contract Act defines bailment. Bailment is the delivery of goods by one person to another for some purpose, upon a contract that they shall, when the purpose is accomplished, be returned or otherwise disposed of according to the directions of the person delivering them. The person delivering the goods is called the bailor. The person to whom they are delivered called the bailee. The obligation and responsibility of a bailee are delineated in section 151 of the Indian Contract Act and it postulates that in all cases of bailment, the bailee is bound to take as much care of the goods bailed to him as a man of ordinary prudence would, under similar circumstances, take, of his-own goods of the same bulk, quality and value as the goods bailed. All the intents and purposes as long as the contract of bailment continues, there is nothing wrong in deeming the bailee as the owner of the goods bailed. We will consider the effect of a motor accident casted by the employee of the bailee in greater detail later, after considering the question whether the legal representatives of the deceased are entitled to maintain an action against the appellant herein for compensation under the Act.

26. We have said that the liability to pay compensation is a liability under the general law of torts. We have already determined in paragraph 10 the status of the appellant in this case as that of a bailee; What happened is clear. An employee of the bailee caused the accident by his negligence. Allowing the employee to sit in the driver's seat also is an act of imprudence and negligence on the part of the appellant. If the accident has occurred in the same way as it has occurred in this case, and if the victim is not the owner of the vehicle, but a stander, it will be difficult for the bailee to say that he is not liable for compensation. Perhaps, that stranger victim may have a cause of action against the owner of the vehicle also. If circumstances are brought out to fasten liability on the owner of the vehicle or in case the owner fails to get himself extricated from the liability on the basis of exceptions that can be claimed when the accident has occurred on account of the negligence of the bailee both the owner and bailee may be liable to pay compensation to the injured or the legal representatives of the deceased. Anyhow, in general law it is not difficult to find liability for the negligence of the person who was on the driver's seat. There is no dispute that the person, who was on the driver's seat, was solely responsible for the accident and that he was the employee of the appellant. We have no hesitation to hold that the person who actually caused the accident by his negligence has no-defence to escape liability to pay compensation. He is bound to account for his negligence. If the person who is primarily bound to account for the negligence is the employee of the appellant, the appellant is also vicariously liable to account for the negligence of his employee.

27. There are decisions to the effect which would show that the bailee's sole interest is essentially possessory and it is demonstrated by his ability to recover for injury to the goods without proof of--personal loss against a stranger and is consistent with the principles of bailment generally. A right to immediate possession is better characterised as generating a constructive rather than an actual possession.

28. In Mangan v. Leary (1877) 3 N.Z. Jur. (N.S.) C.A. 10 at 16 per Gillies, J. said:

"Until I heard Mr. Macassey's able and ingenious argument, it never 4 Occurred to me to doubt that the law is that either bailee or bailor may sue a wrongdoer for the entire damage done to the chattel bailed. And after careful consideration of the argument and examination of the authorities, I adhere to my previous opinion".

29. There is no dispute that a bailee's possession is a prerequisite or to which it is one of several grounds of potential qualification. His lack of full ownership does not preclude him, from recovering, the full value of the chattel or the full cost of its impairment; the rule in such circumstances is that "as against a wrongdoer, possession is title". (Vide The Winkfield, (1902) P. 42 at 60 and Bailment by Palmer (1979) Edn. Page 177.

30. Palmer in his Book 'Bailment' says that "it was only in the present century that the bailee's rights of action against a wrongdoer were finally established. Although decisions granting him an action in trover for the full value of the goods can be traced from the beginning of the 19th century, it was at first unclear whether his use of this or any remedy was conditional upon his liability to the bailor; if it were not, he would stand to recover more than he had lost, while the wrongdoer would be forfeiting more than the extent of his immediate damage".

31. We have considered now only the bailee's right to recover damages from a wrongdoer in regard to the goods bailed. But, the question that has to be focused is the liability of bailee to third parties. Again we rely in Bailment by Palmer at page 966.

Referring to decided cases, the learned author has epitomised the rule thus:--

"The bailee's responsibility for injury or loss inflicted upon a stranger to the bailment by the chattel is a simple facet of the ordinary law of negligence or trespass and does not necessitate exhaustive discussion. He will be liable if, through the negligent misuse of the chattel by himself or his servants acting in the course of their employment, a third party is forceably injured or property is forceably damaged".

32. We feel that the appellant whose status is that of a bailee, in the circumstances, is accountable for the negligence of his employee. So, necessarily, we have to hold that the appellant is liable to pay compensation to the claimants."

36. This decision does not go beyond determining the liability of the bailee for the injuries caused to third parties while a chattel, like a motor vehicle, is in his possession for doing some work in relation to it. It holds the bailee liable to third parties for any injury arising out of the use of a motor vehicle given in possession of the bailee for doing of some job on it. The decision, however, does not logically deal with the liability of the owner of the bailed goods or chattel, that is to say, the motor vehicle, because of the very peculiar facts of the case there, where the owner of the motor vehicle, while it was under the control and possession of the bailee himself, became the victim of negligence by the bailee's servant. The question of the owner's liability, therefore, would not have arisen. The owner after all was the injured third party.

37. The issue about the liability of the owner of a motor vehicle to third parties for injuries sustained when the motor vehicle was entrusted for repairs to a mechanic or a garage, was considered by a Division Bench of the Punjab and Haryana High Court in Devinder Singh Brar v. Mangal Singh and others, AIR 1981 P&H 53. The facts in Devinder Singh (supra) can best be recapitulated in the words of their Lordships:

"2. On February 23, 1968, at about mid-day Mangal Singh, injured respondent, whilst going on his bicycle, within the town of Moga collided with truck No. PNF-8078 and suffered serious injuries on his person. He was immediately removed to the Civil Hospital, Moga, where the medical witness found that apart from other injuries, the whole of the outer side of the right leg and the right thigh were abraded and contused and bones of the right thigh and right ankle were fractured. A case was also registered against the driver of the vehicle at Police Station, Moga. Mangal Singh was later removed to the Post Graduate Institute at Chandigarh for better treatment for the compound fracture of the lower and right femur and compound fracture of right medial malleolus. He was discharged from the hospital partially cured.

3. Mangal Singh, respondent, preferred an application for compensation for a sum of Rs. 60,000 for injuries and loss of his earnings due to the disability caused thereby.

4. In contesting the claim application, the appellant, Devinder Singh Brar, pleaded that he had completely entrusted his truck for repairs to the Behon Workshop at Moga, which apparently was the proprietary concern of Jarnail Singh, respondent. It was his express stand that he had never authorised its driving on the road either by the said Jarnail Singh or anyone of his employees. He further took up the plea that the truck at the time of the accident was being driven at a low speed and in any case the accident was caused by the contributory negligence of Mangal Singh, respondent, who suddenly swerved his bicycle towards one side."

38. In answering the point that arose for consideration, it was held by their Lordships of the Division Bench:

"14. Mr. G.R. Majithia, learned counsel for the appellant-owner, has respectfully assailed the aforesaid view on the ground that herein no question of any relationship of master and servant betwixt the appellant and Tara Singh arises. As a natural corollary, therefore, it was argued that no issue of any actual or deemed driving of the vehicle in the course of employment of the appellant would be attracted. The core of the submission on behalf of the appellant is that the appellant-owner had entrusted his vehicle for repairs to an independent contractor and was, therefore, in no way responsible for the fault, if any, of the later.

15. On the aforesaid contention, the issue that arises at the very threshold is whether Jarnail Singh, respondent, who is the proprietor of Behon workshop at Moga and to whom admittedly the vehicle was entrusted for repairs, was an agent or employee of the owner or merely an independent contractor, unfettered by any control or direction of the appellant. It appears to me that the answer is plain. Judged by any test, the relationship betwixt the owner of the truck and the proprietor of the workshop, to whom it is entrusted for repairs, cannot be that of a master and servant. It is wellsettled that an independent contractor is one who undertakes to produce a given result or performs a particular work, but in the actual execution of that work he is not under the order or control of the person for whom the work is done and he is at liberty to use his own discretion and judgment. Applying this test, it would appear that the appellant could not possibly direct and control the manner in which the repair was to be done of his vehicle. Speaking generally also, it does not appear to be possible to hold that proprietors of automobile workshops stand in the relationship of master and servant in regard to the owners of cars or lorries entrusted to them for repairs.

16. Once it is held that Jarnail Singh, respondent, was an independent contractor, then it would inevitably follow that the appellant cannot be vicariously saddled with the responsibility for his acts or for the unauthorised use of the vehicle while in his custody by a stranger or an employee of the independent contractor. It is significant that the factual finding herein is that it was not the independent contractor who at the material time was driving the truck but a different person, namely, Tara Singh, respondent, who cannot even remotely be deemed to have been authorised by the owner of the vehicle to drive the same.

17. I am not oblivious of the fact that the settled rule that an employer is not liable for the negligence of an independent contractor has some well recognised exception. However, the present case of the entrustment of a motor vehicle to a workshop owner cannot possibly be brought within the ambit of any such exceptions. The absolute rule of Ryland v. Fletcher cannot possibly be attracted to the case of an ordinary work-a-day chattel like a motor vehicle. Whenever may have been the position of the law a century earlier, it cannot today be held that a motor vehicle is so inherently dangerous and hazardous that even its entrustment to another for repairs would attract the absolute rule of liability at the owner's own peril. On the other hand, there appears to be ample authority for the view that a motor vehicle in itself 1st not a nuisance or a hazardous chattel so as to attract the doctrine of Ryland v. Fletcher.

18. The view I am inclined to take seems to have the substantial, if not conclusive, support of the Division Bench Judgment of the Madras High Court in B. Govindarajulu Cheety v. M.L.A. Govindaraja Mudaliar [1966 A.C.J. 153.] . Therein, an exhaustive examination of case law on the point has been made and it would be evidently wasteful to traverse the same ground over again. It suffices to notice that the learned Judges in B. Govindarajulu Chetty's case (supra) had concluded as follows:

"From this decision it is solutely clear that in the case of a motor vehicle liability can be fastened as against a person only on proof that he was negligent and that that negligence was responsible for the accident in question. It is impossible to hold that the first respondent owed any duty or could have exercised any control or taken any precaution about the lorry once it had been entrusted to the workshop for the repairs. We have no doubt there is no law which throws a duty upon the owner to speculate and anticipate that some, unauthorised person would take the lorry out from the garage of the repairer. It is not one of the necessary natural consequences that would be expected to arise in the matter of entrustment of a lorry for repair."

39. The question again arose in a slightly different context, but certainly in the context of the use of a motor vehicle by a bailee holding it for repairs before the Supreme Court in Guru Govekar v. Filomena F. Lobo Miss, (1988) 3 SCC 1. The question that arose in that case may best be left to the words of their Lordships in the opening part of the report. It reads:

"whether an insurer who has issued a policy insuring any person specified in the policy against any liability which may be incurred by him in respect of the death of or bodily injury to any person or damage to any property of a third party caused by or arising out of the use of a motor vehicle in a public place, is liable to pay compensation to such third party or to his or her legal representatives as the case may be when the liability arises when the motor vehicle is in the custody of a repairer."

40. In Guru Govekar (supra), the question was answered by their Lordships thus:

"12. We agree with the view expressed in Monk v. Warbey [(1935) 1 KB 75] . In India the opinion appears to be divided on the liability of the insurer of a motor vehicle when the accident giving rise to the claim takes place when the motor vehicle is in the custody of a repairer. In Vijayanagaram Narasimha Rao v. Ghanashyam Das Tapadia [(1986) 2 ACJ 850] Ramaswamy, J. of the High Court of Andhra Pradesh held that once the owner had entrusted the motor vehicle to the licensed mechanic to effect repairs, testing being integral part of effecting repairs and the accident had taken place during the course of testing the vehicle, the necessary conclusion was that the mechanic acted within his limits of authority and in the course of the employment for and on behalf of the owner. Therefore, the owner should be vicariously liable for the acts of the mechanic. Accordingly, he held that both the owner and the insurance company were also jointly and severally liable for the payment of the compensation to the third party, who had suffered the injury by virtue of the provisions of the Act. The decision of the High Court of Madhya Pradesh in Shantibai v. Principal, Govindram Sakseria Technological Institute, Indore [1972 ACJ 354] is also to the same effect. G.L. Oza, J., as he then was, in the course of the said decision rejected the contention of the insurance company based on the exemption clause which exempted the insurance company from liability arising out of an accident during the period when the motor vehicle was used "for hire or used for organised racing, pace-making, reliability speed testing", which was also one of the contentions urged before us in the present case although the said contention could not be urged in the circumstances of this case. We do not agree with the decision in D. Rajapathi v. University of Madurai [1980 ACJ 113] in which it has been held that the doctrine of vicarious liability could not be extended to a case where the accident had taken place on account of the negligence of the driver employed by an independent contractor even when the claim is made not under the Law of Torts but under the provisions of the Act. While it may be true, as we have observed earlier, that under the Law of Torts, the owner may not be liable on the principle of vicarious liability, the insurer would be liable to pay the compensation by virtue of provisions of Section 94 and Section 95 of the Act, referred to above."

41. It has to be borne in mind that the Act has amongst many of its objects relating to the overall regulation of motor vehicles, the social welfare object, that is about the provision of compensation to the victim of a motor accident, effectively through a summary remedy provided before a special forum, that is the Tribunal.

The persons, against whom an award may be passed by the Tribunal, are specified in Section 168 of the Act, that speaks about the award of the claims Tribunal. It reads:

"168. Award of the Claims Tribunal.--(1) On receipt of an application for compensation made under Section 166, the Claims Tribunal shall, after giving notice of the application to the insurer and after giving the parties (including the insurer) an opportunity of being heard, hold an inquiry into the claim or, as the case may be, each of the claims and, subject to the provisions of Section 163 may make an award determining the amount of compensation which appears to it to be just and specifying the person or persons to whom compensation shall be paid and in making the award the Claims Tribunal shall specify the amount which shall be paid by the insurer or owner or driver of the vehicle involved in the accident or by all or any of them, as the case may be:

(2) The Claims Tribunal shall arrange to deliver copies of the award to the parties concerned expeditiously and in any case within a period of fifteen days from the date of the award.

(3) When an award is made under this section, the person who is required to pay any amount in terms of such award shall, within thirty days of the date of announcing the award by the Claims Tribunal, deposit the entire amount awarded in such manner as the Claims Tribunal may direct."

42. A perusal of the aforesaid provision shows that the Tribunal may pass an award directing compensation, which appears to be just and mandates that the Tribunal shall specify the amount of compensation payable by the Insurer, the owner or the driver. It is, thus, clear that the exclusive remedy, which is summary in nature, is provided to the victim of a Motor Accident before the Tribunal investing the Tribunal to pass an award holding the Insurer, the owner or the driver liable. The Tribunal has been empowered to direct, which of them and in what proportion shall be liable under the award and the award may be passed against any or all of them.

43. It would be necessary to notice one submission advanced by the learned Counsel for the mechanic that most of the decisions relied upon on behalf of the owner are those rendered in the context of the Act of 1939, whereas the present issue has arisen in the context of the Act, which is a successor statute and very different from its predecessor, including the provisions relating to rights and liabilities of the Insurance Company. Suffice it to say that the provisions of Sections 94 and 95 of the Act of 1939 are broadly pari materia to the provisions of Sections 146 and 147 of the Act though there are important distinctions of detail on certain issues. But, those distinctions in the provisions of Sections 94 and 95 of the Act of 1939 and the corresponding provisions in the present statute have little bearing on the issue involved here.

44. The decisions rendered under the Act of 1939 on the question involved in the present appeal cannot be said to be irrelevant and away from the contemporary statutory context. Broadly, the provisions of Sections 94 and 95 of the Act of 1939 and those of Sections 146 and 147 of the Act make it imperative that any person, who uses or causes to be used a motor vehicle in a public place, shall not do so unless there is in force an insurance policy in relation to that vehicle complying with the requirements of the relative statute. What the policy must ensure, is also spelt out by corresponding provisions under both the statutes and make it imperative for the policy to cover third party risk, involving either death of a person or grievous hurt.

45. The decision in Guru Govekar for the last part of the principle holding the Insurer liable by virtue of Section 95 of the Act of 1939 was followed by a Division Bench of the Kerala High Court in Alias v. E. M. Paul and others, AIR 2004 Ker 214, and still earlier, by a Single Judge of the Madras High Court in Eagle Brand Soapnut Co. represented by its Partner No. 15, Peria Kammala Street, Tiruchirapalli-8 v. Rangasamy and another, 1997 SCC OnLine Mad 67. These decisions, in fact, were about the liability of the Insurance Company to indemnify when the motor vehicle was in the custody of a mechanic or a repairer. These decisions are not about the issue whether for the act of a bailee in injuring a third party while holding custody of a chattel under a contract of bailment would render the bailor/ owner liable in damages to the third party. These authorities are not about the liability that arises under the torts, but one that arises under the Act for the Insurer when a motor vehicle in the custody of a bailee causes injury to a third party.

46. The decision in Guru Govekar makes it clear that under the general principles governing torts, the owner is not liable for the act of an independent contractor, like a bailee, vis-a-vis third parties while holding his chattel under a contract of bailment. In that situation, it is the bailee alone who is answerable to the injured third party, again so far as principles governing torts are concerned.

But, the decision in Guru Govekar, which has thereafter been followed by the Kerala High Court and the Madras High Court, has drawn upon the provisions of Sections 94 and 95 of the Act of 1939 to hold the Insurance Company liable under a statutory liability, where a duly insured motor vehicle entrusted for repairs to an independent contractor, a bailee, like a mechanic, causes injuries to a third parties while operating it.

47. It is true that the Act of 1939 has since been replaced by the present statute, that is to say, the Act, but as said earlier, the salient features of the rights and liabilities between the owner, the insurer and third parties, remain unchanged under the Act, which has corresponding provisions in Sections 146 and 147.

48. The liability of the Insurance Company arises, therefore, under Sections 146 and 147 of the Act vis-a-vis third parties from the use of the vehicle in a public place. What would happen if a motor vehicle is used in a public place, which is not covered by the mandatory insurance postulated under Section 146 of the Act. In fact, under Section 196, it is an offence punishable both with fine and imprisonment to drive a motor vehicle or cause or permit it to be driven in contravention of the provisions of Section 146 of the Act, that is to say, without an insurance policy. Here, it is the owner, who caused the vehicle to be placed in the hands of the independent contractor, the bailee, who is the mechanic, for repairs while it was not covered by an insurance policy. The mechanic would be presumed not to know of the fact. There is no evidence by the owner led to show that he had informed the mechanic that the vehicle was without a valid insurance cover as required under the Act. It is perhaps for this reason that the owner had asked the mechanic not to use the motor vehicle in his absence. That, however, cannot be a fact imputing knowledge to the mechanic about the vehicle being uninsured or altering his status as an independent contractor holding it under a contract of bailment.

49. It brooks no doubt that though the driving of an uninsured vehicle in a public place is absolutely prohibited by the Act and also constituted an offence punishable by law, if the owner in fact drives an uninsured vehicle in a public place or causes it to be driven through his servant or agent, injuring a third party, the owner would be liable to compensate the third party for the injury or loss sustained. However, when the vehicle is entrusted to an independent contractor, like a mechanic, for the purpose of service or repairs, it is held by the mechanic or the repairer under a contract of bailment. It is not held as a servant or an agent of the owner. It is well settled by consistent authorities that so long as the bailee, a mechanic or a repairer is holding a motor vehicle, the owner has no control over it.

50. In the considered opinion of this Court, therefore, even if the owner while entrusting a vehicle to an independent contractor, a bailee, like a garage owner or an independent mechanic or repairer, gives him certain instructions not to use the vehicle in a public place, those will not alter the status of the bailee into an agent or servant of the owner. And, therefore, for any injury or loss to a third party, arising out of the use of a motor vehicle in a public place by the mechanic or the repairer, while he holds a motor vehicle under a contract of bailment, the bailee would be liable in

B. It is a case of composite negligence where injuries have been caused to the claimants by combined wrongful act or joint tortfeasors. In a case of accident caused by negligence of joint tortfeasors, all the persons who aid or counsel or direct or join in committal of a wrongful act, are liable. In such a case, the liability is always joint and several. The extent of negligence of joint tortfeasors in such a case is immaterial for satisfaction of the claim of the claimant and need not be determined by the court.(Para 10)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal
Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. Heard Sri A.K.Saxena, learned counsel for the appellant and learned counsel for respondent.

2. This appeal, at the behest of the U.P.S.R.T.C, challenges the judgement and award dated 18.09.2002 passed by M.A.C.T/11-Additional District Judge, Kanpur Nagar (hereinafter referred to as "Tribunal") in M.A.C.P. No. 568 of 1999. The fact that the vehicle is involved in the accident which takes place on 25.11.1998 is not in dispute, therefore, involvement of the vehicle is not in dispute. Only dispute now is regarding contributory negligence of injured and the quantum and misjoinder of parties.

3. Brief facts as culled out from the record are that on 25.11.1998 at about 12:15 p.m, Ashok Kumar Sharma was going to Hathras for his business on his Vespa Scooter no. U.P. 81F-4862. U.P.S.R.T.C driven by its driver rashly and negligently hit the scooter as a result of which Ashok Kumar Sharma sustained grievous injuries got his leg fractured from various places. Injured was given treatment in Hathras but to grievous injuries he was referred to Indraprastha Sarita Vihar, Delhi.

4. The deceased was 35 years of age at the time of accident and he was working in

M/s Janardan Sharma & company and was earning Rs. 5000/-p.m. He was a married person having two minor children and a wife. The tribunal has granted a lumpsum amount of Rs. 6,56, 331/-.

5. Grounds of challenge are that the quantum of compensation awarded is illegal, arbitrary and highly excessive. It is submitted that the tribunal ought to have considered the question of contributory negligence of the claimant as the accident was caused on the rear portion of the bus. It is submitted that the driver of the bus was not negligent and the driving licence and insurance policy was not produced by the respondent and therefore the claim petition was liable to be dismissed on the ground of non-joinder of the parties.

6. It is further submitted that the claimant who is the injured has not produced any documentary evidence for contending what was his income, the medical vouchers have not been attested by any doctor.

7. The term negligence means failure to exercise care towards others which a reasonable and prudent person would in a circumstance or taking action which such a reasonable person would not. Negligence can be both intentional or accidental which is normally accidental. More particularly, it connotes reckless driving and the injured must always prove that the either side is negligent. If the injury rather death is caused by something owned or controlled by the negligent party then he is directly liable otherwise the principle of "res ipsa loquitur" meaning thereby "the things speak for itself" would apply.

8. The principle of contributory negligence has been discussed time and again. A person who either contributes or author of the accident would be liable for his contribution to the accident having taken place.

9. The Division Bench of this Court in First Appeal From Order No. 1818 of 2012 (Bajaj Allianz General Insurance Co.Ltd. Vs. Smt. Renu Singh And Others) decided on 19.7.2016 has held as under :

"16. Negligence means failure to exercise required degree of care and caution expected of a prudent driver. Negligence is the omission to do something which a reasonable man, guided upon the considerations, which ordinarily regulate conduct of human affairs, would do, or doing something which a prudent and reasonable man would not do. Negligence is not always a question of direct evidence. It is an inference to be drawn from proved facts. Negligence is not an absolute term, but is a relative one. It is rather a comparative term. What may be negligence in one case may not be so in another. Where there is no duty to exercise care, negligence in the popular sense has no legal consequence. Where there is a duty to exercise care, reasonable care must be taken to avoid acts or omissions which would be reasonably foreseen likely to caused physical injury to person. The degree of care required, of course, depends upon facts in each case. On these broad principles, the negligence of drivers is required to be assessed.

17. It would be seen that burden of proof for contributory negligence on the part of deceased has to be discharged by the opponents. It is the duty of driver of the offending vehicle to explain the accident. It is well settled law that at intersection where two roads cross each other, it is the duty of a fast moving vehicle to slow down and if driver did not slow down at intersection, but continued to proceed at a high speed without caring to notice that another vehicle was crossing, then the conduct of driver necessarily leads to conclusion that vehicle was being driven by him rashly as well as negligently.

18. 10th Schedule appended to Motor Vehicle Act contain statutory regulations for driving of motor vehicles which also form part of every Driving License. Clause-6 of such Regulation clearly directs that the driver of every motor vehicle to slow down vehicle at every intersection or junction of roads or at a turning of the road. It is also provided that driver of the vehicle should not enter intersection or junction of roads unless he makes sure that he would not thereby endanger any other person. Merely, because driver of the Truck was driving vehicle on the left side of road would not absolve him from his responsibility to slow down vehicle as he approaches intersection of roads, particularly when he could have easily seen, that the car over which deceased was riding, was approaching intersection.

19. In view of the fast and constantly increasing volume of traffic, motor vehicles upon roads may be regarded to some extent as coming within the principle of liability defined in Rylands V/s. Fletcher, (1868) 3 HL (LR) 330. From the point of view of pedestrian, the roads of this country have been rendered by the use of motor vehicles, highly dangerous. 'Hit and run' cases where drivers of motor vehicles who have caused accidents, are unknown. In fact such cases are increasing in number. Where a pedestrian without negligence on his part is injured or killed by a motorist, whether negligently or not, he or his legal representatives, as the case may be, should be entitled to recover damages if principle of social justice should have any meaning at all.

20. These provisions (sec.110A and sec.110B of Motor Act, 1988) are not merely procedural provisions. They substantively affect the rights of the parties. The right of action created by Fatal Accidents Act, 1855 was 'new in its species, new in its quality, new in its principles. In every way it was new. The right given to legal representatives under Act, 1988 to file an application for compensation for death due to a motor vehicle accident is an enlarged one. This right cannot be hedged in by limitations of an action under Fatal Accidents Act, 1855. New situations and new dangers require new strategies and new remedies.

21. In the light of the above discussion, we are of the view that even if courts may not by interpretation displace the principles of law which are considered to be well settled and, therefore, court cannot dispense with proof of negligence altogether in all cases of motor vehicle accidents, it is possible to develop the law further on the following lines; when a motor vehicle is being driven with reasonable care, it would ordinarily not meet with an accident and, therefore, rule of res-ipsa loquitor as a rule of evidence may be invoked in motor accident cases with greater frequency than in ordinary civil suits (per three-Judge Bench in Jacob Mathew V/s. State of Punjab, 2005 0 ACJ(SC) 1840).

22. By the above process, the burden of proof may ordinarily be cast on the defendants in a motor accident claim petition to prove that motor vehicle was being driven with reasonable care or that there is equal negligence on the part the other side."

10. The Apex Court in Khenyei Vs. New India Assurance Company Limited & Others, 2015 LawSuit (SC) 469 has held as under:

"4. It is a case of composite negligence where injuries have been caused to the claimants by combined wrongful act of joint tort feasons. In a case of accident caused by negligence of joint tort feasons, all the persons who aid or counsel or direct or join in committal of a wrongful act, are liable. In such case, the liability is always joint and several. The extent of negligence of joint tort feasons in such a case is immaterial for satisfaction of the claim of the plaintiff/claimant and need not be determined by the by the court. However, in case all the joint tort feasons are before the court, it may determine the extent of their liability for the purpose of adjusting inter-se equities between them at appropriate stage. The liability of each and every joint tort feason vis a vis to plaintiff/claimant cannot be bifurcated as it is joint and several liability. In the case of composite negligence, apportionment of compensation between tort feasons for making payment to the plaintiff is not permissible as the plaintiff/claimant has the right to recover the entire amount from the easiest targets/solvent defendant.

14. There is a difference between contributory and composite negligence. In the case of contributory negligence, a person who has himself contributed to the extent cannot claim compensation for the injuries sustained by him in the accident to the extent of his own negligence; whereas in the case of composite negligence, a person who has suffered has not contributed to the accident but the outcome of combination of negligence of two or more other persons. This Court in T.O. Anthony v. Karvarnan & Ors. [2008 (3) SCC 748] has held that in case of contributory negligence, injured need not establish the extent of responsibility of each wrong doer separately, nor is it necessary for the court to determine the extent of liability of each wrong doer separately. It is only in the case of contributory negligence that the injured himself has contributed by his negligence in the accident. Extent of his negligence is required to be determined as damages recoverable by him in respect of the injuries have to be reduced in proportion to his contributory negligence. The relevant portion is extracted hereunder :

"6. 'Composite negligence' refers to the negligence on the part of two or more persons. Where a person is injured as a result of negligence on the part of two or more wrong doers, it is said that the person was injured on account of the composite negligence of those wrong-doers. In such a case, each wrong doer, is jointly and severally liable to the injured for payment of the entire damages and the injured person has the choice of proceeding against all or any of them. In such a case, the injured need not establish the extent of responsibility of each wrong-doer separately, nor is it necessary for the court to determine the extent of liability of each wrong-doer separately. On the other hand where a person suffers injury, partly due to the negligence on the part of another person or persons, and partly as a result of his own negligence, then the negligence of the part of the injured which contributed to the accident is referred to as his contributory negligence. Where the injured is guilty of some negligence, his claim for damages is not defeated merely by reason of the negligence on his part but the damages recoverable by him in respect of the injuries stands reduced in proportion to his contributory negligence.

7. Therefore, when two vehicles are involved in an accident, and one of the drivers claims compensation from the other driver alleging negligence, and the other driver denies negligence or claims that the injured claimant himself was negligent, then it becomes necessary to consider whether the injured claimant was negligent and if so, whether he was solely or partly responsible for the accident and the extent of his responsibility, that is his contributory negligence. Therefore where the injured is himself partly liable, the principle of 'composite negligence' will not apply nor can there be an automatic inference that the negligence was 50:50 as has been assumed in this case. The Tribunal ought to have examined the extent of contributory negligence of the appellant and thereby avoided confusion between composite negligence and contributory negligence. The High Court has failed to correct the said error."

18. This Court in Challa Bharathamma & Nanjappan (supra) has dealt with the breach of policy conditions by the owner when the insurer was asked to pay the compensation fixed by the tribunal and the right to recover the same was given to the insurer in the executing court concerned if the dispute between the insurer and the owner was the subject-matter of determination for the tribunal and the issue has been decided in favour of the insured. The same analogy can be applied to the instant cases as the liability of the joint tortfeasor is joint and several. In the instant case, there is determination of inter se liability of composite negligence to the extent of negligence of 2/3rd and 1/3rd of respective drivers. Thus, the vehicle - trailer-truck which was not insured with the insurer, was negligent to the extent of 2/3rd. It would be open to the insurer being insurer of the bus after making payment to claimant to recover from the owner of the trailer-truck the amount to the aforesaid extent in the execution proceedings. Had there been no determination of the inter se liability for want of evidence or other joint tortfeasor had not been impleaded, it was not open to settle such a dispute and to recover the amount in execution proceedings but the remedy would be to file another suit or appropriate proceedings in accordance with law.

What emerges from the aforesaid discussion is as follows :

(i) In the case of composite negligence, plaintiff/claimant is entitled to sue both or any one of the joint tortfeasors and to recover the entire compensation as liability of joint tortfeasors is joint and several.

(iii) In case all the joint tortfeasors have been impleaded and evidence is sufficient, it is open to the court/tribunal to determine inter se extent of composite negligence of the drivers. However, determination of the extent of negligence between the joint tortfeasors is only for the purpose of their inter se liability so that one may recover the sum from the other after making whole of payment to the plaintiff/claimant to the extent it has satisfied the liability of the other. In case both of them have been impleaded and the apportionment/ extent of their negligence has been determined by the court/tribunal, in main case one joint tortfeasor can recover the amount from the other in the execution proceedings.

(iv) It would not be appropriate for the court/tribunal to determine the extent of composite negligence of the drivers of two vehicles in the absence of impleadment of other joint tortfeasors. In such a case, impleaded joint tortfeasor should be left, in case he so desires, to sue the other joint tortfeasor in independent proceedings after passing of the decree or award."

11. The latest decision of the Apex Court in Khenyei (Supra) has laid down one further aspect about considering the negligence more particularly composite/contributory negligence. The deceased or the person concerned should be shown to have contributed either to the accident and the impact of accident upon the victim could have been minimised if he had taken care.

12. The tribunal has very categorically come to the conclusion that the driver of bus of the roadways was driving the bus rashly and negligently. The U.P.S.R.T.C in its reply before the tribunal contended that no such accident had taken place and in the alternative that the scooter dashed the bus from behind. The evidence of D.W.-2 and the scootrist namely the claimant have been elaborately discussed by tribunal. The finding of facts as far as negligence are concerned cannot be interfered with.

13. The impact was such that the claimant sustained 75% of disability. This takes this Court to the compensation. The compensation awarded cannot be said to be on the higher side. The tribunal has not granted any amount under the head of future loss of income. The quantum rather is on the lower side. As Sri Vidya Kant Shukla, learned counsel appeared for the respondent but there is no cross objection raised, hence, there is no question of

9. Oriental Ins. Co. Ltd. Vs Smt. Poonam Kesarwani & ors. (2009) 0 ADJ 1

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajay Bhanot, J.)

1. This first appeal from order arises out of the judgment and award dated 13.10.2017 passed by the learned Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/learned Additional District Judge, Maharajganj in Motor Accident Claim Petition No.114 of 2014 (Harilal and others Vs. Ram Shabad Yadav and others).

2. The owner-appellant contesting the liability to pay the compensation.

3. Briefly the case of the claimants before the learned tribunal was that the deceased-Bhanmati died of injuries sustained in an accident which occurred on 02.05.2014 and was caused by the rash and negligent driving of the driver of truck bearing Registration No. UP-52F-0405. The offending vehicle was insured by the respondent Insurance Company. The claimants were dependant on the deceased. The deceased was 44 years of age at the time of the accident.

4. The learned tribunal in the impugned award found for the claimants by holding that the driver of the offending truck drove negligently and was solely responsible for the accident which resulted in the death of the deceased. Learned tribunal found that the insurance policy terms were breached. The insurance company was absolved of its liability on this footing, and the owner was made liable to pay the awarded compensation.

5. Shri Satendra Pandey, learned counsel for the appellant-owner contends that the learned tribunal erred in law by absolving the Insurance Company of the liability to pay the compensation. The finding that the appellant-owner had breached the terms of the insurance policy since the insured vehicle was being driven by a person who was not in possession of valid driving licence is perverse. The award was illegal and is liable to be set aside.

6. Shri Aditya Singh Parihar, learned counsel holding brief of Shri Rahul Sahai, learned counsel for the respondent-Insurance Company contends that the award passed by the learned tribunal is lawful and brooks no interference. The liability to pay the compensation is on the owner since there was a breach of the insurance policy.

7. After advancing their arguments, learned counsel for both the parties agree that though many grounds have been pleaded, only the following question fall for consideration in this appeal:-

Whether, in the facts of this case, the learned tribunal erred in law by fixing the liability to pay the compensation on the owner of the offending vehicle?

8. These facts found by the learned tribunal are undisputed. The accident occurred on account of the rash and negligent driving of the offending truck. The offending truck was insured by the respondent-Insurance company.

9. The Insurance company contested the validity of the licence of the driver of the offending vehicle since inception of the claim petition by filing a written statement. The written statement asserts that not only the licence was fake but the owner was fully aware of these facts.

10. The owner as well as the driver in the written statement asserted that the latter was skilled at driving and was in possession of a valid driving licence.

11. It is evident from the facts that the insurance company categorically denied the validity of the licence and pleaded wilful knowledge and liability of the owner in permitting the driver to drive without a valid driving licence. Neither the owner nor the driver appeared in the witness box to establish that the owner had exercised due diligence to ensure that the driver had the requisite driving skill and was in possession of a valid driving licence. Requisite pleadings by the owner/appellant in this regard too are absent.

12. On its part the insurance company introduced form 54 issued by the concerned RTO Office to establish that the driving licence tendered in evidence by the owner of the vehicle as well as the driver was a fake one. Form 54 was never contested by the owner.

13. With these established facts it remains to be seen whether the insurance company can be absolved of its liability and whether entire liability of paying the compensation has to be borne by the owner-appellant.

14. Non possession of a valid driving licence as a ground to deny the insurance cover or fasten liability upon the owner of the vehicle was in issue in a number of cases before various constitutional courts. These were cited at the Bar.

15. The discussion had advantage of good authorities in point which shall also determine the result of the appeal.

16. The question whether the insurance company could be permitted to avoid its liability only on ground that the driver of the offending vehicle at the time of accident was not duly licensed was in issue in United India Insurance Company Ltd. v. Lehu and others¹. The Supreme Court in Lehu (supra) held that the insurance company could be absolved of its contractual and statutory obligation only if it established wilful breach of condition of policy by the insured by holding thus:

"20. When an owner is hiring a driver he will therefore have to check whether the driver has a driving licence. If the driver produces a driving licence which on the face of it looks genuine, the owner is not expected to find out whether the licence has in fact been issued by a competent authority or not. The owner would then take the test of the driver. If he finds that the driver is competent to drive the vehicle, he will hire the driver. We find it rather strange that Insurance Companies expect owners to make enquiries with RTO's, which are spread all over the country, whether the driving licence shown to them is valid or not. Thus where the owner has satisfied himself that the driver has a licence and is driving competently there would be no breach of Section 149(2)(a)(ii). The Insurance Company would not then be absolved of liability. If it ultimately turns out that the licence was fake the Insurance Company would continue to remain liable unless they prove that the owner/insured was aware or had noticed that the licence was fake and still permitted that person to drive. More importantly even in such a case the Insurance Company would remain liable to the innocent third party, but it may be able to recover from the insured. This is the law which has been laid down in Skandia 's Sohan Lal Passi 's and Kamla 's case. We are in full agreement with the views expressed therein and see no reason to take a different view."

17. Whether fake or forged licence in itself was sufficient for constituting wilful breach of the conditions of the insurance policy or the contract of insurance arose for consideration in National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Swaran Singh and others². The Supreme Court in Swaran Singh (supra) underscored the importance of "reasonable care" on part of owner to enquire into the validity of the driver's license by holding thus:

"2. In view of the fact that these petitions involve pure questions of law, it is not necessary to advert to the individual fact pertaining to each matter.

Suffice, however, is to point out that the vehicles insured with the petitioners were involved in accidents resulting in filing of claim applications by the respective legal representatives of the deceased(s) or the injured person(s), as the case may be.

3. Defences raised by the Petitioner company in the claim petitions purported to be in terms of Section 149(2)(a)(ii) of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act') were : (a) driving licence produced by the driver or owner of the vehicle was a fake one; (b) driver did not have any licence whatsoever; (c) licence, although was granted to the concerned driver but on expiry thereof, the same had not been renewed; (d) licence granted to the drivers being for one class or description of vehicle but the vehicle involved in the accident was of different class or description; and (e) the vehicle in question was driven by a person having a learner's licence.

34. The question as to whether an insurer can avoid its liability in the event it raises a defence as envisaged in Sub-section (2) of Section 149 of the Act corresponding to sub-section (2) of Section 96 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1939 had been the subject matter of decisions in a large number of cases.

35. It is beyond any doubt or dispute that under Section 149(2) of the Act an insurer, to whom notice of the bringing of any proceeding for compensation has been given, can defend the action on any of the grounds mentioned therein.

36. However, Clause (a) opens with the words "that there has been a breach of a specified condition of the policy", implying that the insurer's defence of the action would depend upon the terms of the policy. The said sub-clause contains three conditions of disjunctive character, namely, the insurer can get away from the liability when (a) a named person drives the vehicle; (b) it was being driven by a person who did not have a duly granted licence; and (c) driver is a person disqualified for holding or obtaining a driving licence.

37. We may also take note of the fact that whereas in Section 3 the words used are 'effective licence', it has been differently worded in Section 149(2) i.e. 'duly licensed'. If a person does not hold an effective licence as on the date of the accident, he may be liable for prosecution in terms of Section 141 of the Act but Section 149 pertains to insurance as regard third party risks.

38. A provision of a statute which is penal in nature vis-à-vis a provision which is beneficent to a third party must be interpreted differently. It is also well known that the provisions contained in different expressions are ordinarily construed differently.

39. The words 'effective licence' used in Section 3, therefore, in our opinion cannot be imported for sub-section (2) of Section 149 of the Motor Vehicles Act. We must also notice that the words 'duly licensed' used in sub-section (2) of Section 149 are used in past tense.

40. Thus, a person whose licence is ordinarily renewed in terms of the Motor Vehicles Act and the rules framed thereunder despite the fact that during the interregnum period, namely, when the accident took place and the date of expiry of the licence, he did not have a valid licence, he could during the prescribed period apply for renewal thereof and could obtain the same automatically without undergoing any further test or without having been declared unqualified therefor. Proviso appended to Section 14 in unequivocal term states that the licence remains valid for a period of thirty days from the day of its expiry.

64. The proposition of law is no longer res integra that the person who alleges breach must prove the same. The insurance company is, thus, required to establish the said breach by cogent evidence. In the event, the insurance company fails to prove that there has been breach of conditions of policy on the part of the insured, the insurance company cannot be absolved of its liability. (See Sohan Lal Passi (supra))

65. Apart from the above, we do not intend to lay down anything further i.e. degree of proof which would satisfy the aforementioned requirement inasmuch as the same would indisputably depend upon the facts and circumstances of each case. It will also depend upon the terms of contract of insurance. Each case may pose different problem which must be resolved having to a large number of factors governing the case including conduct of parties as regard duty to inform, correct disclosure, suppression, fraud on the insurer etc. It will also depend upon the fact as to who is the owner of the vehicle and the circumstances in which the vehicle was being driven by a person having no valid and effective licence. No hard and fast rule can therefore be laid down. If in a given case there exists sufficient material to draw an adverse inference against either the insurer or the insured, the Tribunal may do so. The parties alleging breach must be held to have succeeded in establishing the breach of conditions of contract of insurance on the part of the insurer by discharging its burden of proof. The Tribunal, there cannot be any doubt, must arrive at a finding on the basis of the materials available on records.

87. It may be true as has been contended on behalf of the petitioner that a fake or forged licence is as good as no licence but the question herein, as noticed hereinbefore, is whether the insurer must prove that the owner was guilty of the wilful breach of the conditions of the insurance policy or the contract of insurance. In Lehru's case (supra), the matter has been considered at some details. We are in general agreement with the approach of the Bench but we intend to point out that the observations made therein must be understood to have been made in the light of the requirements of law in terms whereof the insurer is to establish wilful breach on the part of the insured and not for the purpose of its disentitlement from raising any defence or the owners be absolved from any liability whatsoever. We would be dealing in some details with this aspect of the matter a little later.

94. So far as the purported conflict in the judgments of Kamla (supra) and Lehru (supra) is concerned, we may wish to point out that the defence to the effect that the licence held by the person driving the vehicle was a fake one, would be available to the insurance companies, but whether despite the same, the plea of default on the part of the owner has been established or not would be a question which will have to be determined in each case.

95. The court, however, in Lehru (supra) must not read that an owner of a vehicle can under no circumstances has any duty to make any enquiry in this respect. The same, however, would again be a question which would arise for consideration in each individual case.

105. The summary of our findings to the various issues as raised in these petitions are as follows:

(ii) Insurer is entitled to raise a defence in a claim petition filed under Section 163 A or Section 166 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 inter alia in terms of Section 149(2)(a)(ii) of the said Act.

(iii) The breach of policy condition e.g., disqualification of driver or invalid driving licence of the driver, as contained in sub-section (2)(a)(ii) of section 149, have to be proved to have been committed by the insured for avoiding liability by the insurer. Mere absence, fake or invalid driving licence or disqualification of the driver for driving at the relevant time, are not in themselves defences available to the insurer against either the insured or the third parties. To avoid its liability towards insured, the insurer has to prove that the insured was guilty of negligence and failed to exercise reasonable care in the matter of fulfilling the condition of the policy regarding use of vehicles by duly licensed driver or one who was not disqualified to drive at the relevant time.

(iv) The insurance companies are, however, with a view to avoid their liability must not only establish the available defence(s) raised in the said proceedings but must also establish 'breach' on the part of the owner of the vehicle; the burden of proof wherefor would be on them.

(v) The court cannot lay down any criteria as to how said burden would be discharged, inasmuch as the same would depend upon the facts and circumstance of each case.

(vii) The question as to whether the owner has taken reasonable care to find out as to whether the driving licence produced by the driver, (a fake one or otherwise), does not fulfil the requirements of law or not will have to be determined in each case."

18. The insurance company in Pepsu Road Transport Corporation v. National Insurance Company³, resisted its liability by taking the defence that the driver of the vehicle involved in the accident was not duly licensed. The brief facts of the case in Pepsu Road Transport Corporation (supra) were stated in para 2 as under:

"2. Widow and two minor sons of late Gurjinder Singh Modi are claimants before the Motor Accidents Claims Tribunal, Chandigarh in M.A.C.T. No.

63/481 filed in the year 2002. The allegation was that Gurjinder Singh Modi died out of a motor accident on 04.10.2001 on account of the negligent driving of bus no. PB-11-K-8512 of the Pepsu Road Transport Corporation (for short, "PRTC"), Patiala, the appellant herein. Rs.30,00,000/- was claimed as compensation. Negligence was proved. The Tribunal awarded Rs.11,03,404/- as compensation. However, the insurance company was absolved of its liability since the licence issued to the driver was found to be fake. The insurance company took the Local Commissioner to licensing authority, Darjeeling, West-Bengal and, on verification of the available records, it was reported that no such licence as possessed by the driver has been issued by the said licensing Authority at Darjeeling. Thus, aggrieved, the owner of the vehicle, viz., PRTC, Patiala has come up in appeal."

19. In Pepsu Road Transport Corporation (supra), the responsibility of the owner while employing a driver to avail the benefit of insurance was stated thus:

"10. In a claim for compensation, it is certainly open to the insurer under Section 149(2)(a)(ii) to take a defence that the driver of the vehicle involved in the accident was not duly licensed. Once such a defence is taken, the onus is on the insurer. But even after it is proved that the licence possessed by the driver was a fake one, whether there is liability on the insurer is the moot question. As far as the owner of the vehicle is concerned, when he hires a driver, he has to check whether the driver has a valid driving licence. Thereafter he has to satisfy himself as to the competence of the driver. If satisfied in that regard also, it can be said that the owner had taken reasonable care in employing a person who is qualified and competent to drive the vehicle. The owner cannot be expected to go beyond that, to the extent of verifying the genuineness of the driving licence with the licensing authority before hiring the services of the driver. However, the situation would be different if at the time of insurance of the vehicle or thereafter the insurance company requires the owner of the vehicle to have the licence duly verified from the licensing authority or if the attention of the owner of the vehicle is otherwise invited to the allegation that the licence issued to the driver employed by him is a fake one and yet the owner does not take appropriate action for verification of the matter regarding the genuineness of the licence from the licensing authority. That is what is explained in Swaran Singh's case (supra). If despite such information with the owner that the licence possessed by his driver is fake, no action is taken by the insured for appropriate verification, then the insured will be at fault and, in such circumstances, the insurance company is not liable for the compensation."

20. Breach of conditions under Section 149(2)(a) which absolve the insurer of its liability to be insured, and the conditions regarding driving licence under Section 142(2)(a) was once again was posed before the learned three judge bench of the Supreme Court in Pappu and others v. Vinod Kumar Lamba and another⁴. In Pappu (supra) heightened diligence was expected from a vehicle owner once the insurance company disputed its liability by asserting that the insurance policy had been breached and that the offending vehicle was not driven by a person with a valid driving licence. Pappu (supra) emphasised the need for the owner to take specific pleadings and adduce supporting evidence in this regard by stating thus:

"13. In the present case, the respondent No.1 owner of the offending vehicle merely raised a vague plea in the Written Statement that the offending vehicle DIL-5955 was being driven by a person having valid driving licence. He did not disclose the name of the driver and his other details. Besides, the respondent No.1 did not enter the witness box or examine any witness in support of this plea. The respondent No.2 Insurance Company in the Written Statement has plainly refuted that plea and also asserted that the offending vehicle was not driven by an authorised person and having valid driving licence. The respondent No.1 owner of the offending vehicle did not produce any evidence except a driving licence of one Joginder Singh, without any specific stand taken in the pleadings or in the evidence that the same Joginder Singh was, in fact, authorised to drive the vehicle in question at the relevant time. Only then would onus shift, requiring the respondent No.2 Insurance Company to rebut such evidence and to produce other evidence to substantiate its defence. Merely producing a valid insurance certificate in respect of the offending Truck was not enough for the respondent No.1 to make the Insurance Company liable to discharge his liability arising from rash and negligent driving by the driver of his vehicle. The Insurance Company can be fastened with the liability on the basis of a valid insurance policy only after the basic facts are pleaded and established by the owner of the offending vehicle - that the vehicle was not only duly insured but also that it was driven by an authorised person having a valid driving licence. Without disclosing the name of the driver in the Written Statement or producing any evidence to substantiate the fact that the copy of the driving licence produced in support was of a person who, in fact, was authorised to drive the offending vehicle at the relevant time, the owner of the vehicle cannot be said to have extricated himself from his liability. The Insurance Company would become liable only after such foundational facts are pleaded and proved by the owner of the offending vehicle."

21. In Premkumari v. Prahlad Dev⁵, the Supreme Court once again reiterated the obligation of the owner to satisfy himself regarding the driving skills and validity of the driving license at the time of appointing him by holding thus:

"7. It is clear from the above decision when the owner after verification satisfied himself that the driver has a valid licence and driving the vehicle in question competently at the time of the accident there would be no breach of Section 149(2)(a)(ii), in that event, the Insurance Company would not then be absolved of liability. It is also clear that even in the case that the licence was fake, the Insurance Company would continue to remain liable unless they prove that the owner was aware or noticed that the licence was fake and still permitted him to drive."

22. The nature of verification to be undertaken by an owner while hiring a driver in order to defeat the insurance company's defence against its liability was directly and substantially in issue in Nirmala Kothari v. United India Insurance Ltd⁶. Upon consideration and in light of the authorities discussed in the preceding paragraphs, the Supreme Court reiterated the legal position in Nirmala Kothari (supra) by holding thus:

"12. While hiring a driver the employer is expected to verify if the driver has a driving licence. If the driver produces a licence which on the face of it looks genuine, the employer is not expected to further investigate into the authenticity of the licence unless there is cause to believe otherwise. If the employer finds the driver to be competent to drive the vehicle and has satisfied himself that the driver has a driving licence there would be no breach of Section 149(2)(a)(ii) and the Insurance Company would be liable under the policy. It would be unreasonable to place such a high onus on the insured to make enquiries with RTOs all over the country to ascertain the veracity of the driving licence. However, if the Insurance Company is able to prove that the owner/insured was aware or had notice that the licence was fake or invalid and still permitted the person to drive, the insurance company would no longer continue to be liable."

23. Similarly, the responsibility of an owner while engaging a driver was explained in Rishi Pal Singh v. New India Assurance Co. Ltd. and others⁷ in the following terms:

"10. The owner of the vehicle is expected to verify the driving skills and not run to the licensing authority to verify the genuineness of the driving license before appointing a driver. Therefore, once the owner is satisfied that the driver is competent to driver the vehicle, it is not expected from the owner thereafter to verify the genuineness of the driving license issued to the driver."

24. The undisputed facts on which the judgements of this Court in Kedar Singh v. Sarla Devi and others⁸ were founded are these. The driving licence of the driver at the time of the accident was found to be fake. The owner merely produced a photocopy of the driving license. The driver was not examined by the owner of the truck nor did the owner enter the witness box. The insurance company filed Form 44 which established that the photocopy of the licence brought in the record by the owner was fake.

25. Siddharth, J. in these facts found that the owner had not taken due reasonable care while appointing the driver and was failed to prove the basic facts required of him in law to avail the benefit of insurance by holding thus:

"29. Regarding the second submission of the learned counsel for the owner of the truck/appellant of the discarding of the validity of driving licence of the truck driver by the tribunal, this court finds that only photocopy of the driving licence of the driver, Bhola was brought on record by the owner /appellant before the tribunal. The vehicle owner never appeared in witness box before the tribunal to prove that the driving licence was given to him by his driver, Bhola and he was satisfied that it is genuine. He also did not proved that he made efforts to see that the driver is competent to drive. He was required to prove before the tribunal that he had taken reasonable care in employing the driver, who was qualified and competent to drive the vehicle. The liability as between the insurer and the insured depends upon the reasonable care taken by the owner of the vehicle, while employing a qualified and competent driver. These basic facts are required to be proved by the owner of the vehicle before the tribunal so as to protect himself from the liability viz- a- viz insurance company before the Motor Accidents Claims Tribunal.

30. The insurance company in the present case produced the Form-54 before the tribunal which proved that the driving licence produced by the owner of the truck/appellant was not of his driver, Bhola but it was of another person, Krishna Gopal. The owner of the truck/ appellant clearly did not proved that his driver supplied him fake/forged copy of the driving licence since the driver of the owner of the truck-appellant, namely, Bhola, was not produced before the tribunal to testify the correct facts.

31. Learned counsel for the insurance company has rightly pointed out to the judgment in the case of Pappu and another(supra) wherein Apex court has held that insurance company can be held liable only when foundational facts are pleaded and proved by the owner of the offending vehicle by the owner of the truck/appellant before the tribunal."

26. The argument on behalf of the Insurance Company that the Form 54 was not admissible in evidence is liable to be rejected. The certified copy of Form 54 introduced as evidence by the Insurance Company established that the driving licence. The said document was not successfully challenged and was rightly found to be genuine by the learned tribunal.

27. The judgement of this Court in Kedar Singh (supra) quoted the judgement rendered by this Court in Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Smt. Poonam Kesarwani and others⁹ with approval and held:

"16. The insurance company on its part investigated the validity of the driving licence(DL No. 2222/RJ/2005) and consequently filed the report received from the concerned R.T.O. under Form 54 before the tribunal. The bare perusal of the report received on Form 54 would go on to show that the driving licence no.

2222/RJ/2005 was issued in favour of one Krishna Goopal and not in the name of the alleged offending driver i.e, Bhola. As such the photocopy of the driving licence of Bhola filed by owner of the truck/appellant was a fake document. It is a settled proposition of law that Form 54 is a public document which does not requires further evidence of formal proof by examining a witness. It is further submitted that this Court in paragraph no.12 of Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Smt. Poonam Kesarwani and others, reported in 2009() ADJ,1 has held accordingly:-

"Form 54 being a certified copy of a public document namely the state register of driving licence, need not to be proved by examining a witness. Once a certified copy of the entries made in the register maintained under Section 26(1) read with Rule 23 is issued in form-54 it is admissible in evidence under section 77 of the Evidence Act and no further proof of form 54 by oral evidence by examining witnesses is required."

17. The insurance company on its part had duly discharged its burden by filing Form-54(which has been held to be a public document) which categorically established beyond doubt that the photocopy of the driving license brought on record by the owner/appellant was a fake document, as such, breach of policy condition was fully substantiated for which no liability whatsoever could have been fastened upon the insurance company /appellant."

28. The burden lies on the owner of proving foundational facts including the satisfaction of the authenticity of the driver's licence prior to the latter's appointment. This burden can be discharged in light of the standards and criteria provided by authorities in point discussed earlier.

29. However, in the wake of the preceding discussion, this Court finds that the owner had failed to establish the aforesaid foundational facts. The owner did not appear in the witness box to prove that the driving licence of the driver was produced before him and that he was satisfied with its genuineness at the time of the driver's appointment. Further, pleadings entered by the owner-appellant before the learned tribunal too are deficient in this regard.

30. No case for interference in the impugned award is made out. The appeal is dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Jaspreet Singh, J.)

1. Heard Sri Tarun Kumar Mishra, learned counsel for the appellant and Sri Firoz Ahmad Khan, learned counsel for the claimants-respondents no. 5 and 6. Sri Jagjit Singh Sodhi, learned counsel for the claimant-respondents no. 1 to 4

2. The insurance company, as appellants, have instituted the aforesaid appeal against the award dated 18.11.2021 passed by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal (South), Lucknow in Claim Petition No. 564 of 2017 whereby the Claims Tribunal has awarded a sum of Rs. 18,69,280/- along with 7% interest from the date of the application till the date of the payment in favour of the claimant-respondents no. 1 to 4 and the said award has been passed against the Insurance Company.

3. The learned counsel for the appellant while assailing the award has raised a solitary contention. The thrust of the arguments is that the accident occurred on account of rash and negligent driving of the offending Gas Tanker bearing No. UP 17 AT 1890, however, though, no appeal has been preferred by the owner and the driver regarding the aforesaid finding but the Insurance Company has escalated the matter on the premise that the driver of the offending Gas Tanker did not have a valid and an effective driving license, inasmuch as, on the date of the accident i.e. 29.07.2017, the driver of the aforesaid Gas Tanker namely Rajesh Kumar did not have the requisite endorsement on his driving license authorizing him to drive a transportation vehicle containing hazardous goods.

4. It is further submitted that a specific issue was framed by the Tribunal to the effect whether the driver of the said tanker had a valid and effective driving license and while answering the same, the Tribunal held that the driver of the aforesaid tanker had a valid license and fastened the liability on the Insurance Company. It was of the view that since the accident did not occur on account of any leakage or as a direct consequence of a hazardous good itself contained in the said tanker, therefore, the Insurance Company cannot be absolved of its liability.

5. It is further urged that the Tribunal completely misdirected itself, inasmuch as, it did not consider that the driver did not have the requisite endorsement on his license regarding the authorization to drive a transportation vehicle carrying hazardous goods and in absence of any such endorsement, it cannot be said that the driver was authorized, hence, this being contrary to the relevant Rule 9 (3) of Central Motor Vehicle Rules, 1989 read with Section 14 (2) (a) of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, it would indicate that the driver was not authorized which in effect amounts to driving the vehicle without an authority and as such the Insurance Company could not be fastened with the aforesaid liability and moreover the Tribunal has further erred in not even granting the recovery rights which has resulted in sheer miscarriage of justice.

6. Per contra, Sri Firoz Ahmad Khan, learned counsel for the respondents no. 5 and 6 submits that the vehicle in question was duly insured and the driver had a valid driving license and also noticing the fact that the accident occurred and the death was not on account of the use or consequence of the hazardous goods, therefore, it cannot be said that the view taken by the Tribunal was incorrect. It is also submitted that the driving license of the respondent no. 5 was valid and subsisting, accordingly, the appeal deserves to be dismissed.

7. The learned counsel for the claimant-respondents no. 1 to 4 has submitted that even though the award has been passed in favour of the claimant-respondent nos. 1 to 4 yet because of the subsisting interim order passed in the appeal dated 21.06.2022, not a single penny has been provided to the claimant-respondent nos. 1 to 4 despite they have lost their earning family member and that appeal deserves to be dismissed.

8. The Court has heard the learned counsel for the parties and also perused the material on record.

9. Before advertng to the submissions of the respective parties, certain brief facts giving rise to the instant appeal are being noticed hereinafter:-

10. The claimants-respondents no. 1 to 4 preferred a Claim Petition No. 564/2017 before the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal (South) Lucknow with the averment that on 29.07.2017 at around 12:30 in the afternoon Ms. Arunima Chandra (the deceased) while moving out from the C.H.C. in District Unnao to attend her field duties was hit by a Gas Tanker bearing No. U.P. 17 AT 1890 and on account of the hit she suffered grievous injuries which led to her death on the spot. It was also stated that she was working on the post of B.L.P. in the office of Chief Medical Officer and was earning a sum of Rs. 15,600/- per month.

11. The driver and owner of the aforesaid offending Gas Tanker filed their separate written statement denying the accident. However, the owner took a plea that the said tanker had a subsisting fitness certificate which was valid till March, 2023 and the national permit was also valid w.e.f. 21st March, 2017 till 20th March, 2022 and the vehicle was duly insured with the appellant-company w.e.f. 24.02.2017 till 23.02.2018 and as such, if at all, any award is made, the same is liable to be satisfied by the Insurance Company.

12. The driver on the other hand in his written statement reiterated the stand as taken by the owner but also took an additional stand that he had a valid and a subsisting driving license.

13. The Insurance Company on the other hand while filing its writing statement denied its liability to honour the award as the driver did not have a valid license.

14. In light of the aforesaid pleadings, the Tribunal framed four issues and after considering the evidence it decided the four issues in favour of the claimants-respondents holding that the accident was a result of rash and negligent driving of the driver of the Gas Tanker bearing No. U.P. 17 AT 1890 which led to the death of Arunima Chandra. It also found that the vehicle had the requisite fitness certificate, permit and the Insurance Policy which was valid for the relevant period. While dealing with issue no. 3, it held that the license of the driver was valid and since the accident was not caused by the hazardous goods, thus, the liability of the insurer could not be absolved and thereafter considering the issue of compensation, it allowed the claim petition awarding a sum of Rs. 18.69,280/- to the claimants-respondents no. 1 to 4 along with 7% interest per annum.

15. It is this award which is under challenge in the instant appeal on the grounds which have been noticed hereinabove.

16. The only issue which requires consideration is whether the driving license of the respondent no. 5 was valid and as he was driving a Gas Tanker then whether the license ought to have the requisite endorsement authorizing him to drive a vehicle of transportation of hazardous goods and in absence thereof whether the award could be fastened on the Insurance Company.

17. In order to answer the aforesaid issue, it will be appropriate to take a glance at the relevant sections as well as the rules as framed under the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 and the Central Motor Vehicle Rules, 1989. The relevant sections are reproduced as under:-

"Section 3. (2) The holder of a driving license possessing the minimum educational qualification or the certificate referred to in sub-rule (1), shall make an application in writing on a plain paper along with his driving license and the relevant certificate to the licensing authority in whose jurisdiction he resides for making necessary entries in his driving license and if the driving license is in Form 7, the application shall be accompanied by the fee [as specified in the Table in rule 32].

(3) The licensing authority, on receipt of the application referred to in sub-rule (2), shall make an endorsement in the driving licence of the applicant to the effect that he is authorised to drive a goods carriage carrying goods of dangerous or hazardous nature to human life.

(4) A licensing authority other than the original licensing authority making any such endorsement shall communicate the fact to the original licensing authority.

Rule 132. Responsibility of the transporter or owner of goods carriage.--

(1) x x x

(2) x x x

(3) x x x

(4) x x x

(5) It shall be the duty of the owner to ensure that the driver of the goods carriage carrying dangerous or hazardous goods holds a driving licence as per provisions of rule 9 of these rules."

18. From the conjoint reading of the aforesaid provisions, it is clear that insofar as the heavy goods motor vehicles is concerned, the licence issued to such a person is valid for a period of three years. However, where a driver is driving a transport vehicle carrying hazardous goods, for such vehicles, the driver must possess a separate endorsement and the said endorsement has to be renewed from time to time on an application made by the driver concerned as per the provisions and rules framed under the Act of 1988."

19. Having taken a look at the relevant provisions, now it will be appropriate to take a look at the license which was placed on record by the respondent no. 5 along with documents list bearing Paper No. C-17/1.

20. From the perusal of the aforesaid driving license, it would indicate that the driving license bearing U.P. 86 20130003803 was issued in the name of Rajesh Kumar Son of Chhatrapal on 03.07.2013 and was valid till 02.07.2033 and it also indicates that Rajesh Kumar was authorized to drive, a light motor vehicle and MCWG (motor vehicles with gear). The driver is also authorized to drive a transportation vehicle, however, this endorsement was effective from 22.09.2014. The said driving license has been issued from the office of R.T.O. Hathras, in the State of U.P.

21. From the perusal of the aforesaid documents it does not indicate that there is any endorsement for driving a transportation vehicle carrying hazardous goods as required in terms of Section 14 of the Act 1988 read with Rules 9 and 132 framed under the Central Motor Vehicles Rules, 1989. Thus, from the above, it would be clear that there is no dispute regarding the fact that the driver was authorized to drive a transportation vehicle, however, there is nothing on record to indicate that he was also permitted to drive a transportation vehicle carrying dangerous/hazardous goods. Tankers which carry petrol, gas and other inflammable articles and are permitted to transport such commodities and ply on public roads, the law has formulated certain rules and provisions and only after complying with the same, a vehicle of such category can be driven by a person authorized as per law. The authority or the license to drive a vehicle in a public place is in compliance of the statutory requirement under the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988. A person is entitled to compensation in terms of Section 166 of the Motor Vehicles Act only after establishing that the driver of the offending vehicle was rash and negligent whereas the issue as to who is liable to satisfy the award depends on the condition primarily it is the owner and the driver who is responsible but in view of the insurance cover in terms of Chapter 11 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, the liability is indemnified by the Insurance Company in terms of Section 149 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988.

22. Thus, it would be seen that there can be two separate situations; i) where a person may be negligent in driving but at the same time, he must be authorized to drive a particular type of vehicle in accordance with law and the other situation can be where a driver may not be negligent per-se, while driving, but an accident may occur on account of use of the said motor vehicle but even then the driver must not be authorized to drive that particular category vehicle;

(ii) The occurrence of an motor accident and the validity of the driving license will impact the liability of the Insurance Company and this aspect has been considered in detail by the Apex Court in National Insurance Company Vs. Swaran Singh (2004) 3 SCC 297.

23. Whereas the contract of Insurance between the insured and the insurance company is based on 'Uberrima fides'. It is a contract which has to be complied with in its letter and spirit.

24. Taking note of the aforesaid aspect of the matter and noticing that the driver of the offending gas tanker did not possess the requisite endorsement to drive or use the heavy goods vehicle carrying hazardous/dangerous goods, indicates that law did not authorize him to drive the said vehicle in a public place. The owner of the gas tanker permitted a person to use the said heavy goods vehicle carrying hazardous/dangerous goods in the public space in violation of the law and it is per se violative of the policy condition.

25. The manner in which the accident occurred may not be necessary to absolve the owner of his liability, but this aspect of the matter has been taken note of by the Coordinate Bench of this Court in the case of Gautam Filling Station Vs. Munnu Singh & Another; 2016 (34) LCD 1669. In Paragraphs 26 and 27, it has been held as under:-

"26. Thus, if the statutory requirements as noted above are ignored or diluted on the basis of fact of the case or the factum of accident, say that the driver of the vehicle was admittedly negligent and the insurance company is not permitted to raise the defence that such statutory requirements were not fulfilled, it would amount to nullifying the limited protection granted to the insurance company under section 149 of the Act of 1988.

27. In such view of the matter, in my opinion, section 149 provides for statutory protection available to the company, which clearly shows that no sum shall be payable by the insurer under sub-section (1) in respect of any judgment or award and the insurer can defend the action on the ground as provided under section 149 which also includes that it can avoid its liability if the person driving the vehicle was not duly licensed. For this purpose, needless to say that the requirement of section 3 and section 14 of the Act of 1988 and Rule 9 and Rule 132(5) of the Central Motor Vehicles Rules, 1989, which have already been noted above and need no repetition, are to be fulfilled or complied with for holding a valid licence."

26. The learned counsel for the appellant has also relied upon a Division

Bench of this Court in the case of Sibbal Singh Vs. The United India Insurance Co. Ltd., F.A.F.O. (Defective) No. 378 of 2010, decided on 13.08.2012, however, from the perusal of the aforesaid decision, it appears that in case of Sibbal Singh (Supra), though, it does not deal with all the provisions of law yet it also arrives at the same conclusion as noticed in the case of Gautam Filling Station (supra).

27. This Court in United India Insurance Company Ltd. Vs. Smt. Vimla Devi and others; F.A.F.O. No. 845 of 2006 decided on 27.07.2021 (2021 Latest case Law 8677 ALL) had the occasion to consider a similar issue and wherein after taking note of the earlier decisions, it arrived at a finding that even though the driver had a license but since it did not have the requisite endorsement as provided in the Motor Vehicles Act permitting the driver to drive a transportation vehicle carrying dangerous/hazardous goods, hence, the Court partly allowed the appeal and granted the recovery rights to the Insurance Company.

28. Considering the ratio laid in the case of Gautam Filling Station (Supra) and Vimla Devi (Supra) and applying the principles to the facts of the instant case, it would be clear as the day that though the respondent no. 5, the driver of the Gas tanker was authorized to driver a transportation vehicle but there is no evidence to suggest that he had the authorization to drive a transport vehicle carrying hazardous/dangerous goods. It is also not disputed by the learned counsel for the respondents nos. 5 and 6 Sri Firoz Ahmad Khan that on the relevant date when the accident occurred i.e. 29.07.2017, the driver did not possess any such authorization nor there was any endorsement to the aforesaid effect of his license. No such material has been brought to the notice of this Court nor it finds place in the records of the Tribunal below. Thus, it can safely be concluded that the driving license of the Gas driver of the gas tanker did not authorize him to driver a transport vehicle carrying dangerous/hazardous goods.

29. Now, the issue arises as to whether the Insurance Company can absolve itself of its liability, however, this is settled in light of the decision of the Constitution Bench in Swaran Singh (supra) where the Apex Court considering the various types of discrepancies in the driving license and how the matter is to be dealt with has been considered in detail and the relevant portion thereof read as under:-

“110. The summary of our findings to the various issues as raised in these petitions is as follows:

“(i) Chapter XI of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 providing compulsory insurance of vehicles against third-party risks is a social welfare legislation to extend relief by compensation to victims of accidents caused by use of motor vehicles. The provisions of compulsory insurance coverage of all vehicles are with this paramount object and the provisions of the Act have to be so interpreted as to effectuate the said object.

(ii) An insurer is entitled to raise a defence in a claim petition filed under Section 163-A or Section 166 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, inter alia, in terms of Section 149(2)(a)(ii) of the said Act.

(iii) The breach of policy condition e.g. disqualification of the driver or invalid driving licence of the driver, as contained in sub-section (2)(a)(ii) of Section 149, has to be proved to have been committed by the insured for avoiding liability by the insurer. Mere absence, fake or invalid driving licence or disqualification of the driver for driving at the relevant time, are not in themselves defences available to the insurer against either the insured or the third parties. To avoid its liability towards the insured, the insurer has to prove that the insured was guilty of negligence and failed to exercise reasonable care in the matter of fulfilling the condition of the policy regarding use of vehicles by a duly licensed driver or one who was not disqualified to drive at the relevant time.

(iv) Insurance companies, however, with a view to avoid their liability must not only establish the available defence(s) raised in the said proceedings but must also establish “breach” on the part of the owner of the vehicle; the burden of proof wherefor would be on them.

(v) The court cannot lay down any criteria as to how the said burden would be discharged, inasmuch as the same would depend upon the facts and circumstances of each case.

(vi) Even where the insurer is able to prove breach on the part of the insured concerning the policy condition regarding holding of a valid licence by the driver or his qualification to drive during the relevant period, the insurer would not be allowed to avoid its liability towards the insured unless the said breach or breaches on the condition of driving licence is/are so fundamental as are found to have contributed to the cause of the accident. The Tribunals in interpreting the policy conditions would apply “the rule of main purpose” and the concept of “fundamental breach” to allow defences available to the insurer under Section 149(2) of the Act.

(vii) The question, as to whether the owner has taken reasonable care to find out as to whether the driving licence produced by the driver (a fake one or otherwise), does not fulfil the requirements of law or not will have to be determined in each case.

(viii) If a vehicle at the time of accident was driven by a person having a learner's licence, the insurance companies would be liable to satisfy the decree.

(ix) The Claims Tribunal constituted under Section 165 read with Section 168 is empowered to adjudicate all claims in respect of the accidents involving death or of bodily injury or damage to property of third party arising in use of motor vehicle. The said power of the Tribunal is not restricted to decide the claims inter se between claimant or claimants on one side and insured, insurer and driver on the other. In the course of adjudicating the claim for compensation and to decide the availability of defence or defences to the insurer, the Tribunal has necessarily the power and jurisdiction to decide disputes inter se between the insurer and the insured. The decision rendered on the claims and disputes inter se between the insurer and insured in the course of adjudication of claim for compensation by the claimants and the award made thereon is enforceable and executable in the same manner as provided in Section 174 of the Act for enforcement and execution of the award in favour of the claimants.

(x) Where on adjudication of the claim under the Act the Tribunal arrives at a conclusion that the insurer has satisfactorily proved its defence in accordance with the provisions of Section 149(2) read with sub-section (7), as interpreted by this Court above, the Tribunal can direct that the insurer is liable to be reimbursed by the insured for the compensation and other amounts which it has been compelled to pay to the third party under the award of the Tribunal. Such determination of claim by the Tribunal will be enforceable and the money found due to the insurer from the insured will be recoverable on a certificate issued by the Tribunal to the Collector in the same manner under Section 174 of the Act as arrears of land revenue. The certificate will be issued for the recovery as arrears of land revenue only if, as required by sub-section (3) of Section 168 of the Act the insured fails to deposit the amount awarded in favour of the insurer within thirty days from the date of announcement of the award by the Tribunal.

(xi) The provisions contained in sub-section (4) with the proviso thereunder and sub-section (5) which are intended to cover specified contingencies mentioned therein to enable the insurer to recover the amount paid under the contract of insurance on behalf of the insured can be taken recourse to by the Tribunal and be extended to claims and defences of the insurer against the insured by relegating them to the remedy before regular court in cases where on given facts and circumstances adjudication of their claims inter se might delay the adjudication of the claims of the victims."

30. In light of the aforesaid decision of Swaran Singh (supra) it would be clear that the Insurance Company cannot absolve its liability absolutely, however, though, the driver had a license, hence, the award is to be satisfied by the Insurance Company qua the claimant-respondent but the appellant-insurance company is entitled to recover the amount from the owner of the offending vehicle (insured).

31. In view of the aforesaid detailed discussions, this Court is of the clear view that the Tribunal has erred in deciding issue no. 3 and fastening the entire liability on the Insurance Company without granting the right of recovery to the insurer.

32. In view of the aforesaid, the award dated 18.11.2021 in so far as it relates to all the findings including the quantum is affirmed with the modification that the Insurance Company shall indemnify the award and shall be at liberty to recover the same from the respondent no. 5 who is the owner of the offending vehicle in accordance with law as provided in Oriental Insurance Company Ltd. Vs. Nanjappan and Others; (2004) 13 SCC 224. Subject to the aforesaid, the award dated 18.11.2011 is maintained. The appeal is partly allowed in the aforesaid terms. In the aforesaid facts and circumstances, there shall be no order as to costs. The record of the Tribunal shall be returned expeditiously.

1. By way of this appeal, the appellants has challenged the judgment and order dated 12.12.1994/14.12.1994 passed by Motor Accident Claims Tribunal / IIIrd Additional District Judge, Etah (hereinafter referred to as "Tribunal") in M.A.C.P. No. 115 of 1992 (Smt. Ram Beti and another Vs. Suresh Chandra and others) awarding a sum of Rs. 61,160/- as compensation to the claimants/appellants with interest at the rate of 12% per annum from the date of filing the claim petition.

2. Heard learned counsel for the appellants and learned counsel for the respondents.

3. The brief facts of the case are that claimants-appellants filed a Motor Accident Claim Petition before the Tribunal for claiming the compensation under Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 for the death of Ram Bilas in a road accident with the averments that on 13.1.1991, Ram Bilas-deceased was going to his village from village Ambari on his bicycle. When he reached at village Kathauli, a scooter no. U.P. 82 2296, which was being driven very rashly and negligently by its driver. The aforesaid scooter being driven in such a manner dashed deceased's bicycle. In this accident, deceased sustained very serious injuries and died during the treatment in the hospital on 14.1.1991.

4. Aggrieved mainly with the compensation awarded, the appellants have preferred this appeal.

5. The accident is not in dispute. The issue of negligence has attained finality as neither the Insurance Company nor the owner of the vehicle has disputed the same even in oral submissions. The driver of the said vehicle was having valid and effective driving licence on the date of accident is also a decided fact. The vehicle being insured and there being no breach of policy condition is a finding, which has attained finality. The only issue to be decided is the quantum of compensation awarded by the Tribunal.

6. Learned counsel for the appellants has submitted that learned Tribunal has considered the income of the deceased will have to be Rs.2,000/- per month to which 40% will have to be added towards future loss of income and 1/2 will have to be deducted for personal expenses. It is also submitted by learned counsel for the appellants that learned Tribunal has awarded amount of Rs.5,000/- for medical expenses. It is further stated that the learned Tribunal has not granted any amount under the head of non pecuniary damages. The deceased was 25 years of age at the time of accident, hence, the multiplier applicable would be 18. In support of the above arguments, learned counsel for the appellant has relied on the decision in National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Pranay Sethi and others, 2017 LawSuit (SC) 1093 & Sarla Verma Vs. Delhi Transport Corporation, (2009) 6 SCC 121.

7. As against this, learned counsel for the respondent-Insurance Company has contended that the quantum of compensation awarded by the Tribunal is just and proper. The income which is asked for cannot be granted in absence of any evidence to prove the same. It is also submitted that in the year of accident, the multiplier was that of the parents to be applied.

8. This Court cannot accept the submission of learned counsel for the respondent that amount is just and proper and the multiplier was that of the parents to be applied. The law on the point is now well settled that multiplier would be that of the deceased.

9. Having heard learned counsel for the parties, the income of the deceased can be considered to be Rs.2,000/- per month i.e. Rs.24,000/- per annum. The deceased will fall within the category of self employed and his age was in the age bracket of 25-30 years at the time of accident, hence, 40% of income shall be added towards future loss of income and 1/2 shall be deducted for personal expenses as held by Hon'ble Apex Court in National Insurance Company vs. Pranay Sethi [2014 (4) TAC 637 (SC)]. Keeping in view the age of the deceased, multiplier of 18 will be admissible in the light of the judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Smt.Sarla Verma vs. Delhi Transport Corporation [2009 (2) TAC 677 (SC)].

10. As far as non-pecuniary damages are concerned, the Tribunal has not awarded any sum towards non pecuniary damages. The parents/claimants shall be entitled to get Rs.30,000/- for loss of consortium in the light of the judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Kurvan Ansari alias Kurvan Ali and another vs. Shyam Kishore Murmu and another [2021 (4) TAC (SC)].

- (i) Annual Income : Rs.24,000/-
Per annum (Rs.2,000 X 12)
- (ii) Percentage towards future prospects 40% : Rs. 9,600/-
- (iii) Total income : Rs. 24,000/- + Rs.9,600/- = Rs. 33,600/-
- (iv) Income after deduction 1/2: Rs.33,600/- - Rs.16,800/- = Rs.16,800/-
- (v) Multiplier applicable : 18
- (vi) Loss of Dependency : Rs. 16,800/- X 18 = Rs.3,02,400/-
- (vii) Amount under non pecuniary head : Rs. 30,000/-

(viii)	Total	compensation	:
Rs.3,02,400/-	+	Rs.30,000/-	=
Rs.3,32,400/-

12. The rate of interest 12% cannot be granted on enhanced amount. The rate of interest would be 7.5% from the date of filing the claim petition till the award and 6% thereafter.

13. In view of the above, the appeal is partly allowed. Judgment and decree passed by the Tribunal shall stand modified to the aforesaid extent. The respondent-Insurance Company shall deposit the amount within 8 weeks from today. The amount already deposited be deducted from the amount to be deposited.

14. Record and proceedings be sent back to the Tribunal forthwith. The amount be paid to the claimants and no amount be kept in fixed deposit.

15. On depositing the amount in the Registry of Tribunal, Registry is directed to first deduct the amount of deficit court fees, if any. Considering the ratio laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of A.V. Padma V/s. Venugopal, Reported in 2012 (1) GLH (SC), 442, the order of investment is not passed because applicants /claimants are neither illiterate or rustic villagers.

16. In view of the ratio laid down by Hon'ble Gujarat High Court, in the case of Smt. Hansaguri P. Ladhani v/s The Oriental Insurance Company Ltd., reported in 2007(2) GLH 291, total amount of interest, accrued on the principal amount of compensation is to be apportioned on financial year to financial year basis and if the interest payable to claimant for any financial year exceeds Rs.50,000/-, insurance company/owner is/are entitled to deduct appropriate amount under the head of 'Tax Deducted at Source' as provided u/s 194A (3) (ix) of the Income Tax Act, 1961 and if the amount of interest does not exceeds Rs.50,000/- in any financial year, registry of this Tribunal is directed to allow the claimant to withdraw the amount without producing the certificate from the concerned Income- Tax Authority. The aforesaid view has been reiterated by this High Court in Review Application No.1 of 2020 in First Appeal From Order No.23 of 2001 (Smt. Sudesna and others Vs. Hari Singh and another) while disbursing the amount. The said decision has also been reiterated by High Court Gujarat in R/Special Civil Application No.4800 of 2021 (The Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Chief Commissioner of Income Tax (TDS) decided on 5.4.2022.

17. Fresh Award be drawn accordingly in the above petition by the tribunal as per the modification made herein. The Tribunals in the State shall follow the direction of this Court as herein aforementioned as far as disbursement is concerned, it should look into the condition of the litigant and the pendency of the matter and judgment of A.V. Padma (supra). The same is to be applied looking to the facts of each case.

18. The Tribunal shall follow the guidelines issued by the Apex Court in Bajaj Allianz General Insurance Company Private Ltd. v. Union of India and others vide order dated 27.1.2022, as the purpose of keeping compensation is to safeguard the interest of the claimants. As long period has elapsed, the amount be deposited in the Saving Account of claimants in Nationalized Bank without F.D.R.

A. Civil Law - Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 - Section 173 - Tribunal rejected the claim on the ground that claimant lodged FIR after 2 and a half month, witnesses are husband and wife and also belies medico-legal evidence-Rather, the medico-legal evidence supports the claimant's case as the injuries were noticed to be fresh , the report is absolutely compatible with the initial and emergency examination in the case of a motor accident-The claimant's case would not stand discredited, because during treatment some other disease or problem was discovered-Merely because another injured on board the vehicle alongside the claimant has not been produced, would not render the claimant's case suspect, where by evidence aliunde it is proven-No reason to draw an adverse inference against the claimant- The matter remitted back to Tribunal to decide afresh.(Para 1 to 32)

The appeal is partly allowed. (E-6)

This is a claimant's appeal under Section 173 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 (for short, 'the Act') arising out of a judgment and award passed by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/ the 10th Additional District Judge, Allahabad dated 02.09.2000 in MACP No.584 of 1996, rejecting the claim petition.

2. A claim petition was instituted by the claimant-appellant, Smt. Bindu Singh (for short, 'the claimant') before the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/ the District Judge, Allahabad on 04.09.1996 with the case that on 15.06.1996, the claimant along with her family members was travelling on board Jeep, bearing registration No. UP-70F-1028 from Allahabad (now Prayagraj) towards Rewa. At about 9 o'clock in the evening when the Jeep was moving on the Allahabad-Rewa Road and had reached a place called Village Barethi, within the local limits of Police Station Kaundhiara, District Allahabad, the Jeep driver, driving the vehicle at a high speed and negligently, hit a stationary truck on the rear side. The truck was proceeding to Rewa and was parked on the road at a place, which was dark. The tail lamps of the truck were not alight nor was it displaying any other signal about its stationary position. The Jeep driver owing to his negligence hit the truck involving the left side of the Jeep in the collision. The Jeep was badly wrecked due to the impact. The claimant, who was sitting on the left hand side of the Jeep, sustained grievous injuries and her son Sameer Kumar Singh, who was sitting by her side and another Harish Chandra @ Lallan, sitting behind the claimant, also on the left hand side, too sustained injuries.

3. The claimant asserts that she is an educated woman and would work from home under a scheme of the State Government for informal education as an Anudeshika. The said work was part time.

In addition, she would carry on business of supplying milk on her own, take care of her family as well as carry on agriculture. On account of the injuries sustained in the accident, the claimant has been left incapable of performing any productive work in future. The claimant has also asserted that she was a healthy person, but after the accident, she is no longer in a position to work either for her family or outside, as she did before. Her body has been disfigured and the injuries have left her a depressed woman. In her personal life, she has to face difficulties and reverses. She has suffered a mental and physical setback on account of the injuries which are likely to be there throughout her life.

4. It is the claimant's case that after the accident, the owner of the Jeep and the Insurer did not take any action. She reported the matter to the Superintendent of Police, Trans Yamuna, Allahabad personally appearing before him on 23.08.1996. The Superintendent of Police aforesaid ordered the competent Officer at Police Station Kaundhiara, District Allahabad to lodge a report about the accident by his order dated 23.08.1996. Thereupon, Crime No.130 of 1996, under Sections 279, 337 IPC, Police Station Kaundhiara, District Allahabad was registered on 01.09.1996, where the claimant's husband, Ashok Kumar Singh is the informant. Hari Pratap Singh was impleaded as opposite party No.1 to the claim petition, who is the owner of the Jeep in question. He shall hereinafter be referred to as 'the owner'. The United India Insurance Company Limited, 5A, Sardar Patel Marg, Civil Lines, Allahabad through its Branch Manager are opposite party No.2 to the claim petition. The said Insurance Company are the Insurers of the Jeep. The Insurance Company is impleaded as respondent No.2 to the appeal. The Insurance Company aforesaid shall hereinafter be referred to as 'the Insurer'.

5. A written statement dated 30.07.1997 was filed on behalf of the owner, bearing paper No.10-A. The owner generally denied the allegations in the claim petition. The owner came up with a plea that the claimant's allegation that the accident happened on account of the rash and negligent driving by the Jeep driver is incorrect and without basis. He denied the factum of the accident in Paragraph No.11 of his written statement; and in Paragraph No.12 more specifically. It was not denied that the owner is the registered owner of the Jeep in question. It was also not denied that the Jeep aforesaid was insured with the Insurer, where the policy was effective from 17.12.1995 to 16.12.1996. It was also pleaded that the vehicle, in any case, was being driven by a duly authorized driver, of course, maintaining the stance that the Jeep in question was not involved in any accident.

6. A separate written statement dated 10th July, 1998 was filed on behalf of the Insurer, bearing paper No.17-A. The allegations in the claim petition were generally denied in the first part of the Insurer's pleadings, and in the additional pleas, it was averred that the registration book, the driving licence and the route permit of the vehicle in question, besides other papers, have not been filed along with the claim petition. There is a queer sentence in Paragraph No.24 of the Insurer's written statement, which says, quite without any sense to it that 'The petition being infructuous and ambiguous, is liable to be dismissed'. The written statement being signed by an Advocate, who would have certainly gone through its contents, one would not expect this kind of senseless pleading. It is then pleaded on behalf of the Insurer, on the same lines as the owner, that no accident ever took place, involving the Jeep in question. There is also a plea that the vehicle was being driven against the terms and conditions of the Insurance Policy at the time of the accident. There is a plea on behalf of the Insurer that the Jeep in question was being driven as a taxi at the time of the accident, and, as such, the claim petition is not maintainable. There is also a plea about non-joinder of necessary parties, urged on foot of the fact that the owner and the Insurer of the truck have not been impleaded. It is averred that at the time of the accident, the driver of the vehicle in question did not hold a valid and effective driving licence to drive the particular type of vehicle. The Insurer has pleaded that, therefore, they are not liable.

7. On the aforesaid pleadings of parties, the Tribunal has framed the following issues (translated into English from Hindi):

"1. Whether on the date of the alleged accident i.e. 15.06.1996, the driver of the vehicle, bearing registration No. UP-70F-1028 caused the accident (with vehicle, bearing registration No. CPA/3812) on account of driving the vehicle at a high speed and negligently? If yes, its effect?

2. Whether the driver of the said Jeep, bearing registration No. UP-70F-1028 at the time of the accident, did not possess a valid driving licence? Effect?

3. Whether the Jeep was being driven in contravention of the terms and conditions of the Insurance Policy? If yes, its effect?

4. The claimant is entitled to receive what amount of compensation and from which of the opposite party?

5. Whether the claim petition is bad for non-joinder on account of non-impleadment of the owner of vehicle No. CPA/3812? Effect?"

8. The claimant entered the witness-box testifying in support of her case as PW-1. Her husband, Ashok Kumar Singh was examined as PW-2. Through a list of documents, paper No.20-Ga, a carbon copy of the FIR dated 01.09.1996, a copy of the application dated 02.08.1996 moved before the Insurer, a carbon copy of the information sent to the S.S.P., Allahabad on 23.08.1996 and a cash-memo showing purchase of medicines etc. were filed. The owner filed a photostat copy of the driver's driving licence and Insurance Policy, besides the registration certificate of the Jeep.

9. This Court notices that apart from the summary of evidence which the Tribunal has noted in its judgment, there are also documents on record, such as the ultrasound scan report and injury report dated 16.06.1996 issued by the Emergency Medical Officer, S.R.N. Hospital, Allahabad, noting three injuries on the claimant's person with the remark that the injuries be kept under observation and advising an x-ray examination. There are also x-ray plates on record from a certain Raj Nursing and Maternity Home. In addition, there is a prescription dated 16.09.1996 by Dr. A.K. Pradhan, Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeon, Varanasi, noting it to be a case of accidental injury, already treated at Allahabad. There are prescriptions by other doctors as well.

10. The Tribunal in returning its findings on Issue No.1 has taken note of the fact that the Jeep in question being involved in the accident or the accident ever happening involving the vehicle has been denied. It has been remarked that the burden to prove the accident and the injuries sustained there, would, therefore, be upon the claimant. The Tribunal has noted that the claimant has testified herself as PW-1 and her husband, Ashok Kumar as PW-2. The Tribunal has remarked that both the witnesses are interested witnesses. It has been noted that both witnesses are said to be travelling on board the Jeep in question on 15.06.1996 in the evening hours at 9 o'clock when the accident is said to have happened, involving truck No. CPA/3812. The Tribunal has remarked that a prompt FIR about the accident has not been lodged by the driver of either vehicle. Ashok Kumar Singh has made his first written report on 01.09.1996, that is to say, after about two and a half months of the accident. No reason has been shown explaining this delay.

11. The Tribunal has observed that the natural course of action after an accident is that the driver or the injured would get an FIR lodged with the Police. The delay in lodging the FIR, therefore, leads to a situation, in the Tribunal's opinion, where the claimant's testimony in the witness-box, does not receive any support from it. The Tribunal has noted that PW-1 in her testimony has said that she was proceeding along with her family to Satna, Madhya Pradesh and PW-2, Ashok Kumar too has also said that the family were proceeding from Allahabad to Satna. The Tribunal has remarked that in the FIR dated 01.09.1996 lodged with the Police by Ashok Kumar Singh, it has been mentioned that the family were proceeding from Allahabad to Maihar. By contrast, the Tribunal observes that in the claim petition it is stated that the family were proceeding from Allahabad to Rewa. The Tribunal has opined that this is a contradiction which makes the claimant's case suspect.

12. PW-2, Ashok Kumar has also been noted by the Tribunal to have said in his testimony that apart from the two witnesses, their family members were also travelling on board the Jeep and that in the accident, his wife and Harish Chandra alone sustained injuries. However, no injury report relating to Harish Chandra's injuries has been placed on record. Harish Chandra has also not been examined as a witness on behalf of the claimant. The Tribunal has opined that the claimant has, thus, not produced a material and important witness.

13. The Tribunal has gone on to say that the claimant has said in her testimony that after the accident, she lost consciousness and was examined at the S.R.N. Hospital, Allahabad on 16.06.1996 at 1.05 a.m. The Tribunal has observed that the medical examination report shows only three injuries, but does not record the fact that the claimant had fainted. Noting the injuries, the Tribunal records that according to the medico-legal report, the claimant had an injury between her forehead and cheek, measuring 1.5 cm x 3 cm, which was an open wound. She had a bone deep wound on her chin - 8 x 2cm, and a swelling on her chest 25x25 cm. The report, according to the Tribunal, notes that all injuries are simple in nature, caused by a blunt object. The injury report does not record the fact that the injuries have been sustained in a motor accident. It has been remarked that at the time of undergoing medical examination, the claimant had not said that she has sustained injuries in a motor accident. The Tribunal has held that in view of all these facts, the medico-legal evidence does not support the claimant's case about the accident.

14. The Tribunal has then gone on to examine the cause for the delay assigned by the claimant in lodging the FIR. It has been noted that it is the claimant's case that the owner of the vehicle in question had promised the claimant that he would ensure that the Insurer paid the compensation due and that it is for the said reason that the claimant did not lodge an FIR. The Tribunal has taken note of the claimant's submission that the aforesaid assertion by the claimant in the claim petition has not been specifically denied by the respondents in their written statements. There is apparently no denial of the assertion. The Tribunal, however, has remarked that the provisions of Orders V and VI of the Code of Civil Procedure do not apply proprio vigore to the trial of a claim under the Act. As such, non-traverse of the said plea in the Tribunal's opinion is not of much consequence.

15. The Tribunal has remarked that the owner in his additional pleas has specifically denied the involvement of the vehicle in the accident. On this state of pleadings if the claimant wanted to prove that she had laid a claim before the Insurer, burden lay upon her to prove it. The Tribunal has observed that to discharge the said burden, the claimant has filed a copy of an application made before the Insurer by Ashok Kumar on her behalf, but the said application, bearing paper No.20-Ga/4 has not been proved in accordance with law. There is a remark by the Tribunal that this application has not been made to the Insurer by the owner, and, therefore, it cannot be inferred that the owner had promised the claimant that he would secure compensation for her from the Insurer. There is then a mixed up remark by the Tribunal saying that if in a situation of this kind, the claimant wanted to benefit out of the fact, she had to specially prove it.

16. To all seeming the fact mentioned in this finding, which the Tribunal speaks about, appears to be about the claimed promise by the owner that he would ensure that the Insurer paid compensation to the claimant. The Tribunal next remarks that the said plea by the claimant is not liable to be accepted in the absence of evidence. The Tribunal says that it is noteworthy that Ashok Kumar, who had made the application to the Insurer, was examined as PW-2, but he has not proved the said application. Therefore, the claimant's case pleaded and her evidence are at variance.

17. The next reason to disbelieve the claimant's case assigned by the Tribunal is that the claimant was sitting not on the front seat, but the one behind it, whereas the owner of the vehicle in question and the claimant's son was sitting on the front seat, next to the driver. It is remarked by the Tribunal that the claimant does not speak about the injuries sustained by the owner and her son, Sameer, who were sitting on the front seat, next to the driver, and it is unnatural that they would not sustain injuries. The Tribunal has proceeded to hold that the aforesaid fact shows that the claimant's testimony is one based on imagination.

18. It is next observed by the Tribunal that PW-2, Ashok Kumar in his testimony says that on the front seat, the driver, the owner, Harish Chandra and another man, were sitting, but none of these men have been produced in evidence by the claimant. It is also observed that the stationary truck's driver, cleaner or other person, who had witnessed the accident, have not been produced as witnesses too. The Tribunal has opined that on the basis of the said evidence, it cannot be held that the Jeep in question was involved in the accident, that is alleged to have happened on 15.06.1996 on account of the driver's mistake and negligence, and wherein the claimant sustained injuries.

19. The Tribunal has not ended its opinion on Issue No.1 with the aforesaid remark, but has gone ahead to consider some unnecessary submissions by the learned Counsel appearing for the Insurer. The Tribunal has noted the submission of the learned Counsel for the Insurer to the effect that the claimant is habitual in laying claims for compensation. In support of his submission, the learned Counsel for the Insurer before the Tribunal had come up with a case that the claimant had purchased cattle after securing a loan. She had shown the cattle to have died and realized compensation from the Insurance Company. Papers in regard to loss on account of cattle heads dying have been noticed as paper Nos. 20-Ga/13 to 20-Ga/16.

20. There is then note of another argument by the learned Counsel for the Insurer, which says that papers relating to treatment undertaken by the claimant at the Jeevan Jyoti Hospital relate to breast cancer and the purchase vouchers for medicines also relate to drugs, which are meant for treatment of cancer. The Tribunal has remarked that there is nothing on record to show that the claimant has suffered from cancer on account of the injuries sustained in the accident. If the claimant wanted to prove that she suffered cancer on account of the injuries, burden lay upon her to prove it by medical evidence. The Tribunal has remarked that apparently the claimant has not suffered breast cancer in consequence of the accident. On the basis of these added remarks, the Tribunal has reiterated its opinion that the alleged accident on 15.06.1996 involving the Jeep in question never happened.

21. Issue No.2 has been decided against the Insurer as also Issue No.3, both for want of evidence being led by the Insurer. Issue No.5 has also been decided against the owner and the Insurer holding that the owner and the Insurer of the truck are not necessary parties. Issue No.4 has been decided against the claimant, being a sequitur to the findings on Issue No.1, holding that the accident never happened.

22. Heard Mr. Amit Kumar Sinha, Advocate holding brief of Mr. Ram Singh, learned Counsel for the claimant and Mr. Anubhav Sinha, Advocate holding brief of Mr. Amaresh Sinha, learned Counsel for the Insurer. No one appears on behalf of the owner. The lower court records have been perused.

23. The Tribunal has commenced appreciation of the testimony of PW-1 and PW-2 on a note of suspicion for no good reason. The Tribunal has observed that both the witnesses are interested witnesses, though not much is said thereafter. This remark of the Tribunal seems to have coloured its vision in appreciating the testimony of the two eye-witnesses. PW-1 is one of the injured and she has testified in intricate detail about the manner in which the accident happened, which has been largely corroborated by the testimony of PW-2, Ashok Kumar, her husband, also a passenger on board the ill-fated vehicle. There is no principle or even a rule of prudence by which the testimony of two passengers on board an ill-fated vehicle is to be held suspect merely because they are man and wife and one of them is the claimant. It is the claimant's case that she was travelling on board the ill-fated vehicle along with her family. In her testimony, she has given the details of the family members, who were travelling. It includes her husband, PW-2, Ashok Kumar, besides her two sons. In the circumstances, the Tribunal was not right in suspecting the testimony of PW-1 and PW-2 for reason that they are man and wife.

24. The next finding, which is more effectual than the first inchoate one, is that the FIR having been lodged on 01.09.1996 by the claimant's husband, Ashok Kumar Singh with no report being lodged about the accident earlier, does not lend support to the claimant's case. This finding by the Tribunal, though true about the fact that the FIR was registered two and a half months after the occurrence, is not sustainable. It is imperative to note that in Paragraph No.6 of the claim petition under Column No.23, there is a specific averment that information with the Police was not lodged, because the owner and his son R.K. Jaiswal, who are men of high reputation in the locale, had assured the claimant and her husband that they would ensure payment of compensation to the claimant, which later on they did not fulfil; and this averment has not been denied or rebutted in the least measure in the written statement filed on behalf of the owner, or for that matter the Insurer. The Tribunal has made small of this non-traverse by saying that the principles of Orders V and VI CPC do not apply proprio vigore to proceedings before the Tribunal. Non-denial of a material fact, whether in proceedings before a Court of civil jurisdiction governed by the Code of Civil Procedure or otherwise, would lead to the same result. A non-traverse leads to the inference that some kind of a promise was made by the owner and his son to the claimant that they would ensure payment of compensation. If in those circumstances, in a case of injury, an ordinary man does not promptly lodge an FIR, where there is other tangible evidence about the happening of the accident, the delay would not work to discredit the claimant's case. The lodging of an FIR is not a pleasant task for an ordinary man. It is common experience that unless the offence is serious, men of the world avoid interacting with the Police to lodge informations, though that is not the explanation here. In the opinion of this Court, it is certainly a relevant factor to judge the conduct of the claimant in not promptly reporting the accident to the police, in the face of a promise by the owner and his son that compensation would be ensured to her for the injuries. The FIR, in the opinion of this Court for the said reason, cannot be discounted altogether, though its probative value may be far lesser than an information promptly lodged with the Police.

25. The next finding, which the Tribunal has recorded to disbelieve the claimant's case is that in their testimony PW-1 and PW-2 have said that they were proceeding from Allahabad to Satna whereas in the FIR lodged by PW-2 on 01.09.1996, it is alleged that the claimant and her family were proceeding to Maihar; as against this in the claim petition the averment is that the claimant was proceeding to Rewa. All this has been held to be a contradiction that renders the claimant's case undependable and suspect. A perusal of the testimony of PW-1 and PW-2, no doubt says that the family were proceeding from Allahabad to Satna, but to find a contradiction in it with reference to the FIR, because it mentions that the claimant and her family were proceeding to Maihar, is based on a pedantic reading of the evidence instead of one that is realistic. Maihar is a Tehsil of District Satna in Madhya Pradesh, reputed for its position as a place of pilgrimage. If, therefore, the claimant and her witnesses mentioned their destination as Satna in her testimony, but PW-2 has described it as Maihar in the FIR lodged, it may not be a contradiction at all. It would be a contradiction, if the respondents had confronted PW-2 with reference to his previous statement in the FIR, and he had not explained satisfactorily why the destination was differently described. Since that was not done, the evidence has to be liberally viewed in favour of the claimant, unless the discrepancy be inexplicable. It has to be liberally viewed, because after all a motor accident claim is a proceeding under a beneficial piece of legislation, which is not to be tried with the stickler approach of a money suit.

26. So far as the pleading in this regard is concerned, the Tribunal has observed in manifest error that in the claim petition, the claimant has asserted that the family were proceeding from Allahabad to Rewa. In Column No.9, the place of accident has been mentioned as 'Allahabad-Rewa Road'. In Column No.26, where the case has been descriptively set out, the pleading is: 'जीप वाहन सं० UP-70F-1028 जिसमें याचिनी अपने परिवार के सदस्यों के साथ इलाहाबाद से रीवा की तरफ यात्रा कर रही थी'. The said plea does not show it to be a case that the claimant has asserted that she and her family were proceeding from Allahabad for destination Rewa. It rather says that the vehicle was moving towards Rewa. It is a fact of which judicial notice must be taken that in order to proceed to Maihar, which is located in District Satna, one has to take the Allahabad-Rewa Road, reach Rewa first before entering Tehsil Maihar, the pilgrimage being located 42 kilometers from Satna. Reading the evidence holistically, one can unmistakably infer that there is absolutely no contradiction in the claimant's testimony about their destination. In the claim petition, it may be a contextual reference to Rewa and elsewhere an incomplete reference to the destination. The Tribunal has completely lost sight of these facts and lost touch with reality while evaluating the claimant's evidence on this score. The finding of the Tribunal based on the contradiction about the destination cannot be sustained.

27. The other reason to disbelieve the claimant's testimony about the accident ever happening is that the claimant has not produced Harish Chandra, the other passenger on board besides her, who had sustained injuries. It has been held that failure to produce the aforesaid witness leads to withholding important evidence. From this, though not said explicitly, an adverse inference has been drawn. The said finding is also not sustainable. Merely because another injured on board the vehicle alongside the claimant has not been produced, would not render the claimant's case suspect, where by evidence aliunde it is proven. Also, there is no reason to draw an adverse inference against the claimant, because another injured on board the ill-fated vehicle has not been produced as a witness.

28. It is next held by the Tribunal that the claimant's case is belied by medico-legal evidence. It is remarked that the claimant has said in her testimony that she had fainted at the time of the accident, but the medical report from S.R.N. Hospital dated 16.06.1996 recorded at 1.05 a.m. does not say that the claimant was unconscious. Lapse on the part of a doctor of this kind cannot be read to disbelieve that the claimant never sustained injuries.

29. The further feature of this finding about the medico-legal evidence is that the Tribunal has, after a description of the injuries, held that all injuries were found to be simple in nature, caused by a hard and blunt object. The said part of the finding suffers from an error apparent on the face of the record. A perusal of the report dated 16.06.1996, authored by the Emergency Medical Officer, S.R.N. Hospital, Allahabad in original (which a document torn at some places) clearly shows in the 'opinion' that the injury was caused by a hard and blunt object, which was to be kept under observation with an advice for x-ray examination. The duration is fresh. The report further reads that the patient be admitted. It also says that the Police and RSO were informed. All this part of the report has been utterly misread by the Tribunal. The medico-legal report nowhere says that the injury is simple. Rather, it has opined it to be one that was to be kept under observation with an advice for x-ray examination. The Police too have been informed showing the medico-legal character of the injuries. If, therefore, the Doctor has omitted to mention that the case is one relating to a motor accident, the omission again is by the Doctor and not of any consequence to the claimant. The Tribunal, therefore, has erred in holding that the medico-legal report not mentioning the fact that the injuries were sustained in a motor accident casts doubt on the claimant's case. The concluding part of the finding by the Tribunal which says that the claimant's case is not supported by medico-legal evidence, for all the reasons above indicated, is not at all sustainable. Rather, the medico-legal evidence supports the claimant's case as the injuries were noticed to be fresh and the Doctor instructed the Police to be informed. The injuries were kept under observation and advised for x-ray examination. The report is absolutely compatible with the initial and emergency examination in the case of a motor accident. It is, accordingly, held.

30. The Tribunal has also discredited the claimant's case, because an application dated 02.08.1996 moved before the Insurer for claiming compensation by the claimant's husband, Ashok Kumar Singh, though filed on record, has not been proved. Even if the said document has not been proved by PW-2 in the witness-box, it can be excluded from evidence, but that by itself would not discredit the claimant's case, which is otherwise well proved by the parole evidence of both witnesses. Both the witnesses, who were on board the vehicle, are broadly consistent about the evidence, which is supported not only by the medico-legal examination done initially, but by other medical evidence. There is a treatment-cum-prescription memo dated 16.09.1996 by Dr. A.K. Pradhan, Surgeon, who has mentioned in his prescription that the case is one of accidental injury. The said prescription is by a Plastic Surgeon, who was consulted later on for reconstructive surgery. The patient has been for the most part treated at Raj Nursing Home, Allahabad and also NEMA Eye Hospital, Varanasi. The prescription by the Doctor at the NEMA Eye Hospital again mentioned it to be a case of accident. PW-1 has testified in her examination-in-chief that she was treated from 16.06.1996 to 30.06.1996 at Raj Nursing Home, Allahabad and thereafter as an outdoor patient. It is mentioned that Dr. A.K. Pradhan of Dr. Shiv Prasad Gupta Hospital, Varanasi also treated her. The medical prescriptions and the medicine vouchers on record from Raj Nursing Home and the prescription from Dr. Pradhan prove that the claimant was in the first instance treated for her injuries and then undertook treatment for some reconstructive facial surgery. She also had to undergo some treatment in respect of her eyes. All this evidence would go to show that the accident, which the claimant asserts was a reality. It is not a farce as the Tribunal has held. The remarks by the Tribunal that the claimant was treated for cancer are completely misplaced. The medical records show that there was some kind of a lump somewhere that was suspected and an FNAC advised. The findings of the Tribunal that she was prescribed medicines for breast cancer do not appear to be justified at all. In any case, the development of a subsequent problem or a chance discovery alongside the treatment for injuries suffered in consequence of the accident, cannot benefit the owner or the Insurer. The claimant's case about the accident and the injuries sustained in it, would not stand discredited, because during treatment some other disease or problem was discovered, which too was treated, if that be the case.

31. In the considered opinion of this Court, the findings recorded by the Tribunal on Issue No.1 cannot be sustained. The findings on the the said issue are set aside. Issue No.1 is, accordingly, answered in favour of the claimant and against the owner and the Insurer. Issues Nos.2, 3 and 5 have already been answered in favour of the claimant by the Tribunal. These need not be examined further either by this Court or by the Tribunal in consequence of the order that this Court proposes to make. This leaves this Court with the fourth Issue, about which there are no comments by the Tribunal at all. The issue has not at all been examined in consequence of the findings on Issue No.1. Since the findings on Issue No.1 have been reversed by this Court, Issue No.4 is required to be determined by the Tribunal in the first instance and the quantum of the award decided on the basis of the evidence of record. Parties would be at liberty to lead further evidence, if they so desire on the issue of quantum alone. No other matter is required to be re-determined by the Tribunal.

32. In the result, this appeal succeeds and is allowed in part. The impugned judgment and award dated 02.09.2000 is set aside. The matter is remanded to the Tribunal for hearing parties afresh on Issue No.4 and passing an award in accordance with law determining just compensation. The matter shall be decided afresh within a period of three months next from the date of receipt of certified copy of this judgment by the Tribunal.

33. Let the record be sent down at once to the Tribunal which now has jurisdiction in the matter.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal
Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. Heard Sri Madhav Jain, learned counsel for the appellant-claimants who are the parents of the minor child who succumb to death at the age of 14 of years and Sri Anubhav Sinha, learned counsel appearing on behalf of Sri Amaresh Sinha, learned counsel for the respondents.

2. This appeal, at the behest of the claimants, challenges the judgment and order dated 18.03.1997 passed by M.A.C.T/Xth-Additional District Judge, Agra (hereinafter referred to as "Tribunal") in M.A.C.P. No. 81 of 1994 awarding a sum of Rs. 52,000/- as compensation with interest at the rate of 12%.

3. Five issues are granted in favour of the claimants. The accident is not in dispute. The issue of negligence decided by the Tribunal is not in dispute and was decided against the respondents. The issue whether the vehicle was insured and there was any breach of policy was also answered in favour of the appellant. The respondent-Insurance Company has not challenged the liability imposed on them. The only issue to be decided is, the quantum of compensation awarded.

4. Brief facts as culled out from the record are that on 27.01.1994, deceased Rakesh Kumar was travelling in a bus bearing registration no. U.P.-80E-9416 which due to rash and negligent driving met with an accident as a result of which deceased Rakesh Kumar sustained grievous injuries. Rakesh Kumar was admitted to S.N. Hospital, Agra where he succumb to his injuries on 29.01.1994.

5. The tribunal comes to the conclusion that the deceased was 14 years of age and therefore was not contributing to the income of the claimants and therefore considered notional income to be Rs. 600/- p.m but thereafter held that his income would be Rs. 300/- p.m namely Rs. 36,00/- p.a., granted multiplier of 15 which would be Rs. 36,000/- and granted what is known as amount under no fault liability to be Rs. 50,000/-, granted Rs. 2000/- for funeral and ultimately assessed the total compensation to be Rs. 52,000/- with 12% interest.

6. The accident occurred on 27.01.1994. It is contended by Sri Madhav Jain, learned counsel for the appellant that even in the year of accident i.e in 1994, the law was that a sum of Rs. 2,25,000/- was admissible. It is further submitted that recently the Apex Court discussing all the judgments as in the case of Kurvan Ansari alias Kurvan Ali Vs. Shyam Kishore Murmu, 2021 0 (SC) 687 has held that for a child of 7 years also the Court has granted a sum of Rs. 4,70,000/-. After discussing all the judgments on the question of grant of compensation for the death of a minor children he has heavily relied upon the judgment of R.K. Malik & Another Vs. Kiran Pal & Others, 2009 0 SC 1113.

7. As against this, the learned counsel for the Insurance Company submitted that the accident occurred in the year 1994. The judgment of the Apex Court in what is known as Upahar tragedy be considered. The judgement of Sarla Dixit Vs. Balwant Yadav, (1996) 3 SCC 179 and that of Lata Wadhwa Vs. State of Bihar, (2001)

8 SCC 197 be considered. He has further relied on the judgment of the undersigned and has contended that in the year of accident the amount of Rs. 1, 56,000/- would be just and proper.

8. Having considering all the facts and circumstances of the case, the oral objection raised under Order 43 Rule 1 C.P.C, the learned counsel for the respondent objected that the 12% rate of interest is too high, the rate of interest in the year 1997 also requires reconsideration. The amount would be for 14 year minor child in the year 1994 where the parents who are aged 45 and 47 years would be Rs. 1,56,000/- as held by Apex Court in catena of decisions. The decision of Apex Court in case of Kurvan Ansari (supra) and Kishan Gopal and Another Vs. Lala and others (2014) 1 SCC 244 deal with the accident post year 2000.

9. As far as issue of rate of interest is concerned, it would be 7.5% in view of the latest decision of the Apex Court in National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Mannat Johal and Others, 2019 (2) T.A.C. 705 (S.C.) wherein the Apex Court has held as under :

"13. The aforesaid features equally apply to the contentions urged on behalf of the claimants as regards the rate of interest. The Tribunal had awarded interest at the rate of 12% p.a. but the same had been too high a rate in comparison to what is ordinarily envisaged in these matters. The High Court, after making a substantial enhancement in the award amount, modified the interest component at a reasonable rate of 7.5% p.a. and we find no reason to allow the interest in this matter at any rate higher than that allowed by High Court."

10. No other grounds are urged orally when the matter was heard.

11. In view of the above, the appeal is partly allowed. Award and decree passed by the Tribunal shall stand modified to the aforesaid extent. The amount be deposited by the respondent-Insurance Company within a period of 12 weeks from today with interest as directed above. The amount already deposited be deducted from the amount to be deposited.

12. On depositing the amount in the Registry of Tribunal, Registry is directed to first deduct the amount of deficit court fees, if any. Considering the ratio laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of A.V. Padma V/s. Venugopal, Reported in 2012 (1) GLH (SC), 442, the order of investment is not passed because applicants /claimants are neither illiterate or rustic villagers.

13. Fresh Award be drawn accordingly in the above petition by the tribunal as per the modification made herein. The Tribunals in the State shall follow the direction of this Court as herein aforementioned as far as disbursement is concerned, it should look into the condition of the litigant and the pendency of the matter and judgment of A.V. Padma (supra). The same is to be applied looking to the facts of each case.

14. The Tribunal shall follow the guidelines issued by the Apex Court in Bajaj Allianz General Insurance Company Private Ltd. v. Union of India and others vide order dated 27.1.2022, as the purpose of keeping compensation is to safeguard the interest of the claimants. As long period has elapsed, the amount be deposited in the Saving Account of claimants in Nationalized Bank without F.D.R.

15. Record be sent back to tribunal forthwith.

16. This Court is thankful to both the learned Advocates for ably assisting this Court.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal
Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the appellant and learned counsel for respondent. Officers of National Insurance Company are present.

2. This appeal, at the behest of the claimants, challenges the judgement and decree dated 24.04.1996 passed by M.A.C.T/I-Additional District Judge, Mau (hereinafter referred to as "Tribunal") in M.A.C.P. No. 54 of 1992. The accident is not in dispute. His death by the accident is not in dispute. The issue of negligence decided by the Tribunal is not in dispute. The only issue to be decided is, the quantum of compensation awarded.

3. Brief facts as culled out from the record are that deceased Virendra Kumar Srivastava was working as a homeguard at police station Netpura, District Varanasi. On 07.06.1992 at about 4:00 a.m when deceased Virendra Kumar Srivastava was returning back with Sup-Inspector Kedarnath Pandey in a jeep bearing registration no. M.P.-7B/0927 after completing their work from Mau, at cemented road near dandi village near Rajdev Ram baag a truck bearing registration no. URQ-6354 going towards Gorakhpur from Mau driven by its driver rashly and negligently dashed into Jeep as a result of which deceased died on the spot along-with three other persons travelling with him.

4. The deceased was 28 years of age at the time of accident and he was working as a homeguard in Police Station Naitpura, District Varanasi. He was survived by his widow and two sons. Time has elapsed and his widow has become 63 years of age today and his sons who were minor at the time of accident have also become major, may that as it may be. He was earning Rs. 600/- p.m as a homeguard and Rs. 1400/- p.m from his medicine selling business which amounts to Rs. 2000/- p.m. The tribunal has granted a lumpsum amount of Rs. 64, 800/-.

5. It is submitted by learned counsel for the appellant that the tribunal has considered income of the deceased but has granted a lumpsum amount of Rs. 64, 800/- as far as issues are concerned.

6. After hearing the counsel for the parties and perusing the judgment and order impugned, this Court feels that deceased was a homeguard and therefore, his income atleast should be considered to be Rs.1500/- per month, 1/3rd to be deducted. To which as the deceased was 28 years at the time of accident, 50% of the income would have to be added as future loss of income to the deceased, multiplier would be of 17 and Rs. 50,000/- can be considered towards non pecuniary damages.

7. Further, this Court feels that the quantum/compensation requires to be recalculated. Hence, the total compensation payable to the appellants is computed herein below:

i. Income : Rs.1500/- p.m

ii. Percentage towards future prospects : 50% namely Rs.750/-

iii. Total income : Rs. 1500 + 750 = Rs. 2250/-

iv. Income after deduction of 1/3rd : Rs. 1500/-

v. Annual loss : Rs. 1500 x 12 = Rs. 18,000/-

vi. Multiplier applicable : 17

vii. Total loss : Rs. 18,000 x 17 = Rs. 3,06,000/-

xii. Amount under non-pecuniary head : Rs.50,000/- xiii. Total compensation : 3,56,000/-

8. As the parties have decided to settle the issue the rate of interest would be 6% on enhanced amount from date of filing the claim petition till deposit of enhanced amount.

9. No other grounds are urged orally when the matter was heard.

10. In view of the above, the appeal is partly allowed. Judgment and award passed by the Tribunal shall stand modified to the aforesaid extent. The respondent-Insurance Company shall deposit the additional amount within a period of 12 weeks from today with interest as directed above.

11. On depositing the amount in the Registry of Tribunal, Registry is directed to first deduct the amount of deficit court fees, if any. Considering the ratio laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of A.V. Padma V/s. Venugopal, Reported in 2012 (1) GLH (SC), 442, the order of investment is not passed because applicants /claimants are neither illiterate or rustic villagers.

12. In view of the ratio laid down by Hon'ble Gujarat High Court, in the case of Smt. Hansaguri P. Ladhani v/s The Oriental Insurance Company Ltd., reported in 2007(2) GLH 291, total amount of interest, accrued on the principal amount of compensation is to be apportioned on financial year to financial year basis and if the interest payable to claimant for any financial year exceeds Rs.50,000/-, insurance company/owner is/are entitled to deduct appropriate amount under the head of 'Tax Deducted at Source' as provided u/s 194A (3) (ix) of the Income Tax Act, 1961 and if the amount of interest does not exceeds Rs.50,000/- in any financial year, registry of this Tribunal is directed to allow the claimant to withdraw the amount without producing the certificate from the concerned Income- Tax Authority. The aforesaid view has been reiterated by this High Court in Review Application No.1 of 2020 in First Appeal From Order No.23 of 2001 (Smt. Sudesna and others Vs. Hari Singh and another) while disbursing the amount.

13. Fresh Award be drawn accordingly in the above petition by the tribunal as per the modification made herein. The Tribunals in the State shall follow the direction of this Court as herein aforementioned as far as disbursement is concerned, it should look into the condition of the litigant and the pendency of the matter and judgment of A.V. Padma (supra). The same is to be applied looking to the facts of each case.

14. The Tribunal will now not keep any amount in fixed deposit as more than 30 years have elapsed from the date of filing of the claim petition.

15. Record be sent back to the tribunal.

16. This Court is thankful to the learned counsels for ably assisting this Court.

Civil Law - Motor Accident Claim - Respondent injured-denied by insurance company-issue of negligence decided –driver negligent-composite negligence qua the claimant who was cleaner on the vehicle –driver was negligent-injured was 26 years of age-suffered 40% disability-amount calculated is just compensation.

Appeal dismissed. (E-9)

List of Cases cited:

1. First Appeal From Order No. 1818 of 2012 (Bajaj Allianz General Insurance Co.Ltd. Vs Smt. Renu Singh & ors.) decided on 19.7.2016

2. Khenyei Vs New India Assurance Company Limited & ors., 2015 LawSuit (SC) 469

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. Heard Sri Anubhav Sinha, learned counsel for the appellant. None is present for the respondent.

2. This appeal, at the behest of M/s United India Insurance Company Limited challenges the judgment and award dated 31.5.1996 passed by VIth Additional District Judge/ Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, Etah in Claim Petition No.252 of 1995 whereby the learned Tribunal has awarded Rs. 1,72,800/- as compensation with interest at the rate of 10% per annum with a direction upon the appellant herein to pay the above.

3. Be that as it may, as 27 years have elapsed, this Court deems it fit to decide this appeal where the Court had granted stay vide order dated 4.3.1997.

4. Brief facts as culled out from the record are that the respondent-injured Suresh Kumar along with one another person namely Jasveer Singh were traveling in the truck owned by respondent No.2 on the fateful day i.e. 27/28.7.1995. At about 3.00 a.m. in the morning, they were going to Ghaziabad after loading the goods in Tata 407 No. HR29A/9974 from Kashganj. The vehicle was driven by one Chhote Singh who drove the vehicle rashly and negligently. When the vehicle reached near Bulandshahr, at Sikandrabad-Delhi Road, the Tata 407 rammed into a stationery truck which injured the respondent and Jasveer Singh. From where both of them have rushed to Sikandrabad PHC. After being treated there for 24 hours, the injured was brought to Dr. Virendra Pal, the Orthopaedic surgeon who treated him.

5. On the claim petition being filed, the Insurance Company filed its reply which was one of denial they even denied that the vehicle was insured with it. The owner of the vehicle also filed reply which was also of denial but he has accepted that Suresh Kumar was an employee/cleaner and was being paid Rs.500/- per month. However, his permanent partial disablement as cleaner has been denied. They have contended that as the owner and Insurance Company of the other vehicle has not been joined as party, the claim petition would liable to be dismissed. The Tribunal framed issues and decided issue of negligence in favour claimant holding that driver of Tata 407 was negligent.

6. It is submitted by learned counsel for the appellant that the award is bad in the eye of law as the other vehicle's owner and Insurance Company has not been joined as party. It is further submitted that the finding of the Tribunal as far as issue of negligence is concerned is bad. It is further submitted that the quantum of compensation awarded by the Tribunal is also on the higher side and requires to be modified.

7. While dealing with submission on issue of negligence raised by the learned counsel for the appellant, it would be relevant to discuss the principles for deciding contributory negligence and for that the principles for considering negligence will also have to be looked into.

8. The term negligence means failure to exercise care towards others which a reasonable and prudent person would in a circumstance or taking action which such a reasonable person would not. Negligence can be both intentional or accidental though it is normally accidental. More particularly, it connotes reckless driving and the injured must always prove that the either side is negligent. If the injury rather death is caused by something owned or controlled by the negligent party then he is directly liable otherwise the principle of "res ipsa loquitur" meaning thereby "the things speak for itself" would apply.

9. The principle of contributory negligence has been discussed time and again. A person who either contributes or is co author of the accident would be liable for his contribution to the accident having taken place and that amount will be deducted from the compensation payable to him if he is injured and to legal representatives if he dies in the accident.

10. The Division Bench of this Court in First Appeal From Order No. 1818 of 2012 (Bajaj Allianz General Insurance Co.Ltd. Vs. Smt. Renu Singh And Others) decided on 19.7.2016 has held as under :

"16. Negligence means failure to exercise required degree of care and caution expected of a prudent driver. Negligence is the omission to do something which a reasonable man, guided upon the considerations, which ordinarily regulate conduct of human affairs, would do, or doing something which a prudent and reasonable man would not do. Negligence is not always a question of direct evidence. It is an inference to be drawn from proved facts. Negligence is not an absolute term, but is a relative one. It is rather a comparative term. What may be negligence in one case may not be so in another. Where there is no duty to exercise care, negligence in the popular sense has no legal consequence. Where there is a duty to exercise care, reasonable care must be taken to avoid acts or omissions which would be reasonably foreseen likely to caused physical injury to person. The degree of care required, of course, depends upon facts in each case. On these broad principles, the negligence of drivers is required to be assessed.

17. It would be seen that burden of proof for contributory negligence on the part of deceased has to be discharged by the opponents. It is the duty of driver of the offending vehicle to explain the accident. It is well settled law that at intersection where two roads cross each other, it is the duty of a fast moving vehicle to slow down and if driver did not slow down at intersection, but continued to proceed at a high speed without caring to notice that another vehicle was crossing, then the conduct of driver necessarily leads to conclusion that vehicle was being driven by him rashly as well as negligently.

18. 10th Schedule appended to Motor Vehicle Act contain statutory regulations for driving of motor vehicles which also form part of every Driving License. Clause-6 of such Regulation clearly directs that the driver of every motor vehicle to slow down vehicle at every intersection or junction of roads or at a turning of the road. It is also provided that driver of the vehicle should not enter intersection or junction of roads unless he makes sure that he would not thereby endanger any other person. Merely, because driver of the Truck was driving vehicle on the left side of road would not absolve him from his responsibility to slow down vehicle as he approaches intersection of roads, particularly when he could have easily seen, that the car over which deceased was riding, was approaching intersection.

19. In view of the fast and constantly increasing volume of traffic, motor vehicles upon roads may be regarded to some extent as coming within the principle of liability defined in Rylands V/s. Fletcher, (1868) 3 HL (LR) 330. From the point of view of pedestrian, the roads of this country have been rendered by the use of motor vehicles, highly dangerous. 'Hit and run' cases where drivers of motor vehicles who have caused accidents, are unknown. In fact such cases are increasing in number. Where a pedestrian without negligence on his part is injured or killed by a motorist, whether negligently or not, he or his legal representatives, as the case may be, should be entitled to recover damages if principle of social justice should have any meaning at all.

20. These provisions (sec.110A and sec.110B of Motor Act, 1988) are not merely procedural provisions. They substantively affect the rights of the parties. The right of action created by Fatal Accidents Act, 1855 was 'new in its species, new in its quality, new in its principles. In every way it was new. The right given to legal representatives under Act, 1988 to file an application for compensation for death due to a motor vehicle accident is an enlarged one. This right cannot be hedged in by limitations of an action under Fatal Accidents Act, 1855. New situations and new dangers require new strategies and new remedies.

21. In the light of the above discussion, we are of the view that even if courts may not by interpretation displace the principles of law which are considered to be well settled and, therefore, court cannot dispense with proof of negligence altogether in all cases of motor vehicle accidents, it is possible to develop the law further on the following lines; when a motor vehicle is being driven with reasonable care, it would ordinarily not meet with an accident and, therefore, rule of res-ipsa loquitor as a rule of evidence may be invoked in motor accident cases with greater frequency than in ordinary civil suits (per three-Judge Bench in

22. By the above process, the burden of proof may ordinarily be cast on the defendants in a motor accident claim petition to prove that motor vehicle was being driven with reasonable care or that there is equal negligence on the part the other side."

emphasis added

11. The Apex Court in Khenyei Vs. New India Assurance Company Limited & Others, 2015 LawSuit (SC) 469 has held as under:

"4. It is a case of composite negligence where injuries have been caused to the claimants by combined wrongful act of joint tort feasons. In a case of accident caused by negligence of joint tort feasons, all the persons who aid or counsel or direct or join in committal of a wrongful act, are liable. In such case, the liability is always joint and several. The extent of negligence of joint tort feasons in such a case is immaterial for satisfaction of the claim of the plaintiff/claimant and need not be determined by the by the court. However, in case all the joint tort feasons are before the court, it may determine the extent of their liability for the purpose of adjusting inter-se equities between them at appropriate stage. The liability of each and every joint tort feason vis a vis to plaintiff/claimant cannot be bifurcated as it is joint and several liability. In the case of composite negligence, apportionment of compensation between tort feasons for making payment to the plaintiff is not permissible as the plaintiff/claimant has the right to recover the entire amount from the easiest targets/solvent defendant.

14. There is a difference between contributory and composite negligence. In the case of contributory negligence, a person who has himself contributed to the extent cannot claim compensation for the injuries sustained by him in the accident to the extent of his own negligence; whereas in the case of composite negligence, a person who has suffered has not contributed to the accident but the outcome of combination of negligence of two or more other persons. This Court in T.O. Anthony v. Karvarnan & Ors. [2008 (3) SCC 748] has held that in case of contributory negligence, injured need not establish the extent of responsibility of each wrong doer separately, nor is it necessary for the court to determine the extent of liability of each wrong doer separately. It is only in the case of contributory negligence that the injured himself has contributed by his negligence in the accident. Extent of his negligence is required to be determined as damages recoverable by him in respect of the injuries have to be reduced in proportion to his contributory negligence. The relevant portion is extracted hereunder :

"6. 'Composite negligence' refers to the negligence on the part of two or more persons. Where a person is injured as a result of negligence on the part of two or more wrong doers, it is said that the person was injured on account of the composite negligence of those wrong-doers. In such a case, each wrong doer, is jointly and severally liable to the injured for payment of the entire damages and the injured person has the choice of proceeding against all or any of them. In such a case, the injured need not establish the extent of responsibility of each wrong-doer separately, nor is it necessary for the court to determine the extent of liability of each wrong-doer separately. On the other hand where a person suffers injury, partly due to the negligence on the part of another person or persons, and partly as a result of his own negligence, then the negligence of the part of the injured which contributed to the accident is referred to as his contributory negligence. Where the injured is guilty of some negligence, his claim for damages is not defeated merely by reason of the negligence on his part but the damages recoverable by him in respect of the injuries stands reduced in proportion to his contributory negligence.

7. Therefore, when two vehicles are involved in an accident, and one of the drivers claims compensation from the other driver alleging negligence, and the other driver denies negligence or claims that the injured claimant himself was negligent, then it becomes necessary to consider whether the injured claimant was negligent and if so, whether he was solely or partly responsible for the accident and the extent of his responsibility, that is his contributory negligence. Therefore where the injured is himself partly liable, the principle of 'composite negligence' will not apply nor can there be an automatic inference that the negligence was 50:50 as has been assumed in this case. The Tribunal ought to have examined the extent of contributory negligence of the appellant and thereby avoided confusion between composite negligence and contributory negligence. The High Court has failed to correct the said error."

18. This Court in Challa Bharathamma & Nanjappan (supra) has dealt with the breach of policy conditions by the owner when the insurer was asked to pay the compensation fixed by the tribunal and the right to recover the same was given to the insurer in the executing court concerned if the dispute between the insurer and the owner was the subject-matter of determination for the tribunal and the issue has been decided in favour of the insured. The same analogy can be applied to the instant cases as the liability of the joint tortfeasor is joint and several. In the instant case, there is determination of inter se liability of composite negligence to the extent of negligence of 2/3rd and 1/3rd of respective drivers. Thus, the vehicle - trailer-truck which was not insured with the insurer, was negligent to the extent of 2/3rd. It would be open to the insurer being insurer of the bus after making payment to claimant to recover from the owner of the trailer-truck the amount to the aforesaid extent in the execution proceedings. Had there been no determination of the inter se liability for want of evidence or other joint tortfeasor had not been impleaded, it was not open to settle such a dispute and to recover the amount in execution proceedings but the remedy would be to file another suit or appropriate proceedings in accordance with law.

What emerges from the aforesaid discussion is as follows :

(i) In the case of composite negligence, plaintiff/claimant is entitled to sue both or any one of the joint tortfeasors and to recover the entire compensation as liability of joint tortfeasors is joint and several.

(ii) In the case of composite negligence, apportionment of compensation between two tortfeasors vis a vis the plaintiff/claimant is not permissible. He can recover at his option whole damages from any of them.

(iii) In case all the joint tortfeasors have been impleaded and evidence is sufficient, it is open to the court/tribunal to determine inter se extent of composite negligence of the drivers. However, determination of the extent of negligence between the joint tortfeasors is only for the purpose of their inter se liability so that one may recover the sum from the other after making whole of payment to the plaintiff/claimant to the extent it has satisfied the liability of the other. In case both of them have been impleaded and the apportionment/ extent of their negligence has been determined by the court/tribunal, in main case one joint tortfeasor can recover the amount from the other in the execution proceedings.

(iv) It would not be appropriate for the court/tribunal to determine the extent of composite negligence of the drivers of two vehicles in the absence of impleadment of other joint tortfeasors. In such a case, impleaded joint tortfeasor should be left, in case he so desires, to sue the other joint tortfeasor in independent proceedings after passing of the decree or award."

12. Looking to the factual averments, the principle for deciding negligence has been properly evaluated. The vehicle in which injured was traveling rammed into the stationery truck. It was early morning when the incident took place. The driver has absented himself. The oral testimony is truthful and nothing contrary is proved by the Insurance Company. Hence, the finding is affirmed.

13. The next submission is that the owner and driver of the other vehicle involved in the accident was not joined as party. The said ground fails as it was case of composite negligence qua the claimant who was cleaner on the vehicle whose driver drove the vehicle negligently.

14. The injured was 26 years of age. He had suffered 40% disability. He was a cleaner. The injured lost his teeth, his eye sight is damaged. The amount calculated by the Tribunal is just compensation and no inference is called for.

15. In view of the above, this appeal stands dismissed. Record and proceedings be sent back to the Tribunal forthwith. The amount kept in fixed deposit be forthwith disbursed to the respondent No.1.

16. This Court is thankful to Anubhav Sinha, learned counsel for the appellant for getting this old matter disposed of.

9. Bajaj Allianz General Insurance Company Pvt. Ltd. Vs U.O.I.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal
Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. Heard Sri Y.S. Bohra, learned counsel for the appellant, Sri Anubhav Sinha, learned counsel for respondent - insurance company and perused the judgment and order impugned. None appears for owner.

2. This appeal, at the behest of the claimant, challenges the judgment and award dated 11.05.1994 passed by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/Additional District Judge, Bulandshahr (hereinafter referred to as 'Tribunal') in M.A.C.P No.29 of 1984 awarding a sum of Rs.85,000/- as compensation with interest at the rate of 12%.

3. The accident is not in dispute. The issue of negligence decided by the Tribunal is also not in dispute. The only issue to be decided is the quantum of compensation awarded.

4. The accident took place on 08.07.1984. The deceased was 27 years of age and was an agriculturist. Deceased-Nanak Chand who was 27 years of age left behind him, his widow and three minor children which fact is not in dispute. The Tribunal considered his income to be Rs.600/- per month, granted multiplier of 20 and that is how the Tribunal has calculated the total compensation to be Rs.85,000/-

5. Sri Y.S. Bohra, learned counsel for the appellant submits that the income of the deceased should be considered to be at least Rs.1,500/- per month. It is further submitted by learned counsel for the appellants that the Tribunal has not added any amount under the head of future loss of income which should be granted in view of decision in of the Apex Court in National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Pranay Sethi and others, 2017 LawSuit (SC) 1093. It is also submitted that the Tribunal has applied the multiplier of 20, which would be 17 in view of the decision of the Apex Court in Sarla Verma and others Vs. Delhi Transport Corporation and Another, 2009 LawSuit (SC).

6. As against this, Sri Anubhav Sinha, learned counsel for respondent-Insurance Company has contended that multiplier of 20 granted by Tribunal is exorbitant and it would suffice for non grant of amount under the head of non pecuniary loss and future loss of income. Learned counsel further submits that in the year of accident in the State of U.P., no future prospect was granted. Learned counsel further submits that even in the year of accident in 1984, the repo rate was not 12% and interest granted at the rate of 12 % is exorbitant.

7. Heard the learned counsels for the parties and considered the factual data. It is an admitted position of fact that the Insurance Company has accepted the award and has not challenged the same. This Court finds that the accident occurred on 08.07.1984 causing death of Nanak Chand who was 27 years of age at the time of accident. The Tribunal has assessed his income to be Rs.600/- per month which according to this Court, in the year of accident, would be at least Rs.900/- per month as he was farmer. To which as the deceased was in the age bracket of 26-30, 40% of the income will have to be added in view of the decision of the Apex Court in Pranay Sethi (Supra). Looking to the general trend even in Gobald Motor Service Ltd. and another Vs. R.M.K Veluswami and other, 1962 SCR(1) 929, the addition of 40% can be granted and 1/3 deduction will have to be granted. The multiplier would be 17 to which looking to the pendency of the matter which has been pending here since more than 30 years. Rs.1,00,000/- under the head of non pecuniary damages would suffice for claimants.

8. Hence, the total compensation payable to the appellants is computed herein below:

i. Annual Income Rs.10,800/- (Rs.900/- per month)

ii. Percentage towards future prospects : 40% namely Rs.4,320/-

iii. Total income : Rs.10,800/- + Rs.4,320/- = Rs.15,120/-

iv. Income after deduction of 1/3rd towards personal expenses : Rs.10,080/-

v. Multiplier applicable : 17vi. Loss of dependency: Rs.10,080 x 17 = Rs.1,71,360/-

vii. Amount under non pecuniary heads : Rs.1,00,000/-

viii. Total compensation : Rs.2,71,360/-

9. As far as issue of rate of interest is concerned, it should be 7.5% in view of the latest decision of the Apex Court in National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Mannat Johal and Others, 2019 (2) T.A.C. 705 (S.C.) wherein the Apex Court has held as under :

"13. The aforesaid features equally apply to the contentions urged on behalf of the claimants as regards the rate of interest. The Tribunal had awarded interest at the rate of 12% p.a. but the same had been too high a rate in comparison to what is ordinarily envisaged in these matters. The High Court, after making a substantial enhancement in the award amount, modified the interest component at a reasonable rate of 7.5% p.a. and we find no reason to allow the interest in this matter at any rate higher than that allowed by High Court."

10. In view of the above, the appeal is partly allowed. Judgment and decree passed by the Tribunal shall stand modified to the aforesaid extent. The respondent-Insurance Company shall deposit the amount within a period of 12 weeks from today with interest as directed above. The amount already deposited be deducted from the amount to be deposited. Record and proceedings be sent back to the Tribunal forthwith.

11. On depositing the amount in the Registry of Tribunal, Registry is directed to first deduct the amount of deficit court fees, if any. Considering the ratio laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of A.V. Padma V/s. Venugopal, Reported in 2012 (1) GLH (SC), 442, the order of investment is not passed because applicants /claimants are neither illiterate or rustic villagers.

12. In view of the ratio laid down by Hon'ble Gujarat High Court, in the case of Smt. Hansaguri P. Ladhani v/s The Oriental Insurance Company Ltd., reported in 2007(2) GLH 291, total amount of interest, accrued on the principal amount of compensation is to be apportioned on financial year to financial year basis and if the interest payable to claimant for any financial year exceeds Rs.50,000/-, insurance company/owner is/are entitled to deduct appropriate amount under the head of 'Tax Deducted at Source' as provided u/s 194A (3) (ix) of the Income Tax Act, 1961 and if the amount of interest does not exceeds Rs.50,000/- in any financial year, registry of this Tribunal is directed to allow the claimant to withdraw the amount without producing the certificate from the concerned Income- Tax Authority. The aforesaid view has been reiterated by this High Court in Review Application No.1 of 2020 in First Appeal From Order No.23 of 2001 (Smt. Sudesna and others Vs. Hari Singh and another) while disbursing the amount. The said decision has also been reiterated by High Court Gujarat in R/Special Civil Application No.4800 of 2021 (The Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Chief Commissioner of Income Tax (TDS)) decided on 5.4.2022.

13. Fresh Award be drawn accordingly in the above petition by the tribunal as per the modification made herein. The Tribunals in the State shall follow the direction of this Court as herein aforementioned as far as disbursement is concerned, it should look into the condition of the litigant and the pendency of the matter and judgment of A.V. Padma (supra). The same is to be applied looking to the facts of each case.

14. The Tribunal shall follow the guidelines issued by the Apex Court in Bajaj Allianz General Insurance Company Private Ltd. v. Union of India and others vide order dated 27.1.2022, as the purpose of keeping compensation is to safeguard the interest of the claimants. As long period has elapsed, the amount be deposited in the Saving Account of claimants in Nationalized Bank without F.D.R.

15. This Court is thankful to both the counsels for getting this matter decided.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajay Bhanot, J.)

1. This instant appeal arises from the judgment and decree/award dated on 22.2.2019, rendered by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/13th Additional District Judge, Aligarh in M.A.C.P. No.731 of 2014 (Vishnu vs. Tata A.I.G. General Insurance Company Ltd. and others).

I. Facts of the Case:

2. Briefly, the case of the claimants-respondents before the learned tribunal was that the claimant-respondent was injured in an accident on 26.8.2014 which was caused by the rash and negligent driving of offending driver of Bolero Jeep No. U.P. 81-X/0168. Apart from grievous injuries the respondent-claimant also sustained a permanent disability in the accident. Among losses suffered by the claimants-respondents were recurring a huge loss of income caused by the permanent disability. The Insurance-company resisted the claim of the respondent-claimant before the learned tribunal by filing pleadings.

3. Both parties adduced evidence before the learned tribunal. The learned tribunal partly allowed the claim petition and awarded compensation to the respondents-claimants which is depicted in a tabulated form hereinunder :-

S.No.	Heads	Awarded by the Tribunal
1	Monthly Income (A)	Rs. 5,000/-
2	Annual Income (A x 12 = B)	Rs. 60,000/-
3	Percentage of Income towards Loss of Future Prospects (C)	Nothing
4	Annual Income + Future Prospects (B+C = D)	Rs. 60,000/-
5	Deduction towards Personal Expenses (E)	-
6	Annual Loss of Dependency/Income (D-E = F) (41% of Annual Income)	= Rs. 24,600/-

7	Multiplier (G)	18
8	Total Loss of Dependency/Income	Rs. 4,42,800/-
9	Medical Expenses (if any)	Rs. 48,000/-
10	Loss of Love, Affection & Consortium	Nil
11	Loss of Estate	Nil
12	Pain	Rs. 10,000/-
13	TOTAL COMPENSATION	Rs. 5,00,800/-
14	Interest	7.00%

II. Arguments of learned counsel for the parties:

4. Shri Sushil Kumar Mehrotra, learned counsel for the appellant-Insurance company submits that though various grounds have been raised in the memo of appeal, only two grounds are being pressed. Firstly, it was a case of contributory negligence which the learned tribunal failed to consider negligence. Secondly, the loss of income awarded to the respondent-claimant was excessive and cannot be justified from the evidence.

5. Shri Ashutosh Pandey, learned counsel for the respondents-claimants raised an oral objection and submits that the future prospects were liable to be added to the compensation which was awarded. The learned tribunal by neglecting to do so has failed to award a just compensation and has also acted in teeth of the law laid down by the Supreme Court in Pappu Deo Yadav vs. Naresh Kumar¹.

6. He further contends that this Court can correct the award even in the absence of cross appeal in case it is not consistent with the long held standards of grant of compensation awarded by settled judicial authorities. Reliance is placed upon the judgment of the Supreme Court passed in APSRTC represented by its General Manager vs. M. Ramadevi and others² and Chola mandalam Ms. General Insurance Co. Ltd. through its Branch Manager vs. Sumitra and others³

7. After some arguments, learned counsel for the parties jointly contend that the following issues fall for consideration in this appeal :-

"a). Whether the accident in which the injured sustained injuries was a result of contributory negligence for which the Insurance Company alone cannot be held liable ?

b) Whether loss of income as determined by the learned tribunal was excessive ?

c) Whether the appellant can raise oral cross-objections at the stage of appeal ?

d) Whether the future prospects are liable to be computed while granting just compensation to the appellants ?"

III. Issue of contributory negligence:

8. The claimant-respondent appeared as PW-1 to establish the fact of the incident and negligence of the offending vehicle.

9. PW-1 Vishnu testified that on the fateful day he was returning after a Ragini performance. He disembarked from the bus and started walking on the right side of a Kachha path. The offending vehicle which was being driven rashly and negligently, suddenly deviated from the main road onto the kachha path and ran over him. He suffered serious injuries and was hospitalized after the accident. He also saw the offending vehicle colliding with a motor cycle. The two persons riding the motorcycle died at the spot. The driver fled the spot after the accident, however, he recorded the number of the motor vehicle. The police arrived at the spot about 15-20 minutes after the accident. The testimony of witness was not impeached nor his credit was shaken under cross-examination. The learned tribunal which had the benefit of observing the demeanour of the witness found him to be a reliable witness and believe his testimony.

10. The claimant also introduced as evidence the site plan drawn by the police authorities during the police investigation. The site plan corroborates the testimonies of the eye-witnesses before the tribunal.

11. This facts are thus established by the evidence in the record and in accordance with the applicable standards of proof. The claimant-respondent was a pedestrian, who was walking on the correct side of the road. The offending vehicle was over-speeding and driver of the said vehicle was rash and negligent. The offending vehicle ran over three people successively. Two persons died at the spot, while the claimant was severely injured. The respondent claimant cannot be faulted with in any manner for the accident. The offending driver of the vehicle of Bolero Car was solely responsible for causing the accident. This is not a case of contributory negligence.

12. The vehicle was insured by the appellant-insurance company and the appellant is fully liable to pay the compensation to the respondents-claimants.

IV. Tribunal finding - Discussion:

13. The submission of Shri Sushil Kumar Mehrotra, learned counsel for the insurance company that this is a case of contributory negligence since the respondent-claimant was walking ahead of the motorcycle which also collided with the offending vehicle. The argument is not only misconceived but also supports the case of the claimant-respondent. The Bolero vehicle was being driven in flagrant violation of permissible speed limits and norms of prudent driving and had run over three people successively before it came to the halt.

14. I am afraid that in view of the preceding discussion, the contentions are entirely misconceived and are rejected. The issue of contributory negligence is found against the appellant-Insurance company and in favour of the respondents - claimants.

V. Issue of loss of earning:

15. The injured-claimant has introduced both documentary as well as oral evidence to establish the nature of the disability and consequential loss of income. The discharge bill of Shivam Care Centre where the injured underwent treatment for fracture of his leg after the accident has been duly proved. The disability certificate issued by the Physical Disability Board immediately after the respondent-claimant was discharged, records that the extent of permanent physical disability is 41%. The disability certificate has also been proved.

16. PW-2 - Dr. H.N. Singh Pundir, had testified that he is an ortho surgeon and a member of the Disability Board which had issued the disability certificate to the respondent-claimant. He has duly identified his signature over the disability certificate.

PW-2 has deposed that disability certificate depicts weakness caused to a particular part as well as the body of the injured. The disability was caused by a fracture. The testimony of PW-2 was not impeached in the cross-examination. The trial court which had the benefit of observing the witness opined that he is credit worthy and his testimony is liable to be relied upon.

17. In these circumstances, this Court is not persuaded to take any other view on the credit of PW-2 Dr. H.N. Singh Pundeer.

18. In this wake, this Court finds that the permanent disability in which the right leg of the respondent-claimant to the extent of 40% is established by applicable standards of evidence. The unbroken chain of evidence in the record links the accident, injuries, medical treatment and the permanent disability. The disability is directly relatable to the accident caused by the offending Bolero vehicle.

19. The respondent-claimant has asserted that the permanent disability had led to a regular loss of income. The respondent-claimant is a public performer who sings and dances at various public functions. The disability will impede his rhythmic dance movements and reduce his public appeal.

20. The learned tribunal has awarded Rs.5,000/- as notional income for determining the compensation. Nothing from the record has been shown to dispute the said finding. The income so computed by the learned tribunal is upheld.

21. The learned tribunal neglected to award any amount under the head of future prospects. The respondent-claimant is entitled for future prospects to the extent of 40% on account of the permanent disability as laid down in the judgment of Supreme Court in Pappu Deo Yadav (Supra).

22. The relevant holding is extracted below in Pappu Deo Yadav (Supra):

"21. This court is also of the opinion that the courts below needlessly discounted the evidence presented by the appellant in respect of the income earned by him. Working in the informal sector as he did, i.e. as a typist/data entry operator in court premises in Delhi, his assertion about earning ₹12,000/- could not be discarded substantially, to the extent of bringing it down to ₹ 8,000/- per month. Such self employed professionals, it is noticeable, were not obliged to file income tax returns for AY 2011-2012, when no levy existed for anyone earning less than ₹ 1,60,000/- per annum.²⁹ The advocate who deposed about the earnings of the appellant was believed to the extent that the tribunal fixed the appellant's monthly earnings at ₹ 8,000/-. If one takes into account contemporary minimum wages for skilled workers (which was in the range of ₹ 8,500/-) the realistic figure would be ₹10,000/- per month. Adding future prospects at 40%³⁰, the income should be taken as ₹14,000 for the purpose of calculation of compensation. Accordingly, this court finds that the compensation payable for the disability of loss of an arm (assessed at 65%) would be ₹19,65,600/- (i.e., ₹ 14,000/- x 12 x 65% x 18) or Rupees Nineteen lakhs sixty five thousand six hundred only."

23. Shri Ashutosh Pandey, learned counsel for the respondent-claimant has raised the cross-objections to the extent that the tribunal neglected to compute future prospects while determining the compensation and is liable to be entertained.

VI. Issue of oral cross objection:

24. The question whether oral objections can be raised for an enhancement of compensation at the stage of appeal has been well settled by good authorities in point.

25. The jurisdiction of the appellant court to allow a party to take oral objections is traceable to the power of the court of appeal enumerated in Order XLI Rule 33 of the CPC. The Order XLI Rule 33 of the CPC is reproduced hereinafter :-

"Rule 33. Power of Court of Appeal.-The Appellate Court shall have power to pass any decree and make any order which ought to have been passed or made and to pass or make such further other decree or order as the case may require, and this order may be exercised by the Court notwithstanding that the appeal is as to part only of the decree and may be exercised in favour of all or any of the respondents or parties may not have filed any appeal or objection and may, where there have been decrees in cross suits or where two or more decrees are passed in one suit, be exercised in respect of all or any of the decrees, although an appeal may not have been filed against such decree." (emphasis supplied)

26. The amplitude of the provision ensures that the arms of law are long enough to reach injustice, and the arms of the Court are enough to serve justice. Drawing its power from the aforesaid provision, the appellate court may pass orders to serve the ends of justice.

27. More specifically the beneficent nature of the legislation and the statutory mandate of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 enjoin the appellate court to exercise its powers under Order 41 Rule 33 to award just compensation. [See: Jitendra Kimshankar Trivedi and others vs. Kasam Daud Kumbhar and others⁴, Arun Kumar Agarwal and another vs. National Insurance Company Ltd. and others⁵]

28. The scope of Order 41 Rule 33 of the CPC the Supreme Court in Mahant Dhangir and another v. Madan Mohan and others⁶ held:-

"11. The next question for consideration is whether the cross-objection was maintainable against Madan Mohan, the co-respondent, and if not, whether the Court could call into aid Order 41 Rule 33 CPC. For appreciating the contention it will be useful to set out hereunder R. 22 and R. 33 of order 41:

"R. 22 Upon hearing, respondent may object to decree as if he had preferred separate appeal. (1) Any respondent, though he may not have appealed from any part of the decree, may not only support the decree (but may also state that the finding against him in the Court below in respect of any issue ought to have been in his favour, and may also take any cross-objection) to the decree which he could have taken by way of appeal, provided he has filed such objection in the Appellate Court within one month from the date of service on him or his pleader of notice of the day fixed for hearing the appeal, or within such further time as the Appellate Court may see fit to allow.

R. 33 Power of Court of Appeal.

The Appellate Court shall have power to pass any decree and make any order which ought to have been passed or made and to pass or make such further other decree or order as the case may require, and this order may be exercised by the Court notwithstanding that the appeal is as to part only of the decree and may be exercised in favour of all or any of the respondents or parties may not have filed any appeal or objection and may, where there have been decrees in cross suits or where two or more decrees are passed in one suit, be exercised in respect of all or any of the decrees, although an appeal may not have been filed against such decree."

29. The same view was reiterated in Delhi Electric Supply Undertaking vs. Basanti Devi⁷.

30. Adverting to the extent of powers under Order XLI Rule 33 of the CPC, this Court in National Insurance Co. Ltd. vs. Smt. Vidyawati Devi and others⁸ held thus:

"Order XLI Rule 33 of the Code of Civil Procedure prescribing the power of court of appeal clearly provides that the Appellate Court shall have power to pass any decree and make any order which ought to have been passed or made as the case may require, and this power may be exercised in favour of all or any of the respondents or parties though they may not have filed any cross appeal or objection."

31. Following Vidyawati Devi (supra) was followed in New India Assurance Co. Ltd. v. Smt. Suman Mishra and others⁹. Wherein Thaker, J. permitted counsels to raise oral objections and enhanced the compensation even in absence of written cross objections in appeal by holding:

"44. It is submitted that the amount which is granted is not just compensation and it is orally submitted that the amount of compensation requires to be enhanced in light of Division Bench decision of this High Court in First Appeal From Order No.2389 of 2016 (National Insurance Co. Ltd. Versus Smt. Vidyawati Devi And 2 Others) decided on 27.7.2016 wherein it is held that under Order 41 Rule 33 of Code of Civil Procedure, amount of compensation can be enhanced even if there is no written appeal or written cross objection. This applies to this case also recently it has been held by Apex Court in North East Karnataka Road Transport Corporation Vs. Smt. Sujatha, AIR 2018 SC 5593 that for beneficial legislation the Court should grant enhancement even if other side is not present.

45. The principles of law pertaining to grant of just compensation cannot be said to have been adhered by Tribunal and therefore, it will have to be re-decided as per the decision in First Appeal From Order No.2389 of 2016 (National Insurance Co. Ltd. Versus Smt. Vidyawati Devi And 2 Others) decided on 27.7.2016."

32. When the conditions precedent for raising cross objections were satisfied, this Court in Vidyawati Devi (supra) was not found wanting in entertaining the cross objections by holding thus:

"We are of the considered view that the conditions as laid down in provisions of Order XLI Rule 33 are satisfied in the present case. In Delhi Electric Supply Undertaking (Supra) the Hon'ble Apex Court has observed that when circumstances exist which necessitate the exercise of discretion conferred by Rule 33, the court cannot be found wanting when it comes to exercise its powers."

33. In wake of the preceding discussion and authorities in point, the oral cross objections on behalf of the claimants-respondents are liable to be heard. However, this Court may mould the relief appropriately to obviate prejudice to either parties.

34. The head of future prospects is well settled by good authorities. There is no dispute about applicability of the said authorities to this case and also the entitlement of the claimant-respondent to future prospects. The grant of future prospects in the facts and circumstances of this case does not require any laboured examination of evidence or elaborate arguments. It is a simple primary level.

35. In this wake, the oral cross objections on behalf of the claimant-respondent are liable to be entertained and allowed to the extent indicated above.

VII. Determination of Compensation to which claimant-respondent is entitled:

7. Bajaj Allianz General Insurance Company Private Ltd. v. U.O.I. & ors. vide order dated 27.1.2022

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the appellant and Mr. S.D. Ojha, learned counsel for the respondents.

2. The accident occurred in the year 2009. The deceased was a house wife, who has behind six months old son and her husband. Income of the deceased can be considered to be Rs.2000/- per month i.e. Rs.24,000/- per annum. The deceased will fall within the category of self employed and her age was in the age bracket of 20-25 years at the time of accident, hence, 40% of income shall be added towards future loss of income and 1/2 shall be deducted for personal expenses as held by Hon'ble Apex Court in National Insurance Company vs. Pranay Sethi [2014 (4) TAC 637 (SC)] as it was her minor child where keeping in view the age of the deceased, multiplier of 18 will be admissible in the light of the judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Smt.Sarla Verma vs. Delhi Transport Corporation [2009 (2) TAC 677 (SC)].

3. As far as non-pecuniary damages are concerned, the claimants shall be entitled to get Rs.70,000/- for loss of consortium in the light of the judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Kurvan Ansari alias Kurvan Ali and another vs. Shyam Kishore Murmu and another [2021 (4) TAC (SC)].

4. Hence, the total amount of compensation, in view of the above discussions, payable to the appellants-claimants is being computed herein below:-

(i) Annual Income : Rs.24,000/-
Per annum (Rs.2,000 X 12)

(ii) Percentage towards future prospects 40% : Rs.9,600/-

(iii) Total income : Rs. 24,000/- + Rs.9,600/- = Rs. 33,600/-

(iv) Income after deduction 1/2: Rs.33,600/- ? Rs.16,800/- = Rs.16,800/-

(v) Multiplier applicable : 18

(vi) Loss of Dependency : Rs. 16,800/- X 18 = Rs.3,02,400/-

(vii) Amount under non pecuniary head : Rs. 70,000/-

(viii) Total compensation :
Rs.3,02,400/- + Rs.70,000/- = Rs.3,72,400/-

5. As far as issue of rate of interest is concerned, it should be 7.5% in view of the latest decision of the Apex Court in National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Mannat Johal and Others, 2019 (2) T.A.C. 705 (S.C.) wherein the Apex Court has held as under :

"13. The aforesaid features equally apply to the contentions urged on behalf of the claimants as regards the rate of interest. The Tribunal had awarded interest at the rate of 12% p.a. but the same had been too high a rate in comparison to what is ordinarily envisaged in these matters. The High Court, after making a substantial enhancement in the award amount, modified the interest component at a reasonable rate of 7.5% p.a. and we find no reason to allow the interest in this matter at any rate higher than that allowed by High Court."

6. In view of the above, the appeal is partly allowed. Judgment and decree passed by the Tribunal shall stand modified to the aforesaid extent. The respondent-Insurance Company shall deposit the amount forthwith with interest as directed above. The amount already deposited be deducted from the amount to be deposited.

7. Record and proceedings be sent back to the Tribunal forthwith. The amount be paid to the claimants and no amount be kept in fixed deposit.

8. On depositing the amount in the Registry of Tribunal, Registry is directed to first deduct the amount of deficit court fees, if any. Considering the ratio laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of A.V. Padma V/s. Venugopal, Reported in 2012 (1) GLH (SC), 442, the order of investment is not passed because applicants /claimants are neither illiterate or rustic villagers.

9. In view of the ratio laid down by Hon'ble Gujarat High Court, in the case of Smt. Hansaguri P. Ladhani v/s The Oriental Insurance Company Ltd., reported in 2007(2) GLH 291, total amount of interest, accrued on the principal amount of compensation is to be apportioned on financial year to financial year basis and if the interest payable to claimant for any financial year exceeds Rs.50,000/-, insurance company/owner is/are entitled to deduct appropriate amount under the head of 'Tax Deducted at Source' as provided u/s 194A (3) (ix) of the Income Tax Act, 1961 and if the amount of interest does not exceeds Rs.50,000/- in any financial year, registry of this Tribunal is directed to allow the claimant to withdraw the amount without producing the certificate from the concerned Income- Tax Authority. The aforesaid view has been reiterated by this High Court in Review Application No.1 of 2020 in First Appeal From Order No.23 of 2001 (Smt. Sudesna and others Vs. Hari Singh and another) while disbursing the amount. The said decision has also been reiterated by High Court Gujarat in R/Special Civil Application No.4800 of 2021 (The Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Chief Commissioner of Income Tax (TDS) decided on 5.4.2022.

10. Fresh Award be drawn accordingly in the above petition by the tribunal as per the modification made herein. The Tribunals in the State shall follow the direction of this Court as herein aforementioned as far as disbursement is concerned, it should look into the condition of the litigant and the pendency of the matter and judgment of A.V. Padma (supra). The same is to be applied looking to the facts of each case.

11. The Tribunal shall follow the guidelines issued by the Apex Court in Bajaj Allianz General Insurance Company Private Ltd. v. Union of India and others vide order dated 27.1.2022, as the purpose of keeping compensation is to safeguard the interest of the claimants. As long period has elapsed, the amount be deposited in the Saving Account of claimants in Nationalized Bank without F.D.R.

3. Sarla Verma (Smt.) & ors. Vs DTC & anr. (2009) 6 SCC 121

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajay Bhanot, J.)

1. The appeal arises out of a judgment and award dated 03.04.2017 rendered by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/Additional District Judge, Court No.4, Kanpur Nagar in Claim Petition No.75 of 2013 (Nilofar v. Sarika Arora and others) partly allowing the claim of the claimant. This appeal has been filed by the claimant/appellant for enhancement of the amount awarded by the tribunal in the impugned judgment.

2. The brief case of the claimant before the learned tribunal was that the deceased died in an accident on 14.08.2012 which was caused entirely by rash and negligent driving of the driver of the offending truck bearing registration No.U.P.-T/1360. On the fateful day, the deceased was riding a motorcycle when the truck collided with him. At the time of his death, the deceased was 28 years old. The claimant-appellant was dependent on the deceased.

I. Compensation awarded by the learned tribunal:

3. The learned tribunal in the impugned judgment dated 03.04.2017 awarded compensation which is depicted in a tabulated form hereunder:

Sr. No.	Heads	Amount (in rupees)
1	Monthly Income (A)	3000/-
2	Annual Income (A x 12 = B)	3000 x 12 = 36,000/-
3	Future prospects (C)	50% of 36,000=18,000
4	Annual Income + Future Prospects (B + C = D)	36,000 + 18,000/- =54,000/-
5	Total income after deduction (E)	1/3 of 54,000/- =18,000/-
6	Annual Loss of Dependency (D-E = F)	54,000-18,000/- =36,000/-
6	Multiplier (G)	18
7	Total loss of dependency (F x G = H)	36000 x 18 =6,48,000/-
8	Compensation (H)	6,48,000/-
9	Conventional Heads: (I) (a) Loss of love and affection (b) Loss of consortium (c) Loss of Estate (d) Funeral	15,000/-
10	Total compensation (H+ I = J)	6,63,000/-

11	Interest	7.00%

4. Shri Bijai Prakash Tiwari, learned counsel for the appellant-claimant and Ms.Aarushi Khare, learned counsel for the respondent-insurance company agree that only the following questions fall for consideration in this appeal:-

A. Whether the learned tribunal had correctly determined the income of the deceased in the record?

B. Whether learned tribunal correctly computed the compensation under these various heads :-

- (i) conventional heads,
- (ii) future prospects,
- (iii) multiplier, and
- (iv) interest while computing the compensation?

4.(A) Income of the deceased:

5. The claimant asserted in the claim petition that the deceased was engaged in the sale of garments. The income of the deceased from his business was Rs.15,000/- per month. The claimant-appellant introduced both the oral and documentary evidences to establish the income of the deceased. The learned tribunal assessed the income of the deceased at Rs.3000/- per month. Learned tribunal while declining to accept the income as asserted by the claimant held as under:

"32. With profound respect for Hon'ble High Court and Hon'ble Supreme Court of India, I am of the opinion that both the above case laws do not help the claimant in as much as the papers pertaining to income tax return have not been specifically pleaded and the evidence is beyond the pleadings.

33. There is also no supporting evidence regarding his business. If he the deceased was engaged in the business, there should have been evidence regarding sale and purchase of the garments. There is no registration in the sales tax. There is no Books of accounts, bills vouchers, balance sheet, etc. In the absence of any supporting evidence, the source of income of the deceased could not be proved by the claimant.

34. Even in the case of absence of source of income, it cannot be said that an young major man would not have been earning anything. The deceased must have been earning reasonable amount for the livelihood of himself and his family. Hon'ble Supreme Court of India has rule in Laxmi Devi and others v. Mohd. Tabbar 2008(2) T.A.C. 304 (SC) that in absence of the source of income, the income may be assessed at the rate of Rs.100 per day. Keeping in view of this settled law, the income of the deceased is assessed Rs.3000/- per month and multiplied to 12, the annual income becomes Rs.36000/-."

6. P.W.1-Nilofar (wife of the deceased) admitted in her testimony that she was not aware of various details of the business of the deceased like name of the firm, registration certificate, statutory licences and as to whether the deceased was the proprietor or engaged in a partnership with others. She also admitted under cross examination that she is not in a position to give any book of accounts or any document relating to the business.

7. The claimant had also introduced the income tax return of the deceased which was filed a few months prior to his death as evidence before the learned tribunal. P.W.1 deposed that she came to know about the income tax return only when she received a notice from the income tax authority after the death of her husband.

8. The perusal of the testimony of the P.W.1 Smt. Nilopher, wife of the deceased is truthful. In many families ladies often do not have information about the details of the business or documentations relating to the same. It is unsurprising that the claimant failed to produce documentary evidence relating to the business and the same cannot be held against the claimant. However, it is noteworthy that the P.W. 1 was never confronted with the question as to whether the deceased was in fact running a garment business or not. The assertion in the claim petition that the deceased ran a garments shop was never challenged and is liable to be believed.

9. The question regarding his income is slightly more vexed. However, reasonable start point is the income tax return which was introduced as evidence and marked as paper no.77(c). The return was filed a couple of months prior to the death of the deceased. The income tax return reflects the gross total income of the deceased. The statement of account which records the day to day expenses incurred while running the business have not been produced. Garments trade involves some regular expenditures to keep the business going. The amounts so incurred are liable to be deducted from the gross return which has been depicted in the income tax return. The income tax return is reliable document. However true income can be ascertained after making deductions towards transportation, storage, staff salary and the like.

10. Upon considering these issues, the monthly income of the deceased is assessed at Rs.10,000/- per month by this Court.

11. In the peculiar facts of this case, the failure of the claimant-appellant to take specific pleadings regarding the income tax returns was credibly explained by P.W.1- Nilofar in her deposition before the court. Admittedly the claimant had produced the income tax returns whose authenticity remains undisputed. Income tax returns are a credible basis for determining income. In the claim petition, a specific clause regarding the income tax return was left empty. In the column regarding the income tax, the words "not applicable" have been transcribed. In the wake of the preceding discussion, the deficiencies discussed above cannot lead to any inference adverse against the claimant. Learned tribunal erred in law and fact on this issue.

4.(B) (i) Calculation of Conventional Heads:

12. The amount determined under conventional heads in the impugned award is at variance with National Insurance Company Ltd. v. Pranay Sethi and others¹. The conventional heads were fixed in Pranay Sethi (supra) by holding as under:

"54. The conventional and traditional heads, needless to say, cannot be determined on percentage basis because that would not be an acceptable criterion. Unlike determination of income, the said heads have to be quantified. Any quantification must have a reasonable foundation. There can be no dispute over the fact that price index, fall in bank interest, escalation of rates in many a field have to be noticed. The court cannot remain oblivious to the same. There has been a thumb rule in this aspect. Otherwise, there will be extreme difficulty in determination of the same and unless the thumb rule is applied, there will be immense variation lacking any kind of consistency as a consequence of which, the orders passed by the tribunals and courts are likely to be unguided. Therefore, we think it seems to fix reasonable sums. It seems to us that reasonable figures on conventional heads, namely, loss of estate, loss of consortium and funeral expenses should be Rs. 15,000/-, Rs. 40,000/- funeral expenses should be Rs. 15,000/-, Rs. 40,000/- And Rs. 15,000/- respectively."

13. The figure under conventional heads determined in Pranay Sethi (supra) shall be applicable to the facts of this case. The award is modified accordingly.

4.(B)(ii) Future Prospects:

14. The future prospects are liable to be calculated in accordance with the Uttar Pradesh Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998. Rule 220A-3(i) of the Rules is relevant and is reproduced hereunder:

"(3) The future prospects of a deceased, shall be added in the actual salary or minimum wages of the deceased as under--

(iii) Below 40 years of age : 50% of the salary."

15. The UP Rules, 1998 came up for consideration before the Supreme Court in New India Assurance Co. Ltd. vs. Urmila Shukla and others³. In Urmila Shukla (supra) upon consideration of various judgements including Pranay Sethi (supra) held:

"10. The discussion on the point in Pranay Sethi was from the standpoint of arriving at "just compensation" in terms of Section 168 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988.

11. If an indicia is made available in the form of a statutory instrument which affords a favourable treatment, the decision in Pranay Sethi cannot be taken to have limited the operation of such statutory provision specially when the validity of the Rules was not put under any challenge. The prescription of 15% in cases where the deceased was in the age bracket of 50-60 years as stated in Pranay Sethi cannot be taken as maxima. In the absence of any governing principle available in the statutory regime, it was only in the form of an indication. If a statutory instrument has devised a formula which affords better or greater benefit, such statutory instrument must be allowed to operate unless the statutory instrument is otherwise found to be invalid." (emphasis supplied)

16. The Rules of the Uttar Pradesh Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 were not under consideration before the Supreme Court in Pranay Sethi (supra) or Sarla Verma (Smt.) and others v. Delhi Transport Company and another⁴. Future prospects in Pranay Sethi (supra) were determined without noticing the U.P. Rules, 1998. This fact was adverted to in Urmila Shukla (supra):

"8. It is submitted by Mr. Rao that the judgment in Pranay Sethi does not show that the attention of the Court was invited to the specific rules such as Rule 3(iii) which contemplates addition of 20% of the salary as against 15% which was stated as a measure in Pranay Sethi. In his submission, since the statutory instrument has been put in place which affords more advantageous treatment, the decision in Pranay Sethi ought not to be considered to limit the application of such statutory Rule."

17. The U.P. Rules, 1998 are statutory in nature and their operation is not stymied by Pranay Sethi (supra). The U. P. Rules, 1998 have the force of law and shall apply with full force in appropriate cases. The U.P. Rules, 1998 are more beneficial for the claimants than the provisions made in Pranay Sethi (supra) for them. The holdings in Pranay Sethi (supra) can not dilute the advantages conferred by U.P. Rules, 1998 upon the eligible beneficiaries.

18. This Court finds that the claimant-appellant is entitled to 50% enhancement in wages towards future prospects, consistent with the UP Rules, 1998. The necessary changes in the award shall be accordingly made.

19. In this wake, this Court finds for the appellant-claimant on the issue of grant of future prospects.

4(B)(iii) Multiplier:

20. The age of the deceased was 28 years at the time of death. Multiplier of 17 has been correctly applied by the learned Tribunal and is in line with Pranay Sethi (supra) and Sarla Verma (supra).

4(B)(iv) Interest

21. Interest of 7% and the manner of payment does not call for interference. However, the claimant-appellant shall not be entitled to interest on the enhanced income determined in this judgement.

II. Determination of Compensation to which claimant-appellant is entitled:

22. In the wake of preceding discussion, the amount of compensation awarded to the claimant-appellant is tabulated below:

9. Bajaj Allianz General Insurance Company Pvt. Ltd. v. U.O.I. & ors.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. Heard Sri Mohd. Nausad Siddiqui, learned counsel for the appellants and Sri Aditya Singh Parihar, learned counsel for the respondent and perused the judgment and order impugned. None appears for owner.

2. This appeal, at the behest of the claimants, challenges the judgment and award dated 18.9.2004 passed by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/ District Judge, Bareilly (hereinafter referred to as 'Tribunal') in M.A.C.P No.375 of 2001 awarding a sum of Rs.6,20,800/- as compensation with interest at the rate of 6%.

3. The accident is not in dispute. The issue of negligence decided by the Tribunal is also not in dispute. The only issue to be decided is the quantum of compensation awarded.

4. The accident took place on 22.4.2001. The deceased was 40 years of age and was in service in U.P. Co-Operative Federation as Centre In-charge. The Tribunal considered his income to be Rs.7000/- per month, deducted 1/3rd towards personal expenses of the deceased, granted multiplier of 11 and awarded Rs.5,000/- towards non pecuniary damages. The Tribunal has calculated the total compensation to be Rs.6,20,800/- payable to the legal representative.

5. Learned counsel for the appellants submit that the income of the deceased should be considered to be at least

Rs.7974/- per month as per pay slip. The deductions made by Tribunal could not be considered as P.F. contribution cannot be deducted. It is further submitted by learned counsel for the appellants that the Tribunal has not added any amount under the head of future loss of income which should be granted. The Apex Court in National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Pranay Sethi and others, 2017 LawSuit (SC) 1093 has suggested guidelines for grant of future loss of income. It is also submitted that the Tribunal has applied the multiplier of 11. Though it is proved that the age of deceased was 40 years. The deduction of 1/3rd for personal expenses is also bad, should be 1/4th as there were seven dependants of the deceased who was the sole breadwinner. The multiplier should be 15 in view of the decision of the Apex Court in Sarla Verma and others Vs. Delhi Transport Corporation and Another, 2009 LawSuit (SC).

6. It is also submitted by learned counsel for the appellant that the amount awarded under non pecuniary damages is on the lower side and is required to be enhanced in view of the decision in National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Pranay Sethi and others, 2017 LawSuit (SC) 1093.

7. Learned counsel for the appellant has lastly submitted that the rate of interest awarded by Tribunal is on the lower side and it should be as per the repo rate prevailing in those days.

8. As against this, learned counsel for respondent- insurance company has contended that Tribunal has rightly not considered any amount under the head of future loss of income as it was not proved by claimants as to what would be increment in salary. It is submitted by learned counsel for respondent- insurance company that he Tribunal has considered the multiplier of 11 as per the age of the deceased which is just and proper as it was the law prevailing in the day when the accident occurred. Learned counsel for the respondent has lastly contended that the compensation awarded by the Tribunal is just and proper and does not call for any interference of this Court.

9. It is further submitted by learned counsel for the respondent that the accident is of the year 2001 whereas the judgment of the Tribunal is prior to the decision in Pranay Sethi (Supra) and, therefore, non addition of future loss of income is just and proper.

10. Heard the learned counsels for the parties and considered the factual data. This Court finds that the accident occurred on 22.4.2001 causing death of Bhanu Pratap Singh who was 40 years of age at the time of accident. The Tribunal has assessed his income to be Rs.7000/- per month which according to this Court, in the year of accident, would be at Rs.7974/- per month looking to his salary slip, therefore, the assessment of income to be Rs.7,000/- made by Tribunal is bad in view of the mandate of the Apex Court in the case of Vimal Kanwar and Others Vs. Kishore Dan and others, 2013 (3) T.A.C. 6 (S.C.). The deceased was in the age bracket of 36-40, 50% of the income will have to be added in view of the decision of the Apex Court in Pranay Sethi (Supra). The deduction towards personal expenses of the deceased would be 1/3rd as the deceased has left behind him seven dependents.

11. As far as amount under non-pecuniary heads is concerned, the appellants would be entitled to Rs.70,000/- plus 10% rise in every three years in view of the decision of the Apex Court in Pranay Sethi (Supra) and, therefore, we round up the figure to Rs.1,00,000/- under this head.

12. Hence, the total compensation payable to the appellants is computed herein below:

- i. Income: Rs.7974/-per month (Rs.95688 per year)
- ii. Percentage towards future prospects : 50% namely Rs.47844/-
- iii. Total income : Rs.95688 + Rs.47844 = Rs.143532/-
- iv. Income after deduction of 1/3rd towards personal expenses : Rs.95,688/-
- v. Multiplier applicable : 15
- vi. Loss of dependency: Rs.95,688 x 15 = Rs.14,35,320/-
- vii. Amount under non pecuniary heads : Rs.1,00,000/-
- viii. Total compensation : Rs.15,35,320/-.

13. As far as issue of rate of interest is concerned which is granted is 6%, it should be 7.5% in view of the latest decision of the Apex Court in National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Mannat Johal and Others, 2019 (2) T.A.C. 705 (S.C.) wherein the Apex Court has held as under :

"13. The aforesaid features equally apply to the contentions urged on behalf of the claimants as regards the rate of interest. The Tribunal had awarded interest at the rate of 12% p.a. but the same had been too high a rate in comparison to what is ordinarily envisaged in these matters. The High Court, after making a substantial enhancement in the award amount, modified the interest component at a reasonable rate of 7.5% p.a. and we find no reason to allow the interest in this matter at any rate higher than that allowed by High Court."

14. In view of the above, the appeal is partly allowed. Judgment and decree passed by the Tribunal shall stand modified to the aforesaid extent. The respondent-Insurance Company shall deposit the amount within a period of 12 weeks from today with interest as directed above. The amount already deposited be deducted from the amount to be deposited. Record and proceedings be sent back to the Tribunal forthwith.

15. On depositing the amount in the Registry of Tribunal, Registry is directed to first deduct the amount of deficit court fees, if any. Considering the ratio laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of A.V. Padma V/s. Venugopal, Reported in 2012 (1) GLH (SC), 442, the order of investment is not passed because applicants /claimants are neither illiterate or rustic villagers.

16. In view of the ratio laid down by Hon'ble Gujarat High Court, in the case of Smt. Hansaguri P. Ladhani v/s The Oriental Insurance Company Ltd., reported in 2007(2) GLH 291, total amount of interest, accrued on the principal amount of compensation is to be apportioned on financial year to financial year basis and if the interest payable to claimant for any financial year exceeds Rs.50,000/-, insurance company/owner is/are entitled to deduct appropriate amount under the head of 'Tax Deducted at Source' as provided u/s 194A (3) (ix) of the Income Tax Act, 1961 and if the amount of interest does not exceeds Rs.50,000/- in any financial year, registry of this Tribunal is directed to allow the claimant to withdraw the amount without producing the certificate from the concerned Income- Tax Authority. The aforesaid view has been reiterated by this High Court in Review Application No.1 of 2020 in First Appeal From Order No.23 of 2001 (Smt. Sudesna and others Vs. Hari Singh and another) while disbursing the amount.

17. Fresh Award be drawn accordingly in the above petition by the tribunal as per the modification made herein. The Tribunals in the State shall follow the direction of this Court as herein aforementioned as far as disbursement is concerned, it should look into the condition of the litigant and the pendency of the matter and judgment of A.V. Padma (supra). The same is to be applied looking to the facts of each case.

18. The Tribunal shall follow the guidelines issued by the Apex Court in Bajaj Allianz General Insurance Company Private Ltd. v. Union of India and others vide order dated 27.1.2022, as the purpose of keeping compensation is to safeguard the interest of the claimants. As long period has elapsed, the amount be deposited in the Saving Account of claimants in Nationalized Bank without F.D.R.

19. This Court is thankful to both the counsels for getting this matter decided.

3. Sarla Verma (Smt.) & ors. Vs Delhi Transport Company & anr., 2009 (6) SCC 121

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajay Bhanot, J.)

1. Heard Shri Sanjay Singh, learned counsel for the appellants and Shri Ashish Gupta, learned counsel holding brief of Shri Pranjal Mehrotra, learned counsel for the respondent-insurance company.

2. The appeal arises out of a judgment and award dated 02.05.2018 rendered by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/District Judge, Bareilly, in M.A.C.P. No.452 of 2015 (Smt. Rajwati and others v. IFFCO Tokio General Insurance Co.Ltd. and others) partly allowing the claim of the claimants. This appeal has been filed by the claimants/appellants for enhancement of the amount awarded by the tribunal in the impugned judgment.

3. The brief facts of the claimants-appellants before the learned tribunal was that the deceased died of injuries sustained in an accident on 22.08.2015 which was caused entirely by rash and negligent driving of the driver of the offending vehicle of Tata-407 model bearing registration No.UK-08-CA/3528. The deceased was driving a motorcycle when the offending vehicle collided with him. The offending vehicle was insured by the respondent-insurance company. The claimants are dependant on the deceased. The deceased worked as a vegetable vendor.

I. Compensation awarded by the learned tribunal:

4. The learned tribunal in the impugned judgment dated 03.04.2017 awarded compensation which is depicted in a tabulated form hereunder:

Sr . No.	No. Heads	Amount (in rupees)
1	Monthly Income (A)	3600/-
2	Annual Income (B) (A x 12 = B)	3600 x 12 =43,200/-
3	Future prospects (C)	40% of 43,200/- =17,280/-
4	Annual Income + Future Prospects (B + C = D)	43,200 + 17,280/- =60,480/-
5	Deduction towards Personal Expenses (E)	¼ of 60,480/- = 15,120/-
6	Annual Loss of Dependency (D-E = F)	60,480-15,120/- =45,360/-
6	Multiplier (G)	17

7	Total loss of dependency (F x G = H)	45,360 x 17 =7,71,120/-
8	Compensation (H)	7,71,120/-
9	Conventional Heads: (I) (a) Loss of consortium (b) Loss of love, affection (c) Loss of Estate (d) Funeral expenses	70,000/-
10	Total compensation (H+I = J)	7,71,120/- + 70,000/- = 8,41,120/-
11	Interest	7.00%

5. Shri Sanjay Singh, learned counsel for the appellants contends that the tribunal erred in law by incorrectly determining the income of the deceased and also awarding the amounts under various heads which were at variance with settled authorities in point.

6. Shri Ashish Gupta, learned counsel holding brief of Shri Pranjal Mehrotra, learned counsel for the respondent-insurance company contends that the compensation paid was just lawful, valid and requires no alteration.

7. After advancing their arguments, learned counsel for both the parties agree that only the following questions fall for consideration in this appeal:-

A. Whether the learned Tribunal had correctly determined the income of the deceased in the record?

B. Whether learned Tribunal correctly computed the compensation under these various heads :-

- (i) conventional heads,
- (ii) future prospects,
- (iii) multiplier, and

(iv) interest while computing the compensation?

7.(A) Income of the deceased:

8. The claimants-appellants specifically pleaded that the deceased was a vegetable vendor who earned Rs.600/-to Rs.700/- per day. The appellants-claimants also introduced one witness to establish the income of the deceased. PW1-Rajwati before the learned tribunal testified that her husband worked as a vegetable vendor. The entire family was dependant on his income. Under cross examination the witness stated that the deceased did not maintain any documentation of his business like receipt of sale vouchers, registration with the Nagar Nigam, etc. The credit of PW1-Rajwati remained intact under cross-examination. Her testimony clearly establishes that the deceased was a vegetable vendor and his family was supported by his income. Learned tribunal which had the benefit of observing the demeanor also did not reject the testimony insofar as it relates to the deceased engaged in the business of selling vegetables.

9. Learned tribunal clearly misread the evidence and determined the income by relying on the admission of P.W.1 that the business of the deceased was not documented.

10. The deceased worked in the informal sector of the economy as a vegetable vendor. The activities in this sector are often undocumented. Running account books, or receipt of sale vouchers, registration with Nagar Nigam and the like are not maintained by vegetable vendors. Absence of such documents cannot adversely impact determination of income in such cases. Vegetable vendors require a certain skill in doing business which include identifying vegetables, understanding the market, and giving the right sales pitch. These skills are mostly acquired on the job. The income of the deceased would be examined the light of the skills required to earn a livelihood as a vegetable vendor. The aforesaid considerations were not factored in by the learned tribunal while determining the income of the deceased. The income determined by the learned tribunal is accordingly set aside.

11. The minimum wages as notified by the State Government factor in all relevant considerations and is a reliable guide to take the enquiry forward. Considering the perennial need of vegetables, it can be concluded that the deceased had a regular source of employment. The minimum wage as notified by the State Government at the relevant time for skilled labourers is Rs.8,298/-.

12. In the wake of preceding discussion, the total monthly income of the deceased is fixed at Rs.8,500/- per month.

7.(B)(i) Calculation of Conventional Heads:

13. The amount determined under conventional heads in the impugned award is at variance with National Insurance Company Ltd. v. Pranay Sethi and others¹. The conventional heads were fixed in Pranay Sethi (supra) by holding as under:

heads have to be quantified. Any quantification must have a reasonable foundation. There can be no dispute over the fact that price index, fall in bank interest, escalation of rates in many a field have to be noticed. The court cannot remain oblivious to the same. There has been a thumb rule in this aspect. Otherwise, there will be extreme difficulty in determination of the same and unless the thumb rule is applied, there will be immense variation lacking any kind of consistency as a consequence of which, the orders passed by the tribunals and courts are likely to be unguided. Therefore, we think it seemly to fix reasonable sums. It seems to us that reasonable figures on conventional heads, namely, loss of estate, loss of consortium and funeral expenses should be Rs. 15,000/-, Rs. 40,000/- funeral expenses should be Rs. 15,000/-, Rs. 40,000/- And Rs. 15,000/- respectively."

14. The figure under conventional heads determined in Pranay Sethi (supra) shall be applicable to the facts of this case. The award is modified accordingly.

7.(B)(ii) Future Prospects:

15. The future prospects are liable to be calculated in accordance with the Uttar Pradesh Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998. Rule 220A-3(i) of the Rules is relevant and is reproduced hereunder:

"(3) The future prospects of a deceased, shall be added in the actual salary or minimum wages of the deceased as under--

(i) Below 40 years of age : 50% of the salary."

16. The UP Rules, 1998 came up for consideration before the Supreme Court in

New India Assurance Co. Ltd. vs. Urmila Shukla and others³. In Urmila Shukla (supra) upon consideration of various judgements including Pranay Sethi (supra) held:

"10. The discussion on the point in Pranay Sethi was from the standpoint of arriving at "just compensation" in terms of Section 168 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988.

11. If an indicia is made available in the form of a statutory instrument which affords a favourable treatment, the decision in Pranay Sethi cannot be taken to have limited the operation of such statutory provision specially when the validity of the Rules was not put under any challenge. The prescription of 15% in cases where the deceased was in the age bracket of 50-60 years as stated in Pranay Sethi cannot be taken as maxima. In the absence of any governing principle available in the statutory regime, it was only in the form of an indication. If a statutory instrument has devised a formula which affords better or greater benefit, such statutory instrument must be allowed to operate unless the statutory instrument is otherwise found to be invalid." (emphasis supplied)

17. The Rules of the Uttar Pradesh Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 were not under consideration before the Supreme Court in Pranay Sethi (supra) or Sarla Verma (Smt.) and others v. Delhi Transport Company and another⁴. Future prospects in Pranay Sethi (supra) were determined without noticing the U.P. Rules, 1998. This fact was adverted to in Urmila Shukla (supra):

"8. It is submitted by Mr. Rao that the judgment in Pranay Sethi does not show that the attention of the Court was invited to the specific rules such as Rule 3(iii) which contemplates addition of 20% of the salary as against 15% which was stated as a measure in Pranay Sethi. In his submission, since the statutory instrument has been put in place which affords more advantageous treatment, the decision in Pranay Sethi ought not to be considered to limit the application of such statutory Rule."

18. The U.P. Rules, 1998 are statutory in nature and their operation is not stymied by Pranay Sethi (supra). The U. P. Rules, 1998 have the force of law and shall apply with full force in appropriate cases. The U.P. Rules, 1998 are more beneficial for the claimants than the provisions made in Pranay Sethi (supra) for them. The holdings in Pranay Sethi (supra) can not dilute the advantages conferred by U.P. Rules, 1998 upon the eligible beneficiaries.

19. This Court finds that the claimants-appellants are entitled to 50% enhancement in wages towards future prospects, consistent with the UP Rules, 1998. The necessary changes in the award shall be accordingly made.

20. In this wake, this Court finds for the appellants-claimants on the issue of grant of future prospects.

7.(B)(iii) Multiplier:

21. The age of the deceased was 28 years at the time of death. Multiplier of 17 has been correctly applied by the learned Tribunal and is in line with Pranay Sethi (supra) and Sarla Verma (supra).

7.(iv) Interest:

22. Interest of 7.50% and the manner of payment does not call for interference. However, the claimants-appellants shall not be entitled to interest on the enhanced income determined in this judgement.

II. Determination of Compensation to which claimants-respondents are entitled:

23. In the wake of preceding discussion, the amount of compensation awarded to the claimants-appellants is tabulated below:

- i. Date of Accident - 22.08.2015
- ii. Date of death - 22.08.2015
- iii. Name of the deceased - Vijay Raj
- iv. Age of the deceased - 28 years
- v. Occupation of the deceased - Vegetable Vendor
- vi. Income of the deceased - Rs.8,500 per month.
- vii. Name, Age and Relationship of claimants with the deceased

viii. Computation of Compensation

Sr. No.	Heads	Amount (in Rupees)

	(A x 12 = B)	= 1,02,000/-

4	Annual Income + Future Prospects (B + C = D)	1,02,000 + 51,000/- = 1,53,000/-
5	Deduction towards Personal Expenses (E)	¼ of 1,53,200/- = 38,300/-

12	Interest	7.50%

III. Conclusion and Directions:

24. The amount of compensation to which the claimants-appellants have thus been found entitled shall be deposited by the corporation within three months before the learned tribunal. Thereafter the learned tribunal shall release the amount to the claimants without delay. The amount already disbursed to the claimants (if any) shall be duly adjusted.

25. The amount of Rs.25,000/- deposited by the appellants-claimants while instituting the appeal shall be forthwith remitted to the learned tribunal. The amount shall be paid to the claimants-appellants as part of the awarded compensation amount.

26. The instant appeal is partly allowed as indicated above.

Civil Law - Motor Vehicles Act, 1988-Section 173-composite negligence-in the instant case, there is determination of inter se liability of composite negligence to the extent of negligence of 2/3rd and 1/3rd of respective drivers-the vehicle – trailer-truck which was not insured with the insurer, was negligent to the extent of 2/3rd –it would be open to the insurer being insurer of the bus after making payment to claimant to recover from the owner of the trailer-truck the amount to the aforesaid extent in the execution proceedings-Had there been no determination of the of the inter se liability for want of evidence or other joint tortfeasor had not been impleaded, it was not open to settle such a dispute and to recover the amount in execution proceedings but the remedy would be to file another suit or appropriate proceedings in accordance with law-Apex

Court latest decision in Khenyei one further aspect that the deceased or the person concerned should be shown to have contributed either to the accident and the impact of accident upon the victim could have been minimized if he had taken care- the ground raised even on the compensation being awarded is on higher side cannot succeed as the compensation awarded is without granting any future loss of income, the amount awarded to the heirs of driver of bus is meager, there shall be no recoveries from the claimants-Hence, all these appeals fail- (Para 1 to 24)

1. This group of matters are preferred by Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd and The New India Assurance Company Ltd respondents in the claim petitions which arose out of the same accident. The Insurance Companies have requested for settling the liability on the other insurance company as far as negligence of the driver driving the vehicle involved in accident.

2. The Insurance Companies have raised the issue of driving licence but it is held by tribunal that have not proved the same to be defective before the tribunal which would permit the tribunal to exonerate them. The insurance companies have not proved that there is breach of policy condition. The second contention raised by both the appellants-Insurance companies is that the tribunal did not apportion the negligence of drivers of both the vehicles. The tribunal having not apportioned the negligent, the amount receivable by heirs of driver is not deducted which is bad in law.

3. The brief facts of the case are that on 19.6.1988 at about 11.15 a.m., Bus No. URJ 7389, in which all the deceased/injured persons along with the other passengers were traveling, met with an accident at Bijoli Tiraha, Meerut-Hapur Road, within the circle of P.S. Kharkhoda, District Meerut with Truck No. DHL 3616. It was a head on collision. The bus was going from Meerut to Hapur where as the truck was coming from the opposite direction towards Meerut, when the accident took place. As a result of collusion, the aforesaid bus over turned to left side. On account of this accident, Km. Kaushalya Devi, Ajay Kumar Agarwal, Smt. Mithlesh Agarwal, Bashir, Hariya, Devendra and Ashraf died where as the claimants Smt. Urmila, Km. Lovy, Shyam Lal, Raghuvir and Rajendra Singh sustained various injuries which will be described and narrated later on. The petitioners have alleged that the accident in question is the result of gross rash and negligence in driving the vehicles on the part of the drivers involved in the accident.

4. The owners of bus No. URJ 7389 have contested the claim petitions mainly on the ground that their driver-Ashraf, who also died in the accident was not rash and negligent in causing the accident. On the other hand, the driver of the motor truck No. DHL 3616 was negligent who caused the accident and collided with the bus no. URJ 7389 on their wrong side.

5. The claim petitions had been filed by the legal representatives of the deceased and by the injured persons, who sustained injuries in a motor accident which occurred on 19.6.1988 at about 11.15 a.m. at Bijoli Tiraha on Meerut-Hapur Road, within the circle of Police Station Kharkhoda, District Meerut, for compensation under Sections 92-A and 110-A of Motor Vehicle Act, 1939.

6. It may be stated that since claim petitions related to the same accident, by an order dated 17.1.1990 the claim petitions No.197/88, 198/88 & 230/88 were consolidated and the claim petition No.197/88 was treated as leading case, by order dated 22.5.1990 M.A.C. No.154/88, 155/88 and 156/88 were consolidated with M.A.C. No.197/88, by an order dated 8.11.1995 M.A.C. No.312/88 were consolidated with M.A.C. No.197/88. M.A.C. No.243/88 was consolidated with the M.A.C. No.197/88 vide order dated 29.7.1991 in M.A.C. No.243/88. M.A.C. No.298/88, 299/88 and 311/88 were consolidated with leading case No.197/88 vide order dated 4.7.1991, M.A.C. No.28/1989 was consolidated with the leading case M.A.C. No.197/88 vide order dated 22.9.1993 were to be heard together.

7. The owners of the motor truck No. DHL 3616 have not contested the claim petitions.

8. New India Insurance Company is the insurer of the bus URJ 7389, the Insurance Company has contested the claim petitions mainly on the ground that the alleged accident took place due to rash and negligence of the driver of motor truck No. DHL 3616.

9. The Oriental Insurance Company being the insurer of motor truck DHL No.3616 have contested the claim petitions on the ground that the driver of the motor truck DHL No.3616 was not having any valid driving licence to drive the said truck on the date of accident. Hence the Insurance company was not liable to pay the compensation as per Section 96 of Motor Vehicle Act, 1939.

10. The applicant M/s. Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd in some of the connected appeals has raised the following grounds to challenge the common judgment/award of tribunal.

"(i). that the award of compensation granted by the learned Tribunal suffers from illegality and perversity on behalf of the appellant, it was specifically pleaded through Additional Written Statement that the driver of Truck No.DHL 3616 Zahid Husain was not holding any valid driving licence. In view of Section 96 of the Motor Vehicles Act and also in terms of the policy of Insurance the appellant/was not liable at all. The liability if any, was fixed, the truck owners were liable.

(ii). The learned Tribunal failed to giving finding on rash and negligent driving. All the passengers of the bus had deposed that the bus, was at a very high speed.

(iii) The learned Tribunal failed to give a clear finding as to the quantum of the liability fixed on the appellant and the new India Assurance Co. the Insurer of the bus. Thus vitiates the finding.

(iv) The tribunal committed an error of law as he ignored the vital pleading with regard to the driving licence not held by the driver of the said truck. Although attested true copies of the driving licence and its verification from the office have been produced before the learned Tribunal.

(v) In a written argument filed on behalf of appellant it was clearly stated that in view of law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court and this Hon'ble Court also, the insurance company (appellant) is absolved to indemnify the insured truck as its driver was not holding a valid licence (driving licence)

(vi) Even otherwise the findings given by the learned Tribunal is erroneous arbitrary and against the well settled principal of law and hence is liable to be set aside."

11. The appellant-New India Assurance Co. Ltd. in the connected appeals has challenge the award on the following grounds:

(i) Once the court below found that accident took place by Bus No.URJ 7389 and Truck No.DHL3 3616 due to contributory negligence of both the vehicles and as such the court below ought to have passed an award after apportionment of the amount liable to be paid by insurer of each vehicle this having not been done the award of the court below is wholly illegal and erroneous.

(ii) The accident took place on 19.6.1988 and at that time Motor Vehicles Act, 1939 was enforced and as per term of insurance policy under Section 92 of the Motor Vehicle Act, 1939 maximum statutory liability of the appellant could be fixed to Rs.15,000/- per passenger and since it was a case of contributory negligence has found by the court below the liability of the appellant will be of Rs.7,500/- only per passenger but view to the contrary taken by the tribunal is wholly illegal and erroneous.

(iii) The court below has awarded the compensation excessively though a maximum compensation against the appellant which could have been awarded is Rs.7500/- in this view of the matter the award of the tribunal is highly excessive and is liable to be set aside by this Hon'ble Court.

(iv) The compensation awarded against the appellant could be paid only to the dependents of the deceased or injured and where there was no dependency no amount was liable to be paid unless the claims proved before the court below that they were dependent upon the deceased or injured and in this view of the matter the quantum of compensation is highly excessive.

(v) According to the terms and condition of the Insurance Policy of Bus No.URJ 7389 which was insured by the appellant the bus was insured for carrying 69 passengers and in the premium charge from the owner was Rs.828/- only at the rate of Rs.12/- per passenger and accordingly the liability of the appellant was maximum Rs.15,000/- per passenger as per rule contained under the Act and Rules. It is further stated that Rs.75/- was charged by the appellant for enhancing the third party risk and it had nothing to do for the enhancement of compensation for the passengers but view to the contrary taken by the court below is wholly illegal and erroneous.

(vi) The Court below have wrongly applied multiplier system in the present case.

(vii) The quantum of compensation and rate of interest is highly excessive and is liable to be set aside by this Hon'ble Court.

(viii) The driver of the bus was not entitled for any compensation as he could claim compensation from the owner of the bus under the Workman compensation Act.

(ix) The claimant respondents do not come within the definition of family as provided under the Fatal Accidents Act and are not entitled to claim any compensation.

(x) The judgment and award of the Tribunal is wholly illegal and is against the weight of oral and documentary evidence available on record of this case and is liable to be set aside.

12. Heard the learned counsel for the appellant-Insurance Companies. The common ground of challenge by both the Insurance Companies relates to negligence of drivers of vehicles involved in the accident, let us consider the question of negligence from the perspective of the law laid down and where two vehicles are involved.

13. The term negligence means failure to exercise care towards others which a reasonable and prudent person would in a circumstance or taking action which such a reasonable person would not. Negligence can be both intentional or accidental which is normally accidental. More particularly, it connotes reckless driving and the injured must always prove that the either side is negligent. If the injury rather death is caused by something owned or controlled by the negligent party then he is directly liable otherwise the principle of "res ipsa loquitur" meaning thereby "the things speak for itself" would apply.

14. The term negligence has been discussed time and again. A person who either contributes or is author or co-author of the accident would be liable for his contribution to the accident having taken place.

15. The Division Bench of this Court in First Appeal From Order No. 1818 of 2012 (Bajaj Allianz General Insurance Co.Ltd. Vs. Smt. Renu Singh And Others) decided on 19.7.2016 has held as under :

"16. Negligence means failure to exercise required degree of care and caution expected of a prudent driver. Negligence is the omission to do something which a reasonable man, guided upon the considerations, which ordinarily regulate conduct of human affairs, would do, or doing something which a prudent and reasonable man would not do. Negligence is not always a question of direct evidence. It is an inference to be drawn from proved facts. Negligence is not an absolute term, but is a relative one. It is rather a comparative term. What may be negligence in one case may not be so in another. Where there is no duty to exercise care, negligence in the popular sense has no legal consequence. Where there is a duty to exercise care, reasonable care must be taken to avoid acts or omissions which would be reasonably foreseen likely to caused physical injury to person. The degree of care required, of course, depends upon facts in each case. On these broad principles, the negligence of drivers is required to be assessed.

17. It would be seen that burden of proof for contributory negligence on the part of deceased has to be discharged by the opponents. It is the duty of driver of the offending vehicle to explain the accident. It is well settled law that at intersection where two roads cross each other, it is the duty of a fast moving vehicle to slow down and if driver did not slow down at intersection, but continued to proceed at a high speed without caring to notice that another vehicle was crossing, then the conduct of driver necessarily leads to conclusion that vehicle was being driven by him rashly as well as negligently.

18. 10th Schedule appended to Motor Vehicle Act contain statutory regulations for driving of motor vehicles which also form part of every Driving License. Clause-6 of such Regulation clearly directs that the driver of every motor vehicle to slow down vehicle at every intersection or junction of roads or at a turning of the road. It is also provided that driver of the vehicle should not enter intersection or junction of roads unless he makes sure that he would not thereby endanger any other person. Merely, because driver of the Truck was driving vehicle on the left side of road would not absolve him from his responsibility to slow down vehicle as he approaches intersection of roads, particularly when he could have easily seen, that the car over which deceased was riding, was approaching intersection.

19. In view of the fast and constantly increasing volume of traffic, motor vehicles upon roads may be regarded to some extent as coming within the principle of liability defined in Rylands V/s. Fletcher, (1868) 3 HL (LR) 330. From the point of view of pedestrian, the roads of this country have been rendered by the use of motor vehicles, highly dangerous. 'Hit and run' cases where drivers of motor vehicles who have caused accidents, are unknown. In fact such cases are increasing in number. Where a pedestrian without negligence on his part is injured or killed by a motorist, whether negligently or not, he or his legal representatives, as the case may be, should be entitled to recover damages if principle of social justice should have any meaning at all.

20. These provisions (sec.110A and sec.110B of Motor Act, 1988) are not merely procedural provisions. They substantively affect the rights of the parties. The right of action created by Fatal Accidents Act, 1855 was 'new in its species, new in its quality, new in its principles. In every way it was new. The right given to legal representatives under Act, 1988 to file an application for compensation for death due to a motor vehicle accident is an enlarged one. This right cannot be hedged in by limitations of an action under Fatal Accidents Act, 1855. New situations and new dangers require new strategies and new remedies.

21. In the light of the above discussion, we are of the view that even if courts may not by interpretation displace the principles of law which are considered to be well settled and, therefore, court cannot dispense with proof of negligence altogether in all cases of motor vehicle accidents, it is possible to develop the law further on the following lines; when a motor vehicle is being driven with reasonable care, it would ordinarily not meet with an accident and, therefore, rule of res-ipsa loquitor as a rule of evidence may be invoked in motor accident cases with greater frequency than in ordinary civil suits (per three-Judge Bench in Jacob Mathew V/s. State of Punjab, 2005 0 ACJ(SC) 1840).

22. By the above process, the burden of proof may ordinarily be cast on the defendants in a motor accident claim petition to prove that motor vehicle was being driven with reasonable care or that there is equal negligence on the part the other side."

16. The Apex Court in Khenyei Vs. New India Assurance Company Limited & Others, 2015 LawSuit (SC) 469 has held as under:

"4. It is a case of composite negligence where injuries have been caused to the claimants by combined wrongful act of joint tort feasons. In a case of accident caused by negligence of joint tort feasons, all the persons who aid or counsel or direct or join in committal of a wrongful act, are liable. In such case, the liability is always joint and several. The extent of negligence of joint tort feasons in such a case is immaterial for satisfaction of the claim of the plaintiff/claimant and need not be determined by the by the court. However, in case all the joint tort feasons are before the court, it may determine the extent of their liability for the purpose of adjusting inter-se equities between them at appropriate stage. The liability of each and every joint tort feason vis a vis to plaintiff/claimant cannot be bifurcated as it is joint and several liability. In the case of composite negligence, apportionment of compensation between tort feasons for making payment to the plaintiff is not permissible as the plaintiff/claimant has the right to recover the entire amount from the easiest targets/solvent defendant.

14. There is a difference between contributory and composite negligence. In the case of contributory negligence, a person who has himself contributed to the extent cannot claim compensation for the injuries sustained by him in the accident to the extent of his own negligence; whereas in the case of composite negligence, a person who has suffered has not contributed to the accident but the outcome of combination of negligence of two or more other persons. This Court in T.O. Anthony v. Karvannan & Ors. [2008 (3) SCC 748] has held that in

"6. 'Composite negligence' refers to the negligence on the part of two or more persons. Where a person is injured as a result of negligence on the part of two or more wrong doers, it is said that the person was injured on account of the composite negligence of those wrong-doers. In such a case, each wrong doer, is jointly and severally liable to the injured for payment of the entire damages and the injured person has the choice of proceeding against all or any of them. In such a case, the injured need not establish the extent of responsibility of each wrong-doer separately, nor is it necessary for the court to determine the extent of liability of each wrong-doer separately. On the other hand where a person suffers injury, partly due to the negligence on the part of another person or persons, and partly as a result of his own negligence, then the negligence of the part of the injured which contributed to the accident is referred to as his contributory negligence. Where the injured is guilty of some negligence, his claim for damages is not defeated merely by reason of the negligence on his part but the damages recoverable by him in respect of the injuries stands reduced in proportion to his contributory negligence.

7. Therefore, when two vehicles are involved in an accident, and one of the drivers claims compensation from the other driver alleging negligence, and the other driver denies negligence or claims that the injured claimant himself was negligent, then it becomes necessary to consider whether the injured claimant was negligent and if so, whether he was solely or partly responsible for the accident and the extent of his responsibility, that is his contributory negligence. Therefore where the injured is himself partly liable, the principle of 'composite negligence' will not apply nor can there be an automatic inference that the negligence was 50:50 as has been assumed in this case. The Tribunal ought to have examined the extent of contributory negligence of the appellant and thereby avoided confusion between composite negligence and contributory negligence. The High Court has failed to correct the said error."

18. This Court in Challa Bharathamma & Nanjappan (supra) has dealt with the breach of policy conditions by the owner when the insurer was asked to pay the compensation fixed by the tribunal and the right to recover the same was given to the insurer in the executing court concerned if the dispute between the insurer and the owner was the subject-matter of determination for the tribunal and the issue has been decided in favour of the insured. The same analogy can be applied to the instant cases as the liability of the joint tort feisor is joint and several. In the instant case, there is determination of inter se liability of composite negligence to the extent of negligence of 2/3rd and 1/3rd of respective drivers. Thus, the vehicle - trailer-truck which was not insured with the insurer, was negligent to the extent of 2/3rd. It would be open to the insurer being insurer of the bus after making payment to claimant to recover from the owner of the trailer-truck the amount to the aforesaid extent in the execution proceedings. Had there been no determination of the inter se liability for want of evidence or other joint tortfeasor had not been impleaded, it was not open to settle such a dispute and to recover the amount in execution proceedings but the remedy would be to file another suit or appropriate proceedings in accordance with law.

What emerges from the aforesaid discussion is as follows :

(i) In the case of composite negligence, plaintiff/claimant is entitled to sue both or any one of the joint tortfeasors and to recover the entire compensation as liability of joint tortfeasors is joint and several.

(iii) In case all the joint tortfeasors have been impleaded and evidence is sufficient, it is open to the court/tribunal to determine inter se extent of composite negligence of the drivers. However, determination of the extent of negligence between the joint tortfeasors is only for the purpose of their inter se liability so that one may recover the sum from the other after making whole of payment to the plaintiff/claimant to the extent it has satisfied the liability of the other. In case both of them have been impleaded and the apportionment/ extent of their negligence has been determined by the court/tribunal, in main case one joint tortfeasor can recover the amount from the other in the execution proceedings.

(iv) It would not be appropriate for the court/tribunal to determine the extent of composite negligence of the drivers of two vehicles in the absence of impleadment of other joint tortfeasors. In such a case, impleaded joint tortfeasor should be left, in case he so desires, to sue the other joint tortfeasor in independent proceedings after passing of the decree or award."

17. The latest decision of the Apex Court in Khenyei (Supra) has laid down one further aspect about considering the negligence more particularly composite/contributory negligence. The deceased or the person concerned should be shown to have contributed either to the accident and the impact of accident upon the victim could have been minimized if he had taken care.

18. While going through the records, it is clear that the tribunal below has not apportioned the negligence. It was not suppose to quantify the negligence as qua passengers, it was case of composite negligence, it is held that the tribunal cannot determine the extent of composite negligence of the drivers. There is impleadment of both the joint tortfeasors and the other tortfeasors, therefore, would be liable of its share and that would be 50% as two vehicles of equal magnitude had dashed with each other. However, the passengers in the bus were not the co-authors of the accident having taken place. In these appeals, there are no cross appeals by the claimants. Hence, this Court usurped the compensation granted and the compensation awarded cannot be said to be on the higher-side as the tribunal has not considered the case of the claimants and under the head of future loss of income, no amount has been granted.

19. As far as Oriental Insurance Company is concerned, the main ground of the challenge is that the driver of truck No. DHL 3616 did not hold valid driving licence and, therefore, the insurance company could not have been held liable to indemnify the owner and they have claimed breach of policy condition under Section 96 of motor vehicles Act, 1931.

20. The owner has produced the driving licence of the driver. The Insurance company before the tribunal tried to show their driving licence who has driven the vehicle. Unfortunately, the Investigating Authority rather the surveyor had gone to the RTO with licence of one Zaheer Ahmad whose father is also different, namely, Hafiz Ali Aziz. In our several cases, driver cannot be said that there was no driving licence. The judgment of the tribunal cannot be found fault with and the appeals of Insurance Companies on this ground will have to be failed.

21. Thus, the appeals preferred by Oriental Insurance Company cannot succeed. This Court now decides the contention of the New India Assurance Co. Ltd. namely that their liability was a limited liability. However, this was never pressed into service before the tribunal rather additional Rs.70 was charged by the appellants for taking higher the third party risk.

22. In that view of the matter, the contention of New India Assurance Co. Ltd. is that it was a limited policy cannot be accepted once the parties contract for unlimited liability.

23. Hence, all these appeals fail. The ground raised even on the compensation being awarded is on higher side cannot succeed as the compensation awarded is without granting any future loss of income. The said finding cannot be interfered with. Appeals are disposed of as the amount awarded to the heirs of driver of bus is meager, there shall be no recoveries from the claimants.

24. In view of the above, all these appeals being devoid of merits are dismissed.

25. Record be transmitted to tribunal. The tribunal shall disburse all amounts kept in fixed deposit by orders of this Court. Amount deposited in High Court be transmitted to tribunal, if yet not transmitted.

DATED: LUCKNOW 20.04.2023

THE HON'BLE DEVENDRA KUMAR

THE HON'BLE OM PRAKASH SHUKLA, J.

First Appeal No. 85 of 2023

Vikram Chaturvedi ...Appellant

Versus

State of U.P. & Anr. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Appellant:

Shikhar Chaube, Saubhagya Mishra

Counsel for the Respondents:

Civil Law - Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 - Section 24 - Maintenance pendente lite and expenses of proceedings - Issue -

'Whether allegation of second marriage of the wife during the pendency of the divorce petition raised by the husband would deter the Court from granting a statutory right vested upon the wife': Held - Learned Principal Judge rightly awarded a lump sum amount of Rs. 2000/- towards expenses for filing the written statement and Rs. 3000/- per month towards travel expenses, litigation expenses, and interim maintenance till the disposal of the suit. Only an allegation of second marriage of the wife has been raised by the husband against the wife, and it is a fact yet to be proved by adducing cogent evidence by the husband to the satisfaction of the Court concerned. If such a position is not accepted, in every case, an unscrupulous husband or wife, as the case may be, can always raise such an allegation against the spouse to avoid any liability to pay the litigation expenses and interim maintenance, which would not be the legislative intent while enacting such a beneficial provision in the Act, 1955. (Para 12)

Dismissed. (E-5)

List of Cases cited:

Jitendra Pratap Singh Vs Nidhi Singh, First Appeal Defective No. 17 of 2023, dated 11.04.2023

(Delivered by Hon'ble Om Prakash Shukla, J.)

(1) Heard Shri Shikhar Chaube, learned Counsel representing the appellant. Having regard to the averments made in the application seeking deletion of respondent no.1 from the array of the parties, application is allowed.

(2) Let the name of respondent no.1 be deleted from the array of the parties and respondent no.2 be renumbered as respondent no.1. Necessary corrections in the memo of appeal shall be incorporated by learned Counsel for the appellant during course of the day.

Order on Appeal

(3) Through the instant First Appeal under Section 19 (1) of Family Courts Act, 1984, the appellant/husband, Vikram Chaturvedi, has challenged the order dated 06.02.2023 passed by the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Sultanpur, whereby application filed by respondent no.1/wife (Smt. Priyanka alias Roli) under Section 24 of Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 in Regular Suit No. 884 of 2021 : Vikram Chaturvedi Vs. Smt. Priyanka Chaturvedi, under Section 13 of Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, has been allowed and she has been awarded lump sum amount of Rs.2000/- towards expenses for filing written statement and Rs. 3000/- per month towards travel expenses, litigation expenses and interim maintenance till disposal of the suit under Section 13 of Hindu Marriage Act, 1955.

(4) The brief facts of the case culled out from the record available before us are that the appellant/husband has filed a suit, numbered as Regular Suit No. 884 of 2021, seeking divorce under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1955" for the sake of brevity). In the aforesaid suit, the respondent no.1/wife filed an application under Section 24 of the Act, 1955, wherein she pleaded that her marriage was solemnized with the appellant on 01.12.2020 according to Hindu rites and rituals; on 30.08.2021, the appellant and his family members have turned her out of her matrimonial home and have deserted her and after having been turned out of her matrimonial home, she is residing with her parents. Respondent no.1/wife further pleaded that her husband (appellant) is working in a Limited Company at New Delhi, from which he earns Rs.50,000/- as salary and in addition to that, he also has an additional agriculture income of Rs.20,000/-. Respondent no.1/wife has further pleaded that she does not have any source of income nor has she any skill by which she can maintain herself. In this backdrop, the respondent no.1/wife prayed to award Rs.5000/- towards expenses for filing written statement and Rs. 5000/- per month towards fee of Advocate and legal expenses etc.

(5) The appellant filed objection against the aforesaid application under Section 24 of the Act, 1955, wherein he admitted the fact that the respondent no.1 is his wife. The appellant has further stated in his objection that during the stay at the parental house, the parents of respondent no.1/wife got her married to Sunil Kumar Tiwari alias Guddu Tiwari, son of late Ram Sakal Tiwari, resident of Arisiya, hamlet of Sanvardhir, Police Station Haiderganj, District Ayodhya and on coming to know about the second marriage, it has been stated by the appellant that he has filed a complaint case under Section 190 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, bearing Criminal Case No. 557 of 2022 : Vikram Vs. Priyanka and others, under Sections 494, 504, 506 I.P.C. before the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No.18, Police Station Lambhua, District Sultanpur. Appellant has also stated that presently, his wife/respondent no.1 is pregnant of about five months. Appellant has also enclosed a photograph of his wife/respondent no.1 along with the said Sunil Kumar in his objection. In this background, appellant has prayed for rejection of the application filed by his wife/respondent no.1 under Section 24 of the Act, 1955.

(6) Apparently, vide an order dated 06.02.2023, the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Sultanpur, has allowed the application under Section 24 of the Act, 1955 of the respondent no.1/wife, awarding lump sum amount of Rs.2000/- towards expenses for filing written statement and Rs.3000/- per month towards travel expenses, litigation expenses and interim maintenance to her, till disposal of the regular suit under Section 13 of the Act, 1955.

(7) The learned Counsel for the appellant has invited our attention to questionnaire annexed as Annexure No.6 to the instant First Appeal and has argued that in compliance of the order dated 26.09.2022 passed by the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Sultanpur in the Criminal Case No. 236 of 2022, the Station House Officer, Lambhua has investigated the matter under Section 202 (i) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 and submitted its report before the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No.37, Sultanpur, stating therein that accused-Priyanka alias Roli (respondent no.1/wife herein) has performed the second marriage but the name of the husband to whom she has married could not be traced out during the investigation. Submission is that from the aforesaid report of the Station House Officer, Lambhua, prima facie, it is established that even before the dissolution of the marriage between the appellant and his wife/respondent no.1, the respondent no.1/wife has solemnized second marriage with one Mr. Sunil Kumar Tiwari alias Guddu Tiwari and as such the appellant has no obligation to provide maintenance to his wife, but while passing the impugned order, learned Principal Judge, Sultanpur, has failed to consider the aforesaid facts and also the fact that respondent no.1/wife has committed the offence of bigamy punishable under Section 494 I.P.C., hence, in the aforesaid background, the impugned order dated 06.02.2023 is not sustainable and is liable to be set-aside.

(8) We have considered the submissions advanced by the learned Counsel representing the appellant and have also perused the records available before us on this appeal.

(9) Before analyzing the submissions advanced by the learned Counsel for the appellant, it would be apt to discuss the intent of Section 24 of the Act, 1955. For this purpose, Section 24 of the Act, 1955, which is relevant in the present context, reads as under :-

"24. Maintenance pendente lite and expenses of proceedings: Where in any proceeding under this Act it appears to the court that either the wife or the husband, as the case may be, has no independent income sufficient for her or his support and the necessary expenses of the proceeding, it may, on the application of the wife or the husband, order the respondent to pay to the petitioner the expenses of the proceeding, and monthly during the proceeding such sum as, having regard to the petitioner's own income and the income of the respondent, it may seem to the court to be reasonable."

may be, has no independent income sufficient for her or his support and the necessary expenses of the proceeding, it may, order the respondent to pay the expenses of the proceedings and monthly maintenance during the proceeding. These words make the intention of the legislature quite clear that expenses have to be allowed by the Court, as a support system, if the requirement as provided under Section 24 of Act, 1955 are fulfilled for a period during the pendency of the suit or proceeding.

(11) The cause of action for filing a case under Section 24 of the Act, 1955 would arise only when there is a matrimonial proceeding initiated by the husband or wife. Therefore, the primary requirement for claiming maintenance under Section 24 of the Act, 1955 is the pendency of a matrimonial proceeding. This provision was introduced with a laudable object of ensuring "support and maintenance" to a party in the proceeding so as to enable him or her to maintain themselves during the pendency of such proceedings. This provision also permits the Court to award a reasonable amount for the purpose of conducting the matrimonial proceeding. There is no ceiling limit prescribed for the purpose of granting maintenance under Section 24 of the Act, 1955. Section 24 of the Act, 1955 seeks to maintain an equilibrium between the two parties to the litigation during the pendency of the proceeding as it makes provision for payment of as and towards support and maintenance for a party who is in a disadvantageous position to maintain and to diligently contest the proceeding on account of poor economic condition.

(12) In the instant case, the question before us, under the facts and circumstances of the case, would be "whether allegation of second marriage of the respondent no.1/wife during pendency of the divorce petition raised by the husband/appellant, would deter the Court to grant a statutory right vested upon the wife". It is to be remembered in this context that only an allegation of second marriage of respondent no.1/wife has been raised by the appellant/husband against the respondent no.1/wife and it is a fact yet to be proved by adducing cogent evidence by the appellant/husband to the satisfaction of the Court concerned. Therefore, the view taken by the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Sultanpur, in allowing a special benefit bestowed upon a party in view of the objective to be achieved by the provision of Section 24 of the Act, 1955, cannot be faulted with for the simple reason that the allegation by the appellant are at a very nascent stage, veracity of which is still to be examined by a competent Court of law and in any case if such a position is not accepted, in every case an unscrupulous husband or wife, as the case may be, can always raise such an allegation against the spouse to avoid any liability to pay the litigation expenses and interim maintenance, which, according to this Court, would not be the legislative intent while enacting such a beneficial provision in the Act, 1955.

(13) Recently, this Court in First Appeal Defective No. 17 of 2023 (Jitendra Pratap Singh Vs. Nidhi Singh), vide order dated 11.04.2023, had an occasion to observe the meaning and import of Section 24 of the Act, 1955, which is squarely applicable to the present case in hand. This Court, in paragraph-14 of the aforesaid case, has held as under :-

"14. It is pertinent to mention that the provisions of Section 24 of the Act, 1955 is a piece of beneficial legislation and as such, duty is cast on the Court to exercise its discretion in awarding amount for support and maintenance during the litigation proceedings, so that the indigent spouse may not suffer at the instance of the affluent spouse, who has filed proceedings under any of the provisions of the Act, 1955. The very objective of interim maintenance is to ensure that the dependent spouse is not reduced to destitution or vagrancy on account of the failure of the marriage. The Court, while considering the merits of an application for grant of an interim maintenance under Section 24 of the Act, 1955, has to necessarily arrive at prima facie determination about the earning capacity of the rival claimant. The determination cannot be made with exactitude as it is essentially interim in nature. The Court is called upon to make a summary consideration of amount which the applicant is to be awarded by way of maintenance pendente lite and litigation expenses in accordance with the financial resources of the parties."

(14) It is relevant to add here that the right to claim maintenance and expense during pendency of proceedings under the Act, 1955, is a special right bestowed on the disadvantaged spouse, irrespective of the result of the main relief under Section 13 of the Act, 1955. Therefore, in the present case, allowing the claim of the respondent no.1/wife for interim maintenance and litigation expenses by means of the impugned order by the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Sultanpur, cannot be faulted with as the same is legally sustainable and is not liable to be interfered with.

(15) For all the aforesaid reasons, the instant First Appeal fails and as such is hereby dismissed.

A. Civil Law - Code of Civil Procedure, 1908-Order 41 Rule 33-Appellate Court by exercising the power under Order 41 Rule 33 varied the decree of demolition substituting it by a direction to the plaintiffs to pay for the constructions raised-the constructions were, on the concurrent findings of the court below, raised without title by defendant no. 4, disturbing the plaintiffs' possession- defendants no. 4 out of 4 to 7 defendants, who contested the suit, did not appeal the Trial's court decree-it was the defendant's no. 1 alone that appealed the decree, therefore to direct some benefit to defendants no. 4 to 7 by the lower appellate court is absolutely without basis i.e. in the absence of a

'cross -objection' under Order 41 Rule 22 of the code-Thus, the Lower Appellate Court is not at all justified in granting relief to the defendants no. 4 to 7 to recover costs of the constructions from the plaintiffs-The decree passed by the Lower Appellate Court is set aside.(Para 1 to 74)

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. This judgment will decide Second Appeal No.108 of 2008 and Second Appeal No.26 of 2020, both of which arise out of the same suit. The Trial Court decided the suit by the same judgment, leading to a single appeal from the original decree by one of the defendants. The judgment and decree passed by the Lower Appellate Court has left both the plaintiffs and the defendants dissatisfied, leading to these two appeals, arising out of the appellate decree.

2. Original Suit No.389 of 1986 was instituted on 14.11.1986 by Kanchan Singh and Man Singh, both sons of Babu Lal in the ex-Court of the Civil Judge, Mathura

(now Civil Judge, Senior Division) against seven defendants, shortly to be specified.

3. By the said suit, the plaintiffs sought relief of permanent prohibitory injunction to the effect that the defendants be restrained from interfering with the plaintiffs' title or possession in Khasra No.216, admeasuring -61 decimals, Khewat No.1, situate at Villate Neelkanth, District Mathura, or on the basis of rights created amongst themselves from demolishing (any construction) or digging up a foundation on the said property and constructing anything thereon or interfere with the plaintiffs raising a boundary wall around the said property, and further forbear from interfering with the plaintiffs' possession in any manner or take possession of the property themselves.

4. The defendants to the suit are the Town Area Committee, Sadabad through its Officer In-charge. The Town Area Committee aforesaid was then included in the district of Mathura, but is now part of District Hathras. The District Magistrate, Mathura is the second defendant to the suit, whereas the third defendant is the Government of Uttar Pradesh, represented by the Collector, Mathura. The fourth defendant to the suit was the Station House Officer, P.S. Sadabad, District Mathura (now District Hathras). The fifth defendant to the suit was the Superintendent of Police, Mathura. The sixth defendant was the Director General of Police, Uttar Pradesh, Lucknow and the last defendant was the Deputy Inspector General of Police, Agra Range, Agra.

5. It may be mentioned at the outset that though pending suit, many of the defendants would have changed, because Town Sadabad came to be included in the district of Hathras, but the suit was contested by defendant Nos.1 and 4 alone, who put in their written statements and led evidence. The other defendants did not file any written statement or otherwise contest. After the reverse in the Trial Court suffered by the defendants, it was defendant No.1 alone, which appealed the original decree to the District Judge, and losing there, has carried Second Appeal No.108 of 2008. Defendant No.4 gave up contest after the Trial Court's judgment.

6. In Second Appeal No.108 of 2008, which is being treated the leading case, the Town Area Committee, Sadabad, District Mathura through its Officer In-charge/ Chairman, is the sole defendant-appellant. Hereinafter, the defendant-appellant shall be referred to as defendant No.1. Respondent Nos.1 and 2 to this appeal are the plaintiffs. The other defendants to the suit in the present appeal are arrayed as defendant-respondent Nos.3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8, and described as defendant/ proforma respondents. The said defendants shall be called hereinafter as defendant Nos.2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7 for the ease of reference.

7. In Second Appeal No.26 of 2020, Kanchan Singh and Man Singh are the two plaintiff-appellants and respondent Nos.1 to 7 are defendant Nos.1 to 7 in the suit. Kanchan Singh died pending Second Appeal No.108 of 2008 and before Second Appeal No.26 of 2020 was instituted. Both the plaintiff are now represented on record by their heirs and LRs, who have contested and pursued these appeals, representing the plaintiffs' interest. For the ease of reference, therefore, the plaintiffs shall be referred to as 'the plaintiffs', wherever there is a collective reference and should individual reference be necessary, they would mentioned by their names as 'Kanchan

Singh' or 'Man Singh', it being understood that it bears reference to their heirs and LRs now on record.

8. The plaintiffs' case is that they are owners in possession of the property, part of Khewat No.1, Khasra No.16, admeasuring -61 decimals, situate at Village Neelkanth, Pargana Sadabad, District Mathura with boundaries to identify, being set out at the foot of the plaint. The said property shall hereinafter be called 'the suit property'. It is the plaintiffs' case that the suit property was earlier owned by Kisan Swarup, Raman Bihari, Jaiveer Singh, sons of Bankey Lal, and Ram Autar and Ram Kumar sons of Sohan Lal, who were in possession of the same. A more detailed mention of the plaintiffs' vendors shall be made later on, indicating the line of inheritance, as the plaintiffs' vendors claimed the suit property to be ancestral. The suit property was recorded in the name of the plaintiffs' vendors as a 'Pajawa'. The plaintiffs' vendors would fire this brick kiln, the byproduct of which was ash, that would collect on the suit property. The then owners would give away the collected ash on a contract for sale. The former owners earlier and the plaintiffs for the present, still sell off ash that lies on the suit property.

9. The plaintiffs' case further is that the suit property, on account of large deposits of ash from the brick kiln, has become undulated and they have got one part of it levelled. The plaintiffs entered into an agreement dated 15.03.1979 contracting to buy the suit property from their vendors, paying in earnest a sum of Rs.2000/-. It is the plaintiffs' case that they got a sale deed of the suit property to the extent of -13 $\frac{1}{4}$ decimals executed in their favour by Bhagwati Prasad, Raj Bahadur, Chandra Prakash, all sons of Bankey Lal. The sale deed aforesaid was executed and registered on 23.03.1979 for a total sale consideration of Rs.6000/-. The plaintiffs further purchased an area of 43-4/7 decimals by means a registered deed dated 16.05.1979 executed by Kisan Swarup, Raman Bihari, Jaiveer sons of Bankey Lal and Ram Autar, Ram Kumar sons of Sohan Lal, for a total sale consideration of Rs.20,000/-.

10. The vendors aforesaid put the plaintiffs in possession of the suit property thus transferred. The plaintiffs' name was duly mutated in the revenue records on the basis of the sale deeds aforesaid. The plaintiffs expended money and got a room constructed, 15' long and 12' wide, towards the north-eastern part of the suit property. The plaintiffs got a part of the suit property levelled and intended to get the same done for the remainder for the purpose of raising constructions. The suit property was in the joint possession of the plaintiffs' vendors and the defendants could have had no concern with it. It is the plaintiffs' case that Ranveer Singh son of Pancham Singh, a resident of Vedai, Tehsil Sadabad and Roshan Lal stirred up a bogus controversy, because they wanted to extort money from the plaintiffs. In order to vindicate their rights against the two men last mentioned, the plaintiffs had to institute O.S. No.152 of 1979 in the Court of the Munsif, Mahawan, District Mathura, titled Kanchan Singh and others vs. Ranveer Singh and others.

11. The plaintiffs say that they needed to raise a loan and, therefore, mortgaged the suit property with the State Bank of India, Sadabad Branch, which holds rights over the suit property to the extent of all its -61 decimals. The plaintiffs sold away a part of the suit property to Ranveer Singh, the man they later had to sue and delivered possession to him, openly in terms of their deed. The sale deed, the plaintiffs' executed in Ranveer Singh's favour, related to that part of the suit property, over which they had constructed a room. The plaintiffs say that some men from Sadabad harbour ill-will and malice against them and some employees of the Town Area Committee, Sadabad (defendant No.1) are inclined to trouble the plaintiffs. Accordingly, defendant No.1 are designing to usurp the suit property and have incorrectly informed defendant No.2 that the suit property belongs to defendant No.1.

12. It is the plaintiffs' further case that defendant Nos.1 and 2 doing some transfer by writing amongst themselves are intending to assign the suit property to defendant Nos.5, 6 and 7 for the purpose of construction of a Police Chowki. The said defendants (Nos.1 and 2) do not have the right to do that. The plaintiffs assert that defendant No.4 is unnecessarily interfering with the the plaintiffs' use of the suit property. The plaintiffs allege raising a boundary wall over the suit property, which defendant No.4 interfered with and got the construction illegally stopped, threatening the plaintiffs with arrest and detention in jail. All the defendants are said to be in connivance, on account of which, they have been impleaded as defendants to the suit.

13. It is the plaintiffs' case that they are scared of defendant Nos.1, 3, 4 and 6, because they are extending threats to the plaintiffs, asking them to transfer rights in favour of defendant Nos.1-3 and 4-6, so that they may construct the Kotwali there soon. The local Patwari is scared of defendant No.2 and does not speak the truth for that reason. There is an averment in paragraph No.16 of the plaint that in case the plaintiffs were to serve a notice under Section 80 CPC and wait for the statutory period of two months before instituting the suit, the purpose of instituting the suit would become futile. Defendant Nos.1-3, 5, 6 and 7 would amongst themselves, doing the necessary paper work, raise construction over the suit property, dispossessing the plaintiffs, which would cause irreparable loss and injury to the plaintiffs. It is also averred that for the said reason, leave ought to be granted to the plaintiffs to institute the suit, without service of the statutory notice and waiting for the statutory period of two months. Disclosing the aforesaid cause of action involving threatened dispossession and forcible construction on the suit property, the plaintiffs instituted the suit, giving rise to this appeal, for the relief of permanent injunction per details already indicated.

14. Defendant No.1 filed a written statement. The said defendant admitted the fact that the suit property was indeed located in Khasra No.216, but denied that the plaintiffs were the owners thereof. Defendant No.1 further admitted the fact that in the revenue records, the suit property was entered as a Pajawa and about this entry, it is said in a plea of avoidance that it has been wrongly made in those records. The other allegations in the plaint were denied and it was pleaded that neither the plaintiffs nor their transferers hold title to the suit property; nor any of them were in possession. The case about the plaintiffs' predecessor running a brick kiln on the suit property, leading to the accumulation of ash there, was all denied. The fact of execution of sale deeds for whole of the suit property was also denied. It was also denied that the plaintiffs' transferers were owners of the entire suit property. It was pleaded that for the said reason, they did not have the right to transfer the entire suit property to the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs' case about construction of a room there has also been denied. The reason assigned is that the plaintiffs never presented any building plan for sanction before defendant No.1, authorizing them to raise that construction.

15. It is the case of defendant No.1 that a perusal of the Khewat relied upon by the plaintiffs shows that the entire area is 2.80 decimals. Bankey Lal son of Kanhaiya Lal and Sohan Lal son of Jagannath (ancestors of the plaintiffs' transferers) are recorded over a total area of 35 49/107 decimals. The revenue records show that the concerned persons have got forged entries made therein. It is then pleaded on behalf of defendant No.1 that through their former Chairman, they got an application under Section 39 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act made for correction of the revenue records, which was registered as Case No.8 of 1975-76. The application was moved for correction of records relating to Khasra Nos.240, 241 and 242, all situate in Village Neelkanth. Bhagwati Prasad and others were parties to the said case.

16. It is then pleaded that defendant No.1 got the aforesaid plot numbers acquired along with other plot numbers, as would appear from the order of the Land Acquisition Officer, Mathura. It is also pleaded that Bankey Lal, Sohan Lal and others, who were recorded as tenure holders were also paid compensation. Accordingly, the Town Area Committee was delivered possession over the suit property on 30.05.1953. It is on account of connivance with the former Lekhpal that names of the plaintiffs' predecessors were entered in the Khewat for the purpose of extending undue benefit to them. It is the said defendant's case that the entry relating to 1376 Fasli is wrong.

17. It is also pleaded that according to orders passed on 20.12.1975 in Mutation Case No.8 of 1975-76, the names of Bhagwati Prasad, Bishan Swarup, Raj Bahadur, Bankey Lal, Sohan Lal and others were mutated out and their revision against the said order was dismissed by the Additional Commissioner, Agra Division, Agra vide his order dated 25.08.1976. Earlier, Village Gadhi Neelkanth was part of Gram Sabha Koopa and after extension of the boundaries of the Town Area, the suit property came to fall within the local limits of the Town Area. All properties of the Gaon Sabha stood vested in the Town Area Committee.

18. It is also the case of defendant No.1 that in the records, the plaintiffs' ancestors were never recorded as ones in possession. The plaintiffs have taken possession on the basis of a sale deed, which confers no title on them. According to defendant No.1, it is evident from the documentary evidence that plot Nos.240, 241 and 242 had old numbers 139, 131, 132 and 133. It is also the case of defendant No.1 that the suit property adjoins land that was acquired for defendant No.1. The plaintiffs have, in collusion with their vendors, got a sale deed executed in their favour and on that flawed basis claimed themselves to be titleholders of the suit property, a fact which is absolutely incorrect. The sale deed executed by the former owners in favour of the plaintiffs is void and confers no title upon them. The plaintiffs can neither be owners of the entire Khasra No.216 nor co-sharers therein.

19. The plaintiffs got a notice dated 02.12.1985 under Section 80 CPC served upon defendant No.1 on incorrect premises, and without awaiting expiry of the notice period, instituted the suit. According to defendant No.1, the Collector of Mathura, is their Administrator and it is upon his directions that the suit property has been handed over to the Police Department. The decision has been taken in the interest of the local population, which the plaintiffs have no right to frustrate by presenting the instant suit. At the time of institution of the suit, the plaintiffs were not in possession. The suit is barred by Section 34 of the Specific Relief Act. The suit is undervalued. The entire suit property is worth at least Rs.2,50,000/-. The court-fee paid is insufficient. The plaintiffs have got incorrect entries made (in the revenue records) and appropriate steps to rectify the records are being taken after seeking necessary legal advice. It is pleaded that defendant No.1 does not accept the plaintiffs' title to the suit property. The suit has been instituted on incorrect facts, which ought to be dismissed with costs.

20. Defendant No.4 filed a separate written statement denying the plaint allegations, but admitting the fact that the suit property is located in Khasra No.216. It has been denied that any cause of action has arisen to the plaintiffs to institute this suit, which according to defendant No.4 is founded in incorrect premises. The plaintiffs are not in ownership possession of the suit property. They were never owners of the said property. The plaintiffs' vendors never had title to the suit property. It is defendant No.1, who was always the titleholder of the suit property and in possession thereof, and now, it is defendant No.4, who holds possession.

21. According to defendant No.4, the population of Tehsil Sadabad has considerably increased. The Police Station, that is existing, is very small, which does not allow work to be done properly. It is in view of this fact that it was considered appropriate that the police station be expanded and a new one constructed. The Superintendent of Police, for the purpose of securing some land, invited the attention of the State Government, represented by the Collector. Accordingly, defendant No.3 (the Collector) gave away the suit property to defendant No.4, because at the relevant time, defendant No.1 were under the control of the Collector, who had all authority to transfer defendant No.1's land in favour of defendant No.4.

22. In order to construct a new police station, tenders were invited and a contract for the purpose was granted for a sum of Rs.8 lacs in favour of one C.P. Singh Chaudhary. He was paid out of the settled sum, under the contract, a sum of Rs.2 lacs. The contractor has commenced work at site and laid foundation for the construction of four rooms, a verandah, a lavatory and a bathroom. Building materials worth Rs.2 lacs, belonging to the contractor, are lying stacked at site. The plaintiffs have no concern with the suit property nor did they ever hold title or possession of the same. The plaintiffs have not complied with the provisions of Section 80 CPC. The plaintiffs' suit is not maintainable.

23. Here, it may be noticed that pending suit, the plaintiffs came up with a case that defendant Nos.2 to 7, in connivance with defendant No.1, violating the temporary injunction order, that was operating in favour of the plaintiffs, forcibly took possession of the suit property and have raised construction on the same, which they have no right to do. In the circumstances, the plaintiffs are entitled to possession of the suit property, after demolition of constructions raised with liberty to the defendants to carry away the building material.

24. An amendment to the above effect was sought by the plaintiffs through an application, that was granted vide order dated 29.01.1991. A further amendment was sought to the relief clause, where after deleting the relief of permanent prohibitory injunction, the plaintiffs sought relief of possession after demolition of constructions raised by the defendants with liberty to them to carry away the building material. Court-fee was paid ad valorem on the relief of possession.

25. Defendant Nos.1 and 4 have filed two additional written statements in answer to the pleas raised on behalf of the plaintiffs through amendments. Both the defendants in their additional written statements denied the amended pleas, including the assertions that the defendants, by connivance amongst themselves, have taken possession of the suit property, in violation of the temporary injunction by force and raised constructions thereon. It was pleaded that the suit property's owner was defendant No.1 and it is the said defendant, which had given possession to the Government of U.P. It was also pleaded that on the suit property, a building to house the Police Station Sadabad has already been constructed, wherein the Government have spent a sum of Rs.5 lacs. It was, therefore, urged that the plaintiffs are not entitled to relief of possession.

26. On the pleadings of parties, the following issues were framed (translated into English from Hindi):

"(1) Whether the plaintiffs are owners of the property in dispute?

(2) Whether on the date of institution of the suit, the plaintiffs were in possession of the suit property?

(3) Whether the suit is undervalued?

(4) Whether the suit is barred by Section 34 of the Specific Relief Act?

(5) To what relief are the plaintiffs entitled?

(6) Whether the defendants have dispossessed the plaintiffs pending suit?

(7) Whether the suit is undervalued and the court-fee paid insufficient?"

27. On behalf of the plaintiffs, six witnesses were examined, to wit, Man Singh, plaintiff No.1, who testified as PW-1, Munshi son of Gaffur as PW-2, Udai Ram, Ahalmad, Civil Court, Mathura was examined as PW-3, Kishan Swarup son of Bankey Lal testified as PW-4, Sultan Singh Pachauri was examined as PW-5 and Chandrabhan Gautam, Advocate appeared in the witness-box as PW-6.

28. On behalf of the defendants, four witnesses were examined: Ram Kishan, DW-1 and Pusaram Santoshi, DW-2, both these witnesses being examined on behalf of defendant No.1; and, Sub-Inspector R.P. Tyagi and Chandrapal Singh, Inspector C.B. C.I.D., Agra, were examined as DW-3 and DW-4, respectively on behalf of defendant No.4. A wealth of documentary evidence was produced on behalf of the plaintiffs, details whereof are summarized in the judgments of the Courts below; particularly, that of the Trial Court. Likewise is the position on behalf of defendant Nos.1 and 4, who too produced some documentary evidence. It is not necessary to set forth the summary of the documentary evidence filed by parties, the relevant of which would be noticed during the course of this judgment.

29. So far as Issue Nos. 3 and 7 are concerned, the same were disposed of in terms of an order dated 13.02.1991 with the issues being answered in favour of the plaintiffs.

30. Insofar as Issue No.4 is concerned, the Trial Court held that this issue was not pressed at the hearing and, therefore, answered against the defendants.

31. Issue No.2 was answered in favour of the plaintiffs and against the defendants, holding that evidence led by the plaintiffs was stronger and more dependable as compared to that on behalf of defendants, which shows for all the reasons assigned, based on evidence discussed, that it was the plaintiffs, who were in possession at the time of institution of the suit.

32. Issue No.1 was also answered for the plaintiffs and against the defendants holding, after a very elaborate discussion of the evidence on record, that the plaintiffs are owners of 46 9/14 decimals of land out of the total 61 decimals, and that they are entitled to be declared so. It was also held that the Police Department had taken possession of the suit property without right, illegally.

33. Likewise, Issue No.6 was answered in favour of the plaintiffs holding that the defendants had taken possession of the suit property after dispossessing the plaintiffs during pendency of the suit. In working out the relief, which the Trial Court dealt with while deciding Issue No.5, it was held that out of the total area of 61 decimals of plot No.216, the plaintiffs purchased through the two sale deeds, an area 56-9/14 decimals. Out of this area, they transferred 10 decimals in favour of Ranveer. This has left the plaintiffs with an area 46-9/14 decimals, of which they are owners. It was further held that the plaintiffs are entitled to possession over 46-9/14 decimals of land out of the suit property, after demolition of the existing constructions raised thereon by the defendants. The suit was, accordingly, decreed for possession of 46-9/14 decimals of land out of the suit property after dispossessing the defendants therefrom. The defendants were ordered to deliver possession of 46-9/14 decimals of land to the plaintiffs out of the suit property within two months of the date of the decree and to do so after removal, within the said time, of constructions raised thereon. It was also ordered that constructions that have been raised over the suit property by defendant Nos.4 and 7 could be dismantled and the materials carried away by the said defendants. In the event, the decree was not carried out within the time allowed, the plaintiffs would be at liberty to cause the constructions to be demolished at the cost of defendant Nos.4 and 7 and recover possession of the suit property.

34. Defendant No.1 alone appealed the decree, which was initially presented before this Court, but on account of amendment to the Bengal, Agra and Assam Civil Courts Act, 1887, was sent down to the District Judge, who was the Appellate Court of competent pecuniary jurisdiction. The appeal ultimately came up for hearing before the Additional District Judge, Hathras, the Tehsil of Sadabad by then being included within the territories of the newly created district of Hathras. The Additional District Judge vide his judgment and decree dated 08.10.2007 substantially affirmed the Trial Court, but modified the decree only to the extent that after separating the area of 46 9/14 decimals out of the suit property, regarding which the suit for demolition and possession has been decreed, the part of the constructions raised by defendant Nos.4 to 7, that fall within the said area, be valued and the cost thereof directed to be paid by the plaintiffs to defendant Nos.4 to 7, after their dispossession.

35. Aggrieved by the appellate decree, defendant No.1 has preferred Second Appeal No.108 of 2008, seeking its reversal, whereas Second Appeal No.26 of 2020 was preferred by the plaintiffs from that part of the Lower Appellate Court's decree, which has directed costs of the construction illegally raised by defendant No.4 to be paid by the plaintiffs to defendant Nos.4 to 7. Second Appeal No.108 of 2008 was admitted to hearing on 20.07.2012, though instituted much earlier on 23rd January, 2008, on the following substantial questions of law:

"(a) Whether the courts below were justified in not advertng to the provisions of U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 wherein every notified area committee has been assigned the status of a Municipality/ Nagar Panchayat and as such non-compliance with the mandatory requirements of Section 326 of U.P. Municipalities Act by the plaintiff could have at all been ignored?

(b) Whether entry in revenue records qua the land in dispute as "Pajava" was not a conclusive proof of automatic vesting of the land in the defendant-appellant/ State and hence the findings recorded by the courts below on the issue of title and ownership of the disputed land against the defendant-appellant are legally sustainable?"

36. Second Appeal No.26 of 2020 (Second Appeal Defective No.33 of 2017)

was admitted to hearing on 06.01.2020 framing the following substantial questions of law:

"(i) Whether the court of first appeal was justified in granting such relief in favour of Nagar Kshetriya Samiti Sadabad i.e. defendants to recover the amount of cost to the encroachment/existing construction when admittedly no counter claim was filed nor any relief was sought to this effect.

(ii) Since appeal No. 108 of 2008 has already been admitted, list this appeal for analogous hearing."

37. Heard Mr. Kshitij Shailendra, learned Counsel appearing on behalf of defendant No.1 and Mr. Preet Pal Rathore, learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the plaintiffs. No one appears on behalf of defendant Nos.2 to 7. Mr. Preet Pal Singh, learned Counsel has been heard on behalf of the plaintiffs in support of Second Appeal No.26 of 2020 and Mr. Kshitij Shailendra, learned Counsel on behalf of defendant No.1. No one appears on behalf of defendant Nos.2 to 7 in this appeal also.

38. It would be apposite to consider the parties' case in each of the two appeals separately with reference to the Substantial Question(s) of Law framed in the relative appeal.

A. Second Appeal No.108 of 2008 Substantial Question (a)

39. It is submitted on behalf of defendant No.1 that the plaintiffs have not complied with the requirements of Section 326 of the Uttar Pradesh Municipalities Act, 1916 (for short, 'the Act of 1916'). The learned Counsel for defendant No.1

submits that before the institution of a suit against a Municipality under the Act of 1916, it is imperative that a notice is served in writing upon the Municipality, indicating particulars mentioned in sub-Section (1) of Section 326. After service of notice contemplated in Section 326(1), a period of two months must elapse before the suit is instituted. Attention of the Court has been drawn to the provisions of Section 326 of the Act of 1916, which read:

"326. Suits against Municipality or its officers. - (1) No suit shall be instituted against a Municipality, or against a member, officer or servant of a Municipality, in respect of an act done or purporting to have been done in its or his official capacity, until the expiration of two months next after notice in writing has been in the case of a Municipality, left at its office, and, in case a member, officer or servant, delivered to him or left at his office or place of abode, explicitly stating the cause of action, the nature of the relief sought, the amount of compensation claimed, and the name and place of abode of the intending plaintiff, and the plaint shall contain a statement that such notice has been so delivered or left.

(2) If the Municipality, member, officer or servant shall, before action is commenced, have tendered sufficient amends to the plaintiff, the plaintiff shall not recover any sum in excess of the amount so tendered, shall also pay all costs incurred by the defendant after such tender.

(3) No action such as is described in sub-section (1) shall, unless it is an action for the recovery of immovable property or for a declaration of title thereto, be commenced otherwise than within six months next after the accrual of the cause of action

(4) Provided that nothing in sub-section (1) shall be construed to apply to a suit wherein the only relief claimed is an injunction of which the object would be defeated by the giving of the notice or the postponement of the commencement of the suit or proceeding."

40. It is urged by the learned Counsel for defendant No.1 that the suit here was one that was initially instituted for the relief of permanent prohibitory injunction alone, but later on converted into a suit for demolition and dispossession. And, still, no notice under Section 326 of the Act of 1916 was served upon defendant No.1, as mandated by Section 326(1) of the last mentioned Act. It is urged that it was incumbent for the plaintiffs to serve a notice under Section 326 upon defendant No.1, in order to maintain their action. Learned Counsel for defendant No.1 has invited attention of the Court further to the provisions of Section 3-A(3)(b) of the Act of 1916. In order to understand the provisions of Section 3-A(3)(b) aforesaid, it would be necessary to set forth Section 3-A of the Act of 1916, which reads:

"3A. Municipality for every transitional area and smaller urban area.

- (1) A municipality constituted under clause (1) of Article 243-Q of the Constitution in accordance with Part IX-A thereof shall, -

(a) for every transitional area, be known as the Nagar Panchayat;

(b) for every smaller urban area be known as the Municipal Council.

(2) Every Nagar Panchayat or Municipal Council constituted under subsection (1), shall be a body corporate.

(3) Notwithstanding anything in sub-section (1), -

(a) every Municipal Board existing immediately before the commencement of the Uttar Pradesh Urban Local Self Government Laws (Amendment) Act, 1994, shall [from such commencement and until the first constitution of the Municipal Council under this Act as amended by the said Act be deemed to be a Municipal Council under the Act;

(b) every notified area committee constituted under Section 338 or Town Area Committee constituted under the Uttar Pradesh Town Areas Act, 1914, as it stood immediately before the commencement of the Act referred to in clause (a), shall [from such commencement and until the first constitution of the Nagar Panchayat under this Act, as amended by the Act referred to in clause (a)] be deemed to be a Nagar Panchayat under this Act."

41. There is a further submission that the learned Counsel for defendant No.1 has made while concluding his arguments on the first of the two substantial questions of law. He says that so far as the other defendants are concerned, they are the State and its officers, against whom a suit would not lie without service of a notice under Section 80 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (for short, 'the Code'). It is urged that, even if initially, the relief claimed was one of permanent prohibitory injunction, no exemption under sub-Section (2) of Section 80 of the Code was claimed. More so, after amendment of the plaint, the cause of action having changed from a suit for permanent prohibitory injunction into a suit for demolition and possession, service of notice under Section 80, based on the amended cause of action and the amended plaint, was mandatory. And, in the absence of service of notice under Section 80 of the Code, this suit against the other defendants, that is to say, the State and its various officers is not maintainable.

42. In answer, Mr. Preet Pal Singh Rathore, learned Counsel appearing for the plaintiffs submits that defendant No.1 has raised this plea for the first time before this Court. It is pointed out that whereas in Paragraph No.42 of this defendant's written statement, there is a traverse about the time of service of notice under Section 80 of the Code, there is no pleading either in the written statement or a ground in the memorandum of first appeal, regarding want of the mandatory notice under Section 326 of the Act of 1916. It is argued that the plea regarding a bar of the suit under Section 326 of the Act last mentioned, not being raised in the written statement or before the Lower Appellate Court, it cannot be permitted to be raised for the first time in second appeal. A perusal of the written statement filed on behalf of defendant No.1 shows that indeed there is no plea raised on behalf of the said defendant regarding non-compliance with the provisions of Section 326 of the Act of 1916. The only pleading about the want of a notice is to be found in Paragraph No.42 of the written statement dated 07.01.1987. The said plea is to the effect that defendant No.1 was served with a notice dated 02.12.1985 on incorrect facts by the plaintiffs through their Counsel. It was a notice under Section 80 of the Code and that the suit was instituted without waiting for the statutory period mentioned in the said notice.

43. Now, so far as a notice under Section 80 of the Code is concerned, that relates to the mandatory requirement of service of a notice as envisaged under sub-Section (1) of Section 80, when a suit is instituted against the Government or a public officer in respect of any act done in his official capacity. Sub-Section (1) mandates that the statutory notice contemplated under Section 80 of the Code must be served upon the Government or a public officer, if it relates to official actions of such public officer, and a suit can be instituted after expiry of two months from date of service of notice in writing at the office of the specified officer of the Government, and in the case of a public officer, delivered to such officer or left at his office. What the notice must essentially state is also laid down by sub-Section (1) of Section 80 of the Code.

44. It must be remarked that a notice under Section 80 of the Code is not to be confounded with a notice under Section 326 of the Act of 1916. The object of both kinds of notices issued under very different statutes may be similar or even identical. But, the two are not the same. The identities of parties entitled to a notice under Section 80 of the Code and Section 326 of the Act of 1916 are also different. A notice under Section 80 of the Code, as already noticed, is mandatory, where an action is brought against the Government or one of its officials for an act done in their official capacity, whereas a notice under Section 326 of the Act of 1916 is mandatory, except to the extent contemplated under sub-Section (4) thereof, in the case of a Nagar Palika Parishad or Nagar Panchayat governed by the provisions of the Act, last mentioned.

45. There is no quarrel about the fact that a Town Area Committee constituted under the Uttar Pradesh Town Areas Act, 1914 by virtue of Section 3-A(3)(b) until the first constitution of a Municipal Council, after commencement of the Uttar Pradesh Urban Local Self-Government Laws (Amendment) Act, 1994 be deemed to be a Nagar Panchayat under the Act of 1916. This being so, the defendant No.1 here, a Town Area, would be entitled to notice under Section 326 of the Act of 1916. But, that is an entitlement under the law for defendant No.1 before action is commenced.

46. Here, what this Court finds is that no plea was ever raised on behalf of defendant No.1 that the suit was not maintainable against them due to want of a notice under Section 326 of the Act of 1916. There is a passing mention, as already noticed in Paragraph No.42 of the written statement, that a notice under Section 80 of the Code, on incorrect facts, was served upon defendant No.1 by the plaintiffs and the suit instituted before expiry of the statutory period. It has been remarked above that the bar under Section 80 of the Code to commencement of actions without service of a notice, in terms of the said provision, is applicable only in the case of a suit against the Government or one of its officials, as regards their acts done while discharging their official functions. Whether the suit was instituted without service of a notice under Section 80 of the Code or instituted prematurely without waiting for expiry of the statutory time, is none of defendant No.1's concern. This is a plea, which could be raised and proved on behalf of the Government and its officials. It is not a plea that is open to defendant No.1.

47. There is no quarrel on facts that a notice under Section 326 of the Code has not at all been served upon defendant No.1

before the suit was instituted. As already noticed, there is no plea regarding want of a notice under Section 326 raised in the written statement at all. No issue was framed at the instance of defendant No.1 before the Trial Court regarding the maintainability of the suit for want of notice under Section 326 aforesaid. No issue was framed to the above effect even after the plaint was amended by the plaintiff and an additional written statement filed on behalf of defendant No.1.

48. In the opinion of this Court, the failure to raise a plea regarding want of notice under Section 326 in the written statement, then in failing to get an issue framed on the point before the Trial Court, and also failing to raise a ground before the Lower Appellate Court in the first appeal, constitutes a waiver of the right to statutory notice under Section 326, otherwise mandatory.

49. The principle of waiver of a mandatory notice before commencement of action has been recognized over time by judicial authority in the context of the analogous provisions of Section 80 of the Code. Analogous, this Court says, because the purpose of notice under Section 326 of the Act of 1916 and that under Section 80 of the Code is the same. The requirement of both these statutory notices is to extend protection from action in one case to the Government and its officers for their official acts, and in the other to municipal bodies constituted under the Act of 1916. Protection is given to these sovereign or statutory entities, because it is presumed that if the plaintiff has a case, upon service of the statutory notice and passage of the statutory time, the Government or the municipal body, as the case may be, may get an opportunity to accept the claim or so much of it as acceptable, eschewing unnecessary litigation for these Government bodies. The bar of the mandatory notice, therefore, either under Section 80 of the Code or Section 326 of the Act of 1916, is in the nature of a protection, available to the Government or the municipal body against abrupt commencement of action. The bar being in the nature of a protection, can always be waived, if not pleaded and proved. Once the bar under Section 326 of the Act of 1916 is not pleaded in the written statement, as already remarked, and during the subsequent course of proceedings also, in the opinion of this Court, it must be deemed to have been waived. It cannot be permitted to be raised for the first time in second appeal. In this connection, reference may be made to a decision of the Orissa High Court in State of Orissa and another v. Bamadeb Panigrahi and another, AIR 1971 Ori 227, where in the context of a notice under Section 80 of the Code, it was observed by R.N. Mishra, J. (as the learned Chief Justice of India then was):

"9. That a notice under Section 80 of the CPC is mandatory and the question is no more open to doubt in view of the decision of their Lordships of the Supreme Court in AIR 1966 SC 1068, Sawai Singhai v. Union of India. Position was always well settled and as early as 1927 their Lordships of the Judicial Committee had also stated so. The decision of their Lordships of the Judicial Committee in AIR 1927 PC 176, Bhagchand Dagdusa v. Secretary of State was approved in the aforesaid Supreme Court decision. But there is also another current of judicial thought which cannot be ignored. Courts have taken the view that the protection available under Section 80 of the CPC either to the State Government or a public officer can be waived and raising of a plea in the written statement and not joining an issue in the trial Court have been held to be waiver. In this Court there are two decisions directly on the point. In ILR (1959) Cut 258, Basudeb v. Padmanav, G.C. Das, J., held,

"When an objection that a suit is not maintainable in the absence of a notice under Section 80 is not raised in the trial Court and no issue is joined on this point and the suit is decreed the plea as to want of notice must be deemed to have been waived and when the plea is taken for the first time in appeal, the appellate Court is not entitled to dismiss the suit on the ground of absence of notice under Section 80."

10. The same view has been reiterated by Barman, J., as he then was, in (1962) 4 O.J.D. 13, Anadi Charan Parida v. Banamali Muduli, considering a similar question which arose with reference to Section 49 of the Madras Court of Wards Act (I of 1902) which has the same language as Section 80 of the CPC, Viswanath Sastri, J., in AIR 1949 Mad 747, Venkataswami v. Mahalakshmi, held:--

"Waiver is an abandonment of a right and may be express or implied from conduct and to be effectual must be by a person who has full knowledge of the facts. A person who has taken a plea based on the want of notice to which he is entitled, may waive it and allow the action to proceed as though the required notice had been given to him and this can be done so long as the action is pending and has not been finally determined."

11. A Full Bench of the Rajasthan High Court in AIR 1959 Raj 126 (FB), Rajasthan State v. Girdharilal adopted the self-same view. They quoted with approval the observations of their Lordships of the Judicial Committee in AIR 1947 PC 197, Vellayan Chettiar v. Government of the Province of Madras, where it was stated.

"There appears to their Lordships to be no reason why the notice required to be given under Section 80 should not be waived if the authority concerned thinks fit to waive it. It is for his protection that notice is required; if in the particular case he does not require that protection and says so, he can lawfully waive his right."

12. In AIR 1958 SC 274, Dhian Singh v. Union of India, their Lordships stated,

"It is relevant to note that neither was this point taken by the respondent in the written statement which it filed in answer to the appellant's claim nor was any issue framed in that behalf by the trial Court and this may justify the inference that the objection under Section 80 had been waived."

13. Mr. Justice Mitra of the Calcutta High Court in AIR 1960 Cal 270, Lalchand v. Union of India stated,

"If the provisions of law were waived in the course of a trial, they cannot afterwards be set up by way of objection to any step taken or about to be taken upon the footing of waiver. When the litigant had, without mistake induced by the opposite party, taken a particular position in the course of litigation, he must act consistently with it, especially, if to allow him to do otherwise would prejudice the opponent. If Mr. Ghosh therefore wanted to rely on the invalidity or insufficiency of the notice under Section 80 of the CPC it was for him to raise a specific issue on this question."

14. Reliance was placed by Mitra, J., on an earlier decision of their Court in (1907) ILR 84 Cal 257, Manindra Chandra Nandi v. Secretary of State. To the self-same effect there is an authority in (1913) 17 Cal WN 64, Bhola Nath Ray v. The Secretary of State for India in Council. In the present case a plea was taken in the written statement, but a suitable issue on this aspect was not raised nor has this point been canvassed in the trial Court. Though in the lower appellate court a ground was in the memorandum of appeal on this question it does not seem to have been canvassed, nor is it alleged in this Court that such a point was raised in the lower appellate court and the learned Appellate Judge has omitted to refer to it. In such circumstances and in view of this state of the legal position I think the contention that the suit is bad for notice cannot be permitted to be mooted. The telegram notice is Ext. 6. It is certainly not in conformity with the requirement of Section 80 of the CPC. Besides, the provision in the Code that "the plaint shall contain a statement that such notice has been so delivered or left" does not appear to have been satisfied. If this provision was deemed to be mandatory so that its compliance could not be waived by that category of defendant to whom Section 80 of the CPC applies, the position must have been different. But in view of the series of decisions referred to above, I do not propose to take a different view. The plea of want of notice cannot be permitted to be raised for the first time in second appeal to the prejudice of the plaintiff who is bound to lose if the plea is now raised and he is nonsuited on that technical score."

50. The principle of waiver with regard to a notice under Section 80 of the Code has also been approved by the Supreme Court in Dhian Singh Sobha Singh and another v. Union of India, AIR 1958 SC 274, when the plea was not taken in the Trial Court and no issue was framed. The decision in Dhian Singh Sobha Singh (supra) was followed by the Madras High Court in Munuswami Chetty and others

v. Commissioner, H.R.&C.E. (Admn.) Madras-34 and others, AIR 1993 Mad 144.

51. The issue again fell for consideration of the Supreme Court in the context of a case of waiver of notice under Section 80 of the Code in State of A.P. and others v. Pioneer Builders, A.P., (2006) 12 SCC 119. In State of A.P. v. Pioneer Builders, A.P. (supra), it was held:

"19. The High Court has held that having participated in the original proceedings, it was not now open to the State to raise a fresh issue as to the maintainability of the suit, in view of waiving the defect at the earliest point of time. The High Court has also observed that knowing fully well about non-issue of notice under Section 80 CPC the State had not raised such a plea in the written statement or additional written statement filed in the suit and, therefore, deemed to have waived the objection. It goes without saying that the question whether in fact, there is waiver or not necessarily depends on the facts of each case and is liable to be tried by the court, if raised, which, as noted above, is not the case here."

52. The principles that apply to a waiver of notice under Section 80 of the Code, in the opinion of this Court, apply to Section 326 of the Act 1916 as well. This Court, on the facts here, including the pleadings, has already remarked that it is a case where the plea regarding service of a notice under Section 326 of the Act of 1916 has not been raised at all in the written statement, or an issue framed about it. The plea has not been raised before the Lower Appellate Court. In the opinion of this Court, therefore, the plea regarding want of a notice under Section 326 of the Act of 1916, cannot be accepted, as the notice would stand waived.

53. Substantial Question of Law (a) is, therefore, answered in the manner that whereas the provisions of the Act of 1916 would apply to a Town Area Committee, including the provisions of Section 326 of the Act of 1916, that ought to be complied with, but in the absence of a plea regarding a bar to the suit for non-compliance of Section 326 aforesaid being raised in the written statement or at an early stage before the Trial Court, the bar would stand waived.

Substantial Question of Law (b)

54. It is argued by the learned Counsel for defendant No.1 that the suit property was recorded as Pajawa and, therefore, under Section 116 of the Act of 1916 would be deemed to have vested in defendant No.1. Learned Counsel for defendant No.1 has drawn the Court's attention to Section 116 of the Act of 1916, which reads:

"116. Property vested in Municipality. - Subject to any special reservation made by the State Government, all property of the nature hereinafter in this section specified and situated within the municipal area shall vest in and belong to the Municipality, and shall, with all other property which may become vested in the Municipality, be under its direction, management and control, that is to say, -

(a) all public town walls, gates, markets, slaughter-houses, manure and nightsoil depots and public buildings of every description which have been constructed or are maintained out of the municipal fund;

(b) all public streams, lakes, springs, tanks, wells and works for the supply, storages and distribution of water for public purposes and all bridges, buildings, engines, materials and things connected therewith or appertaining thereto, and also any adjacent land not being private property appertaining to any public tank or well;

(c) all public sewers, drains, culverts and water-courses, and all works, materials and things appertaining thereto;

(d) all dust, dung, nightsoil, ashes, refuse, animal matter or filth or rubbish of any kind, or dead bodies of animals collected by the Municipality from the streets, houses, privies, sewers, cesspools or elsewhere or deposited in places appointed by the Municipality under Section 273;

(e) all public lamps, lamp posts and apparatus connected therewith or appertaining thereto;

(f) all land or other property transferred to the Municipality by the Government or by gift, purchase or otherwise for local public purposes; and

(g) all public streets and the pavements, stones and other materials thereof, and also all trees, erections, materials, implements and things existing on or appertaining to such streets."

(emphasis by Court)

55. It is next submitted that the orders made in the mutation proceedings, that were finalized in the years 1974-75 against the plaintiffs, was sufficient to dislodge the plaintiffs' claim in this suit instituted in the year 1986. This is so because mutation entries are conclusive proof of possession over land and, therefore, on the date of institution of the suit in the year 1986, defendant No.1 must be held in possession. The subsequent conversion of the suit from one of permanent prohibitory injunction into a suit for demolition and possession, shows that the plaintiffs were not in actual physical possession of the suit property on the date the suit was instituted. Therefore, the suit must fail. It is also urged on behalf of defendant No.1 that the Lower Appellate Court has in manifest error passed a decree for preparation of a Kura, whereas the suit was not one for partition, but demolition and possession.

56. The learned Counsel for the plaintiffs submits that the suit property never vested in the Gaon Sabha, because all along it has been recorded a Pajawa and the Khatauni shows it to be a non-agricultural land. It always remained recorded in the name of the plaintiffs' predecessor-in-title and their ancestors. The suit property never having vested in the Gaon Sabha, upon extension of boundaries of defendant No.1, the suit property would not automatically vest in the said defendant. Learned Counsel for the plaintiffs has taken this Court through the findings of the Courts below regarding the mutation case and the relative record to say that Mutation Case No.8 of 1975-76 did not at all relate to Khasra No.216. He has invited the Court's attention to the findings recorded by the Trial Court while answering Issue No.1 and also the record. It is pointed out that the findings recorded in the mutation case related to other Khasra numbers. It is also argued that so far as the suit property is concerned, neither in law nor in point of fact, it ever vested in the State and through them in the Gaon Sabha; and, finally in defendant No.1.

57. The substantial question of law that has been raised is that the suit property by its nature being a Pajawa would automatically vest in the State and thence in the Gaon Sabha, from whom defendant No.1 acquires title. The submission, therefore, is that the suit property has to be treated as vested in the State on the date of vesting under the Uttar Pradesh Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1951 (for short, 'the Act of 1951') by operation of law, once it is held that the suit property is recorded as Pajawa. The alternate submission appears to be, though not very relevant to the substantial question of law under consideration, that even if the suit property is not vested in the Gaon Sabha, upon the publication of a notification under Section 4 of the Act of 1951, the said property would vest in defendant No.1 by virtue of Section 116 of the Act of 1916.

58. This Court must remark here that defendant No.1 has not been consistent about the manner in which title to the suit property came to be vested in them. It hardly brooks doubt that the suit property prior to the abolition of zamindari was vested in the ancestors of the plaintiffs/ predecessors-in-title, and, thereafter, remained recorded in the name of the plaintiffs' vendors. There seems to be a gasping struggle by defendant No.1 to prove that somehow or the other, the suit property has come to be vested in them. The Trial Court has noticed this in its findings on Issue Nos.1 and 2 both, which show that impermissible inconsistent pleas on non-existing evidence have been urged to establish defendant No.1's title and possession to the suit property. One is the case that the suit property being recorded a Pajawa, it vested in the State, free from all encumbrances upon the notification under Section 4 being issued under the Act of 1951. And, from the Gaon Sabha, it stood automatically vested in the successor local body, to wit, defendant No.1 upon the extension of its boundaries. It is this case, which is the subject matter of consideration in terms of Substantial Question of Law (b).

59. The other case is that the suit property was acquired by the State for defendant No.1 and that is how they have acquired title. This case of defendant No.1 has been rejected by the Trial Court and affirmed in appeal by the Lower Appellate Court with the remark that there is no evidence on record to show that proceedings for acquisition were ever taken relating to the suit property and compensation paid to the person entitled. In this regard, the testimony of DW-1 has been considered and the absence of any documentary evidence about acquisition noticed to record a failure of defendant No.1 to discharge their evidential burden on the point.

60. A corollary to the defendants' alternate pleas is that whichever way title and possession to the suit property came to the defendants, the name of defendant No.1 was mutated in the revenue records vide order dated 20.11.1975 passed in Mutation Case No.8 of 1975-76, whereagainst a revision carried by the predecessor-in-interest of the plaintiffs' vendors was dismissed by the Commissioner, Agra Division, Agra vide order dated 25.08.1976. This part of the case again is not squarely the subject matter of the substantial question built on the edifice of undisputed title claimed by defendant No.1, which has been acknowledged by the revenue authorities, as also their possession, by granting them mutation in the revenue records after mutating out the name of the plaintiffs' predecessor-in-interest, said to have been got fraudulently mutated. The evidence on this point too has been meticulously examined by both Courts below, with the Trial Court, in particular, returning a finding of fact that Mutation Case No.8 of 1975-76 relates to Khasra Nos.240, 241 and 242 that were acquired by defendant No.1 through the State, but there was neither acquisition of Khasra No.216 nor 218, nor was the mutation order passed in Mutation Case No.8 of 1975-76, one in relation to Khasra No.216. Since all these inconsistent pleas set up by defendant No.1, somehow to wrench title to the suit property from the plaintiffs, have been discarded by both Courts below consistently, this Court has remarked earlier that there has been a desperate effort to establish their title and possession by defendant No.1 - indeed a gasping one.

61. The other limb of the submission that the suit property even if not vested in the Gaon Sabha, upon publication of the notification under Section 4 of the Act of 1951, would vest in defendant No.1 by virtue of Section 116 of the Act of 1916, cannot be accepted. The reason is that Section 116(d), which has been pressed in aid by defendant No.1 to claim a deemed vesting of the suit property in them, relates to ashes, besides other things of a similar genre, like dust, dung, nightsoil- all that is found in streets, houses, privies, sewers, cesspools or elsewhere. This provision at the most may entitle defendant No.1 to claim rights over ash that was produced in the Pajawa when it was functional and dumped on the suit property or a part of it. Section 116(d) of the Act of 1916 does not lead to a vesting of any right or title relating to immovable property in a Nagar Palika or the Local Body, governed by the Act aforesaid. It relates to conferment of title upon the Local Body over certain kinds of waste products mentioned there. The contention of defendant No.1, therefore, that dumped ash on the suit property would lead to vesting of the suit property itself in the said defendant under Section 116(d) of the Act of 1916 cannot be countenanced.

62. Accordingly, the substantial question is answered in the manner that the entry in the revenue records for the suit property as Pajawa is not at all conclusive proof of automatic vesting thereof, either in defendant No.1, or the State, and further that for the said reason, the findings recorded by the Courts below on the issue of title and ownership to the suit property are unexceptionable in law.

B. Second Appeal No.26 of 2020

Substantial Question of Law (i)

63. It is argued by Mr. Preet Pal Singh Rathore, learned Counsel for the plaintiffs that the direction made by the Lower Appellate Court for the payment of costs of constructions raised by defendant Nos.4 to 7 on the part of the suit property, of which the plaintiffs have been directed to be given possession, is manifestly illegal in the absence of a cross-objection to the Trial Court's decree in that behalf by defendant No.4.

64. Learned Counsel appearing for defendant No.1, through whom defendant Nos.4 to 7 have claimed title and possession to the suit property and raised constructions thereon, argues that the power of the Appellate Court under Order XLI Rule 33 of the Code is wide enough to clothe it with the power to pass any decree or order, which ought to have been made. He submits, in short, that in order to do justice between parties, the power, even if no cross-objection is filed for the purpose by a respondent to the appeal under Order XLI Rule 22 of the Code, is decidedly available with the Court.

65. No doubt, the power of the Appellate Court is very wide under Order

XLI Rule 33 of the code and the jurisdiction of the Appellate Court to interfere with a decree, vary or modify it, as to a part of it, in the absence of a cross-objection under Order XLI Rule 22 of the Code, has been the subject matter of considerable judicial debate. Nevertheless, the power of the Appellate Court in the absence of a cross-objection by the respondent under Order XLI Rule 22 of the Code has been acknowledged of course subject to well settled restrictions. In this connection, reference may be made to the observations of the Supreme Court in K. Muthuswami Gounder v. N. Palaniappa Gounder, (1998) 7 SCC 327, where it has been held:

"12. Order 41 Rule 33 enables the appellate court to pass any decree or order which ought to have been made and to make such further order or decree as the case may be in favour of all or any of the parties even though (i) the appeal is as to part only of the decree; and (ii) such party or parties may not have filed an appeal. The necessary condition for exercising the power under the Rule is that the parties to the proceeding are before the court and the question raised properly arises (sic out of) one of the judgments of the lower court and in that event, the appellate court could consider any objection to any part of the order or decree of the court and set it right. We are fortified in this view by the decision of this Court in Mahant Dhangir v. Madan Mohan [1987 Supp SCC 528 : AIR 1988 SC 54] . No hard and fast rule can be laid down as to the circumstances under which the power can be exercised under Order 41 Rule 33 CPC and each case must depend upon its own facts. The Rule enables the appellate court to pass any order/decreed which ought to have been passed. The general principle is that a decree is binding on the parties to it until it is set aside in appropriate proceedings. Ordinarily the appellate court must not vary or reverse a decree/order in favour of a party who has not preferred any appeal and this Rule holds good notwithstanding Order 41 Rule 33 CPC. However, in exceptional cases, the Rule enables the appellate court to pass such decree or order as ought to have been passed even if such decree would be in favour of parties who have not filed any appeal....."

66. An authoritative statement of the law on the issue is to be found in Banarsi and others v. Ram Phal, (2003) 9 SCC 606, where their Lordships of the Supreme Court held:

"15. Rule 4 seeks to achieve one of the several objects sought to be achieved by Rule 33, that is, avoiding a situation of conflicting decrees coming into existence in the same suit. The abovesaid provisions confer power of the widest amplitude on the appellate court so as to do complete justice between the parties and such power is unfettered by consideration of facts like what is the subject-matter of the appeal, who has filed the appeal and whether the appeal is being dismissed, allowed or disposed of by modifying the judgment appealed against. While dismissing an appeal and though confirming the impugned decree, the appellate court may still direct passing of such decree or making of such order which ought to have been passed or made by the court below in accordance with the findings of fact and law arrived at by the court below and which it would have done had it been conscious of the error committed by it and noticed by the appellate court. While allowing the appeal or otherwise interfering with the decree or order appealed against, the appellate court may pass or make such further or other, decree or order, as the case would require being done, consistently with the findings arrived at by the appellate court. The object sought to be achieved by conferment of such power on the appellate court is to avoid inconsistency, inequity, inequality in reliefs granted to similarly placed parties and unworkable decree or order coming into existence. The overriding consideration is achieving the ends of justice. Wider the power, higher the need for caution and care while exercising the power. Usually the power under Rule 33 is exercised when the portion of the decree appealed against or the portion of the decree held liable to be set aside or interfered by the appellate court is so inseparably connected with the portion not appealed against or left untouched that for the reason of the latter portion being left untouched either injustice would result or inconsistent decrees would follow. The power is subject to at least three limitations: firstly, the power cannot be exercised to the prejudice or disadvantage of a person not a party before the court; secondly, a claim given up or lost cannot be revived; and thirdly, such part of the decree which essentially ought to have been appealed against or objected to by a party and which that party has permitted to achieve a finality cannot be reversed to the advantage of such party. A case where there are two reliefs prayed for and one is refused while the other one is granted and the former is not inseparably connected with or necessarily depending on the other, in an appeal against the latter, the former relief cannot be granted in favour of the respondent by the appellate court exercising power under Rule 33 of Order 41."

67. Here, this Court finds that the reason assigned by the Lower Appellate Court to vary the decree of demolition, and, instead, granting a decree for valuing those constructions as fall on the part of the land for which possession has been decreed, to be valued on the date these were raised and the price of constructions paid by the plaintiffs to defendant Nos.4 to 7, rests on the edifice that defendant Nos.4 to 7 raised these constructions under the belief that this part of the suit property was owned by defendant No.1. This belief, in turn, came about in consequence of the letter of the Collector, Mathura purporting to give this land to the Police.

68. The constructions were raised by defendant No.4 pending suit, which necessitated the amendment of the plaint seeking a decree for possession after demolition of those constructions. There was a temporary injunction in operation, and, obviously, on the other findings, which the Lower Appellate Court has not disturbed, the constructions in question were raised in violation of a temporary injunction passed by the Court. In any case, the constructions were raised pendente lite on the part of the suit property, of which both the Courts have found the plaintiffs to be holders of title, entitled to a decree of possession. The plaintiffs have also been found to be in possession of the suit property on the date the suit was instituted.

69. In view of the said findings, the Lower Appellate Court has not at all exercised powers within the settled parameters of Order XLI Rule 33 of the Code to vary the decree of demolition, substituting it by a direction to the plaintiffs to pay for the constructions raised. The constructions were, on the concurrent findings of the Courts below, raised without title by defendant No.4, disturbing the plaintiffs' possession. What inequity could arise by directing the demolition to be carried out is hardly discernible. A misplaced faith on the Collector's letter, transferring the property to the Police Department, is no reason to tax the plaintiffs with paying for an infraction committed by defendant No.4, employing or rather misusing the police power of the State available at his command and raising forcible constructions on property that did not belong to defendant No.1; and a fortiori, to defendant Nos.4 to 7. The decree passed by the Trial Court is not in any way inconsistent; rather, the decree of possession is pre-eminently compatible with a decree for demolition to remove all that encroachment that defendant No.4 has made pending suit.

70. There is an added reason not to vary the decree in any manner in favour of defendant Nos.4 to 7. Defendant No.4, out of these defendants, who contested the suit, did not appeal the Trial Court's decree. It was defendant No.1 alone that appealed the decree. Therefore, to direct some benefit to be given to defendant Nos.4 to 7 by the Lower Appellate Court is absolutely without basis. It would have been different if defendant No.4 had also appealed, may not by seeking relief of the kind that the Lower Appellate Court has granted them.

71. Before recording our conclusions on this question, this Court thinks that the record ought to be set straight by clarifying that the words 'counter claim', employed in the present substantial question of law, appear to be the product of a clerical error. In the considered opinion of this Court, the words 'counter claim' occurring in this question have to be read and understood as "cross-objection". In conclusions, this substantial question of law is answered in the negative and it is held that given the parameters, on which power under Order XLI Rule 33 of the Code is to be exercised, in the absence of a 'cross-objection' under Order XLI Rule 22 of the Code, the Lower Appellate Court was not at all justified in granting relief to the defendants (defendant Nos.4 to 7) to recover costs of the constructions from the plaintiffs, the former raised in encroachment.

72. Before curtains are drawn on this appeal, it must be mentioned in the passing that Substantial Question of Law (ii) recorded in the Court's order dated 06.01.2020 is not at all a question. That appears to be a direction to list the appeal for hearing. It has been shown as a question and assigned a number, again due to some kind of a clerical or typographical error.

73. In the result, Second Appeal No.108 of 2008 fails and is dismissed with costs. Second Appeal No.26 of 2020 is allowed with costs. The decree passed by the Lower Appellate Court to the extent it directs the plaintiffs to pay defendant Nos.4 to 7 costs of the constructions raised by them on the suit property is set aside and the Trial Court's decree is restored.

74. Let separate decrees be drawn up in both appeals in the aforesaid terms.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Siddhartha Varma, J.)

1. A Suit being Original Suit No. 126 of 1969 was filed by the plaintiffs Chandrapal, Sabhajeet and Tarbabu for the relief that the defendants no. 1 to 5 be dispossessed and the plaintiffs be given the possession of the property in question. A further prayer has been made that for the period the defendants no. 1 to 5 had remained in possession, they be directed to pay Rs. 25 per month as damages to the plaintiffs. Still further a prayer was made that since the house in which the defendants Jagdev, Chandradeep Singh, Saheb Lal Singh, Ram Swaroop Singh and Ramraj Singh were staying was sold to the plaintiffs by the defendants no. 7 to 10, the plaintiffs were to be declared the owners of the property in question from which they were wrongly out of possession due to proceedings under Section 145 of C.P.C.

2. The defendants no. 1 to 5 came up with a case in their written statement that in fact the defendant no. 6 Lalta Prasad on 15.1.1968 had sold the house in question to them and, therefore, they were the rightful owners and were in possession over the house in question.

3. The Suit was dismissed with regard to possession over the house in question and with regard to the relief that possession be handed over to the plaintiffs but was decreed to the extent that the defendants no. 7 and 8 were ordered to pay back Rs. 700/- to the plaintiffs and the defendants no. 9 and 10 were ordered to pay to the plaintiffs Rs. 2,000/-. The defendants no. 7 and 8, who were aggrieved by the fact that their sale deeds had been declared bad in law and that they were required to return Rs. 700/-, filed a First Appeal being First Appeal No. 47 of 1977. This appeal was filed against the plaintiffs. The First Appellate Court, despite the fact that the plaintiffs had not filed any appeal, decreed the Suit. It held that since the sale deed by which Hazari Lal and Shantu Lal had sold their 1/3rd portion of the property to the plaintiffs and also the sale deed dated 16.1.1968 by which Ram Deen and Ram Ashrey had sold their 2/3rd portion of the house in question to the plaintiffs were found to be valid sale deeds, the suit was to be decreed in toto. Further the plaintiffs were also directed to take possession of the house in question over which the defendants no. 1 to 5 were alleged to be in possession. The defendants no. 1 to 4 Jagdev, Chandrapal Singh, Saheb Lal Singh and Ram Swaroop have filed the instant Second Appeal.

4. The Second Appeal was admitted on the substantial question of law as to whether when the sale deeds dated 11.6.1873 and of 25.6.1868 related to another house as per their boundaries then could the First Appellate Court decree the appeal?

5. Before proceeding with the Appeal further, it shall be pertinent to see whether the grounds on which the First Appellate Court had allowed the appeal and had decreed the Suit were available to it. The

First Appeal was filed only by the defendants no. 7 and 8 who had, in fact, alleged that they had sold their 1/3rd portion of the property on 9.1.1968 for a sum of Rs. 700/- and, therefore, they were not liable to return Rs. 700/-. The Appellate Court while hearing the Appeal found that the grand father of the defendants no. 7 and 8 had purchased the property from one Syyed Azhan Hussain on 11.6.1873 and, therefore, this property belonged to them and they alone could have sold the property. The First Appellate Court had also taken note of the fact that the defendant no.6 Lalta Prasad in paragraph no. 12 of his cross-examination had mentioned that his ancestors had only one house and that too was situate in village - Khurhand and to the best of his knowledge his ancestors had only owned one house in the village. On the basis of this fact it was held that when ancestors of Lalta Prasad had only one property and that too was in village Khurhand, then the property which was sold on 15.1.1968 by the defendant no. 6 was a meaningless sale, specially when the ancestors had already sold off the property.

6. The Appellate Court while allowing the Appeal had used its powers under Order 41 Rule 33 of the C.P.C. and had decreed the Suit of the plaintiffs to the extent that not only was the sale deed by Hazari Lal and Shantu Lal considered to be a proper sale deed but it had also declared the sale deed executed by the defendants no. 9 and 10, namely, Ramdeen and Ramashrey dated 16.1.1968 a valid one.

7. Aggrieved by the judgement and decree of the First Appellate Court, the defendants Jagdev Singh, Chandrapal Singh, Saheb Lal Singh and Ram Swaroop Singh have filed the instant Second Appeal.

8. Learned counsel for the appellants while arguing the Appeal vehemently submitted that when the boundaries of the sale deed dated 11.6.1873 and that of 25.6.1886 and of the house which was sold did not match then the First Appellate Court definitely erred in law. Learned counsel for the appellant also argued that when the First Appeal was filed by the defendants no. 7 and 8 then the relief which was claimed by them alone ought to have been looked into and granted to them, if at all the first appeal was being allowed. The relief of possession which had been granted to the plaintiff over the entire property, including the property sold by the defendants no. 9 to 10, could not have been granted by the First Appellate Court.

9. Learned counsel for the appellant stated that the First Appellate Court set up a new case for the plaintiff which was never pleaded and proved by them.

10. The Appellate Court by invoking the provisions of Order 41 Rule 33 of the C.P.C. carved out a new case for the plaintiffs and wrongly held that the disputed house did not exist on the north of the house of Lalta Prasad, the defendant no.6. Learned counsel for the appellant, therefore, submitted that the pleadings and proof were at variance with each other. He submitted that under Order 6 Rule 2 C.P.C. there cannot be any variance between pleadings and proof. Learned counsel relied upon 2003 (8) SCC 740 (Kashi Nath (dead) through Lrs vs. Jaganath) and 2017 (3) SCC 702 (Executive Officer, Arulmigu Chokkanatha Swamy Koil, Trust, Virudhunagar vs. Chandran and others)

11. Still further learned counsel for the appellant submitted that the First Appellate Court committed a blunder by invoking the provision of Order 41 Rule 33 of the C.P.C. and relied upon 2019 (2) SCC 684 : Akhil Bhartvarshiya Marwari Agarwal Jatiya Kosh and others vs. Brijlal Tibrewal and others; 2016 (13) SCC 165 : Lakshmanan and others vs. G. Ayyasamy; 2003 (9) SCC 606 : Banarsi and others vs. Ram Phal; AIR 1978 SC 725 : Tummalla Atchaiah vs. Venka Narasingarao; AIR 1965 SC 1874 : (1. Nirmala Bala Ghose and another in Civil Appeals Nos. 966 and 968 of 1964, 2. Nirmala Bala Ghose in Civil Appeal No. 967 of 1964 vs. Balai Chand Ghose in Civil Appeals Nos. 996 and 968 of 1964, 2. Bala Chand Ghose and others in Civil Appeals Nos. 967 of 1964); AIR 1987 Kerala 94 : Kuttan Sudhakaran vs. Padmavathi Amma Laila Bai and others; AIR 1974 Madras 301 : S. Mohamed Ismail and others vs. M.S. Mohamed Essa and others and AIR 1973 Allahabad 63 : Budhan v. Lala Harbans Lal.

12. He, therefore, submitted that the First Appellate Court erred in passing the impugned judgements.

13. Having heard the learned counsel for the appellant, this Court is of the view that so far as the matching of the boundaries of the sale deed dated 11.6.1873 and the sale deed of the year 1886 (exhibit-5) with that of the sale deed dated 15.1.1968, 9.1.1968 and 16.1.1968 is concerned, the First Appellate Court has definitely in paragraphs no. 9 of its judgement taken all precaution to match the boundaries and it has found that the boundaries of the house which was purchased by the grand father of the defendants no. 7 and 8 was matching with the boundaries of the house which was in dispute. The Court, therefore, finds that the finding with regard to the matching of boundaries is concerned is concluded by findings of fact. However, this Court definitely is of the view that the finding with regard to the sale deed dated 16.1.1968 executed by the defendants no. 9 to 10 could not have been given. Also the relief with regard to return of Rs. 2000/- had attained finality and could not have been lightly disturbed. So far as the decree which has been passed by the First Appellate with regard to dispossession of the defendants no. 1 to 5 is concerned it cannot be interfered with as the First Appellate Court has very sensibly found that the simple allowing the first appeal vis-a-vis the defendants no. 7 and 8 would be of no avail and the decree would be a futile decree and therefore by using its powers under Order 41 Rule 33 of the C.P.C. it had also decreed the Suit to the extent that the defendants no. 1 to 5 would be dispossessed from the property which was sold to the plaintiffs. However, the decree of possession is being modified to the extent that possession would be given to the plaintiffs only vis-a-vis the property which was sold to them by the sale deed dated 9.1.1968. The property which was sold by the defendants no. 9 to 10 by their sale deed, however, would not be given to the plaintiffs. The Second Appeal is, therefore, accordingly, partly allowed.

14. Under the Order 41 Rule 33 of the C.P.C. the Appellate Court has the power to pass any decree and to make any order which ought to have been passed and thus power can be exercised by the Appellate Court notwithstanding that the Appeal is with regard to only a part of the decree. In the instant case, when the First Appellate Court was finding that the sale deed dated 9.1.1968 was a valid one and when the amount of Rs. 700/- was not being returned to the plaintiff then it was in the fitness of things that the plaintiffs should also get possession over the 1/3rd portion of the house which was sold by the defendants no. 7 and 8 to the plaintiffs. However, since the First Appellate Court had exceeded its jurisdiction by interfering with the decree which had attained finality vis-a-vis defendants no. 9 to 10, the decree has been modified.

15. With the above observations, the Second Appeal is partly allowed.

A. Commercial Law – Urgent interim relief - Commercial Courts Act, 2015- Section 12(A)(1) - Contemplation of urgent interim relief for the purpose of Section 12 A of the Commercial Courts Act 2015 is to be considered by the court concerned only as per averments made in plaint or temporary injunction application. (Para 18)

B. It is not solely the plaintiff who is the only arbiter of urgent interim relief, but it is also the Court concerned which has to look into the factor of urgent interim relief in terms of relief sought in plaint or in the application for temporary injunction. (Para 17)

A suit which does not 'contemplate' any urgent interim relief under the Act cannot be instituted unless the plaintiff exhausts remedy of pre institution mediation in terms of Section 12 A of the Act. For a suit to be maintainable without the pre institution mediation and settlement as such, would require that it contemplates any urgent interim relief. The word 'contemplate' would be quite relevant for the purposes of examining the provisions and applicability of Section 12 A of the Act. (Para 16)

C. The aspect as to whether a suit has been filed after a considerable delay, would not be a criteria required to determine urgent interim relief. There may be instances when an order of termination has been passed but is not enforced for a certain length of time and it is only its enforcement that would require filing of a suit, which would thus contemplate urgent interim relief being sought for in the plaint. (Para 16)

D. Words & Phrases – ‘Contemplate’ - The word 'contemplate' would necessarily mean examination of relief prayed for in the suit as well as urgency shown in the plaint w.r.t. such relief being sought. The contemplation of urgent interim relief as such, would be dependant on the ground of said interim relief. For the purposes of waiver of mandatory provision of Section 12A as such, it is for the Court to determine contemplation of urgent interim relief. (Para 16)

In the present facts and circumstances although the suit has been filed after almost one and a half months of the termination of contract but since it indicates urgent interim relief against the clause of termination of contract, being invoked against plaintiff, therefore when the plaint as such contemplates urgent interim relief and therefore mandatory provisions pertaining to pre institution mediation have been rightly waived by the Commercial Court. As such, no exception can be taken to the order impugned. (Para 19)

Present petition challenges the order dated 13.03.2023, passed by Commercial Court rejecting preliminary objections raised by petitioner/defendant regarding maintainability of suit on the ground that pre-institution remedy of mediation as contemplated u/s 12(A)(1) of the Commercial Courts Act 2015 having not been undertaken, without which suit in terms of the aforesaid provisions is barred.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manish Mathur, J.)

1. Supplementary affidavit filed on behalf of opposite party no. 2 is taken on record.

2. Heard Mr. Ashok Kumar Singh, learned counsel for petitioner and Mr. Siddharth Nandwani, learned counsel for opposite party no. 2.

3. Notice to opposite party no. 1 stands dispensed with as it is proforma party.

4. Petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India has been filed raising challenge to order dated 13.03.2023 passed by the Commercial Court in Civil Suit No. 275 of 2022 rejecting preliminary objections raised by petitioner/defendant regarding maintainability of suit on the ground that pre-institution remedy of mediation as contemplated under Section 12 (A) (1) of the Commercial Courts Act 2015 having not been undertaken, without which suit in terms of the aforesaid provisions is barred.

5. Learned counsel for petitioner has placed reliance on judgment rendered by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of M/s. Patil Automation Private Limited and others versus Rakheja Engineers Private Limited reported in 2022 (10) SCC (1) to submit that the provisions of Section 12 A(1) of the aforesaid act have been held to be mandatory in nature and therefore, any suit filed before the Commercial Court in terms of the Act of 2015 without availing the remedy of Section 12 A of pre institution mediation is liable to be rejected. It is further submitted that in the present case, a contract was entered into between the parties on 01.12.2021 with regard to supply, transportation, installation and commissioning of new unipols at the retail outlets/KSK's of the petitioner. It is submitted that due to unfulfilment of terms and conditions of contract, show cause notice was issued to the opposite party no. 2 and after considering its reply, the contract was terminated on 25.10.2022. It is submitted that suit challenging the termination order has been filed only on 08.12.2022 and as such, there is no question of any urgency in the case due to which waiver of provisions of Section 12 A(1) of the Act of 2015 would not be required. It is submitted that it was in these circumstances that preliminary objections were filed before the Court concerned and have been rejected by means of impugned order on the ground that since the plaintiff has sought urgent interim relief, therefore, the suit would not be barred in terms of Section 12 A of the Act. Learned counsel has placed reliance on judgment rendered by High Court of Madras in the case of M/s Microlabs Limited versus Mr. A.Santosh , C.S (Comm. Div) No. 185 of 2022 to buttress his submissions.

6. Learned counsel appearing for opposite party no. 2 has refuted submissions advanced by learned counsel for petitioner with the submission that although the contract was terminated on 08.12.2022 but the same has also invoked provisions of clause 6.13 (b) of the contract pertaining to price adjustments for delays with the submissions that in pursuance of termination of contract, further action has been contemplated against the answering opposite party including forfeiting of security deposits, holiday listing or initiating any other penal action as deemed fit by Indian Oil Corporation/petitioner. It is thus submitted that it was only when the petitioner started initiating action against the opposite party no. 2 that the suit was filed along with an application for temporary injunction for restraining the petitioner/defendant from invoking the termination letter. Learned counsel has adverted to judgment rendered in the case of M/s. Patil Automation Private Limited and others versus Rakheja Engineers Private Limited reported in 2022 (10) SCC (1) as well as judgment of Division Bench of the Delhi High Court in the case of Chandra Kishor Chaurasiya versus R A Perfumery Works Private Limited (2022/DHC/004454 decided on 27.10.2022) to buttress his submissions.

7. In view of submissions advanced, the following question would require to be adjudicated:

Whether contemplation of urgent interim relief as envisaged under Section 12 A of the Commercial Courts Act 2015 requires consideration by the Court only as per averments made in the plaint/Temporary Injunction application or other incidental aspects as well?

8. Upon consideration of submissions advanced by learned counsel for parties and perusal of material on record, it is evident and undisputed that termination order was issued to the answering opposite party on 25.10.2022 whereafter suit was filed on 08.12.2022 along with an application for grant of temporary injunction. The petitioner had filed preliminary objection regarding maintainability of suit since pre institution mediation as contemplated under Section 12 A of the Act of 2015 was not availed of. The said application has been rejected by means of impugned order holding that since plaintiff has sought urgent interim relief, necessity for exhausting the remedy of pre institution mediation would not bar suit proceedings. It has also been held that the use of words 'contemplate any urgent interim relief ' are used to qualify the category of a suit which is determined solely on the frame of plaint and relief sought and since plaintiff is the sole determinant of the pleadings and relief sought, it was held that suit involves urgent interim relief due to which it would not be barred in terms of Section 12 A of the Act of 2015.

9. For the purpose of adjudication of aforesaid question, it would be necessary to refer to the termination letter dated 25.10.2022 which clearly stipulates invocation of clause 6.13 (b) of the special terms and conditions of contract of tender document which has been indicated hereinabove. The plaint filed by answering opposite party has sought the relief of declaration of termination letter dated 25.10.2022 as null and void with a decree being sought for permanent and mandatory injunction seeking to restrain the defendant from terminating the contract dated 01.12.2021 and further a decree injunction the defendant, their assigns, representatives etc from invoking the termination letter dated 25.10.2022. An application for temporary injunction has also been filed with the prayer to restrain the defendant, their assigns etc from invoking the termination letter dated 25.10.2022.

10. Clearly, the prayer as made not only in the plaint but also in the application for temporary injunction is to the effect that the defendants should be restrained/injuncted from invoking the termination letter dated 25.10.2022. The aforesaid termination letter clearly makes reference to clause 6.13 of the general conditions of contract with clause (b) pertaining to other action to be taken against the vendor including forfeiting of security deposits, holiday listing or initiating any other penal action as deemed fit by the Indian Oil Corporation (I.O.C). From the prayer so made and especially the reference made to clause 6.13 (b) of the general terms of contract, urgency is clearly borne out.

11. However, learned counsel for petitioner has specifically adverted to the fact that the plaint has been filed after almost one and a half months of issuance of the termination letter, which in itself does not indicate any urgency in the case to waive of the mandatory condition of Section 12 A of the Act of 2015.

12. For proper appreciation of the aforesaid submissions, it is necessary to advert to the judgment rendered in the case of Patil Automation (Supra) in which the relevant paragraphs are as follows:

88. "In Section 12 A, the bar of institution of the suit is applicable only in case in which plaintiff does not comtenplate urgent interim relief. The situation is akin to what is contemplated in Section 80(1) CPC. In other words, the suit under the Act which does not contemplate urgent interim relief is like a suit covered by Section 80 (1) CPC which does not project the need for any urgent or interim relief. In regard to a suit covered under Section 12-A of the Commercial Courts Act, namely, in a suit where interim relif is not contemplated, there can be no substantial compliance by way of post institution reference to mediation. The argument of the plaintiff overlooks the object apart from the language used besides the design and scheme of the law. It will, if accepted, lead to courts also spending their invaluable time on such matters which follow from adjournments, objections and hearings. There is not need to adopt such a course."

99.1 " The Act did not originally contain Section 12-A. It is by amendment in the year 2018 that Section 12-A was inserted. The Statement of Objects and Reasons are explicit that Section 12-A was contemplated as compulsory. The object of the Act and the Amending Act of 2018, unerringly point to at least partly foisting compulsory mediation on a plaintiff who does not contemplate urgent interim relief. The provisions has been contemplated only with reference to plaintiffs who do not contemplate urgent interim relief. The legislature has taken care to expressly exclude the period undergone during mediation for reckoning limitation under the Limitation Act, 1963. The object is clear."

13. In the case of M/s Microlabs Limited, High Court at Madras has held that since suit was presented nearly four months after the service of cease and desist notice and no steps (Section 12 A) was taken during this period, it was held that there was no urgency clause for waiving of provisions of Section 12 A of the act.

14. On the other hand, the issue has also been adverted to by High Court at Delhi in the case of Chandra Kishor Chaurasiya (supra) in which after examining the mandate of law of case in Patil Automation Private Limited (supra) and the provisions of Section 12 A of the Act of 2015, it has been held that the question whether plaintiff desires any urgent relief is to be decided solely by the plaintiff while instituting a suit and it is not relevant to determine whether plaintiff was required to exhaust the remedy of pre institution mediation since grant of urgent interim relief is not contingent on whether the Court accedes to the plaintiff's request for interim relief or not. It has been held that the terminology of Section 12 A is used to qualify category of a suit which is to be determined solely on the frame of plaint and relief sought.

15. With regard to question required to be determined, it would be apposite to refer to Section 12 A of the Act, which is as follows:

'A suit which does not contemplate any urgent interim relief under this Act, shall not be instituted unless the plaintiff exhausts the remedy of pre institution mediation in accordance with such manner and procedure as may be prescribed by rules made by the Central Government.'

16. Upon evaluation of aforesaid judgments and particularly the terminology used in Section 12 A of the Act of 2015, it is evident that a suit which does not 'contemplate' any urgent interim relief under the Act cannot be instituted unless the plaintiff exhausts remedy of pre institution mediation in terms of Section 12 A of the Act. For a suit to be maintainable without the pre institution mediation and settlement as such, would require that it contemplates any urgent interim relief. In the considered opinion of this Court, the word 'contemplate' would be quite relevant for the purposes of examining the provisions and applicability of Section 12 A of the Act. The word 'contemplate' would necessarily mean examination of relief prayed for in the suit as well as urgency shown in the plaint with regard to such relief being sought. The contemplation of urgent interim relief as such, would be dependant on the ground of said interim relief. For the purposes of waiver of mandatory provision of Section 12 A of the act of 2015 as such, it is for the Court to determine contemplation of urgent interim relief. The aspect as to whether a suit has been filed after a considerable delay, would not be a criteria required to determine urgent interim relief. There may be instances when an order of termination has been passed but is not enforced for a certain length of time and it is only its enforcement that would require filing of a suit, which would thus contemplate urgent interim relief being sought for in the plaint.

17. To that extent, this Court is in respectful agreement with the judgment rendered by the High Court at Delhi. Further, in the considered opinion of this Court, it is not solely the plaintiff who is the only arbiter of urgent interim relief, but it is also the Court concerned which has to look into the factor of urgent interim relief in terms of relief sought in plaint or in the application for temporary injunction.

18. In view of discussion made hereinabove, the question framed is answered that contemplation of urgent interim relief for the purpose of Section 12 A of the Commercial Courts Act 2015 is to be considered by the court concerned only as per averments made in plaint or temporary injunction application.

19. Upon applicability of the aforesaid judgments and discussions, in the present facts and circumstances although the suit has been filed after almost one and a half months of the termination of contract but since it indicates urgent interim relief particularly in view of clause 6.13 being invoked against plaintiff, in the considered opinion of this Court, the plaint as such contemplates urgent interim relief and therefore mandatory provisions pertaining to pre institution mediation have been rightly waived by the Commercial Court. As such, no exception can be taken to the order impugned.

20. Resultantly, the petition being devoid of merit is dismissed. Parties to bear their own cost.

Matters Under Article 227 No. 2658 of 2023 (CIVIL)

Ramesh Duggal @ Pappu ...Petitioner
Versus

Pt. Ram Shanker Mishra Trust Chief Office,
Kanpur Nagar ...Respondent

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Sri Shesh Kumar Srivastava

Counsel for the Respondents:
Sri Shantanu Srivastava

A. Civil Law – Amendment of pleadings – Ejectment and Recovery of damages - Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887 - Sections 26 & 25 - Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 - Order VI Rule 17 - Due diligence is a very important factor while allowing amendment application u/Order VI Rule 17 of CPC and applicant has to prove that he has made all possible efforts, but even after that, he could not know about the documents or facts which are most relevant to decide the controversy. In case documents or facts are available or within the knowledge of petitioner, at any stage, if any application is filed, same cannot be allowed as it would not fulfil the parameter of due diligence as provided in Order VI Rule 17 of CPC. (Para 23)

The conduct of petitioner-defendant clearly shows that trust deed was very well present from the date of filing of written statement and as per admission of petitioner-defendant, it was in his knowledge from 07.12.2017, but he has never filed any application u/Order VI Rule 17 of CPC, which shows that there is absolute lack of due diligence. In fact contrary to that, having knowledge of each and every facts, petitioner-defendant has never raised before the court by the way of written statement or application u/Order VI Rule 17 of CPC and once the suit has been decided against him, with an ulterior motive, an application has been filed. Therefore, this Court is of the view that such amendment application doesn't fulfill the condition of Order VI Rule 17 of CPC as it is having absolute lack of due diligence rather it is a case of negligence as petitioner-defendant was sleeping over the matter for a long time without any explanation. (Para 17, 18)

B. Right accrued based on admission of facts cannot be taken back by the way of allowing amendment application withdrawing the admission earlier given.

In the present case, no doubt, the suit is allowed based upon the admission of petitioner-defendant about tenant landlord relationship with respondent-plaintiff and once such amendment application is allowed at a very belated stage without any proper reason, would certainly deprive the rights of plaintiff-respondent, which accrued in his favour vide judgment and order dated 08.07.2022. Therefore, on this issue too, such amendment application cannot be allowed. (Para 27)

C. Words and Phrases – 'Due diligence' -

The words "due diligence" have not been defined in the Code. According to Oxford Dictionary (Edn. 2006), the word "diligence" means careful and persistent application or effort. "Diligent" means careful and steady in application to one's work and duties, showing care and effort. As per Black's Law Dictionary (18th Edn.), "diligence" means a continual effort to accomplish something, care; caution; the attention and care required from a person in a given situation. "Due diligence" means the diligence reasonably expected from, and ordinarily exercised by a person who seeks to satisfy a legal requirement or to discharge an obligation. According to Words and Phrases by Drain- Dyspnea (Permanent Edn. 13-A) "due diligence", in law, means doing everything reasonable, not everything possible. "Due diligence" means reasonable diligence; it means such diligence as a prudent man would exercise in the conduct of his own affairs. (Para 21)

Present case is the best example of negligence and not of due diligence and also withdrawal of right accrued to the petitioner in light of admission made in written statement, which cannot be permitted. Therefore, no case is made out to interfere with the impugned order dated 10.02.2023 passed by District Judge, Kanpur Nagar. (Para 28)

Present petition challenges order dated 10.02.2023, passed by District Judge, Kanpur Nagar, by which, application 27-Ga filed u/Order VI Rule 17 of CPC in S.C.C. Revision No. 187 of 2022 was rejected.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Neeraj Tiwari, J.)

1. Heard Sri Shesh Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for petitioner and Sri Shantanu Srivastava, learned counsel for respondent.

2. Present petition has been filed challenging the order dated 10.02.2023 passed by District Judge, Kanpur Nagar, by which, application 27-Ga filed under Order VI Rule 17 of CPC in S.C.C. Revision No. 187 of 2022 was rejected.

3. Since, only legal question is involved in the present petition, therefore, with the consent of parties without inviting for affidavits, petition is being decided at the admission stage itself.

4. Brief facts of the case are as follows. The SCC Suit No. 149 of 2015 was filed for ejectment and recovery of damages under Section 26 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1887") in which written statement was filed by the petitioner-defendant denying the allegations, but accepting the respondent-plaintiff as landlord. The said suit was ex parte decreed vide order dated 08.07.2022. Against the order dated 08.07.2022, petitioner-defendant has filed Revision under Section 25 of Act, 1887 before District Judge, Kanpur Nagar. It is undisputed that petitioner-defendant was a tenant of Pt. Ram Shanker Mishra Trust established by a duly registered trust deed. Case of petitioner-defendant is that on 07.12.2021, trust deed was filed by respondent-plaintiff, then petitioner-defendant could know that Sri Uma Shanker Mishra respondent-plaintiff is a forged trustee and fraudulently presenting himself as Sarvarakaar collecting amount of rent also. After knowing this fact, petitioner-defendant has filed application 27-Ga dated 15.12.2022 under Order VI Rule 17 of CPC for amendment in written statement.

5. Learned counsel for petitioner submitted that under the provisions of Order VI Rule 17 of Civil Procedure Code, 1908 (hereinafter referred to as "CPC"), amendment may be sought at any stage of proceeding and it is required on the part of Court concerned to decide the application on merits.

6. He further submitted that in written statement, under bonafide belief, petitioner has accepted the respondent-plaintiff as landlord and he could know about the trust deed only on 07.12.2017, which transpires that respondent is a forged trustee presenting himself as Sarvarakaar and not a landlord. Thereafter in the year 2022, petitioner-defendant has moved application 27-Ga under Order VI Rule 17 of CPC for amendment in his written statement. It is further submitted that once petitioner-defendant has disputed the ownership/landlordship, it is required on the part of Revisional Court to allow the application and invite objection upon the same, thereafter proceed to decide the case on merits.

7. He next submitted that once respondent-plaintiff is not a landlord, the suit filed by him is not maintainable and it's a legal issue goes to the roots of the controversy, therefore, it is required on the part of Revisional Court to allow the amendment application even at the revisional stage.

8. It is further submitted that in light of settled provisions of law, Revisional Court must have been very liberal while considering amendment application under Order VI Rule 17 of CPC for the purpose of substantial justice. In support of his contention, he has placed reliance upon the judgments of Apex Court as well as this Court in the matters of Surendra Kumar Sharma vs. Makhan Singh; 2009 (3) ARC 427, B.K.N. Pillai vs. P. Pillai; Civil Appeal No. 7222-23 of 1999 (arising out of S.L.P. (Civil) No. 14540-14541 of 1999) decided on December 13, 1999, Ganpatlal Gupta and others vs. Additional District Judge, Deoria and others; Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 50175 of 1999 decided on 21.03.2003 and Kamal Regmi Sharma and others vs. Nepal Bank Limited and others (Civil Revision No. 511 of 1986 decided on 14.10.1986.

9. Sri Shantanu Srivastava, learned counsel for respondent submitted that it is a summary proceeding and after final disposal of suit, no such amendment may be allowed. He further pointed out that Order VI Rule 17 of CPC clearly provides that no application for amendment shall be allowed after the trial has commenced, unless the Court comes to the conclusion that in spite of due diligence, the party could not have raised the matter before the commencement of trial. The trust deed was very well in existence since the the date of tenancy as claimed by the petitioner-defendant and it is required on his part to aver the same in his written statement, if it is in his favour. Even as per case of petitioner-defendant itself, he could know about the trust deed only on 07.12.2017, he must have file application under Order VI Rule 17 of CPC immediately thereafter and not after final disposal of the suit on 08.07.2022 and on 15.12.2022 during pendency of SCC revision under the advice of counsel. It clearly transpires that conditions of due diligence have not been fulfilled and only purpose to file application is to delay the proceeding. He further submitted that filing of amendment application at such belated stage does not meet the conditions of due diligence as provided in Order VI Rule 17 of CPC, therefore, he may not file amendment application before the Revisional Court at a very belated stage. In support of his contention, he has placed reliance upon the judgments of this Court passed in Hari Shanker and 5 ors. vs. Bhagwati Prasad Mishra; 2014 0 Supreme (All) 3127, decided on 30.10.2014 and Hari Narayan v. Shanti Devi; 2019 SCC OnLine All 2380, decided on 28.05.2019.

10. He next submitted that once, on the basis of admission, any right accrued in favour of plaintiff cannot be taken away by the way of filing amendment application after judgment and decree. In support of his contention, he has placed reliance upon the judgment of this Court in the matter of Raj Kumar Mulani vs. Ramesh Kumar Hemrajani; 2019 0 Supreme(All) 1604, decided on 19.09.2019.

11. He also submitted that against the ex parte decree, petitioner has filed application under Order IX Rule 13 of CPC, which was dismissed by S.C.C Court, Kanpur Nagar vide order dated 10.01.2023. He has produced the certified copy of order dated 10.01.2023, which is taken on record.

12. Being confronted by the Court, learned counsel for petitioner could not explain the delay for filing of amendment application after more than five years from the date of knowledge of sale deed as per his own admission. He also could not demonstrate from the trust deed or from any record as to why respondent-plaintiff is not the Sarvarakaar and cannot maintain the suit. He only submitted that onus is upon the plaintiff-respondent to prove his ownership.

13. I have considered the submissions advanced by counsel for parties and perused the records as well as judgments cited above.

14. Above noted facts are not disputed between the parties.

15. Basic issue before this Court is about the interpretation of Order VI Rule 17 of CPC, which is quoted here:—

"[17. Amendment of pleadings.

- The Court may at any stage of the proceedings allow either party to alter or amend his pleading in such manner and on such terms as may be just, and all such amendments shall be made as may be necessary for the purpose of determining the real questions in controversy between the parties:

Provided that no application for amendment shall be allowed after the trial has commenced, unless the Court comes to the conclusion that in spite of due diligence, the party could not have raised the matter before the commencement of trial.]"

16. From the perusal of Order VI Rule 17 of CPC, it is clear that amendment application may be allowed before commencement of trial, but in case, Court is of the view that in spite of due diligence, party could not have raised the matter before the commencement of trial, application may be allowed. In the present case, it is required on the part of Court to see about the due diligence made by petitioner-defendant to file amendment application based upon date of knowledge of trust deed and also the effect of amendment upon the judgment and decree of suit, if allowed.

17. First of all, I am coming to the question of due diligence made by the petitioner. It is undisputed that trust deed was very well in existence on the date of filing of suit as well as written statement, therefore, it is required on the part of petitioner-defendant to made averment about the same, while filing written statement and also place before the Court as evidence. Here in written statement, it has been accepted by the petitioner-defendant that respondent-plaintiff is landlord and even as per his own case, having knowledge of trust deed from 07.12.2017, he has not filed any application under Order VI Rule 17 of CPC for about five years. The suit was decided vide order dated 08.07.2022 and thereafter, revision was also filed and in revision too, no such ground has been taken, but at a very belated stage, under the advice of counsel, application 27-Ga has been filed under Order VI Rule 17 CPC.

18. The conduct of petitioner-defendant clearly shows that trust deed was very well present from the date of filing of written statement and as per admission of petitioner-defendant, it was in his knowledge from 07.12.2017, but he has never filed any application under Order VI Rule 17 of CPC, which shows that there is absolute lack of due diligence. In fact contrary to that, having knowledge of each and every facts, petitioner-defendant has never raised before the court by the way of written statement or application under Order VI Rule 17 of CPC and once the suit has been decided against him, with an ulterior motive, an application has been filed. Therefore, this Court is of the view that such amendment application does not fulfil the condition of Order VI Rule 17 of CPC as it is having absolute lack of due diligence rather it is a case of negligence as petitioner-defendant was sleeping over the matter for a long time without any explanation.

19. In the judgments so relied upon by learned counsel for petitioner-defendant, Courts have only considered as to whether at a very belated stage, amendment may be allowed or not and Courts have given findings that for the purpose of substantive justice, delay cannot be a ground for rejection.

20. This case is not a case of delay as the trust deed was well in existence from the date of filing of written statement and as per admission of petitioner-defendant also, it is in his knowledge from 07.12.2017, but amendment application has not been filed. In fact, it is a case where the conditions of due diligence provided under Order VI Rule 17 of CPC has not been fulfilled and without any justification, amendment application has been filed at revisional stage after final judgment and order dated 08.07.2022 passed in suit. Therefore, judgments so relied upon by learned counsel for petitioner-defendant shall not come in the rescue of petitioner-defendant as it is case of negligence and not of bona fide delay.

21. I have perused the judgment passed in Hari Shanker (Supra), in which, Court has considered about the concept of "due diligence". Relevant paragraphs are quoted below:-

"9. Supreme Court in Modi Spinning & Weaving Mills Company Ltd. Vs. Ladha Ram, AIR 1977 SC 680, held that the defendants cannot be allowed to change completely the case made in paras 25 and 26 of the written statement and substitute an entirely different and new case. It is true that inconsistent pleas can be made in pleadings but the effect of substitution of paras 25 and 26 is not making inconsistent and alternative pleadings but it is seeking to displace the plaintiff completely from the admissions made by the defendants in the written statement. If such amendments are allowed the plaintiff will be irretrievably prejudiced by being denied the opportunity of extracting the admission from the defendants. Same view has been taken in Heera Lal Vs. Kalyan Mal, (1998) 1 SCC 278, Gautam Swarup Vs. Leela Jetly, (2008) 7 SCC 85, Sumesh Singh Vs. Phoolan Devi, (2009) 12 SCC 689 and Vishwanath Agrawal Vs. Savitri Bera, (2009) 15 SCC 693.

10. In B.K. Narayana Pillai v. Parameswaran Pillai, (2000) 1 SCC 712, Supreme Court held that the principles applicable to the amendments of the plaint are equally applicable to the amendments of the written statements. The courts are more generous in allowing the amendment of the written statement as the question of prejudice is less likely to operate in that event. The defendant has a right to take alternative plea in defence which, however, is subject to an exception that by the proposed amendment the other side should not be subjected to injustice and that any admission made in favour of the plaintiff is not withdrawn. All amendments of the pleadings should be allowed which are necessary for determination of the real controversies in the suit provided the proposed amendment does not alter or substitute a new cause of action on the basis of which the original lis was raised or defence taken. Inconsistent and contradictory allegations in negation to the admitted position of facts or mutually destructive allegations of facts should not be allowed to be incorporated by means of amendment to the pleadings. Proposed amendment should not cause such prejudice to the other side which cannot be compensated by costs. No amendment should be allowed which amounts to or relates (sic results) in defeating a legal right accruing to the opposite party on account of lapse of time. The delay in filing the petition for amendment of the pleadings should be properly compensated by costs and error or mistake which, if not fraudulent, should not be made a ground for rejecting the application for amendment of plaint or written statement.

Thus in view of the authoritative pronouncements of Supreme Court, the case law relied upon by the counsel for the petitioners cannot be followed.

11. Now the next question arises as to whether the proposed amendment can be allowed in view of Proviso to Order VI Rule 17 C.P.C. The defendant alleged that the fact relating to the proposed amendment was noticed at the time of preparation of the appeal for final arguments on 03.08.2014.

12. Supreme Court in Salem Advocate Bar Assn. (II) v. Union of India, (2005) 6 SCC 344, held that Order VI Rule 17 of the Code deals with amendment of pleadings. By Amendment Act 46 of 1999, this provision was deleted. It has again been restored by Amendment Act 22 of 2002 but with an added proviso to prevent application for amendment being allowed after the trial has commenced, unless the court comes to the conclusion that in spite of due diligence, the party could not have raised the matter before the commencement of trial. The proviso, to some extent, curtails absolute discretion to allow amendment at any stage. Now, if application is filed after commencement of trial, it has to be shown that in spite of due diligence, such amendment could not have been sought earlier. The object is to prevent frivolous applications which are filed to delay the trial. There is no illegality in the provision.

13. The phrase "due diligence" came for consideration before Supreme Court in Chander Kanta Bansal v. Rajinder Singh Anand, AIR 2008 SC 2234, in which it has been held that the words "due diligence" have not been defined in the Code. According to Oxford Dictionary (Edn. 2006), the word "diligence" means careful and persistent application or effort. "Diligent" means careful and steady in application to one's work and duties, showing care and effort. As per Black's Law Dictionary (18th Edn.), "diligence" means a continual effort to accomplish something, care; caution; the attention and care required from a person in a given situation. "Due diligence" means the diligence reasonably expected from, and ordinarily exercised by a person who seeks to satisfy a legal requirement or to discharge an obligation. According to Words and Phrases by Drain-Dyspnea (Permanent Edn. 13-A) "due diligence", in law, means doing everything reasonable, not everything possible. "Due diligence" means reasonable diligence; it means such diligence as a prudent man would exercise in the conduct of his own affairs.

14. Supreme Court again in J. Samuel v. Gattu Mahesh, (2012) 2 SCC 300, held that due diligence is the idea that reasonable investigation is necessary before certain kinds of relief are requested. Duly diligent efforts are a requirement for a party seeking to use the adjudicatory mechanism to attain an anticipated relief. An advocate representing someone must engage in due diligence to determine that the representations made are factually accurate and sufficient. The term "due diligence" is specifically used in the Code so as to provide a test for determining whether to exercise the discretion in situations of requested amendment after the commencement of trial. A party requesting a relief stemming out of a claim is required to exercise due diligence and it is a requirement which cannot be dispensed with. The term "due diligence" determines the scope of a party's constructive knowledge, claim and is very critical to the outcome of the suit. In the given facts, there is a clear lack of "due diligence" and the mistake committed certainly does not come within the preview of a typographical error. Similar view was taken in Vidyabai Vs. Padma Latha, (2009) 2 SCC 409, Sushil Kumar Jain Vs. Manoj Kumar, (2009) 14 SCC 38 and Abdul Rehman Vs. Mohd. Ruldu, (2012) 11 SCC 341.

15. The written statement was drafted by an advocate after reading the plaint. After legal advice, it cannot be said that in exercise of "due diligence" the fact sought to be brought in the pleading by way of amendment was not in the knowledge of the defendant. A distinction has to be drawn between 'due diligence' and 'negligence'. The case of the defendants falls in the category of 'negligence' and not 'due diligence'. Trial Court rightly rejected the amendment application, as Proviso to Order VI Rule 17 C.P.C., now casts a rider on the power of the Court in allowing amendment application. "

22. This issue was again considered by this Court in Hari Narayan (Supra). Relevant paragraphs are quoted below:-

"3. Contention of the learned counsel for the revisionist is that under Order VI Rule 17 the court may at any stage of proceedings allow the amendment of pleadings so as to determine the real question in controversy between the parties, and the trial court has rejected the amendment application without recording any finding to arrive at a conclusion that in spite of due diligence the defendant could not have sought the amendment before the commencement of the trial.

7. The proviso to Rule 17 under Order VI, as inserted by the Code of Civil Procedure (Amendment) Act, 2002, however, restricts and curtails the power of the court to allow amendment of pleadings by enacting that no application for amendment is to be allowed after the trial has commenced unless the court comes to the conclusion that in spite of due diligence, the party could not have raised the matter before the commencement of the trial.

8. The proviso to Rule 17, as per the Amendment Act, 2002, has introduced the "due diligence" test, which requires that the court must be satisfied that in spite of "due diligence" the party could not discover the ground pleaded in the amendment. The term "due diligence" has been specifically used so as to provide a test for determining whether to exercise the discretion in situations where amendment is being sought after commencement of the trial.

9. The provisions contained under Order VI Rule 17 proviso as introduced in the year 2002 came up for consideration in the case of J. Samuel Vs. Gattu Mahesh & Ors.² wherein the principles relating to allowing amendments under Order VI Rule 17 were reiterated and the object of the proviso and the meaning and significance of "due diligence" of the parties seeking amendment has also been stated. The observations made in the judgment in this regard as follows:-

"18. The primary aim of the court is to try the case on its merits and ensure that the rule of justice prevails. For this the need is for the true facts of the case to be placed before the court so that the court has access to all the relevant information in coming to its decision. Therefore, at times it is required to permit parties to amend their plaints. The court's discretion to grant permission for a party to amend his pleading lies on two conditions, firstly, no injustice must be done to the other side and secondly, the amendment must be necessary for the purpose of determining the real question in controversy between the parties. However, to balance the interests of the parties in pursuit of doing justice, the proviso has been added which clearly states that:

"... no application for amendment shall be allowed after the trial has commenced, unless the court comes to the conclusion that in spite of due diligence, the party could not have raised the matter before the commencement of trial."

19. Due diligence is the idea that reasonable investigation is necessary before certain kinds of relief are requested. Duly diligent efforts are a requirement for a party seeking to use the adjudicatory mechanism to attain an anticipated relief. An advocate representing someone must engage in due diligence to determine that the representations made are factually accurate and sufficient. The term "due diligence" is specifically used in the Code so as to provide a test for determining whether to exercise the discretion in situations of requested amendment after the commencement of trial.

20. A party requesting a relief stemming out of a claim is required to exercise due diligence and it is a requirement which cannot be dispensed with. The term "due diligence" determines the scope of a party's constructive knowledge, claim and is very critical to the outcome of the suit.

23. ...The entire object of the amendment to Order VI Rule 17 as introduced in 2002 is to stall filing of application for amending a pleading subsequent to the commencement of trial, to avoid surprises and that the parties had sufficient knowledge of other's case. It also helps checking the delays in filing the applications. [Vide Aniglase Yohannan v. Ramlatha [(2005) 7 SCC 534], Ajendraprasadji N. Pandey v. Swami

Keshavprakeshdasji N. [(2006) 12 SCC 1], Chander Kanta Bansal v. Rajinder Singh Anand [(2008) 5 SCC 117], Rajkumar Gurawara v. S.K. Sarwagi and Co. (P) Ltd. [(2008) 14 SCC 364], Vidyabai v. Padmalatha [(2009) 2 SCC 409 : (2009) 1 SCC (Civ) 563] and Man Kaur v. Hartar Singh Sangha [(2010) 10 SCC 512 : (2010) 4 SCC (Civ) 239]."

10. Reference may also be had to the judgment in the case of Revajeetu Builders and Developers Vs. Narayanaswami and Sons & Ors.¹ wherein some of the important factors which may be kept in mind while dealing with an application filed under Order VI Rule 17 have been enumerated in the following terms:-

"63. On critically analysing both the English and Indian cases, some basic principles emerge which ought to be taken into consideration while allowing or rejecting the application for amendment:

(1) whether the amendment sought is imperative for proper and effective adjudication of the case;

(2) whether the application for amendment is bona fide or mala fide;

(3) the amendment should not cause such prejudice to the other side which cannot be compensated adequately in terms of money;

(4) refusing amendment would in fact lead to injustice or lead to multiple litigation;

(5) whether the proposed amendment constitutionally or fundamentally changes the nature and character of the case; and

(6) as a general rule, the court should decline amendments if a fresh suit on the amended claims would be barred by limitation on the date of application.

These are some of the important factors which may be kept in mind while dealing with application filed under Order 6 Rule 17. These are only illustrative and not exhaustive.

64. The decision on an application made under Order 6 Rule 17 is a very serious judicial exercise and the said exercise should never be undertaken in a casual manner. We can conclude our discussion by observing that while deciding applications for amendments the courts must not refuse bona fide, legitimate, honest and necessary amendments and should never permit mala fide, worthless and/or dishonest amendments."

11. In a recent judgment in the case of M. Ravanna Vs. Anjanamma³, it has been held that after commencement of trial amendment of pleadings is not permissible except under conditions stated in the proviso and the burden is on the person seeking the amendment after commencement of trial to show "due diligence" on his part as contemplated under the proviso. The relevant observations in the judgment are as follows:-

"7. Leave to amend may be refused if it introduces a totally different, new and inconsistent case, or challenges the fundamental character of the suit. The proviso to Order 6 Rule 17 CPC virtually prevents an application for amendment of pleadings from being allowed after the trial has commenced, unless the court comes to the conclusion that in spite of due diligence, the party could not have raised the matter before the commencement of the trial. The proviso, to an extent, curtails absolute discretion to allow amendment at any stage. Therefore, the burden is on the person who seeks an amendment after commencement of the trial to show that in spite of due diligence, such an amendment could not have been sought earlier. There cannot be any dispute that an amendment cannot be claimed as a matter of right, and under all circumstances. Though normally amendments are allowed in the pleadings to avoid multiplicity of litigation, the court needs to take into consideration whether the application for amendment is bona fide or mala fide and whether the amendment causes such prejudice to the other side which cannot be compensated adequately in terms of money."

12. In the case at hand, the court below upon due consideration of the facts of the case has come to the conclusion that the amendment which was being sought was not imperative for determining the real question in controversy between the parties, and also that the same was barred by the proviso to Order VI Rule 17 CPC which curtails the discretion to allow amendment of pleadings after the trial has commenced, and introduces the "due diligence" test in terms whereof the burden is on the person seeking the amendment after commencement of trial to show that in spite of "due diligence" such an amendment could not have been sought earlier, and as such the order passed by the trial court cannot be faulted with. "

23. The controversy involved in the present case is squarely covered with judgements of Hari Shanker (Supra) and Hari Narayan (Supra). Therefore, considering all facts and circumstances of the case, this Court is of the view that due diligence is a very important factor while allowing amendment application under Order VI Rule 17 of CPC and applicant has to prove that he has made all possible efforts, but even after that, he could not know about the documents or facts which are most relevant to decide the controversy. In case documents or facts are available or within the knowledge of petitioner, at any stage, if any application is filed, same cannot be allowed as it would not fulfil the para meter of due diligence as provided in Order VI Rule 17 of CPC.

24. So far as second issue is as to whether allowing of such amendment application would adversely affect the right of plaintiff-respondent or not.

25. This issue was also subject matter of Raj Kumar Mulani (Supra). Relevant paragraph Nos. 9 to 12 are quoted below:-

"9. The judgment of two Judge Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Sushil Kumar Jain (supra) is based on another judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Panchdeo Narain Srivastava Vs. Jyoti Sahay, 1984 Supp SCC 594 in which an observation has been made that an admission made by parties may be withdrawn. The relevant paragraph of the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Sushil Kumar Jain (supra) relied by learned counsel for the defendant-tenant/petitioner, is reproduced below:-

"9. That apart, a careful reading of the application for amendment of the written statement, we are of the view that the appellant seeks to only elaborate and clarify the earlier inadvertence and confusion made in his written statement. Even assuming that there was admission made by the appellant in his original written statement, then also, such admission can be explained by amendment of his written statement even by taking inconsistent pleas or substituting or altering his defence.

10. At this stage, we may remind ourselves that law is now well settled that an amendment of a plaint and amendment of a written statement are not necessarily governed by exactly the same principle. Adding a new ground of defence or substituting or altering a defence does not raise the same problem as adding, altering, substituting a new cause of action (See Baldev Singh & Ors. vs. Manohar Singh & Anr. AIR 2006 SC 2832).

12. Keeping these principles in mind, let us now take up the question raised before us by the learned counsel for the parties. As stated herein earlier, the admission made by a defendant in his written statement can be explained by filing the application for amendment of the same. This principle has been settled by this Court in Panchdeo Narain Srivastava Vs. K. Jyoti Sahay AIR 1983 SC 462, while considering this issue, held that the admission made by a party may be withdrawn or may be explained. It was observed in paragraph 3 of the said decision as follows:-

"An admission made by a party may be withdrawn or may be explained away. Therefore, it cannot be said that by amendment, an admission of fact cannot be withdrawn....."

10. The judgments of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Panchdeo Narain Srivastava (supra) and Sushil Kumar Jain (supra) have been considered by a three Judges Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court in paragraph nos.16 &17 of the judgment in Ram Niranjana Kajaria (supra) and both the aforesaid judgments have been over ruled and it has been held "that a categorical admission made in the pleadings cannot be permitted to be withdrawn by way of an amendment". Paragraph nos. 19, 20, 22, & 23 of the judgment in Ram Niranjana Kajaria (supra) are reproduced below:-

"19. In Gautam Sarup v. Leela Jetly and others (2008) 7 SCC 85, after considering Panchdeo Narain Srivastava (supra) and Modi Spinning and Weaving

Mills Co. Ltd. v. Ladha Ram & Co. (supra) and several other decisions dealing with the amendment on withdrawal of admissions in the pleadings, it was held at Paragraph-28 as follows:

"28. What, therefore, emerges from the discussions made hereinbefore is that a categorical admission cannot be resiled from but, in a given case, it may be explained or clarified. Offering explanation in regard to an admission or explaining away the same, however, would depend upon the nature and character thereof. It may be that a defendant is entitled to take an alternative plea. Such alternative pleas, however, cannot be mutually destructive of each other."

20. On amendments generally, in the decision reported in Revajeetu Builders and Developers v. Narayanaswamy and Sons and others(2009) 10 SCC 84 ,after referring to Gautam Sarup (supra), the principles on amendment have been summarized at Paragraph-63. It has been held as follows: (Revajeetu Builders case (2009) 10 SCC 84, SCC p. 102)

"63. On critically analyzing both the English and Indian cases, some basic principles emerge which ought to be taken into consideration while allowing or rejecting the application for amendment:

(1) whether the amendment sought is imperative for proper and effective adjudication of the case;

(2) whether the application for amendment is bona fide or mala fide;

(3) the amendment should not cause such prejudice to the other side which cannot be compensated adequately in terms of money;

(4) refusing amendment would in fact lead to injustice or lead to multiple litigation;

(5) whether the proposed amendment constitutionally or fundamentally changes the nature and character of the case; and

(6) as a general rule, the court should decline amendments if a fresh suit on the amended claims would be barred by limitation on the date of application.

22. Delay in itself may not be crucial on an application for amendment in a written statement, be it for introduction of a new fact or for explanation or clarification of an admission or for taking an alternate position. It is seen that the issues have been framed in the case before us, only in 2009. The nature and character of the amendment and the other circumstances as in the instant case which we have referred to above, are relevant while considering the delay and its consequence on the application for amendment. But a party cannot be permitted to wholly withdraw the admission in the pleadings, as held by this Court in Nagindas Ramdas v. Dalpatram Ichharam alias Brijram and others (1974) 1 SCC 242 .To quote Paragraph-27: (SCC pp. 251-52)

"27. From a conspectus of the cases cited at the bar, the principle that emerges is, that if at the time of the passing of the decree, there was some material before the Court, on the basis of which, the Court could be prima facie satisfied, about the existence of a statutory ground for eviction, it will be presumed that the Court was so satisfied and the decree for eviction though apparently passed on the basis of a compromise, would be valid. Such material may take the shape either of evidence recorded or produced in the case, or, it may partly or wholly be in the shape of an express or implied admission made in the compromise agreement, itself. Admissions, if true and clear, are by far the best proof of the facts admitted. Admissions in pleadings or judicial admissions, admissible under Section 58 of the Evidence Act, made by the parties or their agents at or before the hearing of the case, stand on a higher footing than evidentiary admissions. The former class of admissions are fully binding on the party that makes them and constitute a waiver of proof. They by themselves can be made the foundation of the rights of the parties. On the other hand, evidentiary admissions which are receivable at the trial as evidence, are by themselves, not conclusive. They can be shown to be wrong."

23. We agree with the position in Nagindas Ramdas (supra) and as endorsed in Gautam Sarup (supra) that a categorical admission made in the pleadings cannot be permitted to be withdrawn by way of an amendment. To that extent, the proposition of law that even an admission can be withdrawn, as held in Panchdeo Narain Srivastava 1984 Supp SCC 594 (supra), does not reflect the correct legal position and it is overruled."

(Emphasis supplied by me)

11. From the legal position as extracted above it is clear that the submission of the petitioner based on the over ruled judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Sushil Kumar Jain (supra), deserves to be rejected.

12. In view of the above discussion, I hold that a categorical admission made in the pleadings can not be permitted to be withdrawn by way of an amendment. The Amendment Application filed by the defendant-petitioner was not bonafide. The Judge Small Cause Court has lawfully rejected the Amendment Application by impugned order dated 09.05.2019 and the Revision filed by the petitioner was lawfully dismissed by order dated 11.07.2019, passed by the Officiating District Judge/Additional District Judge, Court No.01, Kanpur Nagar. "

26. Very same issue is also subject matter of this petition.

27. No doubt, the suit is allowed based upon the admission of petitioner-defendant about tenant landlord relationship with respondent-plaintiff and once such amendment application is allowed at a very belated stage without any proper reason, would certainly deprive the rights of plaintiff-respondent, which accrued in his favour vide judgment and order dated 08.07.2022. Law is very much settled on this point that right accrued based on admission of facts can not be taken back by the way of allowing amendment application withdrawing the admission earlier given. Therefore, on this issue too, such amendment application cannot be allowed.

28. In the light of facts as well as law discussed here-in-above, present case is the best example of negligence and not of due diligence and also withdrawal of right accrued to the petitioner in light of admission made in written statement, which cannot be permitted. Therefore, no case is made out to interfere with the impugned order dated 10.02.2023 passed by District Judge, Kanpur Nagar.

29. Writ petition lacks merit and is accordingly, dismissed.

30. No order as to costs.

Sri Shubham Srivastava, Sri Sunil Kumar Srivastava

Counsel for the Respondents:

Sri Ramesh Chandra Agrahari

A. Civil Law – Ex-parte decree – Compliance of Section 17 - Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 - Order IX Rule 13 r/w Section 151 - Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887: Section 17 - No one can take benefit of his own fault and certainly dismissal of the petition/application in default solely due to fault on the part of the counsel for the party. For which, he cannot be extended any extra benefit contrary to the provisions of law. (Para 22)

While allowing restoration application, no liberty can be granted to petitioner-defendant for compliance of Section 17 of Act, 1887. (Para 17, 23)

Undisputed facts of the case are that plaintiffs-respondents have filed S.C.C. Suit No. 99 of 2016 for eviction and payment of rent, which was ex parte decided vide order dated 03.02.2020. Petitioner-defendant has filed an application u/Order IX Rule 13 r/w Section 151 of CPC on 29.2.2020 without compliance of Section 17 of Act, 1887, which was dismissed in default vide order dated 12.2.2021. Thereafter, petitioner-defendant has moved restoration application, which was allowed vide order dated 10.3.2022 with observation to comply the Section 17 of Act, 1887. (Para 16)

From conjoint reading of Section 17 of Act, 1887 and Order IX Rule 13 of CPC, it is apparent that such observation is wholly unwarranted and contrary to provision of rules. S.C.C. Court itself had clarified the same in its order dated 3.2.2020. In fact, restoration application has never filed along with prayer for seeking permission to comply the provision of Section 17 of Act, 1887, but it was only filed to recall its order dated 12.1.2022, therefore, such observation cannot be treated an order from the Court, which is in teeth of settled provisions of law. (Para 20)

B. No application u/Order IX Rule 13 of CPC can be filed without compliance of Section 17 of Act, 1887. Section 17 of Act, 1887 is mandatory having no provision of extension of time. (Para 19)

In case application u/Order IX Rule 13 r/w Section 151 CPC dated 29.2.2020 would not have been dismissed in default, petitioner-defendant would have no occasion to obtain such order for compliance of Section 17 of Act, 1887 upon the restoration application. (Para 15, 21)

C. An application seeking to set aside an ex-parte decree passed by a Court of Small Causes or for a review of its judgment must be accompanied by a deposit in the court of the amount due from the applicant under the decree or in pursuance of the judgment. The provision as to deposit can be dispensed with by the court in its discretion subject to a previous application by the applicant seeking direction of the court for leave to furnish security and the nature thereof. The proviso does not provide for the extent of time by which such application for dispensation may be filed. It may be filed at any time up to the time of presentation of application for setting aside ex-parte decree or for review and the Court may treat it as a previous application. The obligation of the applicant is to move a previous application for dispensation. It is then for the court to make a prompt order. The delay on the part of the court in passing an appropriate order would not be held against the applicant because none can be made to suffer for the fault of the court. (Para 30)

In the present case, neither application of petitioner u/Order IX Rule 13 of CPC was accompanied alongwith deposit required u/s 17 of Act, 1887 nor having any application to dispense with the deposit of Section 17 of Act, 1887. Even in restoration application, there is no such prayer to grant permission to comply the Section 17 of Act, 1887. Therefore, petitioner is not entitled for any relief to comply the provision of Section 17 of Act, 1887 after filing of application u/Order IX Rule 13 of CPC r/w 151 CPC. (Para 32)

Writ petition dismissed. (E-4)

Precedent followed:

Keadarnath Vs Mohan Lal Kesarwari, AIR 2002 SC 582 (Para 14, 30)

Precedent distinguished:

1. Shyam Kumar Gupta & ors. Vs Shubham Jain, Civil Appeal No. 765 of 2023 arising out of SLP (C) No. 2542 of 2023 (Para 6, 8, 9, 26, 33)

2. Smt. Sushma Agarwal Vs District Judge, Agra & ors., Matters Under Article 227 No. 4089 of 2018 (Para 6, 10, 29, 33)

Present petition challenges judgment and order dated 13.2.2023, passed by the Additional District Judge, Court No. 18, Kanpur Nagar in Misc. Case No. 251 of 2020, whereby application u/Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. for setting aside ex-parte judgment and decree dated 03.02.2020 has been rejected.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Neeraj Tiwari, J.)

1. Heard Sri Sunil Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Ramesh Chandra Agrahari, learned counsel for the respondents.

2. Present petition has been filed for challenging the judgment and order dated 13.2.2023 passed by the Additional District Judge, Court No.18, Kanpur Nagar in Misc. Case No. 251 of 2020 (Sanjay Mishra @ Aashu Vs. Magan Pandey and others) arising out of SCC Suit No.99 of 2016 (Magan Pandey and another vs. Sanjay Mishra @ Aashu) whereby application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. for setting aside ex-parte judgment and decree dated 3.2.2020 has been rejected.

3. Since, only legal question is involved in the present petition, therefore, with the consent of parties without inviting for affidavits, petition is being decided at the admission stage itself.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that plaintiffs-respondents have filed S.C.C. Suit No. 99 of 2016 for eviction and payment of rent, which was ex parte decided vide order dated 3.2.2020. Against that, petitioner-defendant has moved an application under Order IX Rule 13 read with Section 151 of CPC on 29.2.2020, which was dismissed in default vide order dated 12.2.2021. After dismissal of the said application, petitioner-defendant has moved restoration application, which was allowed vide order dated 10.3.2022 with liberty to ensure the compliance of Section 17 of Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887 (hereinafter referred to as Act, 1887). Thereafter, petitioner-defendant has moved an application on 6.4.2022 for compliance of Section 17 of Act, 1887. The said application was rejected vide order dated 13.2.2023 on the ground that while filing application under Order IX Rule 13 of CPC, he has not complied the Section 17 of Act, 1887 and in case treating that he has complied the Section 17 of Act, 1887, even though same was not the full compliance as full amount has not been deposited.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner assailed the impugned order on two grounds; First of all, Court itself while allowing the restoration application, granted permission to ensure the compliance of Section 17 of Act, 1887, therefore, there is no occasion for the Court to reject the application for non compliance of Section 17 of Act, 1887. Secondly, in case of part compliance, petitioner-defendant may have been given liberty for remaining compliance to make the deficiency good.

6. In support of his contention, he has placed reliance upon the judgment of Apex Court as well as this Court in the cases of Shyam Kumar Gupta & Ors. vs. Shubham Jain passed in Civil Appeal No.765 of 2023 arising out of SLP (C) No.2542 of 2023 and Smt. Sushma Agarwal vs. District Judge, Agra and 2 others passed in Matters Under Article 227 No. 4089 of 2018.

7. Sri Ramesh Chandra Agrahari, learned counsel for the respondents has vehemently opposed the submission of learned counsel for the petitioner and submitted that Order IX Rule 13 read with Section 151 CPC clearly provides that at the time of filing of application, provision of Section 17 of Act, 1887 must have been complied with. In the present case, there is no dispute on the point that while filing the application under Order IX Rule 13 of CPC, he has not complied the Section 17 of Act, 1887, therefore, there is no illegality or perversity in the impugned order.

8. He next submitted that so far as judgment of Apex Court in the case of Shyam Kumar Gupta (supra) is concerned, that is not applicable in the case of petitioner for the reason that in the said case, decretal amount was not clear whereas in the present case ex parte decree and judgment was given on 3.2.2022, decree was prepared on 12.2.2022 and application under Order IX Rule 13 of CPC was filed on 22.2.2022 meaning thereby that petitioner had full knowledge about the decretal amount even though he has not deposited the single penny, while submitting the application under Order IX Rule 13 of CPC.

9. He next submitted that facts of judgment of Apex Court in the case of Shyam Kumar Gupta (supra) are different. In that case, there are some certain error in quantifying the amount in decree, therefore, full compliance of Section 17 of Act, 1887 could not be made. Court considering this fact has given liberty to petitioner-defendant to deposit the amount for full compliance of Section 17 of Act, 1887.

10. He also submitted that so far as judgment of this Court in the case of Smt. Sushma Agarwal (supra) is concerned that is also not applicable for the very same reason in that case, petitioner-defendant has deposited Rs.85,000/- in cash, which was accepted by the landlord, therefore, Court has taken view that in such matter opportunity must have been given for compliance of Section 17 of Act, 1887.

11. He also pointed out that permission of compliance of Section 17 of Act, 1887 vide order dated 10.3.2022 while allowing the restoration application is contrary to law, therefore, considering this fact, Court in its ex parte decree and judgment, made it clear that while passing the order dated 10.3.2022, it was not intention of Court to grant time for compliance of Section 17 of Act, 1887 after restoration of application Order IX Rule 13 of CPC.

12. He further submitted that second ground taken by the learned Court below while rejecting the application under Order IX Rule 13 of CPC is having full force. In fact, Court has only held that in case in the interest of justice, if it has been accepted that petitioner had deposited the amount, that is also not full compliance. In present case, intention of petitioner was from the very day one was not appears to be proper. He first deposited the zerox copy of bank draft in his own name, which cannot be treated compliance of Section 17 of 1887. Thereafter, he deposited the two cheques amounting to Rs. 1,14,000/-, which is not fulfilling the requirement of provision of Section 17 of Act, 1887 as the decretal amount was Rs.2,07,611/-.

13. He firmly submitted that petitioner is taking benefit of his own fault as after dismissal of his application under Order IX Rule 13 of CPC in default, he has filed restoration application dated 10.3.2022 in which he was given liberty for compliance of Section 17 of Act, 1887. He further submitted that if it would have not been dismissed in default, petitioner would has no occasion to obtain order to fulfill the deficiency of Section 17 of Act 1887. Therefore, there is no illegality or perversity in the impugned order and petition is liable to be dismissed with heavy costs.

14. In support of his contention, he has placed reliance upon the judgment of Apex Court as well as this Court in the cases of Keadarnath Vs. Mohan Lal Kesarwari reported in 2002 0 AIR (SC) 582.

15. Being confronted by the Court, learned counsel for the petitioner could not dispute this fact that in case in absence of dismissal of application under Order IX Rule 13 of CPC, he would have no occasion to obtain order to fulfill the requirement of Section 17 of Act, 1887.

16. I have considered the rival submissions advanced by the learned counsel for the parties and perused the record as well as judgments relied upon. Undisputed facts of the case are that plaintiffs-respondents have filed S.C.C. Suit No. 99 of 2016 for eviction and payment of rent, which was ex parte decided vide order dated 3.2.2020. Petitioner-defendant has filed an application under Order IX Rule 13 read with Section 151 of CPC on 29.2.2020 without compliance of Section 17 of Act, 1887, which was dismissed in default vide order dated 12.2.2021. Thereafter, petitioner-defendant has moved restoration application, which was allowed vide order dated 10.3.2022 with observation to comply the Section 17 of Act, 1887.

17. Now, the issue before this Court is that as to whether while allowing the restoration application, S.C.C. Court can grant liberty to petitioner-defendant to comply the Section 17 of Act, 1887 and whether it is case of part compliance of Section 17 of Act, 1887 or not.

18. I have perused the Order IX Rule 13 of CPC as well as Section 17 of Act, 1887, which are quoted hereinbelow:-

Section 17 of Act, 1887.

"Application of the Code of Civil Procedure- (1) The procedure prescribed in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908), shall save in so far as is otherwise provided by that Code or by this Act,] be the procedure followed in a Court of Small Causes, in all suits cognizable by it and in all proceedings arising out of such suits:

Provided that an applicant for an order to set aside a decree passed ex parte or for a review of judgment shall, at the time of presenting his application, either deposit in the Court the amount due from him under the decree or in pursuance of the judgment, or give 21 [such security for the performance of the decree or compliance with the judgment as the Court may, on a previous application made by him in this behalf, have directed].

(2) Where a person has become liable as surety under the proviso to sub-section (1), the security may be realised in manner provided by section 22 [145] of the Code of Civil Procedure, 23 [1908] (5 of 1908)."

Order IX Rule 13 of CPC

"13. Setting aside decree ex parte against defendant.- In any case in which a decree is passed ex parte against a defendant, he may apply to the Court by which the decree was passed for an order to set it aside; and if he satisfies the Court that the summons was not duly served, or that he was prevented by any sufficient cause from appearing when the suit was called on for hearing, the Court shall make an order setting aside the decree as against him upon such terms as to costs, payment into Court or otherwise as it thinks fit, and shall appoint a day for proceeding with the suit:

Provided that where the decree is of such a nature that it cannot be set aside as against such defendant only it may be set aside as against all or any of the other defendants also:

1[Provided further than no Court shall set aside a decree passed ex parte merely on the ground that there has been an irregularity in the service of summons, if it is satisfied that the defendant had notice of the date of hearing and had sufficient time to appear and answer the plaintiff's claim.]

2[Explanation.-Where there has been an appeal against a decree passed ex parte under this rule, and the appeal has been disposed of on any ground other than the ground that the appellant has withdrawn the appeal, no application shall lie under this rule for setting aside that ex parte decree.]"

19. From perusal of the same, it is apparently clear that no application under Order IX Rule 13 of CPC can be filed without compliance of Section 17 of Act, 1887. Undisputedly, petitioner has preferred application dated 29.2.2020 without compliance of Section 17 of Act, 1887, which was ultimately dismissed in default vide order dated 12.2.2021. Against that, restoration application has been filed, which was allowed vide order dated 10.3.2022 with the observation to comply the Section 17 of Act, 1887. Section 17 of Act, 1887 is mandatory having no provision of extension of time.

20. From conjoint reading of Section 17 of Act, 1887 and Order IX Rule 13 of CPC, it is apparent that such observation is wholly unwarranted and contrary to provision of rules. Therefore, considering this fact, S.C.C. Court itself had clarified the same in its order dated 3.2.2020. In fact, restoration application has never filed along with prayer for seeking permission to comply the provision of Section 17 of Act, 1887, but it was only filed to recall its order dated 12.1.2022, therefore, such observation cannot be treated an order from the Court, which is in teeth of settled provisions of law.

21. It is also undisputed that in case application under Order IX Rule 13 read with Section 151 CPC dated 29.2.2020 would not have been dismissed in default, petitioner-defendant would have no occasion to obtain such order for compliance of Section 17 of Act, 1887 upon the restoration application.

22. It is also settled that no one can take benefit of his own fault and certainly dismissal of the petition/application in default solely due to fault on the part of the counsel for the party. For which, he cannot be extended any extra benefit contrary to the provisions of law, therefore, first argument of learned counsel for the petitioner is having no force.

23. In light of discussion made hereinabove, this Court is of the firm view that while allowing restoration application, no liberty can be granted to petitioner-defendant for compliance of Section 17 of Act, 1887

24. Second argument of petitioner is that he should have been given opportunity to fulfill the remaining compliance of Section 17 of Act, 1887, if any.

25. I have perused the judgment of this Court in the case of Shyam Kumar Gupta (Supra) relied by the learned counsel for the petitioner. The relevant paragraphs of the said judgment are being quoted hereinbelow:-

"15. It could be reasonably noticed that in relation to the suit to which the Act of 1887 applies, an applicant seeking an order to set aside the decree passed ex parte is required to deposit the amount due under the decree/judgment or has to furnish security for due performance of the decree or compliance with the judgment. Even under Order IX Rule 13 CPC, while making an order for setting aside the decree passed ex parte, the Court may put the defendant to terms as to costs, payment into Court or otherwise. However, these requirements need to be visualized from a practical standpoint and cannot be applied as if to penalize the defendant for every mistake, even if the amount payable is not explicitly quantified in the decree in question.

15.1. For the purpose of the case at hand, as regards the amount payable, a sum of Rs. 8,000/- towards arrears of rent had been quantified in the decree and another sum of Rs. 3,212/- towards costs could have been taken as quantified. Of course, the plaintiff was further held entitled to receive Rs. 2,000/- per month towards rent/mesne profits during the suit and until getting the actual vacant possession of the suit shop after payment of requisite court fees but, the Trial Court did not specifically quantify the amount payable by the defendant even until the date of decree. In the given circumstances, when the defendant, predecessor of the appellants, immediately moved the Court after noticing the decree in question and deposited the amount directly quantified thereunder i.e., the sum of Rs. 8,000/- towards arrears of rent and Rs. 3,212/- towards costs, totalling to Rs. 11,212/-, while seeking the order for setting aside ex parte decree, it had not been a case where the defendant had ignored the requirements of deposit altogether. Moreover, the decree in question had not been merely a money decree but had been for eviction too. Looking to the subject-matter of the suit and the overall circumstances, a practical view was required to be taken and if all any further deposit or furnishing of security was considered necessary, appropriate orders could have been passed in that regard. Putting it differently, in terms of Section 17 of the Act of 1887 read with Order IX Rule 13 CPC, the Court could have extended the time for making deposit if so required, or could have put the defendant to the terms of security for performance of the decree.

15.2. However, for what has been noticed and extracted hereinabove, it is apparent that Trial Court and the High Court have viewed the requirements of Section 17 of the Act of 1887 from such an exacting and rather impractical standpoint that the bonafide attempt of the defendant to seek a merit decision of the suit after due contest has been totally ignored. In our view, in the present set of facts and circumstances, prayer of the defendant to set aside ex parte decree could not have been denied for want of further deposit in terms of the decree in question.

15.3. The High Court, while dismissing the petition filed by the appellants and endorsing the views of the Trial Court, has proceeded to rely upon the decision of this Court in the case of Kedarnath (supra), that the provisions of Section 17 of the Act of 1887 are held to be mandatory. In our view, reference to the said decision remains inapposite in the present case. Even if the requirements of Section 17 of the Act of 1887 are held to be mandatory, the present one had not been a case where the defendant had altogether ignored those requirements. In Kedarnath (supra), in the very passage reproduced by the High Court, it was clearly noticed that the applicant did not make any deposit and did not move any application for dispensing with deposit or seeking leave of the Court for furnishing security. In the backdrop of such facts, showing total non-compliance of the requirements of Section 17 of the Act of 1887, this Court held the application for setting aside the decree as incompetent. It is difficult to apply the decision in Kedarnath (supra) to the facts of the present case.

16. Apart from the above, where we find that the Trial Court and the High Court had taken too technical and impractical a view of the matter, there is another strong reason for which we are inclined to accept the prayer for setting aside the decree passed ex parte in this case. As noticed, in response to the queries of this Court, the appellants have immediately taken bonafide steps and have deposited the amount which may be relatable to rent/mesne profits until the month of April, 2023. For this bonafide and prompt step (albeit taken after approaching this Court), in our view, they do deserve an opportunity to contest the suit on merits, particularly when the matter relates to a shop where the predecessor of the appellants had been continuing as tenant and the plaintiff-respondent is seeking the decree for eviction only on the ground of default in payment of rent."

26. From perusal of the above paragraphs of the aforesaid judgment, it is apparently clear that there are some factual error in quantifying the amount in decree and trial Court has not specifically quantify the amount payable by the defendant even untill the date of decree. Due to which, petitioner-defendant has deposited certain amount to his understanding and for remaining, Court has permitted to petitioner-defendant to deposit amount for full compliance of Section 17 of Act, 1887.

27. So far as present case is concerned, there is no dispute on the point that judgment was delivered on 3.2.2022, decree was prepared on 12.2.2022 and application under IX Rule 13 of CPC was filed on 22.2.2022 without depositing single penny for compliance of Section 17 of Act, 1887, therefore, this judgment would not come in the rescue of petitioner.

28. I have also perused the judgment of this Court in the case of Smt. Sushma Agarwal (Supra) relied by petitioner. The relevant paragraphs of the said judgment are being quoted hereinbelow:-

"13. The Supreme Court has observed that the proviso of Section 17 does not provide any extent of time by which such application for dispensation for prior deposit of the decretal amount may be filed. The Court has observed "We think that it may be filed at any time up to the time of presentation of application for setting aside ex parte decree or for review and the Court may treat it as a previous application. It is then for the Court to make a prompt order. The delay on the part of the Court in passing an appropriate order would not be held against the applicant because none can be made to suffer for the fault of the Court."

17. The learned counsel for the respondents has also relied upon a Division Bench decision of this Court in Raj Kumar Makhija and others Vs. M/s. SKS and Co. and others, 2000 (3) ARC 117 that it is duty of the applicant to calculate the correct decretal amount as per the decree and Court is not required to get the decretal amount calculated for the applicant. If there is any shortfall due to calculation made for any reason its consequences will follow and wrong calculation will provide no shelter to such an applicant.

18. It has been held by the Division Bench that any application filed by the tenant-defendant to make good the shortfall either in the deposit of security after expiry of period of limitation is of no consequence. The application for setting aside the ex-parte decree would be dismissed for non compliance of the proviso to Section 17 of the Act. It has also been held that any amount deposited after expiry of period of limitation will also be taken into consideration for judging the compliance of the proviso to Section 17 of the Act. However, it has also observed that the Court can ignore the shortfall in deposit of a negligible amount on the principle of deminimis as explained in the body of the judgment. It has held further that there is no provision conferring power on the Court to condone the delay in making deposit and provisions of Section 5 of the Limitation Act will not be applicable to the deposit contemplated under the proviso to Section 17 of the Act.

20. I have considered the arguments raised by the learned counsel for the petitioner-tenant and also by the learned counsel for the respondent. No doubt that the provisions of Section 17 of the PSCC Act are mandatory in nature. It is, however, true that the petitioner had deposited Rs.85,000/- before the application under Order 9 Rule 13 of Code of Civil Procedure came up for disposal before the learned Trial Court. This fact is admitted to either of the parties that at the time when the suit was decreed it had been held by the Judge, Small Causes Court that the tenant was in arrears of payment of rent w.e.f. 1st of April, 2015 at the rate of Rs.5,000/- per month. The rent due at the time of filing of the SCC Suit was for five months, and for fourteen months, at the time when the Restoration Application was moved by the petitioner. The petitioner deposited Rs.10,100/- at the time of filing of the application for recall and during the pendency of her application for determination of the correct decretal amount, she deposited another Rs.75,000/-, which was received by the husband of the respondent No. 3.

22. The bonafide intent of the tenant has undoubtedly been established in making payments @ Rs.5,000/- per month and also depositing some amount extra i.e. to the tune of Rs.10,100/- from a perusal of the papers brought on record. The intention of adding the proviso to Section 17 in the Provisional Small Causes Court Act, 1887 can be gathered from the language of the proviso. It was added to avoid the possibility of a litigant taking advantage of Recall Application being moved without first establishing his bonafide to pursue the litigation further, and to avoid the decree holder from being prejudiced due to the pendency of the litigation. This Court, therefore, feels it appropriate to set aside the order passed by the two learned Courts below with the observations that the tenant cannot be non-suited on a hyper technical ground when she had already deposited Rs.85,100/- during the pendency of application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C."

29. Similarly, in this matter, certain amount was accepted by the plaintiff in cash, therefore, Court has granted one more opportunity for compliance of Section 17 of Act, 1887, but in the present case, at no point of time, plaintiff-respondent has accepted any amount for compliance of Section 17 of Act, 1887, therefore, this judgment is also not helping the petitioner.

30. I have also perused the judgment of Apex Court in the case of Kedarnath (supra) as relied by the respondent, which is squarely covered with the present controversy. Relevant paragraph of the said judgment is quoted hereinbelow:-

"A bare reading of the provision shows that the legislature have chosen to couch the language of the proviso in a mandatory form and we see no reason to interpret, construe and hold the nature of the proviso as directory. An application seeking to set aside an ex-parte decree passed by a Court of Small Causes or for a review of its judgment must be accompanied by a deposit in the court of the amount due from the applicant under the decree or in pursuance of the judgment. The provision as to deposit can be dispensed with by the court in its discretion subject to a previous application by the applicant seeking direction of the court for leave to furnish security and the nature thereof. The proviso does not provide for the extent of time by which such application for dispensation may be filed. We think that it may be filed at any time up to the time of presentation of application for setting aside ex-parte decree or for review and the Court may treat it as a previous application. The obligation of the applicant is to move a previous application for dispensation. It is then for the court to make a prompt order. The delay on the part of the court in passing an appropriate order would not be held against the applicant because none can be made to suffer for the fault of the court.

In the case at hand, the application for setting aside ex parte decree was not accompanied by deposit in the court of the amount due and payable by the applicant under the decree. The applicant also did not move any application for dispensing with deposit and seeking leave of the court for furnishing such security for the performance of the decree as the court may have directed. The application for setting aside the decree was therefore incompetent. It could not have been entertained and allowed."

31. From perusal of the same, it is clear that neither application was accompanied by any deposit nor any application has been filed for dispensing with deposit and seeking leave of the Court for furnishing such security.

32. In the present case too, neither application of petitioner under Order IX Rule 13 of CPC was accompanied alongwith deposit required under Section 17 of Act, 1887 nor having any application to dispense with the deposit of Section 17 of Act, 1887. Even in restoration application, there is no such prayer to grant permission to comply the Section 17 of Act, 1887. Therefore, in light of aforesaid judgment, petitioner is not entitled for any relief to comply the provision of Section 17 of Act, 1887 after filing of application under Order IX Rule 13 of CPC read with 151 CPC.

33. This Court is of the firm view that it is not the case of part compliance, therefore, benefit of judgments of Shyam Kumar Gupta (Supra) and Smt. Sushma Agarwal (Supra) cannot be given to petitioner.

34. Both the Courts have considered each and every aspects and rightly came to the conclusion that petitioner has never complied the provision of Section 17 of Act, 1887. Courts have also rightly taken view that in case, it is treating to be compliance, the same is not full compliance as amount so required has not been deposited.

35. In view of above facts mentioned hereinabove as well as law laid by this Court, the writ petition lacks merit and is, accordingly, dismissed.

36. No order as to costs.

A. Tenancy Law – Ownership – Rent - U.P. Urban Buildings (Regulation of Letting Rent and Eviction) Act, 1972 - Sections 20(2)(a) & 34 - Slum Areas (Improvement and Clearance) Act, 1962 - Section 23 - Code of Civil Procedure: Order 6 Rule 14 and 15 - After receiving legal notice, it is required on the part of petitioner-defendant to raise objection about the invalidity or infirmity of notice at the earliest otherwise, it would deemed to have been waved. (Para 20)

In the present case, the legal notice has details of ownership, house number of property in dispute alongwith boundary, which is not disputed by the petitioner- defendant in its reply dated 1.5.2014. The very same fact has been mentioned in the plaint, which was also not disputed by petitioner-defendant, in fact, there was some dispute about the number of rooms in tenancy for which amendment application u/Order 6 Rule 17 of CPC has been filed in written statement, which was rejected, but so far as ownership is concerned, no application for amendment in written statement has been filed. (Para 19)

Once the content of legal notice has not been disputed in its reply (dated 01.05.2014) and further not raised objection while filing written statement, same cannot be raised at this stage, therefore, argument of petitioner has no substance on this point. (Para 21)

B.(1) In light of provision of Sections 34 r/w Rules 22 of Rules, 1972 & 38 of U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972, provision of Order 6 Rule 14 & 15 shall not be applicable in the present case. (Para 25)

Section 34 of U.P Act No.13 of 1972 r/w Rule 22 of Rules, 1972 provides certain contingencies upon which CPC is applicable, which does not contemplate any such contingencies, which invites attention of Order 6 Rule 14 & 15 of CPC. (Para 23, 24)

From perusal of Section 38 of U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972, it is clear that provision of U.P. Act No.13 of 1972 shall prevail over the provisions of CPC & Transfer of Property Act. (Para 25)

(2) No liberty can be granted to petitioner-defendant to raise this issue at this belated stage - Petitioner has not taken this ground before the SCC Court as well as Revisional Court. (Para 26)

C. For taking benefit of Section 20(4) of U.P. Act No.13 of 1972, it is required to deposit entire dues including amount for time barred period. It is admitted case of petitioner that he has not deposited the rent from 1990 and after ex parte decree while filing application u/Order 15 Rule 5 of CPC complying of Section 17 of SCC Act, 1887, he had deposited decretal amount only. (Para 30)

D. The supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 cannot be invoked to interfere with the findings of fact recorded by the courts below. At any rate, as long as the findings are based upon some material which are relevant for the purpose and no evidence could be pointed to demonstrate that the findings recorded by the Trial Court are perverse, no interference can be made. (Para 32)

Petitioner argues that in the sale deed rent was mentioned at the rate of Rs. 800/- whereas in the legal notice as well as plaint, it was claimed at the rate of Rs. 750/-, but respondent-plaintiff could not proof the rent at the rate of Rs. 750/-, therefore, order is bad on this ground. (Para 31)

There is concurrent finding of Courts about the rate of rent at the rate of Rs.750/- i.e., in favour of respondent-plaintiff. It is settled that in case of concurrent finding of Court, scope of judicial review is limited and narrow, therefore, no interference is required under Article 227 of the Constitution of India. (Para 33)

E. The declaration of an area as slum area u/s 3 of the Act, 1962 does not automatically result in acquisition of the properties situated in the said area. Eviction cannot be made without permission of Competent Authority, but so far as decree or order for eviction is concerned, there is no such provision in Section 23 of Act, 1962. (Para 37)

Landlord can maintain a suit for eviction against tenant even if the tenanted property has been acquired and an award has been passed in respect thereof under the provision of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894. In a suit for eviction, only the relationship of landlord and tenant is to be seen. (Para 36)

Section 23 of the Act, 1962 only provides that a decree or order can be put in execution only after obtaining the permission of the competent authority. It does not prohibit the institution of any suit. Even if it is claimed that the land in the slum area stood acquired, the building situated in the said land does not automatically vest in the acquiring authority. (Para 38)

Not only after declaration of slum area, but even after acquiring the property in dispute after notification, suit is maintainable and decree can be passed. (Para 34, 39)

Writ petition dismissed. (E-4)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Neeraj Tiwari, J.)

1. Heard Sri Piyush Shukla, learned counsel for the petitioners and Sri Atul Dayal, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Manish Tandon, learned counsel for the respondents.

2. Present petition has been for setting aside the impugned order dated 15.12.2022 passed by the Court of Judge, Small Causes Court, Kanpur Nagar in S.C.C. Suit No. 188 of 2014 (Mohd. Shahid vs. Rajendra and others) and impugned order dated 15.3.2023 passed by the District Judge, Kanpur in S.C.C. Revision No. 26 of 2023 (Rajendra & others vs. Mohd Shahid)

3. Since, only legal question is involved in the present petition, therefore, with the consent of parties, petition is being decided at the admission stage itself.

4. Learned counsel for petitioners submitted that plaintiff-respondent has served legal notice dated 10.4.2014 claiming himself to be the owner of house in question on the basis of sale deed executed on 31.3.2013 by Jasmeet Singh. On the very same basis, he has set up his case and filed suit. In the plaint, it is clearly mentioned that house in question has been purchased by Jasmeet Singh. He next submitted that under Section 20(2)(a) of the U.P. Urban Buildings (Regulation of Letting Rent and Eviction) Act, 1972 (hereinafter referred to as U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972), notice is required within 30 days. In the present case, as the notice was sent on the basis of ownership of sale deed executed by Jasmeet Singh, therefore, it is not fulfilling the requirement of Section 20(2)(a) of U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972, therefore, notice is bad.

5. He next submitted that during the course of cross examination, plaintiff-respondent has denied his signature on four pages and he was not aware about the fact written in the plaint as it was written in English. In support of his contention, he has placed reliance upon the provision of Order 6 Rule 14 and 15 of CPC, which provides that every page required signatures of party and pleader.

6. He further submitted that petitioner has fully complied the provision of Order 15 Rule 5 of CPC as well as Section 20(4) of Act, 1972 by depositing the admitted arrears of rent at the rate of Rs. 300/- per month, but benefit of Section 20(4) of Act, 1972 has not been given to him. In support of his contention he has placed reliance upon the judgment of this Court in the case of Asha Rani Gupta vs. Sri Vineet Kumar passed in Civil Appeal No. 4682 of 2022 arising out of SLP (Civil) No. 1319 of 2019.

7. He next submitted that once he has deposited the rent, he has entitled for benefit of Section 20(4) of U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972. In support of his contention, he has placed reliance upon the judgment of this Court in the case of University Book Depot through Jagannath vs. Amit Mishra passed in Civil Revision No. 10 of 2009 decided on 29.5.2020.

8. He further submitted that he had deposited the rent on month to month basis at the admitted rate of Rs.300/- through out the proceedings and same has neither been considered nor any finding has been recorded by the Court below. He further submitted that in the notice, rent has been claimed at the rate of Rs. 750/- whereas in the sale deed, it is mentioned as Rs.800/- and as per defendant-petitioner, rate is 300/-. Respondent-plaintiff could not proof the rent at the rate of Rs. 750/-, therefore, order is also bad on this ground.

9. He lastly submitted that vide notification dated 21.2.2021 area in question has been declared as slum area under the provisions of Section 23 of U.P.

Slum Areas (Improvement and Clearance) Act, 1962, therefore, as per Section 23 of Act, 1962, no decree can be passed. He also submitted that once the KDA is acquired the land, plaintiff-respondent has losts its ownership from house in question.

10. Mr. Atul Dayal, learned Senior Advocate submitted that first of all legal notice dated 10.4.2014 was given for entire premises based upon the sale deed executed by Jasmeet Singh, which has never been disputed by the petitioner-defendant in its reply dated 1.5.2014, therefore, there is no illegality in the notice dated 10.4.2014. He next submitted that facts so mentioned in the legal notice dated 10.4.2014 about the house number, ownership, property in dispute alongwith boundary has not been disputed in its reply dated 1.5.2014. He further submitted that the same averment was also made in the plaint about the description of property, which was not disputed by the defendant-petitioner in written statement and application under Order 6 Rule 17 of CPC has been filed for amendment in written statement with regard to number of rooms in tenancy, which was also rejected and affirmed by the Revisional Court. He also submitted that no other application under Order 6 Rule 17 of CPC has been filed disputing the ownership based upon the sale deed dated 31.3.2013, therefore, same cannot be raised at this stage. He next submitted that in light of law laid down by the Apex Court in the cases of Parwati Bai vs. Radhika reported in 2003 (2) RCJ 4 & Apollo Zipper India Ltd. vs. W. Newman and Co. Ltd. Reported in 2018 (3) ARC 187 and if the validity of notice has not been challenged in written statement, the same cannot be challenged at belated stage.

11. So far as applicability of Order 6 Rules 14 & 15 of CPC is concerned, he firmly submitted that as per Section 34 of U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972 read with Rule 22 of Rules 1972, same shall not be applicable. In fact Sections 34 of U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972 provides certain contingencies where the CPC is applicable. He also submitted that Section 38 of U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972 provides that provision of U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972 shall prevail over the provisions of CPC & Transfer of Property Act. He further submitted that provision of Order 6 Rule 14 & 15 of CPC shall only be applicable in the civil suit filed under the provision of CPC and would not be applicable in summary proceedings initiated under the U.P. Act No.13 of 1972. Further, petitioner has also not taken this ground in SCC Court as well as Revisional Court, therefore, he cannot raise this issue before this Court under Article 227 of Constitution of India.

12. Learned counsel for the respondents submitted that so far as benefit of Section 20(4) of Act No. 13 of 1972 is concerned, it is required on the part of petitioner-defendant to deposit the entire amount including the amount for time barred period. In the present case, as per admission of petitioner-defendant, he has not deposited rent from 1990 and further once the ex parte decree has been passed against him while filing the application under Order 15 Rule 5 of CPC in compliance of Section 17 of Small Causes Court Act, 1887, he has deposited the decretal amount only.

13. So far as deposit of rent on month to month basis is concerned, he submitted that he has not deposited the same regularly. This is also the finding of first court that amount was not deposited in accordance with Order 15 Rule 5 of CPC. This was also affirmed in revision. In support of his contention about the rent of time barred period, he has placed reliance upon the judgment of this Court in the case of Sanjay and another vs. Smt. Vimla Rani and 6 others reported in 2015 (3) ARC 741.

14. He next submitted that in case of denial of title, petitioner-defendant cannot take benefit of Section 20 (4) of U.P. Act No.13 of 1972 in light of judgment of Apex Court in the case of Ghoorey Lal vs. Sheo Murti Gupta reported in 1994 (5) SCC 339 (Paragraph 1)

15. He next submitted that so far as rate of rent at the rate of Rs. 750/- is concerned, no doubt in the sale deed, it is mentioned only Rs. 800/-, but in the legal notice as well as plaint, he has claimed the rent at the rate of Rs. 750/-. Against which, petitioner-defendant could not produce any evidence about the rate of rent at the rate of Rs. 300/-.

16. He further submitted that there is concurrent finding of Courts, therefore, there is no scope of interference under Article 227 of the Constitution of India. In support of his contention, he has placed reliance upon the judgment of this Court in the case of Anand Kumar Vs. Dinesh Kumar reported in 2017 (3) ARC 178 (Paragraph 18, 21, 22, 23 & 33)

17. He next submitted that even after declaration of slum area vide notification 21.2.2021 under Section 23 of Act, 1962, Court can pass the decree for eviction. Not only this even in case of acquirement of land after notification, suit is maintainable. In support of his contention, he has placed reliance upon the judgment of this Court as well as Apex Court in the case of Smt. Shakuntala and 3 others vs. Shaukat Ali and another passed in Matters Under Article 227 No. 6139 of 2022 decided on 6.8.2022, Smt. Phoola Devi and 4 others vs. Additional District Judge Court No. 14, Kanpur Nagar reported in 2020 (2) ARC 610 and Sheela Jawarai Nagori and Another v. Kantilal Nathmal Baldota and others reported in 2014 (3) ARC (5).

18. I have considered the rival submissions advanced by the learned counsel for the parties and perused the record as well as judgments relied upon by the learned counsel for the parties.

19. First issue raised by learned counsel for the petitioner about the service of legal notice dated 10.4.2014 based upon the sale deed dated 31.3.2013 executed by Jasmeet Singh. His argument is that it is based upon the sale deed executed by Jasmeet Singh, therefore, it is not fulfilling the requirement of Section 20(2) (a) of U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972. The same was rebutted by Mr. Atul Dayal, learned Senior Counsel and he rightly submitted that there is no illegality in the notice dated 10.4.2014. The said legal notice is having detail of ownership, house number of property in dispute alongwith boundary, which is not disputed by the petitioner-defendant in its reply dated 1.5.2014. He has written the very same fact in the plaint, which was also not disputed by petitioner-defendant, in fact, he is having some dispute about the number of rooms in tenancy for which he has filed amendment application under Order 6 Rule 17 of CPC in written statement, which was also rejected, but so far as ownership is concerned, no application for amendment in written statement has been filed.

20. Law is very well settled by the Apex Court in the case of Parwati Bai

(supra) on the point that after receiving legal notice, it is required on the part of petitioner-defendant to raise objection about the invalidity or infirmity of notice at the earliest otherwise, it would deemed to have been waived. Relevant paragraph of the said judgement is quoted hereinbeolw:-

"6. The singular question to be examined in the present case is whether the tenancy was terminated in accordance with the provisions of Section 106 of the Transfer of Property Act. The receipt of notice by the defendant is admitted in the written statement. The defendant has not raised any specific objection as to the validity of the notice. An objection as to invalidity or infirmity of notice under Section 106 T.P. Act should be raised specifically and at the earliest; else it will be deemed to have been waived even if there exists one. It cannot, therefore, be said that the notice in the present case suffered from any infirmity. A copy of the notice was exhibited and proved by the plaintiff as Exh. P-4."

21. From perusal of above paragraph, it is apparently clear that once the content of legal notice has not been disputed in its reply dated 1.5.2014 and further not raised objection while filing written statement, same cannot be raised at this stage, therefore, argument of petitioner is having no substance on this point.

22. Secondly, learned counsel for the petitioner raised issue about the applicability of Order 6 Rule 14 & 15 of CPC in light of fact that four pages of plaint was not signed by the plaintiff-respondent and he could not understood the same as it was written in English. It was also rebutted by learned Senior Counsel with the submission that Order 6 Rule 14 &

15 of CPC shall not be applicable in the present case in light of Section 34 of U.P Act No.13 of 1972 read with Rule 22 of Rules, 1972. He also argued that provision of Section 38 of U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972 shall prevail over provisions of CPC & Transfer of Property Act. Therefore, Sections 34 & 38 of U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972 is mandatory provisions and same are quoted herebelow:-

Section 34 of U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972.

34. Powers of various authorities and procedure to be followed by them (1) The DistrictMagistrate, the prescribed authority or any 1 [appellate or revising authority] shall for thepurposes of holding any inquiry or hearing 2[any appeal or revision] under this Act have thesame powers as are vested in the Civil Court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (Act No.V of 1908), when trying a suit, in respect of the following matters namely-

(a) summoning and enforcing the attendance of any person and examining him on oath;

(b) receiving evidence on affidavits;

(c) inspecting a building or its locality, or issuing commission for the examination of witnesses or documents or local investigation;

(d) requiring the discovery and production of documents;

(e) awarding, subject to any rules made in that behalf, costs or special costs to any parts or requiring security for costs from any party;

(f) recording a lawful agreement, compromise or satisfaction and making an order in accordance therewith;

(g) any other matter which may be prescribed.

(2) The District Magistrate, the prescribed authority or 3[appellate or

(3) Where any costs or other sum of money awarded under this Act by the District Magistrate or the prescribed authority or 1[the appellate or revisional authority] remains unpaid, he or it may issue a certificate of recovery in respect thereof in the prescribed form, and any person in whose favour such certificate is issued may apply to the Court of Small Causes having jurisdiction under the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887 (Act No. IX of 1887) for recovery of the amount specified in the certificate. Such court shall thereupon execute the certificate or cause the same to be executed in the same manner and by the same procedure as if it were a decree for payment of money made by itself in a suit.

(4) Where any party to any proceeding for the determination of standard rent of or for eviction from a building dies during the pendency of the proceeding, such proceeding may be continued after bringing on the record:

(a) in the case of the landlord or tenant, his heirs or legal representatives;

(b) in the case of unauthorised occupant, any person claiming under him found in occupation of the building.

(5) Where any person has been evicted from a building in pursuance of any order of the District Magistrate or the prescribed authority or made on appeal under this Act, the District Magistrate or the prescribed authority, as the case may be, may after service or publication of a notice in that behalf on such persons and in such manner as may be prescribed, remove or cause to be removed or dispose of, in such manner as may be prescribed, any specific property remaining on such building.

(6) Affidavits to be filed in any proceeding under this Act shall be made in the same manner and conform to the same requirements as affidavits filed under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (Act No. V of 1908), and may be verified by any officer or other person appointed by the High Court under clause (b) or by an officer appointed by any other court under clause (c) of Section 139 of the said Code.

(7) The District Magistrate, the prescribed authority or 2[the appellate or revisional authority] shall record reasons for every order made under this Act.

(8) For the purposes of any proceedings under this Act and for purposes connected therewith the said authorities shall have such other powers and 3[shall follow such procedure, principles of proof, rules of limitation and guiding principles as may be prescribed."

Rule 22 of Rules, 1972.

22. Powers under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (Section 34(1) (g).- [The District Magistrate, the Prescribed Authority or the Appellate or Revising Authority shall, for the purposes of holding any inquiry or hearing any appeal or revision under the Act, shall have the same powers as are vested in the Civil Court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (Act No. V of 1908), when trying a suit, in respect of the following matters, namely-

(a) the power to dismiss an application, appeal or revision for default and to restore it for sufficient cause;

(b) the power to proceed ex-parte and to set aside, for sufficient cause, an order passed ex parte;

(c) the power to award costs and special costs to any successful party against an unsuccessful party;

(d) the power to allow amendment of an application, memorandum of appeal or revision;

(e) the power to consolidate two or more cases of eviction by the same landlord against different tenants;

(f) the power referred to in Sections 151 and 152 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (Act No. V of 1908) to make any order of the ends of justice or to prevent the abuse of the process of the authority concerned.]

Section 38 of U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972

"Act to override Transfer of Property Act and Civil Procedure Code:- The provisions of this Act shall have effect notwithstanding anything inconsistent therewith contained in the Transfer of Property Act (ACT No.IV of 1882), or in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (Act No.V of 1908)."

23. Section 34 of U.P Act No.13 of 1972 read with Rule 22 of Rules, 1972 provides certain contingencies upon which CPC is applicable, which does not contemplate any such contingencies, which invites attention of Order 6 Rule 14 & 15 of CPC.

24. From perusal of the Sections 34 of U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972, it is apparently clear that provisions of CPC shall be applicable in those circumstances, which are referred in Section 34 read with rules 22 of Rules, 1972.

25. Further, from perusal of Section 38 of U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972, it is clear that provision of U.P. Act No.13 of 1972 shall prevail over the provisions of CPC & Transfer of Property Act. Therefore, in light of provision of Sections 34 read with Rules 22 of Rules, 1972 & 38 of U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972, provision of Order 6 Rule 14 & 15 shall not be applicable in the present case.

26. Not only this, petitioner has not taken this ground before the SCC Court as well as Revisional Court, therefore, no liberty can be granted to petitioner-defendant to raise this issue at this belated stage.

27. The third issue raised by the learned counsel for the petitioner about the compliance of Order 15 Rule 5 of CPC read with Section 20(4) of U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972. It is argued that he has deposited the rent on month to month basis at the admitted rate of Rs.300/-, therefore, in light of judgment of Apex Court in the case of Asha Rani Gupta (supra) & University Book Depot (supra), he is entitled for benefit of Order 15 Rule 5 read with Section 20(4) of U.P. Act, 1972. Relevant paragraph of the said judgment is quoted hereinbelow:-

"9.1 A few basic factors related with the provisions of Order XV Rule 5 CPC could be noticed at once. As per these provisions, in a suit by a lessor for eviction of a lessee after the determination of lease and for recovery of rent or compensation for use and occupation, the defendant is under the obligation: (1) to deposit the entire amount admitted by him to be due together with interest at the rate of 9% per annum on or before the first hearing of the suit; and (2) to regularly deposit the monthly amount due within a week of its accrual throughout the pendency of the suit. The consequence of default in making either of these deposits is that the Court may strike off his defence. The expression 'first hearing' means the date for filing written statement or the date for hearing mentioned in the summons; and in case of multiple dates, the last of them. The expression 'monthly amount due' means the amount due every month, whether as rent or damages for use and occupation at the admitted rate of rent after making no other deduction except taxes, if paid to the local authority on lessor's account. It is, however, expected that before making an order striking off defence, the Court would consider the representation of the defendant, if made within 10 days of the first hearing or within 10 days of the expiry of one week from the date of accrual of monthly amount."

Relevant paragraph of the judgment of University Book Depot (supra) is quoted hereinbelow:-

"In view of the aforesaid, this Court is of the view that the Court below erred in relying upon the decision in Bhragu Dutt Singh(Supra) to reject the plea of the revisionist for treating the amount deposited by him under the proviso to Section 17 of the Act, 1887 as a deposit referred in Section 20(4) of the Act, 1972. The legal position is settled that it was permissible to treat such deposit as one under Section 20 (4). After treating it to be so, how far the requirements of Section 20 (4) of the Act, 1972 were satisfied was another aspect which was required to be considered by the Court below but it has not done so. As regards the contention of learned Counsel Mohd. Sayeed that no application had been filed by the revisionist for treating the aforesaid amount as one under Section 20 (4), in view of the decision in Lacchhi Ram, such request could be oral or written. The essence of the matter is as to whether there was a deposit with the Court (custodia legis) on or prior to the date of hearing or not. If it was, then intimation of such deposit with a request to treat it as a deposit under Section 20 (4) and adjust it accordingly is sufficient. This intimation and request could be made in writing or orally. In fact, it would be better if it is made in writing as it would avoid unnecessary disputes on this issue, but even if an oral request is made as was done in this case at the time of arguments as has been mentioned in the judgment itself, then, in such an event, once cognizance of such request has been taken by the Court below, as has been done in this case, then, there was no way this plea could be rejected as impermissible.

28. From perusal of the same, it is apparent that petitioner-defendant is required to deposit the rent at the admitted rate.

29. Learned Senior Counsel disputed the same and argued that petitioner-defendant is required to pay entire amount including the amount for time barred period. Petitioner-defendant has not deposited the rent from 1990 and after passing the ex parte decree, he has deposited decretal amount only in compliance of Section 17 of SCC Act, 1887. He placed reliance upon the judgment of this Court in the case of Sanjay and another vs. Smt. Vimla Rani (supra) relying upon the judgment of Apex Court and this Court. Relevant paragraph of the said judgement is quoted hereinbelow:-

"12. In the plaint, though municipal taxes was claimed since 1.10.1970, but for purposes of valuation and court fees, the arrears of last 3 years alone was taken into consideration, as rest of the amount had since become barred by limitation. It is now no more res integra that for taking benefit of provision of Section 20(4) of the Act, the tenant has to deposit even time barred rent. The phrase "entire amount of rent and damages for use and occupation of the building due from the tenant" employed in Section 20(4) of the Act includes even the claim in respect of time barred rent as held by the Supreme Court in Subhash Chandra vs. Additional District & Sessions Judge, Saharanpur³ and in the Division Bench judgment of this Court in Mahesh Chandra vs. II Addl. District Judge, Meerut and others⁴. Concededly, Rs.1080/- deposited on 11.2.1997 represented the taxes of last three years preceding the date of institution of the suit in the year 1997. The house tax @ 10% on the annual value was levied since 1970. However, the liability to pay water tax @ 10% of the annual value accrued since 15.7.1972, the date on which 'Act' came into force. The arrears of municipal taxes for the period between 15.7.1972 until before three years of the institution of the suit, represents a huge sum, much more than several months rent. The said amount was admittedly not deposited at or before the first date of hearing. Consequently, this Court does not find any illegality in concurrent findings entered by the courts below that the petitioners have not deposited the entire arrears of municipal taxes and were thus not entitled to benefit of Section 20(4) of the Act."

30. From perusal of the above paragraph of the aforesaid judgment, it is apparently clear that for taking benefit of Section 20(4) of U.P. Act No.13 of 1972, it is required on the part of petitioner-defendant to deposit entire dues including amount for time barred period. It is admitted case of petitioner that he has not deposited the rent from 1990 and after ex parte decree while filing application under Order 15 Rule 5 of CPC complying of Section 17 of SCC Act, 1887, he had deposited decretal amount only, therefore, in light of aforesaid judgment, benefit of Section 20(4) of U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972 cannot be extended in favour of petitioner-defendant. Therefore, judgment of Asha Rani Gupta & Universal Book (Supra) is of no use in present controversy as well as in such facts of the case.

31. Another argument of learned counsel for the petitioner that in the sale deed rent was mentioned at the rate of Rs. 800/- whereas in the legal notice as well as plaint, it was claimed at the rate of Rs. 750/-, but respondent-plaintiff could not proof the rent at the rate of Rs. 750/-, therefore, order is bad on this ground. This was also rightly rebutted by learned Senior Counsel for respondent-plaintiff and submitted that though in sale deed, rent was mentioned at the rate of Rs. 800/-, but in the legal notice as well as in plaint, it was claimed at the rate of Rs. 750/-. Against which, petitioner-defendant could not produce any evidence about the rate of rent at the rate of Rs.300/- as per his case.

32. He further submitted that there is concurrent finding of Courts about the rate of rent at the rate of Rs.750/- and in light of law laid down by this Court in the case of Anand Kumar (Supra), Court may not interfere under Article 227 of the Constitution of India. Relevant paragraph of the said judgment is quoted hereinbelow:-

"18. Article 227 of the Constitution confers a supervisory jurisdiction on the High Courts over subordinate courts. The scope of judicial review is limited and narrow. It is not to correct the errors in the orders of the courts below but to remove manifest and patent errors of law and jurisdiction without acting as an appellate authority. Under this constitutional provision, a duty has been cast upon the High Court to keep the inferior courts and tribunals within the bounds of their authority and to see that they do what their duty requires and they do it in a legal manner. Unless there was any grave miscarriage of justice or flagrant violation of law calling for intervention, it is not for the High Court under Articles 226 and 227 of the Constitution to interfere. In Waryam Singh and another Vs. Amarnath and another AIR 1954 SC 215, (at Page-571), Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:-

"This power of superintendence conferred by Article 227 is, as pointed out by Harries, C.J. in Dalmia Jain Airways Ltd. Vs. Sukumar Mukherjee AIR 1951 Cal. 193, to be exercised most sparingly and only in appropriate cases in order to keep the Subordinate Courts within the bounds of their authority and not for correcting mere errors".

22. This power is not in the nature of power of appellate power enabling the Court for re-appreciation of evidence. The Court cannot alter the conclusion reached by the Competent Statutory Authority merely on the ground of insufficiency of evidence vide: Union of India & ors. Vs. Himmat Singh Chahar, (1999) 4 SCC 521.

33. In the present set of facts, concurrent findings of fact has been recorded by both the courts below based on consideration of oral and documentary evidences that the disputed shop was constructed in the year 1987/1988 and first assessment was made effective from the year 1992 and that the petitioner defendant defaulted in payment of rent. These findings are findings of fact based on consideration of material on record. The findings so recorded in the impugned judgment, do not suffer from any manifest error to warrant interference under Article 227 of the Constitution of India inasmuch as the petitioner defendant has completely failed to demonstrate that the findings are so perverse or so unreasonable that no Court could ever have reached them. The power under Article 227 is not in the nature of appellate power enabling High Court to re-appreciate evidence and to alter the conclusion reached by the court below merely on the ground of insufficiency of evidence. No evidence could be pointed by the petitioner defendant to demonstrate that the findings recorded by the Trial Court are perverse. Therefore, the supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 cannot be invoked to interfere with the findings of fact recorded by the courts below. At any rate, as long as the findings are based upon some material which are relevant for the purpose, no interference can be made. Reference to various judgments of Hon'ble Supreme Court as made above would clearly indicate that no interference can be made on the facts of the present case."

33. It is undisputed that there is concurrent finding of Courts on this issue in favour of respondent-plaintiff. From perusal of above paragraphs of the aforesaid judgment, it is clear that there is concurrent finding of Court that scope of judicial review is limited and narrow, therefore, no interference is required under Article 227 of the Constitution of India.

34. The last argument of learned counsel for the petitioner about the declaration of property in question is notified as slum area under the provisions of Section 23 of Act, 1962, therefore, no decree can be passed. This was validly opposed by learned Senior Counsel and submitted that not only after declaration of slum area, but even after acquiring the property in dispute after notification, suit is maintainable and decree can be passed. He supported his argument of the judgment of this Court in the case of Smt. Phoola Devi (supra) & Smt. Shakuntala (supra).

35. To appreciate the controversy Section 23 of Act is quoted hereinbelow:-

Section 23 of Act, 1962

23- Tenant in slum areas not to be evicted without permission of the Competent Authority.- (1) No decree or order for the eviction of a tenant from any building or land in a slum area shall, except as hereinafter provided and till such time the declaration under section 3 is in force, be capable of being executed ; anything contained in any other law for the time being in force to the contrary notwithstanding.

(2) A decree or order referred to in sub-section (1) may be put into execution after obtaining the permission of the Competent Authority in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (3).

(3) An application for obtaining the permission of the Competent Authority under sub-section (2) shall be made in such form and contain such particulars as may be prescribed.

(4) On receipt of such application the permission of the Competent Authority, after affording reasonable opportunity to the applicant and the tenant of being heard and after making such inquiry into the circumstances of the case as it thinks fit, may, where it is of the opinion that the execution of the decree or order shall defeat or be detrimental to the enforcement of the provisions of the Act, reject the application but in all other cases grant it.

(5) Where the Competent Authority refuses to grant the permission, it shall record in brief its reasons for such refusal and make available a copy thereof to the applicant.

36. This was interpreted in the judgment of this Court in the case of Phoola Devi (supra). Relevant Paragraph of the said judgment is quoted hereinbelow:-

"22. It would also be pertinent to refer to the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Sheela Jawarlal Nagori & Another Vs. Kantilal Nathmal Baldota & Others 2014 (3) ARC (5) wherein Apex Court has held that landlord can maintain a suit for eviction against tenant even if the tenanted property has been acquired and an award has been passed in respect thereof under the provision of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894. Further, this court in the case of Raju Savita (supra) has held that in a suit for eviction, only the relationship of landlord and tenant is to be seen.

23. It is evident from the aforesaid discussion that the relationship of landlord and tenant is established between the respondent and the petitioner, therefore, the suit of the respondent was maintainable. Consequently, this court does not find any merit in the submission of the counsel for the petitioner that the suit was not maintainable as on the acquisition of the suit property by KDA, the tile of respondent over suit property had vanished and the relationship of landlord and tenant had ceased to exist between the parties."

37. Ratio of law is also followed in the judgment of this Court in the case of Smt.

Shakuntala (Supra). Relevant paragraph of the said judgment is quoted hereinbelow:-

"The contention of the petitioners is not acceptable. The declaration of an area as slum area under Section 3 of the Act, 1962 does not automatically result in acquisition of the properties situated in the said area.

Section 23 of the Act, 1962 only provides that a decree or order can be put in execution only after obtaining the permission of the competent authority. Section 23 of the Act, 1962 does not prohibit the institution of any suit. Apart from the aforesaid even if the claim of the petitioners that the land in the slum area stood acquired, the building situated in the said land does not automatically vest in the acquiring authority.

In my aforesaid views, I am supported by the judgment dated 21.5.2014 passed by the Court in Writ-A No. 28288 of 2014 and judgment of this Court reported in Smt. Bano Vs. Ashad Ulla Khan and 4 others, 2017(3) ARC 807 as well as the judgment of this Court reported in Smt. Phoola Devi and 4 others Vs. Additional District Judge Court No.14, Kanpur Nagar and 2 others, 2020(2) ARC 610.

For the aforesaid reasons, the petition lacks merits and is dismissed."

38. From perusal of the Section 23 of Act, 1962, it is apparently clear that eviction cannot be made without permission of Competent Authority, but so far as decree or order for eviction is concerned, there is no such provision in Section 23 of Act, 1962.

39. From conjoint perusal of the Section 23 of Act, 1962 and judgments of this Court in the case of Smt. Shakuntala Devi & Phoola Devi (supra), it is very much clear that suit is maintainable and judgment and decree can be passed. Therefore, this argument of learned counsel for the petitioner is also having no force.

40. In light of facts and circumstances of the case as well as law discussed hereinabove, no case is made out for interference in the impugned orders. The petition lacks merit and is, accordingly, dismissed. No order as to costs.

A. Civil Law – Admission of Additional Evidence – Code of Civil Procedure 1908 - Order 41 Rule 27, Section 107(1)(d) - The basic principle of admission of additional evidence is that the person seeking admission of additional evidence should be able to establish that with the best efforts such additional evidence could not have been adduced at the first instance.
(Para 7)

As a general rule, in terms of sub-rule (1) of Rule 27, the appellate court is to decide an appeal on the evidence led by the parties before the trial court and is not to admit additional evidence for the purpose of disposal of an appeal. Section 107(1)(d), however carves out an exception to the general rule, and empowers the appellate court to take additional evidence or requires such evidence to be taken subject to the conditions laid down in Rule 27 of Order 41. (Para 6)

There are conditions precedent before allowing a party to adduce additional evidence at the stage of appeal, which specifically incorporates conditions to the effect that the party in spite of due diligence could not produce the evidence and the same cannot be allowed to be done at his leisure or sweet will. (Para 11)

B. The appellate court should not pass an order so as to patch up the weakness of the evidence of the unsuccessful party before the trial court, but it will be different if the court itself requires the evidence to do justice between the parties. The ability to pronounce judgment is to be understood as the ability to pronounce judgment satisfactorily to the mind of the court. But mere difficulty is not sufficient to issue such direction. (Para 12)

C. Power of superintendence conferred u/Article 227, is to be exercised most sparingly and within the parameters laid down by the Supreme Court. (Para 14)

Petitioners have not been able to dispute the aforementioned legal position. They have not been able to point out as to how the conditions precedent mentioned u/Order 41 Rule 27 (1) were satisfied in their case so as to enable the additional evidence to be admitted by the appellate court, nor has been able to point out any material error or irregularity in the order passed by the court below so as to warrant interference in exercise of power under Article 227 of the Constitution of India. Present petition challenges order dated 16.04.2019 passed by District Judge, Aligarh, whereby the application filed by the petitioners-tenant seeking to adduce additional evidence under Order 41 Rule 27 C.P.C. has been rejected.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Vijay Mani Tiwari, learned counsel for the petitioners and Sri Pankaj Agarwal, learned counsel for the respondents.

2. The present petition seeks to challenge the order dated 16.04.2019, passed by the District Judge, Aligarh in U.P.U.B. Appeal No.15 of 2017 (Smt. Surendra Kaur and others Vs. Vivek Gupta and others), whereby, the application filed by the petitioners-tenant (Application No.11 Ga) seeking to adduce additional evidence under Order 41 Rule 27 C.P.C. has been rejected.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioners has placed reliance upon the Application No. 11 Ga, which had been filed in Appeal and submits that the petitioners' evidence was required to be adduced for the reason that the earlier counsel did not effectively pursue the case and did not tender proper advice and as such it was necessary that the evidence be permitted to be adduced at the stage of appeal.

4. The court below has rejected the aforementioned contention by stating that additional evidence could only be taken as per the provisions under Order 41 Rule 27 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and lack of proper legal advice or inadvertence could not be a ground for adducing additional evidence.

5. Rule 27 under Order 41 of the Code of Civil Procedure enumerates the circumstances in which the appellate court may admit additional evidence, whether oral or documentary in appeal, and they are as under :-

(i) Where the lower court has improperly refused to admit evidence which ought to have been admitted, or

(ii) Where such additional evidence was not within the knowledge of the party or could not, after the exercise of due diligence, be produced by him at the time when the decree appealed against was passed, or

(iii) Where the appellate court requires such evidence either to enable it to pronounce judgment, or for any other substantial cause.

6. As a general rule, in terms of sub-rule (1) of Rule 27, the appellate court is to decide an appeal on the evidence led by the parties before the trial court and is not to admit additional evidence for the purpose of disposal of an appeal. Section 107 (1) (d), however carves out an exception to the general rule, and empowers the appellate court to take additional evidence or requires such evidence to be taken subject to the conditions laid down in Rule 27 of Order 41.

7. In Shivajirao Nilangekar Patil and Ors. Vs. Mahesh Madhav Gosavi and Ors.¹, it was held that the basic principle of admission of additional evidence is that the person seeking admission of additional evidence should be able to establish that with the best efforts such additional evidence could not have been adduced at the first instance. The relevant observations in the aforementioned judgment are as follows :-

"27.....The basic principle of admission of additional evidence is that the person seeking the admission of additional evidence should be able to establish that with the best efforts such additional evidence could not have been adduced at the first instance. Secondly the party affected by the admission of additional evidence should have an opportunity to rebut such additional evidence. Thirdly, that additional evidence was relevant for the determination of the issue....."

8. In the case at hand, the application of the petitioners for adducing additional evidence in the appellate court would be referable to sub-rule (aa) under Order 41 Rule 27 (1).

9. The aforementioned sub-rule (aa) was introduced in terms of C.P.C. (Amendment) Act 104 of 1976 as another ground on which additional evidence may be produced in the appellate court. The intention of Rule 27 (1) (aa) is that the party who, for reasons mentioned therein, was unable to produce the evidence in the trial court, should be enabled to produce the same in the appellate court. In the event sub-rule (aa) under Order 41 Rule 27 (1) is to be applied, the onus is on the applicant to show that the ingredients or conditions precedent therein are satisfied.

10. The conditions required for application of sub-rule (aa) under Order 41 Rule 27(1) came up for consideration in the case of K.R.Mohan Reddy Vs. Net Work Inc.² The Supreme Court after referring to the earlier judgments in the case of State of Gujarat Vs. Mahendra Kumar Parshottambhai Desai (dead) by L.Rs.³ and Municipal Corporation of Greater Bombay Vs. Lal Pancham and others,⁴ in the context of adduction of additional evidence at the appellate stage in terms of provisions under Order 41 Rule 27 (1), held that in the event sub-rule (aa) is to be applied, the onus would be on the applicant to show that the ingredients or conditions precedent mentioned therein are satisfied, and a good reason must also be shown as to why the evidence was not produced before the trial court. The observations made in the aforementioned judgment are as follows :-

"15. The High Court, unfortunately did not enter into the said questions at all. As indicated hereinbefore, the High Court proceeded on the basis as if Clause(b) of Sub-rule (1) of Rule 27 of Order XLI of CPC was applicable.

16. It is now a trite law that the conditions precedent for application of Clause (aa) of Sub-rule (1) of Rule 27 of Order XLI is different from that of Clause (b). In the event the former is to be applied, it would be for the applicant to show that the ingredients or conditions precedent mentioned therein are satisfied. On the other hand Clause(b) to Sub-rule (1) of Rule 27 of Order XLI of CPC is to be taken recourse to, the appellate Court was bound to consider the entire evidences on record and come to an independent finding for arriving at a just decision; adduction of additional evidence as has been prayed by the appellant was necessary.

17. The fact that the High Court failed to do so, in our opinion, amounts to misdirection in law. Furthermore, if the High Court is correct in its view that the plaintiff-respondent had proceeded on the basis that the suit in its entirety based on a cheque, wherefor, it was not necessary for it to file the books of accounts before the trial Court, finding contrary thereto could not have been arrived at that the same was in fact required to be proved so as to enable the appellate Court to arrive at a just conclusion.

18. The Supreme Court in State of Gujarat v. Mahendra Kumar Parshottambhai Desai(dead) by L.Rs. AIR 2006 SC 1864 relying upon Municipal Corporation of Greater Bombay v. Lal Pancham and Ors., held as under:

Though the appellate Court has the power to allow a document to be produced and a witness to be examined under Order XLI Rule 27 CPC, the requirement of the said Court must be limited to those cases where it found it necessary to obtain such evidence for enabling it to pronounce judgment. This provision did not entitle the appellate court to let in fresh evidence at the appellate stage where even without such evidence it can pronounce judgment in the case. It does not entitle the appellate court to let in fresh evidence only for purposes of pronouncement of judgment in a particular way.

19. Appellate Court should not pass an order so as to patch up the weakness of the evidence of the unsuccessful party before the trial Court, but it will be different if the Court itself require the evidence to do justice between the parties. The ability to pronounce judgment is to be understood as the ability to pronounce judgment satisfactorily to the mind of the Court. But mere difficulty is not sufficient to issue such direction. While saying so, however, we do not mean that the Court at an appropriate stage would be precluded from considering the applicability of Clause (b)."

11. The conditions precedent for grant of permission for production of additional evidence at appellate stage under Order 41 Rule 27 (1) (aa), were restated in the case of State of Karnataka and another Vs. K.C.Subramanya and others.⁵ The relevant observations made in the judgment are as follows :-

"4. However, we do not feel impressed with this argument and deem it fit to reject it in view of Order 41 Rule 27(1)(aa) which clearly states as follows:

"27. (1)(a)

(aa) the party seeking to produce additional evidence, establishes that notwithstanding the exercise of due diligence, such evidence was not within his knowledge or could not, after the exercise of due diligence, be produced by him at the time when the decree appealed against was passed, or

(b) ***"

On perusal of this provision, it is unambiguously clear that the party can seek liberty to produce additional evidence at the appellate stage, but the same can be permitted only if the evidence sought to be produced could not be produced at the stage of trial in spite of exercise of due diligence and that the evidence could not be produced as it was not within his knowledge and hence was fit to be produced by the appellant before the appellate forum.

5. It is thus clear that there are conditions precedent before allowing a party to adduce additional evidence at the stage of appeal, which specifically incorporates conditions to the effect that the party in spite of due diligence could not produce the evidence and the same cannot be allowed to be done at his leisure or sweet will."

12. Placing reliance upon the judgments in the case of K.R.Mohan Reddy Vs. Net Work Inc.², North Eastern Railway Admn. Vs. Bhagwan Das⁶, N. Kamalam Vs. Ayyasamy⁷ and Union of India Vs. Ibrahim Uddin⁸, the principles with regard to adduction of additional evidence at appellate stage were summarized in the case of A.Andisamy Chettiar Vs. A.Subburaj Chettiar,⁹ and it was stated that unless conditions mentioned under Order 41 Rule 27 are fulfilled, additional evidence cannot be adduced at appellate stage. The relevant extract from the judgment is as follows :-

"11. Under the scheme of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (for short "the Code") whether oral or documentary, it is the trial court before whom parties are required to adduce their evidence. But in three exceptional circumstances additional evidence can be adduced before the appellate court, as provided under Section 107(1)(d) read with Rule 27 of Order 41 of the Code. Rule 27 of Order 41 reads as under:

"27.Production of additional evidence in appellate court.--(1) The parties to an appeal shall not be entitled to produce additional evidence, whether oral or documentary, in the appellate court. But if--

(a) The court from whose decree the appeal is preferred has refused to admit evidence which ought to have been admitted, or

(aa) the party seeking to produce additional evidence, establishes that notwithstanding the exercise of due diligence, such evidence was not within his knowledge or could not, after the exercise of due diligence, be produced by him at the time when the decree appealed against was passed, or

(b) The appellate court requires any document to be produced or any witness to be examined to enable it to pronounce judgment, or for any other substantial cause, the appellate court may allow such evidence or document to be produced, or witness to be examined.

(2) Wherever additional evidence is allowed to be produced by an appellate court, the court shall record the reason for its admission."

12. From the opening words of sub-rule (1) of Rule 27, quoted above, it is clear that the parties are not entitled to produce additional evidence whether oral or documentary in the appellate court, but for the three situations mentioned above. The parties are not allowed to fill the lacunae at the appellate stage. It is against the spirit of the Code to allow a party to adduce additional evidence without fulfilment of either of the three conditions mentioned in Rule 27. In the case at hand, no application was moved before the trial court seeking scientific examination of the document (Ext.A-4), nor can it be said that the plaintiff with due diligence could not have moved such an application to get proved the documents relied upon by him. Now it is to be seen whether the third condition i.e. one contained in clause (b) of sub-rule (1) of Rule 27 is fulfilled or not.

13. In K.R. Mohan Reddy v. Net Work Inc. [K.R. Mohan Reddy v. Net Work Inc., (2007) 14 SCC 257] this Court has held as under: (SCC p. 261, para 19)

"19. The appellate court should not pass an order so as to patch up the weakness of the evidence of the unsuccessful party before the trial court, but it will be different if the court itself requires the evidence to do justice between the parties. The ability to pronounce judgment is to be understood as the ability to pronounce judgment satisfactorily to the mind of the court. But mere difficulty is not sufficient to issue such direction."

14. In North Eastern Railway Admn. v. Bhagwan Das [North Eastern Railway Admn. v. Bhagwan Das, (2008) 8 SCC 511] this Court observed thus: (SCC pp. 515-16, para 13)

"13. Though the general rule is that ordinarily the appellate court should not travel outside the record of the lower court and additional evidence, whether oral or documentary is not admitted but Section 107 CPC, which carves out an exception to the general rule, enables an appellate court to take additional evidence or to require such evidence to be taken subject to such conditions and limitations as may be prescribed. These conditions are prescribed under Order 41 Rule 27 CPC. Nevertheless, the additional evidence can be admitted only when the circumstances as stipulated in the said Rule are found to exist."

15. In N.Kamalam v. Ayyasamy [N.Kamalam v. Ayyasamy, (2001) 7 SCC 503] this Court, interpreting Rule 27 of Order 41 of the Code, has observed in para 19 as under: (SCC p. 514)

"19. ... the provisions of Order 41 Rule 27 have not been engrafted in the Code so as to patch up the weak points in the case and to fill up the omission in the court of appeal-- it does not authorise any lacunae or gaps in the evidence to be filled up. The authority and jurisdiction as conferred on to the appellate court to let in fresh evidence is restricted to the purpose of pronouncement of judgment in a particular way."

16. In Union of India v. Ibrahim Uddin [Union of India v. Ibrahim Uddin, (2012) 8 SCC 148 : (2012) 4 SCC (Civ) 362] this Court has held as under: (SCC p. 171, para 49)

"49. An application under Order 41 Rule 27 CPC is to be considered at the time of hearing of appeal on merits so as to find out whether the documents and/or the evidence sought to be adduced have any relevance/bearing on the issues involved. The admissibility of additional evidence does not depend upon the relevancy to the issue on hand, or on the fact, whether the applicant had an opportunity for adducing such evidence at an earlier stage or not, but it depends upon whether or not the appellate court requires the evidence sought to be adduced to enable it to pronounce judgment or for any other substantial cause. The true test, therefore is, whether the appellate court is able to pronounce judgment on the materials before it without taking into consideration the additional evidence sought to be adduced."

13. Counsel for the petitioners has not been able to dispute the aforementioned legal position.

14. This Court may also take notice of the fact that the power of superintendence conferred under Article 227, is to be exercised most sparingly and within the parameters which have been summarized in the case of *Shalini Shyam Shetty and another Vs. Rajendra Shankar Patil*¹⁰, and also in the case of *Radhey Shyam and another Vs. Chhabi Nath and others*¹¹.

15. Learned counsel for the petitioners have not been able to point out as to how the conditions precedent mentioned under Order 41 Rule 27 (1) were satisfied in their case so as to enable the additional evidence to be admitted by the appellate court, nor has been able to point out any material error or irregularity in the order passed by the court below so as to warrant interference in exercise of power under Article 227 of the Constitution of India.

16. The petition lacks merit and it is, accordingly, dismissed.

Counsel for the Petitioner:

Sri Punit Kumar Gupta, Ms. Poorva Agarwal, Sri Nasiruzzaman, Sri W.H. Khan (Sr. Advocate), Sri S.F.A. Naqvi (Sr. Advocate)

Counsel for the Respondents:

Sri Prabhash Pandey, Sri Birendra Prasad Maurya, Sri Kamlesh Narayan Pandey, Ms. Pooja Agarwal, Sri Prabhash Pandey, Ms. Priyanka Swami, Ms. Ritu Bhardwaj, Sri Pradeep Sharma, Mrs. Garima Prasad, Sr. Advocate/Add. A.G.

A. Civil Law – Jurisdiction u/Art. 226, 227 - A plaint duly instituted u/s 26 of the CPC has to be registered and in light of provisions contained in Section 27 of CPC, if the suit is duly instituted, summons have to be issued to the Defendants. The Trial Court treated the Plaint as a Misc. Case and decided a question of maintainability of the suit which is not permissible in law. The Civil Judge (S.D.), has not even exercised its powers u/Order 7 Rule 11 of the CPC and has rejected the plaint duly presented by treating it as a Miscellaneous Case. There is no provision in CPC to register any regular suit as a Miscellaneous Case. The Plaintiffs had not filed any application which could be treated as a Misc. Case. The Plaintiffs had filed Suit. The Trial Court therefore clearly committed manifest error of law in registering the suit as a Miscellaneous case and hearing it on the question of maintainability. (Para 12, 17)

B. It is well settled that if an appeal has been filed against an order or decree against which no appeal is maintainable, the Court can treat the appeal as revision. The Plaintiffs had filed an Appeal against the order dated 30.09.2020 treating the order to be passed u/Order 7 Rule 11 CPC. The District Judge held by order dated 18.01.2021 that the order dated 30.09.2020 could not be treated as an order u/Order 7 Rule 11 CPC and therefore held that Appeal was not maintainable, Revision was maintainable. Order dated 18.01.2021 has been challenged and instead the parties participated in revision proceedings before the District Judge over several hearings and raised all their contentions. (Para 18)

C. No objection was raised as to the lack of pecuniary jurisdiction before the District judge in revision proceedings and this issue cannot be permitted to be raised by the Petitioners for the first time before this Court in jurisdiction u/Article 227. It is noteworthy to mention that at Para 83 of the plaint, the valuation of the suit is stated as Rs. 20,00,000/- and as per the provisions of Section 115 of CPC r/w Chapter II of Civil Laws Uttar Pradesh (Amendment) Act 2019 the Revision u/s 115 of CPC upto Rs. 25,00,000/- would lie before the District Judge. (Para 18)

D. The Defendant comes into picture the moment summons are issued to him. At the time of dismissing the suit, the Civil Judge (Senior Division) had not issued summons to the Defendants (Petitioners herein) and therefore, the question of registration of the suit was between the court and the plaintiffs.

The District Judge framed many points on the basis of the arguments raised on behalf of the Defendants, as recorded in the impugned judgment. These questions were not needed to be decided as the Defendant had right to file its Written Statement, deny the facts and law therein, and the Court u/Order 14 Rule 1 CPC was then to frame issues and after issues were framed, parties are entitled to lead evidence. In absence of framing of issues and permitting parties to lead evidence, matter could not have been decided. It was however, open to decide the question of preliminary issues, but as to what will be the preliminary issues will also have to be decided under Order XIV Rule 2(ii) CPC being jurisdiction of the court and bar created by any law. Entire procedure laid down in law has been by-passed and findings on the merits of the case have been given which is not permissible in law. (Para 19, 20)

E. Scope of interference - The questions regarding the maintainability of a regular civil suit and its merits, which could not have been decided by the Trial Court without following the due procedure as per the Code, and further the contentious questions were not required to be decided by the District Judge in a Revision Petition. In any case, these questions cannot be now decided by this Court in a petition under Article 227. Any observations by this Court will prejudice the rights and contentions of both the parties. The suit has now been registered as suit No. 353 of 2022. Summons have already been issued by the trial court on 26.05.2022 for filing the respective Written Statements and framing of issues. (Para 21)

When the suit itself was not registered, how could the valuation of the Miscellaneous case be a subject matter of objection in a revision petition. Various findings by the District Judge given on the merits of case, were made in view of the arguments raised before the Revision Court by the Petitioners herein. These questions also cannot be decided by this Hon'ble Court in jurisdiction u/Article 227. (Para 14, 15)

Both the petitions are disposed of by remanding the matter back to the Trial Court with directions to adjudicate the Civil Suit No. 353 of 2022 after following due procedure as per law without being influenced by any observation or findings of the District Judge vide impugned order dated 19.05.2022. All the parties are free to raise all their contentions before the trial Court. (Para 22)

Both petitions are disposed of by remanding the matter back to the Trial Court. (E-4)

Present petition challenges the judgment and order dated 19.05.2022, passed by District Judge Mathura, by which the judgement and order dated 30.09.2020 passed by the Civil Judge (Senior Division), Mathura has been set aside.

1. Heard Shri W.H. Khan, learned Senior Counsel along-with Shri S.F.A.,

Naqvi, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Shri Punit Kumar Gupta, Ms. Poorva Agarwal and Shri Nasiruzzaman, learned counsel for the petitioner in both the petitions and Mrs. Garima Prasad, learned Senior Counsel/Additional Advocate General of State of U.P. along-with Ms. Priyanka Swami, Ms. Ritu Bhardawaj, Ms. Pooja Agarwal, Mr. Prabhash Pandey and Mr. Pradeep Sharma, learned counsel on behalf of contesting respondents namely respondent nos. 1 to 8, Shri Kamlesh Narayan Pandey, learned counsel appearing on behalf of respondent no.10 namely Sri Krishna Janam Bhumi Trust, Mathura, Through the Managing Director and Shri Birendra Prasad Maurya, learned counsel appearing on behalf of respondent no.11 namely Sri Krishna Janam Asthan Sewa Sansthan, Through its Secretary.

2. The above petitions have been filed under Article 227 of the Constitution of India challenging the judgment and order dated 19.05.2022 passed by District Judge Mathura in Civil Revision No. 02/2021 (Bhagwan Sri Krishna Virajman us. UP Sunni Central Waqf Board and others) by which the judgement and order dated 30.09.2020 passed by the Civil Judge (Senior Division), Mathura in Misc. Case No. 176 of 2020 has been set aside. Common questions are raised and thus, both the matters are taken up together and are being disposed of by a common order with the consent of the parties.

3. The brief facts of the case are that a regular Civil Suit was filed on 25.09.2020 by the Respondent nos. 1 to 9 herein/Plaintiffs before the Court of Civil Judge (Senior Division), Mathura claiming right over the property in dispute situated at Katra Keshav Dev measuring 13.37 acres which according to the Plaintiffs is birthplace of Lord Krishna and for removal of the structure standing thereat and prayed for issuing decree in the nature of declaration, mandatory and prohibitory injunction and also for cancelling the alleged fraudulent compromise decree dated 20.07.1973 and 07.11.1974. The following reliefs were sought:

(a) decree the suit in favour of Plaintiffs and against the Defendants, cancelling the judgment and decree dated 20.07.1972 and Judgment and decree dated 07.11.1974 passed in Civil Suit no. 43 of 1967 by Ld. Civil Judge Mathura;

(b) declare that the judgment and decree dated 20.07.1973 and the judgment and decree dated 07.11.1974 and passed in Civil Suit No. 43 of 1967 by Ld. Civil Judge, Mathura is not binding on the Plaintiffs;

(c) Decree the suit for declaration declaring that land measuring 13.37 acres of Katra Keshav Dev shown by letters A,B,C,D and the site plan vest in the deity Lord Shree Krishna Virajman:

(d) Decree the suit for mandatory injunction in favour of the Plaintiffs and against the Defendants no. 1 and 2 directing them to remove the construction raised by them encroaching upon the land shown by Letters No.E,B,G,F in the site plan within the area of Katra Keshav Dev City Mathura and to handover vacant possession to Shree Krishna Janmabhoomi Trust within the time provided by the Hon'ble Court;

(e) Decree the suit for prohibitory injunction restraining defendant No.1 and 2, their workers, supporters, men, attorneys and eerie person acting under them from entering into premises of 13.37 acres land at Katra Keshav Dev, City and District Mathura;

(f) The Hon'ble Court may pass any other decree for which Plaintiffs are found entitled to or which may be necessary to be passed in the interest of justice;

(g) Award the costs of the suit."

4. When the suit was presented before the Civil Judge (Senior Division) on 25.09.2020, the Civil Judge (S.D.), did not register the suit as a civil suit and in turn registered the case as a Miscellaneous case on the ground that the Plaintiff Nos. 3 to 8 are not residents of Mathura whereas the property in question is situated in District Mathura. The Civil Judge (S.D.), instead of registering the suit passed order treating it as Misc. Case No. 176 of 2020 and fixed the next date of hearing on the question of maintainability of suit on 30.09.2020.

5. The Civil Judge (S.D.) dismissed the Misc Case No. 176 of 2020 at the threshold on the ground that the Respondents are devotees /worshippers and if the suit is allowed to be filed, the social and judicial system will collapse and they do not have a Right to Sue. The operative part of the order dated 30.05.2020 holds as under:

"..8. It is well known that Lord Krishna is the revered deity of Hindu religion and is known as an incarnation of Lord Shri Vishnu. There are innumerable devotees and worshipers of Lord Shri Krishna all over the world, if in this way every devotee and worshipper is allowed to file a case, then the Judicial and social system will collapse. Admittedly, the applicants are not parties to the decree in question, nor are they as trustees. Granting permission to the applicants to file a case on the basis of being merely a devotee does not appear to be just and reasonable and filing a case by a devotee is also not permissible in the eyes of the law.

9. After all the above deliberations, it is concluded that the applicants do not have the Right to Sue for presenting the present case. There is thus, no sufficient ground to register the present case as a regular Suit. Therefore, the Misc. Case deserves to be dismissed.

Miscellaneous case is dismissed. File be consigned Record Room."

6. The Respondent nos. 1 to 9/Plaintiffs then filed Appeal no. 02 of 2021 before the District Judge Mathura. At this stage, on 16.10.2020, the District Judge issued notice to the Petitioners herein (Defendants in the Suit). The Petitioners herein filed Application No. 66-Ga raising Objection to the maintainability of the Appeal. Meanwhile, the Civil Judge (S.D.) also rejected the application of the Plaintiffs seeking a copy of decree on the ground that the order dated 30.09.2020 had not been passed under Order 7 Rule 11 CPC. Accordingly, vide order dated 18.01.2021, the District Judge held that the order dated 30.09.2020 could not be treated as an order under Order 7 Rule 11 CPC, and therefore Appeal was not maintainable. The Appeal was thus directed to be registered as a Revision Petition consequent to which the same was registered as Civil Revision No. 02 of 2021.

7. While disposing the Revision Petition, the District Judge framed many points on the basis of the arguments raised on behalf of the Petitioners herein (Defendants to the suit) namely:

(i) whether the Revision is maintainable or not against the impugned order dated 30.09.2020?

(ii) Whether a worshipper as the next friend of deity can file suit for the restoration and re-establishment of religious rights of the deity?

(iii) Whether the plaintiffs are entitled to maintain the suit challenging the compromise judgment and decree dated 20.07.1973 and 07.11.1973 passed in Civil Suit No.43 of 1967 by Ld. Civil Judge, Mathura, on the ground of fraud, misrepresentation and collusion?

(iv) Whether the provisions of the Places of Worships (Special Provisions) Act 1991 will be applicable or not?

(v) Whether the impugned order suffers from manifest error of law and the court below has failed to exercise the jurisdiction vested in it by law?

8. The District Judge gave detailed findings on each of the above points and finally set aside the order dated 30.09.2020 by the impugned judgment dated 19.05.2022 holding that the Trial Court had committed illegality and manifest error, thereby directed the Trial Court to hear both the parties and pass appropriate order in light of the observations made by it in the Revision Petition.

9. Learned Senior Counsel for the Respondent nos. 1 to 9 informs that subsequent to the impugned order, the case came to be listed before the Trial Court on 26.05.2022 when the Civil suit was registered as Original Suit No. 353 of 2022 and summons were issued by the trial court fixing 01.07.2022 for filing the Written Statements and framing of issues. Thereafter, this Court by an interim order dated 03.08.2022 in Petition No. 5967 of 2022 stayed further proceedings before the trial court.

10. Pleadings are complete. I have perused the records and heard the parties at length. With the consent of counsel for the parties, the present petition is disposed of finally.

11. Shri W.H. Khan, learned Senior Counsel for the Petitioner in Petition No. 5967 of 2022 has raised the issue of pecuniary jurisdiction of the Revisional Court and has contended that since the valuation of the Plaint is Rs.42,26,230.40/- which is more than Rs.25 lakhs, the revision petition would lie before the High Court. Also, that the District Judge committed a manifest error of law by converting the civil appeal into a civil revision. The learned Senior Counsel further submits that the District Judge has exceeded his jurisdiction in giving findings on merits on the disputed questions of the suit and entered into a realm which is totally beyond his powers.

12. Mrs. Garima Prashad, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the Respondent nos. 1 to 9 contends that the only question before the Revisional Court was whether a regular Civil Suit upon its due presentation before a competent Civil Court can be refused to be registered as a Civil Suit, and instead whether it can be registered and dismissed as a Miscellaneous Case. As per the learned Senior Counsel, there is no provision in Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (CPC) to consider the Plaint as a Miscellaneous case. The learned Senior Counsel refers to Order IV of the CPC which mandates registration of suit upon due presentation, and Order XIV which provides for framing issues as well as the preliminary issues. It is submitted that the trial court erred in dismissing the suit at the threshold by wrongly framing the question of maintainability of the suit and deciding the same, without even registering the suit itself, and thus, the District Judge was justified in setting it aside.

13. At this stage, regarding the aforesaid submission on behalf of the Respondents, this Court put a specific query to Shri W. H Khan learned Senior Counsel for the Petitioners, to which the Learned Senior Counsel fairly accepted the legal position that no findings on any issue could be given by any Court of law on any civil suit without first registering it as a civil suit and following the procedure as per law.

14. In response to the issue of lack of pecuniary jurisdiction, it is submitted by Mrs. Garima Prashad, learned Senior Counsel for the Respondents, that no such objection was raised before the District Judge and that the same cannot be raised for the first time before this Hon'ble Court in the jurisdiction under Article 227. Further, Para 83 of the Suit states that the valuation of the suit for the purposes of jurisdiction is only Rs.20 lakhs whereas the figure of Rs.42,26,230.40/- being relied upon by the Petitioners does not find mention anywhere in the Complaint and is sum total of reliefs sought for purposes of Court fee. It is further submitted that when the suit itself was not registered, how could the valuation of the Miscellaneous case be a subject matter of objection in a revision petition. Lastly, it is submitted that in any event, in such a case the Hon'ble High Court would not interfere in its discretionary powers under Article 226 and 227, because even if the Revision for some reason was incompetent, the Revision court had record before it and gave effect to the correct legal position.

15. In response to the various findings by the District Judge given on the merits of case, Mrs. Garima Prashad, learned Senior counsel submits that the same were made in view of the arguments raised before the Revision Court by the Petitioners herein. She submits that these questions also cannot be decided by this Hon'ble Court in jurisdiction under Article 227 and urges that the stay order dated 03.08.2022 be vacated and the Trial Court be directed to proceed with the civil suit in accordance with law.

16. Learned Counsel for the Respondent nos. 10 and 11 adopt the submissions of the learned Senior Counsel for the Respondent nos. 1 to 9.

17. At the outset, a perusal of the record shows that the Civil Suit which was duly instituted by the plaintiffs was wrongly registered as a Miscellaneous Case by the Civil Judge (S.D.). Order IV of the Code provides for the institution of suits. Rule 1 of Order IV says suit to commence by presentation of plaint. Rule 1(2) of Order IV says every plaint shall comply with the rules in Order VI and VII, so far as they are applicable. Order VI relates to pleadings and Order VII relates to the contents of the plaint. Upon presentation of the Complaint, under Rule 2 of Order IV, the Court "shall" cause particulars of every suit to be registered. There is no provision in CPC to register any regular suit as a Miscellaneous Case. The Plaintiffs had not filed any application which could be treated as a Misc. Case. The Plaintiffs had filed Suit. The Trial Court treated the Complaint as a Misc. Case and decided a question of maintainability of the suit which is not permissible in law. A plaint duly instituted u/s 26 of the CPC has to be registered and in light of provisions contained in Section 27 of CPC, if the suit is duly instituted, summons have to be issued to the Defendants. It is noteworthy to mention here that the Civil Judge (S.D.), has not even exercised its powers under order 7 Rule 11 of the CPC and has rejected the plaint duly presented by treating it as a Miscellaneous Case. The Trial Court therefore clearly committed manifest error of law in registering the suit as a Miscellaneous case and hearing it on the question of maintainability.

18. The Plaintiffs had filed an Appeal against the order dated 30.09.2020 treating the order to be passed under Order 7 Rule 11 CPC. The District Judge held by order dated 18.01.2021 that the order dated 30.09.2020 could not be treated as an order under Order 7 Rule 11 CPC and therefore held that Appeal was not maintainable, Revision was maintainable and directed the Revision to be numbered accordingly. It is well settled that if an appeal has been filed against an order or decree against which no appeal is maintainable, the Court can treat the appeal as revision. I also find that this order dated 18.01.2021 has been challenged and instead the parties participated in revision proceedings before the District Judge over several hearings and raised all their contentions. No objection was raised as to the lack of pecuniary jurisdiction before the District judge in revision proceedings and this issue cannot be permitted to be raised by the Petitioners for the first time before this Court in jurisdiction under Article 227. It is noteworthy to mention that at Para 83 of the plaint, the valuation of the suit is stated as Rs.20,00,000/- and as per the provisions of Section 115 of CPC r/w Chapter II of Civil Laws Uttar Pradesh (Amendment) Act 2019 the Revision u/s 115 of CPC upto Rs 25,00,000/- would lie before the District Judge.

19. The District Judge framed many points on the basis of the arguments raised on behalf of the Defendants, as recorded in the impugned judgment. These questions were not needed to be decided as the Defendant had right to file its Written Statement, deny the facts and law therein, and the Court under Order 14 Rule 1 CPC was then to frame issues and after issues were framed, parties are entitled to lead evidence. In absence of framing of issues and permitting parties to lead evidence, matter could not have been decided. It was however, open to decide the question of preliminary issues, but as to what will be the preliminary issues will also have to be decided under Order XIV Rule 2(ii) CPC being jurisdiction of the court and bar created by any law. Entire procedure laid down in law has been by-passed and findings on the merits of the case have been given which is not permissible in law.

20. At the time of dismissing the suit, the Civil Judge (Senior Division) had not issued summons to the Defendants (Petitioners herein) and therefore, the question of registration of the suit was between the court and the plaintiffs. The Defendant comes into picture the moment summons are issued to him.

21. This Court is conscious that the questions regarding the maintainability of a regular civil suit and its merits, which could not have been decided by the Trial Court without following the due procedure as per the Code, and further the contentious questions were not required to be decided by the District Judge in a Revision Petition. In any case, these questions cannot be now decided by this Court in a petition under Article 227. Any observations by this Court will prejudice the rights and contentions of both the parties. The suit has now been registered as suit no. 353 of 2022. Summons have already been issued by the trial court on 26.05.2022 for filing the respective Written Statements and framing of issues.

22. In light of the above, both the petitions are disposed of by remanding the matter back to the Trial Court with directions to adjudicate the Civil Suit no. 353 of 2022 after following due procedure as per law without being influenced by any observation or findings of the District Judge vide impugned order dated 19.05.2022. All the parties are free to raise all their contentions before the trial Court.

A. Practice and Procedure – Constitution of India, 1950 – Article 226 & 227 – Writ – Maintainability – Order was passed by the Revenue Court in the title matter – Quashing sought – Whether remedy is the petition under Article 227 or under Article

226 – Held, Judicial orders of civil court are not amenable to writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution and jurisdiction under Article 227 is distinct from jurisdiction under Article 226 – The Revenue Court is not the Judicial/ Civil Court – The orders passed by the revenue authority or consolidation authority are not the orders being passed by judicial authority/Civil Courts – High Court rejected the preliminary objections regarding maintainability of the writ petitions under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. (Para 16, 22 and 27)

B. UP Consolidation of Holding Act, 1953 – Civil Procedure Code, 1908 – Section 5(2) – Consolidation Court – Nature – Whether it is Civil Court or Revenue Court – Held, the Consolidation Officers may not be treated as Officers of the Civil Court, however, they may more or less be treated as Revenue Officers – The revenue authorities/consolidation authorities when discharge their judicial/quasi judicial functions used to follow the specific mandate and mechanism so prescribed under the Statute and quite often, those officers are not trained judicial officers but being prescribed authorities under the particular Statute, they discharge their functions as revenue/consolidation officer. At the best, it may be said that they discharge their duties and functions as Tribunal. (Para 14 and 26)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajesh Singh Chauhan, J.)

1. In the present matter, the question of maintainability has been raised, therefore, the Members of the Bar have been permitted to address the Court. Pursuant thereto, Shri M.E. Khan has argued on behalf of the petitioners assisted by other counsels of the writ petitioners, Shri Shailendra Kumar Singh, Chief Standing Counsel-II assisted by Shri Rohit Nandan Shukla, Shri R.C. Tiwari, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel, Shri Upendra Singh, Shri Yogesh Kumar Awasthi, learned Standing Counsel have argued the case on behalf of the State and Shri Prabhat Kumar has argued the case on behalf of the private opposite parties in Writ B No. 229 of 2023 and Shri Mohan Singh, learned counsel for the Gaon Sabha.

2. Since the similar question is to be decided i.e. maintainability of the writ petition in the writ petitions bearing Writ-B No.245 of 2023 & Writ-B No.232 of 2023, therefore, these writ petitions are connected and the aforesaid question is decided by a common judgment.

3. Sri Prabhat Kumar, learned counsel for the private opposite parties has raised objection regarding maintainability of the writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India against the orders being passed by the "Revenue Courts" placing reliance upon the judgment Apex Court in re; Shalini Shyam Shetty and another vs. Rajendra Shankar Patil, (2010) 8 SCC 329 and judgment of this Court in re; Suraj Singh (since deceased and substituted by legal heirs) vs. Deputy Director of Consolidation, Jhansi and others, 2016 (34) LCD 1860.

4. The sole premise of the objection regarding maintainability of the writ petition is that, to decide the title dispute, be it civil matter or revenue matter, appropriate remedy would not be to file petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, rather a petition should be filed under Article 227 of the Constitution of India, therefore, as per Sri Prabhat Kumar, this petition may be dismissed.

5. In response to the aforesaid objection, learned counsel for the petitioners has stated that it is true that the issue in question is relating to the title dispute, but the orders being passed by the consolidation authorities, which are not the revenue authorities, therefore, the objection so raised by learned counsel for the private opposite parties, placing reliance upon the aforesaid judgments in re: Shalini Shyam Shetty (supra) and Suraj Singh (supra), would not be applicable in the present case.

6. On the next date, learned counsel for the petitioners has addressed on the point of maintainability of the writ petition placing reliance upon the judgment of Apex Court rendered in re: Radhey Shyam and another vs. Chhabi Nath and others, (2015) 5 SCC 423 wherein the judgment of Apex Court rendered in re: Shalini Shyam Shetty (supra) has been considered.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioners has also placed reliance upon the judgment of the Apex Court rendered in re; Suraj Singh (supra), which is based on the judgment of the Apex Court rendered in re: Radhey Shyam (supra) as well as the Full Bench judgment of Apex Court rendered in re: Kiran Devi vs. The Bihar State Sunni Wakf Board and others, (2021) AIR (SC) 1775, by submitting that if the order is passed by the Revenue Authority, a writ under Article 226 of the Constitution of India may lie.

8. Referring various paragraphs of the judgment rendered in re: Radhay Shyam (supra), specific reliance has been placed towards para-25 wherein the Apex Court has clearly observed that the orders of the civil court stand on different footing from the orders of authorities or tribunals or courts other than judicial/ civil courts and learned counsel for the petitioners has submitted that if order of any judicial officer/ civil court is assailed, the petition should have been filed under Article 227 of the Constitution but in other cases the writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India may lie. However, learned Chief Standing Counsel and learned counsel for private opposite parties referred para 18 of the judgment of the Apex Court in re; Radhay Shyam (supra).

9. Learned counsel for the petitioners has also referred Section 3 of C.P.C. which provides the subordination of courts and as per Section 3 of C.P.C., the District Court is subordinate to the High Court, and every Civil Court of a grade inferior to that of a District Court and every Court of Small Causes is subordinate to the High Court and District Court. He has also referred Section 5 of C.P.C., which provides application of the Code to Revenue Courts. Sub-Section 2 of Section 5 C.P.C. provides that the "Revenue Court" in sub-section (1) means a Court having jurisdiction under any local law to entertain suits or other proceedings relating to the rent, revenue or profits of land used for agricultural purposes, but does not include a Civil Court having original jurisdiction under this Code to try such suits or proceedings as being suits or proceedings of a civil nature.

10. In view of the above, learned counsel for the petitioners has stated that the Revenue Court is different from the District/ Civil Court and the bar carved out in Radhey Shyam (supra) is only meant for District/ Civil Court not for Revenue Court, therefore, no other inference of dictum of the Apex Court in re; Radhey Shyam (supra) may be drawn since the findings and observations of the Apex Court are very clear.

11. So as to understand the difference between the Civil Court and Revenue Court, Sections 3 and 5 of Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (hereinafter referred to as "CPC") would have to be considered, which read as under:-

"3. Subordination of Courts-
For the purposes of this Code, the District Court is subordinate to the High Court, and every Civil Court of a grade inferior to that of a District Court and every Court of Small Causes is subordinate to the High Court and District Court.

5. Application of the Code of Revenue Courts- (1) Where any Revenue Courts are governed by the provisions of this Code in those matters of procedure upon which any special enactment applicable to them is silent, the State Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, declare that any portions of those provisions which are not expressly made applicable by this Code shall not apply to those Courts, or shall only apply to them with such modifications as the State Government may prescribe.

(2) "Revenue Court" in sub-section (1) means a Court having jurisdiction under any local law to entertain suits or other proceedings relating to the rent, revenue or profits of land used for agricultural purposes, but does not include a Civil Court having original jurisdiction under this Code to try such suits or proceedings as being suits or proceedings of a civil nature.

12. Notably, Section 5 (2) CPC provides that proceedings relating to the rent, revenue or profits of land used for agricultural purposes are conducted by the Revenue Courts not by the Civil Court having original jurisdiction under the CPC to try such suits or proceedings as being suits or proceedings of a civil nature. Therefore, it is clear from the CPC itself that Civil Courts are different from the Revenue Courts.

13. U.P. Consolidation of Holding Act, 1953 (hereinafter referred to as "the Act") is a complete Code, which provides redress of all the grievances of a Chak Holder in respect of improper allotment either it may be in respect of wrong valuation, wrong placement or other objection of similar nature. "Consolidation" means re-arrangement of holdings in a unit amongst several tenure-holders in such a way as to make their respective holdings more compact vide Section 3 (2) of the Act. "Consolidation Scheme" means the scheme of consolidation in a unit as provided in Section (3-B) of Section 3 of the Act. Section 4 of the Act provides declaration and notification regarding consolidation. Consolidation operation starts after declaration and notification being issued under Section 4 of the Act.

14. Therefore, considering the aforesaid aspect, the Consolidation Officers may not be treated as Officers of the Civil Court, however, they may more or less be treated as Revenue Officers.

15. The Apex Court in re; Radhey Shyam (supra) has decided the issue as to what orders can be assailed under Article 226 of the Constitution of India and what orders can be assailed under Article 227 of the Constitution of India. The relevant observations of the judgment in re; Radhey Shyam (supra) have been given in paras-18 and 25 to 29, which read as under:-

"18. While the above judgments dealt with the question whether judicial order could violate a fundamental right, it was clearly laid down that challenge to judicial orders could lie by way of appeal or revision or under Article 227 and not by way of a writ under Articles 226 and 32.

25. It is true that this Court has laid down that technicalities associated with the prerogative writs in England have no role to play under our constitutional scheme. There is no parallel system of King's Court in India and of all the other courts having limited jurisdiction subject to the supervision of the King's Court. Courts are set up under the Constitution or the laws. All the courts in the jurisdiction of a High Court are subordinate to it and subject to its control and supervision under Article 227. Writ jurisdiction is constitutionally conferred on all the High Courts. Broad principles of writ jurisdiction followed in England are applicable to India and a writ of certiorari lies against patently erroneous or without jurisdiction orders of tribunals or authorities or courts other than judicial courts. There are no precedents in India for the High Courts to issue writs to the subordinate courts. Control of working of the subordinate courts in dealing with their judicial orders is exercised by way of appellate or revisional powers or power of superintendence under Article 227. Orders of the civil court stand on different footing from the orders of authorities or tribunals or courts other than judicial/civil courts. While appellate or revisional jurisdiction is regulated by the statutes, power of superintendence under Article 227 is constitutional. The expression "inferior court" is not referable to the judicial courts, as rightly observed in the referring order [Radhey Shyam v. Chhabi Nath, (2009) 5 SCC 616] in paras 26 and 27 quoted above.

26. The Bench in Surya Dev Rai [Surya Dev Rai v. Ram Chander Rai, (2003) 6 SCC 675] also observed in para 25 of its judgment that distinction between Articles 226 and 227 stood almost obliterated. In para 24 of the said judgment distinction in the two articles has been noted. In view thereof, observation that scope of Articles 226 and 227 was obliterated was not correct as rightly observed [Radhey Shyam v. Chhabi Nath, (2009) 5 SCC 616] by the referring Bench in para 32 quoted above. We make it clear that though despite the curtailment of revisional jurisdiction under Section 115 CPC by Act 46 of 1999, jurisdiction of the High Court under Article 227 remains unaffected, it has been wrongly assumed in certain quarters that the said jurisdiction has been expanded. Scope of Article 227 has been explained in several decisions including Waryam Singh v. Amarnath [AIR 1954 SC 215 : 1954 SCR 565], Ouseph Mathai v. M. Abdul Khadir [(2002) 1 SCC 319], Shalini Shyam Shetty v. Rajendra Shankar Patil [(2010) 8 SCC 329 : (2010) 3 SCC (Civ) 338] and Sameer Suresh Gupta v. Rahul Kumar Agarwal [(2013) 9 SCC 374 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 345]. In Shalini Shyam Shetty [(2010) 8 SCC 329 : (2010) 3 SCC (Civ) 338] this Court observed: (SCC p. 352, paras 64-67).

"64. However, this Court unfortunately discerns that of late there is a growing trend amongst several High Courts to entertain writ petition in cases of pure property disputes. Disputes relating to partition suits, matters relating to execution of a decree, in cases of dispute between landlord and tenant and also in a case of money decree and in various other cases where disputed questions of property are involved, writ courts are entertaining such disputes. In some cases the High Courts, in a routine manner, entertain petitions under Article 227 over such disputes and such petitions are treated as writ petitions.

65. We would like to make it clear that in view of the law referred to above in cases of property rights and in disputes between private individuals writ court should not interfere unless there is any infraction of statute or it can be shown that a private individual is acting in collusion with a statutory authority.

66. We may also observe that in some High Courts there is a tendency of entertaining petitions under Article 227 of the Constitution by terming them as writ petitions. This is sought to be justified on an erroneous appreciation of the ratio in Surya Dev [Surya Dev Rai v. Ram Chander Rai, (2003) 6 SCC 675] and in view of the recent amendment to Section 115 of the Civil Procedure Code by the Civil Procedure Code (Amendment) Act, 1999. It is urged that as a result of the amendment, scope of Section 115 CPC has been curtailed. In our view, even if the scope of Section 115 CPC is curtailed that has not resulted in expanding the High Court's power of superintendence. It is too well known to be reiterated that in exercising its jurisdiction, High Court must follow the regime of law.

67. As a result of frequent interference by the Hon'ble High Court either under Article 226 or 227 of the Constitution with pending civil and at times criminal cases, the disposal of cases by the civil and criminal courts gets further impeded and thus causing serious problems in the administration of justice. This Court hopes and trusts that in exercising its power either under Article 226 or 227, the Hon'ble High Court will follow the time-honoured principles discussed above. Those principles have been formulated by this Court for ends of justice and the High Courts as the highest courts of justice within their jurisdiction will adhere to them strictly."

27. Thus, we are of the view that judicial orders of civil courts are not amenable to a writ of certiorari under Article 226. We are also in agreement with the view [Radhey Shyam v. Chhabi Nath, (2009) 5 SCC 616] of the referring Bench that a writ of mandamus does not lie against a private person not discharging any public duty. Scope of Article 227 is different from Article 226.

28. We may also deal with the submission made on behalf of the respondent that the view in Surya Dev Rai [Surya Dev Rai v. Ram Chander Rai, (2003) 6 SCC 675] stands approved by larger Benches in Shail [Shail v. Manoj Kumar, (2004) 4 SCC 785 : 2004 SCC (Cri)

1401], Mahendra Saree Emporium (2) [Mahendra Saree Emporium (2) v. G.V. Srinivasa Murthy, (2005) 1 SCC 481] and Salem Advocate Bar Assn. (2) [Salem Advocate Bar Assn. (2) v. Union of India, (2005) 6 SCC 344] and on that ground correctness of the said view cannot be gone into by this Bench. In Shail [Shail v. Manoj Kumar, (2004) 4 SCC 785 : 2004 SCC (Cri) 1401], though reference has been made to Surya Dev Rai [Surya Dev Rai v. Ram Chander Rai, (2003) 6 SCC 675], the same is only for the purpose of scope of power under Article 227 as is clear from para 3 of the said judgment. There is no discussion on the issue of maintainability of a petition under Article 226. In Mahendra Saree Emporium (2) [Mahendra Saree Emporium (2) v. G.V. Srinivasa Murthy, (2005) 1 SCC 481], reference to Surya Dev Rai [Surya Dev Rai v. Ram Chander Rai, (2003) 6 SCC 675] is made in para 9 of the judgment only for the proposition that no subordinate legislation can whittle down the jurisdiction conferred by the Constitution. Similarly, in Salem Advocate Bar Assn. (2) [Salem Advocate Bar Assn. (2) v. Union of India, (2005) 6 SCC 344] in para 40, reference to Surya Dev Rai [Surya Dev Rai v. Ram Chander Rai, (2003) 6 SCC 675] is for the same purpose. We are, thus, unable to accept the submission of the learned counsel for the respondent.

29. Accordingly, we answer the question referred as follows:

29.1. Judicial orders of the civil court are not amenable to writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution.

29.2. Jurisdiction under Article 227 is distinct from jurisdiction under Article 226.

29.3. Contrary view in Surya Dev Rai v. Ram Chander Rai, (2003) 6 SCC 675, is overruled."

16. The Apex Court in re; Radhey Shyam (supra) in para-25 has categorically held that writ jurisdiction under Article 226 is conferred on all the High Courts whereby the writ of certiorari can be issued against patently erroneous or without jurisdiction orders of Tribunal or authorities or courts "other than judicial courts". For challenging the judicial orders, writ under Article 227 may lie as the High Court got power of superintendence under Article 227 of the Constitution of India. The Apex Court further provides that orders of the Civil Court stand on different footing from the orders of authorities or Tribunals or courts other than judicial/Civil Courts. While answering the question referred before the Apex Court in re; Radhey Shyam (supra), the Apex Court has clearly held in para-29.1 and 29.2 that judicial orders of civil court are not amenable to writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution and jurisdiction under Article 227 is distinct from jurisdiction under Article 226.

17. Sri Prabhat Kumar has drawn attention of this Court towards the decision of this Court in re; Suraj Singh (supra) wherein the Hon'ble Single Judge of this Court has, however, observed that against the judicial order of Civil Court, writ under Article 226 would not lie but the reasons assigned in that judgment would equally apply to the Revenue Courts also.

18. Sri Prabhat Kumar, learned counsel for the private opposite parties has referred the decision of this Court dated 05.07.2018 in re; Paras Nath Vs. Deputy Director of Consolidation, Ambedkar Nagar & Ors., Consolidation No.9855 of 2018, whereby the writ petition of a similar nature has been entertained under Article 227 of the Constitution of India. Notably, the judgment of the Apex Court in re; Radhey Shyam (supra) and the judgment of Suraj Singh (supra) have been considered and it has been held that the judgment in re; Suraj Singh (supra) would be applicable treating as if that writ petition has been filed under Article 227 of the Constitution of India. Sri Prabhat Kumar has also cited the judgment of this Court dated 28.05.2018 in re; M/S Shiv Baba Industry Lalpur, Shahjahanpur Vs. State of U.P. and 3 Ors, Matters Under Article 227 No.3626 of 2018, referring para-27 thereof to submit that instead of Article 226 of the Constitution of India, the writ petition challenging the orders of Revenue Court/ Consolidation Authorities should have been filed under Article 227 of the Constitution of India. Para-27 in re; M/S Shiv Baba Industry Lalpur, Shahjahanpur (supra) reads as under:-

"27. Thus after the consistent expression of unanimous opinion by their Lordships of the Supreme Court in Shalini Shyam Shetty (supra) and the decision of Three Judge Bench of their Lordships in Radhey Shyam (supra), there remains no cavil notwithstanding any kind of interpretation that might have been earlier placed on the amended Rules of Chapter XXII of the High Court Rules that a petition under Article 227 of the Constitution can never be styled as a writ petition and styling it as a writ petition is certainly a defect that goes to the root of the matter rendering such a petition ill-framed beyond maintainability. A petition under Article 227 of the Constitution in order to be in tune with the jurisdiction it invokes may be styled as a Civil Misc. Applications or Criminal Misc. Applications or may be labelled by any appropriate nomenclature which eschews the use of the word writ. In addition, the relief clause should not ask for issue of any of the writs or orders in the nature of writs as are enumerated in Article 226 of the Constitution, that includes mandamus, certiorari, prohibition or quowarranto. The relief in a matter under Article 227 of the Constitution may not only seek setting aside of the order under challenge, but reversal of the same and further orders on the applications made to the subordinate court or tribunal in the same manner as a court of appeal or revision, subject of course to limitations on the exercise of the power under Article 227, could have passed including injunctions and directions of an appropriate kind to private parties or in the context of criminal proceedings like one involving reversal of an interlocutory order, refusing discharge by the Trial Court and the Sessions Judge in revision concurrently."

19. Notably, the aforesaid writ petition was filed under Article 227 of the Constitution of India and it was entertained under that Article only.

20. The Full Bench of the Apex Court in re; Kiran Devi (supra) has considered the dictum of the Apex Court in re; Radhey Shyam (supra). Paragraph nos.19 to 23 in re; Kiran Devi (supra) read as under:-

"19. A three Judge Bench in a judgment reported as Radhey Shyam v. Chhabhi Nath & Ors., (2015) 5 SCC 423 held that the observations in para 25 of the judgment in Surya Dev Rai v. Ram Chander Rai & Ors., (2003) 6 SCC 675, to be not good law. In Surya Dev Rai, it was held that the order of Civil Court could be challenged in a petition under Article 226 and that the distinction between Articles 226 and 227 of the Constitution of India stood almost obliterated. This Court in Radhey Shyam held:

"27. ... we are of the view that judicial orders of civil courts are not amenable to a writ of certiorari under Article 226. We are also in agreement with the view [Radhey Shyam v. Chhabhi Nath, (2009) 5 SCC 616] of the referring Bench that a writ of mandamus does not lie against a private person not discharging any public duty. Scope of Article 227 is different from Article 226.

29. Accordingly, we answer the question referred as follows:

29.1. Judicial orders of the civil court are not amenable to writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution.

29.2. Jurisdiction under Article 227 is distinct from jurisdiction under Article 226.

29.3. Contrary view in Surya Dev Rai [Surya Dev Rai v. Ram Chander Rai, (2003) 6 SCC 675] is overruled."

20. Therefore, when a petition is filed against an order of the Wakf Tribunal before the High Court, the High Court exercises the jurisdiction under Article 227 of the Constitution of India. Therefore, it is wholly immaterial that the petition was titled as a writ petition. It may be noticed that in certain High Courts, petition under Article 227 is titled as writ petition, in certain other High Courts as revision petition and in certain others as a miscellaneous petition. However, keeping in view the nature of the order passed, more particularly in the light of proviso to sub-section (9) of Section 83 of the Act, the High Court exercised jurisdiction only under the Act. The jurisdiction of the High Court is restricted to only examine the correctness, legality or propriety of the findings recorded by the Wakf Tribunal. The High Court in exercise of the jurisdiction conferred under proviso to sub-section (9) of Section 83 of the Act does not act as the appellate court.

21. We find merit in the argument raised by Mr. Sanyal that the nomenclature of the title of the petition filed before the High Court is immaterial. In Municipal Corporation of the City of Ahmedabad v. Ben Hiraben Manilal, (1983) 2 SCC 422, this Court held that wrong reference to the power under which an action was taken by the Government would not per se vitiate the action, if the same could be justified under some other power whereby the Government could lawfully do that act. The Court held as under:

"5. It is well settled that the exercise of a power, if there is indeed a power, will be referable to a jurisdiction, when the validity of the exercise of that power is in issue, which confers validity upon it and not to a jurisdiction under which it would be nugatory, though the section was not referred, and a different or a wrong section of different provisions was mentioned. See in this connection the observations in Pitamber Vajirshet v. Dhondu Navlapa [ILR (1888) 12 Bom 486, 489]. See in this connection also the observations of this Court in the case of L. Hazari Mal Kuthiala v. ITO, Special Circle, Ambala Cantt. [AIR 1961 SC 200:(1961) 1 SCR 892:(1961) 41 ITR 12, 16 : (1961) 1 SCJ 617] This point has again been reiterated by this Court in the case of Hukumchand Mills Ltd. v. State of M.P. [AIR 1964 SC 1329:(1964) 6 SCR 857:(1964) 52 ITR 583: (1964) 1 SCJ 561] where it was observed that it was well settled that a wrong reference to the power under which action was taken by the Government would not per se vitiate that action if it could be justified under some other power under which Government could lawfully do that act. See also the observations of the Supreme Court in the case of Nani Gopal Biswas v. Municipality of Howrah [AIR 1958 SC 141: 1958 SCR 774: 1958 SCJ 297 : 1958 Cri LJ 271]."

22. Later, in Pepsi Foods Ltd., this Court held that nomenclature under which the petition is filed is not quite relevant and it does not debar the Court from exercising its jurisdiction which otherwise it possesses. If the Court finds that the appellants could not invoke its jurisdiction under Article 226, the Court can certainly treat the petition as one under Article 227 or Section 482 of the Code. This Court held as under:

"26. Nomenclature under which petition is filed is not quite relevant and that does not debar the court from exercising its jurisdiction which otherwise it possesses unless there is special procedure prescribed which procedure is mandatory. If in a case like the present one the court finds that the appellants could not invoke its jurisdiction under Article 226, the court can certainly treat the petition as one under Article 227 or Section 482 of the Code. It may not however, be lost sight of that provisions exist in the Code of revision and appeal but some time for immediate relief Section 482 of the Code or Article 227 may have to be resorted to for correcting some grave errors that might be committed by the subordinate courts. The present petition though filed in the High Court as one under Articles 226 and 227 could well be treated under Article 227 of the Constitution."

23. Therefore, the petition styled as one under Article 226 would not bar the High Court to exercise jurisdiction under the Act and/or under Article 227 of the Constitution. The jurisdiction of the High Court to examine the correctness, legality and propriety of determination of any dispute by the Tribunal is reserved with the High Court. The nomenclature of the proceedings as a petition under Article 226 or a petition under Article 227 is wholly inconsequential and immaterial."

21. Sri Shailendra Kumar Singh, learned Chief Standing Counsel-II has also adopted the objection so raised by Sri Prabhat Kumar and has submitted that if the orders of Consolidation Authorities or Revenue Authorities have been assailed, the writ petition under Article 226 would not be maintainable. He has also cited those judgments, which have been cited by the learned counsel for the petitioners and Sri Prabhat Kumar.

22. As has been considered above vide paras-25 to 29 in re; Radhey Shyam (supra), the Apex Court has clarified the position. Particularly, in para-25 in re; Radhey Shyam (supra), the Apex Court has observed that writ of certiorari may lie against patently erroneous and without jurisdiction order of Tribunal or authorities or courts other than judicial/Civil Courts. Further, the Revenue Court is not the Judicial/ Civil Court. In the judgment of Radhey Shyam (supra), judgment of Shalini Shyam Shetty (supra) has been considered by the Apex Court in para-26 and after considering the judgment of Shalini Shyam Shetty (supra), the Apex Court in re; Radhey Shyam (supra) has carved out the distinction between the orders being passed by the Civil Court and other than Civil Court by holding that the judicial orders of the Civil Court are not amenable to writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

23. The judgments so cited by the respective parties, there is no dispute that reliance upon the dictum of the Apex Court in re; Radhey Shyam (supra) has been placed. Learned counsel for the parties are in agreement that the Apex Court in re;

Radhey Shyam (supra) has clearly and explicitly has observed as to what would happen in respect of the orders being passed by the Judicial/ Civil Courts and the orders being passed by other than Judicial/Civil Courts. No writ petition shall lie against the orders of Judicial/Civil Courts under Article 226 and there is apparent distinction between Articles 226 & 227 of the Constitution of India. Since the Apex Court has not held that even if any order is passed by a judicial or quasi judicial authority while exercising its statutory powers and even if that authority is other than judicial/ Civil Court, no writ shall lie under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, therefore, no other inference may be drawn from the ratio of the judgment of the Apex Court in re; Radhey Shyam (supra), which has not specifically been held. If the specific and clear direction has been issued by the Apex Court in re; Radhey Shyam (supra), any other inference should not be drawn. If the Apex Court was of the view that the orders of all judicial authorities, be it Judicial/Civil Court or Revenue/Consolidation Court/Authority, are not amenable under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, specific direction to that effect would have been given but no specific direction to that effect has been given by the Apex Court in para-29 of the judgment in re; Radhey Shyam (supra). The Full Bench of the Apex Court in re; Kiran Devi (supra) has observed that the Apex Court has considered all relevant judgments in re; Radhey Shyam (supra) including the judgment in re; Shalini Shyam Shetty (supra) and held that the petition styled as "Under Article 226" would not bar the High Court to exercise jurisdiction under Article 227 of the Constitution of India. Basically, the jurisdiction of the High Court is to examine the correctness, legality and propriety of the orders being passed by the subordinate authority/court, the nomenclature of the proceedings as a petition under Article 226 or a petition under Article 227 is wholly inconsequential and immaterial. The Full Bench of the Apex Court in re; Kiran Devi (supra) has not restricted entertaining such type of petitions under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, rather has observed that in the given facts and circumstances, the nomenclature of the proceedings would be wholly immaterial.

24. The Apex Court in para 25 in re; Radhey Shyam (supra) has considered its own observation of para 18. Further, the observation of para 18 may be read in the light of observation given in paras 25 & 29 in re; Radhey Shyam (supra).

25. In view of the above, when there is a settled law of the Apex Court in re; Radhey Shyam (supra) and Kiran Devi (supra) and there is clarity in the directions of the Apex Court in the aforesaid cases, therefore, being a High Court, I have no other option except to follow those directions of the Apex Court in its letter and spirit. Further, the judgments and orders of the Coordinate Bench are not binding if the directions thereof are not in conformity with the directions being issued by the Apex Court.

26. There is apparent difference between the court of law and the Tribunals. The court of law is vested with general jurisdiction over all the matters, whereas the Tribunals deal with the matters vested with limited jurisdiction to decide a particular issue/issues as per specific statutory prescription to that effect. Courts exercise only the judicial functions whereas the Tribunals undertake various other administrative functions.

Officers of the court, more particularly judicial courts, are trained and expert persons in the law, however, it is not mandatory in every case that the members of the Tribunal need to be trained and expert in law. In view of the above, the revenue authorities/consolidation authorities when discharge their judicial/ quasi judicial functions used to follow the specific mandate and mechanism so prescribed under the Statute and quite often, those officers are not trained judicial officers but being prescribed authorities under the particular Statute, they discharge their functions as revenue/consolidation officer. In that way, they may not be treated at par with the judicial officers of the Civil Court and therefore, they are not judicial/Civil Court. At the best, it may be said that they discharge their duties and functions as Tribunal.

27. Accordingly, considering the arguments of learned counsel for the parties and the judgments so placed, which have been considered herein above, I am of the considered opinion that the orders being passed by the revenue authority or consolidation authority are not the orders being passed by judicial authority/Civil Courts, therefore, the preliminary objections so raised by the learned counsel for the opposite parties regarding maintainability of the writ petitions under Article 226 of the Constitution of India is hereby rejected. These writ petitions under Article 226 of the Constitution of India challenging the orders of the consolidation/revenue authorities are held to be maintainable.

28. Let counter affidavit be filed within a period of four weeks. Rejoinder affidavit, if any, may be filed within a period of two weeks.

29. List the aforesaid petitions in the week commencing 3rd July, 2023.

30. Interim orders granted earlier shall continue till the next date of listing in all the writ petitions.

31. Since all the writ petitions were connected for the reason that preliminary objection regarding maintainability was raised and the aforesaid preliminary objection has been rejected, therefore, all the writ petitions would be heard and decided on their own merits.

32. Accordingly, Writ-B No.245 of 2023 & Writ-B No.232 of 2023 are de-linked from Writ-B No.229 of 2023 and list them separately.

1. Heard Mr. R.C. Singh, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Mr. Narayan Dutt Shukla, learned Counsel for the petitioners, learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondents and Mr. Rameshwar Prasad Shukla for respondent No.3, Gaon Sabha.

2. Brief facts of the case are that predecessors-in-interest of the petitioners namely Shri Laxmi Singh was recorded owner of disputed plot no. 362 situated in village-Kishundurpur, Tappa-Attaisi, Pergana-Nizamabad, Tahasil- Sadar, District-Azamgarh. Copy of Khewat of 1356 fasli to 1359 fasli of the Village Kishundaspur, Tappa Attaisi, Pargana Nizamabad Tehsil Sadar District Azamgarh has been annexed as Annexure No. 1 to the writ petition in order to demonstrate the ownership of petitioners' predecessors-in-interest. Copy of khatauni of 1356 fasli, 1359 fasli as well as khasra of 1359 fasli have been annexed as Annexure Nos. 2, 3 and 4 to the writ petition to demonstrate the ownership of the petitioners' predecessors-in-interest. Village was brought under consolidation operation on 30.10.1955 by way of notification issued under Section 4 of the U.P.C.H. Act. In the khatauni of 1362 fasli, plot no. 362 was recorded in the name of petitioners' predecessors-in-interest, the copy of khatauni of 1362 fasli has been annexed as Annexure No. 6 to the writ petition. During consolidation operation, petitioners filed an objection under Section 8 of U.P.C.H. Act to rectify the revenue entry. New plot nos. 213 ka and kha were carved out from old plot no. 362. The order dated 30.10.1955 passed by Consolidation Officer in a proceeding under Section 8 of the U.P.C.H. Act to record the plot as brick klin became final as nobody challenged the order in first consolidation operation. The first consolidation operation came to an end in the year 1962. Village was again brought under consolidation operation in the year 1981. Basic year entry remained in the name of petitioners and no objections were filed against the basic year entry which remained in the name of petitioners. Final records were accordingly prepared in the name of petitioners. New plot no. 311 ka and kha carved out from old plot no. 213. According to petitioners, new plot no. 213 ka and kha have never been pond and bhita. A four lane road is being constructed by National Highway Authority of India across the aforesaid plots, as such, there is no question that pond and bhita exist in the plot. The land in dispute was never recorded as pond either before the abolition of zamindari or after abolition of zamindari. According to petitioners their predecessors had established a brick klin in the year 1940 and the business continued till 1950. The portion of the plot in question was acquired by National Highway Authority of India by way of notification published in Hindi newspaper dated 30.6.2017. No dispute was raised by any person before the competent authority appointed under the National Highway Act 1956 accordingly award dated 31.5.2018 was made by competent authority under section 3G of the National Highways Act. Copy of the award dated 31.5.2018 has been annexed as Annexure No. 12 to the writ petition. At the time of disbursement of the amount determined under the award, a complaint has been made by the Pradhan that old plot no. 213, new plot no. 311 is a pond and bhita therefore compensation in respect of the aforementioned plot should not be disbursed. Competent Authority accordingly issued order dated 22.7.2020 that payment of compensation be deferred. Pradhan filed revision under Section 48(1) of the U.P.C.H. Act on 16.7.2020 before the Deputy Director of Consolidation to set aside the order dated 30.10.1955 in respect to plot no. 362 and record the same as pokhari and bhita. On the basis of the complaint made by Pradhan, a case no. D202015060001018 has been registered under Section 38(1) of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 for correction of revenue entry in respect to old plot no. 362 of Village Kishundaspur. Raj Narayan and Others also filed revision under Section 48(3) of the U.P.C.H. Act, Vijay Prakash and Others also filed separate revisions challenging the order of Assistant Consolidation Officer dated 30.10.1955 in the aforementioned proceeding, the reports were submitted by the authorities. Petitioners challenged the proceeding initiated under Section 48(1) of the U.P.C.H. Act as well as the proceeding initiated under Section 38(1) of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 through writ-B no. 3 of 2021. This Court vide order dated 7.9.2021 disposed of the writ petition filed by petitioners with direction that petitioners can file objection in the pending proceeding which shall be decided in accordance with law within period of two weeks. Proceedings under Section 48(1) of the U.P.C.H. Act as well as the proceeding under Section 38(1) of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 were heard together by District Deputy Director of Consolidation/Collector and the same were decided vide separate order dated 6.12.2021 expunging the petitioners' entry and directing that plot in dispute be recorded as pokhari, bhita and banjar. Hence this writ petition.

3. This Court vide order dated 1.4.2022 directed the learned Standing Counsel as well as the Counsel for the Gaon Sabha to file counter-affidavit within three weeks. In pursuance of the order of this Court dated 1.4.2022, learned Standing Counsel has filed his counter-affidavit. Petitioners have filed rejoinder-affidavit also.

4. Counsel for the petitioners submitted that the proceeding initiated after 65 years for setting aside the order dated 30.10.1955 is abuse of process of law. He further submitted that no objection was raised during consolidation operation, as such, the initiation of proceeding by way of revision under Section 48 of the U.P.C.H. Act as well as by way of proceeding under Section 38(1) of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 is abuse of process of law. He further submitted that land in dispute was never recorded as pond and bhita. He further submitted that even in the map plot in question was not shown as pond and bhita. He further submitted that longstanding revenue entry cannot be expunged in the arbitrary manner. He submitted that complete procedure has been provided under U.P.C.H. Act for challenging the basic year entry, as such, the initiation of proceeding after 65 years challenging the order passed during first consolidation operation is wholly illegal and is abuse of process of law. He further submitted that first consolidation operation was finalized in the year 1962 and second consolidation operation was started in the year 1981, as such, the initiation of the impugned proceeding after such a long period to expunge the petitioners' entry cannot be permitted. He further submitted that there was no consideration by respondent No.2 while passing the impugned order for condonation of delay of 65 years. He further submitted that delay condonation matter and the merit of the case should be decided separately, but respondent No.2 has failed to consider the same and passed the impugned order in arbitrary manner. He further placed reliance upon the judgment of this Court as well as Apex Court in order to demonstrate that the right which has accrued due to expiry of period cannot be taken away in arbitrary manner. The particulars of the case law cited by learned counsel for the petitioners are as follows :-

i) 1998 A.L.J. 525 Smt. Chandan Devi Vs. IInd Additional District Judge Nainital

ii) 2017 (5) SCC 496 Dnyandeo Sabaji Naik and another Vs. Mrs. Pradnya Prakash Khadekar and Others

(iii) 1987 A.L.J 137 Smt. Raj Kumar Kapoor Vs. Civil Judge Kanpur and Others

(iv) 2009(1) ADJ 554 Kedar Nath and others Vs. Fulena and Others

(v) 1988 A.L.J. 852 Gulab Chandra Vs. Munsiff West Allahabad and Others

(vi) 2015 (129) RD 249 Saleem Vs. Deputy Director of Consolidation G.B. Nagar

(vii) 1960 RD 189 Bhikku and another Vs. Deputy Director of Consolidation and Others

(viii) 1969 RD 34 Mandir Shivji Maharaj through Parmal Singh Vs. Commissioner (Director of Consolidation) Meerut and Others

(ix) 2020 (13) SCC 745 University of Delhi Vs. Union of India and Others

5. On the other hand, learned Standing Counsel submitted that land in dispute is pond and bhita, as such, no right will accrue to the petitioners even after expiry of 65 years. He further submitted that the impugned order has been passed in accordance with law as it has been found that the order passed on 30.10.1955 is fraudulent. He submitted that there is no limitation against the fraudulent order/proceeding, as such, the impugned order has been passed in the interest of State/Gaon Sabha land. He submitted that no interference is required in the matter and writ petition is liable to be dismissed.

6. I have considered the arguments advanced by learned counsel for the parties and perused the records.

7. There is no dispute about the fact that first consolidation operation came in the village in the year 1955 and the same was finalized in the year 1962. There is also no dispute about the fact that second consolidation operation took place in the village in the year 1981. According to the petitioners, the Consolidation Officer has passed the order in favour of the predecessors-in-interest of the petitioners on 30.10.1955 during first consolidation operation. There is also no dispute about the fact that the instant proceedings have been initiated under Section 48 of the U.P.C.H. Act as well as under Section 38(1) of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 in the year 2020 and the impugned orders have been passed for expunging the petitioners' entry.

8. In order to appreciate the controversy involved in the matter the perusal of the provisions contained under Sections 8 and 48 of the U.P.C.H. Act, 1953 with amendment of 1956 and 1963 will be relevant as the order impugned was passed on 30.10.1955. Provisions before the amendment and after the amendment in respect to U.P.C.H. Act are as under:-

8. That Section 8 of the U.P.C.H. Act, 1953, as it originally existed, is being reproduced herein below:

"8. Revision and correction of records.- (1) Where, upon an examination of the land records as aforesaid, the Assistant Consolidation Officer is of the opinion that a revision of maps or records is necessary before proceeding with the preparation of provisional Consolidation Scheme, he shall make a report accordingly, in the form and manner prescribed, to the Settlement Officer (Consolidation).

(2) Upon receipt of the report under sub-section (1) to the Settlement Officer (Consolidation) shall, after such inquiry as he may consider necessary, either -

(a) direct the Assistant Consolidation Officer to proceed with the correction of maps or records, or

(b) recommend to the State Government for revision of maps or records in accordance with the provisions of Chapter IV of the U.P. Land Revenue Act, 1901.

(3) Upon receipt of the directions under Clause (a) of Sub-section (2), the Assistant Consolidation Officer shall after such further partial as may consider necessary correct the entries in the Annual Register in accordance with the provisions contained in Chapter III of the U.P. Land Revenue Act, 1901.

(4) Any person aggrieved by the order of Assistant Consolidation Officer under sub-section (3) may, within 30 days of the order, appeal to the Consolidation Officer, whose decision shall, except as otherwise provided by or under this Act, be final"

9. That the aforesaid provision came to be substituted by UP Act No. XXXVIII of 1956 which ran as under:

"8" Revision of field-book and the current Annual Register - Upon revision of the village maps under Section 7, the District Deputy Director of Consolidation shall, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, cause to be revised the field-book of the unit after field to field partial and the current annual register after its test and verification. He shall also cause to be prepared in respect to the plots falling in the unit, a statement showing the mistakes and disputes discovered during the course of field to field partial and test and verification of the current Annual Register".

10. That Section 8 again came to be substituted in the present position vide U.P. Act No. VIII of 1963 which ran as under:

"[8. Revision of the field-book and the current annual register-Determination of valuations and shares in joint holdings.- (1) Upon the revision of the maps under Section 7, the District Deputy Director of Consolidation shall, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, and in such manner as may be prescribed, cause to be-

(i) revised, the field book of the unit after field to field partial, and the current annual register after its test and verification;

(ii) determined, in consultation with the Consolidation Committee, the valuation of-

(a) each plot after taking into consideration its productivity, location and availability of irrigation facilities, if any; and

(b) all trees, wells and other improvements existing in the plots for the purpose of calculating compensation therefore;

(iii) ascertained the share of each owner, if there be more owners than one, out of the valuation determined under sub-clause (b) of clause (ii); and

(iv) determined the shares of individual tenure-holder in joint holdings for the purpose of effecting partition to ensure proper consolidation.

(2) The District Deputy Director of Consolidation shall cause to be prepared a khasra chakbandi, in the form prescribed in respect of all the plots falling in the units as also a statement showing the mistakes 49 [undisputed cases of succession] and disputes discovered during the test and verification of the annual register and in the course of the field to field partiall].

11. That by virtue of provision contained under sub-section (4) of Section 8 (as it originally existed) order of Assistant Consolidation Officer would be appealed before the Consolidation Officer and order of the Consolidation Officer was final and same was not subject to appeal or revision.

12. That original Section 48 of the U.P.C.H. Act, 1953 read as under:

"48. Revision - The Director of Consolidation may call for the record of any case if the Officer, (other than the Arbitrator) by whom the case was decided appears to have exercised a jurisdiction not vested in him by law or to have failed to exercise jurisdiction so vested, or to have acted in the exercise of his jurisdiction illegality or with substantial irregularity and may pass such orders in the case as it may think fit.

13. That the original Section 48 came to be substituted by U.P. Act No. XXIV of 1956 which is being reproduced herein below:

"48. Powers of Director of Consolidation to call for records and to revise orders. - The Director of Consolidation may call for the record of any case or proceeding if the Officer (other than the Arbitrator) by whom the case was decided or proceeding taken appears to have exercised a jurisdiction not vested in him by law or to have failed to exercise jurisdiction so vested, or to have acted in the exercise of his jurisdiction illegality or with substantial irregularity and may pass such orders in the case as it may think fit."

14. That Section 48 again came to be amended by the Act No. XXXVIII of 1958 which ran as under:

"48. Revision. - The Director of Consolidation may call for the record of any case decided or proceeding taken, where he is of opinion that a Deputy Director, Consolidation has -

(i) exercised jurisdiction not vested in him in law, or

(ii) failed to exercise jurisdiction vested in him, or

(iii) acted in the exercise of his jurisdiction illegality or with substantial irregularity, and as a result of which substantial injustice appears to have been caused to a tenure-holder, and he may, after affording reasonable opportunity of hearing to the parties concerned, pass such order in the case or proceeding as he think fit."

9. Petitioners' predecessors were continuously recorded since 1955 and there was no proper objection in two consolidation operations took place in the village but in the year 2020, the proceeding has been initiated by the Pradhan for expunging the petitioners' entry as well as setting aside the order dated 30.10.1955 and the respondent No.2 has passed the impugned order in the proceeding under Section 48 of the U.P.C.H. Act as well as the proceedings under U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 expunging the long standing entry of the petitioners without considering the fact that 65 years have been passed and consolidation operations have over in the village but without considering the impact of the expiry of consolidation operation as well as inordinate delay of 65 years, the impugned orders have been passed simultaneously under U.P.C.H. Act and U.P. Revenue Code, 2006.

10. Hon'ble Apex Court in the Case reported in AIR 2010 Supreme Court 3043 Balwant Singh (Dead) Versus Jagdish Singh and Others has held that once a valuable right, as accrued in favour of one party as a result of the failure of the other party to explain the delay, it will be unreasonable to take away the right on the mere asking of the applicant. Paragraph No.13 of the Judgement is relevant which is as under:-

"13. As held by this Court in the case of Mithailal Dalsangar Singh (AIR 2003 SC 4244: 2003 AIR SCW 4878) (supra) the abatement results in denial of hearing on the merits of the case, the provision of abatement has to be construed strictly. On the other hand, the prayer for setting aside an abatement and the dismissal consequent upon an abatement, have to be considered liberally. We may state that even if the term "sufficient cause" has to receive liberal construction, it must squarely fall within the concept of reasonable time and proper conduct of the party concerned. The purpose of introducing liberal construction normally is to introduce the concept of "reasonableness" as it is understood in its general connotation. The law of limitation is a substantive law and has definite consequences on the right and obligation of a party to arise. These principles should be adhered to and applied appropriately depending on the facts and circumstances of a given case. Once a valuable right has accrued in favour of one party as a result of the failure of the other party to explain the delay by showing sufficient cause and its own conduct, it will be unreasonable to take away that right on the mere asking of the applicant, particularly when the delay is directly a result of negligence, default or inaction of that party. Justice must be done to both parties equally. Then alone the ends of justice can be achieved. If a party has been thoroughly negligent in implementing its rights and remedies, it will be equally unfair to deprive the other party of a valuable right that has accrued to it in law as a result of his acting vigilantly. The application filed by the applicants lacks in details. Even the averments made are not correct and ex facie lack bona fide. The explanation has to be reasonable or plausible, so as to persuade the Court to believe that the explanation rendered is not only true, but is worthy of exercising judicial discretion in favour of the applicant. If it does not specify any of the enunciated ingredients of judicial pronouncements, then the application should be dismissed. On the other hand, if the application is bona fide and based upon true and plausible explanations, as well as reflects normal behaviour of a common prudent person on the part of the applicant, the Court would normally tilt the judicial discretion in favour of such an applicant. Liberal construction cannot be equated with doing injustice to the other party. In the case of State of Bihar v. Kameshwar Prasad Singh [(2000) 9 SCC 94 : 2000 SCC (L&S) 845] this Court had taken a liberal approach for condoning the delay in cases of the Government to do substantial justice. Facts of that case were entirely different as that was the case of fixation of seniority of 400 officers and the facts were required to be verified. But what we are impressing upon is that delay should be condoned to do substantial justice without resulting in injustice to the other party. This balance has to be kept in mind by the Court while deciding such applications. In the case of Ramlal v. Rewa Coalfields Ltd. [AIR 1962 SC 361] this Court took the view:

"7. In construing Section 5 it is relevant to bear in mind two important considerations. The first consideration is that the expiration of the period of limitation prescribed for making an appeal gives rise to a right in favour of the decree-holder to treat the decree as binding between the parties. In other words, when the period of limitation prescribed has expired the decree-holder has obtained a benefit under the law of limitation to treat the decree as beyond challenge, and this legal right which has accrued to the decree-holder by lapse of time should not be lightly disturbed. The other consideration which cannot be ignored is that if sufficient cause for excusing delay is shown discretion is given to the court to condone delay and admit the appeal. This discretion has been deliberately conferred on the court in order that judicial power and discretion in that behalf should be exercised to advance substantial justice. As has been observed by the Madras High Court in Krishna v. Chathappan ILR (1890) 13 Mad 269.

It is, however, necessary to emphasise that even after sufficient cause has been shown a party is not entitled to the condonation of delay in question as a matter of right. The proof of a sufficient cause is a condition precedent for the exercise of the discretionary jurisdiction vested in the court by Section 5. If sufficient cause is not proved nothing further has to be done; the application for condoning delay has to be dismissed on that ground alone. If sufficient cause is shown then the court has to enquire whether in its discretion it should condone the delay. This aspect of the matter naturally introduces the consideration of all relevant facts and it is at this stage that diligence of the party or its bona fides may fall for consideration;*"

11. The case law cited by learned Counsel for the petitioner are also relevant in the matter as in the judgement of Bhikku (Supra) scope of entries of Sections 7,8 and 12 of U.P.C.H. Act as they stood prior to 1958 amendment were taken into consideration. In the case of University of Delhi (Supra) Hon'ble Apex Court has held that condonation of long delay should not be automatic and merely because petitioner/ applicant is a public body.

12. In the instant matter, there is not only delay of 65 years in initiating the instant proceedings rather bar of two consolidation operation are also there, as such, there is no question of expunging the petitioners' entry to nullify the order dated 30.10.1955 which is continuing since first consolidation operation rather before amendment of 1958 took place in the U.P.C.H. Act.

13. Considering the entire facts and circumstances, the impugned order dated 6.12.2021 passed by respondent No.1 in case No. 01197/ 2020 Computerized No. D202015060001197 under Section 48(1) of U.P.C.H. Act and order dated 6.12.2021 passed by respondent no.1 in Case No. 01018/2020 Computerized Case No. D202015060001018 under Section 38(1) of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 are liable to be set aside and the same are hereby set aside.

14. Writ petition stands allowed and respondent No.1 is directed to record the names of the petitioners in the revenue records in respect to disputed plot within a period of six weeks from the date of production of a certified copy of this order.

ORIGINAL JURISDICTION
CIVIL SIDE
DATED: ALLAHABAD 03.04.2023

THE HON'BLE JAYANT BANERJI, J.

Writ B No. 1218 of 2021

Narendra Kumar & Anr. ...Petitioners
Versus
The Board of Revenue, U.P. at Allahabad &
Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioners:

Sri Fuzail Ahmad Ansari, Sri R.C. Singh (Sr. Advocate)

Counsel for the Respondents:

C.S.C., Sri Krishna Kant Singh, Sri Yogendra Singh Bohra

A. Revenue Law – UP Revenue Code, 2006 – Sections 59, 77, 101 & 161 – Exchange of land of Gram Panchayat – School was constructed long back over the petitioner's land – Application for exchange was rejected – Validity challenged – Finding required u/s 101(2)(b) has not been recorded – No resolution of LMC in favour of exchange was passed – Effect – Held, to refuse permission for exchange under sub-section (1) of Section 101 of the Code, 2006, it was required of the Sub-Divisional Officer to record a finding in terms of clause (b) of sub-section (2) of the Code, 2006. That is to say, the finding returned ought to have been that the difference between the valuation, if determined in the manner prescribed, of the lands given and received in exchange exceeds ten per cent of the lower valuation – However, High Court further held, for want of any resolution of the Land Management Committee in favour of exchange or any suo moto resolution of the Sub-Divisional Officer approved by the Collector, any application filed for exchange of land of Gram Panchayat cannot meet the prescribed requirements of Rule 101 and therefore such an application would have an incurable defect. (Para 16 and 20)

Writ petition allowed. (E-1)

3. Shiv Murat Vs Board of Revenue, U.P. at Allahabad & ors.; 2017 (7) ADJ 252

(Delivered by Hon'ble Jayant Banerji, J.)

1. This writ petition has been filed seeking quashing of the order dated 23.02.2021 passed by the Board of Revenue, U.P., Allahabad in Revision no.1124 of 2017. Also the order dated 24.04.2017 passed by the Sub-Divisional Officer is sought to be quashed by which application for exchange of land has been rejected.

2. The petitioners claim to the Bhumidhar of plot No.17 ad-measuring 0.357 hectare and Plot No.19 ad-measuring 0.092 hectare. Both the aforesaid plots of land are stated to be recorded as grove land. It is stated that plot No.18 ad-measuring 0.104 hectare is recorded in the name of a school 'Purv Madhyamik Vidyalay, Mauza- Tarsara, Pargana- Hasangarh, Tehsil- Iglas, District- Aligarh'. Other than that plot, plot no.21 having an area of 0.057 hectare is also recorded in the name of the aforesaid school.

3. It is stated that the building of the school was constructed long back on plot no.19, which is the plot belonging to the petitioners, instead of plot No.18. Therefore, under the provisions of section 101 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006, the petitioners filed an application on 11.03.2016 before the Sub Divisional Officer for exchange of plot no.19 with plot no. 18 in terms of the prayer made in the application. A report of the Tahsildar/Lekhpal was called for, in which report it was stated that the circle rate and the nature of land of both the plot nos.18 and 19 are the same. However, by the impugned order dated 24.4.2017, the Sub-Divisional Officer rejected the application for exchange. Against the aforesaid order the petitioners filed a revision before the Board of Revenue which was dismissed by the order dated 23.2.2021.

4. The contention of the learned counsel for the petitioners is that the application filed by the petitioners under Section 101 of the Code, 2006, deserves to be allowed particularly when the revenue authorities have reported to the respondent No.2 regarding the same valuation of the plots of the land sought to be exchanged. It is contended that the Sub-Divisional Officer based her order on a defunct Government Order dated 10.11.2014 that was issued under Section 161 of the repealed U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950. It is contended that the sub-section (2) of section 101 of the Code, 2006 provides for certain eventualities that may authorize the competent authority to refuse permission for exchange. In this case too, the Sub-Divisional Officer refused the exchange but the ground for refusal of exchange is not relatable to any ground appearing in sub-section (2) of Section 101 of the Code, 2006. It is urged that since the valuation of the plots of land sought to be exchanged has been reported by the revenue inspector/tehsildar to be identical therefore, the refusal of the Sub-Divisional Officer to permit exchange is arbitrary. Learned counsel for the petitioner in support of his contention has relied upon a judgement of co-ordinate Bench of this Court in the matter of C/M Vishambharnath Janta Inter College and another vs State of U.P. & others³.

5. The learned counsel for the respondents have drawn the attention of the Court to Section 59 of the Code, 2006 pertaining to entrustment of land, to contend that the land which stands entrusted to the Gaon Sabha cannot be claimed by the petitioners for exchange as of right.

6. Shri Y.S. Bohra, learned counsel appearing for the respondent No.5 has drawn attention to sub-section (2) of Section 9-A of the Uttar Pradesh Basic Education Act, 1972 to contend that the property of the Uttar Pradesh Board of Basic Education, comprising of plot nos. 18 and 21, stand vested in the Gram Panchayat and any transfer by sale, gift, exchange, mortgage, lease or otherwise of any building, property or assets is prohibited. He further urged that in view of Clause (d) of sub-section (2) of section 101, the land being reserved for planned use of the Gaon Sabha, bhumi-dhari rights can not accrue on them in view of the provisions of Section 77 of the Act, 2006, and therefore, no exchange is permissible. Learned counsel has further drawn the attention of the Court to the proviso to sub-Section (2) of Section 101 to contend that exchange may be permissible in respect of land mentioned in clause (d) subject to the decision of the State Government.

7. A perusal of the order dated 24.04.2017 passed by the Sub-Divisional Officer reveals that on perusing the report of the tehsildar and the site plan, she has found the exchange proceedings in question to be initiated contrary to rules of the Board of Revenue, since on one plot a building of the school is constructed while the other plot is being used as a grove / for agriculture purposes. She further observes that if the parties wanted exchange in accordance with rules, they should not have sought exchange where one plot is being used for a grove and another plot for a school building. In that regard the Sub-Divisional Officer has relied upon a Government Order dated 10.11.2014. Accordingly, the application was rejected.

8. Sections 59, 77 and 101 of the Code of 2006 read as under:

"59. Entrustment of land etc. to Gram Panchayat and other local authorities.- (1) The State Government may, by general or special order to be published in the manner prescribed, entrust all or any of the things specified in sub-section (2), which vest in the State Government, to a Gram Panchayat or other local authority for the purposes of superintendence, preservation, management and control in accordance with the provisions of this Code.

(d) impose conditions and restrictions subject to which the powers of superintendence preservation, management and control under this section shall be exercised.

(5) Where any of the thing specified in sub-section (2) has been entrusted or deemed to have been entrusted to a Gram Panchayat, and the village or any part thereof in which such things are situated lies outside the circle of the Gram Panchayat, such Gram Panchayat or its Bhumi Prabandhak Samiti shall, subject to any general or special order issued by the State Government in this behalf, perform, discharge and exercise the functions, duties and powers assigned, imposed or conferred by or under this Code or the U.P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1947 on a Gram Panchayat or a Bhumi Prabandhak Samiti as if that village or part also lay within that circle.

(6) Where any of the things specified under sub-section (2) has been entrusted or deemed to be entrusted to a local authority other than the Gram Panchayat, the provisions of this Chapter shall mutatis mutandis apply to such local authority.

(i) land set apart for military camping ground;

Provided that the class of any public utility land may be changed only in exceptional cases on such terms and conditions, as may be prescribed. The reason for changing the class of public utility land shall be recorded in writing.

(3) The State Government, while changing the class of the land or permitting the exchange of the same under Section 101 of the Code, shall consider the location, public utility and suitability of the land proposed to be reserved or exchanged.

(4) If class of land is changed under sub-section (2) of this section, the Collector shall order the record of rights (Khatauni) and the map to be corrected accordingly.

Explanation.- The expression 'public purpose', in sub-section (2) of this section means, mutatis mutandis, 'the public purpose' as defined in clause (za) of Section 3 of Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 (Act No. 30 of 2013).

101. Exchange.- (1)

Notwithstanding anything in Section 77 of this Code, any Bhumidhar may with prior permission in writing of the Sub-Divisional Officer exchange his land with the land -

(a) held by another Bhumidhar; or

(b) entrusted or deemed to be entrusted to any Gram Panchayat or a local authority under Section 59.

(2) The Sub-Divisional Officer shall refuse permission under sub-section (1) in the following cases, namely -

(a) if the exchange is not necessary for the consolidation of holdings or securing convenience in cultivation; or

(b) if the difference between the valuation, determined in the manner prescribed, of the lands given and received in exchange exceeds ten per cent of the lower valuation; or

(c) if the difference between the areas of the land given and received in exchange exceeds twenty-five per cent of the lesser area; or

(d) in the case of land referred to in clause (b) of sub-section (1), if it is reserved for planned use, or is land in which bhumidhari rights do not accrue; or

(e) if the land is not located in same or adjacent village of the same tahsil:

Provided that the State Government may permit the exchange with land mentioned in clause (d) aforesaid, on the conditions and in the manner, prescribed.

(3) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to empower any person to exchange his undivided interest in any holding, except where such exchange is in between two or more co-sharers.

(4) Nothing in the Registration Act, 1908 (Act No. 16 of 1908), shall apply to an exchange in accordance with this section."

9. Therefore, under Section 59 of the Code, 2006, for purposes of superintendence, preservation, management and control of things which vest in the State Government and which are specified in sub-section (2) thereof, the State Government is authorized entrust them to a Gram Panchayat, or other local authority.

Sub-section (3) of Section 59 creates a legal fiction which deems entrustment of every one of the three specified categories thereunder of land or other thing to such Gram Panchayat or other local authority, as the case may be, with effect from the date of commencement of the Code, 2006 or from the date of such coming into its possession, for the purpose of superintendence, preservation, management and control. The aforesaid three specified categories of land or other thing that are specified in sub-section (3) are those:-

(a) vested in a Gram panchayat or any other local authority under the provisions of the Uttar Pradesh Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953 or the Uttar Pradesh Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings act, 1960;

(b) placed under the charge of a gram panchayat or any other local authority under any of the enactments repealed by the Code, 2006; or

(c) otherwise coming into possession of a Gram panchayat or other local authority, either before or after the commencement of the Code, 2006.

10. Section 77 (1) of the Code, 2006 which begins with a non-obstante clause, provides for certain classes of land in respect of which no person shall acquire the rights of a Bhumidhar, notwithstanding anything contained in the Code, 2006 or any other law for the time being in force. Clause (f) of sub-section (1) of Section 77 brings within its ambit grove land entrusted or deemed to be entrusted to a Gram Panchayat or any other local authority under Section 59.

11. Section 101 (1) of the Code, 2006 begins with a non-obstante clause which provides that notwithstanding anything in Section 77, any Bhumidhar may with prior permission in writing of the Sub-Divisional Officer exchange his land with the land - (a) held by another Bhumidhar; or (b) entrusted or deemed to be entrusted to any Gram Panchayat or a local authority under Section 59. However, sub-section (2) of Section 101 provides certain specific conditions whereunder the Sub-Divisional Officer shall refuse permission. They are:-

(a) if the exchange is not necessary for the consolidation of holdings or securing convenience in cultivation; or

(b) if the difference between the valuation, determined in the manner prescribed, of the lands given and received in exchange exceeds ten per cent of the lower valuation; or

(c) if the difference between the areas of the land given and received in exchange exceeds twenty-five per cent of the lesser area; or

(d) in the case of land referred to in clause (b) of sub-section (1), if it is reserved for planned use, or is land in which bhumidhari rights do not accrue; or

(e) if the land is not located in same or adjacent village of the same tahsil:

The proviso after clause (e) provides that the State Government may permit the exchange with land mentioned in clause (d) aforesaid, on the conditions and in the manner, prescribed.

Though, prima facie, there appears to be a conflict between the enabling provision of clause (b) of sub-section (1) of Section 101 (which is qualified by the non-obstante clause), and, clause (d) of sub-section (2) of Section 101, however, since nothing has been pleaded nor urged in this regard, this court refrains from expressing any opinion on the issue. In any view of the matter the proviso appearing after clause (e) aforesaid does enable the State Government to permit the exchange on the conditions and in the manner prescribed.

12. The word exchange has also been defined in Section 118 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 as under:

"118. "Exchange" defined.-

When two persons mutually transfer the ownership of one thing for the ownership of another, neither thing or both things being money only, the transaction is called an "exchange".

A transfer of property in completion of an exchange can be made only in manner provided for the transfer of such property by sale."

So exchange of property would occur where two persons mutually transfer the ownership of one thing for the ownership of another. The essential requisite of exchange, therefore, is that it should be voluntary and conscious decision by each party and permissible by law.

13. At this stage, it is pertinent to refer to Rules 100, 101 and 102 of the Uttar Pradesh Revenue Code Rules, 20165 which are as follows:

"100. Application for exchange between Bhumidhars [Section 101].-

(1) Every application for exchange of land between two Bhumidhars shall contain the following particulars:-

(a) Names, parentage and addresses of both the parties to the exchange.

(b) Details of the land sought to be given and received in exchange (with plot numbers, area, location and land revenue).

(c) Whether the proposed exchange is necessary for the consolidation of holdings or for the convenience of cultivation.

(d) Whether the proposed exchange involves transfer of undivided interest in the land.

(e) Whether the land or any part thereof has been let out or encumbered.

(f) Valuation of the lands to be given and received in exchange and the extent of difference in such valuation.

(g) The areas of the land to be given and received in exchange and the extent of difference in such areas.

(h) Whether the land to be given and received in exchange are located in the same or adjacent villages of the same Tahsil.

(2) Every such application shall be accompanied by the certified copies of the Khatauni relating to the plots to be given and received in exchange.

101. Application for exchange of land of Gram Panchayat (Section 101).-

(1) Every application for exchange of land by a Bhumidhar under clause (b) of section 101(1) shall contain the following particulars:-

(a) The particulars specified in rule 100(1)6.

(b) Whether the land to be received in exchange from the Gram Panchayat is reserved for planned use or is land in which Bhumidhars right does not accrue.

(c) Whether the land to be received in exchange from the Gram Panchayat consists of any tree or other improvements, if so, their details.

(2) Every such application shall be accompanied by certified copies of the Khatauni relating to the plots, given as well as received in exchange, together with a copy of the resolution of the Bhumi Prabandhak Samiti in favour of such exchange or the suo-motu resolution of the Sub-Divisional-Officer approved by the Collector.⁷

102. Grant of permission by Sub-Divisional Officer [Sections 101 and 102].- (1) On receipt of an application under rule 100 or rule 101, the Sub-Divisional Officer shall issue notice to the Bhumidhar or the Gram Panchayat concerned to show-cause why the permission for exchange should not be granted.

(2) The Sub-Divisional Officer shall also cause to be calculated the rental values of the land given or received in exchange and may also hear the lessees, mortgagees or other holders of the encumbrances, if any.

(3) If after making necessary inquiries, the Sub-Divisional Officer is satisfied that the parties are agreeable to such exchange and the required terms and conditions are fulfilled, he shall grant the requisite permission and shall direct the Record-of- Rights to be corrected accordingly.

(4) If the application is in respect of the land referred to in clause (b) of subsection (1) and if it is reserved for planned use or is land in which bhumidhari rights do not accrue and the Sub-Divisional Officer is satisfied that the permission for exchange is in the interest of the applicant and is also in the public interest, he may refer the matter to the State Government for appropriate order and if the permission is granted by the State Government, the Sub-Divisional Officer shall direct the Record-of-Rights (Khatauni) to be corrected accordingly."

14. As it appears from a reading of the aforesaid provisions of the Rules, 2016, Rule 100 provides the particulars required in every application for exchange of land between two Bhumidhars; Rule 101 specifies the particulars required in every application for exchange of land of Gram Panchayat by a Bhumidhar; and, Rule 102 provides the procedure for consideration of an application under Rule 100 or Rule 101 by the Sub-Divisional Officer. Perusal of sub-rule (4) of Rule 102 provides that where the application is in respect of land referred to in clause (b) of sub-section (1)⁸ and it is reserved for planned use or is land in which bhumidhari rights do not accrue and the Sub-Divisional Officer is satisfied that the permission for exchange is in the interest of the applicant and is also in the public interest, he may refer the matter to the State Government for appropriate order and if the permission is granted by the State Government, the Sub-Divisional Officer shall direct the Record-of-Rights (Khatauni) to be corrected accordingly.

15. The land which is being sought by the petitioners in exchange for their land stands entrusted with the Gram Panchayat. The school is stated to be constructed long back on the land of the petitioners and the application for exchange was filed on

11.03.2016. Section 9-A of the Basic Education Act reads as follows:-

Section 9A. Control of teachers and properties of basic school.

(1) Notwithstanding anything contained to the contrary in any other provisions of this Act, on and from the date of commencement of the Uttar Pradesh Basic Education (Amendment) Act, 2000, -

(a) every teacher of the basic school serving under, the Board immediately before such commencement shall be under the administrative control of the Gram Panchayat or the Municipality, as the case may be, within whose territorial limits the basic school, is situated;

(b) all buildings, properties and assets of the Board in respect of a basic school shall stand transferred to, and vest in, the Gram Panchayat or the Municipality, as the case may be, within whose territorial limits the basic school is situated;

(c) where any building or part thereof is occupied by a tenant by the Board for the purpose of a basic school immediately before such commencement, the tenancy in respect of such building or part thereof shall, notwithstanding anything contained in any contract, lease or other instrument, stand transferred in favour of the Gram Panchayat, or the Municipality, as the case may be;

(d) the Board shall cease to be the licensee in respect of the building or part thereof referred to in sub-section (2) of Section 18-A and the Gram Panchayat or the Municipality, as the case may be, within whose territorial limits such building is situated shall, if it is not already owner thereof, be deemed to have become licensee in respect of such building or part thereof on such terms and conditions as may be determined by the State Government.

(2) No Gram Panchayat or Municipality shall have the power to transfer by sale, gift, exchange, mortgage, lease or otherwise any building, property or assets transferred to, and vested in, such Gram Panchayat or Municipality, as the case may be, under sub-section (1).

15. Given the provision of clause (c) of sub-section (3) of Section 59 and clause (f) of sub-section (1) of Section 77 of the Code, 2006, the area of plot no.19 which is admittedly grove land, over which the school is constructed and over which the petitioners claim bhumidhari rights, would be deemed to be entrusted to the Gram Panchayat. However, it cannot be the case of the respondents that plot no.19 was transferred to or vested in the Gram Panchayat under the provisions of Section 9-A of the Basic Education Act, as the Board of Basic Education would first have to demonstrate that the land comprising plot no. 19 and the building of the school belonged to it. Thus the reference to the provisions of Section 9-A of the Basic Education Act, by the learned counsel for the respondent insofar as it concerns the Bhumidhari Plot No. 19 of the petitioners, is of no consequence. However, as regards Plot No. 18, the respondents may have an arguable case.

16. In any view of the matter, what is required to be seen in the present writ petition is whether the order dated 24.04.2017 passed by the Sub-Divisional Officer and the order dated 23.02.2021 passed by the Board of Revenue can be sustained. The sum and substance of the order passed by the Sub-Divisional Officer has already been noted above. It is evident that the reason for rejection of the application for exchange is that on one plot there is a grove, while on the other plot there exists a school building. Therefore, to refuse permission for exchange under sub-section (1) of Section 101 of the Code, 2006, it was required of the Sub-Divisional Officer to record a finding in terms of clause (b) of sub-section (2) of the Code, 2006. That is to say, the finding returned ought to have been that the difference between the valuation, if determined in the manner prescribed, of the lands given and received in exchange exceeds ten per cent of the lower valuation. Of course, it was also open to the Sub-Divisional Officer to record finding for refusal of permission on ground of existence of any condition mentioned in sub-section (2) of Section 101, if the facts and evidence on record so reflected. The Sub-Divisional Officer was required to take into account considerations that were relevant to the purpose of the statute in question. This was not done in the present case and so the impugned order dated 24.04.2017 cannot be sustained. The order dated 23.02.2021 of the Board of Revenue also adopts the same analogy as the Sub-Divisional Officer for rejection of the revision filed by the petitioners, and therefore, that order too cannot be sustained.

17. In the case of Sita Ram v. State of U.P. and others⁹, a coordinate bench of this court observed as follows:

"20. In exercise of its discretionary power, if the concerned authority ignores or does not take into account considerations which are relevant to the purpose of the statute in question, then its action would be invalid. This would be more so where the statute conferring discretion on the authority has structured the discretion by expressly laying down the consideration which should be taken into account by the authority for exercise of the discretion. In such a case, if the exercise of the discretionary power has been influenced by considerations that cannot lawfully be taken into account or by disregard of the relevant considerations required to be taken into account, the decision arrived at by the authority would be invalid."

18. There is an important aspect of the matter that requires attention. Under sub-rule (2) of Rule 101 of the Rules, 2016, an application for exchange of land of Gram Panchayat is required to be accompanied by certified copies of the khatauni relating to the plots given as well as received in exchange, together with a copy of the resolution of the Bhumi Prabandhak Samiti in favour of such exchange. In the alternative, the application is to be accompanied by the suo moto resolution of the Sub-Divisional Officer approved by the Collector. There is no material on record to demonstrate that any of such resolution was made and filed alongwith the application of the petitioners.

19. In the case of Shiv Murat Vs. Board of Revenue, U.P. at Allahabad and others¹⁰, while considering exchange under the provisions of Section 161 of the repealed U.P.Z.A. and L.R. Act, 1950, the Court posed the question whether the land vesting in the State Government can be exchanged without notice to the Land Management Committee and without there being a resolution of the Gaon Sabha approving the exchange. The Court observed as follows:

"11. On plain reading of Sub-clause (i) of Section 161 and Rule 145, it is apparent that the Assistant Collector upon being satisfied with the conditions of exchange, as a consequence of the Rule he is required to call upon the parties to show cause why the exchange should not be made and thereafter under Rule 146 the Assistant Collector is to decide the objections, if any, and pass suitable orders. It is, therefore, clear that without notice to the Gaon Sabha and in absence of a resolution recording consent of the Land Management Committee the permission to make an exchange suo moto by the Assistant Collector on a report of the Halka Lekhpal would be void not being mandated under Section 161 of the Act.

12. In the event of the submission of learned counsel for the petitioner being accepted, then land of a bhumidhar can be exchanged behind his back merely on an application by another bhumidhar, on mere approval of the Assistant Collector. Rule requires that the owner of the land be it a bhumidhar or in the present case a Gaon Sabha would have to be put to notice before the land vesting in the Gaon Sabha is exchanged.

17. On the bare reading of the meaning of the word "exchange" it would transpire that it is not unilateral transaction and is mutual one and it depends on the readiness and willingness of both the parties, i.e., the party which wants to exchange and the party which accepts the exchange proposed by the other party. Therefore, I am of the considered opinion that unless both the parties agree for exchange, the Assistant Collector cannot accord permission merely at the instance of an individual seeking exchange of his land with another individual unless he is willing to exchange. The willingness of the parties to exchange their respective land is condition precedent under Section 161 of the Act. The exchange of the land is not unilateral transaction of a willing party to exchange, there must be consent of the person with whom exchange has been sought and unless there is agreement of exchange between the parties, there is no such power vested with the Assistant Collector under the statute to compel the bhumidhar to exchange land with another bhumidhar/Gaon Sabha against its will.

18. This Court in Rambali and others Versus State of U.P. and others, decided on 9 May 2012, declined to issue writ of mandamus seeking direction to the Assistant Collector to decide the application under Section 161. The Court held as follows:

As I have noticed that the exchange of land belonging to a bhumidhar to another bhumidhar is not unilateral transaction by a willing party to exchange, there must be consent of the person with whom exchange has been sought and unless there is an agreement of exchange between the parties, there is no such power, vested with the Assistant Collector, under the statute, to compel a bhumidhar for exchange of his land with another bhumidhar against his will. I am of the view that conferment of right of exchange of the land under Section 161 of the Act read with relevant rules as detailed is subject to convenience of both the parties to the exchange and in the eventuality the willingness of both the sides to exchange, the Section 161 imposes duty upon the Assistant Collector either to grant permission or to refuse the same if the same is not inconformity with the section 161 of the Act and the rules 144 to 147 of the Rules."

19. The exchange of Land is not a novelty of the Zamindari Abolition Act. Provisions for exchange existed even under U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939 and other legislation viz. M.P. Land Revenue Court, 1959. The term exchange is not defined in the Act, hence the definition given in Section 118 of the Transfer of Property Act shall be applicable. According to the said provision, exchange is a transfer. When two persons mutually transfer the ownership of one thing for the ownership of another, a transaction is called exchange. For a valid exchange, it must be voluntarily and both parties must agree thereto. No exchange is permissible unless both parties agree to the exchange.

20. In Saheb Singh Versus Gaon Sabha, 1981 RD 85, where Land Management Committee passed a resolution that a particular pathway should be widened and the affected tenure holders must be given land in exchange near their chaks. It was held that the order of the Sub Divisional Officer approving the exchange was bad because the consent of all the affected tenure holders was not obtained.

21. In Smt. Badi Dulaiya Versus Gaon Sabha, 1987 RD 246, wherein, it was held that if the procedure prescribed by Rules 144 to 146 was not followed, and the permission required under Rule 110-A(2) was not obtained, the order for exchange was not valid (Refer: State of U.P. Versus M/s Techno Tower Limited, 1986 RD 397).

22. In Narain Singh Versus Gaon Sabha, 1975 ALJ (Revenue) 73, it was held that a land belonging to the Gaon Sabha cannot be allowed to be exchanged without the consent of the Gaon Sabha. In Gulshan Rai Versus Mitra Sen, 1994 RD 125, where on the report submitted by Naib Tehsildar recommending that the permission for exchange may be granted to the parties and on such report, the Sub Divisional Officer passed an order approving the exchange, it was held to be no order in the eye of law.

23. Before disposing of the application for exchange, a duty is cast upon the Assistant Collector to ensure that the provisions of Rule 144 to 146 are literally followed. (Refer-Ashok Kumar Versus Mahavir Singh, 1994 RD 136; State of U.P. Versus M/s Techno Tower Ltd., 1986 RD 397). The proceedings for exchange are judicial proceeding and therefore, the Assistant Collector should pass complete and self contained order. Where the Assistant Collector finds that parties involved in the exchange have not consented, therefor, or if any of them has withdrawn such consent, he has no option but to reject the application. (Fakir Chand Versus Naib Johra Zaidi, 1995 RD 405)

24. The trial court should ensure and see that show cause notice mentioned in Rule 145 is issued and the condition mentioned in the proviso to Section 161 is fulfilled (Gaon Sabha Versus Kundan Lal, 1986 RD 366).

25. The exchange of land belonging to the Gaon Sabha does not depend of the personal consent of the Pradhan or the Lekhpal. For exchange proper resolution as required under law should be passed by the Gaon Sabha. (Harihar Prasad Versus Jagdish, 2001 RD 163)."

20. For want of any resolution of the Land Management Committee in favour of exchange or any suo moto resolution of the Sub-Divisional Officer approved by the Collector, any application filed for exchange of land of Gram Panchayat cannot meet the prescribed requirements of Rule 101 and therefore such an application would have an incurable defect.

21. In view of the facts and circumstances mentioned above, the impugned orders dated 24.04.2017 passed by the Sub-ground of limitation rather adjudication should be made on merit – High Court set aside the impugned order and remitted back the appeal for it's decision on merit after condoning the delay in filing the appeal. (Para 12, 16, 17 and 18)

3. The dispute pertains to old khata No.137 consisting of 16 plots total area 5 bigha, 1 biswa and 8 dhoor. Smt. Lakhpata was Zamidar/ proprietor of the land in dispute. Smt. Lakhpata transferred her entire right by registered sale deed dated 02.12.1918 in favour of Sri Ganpat Dube. It is also material that Smt. Lakhpata was Sir holder of the land in dispute. Smt. Lakhpata became ex-proprietary tenant by virtue of provisions contained under Section 10 of North Western Provinces Tenancy Act 1901 due to transfer made by Smt. Lakhpata to Sri Ganpat Dube, Smt. Lakhpata was not heard of from 1348 Fasli accordingly, Sri Ganpat Dube being Jamindar took entire property in his possession. By Virtue of Provisions contained under Section 18 of the U.P.Z.A. & L. R. Act, Sri Ganpat Dube became bhumidhar of the land in dispute after date of vesting. After death of Sri Ganpat Dube, his two widows namely Smt. Sharda and Smt. Parmeshwara succeeded to the property and their names were accordingly mutated in the revenue record. Smt. Parmeshwara had no issue therefore, her share was succeeded by Smt. Shobha. Smt. Rajpati Devi daughter of Smt. Shobha executed a will deed in favour of Chanda Devi, who is petitioner before this Court. Under the order of Amaldaramad dated 30.10.1970 passed by Supervisor/ Kannongo, name of Lalta, Rampadarth and Ramsukh sons of Kanahaiya were ordered to be mutated as heirs of Smt. Lakhpata. Since the succession was disputed as Supervisor/ Kannungo did not have jurisdiction to record the name of Lalta, Rampadarth and Ramsukh under Section 33-A of U.P. Land Revenue Act on the basis of P.A.-11 accordingly, Smt. Rajpati filed a suit being suit No.425 under Section 229-B of U.P.Z.A. & L. R. Act claiming declaration for her right and title in respect to the plot in dispute stating that the order of Amaldaramad dated 30.10.1970 is out come of fraud. During the pendency of the aforesaid suit, the village was brought under consolidation operation under Section 4 of the U.P.C.H. Act as such suit stood abated on 28.05.1979 in view of the provisions contained under Section 5 of the U.P.C.H. Act. In the Basic Year of Consolidation operation Lalta, Rampadarth and Ramsukh sons of Kanahaiya were recorded over the plots of khata No.137 New khata No.105. Against basic year entry Smt. Rajpati filed objection under Section 9-A (2) of the U.P.C.H. Act claiming exclusive right in the pots of Khata No.105 stating that she herself is cultivating two plots and remaining 14 plots has been given on Batai cultivation. The Consolidation Officer heard the aforementioned title objection filed by Smt. Rajpati and vide order dated 19.02.1982 decided the objection against Smt. Rajpati for 14 plots and decided in her favour for two plots which were in her personal cultivation. Against the order of Consolidation officer dated 19.02.1982 Smt. Rajpati filed appeal under Section 11 of the U.P.C.H. Act on 16.08.1982 along with prayer for condonation of delay supported with affidavit of appellant. Sri Janaki and Sri Jagai also filed their separate appeals against the order of Consolidation Officer dated 19.02.1982. All the three appeals were consolidated and heard together. The appellate court vide order dated 18.03.1983 allowed all three appeals setting aside the order of Consolidation Officer. Against the appellate order dated 18.03.1983, Rampadarth and others filed three separate revisions being revision Nos 734, 733 and 732 under Section 48 of U.P.C.H. Act. All the three revisions were consolidated and heard together. The aforesaid revisions were allowed and matter was remanded to the appellate Court to decide the appeals afresh vide order dated 22.10.1984. In pursuance of the remand order dated 22.10.1984 appeals filed by Janki, Jagai and Rajpathi were renumbered as Appeal Nos.4, 6 and 5 respectively. All the three appeals were heard together and appellate court vide order dated 31.05.2004 decided the appeal whereby appeal No.4 filed by Janki, appeal No.5 filed by Smt. Rajpati were allowed and appeal No.6 filed by Jagai was dismissed. The appellate court while deciding the appeal vide order dated 31.05.2004 has taken into consideration the evidence on record as well as provisions of U.P.Z.A. and L.R.Act, 1950 and accepted the claim of the petitioner on the basis of provisions contained under the Act and rules framed thereunder. Against the order dated 31.05.2004 two revisions under 48 of U.P.C.H. Act were filed by Ram Shanker and others, who were consolidated and heard together. Revisional court vide order dated 16.03.2005 dismissed the revisions, hence Ram Shankar and others challenged the order of appellate court dated 31.05.2004 and revisional court dated 16.03.2005 through Writ-B No.44157 of 2005 before this Court which was allowed vide order dated 01.10.2010 quashing the orders dated 31.05.2004 and 16.03.2005 and remanded the matter before appellate Court to examine the delay condonation matter, possession of the parties and the revenue entry. In pursuance of the order of this Court dated 01.10.2010 Settlement Officer Consolidation has restored all the three appeals and after hearing the counsel for the parties dismissed all the three appeals filed by petitioner's predecessor in interest, Janki and Jagai on the ground of limitation vide order dated 04.06.2016. Petitioner filed recall application against the appellate order dated 04.06.2016 which was dismissed vide order dated 07.10.2016 accordingly petitioner filed two Separate revisions under Section 48 of U.P.C.H. Act against the order dated 04.06.2016 and 07.10.2016. One Jaglal has also filed his separate revision against the appellate order dated 04.06.2016. All the three revisions were consolidated and heard together. Revisional Court vide order dated 08.9.2021 dismissed all the three revisions hence this writ petition.

4. This Court vide order dated 19.11.2022 has entertained the writ petition and granted interim protection in the matter however on the recall application filed on behalf of respondent No.5 the earlier order dated 19.11.2022 was recalled vide order dated 13.02.2023 on the ground of opportunity of hearing.

5. In pursuance of the order dated 19.11.2022 notices were issued to the private respondents Nos. 5 to 15. Respondent No.5 has already put in his appearance before issuance of notice to the respondents through Mr. Prashant Kumar Tripathi Advocate. Respondent No.12 has put in appearance through Mr. Narshing Pancey Advocate after issuance of notice to the respondent.

6. As per office report dated 10.02.2023 service is sufficient upon respondent Nos.6 to 10 and 12 to 15. Officer has also reported that respondent No.11 is dead. Petitioner has filed an application for amendment to amend the array of parties by mentioning deceased against the name of respondent No.11, who died issue-less and heirs are already on record of the writ petition. accordingly this Court vide order dated 28.03.2023 allowed the amendment application.

7. Learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner submitted that serious question of law has been raised in the title appeal under Section 11 (1) of U.P.C.H. Act, but the appeal has been dismissed on the ground of limitation. He further submitted that in appeal prayer has been made for condonation of delay along with separate affidavit of the appellant, but the appellate court has illegally dismissed the appeal on the ground of limitation. He further submitted that delay was not inordinate in filing the appeal rather the appeal was filed on 16.04.1982 against the order of Consolidation Officer dated 19.02.1982, as such dismissal of appeal on the ground of limitation is against the principle of law laid by this Court as well as Apex Court from time to time for taking liberal view in delay condonation matter. He further submitted that earlier the claim of the petitioner was allowed on merit by passing detailed order considering the provisions of law, as such the dismissal of the appeal after remand order passed by this Court on the ground of limitation only specially when the delay is not inordinate will be against the principle of law settled by Apex Court for deciding the matter on merit rather on technical ground. He further submitted that even on merit, petitioner is entitled to the right and title over the land in dispute as after date of vesting no right will accrue to Lakhpata as such Lalta, Rampadarth and Ramsukh will not get any right and petitioner will be entitled to the right and title over the land in dispute in view of the provisions contained under Section 18 of U.P.Z.A. & L. R. Act. Learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner placed reliance upon the judgment of this Court passed in Writ-B No.14670 of 1988 (Smt. Kalawati Vs. Deputy Director of Consolidation and others) in which this Court has affirmed the order condoning the delay in filing the appeal before Settlement Officer of Consolidation after following the judgement of the Apex court.

8. On the other hand, Mr. Prashant Kumar Tripathi, Counsel for respondent No.5 submitted that in pursuance of the remand order passed by this Court dated 01.10.2010 by which petitioner's writ petition was allowed and matter was remitted back before the appellate court to decide the appeal afresh considering the delay condonation matter and other points on merit, the appellate court has considered the delay condonation matter and rejected the appeal on the ground of limitation. He further submitted that no separate application under Section 5 of Limitation Act has been filed rather in the appeal itself the prayer has been made for condonation of delay, as such, delay in filing the appeal was rightly refused by the appellate court. He further submitted that sufficiency of cause and reality of cause are two different things. He further submitted that there can be liberal view in respect to the sufficiency of cause, but there cannot be liberal view in respect to the reality of the cause. He further submitted that petitioner has not filed separate application for condonation of delay as such, delay cannot be condoned whether the delay is inordinate or not. Mr. Prashant Kumar Tripathi, counsel for respondent No.5 placed reliance upon judgment of this Court, reported in 1988 ALJ 358 Kedar and others Vs. Assistant Director of Consolidation Banda and others in order to demonstrate that there can be no liberal view in respect to the reality of the cause in filing the delay condonation application. He next submitted that no interference is required against the impugned order and writ petition is liable to be dismissed.

9. I have considered the arguments advanced by the counsel for the parties and perused the record.

10. There is no dispute about the fact that proceeding arises out of title matter under Section 9-A (2) of U.P.C.H. Act. There is also no dispute about the fact that title appeal filed by the petitioner on 16.04.1982 against the order dated 19.02.1982 passed by Consolidation Officer has been dismissed by the appellate court on the ground of limitation only. There is also no dispute about the fact that revision filed by the petitioner against the order dismissing the petitioner's title appeal on the ground of limitation has been also dismissed.

11. In order to appreciate the controversy the perusal of the appeal under Section 11 (1) of U.P.C.H. Act filed by Smt. Rajpati taking specific grounds specially in paragraph No.10 of the memo of appeal with respect to condonation of delay supported by the affidavit of the appellant will be relevant which are as under:

12. After perusal of the grounds of appeal specially paragraph No.10 of the grounds of appeal filed by the petitioner as well as affidavit filed in appeal as well as delay condonation matter, the dismissal of title appeal on the ground of limitation will be against the justice oriented approach of the Court.

13. It is also material that on the earlier occasion, the matter was decided in favour of the petitioner on merit although that orders have been set aside by this Court while allowing the writ petition filed by the contesting respondents, but the fact remains that interesting question of title is involved in the matter as such, dismissal of the petitioner's appeal which was filed within two months from the date of the order of Consolidation Officer, will be against the interest of justice.

14. Honble Apex Court in the case is reported in AIR 1987 S.C. 1353 Collector, Land Acquisition Anantnag and others Vs. Mst. Kantiji and others has held that matter should be adjudicated on merit in place of dismissal of the case on technical grounds. Paragraph No.3 of Judgment is relevant which is as follows:

"3. The legislature has conferred the power to condone delay by enacting Section 5 of the Indian Limitation Act of 1963 in order to enable the Courts to do substantial justice to parties by disposing of matters on 'merits'. The expression "sufficient cause" employed by the legislature is adequately elastic to enable the courts to apply the law in a meaningful manner which subserves the ends of justice that being the life-purpose for the existence of the institution of Courts. It is common knowledge that this Court has been making a justifiably liberal approach in matters instituted in this Court. But the message does not appear to have percolated down to all the other Courts in the hierarchy. And such a liberal approach is adopted on principle as it is realized that:-

"Any appeal or any application, other than an application under any of the provisions of Order XXI of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 may be admitted after the prescribed period if the appellant or the applicant satisfies the court that he had sufficient cause for not preferring the appeal or making the application within such period."

1. Ordinarily a litigant does not stand to benefit by lodging an appeal late.

2. Refusing to condone delay can result in a meritorious matter being thrown out at the very threshold and cause of justice being defeated. As against this when delay is condoned the highest that can happen is that a cause would be decided on merits after hearing the parties.

3. "Every day's delay must be explained" does not mean that a pedantic approach should be made. Why not every hour's delay, every second's delay? The doctrine must be applied in a rational common sense pragmatic manner.

4. When substantial justice and technical considerations are pitted against each other, cause of substantial justice deserves to be preferred for the other side cannot claim to have vested right in injustice being done because of a non-deliberate delay.

5. There is no presumption that delay is occasioned deliberately, or on account of culpable negligence, or on account of mala fides. A litigant does not stand to benefit by resorting to delay. In fact he runs a serious risk.

6. It must be grasped that judiciary is respected not on account of its power to legalize injustice on technical grounds but because it is capable of removing injustice and is expected to do so.

Making a justice-oriented approach from this perspective, there was sufficient cause for condoning the delay in the institution of the appeal. The fact that it was the 'State' which was seeking condonation and not a private party was altogether irrelevant. The doctrine of equality before law demands that all litigants, including the State as a litigant, are accorded the same treatment and the law is administered in an even handed manner. There is no warrant for according a step motherly treatment when the 'State' is the applicant praying for condonation of delay. In fact experience shows that on account of an impersonal machinery (no one in charge of the matter is directly hit or hurt by the judgment sought to be subjected to appeal) and the inherited bureaucratic methodology imbued with the note-making, file pushing and passing-on-the-buck ethos, delay on its part is less difficult to understand though more difficult to approve. In any event, the State which represents the collective cause of the community, does not deserve a litigant-non-grata status. The Courts therefore have to be informed with the spirit and philosophy of the provision in the course of the interpretation of the expression "sufficient cause". So also the same approach has to be evidenced in its application to matters at hand with the end in view to do even handed justice on merits in preference to the approach which scuttles a decision on merits. Turning to the facts of the matter giving rise to the present appeal, we are satisfied that sufficient cause exists for the delay. The order of the High Court dismissing the appeal before it as time barred, is therefore set aside. Delay is condoned. And the matter is remitted to the High Court. The High Court will now dispose of the appeal on merits after affording reasonable opportunity of hearing to both the sides."

15. Apex Court in the case reported in (2010) 12 Supreme Court cases 159 Bhagmal and others Vs. Kunwar Lal and others has also considered the scope of delay condonation matter for setting aside the ex-parte decree. Paragraph Nos. 10, 11, 12 and 13 of the judgment of Apex Court rendered in Bhagmal (Supra) are relevant which are as under:-

10. This well considered order of the appellate Court came to be interfered with by the High Court solely on the ground that there was no application for condonation of delay made by the appellants/defendants before the Trial Court in support of their application under Order IX Rule 13 CPC. The High Court observed that the appellate Court had not recorded any finding on the question as to whether the filing of the application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act was necessary or not and went on to decide the application on merits and, therefore, it had exceeded its jurisdiction. The High Court also commented on the fact that the ex-parte decree was decided on 19.4.1985, while the application for setting aside the ex-parte decree was filed on 8.7.1988 and that no application for condonation of delay under Section 5 of the Limitation Act was filed. Relying on Article 123 of the Limitation Act, the High Court took the view that the application ought to have been filed within 30 days from the date of passing of the decree and since it was not so filed, at least a condonation of delay application should have been made under Section 5 of the Limitation Act and, therefore, in the absence of prayer for condonation of delay, the appellate Court could not have allowed the application under Order IX Rule 13.

11. In our opinion, the High Court was not justified in taking a hypertechnical view. We have seen all the orders. It is quite clear from the Trial Court's order that the Trial Court entertained the application on merits. The Trial Court undoubtedly has referred to the reply of the respondents to the effect that the application for setting aside the ex-parte decree was beyond the limitation. However, the view taken by the Trial Court was based more on the merits. In fact, it went on to record the finding that there was no compromise and the theory of compromise and delay on account of that was not acceptable. The Trial Court has more or the less based its findings regarding delay on the basis of the order sheets. That was not right as the order sheets nowhere bore the signatures of the parties. They were mechanically written mentioning "parties as before". Therefore, the Trial Court did not throw the application under Order IX Rule 13 merely on the basis of the fact that no application for condonation of delay was made. It went on to consider the delay aspect as well as the merits and even allowed the parties to lead evidence.

12. It is to be seen here that the question of delay was completely interlinked with the merits of the matter. The appellants/defendants had clearly pleaded that they did not earlier come to the Court on account of the fact that they did not know about the order passed by the Court proceeding ex-parte and also the ex-parte decree which was passed. It was further clearly pleaded that they came to know about the decree when they were served with the execution notice. This was nothing, but a justification made by the appellants/defendants for making the Order IX Rule 13 application at the time when it was actually made. This was also a valid explanation of the delay. The question of filing Order IX Rule 13 application was, in our opinion, rightly considered by the appellate Court on merits and the appellate Court was absolutely right in coming to the conclusion that appellants/defendants were fully justified in filing the application under Order IX Rule 13 CPC at the time when they actually filed it and the delay in filing the application was also fully explained on account of the fact that they never knew about the decree and the orders starting the ex-parte proceedings against them. If this was so, the Court had actually considered the reasons for the delay also. Under such circumstances, the High Court should not have taken the hyper-technical view that no separate application was filed under Section 5.

13. The application under Order IX Rule 13 CPC itself had all the ingredients of the application for condonation of delay in making that application. Procedure is after all handmaid of justice. Here was a party which bona fide believed the assurance given in the compromise panchnama that the respondent No. 1/plaintiff would get his suit withdrawn or dismissed. The said compromise panchnama was made before the elders of the village. Writing was also effected, displaying that compromise. The witnesses were also examined. Under such circumstances, the non-attendance of the appellants/defendants, which was proved in the further proceedings, was quite justifiable. The appellants/defendants, when ultimately came to know about the decree, had moved the application within 30 days. In our opinion, that was sufficient.

16. The judgment cited by the counsel for the petitioner rendered in Smt. Kalawati Devi (Supra) has also considered the judgment of Apex Court rendered in Collector, Land Acquisition Anantnag and others (Supra) & has held that matter should not be thrown on the ground of limitation rather adjudication should be made on merit as such the judgment cited by learned counsel for the petitioner will be applicable but judgment cited by learned counsel for the respondent No.5 will not be applicable in order to advance the cause of justice..

17. Considering the entire facts and circumstances of the case as well as ratio of law laid down by the apex court in the Collector, Land Acquisition Anantnag (Supra), the impugned appellate order dated 04.06.2016 as well as order dated 07.10.2016 passed by respondent No.3-Settlement Consolidation Officer Basti in the appeal Nos.447 (Rajpati Devi Vs. Ramsukh etc) as well as revisional order dated 08.09.2021 passed by respondent No.2-Deputy Director of Consolidation in revision No.30 and revision no. 37 are liable to be set aside and same are hereby set aside. Considering the explanation of delay in filing the appeals under Section-11 (1) of U.P.C.H. Act as well as ratio of law laid down by Apex Court delay in filing appeal against the order of Consolidation Officer dated 19.02.1982 is hereby condoned.

18. The writ petition stands allowed in part and matter is remitted back before the respondent No.3 Settlement Consolidation Officer Basti to decide the appeal Nos.447, 448 and 449 on merit after affording opportunity of hearing to the parties expeditiously preferably within a period of four months from the date of production of certified copy of this order without granting any unnecessary adjournment from either of the parties.

No order as to costs.

Civil Law - U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947- Impugned award passed-reinSt.d the Opposite party-a workman-Labour Court not considered the documents filed by the Department- mere finding that oral termination was not according to law would not ipso facto lead to a conclusion that the workman should be reinSt.d with back wages-and continuity in service-a consolidated and lump sum amount of compensation could have served the purpose-as the age of respondent was 53 years- as of now he must have attained the age of superannuation- not just for reinSt.ment after attaining age of superannuation -relief of reinSt.ment with continuity in service and backwages is denied-Rs. 2,00,00/- as lumpsum compensation granted.

33. U.P. Power Corpn. Ltd. Vs Bijli Mazdoor Sangh, (2007) 5 SCC 755

1. This writ petition has been filed by Madhyanchal Vidyut Vitaran Nigam Ltd. challenging the impugned award dated 19.10.2015 published on 30.01.2016 passed by the respondent No.2-Presiding Officer, Labour Court, Firozabad with a further prayer to issue a writ in the nature of Mandamus commanding the respondent no.3 not to enforce the aforesaid award.

2. The facts of the case are that petitioner (hereinafter referred to 'as MVVNL') is a company incorporated under the Companies Act-1956 engaged in the business of distribution of electricity within specified areas under the license granted to it by U.P. Electricity Regulatory Commission in exercise of powers under the Electricity Act-2003. The writ petition contains various pleadings with regard to status of the petitioner-Company, however, since the writ petition arises out of an award passed under the provisions of U.P. Industrial Disputes Act-1947 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act-1947'), it is not necessary to enter into details of such aspects which may not be relevant for the purposes of deciding the controversy. However, emphasis of the petitioner in the writ petition is that the U.P. Power Corporation Ltd. has framed U.P. Rajya Vidyut Parishad Parichalkiya Karmchari Varg Seva Viniymawali-1995 (hereinafter referred to the 'Regulations-1995') governing the services of its employees and workers.

3. The respondent no.4-Workman raised a dispute regarding termination of his services w.e.f. 21.03.2006 and pursuant to a reference made, a case was registered as Adjudication Case No.42 of 2007. Thereafter, the case was transferred to the Labour Court, Firozabad wherein it was registered as Adjudication Case No.46 of 2015. The case of the workman is that he was appointed on the post of Sub Station Operator on 11.07.1986 on a temporary basis as a daily wager and he had worked in the Establishment upto 20.03.2006, whereafter, his services were orally terminated on 21.03.2006. He contends that oral termination of his services was contrary to law and, therefore, he was entitled to be reinstated on the post with continuity in past services alongwith arrears of salary,

4. On the other hand, the case of the petitioner-Department is that the workman was never appointed and he had never worked on any post. Relying upon the aforesaid Regulations of 1995, it is contended by the Department that all appointments in the Organisation were made by issuing letters of appointment by the Competent Authorities; that no letter of appointment was ever issued to the respondent; the respondent never joined the Department; the posts are filled up holding rigorous selection process; the respondent tried to secure employment in the Organization by hook and crook; the respondent did not fall within the definition of workman; there was no relationship of employer-employee in between the Department and the respondent since the respondent was not an employee/workman in the Organisation, no question of termination of his services arose; no salary was ever paid to the respondent; there was a ban imposed on appointment since 1979 from appointing employees on Muster Roll & temporary basis and that there was no post of Sub Station Operator.

5. The petitioner-Department also filed a rejoinder before Labour Court stating that respondent no.4 was never appointed as a daily wager; that Electricity Urban Division-III Bareilly was created on 01.04.1991 and that respondent no.4 had never worked in the Division, therefore, question of completion of 240 days did not arise. On behalf of the Department Shri G.K. Saxena, Retired Junior Engineer, Sri Pramod, Trainee Junior Engineer, filed affidavit on 17.01.2008 & Shri S.K. Saxena, employed in Division-III filed an affidavit on 09.01.2008. In the affidavit, Shri G.K. Saxena stated that he was employed as Junior Engineer from 20.09.1994 to 30.01.2006, Shri Pramod stated on oath that he was employed from 07.03.2005 to January 2006 and Shri S.K. Saxena, Executive Engineer, stated that he was employed from 28.06.2003 to 22.06.2007 in Vidyut Nagariya Vitaran Khand-III, Madhyanchal Vidyut Vitaran Nigam Ltd. Bareilly. During the period of employment, neither any work was taken from respondent No.4 nor was any payment of salary/wages made to him. The Department also filed various documents such as Notification dated 09.08.1995, letter dated 03.07.1979, Notification dated 13.06.1992, office letter dated 08.11.1990 etc. to demonstrate that the alleged appointment claimed by the workman was not permissible as not only the Department was created much much subsequent in point of time but also such alleged appointment was contrary to law.

6. The workman examined himself and in his statement dated 14.12.2011, he stated that he was appointed as a daily wager on the post of Sub Station Operator and during the period of strike, he continued to work. He referred to various documents to establish that certain certificates were issued regarding his working and also attendance register on which his signatures were there. He also stated that after termination of his services, he was unemployed and used to get work from contractors from time to time. The workman was cross-examined by the Department and stated about intermittent payments made to him by the Officials of the Department.

7. Insofar as the Officials of the Department are concerned, they were cross-examined by the workman, however, during the cross-examination, consistent stand of the Officials was that the workman was never paid any salary etc. by any of the Officials; that the workman was never appointed as daily wager; that any appointment is made only after following due selection process; that no one was employed on Muster Roll or daily wage basis in the concerned Sub Station. These Officials also denied their signatures on the documents which were relied upon by the respondent-workman. The Department laid much emphasis on an Office Memorandum No.1989-C/SEB-I-10A/79 dated 03.07.1979 issued by the U.P. State Electricity Board Shakti Bhawan 14, Ashok Marg, Lucknow by laying much emphasis on the following portion of the said Memorandum:-

“Board had issued orders vide B.O. No.147-G/SEB-I-10A/1979 that no engagement on Muster Roll or Daily rated basis in the categories of Coolies /Mazdoors/Beldars/Chowkidars/Skilled Coolies/ SSOs/ Linemen/ Electrician/ Dutymen/ Wiremen/ Meter Readers etc. would hence forth be made for the operation and maintenance of generation, transmission and distribution works from the date of receipt of these orders on February 1, 1979, whichever is earlier. “

8. Further reliance was placed on another Office Memorandum dated 11.06.1990 which reads as follows:-

*“परिषद ने अपने आदेश सं० 1989-जी/एसईवी/- 1-10ए/79 दि० 3 जुलाई, 1979 द्वारा दिनांक 1-8-79 से मस्टररोल या दैनिक वेतन पर कुली/मजदूरी/एस०एस०ओ० आदि किसी भी पद पर रखने तथा कार्य लेने पर रोक लगा दी थी।

इसके उपरान्त भी इस कार्यालय के संज्ञान में आया है कि कुछ लोग गलत तरीके से विभाग के अवर अभियन्ताओं/ सहायक अभियन्ता भी से मस्टर रोल पर कार्य संबंधी प्रमाण पत्र प्राप्त कर रहे हैं तथा न्यायालयों में ऐसे प्रमाण पत्रों के आधार पर विवाद लगा रहे हैं। यह भी तथ्य प्रकाश में आया है कि कुछ विभागीय अवर अभियन्ता भी इस प्रकार के जाली प्रमाण पत्रों के निर्गत कर रहे हैं। पूर्व में भी इस कार्यालय के पत्रांक 42-मुथेअब/ दि० 10.1.90 द्वारा क्षेत्र के समस्त अधिकारियों के ऐसे प्रकरणों की प्राथमिकता के आधार पर जांच कर दोषी अवर अभियन्ताओं/ अधिकारियों के विरुद्ध कार्यवाही हेतु लिखा गया था। अतः यह स्पष्ट किया जाता है कि परिषद नीति के अन्तर्गत सेवा संबंधी किसी भी प्रकरण पर अधिशासी अभियन्ता स्तर से नीति के किसी भी अधिकारी/ कर्मचारी की किसी भी प्रकार के प्रमाण पत्र निर्गत करने का अधिकार नहीं है।

अतः अवर अभियन्ता/ सहायक अभियन्ता उपरोक्त प्रकार के तथा सेवा संबंधी अन्य किसी भी प्रकार के प्रमाण पत्र निर्गत करने के अधिकारी नहीं है और यदि उनके द्वारा इस संबंध में अभी तक कोई प्रमाण पत्र निर्गत किये गये है तो उन्हें जाली प्रमाण पत्रों की श्रेणी में रखकर अवैध माना जाये। यह भी अपेक्षा की जाती है कि उनके समस्त अधिशासी अभियन्ता, अधिक्षण अभियन्ता इस संबंध में अपने अधीनस्थ खंडो/ मंडलों के संदर्भ में व्यक्तिगत रुचि लेकर जांच कर वांछित विभागीय कार्यवाही आरम्भ करने तथा परिषद को इस प्रकार से हो रही वित्तीय हानि को रोकने के लिए सभी संभव प्रयास करेंगे।”

9. Placing reliance upon aforesaid, it was contended that the entire story cooked up by the workman regarding his appointment was contrary to the Departmental Circulars and, therefore, the question framed in the adjudication case be decided against the workman.

10. The matter was referred to the Labour Court to answer the Reference as to whether termination of services of the respondent w.e.f. 21.03.2006 from the post of Sub Station Operator was appropriate and/or lawful, if not, what benefit/relief the workman is entitled to.

11. The Labour Court, by impugned award dated 19.10.2015 arrived at a conclusion that the documents filed by the workman could not be disputed and, therefore, termination of his services was contrary to the provisions of the Act-1947, particularly, Section 6-N of the Act and, therefore, the workman was directed to be reinstated with continuity in his past services, 40 % salary for the unserved period and full salary w.e.f the date of award. Cost of Rs.1500/- was also awarded.

12. The contention of learned counsel for the petitioner is to the effect that since appointments in the Department are made after holding rigorous selection process as per the Service Regulations (referred to hereinabove), the respondent no.4 could not claim any relief as no letter of appointment was ever issued to him, he was neither appointed nor paid any remuneration and that since the Department itself was created in the year 1991 there was no question of appointing the respondent in the year 1986. It was also argued that even if the contention of the workman was accepted, his status was, even as per his own case, that of a “daily wager” which did not fall within the definition and parameters of “workman” and, therefore, the award is illegal. It was further argued that even by looking to the evidence led by the workman, following is the position with regard to his working; particularly as per document W-19 which is alleged Attendance Register.

Exbt.	Date	Period of Employment	No proof of employment
8	26.07.86	11.07.86 to 22.07.86	23.07.86 to 09.11.87 (for one year)
	12.07.88	10.11.87 to 02.12.87	03.12.87 to 05.02.92 (for 4 years 3 months)
6		06.02.92 to 29.02.92	01.03.92 to 14.07.05 (for 13 years) service break
1		15.07.05 to 04.09.05	Finding of conti. Employment 11.7.86 to 20.3.06. perverse
2		05.09.05 to 16.11.05	Documents are forged yet it appears that he
3		17.11.05 to 20.01.06	hardly worked 15.07.05 to 20.03.06 (8 months only).
4		21.01.06 to 20.03.06	Without completing 240 days 6-N does not apply. Not entitled to any relief.

13. In the light of the aforesaid facts, it was argued that the award directing reinstatement with continuity in past services alongwith arrears of salary is thoroughly unsustainable and the findings recorded by the Labour Court are perverse. In support of his submissions, learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance upon judgments of Supreme Court in the cases of Deputy Executive Engineer v. Kuberbhai Kanjibhai reported in (2019) 4 SCC 307, State of Uttarakhand v. Raj Kumar reported in 2019 SCC OnLine SC 16, Assistant Engineer, Rajasthan Development Corporation & Anr. v. Gitam Singh reported in (2013) 5 SCC 136, Range Forest Officer v. S.T. Hadimani alongwith State of Karnataka & Anr. v. S.T. Hadimani reported in (2002) 3 SCC 25 and State of U.P. & Anr. v. Chhunna Lal & Anr. reported in 2019 SCC OnLine All 4262.

14. A counter affidavit has been filed by respondent no.4 and the stand taken therein is that the Department did not produce any evidence contrary to the case of the workman; that the contention of the Department regarding Service Regulations etc. or the case of State of Karnataka v. Uma Devi reported in (2006) 4 SCC 1 was unconcerned and unconcerned with the disputes arising out of Act-1947. The defense taken is that Labour Court has rightly passed award on the basis of material placed before it and, therefore, it does not call for any interference. It is further pleaded that since the oral termination was made in violation of the provisions of Act-1947, there was no illegality in awarding reinstatement with backwages and past continuity in service. In support of this submissions, learned counsel for the respondent no.4 has placed reliance upon following Authorities:-

(k). R.M. Yellatti v. Assistant Executive Engineer reported in (2006) 1 SCC 106.

15. Now discussing the legal position as referred to in the Authorities cited by the petitioner-Department, the Supreme Court in Deputy Executive Engineer (supra) has held that, in case, the respondent worked as “daily wager” hardly for few years, reinstatement could not be an automatic consequence. The Supreme Court relied upon its judgement in the case of BSNL v. Bhurumal reported in (2014) 7 SCC 177 with specific reference to paragraphs 33, 34 and 35 which are reproduced as under:-

“33. It is clear from the reading of the aforesaid judgments that the ordinary principle of grant of reinstatement with full back wages, when the termination is found to be illegal is not applied mechanically in all cases. While that may be a position where services of a regular/permanent workman are terminated illegally and/or mala fide and/or by way of victimisation, unfair labour practice, etc. However, when it comes to the case of termination of a daily-wage worker and where the termination is found illegal because of a procedural defect, namely, in violation of Section 25-F of the Industrial Disputes Act, this Court is consistent in taking the view that in such cases reinstatement with back wages is not automatic and instead the workman should be given monetary compensation which will meet the ends of justice. Rationale for shifting in this direction is obvious.

34. The reasons for denying the relief of reinstatement in such cases are obvious. It is trite law that when the termination is found to be illegal because of non- payment of retrenchment compensation and notice pay as mandatorily required under Section 25-F of the Industrial Disputes Act, even after reinstatement, it is always open to the management to terminate the services of that employee by paying him the retrenchment compensation. Since such a workman was working on daily-wage basis and even after he is reinstated, he has no right to seek regularisation [See State of Karnataka v. Umadevi (2006) 4 SCC 1]. Thus when he cannot claim regularisation and he has no right to continue even as a daily wage worker, no useful purpose is going to be served in reinstating such a workman and he can be given monetary compensation by the Court itself inasmuch as if he is terminated again after reinstatement, he would receive monetary compensation only in the form of retrenchment compensation and notice pay. In such a situation, giving the relief of reinstatement, that too after a long gap, would not serve any purpose.

35. We would, however, like to add a caveat here. There may be cases where termination of a daily-wage worker is found to be illegal on the ground that it was resorted to as unfair labour practice or in violation of the principle of last-come-first-go viz. while retrenching such a worker daily wage juniors to him were retained. There may also be a situation that persons junior to him were regularised under some policy but the workman concerned terminated. In such circumstances, the terminated worker should not be denied reinstatement unless there are some other weighty reasons for adopting the course of grant of compensation instead of reinstatement. In such cases, reinstatement should be the rule and only in exceptional cases for the reasons stated to be in writing, such a relief can be denied."

16. The Supreme Court took similar view in the case of State of Uttarkhand (supra) by placing reliance upon the same judgement of BSNL v. Bhurumal (supra). In the case of Assistant Engineer, Rajasthan Development Corporation & Anr. (supra), the Apex Court, after placing reliance upon various Authorities on the subject directed award of compensation of Rs.50,000/- as sufficient to meet the ends of justice in the light of the fact that daily wager has worked for a very short period. Learned counsel for the petitioner has laid much emphasis on the judgement of Supreme Court in the case of Range Forest Officer (supra) and argued that mere filing of an affidavit by the workman cannot be regarded as sufficient evidence for any court or tribunal to come to the conclusion that he had worked for 240 days in a year. In 'paragraph 3' of the said judgment, the Supreme Court observed that no proof of receipt of salary or wages for 240 days or order or record of appointment or engagement for this period was produced by the workman and on this ground, the award was interfered with. The Supreme Court in the case of State of U.P. & Anr. v. Chunna Lal & Anr. (supra) after discussing the issue of reinstatement with backwages, allowed the writ petition filed by the State observing that the workman had failed to discharge the burden to prove his case of 240 days by leading cogent evidence and award was found to be unsustainable and was, accordingly, set aside.

17. Further in the case of Assistant Engineer, Rajasthan State Agriculture Marketing Board, Sub-Division, Kota Versus Mohan Lal reported in (2013) 14 SCC 543 in similar circumstances, a muster roll employee in a government establishment who had been found to have worked for 286 days in twelve calendar months period prior to his dis-engagement, and in whose case the industrial dispute was raised after six years, was found not entitled to reinstatement but compensation in lieu thereof, Rs. One lac only.

18. In Nagar Mahapalika vs. State of U.P. and Ors. reported in (2006) 5 SCC 127, it was held by Supreme Court that non compliance with the provisions of Section 6-N of the U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 (this provision is broadly pari materia with Section 25-F), although, leads to the grant of a relief of reinstatement with full back wages and continuity of service in favour of the workman, the same would not mean that such relief is to be granted automatically or as a matter of course. It was emphasised that the Labour Court must take into consideration the relevant facts for exercise of its discretion in granting the relief.

19. Supreme Court in Municipal Council, Sujapur vs. Surinder Kumar reported in (2006) 5 SCC 173, reiterated the above legal position. That was a case where the Labour Court had granted reinstatement in service with full back wages to the workman as statutory provisions were not followed. The award was not interfered with by the High Court. However, the Court granted monetary compensation in lieu of reinstatement.

20. In Haryana State Electronics Development Corporation Ltd. v. Mamni reported in (2006) 9 SCC 434 following Nagar Mahapalika (supra), Supreme Court held that the reinstatement granted to the workman because there was violation of Section 25F, was not justified and modified the order of reinstatement by directing that the workman shall be compensated by payment of a sum of Rs.25,000/- instead of the order of the reinstatement.

21. In Uttaranchal Forest Development Corporation v. M.C. Joshi reported in (2007) 9 SCC 353, the services were terminated on 24.11.1991 in contravention of the provisions of Section 6-N of the U.P. Industrial Disputes Act. He had completed 240 days of continuous work in a period of twelve months preceding the order of termination. The workman approached the Conciliation Officer on or about 02.09.1996, i.e., after a period of about five years. The Labour Court granted to the workman, M.C.Joshi, relief of reinstatement with 50% back wages. In the writ petition filed by the Corporation, the direction of reinstatement was maintained but back wages were reduced from 50% to 25%. The Supreme Court substituted the award of reinstatement by compensation for a sum of Rs.75,000/-.

22. In Ghaziabad Development Authority and Another v. Ashok Kumar and Another reported in (2008) 4 SCC 261, the Apex Court was concerned with the question as to whether the Labour Court was justified in awarding relief of reinstatement in favour of the workman who had worked as daily wager for two years. His termination was held to be violative of U.P. Industrial Disputes Act. The Supreme Court held that the Labour Court should not have directed reinstatement of the workman in service and substituted the order of reinstatement by awarding compensation of Rs.50,000/-

23. In Telecom District Manager v. Keshab Deb, reported in (2008) 8 SCC 402, the termination of the workman who was a daily wager, was held illegal on diverse grounds including violation of the provisions of Section 25-F. Supreme Court held that even in a case where order of termination was illegal, automatic direction for reinstatement with full back wages was not contemplated. The Court substituted the order of reinstatement by an award of compensation of Rs.1,50,000/-.

24. In Jagbir Singh v. Haryana State Agriculture Marketing Board reported in (2009) 15 SCC 327, the workman had worked from 01.09.1995 to 18.07.1996 as a daily wager and was granted compensation of Rs.50,000/- in lieu of reinstatement with back wages.

25. It is also necessary to refer to subsequent three decisions of Supreme Court, namely, Uttar Pradesh State Electricity Board vs. Laxmi Kant Gupta reported in (2009) 16 SCC 562, Bharat Sanchar Nigam Limited vs. Man Singh reported in (2012) 1 SCC 558 and Senior Superintendent Telegraph (Traffic), Bhopal vs. Santosh Kumar Seal and Others, reported in (2010) 6 SCC 773, where the view has been taken in line with the cases discussed above. As a matter of fact in Santosh Kumar Seal (supra), Apex Court awarded compensation of Rs.40,000/-to each of the workmen who were illegally retrenched as they were engaged as daily wagers about 25 years back and worked hardly for two or three years. It was held that the relief of reinstatement cannot be said to be justified and instead granted monetary compensation.

26. Further, The Supreme Court in several authorities some of which are mentioned below has held that if the only defect in the termination order is non payment of retrenchment compensation as required by Section 25 F of Industrial Dispute Act (or Section 6 N of U.P.I.D. Act) then it is not always necessary to direct reinstatement with full back wages and that in such situation more often than not proper relief may be to award consolidated damages/compensation particularly when the employer is Government or Governmental agency and relevant rules have not been followed before appointment.

- Nagar Mahapalika v. State of U.P., AIR 2006 SC 2113

- Haryana State Electronics Devpt Corpn v. Mamni, AIR 2006 SC 2427

- Sita Ram v. Moti Lal Nehru Farmers Training Institute, AIR 2008 SC 1955

- Jagbir Singh Vs. Haryana State Agriculture Marketing Board and another, AIR 2009 SC 3004.

27. In Senior Superintendent, Telegraph (Traffic) Bhopal Vs. Santosh Kumar Seal and others, reported in AIR 2010 SC 2140, it has been held that if daily wagers had worked for 2 or 3 years and their services were terminated without payment of retrenchment compensation then consolidated damages should be awarded to them (Rs.40,000/- to each of the workmen was awarded in the said case). It has also been held that daily wager does not hold a post and can not be equated with permanent employee. This view has been reiterated in Incharge Officer Vs. Shankar Shetty reported in JT 2010(9) SC 262.

28. Now dealing with the Authorities cited by the learned counsel for the respondent-workman, the Supreme Court, in the case of Surendra Kumar Verma (supra), held that in case termination was contrary to the provisions of Industrial Law, reinstatement with backwages should be ordered. In Sudarshan Rajpoot (supra), the Apex Court held in paragraphs 23, 24 and 25 as follows:-

“23. Further, the reliance placed upon the decision of this Court on Uma Devi (supra) case by the High Court to reverse the finding of fact recorded in the award in favour of the workman in answering the points of dispute in the negative, is not tenable in law in view of the judgment of this Court in Maharashtra SRTC v. Casteribe Rajya Parivahan Karmchari Sanghatana, (2009) 8 SCC 556, wherein, this Court after adverting to Uma Devi’s case (supra) at para 36, has held that the said case

“does not denude the Industrial and Labour Courts of their statutory power under Section 30 read with Section 32 of the MRTU and PULP Act to order permanency of the workers who have been victims of unfair labour practice on the part of the employer under Item 6 of the Schedule IV where the posts on which they have been working exist.”

Further, this Court held that

“36.....Uma Devi’s case cannot be held to have overridden the powers of Industrial and Labour Courts in passing appropriate order under Section 30 of the

MRTU and PULP Act, once unfair labour practice on the part of the employer under Item 6 of the Schedule IV is established.”

24. We are of the opinion that the view taken in Maharashtra State Road Transport Corpn. & Anr.(supra) at para 36 after distinguishing Uma Devi’s case is the plausible view. Therefore, we have to hold that the finding of the High Court in setting aside the finding of fact recorded by the Labour Court in its award by applying Uma Devi case (supra) is wholly untenable in law. Therefore, the same is set aside by this Court.

25. This Court in the later judgment in the case of Hari Nandan Prasad v. Food Corporation of India: (2014) 7 SCC 190, after advertng to the law laid down in U.P. Power Corpn. Ltd. v. Bijli Mazdoor Sangh (2007) 5 SCC 755 and Maharashtra State Road Transport Corpn. & Anr. (supra) wherein Uma Devi’s case is adverted to in both the cases, held that on a harmonious reading of the two judgments, even when there are posts available, in the absence of any unfair labour practice the Labour Court cannot give direction for regularisation only because a worker has continued as daily-wage worker/ad hoc/temporary worker for number of years. Further, such a direction cannot be given when the worker concerned does not meet the eligibility requirement of the post in question as per the recruitment rules.”

29. By relying on the aforesaid Authority, the submission of learned counsel for the respondent is that whatsoever arguments were advanced by the petitioner-Department regarding alleged appointment in violation of the Service Regulations and/or number of judgements passed by the Supreme Court in the case of State of Karnataka v. Uma Devi (supra), are liable to be discarded as the case of Uma Devi (supra) cannot be held to have over-ridden the powers of the Industrial and Labour Courts in passing appropriate award.

30. The judgment of Punjab Land Development & Reclamation Corporation Ltd. Chandigarh (supra) was on the point of elasticity of the definition of retrenchment and it was held that whatever words are used in the Statute, the same have to be given their literal meaning and any other interpretation would not be according to law. The Apex Court in the case of U.P. Drugs & Pharmaceuticals Co. Ltd. (supra) held that after the workman had worked for more than 240 days in earlier years and even though during the year of his retrenchment, he had not worked for 240 days, he would be deemed to be in continuous service and his retrenchment would be violative of the provisions of Industrial Law. The Supreme Court’s decision in the case of Devinder Singh (supra) is on the point that even daily wager cannot be discriminated while considering their case under the Industrial Law as the definition of workman means any person including an apprentice employed in any industry to do any manual, un-skilled, skilled, technical, operational, clerical or supervisory work for hire or reward, whether the terms of employment be expressed or implied and includes any such person who has been dismissed, discharged or retrenched in connection with, or as a consequence of the dispute. The Supreme Court held that source of employment, the method of recruitment, the terms and conditions of employment/contract of service, the quantum of wages/pay and the mode of payment are not at all relevant for deciding as to whether or not a person is a workman under the Act.

31. In R.M. Yellati (supra) in 'paragraph 17', the Supreme Court held that it is a burden upon employer to lead evidence regarding services of the workman as the workman can only call upon the employer to produce before the Court, nominal muster roll for the given period, the letter of appointment or termination, if any, the wage register, attendance register etc. Other judgments of U.P. State Electricity Board & Anr., (supra), Gammon India Limited (supra) and Management of M/s. Willcox Buck Well India Ltd. (supra) are also on the point that when termination is found to be contrary to the provisions of Industrial Act, relief of reinstatement of the workman with continuity in services and backwages is just and proper.

32. Learned counsel for the respondent-workman has also vehemently argued that the case of the petitioner is contrary to the stand taken before the Labour Court. It is argued that the Department had alleged in the written statement that the workman had never worked prior to 21.03.2006 on any post, however, the case was argued, as if, a daily wager who had worked for certain period of time, could not be reinstated with backwages and continuity in service. It was also argued that relief should be founded on pleadings led by the parties and whenever the question about lack of pleading is raised, the Court should find out whether in substance, the parties knew the case and the issue upon which they went to trial. The decisions of Supreme Court of Ram Sarup Gupta (dead) by L.R.s (supra) and Bhagwati Prasad (supra) are on the point of pleadings and evidence of parties.

33. I have heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record. I find that award of the Labour Court is based upon the fact that the workman had produced certain documents establishing his work in the Organization and, in the opinion of the Labour Court the Department could not rebut the same. Certain certificates as well as attendance register were considered by the Labour Court to arrive at a conclusion that the workman had been employed and worked in the Organization. However, I find that the Labour Court has not considered the documents filed by the Department, i.e. to say that mode and manner of appointing persons, the ban put on appointments in 1979, subsequent creation of the Department in 1991, affidavits filed by the Officers stating that they had never taken any work from the workman nor was any payment made by them to the workman nor did the Labour Court consider the cross-examination of the Officials whereby signatures on the Certificates were specifically denied by them. The Labour Court further failed to appreciate that for making an award for reinstatement and backwages with continuity in services, mere finding that oral termination was not according to law would not ipso facto lead to a conclusion that the workman should be reinstated with backwages and continuity in service. Neither there is any finding to the effect that the workman was not gainfully employed after 2006 nor did the Labour Court examine the period for which the workman allegedly rendered his services. In fact, the award is simply based upon alleged non-rebuttal by the Department as against the case set up by the workman, although I find that the Department by “tooth and nail” opposed the claim of the workman by leading cogent evidence, both oral and documentary, but the same has not been given due consideration by the Labour Court.

34. The question of gainful/non-gainful employment/engagement is considered in his statement dated 14.12.2011 wherein the respondent-workman took contradictory stand that is to say that, on one hand, he stated that after termination of his services, he was unemployed, on the other hand, in the same line, he stated that whenever he got work from the contractors, he used to perform the same and, therefore, it is not a case where workman was thoroughly unemployed and, hence, on this score, the relief of reinstatement with backwages or continuity in service would not be appropriate.

35. In the facts and circumstances of the case, a consolidated and lump sum amount of compensation could have served the purpose to console the respondent, inasmuch as, in the counter affidavit filed in the year 2016, the age of the respondent no.4 was described as 53 years and, therefore, as of now, he must have attained the age of superannuation and in view of the same, it would not be just and proper for this Court to direct for reinstatement as reinstatement after attaining the age of superannuation would not be in accordance with law. For this reason also, impugned award requires modification in terms of granting just and proper compensation.

36. In view of the above facts and considering the ratio of aforesaid authorities cited at the Bar, the writ petition is allowed in-part. The impugned judgment and award dated 19.10.2015 published on 30.01.2016 passed by the respondent No.2- Presiding Officer, Labour Court, Firozabad is hereby modified and relief of reinstatement with continuity in service and backwages is hereby denied. However, in totality of the facts and circumstances of the case, award of Rs. 2,00,000/- as lumpsum compensation to the workman would meet the ends of justice.

37. Accordingly, a Writ of Mandamus is issued to the petitioner to make payment of sum of Rs.2,00,000/- to the respondent no.4-workman within a period of one month from the date of production of certified copy of this order before the petitioner, failing which, it would be open for the respondent No.4-workman to get the award executed in accordance with law, and, in case, such execution proceedings are instituted, the same shall be concluded within a period of three months, thereafter.

DATED: ALLAHABAD 03.03.2023

THE HON'BLE SUNEET KUMAR, J.
THE HON'BLE RAJENDRA KUMAR-IV, J.

Special Appeal No. 32 of 2023

Dr. Haider Ali

...Appellant

Versus

Akhilesh Kumar Singh & Ors.

...Respondents

Counsel for the Appellant:

Sri T. Islam, Sri A.B.N. Tripathi, Sri Syed Ali Murtaza

Counsel for the Respondents:

Sri Shashank Shekhar Singh, Sri Shailesh Upadhyay

A. Education/Service Law – Educational Qualification - Appointment - Aligarh Muslim University Act, 1920 - Section 19 - The educational qualification for recruitment to a post cannot ordinarily be condoned. If the essential educational qualification for recruitment to a post is not satisfied, ordinarily the same cannot be condoned. Such an act cannot be ratified. An appointment which is contrary to the statute/statutory rules would be void in law. An illegality cannot be regularized, particularly, when the statute in no unmistakable term says so. Only an irregularity can be. (Para 18)

The University had framed Rules in 2016, making B.Ed. degree an essential qualification for the post of TGT (Agriculture). The Rules incorporating the qualification came to be duly approved by the Executive Council of the University. In the circumstances, Office Memo dated 30.04.2016, relaxing the qualification for internal candidate bypassing the Rules is nullity being in teeth of the statutory Rules. It is beyond the jurisdiction, power and authority of the Vice-Chancellor to bypass the Rules, as relaxation in qualification is not referable to S. 19(3) of the Act, 1920. Office Memo dated 30.04.2016, could not have been issued by the Vice-Chancellor as that would not fall within the expression "immediate action is necessary on any matter", for the reason that the competent authority of the University i.e. Executive Council had duly approved the Rules mandating minimum qualification for the post of TGT (Agriculture). Accordingly, Office Memo dated 30.04.2016, being issued in violation of the statutory provisions is unsustainable in the eye of law and cannot be given effect to. An appointment which is contrary to the statutory Rules/statutes would be void in law. (Para 15)

B. An appointment should be made strictly, in accordance with the statutory provisions, a candidate entitled to appointment should not be denied appointment on any pretext. Appointment should be made strictly in accordance with the statutory provisions and a candidate who is entitled for appointment, should not be denied the same on any pretext whatsoever as usurpation of the post by somebody else in any circumstances is not possible. (Para 19)

C. Any appointment made in violation of the mandate of Article 14 and 16 of the Constitution is not only irregular but also illegal and cannot be sustained. Article 14 is an integral part of our system, each and every State action is to be tested on the touchstone of equality. (Para 20)

Therefore, the appellant cannot take advantage of an Office Memo which was issued bypassing the mandate of the Executive Council approving the Rules governing the qualification of TGT (Agriculture). The document is void ab-initio, hence, nullity in the eye of law. (Para 21)

So far it relates to the qualification of TGT (Agriculture), since University had adopted the Rules and determined the minimum qualification for the post of TGT (Agriculture), inter-alia, mandating B.Ed. as an essential qualification, it was not open for the University to have approved selection of a candidate who admittedly, lacks the essential qualification. It is of no relevance that the candidate was an internal candidate working since 2010. Admittedly, on the date of application, pursuant to the advertisement for session 2022-2023, appellant lacked the essential qualification for the post of TGT (Agriculture), hence, was not qualified. (Para 22)

D. There cannot be relaxation in the terms and conditions of the advertisement unless such a power is specifically reserved in the relevant statutory Rules. Even if the power of relaxation is provided in the Rules, it must still be mentioned in the advertisement, which was not the case in the case in hand. (Para 23)

E. Relaxation of any condition in advertisement without due publication would be contrary to the mandate of quality contained in Articles 14 and 16 of the Constitution of India. (Para 23)

The record reflects that the writ petitioner/first respondent was the sole candidate fulfilling the essential qualification for the post of TGT (Agriculture), all other candidates, including the appellant, did not have B.Ed. degree. The candidature of the other two external candidates was rejected by the Selection Committee for the said reason, but, appellant was selected even though he did not have B.Ed. degree. The advertisement rightly did not grant any relaxation in the minimum qualification to internal candidate, as that would be hit by the Rules governing selection/appointment of TGT (Agriculture), duly approved by the Executive Council. The Vice-Chancellor lacked power, authority and jurisdiction to bypass the Executive Council on a subject (qualification) which came to be duly approved by Executive Council and the Vice-Chancellor as per the statutes. The Rules thus framed was binding upon all the authorities of the University and could not have been diluted by an administrative order. The selection and appointment of the appellant is per se illegal and violative of Article 14 and 16 of the Constitution of India. (Para 24)

F. The employee has absolute right to determine and decide the qualifications for any post, once such an exercise is undertaken under the rules, the same would bind the authorities and cannot be diluted even by the Courts. (Para 25)

G. Words and Phrases – Black's Law Dictionary – 'Void' - "Void" means-without any legal force, effect or consequence; invalid; null; worthless; sipher; useless and ineffectual. 'Void' has been defined as: ineffectual; nugatory; having having no legal force or legal effect: unable in law to support the purpose for which it was untended; nugatory and ineffectual so that nothing can cure it; not valid. "Void" means a contract entirely devoid of legal effect or it is devoid of main result contemplated.

"Void" means non-existent from its very inception and a ban again its recognition. It also means merely a nullity and may be ignored even in collateral proceeding as if it never were. "Void" does not have any legal force or effect, the validity of which may be ascertained by any person whose rights are affected at any time or at any place directly or indirectly. (Para 16, 17)

Present special appeal challenges the judgment and order dated 08.12.2022, passed by learned Single Judge in Writ-A No. 13257 of 2022.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Suneet Kumar, J.)

1. Heard Sri T. Islam, learned Counsel for the petitioner and Sri Shashank Shekhar Singh, learned Counsel for the respondent-University.

2. The instant intra Court appeal has been filed by the fifth respondent of the writ petition challenging the order of the learned Single Judge dated 08 December, 2022, whereby, the writ petition instituted by the petitioner / first respondent, herein, was allowed, setting aside the appointment of the appellant on the post of Trained Graduate Teacher (Agriculture), at Aligarh Muslim University/School, for want of essential qualification i.e. B.Ed. degree.

3. Learned Counsel for the appellant submits that appellant came to be appointed on temporary basis as a Trained Graduate Teacher (Agriculture), (for short TGT), vide appointment letter dated 20 November, 2010. The appointment was for an academic session which continued on year to year basis and finally an advertisement dated 20 May, 2022, came to be issued by the third respondent - Directorate of School Education, Aligarh Muslim University, Aligarh, (for short, "AMU"). The advertisement sought applications for various posts including TGT (Agriculture) for the session 2022 - 23. The qualification of the post, inter-alia, mandated that the candidate should have B.Ed. degree or equivalent from a recognized University. The advertisement further provided for age relaxation as per Kendriya Vidyalaya Sanghathan (KVS) norms, to various categories. It is agreed between the parties that the relaxation does not pertain to qualification for TGT (Agriculture). Pursuant to the advertisement, the first respondent / writ petitioner had applied for the post and it is not in a dispute that he fulfills the educational qualifications duly notified in the advertisement i.e. he was having B.Ed. degree. In any case, the appellant came to be selected on 16 July, 2022, on the recommendation made by the Local Selection Committee, despite not having B.Ed. degree. The validity of the selection / appointment of the fifth respondent was challenged in writ petition.

4. Learned Single Judge in the impugned judgment noted that appellant is not having requisite minimum qualification i.e. B.Ed. degree and no relaxation with regard to the qualification was notified in the advertisement. Further, the counsel appearing for AMU submitted that there is no order with regard to relaxation of the eligibility conditions and neither, any relaxation was granted to the appellant. The writ petition accordingly came to be allowed. The relevant portion of the impugned order, reads as under :-

"10. Also, submission advanced by learned counsel for the respondent that the selection made is wholly temporary, carries no weight. Once the selection was required to be made in accordance with law, irrespective of the term for which it may have been made, that law must be seen to be fully applied. In any case, it is apparent that the respondent no.5 has continued on temporary basis for some time i.e. since 2020 against annual renewal/re-appointment.

11. In view of the above, present petition succeeds. It is allowed."

5. In this backdrop, learned Counsel appearing for the appellant submits that since the appellant has continued on temporary basis from the academic session 2010-11, and being an internal candidate of the University is entitled to relaxation in qualification which was duly exercised by the Vice-Chancellor in exercise of power under Section 19 of the Aligarh Muslim University Act, 1920, (for short "Act, 1920"). Section 19 (3) of the Act, 1920, which is relevant for the case, reads as under :-

19. The Vice-Chancellor :-

(3) The Vice-Chancellor may, if he is of opinion that immediate action is necessary on any matter, exercise any power conferred on any authority of the University by or under this Act and shall report to such authority the action taken by him on such matter;

Provided that if the authority concerned is of opinion that such action ought not to have been taken, it may refer the matter to the Visitor whose decision thereon shall be final;

Provided further that any person in the service of the University who is aggrieved by the action taken by the Vice-Chancellor under this sub-section shall have the right to appeal against such action to the Executive Council within three months from the date on which decision on such action is communicated to him and thereupon the Executive Council may confirm, modify or reverse the action taken by the Vice-Chancellor.

6. On a bare reading of Sub Section (3) of Section 19 of the Act, 1920, it does not transpire, nor can be inferred, that any specific power has been conferred upon the Vice-Chancellor to relax the qualification which has duly been adopted by such authority of the University after approval of the Executive Council. Sub Section (3) confers emergency / removal of difficulty power upon the Vice-Chancellor to take immediate action on any matter conferred on any authority of the University or under the Act, 1920, and thereafter shall report to such authority the action taken by the Vice-Chancellor on such matter. The authority of the University may agree / disagree with decision of the Vice-Chancellor, then in that event matter would be referred to the Visitor for final decision.

7. It is not the case of the appellant that the decision with regard to qualification of TGT (Agriculture) was yet to be taken by the competent authority of the University, therefore, the Vice-Chancellor had to take "immediate action" thereon. On the contrary the Executive Council had already approved the qualification for TGT which was to be followed while making appointment for the post. This fact is admitted to the parties.

8. Attention of the Court has been drawn to Office Memo dated 16 January, 2016, issued by the Deputy Registrar (Councils), (annexure CA-7 to the writ petition), wherein, it has been noted that the proposal of the Director, Directorate of School Education, relating to University Schools, the Vice-Chancellor in supersession of the earlier qualification approved by the Executive Council, has accorded approval to the Recruitment Rules / Qualifications for Selection and Promotion of AMU Schools Teachers, as per KVS norms, under Section 19(3) of the AMU Act, 1920. In other words, the Rules relating to qualification of TGT (Agriculture) came to be approved which was binding upon the Selection Committee.

9. It is not in dispute that B.Ed. degree was included as an essential qualification for the post of TGT (Agriculture) in the Rules. In other words the qualification prescribed for the post of TGT (Agriculture) was in place on the date of advertisement.

10. Reliance has been placed by the learned counsel for the appellant on Office Memo dated 30 April, 2016, which provides for exemption in age limit and the mandated qualification to be granted only to those temporary teachers who were eligible at the time of their first appointment and thereafter appointed time and again subsequently for a period of three months with break.

11. It is on the strength of the aforementioned Office Memo dated 30 April, 2016, issued with the approval of the Vice-Chancellor, the learned counsel for the appellant submits that appellant was entitled to relaxation in the qualification being an internal candidate continuing as TGT (Agriculture) since 2010. It is submitted that the Office Memo dated 30 April, 2016, was not under challenge before the writ Court.

12. Learned Counsel appearing for the respondent-University had taken a categorical stand that no such relaxation was granted to the appellant pursuant to Office Memo dated 30 April, 2016. No document to that effect is available on the record of the University. In other words, it is urged that the University had not granted relaxation in qualification to the appellant.

13. In any case, learned counsel appearing for the appellant submits that since the Office Memo dated 30 April, 2016, is available and it grants relaxation in qualification to temporary teachers, appellant was rightly appointed after relaxation being granted to him.

14. The short question that arises for consideration is as to whether the appellant was entitled to relaxation in qualification against the Rules.

15. It is not being disputed by the learned Counsel for the respective parties that the University had framed Rules in 2016, making B.Ed. degree an essential qualification for the post of TGT (Agriculture). The Rules incorporating the qualification came to be duly approved by the Executive Council of the University. In the circumstances, Office Memo dated 30 April, 2016, relaxing the qualification for internal candidate bypassing the Rules is nullity being in teeth of the statutory Rules. It is beyond the jurisdiction, power and authority of the Vice-Chancellor to bypass the Rules, as relaxation in qualification is not referable to Section 19(3) of the Act, 1920. Office Memo dated 30 April, 2016, could not have been issued by the Vice-Chancellor as that would not fall within the expression "immediate action is necessary on any matter", for the reason that the competent authority of the University i.e. Executive Council had duly approved the Rules mandating minimum qualification for the post of TGT (Agriculture). Accordingly, Office Memo dated 30 April, 2016, being issued in violation of the statutory provisions is unsustainable in the eye of law and cannot be given effect to.

An appointment which is contrary to the statutory Rules / statues would be void in law.

16. Void has been defined as: ineffectual; nugatory; having having no legal force or legal effect: unable in law to support the purpose for which it was untended; nugatory and ineffectual so that nothing can cure it; not valid¹. "Void" means a contract entirely devoid of legal effect or it is devoid of main result contemplated.

17. In Kalawati versus Bisheshwar², the Supreme Court held that "void" means non-existent from its very inception and a ban again its recognition. It also means merely a nullity and may be ignored even in collateral proceeding as if it never were. "Void" does not have any legal force or effect, the validity of which may be ascertained by any person whose rights are affected at any time or at any place directly or indirectly. "Void" means - without any legal force, effect or consequence; invalid; null; worthless; sipher; useless and ineffectual. [Vide: Nutan Kumar versus II Additional District Judge]³].

18. The educational qualification for recruitment to a post cannot ordinarily be condoned. In Pramod Kumar versus U.P. Secondary Education Services Commission and others⁴, the Court has held as under :-

"18. If the essential educational qualification for recruitment to a post is not satisfied, ordinarily the same cannot be condoned. Such an act cannot be ratified. An appointment which is contrary to the statute/statutory rules would be void in law. An illegality cannot be regularized, particularly, when the statute in no unmistakable term says so. Only an irregularity can be. {See Secretary, State of Karnataka and Others Vs. Umadevi (3) and Others [(2006) 4 SCC 1], National Fertilizers Ltd. and Ors. Vs. Somvir Singh [(2006) 5 SCC 493] and Post Master General, Kolkata and Ors. Vs. Tutu Das (Dutta) [(2007) 5 SCC 317] }"

19. An appointment should be made strictly, in accordance with the statutory provisions, a candidate entitled to appointment should not be denied appointment on any pretext. In Purshottam versus Chairman, Maharashtra State Electricity Board⁵, the Supreme Court has held that appointment should be made strictly in accordance with the statutory provisions and a candidate who is entitled for appointment, should not be denied the same on any pretext whatsoever as usurpation of the post by somebody else in any circumstances is not possible.

20. Article 14 is an integral part of our system, each and every State action is to be tested on the touchstone of equality. Any appointment made in violation of the mandate of Article 14 and 16 of the Constitution is not only irregular but also illegal and cannot be sustained in view of the judgments rendered by Supreme Court in Delhi Development Horticulture Employees' Union versus Delhi Administration, Delhi⁶; State of Haryana versus Piara Singh⁷; Prabhat Kumar Sharma versus State of Uttar Pradesh⁸; J.A.S. Inter College, Khurja, U.P. versus State of Uttar Pradesh⁹; M.P. Housing Board versus Manoj Shrivastava¹⁰; M.P. State Agro Industries Development Corporation Ltd. versus S.C. Pandey¹¹; and State of Madhya Pradesh versus Ku. Sandhya Tomar¹².

21. In view thereof, the appellant cannot take advantage of an Office Memo which was issued bypassing the mandate of the Executive Council approving the Rules governing the qualification of TGT (Agriculture). The document is void ab-initio, hence, nullity in the eye of law.

22. In so far it relates to the qualification of TGT (Agriculture), we are in agreement with the reasoning assigned by the learned Single Judge that since University had adopted the Rules and determined the minimum qualification for the post of TGT (Agriculture), inter-alia, mandating B.Ed. as an essential qualification, it was not open for the University to have approved selection of a candidate who admittedly, lacks the essential qualification. It is of no relevance that the candidate was an internal candidate working since 2010. Admittedly, on the date of application, pursuant to the advertisement for session 2022 - 2023, appellant lacked the essential qualification for the post of TGT (Agriculture), hence, was not qualified.

23. There cannot be relaxation in the terms and conditions of the advertisement unless such a power is specifically reserved in the relevant statutory Rules. Even if the power of relaxation is provided in the Rules, it must still be mentioned in the advertisement, which was not the case in the case in hand. In Bedanga Talukdar versus Saifudaullah Khan and others¹³, the Court has held as under :-

"29. In our opinion, it is too well settled to need any further reiteration that all appointments to public office have to be made in conformity with Article 14 of the Constitution of India. In other words, there must be no arbitrariness resulting from any undue favour being shown to any candidate. Therefore, the selection process has to be conducted strictly in accordance with the stipulated selection procedure..... There can not be any relaxation in the terms and conditions of the advertisement unless such a power is specifically reserved. Such a power could be reserved in the relevant Statutory Rules. Even if power of relaxation is provided in the rules, it must still be mentioned in the advertisement. In the absence of such power in the Rules, it could still be provided in the advertisement. However, the power of relaxation, if exercised, has to be given due publicity. This would be necessary to ensure that those candidates who become eligible due to the relaxation, are afforded an equal opportunity to apply and compete. Relaxation of any condition in advertisement without due publication would be contrary to the mandate of quality contained in Articles 14 and 16 of the Constitution of India."

24. The record reflects that the writ petitioner / first respondent was the sole candidate fulfilling the essential qualification for the post of TGT (Agriculture), all other candidates, including the appellant, did not have B.Ed. degree. The candidature of the other two external candidates was rejected by the Selection Committee for the said reason, but, appellant was selected even though he did not have B.Ed. degree. The advertisement rightly did not grant any relaxation in the minimum qualification to internal candidate, as that would be hit by the Rules governing selection / appointment of TGT (Agriculture), duly approved by the Executive Council. The Vice-Chancellor lacked power, authority and jurisdiction to bypass the Executive Council on a subject (qualification) which came to be duly approved by Executive Council and the Vice-Chancellor as per the statutes. The Rules thus framed was binding upon all the authorities of the University and could not have been diluted by an administrative order. The selection and appointment of the appellant is perse illegal and violative of Article 14 and 16 of the Constitution of India.

25. The employee has absolute right to determine and decide the qualifications for any post, once such an exercise is undertaken under the rules, the same would bind the authorities and cannot be diluted even by the Courts. In Punjab National Bank Vs. Anit Kumar Das¹⁴, the Court observed as under:

21. "it is for the employer to determine and decide the relevancy and suitability of the qualifications for any post and it is not for the Courts to consider and assess. A greater latitude is permitted by the Courts for the employer to prescribe qualifications for any post. There is a rationale behind it. Qualifications are prescribed keeping in view the need and interest of an Institution or an Industry or an establishment as the case may be. The Courts are not fit instruments to assess expediency or advisability or utility of such prescription of qualifications....."

26. Learned Counsel for the appellant is unable to point out any illegality, infirmity or perversity in the impugned order.

27. We are unable to persuade ourselves to take an opinion different from that taken by the learned Single Judge.

28. The appeal being devoid of merit, is accordingly, dismissed.

A. Service Law – Recovery from pension - It has been held by the Supreme Court that employer is entitled to recover the amount in cases where the employee has been given monetary benefits by mistake which could have occurred on account of a variety of reasons; including the grant of a status, which the concerned employee was not entitled to; or payment of salary in a higher scale, than in consonance of the right of the concerned employee; or because of a wrongful fixation of salary of the employee, consequent upon the upward revision of pay-scales or for having been granted allowances, for which the concerned employee was not authorised. Provided the excess payment was not attributable to any fraud or misrepresentation by the employee. (Para 5)

The categories which have been delineated by the Supreme Court are as follows :-

(i) Recovery from employees belonging to Class-III and Class-IV service (or Group 'C' and Group 'D' service).

(ii) Recovery from retired employees, or employees who are due to retire within one year of the order of recovery.

(iii) Recovery from employees, when the excess payment has been made for a period in excess of five years, before the order of recovery is issued.

(iv) Recovery in cases where an employee has wrongfully been required to discharge duties of a higher post, and has been paid accordingly, even though he should have rightfully been required to work against an inferior post.

(v) In any other case, where the Court arrives at the conclusion, that recovery if made from the employee, would be iniquitous or harsh or arbitrary to such an extent, as would far outweigh the equitable balance of the employer's right to recovery.

In the instant case, indisputably, the writ petitioner was a Class-III employee and, therefore, would fall under first category. The recovery was sought to be made after his retirement and consequently, he would also be covered under the second category. The amount sought to be recovered was allegedly paid to the writ petitioner during the period spread over 35 years while in service and, therefore, he would also be covered by Clause (iii). The small amount of house rent allowance that was paid to the writ petitioner on a monthly basis in last 35 years when recovered in lump sum post-retirement was definitely an action which was harsh and iniquitous and this would be covered under Clause (v) as well. (Para 7)

The judgement of the Supreme Court covers cases relating to wrong or excess payment of allowances therefore it would also cover the payment to the petitioner by way of house rent allowance. If there was any default in payment of rent, its recovery, if permissible at this distance of time would be a separate and distinct cause of action, but it was wholly arbitrary and illegal to recover the house rent allowance, paid over the years, without any fraud or misrepresentation on part of the employee. (Para 8)

Present appeal challenges order of learned Single Judge dated 22.11.2022, by which the writ petition filed by the sole respondent was allowed and direction was issued to refund Rs. 3,46,804/-to him.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manoj Kumar Gupta, J.

Hon'ble Prashant Kumar, J.)

1. The instant appeal is directed against the order of learned Single Judge dated 22.11.2022 by which the writ petition filed by the sole respondent (hereinafter referred to as the "writ petitioner") was allowed and direction was issued to refund Rs. 3,46,804/- to him. The amount aforesaid is the sum deducted by the State from his pensionary benefits towards house rent allowance alleged to be wrongly paid to him while in service. The writ court in issuing the said direction, has placed reliance on the judgement of the Supreme Court in State of Punjab and others v. Rafiq Masih (White Washer), 2015 (4) SCC 334.

2. The facts in brief are that the writ petitioner retired on 30.06.2016 from the post of Teleprinter Operator at Collectorate, Allahabad upon attaining age of superannuation. During his service tenure, he was allotted an official accommodation in the year 1981. According to the case of the appellants, the writ petitioner did not deposit house rent in terms of the allotment letter and at the same time was also given house rent allowance every month until his retirement. On 03.10.2016 i.e. after retirement, the A.D.M, City, Allahabad passed an order holding that the petitioner had received Rs. 2,88,644/- as house rent allowance in an irregular manner and in addition, according to the norms, Rs. 58,260/- would be rent due till 30th June, 2016, consequently, he was directed to deposit Rs. 3,46,904/- in government treasury within three days failing which, the same would be recovered from his pensionary benefits. As the writ petitioner did not deposit the amount in government treasury, it was deducted from his pensionary benefits. The representation filed by the petitioner was rejected by the District Magistrate by order dated 22.05.2020 impugned in the writ petition.

3. Shri Ramanand Pandey, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel appearing for the State submitted that under Government Order dated 15.12.1981, the writ petitioner was liable to pay rent of the government accommodation he was occupying during his service tenure. He further submits that in case, an employee occupying a government accommodation does not pay rent then he would not be entitled to house rent allowance. It is submitted that by mistake the State paid house rent allowance to the writ petitioner but as soon as the said mistake was discovered, the Additional District Magistrate, City passed the order directing the writ petitioner to refund the amount and when it was not refunded, the amount was rightly deducted from the pensionary benefits. It is sought to be contended that the judgement of the Supreme Court in Rafiq Masih would not apply to the facts of instant case as that was a case where there was wrong fixation of salary while the instant matter relates to house rent allowance and is governed by a government order.

4. On the other hand, learned counsel for the respondent (writ petitioner) submits that the judgement of the Supreme Court applies on all fours to the instant case. It is urged that there is no finding in the impugned order that any fraud or misrepresentation was played by the writ petitioner at any stage. He submits that the impugned recovery after retirement of the writ petitioner had caused grave injury to him and the writ court has rightly directed the appellants to release the said amount.

5. The judgement of the Supreme Court in Rafiq Masih (supra) is not confined to cases where there is wrong fixation of salary and as a result whereof some excess amount was paid to an employee. In fact, the Supreme Court had decided a batch of petitions where the larger issue was whether an employer is entitled to recover monetary benefits mistakenly given to the employee. The mistake could have occurred on account of a variety of reasons; including the grant of a status, which the concerned employee was not entitled to; or payment of salary in a higher scale, than in consonance of the right of the concerned employee; or because of a wrongful fixation of salary of the employee, consequent upon the upward revision of pay-scales or for having been granted allowances, for which the concerned employee was not authorised. It has been held that in all such cases, the employer would not recover the amount provided the excess payment was not attributable to any fraud or misrepresentation by the employee. The categories which have been delineated by the Supreme Court in paragraph 12 of the judgement are as follows :-

"(i) Recovery from employees belonging to Class-III and Class-IV service (or Group 'C' and Group 'D' service).

(ii) Recovery from retired employees, or employees who are due to retire within one year of the order of recovery.

(iii) Recovery from employees, when the excess payment has been made for a period in excess of five years, before the order of recovery is issued.

(iv) Recovery in cases where an employee has wrongfully been required to discharge duties of a higher post, and has been paid accordingly, even though he should have rightfully been required to work against an inferior post.

(v) In any other case, where the Court arrives at the conclusion, that recovery if made from the employee, would be iniquitous or harsh or arbitrary to such an extent, as would far outweigh the equitable balance of the employer's right to recovery."

6. The Supreme Court, on a conspectus of different situations arising before it, specified four different categories where it would be harsh and iniquitous to permit recovery of excess payment of the monetary benefits. While specifying these categories, the Supreme Court was conscious of the fact that it was not possible to account for all eventualities. Accordingly, a fifth category was carved out where it was left to the wisdom of the Court not to permit recovery if it comes to the conclusion that it would be harsh, arbitrary or iniquitous.

7. In the instant case, indisputably, the writ petitioner was a Class-III employee and, therefore, would fall under first category. The recovery was sought to be made after his retirement and consequently, he would also be covered under the second category. The amount sought to be recovered was allegedly paid to the writ petitioner during the period spread over 35 years while in service and, therefore, he would also be covered by Clause (iii). The small amount of house rent allowance that was paid to the writ petitioner on a monthly basis in last 35 years when recovered in lump sum post-retirement was definitely an action which was harsh and iniquitous and this would be covered under Clause (v) as well.

8. We find no merit in the submission that since the payment to the petitioner was by way of house rent allowance and, therefore it would not be covered by the judgement of Supreme Court inasmuch the judgement of the Supreme Court also covers cases relating to wrong or excess payment of allowances. If there was any default in payment of rent, its recovery, if permissible at this distance of time would be a separate and distinct cause of action, but it was wholly arbitrary and illegal to recover the house rent allowance, paid over the years, without any fraud or misrepresentation on part of the employee.

9. Learned Standing Counsel tried to place reliance on the judgement of Supreme Court in High Court of Punjab and Haryana v. Jagdev Singh reported in 2015 (4) SCC 334. It was a case where the employee was in judicial service and at the time of fixation of revised pay-scale and grant of selection grade, he furnished an undertaking to refund excess payment, in terms of the applicable service rules, if any mistake is detected subsequently. The Supreme Court in view of the specific condition in the notification that the employee would be liable to refund excess payment if discovered subsequently followed by the undertaking furnished by the employee in terms of the said stipulation, held that the principles enunciated in proposition no. (ii) in the case of Rafiq Masih would not apply. The observations made in this regard is extracted below :-

"The principle enunciated in proposition (ii) above cannot apply to a situation such as in the present case. In the present case, the officer to whom the payment was made in the first instance was clearly placed on notice that any payment found to have been made in excess would be required to be refunded. The officer furnished an undertaking while opting for the revised pay scale. He is bound by the undertaking."

10. In the instant case, there was no undertaking furnished by the petitioner for refunding the house rent allowance which was deducted from his post retiral benefits. Therefore, we are of the considered opinion that the judgement relied upon by learned counsel for the appellants would be of no help to him. The learned Single Judge was right in applying the principles laid down in Rafiq Masih in directing refund of the amount.

11. In the result, the appeal lacks merit and is accordingly, dismissed.

A. Service Law – Recovery from pension – Civil Service Regulations - Regulation 351-A - The Governor has been given right to recover pecuniary loss from the pensionary benefits, if the pensioner is found in departmental or judicial proceedings to have been guilty of grave misconduct or to have caused pecuniary loss to the Government by misconduct or negligence during his service. Moreover, the departmental proceedings, if initiated after retirement, would only be with sanction of the Governor and shall be in respect of any event which took place not more than four years before the institution of such proceedings. (Para 11)

In the instant case, admittedly, no departmental or judicial proceedings were initiated against the writ petitioner before directing recovery of the amount from the pensionary benefits. There was also no sanction of the Governor. Concededly, the alleged excess payment was made in the year 2011-12 and definitely, it related to an event which took place much more than four years before order was passed for recovery of the amount (Moreover, the State did not raise any objection in relation to this excess payment while the writ petitioner was in service). Therefore, the said amount was not recoverable at this distance of time in view of the safeguards provided u/Regulation 351-A. (Para 9, 12)

B. The letter of the petitioner dated 11.07.2016, cannot by any stretch of imagination, be construed as a concession or undertaking on part of the writ petitioner to deduct the amount in question from his pensionary benefits on permanent basis. It, on the other hand, clearly shows that the petitioner, even at that time, did not agree to the recovery, but only agreed for withholding it temporarily so as to facilitate release of the remaining pensionary benefits.

The State had withheld the pensionary benefits of the writ petitioner for considerable period after his retirement. Consequently, the petitioner had agreed for temporary withholding of the amount in dispute and for releasing the remaining amount. It also transpires from the record that the respondents released the gratuity in the year 2017 only after deducting the aforesaid amount. It only reflects his helplessness and despair because of one-sided illegal action of the employer in withholding his pensionary benefits for more than two years, after his retirement. (Para 16)

Order in the Delay Condonation Application

1. Heard learned counsel for the parties.

2. The explanation for the delay furnished in the affidavit accompanying the delay condonation application is found to be satisfactory.

3. Accordingly, the delay is condoned.

4. Office is directed to allocate a regular number to the instant appeal.

Order on the Memo of Appeal

5. Heard Shri Ramanand Pandey, learned Standing Counsel for the appellants and Shri Upendra Upadhyay for the respondent.

6. The State is in appeal against the judgement of learned Single Judge dated 02.11.2022 by which, the writ petition filed by the respondent (hereinafter referred to as the "Writ Petitioner") was allowed and the amount recovered from the writ petitioner in pursuance of orders impugned dated 08.09.2016 and 02.05.2017 was directed to be restituted within a period of three months.

7. The facts necessary for disposal of the instant appeal are that the petitioner had retired on 30.06.2014 from the post of Junior Engineer, Rural Engineering Services, Ghazipur. On 08.09.2016, the Executive Engineer, Rural Engineering Services, Division- Ghazipur, issued an Office Order approving recovery of a sum of Rs. 3,10,022/- from the petitioner. The order records that by mistake the petitioner was given benefit of the 3rd Assured Career Progression Scheme from 12.08.2008, though he was entitled to it from 01.12.2008. The difference amount was consequently sought to be recovered thereby. The order dated 02.05.2017 is a communication sent by Additional Director, Treasury and Pension, Varanasi Mandal, Varanasi to Senior Treasurar, Treasury, Ghazipur by which approval had been granted for release of gratuity to the petitioner after deducting Rs. 4,09,878/-. It is common ground between the parties that it includes the amount of Rs. 3,10,022/- allegedly paid in excess to the petitioner because of the petitioner having been granted benefit of A.C.P. from an earlier date. It also includes another sum of Rs. 99,856/-. It represents the amount allegedly paid in excess by the petitioner to a contractor during his service-tenure in the year 2011-12. The learned Single Judge has held that both the recoveries were illegal and could not have been made in view of the law laid down by the Supreme Court in State of Punjab and Others v. Rafiq Masih (White Washer) (2015) 4 SCC 334 and Thomas Daniel v. State of Kerala & Others (Civil Appeal No. 7115 of 2010).

8. Shri R.N. Pandey, learned Standing Counsel submitted that learned Single Judge committed a manifest error of law in applying Rafiq Masih (supra) to the facts of the instant case inasmuch as recovery of Rs. 99,856/- was on account of excess payment made by the petitioner to the contractor. It is submitted that the judgement in case of Rafiq Masih (supra) would apply only to cases of wrong fixation of salary or payment of excess allowances but not where the employee was guilty of causing pecuniary loss to the State by making excess payment to the contractor.

9. On the other hand, learned counsel for the respondent submitted that the alleged payment of excess amount to the contractor is based on a unilateral opinion formed by the respondent-Department after his retirement. It is submitted that a contract for a sum of Rs. 56.15 lakhs was duly approved and after the work thereunder was satisfactorily executed, the payment was released. The State did not raise any objection in relation to the payment made to the contractor while the writ petitioner was in service. After his retirement, no such recovery can be directed. It is submitted that under Regulation 351-A of the Civil Service Regulations, such an action is not permissible as there was no sanction of the Governor and also because the event in respect of which, the recovery is sought to be made, took place more than four years before the institution of the proceedings.

10. It is clear from the rival contentions that the instant appeal is confined only to the alleged excess payment made by the writ petitioner to the contractor. The relevant part of Regulation 351-A of Civil Service Regulations is extracted below :-

"The Governor reserves to himself the right of withholding or withdrawing a pension or any part of it, whether permanently or for a specified period and the right of ordering the recovery from a pension of the whole or part of any pecuniary loss caused Government, if the pensioner is found in departmental or Judicial proceedings to have been guilty of grave misconduct, or to have caused pecuniary loss to Government by misconduct or negligence, during his service, including service rendered on re-employment after retirement

Provided that-

(a) such departmental proceedings, if not instituted while the office was on duty either before retirement or during re-employment-

(i) shall not be instituted save with the sanction of the Governor.

(ii) shall be in respect of an event which took place not more than four years before the institution of such proceeding ; and

(iii) shall be conducted by such authority and in such place or places as the Governor may direct and in accordance with the procedure applicable to proceedings on which an order of dismissal from service may be made.

(b) Judicial proceedings, if not instituted while the officer was on duty either before retirement or during re-employment, shall have been instituted in accordance with sub-clause (ii) of clause (a)."

11. The Governor has been given right to recover pecuniary loss from the pensionary benefits, if the pensioner is found in departmental or judicial proceedings to have been guilty of grave misconduct or to have caused pecuniary loss to the Government by misconduct or negligence during his service. Moreover, the departmental proceedings, if initiated after retirement, would only be with sanction of the Governor and shall be in respect of any event which took place not more than four years before the institution of such proceedings.

12. In the instant case, admittedly, no departmental or judicial proceedings were initiated against the writ petitioner before directing recovery of the amount from the pensionary benefits. There was also no sanction of the Governor. Concededly, the alleged excess payment was made in the year 2011-12 and definitely, it related to an event which took place much more than four years before order was passed for recovery of the amount. Consequently, we are of the opinion that the said amount was not recoverable at this distance of time in view of the safeguards provided under Regulation 351-A.

13. Learned State counsel also tried to contend that the petitioner had agreed for deduction of the aforesaid amount in his letter dated 11.07.2016 and, therefore, cannot resile from the undertaking and challenge the same.

14. Learned counsel for the writ petitioner has vehemently disputed the said contention. He has invited the attention of the Court towards the alleged admission contained in letter dated 11.07.2016 and contended that thereby the writ petitioner only agreed for temporary withholding of the aforesaid amount so that the payment of the remaining amount is made to him without any further delay.

15. The letter of the petitioner dated 11.07.2016 containing alleged admission is as follows :-

16. It is clear from the letter that the State had withheld the pensionary benefits of the writ petitioner for considerable period after his retirement. Consequently, the petitioner had agreed for temporary withholding of the amount in dispute and for releasing the remaining amount. It also transpires from the record that the respondents released the gratuity in the year 2017 only after deducting the aforesaid amount. The said letter cannot by any stretch of imagination, be construed as a concession or undertaking on part of the writ petitioner to deduct the amount in question from his pensionary benefits on permanent basis. It, on the other hand, clearly shows that the petitioner, even at that time, did not agree to the recovery, but only agreed for withholding it temporarily so as to facilitate release of the remaining pensionary benefits. It only reflects his helplessness and despair because of one-sided illegal action of the employer in withholding his pensionary benefits for more than two years, after his retirement.

17. The learned Single Judge has considered this aspect and has observed as follows :-

"Insofar as the loss suffered by the State on account of excess payment made by the petitioner to the tune of Rs. 99,856/- to the contractor for the work contract executed, such a loss is alleged to be suffered by the State is of the year 2011-12 when the petitioner was in service. After the retirement when the petitioner came to know with regard to the aforesaid recovery been made from the petitioner, the petitioner by means of application dated 12.03.2016 filed objection to the aforesaid recovery explaining that the amount has been paid to the contractor as is permissible under law. The objection raised by the petitioner against the aforesaid recovery of excess payment made to the contractor was not decided by the employer and as such reminder dated 20.03.2016 was sent to the Executive Engineer.

Thereafter on 31.03.2016, respondent no. 3 forwarded a letter to respondent no. 4 directing that the representation of the petitioner should be decided at the earliest. However, no order was passed by the respondents on the aforesaid objection of petitioner. The petitioner thereafter has further submitted a representation dated 01.04.2017 and 22.05.2017. The stand in the counter affidavit in paragraph 15 is that the representations of the petitioner were decided by order dated 08.09.2016 and 20.04.2017. A perusal of above-mentioned orders dated 08.09.2016 and 28.04.2017 would demonstrate that the objection by the petitioner against the aforesaid recovery by filing of objection/representation has not been considered and an order has been passed mechanically and without application of mind to the objection raised by the petitioner against recovery. It is to be noted that the employee can always show by filing representation/objection that the recovery/loss to the State is not attributable to the petitioner and that the payment has been made in accordance with law. The employer is required to consider the case of the petitioner in the light of objection raised by the employee. However in the present case, the objection raised by the employee by means of representation have not been considered nor the same has been decided. Such an approach by the employer is in gross violation of principles of natural justice and fair play."

18. No exception can be taken to the view expressed in this regard by the learned Single Judge.

19. No other submission has been made by learned State Counsel.

20. The appeal lacks merit and is accordingly, dismissed.

21. No order as to costs.

Special Appeal No. 225 of 2023

...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellants:

Sri Pranjal Mehrotra

Counsel for the Respondent:

A. Service Law – Disciplinary proceedings - Uttar Pradesh Cooperative Societies Employees Service Regulations, 1975 - In service jurisprudence disciplinary proceedings commence on the date when the charge-sheet is issued and not earlier. All other transactions in contemplation of disciplinary proceedings, such as the preliminary inquiry, a show cause and the like, do not constitute initiation of disciplinary proceedings. (Para 14)

Assuming that the charge-sheet was approved by the Managing Director in the month of February, 2012, whilst the writ petitioner retired from service on 31.12.2013, the Inquiry Officer issued the charge-sheet on 02.12.2014, a fact about which the parties are ad idem. We notice the oddity that the Managing Director's endorsement on the charge-sheet approving it, does not mention the date below his signatures, but merely mentions the month and the year. This kind of an endorsement in some way derogates from the sanctity of something as solemn as the approval of a charge-sheet.

It is almost impossible to accept the contention of the learned Counsel for the Bridge Corporation that the charge-sheet having been approved in the month of February, 2012, while the writ petitioner was still in service, disciplinary proceedings ought to be regarded as initiated against him in the year 2012. (Para 13, 14)

B. All laws affecting substantive rights are prospective in operation unless expressly made retrospective.

The writ petitioner retired from service on 31.12.2013 and the charge-sheet was issued on 02.12.2014. Disciplinary proceedings were initiated against the writ petitioner on 02.12.2014 and not in the month of February, 2012, while the writ petitioner was still in service. There is nothing in the amended rules notified on 27.10.2018 and framed in the meeting of the Board of Directors of the Bridge Corporation to show that these rules would have retrospective operation. There is no hint about it in the amended Rule 50 or 51 added to the Model Conduct Discipline and Appeal Rules for the Service of U.P. State Enterprises. The amended Rules confer a substantive right on the Bridge Corporation to initiate disciplinary proceedings against a retired employee about matters that fall within four years when disciplinary proceedings are initiated. It likewise affects the substantive right of an employee to be insulated from initiation of departmental proceedings once he has retired and no longer in the employ of the Bridge Corporation. Therefore, there is no basis to hold that the amended Rules that have come into effect from 27.10.2018, would have retrospective operation and govern the rights of the Bridge Corporation, vis-à-vis the writ petitioner. (Para 15, 17)

Disciplinary proceedings initiated against the writ petitioner by the Bridge Corporation on the basis of the impugned charge-sheet are without jurisdiction. (Para 18)

Special appeal dismissed. (E-4)

Present special appeal challenges judgment and order dated 31.03.2022, passed in Civil Misc. WP No. 1920 of 2015.

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. This is a respondent's appeal, arising out of a judgment and order of the learned Single Judge dated 31.03.2022, allowing Writ-A No.1920 of 2015.

2. The writ petitioner-respondent, Prabhat Kumar Jha, who shall hereinafter be referred to as 'the writ petitioner', is an ex-employee of the Uttar Pradesh State Bridge Corporation Limited (for short, 'the Bridge Corporation'). He was in their employ since the year 1977. He retired from service upon attaining the age of superannuation on 31.12.2013. The Manager Personnel-I of the Bridge Corporation forwarded the writ petitioner's claim for payment of gratuity to the General Manager, Headquarters. The writ petitioner's claim for leave encashment was similarly recommended. There was inaction in the payment of the writ petitioner's gratuity, leave encashment, family pension and group insurance, aggregating a sum of Rs.25 lacs. The writ petitioner pursued his claim with the various officials of the Bridge Corporation, but to no avail.

3. The writ petitioner preferred a writ petition before this Court being Writ-A No.35132 of 2014, which was heard and disposed of vide order dated 10.07.2014, relegating the writ petitioner to represent his case before the competent authority of the Bridge Corporation, who was directed to pass a speaking order within the shortest possible period of time, preferably within two months of the date of receipt of his representation. The writ petitioner faced continued inaction and filed a contempt application before this Court being Contempt Application (Civil) No.5762 of 2014, which was disposed of vide order dated 15.10.2014, directing the officers of the Bridge Corporation that in case a decision on the writ petitioner's representation is not taken within two months of the receipt of Contempt Court's order, without reasonable cause, the Court would have no option but to proceed against the officers in contempt.

4. At this juncture, the Bridge Corporation issued a charge-sheet dated 02.12.2014 framing two charges against the writ petitioner. The charge-sheet was issued approximately a year after the writ petitioner's retirement. Accordingly, the writ petitioner instituted the writ petition, giving rise to this appeal, where he prayed that the charge-sheet be quashed as one without jurisdiction. He further sought a mandamus against the Bridge Corporation and its various authorities ordering them to pay his entire post retiral dues. The writ petition, after exchange of affidavits, was heard by the learned Single Judge, who has allowed it by the judgment and order impugned. The learned Judge has quashed the charge-sheet and further ordered the Bridge Corporation and its various authorities to release the entire post retiral dues payable to the writ petitioner, along with 8% interest from the date of his retirement, until realization.

5. Aggrieved, the Bridge Corporation and five of its officers have preferred this appeal under Chapter VIII Rule 5 of the Rules of Court.

6. Heard Mr. Pranjal Mehrotra, learned Counsel for the Bridge Corporation and Mr. Ashish Kumar Singh, learned Counsel appearing for the writ petitioner.

7. The question involved in this appeal is whether departmental proceedings could be initiated against the writ petitioner after he had retired from service and if those proceedings are ultra vires. The general principle is that once an employee retires or the relationship of employer and employee otherwise comes to a terminus, the employer loses all disciplinary jurisdiction over the employee. The corollary is that generally speaking once an employee retires from service, disciplinary proceedings cannot be initiated against him; also, pending disciplinary proceedings cannot be continued after his superannuation. This general principle is, however, subject to the reputed exception that where by statutory service conditions or statutory service rules, a provision is made for initiation of disciplinary proceedings post retirement or the continuance of disciplinary proceedings pending on the date retirement, disciplinary proceedings can be validly initiated or continued, as the case may be.

8. The two situations, above mentioned, are different in law and are definitive exceptions to the rule that post retirement, there can be no initiation of disciplinary proceedings or continuance of pending disciplinary proceedings. These two situations are different, in the sense that continuance of disciplinary proceedings pending on the date of retirement is one thing, and the initiation of disciplinary proceedings post retirement another. A statutory rule has to be specifically there to permit the employer in one case to continue disciplinary proceedings pending on the date of retirement, post retirement, and, in the other, initiate disciplinary proceedings, that were never there during service, after the employee's retirement. Sanction of the right to continue disciplinary proceedings, pending on the date of retirement under the statutory service rules, would not invest the employer with jurisdiction to initiate or institute disciplinary proceedings against a retired employee. The right to initiate disciplinary proceedings post retirement, like the right to continue pending disciplinary proceedings, would have to flow from a definitive statutory provision and the statutory service rules empowering the employer in this regard.

9. It is also to be remembered that the right to initiate disciplinary proceedings in cases where the statutory service rules confer that kind of a jurisdiction upon the employer may be hedged in with restrictions in the statute itself. As for example, in the case of government servants in the State of Uttar Pradesh, proceedings against a retired government servant cannot be initiated by the Government or the competent Disciplinary Authority, except with the sanction of the Governor, as envisaged by the proviso to Regulation 351-A of the Civil Services Regulations. There could be further restrictions, such as the period of time when the event about which disciplinary proceedings against a retired government servant are initiated took place. In the case of Civil Service Regulations for a retired government servant in the State of Uttar Pradesh, the event inviting action should not have taken place more than four years before the initiation of disciplinary proceedings. Again, there can be restrictions about the kind of punishment that may be imposed, once disciplinary proceedings are initiated against a retired government servant. Statutory Service Rules can provide for punishment of dismissal or removal from service, even if the government servant has retired, but all these rights come to the employer sourced from statutory service rules. Else, the employer has no jurisdiction or right to proceed against a retired employee in their disciplinary jurisdiction.

10. This issue was considered by the Supreme Court in Bhagirathi Jena v. Board of Directors, O.S.F.C., and others, (1999) 3 SCC 666 in the context of the right to proceed against an employee of Orissa State Financial Corporation, whose conditions of service were government by the Orissa Financial State Corporation Staff Regulations, 1975. The regulations in that case did not provide for continuance of pending disciplinary proceedings against an employee who had superannuated. In Bhagirathi Jena (supra), proceedings against the employee were initiated by the issue of a charge-sheet while he was in service, but could not be concluded until his retirement. The question was whether proceedings could be continued after retirement. It was in that context that it was held by their Lordships in Bhagirathi Jena thus:

"7. In view of the absence of such a provision in the abovesaid regulations, it must be held that the Corporation had no legal authority to make any reduction in the retiral benefits of the appellant. There is also no provision for conducting a disciplinary enquiry after retirement of the appellant and nor any provision stating that in case misconduct is established, a deduction could be made from retiral benefits. Once the appellant had retired from service on 30-6-1995, there was no authority vested in the Corporation for continuing the departmental enquiry even for the purpose of imposing any reduction in the retiral benefits payable to the appellant. In the absence of such an authority, it must be held that the enquiry had lapsed and the appellant was entitled to full retiral benefits on retirement.

8. Learned Senior Counsel for the respondent placed reliance on the judgment of this Court in Takhatray Shivadattray Mankad v. State of Gujarat [1989 Supp (2) SCC 110 : 1991 SCC (L&S) 927 : (1990) 12 ATC 692] . It is true that that was a case of imposing a reduction in the pension and gratuity on account of unsatisfactory service of the employee as determined in an enquiry which was extended beyond the date of superannuation. But the above decision cannot help the respondent inasmuch as in that case there was a specific rule namely Rule 241-A of the Junagadh State Pension and Parwashi Allowance Rules, 1932 which enabled the imposition of a reduction in the pension or gratuity of a person after retirement. Further, there were rules in that case which enabled the continuance of the departmental enquiry even after superannuation for the purpose of finding out whether any misconduct was established which could be taken into account for the purpose of Rule 241-A. In the absence of a similar provision with the regulations of the respondent-Corporation, the above judgment of Mankad case [1989 Supp (2) SCC 110 : 1991 SCC (L&S) 927 : (1990) 12 ATC 692] cannot help the respondent.

11. The question again fell for consideration of the Supreme Court in Dev Prakash Tewari v. Uttar Pradesh Cooperative Institutional Service Board, Lucknow and others, (2014) 7 SCC 260, where the employee concerned was governed by the Uttar Pradesh Cooperative Societies Employees' Service Regulations, 1975. Disciplinary proceedings were initiated while the employee was still in service, but on account of a plea of denial of opportunity, the order of dismissal from service was quashed by this Court on the ground of violation of principles of natural justice. Liberty was given to the employer to proceed afresh. While disciplinary proceedings were resumed and pending, the employee retired. The question was whether proceedings against him could continue in the absence of a provision in the statutory service rules enabling the employer in this behalf. It was in that context that their Lordships held in Dev Prakash Tewari (supra):

"5. We have carefully considered the rival submissions. The facts are not in dispute. The High Court while quashing the earlier disciplinary proceedings on the ground of violation of principles of natural justice in its order dated 10-1-2006 [D.P. Tewari v. U.P. Coop. Institutional Service Board, Writ Petition (S/B) No. 4328 of 1988, order dated 10-1-2006 (All)] granted liberty to initiate the fresh inquiry in accordance with the Regulations. The appellant who was reinstated in service on 26-4-2006 and fresh disciplinary proceeding was initiated on 7-7-2006 and while that was pending, the appellant attained the age of superannuation and retired on 31-3-2009. There is no provision in the Uttar Pradesh Cooperative Societies Employees' Service Regulations, 1975, for initiation or continuation of disciplinary proceeding after retirement of the appellant nor is there any provision stating that in case misconduct is established a deduction could be made from his retiral benefits.

7. In a subsequent decision of this Court in U.P. Coop. Federation case [U.P. Coop. Federation Ltd. v. L.P. Rai, (2007) 7 SCC 81 : (2007) 2 SCC (L&S) 598] on facts, the disciplinary proceeding against employee was quashed by the High Court since no opportunity of hearing was given to him in the inquiry and the management in its appeal before this Court sought for grant of liberty to hold a fresh inquiry and this Court held that charges levelled against the employee were not minor in nature, and therefore, it would not be proper to foreclose the right of the employer to hold a fresh inquiry only on the ground that the employee has since retired from the service and accordingly granted the liberty sought for by the management. While dealing with the above case, the earlier decision in Bhagirathi Jena case [Bhagirathi Jena v. Orissa State Financial Corpn., (1999) 3 SCC 666 : 1999 SCC (L&S) 804] was not brought to the notice of this Court and no contention was raised pertaining to the provisions under which the disciplinary proceeding was initiated and as such no ratio came to be laid down. In our view the said decision cannot help the respondents herein.

8. Once the appellant had retired from service on 31-3-2009, there was no authority vested with the respondents for continuing the disciplinary proceeding even for the purpose of imposing any reduction in the retiral benefits payable to the appellant. In the absence of such an authority it must be held that the enquiry had lapsed and the appellant was entitled to get full retiral benefits."

12. Here, it is not in dispute that the rules, as these stood at the time when the writ petitioner retired, had no provision for the continuation of disciplinary proceedings against an employee of the Bridge Corporation, or initiation of proceedings against a retired employee. The power to do so was introduced through an amendment by the Bridge Corporation w.e.f. 27.10.2018 to the Model Conduct Discipline and Appeal Rules for Service of U.P. State Enterprises, that govern the service conditions of the writ petitioner.

13. The Bridge Corporation has raised an issue that the amended Rules have retrospective operation and would apply to govern the writ petitioner's case. This contention will be dealt with shortly. For the present, we assume that on the date disciplinary proceedings were initiated against the writ petitioner, that is to say, 02.12.2014, he was a retired employee and out of the employer's jurisdiction for eleven months past. Learned Counsel for the Bridge Corporation has taken us through the charge-sheet dated 02.12.2014 and pointed out that it was approved by the Managing Director in the month of February, 2012 whilst the writ petitioner retired from service on 31.12.2013. He submits that the charge-sheet having been approved by the Managing Director in the month of February, 2012, while the writ petitioner was in service, the proceedings must be held to have been initiated against the writ petitioner while in service. We notice the oddity that the Managing Director's endorsement on the charge-sheet approving it, does not mention the date below his signatures, but merely mentions the month and the year. This kind of an endorsement in some way derogates from the sanctity of something as solemn as the approval of a charge-sheet.

14. Assuming that the charge-sheet was approved by the Managing Director in the month of February, 2012, the Inquiry Officer issued the charge-sheet on 02.12.2014, a fact about which the parties are ad idem. It is almost impossible to accept the contention of the learned Counsel for the Bridge Corporation that the charge-sheet having been approved in the month of February, 2012, while the writ petitioner was still in service, disciplinary proceedings ought to be regarded as initiated against him in the year 2012. It is an acknowledged principle in service jurisprudence that disciplinary proceedings commence on the date when the charge-sheet is issued and not earlier. All other transactions in contemplation of disciplinary proceedings, such as the preliminary inquiry, a show cause and the like, do not constitute initiation of disciplinary proceedings. In this connection, reference may be made to the guidance of the Supreme Court in UCO Bank and another v. Rajinder Lal Capoor, (2007) 6 SCC 694, where the position of the law has been stated thus:

"21. The aforementioned Regulation, however, could be invoked only when the disciplinary proceedings had clearly been initiated prior to the respondent's ceasing to be in service. The terminologies used therein are of seminal importance. Only when a disciplinary proceeding has been initiated against an officer of the bank despite his attaining the age of superannuation, can the disciplinary proceeding be allowed on the basis of the legal fiction created thereunder i.e. continue "as if he was in service". Thus, only when a valid departmental proceeding is initiated by reason of the legal fiction raised in terms of the said provision, the delinquent officer would be deemed to be in service although he has reached his age of superannuation. The departmental proceeding, it is trite law, is not initiated merely by issuance of a show-cause notice. It is initiated only when a charge-sheet is issued (see Union of India v. K.V. Jankiraman [(1991) 4 SCC 109 : 1991 SCC (L&S) 387 : (1993) 23 ATC 322 : AIR 1991 SC 2010]). This aspect of the matter has also been considered by this Court recently in Coal India Ltd. v. Saroj Kumar Mishra [(2007) 9 SCC 625 : (2007) 5 Scale 724] wherein it was held that date of application of mind on the allegations levelled against an officer by the competent authority as a result whereof a charge-sheet is issued would be the date on which the disciplinary proceedings are said to have been initiated and not prior thereto. Pendency of a preliminary enquiry, therefore, by itself cannot be a ground for invoking Clause 20 of the Regulations. Albeit in a different fact situation but involving a similar question of law in Coal India Ltd. [(2007) 9 SCC 625 : (2007) 5 Scale 724] this Court held : (SCC p. 631, paras 12-13)

"12[13]. It is not the case of the appellants that pursuant to or in furtherance of the complaint received by the Vigilance Department, the competent authority had arrived at a satisfaction as is required in terms of the said circulars that a charge-sheet was likely to be issued on the basis of a preliminary enquiry held in that behalf or otherwise.

13[14]. The circular letters issued by the appellants put restrictions on a valuable right of an employee. They, therefore, are required to be construed strictly. So construed, there cannot be any doubt whatsoever that the conditions precedent contained therein must be satisfied before any action can be taken in that regard."

It was furthermore observed that : (SCC p. 632, para 18)

"18[20]. A departmental proceeding is ordinarily said to be initiated only when a charge-sheet is issued."

(See also Union of India v. Sangram Keshari Nayak [(2007) 6 SCC 704 : (2007) 6 Scale 348] .)"

15. It has, therefore, to be held in this case that disciplinary proceedings were initiated against the writ petitioner on 02.12.2014 and not in the month of February, 2012, while the writ petitioner was still in service. The position of the law, that we have noticed above, leaves us in no manner of doubt about the fact that the date on which the charge-sheet was issued to the writ petitioner, he had superannuated and the disciplinary proceedings were initiated against him while he was a superannuated employee of the Bridge Corporation, distanced by eleven months of rupture of the employer-employee relationship. Nothing has been shown to us on the existing state of rules, either when the writ petitioner retired or the time when the impugned charge-sheet was issued, that may have empowered the Bridge Corporation to initiate disciplinary proceedings against a retired employee of theirs. In our considered opinion, therefore, on this state of rules, the Bridge Corporation would have no jurisdiction to initiate disciplinary proceedings against the writ petitioner by means of the impugned charge-sheet.

16. Now, the only question that remains to be addressed, which Mr. Mehrotra has pressed with much vehemence is whether the amended Rules introduced w.e.f. 27.10.2018, have retrospective operation allowing them to govern the Bridge Corporation's rights to take disciplinary action against the writ petitioner. The rules that have been brought in by amendment through a resolution of the Board of Directors passed in their 177th Meeting and notified by the Managing Director of the Bridge Corporation through his memo dated 27.10.2018, read:

"निदेशक मण्डल की दिनांक 03/10-2018 को सम्पन्न हुई 177वीं बैठक में शासकीय सेवकों के संबंध में शासनादेश संख्या-01/2015/13/9/98/सा-1-2015 दि० 22-04-2015 के पैरा 19 एवं 20 लागू व्यवस्था के अनुसार सेतु निगम में लागू आदर्श आचरण, अनुशासन एवं अपील नियमावली के अन्तिम नियम 49 के उपरान्त 2 नये नियमों का निम्नानुसार प्राविधान नियम 50 एवं 51 को जोड़े जाने की स्वीकृति प्रदान की गयी है:-

सेतु निगम के कर्मिकों के द्वारा सेवाकाल में की गयी अनियमितता/कदाचार के लिए उनकी सेवानिवृत्ति के उपरान्त अनुशासनिक कार्यवाही के सम्बन्ध में।	50-यदि विभागीय जॉच की कार्यवाही लम्बित रहते हुए आरोपित कर्मिक अधिवर्षता आयु प्राप्त कर सेवानिवृत्त हो जाता है को लम्बित जॉच को इस नियमावली के तहत उसके सेवानिवृत्त देयकों से वित्तीय क्षति की वसूली के लिए जारी रखा जा सकता है, परन्तु सेवानिवृत्त कर्मिक को दण्ड नहीं दिया जा सकता और न ही उक्त दण्ड के उद्देश्य से कार्यवाही प्रारम्भ/ जारी रखी जा सकती है।
	51- यदि सेवानिवृत्ति के उपरान्त कोई तथ्य सामने आये तो सेवानिवृत्ति के पश्चात् भी इस नियमावली के तहत कार्यवाही की जा सकती है बशर्ते कि जिस घटना के संबंध में जॉच प्रारम्भ की जाय, जॉच करने की तिथि को उस घटना को 4 वर्ष से अधिक समय न बीत चुका हो।"

17. The writ petitioner retired from service on 31.12.2013 and the charge-sheet was issued on 02.12.2014. There is nothing in the amended rules notified on 27.10.2018 and framed in the meeting of the Board of Directors of the Bridge Corporation to show that these rules would have retrospective operation. There is no hint about it in the amended Rule 50 or 51 added to the Model Conduct Discipline and Appeal Rules for the Service of U.P. State Enterprises. The well established cannon of statutory interpretation is that all laws affecting substantive rights are prospective in operation unless expressly made retrospective. The amended Rules confer a substantive right on the Bridge Corporation to initiate disciplinary proceedings against a retired employee about matters that fall within four years when disciplinary proceedings are initiated. It likewise affects the substantive right of an employee to be insulated from initiation of departmental proceedings once he has retired and no longer in the employ of the Bridge Corporation. Therefore, there is no basis to hold that the amended Rules that have come into effect from 27.10.2018, would have retrospective operation and govern the rights of the Bridge Corporation, vis-a-vis the writ petitioner.

18. In the circumstances, we are of opinion that disciplinary proceedings initiated against the writ petitioner by the Bridge Corporation on the basis of the impugned charge-sheet are without jurisdiction.

19. For reasons added and slightly different from those that have weighed with the learned Single Judge, we concur in the conclusions.

20. In the result, this appeal fails and is dismissed. Costs easy.

THE HON'BLE ABDUL MOIN, J.

Writ A No. 23192 of 2016

Annapurna

State of U.P. & Ors.

Versus

...Petitioner

...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:

Ram Kumar Singh

State of Uttar Pradesh & ors. Vs Premlata, 2022
(1) SCC 30 (Para 9)

Counsel for the Respondents:

C.S.C., Aprajita Bansal Rohit Tri

Present petition challenges order dated 07.09.2016, passed by the Secretary, State Election Commission, Lucknow, so far as it relates to appointment of the petitioner on class IV post.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Abdul Moin, J.)

A. Service Law – Compassionate Appointment – 'Suitable post' - U.P. Recruitment of Dependents of Government Servants (Dying in Harness) Rules, 1974 - Appointment on "suitable post" has to be considered considering the status / post held by the deceased employee and the educational qualification / eligibility criteria of the person to be offered compassionate appointment and that the offer is to be made considering the post held by the deceased employee and the suitability of the post of the persons to whom the compassionate appointment is being offered. (Para 10)

In the present case, the husband of the petitioner was working on a class III post who died in harness. Admittedly the petitioner has got educational qualification of Master of Arts but despite the proposal in her favour by the respondent no. 3 on 16.08.2016 for being given a class III post, she has been offered a class IV post. Thus considering the law laid down by Hon'ble the Apex Court in the case of Premkata (infra) and the interpretation given to the Rules 1974 it is apparent that the offer of appointment as given to the petitioner on a class IV post cannot be countenanced in any manner more particularly considering her educational qualifications and the post held by her husband. (Para 11)

Directions have been issued to consider the claim of the petitioner for compassionate appointment on a class III post considering the educational qualification of the petitioner of Master of Arts as well as the status of the post held by her deceased husband which was a class III post. (Para 12)

Writ petition disposed of. (E-4)

Precedent followed:

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and Shri Rohit Tripathi, learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondent.

2. The instant writ petition has been filed praying for the following main reliefs:

"(i) A writ, order or direction in the nature of Certiorari to quash the impugned order dated 7.9.2016 passed by the opposite party no. 2, so far as it relates to appointment of the petitioner on class IV post, contained as Annexure No.1 to this writ petition.

(ii) A writ, order or direction in the nature of Mandamus commanding the opposite parties to provide compassionate appointment to the petitioner on class III post keeping in view her qualification as well as government order dated 17.06.2014 issued by the State Government."

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the husband of the petitioner was a Junior Assistant who died in harness on 15.06.2016. The petitioner being eligible for compassionate appointment under the provisions of U.P. Recruitment of Dependents of Government Servants (Dying in Harness) Rules, 1974 (hereinafter referred to as the Rules, 1974) applied for compassionate appointment and despite the respondent no. 3 having proposed the compassionate appointment of the petitioner on a class III post through an order dated 16.08.2016, a copy of which is annexure 4 to the petition, she has been offered appointment on a class IV post vide order dated 07.09.2016, a copy of which is annexure 1 to the petition.

4. Placing reliance on the words "suitable post" as used in Rule 5 of the Rules, 1974 the contention is that the said Rules provide for giving of compassionate appointment on a "suitable post" in government service on a post except the post which is within the purview of U.P. Public Service Commission provided the person fulfills the educational qualification prescribed for the post.

5. The argument is that as the petitioner is a Master of Arts (MA) pass lady and her husband was also working on a class III post of Junior Assistant as such the respondents have patently erred in offering appointment on a class IV post and as such the petitioner is entitled for being given appointment on a suitable class III post as per her qualification and considering that the husband of the petitioner was working on a class III post.

6. On the other hand, Shri Rohit Tripathi, learned counsel for the respondents argues that in matter of compassionate appointment a person cannot have a choice of post and thus once the petitioner has already been offered appointment on a class IV post consequently either she accepts the said appointment or in case she refuses the same, it would be deemed that she does not require any compassionate appointment and there would not be any occasion for giving her appointment on a class III post as claimed by her.

7. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and having perused the record what emerges is that the petitioner is the widow of a Junior Assistant who died in harness on 15.06.2016. Thus it is apparent that the petitioners' husband was working on a class III post. Despite the recommendation made by the respondent no. 3 proposing the appointment of the petitioner on a class III post in terms of proposal dated 16.08.2016 the petitioner has been offered appointment on a class IV post through an order dated 07.09.2016. In pursuance to the order of this Court dated 29.09.2016 whereby this Court had made the petitioners' joining on a class IV post subject to final outcome of the petition, the petitioner has already submitted her joining on the class IV post on 30.09.2016.

8. The issue in question is that when the words used under the 1974 Rules is "suitable post" and the petitioner is a widow of a class III employee and has got her educational qualification of Master of Arts as to whether she can be offered appointment on a class IV post or she has to be offered appointment on a "suitable post"?

9. The issue is no longer res integra having been considered by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of the State of Uttar Pradesh & others vs Premlata 2022 (1) SCC 30 wherein after considering the provisions of 1974 Rules the Apex Court has held as under:

"10.2 The Division Bench of the High Court in the present case has interpreted Rule 5 of Rules 1974 and has held that 'suitable post' under Rule 5 of the Rules 1974 would mean any post suitable to the qualification of the candidate irrespective of the post held by the deceased employee. The aforesaid interpretation by the Division Bench of the High Court is just opposite to the object and purpose of granting the appointment on compassionate ground. ?Suitable post? has to be considered, considering status/post held by the deceased employee and the educational qualification/eligibility criteria is required to be considered, considering the post held by the deceased employee and the suitability of the post is required to be considered vis a vis the post held by the deceased employee, otherwise there shall be no difference/distinction between the appointment on compassionate ground and the regular appointment. In a given case it may happen that the dependent of the deceased employee who has applied for appointment on compassionate ground is having the educational qualification of Class II or Class I post and the deceased employee was working on the post of Class / Grade IV and/or lower than the post applied, in that case the dependent/applicant cannot seek the appointment on compassionate ground on the higher post than what was held by the deceased employee as a matter of right, on the ground that he/she is eligible fulfilling the eligibility criteria of such higher post. The aforesaid shall be contrary to the object and purpose of grant of appointment on compassionate ground which as observed hereinabove is to enable the family to tide over the sudden crisis on the death of the bread earner. As observed above, appointment on compassionate ground is provided out of pure humanitarian consideration taking into consideration the fact that some source of livelihood is provided and family would be able to make both ends meet."

10. From a perusal of the aforesaid judgement in the case of Premalata (supra)

it emerges that Hon'ble the Apex Court has considered the words "suitable post" and has held that appointment on "suitable post" has to be considered considering the status / post held by the deceased employee and the educational qualification / eligibility criteria of the person to be offered compassionate appointment and that the offer is to be made considering the post held by the deceased employee and the suitability of the post of the persons to whom the compassionate appointment is being offered.

11. Being armed with the aforesaid interpretation as given by Hon'ble the Apex Court in the case of Premalata (supra) what this Court finds is that admittedly the husband of the petitioner was working on a class III post who died in harness. Admittedly the petitioner has got educational qualification of Master of Arts but despite the proposal in her favour by the respondent no. 3 on 16.08.2016 for being given a class III post, she has been offered a class IV post. Thus considering the law laid down by Hon'ble the Apex Court in the case of Premalata (supra) and the interpretation given to the Rules 1974 it is apparent that the offer of appointment as given to the petitioner on a class IV post cannot be countenanced in any manner more particularly considering her educational qualifications and the post held by her husband.

12. Keeping in view the aforesaid discussion, the writ petition is disposed of directing the respondent no. 2 i.e. the Secretary, State Election Commission, Lucknow to consider the claim of the petitioner for compassionate appointment on a class III post considering the educational qualification of the petitioner of Master of Arts as well as the status of the post held by her deceased husband which was a class III post.

13. Let such consideration be done within a period of six weeks from the date of receipt of certified copy of this order. Needless to mention that appointment of the petitioner on a class IV post in pursuance to the order dated 07.09.2016 would be subject to the orders which are passed by the respondent no. 2 in this regard with a caveat that in case the respondent no. 2 rejects the claim of the petitioner she would still continue on the class IV post on which she has been appointed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Satyendra Narayan Singh, learned Counsel for the applicant and Mr. Mata Prasad, Advocate holding brief of Mr. Baleshwar Chaturvedi, learned Counsel appearing for respondents nos. 3 and 4 and Mr. D.K. Srivastava, learned A.G.A. appearing on behalf of the State.

2. This application has been filed, seeking to quash the proceedings in Criminal Case No. 142 of 2005, State v. Ashraf Ali, under Section 135 of the Electricity Act, 2003 ('the Act of 2003' for short), Police Station Khandauli, District Agra, pending in the Court of the Special Judge (E.C. Act), Agra.

3. The applicant has been reported to the Police through a first information report dated 10.08.2005 by the Junior Engineer, Enforcement Squad, Power Distribution Corporation, who, along with the Executive Engineer and a team of police officers, acting on an information, went over to the premises of a certain M/s. Aftab Ice Factory owned by the applicant Asharaf Ali. The information, on which the enforcement team proceeded, was about theft of electricity by the applicant. A checking of the premises followed, which led to the discovery of a direct line drawn from the 100 KVA transformer to the low-tension line, for the purpose of energizing the ice factory. The team found an effective illegally connected load of 74 H.P. and corresponding theft being committed by the applicant. The applicant is said to have moved away, feigning that he would produce papers. The cable was removed and taken into custody. The members of the public, who were offered to stand witness, declined to do so, citing reasons eschewing enmity.

4. Learned counsel for the applicant has argued that the time when the offence was committed and the crime registered on the basis of which the impugned charge sheet has been filed, that is to say, on 10.08.2005, the offence under Section 135 of the Act of 2003 was not a cognizable offence and only a complaint could be filed. It is argued by the learned counsel for the applicant that the applicant had filed Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 10415 of 2005, challenging the FIR that was registered against him. It was connected to a bunch of writ petitions, where the common issue involved was if an FIR could at all be registered for an offence punishable under Section 135 of the Act of 2003, the offence being not cognizable as the Act then stood. The applicant was granted interim stay of arrest vide order dated 06.10.2005. The aforesaid writ petitions came to be heard and decided by a Division Bench of this Court on 15.09.2006 in Mustaq alias Mustafa v. State of U.P. and others, 2006 SCC OnLine All 1430 : (2006) 6 All LJ 257. The following directions were issued :

42. According to us, out of three directions the third one is edging over the others. We cannot dismiss the writ petitions since under this judicial pronouncement we have to hold about legality or validity of declaring theft of electricity non-cognizable offence. If we quash the proceeding, we shall arrive at the same result. Moreover, we are not recommending the police to arrest directly irrespective of taking cognizance by the Court. But if we postpone the arrest and allow the authorities including police to obtain leave or permission for investigation from the Court of competent jurisdiction then the purpose will be subserved.

43. Lot of submissions are made about applicability of Rule 12 of the Electricity Rules, 2005. It is further submitted that there is no provision of making such Rule of investigation and arrest by the police. We have seen the rule making power under S. 176 of the Act. Section 176 gives power to the Central Government to make the rule whereunder we find that some of the rule are specifically made without prejudice to the generality of the rule making power. Therefore, such power exists even under the general rule making power. According to us, question is not the making of such rule but making its effectivity with the true spirit of the Act. The Act, 2003 provides certain offences punishable in accordance with law. One of such offence is theft of electricity under Section 135 of the Act. Section 135 of the Act does not preclude applicability of Cr. P.C. absolutely. Rule 12 of the Rules is speaking directly on the issue. But according to us, there is a direct conflict between such rule and Section 151 of the Act. Had it been the case that Section 151 is exercisable, we could have given thought in respect of the question/s raised by the petitioners, but now when the Bill has been presented proposing amendment of such section by converting non-cognizable offence to cognizable offence, we should not interfere with it. We can only keep the applicability of both Section 151 of the Act and Rule 12 of the Rules in abeyance till the amendment actually takes place. Naturally the question will arise how the law will take effect? It can take effect by applying the provision of S. 175 of the Act. Such section has made the entire Electricity Act, 2003 as a supplementary law in addition to and not in derogation to any other law for the time being in force. "Derogation" means the act of annulling or breaking a law, or some part of it as per Law Lexicon 1997 Edition. Therefore, when by such Section the Electricity Act, 2003 does not propose to break or annul the existing law, Cr. P.C. can act as a filler to meet the need or necessity. Now the question would be what is the need? The need is taking cognizance by the Court as regards non-cognizable offences and giving an appropriate direction to the police to do the needful. Section 155 of the Cr. P.C. is clear to that extent as given hereunder:

"155. Information as to non-cognizable cases and investigation of such cases.-- (1) when information is given to an officer in charge of a police station of the commission within the limits of such station of a non-cognizable offence, he shall enter or cause to be entered the substance of the information in a book to be kept by such officer in such form as the State Government may prescribe in this behalf, and refer the informant to the Magistrate.

(2) No police officer shall investigate a non-cognizable case without the order of a Magistrate having power to try such case or commit the case for trial.

(3) Any police officer receiving such order may exercise the same powers in respect of the investigation (except the power to arrest without warrant) as an officer in charge of a police station may exercise in a cognizable case.

(4) Where a case relates to two or more offences of which at least one is cognizable, the case shall be deemed to be a cognizable case, notwithstanding that the other offences are non-cognizable.

44. However, from the aforesaid discussions the following inferences are drawn:

(a) Theft of electricity is social crime;

(b) electricity is saleable commodity per unit but not unsaleable abstract energy and supply of uninterrupted electricity to the citizens is essential service of the State, therefore, theft of electricity should be treated as cognizable offence;

(c) persons involved in theft of electricity do not necessarily mean the illegal user alone but persons adding or abating the theft either within or outside the department;

(d) objects and reasons, list of offences and Sections 135,151 and if necessary other sections of the Act, 2003 should be harmoniously construed;

(e) Section 151 and the word "non-cognizable" under the list of offences under the Act can be deleted to have more effective applicability;

(f) by virtue of Section 175 of the Act, 2003, the Act is supplemental to the general law, therefor, there is no bar to the applicability of Cr. P.C.

(g) "Electricity" being item No. 38 of the List III -- concurrent list of the Seventh Schedule of the Constitution of India, both Central and State have every right to form Special Task Force to entrust the duty at an appropriate circumstance especially in case of doubt about failure or connivance of the police with miscreants.

45. With the above inferences following order is passed hereunder: Both the existing Section 151 of the Electricity Act, 2003 and Rule 12 of the Electricity Rules, 2005 shall be kept in abeyance and can be made applicable when amendment of the Electricity Act, 2003 will actually take effect. The word "cognizance" under the Rule 12 of the Electricity Rules, 2005 will be read as "action". Since theft of electricity is declared as social crime and saleable commodity, there is no bar under Cr. P.C. to take care of the offences temporarily till its amendment by virtue of Section 175 of the Act. Necessary applications can be made by the appropriate authority and/or by the police to the Court of competent jurisdiction to obtain leave and/or permission for necessary investigation of the individual cases. After obtaining such leave/permission there will be no bar for them to investigate and/or arrest an offender or offenders. The arrest of the petitioners is stayed for a period of one month or till after order of the Court of competent jurisdiction to investigate the matter, whichever is earlier.

46. Thus, the writ petition stands disposed of. No order is passed as to costs."

5. It is argued by the learned counsel for the applicant that the Police submitted a charge-sheet and the Special Judge unmindful of the directions issued by the Division Bench, took cognizance and issued process. Therefore, the orders issuing process in this case are in violation of the directions of the Division Bench of this Court, where without seeking permission of the competent Court, the Police had filed a charge-sheet against the applicant.

6. The aforesaid plea has been contested by Mr. Mata Prasad, Advocate holding brief of Mr. Baleshwar Chaturvedi, learned counsel for respondents nos. 3 and 4 and Mr. D.K. Srivastava, learned A.G.A. appearing on behalf of the State.

7. It is argued that in view of the subsequent amendment of the provisions of Section 151 of the Act of 2003 vide Act No. 26 of 2007 and the decision of the Supreme Court in Union of India vs. Mustaq alias Mustafa and others, (2016) 13 SCC 398 the said ground is no longer tenable.

8. The Act of 2003 was amended vide Act No. 26 of 2007 inserting the first proviso to Section 151 of the Act of 2003. By the said amendment, the offence under Section 135 was made a cognizable offence of which the Court could take cognizance upon a Police report filed under Section 173 (2) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973. In Assistant Electrical Engineer v. Satyendra Rai and another, (2014) 4 SCC 513, the Supreme Court reversed a judgment of the Patna High Court, holding that the Court could not take cognizance of an offence of electricity theft on a Police report, but on a complaint alone in writing by the appropriate Government. The said view was held untenable. In the Patna case, the offence had been committed on 24.01.2007 and the Amending Act No. 26 of 2007 making the offence cognizable came into force with effect from 15.06.2007. Therefore, it was argued before their Lordships of the Supreme Court in Satyendra Rai (supra) that the amendment made vide Act No. 26 of 2007 would not apply to the writ petitioners' case. There, the offence was committed prior to insertion of the first proviso to Section 151 of the Act of 2003 by the Amending Act of 2007. The aforesaid contention was repelled by the Supreme Court holding:

8. Mr Mohit Kumar Shah, learned counsel appearing for the appellant invites our attention to the present Section 151 of the Act and more particularly to the proviso which has been added by way of an amendment. This proviso came by way of Act 26 of 2007 and reads as under:

"Provided that the court may also take cognizance of an offence punishable under this Act upon a report of a police officer filed under Section 173 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974):

Provided further that a Special Court constituted under Section 153 shall be competent to take cognizance of an offence without the accused being committed to it for trial."

Therefore, ordinarily, there is no difficulty now in the way of the police to investigate as also to prosecute the accused if it is found that the accused has committed the offence. However, this proviso seems to have come only w.e.f. 15-6-2007, whereas the offence complained of in the present case is stated to have taken place on 24-1-2007. Therefore, it is argued by the learned counsel for the respondent that the proviso could apply only if the offence is committed and reported after 15-6-2007.

9. We, however, do not agree as the learned counsel appearing for the appellant has also pointed out and invited our attention to the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Act by which the amendment has come and further by which the proviso is added. Para 4 of the Statement of Objects and Reasons reads as under:

"4. As per the provisions contained in Section 151 of the Act, the offences relating to theft of electricity, electric lines and interference with metres are cognizable offences. Concerns have been expressed that the present formulation of Section 151 stands as a barrier to investigation of these cognizable offences by the police. It is proposed to amend Section 151 so as to clarify the position that the police would be able to investigate the cognizable offences under the Act. To expedite the trial before the Special Courts, it is also proposed to provide that a Special Court shall be competent to take cognizance of an offence without the accused being committed to it for trial."

Therefore, considering the language of Para 4 of the Statement of Objects and Reasons, it is clear that the amendment brought in is clarificatory in nature and as such it would take into its ambit even the pending matters and in that sense it would be a retrospective amendment.

10. There is one more reason why the High Court's order [Satyendra Rai v. State of Bihar, Criminal Misc. No. 19178 of 2007, order dated 28-5-2009 (Pat)] can be faulted. The High Court has clearly ignored the First Schedule of CrPC and more particularly the second part thereof which is under the head "Classification of offences against other laws". The second entry reads as follows:

"If punishable with imprisonment for three years and upwards but not more than seven years, then such offences are held to be cognizable, non-bailable and triable by the Court of the Magistrate of the First Class."

11. Therefore, the High Court ought to have considered this provision which makes the first information report acceptable by the police in the sense that the police could investigate into the matter and if found guilty could have also filed a report under Section 173 CrPC before the court on which the court could have taken the cognizance of the offence."

9. Later on, the issue again came up before the Supreme Court in an appeal from the judgment of the High Court of Chhatisgarh in Vishal Agarwal and another vs. Chhatisgarh Electricity Board and another, (2014) 3 SCC 696. Following the decision in Satyendra Rai, it was held in Vishal Agarwal (supra) by the Supreme Court that the amendment to Section 151 is clarificatory in nature and action could be taken on complaints that were pending before the Amending Act of 2007 came into force, treating them to be cognizable cases. In paragraph no. 17 of the report in Vishal Agarwal, it was held :

17. In view of the aforesaid judgment of this Court in Satyendra Rai case [Asstt. Electrical Engineer v. Satyendra Rai, (2014) 4 SCC 513 : (2012) 1 PLJR 476 (SC)], conclusively holding that amendment to Section 151 is clarificatory in nature and further that notwithstanding the provisions of Section

151 of the Act, an FIR could be filed with the police, the matter stands clinched in favour of the Board. However, at the same time we would like to elaborate the view taken by this Court in the aforesaid judgment.

10. Thus, by the time, the challenge to the decision of the Division Bench of this Court in Mustaq (supra) came up before the Supreme Court in Mustaq alias Mustafa (supra), the principle was already well settled. Accordingly, the directions protecting the writ petitioners in Mustaq on the ground that the cases had been registered at a time when the Amending Act of 2007 had not yet come into force, were all vacated by the Supreme Court in Mustaq alias Mustafa. It was held :

2. The High Court has observed as follows: (Mustaq case [Mustaq v. State of U.P., 2006 SCC OnLine All 1430 : (2006) 6 All LJ 257] , SCC OnLine All para 43)

"43. ... The 2003 Act provides certain offences punishable in accordance with law. One of such offence is theft of electricity under Section 135 of the Act. Section 135 of the Act does not preclude applicability of CrPC absolutely. Rule 12 of the Rules is speaking directly on the issue. But according to us, there is a direct conflict between such rule and Section 151 of the Act. Had it been the case that Section 151 is exercisable, we could have given thought in respect of the question(s) raised by the petitioners, but now when the Bill has been presented proposing amendment of such section by converting non-cognizable offence to cognizable offence, we should not interfere with it. We can only keep the applicability of both Section 151 of the Act and Rule 12 of the Rules in abeyance till the amendment actually takes place."

3. The learned Additional Solicitor General has pointed out a decision of this Court in Electrical Engineer v. Satyendra Rai [Electrical Engineer v. Satyendra Rai, (2014) 4 SCC 513], wherein this Court has specifically held in para 9 as follows: (SCC p. 516)

"9. ... Therefore, considering the language of Para 4 of the Statement of Objects and Reasons, it is clear that the amendment brought in is clarificatory in nature and as such, it would take into its ambit even the pending matters and in that sense, it would be a retrospective amendment."

To that extent, the other decision of this Court in Vishal Agrawal v. Chhattisgarh SEB [Vishal Agrawal v. Chhattisgarh SEB, (2014) 3 SCC 696 : (2014) 4 SCC (Cri) 674] also plays the same role.

4. In view of the above-cited decisions of this Court, wherein it has been specifically stated that it is clear from the language of Para 4 of the Statement of Objects and Reasons that the amendment brought in is clarificatory in nature and as such it would be a retrospective amendment, we hold that the impugned order [Mustaq v. State of U.P., 2006 SCC OnLine All 1430 : (2006) 6 All LJ 257] passed by the High Court cannot be given effect to and is hereby set aside and direct that the orders passed by this Court, which we have cited hereinabove, be followed.

11. In the aforesaid conspectus of facts, it is no longer open to the learned counsel for the applicant to argue that the learned Special Judge could not take cognizance of the case on the basis of a Police report filed against the applicant. The judgment of the Division Bench in Mustaq would not at all come to the applicant's rescue. The said judgment has been set aside by the Supreme Court in Mustaq alias Mustafa. Also, the Supreme Court has held the amendment makes the offence punishable under Section 135 of the Act of 2003 cognizable by virtue of the amendment to Section 151 of the Act of 2003 and has done so retrospectively. The reasoning there is that the amendment is clarificatory, and therefore, retrospective.

12. Be that as it may, the law has now been finally settled that in respect of an FIR or complaint pending prior to the date of the amendment, the amended provisions brought vide Act No. 26 of 2007 would apply with retrospective effect and not prospectively. Here, the amendment came into force with effect from 15.06.2007 and the offence was committed on 10.08.2005, but, that would not be a ground, as Mr. S.N. Singh wants, to quash the impugned proceedings, in view of the consistent holding of the Supreme Court that the amendment is retrospective, making the offence under Section 135 of the Act of 2003 cognizable.

13. No other point was pressed.

14. This application stands rejected.

15. It goes without saying that this order shall not adversely affect the applicant's right, if so advised, to move for discharge at the appropriate stage.

(3) APPLICATION U/S 482 No. - 27812 of 2021

7. The applicants in this application are accused in the present case.

8. On 28.07.2019 at about 4 P.M. when the opposite party no.2 was feeding her cows in the garden, the applicants armed with Danda and Axe came and started abusing her using caste indicating remarks and asked her as to how her cows entered into their field upon which altercation took place and they pushed her, due to which she fell down. Thereafter they mercilessly beaten her cows due to which the udders of the cows got burst. The opposite party no.2 returned to her house and told the entire happening to her husband. Again at about 11 P.M. the accused-applicants came to her house and pelted stones upon her door, used caste indicating words but due to fear, she did not open the door. Her husband made a call on 100 number and intimated the police about the incident. Thereafter, she went to lodge a first information report at Police Station Churki but the same was not lodged and a written report to the Superintendent of Police, Jalaun at Orai was sent by registered post on 03.08.2019 but the same met with same fate. Being aggrieved by the same, the opposite party no.2 filed an application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. in the Court of Special Judge (SC/ST Act), Jalaun at Orai on 07.08.2019, which was treated as complaint case and registered as Complaint Case No.51 of 2019 (Smt. (4) APPLICATION U/S 482 No. - 4382 of 2022

9. The applicant is the complainant in the instant case.

10. The applicant filed an application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. in the Court of Special Judge (SC/ST Act) Allahabad on 03.09.2021 with the averments that he came to know through his acquaintance Sri Guddo Mishra (Opposite party No.4) the selling of land by one Jamuna Prasad (opposite party no.3) situated at Village Brijsinghpur alias Ramgarh which is near to the house of his in-laws, he approached Jamuna Prasad and Arazi No. 256 area 0.2005 Hectare was agreed to be sold for a sale consideration of Rs. 10,00,000/-. Thereafter, said Jamuna Prasad (opposite party no.3) told the applicant to have conversaton regarding land through Guddo Mishra (opposite party no.4) and whenever Guddo Mishra (opposite party no.4) would ask him to execute the deed, the deed will be executed. With regard to the aforesaid transaction, Rs.50,000/- was advanced on 22.06.2021, to the Jamuna Prasad (opposite party no.3) in presence of Guddo Mishra (opposite party no.4) as well as in presence of witnesses namely Ram Murat, Pyare Lal, Samarjeet and Anil Kumar. Against which, the opposite party no.3 Jamuna Prasad issued a receipt on a stamp paper of Rs. 10 and the remaining Rs. 9,50,000/- was agreed to be paid through cheque at the time of execution of the sale deed. On 01.08.2021 the Guddo Mishra-opposite party no.4 came to the applicant and stated that Jamuna Prasad-opposite party no.4 is in urgent need of money and now he wants Rs. 4 lacs in cash, remaining Rs. 5,50,000/- through cheque. He further told to get the sale deed executed within one or two days. The applicant somehow managed the money and rushed to the Tehsil Soraon, District Allahabad on 03.08.2021 for execution of the sale deed in his favour of his wife, namely, Smt. Usha. The accused-opposite party nos. 3 and 4 asked the applicant to handover the cash and cheque amount, whereupon, cheques nos. 227225 and 227226 amounting to Rs. 2,50,000/- and Rs. 3,00,000/- respectively and cash Rs. 4 lacs were handed over to the opposite party no.3-Jamuna Prasad in presence of witnesses Gyan Chand and Anil in the Tehsil premises. The opposite party no.3 after taking the cheques and cash handed over to opposite party no.4 and asked him to count the same, in the meantime, he was putting his signatures on the deed. The opposite party no.4 Guddo Mishra took away the cheques and cash and at the time of putting signatures and thumb impression on the photo copy of the deed in front of the Registrar, the accused-opposite party no.3 Jamuna Prasad avoided the same and told to wait for Guddo Mishra to come. In the meantime the opposite party no.3 also went away on the pretext that he is going to search Guddo Mishra-opposite party no.3 but he did not return till late evening. On the next day, the applicant alongwith his associates had traced out the opposite party nos. 3 and 4, who abused him and used caste indicating words and threatened them to forget the money, failing which to face dire consequences. With regard to the aforesaid incident, the applicant had given an application before the Station House Officer, Police Station Soraon, District Allahabad but nothing was done, therefore the applicant sent an application dated 12.08.2021 before the Senior Superintendent of Police, Prayagraj through registered post, however nothing was done and thus the applicant was constrained to file an application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. before the Special Judge (SC/ST) Act, Allahabad which was dismissed vide order dated 12.10.2021.

(5) APPLICATION U/S 482 No. - 6688 of 2022

11. The subject matter in the instant application is different from the aforesaid applications and it appears that due to inadvertent the same has been wrongly connected with the present case.

(6) CRIMINAL REVISION No. - 2363 of 2021

12. The subject matter in the present revision is also different from the aforesaid applications and it appears that due to inadvertent the same has been wrongly connected with the present case.

13. Sri S.B.Singh, learned counsel for the applicant submits that the order dated 19.1.2021 passed by the Special Judge (SC/ST Act), Sonbhadra treating the application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. as a complaint case is against the law. He further submits that the applicant makes out a prima facie case for registration of the F.I.R. but the learned Court below without considering the same has passed an order to convert the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.c. as a complaint case. He next submits that if the information relating to the commission of an offence under the SC/ST Act, if given orally to an officer incharge of the police station that should be reduced in writing or under his direction and be read over to the informant and every such information whether given in writing or reduced to writing as aforestated, shall be signed by the persons giving it and the substance thereof shall be entered in a book maintained by the said Police Station. In the instant case, the complainant had filed an application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. for registration of the case, which was rejected. On the other hand, the Court below has committed an illegality by treating the case as a complaint case. He next submits that the Special Judge is not empowered to convert the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. as a complaint case against the offence under the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act. He next submits that the F.I.R. ought to have been lodged by the concerned official of the Police station. He next submits that the order passed by learned Special Judge is contrary to the provisions of the Act. He also submits that a special duty has been casted upon the police officials, on receiving information of incident, to lodge an F.I.R. and in case of failure to do so, provision has been made for awarding punishment under section 4 of the Act.

14. On the other hand, learned A.G.A. as well as learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 has submitted that the impugned orders have been passed in accordance with law after considering the factual and legal aspects of the matter and thus there is no illegality in the impugned orders. Learned A.G.A. further submits that Section 190 Cr.P.C. provides for cognizance of an offence by the Magistrate and sub-Section (1) (a) provides that any Magistrate of the first class and any Magistrate of second class specially empowered in this behalf under sub-Section (2) may take cognizance of any offence upon receiving a complaint of facts which constitute such offences.

15. On the other hand, learned counsel for the applicants submits that after the amendment in the Section 14 of SC/ST Act, powers have been conferred upon Special Judge and therefore Section 190 (1) (a) Cr.P.C. stood barred and in matter of SC/ST, the powers of the learned Magistrate to take cognizance is extinguished due to the aforesaid amendment.

16. Now the question before this Court is to see, whether the Magistrate can directly take cognizance of offence punishable under SC/ST Act or it is the Special Court constituted under Section 14 of the Act, which has the jurisdiction to take cognizance in view of amendment made in provisions of SC/ST Act, Amended Act 2015 (Act No.1 of 2016) and the second question before this Court is, whether the Special Judge can treat the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. as a complaint case or not.

17. Now, in light of the provisions of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 as amended by the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 2015 [Act 1 of 2016], to resolve the aforesaid issue, it is necessary to go through the definition of the term 'Special Court' as defined in Section 2(d) of the Act, which reads as follows:

"Special Court, means a Court of Session specified as a Special Court in Section 14."

Section 14 of the Act, before the amendment Act of 2015, was as follows:

"14. Special Court.- For the purpose of providing for speedy trial, the State Government shall, with the concurrence of the Chief Justice of the High Court, by notification in the Official Gazette, specify for each district a Court of Session to be a Special Court to try the offences under this Act."

18. A reading of the said provision would indicate that a Court of Session shall be notified as a Special Court.

19. Section 14 of the SC/ST Act was drastically amended by the Amendment Act (1 of 2016). Section 14 has now been replaced by an entirely new provision.

Thus, the amended Section 14 of the Act reads as follows:

14. (1) For the purpose of providing for speedy trial, the State Government shall, with the concurrence of the Chief Justice of the High Court, by notification in the Official Gazette, establish an Exclusive Special Court for one or more Districts:

Provided that in Districts where less number of cases under this Act is recorded, the State Government shall, with the concurrence of the Chief Justice of the High Court, by notification in the Official Gazette, specify for such Districts, the Court of Session to be a Special Court to try the offences under this Act:

Provided further that the Courts so established or specified shall have powers to take cognizance directly of offences under this Act.

20. Thus in Section 14 (1), for the purpose of providing for speedy trial, the State Government shall, with the concurrence of the Chief Justice of the High Court, by notification in the Official Gazette, establish an Exclusive Special Court for one or more Districts:

21. Provided that in Districts where less number of cases under this Act is recorded, the State Government shall, with the concurrence of the Chief Justice of the High Court, by notification in the Official Gazette, specify for such Districts, the Court of Session to be a Special Court to try the offences under this Act:

22. Provided further that the Courts so established or specified shall have powers to take cognizance directly of offences under this Act in view of amended provisions, exclusive Special Court as well as Special Court shall exercise original jurisdiction to take cognizance of the offence under the Act and proceed with trial of the case not being hindered by Section 193 Cr.P.C. The said Special Courts, were not originally empowered to take cognizance of offence under Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989, directly as the Special Courts were hindered by Section 193 of Code of Criminal Procedure as already pointed out under the Special Court notified as per first proviso to Section 14 of the Act, as amended, has got power to directly take cognizance without there being any need for committal.

23. Therefore, the question as to whether the Magistrate can directly take cognizance of offence punishable under SC/ST Act or it is the Special Court constituted under Section 14 of the Act, 1989 which has the jurisdiction to take cognizance in view of amendment made in provisions of SC/ST Act, Amended Act 2015 (Act No.1 of 2016). The reply thereto is that Magistrate has absolutely no jurisdiction to entertain and take cognizance of offence under Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989. Vide second proviso to Section 14 (1) of SC/ST Act, Act No.1 of 2016, the Special Courts constituted under the aforesaid Act have been empowered to take cognizance of offence directly under this Act with effect from 1.1.2016 and therefore, the powers vested under Section 190 (1) (a) Cr.P.C. has come to an end. Answered accordingly.

24. The second question for consideration before this Court is as to whether the Special Judge can treat the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. as a complaint case or not.

25. To determine the aforesaid question, it is necessary to go through Rule 5 of the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Rules 1995.

5. INFORMATION TO POLICE OFFICER IN-CHARGE OF A POLICE STATION:

(1) Every information relating to the commission of an offence under the Act, if given orally to an officer in-charge of a police station shall be reduced to writing by him or under his direction, and be read over to the informant, and every such information, whether given in writing or reduced to writing as aforesaid, shall be signed by the persons giving it, and the substance thereof shall be entered in a book to be maintained by that police station.

(2) A copy of the information as so recorded under sub-rule (1) above shall be given forthwith, free of cost, to the informant.

(3) Any person aggrieved by a refusal on the part of an officer in-charge of a police station to record the information referred to in sub-rule (1) may send the substance of such information, in writing and by post, to the Superintendent of Police concerned who after investigation either by himself or by a police officer not below the rank of Deputy Superintendent of Police, shall make an order in writing to the officer in-charge of the concerned police station to enter the substance of that information to be entered in the book to be maintained by the police station.

26. In case, no action is taken then the aggrieved person has a right for redressal of his grievance under Section 15 (9) of the SC/SC Act by filing a complaint before the Special/Exclusive Special Judge, as the case may be, who shall refer the complaint to the supervisory Administrative Committee framed under Section 21 (iv) of the SC/ST Act read with Rule 4(4) and Rule 17 of the SC/ST Rules, which was replaced by G.S.R. 424 (E) dated 14.04.2016 (w.e.f 14.04.2016)

27. Section 18 A (1) (a) Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act 1989 as amended by the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Amendment Act 2018, is in the following terms:-

"18A. No enquiry or approval required-- (1) For the purpose of this Act (a) preliminary enquiry shall not be required for registration of a First Information Report against any person."

28. As no enquiry or approval is required for registration of the first information report against any person under Section 18A of the Act and in case F.I.R. is not lodged, Section 4 (1) of the Act provides for punishment of a public servant in neglecting its duties, after following the procedure as has been provided under Section 5 (3) of the Rules. Section 4 (1) of the Act reads as under:-

"4(1) Whoever, being a public servant but not being a member of a Scheduled Caste or a Scheduled Tribe, willfully neglects his duties required to be performed by him under this Act and the rules made thereunder, shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than six months but which may extend to one year."

4(2) The duties of the public servant to in sub-section (1) shall include--

(a) to read out to an informant the information given orally, and reduced to writing by the officer in-charge of the police station, before taking the signature of the informant;

(b) to register a complaint or a First Information Report under this Act and other relevant provisions and to register it under appropriate sections of this Act;

(c) to furnish a copy of the information so recorded forthwith to the informant;

(d) to record the statement of the victims or witnesses;

(e) to conduct the investigation and file charge sheet in the Special Court or the Exclusive Special Court within a period of sixty days, and to explain the delay if any, in writing.

(f) to correctly prepare, frame and translate any document or electronic record;

(g) to perform any other duty specified in this Act or the rules made thereunder.

29. Section 4 (3) of the Act provides that the cognizance in respect of any dereliction of duty referred to in sub-section (2) by a public servant shall be taken by the Special Court or Exclusive Special Court and shall give direction for penal proceedings against such public servant.

30. Considering Rule 5 of the SC/ST Rules 1995 as amended by The Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Amendment Act, 2018, it is borne out that every information relating to commission of an offence under the Act, if given orally to an officer incharge of the police station shall be reduced to writing since there is no bar under Section 18A of the Act that preliminary enquiry or approval is required for registration of the first information report and on refusal to reduce in writing such information by the police officer, the aggrieved person may move an application in writing and by post to the concerned Superintendent of Police, who may either by himself or by a police officer not below the rank of Deputy Superintendent of Police shall make an order in writing to the officer incharge of the concerned police station to enter the substance of information to be entered in the book to be maintained by that police station. Further, in case the grievance is not redressed, the aggrieved person may approach the Special Court or the Exclusive Special Court against the public servant for punishing him under Section 4 of the Act, for neglecting his duties by a public servant but not being member of Scheduled Caste or a Scheduled Tribe. Even if the grievance is not redressed, the aggrieved person may file a complaint under Section 15 (9) of SC/ST Act before the Special/Exclusive Special Judge, who shall refer the matter before the Administrative Committee formed under Section 21 (iv) of SC/ST Act Rules 4 (4) and Rule (17) of the SC/ST Rules for punishing the officer in charge as per provisions of Section 4 of the Act.

31. Therefore, the answer to the second question that the Special Judge can treat the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. as a complaint case or not? Answer is "No" in view of the Rule 5 (1) of the amended Act.

32. The case in hand is that in Criminal Misc. Application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. No. - 12864 of 2021, which is the leading case, the learned Special Judge (SC/ST) Act

Sonebhadra has treated the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. as a complaint case vide order dated 19.01.2021, which in the opinion of the Court is not tenable in the eyes of law.

33. The second and third case being Criminal Misc. Application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. Nos. 27758 & 27812 of 2021, wherein the accused persons/applicants have challenged the summoning order dated 19.10.2021 & 29.10.2021 passed by learned Spacial Judge (SC/ST Act), Amroha and District Jalaun, the proceedings are not maintainable so far as it relates to non-registering of the F.I.R. against the accused persons.

34. In the connected fourth case before this Court is Criminal Misc. Application under Section 482 No. 4382 of 2012, the complainant has challenged the order 12.10.2021 passed by learned Special Judge (SC/ST Act) Allahabad by which the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. has been rejected. That order, in the considered opinion of the Court is also not sustainable.

35. Thus the aforesaid four applications are allowed and the proceedings of the aforesaid case are quashed with liberty to the first informant/complainant to approach the concerned Station House Officer for registration of their information in writing as has been provided under Section 5 (1) of the Rules and in case the said information is not reduced in writing by the concerned Police Officer, the first informant/complainant may move an appropriate application before the concerned Superintendent of Police under Section 5 (3) of the Rules and it is expected that the Superintendent of Police would comply Section 5 (3) of the Rules.

36. It goes without saying that the subject matter of Criminal Misc. Application U/S 482 No. - 6688 of 2022 as well as Criminal Revision No. - 2363 of 2021 are different from the aforesaid applications and it appears that due to inadvertence both of them have been wrongly connected and thus the same are being un-tagged and are directed to listed as fresh on 13.04.2022 before appropriate Court.

assisted Sri Ratnendu Kumar Singh, learned AGA for the State.

2. The present petition under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed seeking quashing of the charge sheet dated 11.5.2022 under Sections 171-F, 506, 186, 189 and 153-A and 120-B IPC in pursuance to the FIR dated 3.3.2022 registered at Crime No.97 of 2002, initially registered under Sections 506 and 171-F IPC at Police Station Kotwali Mau, District Mau. Further prayer has been made for quashing of the order of cognizance and summoning dated 23.5.2022 passed by the Special Judge (MP/MLA Court)/Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Mau in Criminal Case No.9720 of 2022.

3. The FIR in question came to be registered after petitioner no.1 made a statement in a public meeting during his election campaign for Member of Legislative Assembly from Mau Sadar Constituency. Petitioner No.1 was contesting the said elicitation on the ticket of Suheldev Bhartiya Samaj Party in March, 2022. The offending part of the statement made by petitioner no.1 would read "समाजवादी पार्टी के राष्ट्रीय अध्यक्ष श्री अखिलेश यादव जी से यह कहकर आया हूँ कि 6 महीने तक किसी का ट्रान्सफर पोस्टिंग नहीं होगी। भइया जो यहां है वो यहां ही रहेगा पहले हिसाब किताब होगा उसके बाद उसके जाने के सर्टीफिकेट पर मुहर लगाया जायेगा।"

4. The main contention of the learned counsel for the petitioners is that the said statement by no stretch of imagination would constitute an offence under Section 153-A IPC. It has been further submitted that to constitute an offence under Section 153-A IPC, there must be an intention of the person making the statement to create disorder or to incite people to violence.

Even if it is believed that petitioner no.1 had made the said statement, the statement was directed towards the Government people and not against any member, religion, racial, language or regional groups or castes or communities. It is further submitted that if the provisions of Section 153-A IPC are considered in proper perspective, the said offence would not get attracted against the petitioners for making the offending statement and, therefore, taking cognizance for an offence under Section 153-A IPC against the petitioners is wholly illegal and to that extent at least the cognizance order is bad in law and is liable to be set aside.

5. In support of his said contention, learned counsel for the petitioners has placed reliance on the following judgments:-

1. Balwant Singh and another Vs. State of Punjab; (1995) 3 SCC 214;

2. Bilal Ahmed Kaloo Vs. State of A.P.; (1997) 7 SCC 431;

3. Manzar Sayeed Khan Vs. State of Maharashtra and another; (2007) 5 SCC 1;

4. Amish Devgan Vs. Union of India and others; (2021) 1 SCC 1; and

5. Shreya Singhal Vs. Union of India; (2015) 5 SCC 1."

6. On the other hand, Sri M.C. Chaturvedi, learned Additional Advocate General has submitted that the investigating officer has prepared a report, which was sent to the Government for sanction of the prosecution against petitioner No.1 on 3.5.2022. Thereafter, the charge sheet has been submitted against both the petitioners on 11.5.2022. The Government had sanctioned the prosecution against both the petitioners on 24.8.2022 and the said sanction order has been incorporated in the case diary of Parcha No.CD-11 and forwarded the same on 02.09.2022.

7. It has been further submitted that petitioner no.1 is having seven similar cases, including the present one, and petitioner no.2 is having to his credit five criminal case, including the present one. After making the offending statement by petitioner no.1, the Returning Officer of 356 Mau Assembly Constituency sent a notice dated 4.3.2022 to petitioner no.1 calling upon him to furnish his reply as to why action should not be taken against him under the relevant provisions of Representation of Peoples Act, 1951. However, petitioner no.1 did not give any reply to the said notice issued by the Returning Officer. The Election Commission of India had barred petitioner no.1 from holding any public meeting, public procession, public rallies, road shows and interviews, public utterances in media (electronic, print, social media) etc. in connection with the ongoing election for 24 hours from 7 PM from 4.3.2022.

8. Learned Additional Advocate General has further submitted that the offending statement made by petitioner no.1 was not only directed against the Government machinery, but it was also directed against the law abiding and peace-loving citizens/communities, who were feeling protected under the then government in the State from the atrocities and crimes of petitioner no.1 and his family and other co-accused. He has also submitted that the State Government had given free hand to the State machinery to handle law and order without being influenced from any political pressure. The Government officials had acted as per law without being coming under pressure from any quarter and, therefore, the residents of the said constituency, who were not supporters of the petitioners, were threatened and made insecure by giving threats to the government officials. Not only the Government officials but all those who were feeling safe and secure, felt tremors and fear in their spines by the open threat given by the petitioners. He has, therefore, submitted that the offence under Section 153-A IPC is clearly attracted in the facts and circumstances of the case.

9. Learned Additional Advocate General has also submitted that the gesture, language and the context are relevant to see whether the offence under Section 153-A IPC is attracted or not. If one looks at the video recording of the statement given by petitioner no.1 in public meeting, the warning was not against the Government officials, but it was against all those who were feeling protected and saved under the then State government. Petitioner no.1 was sure that the Government of Samajwadi Party lead by Sri Akhilesh Yadav would occupy the seat of power in the State of Uttar Pradesh and, therefore, he made the threatening statement, which has propensity to disturb the public order. He, therefore, submits that the offence under Section 153-A IPC is clearly attracted against the petitioners and no interfere is required by this Court to quash the proceedings, and the petition being devoid of merit and substance, is liable to be dismissed.

10. I have considered the submissions advanced by the learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

11. For the sake of argument, Section 153-A IPC reads as under:-

"153A. Promoting enmity between different groups on ground of religion, race, place of birth, residence, language, etc., and doing acts prejudicial to maintenance of harmony.--(1) Whoever--

(a) by words, either spoken or written, or by signs or by visible representations or otherwise, promotes or attempts to promote, on grounds of religion, race, place of birth, residence, language, caste or community or any other ground whatsoever, disharmony or feelings of enmity, hatred or ill will between different religious, racials, language or regional groups or castes or communities, or

(b) commits any act which is prejudicial to the maintenance of harmony between different religious, racial, language or regional groups or castes or communities, and which disturbs or is likely to disturb the public tranquillity,

(c) organizes any exercise, movement, drill or other similar activity intending that the participants in such activity shall use or be trained to use criminal force or violence or knowing it to be likely that the participants in such activity will use or be trained to use criminal force or violence, or participates in such activity intending to use or be trained to use criminal force or violence or knowing it to be likely that the participants in such activity will use or be trained to use criminal force or violence, against any religious, racial, language or regional group or caste or community and such activity for any reason whatsoever causes or is likely to cause fear or alarm or a feeling of insecurity amongst members of such religious, racial, language or regional group or caste or community, shall be punished with imprisonment which may extend to three years, or with fine, or with both.

(2) Offence committed in place of worship, etc.--Whoever commits an offence specified in sub-section (1) in any place of worship or in any assembly engaged in the performance of religious worship or religious ceremonies, shall be punished with imprisonment which may extend to five years and shall also be liable to fine."

12. The offence under Section 153-A IPC may get attracted where a person by words, either spoken, or written, or by signs or by visible representations or otherwise, promotes or attempts to promote, on grounds of religion, race, place of birth, residence, language, caste or community or any other ground whatsoever, disharmony or feelings of enmity, hatred or ill will between different religious, racial, language or regional groups or castes or communities or commits any act which is prejudicial to the maintenance of harmony between different religious, racial, language or regional groups or castes or communities, and which disturbs or is likely to disturb the public tranquillity. If the statement or the sign or representation has propensity to incite people to violence, the offence under Section 153-A IPC gets attracted.

13. The Supreme Court in the case of Balwant Singh (Supra) has held that the intention to cause disorder or incite people to violence is the sine qua non of the offence under Section 153-A IPC and the prosecution has to prove the existence of mens rea in order to succeed. Paragraph 9 of the said judgment would be apt to extract, which reads as under:-

"9. Insofar as the offence under Section 153-A IPC is concerned, it provides for punishment for promoting enmity between different groups on grounds of religion, race, place of birth, residence, language, caste or community or any other ground whatsoever or brings about disharmony or feeling of hatred or ill-will between different religious, racial, linguistic or regional groups or castes or communities. In our opinion only where the written or spoken words have the tendency or intention of creating public disorder or disturbance of law and order or affect public tranquillity, that the law needs to step in to prevent such an activity. The facts and circumstances of this case unmistakably show that there was no disturbance or semblance of disturbance of law and order or of public order or peace and tranquillity in the area from where the appellants were apprehended while raising slogans on account of the activities of the appellants. The intention to cause disorder or incite people to violence is the sine qua non of the offence under Section 153-A IPC and the prosecution has to prove the existence of mens rea in order to succeed. In this case, the prosecution has not been able to establish any mens rea on the part of the appellants, as envisaged by the provisions of Section 153-A IPC, by their raising casually the three slogans a couple of times. The offence under Section 153-A IPC is, therefore, not made out."

14. Thus, the question of proving mens rea to incite people to violence or cause disorder is to be proved during trial by leading evidence by the prosecution. However, if prima facie, the act, sign or words has propensity to disturb the public order or incite the people to violence, the proceedings cannot be quashed at the threshold.

15. The Supreme Court in the case of Bilal Ahmed Kaloo (supra) by placing reliance on the judgement of Balwant Singh (supra) has again reiterated that mens rea is an equally necessary postulate for the offence under Section 153-A IPC and same can be discerned from the words "with intent to create to promote or which is likely to create or promote". Paragraphs 10 and 11 of the said judgement which would be relevant, would read as under:-

"10. Section 153-A was amended by the Criminal and Election Laws (Amendment) Act, 1969 (Act No. 35 of 1969). It consists of three clauses of which clauses (a) and (b) alone are material now. By the same Amending Act sub-section (2) was added to Section 505 of the Penal Code, 1860. Clauses (a) and (b) of Section 153-A and Section 505(2) are extracted below:

"153-A. Promoting enmity between different groups on grounds of religion, race, place of birth, residence, language, etc., and doing acts prejudicial to maintenance of harmony.--(1) Whoever—

(a) by words, either spoken or written, or by signs or by visible representations or otherwise, promotes or attempts to promote, on grounds of religion, race, place of birth, residence, language, caste or community or any other ground whatsoever, disharmony or feelings of enmity, hatred or ill will between different religious, racial, language or regional groups or castes or communities, or

(b) commits any act which is prejudicial to the maintenance of harmony between different religious, racial, language or regional groups or castes or communities, and which disturbs or is likely to disturb the public tranquillity, or

shall be punished with imprisonment which may extend to three years, or with fine, or with both.

505. (2) Statements creating or promoting enmity, hatred or ill will between classes.--Whoever makes, publishes or circulates any statement or report containing rumour or alarming news with intent to create or promote, or which is likely to create or promote, on grounds of religion, race, place of birth, residence, language, caste or community or any other ground whatsoever, feelings of enmity, hatred or ill will between different religious, racial, language or regional groups or castes or communities, shall be punished with imprisonment which may extend to three years, or with fine, or with both."

The common ingredient in both the offences is promoting feeling of enmity, hatred or ill will between different religious or racial or linguistic or regional groups or castes or communities. Section 153-A covers a case where a person by "words, either spoken or written, or by signs or by visible representations" promotes or attempts to promote such feeling. Under Section 505(2), promotion of such feelings should have been done by making and publishing or circulating any statement or report containing rumour or alarming news.

11. This Court has held in Balwant Singh v. State of Punjab [(1995) 3 SCC 214 : 1995 SCC (Cri) 432] that mens rea is a necessary ingredient for the offence under Section 153-A. Mens rea is an equally necessary postulate for the offence under Section 505(2) also as could be discerned from the words "with intent to create or promote or which is likely to create or promote" as used in that sub-section."

16. In the case of Manzar Sayeed Khan (supra), it has been held that the intention to cause disorder or incite the people to violence is the sine qua non of the offence under Section 153-A IPC and the prosecution has to prove prima facie the existence of mens rea on the part of the accused. The question of proof would arise only at the time of trial and the same can be proved by leading the necessary evidence. Paragraph 16 of the said judgement which would be relevant, would read as under:-

"16. Section 153-A IPC, as extracted hereinabove, covers a case where a person by words, either spoken or written, or by signs or by visible representations or otherwise, promotes or attempts to promote, disharmony or feelings of enmity, hatred or ill will between different religious, racial, language or regional groups or castes or communities or acts prejudicial to the maintenance of harmony or is likely to disturb the public tranquillity. The gist of the offence is the intention to promote feelings of enmity or hatred between different classes of people. The intention to cause disorder or incite the people to violence is the sine qua non of the offence under Section 153-A IPC and the prosecution has to prove prima facie the existence of mens rea on the part of the accused. The intention has to be judged primarily by the language of the book and the circumstances in which the book was written and published. The matter complained of within the ambit of Section 153-A must be read as a whole. One cannot rely on strongly worded and isolated passages for proving the charge nor indeed can one take a sentence here and a sentence there and connect them by a meticulous process of inferential reasoning."

17. Preamble to the Constitution consciously puts together fraternity assuring dignity of the individual and the unity and integrity of the Nation which are linked; one in the form of rights of individuals; and other in the form of individual's obligation to others to ensure unity and integrity of the Nation. The unity and integrity of the Nation cannot be overlooked and slighted, as acts that promote or are likely to promote divisiveness, alienation and schematism do directly and indirectly impinge on diversity and pluralism. When such acts are done with the objective and intent to cause public disorder or to demean dignity of the targeted groups, they have to be dealt with as per law and such an act would attract the offence under Section 153-A IPC.

18. In the case of Amish Devgan (supra) while explaining the context of Section 153-A IPC regarding public tranquillity, the Supreme Court in paragraph 98 of the said judgement held as under:-

"98. In the context of Section 153-A(1)(b) we would hold that public tranquillity, given the nature of the consequence in the form of punishment of imprisonment of up to three years, must be read in a restricted sense synonymous with public order and safety and not normal law and order issues that do not endanger the public interest at large. It cannot be given the widest meaning so as to fall foul of the requirement of reasonableness which is a constitutional mandate. Clause (b) of Section 153-A(1), therefore, has to be read accordingly to satisfy the constitutional mandate. We would interpret the words "public tranquillity" in clause (b) to mean ordre publique a French term that means absence of insurrection, riot, turbulence or crimes of violence and would also include all acts which will endanger the security of the State, but not acts which disturb only serenity, and are covered by the third and widest circle of law and order. Public order also includes acts of local significance embracing a variety of conduct destroying or menacing public order. Public order in clause (2) of Article 19 nor the statutory provisions make any distinction between the majority and minority groups with reference to the population of the particular area though as we have noted above this may be of some relevance. When we accept the principle of local significance, as a sequitur we must also accept that majority and minority groups could have, in a given case, reference to a local area."

19. Further, in paragraphs 104 to 106 of the aforesaid judgement, the Supreme Court held as under:-

*"104. The word "attempt", though used in Sections 153-A and 295-A of the Penal Code, has not been defined. However, there are judicial interpretations that an "attempt to constitute a crime" is an act done or forming part of a series of acts which would constitute its actual commission but for an interruption. An attempt is short of actual causation of crime and more than mere preparation. In Aman Kumar v. State of Haryana [Aman Kumar v. State of Haryana, (2004) 4 SCC 379 : 2004 SCC (Cri) 1266] it was held that an attempt is to be punishable because every attempt, although it falls short of success, must create alarm, which by itself is an injury, and the moral guilt of the offender is same as if he had succeeded. Moral guilt must be united to injury in order to justify punishment.*

105. Further, in State of Maharashtra v. Mohd. Yakub [State of Maharashtra v. Mohd. Yakub, (1980) 3

SCC 57 : 1980 SCC (Cri) 513] this Court observed : (SCC p. 62, para 13)

"13. ... What constitutes an "attempt" is a mixed question of law and fact, depending largely upon the circumstances of a particular case. "Attempt" defies a precise and exact definition. Broadly speaking, all crimes which consist of the commission of affirmative acts are preceded by some covert or overt conduct which may be divided into three stages. The first stage exists when the culprit first entertains the idea or intention to commit an offence. In the second stage, he makes preparations to commit it. The third stage is reached when the culprit takes deliberate overt act or step to commit the offence. Such overt act or step in order to be "criminal" need not be the penultimate act towards the commission of the offence. It is sufficient if such act or acts were deliberately done, and manifest a clear intention to commit the offence aimed, being reasonably proximate to the consummation of the offence."

106. On the scope of proximity, it was elucidated in State of Maharashtra v. Mohd. Yakub [State of Maharashtra v. Mohd. Yakub, (1980) 3 SCC 57: 1980 SCC (Cri) 513] that the measure of proximity is not in relation to time and place but in relation to intention."

20. Considering the context and the intention with which the offending words were spoken in a public meeting, at this stage it cannot be said that the offence under Section 153-A IPC is not attracted against the petitioners. The scope of power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is limited, and it should be exercised in exceptional cases where the complaint or charge sheet does not disclose any offence. Whether the offence under Section 153-A IPC gets attracted or not, would depend on the quality of evidence lead by the prosecution during trial. However, at this stage, this Court does not find any ground to interfere with the ongoing proceedings or the charge sheet.

21. Thus, the petition being devoid of merit and substance, is hereby dismissed. Interim order, if any, stands vacated. Trial court to proceed accordingly.

A. Criminal Law – Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 – Section 482 – Inherent power – Scope of interference – Interlocutory order, when can be interfered with – Alternative remedy, how far create bar in exercising inherent power – Held, there is no total ban on the exercise of inherent power where abuse of the process of the court or other extraordinary situation warrants exercise of inherent jurisdiction. The limitation is self-restraint, nothing more – Availability of alternative remedy of criminal revision under Section 397 Cr.P.C. by itself cannot be a good ground to dismiss an application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. – Prabhu Chawla's case relied upon. (Para 12 and 14)

B. Criminal law – Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 – Section 156(3) – Allegation of committing dacoity by taking away the laptop, phone etc. was leveled – Question of recovery and collection of incriminating evidence is involved – However, application u/s 156(3) was treated as the complaint case – Validity challenged – Held, in the case in hand, CCTV footage was required to be retrieved and recovery of the materials taken away by the prospective accused persons was also required. No doubt that the recovery of the aforesaid materials was not possible to be done by the private complainant without the aid of the police – The learned Magistrate, while passing the impugned order, ignored the settled legal position in disposal of the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. and ordered to treat it as complaint. (Delivered by Hon'ble Nalin Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. By way of present Application under Section 482 Cr.P.C., prayer has been made to quash the impugned order dated 3.10.2022 passed by Special Chief Judicial Magistrate, Varanasi in Case No.207529 of 2022 (Jafar Abbas Zaidi Vs. Ali Abbas Zaidi and others) whereby application under section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. of the applicant has been treated as complaint.

2. The brief facts of the case, as narrated in the affidavit, are as follows :

3. On 21.8.2021 at about 7:00 P.M., the opposite parties no.2, 3 and 4, in order to commit offence, alongwith 10 - 12 unknown persons entered into the house of the applicant and his laptop, oven, iron, wrist watch, handcam, digital camera, clothes and other costly items worth Rs.2,50,000/- were taken away by committing dacoity and further, sofa, chauki and other furniture were also damaged and thrown by the opposite parties. When the incident was not registered at the police station, application under section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. was filed before the Magistrate concerned. Report from the police station was called for which narrated that the applicant and opposite party no.2 are real brothers and the house in dispute was divided amongst three brothers, but opposite party no.2 with intention to grab the property claims that her mother had executed Hibbanama of the half portion of the entire house and he had been appointed as Mutwalli and the same had got registered in the Nagar Nigam, Varanasi. However, the said application was rejected by the Court of Magistrate.

4. After rejection of the aforesaid application, criminal revision no.273 of 2021 was preferred, which was allowed by the revisional court vide order dated 26.9.2022 and the matter was remitted back to the Magistrate Court to reconsider the matter in the light of the observations made in the revisional order. Subsequently, in pursuance of the order dated 26.9.2022, the matter was reheard and this time by way of impugned order, the application under section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. was ordered to be treated as complaint vide impugned order dated 03.10.2022, which is under challenge.

5. The learned counsel for the applicant submits that the impugned order suffers from grave error of law and the jurisdictional error was also involved therein. The learned trial court did not take into account the observations and directions given by the revisional court. The said application has been ordered to be treated as complaint merely on the ground that the applicant is having knowledge of the entire facts and evidence in respect thereof can be adduced by him at his own label which was a wrong notion. It is further submitted that from the very perusal of the said application, a cognizable offence is made out, but the learned trial court being misled and misrepresented by police report and without there being due application of mind, has passed the impugned order, which is against the settled preposition of law.

6. The facts alleged in the aforesaid application clearly show that the matter was requiring investigation by the police and the applicant was not competent to adduce all the evidence relating to the offence himself. The learned trial court did not even pay any attention to the direction of the revisional court to take into account the CCTV footage of the spot. The reasons behind the impugned order given by the learned Magistrate Court are totally contrary to the evidence available on record and on the aforesaid ground, a prayer to quash the impugned order dated 3.10.2022 passed by Special Chief Judicial Magistrate, Varanasi has been made.

7. The said application has been vehemently opposed by the learned A.G.A. mainly on two grounds. Firstly, the order of the Magistrate treating the application under section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. as complaint cannot be challenged by way of an application under section 482 Cr.P.C. and the applicant ought to have filed criminal revision against the said order. Secondly, the learned Magistrate has committed no error in passing the impugned order because there was nothing in the application under section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. which could be investigated by the police and the applicant / complainant could easily collect all the relevant evidence himself. There is no legal or jurisdictional error in the impugned order. The Magistrate is not bound to pass an order for investigation on each and every application under section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. which discloses the commission of a cognizable offence, rather it is well competent to treat such an application as a complaint also and to proceed under the provisions of Chapter XV of Cr.P.C. even if a cognizable offence is made out from the perusal of the aforesaid application.

8. Learned counsel for the applicant has relied upon the decision of the three Judges Bench in the case of Prabhu Chawla Vs. State of Rajasthan and Another, (2016) 16 Supreme Court Cases 30 in respect of the first point. In this matter, the point in issue was whether the inherent power of the High Court under Section 482 Cr.P.C. stands repelled when the revisional court power under Section 397 Cr.P.C. overlaps.

9. In this matter, in view of the judgment of Rajasthan High Court in the case of Sanjay Bhandari Vs. State of Rajasthan, (2009) (1) CrLR (Raj.) 282 the High Court of Judicature for Rajasthan at Jodhpur dismissed the petitions preferred by the appellants under Section 482 of Cr.P.C. holding that availability of remedy under Section 397 Cr.P.C. would make a petition under Section 482 Cr.P.C. not maintainable and the same was challenged.

10. Hon'ble the Apex Court after hearing the parties found that the impugned judgments were not sustainable and also discussed the law laid down in Mohit alias Sonu and Another Vs. State of U.P. and another (2013) 7 SCC 789 and held like this.

"7. As a sequel we are constraint to hold that the Division Bench, particularly in paragraph 28, in the case of Mohit alias Sonu and another (supra) in respect of inherent power of the High Court in Section 482 of Cr.P.C. does not state the law correctly. We record our respectful disagreement."

11. It will be relevant to note here that in Mohit alias Sonu (supra), it was held that when an order under assail is not interlocutory in nature and is amenable to the revisional court jurisdiction of the High Court, then there should be a bar in invoking the inherent jurisdiction of the High Court. It would also be pertinent to mention here that the matter was referred and decided by the larger Bench of the Hon'ble Apex Court for resolving the conflict in Prabhu Chawla case (supra).

12. It was held in Prabhu Chawla case (supra) that there is no total ban on the exercise of inherent power where abuse of the process of the court or other extraordinary situation warrants exercise of inherent jurisdiction. The limitation is self-restraint, nothing more. The policy of the law is clear that interlocutory orders, pure and simple, should not be taken up to the High Court resulting in unnecessary litigation and delay. At the other extreme, final orders are clearly capable of being considered in exercise of inherent power, if glaring injustice stares the court in the face.

13. Hon'ble the Apex Court, discussing several laws promulgated in Dhariwal Tobacco Products Ltd. Vs. State of Maharashtra, (2009) 2 SCC 370, R.P. Kapur Vs. State of Punjab, AIR 1960 Supreme Court 866, Som Mittal Vs. State of Karnataka, (2008) 3 SCC 574, Raj Kapoor Vs. State, (1980) SCC (Cri) 72, Madhu Limaye Vs. State of Maharashtra, 1978 SCC (Cri) 10, finally held that -

"6. In our considered view any attempt to explain the law further as regards the issue relating to inherent power of High Court under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is unwarranted.....We venture to add a further reason in support. Since Section 397 Cr.P.C. is attracted against all orders other than interlocutory, a contrary view would limit the availability of inherent powers under Section 482 Cr.P.C. only to petty interlocutory orders! A situation wholly unwarranted and undesirable."

14. The final verdict given by the Hon'ble Apex Court in Prabhu Chawla case (supra) was that availability of alternative remedy of criminal revision under Section 397 Cr.P.C. by itself cannot be a good ground to dismiss an application under Section 482 Cr.P.C.

15. The aforesaid view was further reiterated in Vijay Vs. State of Maharashtra, (2017) 13 SCC 317 and it was held that as Section 397 Cr.P.C. is attracted against all orders other than interlocutory, a contrary view would limit availability of inherent powers under Section 482 Cr.P.C. only to petty interlocutory orders. In view of settled law, mere availability of alternative remedy cannot be a ground to disentitle relief under Section 482 Cr.P.C. and the first issue finds its reply in this manner.

16. In the present matter, the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. has been ordered to be registered as complaint. The question arises before this Court as to whether the Magistrate was competent to treat the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. as complaint or he was bound by law only to pass an order on the said application for the investigation by the police.

17. In Madhao Vs. State of Maharashtra, (2013) 5 SCC 615, it was held -

"13. When a Magistrate receives a complaint he is not bound to take cognizance if the facts alleged in the complaint disclose the commission of an offence. The magistrate has discretion in the matter. If on a reading of the complaint, he finds that the allegations therein disclose a cognizable offence and the forwarding of the complaint to the police for investigation under Section 156 (3) will be conducive to justice and save the valuable time of the Magistrate from being wasted in enquiring into a matter which was primarily the duty of the police to investigate, he will be justified in adopting that course as an alternative to taking cognizance of the offence itself."

18. A Full Bench of this Court in the case of Ram Babu Gupta Vs. State of U.P., 2001 SCC OnLine All 264 has observed as hereinbelow:

"Coming to the second question noted above it is to be at once stated that a provision empowering a court to act in a particular manner and a provision creating a right for an aggrieved person to approach a Court or authority, must be understood distinctively and should not be mixed up. While Ss. 154, 155 sub-section (1) and (2) of 156, Cr.P.C. confer right on an aggrieved person to reach the police, 156(3) empowers a Magistrate to act in a particular manner in a given situation. Therefore, it is not possible to hold that where a bare application is moved before Court only praying for exercise of powers under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C., it will remain an application only and would not be in the nature of a complaint. It has been noted above that the Magistrate has to always apply his mind on the allegations in the complaint where he may use his powers under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. In this connection it may be immediately added that where in an application, a complainant states facts which constitute cognizable offence but makes a defective prayer, such an application will not cease to be a complaint nor can the Magistrate refuse to treat it as a complaint even though there be no prayer seeking trial of the known or unknown accused. The Magistrate has to deal with such facts as constitute cognizable offence and for all practical purposes even such an application would be a complaint."

19. Also in the case of Sukhwasi Vs. State of U.P., (2007) 59 ACC 730, which has been referred in the impugned order passed by the Special Chief Judicial Magistrate, Varanasi, it has also been clarified by the Division Bench of this Court that the Magistrate, on receiving an application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. and finding that cognizable offence is made out from the perusal of such application, is not bound in all cases to make an order for lodging of the F.I.R. and investigation of the case by police.

20. It has been reiterated that the Magistrate is competent enough to treat an application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. as a complaint. This theory is also governed by the observation made by the Hon'ble Apex Court in Suresh Chandra Jain Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh, (2001) 42 ACC 459 that a Magistrate has an authority to treat an application as a complaint.

21. Hence, indubitably the Magistrate had got jurisdiction to treat an application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. as a complaint and he commits no legal wrong to make such an order.

22. However, in the given facts and circumstances of the present case, it is to be remembered as has been highlighted in a catena of decisions that the Magistrate is always duty bound to apply his judicial mind as to the facts and circumstances mentioned in such application.

23. In Ramdev Food Products (P) Ltd. Vs. State of Gujarat, (2015) 6 SCC 439, the scope of exercise of power under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. by the Magistrate was dealt with and it was explicitly held that : (Pg.456, para 22)

"22.1. The direction under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. is to be issued, only after application of mind by the Magistrate."

24. In this case, reference of Anil Kumar Vs. M.K. Aiyappa, (2013) 10 SCC 705 was made wherein it was observed -

"11. The scope of Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. came up for consideration before this Court in several cases. This Court in Maksud Saiyed case [(2008) 5 SCC 668] examined the requirement of application of mind by the Magistrate before exercising jurisdiction under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. and held that where jurisdiction is exercised on a complaint filed in terms of Section 156 (3) or Section 200 CrPC, the Magistrate is required to apply his mind."

25. This fact can't be oversighted that there may be situations when some kind of question of recovery is involved in the matter and the Magistrate should always keep in mind, if he is going to treat an application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. as a complaint, whether the applicant is in position to himself collect the incriminating evidence and to produce it before the Court.

26. Learned Single Judge of this Court in Gulab Chand Upadhyaya Vs. State of U.P. and others, (2002) 44 ACC 670, issuing some directive guidelines in the matter of the discretion of Magistrate to decide the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C., in a particular manner, held -

"21. The scheme of Cr.P.C. and the prevailing circumstances require that the option to direct the registration of the case and its investigation by the police should be exercised where some "investigation" is required, which is of a nature that is not possible for the private complainant, and which can only be done by the police upon whom statute has conferred the powers essential for investigation, for example

(1) where the full details of the accused are not known to the complainant and the same can be determined only as a result of investigation, or

(2) where recovery of abducted person or stolen property is required to be made by conducting raids or searches of suspected places or persons, or

(3) where for the purpose of launching a successful prosecution of the accused evidence is required to be collected and preserved. To illustrate by example cases may be visualised where for production before Court at the trial (a) sample of blood soaked soil is to be taken and kept sealed for fixing the place of incident; or (b) recovery of case property is to be made and kept sealed; or (c) recovery under Section 27 of the Evidence Act; or (d) preparation of inquest report; or (e) witnesses are not known and have to be found out or discovered through the process of investigation."

27. Later on, another learned Single Judge of this Court in Anmol Singh Vs.

State of U.P. and Others, (2021) 117 ACC 146 reiterated that -

"The magistrate should apply judicial mind while exercising his powers under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. He could not act in a mechanical or casual manner and go on with the complaint after getting the report. The course adopted by the Magistrate i.e. direction to the police for registration of FIR and making investigation or to treat the application as a complaint case, must be supported by reasons. The order must also reflect that the Magistrate on relevant considerations has adopted one of these two modes open to him. Mere mention in the order that he has gone through the complaint and the police investigation is not required or otherwise, would not be sufficient compliance of application of judicial mind while deciding application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C."

28. If the legal position discussed above is translated into the facts and circumstances of the present case and the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. is examined, it is found that there was a specific allegation in the aforesaid application that the prospective accused took away the laptop, phone, press, wrist watch, handcam, digital camera, clothing and other items of the applicant after entering into his room by committing dacoity. It was also mentioned in the aforesaid application that CCTV footage of the said occurrence is also available. In these circumstances, the question of recovery of the items taken away by the prospective accused committing dacoity in the house of the applicant was clearly involved. It was apparently clear that the applicant himself was not capable to make recovery of those items from the possession of the prospective accused and it could be done only by the police and that is why police action into the matter was required. The learned Magistrate completely misguided when he wrongly interpreted principle laid down in the case of Sukhwasi (supra), which although empowers the Magistrate to treat an application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. as a complaint, but also cautions that the order should be made after applying the judicial mind and in appropriate cases.

29. In Gulab Chand Upadhyaya (supra) case, some instances have been mentioned wherein police investigation is necessary to be directed.

30. One more factor has been impressed upon by the learned counsel for the applicant, who has drawn the attention of this Court, to the judgment and order dated 26.09.2022 passed by the Sessions Court, Varanasi whereby the impugned order dated 01.10.2021 passed by the learned Magistrate was set-aside and by allowing the criminal revision no.273 of 2021, the matter was remanded to the Magistrate concerned with a specific direction to rehear the matter in the light of the revisional court order after taking into account the whole evidence on record including the evidence relating to CCTV footage. It is in compliance of the revisional court order, the impugned order dated 03.10.2022 was passed by the learned Magistrate. It is amply clear from the perusal of the impugned order that the learned Magistrate even did not take care of the order of the revisional court and no attempt was made by the learned Magistrate even to make a preliminary inquiry in respect of CCTV footage and this Court does not find any whisper to the effect that the fact and evidence of CCTV footage was considered by the learned

Magistrate in passing the impugned order. Needless to say that the Magistrate was bound to comply with the directions given by the revisional court and its defiance is a matter of violation of judicial discipline.

31. In the case in hand, CCTV footage was required to be retrieved and recovery of the materials taken away by the prospective accused persons was also required. No doubt that the recovery of the aforesaid materials was not possible to be done by the private complainant without the aid of the police. The learned Magistrate, while passing the impugned order, ignored the settled legal position in disposal of the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. and ordered to treat it as complaint, which in the facts and circumstances of the case was not a reasonable and legally sustainable order and thus the second point in issue also finds its answer.

32. On the basis of aforesaid discussion, I find substance in the present application and hence the impugned order dated 03.10.2022 passed by the Special Chief Judicial Magistrate, Varanasi in Case No.207529 of 2022 (Jafar Abbas Zaidi Vs. Ali Abbas Zaidi and others) whereby the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. of the applicant has been ordered to be treated as complaint case, is not sustainable in law and is hereby quashed and the learned Magistrate is further directed to rehear the applicant into the matter after providing reasonable opportunity of hearing to him and also taking into account the directions given by the revisional court vide judgment and order dated 26.09.2022 and the observations of this Court as well.

33. Application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is accordingly allowed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Umesh Chandra Sharma, J.)

1. Heard Sri Manish Tiwari, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Aushim Luthra, learned counsel for the applicants, Sri Pankaj Kumar Tripathi, learned AGA for the State, Sri Udai Chandani, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 and perused the record.

2. This application has been moved to quash the charge sheet dated 20.01.2021 and the order dated 19.10.2022 passed by Additional Sessions Judge in ST No.298 of 2022 (State Vs. Umashankar and others) in Crime No.163 of 2020, under Sections 498-A, 304-B IPC and Section 3/4 DP Act, Police Station Manduadih, District Varanasi pending in the Court of CJM, Varanasi.

3. In the application it has wrongly been mentioned that the case was pending in the Court of CJM, Varanasi virtually the case has been committed to the Court of Sessions Judge and at present the case is pending in the Court of Additional Sessions Judge-IX, Varanasi as ST No.298 of 2022.

4. In brief, facts of the case are that the deceased was the daughter of opposite party no.2, Om Prakash and was the wife of applicant no.1, Om Prakash @ Guddu and daughter-in-law of applicant nos.3 and 4. Applicant no.2 is the real brother of applicant no.1 and applicant no.5, Radha Devi is the wife of applicant no.2.

5. As per this application marriage between the deceased, Nidhi Prakash and applicant no.1, Om Prakash @ Guddu was solemnized on 25.06.2018 without any dowry and charge of additional demand of dowry of a car and Rs.5,00,000/- has been denied by the applicant. It is wrong to say that the deceased was kept hungry due to which her health was significantly deteriorated. It is also wrong that during her pregnancy proper treatment was not provided to her but she was in the treatment and care of Dr. Sarojni Singh. The facts of the FIR are false and frivolous. There is an unexplained, inordinate delay of four days in lodging the FIR. Applicant no.1 belongs to a very well respectable family and is a Grade-II Officer in Indian Railway since 2005. Neither any demand of dowry was made at the time of marriage nor subsequent to it. The deceased was accorded full love and affection at her matrimonial house by the applicants. The relationship between the applicants and the deceased was extremely loving and cordial. Applicant no.1 had also encouraged and supported her in pursuing her B.Ed. degree and had furnished the requisite fees and also helped in obtaining the admit card for the B.Ed. examination. From the text messages annexed as annexure-3 to the affidavit it would reflect that the informant was a man of limited financial means and a man of ordinary prudence would not believe that any demand of dowry was being made by the applicants from such informant. Some text messages between the applicant no.1 and the deceased which being sensitive and personal in nature have not been brought on record but they show that the deceased was leading a happily married life on very good terms with her husband. No FIR or complaint or any proceedings were initiated by the deceased or the informant prior to the lodging of the present FIR. Since the deceased became pregnant, she was receiving thorough and proficient medical attention and supervision on the clinic of Dr. Sarojni Singh, a renowned gynecologist in Varanasi where applicant no.5 Radh Devi, sister-in-law of applicant no.1 and the deceased was also supervised and treated and had delivered her child successfully. Hence, the deceased had been taken there. Allegation of opposite party no.2 that his daughter did not receive adequate treatment and was taken to an inferior clinic is completely baseless and unwarranted.

6. Earlier in the month of March, 2019, the deceased had become pregnant and had promptly received medical treatment at the New Life Hospital, Varanasi where she was being treated by Dr. Neelam Ohari. Knowing the news of pregnancy, her mother came to the house of the applicants and insisted that the first child be born at her parental house and had taken the deceased to the house of the first informant but when certain complications arose, opposite party no.2 took her to Dr. Akanksha Singh but seeing no positive result, applicant no.1 immediately got his wife back home and took her back to Dr. Neelam Ohari. However, it was too late to handle the situation and the deceased had a miscarriage. Hence, when second time the deceased became pregnant, the applicants took no risk and immediately took her to Dr. Sarojni Singh where the deceased was regularly checked up and she was in a good medical condition during the entire course of her pregnancy. The estimated date of delivery was stated to be 04.05.2020.

7. In the night of 02.05.2020 the deceased claimed pain in her abdominal region, hence she was immediately rushed to the hospital of Dr. Sarojni Singh but at that time she was not present. Hence, her daughter Dr. Monisha Singh, gynecologist attended the deceased and opined that she was suffering from gastritis and had given an injection of asiloc after which she felt relief and was taken back to the home of the applicants. The doctor neither suggested nor indicated that the deceased was not in a good physical health and it was not safe for her to have a natural child birth on 04.05.2020, the estimated date of her delivery. The deceased was given regular medical check up during the entire period of her pregnancy and there was no abnormality suggested by the treating doctor regarding the health and condition of either the mother or the fetus and no special investigation was recommended by the treating doctors. The deceased was examined two days prior to the expected date of delivery by Dr. Monisha Singh and no alarms were raised regarding health of the mother or the fetus. It is evident that the septicaemia emanated from an infection post her operation conducted by Dr. Monisha Singh due to her negligent and careless handling of the case. Hence, no fault can be attributed to the applicants regarding the unfortunate demise of his wife. As there was no need for admission of the deceased in the hospital two days prior to her estimated date of delivery, merely in an attempt to generate revenue, the hospital authorities were insisting for admission for no valid reason.

8. Accordingly, applicant no.1 took his wife to the hospital of Dr. Sarojni Singh on 04.05.2020 and as the deceased and the fetus were found to be in a good and healthy condition, no need arose for a cesarean delivery. Neither there was any such urgency nor need insisted upon by the treating doctor. Hence, the deceased underwent a natural birth. It is improper allegation that applicants were against the cesarean delivery and were adamant and insistent upon the natural birth, since applicant no.5 had undergone a cesarean delivery by Dr. Sarojni Singh on account of certain complications during her pregnancy four year prior to the present incident. On 04.05.2020 the deceased was treated by Dr. Monisha Singh who had completed her MS in the year 2019 and was an inexperienced doctor, a doctor on call supervising the delivery of the deceased. When the deceased went in for her delivery she was in good physical health. It appears that owing to the inexperience of Dr. Monisha Singh who operated the deceased without proper preparation and investigation whose negligent in performing her duties, it led to certain complications. The health of the deceased started deteriorating immediately after the delivery procedure. On account of the negligence of the operating doctor, Dr. Monisha Singh, the internal organs (chest, kidney and liver of the deceased) had infection and started deteriorating in a rapid manner and hence the applicants got her admitted at Apex Hospital for better treatment as she was in immediate need of dialysis. However, during treatment the deceased passed away on 07.05.2020 in spite of best efforts of the applicants.

9. The unfortunate demise of the deceased was due to post pregnancy complications owing to the inexperience and negligence of the treating doctor for which applicants cannot be held liable. In the treatment of the deceased approximately Rs.7,00,000/- were remitted by the applicant nos.1 and 3 and under such circumstances no man of ordinary prudence would be tempted to believe that any demand of dowry was being made by either of the accused persons. Hence, it is evident that the FIR is the outcome of malice to harass the applicants and browbeating them into succumbing to his onerous and arbitrary demand for financial gratification under the threat of frivolous criminal litigation.

10. As per post mortem report the deceased died on account of septicaemic shock due to infection of lungs and uterus. Since the death of the deceased took place on account of natural causes ingredients of Section 304-B IPC are absolutely absent.

11. In parcha no.1 of the case diary dated 12.05.2020 the informant has tried to support the prosecution version and has made major development that his daughter was assaulted by the applicants and has also tried to support the contents of the FIR and upon being questioned by the investigating officer (I.O.) he has stated that he was informed by the treating doctor, Dr. S.S. Bohra that abrasion mark on the neck of the deceased was not on account of physical assault but the same was caused by installing the catheter for conducting dialysis on the deceased at the Apex Hospital. In parcha no.2 Smt. Kalawati

Devi has also tried to support the prosecution version in her statement. In parcha no.3 Dr. S.S. Bohra of Apex Hospital stated that at the time of admission of the deceased in the Apex Hospital there were no marks of injury on her body. The urine out put was nil, she was put in dialysis and a catheter was inserted and the abrasion mark on her neck would have been likely caused in the course of removal of dianaplast and in inquest report dated 07.05.2020, cause of death was informed to be sudden cardiac arrest and in which no bodily injury was observed.

12. It is a case of the prosecution that on 30.04.2020 the deceased made a phone call and narrated the physical violence caused by the applicants and also that a recording of said phone conversation was also made though the incident having occurred on 30.04.2020 and recording of such statement is denied and it is also evident that neither such mobile phone was submitted to the police nor alleged call recording has been certified in accordance with Section 65-B of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (in short 'the Act, 1872'). As enshrined by the Apex Court in the Case of Anwar P.V. Vs. P.K. Basheer and others, (2014) 10 SCC 473 and Arjun Panditrao Khotkar Vs. Kailash Kushanrao Gorantyal, (2020) 7 SCC 1 it cannot be considered as evidence.

13. In parcha no.5 statements of Niti Prakash, Dipika and Pintoo were recorded by the I.O. As per parcha no.6 Apoorva Kumar, brother of the deceased provided a pen drive containing a phone call recording of a conversation between the deceased and her mother on 30.04.2020, the pen drive would be secondary evidence and without receiving a certification under Section 65-B of the Act, 1872, the same cannot be considered as evidence.

14. A transcript of telephonic conversation is being attached as annexure no.4 to the affidavit filed in support of the instant application.

15. In parcha no.7, statement of Dr. Monisha Singh has been recorded in which she has tried to cover up her negligence due to which the deceased contacted an infection which spread to her vital organs and the applicants are being made scapegoat in the present case. Dr. Monisha Singh has stated that there were no injury marks on the body of the deceased at the time of her admission. A report was also sought from the Apex Hospital. On keeping the reports of Dr. Monisha Singh and those of Apex Hospital in juxtaposition would lead to severe contradiction. The report of Dr. Manoj Kumar Pathak in the capacity of forensic expert transcribed in parcha no.14 is merely based on insinuations and assumptions which cannot be relied upon on the basis of the photographs of the ante mortem injuries, the post mortem report and the treatment history shown to him and he had not attended the body of the deceased himself.

16. In cases of dialysis, first a vein is chosen for insertion of a dialysis catheter in a right jugular vein which can be ascertained from perusal of point 5.4.2 of the KDIOG (Clinical Practice Guideline for Acute Kidney Injury) which is annexed as annexure-20 to the affidavit.

17. Dr. Prakash Kumar Bharti and S.S. Bohra have given contrary opinion to that offered by Dr. Manoj Kumar Pathak. On the basis of above, it is evident that no criminal offence is made out.

18. The deceased died on account of complications arose during child birth and negligence by the treating doctor. Prior to the present charge sheet a charge sheet dated 07.10.2021 was filed against applicant nos.1, 2 and 3 under Sections 498-A, 304-B IPC and Section 3/4 DP Act. Applicant no.1 had been released on bail vide order dated 01.11.2021 in which the Hon'ble Court observed that the opinion sought from Dr. Pathak was unethical when two professional doctors have two different opinions and it cannot be said with certainty that whose opinion is wrong. The deceased had died as a result of post cesarean operation at Apex Hospital, Varanasi and the death of the deceased has no connection with any dowry being demanded by the applicants. Applicant nos.2 and 3 have also been granted bail on 20.08.2020 and 07.09.2020 respectively. Applicant nos.4 and 5 have also been released on bail by the court below.

19. The applicants preferred a discharge application (annexure-26 to this application) before the Additional Sessions Judge, Varanasi which was rejected on 09.10.2022. The trial court has passed the impugned order in a very mechanical manner and has completely ignored the fact that the said death was due to natural causes and the so called injuries on the body of the deceased had been duly explained during the course of investigation. The applicants are innocent and have been falsely implicated in this case. This case is a gross abuse and misuse of process of law. Applicants are peace loving and law abiding citizens. They have only criminal antecedents owing to the dispute between the family members which has already been explained. Hence, the application be allowed and the charge sheet and the impugned order regarding rejection of discharge application be quashed.

20. All the papers referred in the application have been annexed with the affidavit.

21. Opposite party no.2 has filed counter affidavit to the application and has alleged that the deceased chatted with her family on 30.04.2020 stating that the accused persons will murder her and there is serious threat to her life and requested her family members to protect her from the applicants and other accused persons. This conversation has been attached with the affidavit as annexure-CA-1. On 20.10.2019 also there was a chat between Neetu, Om Prakash (father of the deceased) and Nidhi Prakash in which she disclosed that there is serious threat to her life and liberty from the applicants. It is attached as annexure-CA-2. The police authorities were hand in gloves with the accused and were not registering the FIR and, therefore, several complaints were made to the superior police officer for registration of the FIR by the informant and brother of the deceased which have been annexed as annexure-CA-3. The photographs of the deceased clearly established that abrasions wound is present alongwith a punctured wound which demonstrates strangulation. An expert opinion (annexure-CA-4) was obtained from the professor and head of department of forensic medicine (BHU) which reveals serious ante mortem injuries caused to the deceased by the accused persons. The doctor who conducted the operation has also filed her affidavit on 19.05.2020 whereby it is established beyond doubt that there were ante mortem injuries and there was serious problem faced by the deceased due to the illegal act committed by the accused persons which is annexed as annexure-CA-5. During the inquest serious injuries have been found and that the death is not only due to medical reasons which is annexed as annexure-CA-6. All the aforementioned documents are the part of the case diary and were supplied to the I.O. but the I.O. in connivance with the accused persons, was not investigating properly.

22. The informant, Smt. Kalawati Devi (mother of the deceased) and Apoorva Kumar (brother of the deceased) have disclosed in their statements that the deceased was murdered due to demand of dowry by the applicants. The statement of Ravi Prakash and Rajneesh Kumar, witnesses of inquest has also been annexed as annexure-CA-9. The mobile recording was provided to the I.O. by the brother of the deceased which was made part of the case diary vide paper no.CD-6. The CMO, Varanasi had also requested the Deputy Director, SSPG, Varanasi to constitute a medical board so that the truth about injuries found during the post mortem can be examined which is annexed as annexure-CA-13.

23. It has been further stated that the entire incident comes under the cloud of suspicion but from bare perusal of the expert opinion alongwith post mortem report and the affidavit of Dr. Sarojni Singh, it is evident beyond doubt that the act of the accused persons is clearly establishing the offence under Sections 498-A, 304-B IPC and Section 3/4 DP Act and the presumption under Section 113-B of the Act, 1872 is also established. Serious injuries were caused to the deceased by the accused which is evident and established from the post mortem report. Prior to the death, the deceased had informed her family members that there is likelihood of her murder and the baby which is not yet born. Only by mentioning that applicants belonged to a respectable family does not in any way take away the serious, heinous offence committed by them and when from the very beginning there was demand of dowry and cruelty on the deceased and the relationship of the applicants with the deceased was not at all cordial and loving but the same was cruel just to fulfil the demand as raised time to time by them. The entire fees and expenditure regarding B.Ed. examination was borne by the informant, father of the deceased and no financial help had been accorded by the applicants by any means and a completely concocted and manufactured story has been cropped up in this regard. It is evident from the statement of Dr. Sarojni Singh that the deceased had sustained ante mortem injuries and her condition was very critical when she was brought to the hospital and even though on the insistence of Dr. Sarojni Singh deliberately the applicants avoided her to be taken to intensive care unit of specialized hospital due to which she expired. It was not the act of negligence but sheer deliberation of committing the offence under Section 304-B IPC.

24. It is further stated that the deceased was never taken for medical treatment by the applicants but father of the deceased and her family members were taking care and she was living with them but the applicants forcefully took the deceased back to their house where the deceased sustained miscarriage and the deceased was taken for regular medical check up during pregnancy by her father or her family members and not by the applicants. The said version in this regard is completely unacceptable. The deceased was not suffering from any disease. The applicants never informed the family members of the deceased that they are taking her to the hospital for delivery. After death of the deceased the family members came to know about the same and when they verified the facts from the medical expert and Dr. Sarojni Singh, the entire picture relating to the misdeed of the applicants came to the knowledge of the deponent and his family members. There were serious injuries caused to the deceased by the accused persons which is evident from the post mortem report. From the photographs of the deceased it is clearly established that the abrasion wound was present alongwith a punctured wound which in the opinion demonstrates strangulation which has been confirmed by the professor and head of forensic medicine department of BHU. The doctor who had conducted the operation has filed her affidavit dated 19.05.2020 which established beyond doubt that the ante mortem injuries were in existence and there was serious problem faced by the deceased due to illegal act committed by the accused persons and the expert also specifically stated that it is a case of manual strangulation and serious act of throttling as potential cause of death and there were ante mortem injuries consisting of abrasion and punctured wound. The informant has not manipulated the facts and it has been misinterpreted and manipulated by the applicants. The medical evidence and the expert opinion as well as the last recording of the deceased with her family members and the statements of the witnesses established the case beyond doubt against the applicants. Dr. S.S. Bohra is hand in gloves with the applicants and his testimony is unreliable as the same refuted from the expert opinion. There is no reply by the applicants regarding bodily injuries sustained by the deceased as under what circumstances she sustained injuries and the burden lies upon them under Section 113-B of the Act, 1872.

25. The recording dated 30.04.2020 is an electronic evidence and the same established doubt that the physical violence and threats to the life of the deceased was being done time and again by the applicants and the recording dated 30.04.2020 obtained from the mobile phone of Apoorva Kumar is an electronic evidence in the eyes of law and cannot be overlooked by the Court as the mobile phone of the deceased was tampered and was in the custody of the applicants and the I.O. was hands in gloves with the applicants and till today the mobile of the deceased has not been recovered by the I.O. and the charge sheet has been submitted though the same was the most credential evidence. Dr. Monisha Singh has stated that there was no negligence on her part but the applicants deliberately delayed the process and not even considered the opinions made by the doctors and there were serious injuries caused to the deceased by the accused persons which is quite evident from the post mortem report and the photographs established abrasion alongwith a punctured wound which demonstrates strangulation. The Apex Hospital is a private hospital. On the basis of reports of this hospital it cannot be presumed that the deceased died a natural death while the concerned doctor was a close friend of the applicants and is hand in gloves with them. The report of forensic department of BHU is a substantive, corroborative piece of evidence which clearly established that the deceased was assaulted and had received ante mortem injuries due to which she expired. Since the report and statement of Dr. Prakash Kumar Bharti and Dr. S.S. Bohra were not in consonance with, therefore, expert opinion was obtained from Forensic Science Department of BHU. The doctor who conducted the operation in her affidavit dated 19.05.2020 stated that the deceased was facing serious problems due to the illegal act of the accused persons. She has specifically stated that it is a case of manual strangulation and serious act of throttling as potential cause of death. On the basis of above, a prayer has been made to dismiss this application filed by the applicants.

26. The applicants have filed rejoinder affidavit and have denied the contents of the counter affidavit and have alleged that the alleged conversation dated 30.04.2020 does not find any mention in the FIR, it has been added through statement under Section 161 CrPC as an afterthought more so the same has not been certified in accordance with Section 65-B of the Act, 1872. Hence, the same cannot be considered as evidence. The whatsapp chats have again not been certified in accordance with Section 65-B. The deceased had died due to post pregnancy complications and the charge sheet has been submitted which shows that the police was actually hand in gloves with the informant. The ante mortem injuries were caused due to cesarean operation and abrasion on the neck was due to the use of catheter which was inserted for the purpose of dialysis. There was no punctured wound on the body of the deceased. From the perusal of the photograph, nature of injury cannot be definitively determined. Hence, the report of forensic expert cannot be relied on.

27. Dr. Sarojni Singh had not conducted the operation. She has stated just to cover up the medical negligence on the part of her hospital. The injury report has no evidentiary value in the eyes of law. It is the post mortem report which is to be relied upon and the injuries found in the post mortem report have been duly explained. Apoorva Kumar brother of the deceased has clearly admitted that the abrasion on the neck was caused due to use of catheter. Electronic evidence cannot be considered due to non-compliance of the direction of Section 65-B of the Act, 1872. There is no dying declaration of the deceased and the statement made by the deceased to her family members would be hearsay and extra judicial in nature.

28. Heard and perused the record.

29. On the basis of above submission these facts come out that there is allegation of unnatural death within seven years of marriage. There is allegation of demand of dowry. According to the I.O. on the basis of oral, documentary and medical evidence it is not a case of medical negligence. According to the applicants if it is a case of medical negligence caused by Dr. Monisha Singh why no FIR had been lodged by the applicants against her is a point of consideration and it goes against the applicants.

30. The conversation dated 30.04.2020 disclosed that the deceased was in fear to her life with the applicants. On 30.04.2020 the deceased had told to her sister Deepa that "whether she will remain alive or not. Now it is high time beyond the limit of tolerance. Yesterday both the brothers beaten her together with kicks and punches. Tell me, let us eat poison, die or run away. Now the bier will go from the house. You guy make arrangement for this. You will not get any news. Hands and legs will be raised. There will be no news about it. The mother of the deceased is telling why did you not talk after asking from the phone. The deceased replied that phone is not available here, if asked for phone, it is said that there are many things in the phone how phone can be given. After telling a lot the phone is being received.

Mother spoke your condition is not good, speak quietly. The deceased said that all the respect is gone. They are sitting her all around. They are listening what we are talking about. Again being questioned by mother, the deceased replied that her position was finished. The deceased further states, now you come with police but they refused. She has further stated that something is happening, we are not getting relief. She further stated that she was beaten with kicks and punches. Her mother spoke, in such situation who beaten you, is it not a matter of shame. The deceased replied, your son-in-law has beaten. The deceased has further said that the accused persons are saying to leave his son. They will give her more and more money. She cannot move anywhere, they are not letting her to go out. The deceased has clearly stated that these people are saying that you leave their son, they will pay her money multiple to twice-thrice. Now there is no peace, whole plan has been made to remove the thorn. Every one is saying to leave our son (husband), they will give her money multiplied three-four times. They are considering her as home farming. The mother-in-law is saying to take three times money from them to spare the life of her child (husband of the deceased). Nothing can happen. Now you will see my dead face, just you take away me. Mother of the deceased had replied that keep calm and give the phone to bauji".

31. In the meantime a person reached to the deceased and said that your wish has come true and now go from here. Thereafter mother of the deceased is trying to talk again with the deceased but the phone was disconnected.

32. The statement recorded on 20.10.2020 is between the deceased, her sister - Niti, father Om Prakash and it has also been made basis for submission of charge sheet. The relevant part of this conversation is also noted herein below in which the deceased was saying that "she has heard so much in the night. There is no here to keep calm. Now everyone here is going to hit the tone "your father is a shoe polisher". I am hearing that my father has polished the shoe. Did you tell that you have polished their shoes..... Here I am hearing a lot of tone that I am the girl of shoe polisher. I will not stay here at all, no one is here to take guarantee". In this conversation opposite party no.2 also made allegation that applicant no.1, husband of the deceased had illicit relation with his brother's wife. Opposite party no.2 angrily said that if his son-in-law, applicant no.1 was cohabiting his sister-in-law by keeping her as mistress, then why he solemnized marriage with his daughter. He said to call mausa of the deceased to take her back.

33. From the above discussion it is clear that all was not well within the matrimonial family of the deceased and between the deceased and applicant no.1. It has also been argued that if accused applicant no.1 was in service in Class-II of Railway Department since 2005 why he solemnized marriage after such unreasonable time.

34. Learned counsel for the applicants has raised objection that such conversation cannot be read in evidence in view of Section 65-B of the Act, 1872. In this regard several decisions are available which are as under:-

(I) In Ravinder Singh @ Kuku Vs. State of Punjab, 2022 Live Law (SC) 461 it was held that the certificate under Section 65-B(4) is a mandatory requirement for production of electronic evidence. It was also held that oral evidence in place of such certificate cannot be possibly suffixed. It was also held that in cases based on circumstantial evidence from the circumstances and inference as to the guilt of the accused have to be proved beyond reasonable doubt and have to be shown to be closely related with the principal facts sought to be inferred from those circumstances. In the present case the electronic evidence is the primary evidence not the secondary evidence and sufficient material is available on the record to prove the chain of the circumstantial evidence against the accused applicants beyond all reasonable doubts. For convenience Section 65-B(4) of the Indian Evidence Act reads as under:-

"65B. Admissibility of electronic records.--(4) In any proceedings where it is desired to give a statement in evidence by virtue of this section, a certificate doing any of the following things, that is to say--

(a) identifying the electronic record containing the statement and describing the manner in which it was produced;

(b) giving such particulars of any device involved in the production of that electronic record as may be appropriate for the purpose of showing that the electronic record was produced by a computer;

(c) dealing with any of the matters to which the conditions mentioned in sub-section (2) relate, and purporting to be signed by a person occupying a responsible official position in relation to the operation of the relevant device or the management of the relevant activities (whichever is appropriate) shall be evidence of any matter stated in the certificate; and for the purposes of this sub-section it shall be sufficient for a matter to be stated to the best of the knowledge and belief of the person stating it."

(II) In Anvar P.V. Vs. P.K. Basheer, (2014) 10 SCC 473 (three-Judge Bench) it has been ruled that under Section 65B(4) certificate is necessary for admissibility of the secondary evidence.

(III) In State of UP Vs. Ajai Kumar Sharma, 2016 (92) ACC 981 (SC) (para 14) it is laid down that a "Compact Disk" is a "document" on which admission and denial may be made by both the parties or their advocates.

(IV) In Mukesh Vs. State (NCT) of Delhi and others, AIR 2017 SC 2161 (three-Judge Bench) Computer Cell Expert revealed no tampering or editing of the CCTV footage. It was held to be admissible under Section 65B of the Evidence Act.

35. Under Section 3(2) of the Act, 1872, electronic records are the documents and they are relevant and admissible under Sections 17, 22A, 34, 35, 39, 45A, 47-A, 59, 65-A, 65-B, 67-A, 73-A, 81-A, 85-A, 85-B, 85-C, 88, 88-A, 90-A and 131 of the Evidence Act.

36. In R.M. Malkani Vs. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1973 SC 157 and in Ram Singh and others Vs. Col. Ram Singh, 1985 (Supp) SCC 616 and the State (NCT) of Delhi (supra) it is held that the relevant conversation recorded in the tape recorder is admissible in evidence.

37. In Anvar P.V. (supra) and Harpal Singh Vs. State of Punjab, (2017) 1 SCC 734 the Apex Court held that proof of electronic record is a special proviso introduced under the Evidence Act. The very caption of Section 65A of the Evidence Act, read with Sections 59 and 65B is sufficient to hold that the special provisions on evidence relating to electronic record shall be governed by the procedure prescribed under Section 65B of the Evidence Act. That is a complete Code in itself. Being a special law, the general law on secondary evidence under Sections 63 and 65 has to yield. An electronic record by way of secondary evidence therefore shall not be admitted in evidence unless the requirements under Section 65B are satisfied. Thus, in the case of CD, VCD, chip, etc. the same shall be accompanied by the certificate in terms of Section 65B obtained at the time of taking the document, without which the secondary evidence pertaining to that electronic record, is inadmissible.

38. In Vikram Singh Vs. State of Punjab, (2017) 8 SCC 518, the original tape recorded conversation of ransom calls was handed over to the police, it has been held that the original tape record was primary evidence, therefore certificate under Section 65B of the Evidence Act was not required for its admissibility. Such certificate is mandatory only for secondary evidence and not for the primary evidence.

39. In State by Karnataka Lokayukt P.S. Bengaluru Vs. M.R. Hiremath, 2019 0 Supreme 590 (SC) it is held that the certificate under Section 65B is sought to be produced in evidence at the trial, not at the stage of framing of charge.

40. In Arjun Panditrao Kholkar Vs. Kailash Kushanrao Gorantyal and others, AIR 2020 SC 4908 (three-Judge Bench) it has been held that certificate required under Section 65B(4) is a condition precedent to the admissibility of evidence by way of electronic record. Oral evidence in the place of such certificate cannot possibly suffice as Section 65B(4) is a mandatory requirement of the law.

Section 65B(4) clearly states that secondary evidence is admissible only if lead in the manner stated and not otherwise. To hold otherwise would render Section 65B(4) otiose. The requisite certificate in sub-section (4) of Sections 65B is unnecessary if the original document itself is produced. This can be done by the owner of a laptop computer, a computer tablet or even a mobile phone, by stepping into the witness box and proving that the concerned device on which the original information is first stored, is owned and/or operated by him. In cases where "the computer", as defined happens to be a part of a "computer system" or "computer network" and it becomes impossible to physically bring such network or system to the Court, then the only means of proving information contained in such electronic record can be in accordance with Section 65B(1), together with the requisite certificate under Section 65B(4).

41. In Mohammad Arif @ Ashfaq Vs. State (NCT) of Delhi, 2022 0 Supreme (SC) 1113 (three-Judge Bench) the Apex Court discussed the judgment Anvar P.V. (supra) and other pronouncements and held that "it must now be taken to have been settled that the decision of this Court in Anvar P.V. (supra) as clarified in Arjun Panditrao (supra) is the law declared on Section 65B of the Evidence Act. In para 22, the reference of the judgment of Arjun Panditrao (supra) has been given which is as under:-

"73. The reference is thus answered by stating that:

73.1. Anvar P.V. v. P.K. Basheer, (2014) 10 SCC 473, as clarified by us hereinabove, is the law declared by this Court on Section 65-B of the Evidence Act. The judgment in Tomaso Bruno v. State of U.P., (2015) 7 SCC 178, being per incuriam, does not lay down the law correctly. Also, the judgment in Shafhi Mohammad v. State of H.P., (2018) 2 SCC 801 and the judgment dated 3-4-2018 reported as Shafhi Mohd. v. State of H.P., (2018) 5 SCC 311s, do not lay down the law correctly and are therefore overruled.

73.2. The clarification referred to above is that the required certificate under Section 65-B(4) is unnecessary if the original document itself is produced. This can be done by the owner of a laptop computer, computer tablet or even a mobile phone, by stepping into the witness box and proving that the device concerned, on which the original information is first stored, is owned and/or operated by him. In cases where the "computer" happens to be a part of a "computer system" or "computer network" and it becomes impossible to physically bring such system or network to the court, then the only means of providing information contained in such electronic record can be in accordance with Section 65-B(1), together with the requisite certificate under Section 65-B(4). The last sentence in para 24 in Anvar P.V. v. P.K. Basheer, (2014) 10 SCC 473 which reads as "... if an electronic record as such is used as primary evidence under Section 62 of the Evidence Act ..." is thus clarified; it is to be read without the words "under Section 62 of the Evidence Act,...". With this clarification, the law stated in para 24 of Anvar P.V. v. P.K. Basheer, (2014) 10 SCC 473 does not need to be revisited.

73.3. The general directions issued in para 64 (supra) shall hereafter be followed by courts that deal with electronic evidence, to ensure their preservation, and production of certificate at the appropriate stage. These directions shall apply in all proceedings, till rules and directions under Section 67-C of the Information Technology Act and data retention conditions are formulated for compliance by telecom and internet service providers."

42. From the above discussion it is very much clear that first of all the Court has to ascertain as to whether the electronic document provided by either of the parties is primary or the secondary evidence. If it is a secondary evidence not the primary evidence only then a certificate would be required under Section 65B(4) of the Act, 1872. Similarly the production of above certificate would be necessary only at the appropriate stage when the parties have entered into evidence and not before that. Hence, at the time of taking cognizance or framing charge there would be no requirement of certificate under Section 65B(4) even if the document so produced is a secondary evidence.

43. If according to the applicants the death was the result of sheer negligence of Dr. Monisha Singh why an FIR was not lodged by the applicants against her.

44. The injuries on the person of the deceased were ante mortem injuries other than the medication or surgery can only be judged during the trial.

45. From the conversation present in the case diary it can be gathered that all was not well within the family and between the deceased and the accused persons and the deceased had been beaten and mental and physical cruelty had been caused with her in her matrimonial house and there was no respect for her father in the heart and mind of the accused persons.

46. Though the applicants are taking the plea of cesarean delivery of applicant no.5, Radha Devi by Dr. Sarojni Singh that they had no reservation regarding normal delivery but from the statement of Dr. Monisha Singh it is crystal clear that there was no possibility of normal delivery even then family members of the deceased were adamant for normal delivery at any cost and were pressurising her for that. She tried to explain the situation but neither the husband of the deceased nor her family members were ready for cesarean delivery and they were creating pressure for normal delivery. Therefore, anti-biotic and supportive medicines were administered to the patient. The accused persons were saying that today is the Saturday and their panditji has said that if a child is born in your place, it would be unlucky day. It was taken in writing from the husband of the patient (deceased) that the patient is not making any progress and the doctor and the hospital cannot guarantee the safety of the life of mother and the child and they took to the patient at 08:30 a.m. writing that they are getting discharge of the patient at their own will. On 04.05.2020 at 02:00 p.m. the patient's husband came to her hospital with his wife Nidhi Prakash in very nervous position. The patient was having unbearable abdominal pain. The patient told that the movement of the baby in the stomach is reduced past 8 hours. She has also fever and icterus. Heart beat of the child was at the rate of 80-100. There was leaking to the patient which was meconium stained. Operation was the only necessary option for the safety of the mother and the child which had been told to them two days earlier. The patient had urine infection and the patient had jaundice and the liver enzymes were increased. Consent for the operation was given by her husband. Doctor tried to manage the nerves of the child in womb. The operation was started at 03:30 p.m. by Dr. Monisha Singh with the help of Dr. Sarojni Singh, anaesthetic Dr.

Surendra Kumar Srivastava and consultant child specialist Dr. Gyanendra. It was found that there was an ascitic fluid in her stomach. After removing fluid the same was sent for investigation. The baby was shifted to NICU for better medical care. The operation was completed successfully. The patient started vomiting bile continuously from 06:00 p.m. On inquiry, the patient told that her mother-in-law had administered her deshi ghee an hour before coming to the hospital while it is completely prohibited for a jaundice patient. There was fever at 103F three hours after the operation for which injection and anti-biotics were given. From 08:00 p.m. in the evening, the patient had a slow urination. After 02:00 a.m. the urination was completely stopped. It was conveyed that further investigation and dialysis facilities are not available in the hospital. The patient would be kept in ICU. The condition of the deceased was conveyed to her husband at his mobile at 07:30 a.m. Abhishek - friend of Om Prakash (husband) came to the hospital and the patient was discharged for better treatment, for this he took referral from her hospital. During the treatment blood pressure, pulse rate, respiratory rate, oxygen saturation and general condition of the patient was normal.

47. In such a situation when no FIR or complaint had been made against Dr. Monisha Singh and the concerned hospital and the report and statement of Dr. Monisha Singh is in favour of the prosecution, this Court is of the view that the truth would appear only during and after the trial.

48. From the inquest report, it transpires that there was difference of opinion between the witnesses of inquest about the cause of death of the victim hence she was referred for autopsy. The professor and head of forensic department has opined that the doctor was in a bit haste while doing post mortem and there was negligent attitude on his part that when in the presence of signs of injuries over neck, he had not dissected the neck to see the internal injuries present over the subjacent tissues and the neck muscles bruising to exclude asphyxia namely strangulation i.e. strangulation as potential cause of death.

49. In such situation this Court finds it difficult to decide the case and exonerate the applicants from trial. The reason of death was medical negligence or it is a case of dowry death, can only be judged by the trial judge after taking the evidence. Only on the basis that there are some photographs showing some moments of pleasure with the husband it cannot be concluded that the charge should not be framed and the trial should not be proceeded.

50. Learned counsel for opposite party no.2 argued that prior conversation by the deceased with her family members would be treated to be dying declaration under Section 32(1) of the Act, 1872. Since the death is within seven years from the marriage and there is allegation of cruel treatment and demand of dowry, Section 113B would come into picture and in this respect the witnesses have stated in support of the prosecution version. There is unexplained ante mortem injury. There is also suspicion that which material was administered by mother-in-law of the deceased soon before her admission in hospital. It is also noteworthy that when 04.05.2020 had already fixed by the doctor with regard to delivery, why the deceased was taken to the hospital so late and why she was not admitted earlier.

51. High Court can exercise its inherent powers under Section 482 CrPC if it finds necessary to give effect to any order under this Code or if this Court finds that there is abuse of process of Court or to secure the ends of justice it is imperative on the Court to exercise the jurisdiction and quash any order or the proceedings challenged by the applicants.

52. From the above discussion it follows that there are several mysterious circumstances, allegations of demand of dowry, unnatural death of a young lady, difference of opinion of the doctors. There is report and evidence of the treating doctor in favour of the prosecution. There is expert opinion that the death of the deceased might have been occurred by manual strangulation. There are statements of the deceased prior to her death showing maltreatment and cruelty with her by the applicants. There is also allegation of unethical relation between the applicant no.1 and the applicant no.5, this Court is of the considered view that the charge sheet and the rejection of the discharge application of the applicants under Section 227 CrPC are not liable to be interfered with. It is settled principle in Kewal Krishan Vs. Suraj Bhan, AIR 1980 SC 1780 that when prima facie case of murder is made out, the discharge of the accused merely because the accused had no intention to kill the deceased is not proper. At the stage of charge, the standard of tests regarding guilt or otherwise of the accused cannot be applied.

53. In R.S. Nayak Vs. A.R. Antulay and another, AIR 1986 SC 2045 it has been held that when materials in the form of statements made before the police, dying declaration, post mortem report furnish a clear prima facie case for framing charge, the Sessions Judge committed an error in discharging the accused.

54. In State of Bihar Vs. Ramesh Singh, AIR 1977 SC 2018 it is held that the standard of test, proof and judgment which is needed for finding of a guilt or otherwise is not necessary for framing charge at this stage and even a strong suspicion found upon materials before the Court may justify framing of charge. The Court can sift and weigh the evidence for the purpose of finding out whether prima facie case against the accused has been made out. If two views are equally possible and the evidence gives rise to a grave suspicion, charge may be framed. The word "ground" has been used in these two sections in the context of putting an accused on trial. It is the trial in which the guilt or the innocence of the accused will be determined and not at the time of taking cognizance or framing of charge. The Court, therefore, need not undertake an elaborate inquiry in sifting and weighing the materials nor is it necessary to delve deep into various aspects. At this stage defence of the accused has not to be seen.

55. On the basis of above discussion, this Court is again of the view that at this stage no case is made out in favour of the applicants and it cannot be concluded that the charge sheet has been submitted without proper and sufficient ground and the rejection of discharge application is bad in view of the fact and law of the case.

56. Accordingly, this application under Section 482 CrPC is dismissed.

List of Cases cited:

Satyan Vs St. of Kerala (1981 Cri. L J 1313).

(Delivered by Hon'ble Krishan Pahal, J.)

1. List has been revised.

2. Heard Sri Pramod Kumar Singh, learned counsel for the applicants, Sri Gaurav Sharma, learned counsel for the informant, Sri Ramesh Chandra Vaishya in person, Sri V.K.S. Parmar, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the material placed on record.

3. The present application for anticipatory bail has been filed for anticipatory bail in Case Crime No.58 of 2016, under Sections 392 and 452 I.P.C., Police Station Tharwai, District Allahabad, during the pendency of trial.

4. To avoid verbiage, the allegations levelled in the FIR are not been narrated here.

5. Learned counsel for the applicants has submitted that the applicants have been falsely implicated in the present case. The applicants were summoned by the court concerned by invoking the powers under Section 319 Cr.P.C. in the present case. Learned counsel has further stated that the summoning order under Section 319 Cr.P.C. dated 15.03.2021 was passed under Sections 323, 504, 506, 325, 452 and 392 I.P.C and the applicants had applied for bail under Sections 323, 325, 504 and 506 I.P.C. only, as such they were enlarged on bail by the Magistrate concerned on 04.01.2022. Learned counsel has further stated that the applicants are entitled for bail in the added sections also as they have not misused the bail granted earlier on.

6. Per contra, learned AGA and the informant in person have vehemently opposed the anticipatory bail application on the ground that neither the Magistrate nor the Public Prosecutor took care to see under what sections the applicants were summoned and the bail was granted to the applicants except Sections 452 and 392 I.P.C. Thus, the applicants have misused the process of court as they were already enlarged on regular bail by the court concerned in some sections only. The applicants can't be permitted to apply in part before the Magistrate by invoking Section 437 Cr.P.C. and then apply in other sections by invoking Section 438 Cr.P.C. This is misuse of process of court. At the outset, either the applicants should have applied under Sections 438 Cr.P.C. before the Sessions Court, Allahabad or should have applied under all the sections in the Court of the Magistrate concerned.

7. Learned A.G.A. has also argued that the Magistrate is competent to hear and either reject or grant a bail in the cases of triable by a Court of Magistrate even if the sentence of life imprisonment could be passed. He has placed much reliance on the judgment of Satyan vs. State of Kerala reported in 1981 Cri LJ 1313, whereby the said opinion was expressed by the High Court.

8. The arguments advanced by informant in-person and A.G.A. carry conviction that the Magistrate was competent to hear and dispose of the bail under Sections 392 and 452 I.P.C. The said act at the part of the applicants and Magistrate concerned and even the Public Prosecutor was clearly not proper. The applicants have certainly not come with clean hands.

9. The accused was summoned under Sections 323, 504, 506, 325, 452 and 392 I.P.C. and should have applied for bail in all the sections. No person can be permitted to apply for bail in part, that too firstly getting bail by invoking powers u/s 437 Cr.P.C. and later on taking recourse to Section 438 Cr.P.C. in the other sections. He has to apply for bail in all the sections he is wanted either u/s 437 Cr.P.C. or 438 Cr.P.C.

10. After hearing learned counsel for the parties and taking into consideration the rival submissions and careful perusal of annexure nos.9 and 10 of the affidavit filed with the anticipatory bail application, I do

12. It is clarified that the observations made herein are limited to the facts brought in by the parties pertaining to the disposal of anticipatory bail application and the said observations shall have no bearing on the merits of the case during trial.

A. Criminal Law - Criminal Procedure Code, 1973-Section 438 - Indian Penal Code, 1860-Sections 354, 354B, 323, 504 & 506- application-rejection- There is a dispute between the parties over the disposal of garbage etc. an altercation has taken place between the parties -the applicant has agitated the provisions of Section 482 Cr.P.C. and has failed- the applicant and co-accused persons have outraged the modesty of two women and had even torn off the clothes of the

2. The present anticipatory bail application has been filed on behalf of the applicant in F.I.R./Case Crime No. 1277 of 2020, under Sections 354, 354B, 323, 504, 506 IPC, Police Station Majhola, District Moradabad, with a prayer to enlarge him on anticipatory bail.

Prosecution Story:

3. As per prosecution story, on 07.10.2020 at about 5.30 pm, the daughter of the informant had gone to see the water in the overhead tank of the house. Seeing her alone, the applicant Alok Kumar Mishra is stated to have outraged her modesty. On hearing her shrieks, the informant and her son came to the scene of occurrence. On seeing them, the applicant is stated to have called his wife and a friend at the scene of occurrence, and assaulted the informant and her son Prakhar Gupta. The applicant is stated to have also outraged the modesty of the informant and torn her clothes. The said incident has been video-recorded in the CCTV camera and the mobile.

Arguments for the Applicant:

4. Learned counsel for the applicant has stated that he is maliciously being prosecuted in the present case due to ulterior motive. The applicant has nothing to do with the said offence as alleged by the prosecution. Learned counsel has further stated that the FIR is delayed by about eleven days and there is no explanation of the said delay caused. Learned counsel has further stated that the applicant has genuine apprehension of arrest, as the police is continuously raiding his house. It is also stated by learned counsel that prior to the present anticipatory bail application, the applicant had also filed an CRIMINAL MISC ANTICIPATORY BAIL APPLICATION U/S 438 CR.P.C. No. 1018 of 2021 and he was granted anticipatory bail till the submission of police report under Section 173 (2) Cr.P.C. vide order dated 19.2.2021.

5. Learned counsel has further stated that after the filing of the final report (charge sheet) by the investigating officer, the applicant filed another CRIMINAL MISC ANTICIPATORY BAIL APPLICATION U/S 438 CR.P.C. No. 4588 of 2022 and the applicant was granted fifteen days' time to get the non-bailable warrants issued against him cancelled vide order dated 13.6.2022 and the anticipatory bail application was disposed of. Learned counsel has stated that the non-bailable warrants issued against the applicant were cancelled by the C.J.M. Moradabad vide order dated 17.6.2022. Thereupon, the applicant moved the third anticipatory bail application No. 5746 of 2022, which was also finally disposed of by this Court vide order dated 1.7.2022 thereby granting fifteen days' time to the applicant to appear before the trial court and it was directed that the bail application of the applicant shall be considered and decided in view of the law laid down in Satender Kumar Antil vs. Central Bureau of Investigation and another and Puran Singh and others vs. State of U.P. and others vide order dated 1.7.2022.

6. In compliance of the order dated 1.7.2022 the applicant moved an application for regular bail as well as for interim bail before the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 4, Moradabad, on 12.7.2022. Learned A.C.J.M. had declined to hear the regular bail application of the applicant without taking the applicant into custody vide order dated 14.7.2020 and had rejected the interim bail application of the applicant. Learned Court has opined that although in the present matter, the sentence is below seven years but seeing the peculiar facts of the case that the offence is against women, it does not come within the category of normal crime and is serious in nature. As such, the bail application cannot be disposed of without taking the applicant in judicial custody.

7. Learned counsel has also stated that the Apex Court has not classified the cases on the basis of gender in the judgement of Satender Kumar Antil (supra). Learned counsel has further placed reliance on the order of the Apex Court passed in Satender Kumar Antil dated 21.3.2023 whereby it had expressed displeasure over the non-compliance of the said order.

8. Learned counsel has also stated that the informant herein is a practicing advocate at District Court, Moradabad and is hell bent on getting the applicant send behind the bars somehow or the other and it is under her duress that the learned Magistrate has passed the said order dated 14.7.2022. It was also highlighted that the bailable warrants were issued against the applicant on 19.4.2022 and the learned Magistrate issued non-bailable warrants on 20.4.2022. Learned counsel has next stated that the applicant is a lecturer at Rishikul Brahmcharya Sanskrit Mahavidyalaya, Katghar Moradabad and had purchased the present house in the year 2019. There is a dispute between the parties over the disposal of garbage etc. an altercation has taken place between the parties on 7.10.2020. It is also argued that the applicant had called the police by dialing 112 at the spot. However, on the interference of the reputed persons of the locality, the compromise was entered into between the parties the same day on 7.10.2020 itself, which has been filed as Annexure-14 to the affidavit.

9. Learned counsel has next stated that the applicant has preferred a contempt petition against the non-compliance of the order of this Court dated 01.07.2022 before this Court vide Contempt Application No. 4552 of 2022 in which the Court has called instructions vide order dated 8.8.2021 and the petition is still pending.

10. Learned counsel has also stated that the applicant had also challenged the judicial order dated 14.7.2022 passed by the Magistrate before the Session Judge, Moradabad by filing criminal revision no. 211 of 2022 which was rejected by the Additional Session Judge, Court No. 1, Moradabad vide order dated 30.1.2023.

11. Learned counsel has next stated that after the rejection of the said criminal revision, the applicant again approached the Session Judge, Moradabad, seeking the anticipatory bail, but has rejected the same vide order dated 14.3.2023. Learned counsel has next stated that the fundamental rights enshrined in Article 21 of the Constitution of India stands violated as he has been subjected to litigation by the informant, who is an advocate.

12. Learned counsel has further stated that the statement of the informant and her daughter are contradictory to the FIR, thus, the prosecution story stands falsified. Learned counsel has next stated that the statement of the victim under Section 164 Cr.P.C. has been recorded after an inordinate delay of 45 days of the alleged incident. The said statement has been recorded after legal consultation and deliberations.

13. Learned counsel has also stated that the applicant is a lecturer in a degree college and has an unblemished record having no criminal history to his credit. The applicant has not misused the anticipatory bail granted by this Court vide order dated 19.2.2021 till the submission of report under Section 173(2) Cr.P.C. and has co-operated during investigation and is ready to do so during trial also.

Case Laws referred to by the Counsel for the Applicant:

(i) Satender Kumar Antil (supra)
 (ii) Criminal Misc. Anticipatory Bail Application U/S 438 Cr.P.C. No. 2553 of 2022 order dated 12.5.2022, whereby it was opined that the C.J.M. Bijnor has not complied with the mandate of the law laid down in Satender Kumar Antil (supra), as such, he shall dispose of the bail application without taking the applicants to judicial custody.

(iii) In Chandmal vs. State of Madhya Pradesh and Another it has been held as under:-

"6. We are not also be able to appreciate the impugned order dated 24.1.2022 passed by the High Court calling upon the appellants, despite recognizing the fact that they are aged persons in their 70s and the alleged offences has a maximum punishment up to seven years, they have been called upon to surrender in the Court concerned.

(iv) In Criminal Misc. Anticipatory Bail Application No. 438 Cr.P.C. No. 3532 of 2022, Suresh Babu vs. State of U.P. and Another, the proceedings under Sections 82 and 83 Cr.P.C. were undertaken during the pendency of the anticipatory bail application and the investigation was going on, as such, the anticipatory bail application of the applicants was allowed.

Arguments for the Informant and the State:

14. In rebuttal, learned counsel for the informant and learned A.G.A. for the State have vehemently opposed the anticipatory bail on the ground that the applicant had relinquished all his rights already as this is the fourth anticipatory bail application. The applicant had even moved a regular bail application before the Magistrate concerned and the learned Magistrate has declined to hear the bail application without taking him into custody.

15. Learned counsel has further stated that the judgement of the Apex Court passed in Satender Kumar Antil (supra) has used the word "may" and not "shall". The Apex Court has left it to the discretion of the Court concerned to take him to custody or not. Learned counsel has next stated that the applicant and other co-accused persons had filed an Application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. No. 24115 of 2021 and the same was dismissed vide order dated 8.3.2022. The substantial period of time has elapsed since the disposal of the said petition filed by the applicant. Learned counsel has also stated that the learned trial court has issued notice against the applicant u/s 82 Cr.P.C. on 15.3.2023 while the present anticipatory bail application has been filed on 21.3.2023 before this Court, as such, the applicant is not entitled for anticipatory bail in light of the judgement of the Apex Court passed in Lavesh vs. State (NCT of Delhi), whereby it is opined that the accused is not entitled for anticipatory bail after the proclamation u/s 482 Cr.P.C. has been made.

Conclusion:

18. Considering the facts and circumstances of the case and also the arguments advanced by the learned counsel for the parties, and taking into

19. In view of the above, the present anticipatory bail application is rejected.

4. Madan Gopal Kakad Vs Naval Dubey & anr.. (1992) SCR 2 921

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sanjay Kumar Singh, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the applicant, learned Additional Government Advocate representing the State and learned counsel appearing on behalf of the first informant.

2. By means of this application, applicant Rajesh, who is involved in Case Crime No. 14 of 2022, under Sections 376AB of I.P.C., & under Section 5m/6 POCSO Act, Police Station Dauki, District Agra, seeks enlargement on bail during the pendency of trial.

3. As per prosecution case in brief, the informant who is mother of the victim lodged a first information report on 14.01.2022 for an alleged offence under Section 376 I.P.C.

and Section 3/4 of POCSO Act against the applicant Rajesh making allegations inter-alia that on 14.01.2022 at about 05:50 PM when her daughter aged about 7 years had gone to field, the applicant by alluring her for giving Rs. 10/- bodily lifted her to the mustard field and committed rape on her.

4. The main substratum of argument of learned counsel for applicant is that the applicant has been falsely implicated in this case and that the allegation of the prosecution is not supported by the medical examination report of the victim as no injury was found on her body and her hymen perineum was found intact. Therefore, the applicant who is languishing in jail since 15.01.2022 may be enlarged on bail.

5. Per contra, learned Additional Government Advocate vehemently opposed the prayer for bail of the applicant by contending that the victim in her statement both under Section 161 and 164 Cr.P.C. has made serious allegation of rape against the applicant. Victim is minor child aged about 7 years, and the offence is heinous in nature, therefore bail application of the applicant is liable to be rejected.

6. Victim in her statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. has specifically stated that when she had gone to fetch mustard from the field, accused took her to the field in the lap and inserted his penis into his vagina.

7. It is well settled that to constitute an offence of rape complete penetration of penis with emission of semen and the rupture of hymen is not necessary.

8. Modi in his book Modi Textbook of Medical Jurisprudence and Toxicology, 23rd Edition, at page 897, opined thus:

"To constitute the offence of rape, it is not necessary that there should be complete of the penis with the emission of semen and the rupture of hymen. Partial penetration of the penis within the labia majora or the vulva or pudenda with or without the emission of semen, or even an attempt at penetration is quite sufficient for the purpose of law. It is, therefore, quite possible to commit legally, the offence of rape without producing any injury to the genitals or leaving any seminal stains. In such a case the Medical Officer should mention the negative facts in his report, but should not given his opinion that no rape had been committed. "

At page 928: In small children, the hymen is not usually ruptured, but may become red and congested along with the inflammation and bruising of the labia. If considerable violence is used, there is often laceration of the fourchette and the perineum.

9. In Parikh's Textbook of Medical Jurisprudence and Toxicology, the following passage is found:

"Sexual intercourse: In Law, this term is held to mean the slightest degree of penetration of the vulva by the penis with or without emission of semen. It is, therefore, quite possible to commit legally the offence of rape without producing any injury to the genitals or leaving any seminal stains."

10. State Of Himachal Pradesh vs Asha Ram, 2006 Cri.L.J. 139 was a case in which High Court of Himachal Pradesh has acquitted the accused Asha Ram on the ground that no spermatozoa were found on the Salwar and underwear of the prosecutrix though according to the prosecution, complete act of sexual intercourse was committed. Further no evidence has come on record to show that hymen was ruptured. The medical evidence coming on record, as discussed above, is highly unreliable and even otherwise it does not establish that the victim was subjected to sexual intercourse. Hon'ble Supreme while setting aside the judgement of the High Court, has held as under:

"We record our displeasure and dismay, the way the High Court dealt casually with the offence so grave, as in the case at hand, overlooking the alarming and shocking increase of sexual assault on the minor girls. The High Court was swayed by sheer insensitivity totally oblivious of growing menace of sex violence against the minors much less by the father. The High Court also totally overlooked the prosecution evidence, which inspired confidence and merited acceptance. It is now well settled principle of law that conviction can be founded on the testimony of the prosecutrix alone unless there are compelling reasons for seeking corroboration. The evidence of a prosecutrix is more reliable than that of an injured witness. The testimony of the victim of sexual assault is vital unless there are compelling reasons which necessitate looking for corroboration of her statement, the courts should find no difficulty in acting on the testimony of a victim of sexual assault alone to convict an accused where her testimony inspires confidence and is found to be reliable. It is also well settled principle of law that corroboration as a condition for judicial reliance on the testimony of the prosecutrix is not a requirement of law but a guidance of prudence under given circumstances. The evidence of the prosecutrix is more reliable than that of an injured witness. Even minor contradictions or insignificant discrepancies in the statement of the prosecutrix should not be a ground for throwing out an otherwise reliable prosecution case."

11. In the case of Bharwada Bhoginbhai Hirjibhai Vs. State of Gujarat, AIR 1983 SC 753, Hon'ble Supreme Court held thus:

In the Indian setting, refusal to act on the testimony of a victim of sexual assault in the absence of corroboration as a rule, is adding insult to injury. Why should the evidence of the girl or the woman who complains of rape or sexual molestation be viewed with the aid of spectacles fitted with lenses tinged with doubt, disbelief or suspicion ? To do so is to justify the charge of male chauvinism in a male dominated society. We must analyze the argument in support of the need for corroboration and subject it to relentless and remorseless cross-examination. And we must do so with a logical, and not an opiated, eye in the light of probabilities with our feet firmly planted on the soil of India and with our eyes focussed on the Indian horizon. We must not be swept off the feet by the approach made in the Western World which has its own social milieu, its own social mores, its own permissive values, and its own code of life. Corroboration may be considered essential to establish a sexual offence in the backdrop of the social ecology of the Western World. It is wholly unnecessary to import the said concept on a turn-key basis and to transplate it on the Indian soil regardless of the altogether different atmosphere, attitudes, mores, responses of the Indian Society and its profile."

12. Hon'ble Supreme Court in State of A.P. Vs. Bodem Sundara Rao, 1995 (6)

SCC 230 has cautioned the Courts while dealing with the cases of sexual crime against women in the following words:

"Sexual violence apart from being a dehumanizing act is an unlawful intrusion of the right to privacy and sanctity of a female. It is a serious blow to her supreme honour and offends her self esteem and dignity. It degrades and humiliates the victim and where the victim is a helpless innocent child, it leaves behind a traumatic experience. The Courts are, therefore, expected to deal with the cases of sexual crime against women with utmost sensitivity. Such cases need to be dealt with sternly and severely."

13. In Madan Gopal Kakkad vs Naval Dubey And another, 1992 SCR (2) 921, Hon'ble Supreme Court held:

Before parting with the judgment, with deep concern, we may point out that though all sexual assaults on female children are not reported and do not come to light yet there is an alarming and shocking increase of sexual offences committed on children. This is due to the reasons that children are ignorant of the act of rape and are not able to offer resistance and become easy prey for lusty brutes who display the unscrupulous, deceitful and insidious art of luring female children and young girls. Therefore, such offenders who are menace to the civilized society should be mercilessly and inexorably punished in the severest terms.

We feel that Judges who bear the Sword of Justice should not hesitate to use that sword with the utmost severity, to the full and to the end if the gravity of the offences so demand.

14. It is also not disputed that after investigation charge-sheet have submitted under Section 376AB of I.P.C., in which minimum sentence of 20 years has been provided. Apart from this presumption under Section 29 of the POCSO Act shall also be drawn against the accused-applicant.

15. Though all sexual assaults on female children are not reported and do not come to light yet there is an alarming and shocking increase of sexual offences committed on children. This is due to the reasons that children are ignorant of the act of the rape and are not able to offer resistance and become easy prey for lusty brutes who display the unscrupulous, deceitful and insidious art of luring female children and young girls. Therefore, such offenders who are menace to the civilized society should be mercilessly and inexorably punished in the severest terms.

16. Considering the overall facts and circumstances of the case as well as keeping in view the submissions advanced on behalf of parties, gravity of offence, role assigned to applicant and severity of punishment, I do not find any good ground to release the applicant on bail.

17. Accordingly, the bail application is rejected.

1. Applicant – Prakash Narayan Sharma @ Babali has approached this Court for bail in Case Crime No. 10 of 2023 under Sections 147, 323, 354, 354-K, 406, 504, 506, 376 I.P.C., Police Station-New Agra, District- Agra. He is in jail since 09.02.2023.

2. Before entering into merit of this case, it would be apt to advert to nature of relationship between a lawyer and his client which is solely founded on trust and confidence, however, the facts of present case are absolutely contrary to it.

3. Informant of present case is the victim herself and it has been alleged that she approached the applicant as his client to take up her cases and it appears that during frequent interactions, they became close and entered into relationship which includes victim to visit along with applicant and his wife to various places as well as along with applicant only to various places. Number of photographs are placed on record that victim was comfortable with applicant even in presence of his wife. The photographs also indicate that they were very close. Even certain photographs are also recovered which shows and that applicant and victim was not looking embarrassed rather comfortable even when their photographs are clicked in their birthday suits in intimating positions i.e. they were deeply involved in physical relationship also.

4. The victim has alleged that applicant has gained her confidence and even victim has provided a room on rent for him as there was certain dispute between applicant and his wife and that victim has given a loan of Rs. 40 lakh to applicant as he wanted to contest an assembly election after taking it from her elder sister but applicant not only refused to return money but disappeared for some time also and on the date of occurrence, i.e. 04.01.2023, on a road nearby Court campus, a scuffle took place between victim and applicant and his associates wherein she was mercilessly beaten even on her private parts.

5. The victim has further disclosed that earlier, the applicant has posed himself to be an influential person being close to prominent persons including Judges and officers and that he was involved in preparing porn films and has shown multiple unsolicited photographs of other women and threatened the victim to act in terms of direction of applicant and even to allow him to click her photographs in intimating gestures and positions and has repeatedly made physical relationship with victim against her wishes also and has threatened of dire consequence, if victim refuses to act in terms of direction of the applicant.

6. Sri V.P. Srivastava, Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Vijay Kumar Mishra, learned counsel for applicant submits that applicant is not disputing that he has a very comfortable relationship with victim but it was only consensual relationship and victim has accompanied with applicant even along with his wife to various places and have very close intimacy with victim. Even the photographs of various places as well as intimate photographs have also been denied.

7. Learned Senior Advocate has further submitted that this relationship can be termed as a honeytrap that initially the victim has not objected of taking intimated photographs with applicant, even in their birthday suits. However, the allegation of money as mentioned by victim has been vehemently denied that it was the applicant who paid the victim and she refused to return and started blackmailing that in case huge amount has not been paid to her, she will make the circumstances worse and for that applicant has to face social disgrace.

8. Learned Senior Advocate has further submitted that it may be a case where strong intimacy and consensual relationship between applicant and victim become sour by passing time. No independent witness has been examined in regard to allegation of assault by applicant and his associates on a road near the Court and that victim who has already given her statement during investigation and has also given number of photographs to prosecution which are part of record, therefore, there is no likelihood that applicant may influence the victim.

9. Prayer for bail have been vehemently opposed by S/Sri Sunil Srivastava, learned A.G.A. for State and Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for victim and submitted that applicant is an advocate only for name and his real business was to prepare porn films and for that he used his women clients earlier also and victim was also trapped in the web of porn industry.

10. Applicant has woven a web that initially he acted to be nice with victim and has gained her confidence and trust and entered into physical relationship as well as to visit many places along with her. He has also allowed victim to be a friendly entrance in his house even in presence of his wife. The nature of photographs prima facie indicate that applicant was not ashamed to be clicked along with victim in their birthday suits and that victim has remained consistent in her statement under Sections 161 and 164 Cr.P.C. about above referred modus-operandi of applicant and that he has repeatedly made physical relationship with victim against her will by extending threat of putting her unsolicited photographs for the purpose of pornography and that victim has given huge amount of money on loan to applicant but he has refused to return the same.

11. LAW ON BAIL - A SUMMARY

(A) The basic rule may perhaps be tersely put as bail, not jail.

(B) Power to grant bail under Section 439 Cr.P.C., is of wide amplitude but not an unfettered discretion, which calls for exercise in a judicious manner and not as a matter of course or in whimsical manner.

(C) While passing an order on an application for grant of bail, there is no need to record elaborate details to give an impression that the case is one that would result in a conviction or, by contrast, in an acquittal. However, a Court cannot completely divorce its decision from material aspects of the case such as allegations made against accused; nature and gravity of accusation; having common object or intention; severity of punishment if allegations are proved beyond reasonable doubt and would result in a conviction; reasonable apprehension of witnesses being influenced by accused; tampering of evidence; character, behaviour, means, position and standing of accused; likelihood of offence being repeated; the frivolity in the case of prosecution; criminal antecedents of accused and a prima facie satisfaction of Court in support of charge against accused. The Court may also take note of participation or part of an unlawful assembly as well as that circumstantial evidence not being a ground to grant bail, if the evidence/ material collected establishes prima facie a complete chain of events. Parity may not be an only ground but remains arelevant factor for consideration of application for bail.

(D) Over crowding of jail and gross delay in disposal of cases when undertrials are forced to remain in jail (not due to their fault) may give rise to possible situations that may justify invocation of Article 21 of Constitution, may also be considered along with other factors.

(2022)3 SCC 501; and, Deepak Yadav vs. State of U.P. and Anr. (2022)8 SCC 559)

12. In the present case, applicant has declared himself to be an active advocate and a person having luxurious car and luxurious lifestyle. The narration of facts in first information report as well as statement of victim recorded under Sections 161 and 164 Cr.P.C. are consistent as well as that the applicant has himself not denied that victim was his client. Victim used to visit him for the purpose of discussing cases and later on both of them became intimated and their intimacy was so open that she was comfortable with applicant even in presence of applicant's wife. Both of them have used to visit many places together as well as along with his wife and comfortably clicked photographs being together.

13. There is substance in argument of learned Senior Advocate that due to certain monetary dispute, consensual relationship between applicant and victim becomes sour. However, considering the nature of evidence collected during investigation, specifically, nature of photographs placed on record of applicant and victim being intimated even in their birthday suits prima facie indicates that applicant was having

15. Therefore, considering overall aspects of present case, position of

(Delivered by Hon’ble Sameer Jain, J.)

1. The instant bail application is listed before this Bench by the order of Hon’ble the Chief Justice dated 6.4.2023.

2. Heard Sri G. S. Chaturvedi, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Saurabh Raj Srivastava, learned counsel for the applicant; Sri Ratnendu Kr. Singh, learned AGA for the State-respondent and Sri Abhishek Kr. Yadav, learned counsel for the informant.

Brief facts:-

3. FIR of the case was lodged on 1.9.2021. According to the FIR, applicant and his son forcibly took possession over the land of the informant including his Firms and in this regard, informant lodged an FIR against the applicant, his wife and his son at P.S. Gopiganj, District Bhadoi at case crime No. 273 of 2020 and after registration of the above noted case applicant and his family members are continuously threatening the informant and pressuring him to withdraw the case and in this regard, son of the informant lodged an FIR at P.S. Gopiganj.

4. It is further mentioned in the FIR that applicant forcibly on the basis of illegal weapons has taken away the 19 vehicles of the informant and with the help of those vehicles, he is doing his illegal activities. It is further mentioned in the FIR that applicant also has taken possession of 20 bigha land of the informant and also prepared forged document of the same and got executed a fake sale deed in favour of his family members. As per FIR, applicant is detained in Agra jail and he is having criminal history of more than 84 cases and he is also one of the main accused in the case of causing serious injuries to Nand Kumar Gupta @ Nandi.

Submission advanced on behalf of the applicant:-

5. Learned counsel for the applicant submitted that entire allegations made against the applicant are totally false and baseless and applicant is a respectable person of the society and he was four consecutive times M.P. from Giyanpur, Bhadoi and entire story set up by the informant is politically motivated and admittedly at the time of lodgement of the FIR of the present case applicant was in jail in connection with another case.

6. He further submitted that applicant was not made accused in the present matter and he was made accused during investigation with the aid of section 120 B IPC. He next submitted that applicant and informant are family members and dozens of civil and criminal cases are pending between them. He further urged that applicant was arrested on 14.8.2020 pursuant to the FIR bearing case crime No. 273 of 2020 lodged by the informant and thereafter informant and his sons alongwith their associates with the help of local police lodged 15 frivolous FIRs against applicant and his family members.

7. He further submitted that actually vehicles which were disclosed in the FIR belong to the partnership Firm, M/s Krishna Mohan Tiwari and with regard to the partnership Firm, a dispute is pending between informant and family of the applicant. He further submitted that in the above partnership Firm, wife of the applicant is also one of the partner alongwith the informant and one Ashok Kumar and dispute with regard to the partnership Firm has travelled up to this Court and against the order passed by District Judge, wife of the applicant and informant both filed an appeal under section 37 of Arbitration and Conciliation Act and on 22.3.2021 this Court directed the informant to prepare separate account with regard to sale and purchase of the property of the partnership Firm. He further submitted that on 5.8.2021, this Court clubbed both the aforesaid appeal filed by the wife of applicant and informant.

8. He further submits that in the Arbitration Petition in Schedule-III, 46 heavy vehicles are mentioned as vehicles of the Firm and these include the vehicles mentioned in the FIR and therefore, this fact clearly suggest that the allegation with regard to the forceful possession of the vehicles mentioned in the FIR are totally false and in fact these vehicles are the property of the partnership Firm and dispute, with regard to the partnership Firm, is pending between both the parties.

9. He further submitted that informant, being active partner of the aforesaid Firm, has alienated most of the vehicles of the partnership Firm and on 11.8.2021 wife of the applicant and another partner moved an application before this Court with a prayer to direct the informant to deposit the amount realized by him after selling the movable property of the partnership Firm M/s Krishna Mohan Tiwari.

10. He further submitted that although as per the prosecution, six vehicles were recovered from the premises of the applicant on 20.11.2021 but out of six vehicles, four vehicles were not even mentioned in the FIR of the present case and only two vehicles which were alleged to have been recovered are mentioned in the FIR and both are exclusive property of the Firm, M/s Krishna Mohan Tiwari and are part of the arbitration proceeding. He further submitted that applicant is having no concern with remaining vehicles as neither these vehicles are in the name of applicant nor these vehicles are being used by the applicant.

11. He further submitted that partners of the Firm also preferred a petition under section 11 for appointment of the Arbitrator and on 16.9.2022 this Court has appointed Hon'ble Justice Vineet Saran, a retired Judge of the Supreme Court as Arbitrator.

12. He further submitted that multiple cases under Negotiable Instrument Acts are also pending between the family of the informant and the family of the applicant. He further submitted that multiple civil disputes are also pending between the families of both the sides.

13. He further submitted that although in the FIR, it is alleged that applicant took forcible possession of 19 vehicles but neither date nor time nor place has been mentioned. He further submits informant neither furnished any information to the police about the incident of alleged forceful possession of the vehicle by the applicant.

14. He further urged that due to the political rivalry and being opposition MLA various criminal cases were lodged against the applicant and till today, applicant has been implicated in as many as 85 cases but out of 85 cases, only in 13 cases applicant is facing trial and in other cases applicant has already either acquitted or proceedings have been dropped by the prosecution. He further submitted that out of 13 cases 8 cases are after the arrest of applicant i.e. after 14.8.2020. He further submitted that only on the basis of criminal antecedents of an accused, bail should not be refused if otherwise case of bail is made out.

15. He further submitted that although applicant is in jail since 14.8.2020 with regard to another case but in the present matter also applicant is in jail for almost one and a half years. He lastly urged that informant is also having criminal history of 9 cases and therefore, considering the facts and circumstances of the case applicant may be released on bail.

Submission advanced on behalf of the State and informant:-

16. Per contra, learned AGA as well as learned counsel for the informant vehemently opposed the prayer for bail and submitted that there is specific allegation against the applicant that being MLA, he misused his position and status and after forcibly taking possession over the property of the informant, is continuously threatening him and he on the basis of illegal weapons took forcible possession of 19 vehicles of the informant. They further argued that six vehicles were recovered from the hot mix plant of the applicant on 20.11.2021 and even as per the applicant out of six vehicles, four did not belong to partnership Firm and applicant also did not claim these vehicles and this fact clearly suggest that the recovered vehicles were of informant.

17. They further submitted actually Firm, M/s Krishna Mohan Tiwari is not a partnership Firm but it is the Firm of informant and only to take possession of the Firm, applicant and his family members started claiming that the Firm is a partnership Firm and merely pendency of dispute does not dilute the seriousness of the allegation made against the applicant.

18. Learned AGA further submitted that there is specific allegation against the applicant in the FIR that he not only took possession over the property of the informant but he is also continuously threatening the informant to withdraw the case lodged by the informant against him and thereafter he on the gun point, forcibly took the vehicles of the informant and in spite of these allegations his name is not in the array of the accused then it does not mean, there is no accusation against him in the FIR and therefore, no benefit can be extended to him on the ground that he was not made accused in the FIR.

19. He next submitted that applicant is a hard core criminal and a leader of Inter

District Gang beaing registration No. D-12 at police station Gopiganj District Bhadohi and having history sheet No. 2-B P.S. Handia, District Prayagraj. Learned AGA further pointed out that applicant is having criminal history of about 85 cases in different districts and district wise criminal history has been appended alongwith the counter affidavit. He further submitted that after perusal of the criminal history of the applicant, it appears that he is not an ordinary criminal but a hardened criminal who involved in heinous and serious crimes like forceful possession of the Government property, possession of AK-47 and its ammunition, cases under section 307 IPC and U.P. Gangsters Act and number of times he has been detained under the provisions of National Security Act.

20. Learned AGA further submits that applicant was also made accused in number of cases of 302 IPC although due to his influence, he could not be convicted. He further submits, in number of cases applicant threatened the witnesses of the cases including the victim of case under section 376 D IPC. He further submitted that against the applicant, a case was also registered in the State of West Bengal.

21. Learned AGA further pointed out that recently applicant has also convicted in two cases of Arms Act, therefore, there is every possibility that after release on bail, he will temper the witnesses and such hardened criminal should not be released on bail.

22. He placed reliance on the judgement of the Apex Court passed in the case of Neeru Yadav Vs. State of U.P. reported in [2016 (15) SCC 422] and Deepak Yadav Vs. State of U.P. and another reported in [2022(8) SCC 559].

Analysis:-

23. Applicant is X-MLA and he was four consecutive times MLA from Giyanpur, Bhadoi. Allegation against the applicant is that he misused his position and status and took possession over the properties of the informant and when informant lodged FIR against him then he is continuously threatening him alongwith his other family members and thereafter he forcibly took 19 vehicles of the informant on the point of illegal weapons.

24. As per the prosecution, six vehicles were recovered from the hot mix plant of the applicant. Although as per the applicant, the vehicles in question belonged to the partnership Firm and with regard to the partnership Firm, a dispute is pending before this Court, in which an Arbitrator has also been appointed but allegation made against the applicant are serious in nature and there is not only allegation of forceful possession of the vehicles of the informant but there are various allegations against the applicant like taking possession over 20 bigha land of the informant and threatening the informant.

25. Applicant is a well known political figure of the State of Uttar Pradesh and he was also X-MLA, therefore, it was his responsibility to maintain law and order but his criminal antecedents of about 85 cases indicates othewise and from its perusal, it appears that he indulged in every type of crime including murder, rape, attempt to commit murder etc.

26. The Apex Court in the case of Prahlad Singh Bhati Vs. NCT, Delhi and another reported in [(2001) 4 Supreme Court Cases 280] highlighted the aspect which should be considered by the Court while dealing with bail applications and observed as follows:-

“8. The jurisdiction to grant bail has to be exercised on the basis of well settled principles having regard to the circumstances of each case and not in an arbitrary manner. While granting the bail, the court has to keep in mind the nature of accusations, the nature of evidence in support thereof, the severity of the punishment which conviction will entail, the character, behaviour, means and standing of the accused, circumstances which are peculiar to the accused, reasonable possibility of securing the presence of the accused at the trial, reasonable apprehension of the witnesses being tampered with, the larger interests of the public or State and similar other considerations. It has also to be kept in mind that for the purposes of granting the bail the Legislature has used the words "reasonable grounds for believing" instead of "the evidence" which means the court dealing with the grant of bail can only satisfy it as to whether there is a genuine case against the accused and that the prosecution will be able to produce prima facie evidence in support of the charge. It is not excepted, at this stage, to have the evidence establishing the guilt of the accused beyond reasonable doubt.”

(emphasis supplied)

27. Again in case of Prasanta Kumar Sarkar Vs. Ashis Chatterjee and another reported in [(2010) 14 Supreme Court Cases 496] also observed as follows:-

“9. We are of the opinion that the impugned order is clearly unsustainable. It is trite that this Court does not, normally, interfere with an order passed by the High Court granting or rejecting bail to the accused.

However, it is equally incumbent upon the High Court to exercise its discretion judiciously, cautiously and strictly in compliance with the basic principles laid down in a plethora of decisions of this Court on the point. It is well settled that, among other circumstances, the factors to be borne in mind while considering an application for bail are:

(i) whether there is any prima facie or reasonable ground to believe that the accused had committed the offence;

(ii) nature and gravity of the accusation;

(iii) severity of the punishment in the event of conviction;

(iv) danger of the accused absconding or fleeing, if released on bail;

*(v) character, behaviour, means, position and standing of the accused;

*(vi) likelihood of the offence being repeated;

*(vii) reasonable apprehension of the witnesses being influenced; and

*(viii) danger, of course, of justice being thwarted by grant of bail.”

(emphasis supplied)

28. Therefore, from the above decisions of the Apex Court, it appears that although granting or rejecting the bail is discretionary power but discretionary power should be exercised judiciously and while granting bail to an accused the Court should not only consider the nature of evidence, gravity of allegations and severity of punishment but should also consider the character, behavior, means and standing of the accused and reasonable possibility of securing the presence of the accused at trial, reasonable apprehension of the witnesses being tampered with and the larger interest of the public and the State and further, while granting bail, Court should also consider the danger, of course, of justice being thwarted by grant of bail.

29. Applicant is very influential political figure of the State of Uttar Pradesh and as many as 85 cases were lodged against him and 13 cases are still pending. From perusal of the list of the cases, it reflects that number of cases were of serious and heinous crimes and in two cases he has already convicted, therefore, possibility cannot be ruled out that after release on bail, applicant may tamper the witnesses specially when such allegation against the applicant is itself in the FIR of the present case.

30. Further, every crime committed by an individual is the crime against the society and it always affects the society at large and if such persons who have criminal antecedents of more than 80 cases would be enlarged on bail then they can again commit such offences and they may cause danger to the society and they may also create problems for the State to maintain law and order, therefore, in the interest of the public at large and State, they in general should not be released on bail.

31. Although it appears that applicant is in jail since 14.8.2020 and in the present matter, he is in jail for last about one and a half years but the period of custody of an accused has to be weighed simultaneously with the totality of the circumstances and the criminal antecedents of the accused and the circumstances which may justify the grant of bail are to be considered in the larger context of the societal concern involved in releasing an accused, in juxtaposition to individual liberty of the accused seeking bail [See: Ash Mohammad. Vs. Shiv Raj Singh reported in (2012) 9 SCC 446].

32. In case of Neeru Yadav (supra) on which reliance was placed by the learned AGA, Apex Court held that while granting bail to an accused who is having criminal antecedents the Courts should be very cautious and Court cannot ignore the criminal antecedents of the accused. The Apex Court in case of Neeru Yadav (supra) further observed that law expects the judiciary to be alert while admitting these kind of accused persons to be at large.

33. Therefore, it is lucid that while deciding bail application, criminal antecedents of the accused can not be ignored.

34. Therefore, from the discussion made above, in my view, applicant is not entitled to be released on bail.

35. Accordingly the instant bail application stands rejected.

3- दिनांक 07.06.2014 को कथित पीड़िता का बयान विवेचक द्वारा लिया गया, जिसमें उसने कथन किया है कि वह 15 दिवस पूर्व अपने ससुराल खेड़ा हटाना से अपनी बहन प्रमिला की ससुराल कसेरवा गयी थी और मंगलवार 3 तारीख को वह कसेरवा से दोपहर के बाद रोडवेज बस से बुढ़ाना तक आई। उस समय हल्का हल्का अंधेरा हो गया था। शाहपुर आते-आते काफी रात हो गयी थी। शाहपुर में वह बदरी कला जाने वाली सड़क के सामने सड़क पर ही उतर गयी। उसके गांव की तरफ जाने वाली सड़क पर कई गांव के तांगे खड़े रहते हैं। वह सड़क पर ही एक तांगे के पास खड़ी हो गयी। तांगे के पास एक लड़का खड़ा था जो टोपी ओढ़े हुए था उस लड़के ने कहा कि तांगा कब्रिस्तान में खड़ा है। उसे ऐसा लगा जैसे कि उसकी कमर में कोई सुई जैसी चुभी है और वह लड़का पीड़िता का पकड़ कर कब्रिस्तान के अन्दर ले गया वहां पर मैदान ही मैदान और झाड़ियां थी। वहां मैदान में पहले दो अन्य व्यक्ति आये और उसके बाद दो फिर आये और

4- मजीद बयान में पीड़िता का कथन है कि वह घटना के बाद स्वयं सड़क पर आ गयी, तभी दुकान की चौकीदारी करने वाला चौकीदार आ गया और वह पीड़िता को पुलिस चौकी ले गया, वहीं दूसरी तरफ पीड़िता द्वारा विवेचक को दिए गए बयान में कथन किया गया है कि जब कह चिल्लायी तो पुलिस वाले मोटरसाइकिल से आ गए और उसे चौकी पर एवं थाने पर ले गए। इस प्रकार यह दोनों बयान परस्पर विरोधाभाषी हैं।

5- पीड़िता के बयान में यह भी आया है कि उसके चिल्लाने पर पुलिसवाले मोटरसाइकिल से आ गए तभी, पुलिसवालों के आने पर अभियुक्तगण भागे, इसका मतलब पुलिसवालों ने भी अभियुक्तगण को भागते हुए देखा, किंतु न तो उन्होंने अभियुक्तों को पीछा किया और न ही उनका बयान दर्ज हुआ कि उन्होंने किसी को पहचाना या नहीं।

6- कथित पीड़िता द्वारा अवर न्यायालय में पी०डब्लू०-1 के रूप में यह कथन किया है कि हाजिर अदालत वसीम, गुलफाम उर्फ सोनू, शमशाद, शहजाद, अहसान, छोटू उर्फ राजू आरिफ, काला पुत्र यामीन, नसीम उर्फ

7- संपूर्ण घटनाक्रम को देखते हुए ऐसा प्रतीत हो रहा है कि घटना की प्राथमिकी पुलिस की मिलीभगत से कल्पित तथ्यों के आधार पर लिखवायी गयी है। जो सांप्रदायिकता द्वेषभावना व सामाजिक सद्भाव निकृष्ट करने के उद्देश्य से किया गया है, चूंकि घटना के बाद भीड़ एकत्र हुयी है, नारेबाजी की गयी है एवं थाने का घेराव भी किया गया है।

8- उनका यह भी कथन है कि मामले के जो अभियुक्तगण संपन्न थे वो विधिक प्रक्रिया के माध्यम से जमानत पर छूट गये, चूंकि आवेदक गरीब व्यक्ति है एवं उसकी पैरवी करने वाला कोई व्यक्ति उपलब्ध नहीं है। उनका यह भी कथन है कि कथित पीड़िता अवर न्यायालय में दिनांक 12.01.2016 को सत्र परीक्षण के दौरान पक्षद्रोही हो गयी, इसके बावजूद भी आवेदक गरीब होने तथा जमानत प्रार्थना पत्र न दाखिल कर पाने के कारण दि० 06.06.2014 से लगभग 9 वर्षों से कारागार में निरुद्ध है। इसलिए आवेदक को जमानत पर छोड़ दिया जाय।

9- मामले के केस डायरी के अवलोकन से यह दर्शित हो रहा है कि मामले के अन्य सहअभियुक्तगण को जमानत मिल चुकी है। आवेदक का कोई पूर्व आपराधिक इतिहास भी नहीं है। कथित पीड़िता, सत्र परीक्षण के दौरान पक्षद्रोही हो गयी है। आवेदक को मात्र परिस्थितिजन्य तथ्यों के आधार पर मामले में नामित किया गया है। कथित पीड़िता के पूरक चिकित्सीय आख्या प्रपत्र के अनुसार अभियोजन कथानक का समर्थन नहीं हो रहा है। उनका यह भी कथन है कि मामले के समस्त तथ्यों से प्रदर्शित हो रहा है कि इस कथित पीड़िता के मजीद बयान, धारा 161 एवं 164 दं०प्र०सं० के बयान में विरोधाभास है। आवेदक लंबे समय से जेल में निरुद्ध है और मामले में तथ्य के गवाहों के साक्ष्य अंकित हो चुके हैं, किंतु सत्र परीक्षण अभी भी लंबित है एवं आवेदक के विद्वान अधिवक्ता ने तर्क प्रस्तुत किया कि इसलिए आवेदक को जमानत पर छोड़ दिया जाय। अवर न्यायालय के आदेश फलक को देखने से सत्र परीक्षण का निकट भविष्य में शीघ्र निस्तारण होने की संभावना नजर नहीं आ रही है, इसलिए आवेदक को जमानत पर छोड़ दिया जाय।

10- आवेदक के विद्वान अधिवक्ता ने अपने तर्क के समर्थन Indrani Pratim Mukerjea Vs. Central Bureau of Investigation and another passed in Special Leave to Appeal (Crl.) No. 1627 of 2022 to submit that prolonged incarceration of a person as an under trial is against his fundamental rights under Article 21 of the Constitution of India. में माननीय उच्चतम न्यायालय द्वारा प्रतिपादित विधि-व्यवस्था की ओर न्यायालय का ध्यान आकृष्ट किया।

6. विद्वान अपर शासकीय अधिवक्ता ने आवेदक के जमानत का प्रबल विरोध करते हुए तर्क प्रस्तुत किया कि आवेदक द्वारा कारित अपराध संज्ञेय एवं गंभीर प्रकृति का है, इसलिए आवेदक को जमानत पर न छोड़ा जाय।

7. मैंने पत्रावली पर उपलब्ध साक्ष्य का गहनतापूर्वक परिशीलन किया गया, आवेदक के विद्वान अधिवक्ता द्वारा जमानत आवेदन पत्र में आवेदक के जेल में निरुद्ध होने की तिथि 06.06.2014 अंकित किया गया है, किंतु वाद के सी०डी० अवलोकन से अभियुक्त के अभिरक्षा में लेने की तिथि 09.04.2014 अंकित है तथा उभय पक्ष के विद्वान अधिवक्ताओं के तर्कों पर सम्यक रूप से विचार किया गया। मेरा अभिमत है कि:-

1- Rajasthan Vs. Balchand alias Baliy (AIR 2447, 1978) के ऐतिहासिक फैसले में 1978 के मामले में सटीक रूप से कहा गया है कि: "मूल नियम को शायद जमानत के रूप में रखा जा सकता है, जेल नहीं।" इसे आधार बनाने के लिए भारत के संविधान के तहत एक अभियुक्त को गारंटीकृत अधिकारों पर जोर दिया। इन अधिकारों में सबसे विशिष्ट अधिकार संविधान के अनुच्छेद-21 के तहत दिया गया अधिकार है। किसी व्यक्ति की हिरासत उसके जीवन और स्वतंत्रता के अधिकार को प्रभावित करती है और हिरासत का मुख्य उद्देश्य बिना किसी असुविधा के मुकदमे के लिए आरोपी की आसानी से उपलब्धता सुनिश्चित करना है।

2- इस प्रकार, यदि यह सुनिश्चित किया जाता है कि अभियुक्त विचारण चरण के लिए आवश्यक होने पर उपलब्ध हो, तो व्यक्ति को हिरासत में लेना अनिवार्य नहीं है। इसलिए,

यह माना गया कि अदालतों को, किसी व्यक्ति की गिरफ्तारी से संबंधित दंड प्रक्रिया संहिता (सी०आर०पी०सी०) के प्रावधानों की व्याख्या करते समय, हिरासत से बचना चाहिए जब तक कि यह अपरिहार्य न लगे और आरोपी को जमानत दे देनी चाहिए।

3- मानवाधिकार सक्रियता पिछले कुछ वर्षों में अधिक विकसित हुई है और वर्तमान में जेल में निरुद्ध किये जा रहे किसी व्यक्ति की स्वतंत्रता और समाज के हित के बीच संतुलन की समझ की आवश्यकता है। इसलिए, दोनों के बीच इस तरह के संतुलन को बनाए रखने के लिए यह विचार करना बहुत महत्वपूर्ण है कि जब तक कोई मजबूत आधार न हो जैसे कि एक अभियुक्त के न्याय से भागने की संभावना या उसके द्वारा सबूतों से छेड़छाड़ करने या मामले के गवाह या पीड़ित को धमकी देने की संभावना, किसी अभियुक्त को हिरासत में लेने से संविधान के अनुच्छेद - 21 के तहत उसे दिए गए उसके मौलिक अधिकार यानी जीवन और व्यक्तिगत स्वतंत्रता के अधिकार का उल्लंघन होगा।

4- इसके अलावा, सजा के सुधारवादी सिद्धांत का प्रयोग दंड के दो अन्य सिद्धांतों क्रमशः निवारक सिद्धांत और दंडात्मक सिद्धांत के बीच संतुलन बनाए रखने के लिए समान रूप से महत्वपूर्ण है। सुधारवादी सिद्धांत का मुख्य उद्देश्य एक अभियुक्त को सुधारना और उसे जेल में आदतन अपराधियों से दूर रखना है, जिन्हें अपराधों की विविधता माना जाता है।

5- यह सिद्धांत इस धारणा पर आधारित है कि दंड एक निवारक के बजाय अधिक उपचारात्मक होना चाहिए। इस प्रकार के

सिद्धांत के तहत किसी अपराध को एक बीमारी माना जाता है जिसे मारने से ठीक नहीं किया जा सकता है; बल्कि इस तरह के रोग को 'सुधार की प्रक्रिया' (process of reformation) के नाम की दवा की सहायता से ठीक किया जा सकता है।

6- इसके अलावा, सुप्रीम कोर्ट द्वारा अर्नेश कुमार बनाम बिहार राज्य (A.I.R 1277 OF 2014) के मामले में पारित ऐतिहासिक फैसले में, उच्चतम न्यायालय ने गिरफ्तारी से पहले और गिरफ्तारी के बाद पुलिस की शक्तियों पर कई नियंत्रण और संतुलन लगाए। माननीय उच्चतम न्यायालय ने देश भर की सभी राज्य सरकारों को निर्देश दिया कि वे पुलिस अधिकारियों को निर्देश दें कि वे मामले के सभी तथ्यों और परिस्थितियों की जांच किए बिना किसी आरोपी को गिरफ्तार न करें और गिरफ्तारी से पहले प्रारंभिक जांच करें।

7- एक सार्वभौमिक सत्य यह भी है कि गिरफ्तारी अपने साथ बहुत अपमान भी लाती है, किसी की स्वतंत्रता को कम करती है और एक अभियुक्त के चरित्र पर हमेशा के लिए एक निशान छोड़ जाती है। एक जेल में बंद अभियुक्त अपनी नौकरी/ प्रतिष्ठा खो देता है। इस तरह उसकी नजरबंदी का बोझ उसके परिवार के निर्दोष सदस्यों पर भी पड़ता है। स्थिति तब और भी खराब हो जाती है जब जेल में बंद व्यक्ति परिवार में एकमात्र कमाने वाला होता है और उसके कारावास से उसके निर्दोष आश्रितों को अनावश्यक पीड़ा होती है।

8. इस प्रकार उपरोक्त अभिमत के मद्देनजर आवेदक के विद्वान अधिवक्ता के तर्कों के परिप्रेक्ष्य में पत्रावली पर उपलब्ध

सारवान तथ्यों एवं परिस्थितियों का समग्र रूप से अवलोकन करने के बाद, सबूतों की प्रकृति और किसी भी ठोस विरोधात्मक सामग्री की अनुपस्थिति एवं उपलब्ध सामग्री से छेड़छाड़ की संभावना न होने के तथ्य को देखते हुए मेरी राय में आवेदक को जमानत पर मुक्त करने का उपयुक्त आधार है।

9. अतः वाद के गुण-दोष पर बिना कोई टिप्पणी किए हुए आवेदक को उपरोक्त वर्णित अपराध में संबंधित न्यायालय की संतुष्टि पर व्यक्तिगत बंध-पत्र एवं उसी धनराशि के दो स्थानीय प्रतिभू प्रस्तुत करने पर निम्नलिखित शर्तों के साथ जमानत पर छोड़ दिया जाय।

1. आवेदक विवेचना या परीक्षण के दौरान अभियोजन साक्ष्यों के साथ छेड़छाड़ नहीं करेगा।

2. आवेदक अभियोजन साक्षियों व पीड़िता/ शिकायतकर्ता को डरायेगा/धमकायेगा नहीं।

3. आवेदक न्यायालय के आदेशों का पालन करेगा, वह परीक्षण के दौरान बिना कोई अनावश्यक स्थगन लिए नियत तिथि पर न्यायालय में उपस्थित होगा तथा परीक्षण में ईमानदारी से सहयोग करेगा।

4. आवेदक जमानत पर रिहा होने के बाद जमानत की स्वतंत्रता का दुरुपयोग नहीं करेगा और किसी भी अपराधिक गतिविधि में लिप्त नहीं होगा न कोई अपराधिक कृत्य करेगा।

5. आवेदक प्रत्यक्ष या अप्रत्यक्ष रूप से मामले के तथ्यों से परिचित किसी भी व्यक्ति या पुलिस अधिकारियों को कोई प्रलोभन

या धमकी नहीं देगा न ही उनसे कोई वायदा करेगा, जिसके कारण उन्हें न्यायालय में तथ्यों को उजागर करने से विरत रहना पड़े।

उपरोक्त शर्तों में से किसी के उल्लंघन के मामले में, परीक्षण न्यायालय आवेदक की जमानत नियमानुसार रद्द करने को स्वतंत्र है।

10. यह बहुत ही आश्चर्यजनक है कि कथित पीड़िता दिनांक 12.01.2016को अवर न्यायालय में पक्षद्रोही हो गयी तथा अवर न्यायालय में यह वाद विगत 9 वर्षों से विचारण में चल रहा है, अभी तक सत्र परीक्षण का निस्तारण नहीं हुआ है। इस विलंब का खामियाजा आवेदक को भुगतना पड़ रहा है। जबकि न्यायिक प्रक्रिया का सिद्धांत है कि सौ अपराधी भले छूट जाय, किंतु एक निर्दोष व्यक्ति को सजा नहीं होनी चाहिए। इसलिए मामले के तथ्यों एवं परिस्थितियों को देखते हुए अवर न्यायालय को निर्देशित किया जाता है कि इस मामले से संबंधित सत्र परीक्षण का निस्तारण दिन प्रति दिन सुनवाई के आधार पर आज से 06 माह के अंदर करना सुनिश्चित किया जाय।

7. U.O.I. Vs K.A. Najeeb reported in (2021)3 SCC 713

(Delivered by Hon'ble Om Prakash Shukla, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Ajeet Pratap Singh and Sri Zia Ul Qayum learned counsel for the appellant and learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. The delay in filing the present appeal was wrongly reported by the Stamp reporter. A fresh report on the delay was called for and as per the corrected report marked on the back of page no. 7 of the memo of appeal, the appeal is delayed by 368 days.

3. This Court on the objection of delay raised in Criminal Appeal Defective No. 214 of 2022 while disposing of the delay condonation application by order dated 4.4.2023 observed as under :-

"Learned counsel for the respondent in reply to the application for condonation of delay has pointed out that there is a statutory bar appended in the 2nd proviso to Section 21 (5) of the National Investigation Agency Act, 2008 not to entertain any appeal beyond the expiry of 90 days.

Suffice it to say that the right to life and personal liberty guaranteed under Article 21 of the Constitution of India cannot be restricted and abridged on the strength of a procedural provision which is to serve the purpose of law. Such a bar is not absolute, therefore, we are not convinced to reject the appeal on the ground of limitation particularly when the right of personal liberty is to be agitated through an appeal only as against the judgment, sentence or order".

The impugned order giving rise to the present appeal was passed on 22.3.2022, which was received on behalf of the appellant on 23.3.2022, yet the appeal has been filed after a delay of one year. The plea that a recently filed application for correction of the impugned order was disposed of on 19.4.2023 is unconvincing as the application itself was filed beyond the period of 90 days and secondly, the correction of any typographical mistake will relate back to the date when the order was initially passed, therefore, it shall be of no help against the statutory objection raised.

4. Right to appeal for protection of a right guaranteed under Article 21 of the Constitution of India is concomitantly an essential part of right to fair trial and one of the basic structure of our Constitution. The bar contemplated under the second proviso appended to Section 21(5) of the Act, 2008, according to the State, is intended to oust the jurisdiction of this Court by the Damocles sword of delay, however the said deprivation of a fundamental right juxtaposed to law of limitation is the larger question of public importance that has surfaced before this Court in the present appeal. The precisely worded order passed by this Court on 4.4.2023, mentioned above, does not approve of the bar in absolute terms.

5. There are conflicting views on the point as is reflected in the judgment rendered by the High Court of Jammu and Kashmir in the case of National Investigation Agency through its Chief Investigating Officer, Jammu versus 3rd Additional Sessions Judge District Court Jammu and Delhi High Court in the case of Farhan Shaikh versus State (National Investigation Agency) reported in 2019 SCC OnLine Del 9158 viz a viz Kerala High Court in the case of Nasir Ahmad vs. National Investigation Agency reported in 2015 SCC Online Ker 39625 and Calcutta High Court in the case of Sheikh Rahamtulla and others versus National Investigation Agency reported in 2023 SCC Online Cal 493.

6. This Court in the order extracted above passed in Criminal Appeal Defective No. 214 of 2022 has taken a view in line with the sanctity of Article 21 of the Constitution of India and keeping in view the ratio decidendi of the full Bench Judgment rendered by this Court in the case of In Re Provision of Section 14A of SC/ST(Prevention of Atrocities Amendment Act, 2005 versus Nil along with other connected matters in Criminal Writ Public Interest Litigation No. 8 of 2018.

7. It is to be noted that the full Bench Judgment of this Court passed in the case of In Re Provision of Section 14A of SC/ST(Prevention of Atrocities Amendment Act, 2005 versus Nil along with other connected matters in Criminal Writ Public Interest Litigation No. 8 of 2018 does offer support to our view of reading the procedure fairly but in absence of a challenge to the statutory bar enacted under the IIInd proviso appended to Section 21(5) of the NIA Act, 2008, by any party till date, the State has reiterated its stand by laying emphasis on the judgments rendered by Calcutta and Kerala High Courts as well as the interim stay order passed by the Apex Court in the case of State(NIA) versus Farhan Shaikh-Special Leave Petition(Criminal) Diary No(s). 41439 of 2019 on 2.12.2019.

8. It is true that the right to life and personal liberty as embodied under Article 21 of the Constitution of India conferred to the citizenry is fundamental but the security of the State is of equal paramount significance. The former is guaranteed to the people as fundamental, whereas, the later is an essential facet of duty which the welfare State owes to the collective peaceful existence of people within a sovereign State.

9. This Court under the changed circumstances would have relegated the matter back to the trial court for fresh consideration of bail but on a careful consideration of the legal provisions, the impugned order being a final order under the NIA Act is amenable only to the appellate jurisdiction of this Court, as the power to review/reconsider is not conferred upon the trial court. The bar akin to Section 362 Cr.P.C., therefore, operates for want of an enabling provision to review. Resorting to the recourse of remedy under Article 226/227 of the Constitution of India or inherent powers of this Court, in ordinary circumstances, is discouraged due to availability of the appellate remedy as has been well discussed in the full Bench Judgment of this Court mentioned supra. The answer to question B in the full Bench judgment makes the point clear and the same is reproduced below :-

"B. Whether in view of the provisions contained in Section 14-A of the Amending Act, a petition under the provisions of Article 226/227 of the Constitution of India or a revision under Section 397 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (in short 'Cr.P.C.') or a petition under Section 482 Cr.P.C., is maintainable. OR in other words, whether by virtue of Section 14-A of the Amending Act, the powers of High Court under Article 226/227 of the Constitution or its revisional powers or the powers under Section 482 Cr.P.C. shall stand ousted ?"

At the outset, our answer to the first part of the question is in the negative.

In other words, where an appeal under sub-section (1) and/or sub-section (2) of Section 14A of the Amending Act is maintainable against any judgment, sentence or order, not being interlocutory in nature, a petition under the provisions of Articles 226/227 of the Constitution of India or a revision under Section 397 Cr.P.C. or a petition under Section 482 Cr.P.C. would not be maintainable. We deal with this question bearing in mind our opinion on the first question. In other words, we deal with this question conscious that the powers of this Court to entertain an appeal even after expiry of the period of 180 days from the date of the judgment, sentence or order appealed from, if it is satisfied that the appellant had sufficient cause for not preferring the appeal within the said period are retained".

Moreover, this Court lacks concurrent jurisdiction for grant of bail under the NIA, Act like under Section 439/438 Cr.P.C. and the power is conferred to this Court through appellate jurisdiction alone. Thus, the embargo of limitation of 90 days virtually renders an aggrieved person remediless which in the matter of rights guaranteed under Article 21 of the Constitution of India cannot be weighed lightly. Deprivation of a right guaranteed under Article 21 of the Constitution of India through procedure is not the purpose of law and the right to life and personal liberty, in ordinary circumstances, cannot be irrationally barred even for a sufferer who seems indolent. The Court in this regard would hasten to take note of the Supreme Court decision reported in 1956 SC 367 AIR(Messrs. Mela Ram & Sons versus Commissioner of Income Tax, Punjab). Bar on a remedy does not deprive a person of his rights is the ratio decidendi of the above judgment.

10. In a recent decision rendered by Hon'ble the Apex Court in the case of Union of India versus K.A. Najeed reported in (2021)3 SCC 713, it would be profitable to extract para 17 which for ready reference reads as under :-

17. It is thus clear to us that the presence of statutory restrictions like Section 43-D(5) of UAPA per-se does not oust the ability of Constitutional Courts to grant bail on grounds of violation of Part III of the Constitution. Indeed, both the restrictions under a Statute as well as the powers exercisable under Constitutional Jurisdiction can be well harmonised. Whereas at commencement of proceedings, the courts are expected to appreciate the legislative policy against grant of bail but the rigours of such provisions will melt down where there is no likelihood of trial being completed within a reasonable time and the period of incarceration already undergone has exceeded a substantial part of the prescribed sentence. Such an approach would safeguard against the possibility of provisions like Section 43-D(5) of UAPA being used as the sole metric for denial of bail or for wholesale breach of constitutional right to speedy trial".

The position in the case at hand is somewhat similar. Defeating the right to appeal within the scope of procedure as postulated under the second proviso appended to Section 21(5) of the NIA Act, even if it is understood that the same does not render an aggrieved party altogether remediless, due to the remedy available under Article 136 of the Constitution of India i.e. the appellate jurisdiction of the Supreme Court against a judgment or order. However, if the Hon'ble Apex Court within exercise of its appellate jurisdiction can go into the adjudication of the surviving rights protected under Article 21 of the Constitution of India, the ouster of High Court jurisdiction due to the bar of limitation of 90 days imposed by the statute is far from fair and reasonable, especially when the Hon'ble Apex Court has held in K.A. Najeeb case(supra), that the presence of statutory restriction perse does not oust the ability of Constitutional Courts to grant bail on grounds of violation of Part III of the Constitution.

11. This Court cannot be oblivious of the fact that the law relating to limitation is procedural in nature, whereas the law relating to right of Appeal, even though remedial is substantive in nature. Section 21 of the NIA Act, 2008 is reproduced below :-

21 Appeals. - (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code, an appeal shall lie from any judgment, sentence or order, not being an interlocutory order, of a Special Court to the High Court both on facts and on law.

(2) Every appeal under sub-section (1) shall be heard by a Bench of two Judges of the High Court and shall, as far as possible, be disposed of within a period of three months from the date of admission of the appeal.

(3) Except as aforesaid, no appeal or revision shall lie to any court from any judgment, sentence or order including an interlocutory order of a Special Court.

(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (3) of section 378 of the Code, an appeal shall lie to the High Court against an order of the Special Court granting or refusing bail.

(5) Every appeal under this section shall be preferred within a period of thirty days from the date of the judgment, sentence or order appealed from: Provided that the High Court may entertain an appeal after the expiry of the said period of thirty days if it is satisfied that the appellant had sufficient cause for not preferring the appeal within the period of thirty days: Provided further that no appeal shall be entertained after the expiry of period of ninety days.

The appeal as a remedy by virtue of Section 21(1) of NIA Act, 2008 enables this Court to go into both issues of questions of fact and law. Moreover, the NIA Act, 2008 takes special care of expediency while providing for the disposal of appeals within three months from the date of admission, therefore, the intention of legislature to defeat the purpose of law and the right to personal liberty under the cloak of limitation period could not be the essence and spirit of the rule of law and the legislature would ordinarily not have intended to defeat the sanctity of Article 21 of the Constitution of India on that account. The process of law in the matter of Article 21 of the Constitution of India under any circumstances, irrespective of the form in which remedy is provided, cannot be silenced and that is how it is a part and parcel of the basic structure of the Constitution of India inclusive of fair procedure. The question of challenge to a statutory provision does not arise for it is well settled that any statutory restriction is subservient to the mandate of part-III of the Constitution of India and no part of it can be read to override the sanctity and essence of Article 21 of the Constitution of India in particular.

12. Further, it is also interesting to note that Section 21(2) of the NIA Act, 2008 mandates the High Court to decide 'every' appeal filed under Sub-section(1), whereas, IInd proviso appended to Sub-section(5) ousts the jurisdiction of the High Court beyond 90 days, therefore, the two provisions have to be read harmoniously. Needless to say that every appeal brought to the High Court can only be decided on merit provided the provision of limitation is understood not to oust the power of this Court to condone the delay. Any other interpretation of the provision would not only do violence to the rights guaranteed under Part III of our Constitution, but would also be at variance with the fundamental right of personal liberty, which lies at the heart of the notion of a fair procedure guaranteed under Article 14 and 21 of our Constitution.

13. In the result, we have no hesitation to put on record that the rejection of the objection raised by the State in our order dated 4.4.2023 is nothing but a fair and harmonious reading of the proviso. The reasoning advanced and strengthened by the High Court of Jammu and Kashmir in the case of National Investigation Agency through its Chief Investigating Officer, Jammu versus 3rd Additional Sessions Judge District Court Jammu proceeds in furtherance of the object and sanctity of Article 21 of the Constitution of India and is harmoniously balanced between an individual right of a citizen with the interest of the State to secure law and order for its citizen.

14. In any view of the matter, the Apex Court being seized of the issue in the case of State (NIA) versus Farhan Sheikh would soon resolve the conflicting opinions and settle the law on the point.

15. Until an authoritative view is pronounced by the Supreme Court of India, the order passed by this Court on 4.4.2023 in our considered opinion, is the good law. Accordingly, the application for condonation of delay is allowed. The appeal may be registered and assigned a regular number.

16. Admit.

17. Let the objection be filed within two weeks.

Counsel for the Respondent:

A. Criminal Law - Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 - Section 374(2) - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Sections 148 - 302/149 - Challenge to-Conviction- the autopsy report of the deceased wherein incised wounds along with punctured wounds and abrasions have been found on the body of the deceased, doctor P.W.3 has opined that the injuries to the deceased were probably caused by use of spade and spear hence, the weapon carrying by the accused was used in the commission of the crime hence, ocular version is fully supported by the medical evidence-statement of P.W.1 that there was no enmity between the informant's side and accused but however, it has been held that the enmity or motive has no significance in a criminal case based upon the ocular version and in the present case the ocular version speaking against the co-accused and confirming his participation in the crime has been fully corroborated by the medical evidence- the deposition of the eye-witnesses so far as it relates to the non-participation of the acquitted accused persons in the crime is found correct except co-accused but in view of the non-application of the maxim, "falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus" in India, we also cannot hold that the witnesses are not reliable or credible. - this is a general law that the ocular evidence may be given priority over the medical evidence and if the witnesses of fact are reliable their evidence should not be rejected-Appellants died during the pendency of appeal and appeal qua them abated. (Para 1 to 101)

B. Falsity of a particular material witness or material particular would not ruin it from the beginning to end. The maxim "falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus" has no application in India and the witnesses cannot be branded as liars. The maxim "falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus" has not received general acceptance nor has this maxim come to occupy the status of rule of law. It is merely a rule of caution. All that it amounts to, is that in such cases testimony may be disregarded, and not that it must be disregarded. The doctrine merely involves the question of weight of evidence which a court may apply in a given set of circumstances, but it is not what may be called "a mandatory rule of evidence". The doctrine is a dangerous one specially in India for if a whole body of the testimony were to be rejected, because a witness was evidently speaking an untruth in some aspect, it is to be feared that administration of criminal justice would come to a dead stop. Witnesses just cannot help in giving embroidery to a story, however, true in the main. Therefore, it has to be appraised in each case as to what extent the evidence is worthy of acceptance, and merely because in some respects the court considers the same to be insufficient for placing reliance on the testimony of a witness, it does not necessarily follow as a matter of law that it must be disregarded in all respects as well. The evidence has to be sifted with care. The aforesaid dictum is not a sound rule for the reason that one hardly comes across a witness whose evidence does not contain a grain of untruth or at any rate exaggeration, embroideries or embellishment. (Para 98)

He also performed the inquest of the dead body of the deceased and relevant papers for post mortem were also prepared by him and the dead body was sent for post mortem. Inquest report and relevant papers prepared for post mortem have been proved as Ex.Ka-8/1 to Ex.Ka-12 by this witness. He has also proved the memo of seizure of blood stained and plain soil as Ex.Ka-14 and the bundles of the aforesaid articles as material Ex.Ka-4 and Ka-5. He has also narrated this fact that the accused persons were absconding and punitive processes were issued against them and he has proved the same as Ex.Ka-14 to Ex.Ka-45, which are under the signature and hand writing of S.I. Ram Tej Pandey, who was instructed by him for the search of the accused persons. Charge sheet Ex.Ka-46 has also been proved by this witness.

30. Learned counsel for the appellants assailed the impugned judgement on many grounds. It has been argued that the ocular evidence adduced by the prosecution is concocted and as a matter of fact, there was no eye-witness to the incident. There is ample evidence on record to show that due to enmity, accused persons/ appellants were falsely implicated in this case. The deceased himself had criminal antecedents and the possibility of his being murdered by some other persons cannot be ruled out.

The evidence of fact is unnatural and the sequence of the incidents, as narrated by the witnesses of fact, is improbable. There are material contradictions in the depositions of the witnesses of fact. The investigation is highly faulty and place of occurrence is also not certain. F.S.L report and the medical evidence does not help the prosecution at all. The learned trial Court has miserably failed to appreciate the evidence on record and it has totally discarded and misread the documentary evidence adduced by the defence. The convicts had no motive to do away with the deceased. On the basis of the aforesaid submissions and on other grounds as well, it has been prayed that the impugned judgement and order of conviction deserve to be set aside by allowing the present appeal. Further it has been submitted by the learned counsel for the opposite parties in the Revision Petition that the part of impugned judgment recording acquittal of some of the accused persons requires no interference.

31. Per contra, learned A.G.A. and learned counsels for appellants in the Government Appeal No. 748/1981 and the learned counsel for the revisionist as well have vehemently argued that present is a case based on ocular evidence and the witnesses of fact are reliable. The place of occurrence is fixed and the medical evidence is clearly in conformity with the prosecution case. The accused persons had a strong motive to kill the deceased and the F.S.L report also supports the prosecution version. There was no possibility of false implication of any of the accused persons. The learned trial Court has meticulously and carefully scrutinized the evidence adduced by the prosecution as well as by the defence and reached at a right conclusion that the convicts are guilty of murder of the deceased. It has been further submitted that to acquit some of the accused persons was not proper and to that extent, the impugned judgement deserves to be modified and the acquitted accused persons be also convicted for the offence charged against them. On the aforesaid grounds dismissal of the present appeal and allowing of the Government Appeal and criminal revision has been prayed for.

32. At the very outset, it has to be kept in mind that charges against accused persons Vishram, Dayaram @ Shubh Karan, Ram Ratan, Arjun, Ghanshayam were framed under Sections 302/149, 148, 324/149, 323/149 and 307/149 I.P.C. After conclusion of the trial, accused persons Ram Ratan, Ghanshayam, Arjun, Vishram, Dayaram @ Shubh Karan were held guilty and convicted for the offences under Sections 302/149, 148 I.P.C. and acquitted under Sections 307/149, 323/149, 324/149 I.P.C. Rest of the accused persons, namely, Narbadeshwar, Duryodhan, Balgovind, Raghunath @ Bhurari were acquitted of all offences for which, they were charged. It means that the trial court reached to the conclusion that no injury was caused to the injured in the said incident and the main offence of murder was found proved against five of the total nine accused persons.

33. This is the specific case of the prosecution that accused persons, forming an unlawful assembly equipped with dangerous weapons like lathi, spade and spear, came to the spot and with an intention to kill the deceased gave several blows to him resulting into his death.

34. It was specifically stated by P.W.1, the eye-witness, that after bitterly assaulting the deceased, accused Vishram, exhorting the other accused persons, inflicted 2 or 3 more injuries of spade upon the neck of the deceased, which resulted into his instantaneous death. In his cross examination, he has made some specific statements and states that when the deceased fell down on the ground after sustaining injuries, the left portion of his body was on the down side and right portion was on the upper side and all the injuries of lathi, spear and spade which he sustained after falling on the ground, were over the right portion of his body. His brother Ram Nath @ Vijai also sustained injuries by use of the aforesaid weapons in the said occurrence.

35. P.W.2, the other eye-witness also deposes that at the time of the incident, when accused persons were chasing the deceased after making assault upon him, he slipped and fell down and even then accused Vishram exhorted the other accused persons and himself made two or three spade blows over the neck of the deceased. In his cross examination, he has clarified that when the accused persons were chasing the deceased, they were making assault upon him and the blows were inflicted over the sides of the body and the back portion also, although he could not see as to on which parts of the body he sustained injuries. When the accused persons fled away, he found the injuries over the right side of the neck of the deceased and also over the sides and back of body. He has also affirmed this fact that when the deceased fell down on the ground the left part of his body was downward.

36. P.W.5 Narbadeshwar and P.W.7 Vijay @ Ram Nath are also eye-witnesses of the incident and they have narrated the story in the same manner as P.W.1 and P.W.2 depose.

37. In view of the specific ocular evidence about the manner and use of weapons in the occurrence, the medical evidence is to be examined. Dr. S.S. Srivastava who performed the autopsy of the deceased, has been examined as P.W.3 and has proved the autopsy report as Exhibit-Ka-5. The doctor has found as many as 13 injuries over the body of the deceased out of which 9 injuries were incised wounds over the right portion of the body of the deceased. Injuries on the face and skull were also found, two stab wounds and two injuries of abrasion were also there. Significantly, the doctor has found clotted blood beneath the skin of the neck and opined that due to excessive haemorrhage and shock, the deceased died and that was caused due to ante mortem injuries. The expert, corroborating the prosecution version, has also stated that injury nos. 1 to 9 might be caused by use of spade, injury nos. 10 and 11 by use of spear and if a person falls on the ground, abrasion may be caused. This is also significant to note that P.W.3 had made a specific statement that if a person falls with left side downwards and is assaulted in that position, all the aforesaid injuries are possible to be caused. He has also stated in his cross-examination that it appears from the perusal of the injuries that the deceased was assaulted forcibly and it is quite possible that injuries might be inflicted when he was lying or was in a position with his left portion downwards. However, he has also stated that if the deceased dies only after one or two blows and he is continuously being beaten even after his death, it is not possible to differentiate between ante mortem and post mortem injuries.

38. A lot has been argued on the point of motive by the learned counsel for the appellants. At the very outset on the point of motive, the documents adduced by way of defence evidence have been impressed upon. It has been argued on behalf of the appellants that on account of old animosity between the parties all the accused persons have been falsely implicated.

39. The arguments on the point of motive and animosity take us to the documents adduced by the defence, which are on record as Ex.Kha-1 to Ex.Kha-8.

40. Ex.Kha-1 is the certified copy of the judgement passed by Sessions Judge, Gorakhpur on 24.5.1962, who, thereby convicting the accused persons Triambak Prasad Mishra, Shiv Murti and Ram Ratan u/s 302 and 302/34 I.P.C., has given benefit of doubt to one of the accused Shambhoo Saran Misra.

41. In the same manner Ex.Kha-2 is the certified copy of the judgement passed by Sessions Judge, Gorakhpur in Sessions Trial No. 107 of 1965, wherein the accused persons, five in numbers, including the deceased Triambak Prasad Mishra, were acquitted vide judgement and order dated 31.3.1966.

42. From the perusal of Ex.Kha-3, we find that one Vaneshwar Shukla filed a criminal complaint dated 24.3.1975 before the Court of Munsif Magistrate, Bansaon, Gorakhpur, wherein 14 accused were alleged to take away the crop from the Khaliha of the complainant and deceased Triambak Prasad Mishra and some police personnel were named as accused. It was argued that this document shows that the deceased was a muscle man and he had friendly terms with the police personnel.

We do not think that the present document has any impact upon the merits of the present case because this document shows nothing against the I.O. or any police official related to the present case.

43. Ex.Kha-4 is a certified copy of the statement of witness Ram Gulam before the Court of C.O., which was recorded on 9.7.1968.

44. Ex.Kha-5 is the statement of witness Ram Ratan before the Court of C.O. IInd Sadar, Gorakhpur in the case of Ram Samuj and ors. vs. Triambak Prasad Mishra and that statement was recorded on 2.5.1968.

45. Ex.Kha-6 is a copy of judgment delivered by Deputy Director of Consolidation, Gorakhpur in a consolidation case filed by Gajraj, father of the present appellant Ram Ratan, against Vishram and Ram Gulam. It appears from the perusal of the aforesaid document that the said case was decided on 18.01.1971, whereas the incident in the present case was occurred on 10.04.1978, i.e almost 7 years after the aforesaid judgment.

46. Likewise, Ex.Kha-7 is the copy of statement of D.W.2 Kripa Shankar Dubey dated 18.12.1969 in consolidation case between Triambak Prasad Mishra and others Vs. Bhawani and ors.

47. Ex.Kha-8 is the copy of sale deed, which was executed by Smt. Kaula, widow of Raja Ram, in favour of deceased Triambak Prasad Mishra on 24.12.1971, which relates to the time much before the date of present occurrence.

48. By way of the aforesaid defence evidence, an attempt was made to show that the parties had been on inimical terms for long, and several litigations had been pending between them. It was also tried to show that the deceased had a criminal history and even in a case of murder, he was awarded life sentence by the Sessions Court of Gorakhpur prior to the present occurrence.

49. Anxious consideration to the evidence on record has been given by the learned trial Court in respect of enmity between the parties and also to the criminal antecedents of the deceased. On the basis of the evidence adduced by the defence side if taken as it is, it can be said that the parties had been on inimical terms but the genuine question arises whether only on the basis of the old enmity between the parties, it was probable and justified for the informant side to falsely implicate the accused persons and thereby to spare the actual assailants.

50. The relationship of the witness of fact with the deceased has been vehemently impressed upon. It is also highlighted by the appellants that since the occurrence happened in the day light at a public place, in all the probabilities, persons from the public must have been present at the time of incident but the independent witnesses were concealed by the prosecution in the case in hand.

51. The contention arose by the learned counsel for the appellants find its answer in State of Andhra Pradesh Vs. S. Rayappa and Ors. (2006) 4 SCC 512 wherein the Hon'ble Supreme Court examined several aspects of a criminal trial and this fact was also taken into account as to why independent witnesses ignore to depose in favour of the prosecution and in what circumstances the probability of false implication may be ruled out. It was also clarified as to why the prosecution in so many cases is bound to rely upon the witnesses, who happen to be the relative of the deceased (victim). It was held in para 6 and 7 -

"6.....By now it is a well-established principle of law that testimony of a witness otherwise inspiring confidence cannot be discarded on the ground that he being a relation of the deceased is an interested witness. A close relative who is a very natural witness cannot be termed as an interested witness. The term interested postulates that the person concerned must have some direct interest in seeing the accused person being convicted somehow or the other either because of animosity or some other reasons."

7. On the contrary it has now almost become a fashion that the public is reluctant to appear and depose before the court especially in criminal case because of varied reasons. Criminal cases are kept dragging for years to come and the witnesses are harassed a lot. They are being threatened, intimidated and at the top of all they are subjected to lengthy cross-examination. In such a situation, the only natural witness available to the prosecution would be the relative witness. The relative witness is not necessarily an interested witness. On the other hand, being a close relation to the deceased they will try to prosecute the real culprit by stating the truth. There is no reason as to why a close relative will implicate and depose falsely against somebody and screen the real culprit to escape unpunished. The only requirement is that the testimony of the relative witnesses should be examined cautiously. The High Court has brushed aside the testimony of PW 1 and PW 2 on the sole ground that they are interested witnesses being relatives of the deceased.

52. The trial Court has discussed various aspects of motive and enmity existing between the parties in the present case. Reliance has been placed upon Bikau Pandey Vs. State of Bihar (2003) 12 SCC 616 by the learned state counsel wherein it has been held that when the direct evidence establishes the crime, motive is of no significance and pales into insignificance.

53. In Anil Rai Vs. State of Bihar (2001) 7 SCC 318 it has been held that enmity is a double edged weapon, which can be a motive for the crime as also the ground for false implication of the accused persons.

54. There are catena of decisions on the point that in a case based upon the eye witness account, the motive loses its significance. In Deepak Verma Vs. State of Himachal Pradesh (2011) 10 SCC 129, it has been held as under:

"...Proof of motive is not a sine qua non before a person can be held guilty of commission of crime. Motive being a matter of mind, is more often than not difficult to establish through evidence."

55. However, in this case a motive has been assigned in the FIR to the effect that the parties have been on inimical terms, as they have some land and litigation disputes since long. Enmity between the parties is no doubt a double edged weapon. If on account of enmity, accused can be falsely implicated by the complainant party, at the same time due to that very enmity the accused may commit crime also against the complainant party.

56. The witnesses of fact have been cross examined on the point of previous litigation and enmity between the parties and we have no hesitation to note that enmity is an admitted fact in the present case and the prosecution witnesses nowhere make any attempt to conceal the factum of animosity, which has already been alleged in the FIR and in respect of which evidence has been adduced by both the sides.

57. We have earlier scrutinized the evidence of fact adduced by the prosecution and we find that there is no material contradiction in the testimonies of the witnesses of fact. It is true that some minor discrepancies have been rightly pointed out by the appellants in the deposition of P.W.1, P.W.2, P.W.5 and P.W.7, but we have convinced to hold that on all the material points e.g. date, time and place of occurrence, and the manner of assault etc, there is no such contradiction, which may be taken as material contradiction or which may falsify the prosecution case.

58. One specific point has been raised by the learned counsel for the appellants that P.W.1 has admitted that one day before the incident the accused persons had beaten and threatened the deceased but however, this incident was not complained of anywhere. It is further argued that P.W.1 is a teacher in the primary school and on the date of occurrence he was on leave. His school opens at 6.30 in the morning and the leave was taken one day before the date of occurrence. It is argued that it was not natural that P.W.1, who ought to be present in his school as the board examinations were going on, had suddenly took leave from the school as if it was known to him what was going to happen and this is an improbable and unnatural circumstance. We do not find any force in this argument as it is not the statement of P.W.1 that he suddenly took leave on the date of occurrence rather he had already applied for leave on Saturday whereas the incident happened on Monday.

59. It is vehemently argued by the learned counsel for the appellants that P.W.1, P.W.2, P.W.5 and P.W.7 did not make any attempt to save the deceased from the assault of the accused persons, which was again an unnatural conduct of their part but if we sift the statements of the aforesaid witnesses, we find that the witnesses were stunned as the incident happened all of a sudden. P.W.1 makes specific statement on this point that during course of occurrence, he was shouting for help, some villagers were also present there, who witnessed the occurrence but they made their protest only up to a limited extent. It was further argued that P.W.5 also states that no villager made any attempt to save the victim and almost similar statements are found in the testimonies of P.W.2 and P.W.7.

60. We have made a meticulous scrutiny of the evidence of aforesaid witnesses on this point also and find that the conduct of the witnesses was not unnatural as no one can preplan for a specific reaction, if a crime takes place staggering him. In such a situation, one may run away from the place of incident or may request the accused to leave the victim or may stand stunned without making any protest in a state of fear etc.

61. In Sucha Singh Vs. State Of Punjab, (2003) 7 SCC 643, it was found that the witnesses did not come to rescue of the deceased and in the facts and circumstances it was held by the Hon'ble Apex Court that a particular reaction conduct and behaviour of the witnesses cannot be a ground to discard their evidence when they are unarmed and the accused are armed with deadly weapons.

62. The relevant point is that whatsoever their reaction may be, there is a consistency in their deposition, which makes as countenanced in material aspects and minor contradictions occurred in their testimonies are not sufficient to falsify their entire testimony.

63. One specific point has been raised in respect of the testimony of P.W.5 to show that his presence at the place of occurrence was doubtful. P.W.5 is also a teacher in the primary school and he states that on the date of occurrence, he did not go to school and leave application was sent by him on the ground of some urgent work in the very morning of the date of occurrence itself.

64. We do not find anything unnatural in the deposition of P.W.5. He narrates the story of the occurrence in the same manner as other witnesses of fact depose. He may be on leave on the date of occurrence on account of some work in his field as he states and this is not sufficient to make his testimony unreliable or to falsify his presence at the place of occurrence at the time of incident.

65. The learned trial Court has made a detailed scrutiny of the evidence of fact on record. It emerges out from the perusal of the impugned judgement and the record that eye-witnesses were known to the appellants and no neutral witness was examined but this factor is never sufficient to exonerate the appellants. Hence, the evidence of witnesses of fact is reliable and trustworthy having no contradiction on material point, which might hit the very root of the prosecution case and on the basis of the aforesaid evidence, the conclusion we reach at, is obvious that it is not a case of false implication due to the old enmity between the parties rather it is well proved from the evidence that due to the enmity the present crime has been committed and the issue of enmity goes against the appellants and in the same manner the issue of the witnesses of fact being related to the deceased also does not go in favour of the appellants.

66. Reliance has been placed upon Bhagwan Jagannath Markad Vs. State of Maharashtra (2016) 10 SCC 537 wherein it has been held that the testimony of a witness in a criminal trial cannot be discarded merely because the witness is a relative or family member of the victim of the offence. In such a case, Court has to adopt a careful approach in analyzing the evidence of such witness and if the testimony of the related witness is otherwise found credible, accused can be convicted on the basis of the testimony of such related witness.

67. Emphasis has been laid down on Surinder Kumar Vs. State of Punjab (2020) 2 SCC 563 by the learned A.G.A. wherein it has been reiterated that merely because prosecution did not examine any independent witness, would not necessarily lead to conclusion that accused was falsely implicated.

68. The place of occurrence is always an important factor, which may falsify or strengthen the prosecution case and if the place of occurrence is not certain, definitely the prosecution case falls within the cloud of suspicion. If we examine the present case in this purview, we note that in the FIR itself, it has been mentioned that when the deceased came out of Shiv temple after offering worship, he was surrounded by accused persons carrying weapons and when he tried to escape, he was assaulted by them in the khalihan of Ram Kumar. P.W.1, P.W.2, P.W.5 and P.W.7 narrate the same story and place of occurrence as per their deposition, is found to be the same.

69. P.W.14, the I.O. has explained the proceedings of the investigation in his deposition and in the site plan Ex.Ka-13 prepared by him, khalihan of Ram Kumar has been mentioned as the place where the deceased was murdered. The Shiv temple has also been shown in the site plan and in the west of Shiv temple, the main place of occurrence is shown. We find specific statement in the testimony of P.W.1 that when the deceased was surrounded by the accused persons after coming out of the Shiv temple, he ran away towards the west and reached the khalihan of Ram Kumar, where he was assaulted. It is notable that the place of occurrence has been shown in the west of the Shiv temple in the site plan of Ex.Ka-13. The I.O. has specifically shown the whole topography of the crime scene by different signs, the place from where the witnesses saw the occurrence, the trees on spot and fields of different persons existing there have been specifically mentioned in Ex.Ka-13. The witnesses of fact have also been cross examined on the point of the place of occurrence and the topography of the area and whatsoever they have stated we find the same in the site plan Ex.Ka-13 and on the basis of that we have no hesitation to hold that the place of occurrence, the khalihan of Ram Kumar, where the deceased was murdered is a fixed and definite place which is well proved by cogent evidence of the witnesses of fact and by P.W.14, the I.O. himself. Indeed some minor discrepancies over the issue occur in the testimonies of aforesaid witness but the same is not material and is not capable to fluctuate the place of occurrence, which is established by reliable evidence.

70. In Ashok Kumar Chaudhary v. State of Bihar, (2008) 12 SCC 173, it was held that if the testimony of an eye witness is otherwise found trustworthy and reliable, the same cannot be disbelieved and rejected merely because certain insignificant, normal or natural contradictions have appeared into his testimony. If the inconsistencies, contradictions, exaggerations, embellishments and discrepancies in the testimony are only normal and not material in nature, then the testimony of an eye witness has to be accepted and acted upon. Distinctions between normal discrepancies and material discrepancies are that while normal discrepancies do not corrode the credibility of a party's case, material discrepancies do so.

71. Further it was held in Mukesh v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2017) 6 SCC 1 that non-examination of material witness is not a mathematical formula for discarding the weight of the testimony available on record however natural, trustworthy and convincing it may be. It is settled law that non-examination of eye-witness cannot be pressed into service like a ritualistic formula for discarding the prosecution case with a stroke of pen. Court can convict an accused on statement of sole witness even if he is relative of the deceased and non examination of independent witness would not be fatal to the case of prosecution

72. The I.O. has found blood on wheat pair in the khalihan of Ram Kumar and P.W.4 states that he found the dead body in the khalihan of Ram Kumar in the wheat pair and the body was sent for inquest. He has also taken blood stained and plain husk and soil from that very place he found the dead body and prepared the memo Ex.Ka-14.

73. This fact is not disputed by the prosecution that the deceased had a criminal history and defence evidence in this respect is also on record. P.W.1 also admits and find support of P.W. 7 over the issue that his brother Triambak was an accused in the case of murder of Ram Raj and he himself along with the deceased and other persons had been accused in another case of Vaneshwar Shukla. We do not find it a convinced argument that since the deceased was the man of criminal antecedents and had been an accused in a murder case, he might have been killed by some other persons and the reason behind it is that in the present case, the reliable ocular evidence capable of proving the participation of convicts is on record and it is explicit on the basis thereof that it was the appellants who were the author of the crime.

74. Learned counsel for the appellants has further argued that no murder weapon has been recovered during the course of investigation, nor it was brought before the Court, which is a dent in the prosecution case. We are unable to accept this plea as the recovery of murder weapon is never a sine qua non to rely upon the prosecution case. There are catena of decisions, wherein it has been held by the Hon'ble Apex court that non recovery of murder weapon is never fatal to the prosecution case. The important aspect is that the weapons said to be used in the occurrence have been specifically named in the testimony of the eye-witnesses. The medical evidence corroborates the fact that the injuries found on the body of the deceased may be caused by the use of spade, spear and rubbing. We also find that in the inquest report Ex.Ka-8, the Panchas have found that the injuries are on the right side of the body of the deceased, several blows have been inflicted upon his body and their opinion is also in consonance with the prosecution case.

75. Learned counsel for the State has argued that after the incident the accused persons absconded and several punitive process were issued against them under the authority of the Court and in this respect the documents filed as Ex.Ka-14 to Ex.Ka-45 have been impressed upon. It is further submitted that since the accused persons had been absconding, the murder weapon could not be retrieved by the I.O.

76. It was so defined in Nankaunoo Vs. State of U.P. 2016 (3) SCC 317 that when there is ample unimpeachable ocular evidence corroborated by medical evidence, mere non-recovery of weapon from the accused does not affect the prosecution case relating to murder. In the peculiar circumstances of the present case and in the light of the aforesaid legal position non recovery of murder weapon is not fatal to the prosecution case.

77. Recently in State through the Inspector of Police Vs. Laly @ Manikandan and Anr. 2022 SCC On Line SC 1424 (Criminal Appeal no. 1750-1751 of 2022), Hon'ble Apex Court has held that "20.....Similarly, assuming that the recovery of the weapon used is not established or proved also cannot be a ground to acquit the accused when there is a direct evidence of the eye witness. Recovery of the weapon used in the commission of the offence is not a sine qua non to convict the accused. If there is a direct evidence in the form of eye witness, even in the absence of recovery of weapon, the accused can be convicted".

78. The investigation of the case has been assailed on the clunky ground that it is faulty and several acts of negligence and omissions have been caused by the I.O. It is submitted that in reply to some questions during the course of examination the I.O. P.W.14 avoids to answer and simply says that he does not remember that. He has not mentioned anything in respect of recovery of brass or copper lota or wet rice in the temple, which could be indicative of the fact that the deceased had gone to the Shiv temple to offer worship just before the incident. He has also not mentioned in the site plan as to from whose khalihan the witnesses had seen the occurrence. He has also admitted that in the case diary, there is a cutting in the name of the district where the autopsy of the deceased was conducted.

79. We have taken note of the points raised by the learned counsel for the appellants in respect of the negligence and omissions on the part of the I.O. and we find without any hesitation that the I.O. in the investigation of the present case has not made any significant omission or negligence, which could affect the prosecution case adversely. The omissions and negligence are minor in nature and it is a settled law that mere negligence or omission on the party of the I.O. is not sufficient to falsify the prosecution case, which is otherwise proved by reliable and cogent eye-witnesses again.

80. In a catena of decisions like: (i) Khem Ram Vs. State of Himachal Pradesh, (2018) 1 SCC 202, (ii) State of Karnataka

Vs. Suvarnamma, (2015) 1 SCC 323, (iii) Hema Vs. State, 2013 (81) ACC 1 (SC) (Three-Judge Bench), (iv) C. Muniappan Vs. State of TN, 2010 (6) SCJ 822, (v) Acharaparambath Pradeepan Vs. State of Kerala, 2007(57) ACC 293 (SC), (vi) State of Punjab Vs. Hakam Singh, (2005) 7 SCC 408, the legal theory on the point of negligence/ omission on the part of I.O. affecting the prosecution case has been promulgated and the principle we find is that any irregularity or deficiency in investigation by I.O. need not necessarily lead to rejection of the case of prosecution when it is otherwise proved, the only requirement is use of extra caution in evaluating of evidence; a defective investigation cannot be fatal to prosecution where ocular testimony is found cogent and reliable.

81. Likewise, in another recent pronouncement in Munna Lal Vs. State of U.P. with with Shiv Lal Vs. State of U.P. 2023 SCC Online SC 80 (Criminal Appeal No. 490 of 2017), it was re-iterated that, a defective investigation is not always fatal to the prosecution where ocular testimony is found credible and cogent while in such a case the Court has to be circumspect in evaluating the evidence. A faulty investigation cannot in all cases be a determinative factor to throw out a credible prosecution version.

82. So far as the criminal history of the deceased is concerned, no doubt he was a man of criminal antecedents as per evidence on record but the plea raised by the learned counsel for the applicants that due to enmity with so many persons he could have done away with by some other persons is not sustainable in the factual scenario of the present case. The witnesses of fact have categorically stated the role of the present appellants in the occurrence and since they are related to the deceased it was not probable for them to falsely implicate the appellants merely on account of animosity with them and thereby leaving away the actual culprits.

83. Thus, we find that the learned trial Court has not committed any illegality in convicting the present appellants under Section 148, 302/149 I.P.C. The murder of the deceased caused by the appellants is proved beyond reasonable doubt since the appellants after forming an unlawful assembly armed with deadly weapons, which if used as a weapon of an offence were likely to cause death, used violence, they were rightly found guilty of rioting and since the offence was caused in the prosecution of the common object of unlawful assembly formed by the appellants, they were rightly held guilty with the aid of Section 149 I.P.C.

84. In Susanta Das Vs. State of Orissa, (2016) 4 SCC 371, the Hon'ble Apex Court elaborating the legal dictum in respect of offence under Section 149 I.P.C. held that "When once, participation of each member of an unlawful assembly of five or more persons is shown, who indulge in an offence as a member of such an unlawful assembly, for the purposes of invoking Section 149, it is not necessary that there must be specific overt act played by each of the member of such an unlawful assembly in the commission of an offence. What is required to be shown is the participation as a member in pursuance of a common object of the assembly or being a member of that assembly, such person knew as to what is likely to be committed in prosecution of any such common object. In the event of the proof of showing of either of the above conduct of a member of an unlawful assembly, the offence, as stipulated in Section 149 IPC, will stand proved."

85. At the same time, we have also taken into account the Government Appeal filed by the State against the accused persons and also Criminal Revision filed by the original informant against the acquitted accused persons Narbadeshwar, Duryodhan, Balgovind, Raghunath alias Bhorai.

86. It has been submitted by the learned State counsel and learned counsel for the informant that the impugned judgement and order passed by the lower Court so far as it relates to the acquittal of accused persons Narbadeshwar, Duryodhan, Balgovind, Raghunath alias Bhorai is perverse and against the fact and evidence on record. It is very strange that the learned trial Court on the same set of evidence has convicted some of the accused persons but acquitted the four accused persons whereas sufficient evidence against them also was on record. The learned trial Court has completely erred in holding that there was no lathi injury on the body of the deceased and, therefore, accused persons Narbadeshwar, Duryodhan, Raghunath alias Bhorai, who are said to have lathi in their hands by the witnesses of fact cannot be held liable for the offences charged. The learned trial Court ought to have relied upon the ocular evidence, which was trustworthy but he relied upon the medical evidence, which was an incorrect view. It is further argued that the learned trial Court completely failed to consider that accused Balgovind was also equally responsible for the offences charged with and he had active participation in the offence and ample evidence in this regard was available on record but illegally rejected by the trial Court. It is further argued that despite there being sufficient evidence on record to convict all the accused persons under Sections 307/149, 323/149, 324/149 I.P.C., the learned trial Court failed to appreciate the same and acquitted all the accused persons for the aforesaid offence, which was also not legally sustainable. On the basis of the aforesaid grounds it has been submitted that alike the convicted appellants, co-accused persons Narbadeshwar, Duryodhan, Raghunath alias Bhorai and Balgovind also ought to be convicted for the offences charged with.

87. While considering the scope of interference in an appeal or revision against acquittal, it has been held by the Supreme Court that if two views of the evidence are reasonably possible, one supporting the acquittal and other indicating conviction, the High Court should not, in such a situation, reverse the order of acquittal recorded by the trial Court. In the matter of State of Karnataka vs. K. Gopalkrishna, reported in (2005) 9 SCC 291, the Supreme Court, while dealing with an appeal against acquittal, observed as under:

"In such an appeal the Appellate Court does not lightly disturb the findings of fact recorded by the Court below. If on the basis of the same evidence, two views are reasonably possible, and the view favouring the accused is accepted by the Court below, that is sufficient for upholding the order of acquittal. However, if the Appellate Court comes to the conclusion that the findings of the Court below are wholly unreasonable or perverse and not based on the evidence on record, or suffers from serious illegality including ignorance or misreading of evidence on record, the Appellate Court will be justified in setting aside such an order of acquittal."

88. In Sudershan Kumar v. State of Himachal, reported in (2014) 15 SCC 666 the Supreme Court observed thus:-

"31. It has been stated and restated that a cardinal principle in criminal jurisprudence that presumption of innocence of the accused is reinforced by an order of the acquittal. The appellate court, in such a case, would interfere only for very substantial and compelling reason. There is plethora of case laws on this proposition and we need not burden this judgment by referring to those decisions. Our purpose would be served by referring to one reasoned pronouncement entitled Dhanapal v. State which is the judgment where most of the earlier decisions laying down the aforesaid principle are referred to. In para 37, propositions laid down in an earlier case are taken note of as under: -

"37. In Chandrappa v. State of Karnataka, this Court held: (SCC p. 432 para 42),

(1) An appellate court has full power to review, reappreciate and reconsider the evidence upon which the order of acquittal is founded.

(2) The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 puts no limitation, restriction or condition on exercise of such power and an appellate court on the evidence before it may reach its own conclusion, both on questions of fact and of law.

(3) Various expressions, such as, "substantial and compelling reasons", "good and sufficient grounds", "very strong circumstances", "distorted conclusions", "glaring mistakes", etc. are not intended to curtail extensive powers of an appellate court in an appeal against acquittal. Such phraseologies are more in the nature of "flourishes of language" to emphasise the reluctance of an appellate court to interfere with acquittal than to curtail the power of the court to review the evidence and to come to its own conclusion.

(4) An appellate court, however, must bear in mind that in case of acquittal, there is double presumption in favour of the accused. Firstly, the presumption of innocence is available to him under the fundamental principle of criminal jurisprudence that every person shall be presumed to be innocent unless he is proved guilty by a competent court of law. Secondly, the accused having secured his acquittal, the presumption of his innocence is further reinforced, reaffirmed and strengthened by the trial court.

(5) If two reasonable conclusions are possible on the basis of the evidence on record, the appellate court should not disturb the finding of acquittal recorded by the trial court."

32. Thereafter, in para 39, the Court curled out five principles and we would like to reproduce the said para hereunder:

"39. The following principles emerge from the cases above:

1. The accused is presumed to be innocent until proven guilty. The accused possessed this presumption when he was before the trial court. The trial court's acquittal bolsters the presumption that he is innocent.

2. The power of reviewing evidence is wide and the appellate court can re- appreciate the entire evidence on record. It can review the trial court's conclusion with respect to both facts and law, but the Appellate Court must give due weight and consideration to the decision of the trial court.

3. The appellate court should always keep in mind that the trial court had the distinct advantage of watching the demeanour of the witnesses. The trial court is in a better position to evaluate the credibility of the witnesses.

4. The appellate court may only overrule or otherwise disturb the trial court's acquittal if it has "very substantial and compelling reasons" for doing so.

5. If two reasonable or possible views can be reached - one that leads to acquittal, the other to conviction - the High Courts/appellate courts must rule in favour of the accused."

89. In Dilawar Singh v. State of Haryana, (2015) 1 SCC 737, the Supreme Court reiterated the same in paragraphs 36 and 37 as under :

"36. The court of appeal would not ordinarily interfere with the order of acquittal unless the approach is vitiated by manifest illegality. In an appeal against acquittal, this Court will not interfere with an order of acquittal merely because on the evaluation of the evidence, a different plausible view may arise and views taken by the courts below is not correct. In other words, this Court must come to the conclusion that the views taken by the learned courts below, while acquitting, cannot be the views of a reasonable person on the material on record.

36. In Chandrappa v. State of Karnataka, the scope of power of appellate court dealing with an appeal against acquittal has been considered and this Court held as under: (SCC p.432 para 42)

"42....(4) An appellate court, however, must bear in mind that in case of acquittal, there is double presumption in favour of the accused. Firstly, the presumption of innocence is available to him under the fundamental principle of criminal jurisprudence that every person shall be presumed to be innocent unless he is proved guilty by a competent court of

law. Secondly, the accused having secured his acquittal, the presumption of his innocence is further reinforced, reaffirmed and strengthened by the trial court.

(5) If two reasonable conclusions are possible on the basis of the evidence on record, the appellate court should not disturb the finding of acquittal recorded by the trial court."

Unless there are substantial and compelling reasons, the order of acquittal is not required to be reversed in appeal. It has been so stated in State of Rajasthan v. Shera Ram."

90. In the aforesaid legal scenario, if we examine the evidence on record and the view taken by the learned trial Court, we find that in the autopsy report as many as 13 injuries are shown to be inflicted on the body of the deceased out of which injury nos.1 to 9 are incised wounds, injury nos. 10 and 11 are punctured wound and injury nos. 12 and 13 abrasions. The witnesses of fact have narrated that for causing the injuries to the deceased, lathi, spear and spade were used by the accused persons. There is specific evidence on record that accused Narbadeshwar, Duryodhan and Raghunath alias Bhorai were attacking with lathies, which they were having and other accused persons were attacking with spade and spear. Dr. K.M. Singh, P.W.3, who performed autopsy of the deceased, has stated in his evidence that the cause of death was excessive haemorrhage and shock caused by the anti mortem injuries. He has specifically stated that injury no. 1 to 9 are possible to be inflicted with the aid of spade, injury no. 10 and 11 by spear and injury no.12 and 13 may be caused by rubbing and if any person falls upon husk etc. then in that event also injury no.12 and 13 may be caused. It is significant that the medical evidence nowhere suggests that any of the injuries to the deceased may be caused by blow of lathi. P.W.3 even in his examination-in-chief does not state that injury no. 12 and 13 may be caused by lathi blow and on being cross-examined he has stated that if a person is rubbed by any blunt object such as ground or stone, injury no.12 and 13 may possibly be caused. If a person falls on husk, which has some hook, even then injury no. 12 and 13 may be caused and if the husk is only lying on ground, it may be create abrasion. Hence, the medical evidence completely ruled out the use of lathi in the occurrence and a definite conclusion comes out on the basis of appreciation of the medical evidence that the deceased did not sustain injuries by blow of lathi.

91. So far as the injured Vishram is concerned, the learned trial Court has emphasised over the point that charges under Sections 307/149, 323/149, 324/149 I.P.C. were framed in respect of injuries but surprisingly there is no medical report of the injured on record. In the impugned judgement, the statement of P.W. 10 and P.W.13 has been analysed in this regard and the learned trial Court reached the conclusion that from the prosecution evidence it is not satisfactorily established as to by use of which weapon injured Ram Nath @ Vijai has received the injuries. The learned trial Court also found that Ram Nath @ Vijai was injured in the incident but it is not satisfactorily proved as to what were the injuries, as the original register is not traceable and the compounder, who actually prepared the copy of injury report Ex.Ka-8 on 24.10.1978 has not been examined. P.W. 10, the subsequent Medical officer at Khajui, states that according to original injury register, injured Ram Nath alias Vijai was medically examined by Dr. C.B Prasad but significantly P.W.13 Dr.

C.B. Prasad does not depose that he had examined the injured Ram Nath @ Vijai. P.W. 14 Dinesh Prasad, the I.O. has not made any copy of the injury report in his case diary and even the weapons by use of which the injuries were caused were not noted by the I.O. in the case diary. The nature of injuries has also not been ascertained though Ex.Ka-7 shows entry of the injuries by the word "khoon alooda" but papers relating to District Hospital Gorakhpur wherein the injured is said to be admitted have also not been produced. Also, no X-ray or supplementary report of the aforesaid injured is available on record.

92. So far as the acquittal of the accused Balgovind is concerned, the learned trial Court has proceeded to examine the circumstances of the case and also the aspect of animosity between the parties, particularly, in respect of accused Balgovind. On the basis of the evidence on record, the learned trial Court has given a categorical finding that if there was some animosity, it was not in between the deceased and the accused Balgovind, rather the deceased had some chakbandi litigation with other accused persons except accused Balgovind and Raghunath, who were real brothers. P.W.1 Shambhoo Saran Misra deposed in para 29 in his statement that his enmity with Ram Ratan and others was prior to 1962 and that he had no enmity with Balgovind and Rahunath at that time. P.W.1 has also stated that accused Balgovind belonged to the group of Ram Ratan and there is no other connection between them. He also deposed that his enmity with Balgovind and Raghunath started in 1967-68 and revision has been decided 3 or 4 months before 29.10.1980. Since it is said that the chakbandi case was closed on 10.04.1978 for evidence, according to Ex.Ka-52, the learned trial Court held that accused Balgovind had nothing to do with the case of Ex.Ka-52.

93. On the basis of the aforesaid analysis, the trial Court found that a reasonable doubt regarding the participation of accused Balgovind in the occurrence is also created and that is why he was given benefit of doubt.

94. We have given our thoughtful consideration to the observation of the learned trial Court in respect of acquittal of the accused Balgovind. The ocular version of the prosecution case is explicit on the point that at the time of the incident accused Balgovind was having spear, which he used in the occurrence and the same role has been assigned to co-accused Vishram also.

95. In the earlier part of the judgement, we have analysed the autopsy report of the deceased wherein incised wounds along with punctured wounds and abrasions have been found on the body of the deceased and the doctor, who has performed the autopsy and has been examined as P.W.3 has opined that the injuries to the deceased were probably caused by use of spade and spear hence, the weapon carrying by the accused Balgovind was used in the commission of the crime and at this juncture ocular version is fully supported by the medical evidence. Learned trial Court has referred the statement of P.W.1 Shambu Saran Mishra and found that there was no enmity between the informant's side and accused Balgovind but however, it has been held that the enmity or motive has no significance in a criminal case based upon the ocular version and we have no hesitation to say that in the present case the ocular version speaking against the accused

Balgovind and confirming his participation in the crime has been fully corroborated by the medical evidence and at this juncture we do not find ourselves in agreement with the observations made by the learned trial Court and reasons assigned in the impugned judgement in respect of acquittal of accused Balgovind and in our considered view accused Balgovind is also equally liable for the crime in similar fasion as the appellants of the case are.

96. At this stage, we also take into account the statement of P.W.6 for whom it is said that he had heard the accused persons making a conspiracy for murder of the deceased. He has deposed that when he heard accused Ram Ratan, Vishram and Balgovind conspiring about murder of the deceased, no other person was present there. He has further stated that the accused persons were not talking loudly and he was present near the pulliya to ease himself in the evening of 25.3.1978. He further deposed that he had told this to Triambak Mishra after two days since it was a conspiracy for murder the deceased Triambak Mishra. It was not a natural and probable conduct of P.W.6 who remained silent for two days. He also states that except the deceased he did not tell this to any one within two days and even after the murder of the deceased he did not tell this fact to any one, which is highly un-natural. The learned trial Court has scrutinized the evidence of P.W.6 and he has found that Ex.Kha-7 shows that witness Kripa Shankar stood as witness in chakbanki Court from the side of the deceased on 18.12.1969. The learned trial Court finding that this witness is interested witness discarded his evidence and in the facts and circumstances, we are also of the same view that P.W.6 is not reliable witness.

97. The aforesaid observations and findings of the learned trial Court take as to the question of reliability of witnesses of fact and also to consider this aspect that whether to pass a test of reliability and credibility, it is necessary for a witnesses to depose in toto in favour of the prosecution or some inconsistencies, exaggeration, embellishment and dependencies may also occur in his deposition without adversely affecting the trustworthiness of such witness.

98. Learned A.G.A. has submitted that this is a general law that the ocular evidence may be given priority over the medical evidence and if the witnesses of fact are reliable their evidence should not be rejected. We though finding ourselves in agreement with the submissions made by the learned State counsel also take it as a duty of the Court to find out as to which part of the statement of witness is correct and which is not. We can safely rely upon the Apex Court judgement in Gangadhar Behera And Others v. State of Orissa, (2002) 8 SCC 381 wherein it has been held as under:

"Falsity of a particular material witness or material particular would not ruin it from the beginning to end. The maxim "falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus" has no application in India and the witnesses cannot be branded as liars. The maxim "falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus" has not received general acceptance nor has this maxim come to occupy the status of rule of law. It is merely a rule of caution. All that it amounts to, is that in such cases testimony may be disregarded, and not that it must be disregarded. The doctrine merely involves the question of weight of evidence which a court may apply in a given set of circumstances, but it is not what may be called "a mandatory rule of evidence". (See Nisar Ali v. State of U.P. [AIR 1957 SC 366 : 1957 Cri LJ 550]) Merely because some of the accused persons have been acquitted, though evidence against all of them, so far as direct testimony went, was the same does not lead as a necessary corollary that those who have been convicted must also be acquitted. It is always open to a court to differentiate the accused who had been acquitted from those who were convicted. (See Gurcharan Singh v. State of Punjab [AIR 1956 SC 460 : 1956 Cri LJ 827]). The doctrine is a dangerous one specially in India for if a whole body of the testimony were to be rejected, because a witness was evidently speaking an untruth in some aspect, it is to be feared that administration of criminal justice would come to a dead stop. Witnesses just cannot help in giving embroidery to a story, however, true in the main. Therefore, it has to be appraised in each case as to what extent the evidence is worthy of acceptance, and merely because in some respects the court considers the same to be insufficient for placing reliance on the testimony of a witness, it does not necessarily follow as a matter of law that it must be disregarded in all respects as well. The evidence has to be sifted with care. The aforesaid dictum is not a sound rule for the reason that one hardly comes across a witness whose evidence does not contain a grain of untruth or at any rate exaggeration, embroideries or embellishment. (See Sohrab v. State of M.P. [(1972) 3 SCC 751 : 1972 SCC (Cri) 819] and Ugar Ahir v. State of Bihar [AIR 1965 SC 277 : (1965) 1 Cri LJ 256] .) An attempt has to be made to, as noted above, in terms of felicitous metaphor, separate the grain from the chaff, truth from falsehood. Where it is not feasible to separate the truth from falsehood, because grain and chaff are inextricably mixed up, and in the process of separation an absolutely new case has to be reconstructed by divorcing essential details presented by the prosecution completely from the context and the background against which they are made, the only available course to be made is to discard the evidence in toto. (See Zwinglee Ariel v. State of M.P. [(1952) 2 SCC 560 : AIR 1954 SC 15 : 1954 Cri LJ 230] and Balaka Singh v. State of Punjab [(1975) 4 SCC 511 : 1975 SCC (Cri) 601 : AIR 1975 SC 1962] .) "

99. In view of that, we reach the conclusion that the deposition of the eye-witnesses so far as it relates to the non-participation of the acquitted accused persons in the crime is found correct except accused Balgovind but in view of the non-application of the maxim, "falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus" in India, we also cannot hold that the witnesses are not reliable or credible. The learned trial Court's view with regard to the acquittal of four accused persons for murder of the deceased, except accused Balgovind and also for the acquittal of all the accused persons in respect of the offence in respect of causing injuries to the witness Ram Nath @ Vijai, is in accordance with the evidence available on record, which we upheld.

100. Considering the above legal position and the factual aspects of the case, we are of the view that the learned trial Judge was fully justified in acquitting the accused-respondents/ opposite parties except accused Balgovind for the offence under section 148, 302/149 I.P.C.

101. Resultantly, Criminal Appeal No. 234 of 1981 of surviving appellant nos. 3. Arjun and 5. Dayaram, is dismissed. Appellants nos. 1. Ram Ratan, 2. Ghanshaym and 3. Vishram died during the pendency of appeal and appeal qua them abated. At the same time Government Appeal No. 748 of 1981 and Criminal Revision No. 261 of 1981 also deserve to be partly allowed in the light of the observations made above in respect of accused Balgovind and Raghunath alias Bhorai. Accordingly, the order of acquittal of accused Raghunath alias Bhorai for all the offences charged against him is hereby confirmed and the order of acquittal of accused Balgovind for the offences under section 148, 302/149 I.P.C in Session Trial No. 309 of 1978 is hereby reversed and he is held guilty for the offences above mentioned and is sentenced to undergo imprisonment for a period of two years under section 148 I.P.C. and imprisonment for life under section 302,149 I.P.C. Accused Balgovind be taken into custody forthwith for serving the sentence.

102. The conviction and sentences under Section 148, 302/149 I.P.C. in Criminal Appeal No. 234 of 1981 (Sessions Trial No. 309/1978) of surviving appellant nos. 3. Arjun and 5. Dayaram, is hereby confirmed and Government Appeal No. 748 of 1981/ Criminal Revision No.261 of 1981 in respect of accused Balgovind are partly allowed as mentioned herein above.

103. Record and proceedings be sent back to the Court below forthwith for necessary compliance

Criminal Law - Criminal Procedure Code, 1860 - Section 374(2) - Indian Penal Code, 1860-Sections 302/201 of IPC r/w Section 3/4 of the Dowry Prohibition Act-Challenge to-Conviction-the case is based on circumstantial evidence- the chain to prove that the crime was committed by the accused was not complete- the F.I.R. version was very different from the version which was taken by the P.W. 1 and the P.W.- 2 i.e. the first informant and his son-The P.W.-1 only to bring in a definite witness who had seen the deceased going with the accused had introduced, the P.W. - 2 i.e. his own son who had, as per the first informant, seen the accused taking the deceased with him- the prosecution has not been able to show with any certainty as to whether witness had accompanied the deceased- Firstly, his name was not found in the First Information Report and secondly the witness himself, when he came to the witness box gives contradictory statements. -the recovery was a sham recovery- the motive to commit the crime has not been clearly established- the prosecution had come with a case that there were certain demands of dowry since the burden is on the prosecution to prove to the hilt that the accused were guilty and since they have not been able to prove the accused guilty to the hilt, we find that the prosecution case has no substance and the Appeal deserves to be allowed.(Para 1 to 28)

- 3. The circumstances should be of conclusive nature and tendency.
- 4. They should exclude every possible hypothesis except one to be proved.
- 5. There must be a chain of evidence so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability the act must have been done by the accused. (Para19)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manish Kumar Nigam, J.)

1. Upon the lodging of a First Information Report dated 17.10.1984, investigation had followed and thereafter the police had submitted its charge sheet and had implicated the appellants, namely, Ravindra Kumar, Mahendra Kumar, Naresh Kumar and their father Hukum Chandra Jain Shashtri. The Court thereafter framed charges against the appellants and charged them under Sections 302/201 of IPC read with Section 3/4 of the Dowry Prohibition Act. Trial was undergone whereby 18 prosecution witnesses were examined and cross-examined and from the side of the defence two defence witnesses were also produced.

2. The accused were given an opportunity to give their statements under Section 313 Cr.P.C. wherein they denied the commission of any crime. However after the trial when the appellants were convicted under Section 302 read with Section 201 of the IPC, the instant Criminal Appeal was filed by them.

3. During the pendency of the Appeal Hukum Chandra Jain Shashtri had died on 6.4.2009 and, therefore, this Court vide order dated 13.3.2023 had abated the appeal vis-a-vis the appellant no. 4, Hukum Chandra Jain Shashtri.

4. The case of the prosecution in the First Information Report was that the daughter of the first informant Surekha Jain, aged about 20 years, post marriage on 9.5.1984 with the appellant - Ravindra Kumar son of Hukum Chandra Jain Shashtri, had after some efforts on 10.10.1984 come to her Maika. From her Maika, she was taken on 15.10.1984 by her husband for a cinema show and she, after informing her friends and the family members, had gone to the cinema show. The F.I.R. version is that on 16.10.1984, Mahendra Kumar, the Jeth of the deceased along with the husband of the deceased had come to the house of the first informant (the maika of the deceased) and had alleged that the first informant had hidden the deceased in his house and it has been averred in the First Information Report that they also searched the house of the first informant. However, only on 17.10.1984, the dead body of the deceased was found in the well near the Jal Nigam. Since the first informant had apprehended that his daughter had been killed by her in-laws because of the lack of dowry, he lodged the First Information Report. When the First Information Report was lodged and after the punchnama was prepared the body was sent for post mortem. The first informant Chakreshwar Kumar Jain had alleged that the in-laws of the deceased were moneyed people and, therefore, the post-mortem was got done by a team of Doctors. Thereafter, the accused were arrested on 21.10.1984 and on the pointing of the accused-Ravindra Kumar, the cane(danda) by which it was alleged that the accused Ravindra Kumar had inflicted injuries on the private parts of the deceased and, thereafter, had caused her death was found. Also certain broken bangles were also recovered. It has been alleged that the recovery was done in the presence of two independence witnesses Sri Gopi Krishan Tiwari son of Sri Krishna Ji Tiwari and Sri Chandra Bhan son of Sri Chela Ram.

5. The post-mortem of the body of the deceased was conducted on 18.10.1984 and the cause of death was found to be asphyxia as a result of throttling. The post-mortem had indicated of the ante-mortem injuries. After the charges were framed, the following prosecution witnesses were examined and cross-examined. They were as follows:-

- P.W. -1. Chakreshwar Kumar,
- P.W. -2. Rupesh Kumar Jain,
- P.W. -3. Shyama,
- P.W. - 4. Smt. Anjana,
- P.W. - 5 Janki Prasad,
- P.W.- 6 Smt. Kamla,
- P.W. -7. Dr. V.P. Shukla,
- P.W. - 8. Chhote Lal,
- P.W. - 9. Chandra Bhan,
- P.W. -10. Kanchhedi Lal,
- P.W. -11. Gopi Krishan Tiwari,

P.W. - 12 Pyare,
 P.W. - 13. Jagdish Narain
 Vaidya,
 P.W. -14. Ashok Kumar Singhai,
 P.W. -15. Uttam Chandra Rakesh,
 P.W. -16. Durga Prasad,
 P.W. -17. Har Prasad and;
 P.W. -18. Shiv Mangal Singh.

6. P.W.-1 is the father of the deceased and also the first informant. He has alleged in the examination-in-chief that the marriage of his daughter had taken place with Ravindra Kumar on 9.5.1984. In the marriage he had given around Rs. 40,000/- as dowry which was earlier fixed between the parties. From Rs.40,000/- he had alleged that he had given gold of Rs.5,000/- and Rs. 25,000/- cash and the remaining amount was spent on other expenses and that despite the fact that he had spent such a lot of money, the groom's side was not satisfied and they were asking for more money all the time. In the month of May itself after 15 days of marriage, the son of the first informant Rupesh had gone to fetch Surekha but the in-laws had refused to send Surekha to her Maika and had insisted that till such time Rs. 2,000/-, a dressing table with mirror and Godrej Almirah was not given they would not send Surekha to her Maika and, therefore, it has been mentioned that Rupesh came back empty handed. He had also stated that for the happiness of her child, he had given ultimately Rs. 2,000/- and a steel Almirah and, thereafter, he had gone to the house of the in-laws. The daughter thereafter had come to her maika but only after a very short stay Naresh Kumar, the dewar of Surekha, again came back to her in-laws' place. He has stated that when he had refused to sent Surekha it had angered the dewar and he had threatened him with dire consequences. Again it has been stated that when the month of Sawan came, the first informant had gone again to the house and had requested that they may send Surekha for the Raksha Bandhan but they had outrightly asked if the first informant had brought the money and the dressing table. When the first informant told that he could not arrange the amount demanded and the dressing table which was being asked for, the in-laws had said that they would not send Surekha with the first informant and, therefore, the first informant went back home. He, however, again stated that on Raksha Bandhan he had sent his son Rupesh to bring Surekha with an assurance that the demand of the in-laws would be met and on the assurance Surekha was sent to her Maika. After coming on Raksha Bandhan, Surekha had stayed only for three days when her Dewar again came to take her back and also insisted for Rs. 1,500/- and the dressing table. On the request of the Dewar, the first informant had sent Surekha to her in-laws' house. On 8.10.1984, Hukum Chandra Jain Shashtri again came and told the grand father of Surekha that they could take their daughter home. This news was conveyed by the grand father to the first informant. He showed concern as to what was it that had brought the change in the attitude of the in-laws.

7. Upon the insistence of in-laws that the first informant may take Surekha home on 10.10.1984, the first informant had brought Surekha home. It has been narrated in the examination-in-chief by the first informant that after coming home Surekha cried a lot and said that because of her bad fate she was suffering. She also informed that she was being tortured in her in-laws house. She was being beaten and also abused. All this she came and told her mother and aunt and also her bua Smt. Anjana. To Smt. Anjana she also told that she was being called "kalooti". By this she meant that they were not liking the colour of her skin. Upon coming to her Maika, she also told the women of the house that her husband had taken a promise from her that she would go for a cinema show on 15th October. He has also stated in his examination-in-chief that when he came to know that the husband of his daughter was taking her for cinema show then he said that if the husband was actually coming to fetch her then she could go. He further stated that around quarter to seven on 15.10.1984, Ravindra Kumar came and remained standing outside and took Surekha with him and along with them Rupesh his son had also gone. However, Rupesh was sent back saying that the couple intended to see the night show. However, when Surekha and her husband did not come on 16.10.1984 at around 3:00pm, the first informant sent Rupesh to her in-laws house to get Surekha back. There upon at 4:00pm Mahendra Kumar, the Jeth, and Ravindra Kumar the husband came to the house of the first informant and said that Ravindra Kumar had sent Surekha in the night. Being surprised the first informant asked Ravindra Kumar whether he had dropped Surekha to her Maika. To which, Ravindra Kumar said that he had, in fact, left Surekha at her Maika. Thereupon the first informant informed Ravindra Kumar that Surekha had never reached her Maika. Thereupon it has been stated by the first informant that Ravindra Kumar and his brothers were very angry with regard to the fact that Surekha was not to be found. Thereupon the first informant said that since Surekha was their daughter-in-law and she was also the daughter of the first informant it would be in the fitness of things that everybody searched for her together. To this, the in-laws said that she was not their daughter-in-law and the first informant may do whatever he wished. Consequently, it has been informed by the first informant that he went out to search for her. On 17.10.1984, the dead body of the deceased was found in the well. The first informant thereafter proved the first information report and also proved the documents by which he had insisted that the postmortem be done by a panel of doctors.

8. In the cross-examination, he stood firm on what he had stated in the examination-in-chief. Since he had not stated in the First Information Report the fact that Rupesh had also gone on 15.10.1984 to see the movie, he expressed a concern as to why his statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. wherein he had stated that Rupesh had also gone with the couple was not recorded by the investigating officer. He insisted that on 16.10.1984 at around 4:00pm Mahendra Kumar, Ravindra Kumar had come searching for Surekha.

9. The P.W. -2 Rupesh who was 14 years of age at the time of giving his statement on 28.8.1985 on oath stated that on demand being made for cash, dressing table and Almirah the wife's side had given the cash, dressing table and almirah. He has also stated that he had accompanied his sisters and Ravindra Kumar for the film but he was made to go back from the Ghantaghar as the couple had insisted that they would see the night show and he also stated that her sister had not returned in the night. He has given a vivid description of what his sister was wearing namely bangles, nose pin, payal bichchiya and sari and blouse of baigani colour. He also stated that on the next date when the sister had not returned he had gone to the house of in-laws of her sister then he was informed that his sister had, in fact, gone with Ravindra

Kumar and the door was closed on his face. He has also stated that on 16.10.1984 in the morning at around 9:30 am Naresh and Mahendra had come to the house of the first informant and had searched the house. They were trying to search out Surekha. He has also very categorically stated that when Surekha had gone with her husband then the father of Surekha the First Informant, was not at his residence.

10. The P.W. -3 Shyama who was the neighbour of the deceased lived in the neighbourhood of the Maika. She has been produced to show that she had also seen the deceased going with Ravindra Kumar for the movie. It has been stated by her that she had specifically asked Surekha that with whom she was going to see the movie then Surekha had said that she was going with her husband and her younger brother.

11. The P.W.-4, Smt. Anjana who was the cousin bua of the deceased was also produced to give the evidence that she had also seen the couple going to see the movie. She had also wondered why in her statements under Section 161 Cr.P.C. it was not mentioned that the younger brother of the deceased had accompanied the couple.

12. The P.W.-5 is the grand father of the deceased. He had also tried to establish the fact that because the accused wanted dowry they had killed Surekha.

13. The P.W.-6 is one Kamla who is the cousin grand mother of the deceased and she has also stated that she had seen the deceased going with her husband to see the movie.

14. The P.W. -7 is the Doctor who had conducted the post mortem and has proved the post mortem.

15. The P.W. -8 Chhotelal who was witness in whose possession the recovery of torch was done but he had turned hostile.

16. The P.W.-9 Chandrabhan who had accompanied Ravindra Kumar during the recovery of Danda and the bangles, in the Court gave his statement and tried to prove the recovery. However, when he was asked if he recognized Ravindra Kumar then he placed his hand on Naresh to say that he was Ravindra Kumar.

17. The P.W. -10 is the shop keeper who had been produced to prove that the articles which were given in the dowry were bought from his shop.

18. The P.W. 11, Gopi Krishna Tiwari who was the witness of recovery has been declared hostile. Similarly, the P.W. 12 who had stated that he had seen something being dropped in the well has been declared hostile. Similarly P.W.-13 who was the Editor of the Journal (Weekly) has been declared hostile. The P.W.-14 Ashok Kumar Singhai, the maternal uncle of Surekha, was also declared hostile. The P.W-15 is the witness of the punchnama and the P.W. -16, the P.W. - 17 and P.W. - 18 are formal witnesses.

19. Learned counsel for the appellant has made the following arguments:

I. He submits that if the first information report is perused then it becomes clear that there was no mention at all of the fact that the deceased was accompanied by her brother Rupesh Kumar yet the P.W. - 1 and the P.W. - 2 in their examination-in-chief during the trial have tried to carve out a case that Rupesh Kumar had accompanied the deceased. In fact, learned counsel for the appellants has argued that Rupesh Kumar had never accompanied the deceased and only to make him witness who had seen the deceased for the last time going with accused a fresh case was being carved out. In this regard learned counsel for the appellants also had submitted that the P.W. 3, 4 and 6, namely, Shyama, Smt. Anjan & Kamla respectively were also sought to be made the witnesses who had seen the appellant Ravindra Kumar going with the deceased for seeing the movie. It has been argued that they have been made to give their evidence in a most unnatural manner. So far as the P.W.-3 is concerned, it has been stated that she was a neighbour, namely, Shyama and she had stated that she had put a question to the effect that who exactly was going with Surekha. If she was a neighbour and she was knowing the deceased then she should have at least known that the younger brother Rupesh was going with her. For a moment, it can be taken that she was not recognizing the husband Ravindra Kumar but she definitely should have recognized the brother and, therefore, for her to ask as to with whom Surekha was going to the movie was a very unnatural question. Further the P.W. - 4 and 6 who were also produced as witnesses who had seen the deceased going with the accused Ravindra Kumar for the last time, if their evidence is perused, it seems strange that they were remembering very strange things like the colour of the sari & blouse and whether she was bearing bichhua, bangles and payal and, therefore, learned counsel submits that they were all brought up witnesses and they had actually not seen the deceased going with the accused Ravindra Kumar.

II. It has been submitted that the whole crime had no eye-witness and, therefore, the case was based on circumstantial evidence. Learned counsel for the appellant relied upon Sharad Birdhichand Sarda vs. State of Maharashtra reported in AIR 1984 SC 1622, and submitted that the following had to be there to see whether the chain of evidence was complete to hold the accused guilty. The following five essential ingredients to complete the chain to hold the accused guilty were not there:

"1. The circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should be fully established.

2. The fact so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused.

3. The circumstances should be of conclusive nature and tendency.

4. They should exclude every possible hypothesis except one to be proved.

5. There must be a chain of evidence so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability the act must have been done by the accused."

III. Learned counsel for the appellants further submits that if the statements of the P.W. - 3, 4 and 6 are perused then it becomes clear that the evidence which they were coming up with was too good an evidence to be believed. They were remembering every small details of the deceased and this makes the evidence doubtful.

IV. Learned counsel for the appellants submits that the evidence as was brought forth on record had various contradictions. The P.W.-1 says that the accused when had gone with his daughter Surekha he was there in the house but the P.W.-2 the brother whom the P.W.-1 had said had accompanied the couple says that the father (P.W.-1) was not present at the time when the accused and his sister (the deceased) were going to see the movie. Further it has been stated that the P.W. -1 gives a different time on the 16th of October 1984 when in-laws had come to search for the deceased. He says that they had come in the evening to search for the deceased in the Maika. However, P.W.-2 states that the in-laws had come in the morning of 16.10.1984 to search for the deceased.

V. Learned counsel for the appellants further submits that the recovery as has been sought to be made under Section 27 of the Evidence Act was no recovery in the eyes of law as per the law laid down in Ramanand @ Nandlal Bharti vs. State of Uttar Pradesh reported in AIR 2022 SC 5273 and in Subramanya vs. State of Karnataka reported in AIR 2022 SC 5110.

Learned counsel for the appellants submits that there are two parts to recovery under Section 27 of the Evidence Act. The first is that when the police takes the accused in his custody then he has to record a statement in the presence of two independence witnesses as to what recovery was intended. Thereafter, when the police along with the accused and the two independent witnesses reaches the spot where the author of the concealed articles takes the Police party and the Police party discovers the concealed articles then a recovery memo has to be again prepared. In the present case, learned counsel for the appellants states that the first step was missing. There was no statement recorded of the accused in the presence of 2 independent witnesses as to what was the recovery he was intending to get made.

Further, learned counsel for the appellants states that if the statement of the independent witness Chandrabhan is perused then it becomes clear that in the Court he had not even been able to recognize Ravindra Kumar and, in fact, placed his hand on Naresh Kumar. He, therefore, states that the recovery was a bogus recovery. He further states that in the Panchanama the dead body was found to be having the bangles in the hands of the deceased and, therefore, he submits that the broken bangles which were sought to be recovered were in fact planted. He has also submitted that the Danda was also planted only to match it with the ante-mortem injuries on the private parts of the deceased.

VI. Learned counsel for the appellants further submits that the demand of dowry was also not established and, therefore, there was no motive. In fact, he submits that vide exhibit ka(4), the prosecution had apprehended that the accused side was very rich and, therefore, they had moved an application for getting the post mortem conducted by a panel of doctors. He has also submitted that when the prosecution had come up with a case that the appellants were demanding Rs. 2,000/- a dressing table and an almirah and had thereafter found that this demand might appear to be very insufficient for, the accused persons who were very rich, they had come up with another case that the accused were not liking the colour of the skin of the deceased and, therefore, they had come up of with the case that the in laws were calling her "Kalooti".

20. Learned A.G.A. Sri J.K. Upadhyay for the State, however, has submitted that since the accused had gone with the deceased to see the movie, the burden, in fact, to prove that the accused were innocent had shifted on them in view of Section 106 of the Evidence Act.

21. Learned AGA further submits that post-mortem was conducted only after three days and, therefore, the ante-mortem injuries as were found in the post mortem spoke volumes. Still further learned AGA submitted that upon coming to know about the fact that the deceased was not to be found on 16.10.1984 conduct of the appellants made it apparently clear that they were the perpetrators of the crime.

22. Having heard Shri V.P. Srivastava, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri N.L. Tripathi and Sri Rajeew Nayan Singh, learned counsel for the appellants and Sri J.K. Upadhyay, learned AGA for the State, we are of the view that the appellants were innocent and the Appeal deserves to be allowed. In the first case, the case is based on circumstantial evidence. Definitely the chain to prove that the crime was committed by the accused was not complete. In the first instance, we find that the F.I.R. version was very different from the version which was taken by the P.W. 1 and the P.W.- 2 i.e. the first informant and his son. The P.W.-1 only to bring in a definite witness who had seen the deceased going with the accused Ravindra Kumar had introduced, the P.W. - 2 i.e. his own son Rupesh Kumar who had, as per the first informant, seen the accused taking the deceased with him. The Court finds that the prosecution has not been able to show with any certainty as to whether Rupesh had accompanied the deceased. In the first place, his name was not found in the First Information Report and secondly the witness Rupesh himself, when he came to the witness box gives contradictory statements. He has, in fact, stated that the father of the deceased at the time when the deceased had gone with Ravindra Kumar was not at home. All these factors create a doubt in the mind of the Court.

23. Secondly, we find that since the recovery had not been done as per the law laid down in Ramanand @ Nandlal

Bharti vs. State of Uttar Pradesh reported in AIR 2022 SC 5273 and in Subramanya vs. State of Karnataka reported in AIR 2022 SC 5110, the recovery was a sham recovery. Also we find that the motive to commit the crime has not been clearly established. To begin with, the prosecution had come with a case that there were certain demands of dowry. However, even the demands as have been brought forth by the father were found to be very different from the demands which were brought forth by the son. At one place they say that in addition to the money, dressing table was demanded and another place they say that in addition to the money an almirah was demanded. The father and son duo upon coming to realise that the accused side were rich had tried to give colour to the case by saying that the deceased had also mentioned that the colour of the skin of the deceased was not liked by the in-laws.

24. As per the law laid down in Rishi Kesh Singh & Ors. vs. The State reported in AIR 1970 Allahabad 51(FB), since the burden is on the prosecution to prove to the hilt that the accused were guilty and since they have not been able to prove the accused guilty to the hilt, we find that the prosecution case has no substance and the Appeal deserves to be allowed.

25. The first information report, we are definitely aware, is not an encyclopedia of facts. However, the fact that the first informant missed to inform in the first information report that the son of the first informant had accompanied the deceased and her husband is a vital omission. Howsoever much in the statements of the various prosecution witnesses the presence of P.W.-2 Rupesh Kumar Jain has been brought in, the prosecution witnesses have miserably failed to prove that the P.W.-2 Rupesh Kumar Jain had accompanied the deceased and her husband when they had gone to see the cinema. Furthermore, if the various contradictions and the statements of the other prosecution witnesses are examined then the only inevitable conclusion is that the prosecution was trying to bring in P.W.-2, Rupesh Kumar Jain as a witness who had seen the deceased and her husband going together for the last time.

26. The prosecution must prove its case beyond all reasonable doubt as has been held by a Full Bench judgement of this Court in Rishi Kesh Singh & Ors. vs. The State reported in AIR 1970 Allahabad 51(FB). The operative portion of the judgement is reproduced here as under:-

"177. In accordance with the majority opinion, our answer to the question referred to this Full Bench is as follows: -

The majority decision in 1941 All LJ 619 = AIR 1941 All 402 (FB) is still good law. The accused person is entitled to be acquitted if upon a consideration of the evidence as a whole (including the evidence given in support of the plea of the general exception) a reasonable doubt is created in the mind of the Court about the guilt of the accused."

27. The prosecution definitely failed to prove the case which was taken by it beyond all reasonable doubt.

28. Under such circumstances, the appeal is allowed. The judgement and order dated 22.2.1986 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Lalitpur, in S.T. No. 4 of 1985 is set aside.

Godown Marey Company Kanpur. Instead of bringing such rice to the shop and distributing the same to the card holders he disposed of the same otherwise as there was no entry of the receipt and disposal of such rice in the registers of the accused. Besides, 2 quintals 40 Kg Ata Flour Mill was found deficient at his shop than that shown in the stock register. In this view of the matter he allegedly violated Clauses 4 and 23 of U.P. 12. A careful scrutiny of evidence of both the parties show that PW-1 Ashok Kumar Bajpai, Marketing Inspector and P.W. 4 Sri Krishna Pal, Marketing Inspector have deposed in clear and categorical terms that on 16.01.1983 they along with other members of squad had conducted inspection and at the time of inspection on 16.01.1983, the stock of Aata wholesale Mill at the shop of the accused as per the stock register was 14 Quintals 25 Kgs., but on physical verification it was found to be 7 quintals 50 Kgs. On 16.01.1983 he made a sale of 4 quintals 35 Kgs. Ata and as such the Ata was found to be deficient on physical checking to the extent of 2 quintals 40 Kgs. Certain other stocks of sugar and wheat were also there but the mention of the same is not necessary. The accused has taken delivery of 30 quintals of rice on 11.01.1983 from the Government Godown for being sold to be card holders but he did not make any entry regarding it in his stock register. Takpatti of the weighment of the Ata whole Mill prepared at the time of inspection is Ext. 14. P.W.3 Sukhdeo Prasad has stated in his statement on that date i.e. on 11.01.1983, he was on duty at Marey Company Government Godown, the appellant-accused Bulla Mal had brought to him the release order Ext. Ka-5 for the release of 30 quintals. rice and after obtaining the signature of the appellant-accused on the release order and after comparing the same with his signature attested by the A.R.O. Sri Lohani, he issued 30 quintals rice to the appellant-accused. A Takpattin of the weightment of the rie released to the accused had been prepared and the same is Ext. Ka-7.

15. P.W. 5 Maqsood Ali is a public witness who has come to say that his ration card was attached to the shop of the accused but he did not take any ration since 13.01.1983 from the shop of the appellant-accused. He has further stated that the entry dated 13.01.1983 in the sale register (Ext. II) of the appellant/ accused at serial no. 26 neither bears his signature, nor of his son.

16. P.W. 6 Constable Mukhtar Alam is a formal witness who has proved the Chik F.I.R. Ext. Ka-9 written in the police station on the basis of the Fard of recovery filed by Marketing Inspector Sri Krishan Pal on 16.01.2023, which has been marked Ext. Ka-9. This witness has also been lodged the FIR on 16.01.1983 at 10:45 hours and entry has been made in G.D. No. 32 (Ext. Ka-10).

17. P.W.7 Jagdamba Bukhsh Singh is the Investigating Officer of this case, he had recorded the statements of the members of the Enforcement Squad and had taken in possession Sale Register (Ext.- II and III) and Stock Register (Ext-IV).

18. P.W. 8 Siya Ram Gupta, who is the Hand Writing Expert has got compared the disputed two signatures of the appellant-accused on the front of release order Ext. Ka-5 and Ext. Ka 5A. He has opined that all the disputed signatures of the appellant-accused tally with his specimen signature and that they have been made by one and the same person. He also proved the photos taken in this behalf Ext Ka-16 and his report Ext. Ka-17.

19. The defence of accused-appellant was rightly negated by the trial court. It is clear from evidence that act of accused-appellant has violated provisions of clause 4 of U.P. Foodgrain and other Essential Articles Distribution Order, 1977. Learned trial court has discussed entire evidence and found that act of accused-appellant contravenes provisions of Clause 4 of U.P. Food grains and other Essential Articles Distribution Order, 1977 Act and thus, liable to be convicted under Section 3/7 of E.C. Act. After considering entire evidence on record, it is apparent that conviction of accused-appellant is based on evidence and suffers no factual, illegality.

20. Learned Amicus Curiae for the appellant has not disputed the findings rendered by learned trial court regarding conviction of accused-appellant and confined his arguments only regarding sentence. However, I have gone through the entire evidence carefully.

21. So far as question of sentence is concerned, it was argued by learned counsel for accused-appellant that alleged incident occurred on 11.01.1983 and since then a period of 40 years has passed. Accused-appellant has no criminal history and that he has faced the sword of proceedings of this case for about 40 years. It was submitted that in view of above stated facts and circumstances, it would not be appropriate to send the accused-appellant in judicial custody at this stage.

22. Learned A.G.A. has opposed and argued that keeping in view that a period of 40 years has passed since the incident, appropriate sentence may be awarded.

23. In historical backdrop, Indian parliament has not laid down any sentencing policy, though Malimath Committee (2003) and Madhava Menon Committee (2008) has asserted the need of sentencing policy in changing circumstances of the society. So, the Courts are dependant on the precedent laid down by the Supreme Court.

24. Principle of sentencing has been an issue of concern before the Supreme Court in many cases and tried to provide clarity on the issue. Apex Court has time and again cautioned against the cavalier manner considering the way sentencing is dealt with High Courts and Trial Courts.

In Accused 'X' vs. State of Maharashtra (2019) 7 SCC 1 "the Apex Court has held that" It is established that sentencing is a socio-legal process, wherein a Judge finds an appropriate punishment for the accused considering factual circumstances and equities. In light of the fact that the legislature peroxided for discretion to the Judges to give punishment, it becomes important to exercise the same in a principled manner."

"12. Sentencing for crimes has to be analysed on the touchstone of three tests viz. crime test, criminal test and comparative proportionality test. Crime test involves factors like extent of planning, choice of weapon, modus of crime, disposal modus (if any), role of the accused, anti-social or abhorrent character of the crime, state of victim. Criminal test involves assessment of factors such as age of the criminal, gender of the criminal, economic conditions or social background of the criminal, motivation for crime, availability of defence, state of mind, instigation by the deceased or any one from the deceased group, adequately represented in the trial, disagreement by a Judge in the appeal process, repentance, possibility of reformation, prior criminal record (not to take pending cases) and any other relevant factor (not an exhaustive list).

13. In State of Madhya Pradesh vs. Udham and others (2019) 10 SCC 300 the Apex Court has held" we may note that under the crime test, seriousness needs to be ascertained. The seriousness of the crime may be ascertained by (i) bodily integrity of the victim; (ii) loss of material support of amenity; (iii) extent of humiliation; and (iv) privacy breach."

25. It is also notable that in State of Madhya Pradesh vs. Vikram Das (2019) 4 SCC 125".... where minimum sentence is provided for, the Court cannot impose less than minimum sentence."

26. In Mohd. Giasuddin Vs. State of AP, [AIR 1977 SC 1926], explaining rehabilitary & reformatory aspects in sentencing it has been observed by the Supreme Court:

"Crime is a pathological aberration. The criminal can ordinarily be redeemed and the state has to rehabilitate rather than avenge. The sub-culture that leads to ante-social behaviour has to be countered not by undue cruelty but by reculturization. Therefore, the focus of interest in penology in the individual and the goal is salvaging him for the society. The infliction of harsh and savage punishment is thus a relic of past and regressive times. The human today vies sentencing as a process of reshaping a person who has deteriorated into criminality and the modern community has a primary stake in the rehabilitation of the offender as a means of a social defence. Hence a therapeutic, rather than an 'in terrorem' outlook should prevail in our criminal courts, since brutal incarceration of the person merely produces laceration of his mind. If you are to punish a man retributively, you must injure him. If you are to reform him, you must improve him and, men are not improved by injuries."

27. The term 'Proper Sentence' was explained in Deo Narain Mandal Vs. State of UP [(2004) 7 SCC 257] by observing that Sentence should not be either excessively harsh or ridiculously low. While determining the quantum of sentence, the court should bear in mind the 'principle of proportionality'. Sentence should be based on facts of a given case. Gravity of offence, manner of commission of crime, age and sex of accused should be taken into account. Discretion of Court in awarding sentence cannot be exercised arbitrarily or whimsically.

28. In Ravada Sasikala vs. State of A.P. AIR 2017 SC 1166, the Supreme Court referred the judgments in Jameel vs State of UP [(2010) 12 SCC 532], Guru Basavraj vs State of Karnatak, [(2012) 8 SCC 734], Sumer Singh vs Surajbhan Singh, [(2014) 7 SCC 323], State of Punjab vs Bawa Singh, [(2015) 3 SCC 441], and Raj Bala vs State of Haryana, [(2016) 1 SCC 463] and has reiterated that, in operating the sentencing system, law should adopt corrective machinery or deterrence based on factual matrix. Facts and given circumstances in each case, nature of crime, manner in which it was planned and committed, motive for commission of crime, conduct of accused, nature of weapons used and all other attending circumstances are relevant facts which would enter into area of consideration. Further, undue sympathy in sentencing would do more harm to justice dispensations and would undermine the public confidence in the efficacy of law. It is the duty of every court to award proper sentence having regard to nature of offence and manner of its commission. The supreme court further said that courts must not only keep in view the right of victim of crime but also society at large. While considering imposition of appropriate punishment, the impact of crime on the society as a whole and rule of law needs to be balanced. The judicial trend in the country has been towards striking a balance between reform and punishment. The protection of society and stamping out criminal proclivity must be the object of law which can be achieved by imposing appropriate sentence on criminals and wrongdoers. Law, as a tool to maintain order and peace, should effectively meet challenges confronting the society, as society could not long endure and develop under serious threats of crime and disharmony. It is therefore, necessary to avoid undue leniency in imposition of sentence. Thus, the criminal justice jurisprudence adopted in the country is not retributive but reformatory and corrective. At the same time, undue harshness should also be avoided keeping in view the reformatory approach underlying in our criminal justice system.

28. Keeping in view the facts and circumstances of the case and also criminal jurisprudence in our country which is reformatory and corrective and not retributive, this Court considers that no accused person is incapable of being reformed and therefore, all measures should be applied to give them an opportunity of reformation in order to bring them in the social stream.

29. As discussed above, 'reformatory theory of punishment' is to be adopted and for that reason, it is necessary to impose punishment keeping in view the 'doctrine of proportionality'. It appears from perusal of impugned judgment that sentence awarded by learned trial court for life term is very harsh keeping in view the entirety of facts and circumstances of the case and gravity of offence. Hon'ble Apex Court, as discussed above, has held that undue harshness should be avoided taking into account the reformatory approach underlying in criminal justice system.

30. Accused-appellant Ballu Mal has been convicted under Section 3/7 of E.C. Act. Section 7 of E.C. Act which reads as under:-

[(1) If any person contravenes any order made under Section 3,—

(a) he shall be punishable,—

(i) in the case of an order made with reference to clause (h) or clause (i) of sub-section (2) of that section, with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one year and shall also be liable to fine, and

(ii) in the case of any other order, with imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than three months but which may extend to seven years and shall also be liable to fine:

Provided that the court may, for any adequate and special reasons to be mentioned in the judgment, impose a sentence of imprisonment for a term of less than three months;

(b) any property in respect of which the order has been contravened shall be forfeited to the Government;

(c) any package, covering or receptacle in which the property is found and any animal, vehicle, vessel or other conveyance used in carrying the property shall, if the court so orders, be forfeited to the Government.

(2) If any person to whom a direction is given under clause (b) of sub-section(4) of section 3 fails to comply with the direction, he shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than three months but which may extend to seven years and shall also be liable to fine:

Provided that the court may, for any adequate and special reasons to be mentioned in the judgment, impose a sentence of imprisonment for a term of less than three months.

(2A) If any person convicted of an offence under sub-clause (ii) of clause (a) of sub-section (1) or under sub-section (2) is again convicted of an offence under the same provision, he shall be punishable with imprisonment for the second and for every subsequent offence for a term which shall not be less than six months but which may extend to seven years and shall also be liable to fine:

Provided that the court may, for any adequate and special reasons to be mentioned in the judgment, impose a sentence of imprisonment for a term of less than six months.

(2B) For the purposes of sub-sections (1), (2) and (2A), the fact that an offence under sub-clause (ii) of clause (a) of sub-section (1) or under sub-section (2) has caused no substantial harm to the general public or to any individual shall be an adequate and special reason for awarding a sentence of imprisonment for a term of less than three months or six months, as the case may be.

[(3) Where a person having been convicted of an offence under sub-section (1) is again convicted of an offence under that sub-section for contravention of an order in respect of an essential commodity, the court by which such person is convicted shall, in addition to any penalty which may be imposed on him under that sub-section, by order, direct that that person shall not carry on any business in that essential commodity for such period, not being less than six months, as may be specified by the Court in the Order.]

32. It is well settled principle that sentence must be just but simultaneously the principle of proportionality between the crime and punishment cannot be totally brushed aside. The principle of just punishment is the bedrock of sentencing in respect of a criminal offence. A punishment should not be disproportionately excessive. The concept of proportionality allows a significant discretion to the court but the same has to be guided by certain principles. In certain cases, the nature of culpability, the antecedents of the accused, the factum of age, the potentiality of the convict to become a criminal in future, capability of his reformation and to lead an acceptable life in the prevalent milieu, the effect - propensity to become a social threat or nuisance, and sometimes lapse of time in the commission of the crime and his conduct in the interregnum bearing in mind the nature of the offence, the relationship between the parties and attractability of the doctrine of bringing the convict to the value based social mainstream may be the guiding factors. Needless to emphasize, these are certain illustrative aspects put forth in a condensed manner.

33. It has also been observed by the Apex Court that there can neither be a straitjacket formula nor a solvable theory in mathematical exactitude. It would be dependent on the facts of the case and rationalised judicial discretion. Neither the personal perception of a Judge nor self adhered moralistic vision nor hypothetical apprehensions should be allowed to have any play. For every offence, a drastic measure cannot be thought of. Similarly, an offender cannot be allowed to be treated with leniency solely on the ground of discretion vested in a court. The real requisite is to weigh the circumstances in which the crime has been committed and other concomitant factors which we have indicated hereinbefore and also have been stated in a number of pronouncements by this Court. On such touchstone, the sentences are to be imposed. The discretion should not be in the realm of fancy. It should be embedded in the conceptual essence of just punishment. In Gopal Singh v. State of Uttarakhand (2013) 7 SCC 545, the Apex Court elaborating the sentencing that, while imposing sentence, has to keep in view the various complex matters in mind. In respect of certain offences, sentence can be reduced by giving adequate special reasons but the special reasons have to rest on real special circumstances.

34. In the instant case, alleged incident took place about 40 years ago and appellant is not a previous convict and that accused-appellant alone cannot be held responsible for long delay in disposal of this appeal. It was stated for some days, accused-appellant has remained in custody. Considering all aspects of the matter, no useful purpose would be served by sending accused-appellant in to judicial custody to suffer imprisonment of three months at this stage, rather it appears that ends of justice would met it the sentence of three months imprisonment awarded by the trial court be set aside and accused-appellant be sentenced to the period already undergone by him along with fine of Rs. 5,000/-.

35. Accordingly, conviction of accused-appellant Ballu Mal is upheld, but sentence of three months awarded by the trial court is set aside and accused-appellant is sentenced to the period already undergone by him along with fine of Rs. 5,000/- Accused-appellant is directed to deposit fine of Rs. 5,000/- within forty five days from today. In default of payment of fine, accused-appellant shall undergo three months imprisonment.

36. Resultantly, the instant appeal is party allowed with following directions:-

(i) The judgment of conviction dated 27.04.1985 is confirmed though the sentence awarded of three months Rigorous Imprisonment is modified to the period already undergone by appellant.

(ii) The amount of fine of Rs.2,000/- is increased to Rs.7,000/- which shall be paid by appellant within six weeks from the date of judgment. In default, thereof, appellant has to undergo an additional simple imprisonment of two months.

(iii) A copy of judgment be sent to Court concerned for necessary information and compliance.

(iv) Trial court's recod be remitted back forthwith.

37. The Court appreciate the assistance rendered by Sri Radheyshyam Yadav, learned Amicus Curiae. The State Government is directed to pay Rs.5000/- as remuneration to Sri Radheyshyam Yadav at the earliest.

MISHRA, J.

Criminal Appeal No. 1399 of 2010

Raje @ Rajesh @ Santosh Kumar
...Appellant (In Jail)
Versus

State of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellant:

Sri Dharmendra Pratap Singh, Sri Sushil Tiwari, Sri Shyam Sunder Mishra

Counsel for the Respondent:

A. Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 374(2) - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Sections 376, 342 & 506 - Challenge to-Conviction-Statement of the victim (PW-1) corresponds with the site plan as shown where the victim allegedly raped at the tubewell of the accused person in which the cot is marked-delay is self-explanatory as the victim got missing due to fear when her brother searched her and apprised with the incident the FIR was lodged-Although witnesses named in FIR are not produced in evidence due to fear as they were not willing to speak the truth in the court yet from the statement of PW-1 and PW-2, this fact is proved that victim was rescued by two witnesses-Even in cross-examination nothing emerged which could make this fact suspicious that the victim was not rescued by these witnesses-Even where no external or internal marks of injury on the private part of the victim of rape was found in medical examination, the testimony of the prosecutrix that she was raped cannot be discarded-testimony of prosecutrix stands at par with that of an injured witness-an accused can be convicted on the basis of sole testimony of prosecutrix without any further corroboration provided the evidence of the prosecutrix inspires confidence and appears to be natural and truthful-Thus, the judgment of conviction and sentence passed by learned trial court is affirmed. (Para 1 to 26)

The appeal is dismissed. (E-6)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Manohar Narayan Mishra, J.)

1. Heard Sri Shyam Sundar Mishra, learned counsel for the appellant and Sri Ashish Mani Tripathi, learned A.G.A. assisted by Sri Raj Kumar Mishra, State Law Officer.

2. Instant Crl. Appeal has been preferred by the accused appellant against judgment and order dated 16.1.2010 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Fatehpur. By the impugned judgment, learned trial court has convicted the accused appellant for charge under Section 376, 342 and 506 IPC in S.T. No. 50 of 2002 (State of U.P. Vs. Chunni Lal Sharma and another) and sentenced him to ten years of rigorous imprisonment for charge under Section 376 IPC and Rs. 5,000/- fine with default stipulation, six months rigorous imprisonment for charge under Section 342 IPC and one year rigorous imprisonment for charge under Section 506 IPC. All the sentences were directed to run concurrently.

3. Co-accused Chunni Lal died during pendency of trial and trial against him abated vide order dated 9.11.2004 by the order of learned trial court.

4. Brief facts of the case relevant for present appeal are that according to prosecution version, informant Keshav Dutt Tiwari R/o Village Fatehpur Tikari, lodged an F.I.R. with P.S. concerned on 2.11.2001 at 6:30 pm, under Section 342, 376, 506 IPC at P.S. Khaga, District Fatehpur, with averment that his minor sister aged about 15 years had gone to ease herself towards agricultural field on 2.11.2001 at around 6:30 hours in the morning. After ease herself when she was returning to home, accused Raje @ Rajesh @ Santosh Kumar Shukla and Chunni Lal Sharma confronted her and took her in the room lying in nearby tubewell in the field and committed bad act with her. On next day i.e.

3.11.2001, his co-villagers Raghunandan and Ashok Kumar heard cries of his sister from the room of tubewell when they had gone to ease themselves and they opened the lock of the door and brought his sister from the room and stated about this incident to him. The accused had locked his sister in the room in the evening and went elsewhere. The investigating officer took the lower garment (salwar) worn by the victim on the date of incident in his possession in presence of local witnesses Rajjan Tiwari and Ram Saran which is marked as Ext. Ka-5. The medico legal examination of the victim was conducted on 4.11.2001 at District women hospital, Fatehpur by doctor Suriya Jabi, which is marked as Ext. Ka-8. Dr. Suriya Jabi stated that no injury was seen on any part of the body of victim on the date of her examination on 4.11.2001. In internal examination, "vagina dilated and admits two finger easily, hymen old torn with healed edges, bleeding from O.S. present (menstrual bleed). No injury is seen on and around private parts. Vaginal smears taken and sent for examination of alive or dead human spermatozoa and referred to District Hospital, Fatehpur, for X-ray wrist, elbow and knee joint for age. In supplementary report Ext. Ka-9 the doctor stated that according to report of radiologist, radiological age of the girl is about 18 years. No opinion about rape can be given. There is no evidence of any living or dead spermatozoa in the vaginal smear slikes. The investigating officer recorded statement of informant and victim under Section 161 Cr.P.C. who stated on 3.11.2001, on the date of lodging of F.I.R, that the victim stated that in the morning of 2.11.2001 she had gone to ease herself towards field lying in the west side of her village and after easing herself when she was returning to her home, accused Raje @

Rajesh @ Santosh Kumar Shukla met her who was hiding in the neighboring Arhar field of Jagdish and threatened her by pointing a country-made pistol towards her that if she cried, he would kill her and dragged her towards field of Jwar and Arhar and took her towards tubewell and locked her in the room of tubewell from inside and dashed her on a cot and thereafter opened sting of her Salwar and committed rape on her by hurling threat of life to her. She lied on cot, thereafter his companion Chunni Lal Sharma appeared in the night and accused Raje @ Rajesh @ Santosh Kumar Shukla called him inside the room who also committed bad act with her against her will and both of them had left her in the room by locking its door. In the morning, she was rescued by Raghvendra and Ashok Kumar, her co-villagers, in the morning when they heard her cries. They opened the door and took her out of the room and took her to her home. Her lower garment (salwar) was got stained with blood which was entrusted to police. The investigating officer got the statement of victim recorded before the magistrate under Section 164 Cr.P.C. in which she supported her version recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. The investigating officer after completing the investigation, submitted charge sheet against accused persons Raje @ Rajesh @ Santosh Kumar Shukla and Chunni Lal and for their prosecution, learned C.J.M. took cognizance of the offence on charge sheet filed by the investigating officer and committed the case for trial to the court of session on 18.1.2001.

5. Charge sheet was filed against Rajesh @ Raje @ Santosh Kumar Shukla in his abscondence subsequently accused Rajesh @ Raje @ Santosh Kumar Shukla appeared and he was sent to jail. The accused Chunni Lal was enlarged on bail by the order of Hon'ble Court and present appellant faced trial as most of the time as under trial prisoner. Charges were framed against accused persons by learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 4, Fatehpur on 20.7.2002 under Section 342, 506 and 376 IPC against accused Rajesh @ Raje @ Santosh Kumar Shukla and Chunni Lal Sharma. During prosecution evidence, learned trial court recorded statements of PW-1 Prosecutrix, PW-2 Keshav Dutt Tiwari (informant), PW-3 S.I. Dinesh Bajpayee, the then Head Mohrrir and author of chick F.I.R. (Ext. Ka-2) and extracts of G.D. No. 22, time 12:10 hours, dated 3.11.2001 (Ext. Ka-3), PW-4 Subeer Kumar, PW- 5, S.S.I. Madhusudan Singh, investigating officer, who proved the inventory of salwar worn by the victim at the time of incident as Ext. Ka-5, site plan of the place of incident as Ext. Ka-6, charge sheet filed against accused persons as Ext. Ka-7. He also produced Salwar of the victim which was taken into possession after the incident by producing before the court as material Ext. 1. and its wrappers as material Exts. 1, 2 and 3. PW-6 Dr. Suriya proved medico examination report of the victim as Ext. Ka-8 and supplementary report as Ext. Ka-9, as the same being prepared and signed by her. PW-7, K.P. Singh, then Senior Radiologist, who proved X-ray report of the victim as Ext. Ka-10 and X-ray plates as material Ext. 4.

6. Statement of accused was recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. after conclusion of prosecution evidence in which he has stated that case was filed against him due to enmity, he only admitted the fact that co-accused Chunni Sharma died during pendency of trial. He also stated that victim and informant had given false evidence against him and took the stand that prosecutrix and co-accused Chunni Lal Sharma were having intimate relationship and victim had eloped with him. She was caught near Khaga as Chunni Lal was bataidar of his field. She had implicated him also with Chunni Lal due to fear of social ignominee. No defense has been adduced by the accused.

7. Learned trial court after appreciating the evidence on record and hearing statements of learned counsel for the parties observe that on the basis of evidence of PW-1 and PW-2, victim and informant, this fact is proved perfectly that on the date of incident accused Rajesh and co-accused Chunni Lal dragged the victim (PW-1) to the room of tubewell and committed rape on her. He also considered the statements of defense that independent witnesses Raghunandan and Ashok Kumar, who are said to have rescued the victim from the room in which she was detained by accused persons in the next morning of the date of incident, were produced before the court and observed that learned A.D.G.C. (Criminal) had submitted that these witnesses were not ready to appear before the Court and tell the truth and for that reason they were not produced before the court. Learned court below also observed in view of authoritative pronouncement of Hon'ble Apex Court and High Court, the corroboration of statement of prosecutrix by independent witness is not necessary in every case. It depends on facts and circumstances of the case as to whether corroboration is required or not. The requirement of corroboration is not rule of law but a rule of caution. He cited certain judicial decisions in support of his submissions. Learned court below further observed that there is no occasion to look at the evidence of victim of sexual offence like rape with suspicion. Victim and his brother had no reason to falsely implicate the accused persons for committing the offence like rape. Learned trial court also observed that no adverse inference can be drawn against the version of the prosecutrix only due to reason that no external or internal injury was found on her person in her medico legal examination report. She was unmarried and it cannot be imagined that victim and her brother would falsely implicate the appellant and co-accused only due to certain enmity by keeping their honour and social respect on stake. The victim has given reliable account of sequence of events which cannot be burst aside. This fact also gathers no mass that the victim had chosen agricultural field lying some what distant from her home near Arhar field and her conduct cannot be seen with doubt as she had chosen a field near the tube-well of accused to ease herself. He has also observed that in rural area people shall choose distant agricultural fields to ease themselves in morning hours. Learned court below after giving thoughtful considerations to submission of learned counsel for the parties and evidence on record, recorded verdict of guilt against appellant and sentenced for charge under Section 376, 342, 506 IPC and sentenced him as aforesaid.

8. Feeling aggrieved by the impugned judgment and order, the accused appellant has filed present criminal appeal under Section 374 of Code of Criminal Procedure.

9. Learned counsel for the appellant submitted that learned court below has convicted and sentenced the appellant without considering the evidence adduced during trial in proper perspective and in meticulous manner. The appellant was enlarged on bail by the orders of this Court dated 17.7.2002, however, he became absent and afterwards he was again sent to jail by the orders of trial court on 27.7.2007. F.I.R. in present case was lodged after two days of the incident and there is no explanation of delay in lodging the F.I.R. in prosecution version. Learned Additional Session Judge ignored the infirmities pointed out by accused side in statement of prosecution witnesses. The independent witnesses of prosecution who are named in the F.I.R. were not produced during trial which creates doubt regarding authenticity of the F.I.R. version. The prosecution version and statement of the victim does not find corroboration from medico legal examination report of the prosecutrix. The doctor who conducted medico legal examination of the prosecutrix has categorically stated in her report that victim was habitual for sexual intercourse and no opinion can be given regarding rape.

10. Per contra, learned A.G.A. submitted that prosecution version introduced in F.I.R. lodged at the instance of brother of the victim (PW-1) is proved by the evidence of witnesses of fact PW-1 (prosecutrix) and PW-2, informant, and finds corroboration by the evidence of formal witnesses. No adverse inference should be drawn against statement of prosecutrix who should be treated as injured witnesses only due to fact that witnesses named in F.I.R. Raghvendra and Ashok Kumar could not be produced by prosecution before the trial court and no fault can be found on the part of the learned trial court while convicting and sentenced the accused-appellant. Appeal deserves dismissal. During course of trial, report was received from C.J.M. concerned dated 18.5.2022 wherein he stated that on conducting the enquiry regarding live status of the accused-appellant it is reported by S.H.O. concerned that he is presently residing at the place of his in-laws in Kanpur Nagar who drives e-rickshaw.

11. In letter dated 24.6.2022 learned C.J.M., Fatehpur, informed this Court that District Superintendent of Jail, Fatehpur has informed that prisoner Raje @ Rajesh @ Santosh Kumar Shukla, has been released from jail on 5.10.2022 after completing his punishment of imprisonment as well as after the depositing of amount of fine of Rs. 5,000/- in the court and presently he is detained in jail.

12. In present case accused was charged for offence under Section 342, 506 and 376 IPC by learned Trial Judge, on 2.7.2002. In order to prove the charge prosecution examined PW-1, prosecutrix, and PW-2 (father of prosecutrix) Keshav Dutt Tiwari as witnesses of act.

13. PW-1, prosecutrix, has stated in her sworn testimony before the court that she is acquainted with accused from before the incident. Accused Chunni Lal Sharma has died. The incident occurred seven years two months ago from her evidence (recorded on 16.1.2009). At around 6:30 hours in the morning she had gone to West of her village to ease herself and when she was coming towards home after ease herself, accused Raje @ Rajesh @ Santosh Kumar Shukla who was hiding in Arhar field of Jagadish, emerged from there and brandished a country made pistol towards her and threatened her to shoot her if she cried and dragged her towards room of tubewell and flinged her on cot and forcefully untied her lower garment (salwar) and committed rape on her. She kept crying on the cot throughout the day and accused was also present there and kept on threatening her. In night he also called co-accused Chunni Lal who also committed rape on her and thereafter both of them went outside the room and locked it from outside. She kept on crying and weeping throughout in the night. In the morning, her co-villager Raghunandan and Shiv and Ashok Kumar came there and rescued her by opening the door. She apprised her brother and mother about the incident and thereafter her brother took her to P.S. and lodged report. The doctor conducted her medico legal examination at Government hospital, Fatehpur. Her lower garment worn at the time of incident was taken at P.S. which was blood stained. She was around 15 years of age at the time of incident. The investigating officer recorded her statement. She knows meaning of rape which implies insertion of male organ in the place meant for urinating on person of female.

14. In cross-examination, she stated that she had told her age as 15 years to S.I. as well as in the court. If the S.I. has not stated her age as 15 years in her statement, she cannot divulge its reason. Prior to this incident, her private parts were not interfered. No injury was caused therein. She was virgin. The doctor had inspected her private parts. The field in which she had gone to ease herself is not connected with pathway. The tubewell is lying 5-6 fields away from the pathway. That tubewell is situated in the West side of her village. Her home is towards North of village. At that time, Arhar was sown in the fields lying in North and East of her home. Accused had dragged her. At the time of incident, she suffered scratches on her thighs in the process and her clothes were also torn. She was wearing Salwar-Suit. She had not taken any food in the day or night on that date. She had not taken even water. The accused left the room of tubewell on next morning at around 4:00 am and he did not come back. She was acquainted with Chuni Lal prior to the incident. Chunni Lal was residing in tubewell of Rajesh. The villagers had rescued her at 8 to 9: 00 hours from the tubewell after hearing her cries. She denied defense suggestion that prior to the incident she eloped with accused Chunni Lal and caught with him.

15. PW-2, Keshav Dutt Tiwari, who is brother of the victim, has supported the F.I.R. version and proved the written report Ext. Ka-1 filed by him at P.S. which found basis of F.I.R.. He also stated that investigating officer has recorded his statement.

16. In cross-examination he clarified that he has not seen the incident. He has also not seen Raghvendra and Ashok Kumar rescuing the victim from tubewell. He has lodged the F.I.R. on being apprised about the incident by these witnesses. The witnesses had brought her sister in the morning at around 9/10:00 hours. He had searched his sister after she went missing but he did not search her towards the tubewell. Accused Rajesh was married and having children prior to the incident. He refused defense suggestion that prior to the incident his sister eloped with son of Shanti Singh, his co-villager.

17. PW-3, S.I., Dinesh Bajpayee, has proved Ext. Ka-3, extracts of G.D. of registration of case Report No. 22, time 12:10 hours, dated 3.11.2001 and chick F.I.R. as Ext. Ka-4.

18. PW-4, Subeer Kumar, has testified that he has examined vaginal smeear sliques of victim on 5.11.2001 wherein no live or dead spermatozoa was detected. He proved this report as Ext. Ka-4

19. PW-5, Madhusoodan Singh, the then S.S.I., has proved the inventory of taking in possession the Salwar of the victim as Ext. Ka-5. Site plan of the place of incident as Ext. Ka-6, charge sheet as Ext. Ka-7 and also produced Salwar of the victim before the court on which ME-1, ME-2 and ME-3 were marked.

20. PW-6, Dr. Suriya, proved medico legal examination report and supplementary report of the victim as Ext. Ka-8 and Ka-9 and stated that no external or internal injury was found on person of the victim. Her age was around 18 years. No opinion regarding rape could be given.

21. PW-7, Dr. K.P. Singh, proved X-ray report of victim regarding fusion of her bones for determining her age and stated that according to X-ray, she was around 18 years of age. He also proved X-ray plates as ME-4.

22. The accused did not adduce any defense evidence. His stand is that of denial. He stated that in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. the informant and prosecutrix has given false statement against hi. There was love affair between prosecutrix and co-accused Chunni Lal and she had eloped with him and was recovered farther to Khaga. Chunni Lal was his bataidar.

23. The place of occurrence as stated in statement of PW-1, victim, corresponds with site plan (Ext. Ka-6) prepared by the investing officer in which place of occurrence is shown as room at the tubewell in which the cot is marked where the victim was allegedly raped by accused persons. F.I.R. in present case was lodged on 3.11.2021 at 12:10 hours by Keshav Dutt, brother of the victim, which is found on record as Ext. Ka-2. The delay in lodging the F.I.R. is self explanatory in the F.I.R. itself, therein it is stated that victim got missing on 2.11.2001 and the informant (her brother) was searching for her and on next date, she was rescued by witnesses from the room of tubewell which belonged to accused appellant and thereafter he was apprised of the facts and he lodged the F.I.R. at P.S. concerned by filing written report. The distance between P.S. and the place of incident is 6 km, therefore, in my considered opinion there is no delay in lodging of F.I.R. that too in a case like rape. Although witnesses named in F.I.R. are not produced in evidence due to fact that according to prosecution they were not willing to speak the truth in the court yet from statement of PW-1 and PW-2, this fact is proved that victim was rescued by Raghvendra and Ashok Kumar. They were not produced by defense to rebut this version of prosecutrix and informant. Even in cross-examination of PW-1 and PW-2, nothing emerged which could make this fact suspicious that victim was not rescued by these witnesses. There is nothing to disbelieve the sequence of events stated by PW-1 and PW-2.

24. In catena of decisions like Raja Vs. State of Karnataka, (2016) 10 SCC 506, State of U.P. Vs. Chhoteylal, AIR 2011 SC 697, Moti Lal Vs. State of M.P., 2009 (67) ACC 570 (SC), Wahid Khan Vs. State of M.P., 2009 (7) Supreme 584, Om Prakash Vs. State of State of U.P., 2006 (55) ACC 556 (SC), Hon'ble Apex Court held that in a case of rape, testimony of prosecutrix stands at par with that of an injured witness. It is really not necessary to insist for corroboration if the evidence of prosecutrix inspires confidence and appears to be credible. An accused can be convicted on the basis of sole testimony of prosecutrix without any further corroboration provided the evidence of the prosecutrix inspires confidence and appears to be natural and truthful. Women or girl raped is not accomplice and to insist for corroboration of the testimony amounts to insult to womanhood. The evidence of a victim of sex-offence is entitled to great weight, absence of corroboration notwithstanding, therefore, there is no force in the arguments of learned counsel for the appellant that sole testimony of prosecutrix is not corroborated by any other evidence.

25. In so far as defence argument is concerned, this defence argument that no injury was found by the doctor on the person of the victim is concerned Hon'ble Apex Court in State of U.P. Vs. Chhotey Lal, AIR 2011 SC 697 and Madan Gopal Kakkad Vs. Naval Dubey, (1992) 3 SCC 204 and other cases, clarified that even where no external or internal marks of injury on the private part of the victim of rape was found in medical examination, the testimony of the prosecutrix that she was raped by the accused cannot be discarded, therefore in the light of foregoing discussions and authorities cited above, this Court is of considered opinion that learned trial court has convicted no misappreciation of evidence on record as alleged in present appeal nor there is any legal error in application of law and no factual or legal error is found on the part of the learned trial court while recording conviction of the appellant and or awarding sentence against him as aforesaid.

26. Appeal is devoid of merit and is liable to be dismissed. Appeal stands dismissed with above observations. The judgment of conviction and sentence passed by learned trial court is affirmed. As the fact has already brought on record that appellant has completed full sentence awarded in impugned judgment, he need not surrender to suffer the sentence anymore.

27. Let a copy of this judgment along with lower court record be sent to court concerned for necessary information and compliance.

THE HON'BLE PRITINKER DIWAKER, C.J.
THE HON'BLE NALIN KUMAR SRIVASTAVA, J.

Criminal Appeal No. 1752 of 2012

Amar Singh & Anr. ...Appellants (In Jail)
Versus
State of U.P. ...Opposite Party

Counsel for the Appellants:

Sri Jitendra Kumar Mishra, Sri Anjani Kumar Dubey, Sri S.S. Yadav, Sri Vijay Singh

Counsel for the Opposite Party:

Sri Amit Sinha, A.G.A., Ms. Mayuri Mehrotra, State Counsel, Sri Ram Nath, Sri S.K. Tripathi

A. Criminal Law - Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 - Section 378 - Indian Penal Code, 1860-Sections 302, 307, 394, 323-Challenge to-Conviction-Variations found in statements of eye-witnesses-FIR was lodged promptly-However, witnesses were examined after lapse of time but if the eye-witnesses are cogent and trustworthy and prevails over medical evidence in all aspects where autopsy report is found in conflict with that of ocular evidence-Conviction and sentence upheld.(Para 1 to 74)

B. So far as charge under Section 307 IPC is concerned, the settled law is that it is not necessary that injury, capable of causing death, should have been inflicted. What is material to attract the provisions of Section 307 of IPC is the intention or knowledge with which the all was done, irrespective of its result. The intention and knowledge are the matters of inference from totality of circumstances and cannot be measured merely from the results. In fact the important thing to bear in mind for determining the question as to whether the offence under Section 307 IPC is made out, is the intention and not the injury, even if it may be simple or minor. Question of intention to kill or knowledge of death is always a question of fact and not of law. the intention or knowledge of the accused must be such as is necessary to constitute murder. Section 307 IPC does not require that injury should be on vital part of the body. Merely causing hurt with intention or knowledge of causing death is sufficient to attract Section 307 IPC.(Para 71)

The appeal is dismissed. (E-6)

19. P.W.-2 Mewalal is the injured witness. He has also corroborated the F.I.R. version and supported the testimony of PW-1.

As secondary witness for I.O. he has proved site plan (Ext. ka-8), Memo (Ext. ka-9) and charge sheet (Ext. ka-10).

26. On the basis of aforesaid oral and documentary evidence, learned trial court recorded the conviction of the appellants and sentenced them, as mentioned herein-above.

27. The impugned judgment and order of the trial court has been assailed by the learned counsel for the appellants on various grounds.

28. Heard Shri Jitendra Kumar Mishra, learned counsel for the appellants, Shri Amit Sinha, learned AGA and Ms. Mayuri Mehrotra, learned State Counsel for the State and perused the entire record.

29. In a criminal trial, the prosecution has a bounden duty to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt on the basis of cogent and reliable evidence and not on the weaknesses of the defence. If the prosecution case rests upon eyewitness account, the ocular evidence must be reliable and free from all infirmities and the eye witness must fall into the category of "sterling witness" and if such ocular evidence is also supported and corroborated with the medical evidence, in all probabilities, the prosecution may succeed in proving its case beyond reasonable doubt.

30. Present is a case which rests upon eyewitness account and two, out of the three, witnesses of fact are injured witnesses.

31. PW-2 Mewalal and PW-3 Veer Singh are the injured witnesses and from the perusal of their entire testimony, we find that they have made almost similar statements regarding the role of accused persons in commission of the crime, place of occurrence, weapons used in crime and other relating factors. They have sustained injuries in the said occurrence and on account of being injured witnesses their evidence stand on a different and distinguished footing and deserves to be seen as a cogent and reliable piece of evidence.

32. PW-2 and PW-3 both have clearly stated that at the time of the incident when after having informed by Km. Pappi regarding the assault on Prahlad Singh by four accused persons, they rushed to the place of occurrence to save him. PW-2 has made a specific statement supported by PW-1 and PW-3 as well that when he rushed to the field to save Prahlad Singh, he also took his single barrel gun alongwith eight cartridges, Veer Singh, Mahendra and Surendra also accompanied him and this statement is also corroborated by PW-3.

(i) PW-3, who is the son of the deceased, has stated that when they reached the site of occurrence, accused persons left his father and caused injuries to him and his uncle Mewalal (PW-2). He sustained grievous injuries upon his eye, leg and face and his uncle Mewalal, father Prahlad Singh also sustained grievous injuries.

(ii) PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 stated in a single voice that accused Amar Singh snatched the gun and belt of cartridges from Mewalal and flew away. They have also made identical statements on the point that during the incident accused Amar Singh caused injuries to the deceased and injured persons by use of farsa, Panjabi by sword, Chaubey by tawal and Nanhu by lathi.

33. A primary objection has been raised by the learned counsel for the appellants in respect of non-production of Km. Pappi as prosecution witness. It has been argued that statement of deceased Prahlad Singh, while he was alive, was not recorded by the police under Section 161 CrPC, hence it was incumbent upon the prosecution to produce Km. Pappi as witness, who was the best person to tell as to how occurrence started. This plea was vehemently opposed by the learned State counsel and the learned counsel for the informant.

34. From the perusal of the record, we find that in charge sheet (Ext. ka-10), name of Km. Pappi has been shown as witness, which reveals that her statement under Section 161 CrPC was recorded by the Investigating Officer. The question arises as to whether non-production of Km. Pappi, as witness, makes any adverse effect upon the prosecution version and the answer we find in negative. It is always the prerogative of the prosecution to decide as to how many and which of the witnesses have to be examined by it before the Court. The law, as provided under Section 134 of the Evidence Act, is that "no particular number of witnesses shall in any case be required for the proof of any fact."

35. We rely upon Chacko vs. State of Kerala, (2004) 12 SCC 269 wherein it has been held that no particular number of witnesses is required to establish the case. Conviction can be based on the testimony of a single witness, if he is wholly reliable. Corroboration may be necessary when he is only partially reliable. If the evidence is unblemished and beyond all possible criticism and the court is satisfied that the witness was speaking the truth then on his evidence alone conviction can be maintained.

36. Reference can also be placed on the Hon'ble Apex Court decision in Raj Narain Singh Vs. State of U.P. 2010 AIR SCW 521 wherein it has been held that it is not necessary that all those persons, who were present at spot, must be examined. It is the quality of evidence, which is required to be taken note of by Courts and not the quantity.

37. We can very well remind here that PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 are the eye witnesses. PW-1 in his deposition has stated that Pappi has told that all the four accused persons are bitterly assaulting Prahlad Singh by farsa, taval, sword and lathi and when he along with PW-2 and PW-3 reached the field, Prahlad Singh was lying unconscious there in injured condition and at the same time they caused injuries to Mewalal and Veer Singh with the aforesaid weapons and ran away. He has also stated that all the three injured were taken to hospital by the police. The police taking into account the serious condition of the injured persons immediately sent them for medical treatment and Prahlad Singh died on the way.

38. PW-2 also corroborated this story and stated that when they reached the place of occurrence, he saw all the four persons from a distance of 20-25 meters causing injuries to Prahlad Singh and as soon as he reached near the Nali, the accused persons left Prahlad Singh and attacked over him and his gun was also snatched. In the same fashion, PW-3 also states that when they reached the field, accused persons leaving his father Prahlad Singh attacked over him and his uncle Mewalal. He further states that when he reached the field alongwith Mewalal, all the accused persons were assaulting Prahlad Singh and when the accused persons made assault upon him and Mewalal, Prahlad Singh was lying on the ground. This witness also clarifies that his statement given to the Investigating Officer to the extent that when he reached the spot, accused persons had already caused injuries to his father Prahlad Singh, was correct.

39. Learned counsel for the appellants have pointed out that there are contradictions in the statements of the aforesaid witnesses on the point that when they reached the spot, any incident was carrying on or not and their ocular version at this juncture is highly doubtful.

40. The aforesaid plea draws our attention to a glaring fact that the incident in the present matter happened on 28.12.1989 and the statement of PW-1 was recorded in the year 2007, PW-2 in the year 2008 and PW-3 in the year 2011, hence, the evidence of witnesses of fact has been recorded after 18 - 22 years of the incident. No normal man can be expected to have a computerized and calculated memory of any incident which occurred before him 15 or 20 years back. When the Court evaluates the veracity of deposition of any witness of fact, it should always take into account as to after a gap of how much time the evidence of such witness has been recorded. The human memory has its own limitations and it is natural to be faded into a gap of long span of time. It is not possible for a normal person to describe in verbatim and in the same fashion the whole incident, which was witnessed by him before 15-20 years and what he had stated before the Investigating Officer at that time. The contradictions, if any, found in the testimonies of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 should be considered with this prospect also. The view of this Court finds support from Dharnidhar vs. State of U.P., 2010 (6) SCJ 662 wherein it has been held that when the witnesses are examined in the Court after a considerable lapse of time, it is neither unnatural nor unexpected that there can be some minor variations in the statements of the prosecution witnesses and in fact, as held in Ramesh vs. State of U.P., (2009) 15 SCC 513, minor contradictions in the testimonies of the prosecution witness are bound to be there and in fact they go to support the truthfulness of the witnesses. We have meticulously scrutinized the entire testimony of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 and we find no material contradictions in their depositions.

41. In this backdrop, we are of the opinion that non-production of Km. Pappi, as witness, was not fatal for the prosecution and also that PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 are the reliable and trustworthy witnesses having consistency in their statements and as such they fall into the category of "sterling witnesses".

42. We consider it apposite to examine the prosecution witnesses from the angle of medical evidence also. The statement of PW-4, who performed the autopsy of the deceased, reveals that as many as 11 injuries were found on the body of the deceased, which were in the form of lacerated wounds, abrasion, and incised wounds inflicted upon various parts of the body, such as skull, face, neck, hand, etc.. The autopsy report shows that cause of death was shock and haemorrhage as a result of ante mortem injuries. PW-4 has opined that death of the deceased might be caused by injuries inflicted by the sharp weapon on 28.12.1989 at about 4.00 p.m.. The witnesses of fact clearly state that farsa, sword, taval and lathi were the weapons used in the occurrence. No doubt they stated about the use of some blunt objects also in the commission of crime. Nature of injury nos. 1,2,3,4 and 11 shows that these injuries might be inflicted by use of hard and blunt object. We find that overall, there is no major contradiction between the ocular and medical evidence. It has been pointed out by the learned counsel for the appellants that PW-4, the doctor, in his deposition has opined that death of the deceased might have been caused by injuries inflicted by use of sharp edged weapons but if the argument is even taken to be correct, we find that the medical evidence nowhere rules out the use of hard and blunt object to inflict injuries to the deceased. Hence, there is no material contradiction between ocular and medical evidence and even if it is pointed out, in a catena of decisions it has been held that if the ocular evidence is found trustworthy and credible, the medical evidence based on the probabilities only cannot prevail over the ocular evidence.

43. In Ravi Kumar vs. State of Punjab, (2005) 9 SCC 315, it has been held that when ocular evidence is cogent and reliable, medical evidence to the contrary cannot corrode the evidentiary value of the former.

44. Likewise, in Premasagar Manocha vs. State (NCT Delhi), (2016) 4 SCC 571, it was held that being based on his knowledge, expert opinion may be subject to change on coming across any authentic material subsequently. Opinion of expert witness is different from testimony of witness of fact. Duty of expert is to render his opinion along with reason and relevant material. It would then be for the Court to see correctness of opinion and reach its conclusion accordingly.

45. In the light of the aforesaid established legal position, we conclude that the evidence of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3, as eyewitnesses of the occurrence, is cogent and trustworthy and prevails over the medical evidence in all aspects wherever the autopsy report is found in conflict with that of the ocular evidence.

46. From a perusal of the record, it reveals that Dr. B.N. Agrawal, who medically examined both the injured persons Veer Singh and Mewalal, had expired in a road accident and PW-6 in the form of secondary evidence deposes for him and proves the injury reports of injured Veer Singh and Mewalal as Ext. ka-4 and Ext. ka-5 respectively, on the basis of original medico legal register. He states that both the injured persons were examined on 28.12.1989 by Dr. B.N. Agrawal at 10.30 p.m. and 10.45 p.m., respectively. Perusal of the injury report (Ext. ka-4) of injured Veer Singh clearly indicates that he has sustained a lacerated wound present on the right eye brow, incised wound present on the left lateral malleolus incising malleolus and adjoining bones and haematoma of right chest and eye side and on lacerated wound of upper lip. Injury no. (iv) incised wound was found grievous caused by sharp weapon and x-ray was advised, whereas other injuries were caused by some other blunt object. In the same manner, (Ext. ka-5), injury report of injured Mewalal clearly indicates that he has sustained lacerated wounds present on the left parietal eminence of scalp, present on the right cheek near right tragus, present on the left eye brow and fracture of left maxilla. All the injuries were found simple. Injury no. (iv) was grievous, x-ray was advised. Nature of injuries caused to both the injured persons are indicative of fact that all the injuries were caused by PW-2 and PW-3. It is true that there is no x-ray report or supplementary report on record but the medical reports of both injured persons, which are on record, have been proved by secondary evidence of PW-6, which was admissible in law as the original doctor expired before recording evidence in the Court. In that fashion, testimonies of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 prove the prosecution case and gets full corroboration from the medical evidence in material aspects.

47. It is pointed out by the learned counsel for the appellants that all the fact witnesses rendered by the prosecution are the witnesses related to the deceased and as such they are interested witness as well and in the same manner it has also been submitted that the prosecution witnesses and the informant had strong motive to implicate the appellants in a false case. It is further pointed out that since the occurrence happened in day light at a public place, in all probabilities persons from public must have been present at the time of incident, but independent witnesses were concealed by the prosecution in this case and were not examined. Learned AGA, per contra, vehemently opposing the aforesaid contention, has argued that relationship is not a factor to discard the testimony of any witness of fact, if the same inspires confidence of the Court. It has been further argued that since it is a case of ocular evidence, motive has no significance in this matter.

48. While dealing with the aforesaid issue, this fact cannot be lost sight that in the present matter out of the three witnesses of fact, PW-2 Mewalal and PW-3 Veer Singh are the injured witnesses. It will be pertinent to mention here that witness of fact if himself sustains injuries in the same incident and deposes accordingly before the Court, his evidence stands on a different footing and the credibility of his evidence cannot be doubted only because he is related to the deceased and as such is an interested witness.

49. It is true that in the F.I.R. itself, it has been mentioned that many villagers had seen the occurrence apart from the witnesses of fact, who have been examined before the Court. PW-2 the injured states that on their shrieks, Mija Ji, Bharat and several persons of the village reached the spot. PW-1 also states that many village persons came to the spot at the time of occurrence and similar statement is found in the testimony of PW-3 also. We have also sifted the charge sheet (Ext. ka-10) submitted in this matter by the Investigating Officer and from a perusal of the same it is apparent that Km. Pappi, Mahendra Singh and Surendra Singh are also named as eye witnesses of the case. The point to be dealt with is whether the prosecution case is adversely affected if the witnesses of fact named in the charge sheet, who are said to be independent witnesses, are not adduced before the Court and at the same place it is also to be examined whether witnesses of fact, who are said to be related / interested witnesses, are credible and reliable witnesses or not.

50. The testimonies of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 have been scrutinized meticulously by the learned trial court and also examined by us and we have no hesitation to hold that after a careful scrutiny the evidence of aforesaid witnesses has been found credible and reliable. In view of that, in our considered view, the prosecution was not required to adduce any other witness just to show that it was going to prove its case by some independent witness also.

51. There is another practical aspect of the matter, which cannot be ignored by any Court of law that independent persons of public often avoid to stand as witness for prosecution in any criminal trial for so many reasons. In State of Andhra Pradesh vs. S. Rayappa and others, (2006) 4 SCC 512, the Hon'ble Supreme Court examined several aspects of a criminal trial and this aspect was also taken into account as to why independent witnesses ignore to depose in favour of the prosecution and in what circumstances the probability of false implication may be ruled out. It was also clarified as to why the prosecution in so many cases is bound to rely upon the witnesses, who happen to be the relative to the deceased (victim). It was held in paras 6 and 7 as under :

"6.....By now it is a well-established principle of law that testimony of a witness otherwise inspiring confidence cannot be discarded on the ground that he being a relation of the deceased is an interested witness. A close relative who is a very natural witness cannot be termed as an interested witness. The term interested postulates that the person concerned must have some direct interest in seeing the accused person being convicted somehow or the other either because of animosity or some other reasons.

7. On the contrary it has now almost become a fashion that the public is reluctant to appear and depose before the court especially in criminal case because of varied reasons. Criminal cases are kept dragging for years to come and the witnesses are harassed a lot. They are being threatened, intimidated and at the top of all they are subjected to lengthy cross-examination. In such a situation, the only natural witness available to the prosecution would be the relative witness. The relative witness is not necessarily an interested witness. On the other hand, being a close relation to the deceased they will try to prosecute the real culprit by stating the truth. There is no reason as to why a close relative will implicate and depose falsely against somebody and screen the real culprit to escape unpunished. The only requirement is that the testimony of the relative witnesses should be examined cautiously. The High Court has brushed aside the testimony of PW 1 and PW 2 on the sole ground that they are interested witnesses being relatives of the deceased."

52. The trial Court has discussed the various aspects of motive and enmity existing between the parties in the present case. Reliance has been placed upon Bikau Pandey Vs. State of Bihar (2003) 12 SCC 616 by the learned state counsel wherein it has been held that when the direct evidence establishes the crime, motive is of no significance and pales into insignificance.

53. In Anil Rai Vs. State of Bihar (2001) 7 SCC 318 it has been held that enmity is a double edged weapon which can be a motive for the crime as also the ground for false implication of the accused persons.

54. There are catena of decisions on the point that in a case based upon the eye witness account, the motive loses its significance. In Deepak Verma Vs. State of Himachal Pradesh (2011) 10 SCC 129 it has been held as under:

"...Proof of motive is not a sine qua non before a person can be held guilty of commission of crime. Motive being a matter of mind, is more often than not difficult to establish through evidence."

55. However, in the present case a specific cause of animosity has been assigned between the parties and that was in respect of some barren field and this fact of animosity finds place in the testimony of witnesses of fact. PW-1, in his examination-in-chief, states that the informant side and the accused persons were having animosity on account of the barren field. Further, he has been cross-examined in respect of some will and he has denied that his Dau Kamta Prasad has executed any will in favour of Lilawati, who was the sister of his uncle Bhaiyalal. He has further denied that the land of Lilawati was ploughed by deceased Prahlad and Mewalal till the present occurrence happened and due to that reason Lilawati and her family members had some enmity with deceased - Prahlad and injured-Mewalal. He has further admitted that Amar Singh, the accused in this case, and other person Panjabi were prosecuted in the case of murder of his uncle Brijwasi and Pyare Lal wherein they were acquitted. He has further admitted that the accused persons belong to his own family and also states that the accused persons had no enmity with deceased Prahlad and other injured persons prior to this occurrence. PW-2 has also been cross-examined on the aforesaid points. PW-3 also states that no litigation in connection with any land or property took place between him and his father and accused Amar Singh.

56. Learned counsel for the appellants has made an attempt to show from the aforesaid statements of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 that they are trying to conceal the actual facts relating to the murder of the deceased and in fact the appellants were not the actual assailants, who have committed the crime. In our opinion, in view of the credible ocular version rendered by PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3, no other person comes into light as an assailant except the present appellants who have committed the offence. Further more, it has been clarified above that in a case based on eye witness account the question of motive loses its significance.

57. The trial court has meticulously scrutinized the evidence of fact adduced by the prosecution and from a careful scrutiny of the same, we also find that there are no material contradictions in the testimonies of witnesses of fact. Albeit, some minor discrepancies have rightly been pointed out by the appellants in the deposition of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3, but they do not go to the root of the prosecution case and never affects the prosecution case adversely. In view of the legal position, as enumerated earlier, the prosecution was not obliged to examine the independent witnesses of fact whose names have been mentioned in the charge sheet (Ext. ka-10). Section 134 of the Evidence Act is explicit on this issue which, as mentioned above, provides that no particular number of witnesses shall, in any case, be required for the proof of any fact. In Chacko case (supra), the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that Section 134 of the Evidence Act clearly states that no particular number of witnesses is required to establish the case. Conviction can be based on the testimony of a single witness, if he is wholly reliable. Corroboration may be necessary when he is only partially reliable. If the evidence is unblemished and beyond all possible criticism and the court is satisfied that the witness was speaking the truth, then on his evidence alone conviction can be maintained.

58. This fact is also not doubted by either of the parties that eye witnesses of the case were known to the appellants. Hence, we find that there was no need of identification of the appellants and the trial court, while appreciating the various aspects of the case, has correctly found that it is not a case of false implication due to old enmity between the parties, rather it is well proved from the evidence on record that due to enmity, the present crime has been committed by the accused persons / appellants and the factor of enmity goes against the appellants and in the same manner the issue of witnesses of fact being related to the deceased also does not go in favour of the appellants.

59. Reliance has been placed upon Bhagwan Jagannath Markad Vs. State of Maharashtra, (2016) 10 SCC 537 wherein it has been held that the testimony of a witness in a criminal trial cannot be discarded merely because the witness is a relative or family member of the victim of the offence. In such a case, Court has to adopt a careful approach in analyzing the evidence of such witness and if the testimony of the related witness is otherwise found credible, accused can be convicted on the basis of the testimony of such related witness.

60. Emphasis has been laid down on Surinder Kumar Vs. State of Punjab (2020) 2 SCC 563 by the learned A.G.A., wherein it has been reiterated that merely because prosecution did not examine any independent witness, would not necessarily lead to conclusion that accused was falsely implicated.

61. In Ashok Kumar Chaudhary v. State of Bihar, (2008) 12 SCC 173, it was held that if the testimony of an eye witness is otherwise found trustworthy and reliable, the same cannot be disbelieved and rejected merely because certain insignificant, normal or natural contradictions have appeared into his testimony. If the inconsistencies, contradictions, exaggerations, embellishments and discrepancies in the testimony are only normal and not material in nature, then the testimony of an eye witness has to be accepted and acted upon. Distinctions between normal discrepancies and material discrepancies are that while normal discrepancies do not corrode the credibility of a party's case, material discrepancies do so.

62. Further, it was held in Mukesh v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2017) 6 SCC 1 that non-examination of material witness is not a mathematical formula for discarding the weight of the testimony available on record howsoever natural, trustworthy and convincing it may be. It is settled law that non-examination of eye-witness cannot be pressed into service like a ritualistic formula for discarding the prosecution case with a stroke of pen. Court can convict an accused on statement of sole witness even if he is relative of the deceased and non examination of independent witness would not be fatal to the case of prosecution.

63. To falsify or strengthen the prosecution case, one important factor, which is always looked into, is the place of occurrence which, if not certain and fixed, is capable of putting the prosecution case within the cloud of suspicion, but if the place of occurrence is definite, it, no doubt, strengthens the truthfulness of the prosecution story. In the present case, the place of occurrence is the barren field, which had been a cause of enmity between the parties. PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 all the witnesses of fact make specific statement that occurrence happened in that very field where the deceased was present. These witnesses have been cross-examined by the defence during trial and the boundaries and detail of place of occurrence have been pointed out by them. The learned counsel for the appellants have tried to take some benefit of contradictions occurred in the statements of the aforesaid witnesses in this regard. When we sift the evidence at this very point we also find some minor contradictions so far as boundary of the place of occurrence is concerned. The learned trial court has also taken into account the fact as to which was the accurate place where the deceased was assaulted. PW-3 Veer Singh states that the incident took place in northern side of field no. 3049, which was in the southern direction of the road. In the site plan, (Ext. ka-8), the same position has been shown, although the number of the field has not been mentioned therein. PW-1 states that he had pointed out the place of occurrence to the Investigating Officer and had also shown, the place from where he himself alongwith his family members witnessed the occurrence. The aforesaid place has also been pointed out in site plan, Ext. ka-8. The topography shown in Ext.ka-8 also finds support from the statement of PW-2. PW-1 and PW-2 make specific statement that after causing the occurrence, the accused persons fled away in the eastern direction and the same has been shown in the site plan Ext. ka-8. PW-7, appearing as secondary witness for the Investigating Officer, has stated that the Investigating Officer had taken bloodstained and plain soil from the place of occurrence and memo, Ext. ka-9, was prepared by him. This is another factor, which denotes that this is the same place wherefrom the bloodstained and plain soil was taken by the Investigating Officer, as shown in the site plan (Ext. ka-8).

64. The learned AGA has submitted that PW-2 and PW-3 being injured witnesses are of distinguished character of witnesses and their evidence cannot be doubted upon. Earlier in this judgment, we have analysed the medical report and the injuries of the injured persons, which are in conformity with each other. We also find that the injured witnesses give consistent version of the incident, which also makes their deposition credible. In fact, the presence of injured witnesses at the time and place of occurrence cannot be doubted as they had received injuries during the course of incident and they should normally be not disbelieved, as held in Bhagwan Jagannath Markad case (supra) and Maqsoodan vs. State of U.P., (1983) 1 SCC 218.

65. The relevant witnesses have also been cross-examined in respect of inquest report and the learned trial court has applied its judicial mind to the genuineness of the same. We have also perused the inquest report (Ext. ka-3) and found that case crime number and sections are clearly mentioned in the inquest report, which means that the inquest was performed after lodging the F.I.R. Panchas have also opined that the death of the deceased was caused due to ante mortem injuries. The argument raised by the learned counsel for the appellants that no chitthi majrubi (letter by police for medical examination) relating to the deceased Prahald Singh, when he was in injured condition, was prepared by the police. The learned trial court has also analyzed this point and also rightly concluded that Prahald Singh died on the way to the hospital and his inquest was also performed in the hospital itself and in these circumstances, if chitthi majrubi relating to him is not on record, it does not falsify the prosecution case, particularly in a situation where chitthi majrubi of two injured persons was prepared, as PW-7 states.

66. To avoid the blame of false implication, a prompt registration of F.I.R. is normally must in any criminal case. In the case in hand the incident occurred on 28.12.1989 at about 4.00 p.m. and the F.I.R. has been lodged about four and half hours thereafter on the same day, as is evident from the chik F.I.R. Ext. ka-1. The registration G.D. (Ext. ka-6) was also prepared at the same time and after the death of injured Prahald, a termimi G.D. (amending G.D.) (Ext. ka-7) was also prepared and proved by PW-7. Hence, it is discernible that F.I.R. in this case is a genuine document. It has been registered on the basis of oral information given by the informant Mija Ji, as he himself deposes and finds support from the version of PW-7 and prompt registration of F.I.R. rules out any possibility of false implication of accused persons / appellants. In Sat Kumar vs. State of Haryana, (1974) 3 SCC 643, the Hon'ble Apex Court held that the fact that the informant had lodged the F.I.R. within half an hour at a place twelve miles away from the place of occurrence travelling in trucks leaves no possibility for concoction of a false case against any of the accused persons.

67. Defective investigation is very often a part of the prosecution case, which is targeted by the defence in order to avail the benefit on account of laches, omission and negligence committed by the Investigating Officer during investigation. In the case in hand, as assailed by the learned counsel for the appellants, the licensee gun allegedly snatched by its licensee Mewalal by the accused persons has not been recovered by the Investigating Officer. It is also submitted that the bloodstained cloth of injured persons were not seized by the Investigating Officer and bloodstained and plain soil was also not sent alongwith any bloodstained cloth for forensic test. It is true that above omissions are found in the investigation conducted by the Investigating Officer but in the light of the reliable ocular evidence, we do not find it any significant or strong omission on the part of the Investigating Officer, which may adversely affect the prosecution case. In a catena of decisions, it has been settled that for certain defects in the investigation, the accused cannot be acquitted if the prosecution case is proved by other cogent evidence. In C. Muniappan vs. State of T.N., 2010 (6) SCJ 822, it has been held that :

"55. There may be highly defective investigation in a case. However, it is to be examined as to whether there is any lapse by the IO and whether due to such lapse any benefit should be given to the accused. The law on this issue is well settled that the defect in the investigation by itself cannot be a ground for acquittal. If primacy is given to such designed or negligent investigations or to the omissions or lapses by perfunctory investigation, the faith and confidence of the people in the criminal justice administration would be eroded. Where there has been negligence on the part of the investigating agency or omissions, etc. which resulted in defective investigation, there is a legal obligation on the part of the court to examine the prosecution evidence dehors such lapses, carefully, to find out whether the said evidence is reliable or not and to what extent it is reliable and as to whether such lapses affected the object of finding out the truth. Therefore, the investigation is not the solitary area for judicial scrutiny in a criminal trial. The conclusion of the trial in the case cannot be allowed to depend solely on the probity of investigation."

68. We have observed that the appellants have also been charged for the offence under Sections 307, 324 and 325 IPC as well for inflicting injuries to the injured persons Mewalal and Veer Singh, but they have been acquitted by the trial court for the offence under Sections 324 and 325 of IPC and have been convicted under Section 307 IPC keeping in view the fact that they had assaulted upon both injured persons with intention to kill them. The number and nature of injuries caused to both the injured persons, as appears from the injury reports (Ext. ka-4 and (Ext. ka-5, respectively) and the manner of assault, as has been deposed by PW-2 and PW-3 in their depositions, is connotative to the fact that after giving fatal blows to Prahlad Singh, the accused persons were adamant to kill both injured persons also and with the intention to kill them, they made several blows upon them. The learned trial court considered this aspect in the impugned judgment and has drawn a right conclusion, which we concur with. Further, there is clinching evidence on record that the licensee gun alongwith belt of cartridges was robbed by the appellants and in committing the aforesaid robbery they also voluntarily caused hurt to them and on that basis offence under Section 394 IPC is also proved against them. We would like to emphasise that deceased Prahlad Singh was assaulted by the accused persons with intention to kill him with the aid of dangerous weapons and ultimately they succeeded and Prahlad Singh died subsequently.

69. Section 394 IPC provides as under :

"394. Voluntarily causing hurt in committing robbery.--If any person, in committing or in attempting to commit robbery, voluntarily causes hurt, such person, and any other person jointly concerned in committing or attempting to commit such robbery, shall be punished with imprisonment for life, or with rigorous imprisonment for a term which may extend to ten years, and shall also be liable to fine."

70. In the case in hand, we find on the basis of the evidence on record that the aforesaid ingredients of Section 394 IPC are completely made out against the appellants because it is apparent from the evidence on record that when the injured Mewalal reached the place of occurrence, the accused persons also made assault upon him and voluntarily, causing hurt to him, committed robbery by snatching the gun with belt and cartridges from him. This fact has been properly proved in evidence.

71. So far as charge under Section 307 IPC is concerned, the settled law is that it is not necessary that injury, capable of causing death, should have been inflicted. What is material to attract the provisions of Section 307 of IPC is the intention or knowledge with which the all was done, irrespective of its result. The intention and knowledge are the matters of inference from totality of circumstances and cannot be measured merely from the results. In fact the important thing to bear in mind for determining the question as to whether the offence under Section 307 IPC is made out, is the intention and not the injury, even if it may be simple or minor. Question of intention to kill or knowledge of death is always a question of fact and not of law. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Hari Kishan and State of Haryana vs. Sukhbir Singh, AIR 1988 SC 2127 has held that the intention or knowledge of the accused must be such as is necessary to constitute murder. In State of Madhya Pradesh vs. Harjeet Singh and another, AIR 2019 SC 1120, it was reiterated that Section 307 IPC does not require that injury should be on vital part of the body. Merely causing hurt with intention or knowledge of causing death is sufficient to attract Section 307 IPC.

72. The aforesaid legal principle, if examined in the context of the facts and circumstances of the present case, is totally applicable and we find that offence under Section 307 IPC is made out against the accused-appellants.

73. Upon careful analysis and consideration of the settled legal position in the backdrop of the facts and circumstances of the the present case, we are of the opinion that the conclusion given by the learned trial court in the impugned judgment and order is in accordance with law and the evidence available on record. The judgment is the result of the thoughtful consideration and cautious scrutiny of the evidence on record, oral as well as documentary. Thus, this Court is of the view that the prosecution has been able to establish the guilt of the accused appellants under Sections 302, 394 and 307 IPC beyond reasonable doubt and to the satisfaction of the judicial conscience of the Court.

74. The impugned judgment of conviction and sentence, which has been sought to be assailed, is well thought and well discussed and the same, warranting no interference, is liable to be upheld and appeal having no force is liable to be dismissed. Accordingly, the impugned judgment and order is upheld and the appeal is dismissed.

75. Appellant Panjabi is in jail. However, appellant Amar Singh is on bail. His bail bonds are cancelled and sureties are discharged. He be taken into custody forthwith for serving the remaining sentence.

76. Let a copy of this judgment along with trial court record be sent to the Court concerned, Kannauj for necessary compliance.

State of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellant:

Sri Arvind Kumar Kushwaha, Ms. Pooja, Ms. Shweta Kesarwani

Counsel for the Respondent:

G.A.

A. Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 374(2) - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Section 302-Challenge to-Conviction- In the instant case the deceased was the wife, the entire case was based on circumstantial evidence as there was no eyewitness to the alleged incident-injuries on the dead body were ante mortem in the nature-no incriminating articles were recovered during the investigation and no attempt was made to collect any evidence much less cogent evidence to connect the accused with the alleged crime- when the appellant came to the house after taking dinner at the house of his brother in law at 9 :00 P.M., he found that his wife deceased had been killed by splitting her throat-He has also written in the complaint that this information was given by him belatedly-No children of the deceased or any neighborer has supported the prosecution version that soon before the death of the deceased, the accused was present in the house -The circumstances howsoever strong can not take place of proof and guilt of accused have to be proved by prosecution beyond reasonable doubt-Prosecution had miserably been failed in proving the entire chain of circumstances that the alleged act was committed by the accused only and none else-Hence the order of conviction and sentencing passed by session court is quashed was quashed and the accused is acquitted.(Para 1 to 11)

B. Insofar as the "last seen theory" is concerned, there is no doubt that the appellant being none other than the wife of the deceased and staying under the same roof, was the last person the deceased was seen with. However, such companionship of the deceased and the appellant, by itself, does not mean that a presumption of guilt of the appellant is to be drawn. The Trial Court and the High Court have proceeded on the assumption that Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act¹¹ directly operates against the appellant. In our view, such an approach has also not been free from error where it was omitted to be considered that Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act does not absolve the prosecution of its primary burden. (Para 9)

The appeal is allowed. (E-6)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Umesh Chandra Sharma, J.)

1. Heard Shri Arvind Kumar Kushwaha, Ms. Pooja and Shweta Kesarwani, learned counsel for the sole appellant and Shri N.K Srivastava, learned AGA for the state.

2. This appeal has been preferred by accused Vinod Chaudhari, husband of deceased, Sangeeta, against the judgment and order dated 13.2.2019 of conviction and sentencing in S.T. No. 10 of 2015 (State of UP Vs Vinod Chaudhari) arising out of crime No. 869 of 2014 u/s 302 IPC, Police Station Chopan, District Sonbhadra by ASJ II Sonbhadra.

3. In brief, facts of the case are that informant Lallu Chaudhary, elder brother of the appellant, on being informed by the appellant in the night of 30-9-2014 that his wife has been found dead inside the room, occupied by them rushed to the place of occurrence and saw the dead body of the deceased laying on the bed with spitted throat. The informant (PW 1) moved the complaint (Ex A13) on 1-10-2014 at 5:15 a.m against unknown miscreants. A chik FIR was prepared and police visited the place of occurrence thereafter and performed the punchanama, sent dead body for post-mortem. As per I.O., during the course of investigation the appellant confessed the guilt and on his pointing blood stained axe alleged to be used in commission of crime was recovered from the heap of woods nearby the place of occurrence. After recording evidence of the concerned witnesses I.O., R.B Maurya (PW-10) submitted charge sheet (Ex Ka 12) against the appellant u/s 302 IPC.

4. On 14-5-2015 the appellant was charged u/s 302 IPC to which he pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried.

5. Following witnesses were examined by the prosecution to prove the guilt of the accused:

PW-1	Lallu Chaudhari, the informant
PW-2	Krishna Chaudhari

PW-6	Manoj Chaudhari, brother in law of the accused
PW-7	Bharat, witness of taking sample of plain and blood stained
PW-8	Radhe Shyam Chaudhari
PW-9	Dr. Kranti Kumar, Doctor of autopsy
PW-10	R.B Maurya, I.O.

Ex. Ka.-11,	Site plan of place of recovery of weapon of offence

Ex. Ka.-12 and	Charge sheet
Ex. Ka.-13	Chik FIR
Material Ex.-1	Weapon of offence axe.

7. After closer of prosecution evidence the statement of the accused u/s 313 Cr.P.C was recorded wherein he outrightly denied all the charges and incriminating evidence against him and claimed to be innocent.

8. In this case all the witnesses of fact and recovery have been declared hostile and they have not supported the prosecution version. The learned trial court has accepted that the witnesses have not supported the prosecution version, the chain of circumstances is not complete, the motive has not been proved, yet relying on the citations Anter Singh Vs. State of Rajasthan (2004) 10 SCC 657, Tirmukh Maroti Kirkan Vs. State of Maharashtra (2006) 10 SCC 681 and Ganeshlal Vs. State of Maharashtra, 1992 (3) SCC 106, convicted the accused with the help of section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act. The appellant has challenged the impugned judgment on the grounds that it is incorrect, illegal, arbitrary, severe excessive and against the weight of evidence on record. The appellant has been convicted without considering the facts and evidence on record. The offence was committed by the unknown person. The prosecution story has not been supported by the hostile witnesses but this aspect has not been considered by the trial Court, there was no strong motive to the appellant to commit such offence. The trial Court has ignored the material, oral and documentary evidence and has illegally convicted the appellant. Hence the impugned judgment and order be set aside.

9. From the above facts and evidence it is clear that it is not a case of direct evidence but it is based on circumstantial evidence in which if the chain of the circumstances is complete only then an accused can be convicted. In such a case motive, last seen, recovery, extra judicial confession like necessary elements are also considered. It has to be seen as to whether the aforesaid ingredients necessary for the conviction of an accused have been sufficiently established and proved by the prosecution or not. These necessary ingredients are being discussed herein below in the light of facts of the case and evidence available on record.

(a) Motive : In written complaint no motive has been assigned to the appellant even none of the witness even the I.O. has not deposed a single word about the motive behind the crime. Generally such brutal crimes are caused due to some motive available to the accused. P.W. 3 Nandu Chaudhary has deposed that the relation between the deceased and the accused were cordial. Though P.W. 7 has been cross-examined by the public prosecutor and the witness was contradicted under Section 145 of the Evidence Act from his previous statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. in which he denied any illicit relation between the deceased and Guddu Chadudhari alias Shashi Kant and also that the deceased had gone with him for three days and when returned, she was pardoned by the appellant.

P.W. 2 Radheshaym Chaudhary has also denied any estrangement between the deceased and the appellant. Thus neither any motive has been taken by the prosecution nor it has been proved .

In Bhaskar Rao and Others Vs. State of Maharashtra, (2018) 6 SCC 591, Ujjagar Singh Vs. State of Punjab, (2007) 13 SCC 90, it has been held that the motive has significance in cases based on circumstantial evidence.

In Shivaji Chintappa Patil Vs. State of Maharashtra, 2021 0 Supreme (SC) 121, it has been held that in a case of circumstantial evidence, motive plays an important link to complete the chain of circumstances. If motive could not be proved the chain of circumstances would not be said to be completed.

The above citations apply in favour of the appellant and it is concluded that there was no motive to the appellant to kill the deceased.

(b) Alibi and last seen: As per F.I.R., it is case of the prosecution that when the appellant came to the house after taking dinner at the house of his brother in law at 9 :00 P.M., he found that his wife deceased Sangeeta had been killed by splitting her throat. He has also written in the complaint that this information was given by him belatedly. No children of the deceased or any neighborer has supported the prosecution version that soon before the death of the deceased, the accused was present in the house. As per F.I.R., the accused had gone at the house of his brother in law for dinner and he was not present on the spot at the time of occurrence. When he came to his house, he found his wife was killed. In this regard no witness of fact has deposed that at the time of occurrence or soon before death of the deceased, the accused was present on the spot. Informant P.W. 1 Lallu has deposed that the accused was very fond of his wife and loved a lot, there was good relation and love between the two. He was very upset and sad after the death of his wife. P.W. 2 Krishna has also deposed that in the night, the deceased was strangled to death by someone, he did not see anyone while committing the murder. The deceased was present at the time of inquest. P.W.3 Nandu has deposed that at 9:30 P.M. in the night they came to know about the murder of the deceased by the accused. The murder must have happened before that, how and by whom, he don't know. It has also been deposed by him that there were good relations between the accused and his wife. P.W. 5 Jairam Chaudhary has deposed that on the fateful night the accused Vinod Chaudhary, cousin brother Manoj Chaudhary and brother in-law had taken chicken dinner party. It will take 15-20 minute to reach from his house to the house of the accused. At 9:10 P.M. in the night they were informed that the deceased had been killed, he does not know as to why and by whom she was killed. This witnesses has also stated that his wife is cousin of deceased Sangeeta and she never complained that she has any problem with the accused or accused troubled her. The accused had gone to his house directly from his house. He also deposed that when the accused was at his house, Sangeeta had come to ask about making evening meal. After meeting with Hari Ram and his wife she had returned. Similar statement has been given by P.W.6 Manoj Chaudhary brother in law of the accused. This witness has also deposed that Vinod had good behavior with his wife when Vinod went from the house of Jayram, after 10-15 minutes, it was known that Sangeeta was killed. Thus from the above evidence it could not be established that soon before death the deceased and accused were together. It could not be proved that the deceased died after reaching the accused at his house.

In Kulwinder Singh Vs. State of Punjab, AIR 2007 SC 2868, it has been held that there must be proximity of time and place. In this case it is lacking.

In Ganpat Singh Vs. State of M.P., (2018) 2 SCC (Cri) 159, it has been observed, it would be difficult in some cases to positively establish that the deceased was lastly seen with the accused when there is a long gap and possibility of other persons coming in between exists. In absence of any other positive evidence to conclude that accused and deceased were last seen together, it would be hazardous to come to a conclusion of guilt in such cases.

In this case the prosecution has failed in establishing that soon before death the deceased was with the accused but it has been proved that when the accused came to his house, he found the deceased was killed by splitting her throat.

On the basis of above discussion this Court is of the conclusion that the chain of circumstantial evidence as last seen together has not been proved beyond reasonable doubt and it is concluded that the deceased had died when the accused was taking dinner at the house of his brother-in-law.

(c) Extra judicial confession- The prosecution has not taken the pleas of extra judicial confession by the accused, though as per I.O., the accused had confessed his guilt before him and at his disclosure statement the blood stained axe was recovered from the heap of woods on his pointing. Such statements written in the case diary has not been proved by the I.O. and such confessions can not be proved in view of Section 25 of the Evidence Act.

(d) Recovery: According to the I.O., the accused confessed his guilt and made a disclosure statement on which the blood stained axe used in commission of crime was recovered on his pointing. P.W.4 Shyam Charan Giri has denied that on 3.10.2014, the alleged axe was recovered from the heap of woods before him on the pointing of the accused Vinod. He has also denied that such axe was sealed before him and has also denied preparation of recovery memo of the axe before him rather he has deposed that on 3.10.2014 he was in Chopan. P.W. 10, I.O. R.B. Maurya, has proved the recovery memo and has also proved the axe as M Ex. 1. but has accepted that he has not written the time of its recovery, neither the wooden part nor the sharp edged part was signed by him.

In this regard, the FSL report is also considered in which blood was found on the axe but it could not be ascertained as to whether it was human blood or not, hence it can not be said that the sharp edged part of the axe was containing human blood of the deceased. The argument of the learned counsel for the appellant is material that if there was any doubt upon the appellant, why he would keep the axe there. Since he had not escaped after the incident and was not arrested, he had ample opportunity to destroy it. Generally such axe are found in every house and when it has not been proved that there was human blood on it, it can not be said that the said axe was used in commission of crime by the accused and when the I.O. found it to be a blind case, he charge-sheeted the accused to shift his burden.

Thus, this Court is of the view that the prosecution has failed in establishing that the axe M Ex. 1 was used in commission of crime and it was containing human blood or it was recovered on the pointing of the accused.

(e) It is also not a case of the prosecution that after the commission of crime, the accused had absconded. Sometimes abscondance of an accused is considered in favour of the prosecution but in this case it has been proved that after knowing that the wife of the accused has been killed, he informed his brother and lodged F.I.R. through him.

(f) Applicability of Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act- The learned Trial Court has based his judgment of conviction and sentencing upon Section 106 of the Evidence Act and has relied on Trimukh Maroti Kirkan (Supra) in which it had been proved that when the wife was injured in the dwelling house, the husband ordinarily resided there and the husband offered no explanation for the injuries to his wife. In that situation the Apex Court held that the husband was responsible for the injuries.

In this case the facts are quite different. It is not denied that the accused and the deceased were not living together in their dwelling house but it could not be proved that at the time of commission of crime the accused was present there.

Section 106 Evidence Act is as under:-

"106. Burden of proving fact especially within knowledge.--When any fact is especially within the knowledge of any person, the burden of proving that fact is upon him. Illustrations

(a) When a person does an act with some intention other than that which the character and circumstances of the act suggest, the burden of proving that intention is upon him.

(b) A is charged with travelling on a railway without a ticket. The burden of proving that he had a ticket is on him."

In P. Mani Vs. State of Tamilnadu, AIR 2006 SC 1319, it has been held that it is for the prosecution to prove the involvement of an accused beyond all reasonable doubt. It was not a case where both, accused and deceased were last seen together inside a room. Hence Section 106 of the Evidence Act can not be said to have any application whatsoever.

In Kailash Chandra Vs. State of Rajasthan, (2017) 11 SCC 268, it has been held that it is trite that prosecution has to stand on its own legs and sufficient evidence should be produced to prove the allegation, no aid of Section 106 can be taken by the Trial Court.

Section 106 is not intended to relieve the prosecution of its burden to prove the guilt of the accused, but the Section would apply to the cases where prosecution has succeeded in proving facts for which reasonable inference can be drawn regarding the existence of certain other facts, unless the accused by virtue of special knowledge regarding such facts failed to offer any explanation which might drive the Court to draw a different inference.

In para 22 of Shivaji Chintappa Patil (Supra), it has been held that ---

22. It could thus be seen, that it is well-settled that Section 106 of the Evidence Act does not directly operate against either a husband or wife staying under the same roof and being the last person seen with the deceased. Section 106 of the Evidence Act does not absolve the prosecution of discharging its primary burden of proving the prosecution case beyond reasonable doubt. It is only when the prosecution has led evidence which, if believed, will sustain a conviction, or which makes out a prima facie case, that the question arises of considering facts of which the burden of proof would lie upon the accused.

In para 28.1 of Smt. Gargi Vs. State of Haryana, 2019 0 Supreme SC 1042, it has been held that---

28.1. Insofar as the 'last seen theory' is concerned, there is no doubt that the appellant being none other than the wife of the deceased and staying under the same roof, was the last person the deceased *was seen with. However, such companionship of the deceased and the appellant, by itself, does not mean that a presumption of guilt of the appellant is to be drawn. The Trial Court and the High Court have proceeded on the assumption that Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act¹¹ directly operates against the appellant. In our view, such an approach has also not been free from error where it was omitted to be considered that Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act does not absolve the prosecution of its primary burden. This Court has explained the principle in Sawal Das (supra) in the following:-*

"10. Neither an application of Section 103 nor of 106 of the Evidence Act could, however, absolve the prosecution from the duty of discharging its general or primary burden of proving the prosecution case beyond reasonable doubt.

It is only when the prosecution has led evidence which, if believed, will sustain a conviction, or which makes out a prima facie case, that the question arises of considering facts of which the burden of proof may lie upon the accused....."

10. The appellant has relied on following rulings:

Satye Singh and Another Vs. State of Uttrakhand 2022 0 (SC) 143, in this case the deceased was the wife, the entire case was based on circumstantial evidence as there was no eyewitness to the alleged incident, injuries on the dead body were ante mortem in the nature, no incriminating articles were recovered during the investigation and no attempt was made to collect any evidence much less cogent evidence to connect the accused with the alleged crime. The deceased had left house on previous evening of the alleged incident. It was held that circumstances howsoever strong can not take place of proof and guilt of accused have to be proved by prosecution beyond reasonable doubt. Prosecution had miserably been failed in proving the entire chain of circumstances that the alleged act was committed by the accused only and none else. Hence the order of conviction and sentencing passed by the High Court of Uttarakhand was quashed and the accused were acquitted.

In Devilal; Babulal vs. State of Rajasthan 2019 Law Suit (SC) 36, it has been held that while scrutinizing the circumstantial evidence, a Court has to evaluate it to ensure the chain of events clearly and completely established to rule out any reasonable likelihood of innocence of the accused, there must be evidence to come to conclusion that there can not be a person other than the accused who alone is the perpetrator of the alleged crime and the circumstances must establish the conclusive nature consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused.

In para 11 of Shivaji Chintappa Patil (Supra) similar principles have been laid down regarding the cases based on circumstantial evidence.

"11. The law with regard to conviction on the basis of circumstantial evidence has been very well crystalised in the 5 (2010) 9 SCC 189 6 (2019) 19 SCC 447 7 (2006) 12 SCC 254 judgment of this Court in the case of Sharad Birdhichand Sarda v. State of Maharashtra :-

"153. A close analysis of this decision would show that the following conditions must be fulfilled before a case against an accused can be said to be fully established:

(1) the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should be fully established.

It may be noted here that this Court indicated that the circumstances concerned "must or should" and not "may be" established. There is not only a grammatical but a legal distinction between "may be proved" and "must be or should be proved" as was held by this Court in Shivaji Sahabrao Bobade v. State of Maharashtra (1973) 2 SCC 793 where the observations were made : [SCC para 19, p. 807 : SCC (Cri) p. 1047] "19. Certainly, it is a primary principle that the accused must be and not merely may be guilty before a court can convict and the mental distance between 'may be' and 'must be' is long and divides vague conjectures from sure conclusions." (2) the facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused, that is to say, they should not be explainable on any other hypothesis except that the accused is guilty, (3) the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency, (4) they should exclude every possible hypothesis except the one to be proved, and (5) there must be a chain of evidence so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability the act must have been done by the accused. "

11. On the basis of above discussion this Court is of the view that any ingredient mandatory for conviction and sentencing of an accused in a case based on circumstantial evidence has not been proved beyond reasonable doubt and chain of circumstantial evidence also could not be established against the accused-appellant. Thus, this Court concludes that the order of conviction and sentencing passed by the learned Trial Court is not liable to be sustained in the eye of law and is liable to be set-aside.

Order

The appeal is allowed and the impugned order of conviction and sentencing dated 13.12.2019 is hereby quashed. Let the appellant be set free from jail. This order be sent immediately to the Jail Superintendent concerned. Lower Court record be sent back along with a copy of this judgment.

A. Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 374(2) - Indian

Penal Code, 1860- Sections 323/34, 325/34, 307/34 & 393-Challenge to Conviction-the evidence on record shows that accused-appellant demanded in extortion (Dhauns) two bottles of liquor and Rs. 10,000/- which was refused by injured who was working as Sales Man at the Wine shop of one person and as such the accused-appellant became furious and caused bodily injuries, which has been reported to be grievous in nature and were on vital part (upper chest region) of injured, who remained under medical treatment for several days-The learned Trial Court after discussing the evidence and statement of the witnesses in detail have rightly come to the conclusion that there is uniformity in the oral and documentary evidence produced by the prosecution and as such the prosecution story cannot be doubted-Held, the appellant has already faced the agony of the protracted prosecution-he has served out more than four years of his sentence and that accused-appellant alone cannot be held responsible for long delay in disposal of this appeal-Considering all aspects of the matter, , it will be in the interest of justice that his sentence be reduced to the period of sentence already undergone.(Para 1 to 36)

B. The term 'Proper Sentence' was explained in Deo Narain Mandal's Case by observing that Sentence should not be either excessively harsh or ridiculously low. While determining the quantum of sentence, the court should bear in mind the 'principle of proportionality'. Sentence should be based on facts of a given case. Gravity of offence, manner of commission of crime, age and sex of accused should be taken into account. Discretion of Court in awarding sentence cannot be exercised arbitrarily or whimsically. The other person was also equipped with a country made pistol. On an alarm raised by the Umesh, the accused persons fled away. At the time of incident, electric bulbs were illuminating. 8	Injury status report of injured	Ext. Ka-5 to 27	Pw- 6

10. After completion of the prosecution evidence, accused were examined under Section 313 Cr.P.C. Accused-appellant wherein accused denied the statement of prosecution witnesses and stated they are falsely implicated due to party bandi.

11. Accused/ appellant in their defence did not adduce any ocular or documentary evidence.

12. The learned Sessions Judge after appreciating the evidence on record and other material came to the conclusion that the prosecution has been able to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt against the accused persons. He accordingly convicted and sentenced them as stated above. Aggrieved the impugned judgment and order accused/ appellants preferred these separate appeals.

13. It has been argued by the learned Counsel for the appellant that the impugned judgment of conviction is wholly unjustified as the findings recorded by the learned trial court are not based on correct appreciation of evidence on record. Learned Sessions Judge has given too much weight to the prosecution version. The learned Sessions Judge has also committed error in believing the testimony of the prosecution witnesses, overlooking the fact that there are major contradictions in their statement.

14. Learned counsel for the appellant has vehemently argued that the actual incident has not been witnessed by anyone and there was no motive for the appellant to commit the said offence but on account of past enmity of village parti-bandi, they were falsely implicated in the present case.

15. Lastly, it has been argued by the learned counsel for the appellant that even assuming though not conceding that the appellants have committed the offence, then too the punishment awarded to the appellants is excessive as from the medical report it is clearly established that the injuries were not on vital part and the case will fall only under Section 324 IPC and not under Section 307 IPC as held by the learned Sessions Judge.

16. Refuting the assertions of the appellant's Counsel, learned State Counsel has submitted that it is incorrect to say that the findings of conviction recorded by the learned court below are erroneous or not based on correct appreciation of record. As a matter of fact, the learned court below has scrutinized the evidence in its correct prospective and thereafter has recorded the findings of guilt. The eye-witnesses have supported the prosecution version and even if, it is assumed that there were certain contradictions in their statement that were minor in nature and were not fatal for the prosecution case. He further submitted that the medical evidence has fully supported the prosecution version and as such it would be wrong to say that the findings are perverse. Lastly, it has been submitted that the accused persons are criminal minded and were earlier involved in various criminal cases. They have spread terror in the locality.

17. A perusal of the material on record reflects that the incident had occurred on 20.09.2007 at about 9.15 PM and the FIR was lodged on the same day at about 10.15 PM at PS Gaunda, District Aligarh under Section 323/307 IPC. Before the court below, the accused persons have brought by Constable Jagdish Singh, whose name is entered in the medical record. Had the FIR would not have come to existence, there was no occasion for the injured being brought to the Medical College with 'chitti majroobi' by the Head Constable. It has come in the statement of the injured Kamal-Singh that he had told the name of persons who had fired shot to complainant Sunit Arora. The said finding of the Trial Court is based on documentary evidence, which is fully justified in the circumstances of the case.

18. Kamal Singh (P.W.1), who is injured witness in his testimony has stated in clear words that three persons came on the Motor Cycle out of whom Amar Pal and Bobby were armed with weapon. He had further deposed that first shot was fired by Amar Pal while the second shot was fired by Bobby as a result of which he fell down. Nanau, who was working as Salesman carried him to the Medical College where he remained admitted for quite some time and treatment went for a month. He further deposed that Bobby and Amar Pal were known to him from much earlier as he was working in the shop since three years. Firing of shot by the accused persons have been corroborated by the P.W.3 Umeshpal, who is an eye witness of the incident and was working on the Wine Shop as Salesman.

19. Vijendra Singh (P.W.5) is Constable Clerk at PS Gaunda and he has registered the FIR on 20.9.2007 at 22.15 hrs as case crime no. 279/07 under Section 323/307 IPC on the basis of report of the complainant. The said witness has proved the document before the court. Dr Ahsan Ahmad (P.W.4) has deposed before the Court that he was posted at Medical College Aligarh and about 10.55 Constable Jagdish Singh had brought the injured to the hospital. He was examined by him and found grievous injuries including gun shot injury on the body of the injured. Thus, it is clear that the version as given in the FIR has been corroborated by oral and medical evidence.

20. It is pertinent to mention that it is fully established from the evidence on record that accused-appellant demanded in extortion (Dhauns) two bottles of liquor and Rs. 10,000/- which was refused by injured -Kamal Singh, who was working as Sales Man at the Wine shop of Sunit Arora and as such the accused-appellant became furious and caused bodily injuries, which has been reported to be grievous in nature and were on vital part (upper chest region) of Kamal Singh, who remained under medical treatment for several days.

21. The learned Trial Court after discussing the evidence and statement of the witnesses in detail have rightly come to the conclusion that there is uniformity in the oral and documentary evidence produced by the prosecution and as such the prosecution story cannot be doubted. It is relevant to point out that it is hard to believe that the injured will falsely implicate the appellant and would allow the real assailants to go scot free. Therefore, the assertions of the appellant are wholly baseless and unfounded. Moreover, the learned Counsel for the appellant have failed to establish any concrete evidence for upsetting the findings of guilt recorded by the Trial Court.

22. In view of the aforesaid discussions, I am of the considered opinion that the view taken by the lower court below is perfectly justified and based on correct appreciation of evidence on record and as such the conviction as awarded to the appellants is upheld.

23. So far the sentencing of the accused go the learned trial judge has awarded the following sentence to the accused appellants:-

"अभियुक्तगण अमर पाल पुत्र श्री तुलाराम एवं बौबी पुत्र सरदार सिंह को भारतीय दण्ड संहिता की धारा 323 सपठित धारा 34, 325 सपठित धारा 34, 307 सपठित धारा 34 एवं 393 के अधीन दण्डनीय अपराध का दोषी पाते हुये उनमें से प्रत्येक अभियुक्त को भारतीय दण्ड संहिता की धारा 323 सपठित धारा 34 के आरोप में छः माह के सश्रम कारावास, भा०दं०सं० की धारा 325 सपठित धारा 34 के अधीन

दण्डनीय आरोप में दो वर्ष के सश्रम कारावास तथा रुपये 1000-00 के अर्थदण्ड से दण्डित किया जाता है। अर्थदण्ड की धनराशि अदा न करने पर उनमें से प्रत्येक को एक माह का अतिरिक्त साधारण कारावास भुगतना होगा, भा०द०सं० की धारा 307 सपठित धारा 34 के अधीन दण्डनीय अपराध के लिए उनमें से प्रत्येक को सात वर्ष के सश्रम कारावास एवं रुपये 2000-00 के अर्थदण्ड से दण्डित किया जाता है। अर्थदण्ड की धनराशि अदा न करने पर उनमें से प्रत्येक को दो माह का अतिरिक्त साधारण कारावास भुगतना होगा तथा भा०द०सं० की धारा 393 के अधीन दण्डनीय अपराध के अन्तर्गत उनमें से प्रत्येक को दो वर्ष का सश्रम कारावास तथा 2000-00 रुपये के अर्थदण्ड से दण्डित किया जाता है। अर्थदण्ड की धनराशि अदा न करने पर उनमें से प्रत्येक को दो माह का अतिरिक्त साधारण कारावास भुगतना होगा। अभियुक्तगण की सभी सजाएँ साथ-साथ चलेंगी।"

24. So far as sentence regarding the accused/ appellant Bobby is concerned he was lodged in jail on 06.02.2009 and after serving the period of sentence as awarded to him by the trial court and deposition of fine, was released from jail on 2.7.2014, which is evident from the report dated 18.8.2022 of Senior Jail Superintendent, Aligarh. As I have already held that the conviction of the appellant-Bobby was perfectly justified, the Criminal Appeal No. 3379 of 2010 filed by him is liable to be dismissed. Since, the appellant-Bobby has already served out the sentence, he need not to surrender and his bail bonds, if any, stood discharged.

25. So far as Amar Pal is concerned, he was awarded maximum sentence of seven years. and is incarceration since 01.05.2010 for a long period, therefore, He prayed to reduce his sentence for the period already undergone. In view of this argument it will be useful to navigate the law relating to sentencing in India.

26. In historical backdrop, Indian parliament has not laid down any sentencing policy, though Malimath Committee (2003) and Madhava Menon Committee (2008) has asserted the need of sentencing policy in changing circumstances of the society. So, the Courts are dependant on the precedent laid down by the Supreme Court.

27. Principle of sentencing has been an issue of concern before the Supreme Court in many cases and tried to provide clarity on the issue. Apex Court has time and again cautioned against the cavalier manner considering the way sentencing is dealt with High Courts and Trial Courts.

In Accused 'X' vs. State of Maharashtra (2019) 7 SCC 1) "the Apex Court has held that" It is established that sentencing is a socio-legal process, wherein a Judge finds an appropriate punishment for the accused considering factual circumstances and equities. In light of the fact that the legislature peroxided for discretion to the Judges to give punishment, it becomes important to exercise the same in a principled manner."

"12. Sentencing for crimes has to be analysed on the touchstone of three tests viz. crime test, criminal test and comparative proportionality test. Crime test involves factors like extent of planning, choice of weapon, modus of crime, disposal modus (if any), role of the accused, anti-social or abhorrent character of the crime, state of victim. Criminal test involves assessment of factors such as age of the criminal, gender of the criminal, economic conditions or social background of the criminal, motivation for crime, availability of defence, state of mind, instigation by the deceased or any one from the deceased group, adequately represented in the trial, disagreement by a Judge in the appeal process, repentance, possibility of reformation, prior criminal record (not to take pending cases) and any other relevant factor (not an exhaustive list).

13. In State of Madhya Pradesh vs. Udham and others (2019) 10 SCC 300 the Apex Court has held "we may note that under the crime test, seriousness needs to be ascertained. The seriousness of the crime may be ascertained by (i) bodily integrity of the victim; (ii) loss of material support of amenity; (iii) extent of humiliation; and (iv) privacy breach."

28. In Mohd. Giasuddin Vs. State of AP, [AIR 1977 SC 1926], explaining rehabilitary & reformatory aspects in sentencing it has been observed by the Supreme Court:

"Crime is a pathological aberration. The criminal can ordinarily be redeemed and the state has to rehabilitate rather than avenge. The sub-culture that leads to ante-social behaviour has to be countered not by undue cruelty but by reculturization. Therefore, the focus of interest in penology in the individual and the goal is salvaging him for the society. The infliction of harsh and savage punishment is thus a relic of past and regressive times. The human today vies sentencing as a process of reshaping a person who has deteriorated into criminality and the modern community has a primary stake in the rehabilitation of the offender as a means of a social defence. Hence a therapeutic, rather than an 'in terrorem' outlook should prevail in our criminal courts, since brutal incarceration of the person merely produces laceration of his mind. If you are to punish a man retributively, you must injure him. If you are to reform him, you must improve him and, men are not improved by injuries."

29. The term 'Proper Sentence' was explained in Deo Narain Mandal Vs. State of UP [(2004) 7 SCC 257] by observing that Sentence should not be either excessively harsh or ridiculously low. While determining the quantum of sentence, the court should bear in mind the 'principle of proportionality'. Sentence should be based on facts of a given case. Gravity of offence, manner of commission of crime, age and sex of accused should be taken into account. Discretion of Court in awarding sentence cannot be exercised arbitrarily or whimsically.

30. In Ravada Sasikala vs. State of A.P. AIR 2017 SC 1166, the Supreme Court referred the judgments in Jameel vs State of UP [(2010) 12 SCC 532], Guru Basavraj vs State of Karnataka, [(2012) 8 SCC 734], Sumer Singh vs Surajbhan Singh, [(2014) 7 SCC 323], State of Punjab vs Bawa Singh, [(2015) 3 SCC 441], and Raj Bala vs State of Haryana, [(2016) 1 SCC 463] the Apex Court has reiterated that, in operating the sentencing system, law should adopt corrective machinery or deterrence based on factual matrix. Facts and given circumstances in each case, nature of crime, manner in which it was planned and committed, motive for commission of crime, conduct of accused, nature of weapons used and all other attending circumstances are relevant facts which would enter into area of consideration. Further, undue sympathy in sentencing would do more harm to justice dispensations and would undermine the public confidence in the efficacy of law. It is the duty of every court to award proper sentence having regard to nature of offence and manner of its commission. The supreme court further said that courts must not only keep in view the right of victim of crime but also society at large. While considering imposition of appropriate punishment, the impact of crime on the society as a whole and rule of law needs to be balanced. The judicial trend in the country has been towards striking a balance between reform and punishment. The protection of society and stamping out criminal proclivity must be the object of law which can be achieved by imposing appropriate sentence on criminals and wrongdoers. Law, as a tool to maintain order and peace, should effectively meet challenges confronting the society, as society could not long endure and develop under serious threats of crime and disharmony. It is therefore, necessary to avoid undue leniency in imposition of sentence. Thus, the criminal justice jurisprudence adopted in the country is not retributive but reformatory and corrective. At the same time, undue harshness should also be avoided keeping in view the reformatory approach underlying in our criminal justice system.

31. Keeping in view the facts and circumstances of the case and also criminal jurisprudence in our country which is reformatory and corrective and not retributive, this Court considers that no accused person is incapable of being reformed and therefore, all measures should be applied to give them an opportunity of reformation in order to bring them in the social stream.

32. As discussed above, 'reformatory theory of punishment' is to be adopted and for that reason, it is necessary to impose punishment keeping in view the 'doctrine of proportionality'. It appears from perusal of impugned judgment that sentence awarded by learned trial court for life term is very harsh keeping in view the entirety of facts and circumstances of the case and gravity of offence. Hon'ble Apex Court, as discussed above, has held that undue harshness should be avoided taking into account the reformatory approach underlying in criminal justice system.

33. It is well settled principle that sentence must be just, but simultaneously the principle of proportionality between the crime and punishment cannot be totally brushed aside. The principle of just punishment is the bedrock of sentencing in respect of a criminal offence. A punishment should not be disproportionately excessive. The concept of proportionality allows a significant discretion to the court but the same has to be guided by certain principles. In certain cases, the nature of culpability, the antecedents of the accused, the factum of age, the potentiality of the convict to become a criminal in future, capability of his reformation and to lead an acceptable life in the prevalent milieu, the effect - propensity to become a social threat or nuisance, and sometimes lapse of time in the commission of the crime and his conduct in the interregnum bearing in mind the nature of the offence, the relationship between the parties and attractability of the doctrine of bringing the convict to the value based social mainstream may be the guiding factors. Needless to emphasize, these are certain illustrative aspects put forth in a condensed manner.

34. It has also been observed by the Apex Court that there can neither be a straitjacket formula nor a solvable theory in mathematical exactitude. It would be dependent on the facts of the case and rationalised judicial discretion. Neither the personal perception of a Judge nor self adhered moralistic vision nor hypothetical apprehensions should be allowed to have any play. For every offence, a drastic measure cannot be thought of. Similarly, an offender cannot be allowed to be treated with leniency solely on the ground of discretion vested in a court. The real requisite is to weigh the circumstances in which the crime has been committed and other concomitant factors which we have indicated hereinbefore and also have been stated in a number of pronouncements by this Court. On such touchstone, the sentences are to be imposed. The discretion should not be in the realm of fancy. It should be embedded in the conceptual essence of just punishment. In Gopal Singh v. State of Uttar Pradesh (2013) 7 SCC 545, the Apex Court elaborating the sentencing that, while imposing sentence, has to keep in view the various complex matters in mind. In respect of certain offences, sentence can be reduced by giving adequate special reasons but the special reasons have to rest on real special circumstances.

35. In the instant case, alleged incident took place on 20.09.2007, about 16 years ago. Appellant Amar Pal is not a previous convict. He has no criminal antecedents. Nothing has been brought to the notice of the court that the accused/ appellant after being released on bail had ever misused the liberty of bail so granted to him. Keeping in view the facts and circumstances of the case and the fact that the appellant has already faced the agony of the protracted prosecution A perusal of the record reveals that he has served out more than four years of his sentence and that accused-appellant alone cannot be held responsible for long delay in disposal of this appeal. Considering all aspects of the matter, no useful purpose would be served by sending accused-appellant in to judicial custody to suffer further imprisonment, rather it appears that ends of justice would meet, if his sentence is reduced to the period already undergone, it will be in the interest of justice that his sentence be reduced to the period of sentence already undergone. Sentence of fine is, however, maintained along with its default clause. His appeal is liable to be dismissed with above modification in the impugned judgment and order dated 01.05.2010.

36. Resultantly, the instant appeal is party allowed against the appellant Amar Pal with following directions:-

(i) The judgment of conviction dated 01.05.2010 is confirmed though the sentence awarded, is modified to the period of already undergone. Accordingly, he be enlarged forthwith, if he is not in judicial custody he need not surrender and his bail bonds are cancelled and sureties stands discharged.

(ii) The amount of fine shall be paid by appellant Amar Pal within three months from the date of furnishing certified copy of the judgment. In default, thereof, appellant has to undergo an additional simple imprisonment as awarded by the trial court.

(iii) A copy of judgment be sent to Court concerned for necessary information and compliance.

(iv) Trial court's record be remitted back forthwith.

Jhabbu Dubey @ Pradeep Kumar Dubey
...Appellant
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Appellant:

Sri Jaysingh Yadav

Counsel for the Respondents:

G.A., Sri Ashutosh Kumar Tiwari, Sri Animesh Srivastava, Sri Ashish Kumar

A. Criminal Law - Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act (POA), 1989 - Section 14-A(1), 3(1)(a) & (b) of SC/ST - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Section 324 - Challenge to Chargesheet as well as Cognizance order - the informant and the injured have given their respective affidavits before the concerned court denying the entire story and denying his presence over the place of incident - The injured himself in his affidavit clearly absolved the appellant from commission of the offence - He stated in his affidavit that out of sheer accident he has fallen down and consequently received injuries and the appellant is not at all guilty of the alleged offences - if there is a compromise between the contesting parties, then the deposit of the amount back in the State exchequer shall be sine qua non and condition precedent for any settlement or truce between the parties without which no compromise could be verified by the court concerned - Since all the four proceedings have already been allowed by this Court, still the victims are directed to deposit the amount received by them within next twenty days in the treasury of Samaj Kalya Vibhag of respective Session's Division. (Para 1 to 27)

B. When there is settlement between the parties, there is no threat for any offensive against the victim and the entire atmosphere is full of peace, tranquility and positivity. There cannot be any good justification to keep that money for the victim and in all fairness they are supposed to return back the money to the State Government. This is the hard-earned money of innocent tax-payers and any atrocities against the victims cannot be exploited to earn and enjoy the money from the State Government even when there is compromise between them. (Para 24)

C. The financial assistance is given with a sole motive to victims considering that they are downtrodden so that they may not feel scared or hopeless and give-up the proceedings on account of paucity of funds. The State has come out to help them and Welfare Department of the State has been authorised and empowered to provide financial assistance to them. This indeed is a laudable object whereby the State being a welfare State is providing the financial assistance to the victims belonging to SC/ST community so that they may contest their cases, summon the witnesses and meet out all the expenses incurred during trial. Thus the underline idea of providing financial assistance is that there shall not be any paucity of funds to the victim in contesting the case to its logical conclusion and the wrongdoers may be suitably punished and penalized for their acts committed against the victims. All these arrangements are provided to the victims by the State Government only to achieve an objective that the members of SC/ST community should feel free in contesting the case and rest of the financial burden shall be borne out by the State. (Para 22)

The appeal is allowed. (E-6)

counsel for the appellants/applicant and Shri Animesh Srivastava, Shri Ashish Kumar, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 as well as learned Additional Government Advocate for the State. Perused the record of the case.

2. The common prayer sought by these proceedings, is that the further proceedings of the respective cases which are pending against the accused-appellants before different courts at different stages may be dropped in the light of compromise/settlement between the parties. These cases relate to the relevant provisions of SC/ST Act along with sections of I.P.C. are also involved, for which accused-appellants are facing trial, meaning thereby, that the pending cases against the appellants/applicants may be quashed, as there is truce and settlement between the contesting parties and the informants of these cases are not inclined to prosecute the appellants/applicants in the light of compromise/settlement executed between the parties.

3. Before addressing on the merit of the case, it is desirable to give a bird's eye view on the factual aspect involved in respective cases, so as to appreciate the controversy in hand in its correct perspective :

(I) CRIMINAL APPEAL
NO.5184 OF 2022 (JHABBU DUBEY @ PRADEEP KUMAR DUBEY) :

This is the appeal u/s 14-A(1) of SC/ST Act on behalf of Jhabbu Dubey @ Pradeep Kumar Dubey challenging the charge sheet dated 7.6.2022 as well as the cognizance order dated 4.7.2022 in S.S.T. No.265 of 2022 (State vs. Jhabbu Dubey @ Pradeep Kumar Dubey), pending in the court of Special Judge (SC/ST) Act, Lalitpur, arising out of Case Crime No.76 of 2022, u/s 324, 504 I.P.C. and 3(1)(a) & (b) of SC/ST Act, P.S.- Jakhaura, District Lalitpur. The informant of the F.I.R. is Surendra s/o Haricharan Khatik and the injured in this case is his brother Shailendra.

F.I.R. was registered by the informant Surendra against the appellant Jhabbu Dubey on 11.4.2022 for the incident said to have taken place on 10.4.2022, with the allegation that on the fateful day the informant along with his brother Shailendra was sitting, suddenly Jhabbu Dubey, without any rhyme and reason, started hurling filthy abuses and when resisted, he became aggressive and by sword, he has caused injuries to his brother Shailendra. The investigation reveals sufficient material against the appellant and accordingly on 7.6.2022 a report u/s 173(2) of Cr.P.C. by the concerned I.O. was filed u/s 324, 504 I.P.C. and Section 3(1)(a) & (b) of SC/ST Act against the appellant. Special Judge, SC/ST Act, Lalitpur on 4.7.2022 has taken cognizance of those offences and issued process against the appellant to face the prosecution arising out of Case Crime No.76 of 2022 u/s 324, 504 I.P.C. and Section 3(1)(a) & (b) of SC/ST Act.

Pending the proceeding, the informant Surendra s/o Haricharan Khatik and the injured Shailendra s/o Haricharan Khatik have given their respective affidavits before the concerned court on 31.5.2021, denying the entire story of 10.4.2022 and denying his presence over the place of incident. The injured Shailendra himself in his affidavit clearly absolved the appellant from commission of the offence. He stated in his affidavit that out of sheer accident he has fallen down and consequently received injuries and the appellant is not at all guilty of the alleged offences.

After having the affidavits, present appeal u/s 14-A(1) of SC/ST Act was filed for quashing of the proceeding pending against the appellant.

On the earlier occasion, in this case the Court has sought a report from the District Magistrate, Lalitpur/Social Welfare Officer as to what amount of compensation has been advanced to the injured Shailendra. Consequently, a report from the C.J.M., Lalitpur dated 3.8.2022 was received, which indicates that Rs.25,000/- (25%) has been advanced to the injured pursuant to Rule 12(4) of SC/ST Rules, 1995 and its relevant Schedule.

(II) Criminal Appeal No.6104 of 2022 (Vishwanath Yadav and another vs. State of U.P. and another):

Short counter affidavit filed today by Devendra Kumar-opposite party no.2, in which in paragraph 5, there is admission to the effect that a compromise was executed on 10.5.2021 on his own volition and accord and he voluntarily moved before the concerned court so as to quash the proceeding pending against the appellants on the basis of compromise between the contesting parties.

In this appeal the prayer sought is to set aside the impugned order dated 10.5.2022 passed by the Special Session Judge, SC/ST Act, Jhansi as well as entire criminal proceeding of Special Case No.1578 of 2019 (State vs. Vishwanath and another), arising out of Case Crime No.114 of 2019, u/s 323, 504, 506 I.P.C. and Section 3(1)(a) & (b) of SC/ST Act, Police Station-Moth, District -Jhansi in terms of compromise dated 10.5.2022.

Perusal of the order impugned dated 10.5.2022 indicates that the learned Session Judge have mentioned that the said compromise relates to the SC/ST Act and as the offences u/s SC/ST Act are not compoundable, and thus the compromise is rejected and declined.

In this case the F.I.R. was got registered as Case Crime No.114 of 2019 on 27.4.2019, u/s 323, 504, 506 I.P.C. and Section 3(1)(a) of SC/ST Act by the informant Devendra against the appellants Vishwanath Yadav and Shilu with the allegation, in brief, that on the fateful day around 06.30 he was sitting at his house and per force the appellants were compelling the informant to perform their work and when the informant refused, they started hurling filthy abuses and assaulting him by kicks and fists, causing injuries to him. After commission of assault, both of them fled away from the site.

After recording the statements, the police have submitted charge sheet on 31.5.2019 u/s 323, 504 I.P.C. and 3(1)(a) of SC/ST Act against the appellants and the learned Special Judge, SC/ST Act, have taken cognizance of those offences on 25.9.2019 under the aforesaid sections. In addition to this, on 20.2.2020 the charges were also framed against the appellants u/s 323, 504 I.P.C. and 3(1)(a) of SC/ST Act by the Special Judge, SC/ST Act, Jhansi. Thereafter, the appellants were bailed out in the matter and the trial is progressing against them slowly.

Meanwhile an application dated 10.5.2022 was given by the informant before the Special Judge, SC/ST Act, Jhansi, mentioning therein that the opposite party no.2 is the injured as well as the informant of the case who lodged the FIR, but on account of intervention by the local co-villagers and other respectable members of the society, the matter has been settled down amicably between the parties outside the court. Now there is no grudges against the appellants and the opposite party no.2

does not want to proceeding with the case any more and same may be quashed.

(III) APPLICATION U/S 482 No.22777 OF 2022 (Dharmendra @ Bauwa Bajpai and another vs. State of U.P. and 2 others):

In this case, the extra-ordinary power of this Court u/s 482 Cr.P.C. was invoked to quash the charge sheet No.89/2021 dated 01.06.2021, cognizance order dated 29.7.2021 as well as entire criminal proceeding of Case No.672 of 2021 (State vs. Dharmendra @ Bauwa Bajpai and another), arising out of Case Crime No.44/2021, u/s 342, 323, 308 I.P.C. and 3(1)(a) of SC/ST Act, Police Station Chaubepur, District Kanpur Nagar on the basis of compromise dated 24.6.2022, pending in the court of Additional District/Session Judge, Court No.2/Special Judge (SC/ST Act), Kanpur Dehat.

Genesis of this case starts from lodging of F.I.R., which was registered as Case Crime No.44 of 2021 at Police Station Chaubepur on 28.2.2021 by the informant Harishchandra (opposite party no.2) against Bauwa Bajpai and Vinay for the incident said to have taken place on 27.02.2021 with the allegation that on the fateful day around 11.00 in the night the applicants had called the informant's brother Shobhit Gautam and brutally assaulted him by kicks and fists and he got admitted in Prakash Nursing Home. The FIR was registered u/s 342, 323 I.P.C. and 3(1)(a) of SC/ST Act, but after the investigation into the case, the police have submitted report u/s 173(2) Cr.P.C. u/s 342, 323, 308 I.P.C. and 3(1)(a) of SC/ST Act, mentioning that Section 308 I.P.C. has been added among array of sections keeping in view that the injured has received head injury. Cognizance of those offences was taken by the learned Special Judge, SC/ST Act, Kanpur Dehat on 29.7.2021.

Learned counsel for the applicants has drawn attention of the Court to Annexure-6, which is a compromise deed executed on 24.6.2022, signed by Harishchandra (the informant) and Shobhit Gautam and countersigned by Dharmendra @ Bauwa Bajpai and Vinay. In support of said application, they have filed the affidavit sworn by Shobhit Gautam, the injured. In para-5 of the affidavit, it is mentioned that since both the accused as well as victim belongs to same village, therefore, after intervention of reputed persons of the village, there is truce and compromise between them. After this compromise which was signed by the informant on his free and sweet will, the informant does not want to proceed with the case any more and he wants that the impugned proceeding against the applicants may be quashed in the light of the compromise.

(IV) APPLICATION U/S 482 No.2189 OF 2023 (Rakesh and 3 others vs State of U.P. and another):

By means of the present 482 application the applicants are invoking the plenary power of this Court u/s 482 Cr.P.C. challenging the entire proceeding of Special Session Trial No.134 of 2022 (State vs. Bhajuram & others), arising out of Case Crime No.152 of 2014, u/s 147, 323, 504, 427 I.P.C. & Section 3(1)(10) of the SC/ST Act, Police Station Puranderpur, District Maharajganj, pending in the court of learned Special Judge, SC/ST Act, Maharajganj in the light of compromise entered between the parties.

In fact this is the third application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. on behalf of applicants. First 482 Application No.6326 of 2022 (Rakesh & 3 others vs. State of U.P. & another) which was disposed of by Coordinate Bench of this Court vide order dated 6.7.2022 with a direction to get the compromise executed between the parties verified from the concerned court below. Thereafter, second 482 Application No.29644 of 2022 (Rakesh & 3 others vs. State of U.P. and another) which was dismissed as withdrawn with liberty to file a fresh vide order dated 07.12.2022.

It is contended by learned counsel for the applicant that the informant Arjun belongs to 'Dhobi' caste has lodged an FIR through an application u/s 156(3) Cr.P.C. for the incident said to have taken place on 30.11.2013 at 05.00 in the evening, but its FIR was came into existence on 12.02.2014 at 13.10 hours. It was alleged by the informant that all named accused persons have assaulted by lathi and danda causing injuries to Prabhavati and Sharda. The accused persons are 5 in number including one lady Ishrawati, belongs to caste 'Kalaar' (OBC). FIR was registered u/s 147, 323, 504, 506, 427, 452, 380 I.P.C. and during investigation the police has added Section 3(1)X of SC/ST Act, but the charge sheet was submitted against the applicants on 26.2.2014 only u/s 147, 323, 504, 506, 427 I.P.C. and Section 3(1)X of SC/ST Act.

I have perused the compromise deed dated 23.02.2022 and 20.7.2022 (Annexure-9 and 10 to the petition) and verification order dated 18.8.2022 passed by the court below (Annexure-10 to the petition). I have also perused the respective affidavits of the informant as well as injured lady, who in so many words have accepted that on account of some misunderstanding they have lodged an FIR, but now there is a truce and compromise between them and the injured does not want to proceed with the case any further against the applicants. Therefore, they have requested that they have got no objection, if the entire proceeding pending against the applicants is quashed in the light of compromise.

4. Above-mentioned is the factual narration of respective cases which deserves attention of the Court.

5. Respective counsels have floated their statements at length and have relied upon two recent judgments pronounced by Hon'ble Apex Court on the issue of compounding of offences, especially focusing the provisions of SC/ST Act in addition to the provisions of Indian Penal Code. These two celebrated judgments recently pronounced by the Hon'ble Apex Court are :

(i) Ramgopal vs. The State of Madhya Pradesh in Criminal Appeal No.1489 of 2012 decided on 29.9.2021.

(ii) Ramawatar vs. The State of Madhya Pradesh in Criminal Appeal No.1393 of 2011 decided on 25.10.2021.

Both these judgments are of great help in deciding of aforesaid Criminal appeals u/s 14A(1) of SC/ST Act as well as Applications u/s 482 Cr.P.C.

6. After hearing the respective counsels at considerable length and learned A.G.A., a question of law poses for consideration; as to whether the High Court has power to quash the proceedings emanating from non-compoundable offences, which has no adverse impact or depriving effect on the society at large on the basis of compromise between the accused and the victim. This issue is no longer res integra and same has been authoritatively settled by number of judgments by the Hon'ble Apex Court. The learned counsels have heavily counted on these compromise/settlement between the parties and sought the quashing of criminal prosecution in its entirety, relying upon the aforesaid recent judgments of Hon'ble Apex Court, Ram Gopal (supra) and Ramawatar (supra).

7. Learned A.G.A. has controverted the factum of compromise and floated his own submissions against the prayer sought by the appellants/applicants.

8. Before scrutinizing the facts of these cases and especially the power of this Court u/s 482 Cr.P.C., it would be desirable to spell out the relevant extract of yet another celebrated judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Gian Singh vs. State of Punjab, 2012 (10) SCC 303 which reads thus :

"61. the power of the High Court in quashing a criminal proceeding or FIR or complaint in exercise of its inherent jurisdiction is distinct and different from the power given to a criminal court for compounding the offences under Section 320 of the Code. Inherent power is of wide plenitude with no statutory limitation but it has to be exercised in accord with the guideline engrafted in such power viz; (i) to secure the ends of justice or (ii) to prevent abuse of the process of any Court. In what cases power to quash the criminal proceeding or complaint or F.I.R may be exercised where the offender and victim have settled their dispute would depend on the facts and circumstances of each case and no category can be prescribed. However, before exercise of such power, the High Court must have due regard to the nature and gravity of the crime. Heinous and serious offences of mental depravity or offences like murder, rape, dacoity, etc. cannot be fittingly quashed even though the victim or victim's family and the offender have settled the dispute. Such offences are not private in nature and have serious impact on society. Similarly, any compromise between the victim and offender in relation to the offences under special statutes like Prevention of Corruption Act or the offences committed by public servants while working in that capacity etc; cannot provide for any basis for quashing criminal proceedings involving such offences. But the criminal cases having overwhelmingly and pre-dominantly civil flavour stand on different footing for the purposes of quashing, particularly the offences arising from commercial, financial, mercantile, civil, partnership or such like transactions or the offences arising out of matrimony relating to dowry, etc. or the family disputes where the wrong is basically private or personal in nature and the parties have resolved their entire dispute. In this category of cases, High Court may quash criminal proceedings if in its view, because of the compromise between the offender and victim, the possibility of conviction is remote and bleak and continuation of criminal case would put accused to great oppression and prejudice and extreme injustice would be caused to him by not quashing the criminal case despite full and complete settlement and compromise with the victim. In other words, the High Court must consider whether it would be unfair or contrary to the interest of justice to continue with the criminal proceeding or continuation of the criminal proceeding would tantamount to abuse of process of law despite settlement and compromise between the victim and wrongdoer and whether to secure the ends of justice, it is appropriate that criminal case is put to an end and if the answer to the above question(s) is in affirmative, the High Court shall be well within its jurisdiction to quash the criminal proceeding."

9. On the identical footing the Hon'ble Apex Court have carved out broad fundamentals from the various judicial pronouncements and has been recapitulated by a three Judges Bench of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of State of Madhya Pradesh vs. Laxmi Narayan and others, 2019 (5) SCC 688, wherein the Hon'ble Apex Court in its para-15 has elaborated, as under :

(1) that the power conferred under Section 482 of the Code to quash the criminal proceedings for the non-compoundable offences under Section 320 of the Code can be exercised having overwhelmingly and predominantly the civil character, particularly those arising out of commercial transactions or arising out of matrimonial relationship or family disputes and when the parties have resolved the entire dispute amongst themselves;

(2) such power is not to be exercised in those prosecutions which involved heinous and serious offences of mental depravity or offences like murder, rape, dacoity, etc. Such offences are not private in nature and have a serious impact on society;

(3) similarly, such power is not to be exercised for the offences under the special statutes like Prevention of Corruption Act or the offences committed by public servants while working in that capacity are not to be quashed merely on the basis of compromise between the victim and the offender;

(4) xxxxxxxxxxxx;

(5) while exercising the power under Section 482 of the Code to quash the criminal proceedings in respect of non-compoundable offences, which are private in nature and do not have a serious impact on society, on the ground that there is a settlement/compromise between the victim and the offender, the High Court is required to consider the antecedents of the accused; the conduct of the accused, namely, whether the accused was absconding and why he was absconding, how he had managed with the complainant to enter into a compromise etc."

10. Now the Court has to strike a balance between the provisions of Section 320 Cr.P.C. on one hand, and Section 482 Cr.P.C. on the other hand. Meaning thereby, the offences which are not compoundable can be compounded in the criminal court in purported exercise of powers u/s 482 Cr.P.C. Any such exercise or attempt by the court would amount to alteration, addition and modification of Section 320 of Cr.P.C., falls within the exclusive domain of the legislature. Nevertheless, the limited jurisdiction to compound an offence within the framework of Section 320 Cr.P.C. is not an embargo against invoking the inherent powers of the High Court in the interest of justice and in order to attain the larger good keeping in view the peculiarity of the facts and circumstances of such cases and for the justifiable reasons could be invoked its plenary powers to prevent the abuse of process of court and to secure the ends of justice. Thus the High Court, therefore, having regard to the nature of the offence and the facts of the parties, who have amicably settled their dispute and misunderstandings outside the court and willingly consented to nullify the criminal proceeding, can quash such proceeding in exercise of its plenary power u/s 482 Cr.P.C., even though the offences are not compoundable in nature. The High Court can indubitably evaluate the consequential impact of the offence beyond the body of an individual, and therefore, adopt a pragmatic approach to ensure that the felony, even if goes unpunished, does not tinker with or paralyze the very object of administration of criminal justice.

11. The offences which are serious offences or which involved the moral turpitude or have a harmful effect on the society or a moral fabric of the society or matter involves the concerning of public policy can not be construed betwixt two individual or group only and such an offence have a potential to impact the society at large. If such an offence is permitted to compound or the offender of such an offence goes unpunished, it would not only send a wrong signal to the society, but may also accord undue benefit to unscrupulous, habitual or professional offenders, who can secure a settlement through duress, threats, societal boycotts, bribes or other dubious means.

12. Marshaling the facts and circumstances and crystallizing the various previous legal pronouncements of Hon'ble Apex Court, in the case of Ramgopal vs. The State of Madhya Pradesh, Criminal Appeal No.1489 of 2012 decided on 29.9.2021, the Hon'ble Apex Court have well analyzed the axiom that the plenary jurisdiction of this Court to impart a complete justice under Article 142 of the Constitution cannot ipso facto be limited or restricted by ordinary statutory provisions. It is also noteworthy that even in the absence of an express provision akin to Section 482 Cr.P.C., conferring powers on the Supreme Court to abrogate and set aside criminal proceedings, the jurisdiction exercisable under Article 142 of the Constitution embraces this Court with scopious powers to quash criminal proceeding also, so as to secure complete justice. Similarly on the same line and path, the High Courts too, are armed with the power u/s 482 Cr.P.C. to quash the proceedings where the parties on its own volition and accord decided to bury their differences and dispute outside the court, approaches the High Court for quashing the proceedings, the High Court can exercise its power u/s 482 Cr.P.C. for quashing the proceedings to secure the complete justice between them. In doing so a due regard must be given to the overarching objective of sentencing in the criminal justice system, which is grounded on the sublime philosophy of maintenance of peace of the collective and that the rational of placing an individual behind bars is aimed at his reformation.

13. Thus, the L.C.M. of aforesaid discussion is that as opposed to section 320 Cr.P.C. where the Court is squarely guided by the compromise between the parties in respect of offences 'compoundable' within the statutory framework, the extra-ordinary power enjoined upon a High Court Under Section 482 Cr.P.C. or vested in the Hon'ble Apex Court under Article 142 of the Constitution, can be invoked beyond the metes and bounds of Section 320 Cr.P.C. Nonetheless, it is reiterated that such powers of wide amplitude ought to be exercised with its extreme care and cautious in the context of quashing criminal proceeding, bearing in mind : (i) nature and effect of offence on the conscious and temper of the society; (ii) seriousness of the injury, if any; (iii) voluntary nature of compromise between the accused and the victim; and lastly (iv) conduct of the accused persons, prior to an after the occurrence of the purported offence and/or other relevant considerations in accepting the settlement and to be acted upon by the court of law in exercise of power u/s 482 Cr.P.C.

14. Now in the instant cases where the informant/victims belonging to SC/ST community lodged F.I.Rs. u/s 323, 324, 504, 506, 342, 308 and other allied sections of I.P.C. and Section 3(1) (अ) & (घ) of SC/ST Act, and now the parties have come to terms. In this regard a judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in Ramawatar vs. The State of Madhya Pradesh (supra) is of great value and help. In para-18 of this judgment Hon'ble Apex Court was conscious enough to hold that having a truce and compromise with a person belong to scheduled caste and scheduled tribes community, it is expected from the courts law to be more vigilant and cautious to ensure that the complainant/victim has entered into compromise on his/her own free will and sweet will and there is no duress or coercion, threat or allurement from any quarter. It is further observed that since a member of scheduled castes/scheduled tribes community belong to the weaker sections of our country, they are more prone to acts of coercion, and therefore, ought to be accorded a high level of protection. Therefore, accepting settlement between them the court has to test the covenants of the said compromise on the touchstone of following tests, namely :

Firstly, the occurrence(s) involved in these appeals can be categorized as purely personal or having overtones of criminal proceedings of private nature;

Secondly, the nature of injuries incurred, for which the Appellants have been convicted, do not appear to exhibit their mental depravity or commission of an offence of such a serious nature that quashing of which would override public interest;

Thirdly, give the nature of the offence and injuries, it is immaterial that the trial against the Appellants had been concluded or their appeal(s) against conviction stand dismissed.

Fourthly, the parties on their own volition, without any coercion or compulsion, willingly and voluntarily have buried their differences and wish to accord a quietus to their dispute(s);

Fifthly, the occurrence(s) in both the cases took place way back in the years 2000 and 1995, respectively. There is nothing on record to evince that either before or after the purported compromise, any untoward incident transpired between the parties;

Sixthly, since the Appellants and the complainant(s) are resident of the same village(s) and/or work in close vicinity, the quashing of criminal proceedings will advance peace, harmony, and fellowship amongst the parties who have decided to forget and forgive any ill-will and have no vengeance against each other; and

Seventhly, the cause of administration of criminal justice system would remain un-effected on acceptance of the amicable settlement between the parties and/or resultant acquittal of the Appellants; more so looking at their present age.

Though the list is not exhausted but these are the basic tests on which the settlement is to be tested between the parties.

15. Taking the guidance from above guidelines of Hon'ble Apex Court and comparing the facts of the present cases, the nature, gravity of the offence in which charge sheet has been submitted by the police, more particularly the contesting parties belong to same village, reside either in the neighbourhood or nearby, and out of a sheer fit of anger some heated passion or altercation took place which resulted into an act of offensive by the accused against the complainant. After lapse of time the contesting parties themselves feel like that they have to reside in the same village for their remaining life with the intervention of elders and sane people of the society, adhering to the cardinal principle of forget and forgive, in a cool and composite mind, they have decided to settle down the issue forever.

16. We are in our 75th year of independence, a mature democracy where there is sufficient spread of education system even in rural areas and there is sufficient amount of awareness among all the stratas of the society including persons belonging to SC/ST community. In addition to this, there is upsurge of electronic media, social media even in the remote areas of our villages, the people are now more aware and vigilant about their rights, powers and duties. The situation is improving slowly but steadily, even in the rural areas, and therefore, there is steep rise in lodging of the criminal cases by the members of Scheduled Caste/ Scheduled Tribes community. It is also a welcome step that the parties are readily accepting the compromise between them on various accounts viz : resides in same village or in close vicinity; relationship between them for generations; inter-dependence etc. are cooling factors. These are the circumstances where the role of law courts should be act as a catalyst between them to bury their disputes and differences, instead of keep the matter linger on for an unlimited period permitting the animosity between them more firm and irrevocable. Long drawn enmity sometimes give a disastrous result to the general peace and tranquility of the society, and thus, it is expected from the law courts to act in a pro-active way and after evaluating and taking into account the above mentioned factors, try to bury the differences for good in larger interest of the society.

17. In all above mentioned four cases, the penal provisions involved are u/s 147, 323, 324, 427, 504, 506, 342, 308 and other allied sections of I.P.C. and Section 3(1) (२) & (३) of SC/ST Act. The parties on their own have decided to come to truce and bury their differences amicably. This Court in exercise of its plenary power u/s 482 of Criminal Procedure Code or Section 14(A)-1 of SC/ST Act have seen the covenants of the compromise and gauged the nature and gravity of the offence, in which the accused persons charged for, and this Court has no hesitation or objection to quash the proceedings of aforementioned cases in the light of compromise between the contesting parties for attaining the larger good and welfare of society. As mentioned above, the law courts should act in a pro-active way with the hope and trust that nothing untoward may happen in future between the parties and, thus, in the light of the above discussion these Criminal Appeals u/s 14A(1) of the SC/ST Act and Applications u/s 482 Cr.P.C. are ALLOWED, and the impugned orders and proceedings of respective cases, whose details are given herein below :-

The above mentioned impugned charge sheets, orders or proceedings pending against the respective appellants/applicants before the concerned courts are hereby QUASHED.

RETURN OF AMOUNT TO THE STATE IS SINE QUA NON

18. Yet another aspect of the issue which cropped up during arguments that, in the State case (FIR) initiated by any member of the SC/ST community against named or unnamed accused persons (not belonging to the SC/ST community) or the persons of the higher caste for any cognizable or non-bailable offence, the police lodges FIR under the relevant sections of the I.P.C. and the SC/ST Act and proceeds to inquire and investigate into the matter.

19. Normally any State Case, where any offence took place, there are two parties, viz : Complainant/Informant or the victim on one hand and the proposed accused persons named or unknown persons are on the other hand. State being prosecutor contest the criminal proceedings on behalf of victim or the informant. But in the instant legislation in the name of SC/ST (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 (Act No.33 of 1989), in addition to above mentioned role, the State is not only prosecutor but also acts and renders financial aid and assistance to the victim/informant's family. In fact this is the only legislation, where the State government not only provides fund to the victim, but also provides travelling allowances, daily allowances, maintenance expenses and transport facilities to the victim of atrocities, his or her dependents and witnesses (Rule 11 of Rules 1995). In addition to this, the District Magistrate or S.D.M. or any other Executive Magistrate shall make necessary administrative and other arrangements to provide relief in cash or in kind or both, within seven days to the victim of atrocities, or their family members and dependents, according to the scale as provided in Annexure-I read with Annexure-II of the Schedule annexed to those Rules and shall also make such immediate relief including food, water, clothing, shelter, medical aid, transport facilities and other aid (Rule 12(4) of Rules 1995). This extra ordinary provision was added in the Rules of 1995 keeping in view the objective of Act 33 of 1989, which reads thus, "The SC & ST (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 was enacted with a view to prevent the commission of offences of atrocities against the members of SC/ST and establish special courts for the trial of such offences and for providing relief and rehabilitation of the victim of such offences."

20. This is the only legislature where the State is providing funds to the victims to contest the case so that the offenders may be punished. From the objective as mentioned in Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 it would reflect that "despite of the various measures adopted to improve the socio-economic conditions of the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes, they have remained vulnerable. They are subjected to various offences, indignities, humiliations and harassments. Through spread of education some awareness has been created amongst them and they have been trying to assert their rights. Still there has been an increase in the disturbing trend of commission of certain atrocities upon the members of SC/ST community. In some part of country, specially in rural areas, they have been denied certain civil rights. In some part of country untouchability against them or demand statutory minimum wages or refuse to do any bonded and forced labour are in practice. The people of the higher castes will treat them as sleeves or look upon them with utter humiliation and indignified way. When the members of SC/ST community try to preserve their self-respect and honour of their women, they become irritants for the dominant and the mighty. In order to cap this yawning difference, the legislature in its own wisdom have legislated the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 with a laudable object to have a deterrent impact upon dominant society and to check their highhandedness towards them. The special courts are formed and the procedures are eased so that have a speedy justice and effective punishment system for offenders.

21. In addition to above penal clauses in aforesaid Act, the SC/ST Rules of 1995 have also promulgated which provides the financial assistance to such victims so that they may contest their cases. Earning of the State is being utilized to water them so that they may contest their case to its logical conclusion. In this regard Rules 11 and 12 of the SC/ST Rules, 1995 deserve special attention, which reads thus :

"11. Travelling allowances, daily allowance, maintenance expenses and transport facilities to the victim atrocity, his or her dependent and witnesses.-

(1) Every victim of atrocity or his/her dependent and witnesses shall be paid to and for rail fare by second class in express / mail/ passenger train or actual bus or taxi fare from his / her place of residence or actual bus or taxi fare from his /her place of residence or place of stay to the place of investigation or hearing of trial of an offence under the Act.

Such immediate relief shall also include food, water, clothing, shelter, medical aid, transport facilities and other essential items.

(4A) For immediate withdrawal of money from the treasury so as to timely provide the relief amount as specified in sub-rule (4), the concerned State Government or Union territory Administration may provide necessary authorisation and powers to the District Magistrate.

(4B) The Special Court or the Exclusive Special Court may also order socio-economic rehabilitation during investigation, inquiry and trial, as provided in clause (c) of sub-section of section 15A of the Act.

(5) The relief provided to the victim of the atrocity or his /her dependent under sub-rule (4) in respect of death, or injury to, or damage to property shall be in addition to any other right to claim compensation in respect thereof under any other law for the time being in force.

(6) The relief and rehabilitation facilities mentioned in sub-rule (4) above shall be provided by the District Magistrate or the Sub-Divisional Magistrate or any other Executive Magistrate in accordance with the scales provided in the Schedule annexed to these rules.

(7) A report of the relief and rehabilitation facilities provided to the victims shall also be forwarded to the Special Court by the District Magistrate or the Sub-Divisional Magistrate or the Executive Magistrate or Superintendent of Police. In case the Special Court is satisfied that the payment of relief was not made to the victim or his/her dependent in time or the amount of relief or compensation was not sufficient or only a part of payment of relief or compensation was made, it may order for making in full or part the payment of relief or any other kind of assistance.

22. It would not be out of place to mention here that this financial assistance is given with a sole motive to victims considering that they are downtrodden so that they may not feel scared or hopeless and give-up the proceedings on account of paucity of funds. The State has come out to help them and Welfare Department of the State has been authorised and empowered to provide financial assistance to them. This indeed is a laudable object whereby the State being a welfare State is providing the financial assistance to the victims belonging to SC/ST community so that they may contest their cases, summon the witnesses and meet out all the expenses incurred during trial. Thus the underline idea of providing financial assistance is that there shall not be any paucity of funds to the victim in contesting the case to its logical conclusion and the wrongdoers may be suitably punished and penalized for their acts committed against the victims. All these arrangements are provided to the victims by the State Government only to achieve an objective that the members of SC/ST community should feel free in contesting the case and rest of the financial burden shall be borne out by the State.

23. Thus, the objective behind Rules 11 & 12 of the SC/ST Rules, 1995, is indeed laudable and commendable, but with a caveat/a rider over it. It pre-supposes that the state government has to bear the financial burden of the entire trial, whereby the offenders and wrongdoers may be punished after the trial. That's why at every stage of trial the Welfare department of the state government releases funds to the victim.

But, where the parties have come to truce and settle their dispute outside the court, without any threat or coercion upon them, resultantly the entire trial gets aborted in its midst. No doubt it's a welcome step taken by the contesting parties, but the state government or its treasury shall not be put to any kind of financial loss. We are living in a Welfare State but surely not in a Charitable State. At the cost of repetition, since release of the funds in favour of the victim is at every stage of the trial viz : lodging of FIR; filing of charge sheet; committal of the case; and lastly conclusion of trial, as such, in the event of any truce between the parties, it's natural and logical result should be, return of the amount received by the victim from the state exchequer.

24. Moreover, when there is settlement between the parties, there is no threat for any offensive against the victim and the entire atmosphere is full of peace, tranquility and positivity. There cannot be any good justification to keep that money for the victim and in all fairness they are supposed to return back the money to the State Government. This is the hard-earned money of innocent tax-payers and any atrocities against the victims cannot be exploited to earn and enjoy the money from the State Government even when there is compromise between them.

25. Thus, under these circumstances, where there is compromise/settlement between the victim and the accused, the same shall be verified by the concerned Session Judge, SC/ST Act taking into account the factors enumerated by the Hon'ble Apex Court quoted above. After being satisfied the concerned Session Judge shall ask the informant/victim to deposit the entire amount received from the "Samaj Kalyan Vibhag" of the State Government back within next ten days and then pass a suitable order verifying the covenants and the signatories of the compromise.

26. Deposit of the amount received by the victim belonging to the SC/ST community, if there is a compromise between the contesting parties, then the deposit of the amount back in the State exchequer shall be sine-qua-non and condition precedent for any settlement or truce between the parties without which no compromise could be verified by the court concerned.

27. Since all the four proceedings have already been allowed by this Court, still the victims are directed to deposit the amount received by them within next twenty days in the treasury of Samaj Kalya Vibhag of respective Session's Division.

28. Let the copy of this judgment be circulated to all the Sessions Division of the State so as to comply with the orders in the same terms and conditions in future.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Subhash Chand, J.)

1. The instant Criminal Appeal No. 7876 of 2017 has been preferred on behalf of the appellant Panna Lal and another and Criminal Appeal No. 7877 of 2017 has been preferred on behalf of Bhure Lal alias Shyam Manohar against the judgment and order dated 1.12.2017 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court No. 1, Mainpuri in Special Trial No. 136 of 2004 (State Vs. Pannal Lal and others) arising out of Case Crime No. 106 of 2001 P.S. Bhogaon, District-Mainpuri whereby the appellants were convicted and sentenced for the offence under section 304-B of I.P.C and were punished with imprisonment of 10 years each and for the offence under section 498-A were convicted and punished with imprisonment of 3 years and a fine of Rs. 5,000/- each and in default of payment of fine additional imprisonment of six months was awarded to be undergone. For the offence under section 4 of Dowry Prohibition Act each of the accused was convicted and sentenced with imprisonment of six months and a fine of Rs. 2,000/- and in default of payment of fine the additional imprisonment of one month was awarded to be undergone.

2. Both the aforesaid appeals are against the judgment and order dated 1.12.2017, therefore, both the appeals are disposed of by the common judgment.

3. The brief facts giving rise to both these appeals are that the informant Ram Singh, son of Munshi, resident of village Semalpur, P.S. Vishunpur, District Kannauj moved the written information with the police station concerned with the allegations that on 29th March 2001 at 5.00 O'clock he received the information in his village that his daughter Anita had been killed by hanging by her in-laws. He reached to village Shivai and saw his daughter hanged with Sari and her father-in-law, mother-in-law and his son-in-law were absconding from the house. His daughter was got married about 3 years back and endowment was made by him at the time of marriage as per capacity; but the father-in-law and mother-in-law being not satisfied, made additional demand of Gold Chain, T.V., and Almirah in dowry. The informant was not capable to fulfill these demands, consequently his daughter was subjected to cruelty and due to this reason his daughter was killed and the body was hanged. On this written information the case crime no. 106 of 2001 was registered under section 498-A, 304-B of IPC and 3/4 D.P. Act with the Police Station Bhogaon, District-Mainpuri. The Investigating Officer after having concluded the investigation filed charge sheet against all the accused persons under sections 498-A, 304-B and 3/4 D.P. Act on which the cognizance was taken by the Chief Judicial Magistrate and after considering that the offence is triable by the court of sessions, the case was committed by the CJM concerned to the court of sessions for trial.

4. The trial court summoned all the accused persons and framed charges against all the accused persons under sections 304-B, 498-A of IPC and 3/4 D.P. Act and the alternate charge under section 302 IPC was also framed against all the accused persons. The charge was read over and explained to all the accused persons who denied the charge and claimed to be tried.

5. On behalf of prosecution to prove the charge against all the accused persons in documentary evidence adduced written information, Exb. Ka-1, Marriage card, Exb. Ka-2, Site plan of place of occurrence, Exb. Ka-3, Charge sheet against Panna Lal and Smt. Maya Devi @ Mayawati, Exb.

Ka-4, Charge sheet against Bhure Lal @ Shyam Manohar, Exb. Ka-5, Inquest report, Exb. Ka-6, letter to Chief Medical Officer, Exb. Ka-7, Specimen seal, Exb. Ka-8, letter to RI, Exb. Ka-9, Photo Nas, Exb. Ka-10, Post mortem report, Exb. Ka-11 and check FIR, Exb. Ka-11-A.

In ocular evidence examined PW-1, Ram Singh, PW-2, Ganesh, PW-3, Hukum Singh, PW-4 Lala Ram, PW-5, Om Prakash, Naib Tehsildar, PW-6 Retired Doctor S.K. Seth, PW-7, Krishna Kumar Chaturvedi.

6. The statement of accused persons under section 313 of Cr.P.C was recorded. All the accused persons denied the incriminating circumstances in evidence against them and stated that deceased had no issue, with this reason, she was mentally disturbed and consequently had committed suicide. On behalf of Panna Lal and Smt. Maya Devi @ Mayawati it was also stated that both of them were residing separate from their son Bhure Lal @ Shyam Manohar.

7. On behalf of accused persons in defence evidence examined DW-1, Bhoj Raj and DW-2, Ram Kishan.

8. Trial court after hearing the submissions of learned counsel for both the parties had convicted all the accused persons vide judgment and order dated 1.12.2017 for the offence under sections 304-B, 498-A of IPC and section 4 of D.P. Act and sentenced as stated above.

9. Aggrieved with this impugned judgment the Criminal Appeal No. 7876 of 2017 was preferred on behalf of the appellants Panna Lal and Smt. Maya Devi @ Mayawati and Criminal Appeal No.

7877 of 2017 was preferred on behalf of the appellant Bhure Lal @ Shyam Manohar on the grounds that the impugned judgment and conviction order passed by the court below is against the weight of the material evidence on record and the impugned judgment and order is bad in the eyes of law. In view of the facts and circumstances of the case as well as the evidence available on record, the punishment awarded by the court below is too severe. Accordingly, prayed to allow these criminal appeals and set aside the impugned judgment and order of conviction.

10. I have heard the submissions of learned counsel for the appellants and learned AGA for the State and perused the relevant materials brought on record.

11. Learned counsel for the appellants has submitted that the allegations made in the FIR in regard to alleged demand of dowry are general in nature. There is no evidence in regard to harassment caused to the deceased for non fulfillment of alleged demand of dowry. In inquest report there is no whisper in regard to alleged demand of dowry. As per autopsy report the cause of death of deceased was asphyxia as a result of ante mortem hanging. There is no external injury on any part of the body. Hyoid bone is intact. It was a case of suicide committed by the deceased herself who was disturbed because of having no issue. From the evidence on record no offence under section 304-B of IPC is made out against the accused persons. As per prosecution case the marriage was solemnized 3 years before the date of occurrence. There is no evidence in regard to exact date of marriage. In fact, the marriage of deceased was solemnized in the year 1993 and 7 years had elapsed from the date of occurrence. Moreover, the appellant Panna Lal and Smt. Maya Devi @ Mayawati both father-in-law and mother-in-law respectively of deceased were residing separate from their son Bhure Lal @ Shyam Manohar. On behalf of accused persons this defence case was also put to all prosecution witnesses in cross examination and the defence evidence was also adduced. Moreover, all the accused persons in their statement under section 313 of Cr.P.C., have taken this plea of separate living of father-in-law and mother-in-law from their son and also the plea of committing suicide of deceased herself on account of being disturbed because of no issue to herself.

Learned counsel for the appellants has further submitted that there is no evidence on record in regard to harassment for non-fulfillment of demand of dowry soon before the death. Moreover no proper opportunity of the hearing was afforded to the appellants on the quantum of sentence in view of section 235(2) of the Criminal Procedure Code.

In support of these submissions learned counsel for the appellants has relied upon the following case laws:-

(1) Dagdu and Others Vs. State of Maharashtra (1977) 3 SCC 68;

(2) Shamasaheb M. Multani Vs. State of Karnataka (2001) 2 SCC 577;

(3) Kans Raj Vs. State of Punjab and others (2000) 5 SCC 207;

(4) Pathan Hussain Basha Vs. State of Andhra Pradesh (2012) 8 SCC 594; and

(5) Hira Lal and others Vs. State (Govt. of NCT), Delhi (2003) 8 SCC 80.

12. Learned AGA on behalf of State per contra submitted that the impugned judgment of conviction and sentence passed by the court below is based on the proper appreciation of evidence on record and passed the proper judgment which bears no illegality. Moreover, the accused persons were afforded complete opportunity of hearing by the court below on the quantum of sentence.

13. On behalf of prosecution to prove its case in ocular evidence examined PW-1 Ram Singh, PW-2 Ganesh, PW-3 Hukum Singh as witness of the fact.

PW-1 Ram Singh is the informant and the father of the deceased. This witness in his statement says that his daughter Anita was married with Bhure Lal @ Shyam Manohar about 3 years ago from the date of occurrence in the year 1998. The father-in-law and mother-in-law and husband of his daughter made additional demand of dowry of Gold Chain, T.V, and Almirah and for non fulfillment of the same his daughter was subjected to cruelty. His daughter used to make complaint of the same to him and her mother. His daughter Anita also made complaint of the same to his son also. On the occasion of Holi on the very year of the occurrence he has gone to the in-laws house of his daughter and asked them not to torture his daughter for the alleged demand of dowry but on this, reiterated the aforesaid demand of dowry. After that he left the in-laws house of his daughter and on 29.3.2001 he received information from Dharmendra Singh, son of Suraj Singh of village Bhadaura at 5- O clock that his daughter had been killed by her in-laws. On this information he reached along with family members to village Sevai and saw the dead body of his daughter hanged with the Sari with the hook of Veranda. He moved the written information with the police station concerned Exb. Ka-2. He also gave the invitation card of marriage to the Investigating Officer which is Exb. Ka-2. He was also the witness of the inquest report. The dead body of his daughter was got down from the hook of Varandah by Darogaji. Many persons of the locality were present there. Panna Lal and Bhure Lal @ Shyam Manohar were not residing separately. It is wrong to say that his daughter committed suicide because of having no issue to her.

PW-2 Ganesh is the real brother of the deceased. This witness in his statement says that his sister was married 3 years before the date of occurrence with Bhure Lal @ Shyam Manohar. Whenever, his sister had come from her in-laws house to parental house, she told in regard to demand of Gold Chain, T.V., Almirah and also told that all the accused persons had beaten her for non fulfillment of the same demand. On receiving the information from Dharmendra Singh on 29.3.2001 accompanied his parents, his cousin brother Hukum Singh and Ram Shankar of the village to reach village Sevai to the in-laws house of his sister and saw the dead body of his sister hanged with Sari with the hook of balcony. The dead body was got down by Darogaji. It is wrong to say that his sister was mentally disturbed because of having no issue and committed suicide.

PW-3 Hukum Singh is the cousin brother of the deceased. He also gave the same kind of statement as that of PW-1 Ram Singh and PW-2 Ganesh and corroborated the prosecution story. This witness also stated that the complaint in regard to the demand of dowry and subjecting to cruelty to Anita was made by Anita to her parents in his presence. Anita has all to say, told in regard to alleged demand of dowry to him about two months ago from the date of occurrence when she had come to her parental house. It is wrong to say that Anita along with her husband resided separate from Panna Lal in another house.

14. On behalf of prosecution to prove the cause of death and papers relating to inquest report examined PW-5 Om Prakash, Naib Tehsildar proved the inquest report Ka-6 and papers relating to inquest report Exb. K-7 to Ka-10. This witness in his statement also says that all the panch witnesses have told him that the death of the deceased was caused by hanging her with Sari with the hook of balcony.

15. To prove the autopsy report of deceased examined PW-6 retired Doctor S.K. Seth. This witness in his statement proves the post mortem report of the deceased Exb.Ka-11 and says that the cause of death of deceased is asphyxia as a result of ante mortem hanging and ante mortem injury ligature mark 30.0 cm x 3.0 cm on around neck except on right side where it is intercepted behind right ear mark is obliquely placed following the line of mandible. The hyoid bone was intact (not broken).

16. At this stage provision of section 304-B of IPC read with section 113-B of the Evidence Act is necessary to be considered.

Section 304-B of IPC reads as under:-

304-B. Dowry death:-

"1. Where the death of a woman is caused by any burns or bodily injury or occurs otherwise than under normal circumstances within seven years of her marriage and it is shown that soon before her death she was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband for, or in connection with, any demand of dowry, such death shall be called "dowry death", and such husband or relative shall be deemed to have caused her death.

Explanation- For the purpose of this sub-section "dowry" shall have the same meaning as in section 2 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961(28 of 1961) same meaning as in section 2 of the Dowry Prohibition.

(2) Whoever commits dowry death shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than seven years but which may extend to imprisonment for life."

The Hon'ble Apex Court has indicated the ingredients of section 304-B of IPC in the following cases as under:-

1. Pawan Kumar Vs. State of Haryana (1998) 3 SCC 309 para-6;

2. Kans Raj Vs. State of Punjab (2000) 5 SCC 207 para-9:

3. Heera Lal Vs. State (Govt. Of NCT), Delhi (2003) 8 SCC 80 para-8; and

4. Bakhsish Ram Vs. state of Punjab (2013) 4 SCC 131 para-14.

(A) that the married women had died otherwise than normal circumstances;

(B) As the death was within 7 years of marriage; and

(c) the prosecution has established that there was cruelty or harassment by her husband or near relative of her husband in connection with demand of dowry soon before the death.

17. The Hon'ble apex Court held in Suresh Kumar Vs. State of Haryana (2013) 16 SCC 553 in para 27 that any death occurring otherwise than under normal circumstances can be homicidal, suicidal or accidental.

18. The Hon'ble Apex Court held in Sher @ Pratap Vs. State of Haryana AIR

2015 SC 980 held the word "soon" before death not to be interpreted in terms of six months or year but it is necessary to indicate domain of dowry should not be stale. It should be continuing because of death under section 304-B of IPC.

19. The Hon'ble Apex Court also held in Satyaveer Singh Vs. State of Punjab AIR 2001 SC 2828 held that there should be nexus between death of wife and the dowry related to harassment inflicted on her.

20. The Hon'ble Apex court held in Devi Lal Vs. State of Rajasthan (2009) 1 SCC (Criminal) 785 under section 304-B "soon" before death depends upon the facts and circumstances of each case.

21. The Hon'ble Apex Court held in State of Andhra Pradesh Vs. Raj Gopal Asawa AIR 2004 SCW1566 the definition of dowry is not restricted to agreement or demand for payment of dowry before or at the time of marriage; but also includes demand made subsequent to marriage.

22. The Hon'ble Apex Court in Suresh Kumar (Supra) in para 30 held if the ingredients of section 304-B of IPC are made out, the accused is deemed to have caused the death of women; the accused is entitled to rebut this statutory presumption of having caused death. The presumption under section 113-B is the presumption of law which is mandatory.

23. The Hon'ble Apex Court also held in Suresh Kumar (Supra) in para 34 a Bench of three Judges of this Court has elucidated the requirement of section 304-B of IPC read with section 113-B of the Evidence Act and contrasted it with section 113-A of the Evidence Act in paras 27 to 30 in Shamnsaheb M. Multtani (Supra) held that if the ingredients of section 304-B of IPC are made out, the court has no option but to presume that the accused has caused the dowry death unless the accused disapproves it. It is a statutory compulsion of the Court. However, the accused has to be rebut it. He can discharge this burden either by elucidating answers, through the cross examination of prosecution witness or by adducing defence evidence or by both.

Section 113-A of the Evidence Act says that in almost similar conditions of dowry death the court may presume having regard to the circumstances of the case that as the suicide has been abetted by his husband or the relative of the husband.

24. The provisions of Section 113-B of the Evidence Act are relevant to mention herein below:-

"113B. Presumption as to dowry death:-

When the question is whether a person has committed the dowry death of a woman and it is shown that soon before her death such woman has been subjected by such person to cruelty or harassment for, or in connection, any demand for dowry, the court shall presume that such person had caused the dowry death."

25. As per prosecution case the daughter of the informant Anita was married with Bhure Lal @ Shyam Manohar in 1998, three years ago from the date of occurrence. In this regard in documentary evidence invitation card of marriage Exb. Ka-2 has been proved by PW-1 Ram Singh. In this marriage invitation card the date of marriage is shown as 28.4.1998. The name of bride is Anita, daughter of Ram Singh Rajpoot, resident of Semalpur, Amaltabad (Kannauj) and the name of bridegroom is Shyam Manohar son of Panna Lal, resident of Rewai (Mainpuri). All the three witnesses of fact PW-1 Ram Singh, PW-2 Ganesh, PW-2 Hukum Singh who are father, real brother and cousin brother stated that Anita was married with Bhure Lal @ Shyam Manohar before three years ago on the date of occurrence.

On behalf of the accused persons this plea has been raised by giving suggestion to the prosecution witness that the deceased was married with Bhure Lal @ Shyam Manohar in 1993 more than 7 years ago from the date of occurrence. This plea is also taken by all the accused persons in their statement under section 313 of Cr.P.C.

On behalf of defence the defence witnesses DW-1 Bhoj Raj and DW-2 Ram Kishan also say that the accused Bhure Lal was married with Anita in the year 1993. In view of the ocular evidence adduced on behalf of prosecution and also the documentary evidence marriage invitation card of Smt. Anita it is proved that the marriage of Smt. Anita and Bhure Lal @ Shyam Manohar had solemnized on 28.4.1998. The marriage invitation card is not questioned by the defence counsel in the cross examination from the prosecution witness, as such, on this point the balance of the evidence tilts in favour of the prosecution. On behalf of the accused persons no documentary evidence has been adduced to rebut the date of marriage being 28.4.1998.

26. So far as the death of deceased Anita is concerned, from the ocular evidence as well the medical evidence itself well proved that the death of Anita was not caused in normal circumstances, rather it was homicidal or suicidal.

All the prosecution witnesses have deposed the evidence that the death of Anita was homicidal. As per medical evidence DW-6 Dr. S.K. Seth says that the cause of death was asphyxia as a result of ante mortem hanging. This witness also says that the ligature mark was 30.0 cm. X 3.0 cm around the neck. This mark was obliquely placed following the line of mandible. This ligature mark was not in V shape to establish the cause of suicide. So far as the hyoid bone being intact is concerned, PW-6 in his statement deposed that trachea was congested. The bloodfroth was in trachea. This witness in his cross examination says that he has not written the cause of death in post mortem report throttling or strangulation because death was caused due to hanging.

In inquest report the cause of death as per the information of panch witnesses has been mentioned asphyxia due to hanging with the Sari by the hook of balcony.

PW-5 Om Prakash, Naib Tehsildar proves the inquest report and the papers of the inquest report and also says that all the Panch have stated to him that the body of the deceased was hanged with the hook of balcony tied with Sari, as such, the death of deceased Anita was an unnatural death. It was not a death of normal circumstances.

27. So far as the demand of dowry and non fulfillment of the same causing cruelty to deceased soon before the death is concerned, all the witnesses have stated that the accused persons had made demand of Gold Chain, T.V., and Almirah after solemnizing the marriage and for non fulfillment of the same Anita was subjected to cruelty. All these witnesses have stated whenever Anita had visited her parental house from her in-laws house she has made complaint in regard to making alleged dowry by her in-laws and had told in regard to the same to PW-1 Ram Singh, PW-2 Ganesh, PW-3 Hukum Singh who are father, real brother and cousin brother of the deceased respectively. PW-1 Ram Singh has also stated at one instance at the occasion of Holi in the very year of occurrence, when he had visited the in-laws house of her daughter and asked her in-laws not to harass and torture her daughter for the alleged demand of Gold Chain, T.V and Almirah. All the accused persons refused to desist of their demand of dowry. This witness also says that he has shown his incapability to fulfill the aforesaid demand and left his daughter in-laws house and thereafter on 30.3.2001 he received information from Dharmendra Singh who told him that his daughter has been killed by her in-laws. This fact is also corroborated with the opinion of Panch witnesses in the inquest report.

28. It is pertinent to mention here that in the inquest report among all the Panch witnesses none is from the in-laws side. This entry in the inquest report also corroborates the ocular evidence in regard to absconding of inmates of in-laws house. This subsequent conduct of the inmates of in-laws house being not present at the place of occurrence, more so, when the dead body of Anita was hanged with hook of balcony tied with Sari becomes relevant to prove the guilty mind of the inmates of in-laws house. This subsequent conduct of the inmates of in-laws house is relevant under section 8 of the Evidence Act.

29. Therefore, the prosecution has been successful to prove this fact that the death of deceased Anita took place in matrimonial house within 7 years of marriage was unnatural. There is also evidence that soon before the death there was demand of Gold Chain, T.V. Almirah and for non fulfillment of the same deceased was subjected to cruelty and harassment. If for the sake of argument, death of deceased is taken to be suicidal, the possibility of demand of dowry and non fulfillment of the same, subjecting the deceased for cruelty and harassment can not be ruled out. The death of deceased whether homicidal or suicidal has a nexus with the harassment and cruelty connected with the demand of dowry. As such, all the ingredients of section 304-B of I.P.C., are made out. From the evidence on record and legal presumption of law which is mandatory shall be taken against the accused persons in regard to committing dowry death.

30. This statutory mandatory presumption under section 113-B of the Evidence Act is rebuttable. The burden of proof shifts upon the accused persons to disprove that it was not a dowry death.

31. On behalf of accused persons in their statement under section 313 Cr.P.C., this plea has been taken that Panna Lal and Smt. Maya Devi @ Mayawati who are father-in-law and mother-in-law of the deceased both were residing separate from their son Bhure Lal @ Shyam Manohar and this plea is also taken that deceased was having no issue therefore she was mentally disturbed, for the same reason, she committed suicide. On behalf of defence counsel of the accused persons this suggestion was also given to all the prosecution witnesses that deceased was having no issue was disturbed and sad and consequently she committed suicide. The suggestion of separate living of Panna Lal and Smt. Maya Devi @ Mayawati has been given by the defence counsel to all the prosecution witnesses.

32. On behalf of the accused persons to rebut this presumption in defence evidence have been examined DW-1 Bhoj Raj in his statement says after two years of marriage Pannal Lal began to reside separate with his son Bhure Lal @ Shyam Manohar. Anita had no issue, so her temper was irritating and she committed suicide. This witness also says that at the time of occurrence he was at his agricultural field and was not present at the place of occurrence.

PW-2 Ram Kishan in his statement says that Bhure Lal @ Shyam Manohar along with his wife had been residing separate after two years of marriage with his parents. Anita had no issue, so she had become ill temper and with this reason she committed suicide.

33. So far as defence plea of separate living of Panna Lal and Smt. Maya Devi @ Mayawati, father-in-law and mother-in-law respectively is concerned, this plea has been taken by the accused persons in their statement under 313 Cr.P.C., and had also elicited to all the prosecution witnesses during cross examination. Both the defence witnesses DW-1 Bhoj Raj and DW-2 Ram Kishan had deposed this fact.

34. But so far as this plea that deceased for having no issue was ill tempered and had committed suicide is not found cogent and trust-worthy. As per prosecution evidence the deceased was married with Bhure Lal @ Shyam Manohar 3 years ago from the date of occurrence. If after solemnization of marriage deceased was not conceived and she was disturbed for having no issue, under such circumstances, deceased might have consulted some Gynecologist in regard to treatment of having no issue. As of man ordinary prudence her husband might have taken her to some doctor, more so, if her condition was so depressed that she had become ill tempered for having no issue. No such documentary evidence in regard to treatment of having no issue and consultant prescription in regarding to having no issue had been adduced on behalf of the accused persons which would have been the best evidence in their possession to prove this plea. Under such situation, the ocular evidence adduced on behalf of the defence can not be relied upon on the touch stone of preponderance of possibilities.

35. Here it is also noteworthy that in view of defence evidence the father-in-law and mother-in-law of the deceased were residing separate from their son and so far as the alleged demand of dowry of Gold Chain, T.V., and Almirah is concerned, the direct beneficiary of this demand was the husband of the deceased, as such, the burden to proof will shift upon the husband of the deceased to disprove the legal presumption of dowry death. The husband of the deceased Bhure Lal @ Shyam Manohar has miserably failed to discharge the burden of rebutting the the mandatory statutory presumption of dowry death against him.

The Punjab and Haryana High Court in Bhateri Devi Vs. State of Haryana 2011 (Crl.) 463 held that husband is the beneficiary in case of dowry demand, hence he is liable for dowry death and is to give explanation as to why the death occurred.

36. Learned counsel for the appellants has also submitted that the trial court has imposed the sentence of 10 years for the offence under sections 304-B of IPC without recording any reason and without affording any opportunity of hearing to the appellants convict on the quantum of sentence.

Section 304-B of IPC provides minimum sentence for 10 years and the maximum sentence may be extended upto life imprisonment. The trial court has awarded the sentence of 10 years for the offence under section 304-B of IPC which is less than the maximum as provided under section 304-B of IPC.

So far as the opportunity of hearing under section 235 (2) of Cr.P.C., is concerned, the trial court had given opportunity of hearing to the convict on the quantum of sentence and it was argued on behalf of the convicts that it is the first offence of the accused persons and have no criminal antecedent and accused is a young person and none is to look after his old parents and after taking into consideration the statements made by the counsel of convicts and also Additional District Government Counsel for the prosecution the trial court passed the order of sentence after having recorded reasons for the same. Therefore, this plea raised on behalf of learned counsel for the appellant is not sustainable in law and the same is discarded.

37. In view of re-appreciation of the evidence on record the judgment and order of conviction of the accused Panna Lal and Smt. Maya Devi @ Mayawati for the offence under section 304-B,498-A and 4 of Dowry Prohibition Act deserves to be set aside. Accordingly, the Criminal Appeal No. 7876 of 2017 (Panna Lal and another Vs. State of U.P.) is hereby allowed. The appellants Panna Lal and Smt. Maya Devi @ Mayawati are hereby acquitted from the charges levelled against them under section 304-B,498-A and 4 of Dowry Prohibition Act. The personal bonds and two sureties each in the like amount to the satisfaction of the court concerned in compliance of provisions of section 437-A of Cr.P.C, be furnished by them before the trial court.

38. So far as the Criminal Appeal No. 7877 of 2017 is concerned, in this appeal the appellant Bhure Lal @ Shyam Manohar is the husband of the deceased, whose liability is to protect and save the life and liberty of his wife but the appellant has failed to do so, therefore, the present appeal lacks merit and deserves to be dismissed. Accordingly, the appeal is dismissed. The conviction and sentence awarded to the present appellant is hereby affirmed. The appellant is in jail. He is directed to serve out the remaining sentence as has been awarded by the trial court by judgment and order dated 1.12.2017.

39. Let the copy of the judgment/order be certified to the court concerned for necessary information and follow up action.

The victim's age was determined by a Medical Board constituted by the C.M.O., Bulandshahr on the basis of x-ray report of fusion of elbow, knee and wrist bones. 10. On 27.06.2017, the trial court framed charge u/s 363, 366, 376 I.P.C. and Section 4 of POCSO Act, 2012. The accused denied the charge and claimed trial.

11. To prove the charge against the accused, the prosecution examined witnesses of fact, namely, informant P.W.1 Kalua, P.W.2 victim and formal witnesses, namely, Investigating Officer P.W.3 S.I. Yashveer Singh, Medical Officer P.W.4 Dr. Sudha Sharma and Principal of the school (Divine Science Vidyapeeth, Ghaziabad) of the victim P.W.5 Suman Lata.

12. P.W.1 Kalua proved the written report (Ext.Ka.1) and gave evidence about the occurrence. P.W.2 victim proved her statement recorded u/s 164 Cr.P.C. (Ext.Ka.2) and deposed about the occurrence. The Investigating Officer P.W.3 Yashveer Singh proved the site plan (Ext.Ka.3), charge-sheet (Ext.Ka.4), chik F.I.R. (Ext.Ka.5) and G.D. entry of the institution of the case crime number (Ext.Ka.6). She stated that in that register, the date of birth of the victim was mentioned as 14.11.2002. The victim's father's name, Kalua and mother's name, Yashoda was mentioned at Sr. No. 10. She filed its certified copy as (Ext.Ka.9). P.W.5 also stated that Scholars Register has not yet been prepared in her school. She also admitted that no documents have been attached in proof of the date of birth of the victim. She stated that the attendance register is not signed by any authority. Her school is not recognized by the government.

13. On 03.04.2019, the trial court recorded the statement of the appellant-accused, Rinku @ Prempal u/s 313 Cr.P.C. The appellant-accused denied the statement of P.W.1 Kalua and P.W.2 victim to the effect that on 07.10.2016 in the absence of victim's father, Kalua, he stayed in her house for 5-6 days and on 07.10.2016, enticed away his daughter/victim aged 14 years who was recovered by the police on 12.10.2016 and the case was registered on the basis of written report submitted by the informant in the police station concerned. He also denied that after enticing away the victim, he carried her to Haridwar and from there in a room. He did obscene gestures with her and committed rape on her for 2-3 times during the period of 4 days. He has also denied that after this period, he carried the victim to Ghaziabad and when he was waiting for bus at the Jahangeerabad Bus Station, on query being made by the woman police constable, he left the victim there and ran away. He denied the statement made by the victim against him u/s 164 Cr.P.C. He stated that the Investigating Officer had done wrong investigation. He stated that the prosecution papers, namely, site plan (Ext.Ka.3), chik F.I.R. (Ext.Ka.5), G.D. of the institution of the criminal case (Ext.Ka.6), medical report of the victim (Ext.Ka.7) and her age certificate (Ext.Ka.8), are wrong and have been falsely prepared. The appellant-accused stated that the victim's father is his real brother-in-law (sarhoo). He had borrowed Rs.60,000/- from him. When the appellant-accused asked him for its repayment, he quarrelled with him, refused to make repayment thereof and filed false case against him.

14. It has been argued by learned counsel for the appellant that the first information report has been lodged after a gap of 5 days and no explanation has been given for it. It has also been submitted that there is no eye witness of the incident of appellant-accused carrying the victim with him. The victim was not recovered from the possession of the appellant-accused. The charge of rape is not corroborated by the medical examination report of the victim. He has also submitted that victim's father had borrowed Rs.60,000/- from the appellant-accused. When the appellant-accused asked him to pay back his money, he refused to do so and filed false case against him. He further submitted that the prosecution has failed to prove the charge against the appellant-accused and he should be acquitted of the charge framed against him and the trial court without proper appreciation of oral and documentary evidence has wrongly convicted him vide impugned order.

15. Learned A.G.A. has argued that the prosecution has proved the charge against the appellant-accused with the aid of oral evidence of witnesses of fact corroborated by duly proved documentary evidence produced by the prosecution.

16. Under Section 363 I.P.C., punishment for kidnapping a person from India or from lawful guardianship is provided. Kidnapping from lawful guardianship has been defined u/s 361 I.P.C. which is as follows :-

361. Kidnapping from lawful guardianship.--Whoever takes or entices any minor under sixteen years of age if a male, or under eighteen years of age if a female, or any person of unsound mind, out of the keeping of the lawful guardian of such minor or person of unsound mind, without the consent of such guardian, is said to kidnap such minor or person from lawful guardianship.

17. Under Section 366 I.P.C., the punishment for kidnapping, abducting or inducing a woman to compel her marriage etc., has been provided. The ingredients of Section 366 I.P.C. are as follows :-

1. kidnapping or abducting of any woman;

2. such kidnapping or abducting must be -

(i) with intent that she may be compelled or knowing it to be likely that she will be compelled to marry any person against her will, or;

(ii) in order that she maybe forced or seduced to illicit intercourse;

(iii) by means of criminal intimidation or otherwise by inducing any woman to go to any place with intent that she maybe, or knowing that she will be forced or seduced to illicit intercourse; it is immaterial whether the woman kidnapped is a married woman or not.

18. The Apex Court has held in Gabbu Vs. State of Maharashtra, AIR 2006 SC 246 that unless the prosecution proves that the abduction is for the purposes mentioned in Section 366 I.P.C., 1860, the Court cannot hold the accused guilty and punish him u/s 366 I.P.C., 1860. If the criminal was 18 years old or over, she could only be abducted and not kidnapped but if she was not 18 years, she could be kidnapped as well as abducted if the taking was by force or enticing was by deceitful means.

19. To constitute an offence under Section 366 I.P.C., it is necessary for the prosecution to prove that the accused induced the complainant-woman or compelled by force to go from any place that such inducement was by deceitful means, that such abduction took place with the intent that the complainant may be seduced to illicit intercourse and/or that the accused knew it to be likely that the complainant may be seduced to illicit intercourse as a result of her abduction.

20. In order to establish an offence under Section 366 I.P.C., it must first be established that the offence of kidnapping under Section 361 or abduction under Section 362 I.P.C., has been proved. It must then be shown that such kidnapping was with the contumacious intent referred to under Section 366 I.P.C.

21. Hon'ble Apex Court in Kavita Chandrakant Lakhani vs. State of Maharashtra and another, Criminal Appeal No. 459 of 2016, order dated 24 April, 2018, has held as under:

"...In order to constitute the offence of 'abduction' a person must be carried off illegally by force or deception, that is, to compel a person by force or deceitful means to induce to go from one place to another. The intention of the accused is the basis and the gravamen of an offence under this Section. The volition, the intention and the conduct of the accused determine the offence; they can only bear upon the intent with which the accused kidnapped or abducted the woman, and the intent of the accused is the vital question for determination in each case. Once the necessary intent of the accused is established, the offence is complete, whether or not the accused succeeded in effecting his purpose, and whether or not the woman consented to the marriage or the illicit intercourse."(emphasis by Court)

22. Section 354-B I.P.C. is included in the offence of "Sexual Assault" as defined under Section 7 POCSO Act and made punishable under Section 8 of the Act. Section 354-B I.P.C. reads as under:

354-B. Any man who assaults or uses criminal force to any woman or abets such act with the intention of disrobing or compelling her to be naked, shall be punished with imprisonment or either description for a term which shall not be less than three years but which may extend to seven years, and shall also be liable to fine.

23. "Sexual assault" has been defined in Section 7 of Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act, 2012, which is as follows :-

7. Whoever, with sexual intent touches, the vagina, penis, anus or breast of the child or makes the child touch the vagina, penis, anus or breast of such person or any other person, or does any other act with sexual intent which involves physical contact without penetration is said to commit sexual assault.

24. Punishment for sexual assault has been provided in Section 8 of Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act, 2012, which is as follows :-

8. Whoever, commits sexual assault, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which shall not be less than three years but which may extend to five years, and shall also be liable to fine.

25. In this criminal appeal it has to be considered whether prosecution has been successful in proving the charge under Sections 363, 366, 354-B I.P.C. and Section 8 POCSO Act under which the accused-appellant Rinku alias Prem Pal has been convicted and sentenced by the Trial Court.

Whether the appellant-accused Rinku alias Prem Pal on 07.10.2016 at 1 pm kidnapped or enticed the minor daughter aged 14 years of informant Kaluwa from his lawful guardianship without the consent of such guardian.

Whether the appellant accused kidnapped the minor daughter of informant with intention that she may be forced or seduced to illicit intercourse .

Whether on the alleged date, time and place the appellant-accused assaulted or used criminal force against the informant's minor daughter/victim or abet such an act with intention of disrobing or compelling her to be naked.

26. First of all we have to see whether the victim was less than 18 year of age at the time of occurrence. The alleged offence took place on 07.10.2016. On that date the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 and the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Model Rules 2016 had come into force. The provision for determining the age of victim under the Protection of Children from Sexual Offences is given under Section 94 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act 2015. The provision of Section 94(2) of the Juvenile Justice Act is given as under:

94. Presumption and determination of age.- (1) Where, it is obvious to the Committee or the Board, based on the appearance of the person brought before it under any of the provisions of this Act (other than for the purpose of giving evidence) that the said person is a child, the Committee or the Board shall record such observation stating the age of the child as nearly as may be and proceed with the inquiry under section 14 or section 36, as the case may be, without waiting for further confirmation of the age.

(2) In case, the Committee or the Board has reasonable grounds for doubt regarding whether the person brought before it is a child or not, the Committee or the Board, as the case may be, shall undertake the process of age determination, by seeking evidence by obtaining--

(i) the date of birth certificate from the school, or the matriculation or equivalent certificate from the concerned examination Board, if available; and in the absence thereof;

(ii) the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat;

(iii) and only in the absence of (i) and (ii) above, age shall be determined by an ossification test or any other latest medical age determination test conducted on the orders of the Committee or the Board:

Provided such age determination test conducted on the order of the Committee or the Board shall be completed within fifteen days from the date of such order.

27. To prove the age of the victim, the prosecution has examined PW-5 Suman Lata the Principal of Divine Science Public School, Awantika Chiranjeev Vihar, Ghaziabad in which school the victim was studying from Class 3. PW-5 Suman Lata has produced photocopy of the particulars mentioned in the attendance register of class 3 relating to admission of victim as class 3 student. PW-5 Suman Lata has deposed in her evidence that the details regarding the age of the victim is mentioned at Serial No. 10 of the register where her date of birth is mentioned as 14.11.2002. PW-5 Suman Lata certified the photocopy of the relevant page of the register with the original and produced it as Exhibit Ka-9. PW-5 Suman Lata has admitted that in the register at Serial No. 10 the name of the victim and her father's name Kaluwa and mother's name Yashoda is mentioned. Her date of birth given is 14.11.2002. She admitted that only in the attendance register in the school the date of birth and other particulars of the student is mentioned. There is no SR register in the school. She had admitted that her school is not recognized by the Government. PW-5 Suman Lata deposed that the attendance register is not signed by any officer of education department. She admitted that she had not inscribed the date of birth and other particulars of the victim in the register nor she can recognize the name and handwriting of the person who had made the entry in the aforesaid register. Under aforesaid circumstances, the date of birth of the victim mentioned in the attendance register of the school which is not duly maintained cannot be accepted for legal purposes.

28. Further, the prosecution has produced the age certificate dated 17.10.2016 of the victim issued by the Chief Medical Officer, Bulandshahar (Exhibit Ka-8). This age certificate is based on ossification test of the victim. The age certificate of the Chief Medical Officer has been proved by Dr. Sudha Sharma (PW-4). In this age certificate of the victim her age is mentioned as 15-16 years. Thus, age given in the certificate issued by the CMO, Bulandshahar is a valid document and the age given in it can be accepted. According to the aforesaid age certificate (Exhibit Ka-

8) at the time of her age determination by ossification test i.e. 17.10.2016 her age is about 15-16 years. Therefore, she was minor at the time of commission of the offence.

29. Now, it has to be seen whether the victim was kidnapped or enticed away from lawful keeping of her guardian. It has also to be seen whether kidnapping was done by the accused-appellant with the intention to marry her against her will or with the intention or knowledge that she will be subjected to illicit intercourse. Informant and father of the victim PW-1 Kaluwa has proved the written report (Exhibit Ka-1) which he had filed in Police Station Aurangabad on 12.10.2016.

30. PW-1 Kaluwa has stated in his evidence that his brother-in-law (Sarhu) Rinku came to his house in his absence on 07.10.2016. He stayed there for 5-6 days. He kidnapped and enticed away his minor daughter from his house and at that time his married son, his daughter-in-law and his daughter were residing in his house. He searched for his daughter in his relations but the victim was not found anywhere. Then he submitted written report (Exhibit Ka-1) on 12.10.2016 at Police Station Aurangabad and got a criminal case registered against his brother-in-law for kidnapping his minor daughter from the keeping of her lawful guardian. His daughter was recovered on the same day of registration of FIR. She informed him that appellant-accused Rinku alias Prem Pal had enticed and kidnapped her and repeatedly committed rape with her for several days. The age of his daughter was 14-15 years at the time when she was kidnapped. PW-1 Kaluwa stated that as time was taken in searching his daughter in all possible places and due to his concern for the reputation of the family there was some delay in lodging the FIR. PW-1 stated in his cross examination that as the accused-appellant Rinku alias Prem Pal was brother-in-law therefore, he used to frequently visit his home. He stated that on the date and time when his daughter was kidnapped he was residing in Ghaziabad where he used to ply a tempo. Rinku alias Prem Pal did not kidnap her in his presence. PW-1 Kaluwa denied that as he had borrowed Rs. 60,000/- from the appellant-accused Rinku alias Prem Pal and he did not want to make payment of that amount he lodged a false FIR against him.

31. The victim PW-2 has stated in her evidence that the incident took place on 07.10.2016. She has stated that accused-appellant, resident of Ruksana who was her Mause came to her house on 07.10.2016 at about 11 o'clock. He enticed and kidnapped her by his car. He reached Shyana and from there he took her by bus to Garh. She was taken by train from Garh to Haridwar. In Haridwar he took room on rent. He brought the victim in the room at 7 o'clock in the evening and after having the dinner the appellant-accused started making obscene gesture with her. When she forbid him from doing so he slapped her. She became frightened. The victim requested him to leave her. The accused-appellant disrobed her and committed rape on her. The appellant-accused raped her on the next day and night for 2 to 3 more times. He kept her in the room for 4 days and continuously committed rape on her. The accused threatened to kill her and her family members. After that period, the accused took her to Ghaziabad from where he wanted to carry her to his home at Jugsana. He was waiting with the victim at Jahagirabad Chauraha crossing bus station. A female police constable asked the victim her name. Rinku left her and ran away. The female police constable took her to Police Station Aurangabad. She told the police about the incident. From the police station she was sent for medical examination and for recording of her statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. by the Magistrate. The witnesses stated that she told the Magistrate about the incident which happened with her. PW-2 victim proves her statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. which is Exhibit Ka-2.

32. PW-2 victim stated in her cross examination that she informed about the occurrence to her father on her recovery. Her mother and accused Rinku's wife are real sisters. The accused used to visit her house alone and not with his wife. When the accused Rinku had came to her house at that time she, her sister and her Bhabhi were in the house. The victim stated that she has two brothers and two sisters. She is youngest among all of them. She stated that earlier she used to live in Ghaziabad with her parents but after the marriage of her brother she came to stay in her village. PW-2 stated in her cross examination that the accused-appellant enticed away from her house at 11 am. The accused had told her that her mother is feeling ill. She has ringed to the accused to bring the victim to her mother.

33. PW-2 further stated in her cross examination that while she was being carried by the accused from her house to Haridwar she was threatened by the accused hence she did not inform anyone that accused has kidnapped her from her lawful guardian. She has stated that from the date of her being kidnapped by the accused till her recovery by Police, on the way she had not informed anyone about the kidnapping and rape by accused as she was threatened by the accused that if she would complain she and her family members will be killed. PW-2 victim had admitted that there was no injury on her person. She has denied that her father had borrowed Rs. 60,000/- from the accused and when the accused asked for return of the money he lodged the first information report.

34. From the evidence of PW-2 victim, it transpires that the accused took away the victim from her house on the false pretext that her mother is ill and she had asked the accused to bring the victim to her. PW-1 Kaluwa has also corroborated the evidence of PW-2 that the victim had informed him about her kidnapping by the accused appellant. Nothing has been found in the cross examination of PW-1 and PW-2 by defence that may raise doubt about the reliability and veracity of their statements. Therefore, it is proved that the accused kidnapped the victim from her lawful guardian.

35. The victim PW-2 has stated in her evidence that after kidnapping from her home when the appellant-accused had kept her in a rented room in Haridwar there at night he started making obscene gestures with her and he slapped her several times and disrobed her. From the evidence of PW-2 the victim it is clear that the appellant-accused not only disrobed her but also slapped her several times. Thereafter he used criminal force on the victim with the intention of disrobing her and made her naked. The offence of using criminal force to disrobe a woman has been defined under Section 354-B I.P.C.

36. PW-2 victim has also corroborated her evidence in her statement under Section 164 CrPC that the appellant-accused used criminal force against her at night in the rented room in Haridwar with an intention to disrobe her.

37. For the applicability of POCSO Act following two conditions are necessary:

(i). At the time of incident the victim is minor

(ii) Sexual assault has been committed against the victim

38. Since Both these conditions are present in this case, the offence under Section 354-B I.P.C. is also covered under the sexual offence defined under Section 7 POCSO Act has been made punishable under Section 8 POCSO Act.

39. When a person is being prosecuted for offences under Sections 3,5,7 and 9 then according to provision of Section 29 POCSO Act it shall be presumed that the accused has committed or attempted to commit the offence unless the contrary is proved. Section 29 POCSO Act is as follows:

29. Presumption as to certain offences. - Where a person is prosecuted for committing or abetting or attempting to commit any offence under sections 3, 5, 7 and section 9 of this Act, the Special Court shall presume, that such person has committed or abetted or attempted to commit the offence, as the case may be, unless the contrary is proved.

40. Apart from the aforesaid presumption required culpable mental state for any of the offences mentioned in Section 29 shall be presumed against the accused who is being prosecuted for aforesaid offences. This is provided under

Section 30 of the POCSO Act which is as follows:

30. Presumption of culpable mental state. - (1) In any prosecution for any offence under this Act which requires a culpable mental state on the part of the accused, the Special Court shall presume the existence of such mental state but it shall be a defence for the accused to prove the fact that he had no such mental state with respect to the act charged as an offence in that prosecution.

(2) For the purposes of this section, a fact is said to be proved only when the Special Court believes it to exist beyond reasonable doubt and not merely when its existence is established by a preponderance of probability.

41. From the above discussion of the evidence of PW-2 victim it is evident that the offence defined under Section 7 POCSO Act is proved against the accused-appellant. The accused-appellant has not put any suggestion to PW-2 in her cross examination or made any statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. in rebuttal of aforesaid evidence regarding sexual assault.

42. From the evidence of the victim PW-2 which corroborated by her statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. recorded after her recovery and that of other prosecution witnesses, it is proved that the victim was minor when the appellant-accused took her from the lawful guardianship. No suggestion has been on behalf of the accused-appellant in the cross examination of PW-1 Kaluwa or PW-2 victim or and in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. that at the time of the occurrence the appellant-accused was not with the victim and he was at some other place. The accused-appellant has only stated in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. that the informant had borrowed Rs. 60,000/- from him and when he asked him to return it, he lodged a false case against him. DW-1 and DW-2 produced on behalf of the accused-appellant have not supported this statement of appellant-accused made under Section 313 CrPC. Neither of these witnesses have stated that informant had borrowed Rs. 60,000/- from the appellant-accused and when that amount was demanded by him a false FIR was registered against him. The evidence of PW-1 Kaluwa and PW-2 the victim is true, cogent and reliable. Nothing emerges in the cross examination of PW-1, PW-2 or the prosecution witnesses which may rebut or make the prosecution case doubtful that the appellant-accused kidnapped the victim with the intention/knowledge that she will be seduced or subjected to illicit intercourse.

43. It has been argued on behalf of the appellant-accused that the FIR has been lodged after a gap of five days which raises doubt about the veracity of the occurrence.

44. It has been argued on behalf of the learned A.G.A. For the Stae that in the matter of kidnapping and rape of a woman due to the reputation of family is at stake therefore family members hesitate to promptly lodge the FIR. Therefore, delay of five days does not make the case doubtful

45. From the perusal of averment made in written report (Exhibit Ka-1) it is clearly mentioned that after kidnapping of the victim on 07.10.2016 the informant made search for her at all possible places but she could not be found. When he was convinced that she was enticed and kidnapped by his brother-in-law then he lodged an FIR. The alleged delay in lodging the FIR has been sufficiently explained in the written report.

46. In the case of Deepak vs. State of Haryana, (2015) 4 SCC 762 the Hon'ble Apex Court has held as under:

15. The Courts cannot overlook the fact that in sexual offences and, in particular, the offence of rape and that too on a young illiterate girl, the delay in lodging the FIR can occur due to various reasons. One of the reasons is the reluctance of the prosecutrix or her family members to go to the police station and to make a complaint about the incident, which concerns the reputation of the prosecutrix and the honour of the entire family. In such cases, after giving very cool thought and considering all pros and cons arising out of an unfortunate incident, a complaint of sexual offence is generally lodged either by victim or by any member of her family.

47. In the case of State of Himanchal Pradesh vs. Sanjay Kumar alias Sunny, (2017) 2 SCC 51 the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as under:

It is not to be forgotten that the person accused by the prosecutrix was none else than her Uncle. It is not easy to lodge a complaint of this nature exposing the prosecutrix to the risk of social stigma which unfortunately still prevails in our society. A decision to lodge FIR becomes more difficult and hard when accused happens to be a family member. In fact, incestuous abuse is still regarded as a taboo to be discussed in public. This reticence hurts the victims or other family members who struggle to report. After all, in such a situation, not only the honour of the family is at stake, it may antagonize other relations as well, as in the first blush, such other members of family would not take charge of this nature very kindly."

48. Learned counsel for the appellant-accused has stated that even if in the academic records of the victim shows her minor. If in the medical report based on ossification test she is shown as major the medical report will prevail over her certificate issued by the educational institution and she will be considered as major. He has placed reliance on the judgment of the Apex Court in Civil Appeal No.4532 of 2018, Suhani and another vs. State of U.P. and others. From perusal of the aforesaid judgment it is clear that it is not applicable in the present case as in that case before the Apex Court the age of the victim in her school record was 13 years and 8 months whereas in the medical report prepared after radiological examination her age was fixed between 19-24 years. But in the present case the medical report based on radiological examination her age is determined as 15-16 years. Therefore, the victim is evidently a minor. Hence offence under Section 363 I.P.C. can be committed against her.

49. From the discussion of the above evidence it is proved that the appellant accused kidnapped the minor girl/victim out of keeping of her lawful guardian by deceitful means and made obscene gestures, slapped her and used criminal force to disrobe the victim. Thus the prosecution has proved beyond reasonable doubt the charge under Section 363, 366 and 354-B I.P.C. against the accused-appellant. Thus the Trial Court has rightly convicted him of charge under these sections. Offence under Section 354-B I.P.C. is included in the offence defined under Section 7 POCSO Act and it is made punishable under Section 8 POCSO Act as "sexual assault". Section 42 POCSO Act reads as under:

42. Alternate Punishment. -

Where an act or omission constitutes an offence punishable under this Act and also under sections 166A, 354A, 354B, 354C, 354D, 370, 370A, 375, 376, [376A, 376AD, 376B, 376C, 376D, 376DA, 376DB], [376E, section 509 of the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860) or section 67B of the Information Technology Act, 2000 (21 of 2000)], then notwithstanding anything contained in any law for the time being in force, the offender found guilty of such offence shall be liable to punishment under this Act or under the Indian Penal code as provides for punishment which is greater in degree."

50. Considering the provisions of Section 42 POCSO Act, since 354-B I.P.C. has greater sentence of seven years viz-a-viz punishment of five years which provided under Section 8 POCSO Act thus accused-appellant is liable to be punished under Section 354-B I.P.C. for seven years imprisonment with fine of Rs. 2000/- with default stipulation. The Trial Court has convicted the appellant-accused under Section 354-B I.P.C. but wrongly sentenced him under Section 8 POCSO Act. Thus, the sentence under Section 354-B I.P.C. is modified to seven years imprisonment with fine as imposed by the Trial Court. Both the substantive sentences shall run concurrently. Period of detention undergone by the accused to be set off against the sentence of imprisonment under Section 428 Cr.P.C.

51. With aforesaid modification of sentence under Section 354-B I.P.C. the conviction and sentence of Trial Court under Sections 363, 366 and 354-B I.P.C. against the accused-appellant is confirmed. Thus, the criminal appeal has no force and is liable to be dismissed.

52. The appeal is, accordingly, dismissed with the aforesaid modification of sentence awarded under Section 354-B I.P.C.

53. Let a copy of the judgment along with the record of the Trial Court be sent to the Court concerned for compliance.

1. Since these appeals have been preferred against the same judgment and relate to same Crime Number, they were heard together and are being decided by this common judgment.

2. The Special Judge (DAA) / Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.5, Etah by judgment and order dated 22.11.2008 passed in Special Sessions Trial No. 25 of 1998 (Crime No. 346 of 1997), P.S. Soron, District Etah convicted and sentenced the appellants under Section 364A I.P.C. to undergo life imprisonment with a fine of Rs. 2,000/- each and under Section 307 I.P.C. read with Section 149 I.P.C. to undergo seven years rigorous imprisonment with a fine of Rs. 500/- each and in default of payment of fine, to undergo three months additional rigorous imprisonment. All the sentences were directed to run concurrently. Aggrieved with the said judgment, present appeals have been preferred by the appellants.

3. Brief facts, as culled out from the record, are that a First Information Report was lodged by the informant, Chandra Pal son of Roopram, resident of Badanpur, Police Station Soron, District Etah, on 22.11.1997 at 2.45 p.m., with the averments that in the night of 21/22.11.1997, as usual, he was sleeping inside his shop and his wife Prema Devi was sleeping in the shed with the kids and nearby his children were also sleeping on different cots. At about 12.00 p.m. when the wife of the informant made noise that miscreants had come, he came out unlocking the shop. Six seven miscreants came and took his 11 years old son Rajesh. On raising alarm by the informant and his wife, his neighbors also came there. When everyone tried to rescue the boy from the miscreants, they fired with guns and went towards south with the boy. Jabar Singh son of Siya Ram Jatav received gunshot injury in the occurrence.

4. On the basis of aforesaid written report, on 22.11.1997 F.I.R. was lodged against 6-7 unknown miscreants for the offence under Sections 364 and 307 I.P.C. Investigating Officer started investigation and inspected the spot and prepared the site plan. Injured Jabar Singh was medically examined on the same day at the Community Health Centre, Soron, Etah. During the course of investigation, on the basis of an information dated 4.12.1997, the Investigating Officer with other police personnel, reached Badanpur where the informant Chandrapal met and handed over a letter regarding demand of ransom of Rs. 70,000/- in respect of the kidnapped boy. When the police personnel alongwith the informant and other persons, with a view to search out the kidnapped boy, reached the old brick kiln before the village Goyti, information was received that in the house of Pusey son of Sonpal Kashyap, the kidnapped boy alongwith the kidnappers are present. On the basis of the said information, the police personnel alongwith informer and other persons, reached at village Chauraghat and when on the tip of the informer, reached the corner of the western wall of the house of Pusey Kashyap, it was seen that six persons, armed with gun and tamancha, were sitting on the north face of the roof (kotha) and when they saw the police personnel, they fired 5-6 shots with intention to kill them. In their defence, the police personnel also fired upon them and by using necessary force, two miscreants were caught by surrounding them in front of Pusey's house and the remaining four miscreants, namely, Pusey, Mahatma, Awadhesh and Kallu managed to escape. Of the criminals caught, one told his name as Shripal son of Chhuni Lal, resident of Pachauraghat, P.S. Soron, District Etah and on his search, one SBBL gun 12 bore with three live cartridges of 12 bore were recovered, whereas the other person identified himself as Indrapal son of Anar Singh, resident of Badanpur, P.S. Soron, District Etah. On his search, one tamancha deshi bore and two live cartridges were recovered. On the pointing out of Shripal, the kidnapped boy was recovered from the Pusey's roof (kotha). Informant Chandrapal identified him as his son Rajesh, who was kidnapped for ransom. Accused persons Shripal and Indrapal were arrested and recovered SBBL gun and country made pistol alongwith live and empty cartridges were sealed in separate cloths and specimen seal was prepared. The plastic rope, with which the kidnapped boy was tied, was also seized and a memo was prepared. On the basis of seizure, cases under Sections 147, 148, 149, 307 I.P.C. against accused Kallu, Shripal, Indrapal, Mahatma and Pusey and under Section 25 Arms Act against accused Shripal and Indrapal were registered. Rajesh, the kidnapped boy, was medically examined on 4.12.1997 at the Community Health Centre, Soron at 2.45 p.m. and was handed over to his father Chandra Pal. After completing the investigation, charge sheets under Sections 364A and 307 I.P.C. against the accused Shripal, Indrapal, Mahatma, Awadhesh, Kallu and Pusey, under Sections 147, 148, 149, 307 I.P.C. against accused Kallu, Shripal, Indrapal, Mahatma and Pusey and under Section 25 Arms Act against the accused Shripal and Indrapal, were submitted. Concerned Magistrate took the cognizance. The cases being exclusively triable by Sessions Court, were committed to the Court of Sessions.

5. On 23.5.1998, charges under Sections 148, 307 I.P.C. read with Section 149 I.P.C. were framed against accused Kallu, Shripal, Indrapal and Mahatma in S.T. No. 193 of 1998. On the said date, charge under Section 25 Arms Act was also framed against accused Indrapal and Shripal in the said S.T.. On 18.8.1999, charges under Sections 364A and 307 I.P.C. read with Section 149 I.P.C. were framed against accused Shripal, Indrapal, Mahatma, Awadhesh, Pusey and Kallu in S.S.T. No. 25 of 1998. On 4.12.1998 in S.T. No. 676 of 1998 against the accused Pusey, charges under Sections 148, 307 I.P.C. read with Section 149 I.P.C. were framed.

6. All the six accused persons appeared before the trial court. They denied the charges and claimed their trial.

7. It transpires from the record that accused persons charged in this case were tried in different sessions trials, which were subsequently amalgamated. Accused Shripal, Indrapal, Mahatma, Kallu and Pusey were tried in S.S.T. No. 25 of 1998, accused Kallu, Shripal, Indrapal and Mahatma were tried in Sessions Trial No. 193 of 1998 and accused Pusey was tried in Sessions Trial No. 676 of 1998. It also transpires from the record that earlier evidence of separate Sessions Trial was recorded separately, particularly, in Sessions Trial Nos. 25 of 1998 and 193 of 1998 and that is why the exhibits marked over the documents in separate sessions trials when taken together make a confusing situation and accordingly Exhibit Numbers marked over the documents are somewhere overlapping, but the learned trial court has made a systematic assessment of the evidence on record and this Court is also apprised of this fact.

8. Trial proceeded and to bring home the charges against the accused persons, prosecution has examined in all eight witnesses, who are as follows:

1	Jabar Singh	PW-1 (injured) (in S.S.T. No. 25/1998)
2	Chandra Pal	PW-2 (informant) (in S.S.T. No. 25/1998)

4	Dr. Awadhesh Kumar	PW-4 (witness of injury report) (in S.S.T. No. 25/1998)
5	Indra Pal Singh Solanki	PW-5 (Investigating Officer) (in S.S.T. No. 25/1998)

11. Appellants in their defence have examined DW-1 Ram Prakash and DW-2 Saudan Singh.

12. During trial, accused Awadhesh died and trial against him was abated.

13. PW-1 Jabar Singh is the injured witness of the occurrence. In his examination-in-chief, he has stated that his house is near the house of the informant. It was 12.00 in the night. 5-6 miscreants came to the house of Chandrapal. On the noise, he woke-up. While the miscreants were taking away Rajesh son of Chandrapal, he shouted that he recognized the miscreant, the miscreant immediately shot him which hit on his ear. He further stated that firstly, the villagers carried him at Police Station and thereafter to the hospital. He further stated that he had recognized miscreant Awadhesh, who was the resident of Badanpur but could not recognize the other miscreants. He further states that he fainted as soon as he got shot. After 15-20 days of the incident, his statement was recorded by the police. He further stated that when he regained consciousness after eight days, he told the name of Awadhesh to Chandrapal.

17. PW-5 S.S.I. Indrapal Singh Solanki is the Investigating Officer. He has proved the proceedings of investigation in his examination-in-chief and also proved the site plans (Ext A-6 and Ext. A-7). He has also proved the charge sheet (Ext. A-8).

18. PW-6 Inspector Dharm Singh was posted as S.O. of the police station concerned. He also accompanied the Investigating Officer for the recovery of the kidnapped boy and has proved the manner of the recovery of the kidnapped boy, firing on police by the miscreants, the weapons, live and empty cartridges recovered from the possession of the accused persons, the rope with which the kidnapped boy was tied, the blindfold and the empty cartridges, which the police had fired in defence.

19. PW-7, Head Constable Giridhari Singh, is the scribe of the F.I.R. and has proved the chik F.I.R. and G.D. Rapat No.

4 at 2.45 a.m. as Ext. A-18 and Ext. A-9, respectively.

20. PW-8, Sub-Inspector Shitla Prasad, the Investigating Officer of crime no. 354 of 1997 under Section 147, 148, 149, 307 of I.P.C. P.S. Soron and crime nos. 355 of 1997 and 356 of 1997, which was handed over to him on 4.12.1997. He has proved the investigation proceeding, the site plan (Ext. A-10) and charge sheets (Ext. A-11 and Ext. A-17). He has also proved the permission letters of the District Magistrate to initiate prosecution under Section 25 Arms Act against accused Shripal and Indrapal as Ext. A-15 and Ext. A-16, respectively. He has also proved the chik F.I.R. (Ext. A-18).

21. DW-1, Ram Prakash @ Prakash, has stated in his deposition that Chandrapal is his uncle and Rajesh, the abductee, is his brother. Upon hearing the noise, he had gone to the house of Chandrapal. He has further stated that the miscreants had not covered their faces. He knew the accused persons Indrapal, Kallu, Shripal, Pusey, Mahatma and Awadhesh before the incident. They had come to his village shop to take ration. They had not kidnapped Rajesh. Awadhesh had not fired upon Jabar Singh. He had also gone to police station alongwith other villagers. Since the miscreants could not be recognized, the F.I.R. was lodged against unknown persons. He further stated that there was strong partibandi in his village. He further stated that neither the kidnapped boy was recovered before him nor there was any firing between the police party and the miscreants. No weapon was recovered before him from the possession of accused Indrapal and Shripal. He had seen the miscreants carrying Rajesh alongwith them.

22. DW-2 Saudan Singh, has stated that on the day of incident at about 11.00-12.00 p.m. the buffalo of his uncle Chandrapal (informant) was calving. The gas lantern was en-lighting due to calving of buffalo. His house is in front of the house of Chandrapal (informant). Rajesh was kidnapped by unknown miscreants. When the miscreants came, their faces were uncovered. He, Jabar Singh and Chandrapal could not recognize them. He had also gone to police station for lodging F.I.R. but as the miscreants could not be recognized, the F.I.R. was lodged against unknown persons. He was not interrogated by the police about the incident.

23. On the basis of aforesaid evidence, learned trial court came to the conclusion that the prosecution has succeeded to establish the guilt against the accused persons on the basis of cogent, consistent and reliable evidence and charges against accused were proved beyond reasonable doubt and accordingly conviction order was passed.

24. Heard Shri Noor Mohammad, learned counsel for the appellants in both the appeals and Shri Amit Sinha, learned AGA and Ms. Mayuri Mehrotra, learned State Counsel.

25. Learned counsel for the appellants has assailed the impugned judgment and order on various grounds. It has been argued that the accused persons are not named in the F.I.R. and F.I.R. was lodged against unknown persons whereas the evidence reveals that the accused persons were identified at the place of occurrence at the time of kidnapping. It is also pointed out that the kidnapping of the son of the informant was not done for any ransom and, hence, the case of the prosecution does not fall within the ambit of Section 364A I.P.C. It is further submitted that the evidence of witnesses of fact is contradictory to each other. In the so called police firing case, all the accused persons have been acquitted and it is found by the trial court that the alleged occurrence of police firing was false and since the kidnapped boy is said to be recovered in the incident of the aforesaid police firing case, the story of which has been falsified by the witnesses, the alleged recovery of the kidnapped boy from the possession of the present appellants is also proved to be a false story. It is next contended that due to previous animosity, the appellants have been falsely implicated in this case and on some other points also it has been submitted that the appellants deserve to be acquitted of the charges and the appeals deserve to be allowed.

26. Per contra, learned AGA, vehemently opposing the appeals has stated that the kidnapping of the son of the informant was made for ransom. The factum of kidnapping has been proved by cogent and reliable evidence of the kidnapped boy himself, which is fully corroborated by the evidence of his father and village witness Jabar Singh. The injury report of the injured Jabar Singh affirms the fact that during the commission of the offence of kidnapping, the injured Jabar Singh was shot fired by the appellants. The evidence also reveals that ransom letter was received by the informant, which was sent by the appellants and the same was handed over to the Investigating Officer. Apart from this, on the basis of several other grounds, the present appeals have been assailed by the learned State Counsel and dismissal of the appeals is prayed for.

27. To proceed with the present matter, it will be desirable to have a glance upon the provisions of Section 364A I.P.C., which are as follows:

"364 A. Kidnapping for ransom, etc.-- Whoever kidnaps or abducts any person or keeps a person in detention after such kidnapping or abduction and threatens to cause death or hurt to such person, or by his conduct gives rise to a reasonable apprehension that such person may be put to death or hurt, or causes hurt or death to such person in order to compel the Government or any foreign State or international inter-governmental organisation or any other person to do or abstain from doing any act or to pay a ransom, shall be punishable with death, or imprisonment for life, and shall also be liable to fine."

28. The Hon'ble Apex Court in Suman Sood alias Kamal Jeet Kaur vs. State of Rajasthan read with Daya Singh Lahoriya alias Rajeev Sudan vs. State of Rajasthan, (2007) 5 SCC 634 has laid down certain requirements for the application of Section 364A I.P.C. and it has been so held by the Hon'ble Apex Court :

"57. Before above section is attracted and a person is convicted, the prosecution must prove the following ingredients:

(1) the accused must have kidnapped, abducted or detained any person;

(2) He must have kept such person under custody or detention; and

(3) Kidnapping, abduction or detention must have been for ransom."

29. The first and foremost fact to be ascertained in the case in hand is whether the minor son of the informant was kidnapped by the present appellants and firearm injury was caused to injured Jabar Singh during the commission of crime of kidnapping.

30. A perusal of the F.I.R. (Ext. ka-1) proved by the informant PW-2 goes to show that at the time of occurrence, 6-7 accused persons took away Rajesh Kumar, the son of the informant and when on their shrieks their neighbours also came over there and tried to rescue the boy, the accused persons fled away with the boy firing by their guns and the gun shot injury also inflicted upon Jabar Singh and he sustained injury. The said F.I.R. was written in the hand writing of PW-7, the scribe of the F.I.R., who has proved his hand writing and signature over it and also the registration G.D. as Ext. ka-9.

31. In his cross-examination, PW-1 further states that accused persons Awadhesh, Indrapal and Mahatma are the native of his own village, who are acquainted with him and further he states that the accused persons were very well identified by him in the light of gas lantern. At one place, he says that he did not know the accused persons by name, but later in his deposition, he names the accused persons involved in the incident. Further more, he states that he knew the accused persons by their names and face prior to the incident and none of the accused persons had hidden their face. He fairly admits that he has not named the accused persons in his report, nor disclosed it to the Investigating Officer and further testimony of this witness reflects that he had a fair reason to conceal the name of the accused persons.

32. This witness states that during the commission of the occurrence, fire was made upon Jabar Singh, which inflicted injury over his ear. He further clarified that it was the accused Awadhesh who had shot fire upon Jabar Singh, but he was afraid of the murder of his son, if he disclose the name of Awadhesh Singh, as his son was in the custody of the accused persons. In his cross-examination, he fairly admits that "मैंने बयान में कहा था की अवधेश ने जबर सिंह को फायर मारा था । 5 कदम की दूरी से मारा था । अवधेश का नाम मैंने रिपोर्ट में इसलिए नहीं लिखाया था कि मेरा लड़का फंसा हुआ था । अगर मैं नाम लिखाता तो मेरा लड़का मारा जाता ।"

33. The aforesaid statement of PW-2 is found by us to be capable of explaining the circumstances under which albeit knowing very well the names and addresses of the accused persons, their identity was not disclosed in the F.I.R. by PW-2 and it was lodged against unknown persons. This is also an innocent statement of the poor father, PW-2 that he did not name the accused Awadhesh even to the Investigating Officer or any other person in order to save the life of his young son.

34. PW-1, injured Jabar Singh, has also corroborated this fact that when on shrieks he awoke in the night, he saw that some accused persons were carrying the son of Chandrapal and when he shouted, he was fired upon by one of the accused Awadhesh, a native of his own village and the firearm injury was inflicted upon his ear. He was taken to the police station and thereafter to the hospital. In the cross-examination, he has clearly stated that accused Awadhesh had not hidden his face at the time of occurrence but he did not know the other co-accused persons and eight days after the incident, when he became conscious, he disclosed this fact to the informant Chandrapal.

35. PW-3, Rajesh, is the kidnapped boy and is the key-witness. In his testimony, he has affirmed this fact that at the time of the occurrence, in the night, accused persons Kallu, Shripal, Awadhesh, Mahatma and Indrapal took him from his house with guns and deshi pistols with them and when they were chased by his family members, fire was opened by them. He has also clarified that since the accused person happened to come over his grocery shop, they were known to him prior to the incident. In his cross-examination, he has stated that none of the accused persons had hidden their face, they had come with open face, and during the occurrence, he has also received some injuries in his hand and buttock.

36. The Investigating Officer - PW-5 in S.S.T. No. 25 of 1998 has affirmed this fact that the kidnapped boy Rajesh in his statement had told him that Pusey, Shripal, Indrapal, Awadhesh, Kallu and Mahatma had kidnapped him in the incident. He has corroborated this fact that when the informant came to the police station, he himself was present over there and he had sent the witness Jabar Singh, who was not in a condition to speak, to the hospital. He was informed by them that some unknown persons had kidnapped Rajesh and it was also not disclosed to him that the fire was shot by accused Awadhesh. It is to be mentioned here that the reason for non-disclosure of the names of the accused persons has been discussed in the earlier part of this judgment. The same statement has been made by PW-6 Inspector Dharam Singh that in his presence the F.I.R. was lodged but the names of the accused persons were not disclosed by the informant or witnesses in the police station.

37. The prosecution has produced PW-4 Dr. Awadhesh Kumar to prove the fact that one gunshot injury was inflicted upon the injured Jabar Singh during the commission of offence of kidnapping.

38. PW-4, Dr. Awadhesh Kumar, has stated in his evidence that on 22.11.2003 at 3.20 a.m. he had medically examined injured Jabar Singh of P.S. Soron where he was working as Medical Officer and found following injuries on the injured Jabar Singh :

"(1) Organ damage Rt ear and Fire Arm wound size 10 cm X 4 cm X bone deep on Rt. side of Head about 9 cm. Lateral to Rt. Eye brow. Blackening & Burn present, injury kept U/O advice X ray skull (antero - posterior & lateral views). Pt. Refer to District Hospital Etah for x ray and further management.

(2) Abrasion size 2 cm X 0.5 cm on Lt forehead about 2 cm above Lt. Eyebrow.

Opinion - injury No. (1) caused by any type of fire arm and injury No. (2) caused by friction. Injury No. (1) kept U/O advice x ray skull (antero - posterior & lateral views) Injury no. (2) simple in nature. Duration of all injury - fresh."

PW-4 has proved the injury report as Ext. ka-4. It is important to mention here that the medical examination of injured Jabar Singh has been performed on the basis of "chitthi majrubi" (letter for medical examination) given by the police.

39. Although x-ray report of injured Jabar Singh is available on record wherein a fracture of right temporal bone has been found but the said X-ray report was not proved in evidence.

40. However, it is pertinent to mention here that the firearm injury has been inflicted over the right ear of the injured Jabar Singh and the dimension thereof was 10 cm X 4 cm X bone deep. This injury was 9 cm lateral to the right eyebrow with blackening and burn was also present which means that the injury was inflicted from a close range on a vital part of the body in the forehead area of the injured, which itself speaks that the fire was made with intention to kill the injured, who was trying to rescue the kidnapped boy.

41. The specific plea taken by the appellants in respect of non-proving of the x-ray report and thereby claiming a legal lacuna to put the case of the prosecution within the ambit of Section 307 I.P.C. takes us to the perusal of the provisions of Section 307 I.P.C. as conviction of the appellants has been made under Section 307/149 I.P.C. also for the specific charge of inflicting firearm injury over the injured Jabar Singh with intention to kill him.

42. Section 307 I.P.C. provides as under:

"307. Attempt to murder.-- Whoever does any act with such intention or knowledge, and under such circumstances that, if he by that act caused death, he would be guilty of murder, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to ten years, and shall also be liable to fine; and if hurt is caused to any person by such act, the offender shall be liable either to imprisonment for life, or to such punishment as is hereinbefore mentioned.

Attempts by life convicts - When any person offending under this section is under sentence of imprisonment for life, he may, if hurt is caused, be punished with death."

43. The law settled in the context of Section 307 I.P.C. is that it is not necessary that injury, capable of causing death, should have been inflicted. What is material to attract the provisions of Section 307 is the intention or knowledge with which, all was done, irrespective of its result. The intention and knowledge are the matters of inference from totality of circumstances and cannot be measured merely from the results. In fact the important thing to bear in mind for determining the question whether the offence under Section 307 I.P.C. is made out, is the intention and not the injury, even if it may be simple or minor. Question of intention to kill or knowledge of death is always a question of fact and not of law. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Hari Kishan and State of Haryana vs. Sukhbir Singh, AIR 1988 SC 2127 has held that the intention or knowledge of the accused must be such as is necessary to constitute murder. In State of Madhya Pradesh vs. Harjeet Singh and another, AIR 2019 SC 1120, it was reiterated that Section 307 I.P.C. does not require that injury should be on vital part of the body. Merely causing hurt with intention or knowledge of causing death is sufficient to attract Section 307 I.P.C.

44. Since the blackening and burn was found in the injury of the injured by the doctor, fire might have been made from a close range and the injured PW-1 makes a specific statement on this point that the fire was made by Awadhesh from a distance of 3-4 steps, which elucidates the intention to kill the injured on the part of the appellants.

45. On the basis of evidence on record, we are of the considered view that the learned trial court has made an anxious consideration of the evidence on record and has rightly convicted the appellants under Sections 307/149 I.P.C. It is noteworthy that albeit accused Awadhesh, who is said to be the main assailant to open fire upon injured Jabar Singh, has died but since the offence was committed in prosecution of common object of all the members of unlawful assembly, being the member of unlawful assembly, all the appellants were guilty jointly for the aforesaid offence and on that basis their conviction is legal and proper.

46. The legal position has been clarified in Susanta Das vs. State of Orissa, (2016) 4 SCC 371, wherein it was held that :

"When once, participation of each member of an unlawful assembly of five or more persons is shown, who indulge in an offence as a member of such an unlawful assembly, for the purposes of invoking Section 149, it is not necessary that there must be specific overt act played by each of the member of such an unlawful assembly in the commission of an offence. What is required to be shown is the participation as a member in pursuance of a common object of the assembly or being a member of that assembly, such person knew as to what is likely to be committed in prosecution of any such common object. In the event of the proof of showing of either of the above conduct of a member of an unlawful assembly, the offence, as stipulated in Section 149, will stand proved."

47. After successfully proving its case in respect of kidnapping of the son of the informant and injury caused to the injured Jabar Singh, while trying to rescue the kidnapped boy, the prosecution further claims that the kidnapped boy was recovered from the possession of the appellants.

48. The informant PW-2 and victim/kidnapped boy PW-3 both have proved this fact that the boy was recovered after an encounter between the police and the accused persons. The informant PW-2 states that the Investigating Officer had taken him to the place of recovery and there firing took place between both the sides. His son was recovered from the kuthia. The kidnapped boy PW-3 also states the same fact. The Investigating Officer PW-5 also proves the story of recovery of kidnapped body and states that after police encounter wherein the accused persons opened fire upon the police party which was reciprocated in defence by the police, accused persons Indrapal and Shripal were arrested and rest of the accused persons fled away. The boy was retrieved from the kuthia, whose hands and mouth were roped, arms and cartridges were also retrieved, memo of recovery (Ext. ka-7) was prepared. The rope and cloth used in tiding the boy were also proved as material Ext. ka 1,2 and 3 by PW-5. PW-6 Inspector Dharam Singh, who was accompanying the police at the time of recovery of the boy also states the same story. However, no injury was caused to any of the accused persons or police personnel. Thus, the prosecution has fully proved that the kidnapped boy was recovered from the possession of the accused appellants.

49. Against the cogent and reliable evidence adduced by the prosecution, depositions of DW-1 and DW-2 do not inspire confidence in its entirety because at one place both the DWs make a total denial of the prosecution version whereas at some places, their depositions support the material facts of the prosecution story.

50. We have also noted that in their statements under Section 313 CrPC, the accused persons have not made any specific statement in their defence. They have simply stated that the incriminating evidence and circumstances proved against them are wrong and even the question regarding retrieving the kidnapped boy from their possession and his rescue has been answered only as 'wrong'. We would like to impress upon Shivaji Sahab Rao vs. State of Maharashtra, 1973 SCC (Cri) 1033, wherein it has been observed that:

"The prisoner's attention should be drawn to every inculpatory material so as to enable him to explain it. Where such an omission has occurred it does not ipso facto vitiate the proceedings and prejudice occasioned by such defect must be established by the accused. It is open to the appellate court to call upon the counsel for the accused to show what explanation the accused has as regards the circumstances established against him but not put to him and if the accused is unable to offer the appellate court any plausible or reasonable explanation of such circumstances, the court may assume that no acceptable answer exists and that even if the accused had been questioned at the proper time in the trial court he would not have been able to furnish any good ground to get out of the circumstances on which the trial court had relied for its conviction."

51. In the light of the aforesaid discussions, we find the testimony of DW-1 and DW-2 as unreliable and no benefit thereof can be given to the appellants.

52. Further, the prosecution is under obligation to establish that the demand of ransom was made on the family of the complainant and it is also to be kept in mind that in the absence of there being any communication demanding payment of ransom, case of the prosecution will not be covered under Section 364A I.P.C.

53. In the case in hand, the informant Chandrapal, PW-2, who is the father of the kidnapped boy, deposes in his examination in chief that "लड़के को फिरोती के लिए चिट्ठी आई थी जिसे मैंने S.I. धर्म सिंह को दे दिया था जिसकी फोटो प्रति अभिलेख में शामिल है इस लड़के की वापसी के लिए फिरोती 70000/- सत्तर हजार मांगी गयी थी ये चिट्ठी डाक से आयी थी ।.....फिरोती की चिट्ठी मैंने दरोगा जी को गाँव में दी थी जब दरोगा जी 14 दिन बाद गाँव आये थे ।". Inspector Dharam Singh, PW-6, who was accompanying the Investigating Officer of the case S.S.I. Indrapal Singh Solanki when police surrounded the accused persons in order to recover the kidnapped boy from their possession, states in his evidence that when the police force came to Badanpur in order to enquire into the whereabouts of the accused persons and recovery of the kidnapped boy, Chandrapal, the father of the kidnapped body, met them and showed ransom letter which he had received and handed over to the Investigating Officer of the case S.S.I. Indrapal Singh Solanki. He has proved the photocopy of the ransom letter, sent by inland letter, as Ext. Ka-7.

54. To pay ransom may be taken as "to pay price or demand for ransom", as defined in Black's Law Dictionary, and the "demand" may be taken as "to require or to claim as one's due", "an asking with authority" "claiming" etc. It is also necessary that the demand for ransom must be communicated and claimed or imperative request or asking with authority could only be if the demand is conveyed or communicated. To transit or to convey or to give information or the sharing of knowledge by one with another is communication in broad sense and thus we can say that the "demand" in order to communicate, requires necessarily the information to be conveyed to the person for whom it is meant. It is only receipt of this information that the question to pay a ransom would arise. The said dictum was promulgated by the Delhi High Court in Netra Pal vs. State (National Capital Territory of Delhi), 2001 0 Supreme (Del) 293.

55. In Shaik Ahmed vs. State of Telangana, 2021 0 Supreme (SC) 304, it has been held that the ingredients of Section 364A I.P.C. must be necessarily proved to bring home the charge under the aforesaid provision and the second condition provided in the said Section "threatens to cause death or hurt to such person, or by his conduct gives rise to a reasonable apprehension that such person may be put to death or hurt, or causes hurt or death to such person in order to compel the Government or any foreign State or international inter-governmental organization or any other person to do or abstain from doing any act or to pay a ransom". It has been emphasized that the second condition is also a condition precedent, which requisite is to be satisfied to attract Section 364A I.P.C. and in the aforesaid case since the second condition was not satisfied the conviction and sentence under Section 364A I.P.C. was set aside by the Hon'ble Apex Court and the accused was held guilty only for the offence of kidnapping.

56. For the purpose of ascertaining whether the ingredients of Section 364A I.P.C. are made out or not in the case in hand, the contents of Ext. ka-7 are necessary to be taken into account. It has been mentioned in Ext. ka-7 that the informant will come alone with Rs. 70000/- with him for the release of his son and if he is accompanied by some other persons or the matter is informed to the police, his son will be killed. It is also mentioned that the kidnapped son of the informant is in the custody of the accused persons.

57. At this stage a pertinent plea has been raised by the learned counsel for the appellants that Ext. ka-7, the so called ransom letter has not been properly proved in evidence and as such it cannot be read in evidence. It has been vehemently argued that the alleged ransom letter, which was handed over by the informant to the police, is not on record in original, rather, a photocopy of the same is found on record, which has been wrongly exhibited by the trial court without ascertaining the availability of the original copy of the alleged ransom letter.

58. From the perusal of the examination-in-chief of PW-6, it will be proper to read it in verbatim whatsoever has been stated by him in respect of ransom letter and he states that :

" पत्रावली कागज़ सं0 98/1 मूल अंतर देशीय पत्र की सही छाया प्रति है जिसको चंद्रपाल वादी ने दौरान विवेचना S.S.I. इंद्रपाल सिंह सोलंकी के सामने मुझे दी थी। जिसको देखकर गवाह ने कहा कि यह वही चिट्ठी की छाया प्रति है जिस पर इक्क क-7 डाला गया।"

59. PW-2 in his deposition has stated that the ransom letter was handed over by him to the police after 14 days and it has been sent by post. PW-6 Dharam Singh also states that the letter was handed over by Chandrapal to S.S.I. Indrapal Singh Solanki, the Investigating Officer of the case.

60. In view of that, our attention is drawn towards Section 62 of the Evidence At, 1872, which provides that :

"62. Primary evidence.--

Primary evidence means the document itself produced for the inspection of the Court.

Explanation 1.--Where a document is executed in several parts, each part is primary evidence of the document.

Where a document is executed in counterpart, each counterpart being executed by one or some of the parties only, each counterpart is primary evidence as against the parties executing it.

Explanation 2.-- Where a number of documents are all made by one uniform process, as in the case of printing, lithography, or photography, each is primary evidence of the contents of the rest; but, where they are all copies of a common original, they are not primary evidence of the contents of the original."

61. Section 63 of the Evidence Act deals with secondary evidence.

62. The legal procedure to prove a document is incorporated in Section 64 of the Evidence Act, which formulates that :

"64. Proof of documents by primary evidence.--Documents must be proved by primary evidence except in the cases hereinafter mentioned."

63. Section 65 of the Evidence Act relates to the cases in which secondary evidence relating to the documents may be given and it says that :

"65. Cases in which secondary evidence relating to documents may be given.-- Secondary evidence may be given of the existence, condition, or contents of a document in the following cases:--

(a) when the original is shown or appears to be in the possession or power-- of the person against whom the document is sought to be proved, or of any person out of reach of, or not subject to, the process of the Court, or of any person legally bound to produce it, and when, after the notice mentioned in section 66, such person does not produce it;

(b) when the existence, condition or contents of the original have been proved to be admitted in writing by the person against whom it is proved or by his representative in interest;

(c) when the original has been destroyed or lost, or when the party offering evidence of its contents cannot, for any other reason not arising from his own default or neglect, produce it in reasonable time;

(d) when the original is of such a nature as not to be easily movable;

(e) when the original is a public document within the meaning of section 74;

(f) when the original is a document of which a certified copy is permitted by this Act, or by any other law in force in India to be given in evidence;

(g) when the originals consists of numerous accounts or other documents which cannot conveniently be examined in Court, and the fact to be proved is the general result of the whole collection.

In cases (a), (c) and (d), any secondary evidence of the contents of the document is admissible.

In case (b), the written admission is admissible.

In case (e) or (f), a certified copy of the document, but no other kind of secondary evidence, is admissible.

In case (g), evidence may be given as to the general result of the documents by any person who has examined them, and who is skilled in the examination of such documents."

64. In J. Yashoda vs. K. Shobha Rani, (2007) 5 SCC 730, explaining the rule of best evidence, the Hon'ble Apex Court has observed as under :

"The rule which is the most universal, namely, that the best evidence the nature of the case will admit shall be produced only, means that, so long as the higher or superior evidence is within the possession of a person or may be reached by a person, that person shall give no inferior proof in relation to it. Essentially, secondary evidence is evidence which may be given in the absence of that better evidence which law requires to be given first, when a proper explanation of its absence is given."

65. In H. Siddiqui vs. A. Ramlingam, (2011) 4 SCC 240 it has been so held by the Hon'ble Apex Court that :

"Court is obliged to examine probative value of documents produced in the court or their contents and decide question of admissibility of a document in secondary evidence."

66. From the above, we find that if original copy of any document is available it is the primary evidence and such document must be proved by virtue of Section 64 of the Evidence Act, except in the cases of secondary evidence which are provided in Section 65 of the Evidence Act. In the matter in hand, nowhere it has been explained by the prosecution that as to why the original ransom inland letter could not be produced before the Court. Unless the prosecution shows that the original has been lost, or destroyed or falls in any of the categories mentioned in Section 65 of the Evidence Act, it was not permitted to produce photocopy of the document as secondary evidence. Even PW-5, who proves the photocopy of the ransom letter, does not speak a single word as to where the original was. Thus, on the basis of the aforesaid discussions, we find that a wrong procedure was adopted by the prosecution, to prove the photocopy of the alleged ransom letter without showing its inability to produce the original thereof before the Court and the trial court has also committed an error of law while permitting to exhibit the photocopy of the said ransom letter without ascertaining that for want of original, the photocopy was capable of being permitted to be produced in Court as evidence. Therefore, the said ransom letter (Ext. ka-7) has not been proved in the manner prescribed by law and thus having no legal sanctity is of no use and we cannot permit the trial court to proceed with the case on the basis of photocopy of a document only.

67. In the circumstances of the case in hand, we can take note of the judgment of the Hon'ble Apex Court in Jagmail Singh vs. Karamjit Singh, (2020) 5 SCC 178 wherein it has been observed that :

"Factual foundational evidence must be adduced showing reasons for not furnishing evidence. Mere admission in evidence and making exhibit of a a document not enough as the same has to be proved in accordance with law."

68. In Ram Suresh Singh vs. Prabhat Singh, (2009) 6 SCC 681, it has been formulated by the Hon'ble Supreme Court that :

"Xerox copy / photocopy / facsimile copy in the absence of original is not admission in evidence."

69. Since no communication took place between the accused persons and the informant except through the alleged ransom letter, which is not proved in evidence, there is no evidence on record to show that the victim was anyway threatened for his death or hurt by the accused persons or hurt was actually caused to him in order to compel the informant to pay the ransom. The injuries caused to the victim are abrasions and simple in nature as mentioned in the injury report (Ext. ka-5) and were probably caused by friction as per the opinion of doctor (PW-4). We should remind here that both the hands of the victim were tied with rope, as discovered in the evidence.

70. No evidence is available on the record to show the source of knowledge on the part of the informant or the details in respect of demand of ransom by the accused persons / appellants, as the alleged ransom letter is not proved. Even PW-3, the victim, nowhere states in respect of any threatening given to him by the accused persons that he would be killed or assaulted if ransom is not paid by his father, nor by informant (PW-2).

71. Much thrust was given to the contention that there is absolutely no evidence for ransom and the ingredients of Section 364A of IPC are not attracted and thus, at the best, the appellants can be convicted only under Section 365 IPC and not under Section 364A IPC. This contention has force.

72. Now, the question arises whether the evidence on record satisfies the ingredients of Section 365 of IPC. The provisions of Section 365 of IPC reads as under:

"365. Kidnapping or abducting with intent secretly and wrongfully to confine person.--Whoever kidnaps or abducts any person with intent to cause that person to be secretly and wrongfully confined, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to seven years, and shall also be liable to fine".

73. It is clear from the evidence that victim PW-3 was kidnapped on 21/22.11.1997 and was recovered on 4.12.1997 and as such remained under the custody of the accused appellants for about 14 days under unlawful confinement. The abducted boy has stated that he was rescued by police 14 days after the incident from the house of Pusey after encounter between police and gang of accused persons. The miscreants kept him in the field of sugar cane, thereafter in the field of bajra and then kept in kuthia. They had kept his eyes closed with cloth, and cotton was placed into his ears and hands were also tied. PW-5 also corroborates this fact that when the boy was retrieved inside the kuthia, his hands were tied with rope and mouth was also closed with some cloth and the rope was opened by the police and the said rope and cloth have also been identified by him in the Court. The aforesaid evidence fulfils the essential ingredients of the offence under Section 365 IPC.

74. In Mahesh V State of UP, Criminal Appeal No. 3647 of 2005 decided on 16.08.2016, this Court found that there was no evidence of ransom and the prosecution has failed to establish the essential ingredients of any such demand as required under Section 364A of IPC. On the other hand, the offence alleged and proved against the appellants, squarely falls within the ambit and purview of Section 365 of IPC. Accordingly, the conviction of appellants u/s 364A of IPC was altered and modified to one under Section 365 of IPC only.

75. Similarly, in the case of Ashwani Dubey V State of UP, Criminal Appeal No. 7740 of 2006 decided on 10.08.2016, on the facts of similar nature, this Court taking similar view, has altered the conviction from Section 364A of IPC to one u/s 365 of IPC. In the case in hand, evidence on record reveals that the intention of the appellants for kidnapping the son of the informant was to keep him secretly and under wrongful confinement. It is thus clear that the ingredient of ransom is not proved and the evidence establishes the ingredients of Section 365 of IPC, and therefore, the conviction can be altered from Section 364A of IPC to u/s 365 of IPC.

76. Considering the entire facts, it is clear that the evidence on record fulfills all the ingredients of Section 365 of IPC. In view of the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case, there does not appear any hurdle in alteration of conviction of the appellants from Section 364A of IPC to u/s 365 of IPC. A perusal of the provisions of Sections 364A and 365 of IPC indicates that the mischief punishable u/s 365 IPC, is a less aggravated form of the offence punishable u/s 364A IPC and the offence punishable under Section 365 of IPC is of same nature and specific and it prescribes less punishment than that of Section 364A of IPC. In view of all these facts and evidence on record, the alteration of conviction of the appellants from Section 364A of IPC to Section 365 of IPC would not result into any prejudice to the accused-appellants. Learned counsel for the accused-appellants could also not dispute the above stated position of law. The evidence on record clearly makes out a case of kidnapping as punishable u/s 365 of IPC. Accordingly, we are of the firm opinion that the conviction of appellants recorded by the trial court under Section 364A of IPC should be altered and modified to one under Section 365 of IPC only, wherein the offence is punishable with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to seven years, coupled with fine.

77. In view of the above, the conviction and sentence under Section 364A of IPC awarded by the trial court vide impugned judgment and order is set aside and modified to the extent that the appellants are convicted under Section 365 of IPC and are sentenced to the imprisonment of seven years with a fine of Rs. 2,000/-, each, however, the conviction and sentence awarded by the trial court for the offence under Section 307/149 IPC vide impugned judgment and order is affirmed. The appellants Indrapal and Shripal are said to be in jail since last about 14 years and thus, they have already spent more than seven years of incarceration. The sentences passed in all the offences were to run concurrently, therefore, the total period of imprisonment has already been undergone by the appellants Indrapal and Shripal. We maintain the fine amount and default sentence. The default sentence will start after seven years, which would also now over in respect of appellants Indrapal and Shripal. Appellants Indrapal and Shripal be released forthwith, if they are not wanted in connection with any other case. However, appellants Kallu and Mahatma are on bail, their bail bonds are cancelled and sureties are discharged. The concerned Court is directed to take the appellants Kallu and Mahatma into custody forthwith and send them to jail to serve-out the remaining sentence.

78. Criminal Appeals are partly allowed in above terms.

79. Registry is directed to transmit the record to the Court concerned for necessary compliance.

- Order of discharge would be warranted only in those cases where court was satisfied that there are no chances of conviction - Sufficient ground to frame charge and has rightly rejected discharge application. (Para 3, 7, 8)

Criminal Revision dismissed. (E-13)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Syed Aftab Husain Rizvi, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the revisionist, learned AGA for the State and perused the record.

2. This criminal revision is directed against the order dated 08.07.2022 passed by Sessions Judge, Varanasi in S.T. No.268 of 2022 (State vs. Brijesh and another) crime no.480 of 2015 under section 147, 148, 149, 308, 323, 504, 506 IPC, P.S. Cantt. District Varanasi.

3. The FIR of this case was lodged by opposite party no.2 alleging therein that today on 19.08.2015 at about 10:00 am, the accused Brijesh Kumar, Guddu, Rakesh Kumar came at the door of the revisionists and started to abuse. Meanwhile, Brijesh and other family members Ramji, Randheer Kumar and Anil Kumar and Arun Kumar also came at the door of the complainant and started to assault the complainant and his brother Ravi Kumar with iron rod, bricks danda and butt of country made pistol causing serious head injury to Ravi Kumar. The complainant also suffered injuries on his head, back and waist and became unconscious on the spot. The accused-persons ran away presuming that the complainant and his brother are dead. The injured were medically examined and after investigation, charge-sheet was submitted against all the named accused persons. The accused-revisinist moved an application U/s 227 Cr.P.C. alleging therein that the injured have not suffered any grievous injury. The doctor who has conducted the medical examination has not stated that injuries of the injured are grievous in nature which may cause death. Doctor has given the opinion that injuries are simple in nature. No supplementary report has been prepared on the basis of X-Ray report and C.T. Scan. Hence no offence U/s 308 is made out. The learned trial court by the impugned order, after hearing both the parties has rejected the aforesaid application. Aggrieved with it, this revision has been filed.

4. Learned counsel for the revisionists mainly contended that all the injuries are simple in nature. No supplementary report on the basis of X-Ray and C.T. Scan is prepared. The doctor has also stated that injuries are simple in nature. Hence no offence U/s 308 IPC is made out. It is also contended that while considering the bail application, the sessions court has observed that nature of the injuries is not serious. The medical report never support to frame the charge U/s 308 IPC. The learned court below has passed the impugned order without applying judicial mind, without appreciating the fact and circumstances of the case and without taking into consideration the evidence available on record. The order passed by learned court below is based on conjunctures and surmises and bad in the eye of law. The court below has misinterpreted section 308 IPC. It has totally ignored the medical report which is valuable evidence.

5. Learned AGA opposing the prayer, submitted that the assault has been made with the intention of causing death. Two persons have received injuries. There is no illegality in the impugned summoning order.

6. Section 308 IPC provides as follows:

"Whoever does any act with such intention or knowledge and under such circumstances that, if he by that act caused death, he would be guilty of culpable homicide not amounting to murder, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to three years, or with fine, or with both; and, if hurt is caused to any person by such act, shall be punishable with imprisonment of either description for term which may extend to seven years, or with fine, or with both."

7. Section 308 IPC consists of two parts. The first is related to no injury cases while the second part deals where hurt is caused. So what is the material is intention or knowledge and the circumstances in which the act has been done and not the injuries. The intention or knowledge and the circumstances under which the act has been done is to be gathered from the allegations of the FIR, the evidence and other material and all other attending circumstances of the case. There are allegations in the FIR that accused persons were armed with iron rod, danda and country made pistol. They assaulted the injured with lathi, danda and butt of country made pistol causing head injury. It is also settled that at the stage of framing charge the test of prima-facie case has to be applied. If there is ground for presuming that accused has committed the offence, a court can justifiably say that a prima-facie case against him exists and framing of charge is justified. If on the basis of materials on record, the courts comes to the conclusion that commission of offence is a probable case for framing charge exist. An order of discharge would be warranted only in those cases where the court is satisfied that there are no chances of conviction and the trial court would be an exercise in futility.

8. The learned trial court has considered the entire facts, evidence and other material available on record and after analyzing it has come to the conclusion that there is sufficient ground to frame charge U/s 147, 148, 149, 323, 308, 504 & 506 IPC and thus has rejected the discharge application. So there is no illegality in the impugned summoning order.

9. Accordingly, the revision is devoid of merits and is hereby dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajai Kumar Srivastava-I, J.)

1. Heard Sri A.K. Rastogi, learned counsel for the revisionist and Sri Anurag Verma, learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. The instant criminal revision has been has been filed by the present revisionist against order dated 24.02.2023, passed by learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Sitapur, arising out of Case Crime No.0389/2022, under Section 306 I.P.C., Police Station Maanpur, District Sitapur, whereby learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Sitapur summoned the present revisionist.

3. Brief facts of the instant case are that a first information report bearing Case Crime No.0389/2022 came to be lodged against six named accused persons including the present revisionist by the first informant, Vijay stating therein that his sister was married to accused Pinku @ Parmanand about 15 years ago and from their wedlock five children were born. It is also mentioned in the first information report that the sister of the first informant was being harassed continuously by all six named accused persons including the present revisionist. Due to harassment meted out by the named accused persons including the present revisionist, the sister of the first informant, Silpy is stated to have committed suicide on 29.11.2022 by hanging herself. Upon conclusion of investigation, a police report in the form of charge sheet came to be submitted against accused, Pinku @ Parmanand/husband of the deceased and Shiv Bhagwan only. The statements of first informant, Vijay, mother of the deceased, Smt. Kiran and another brother of deceased, Atul were recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C., wherein they have stated that the accused, Shiv Bhagwan and present revisionist also harassed the victim/deceased and she was also assaulted by Shiv Bhagwan and the present revisionist. Thereafter, on the basis of aforesaid statements, vide impugned order dated 24.02.2023, learned C.J.M. Sitapur has took cognizance for the offence under Section 306 I.P.C. and summoned the present revisionist also including the other accused Pinku @ Parmanand and Shiv Bhagwan.

4. Learned counsel for the revisionist has submitted that the learned trial Court has committed error in issuing process to the present revisionist against whom charge sheet was not submitted before learned trial Court, the impugned order is therefore, patently illegal. His further submission is that if the learned C.J.M. is found to be entitled to issue process at this stage under Section 190 Cr.P.C. against any person against whom no charge sheet has been filed, then in such eventuality, the provision contained under Section 319 Cr.P.C. would be rendered nugatory.

5. He has also submitted that as the learned Magistrate is not empowered to issue process to any person other than the person against whom a charge sheet has been laid by the police, therefore, such order taking cognizance of the matter and issuing process is hit by the provision contained in Section 461 Cr.P.C which declares such proceeding, an irregular proceeding.

6. To buttress his aforesaid submissions, learned counsel for the revisionist has placed reliance upon the judgments rendered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Prasad Shrikanht Purohit vs. State of Maharashtra and Bhagwant Singh vs. Commissioner of Police.

7. Per contra, learned A.G.A. has opposed the prayer by submitting that the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate has unfettered power to issue summon against any such person who has not been mentioned as an accused in the charge sheet or arraigned in the first information report. To lend support to his aforesaid submission, he has placed reliance on the judgment passed by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Nahar Singh v. State of U.P.

8. Having regard to the aforesaid overall facts and circumstances of this case and upon perusal of the records, it transpires that a first information report bearing Case Crime No.0389/2022 came to be lodged against six named accused persons including the present revisionist by the first informant, Vijay. Upon conclusion of investigation, no charge sheet was submitted against the present revisionist. The statements of first informant, Vijay, mother of the deceased, Smt. Kiran and another brother of deceased, Atul were recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C., wherein they have stated that the accused, Shiv Bhagwan and present revisionist also harassed the victim/deceased and she was also assaulted by Shiv Bhagwan and the present revisionist. Thereafter, on the basis of aforesaid statements, vide impugned order dated 24.02.2023, learned C.J.M. Sitapur has taken cognizance for the offence under Section 306 I.P.C. and summoned the present revisionist also including the other accused Pinku @ Parmanand and Shiv Bhagwan.

9. Similar issue came to be considered by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Nahar Singh (supra) wherein it has been held that a Magistrate has power under Section 190 Cr.P.C. to issue summons against such person who has not been mentioned as an accused in the charge sheet or arraigned in the first information report.

10. Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Nahar Singh (Supra) in para no.17 has held as under :-

"17. As regards scope of jurisdiction of the Magistrate in a situation of this nature, it was held by the Constitution Bench in Dharam Pal [Dharam Pal v. State of Haryana, (2014) 3 SCC 306 : (2014) 2 SCC (Cri) 159] : (SCC p. 319, paras 35-36)

"35. In our view, the Magistrate has a role to play while committing the case to the Court of Session upon taking cognizance on the police report submitted before him under Section 173(2)CrPC. In the event the Magistrate disagrees with the police report, he has two choices. He may act on the basis of a protest petition that may be filed, or he may, while disagreeing with the police report, issue process and summon the accused. Thereafter, if on being satisfied that a case had been made out to proceed against the persons named in Column 2 of the report, proceed to try the said persons or if he was satisfied that a case had been made out which was triable by the Court of Session, he may commit the case to the Court of Session to proceed further in the matter.

36. This brings us to the third question as to the procedure to be followed by the Magistrate if he was satisfied that a prima facie case had been made out to go to trial despite the final report submitted by the police. In such an event, if the Magistrate decided to proceed against the persons accused, he would have to proceed on the basis of the police report itself and either inquire into the matter or commit it to the Court of Session if the same was found to be triable by the Sessions Court."

11. A Constitution Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Dharam Pal vs. State of Haryana had affirmed its earlier view expressed in a judgment rendered in Kishun Singh v. State of Bihar which dealt with same issue wherein the Court had opined that it is the duty of Magistrate while taking cognizance of an offence, to go to the root of the matter by identifying the offender. Once the Court has done so, it is the duty of the Court to take action against such persons irrespective of the person being mentioned in any police report.

12. Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Hardeep Singh v. State of Punjab in para no.111 has also held as under :-

“111. Even the Constitution Bench in Dharam Pal [Dharam Pal v. State of Haryana, (2014) 3 SCC 306 : (2014) 2 SCC (Cri) 159] has held that the Sessions Court can also exercise its original jurisdiction and summon a person as an accused in case his name appears in Column 2 of the charge-sheet, once the case had been committed to it. It means that a person whose name does not appear even in the FIR or in the charge-sheet or whose name appears in the FIR and not in the main part of the charge-sheet but in Column 2 and has not been summoned as an accused in exercise of the powers under Section 193CrPC can still be summoned by the court, provided the court is satisfied that the conditions provided in the said statutory provisions stand fulfilled.”

13. Adverting to the facts of this case, it transpires that a first information report bearing Case Crime No.0389/2022 came to be lodged against six named accused persons including the present revisionist by the first informant, Vijay. Upon conclusion of investigation, no charge sheet was submitted against the present revisionist. The statements of first informant, Vijay, mother of the deceased, Smt. Kiran and another brother of deceased, Atul were recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C., wherein they have stated that the accused, Shiv Bhagwan and present revisionist also harassed the victim/deceased and she was also assaulted by Shiv Bhagwan and the present revisionist. Thereafter, on the basis of aforesaid statements, vide impugned order dated 24.02.2023, learned C.J.M. Sitapur has taken cognizance for the offence under Section 306 I.P.C. and summoned the present revisionist also including the other accused Pinku @ Parmanand and Shiv Bhagwan, which cannot be said to be illegal in view of the law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Nahar Singh (supra), Dharam Pal (supra), Kishun Singh (supra).

14. Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Prasad Shrikanth Purohit (supra) in para no.77 has held as under :-

"The said statement of law reinforces the legal position that cognizance is always of the offence and not the offender and once the Magistrate applies his judicial mind with reference to the commission of an offence the cognizance is taken at that very moment."

15. In the case of Bhagwant Singh (supra) Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that when the report forwarded by the officer-in-charge of a police station to the Magistrate under sub-section 2(i) of Section 173 comes up for consideration by the Magistrate, one of two different situations may arise. The report may conclude that an offence appears to have been committed by a particular person or persons and in such a case, the Magistrate may do one of three things, (1) he may accept the report and take cognizance of the offence and issue process or (2) he may disagree with the report and drop the proceeding or (3) he may direct further investigation under sub-section (3) of Section 156 and require the police to make a further report. The report may on the other hand state that, in the opinion of the police, no offence appears to have been committed and where such a report has been made, the Magistrate again has an option to adopt one of three courses: (1) he may accept the report and drop the proceeding or (2) he may disagree with the report and taking the view that there is sufficient ground for proceeding further, take cognizance of the offence and issue process or (3) he may direct further investigation to be made by the police under sub-section (3) of Section 156.

16. There cannot be any quarrel with the aforesaid authoritative exposition of law by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Prasad Shrikanth Purohit (supra) and Bhagwant Singh (supra), however, in the humble opinion of this Court the same are distinguishable on facts of this case.

17. In view of the aforesaid discussion, this Court is of the considered opinion that there is no illegality or irregularity in the impugned order dated 24.02.2023 warranting interference by this Court. The instant criminal revision lacks merit and the same deserves to be dismissed.

18. Accordingly, the instant criminal revision is dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shree Prakash Singh, J.)

1. On 04.04.2023, this Court observed that if, the counsel for the opposite party will not remain present on the next date, the Court will proceed in absence of the opposite party.

2. Case called out. None present on behalf of the opposite party.

3. This Court is proceeding to hear the matter in the aforesaid circumstances.

4. Heard Sri Sanjay Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for the revisionist, Sri Anirudh Kumar Singh, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the material placed on record.

5. By means of the instant revision, the prayer has been made to allow the revision with cost after summoning the lower court record and set aside the impugned judgment and order dated 26.09.2015 passed by the trial court i.e. Principal Judge, Family Court, Ambedkar Nagar in Case no. 272 of 2013 Smt Tarawati Vs Dr Arun Kumar Singhal.

6. Learned counsel appearing for the revisionist submits that the opposite party filed an application under section 125 of Cr.P.C. on 18.01.2011, against the revisionist before the Judicial Magistrate, Ambedkar Nagar while alleging herself to be the widow of late Parshuram son of Ram Naresh, resident of Village Bela Persa, PS-Baskhari, Pargana Birhal, District-Ambedkar Nagar and also having a son with the wedlock of her and late Parshuram. He submits that the opposite party has shown herself to be married with the present revisionist on 17.07.2007, at her village Baskhari and this fact is also evident from the statement of the opposite party including the cross examination that she allegedly performed marriage with the present revisionist on 17.07.2007.

7. He added that the date of death of the husband of opposite party has been shown as on 29.09.2006, which is the wrong date given by the opposite party as, the actual date of death of late Parshuram is 29.09.2009 which transpires from Parivar Register which is annexed as Annexure No. 1 with the supplementary affidavit dated 04.04.2023.

8. Further submission is that since the date of death of the husband of opposite party is 29.09.2009, therefore, the marriage with the present revisionist would be ab-initio void and if, once it becomes void, the application under section 125 is not maintainable on behest of the opposite party. He added that the additional evidence has been supplied through the supplementary affidavit before this Court wherein the copy of the death certificate has also been appended. He submits that taking the additional evidence, either this Court decide the matter or the same may be remitted back to the trial court to decide a fresh.

9. Adding his arguments he submits that in fact due to recklessness on the part of the counsel for the revisionist, the death certificate could not be produced before the trial court whereas, the same was in existence and non- submissions of the death certificate has hampered the fate of the case and the revisionist has been put into trouble.

10. Further submitted that the additional evidence in revision can very well be taken if the court is of the satisfaction that the same can change the nature of the order. In support of his contention, he has placed reliance on the provision of section 401(1) of Cr.P.C.

11. Section 401(1) of Cr.P.C. is quoted here in under:-

(1) In the case of any proceeding the record of which has been called for by itself or Which otherwise comes to its knowledge, the High Court may, in its discretion, exercise any of the powers conferred on a Court of Appeal by sections 386, 389, 390 and 391 or on a Court of Session by section 307 and, when the Judges composing the Court of revision are equally divided in opinion, the case shall be disposed of in the manner provided by section 392.

12. Next submission is that likewise powers under section 401 of Cr.P.C., the analogous power has been given under section 399 (1) of Cr.P.C. thus, the power for taking additional evidence is also vest with the trial court.

13. In support of his contention, he has also placed reliance on a judgment reported in MANU/UP/0308/1990 Vinod Kumar v. Mohrawati and has referred the paragraph 4 of the aforesaid judgment.

14. Paragraph 4 of the judgment is quoted herein under:-

4. Section 399(1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure runs as follows:

"399. Sessions Judge's powers of revision (1) In the case of any proceeding the record of which has been called for by himself, the Sessions Judge may exercise all or any of the powers which may be exercised by the High Court under Sub-section (1) of Section 401.

(2) and (3)....."

This section deals with the power of the Sessions Judge in revision and clearly provides that powers of Sessions Court in revision may be the same as High Court and the Sessions Court can exercise the same powers as the High Court while disposing of the revision. Section 401(1) Cr.P.C. defines the revisional powers of High Court and it runs as under:-

"401. High Court's powers of revision --

(1) In the case of any proceeAppeal by Sections 386, 389, 390 and 391 or on a Court of Session by Section 307 and, when the Judges composing the Court of revision are equally divided in opinion, the case shall be disposed of in the manner provided by Section 392.

(2) to (5)....."

This section provides that High Court may exercise any power conferred on a court of appeal by Sections 386, 389, 390 and 391, Cr. P.C. Section 391, Cr. P.C. provides that the appellate court may take further evidence if the appellate court thinks that additional evidence is necessary for the proper adjudication of the case. The appellate court further should record its reasons before permitting any party to adduce additional evidence. From the perusal of the above mentioned provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure it is settled that the Court of Session has similar power as of High Court in revision and as High Court is authorised to take additional evidence in revision, therefore, the Sessions Court has also jurisdiction to take additional evidence in a revision. In the case of Darshan Lal v. Indra Kumar Mehta, reported in 1980 All Cri C 146, this Court took a view:-

"The Sessions Judge could examine that question in view of the powers conferred on him by Sub-section (1) of Section 397 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Further, under Sub-section (1) of Section 399 a Sessions Judge, while dealing with a revision, can exercise all or any of the powers which may be exercised by the High Court under Sub-section (1) of Section 401. By this it would follow that if the High Court, while dealing with a revision can enhance the sentence, the Sessions Judge can ding the record of which has been called for by itself or which otherwise comes to its knowledge, the High Court may, in its discretion, exercise any of the powers conferred on a Court of Appeal by Sections 386, 389, 390 and 391 or on a Court of Session by Section 307 and, when the Judges composing the Court of revision are equally divided in opinion, the case shall be disposed of in the manner provided by Section 392.

(2) to (5)....."

This section provides that High Court may exercise any power conferred on a court of appeal by Sections 386, 389, 390 and 391, Cr. P.C. Section 391, Cr. P.C. provides that the appellate court may take further evidence if the appellate court thinks that additional evidence is necessary for the proper adjudication of the case. The appellate court further should record its reasons before permitting any party to adduce additional evidence. From the perusal of the above mentioned provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure it is settled that the Court of Session has similar power as of High Court in revision and as High Court is authorised to take additional evidence in revision, therefore, the Sessions Court has also jurisdiction to take additional evidence in a revision. In the case of Darshan Lal v. Indra Kumar Mehta, reported in 1980 All Cri C 146, this Court took a view:--

"The Sessions Judge could examine that question in view of the powers conferred on him by Sub-section (1) of Section 397 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Further, under Sub-section (1) of Section 399 a Sessions Judge, while dealing with a revision, can exercise all or any of the powers which may be exercised by the High Court under Sub-section (1) of Section 401. By this it would follow that if the High Court, while dealing with a revision can enhance the sentence, the Sessions Judge can also do it. According to Sub-section (1) of Section 401 the High Court, while dealing with a revision, can exercise any of the powers conferred on an appellate court, by Section 386, of the Code. According to Clause (c) of Section 386 of the Code, the appellate court can, in an appeal for enhancement of sentence, alter the nature or the extent of the sentence so as to enhance or reduce the same. In view of this provision contained in Section 386, Cr. P.C. it should be held that High Court, while dealing with a revision, can enhance the sentence.

"Since the High Court can enhance the sentence while dealing with revision, the Sessions Judge can also do so."

No doubt in the case of Darshan Lal (supra) the question involved was whether Sessions Court has power to enhance the sentence or not but the Bench considered the provisions of Sections 397 and 401, Cr. P.C. and thereafter held that in revision, Sessions Court can exercise any of the powers which may be exercised by the High Court under Sub-section (1) of Section 401, Cr. P.C. In view of the decision of Darshan Lal by a Bench of this Court in my opinion the case of Smt. Zaitoon v. State of U.P. 1987 All WC 640 is not a-good law. In another case of Vedpal Singh v. State reported in 1982 All Cri C

268 : (1982 Cri LJ Note 119) a single Judge of this Court took a view that the Sessions Judge can exercise power analogous to that of High Court while exercising revisional jurisdiction. The Sessions Judge could, therefore, examine the question of taking of additional evidence in view of the powers conferred on him by Sub-section (1) of Section 397, Cr. P.C. because the powers of Sessions Judge are analogous to those of the High Court defined under Sub-section (1) of Section 401, Cr. P.C. In view of these facts I am of the opinion that the Sessions Judge has jurisdiction to take additional evidence in revision. In the instant case the Sessions Judge while disposing of the application took the view that he has no jurisdiction to entertain the application for permission to adduce additional evidence in revision and, therefore, in my opinion, the order dated 7-10-1989 passed on the application moved by the applicant for permission to adduce additional evidence is not a correct order and it is, therefore, liable to be set aside".

15. Relying on the aforesaid ratio, he added that the coordinate Bench of this Court has held that the Session Judge can take the additional evidence in view of the powers conferred on him under sub-section (1) of section 397 of Cr.P.C. as the power under sub-section (1) of section 401 of Cr.P.C. is analogous.

16. He has further placed reliance on judgment reported in MANU/UP/3033/2014 and has also placed reliance on paragraphs six and seven of the aforesaid judgment and the same is quoted herein under:-

"6. This Court in the case of Vinod Kumar Versus Mohrawai reported in 1990 Criminal Law Journal 2068

(Lucknow Bench) has held that Court of Sessions has similar power as of High Court in revision and as High Court is authorised to take additional evidence in revision, therefore, the Sessions Court has also jurisdiction to take additional evidence.

7. Since powers conferred to the Sessions Judge are analogous to the powers of the High Court and there is provision under Sections 391 and 401 Cr.P.C. that additional evidence in criminal revision may be taken, therefore, after analysing the impugned order with the facts of the present case and also the case law cited here- in-above, this Court without going to this fact that applicant has not availed any other forum, this Court finds it to be a fit case for exercise of its extra ordinary powers under Section 482 Cr.P.C. Since impugned order is in clear violation of the legal provision and if it sustained, there would be a miscarriage of justice."

17. Placing reliance on the aforesaid judgments, he added that the case of the present revisionist is squarely covered with ratio of the judgment aforesaid and since the date of death of the husband of the opposite party has wrongly been intimated to the revisional court and taking the same as true, the judgment and order has been passed but, other wise the date of death of the husband is 29.09.2009 and if that is taken to be true, the marriage with the present revisionist would be void and thus, the application under section 125 of Cr.P.C. would not be maintainable at the first hand. He submits that this fact must change the nature of the judgment and therefore, the additional evidence is required to be taken and to be considered and the matter may be decided afresh. He thus, submits that the order impugned passed by the trial court

i.e. Principal Judge, Family Court, Ambedkar Nagar, dated 26.09.2015, in Case no. 272 of 2013 Smt Tarawat Vs Dr Arun Kumar Singhal may be set aside.

18. Learned A.G.A appearing for the State has opposed this case on the basis that the factual disputes are involved in this matter but, so far as the legal issue is concerned, he has no objection to the contention of learned counsel for the revisionist.

19. Having heard learned counsels for the parties and after perusal of material placed on record, it is evident that the husband of the opposite party, died on 29.09.2006. The learned counsel for the revisionist filed a supplementary affidavit thereby, appending the death certificate dated 29.09.2009 of the husband of opposite party, namely Parshuram, which clearly shows that the husband of the opposite party died on 29.09.2009 and admittedly this fact could not be placed before the trial court due to inadvertence of the counsel for the revisionist. The law is very clear on this point that the litigant would not be left to be suffered for inadvertence, mistake or ignorance on the part of his counsel. If it is found true that the date of death of the husband of opposite party no. 2 is actually 29.09.2009 and not 29.09.2006 then, certainly there must be change in the nature of judgment and order which has been earlier passed by the trial court.

20. When this court examines the powers of the sessions judge in revision as envisaged under section 399 (1) of Cr.P.C., it is abundantly clear that sessions judge may exercise all or any of the powers which may be exercised by the High Court under sub-section (1) of section 401 of Cr.P.C. Undoubtedly, the High Court has ample power under section 401 (1) read with section 397 of Cr.P.C. to call for additional evidence to look into the correctness, legality or propriety of any finding, sentence or order recorded or passed.

21. In view of the aforesaid submissions and discussions, this Court is of the firm opinion that the power envisaged under section 399 (1) of Cr.P.C. is analogous to the provision of section 401 (1) of Cr.P.C. and therefore, the trial court can also take an additional evidence for examining the regularity of any proceedings, propriety of findings, legality or order passed by the subordinate courts. This controversy has also been settled in case of Vinod Kumar Sharma Versus Mohrawati and in case of Bhagwan Swaroop, which also covers the case of the present revisionist.

22. Resultantly, the impugned order dated 26.09.2015, is hereby set aside.

23. Matter is transmitted back to the court concerned for passing a fresh order after taking additional evidence, which will be submitted by the revisionist and after affording opportunity to the concerned parties in accordance with law.

24. The revisionist is directed to submit this order before the trial court within a period of forty five days from the date of this order and the trial court shall conclude the proceeding, in expedition thereafter.

25. All the issues are open before the trial court to decide afresh.

26. With the aforesaid observations, the instant revision is hereby allowed.

Criminal Law - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Sections 307 & 504 - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 451 - Against seizure of property by police - The accused armed with rifle, started abusing informant and other persons, fired with his licensed rifle, in which informant escaped - Charge sheet - Licensed rifle taken into possession by police, deposited in treasury - Release Application - Rejected - Revisionist was valid licensee of impugned rifle - Held, Incharge (Arms/ADM (Administration) reported to concerned Magistrate that licence does not belong to same District therefore, it was not possible for authority to verify arms licence - In absence of any proceeding regarding confiscation and cancellation of rifle, it would be case property, release order may be passed - Prosecution may take snaps of rifle and preserve it as document for production in court - The Magistrate was empowered to impose some conditions while releasing rifle - Informant has not supported prosecution version - Impugned order quashed, release application allowed -

3. In brief, facts of the case are that Lakhma, opposite party no.2 lodged an FIR on 15.06.2020 with the allegations that accused Gyanendra has enmity with him due to altercation occurred two years ago. On 15.06.2020 at about 12:00 noon, the informant, Lakhma, Surendra, Lal Singh, Harveer, Manoj were sitting and watching the government work going on near the pond when the accused reached with rifle and started abusing him and when the informant prevented him, he fired upon him with his licensed rifle with the intention to kill him in which he escaped. On the above facts the informant lodged the FIR for initiation of legal proceeding against him.

4. After investigation charge sheet had been submitted against the revisionist under Sections 307 and 504 IPC and his licensed rifle had been taken into possession by the police. The revisionist moved an application in the Court of ACJM on which a report had been called for and thereafter the concerned court rejected the release application on 20.07.2020 which is impugned herein.

5. The revisionist has challenged the impugned order on the grounds that it is illegal and unfair and has been passed ignoring the facts and law involved in the case even without applying judicial mind and without considering background of the case in hasty manner which is bad in the eyes of law. It has been held by the Apex Court that articles prone to natural decay shall be released in favour of the owner subject to certain conditions but the trial court rejected the release application in illegal and arbitrary manner. The FIR version is totally misconceived and has been lodged merely to solve the old pending enmity. The informant did not sustain any injury and is alleged to have escaped, hence the revision be allowed and the impugned order be set aside.

6. Learned counsel for the revisionist argued that virtually an FIR had been lodged by the wife of the revisionist namely Kavita Devi regarding the incident dated 25.10.2018 occurred at about 09:00 a.m. about which an FIR under Sections 394, 379, 511, 452 and 506 IPC had been lodged. The informant has lodged the present FIR to mount pressure upon the revisionist to compromise the previously lodged criminal case and there is no truthfulness in the FIR.

7. The revisionist has also filed statement of PW-1, Lakhma i.e. informant through supplementary affidavit which shows that the revisionist had not fired upon the informant. He had not seen the revisionist firing upon him virtually. At the alleged place of occurrence there were several monkeys fighting with each other and a fire occurred for dispersing them. Some of the persons informed that the revisionist had fired upon him. He had not received any firearm injury and had also not seen the revisionist firing upon him. On the hearsay of villagers he had lodged the FIR. He himself had not written the complaint. Informant - opposite party no.2 has been declared hostile and he was cross-examined by the Government Advocate but even in such cross-examination he did not favour the prosecution case. In cross-examination by the defence he deposed that he is only 8th pass. The report had neither been written by him nor it had been read over to him. He had not received any injury and he was not medically examined. The revisionist had not abused him. The witness was also cross-examined by the court in which he deposed that at the time of alleged occurrence, the accused had no weapon with him. He could not say as to which person had written the complaint. He had only signed the complaint. On the day of occurrence he was not interrogated by the police. Day after the incident he was summoned for interrogation by the police and he had stated that an explosion had been made for dispersing the monkeys. He had lodged the complaint against the accused on the saying of some villagers.

8. From the above deposition of the informant it is very much clear that the informant opposite party no.2 has not supported the prosecution case in his statement.

9. From perusal of the record it transpires that the impugned licensed rifle has been taken into custody by the police and has been deposited in police malkhana (treasury). Before passing the impugned order, the concerned Magistrate had summoned the report from District Magistrate/Additional District Magistrate about which a report had been submitted on 17.07.2020 to the effect that the arms licence does not belong to District Bulandshahar, hence no proceeding for its cancellation is possible from the office of District Magistrate, Bulandshahar. It has also been reiterated that till 16.07.2020, no police report regarding confiscation of the impugned rifle had been received.

10. From perusal of record it transpires that the revisionist is the valid licensee of the impugned rifle and it is valid upto 24.05.2025.

11. A counter affidavit has been filed by the Sub-Inspector of Police Station Jahangirabad in which it has been stated that about the alleged offence, a criminal case is pending in the court, the impugned rifle has been used in commission of crime and a report has been submitted for cancellation of licence before the District Magistrate, Bulandshahar.

12. However, no copy of such report has been annexed with the counter affidavit filed on behalf of the State and it is very much clear from the version of said Sub-Inspector that till 16.07.2020 no report for confiscation of the impugned rifle had been sent by the concerned police station to the office of District Magistrate. Incharge (Arms/ADM (Administration), Bulandshahar has also reported to the concerned Magistrate on 17.07.2020 that since the licence of the impugned rifle does not belong to District Bulandshahar, therefore, it is not possible for the authority at Bulandshahar to verify the arms licence. From perusal of photocopy of the arms licence it transpires that the arms licence for the impugned rifle had been issued by the ADM, Rajori, Jammu and Kashmir. Hence, if the police and administration of District Bulandshahar were of the view that on the basis of FIR, the arms licence of the accused must be concealed, it was their duty to approach the concerned authority to convey the whole facts for getting the licence cancelled and the rifle confiscated. There is no iota of evidence that any such step has been taken by the police or the administration of District Bulandshahar. Hence, this Court is of the view that in absence of any proceeding regarding confiscation and cancellation of the impugned rifle, the rifle would be treated to be case property about which a release order may be passed under Chapter XXXIV of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Section 451 CrPC deals with the custody and disposal of the case property during the pendency of the trial. For ready reference Section 451 CrPC reads as under:-

"451. Order for custody and disposal of property pending trial in certain cases.-* When any property is produced before any Criminal Court during any inquiry or trial, the Court may make such order as it thinks fit for the proper custody of such property pending the conclusion of the inquiry or trial, and, if the property is subject to speedy and natural decay, or if it is otherwise expedient so to do, the Court may, after recording such evidence as it thinks necessary, order it to be sold or otherwise disposed of.

Explanation.- For the purposes of this section, "property" includes-

(a) property of any kind or document which is produced before the Court or which is in its custody,

(b) any property regarding which an offence appears to have been committed or which appears to have been used for the commission of any offence."

13. In Sunder Bhai Amba Lal Desai Vs. Gujrat State, (2002) 10 SCC 283 the Apex Court held that; (i) owner of the article would not suffer because of its remaining unused or by its misappropriation, (ii) court or the police would not be required to keep the article in safe custody, (iii) if the proper panchanama before handing over possession of article is prepared, that can be used in evidence instead of its production before the Court during the trial. If necessary, evidence could also be recorded describing the nature of the properly in detail, (iv) this jurisdiction of the Court to record evidence should be exercised promptly so that there may not be further chance of tampering with the articles.

14. It is very much clear from the perusal of the guidelines propounded by the Apex Court that the impugned rifle is also an article of which value would be diminished and it would be decayed if the same is not released in favour of the valid licence holder. There is no other claimant of the impugned rifle. Till now no report has been submitted that the licence of the accused revisionist is not in accordance with law and he is not the rightful owner/licensee of the impugned rifle.

15. The Apex Court has held that decayable articles should be released in favour of the owner or possession holder keeping its photograph preserved for production as evidence in the court. In this case the prosecution may take the snaps of the impugned rifle and may preserve it as document for production in the court at the appropriate stage. The Magistrate was empowered to impose some conditions while releasing the rifle that the impugned rifle would be kept safely by the licensee and would not be transferred to any other person till the final disposal of the case or the appeal and it would be produced in the court as material evidence. Even the photographs taken so, may also be produced as material evidence before the concerned court.

16. It is also noteworthy that there is no ballistic expert report to establish that any FIR had been made from the impugned rifle at the time of the alleged commission of crime. The informant who is main victim of the case has not supported the prosecution version. Hence, considering the above all circumstances and law relating to the release of the property during the trial, this Court is of the view that the rejection order passed by the Magistrate is not sustainable and is liable to be quashed and the release application is liable to be allowed.

17. This criminal revision is, accordingly, allowed.

18. The impugned order dated 20.07.2020 passed by Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No.1, Bulandshahr regarding rejection of release of the rifle is quashed. The release application shall be decided afresh by the concerned court in the light of the above observation. If the learned trial court proceeds to release the impugned rifle, before releasing the impugned rifle, the concerned Magistrate/SHO shall verify as to whether the revisionist is valid licensee of the impugned rifle or not. It shall also be verified that the impugned rifle had been purchased by the revisionist in accordance with law and that the revisionist has an upto date rifle licence on the date of release of the impugned rifle or not. If the revisionist succeeds in establishing the fact that he is the valid licensee, the impugned rifle had been purchased by him in accordance with law and he has valid upto date licence at the time of release of the impugned rifle, the impugned rifle mentioned above would be released in his favour if he further executes a personal bond and two sureties of the like amount to the satisfaction of the court concerned.

(Para 2, 3, 5, 6)

Criminal Revision dismissed. (E-13)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Syed Aftab Husain Rizvi, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the revisionists and learned AGA for the State.

2. This criminal revision has been filed against the order dated 21.02.2023 passed by Additional Sessions Judge-I, Lalitpur in S.T. No.481 of 2022 crime no.189 of 2020 U/s 308/34, 325/34, 323/34, 504 & 506 IPC P.S. Mehrauni, District Lalitpur. By the impugned order, the learned court below has rejected the discharge application filed U/s 227 Cr.P.C. by the revisionist accused.

3. Learned counsel for the revisionist contended that FIR of this case was lodged U/s 325, 323 & 504 IPC only. The injury report of the injured reveals that there is no serious injury which may come in the purview of Section 308 ICP. The injury of Anshul is lacerated wound of size 3 cm skin deep. So from this injury, no offence U/s 308 IPC is made out. Only one injured has suffered a fracture. All the injuries of remaining injured are simple in nature. So at the most, offence U/s 323, 325 & 504 IPC is made out. The Investigating Officer in improper manner has added section 308 & 506 IPC in the charge-sheet. The revisionist have filed an application 5 kha for discharge. It is also contended that persons of revisionist's side has also suffered injuries and the cross-case NCR No.200 of 2020 U/s 323 & 504 IPC was also registered against the complainant side. The real story is that several civil and revenue litigations are pending between the parties and due to this enmity, the complainant side has attacked the accused side. The complainant has suffered injuries while fleeing from the spot and they have got registered a false FIR. The learned court below without considering the averments made in the discharge application and the evidence available on record, has rejected the discharge application. The impugned order is unjust and improper and is not sustainable.

4. Learned AGA submitted that one of the injured Anshul has suffered head injury and his NCCT Brain Report shows extradural hemorrhage and fracture. Several other persons have also suffered injuries in this incident. So there is no ground to discharge the revisionist accused. From the evidence on record, offence U/s 323, 325, 308, 504 & 506 IPC is made out. There is no illegality in the impugned order.

5. The revisionists-accused are named in the FIR and prosecution case is that they hurled abuses to Smt. Ram Dulari the wife of the complainant and started to assault her, when Anshul, Narendra, Anantram, Prabhudayal, Maherndra Kumar and Devendra came to rescue, then the accused persons also assaulted them with lathi-danda causing injuries. The injury reports of Narendra Kumar, Mahendra Kumar, Devendra Kumar, Prabhudayal, Smt. Ram Dulari and Anshul are part of the record. Injured Prabhudayal, Smt. Ram Dulari and Anshul has suffered head injuries. It also appears from the perusal of the record that injured Anshul was referred to medical college Jhansi and his NCCT Brain Report mentions extradural hemorrhage, sub arachnoid hemorrhage, FEW FOCI of hemorrhage contusions, associated fractures. His C.T. scan report also indicates non-displaced fracture at right temporal bone. So it is clear from the injury report of Anshul that he has suffered serious head injuries which may be fatal.

6. It also appears from the material on record that there are cross-versions. Both the parties have lodged report against each other and which party is aggressor, is a matter of trial. So this cannot be a ground for discharge.

7. Section 308 IPC provides as follows:

"Whoever does any act with such intention or knowledge and under such circumstances that, if he by that act caused death, he would be guilty of culpable homicide not amounting to murder, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to three years, or with fine, or with both; and, if hurt is caused to any person by such act, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to seven years, or with fine, or with both."

8. Section 308 IPC consists of two parts. The first part deals with the cases of no injury while the second part reveals, cases in which injury has been caused. So what is material is intention or knowledge. Even in a no injury case, section 308 IPC may apply. It is settled law that at the stage of framing of charge only prima-facie case is to be seen. The remaining things are matter of trial and can be judged after evidence. While in this case one of the injured has suffered serious head injury. So there is sufficient evidence on record against the revisionist-accused on the basis of which charges in section mentioned in the charge-sheet can be made. So there is no sufficient ground to discharge.

9. The learned court below has narrated the averments of the discharge application, the facts of the case, the evidence available on record and after analyzing it, has come to the conclusion that there is no sufficient ground to discharge the accused and has rejected the discharge application. The impugned order is detailed and reasoned one. There is no illegality or infirmity in the impugned order.

10. Accordingly the revision is devoid of merits and is hereby dismissed.

4. Rajendra Singh Vs St. of UP, A.I.R. 2007 SC 2786

(Delivered by Hon'ble Syed Aftab Husain Rizvi, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the revisionists, learned AGA for the State and learned counsel for opposite party no.2 the first informant.

2. This criminal revision has been filed against the order dated 20.05.2022 passed by Special Judge (Exclusive Court POCSO Act)/ Additional Sessions Judge, Etah in S.T. No.736 of 2021 (State vs. Himanshu) U/s 323, 504, 354 Kha, 376/511 IPC & 7/8 POCSO Act, P.S. Mirhachi, District Etah. By the impugned order, the learned court below on an application u/s 319 Cr.P.C. has summoned the revisionist Ravi alias Ravindra and Deependra to face trial with co-accused for offence U/s 323, 504, 354 Kha read with section 34, 376/511 IPC and 7/8 POCSO Act.

3. The FIR of this case was lodged on 20.05.2021 by father of the victim alleging therein that on 17.05.2022 her minor daughter aged about 13 years has gone out to throw garbage at the field. In the maize field, Ravi alias Ravindra, Deependra and Himanshu were lying in ambush and they caught his daughter with intention to commit rape. His daughter put resistance then all the three accused assaulted her causing her injuries. They also put her down and tried to disrobe her. On her cries Ram Avtar (the brother of the complainant) and Veer Pratap his nephew came at the spot. Seeing them all the three accused ran away. After investigation, charge sheet was submitted only against Himanshu. During trial, the complainant and victim were examined as P.W.-1 & P.W.-2 and another witness Ram Avtar as P.W.-3. Thereafter, the prosecution moved an application U/s 319 Cr.P.C. to summon the other named accused of the FIR namely Ravi alias Ravindra and Deependra. The learned trial court by the impugned order, has allowed the application.

4. Learned counsel for the revisionist contended that during investigation, the Investigation Officer has recorded the statements of some independent witnesses who have totally denied the involvement of the revisionist in the alleged incident. Some of the villagers also submitted their affidavits to SSP stating the true facts of the case and these affidavits are also part of the case diary. After concluding the investigation, the Investigating Officer found that the revisionist were not involved in the alleged incident and omitted their names and charge-sheet was submitted only against main accused Himanshu. It is also contended that at the time of alleged incident the revisionist were not present at the place of incident. They were present at the house of one Ashok from 6:30 pm to 7:30 pm to attend the last rituals of the father of the Ashok and from where they returned to their respective homes. The involvement of the revisionist was not found in the alleged incident. the learned court below on the basis of statements of complainant P.W.-1 (the victim), P.W.-2 and other witness Ram Avtar (P.W.-3) came to the conclusion that the revisionist were also involved in the alleged incident and has summoned them by the impugned order exercising its power U/s 319 Cr.P.C. While passing the impugned order, the learned court below completely failed to take into consideration that no strong and cogent evidence was present against the revisionist and summoned them in a casual and cavalier manner. The learned court below also completely ignored and overlooked the evidence collected during investigation and has not considered them at all at the time of passing the impugned order. The learned counsel placed reliance on the case laws of Brijendra Singh vs. State of Rajasthan 2017 0 Supreme (SC) 411 and vide order dated 06.07.2022 of this court passed in criminal revision no.415 of 2022 (Sudhir vs. State of U.P. and another).

5. Learned counsel appearing for opposite party no.2 and learned AGA submitted that the revisionist-accused are named in the FIR with specific role assigned to them. The complainant, the victim and the eye witnesses named in the FIR have supported the allegations of the FIR in their statements recorded U/s 161 Cr.P.C. The victim has also supported the allegations of the FIR in her statement recorded U/s 164 Cr.P.C. The Investigating Officer ignoring the aforesaid cogent evidence only on the basis of statement of some so called independent witnesses has exonerated the revisionist in improper manner. The three witnesses examined by the prosecution during trial have again reiterated the prosecution version. So there is sufficient evidence against the revisionist. The learned trial court after considering the evidence and material on record has found that there is sufficient and cogent evidence and has passed the impugned summoning order. There is no illegality in it.

6. It is undisputed that the revisionist accused are named in the FIR. There are specific allegations that they also committed the offence with co-accused Himanshu. Specific role has been assigned to them in the FIR. Ram Avtar and Veer Pratap are named as eye witnesses of the incident. It is also alleged in the FIR that the victim has suffered injuries. The victim has been medically examined and her medico legal report is is part of the record which further corroborates the allegations of the FIR. The victim in her statement recorded U/s 161 Cr.P.C. as well as U/s 164 Cr.P.C. has fully corroborated the allegations of the FIR and has stated about the complicity of the revisionist accused with specific role. The complainant and two witnesses named in the FIR have also supported the allegations of the FIR. The Investigating Officer only on the basis of the statements of some other witnesses regarding presence of accused at somewhere else has exonerated them. It is a case of attempt to rape. the victim has also suffered injuries. Hence, her statement cannot be taken lightly and ignored on the basis of statement of some other witnesses who have deposed that two of the accused (the revisionist) were not present at the place of occurrence. The Apex Court in the case of Hardeep Singh Vs. State of Punjab AIR 2014 Supreme Court page 1400 has prescribed the standard of evidence required for exercising powers under section 319 Cr.P.C. The relevant paras 98 and 99 are as follows:

"98. Power under Section 319, Cr.P.C. is a discretionary and an extra-ordinary power. It is to be exercised sparingly and only in those cases where the circumstances of the case so warrant. It is not to be exercised because the Magistrate or the Sessions Judge is of the opinion that some other person may also be guilty of committing that offence. Only where strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person from the evidence led before the court that such power should be exercised and not in a casual and cavalier manner."

"99. Thus, we hold that though only a prima face case is to be established from the evidence led before the court not necessarily tested on the anvil of cross-examination, it requires much stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity, The test that has to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge, but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes un rebutted, would lead to conviction. In the absence of such satisfaction, the court should refrain from exercising power under Section 319, Cr.P.C. In Section 319, Cr.P.C. the purpose of providing if 'it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence is clear from the words "for which such person could be tried together with the accused." The words used are not 'for which such person could be convicted'. There is, therefore, no scope for the Court acting under Section 319, Cr.P.C, to form any opinion as to the guilt of the accused."

7. The test laid down by the Apex Court for invoking powers under section 319 Cr.P.C. inter alia includes the principle that only when strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person the power should be exercised. The test to be applied is one which is more than prima facie Case, which is applied at the time of framing of charge. The Apex Court in Rajendra Singh versus State of UP A.I.R. 2007 SC 2786 has held that the statement of witnesses to the Investigating Officer under section one 161 Cr.P.C. cannot be relied upon in recording finding that accused sought to be tried could not have been present at the scene of occurrence. It is further held that it must appear to the court on the evidence that someone not arrayed as accused appears to have committed an offence. The court need not be satisfied that he has committed an offence. It need only appear to it that he has committed an offence.

8. There is cogent evidence in the form of testimony of eye witness and injured witnesses. Applying the test laid down by the Apex Court on the present set of facts, it is clear that there is strong evidence then mere probability of the complicity of the revisionist accused and pass the test as laid down by the Apex Court which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge, but short of satisfaction to the extent that the evidence, if got un rebutted would lead to conviction.

9. The trial court in the impugned order has narrated the averments made in the application the prosecution case the evidence lead before it, the provision and proposition of law on the point and has analysed all the facts and evidence on record and has recorded the finding that there is sufficient ground to summon the revisionist for trial. The impugned order is detailed and reasoned one. It is just and proper. It need no interference. This criminal revision is liable to be dismissed.

10. Accordingly, the criminal revision is hereby dismissed.

4. Hardeep Singh Vs St. of Pun. & ors., AIR (2014) Supreme Court 1400

1. Heard learned counsel for the revisionists, learned counsel for the O.P. No. 2 and learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. This criminal revision is directed against the order dated 10.8.2022 passed by Additional Sessions Judge/F.T.C. No. 2, Azamgarh in S.T. No. 126 of 2018 (State Vs. Shashi Kant) Case Crime No. 367 of 2017, P.S. Kotwali, District Azamgarh. By the impugned order the learned trial court on an application of the prosecution, exercising powers under section 319 Cr.P.C. has summoned the revisionists-accused for trial.

3. The O.P. No. 2 lodged an FIR on 18.7.2017 alleging therein that the marriage of his daughter Hemlata was solemnized with Shashikant on 19.5.2015 and on the demand of in-laws Rs. 3 lac cash, one motorcycle, golden ring and various household articles were given in dowry but her husband Shashikant, parents-in-law Ram Asrey Chaudhary, Neelam Chaudhary and Devar Raja Chaudhary were not satisfied with the dowry and used to harass and torture her. They were demanding one golden chain and one lac cash as additional dowry and were threatening to oust her. They ousted her from their house after eight days of delivery. His daughter told him the entire facts on telephone and relative of the complainant kept her and got her treated. Thereafter, the complainant came and took her to Mumbai and got her treatment. After counselling he sent his daughter to her in-laws house but the accused persons again started to abuse and torture her. Yesterday on 16.7.2017 he came to know that his daughter has been burnt and killed. After investigation charge-sheet was submitted only against Shashikant, husband of the deceased. Investigating Officer exonerated the remaining named accused persons in the FIR on the ground that no evidence is found against them. During course of trial Rambhawati Kannojiya, P.W.1 mother of the deceased and complainant Pancham Kannojiya, P.W. 2 were examined. The prosecution moved an application under section 319 Cr.P.C. to summon the other accused persons named in the FIR namely Ram Asrey Chaudhary, Neelam Chaudhary and Raja Chaudhary. The learned trial court by the impugned order has allowed the aforesaid application and summoned them.

4. Learned counsel for the revisionists contended that revisionists are innocent and have been falsely implicated. The O.P. No. 2 with malafide intention and ulterior motive moved application under section 319 Cr.P.C. on false and frivolous grounds only to harass them. Learned trial court while passing the impugned order has not considered the established principle of law that the power conferred under section 319 Cr.P.C. is not to be exercised in a routine manner and it should be used very sparingly and only if evidence has come on record which sufficiently establishes that the persons have committed the offence. Mere doubt about the involvement of the other persons on the basis of evidence led before the trial court is not enough to summon them under section 319 Cr.P.C. The power conferred under section 319 Cr.P.C. is an extra-ordinary power and should be used very sparingly. It may be exercised only if compelling reasons exist. Some positive evidence must have to be there and that evidence should point to the specific guilt of the persons to be proceeded against. The learned trial court has failed to exercise its power in a judicious manner and wrongly and illegally summoned the revisionists-accused without cogent and credible evidence. The impugned order has been passed in a mechanical manner. It is further contended that deceased was suffering from mental agony and was under treatment which is clearly established from the medical documents. The revisionist no. 2 was on duty at the time of incident while revisionist no. 3 is Devar of the deceased and he is studying in B.A. final year. He has no concern with the deceased as well as her husband Shashikant in their day-to-day affairs. Learned counsel placed reliance on the following case laws:

1. Ramesh Chandra Srivastava Vs. State of U.P. and another 2021 0 Supreme (SC) 519

2. Sagar Vs. State of U.P. and another 2011 AIR (SC) 1420

3. Smt. Alka Vs. State of U.P. and another in Criminal Revision No. 1482 of 2019 decided on 13.5.2022

5. Learned A.G.A. and learned counsel for the O.P. No. 2 contended that revisionists-accused were named in the FIR. There are allegations against them also regarding harassment and torture for demand of dowry. The I.O. without any sufficient reason has exonerated them in investigation and filed charge-sheet only against the husband of the deceased who is in jail and his bail application has been rejected thrice. The complainant P.W. 2 and Rambhawati, P.W. 1 the parents of the deceased in their testimony before the trial court have fully corroborated the prosecution story as alleged in the FIR which clearly establishes the complicity of the revisionists-accused. The learned trial court after considering the real facts and circumstances of the case and perusing the evidence available on record has legally summoned the revisionists. It is also contended that deceased was well educated and a graduate. She was not mentally disturbed. At the time of medical treatment as disclosed by the revisionists she was present at Mumbai which is established from the child card prepared at Mumbai. Thus, the medical description of mental care is forged and fabricated. It is further contended that there is sufficient and cogent evidence on record against the revisionists-accused. There is no illegality in the impugned summoned order.

6. It is not disputed that the daughter of the complainant-O.P. No. 2 has died in unnatural circumstances within seven years of her marriage. The FIR was lodged against husband Shashikant, parents-in-law Ram Asrey Chaudhary and Neelam Chaudhary and Devar Raja Chaudhary. In the FIR there are general allegations of demand of dowry and torture against all the accused persons. The I.O. conducted the investigation and submitted charge-sheet only against husband Shashikant. On the basis of evidence collected during course of investigation the I.O. reached to the conclusion that father-in-law Ram Asrey, mother-in-law Neelam Chaudhary and Devar Raja Chaudhary have been falsely implicated and there is no evidence against them. It is true that the complainant Pancham Kannojiya, P.W. 2 father of the deceased and Rambhawati Kannojiya, P.W. 1 mother of the deceased in their testimony before the trial court have reiterated the allegations of the FIR and implicated the revisionists-accused also but even in their statements there are general allegations against the revisionists-accused regarding harassment and torture for demand of additional dowry.

7. The revisionists no. 1 and 2 are parents-in-law while revisionist no. 3 is Devar of the deceased. They were exonerated during investigation as their complicity was not found. The evidence recorded during trial is nothing more than the statement recorded under section 161 Cr.P.C. There is no additional evidence. During investigation the I.O. has collected the evidence that one year before the incident the deceased was living separately with her husband on the first floor of the house. She was also suffering from mental depression. She has tried to commit suicide on two occasions earlier. Her husband got her treated for her mental disease.

8. A Constitution Bench of Apex Court in Hardeep Singh Vs. State of Punjab and others AIR (2014) Supreme Court 1400 has settled scope and ambit of Section 319 Cr.P.C. The relevant paras 98 and 99 are quoted below:

"98. Power under Section 319, Cr.P.C. is a discretionary and an extraordinary power. It is to be exercised sparingly and only in those cases where the circumstances of the case so warrant. It is not to be exercised because the Magistrate or the Sessions Judge is of the opinion that some other person may also be guilty of committing that offence. Only where strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person from the evidence led before the court that such power should be exercised and not in a casual and cavalier manner.

99. Thus, we hold that though only a prima face case is to be established from the evidence led before the court not necessarily tested on the anvil of cross-examination, it requires much stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity, The test that has to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge, but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes un rebutted, would lead to conviction. In the absence of such satisfaction, the court should refrain from exercising power under Section 319, Cr. P.C. In Section 319, Cr.P.C. the purpose of providing if 'it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence is clear from the words "for which such person could be tried together with the accused." The words used are not 'for which such person could be convicted'. There is, therefore, no scope for the Court acting under Section 319, Cr.P.C, to form any opinion as to the guilt of the accused."

9. The Apex Court in the case of Brijendra Singh Vs. State of Rajasthan (2017) 7 SCC 706 in para no. 13 has observed as follows:

"In order to answer the question, some of the principles enunciated in Hardeep Singh case may be recapitulated: power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. can be exercised by the trial court at any stage during the trial, i.e. before the conclusion of trial, to summon any person as an accused and face the trial in the ongoing case, once the trial court finds that there is some "evidence" against such a person on the basis of which evidence it can be gathered that he appears to be guilty of offence. The "evidence" herein means the material that is brought before the Court during trial. Insofar as the material/evidence collected by the IO at the stage of inquiry is concerned, it can be utilised for corroboration and to support the evidence recorded by the Court to invoke the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. No doubt, such evidence that has surfaced in examination-in-chief, without cross- examination of witnesses, can also be taken into consideration. However, since it is a discretionary power given to the Court under Section 319 Cr.P.C. and is also an extraordinary one, same has to be exercised sparingly and only in those cases where the circumstances of the case so warrants. The degree of satisfaction is more than the degree which is warranted at the time of framing of the charges against others in respect of whom charge-sheet was filed. Only where strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person from the evidence led before the Court that such power should be exercised. It is not to be exercised in a casual or a cavalier manner. The prima facie opinion which is to be formed requires stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity."

10. Considering the entire facts, evidence and material on record it appears that there is no strong and cogent reason to summon the revisionists-accused to face trial in exercise of powers under section 319 Cr.P.C. While deciding the application under section 319 Cr.P.C. the learned trial court has failed to appreciate the entire facts, evidence and other material available on record. The court below has also failed to record the degree of satisfaction which is required to summon an accused under section 319 Cr.P.C. The degree of satisfaction is not one of prima facie case as recorded to the court below. Consequently, trial court has failed to exercise its power in accordance with parameters laid down by the Apex Court in a catena of decisions. The impugned order is not sustainable in the eye of law and is liable to be set-aside.

11. The criminal revision is allowed. The impugned order dated 10.8.2022 passed by Additional Sessions Judge/F.T.C. No. 2, Azamgarh in S.T. No. 126 of 2018 whereby the application under section 319 Cr.P.C. has been allowed and the revisionists have been summoned to face trial is hereby set-aside.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Syed Aftab Husain Rizvi, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the revisionists, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

2. This criminal revision has been filed against the order dated 10.6.2022 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 10, Mathura in S.T. No. 396 of 2016, under section 147, 148, 149, 323, 324, 325, 504 and 506 IPC (State Vs. Mahesh and others) Case Crime No. 152 of 2015, P.S. Chhata, District Mathura.

3. An FIR was lodged by O.P. No. 2 Smt. Taravati alleging therein that today on 23.4.2015 at about 7:00 a.m. Chetram S/o her Jeth has gone to attend the call of nature. When he was coming back then near the house of Mahesh, Ashok, Ashiwin, Ram Kishan, Mahesh, Bankey, Rajveer and Yogesh holding lathi, danda and Farsa and Har Dayal holding licensee gun and Gajendra holding a country made pistol met him. Chetram ran towards his house and all the accused chased him and Har Dayal opened fire with his licensee gun and Gajendra fired with country made pistol. Chetram narrowly escaped and entered into his house and all the accused persons also entered into the house and on the cries and noise Ram Jeewan, Vijay, Km. Renu and Shaym came to rescue him. All the accused persons assaulted them with lathi, danda and farsa causing them serious injuries. Injured were medically examined. After investigation charge-sheet was submitted only against Mahesh, Ram Kishan, Rajveer, Bankey and Yogesh. During course of trial two prosecution witnesses Smt. Taravati P.W. 1 and Shyam Sunder P.W. 2 were examined. An application under section 319 Cr.P.C. was moved by the prosecution and it was alleged that in the FIR nine persons were named while I.O. has submitted charge-sheet only against five accused persons. The I.O. under undue influence has exonerated Ashok, Ashiwini, Har Dayal and Gajendra while all the accused persons have actively participated in the incident. During trial P.W. 1 Smt. Taravati eye witness and Shyam Sunder P.W. 2 injured witness have been examined and they have implicated the aforesaid accused also in the incident. On the aforesaid ground it was prayed that all the remaining accused persons be also summoned to face trial. The learned trial court after hearing the parties by the impugned order dated 16.6.2022 has allowed the application and summoned all the four accused persons exonerated by the I.O.

4. It is contended by the learned counsel for the revisionists that I.O. has recorded the statements of complainant and injured witnesses. They have not taken the name of revisionists -accused. During course of investigation it was found that they have been falsely implicated and were not involved in the incident. On the aforesaid ground the I.O. exonerated them and has not submitted charge-sheet against them. The FIR has been lodged by the complainant on false and fabricated facts under the pressure of her wife and family members because there is some dispute between the parties. The revisionist nos. 1 and 2 are cousin. The husband of informant and his family members want to settle all the criminal matters and due to this reason they have falsely implicated all the revisionists. It is also contended that all the revisionists were exonerated by the I.O. on the basis of statements and evidence collected during course of investigation but same was not considered by the court below.
